May End Funding Model Health Dept.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

County Commissioners were told yesterday that State funding of a model health department program in the county may come to an end.

County Manager Reginald Gray gave the board a report from county health director Dr. Robert F. Ehinger which said that if the $501,000 in State funds currently in the general budget are cut out, "the school health program would be virtually eliminated," as would the five satellite clinics now operating in various communities. "A number of services such as screening for diabetes, cancer, hypertension and other chronic diseases as well as well-baby care would be discontinued," and the central clinic staff would be decreased, "thereby reducing services to family planning, pre-natal, and venereal disease patients."

In addition, according to Ehinger's report, inspections of schools, day-care facilities and food-handling establishments would be reduced to one time per year, septic tank inspections would be delayed, and mobile home park, swimming pool, solid waste and vector control, and restaurant and institution plan review and consultation would be eliminated.

"Departmental staff would be reduced by approximately 75 percent," Ehinger said.

The state, several years ago, asked the county to participate in a model health department program, under which the health department would be funded primarily by the state.

If Pitt had received funds at the same level as other counties in North Carolina, the current funding would be $44,052 — $457,145 less than it is now receiving.

For several years, legislators from other counties have been interested in cutting the model health program. Although the Advisory Budget Commission has recommended full funding for the Pitt agency again for the coming biennium, a legislative staff report has recommended the program be phased out over the next two years.

Gray emphasized that an end of the model health program would mean, "a right drastic change."

In other business yesterday, commissioners heard Harry Leslie, chairman of the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival committee report that the arts festival is scheduled for April 1 through April 16. The headquarters for the festival, he noted will be in the old Belk-Tyler building on Fifth Street in downtown Greenville. Some 85 events are scheduled for the festival.

The board also appointed Art Wright of Procter and Gamble to the Pitt County Committee for Employment of the Handicapped, replacing Ms. Maxine Brown who has moved to Greensboro.

Long-Range City School Needs Price: $9 Million

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Emphasizing growth and alternatives, Superintendent of Greenville City Schools Glenn Cox outlined for board members the long-range plans for meeting facility needs in the city's schools during an action meeting held at E.B. Aycock Junior High Monday night.

Cox reviewed the long-range facility goals from 1965 to the present, saying, "Seven of the ten long-range facility plans we formulated in 1965 have been completed since then. This update we are studying now is based on student populations, and this indicates we need to think in terms of replacement and alternatives throughout the system."

Cox described the primary needs in the K-3 grades as "replacement of mobile units, space for special/small group instruction, and paved parking due to the increase in personnel." Replacement of mobile units includes three at Eastern, two at Elmhurst, four at Sadie Sautter and two at Third Street. Special/small group instruction needs refers to music, art, resource, and exceptional child groups as well as storage, health room and teachers' lounge space.

"In grades 4-6 our need for replacement of mobile units (four units at South Greenville) still persists and the space required for special/small group instruction is similar," explained the superintendent. "In addition we have a need for renovations to the auditorium ceiling at Wahl-Coates and the addition of partitions." Curb and gutter work was listed as a need in grades 4-6 as well as determination of the schools' relationship with East Carolina University.

Major needs in grades 7-9 included completion of the building program at Greenville Middle, an auditorium at E.B. Aycock Junior High, development of athletic facilities at Aycock, renovation of heating and air conditioning at Aycock, and athletic/playground development at Greenville Middle.

In response to needs in grades 10-12, Cox and the board discussed how much longer the system could continue to use Agnes Fullilove School. Board members agreed that an alternative to use of the facility should be explored, as well as the possibility of ECU purchasing the J.H. Rose facilities. Athletic and auditorium facilities were included in the long-range plans, and meeting handicapped codes, expansion of vocational facilities and growth of exceptional child programs were listed as priorities.

"A total of $9 million is needed to fill these needs," explained Cox, "and I want the board to consider these needs and consider how we are going to find the money." Cox added that there was a possibility of some funds should the state bond referendum pass.

Board members listed other needs they felt should be considered, such as the school system's relationship with Pitt Community College, the possibility of the middle school moving in another direction, and the possibility of the system doing without one facility in light of the shrinking population. "What I want you to do," said Cox "is to play some games with figures and think about some alternative positions."

No action was taken Monday on these long-range plans for facility needs, and the matter will be considered February 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the board's workshop meeting, central office conference room.

The board also discussed the new income scale for determining eligibility for free/reduced meals. Cox reported that a revaluation of those families in the marginal area was underway, and presented to the board the new application for assistance. The cut-off for free meals/free milk for families with one child is now an income of $5,700 per year. The cut-off for reduced price meals is $8,350 for families with one child. The new policy must be implemented by March 16.

A report was made by Superintendent Cox on the Division of Compensatory Education's monitoring review of Title I program in Greenville City Schools. The system received the highest ratings in all but four areas, including measurement and assessment of each child's progress, records on individual children, prescriptive plans for each child and individualization of the program to accommodate specific skill needs.

The report recommended improvement in these areas, but it was pointed out that these items were not required in the original implementation program. "These four areas were not required when we began the program, they are guidelines added later," said Cox.

In other action, the board considered the following:

President To Congress: It'll Be 'Straight Talk'

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, disdaining any "cutesy acronym" to symbolize his assault on the nation's economic woes, will use "straight talk" in his televised address to Congress to call for immediate action on cutting taxes, the budget and government regulation, his chief spokesman says.

"We have no choice," presidential press secretary James S. Brady said Monday as Reagan and his aides completed a "page by page, line by line" review of the speech in the White House library. "We have to deal with inflation. He is saying the system will work if we let it work."

The speech, to be delivered at 9 p.m. EST Wednesday, will be the centerpiece of a six-part package detailing Reagan's economic program of tax reductions and approximately $50 billion in budget cuts.

The package also will contain:

— His actual budget message revising the Carter administration's fiscal 1982 spending proposal of $739.3 billion.

— A written message to Congress expanding on points in the speech.

— A two-part tax document containing specifics of his proposed cuts in individual income taxes and accelerated depreciation schedules intended to reduce business taxes. The New York Times reported today the administration will propose that high-income Americans — individuals earning at least $42,500 and couples earning at least $60,000 — receive less than the full 30 percent tax cut being considered for most taxpayers over three years.

— A 12- to 15-page fact sheet.

— Proposals to revise government regulations.

Gas Use Drops

The city announced that during each month of this fiscal year, except December, it reduced its automobile gasoline consumption compared to the same month in the 1979-80 fiscal year.

It was pointed out that one of the goals selected by the city under its goals and objectives program involved the reduction of energy consumption. Four objectives were selected for this year, one of which was to reduce the rate of increase in gasoline consumption by six percent by June 30.

The most noteworthy reductions, City Manager Ed Wyatt told the City Council recently, were in July, 1980, 12.6 percent; August, 1980, 20.85 percent; October, 1980, 9.21 percent; November, 1980, 17.93 percent; and January, 1981, 11.31 percent. Total reduction this year is almost ten percent or 14,496 gallons, he said.

Voting Was 'Picking Up' At Noon Today

Greenville precinct officials reported that voting activity at 10 a.m. appeared to be picking up as local residents visited the polls for today's referendum on liquor-by-the-drink.

Margaret Register, supervisor of the Pitt Elections Board, said that a total of 1,686 persons had voted by 10 a.m. at the nine Greenville precincts. Total local voter registration is 15,018, she added.

Totals reported this morning to the elections office included: Greenville One (VFW Post Home, Mumford Road), 28; Three (West Greenville Recreation Center), 64; Four (Jaycee Building, Chestnut Street), 81; Five (American Legion Building), 393; Six (Fifth Street Fire Station), 127; Seven (Elm Street Gym), 301; Eight (Willis Building), 253; Nine (Gardner Fire Station), 233, and Ten (Aycock Jr. High), 205.

"The Daily Reflector" will tabulate returns tonight from the referendum and poll officials in the nine local precincts are reminded to call the newspaper office at 752-6166 as soon as results are available.

INSURANCE PROBLEM

My car was broken into while it was parked at a local movie theater. I reported the incident to police and filed an insurance claim, but my insurance company doesn't want to stand behind me. I even had a lawyer read my policy and he said this theft should be covered. Yet the company refuses to do anything for me. They know that my loss isn't big enough to warrant taking it to court. Dennis Rogers To Be Marshal Grifton Parade

GRIFTON — Dennis Rogers, columnist for the "News and Observer" will be the grand marshal for the 11th annual Grifton Shad Festival Parade on April 4.

"I don't know or care what a grand marshal is," Rogers said. "All I want is a horse to ride in the parade. And if I can't have a horse I want a car full of pretty girls and a lot of money."

The theme for the Shad Festival this year is "Headin' for the Shad Roundup" and Rogers has written several columns about the western fad sweeping the country. In one he wrote about how he dressed up in his cowboy duds and almost worked up the courage to ride a mechanical bull.

Rogers, a native of Wilson, served nine years in the Army before leaving in 1970 to attend the University of North Carolina. In addition to the "News and Observer," he has worked for papers in Chapel Hill, Fayetteville and Charlotte. "Home Grown," a collection of Rogers' columns written over the past four years, has become a successful book. The columnist is currently working on another book, scheduled to go to press this fall.

Rogers' leisure activities include "cheating at backgammon, acting in community theatre and taking long naps," says the columnist. He also is a self-proclaimed barbecue expert and has written several columns dealing with the friendly controversy surrounding the merits of eastern North Carolina barbecue versus the merits of Texas-style barbecue.

Six Accidents Investigated

More than $13,000 damage resulted from a series of six traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, according to investigators, resulted from a 10:26 a.m. collision on Memorial Drive, 500 feet south of the Arlington Boulevard intersection, involving cars driven by Fernie Lee Huffman of Edgewood Trailer Pk., and Dorothy Campbell Briley of Route 1, Stokes.

Officers, who charged Ms. Briley with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $2,800 to the Huffman car and $2,600 to the Briley vehicle.

Tracy Shope Bennett of 204 North Elm St. was charged with failing to stop for a red light following investigation of a 12:07 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Elm Streets.

Police, who identified the driver of the second car involved as David Barnette Joyner of 2705 East Fifth St., estimated damage at $2,300 to the Bennett auto and $175 to the Joyner car.

An estimated $2,100 damage resulted to a car driven by Anna Williams Edmondson of Shady Knoll Trailer Pk., when the vehicle swerved to miss a dog, went out of control, and struck a post and utility pole on Airport Road, 1,000 feet west of the Greene Street intersection.

Investigators reported an estimated $1,500 damage resulted to a car driven by Bertha Crandell Keel of 408 Maple St. when the vehicle collided with a parked car owned by Willie Mac Thomas of 1507B West Fifth St. about 10:50 a.m. on Fifth Street, 90 feet east of the Nash Street intersection.

Officers, who said the Keel car overturned, said no damage resulted to the Thomas auto.

Cars driven by Nina Corey Reddick of 208B Cadillac St. and Coleman Kuykendall Jr. of 503B Darden Dr., collided about 4:50 p.m. on Darden Drive, 150 feet south of the Cox Street intersection, causing $700 damage to the Reddick car and $450 damage to the Kuykendall car.

Police said cars driven by Robert Joseph Tyburski of 111 Pearl Dr., and Claudia Jean Manning of Route 5, Greenville, collided about 7:55 a.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 50 feet west of Secondary Road 1135 in the Red Oak area, causing $500 damage to the Manning vehicle. No damage resulted to the Tyburski car, investigators noted.

Estate Planning

Estate Planning for the non-farm family has been scheduled by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service. The meeting will be held Thursday at 9:30 a.m. and again at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, home economics extension agent, will discuss making a will. Attorney Charles McLawhorn will talk about estate taxes, and banker Justine Crome will discuss trusts.

Those wishing to attend either of these meetings should call the Extension Service at 752-2934 to pre-register.

Investigate Fire At Two Firms

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Fire officials were investigating a $2.5 million blaze that destroyed two plastics product companies and slightly injured two firefighters.

Toxic smoke from burning plastic hampered fire fighting efforts as flames raced through Gable Plastics Inc. and ABS Tanks Inc. late Sunday in this Orange County city about 35 miles south of Los Angeles, said Battalion Cmdr. Richard Keller.

Two firefighters were treated and released at a local hospital for cuts and bruises. None of the 60 firefighters suffered severe fume inhalation, however, Keller said.

Urges Public Backing For Road Needs

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Hunt administration began its public appeal for assistance in meeting the state's highway needs Monday with Gov. Jim Hunt making a personal appeal to a Raleigh civic club and Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw unveiling plans for a drastic cutback in services for the needy and the elderly.

Bradshaw, speaking to the Governor's Conference on Coordinating Transportation Services, told the group to expect a "net 30 percent cutback" in programs their agencies provide for the needy as the state attempts to "pool our resources, doing more with less."

"North Carolina is in a real crisis in transportation for the future," Bradshaw said.

Hunt, speaking in Raleigh, echoed that statement, saying that transportation money has just about run out.

"Our roads, streets and highways are in trouble and we, the people who built them and own them, are going to have to face up to that problem," Hunt said.

"You've got a problem, we've got a problem, North Carolina's got a problem, and we need to keep that in mind. We need to help people understand that."

Hunt did not mention a possible solution to the transportation crisis, but in an interview he said that.

"When we come up with a proposal, I think it will be seen as reasonable and people will understand it and be willing to do the right thing."

Hunt did warn in his speech that major highways may be a thing of the past.

"We will not and should not build many more big highways," Hunt said. "You perhaps could make a case for one or two more four-lane new roads — and maybe not even that — in this state. What we've got to do is improve a number of roads that are just so crowded, so congested, and just unsafe."

Bradshaw and Dr. Sarah T. Morrow, state secretary of human resources, told the group in Greensboro they have no idea where state government will get the added money needed for road maintenance.

Bradshaw said added taxes or dipping into the General Fund are ideas being considered. He said Hunt would complete his proposals in April for boosting the transportation revenue.

"But we need an additional $200 million right now as a bare minimum for maintenance of our 75,000 miles of highway," Bradshaw said. "The interstate system is nearly completed, and the added money will be basically for road maintenance."

Bradshaw's department has suffered because of dwindling gasoline tax revenues.

Dr. Morrow summed up feelings of many in state government when she noted "the smiling faces" of federal government representatives from Atlanta and Washington who were attending the conference.

"In Raleigh, we've been bleeding a little with concern over cuts expected from the national administration," she said.

Bradshaw said "improving transportation programs" is necessary for the balanced economic growth needed to make Hunt's economic development strategy successful.

Select Committee Convened To Find Transportation Cuts

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Legislature's select committee to study the Department of Transportation scheduled its first public meeting today amid a call by House Speaker Liston Ramsey "to see if we can't get them operating on a business-like basis."

The 10-member House and Senate committee was named 11 days ago by Ramsey and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green to lead the General Assembly's effort to find where spending cuts can be made in the Department of Transportation and study whether proposals to raise the tax on gasoline are warranted.

The select committee has been instructed by legislative leaders to steer clear of the growing bid-rigging scandal among highway contractors.

Ramsey, in an interview, said he wanted it to focus on the Transportation Department's operating budget.

"I don't think they are operating on a business-like basis," Ramsey said.

The panel is expected to receive a legislative staff report that targets expenses by the state Board of Transportation as a place for initial scrutiny.

A copy of the report obtained by The Associated Press showed that the state has paid some members of the Board of Transportation for expenses or per-diem compensation for far more than the number of days on which the board has held meetings.

The staff found that of $100,465 paid in expenses to the 23-member board during fiscal 1979-1980, $72,137 of it was reimbursement for expenses or per-diem compensation on days the board wasn't meeting.

Under state law and department regulations board members may charge their expenses and collect daily compensation for any non-meeting day in which they conduct state transportation business.

But the report found wide variances in the manner in which board members collected that money.

The staff named one board member, Arthur Williamson of Chadbourn, as having received the $15 per diem for the most number of days — 267 days — during 1979-1980.

In addition, the report said six board members claimed their per diem for more than 150 days that year; eight claimed it for 100 to 150 days; six claimed it for fewer than 100 days, and three did not seek per diem for any days.

Williamson, contacted by telephone, said the per-diem expenses, and mileage payments for travel on department business, were justified.

"I know I haven't put in for any expenses that I wasn't entitled to," he said. "This is a thankless job. Fifteen dollars is no pay."

"When people call me and want me to look at their roads, I make personal visits," he said. "There's a whole lot of it that's public relations."

Ramsey, asked about the staff findings, called the board's expenses "peanuts. But you get enough peanuts and pretty soon you've got a tubful."

The staff report also appeared to question the board's policy of holding many of its regularly scheduled meetings outside Raleigh. It noted there is no legal requirement for the outside meetings, and estimated they cost $2,000 per meeting more than Raleigh meetings.

Cy Lynn, department spokesman, said they had no evidence the meetings elsewhere around the state were more expensive, and he said they were a part of the governor's instructions for the board to "get out among the people."

"We're very conscious of travel expenses," he said.

Phil Garris, controller for the department, said board members' expense accounts are audited for accuracy but that no attempt is made to check up on the amount of work or travel done. "I don't really give this a lot of attention," he said.

Rep. Allen Barbee, D-Spring Hope, House cochairman of the committee, said the expenses were not major but that they would be one area the committee should scrutinize.

"I think they ought to put in a full day's work if they're getting per diem," he said.

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gastonia, Senate cochairman, is an opponent of proposals to raise the state tax on gasoline — the ultimate issue before the committee and the Legislature.

Rauch said the board's expenses would be examined, as well as the number of department executives and their salaries. "I'm going to take a purely business approach," Rauch said.

Concern For ESP 'Lag'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., acknowledges he doesn't know his own belief on the subject of extrasensory perception, but he does express a fear that the Soviet Union is far ahead of the United States in experimenting with extrasensory perception for military purposes.

Rose has urged other members of the House Select Committee on Intelligence to support American experiments in the ESP field.

"My interest is — if this stuff works — I want us to be at the level where the Soviets are," Rose said recently in an interview.

He said the Soviets have conducted serious experiments for several years with ESP in an effort to learn U.S. military secrets. Rose contended that the Soviets have taken the lead in such research because they could be more detached about delving into the unknown.

"We are a God-fearing people," Rose said. "The subject of parapsychology seems to threaten the way some people have their belief system wired together."

Rose said Soviet experiments have centered on such areas as mental telepathy, the mental awareness of information over distance; precognition, or the knowledge of future events, and the transfer of bio energy from one body to another.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Giant wishbone cables alternate with blackberry stitch panels to create a knitted afghan so elegant it is sure to become a treasured heirloom. Designed to be made from four-ply knitting worsted-weight yarn, the afghan is knitted in one piece with finished measurements of 47 of 58 inches.

To obtain directions for knitting the cable and blackberry afghan, send your request for Leaflet No. PK-5550 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-5550 by sending check or money order for $22.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Price includes acrylic yarn, instruction leaflet and shipping charges. Please specify your choice of off-white, light yellow, light blue, sea green or light gold.

Many people have difficulty in selecting colors for their knit and crochet projects. If you are one of them, I hope you will find some helpful suggestions in today's column.

In making home accessories, such as afghans and pillows, your first consideration is, of course, the room in which it is to be used. Usually, however, you have a choice of three or more colors that will complement any decorating scheme.

The type of pattern stitch to be used should have a bearing on the tone of your colors. In stockinette stitch, many openwork stitches or an all-over textured stitch such as seed or double seed stitch, dark or light colors can be equally satisfactory.

Cables, used alone or in combination with other stitches, are usually much more effective in light colors. Actually, an off-white or natural, such as is seen in most fisherman knits, is hard to beat when these decorative, sculptured stitches are used.

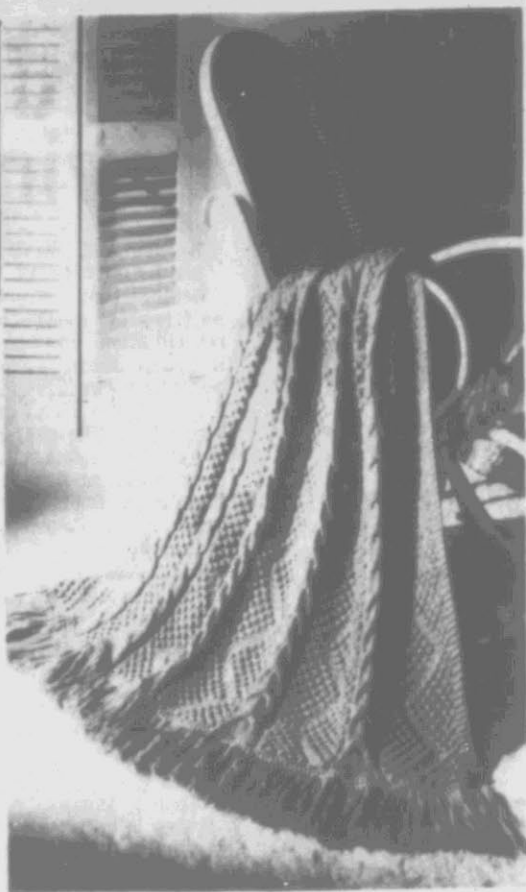

The darker the yarn, the less effective your cable and bobble-type pattern will be. Pastels and some medium tones often will work as well as white, however, and might be a happier choice for you.

In making an item as large as an afghan, you will be spending many hours working on it. Therefore, do select a color that has a good effect on you personally. Blue, for example, is a serene color that has a soothing effect on some people and a slightly depressing effect on others. A light, sunny yellow is a happy choice for many.

Other people react more favorably to vibrant colors so for them tangerines, lime greens, electric blues and other such brightly toned colors would be best.

If you are not sure how you react to different colors, look at the colors you have used in your home and ask yourself how you feel about those colors. Do you have certain items in your wardrobe that make you feel simply great when you wear them? If so, the chances are good that the color is the main reason.

With smaller items such as pillows, caps, scarves and vests, this personal reaction to color is less important. For many of us, this is when we can happily work with bright colors.

WISHBONE CABLES... alternate with blackberry stitch panels to create this knitted afghan.

When you are knitting or crocheting gift items, you should, of course, consider the likes of the person who will be receiving the gift. Almost everyone has more than one favorite color, so it shouldn't be too hard to select one that is pleasing to you and to the recipient.

Most knitters and crocheters have drawers or boxes full of leftover odds and ends of yarn. If you are planning to make something in a fancy pattern stitch, dig into that box of leftovers and try the pattern in a variety of colors and notice which one shows off the pattern stitch to the best advantage.

DEAR ABBY: I was raised a sometime Baptist but am dissatisfied with the Protestant Scriptures and the answers they propose. I would like to obtain copies of other religious scriptures—the Koran, the Veda, the Avesta, or something pertaining to Taoism, Bahaism, and anything else I can acquire concerning religions.

I am presently serving a life sentence at Waycross, Ga., so obviously I don't have access to public libraries or other public places where this information is available.

I am well-educated and not afraid of tackling complex doctrine. Also, being in a lock-up, my funds are limited. Can you help me, please?

SEARCHING

DEAR SEARCHING: Many religious societies make their literature available on request without charge. Ask your prison chaplain about the Inside-Outside group, whose purpose is to help prisoners with requests such as yours. Please write again and let me know if you are successful.

DEAR ABBY: I recently read in your column that one can obtain a "NO" button to wear if you are not interested in sex.

Do you suppose we older folks could obtain a button with "MAYBE" or "SOMETIMES" on it?

DEAR ABBY: I so enjoy your patient-doctor stories. Here's mine: Years ago when I saw my gynecologist, his nurse was standing by to assist him while he painted me with gentian violet. Up through my "modesty tent" came the doctor's voice, raised in song, "She got her thrill on Blueberry Hill!"

Cultural Opportunities Discussed

The Welcome Wagon Club of Greenville was informed of cultural opportunities here at its luncheon meeting last week.

Ingrid Wright, audience developer for ECU Playhouse Student Theatre and ECU Summer Theatre, told the group that completion later this year of McGinnis Auditorium's restoration will create the type of facility in which topname people from around the country will want to perform.

She encouraged anyone interested in drama or dance to audition for playhouse productions and to take advantage of courses available in the ECU department of drama and speech.

Lynn Olmsted, employed by the Chamber of Commerce in community development and resource, previewed the first Eastern Carolina Arts Festival. The 15-day event will begin April 1.

She discussed the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council and distributed copies of CIECA 81, the council's newsletter.

Prospective members Gail Moore, Cheers Williamson, Metafawn Cockey and new member Paula Scholtens were introduced by Membership Chairman Bev Spivey. Other new members are Evelyn Barousse, Lottie Darwin, Claudette Lynch, Shirley Hollender, Holly Pulley and Grace Shea.

Dee Schaff said the program for the March 11 meeting is the annual spring fashion show for charity. Tickets can be purchased from the Traffic Light or Virginia Crabtree or by calling Mrs. Schaff, 756-1665. All reservations must be made by March 6.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Only time will tell if it's a laundry breakthrough, but for the moment, a combination bar and laundromat in Lawrence, Kans., has given new meaning to the word "suds."

According to a UPI wire story, "Suds 'n' Duds" laundry is the brainchild of a couple of men who figured out that "laundry is just about the most boring thing in the world." So, while the washer is on fill, so is the washee.

I used to know a woman who occasionally nipped to get through her ironing and she ended up one day pressing her tongue.

Heaven knows I'm for anything that makes running a home an equal opportunity employee, but a laundry room doesn't seem to be the place for people who turn ugly when they drink.

My experiences with laundromats has been limited to those I frequent on vacations. (Frequent! If you get a card from me that isn't spotted with bleach, it's a forgery.) I must say they're a strange bunch to deal with when sober. I hate to think what they'd be like if they were picked up on a WWI (Washing While Intoxicated). It's probably my own insecurity with things mechanical, but I am intimidated in laundromats beyond belief.

Somehow, I always follow on the heels of a woman who is camping outside of town with eight children and is lugging in a rain-soaked tent and ten muddy sleeping bags. Washers and dryers are her life. She knows everything. She has a pocketful of change, knows what washers work and what dryers overheat. She has five of them spinning at once with the confidence and organization of a high-roller at Vegas. She usually has a small tattoo of a snake on her wrist.

With an electric beater at moderately low speed, beat 1/2 pint (regular or ultra-pasteurized) heavy cream until it begins to thicken; increase speed to high and beat until the cream forms a ball of butter and separates from the liquid — 10 minutes or so. Turn the butter into a strainer to drain. Discard the liquid or use as you like. Mix the butter with minced fresh herbs (chives, parsley or rosemary for example) to taste. With your hands, shape into a ball; cover tightly and chill. Makes 1/2 scant cup. Utterly delicious as a saltless spread for homemade bread.

In the unfortunate event of lost or delayed luggage, most airlines have set up guidelines for disbursement of money for emergency purchases. The amount depends upon the length of time it takes to track down your bags and your proximity to home. For replacement clothing, the airline will, most likely, agree to foot half the bill. For damages due to delay, the carrier is liable for consequential damages up to a limit of $750.00. If and when your baggage is declared officially lost, your claim will usually go to the central office. This is where negotiations begin. The airlines generally consider only depreciated values, not replacement costs.

More Understanding?

U. S. Department of Education is at war with Texas over the issue of racial segregation in the public colleges and universities, and Texas is as much perplexed as is North Carolina.

In fact, in Texas they view the Department of Education-UNC fight as an example of what can happen there.

"The Houston Post" in reporting on the issue quoted a source, "The last thing anybody in Texas wanted was what North Carolina went through and is still going through".

It tends to indicate that what has happened in North Carolina higher education is well-known to other states facing Department of Education intervention in their college and university systems.

It may be that with a new administration in Washington the Department of Education will be more understanding of the problems it is causing. Then, perhaps solutions to upgrading traditionally black campuses can be found without federal interference in the planning and operation of campuses.

If things continue as they have, however, many other states can expect to face that which North Carolina higher education planners have endured.

Texasgulf Suffers Loss

We share the sadness employees of Texasgulf, Inc. must feel in the death of several company executives due to a jet crash in New York.

Texasgulf has a major phosphate mining operation at Aurora in Beaufort County and many area citizens are employed there.

Some of those who died were based in Raleigh with the Texasgulf offices there.

The tragic plane crash brought sudden death to some of the company's top management, and it is regrettable.

THIS AFTERNOON

Buying N.C. Land

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Foreigners are buying North Carolina farmland in huge amounts; enough to cause alarm in some quarters of state government.

But the question of whether alien citizens or corporations should be restricted in land ownership in North Carolina is one which has not yet come into sharp focus.

Legislation has been drafted which would effectively halt further land-buying by foreigners, and a legislative committee which endorses that course hopes that serious public debate will take place before the General Assembly takes the matter under consideration.

At the end of last year a total of 219,613 acres of farmland was in foreign ownership in North Carolina; an increase of nearly 24,000 acres held by foreign interests in just one year.

Forest and timberlands dominate (at 78 percent), with only 17 percent of the foreign-owned land producing crops, and a tiny three percent in pasture.

A Pattern
There is an interesting pattern to foreign land ownership in the state. Three particular areas seem to attract the most activity:

—A concentration of coastal counties fronting on Pamlico and Albemarle sounds where more than 116,000 acres are foreign-owned;

—A southern Piedmont and Sandhills concentration of more than 41,000 acres in Moore, Montgomery, Anson and Richmond counties;

—A Rutherford County concentration of more than 11,000 acres, with considerable holdings of between 3,000 and 5,000 acres in adjoining Cleveland, McDowell, Burke and Polk counties.

Smaller farm tracts are owned in some Piedmont counties, but most western counties and most of the Coastal Plain counties have no foreign ownership reported.

State Senator Vernon E. White of Winterville in Pitt County chaired the legislative study which was launched two years ago when a bill was introduced restricting foreign land ownership.

The committee's draft legislation proposes that foreign citizens, or corporations including those located in this country but whose money comes mostly from foreign sources, not be allowed to buy farmland. Any present owners could continue, but could not expand their holdings. And, in the future, even if a foreign person inherited North Carolina farmland, he would have to sell it within two years.

Three Concerns

Three main concerns prompted the study group to go ahead with proposed restrictions: that foreign ownership would drive local land prices up; that it would drive crop prices up; and that it would hurt future availability of both food and land space to North Carolinians.

One finding by the committee is that most of the foreign ownership of farmland in this state is not for the production of agricultural commodities, but rather as a hedge against inflation and instability abroad, and as a means of investing "cheap" U.S. dollars flowing overseas to buy oil and foreign goods.

"The scarcity and resultant appreciation of value of agricultural land are evidently sufficient incentives for such investment. The income from farming is relegated to secondary importance," the committee reported.

The legislation provides for foreigners to own other than farmland without restriction, so that foreign investment in commercial, industrial, and

Other Editors Say The Full Story?

(Washington Daily News)

This ABCS stuff that has somehow cast a dark shadow over congressional operations needs a ray of sunshine to clear the atmosphere somewhat.

And the biggest ray of sunshine that we can think of under present circumstances is for the FBI to let the country about the honest congressmen and senators to whom bribes were offered and refused.

We have heard so much about those who took money illicitly and we have followed several trials in which congressmen have been convicted of high crimes that in the minds of some people it seems so easy to look at one rotten apple and to say that the entire barrel is rotten.

However, in this case there have been six or more rotten apples already exposed, and there could be others involved. But if the FBI sets up machinery to catch six or eight guilty ones, how about the failures or the refusals of honest public servants to get involved in such transactions?

It would help this nation and it would tend to restore an element of confidence in our national government, particularly in the decency and honesty of congress itself, if we, the people, could know the names of the honest ones who stood in the wilderness, were tempted, and refused.

In the case we are now talking about, the ones who refused should be recognized with more than a passing mention, too. They should be held up as national examples of integrity, and the American people should take pride in such a story.

Then, we feel the people have a right to know the full story — not merely the story pertaining to the fellows who accepted bribes. It is our opinion that the powers-that-be are missing the boat in what we believe to be a great and wonderful opportunity to capitalize on honesty and integrity. We realize that if it should so happen that everybody tempted by the FBI fell victim to money, the picture and the atmosphere will become even more polluted. But we just cannot believe now that everybody tempted accepted bribes.

All we want to know is the names of the honest ones who were tempted but who refused. We believe the release of these names would have a wholesome effect upon the American scene. If there was ever a time when this America of ours, this democracy under which we live, and the leadership guiding us today needed a real shot in the arm, that time is now.

Great confidence and faith could be renewed ... and they should be. This is not asking too much.

How Not To Cut Budget

WASHINGTON — About all the talk you hear in Washington these days is talk of the government's '82 budget. There's not much excitement at the White House or the Supreme Court. The Congress, exhausted by its labors, has been away on vacation. The budget is the only game in town.

Funny thing about the budget. In theory, almost everybody wants to cut the budget. Mr. Carter left behind a proposal that called for revenues of $71.8 billion and outlays of $73.3 billion, for a deficit of $2.5 billion, but the figures were at once denounced as mostly bogus. The experts complained that in a sluggish economy, the government would collect less and spend more, so the '82 deficit would be closer to $57 billion than $27 billion. Whereupon everybody agreed that so great a deficit would be intolerable. The consensus was clear: Let us cut the budget.

The theory is fine. The fact is that except for the president and his budget director, almost no one really wants to cut the budget. The idea is to cut someone else's budget. To paraphrase the popular song, Giving Up Is So Hard to Do. Let me offer a case in point.

Back in 1961, Congress created a United States Travel Service with a mission to promote tourism in America by home folks and foreign visitors alike. In the view of its penny-pinching critics, the agency never had much reason for existence. Constitutionists grumbled that "promotion" of an industry is no business of the Congress. At least the last three presidents — Nixon, Ford and Carter — have tried to get rid of the outfit. As one of his last acts in office, Mr. Carter in December vetoed a Senate bill to keep the function going.

Now, the Travel Service is small potatoes on the vast smorgasbord of the United States budget. The agency's current appropriation is only $8 million; it employs only 75 persons — 45 of them in six foreign offices and 30 here at home. But it has powerful friends — the hotel people, for example, and the restaurant owners, and the operators of air lines and bus companies and taxicabs. They will tell you, if you ask, that the tourist industry generates $140 billion in spending and employs 6.6 million persons. Tourism is supposed to be our fourth largest source of foreign currency, after chemicals, motor vehicles and grain.

Very well. As I say, Mr. Carter vetoed the 1980 effort to keep a tourist promotion function going. But last month, South Dakota's Sen. Larry Pressler abruptly summoned the old bill back from the vasty deep. On suspension of the rules, after only 10 minutes of one-sided discussion, without bothering to hold committee hearings, without waiting upon the new administration's recommendations, the senators who were present all cried 'aye.' Not a dissenting voice was heard.

Last year the House voted 218-84 for the Senate measure. It seems a fair assumption that the House will go along this time, too. If so, we shortly will have a brand-new United States Travel and Tourist Administration, with directions "to promote and facilitate the orderly growth and development of tourism." The new agency, replacing the old Travel Service, will be thoroughly independent; its budget request can't be trimmed by a president's budget director; the number of its employees cannot be cut back by anyone.

So it goes. The president's majority leader, Howard Baker of Tennessee, made no effort to delay this little bill. Indeed, Mr. Baker was named among the co-sponsors. Other sponsors included such

Hard-Line Paying Off

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — In a politically symbolic rehabilitation, President Reagan has decided on a top post for Lawrence Brady, the New Hampshire businessman whose hard line on technology exports to the Soviet Union cut short his Commerce Department career in the Carter administration.

Brady left as deputy director of the department's Export Control Office in January 1980, after a series of run-ins over Carter administration policy. Brady informed Congress regulations designed to block the export to Russia of technology — particularly computers — were being undermined.

Praised in the press as a "whistle-blower," Brady left Washington for his Bedford, N.H., home. While campaigning for Reagan in the New Hampshire presidential primary, Brady was told by Reagan he would be offered a Commerce Department job in a Reagan administration. The job now under consideration: assistant secretary for trade, a step up from Brady's old post.

Cabinet Hits And Misses
After a month in office, senior White House aides have graded the Reagan Cabinet: Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis and Interior Secretary James Watt on top, Energy Secretary James Edwards on the bottom.

Lewis, a skilled professional politician as well as a millionaire business consultant, has outdistanced all other Cabinet members in getting his department in working order. Watt, a onetime senatorial aide who ran a non-profit foundation fighting environmentalists, has been ahead of his colleagues in putting Reagan doctrine into practice.

Edwards, a dentist who was governor of South Carolina, has lagged in staffing the Energy Department. He is also on a collision course with budget director David Stockman on several energy issues, including whether to restart a nuclear spent fuel processing plant at Barnwell, S.C.

The Senate Club
Nonpartisan loyalties

within the Senate club were apparent when Washington lobbyists received a fundraising appeal for the legal defense fund of New Jersey's Democratic Sen. Harrison Williams, the last Abscam defendant, signed by former Sen. Clifford Case, his erstwhile Republican colleague.

Case's letter coincided with a hush-hush fund-raising reception for Williams held at the Washington home of a lobbyist with strong Democratic ties. The invitation suggested to the lobbyists that other U.S. senators would be on hand to help Pete Williams, the former chairman of the Senate labor committee, in his hour of need.

They were not. Even the ties that bind members of the Senate club have a limit. Former Sen. William Hathaway of Maine attended, but not one incumbent senator showed up.

Dick Allen's Influence
Jamaica Prime Minister Edward Seaga's visit to President Reagan immediately after the inauguration showed that reports of Richard V. Allen being downgraded as the president's national security assistant were greatly exaggerated.

It has been stressed that Allen reports to the president through presidential counselor Edwin Meese III and is clearly subordinate to Secretary of State Alexander Haig in the national security field. Nevertheless, it was Allen who convinced Reagan that the first foreign guest at the White House should be Seaga, symbol of free enterprise in the Caribbean after ousting Socialist Michael Manley.

Haig next submitted to the president the State Department bureaucracy's cautionary recommendations not to encourage Seaga when he asks for help. But Allen recommended that Reagan go as far as possible in offering hope to Jamaica. The president took Allen's advice and rejected Haig's.

Investigating GOP Labor
As chairman of the Senate labor committee, Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah did not ask for White House clearance when he sent investigators to seek out corruption in unions that

Demand Is There - Houses Not

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Perhaps the greatest challenge to the construction industry today is to create a house that people can afford. The demand is out there, proven by baskets of statistics. The houses are not.

With the new single-family house costing about $70,000, and with median household income close to $20,000, it is clear that a big gap exists between supply and demand, a gap of maybe $15,000 or so.

What is needed, based on the old rule of thumb, is a new house costing about $50,000, land included, but except in some sunbelt areas you have to look hard to find it. In most areas you won't find it at all.

What you will find is an enormous pent up demand waiting to be served, but finding no service at all. They are a huge group, the boom babies of the 1950s, and they desperately want houses. They don't need to be "sold" on the idea. Produce the house and they'll line up for it.

Well, that is, if they can get the financing, which in turn is the greatest challenge to the home mortgage industry today. But assuming the financing problem will be resolved — and it is being worked on — the builder who produces the affordable home will find more than 40 million people reaching age 30 — homebuying age — during the 1980s.

Who will produce it? Perhaps nobody, but some realistic attempts are being made. It begins with a nod to the inevitable: The size of houses is shrinking, according to the National Association of Home Builders.

One Home Builder study, for example, showed that the average living space in new homes shrank to 1,667 square feet in the first quarter of 1980 from 1,704 square feet in the third quarter of 1979.

The extra bath, the fourth bedroom, and the family room are being dropped by some builders. Unfinished attics are more common. And buyers are more often invited to finish off decks, patios and landscaping.

Mobile homes, which usually are stationary homes built in factories, are being dressed up with conventional siding and put on foundations, and they are winning approval in many towns. They could be the answer.

First prize for trying, however, appears to belong to a joint project of Rural America, a non-profit organization, and the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which built a three-bedroom home in Metcalfe, Miss. for $16,800, land included.

Admittedly, sweat equity played a big role in the Metcalfe house. "If a contractor built the same design," said a spokesman for Rural America, "we estimate the home would cost $22,000, excluding land." Even so, such a house would meet most affordability standards.

Among the problems confronting the inexpensive house are high land prices, code-making bodies and local zoning authorities who view departures from convention as endangering values of existing homes.

Whatever, Rural America and HUD are planning 50 demonstration homes in different parts of the country by this fall.

One of the highlights of the recent Las Vegas convention of the National Association of Home Builders was a tour of an "Approach 80" subdivision featuring low cost land development and construction.

The 38-unit subdivision, a joint project of the Home Builders and HUD, is aimed at demonstrating that building and subdivision standards can be relaxed to provide high quality, low cost, single family housing.

The five-acre development includes zero-lot line homes (homes with one combined side yard rather than two small, less usable ones on either side), street right-of-way widths limited to 36 feet rather than 51 feet, 4-foot sidewalks on one side of the street rather than 5-foot sidewalks on both sides, and 6-inch sewer lines instead of 8 inches.

Beginnings, anyway. And if lenders can work out the financing, then maybe an entire generation of young Americans won't, after all, be denied the opportunity to buy a house.

Delays Mark Uniform Sentencing Law For State

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Backers of North Carolina's uniform criminal sentencing law have agreed to a second postponement of its implementation. But even that agreement ran into delaying tactics in the state Senate Monday night.

The Senate voted overwhelmingly, 44-1, tentatively to approve a bill backed by Gov. Jim Hunt's administration that would make minor changes in the sentencing procedure to give judges more discretion. More importantly, the legislation would postpone the effective date for four more months, until July 1.

The action came in the Legislature's customarily brief Monday night session. Little substantive action was taken in either chamber, although a joint committee named to study the Department of Transportation scheduled its first public meeting for today.

Also, legislation rewriting the state's regulations for nurses — a move its sponsor said would give nurses more control over their profession — was filed.

If enacted, the sentencing act delay would be its second major postponement since the act itself was approved by the 1979 General Assembly. It was originally to take effect last year, but the 1980 General Assembly voted to delay the measure's effect until this March following loud protests from lawyers and judges.

But final Senate approval on the latest change was held up until at least Wednesday. Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Roanoke Rapids, voted for the bill on its second reading but won Senate agreement when he urged that the crucial, third-reading vote be delayed two days.

The act has been strongly pushed by Gov. Jim Hunt, who made it the centerpiece of his anti-crime initiatives. But the Hunt administration reluctantly accepted the latest postponement of four months when still more complaints were heard in a Senate committee.

"If you loved the fair-sentencing bill when we passed it, you'll like this because, by jove, this improves it," said Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Goldsboro, primary sponsor of the legislation.

The act establishes sentences for each category of crime, and judges would be presumed to impose that sentence in most cases — unless they found unusual circumstances.

In addition to making the law more flexible for judges, the amendments also delete an automatic right to appeal for persons receiving sentences stiffer than the presumed one and restores a statute authorizing doubled penalties for multiple offenders.

Sen. Walter Cockerham, R-Greensboro, cast the only dissenting vote.

In other legislative action: Nurses

The General Assembly's halls were filled with nurses Monday night. They were attending the session to lobby on behalf of a bill filed for introduction today, which would rewrite state law regulating nurses.

Rep. Patricia Hunt, D-Chapel Hill, the sponsor, said the legislation removes doctors from the state board regulating nurses. "It gives them more authority over their own profession," she said.

ERA Fight

A local bill that would incorporate the Caldwell County town of Gamewell was back before the House Monday night after becoming a political football between opponents and supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment last week.

Sponsored by an ERA opponent, Sen. Don Kincaid, R-Lenoir, the bill was defeated Friday in a parliamentary move by ERA supporters who wanted to make a point to the senator on that issue. But it was revived by the House, and backers decided Monday night to hold the bill until later, allowing tempers to cool.

Kincaid was still angry, however, Monday night. "It shows their immaturity," he said of the House ERA supporters.

New Bills

Among the new bills filed was a measure sponsored by Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Kings Mountain, that would transfer the $60,000-a-year program for transportation of autistic children from the Department of Human Resources to the Department of Public Education.

Elders Sponsor Rock-A-Thon

By LEIGH COAKLEY
Reflector Staff Writer

"We are here — and yes, we are old — but we still have some good left in us," said Terry Fuller, activity director and head of volunteers of the Greenville Villa Nursing Home. After two and half months of preparation, residents of Greenville Villa hosted a "Rock-A-Thon" for the Heart Fund Saturday.

Fuller said that the elderly residents of the home, though many of them weary, were "rockin' in their rocking chairs and rolling in their wheelchairs" for a cause that they deeply believe in. Fifty of the 152 residents participated in the program which ran from 9-11 a.m. and 2-4 p.m.

Entertainment for the fund-raising event was provided by country and western singer, Billy Nixon, a barbershop quartet comprised of local physicians, and the Church of God Quartet.

"We feel this was an excellent showing and a form of expression from these people," said Fuller. "Many of the residents here are not able to leave their beds. She said those that were able were eager to participate."

And she said it wasn't only the residents that took part in the event. "Nurses, social workers, dieticians, and the housekeeping staff alike helped to make this a meaningful project for everyone," she said.

This was the Villa's second year participating in activities for the Heart Fund, and they raised $619 Saturday, only $81 short of their $700 goal. "We were in the middle of building renovations, and we still pulled it off," Fuller smiled.

In addition to fund-raising events, Greenville Villa offers a wide variety of activities for residents including bingo, sing-a-longs, art classes, and church groups. Plans are now underway for classes in reading and writing.

Fuller stressed the importance of community support in activities sponsored by nursing home residents and support of the residents in and of themselves. "People often forget we are here," she said.

She added that while the public is often quick to criticize the home, most have no idea what they are criticizing. "The public is welcome here and needs to actually see what goes on. Just like you and me, these people need to have a reason to get out of bed in the morning."

Social Security Head Calls For Action On Financing Of Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless Congress acts quickly to shore up the program's finances, "some time next year Social Security checks will just not go out," the head of the National Commission on Social Security said today.

Milton Gwirtzman, commission chairman, urged a House Ways and Means subcommittee to adopt the commission's formula for bolstering Social Security. That would shift half the costs of Medicare to general revenues and allow the system to borrow from the Treasury temporarily.

He told the subcommittee that allowing the system "to run dry, even for a month, would produce panic as well as hardship" in many American homes.

Congress created the commission, a nine-member bipartisan panel, in 1977 to conduct a two-year study of the system.

It recently made public most of its recommendations, which include: raising the age for full benefits from 65 to 68 after the turn of the century; holding down cost-of-living increases when prices rise faster than workers' wages; and putting a 2.5 percent surcharge on personal income taxes to help pay for Medicare.

The House panel's Social Security subcommittee was holding the first of three days of hearings on the problems facing the $138 billion program which provides monthly checks for nearly 36 million retired or disabled American workers and their dependents.

Social Security operates on a pay-as-you-go basis, with payroll taxes going into three trust funds that are drawn upon each month to provide those benefits.

Gwirtzman, a Boston lawyer, said the reserves in the main trust fund for Old Age and Survivors Insurance had dwindled to only 10 percent at the start of this year and will drop to 1 percent by the end of 1982.

"At some time during (1982) it would be well below the level required to meet the benefit payments becoming due shortly after the end of (each) month," said Gwirtzman, noting that the system needs a balance of at least 10 percent to get the monthly checks out on time.

"When we talk about Social Security having 'cash flow' problems, it is a gentle way of saying that if nothing more is done, some time next year Social Security checks will just not go out," he said.

The commission's blueprint for Social Security includes:

— Allowing the Old Age fund to borrow from Disability and Hospital Insurance trust funds.

— Temporary borrowing authority from the treasury until 1985.

— Freezing the maximum taxable earnings in 1984 at a level estimated then at $39,000. It is now $29,700 and rises automatically with inflation. Unless altered, the maximum would hit an estimated $42,300 in 1985 and $45,600, the commission estimates.

— Limiting the now automatic cost-of-living increases in two-year periods when the Consumer Price Index rises faster than workers' wages. Last year, for instance, Social Security beneficiaries got a 14.3 percent benefit hike, but the average American worker's paycheck went up only 8.4 percent.

backed President Reagan in the last campaign.

"I have no idea," said the independent-minded Hatch when asked what the White House attitude was toward targeting the nation's most pro-Reagan union; the Teamsters, for a corruption probe. Others on Hatch's list are the International Longshoremen's Association (also pro-Reagan), the laborers union and the hotel and restaurant employees union.

Hatch earlier showed he is no agent for the administration when presidential counselor Edwin Meese III telephoned him to complain about the labor committee's delay in confirming Raymond Donovan as secretary of labor. Hatch responded with a lecture on constitutional separation of powers, making it clear that further calls from Meese would postpone consideration of Donovan indefinitely.

If Congress cannot bring itself to trim so tiny a tidbit of fat as the Travel Service, what will it trim? No plausible reason comes to mind to explain why a $140 billion industry could not raise its own $8 million to promote tourism through the private sector. Why must these fatcats go to the taxpayers' till? Somebody at the White House was saying the other day that Mr. Reagan might wind up by vetoing more bills than any president in history. Senator Pressler's S. 304 could provide him a fine place to start.

Class Goes Whole Hog

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — With a mask over its consecrated features and a stomach full of spices, King Hogatotan rests in a hallowed tomb — Pharaoh of a class of gifted junior high school students who mummified the pig fetus as part of a class study.

The project began last month when the Arrowhead Junior High School pupils and their teacher began researching Egyptian history, focusing on mummification and mystical powers supposedly inherent in pyramids.

Each student assumed the name, and ostensibly the powers, of an Egyptian god and then began a laborious project that culminated last week with the entombment of Hogatotan, the "unborn king."

The students constructed an 18-inch high pyramid, meticulously slanting the sides at 43-degree angles to invite mystical powers and to induce mummification of the pyramid's contents, as Egyptian mythology suggested. A sarcophagus, or coffin, was prepared. Its exterior was ornamental, its interior serenely posh.

On Friday, a team of "surgeons" wielded instruments on Hogatotan, removing organs and replacing the eyes with marbles. The class couldn't afford jewels, the traditional eyes for Egyptian mummies.

Do the students expect to find a perfectly preserved mummy, blessed with the knowledge of the eternal, when they open the pyramid?

"We'll probably find a smelly mess," said Bryan Potter, 12.

Tops Class In Fun Field

LONDON (AP) — Prince Andrew, second son of Queen Elizabeth II, was at the top of his class at having fun, but not so sharp academically, according to an interview with a classmate at the prince's old secondary school, Gordonstoun.

Lucilla Houseman was quoted in the British weekly magazine Woman today as saying that the prince, who will be 21 on Thursday, "loved having a good time," but took his girlfriends seriously.

The prince, who decided against going to a university and joined the Royal Navy after graduating from Gordonstoun, is now a trainee helicopter pilot.

"He had many girlfriends at Gordonstoun, as well as many friends who happened to be girls," Ms. Houseman, now a speech student, was quoted as saying.

"But his real girlfriends, for some reason, always seemed to be American or Canadian," she added.

The prince graduated from Gordonstoun, in northeast Scotland, in the summer of 1979.

On the academic record of Andrew, second in line to the British throne behind his brother, Prince Charles, Ms. Houseman said: "He started at school in the top stream, but gradually went down ... Except French, he was very good at French."

Concerned Over Diet In Iran

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Because he was weakened by a poor diet in Iran, doctors have ordered a cast for a hairline leg fracture that former hostage Marine Sgt. Billy Gallegos received while skiing, his father says.

Gallegos broke his leg Friday while skiing at the Monarch area in southwestern Colorado, his father, Dick Gallegos, said Monday.

The younger Gallegos was released from Tehran last month with 51 other American hostages.

Gallegos has been ordered to report to duty at the Marine Corps Security Battalion at Quantico, Va., by Feb. 27. A Marine spokesman at the Pentagon said once Gallegos reports, he may be given an early discharge or be reassigned to another embassy.

Since his Jan. 20 release from Iran, Gallegos has been on special leave. He has been spending much of his time resting at his parents' home in Pueblo.

Surprised By Gunman In Home

LINCOLN, N.C. (AP) — Lincoln authorities are investigating an armed robbery of former state Rep. John Gamble, a Lincoln physician, and his wife Sunday night by a gunman who surprised them at their home.

Gamble said the gunman forced him to open a safe and then locked the couple in a closet. Another physician and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Richbourg, also were locked in the closet after they stopped by the house on a visit.

Gamble said the gunman made several telephone calls, apparently to an accomplice who later helped take several items of silver, gold and crystal from the home.

J.C. Penney To Close Stores

MILWAUKEE (AP) — J.C. Penney Co. has decided to close its 35 Treasure Island and Treasury stores across the nation, company officials say.

Charles R. Steinforth, J.C. Penney regional vice president in Chicago, confirmed Monday that the stores would close.

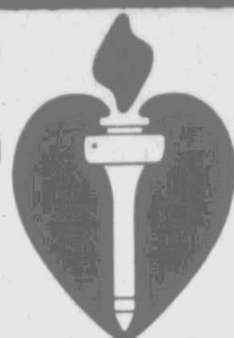

Both Steinforth and Robert Blangford, regional personnel manager at Chicago, said they had not been given any reason for the closings.

Steinforth also said he could not confirm reports that the closing would be effective in May or June.

"I haven't been told what the time line is," he said.

Managers of Wisconsin's six Treasure Island discount department stores were reported to have been informed of the decision Monday at a meeting, but they declined comment.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned higher today, paced by advances among oil, precious metal and office equipment issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell 20.73 points last week, rose 7.00 to 938.57 at noon.

But gains held only a slight edge over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

"The real market — the advances and declines — are split right down the middle," said Larry Wachtel of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields.

Trading has been sluggish in recent weeks, reflecting investor concern about President Reagan's plans for spending and tax cuts, which are to be submitted to Congress on Wednesday.

Wachtel said that while much of Reagan's program has already been disclosed, the financial community will be closely looking for indications of how much of it will get through Congress.

Concern has also heightened over the continued high level of interest rates. Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank, said this morning that its prime lending rate will remain unchanged at 19.5 percent.

The NYSE's composite index of all of its listed common stocks rose 0.41 at 73.21. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 1.82 to 337.49.

Big Board volume reached 16.85 million shares over the first two hours, compared with 15.42 million in the same period Friday.

Northern Telecom topped the most active list, down 1/4 at 28, in trading that included a block of 204,000 shares changing hands at 28.

Oil stocks registered broad gains, including Mobil, up 1/4 at 71; Texaco, up 3/4 at 40 1/2; Exxon, up 1/4 at 72 1/2; and Standard Oil of California, up 1/4 at 93 1/4.

Other active issues included General Telephone & Electric, up 3/4 at 26 1/2; International Business Machines, which today introduced a new plain-paper copier, up 1/2 at 62 1/2; Ralston Purina, down 1/4 at 11; Sony, up 1/4 at 15 1/2; Boeing, up 1/4 at 35 1/2; and Xerox, up 1/4 at 57.

Gold prices rose at home and abroad today, and precious metals issues also gained, including ASA, up 3/4 at 51 1/2; Dome Mines, up 1/2 to 79 1/2; Hecla Mining, up 1/4 to 33 1/2; and Homestake Mining, up 1 to 52 1/4.

of the vocational enrollment data for the 1980-81 school year, the district still has "identifiable/isolated classes based on race or sex." The letter recommended that "continued efforts be made to inform all students about the availability of opportunities in nontraditional occupations."
— The board voted to extend the CAT (California Achievement Test) to grades four and five. The test is presently given to grades three, six and nine, and teachers and parents indicated it would be helpful to have data in these additional grades, particularly with the possibility of a revised retention program.
— Academic credit was also approved for wind/percussion participants in the orchestra. One-half credit may be earned by participation, beginning with the 1980-81 school year.
— The board voted to accept Planter's Bank's as their depository for the next two years, based on Planter's bid. Bids from several banks were considered.

Arraignment In Hotel Fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A Las Vegas Hilton busboy was going to court today for arraignment on charges of murder and arson stemming from a fire at the hotel that left eight people dead and 192 others injured last week. Police alleged Philip Bruce Cline acknowledged starting the fire, contending it was an accident that occurred when he held a cigarette in an eighth-floor elevator lobby. The Feb. 10 blaze quickly spread up 21 stories to the top of the 30-story hotel, the largest in the United States. Cline, 23, allegedly said the incident began as he was engaged in a sex act with another man he knew only as "Joe."

However, police and fire officials have said they don't believe the story, and an attorney who talked to Cline said the suspect denied making such a statement. Meanwhile, the hotel was being readied for reopening, tentatively set for Thursday. About 1,000 workers were busy Monday cleaning, scrubbing and repainting the fire-scarred hotel. Hotel spokesman Bruce Banke said he didn't know how many rooms would be available. He said the hotel would remain closed to everyone except employees involved in the cleanup until the resort's official reopening. "We're working 24 hours a day," he said. "I'd say there's about 1,000 people working. We're giving the place a complete overhaul, even the public areas. The whole place is being cleaned, touched up, scrubbed."

The fire, which caused an estimated $10 million in damage, was concentrated in the east tower but smoke and water damage was reported in other areas. SERVICES PLANNED
SIMPSON — Services for the remainder of the week at Phillips Baptist Church here include: tonight at seven o'clock, choir rehearsal; Wednesday at 7 p.m., mid-week fellowship; Thursday, 7 p.m., board meeting; Friday, 7 p.m., church conference; Sunday, 11 a.m., morning worship combined with choir singing; at 7:30 p.m. the Rev. The Mountain Air Cargo Division bypasses "lengthy Charlotte Connections now serviced by trucks and other air carriers," said Ralph Quinlan, president and chairman of the board of Sunbird Airlines. He said flights will depart RDU Airport at 9:30 a.m. Monday through Friday, with a return flight each day leaving Atlanta at 2 a.m. to arrive back at the regional airport at 4:30 a.m.

Silent Over Auto Rebate

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. will offer rebates of $500 to $700 to buyers of X-car compacts and mid-sized specialty cars, according to published reports today. All GM divisions except Cadillac are expected to be involved in the program, which will begin Wednesday and run until March 20, the Detroit Free Press reported today. The Wall Street Journal also reported the rebate plan. GM has declined comment on the The ate report.

Buyers of X-cars — Chevrolet Citation, Pontiac Phoenix, Oldsmobile Omega and Buick Skylark — will get a $500 rebate, Jim Causley, owner of Jim Causley Pontiac-GMC in Mount Clemens, Mich., said Monday. The price of a Citation starts at $6,270.

Rebates of $700 are scheduled on the Pontiac Firebird and Grand Prix, Chevrolet Camaro and Monte Carlo, Buick Regal and Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme, Causley said. Base price for the Grand Prix is $7,424.

In the first 10 days of February, GM sales plunged 19 percent.

Late Monday, American Motors Corp. said it would extend its 10 percent price rollback to March 15. The program applying to all AMC autos was to have ended Friday. Chrysler Corp.'s 7 percent rebate program is scheduled to end Feb. 28. There has been no word on whether Chrysler will extend it.

Psychic Talks At Rose High

Internationally known psychic Robert Petro appeared at Rose High School here yesterday. Petro, who enjoyed an unusually large response after being a guest on the Allen Handelman show on WITN-FM radio, Washington, N.C., recently visited in this area at Handelman's request. He also appeared at ECU and is speaking at the Durham Civic Center tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Petro, who is president of Awareness Inc., a psychic research firm in Brookfield, Conn., lectures throughout the country and often is retained by law enforcement firms to help solve cases. One of his most famous successes is his assistance of the Connecticut State Police in proving that Peter Reilly was not the murderer of his mother in the well known case that was the basis for the book and movie titled, "A Death in Canaan."

Seahawks Nip Pirates At Horn, 57-55

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's Pirates fought back all night long against UNC-Wilmington last night, and just when it seemed it was about to pay off, Edward Timmons sent the Seahawks home in a delirium.

Timmons earned an 18-foot jumper with just one second showing on the clock to lift the Seahawks of Wilmington to a 7-55 victory over the Pirates, avenging an earlier loss to East Carolina, back in January, 73-64.

East Carolina, down by as much as eight points in each of the halves, fought back to gain a 24-22 halftime lead, and it looked like they were about to pull off the same feat at the end of the second.

Michael Gibson tied the game with a shot from underneath with 1:52 left in the game, 53-53, but Danny Davis drove in for a basket with 32 seconds showing to put the Seahawks up by two once more.

Clark McLaurin then hit a baseline jumper with 15 seconds showing, and the Pirates called time out with 13 left before

Wilmington could get the ball in play.

The Pirates pressed, but Wilmington still got it across with about eight seconds showing. Timmons working on the right side, looked up at the clock and saw the final seconds ticking off and had no choice but to put up a desperation shot. But it swished through without hitting anything but the nets.

"It was a disappointing loss," ECU's Dave Odom said later. "It was a great win for Wilmington — a hard-fought game. Wilmington deserved to win, but I can't say that we deserved to lose."

The Pirates, after leading at the half, saw Wilmington come back out and hit its first seven shots. That allowed the Seahawks to finally take the lead against, 52-50, on a Davis layup with 17:10 left. They never trailed again.

"The key to the game was that start at the second half," Odom said. "We lost our defensive intensity and it took us a while to get it straightened out."

"The one flaw in our man-to-man defense was that we let (Shawn)

Williams and (Randy) McMillan get inside positions," Odom continued. Williams, a Washington High School product, poured through 24 points to lead the Seahawks.

"The irony of the thing, and we talked about it before the game, was that Williams went to Wilmington instead of here. He seems to want to needle it in that he wasn't offered here. He was really the guy that kept them in and ahead."

Odom felt that the Pirate shooting hurt — the Bucs made only 41.8 per cent of their shots, as compared to 56.1 per cent for the Seahawks, who fired through 68 per cent in the second half. "We didn't get enough fast breaks, and their tight sagging zone hurt us inside."

Wilmington jumped off to an early lead, using the foul line to great advantage. Of 11 fouls committed by East Carolina in the first half, six of them, including five of the first seven, were shooting fouls. Wilmington made only six field goals in the first half, but hit on ten of 16 free throws. It helped them build up a 10-2 lead over the first four and a half minutes.

But East Carolina seemed to come alive after that, scoring seven straight points to cut it back to 10-9. Wilmington pulled away again, however, and held a seven-point lead a couple of times late in the half, the last time at 22-15 with 5:14 left.

But the Seahawks didn't score again in the half, while East Carolina dumped in nine straight. Gibson helped things along with a three-point play, and Morris Hargrove followed his own missed shot in to tie it at 22-22 with 1:35 left. Then, with 25 seconds to go, Charles Watkins drove for the go-ahead shot.

It was the first time in over 93 minutes of play that the Pirates had led in a game.

But the lead didn't last long. Wilmington tied it up 15 seconds into the second half, and regained the lead a few seconds later on a Williams basket. East Carolina regained the lead, 30-28, but Wilmington then ran off ten straight points, including six by Williams, to take a 38-30 lead.

East Carolina cut it back to two, only to see the Seahawks pull away by six again. The Pirates again came back within two, then one, 51-50, before the final few minutes that saw the Hawks pull it out.

In addition to Williams' 24, Davis hit 12 and Timmons had 10. East Carolina was led by Gibson with 13, while McLaurin had 12 and Watkins had 10.

The loss dropped the Pirates to 11-13, and insured that no better than a .500 finish awaits them — and they must win the final two games, both on the road, to do that. "We can still finish .500 and we can win both games," Odom said.

"I know that our home season has been disappointing, but I really want to express my heartfelt thanks to those fans who have stuck with us. We really appreciate it."

East Carolina plays its next-to-last game on Saturday, traveling to Richmond to face the Spiders in a 7:30 p.m. game at Robbins Center.

'Rats' Chase Second Win Over Wolfpack

"Be Rats!"

That's the way East Carolina's Lady Pirates break each of their huddles. For them, it means that they, smaller than most of the other beasts that rule the basketball court, have to be that much scrappier if they want to come out on top.

"Rats," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said, "feel they are superior animals and that they are going to win despite being smaller. That's the attitude we have to have since so many times we're smaller."

The attitude has paid off. The Lady Pirates are 20-5, having posted a 20-win season for the second straight year. They've beaten nationally ranked Virginia and N.C. State, and carried Southern California to the wire. Only an upset at the hands of North Carolina knocked them out of the national rankings, where they had climbed to 18th over a two-week period.

Now, they have a chance to do it again — knock off a nationally ranked team, and re-enter the rankings themselves.

That comes Wednesday as the Lady Pirates visit Raleigh to face N.C. State in a 7:30 p.m. game at Reynolds Coliseum.

And Andruzzi isn't expecting the Lady Wolfpack to lay down and die for the Pirates.

"They're playing better than ever right now," Andruzzi said of the foe. "They have Ginger Rouse back in the lineup now, and they've won some really big, big games since they played us. I think they'll be very, very for us."

"It's a big game. They won't play a good game against us, they'll play a great game. They started preparing for us on January 29 at 10 o'clock."

Just prior to that time, East Carolina had gained a 78-77 overtime victory over the Lady Wolfpack.

State comes into the game following its second place finish in the ACC women's tournament, but Andruzzi feels that it won't mean a thing. "They could have lost the whole thing or won the whole thing and it wouldn't have mattered. They'd still be up for this one. They want revenge — big time revenge," Andruzzi said.

To counter this, Andruzzi said, the Lady Pirates will have to "play hard, run our game, hustle and fulfill assignments. We've got to be rats all over the place."

While the game certainly is a big one, it's not the biggest," Andruzzi said. "We still have the tournament ahead, and that's where it counts. If we lose out there, we're through."

Andruzzi added that defense will be the key to the game.

"And we haven't been playing that good a defense lately. We're got to stop (Trudi) Lacey, no question about it."

The Wolfpack is expected to start Angie Armstrong (12.3 points a game), and Connie Rogers (11.5) at guards. Lacey (20.4 — 11.6 rebounds) and Rouse (11.2) will be at the forwards, with 6-7 Ronda Falkena (4.4) at center.

East Carolina is led Kathy Riley at 18.7 points a game, followed by Mary Denker at 14.7, Sam Jones at 14.4 and Marcia Givren at 10.8.

The game is the next to last for the Lady Pirates during regular season play. They close out the year here on Monday, hosting Wake Forest.

Pickens Just Might Not Be Such Easy Pickin's From Now On

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Most seasons, Pickens (W.Va.) High School proves easy pickin's for its basketball opponents.

After all, Pickens hadn't won a game against another varsity opponent in five years going into the current season. And until the next to last game of the 1979-80 season, Pickens had lost 68 straight games — believed to be an all-time West Virginia record for basketball.

But the pickings aren't slim any more in Pickens, a tiny town of 300 residents in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountain chain — the only town for miles in an otherwise isolated corner of south central West Virginia.

Last week, for the first time since 1976, the Panthers defeated another high school team. Counting a pair of victories over a junior varsity team and a correctional center team, the Panthers have a record of 3-9.

It's enough to bring a smile to the face of Jim Morgan, a coach who has managed to keep his sanity and his sense of humor despite season after season of losing.

"Our kids were so enthusiastic after we beat Tygarts Valley, they almost ran onto the floor before the game was over," Morgan said. "It was like another Christmas for us."

The victory over Tygarts Valley was the first for the Panthers over another varsity team in a period covering 50 to 60 games — Morgan isn't certain for sure how many consecutive games his team lost. But he does know that a win over a J.V. team late last season ended a streak of 68 straight losses to all opponents.

"Up until a few years ago, we were always pretty respectable," Morgan says. "We played about .500 ball. But then we hit a slack point. We've had no height, no speed and no shooting."

And few players. The smallest high school in West Virginia, Pickens has just 22 boys in the upper three grades. From these 22 boys, Pickens must mold a team that plays nine of its 16 regular season games against other varsity teams.

There are other problems, too. Like snow. In an average winter, Pickens will receive 168 inches of snow — more than any other community in the state.

"We get used to the snow," Morgan said. "A lot of times, we have to provide transportation for the kids after practice when the weather is bad. One time, I had 11 players...11 of them...in my compact car, trying to get them home in a snowstorm."

"A couple of years ago when we had a real bad winter, we had to play almost all of our games in a three-week period, so many had been postponed. We were playing four, five times a week. Our players got totally exhausted."

Morgan isn't a coach by trade. He said he's a social studies teacher who was asked to be the coach by the Randolph County Board of Education.

Pickens is so small that all of the students go to the same school — kindergarten through high school senior. Until last year, when track was added, basketball was the only sport at the school.

Not only do the Panthers lose regularly, they often have to travel a long way to do it.

"Some of our road games, we have to travel five hours one way. We can't even get a 20-game schedule. We're playing only 16 games this season," Morgan said.

He said that while the constant losing "gets the kids down a little bit," he tries to teach them that "satisfaction can come in a lot of different ways."

Who Just Won Its League Title And An NCAA Berth—Louisville

By The Associated Press

On Jan. 3, Louisville had won just two of its nine games, and the Cardinals were off to the worst start ever for a defending national collegiate basketball champion.

Monday night, however, the Cardinals avenged their only loss in their past 14 games, clinched the regular-season title of the Metro Conference and took a giant leap toward earning a return berth in the 1981 NCAA playoffs despite a 15-8 record.

Poncho Wright came off the bench and scored 22 points to help the Cardinals to a 95-65 victory over the Memphis State Tigers, who beat Louisville 60-55 in overtime on Jan. 22. Since then, however, Coach Denny Crum's Cards have won nine in a row.

The NCAA does not guarantee a tournament berth to the regular-season champion of any conference that has a postseason playoff, but the Cardinals' 9-1 conference mark will be hard to overlook.

"This was a game everyone, including the fans, was ready for," Crum said. "The guys really wanted to get retribution for their poor play down at Memphis."

Despite falling behind early in the game, Crum said he never doubted his team would win. "There was never a question about the outcome," Crum said. "As long as we were playing as hard as we did, I never doubted we would win. It was just a matter of when they (the Tigers) would run out of gas."

Memphis State led 14-5 after the first five minutes, but Louisville then outscored the Tigers 17-4 to take the lead for good. Jerry Eaves added 17 pints for the Cardinals, and Johnnie Gipson topped Memphis State with 17.

In games involving ranked teams, a pair of newcomers to the poll — 14th-ranked Wichita State and No. 19 Lamar — were upset; top-ranked Virginia clinched at least a tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference regular season title with an 83-42 victory over Georgia Tech, and 11th-ranked Notre Dame struggled to a 57-55 victory over Fairfield.

Wichita State, which made its first appearance this season in The Associated Press poll on Feb. 2, lost to Missouri Valley Conference rival Tulsa 74-72 in double overtime. Lamar, which debuted in the poll that was released earlier in the evening, lost a Southland Conference game to Louisiana Tech, 77-71.

David Brown scored six points in the second overtime, including four free throws in the last 25 seconds, to boost Tulsa over Wichita State for the second time this season.

Regulation ended in a 58-58 tie, and the first overtime was tied 62-62 at the buzzer. Wichita State led 71-70 when Brown started his string of free throws. Mark Anderson led Tulsa with 17 points, and Antoine Carr had 25 for Wichita State.

Dave Simmons scored 20 points, and Louisiana Tech rode an early 15-point lead to victory over Lamar, which dropped to 20-3 and 6-1 in the conference. Louisiana Tech led 19-4 after nine minutes were gone in the game. Lamar cut the lead to five points midway in the second half before Tech ran off to a 58-44 lead with 7:27 to play.

Mike Olliver paced Lamar with 29 points.

"We are disappointed, and it is a disappointment for our conference," Lamar Coach Pat Foster said. "I do think the ranking added a little pressure, but I don't mean to take anything away from Louisiana Tech."

Virginia extended the nation's longest major college winning streak to 28 games with its rout of Georgia Tech. Jeff Lamp scored 19 points, 7-foot-4 center Ralph Sampson added 15 and the two keyed a 36-5 burst in the first half that got the Cavaliers off to a running start.

The victory gave Virginia a 12-0 ACC record, 23-0 overall.

Virginia scored 14 points in a row to lead 18-6 before going on the 36-5 run that gave the Cavaliers a 48-15 halftime lead.

Notre Dame fought back from several deficits, the last at 47-42 with 10:25 to go, and won the game in the final 15 seconds from the foul line.

Tripucka finished with 15 points, and John Paxson topped the Irish with 17.

Farmville Stuns Champ Vikes, 43-42

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD — Eighth-seeded Farmville Central came to play. Top-seeded D.H. Conley did not. The result was a stunning upset.

Only last Friday night the Vikings clinched the Eastern Carolina Conference championship and the #1 seed in this week's tournament by defeating the Jaguars, 60-40.

Last night the names remained the same, but the story did not. The Jaguars used a patient passing attack that continually found holes in the Viking defense and a strong rebounding effort to take home a shocking 43-42 win over D.H. Conley in the first round of the ECC tournament.

In other opening-round games, Southern Nash's girls defeated D.H. Conley, 50-44, and unbeaten and top-seeded Southwest Edgecombe whipped Farmville Central, 58-35.

"Farmville came to play tonight. We didn't," D.H. Conley coach Shelley Marsh said. "I could tell we were flat when we weren't moving on defense. We didn't play with any emotion."

"Obviously, we rejoiced too long after Friday's win. We didn't get in a Saturday practice and I didn't have a chance to get 'em together and remind them it's tough to beat a team three times in one year."

Farmville Central made sure the Vikings got the message Monday night, but not before the Jaguars had to sweat for a win that puts the 5-18 Jaguars one game away from making their sixth straight appearance in the district playoffs.

Trailing 40-34 with 2:30 left, Sammy Tucker, who scored 20 points and single-handedly kept the Vikings in the game, stole two consecutive passes and turned both into layups to cut the deficit to 40-38 with 1:44 left.

A jump ball following a five second call on Farmville gave the ball back to the Vikings and Tucker promptly sank a 17-foot jumper to tie the game and send Farmville coach Mike Terrell yelling for a timeout.

Following that brief hiatus, Farmville's Andrew Edwards bounced a perfect pass to an open Barry Gay along the left baseline. Gay banked the layup and the Jaguars were up, 42-40, with 27 seconds left.

Conley's Dixon Page hit a 12-foot jumper from the right with 15 seconds left to tie the game for the 12th time but 11 seconds later the Jaguars again worked the ball in to Gay. This time, however, he was fouled by 6-7 center Sammy Tyson.

After two D.H. Conley time outs, Gay stepped to the line and calmly sank the front end of the one-and-one, giving the Jaguars a 43-42 lead with four seconds left. Gay missed the second and after one pass upcourt the Vikings called their final timeout.

Tucker, however, missed a shot from beyond halfcourt and as the horn sounded the Farmville fans raced onto the floor, as if the Jaguars had captured the ECC championship, a title they've owned the last two seasons.

"We had two options on that (last) play," Farmville coach Mike Terrell said afterward. "We could either hit Barry or hit (Melvin) Sutton on the wing."

As for the free throws, Terrell said, "I'd been happy if he made both, but as it turned out, it made them call another time out and it worked out well for us. It would have been a good coaching move had I thought of that, but I didn't."

Perhaps not, but Terrell had his Jaguars prepared. From the start it was apparent the Vikings were not the same team that traveled to Farmville Friday night. Neither were the Jaguars.

Farmville led by one at the end of the first period, 8-7, and ran its lead to 18-10 with 5:24 left in the second period on a jumper by Tony Barnes, who was starting in his first varsity game. Barnes, who replaced point guard Stuart Gordon, out with mononucleosis, scored nine points, all on long outside jumpers.

The Jaguars, however, scored only two more points the rest of the half, which allowed Conley to take a 22-20 lead into intermission. The Jaguars were still down by two at the end of the third period, 34-32, but regained the lead early in the final quarter.

Farmville's Sutton, who finished with 14 points, hit two jumpers, Gay added a short jumper and Barnes hit from the foul line, and suddenly the Jaguars were up, 40-34, and on their way to erasing memories of last Friday's 20-point loss.

"The guys came ready to play tonight," Mike Terrell said. "We never let them get into a transition game. We made them play at our tempo and made them play our game."

Their game included outbounding and outshooting the taller Vikings. Led by Edwards' 12 rebounds and Ronald Dixon's 10, Farmville took a 41-32 advantage on the boards. The Jaguars also outshot the Vikings, 49% (18 of 37) to 39.6 (17 of 43).

Following last Friday's loss, Terrell had said it would take a near-perfect game for his Jaguars to win Monday night. He also said that the Vikings might possibly take Farmville lightly.

"We'd played just about as close (to perfect) with what we've got as we can," Terrell said. "I thought we outplayed them. I felt we controlled the game."

"It was hard to tell how the guys would react (after Friday's loss), but I felt like they might take us a little lightly. We came to play, though. We really want to get into the districts again."

Farmville will play the winner of tonight's Southern Nash-North Lenoir game Thursday at 9 p.m.

Conley, Farmville Girls Ousted From Tourney

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD — Southern Nash's girls apparently will be the Eastern Carolina Conference's fourth representative in the district playoffs. The Firebirds won that right with their hard-fought 50-44 win over D.H. Conley in an opening-round ECC tournament game.

The Firebirds and Valkyries had tied for fourth place during the regular season with 7-9 conference marks. Both had defeated the other by three points to force a coin flip to decide who would receive the fourth seed in the tournament.

Southern Nash won the flip but still had to defeat the Valkyries to assure itself of the fourth — and final — district playoff slot. The Firebirds did just that, despite playing much of the game with foul-plagued Dora Harrison, the ECC's leading scorer.

After Conley rallied to cut the halftime margin to 21-20, the Firebirds, sparked by Melissa Morgan, moved to a 34-28 lead at the end of the third period. Morgan had six of her team-high 13 points during the third quarter.

Meanwhile, Harrison, who picked up her third foul with 6:07 to go in the second period, was called for her fourth foul — an offensive foul — with one second left in the third quarter.

Despite Harrison's foul problems, the Firebirds surged to a 39-30 lead with 3:50 left. The Valkyries narrowed the gap to 41-36 with 1:55 left but the deficit remained at five until less than 30 seconds remained.

Jackie Hansley's jumper made it 46-44 but then came a play that left Conley coach Joy James jumping off the bench. With 11 seconds left, Conley's Irish Barnhill leaped to take a pass just past midcourt and before she ran over Cynthia Brown. Barnhill was whistled with a charge and moments later the game was over.

"I couldn't believe that last call," James said. "She was obviously undercut. If we had got that call and she made the free throws, we would have been down by only two and had a chance to foul."

James said the Valkyries would have tired to foul Brown, who hit just five of 12. On the night, the Firebirds hit 16 of 29 free throws (55%). Conley connected on only four of 10 from the foul line.

"Now I know playing an aggressive man-to-man like we were going to get more fouls called on us, but I couldn't believe we didn't get into one-and-one the whole second half," James said.

Southern Nash led after the first period, 9-4, and pushed its advantage to 18-10 with 4:44 left in the half before the Valkyries, who had been outplayed much of the first half, rallied.

A jumper and two free throws by Hansley sparked a surge that brought Conley within one (21-20) at the half. Conley led briefly in the early moments of the third period but fell behind by six at the end of the quarter and was never able to make up the difference.

"The girls really wanted it. They played hard," James said. "But on the offensive end of the court we just didn't take the ball to the basket and when we took outside shots we weren't hitting the boards like we should."

Conley ends the season under first-year coach James at 11-10. Southern Nash, now 11-12, will play unbeaten and top-seeded Southwest Edgecombe Wednesday night at 9 o'clock.

SW Edgecombe . . . 58
Farmville Central . . . 35

The small crowd that remained for this, the third game of the evening, may have gotten a glimpse at the next 3-A state champions. Farmville Central coach Hilda Worthington, who had to suffer through the 58-35 season-ending defeat, saw more than enough of the talented Cougars.

"They're good. They really are," Worthington said. "What makes them so good is that every one of them just about is a good all-around shooter. Most of us (in the league) may have one, or two good shooters, but all of their girls can shoot." And shoot the Cougars did. Southwest Edgecombe wasted little time in taking command, jumping out to a 20-5 lead at the end of the first quarter and pushing its advantage to 23 (37-14) at intermission.

For all purposes but the final scoring totals, the game was over then. It was 54-24 at the end of the third period before ending with the Cougars, up 58-35.

Southwest, now 23-0, was led by Delphine Mabry's 20 points and Bridget Jenkins' 12. Farmville, which ends the season at 7-14, was paced by Etta Gorham's 16 points.

"I hope they go all the way," Worthington said. "I hope they take the state title. They're year. They've got the talent and they've got the experience from last year. They should do it."

Southwest Edgecombe will play Southern Nash Wednesday at 9 p.m. Farmville ends the season at 7-14.

No Upset This Time For Tech

By The Associated Press

In the two years Georgia Tech has been playing basketball in the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Yellow Jackets have won once in 28 starts — 62-61 last season over Virginia when the Cavaliers were in a late-season slump.

"They play well whether they are ahead or behind, and that is the difference between this year's team and last year's," Georgia Tech Coach Dwayne Morrison observed Monday night after his team was mauled 83-42 by the Cavaliers, now the nation's top-ranked team.

Senior Jeff Lamp had 19 points and sophomore Ralph Sampson 15 as Virginia clinched a tie for the regular-season ACC title, built its record this year to 23-0 overall and 12-0 in the conference and ran its two-year win streak to 28, longest in the nation.

"A letup was the thing that concerned us before the ball game, but obviously we did not let up," Virginia Coach Terry Holland said of the Cavaliers' romp by the widest margin they've ever beaten a team in their 28 years in the ACC.

Georgia Tech, now 0-12 in the ACC, 4-20 overall and loser of its last 10 games, actually led 6-4 with 17:58 left in the first half before turning the ball over seven straight times without getting off a shot.

The Cavaliers scored on six of the misfires, ran off 14 straight points and led 18-6. Over a 12½-minute span, Virginia outscored the Yellow Jackets 36-5 for a 40-11 lead with 4:48 left in the half.

It was 48-15 at intermission, and Virginia scored the first five points of the second half. The lead ballooned to as much as 43 points several times in the last 20 minutes.

"The game was real sloppy the first 10 minutes, but we settled down after that and just played good basketball, and that was what we needed to do," Holland said.

But he still found fault with the Cavaliers, all 11 of whom scored in the rout.

"We still need to be sharper with the basketball," Holland said. "They played a soft 2-3 zone the whole game and we were not sharp with our movement."

Lamp was nine of 11 from the floor, hitting all five shots he took in the second half. Sampson grabbed 12 rebounds and sophomore Craig Robinson 11 as Virginia had a whopping 48-28 margin off the boards.

Junior guard Jeff Jones scored a season-high 12 points, 10 in the first half. Reserve Lewis Lattimore tied a career high with 10 points. Freshman guard Othell Wilson had eight assists to go with three steals and eight points.

Fred Hall led Georgia Tech with 10 points.

Cavalier senior Lee Raker was held out of the game.

"He had a bad back and hasn't practiced much lately. The kind of kid he is, I'm sure he would have played if we had asked him, but he could hardly walk after the Clemson game so we kept him out," Holland said.

All other ACC teams were idle.

Roanoke Teams Both Advance

WILLIAMSTON — Ricky Highsmith, Angelo Spruill and Maurice Chance combined for 52 points to lift Roanoke to an easy 64-51 victory over Williamston Monday night in the opening round of the Northeastern Conference tournament.

In other first-round games, Roanoke's girls defeated Roanoke Rapids, 43-23, and Plymouth's girls whipped Aboskie, 54-23.

Roanoke's boys will play the winner of tonight's Edenton-Plymouth game Thursday night (6:30) and the girls will face the winner of tonight's Williamston-Washington game Friday night (8:30).

In the boys' game Monday night, Roanoke started slowly, taking a 13-12 lead after the opening period. But the Redskins began finding the range in the second quarter and took a 35-24 lead at intermission.

The Redskins maintained their advantage the rest of the game, leading 50-40 at the end of the third period before winning by 13 points.

Roanoke, now 20-3, was led by Highsmith's 19 points, Spruill's 18 and Chance's 15. Williamston, which ends the season at 7-14, was led by Chris Peel's 17 points. Vincent Washington had 12 and Tom Bennett added 10 for the Tigers.

Roanoke's girls, paced by Sylvia Parker's 14 points, defeated the Yellow Jackets easily. The Redskins girls are now 19-4 while Roanoke Rapids ends the season at 2-18.

The Redskins led after the first quarter, 9-1, and at halftime, 21-7. It was 31-9 at the end of the third quarter before coasting home with the victory.

Roanoke Rapids did not have anyone in double figures.

The Other Shoe Finally Dropped

HOUSTON (AP) — Sue Barker of England must have known that her luck hadn't changed despite her last start against fourth-seeded Mila Jausovec of Yugoslavia in a first-round match of the $100,000 Avon Women's Championships of Houston.

After being bitten in the face by a dog, suffering from the flu, spraining a knee and then a toe, all since last summer, you start waiting for the other shoe to drop.

It did. Jausovec rallied from a slow start to score a 6-7 (1-7) 6-0, 6-4 victory over the limping Barker, still hampered by the sprained toe.

"I felt sorry for her and that was frustrating for me," Jausovec said. "Sometimes she would be sitting there almost crying between games and then she'd get up and run and run and run."

Barker appeared ready to run Jausovec right off the court in the first set when she took a 5-1 lead. But Barker was erratic throughout the match and had to struggle into a tiebreaker to take the set.

Jausovec whipped through the second set allowing Barker only five points and winning the last 12 in a row.

"In the beginning it was a matter of concentration and getting everything together," Jausovec said. "Maybe now I'll get more recognition now that I've beaten Barker. I feel like I've played better this year than ever before."

Barker continued to play in spurts in the third set. She broke Jausovec in the fourth game after three deuces, but Jausovec broke back in the seventh game and took a 5-3 lead.

Barker fought off two match points to hold service in the ninth game but the Yugoslavian star won it in the 10th on the fourth match point when Barker made a service net error.

Jausovec, angered that she had to play both singles and doubles on the first day of the tournament, said she almost didn't play.

"I didn't think it was fair that I had to play singles and then doubles tonight when other players don't have to compete for several days," Jausovec said. "But I decided to go out."

And for her efforts, Jausovec is still in the field for the $22,000 first prize.

Tulane Cage Coach Resigns

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Saying he hopes big dollars are easier to find than big centers, Tulane basketball Coach Roy Danforth announced he is resigning his coaching chores to become an assistant athletic director and fund raiser for the school.

Danforth moved to Tulane five seasons ago after establishing himself as one of the country's most successful basketball coaches.

He was 148-71 over eight years at Syracuse and posted a 127-43 record over his last six seasons there. Each of those last six years was followed by a postseason tournament appearance, including a trip to the Final Four in 1975.

But he was unable to duplicate that success after moving to Tulane, partly because he was never able to recruit a dominant big man.

Tulane is currently 9-12, with five regular-season games and the Metro Conference tournament to go. Tulane was 33-75 for his first four years at the school. Danforth's resignation as coach becomes effective at the end of the season.

Athletic Director Hindman Wall said he would begin immediately to search for a new coach.

He denied that Danforth was being kicked upstairs because of his losing record, saying Danforth has expressed an interest in administration for some time.

"Last year, I extended his basketball contract and asked him to stay on another year with us," Wall said. "I told him I would help him, if he wanted to get into administration or at Tulane, if something opened up."

Danforth will be in charge of the Green Wave Club, a fund-raising organization.

"I hope big dollars are easier to find than big centers," Danforth quipped. "I can tell you one thing, there's a lot more of them out there."

He said the assistant athletic director's post opened up in December, when Wall decided to reorganize the athletic department. At the time he was offered the job in administration, Tulane was 3-0 for the young basketball season, Danforth said.

He said one of the reasons he left Syracuse was that he was denied a chance to move into administration there.

"In 1974, I applied for several athletic director's jobs," he said. "For the last two years I have applied for several athletic director's jobs and assistant athletic director's jobs," he said. "I've been interested in administration for the last five or six years."

He said a winning record this season would not have changed his mind.

"I've never had a desire to be on the bench when I'm 65 years old," he said.

He said he didn't regard the move as a defeat, because it was a move wanted to make.

Paladins Rip Cape Fear Five

BETHEL — Pitt Community College wound up the regular season last night, destroying Cape Fear, 118-73.

Pitt, which ended up with a 16-5 overall record, holds a 7-1 mark in conference play, and will be seeded number one in the league's tournament, which opens Friday at Craven Community College.

Against the last place Cape Fear team, Pitt had little trouble. The Paladins got their fast break going early, and by half-time had streaked out to a 63-26 lead.

"We tried to play everyone," Coach Linwood Woodard said. "We just tried to be consistent and play good defense to get ready for the tournament. We had our fast break going early, but after we got a good lead, we stopped breaking. We had a good shooting night, too."

In the second half, using everyone, Pitt outhit Cape Fear, 55-47.

Six of the eight Paladin players scored in double figures, led by Mike Horne's 27. Dennis Batts and Frankie Dail each had 20, while Jeff Tyson had 19, Dennis Pitt had 16, and Chuck Shearin had 10.

Pitt was led by Rodney White and Mike Johnson, each with 24, while Mike Laws had 12 and Matthew Griffin had 10.

Pitt returns to action Friday at 7 p.m. in the first round of the league tournament. The Paladins face James Sprunt in one game, while Craven and Coastal Carolina meet in the other. The two winners meet for the title on Saturday at 8 p.m.

Endearing Character Returns

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of television's most endearing characters, Horace Rumpole, has returned for a six-week run on PBS' "Mystery" series. Ah, here's the venerable barrister now, strolling to work on a damp morning, reciting to himself: "Oh, mornings at seven — or, rather, just past 10:30. The hillside's dew-pearled, the lark's on the wing, the snail's on the corn, God's in his heaven ... and with any luck at all, there's a little crime going on somewhere in the world." Robert Browning, Rumpole version.

You'll have to forgive Rumpole's wishing for crime; as you're reminded by series host Vincent Price in the introduction, "Legal defense is in the marrow of his bones."

Oh, it's good to see him back. If you missed "Rumpole of the Bailey" last season, you're in for some refreshing, fun television over the next six weeks.

His cases aren't always mysteries in the classic mode; tonight, for example, he defends a vicar charged with shoplifting three sport shirts. Such is material enough for Horace Rumpole.

Leo McKern portrays Rumpole with loving zeal, lending the character "a face with the expression of a St. Bernard," as Price says it, and there's a perpetual fire behind those slightly cocked eyes.

Rumpole is a fairly simple man, actually, his tastes running to wine-bar clarets, escape from homey chores and the art of contention. Indeed, contention is a religion for Rumpole, in court and out of it.

When a friend of his, a wine-drinking pal, announces his intention to marry, Rumpole, who recognizes his friend's intended as an arsonist, offers a soundly reasoned argument against matrimony in general.

"George, do you know what happens on a Saturday morning, when free men are having a nice lie-in or wondering contentedly toward a glass of breakfast chablis and a slow read of the obituaries? You (and your wife) will both set out with a list and an embroidered shopping basket. And your wife will spend all your hard-earned cash on things you haven't the slightest desire to own, (with disgust) like Vim and saucapan scowers... I beg you, George, don't do it!"

Actually, Rumpole's domestic life isn't as unbearable as he'd suggest. His wife (Peggy Thorpe-Bates), whom he calls The One Who Must Be Obeyed, is really a sweet woman, fairly tolerant of her husband's predilection to wine and spontaneous outbursts of histrionics. Her primary fault is her abiding ambition for her husband, her wish that he will someday settle down and become a nice, respectable judge.

In her heart, of course, she knows Rumpole will never do it. To become a judge, one normally has to serve time as a prosecutor, and Rumpole will never descend to that level.

He defends. "And that's not because he's kind," Mrs. Rumpole tells a houseguest, "that's because he likes to tease judges. Prosecutors hardly ever have the opportunity to tease judges."

Rumpole is that rare TV creature, a genuine character. You ought to meet him.

Maker". According to the set photographer, Hudson hit his hand on a camera on the floor by the side of Dryer's head. The movie is scheduled to be aired May 16 and 17. (AP Laserphoto)

Opening lead: Three of ♣.

Every card tells a story. And it doesn't usually require the Rosetta Stone to decipher its meaning.

The auction was straightforward. At his second turn North had a choice between a jump to three clubs or three no trump. Since he held stoppers in every suit, and in view of the limited nature of his partner's opening, he had no interest in slam, so he opted for the nine-trick game.

West led the three of hearts and dummy's jack won. Declarer called for the king of clubs from dummy, and East's failure to follow was a distinct shock. The contract now proved to be unmanageable. When West won the queen of clubs, he continued with the king of hearts, and declarer had only six fast tricks. As soon as the defenders gained the lead with the ace of diamonds, they cashed three heart tricks and the ace of spades for a two-trick set.

Declarer was unlucky to find a 3-0 club split, but he had only himself to blame for failing to make his contract. The opening lead told the whole story of the hand, so there was no need for South to take a wrong view of the club suit.

The three of hearts marked West with only a four-card heart suit. Since it is normal for the defenders to attack a no trump contract by leading from their longest and strongest suit, declarer's first deduction should have been that West held no suit longer than four cards. If that were the case, then West had to have at least one club. Thus, if either defender was void of clubs, it had to be East.

Once that conclusion was reached, it would have been a simple matter to start the club suit by leading low from the table. If East follows, declarer could be sure that the suit would break no worse than 2-1, and thus produce five tricks. If East shows out, declarer can win the ace and take the marked finesse for the queen, and still have time to knock out the ace of diamonds. In due course he will come to two heart tricks, two diamonds and five clubs.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Today's Academy award nominations reflect a dwindling movie market and, some critics say, a decline in quality of the American film.

Nominees for the 53rd awards were being announced amid the usual hoopla at the Beverly Hills headquarters of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

The 3,738 voting members chose from the smallest number of eligible films in memory.

Only 189 features this year met the Academy's requirements of being in English or having English subtitles and being "publicly exhibited by means of 35mm film or larger for paid admission in the Los Angeles area during the calendar year 1980."

Last year, 225 films were eligible.

Seek Identity Of Photographer

MILAN, Italy (AP) — A Milan court has ordered further investigation to identify the photographer who took pictures of actress Sophia Loren topos.

Photographs of Miss Loren sunbathing at a villa at Saint Tropez, France, last summer were published by the Milan-based weekly magazine Gente, whose chief editor Antonio Terzi was named in a lawsuit brought by the actress.

Miss Loren, who lives in France with her husband, producer Carlo Ponti, charged that her privacy had been violated by the photographer and the subsequent publication of the photos.

Old Vaudeville Star Now 97

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Joe Smith, of the legendary vaudeville team of Smith and Dale, still remembers the 1880s "as if it were yesterday," even though he just passed 97th birthday, his grand-niece says.

Smith, who has lived at the Actor's Fund Home for many years, celebrated his birthday there Monday.

He was visited during the weekend by his brother and sister and some of his nieces and nephews.

The Smith and Dale act, prototype for the aging comedians in Neil Simon's play, "The Sunshine Boys," began in 1898 and continued until Dale's death in 1971.

Smith's grand-niece, Ruth Schneider, who lives in Westchester County, N.Y., said her uncle's hearing is poor but he otherwise is extremely well.

Jenrette Story Is Now Put To Music

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Rita Jenrette, whose estranged husband John resigned from Congress after he was convicted in connection with Abscam, has written her life story, and a disc jockey has set the couple's troubles to country music.

Mrs. Jenrette's autobiography is scheduled to appear as a Bantam Books paperback about the same time her highly publicized Playboy magazine article about life as a congressman's wife hits the stands early next month, a Bantam editor says.

Meanwhile, disc jockey Billy Smith is entertaining listeners in Jenrette's hometown of North Myrtle Beach with ditties such as "Ode to Rita" and "It Gives Me the Low-Down Blues Ever Since You Found Money Stashed in My Shoe," a reference to recent developments in the Jenrette story.

Last October, Jenrette was convicted of accepting a $50,000 bribe from undercover FBI agents in the Abscam sting. He has asked that his conviction be set aside.

His wife, who described what she called Jenrette's womanizing and drinking habits in a Washington Post magazine article last December, co-authored an upcoming article for Playboy's April issue.

Playboy has not confirmed reports that Mrs. Jenrette posed semi-nude for photographs that accompany the article.

The book is not a "quickie" designed to take advantage of the publicity surrounding the Playboy article, Mrs. Jenrette said.

"I've been working for years on this book," she said. "I've kept a diary for years ... this is not just something I'm doing on the spur of the moment."

Last month, Mrs. Jenrette announced she would divorce her husband of five years, then discovered a shoe stuffed with $25,000 in cash. She locked him out of their Washington townhouse.

During a court hearing on his conviction, Jenrette was served with preliminary divorce papers.

FOCUS

The Pressure's On

As our need to unlock vast oil supplies beneath the ocean increases, it becomes more important to help divers move freely about the ocean bottom. As a diver goes deeper into the ocean, the pressure surrounding his body increases. If he had no special equipment to protect his body from that pressure, the nitrogen in his air supply would start to enter his blood at a much faster rate by the time he was 300 feet below sea level, causing a deadly daze. Below 600 feet, increasing pressure produces tremors and nausea. Scientists are studying pressure, as well as the problems of decompression caused when a diver resurfaces. If these problems can be overcome, humans could achieve greater access to the sea's wealth.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the painful condition that occurs when a deep sea diver surfaces too rapidly?
MONDAY'S ANSWER — The Soviet Union became the second nation to develop atomic weapons.

See Termites? Don't Panic

Don't panic. This is the advice of Sam Uzzell, Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agent, has for local citizens who think they have found termites in their home.

"Termites fly in the spring, so this is the time we get the most calls about them," Uzzell said.

"The first thing I tell a person is to make sure they have termites before getting upset," Uzzell continued. "Ants also fly, and telling the difference between an ant and a termite is relatively easy."

Here is how it can be done:

Look at the area directly behind the insect's legs. If that area is broad and about the same diameter as the rest of the body, it's a termite. Ants have a very thin "wasp" waist.

The wings are also a good clue to identify. A termite has four long, slender wings all about the same size. The front wings of ants are much larger than the hind wings.

Also, termite wings break off easily, and there are always many of them lying around where termites have emerged from the soil or wood.

"Even if you have termites, don't over react," Uzzell said. "Termites work very slowly. Take time to call several licensed pest control companies. Have them to make an inspection and provide recommendations for control."

Uzzell said the extension staff would be happy to talk with anyone who has a termite problem or thinks they might have a termite problem.

In fact, the extension office has information on many aspects of home care and especially on the usage and protection of wood. "We are currently stressing practices which will show homeowners how to make their wood last for centuries," Uzzell said.

Seek Mistrial Or A Reversal

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP)—Attorneys for Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood were returning to court today to pursue their efforts to win a reversal of his collaboration conviction or a declaration of a mistrial in his court-martial.

Garwood, 34, was convicted last week of five counts of collaborating with the enemy after his 1965 capture in Vietnam. He also was convicted of assaulting another American POW by striking him.

The five-officer jury ordered Garwood dishonorably discharged from the Marine Corps. He had faced a maximum sentence of life in prison on the collaboration charge, the first of its kind ever returned against a Marine.

Defense attorneys, in a motion filed late Friday, argued that testimony from a Dallas psychiatrist during the three-day sentencing phase of the court-martial raised a reasonable doubt of Garwood's guilt. The psychiatrist described Garwood's personality as "ruptured."

John Lowe, chief defense attorney, made the motion for acquittal after the jury announced Garwood's sentence, saying "at this point the system has broken down. I am renewing my motion for a judgment of acquittal based on a reasonable doubt."

The defense earlier had filed a motion for a mistrial. Garwood's attorneys contended that the military judge, Col. R.E. Switzer, had made improper, prejudicial statements to reporters.

Lowe accused Switzer of judicial misconduct in his statements to reporters who covered the 13-week trial.

Brief Brawl Erupts In Parliament

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A fist fight broke out today on the floor of the Indian Parliament for the first time in its history, leading the speaker of the house to adjourn the session.

The trouble began when several members of the lower body attempted to gain recognition to address the house. Speaker Balamurugan Jakkhar asked the shouting members to be seated, and all but Congress Party member Hiralal Parmar complied.

Parmar ran to the front of the hall and squatted near the speaker's podium to protest not being allowed to address the house about alleged atrocities suffered by lower caste Harijans in his home state of Gujarat in west central India.

Several other Congress Party members rushed to where Parmar was sitting, grabbed the recalcitrant parliamentarian and thrust him into a vacant seat, holding him there forcibly.

Members of opposition parties protested the manhandling of Parmar, and several rushed to where he was being held. That emptied the rest of the Congress benches, and the melee was on.

Within seconds, several members were exchanging blows, and a startled Jakkhar adjourned the house and left the chamber.

Other senior members of the house separated the brawlers, and leaders from both sides moved quickly to calm the agitated members.

Both houses of the Indian parliament opened their current session Monday. The lower house, Lok Sabha, will meet through May 8, while the upper Rajya Sabha will conclude its session on March 18.

A massive rally in the capital Monday by possibly 1 million farmers marked the opening. The rally was called by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's ruling Congress Party to demonstrate support for her policies.

Aliens Must Give Address

Aliens who have had difficulty obtaining an alien address registration form are advised to provide the information required by law in a personal letter to the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), the agency recently announced.

Federal Law required all aliens in the United States to report their addresses during January; however, because of the distribution problems, some post offices where the forms are usually available, did not receive adequate supplies of the 1-53's.

Late reporting persons should write a personal letter to U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, Attention: 1-53 Facility, Arlington, Va. 22218.

The letter should contain the full names of the alien, complete address, alien registration number (if any), month, date, year of birth, and country of birth.

Farm Scene

Agri. Ext. Agent

The peanut outlook for 1981 looks very promising for Pitt County growers. But there are potential problems that must be overcome prior to harvest. Market prices next October and November should be high due to this season's extreme shortage. Also, the support price may be increased.

According to Astor Perry, agricultural extension specialist, planting time could be the critical period of time this season. At the Pitt County Peanut Production meeting February 4, Perry elaborated on the critical peanut seed shortage throughout the entire southeastern United States. Perry feels that North Carolina farmers will have enough seed to complete planting. But there will be no seed available to replant fields that did not germinate properly or were planted too early.

Perry suggested several ways that North Carolina farmers that plant peanuts can deal with the short peanut seed supply. If peanut seed are 80 percent or above in germination, then the seeding rate can be adjusted to around 80 pounds of seed per acre. If the seed have a germination rate lower than 80 percent then the seeding rate can be adjusted to 90 pounds of seed per acre.

Perry also emphasized that planting date could play an important role in helping peanuts make a good stand. By waiting a little later in the spring to plant, soils will warm up to optimum temperatures. If peanuts can be planted in soil that is 65 degrees Fahrenheit or higher with a couple of warm days in the forecast, then germination should proceed rapidly and the peanuts will begin cracking the ground quickly. Normal peanut planting begins too early — often in mid-to-late April. Planting at a time when soil is cool will be very detrimental to growers because there may not be replacement seed available for replanting.

Another point to consider is the accurate calibration of planters. By being sure that the planter is spacing seed in the row properly, a farmer will not be wasting seed by planting too many per acre. Research data indicates that there is not much difference in yields between 80 pounds of seed planted per acre and 100 pounds per acre.

Finally, Perry stated that growers should contract their seed needs as soon as possible. The variety Florigiant out-yielded the other commercial varieties in 1981. The NC-6 variety did not perform up to the expectations of most growers last year. NC-7 will be available to the farmer next year. NC-7 is a large seeded variety that has yielded well, matures earlier than Florigiant and grades well.

For 1981 Peanut Production Guides contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension office. It will update the peanut farmer on the latest improvements in peanut production. By following recommended production practices, planting good seed when the soil is warm enough and with a good growing season, perhaps peanut problems will be minimal and growers will enjoy a potentially rewarding harvest in 1981. Getting a good plant stand will take care of many of the worst problems a grower will be likely to encounter.
