

Audit Is Favorable For County Schools

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Calling the county schools' financial condition "sound and fiscally responsible," Greenville CPA Mike Joyner presented an audit report for the year 1979-80 to the Pitt County Board of Education at its monthly meeting Tuesday.

Joyner reported the board of education operated on a budget for the period of July 1, 1979 through June 30, 1980 in excess of $22 million, one-half of which comes from the state of North Carolina.

"The funds for Greenville City Schools are also channeled through the other half, which puts this figure into perspective," he explained. The report was given in two parts, the first dealing with the individual schools and the second with the monies from the central office.

Joyner made several suggestions for the board to consider in its 1981-82 budget, most of which dealt with whether items are budgeted into capital outlay or current expense funds. "I have seen you in years past implement changes that have brought about improvement, both in the schools and in the central office," he commented. "All in all, you have a very fiscally sound operation."

Pitt County Schools Finance Officer Dan Thomas noted that the report is filed in his office and is available to the public Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The board also heard a request from Grifton School

Principal Ike Baldree, representing the Grifton Parent's Advisory Council, for $7,500 to provide new furniture and a storage area for the school's media center. "We are merely asking for $7,500 more than you've already appropriated for shelving," he explained.

"The shelving was greatly needed but we also need furniture and a storage area," Baldree added that the media center had no furniture for primary students and no storage area for large flat objects such as maps and charts. "We have had no update since the high school left Grifton in the early 1970's," he said. The plan presented to the board would provide primary study carrels and all-wood furniture. It would utilize all existing shelving.

The board voted to table the request until clarifications on capital outlay and current expense budgetings, as suggested by the audit report, had been made.

Assistant Superintendent of Instruction Kathryn Lewis presented to the board a school attendance policy proposed by the committee appointed last month to study the problem. The policy allows a student 30 excused or unexcused absences. Any absences over 30 days require automatic failure of the course. The exception to this is when a student accrues over 30 excused absences, after which he or she may appeal to the principal for a ruling.

Under the policy, excused absences include illness or injury

Expect Budget Cuts Cause 'Great Pain'

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials on both ends of the federal funnel — giving and receiving — predict the deep budget cuts sought by President Reagan will inflict political pain on Congress and economic suffering on Americans.

Among the targets reported under consideration by Reagan budget-cutters are such politically popular programs as Social Security, food stamps, child nutrition and economic aid to farmers and cities.

"We begin what may well turn out to be the most painful political process through which any of us will ever go," Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., said Tuesday as the House Budget Committee he heads began studying its own list of potential program cutbacks.

At the White House, meanwhile, big-city mayors received the bad news from Reagan about his plans for sharp reductions in urban aid. New York Mayor Edward Koch said the president promised "those who are truly in need will not be asked to suffer, but all others, hopefully, will suffer equally."

Reagan, who must persuade a reticent Congress to support the reductions, was to meet with congressional leaders in the Capitol this afternoon to discuss his economic proposals.

The president also plans to make a televised address to the nation Thursday night to spell out his general view of the economy's problems and why his proposed cures are necessary to lower inflation and unemployment and restore healthy economic growth. He is to submit a package of tax cuts, offsetting budget reductions and regulatory changes to Congress Feb. 18.

Getting Congress to enact the budget cuts, however, will not be easy, Jones said as the Budget Committee reviewed 105 suggestions from congressional economists on how to prune billions of dollars from the budget.

"We leave behind the easy talk and get down in the trenches with 105 specific items, every one of which will do some damage to some people somewhere," he said.

Black leaders in Congress, who met with Reagan Tuesday, emerged from their White House meeting saying they feared Reagan's budget cuts will come down hardest on their constituency.

"We told the president we are gravely concerned that policies devised to rein in inflation do not disproportionately burden the poor, the elderly and moderate income people," said Rep. Walter Fauntroy, D-D.C., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Even as the administration worked on its spending cut proposals, Reagan's chief economic spokesman urged Congress Tuesday to raise the national debt limit by $50 billion to finance the current budget deficit.

The House Ways and Means Committee voted to raise the debt ceiling from $935 billion to $985 billion after Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan and budget director David A. Stockman said the government would reach the current limit in only a few days. Without an increase, the government then would lose its borrowing authority.

Stockman, who consistently voted against raising the debt limit during his four years as a Republican House member from Michigan, said he had no choice but to seek an increase now because "the bills are coming due and they must be paid."

"I voted against those debt-ceiling bills (in the past) because I had no confidence anybody was developing a plan to control spending," he said. "I have confidence that such a plan is being developed now because I am writing it."

Reagan is setting his sights on reducing the 1981 budget at least 2 percent, or about $13 billion from a total of $663 billion in estimated spending.

For 1982, Reagan's economic advisers are looking to eliminate between $35 billion and $40 billion from a $739 billion budget proposed by the Carter administration, congressional sources said.

Deliberating Garwood

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A jury of five Marine officers, all veterans of Vietnam, today began deliberating charges that Pfc. Robert Garwood collaborated with his captors during almost 14 years in Vietnam and assaulted a fellow prisoner of war.

The jury began considering the charges at 9:30 a.m. after hearing 17 pages of instructions by military judge Col. R.E. Switzer.

Switzer said the jury may find Garwood innocent of the charges if it believes defense claims that the 34-year-old Indiana native was mentally ill during the period of his captivity and could not distinguish between right and wrong.

Four of the jurors would have to vote for conviction in order for Garwood to be found guilty. If he is convicted, the defense would be able to present additional witnesses during an open court session on his sentence. Garwood could be sentenced to life in prison if found guilty of either charge.

Switzer detailed the charges in his instructions to the jury, saying Garwood is accused of communicating and holding intercourse with the Vietnamese by wearing their uniform, carrying arms and accepting a position in their army, acting as an interpreter during political indoctrination classes in POW camps, acting as an informer concerning prisoners' complaints, questioning POWs about military units and attitudes, teaching them Vietnamese, suggested they "cross over" to the other side, and acting as an armed guard.

The other charge accuses Garwood of maltreating Army Pfc. David N. Harker by striking him in the ribs with his hands without justifiable cause. In his instructions to the jury, Switzer said a POW is required to conform to the laws, regulations and orders of the place to which he is confined.

Warren Says Tobacco Tax Could Cut Sales

RALEIGH — State Rep. Ed Warren issued a statement today opposing a bill introduced Tuesday in the N.C. House that would add ten cents a pack to the state cigarette tax.

The freshman representative from Greenville commented on the bill introduced by Rep. Ruth M. Easterling, D-Mecklenburg, which would increase the current two-cents-a-pack tax to 12 cents, with three fourths of the proceeds channeled to the state Highway Fund.

"I oppose any tax on tobacco," Warren observed. "The tobacco industry has been fighting constantly to defend their program for years. With the constant struggle with scrap tobacco, along with the rising cost of production, additional taxes would be disastrous to the tobacco industry."

The Pitt representative pointed out that "taxes on cigarettes sold in North Carolina in fiscal year 1980 amounted to over $124 million" and he contended that an increase in the state's cigarette tax rate "would not only affect the economy in our state but in other states as well."

He stated, "Higher taxes lead to a decrease in demand, which leads to less leaf and cigarette production. This can lead to substantial losses to the North Carolina economy, both at the factory and on the farm."

Warren mentioned that 42 percent of all tobacco grown in the nation is produced in North Carolina. He said, "We must cut expenditures or find some other method of financing the Highway Fund — not at the expense of the tobacco industry."

A legislative tax expert was quoted as saying that the Easterling bill would bring the financially troubled Highway Fund some $59 million a year.

Apparently legislative leaders give the bill little chance of gaining the necessary votes for passage and Mrs. Easterling was quoted as saying she hoped the measure would prompt the House-Senate Finance Committee to consider increasing the tax on cigarettes as part of any tax-hike package to provide increased funding for the Department of Transportation.

Khomeini Says Health 'Poor'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini publicly acknowledged he was in bad health today while delivering a unity speech in which he warned that those who stir up dissent "will land the country in America's lap."

The 80-year-old Iranian revolutionary leader began his speech to steelworkers and others at a mosque near Tehran by saying "The crowd is so huge ... But I cannot speak in detail because my health is not good enough. Therefore I will be brief and will say a few words in general."

Khomeini's speech was broadcast by Tehran radio and monitored here and in London. It ran about 25 minutes, not much shorter than his usual talks.

Sounding weary and speaking slowly, Khomeini said that strikes and work slowdowns plaguing Iran were not like those that took place during the campaign against the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who fled from Iran in Khomeini's 1979 Islamic revolution.

Bid-Rigging Sentenced

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A plea bargain in a state highway paving bid rigging case led Tuesday to a 90-day prison sentence for a Charlotte construction company executive and a $125,000 fine for his company.

Gary Williams, vice president of F.T. Williams Co., changed his plea from innocent to guilty in the bargain. He could have been sentenced to three years in prison and fined $100,000 and his company could have been fined $1 million.

Williams also agreed to cooperate with the government in its ongoing bid-rigging investigation, said U.S. District Attorney Arthur Feiveson.

Williams and his company each faced one count of rigging bids on North Carolina road projects. Williams entered the pleas both for himself and the company.

U.S. District Judge Woodrow W. Jones ordered Williams to report to federal prison by Feb. 20. He ordered the corporation to pay the first $25,000 of the $125,000 fine within 30 days and the remainder in $25,000 installments every six months.

Under the plea bargain, the government will not prosecute Williams or his company in connection with bids on any other North Carolina road projects or on two South Carolina paving jobs, Feiveson said.

The charges against Williams and his corporation stemmed from a 1978 grading and paving project in Cabarrus County, said Feiveson. The job was awarded to the C.G. Tate Co. of Concord.

But before submitting bids on the project, the Tate company asked Williams to submit an unreasonably high bid so the Tate company would be awarded the contract.

When the Tate company got the contract, it paid the Williams company $20,000, Feiveson said.

C.G. Tate pleaded guilty last November to charges of rigging bids and is currently serving a federal prison term.

Two other paving companies and four current or former paving company officers pleaded innocent last month to bid-rigging charges. Three trials are scheduled this week in federal court in Charlotte.

The first trial is expected to begin Wednesday afternoon for Crowder Asphalt Corp. of Charlotte and two company executives. The next trial will be that of L.A. Reynolds Co. of Winston-Salem and company officer Jon R. Reynolds. The third trial will be for Charles B. Wuertemberger of Hilton Head Island, S.C., a former executive of Rea Construction Co. of Charlotte.

Trials are scheduled later this month in Statesville for Carl A. Boggs of the Dickerson Group of Monroe and Superior Paving Co. of Shelby.

Since a bid-rigging investigation began last year, 23 paving companies have been indicted.

ANIMAL CHAIR

I ordered an animal chair for my grandson from SMM Mail Order Marketing Inc. in North Hollywood, Calif. It never came and my letters weren't answered. J. B.

Hotline wrote to the company on your behalf and also sent a copy of the letter to Family Weekly, the periodical in which you saw the chair ad. We got replies from both places, as did you, and you also got the bear chair with your grandson's name on it, you report.

Sending a copy of a complaint letter to the publication in which an item was advertised is always a good rule of thumb, Hotline has learned. Family Weekly is particularly responsive to advertising response complaints.

Dear Abby

Rings Can Be Dangerous

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Please tell wives how dangerous it is for a man to wear a ring while doing manual labor. Ask any machinist. Ask Neil Armstrong. You could do a lot of good if you stressed this point, Abby.

MRS. J.H.M. FLORIDA

DEAR MRS. M.: I have stressed it many times, but thanks for reminding me that it's time to re-run this item that appeared in my column about 15 years ago:

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those foolish wives who insisted that my husband wear his wedding ring at all times. My husband is a maintenance mechanic, and this is what happened. Yesterday, I received a call informing me that my husband was at the hospital! While jumping off a construction truck, he caught his ring on a piece of metal, and his finger was practically torn off. I was told he was lucky he wasn't killed since he lost his balance and fell under the wheels of the truck.

Abby, please print this in your column as a warning to other women who want their husbands to wear their wedding rings to work.

AL'S WIFE

DEAR ABBY: Nearly three years ago, I saw a letter in your column from a man who was tormented and frustrated because he had always felt that he should have been a woman. He said he was not a homosexual, but he felt like a woman with a man's body.

You advised him to contact the Janus Information Facility for legitimate, enlightening literature concerning this condition.

Abby, since I also had those feelings, I wrote for the literature, and was put in touch with doctors who studied my case. After much soul-searching, I know now that I am a transsexual.

I am now living happily as a woman. I was scheduled for a sex-change operation at Johns Hopkins, but that type of operation is no longer performed there because the surgeons who specialized in it left for other hospitals, so I am going to Cleveland.

Abby, had it not been for your column, I wouldn't have known where to turn. I was so miserable I was on the verge of suicide!

Please advise others with this problem to get help through a legitimate source as I did. And make it plain that not everyone who thinks he wants to be of the other sex is a candidate for a sex-change operation. Before surgery is permitted, the doctors make sure the person is a true transsexual for whom surgery is the only answer.

Thank you for saving my life.

GERI

DEAR GERI: I'm glad you wrote. Anyone interested in up-to-date literature concerning transsexualism may write to Dr. Paul Walker, 1952 Union St., San Francisco, Calif. 94123. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed long envelope for a reply.

"Home Owned & Operated For Over 63 Years"

Propose An Addition To Martin County Hospital

WILLIAMSTON — Action relating to the future of Martin General Hospital and efforts to attract more industry to Martin County were principal agenda items for the February meeting of the Martin County Board of Commissioners on Monday.

Following a lengthy discussion of ideas between board members and representatives of the Martin County Hospital Board and hospital staff members, commissioners agreed to have William R. Peel, the county attorney, draw up a letter of intent for their consideration. The letter will contain proposals by the hospital board to apply for the addition of a third floor to the present Martin General Hospital building.

Approval of the application process by the board is needed in order to allow the hospital board to move ahead with efforts to get approval for constructing the third floor, which was part of the original hospital plan.

The hospital board and staff notes that a third floor would be used to house swing beds, the term covering extended care as well as regular hospital beds. Extended care beds, it was noted, require less nursing care than regular hospital beds. It was also pointed out this type of hospital beds are in short supply in the area.

and are very much needed.

A total of 156 beds of extended care designation are open for availability in Region Q, which includes Martin County. The county hospital is hoping to secure an allotment of 55 of the 156 authorized beds.

Commissioners expressed concern about approving the letter of intent, stating they did not want the county bound to the project financially at this time. Estimated cost of construction of a third floor is about $1.5 million. This figure represents only construction costs.

However, it was also noted that about $1 million from the original bond construction funds remain available, and the possibility exists of getting further grant funds approved.

On the subject of efforts to attract new industries to Martin County, commissioners were provided what Industrial Development Commission Executive Director Percy Price called "some good and some bad news."

The bad news was that problems had been encountered in the water line going to the American Contract Packagers Plant in the form of bacteria forming sulphur gas. The new plant, west of Williamston on U.S. 264, is well underway in construction at this time. The formation of this gas has led government agencies to withhold approval of certain aspects of the plant's operation.

Price is urging county commissioners to allow industrial recruiters in the county to work with Rivers and Associates of Greenville instead of the firm of Williams and Works, an engineering firm which has to travel considerable distance to be on site.

The board approved the requested change of engineers. Board members also told Price that action should be accelerated to get a deep well and elevated storage tank in the area to serve both the American Contract Packagers Plant and the proposed industrial park in the area.

In other discussions on industries for the county, Price reported that to date little interest has been shown by any industry in purchasing the Coats and Clark plant at Jamesville; and that efforts to keep Seaboard Coastline Railroad from closing a section of its track between Parmele and Hobgood appeared to be losing ground.

More encouraging news presented by Price is that an effort is underway by Harry Hopkins to begin an operation soon that will include two computer terminals and other operations. Efforts are being made to secure the old Trinity Baptist Church to house the operation, which Price said could employ as many as 500 employees once it is in full swing.

A motion was approved by commissioners to enter a first phase of contract agreement with L. Rober Kimball and Associates of Pennsylvania to make aerial photographs of Martin County. This first phase will cost $58,650, with $9,000 of that amount coming in on a state grant.

Representative William H. Harrison (Martin-Halifax Counties) informed commissioners they need to take action if they are interested in the regional jail concept. He noted Bertie County has already passed a resolution of support and that plans for such a jail are being drawn. He urged the board to move swiftly on a decision, as the deadline for action is near.

County Manager Donnie Pittman reported that taxes amounting to nearly $400,000 were still owed on real estate for 1980, and that two big foreclosures are presently underway to collect taxes.

More Snow, Cold Over The Midwest

By The Associated Press
Snow showers and flurries were scattered over the Great Lakes early today, and a dusting of snow was expected in Erie, Pa., where people were digging out from a storm that dumped 16 inches on the city, paralyzing traffic and forcing school closings.

Most of the East had unseasonably cold temperatures, with below-freezing readings reaching as far as Florida.

Some Florida citrus grove operators pulled out their wind machines Tuesday night to heat their groves.

But early morning clouds were offering some warmth and protection, and trees were in a period of dormancy after a January cold snap, a Florida Citrus Mutual Growers Association official said.

Temperatures were in the 20s in north Florida and in the 30s in the central areas, the National Weather Service said.

Tuesday's storm in Erie, Pa., "tied the place up pretty good," said weather service meteorologist Dave Bell.

Up to 100 tractor-trailers were immobilized on Interstate 90 near the New York state line by the blinding snow. The highway reopened late Tuesday, but traffic was limited to one lane in each direction.

As many as 100 stranded motorists spent several hours early Tuesday morning at a Red Cross emergency shelter.

Light rain dotted southern Texas early today, and most other areas had clear skies.

Snow showers were expected later today over the northern and central Appalachians and the northern Rockies. Light rain was predicted over southern Texas, with most other areas enjoying sunny skies.

Temperatures were expected to remain below freezing over the Northeast, with single numbers over upper Michigan, eastern Minnesota and much of Wisconsin.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 14 degrees below zero in Warroad, Minn., to 58 degrees in Brownsville, Texas.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Where Will It Stop?

The cost of electricity went up last week.

We've been put on notice that property tax costs are going to be much higher.

The cost of all petroleum products is rising and will go much higher in the weeks and months ahead, to say nothing of a higher state tax on gasoline being considered and if not adopted, the state will seek new funds from other tax sources.

A $600 million school bond issue is being promoted . . . costing a billion or so, according to an earlier estimate by at least one authority.

Auto license plates cost more (only they're stickers, not plates); and

The Social Security withholding tax has been increased and programmed to go even higher.

Have we missed anything? Probably.

But when is it all going to stop?

U. S. Presence A Deterrent

President Reagan has pledged to South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan that U. S. troops will remain in that country, ending a Carter administration plan to withdraw our forces.

The move will strengthen U. S. ties to the financially healthy South Korea. The 39,000 or so U. S. troops now in Korea probably would not be a major factor in the event North Korea moved against South Korea. On the other hand a U. S. troop withdrawal might encourage a military move by the north. Thus a United States presence there can serve as a deterrent.

Expertise On File

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH — The membership of Carolina Consulting Scientists and Engineers is not fixed at 300. That just happens to be the number recruited as this pilot project was formed in the past few months.

Recruitment of additional specialists who have time available for special assignments — and that means, essentially, retired individuals — will continue as the Continuing Education Division at Duke University seeks to expand the network statewide.

At this point it is essentially limited to residents of the Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill area, and is overweighted with men. That is the natural result of the concentration of expertise in the Research Triangle Area, and to the first attempts to form the agency through university contacts. The leaders hope to expand rapidly both in membership and geography.

The principal qualifications are ability to offer a useful service or professional skill, and a genuine desire to serve other people.

Roster
 A roster of the consultants has been prepared, and will continually be updated. Those enrolling can set their own terms, as to short-term, medium or long-term employment; whether foreign travel is possible; financial arrangements required for services, and so on.

Some of the specialists list themselves available full time, while others are primarily interested in short-term trouble-shooting assignments. Some will negotiate fees, some will work for expenses, and some will donate their time to a good cause.

Why are so many signing up for this new venture? One summed it up this way: the need for intellectual challenge and continued growth. Others put first priority on helping others.

Joining the company doesn't cost the member. A state grant underwrites the program, with further aid from Duke University, while firms, agencies or individuals seeking special help will pay up to $50 for the roster. Eventual plans call for computerizing the membership rolls and areas of expertise so that on demand, a potential client could get specific rundowns on the availability in North Carolina of, say, a nuclear physicist with experience in transportation and disposal of spent fuels.

What other areas of expertise are among those first to sign up? A meteorologist who spent considerable time studying weather conditions in Antarctica; a man who knows all about making ice cream on a corporate scale; people intimately knowledgeable about textiles and furniture and wood, or the mysteries of physics, biology, pharmaceuticals, aviation. . . the list goes on and on.

Degrees
 On the first roster, the doctorate is common, and many have two or three degrees coupled with successful experience in industry, government, or campus.

The immediate goal of the organization is to expand outside the rather limited university setting in order to tap the wealth of retired individuals all across North Carolina, living in dozens of small towns or resort communities who have no immediate contact with the university structures. As leaders put it, "The roster is open to anyone who has a useful contribution to make, and who has a real interest in service to others."

Those who wish to contact the agency to either offer their services, or to explore using the system to find special expertise may contact Sallie Holden Simmons at the Division of Continuing Education at Duke University in Durham.

Other Editors Say Take A Big Step

(The Gastonia Gazette)

Every city and town, it seems, must go through a period of growing up before citizens realize that having a group home for mentally retarded in a neighborhood is not only not bad but it can have many beneficial results.

Down in Rock Hill, another neighborhood has seen a few of its citizens voice dissent to a suggestion that a group home be opened there. And once again, the protests are rooted in fears, fears that have never materialized in other, similar situations.

Gastonia residents have known the same fears. They arose on South Street among neighbors there when efforts were made to establish a group home. The protests killed that group home.

Later, a home for the handicapped was proposed for the North Modena Street area, but residents were persuaded to give it a try. Today the home is operating; apparently successfully.

Again, when a home for the retarded was suggested for the South York Street area, across from Ashley Junior High School, residents objected. They believed that property values would go down, that the influx of mentally retarded would bring an element of danger that their neighborhood previously had been without.

The home was established, however, over the objections, and the fears have failed to materialize. The residents of the group home are well supervised. They go to work in the morning and come home at night, just as other people do. They laugh and play and have moments of frustration — just as other people do. The only difference is that their minds might not be as quick as other minds on the block.

We believe that the residents of Rock Hill, like residents of Gastonia, will see the wisdom in opening their neighborhood to such a home and to extending the hand of friendship to some flesh-and-blood people who, for whatever reason, didn't come to this life blessed with total soundness of mind and body.

It is a big step for a neighborhood, but many are taking it.

Strength For Today

BLINDNESS
 Blindness is a terrible affliction. Most of us with normal vision would consider that if our sight were to be taken away three-quarters of our lives would be gone. But many of the blind do not feel this way. They have cultivated compensations. They have learned how to rise courageously above a handicap.

But blindness, now matter how brave a blind person may be, is a great trial to endure. No blindness is so terrible, however, as moral

Now, A Fashion Capital

WASHINGTON — You can say what you will about the Reagan administration, but you can't deny it has turned Washington into the fashion capital of the world. All it took was a rich First Lady from California, and her richer California friends and suddenly this dusty, peanut-farming, Amaretto-drinking town turned into a land of lynx and sable.

The new California "laid-back look" has affected everyone.

I went to buy a hot pretzel the other day from my favorite stand on K Street, when I noticed that Mary had a new look. Her frayed sweater had been patched all over with ultra-suede, her muffler was thrown back across her shoulder, her wool Redskin hat was perched on top of her head like a pillbox, and she was wearing white gloves as she made change.

"Mary," I said, "you look absolutely smashing in that outfit."

"Bill Blass designed it for me," she said. "I adore his lunch-time things."

"May I have a pretzel, please?" I asked.

She handed me one wrapped in a page from last month's Vogue magazine, and accepted my 50 cents. "Don't get me wrong, I don't have anything against Adolfo. As a matter of fact, I'll probably change into one of his suits when I move my cart over to Lafayette Park later this afternoon."

"I didn't know you were into fashion, Mary," I said.

"We all are," she replied.

"Thank heavens we have somebody to set a standard in the White House. Let's hope the sidewalks of Washington will no longer be filled with uncombed hairdos, messy gold chains and raggedy jeans."

"People do look a lot more pulled together since the Reagans moved into Washington," I said, as I ate my pretzel.

"Oscar de la Renta is supposed to stop by and show me some fabric for a coat I'm having designed for when I sell pretzels outside the F Street Club."

"I like Oscar's things," I said.

"Myra says she prefers Jimmy Galanos, but I don't think he's right for pretzels."

"What does Myra sell?"

"Carnations at 18th and Pennsylvania Avenue. She found her first Galanos gown at Goodwill Industries, and she's been loyal to him ever since."

"Isn't keeping up with the Reagans going to be quite expensive?" I asked her.

"I'll probably be criticized by some of the other pushcart dealers, but I think when you have money you should spend it any way you want to. It's been a long time since we women have been permitted to dress up, and I'm going to make the most of it."

"I don't blame you," I said. "I notice you're wearing a skirt. You always used to wear pants in the winter-time."

"Pants are out," Mary said. "Particularly at lunch time. If Women's Wear Daily took a picture of me in pants, I'd never hear the end of it. The important thing is for clothes to match. Ruffles are replacing sequins. That's why my sweater is so ruffled."

"Who designed the Redskin wool hat for you?"

"Yves St. Laurent. He said he wanted me to have something that was not glitzy or show-off, and it's perfect if you miss your hairdresser's appointment."

Energy Boss Is A Driller

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
 WASHINGTON — President Reagan's plan to announce decontrol of oil prices on the day the hostages were honored in Washington was scrapped when dentist-politician James Edwards, who as secretary of energy has started out as the Cabinet member least popular in the White House, worked on teeth back home.

The Reagan scheme was to play down politically unpopular oil decontrol by unveiling it Jan. 27 when the nation was preoccupied honoring the hostages. But Edwards was nowhere to be found the preceding weekend when the decision was made. Returning to Washington, he loudly insisted that decontrol could not go forward until he had a chance to look it over. That delayed the announcement until Jan. 28, when it was the day's top news story.

But where was Edwards that preceding weekend, when not even resourceful White House switchboard operators could find him? "Probably drilling somebody's teeth," a presidential adviser snarled. Intended as sarcasm, this was close to the truth. Edwards, a former governor of South Carolina and a practicing dentist, was winding up personal business in Charleston, S.C., that included removing a child's braces.

A General To Moscow?
 President Reagan is considering Gen. Brent Scowcroft, who was national security adviser in the Ford White House, to be U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union — a switch from an industrialist to a military man intended to send a strong signal to Moscow.

The soft-spoken retired Air Force general, a protégé and former deputy of Henry Kissinger, is no hard-liner. Nevertheless, Reagan likes the symbolism of switching from Ambassador Thomas Watson, Jr., a retired IBM executive, to a military officer.

There is another Reagan motive: Offering Scowcroft a spot in his administration commensurate with his high position in the Ford administration will help the president's relations with Gerald Ford.

Ron's Friend Jesse
 President Reagan showed how attentive he is to thunder from the right by conducting two long, private meetings in the White House within his first week in office with Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina over conservative objections to the new administration's State Department and Defense Department appointments.

Helms was sounding off as chairman of the Steering Committee, a loosely organized group of conservative Republican senators. Specifically, he complained that former Reagan adviser William Van Cleave had not been given a Pentagon post and urged wider authority for another Reaganite adviser, Fred Ikle, as undersecretary of defense.

Helms left the two meetings much cheered by prospects for national security appointments more to his liking. Nevertheless, he has not lifted his "hold" delaying Senate confirmation of Frank Carlucci, whose selection as deputy secretary of defense was the focus of Steering Committee grievances. Helms wants to see more state and defense appointments before he yields on Carlucci.

Unlocated First Family
 The supposedly super-secret "first family locator" which enabled President Carter's senior staffers to electronically spot any family member from Jimmy to Amy, is being thrown out by President Reagan's staffers as an unnecessary complication.

"We can't figure out how the damn thing works anyway," one Reagan staffer told us. Carter's aides were fond of showing off the electronic gadget but always warned against news reports about it for fear it somehow might violate security.

A Footnote: Although the new president's staff suppressed criticism of the physical condition in which the Carter team left the White House, a few Reagan aides groused anyway — especially Political Adviser Lyn Nofziger. He was appalled at the deteriorated condition of his office in the Executive Office Building (next door to the White House), once used as a hideaway by Richard M. Nixon and occupied by Ambassador Sol Linowitz under Carter. Nofziger immediately ordered a coat of paint.

Teddy's New Manager
 Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has departed from his family's custom of having a close relative manage political campaigns by naming an outsider, staffer Jack Leslie, to run for a fourth full term in the Senate in 1982.

Test Of Faith For Gold Bugs

By CHET CURRIER
 AP Business Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — The gold bugs of the world have undergone a severe test of faith lately.

Over the past 12 months the price of gold has taken its sharpest drop in six years — from a peak of $875 an ounce in January 1980 to under $500 early this week. Anyone who got a gift of gold for Christmas has seen it fall more than 20 percent in value since.

That's an awful lot of turbulence for an investment that is supposed to be a haven from political and economic storms.

As happens with most market convulsions, a wide variety of explanations, ranging from the simple to the abstruse, has been offered for gold's decline.

High interest rates are one of the first factors mentioned. At the moment, money-market investments are yielding considerably more than the rate of inflation.

That's important, because one of the principal arguments in gold's favor is that it serves as an inflation hedge. Right now, however, an investor in the 33 percent income-tax bracket can choose among several money-market mutual funds yielding 18 percent or better.

Even after taxes eat up a third of his return, that investor is still making enough on his money to keep up with 12 percent inflation — and without the risks of capital loss that come with a volatile market like the one in which precious metals trade.

The dollar, meanwhile, is strong for a change against most foreign currencies. The hostages are free, and so are Iran's deposits that were frozen in this country.

Perhaps even more to the point, many analysts say, there is a growing feeling that the United States is finally ready to do whatever is necessary to win the battle against inflation.

As the gold price floundered early this week, many dealers in the market said investors were looking ahead warily to President Reagan's economic message this week.

Reagan has already voiced some personal feelings about gold. At a meeting with Chairman Paul Volcker of the Federal Reserve a couple of weeks back, he talked happily of a bearish forecast he had read on gold as a sign that inflation might abate.

Volcker replied, "I would love to see that."

Tangible evidence of any progress against inflation isn't expected any time soon. In fact, with such recent developments as the full decontrol of oil prices, economists warn that the consumer price index reports over the next few months could look downright nasty.

There are, however, other signs that hopes are mounting for better news later on. Stock prices of oil companies, which soared for most of 1980, have recently been taking a beating.

With all this facing them, it's understandable that many investment advisers who have been advocates of gold have turned cautious or just plain negative on it. For instance, Charles Stahl, writer of a well known commodity-market letter, predicted recently that the gold price will go as low as $390-$420 this year.

Still, some diehard gold bugs are standing their ground. James Dines, an adviser who has sung the praises of gold for almost 20 years, says it is not yet time for his "MVAOOAOGASSS," which stands for "much vaunted all-out one-and-only gold and silver sell signal."

In the 1981 forecast issue of his newsletter, Dines continued to urge his followers to hold on. "We never promised you a rose garden," he said. "Gold bullion has already had seven significant declines during this major bull market."

"Those who have held these precious metals through every technical correction and period of bad news have racked up incredible percentage profits."

Claims Debts Running To Over $600 Billion

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A man who wanted to establish an oil shale-fired cement plant has filed personal and business petitions in U.S. Bankruptcy Court seeking to discharge debts totaling $613 billion.

E. Sterling Hunsaker of Kearns said the debt came about mainly because of his efforts to finance a proposed $150 million cement plant in Sanpete County, which included plans for construction of the world's longest self-driven conveyor belt.

Mike Sheppard, bankruptcy court clerk, said the petitions filed last week were genuine but he could not provide further details on the claims.

Hunsaker said that in dealing with a group of off-shore oil investors, he agreed to transfer the assets of S&T Marketing, which consisted mostly of gold mineral leases in Utah and Nevada, into a trust fund.

Hunsaker said late Tuesday he has claims for gold and oil worth $1 trillion, including claims on federal land just east of Salt Lake City which he said has gold at two ounces per ton.

Hunsaker, who describes himself as a self-taught geophysicist, said he has invented a process for extracting the gold, but has not been able to obtain the financing to set it up.

He said the agreement with the investors called for the union of his assets with those of other gold-mining lease holders. The funds for the cement plant and financing for the mining of gold ore from the lease properties were to be raised by selling trust certificates.

He said he eventually bought out the trust, then found out that the only assets in it were his holdings, and that billions of dollars in gold bonds, gold certificates and letters of credit had been issued against them — and that he hadn't received any of the money.

"It took me six months to gather all the documents against the trust and me. All of a sudden, it came to $613 billion," he said in a telephone interview. "I could have died on the spot."

He said suits have been filed against him, including one seeking $220 million in damages.

Hunsaker said he filed the petitions in bankruptcy court to challenge the validity of the claims against him and "clear my name of these encumbrances."

He said federal investigators are looking for the men who set up the trust.

Williamston Has Police Chief

WILLIAMSTON — The approval of the interim police chief as the permanent police chief for Williamston, and word that the go ahead on work on Skewarkee Gut has been given were top items on the agenda of the February meeting of the Williamston Town Board on Monday night.

James D. Thompson, who was appointed in August 1980 as police chief for a six months period, was unanimously approved by the board as the town's permanent police chief. Thompson's record during the interim six months period was praised by town commissioners.

The verbal approval of work on the Skewarkee Gut, with written confirmation expected soon from the Kennedy heads the 1982 hit list of right-wing groups who were so successful in cutting down liberal Democrats last November. Although he is a prohibitive favorite, the conservative activists are determined that he face a vigorous Republican opponent for the first time.

Environmental Protection Agency in Atlanta, was revealed at the meeting in a letter presented the board from Rivers and Associates in Greenville. Plans for work on Skewarkee Gut have been underway for several years, with a number of delays encountered.

An agreement between the town and the Seaboard Coastline Railroad was signed. The agreement deals with several streets the town plans to include in the Powell Bill program but which lie partially on railroad right of ways.

One matter discussed but not acted on was the possibility of drafting a town ordinance to control buyers of gold and silver. Proposals for provisions of such an ordinance would require dealers in gold and silver to be licensed and to keep records of transactions.

In another action item, the board approved funds to pay for a two day trip to Washington, D. C. by a student from West Germany now attending a local school as an exchange student.

Iran Holds

4 Britons

By The Associated Press
The fate of the four Britons held captive in Iran for several months will be decided "in a few days," Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, the head of the Iranian Supreme Court said today.

"The Iranian judicial system has completed its investigation about them and is on the brink of making a decision," he told a news conference in Tehran.

"We also spoke about some Iranians who have been detained in England," he added.

The arrests in August of three of the Britons, all Anglican missionaries, coincided with the arrests of 63 Iranians in London following an anti-American demonstration.

The four captives are: John Cleman and his wife Audrey, who used to run a medical clinic in Yezd, south of Tehran, Jean Waddell, secretary to the Anglican bishop of Isfahan, and businessman Andrew Pyke.

There was no immediate word on the case of Cynthia B. Dwyer of Buffalo, N.Y., a free-lance writer imprisoned in Iran since May 5.

"I don't want to be critical," I said, "but I notice you're still wearing crepe-soled boots."

"That was Halston's idea. He said it was the best way of showing the Californians that we in the East have a laid-back look too, and we intend to stick with it."

"He's right," I said. "There's no reason for the Californians to shove Gucci shoes down our throats."

A man came by with his hairbrush. Mary introduced him to me as Julius, her hairdresser. "He always comes by right after the lunch hour to give me a comb-out. If it weren't for darling Julius, I don't know when I'd find the time to sell pretzels."

which prevents the child from being physically able to attend school, quarantine as determined by a health officer, death in the immediate family, medical or dental appointments, court or administrative proceedings, religious observances, immediate demands of the farm or home, and educational opportunity. The board unanimously passed the attendance policy.

Three speech therapists from the county schools presented a slide show they put together for a state meeting in Nag's Head recently. The show explained how the speech therapy program in Pitt County works, who is involved and what it has accomplished since its inception.

Pitt County NCAE President Annette McRae raised some questions from teachers about the teacher evaluation plan, now being implemented in the county. McRae said there was some confusion as to "mutually defined goals" as stated in the plan. "It states that these goals should be mutually defined," she explained, "But some goals are being dictated before the evaluation is begun."

"If I were a principal and there was something I felt you needed to work on," replied Superintendent Ott Alford, "I hope you would agree to do it."

McRae also expressed the teachers' objections to opening their personal grade books for inspection by principals as a part of evaluation. "We have no objection to explaining to someone how these grades were arrived at," she commented, "But these books contain material that in some cases is very subjective, such as grades on themes, and we don't feel it should be opened for an evaluation."

In other business, the board voted to accept a position of transportation supervisor I, which they qualify for according to state law and the number of buses the county operates.

Associate Superintendent Craft reported that bids for the addition at Belvoir Elementary will be opened February 12 at 3 p.m.

Friday Seeks End Federal Efforts

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina President William Friday told legislators Tuesday that he has spoken with the state's two Republican senators in hopes the Reagan administration would change its position in the long-standing dispute.

Friday told the legislators that the decade-long battle is over educational freedom and not desegregation.

"The door is always open," Friday said. "I've had one conversation with Sen. (Jesse) Helms and Sen. (John) East already and I hope there will be more."

Friday made the comments after speaking to the joint House and Senate Higher Education committees, reviewing the history and operations of the 16-campus UNC system as well as bringing them up to date on the federal court action.

"This has been a costly and utterly unnecessary conflict, brought on by the arbitrary and unreasonable demands, and until some needed change occurs in understanding and appreciation of a public university, the wasteful process of litigation continues," Friday said.

The federal government, through the old Department of Health, Education and Welfare and now the Department of Education, has brought administrative proceedings against the UNC system charging a pattern of discrimination against black students and the five predominantly black UNC campuses.

The government is acting under a federal court order stemming from a suit by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund.

"You need to understand that our dispute with the federal government is not over 'desegregation,' as federal officials contend. If that were the issue, there would be no controversy," Friday said.

"The issue is control over the destiny of the university, whether it will determine for itself what shall be taught, where and by whom, or whether a regulatory agency in Washington will make those decisions," he added.

Friday also told the legislators that the university "never sought a path of defiance" toward HEW's Office of Civil Rights. He said

UNC tried to cooperate until 1979 when it was faced with an ultimatum of moving and closing degree programs "as a proxy for pupil assignment, in the absence of any evidence it would work as a means of racial integration."

He said that enrollment by black students in the 16 institutions has climbed 51 percent from 1972 to 1980. He said blacks comprised 3 percent of the enrollment at 11 of the campuses that were traditionally white in 1972 and today that figure has surpassed 7 percent.

For whites on the five traditionally black campuses, the figure was 5 percent in 1972 and is now over 11 percent, according to UNC officials.

Affirm Politics In Unveiling Stealth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Defense Secretary Harold Brown's contention that news leaks forced him to hold a news conference on "stealth" technology is refuted in a draft report by a House subcommittee, sources say.

The report by a House Armed Services subcommittee said the news conference was designed to bolster former President Carter's re-election bid rather than end the leaks, a subcommittee source, who asked not to be identified, said Tuesday.

The Soviet Union learned more about stealth, the general name for technology that would make U.S.

warplanes invisible to enemy radar, from Brown's news conference than from the news leak, the report concluded.

At the Aug. 22 news conference, Brown said news leaks forced him to confirm the existence of stealth, but he would not reveal details about the technology.

Commenting on the Carter administration's reasons for holding the news conference, the source said, "They didn't just do it to forestall leaks."

Brown said at the time that the technological breakthrough would neutralize any Soviet air defenses against American bombers, cruise missiles or fighter-bombers.

Farmville Bd. Okays Annexation

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE — An ordinance was adopted by the Farmville Town Board Tuesday night annexing a 35-unit addition of the Farmville Housing Authority (Pine Grove Apartments).

The resolution was adopted after a public hearing was held on the matter.

In a second public hearing a resolution of intent was adopted to undertake street improvements to Davis Drive between Church Street and the Southern Railway line.

There was some discussion by concerned citizens as to the ending of the street. Town officials said there were three choices, a parking lot for the church, a cul-de-sac, or a dead end.

The board took action to clear up the matter and decided on a dead end for the street.

In further action Mayor Linwood Mercer brought before the board a resolution approving the town's redevelopment plan, which had been reviewed by the Planning and Finance Committee.

The resolution passed. The board also approved a relocation policy which is one of the activities included in the Community Block Grant.

The policy enables persons who can demonstrate they are in fact purchasing or acquiring the dwelling they live in even though another person's name is on the title or deed to receive benefits equal to those received by the person who is being relocated, and resides in the house owned or being purchased by him.

A recommendation by the Public Works Department to the town board was heard for the approval of the erection of a mausoleum by Chester D. Worthington.

The board approved the request.

A public hearing was set by the board for the next regular town board meeting, March 3, for amending the zoning ordinance.

Another resolution was adopted by the board accepting the state Clean Water Bond Grant for the construction of 25,500 feet of eight-inch water main along U.S. 264 and U.S. 264-A, one 500-gallon-per-minute well and one 300-gallon-per-minute well.

Town engineers were also given the go ahead to proceed with bid procedures on phases one and two of the Langs Crossroads water main extension.

Phase one of the project will cost $82,348.50 and phase two will cost $19,950.60 making an estimated total for the project of $102,299.10, 25 percent of which is covered by a N.C. Clean Water Grant of $25,574.

Farmville's cost for the project will be approximately $76,724.33.

During the recent construction of the new wastewater treatment plant $370,000 was budgeted for rehabilitation of the town's sewer system. The board gave authorization to town officials to proceed with the plans, specifications and bid procedures for the project.

The town now has a 75 percent grant from the Environmental Protection Agency, amounting to $227,500, a 12½ percent grant from the North Carolina Clean Water Act of $46,250, making the town's share 12½ percent, $46,250.

Total cost for the project would be approximately $370,000.

The project includes $229,386 to replace the 15-inch line serving industrial, commercial and residential customers along U.S. 264 from Collins & Aikman to the canal east of Hardees, water proofing 155 manhole covers, repair of seven manholes and replacing 33 sections of sewer pipe at 33 different locations in the town. A TV inspection of the 15-inch line recently revealed it was beyond repair, and it would be cheaper for the town to replace it.

H. P. Norman, Farmville fire chief, after having been elected by members of the fire department, was approved for the position by the board.

The board designated April 13, 1981, as the date for sale of liens on 1980 real property taxes.

In other business by the board, approval was given for the transfer of ownership of electrical components connecting the town's power with the main incoming power source, Carolina Power and Light.

Town officials said there was some liability and maintenance involved, and part of the components are located in the CP&L station making it difficult for the Farmville utility department employees to service the equipment.

Also, the board approved 14 surplus tires from the Farmville Police Department for sale by private negotiation.

'Live' Broadcast

The Communications Club of Greenville Middle School recently broadcast its first "live" program via the newly installed MA-TV (closed circuit) system. This new system not only has the capabilities for "live" broadcasts but permits the flexibility of videotaping commercially produced instructional and educational programs and the taping of intra-school activities for later use.

Video production provides the students with new perceptions, new opportunities for writing and reading, and a vehicle for self-evaluation. The Communications Club will focus on various means of communication (written and oral). This includes movies, plays, role playing and skits, music, signs, signals and symbols, and broadcasting.

Students who participated in the first "WGMS" broadcast were Sandra Williams, Terry Spain, Ian Smith, Robin Vandiford, Mick Lemish, Skip Pascasio, Jennifer Byrd, Rena Adams, Shannon Shearin, Nancy Van Nortwick, Beth De Vanzo, and Anna Le Roux.

Projections A Handicap

By DON WATERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's financial chief says the Defense Department wants to end the unrealistically low inflation projections that have caused headaches for military planners in recent years.

Jack R. Borsting, Defense Department comptroller, told the House Armed Services Committee he is working with the Congressional Budget Office and the White House Office of Management and Budget to find a better yardstick to measure future costs.

Borsting's testimony came Tuesday as the panel began hearings on the $180 billion defense budget submitted by former President Carter for the 1982 fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1.

The committee arranged to hear today from the five members of the military Joint Chiefs of Staff about the spending plan, which the Reagan administration has said it plans to increase substantially when it sends amendments to Capitol Hill next month.

Borsting disclosed the effort to get more accurate inflation predictions after Rep. William L. Dickinson of Alabama, ranking Republican on the panel, complained that budget shortages caused by unanticipated cost increases had prompted costly delays in buying new weaponry.

Since 1970, the White House budget office has required all federal agencies to use a measure known as the gross national product price deflator to project inflation in their spending plans.

Borsting agreed this measurement has caused large financial headaches for the Pentagon.

But he said that since taking his post last August, he has had frequent discussions with OMB and the Congressional Budget Office on ways to develop a more accurate projection of defense spending.

"Defense is really different (from other federal agencies) because we use 95 percent of the fuel, for example, that the federal government uses," Borsting testified. "We are also buying high technology — the aircraft, the submarines — so maybe we should have a separate marketbasket to compute inflation."

"The fact that inflation is projected out five years influences defense much more than it does any other agency because our outlays are spread out five years for shipbuilding, three years for aircraft, and if you're consistently wrong in your outlays," procurement programs suffer, he added.

Following the lead of Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, Borsting declined to give a dollar amount on the defense increases the Reagan administration intends to seek in supplemental spending for the current year and in the 1982 budget.

He noted Weinberger's statement last week that priority would be given to improving military readiness and strategic and tactical nuclear forces.

Adultery Case Award Upheld

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A state appeals court has upheld a $25,000 award to a man whose wife had an affair, saying the court would not interfere with awards unless they were "shockingly excessive."

"Adultery with a wife interferes with the husband's marital and relational interests and ... this interference usually is labeled criminal conversation," the Missouri Court of Appeals said Tuesday as it upheld the judgment against M. Eugene Whalen.

Richard D. Smith brought suit against Whalen after Whalen allegedly had sexual intercourse with Smith's wife.

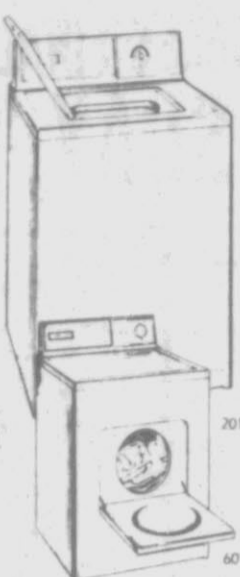

"STUDENT" DISORDER
MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Police fired water jets into a crowd of Iranian students who occupied the Iran Embassy here for about eight hours Tuesday, and arrested more than 200 of them, authorities reported.

North Korea Raps U.S. Aid Promise

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea's Communist Party newspaper today denounced President Reagan's pledge of military aid to South Korea as "a filthy criminal document... of aggression and war."

It said the communique issued Monday after Reagan met South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan at the White House "was intended to perpetuate the division of Korea, legalize the U.S. imperialists' military occupation of South Korea, reduce South Korea to a permanent colony of the U.S. imperialists and gravely jeopardize Korean reunification and peace and a rare document of treachery for selling the interests of the country and the nation... to the U.S. imperialist master." "Reagan must give up at once the reckless maneuvers to persistently pursue the policy of military occupation of South Korea and step up acts of aggression and war against our people," the commentary in Rodong Sinmun said.

"The harder the United States tries to intensify its policy of aggression and war by instigating traitor Chun Doo-hwan isolated within and without, the further it will be isolated and rejected by the world people."

It said Chun must realize that "clinging to the sleeves of the master will never be a means of prolonging his remaining days" and called for his resignation.

Reagan also pledged to keep an estimated 39,000 American troops in South Korea.

Detective Played Role Of Hit Man For Hire

By RON DZWONKOWSKI
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, Mich. (AP) — An undercover detective who says he foiled two men's attempts to kill their wives apparently plays the part of hired killer with all the grit the role requires.

For the second time in Sgt. John Fiedler's 16 years with the Michigan state police, his portrayal of a "hit man" has thwarted an alleged murder plot.

"I told them I was from Detroit," he said of the two suspects in the latest case, an anesthesiologist and a handyman.

"All hit men come from Detroit," he said. "Everybody knows that."

Fiedler alleges the two men hired him to kill their wives in a package deal. The doctor, "a very likeable, charismatic individual," apparently was concerned about the result of a divorce settlement, but "hate" permeated the case of the other suspect, Fiedler said.

"They did some real stupid things. They didn't realize they were talking to a policeman," Fiedler said. "They did all the right things if they were talking to a killer."

Fiedler said he agreed to a $15,000 payment for the doctor's wife and was still dickering over the second contract, but expected it to be about a $3,000 job.

Dr. Robert Arthur Guild, 46, and Gerald Lynn McKenzie, 43, of Lansing, who police said worked on occasion at Guild's farm in Mason, were arraigned Monday.

Eaton County District Judge Kenneth Hansen set bond for each at $50,000. Guild posted bond Monday night and was released but McKenzie remained in the county jail. Both face a hearing Feb. 18 to determine if they will stand trial.

Guild is charged with conspiracy to murder his estranged wife, Susan Mae Guild of Albertville, Ala., inducing someone to murder, and possession of a firearm during a felony.

McKenzie faces the conspiracy and inducement charges involving Mrs. Guild, in addition to a count of attempting to induce the murder of his wife, Judy McKenzie of Lansing.

The conspiracy and inducement charges carry maximum penalties of life in prison.

McKenzie also was sought as a fugitive on a felony-fraud warrant issued Dec. 24 in Lansing involving rental property, police said.

Fiedler said state police learned through an informant that McKenzie was trying to hire a killer on Guild's behalf.

The officer said he met McKenzie at a Lansing-area motel Jan. 26 and was asked to take care of Mrs. McKenzie too.

"The suggestion was made that she might be shot in a house burglary, or run over by a car," he said.

The two suspects were arrested without incident last Friday after Fiedler met Guild for the first time and allegedly accepted $135 "up front."

Five years ago, Fiedler said, he was "hired" for $500 by a woman in Erie, Mich., who wanted her boyfriend killed. The woman eventually pleaded guilty to a reduced charge, he said.

"Somehow, I just convince them that I could do what I tell them I would do," said Fiedler, 45.

Combining Census Suits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials are working to combine the multitude of lawsuits over the 1980 census into one court battle.

The federal Multi-District Litigation Panel so far has agreed to combine nine of the suits for pretrial proceedings. Officials of the Justice Department said attempts will "presumably" be made to do the same with 30 others still pending.

The panel, made up of federal judges from seven districts, rules on combining law suits when the cases have similar issues.

Most of the suits against the Census Bureau allege that communities or minorities were undercounted and seek an adjustment in the final figures.

Two cases, involving Detroit and New York, have already gone to trial and are now on appeal.

The judicial panel has so far agreed to consolidate cases brought by Cook County, Ill.; New Mexico; Duluth, Minn.; Philadelphia; Massachusetts; Atlanta; Miami; Chester, Pa.; and the Spanish Coalition for Jobs.

Those cases will be heard by U.S. District Court Judge Edward S. Northrup of Baltimore.

'Mad As Hell' Incorporated

By JACK V. FOX
VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — The Mad As Hell Committee is drawing up papers of incorporation. Henceforth, it will be known as Mad As Hell Inc.

"Pretty catchy, don't you think?" asks Roberta Bickerstaff, the 66-year-old housewife and grandmother who is president of MAHI.

"It gives us identity as an organization. People think of Peter Finch in that movie saying to go to the window and lean out and yell 'I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it anymore.' Now, maybe they'll think of us."

MAHI must rank as one of the most disorganized organizations in the history of grass roots politics. It holds no meetings. It has no list of membership. It neither endorses nor opposes candidates. Its principal means of communication is a local radio talk show where people call in to tell what they are mad as hell about.

As a matter of fact, as Mrs. Bickerstaff cheerfully concedes, it is largely a creation of the news media.

That is how she became famous in a provincial sort of way. Last spring the Ventura County Board of Supervisors introduced an ordinance to give themselves a 42 percent pay raise. Somewhat to their surprise, irate taxpayers assembled in the board chambers at the next meeting but the five supervisors blandly approved the hike.

That was when Mrs. Bickerstaff stood up and said such arrogance made her mad as hell. Others in the room rallied round. They formed a committee and announced they would circulate a petition to put a referendum on the June ballot rescinding the raises.

The "mad as hell" phrase caught on. It was picked up by the Ventura County Star-Free Press, by county radio stations and the wire services. From the Friday after the hearing until the next Tuesday, Mrs. Bickerstaff and her volunteers had obtained 5,200 signatures on the petition.

That was too much for the supervisors. At their next meeting, they caved in and called off the pay raises. And with that, Roberta Bickerstaff became an overnight celebrity with TV crews knocking on her door.

She was an unlikely candidate for stardom. The home she shares with her retired Navy career husband on a hillside in the Camarillo area resembles the abode in the old Pa and Ma Kettle movies with dogs and parakeets and cocktails all over the place and the furniture in amiable disarray.

Mrs. Bickerstaff was a professional dog handler in American Kennel Club shows

She says MAHI membership is conservative but not partisan.

"I know of two of the most active who are Democrats. They thought Jimmy Carter was a little genius."

Would she recommend women going into politics? "Hell, no," she says. "A woman's place is in the home, particularly while she's still got children."

Evening classes in officiating baseball, softball and soccer will be offered at East Carolina University beginning this month.

"Baseball/Softball Officiating" is a six-session course meeting Mondays, Feb. 16-March 30, 7-9 p.m.

Instructor is John (Doke) Grimsley, owner of the Greenville Trophy House and an officiator whose 15 years of experience includes the 1970 National League Playoffs and the State 4-A championships. The course is approved by the N.C. High School Officials Association.

"Soccer Officiating," a five-session course, will meet on Tuesdays, Feb. 17-March 24.

Brad Smith, ECU's head soccer coach, licensed by the U.S. Soccer Federation and founder of the Greenville Soccer Club, will instruct the course.

Further information about these and other evening classes is available from the Office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville, N.C., telephone 757-6143.

Advise Large Plates At Party

NEW YORK (AP) — Entertaining tips from one of New York's top party organizers include: Use big plates because food looks better on them, being less cramped, and use candles which are romantic and bring people closer together.

"It's best to invite guests over when they have some place else to go later. Then they don't feel trapped," the organizer said. "I like entertaining before the theatre or before another party."

Little Impact On U.S. Farmer By Grain Embargo

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's Cabinet is debating whether to keep or lift the Soviet grain embargo amid indications there will be little effect either way on American farmers.

campaign promise to end the embargo.
A White House official, who asked not to be identified, said a decision today is doubtful because it "is so tough."
"There's powerful symbolism on both sides," he said.
Lifting the embargo would be a gesture to farmers, but retaining or expanding it "would also send a strong signal internationally," he explained. "Economically, it doesn't make that much difference to farmers."

Agriculture Department economists say the 1980 decline in grain prices can be blamed largely on a glut of supplies from bumper 1979 crops, rather than the embargo.

Farm commodity prices may be slightly lower because of the embargo, some government experts say, and food prices probably have not increased quite as much as they otherwise would have.

When former President Carter announced the embargo Jan. 4, 1980, in retaliation for Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, he had the support of farm groups and their members.

The order blocked delivery of 17 million metric tons of U.S. corn and wheat, plus some soybeans and other products, that the Soviet Union had been expected to take last year. It exempted 8 million metric tons of grain that were specified under a 1975 agreement calling for regular purchases of U.S. corn and wheat by the Soviets.

To help offset the embargo's impact on farmers, the Carter administration spent about $3 billion to buy or otherwise withhold from the market all agricultural exports denied the Soviets.

Within weeks, however, farm support began to crumble as grain prices dropped. That slide occurred, many believed, because Carter had deprived producers of a lucrative foreign market.

The 1980 farm-income figure of $24 billion — for all farm products — represented a drop of more than 22 percent from 1979's $31 billion, but Agriculture Department economists say the tailspin was due mainly to leftover supplies from bumper 1979 harvests.

The department had predicted weeks before Carter announced the embargo that 1980 net farm income would be down sharply, probably about 20 percent, because of inflation.

Farmers' net income this year is expected to rise just as sharply — perhaps to a range of $27 billion to $32 billion — because of higher prices triggered by last fall's drought-reduced harvests of grain, oilseed and cotton and adjustments in livestock production.

Last March 28, however, the American Farm Bureau Federation asked for an "immediate end" to the embargo, contending not enough was being done to offset its effects at home and suggesting it was having little impact on the Soviet Union.

Department analysts dispute that assessment of the embargo's effect.

"Certainly," they said, "the suspension presented Soviet planners with a troublesome element, and even cautious inferences suggest that the impact has been more than trivial. Furthermore, the lower-than-expected grain harvest (in 1980) will magnify the effects of the suspension in 1981."

Still, when Carter officially extended the embargo last month, the National Grange was the only major farm group that still supported it. And even the grange said the embargo should "include all trade" with the Soviets.

How much has the embargo affected American farmers and consumers financially?

"Not enough to measure," says Bob Bergland, Carter's agriculture secretary.

"When you take the total into account — the corn growers as well as the cattle feeders, hog producers, the dairy industry and the chicken people — I think that the final accounting will show the grain embargo will have no economic effect of consequence one way or another."

Howard W. Hjort, the Agriculture Department's chief economist in the Carter administration, said that at the most, the embargo meant "lost exports" equal to about 2.5 percent of the value of products actually exported in 1979-80.

The lost sales increased the supply of commodities on hand and "tended to keep commodity prices slightly lower than they would have been otherwise," he said.

That provided "somewhat lower feed costs" for livestock, he said.

"Given this trade-off, the change in receipts translates into a 1 percent change in net farm income," Hjort said. "The net effect of the suspension on 1980-81 receipts and farm income will also tend to be mixed but — on balance — beneficial."

Beached Whale Chances' Poor

RANCHO PALOS VERDES, Calif. (AP) — Marineland workers cheered that a rare pygmy sperm whale is still alive after beaching itself, warn that the odds of saving its life still are not good.

Divers in wet suits Tuesday spent their second night in a row in an outdoor tank with the whale.

The divers prodded the eight-foot-long, 900-pound adult whale to continue swimming so that it would not lose consciousness and die.

The whale, suffering from a parasite infection and kidney failure, was fed liquids and antibiotics intravenously.

"He's doing very well, really. But it's a miracle he's still alive," said Tim Desmond, assistant Marineland curator. "Whales don't beach themselves unless they are preparing to die. The statistics on saving stranded marine animals are not very good."

The whale was given only a 50-50 chance of survival when lifeguards found it Monday, but Desmond said Tuesday the whale seemed to be a little stronger.

"The pilot whales and dolphins in nearby tanks are taking an interest in the whale and making sounds of concern," added Marineland spokeswoman Sandy Camplin.

Ms. Camplin said the sleek black whale is a deep-ocean animal that lives in the North Pacific. She said the animal is rarely sighted and never as far south as California.

Veterinarians were running blood tests on the animal in an attempt to pinpoint its problem.

But Desmond cautioned against optimism, noting Marineland's marine animal care center had saved only two stranded dolphins in the past seven years.

Meanwhile, in Alaska, the bodies of two humpback whales were found on beaches about 20 miles south of Juneau, the National Marine Fisheries Service reported.

Jim Brooks, deputy director of the service, said agency officials "found what could be bullet holes, but we were unable to verify ... We don't know positively that they were shot. There are holes in both." However, the NMFS is basing its investigation on the premise the whales were shot.

The whales, part of an endangered species, were reported by a private pilot who spotted them on beaches along Seymour Canal.

Brooks said one of the whales is a "fairly large female and the other is a small male, but not a calf." A local veterinarian who examined the whales said the female may have been pregnant.

Juneau whale researcher Chuck Jurasz already has received permission to do an autopsy on the whales, Brooks said.

He said the remoteness of the area would hamper an investigation.

Brooks said the NMFS is trying to contact hunters or boaters who may have been in the area in late December or early January.

A number of humpbacks winter in Seymour Canal and Stephens Passage. The whale population in the area is "probably approaching a hundred more or less in the summer," Brooks said. However, not all of those winter in southeast Alaska.

First Lady Has Chosen Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — The foster grandparents program will be one of Nancy Reagan's main projects as first lady, but her press secretary says Mrs. Reagan will not use her influence to make sure its federal funding escapes President Reagan's budget ax.

"She's not going to get involved in legislative matters," her press secretary, Sheila Patton, said Tuesday. "That's just not her nature." Mrs. Reagan will be briefed on the ACTION program Monday and then meet the press to announce her intention to work with the program, which she also did as first lady of California.

The program has a budget of $48.4 million this year, most of it going to pay 17,370 low-income elderly people $2 an hour for the time they spend with handicapped children and others with special problems.

"The greatest thing that happens is the formation of invisible bonds between the old people, who also have special needs, and the children," said Jack Kenyon, who heads the program. "All of a sudden they are important in someone's lives. Both of them blossom. They fall in love."

The conservative Heritage Foundation, in a paper prepared for the Reagan transition, suggested that programs using elderly volunteers "could be expanded if the budget permits." The report also recommended that if such programs are retained, "they should be kept small and non-political."

"Some of the services rendered by older volunteers are worth many times the money that the government spends on them," the report said.

Kenyon said he was not afraid the budget for the foster grandparents program will be cut "because there is a lot of support. ... It's proven its worth time and time again to the extent that approximately 30 states have got state money in it."

Friends Pushing Sirhan Release

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Friends of Sirhan Sirhan have appealed to U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to support the early release from prison of the man who assassinated his brother, Robert.

Sirhan, 36, currently in Soledad Prison, has served 12 years of a life sentence for the 1968 assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Sirhan, described as a model prisoner, is eligible for parole on Sept. 1, 1984.

Kennedy aide Patty McHugh said Tuesday she did not know if her office had received the petition, "and even if we had, there would be no comment."

Court Rejects O'Hair Attempts

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has rejected two attempts by atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair to eliminate what she believes are unconstitutional intrusions of religion into public life.

In one case, Mrs. O'Hair, head of the American Atheist Society, complained that the City Council of Austin, Texas, opened each session with a prayer. In the second case, she argued against display of a plastic infant Jesus in the rotunda of the state Capitol in Austin.

Anti-Crime Bills Prepared For Assembly's Action

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Bills backed by Gov. Jim Hunt and aimed at toughening penalties for bid-rigging by contractors and outlawing most drug-related accessories were prepared for introduction in the House and Senate this week. Hunt enthusiastically endorsed both proposals in a speech to the General Assembly Monday night, and legislators said both bills stood strong chances of gaining swift enactment, despite question s raised about the drug-paraphernalia law by some lawmakers and by prosecutors.

Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, planned to file today a bill that would make it a felony — punishable by up to 10 years in prison — collusion by contractors bidding on state contracts.

The proposal is aimed at the state's highway bid-rigging scandal, but would also cover other types of state contracts, Miller said.

Also prepared for introduction this week were two versions of the drug-paraphernalia law, which Hunt vowed Monday would be used to "put every 'head shop' out in North Carolina out of business." So-called head shops are stores dealing in marijuana pipes and other drug accessories.

Sen. Joe Raynor, D-Fayetteville, and Rep. Charles Evans, D-Nags Head, said they planned to introduce versions of the measures, probably this week. Raynor's home county of Cumberland is one of several areas in the state with local ordinances banning drug paraphernalia sales.

Several lawmakers were openly skeptical following Hunt's speech that a bill banning the drug paraphernalia could stand constitutional tests.

One former judiciary chairman, Rep. Parks Helms, D-Charlotte, praised the intent but said lawmakers must be careful to exercise "mature good judgment...You can't single out head shops. You have to draft a broad, public policy, and make it cross the board."

Another legislator, Rep. Al Adams, D-Raleigh, said, "I remain to be convinced it can be done constitutionally."

Zeb Alley, Hunt's chief legislative lobbyist, acknowledged the measure will have to be carefully written and said it will probably not succeed in closing all the stores, as Hunt said. But he said it may still be a successful weapon against drug abuse, Hunt's stated aim.

"Maybe it'll turn out to be just a policy statement. But it'll close some of them down," Alley said. "You can't outlaw cigarette papers and pipes, but you can certainly outlaw cocaine spoons and things like that...I think it's laudable and at least a way to try to stop it."

Burley Mitchell, secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety, wrote a memo to Hunt last week detailing current constitutional challenges to paraphernalia laws. It said eight federal district courts have upheld similar laws, while four have found portions unconstitutional and that a decision is expected soon by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on a Maryland law.

Evans said he would file a different version from the one pushed by Hunt, removing the section that would make mere possession of drug paraphernalia illegal — as well as sale of the paraphernalia. Evans' version was recommended by the House Select Committee on Drug Law Revision.

Both the Hunt's version and Evans' would make illegal nearly all types of drug-related items now sold legally, and would also include items such as wooden pipes and scales, which also have legitimate uses. The bills, however, make the intent of the user a factor in application of the law.

On Tuesday, several prosecutors from around the state were lobbying legislators for their own anti-crime proposals and complaining that the governor did not recommend enough money in his proposed state budget to carry out his crime program.

"It seems to me we've got to either back up on the legislation or come up with the money," said Peter Gilchrist, Mecklenburg County district attorney.

Randolph Riley, Wake County D.A., said the budget does not include enough money to allow implementation of the state's uniform sentencing act, which takes effect next month, and the 90-day speedy trials requirement that takes effect in October.

Riley also expressed doubts about the effectiveness of a state-wide drug-paraphernalia ban. "The problem won't go away just because the paraphernalia is on the black market rather than the open market," he said.

Slow Pace In The Assembly

By W.A. WERONKA JR.
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

There was absolutely nothing on the Senate agenda for Tuesday.

So, it came as no surprise that it took only nine minutes and 58 seconds from the time Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green rapped the gavel until the chamber adjourned for the day.

In between there was a 35-second prayer, a lot of silence when Green asked for committee reports, a few remarks by a couple of senators and an admonition by Green.

Green noted that "we have no calendar which is indicative that none of the standing committees have reported to this chamber." He also said he hoped the committees would be getting down to important work in the near future.

The Senate's light day seems to be indicative of the entire 1981 session so far. Even the usually staid Institute of Government's weekly summary referred to the "leisurely pace" of the General Assembly this year.

Tuesday was the 15th legislative day this session. The House has seen 122 bills introduced and the Senate 70. By the 15th legislative day of the 1979 session, 245 bills had been introduced in the House and 194 in the Senate.

"I don't remember things ever being this slow," Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Hickory, said.

Ballenger said Republicans seemed to be introducing the same amount of bills but the "Democrats are not."

Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Deep Run, said it was not unusual as far as he was concerned. He said the House was introducing most of the bills now as an efficiency measure. A joint study commission on tax revenues decided to introduce its bills on the House side, he said.

"We're hoping to save the taxpayers some money," Hardison said. "But the Senate had just as much input in those bills as the House." Hardison said the slow pace doesn't bother him.

"We're making progress," he said, "although we don't have a flood of bills. Our effectiveness is not measured by the number of bills introduced. In fact, what we do to prevent bills from being introduced is just as important."

House Speaker Liston Ramsey, D-Marshal, said the reason may be that "the governor has not sent any bills over. He flooded us with bills last session."

Hunt has sent some bills over this session but not close to the number he sent in 1979.

But, Ramsey said, the committees can handle only so many bills at a time, "so why not let them come in a normal pace."

"Even when we got all those at once last session, they weren't voted on then. You can check the record."

Ramsey said he expects the action to pick up next week when the committees begin reportings back to the chambers.

Professor Is World Authority On Kissing

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor
An English explorer visiting West Africa in the mid-1800s fell in love with the king's daughter. Their first kiss almost ended the romance.

The princess screamed and ran to her father in tears. She thought her beloved was trying to eat her — because she had seen snakes moisten their lips before swallowing their victims.

Prof. Vaughn M. Bryant, Jr. tells this story in lectures to his students at Texas A and M University, where he is head of the Department of Anthropology.

Bryant may well be a world authority on kissing. "It started as a lark," he said in a telephone interview. Teaching an introductory course in anthropology, he encouraged his students to ask questions about the origins of varying customs.

What about the kiss? one asked.
Bryant thinks the first was accidental: two lovers probably slipped while rubbing noses across each other's cheeks and noses in what was then a sign of affection.

"It seems obvious," he said, "they hit each other's lips and said, 'Wow! That doesn't taste like V-8.'"

The time, he thinks, was 1000-1200 B.C. The place, India, where the nose rubbing custom was in full swing.

There are other theories, he said.
Some argue the kiss developed from mouth-to-mouth feeding as seen among some birds and animals.

Others say it began as a sign of love between human mothers and their offspring.

Still others say men aped primates, which had begun kissing as a token of dominance.

Bryant doesn't hold with the chimp theory. He thinks chimps may have copied people, since the primates' kissing was not noted until very recently.

Besides, Bryant theorized, "It couldn't be too sensual because chimps' lips are very narrow and they have little area for actual sensation."

If Neanderthals or earlier fossil men and women kissed, he said, we've no way of knowing.

"They left no love letters, no paintings of kissing and no books on the subject."

On the other hand, an Indian holy man, Vatsyayana, wrote in the first or second century A.D. what Bryant calls the world's first how-to manual on kissing, the "Kama Sutra." In it Vatsyayana says the kissing customs he describes are already centuries old.

Bryant said kama means love and sutra is "a poem much like the 'Odyssey,' an abbreviated type of writing. They (the Indians) had sutras for all kinds of things."

Here are "Kama Sutra" directions for the three main kinds of kisses for lovers:

—The nominal: the girl is kissed on closed lips and shows no reaction.

—The throbbing: the girl is again bussed on closed lips but moves her lips back and forth;

—The touching: the girl touches her lover's lips with her tongue.

Bryant said over 200 passages in the "Kama Sutra" tell how to kiss a lover and where. It even tells how the kisser should respond to the kisser.

In "the kiss that awakens," a lover smooches his beloved forcefully enough to wake her up when he returns home late at night. She, however, should only pretend to be sleeping, the book says.

In "the kiss that kindles loves" the woman kisses her lover's face while he is sleeping. Whether he should awaken or not, Vatsyayana doesn't say.

"It was a male chauvinist society," Bryant said.

"I've also studied the Far East, but find really no references to anything that might even approximate kissing. The Far Easterners were more concerned with economics and trade: how to grow more wheat, and where wheat was shipped to. Sumerian literature devoted a great deal of time to how to make the best beer.

"If they were into kissing, they sure didn't waste time writing about it."

Kissing became a national craze in Roman times, he said. "Literally, they kisse everybody — the butcher, the baker. Kissing was as commonplace as shaking hands, at all age levels and both sexes."

Romans also classified kisses, he said.

The osculum was an affectionate kiss, the beginning, apparently, of cheek kissing still widespread today.

Women kiss each other's cheeks in greeting. So do politicians and military leaders in France, Spain and Latin America.

Britons and Canadians are one-cheek smoochers. The French, two. The Greeks and the Russians prefer the lips.

Bryant calls Americans' latest custom the "air smack." To keep from smearing their makeup with lipstick, women blow kisses instead of actually touching.

Bryant said the Romans also practiced the basium, a male-female type lip kiss more passionate than the osculum. Under ancient Roman law, a virgin who could prove she had been kissed in this manner could press for legal marriage to the kisser.

Bryant thinks basium led to "buss" as a synonym for kiss.

"(The word) kiss is very recent. You won't find kissing in Shakespeare or Chaucer." Both wrote buss instead.

He thinks kiss developed from the old German word, kussen.

The Romans' third type of kiss was the savium, which the professor translates as "lips puckered up to kiss." In Amores, the Roman poet Ovid describes savium as the girl who "eagerly kissed me with her tongue ... in my lips her whole tongue hid ..."

Among medieval knights, kissing apparently was a status symbol. A knight's kissing ability contributed to his refinement. To kiss nicely was a sign of gentility.

Kisses of greeting were strictly governed by rank, Bryant said.

—People of equal rank, male and female, kissed on the lips.

—Kissers of lesser rank kissed those of greater rank on the hand, knee, foot or ground in front of the kissee.

—The greater the difference in rank, the further from the lips one landed the kiss.

The sexiest people in the world reportedly live on the South Seas island of Mangaia, Bryant said, but until recently they knew nothing of kissing although the frequency of intercourse for Mangaians in their late teens and 20s is reported to be 21 times a week.

In fact, the professor says, the kissing bug probably didn't reach them and other Asian, Pacific and sub-Saharan areas until the arrival of explorers in the 1400s-1800s.

In many such areas there were taboos and misconceptions — such as the West African princess' fear of being eaten alive.

Some peoples felt kissing would risk losing your soul, since the soul was thought to enter and leave the body by mouth.

Kissing was also associated with many Roman pagan festivals before it became an act of reverence in Christian rites: kissing the altar cloth or priest's robes; kissing an infant at baptism, as examples.

Prefers Past Craftsmanship

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer
DAILEY, W.Va. (AP) — Lewis Wharton is a master of time who steps back each day into the simpler patterns of another century and a lost age of painstaking craftsmanship.
In a rambling workshop crowded with relics and memories of other generations, Wharton builds clocks whose grace and style recall the past as they mark the passing hours and days.
"There's happiness in a clock," said Wharton as he watched a grandfather clock gently ticking in his living room, its pulse adding to the sound of other clocks that echoed through the rooms.
Surrounded by the tools and plans of early 19th century craftsmen, Wharton holds on to the values of men who relied upon their own hands and skills to provide for their needs.
A tall, stately man who ponders every action, Wharton settled down to learn the art of clockmaking after retiring from his job as an oil engineer. After a lifetime of watching the clock, he set out to turn a fascination with time into a freedom untouched by routine.
"I measured time most of my working life, and I try to avoid it now," Wharton said.
"I work on a clock for a while and then maybe I'll go fishing or for a walk."

Everything's been overwhelmed by mass production and cheap production," he said.
Reaching into a drawer in an old ornate locker, Wharton pulled out a putty knife that once was part of the stock of his grandfather's store. Tenderly peeling back the blade's original wrapping, he proudly displayed the gleaming tool.
"Look at that. You don't see anything like that any more, and it cost just 22 cents back then," he said.
"I'll find a use for it."
Returning the knife to a box packed with identical companions, Wharton walked through his workshop pulling out tacks, ornaments and other knickknacks preserved from his grandfather's store, pointing out the careful workmanship in each item.
In the rafters above the drawers, pieces of timber salvaged from old cabins and farmhouses are nestled next to bits of old machinery from the days when America was a nation of farmers. The wood is cleaned and polished for hours before becoming part of a clock.

Electronics For The Housewife

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) —
By 1995, the average American household will be spending $2,000 a year on electronic products and services to be used for communications, entertainment, education and environmental monitoring.
This forecast from Predicasts, a Cleveland-based business information and market research company, says the electronics devices will do everything from plan the household budget and the week's meals to provide stock reports, place orders with retail stores and provide show-and-tell instructions for fixing the sink. All these miracles will be wrought, the firm says, using the telephone, television set, computer terminal and software.

18th-Rated Lady Pirates Host Tar Heels Thursday

East Carolina's 18th-ranked Lady Pirates close out their current home stand on Thursday, playing host to the University of North Carolina. Tipoff time in Minges Coliseum is 7:30 p.m.

"This is an important game for us since it is one of the five NCAAIAW league games," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "And I'm sure that they'll want to get even with us for our win at their place."

That came earlier in the season in a non-league encounter, when the Pirates took an 87-75 win that wasn't as close as the score indicated.

EC Looks To Climb Past .500

East Carolina University's Pirates, seeking to climb above the .500 mark for the first time since losing to Detroit in the first round of the Iron Duke Classic back in mid-December, travels to Raleigh to face Campbell University tonight.

Tipoff is set to 7:30 p.m. in the Raleigh Civic Center.

The Pirates go into the game with a 10-10 record, having romped over Samford University, 75-50 on Monday night. Campbell, loser in its last two games, brings in a 7-10 mark. The Camels were destroyed by Western Carolina, 100-65, and fell to George Mason, 79-62 in games last week.

Campbell is led by 7-0 junior center Tony Britto, averaging 13.2 points and 9.0 rebounds a game. Freshman forward Rn Curtis, 6-5, is hitting 12.3 points a game, while Lee Quinn, a 6-3 sophomore guard, is averaging 10.6, and Rodney McCants, a 6-7 senior forward, has a 10.1 average.

The Pirates are led by Charles Watkins with a 13.9 average and Mark McLaurin at 10.3.

They return home on Saturday to face the Athletics in Action in an exhibition game.

Carolina comes into the game following a 67-59 victory over Wake Forest. "We had heard that Wake beat them, but that was just a rumor," Andruzzi said.

"Carolina is a good team. They've beaten ranked teams like Texas and Virginia. They have some of the best talent in the state, and I think they are going to be a whole lot tougher this time."

Andruzzi complemented the play of 5-6 senior guard April Shaffer, who averages 10.0 points a game. "She does an excellent job in the back court. Then, they have big kids. I really don't think that our first game with them was indicative of what kind of team they really are."

And Andruzzi isn't only worried about the Tar Heels. Her own Lady Pirates have some problems. "Tuesday, we had two players sick in bed, Kathy Riley and Mary Denker. We don't know when they will be back to practice. If they get back (today), they won't be at full speed, so they won't really be ready for Thursday night. We also have a couple of other kids who are not feeling well, but still practicing."

In addition to Shaffer, the Lady Heels are led by 6-2 center Henrietta Walls, who has a 12.5 average.

Following the Tar Heel game, the Pirates leave for a two-game trip to the Tennessee-North Carolina mountains. Saturday, they face East Tennessee State University, currently 16-5, and coached by N.C. State coach Kay Yow's sister, Susan.

"They are a strong team too. They've lost to some good teams, and they've had two good recruiting years. We lost up there two years ago, and we've got to play well against them to have a chance."

The Buccaneers are led by forward Marsha Cowart with a 20.4 average, while forward Punkie Mills has a 13.5 mark.

That game will be played at 3 p.m. on Saturday.

Then, Sunday at 3 p.m. the Pirates will be in Boone for a rematch with Appalachian State, the team they beat, 96-54, this past Sunday. "I think this will be a tougher game this time," Andruzzi said. "They'll start (Murial) Higgenbotham (15.4 average) this time, and (Angelita) Horton should be ready to play too." Horton, averaging 12.3, missed the first meeting of the two with a sprained ankle.

"This second meeting between ASU and ECU counts in the NCAAIAW standings.

Following that, East Carolina has a Tuesday date with Division II power UNC-Wilmington on the road. Then, they have a week off before playing at N.C. State.

East Carolina currently has four players in double figures, led by Riley's 18.3. Sam Jones is next at 14.7, followed by Denker's 13.8 and Marcia Girven's 10.1. Girven is also the leading rebounder with a 9.3 average.

Cavs Nip Carolina In OT, 80-79

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The game between top ranked Virginia and 11th-ranked North Carolina Tuesday night was packed with emotion from start to finish, and the Cavalier's 7-foot-4 center Ralph Sampson touched on why.

"I was nervous," Sampson said after Virginia edged the Tar Heels in overtime 80-79. "I couldn't get real loose. It was a key game for us. We had to win; they had to win."

But the Cavaliers were the ones who ended up on top as reserve forward Terry Gates hit a free throw with six seconds left for his only point of the game. But it was the point that made the difference.

Virginia coach Terry Holland simply said, "There's really not too much I can say. Our kids just refused to lose. They certainly had every chance to quit out there."

"In the first half, a couple of times, we got our heads down. Carolina was kicking us on the offensive boards after we were turning the ball over. But in the second half, I got no complaints. We came out and played just as hard as we could."

North Carolina coach Dean Smith was proud with his team, even in defeat. "Give our guys credit for coming back in overtime after losing the lead in regulation," he said. "And give Virginia credit for coming back in regulation. They are a great basketball team. That was a great basketball game between two great basketball teams."

Smith took blame for the loss.

"It was my mistake for not going to the four-corners earlier than we did," he said, referring to when North Carolina held a 16 points lead midway through the second half. "We scored or got fouled everytime we were in it."

North Carolina forward Al Wood led his team in the second half and in the overtime, scoring 29 of his game-high 33 points.

"Our team has nothing to be ashamed of," he said. "We played our hearts out. About another inch and we would have been in here smiling and jumping up and down."

Virginia kept its unbeaten streak alive, extending it to 19 straight this season. And it was only the second time ever that Virginia has beaten the Tar Heels in Carmichael Auditorium. The last time was 1973.

The Cavaliers overcame a 16-point deficit midway through the second half to catch the Tar Heels and send the game into overtime, tied 64-64. In the overtime, Virginia got the tap and Jeff Lamp hit a short jump shot giving Virginia its first lead of the game.

The Cavaliers extended their lead to six points with 3:06 left in the overtime. But North Carolina began chipping away at the lead behind the shooting of Al Wood, who scored ten points in the overtime period and was high scorer for the game with 33.

The Tar Heels pulled within two with 18 seconds left. It was then that Jimmy Black fouled Virginia guard Othell Wilson, who hit both of his free throws to put the lead back at four.

Wood then hit another jump shot to put the Tar Heels within two, but was called from charging into Gates. Gates hit only one of two free throws, but it was the one he hit that made the difference.

Wood hit a jump shot at the buzzer and then a fight broke out between Wood and Lamp, who was guarding Wood closely on the shot. Police has to escort the teams off the floor.

For most of the regulation period, North Carolina dominated the play. In the second half the Tar Heels had built their lead to 16 with 11:53 left to play in regulation. But that's when Virginia began to make its move.

With 2:53 left, the Tar Heels still led 60-53. But Virginia scored four unanswered points to cut the lead to three. Then with 1:21 left, Lamp scored inside and was fouled by Wood. He completed the three-point play to tie the game 62-62.

James Worthy then put the Tar Heels back on top, but Lamp hit from the corner to tie it again. North Carolina still had a chance to win in regulation but a shot by Black rimmed out at the buzzer.

The Cavs were lead by 7-foot-4 center Ralph Sampson, who fouled out with 34 second left to play. Sampson scored 32 points and hauled down 13 rebounds. Lamp had 21 points, 15 of which came in the second half and the overtime.

Jaguars Edge Aycock

FARMVILLE — Melvin Sutton got loose for a layup with 31 seconds left and Charles B. Aycock then missed the front end of a one-and-one chance and a technical in the last two seconds as Farmville Central edged the Falcons, 44-43, Tuesday night in a frantic Eastern Carolina Conference basketball battle.

Earlier, in the girls' game, C. B. Aycock whipped Farmville, 54-42.

In the boys' game, Aycock led, 43-40, with 2:30 left when Kelvin Lewis, who finished with 16 points, missed the front end of a free throw. The Falcons, however, got the ball back moments later only to have Paul Thomas miss a one-and-one chance.

With 1:45 left Farmville's Stuart Gordon swished both sides of a one-and-one to pull the Jaguars within one, 43-42. A turnover gave the Jaguars back the ball and Farmville went into a stall. Then, with 31 seconds left, Sutton, who had worked himself free underneath the basket, took a pass and put the ball in the hoop to give Farmville a 44-43 lead.

A Falcon shot missed with 10 seconds left but they got the ball back following a jump ball and Gordon was called for not only fouling Johnny Howell but also for a technical foul.

Howell missed the front end of the one-and-one with two seconds left and then Paul Thomas missed the technical. Then, Farmville's Andrew Edwards stole the Aycock inbound pass to seal the victory.

The win left Farmville at 2-17 overall and 2-11 in the league and moved the Jaguars out of the ECC cellar. C.B. Aycock, on the other hand, moves into the bottom slot. The Falcons are now 1-17 and 1-12. Terrance Pettaway had 10 points for Farmville while Steve Lewis had 11 for Aycock.

On of the keys to the game was the Jaguars' strength on the boards. Led by Andrew Edwards' 12 and Ronald Dixon's 10 rebounds, the Jaguars outrebounded Aycock, 42-28.

Farmville led after the first period, 12-9, and at the half, 24-22. A 12-10 third period gave the Jaguars a 36-32 lead but the Falcons managed to move ahead, 43-40, with 2:30 left.

In the girls' game, Aycock moved ahead, 10-7, after the first period and 26-14 at the half and never was threatened again in winning its 14th game in 17 starts. The Falcons are 12-1 in the league, second in the ECC behind unbeaten Southwest Edgecombe.

Farmville, now 7-10 and 5-8, was led by Dana Streeter's 16 points. Aycock's Zina Jones had 22 points while Sherri Thomas and Sherri Williams had 10 each.

Farmville travels to North Lenoir Friday night.

62-61 Win Over SWE Leaves Conley In First

PINETOPS — D.H. Conley led only twice during the night, but one of those times was the important time, as the Vikings escaped from Southwest Edgecombe, 62-61. Earlier, Southwest's unbeaten girls rolled to a 79-35 win over Conley.

The Vikings' victory, combined with Southern Nash's 61-55 win over Greene Central, moved Conley into sole possession of first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference standings. Conley is now 10-2 in the league and 14-4 overall. Greene Central and North Pitt are tied for second with 10-3, a half-game back, while Southern Nash is 10-4. Southwest, in losing, drops to 2-8, 3-17.

Southwest eased ahead in the first period, 16-10, and continued to pull away throughout the second quarter. By halftime, the Cougars led, 37-26. Conley fought back in the third period, finally gaining a one-point lead, but only for one exchange of the ball. Southwest held on and took a 47-44 lead into the final period.

Southwest continued to hold the lead throughout the period. Then, with just seconds left, Conley closed to a point. Keith Gatlin missed on a shot that would have put the Vikings ahead. Sammy Tyson, however, was there to take the rebound and put it back with four seconds left, and Conley escaped with the win.

Sammy Tucker led the Conley scoring with 18 points, while Gatlin had 16 and Tyson had 13. Southwest was led by Alex Cobb with 24, while Herman Vines had 13 and Carl Douglas had 10.

In the girls' game, Southwest, now 14-0 in the league and 20-0 overall, jumped out to a 22-6 lead in the first period and had no trouble with the Valkyries. By the half, Southwest had powered out to a 48-10 lead. They increased that to 70-19 by the end of the third period, and allowed a 16-9 rally by Conley in the final quarter.

Bridgett Jenkins led Southwest with 24 points, while Alpha Jenkins had 22, DeLphine Mabry had 11 and Mela-

Bradley's 32 Points Lifts Pitt Past A-G

BETHEL — Dennis Bradley poured in 32 points to keep North Pitt in the thick of the Eastern Carolina Conference title race, as the Panthers gained a 57-53 victory over Ayden-Grifton last night.

In the girls' game, North Pitt took a 46-24 win over the Chargerettes.

North Pitt pulled into a tie for second place in the league with Greene Central, with 10-3 league marks. The Panthers are 11-8 overall. Ayden-Grifton falls to 6-6 in the conference and 8-10 overall.

The Panthers eased out to a 15-10 lead in the first quarter of the game, then shot away to hold a comfortable 32-22 halftime lead. Ayden-Grifton managed to chip away one point of that lead during the third period, and trailed by nine, 43-34, as the final quarter got underway. In that, North Pitt had to hold off a Charger rally, 20-14, to pull out the victory.

Bradley was the only Panther to score in double figures, while Ayden-Grifton placed three in that department. Timmy Edwards led the way with 18, while Clarence Baker had 15 and Thomas Anderson had 10.

The Pant-HERS gained a 10-4

Southern Nash Drops G. Central Out Of 1st

SNOW HILL — Southern Nash knocked Greene Central out of first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference last night, taking a 61-55 victory over the Rams. That coupled with D.H. Conley's 62-61 win over Southwest Edgecombe, pushed the Vikings into first while Greene Central fell into a second place tie with North Pitt, a 57-53 winner over Ayden-Grifton.

In the girls' game, Southern Nash topped the Lady Rams, 54-45.

Greene Central, playing without David Joyner, who is lost for the rest of the year to academics, couldn't seem to put it together against the Firebirds, who upped their record to 10-4 in the league and 13-7 overall. Southern inched ahead, 12-10, after one period, only to see the Rams come back to hold a 28-25 halftime lead.

In the third period, however, Southern stuck with the Rams, and trailed by just one, 44-43, as the last frame got under way. In that, the 'Birds out-scored the Rams, 18-11, to win going away.

McCullen Wiggins led Southern with 21 points, while Curtis Thompson added 11 and Anthony Crumel had 14. Greene Central was led by John Ray with 25, while Roderick Lane added 15.

The loss dropped the Rams to 10-3 in conference play and 14-5 overall.

In the girls' contest, Southern inched ahead by 9-7 after one frame, and upped that to 26-19 at the half. By the end of the third period, the Lady 'Birds held a 34-27 lead. They outshot the Lady Rams, 20-18, in the last quarter.

Dora Harrison led Southern with 19 points, while Melissa Morgan had 12 and Kate Manning had 10. Greene Central was led by Letha Taylor with 19 and Sharon Suggs with 17.

The Lady Rams are now 5-8 in ECC play and 8-11 overall. Southern now posts 6-8 and 9-11 marks.

The Rams have a fateful date at D.H. Conley on Friday.

Is Ali Mellowing?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

What snuffed out the fuse that fed the spark that exploded Muhammad Ali into a burst of celestial fireworks?

The once bombastic, electrically-charged fist fighter who dominated heavyweight ranks and captivated the peasants as well as pontiffs of the world for most of two decades has suddenly become subdued.

When he speaks, it is in a whisper that can hardly be heard in the front row. The wide-eyed boyish enthusiasm is gone. The sparkle has been dulled. The familiar bragadocio is gone.

At news conferences, which once resounded with his wild boasts and histrionics, he evinces little interest. He yawns. He picks his teeth. His eyes droop. Any minute you expect him to fall fast asleep, sitting up there in front of all those microphones and camera lights with reporters shooting questions at machine-gun pace.

This is not the old Ali.

This is the kind of situation he always loved. He could take a roomful of newsmen and play them as he might a Stradivarius or a yo-yo, himself dictating the tempo and tune.

Those brown eyes would get grow as wide as those of a kid who just caught Santa Claus emerging from the chimney. Then he would launch into his act — changeless through the years — but always lively, exciting and laced with quips and homespun philosophy.

Soon he would have the room in his pocket. No more.

It was a mellow, more distant, more detached Ali who flew into New York this week to trade friendly barbs with 85-year-old Jack Dempsey at a benefit for retarded children and to try to explain away his association with a promotional organization called MAPS (Muhammad Ali Professional Sports, Inc.). MAPS is currently ensnared in a $21.3 million lawsuit filed by the Wells Fargo National Bank charging that the promotions company and some of its officers had embezzled the money from the bank.

Ali lent his name for a fee — and insists he has no other official connection — with the group headed by a Los Angeles promoter named Harold J. Smith.

"Do you feel that your image has been hurt by being linked with this organization?" Ali was asked Tuesday at a Madison Square Garden news conference.

"No, my image ain't hurt," Ali replied, almost inaudibly. "Cause Nixon went bad it don't mean the government went bad. The White House stayed white."

Ranked at being stripped of his title because he refused to fight in the Vietnam War, Ali still carries racial scars. He likes to chide his white brethren over what he considers subtle discrimination.

"Why shouldn't the President live in a Black House?" he argues. "Why should all the villains in movies wear black hats, and heroes white hats? Why should purity always be associated with white, like Ivory soap, 99 44-100th per cent pure?"

Ali was asked how much money he got for allowing MAPS to use his name.

"Twenty-seven million dollars," he snapped. He didn't even grin. Then he amended it: "Ten per cent."

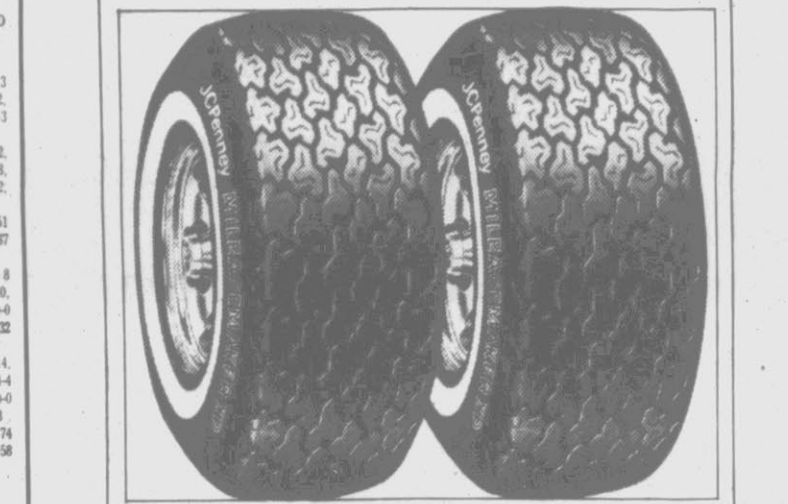

"How much was that?" somebody persisted.

"Hundred, twenty-two million," he said facetiously.

Closing his eyes and pursing his lips during the grilling, Ali said his credibility had been proved on the anvil of controversy.

The mystery of the single tomato.

It defies explanation. Tomatoes ripening one by one on the vine are picked singly by hand then shipped to market in cartons which provide a separate compartment for each tomato. So tomatoes reach the market separately.

Herein lies the mystery.

Tomatoes in produce sections of "modern" supermarkets are clustered in bunches on little green trays, wrapped in heat sealed cellophane, with their bottoms up, defying inspection. Who knows what has happened to all those single tomatoes?

Overton's knows.

The single tomato still lives at Overton's. Here you can actually pick up the tomatoes. One at a time! You may check the stems to see if they are ripe. You may even (and this may shock you) buy a single tomato!

Astounding. You must visit Overton's and try it. Pick your own tomato after inspecting the entire lot. Have the pleasant lady weigh it, price it, and place it in its own paper bag. Then walk out the door content with the knowledge that you indeed have a tomato worthy of eating in your possession.

At Overton's, the single tomato is no mystery. We think it's the best way to sell tomatoes.

And it's the way we've been selling them for 35 years. Come see us.

Possible Violations Uncovered At KSU

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - A lengthy investigation has uncovered possible violations of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules in the Kansas State track program, the Kansas City Times said Wednesday.

In a copyright story, the newspaper said the violations primarily centered on the use of telephone credit card numbers.

The Times said interviews with former and present members of the track team indicated that:

Ardes Lee Gardner Jr., a former K-State trackster, Vince Parrette, the Big Eight triple-jump champion and Willie Major, another sprinter, allegedly were furnished use of athletic department telephone credit card numbers. Those three, and several people K-State officials maintain they have never heard of, ran up long-distance charges exceeding $7,000 from August 1978 to July 1980.

Parrette was given an oil company credit card which he used to buy tires for his personal vehicle.

Gardner was given $114 to help defray travel expenses, and a $430 student loan which head track coach Mike Ross allegedly told Gardner he would not have to repay. The use of the athletic department credit card would come under the "extra benefits" classification. In other words, a service provided to athletes which is not available to other students would be in violation of NCAA regulations.

Ross, asked if he furnished telephone credit card numbers to any athlete, answered, "Heavens, no."

But Jerome Howe, an assistant track coach, was quoted as saying it was not unusual for athletes to be given the telephone credit card numbers to make recruiting calls.

"I write it out," Howe said. "And I tell them, 'When you're done with it, throw it away.' I know that's a lot of trust. You've got to hope the kid never cheats you."

Howe's admission apparently shocked K-State athletic director DeLoss Dodds, who said, "When Jerome said that I nearly fell through my seat."

"Coaches know the rules," said Dodds, a former K-State track coach. "They know they can't give a credit card to a kid. They know if they give a credit card to a kid what kind of problems they're going to have if something like that went on, that their job's in jeopardy. When you hire somebody, you've got to hire somebody you think's honest."

The newspaper said it was unclear exactly who did what for whom. Gardner said Ross was the source of the telephone credit card number, but Ross denied it. In separate interviews, Major and Parrette said they did not get the numbers from Ross, but refused to say how they got them.

Terry Duncan and Greg Jones each had 19 points to lead Lifegate, while Darryle Wells had 16 and Tony Manning had 12. Garnie Register led New Birth with 34 points.

Lifegate is now 4-0 in the conference and 10-3 overall. Lifegate travels to Windsor on Friday.

use of athletic department telephone credit cards to induce him to come to the school in January, 1979. The Gardners say in signed affidavits that Ross assured them they would not have to pay the bills.

Conrad Colbert, Kansas State athletic department business manager, said Major and Parrette paid the university $424 for calls covering a period of March through September, 1979, with the athletic department then paying Southwestern Bell. The Times said other calls made by the two prior to that time were apparently paid for by K-State. Parrette and Major both denied in Times interviews that Ross gave them the credit card numbers.

"Are you asking if the coaches gave it to me?" Major asked. "No. It was through word of mouth. I wasn't authorized to get it." Major would not identify the person who gave him the number.

Parrette, asked if he had ever been offered such an inducement by Kansas State or any other school, answered, "It has been offered, yes."

Did he take advantage of such an offer?

"I did not take it," he said. "I'm at K-State."

Then Kansas State did not offer him use of a telephone credit card?

"Not during recruiting," he said.

Has it happened since you've been there?

"I'm not saying that either," Parrette said. "There's no way you're going to get me to say yes or no on that. I really don't want to get into anything that's going to affect my eligibility."

"Nobody gave me the card," he said. "I wasn't recruited on the damn card. I heard the number. I had it before Ardes. Ardes didn't give it to me. I don't know anything about how Ardes got it."

The Times said, however, that informed sources close to the Southwestern Bell investigation said Major and Parrette each told investigators Ross provided the credit card numbers.

Pitt C.C. Wins, 76-69

ROCKY MOUNT - Pitt Community College used a different lineup to rally from behind in the first half, then held on to take a 76-69 victory over the N.C. Wesleyan junior varsity last night.

After falling behind in the early minutes, the Paladins went to a full-court press and "it got us into an up-tempo" according to coach Linwood Woodard. From there, the Paladins got into the lead and held it.

"We got into some early foul trouble and had an injury, and ended up playing most of the way with four guards and a forward in there. But we rebounded better and got more fast breaks than we usually do. We had to go to a zone and we played that pretty well, too," Woodard said.

The play allowed Pitt to push out to a 41-33 lead. "We held the lead throughout the second half, although they closed it after we had a couple to foul out."

Pitt was outthrust in the second half by only one point, 36-35.

The Paladins were led by Dennis Batts, Frankie Dail and Dennis Pitt, each with 16 points, while Calvin Horne and Mike Baker each had ten. The Baby Bishops were led by Prince with 18, while McKoy had 12 and Glenn and Willis each had ten.

Now 12-5, Pitt travels to Fayetteville State on Saturday.

Pitt (76) - Batts 7 2-2 16, C. Horne 4 2-3 10, Baker 7 2-2 16, Dail 7 2-2 16, Tyson 2 0-4 4, Pitt 7 2-2 16, M. Horne 2 0-4 4, Shearin 0 0-0 0, Totals 34 8-9 76.

N.C. Wesleyan (69) - Colston 3 0-0 6, Jones 1 1-2 3, Church 2 0-4 4, McKoy 5 2-2 12, Brown 9 2-3 2, Glenn 5 0-4 10, Raabe 1 2-2 4, Prince 9 0-0 18, Willis 4 2-2 10, Totals 29 9-11 69.

Kush: Players Denied Seeing Him Hit Rutledge

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Two players who claimed they saw former Arizona State football coach Frank Kush strike punter Kevin Rutledge in a 1978 game later denied it, Kush testified Tuesday in a $2.2 million damage suit.

Ex-Sun Devil linebacker Gary Bouck was quoted anonymously by Arizona State's campus newspaper as saying he saw the incident, Kush said, and word back got to him that one-time Arizona State offensive tackle Steve Chambers "was spilling his guts about the thing."

But Kush said when he questioned the two players privately about the alleged incident, they both denied making any comments.

Rutledge is suing Kush, the university, former Sun Devil assistant coach Bill Maskill and others — claiming Kush punched him in the mouth following a poor punt during Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978 in Seattle.

He also contends Kush and Maskill subsequently harassed him into quitting the team and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush, testifying for the second straight day, told the court that he had no recollection of ever grabbing Rutledge's facemask but said there was "a possibility" that he may have slapped Rutledge's helmet at the time.

Rutledge testified Kush grabbed his facemask in the Washington game while he still had his helmet on and chinstrap fastened, shook his head from side to side and up and down and landed a "knuckle-punch" which Rutledge said split his upper lip.

Kush said he was unaware of the alleged incident until a conversation with Gene Felker — the executive director of Arizona State's football booster club, the Sun Angels.

Kush said Felker on Oct. 6, 1979 told him he saw "my arms were in back of me and Rutledge was in front of me. He said my hands were in a position that it looked like I was going to swing."

Kush said he told Felker that, "I definitely did not hit the young man."

In an Oct. 19, 1979 front-page story in the ASU "State Press," Bouck said he had seen Kush punch Rutledge, but asked that he be quoted anonymously because he feared repercussions in his "football future and education."

"One or two of the other players told me Bouck was the one who made the statement in the student newspaper and I talked to him about it in my office," Kush told the court Tuesday. "He said he did not say it. He was not the one."

Kush said he "didn't think I would discharge a young man for a statement like that," and added "there was nothing I could do about it," even if Bouck had the quote attributed to him.

"He was just afraid to tell the truth and have his name listed on it (the article)," Kush said.

Kush said that when he questioned Chambers on "spilling his guts" about the alleged incident, Chambers "wanted to apologize" and "deny those rumors."

Cross-examined Tuesday by Rutledge's attorney, Robert Hing, Kush said "it was quite obvious" that Rutledge "was punting poorly" during the 1978 game in question.

Game accounts cited in court showed that three of Rutledge's punts traveled 26, 29 and 27 yards and set up two Washington touchdowns and a field goal.

"They were all critical," Kush said of the punts. "They gave the other team good field position."

Asked by Rutledge's attorney, Robert Hing, if he were angered enough by the punts to attack Rutledge in the manner alleged, Kush said: "No, sir. Not necessarily. I don't recall if I did or I didn't."

Rutledge has testified that Kush called him "gutless" after the alleged incident and swore at him repeatedly. In the locker room after the game, Rutledge said Kush told him to go stick his head in a bucket of water and drown himself.

Kush said Tuesday that it was "petty possible" that he swore at Rutledge but denied the post-game comment.

"I would never say a thing like that to a young man," Kush said.

Rutledge said he didn't don a player's uniform for Arizona State's 1978 season-opening game against Pacific and figured he was going to be redshirted.

Kush said Monday that he "never thought about red-shirting Rutledge" because "he was our No. 1 punter."

On Tuesday, however, Hing played for the court a recording of a Phoenix radio station's interview with Kush following the Sun Devils' second game of the 1978 season against Brigham Young. In it, Kush said "we were so desperate for a punter, we told Kevin to go in and do the best he could. We were thinking about red-shirting him..."

Kush explained in later testimony that "prior to the first ballgame, Billy Maskill came to me and told me Rutledge would like to be redshirted. I said I'd take care of it. I didn't dress him in hopes of motivating him."

Hing then cited Kush's deposition of March 24, 1980, which quoted Kush as saying that Maskill never talked to him about Rutledge's red-shirting request.

Kush, rubbing sweat from his eyelids, replied, "Maybe I forgot about it."

MAPS' Plot Thickens

NEW YORK (AP) — One manager claims to be optimistic, Muhammad Ali is in the picture and the plot thickened with the possible reappearance of the main promoter of an important boxing show threatened by charges of a $21.3 million bank embezzlement.

The latest twist occurred Tuesday night when a man who did not give his identity or whereabouts called Los Angeles sportscaster Bud Furillo's radio talk — and whom Furillo identified as Harold Smith — and said he was innocent of the charges and would return to Los Angeles shortly.

"I'm sure it was him (Smith)," Furillo said after the caller told him the fraud could be much bigger than $21.3 million and said he received $12 million from the bank which he thought was a credit line.

Smith is chairman of Muhammad Ali Professional Sports, one of three MAPS officials named in an embezzlement suit filed Monday by Wells Fargo National Bank of California.

But John Moos, an FBI spokesman in Los Angeles, said Tuesday, "We have no warrant for Mr. Smith's arrest, and therefore we have no desire to talk to Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith is free to travel wherever he chooses. Our investigation is mainly at the bank."

Ali appeared Tuesday at Madison Square Garden, site of a Feb. 23 boxing show that is rich in purses and talent but it jeopardy because of the Wells Fargo lawsuit.

"I'm leaving here much more optimistic than I have been in the last two days," Dennis Rappaport, co-manager of No. 1-ranked heavyweight Gerry Cooney, said after a second day of meetings in an effort to save all or part of the big card featuring Cooney vs. Ken Norton and three world title fights. "There seems to be some headway. I'm not telling you anything has been finalized or that anything is definite."

MAPS, which has raised questions in boxing circles for months about the source of its wealth, paid Ali a promotional fee for the use of his name. Otherwise, it has no direct connection with the former three-time heavyweight champion.

Ed Franklin, an attorney representing MAPS, said at a news conference that Ali had been asked whether he would make "the transition from boxing to promotion and take over the show if all the pieces could be put together. The champ was sympathetic."

"I'm going to be a promoter ... the greatest. We might start in this show," said Ali, but he added, "I'm not putting up anything." Ali, easily beaten by Larry Holmes in a bid to become heavyweight champion for a fourth time, had been expected to fight John L. Gardner of Britain for MAPS if he could obtain a license in Puerto Rico.

Before the news conference, Ali said, "I ain't fighting. I don't need fighting." At the conference he said, "I'm going to stay out of the ring, but I haven't retired."

Sam Glass, president of Tiffany Promotions, scheduled to co-promote the Feb. 23 card, said Ali "wants to help out the promotion... but his financial backing is unnecessary."

Franklin, who attended meetings with MAPS president Sammie Marshall, who has been named in the Wells Fargo suit, said a deadline for saving the show is Feb. 11.

Many boxing people were beginning to doubt whether the card could be saved, at least all of it.

Emanuel Steward, manager of Tommy Hearns, who is scheduled to defend the World Boxing Association welterweight title against Wilfred Benitez, reportedly does not want to renegotiate his fighter's $1.2 million purse. Benitez is supposed to get $1 million.

Jack Cohen, who represents Norton, reportedly has said he won't go down more than $100,000 from Norton's $1.1 million. Cooney is supposed to get $1.2 million, and Rappaport has said he is only interested in getting the best price possible.

The other fights supposed to be on the show are Matthew Saad Muhammad and Eddie Mustafa Muhammad, $1.5 million each, for the universal light heavyweight title, and Wilfredo Gomez, $350,000 in defense of the World Boxing Council junior featherweight title against Mike Ayala, $150,000.

Body Language Tells On Judge

By JIM KLAHN
Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — Unlike Justice, the blindfolded lady weighing the evidence on her scale, courtroom participants have to consider more than what they hear.

What they see, especially when they see a judge doing it, also makes an impression on jurors and others in courtrooms, says anthropologist David B. Givens.

A judge who turns his back, frowns and purses his lips when a defendant is testifying — then faces the prosecutor openly, lifts his eyebrows and uses his hands to help conversation may appear to favor the prosecutor over the accused, said Givens.

"If a judge's opinion is clear, people will try to follow his lead," said Givens, a University of Washington communications consultant. "If his opinion is clear non-verbally, the same things happen."

Givens, commissioned by the Washington State Administrator for the Courts to study the impact of judicial mannerisms on the courtroom, said that in the course of his work, he videotaped a judge whose style was forbidding and formal.

The judge held himself stiffly erect, appearing anxious, "and his tone of voice accented a holier-than-thou orientation," said Givens in an article written for the The Judge's Journal quarterly.

Givens showed the judge the videotape, and discussed the judge's behavior. The judge began adding speaking gestures, nodded his head at appropriate points while listening, used conversational speech instead of sermon language and relaxed his body.

"Results were immediate: defendants were more cooperative, showed better attitudes and, on balance, were easier to handle," wrote Givens.

Esther Bauman, education officer for the court administration office, says Givens' study was to be used in training programs for judges. She says judges asked for the study "so that they can pick up any kinds of ways in which they can improve their presentations, or of any body language they're not aware of."

Givens said while some judges had formed habits that needed breaking, the judges impressed him with their diligence and efforts at impartiality.

The application of non-verbal communication, or kinesics, to courtrooms is relatively new.

Anthony Wartnik, King County Superior Court judge in Seattle, says judges consciously try to maintain a feeling of impartiality "but we're not always aware of our body actions."

Since he has been working with Givens, he says, he has become more aware of his actions.

Judicial bodies in other states, including California and Michigan, are also using kinesics in training materials for judges. Gordon Zimmerman, a faculty member of the National Judicial College in Reno, Nev., says kinesics is also getting more attention at the college, which serves judges from across the United States.

"We're just now starting to get the raw materials to look at," he said, noting that only recently were videotapes allowed into courtrooms.

He says there is more to kinesics in the courtroom than the judge understanding how his non-verbal communications affect others. Also important, says Zimmerman, was a judge's perception of a person before him — especially the accused.

He says a judge should be aware of his feelings when confronted by someone he perhaps doesn't understand — an older, white judge presiding over the trial of a young black man, for example.

Jane Doe's Memory Is Blocked By Her Ordeal

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The polite young woman in the South Florida State Hospital says she wonders as much as anyone else who she was before September, when a park ranger found her naked and filthy, too weak to cry for help.

Jane Doe, as she now is known, says she doesn't know how she got to Birch State Park here, or why she was emaciated, dehydrated, covered with dirt and near death when she was discovered Sept. 19.

She also says she wonders who and where her family and friends are and why they haven't visited her.

"No one has stopped by to see me," she said in an interview. "I feel forgotten. I guess life works out that way."

Ranger Elijah Brown said that when he found her, the woman, who appears to be about 30, was filthy and surrounded by flies in a small clearing in the underbrush. She was about 50 yards from a pavilion frequented by park visitors.

Her legs were covered with sores brought on by weeks of exposure.

Four white, plastic cups lay near her. There was nothing else.

She was hospitalized and recovered her health, but her memory goes back only to September.

Attempts to establish her identity through nationwide fingerprint checks were fruitless, and now, bearing the customary name for female unknowns, she lives as a ward of the hospital.

"This is a fascinating case. A beautiful case for a detective story," said Dr. Cesar Hernandez, a psychiatrist who evaluated her.

"Who brought her there?" Hernandez asked. "What was so traumatic to her that she doesn't even remember, or won't talk about it? Was she attacked? Abused? Abandoned?"

Doctors believe Jane Doe's problem is "conversion reaction," a psychological phenomenon in which a trauma or breakdown is converted into a physical ailment such as amnesia or blindness.

"So the person is more comfortable, but he may be less functional, which is a very bizarre thing," said psychiatrist Dr. Jesse Kaye, who meets with Ms. Doe daily.

"Here's a lady who merely walks along and says, 'I don't know my age, I don't know if I have any family. I just don't know.' So she doesn't have to deal with it. It is a protection against self-anxiety," Kaye said.

The woman, who introduces herself as Jane Doe, is polite and articulate but is described as a loner at the hospital. She is about 5 feet 4 inches tall.

"I guess if I'm meant to have a family and friends, they'll find me," she said. "And if I don't have anyone, I'd like to know that, too."

NO MEMORY — Jane Doe's body has recovered from her ordeal in a Florida state park last September, but has a total loss of memory. (AP Laserphoto)

United Over Plight Of Rare Crane

By ROB ZALESKI
BARABOO, Wis. (UPI) — There's one issue in the Middle East on which the United States and Soviet Union agree — the Siberian Crane must be saved.

The big birds have survived decades of drought, pollution and the relentless pressures of an expanding human population only to be threatened by an even greater peril — turmoil in the Mideast.

So Russian and American ornithologists have joined in an effort to rescue what many consider one of the most magnificent species on earth.

"The Russian scientists are just as interested in saving the Siberian Crane as we are, and we've had excellent relations with them," said Ron Sauey of the International Crane Foundation, a 65-acre preserve nestled among the rolling hills of south central Wisconsin.

"In fact, they keep telling us, 'Hey, your government is the one responsible for the cooling between our countries.' Of course, it's not true. But as long as their scientists are willing to work with us, we're certainly willing to work with them."

Nonetheless, the Siberian Crane's future remains grim. Its numbers have dwindled to about 250. Sauey fears the turbulent situations in Iran and Afghanistan have accelerated the bird's slide toward extinction.

Of the three remaining Siberian Crane populations, only the one that winters in China is not on the critical list. But even that population (200 to 230 birds) may be in trouble because its habitat is somewhere along the heavily industrialized Yangtze River.

The status of the other populations — one winters in Iran, the other in India — is a "giant question mark," according to Sauey.

"The Iran population is tiny, but we haven't had any information about the birds since the Shah was deposed," he said. "We're on pins and needles. The Iranians have stopped writing to us."

"And I shudder to say the Indian population — which last year consisted of 33 birds — may be wiped out. Those birds usually stop at a lake in southeastern Afghanistan, and if there are food shortages because of the war, it's going to put a lot of pressure not only on cranes, but other birds as well. And the Afghanistan people have always considered cranes fair game."

Sauey, normally an optimist, admits "time may be running out, especially if the political situation continues to deteriorate in southern Asia."

"And there's so much pressure on the crane's habitat in India. It's a sanctuary surrounded by villages. The people are constantly after local officials to give them access to the sanctuary for their cattle. It's going to get worse, not better."

Sauey and Dr. George Archibald, who co-founded the ICF in 1973 as a facility for studying crane behavior and breeding, have been working with the Russians since 1977.

Eggs found on Soviet tundra have produced six of the nine Siberian Cranes at the ICF, which has 14 of 15 crane species and a total of about 130 birds. The ICF's other three Siberian Cranes were provided by zoos.

There are also three Siberian Cranes being raised at the ICF's branch in Walsrode, Germany, and 13 at Russia's Oka State Reserve, about 300 miles east of Moscow.

With a little luck, said Sauey, some of the cranes hatched at the ICF in 1977 will begin breeding this spring. Then, as part of a bizarre scheme to bolster the Siberian Crane's population in the wild, the scientists hope to place the eggs in the nests of Common Cranes that breed in the Oka Reserve.

"If all goes well, the Common Cranes will act as foster parents," said Sauey. "And when they migrate, either to Iran or Turkey, they'll bring the young Siberian Cranes along."

The result, he said, could be a new population of Siberian Cranes with a much shorter and less hazardous migration route.

Has Answer To Removal Of Graffiti

By DAVID HURLBERT TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Driver Victor Rancourt didn't like to have his passengers subjected to the sometimes smutty graffiti along his Massachusetts bus route and he gave a lot of thought to the problem.

It took him some time — more than six years, in fact — but Rancourt, now a Tempe resident, feels he has the answer.

Through use of a special coating, Rancourt, 60, claims he can protect any surface.

"Whatever the kids spray on a wall I can walk over there one day or a month later and wipe it off with a solution," Rancourt said.

So far, Rancourt has at least one person willing to give his system a try.

Richard Bowers, director of field services for the city of Scottsdale, planned a full test of it on a sculpture in a city park.

"We had him give us a small test," Bowers said. "He put every conceivable type of mark on it and it cleaned off easily."

Rancourt keeps his system secret because he doesn't want to get "ripped off," but he said he utilizes products already on the market with the secret being in how he uses them.

On the surface to be protected, Rancourt applies a clear resin coating and "then does something to it." The "something" is what Rancourt said is the key to the whole process.

If a graffiti freak does hit the wall, it only takes a quick application of a cleaning solution to remove it, leaving the original surface unblemished.

Rancourt has tried to get big business interested in marketing his system, but he was dissatisfied when one company offered to put $75,000 in escrow during testing with the condition that the money revert to the firm if the idea was not found to be suitable.

"They would only have had to change it just a little bit," Rancourt said, expressing fears the company might have tried to market its own product then.

Now Rancourt said he is willing to give his system to local governments just as long as they sign an agreement of non-disclosure.

Even his efforts to peddle the system to cities have hit roadblocks.

He said he traveled to New York City to show city officials how the system would work on subway cars. He said he was turned away because it would have deprived too many painters of jobs repainting the graffiti-covered cars.

However, Bob Huber, spokesman for the Transit Authority in New York, said none of the chemists or car cleaning personnel could remember meeting Rancourt.

But Huber said they might be interested in talking with him. "We're always looking for new and better and more efficient ways to remove graffiti from our trains."

While he would like to make money from his solution, Rancourt said his real goal is to get rid of the crude markings that plague too many cities.

"The satisfaction would be that I did a good deed in my life."

A one-time wrestler and boxer, Rancourt first took note of the graffiti problem while driving a bus between Lawrence and Boston for six years. "I said some day I would get something that would take it off."

Helen Reddy Is Asking Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Helen Reddy has filed for a divorce from her husband of 13 years, manager-producer Jeff Wald, who says he's trying to kick the cocaine habit.

Miss Reddy said in a Superior Court petition filed Monday that she had "irreconcilable differences" with her husband.

After the couple separated in early January, Wald said he was under a doctor's care in an effort to stop using cocaine, a habit he said did not cause the separation "but it certainly was a factor."

"I'm getting treatment for a problem that a lot of other people in this town have, to say the least," Wald said in an interview last month. "Outside of maybe Lima, Peru, this is the cocaine capital of the world."

Wald also said he would continue to manage Miss Reddy's show business career.

Canine Star Is A 'Survivor'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The canine star of "Skeezee" will be O.J., a combination collie-sheepdog originally saved from execution at the Los Angeles County Animal Shelter.

O.J.'s previous credits include the ABC-TV series "A New Kind of Family" and two pilot shows, "Sign On" and "For Heaven's Sake," along with several commercials.

"Skeezee," to be produced by Marble Arch Productions, is the true story of a mongrel who became a "canine co-

Theater Production Performance Set

THE CRUCIBLE... Arthur Miller's well known drama of the Salem witches trials is the production being presented next by members of The Curtain Players of Ayden-Grifton High School. Three performances are scheduled —

Thursday, Saturday and Sunday, February 5, 7 and 8 are the three performance dates for the Curtain Players presentation of "The Crucible" at Ayden-Grifton High School.

Tickets are $2 per person (all ages) and will be available at the door prior to the 8 p.m. performance time on Thursday and Saturday and the 3 p.m. performance hour on Sunday.

The Curtain Players is an ensemble of high school actors within the Ayden Workshop Theater, according to director Doug Mitchell. For casting this play, Mitchell related that he tried a different approach from the usual one. "The cast is primarily drawn from students in the senior class," Mitchell said. "Most are students I've worked with for three years."

"As a general rule, they try out for the type of role they feel at ease with. For this play, I had them go against the tendency to stereotype themselves, to try for roles outside the type of characters they have usually played. They were a little apprehensive at first," at 8 p.m. on Thursday and Saturday, Feb. 5 and 7, and a matinee at 3 p.m. on Sunday, February 8. Several of the large cast are shown in rehearsal. (Photo courtesy Meg Hill, Ayden-Grifton student).

Mitchell commented, "but I think it has worked out splendidly and they are pleased with themselves for mastering something different."

Arthur Miller's "The Crucible," a noted American play that centers on the events surrounding the 17th century witchcraft trials in Salem, Massachusetts, is, Mitchell says, "one of the most ambitious plays we have attempted."

Students performing in the large cast are: Debbie Adkins, Cathryn Dixon, Mary Dixon, Gloria Hooper, Shelly Harker, Margaret Joyner, Teresa Manning, Pat McDermott, Karen Oehrli, Jennifer Owens, and Renee Watson.

Seeks Match Owners And Unclaimed Funds

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — If you see Laura Lynn Addison of Dallas, tell her Leonard Baker has $4.55 he'd like to give her.

Baker, who recently sent a $24,000 check to a Houston man, also has 75 cents for Rick Sweat, formerly of Amarillo.

The state tries to match Texans with their unclaimed bank accounts, inheritances or insurance benefits, and Baker, director of the escheat division of the state treasurer's office, is in charge.

"More than likely we're not going to find them," Baker said.

At any one time, the treasurer has about $14 million in unclaimed funds. The state spends the money but will reimburse owners who come forward.

The state gets the money after it lies dormant for seven years. Financial institutions, insurers and corporations must send in the funds after failing to find the owners.

"We run an ad in a newspaper in the city of the last-known address on accounts of $5 or more," Baker said. "We run them one time and one time only."

Now there's another way for Texans who think they are long-lost heirs to find out if Baker has any money for them. Mark Burris, 26, soon will publish his first Burris Escheatage Report.

For $178 per year, Burris will send you a monthly list of unclaimed funds.

"The people at the treasurer's office were excited, very cooperative and maybe amazed that someone would take an interest in publishing this information," Burris said at his Austin office-apartment.

Burris admits his market is collection agencies and lawyers who can make a buck by connecting the unclaimed funds with the rightful owners.

The money becomes the state's as soon as it is reported to Baker. However, there is no statute of limitations on claiming the money. If you can prove it's yours, you can claim it any time.

"We sent out a check for $24,000 a few weeks ago to a man in Houston," Baker said. "It was from a bank account. I don't know if he forgot about it or he ignored the bank notices about it."

Some inheritances go unclaimed due to ignorance.

"A lot of times the heirs of the deceased person are not aware of these accounts. A lot of times the old folks just don't talk about their financial affairs," said Baker.

Tell Frances Wells, last known address in Amarillo, that Baker has $605.46 for her. M.T. Atzenhoffer of Dallas has $1 coming.

Auschwitz Remembered

By PETER J. BOYER AP Television Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Kitty Felix was a youngster in Poland around 1940, she was fascinated by the occupying German troops, drawn by their shining black boots and splendid uniforms. Although her family warned her about the Nazis, she often sneaked out to watch the military parades.

Then one day she was walking down the street with a friend. When her friend failed to leave the sidewalk at the approach of a German officer, the officer withdrew his service revolver and shot him dead.

"The fact that Germans were out to kill people like me came to me very suddenly."

is the barracks she stayed in; and there are some of the open pits in which bodies were burned.

"There are people in this world who say this never happened," she tells David. "Thirty members of your family died here... everybody's ashes are here."

She sees the gates through which she entered Auschwitz and recalled her first thoughts:

"The whole place was lit up when I came here and there was the smell of roasting meat... I wondered why there should be the smell of roasting meat."

The incomprehensibility of such a place and such deeds are reflected in David's innocent curiosity. How did you wash? Did you have toilet paper? Newspapers?

Kitty tells him that each prisoner had a bowl attached to his body. "And if you didn't have your bowl, you didn't have your soap; if you didn't have your bowl, you didn't have your toilet."

"It was very easy to lose the desire to live, let me tell you."

It is a shock to come face to face with Auschwitz itself.

That is precisely what Kitty Felix Hart wanted it to be.

Hispanics Delay Film

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Hispanic community group has won a temporary postponement of the Philadelphia opening of "Fort Apache, The Bronx," a film starring Paul Newman, city officials say.

The Philadelphia Human Relations Commission asked the film's distributor, 20th Century Fox, to delay this weekend's scheduled opening. The movie depicts Newman as a policeman in New York's ravaged South Bronx.

Judy Clark, regional publicity and promotion director for the firm, said 20th Century Fox agreed to delay the opening.

Clarence Farmer, chairman of the HRC, said the Puerto Rican Alliance objected to the film.

"We got real pressure from the Puerto Rican Alliance," Farmer said Tuesday. "The film shows the Puerto Rican community in a very bad light with most of the people in it either on drugs or involved in prostitution."

A spokesman for David Susskind, executive producer of the movie, told the Daily News in New York that Susskind did not consider the movie to be racist.

"It's a slice of life," the spokesman said. "It's a story based on the experiences of two cops."

Against the many recent TV dramas dealing with Nazi Germany and the Holocaust, "Return to Auschwitz" is quietly reflective, unadorned; and in its way, it is more devastating.

"I don't know what it will do to me to see it," Kitty says at the beginning of the documentary. But intent that the memory of Auschwitz and its two million victims not die with Auschwitz survivors, she determines to visit the grim memorial with her son David, a doctor living in Canada.

She is an articulate guide, leading her son through those hellish acres, spilling forth well-learned remembrances of unthinkable crimes against humanity. Here is the road on which she arrived; there

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass Pass 1 ♣ Dble.
Pass 2 NT Pass 3 NT
Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Two of ♠.

More often than not, defense is a cooperative venture. It does not help for one member of the partnership to be brilliant if his efforts are going to be nullified by the other.

North had a problem after West opened with one heart in third seat. Our choice would be an overall of one spade because we would not know what to do if South responded two clubs to our takeout double - the hand is not good enough to bid two diamonds now. But far be it for us to quibble with success - the contract had excellent chances, especially with West on lead.

West gave considerable thought to his opening lead. From the bidding, it appeared that declarer was well fortified in hearts. East could not have enough in spades to make that lead appearing, and the fact that West held only two diamonds ruled out a lead in that suit. So West settled on the killing lead of the two of clubs. Unfortunately, East failed to cooperate.

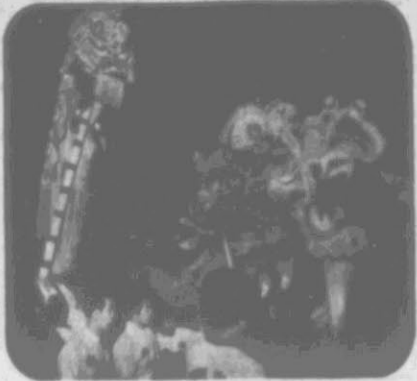

TITANIC HUNTER
ST. JOHN'S NEW-FOUNDLAND (AP) - Texas oil millionaire Jack Grimm says he will resume his search for the Titanic on the Grand Banks off the New Foundland coast this summer.

Declarer played the jack from dummy and, without a moment's thought, East covered with the queen. A club was returned to West's ace and a third round cleared the suit as declarer won with the ten. Declarer led a low diamond to West's ace, but West had no way to get to his partner's hand. When the queen of diamonds came tumbling down a bit later, declarer had ten tricks for the taking.

As soon as East put up the queen of clubs, he retired himself for the rest of the hand. Note the difference if he lets the jack of clubs hold the first trick while signaling encouragement with the nine. Declarer cannot come to nine tricks without the diamond suit. When West wins the ace of diamonds, his ace of clubs will fall dummy's king, and another club to the queen will allow East to cash two more tricks in the suit for a one-trick set.

It cannot cost East to play the nine of clubs at trick one. If declarer needed only one club trick for his contract, he surely would have played dummy's king at the first trick in the expectation that West had the ace as part of his opening bid.

Chinese New Year

The world will enter the Year of the Rooster today, which is also the year 4679 in the Chinese tradition. The Chinese New Year arrives with the second new moon after the winter solstice, or shortest day of the year. According to Chinese tradition, the beginning of the New Year is a good time to do housecleaning, pay debts, and give to the poor. In Chinese communities in this country, New Year celebrations usually include firecrackers, parades, and family reunions. The official ending of the New Year holidays is the Feast of Lanterns, celebrated on the 15th day of the first month.

Sees First Step To Hit 'Dissidents'

MOSCOW (AP) — A senior Soviet official claimed today that President Reagan's campaign against international terrorism is the prelude to a new crackdown on American "dissidents."

"The march against international terrorism opens the way to introduction of a new, and maybe even more sinister, edition of McCarthyism," Vitaly Kobysch, a commentator for the Communist Party Central Committee, wrote in the latest edition of the weekly Literary Gazette.

"Under the sign of it, everything is possible — to strangle dissidents and to liquidate them mercilessly as was done to the head of the negro organization Black Panthers," he declared.

Kobysch's article, believed to reflect the highest levels of Kremlin thinking, added a new twist to mounting Soviet rebuttals of Reagan administration charges that Moscow promotes international terrorism, in part by supporting guerrillas in developing countries.

The state-controlled press has reacted by branding the CIA as the "main headquarters" of international terrorism and listing a number of political assassination plots in the 1960s and 1970s allegedly backed by the American espionage organization.

"They tried to throw a stone at us but they threw a boomerang," another Soviet commentator declared Tuesday night on the main evening TV program, summing up the Soviet response.

In his commentary, Kobysch contended that Secretary of State Alexander Haig erred by "putting the equal sign between terrorism and national liberation movements of people."

"Under the flag of struggle against terrorism," he wrote, "while avanching charges on the Soviet Union, American imperialism is trying to restore the leading role of the United States by developing a global attack against national liberation movements and all progressive forces in the world."

Kobysch said Moscow shared the U.S. definition of international terrorism "only when it is applied to the Red Brigades in Italy or to neo-Nazis who blast synagogues."

"That which is occurring in Chile, Uruguay, El Salvador, South Africa, South Korea and Israel ... we also regard as international terrorism, while not forgetting that Washington feeds it financially and militarily, organizes it and inspires it," Kobysch wrote.

Pet Dog Is 'Ears' For Couple

By MARLA DONATO
LINCOLNWOOD, 111.
(UPI) — Sassy is no ordinary mutt — her duties include answering telephones and doorbells, serving as an alarm clock and warding off burglars and other intruders.

Sassy's real specialty is looking after a baby — 17-month-old Malinda Balk, whose parents, Nona and Rick Balk, are deaf.

The furry little mongrel is among more than 200 dogs trained and placed by Hearing Dog Inc., a Colorado-based agency that trains canines to respond to daily sounds that most people take for granted.

Thirty-four states — not including Illinois — have laws allowing hearing dogs to accompany their owners in the same way seeing eye dogs do.

Sassy was given to the Balks by the Rand Park Dog Obedience Training Club. The club gave demonstrations and sponsored other events to come up with the $2,800 it cost to train and bring the dog to its new home.

The dog "works" by making the Balks aware of particular sounds. For example, when the alarm clock goes off, Sassy jumps on the bed, and kisses the Balks until they get up. It does the same thing in the middle of the night if Malinda starts crying. When the doorbell rings, the dog runs back and forth from the door to one of the parents. Similarly, Sassy calls attention to the family's specially equipped teletype phone and smoke detector.

Sassy's trainer, Agnes McGrath, said hearing dogs have to keep working if they are to do their job well. "If they don't work, they forget," said Ms. McGrath, who accompanies all the dogs to their new homes and stays for about a week to make sure everything runs smoothly.

Ms. McGrath started her school with six dogs as part of an experimental program for a Minnesota anti-cruelty society. She has since become adept in sign language and has placed dogs of all sizes in homes across the nation.

All her dogs, ranging in age from six months to a year, are acquired from animal shelters.

"There are a jillion surplus dogs," she said. "They're excellent animals that no one else wants. They brought Sassy to me and said she was going to be destroyed."

Ms. McGrath said she looks for happy, healthy and outgoing animals.

It takes about six months from the time an application is received until a dog is placed. Four of those months are spent custom training a dog to meet an individual's specific needs.

"The Balks needed a dog that likes children," she said. "So I took Sassy to shopping centers and asked mothers if they would let their children play with her to see how she would respond and if she would be gentle."

Although she looks for dogs that like children, she never places a dog with a deaf child.

"Deaf children usually have parents to hear for them," she said. "But a deaf adult, especially one living alone, is living in a world of silence."

The dogs, too, are expected to live a silent life... except when they hear an intruder. Then, Ms. McGrath said, they are trained to "go crazy." "That's the only time they are allowed to bark," she said. "Even though the people can't hear them, the burglar will. We don't let them bark otherwise."

She has three other trainers who work with 20 dogs at any given time and plans to add another trainer and more kennel space. Meanwhile, requests for the dogs are piling up.

THE FAMILY DOG — Sassy is no ordinary mutt. The furry mongrel is the ears for Rick and Nona Balk, but her real specialty is looking after the deaf couple's 17-month-old daughter, Malinda. (UPI Photo)

Phantom Pregnancies Do Occur

Is it possible for a woman to have a false pregnancy? The story in our community is that one of our neighbors had it. I can't believe it's possible. — Mrs. G.W.K., Md.

Dear Mrs. K.: Believe it. The condition of false pregnancy is also known as phantom pregnancy or pseudocyesis. It can and does occur in humans as it does in animals.

When it does, almost all the usual signs and symptoms of early pregnancy may accompany it: morning nausea, enlargement and sensitivity of the breasts, cessation of the menstrual period, a gain of weight and later abdominal enlargement.

Sometimes this false pregnancy continues almost up to the supposed time of delivery. Almost always when this situation occurs, it happens in women who desperately want a child and who have been unable to conceive. Fortunately the condition is exceedingly rare.

When the doctor is sure that a false pregnancy exists, it becomes a very precarious matter. For this is a highly charged neurotic situation. Doctors will seek the guidance of a psychiatrist for the handling of the problem until the patient herself can be referred for emotional support.

It takes a great deal of understanding and psychological insight by the doctor to give the patient the gentle support she needs.

Following the "delivery" of a false pregnancy, these patients are consumed with guilt, disappointment and embarrassment. They need the combined love and talent of family and doctors to carry them through such an emotional upheaval.

I once read that paraffin can relieve the pain of arthritis. I know of no one who has ever used it or how it is used. — Mr. V.N., W.Va.

Dear Mr. N.: Before the use of cortisone and ACTH (steroids that are used for some forms of arthritis), paraffin was used to bring comfort and relief.

Ordinary paraffin similar to the kind used to cover newly preserved jams and jellies can be purchased at the grocer's. This is melted down and allowed to cool to about 150 F. Care must be taken because the hot paraffin can be deceptive and cause painful burns. The outer layer of the paraffin may seem to be cool, but the underlying portion may be burning hot.

The painful hand or foot is first covered with a thin layer of mineral oil and then dipped into the cooling paraffin. When the limb is taken out of the paraffin basin and exposed to the air, the paraffin becomes firm. This can be repeated a number of times until a heavy layer is acquired.

The basis for this effective pain reliever is that heat is retained for a long time. This is what brings the welcome relief.

Paraffin should be carefully used only with the specific suggestion of the doctor. It is never a substitute for the advantages of some of the newer anti-arthritis drugs.

Dr. Coleman welcomes questions from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Beethoven Behind The Great Wall

By MARK FRANKEL
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Chinese fascination with Western ways since the end of the Cultural Revolution includes not only computers and Coca-Cola but Mozart and Beethoven, according to an American conductor who toured China's conservatories.

"They love Mozart and Beethoven," said John Giordano, conductor of the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra and the Texas Little Symphony. Giordano was the first western musician to teach in communist China.

After a two-week musical tour of the Peoples Republic last December at the invitation of the government, he said the repudiation of revolutionary art that prevailed during the now-discredited Cultural Revolution is total.

Giordano, jury chairman of the Van Cliburn Piano Competition, was invited to China last November by the Ministry of Culture and Education to help select and advise participants for the upcoming contest. The Chinese have not previously participated in any international music competition.

"They were a little anxious because they been out of contact with the western world for so long," said Giordano, who trained at the Royal Conservatory of Music, Brussels, and the Paris Conservatory.

"It's difficult for anyone to fathom the enormity of the Cultural Revolution," he explained.

Not only were the vestiges of China's feudal past destroyed during the upheaval, but pianos, cellos and other Western musical instruments also went, the 43-year-old musician said.

Musicians told Giordano of being threatened by Red Guards for playing Bach. Practice was allowed only on silent keyboards, his hosts said.

Despite a shortage of sheet music and inferior instruments, Giordano said he heard some "extraordinarily talented" musicians aged 12-29 while visiting and teaching at the conservatories in Peking, Shanghai and Canton. He was particularly impressed by the caliber of stringed instrument playing.

Although he does not speak Chinese, Giordano taught a number of classes "through gesture and demonstration."

As a result of the lack of recorded Western music, he found a certain "musical naivete of interpretation" in some attempts at the classics but added his students quickly grasped his demonstrations of how they should be played.

His Chinese colleagues, he said, were "begging for Western recordings."

He said Beethoven and Mozart are favorites because "the Chinese like singable melodies. Mozart is very tuneful, like Chinese music."

The few contemporary Chinese compositions he heard joined traditional Chinese melodies to a 19th century European romantic setting.

While in Peking, Giordano saw three performances of the Peking Opera, all of them traditional pieces, unlike the jingoistic revolutionary productions witnessed by earlier visitors.

Giordano heard no Western popular music, aside from some 1940s Glenn Miller renditions he called "the Chinese equivalent of Muzak."

A Chinese functionary, however, did confide to him — unofficially — "I hope that rock music does not become popular in China because of connotations of violence and drugs."

He felt a great deal of rapport with his counterparts, although noting "We never talked politics."

"Everyone made it very clear how upset they were about the Cultural Revolution, and how happy they were to be open to the rest of the world."

Giordano is optimistic about future cultural exchanges. A good sign is the Chinese participation in the May Van Cliburn competition as contestants and judges, he said.

Invited back to China as a visiting lecturer, Giordano hopes to set a mainland tour for his 35-member Texas Little Symphony.

To Exhibit Old Egypt's Farm Tools

By LISETTE BALOUNY
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An exhibit is being prepared here for a tour of U.S. farm states, showing how ancient Egyptians tilled the Nile Valley. It also includes wheat and barley seeds found in King Tut's tomb.

The Heritage Center of Bismark, N.D., is host of the first exhibit early next year, according to Sheryle D. Ameen, representing a group of Arab-Americans participating in the program. "The exhibit traces the development of agriculture in ancient Egypt and shows the early tools and technology used — the beginning of civilization," Ms. Ameen said.

The Egyptian Museum, the home of the famous King Tutankhamen collection, and the Egyptian Museum of Agriculture are offering 60 items that are 3,500 to 7,000 years old. They range from statues of farmers and deities to tools and seeds.

A reciprocal exhibit from North Dakota to Egypt also is planned. North Dakota and the governorate of Giza, site of the Sphinx and Egypt's most famous pyramids on the outskirts of Cairo, declared themselves "sisters" in 1975 after a visit to Cairo by the governor of the American state.

The exhibit is sponsored in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities and by the Naif S. Attiyeh Foundation, supported by Americans of Arab origin in rural areas of the U.S.

"The exhibits are intended to be a cultural exchange that illustrates how the ancestors of both people lived centuries ago," Ms. Ameen said. The exhibit from North Dakota will focus on how the American Indians and early settlers lived and worked in farm communities in the U.S.

The themes are basically the same, how a group of people transformed themselves from nomads to settlers, from gatherers to producers of food, how they made tools to serve their purpose and what rituals they used to improve the help of their gods.

"In three words it is: life, death and renewal," Ms. Ameen said in an interview. "This is what we want to show."

Ms. Ameen was assisted in the selection of the items from Egypt by Egyptologists from the museum at the University of Pennsylvania. An Egyptian among them, Zahi Hawass, travelled with her to Egypt recently to help.

The exhibit will include the seeds taken from King Tut's tomb, and from earlier periods dating back 7,000 years, said Hawass. The earlier ones are from a settlement in the western Nile Delta known as Beni Salama, the first known farm community site in Egypt.

There will also be statues of farmers at work, plowing, irrigating, harvesting and cooking their food, he said. One statue depicts a brewer making beer, he added. There will also be deities including a medium height gilded bronze statue of Osiris, the god of agriculture.

"At this stage of our project we have a good idea of what it will show, and we hope institutions will provide the financial backing needed," Ms. Ameen said. She will be soliciting funds soon, she added, but declined to say how much the exhibit would cost.

LOW FARES
NEW YORK (AP) — Air fares for short trips must be kept low to compete with surface travel, according to the head of one of the nation's short-haul airlines.

"We believe that low fares are a must in order to compete with the automobile, the bus and even the backyard," said Howard D. Putnam, president of Southwest Airlines. "We don't believe we can constantly raise fares to cover costs because you can price yourself out of business."

Putnam was a guest speaker at a recent Wings Club meeting here. The club includes the chief executives of most of the world's major airlines among its membership of 1,500.
