Gas Policy Revised

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission last night adopted a gas service policy designed to take the commission out of the appliance service and piping business.

The policy was enacted, "in order to increase the time available for Commission Gas Service Crews to make installation of services from mains to meter sets," by reducing "the time spent on gas appliance piping by 90 percent, such that the only appliance piping performed by Commission crews will be for emergency purposes, or to provide work for gas service crews where service installations do not require their full time," by December 1982.

The policy also calls for a reduction in "appliance service to only cut-ons, lighting pilots, and response to gas leaks, by December 1983."

According to the policy, "the commission recognizes that in order to meet these goals, it will be necessary to inform customers, plumbers and heating contractors that piping installation should be made by private contractors; to raise the price of material and labor charged by the Commission for house piping to encourage private contractors to enter this field of business; to notify gas appliance dealers and distributors of our intent to terminate repair service; and to assist in the establishment of training programs as may be necessary to develop competent private gas service repairers."

The commission last night also adopted a position statement on energy conservation programs, saying, "since 1971, the Greenville Utilities Commission has promoted energy conservation as a means of, 'making the most efficient use of electricity, save on electric bills and conserve natural resources.'"

Pointing out that from 1977 through fiscal 1981, the commission has allocated from electric and gas revenues some $264,350 to administer energy conservation programs, which have been, "well received by our consumers and have effected substantial energy cost savings... (and) have been recognized throughout the state and nation as being outstanding examples of what can be done... on a local level."

the policy statement emphasized the commission's desire to, "continue...energy conservation programs that directly affect the service provided Commission customers..."

However, the policy statement noted that the commission, "proposes...to defer to the City of Greenville," any actions, such as funding and administration of general community energy conservation planning and programs involved in Phase II, of the Comprehensive Community Energy Management Program.

The Commission, on behalf of the city, contracted with Argonne National Laboratory in October 1978, to prepare a CCEM program for the city. The plan is to be delivered in March, and Argonne has already requested a proposal to continue the CCEM program into Phase II, which according to estimates, would include $40,000 in local contributions and $60,000 in federal grant funds for the 12-month Phase II implementation period.

Some $127,200 in federal funds had been budgeted ($100,600 actually spent so far) for the CCEM since 1978, while $791,634 in local funds had been budgeted ($71,300 spent) by the commission for the program.

GUC director Charles Horne announced that the commission has received, "The President's Award for Energy Efficiency."

The certificate, received recently for commission efforts in 1980, is, "In recognition of outstanding contributions to America's economic and national security through exemplary leadership in the national effort to achieve energy efficiency," and signed by, "Jimmy Carter," before he left office as president.

In other business, the commission awarded a number of bids, including: 20 concrete street light poles, Rigby Electric Supply Co. $6,900; 100 wood poles, Escambia Treating Co., $16,371; 65 wood transmission poles, Koppers Co., $31,428; 30 padmount 50KVA transformers, Mill Power Supply Co., $25,920; Westside Substation structure and equipment, HESCO, Inc., $133,472; Westside Substation power circuit breakers, Westinghouse Electric Supply Co., $38,000; and Westside Substation relay and control switchboards, Mellis Corp., $20,380.

Four Fires Erupt In Big Las Vegas Hotel

By PATRICK ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Four fires of suspicious origin sent smoke throughout several floors of the 30-story Las Vegas Hilton Tuesday night, killing eight people and injuring 242. A room-to-room search was under way today for possible additional victims in the gambling mecca's second major hotel blaze in three months. Six people, including a firefighter, were hospitalized in critical condition following the fires, which included one major blaze that started on the eighth floor and three smaller fires on other floors. Most of the injured suffered smoke inhalation and were released after treatment.

A pillar of flame shot up the side of the 2,783-room hotel, the nation's largest, as hundreds of guests fled into the streets or scrambled to the roof where helicopters plucked them to safety.

"When we got outside, there were flames shooting up the side of the hotel. It looked like the 'Towering Inferno,'" said Hank Arkin, a guest from Merrick, N.Y.

Fire Chief Roy Parrish said two men were being questioned about the blazes, which followed by less than three months a fire at the MGM Grand Hotel that killed 84 people and injured more than 700.

However, Clark County homicide Detective Michael Brady said "nobody is in custody for arson." He said six people were questioned about possible looting, but they were later released.

Security guards were posted at all entrances and in the casino area today, while guests returned to the hotel in an effort to retrieve belongings.

Manager Art Donovan said he had "no idea" when the hotel would reopen.

The first-floor casino was not damaged. Hotel officials said that unlike the MGM Grand, the stone-facade Hilton had sprinklers and smoke detectors on every floor.

The main fire began about 8:05 p.m. in the southeast corner of the eighth floor. A pillar of flames quickly leapt from window to window up the side of the building, spewing smoke over the nearby Las Vegas Strip.

Guests on upper floors broke windows to scream for help, or lowered themselves to the ground on ropes made of bedsheets. Stairwells to the ground floor were jammed.

One victim died in a fall onto an outside deck, Clark County Coroner Otto Ravenholt said. The others died of smoke inhalation, he said.

About 25 minutes after the first fire was found, a second blaze was discovered in a different wing. Two more were found within 20 more minutes, and a special weapons team was called to the scene when authorities suspected arsonists might be at work inside.

The bodies of three men were found in the eighth-floor elevator lobby and an elderly couple were found in their bathroom on the 10th floor. A woman died in her 21st-floor room, and a man found alive in his 24th floor room died moments after firefighters arrived, Ravenholt said.

Some 450 firefighters battled the fire.

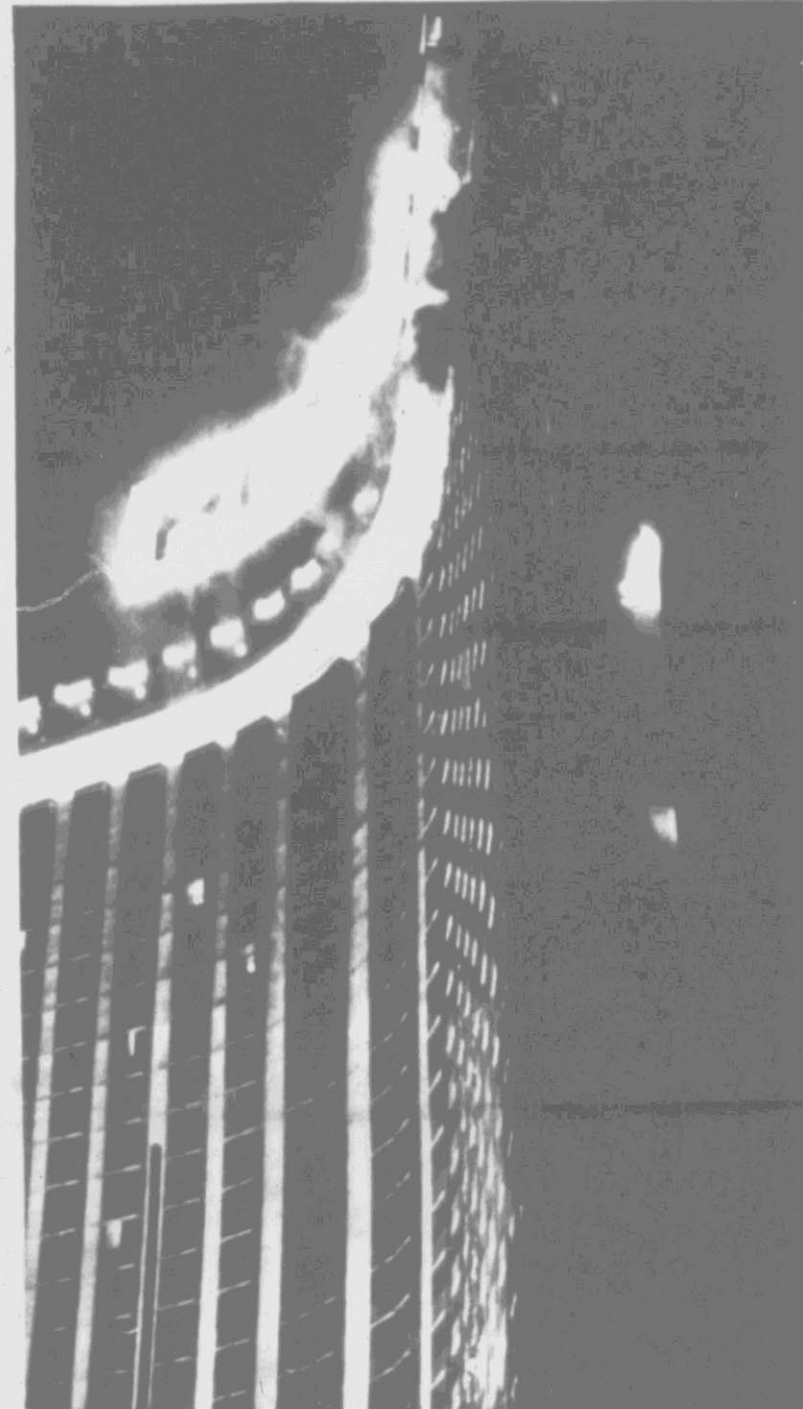

The fire on the eighth floor was under control shortly after 9 p.m., fire officials said. The other blazes — in a second-floor laundry room and on the third and ninth floors — were put out later.

The eighth and ninth floor hallways were gutted, Sgt. Bob Hilliard said, and smoke damage extended to the 18th floor. Rooms closest to the elevators received the most damage.

Barron Hilton, chairman of the Hilton Hotel Corp., in Beverly Hills, Calif., expressed "profound shock and sorrow over the deaths and injuries."

"If as ... Parrish suggests the fire was deliberately set, the entire resources of the Hilton Hotel Corporation will be committed to bring the person or people responsible for this tragedy to justice," he said.

Parrish said the fire was "of suspicious origin" and "entirely different" from the MGM blaze Nov. 21.

Programs For Needy Not Affected In Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, trying to blunt a political uproar over an expected $50 billion in proposed spending cuts, is promising not to touch seven programs for the needy that consume more than one-fourth of the federal budget.

At the same time, budget director David Stockman said big business and upper-income individuals will not escape Reagan's budget ax.

The cuts will hit synthetic fuels and export-import activity as well as such social programs as food stamps, unemployment and Medicaid, Stockman said Tuesday.

But he said programs for the truly needy will be protected as Reagan tries to slash "somewhere in the range of $50 billion" from the fiscal 1982 budget.

The untouchables are: —Social Security programs for 32 million retired people, dependents and survivors.

—Medicare payments for almost 29 million persons.

—Government-paid school lunches and breakfasts for 9.5 million children.

—Supplemental Security Income for 4.2 million blind, disabled or elderly poor people.

—Benefits for 4.1 million disabled veterans.

—Head Start funds covering 374,000 pupils.

—Summer jobs for 665,000 teenagers.

Those programs represent about $210 billion in spending, or between one-fourth and one-third of the $739.3 billion budget proposed by former President Carter for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Since another 35 percent in defense spending and federal interest payments also are unlikely to be cut, almost all of Reagan's planned cuts would have to come from a little more than a third of the budget.

White House press secretary James Brady said sparing the seven social programs should "make a lot of people rest a little easier" about Reagan's economic package to be unveiled Feb. 18.

Stockman acknowledged there will be "resistance across the board" to the proposed cuts, but he expressed optimism that Congress will react favorably.

"I think they recognize that politics as usual, that spending as usual... now have shifted," he said. "What we intend to propose next week is indeed big, it is indeed sweeping, and it indeed represents a fundamental departure from the course of economic policy over the last decade and from the status quo that we face today."

Brady said the exceptions were consistent with Reagan's instructions "not to cut or reduce any essential services or cut any benefits for the truly needy."

Three of the government's basic "entitlement programs," which guarantee people benefits if they meet requirements set by law and

Welfare Fraud

Linda T. McKesson of Fountain, was sentenced in Pitt County Superior Court yesterday to two years in jail, following her conviction on welfare fraud charges.

Ms. McKesson allegedly received $4,205 in Aid to Families with Dependent Children, and Medicaid benefits over a 2½ year period, while she was actually employed and receiving child support payments.

Pitt County Social Services director Ed Garrison said Ms. McKesson was the third welfare fraud case conviction in Superior Court this year, but the first defendant given an actual prison sentence.

Garrison emphasized that the Pitt Department of Social Services is, "very serious about attacking the problem of welfare fraud," pointing out that the department has five investigators in its welfare fraud and child support programs.

Hearing Set On Injunction

A hearing has been scheduled in U.S. District Court in Raleigh for 9:30 a.m. Friday, on a motion for a preliminary injunction to keep City of Greenville officials from employing a replacement for former Police Department Lt. Edward E. Laughinghouse.

Laughinghouse, dismissed from the department in December, after allegedly being under the effect of alcohol while on duty, filed suit in U.S. District Court in January, seeking reinstatement and $100,000 in actual and punitive damages.

Federal Judge F. T. Dupree Jr. denied a motion two weeks ago by Laughinghouse that he be reinstated, saying, "It does not appear from the facts shown, that the plaintiff will sustain immediate and irreparable injury before the defendants can respond," to the complaint.

The judge, at the same time, ordered a hearing, "at the earliest convenient date," on the motion for a preliminary injunction.

Hints On Frosting A Cake Attractively

When cake layers are completely cool (about two hours), carefully brush all loose crumbs from surfaces (including sides). Place one layer top-side-down on serving plate; spread about 1/3 cup frosting on layer. Place second layer top-side-up over frosting. Using a small amount of frosting, spread a thin layer around sides to seal in crumbs.

Reserve about 1/2 cup frosting for top. Swirl remaining frosting on sides, completely covering. Spread reserved frosting on top using a swirling motion and blending the top with sides.

Cakes baked in angel food or fluted tube pans are usually glazed rather than frosted. Combine and blend glaze ingredients using the amounts indicated in the recipe. A glaze that contains no shortening should be thin enough to "drizzle" but should not be "runny." To test for the right consistency, after ingredients are blended, lift the spoon over the bowl and allow the mixture to run off. It should drizzle off the spoon in a somewhat broken manner but smoothly. If it is too thin (runs off spoon) add more powdered sugar a teaspoon at a time.

A glaze that contains margarine, butter or other shortening will be thicker and may seem too thick. It should "flow" rather than "drizzle." To test for consistency, mixture should flow off spoon smoothly and evenly but very slowly. If mixture falls off spoon in clumps, it is too thick. Stir in more water a drop at a time and test again after each addition.

After blebbing ingredients use a teaspoon to glaze the cake. Fill the teaspoon with glaze. Using the side of the bowl, remove any excess glaze from the spoon. Carefully allow glaze to flow off spoon onto top of cake. Using the tip and back of the spoon, gently spread the glaze so that it covers the top, allowing some to flow or drizzle down the sides.

The meeting was held at the home of Ms. Ruth Braddy with Ms. Helen Sermons presiding. The president announced the State Spring Council meeting would convene in Charlotte in March.

Dear Abby

Baby Sitters Want Increase

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son is being married at a formal church wedding in May, and I am very nervous about the bride's selection of bridesmaids.

Five out of her six bridesmaids are already visibly pregnant! By May, one will be six months along, two will be in their eighth month, and the other two had better have their overnight cases packed and in their cars!

The bridesmaids' gowns are the maternity type, but Abby, I wonder what the reaction will be when they all walk down the aisle in various stages of pregnancy? (They're all married, so there's nothing wrong with it, but the coincidence might cause people to snicker.)

Is there some tactful way I can get my future daughter-in-law to reconsider her choices?

NERVOUS IN NEVADA

DEAR NERVOUS: No. It's the bride's prerogative to be attended by her closest friends, in whatever shape they happen to be in. Just make sure there's a doctor in the house.

DEAR ABBY: We are two 17-year-old girls who baby-sit to earn extra money, and our problem is one that many other teen-age baby sitters have.

In our town, we get a dollar an hour for baby-sitting. This is the same pay our mothers received when they baby-sat as teen-agers. Due to inflation, we think we're entitled to $1.50 an hour before midnight and $2.00 afterward. How should we go about getting a pay raise?

UNDERPAID

DEAR UNDERPAID: Sitters can hardly stage a "sit-in." But all you sitters can stand united and ask for a uniform increase. And if you get a boot in the bustle, all you have to lose is your seating capacity.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to tell you how much good you did for me when you published the following in your column:

"When I met him, I liked him.
"When I liked him, I loved him.
"When I loved him, I let him.
"When I let him, I lost him."

I can't thank you enough for printing that. It saved my reputation. My boyfriend and I had been dating only a short time, yet he was pressuring me to "let him." I'm 16 and he's 18.

I very nearly gave in, then that little saying popped into my head and gave me the strength to say no.

Needless to say, today we aren't speaking. I know it sounds like the plan backfired, but it really didn't. I may have lost a boyfriend (who in the long run turned out to be worthless anyway), but I gained the respect of other guys with better values. (Boys talk.) I hope other girls who read your column that day took your advice seriously. I did. And today my life is the best it's ever been. Thanks.

District Clubwoman Named

The GF North Carolina Federation of Woman's Clubs District 15 annual fall meeting was held Saturday in Washington.

The highlight of the meeting was the presentation of the District Outstanding Clubwoman award to Mrs. Maggie Brown of Greenville, a member of the Junior Woman's Club. She is a past president and junior advisor of the club.

Mrs. Brown was 1980 clubwoman of the year for the Greenville Juniors. She is married to Jim Brown and they have two daughters, Terry and Suzanne. Mrs. Brown has served on the district by-laws and nominating committees.

Mrs. Tracey Bell, a representative of the Children's Home Society, led a seminar on "Problem Pregnancies," the GFNCFWC junior project. Workshops on "Puzzled Teenagers" and "Ways and Means" were conducted by Ms. Carol Ann Tucker and Mrs. Jane Mull.

Attending from the Greenville Juniors were Mrs. Brown, Mary Shearin, current president, Lee Masten, first vice president, Brenda Jarman, Shelley Basnight, Anne Pridgen, Vickie Waggoner and JoAnn McPherson.

Bride-Elect Entertained

A bridesmaids luncheon honoring bride-elect Terry Ann Kovalchick was given Saturday at the home of Mrs. Bronson Matney.

Mrs. Ernest L. Ferguson was assisting hostess.

The bride-elect was presented a silver necklace and a gift of china by the hostesses. Miss Kovalchick remembered her attendants with gifts.

A Valentine theme was used to decorate the dining area.

Special guests included Mrs. John Kovalchick, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Alton Hardee, mother of the bridegroom-elect.

4♥ Pass Pass 4♦
Pass Pass 5♥ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♣.

We have been told that it is more blessed to give than to receive. South followed that advice on today's hand and his generosity was rewarded tenfold.

North's bid of five hearts was a two-way action. He was not sure he could defeat four spades, and five hearts, even if it failed, would not prove costly. East felt he had done his all by risking four spades at equal vulnerability. His assessment was correct — perfect defense would have defeated five spades by two tricks. And an inspired club lead by West would have beaten five hearts.

The opening spade lead was ruffed in the closed hand. Declarer led a low trump to the nine, and ruffed another spade. He cashed the king and ace of diamonds then led the king of spades. East covered with the ace, but instead of ruffing, declarer magnanimously discarded his losing diamond. This loser-on-loser play had a dramatic effect. Unless East took the ace of clubs there and then, it would have been assigned to oblivion. A spade would allow declarer to discard a club while ruffing in dummy, then set up diamonds with a ruff. The jack of trumps would be an entry to dummy to the established diamonds, allowing declarer to get rid of his remaining club loser. And if East had the remaining diamond, he could exit with it but that would simply allow declarer to set up dummy's suit with a ruff.

Note that, if declarer takes the straightforward line of simply leading toward the king of clubs, he is doomed. The defenders will get two club tricks and a diamond. Also, if declarer tries to set up the diamonds, West can maneuver to win a diamond trick and his club shift will again defeat the contract.

N. Pitt Group Rated 'Superior'

The Advanced Choral Ensemble from North Pitt High School received a superior rating on its performance in the Solo-Small Ensemble Contest held at Wilson Fike High School in January. The 16 singers were rated on their performance of "Your Shining Eyes," by Bateson and "O Bone Jesu," by Palestrina.

Members of the ensemble are Lynn Allen, Lisa Barnes, Terry Briley, Juanita Bunn, Susan Carson, Christine Clift, Katrina Gray, Sheron Harris, Amanda Holliman, Jimmy Teel, Jerry Simpson, Paul Tucker, John Wilson, Barry Warren, Andrea Wynne and Lu Anne Keel.

Paul Tucker received a superior rating on his baritone performance of "Turn Thee to Me," by Dvorak. Susan Carson, soprano, received a superior rating on "Stille Wie Die Nacht," by Bohm. Amanda Holliman, an alto, received an excellent rating on "I Will Sing New Songs of Gladness," by Dvorak.

This contest is the first one in which the North Pitt Chorus has participated. Barbara Plummer is the choral director. Farmville Middle School and Farmville Central High under the direction of Kathryn Sauls also competed in the competition. Twenty-eight soloists were sent to the

Two Wrecks Cause Damage

An estimated $3,950 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 4:35 p.m. collision at the intersection of Albemarle and Virginia Avenues, involving a truck driven by Wallace Ray Roberson of 111 Wade St. and a car operated by William Robinette Carson of 100A North Meade St.

Investigators, who charged Roberson with improper passing, estimated damage at $700 to the truck and $1,500 to the car.

Cars driven by Andrea Marie Vestal of 1403 Willow St. and David Spruill Jr. of Roxobel, collided about 8 a.m. at the intersection of Dickinson and Line Avenues, resulting in an estimated $350 damage to the Vestal car and $1,400 damage to the Spruill vehicle.

Better Methods Needed

A society fed up with petty street crime might feel moved to enthusiastically endorse Chief Justice Warren E. Burger's contention that the courts are tipped too far in the defendants' favor in criminal cases.

We, too, have seen too many cases where a conviction was thrown out on what seemed to be a technicality of the law, and the defendant was back on the streets. So, we suppose we would have to agree that there is something to what the chief justice says.

There is, however, one factor that causes us to pause. That is the fact that our jails are bulging with convicted criminals. So despite the fact that there are flagrant rulings which turn criminals loose, it is obvious the courts are doing a pretty thorough job of convicting those who have committed crimes.

How does society deal with the problem of increasing crime, and still protecting the rights guaranteed us in the Constitution? Perhaps the other part of Chief Justice Burger's discussion before the American Bar Association has the most merit. He cited the need for increased spending on law enforcement and prison renovation.

We need more sophisticated police methods to deal with today's crime syndicates. We are grabbing the drug pusher and prostitute in the streets but the big-time crime organizer is not touched. It is going to take better law enforcement technology to get at the real heart of American crime.

Intervention To Test Reagan

Another premier of Poland has been dismissed as labor unrest continues in that nation.

It is likely that the time is nearing when the Soviet Union, or one of its puppet governments, intervenes in Polish affairs to end what it sees as a lethal threat to the all-mighty state.

When that comes it will be a major test of the new Reagan administration in the United States. The president has taken a tough line with the Soviets, and it is possible the first major test of that toughness will come with a Polish intervention.

A Growth Industry With TV In The Court

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Every time the General Assembly of North Carolina runs into financial hard times, members take a gloomy look at public information services in state government.

But when it comes to keeping people on board, in one capacity or another, with whatever title, to keep their names and successes before the public, governmental officials are second to none.

During the recession of 1975-76 the legislative base budget committee made an effort to trim back the proliferating numbers of in-house public relations activities throughout state government.

This year, again trying to cut spending — or at least trim in some places to beef up others — legislators are beginning to thumb through the monstrous budget books looking for "public relations".

It is obvious, already, that this phase of government activity has recovered from the recession and must be classified as a growth industry.

Hidden
Pinning down the real figures is all but impossible. You will not find, in the budget, a category labeled "public relations". You will find some departments will list "communications", and some will simply hide the entire thing under "special assistant to the director".

Cutting through all the various job titles and excuses, however, it is safe to say that pumping out government information for the public is costing state taxpayers in the neighborhood of $15 to 20 million yearly, and is keeping around 200 people on the payrolls of state government agencies, the state colleges and universities, and the sub-programs on the campuses such as hospitals, sports programs, and such which have their own information specialists.

When Gov. Jim Hunt spoke the other evening at a gathering of the North Carolina Press Association at Chapel Hill, he said a couple of significant things. One, he asked the question of newspaper people: "Are you comfortable with the fact that people are making fundamental decisions about the future of this state and nation on the basis of the information and ideas you give them?"

Perhaps the question could equally be, "Is Gov. Hunt comfortable with people making judgments on government programs on the basis of information and ideas supplied by paid publicists?"

He also noted that he believes his administration "should communicate actively and aggressively. And that will continue to be our policy."

Some see red when told that at a time they are being asked to boost gas taxes, the Department of Transportation has 14 employees and a budget of $350,000 for public information. Some are genuinely distressed that welfare costs are out of sight and funds must be increased while more than half-a-million is spent by Human Resources for a public information office with 20 employees. MORRIS

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court just voted to allow television cameras into the courtroom. It might be one of the most far-reaching decisions the Burger Court has ever made, and possibly the most frightening as far as protecting the innocent goes. Let me explain. Anyone who has had any exposure on television knows that everyone who has seen you recognizes you, but no one can remember what you said or did. For 15 years people who watched them every night didn't know Huntley from Brinkley. I had the good fortune to be on "60 Minutes" in a friendly piece done by Mike Wallace — but to this day people can't remember if I was the scheming real estate developer in Arizona, or the guy who was smugging in illegal aliens from Mexico.

With the advent of cable television and its eventual choice of 50 channels, we have to assume that courtroom trials will provide some of the best entertainment on television. Therefore some smart cable TV operator will plug into the courts and get an entire channel of free time shows.

Let us assume that a defendant, Arnold Gullible, is being tried by a jury in New York for refusing to pay for an AMTRAK train ride, because there was no heat in the car and the train was two hours late.

After three days Arnold is found innocent of the charges and freed. All this has been on television.

The next day Arnold is walking to his office and a lady on the street says to her companion, "Look, there's the man we saw on television who held up the liquor store in the Bronx."

"No, that's not the man who held up the liquor store. He's the one who mugged the old man in the park."

Arnold keeps walking. He stops off at his bank to cash a check. The guard immediately recognizes him and draws his gun. "You're not going to pull another bank robbery here," the guard tells him. "I saw you on TV and I couldn't believe the judge would give you a suspended sentence."

"I'm not a bank robber," Arnold protests. "You saw me on television in regard to a case in which I refused to pay a train ticket."

"Don't tell me what I saw on television. You were on Monday night."

"That was another trial."

"Get out of the bank, I don't ever want to see you here again," the guard tells him. Arnold leaves in a daze. He's stopped on the street by a man. "Hey, Arnold, I'm a big fan of yours. Anyone who could embezzle $7 million from his company and wind up with a hung jury is my kind of guy. How about your autograph?"

"I didn't embezzle $7 million from my company."

"Okay, so it was more. I bet 5-to-1 you'd beat the rap. Just put your John Hancock here on my business card and sign it to my son Billy."

Arnold signs it. A crowd gathers and asks for autographs. "Who is it?" a lady wants to know.

"It's 'Son of Sam.'" someone else says. "They just (Please turn to Page 5)

Other Editors Say A Changing Image

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

One of the best things ever to happen to our neighbors in Durham was the idea of changing the city's image from "the City of Tobacco" to "the City of Medicine". It is proper and ironic that a group of business and medical people have decided that Durham will henceforth use the caduceus, the symbol of the medical profession, instead of the tobacco leaf. The ironic part of the changeover is that Durham became a city because of its tobacco outlets, and Duke University became world-famous because of James B. Duke and tobacco money. One could say that tobacco money actually made it possible for Durham to become "the City of Medicine".

No advertising or consulting firm in the world could have come up with a better slogan for Durham. It speaks the truth about the community.

In Durham there are over 2,000 hospital beds, and the community's physician to population ratio is five times the national average. The Duke medical facilities, the Veterans Administration Medical Center, Durham County General Hospital, McPherson Hospital, Lenox Baker Children's Hospital, Lincoln Community Health Center, and Duke's Eye Center and Comprehensive Cancer Center make up a complex of health services second to none in the country. The campaign will certainly help to attract many retired citizens and an enormous number of new industries to the area. The supporters of "the City of Medicine" plan can also report on the vast amount of medical research and other allied medical facilities in Chapel Hill, Raleigh and the Research Triangle. Durham is truly the flagship of medical services for North Carolina and no one can complain for its using "the City of Medicine" to describe the city.

Working on the program for the past year has been a group of 10 health leaders from Durham headed by Dr. James E. Davis, chairman of the department of surgery at Durham County General Hospital. Dr. Davis is a graduate of the University here, served as president of the student body during his senior year, and was one of the most outstanding track stars in the school's history. He has been one of Durham's leading citizens for almost 35 years. His leadership of the project gives it the credence and direction needed to assure success.

Just the idea of calling Durham "the City of Medicine" might be the best thing that has happened to "the City of Tobacco" since World War II.

— Because economic conditions are poor doesn't mean they'll always be that way, says John Filer, a hard-nosed businessman who finds reason to believe that optimism is realism.

"At any time we make the terrible mistake of believing that current conditions will exist for all time," said Filer, 57, chairman of Aetna Life & Casualty, a company with more than $30 billion of assets.

Current conditions, it is widely believed, are less than what they should be, not just in financial and construction areas, where Aetna is heavily involved, but also in a vast economic panorama.

It may not continue, Filer said. A year ago, he reminded, there was widespread belief the bond market was dead. Now, he observed, corporations and investors are lining up to get back in.

Filer, whose giant enterprise is ranked first on the Fortune list of "diversified financial companies," almost three times larger than Merrill Lynch & Co., is especially wary of long-term forecasts based on short-term phenomena. He has seen them fail time after time.

Something always intervenes, he said. He is optimistic about solutions to buying and financing homes. He refuses to believe that interest rates are bound to remain high just because they are high now. He declines to bury the whole life insurance policy, insisting that inflation hasn't killed it.

"Whole life is no more dead than the bond market is," he said of the traditional life insurance policy that has, among other benefits, cash and loan value. During the past inflated decade, whole-life (or entire life) policies have lost some of their face value and appeal, and many would-be customers have switched to short-term, renewable policies.

And the traditional home mortgage market, given up for dead even by lenders whose chief product it is, may be no more dead than bonds or whole life insur-

To the editor:
LBD... or No LBD... that is the question. If we have anyone wondering what this means, let me explain. On Tuesday, Feb. 17, the citizens of Greenville will vote on the Liquor-by-the-Drink issue.

People, we have to realize what can happen if it is voted in. Sure, we might get some revenue from it. But where would it go? The whiskey forces say it will go for the paving of streets, curbing and other community projects. I don't think so, I believe it will eventually go for the rehabilitation of the alcoholic and also increased law enforcement, therefore, costing instead of making money.

We need to understand that some people will get the liquor, no matter what the cost. People will get all they want to drink, with or without LBD, so what is the advantage of it? The whiskey forces say that they don't, in any way, support taverns and bars. If we have LBD, the restaurants will be making money off liquor, the money that we all work so hard for. We will be making them rich, and in the process, making us poorer. Drinking is a sin. It also kills people, sometimes slowly and painfully. I recently became an EMT, a person to save lives, but the law says that people have the right to refuse treatment, and if we give it to them, it costs us, the taxpayers. So, the only thing I can do, if he refuses, is to sit back and feel sorry for him.

Please, folks, if you care about your loved one, vote against LBD. You may be glad you did. But, just remember, your vote may mean a matter of LIFE or DEATH.

To the editor:
I am afraid that Frank Steinbeck fails to think things through in a sober way. In his Public Forum letter of January 23, he says, "Greenville and Pitt County cannot afford more outlets for the distributions of liquors."

What Frank doesn't realize is that, if the Liquor By the Drink referendum goes yes, the new outlets will simply replace the old inlets. Those who now go in with bottles will then go in without bottles.

This means that fewer (if any) bottles will be dropped on the pavement and broken, thus reducing hazard to children who gambol barefoot in the parking lot in the summertime. In short, less innocent blood spill.

Two other considerations that slipped past Frank's mind: The Mooch Factor and The Breath Factor.

When several couples go out for dinner, and one of the couples forgets to bring their brown bag, The Mooch Factor emerges. The forgetful couple mooches drinks from the others, causing side glances, mutterings, and general discontent among the mooched-upon — leading, mayhap (and alas), to harsh words and broken homes.

The Breath Factor occurs when the forgetful couple does not mooch, but simply goes through the evening talking into the others' faces, and blowing their Own Breath, unscented by bourbon or anything else save (perhaps) luncheon collards. This can result in permanent hatreds.

I think that when Frank considers these things carefully, he will go early to the polls and vote Yes in the referendum.

To the editor:
Reading Mr. W. P. Macomber's letter to the editor in Monday's Reflector confirms my belief that few Pitt County citizens know what the real concern of the rural property owners is over the recent property re-evaluation. The tobacco farmer's primary concern is the $2 per pound value placed on the tobacco quota and added to the value of the land.

This, Mr. Macomber, has caused tobacco farms to go up four times their original value, although only about 12 to 15 percent of most farms' cropland may be planted to tobacco. Since your property and that of most homeowners went up only twice its original value, we must assume that if original values were accurate, your property is now undervalued and our is overvalued. Certainly, it does appear that your best interest will be served if officials do not "cave in to political pressure."

The tobacco quota is, in effect, a franchise to produce tobacco under a federally regulated program. The quota (alone) cannot be sold, we are told, since it does not belong to the individual, but is only his to use and passes on with the land to which it was issued. It also may be cancelled at any time the government sees fit to withdraw the program.

With this in mind, we tobacco farmers feel it is unfair to tax our land, buildings, equipment, homes and then add a privilege tax disguised as a property tax. We see this as a penalty extended to the tobacco farm owner that applies to no other franchise holder for county tax purposes. Certainly, we ask why.

Confident Of Changes Ahead

Current conditions, it is widely believed, are less than what they should be, not just in financial and construction areas, where Aetna is heavily involved, but also in a vast economic panorama.

It may not continue, Filer said. A year ago, he reminded, there was widespread belief the bond market was dead. Now, he observed, corporations and investors are lining up to get back in.

Filer, whose giant enterprise is ranked first on the Fortune list of "diversified financial companies," almost three times larger than Merrill Lynch & Co., is especially wary of long-term forecasts based on short-term phenomena. He has seen them fail time after time.

Something always intervenes, he said. He is optimistic about solutions to buying and financing homes. He refuses to believe that interest rates are bound to remain high just because they are high now. He declines to bury the whole life insurance policy, insisting that inflation hasn't killed it.

"Whole life is no more dead than the bond market is," he said of the traditional life insurance policy that has, among other benefits, cash and loan value. During the past inflated decade, whole-life (or entire life) policies have lost some of their face value and appeal, and many would-be customers have switched to short-term, renewable policies.

And the traditional home mortgage market, given up for dead even by lenders whose chief product it is, may be no more dead than bonds or whole life insurance, according to Filer, the realistic optimist.

"It's conceivable that traditional financing (long-term, fixed rates) can come back," he said, sitting at a desk in a spacious office as timeless in decor as the huge red brick Aetna complex surrounding it.

Permanence is something Filer understands, and he isn't sure that the troubles afflicting homebuyers today are permanent. "I won't be sure that four years from now we won't be talking about what we were worrying about," he said. "I have a feeling that the ingenuity of man will come up with arrangements."

While this suggests Filer relies on chance intervention to save the day, his subsequent comments dispel the notion. There have been attitudinal changes, he pointed out. People, he said, are more willing to tackle problems. Reindustrialization is already more than a slogan, he believes, and he believes there are some indications that the profit, non-profit and governmental sectors are learning to cooperate.

Unlike some contemporaries, who fear that to play with the tiger's tail is to invite a thrashing, he believes business can cooperate with government to correct urban disarray. It must be a cooperative effort, he said. What is good or bad for people is good or bad for business.

The changes won't happen suddenly, he suggested, and not without real effort and some fears, too. But again he cautions Americans not to judge the future by what they see today.

"I would not want this company at the moment to be out front with long term, fixed rate loans," he conceded.

But, he added, if confidence is rebuilt, productivity improved and the work ethic restored, "then possibly financial institutions may have money pile in over the transom." It isn't inconceivable, he said.

And if that happens, the suggestion was, the financing of America — its homes and factories, too — might benefit from a more plentiful supply of traditional, stable, affordable interest rates and terms.

Texas Roundup Snares Thousands Of Aliens

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writer
EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Border Patrol Supervisor Jim Kerr can remember the days when illegal alien field workers waved at his men as they drove by.

Now illegal aliens working on Texas farms, ranches and construction sites are being bused back across the Rio Grande by the thousands in an immigration crackdown drawing criticism from Hispanic groups.

The Border Patrol had been prohibited from raiding private businesses since last spring by officials hoping to get a better census count.

The ban was lifted three weeks ago and "we had our second highest January (apprehension rate) in history," said Richard Staley of El Paso, chief of a Border Patrol district that includes most of southern New Mexico and West Texas as far east as Van Horn.

"January is usually one of our slower months — there is usually very little 'harvest,'" he said. But last month, he said, his 385 officers apprehended 12,000 undocumented workers and returned most of them to Mexico.

Other Border Patrol officers from here to the lower Rio Grande Valley and as far north as Dallas reported the same trend.

The latest raids have drawn criticism from Mexican-American activists who argue they disrupt families and infringe on the rights of Hispanic citizens without actually stopping the northward migration of Mexicans into the United States.

Even though the ban extended through the first half of January, agents working in the Rio Grande Valley caught twice as many illegal aliens last month as they had in December, said Jim Kerr, a Border Patrol supervisor based in the McAllen headquarters.

Before the restrictions were lifted, "we could drive down farm roads and look out either side and see illegals working in the fields," he said, adding that the undocumented workers "were waving at us as we went by."

Officers apprehended 84 aliens in one three-hour sweep of Odessa oilfield pipe supply yards, said Johnny Williams, chief pilot with the Border Patrol sector headquarters in Marfa.

In Dallas, regional chief William Chambers said "as of last week we have arrested 510 in the Dallas-Fort Worth area alone." Most of them have since been bused back to the border, where illegal aliens are released to walk across the bridges back into Mexico.

Immigration officials say those bused back to the border "volunteer" to return, as opposed to the few who elect to stay and wait — in jail — for a deportation hearing.

Charles Elmore, a Border Patrol intelligence officer based in Marfa, said there is rarely any hostility between the illegal aliens and the officers who arrest them.

"They joke and laugh on their way back to be processed. There is no deep-seated hatred there. It's not that we don't like these people," he said. "I don't blame them for trying to come up here and better themselves."

"But the United States just can't solve the whole world's evils."

Pitt Students Are In Program

Representatives of the Pitt County Close UP program will participate in the National Close UP in April in Washington, D.C. Students attending will be from D.H. Conley and Farmville Central High Schools.

The Pitt County School system received special recognition for being the first unit in the country to carry out such an extensive Close UP program at the local county level. North Carolina was also a forerunner of the Close UP program on a state governmental level.

The Close UP concept is that of involving students in the mechanics of politics and government. This is achieved by interviewing governmental and administrative officials. On this face-to-face level students get a chance to discuss many of the problems and challenges of today's government.

Members of the local Pitt County steering committee are: Sarah Hunt, Farmville Central; Delano Wilson, Ayden-Grifton; Virginia Guice, North Pitt; Helen McClanahan, D.H. Conley; and Tina Drye, High School Supervisor.

Ms. Drye, who has received an administrative fellowship to attend the national Close UP sessions, will share her experiences with Close UP on a local and state level at the conference.

Students who will also attend are Kirk Shelley, Stuart Gordon, Scott Cannon, Mike Worthington, Jeff Joyner, and Stephen Natale of Pitt County Schools.

These students are presently contacting groups and organizations that might be willing to sponsor their trip. Anyone wishing to help sponsor a trip may contact Sarah Hunt at Farmville Central High School. (753-5138)

Senator Urges Restraint On ERA Referendum Bill

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Minutes after a bill was introduced calling for a referendum on the Equal Rights Amendment, Sen. Rachel Gray, D-High Point, pleaded Tuesday with the Senate not to let the issue divide the group.

"I know how much rancor there has been in the past," she said. "I hate to see us choose up sides."

Meanwhile, a number of committees looked at proposals aimed at stopping crime, including the fair-sentencing law promoted by Gov. Jim Hunt.

As ERA opponents had expected, Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Kings Mountain, proposed the bill calling for the ERA referendum. Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green sent the bill to the Judiciary I Committee, which is considered to be against the constitutional amendment.

Harris has acknowledged the committee probably will amend the referendum bill to make it a proposal to ratify the ERA. Supporters of the constitutional amendment, acknowledging they lack enough support needed for approving the ERA, say they would rather delay discussion of the amendment.

"I am pleading to you to keep an open mind on this issue," Mrs. Gray said. "If you cannot think what this Equal Rights Amendment might mean to your wife, think of what it might mean to your daughter."

Meanwhile, the uniform sentencing law, scheduled to go into effect March 1, came under fire in the Senate Judiciary III Committee, prompting supporters to say they'll accept still another delay in its implementation.

Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Goldsboro, primary sponsor of the measure, said any delay would have to be brief. "I would not fight some delay," Barnes said in an interview. "At the outside I can see June 1, at the present time."

The uniform sentencing provision is the centerpiece of the Hunt administration's anti-crime legislation. It will establish uniform sentences for each type of crime. In 1980, the Legislature postponed the date the measure would take effect from July 1980 until this March.

The Senate Judiciary III Committee was considering a bill filed by Barnes making minor amendments in the act, largely giving judges more discretion. It sent the issue to a subcommittee, which will also consider proposals to delay the effective date of the act.

Sterilization

Rep. Chris Barker, D-New Bern, filed a bill that would allow the parents of a mentally ill or mentally retarded person to petition for that person to be sterilized.

Community support programs for the mentally ill are the target of a bill filed by Rep. Gordon Greenwood, D-Black Mountain. The bill would appropriate $425,000 in 1981-82 and $725,000 in 1982-83 for area programs for the mentally ill. Greenwood said the local programs should be used as an alternative to lengthy stays at institutions by the mentally ill.

Insurance

A bill to set up a 12-member commission to study the organization of the Insurance Department was filed Tuesday by Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Canton.

In calling for the commission, Messer cited the rapid growth of the department in recent years. Members of the study commission would be appointed by the lieutenant governor, the General Assembly and the insurance industry.

Mental Health

The General Assembly must consider closing facilities for the mentally ill or drastically cutting area mental health programs if it is going to cut money from the budget of the Division of Mental Health under the Department of Human Resources, legislative staff analysts said Tuesday.

"If the Legislature is going to look at cuts, it's going to have to consider the possibility of closing facilities or portions of facilities or consider cutting back community programs because that's where the dollars are," said Jim Johnson of the Legislature's fiscal research staff.

Elderly

The Senate Judiciary I Committee approved an administration bill that was proposed to make assault on an elderly person a felony. But the version that finally came out of committee bears little resemblance to the original version, and would instead make it a felony to assault handicapped people.

The committee's version, rewritten by a subcommittee headed by Sen. Robert Swain, D-Asheville, would define hands or feet as deadly weapons in assaults on handicapped people. Currently a weapon must be used to make an assault a felony.

Originally, the measure would have applied to anyone 65 or over.

Anyone convicted under the proposed bill would face up to 20 years in prison, a fine, or both.

Wages

Rep. Ted Kaplan, D-Winston-Salem, filed a bill that would allow some employers to create new positions that would not be subject to the minimum wage statute. The bill would limit such positions to less than 25 percent of the employer's work force.

The state minimum wage currently is $2.90.

Kaplan said he hoped the bill would encourage employers to hire more workers during times of high unemployment. Under the bill, current employees could not be replaced by such workers and the hours of current employees could not be reduced by the hiring of such workers.

New Bills

Kaplan also filed a bill that would add two public representatives to the board of medical examiners.

Rep. Al Adams, D-Raleigh, filed a bill that would affect county commissioners, sheriffs, district attorneys, registers of deeds and local school board members. Adams' bill would require that when one of these elected officials leaves, his political party should appoint the successor. The bill would require that governing bodies adhere to the party's suggestions.

A North Carolina rescue squad pension fund would be established under a bill filed by Rep. Bob Etheridge, D-Lillington, and a committee to study the property tax system in the state would be set up under a bill filed by Rep. Robert McAlister, D-Ruffin.

Sen. Vernon White, D-Winterville, filed a bill that would double the tax on feed and fertilizer from 5 cents a ton to 10 cents a ton. The money would go to agricultural research in the state.

New Horizons Said Success

The Pitt County NAACP New Horizons program was an enormous success, according to D. D. Garrett, chapter president.

The program, held last weekend, commemorated the 118th anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation.

Saturday evening Mrs. Althea T. L. Simmons spoke to a full house at a banquet held at the Holiday Inn. Mrs. Simmons, director of the Washington, D. C. Bureau of the NAACP, is a lobbyist for civil rights. She stressed the importance of the Voters Rights Amendment of 1965. It is only as recently as 1965 that black people throughout this country obtained the right to vote without reservation. This right is now in jeopardy, as the statute of this amendment will terminate in August, 1982, she said. The extension of the 1965 Voters Rights Amendment comes before Congress this year and there are some political elements for its repeal, she indicated.

Sunday evening the celebration was continued with a Freedom Fellowship Mass Meeting at Sycamore Hill Baptist Church here. Although Bishop Alfred G. Dunston, the announced guest speaker, was unable to attend, his representative, the Rev. R. P. McDougal addressed the group. Pastor of Clinton Chapel A. M. E. Zion Church, New Bern, he drew a comparison between the emancipations of Jesus Christ and Abraham Lincoln. He said, "Christ liberated the souls of all men; thus he prepared the way for Lincoln to grant the physical freedom of black people."

The Eastern Star, Household of Ruth, Masons, Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias were the special guests for the evening. All were dressed in their traditional uniforms.

Musical programs were rendered for both events. Mrs. Lillian Parker accompanied a vocal quintet from Phillip Baptist Church of Simpson Saturday. Johnny Wooten conducted a combined choir from York Memorial A. M. E. Zion Church Sunday.

There will be a meeting of the branch's executive board Monday at 7:45 p. m. at 403 Hudson Street, Greenville.

Plan Federal Reserve Carry Inflation Fight

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration concedes its proposed tax and budget cuts would make only a small dent in the economy, leaving the main battle to bring down inflation to the independent Federal Reserve Board.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Tuesday that President Reagan's planned 30 percent reduction in personal tax rates over three years and a cut in business taxes are needed to encourage economic growth and reverse a three-year decline in productivity.

But that does not mean "we can defeat inflation solely by cutting taxes and producing more goods," Regan said in a speech to the National Press Club. "Even a large increase in productivity growth would knock only 1 or 2 percent off the inflation rate," which stood at 12.4 percent last year.

"The rest of the inflation will have to be ended by bringing long-run money growth into line with the long-run growth of the economy," Regan said. "The major contribution of the Federal Reserve must be to moderate the growth rates" of the money supply.

Under the 1913 law that created the Federal Reserve System, the nation's central bank is responsible for conducting the nation's monetary policy independently of the president.

While the Reagan administration is counting on the bank to bring down inflation, the Fed says its efforts to restrain growth of the money supply will succeed in combatting inflation only if the administration reduces federal spending so budget deficits can be eliminated.

While most economists expect inflation to persist at around 10 percent for the next two or three years, a forecast prepared for the administration's budget office predicts inflation could be cut to about 6 percent by the end of 1982 if the president's economic program is enacted fully and the Federal Reserve maintains a tight grip on the money supply.

That forecast has come under attack as being unrealistically optimistic.

Tuesday, the chief economist of the New York Stock Exchange, William Freund, cautioned bankers against making financial plans based on the low forecast. Freund told a group of bankers a 6 percent inflation rate is not likely to be achieved before 1985 at the earliest.

In his speech Tuesday, Regan also said the administration may follow up its personal tax-cut plan later this year with a proposal to reduce tax rates on dividends, interest and other types of unearned income.

Unearned income now is taxed at marginal rates of up to 70 percent, while earned income, such as salary, is taxed at up to 50 percent.

Regan, formerly chairman of brokerage giant Merrill Lynch & Co., previously has said he favors making the tax rates comparable for both types of income, a move that would benefit upper-income Americans with large savings or holdings of stocks and bonds.

"I have a quarrel with those who call that unearned (income)," Regan added. "I work for mine (money). Having worked for it and then having had it taxed and then having managed to save it and I then invest it and I send it out to work at my risk and then a return comes back to me — that's unearned? Not in my lexicon."

Move Murderer To Death House

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — David Dene Martin was being moved to Louisiana's "death house" today as his lawyer searched for a way to block the convicted murderer's scheduled execution on Friday the 13th.

On Tuesday, the Louisiana Supreme Court voted 4-2 against halting the execution, the second time the state's highest court has ruled Martin can be executed.

Two dissenting justices argued Martin was due another day in court on issues raised by his defense, but the majority ruling meant the end of the legal line in state courts.

Richard Shapiro, a lawyer for the Southern Prisoners Defense Committee, said he would carry the fight for a stay of execution to federal court.

Martin, 28, was convicted of killing four people in Terrebonne Parish in 1977 after he found out his wife was seeing another man.

Meanwhile, Warden Frank Blackburn of the state prison at Angola, La., said Martin would be moved to the "death house," an empty tier of cells near the room that houses the state's electric chair.

He said Martin would be kept under 24-hour guard. "It looks like it's mighty close," the warden said.

FBI Knew Of Criminal Aura

NEW YORK (AP) — FBI agents already had "derogatory information" on four congressmen before they were arrested and convicted in the Abscam investigation, a federal prosecutor says.

"On every congressman there was an allegation of a criminal nature," prosecutor Thomas Puccio told U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt at a due process hearing Tuesday for seven Abscam defendants who are trying to have their convictions overturned on grounds of governmental misconduct.

Only one of the Democratic congressmen involved is still in the House of Representatives — Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa. The other three — John Murphy of New York, Michael Myers of Pennsylvania, and Frank Thompson Jr. of New Jersey — were defeated in re-election races last November.

The other three defendants in the hearing are Philadelphia City Councilman Louis Johanson, Mayor Angelo Errichetti of Camden, N.J., and Philadelphia attorney Howard Criden.

Puccio said FBI Director William Webster had ordered that it had to be made clear to the congressmen they were being offered a bribe before any money was passed. Also, the prosecutor said, Webster ordered that unsuspecting middlemen, not FBI agents, were to solicit the congressmen.

In addition, Puccio told the judge, Webster ordered background checks on each of the House members before any meetings took place.

Puccio wanted Pratt to see the documents as evidence that the government had a reason to deal with the particular congressmen who were brought into the Abscam net.

Puccio did not want anyone else to learn of the documents' contents, but desired to question FBI agent Michael Wilson, who was on the witness stand, about them.

"If you only knew what was on this paper you could see why we prosecuted these congressmen, but I can't tell you what we knew," Puccio said.

Defense attorneys objected.

Pratt declined for the time being to admit the documents or to permit questioning about them.

The judge said the documents could have a "highly prejudicial impact" and expressed concern that if he accepted them it would expand the already wide-ranging hearing, forcing the summoning of the informants who supplied the allegations.

Search Schools For LSD Pills

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — State police are searching Oregon high schools for tiny purple LSD pills after $3.5 million worth of the drug seized last month was linked to a ring selling hallucinogenics to teenagers.

About 800,000 LSD pills known as "purple microdots" were found in a storage warehouse Jan. 29 following the arrest of an 18-year-old man, who has since turned police informant, said investigator Gary Scheerer.

He said pills have turned up at three of Salem's five high schools. "It's being openly peddled in the hallways," Scheerer said.

Lt. Gov. Green Hopeful Auto Insurers Compete

By W.A. WERONKA JR., Associated Press Writer
 RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green says open competition among automobile insurers could grow out of the current General Assembly probe of insurance regulations.

In a rare appearance before the Senate Insurance Committee, Green said less state government regulation of auto insurance "could be a viable solution" to the state's many insurance disputes. In an interview after his address, Green said he was not advocating open competition, but was merely suggesting the committee look at other states that are using the method and "compare to see if we can give adequate protection and provide consumers with the best possible rate."

"I want them (the committee) to look into this can of worms," Green said. "Our present system has caused a lot of anguish and anxiety. It's in the newspapers everyday, and to me that means there's something wrong."

In his address, Green said limited government regulation in Virginia has fostered strong competition among companies.

"With more than 200 companies selling both auto insurance and private-dwelling insurance in North Carolina, perhaps here, too, competition could serve as its own regulator," Green said. "This could be a viable solution and it might enable us to serve our fellow citizens without imposing excessive bureaucracy."

Green ordered the committee to carry out a comparison study of open competition in other states. He also expressed his faith in Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Charlotte, who was his choice as committee chairman.

Rep. Mary Seymour, D-Greensboro, chairman of the House committee, said after the address that Green had touched on a number of her concerns, which also include open competition. Ms. Seymour said she already had begun a study of how the auto liability insurance rates in Virginia compare to those in North Carolina.

Green did not propose any specific legislation involving auto insurance. But he did refer to controversies over casualty insurance rate regulation that have dominated the past several General Assembly sessions.

Insurance industry lobbyists have proposed open competition in auto insurance policies by eliminating the state insurance commissioner's power to review rate increase requests and allowing rates to be determined in an open market.

Opponents argue that motorists need protection from rate increases since state law requires that most people purchase auto liability coverage.

Gov. Jim Hunt has proposed establishing a commission with regulatory powers now held by Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

The current controversy surrounding auto insurance involves the surcharges levied by the Reinsurance Facility to recover losses. Rep. Richard Barnes, D-Winston-Salem, has introduced a bill that would eliminate the surcharge against safe drivers.

Ingram, who backs the bill, said at a news conference Tuesday that he will meet with Hunt and Attorney General Rufus Edmisten Friday to discuss the details of the bill which all three "support in principle."

Some of those details may clarify who may be placed in the facility. Although the facility was designed to insure drivers with accident records and citations, some people with safe driving records have been placed in the facility.

Ingram said Ms. Seymour had invited spokesmen from the auto insurance industry to state their positions on the bill at the House committee meeting Wednesday.

Green said he expects the bill to pass and "at this point, I think that's a step in the right direction."

Green said there are also other insurance concerns facing the General Assembly — such as health insurance for the elderly and credit life insurance.

"Insurance is one of the foremost things this Legislature will address," Green said. "There will be some changes. How major they will be, I don't know. I want the senators to compare everything and take a look at the entire industry. Whatever the committee decides, I will support."

Green also said he wants to make clear that he doesn't want the insurance commissioner's office or the industry prescribing the law. That is a job for the General Assembly, he said.

"The insurance commissioner has his duties prescribed by law, which in reality means that those duties are assigned to him by the Legislature," Green said.

In concluding his address he said, "I am asking that the Senate Insurance Committee take the subject of insurance out of the headlines and off the minds of the citizens of the state, and that it do so without being unduly influenced by either the commissioner of insurance or the insurance companies."

Senior Club Holds Meet

The Town and Country Senior Citizens Club held its meeting last Thursday. Eighty-five members and guests attended and valentines were exchanged. Mrs. Sarah J. Ashton presented Mrs. Ruby Parkerson with a valentine announcement from the club in appreciation of her actions as Sunshine chairman.

February 21, the Club will have a cookie booth at Carolina East Mall, all proceeds will go to the March of Dimes.

Members were reminded to bring articles for the Spring Happy Sale, to be held March 28, to the next meeting scheduled for Feb. 19.

Pianist, Don Roebuck of Stokes, provided music and was accompanied by the group who sang old tunes.

New members were welcomed including: Mrs. Mae Fleming, Mrs. Dona Myers, and Mrs. Katie Modlin. Mrs. Sybil Calby was recognized as a guest.

Refreshments were provided by Mrs. Mayo Rogers, Mrs. Alice Teele, Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, Mrs. Ada Smith, Mrs. Cotton Smith, Mrs. Katherine Adams, and Mrs. Kathleen Woolard.

Sees Consensus Over Freedom

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States' new chief delegate to the United Nations, Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, says the United States and its allies are forming a consensus "around the belief that freedom must be defended if it is to survive."

In her first speech since she took over the U.S. mission to the U.N., Mrs. Kirkpatrick said Tuesday that freedom "will prevail only if the United States and the other democracies have the strength and the determination to defend what once, with pride, we called the Free World."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick spoke in New York City at the founding meeting of the Committee for the Free World, an international group dedicated to defending democracy "in the world of ideas."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, a founding member of the committee, announced she was suspending her formal association with it because of her new post.

Minnesota Fats Files A Lawsuit

CHICAGO (AP) — "Minnesota Fats," the renowned billiards master, has filed a lawsuit seeking $1.5 million in damages from a Chicago-area company that allegedly failed to honor several business agreements.

The suit says "Fats" agreed to become president and chairman of the board of Minnesota Fats Enterprises Inc. — a local billiard equipment company run by Michael and Merle Friedman of suburban Lincolnwood — in exchange for a salary, royalties from sales and design consultation fees.

The suit contends the only compensation paid "Fats," whose real name is Rudolph Wanderone, was an annual salary of $50,000 and a new car each year between 1968 and 1972. Since then, he has received no remuneration, the suit charges.

Contacts On Cases To Be Restricted

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General William French Smith intends to continue a Justice Department policy of restricting calls from White House and congressional officials inquiring about pending investigations or cases.

In a memorandum to heads of department offices, boards, bureaus and divisions, the new attorney general directed that any calls or contacts from the White House or Congress be referred directly to him or his deputy. Smith's order substantially reaffirmed directives issued by his two Democratic predecessors, Benjamin Civiletti and Griffin Bell, with only minor differences.

Bell first issued the guidelines Sept. 6, 1978, partially in response to Watergate-era revelations that Assistant Attorney General Henry Peterson had discussed details of that investigation directly with then-President Richard Nixon.

Bell's order also followed a controversy over his contacts early in the Carter administration with Joshua Eilberg, a Pennsylvania congressman who sought the firing of David Marston. Marston, a Republican U.S. attorney in Philadelphia, was investigating Eilberg at the time.

Bell said he issued the guidelines because the power that goes with positions in the White House and Congress creates "a potential for unintentional influence upon a decision, or more often, may give rise to the broad appearance of improper influence."

In his directive, Smith said, "The effective and impartial administration of the laws depends on the exercise of good judgment."

... Already I have observed that those in the Department of Justice are steadfastly professional in the administration of the law."

Smith directed that "all inquiries and information concerning pending investigations or cases from

GREENVILLE MAN HONORED FOR SERVICE TO AGRICULTURE — Connie B. Hines, left, of Greenville, recently received an award from North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham for 20 years of service to the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. Hines is presently serving as Consumer Standards Division calibrator.

either the White House staff or the Congress should be directed to the offices of the attorney general or the deputy attorney general."

Additionally, he directed that each assistant attorney general report to the deputy attorney general all communications about specific cases by persons other than those involved in the litigation.

Those were identical to the previous rules.

Smith did not restate Civiletti's language which said assistant attorneys general, U.S. attorneys and the heads of investigative agencies "have the primary responsibility to initiate and supervise investigations and cases." During the Carter administration, Philip Heymann, assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, or U.S. attorneys made more of the final decisions on whether to prosecute cases than did their predecessors.

Smith told department officials he had conferred with President Reagan about the procedures, and said Reagan would order the White House staff to channel all communications to the Justice Department about investigations or cases through White House counsel Fred Fielding.

The Civiletti and Bell procedures had allowed communications from the White House domestic policy and national security chiefs as well.

Smith had announced during his confirmation hearings a modification in unstated Bell and Civiletti policies on contact with the president himself.

Bell and Civiletti had a policy of avoiding briefing former President Carter about sensitive cases involving the White House staff or the president's family. Civiletti got into trouble last summer when he breached that policy to advise Carter that his brother, Billy, should register as a foreign agent of Libya.

Hours Changed For Landfill

The Pitt County landfill will change its hours of operation beginning March 2, to a 40-hour week, the County Manager's office announced today.

Beginning March 2, the landfill, located on Secondary Road 1203 (the Allen Road), will be open Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. The landfill will not be open on Saturdays.

The Board of County Commissioners cited state regulations and the economy, in approving the change in the hours of operations, from 56 hours a week including operations on Saturday.

The board was told that additional employees and the purchase of a new piece of equipment had been recommended by the state if the landfill continued its previous schedule.

Mistrial In Garwood's Case Sought

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) - Charging the judge with making improper remarks to the media, lawyers for convicted collaborator Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood moved for a mistrial Tuesday and planned to put Garwood's girlfriend on the stand today.

Judge Col. R.E. Switzer took the mistrial motion under consideration but refused to overturn Garwood's conviction for collaborating with the enemy in Vietnam and assaulting a fellow prisoner of war.

Garwood, 34, who spent almost 14 years as a prisoner of war, will be sentenced by the same five-member jury that convicted him last week. He could be sentenced to life.

Chief defense counsel John Lowe accused Switzer of misconduct when he spoke to reporters covering the 12-week court-martial of the Indiana native.

Lowe cited interviews with Switzer broadcast by CBS television on Dec. 17, Dec. 19 and Feb. 6 and by ABC television on Feb. 22.

During a heated exchange, Switzer refused to submit to questioning about the interviews. But he told Lowe to pursue the possibility of such questioning during the appeal process.

After Lowe persisted and suggested a mistrial on grounds of judicial misconduct, Switzer said: "I understand your position on this case, Mr. Lowe, perhaps better than you think I do. If you are moving for mistrial, I'll consider it in court."

In one television interview, Switzer said Garwood might know of other Americans still being held prisoner and said those individuals might either help or hurt his case, Lowe said. In another interview, he said, Switzer discussed the admissibility of psychiatric testimony.

Lowe also argued that three members of the jury may have overheard Marine officers making derogatory comments about Garwood last week during an interview in an officer's club where the jurors were having lunch.

Switzer asked jurors if any of them had heard, seen on television, or read any newspaper accounts of the trial. The five Marine jury members said no.

Switzer then asked them if they held any conversations about the trial. The five men again said no.

"Most officers I come in contact with are almost rude in avoiding me," said Maj. Kenneth Frederickson, one of the jurors.

After the jurors departed, the defense asked permission to argue two points during the hearing. One concerned draft dodgers granted amnesty by President Carter shortly after he took office, and the other concerned nine former prisoners of war who were charged in 1973 but not tried on charges ranging from collaboration with the enemy to mutiny.

The judge said he would allow the motion on draft evaders but reserved ruling on the second motion.

Switzer refused to allow prosecutors to present evidence from Garwood's service record, which details several unauthorized absences taken by Garwood before he was sent to Vietnam.

The judge ruled that the record was old and inadmissible, and prosecutors said in that case they had no further evidence to present. Switzer then recessed the hearing until today.

Switzer rejected the defense move for acquittal after Garwood's lawyers argued that prosecutors failed to prove the Marine was mentally capable of understanding he was dealing with an enemy while he was a POW.

Garwood's lawyers have never denied accusations that he acted as an interpreter, interrogator, indoctrinator and guard for his captors or that he wore the uniform of the North Vietnamese Army and carried a rifle. Instead, they contended he was driven insane by torture and was mentally incapable of knowing his actions were illegal.

Lowe said that under military law, a defendant cannot be convicted if he is mentally incapable of knowing he was dealing with an enemy.

Hobby Indicted By Federal Grand Jury

ON CAMERA — Wilbur Hobby, president of the state AFL-CIO passes members of the press as he leaves the Federal building in Raleigh after he was indicted on charges of fraud in handling of federal job-training funds. (AP Laserphoto)

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal grand jury indicted state AFL-CIO president Wilbur Hobby and two associates Tuesday on charges of fraud in the handling of $34.150 in federal job-training funds.

Also indicted were Robert L. Hughes Jr., 37, special projects coordinator for the department of Natural Resources and Community Development, and Mort Levi, 49, former program director for Precision Graphics Inc., a Raleigh printing company operated by Hobby.

The indictments were the first following an eight-month FBI investigation into job-training contracts awarded to Precision Graphics by two state agencies. The FBI had been probing the handling of federal grants from the U.S. Labor Department under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Hobby, 55, and Hughes both appeared at an identity hearing before U.S. District Judge F.T. Dupree. Bond was recommended at $10,000 for Levi and Hobby, and $5,000 for Hughes. Levi was arrested at 6:10 p.m. and placed in the Durham County jail pending a bond hearing today, FBI agents said.

Early today a spokesman at the Durham County jail said Levi had been released.

In the five-count indictment, Hobby was charged with conspiring with Levi to defraud the federal government by hiring ineligible individuals for training under a CETA grant. Hobby also was accused in the indictment of misapplication of several thousand dollars in CETA funds.

According to the indictment, Levi filed incorporation papers with the Secretary of State's office for a company called Precision Data Institute Inc., a computer data processing company, in January of last year. In February, the company submitted a grant request to the state Department of Economic and Natural Resources to train data personnel.

In April, Hobby opened a checking account in the name of Precision Data Institute, listing himself as treasurer.

Between May and August, according to the federal indictment, Levi recruited students for classes in keypunch operator training. Levi allegedly told prospective students to use false addresses if necessary to meet eligibility requirements. He also allegedly told them not to list any prior employment if it would jeopardize their application.

In May, Hobby signed a contract as president of Precision Graphics with the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development for $129,429 under the federal Comprehensive and Training Act. The same day, Hobby, representing Precision Graphics, and James E. Tramwell, representing Precision Data, signed an agreement for Precision Data to rent Precision Graphics some computer equipment for training. The indictment charges that Hobby:

—Misapplied approximately $1,840 that was to be used for computer maintenance.

—Misapplied and obtained by fraud about $25,000 in CETA grants used to purchase computer equipment.

—Misapplied about $3,000 by being reimbursed for rental of data processing equipment from May 21, 1979 through June 15, 1979, when the equipment was not functionally operational until June 15.

In a second indictment, Hobby, Levi and Hughes were accused of conspiring to obtain and misapply funds for transportation of students between Raleigh and Durham to participate in a job-training program funded by federal money.

The indictment charges that Hobby caused Precision Graphics to be reimbursed $6,480 for transporting two classes of student participants from Durham to Raleigh between May 21, 1979 through June 15. According to the indictment, only one class of student participants was being conducted at the time. The indictment said the overcharges amounted to $4,320.

The grand jury investigation was begun after state auditors challenged $260,948 spent under four CETA contracts awarded to Precision Graphics. And NRCDC Secretary Howard N. Lee appeared before it in December.

North Carolina FBI head Robert L. Pence said Hobby could be sentenced to up to 18 years in prison and fined up to $24,000. Levi faces a possible jail term of 12 years and a $21,000 fine if convicted on three counts, and Hughes could receive five years in prison and a $10,000 fine for one count of conspiracy.

A spokesman for the U.S. Justice Department said the FBI began investigating Precision Data Institute as a result of its probe of Precision Graphics.

Hobby was not immediately available for comment on the indictments, but in the past he has denied any wrongdoing in connection with CETA funds.

Initiative In Job Hunt

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Sometimes you have to wear a three-piece suit and ride a busy employer's commuter train to score a job interview.

Oregon Attorney General Dave Frohnmayer, who lives in Eugene and commutes by train to Salem, encountered such a job applicant Tuesday.

While reading a newspaper and drinking coffee, Frohnmayer said, he was approached by a man dressed in a three-piece suit.

"May I have a moment of your time?" the man asked.

"I said, 'Sure,'" said Frohnmayer, who pushed aside his newspaper and coffee cup and invited the man to sit. Frohnmayer said the passenger told him he wanted a job in the Justice Department and gave him a resume.

"At the conclusion of the discussion," Frohnmayer said, "I asked if he had business in Portland or Salem. He said his sole purpose for riding the train was to get an interview with me. It's the sort of initiative that's commendable."

Some Protest Spartan Camp

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Lenoir County wilderness program for emotionally disturbed boys is sparking debate between parents who see its regimen as too Spartan and those who say the hardships are doing the boys some good.

In the Frontiersman program, conducted by the Kennedy Home in Kinston, the boys build their own shelter, make their own food and try to sort out the problems that made them leave school or home.

There is no running water or heat in the program of the Kennedy Home, which is operated by the Baptist Children's Homes of North Carolina Inc.

Carolyn Craft of Nash County says the conditions are too Spartan. For 11 months, her 13-year-old son, Joe Peele, participated in the program.

Mrs. Craft charges that during that time, her son lost 20 pounds, slept in leaky and drafty tents, woke up with ice in his hair, wasn't allowed to bathe for days at a time and was slapped and shoved.

When Peele, a ward of Nash County, went home for a visit Jan. 21, Mrs. Craft refused to let him return to the camp.

She was cited for contempt of court. The Nash County Department of Social Services arranged a custody review hearing where the complaints were heard Monday.

District Judge George M. Britt ruled that the boy was not mistreated and ordered him returned to the Kennedy home — but not to the Frontiersmen program. The judge called for a psychological evaluation to determine whether Peele should return to the wilderness camp.

"I still feel that we've come away with a partial victory," says Ed Webb of Rocky Mount, an official of the Edgcombe-Nash Humane Society who visited the camp after hearing Mrs. Craft's complaints.

Webb testified that the camp provided poor hygiene and not enough protection from the weather.

But Peele's attorney, Thomas W. Henson of Rocky Mount, said, "I'm not condemning the Kennedy Home's Frontiersmen program. Basically, they're doing a very good job."

Henson said he has reservations, however, about continuing the program from December through February and in sub-freezing temperatures.

Boys in the program live in heated cottages at the Kennedy Home for about three days a week and stay in huts in the woods about three miles away the rest of the time.

North Carolina has about 25 similar wilderness camps, and at least five of them receive substantial support from the state.

Guilty Verdict In Bid-Rigging

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - Sentencing is scheduled today for the former president of Rea Construction Co., convicted Tuesday of conspiring to rig bids on North Carolina highway paving contracts.

Charles B. Wuertenberger, found guilty of two counts of violating the Sherman Antitrust Act, had argued that his participation in the illegal practice ended when he retired as president of Rea in 1974.

The 62-year-old ex-president appeared was visibly shaken when the jury emerged from two and a half hours of deliberations and announced the verdict.

Afterwards, Wuertenberger's attorney, James C. Walker, refused to comment on the case, saying it is "not finished yet."

Wuertenberger, who retired as chairman of the board of Rea in 1979, could be fined $100,000 and sentenced to three years in prison.

Several officials of Rea and a number of other paving companies in North Carolina have been convicted or pleaded guilty to bid-rigging charges in recent weeks as the result of a federal investigation into the multi-state conspiracy.

Defense attorneys admitted Wuertenberger rigged bids for several years but said he did not participate in making bids or signing highway-project contracts after he stepped down as Rea president in October 1974.

They contended the five-year statute of limitations had run out and that it was too late to prosecute Wuertenberger.

Wuertenberger, who said rigging bids is common in the road-construction business, testified that he began to worry about Rea's participation in bid rigging in the spring of 1974.

"I wondered what I could do about it. I wanted to get out of it," he said. "I told Edmund Jones (head of J.A. Jones) that I was leaving." Rea and Metric Constructors Inc. of Charlotte are subsidiaries of J.A. Jones Co. of Charlotte.

Asked by attorneys if he told Jones about the widespread bid-rigging in the state, Wuertenberger said he was afraid to.

"I didn't tell him I was scared we were doing something illegal. Looking back on it, I should have told him. But I was sure if I told him he would fire me on the spot."

Even after taking a position with Metric, Wuertenberger continued to attend bid meetings in Raleigh with then-Rea president Norman Black at Black's request, he said.

"But I never signed anything for Rea from the moment Mr. Black was elected president," he said.

In his closing arguments to the jury of six men and six women, U.S. Attorney Arthur Feiveson said evidence showed that Wuertenberger made no attempts to end the conspiracy between pavers to fix bids.

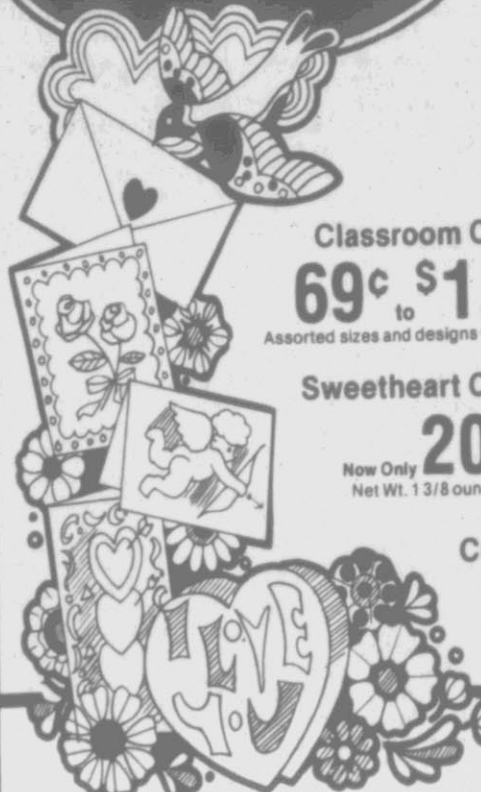

"The evidence clearly shows that there was no withdrawal whatsoever on Mr. Wuertenberger's part," said Feiveson, a U.S. Justice Department lawyer who has directed the state's lengthy bid-rigging investigation. "He was still being paid by Rea Construction Co. until he retired (as board chairman) in January 1979."

Feiveson pointed out that although Wuertenberger was president of Metric, he continued to attend state bid meetings in Raleigh on Rea's behalf until 1978.

"There must be a definitive, positive step toward withdrawal from a conspiracy under the law or he is still liable," Feiveson said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to drift today as investors wait for the delivery of President Reagan's economic program to Congress next week and look for signs of how the program will fair.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 2.22 to 950.85 in the early going, but losers held a slight edge over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading in Hilton Hotels' stock was delayed at the company's request following a Tuesday night fire at its Las Vegas Hilton hotel, which claimed eight lives and injured scores of people.

Early trading in other gaming resort stocks included MGM Grand Hotels, 9 1/2, down 1/2; Bally, unchanged at 18 1/2; Caesars World, unchanged at 13; and Holiday Inns, unchanged at 21 1/2.

Today's early prices included U.S. Steel, unchanged at 27 1/2, with a block of 100,000 shares changing hands at 28; Pan American World Airways, up 1/4 at 4 1/2; Deere, up 1/4 at 43 1/2; Enserch, unchanged at 50 1/2; Standard Oil (Indiana), up 1/2 at 67 1/2; and Richardson-Merrell, down 1/4 at 39 1/2.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrials average rose 1.45 to 948.63.

But declines outnumbered advances by almost 4-3 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 40.82 million shares, against 38.33 million Monday.

The NYSE's composite index of all of its listed common stocks fell 0.07 to 73.98.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 0.84 at 347.43.

Open Burning Fine Assessed

A Greenville man has been fined $5,000 by the North Carolina Department of Natural Resources and Community Development for open burning of insulated copper wire in the Winterville Township on state road 1126.

Robert Lee Wooten of 1410 N. Pitt St. was found in violation of a commission rule that prohibits open burning of specified substances. The burning allegedly occurred August 26-29, 1980, and, according to the Department of Natural Resources' official reports, the Forest Service notified regulation, still would be subject to cuts: food stamps; Aid to Families with Dependent Children, the federally assisted, state-run welfare program; and Medicaid, which provides medical care to welfare recipients.

Two other Social Security programs, minimum payments and student benefits, also may be cut under the Reagan plan. And the summer youth program, while slated to be saved, would provide far fewer than last year's 1 million jobs since Carter also proposed trimming that number.

Stockman said the administration also intends to "close the window" on many federal loan programs for businesses and individuals. While this activity doesn't directly increase federal spending, it does raise the amount of money the government borrows and thus expands the national debt.

Brady said Stockman, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and other Cabinet members have completed more than 90 percent of the cuts. While Regan may reverse or change the recommendations, "the likelihood is that he probably won't," Brady said.

Winds, Rain Buffeted Area

High winds buffeted Pitt County all day Tuesday and early this morning, blowing in one-half inch of much-needed rain during the early hours today.

At 8 a.m. Wednesday, Greenville Utilities' Water Plant recorded .55 inches of rain for the past 24 hours. The temperature was 58 degrees Fahrenheit and the level of the Tar River stood at 4.4 feet on the National Weather Service Gauge. High and low temperatures for Tuesday were 65 degrees and 29 degrees.

According to the Pitt-Greenville Airport, winds at 12 noon Tuesday were steady at 12 knots, but by 4 p.m. were 10 knots, gusting at times to 20 knots. At 7 p.m. yesterday, the wind was eight knots gusting to 15 knots. This morning at 7 o'clock the wind was again steady. No wind velocities were available for the 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. period.

Greenville Public Works reported that it had not received any calls about flooding or debris from last night's high winds. "It's really surprising," said a spokesperson for Public Works, "but we have not received a single call."

Malcolm Green of Greenville Utilities said the strong winds did not cause any major electrical problems either. "We didn't really have anything serious happen last night," he explained. "Most of the problems were minor and scattered, such as limbs blowing against lines, etc."

Temperatures should reach 70 degrees today, then plunge into the twenties and teens tonight.

Why you should vote for mixed beverages in Greenville, even if you don't drink.

This February 17th voters in Greenville will be deciding whether to continue brown bagging or allow sale of mixed beverages in qualified restaurants and private clubs. It's an important election. Because the mixed beverage vs. brown bagging question not only affects our method of serving, controlling and taxing alcohol, but it involves the attitude Greenville's citizens have toward the future. That's why you should vote for mixed beverages even if you don't drink yourself.

Mixed Beverages in restaurants gives better control of drinking.

No one claims that carrying an open bottle of spirits is an effective method of controlling alcohol consumption. Yet, brown bagging laws force drinkers to do just that.

Mixed beverages in restaurants will eliminate brown bagging in qualified establishments. So, drinkers won't have to transport alcohol in order to enjoy a mixed drink with their meal.

In addition, establishments serving mixed beverages are required by law to maintain strict standards regarding their building, employees, hours of consumption, even the handling and storage of alcohol. And, the state ABC Board reports that there have been very few enforcement problems in cities with mixed beverages. In fact, in two years of mixed beverages in North Carolina, not one incident involving minors has been reported. Establishments serving mixed beverages are concerned about keeping their licenses and are, consequently, strict on enforcing drinking requirements.

Mixed beverages mean more revenue to the city of Greenville.

If you don't drink, you should be pleased to know that sales of mixed beverages will contribute to Greenville's revenues. Every 4 liters of spirits sold as mixed beverages is taxed an additional $10. And, 90% of that tax stays with the local government.

Over the past two years, cities and counties with mixed beverages have collected over $3.5 million in added revenue for their own use. This means that mixed beverages supplement our normal tax system.

People who drink in Greenville, whether they live in Greenville or not, will help support city government programs.

Mixed beverages do not increase alcohol consumption.

Cities passing mixed beverage referendums have not experienced an increase in alcohol consumption. So, it's odd that opponents of mixed beverages contend that mixed drinks increase alcohol consumption. An analysis of past consumption figures provided by the state clearly shows that consumption does not increase.

The fact of the matter is, when a restaurant serves a mixed drink, exactly 1 1/2 ounces of alcoholic beverage goes into that drink. When people mix their own, no controls exist. And, people are likely to mix stronger drinks as the number of drinks increases. With mixed beverages, this problem is eliminated.

Mixed beverages can help Greenville grow.

It's a fact. Industries from the 48 states with mixed beverages are more likely to locate in areas with progressive alcohol laws. And, since Greenville was recently designated a Regional Growth Center for Eastern North Carolina, we can add to our leadership position by passing mixed beverages.

Greenville's citizens have the opportunity to help attract industry that gives our people good, well-paying jobs, and improves our entire economy. This may be the most important reason for you to vote for mixed beverages in Greenville.

Get out and vote for Mixed Beverages on February 17th.

A recent poll shows that Greenville's voters are overwhelmingly in favor of mixed beverages. But, if people like you don't vote in this election, we'll miss a great opportunity to keep Greenville at the forefront of Eastern Carolina cities.

We can get rid of brown bagging in our restaurants, control alcohol, bring revenues to the city, and keep Greenville one of the best places to live and work in North Carolina.

Please get out and vote for mixed beverages in Greenville on February 17th in the Greenville city referendum.

Vote YES for Mixed Beverages on February 17th.

Pirate Men Home Thurs.

East Carolina's Pirates return to action Thursday night, playing host to Delaware State at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

The Pirates will be trying to climb above the 500 mark again this year. Currently 11-11, the Pirates bowed to Pan American in Edinburg, Texas, on Monday night, 86-75, to drop back even. They have four games left and must win at least two for a break-even season, three for a winning record. Only one more home game, against UNC-Wilmington, remains on the schedule. The Pirates also have road games against Richmond and Illinois State.

Delaware State comes into the game riding a two-game winning streak, including an 81-72 victory over Morgan State on Tuesday night. They are only 6-13 overall, but have won three of their last four games.

Delaware State is led by 6-5 junior center John Wright with a 13.6 average, while Jeffrey Gumbs, a 6-0 junior forward is hitting 11.9 points a game.

Other starters are expected to be Joel Coppadge, a 6-5 senior forward, scoring 8.4 per game, Albert Anderson, a 6-4 freshman guard, scoring 7.2 per game, and David Harrington, a 6-4 freshman guard scoring 6.6 per game.

The Pirates, following their meeting with Delaware State, are idle until Monday when they host UNC-Wilmington.

Riley Passes 1,000-Point Mark Lady Bucs Rout UNC-W

Special To The Reflector
WILMINGTON — Senior forward Kathy Riley scored her 1,000th career point and teamed with Sam Jones for 52 points as East Carolina ran past UNC-Wilmington, 96-65, last night.

Riley, who finished with 25 points and eight rebounds, hit a follow-shot with 9:38 remaining in the game to give East Carolina a 64-46 lead and herself a 1,000 points. Jones, who scored 19 points in the second half, led East Carolina with 27.

Riley becomes the second member of the current Pirate team to pass 1,000 points this year. Marcia Girven reached that plateau on Sunday against Appalachian State. Lydia Rountree, another member of the team, scored her 1,000th point last year. Riley is the seventh 1,000-Point Club member, but is the first to reach that goal in a two-year career.

East Carolina, behind the scoring of Riley and Mary Denkler, spurred out to a 28-4 lead midway the first period. The game was never in question after that. UNC-W got no closer than 18 points after that.

It was the 20th win against five losses for the Lady Pirates, and their second straight 20-win season, after that standard was reached for the first time ever last year.

"We were very disappointed in our first half play," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "Wilmington started off slow and didn't score many points, but we didn't make them work for those points. In the second half, we came out and played hard defense. It wasn't just the first five either. Heidi Owen, Lillian Barnes and others came in and did excellent jobs on defense."

East Carolina used a trap zone to force numerous UNC-W turnovers and cranked up its fast break early in the second half.

Point guard Laurie Sikes, with eight assists, and reserve Lydia Rountree, with five steals, sparked the fast break which led to the eventual 31-point margin.

"I was pleased with the defense in the second half," Andruzzi continued. "But we won't beat N.C. State playing like that."

East Carolina's 55.2 per cent field goal accuracy broke the Lady Pirates out of a four-game shooting slump. Jones, who had suffered through sub-par shooting found her eye, hitting eight of 13 shots in the second half.

The Pirates outrebounded the smaller Seahawks, 48-35, with Denkler grabbing off ten.

UNC-Wilmington was led by guard Jill Amos with 18 points. Center Sherri Crumpler scored 14 points and grabbed ten rebounds. Vertha Dixon, former Ayden-Grifton High School player, scored 11 points and had five rebounds for the 15-8 Lady Seahawks.

East Carolina gets a week's break to prepare for their Feb 18 showdown at N.C. State.

Rampants End Losing Streak

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

After three straight defeats, Rose High School found the winning combination last night, downing Bertie, 75-69, to keep the Rampant title hopes alive.

Earlier, the Rose girls led all the way in gaining only their second win of the year, a 47-38 decision. The Rampants, after falling to Northern Nash, Rocky Mount and Beddingfield, got back into the winning column by out-hustling Bertie. But it didn't come easy. The Rampants had to rally from ten points down in the first period, and to hold off several Falcon rallies.

Ahead by 15 points, 60-45 with 6:24 left, Rose had to hold on as Bertie mounted a continuous assault, steadily clipping away at the lead, three or four points at a time. Still, Rose was able to keep the Falcons from making a real threat until it was too late.

For a while, during the first period, it looked like Rose might be headed for its fourth straight defeat. After taking a 3-2 lead, Rose saw the Falcons battle back into an 6-6 tie. Donald Johnson put Rose back out, 8-6, with 4:51 left. However, the Rampants scored only twice more in the period.

In the meantime, Bertie pushed through ten straight points, led by six by Tony Lee, to power out to an 18-8 lead.

Coach Jim Brewington called time out at 14-8, and although Bertie scored twice more before the Rampants got going again, the talk seemed to do the trick. "I told them they had to play defense and move the ball on offense," Brewington said. "Bertie got hot in that first period (9 for 15 from the floor), and it looked like we were forcing our shots (5 of 13). It just told them to settle down and play well."

"And that's what they did." And that did the trick.

Rose scored the final points of the quarter, and trailed 20-12 going into the second. The Rampants continued their push, scoring the first ten points of the period to move ahead, 22-20, behind four points each by Johnson and John Sheppard, who had one of his better nights, scoring 21 points to lead Rose.

Bertie twice tied it up after that, but Sheppard finally hit off a fast break with 3:26 left to put the Rampants ahead, 26-24, and Bertie never caught up again. Sheppard added another jumper, then William Battle got a couple of free throws for a 30-24 lead. Rose stretched that out to eight before the half finally ended with the Rampants up, 35-28.

In the third period, Rose continued to command the game, eventually moving out by 12, 48-36 with 3:52 left on five straight points by Sheppard. Rose led at the end of the period, 52-43.

Rose outhit Bertie, 8-2, in the first minute and a half of the final quarter to go out to a 60-45 lead, its biggest of the night. Bertie then began to chip away at the lead, scoring seven of the final nine points of the game to pull back within six at the end.

In addition to Sheppard's 21, Johnson added 18 and Battle had 15.

Dwayne Gillam led Bertie with 27 points, while Lee had 21 and Horace Sessoms had 10.

After its hot first period, Bertie cooled off and ended up with 28 of 60 for the game, 46.7%. Rose shot in 29 of 51 shots, 56.9%, including 17 of 24, 70.8% in the final half.

The Rampants held the board power, 37-32, despite being outrebounded by five in the final period. Both teams had 18 turnovers.

"I thought Bertie played a lot better than a lot of people give them credit for," Brewington said. "But we needed this win after losing three in a row. And we have to keep winning to keep our hopes alive. If we can win these next three, we'll be in great shape."

Assistant ASU Coach Says Kush Wanted Them To 'Stick Together'

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former Arizona State assistant football coach Bob Owens has testified that ex-Sun Devil head Coach Frank Kush told him that he and other coaches must get their stories straight about an alleged punching incident or face getting fired.

Owens said Tuesday that Kush told his assistants on two occasions that he did not strike punter Kevin Rutledge in a 1978 game and that they "should all stick together" even at the risk of lying and perjuring themselves "or we would all be fired."

Kush, the defendant in a $2.2 million damage suit filed against him by Rutledge, has denied making the comment.

Rutledge, who now attends the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, is suing Kush and others — claiming Kush punched him in the mouth after a poor punt in Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978 in Seattle.

Rutledge also contends Kush and former Arizona State assistant coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship.

Testifying before a Maricopa Superior Court jury last week, Kush said he "can't recall ever touching Rutledge."

Proceedings have been adjourned until next Tuesday while attorneys from both sides challenge some of Judge Thomas C. Kleinschmidt's rulings in the case to the Arizona Supreme Court.

Last week, Kleinschmidt ruled that film footage from a Phoenix television station showing Kush grabbing a player's face mask during a 1979 training camp incident was not admissible as evidence.

Tuesday, Owens recalled to the court how Kush first brought up the subject of Rutledge's lawsuit over a training table dinner Sept. 8, 1979.

"Frank said it in a matter-of-fact manner and with kind of a chuckle," said Owens said. "Kush said he and Maskill were involved in a lawsuit, but he didn't seem to have much concern for it."

Yet on two occasions after practices that week, Owens said Kush told his coaches that he didn't hit Rutledge and that Owens was standing right next to Kush at the time of the alleged incident.

"Then he turned to me and said, 'Right, Owens?' I didn't say anything," Owens told the court. "I can't recall if I was."

Coach Says..

I told him, "We better be sure that it wasn't a hit."

Owens also testified that during a coaches' meeting that same week, Kush "called Rutledge a malcontent and that his father was suit-happy."

Gordon Rutledge labeled Kush "a psychotic animal" in an October 1979 deposition and said his son was the victim "of a conspiracy to eliminate him from the ASU program."

On Oct. 3, 1979, Owens said Kush had his defensive coaches gather for an 8 a.m. meeting and "gave us instructions that we all had to stick together—even if we had to lie and perjure ourselves—or we would all be fired."

Owens said Kush instructed him "to relay the information to the offensive coaches in another room, which I did."

Kush has said the "individual" he was referring to who "was disrupting our program" was not Rutledge, but a booster named Rick Lynch.

According to Kush, Lynch—the operator of a Phoenix-area drag strip—was "calling up players, trying to make them make statements that they had seen the alleged punch." Lynch has since filed a multimillion defamation suit against Kush for the comment.

But Owens said Kush "was definitely referring to Mr. Rutledge" in his "stick-together statement" and "repeated it more than once."

Tuesday, Owens also testified that Arizona State linebacker Bryan Caldwell told him on Oct. 5, 1979, that he had seen Kush punch Rutledge.

Owens said then-Arizona State Athletic Director Fred Miller and Associate Athletic Director John Wadas asked him to take over the team Oct. 13, 1979—just hours before the Sun Devils were to host the University of Washington.

But 15 minutes before kickoff, Owens turned down the offer because "I didn't think any of us would get out of the stadium alive if Frank didn't show up."

Kush eventually did and coached the Sun Devils to a 12-7 upset of then-undefeated and fifth-ranked Washington.

Friedman: Victory Over TAC Victory For All Athletes

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—World-class runner Paul Friedman says his federal court victory over The Athletic Congress "is a victory for all athletes because it recognizes the TAC cannot treat athletes arbitrarily."

The court ordered TAC officials, who questioned Friedman's amateur status, to certify him for competition in Sunday's Ohme-Hochi Marathon in Japan.

But a TAC spokesman said Tuesday the Japanese hosts have rescinded their welcome, and warned that if Friedman competes, he could jeopardize the amateur status of the other competitors.

The Athletic Congress last month refused to certify Friedman because he ran in last November's Rose Bowl Marathon in California, a race which included a professional division.

Friedman, of Moorestown, N.J., finished fourth in the Rose Bowl. The Jersey City athletic club that sponsored Friedman was awarded a $1,500 prize.

"I'll continue as a normal amateur athlete," Friedman said. "If and when the time comes for a hearing, I'll have the opportunity to present my case in a proper manner."

Friedman, who finished fifth in last year's Boston Marathon with a time of 2 hours, 16 minutes, 46 seconds, was one of two Americans invited to the 30-kilometer Japanese race.

U.S. District Judge Herbert Stern ordered TAC to retain Friedman's amateur status and told the organization to certify him for the Ohme-Hochi race. The judge noted he has no jurisdiction if the Japanese decide Friedman is ineligible.

Spokesman Pete Cava of TAC said an international provision, commonly known as the "contamination rule," stipulates that runners who knowingly compete in a race against a professional can have their amateur status lifted.

Cava said the TAC ban on participants in the Rose Bowl professional division doesn't extend to domestic races unless a runner is found to be a pro through a formal hearing.

Rams Upset By Jaguars, Fall Out Of First In ECC

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central, the defending champion of the Eastern Carolina Conference, has lagged in the lower reaches of the league all season, but this week found itself with the opportunity to play spoiler.

And last night, spoil is just what the Jaguars did, upsetting Greene Central, 42-40, to knock the Rams out of a share of first place in the ECC. And on Friday, they get a chance to deny Conley the opportunity to wrap it up.

Greene Central's girls rolled up a 62-44 win over the Lady Jaguars in their game.

Greene Central moved out into an 11-6 lead in the first period, only to see Farmville stick close through the second frame. The Rams still held the lead, however, 27-23, at the half.

In the third period, Farmville closed the gap still more, 7-4, and trailed by only one, 31-30, as the final quarter opened.

Late in the period, the Rams built back to a five-point lead, but Andrew Edwards hit a free throw with 1:43 left to cut the lead to 40-36. Greene Central missed a layup close to the minute mark, and Farmville got the rebound. Melvin Sutton then scored, closing the gap to 40-38.

Greene Central called time out, but on the inbounds play, Stuart Gordon stole the ball and was fouled as he went to the basket. He made both free throws with 39 seconds left to knot the game at 40-40.

The Rams, holding the ball for a final shot, missed a two-foot jumper with ten seconds left, and Farmville captured the rebound with eight seconds to go, quickly calling time out.

Gordon then took the inbounds pass and dribbled the length of the floor, hitting a 20-footer at the horn to give the Jaguars the victory.

Gordon led the Jaguar scoring with 19 points. Greene Central was led by Roderick Lane with 14 and John Ray with 13.

"We had the chance," Ram coach Lewis Godwin said, "we just missed our free throws."

The Rams were only eight of 18 at the line.

The loss left Greene Central at 11-4 in the ECC, a game behind D.H. Conley, 12-3. Conley must lose its final game, to Farmville, while Greene Central tops North Lenoir, for the Rams to take top seeding in the tournament next week.

Farmville is now 4-11 in the conference.

In the girls' game, Greene Central ran out to a 16-5 lead and allowed Farmville a 10-6 comeback in the second period. That left the Lady Rams with a 22-15 halftime lead.

The Rams powered away again, 19-6, for a 41-21 lead going into the final period, and let Farmville enjoy a 23-21 margin in the final period.

Letha Taylor led Greene Central with 21 points, while Sharon Suggs added 18. Rose Edmunds led Farmville with 19, while Rose Lang had 15 and Etta Gorham had 10.

Farmville is now 5-10, while Greene Central is 6-9 in the conference.

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's Sammy Tyson and Keith Gatlin came to play Tuesday night and that may spell trouble for the rest of the Eastern Carolina Conference as the league tournament nears.

After struggling for nearly three quarters with a Charles B. Aycock squad that has won just once this season, the Vikings surged to a 20-point lead midway through the fourth period en route to a 70-58 win.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Charles B. Aycock defeated D.H. Conley, 45-37.

The win was sweet for the Vikings, coming as it did after a draining 57-55 overtime loss to Greene Central which, at the time, left the two clubs tied for the ECC lead.

The victory was made even sweeter, however, when Marsh discovered the Rams had lost to Farmville Central, 42-40, to drop into a second place tie with Southern Nash and North Pitt.

"Now I'm going to be up all night diagramming plays. I can't believe it," said Marsh, whose club is now 12-3 in the ECC, one game ahead of the trio tied for second. The Vikings can clinch the ECC crown with a win over Farmville Friday night in the season finale for both clubs.

If Tyson and Gatlin play like they did last night, the Vikings may be ready to claim the title as theirs. Tyson, a 6-7 junior who has not played nearly as well as Marsh would have liked this season, poured in 18 points and pulled down 11 rebounds.

Gatlin, a 6-4 sophomore who has been off and on all season, pumped in 15 points, seven rebounds and a handful of assists.

"Tyson played more up to his potential tonight," Marsh said of his pencil-thin center. "He's beginning to come around, but he's still not playing as well as I would have liked him to this year."

As for Gatlin, Marsh said: "Sometimes he's too unselfish. I told him that when he scores 20 points the team's bound to do better. Gettin' Keith to shoot should open things up for us."

Tyson and Gatlin weren't the only story, however. The Vikings two seniors—Anthony Burney and Sammy Tucker—also played a large roll in the victory. Burney scored 15 points—all in the second half—and pulled down seven rebounds and Tucker scored 13 points and grabbed seven rebounds as the Vikings out-rebounded the Falcons, 37-26.

But it was Tyson early and Gatlin and Burney late who helped the Vikings maintain command. Tyson scored the Vikings' first eight points but Conley still trailed much of the first period before taking a 10-9 lead into the second quarter.

The Vikings stretched their lead to 16-10 in the opening minutes of the second period but the Falcons came back behind the shooting of Kelvin Lewis.

Lewis hit four straight field goals, all from deep in the corners, to cut the Conley lead to 20-19 with 2:45 left. But Tim Neal, in for Tyson, promptly hit two buckets and Tyson returned to add another as the Vikings led at intermission, 27-23.

The lead quickly mounted to 11 (37-26) early in the third period on two jumpers each by Gatlin and Burney. The Falcons, however, narrowed the gap again, this time paced by the long outside shooting of guard Paul Thomas.

Thomas hit for eight of his team-high 16 points in the third period, all coming on jumpers of 15 feet or better, to help bring his club to within seven (46-39) at the end of the quarter.

The fourth period belonged to the Vikings. Leading 50-41, Conley's fast break suddenly seemed to become faster as Conley outscored the Falcons, 13-2, over a three minute span. During that stretch, which ended with Conley up, 63-43, their biggest lead of the game, Gatlin scored seven points and Burney added four, including a over-the-shoulder layup that had the fans roaring.

From there, the Falcons never got closer than 10 as they dropped their 19th game in 20 outings. Aycock is 1-14 in the ECC.

"This is good win for us," Marsh said. "Anytime you come off a big loss like we did against Greene Central, it's a big one. You have to get it out of your system."

To help his team do just that, Marsh called a meeting Monday morning. "I told them I hope they were doing a better job than I was (in forgetting the Greene Central game)," Marsh said. "I just told them they had to put it behind them and realize that we'll have another shot at them sometime within the next three weeks."

For now, however, thanks to the Jaguars, the Vikings will be content to travel to Farmville Friday with a chance to win the league title.

In the girls' game, Charles B. Aycock broke away from D.H. Conley late in the first period and continued its surge into the second quarter en route to the Falcons' 15th win of the season in 19 starts. Aycock is 13-2 in the conference, having lost only to unbeaten Southwest Edgecombe.

Trailing 8-4 with 1:36 left in the first period, the Falcons outscored Conley, 7-0, to take an 11-8 lead at the end of the period. Brenda Alston hit on three of four free throws and Zina Jones added two field goals in the outburst.

Following a bucket by DHC's Tammy Streeter, Aycock ran off another 7-0 spurt, sparked by two field goals and a free throw by Jeanette Dunn, to take an 18-10 lead with 2:30 left. The Falcons led at the half, 20-11.

The Valkyries cut the deficit to six, 20-14, early in the second half but that was as close as they got in the second half as they dropped their ninth game in 19 starts. Conley is 6-9 in the ECC.

"The difference in the game was we had too many mental breakdowns," D.H. Conley coach Joy James said. "In the first quarter we showed we could play with them but then every time we'd start to make a run we'd make some mental mistake."

"But I'm proud of the girls. They never gave up."

Despite the loss, James said her girls are ready to take on anyone in next week's conference tournament. "We want to play 'em (Aycock), and Southwest, and North Pitt," James said. "I think (Aycock) should have been beaten more than twice this season in the conference."

D.H. Conley travels to Farmville Central Friday night in the season finale for both clubs.

Panthers Hold Off North Lenoir, 63-59

WHEAT SWAMP — North Pitt used its strong inside game, led by Vince Parker and Dennis Bradley, to hold off North Lenoir, 63-59, Tuesday night in an Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game. Earlier, in the girls' game, North Lenoir rolled past North Pitt, 52-24.

"We played real well," North Pitt coach Cobble Deans said. "We had a 10-12 point lead in the second half and kept that until near the end. I'm pretty well pleased with it."

The win left the Panthers in a three-way tie for second with idle Southern Nash and Greene Central, which upset by Farmville Central Tuesday night, 42-40. All three clubs are 11-4 in the ECC. North Pitt is 12-9 overall.

It was Parker and Bradley who led the Panthers last night. Parker pumped in 20 points and Bradley added 16. North Lenoir got 13 points each from Eugene Conner and Isaac Heath as the Hawks drop to 12-9 overall and 8-7 in the conference.

"It was a good offensive and defensive game by both Parker and Bradley," Deans said. "And Hines had a solid game also."

North Pitt surged to a 21-11 first-period lead and led at the half, 36-27. North Lenoir cut the deficit to five, 42-37, at the end of the third period but the Panthers pushed their lead back up to 12 midway through the final period before the reserves came in to finish the game.

In the girls' game, North Lenoir jumped out to 17-10 lead after the first period and led at the half, 30-16, and the Pant-HERS never got closer as they dropped their 12th game in 21 starts. North Pitt is 6-9 in the ECC.

North Lenoir, now 11-10 and 9-6, was led by Sharon Gillette and Debra Pope, both of whom had 14 points. Mary Harris added 11 for the winners. North Pitt was led by Jeanette Brown's 14 points.

North Pitt travels to Southern Nash Friday in the season finale for both squads. For the boys, the winner will be assured of at least third place in the ECC.

In NHL All-Star Game Campbell Stars Triumph

LOS ANGELES (AP) — St. Louis Blues' goalie Mike Liut was going through the motions: everybody was motivated.

"I operate better with a lot of shots coming at me," he continued, alluding to the Wales' barrage that included 18 shots on goal in the opening period. "I'm constantly pushing myself, saying, 'You can do it, kid, hang in there, kid.'"

Liut, an All-America at Bowling Green who played in the World Hockey Association for two seasons before the league dissolved, was perplexed at all the attention that went along with the MVP Award.

"It wasn't really even a shutout, since I just played half a game," he said. "I didn't think it was that big a deal."

Calgary center Kent Nilsson put the Campbells ahead for keeps when he scored on what he intended to be a pass just 45 seconds streak by the Wales. "No-body in the game was just going through the motions: everybody was motivated."

"I was hoping I wouldn't embarrass myself," Liut said following the Campbell Conference's 4-1 victory over the Wales Conference Tuesday night. "I was a little worried."

If he was blushing after the game, it was only because he was the center of attention. Liut, turning in a dazzling array of diving saves, stick saves, glove saves and deflections, stopped 25 shots and held the powerful Wales team scoreless for the 31 minutes, 43 seconds he was in the contest.

"This was a very good game," said a beaming Liut after he was named the game's most valuable player as the Campbell Conference snapped a five-game winning into the game. Philadelphia's Bill Barber, who assisted on Nilsson's tally, scored what turned out to be the game-winner with 8:02 played in the opening period.

Winger Wayne Babych of St. Louis made it 3-0 16:12 into the second period, then Detroit wing John Ogrodnick avoided a Wales shutout when he scored against Philadelphia's Pete Peeters at 5:13 of the final period.

UNC Gymnasts Roll Past ECU

CHAPEL HILL — The University of North Carolina rolled to victory over East Carolina last night in a gymnastics meet. The Tar Heels finished the evening with 131.65 points, while East Carolina trailed with 117.65.

"We took it on the chin again," Coach Jon Rose said. "We had some trouble, but we're coming. If we can hit it clean, we can get 120 (points) in in-state competition."

Lisa Tammaru set a new school record on the balance beam, scoring 8.2 to finish in second place. The old mark was set by Elizabeth Jackson last year, a 7.9. Jennifer Bell had a 7.4 score, but did not place.

In the vault, Kathy McNearney finished fifth with an 8.1, while Claudia Houck was seventh at 8.05.

Houck finished sixth on the uneven bars with a 7.35 score, while Nan George was next for East Carolina at 6.85, but did not place.

Joanie Ford had an 8.0 for the floor exercises, finishing third, while Houck was fourth at 7.85. Tammaru had a 7.3 but did not place.

The Pirates traveled to Raleigh on Friday for a tri-meet with N.C. State and Western Carolina. The Lady Pirates are now 3-8 on the year.

ECU Lady Pirates Near Being National Power?

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Cathy Andruzzi believes that East Carolina University can have a national power in women's basketball. And getting there may not be that far away.

Andruzzi, in her third year as the East Carolina women's basketball coach, spoke to the Greenville Sports Club yesterday.

"We have a chance to build a strong program because women's basketball is so young, but we have to have a good recruiting year this year because we lose some mighty good people," Andruzzi said.

"We just need a solid commitment from the university," referring to finances, "because we have to be able to recruit with the best of them."

Andruzzi, who calls her team "rats," because rats feel they are superior despite being smaller than their foes, admitted that she got the idea from another transplanted New Yorker now a North Carolina coach - N.C. State's Jim Valvano.

"I stole it from him eight years ago when he first got to Iowa," she said. "He used the term then himself."

The coach said the three years she has been in Greenville have been good ones, and she is a little surprised herself how quickly the program has grown.

"When I came here, my goal was to build a nationally ranked program. The first year, we didn't have much recruiting, and we still went 18-10. The second year, we had a good recruiting year, and went 20-10. Our goal was to build a foundation for East Carolina. We wanted to win, but win in the right way, with quality individuals. I think we are doing this."

But, the coach admitted, she didn't think success would come as quick as it has. "At the start of this season, I really felt that if we would go .500, we'd have done a good job."

She went on to recount the season, pointing out the early victories, including a five-point rally to win in the late stages of the opener against Virginia Tech. "After we won three, then lost by 12 to Old Dominion, I began to see what we could do," Andruzzi said.

Perhaps one of the keys was the victory over Virginia in Charlottesville. "The day before, we played at James Madison, then traveled to Charlottesville and stayed in the Ramada Inn, where a convention was going on." Not only was it noisy, the coach related, but at 1 a.m., someone set off a fire alarm, forcing the girls out into the cold weather in their night wear. "Laurie Sikes already had a 102° temperature," Andruzzi said, "and sure didn't need that."

The next day, with the game moved from 1 p.m. to 11 a.m. because of the men's game with Ohio State being on national television, Andruzzi's girls were greeted by 6,000 students who came early for the men's game. "I told the girls to just do the best they could. Winning that one and getting ranked really made our season, and beating State before 4,000 was super. Then, having 4,500 come out in the snow to see us play Southern Cal was even better."

"We have a chance to win 20 again (ECU beat Wilmington last night to go 20-5), and we have a week off before we meet State again. If we do well the rest of the way and finish first or second in the state tournament, we'll have a real good chance to go to the regionals, and our regional is the toughest in the country," Andruzzi said.

Now, the question is the future. East Carolina needs a good recruiting year, Andruzzi related. What action other area teams take towards the NCAA will also determine the future. Andruzzi looks for ACC teams to go NCAA, along with independents like Old Dominion. "If we stay AIAW, this could hurt us, so I think maybe we'll eventually go NCAA, too. If one goes, the rest may all follow."

more women in the Pirate Club. I don't know if the Pirate Club has really tried to recruit a lot of women, and I hope that they'll go after more and more."

Today Last Signing Date For SEC, Big 8

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - An old custom in college football recruiting warfare ended today with the last conference signing dates for the Big Eight and the Southwest Conference.

For the last time, high school athletes across the country today put their signatures on a letter-of-intent and committed themselves to a single conference before agreeing to a final commitment elsewhere.

Beginning next year, all NCAA Division I schools will observe a national uniform signing date. The date will be set by the Collegiate Commissioners Association, headed by Fred Jacoby of the Mid-America Conference.

The conference signing dates in the SWC and the Big Eight come exactly one week before the national signing date, traditionally the third Wednesday in February.

The Southeastern Conference and the Atlantic Coast Conference have had the earliest conference signing dates, the second Saturday in December. Some other conferences such as the Big Ten and the Pac-10, have had no conference dates.

Feeling that the early signing dates encouraged recruiting abuse, the NCAA Council pushed for adoption of the uniform date at its convention in Miami Beach last month.

Frequently, schools in other parts of the country have used the SEC signings to evaluate prospects. Learning what players in that region have been signed by SEC schools, rival recruiters from other leagues would concentrate their efforts on those players. The same held true for players in the SWC and Big Eight.

Bear Grass Nips Bullets

BEAR GRASS - Bear Grass nipped Jamesville, 37-36, in a Tobacco Belt basketball game last night. Jamesville won the girls' game, 55-33.

In the boys' game, Jamesville roared out to a 12-6 lead in the first period, extending that with a 14-9 advantage in the second frame. That left the Bullets ahead, 26-15, at the half. But in the second half, the Bears took charge of the game, outscoring Jamesville, 16-2. That put the Bears ahead, 31-28. They held off the Bullets, 8-6, in the final quarter, to claim the win, as the Bullets suffered a turnover in the final seconds to deny them the chance for the win.

Ray Biggs led Bear Grass with 14, while William Roberson had 13. Kerwin Cross led Jamesville with 21.

In the girls' game, Jamesville also streaked out early, taking a 15-6 lead in the final quarter. This time, however, they were not to be caught. Jamesville, with a 22-13 margin in the second period, held a 37-19 halftime lead.

The Lady Bullets slowed in the third period, but still led, 43-24, going into the last quarter, where they outlit the Bears, 12-9.

Angela Hagan led Jamesville with 20, while Tammy Williams added 20. Angie Mizelle led Bear Grass with 15.

Jamesville travels to Chocowinity on Friday, while Bear Grass is at home to Manteo on Thursday.

Win #200 One Game Late For Notre Dame's Phelps

By The Associated Press

Digger Phelps wasn't particularly thrilled with his 200th coaching victory at Notre Dame. He might have clicked his heels a few times, though, had it come one game earlier.

Rebounding with a vengeance from a tough one-point loss to UCLA on Sunday that dropped them to 12th in The Associated Press ratings, the Irish crushed Boston University 89-63 Tuesday night.

"We had the mental intensity we needed," Phelps said. "We shot 74 percent in the first half (20 of 27) against a team that was pressing and using a zone. We were just in a good groove and that got things going."

But as far as his 200th triumph against 82 losses since coming to Notre Dame, Phelps had to confess that he felt "nothing really. That's for someone else to worry about. All I'd like to do is win the national title, then celebrate."

The only other ranked team to see action on a slim schedule was No. 18 South Alabama, which rolled to an 82-49 Sun Belt Conference victory over Georgia State. South Alabama (20-3) reached the 20-victory plateau for the third year in a row while dealing Georgia State its 18th consecutive setback.

Rory White led the winners with 21 points, and Ed Rains added 20. Georgia State Coach Roger Couch was ejected with just 7:13 gone in the game when he was socked with his third technical foul.

Knights Batter Faith, 80-66

GOLDSBORO — Greenville Christian had five players in double figures, led by Ben Haddock's 18 points and David Hollingsworth's 17, as the Knights whipped Faith Christian, 80-66, Tuesday night in an East Carolina Christian Conference basketball battle.

The win, which left the Knights at 11-7 overall, set up a Tuesday night (7 p.m.) meeting at home with Falls Road for the league championship. Falls Road is 7-0 in the conference, one game ahead of Greenville at 6-1.

"We had five guys in double figures and it was a good team effort," Greenville coach Dale Thatcher said. "The kids really wanted it. They knew Faith was the only thing that stood between them and Falls Road."

The Knights wasted little time in establishing control Tuesday night. Greenville led after the first period, 23-8, and at the half, 38-29. The Knights extended their lead to 60-48 at the end of the third period before coasting home with the victory.

"They had some people missing but we went over to win regardless," Thatcher said. "We played really good in the first quarter and that helped get us ahead."

Joining Haddock and Hollingsworth in double figures for the Knights were John Parnell and Jerry Butts, both of whom had 13 points, and Troy Hudson, who scored 12. Faith, now 5-9, was led by L.A. Benson's 22 points and Billy Bass' 13.

Cougars Beat Chargers In OT

PINETOPS — Alex Cobb scored 17 points, including a three-point play early in overtime, to spark Southwest Edgecombe to a 56-47 extra-period victory over Ayden-Grifton Tuesday night in an Eastern Carolina Conference game.

Earlier, Delphine Mabry poured in 24 points as unbeaten Southwest Edgecombe romped past Ayden-Grifton, 91-30.

Ayden-Grifton's boys trailed, 45-43, with 30 seconds to go in regulation when Thomas Anderson rebounded a missed Timmy Edwards shot and was fouled. Anderson made both free throws to tie the game and send it into overtime.

Southwest quickly took command in the extra period when Herman Vines, who finished with 15 points, hit a jumper and Cobb connected on a three-point play to give the Cougars a quick five-point lead. When the overtime was over, the Cougars had outscored the Chargers, 11-2.

"We never got started in overtime," Ayden-Grifton coach Bob Murphrey said. "We never showed up."

Southwest, now 5-17 overall and 4-12 in the ECC, led after the first period, 12-11, and at the half, 31-23. The Chargers cut the deficit to two, 39-37, at the end of the third period and then tied it up on Anderson's two free throws.

"Our shooting's just real bad right now," said Murphrey, whose Chargers have now lost five straight. "It's just a matter of confidence. We were shooting well early but we're as bad now as we were good then."

The Chargers were led in scoring last night by Timmy Edwards and Clarence Baker, both of whom had 14 points.

In the girls' game, Mabry led a Southwest charge that had four players scoring in double figures and that left the Cougars at 22-0 on the season. SWE is 16-0 in the league. Ayden-Grifton is now 2-19 and 1-14.

Southwest led after the first period, 19-6, and at the half, 46-19, and never looked back as the Cougars ran up a 61-point victory.

Joining Mabry in double figures for SWE were Bridget and Alpha Jenkins, both of whom scored 18 points, and Kim Edmundson, who added 10 points.

Ayden-Grifton was led by Cora Faison's 12 points.

Ayden-Grifton closes out its season Friday night at Charles B. Aycock.

Aces Dump Williamston

EDENTON — Elbert Wilder pumped in 16 points and Lee Dale Leary added 13 as Edenton downed Williamston, 55-46, Tuesday night in a Northeastern Conference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Williamston defeated Edenton, 40-31.

Edenton led in the boys' game after the first period, 14-8, and increased its advantage to 28-20 at the half. Williamston cut the deficit to one, 37-36, at the close of the third period but the Aces held off the Tigers in the fourth period to take the win.

Williamston was led by Vincent Washington's 12 points. Tom Bennett and Chris Peel had 10 for the Tigers.

In the girls' game, Theresa Duffy scored a game-high 14 points as the Tigers took the early lead and clung to it the remainder of the game.

Williamston led after the opening eight minutes, 16-8, and at the half, 28-18. The Aces got little closer in the second half. Edenton trailed, 32-24, at the end of the third period before losing by nine.

Edenton did not have anyone in double figures for the game.

Williamston plays host to Roanoke Friday night.

Hawaiian Open Bittersweet For Watson

HONOLULU (AP) — Tom Watson has some bittersweet memories of the Hawaiian Open.

It was in this tournament, eight years ago, that Watson made his first major bid for a Professional Golfers' Association Tour title.

He didn't make it.

But Watson, now the world's outstanding player, acquired the first recruits to his legions. He captured the imagination of the Hawaiian fans and proved them to be prophets.

They called him "the Kid," this red-haired, freckle-faced young man, then only 23 and in his second year of Tour activity. From the lead, Watson shot 75 in the last round and fell to third. But there was no doubt in the minds of the largely barefoot gallery that "the Kid" was on his way. Although John Schlee won that 1973 event, Watson was the talk of the crowd. It was as if they'd discovered him.

"I remember it very well," Watson said before a practice round for the 1981 Hawaiian Open, a $325,000 affair that gets started Thursday on the 6,881-yard, par 72 Waialae Country Club course.

"I was very disappointed," Watson recalled. "I had the lead after three rounds and I was trying to win my first tournament. I just didn't play well that last round. My game just wasn't strong enough to stand up."

There is, of course, no question of the strength of his game now. He comes into this event as the leading money-winner and Player of the Year for the past four seasons.

He missed the playoff for the Bing Crosby title by a single stroke, finishing poorly in his first start of the season, then had a poor — for him — performance last week in defense of his title in San Diego.

"A little disappointing," Watson said. "My swing isn't where I want it to be. I just need some more hard work."

Although he has yet to win this tournament, his overall performance the past few seasons make him the man to beat in the chase for a $58,500 first prize.

His chief opposition could come from Bruce Lietzke, a former Hawaiian Open champion whose victory at San Diego made him the first two-time winner of the season.

Other standouts in a 144-man field that includes 41 of the top 60 money winners are Lee Trevino; defending champion Andy Bean; Ben Crenshaw; Hale Irwin, Hubert Green and Arnold Palmer. Isao Aoki, runner-up to Jack Nicklaus in last year's U.S. Open, heads a three-man Japanese contingent.

NBC will provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Rose Wins...

That may not be that easy. Rose has to face Wilson Fike on the road Friday, then close out the home season next Tuesday against Hunt. They end the regular season on Friday, Feb. 20, at Northeastern.

The Rampettes fell behind only once as they powered their way past Bertie. Bertie took its only lead at 4-5, on a shot by Irma Holley with 3:29 left in the first period, but Rose came back to score six straight to close out the quarter. That gave Rose an 11-6 margin.

Bertie quickly rallied to within one, 11-10, but after a time-out, Rose hit two in a row to up the lead to five again. Late in the period, three straight baskets ran the lead to ten, 25-15, and Rose carried a 27-16 lead into halftime.

After allowing Bertie to score the first basket of the third period, the Rampettes, behind four Bernestine Haselrig points, pushed in six straight to take a 33-18 lead. It was 35-20 at the end of the period.

Rose, despite losing four points off its final period lead, retained control enough to pull out the win, only its second in 16 games.

"It's nice to be on the other side of the fence for a change," Coach Dennis Gibson said.

"The girls came in with the attitude that they could win. All they had to do was play with some intensity. Haselrig helped us a lot with her rebounding, both offensively and defensively, and our free throw shooting played a big role," he added. Rose hit seven of 11 chances at the line.

"We hustled more and got after rebounds more. We didn't stand as flat-footed as we usually do. We've been emphasizing this. To win, we have to go after it, we can't stand and wait for someone to give it to us."

Gibson has earlier dismissed two of his guards from the team, both sometime starters. "I thought without them, we might have trouble, but we played better than with them. I thought it might hurt us at least mentally, but it didn't."

"Now, if only we could pull off an upset or two..."

Frances Barnhill led Rose with 14 points, while Haselrig and Maria Gray each had ten. Bertie was led by Holley with 17.

The Rose boys are now 7-4 in Division I play and 13-6 overall. The girls advance to 2-9, 2-14. Bertie falls to 3-8 in conference, both for the boys and girls.

Real Exploitation Of Violence

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — On Tuesday, with its broadcast of "The Choice," CBS demonstrated that a controversial social issue can be presented in TV drama with passion and reason in even measure. The issue was abortion.

Another day, another matter. Tonight's made-for-CBS movie, "A Gun in the House," intends (and presumably will succeed) to incite passions on both side of the handgun argument. But that question — to arm, or not to arm? — is almost secondary to this film's primary thrust, which is the blatant, protracted, repeated exploitation of violence.

While producers David Debin and Peter Locke insist they intended only to bring focus to the question of handguns in America, what they did was create a sort of made-for-TV Dirty Harry in aprons.

Sally Struthers plays a nice middle class housewife whose husband is away a lot. She worries about crime and eventually buys a gun. She and her lady friends take a class on the use of handguns.

It just so happens that a spectacularly wacko creep is on the roam, a guy who likes to burgle houses and rape women. But he doesn't only attack women; he badgers them, torments them, psychologically batters them. (He does this, we discover, because his mother is a woman of loose standards; subtle shadings of character are not this movie's forte.)

His partner in crime is a nice young boy who is apparently working his way through college by going along on these missions of pillage.

Anyway, Sally Struthers is chosen as a victim. The baddies break in and proceed to spend several long minutes tormenting her, making her crawl on the floor in her nightgown and such, until she finally runs upstairs and grabs her gun. There is some confusion and she fires, killing the "innocent" kid.

Now, as in "Dirty Harry," this is where the audience is supposed to stand up and cheer. You've been set up by the long, harrowing scene, and the killing seems justified, if not reasonable.

The movie doesn't end here; a bone needs to be tossed to the other side of the handgun argument. A singularly unbelievable district attorney charges Sally Struthers with murder, and she and her husband have to prove her innocence.

The obvious intent of this lurid melodrama is to elicit a collective, "Good, those punks deserved it." Indeed, producer Locke says the scene had to be set up that way.

"Unless the situation was set up that way, I think there would be some heavy doubts in your mind, that she might have appeared irresponsible (in shooting the kid)." Oh. But in real life, shootings are responsible? Locke admits that his research revealed most real-life handgun killings to involve people who know each other, husbands and wives, for instance. Wouldn't such a case have made a more responsible story? Why establish a situation that is atypical?

"If I had shown her just shooting someone entering the house, that would have made her seem irresponsible. We wanted to portray a sympathetic character."

They wanted, in other words, to make a statement sympathetic to the possession of handguns. Perhaps that's understandable. After being mugged in Beverly Hills at the point of a gun, Locke went out and bought himself a piece.

A much, much more rewarding expenditure of your viewing time would be to tune in Sylvia Fine's second "Musical Comedy Tonight" special on PBS.

It is a pure delight, beginning to end. In a follow-up to her 1979 PBS special, Miss Fine presents highlights from four of Broadway's enduring musical comedies, "South Pacific," "Sweet Charity," "Lady in the Dark" and "Finian's Rainbow."

The performers include Lynn Redgrave, Jack Lemmon, Richard Crenna, Bonnie Franklin, Sergio Franchi and Sylvia Fine's husband, Danny Kaye; the songs include "Some Enchanted Evening," "A Wonderful Guy," "If My Friends Could See Me Now" and a special performance of "The Begat" by composer Burton Lane (you'll applaud in your living room for this).

Miss Fine presents each of the musicals in their historical and social context, and suggests the message contained in each. That's nice, but the music alone is its own recommendation. And a strong recommendation it is.

Provided 'Edge' In Ratings Race

NEW YORK (AP) — With a little help from J.R. Ewing and Burt Reynolds, CBS chalked up its ninth straight week as the No. 1 network in the prime-time ratings battle, figures from A.C. Nielsen Co. say.

"Dallas" finished first in the ratings race for the 11th time in 14 weeks, while "Hooper," a 1978 Reynolds picture making its TV debut, clobbered the competition — ABC's "East of Eden" and "Kent State" on NBC — in a head-to-head race for viewers Sunday night.

CBS' rating for the week ending Feb. 8 was 20.8, with ABC second at 19.5 and NBC third at 16.9. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the period, 20.8 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS.

"Dallas," the dominant prime-time series since early in November, registered a rating of 31.6. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 31.6 percent saw at least part of the dealings of the Ewing clan.

The big collision came Sunday night, as the networks roared into the February "sweeps" — the time when national spot advertising rates are determined for the next four months.

"Hooper" finished No. 3 for the week, behind "Dallas" and another CBS show, "Dukes of Hazzard," while the first chapter of "East of Eden," ABC's new adaptation of John Steinbeck's novel, was No. 15.

"Kent State," NBC's dramatization of events at the Ohio university in May 1970, when four students were shot to death by National Guardsmen, finished 61st.

To compound NBC's troubles, the network had four of the week's five lowest-rated shows: "Hill Street Blues" was No. 60, followed by "Kent State" and another NBC program, "Nero Wolfe." "Ladies Man" on CBS was 63rd, with "NBC Reports: Who Will Fight for America?" 64th.

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — NOTED ACTORS MIMIC COMIC CHARACTERS IN CHARADE.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: P equals I

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Production Set By Theatre

NEW BERN — The Footlight Theatre of New Bern will present its dinner theatre production of "Butterflies Are Free" at the Ramada Inn here during the next two weekends.

The ballroom will open at 7 p.m. with dinner served at 7:30. The show will begin at 8:15 on Feb. 13, 14, 20 and 21.

The cast includes Kim Courter as Don Baker, Carolyn Stevens as Jill Tanner, Nancy Blades as Mrs. Baker and Roger Sample as Ralph Austin.

The production will be directed by Bill Rivenbark.

Tickets will be $12 per person for the dinner and show. For further information or reservations call Laura Courter, 633-0272.

The next production of the Footlighters will be "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" with Bette Jo Pierce as director.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Some 1.25 million census-takers have begun work on India's 1981 census, reported to be the biggest headcount in history.

FOCUS

"Supply-Side" Economics

Recent news stories have used the term "supply-side" to describe President Reagan's economic ideas. This term refers to plans to help businesses grow and increase the amount of goods they produce. To help make this happen, Mr. Reagan is asking Congress to cut taxes. Tax cuts give individuals more money to spend, and give businesses themselves more to use to buy new equipment, hire more workers, and therefore produce more goods. Believers in supply-side economics think a larger supply of goods can help prices come down. Then consumers would be able to buy more to improve their lives. The increased buying would make businesses healthier and keep more Americans on the job.

DO YOU KNOW — Which agency of the federal government collects taxes?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — The Stanley Cup is given to the team that wins the NHL championship.

Nigeria Commission's Riot Probe In Deep Water

By SUSAN LINNIE
Associated Press Writer
KANO, Nigeria (AP) — A Nigerian federal commission is holding hearings here into Moslem riots in which hundreds of people were killed in this northern city last December. There are indications that the political ramifications of the outbreak go beyond the scope of the inquiry.

Diplomats say the Nigerian government in Lagos was shocked by the 10-day rampage by followers of a self-proclaimed Islamic reformer. One diplomat said the government saw the disturbances as a "reflection of the country's vulnerability."

There has been no official comment on rumors that Libya, which has sent several thousand soldiers into Chad, Nigeria's northeastern neighbor, was behind the riots. But a week afterward, the entire Libyan diplomatic mission was expelled from the country. The government's official reason was that the mission failed to observe proper procedure. But diplomatic sources and press commentary indicated the expulsion was directly linked to the disturbances.

Nigeria is rich in oil, much of which is exported to the United States, and has the largest population — 72.5 million — of any black African nation. It has been troubled in the past by tribal strife, and in the late 1960s the secessionist Republic of Biafra was proclaimed in its Eastern Region, setting off a civil war that the government eventually won.

Many of the December rioters, however, were reportedly foreign immigrant workers who under regional cooperation agreements can move freely between Nigeria and neighboring countries. They come to this part of Nigeria — far from the oil-rich areas of the south — to work at such jobs as street peddlers or house servants.

At the time of the Dec. 18-28 rioting, police estimated the number killed at about 1,000. Subsequent estimates ranged from 250 to several thousand.

Two foreign businessmen who asked not to be identified said they saw police kill several hundred prisoners in two police stations, clubbing them to death and shooting them.

"They were beating them with lead pipes out in a courtyard and yelling at them to say who was responsible for the rampage," an American contractor said. "Then they threw the bodies in a truck — must have been at least 100."

The contractor explained that he had gone to the police station following an automobile accident.

Another businessman said he watched from a window of his office next to a police station as police lined prisoners up against a wall and shot them.

Police said several thousand followers of a man called Mullah Muhammadu Marwa attacked police and residents with bows and arrows and small arms in the Yan Awaki quarter of the old walled sector of Kano, Nigeria's third largest city.

When police were unable to quell the rioting, the Kano state governor called in the army. Troops shelled the neighborhood with mortars and bazookas. No figures have been released on army casualties. Marwa was reportedly killed during the last day of fighting. Police said they recovered his body from a shallow grave outside the city.

Kano is the center of the Islamic faith in Nigeria and of trade in this part of West Africa. Moslems make up about 47 percent of Nigeria's population. About 35 percent are Christians and the remainder followers of local religions.

Islamic specialists at Bayero University here say Marwa was only one of a series of religious fundamentalists in this part of the world who have claimed to be the "mahdi," who according to Sunni Moslem tradition will appear at the end of time to establish Islam universally.

His followers were young and dispossessed, recent adherents to Islam who combined animist beliefs with Moslem ritual, they added. Animism, practiced in many parts of Africa, is a belief that spirits inhabit such things as trees, rivers and stones.

Officials in Niger state, southwest of Kano, banned all public itinerant preaching last month. There was no official explanation for the order, but the government obviously feared that similar disturbances could break out there.

Kano was calm six weeks after the riots. But residents of the Yan Awaki quarter led visitors to an area where bulldozers knocked down the mud-brick dwellings of Marwa's followers, and vendors hawked what they claimed were police photos of his dead body.

The Nigerian press has made much of the fact that Marwa, who was born in neighboring Cameroon, and many of his followers were foreigners from nearby countries drawn to northern Nigeria in search of jobs and to follow the preachings of various mullahs, or Moslem teachers.

There has been extensive editorial comment about dangers posed by the uncontrolled entry of aliens. Under the terms of the treaty establishing the Economic Community of West African States, whose headquarters are in Lagos, nationals of the 16 member states can travel freely in the area. But police and security officials are calling for tighter control.

With its booming oil-based economy, Nigeria — and particularly the Moslem north bordering the drought-devastated Sahel countries — is a magnet for the jobless in neighboring countries. The entire area including parts of Niger, Chad and Cameroon is an intricate network of historical, cultural, tribal and mercantile ties.

WHAT IS A ROOT CANAL?

Years ago, a badly infected tooth was doomed to be removed. Today, that's a last resort. Root canal treatment consists of: 1) the removal of the infected pulp that lies within the root canals of the tooth, and 2) the sealing of the root ends to prohibit any further infection.

The pulp is the tooth's center core of soft tissue (nerves, blood vessels and fibers). When the dentist removes a "nerve" from a tooth, he really removes pulpal tissue that contains the nerve.

Removing the pulp from the tooth does not produce a "dead" tooth. It will be very much alive and functioning because it has surrounding tissues that hold it in place. The tooth will have no sense of feeling because the nerve has been removed, but the tooth itself will be fine once it is properly restored. It should last as long as your other teeth and could even be eventually used as an anchor tooth for a denture bridge.

A public service with the aim of promoting a better dental health environment. From the dentists of Pitt County.

Career Began With A Team

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — After William F. Martin graduated from the University of Oklahoma in 1938, he joined a petroleum company here at a salary of $125 a month.

His main impetus for selecting the company was its basketball team, the Phillips '66ers.

Martin started as a clerk, and went on to become chairman of the company, which now has annual revenues of $12 billion.

Roofed Forest At Boston Zoo

BOSTON (AP) — Fiberglass fabric roofs, typically installed over sports stadiums, will soon be used to enclose a full-scale tropical forest here at the Franklin Park Zoo.

Pygmy hippos, gorillas, antelope and crocodiles will live and move about freely beneath 40,000 square feet of translucent fiberglass fabric. The exhibit, scheduled for completion in 1982, will span 220-feet and rise 70 feet at its apex.

The Tropical Forest Pavilion is part of a major revitalization now under way at the zoo, which includes a renovated children's zoo.

Fishing for low cholesterol casseroles?

Introducing New Age Smokey Sandwich Slices.

Delicious New Age Sandwich Slices have 90% less cholesterol and 75% less saturated fat than process American cheese. yet they have the same nutrition. New Age is a cheese substitute made with vegetable oil. It comes in four delicious flavors and makes zesty casseroles, snacks, and other dishes while cutting down on cholesterol and fat.

Smokey Tuna Casserole

10 oz. macaroni	pepper
8 oz. New Age Smokey Sandwich Slices	5 tbs. skim milk
1 13-oz. can tuna (in water)	1 tomato, sliced
	1/2 lemon
	1/4 tsp. paprika

Boil macaroni in 4 qts. salted water until slightly underdone. To make sauce, melt New Age Smokey Sandwich Slices, cut into cubes, with the skim milk. Mix macaroni, tuna, 1/2 of sauce, and paprika in casserole. Place tomato slices, sprinkled with lemon juice, on top. Pour remaining sauce over tomatoes and pepper to taste. Bake in 350° oven for 20 minutes. Serves 4.

Felt Employer's Responsibility

NEW YORK (AP) - Many companies agree that shipping a relocating employee's household goods is the financial responsibility of the employer.
 Merrill Lynch Relocation Management says 99 percent of the firms interviewed for its annual study of employee-relocation policies reimburse their employees for this expense, while 40 percent reimburse new professional hires.
 In addition to household effects, companies often reimburse employees for other items. According to MLRM's study, for example, most firms - 90 percent - allow the employee to move one car at company expense, 62 percent for two cars and 12 percent for three cars.

Atheist Has Security In New Privacy

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — America's leading atheist, tired of busloads of hymn-singing church kids, has moved into hiding.

Madalyn Murray O'Hair still goes to work at her American Atheist Center every day, but her private life has become even more private. "We absolutely gave up," she said. "We had busloads of choir singers singing hymns on our lawn."

"We have moved out and nobody knows where we are. We are under an absolutely different name. The people in our office do not know where we live. There's no way anybody can know where we are at now," she said in an interview in her office.

Ms. O'Hair and son Jon Garth Murray moved in October. They got rid of the home in which they had lived for 15 years. The harassment became all too common, she said.

"The (local) Baptist church sent people down to knock on our door to convert us," she said, adding the church "inundated" her mail box with "praying-hand post cards."

"For the first time, I feel a little bit safe," she said. Her office building has been defaced — crosses are carved into the door and tar on the roof was laid to say "Jesus Loves You."

Ms. O'Hair said she is encouraged by the publicity surrounding the Moral Majority, whose efforts to influence politics and government, she said, are "beautiful."

"The Moral Majority is demonstrating overtly for the entire public what the Roman Catholic Church is doing covertly. I think it is absolutely beautiful because it gives a handy demonstration for persons to have a deep understanding for what's going on in the government covertly," she said.

Jon Garth Murray said he, too, is pleased by the Moral Majority's efforts.

"It's making people think about their religion and that's dangerous for religion," he said. "When they start thinking about it they'll say, 'Did Oral Roberts really see a 700-foot Jesus or is he putting me on to get my check out of my checkbook?'"

Ms. O'Hair said she has high hopes for Bill Murray, her son who recently declared himself a Christian and spoke out against his mother's work.

"I hope he winds up with a Rolls-Royce and a house on the Riviera. He's a good atheist and I think what he is doing is taking the religious community for a ride. To use a phrase that would be appropriate for him, God bless him," she said.

The American Atheist Center, a million-dollar headquarters that also serves as a publishing house for Ms. O'Hair, also has ambitious plans. Ms. O'Hair spoke proudly of American Atheist University.

"It's going to happen. I don't know exactly when. We are slowly getting the financing we need," she said, adding she is looking at land eight miles east of here.

Ms. O'Hair said her health is "terrible" — her condition troubled by high blood pressure and diabetes. Convinced that there is nothing after death, she said she has no funeral plans.

"Whatever my son does is all right with me. He can either ship me off to a school for instruction on dissecting or he can cremate me. I don't give a damn," she said.

Despite the health problems, Ms. O'Hair said she works on. She continues to use her sometimes obscene rhetoric to take shots at the pope, churches and just about everything so many people hold holy.

"I'm a symbol to America that must be hated," she said. "I don't have an abrasive way. I've been arguing with people about that for a long time."

CATCHING SOME RAYS—Rows of mirrors catch the sun's rays at the Eurus sun energy plant near Adrano, Sicily. The 182 mirrors reflect the sun to a tower (background), which converts the rays into electricity. The power plant is a joint enterprise of the European Community and Italy, France and West Germany. The installation, which has an output of one megawatt, cost about $14 million. (AP Laserphoto)

Missouri Town Awaits Release Of Their Befriended Prisoner

By VIVIAN VEGA
Associated Press Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — A convicted killer who won the heart of a tiny northeast Missouri town during a brief, illicit taste of freedom is back in prison, his court bids for a legal release denied.

But when he does get out, John Joseph Camillo has a job, a sweetheart and their son waiting for him.

Camillo escaped from a prison farm in October 1978 and lived for three months in Granger, a community of about 100.

Under the name of Joe Preston, he worked on a farm owned by Kathy Jenkins' parents, became a grade-school basketball coach, drove the school bus, worked in the mayor's shop and counseled teen-agers.

The town took him to heart because of his enthusiasm and friendliness, said Ms. Jenkins.

"It would be kind of like an animal that had been caged up," she said. "When it got loose it would want to enjoy every minute of it. I guess that's why he was so outstanding. He was always busy."

Townpeople learned his true identity when he was recaptured Jan. 6, 1979, but it made little difference to them. Mayor Thomas Shannan said he would rehire Camillo. And Ms. Jenkins, mother of his son, said their plans to marry are still on.

Granger residents even petitioned the governor to pardon Camillo and rented a plane that flew over the Capitol trailing a banner that read: "Gov. Teasdale, let Joe come home."

But Teasdale refused, calling the killing the sort of crime that didn't warrant a pardon. In September 1979, a Cole County Circuit Court jury convicted Camillo, 37, of escape. His five-year sentence on the escape conviction will run concurrently with his life sentence on a murder conviction.

Camillo pleaded guilty in 1967 to first-degree murder in the shooting of Friday Lane, a Joplin liquor store owner, during an attempted robbery.

Camillo petitioned both the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis and the Missouri Supreme Court in Jefferson City for relief.

In his argument to the federal appeals court, Camillo said he had pleaded guilty after 70 days in solitary confinement, during which he was beaten with chains.

His judgment also was distorted by his treatment with thorazine at the state mental hospital before his trial, he claimed.

But the appellate court Monday said Camillo knew the nature of the charge at the time he entered his plea and ruled the plea was not the product of physical abuse or threats.

European's First U.S. Visit

By BJORN EDLUND
HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Tom Gerril tipped back his Stetson and downed another slug of bourbon, gazed into nowhere and said in his slow Colorado drawl: "The mountains taught me a lot."
 A Vietnam veteran disillusioned with his marriage and years of hopping from one building site to the next, Gerril, 34, built a small ranch near Durango at the foot of the Rockies six years ago.
 To stay solvent this bearded outdoorsman comes "down to San Fran every summer to sandblaze submarines for the government," which is where I met him.

"The mountains taught me a lot," he said. "Your animal, each in his own size, he's mean. Don't mess with him."
 "There's 37 beavers in this hat," he said, allowing me to try on his impressive Stetson with a snake-skin band around the crown. "I shot the rattler, too."

Such Wild West talk, so exotic to a European, helped make the talk with Gerril one of many conversations I remember from my first visit to the United States, many held in bars more dimly lit than any in Europe.

I had gone with a view of "Amerika" formed by a European obsession with U.S. films, books and music, with images of baseball, Budweiser and barbecues known only from movies. In four weeks I stored odd images from coast to coast.

Like the young black in New York I spotted darting in and out of Manhattan traffic on roller skates, a whistle in his mouth and a far-away look in his eyes, probably brought on by music pounding his eardrums from a headset.

The Lithuanian-born cab driver who took me to Manhattan from the airport had said, "Here, you can eat breakfast at three in the afternoon, have lunch around midnight or dinner when you wake up." Which is just what I did.

The cabbie, Vladimir Shuga, with an openness alien to most Europeans, told me almost immediately why he had married another emigrant from the Soviet Union.

"I met several American girls," he said, "but they were only interested in my money. With a Russian girl, you know that love is for you, not for what you own."

In the San Francisco bar where I met Tom Gerril, the Gold Dust Lounge, I also talked to Peter, a stonemason from Wales whose last name I never learned.

"America is a crazy place," said Peter, a hulk of a man.

I doubted his claim to earn a living by moving mountains — "This is California, mate; anything goes here" — but he proved me wrong. He pulled out pictures of giant equipment, miles of chain saw and poles to rig it, a diesel motor big enough to power a ship, and trucks to transport the chunks of Utah sandstone he chopped up to rebuild on flat California land.

"We just moved a mountain to the San Fernando valley," he said. "They put a restaurant on top of it."

A bearded young man next to Peter wore a badge saying "Reagan for Shah." Sterling Stiles, a news vendor with a stand at Turk and Taylor streets, would have loved that button. Stiles had a long coat covered with more than 1,000 different buttons hanging on his stand.

"Got to cover the shoulders," he said, "then I will call the Guinness Book of Records."

A dusty 45-minute train ride south, a Stanford University student told me how politics, dead on campus since the Vietnam war, suddenly revived when President Carter called for draft registration. "It was like in the news programs from the time of the war," said Karen Vik Eustis. "People and placards all over the place. The same professors gave speeches, just a bit older and grayer. Television crews and reporters milled all around here."

"The strange thing was," she said with an almost embarrassed smile, "that we were all nudging each other saying, 'Hey, do you think this is what it used to be like?'"

In New Orleans on a sweltering evening, I was driving with a friend along a street far from the tourist sidewalks of the French Quarter. An old man, his trousers ripped, came by pulling a cart filled with empty beer cans he apparently collected for scrap metal.

I stepped out and asked the old man why he had to work on that sweaty hot night.

"You gotta keep busy," said Turner Horton, 61, an almost cheerful note in his voice. "Nobody here to help you if you don't."

No-Children Rent Policy

NEW YORK (AP) — A growing number of "no-children" policies is making it harder for families to find apartments to rent, according to American Demographics magazine.

The magazine said a random sample by the Department of Housing and Urban Development found that more than one-fourth of the nation's rental units do not allow children, up from 17 percent in 1974.

The study, based on 1,007 interviews with tenants and landlords in February and March of last year, found that "restrictions mount with family size," the magazine reported.

The magazine cited HUD findings that because of the growing number of "no-children" policies, a one-child family can choose from 64 percent of available units, a family with two children from 55 percent and a family with three children from only 41 percent. No figures were given for larger families.

"Large families have fewer choices in part because small apartments are often unsuitable for them," the magazine said, adding "Large apartments have fewer size restrictions."

"Ninety-five percent of all three-bedroom units are open to families with one or two children, and 88 percent are open to families with three children. But only 41 percent of two-bedroom units are open to three-child families."

American Demographics said the HUD study also found that:

—Nearly one-fourth of renters without children said they prefer not to live near children. More than half of those said children make too much noise.

—One in five people said they moved into their apartment because there were no children nearby.

—An unspecified percentage of building managers said children increase maintenance costs.

Brownie Troop Collecting

GRIMESLAND — The Brownies of Troop 312 are accepting children's reading materials to donate to Pitt Memorial Hospital for use by the younger patients and visitors to the hospital.

The girls hope to make the presentation by the end of February. Girl Scouts and Brownies wishing to contribute are asked to contact Mrs. Scott W. Shanley (758-3993) or Mrs. Linda Smith (756-9579.)

Give our best to your love.

HELICOPTER AIRLINER — A Boeing Vertol 234, the world's largest commercial helicopter, lands at Gatwick Airport in England. The first of six British Airways helicopters, described as the first real helicopter airliner, has a passenger compartment with full airline trim, 4-abreast center-aisle seating, a galley with hot meal capability, and a lavatory. The twin-rotor aircraft are intended primarily for operation between Aberdeen and the more distant North Sea oil platforms. (AP Laserphoto)

How N. C. Members Of House And Senate Cast Their Votes

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes between Jan. 29 and Feb. 5.

HOUSE
THE NATIONAL DEBT — By a vote of 305 for and 104 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 1553) raising the national debt ceiling from $935.1 billion to $965 billion. The bill enables the government to pay its current bills but does not hike spending levels. In past years, Republicans generally voted against raising the debt limit and Democrats generally supported an increase. This year, scores of members in both parties reversed their past positions.

Supporter Ed Weber, R-Ohio, urged his colleagues to "give President Reagan the time he needs to bring about the economic programs to which he is committed."

Opponent Peter Peyser, D-N.Y., reminded Republicans of their opposition to the dozen or so requests for an increase that former President Jimmy Carter had sent to Capitol Hill. "You didn't give (Carter) a chance to get started," he said.

Members voting "yea" favored a $50 billion increase in the debt ceiling.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Charles Whitley, D-3, W.G.

Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "yea."

Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Stephen Neal, D-5, Eugene Johnston, R-6, and William Hendon, R-11, voted "nay."

Reps. Ike Andrews, D-4, and Charles Rose, D-7, did not vote.

SENATE

LABOR SECRETARY —

By a vote of 80 for and 17 against, the Senate confirmed President Reagan's nomination of Raymond Donovan, of New Jersey, as Secretary of Labor in the new administration. Donovan, whose confirmation was delayed by uncorroborated accusations that he made payments to organized crime to insure labor peace for his construction firm, was the final Reagan cabinet choice to be approved and drew the largest number of "nay" votes.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a supporter of the nomination, said the Senate should reject "unsupported allegations and conclusionary hearsay" regarding Donovan's background.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., an opponent, accused the nominee of a "flawed sensitivity to the dangers of criminal activity."

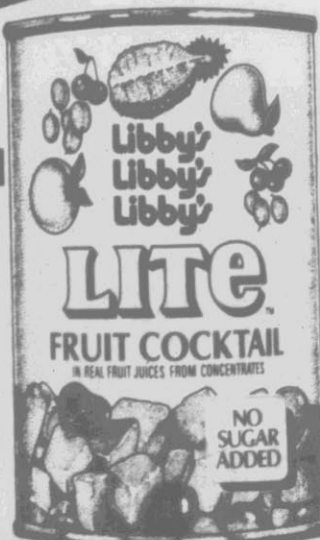

Senators voting "yea" favored the nomination.

Sens. John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

Why do Libby's Lite Fruits have a fresher fruit taste?

NO SUGAR ADDED

It's as plain as the sign on our can. Libby's doesn't add sugar to its Lite line of Peaches, Pears, Fruit Cocktail and Chunky Mixed Fruits. They're packed in a blend of real fruit juices for a fresher fruit taste!

Other fruit products do contain added sugar. And you can taste it! It's a heavier, more syrupy taste. So for a fresher fruit taste, try Libby's Lite Fruits. There's no sugar added!

Save 10¢ on any can of Libby's Lite

(Peaches, Pears, Fruit Cocktail and Chunky Mixed Fruits)

Automaker 'Can Hardly Wait' For 1985 To Arrive

By JAMES V. HIGGINS
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Mention 1985 and Roger B. Smith's eyes brighten.

The new General Motors Corp. chairman bubbles at his company's prospects in the latter part of this decade, almost as if the U.S. auto industry's 1980 disaster hadn't happened.

"I can hardly wait to get there," Smith tells an interviewer in his ornately wood-paneled office on the 14th floor of GM's headquarters building.

GM, he points out, already is the biggest manufacturer of control computers in the world — a result of seeking to mate fuel economy and tailpipe emission controls with acceptable car performance — and it's opening up new technical vistas.

"I think the world of electronics, the electric car and other things I see coming down the road, are where the real growth and the real profit potential are going to be," he said. "We've always made our best profits when we had technological leadership."

In speaking of change, Smith proves that some things never do.

He is as irrepresible an optimist as Thomas A. Murphy, the man he succeeded Jan. 1 as chief executive of the world's largest auto company.

To fulfill hopes of a bright automotive future, the battered U.S. industry will have to get there, and Smith's optimism isn't clouded by the bare fact mighty GM and its domestic competitors will need help.

He anticipates the government and the United Auto Workers union will recognize that as a necessity.

First, there should be a "dramatic, visible, tangible start" for the new administration of Ronald Reagan, something to restore consumer confidence and fulfill expectations that are running as high as those that greeted Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932.

"We need some help out of Washington and we need it desperately to get the economy going," he said. He looks toward a fulfillment of numerous campaign pledges for a less interfering, more sympathetic government.

"That's all the American people really need," he said.

"I honestly believe that the American people are fed up enough with inflation and understand what it's doing to their lives, to their parents, to their pensions and everything, that they're willing to make the sacrifices. All they need is some leadership.

"There's going to be some sacrifices involved that come about through the cuts in spending, and we've got to do that."

Smith spoke more strongly than ever about the prospect of wage relief from the UAW, now that it has granted substantial wage concessions to Chrysler Corp.

"You just know that you cannot have a two-tiered wage industry here," he said. "That's the problem we're having right now in the world market, we've got a two-tiered wage setup. Chrysler's found that out."

"It won't do the UAW any good, even in their own best interests, to push the problem from one to another around our domestic industry."

He didn't specify exactly what kind of concessions GM had in mind, but didn't rule out the possibility of seeking to reopen the current labor agreement which expires in September, 1982. Ford also has talked about a renegotiation.

"Certainly, when they finish up over at Chrysler, I'm sure (UAW President) Doug Fraser and everybody knows they're going to have to come over and deal with Ford and General Motors," Smith said.

Even though GM suffered its first annual loss since the 1920s last year, UAW officials have indicated they believe the company has the least convincing argument for wage relief among the Big Three U.S. automakers.

Its recent history and immediate prospects are comparatively brighter than its competitors.

GM's car lines in 1979-80 were better matched to the disordered U.S. car market than its competitors, Smith said. Consequently, its sales falloff was considerably less last year — 16 percent compared with 28 percent for Chrysler and 30 percent for Ford.

Smith said he believes GM's spate of record losses is over — although he emphasized it depends on whether "this new administration has got the guts" to attack inflation.

There are signs government concerns over GM's size and power — 63 percent of the U.S. car market in 1980 — are abating in a growing recognition that competition is heating up on a global scale.

"You know what our market share is? Our market share is 23 percent," Smith said. "That's what we sell worldwide. If it isn't a worldwide market, what the hell are all those funny little cars doing running around out there?"

"The guy up there working on the assembly line in Flint is in direct competition with that guy over there in Nagasaki, just as if he were in Pontiac."

In recent weeks, GM has subtly escalated its appeal for limits on Japanese cars imported here and Smith contends that "not only the U.S., but the whole world cannot tolerate" Japanese trade practices that concentrate on exports instead of worldwide production.

In perhaps a more telling development, GM will assault the Japanese directly in the U.S. market in May when it introduces a new line of subcompacts with one of the largest advertising campaigns in its history.

The new Chevrolet, Pontiac and Cadillac small cars will more directly compete with Japanese imports than GM's successful X-cars and the Chrysler K-cars, which have attracted mainly previous owners of larger American cars.

The new models, designated internally as J-cars and fitting between the Chevette and the compact X-cars in size, also will be built in Europe and could help GM gain ground on Ford in that market.

Domestically, GM's competitors believe the J-cars and accompanying promotions could generate substantial car-buying enthusiasm that will benefit the whole industry.

"It's no big secret you've got to go where the competition is and what the people want," Smith said. "When you bring out something new you better bring out something that's going to sell."

Smith said GM had no idea two years ago that the routine internal letter designation it gave its front-wheel drive subcompacts — the X-cars — would become a marketing tool copied by the competition.

"We did not have a great big game plan to do an X campaign. It just happened to hit. I've often wondered what would have happened if we had called it the Q."

"It was actually quite a shock to us... and a pleasant one at that, to see how much publicity came along with the name X."

A $100 price cut on the Chevette Jan. 1 and rises in Japanese car prices have put GM "in tremendous competitive position" in price in the subcompact market, Smith said.

Overall, domestic car prices at the moment might be too high for current market conditions and Smith didn't rule out a rebate program or other price-cutting tactic to stimulate sales.

"We talk about it every day," he said. "Production is one thing, but there's no sense making them if you can't sell them."

But Smith pointed out actual car prices change dynamically with market conditions — through dealers' willingness to dicker, changes in used car prices and interest rates — even if posted prices remain the same. Recent increases in used car prices have taken off some of the pressure, he said.

Smith, at 55, has been a GM employee for 31 years and followed a course to the top similar to that of Murphy, his predecessor. Auto industry observers have wondered whether he would maintain Murphy's high public profile and rigorous speaking and interview load.

"Visibility is one thing," he said. "What I'm looking for mostly is the results."

He said he recognizes the job carries wider responsibilities than simply to the company and stockholders.

"I think the enormous responsibilities, to my mind, are to provide leadership to international business," he said.

Is he awed by the task he faces? "Really not. I've been with the corporation for 30 years and for the last six I've sat right across the aisle there," he said, pointing to a row of top executive offices down a hallway.

"I kidded Tom (Murphy) the other day. I said I wondered what the heck he was doing over here... I had thought I was doing all the work. Now I got over here and found out I wasn't working hard enough."

Two 'Savers' In Frozen Food

NEW YORK (UPI) — You can save money two ways when you buy frozen vegetables.

Elaine Rose says Cornell University's Extension Service priced out some such products at New York City stores and found the per pound cost of 10-ounce boxes of pre-seasoned or sauced vegetables was about $1.50. Similar unseasoned combinations in 1-pound plastic bags were 89 cents to $1.15 a pound, depending on brand and variety. Still cheaper — 59-96 cents a pound — were individual vegetables in plastic bags.

"To save money, you can make your own combinations of vegetables and season them yourself," Ms. Rose suggests. Bagged vegetables that are quick frozen offer another advantage, she says. They are less apt to overcook because you can pour them into a cooking pan; those frozen in blocks tend to overcook easily because the outside cooks before those in the center are thawed.

Roses Are Red, Some Verses Blue; But $$ In 'I Love You'

By KEN FRANKLING
PAWTUCKET, R.I. (UPI) — Commercial and catalogs would have us believe the jogging and physical fitness rage infiltrates everything these days. Valentine's Day is one exception to Madison Avenue's rule.

Old-fashioned sentiment is still the prime seller for the "hearts and flowers" holiday for lovers — and the 800 million or so greeting cards that will be exchanged in the United States on Feb. 14.

"Valentine's Day is a season for lovers. You're not doing anything that is out there depicting a changing America," says James W. Winston, who is starting his second term as president of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

"Christmas is probably a better season in which you can show your individuality. Santa Claus, people out jogging and so forth," Winston said.

In volume, Valentine's Day is the second biggest card seller for the $1.5 billion industry, but one in which the postoffice shares little of the profits.

Three out of four valentines are hand-delivered, more than any other holiday card, Winston said.

Because of the general economy, card prices are up a bit. The so-called "penny valentines" that youngsters used to trade with schoolmates years ago now cost 15 cents.

Prices for the 1,300 to 1,400 different selections offered this year by Winston's firm, The Paramount Line Inc., run between 15 cents and $7.50, and average 75 cents.

The highest priced cards have pieces of costume jewelry attached.

"I'm sorry to say that inflation takes its toll everywhere, and it also takes its toll with greeting cards," Winston said. "Our material costs, our labor costs go up like everyone else's and our dealers have increased costs and need more income. We try to keep the pace as low as we possibly can."

Despite modest price rises, Paramount's head editor, Bernice Gourse, sees the valentine as a bargain for sentimentalists.

"It's nice that if you don't have any money, you can still say 'I love you,'" Mrs. Gourse said. "It's opportunity for people to reach out and say something that they don't have words to say."

"People get very sentimental. Sometimes our deepest feelings are the hardest to express."

Winston interjected: "I betcha Bernice has said 'I love you' in 150 million different ways."

The tone of valentines has changed very little over the years, but verses and cover images are updated as words and expressions take on new meanings, Mrs. Gourse said.

Fly-by-night American trends don't affect the holiday card business, particularly Valentine's Day, because manufacturers work about 18 months ahead.

In Paramount's case, the 1982 valentines have already been designed and the firm will soon begin work on verses for the 1983 line.

"We constantly let our consumers lead us," Winston said. "We do a complete analysis of sales as best we can, with feedback from dealers and sales people and our own records of what the best-selling cards and verses are."

"There has been a distinctive trend toward the better quality merchandise, which usually means higher priced merchandise," he said. "In general, people are buying cards based upon appeal."

"The text is what really clinches the sale. It's got to say what they want to convey," Winston said.

There are valentines for everyone — for all relatives, even for people whose birthdays or anniversaries fall on the holiday.

There are cards for "the man I love," "the woman I love," "the girl I love." For "a nice teacher," "my favorite teacher," or "a special teacher."

The variety is endless — all aimed at people with a special message in mind.

"It's a wonderful season. Red is a beautiful color. I certainly never forget to send my wife a card," 30-year industry veteran Winston said. "It's one thing I don't dare do."

FLAME RETARDANT — Sue Schrelo examines a piece of stibnite ore, which PPG Industries processes into antimony oxide at its chemicals facility at LaPorte, Texas for use as a flame retardant in plastics used in such products as hair dryers. Antimony oxide is a widely used flame retardant and has many applications in the production of synthetic fibers, glass, ceramics, chemical processing, solid lubricants and fluorescent lamp bulbs. Road Signs Said Hazard

NEW YORK (UPI) — Confusing, illegible, misplaced or otherwise inadequate road signs may be contributing to as many as 20,000 auto fatalities of the more than 50,000 highway deaths annually.

Traffic experts Edmond J. Cantilli and Joseph J. Linko say driver error is blamed for many if not most such accidents, but they actually are precipitated by badly engineered or poorly maintained road signs. Such signs lead to indecision or mistakes, Cantilli and Linko write in the November-December issue of The Journal of Insurance, a trade publication.

Hazardous signs include, they say, those obscured by foliage or other obstacles and those with engineering jargon, gobbledygook or abbreviations drivers cannot understand. Bad lighting, deterioration or inadequate size, signs too close to the point of decision and unfamiliar or inconsistent names or route numbers also create problems, the authors say.

Both men are executives of the Institute for Safety in Transportation in New York City. Cantilli is a professor of transportation planning and engineering at the Polytechnic Institute of New York and Linko is a lay expert who testified at congressional hearings a few years ago on roadside hazards and illustrated his points with slides he had taken of "built-in death traps."

$1.50 Flap Is Resolved

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Embarrassed by his state's persistent efforts to collect a $1.50 debt, an Oklahoma lawmaker has paid a bill for a visitor from Dallas who insisted he didn't owe the money.

State Rep. Frank Harbin wrote a $1.50 check Monday to cover the cost of a restaurant tip that the Oklahoma Tourism and Recreation Department said Texan Paul Giller has owed since Labor Day in 1979.

The money represented a tip on a bill the tourism agency says Giller signed during a stay at the state-operated Fountainhead State Lodge in eastern Oklahoma.

Giller said the signature wasn't his and he didn't owe Oklahoma anything.

After returning to Dallas, he got a bill for $1.50, followed by several letters demanding payment, two of them by registered mail at a cost of $1.40 each. The latest letter said the state would sue him for the "debt."

Giller wrote back, refusing to pay the bill and demanding that the state stop harassing him, send him $10 to cover his expenses and issue an apology.

He noted that the bill was "over 500 days old and it could be 500 years old and I still will not pay this bill. It isn't mine ... It is not my signature."

Harbin sent the tourism department a check Monday because he said the flap was making Oklahoma "look foolish."

Lowe's Pricing Policy

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. This reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our selling area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail price does not appreciably exceed the highest retail price at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price for a regular price is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask about our delivery rates.)

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you. It's just one more way we serve you at Lowe's.
