Most Restaurants Will Serve Mixed Drinks

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville voters last week approved the sale of liquor by the drink within the city limits, and a survey of restaurants at weeks-end indicated that most of those that are eligible intend to serve mixed drinks.

Under the present law, after the brown-bagging permits expire April 30, liquor can't be consumed in any restaurant here unless it is in the form of by-the-drink sales.

Bob Sauter, spokesman for the Greenville Restaurant Association which supported the mixed drink referendum, said a dozen or so restaurants, "would qualify at this point in time," to sell mixed beverages to their customers.

"Over the next month or two, as restaurants are granted their (mixed drink) licenses," Sauter suggested, "little or no change is going to be visible. It's here. People won't even think about it."

Some restaurants could be selling mixed drinks within as little as two or three weeks. However, for those establishments that do choose to begin by-the-drink sales before May 1, the cost will be a little greater. Added to the $500 fee for the initial application and permit will be a $250 fee for permit renewal on May 1.

For those places that apply after May 1, the fee will only be $500.

The outcome of the February 17 referendum didn't surprise Sauter or other restaurant association members, he noted.

"We conducted a survey several months ago," he explained, which, "indicated a 65 to 70 percent favorable response," at the polls. A similar survey a week prior to the election indicated a, "65 to 68 percent favorable response," which, Sauter explained, was just about what the actual vote was.

"The restaurant association is very appreciative of the voters for allowing this legislation to pass," Sauter emphasized. "I think there will be less liquor in cars," and, "think the price of drinks will limit the number a person has.

"I think it (the passage of liquor-by-the-drink) was a good move."

As for the cost of mixed beverages in local restaurants, Sauter speculated that prices would range from $1.75 to $2.25 per drink, "depending on the kind of drink," and the restaurant atmosphere. Some drinks, he said, may cost as little at $1.50, with more elaborate beverages selling for $2.50.

As for Sauter's Pipeline restaurant on Evans Street, "yes," it will be one of the applicants for a mixed drink permit.

Margaux's, also on Evans Street, intends to sell mixed beverages. "Yes sir. We are definitely going to apply for a permit," manager Woody Duke said. "We have it (mixed beverage sales) at Wilmington," and will use the people there to train bartenders here.

"We're excited about getting it. We're going to have more control over alcohol usage," and "feel like it's for the betterment of the community," Duke said.

Gary Johnson at the Ramada Inn said everybody there, "is looking foward to it," adding that the sale of mixed beverages will make the local Ramada Inn — the largest Ramada in the two Carolinas and Virginia — more competitive in its bid for conventions and business meetings.

"Oh, yes," Sweet Caroline's, will apply for a permit, manager Troy Jackson emphasized. "It will do a lot for Greenville...a real plus for the economy."

The Holiday Inn will also seek a mixed beverage permit, according to John Haughn. "I'm glad the people voted that way. We can control it a whole lot better. I'm glad it happened."

Tom Brown, assistant manager at the Casablanca said, "indeed...there's no question about it," when asked if that restaurant would sell mixed drinks.

"It's one of the greatest things ever to come to this area...the change that we needed to get the big business."

Brown theorized that there would be, "an initial blast," of interest when mixed drink sales first begin in Greenville, but suggested that residents will, "get used to it when the newness of it wears off."

"I think it's great that the folks in Greenville are thinking progressively," Dale Canup, manager of the Beef Barn, said of the passage of the referendum. He added that that restaurant will also apply for a mixed drink permit.

Darryl's 1907 will apply too, manager Gene Paterson said.

"Yes, we're going to apply. I'm glad it passed. It is long overdue," Patterson continued, pointing out that presently 10 of the dozen Darryl's sell mixed drinks. The two that do not — Greenville and Raleigh's Hillsboro Street restaurant — are now in the process of seeking permits.

Although most of the restaurants intend to apply for mixed drink sales in the near future, some, such as The Three Steers are taking more of a wait-and-see position.

Spokesman for that restaurant said, "we're going to hold," for the time being to see how things go, while the manager of the Golden Dragon, when asked it they would apply for a liquor-by-the-drink permit said, "I don't know yet."

States Must Take Lead In Promoting Technology

WASHINGTON (AP) — Individual states must take the lead in promoting technological advancements because the federal government is too far removed to do so, North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt told other governors Saturday.

"The federal government can help, but it is too far removed from the scene of action across the country to actually lead," Hunt said in a speech to the National Governors' Association Conference of Technological Innovation for Economic Prosperity.

In his own state, Hunt said he has asked the N.C. Legislature for $24.4 million this year to establish a microelectronics center for research and education. He said the center already has attracted General Electric and IBM to invest in the state.

"I see these high technology fields as the key that can unlock North Carolina's future," Hunt said, noting that such industries bring economic growth, jobs and lower inflation. "The tide of the technology revolution is coming in around the world, and North Carolina and the nation can rise with it."

The governor said technological innovation is rooted in the advancement of science and mathematics. Hunt said the N.C. School of Science and Mathematics, a residential high school in Durham, has been set up to better train students with a talent in those fields.

Hunt also said the state is working to develop "the essential partnership relations among government agencies, universities, industry labor and financial institutions within the state. The process, the teamwork, has resulted in more than $8.2 billion in new investment in the state over the last four years, creating over 122,000 new and better jobs."

Hunt urged the governors to establish guidelines for avoiding regulatory problems, work stoppages or court delays in making technological advancements. He also called on them to make better use of the Intergovernmental Science, Engineering and Technology Advisory Panel. The panel includes governors, county and municipal officials and the director of the National Science Foundation.

The purpose of the governors' meeting was to put together policy recommendations on technology and government. It was part of the governors association annual winter meeting.

Hunt was scheduled to preside over a seminar Sunday on how states can eet the needs of children and elderly when faced with sharp spending cutbacks. Monday, the governors are scheduled to meet with President Reagan.

Plight Of Displaced Greatest Tragedy

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

MORONG, Philippines (AP) — Joyful Indochinese refugees mobbed Pope John Paul II Saturday as he toured a refugee camp, calling the plight of the world's displaced peoples perhaps the greatest "of all the human tragedies of our day."

The 60-year-old pontiff spent the fifth hectic day of his six-day Philippines visit in prayer, speech-making and touring before going on to Guam and Japan on Sunday.

He made a plea for interfaith dialogue, delivered an appeal for Christian unity, met with children afflicted with leprosy and blessed all veterans of World War II. He delivered that blessinger as he helicoptered over a 30-story-high cross on a mountain in the historic Bataan peninsula, where thousands of American and Filipino troops died during the war.

Hundreds of the refugees, many in colorful traditional dress, pushed to get close to the Polish-born pontiff when his tight security cordon broke down at the U.N. refugee center for 15,000 in the Bataan peninsula, some 110 miles west of Manila.

Bishop Paul C. Marcinkus, the pope's bodyguard, pushed and shoved to keep some breathing space as the pontiff worked his way around a fence before going to a nearby bamboo stage to address the assembled crowd of 15,000 people, about half of whom were Filipinos from the area around the center.

In an emotional speech at the first refugee camp he has ever visited, the pope said his trip was symbolic of the visit he would like to make to "every camp or settlement of refugees in the world." He said it was also symbolic of "the church's solidarity with all refugees."

Noting "with alarm" the growing number of people being forced to abandon their homelands, the pontiff appealed on behalf of refugees to all nations for increased aid to strengthen the refugees' bodies and compassion to nourish their souls.

"In this part of Asia, the number of natural disasters and human catastrophes has been many ... but of all the human tragedies of our day, perhaps the greatest is that of refugees," the pope said.

The pontiff heard a 60-member Catholic choir composed almost entirely of Vietnamese refugees sing a song in their native tongue which urges "trust in the love of God."

Vietnamese refugees presented the pontiff with an orange-painted model of a boat similar to the ones the Vietnamese "boat people" used to flee their homeland, while the Cambodians gave him a statue of an ancient dancer. Laotian refugees gave the pontiff flowers, a painting of the pope with a refugee child and an ivory elephant.

En route back to Manila by helicopter, John Paul fulfilled a request for the blessing of World War II veterans, made by Philippines President Ferdinand E. Marcos, as the pontiff flew over the 30-story cross on Mount Samat.

The cross commemorates the Allies' final stand against the Japanese in early 1942 and the Bataan death march in which more than 30,000 American and Filipino soldiers died.

The pontiff called for dialogue among Christians, Buddhists, Moslems and Hindus in a shortwave radio broadcast, beamed across Asia from Manila's Catholic-run Radio Veritas, in what Vatican sources described as the most far-reaching call for interfaith dialogue ever made by a pontiff.

The church "wishes to do everything possible to cooperate with other believers in preserving all that is good in their religions and culture" so that all people may live "as brothers and sisters," he said.

BLESS THE CHILD ...Pope John Paul II blesses a small child handed up to him from the crowd.

Reagan Moves For Control

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Barely a month in power, President Reagan moved last week to take control of the government and begin carrying out his decade-long dream of whittling it sharply down in size.

His chief targets were the budget Jimmy Carter recommended to Congress for 1982 and dozens of federally funded programs, many of which were born in the Great Society of the 1960s and some dating back earlier to the New Deal.

In his address to Congress, Reagan proposed $41.4 billion in spending reductions, with cutbacks in a wide range of areas — from food stamps to education, from the Postal Service to the arts, from farm programs to foreign aid. He also called for a 30 percent tax cut for Americans over three years.

While his plan would be a radical departure from past policies, it was no surprise to anyone who had been listening to him over the years.

Reagan has been rehearsing basically the same speech since the early 1950s when he began traveling the country as a speaker for General Electric. His message then and now was that the federal government had grown too large, limiting the potential of individual citizens and industry, and unnecessarily interfered in matters best handled by state and local government.

Thus, Reagan told Congress Wednesday, the taxing power of the federal government "must not be used to regulate the economy or bring about social change. We've tried that and surely must be able to see it doesn't work."

It remains uncertain how far Congress is willing to go along with the president. But Reagan's aides said his landslide election proves that Americans are ready for a change and that members of Congress who balk at his program are risking their political future.

"We don't think it will get bogged down (in Congress) but if it did we would respond appropriately," said Edwin Meese III, counselor to the president. He left open the possibility that Reagan would promote the program on television or in speeches around the country if it got into trouble.

Democratic budget leaders in Congress — House Budget Committee Chairman Jim Jones, D-Okla., and Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C. — estimated the administration may be able to win about $30 billion in budget reductions.

After focusing the first 30 days of his administration almost exclusively on the economy, Reagan was clearly elated after his speech as he flew to his hideway ranch in the California mountains for a four-day vacation.

The telephone calls and telegrams received by the White House endorsing his speech "kind of put a lump in your throat," the president said.

Stepping off Air Force One at the Point Mugu Naval Air Station in Oxnard, Calif., Reagan told a welcoming crowd "we've been very homesick."

Powell Named Outstanding Citizen Of Year

JERRY POWELL...accepts the Outstanding Citizen of the Year Award Friday night.

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

In what 1981 Chairman of the Board Robert Griffin called "a very important step forward for the chamber and the county," the former Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce voted Friday night at their annual meeting to change the organization's name to the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

The annual meeting, held at Casablanca Resturant, was attended by around 600 chamber members. The motion to change the name was introduced by 1980 Chairman of the Board Tommy Edwards. "I would recommend to you to become a county organization," he told the crowd, "and I would recommend to you to reword the name of the organization." Members voted almost unanimously for the change.

The idea for the name change came about, Edwards told the group, as a result of the incorporation of several branches of chambers of commerce from around the county into the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce. The Ayden Council, represented at the annual meeting by Chairman Dr. Elliott Dixon, was the first of these branches.

Jerry Ward Powell of First State Bank was honored as the chamber's choice for Outstanding Citizen of the Year. "We select an individual because his/her achievements can be recognized," said Malcolm Howard, who presented the award. "Basically we look for someone whose contributions enhance the livability of the community, someone who has worked toward better economics, and someone who has a reputation we feel is irreproachable. Jerry Powell has all these qualifications and many, many more.

"I don't know anyone that has worked harder the past year," he added, "or anyone that deserves this award more."

1980 Chairman Tommy Edwards presented the 1980 stockholder's report and the annual report, saying, "This organization is on a sound financial base, I am pleased to say, because of the devotion of dedicated volunteers and of some assets that were liquidated.

"We are not going to have to spend one penny of 1981 dues to pay our 1980 bills," he continued, "and furthermore, we even have a little cash reserve."

Edwards reminded members that 1980 was the fiftieth anniversary of the chamber. "And in this our fiftieth year we were dedicated to making Pitt County a better place." The 1980 chairman noted that over 1,000 volunteers were involved in chamber business during the year.

A slide presentation illustrating the highlights of the past year was shown, noting the formation of the Farmers Market, Junior Achievement and the recruitment of the Methodist Retirement Home to Greenville as major accomplishments. The presentation included information about the chamber-sponsored Coffee Talks that were held throughout the year, and the Meet-the Candidates seminar held prior to the election.

"In 1980 we worked hard," said Edwards, "and worked together to take on the challege of non-econimic times. We must continue to work together on many things that are pressing." Edwards listed the four-laning of 264 from Wilson to Greenville as possibly the most pressing issue.

"I am sorry to report that one of the goals we set for ourselves was not fulfilled this year," he added. "We are not in a new chamber facility right now but the groundwork is being laid right now for a fine new facility."

Edwards recognized numerous volunteers he termed as "instrumental in getting the work done in 1980." Among these were Mavis Butts, highest membership sales, and Howard Wilson, voted outstanding volunteer by the chamber. "Many of you think Howard is retired," commented Edwards. "Well, he's not, he's a full-time staffer for us."

A certificate of appreciation was also presented to outgoing Chairman Edwards by David Duffus. "His goals were to see our business community prosper," said Duffus, "and he is to be commended for his contributions."

1981 Chairman Robert Griffin, in his message for the coming year, said, "My duty here will be to complete the tasks Edwards has begun." Griffin said he felt the reorganization of the organization into a county-wide chamber was the top goal for the year. He also listed six elements considered essential by the chamber for success, including effective leadership, necessary money, development of goals, and sufficient organization. "I feel the chamber is succeeding well in these areas and I hope to further their implementation in the coming year," said the new chairman.

Reagan's Cuts May Hurt

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials have estimated North Carolina stands to lose more than $204 million in federal aid as a result of President Reagan's proposed budget cuts, and one education leader says the impact will devastate some school programs.

"It will literally take thousands of kids out of programs they're in," said Jerome Melton, deputy superintendent of public instruction.

He pointed to anticipated cuts in school lunch programs, vocational education, aid for the handicapped and remedial education, and said state officials were still trying to figure out where all of the president's planned cutbacks will fall.

"Twenty percent cuts there will be devastating," he said. "They would actually be 30 percent cuts, when you consider a 10 percent inflation rate."

Melton made the comments in an interview as state officials gave Gov. Jim Hunt the first look at specific estimates of the how the federal cuts would effect North Carolina.

Officials in the state budget office and policy development office of the Department of Administration prepared the estimates in a book given to Hunt today. A copy was obtained by The Associated Press.

It shows large reductions in Medicaid, highways, energy, health and social services and education, and that even more money and jobs may be lost by local school systems.

"This is highly preliminary and subject to radical change," said one state official, asking not to be named. "We don't have all the information yet on the administration's budget, and when Congress gets a hold of it all bets are off. But this is the best we have now."

The estimates list nine areas where Reagan's plans will directly cut federal aid in the state's proposed budget for 1981-83, as well as 20 other areas where the cuts may be indirectly felt.

The nine areas are as follows. The money estimates represent annual aid, although in some cases part of the cuts would come in the 1981-82 budget year and the full cuts would be felt the following year.

— Social and Health Services Block Grants. $43.3 million would be cut off, along with 350 or more jobs paid for with federal money. The money is used for Title 20 programs, vocational rehabilitation and child health care, crippled children and low-income energy assistance.

— Medicaid. $41.34 million, but no jobs lost. Medicaid is a program combining federal, state and local money to provide payment for health services to the poor. The president has proposed a 5 percent limit on the growth of Medicaid. At current matching rates, the federal cutoff would require total program reductions with state and local money of $61 million, according to the estimates.

— Comprehensive Employment Training Act. $36.4 million nd 53 state positions. The state administered job-training program would see a phase out of all public service employment by September, 1981.

— Highways and transportation. $32.8 million and 25 or more employees. The estimate is below the figure estimated earlier by state Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw.

— Elementary and Secondary Education Block Grants. $30.8 million and 107 employees.

Day Of Prayer To Be Observed

"The Earth is the Lord's," is the theme for World Day of Prayer on March 6. Church Women United in Greenville and Pitt County will sponsor worship services at Oakmont Baptist Church and at Philippi Missionary Baptist Church.

The service at Oakmont Baptist Church, 1100 Red Banks Road, will be held at 11 a.m. (nursery provided) and the service at Philippi Missionary Baptist Church in Simpson will be at 5 p.m.

Dr. Earl Trevathan, professor of pediatrics at the East Carolina School of Medicine will be the guest speaker for the morning service.

Before joining the School of Medicine, Dr. Trevathan had been in private practice in Greenville for 25 years.

A native of Pitt County, Dr. Trevathan has been active in many community organizations, including the Pitt County Medical Society, the Pitt County Mental Health Association, and the Greenville Rotary Club. He has served as chief of staff of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, chairman of the Mid-East Comprehensive Planning Committee, and on the Greenville City Council. Dr. Trevathan was instrumental in founding the Cypress Group of the LeConte Chapter of the national Sierra Club, is on the Board of the North Carolina Conservancy, and is an Elder of the First Presbyterian Church.

Guest speaker for the service in Simpson will be the Rev. O.L. Sherrill of Raleigh. The Rev. Sherrill was born in Iredell County. He received the Doctor of Divinity degree from Shaw University and has served as minister to Union Grove Baptist Church in Youngsville, Mount Sinai Baptist Church in Fayetteville, Spring Garden Baptist Church in Washington, and Shiloh Baptist Church in Wilmington.

He has been chairman of the trustee board of Shaw Univeristy, a member of the governing board of the National Council of Churches, a member of the executive board of the North Carolina Council of Churches, and former executive secretary-general to the Baptist State Convention.

World Day of Prayer is celebrated in over 150 countries and islands throughout the world. Since 1887, women of many languages and cultures have prayed in solidarity on the first Friday in March each year.

This year's international service was written by American Indian Women of Church Women United from six tribes — Cherokee, Chocktaw, Hopi, Seneca, Sioux and Winnebago.

Mayor Don McGlohon will also participate in the service at Oakmont. Miss Kathy Stihl will provide special music.

The local services have been planned by Mrs. Vernon Tyson of Oakmont Baptist Church and Mrs. Pauline Anderson of Philippi Missionary Baptist Church. The public is invited to attend both services.

Local Man Honored

MOUNT OLIVE — A Greenville man was honored here Friday night by the Mount Olive Rescue Service for his part in helping prepare a MORS team for international and state heavy duty rescue competition last year.

Stuart Savage was presented a plaque saying, "To show our gratitude and thanks for training the Mount Olive Rescue Team," and made an honorary member of the Mount Olive Rescue Service.

Mount Olive placed first in state rescue competition and fifth in international competition in 1980.

The award was presented at the annual installation banquet at the Mount Olive College Cafeteria, at which Ray Thompson, captain of the competition teams, was installed as captain of the squad.

Ray Fogle, executive director of the Nuse River Council of Governments, was guest speaker at the banquet and presented members of the competition team with a certificate of recognition from the council's executive committee.

The award to Savage, a volunteer fireman and member of the Greenville volunteer rescue organization for many years, was presented by Ray Brogden, outgoing Mount Oliver Rescue Service captain.

One In Ten Is Already Dead

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1979, the International Year of the Child, some 122 million children were born, according to a report issued by the U. N. Children's Fund.

But one in every 10 is already dead, the report indicates. For the most part, these dead children were born in the world's poorest areas — in Asia, Africa, and Latin America.

UNICEF has presented a program to eliminate the worst aspects of poverty by the end of the present century.

Farm Officials Applaud Hands-Off Attitude

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina agriculture officials say U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block is on the right track with his announcement Friday that he supports the federal government's tobacco subsidy program as it now exists.

Block told a Washington news conference that farm programs generally should be left "about the same" as they are now as long as they don't cost taxpayers too much.

"The tobacco program is not a costly program," Block said. "It's making us money, so I'm not going to complain about it. It gets a bum rap sometimes, but it really doesn't deserve it. It's a money-making program."

A spokesman for the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. said 137 million pounds of tobacco, or about $182.5 million worth of leaf, was placed under loan in 1980.

State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said Block's statement "is certainly good news."

John Sledge, president of the N.C. Farm Bureau Federation, said the state's tobacco farmers may fare well, despite Reagan budget cuts, because of the influence of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Helms, a vocal defender of federal tobacco programs, is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

"North Carolina has a delegation in Washington that puts up a good defense of our interests," Sledge said. He said Helms "has considerable influence on what happens in Washington concerning agriculture."

One example of Helms' influence came in December, when he brought Block to visit North Carolina.

Fred Bond, head of the Flue-Cured Stabilization Corp., discounted Helms' influence.

"There simply has been no significant capital outlay for the program,' he said. But he added, "Certainly, Helms' position and the fact that this is his home state doesn't hurt the program."

Helms could not be reached for comment.

Most commodity programs will be addressed in new legislative proposals to be sent to Congress later as part of this year's development of new farm law, Block said.

Agriculture Department officials said federal tobacco subsidies have cost taxpayers $56.7 million since price support loan operations began on the crop in 1937.

Officials say that represents about 0.1 percent of federal price support costs for all farm commodities.

New Missile Procedures

WASHINGTON (AP) — New procedures for handling the nation's 1,000 Minuteman missiles have been instituted following an investigation showing errors were made with two missiles siloed in the Midwest.

Maj. Gen. Guy Hecker, Air Force legislative liaison, said the errors in programming a guidance system and handling a radar avoidance unit in the missiles at Whiteman Air Force Base in western Missouri were an "isolated situation" that posed no threat of a nuclear accident.

"Scrutiny of other Minuteman units by qualified inspectors has not disclosed any data which would imply that a problem similar to the one uncovered at Whiteman ... exists," Hecker said. "Our most recent effort to redefine policy is expected to minimize the potential of a similar problem occurring at any missile base."

The investigation of the incidents at Whiteman was sought last month by Rep. Ike Skelton, D-Mo., a member of the Armed Services Committee. Skelton also wanted to know what the Air Force was doing to prevent similar mistakes if the initial reports were verified.

"From what I've learned, I feel the Air Force has taken the necessary steps to guard against a recurrence of this type of thing," Skelton said Friday after reviewing the report and receiving a classified briefing from Air Force officials.

Whiteman, which is in Skelton's district, controls 150 Minuteman missiles, each of which is equipped with a nuclear warhead. The remainder of the Minuteman arsenal is in North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana.

The investigation, Hecker said, found that in the case of the incorrectly programmed guidance system, "a senior noncommissioned officer had knowledge of the situation and failed to take corrective action."

Had the error not been corrected and the missile fired, he said, "it would have resulted in a less than optimum burst within the target area."

The radar avoidance problem occurred, he said, because another noncommissioned officer destroyed a processing tag.

"Both NCOs involved were disciplined," Hecker said without elaborating.

Because of the incidents, Hecker said missile component inspections have been intensified and expanded and independent inspections have been ordered after critical maintenance is performed on the weapons.

Doesn't Get Beret Yet

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — For Capt. Kathleen Wilder, Friday marked the end of a long and bitter dispute as the U.S. Army made her the first woman qualified for the Special Forces, an elite team trained for guerilla warfare.

But Army officials told Ms. Wilder she cannot wear the coveted green beret, symbol of the group, until she is transferred into a Special Forces unit.

"It isn't important that I wear the hat," she said in a telephone interview from Arizona. "I'm not at all hung up on a hat like a lot of the men are. It doesn't matter to me whether I ever wear it or not.

"What matters is that I'm officially qualified. That, to me, is the important thing," she said.

Ms. Wilder is in Arizona attending an officers' advanced course in military intelligence at Fort Huachuca. The course ends May 1 and she expects to remain there as an instructor, probably for the next three years.

The decision to qualify her as a guerrilla trainer and fighter came Friday from the Training and Doctrine Command at Fort Monroe, Va.

Last year, Ms. Wilder, a qualified parachutist and one of the few women to complete a jumpmaster course, became the first woman allowed to take a 13-week Officers Special Forces Course.

But just before the graduation ceremony last August, she learned she had failed the field-exercise portion of the course and would not get Special Forces qualification. Col. Ola Mize, Special Forces school commander, refused to overturn the failing grade.

Ms. Wilder then filed an administrative complaint and Lt. Gen. Thomas Tackaberry, Fort Bragg commander, appointed as investigating officer Brig. Gen. F. Cecil Adams, commander of the 1st ROTC Region at Fort Bragg.

Adams determined that Ms. Wilder had been wrongly denied graduation and recognition as a qualified Special Forces officer. Those recommendations were forwarded to the Training and Doctrine Command, which controls the Special Forces school.

"I feel absolutely super," Ms. Wilder said. She said she thanks Adams and the other generals for their objective appraisal of the situation.

After several years in Arizona, Ms. Wilder said she'll probably be given an overseas assignment. She said returning to Fort Bragg and getting a chance to wear the green beret is "maybe six years down the road."

Four N.C. Men In Crash

BENTON, La. (UPI) — Narcotics agents were investigating the "suspicious" crash of a single-engine plane that ran out of fuel 10 miles northeast of downtown Shreveport, state police said Saturday.

Two of the four men aboard the plane suffered minor injuries in the accident late Friday and two others were uninjured. All were from North Carolina.

Federal aviation officials, state police and narcotics agents returned to the area Saturday to investigate the mishap and to look for illicit drugs. Agents found no drugs at the scene, state police said.

State Police Sgt. Will Valentine stressed there were no firm leads to indicate the men were actually making a drug run, but he said the whole incident was "kind of suspicious."

The Beechcraft BE-24 Sundowner went down about 7 miles south of Benton in Bossier Parish while it was en route to Shreveport Downtown Airport. The four men aboard got out of the wreckage and, with the help of a park ranger, walked about 2 miles to the nearest road.

Pilot William R. May, 28, suffered a back injury. His father, W.C. May Jr., 53, broke his arm. Both are from Greensboro, N.C.

Two passengers who were unhurt were identified as Paul E. May, 25, W.C. May's son, and Walter E. Stanley, 26, both of McLeansville, N.C.

All four were taken by helicopter to Louisiana State University hospital in Shreveport, where they were admitted overnight for observation.

Authorities said the plane made its last fuel stop in Knoxville, Tenn.

"The pilot reported the aircraft was running out of fuel at 9:37 p.m.," said air traffic operator Paul Roland. "Two minutes later, it went down."

Valentine said troopers received one report that someone saw things being thrown from the plane before it went down.

Two Killed

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Medical authorities are trying to determine if a bird's nest that blocked a gas furnace flue killed both a Camp Lejeune Marine and his wife.

Military investigators concluded Friday that 21-year-old Sgt. Richard A. Talada of Chemung, N.Y., died Tuesday from carbon monoxide poisoning.

But medical experts at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington still are running tests to determine if Talada's wife, Ester, 21, died of the same poisoning four weeks earlier.

It had been believed the woman died from a type of bronchial pneumonia.

A preliminary investigation at the Talada residence revealed carbon monoxide in the air with a concentration of at least 700 parts per million.

A probe by the Naval Investigative Service confirmed the abnormally high carbon monoxide level and isolated the source as the gas furnace.

When the heating system was dismantled, investigators found a bird's nest blocking the flue.

Talada recently had requested Camp Lejeune maintenance workers examine the furnace because it was not providing enough heat.

Camp Lejeune spokesmen said they could not determine what the maintenance workers found when they checked the furnace.

Program Needs Scrutinizing

President Reagan presented the nation and Congress with a choice it can't refuse in his state of the Union address Wednesday — that of stopping the growth of government.

Almost everyone agrees that it has to be. Government is growing too large and too powerful. It is taking an ever larger share of our personal and corporate incomes.

If the presidential recommendations are followed there will be cuts of $41.4 billion in the proposed budget, although it will still be a record one. There would be a 10 percent cut in income taxes this year, followed by two more ten percent cuts in future years.

At the same time Reagan promised to protect the truly needy and to shore up the nation's defense.

The proposals seem sound — generally, but Congress should not accept them without question.

Committees need to ask, for instance, exactly where the cuts are going to be made and if we are really cutting governmental fat rather than harming sound programs. Members of Congress should look into the budget to see if money saving cuts can be made elsewhere, even if it exceeds the plan outlined by the president.

Finally it needs to be determined if the 10 percent across the board income tax cuts are the best way to do it. Are there adjustments that can be made in taxes that might be more effective and still return the same amount of money to the economy?

The administration's goals are sound but the specifics need to stand the test of Congressional scrutiny.

Full Health Funding Is Needed

If a legislative study commission has its way, a $501,000 state appropriation for the model health department program in Pitt County could be ended in the next two years.

The state appropriation could drop to $44,052 and county authorities are quick to say that most of the programs currently offered by the health department — including five satellite clinics — would come to an end. The staff of the department would be reduced by some 75 percent.

It is not a pleasant outlook, particularly when the county entered into the arrangement at the state's encouragement.

It would appear to us that continuation of the model health department concept would be virtually essential to the other medical developments in Pitt County, and because it benefits the state, the county citizens should not be expected to bear the full costs.

Fortunately the Advisory Budget Commission agrees and has recommended full funding for the upcoming biennium. Now the legislators representing Pitt County have the ball. They should be able to make it clear to the Legislature that continued funding is necessary.

Law Enforcers' Handicap

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Modern-day policemen have at their fingertips an arsenal of high technology communications and computer equipment which makes it all but impossible for criminals to get away with anything.

Right? That's on television; not in North Carolina.

"We have some terribly unsophisticated law enforcement in North Carolina, especially in some small towns and rural counties," State Rep. George Miller of Durham believes.

He has introduced a bill in the General Assembly requiring that all persons arrested in felony cases be fingerprinted.

Isn't that just routine in all police stations these days?

Wrong. Miller says fewer than 20 percent of all felony arrests are fingerprinted. The figure may be as low as 12 percent.

There is a lot of public misunderstanding about fingerprints.

In television crime dramas, police lift a partial smudge from the jewelry case, and a few minutes later the computer says John Brown did the crime.

Actually, cold identification of a suspect from fingerprints is almost impossible unless that individual's prints are in the master file of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the lifted prints are outstanding in quality.

Prints are valuable, though, in putting a suspect at the scene of the crime.

Their biggest worth, however, is in making a positive identification of the habitual offender who is increasingly more mobile. North Carolina's Police Information Network identification procedure is based on positive identification through fingerprint matchup.

When hairy Joe pilfers the silver from a residence in Cleveland County and is caught; peddles some dope in McDowell County and is caught; beats up on a little old lady in Forsyth and is caught; steals a car and gets caught driving drunk in Gaston County and is caught...the one-man crime spree can go on and on with nobody realizing that Joe is involved in all those other things unless fingerprints can be matched in the Raleigh file.

Road Use Fees

Talk in the General Assembly about a higher tax on beer, wine, and liquor to boost the Highway Fund — instead of raising the gas tax — prompted one observant soul to wonder if that would be anything like the signs you see on the rearends of tractor trailer rigs: "This vehicle pays $4,500 Road Use Taxes Every Year"?

Caught driving after drinking, would some smart alec tell the Trooper to buzz off...I pay my Road Use Tax?

Bonds Again

As state school officials once more trot out the dog and pony show hoping to captivate the public's attention on a $600 million bond issue for school construction, renovation, and energy upgrading, Gov. Jim Hunt is once more hedging on the advisability.

A year ago he suggested that holding the vote at the same time as major state and national elections would make passage harder.

"It would have been a mistake...I think it would have failed," Hunt now says of that decision.

What about this coming November, the date picked by State Supt. of Schools Craig Phillips?

"I think the need is there...and it may be growing.

"But it ought to be submitted to the voters at a time when it will have a good chance to pass...a time when the economy is up," the governor now feels.

What year will that be? Hunt says he will take a close look at things in coming months, and take a position during this session of the General Assembly.

Liquor is a strong issue with most people. Some were strongly in favor of mixed drinks in last week's referendum, and, of course, some were violently opposed.

We respect the feelings of both. It was interesting to observe the reaction of those who came by the office, or phoned, Tuesday night to learn the results.

One young lady looked at the chart posted outside, screamed with delight and jumped straight up.

A man looked at it glumly and muttered, "They won; we lost."

A caller, told the results by phone, exclaimed, "Whoopee."

A man took the results in stride and commented matter-of-factly, "At the prices they'll charge, who can afford it?"

To the editor:

"Mr. Lincoln" came to Ayden, a play presenting the myth accepted today about the man who went to Washington. Napoleon's statement that history is a lie forced on the losers by the winners is nowhere better demonstrated than by the popular impression of Lincoln.

Humble he was not. Angry at his dog who barked when he tried to sneak off from work, he tied the dog in a coonskin and the other dogs tore him to pieces. The biggest boy in the county, he sought out fist fights, but ran from challenges to duels brought on by his insults.

Candid and sincere he was not. A politician all his life, every public utterance was made to court popularity. His lawyer associates said he never gave out a genuine opinion, but said what sounded best to get elected.

Religious he was not. He called Jesus "a bastard" and, in his personal books crossed out "God" and wrote "nature." He never joined a church.

His own political party nominated him because they thought the other candidates were looked upon by the electorate as too radical. They nominated Lincoln because he was unknown, electable. The South had warned what he would do and he did it. Before he ever took office, he said to a friend that he would make "a cemetery of the South."

He exercised a dictatorial authority in the North, debased the currency, took on more power than any president before or after. He killed his nation's money, liberties, prosperity, 600,000 soldiers and more civilians and he killed his government, the federal system, to replace it with a system of consolidated power, the very system the founding fathers tried to prevent.

He was a good writer, but so is every ad man. Abraham Lincoln is his nation's best example of why government must be kept small and local.

Veiled Iron In Reagan

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A warning, gentle but unmistakeable, was built into President Reagan's economic message to Congress: the voters expect action to curb inflation and federal spending — and he means to see that they get it.

The tone is likely to get tougher as the White House joins the budget battle for $41.4 billion in spending cuts next year, with a formidable lobby lined up to oppose Reagan.

The beneficiaries and the congressional allies of 83 programs marked for curtailment by Reagan will be marshaling their forces to hold on to what they've got. That lineup is going to include interest groups ranging from people who get food stamps to people who go boating, from airline passengers to dairy farmers to patrons of the arts.

All of them are going to lose some or all of their federal subsidies if Reagan gets his way.

"I'm sure there will be some who will raise the familiar old cry — don't touch my program — cut somewhere else," Reagan told Congress.

There already are.

"I hope I've made it plain that our approach has been even-handed; that only the programs of the truly deserving needy remain untouched," he said.

The problem is that conservative Republicans and liberal Democrats have different ideas about who is truly deserving and who is needy. The Democrats put a lot more people in those categories, and they've been in charge for years.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Shunning Political Fight

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — At Israel's suggestion, friendly senators have called off high-pressure political action against President Reagan's imminent decision to make Saudi Arabian F-15 aircraft more lethal — the first time in years that a U.S. action not favorable to Israel will be allowed to happen without bitter controversy.

Prime Minister Menahem Begin himself is the source of the surprising Israeli government decision not to court political battle with a new, hard-line Republican president who has sworn fidelity to Israel. One reason for Begin's retreat from high- pressure tactics so useful with the past: Israel has far more confidence in Reagan's loyalty than in any of his reccent predecessors'. That might change the U.S.-Israeli relationship for the better, giving Israel more self-confidence.

The way was cleared Feb. 4 for the usual outraged letter from pro-Israel senators warning Reagan not to give the Saudis long-range fuel pods and new armaments for their F-15s, needed for self-defense in the threatened Persian Gulf. When the aircraft were sold to Saudi Arabia in 1978 in the face of a tie vote by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, President Carter pledged they would be interceptors only — not fitted with bomb racks and long-distance fuel capacity.

Within hours after Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's public statement on Feb. 3 that a decision would soon be made on the extra equipment for the F-15s, Democratic Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware had drafted a "Dear Mr. President" letter and was circulating it to colleagues.

But something happened on the letter's way to the Oval Office. Biden told us that the congressional recess had sent so many senators scurrying out of town that he was postponing his lobbying effort for lack of immediate signatures.

Insiders had a different explanation. They said Biden learned that the potent pro-Israel lobbying group the America-Israel Political Action Committee (APAC) was counseling extreme caution partly on grounds that Prime Minister Begin's badly weakened government was uncertain how to proceed.

What worried the Israelis were two disturbing possibilities. The first was that conservative Republicans would refuse to sign any letter trying to put

Strength For Today

THE ESSENCE OF POPULARITY

The great British author Rudyard Kipling once accounted for the popularity of a certain British leader by saying, "All the years I have known him I have never once heard him say that he was hot or cold, wet or dry, sick or well, but I have never known him to forget the man who was."

Men will follow a leader anywhere if they have a feeling that he cares more for them than he does for himself. Whether it be in military life, in business, in the shop, or in the church, men like to feel that their accredited leaders have only one thought, and that is the welfare of those whom they lead.

A man is not necessarily followed because he is able or distinguished along some line. That indefinite thing called popularity comes from self-forgetfulness. The sum of the matter is that the more we do for others the more we do for ourselves, and the less we think about ourselves, the more others will think about us. — Elisha Douglass

Rebuilding The Private Sector

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan's economic plan is a big broom and a prod. It is designed to sweep away the governmental cobwebs that thwart productivity and goad the private sector into greater activity.

There is no question at all about how the economy is viewed:

The vast federal government, growing out of control, is killing off the nation's ability to sustain itself economically. If the economy is to be saved, power must be restored to the people, from whence it came.

It represents a huge effort, one the Reagan people say will pay for itself in the improved performance of households and industry and, as a consequence, the improved performance of the U.S. government itself.

If the plan is on target, for example, the country will turn a $54.5 billion deficit this year into a $500 million surplus in fiscal 1984. And that, we are told, would be just the beginning of the better times.

By 1985 the surplus would rise to $6.9 billion, and it would leap to $29.9 billion in 1986. No claims are made beyond that time, but the suggestion is clear: By then, the economy will be prosperous.

The prospertiy will be real too, unlike the ersatz type the president said we had become used to, that is, bigger pay checks but even bigger bills. And one of the main agents of that prosperity will be tax cuts.

Individual taxes will be cut 10 percent on July 1, and 10 percent more on the same date in each of two succeeding years. Industry will be able to lower taxes through accelerated depreciation, retroactive to Jan. 1. With financial power in hand, and freed from regulatory harassment, individuals and industry will have the cash and inclination to invest, the inducement being the prospect of a real return for the risk taken.

As government spending continues to be reduced as a percentage of gross national product — from a record 23 percent now to 19.3 in fiscal 1984 — and as money is put to more efficient use in the private sector, production will grow, reaching 5 percent or so late this year.

All these factors will tend to reduce high unemployment, inflation and interest rates, which have been wasting money or restricting the productive use of it. Inflation may even come down to 6 percent by late 1982. Interest rates, now near records high, and unemployment, now numbering nearly 8 million people, will fall substantially.

The program is designed to strip back government and rebuild the private sector, which the Reagan administration obvioulsy feels is the fountainhead of ingenuity, innovation, job-making and productivity.

And if it comes to be — a matter over which Congress, special interest groups, beneficiaries and others will have a say — it will represent, depending on viewpoint, either a new beginning or a big step backward.

The plan is on a momentous scale, with all but two areas of government involvement spared from the ax.

According to the White House summary fact sheet, the President's program stresses two "overriding" priorities:

"Sufficient budget resources must be provided to rebuild the nation's defense capacities;

"The social safety net of income security measures erected in the 1930s to protect the elderly, unemployed, and poor, as well as veterans, must be maintained."

Otherwise, no sacred program is immune to the gaze of the time and motion study man: "Ineffective federal programs, including CETA public service jobs, AMTRAK, energy technology commercialization programs, impact aid, federal support for the arts," says the fact sheet.

And if Big Government bows out of such areas, if it no longer pays the bills for job training and developing new energy sources and supporting the arts, who will step in to lend a hand and a dollar bill?

The private sector, of course. The freed, revitalized, inspired and newly prospering private sector. Or, as one inspired with the new philosophy might say: The people themselves.

That's the plan, the vision, the hope. And, of course, it soon will become the battle too, because nothing so vast can ever come to be without a battle royal."

Divided On Teen Wages

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — A lower minimum wage to provide work for more teenagers? Those familiar with the proposal are evenly divided in their views.

Among the 44 percent of the American public who are informed about a proposal for a sub-minimum wage for teenagers, 20 percent say they favor a lower wage for teens while 21 percent opposed and 3 percent are undecided. The current minimum wage is $3.35 per hour.

Some social scientists support a two-tier minimum wage, arguing that the high rate of youth unemployment contributes to such problems as drug abuse and crime and that these problems put a serious drain on the financial resources of many communities. They maintain that positive action must be taken to provide work for young people who cannot find jobs because they are unskilled or undertrained.

One survey respondent who favors a lower minimum wage for teens had this to say:

"You can't expect businesses to pay a minimum of $3.35 per hour for kids who simply haven't had any job experience or training. But if the minimum wage were lowered, a lot of kids would have jobs; they would be less likely to turn to crime, and society as a whole would benefit."

The Vice President's Task Force on Youth Employment found that, in a single month, as many as 2,695,000 young people had looked for work for 15 weeks or more but had not been able to find any.

Practical Reasons

Those who favor the proposal often argue from a social point of view, while those opposed to lowering the minimum wage for teens cite what they see as practical shortcomings of the plan.

Among the key reasons given by opponents: (1) a sub-minimum wage for teens would take jobs from older people and merely cause greater unemployment among adults; (2) teens should receive "equal pay for equal work," and (3) companies would take advantage of the situation and exploit the teenage job market.

Here is what one critic of the proposal had to say:

"Lowering the minimum wage for unemployed teenagers smacks of a dual and discriminatory system — something like different drinking fountains for different races. It blames unemployment on the victims by suggesting that they are asking too much for their work."

Another said: "Are teenagers expected to live on their earnings? No one could possibly live on less than the minimum wage. If it's only to give them some spending money, they are overconsumers now."

The following questions were asked:

"Have you followed or read about the discussion regarding a lower minimum wage to provide work for more unemployed teenagers?"

Those who answered in the affirmative were then asked:

"What is the best reason FOR lowering the minimum wage, in your opinion?" "What is the best reason AGAINST lowering the minimum wage?"

Persons who said they had followed the discussion and could give reasons for and/or against the proposal (44 percent of the total sample) were then asked this question:

"How do you yourself feel? Do you favor or oppose lowering the minimum wage for teenagers?"

Following are the key findings, showing that those groups most likely to favor the proposal include Republicans, the college educated, older persons and those living in non-union households.

Conversely, greater opposition is found among those groups which might be more directly affected by a sub-minimum wage for teens: younger adults, blacks and those with less formal education. In addition, members of labor union households, Democrats and political independents may voice greater opposition on ideological grounds.

Favor Lower Minimum For Handicapped

All persons in the survey were also asked their opinion about a lower minimum wage to encourage employers to hire more physically or mentally handicapped persons.

Although the public favors such a change by a 5-to-4 ratio, that as many as four out of 10 oppose the proposal suggests how deeply ingrained the idea of a single minimum wage is.

Here is the question asked and the national findings:

"Would you favor or oppose lowering the minimum wage to encourage employers to hire more physically or mentally handicapped persons who are not as productive as most workers because of their disability?"

Sub-Minimum Wage For Handicapped

The findings reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,540 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period Jan. 9-12. Of this total, the informed group comprises 680 persons.

For results based on the informed group, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be five percentage points in either direction. For results based on the total sample, a three percentage point margin of error should be allowed.

As I Recall It

Ed Scheidt Thinks Now 'A Little Bit Naive'

By NOEL YANCEY

As he looks back on it now, Ed Scheidt must have been "just a little bit naive" when he took over as North Carolina's Motor Vehicle Commissioner and with it the task of running the State Highway Patrol.

Scheidt, who had just retired after a distinguished career with the FBI, said he felt that if he ordered the patrol to enforce the law without fear or favor and to treat everyone alike — rich or poor, black or white — his task would be simple and his success assured.

But it did not work out that way. Some members of the patrol could not believe that they should — as Scheidt insisted — arrest lead-footed legislators as quickly as anyone else. Soon there was a group of legislators out to get Ed Scheidt.

Scheidt, now 78 and living at Chapel Hill, recalled in a recent telephone interview, that Gov. William B. Umstead offered him the motor vehicles post in 1953 after Scheidt had turned down the job of prisons director. "I did not want to be in charge of a lot of people who were penned up," he explained. But he did take the motor vehicles job and reported for work on June 15, 1953 with orders to "take politics out of the patrol."

He promptly sent word to the troopers that they were to make arrests "only when there was a clear-cut, definite, substantial violation of the law" and that this was to apply to everyone alike.

He soon discovered that many patrolmen "didn't really believe I meant what I said," he related, recalling that he had removed a patrol commander after learning that the man had advised the troopers "to size up a man carefully before deciding to give him a ticket."

"That sounded to me like if the person was a big shot, you wouldn't make an arrest," Scheidt said.

He said he was told that another trooper apologized when he arrested a member of the legislature for speeding by saying, "I wouldn't do this myself, but the commissioner is making me." The lawmaker's reaction was to circulate a petition in the legislature "to get rid of me because I believed that legislators should be treated like anyone else."

He recalled that another legislator had spread a "damn lie" to the effect that when he came to see me...to congratulate me on my appointment...I walked to the door, put on my hat and left him there high and dry."

But Scheidt was strongly backed by a succeesion of governors — first Umstead, then Luther H. Hodges, Terry Sanford and Dan Moore. Under his direction, the patrol began using imaginative techniques to enforce the traffic laws and to make the highways safer. He worked out the tactic of "saturating" particular highway segements with patrolmen at certain times, and of having about one-third of the troopers patrol in unmarked cars, and emphasized the use of radar and speed watches to get motorists to slow down.

On Oct. 14, 1961, Scheidt was honored at the Silver Anniversary dinner of the Northwestern University Traffic Saftey Institute. He was presented the Paul Gray Hoffman Award which is presented annually to the nation's most distinguished professional in the highway saftey field. The selection committee said that under Scheidt, the North Carolina Motor Vehicles Department had become "a national model." It pointed out the state's driver license program had been rated by the National Safety Council "highest in the country" for six successive years and the state's highway patrol had been rated the nation's best twice by the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

But Scheidt's troubles with a group of legislators persisted. The

Little Church Became A Neighborhood School

HARTSVILLE, S.C. — Rev. Tommy Browne is not a tall man and he does not have a booming voice; perhaps there are some who fail to see the strength beneath his humility. But to many, he is a spiritual giant.

Among these admirers are the hundreds of people whom Rev. Browne taught to read — as adults — in the classes he started at tiny Sandy Hills Church near Hartsville during the 1950s. For these students, learning to read late in life opened the doors to ambitions and dreams they had never expected to realize; their new skill increased their competence in this complicated technological society.

Their desire to serve the spiritual and physical needs of those around him arose in Rev. Browne during his days as a student at Coker College. In the summer months, he attended the University of South Carolina and earned a Guidance and Counseling certificate. He also started preaching at little churches here and there around Darlington County to get the feel of the pulpit and its power to change people's lives.

During some of his journeyings, Rev. Browne noticed a vacant school building in the rural Pond Hollow area. He obtained permission from the school's trustees to hold Sunday services there. After a year, the small congregation bought the building and the grounds from the county for $600, and the Sandy Hills Church was formed.

The church was non-denominational, because Rev. Browne felt his congregation's needs went beyond doctrinal boundaries. A Catholic taught a Sunday School class; a Mormon served as a trustee.

While making his pastoral rounds, Rev. Browne soon became aware of a disturbing fact: most of his congregation could neither read nor write!

When the desire to serve meets an urgent need, the sparks of action begin to fly. Rev. Browne decided he would start a night school — two nights a week — and teach his people how to read and write. At the next church service, he announced that anyone interested could enroll in his proposed night school.

On an October night, in 1953, Rev. Browne faced his first class of 64 first grade pupils. Their ages ranged from 40 to 76, but their faces shone with eagerness as bright as that of any anxious six year old. His students' eagerness further strengthened Rev. Browne's determination that some day they would be able to read their own Bibles.

Enthusiasm and attendance increased rather than waned with time. New students began attending from the nearby town of Patrick, and beyond. Church attendance also swelled. Other educated people volunteered time to help Rev. Browne in his work, though neither the church nor the school ever received funds from any other church or organization.

The students' reason for attending were as varied as their backgrounds. One man — who had been "called" to preach — came so that he could learn to pronounce Biblical words. He attended for four years and won a great many spelling bees (a very popular feature of the school) because he made good use of word sounds, or phonics. He did later become a preacher, and founded a church of his own, near Lydia, South Carolina.

Another man said he wanted to learn to write his name so that his wife would not have to sign his paycheck next to his mark. One day he brought his paycheck to school, and signed it proudly before the class. Rev. Browne noticed that it was three times more than a school teacher made.

When the school's enrollment climbed to over a hundred, the county became aware of its importance and sent three teachers to help out; thus the school could offer math and social studies as well as reading. The school was later consolidated with the North Hartsville School, and put under the direction of Miss Lucile Freeman. Unfortunately, it no longer exists as an adult literacy program.

The Sandy Hills Church that Rev. Browne founded is still alive and thriving, however, and employs a full-time pastor. Rev. Browne is semi-retired now, but still serves on occasion as preacher and substitute teacher in the Hartsville area. And his legacy of knowledge and increased confidence still works in the lives of many of his former students.

Textbook Case Might Last Only 3 Months

Meg was born November 7, 1975. I've been in post-partum depression ever since.

It's not the classic textbook case. Textbook cases never last longer than three months, at which time the mother's body regains its hormonal balance. In my opinion, real post-partum depression has nothing to do with the mother's balance. It's when the baby begins to balance that the bottom drops out.

Just recounting the stages a child goes through is enough to make a woman lose religion. The terrible twos can start as early as 15 months. The trying threes come next. But it wasn't until Meg hit the fearsome fours that I realized I was worshipping false gods, not the least of which was my aspirin bottle.

Now I've completely given in to idolatry. I hope God will forgive me, but Midas didn't love gold as much as I love Zachary's pacifier. I have never been as near suicide as the time he spit it out in a department store and I didn't realize that it was missing until I tried to put him down for the night. The next morning I bought three.

Any temporary drop in this supply is enough to cause panic in our family. I often wonder what goes through our son's mind as he watches two adults crawling around the nursery floor in the middle of the night feeling blindly for one blessed little Nuk.

This is not an aberration; in our house this is the norm. Sleep is at a premium here. So is quiet time. My quiet time is when I do the dishes.

This doesn't happen very often. I do the dishes about as frequently as I mop the kitchen floor. Incidentally, I won't let Zachary crawl on my kitchen floor.

Anyone who keeps house the way I do has a right to be depressed. It's my theory that the whole vicious depressive cycle is initiated with the fumes from the diaper pail permanently alter the average mother's metabolism and render her incapable of performing the rapidly escalating number of chores associated with a new baby. The dirty house depresses her further so that she has even less energy for her few attempts at housework. But the ultimate futility of it all doesn't hit her until she celebrates getting to the bottom of the laundry pile, only to find that her child outgrew the clothes there three months ago.

From there it's a downhill battle. In my own case, this cycle has even ruined my social life. I now refuse to associate with anyone whose refrigerator is not growing hair.

Naturally, concerned friends and relatives have suggested solutions. One is exercise. I did try this, but I stopped after my midriff bulge shifted to my hips and there remained stationary.

Reading was another suggestion. Unfortunately, the only edifying book I've had time to finish in the past year is the Berentain Bears' "Nature Guide."

Then there's the grandmotherly type who always stops me when I'm leading Meg by the hair through the grocery store. "Enjoy them now," she cautions. "They'll be grown up before you know it."

That has to be the most depressing thought of all.

Johnny Still Can't Read; Blame Look-And-Say

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Rudolf Flesch is what you might call an even-tempered man: He stays mad. Twenty-five years ago he dropped an academic bombshell, "Why Johnny Can't Read." This spring he has a sequel coming out. It is called "Why Johnny Still Can't Read." An advance copy has come to hand, courtesy of Harper and Row.

For those who came in late, Dr. Flesch is a man with a mission. He holds a couple of earned Ph.D. degrees, one from his native Vienna, another from Columbia. At 69, he has a dozen books under his belt. His glorious mission is to teach children to read and to teach adults to write. He loves phonics and he despises jargon, and if you are wondering what he stays mad at, it is this: He stays mad at the publishers and educators who persist in teaching children to read by the "look-and-say" method.

It has been a splendid crusade and in one sense a productive one. Twenty-five years ago the forces of look-and-say were firmly in the academic saddle. They dominated the faculties of teacher-training institutions; they wielded a controlling influence over the publishing of reading primers and manuals. The "phonics-first" method of instruction had been trampled underfoot.

Largely owing to Dr. Flesch's crusade, the picture has brightened. If the look-and-say pedagogues have not been unhorsed, they have been pretty well bounced around. Several publishing houses — Dr. Flesch praises them as the "Phonic Five" — have produced courses of instruction that put phonics in first place. Even those publishers who continue to push look-and-say — he identifies these as the "Dismal Dozen" — have made a tactical retreat. They now include a little phonics with their large mass of guesswork.

This battle between opposing theories of reading instruction might appear to be trivial — a mere shaking of limbs in the academic grove. On the contrary, the issue is profoundly serious. Children who never learn to read well are likely to grow up as adults who understand poorly. They are handicapped persons in the deepest meaning of the word. Dr. Flesch cites studies indicating that 21 percent of our population is functionally illiterate — unable to read warning labels on medicines, or to comprehend an application form — and he puts most of the blame upon the high priests of look-and-say.

For the record, phonics-first teaches a child to decode the language. Under this system first-graders first master the alphabet and the sounds of letters. They move on to syllables, and to "sounding out" words. By contrast, look-and-say relies chiefly upon recognition of whole words. When Dr. Flesch first went to war, a typical look-and-say reader taught the child through Dick and Jane and Spot the dog, all of whom jumped incessantly. These days Dick and Jane have been joined by black and Hispanic friends, which surely is a desirable change, but otherwise the prettily illustrated readers go at instruction in the same old way.

Dr. Flesch regards look-and-say as the wrong way. His new book cites scores of scholarly studies that prove the method doesn't work. Look-and-say, he writes, is "an out-and-out intolerable snam, a device to destroy the education of a great nation's children." The system leaves many children bored and discouraged at the "inane little words" they learn to recognize. One little girl, taught to recognize "apple" by the two p's, spent several years stumbling over "supply" and "happy" and "floppy." The words weren't "apple," but what were they?

By Dr. Flesch's pessimistic estimate, his crusade still goes poorly. "After almost 70 years of research, after 124 studies leaving look-and-say without a shred of scientific respectability, it is still used in 85 percent of our classrooms, poisoning the minds and crippling the educational growth of tens of millions of children."

Perhaps he overstates his case, for other factors doubtless have contributed to the decline of literacy in our time, but he doesn't overstate it much. When the high priests of reading instruction tossed phonics out of the house of learning, they threw away the key.

To the editor:

In the February issue of "The Senior Citizens Voice," there was an article pertaining to the president's budget cutting.

There were two retirees referred to (federal and military). I'm writing in the military standpoint, as an E7 taking a 20-year retainer pay, was only half pay, also. We (E7s) were drawing less than $3,700 a year.

Since that time, we have only gotten a cost of living increase that doesn't keep up with the rise of inflation. Most of us went through World War II and the Korean Conflict.

If Reagan gets it through, there will be some very unhappy retirees that crossed party lines. I'm sure all representing bodies will lobby against him on this proposed bill.

As Yancy Recalls...

tall assertive man who had once headed the FBI in North Carolina and in New York City, laid down the gauntlet to his foes by telling the House Highway Saftey Committee in May 1963 that "If I am persona non grata to members of the General Assembly, I'll be glad to submit my resignation and you can get another motor vehicles commissioner."

He made the comment while opposing a bill by Rep. George Uzzell that would have weakened the motor vehicles commissioner's authority over the patrol. That same day, the state Senate while debating an auto mechanical inspection bill had approved an amendment by Sen. Tom White of Kinston which would have removed Scheidt from the coordinating committee that was to administer the inspection program.

White, who had won the nickname of "Whammy" White after he was caught for speeding by patrol radar, told the Senate, in an obvious reference to patrol techinques that he was "a wee bit tired of people lying in wait to catch somebody."

But a host of folks, led by Gov. Terry Sanford, rallied to Scheidt's defense. Sanford said Scheidt is doing "an outstanding job," and Wallace Hyde, a former state secretary of the Democratic Party and a member of the N.C. Traffic Saftey Council, told legislators that the Motor Vehicles Department "is looked on throughout the country as a model — a model of efficiency."

Scheidt said some legislators got the "ridiculous" idea the patrol had an arrest quota and that troopers who met or exceeded their quotas were rewarded by promotions and those who didn't were not. Scheidt said he prepared a report which contained statistics showing that "the patrolmen who made the least arrests got promoted and those who made the most arrests did not."

Scheidt resigned as commissioner of motor vehicles a few months after Moore became governor in 1965. He said his action was prompted by the report he received from a close friend. The friend told him a Moore advisor had asked if he would be interested in the motor vehicles commissioner's post. The friend, Scheidt related, replied, "Why are you offering me this job when you've got the best motor vehicles commissioner in the country?"

Although "there was never a moment of unpleasantness" in his relations with Moore, Scheidt said he quit because I just didn't like this guy who was close to him (Moore) trying to find someone to take my place."

David T. Lambert, who served as patrol commander during the final years of Scheidt's regime, recalled that the employees of the MVD presented their old boss with a Thunderbird automobile when he stepped down and with a paper scroll on which virtually all of them had signed their names.

"He was not a politician," said Lambert, and if he rubbed people the wrong way "it was due to his belief in doing the right thing."

the arm on the new president. In the Carter presidency there was no such restraint on Republicans or Democrats.

The second reason is strategic, not tactical. Neither Begin nor his Labor Party opposition wants to get off on the wrong foot with a new president whose professions of loyalty to Israel have been consistently higher than any president since Lyndon Johnson. A lobbying campaign against Reagan's first major decision involving Israel could change his mind about Israel, while failing to change his mind about sending the new equipment to Saudi Arabia.

"We just have to trust Reagan on this one," one pro-Israel insider told us. Such words would never have been spoken about Carter who, fairly or not, was consistently faulted for failing to accept Israel's word about the Arab threat.

In addition to this trust of Reagan, the Israelis doubt that either Secretary of State Alexander Haig or Weinberger would bow to political pressure from the Senate on the Saudi arms deal. In sharp contrast to both Carter's secretaries of state, Cyrus Vance and Edmund Muskie, Haig is respected in Israel as a tough strategic thinker not to be toyed with.

That means Haig looks at Israel not in terms of American constituency-group politics but as an American ally with strategic strength to offer Washington, much like Saudi Arabia and other U.S. allies in the Arab world. Haig does not intend to name a successor to the astute Sol Linowitz, Carter's special ambassador on the Egyptian-Israeli Camp David agreement. The Reagan administration sees no need for an envoy particularly acceptable both to American Jews and to Israel.

Mears Col.....

Theirs is the course Reagan wants to reverse, with an austerity spending program that would define the limits of federal government in conservative terms.

"The question is, are we simply going to go down the same path we've gone down before — carving out one special program here and another special program there?" he said Wednesday night. 'I don't think that is what the American people expect of us. More important, I don't think that is what they want."

Reagan spoke as a president with a mandate, the easy victor over a Democrat whose leadership foundered on the same economic woes the Republican administration now promises to cure.

One month into his term, Reagan's popularity rating is high. His political powers have just been proven at the polls. His standing has not yet been tarnished by the setbacks and controversies that inevitably go with the office.

All that will change; at least it has for every one of his predecessors.

So there is no better season for a president to ask for it all. Reagan won't get it all, but that's what he is demanding.

"If the program is accepted piecemeal — if only those aspects that are politically palatable are adopted — then this economic policy will be no more than a repeat of what has been tried before," Reagan said. "And we already know the results of the stop-and-go policies of the past."

He blames those policies for double digit inflation, "absurd levels" of interest, a roster of nearly 8 million unemployed workers, soaring federal deficits and rising taxes.

"If we do not act forcefully, and now, the economy will get worse," he said.

But if Congress will take his prescription, Reagan said, it will get better.

Art Exhibit Is On Display

Now through March 15, paintings by prominent southeastern regional artists can be viewed at East Carolina University's Museum of Art/Gray Art Gallery.

The exhibition is on loan from the permanent collection of the Mint Museum in Charlotte.

Gallery Director, Randolph Osman, commented that this collection of work portrays several of the developments in visual art form over the past 20 years including pop art and photorealism.

Represented are such noted painters as Robert Natkin, Frank Faulkner, Stanley Boxer, Doris Keeper, Ben Schoenzeit, Henry Ranson Jr., Carol Nash, Carmen Cicero and Dennis J. Zaborowski.

Also on exhibition in the Gray Gallery are printed fabric designs by Shuji Asada, one of Japan's popular textile designers. Asada currently teaches at the Kyoto Seika College in Japan.

The East Carolina Museum of Art/Gray Art Gallery is open to the public each weekday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Sundays from 1-4 p.m.

Fines For Water Use

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Penalties for excess water use totaling more than $179,000 will be sent this month to the city's large water users, including the Navy.

The Navy's fine of more than $121,000 leads the list of 31 businesses and government agencies that will have to pay for exceeding Norfolk-set limits on water consumption, according to figures released Friday.

The Navy's fine, if it is not overturned on appeal, will be the largest ever levied under Norfolk's four month-old water rationing plan.

The city's water customers are limited to 75 percent of their water consumption from last year. Any usage above that figure is fined on a rising schedule that begins at $2.67 per thousand gallons of excess.

In January, the Navy said its water use would be sharply above its allocation because of a large number of ships in port and record cold weather. The Navy uses steam heat, and water use rises as the temperature falls.

According to Norfolk, the Navy's average daily usage of water in January was 10.435 million gallons. Its allocation was 8.869 million.

City officials said the Navy has not yet reacted to the fines.

"Our position is that if they used the water, they will pay for it. They will be treated like all other customers," said Utilities Director John E. Kemper.

Colonna Shipyard also was heavily fined. It was penalized $30,320 on a water bill of only $2,275.

Speaker In Lecture Series Here

Patrick Valentine, director of the North Carolina Foreign Language Center, will be the featured speaker at the Library Science Lecture Series program on Monday. The program will be held in room 221 of Joyner Library at 6:30 p.m. A social hour will follow the lecture. All interested persons are invited to attend.

The North Carolina Foreign Language Center has books, records, games, and other materials in more than 70 languages. Materials are available to all residents of North Carolina through the inter-library loan program at local public libraries.

The Library Science Lecture Series is being sponsored jointly by the East Carolina University Department of Library Science and the ECU Library Science Alumni Association. Dr. Carol J. Veitch is the program director for the lecture series. Additional information on this lecture and the remaining lectures in the series may be obtained by calling the Department of Library Science at 757-6621.

Attacks Sale

PEKING (AP) — China said today it was "extremely regrettable" that the Dutch government stuck to its decision to allow the sale of two submarines to Taiwan.

China's official Xinhua News Agency called the decision Friday "erroneous" because it disregarded the "protests of the Chinese Government and the vote of the Dutch Parliament."

"The Chinese Government's position on this issue is clear-cut and steadfast. We shall make our response after studying the formal reply from the Dutch," a Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

China asked a month ago for the downgrading of Sino-Dutch relations to the charge d'affaires level on grounds the submarine sale would undermine those relations.

Show Features Varied Events

Hospitality House, airing from 12 noon-1 p.m. on WITN-TV channel 7, will open with Balloons over Greenville, featuring Roxanne Harrell from the Mushroom. NBC star James Farentino, who plays Juan Peron in "Evita Peron," premiering Feb. 23-24, 9-11, will be on the show also

In the interior decoration segment Maggy Cosandy, interior designer from New Bern, born in Cairo, Egypt, will talk on area rugs, including orientals.

Artist Dimitrios Zografos from Oxilithos, Greece, now a naturalized American citizen living in Raleigh, will show his oil paintings.

In the kitchen, Susan Hardy, N.C. Egg Marketing Association, will prepare a bacon dip and quick-as-a-wink quiche.

Friday Wrecks

An estimated $8,425 property damage resulted from a series of seven traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police, Friday.

Officers reported heavest damage resulted from a 4 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial and Club Pines Drives, involving cars driven by William Edward Jones of 1611 Lincoln Dr., and Lucy Suggs Garris of Ayden.

Police, who estimated damage at $2,500 to the Jones car and $250 to the Garris auto, charged Ms. Garris with driving without a license.

Cars driven by Kay Williams Tuten of Route 13, Greenville and Paul Davis Walston of Route 1, Hookerton, collided about 4:20 p.m. on Arlington Boulevard, East of the Hooker Road intersection, causing $1,000 damage to the Tuten car and $600 damage to the Walston auto.

Officers reported cars driven by Sandra Macioroski Schofield of 1203 East Fifth St., and William Dallas Cherry III of 1802 Sulgrave Rd., collided about 3:46 p.m. on Greene Street, 700 feet North of the First Street intersection.

Damage was estimated at $50 to the Schofield car and $1,500 to the Cherry vehicle.

A 3:40 p.m. collision on Farmville Boulevard,25 feet West of the Line Avenue intersection involved vehicles driven by Jacqueline Deniece Costin of 1210 Chestnut St., and Willie Ray Brown of 1406 Myrtle Ave., officers reported.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $500 to the Costin car and $400 to the Brown vehicle.

Karen Bondareff of 119 Riverbluff Apts. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8:45 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fourth and Harding Streets.

Investigators reported the Bondareff car collided with an auto driven by Paula Jean Harris of 1091 Cherry Court Apts., causing an estimated $300 damage to each of the two vehicles.

A truck driven by Mark Aaron Conway of Route 1, Grimesland, and a car operated by Helen Hunter Moore of Grifton, collided about 5:30 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Bismark Street, causing $350 damage to the Conway truck and $250 damage to the car.

Coleen Anita Lemnah of 1107 North Overlook Dr. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8:45 a.m. collision on Elm Street, 300 feet South of the Tenth Street intersection.

Police said the Lemnah car collided with a car operated by Gary Lee Klink of Winterville, causing $75 damage to the Lemnah car and $350 damage to the Klink auto.

Reading Group Meets Here

The International Reading Association held its meeting at Hooker Memorial Church Feb. 17. Speaker for the event was Dr. Eleanor Ladd, a staff member of the University of South Carolina and administrative member of the International Reading Association.

Her talk centered on increasing comprehension skills of children in reading programs. She said more attention should be paid to comprehension, and that in a lot of instances teachers did not give children due credit, according to a club spokesperson. Eighty five people attended the dinner meeting.

INITIAL SERMON

Phyllis Thomas will preach her initial sermon at St. Matthew's FWB Church tonight at 7:30.

Music will be rendered by the Gospel Chorus. The public is invited, according to chorus president, Charles Davis.

CLUB TO MEET

The North River Community Club will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lodge — 106 Catawba Rd. Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Nicaragua Aided Salvadoran Left

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nicaraguan government resumed sending tons of weapons to Salvadoran guerrillas last fall shortly after receiving $40 million from the United States, American officials say.

The shipments of arms and other supplies apparently were carried out covertly under supervision of pro-Cuban elements within the Nicaraguan leadership, the officials said.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said they feel certain the operation was unknown to the more moderate elements within the Nicaraguan government.

The extent of the Nicaraguan role in sending weaponry to El Salvador became known Friday with publication of a secret State Department document by the New York Times.

State Department spokesman William Dyess said Friday that American policy toward Nicaragua is "under review." He said the administration has asked Nicaragua about its role in El Salvador and is awaiting a reply.

Another State Department representative declined to comment later Friday on reports, by CBS News and The Washington Post, that Nicaraguan officials have promised to try to stop the arms flow.

The Reagan administration is expected to issue a report Monday on communist aid to Salvadoran guerrillas as part of what appears to be a plan to make El Salvador the first testing ground of an administration campaign to combat Soviet-inspired international terrorism.

The State Department document published Friday reconstructs the assistance the Salvadoran guerrillas have received from Soviet-bloc countries since December 1979.

Much of the information in it, particularly Cuba's role as a relay point for weapons received from Vietnam, Ethiopia and other countries, had been disclosed previously by the State Department and other sources.

The new information concerns the Nicaraguan government, which the Carter administration, over the objections of congressional conservatives, had tried to woo last year with large-scale development aid.

Local Builders To Be Cited

Nine Greenville builders will receive recognition this week for achievement in design and construction of energy efficient homes. Award certificates and plaques will be distributed at the Second Annual Energy Efficient Builders Awards Luncheon Wed., Feb. 25, at the Ramada Inn from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m.

The E-300 awards are a series of yearly presentations given to builders and other trade professioanls for outstanding achievement in community service and in recognition of their efforts to create new housing to meet the challenge of today's and tomorrow's energy needs.

Builders electing to participate in this program in the future should first submit house plans and energy related specifications to the Energy Conservation Office of Greenville Utilities. A careful evaluation is then made of the design — insulation levels, efficiency of the heating and cooling systems, and other factors — which determine the overall energy efficiency of the home. The E-300 standards are considerably higher than those of the North Carolina State Building Code.

Prospective home buyers can identify new homes being constructed by E-300 standards by the green and gold sign located at the building site. For further information on E-300 homes contact:

Robbie Tugwell
Energy Services Officer
Greenville Utilities
752-7166

Break-In Charges

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department has arrested two persons in connection with separate break-in and larceny incidents at rural homes in the county.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Darlene Iola James, 20, of Winterville was charged with the Feb. 17 breaking, entering and larceny at the home of Ethel Tyson, 107 Worthington Street, Winterville.

The sheriff said that a cassette tape recorder, records, various ladies clothes, and a gold necklace, valued collectively at $115, were reported missing in the incident. He added that all of the items were recovered except the records.

Bond for Darlene James was set at $500.

Sheriff Tyson reported that Joan Dorsey, 19, of Rt. 3, Washington, was charged with the Feb. 17 break-in and larceny at the home of John A. Bruce, Box 72, Grimesland.

Bruce reported that some $175 was taken in the break-in.

Builders Club Starts At Aycock

A Builders Club, sponsored by the University City Kiwanis Club, was chartered recently at Aycock Junior High School with Glenn Fisher of the University City Club presiding.

Builders Clubs are co-educational service organizations for junior high school students that operate under the guidance of local Kiwanis clubs.

Officers of the new club are: Marjorie Jones, president; Lisa Parrott, vice president; Caroline Powell, secretary; and Emily McDonnell, treasurer. The club's advisor is Carroll Vann, a teacher at Aycock.

Les Garner of the University City Club presided over the installation of officers and Don Parrott, immediate past president of the club, gave the welcome and recognition of guests and presented the charter.

The Aycock club members received an award for their work during the Christmas season involving the collection of money for the Salvation Army by participating in bell ringing activities at various locations in town.

Future plans for the club, it was mentioned, include doing volunteer work at Pitt Memorial Hospita and sponsoring a teacher appreciation day at Aycock. The club also had a school spirit day which included sponsorship of a bus to a recent out-of-town junior varsity basketball game.

Clark Named Treasurer

Louis Clark, a member of the City Council here, was elected Thursday as treasurer of the Mid-East Economic Development Commission.

Clark was elected to the council in October of 1979 and serves as an ex-officio member on the Planning and Zoning Commission and liaison person to the Board of Adjustments. He is a former chairman of the planning board.

He has served as president of the local Board of Realtors and is a member of the University City Kiwanis Club.

A 1950 graduate of East Carolina University, Clark and his wife, Harriet, have three children.

Parent Workshop Set For PCC

A Parent Education Workshop will be held at Pitt Community College Wednesday beginning at 7 p. m. The workshop is titled, "An Introduction to the Lamaze Method of Birth."

The free workshop will be held in Room 12 of the Administration Building. Included will be a presentation of materials and a film. It is designed for mother and mothers-to-be interested in the Lamaze Childbirth program. Presenters are early childhood specialist students, Martha Taylor, Retha Pender, Janie Garlin and Patty Wadford. For further information, call 756-8174.

Internship Assigned In Edgecombe

Frances Gray of Greenville has received an assignment to the Edgecombe County Health Department for a ten-week internship in community health education.

Ms. Gray will work under the immediate supervision of Carlton Adams, a senior level public health educator on the Health Department staff with many years of distinguished service in higher education, alcoholism programs and public health.

During the internship, Ms. Gray will analyze various community health problems in Edgecombe County and devise and implement educational approaches to their solution.

According to Professor William Byrd, who will be Ms. Gray's ECU faculty advisor for the internship, East Carolina has the first and only undergraduate health education curriculum sanctioned by the national Society for Public Education. Byrd says program graduates are employed in a variety of educational roles and settings, including patient education in hospitals and rural medical centers, administrative and supervisory roles in health departments, community service agencies and private foundations. The majority, Byrd says, are in generalist roles in public health education in local health departments across the state.

Poetry Entries Being Accepted

The North Carolina Poetry Society has announced that entries are now being accepted for the annual Zoe Kincaid Brockman Memorial Contest.

The competition is open to North Carolina poets who have published book-length volumes of poems in 1980.

The Brockman Award winner will be announced at the November, 1981 meeting of the North Carolina Poetry Society during Culture Week in Raleigh.

Established in memory of Mrs. Zoe Kincaid Brockman, a North Carolina journalist and poet, the Contest was initiated in 1976. Authors wishing additional information may write, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Ann Deagon, 802 Woodbrook Dr., Greensboro, NC 27410.

CLASSIFIED ADS are as close as your telephone. Just dial 752-6166 and ask for a friendly Ad-Visor.

Adopt-A-Pet

The Adopt-a-Pet of the Week is a female part-shepherd, part-collie dog, six-to-seven months old and very playful. She is brown with some darker tones and is a medium-sized dog. Call the Greenville Animal Shelter at 752-3342, ext. 322, weekends and weekdays. This dog will be put to sleep Monday morning unless she is adopted.

Also being sought homes by the Pitt County Humane Society are the following:

A two-year-old black female cat, house-trained. 752-1928.

— A male part poodle that has had all its shots and is good with children. 753-5692 or 753-5155.

— A five-week-old female puppy, brown and black, short-haired, possibly with some German shepherd blood, and a three-year-old black and white male part-German shepherd, long-haired. Both may be seen at Bateman's Animal Hospital.

— Seven five-week-old puppies, German shepherd and boxer mix, very pretty. 758-7986.

— Two two-month-old male long-haired puppies. 752-5381.

— Three nine-week-old mixed breed puppies, one brown male and two black and white female. 756-8061.

— A 16-month-old black male Labrador retriever. 746-2064.

— A four-month-old black female kitten, very affectionate. Spaying will be paid for by the former owner. 752-5794.

To place an animal for adoption through this column, published free of charge each Sunday, call Elizabeth Savage, 756-4867; Barbara Haddock, 752-9922; or Carol Tyer or Mary Schulken, 752-6166

RAILROAD FIRE — Flame and smoke leap high in the air as several railroad cars burn out of control Friday on a trestle over the Trinity River near downtown Dallas, Tex. The threat of an explosion was possible, firefighters said, because a tank car loaded with alcohol was on the burning trestle. (AP Laserphoto)

OPEC Oil Ministers To Meet In Geneva, May Increase Price

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — New oil price increases and substantial production cutbacks may be in store for Western nations following a secret, two-day meeting of OPEC oil ministers, industry sources say.

There was no official word from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, but sources in Europe and the United States said Saudi Arabia — the world's largest oil producer and the supplier of 8 percent of U.S. oil needs — may be planning a substantial cut in output and a $2-a-barrel price increase to $34 a barrel.

OPEC Secretary-General Rene Ortiz said the meeting, which ended Friday, took up "long-term strategy" matters, including prices and relations with the Third World. He refused to say whether the 13-nation cartel's prices or production policies had been reviewed.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister, said that "so far, no change" has been decided on his country's daily production level of 10.3 million barrels. On prices, "nothing yet" had been decided, he said.

Industry sources said the OPEC meeting included Yamani, ministers and other officals from Venezuela, Indonesia, Algeria, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates.

The meeting came amid continued growth of the world oil surplus and a resulting decline in prices on the spot market, due to drops in oil consumption and increases in production by Mexico, Britain and other non-OPEC members.

Non-communist world oil use fell nearly 5 percent last year and is expected to fall 1 percent to 2 percent more in 1981 following a more than 150 percent jump in OPEC prices since late 1978. OPEC's daily production of 24.5 million barrels accounts for half of the oil needs of the non-communist world.

Because a seasonal drop of 4.5 million barrels a day in Western oil demand is expected as winter ends, oil supplies will be ample "to meet current consumption requirements as well as build up normal inventory levels," said Gary Ross, an economist at the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation in New York.

Faced with the surplus and spot-market price drop, some oil industry sources said the Saudis may be planning to reduce their oil output to as little as 8 million or 8.5 million barrels daily. Kuwait and Libya also were reported to be considering output cuts.

OPEC last raised official prices in late December and early January, pushing the average price of the cartel's oil up $3, to $35 a barrel. Saudi Arabia, however, set its minimum oil price at $32 a barrel, $4 below OPEC's current suggested base price.

Last week, the Saudis informed buyers they would have to pay $36 a barrel on 600,000 barrels a day of "emergency" supplies provided to help make up for the loss of oil shipments from Iran and Iraq, due to the war between the two neighbors.

Industry analysts said a $2-a-barrel increase on all of Saudi Arabia's oil could boost average U.S. gasoline or heating oil prices less than a half-cent a gallon but could result in larger increases if other OPEC members follow suit.

Two Charged By Deputies

Two persons were arrested early Thursday by Pitt County deputies and charged on drug possession counts, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

He said that Willie James Payton, 31, and La Janese Edwards, 29, both of 1109-A Fairfax Avenue here, were arrested at the Fairfax Avenue address and charged with felonious possession of heroin. He added that a small quantity of heroin was confiscated.

He noted that the arrests took place at 3:47 a.m. Thursday morning.

Both persons were placed in Pitt County Jail, he said, and bond was set at $10,000 each.

Actor-Playwright Emlyn Williams Is Still Dickens

By GLENNE CURRIE
UPI Lively Arts Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — That stocky, apple-cheeked, white-haired gentleman walking round town talking to himself isn't Santa Claus.

It might be Charles Dickens or Dylan Thomas or even Saki (Scottish humorist H.H. Munro).

It is, in fact, Emlyn Williams.

The Welsh-born actor-playwright is seen so often in makeup in his one-man shows as Dickens or Thomas or Saki that it comes as something of a shock to recall that there is an Emlyn Williams.

He currently is touring the U.S. again in an updated version of "Emlyn Williams as Charles Dickens," which he first wrote and performed in 1951.

He has toured all over the world with it since then, donning the distinctive Dickens whiskers every few years.

"I never thought it would last this long," he said in a recent interview. "But I'm coming up to the 2,000th performance. I haven't done it for four years and I never do it more than three months at a time. That way I always come to it fresh."

"I walk everywhere," he said, having just walked a couple of miles across Manhattan in freezing temperatures. "I get claustrophobia unless I can get out for part of the day. I go through my part while I'm walking. People think: 'Poor old thing, talking to himself!'"

During the interview he posed for photographs before a poster proclaiming the 30th anniversary of the show.

"Maybe people will think I'm only 30," he smiled.

He is 75 and has been acting 51 years. There still is the music of the Welsh hills in his voice. But many years of living and working in England have erased most traces of the knife-sharp brogue of the youngster who wrote and starred in "The Corn is Green" and "Night Must Fall."

"Emlyn Williams as Charles Dickens" — the first and most popular of his one-man shows — had its start when he was asked to take part in the big annual charity show in London, Night of a Thousand Stars.

"They wanted me to do something from 'Night Must Fall,' but it was 15 years since I'd played it and I wanted to try something else," he said.

"I had about 20 minutes, so I did the lawyer's role from 'Bleak House,' which has a wonderful description of London."

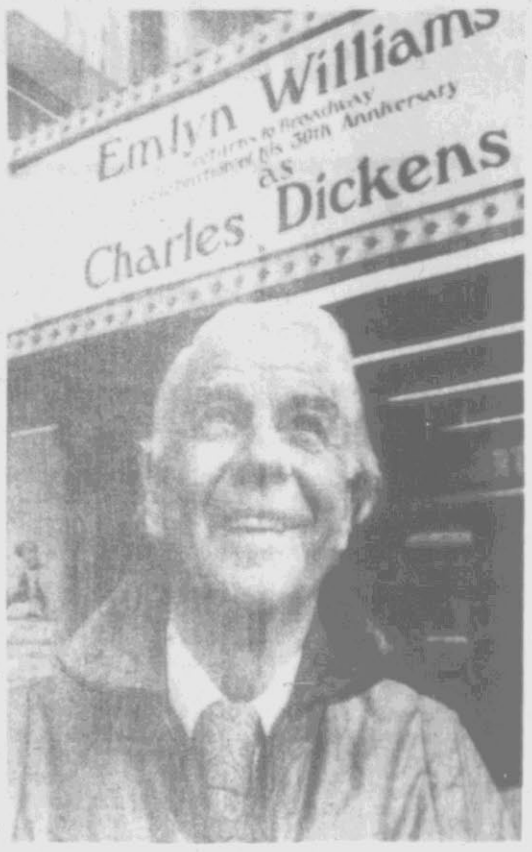
Dickens himself gave one-man readings of his work very successfully on the lecture circuit in the U.S. and Britain toward the end of his career. Williams decided to try to recreate those readings, costumed and made up like Dickens and using a lectern modeled on the one Dickens carried with him.

"I worked on it over the next year and finally tried it out. It was quite an experience because I'd never been alone on stage before.

"Dickens wanted to prove himself as an actor. I, being an actor, am on the other hand fascinated by using prose you couldn't use on stage. I'm able to contribute to the enjoyment by cutting out the things that don't work.

"A lot of Dickens is indigestible.

"I don't try to sound like him because we don't know what he sounded like. Some of the reviews of the time said he had a very resonant voice, others said it was reedy!"



EMLYN WILLIAMS is touring the U.S. in an updated version of his one-man show as Charles Dickens, which he wrote and first performed in 1951. (UPI Photo)

The show was a hit from the start. In the intervening years Williams has added "Dylan Thomas Growing Up" and "The Playboy of the Weekend World," from the writings of Saki.

Williams has been credited with creating the modern one-man show but says "Charles Laughton had done it before I did; reading from the Bible and things like that.

"Five of the items in the show now are new since I first did it. It originally had three acts — everything did in those days, and I thought I'd need two good breaks. But I didn't really need them.

"I found it much easier than being in a play. I can rest a foot or an arm on the lectern at any time, and can change my position as I need to, and I don't get tired.

"When I went back and played Iago I found it exhausting: a long role, on stage all the time, all those costume changes.

"And of course I've done other plays and films since I first did Dickens in 1951. There was 'A Man For All Seasons' in 1962, and 'The Deputy' in 1964. My last film was 'David Copperfield,' with Olivier, Gielgud and Edith Evans. Quite fun. I played Mr. Dick and hardly said anything at all, as compared with this."

The one-man show is a virtual 90-minute monologue with one break. ("Dickens used to have a glass of champagne during the intermissions. I don't drink during the show. It's much more fun to look forward to the drink at the end.")

Williams does much that is familiar in Dickens: the opening of "A Tale of Two Cities," the death of Paul Dombey, and Mrs. Gamp and the Podsnaps (but not "A Christmas Carol," which Dickens used to do). He also relates stories which few Dickens fans know.

Williams, a widower, lives in London's Chelsea district within walking distance of his son Alan Emlyn, a mystery writer, and his 3-year-old grandson and 3-month-old granddaughter. He has another son, Brook Richard.

"I live alone but I'm not domesticated," he said. "I don't cook or clean or anything like that. I love reading — that's my relaxation. And once I'm on the road I always like to have something to write."

"Headlong," his first novel — he has written a score of stage and TV plays — has just been published. It concerns a budding actor who becomes King John II of England when an airship disaster kills off the rest of the Royal Family.

He's now working on "Dr. Crippen's Diary," a fictional account of the English wife-poisoner Hawley Harvey Crippen, who fled to Canada with his mistress Ethel Le Neve, in 1910. They were arrested as their ship neared Quebec.

"He was the first criminal ever caught by radio. The whole world knew the police were waiting for him, but he didn't."

The many one-night stands on the current tour don't bother Williams.

"I love traveling, and I have a wonderful stage manager who does everything for me. I don't even handle money on tour.

"I have two people traveling with me; the stage manager and an assistant stage manager. They lead me to the stage, and I try out the acoustics and I'm all ready.

"It's so easy. I just rely on the words."

Popular Opera Opens Feb. 26

ECU NEWS BUREAU

"Die Fledermaus," the popular comic opera by Johann Strauss, will be performed by the East Carolina University Opera Theatre Feb. 26, 27 and 28 at 8 p.m. in the Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall.

The performance will be the English language version by Garson Kanin and Howard Dietz first performed by the Metropolitan Opera in 1950.

"Die Fledermaus" is a blend of melodies in waltz and polka styles, light musical ensembles and comic spoken dialogue.

Some roles are double cast in the ECU version, enabling as many ECU voice students to perform as possible on alternating evenings.

Among the performers are Frederick Johnson of Tarboro, Ann Gunn of Durham, Patricia Hiss of Greenville and Buffalo, N.Y., Jeffrey Krantz and Beth Carter of Charlotte, Teresa Buion of Virginia Beach, Susan West Jones of Wilmington, Stephanie Scoville of Apex, Alan Jones of Snow Hill, Gerald Murphy of Hopewell, Va., Constantine Peters of Rockville, Md., Cheryl Holder of Raleigh, Alysa Smith of Cairo, Ga., Philip Brown of Rockingham and Timothy Parker of Newport.

"Die Fledermaus" centers around a 19th century Austrian aristocrat, Gabriel von Eisenstein, who is subjected to an elaborate practical joke by his friend, Dr. Fritz Falke. Previously, Eisenstein had played a prank which gave Falke the nickname "Fledermaus" ("The Bat")

To even the score, Falke persuades Eisenstein to come to a dress ball under a pseudonym. At the ball, Eisenstein makes advances to a "Hungarian countess" who is actually his own wife, Rosalinda, in disguise.

To add to the embarrassment, Falke arranges for Eisenstein's chambermaid, Adele, to attend. At the party, Eisenstein becomes good friends with a "duke," who turns out to be Frank, warden of the jail.

The ball is given by a Russian prince, Orlofsky, who has commissioned Falke's intrigue to relieve his chronic boredom. The Orlofsky role, though male, is sung by a mezzo-soprano.

Other characters include Alfred, an admirer of Rosalinda's; Frosch, a drunken jailer; Blind, Eisenstein's lawyer; Ida, Adele's sister; and a chorus of party guests.

The performance will be accompanied by the ECU Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Robert Hause. Director of the opera production is Dr. Clyde Hiss.

Tickets to "Die Fledermaus" are available now at the campus Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center, and at the door before each performance, if the supply lasts. Public tickets are $3 each with discounts to persons in groups of 20 or more.

Band Performs

ECU NEWS BUREAU

The 53-member Symphonic Band of the East Carolina University School of Music will perform in concert Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in Wright Auditorium.

Conductor of the band is Tom Goolsby of the ECU music faculty, who also directs ECU's marching band, the "Marching Pirates."

The band's program includes Ralph Vaughan Williams' Folk Song Suite (arrangements of traditional English folk tunes), Vincent Persichetti's "Divertimento for Band," "Elegy" by John Barnes Chance, and Gail Kubick's "Stewball: Three Variations on an American Folk Tune." Concluding the program is a John Philip Sousa march, "The Gallant Seventh."

The concert is free and open to the public.

Illusionist Here

ECU NEWS BUREAU

Illusionist Andre Kole, the "magician's magician," will display some of his unique and elaborate effects at East Carolina University Monday, Feb. 23.

Kole's performance, set for 8 p.m. in Hendrix Theatre, is sponsored by the ECU Campus Crusade for Christ. Tickets are $4 per person with discounts offered for groups of 10 or more and are available each weekday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. in a Mendenhall Student Center booth.

In addition to his invention and development of stage illusion, Kole has become a specialist in investigating "psychic" mysteries, among them African black magic, the Bermuda Triangle mystery and communication with the dead.

During a tour of the Philippines, he investigated "psychic" surgeons and later testified in a U.S. Court on behalf of the Federal Trade Commission's efforts to halt psychic healers in this nation.

The veteran of seven world tours, Kole has performed for more than 70 million people in 73 countries. In his program, says Kole, there is "a fine line between fantasy and reality.

"The world of illusion sometimes appears more real than the world of reality."

Psychic Strongly Feels He's Man With A Mission

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Robert Petro, in Greenville much of this past week to lecture and allow his staff members to do psychic readings and some teaching, had another reason for being in North Carolina.

The New York man was retained by Durham area law enforcement agencies to help solve a murder case. His information, provided law enforcers earlier, led to the finding of the body of a victim, he said. The case will be closed out in the near future, he indicated, but gave no details.

How does his prior knowledge work? Sometimes he gets mental visual images, he said. Sometimes it's just a knowing that he recognizes because it's been happening to him since he was a young child. In this murder case he said he went in his mind to the instant in space and time in which the killing took place. He was for whatever point in time inside the victim's mind, then inside the killer's mind,and then inside that of an observer. For this reason, he said, he knows the motivation of the killer and his pathetic sickness, the fear and suffering of the victim, and the particulars of the scene, including the object used to kill the victim.

It was his information, some of his newspaper clippings indicate, which helped prove the innocence of Peter Reilly, a Connecticut boy accused of killing his mother. This case was widely publicized in a book and movie titled, "A Death in Canaan."

Petro has come to the attention of people in this area largely through the efforts of Allan Handelman, a

ROBERT PETRO

WITN radio talk show host who has provided phone hookups between his studio and Petro's New York residence a number of times. So Petro had a ready-made psychic reading and lecture attendance clientele when he came here, people who either had had readings done by Petro via the telephone lines or who had friends or acquaintances who had. He spoke at Rose High School Monday and also held a news conference at East Carolina University.

"The Rose High students were really responsive," Petro said. "So many times, I have to spend a good deal of my lecture time just seeking to prove that psychic phenomena are real. With these young people, all I had to do was demonstrate a little and then I got right on with helping them see that they, too, can develop their own intuitive thinking ability. It was great. I hope the audience Friday night will be as receptive."

Petro, 41, who speaks quietly and warmly with a slight Italian accent, is a 41-year-old man with a mission. He said he was aware of his psychic abilities even as a very young child and was taunted and rejected at times by family and acquaintances because his thinking was so "abnormal." It was only when he met his wife, Marina, already a student of the psychic world, in 1961 that he began to own up to his gift and to refine his powers. A stranger whom he felt compelled to give insight into personal problems gave a copy of "There Is A River," a book about the psychic, Edgar Cayce, which led him realize that his abilities were not a curse, but a blessing.

"And I've sought to make my mental powers a blessing to myself and everyone I meet ever since," he said. "I know within myself that I do and always will use my God-given abilities only for good and constructive purposes. I believe in honesty, so sometimes I tell people things about themselves that aren't pleasant, but always they're for their good."

He is seeking for form a foundation to study and promote the use of psychic knowledge for the good of mankind, he said. He would call it Awareness for the New Age, Inc.

Says Movie Art Form Was Strangled

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lillian Gish, her 103rd film behind her and half-a-dozen new scripts under consideration, is on the campaign trail to resurrect an art form she says was cruelly strangled before it ever really had a chance to grow.

"I think films are still in their babyhood, crawling around on their hands and knees," said the unchallenged matriarch of movie-making as she poured tea before a blazing fireplace in her book-lined Manhattan apartment. "How long did it take the printing press to come of age? This is greater than the printing press. This is a living history of the world and that's bigger and better than a written history.

"We are the first century to leave a living history of our life and times and we don't even know it. We treat it like the comic section."

But Miss Gish really was talking about silent films — those now-vintage dramas of subtitle in which she and sister Dorothy starred as the most luminous beauties of their day. "Talkies" buried the silents overnight, and though Miss Gish stepped easily across the grave, she always felt something essential was left behind.

"I've been proselytizing for silent film and great music for 11 years," she said. "I've been around the world three times in the last five years lecturing on the subject.

"There was one silent film called 'Birth of a Nation,' and nobody can duplicate that to this day. Nobody can imitate it ... No other film ever played to three times the population — and it still isn't safe to run it because you'll have your theater destroyed."

Miss Gish starred in the D.W. Griffith Civil War classic, but the film enrages some segments of the black community who charge it furthers racial stereotypes and their demonstrations at recent showings have turned violent.

"They did $15,000 worth of damage when the film ran in San Francisco," she said. "It's so crazy. That's what we went to war about. Lincoln said, 'You can't have a nation half free and half slave,' and we killed hundreds of thousands of people to set those black people free.

"Now black people will destroy a theater that's telling this story. Does that make sense? But the point is — it's still power."

Another silent film — "Napoleon," shot on the very eve of talking pictures — recently jammed New York's Radio City Music Hall for eight sold-out performances and gave more fuel to Miss Gish's campaign.

"That brought back silent film with great music and do you know what they played to each performance over there? One hundred thousand dollars! They gave eight performances and they were just under $800,000 at the box office. There's proof. I just hope now somebody will do something about it."

Though she still makes them — "Thin Ice," with Kate Jackson for CBS airing Tuesday is the latest, her view of modern movies is not sanguine.

"Did you see 'Apocalypse Now?'" she asked. "Well, I spent $4 and five years looking at it. What's it about? It hasn't a beginning, a middle or an end. It doesn't mean anything. It's just a waste of money.

"I don't say we don't make good ones, but they're few and far between. 'Kramer vs. Kramer,' 'Turning Point,' 'Ordinary People.' And '9 to 5' — that's one of the funniest pictures I ever saw. Chaplin never made me laugh more than that."

But Miss Gish, who in her youth under producer-director Griffith, teamed with her sister to discover such screen immortals as Ronald Coleman, Rudolf Valentino and Mary Astor, is more concerned with the memorable than with the merry, and with the fact that the Russians truly "understand the power of film."

"Did you see 'War and Peace?'" she asked. "I saw it four times. They took 10 years to make it ... you see factories that are so beautiful you'd like to go out and live in them. You see orchards in blossom with beautiful little children playing underneath them. You see Siberia looking like a poem in white.

"They hold their people together by the love of Mother Russia — Mother Earth. The people don't think any more of their government than you and I think of their government, but for Mother Earth and Mother Russia they would lay down their lives.

"We've never done our great men. There's never been a film on Thomas Jefferson or of our constitution. George Washington, Benjamin Franklin — all that period has still to be done. And think what that would do around the world. The world is fighting for two different ideologies — the Communists and this thing we call freedom.

"Now, when they do a 'Napoleon' on our history, they'll make a fortune."

LILLIAN GISH, a veteran of 103 movies, says film-making should be living history but "we treat it like the comic section". (UPI Photo)

Doskey In Recital

PIANIST PERFORMS . . . Pianist Henry Doskey, a member of the ECU School of Music faculty, will perform works by Mozart, Ravel, and Chopin in a recital set Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Hendrix Theatre at Mendenhall Student Center.

Pianist Henry Doskey, a member of the East Carolina University School of Music faculty, will perform works by Mozart, Ravel, and Chopin in a recital set for Tuesday at 8:15 p.m.

The program will be held in the Hendrix Theater of ECU's Mendenhall Student Center and is free and open to the public.

The opening work, Mozart's "Sonata" KV 311, was completed during his stay in Mannheim and was actually used by him for an "audition" for an appointment, which, incidentally, Mozart did not secure.

The second work programmed is "Gaspard de la Nuit" by Maurice Ravel. According to Doskey, the tone of the "Gaspard" suite is one of evil and corruption. In this setting, inspired by the poems by the Symbolist Bertrand, Ravel utilizes an incredible array of pianistic tricks throughout as he portrays "the cold and cruel water sprite Ondine," a gallows scene in which "the incessant reiteration of a single tone is like the clanking of chains in the breeze," and finally, "Scarbo, an agent of evil forces," who "spins and twirls and grimaces, and disappears."

Chopin's "Four Etudes" and "Sonata No. 2" in B-flat Minor, Op. 35, will conclude the evening.

Among Doskey's recital appearances have been two Carnegie Hall performances and a performance in Chicago's Symphony Hall.

In a review in the "Chicago Tribune," John Von Rhein wrote of Koskey's performance of the Lisze "Sonato in B Minor":

"He possesses a big, serviceable technique that gets him around the keyboard accurately, and a tone that is particularly attractive in the softer dynamic reaches. There is serious musicianship here to respect."

A native of New Orleans, Henry Doskey began his musical studies at an early age. He has earned the bachelor's and master's degrees in piano at Southern Methodist University and the doctorate in piano performance at Indiana University where he studied piano and chamber music with Menahem Pressler. While there, he also studied piano with Gyorgy Sebok, Jorge Bolet, and the late Sidney Foster.

Regional Artists' Work Exhibited Here

Now through March 15, paintings by prominent southeastern regional artists can be viewed at East Carolina University's Museum of Art/Gray Art Gallery.

The exhibition is on loan from the permanent collection of the Mint Museum in Charlotte.

Gallery Director, Randolph Osman, commented that this collection of work portrays several of the developments in visual art form over the past 20 years including pop art and photorealism.

Represented are such noted painters as Robert Natkin, Frank Faulkner, Stanley Boxer, Doris Keeper, Ben Schoenzeit, Henry Ranson Jr., Carol Nash, Carmen Cicero and Dennis J. Zaborowski.

Also on exhibition in the Gray Gallery are printed fabric designs by Shuji Asada, one of Japan's popular textile designers. Asada currently teaches at the Kyoto Seika College in Japan.

The East Carolina Museum of Art/Gray Art Gallery is open to the public each weekday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Sundays from 1-4 p.m.

Claims Attache Caught In Act

MOSCOW (AP) — A U.S. military attache was caught "having sexual intercourse" with a woman in a Soviet hotel room, the official Soviet news agency says in its version of what Washington claims was a bid to blackmail the American into becoming a Kremlin spy.

The U.S. allegations of blackmail "could cause only a smile if not for Washington's striving to use even such means for building anti-Sovietism," the Tass news agency said in its report Friday.

It identified the officer as "Major Hallbrook," but the story clearly referred to Maj. James R. Holbrook, 41, who left the Soviet Union abruptly last month and returned to Washington for reassignment.

The State Department said in Washington Tuesday that it had filed a protest with the Soviets over an alleged attempt to recruit Holbrook as a spy.

U.S. officials in Moscow said he apparently was the victim of a blackmail attempt involving drugs and sex, purportedly engineered by the Soviet secret police. Holbrook, married and the father of three children, reported the incident to his superiors at the U.S. Embassy and left the Soviet Union.

Embassy officials refused to comment on the incident, but Western sources in Moscow said it occurred when Holbrook and another U.S. military attache, Lt. Col. Thomas A. Spencer, visited the Ukrainian city of Rovno near the Polish border. Embassy officials said Spencer was out of the country and unavailable for comment.

Western military attaches have made regular trips to the Polish border area to monitor Soviet military activity in light of Poland's labor troubles. The visitors generally travel in pairs to avoid incidents.

Tass attributed its version of the incident to what it said was a telegram from the director of the Mir Hotel in Rovno, where the two Americans reportedly checked in on Jan. 13.

According to the Tass account, the two men returned to their room at two in the morning "with a woman whom they took from the restaurant."

Told by the administrator on duty that they could not have a guest at that hour, the men "said something rude" and the administrator called the militia.

"Entering the room, hotel staff and the militiamen saw that the American diplomats were undressed. Hallbrook was having sexual intercourse with the women (sic) they had brought in," the agency said.

Tass said Western reports that the Americans might have been drugged were "bewildering" and part of "a new anti-Soviet campaign." It claimed their restaurant bill showed each had drunk up to a quart and a half of alcohol.

Heart Sunday Volunteers Will Be Visting

Heart Sunday in Greenville is today, February 22, according to Camille Archie, city chairman for the Pitt County Heart Association. Today, volunteers will visit their neighborhoods, leave educational materials and ask for contributions to the Heart Fund.

Cardiovascular disease kills more people than all other causes combined although the death rate from heart and blood vessel disease began declining in 1978 and continued down in 1979. In Pitt County alone, 336 deaths or 49 percent of all deaths in the county were due to diseases of the cardiovascular system. Statewide, 50 percent of all deaths involved some form of cardiovascular disease. Nationwide, the death toll was 51 percent.

Over 34 percent of all deaths are due to heart attack, over 11 percent are due to congenital heart disease and other heart ailments.

"Although we think of heart disease as affecting only older adults," Mrs. Archie stated, "but just last year in the United States over 25,000 babies were born suffering heart defects. Also, studies have detected hypertension in children as young as four years old.

"The only purpose of the Heart Association," she continued, "is to reduce death and disablity from cardiovascular disease. To accomplish this, we have a two-fold program: research and education. Last year, of every dollar raised in North Carolina, 36.6 cents went to research, 15 cents went to public health education, 15 cents to community service projects, 11.5 cents to professional education and training, 14.3 cents to fund raising, and 7.6 cents to management."

Archie pointed out that in Pitt County the new medical school at East Carolina received over $15,000 for research, and that figure is expected to increase this year.

Hopes For Compromise Pleasing Israel, Saudis

WASHINGTON (AP) — After hearing Israel's objections to proposals that the United States boost the offensive punch of Saudi Arabia's F-15 warplanes, Secretary of State Alexander Haig said he is hopeful a compromise can be reached.

"Clearly there are differences as we would anticipate and we would hope to work them out," Haig said Friday after meeting with Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir for three hours.

Shamir left no doubt how his country stood on the issue: "We have discussed it and we have explained clearly our position — we oppose this."

Meanwhile, eight members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee made public a letter to President Reagan expressing "serious concern" about Saudi Arabia's request for larger fuel tanks and multiple-ejection bomb racks to increase the range and fire power of the F-15's.

Congress approved the sale of 60 of the planes in 1978 but only after the Carter administration gave assurances that the warplanes' offensive capability would be restricted.

"We recognize that the security of Saudi Arabia is important to U.S. interests, but our interests in the region as a whole could be jeopardized were we to disregard past assurances or were we to upset the regional balance of power," said the eight senators.

The eight are Sens. Joseph R. Biden, D-Del., Larry Pressler, R-S.D., John Glenn, D-Ohio, Chris Dodd, D-Conn., Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

Shamir, the highest ranking Israeli official to visit the United States since President Reagan took office, also met with Vice President George Bush at the White House. He also met with Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger.

Secretary Burned

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Investigators today were continuing an investigation into a raid on an Ironworkers union local, in which a secretary and her office were doused with gasoline and set afire.

Pamela King, 25, who was married just a week ago, was in critical condition today with burns over 70 percent of her body.

The attack Thursday occurred after two men, wearing ski masks and shouting anti-union remarks, entered the office, arson investigators said.

Mrs. King, who had gone into a back room to put a bank-drop bag in a safe, said she was held by one man while the other poured the liquid — either gasoline or kerosene — around the office and then on her. After lighting it they fled, she said.

An off-duty fireman, Mark Parris, was among passersby who saw her struggle from the building, her clothes smoldering.

Two Added To Missing List

ATLANTA (AP) — As authorities added two more black children — one missing for three days, the other dead for eight months — to the list of missing or slain Atlanta youngsters, former Gov. Lester Maddox begged the killer to "come to me."

The additions bring to 20 the number of children missing or slain in the past 19 months.

Maddox made a newspaper appeal to the killer or killers to "please surrender quickly."

"Please don't cause any more death, grief, fear and tragedy for Atlanta's children, their families and Atlanta," said the advertisement in the front section of today's combined editions of The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution.

"You are gaining nothing for yourself, while destroying or ruining the lives of many," the ad said.

"If you don't wish to go directly to the police, then come to me."

If the person responsible surrendered to him and Maddox was given the $100,000 reward money, the former governor said he would give $10,000 of it to the suspect "to assist with your legal defense."

Maddox said he would divide the remaining $90,000 among the families of the children.

On Friday, Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said the special 35-member police task force investigating the deaths and disappearances has been assigned two new cases.

He said the task force is investigating the disappearance of Curtis Walker after an intensive 24-hour search by police and volunteers failed to locate the 13-year-old last seen Thursday at a small shopping center.

Also added to the task force investigation was the death of 10-year-old Aaron Darnell Wyche, whose body was found June 24 under a railroad trestle in DeKalb County inside the Atlanta city limits.

Wyche's death had been ruled accidental by the DeKalb medical examiner, who listed positional asphyxiation as the cause of death. Authorities had speculated that he died after falling and landing face down at the foot of the trestle.

But the boy's parents have maintained since their son's death that it could not have been accidental. They say the youth was afraid of heights and would not have gone near the edge of the trestle.

In another development Friday, DeKalb County Public Safety Director Dick Hand released a composite drawing of a white man wanted as a witness in the slaying of Patrick Baltazar, 11, whose body was found Feb. 13 behind an office complex in DeKalb County. He is the latest child found dead in the string of 18 slayings dating from July 1979.

The composite drawing shows a man about 27 years old with fair complexion, sandy, collar-length hair and a mustache. Hand said he was believed to be driving a faded green 1969 Chevrolet.

"I want to emphasize we want want him for witness purposes only," Hand said, adding that the man may have been at the scene the morning before Baltazar's body was discovered.

All 20 of the victims have been black and between the ages of 7 and 15. Asphyxiation has been listed as the cause of death in eight cases other than the Wyche child. Two were stabbed to death, one was shot and the remains of six other children were so decomposed when found that no cause of death could be determined.

The Walker youth — one of two children still missing — was described as about 5 feet tall, 75 pounds and wearing blue trousers, a brown and yellow shirt and blue tennis shoes.

Crack Found In Bus Axle

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Federal investigators have discovered a crack in the front axle of the D&J Transportation Co. commuter bus that crashed near here earlier this week, killing 11 people and injuring 13.

But Thomas G. Calderwood, in charge of the investigation for the National Traffic Safety Board, said Friday the crack "could have been a result of the collision rather than a cause of the collision."

Ten of the victims of Wednesday's crash were killed instantly when the bus, a 1959 GMC Coach, flew over a guardrail on Interstate 95 and plunged into a creek 80 feet below. The eleventh victim died Thursday in a Washington hospital.

The crack was discovered in a steering component of the bus, Calderwood said. The component would be examined with an electron microscope to determine whether the crack occurred before or as a result of the crash, he said.

Calderwood also said a man who was driving near the bus and reported hearing a "large popping sound" before the wreck would be interviewed. The man was not identified.

An earlier theory that the driver of the bus, Carl Earl, 44, of Stafford County, may have suffered a heart attack was discounted Thursday when results of an autopsy showed that Earl died of massive injuries.

Earl was "an extremely good driver," said Doris Way, who has owned D&J Transportation since 1977.

"I'm deeply saddened. I'm reaching out to each and every one" of the families of the victims, she said.

John Way, Doris' husband and chief mechanic for the small commuter bus firm, said each bus was inspected daily.

"The buses may be old, but they're in excellent shape," he said. Way said he performed the morning maintenance on the vehicle and found nothing unusual.

The bus was headed for Fredericksburg after beginning its afternoon commuter run in Alexandria at the U.S. Army Development and Readiness Commmand, a division of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, where most of the passengers worked.

Jenrette Describes Washington Goings-On

CHICAGO (AP) — Rita Jenrette thought of herself as the model of discretion for keeping quiet about some of Washington's wilder goings-on, she says in an interview in the April issue of Playboy Magazine.

Mrs. Jenrette, who earlier told how she made love to her congressman-husband on the Capitol steps and other tales of Washington life, says she didn't tell about the governor who propositioned her, the politician who kept a mistress on his payroll or the lobbyist who plyed her husband with liquor and set him up with other women.

She gave guarded versions of these new stories in the interview accompanying several photographs of her in the magazine. All the photos show the 31-year-old attractive blonde wearing at least one article of clothing, but many of the poses are topless and seductive.

Her estranged husband, former South Carolina Rep. John W. Jenrette, was convicted Oct. 7, 1980, of taking a bribe in the Abscam scandal and resigned his Democratic seat in December.

Mrs. Jenrette said in the Playboy article that her husband and an arms merchant facing prosecution at one time hoped to get out of their trouble with the law by enlisting the aid of exiled Ugandan dictator Idi Amin to free the American hostages in Iran.

Jenrette and the gunrunner "concocted a plan so bizarre that, had it worked, it might have saved them both," Mrs. Jenrette said. "At least that's what they hoped."

She said she was present when the arms merchant telephoned Amin. She said her husband made some inquiries about this approach to freeing the hostages "but was not encouraged." Before the plan went much further, she said, the gun-runner fled the country.

Mrs. Jenrette also said she was initially flattered by the attentions of an unnamed governor, "who bore a striking resemblance to Cesar Romero."

East Carolina Holds Off Spiders

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

RICHMOND, Va. — Tom Szymanski grabbed off two key rebounds in the final crucial seconds of the game last night to preserve a 67-65 victory over the Richmond Spiders in Robins Center.

The win revenged an earlier 80-63 loss to Richmond in Greenville.

Szymanski pulled off one rebound with ten seconds left but was forced into a jump ball. Then, as time ran out, he picked the ball away after two missed Spider shots to insure the victory.

Richmond, down as much as 11 points came back to nearly pull it out. After closing within two with 46 seconds left, the Spiders got it back when Charlie Watkins missed on the first of a one-and-one.

But after a couple of missed shots, Szymanski got the first rebound and was promptly tied up by Mike Perry. Richmond controlled the tap, and Doug Mills missed a short jumper. John Schweitz tapped it back across the basket and into the hands of Szymanski who wrapped it up as the horn sounded.

The win left Coach Dave Odom with a great deal of pleasure. "I felt our players, as they have done so many times on the road, gave a super effort," he said.

"The bench was the most alive and supportive of the year," he added,

"We hit the clutch shots, got the key rebounds to eliminate second shots. We were as active on jump balls and loose balls as we have been in six weeks."

Odom credited a "different defense" and a change of defense with the victory. "It kept them off stride. Richmond is such a quick passing team, they are hard to defend."

Odom said the Pirates, down 12-4 in the first half, switched from a 3-2 zone. "We showed a 2-3, then drew some match ups."

He praised the play of Michael Gibson, noting he showed fine leadership, and added praise for Barry Wright, especially in the man defense agaist Schweitz.

Richmond vaulted out to an early lead after the Pirates had taken the initial 2-0 count, outhitting the Bucs, 12-4 over the first four and a half minutes of play. Schweitz hit six of those 12.

But the Pirates came alive after that and charged back, outhitting Richmond, 25-6 over the next seven minutes. With Wright contributing nine points to lead the way, the Pirates powered out into a 23-18 lead with 7:48 showing.

After another Schweitz basket, the Pirates added two more baskets, one each by Charles Watkins and Mark McLaurin for a 31-20 lead, the largest of the half by either team.

During the final four and a half minutes, however, the Spiders rallied and cut the lead back to four, 35-31, before Bill McNair hit two free throws with two seconds left for a 37-31 halftime lead.

In the second half, the Pirates held their lead until the midpart, when they held a 50-41 margin. But Schweitz and Perry paced a comeback that cut it to two, 50-48 with 9:10 left.

East Carolina pulled away to a 60-52 lead helped by two key baskets by Bill McNair, with 3:53 left.

Richmond again rallied, behind baskets by Schweitz and Mills to trail by two again. Wright made two pressure free throws with 55 seconds left, but Perry countered that with a basket with 46 seconds showing.

Then, after Watkins was fouled, the final frantic seconds passed with Richmond missing at least four scoring opportunities.

Wright, doing yoeman work, dumped in a game-high 25 points to lead the Pirates. Gibson and Watkins each added 12.

For Richmond, Schweitz had 23 and Perry hit 20. Kizzie added 10.

East Carolina shot well, hitting 57.1 per cent, while Richmond also shot 57 per cent.

The win boosted the Pirates to 12-13, with one game left, next Saturday at Illinois State. Richmond is 13-11.

Lady Bucs Close Out Home Slate Mon. Vs. Deacs

5 Seniors To Play Last Time Here

A Staff Report

East Carolina's Lady Pirates close out the home season Monday night, hosting Wake Forest, in a key NCAIAW contest. Tipoff in Minges Coliseum is set for 7:30 p.m.

It is the final home game for five seniors, and the final regular season game for the Lady Pirates as a whole.

The five seniors making their final appearance in Minges are Marcia Girven, Lydia Rountree, Kathy Riley, Laurie Sikes, and Heidi Owen.

"These five girls have made great contributions to our program," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "A great deal of what has been accomplished here over the last two years is due to their efforts."

Currently 21-5 overall, the Lady Pirates will be trying to win their fourth NCAIAW game in five starts against the Lady Deacons. Should East Carolina win, the Pirates would pull into a tie with North Carolina and N.C. State for the NCAIAW championship for the regular season.

That could mean a bye for East Carolina in the first round of the state tournament, which begins March 2 in Chapel Hill. That is to be determined later in the week, depending on the outcome of the Pirate-Deacon game.

A loss, of course, would drop the Pirates back into third place in the league standings.

"This is a very crucial game," Andruzzi said. "We're coming off one of the biggest wins ever for East Carolina (97-89 in triple overtime over N.C. State in Raleigh), and we must guard against looking back at that.

"It was a big win, however. The first win over State was great, but this was the iceing on the cake. It proves that we're no fluke and deserve to be a Top Twenty team."

Andruzzi's Pirates, ranked as high as 18th in the country, dropped out of the women's poll after bowing in a three-point game to North Carolina — only their second loss since Christmas. The other was a four-point decision to highly ranked Southern California.

"We won (the State) game on skill, talent and execution. We are the only team with as many as 20 wins right now in North Carolina, and that should count for something. But now we have to win Monday night to make it all worthwhile," Andruzzi added.

"Wake Forest is a good team, despite their record. I don't think our girls will underestimate them. They'll play hard because they want to win. I've told them before than overestimation is the path to death. And I know. I was on a team that was one of the best in the country, and we overestimated someone and it cost us a chance at the national title. You can't look ahead. You have to take them one at a time."

Andruzzi said that some form of activity would be held to honor the five graduating seniors. "The greatest honor they could have, however, would be to have another good crowd there to see them off," she added.

"I really want to thank the people that went up to Raleigh to cheer us on, too. And I think the support here is great. I just want our people to be a little more under control. I want our team to be classy and I want our fans to be classy, too."

Wake Forest comes into the game with a 9-16 overall mark and an 0-4 NCAIAW record. They are led by Barbara Durham, a 5-11 sophomore forward with a 13.2 average. Barbara Buchanan, a 5-11 freshman forward, is the only other Deac in double figures with an 11.4 mark. She is also the leading rebounder with a 7.9 average.

Other starters are expected to be Patti Brink, a 5-7 junior forward averaging 7.6; Lauri McNeill, a 5-7 freshman guard, hitting 7.3, and Aime Dozier, a 5-10 junior center, hitting 7.3 per game.

The Pirates are led by Riley, scoring 19.1 points a game, while Sam Jones has regained second place with a 14.7 mark, just ahead of Mary Denkler's 14.5. Griven rounds out those in double figures with an 11.2 average.

East Carolina's next action will be in the State AIAW Tournament, March 2-4 at Chapel Hill.

Tar Heels Whip Clemson, 75-61

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Although it was his last appearance in Carmichael Auditorium, senior Al Wood took a business-like approach to North Carolina's 75-61 victory over Clemson Saturday afternoon.

Wood scored 23 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, but said he was not caught up in the emotion of the day.

"It's a big game and a lot of times you can get too emotional and burn yourself out early in the game," Wood said. "It was our last game. We wanted everybody to have a good time. But the main thing for us is to win the ball game."

Coach Dean Smith paid tribute to Wood, who played the game with a bruised knee suffered in last week's William & Mary game. "Al Wood didn't shoot as well as usual (eight for 16) but his defense was good as was the rest of his game," Smith said. "He's a tremendous leader and an All-American in every sense of the term."

Clemson coach Bill Foster, who has yet to lead a Clemson team to victory in Chapel Hill, also had praise for Wood.

"Al Wood is as good as any player in the country at his position," Foster said. "He is a solid all around player and a good kid. A lot of players with his talent are head cases, but not Al Wood."

North Carolina gained the victory by taking advantage of the imbalance in free throw opportunities. Clemson outhit the Tar Heels in field goals, 29-26. But North Carolina connected on 23 of 30 free throws while Clemson went just three for nine.

The Tar Heels had pulled away to a 17-point lead with about 10 minutes to play in the regionally-televised contest. But a cold spell of six minutes and an 11-1 Clemson spurt brought the Tigers back into the game at 59-52.

However, Clemson was forced to foul in order to make up the remaining deficit and the Tar Heels cashed in 11 of their last 12 free throws.

Vincent Hamilton's jumper with 2:33 left in the game brought the Tigers to their closest point since halftime. But a Jimmy Black layup out of the four corners broke the North Carolina drought and gave the Tar Heels a 61-52 lead with two minutes left. Black and Wood then hit four more free throws and the Tar Heels regained a safe 65-52 lead.

The Tar Heels trailed Clemson until the 12:22 mark of the first half when a layup by Black gave them a 14-12 lead. The score was later tied at 24 before the Tar Heels went on a 13-5 streak including 10 points by Wood to establish a 37-29 halftime lead.

Besides Wood, James Worthy had 19 and Sam Perkins added 16. North Carolina is now 21-6, 9-3 in the ACC.

Larry Nance and Clarke Bynum each scored 10 points for Clemson. The Tigers dropped to 18-9 and 5-8.

King Leads Terps In Rout Of Deacs

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Carl Tacy knew Albert King was due, but the 28-point performance by the Maryland senior came at the wrong time for his fifth-ranked Wake Forest team.

"You hope the game he has like that is not against you," Tacy said after the 20th-ranked Terps defeated the Demon Deacons 94-80 Saturday in an Atlantic Coast Conference game. "But he was due and he broke out of his slump."

King sank 13 of 16 field goal attempts in his final home appearance, grabbed seven rebounds and handed off five assists. He and Greg Manning, another senior, combined for 34 second-half points.

"I realized this was my last home game, but it probably won't hit me until later today or tomorrow," King said. "My parents were here for the first time since last year, so I wanted to play well.

"This was a great finish, but it's not over yet," King said.

"I want to get to Philadelphia for the NCAA championships."

Manning said he felt the Terps, who were in a slump for the past two weeks, were a bit more relaxed. "It means a lot to go out a winner on your home court."

Tacy said he knew that this part of the schedule would be the most difficult for Wake Forest. "We've played better basketball than we're playing right now. We're not getting the scoring and help from the bench that we were earlier."

King, who finished with 28 points, scored 10 during a 19-3 streak that gave Maryland a 71-52 lead with 6:14 left. Manning scored eight of his 16 points during the same span after being held scoreless in the first half.

Maryland, which had lost four of its last seven games, led 37-35 at halftime. The Terps then opened up a 48-40 lead on a basket by King and a three-point play by Buck Williams, following an assist from King.

Wake Forest, 20-4 after losing its second game in a row, pulled to within 52-49 with 11:29 left on the shooting of Guy Morgan before the Terps caught fire.

Morgan scored 12 of his 16 points in the second half and Jim Johnstone finished with 24 points. Guard Frank Johnson, the Demon Deacon's leading scorer, finished with 15 after going six for 18 from the floor.

Maryland, last year's ACC regular-season champions, has a 7-5 league record and is 17-7 overall. Wake Forest is 8-4 in ACC play.

Blue Devils Defeat Tech

Banks Hits 20 As Wreck Losses 21st

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Gene Banks scored a game-high 22 points to lead Duke to an easy 83-56 victory over Georgia Tech in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game Saturday night.

Leading by just nine at halftime, the Blue Devils outshot the Yellow Jackets 59 percent to 24 percent from the floor in the final period to turn the game into a rout.

Duke also outshot Georgia Tech from the field in the first half, 55 percent to 44 percent, but hit just 2 of 9 from the free throw line to keep the Yellow Jackets within striking distance.

Georgia Tech hit 13 of 16 free throws before intermission and 22 of 27 for the game, compared to the Blue Devils' 7 of 19.

Banks became just the third player in Duke history to go over the 2,000-point mark with his performance Saturday night. He now has 2,010 points, just two shy of former teammate Jim Spanarkel.

Vince Taylor added 18 points and Kenny Dennard had 14 for the Blue Devils. Duke is now 14-10 and 5-7 in the ACC. Their conference record puts them in a tie with Clemson for sixth place. The Tigers and the Blue Devils meet Wednesday night in Clemson.

Lee Goza and Fred Hall both had 13 points to lead Georgia Tech, now 4-21 and 0-13 in the conference.

Both teams would have been happy with a nine-point halftime lead but not Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski.

"I was really mad at the team at halftime," he said. "We weren't thinking on offense and we had no pride in our defense. We just stopped concentrating the last 10 minutes of the first half, and it really showed up at the foul line (2-of-9).

"Overall though it was a good game for us. We played good defense in the second half without fouling. We took our time on offense, played hard mentally and physically. We need to play hard and smart to win. This was a good style of play to get us ready for the Clemson game (Wednesday night)."

Georgia Tech coach Dwane Morrison felt his team had a chance in the first half but his mind changed in the second.

"I thought we were in the game in the first half, but the start of the second killed us. We went almost five minutes without scoring. We just couldn't buy a bucket. We couldn't throw one in the ocean from a row boat," Morrison said.

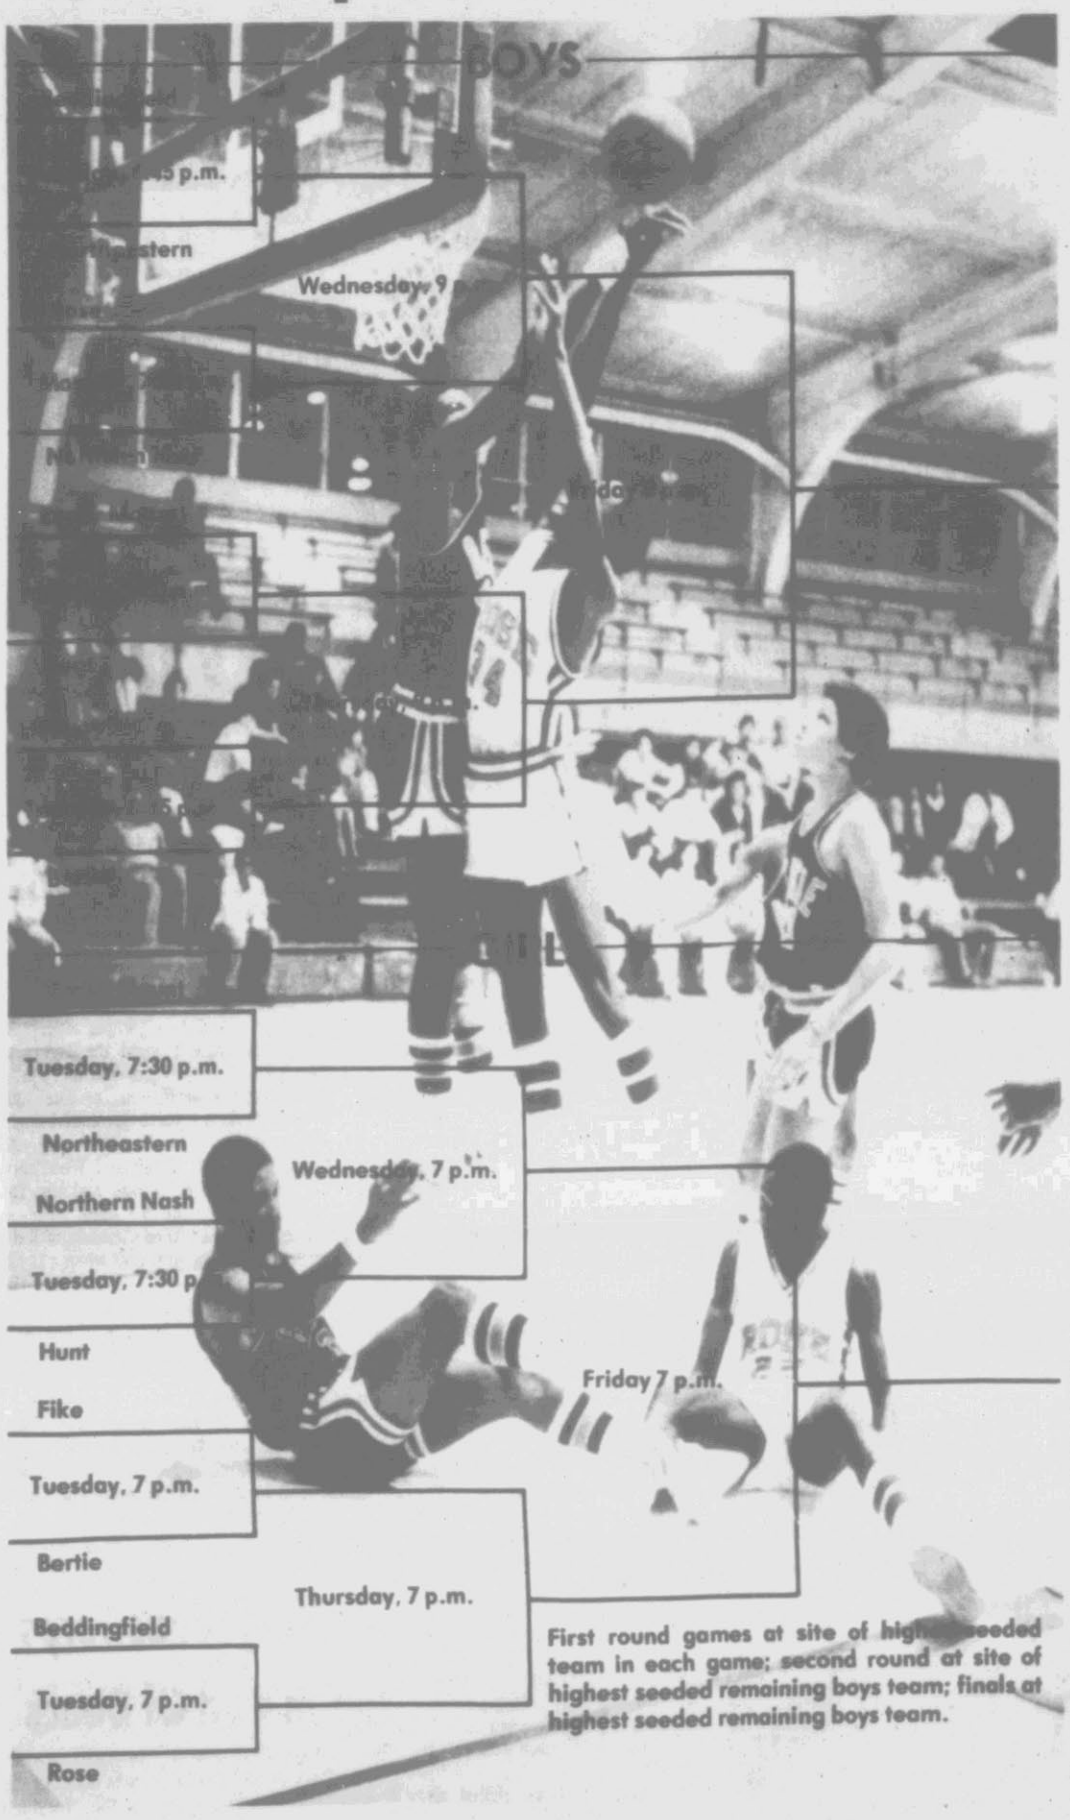
Rose Opens Division I Tourney Against N. Nash



A Staff Report

The 1980-81 Division I Basketball Tournament will open Monday at two sites, complete the first round Tuesday and aim toward a championship contest on Friday.

Defending champion Beddingfield leads the field in the boys' bracket, while Rocky Mount and Beddingfield tied for the championship of the regular season in the girls' ranks.

Rose High School's boys will face Northern Nash, a team they split with during the regular season, in the first round, while the Rose girls take on Beddingfield.

Rose will be the host team for the boys' game, set Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Rampant gymnasium. Rose's girls will travel to Beddingfield on Tuesday for a 7 p.m. contest.

In the boys' bracket, Beddingfield (12-2) takes on last place Northeastern (0-14), in one first round game. That will be played at Beddingfield Tuesday at 8:45 p.m. Rose (9-5) and Northern Nash (7-7) are in the same bracket, and the winners will meet on Wednesday at 9 p.m.

In the other bracket, second place Fike (10-4) meets Bertie (3-11) at 8:45 p.m. Tuesday at Fike. Rocky Mount, seeded third (9-5), takes on Hunt (6-8) at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Gryphon gym.

The lower bracket semifinals will be played on Thursday at 9 p.m. The finals will be Friday at 9 p.m.

One tie resulted in the final standings, with Rose and Rocky Mount both finishing even at 9-5. The Gryphons gained the upper seeding, having beaten Rose twice during the regular season.

In the girls' bracket, Rocky Mount and Beddingfield tied at 12-2 for the title, but Rocky Mount won the coin toss for top seeding. Rose and Northeastern tied with 2-12 records for seventh, with Rose winning the toss there.

Rocky Mount will host Northeastern at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, while Northern Nash (8-6) hosts Hunt (6-8) in another 7:30 p.m. game Tuesday.

The winners meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

In the other bracket, in addition to the Rose-Beddingfield game, Fike (11-3) will host Bertie (3-11) Tuesday at 7 p.m. The winners meet Thursday at 7 p.m. with the championship Friday at 7 p.m.

All first round games are played on the home courts of the higher seeded teams.

For the second round, Wednesday and Thursday, the tournament will move to the floor of the highest remaining boys' team. The same holds true for Friday's championship, with the higher of the two boys' teams left acting as host to the finals.

This year, Division I has two entrants into the State 4-A Playoffs. The tournament will serve as the number one representative and will meet the number two team from Division V in the first round. The regular season winner, Beddingfield, will be the number two entrant and will meet the Division III winner. Should Beddingfield win the tournament, too, the tournament runner-up will then take the number two Division I spot.

"While I'm just as glad to be in the bracket with Beddingfield, it means we've got to win all three games," Rose Coach Jim Brewington said. "The only way we can get to the playoffs is to win the championship, since we'd have to knock Beddingfield out of the finals to get there ourselves. That would mean whoever wins the tourney is the number one seed."

Rose split with Beddingfield during the regular season, each winning on the others' court. "Of course, we can't be looking past Northern Nash either, since they beat us at home."

The tournament will be the last Division I basketball action for Bertie, which leaves the league next season to enter the 3-A Northeastern Conference.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ed Sneed shot a course record-tying 64 but missed an 18-foot putt on the 18th hole by less than an inch and finished tied with Johnny Miller for the lead after Saturday's third round of the $300,000 Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open.

"I thought I could make it," Snead said of his final-hole putt. "It slipped off to the right."

Sneed carded eight birdies for the round with putts ranging up to 35 feet.

"I really didn't have any tough birdie putts all day," the 36-year-old Sneed said. His 64, which gave him a three-round total of 202, matched the competitive course record at the par-71 Riviera Country Club course set by Pat Fitzsimons in 1965 and tied in the pro-amateur this year by Bruce Lietzke.

"I wasn't sure what the record was," Sneed said. "It might have been 63 or 64. I just worried about my place in the tournament. Sure, I saw the scoreboard and saw where Miller was. I wasn't going to let it bother me."

Miller, who shot a 67, said he had a terrible headache, probably caused by the sunshine at Riviera, a course that extends 7,022 yards.

Miller only missed two greens and made putts ranging up to 12 feet, the latter at the third hole after he bogeyed the second hole. Generally, his game was straight and down the middle.

"I'm feeling good about myself and my game," Miller said. "After 54 holes, and 11 under par, I feel pretty proud and pleased that I'm playing as well as I am."

Deadlocked at 203, a stroke off the pace, were Gil Morgan and Ben Crenshaw at 203. Morgan, the first-round leader, had a 69 and Crenshaw a 66.

Tom Weiskopf and Miller Barber, the second-round leader, were at 204 with 68 and 71, respectively. Bruce Lietzke, winner of two tournaments this season, wasn't far off the pace at 205 with a 69 third-round score.

Tied with Ed Siori and Craig Stadler at 206 were Nick Saldo, Bob Gilder and leading amateur Ron Commans from the University of Southern California.

Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson and Lee Trevino weren't doing well going into the fourth and final round with its $54,000 winner's purse. Nicklaus had 208, Watson and Trevino were at 209.

Miller, who survived a tremendous slump after being a young star on the golf tour, had a 31 on the first nine holes that had him at 166 for 45 holes of the 72-hole tournament.

Tied at 169 for the 45 holes were first-round leader Morgan, second-round leader Barber plus Ed Sneed and Crenshaw playing over the Riviera Country Club course of 7,029 yards with par 35-36—71.

Miller started at 135, 7-under par and birdied his first hole. Then he went over par on the second with an errant second shot. On the fifth, he started his birdie binge with other under-par holes at the seventh and eighth. He parred the ninth to go into the second nine holes of the day.

Dr. Morgan played even par golf until the seventh when he went 1 over. Barber had his bogey on the second hole and then played even par the rest of the way in.

Shepherd Wins 400 Poll

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Morgan Shepherd, who took last year's late model sportsman divison title, pulled off a coup Saturday by winning the pole position for the Richmond 400 Grand National stock car race.

Shepherd, from Hickory, N.C., drove a newly prepared Pontiac Grand Prix to the pole position with a quick lap of 92.821 mph around Richmond Fairgrounds Raceway's tight .542-mile oval.

That speed was just enough to hold off the veteran trio of Harry Gant, Richard Petty and Benny Parsons, who will start Sunday's 400-lap race second, third and fourth, respectively.

Shepherd, who had limited success in a brief Grand National try in 1978, said, "There's not that much difference between the sportsman cars and these cars.

"The Grand National cars weigh 3,700 pounds and the sportsman cars are about 500 pounds lighter. After a few laps out there, it feels about the same.

"Right now, the only thing I'm concerned about is little things, like oil leaks and such," the 39-year-old driver added. "We barely got this car ready for today by working all night last night and the night before."

Richmond 400 Lineup

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The lineup for Sunday's Richmond 400 Grand National stock car race, with type of car and qualifying speed in mph:

1. Morgan Shepherd, Pontiac, 92.821.
2. Harry Gant, Buick, 92.746.
3. Richard Petty, Buick, 92.426.
4. Benny Parsons, Ford, 92.133.
5. Butch Lindley, Chevrolet, 91.825.
6. Dale Earnhardt, Pontiac, 91.709.
7. Darrell Waltrip, Buick, 91.636.
8. Ricky Rudd, Oldsmobile, 91.314.
9. Terry Labonte, Buick, 90.944.
10. J.D. McDuffie, Pontiac, 90.547.
11. Bub Strickler, Pontiac, 90.522.
12. Lennie Pond, Buick, 90.258.
13. Ronnie Thomas, Pontiac, 90.156.
14. Joe Millikan, Chevrolet, 90.091.
15. James Hylton, Buick, 89.781.
16. Dave Marcis, Oldsmobile, 89.642.
17. Kyle Petty, Buick, 89.472.
18. Richard Childress, Pontiac, 89.343.
19. Buddy Arrington, Dodge, 89.031.
20. Jimmy Means, Chevrolet, 88.990.
21. Joe Fields, Pontiac, 88.917.
22. Glenn Jarrett, Chevrolet, 87.971.
23. Dick Mays, Oldsmobile, 87.332.
24. Cecil Gordon, Buick, 87.037.
25. Jody Ridley, Ford, 87.033.
26. Lake Speed, Oldsmobile, 86.998.
27. Tim Richmond, Buick, 86.371.
28. Baxter Price, Buick, 84.861.
29. Rick Newsom, Chevrolet, 84.783.
30. Bobby Wawak, Buick, 82.632.

Gant's Buick Regal turned the short track at 92.746 mph, while Petty's Buick was clocked at 92.426 and Parsons' Ford Thunderbird came in at 92.133.

Bobby Allison, whose Pontiac LeMans has been the center of a storm of controversy, blew a tire and piled the car into the wall during a morning practice session. The front end of the sleek LeMans was badly damaged and Allison was forced to find a new ride for Sunday.

He finally made a deal with two-time late model sportsman champion Butch Lindley, who qualified his Chevrolet Monte Carlo fifth on the 30-car grid at 91.825. Allison will start the race in that car, then give up the driver's seat to Lindley during the first pit stop.

That way, Allison gets the points for the race, but Lindley gets most of the time on the track and, apparently, a nice sum of money.

Ironically, NASCAR is expected to announce before Sunday's race it's decision regarding Allison's car. Some competitors and the rulesmakers feel the LeMans has an unfair advantage because the limited edition car has a sloping front end and rear window which make the car better aerodynamically than the other, boxier 1981s.

Sources close to NASCAR said the sanctioning body is expected to legislate shorter rear-end spoilers for both the LeMans and the Thunderbirds, which also have a somewhat more streamlined shape.

The spoiler is a piece of rigid sheet metal across the rear deck of the car, which acts as a deflector for the airflow over the car and creates downforce on the rear tires. The shorter the spoiler, the less effective its performance.

Horton Selects North Carolina

KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (UPI) — A.L. Brown high school quarterback Ethan Horton, the most valuable player in last year's Shrine Bowl, Friday announced he will play at North Carolina next year.

The 6-foot-4, 220-pound Kannapolis native said he chose North Carolina both because of its location and the "quality" football program it offers.

Conley Second In Regional Tourney

GOLDSBORO — D.H. Conley's third-ranked wrestling team finished second in the eastern regional to Beddingfield last night. The Bruins scored 85½ points to the Vikings' 62 to claim the title in a tournament that featured wrestlers from more 50 schools.

Cape Fear (Fayetteville) was third with 51½ points followed by Seventy-First with 51. Goldsboro and Reid Ross tied for fourth with 48 points while Farmville Central was sixth with 44 points.

Four wrestlers qualified for the state tournament from D.H. Conley, two from Farmville and one from Williamston.

Qualifying for Conley were Greg Toler (115 pounds), Raymond Small (129), Alexander Crandell (135), Curtis Bridges (141); for Farmville Ronnie Locust (heavyweight) and Roger Joyner (148); for Williamston Calvin Mobley (198).

Farmville's Locust, who captured the heavyweight title, was voted the most valuable wrestler.

Pitt C.C. Wins, 62-56

Paladians Win ECCAC Title

NEW BERN — Mike Baker scored 20 points and pulled down 16 rebounds to lead Pitt Community College to a 62-56 victory Saturday night over Craven Community College in the finals of the Eastern Carolina Community College Athletic Conference tournament.

The Paladians, now 18-5, led throughout, moving ahead by as many as 10 in the first half before going in at the half ahead, 28-20. In the second half the Panthers whittled the lead down to three with Pitt center Jeff Tyson on the bench with foul trouble.

But the Paladians staved off the Panthers, eventually building their lead back up to eight in the late stages of the game before wininng by six.

Joining Baker, who was voted to the all-tournament team, in double figures was Dennis Batts with 17. Batts was voted the tournament's most valuable player.

Batts and Tyson and Frankie Dail were also named to the all-conference team last night.

"We had three objectives going in," Pitt coach Linwood Woodard said. "Our first objective was to play zone. But to do that we had to get ahead and we did that.

"We went to a 1-3-1 zone and that confused them. It was the first time they had seen us play it and it caught them by surprise.

"Our second objective was to block out for the rebounds. They have front line of 6-5, 6-5, 6-4 and last time we played them they killed us on the boards," Woodard said. The Paladians achieved that goal, outrebounding the Panthers 32-20.

"Our third objective was to create an up tempo. We never did do that but it may have been to our advantage. They're a good halfcourt team, but they were confused by our zone.

"We packed it in. They didn't have a very good outside shooter a point guard and when they took it to the wings we covered them almost like it was man to man."

Craven was led by Jones' 14 points and Mike Immanuel and Henderson, both of whom had 10 each.

"The Paladians now must wait and see if they will receive a bid to the National Junior College Invitational tournament. Bids will go out in the next few weeks.

Craven C.C. (56) — Immanuel 5 0-1 10; Batty 3 0-0 6; Raynor 4 0-0 8; Loui 3 2-2 8; Jones 7 0-3 14; Henderson 3 4-4 10; Totals 24 6-10 56.

DePaul Wins; LSU Squeaks Past Vols

CHICAGO (AP) — All-American Mark Aguirre scored 24 points, 16 of them in the second half, and Terry Cummings had 21 points, 17 in the first half, to lead third-ranked DePaul to a 78-71 college basketball victory Saturday night over Marquette.

The victory was the 10th straight and 23rd of the season for the Blue Demons, whose only loss was to Old Dominion.

Marquette suffered its third straight setback and slipped to 16-9 for the season, although the Warriors were in the running throughout the contest.

Rallying from a 41-36 deficit early in the second half behind the play of Oliver Lee and freshman Glenn Rivers, Marquette came back to take a 64-53 lead midway through the period.

Aguirre then twice put DePaul ahead before Rivers converted a three-point play to draw the Warriors into a 59-59 tie.

DePaul then scored the next seven points to move into a comfortable lead, but couldn't put the game away because of the play of Lee and Rivers. Lee finished with 26 points while Rivers finished with 23 points, 17 of them in the second half.

DePaul led most of the first half until Lee put Marquette ahead 26-25. The lead then see-sawed with the Warriors grabbing a 36-32 edge before DePaul scored the final seven points of the half, including a three-point play by Cummings.

LSU.....66
Tenn.....65

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fourth-ranked Louisiana State, holding off three second-half rallies, used forward Leonard Mitchell's two free throws with seven seconds left to squeeze past No. 8 Tennessee 66-65 Saturday.

"Thank goodness we made our clutch free throws when we had to," a jubilant Coach Dale Brown said after winning his second regular season Southeastern Conference championship in nine years and taking his eighth straight victory over the Volunteers.

"These kids have given me a whole new outlook on coaching," he said. "It's just been a fine year."

The Vols, behind by 11 points at the half, had pulled to within one at 64-63 on a followup shot by Dale Ellis when Tennessee guard Tyrone Beamon was called for a foul on Mitchell on the following inbounds play. Guard Michael Brooks put the Vols back to within one five seconds later by making a 15-footer and the Tigers were able to get the ball inbounds and eat up the final tick of the clock.

"It was a pretty miserable effort on our part," said Tennessee Coach Don DeVoe after his team hit only five of 14 free throws. "We threw the ball away way too many times and missed too many free throws, and LSU took advantage of every mistake we made."

Brown said both teams' defenses turned the game into a classic confrontation.

"Tennessee played very, very hard," Brown said. "They've surely got an NCAA berth sewed up. It's too bad this game was not on national TV."

Durand Macklin led LSU with 19 points, 15 in the first half when the Tigers jumped to a 42-31 lead on 10 straight points during the final three minutes.

Tennessee opened the final period with three straight baskets to pull within five and rallied again on four baskets by Gary Carter to take the lead at 54-52 on a 10-foot baseline shot by Ellis with 8:45 left. Carter led the Vols with 19 points and Ellis had 18.

LSU then scored eight straight points on a pair of baskets by guard Ethan Martin and one each by center Greg Cook and guard Howard Carter to take the lead for good.

The loss, the first at home this season for Tennessee, dropped the Vols' record to 19-5 for the season and 11-5 in the SEC. LSU, which hosts Texas A&M Sunday in a nationally televised game, took the conference crown with a 16-0 record and moved to 25-1 for the season with the only loss to Arkansas in November.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senior forwards Vernon Smith and Rynn Wright recaptured some lost glory Saturday by combining for 43 points as Texas A&M broke a seventh-place in the Southwest Conference with Texas by racing past the Longhorns 108-79.

Smith tossed in 25 points and Wright had 18 as A&M shot with fantastic accuracy from the field and free throw line in winning its sixth SWC game against eight losses.

The victory moved the Aggies into a tie for sixth with Texas Christian, and the two teams will play Tuesday night at Fort Worth. Sixth place is important in the nine-team league because it gives the school a home-court advantage in the first round of post-season playoffs.

Illini Whip MSU

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Craig Tucker scored 21 points and Perry Range added 15 to lead No. 15 Illinois to an 82-62 win Saturday over Michigan State in Big Ten basketball action.

Michigan State jumped off to a 15-11 lead with 11:52 left in the opening half, but it turned out to be the Spartans' final lead of the contest.

Illinois ran off 10 straight points — the last four by Range — to take a 21-15 lead almost three minutes latey and never looked back.

After Rick Kaye broke the Spartan drought with a basket at the 8:50 mark, the Illini came back with another 10 unanswered points to take a commanding 31-17 lead with 6:02 left in the half.

Illinois extended its lead to 19 points at 42-23 and settled for a 45-28 lead at the intermission.

The Illini increased their lead to 22 points when Eddie Johnson scored a bucket with 15:32 remaining. Trailing 60-40, Michigan State scored six straight points — four by Kevin Smith — to pull within 14 with 8:48 remaining, but never got any closer as Illini coasted home.

Jay Vincent led all scorers on the afternoon with 30 points as Michigan State slipped to 5-9 in the Big Ten and 11-12 on the season. Kevin Smith added 10 points for the Spartans.

Illinois, now 10-4 in the league and 18-5 overall, got 14 points from Johnson and 11 from Derek Harper.

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Mickey Hardy's jumper with 1:05 left and Reggie Steppe's two free throws with 14 seconds remaining rallied Virginia Tech's Hokies to a 71-70 Metro Conference basketball victory Saturday over Memphis State's Tigers.

Hardy hit from the top of the key to send Tech ahead for good at 69-68 after the Tigers, who trailed 43-33 at intermission, went in front 68-65 on two straight layups by Otis Jackson, the first after a steal with 3:33 left.

Steppe, who came off the bench to score 15 points and steal the ball twice, converted two foul shots to make it 68-67 before Hardy put the Hokies in front. After Steppe's next two free throws, Memphis State's Hank McDowell scored a meaningless basket with four seconds remaining.

Gordie Bryan, a 6-foot-8 junior, scored a career-high 18 points, including six in an 11-point run in the first half that rallied the Hokies from an early 19-12 deficit to their first victory over Memphis State in four tries.

The Hokies, 4-6 in the conference and 12-12 overall, also got 12 points from Dale Solomon and 10 each from Hardy and Calvin Oldham, who had a game-high nine rebounds.

It was the sixth straight defeat for Memphis State, 5-6 in the conference and also 12-12 overall.

Maryland Forfeits Game To Penn St.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Coach Chris Weller couldn't stop the band, so she pulled her University of Maryland women's basketball team off the court Saturday night and forfeited the game Penn State.

Weller, who had protested twice that the Penn State band kept playing while her team was shooting free throws, walked onto the court with 9:56 left to play and made a final appeal. She was assessed a technical foul and took her team to the locker room. The score was 71-58.

Penn State, led by Carol Walderman with 15 points, is now 19-6 on the season. Maryland fell to 15-7.

Iowa Defeats Purdue, Remains Atop Big 10

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Kenny Arnold hit four crucial free throws in the closing minutes and shared scoring honors with Vince Brookins at 16 points Saturday as 12th-ranked Iowa edged Purdue 67-62 to retain first place in the battle for the Big Ten basketball championship.

The Boilermakers, down by 13 at 50-37 with 12:46 left in the game, rallied behind the shooting of Keith Edmonson to trail by three points at 59-56 with 3:55 remaining.

Edmonson had 18 of his game-high 24 in the second half and the 6-foot-5 forward was also the game's leading rebounder with 10.

Bob Hansen hit a layup to put Iowa up by five, 61-56, with 3:28 remaining and Arnold then hit both ends of a one-and-one bonus opportunity to complete a six-point surge that insured the victory.

The Hawkeyes, now 11-3 in the conference and 19-4 overall, broke a 4-4 deadlock with 10 consecutive points and were never caught.

Iowa was outscored from the field 56-46, but made up for it by outscoring Purdue 21-6 from the free throw line.

Purdue fell to 8-6 in league play and 15-8 overall.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Ray Tolbert scored 19 points and Landon Turner celebrated his return to Indiana's starting lineup with 12 first-half points as the 16th-rated Hoosiers defeated Minnesota 74-63 in Big Ten basketball Saturday.

Tolbert had four of his points during an eight-point Indiana streak that broke the game open in the closing minutes as Minnesota went scoreless for more than four minutes.

The victory allowed the Hoosiers to remain one game behind Iowa, a 57-52 winner over Purdue, in the race for the Big Ten title.

Turner, who finished with 16 points, scored Indiana's first four points for a 4-2 advantage and were never caught.

Six consecutive points by sophomore guard Isiah Thomas gave Indiana its biggest lead at 14 points, 30-16, with 4:36 left in the first half.

Minnesota, which trailed 39-32 at the half, cut its deficit to two points, 56-54 on a Darryl Mitchell layup with 7:34 to play and were down by three, 60-57 with 5:43 to play.

But, Tolbert then made two field goals, followed by a two free throws by Steve Risley and a Randy Wittman jump shot.

Indiana moved to 17-9 overall and 10-4 in the conference, while Minnesota fell to 15-8 and 7-7.

W. Carolina.....70
The Citadel.....62

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (UPI) — Western Carolina hit 71 percent of its second-half field goals and Ronnie Carr scored 18 points in the final period to lead the Catamounts to a come-from-behind 70-62 win over The Citadel in a Southern Conference game Saturday.

The Catamounts trailed by seven at halftime, 29-22, but Carr sparked the team with his second-half performance.

With the score tied at 39-39, Carr reeled off seven unanswered points that gave Western Carolina a 46-39 lead with 10:25 to play. The Citadel cut the margin to one at 55-54 with 4:35 remaining, but Carr bombed in a three-point field goal to give the Catamounts a four-point lead they never lost.

Carr led all scorers with 22 points, hitting 9 of 12 shots from the field. Larry Caldwell added 12 points while guard Kevin Young had a season-high 14 assists for Western Carolina, now with a 8-7 conference record and 16-9 overall mark.

Gerald Toney had 14 points for the Bulldogs, now 2-13 in the league and 8-15 overall.

Cinncinati .....59
St. Louis.....50

CINCINNATI (AP) — Guard Bobby Austin scored 14 points and forward David Jones chipped in 12 as the University of Cincinnati outlasted St. Louis University 59-50 in a Metro Conference basketball game Saturday night.

David Burns, a 6-foot-2 senior guard and second-leading scorer in the conference, led St. Louis with a game-high 28 points. Teammate LaTodd Johnson added 9.

No. 15 Wichita Downs 'Jays

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Antoine Carr scored 26 points and Cliff Levingston added 24 to lead 14th-ranked Wichita State to a convincing 83-70 Missouri Valley Conference victory over Creighton Saturday night.

The win boosted Wichita State's league record to 11-3 and snapped a two-game conference losing streak. Wichita State is 20-4 overall.

Despite the loss, the Bluejays moved into a third-place tie with Tulsa, which lost to Drake. Both have 9-5 conference records. Creighton's overall record dropped to 16-8.

Carr, Levingston and Tony Martin, who had 16 points, led a Shocker second-half run-and-gun attack that broke open the close game.

With the halftime score 42-38 in favor of Wichita State, the trio went to work early in the second half. The Shockers pushed their lead to 15 points, 60-45, with 12:16 remaining.

The Bluejays, led by Alex Stivrins' 16 points, battled back to within 11 points, 62-51, with 8:57 remaining. The Shockers then pushed the score up to 68-53 with 7:33 left.

Carr pumped in 18 points and Levingston had 13 in the first half as the Shockers jumped to their biggest first-half lead, 33-24, with 6:47 on the clock.

The two forwards also had six rebound apiece as the Shockers out-rebounded Creighton, 31-23, in the first half. For the game, Wichita had 57 rebounds to 45 for the Bluejays.

Brigham Young ...78
New Mexico .....72

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Danny Ainge and Fred Roberts each scored 19 points as 17th-ranked Brigham Young held off New Mexico 78-72 Saturday in a regionally televised Western Athletic Conference college basketball game.

Roberts, who was named player of the game, also added 10 rebounds.

BYU led by as many as 12 points in the contest, but could never break away from the pesky Lobos enroute to their 20th victory this season against 5 losses. The Cougars are 10-3 in the WAC. New Mexico dropped to 10-12 overall and 5-8 in the conference.

BYU scored the first basket of the game, but the Lobos came back quickly to take the lead, pulling ahead by 5 points 15-10 — their biggest lead of the game.

BYU then came roaring back, outscoring New Mexico 15-4, to take a 7-point lead at 26-19.

The Lobos battled back to tie the game for the fourth time at 38, but Greg Kite scored the last 4 points of the half for a 42-38 BYU lead.

Both teams got off to a sluggish start in the second half as New Mexico fought back to tie the game for the last time at 44 all.

The game stayed close until about the 10-minute mark when BYU rattled off 8 unanswered points for a 61-49 lead.

The Lobos, who were led by Jerome Henderson's 18 points and 10 rebounds, struggled to stay close but could come no closer than 6 points at 66-60.

Princeton.....40
Brown .....33

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Randy Melville led all scorers with 14 points as Princeton beat Brown 40-33 for its ninth straight Ivy League victory Saturday night.

In maintaining a one-game Ivy League lead over Penn, Princeton limited Brown to eight points in the first half.

Melville hit for nine points in the second half, including a basket with 53 seconds left to play which gave the Tigers a 12 point lead, 40-28.

For Princeton, Craig Robinson scored 10 points and Neil Christal added 8, all in the second half.

Guards Dean Erickson and Jeff Samsen paced the Bruins with 10 and 8 points, respectively. The Princeton defense kept Brown's leading scorer, Ira James, scoreless.

Princeton, 9-0 in the league, 13-8 overall, extended its winning streak to seven games and has never lost to Brown, 2-8 in the Ivies, 4-7 overall, in 31 meetings at Princeton.

Alabama .....57
Florida .....44

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Eddie Adams and Eric Richardson made two free throws apiece in the closing seconds Saturday night to seal Alabama's 57-44 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over Florida.

Florida led 30-27 at halftime, but Bama outshot the Gators 30-14 in the second half.

With nine minutes left, Florida went into a zone defense and Alabama froze the ball for more than three minutes. Neither team scored for more than eight minutes.

Adams hit both ends of a 1-and-1 foul situation. Richardson scored a basket and two free throws in the final seconds.

"It's called doing what you have to do to win," Alabama coach Wimp Sanderson said. "We tried to make them come out and get us. They didn't and we were able to run several minutes off the clock."

He said Alabama couldn't go into a zone of its own until it was well ahead, "and we wanted to hold the ball. When we got to 10 points ahead, we went into the zone. Florida got some cheap baskets, but that ran some time off the clock."

Adams, Richardson and Ken Johnson had 10 points apiece for the Crimson Tide, now 16-8 in all games and fourth in the SEC with a 9-7 chart.

Florida's Vernon Delancy was held to two points in the second half after hitting 12 in the first 20 minutes. Mike Milligan chipped in 10 points for the Gators, now 10-14 overall and 4-12 in the conference.

"It was a real struggle," Sanderson said. "They played a good motion offense, but our defense was better than when we played at Florida."

Knights Fall In Title Game

Jimmy Pully pumped in 29 points and Kevin Fisher knocked in 20 as Falls Road rallied from a four-point halftime deficit to defeat Greenville Christian, 74-61, Saturday night to win the East Carolina Christian Conference tournament championship.

The Knights, now 12-9, trailed at the end of the first period, 21-15, but surged to a 39-35 lead at intermission.

But Falls Road, seeded first in the tournament, outscored Greenville 20-9 in the third period to take a 55-48 lead and never was headed as the home squad outscored the Knights 20-13 in the final eight minutes.

Greenville was led by Ben Haddock's 19 points and David Hollingsworth's 12.

"Falls Road did a good job tonight," Greenville Christian coach Dale Thatcher said. "They're awfully good. We played with a lot of intensity in the first half but in the second half we just couldn't hold them back that long."

The Knights travel to Raleigh Monday to face Wake Christian before taking part in the district playoffs next Friday and Saturday.

Firebirds Down Panthers In 2 OTs For ECC Title

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — The Eastern Carolina Conference tournament championship game between North Pitt and Southern Nash was everything a tournament championship game is expected to be.

It was a tight, tense battle that delighted the estimated 1,100 fans who packed the Ayden-Grifton gym. Neither team led by more than six and there were seven lead changes and 11 ties, the eighth coming at the end of regulation.

There was also two overtimes. The first overtime was extended to a second when North Pitt reserve Paul Tucker, later voted to the all-tournament team, hit two free throws with no time with no time left.

Southern Nash's McCullen Wiggins put an end to the proceedings in the second overtime when he hit a jumper from the foul line, was fouled and swished the free throw with eight seconds left to give the fourth-seeded Firebirds a 55-54 victory over the Panthers and their first-ever ECC tournament title.

Earlier, in the girls' championship game, Southwest Edgecombe ran its record to 25-0 with a 55-34 win over North Lenior. It was the Cougars second straight ECC tournament crown.

"I enjoyed being a coach in this game," North Pitt coach Cobbie Deans said. "But, of course, I'd like to be on the other end of the score."

At the end of regulation both ends of the score were the same: 47-47. Southern Nash's Toney Taybron hit a jumper from the foul line to tie the game with 55 seconds left. The Panthers, looking for the last shot, turned the ball over with four seconds and when Southern Nash did the same moments later the game went into overtime.

Southern Nash led twice by two in the first extra period. Each time, however, the Panthers tied it up, the last at 51-51 when Tucker canned both ends of a one-and-one after the buzzer had sounded.

Dennis Bradley's jumper in the lane with 1:51 left in the second overtime gave the Panthers a 53-51 lead in the second overtime. A free throw by Norman Mitchell cut the deficit to 53-52 but the Panthers got that point back when Tony Pittman canned the front end of a one-and-one with 28 seconds left.

Then, with eight seconds left, Wiggins, who had a game-high 19 points, hit a jumper at the foul line between two players, one of whom, Pittman, was called for a foul. Wiggins sank the free throw and moments later, following a North Pitt turnover, the Firebirds had won.

"I was about four or five feet from the scorer's table when he hit the free throw," Southern Nash coach Pete House said. "I just wanted to make sure she put it down."

The scorer did — to the obvious disappointment of Deans and his third-seeded Panthers, who only a week earlier had rallied from 15 down to defeat the Firebirds in Stanhope, 54-51.

"I thought we were gonna win it, but we made a couple mental mistakes there at the end and they came back," Denas said. "I thought we didn't play smart there at end of regulation. We were suppose to be going for the last shot but the people didn't come to meet the ball. It's just a fact of basketball, you've got to come to meet the ball."

North Pitt trailed nearly the entire second half before tying the score with four minutes left in regulation at 41-41 on a two driving jumpers by sophomore Greg Hines. Hines, who finished with 15 points before fouling out late in the first overtime, was fouled each time but missed both foul shots. North Pitt hit just eight of 15 from the foul line for the night.

The Panthers led by two after each of their next three possessions. Bradley drove the lane for two, Tucker hit a jumper and Hines scored on a layup.

But each time the Firebirds countered, twice tying the score on long jumpers by Wiggins and tying it up for good on Taybron's jumper.

North Pitt then held the ball for what it hoped to be the last shot. But with four seconds left Bradley lost the ball while trying to pass and in the scramble for the ball Vince Parker fouled Taybron. The Firebirds, however, were not in the one-and-one and when they turned the ball over seconds later regulation ended tied at, 47-47.

In the first overtime, Southern Nash moved ahead, 49-47, on a jumper by Anthony Crumel, who scored 17 points and pulled down 10 rebounds. North Pitt tied it on a driving jumper by Parker but Curtis Thompson hit both ends of a one-and-one to give the Firebirds a 51-49 lead with 42 seconds left.

The Panthers got the ball back following a miss with 29 seconds when Southern Nash was whistled for a 10-second violation. With time running out, Tucker missed a 14-foot jumper from the right but grabbed the rebound and was fouled.

With no time showing on the clock and no one on the foul line, Tucker calmly walked to the line and connected on both free throws to send the game into a second overtime.

"I was a little shaky when we called timeout, but I knew I had to make them," Tucker said. "I knew I had a chance to miss, too, but I tried to block that out of my mind.

"During the timeout, he (Deans) just gave me the ball and told me to go and make them. I just looked at the back of the rim and tried to block out everything else."

When the second free throw dropped, the Panthers ran onto the court to embrace Tucker — as if they had won the game. They hadn't, but even Southern Nash's House thought the free throws might help spring the Panthers to the win.

"Normally that's going to give a team momentum," House said. "You could look at the kids' faces and tell it took something out of them. But the kids stayed with it."

Indeed. Both teams did, from start to finish. North Pitt led in the early moments but the Firebirds moved ahead 11-8 on a two buckets and a free throw by Crumel. North Pitt, on the strength of a Toby Crandol's three-point play, a jumper by Hines and a layup by Ronnie House, led at the end of the period, 15-13.

The Panthers pushed their lead to five (22-17) early in the second period on a jumper by Parker but the the Firebirds tied it at 28-28 as Wiggins hit two straight long jumpers from the left. It was 33-33 at halftime.

The third quarter did not belong with the rest of this game. Neither team scored until four minutes were left, when Crumel hit a jumper. The Panthers did not score until, with 1:05 left and trailing 39-33, Tucker hit a jumper to cut the lead to 39-35.

"We had that lull in the third period and that hurt us," Dean said. "We sat back in the zone and didn't do anything. I don't know if we were tired or what."

If they were, it didn't show in the last quarter or the two overtimes.

Tigers Win, In Title Game

WILLIAMSTON — Theresa Duffy scored 12 points and Williamston outscored Roanoke 12-2 in the third period to upset the Redskins 31-25 Friday night and advance into the championship game of the Northeastern Conference tournament.

The sixth-seeded Tigers, now 14-8, was to have played top-seeded Plymouth last night for the championship. Second-seeded Roanoke, now 20-4, will play Southern Nash Wednesday night (6:30) at Williamston in the first round of the districts.

In the boys semifinal Friday night, Tarboro bombed Washington, 87-62, and was to have faced Edenton last night for the boys' tournament crown.

Williamston led after the first period, 9-8, but failed to score a point in the second period and trailed at the half, 12-9. But a 12-2 third quarter surge lifted Williamston to a 21-14 lead and the Tigers then held off the Redskins in the final period for the win.

Sylvia Parker led the Redskins with nine points.

Williamston (31) — Duffy 5 2-2 12; Rogerson 2 3-4 7; Smith 2 1-4 5; Edwards 0 2-4 2; Everett 2 1-2 5; Mills 0 0-2 0; Totals 11 9-23 31.

ECU Gymnasts Win 3

A Staff Report

East Carolina's women gymnasts set a team scoring record Friday night and then broke it Saturday in a weekend that saw the Lady Pirates set four individual marks.

Friday night ECU scored 121.6 points — a mark that broke the old mark of 120.4 set earlier this season — to defeat George Washington (108 points) and Wilson (Pa.) College (83.8).

Then Saturday night the Pirates scored 122.35 points to break the mark they set Friday but were forced to settle for second place in the tri-meet, losing to Towson (My.) St., which scored 130.2 points. William & Mary was third with 116.7 points.

"We're really pleased with these new records," ECU gymnastics coach Jon Rose said. "It was a good weekend for us. We're cooking. We're just thrilled to death."

Part of the thrill came as a result of ECU freshman Jennifer Bell and Lisa Tammaru setting school marks. Tammaru finished first in the balance beam with a score of 8.35 Friday night to break her own record set earlier this season against UNC.

Tammaru also finished thirdon the uneven bars (7.25) Friday. Saturday, she was fifth on the balance beam (7.25) and scored 7.15 on the uneven bars and 8.0 on floor exercise.

But it was Bell did the most damage to the school record books. She finished first on the uneven bars Friday night with an 8.2 and then broke that mark Saturday night by scoring an 8.25, good for third place.

Bell, in the all-around competition for the first time this season, also set a new all-around record with a score of 31.9, breaking the old mark of 30.85 set by Susan McKnight last year. Tammaru had an all-around score of 30.1 for fourth place.

Bell also finished first in floor exercise (7.65) Friday. Saturday she was fourth on floor exercise (8.3) and third on balance beam (7.65). She and Tammaru scored 7.7 on the vault, the only routine the women had not competed in during the season and one which allowed them to compete for an all-around total.

Other results from Friday: Kathy McNearney, 2. vault (8.0); Wendy Meyer, 2. bars (8.0); Joanie Ford, 2. balance beam (7.75), 2. floor exercise (7.3); Nan George, 3. balance beam (7.7); Ginnie Neff, 4. balance beam (7.35).

Other results from Saturday: Ford, 6. floor exercise (8.1); Matthews, 3. vault (8.75).

Scoring but not placing Saturday were: Susan Lawrence, vault (8.25); McNearney, vault (7.95); Meye, bars (7.45); George (bars), 7.4.

The Lady Pirates, now 6-11 this season, will play host to NCAIAW State Gymnastics Tournament next Saturday beginning at 1 p.m. in Minges Coliseum. Along with ECU at the tournament will be UNC-CH, NCSU, Duke and Western Carolina.

Rampants Rally Past Last-Place Eagles, 70-54

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

ELIZABETH CITY — Down by as much as 14 points with less than two minutes to go in the first half, Rose High School struggled back against last-place Northeastern to trail by two going into the final period.

In that, however, the Rampants destroyed the Eagles, outscoring them 26-2 in the first six minutes on the way to a 70-54 romp as the regular season came to an end.

The victory left Rose tied with Rocky Mount for third place in the final standings, both with 9-5 records. However, since Rocky Mount won both meetings, they took third seeding. Rose will thus face Northern Nash in the first round of the tournament, with the Rampants as the host team Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Rose's girls bowed to Northeastern, 44-29 in their game, and the two ended up tied for seventh with 2-12 records. Rose won the toss there, and will face second seeded Beddingfield on the Lady Bruins' court Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the first round of the tournament.

The Rampants had to struggle through the first two periods, hitting only 30 per cent of their shots. That figure kept up during the third period, thanks to one spurt where the Rampants missed six straight shots, most of them coming on one trip down the court as they ruled the boards in the second half.

But in the final quarter, the Rampants finally found the range for good, and it ruined Northeastern's hopes for at least one win against Division I competition. The Eagles finished the regular season with an 0-14 mark.

One of the problems faced by both teams could have been not of their own doing. Early in the first half, two panels of fluorescent lights above the Rampant end of the court went out, joining another panel already out. That left light coming from only the other end of the court, plus two panels over the midcourt area and one to the right of the basket. The rim and backboard were left virtually in shadow.

Game officials confired with Northeastern people and determined that the light panels "come and go" during use, and that no immediate cure was available. It was decided to continue playing. One panel did come on, but not until late in the game.

At any rate, when Northeastern moved from the brighter end of the court to the darker, its shooting percentage dropped from just over 50 per cent, to 20 per cent for the second half. They made only seven of 34 shots, including three baskets in the third period and four in the fourth. Three of those came after the one light resumed working.

"That had to be the best fourth quarter we've had all year," Coach Jim Brewington said. "We played the best defense we've played too. This is what we needed going into the tournament. The kids just got together and started playing good defense in the second half, and they played super defense.

"We also started taking better shots in the late stages of the game, when we got that big spurt off."

Brewington seemed at a loss as to the problems of the first half. "I think maybe that the lights had something to do with it, but we weren't really in there mentally in the first half. But I told them at halftime that 15 wins was a lot better than 14, and I think they just decided I was right."

Rose never led in the game until late in the third period. They did tie it up in the early seconds, 2-2, but Northeastern reeled off three baskets, one each by Trevor Swimpson, Hunter Williams, and Anthony Johnson for an 8-2 lead. After Rose got a three-point play from Donald Johnson, the Eagles reeled off eight more in a row, including four points by Swimpson.

By the end of the first period, Rose trailed, 20-9.

Rose pulled back within five, 22-17, early in the second period, but Northeastern pulled away again, helped by two straight by Kennedy Griffin, to run its lead out to 33-19 with 1:54 left in the half. It was the biggest lead for the Eagles.

Rose cut it back to ten before the end of the half, and trailed, 35-25, at intermission.

Northeastern, working in the shade in the second half, missed its first six shots, and hit just three of 14 tries in the half. Meanwhile, Rose, which had been outrebounded 21-19 in the first half, held 16-8 margin in that department in the third period, and despite missing six in a row at one time, the board play keyed them in their comeback.

Rose scored the first seven points of the half, allowed a basket and then added four more points before another Northeastern basket. That made it 39-36, and the Rampants got baskets from Freddy Cherry and Johnson to take the lead, 40-39 with 46 seconds left. It was the first Rose lead.

However, Climmie Mercer hit from underneath and Terance Roberson added a free throw in the final ten seconds for a 42-40 lead by the Eagles.

But any final hopes of the Eagles flew out the door in the final quarter.

Rose came out, again ruling the boards, and fired through the first 20 points of the period as Northeastern missed its first seven shots and suffered a number of turnovers.

Johnson tied it up, and then Cherry put the Rampants ahead for good, 44-42. Over the next few minutes, Johnson led the way, with a total of eight of the 20 points before Mercer finally broke the ice on the Eagle basket with 3:56 left.

Rose then hit the next three shots for a 66-44 lead before Brewington cleared his bench for the final two and a half minutes.

Johnson led the Rampants with 19 points, while Cherry had 14, James Brewington had 13 and Russell Perkins had 12.

Johnson led Northeastern with 10.

While Rose plays Northern Nash in the first round, Northeastern must travel to first place Beddingfield, that game set for Tuesday at 8:45 p.m.

In the girls' game, Northeastern avenged one of its losses by downing the Rampettes, 44-29. Despite the result, Rose will face second-seeded Beddingfield on Tuesday, while Northeastern visits top-seeded Rocky Mount in first round tournament action.

Northeastern took the initial lead, 3-0, before Rose came back to grab a 4-3 lead. The Eaglettes inched back out, 5-4, by the end of the period.

Rose tied it at 5-5 early in the second quarter, but that was it. Anita Bailey put Northeastern back up and Rose never caught up again.

Before the end of the half, Northeastern had extended its lead to nine, 18-9, and held an 18-12 margin at halftime.

The third period saw the lead reach 13, 32-19, before Rose again cut it back, 32-21, at the end of the frame. The margin reached its maximum, 15, just before the end when it reached the final tally, 44-29.

Bailey led the Northeastern scoring with 16, while Cecil Griffin ha 11. No one scored in double figures for Rose.

"The last couple of games, we've been real sluggish," Coach Dennis Gibson said. "Now, we're got to regroup for Beddingfield. And they may be the best team in the league, despite being second-seeded."

Gibson reflected on the last meeting of the Eagles and Rampettes. "We were 13 down in that, but couldn't come back this time. We've been working on a new offense for the tournament, and I think the girls got caught up in working on the offense and didn't look for the shots."

Lifegate Nips Trinity, 68-64

Terry Duncan poured in 31 points and Lifegate overcame a 42-point effort by John Moran to defeat Trinity Christian, 68-64, Friday night to win the Third District ACE District School championship.

Trinity led at the end of the first period, 14-12, but a 25-17 second period carried Lifegate to a 37-31 halftime lead. Lifegate maintained that six-point lead throughtout the third period and led at the end of the quarter, 53-47.

Trinity outscored Lifegate, 17-15, in the final eight minutes but it wasn't enough.

Joining Duncan in double figures for Lifegate were Darryle Wells with 15 and Greg Jones with 14. Trinity's Junior Godon had 16 points.

Lifegate, now 14-3, will play host to Grace Christian of Rocky Mount Monday night.

Irish Miler Breaks Own Mark By 2 Seconds

Coghlan Sets Mile Record

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Eamonn Coghlan, having trimmed a remarkable 4.3 seconds off the world indoor mile record in two years, says his next goal is a sub-3:50 effort.

"Someone's going to do it and I'd like to be the first," said the amazing Irishman after shaving a full two seconds off his indoor mile mark in Friday's Jack-in-the-Box Invitational track meet. Coghlan was timed in 3:50.6.

Trailing America's Steve Scott with two laps to go at San Diego's Sports Arena, Coghlan crossed up the competion with an early kick at San Diego's Sports Arena. The five fastest indoor milers of all time were competing in the featured event.

"With two laps to go, I decided I was going to make my move for the tape because Steve in the last few races was expecting me to go the last lap or lap and a half. I figured going with two laps would catch him by surprise."

The "surprise" produced the sixth fastest mile of all time. Only four other milers in history have run faster.

"Once he gets ahead at that stage, it's over. I know of only once when somebody got past him after he made his move," said Scott, whose second-place time of 3:51.6 was a full second faster than Coghlan's old record, also set in San Diego.

"He jumped us and that was it," said John Walker of New Zealand, who finished third in 3:52.8, the fourth fastest indoor mile of all time. "Unbelievable," said Walker, noting that two weeks ago he was unable to break four minutes in the event.

Earlier in the competition, James Sanford dealt Stanley Floyd, the 20-year-old sensation, two straight defeats in the 50-meter and 60-yard events. Sanford tied a indoor world record in the 50 meters with a 5.61 clocking.

Coghlan, an also-ran in two Olympics but a sensation on America's indoor circuit, gave credit to Phil (Tiny) Kane, who agreed to serve as a "rabbit." Setting a searing pace, Kane helped put the field in position for a record.

"Kane made the race," said Coghlan. "He did a great job with the pace." Kane sped to a blistering 1:54 half-mile.

By his own account, Coghlan got off to a bad start. Normally among the front three, he found himself near the back of the pack and had to fight his way into position.

"Gradually, I made my way through the pack into fourth place and decided I would maintan that. I knew Steve wasn't going to let the rabbit get too far ahead so I decided to go with them." Worried when Walker started "coming on," Coghlan moved past fellow countryman Ray Flynn into third to "stay closer to Steve."

Scott had a three-yard lead until Coghlan exploded.

Two years ago, Coghlan obliterated Dick Buerkle's world indoor mark of 3:54.9 with a 3:52.6 effort.

"My goal for the season was to break the 3:50 barrier. I admit it was a bit far fetched, but someone is going to do it," he said.

Pitt Blasts Cape Fear, 118-61

NEW BERN — Cape Fear made two mistakes Friday night in its game with Pitt Community College in the opening round of the Eastern Carolina Community College Athletic Congress (ECCCAC) tournament.

The first mistake was showing up 35 minutes late. The second mistake was showing up at all.

Pitt C.C., with six players scoring in double figures, demolished Cape Feat, 118-61, to advance into tonight's championship game with Craven Community College.

The Paladians, now 17-5, led from the opening tap, moving ahead 58-29 at the half and then outscoring Cape Fear 60-32 in the second half to take home the 57-point victory.

"We pretty much dominated the game," Pitt C.C. coach Linwood Woodard said. "I think the guys were pretty disgusted having to wait for the first round game to get started.

"They played hard defense and that allowed us to control the game. We got a lot of easy layups off our defense."

Pitt C.C., which shot 65% from the floor for the night, was led by Frankie Dail's 24 points, Mike Horne's 22 and Dennis Batt's 20. Calvin Horne added 18 points, Jeff Tyson 14 and Dennis Pitt 10.

Cape Fear was led by Matthew Griffin and Mike Johnson, both of whom had 15 points. Mike Laws had 12 for Cape Fear.

Knights Nip Mt. Calvary

Greenville Christian, without a player scoring in double figures, defeated Mt. Calvary, 42-41, Friday night in the first round of the East Carolina Christian Conference tournament.

The Knights were to have played Falls Road last night for the tournament title.

Greenville, with three players — Troy Hudson, David Hollingsworth and Bill Hurst — each scoring eight points, had trouble all night shaking Mt. Calvary, a team they had beaten twice during the regular season.

In fact, Mt. Calvary jumped out to a 14-5 lead after the opening period but a 14-7 second quarter deficit left the visitors up by only two, 21-19.

The Knights took the lead at the end of the third quarter, 28-25, and pushed it to six in the fourth before holding off Mt. Calvary to take the victory.

"I don't know what happened," Knight coach Dale Thatcher said. "We might have been a little flat. We had beaten them twice, but I don't think we were taking them lightly."

Mt. Calvary (41) — Taylor 1 0-0 2; Pruett 2 0-0 4; Manning 6 3-4 15; Jones 1 0-0 2; Letchworth 7 3-3 16; Manning 0 0-0 0; Stox 0 0-0 0; Oaks 1 0-0 2; Totals 18 5-7 41.

Greenville Christian (42) — Hudson 3 2-6 8; Haddock 1 2-3 4; Parnell 2 2-2 6; Butts 2 0-0 4; Hollingsworth 3 2-5 8; Laney 0 2-4 2; Harris 1 0-0 2; Bo. Hurst 0 0-0 0; Bi. Hurst 4 0-3 8; Totals 16 10-23 42.

TKE Boxing Tourney Set

The 6th annual TKE-Miller boxing tournament returns to Greenville next week.

The tournament, sponsored by the Miller Brewing Company and C.O. Tankard in conjunction with ECU's Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, is sanctioned by the AAU and is open to anyone who has not won prize money for any kind of boxing event.

The tournament begins Tuesday, Feb. 24, and will continued for three straight nights in Wright Auditorium on the ECU campus. Each match will consist of three two-minute rounds. Two AAU officials will referee the fights.

Winners from each weight class will receive Miller identified trophies. A most valuable boxer trophy will also be awarded.

Proceeds from the tournament go to the St. Jude's Children's Hospital, the National Philantropy project of TKE. The tournament was originally a joint effort of TKE at ECU and Appalichian State. But after its first year, in 1976, the tournament was taken over the ECU TKE chapter.

OSU Assistant In Line For Head Job

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — He recruited Steve Johnson, Ray Blume, Mark Radford, Charlie Sitton, Lester Conner and virtually every other member of the current unbeaten and No. 2-ranked Oregon State basketball team.

His name is Jim Anderson and he's the odds-on favorite to be the next head coach for the Beavers.

"Let's face it, he's got an excellent chance," said Oregon State head Coach Ralph Miller, who says he'll retire in four years after 34 seasons as a major-college coach.

"You cannot really recommend Jimmy too highly as a coach or a person or anything else," Miller said.

The 43-year-old Anderson is the current Oregon State team's link with the long-ago era of Slats Gill — who coached the Beavers from 1929 through 1964.

Anderson was a starting guard for the Beavers in 1957-59, coached the freshman team for three years after that, then left for high school coaching for three more seasons. He returned as an assistant coach under Paul Valenti at Oregon State in 1965, and stayed on when Miller took over in 1970.

He says the Oregon State job is the only head coaching position he would accept.

"Someday that's a challenge I'd like to take on," said Anderson, who feels he has "the second-best job on the West Coast."

Anderson was a finalist for the head coaching position when Valenti stepped down in 1970, but Miller, who already had a national reputation, got the job.

Anderson said he stayed at Oregon State for two reasons.

"The first thing is my love for Oregon State University and its basketball program," he said. "The second was the respect that Ralph Miller had."

Anderson said Gill and Valenti had mentioned Miller — who had built winners at Wichita State and Iowa — as a posssibility for the Oregon State job long before Miller indicated he had any interest in it.

Miller said he asked Anderson to stay because a new coach needs someone on his staff with experience at the school.

"He had nothing but excellent recommendations," Miller said. "It was a matter of convincing Jim that my idea of basketball wasn't that different than what he had been doing."

All of those closelly connected with the current Oregon State team will say that Anderson is a major reason for the Beavers' success.

"Jimmy's the master of the crew," said Johnson, the team's leading scorer. "When you have a problem, Jimmy's the first one you go to."

Anderson is in charge of recruiting on the West Coast and he says he was the one who recruited every current Beaver player except Bill McShane and Danny Evans.

Still, Anderson doesn't really like to recruit.

"I like to relate with the people," he said. "I don't like the travel. And I don't mind seeing some games, but when you've got two, three or four games a day it gets old. So does living out of a suitcase and fighting freeways."

The part of his job that Anderson really enjoys is the coaching.

During a recent practice session, Anderson was in a sweat suit directing the action on the court while Miller barked out criticisms from a seat in the grandstands.

That's the way it should be, Miller said as he explained the role of the assistant coach, "They're the ones who do all the work."

NASCAR Changing Rules On Spoilers

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — NASCAR plans to bring all other makes of Grand National stock cars into the same competitive ballpark with the Pontiac LeMans by modifying its rules on spoilers, The Daytona Beach News-Journal reported Saturday.

The National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing has sent out its new spoiler rules and has arranged to notify its competitors of the changes before Sunday's Richmond 400 race, according to sources quoted by the newspaper.

The new spoiler rules will take effect before the Atlanta 500 on March 11, the newspaper said, but the old rules still will be used in the March 1 running of the Carolina 500 in Rockingham, N.C.

According to the newspaper, NASCAR plans to cut down on the size of the spoiler on more streamlined cars like the LeMans and Ford Thunderbird. Since their fastback rear windows give them an aerodynamic advantage, NASCAR hopes to curb that edge by reducing the spoiler, which is attached to the car's rear end and produces extra down force on the rear tires.

Bobby Allison won the pole for last week's Daytona 500 with a similarly designed car and led 117 of the race's 200 laps. But protests about Allison's domination were tempered somewhat by Richard Petty's record seventh triumph in the event.

NASCAR feared that soon, every team would show up on the tracks with a LeMans. And in order to maintain a competitive balance among all makes, its officials apparently decided changing the rules was the best course of action, the newspaper said.

There will be three different classes of cars, The News-Journal reported.

The Buick Regals, such as the one driven by Petty, and Olds Cutlasses will be in one class, the Thunderbirds in another and the LeMans in a third. The Pontiac Grand Prix will be in the class with the Regals and Cutlasses, the newspaper said. All other models will fall into these basic categories, depending on size.

In addition, there will be three different spoiler sizes, depending upon the length of the race.

And side window glass no longer will be allowed in cars. That will prohibit glass from being used to fill in the space where you normally find side windows in the back of a passenger car. NASCAR's thinking is the new rule will prevent the cars from filling up with air in the back and flipping the way several did during Daytona's Speed Week.

Swimmers Win Seahawk

WILMINGTON — Although they did not win any individual events during Saturday's final round of competition, the East Carolina men's swimming team successfully defended its title in the Seahawk Invitational which concluded here yesterday.

The Pirates, who have now on the event three consecutive years, did receive two wins from Doug Nieman, in the 200 and 400 individual medleys, and one win each from Jan Wiklund, in the 500 freestyle, and Bjorn Johansen, in the 100 backstroke — all coming on Thursday and Friday.

Host UNC-Wilmington was second in the men's competition, trailing the Pirates in the final tally, 359-316. Tampa University was third with 302 points.

The ECU women's team was fifth in the eight-team women's competition, which was won by Virginia Tech with 540 points, followed by James Madison with 415 Old Dominion with 383.3.5.

In competiton Saturday, ECU's men had two seconds and a third. Nieman came in second in the 200 backstroke with a time of 2:02.25 and Jack Clowar was second in the 100 freestyle (:48.41). Wicklund wound up third in the 1,650 freestyle (16:37.86).

Kevin Richards was fifth (2:00.12) and Perry Newman was sixth (2:01.97) in the 200 butterfly and Mike Aman was fifth in the three-meter diving with a score of 305.45.

For the women, Tammy Putnam picked up two fourths and Jennifer Jayes grabbed one. Putnam was fourth in the 200 breastroke (2:36.36) and the 100 individual medley (1:04.09). Jayes was fourth in the 50 backstroke (:29.57).

Carol Shacklett was sixth in the individual medley (1:04.26).

Wilkins Lifts 'Dogs Past Auburn, 76-65

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Dominique Wilkins tallied 30 points and Georgia hit 17 free throws in the final 4:39 to down Auburn 76-65 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game Saturday night.

The Bulldogs saw a 44-27 lead with 17:31 remaining dwindle to 57-54 with 4:39 left on a tipin by Auburn's Darrell Lockhart.

The Bulldogs got only one other field goal the rest of the way, a slam dunk by Terry Fair that cost the Bulldog center a technical foul for handing on the rim.

The free throw binge down the stretch was led by freshman Vern Fleming, who his seven of them, and Wilmore Fowler, who had six.

The victory lifted Georgia to 15-9 for the season and 8-8 in the SEC. Auburn fell to 10-14 and 3-13.

It marked the first time Georgia has won more than 14 games in a season since the 1967-68 team posted a 17-8 record.

Terry Fair added 13 points for the Bulldogs.

Lockhart led Auburn with 17 points, Earl Banks had 16 and Frank Poindexter 13.

NHL To Probe Ranger Fight

DETROIT (AP) — The National Hockey League is investigating a fight between some New York Rangers players and Detroit fans at Joe Louis Arena.

After Detroit's 7-3 victory Thursday night, several Rangers climbed into the stands and chased spectators who, the players claim, threw beer and garbage at them. The players were quickly restrained by ushers and Detroit police.

Brian O'Neill, NHL executie vice-president, said Friday that he already had spoken with referee Kerry Fraser and supervisor of officials Matt Pavelich, who witnessed the post-game brawl from the press box. A videotape of the incident was provided by ON-TV, a subscription telecaster.

Fraser gave seven Rangers gross misconduct penalties for their roles in the fight. They are Nick Fotiu, Barry Beck, Tom Laidlow, Ron Duguay, Dan Maloney, Mike Allison and Lance Nethery.

The league is expected to follow the same investigation procedure it used last year when investigating a post-game brawl involving the Boston Bruins and several Rangers fans, O'Neill said.

A total of $30,000 in fines was levied against Boston players in that incident.

John Zeigler, NHL president, said similiar incidents will result in players being banned from the league. Ziegler watched the game on television in New York with Red Wings' owner Bruce Norris.

FSU.....92
Fla. A&M.....79

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Kris Anderson and Mickey Dillard pumped in 21 points apiece Saturday night to lead Florida State to a 92-79 college basketball triumph over crosstown rival Florida A&M.

The game was the last scheduled to be played in Florida State's Tully Gym and a season-high crowd of 3,636 turned out. The Seminoles will move into the new Leon County Civic Center next season.

James Bozeman scored 17 points in the first half and Dillard added 12 as the Seminoles, 14-10, cruised to a 49-32 halftime lead. Florida State shot 70 percent from the floor in the opening half and also converted 17 free throws.

Florida A&M, 15-10, crept back to within seven in the final nine minutes, but got move no closer. The Rattlers were within eight, 81-73, with 1:25 remaining, but Florida State scored five straight points to regain command.

Wallace Francis - Brash, But A Whole Lot More

ATLANTA (AP) — Wallace Francis — the football player — is sometimes flamboyant, usually jovial and quite often brash.

But all that disappears when the Atlanta Falcons' wide receiver leaves the field and discusses his involvement with youngsters and the church.

Francis has been involved in working with kids since his college days at Arkansas AM&N and two years ago created PAPPY (Professional Athletes and People Preparing Youth), a non-profit guidance counseling program for youths.

During the offseason, the 29-year-old Francis, who holds the Falcons club record for receptions with 74 catches in 1979 and helped Atlanta to the Western Conference title in 1980 with 54 receptions, is enrolled at the Interdemoninational Theological Seminary.

"I'm just trying to get some background in theology," said Francis, who hopes to receive a masters degree in divinity and possibly become a minister.

"This is for now and also for the future," said the 5-foot-11, 190-pound speedster, who began predicting midway during the 1980 season that the Falcons would go to the Super Bowl.

Atlanta, however, after a 12-4 regular season record, was knocked off by Dallas 31-28 in the playoffs.

"I look back and say that it's not in our control. We had the hottest team in the playoffs. We had the winningest record. it looked like an easy road but that just shows you how much man knows abut circumstances. It hurt and I was disappointed," said Francis.

"I also understood that it wasn't God's will for us to go. I felt deep down in my heart we were going to go. . . but what gave me peace of mind was God. It wasn't in his will even though I sw it better and a lot of other people saw it, that we should have," he said.

Francis believes that by going to school and getting a background in theology, he can further aid children in need of help.

"It will help me to understand kids problems and how to help them deal better with them," said Francis, who grew up in the small town of Franklin, La,as one of 14 children.

"I started working with kids when I was in college. I guess it boils down to my childhood," he said.

"As a kid i always wanted people who were successful to take time with me. I remember when I was a kid, I was always ambitious and everything I wanted to learn, it seemed like nobody was there to teach me," said Francis.

"I feel that I knew the void that I had in my life and a lot of mistakes I made because I didn't have people there directing me. I had a whole misconception of what success was all about and I didn't get the understanding of how to become one until I got some scars," he explained.

Francis, who is married and has a 10-year-old son, worked as a counseling specialist for ex-offenders in Buffalo when he was with the Bills and continued his work in Atlanta with youngsters when he was traded to the Falcons in 1975.

He is the Falcons' United Way spokesman and has done public service announcements for the city in the recent wave of child slayings.

"What we're doing with kids at this time of the year is speaking with them and counseling them. We talk to them, go out and lecture on how to become a successful man or woman. In the summer, we have vocational camps where we hope to teach the kids more things in the classroom," said Francis.

"With PAPPY, right now we're going to the churches, teaching Christian principles. We go to anybody that has kids and feel that the program could help them," he said.

"I've accepted Jesus Christ as my personal savior," said Francis. "I'm a Christian. In going to theology school, I'm there to get a better knowledge of God's work and to get a better knowledge of what the problems people are dealing with."

Francis also believes that the morality in the United States is headed in the wrong direction and hopes that his efforts can help change that.

"I think that the examples for kids now are bad. I think adults are losing their values in the basic morals. Right now you find out that everything is going. All the basic concepts of life have been destroyed because this is a free society now," he said.

"I think we are getting away from the true purpose, the true foundation of life and I think our kids are therefore getting away from it and I think we have to rededicate our lives to our kids and reestablish the foundation that we've been building," said Francis.

What he hopes to do is teach children by using his past experiences.

"I think kids listen to people that have achieved and have success and I think that as I become successful, I can relate to kids. I think they'll be more ready to listen because I'm somebody that they can see that has achieved and someone that is not only telling them what to do but also going through life and doing it themselves," he said.

"Basically what I use is my past exerience and then I use the guidance that God has given us in the Bible. I tell them that if you stand by those principles, you can't fail," said Francis.

"I think that is our playbook of life, and I tell them just like the Falcons need game plans, we as people need to have a game plan and our game plan is in the Bible. And if we learn the plays of life and learn how to play life, though the rules that have been given us by God, that we can't help but succeed in life."

Connecticut Wins 19th, Downs Providence, 71-57

NEW HAVEN Conn. (AP) — Mike McKay scored 19 points and Corny Thompson added 14 Saturday night to spark Connecticut to a 71-57 Big East Conference win over Providence.

McKay scored nine points in the second half as the Huskies broke open the contest. UConn improved to 19-5 overall and 8-4 in conference play.

The loss dropped Providence to 9-15 and 3-10. Billy Fields led the Friars with 15 points.

UConn Coach Dom Perno felt his club was playing its best basketball this season.

"We are starting to play up to our capabilities," Perno said. McKay has really been on his game recently."

In its last three games, which UConn has won, McKay has scored 57 points.

UConn broke from a 38-37 score with 17:31 left in the game on a run of eight points to lead 46-37. Providence then drew within 6 points, 54-46, with 5:39 remaining, but a three-point play by McKay, a basket from Norman Bailey and a foul shot from Karl Hobbs put UConn up by a dozen points, 60-48, with 4:22 left to play.

In the first half, McKay scored 10 points and Thompson eight as the Huskies led 34-30. UConn led by as many as seven points, the last time at 16-9 with 10:51 remaining.

But the Friars battled back behind Fields to take a 20-18 lead with seven minutes left in the first half. Fields, who had 11 points before intermission, scored nine of his points in the final 10 minutes.

Bobby Dulin added 10 points for UConn, and Otis Thorp nine points for Providence.

The game drew a sellout crowd of 9,338 at the New Haven Coliseum. It was the third victory in a row for UConn. The loss ended a two-game winning streak for Providence.

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Elston Turner scored a game-high 29 points and nine rebounds as Mississippi held firm during a strong challenge early in the second half and defeated Mississippi State 72-61 in a Southeastern Conference college basketball game Saturday.

The win evened Ole Miss's overall record at 12-12 and raised them to 7-9 in conference play. Mississippi State fell to 8-16 and 3-13.

Mississippi led by as much as 12 points twice in the first half, including a halftime 34-22 advantage as guard Chris Barrett hit a 20-footer with four seconds left.

Mississippi State then outscored Ole Miss 14-4 to pull within two, 38-36, capped by a 10-footer from Butch Pierre with 13:20 left in the game.

But that was all for MSU, as Mississippi quickly pulled away to lead by 11 points with 11:00 left.

For Mississippi State, Jeff Malone 27 led with 27, Terry Lewis had 14 and Pierre 10.

Also for Mississippi, Sean Tuohy had 14 points, and both Chris Barrett and Roger Steig had 10.

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Hot-shooting St. Peter's College held Army to 13 points in the first half and dealt the Cadets their 10th straight loss, 57-43 Saturday.

William Brown scored 20 points and was perfect in the first half, hitting seven of seven shots from the field and two-for-two from the foul line. Mark Murphy added 16 for the winners, who clinched an ECAC Metro playoff berth.

St. Peter's, 16-8, outscored Army 21-4 in the final 10:21 of the first half and raced to a 35-13 lead at intermission. Army was scoreless in the final 4:55 of the half.

St. Peter's finished with a 63 percent field goal accuracy for the game, hitting 27 of 43 attempts. The Peacocks hit 70 percent on 16 of 23 in the first half.

Marty Coyne with 11 points and Dennis Schlitt with 10 led Army, now 7-17.

Manhattan ..... 65
Navy ..... 57

NEW YORK (AP) — Junior guard John Leonard scored a career high 31 points, including 22 in the second half, as Manhattan ended a 13-game losing streak and defeated Navy 65-57 Saturday in a college basketball game.

Senior guard Sergio Bardaji added 10 points for the Jaspers, now 6-17. The Midshipmen, 8-16, were led by Gary Price's 14 points. Michael Jones and Robert Romaine added 10 apiece for the Middies.

Manhattan trailed 25-24 at the half, but went ahead to stay by scoring the first nine points of the second half, the last seven by Leonard.

Navy closed to within 39-37 on James Kuzma's jumper with 11:27 left in the game, but could come no closer.

Leonard hit on 10 of 13 from the floor and 11 of 13 from the free throw line.

Fordham ..... 66
Holy Cross ..... 59

NEW YORK (AP) — Sophomore forward Ed Bona scored 17 points as Fordham defeated Holy Cross in its final home game, 66-59 Saturday.

Holy Cross had a 32-28 halftime lead, led by sophomore forward Ernie Floyd's eight points. Fordham took the lead for good, 54-50, on two foul shots each by Bill Calhoun and Tony Faust. The Rams finished 28-for-42 from the foul line.

There were six ties and nine lead changes in the second half of a very physical game. Fifty-four fouls were called overall and six players fouled out, five on Holy Cross.

Garry Witts led Holy Cross with 18 points.

The Rams now are 18-7, their most victories since 1971-72, when they were 18-9. The Crusaders fell to 16-8.

Georgetown ..... 68
Villanova ..... 60

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Frazier scored 20 points and Eric Floyd added 16 Saturday as Georgetown defeated Big East rival Villanova 68-60 in college basketball at the Palestra.

The teams battled evenly throughout most of the first half, but Villanova, led by the shooting of Stewart Granger, went ahead 28-21 on a jump shot by Tom Sienkiewicz with 3:44 left.

The Hoyas battled back, however, outscoring Villanova 11-4 to pull into a 31-31 tie at intermission. Granger was 5-for-6 from the field, 11 points, while Frazier had 12 in the half.

A layup by Granger with 14:51 remaining gave the Wildcats a 42-35 edge, but again Georgetown rallied and tied the score at 44-44 on Gene Smith's three-point play with 11:41 to go.

After Villanova went ahead 52-50, a jump shot by Mike Hancock tied the score with 6:57 to go. Georgetown regained possession at the six-minute mark and held the ball. After the officials warned Villanova to become more active on defense or be charged with a technical, the Wildcats were penalized with 4:40 remaining.

Floyd made the technical foul, giving Georgetown a 53-52 lead, which they never again relinquished. Eric Smith made two free throws with 1:57 left to give the visitors a 57-52 advantage.

A jumpshot by Aaron Howard with 55 seconds remaining brought Villanova to within 59-57, but a spectacular layup by Floyd resulted in a three-point play and insured the Georgetown victory.

Gene Smith had 11 points for the Hoyas, now 17-10, 7-5 in the league. Granger had 18 points and Alex Bradley 13 for Villanova, now 15-9, 7-6 in the league.

Northwestern Dumps No. 18 Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Senior guard Rod Roberson scored 21 points, including a driving layup and a pair of free throws in the final seconds, to give Northwestern a 74-70 upset victory over 18th-ranked Michigan in Big Ten basketball Saturday.

The Wildcats roared out to a 13-0 lead in the first 2:21 of the game and led by as many as 18 points in the first half as Roberson poured in 11 first-half points and 6-foot-11 freshman center Colin Murray hit four of four from the field. The Wildcats shot an impressive 76 percent from the floor to take a 44-28 halftime advantage.

The Wolverines chipped away at the Wildcats' lead behind the hot hand of senior forward Mike McGee, who fouled out after scoring 9 of his 13 points in the second half. The Wolverine's Thad Garner knotted the game at 68-68 with just 1:33 remaining.

Northwestern, however, refused to fold as Roberson connected on the game-winning points.

Northwestern, now 2-12 in conference play and 8-15 overall, also got 16 points from Jim Stack.

Michigan's fourth consecutive loss dropped the team to 7-7 in the Big Ten and 16-7 overall.

Wisconsin .....77
Ohio State.....63

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin, led by center Larry Petty's career-tying high of 25 points, jumped to a 15-point first half lead and coasted to a 77-63 Big Ten college basketball victory over Ohio State Saturday.

The victory, which snapped a seven-game losing streak for Wisconsin, all but dashed the hopes of Coach Eldon Miller's Buckeyes for a shot at the Big Ten title.

Ohio State slipped to 7-7 in the Big Ten and 12-11 overall. Wisconsin is 3-11 in the conference and 9-13 for the season.

The 6-foot-9 Petty, having one of his best games in four varsity seasons, repeatedly connected with sweeping hook shots over Buckeye star Herb Williams as the Badgers controlled the inside game.

Williams, who had been held to nine points by Petty in an Ohio State victory at Columbus earlier in the season, managed only 11 points this time. He had been averaging 16 per game.

The Buckeyes' Clark Kellogg, averaging 19.5, wound up with 18, all in the second half.

John Bailey added 22 points for the Badgers and played a solid floor game against the Ohio State press.

Wisconsin jumped to a 24-9 lead after Ohio State had gone nearly 6½ minutes before scoring its first field goal.

The Badgers led 37-25 at halftime. Their largest lead in the second half was 16 points.

The Buckeyes closed to within 66-57 with 2½ minutes to play, but the Badgers protected their margin with free throws the rest of the way.

Missouri .....55
Nebraska .....45

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Curtis Berry's three-point play with 2:40 left sparked Missouri to a 55-45 victory over Nebraska in Big Eight Conference basketball Saturday.

The win upped Missouri's conference record to 8-4 and moved the Tigers into a first-place tie with the Cornhuskers, also 8-4.

Berry, a 6-foot-8-inch senior, keyed a Missouri spurt in which the Tigers scored 11 unanswered points during the last 5:57 of the game.

With Missouri trailing 45-44, Berry hit a short jump shot which gave the Tigers the lead, 46-45.

Then, with 2:40 left, he tossed in an eight-foot jumper and was fouled by Nebraska guard Jack Moore. Berry hit the free throw to give Missouri a 49-45 lead and the Tigers were never headed.

Berry led the Tigers, now 19-8 overall, with 22 points and eight rebounds. Jon Sundvold added 15 points and Ricky Frazier chipped in 10.

Moore led Nebraska, 14-10 overall, with 16 points.

Mavericks Drop 15th Straight

By The Associated Press

The New Jersey Nets seemed to have turned things around, which is more than can be said for the Dallas Mavericks. They just continue to head in the same direction — backward.

The Nets, who earlier this year set a season record of 14 straight losses, continued a reversal of field Friday night by winning their fifth straight National Basketball Association game with a 123-113 overtime triumph over the Portland Trail Blazers.

The streak tied the Nets' longest ever. The last time they won five in a row came in October 1978.

The Mavericks, meanwhile, remained the NBA's losingest team by dropping a 117-109 decision to the Philadelphia 76ers — a loss, by the way, that was their 15th in a row.

"This loss tonight is the type of thing that always seems to happen to us," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta. "We get ahead by six points or so, and then in the second half, turnovers hurt us and we lose our pattern. With other teams it is not major — but with us, it is."

Mike Newlin and Darwin Cook led the way for New Jersey, each scoring 30 points, including six apiece in overtime. The Nets opened the overtime period by grabbing an eight-point lead in less than three minutes. Kelvin Ransey, who had 24 points, was the only Blazer to interrupt a Nets rally that gave New Jersey a 115-107 advantage during the first 2:44 of overtime.

Cook hit three straight jumpers before fouling out with 3:08 remaining. The Trail Blazers missed several opportunities to catch up.

"I really wanted to beat them tonight," said Cook, a graduate of Portland University. "I thought in college that maybe Portland would draft me, but it all turned out for the best.

"I wanted to do well tonight because we were playing against Portland, where I went to school. Maybe now I'll get people over there talking about me again."

Darryl Dawkins sparked the 76ers' victory over the Mavericks, whose record dropped to a woeful 8-55. Dawkins scored all of his 14 points in the second half by hitting seven of seven shots from the floor to start the 76ers to their 55th victory in 67 decisions.

Rockets 110, Lakers 107

Moses Malone's layup with three seconds left and a free throw after being fouled on the play paced Houston over Los Angeles. The Rockets called a timeout with five seconds to go and the score tied at 107. Calvin Garrett found Malone alone under the basket and fed him a pass for the game-winning shot.

The Lakers had tied the game with 44 seconds to play on a pair of free throws by Norm Nixon.

Knicks 124, Bullets 112

Mike Glenn entered the game in the second quarter and scored 12 points in eight minutes and 21 overall to lead New York over Washington. Glenn also scored nine points in the first 4½ minutes of the fourth period as the Knicks won their 10th game in the last 11.

Washington's Elvin Hayes and Kevin Grevey each scored a game-high 23 for Washington. Kevin Porter, who registered 15 assists, had 22 points for the Bullets.

Pacers 109, Spurs 106

George McGinnis scored four points in the final 30 seconds to trigger Indiana past San Antonio. McGinnis, who led the Pacers with 24 points and 12 rebounds, scored a field goal to give Indiana a 107-106 lead with 17 seconds left. Four seconds later, he hit two free throws.

George Gervin, who had 20 of his game-high 30 points in the third quarter to spark a San Antonio comeback, was one of three Spurs who missed 3-point shots in the closing seconds.

Bulls 92, Jazz 84

Ricky Sobers scored 21 points as Chicago downed Utah. Adrian Dantley led Utah with 30 points and Jeff Wilkins had a career-high 22 as the Jazz dropped its 40th game of the season.

The Bulls led all of the way but the Jazz drew to within 70-68 in the fourth quarter. Then Chicago, behind Sobers and Bobby Wilkerson who finished with 14 points, pulled away.

Kings 112, Bucks 109

Otis Birdsong hit a basket and Scott Wedman added a pair of free throws in the last 58 seconds as Kansas City edged Milwaukee. After trailing by as many as 15 points, the Kings overtook Milwaukee 110-109 on Birdsong's basket with 58 seconds left. Wedman hit his free throws with 39 seconds left to ice the victory, the Kings' fifth straight.

The Bucks had a chance to send the game into overtime, but a long jump shot by Sidney Moncrief rimmed out with two seconds left.

Clippers 115, Warriors 114

Phil Smith's jumper with 39 seconds left led San Diego over Golden State. Smith, the guard traded from Golden State to San Diego last year, finished as the Clippers' high scorer with 24 points.

San Diego won despite a season-high 46-point performance by Golden State's Joe Barry Carroll.

Sonics 112, Suns 111

Vinnie Johnson and Fred Brown each hit two free throws in the final minute to lead Seattle over Phoenix. Brown's final free throw — which turned out to be the eventual game-winner — was the result of an unusual technical foul called on the Suns for having only four players on the court.

Walter Davis' three-point field goal with one second left on the clock resulted in the final margin.

Point Shaving

Could It Happen In NBA? Not Likely

Could a point-shaving scandal such as the one allegedly involving former Boston College players take place in the National Basketball Association?

Of course it could — anything is possible. But it's not likely.

The reason was best expressed by Henry Hill, a government informer who has admitted ties to organized crime and says he was a key figure in the Boston College scam, in an article in last week's issue of Sports Illustrated.

"So why did he do it?" asks Hill, referring to one of the BC players. "The money, man, the money. That's why we all did it."

And that's why it's unlikely to happen in the NBA. From a money standpoint, it simply wouldn't make sense, either for the NBA player or for the gambler.

The average NBA player earns about $180,000; stars generally earn much more, as much as $1 million a year. They are hardly likely to jeopardize all this earning power very lightly. A gambler would have to come up with mighty big bucks to entice a player earning that kind of money to risk it all in a point-shaving scam.

Hill says he was able to get to Boston College players for $2,500 per game, but such a sum is hardly likely to be a sufficient lure for an NBA player.

"That's one of the basic elements we have going for us," said Jack Joyce, the NBA's Director of Security. "We tell them to look at it from the standpoint of what do you have to gain against what do you have to lose. If they do, they'll see it doesn't make sense to get involved.

"Section 16 of the standard players' contract states very specifically the disciplinary action that could be taken. The commissioner can suspend indefinitely, or expel, any player who is found to be involved in gambling. And any finding by the commissioner is binding and not subject to appeal. We think that's a pretty strong deterrent."

It would take a lot of money to overcome such a deterrent — more money than it would make sense for a gambler to risk. Gamblers are just as cost-conscious as anyone else. When they see that it's going to cost them more to persuade players to shave points than they can possibly hope to make by betting on the games involved, they'll drop the idea like a hot potato.

Also, the players who have the greatest impact on NBA games are generally the highest paid. These players would logically be the most desirable for gamblers to reach — and the most expensive.

But the NBA is not taking anything for granted.

"Gambling is one of our greatest concerns," said Joyce, a former FBI man. "It's the greatest threat to any professional sport today, because it can ruin the sport's credibility with the public."

Because NBA games are high-scoring affairs in which there are often large point swings, it would be difficult to discern point-shaving taking place. "Hopefully you'll find out off the court rather than on," noted Joyce.

"We have a security representative in each NBA city, a former law enforcement officer who knows the city, has worked it and has good informants and liaison with local authorities. He'll try to keep his ear close to gambling elements to determine is they smell any sort of a fix. That's the best way to spot one, because the gamblers don't want to get burned, either.

"On each and every NBA game I get the point spread and we follow it very closely. If there is any unusual jump in the spread, we'll know about it — and we'll look into it in depth. Over a year we might look into anywhere from 10 to 20 such games, but most of the time we find the spread changes because some people get word of an injury."

To avoid such problems, the NBA requires its teams to notify the local media about any injuries and warns all club officials from discussing injuries with people over the phone unless they are sure to whom they are speaking.

In addition, said Joyce, "We have FBI agents and local officials come to preseason training camps to speak to teams about gambling, and I speak to the referees at their training camp. Often they may get what they think are crank calls, but we emphasize the importance of reporting every one. In this age of wiretaps, you never know if the caller's phone is being tapped — and you could become suspect that way if you don't report it."

"It is very definitely a great concern," said Joyce, summing up the league's attitude on gambling involvement. "We try in every way to avoid it."

No Room For Cuts In Budget

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Catherine Elliott says there's no room in her family's budget for Ronald Reagan's budget cuts.

"If I wasn't getting what I am, I don't see how my family would make it — how would we buy food, pay the rent, buy clothes?," asks the 35-year-old mother of six.

Mrs. Elliott works about 30 hours a week as a maid at the YWCA. But her pay at the minimum wage of $3.35 an hour doesn't cover the cost of raising her family.

So the federal government helps. She gets $300 a month in food stamps and $92 a month in Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Her children receive free lunches at school; the rent on their house is partially paid by the state; and her family's medical bills are largely covered by Medicaid.

President Reagan wants to cut some of Mrs. Elliott's benefits as a part of the nearly $50 billion in federal spending cuts that he proposed this past week.

"We will continue to fulfill the obligations that spring from our national conscience," Reagan said in his speech Wednesday. "Those who through no fault of their own must depend on the rest of us, the poverty-stricken, the disabled, the elderly — all of those with true need — can rest assured that the social safety net of programs they depend on are exempt from any cuts."

Grain Futures Prices Were Mixed

By PAULINE JELINEK
AP Business Writer

Futures prices were mixed for grains and closed higher for soybeans Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Prices advanced at the open in all trading pits on what sources said was partly a continuation of Thursday's rally. They also noted higher metals prices, lower interest rates and the weakened dollar, all of which tend to be positive for commodities prices.

But prices for grains fell back shortly after the open, leaving only soybeans higher across the board.

"We started higher on what was wishful thinking, but was attributed to the weaker dollar, and it just faded," one source on the trading floor said.

Reports that Kansas wheat fields would get some rain over the weekend pressured wheat, as did selling by traders who were taking profits from Thursday's advances, a trader said.

In news of interest rates, federal funds traded as low as 14 percent and the First National Bank of Chicago lowered its prime lending rate to 19 percent from 19.5 percent, matching a reduction announced earlier this month by Morgan Guaranty Trust of New York.

A trader in the soybean pit said buying on the open appeared to be from European interests and may have been in encouraged by the weaker dollar, which makes it less expensive to convert foreign currencies into dollars.

At the close, soybeans were 1 cent to 4½ cents higher, the contract for delivery in March was $7.62½ a bushel; oats were 1 cent to 4¾ cents lower, March $2.27 a bushel; wheat was 1¼ cents lower to 1¼ cents higher, March $4.61¼ a bushel; corn was unchaged to 2½ cents lower, March $3.62¼ a bushel.

The decline in currencies Friday again was said to lead the way for a drop in gold and other metals.

On the Commodity Exchange Inc. in New York, gold was 80 cents to $2.60 lower, February $506.50 a troy ounce; silver was 10 cents to 90 cents lower, Feb-ruary $13.12 an ounce; copper was .65 cent to 1.30 cents, lower, February 81.80 cents a pound. Platinum on the New York Mercantile Exchange was $3 to $4 lower, February $486 an ounce.

Livestock prices slumped to erase some of the premium showed by the futures market over cash markets, analysts said.

"I think we are back again to where the cash market has probably bottomed," said Robert Holbert of ContiCommodity Services Inc. "I just think the markets were trying to get themselves adjusted to cash."

Pork bellies fell as much as they are allowed to in a day's trading as the supply of frozen inventories in warehouses remains high.

"They deserved what they got — there are a lot of bellies in the freezer," Holbert said.

On the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, live cattle were 1.07 cents lower to .07 cent higher, February 62.82 cents a pound; feeders were unchanged to .98 cent lower, March 73.55 cents a pound; hogs were 1.15 cents to the 1.50-cent daily limit lower, February 43.20 cents a pound; pork bellies were 1 cent to the 2-cent limit lower, February 58.62 cents a pound.

JOINED FIRM

Donald V. Strickland of Rocky Mount joined C. E. Thurston & Sons Inc., a Norfolk based industrial supply firm, the company reported.

As industrial sales representative, Strickland will service the eastern North Carolina area for the company.

PRODUCER/CO-HOST

Blake C. Lewis Jr., vice president and general manager of WNCT-TV here, announced that Susan Roberts will join Slim Short and Henry Hinton on the station's "Carolina Today" morning show on Monday, Feb. 23.

Ms. Roberts, who will be producer/co-host of the show, was chosen from more than 40 people who auditioned for the position, Lewis said. She replaces Kathi Diamant, who has moved to Sacramento, Calif.

She attended Adams City High School in Denver, Colo. and is a graduate of the acting specialization program at the University of Washington in Seattle.

SUSAN ROBERTS

"Carolina Today," which airs from 6-8 a.m. Monday through Friday, is in its 22nd year.

BOARD ALTERNATE

Joe Cullipher of Joe Cullipher Chrysler-Plymouth here, is serving as an alternate on Chrysler Corporation's Customer Satisfaction Arbitration Board in North Carolina.

The board, one of 55 nationwide, was established by Chrysler Corp. and the 78 participating dealers in the state to handle customer warranty disputes.

Cullipher serves as alternate for dealer representative Bill O'Neal of Raleigh.

SCHOOL GRADUATE

The Mendenhall School of Auctioneering in High Point announced that Col. Donald W. Pulliam of Rt. 5, Greenville graduated from the auction program.

The school said that during the course of study, auctions were conducted where students did the actual selling under the supervision of their instructors.

Pulliam has entered into the auction profession, according to the school.

FIGURES REPORTED

Heilig-Meyers Inc. announced that for the nine months ended Dec. 31, total revenues increased by 8.2 percent to $70.8 million from $65.4 million for the same period last year. Net earnings decreased by 8.3 percent from $4,575,000 to $4,197,000.

On revenues of $26.2 million, net earnings for the third quarter were $1,558,000 compared with revenues of $24.9 million and net earnings of $1,875,000 for the corresponding period last year.

Mechanical Bull Gaining Popularity

By AUDREY V. IRWIN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bull threw Wayne Morris five feet through the air, and the young man landed with a thump on the thick floor padding. As he got to his feet, polite applause spread through the room.

Morris, a 23-year-old construction worker, shook off his fall and, with a slightly bowlegged walk, ambled over to the bar and downed a beer.

Morris is among the growing number of people who pay their money and take a chance riding mechanical bulls at Western saloons across the nation. In Los Angeles, four clubs boast of mechanical bulls as part of their entertainment.

Country singer Mickey Gilley holds a patent on the bucking machine, which became popular after appearing in the hit movie, "Urban Cowboy," filmed primarily at Gilley's club in Houston, Texas.

Gilley, who manufactures the machines in Houston, has limited the machines' distribution to avoid one on every corner, said one bull-riding expert. However, other firms around the country have come out with modified versions to meet the growing demand.

One Los Angeles area club fortunate enough to have an authentic Gilley bull is S.H. Kickers in Santa Monica. Mike Parsons works as a chef there during the day and runs the mechanical bull at night.

He concedes that the crowd which usually fills Kickers is made up mostly of people who have never set their posteriors in a saddle and are just looking for a good time.

A former avid surfer, the 21-year-old Parsons became acquainted with mechanical bulls while working on a ranch in Colorado last summer.

"I tried a (real) bull once and will never try it again," said Parsons. "He went out (of the shoot) and I fell."

When he came back to Los Angeles, he heard about Kickers and its machine, which was installed last June, and decided to take a job there. After less than six months of bucking experience, he now holds the saloon's record for riding the bull with no hands, 33 seconds at speed seven. The highest on the machine is 10.

Protection against the machine's violent bumps and grinds is what is needed to have an extended ride without regretting it the next day. The search for the all-important padding takes on an almost ritualistic quality.

Veteran riders hunt for their favorite piece of Styrofoam to cushion themselves against the mechanical bull's impact.

Most injuries, outside of pride, are prevented due to the watchful eye of the people who run the machines and hastily turn them off when a rider appears in trouble. However, there have been scattered injuries on the bulls and all riders at Kickers, at least, must sign papers which waive the establishment's liability in case of injury.

But despite a tendency to walk bowlegged for a while, most first-time riders are eager to try again.

The bucking-bull craze is part of the overall country and Western popularity boom evident across the land these days. In one recent four-month period, about 30 suburban Orange County clubs, bars and restaurants — many of them one-time discos — converted to country or added country bands to their bills, said David Niederhelm of Stage Management Agency in Tustin.

Before "you had to go to sleazy honky-tonk" to hear country-Western music," he said. "Now we have some real class operations."

And with the "class" comes a need for proper attire and, predictably, sales of Western clothing are riding high. Here in southern California, clothing retailers report that cowboy hats, for instance, are almost impossible to keep on the shelf.

celebrating Peace Corps' anniversary

Many of the 80,000 Peace Corps alumni of the United States will be celebrating next month the 20th anniversary of the good will agency.

"It was President John F. Kennedy who proposed the Peace Corps in a campaign speech in October, 1960," Eastern N. C. Peace Corps Alumni co-coordinator Emily Coble said. "By March, 1961, the first volunteers were being sent out."

Coble, Mary Cotter and Charlotte Purrington, all Greenville residents, recently were interviewed about the anniversary. Coble, now a U. S. Department of Agriculture tobacco grader and wife of Pitt County Planner Craig Smith, served first in Guatamala and later in Sierre Leone, for a total of three years. Cotter, a homemaker and wife of East Carolina University documents librarian, Michael Cotter, served two years in the Philippines. Purrington, a free lance fabric artist and East Carolina University School of Art graduate student, served two years in Peru.

Gail Singh of Edenton, a former Peace Corps representative in India, is co-coordinator along with Coble, the latter of whom recently returned from a meeting of the National Council of Returned Peace Corps Volunteers held at Wingspread in Wisconsin.

The alumni group is part of a four-chapter North Carolina branch of the National Council of Returned Peace Corps Volunteers. There are sister chapters in the Raleigh-Durham area (Central), the Charlotte-Winston-Salem area (Piedmont) and the Asheville area (Mountain).

Share Among Selves, Others

The organization exists for alumni who feel loyalty to the Peace Corps and who wish to continue to share the ideals of the two groups, both with one another and with their fellow countrymen.

Members of the Eastern group, which meets in members' homes once a month, other than those already mentioned, include Dr. E. Jackson Allison of Farmville who served in Malawi; Larry Newton of Rt. 1, Farmville who served in Colombia, Francis Johnson of Greenville who served in Thailand, Jim and Lucy Wright of Greenville, both of whom served in Colombia; Richard Bowers of Vanceboro who served in Sierre Leone, Will Turner of New Bern who served in Togo; Pat Familiar of Gatesville who served in the Philippines; Tom Elkins of Rocky Mount who served in Mali; John and Dorothy Satterfield of Greenville, both of whom served in Peru; and John Jackson of Elizabeth City who served in South Korea.

"The reason we tell where we served," Coble said, "is that we want the Eastern North Carolina community to know that we're here, available if there is ever a need for information or service related to our individual backgrounds.

"We have let the schools know we're resource people and we want the remainder of the community to know, too. Most of us have very positive memories of the time we served in the Peace Corps and we don't want to lock these experiences away in our minds. We want to share them."

Have Several Functions

"Another of our functions," Cotter said, "is being a support system for North Carolinians currently serving abroad. We understand there are about 100. The North Carolina Governor's office acted as liaison in the beginning."

Cotter recently completed on behalf of the Eastern group a project of providing information on a variety of practical subjects and recreational equipment to Jerry House, a North Carolinian serving in the Philippines.

Some of the alumni proficient in languages and familiar with customs of both the Cuban and Southeast Asian refugees have worked with other North Carolina church and civic organizations in helping to resettle a number of refugee families in the state.

Peace Corps alumni seek to take an active role in recruitment of prospective volunteers for the Peace Corps. "We're always willing to talk to anyone 18 to 80 who feels he or she would like to serve," Purrington said. "Most of the people who've served have been relatively recent college graduates, as the three of us were, but not all. Some of the most effective Peace Corpsmen have been high school graduates only and many people with some age and experience behind them have served and served well."

"We like to meet those who're interested and invite them to come to our meetings and get to know others who've served. They're welcome to contact me at 2501 E. Third Street, Greenville. And we encourage them to call the Action toll-free number for more information: 1-800-421-8580," Coble added.

Practical Idealists Needed

Only practical-minded idealists need apply, the three indicated. The service one takes to the Third World country in which he or she serves is practical, but those interested in money or glamour need not apply. The pay is room and board and about $125 a month saved for you until your return. The places you go tend to be the out-back, not the capitals of the 63 countries in which the Peace Corps now operates at the invitation of the respective governments.

The training is rigorous. The language classes tough and six-weeks-only.

"Because of the selflessness fostered by the program, Peace Corps has come to be an investment in people and ideas, rather than in goods," Coble said, "both from the point of view of those served and from the perspective of those who serve. You don't do it for monetary gain, but for gains in experience and understanding. And it's people you're working with, whose lives you're trying to improve. As you seek to share America's knowledge and know-how with them, you come to understand that people are people with virtually the same needs and desires for enough to eat, a place to live, an education for their children and order in their society, regardless of where they live or what their circumstances. You see values and closeness that American society has seemingly lost sight of. You go to give and you're given to; you go to enrich and you're enriched."

— PLANNED FAMINE —

"Before you go to bed tonight, some 12,000 human beings around the world will have died of starvation or diseases related to malnutrition.

"While such staggering figures of misery and suffering give many of us a feeling of hopelessness, a group of Greenville youth have decided to do something about it," Rev. Carol W. Goehring reports.

Fifteen youth of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Youth Fellowship are going to begin a "Planned Famine" Friday, Feb. 27.

"The 30-hour fast will serve a two-fold purpose," Rev. Goehring said. "We plan for the youth participating in the program to stay together during the fast so that, while we share the experience of feeling hungry, we can also learn why hunger exists in the world and what we can do about it.

"Many factors contribute to hunger — lifestyles, populaton, the energy crisis and others. We'll learn about them through audiovisuals and other program materials and discuss how we can be part of the long-range solution."

The youth will seek out Famine Supporters to contribute $6 donations, $2 for each meal missed. Each of these supporters will be asked to read a fact sheet on hunger, so they, too, might become involved, she said.

"We hope to be able to raise $500," she added. "The money we raise may help feed many families — even an entire village — for a month or longer!"

The funds will be channeled through World Vision International, an interdenominational Christian humanitarian agency which supports a number of hunger-relief and development programs in two dozen Latin American, Asian and African countries.

Individuals interested in learning more about the Planned Famine program or in helping the youths meet their goal may call Carol Goehring, 752-3101.

On The Young Side

By Elizabeth Ito

The Rose High Quiz Bowl team was victorious in the local competition held last Saturday. Team members received $150 savings bonds after defeating D. H. Conley by a narrow margin.

Moderators for the contest, which is sponsored by Sheppard Memorial Library, were Alison Ashe of WNCT-TV and Linda Shore of WCTI-TV. Faculty advisors for Rose's team included Marie O'Callaghan, Rosalind Britt, Christine Gantt, Virginia Jones, D. D. Read and Leigh Seamster.

Kelly Fleming and Elaine Tschetter's child development classes toured the Neo-Natal Unit at Pitt Memorial Hospital Monday. The classes also attended a career day for high school students hosted by the ECU School of Home Economics.

In a meeting Wednesday morning members of the National Honor Society discussed the upcoming state convention and elected four official delegates to represent the chapter. Sponsored this year by North Pitt High School, the convention will be held March 21-22 at the Ramada Inn. Official delegates for the HaskettChapter are Scott Taylor, Elizabeth Ito, Jeff Ferrell and Billie Ward.

Robin Muzzarelli, a senior at Rose, is president of the NOTAECO company of Pitt County's Junior Achievement Program. The program is designed to teach students about the free enterprise system by allowing them to establish a company, sell stocks, market a product and collect dividends. Other officers of NOTAECO include vice president of marketing, Stacy House, Ayden-Grifton, vice president of manufacturing, Karen Oeherli, Ayden-Grifton, secretary, Angeline Ward, North Pitt, and treasurer, Pete Anthony, Rose.

The SGA's annual candy sale will begin Feb. 25 and continue through March 10. Participating clubs can earn money for their organization and the SGA through the sale. The goal for the school is to sell 1,000 cases of candy.

PLANT NEEDS DIFFER

STREAMWOOD, Ill. (AP) — Indoor plants require various amounts of sunlight and water, amounts which can be easily determined by sight.

Use color-coded pots for the plants, say the makers of Garden Scene planterware.

Their suggestion is for "yellow" to indicate the plant needs a lot of sunlight, "green" when it needs water more often than "red," which uses less water.

For plants that can thrive in shaded light, a "brown" pot will do.

Miss Braxton Is Married

The First Pentecostal Holiness Church was the setting for the candlelight wedding of Elizabeth Mae Braxton and Steven Bradley Pass. The couple was married Saturday at 7 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frank Gentry of Greenville and the Rev. Howard of Goldsboro.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Earl Braxton of Palm City, Fla. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Jackson of Macclesfield.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Betty LeRoux of Greenville, organist. Donna Dixon of Grimesland and Debbie Boyd of Greenville, cousin of the bride, sang "I Can't Help Falling In Love," "The Wedding Song" and "The Wedding Prayer." Trumpeters were Ken Kearney, Mike Pollard, H. L. Auston, Glen Buck and Randy Gentry, all of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. The bride wore a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with silk floral Venise lace. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke of English net bordered in rows of beaded schiffli embroidered lace and floral Venise lace. The back closure featured self-fabric covered buttons. The long fitted calla pointed sleeves were designed with appliques of lace and finished with a satin insert with ruffled crystal pleating at the cuffs. The waistline was encircled with floral Venise lace with white satin ribbon streamers at center back. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were accented by a satin flounce topped by scalloped floral Venise lace with crystal pleating edging. The skirt and train were bordered with floral Venise lace. Her mantilla was of net with scalloped Venise lace and satin. She carried a cascade of wine, pink and white flowers, silk flowers, roses, baby's breath and greenery.

MRS. STEVEN BRADLEY PASS

The maid of honor was Sandy Giamatt of West Palm Beach, Fla., cousin of the bride, who wore a formal gown of wine silesta designed with an open neckline featuring miniature rolled shoulder straps, gathered empire bodice and flared skirt. The sleeveless gown was complemented by a long sleeved jacket elasticized at the waistline and accented by a peplum flounce. She carried a long-stemmed pink silk rose accented with baby's breath, greenery and satin ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Danette Braxton, sister of the bride, from West Palm Beach, Fla., Beverly Pass of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, Sarah Edwards, Lori Jo Edwards, Peggy Stoneman and Donna Edwards, all of Greenville, who were dressed identical to the honor attendant. They carried flowers identical to the honor attendant.

Matthew Cleary of Winterville was best man. Ushers included Eddie Braxton, brother of the bride, and Kenny Harris, both of West Palm Beach, Fla., Randy Edwards and David Johnson of Greenville, Ronnie Evesette of Falkland and Robin Little of Mount Airy.

Ring bearer was Jason Howard of Greenville and the flower girl was Shannon Carey of Tacoma, Wash. She wore a pink and white long gown of polyester accented with white lace and rosebuds. She wore baby's breath and bows in her hair and carried two sweetheart roses, wine silk bell blossoms, baby's breath and greenery tied with satin ribbons.

The bride's mother selected a rose knit gown with a V-neckline. Mrs. Jackson, aunt of the bridegroom, chose a formal gown of green silk which featured an open neck. Both wore white orchids. The grandmothers were remembered with pink rose corsages.

Teresa Taylor presided at the guest register.

The reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth and accented with an epergne with pink and white mixed flowers. Cake was served by Mrs. Faye Smith and Mrs. Essie Ruth Mills poured punch.

Scrolls were given to guests by Jimmy Allen and Joey Donate and John Howard gave out rice bags.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Reason, sister of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen received guests and said good-byes.

The wedding was directed by Betty Whitfield of Bethel.

Pollard-McLaughlin Vows Are Solemnized

TARBORO — The Calvary Episcopal Church here was the scene of the Saturday wedding ceremony of Buren Katherine McLaughlin and Monty Ray Pollard. The double ring ceremony was performed at high noon by the Rev. I. Mayo Little Jr. and the Rev. Robert Macbeth Bird, uncle of the bride.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kesler McLaughlin of Tarboro, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Pollard of Tarboro and his father served as best man.

A program of wedding music was presented by Ambrose Lloyd Owens Jr., organist, and the Calvary Church Choir.

MRS. MONTY RAY POLLARD

Deborah Ann Stocks of Cary was honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Elizabeth Bird Givens and Heather Divoky Pollard of Raleigh, Susan Marie Lee of Chapel Hill, Pamela Gail Sansbury and Catherine Brevard Templeton of Charlotte, Vivian Marie Davis of Rockingham, Susan Castleberry Edwards and Pamela Lynn Andrews of Greenville.

Ushers were John Charles Young and Waightstill Morehead Scales III of Greenville, Joseph Edwin Peele and Alphes Rupert Chesson Jr. of Williamston, Kenneth Dexter Randolph, John William Hawkins and Michael Anthony Pollard, brother of the bridegroom, all of Raleigh, Wayland James Sermons of Washington, Thomas Kesler McLaughlin Jr. of Boston, Mass., brother of the bride, and Charles Raymond Hardee of Buies Creek.

The bride wore a formal gown of candlelight satin and alencon lace embroidered with seed pearls and bugle beads. Her cathedral length veil was mounted on a satin Juliet cap and featured a scalloped border of alencon lace bound with satin.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Hilma Country Club.

The couple will be living in Washington after a wedding trip to Sugarbush Valley, Vt.

The bride attended Meredith College and graduated from N. C. State Unisversity. She received her master's degree from ECU. She teaches at North Tarboro Elementary School, Tarboro. The bridegroom graduatud from UNC-CH and was recently appointed district commercial manager for Carolina and Telephone and Telegraph Co., Washington.

The bridal couple was entertained at a dance held at the Hilma Country Club, Tarboro. The parents of the bridegroom honored the couple at an after-rehearsal dinner following the wedding rehearsal.

Other pre-nuptial parties included a cocktail hour at the country club given by Mrs. Joseph B. Whitener and Thomas K. McLaughlin Jr. Mrs. Elbert Stocks, Debbie, Jeanie and Susan Stocks gave a luncheon honoring the bride and her attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Don Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young and Mr. and Mrs. Waighty Scales gave a cocktail party at the Edwards home, Greenville, for the bridal couple. The couple was also given a pig picking held at the of Mr. and Mrs. J. James Hughes Jr., Tarboro, and a dinner party was held in Raleigh given by Mr. and Mrs. Michael C. Givens and the Rev. and Mrs. Robert M. Bird.

Engagement Announced

ANNE MARIE FISHBURNE. . .is the daughter of Mrs. Kitty L. Dawson and Mr. E. Ritchie Fishburne of Greensboro, who announce her engagement to Eric A. Vernon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Vernon of Garner. The wedding is planned for April 18.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Something has got to be done about the "Suds Majority."

The "S.M.'s" are a militant group of soap opera watchers who in recent years have become quite vocal if anything interferes with the airing of their "stories."

I'm not talking about your Social Soap Watchers who watch the soaps to unwind and who can quit "As the World Turns" anytime they want to.

I'm talking about your Chronic Viewers who every day of their lives need "One Life to Live" just to get started, can't stop watching until they stagger into the bedroom late at night from "Dallas" and are an embarrassment to their families.

Every time a national news story breaks of great impact on the country, you can count on them to send up a roar that is heard throughout the country — especially if the event preempts their soaps. Their feeling is if you want to end the Vietnam war, have a funeral for a national figure, or bring the hostages home from Iran, do it before 10 a.m. or after 2 p.m.

Somehow, I have the feeling if the network broadcast a warning to "hit the bunkers by 1 p.m. if you expect to survive," a Soap Fanatic would call the station and say, "Does that mean you're not going to show 'Ryan's Hope'?"

Several decades ago, I read a short story about a restroom attendant who felt she was cut off from the drama of life, stuck away in a powder room replacing soap and giving hand towels to the women who came and went. To fight the monotony, she immersed herself in movie magazines, living vicariously in their adventures and their glamorous lives.

She never saw the steady parade of real-life drama that was within her touch. The women who unloaded their pain, their anxiety, their fears, their personal problems and one who was contemplating suicide played to a deaf audience.

Reality just wasn't dramatic enough.

I know about the Suds Majority. My grandmother was the Founding Mother of the movement. Television hadn't been invented yet, but Grandma marked her vigil every day at the radio beginning with the serial "Betty and Bob." When Bob was out of work, Grandma cut back. When Betty had a headache, Grandma took two aspirin.

I don't think Grandma ever knew she was surrounded by a widowed daughter, a son going off to war, a son-in-law out of work, a husband down to three days' work and the creditors moving in.

She always said, "Shhhh. My soaps are on."

Couple Receive Dance Trophy

Jeanie and Clayton Whitehurst of Greenville have returned from Augusta, Ga., where they attended the Sweetheart Ball.

They received a trophy for being the "farthest distance travelers" for the annual square dance festival.

They also visited in Kissemmee, Fla., with former square dancers of Williamston, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ritter, with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bradley in Clearwater, Fla. and with Mrs. Helen Brown, sister-in-law of the Rev. A. E. Brown of Greenville.

ON HONOR ROLL

Was Money Claimed?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was in a store a couple of weeks ago, and as I was walking up to the checkout counter I found a $20 bill on the floor. I picked it up and instead of going by the old "finders-keepers, losers-weepers" policy, I turned it in at the service desk. I was asked to leave my name, address and telephone number, and told that if nobody claimed it within 24 hours, it would be given to me.

Well, two days later I went to the store to inquire about it, and the lady I gave the money to said she "thought" someone had claimed it. Abby, how do I know it was claimed? And if it was, don't you think the person who claimed it should have at least called me to thank me for turning it in?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: If the money had been claimed, the claimer should have been given your name and phone number in order to thank (and possibly reward) you. And you should have been told who the claimer was in case you wanted to check on whether the $20 had been claimed.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have had a very happy marriage for five years.

Last week, out of the blue, my husband received a letter from an old girlfriend he had not seen or heard from in 10 years! She claimed that he had fathered her 10-year-old child, who is now sick and needs help! Abby, he had completely forgotten about this girl and he was never informed of a "pregnancy."

Should we ignore her, or call her? We realize that he has no legal responsibility, but it is the moral aspect we are concerned about. We both fear that contact with this former girlfriend might put a strain on our marriage.

What a miserable problem! What should we do?

US IN FLORIDA

DEAR US: Even though you assume that there is no legal responsibility, if you decide to contact the woman because you feel a "moral" responsibility, see a lawyer first. The decision ultimately rests with your husband, whose generosity is commendable — in view of the fact that he was not aware of any "pregnancy," had completely forgotten about the girl, and 10 years have passed.

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a guy at work. We liked each other from the minute we met. He asked me to have a drink with him after work, so I did. We found we had a lot in common. His marriage stinks and so does mine. We both have children and all the problems that go with them. Now he wants me to meet him somewhere so we can get to know each other better.

I've never done anything like this in my life. I'm scared, but this guy really turns me on. There are too many complications in both our marriages to consider anything more than just seeing each other whenever we can. But what's the harm in an affair as long as we aren't hurting anybody?

ON THE VERGE

DEAR ON: There is no way two married people can have an affair without hurting somebody. They hurt themselves. Back off. If possible, one of you should get a job elsewhere to minimize the temptation. And you should both do something about deodorizing your "stinking" marriages.

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from NO COMPLIMENTS, I just had to write.

For 40 years I was married to a man very much like her husband. He was not a giver of compliments either, but if I had a new dress or hairdo, or did something special for him, all I had to do was look at him, and the things he couldn't say were written on his face.

So many men are full of baloney; they find it easy to dish out compliments but can't wait to get out from under their wives' eyes to try their charms somewhere else.

So I hope NO COMPLIMENTS will be content and appreciate the good and faithful man she has. Why worry about the tinsel topping when you know there's pure gold underneath?

WIDOW OF A GOOD MAN

DEAR WIDOW: Well said.

EC Students Redecorate Family Room

DECORATORS . . .Wanda Suitt, Christine Phillips, Connie Hilliard and Alyce Hilliard pose in the room they, as ECU interior design students, redecorated in the International House of the university.

The family room of the International House, located at 306 E. Ninth St., is being redecorated by East Carolina University interior design students with community donations.

The house, a component of East Carolina University, serves as a center for various activities conducted by the International Students Association and provides lodging for a limited number of students enrolled in the university. The house is also used as temporary housing for overnight and weekend guests.

Recently, the house has become a focal point of interest for the community and the university hopes that it will become a cultural center, says Lucy Wright, former language professor at ECU, who has been hired to help coordinate the activities of international students. She said she foresees many opportunities for local service organizations to make use of the house and provide international students a direct cross-cultural exchange while living in the United States.

Funds to redecorate the house have been limited. Nancy Meyer, professor in the School of Home Economics, Department of Housing and Management, has helped provide impetus for the beautification. During the fall semester, 1980, four senior students in housing, Wanda Suitt, Christine Phillips, Alyce Hilliard and Connie Hilliard, proposed plans for a low-budget decorating theme to be used in the family room of the house. This project was done with instruction and supervision by Mrs. Meyer. Local merchants, church organizations and individuals gave financial support. Now community women and faculty wives are pursuing possibilities of redecorating the other downstairs living area.

The public is invited to attend an open house to be held at the International House Thursday from 5 to 7 p. m. and see the progress being achieved.

MAGLA KHXB MRI PMWQUAI MAU M QXT WMHTP BL GLIUAR KLW-IXUA

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — AVID HERO CANDID: CANNOT SHARE RAVE NOTICES.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Bible Institute To be Offered

Successful personal relationships are the main goal of the 1981 Bible Institute for Ministerial and Lay Enrichment to be conducted at the Greenville Church of God, 1805 Spruce St., beginning Tuesday night at 7 o'clock.

The institute, three separate courses of study build around the theme, "Christians and Their Relationships," will continue on Tuesday nights for nine consecutive weeks.

The Rev. Ariel S. Yorkman, institute coordinator, said the sessions are open to ministers and lay persons, regardless of religious affiliation, and noted that college credit is available for the classes.

Two teaching sessions will be offered each evening, and each person attending will be enrolled in two of the three courses offered.

One of the courses, The Ministry of Reconciliation, will deal with interpersonal conflicts, depression, forgiveness, sharing and love, while another, the study of Christian maturity, will discuss the means for overcoming temptations and sinful habits. The third course will examine real-life problems of ministers.

Additional information on the institute, including the tuition, may be had by calling 752-4967.

ASK OMAR

Q.—This sequence came close to bringing about fisticuffs in our game:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Dble. | 2 ♡ | Pass |
| Pass | Dble. | Pass | ? |

North intended the second double for takeout. South assumed that it was for penalties and passed. The result was that the opponents made game and scored a doubled overtrick as well. Both sides defended their position hotly, and the game nearly broke up. Peace was restored only when we agreed to submit the matter to you for arbitration.—R.E. Johnson, Raleigh, N.C.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—I presume you picked on me because you know that I am a fight fan. But I do prefer my fisticuffs to take place in the ring—the card table is no place for such behavior.

Rather than my issuing a dictum, let's consider the logic of the situation. North's double of one heart was for takeout. It showed heart shortness and support for the three unbid suits. So why should North's double to two hearts now be for penalties—after all, isn't he still short in hearts and isn't the prerequisite for a low-level penalty double still possession of a good holding in the opponents' trump suit?

Here's a simple rule of thumb which will tell you in most cases whether partner's second double is for penalties or takeout: Until such time as the doubler's partner has bid a suit or no trump, or made a penalty double himself, all subsequent doubles of low-level contracts by the takeout doubler are still for takeout.

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Pass | 1 NT | Pass |
| 2 ♡ | Dble. | | |

Here, North's double is clearly for penalties. East-West have found no fit and North could have doubled one heart for takeout. North is saying that the opponents are playing in his suit and that he expects to defeat them.

Q.—Has the revoke rule been changed? There seems to be some disagreement in our game about whether the penalty should be one trick or two.—B. Richards, White Plains, N.Y.

A.—Strange as it might seem, that depends on whether you are playing rubber bridge or duplicate. There has been no change in the rubber bridge laws, so the penalty is still two tricks providing that the offending side won two tricks when and after the revoke occurred.

The Laws of Duplicate were revised in 1975. The penalty for a revoke in tournament play depends on whether or not the offending side won the trick on which the revoke occurred. If they did, the penalty is two tricks if they won at least one other trick after the revoke. If they did not, the penalty is only one trick, again providing that they won one trick subsequent to the revoke.

Soviet Party Congress Posing Major Challenges

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, faced with the decline of detente, unrest in Poland and a series of challenges elsewhere, opens its most important meeting in five years Monday to plan strategy for the future.

The 26th Congress of the Soviet Communist Party, in which hundreds of foreign Communist delegates will also participate, is expected to set authoritative policy lines on the Reagan administration, trouble spots throughout the world and economic and political problems inside the Soviet bloc.

It will also provide important clues to the health of President Leonid I. Brezhnev, 74, and other elderly but still powerful Soviet leaders; reveal the current strength of the maverick "Eurocommunist" movement, and show the level of Soviet commitment to national liberation movements in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

The congress, which will involve some 6,000 senior Communists and take place in a blaze of official publicity, comes in an international atmosphere far different from the last such session in 1976.

At that congress, Brezhnev spoke of "a turn for the better" in relations with the United States and the victory of the Vietnamese people over U.S. "imperialism."

Polish Communist Party leader Edward Gierek was honored at that session by being the first foreigner called upon to speak after top Soviet officials had delivered their own introductory remarks.

At this year's congress, the Soviet Union faces a deterioration in its relations with the United States, jeopardizing the overall detente policy identified with Brezhnev personally. The Vietnam war is long in the past, and Moscow is now bogged down in its own guerrilla war in Afghanistan.

The tables have turned in Poland as well, with Gierek removed from power and an independent labor movement causing difficulties for the party. The new Polish party leader, Stanislaw Kania, is expected to attend the Soviet congress this year, possibly to assure the delegates that Poland will remain loyal to the socialist bloc despite its problems.

Some Western diplomats believe the Soviet Union, profiting from the presence of all Warsaw Pact leaders at the party congress, could organize a new pact meeting on the Polish situation during the congress period.

It would be the first such high-level meeting since last Dec. 5, when pact leaders declared their confidence that Poland could solve its own problems.

This year's congress will probably pay less attention to the "Eurocommunism" issue, which was a major point of controversy in 1976. Some West European Communist Parties are continuing to assert their independence from the Kremlin, but the issue has received less public attention in recent years and a few Eurocommunists have even moved back into the Soviet orbit.

The leaders of three of West Europe's largest parties may be missing from the Moscow congress, however.

Italian party leader Enrico Berlinguer plans to be absent in what Italian analysts say is a warning to Moscow over its policies on Poland and Afghanistan; French leader Georges Marchais may be kept away by election campaigning, and Spanish party boss Santiago Carrillo, a committed Eurocommunist who has criticized Soviet policy in Afghanistan, will continue his policy of not attending Soviet congresses.

Foreign analysts are expected to pay special attention to the health of Brezhnev and the other Soviet party leaders. The average age of the 14 full members of the party's ruling Politburo is 69, with seven older than 70.

In 1976, Brezhnev, even then considered to be in poor health, gave a speech lasting 5 hours and 10 minutes on the congress' opening day with only two breaks. At the 1971 congress, he spoke for 6 hours.

Western analysts predict that Brezhnev, believed to be resting now for his congress appearance, will speak for a substantially shorter time this year.

The congress will hear a lengthy report by Nikolai A. Tikhonov, the nation's 75-year-old premier, who took over his new post last year following the resignation of Alexei N. Kosygin.

Tikhonov's report, as well as Brezhnev's, is expected to pay heavy attention to economic problems. Meat and milk production last year fell below 1979 levels and the 1980 grain harvest, at 189 million metric tons, was 20 percent below the target of 235 million metric tons.

Men Likelier Try Hot Sauce

ALCOA, Tenn. (AP) — Sales of hot sauces are hotter for men than for women.

"Men like to think they are more adventuresome in the food they eat, so by relishing foods like hot sauces they appeal to their own sense of masculinity," said Fred Hafer, president of Gourmet Foods here.

Hafer says his own Tiger Sauce is a sweet and sour variety with 60 percent of its sales to men.

Tiny Florida Creek A Symbol Of Wide Pollution

By BEN FUNK
For The Associated Press

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — Shingle Creek, a puny sliver of water that sloshes through the teeming developments of Orange and Osceola counties, is sick — infected with phosphorous, nitrogen and other damaging wastes it is fed by man.

Environmentalists call the ill-fated creek a symbol of statewide malaise, a "growth at any cost" mentality common among developers and politicians.

The torrent of sewage pouring into Shingle Creek, which feeds Lake Tohopekaliga, the magnificent, fish-rich body of water known as Toho, has prompted the Florida Environmental Regulation Commission to warn cities and counties that such pollution can lead to state-ordered restrictions on growth.

Moratoriums on hookups to overtaxed sewage treatment plants have already caused long delays in development of housing and tourist attractions.

"Nobody ever dreams that something like this can happen until the moratorium hits them," said Bill Frederick, chairman of the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation.

The Florida League of Anglers, a statewide group claiming some 10,000 members, has chosen Shingle Creek as "a horrible example" on which to concentrate its fight to halt growth that ignores environmental concerns.

"There are many Shingle Creeks in Florida," group founder Lyman Rogers of Ocala said. "But this was the most highly identifiable, in the heart of Florida and at the headwaters of the Kissimmee-Okeechobee basin.

"We cannot expect to get anything done at the bottom of the system if we have state agencies allowing that degree of pollutants to be put at the top," he said.

Shingle Creek once rose from a swampy, southwestern corner of Orlando, meandered into Osceola County, entered its historical channel and, just before emptying into Toho, became a small stream filled with fish.

But the swamps that nurtured it were drained and bulldozed. Upland canals were dredged so runoff water from the new residential areas could drain into the creek.

From a gentle, winding stream, Shingle Creek became a straight-line ditch filled with sewage wastes which nurture plants but poison fish and other aquatic life.

Hydrilla, an exotic weed, and water hyacinths feed on the pollution and form dense mats on the lake bottom, blocking sunlight and threatening the aquatic food chain. Blue-green algae blooms choke fish breeding areas. Trophy-sized bass could eventually give way to tough trash fish such as gar and shad.

Environmentalists point to nearby Lake Apopka in warning.

The 51,000-acre lake once proclaimed "Bass Fishing Capital of the World" is now tainted by years of mucky farm runoff, sewage treatment discharge and citrus processing wastes. Lake Toho is 27 percent smaller than Lake Apopka in surface acreage, but receives twice the amount of phosphorous.

As long ago as 1969, the Florida Pollution Control Commission ordered the Orange County Commission to cease pollution of Shingle Creek.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency stepped in with a 1977 order banning discharges by county sewage plants into surface waters.

But negotiations led to an eventual agreement that gave Orange County until 1984 to reduce the level of phosphorous and until 1988 to stop discharges into Shingle Creek.

The agreement cleared the way for construction of a new Western Electric Co. plant and revival of other building projects stymied until then by the state-ordered sewer hookup moratorium.

"Everything was tried and nothing succeeded," Rogers complained. "It was a matter of governments backing down and allowing a county to continue to break the law going into a second decade."

In 1971, the Florida Game and Freshwater Commission "drew down" Lake Toho, lowering the water level to expose the lake bottom to air and sunlight. The process dries up and oxidizes bottom mud and re-establishes natural vegetation, said biologist Vince Williams.

Toho's fish population doubled by 1974.

Pollution mandated a second drawdown in 1979, and the fish population is still working to come back.

But Williams said the process is a treatment, not a cure.

"We are at the point where we would have to draw down so frequently the fish population would have no chance to come back. The possibility of a massive fish kill during drawdown is now very real. The lake might never recover at all. So we've decided not to chance it again unless the water quality is improved.

"If it isn't, the lake has 10 years at most and then it's not going to be worth anything for fishing."

Jim Swan, a Toho fishing guide, has taken the lead among local residents battling to preserve their fishing paradise.

In 1978, when lakeside property owners filed for permits to dredge channels into deep water, for boat usage, Swan fired off letters to the Army Corps of Engineers and took out newspaper ads. His customers and concerned residents began a letter-writing campaign.

The Corps denied the permits.

Now Swan's group, Save Our Lakes Inc., wants to save Shingle Creek.

"We've learned a lesson. Only when the people acquire knowledge and get involved will the government respond," he said. "These are issues I don't think the politicians have a right to decide."

The Albemarle
A Gracious Past and a Secure Future Are Coming Together in Tarboro.
One of the nicest towns in Eastern North Carolina is host to one of the nicest ideas in retirement living: The Albemarle.
Right now The Albemarle is the largest initial private building investment in the history of Edgecombe County. When it's finished, The Albemarle will be the most complete and thoughtfully developed retirement community in this part of the state.
More importantly, The Albemarle will offer a way for people to retire nearby, within a short driving distance of family and friends — in a gracious setting with outstanding facilities.
The Albemarle meets the demand for a new kind of retirement community — one where you can enjoy a gracious and active lifestyle along with the protection of a plan that assures medical and financial security.
If you plan to retire in the near future, or you know people who do, you owe it to yourself to consider the special opportunities at The Albemarle.
Call The Albemarle for more information, or stop by offices at the Howard Memorial Presbyterian Church in Tarboro.

Thailand King Gains Ground In War On Opium

CROP SUBSTITUTION — American-born King Bhumibol Adulyadej views a hillside fruit orchard. For generations, tribesmen in the area had produced little except opium. (UPI Photo)

By SYLVANA FOA

MAE POON LUANG, Thailand (UPI) — The king of Thailand is raising strawberries, peaches, passion fruit and tulips on land that once grew the heroin sold on the streets of New York, Los Angeles, Rome and Paris.

For more than 20 years, the energetic, American-born King Bhumibol Adulyadej has been battling the heroin trade in these northern mountains — part of the notorious Golden Triangle of Burma, Laos and Thailand.

It has been a tough fight, with poverty, ignorance and 100 years of tradition on the side of the narcotics traders. But the king is winning.

In hiking shoes, a loose jacket and slacks, the king jumped from his helicopter at this tiny village, 50 miles northeast of Chiang Mai, and scanned the hillsides where generations of tribesmen have produced little except opium. His face broke into a broad grin.

There was not one opium poppy in sight.

Instead, the hills were alive with fruit orchards, coffee plantations, fields of off-season vegetables and long-stemmed flowers.

Mae Poon Luang is one of 100 hill tribe villages in the "king's project," a crop substitution program to wean mountain nomads away from production of opium — and its deadly derivative, heroin.

The king launched the project in 1959, one year after Thailand banned opium poppy cultivation.

"Other countries like Burma have tried, unsuccessfully, to contain opium production by destroying crops," said one project official. "The king felt we should first find alternatives for the hill people and then destroy only where and when it is economically feasible."

Using funds from his own pocket, the king bought seeds and saplings from abroad and set up research stations to test the adaptability of various crops to the mountains.

In 1973, the United Nations and the United States became involved in the project with money and experts. Today, 20 foreign nations contribute.

The king has adopted the impoverished hill tribes as his special wards. He spends two months each year in Chaing Mai and ventures into the mountains nearly every day on foot, by helicopter or in a Land Rover he drives himself.

The trim monarch, 53, easily keeps up with the hill tribesmen as they trek up steep mountain paths for a view of new planations. Puffing, court aides struggle to match the royal pace.

Bhumibol confers at length with the village witchdoctor on the progress and problems of the crop substitution program.

"This village is half Buddhist and half animist," said Princess Sirindhron, 25, the king's third child and closest aide. "The witchdoctor is the village priest. It is he who persuades the people not to grow opium and not to smoke opium."

At least half of the opium cultivated in the Golden Triangle is consumed locally — smoked by village addicts or used as herbal medicine to dull pain or alleviate symptoms of dysentary and malaria. For many hill tribesmen, opium is the only medicine they have ever known.

The rest is sent to heroin-refining laboratories on the Thai-Burmese border. Most of the laboratories are controlled by the Shan United Army, which uses the heroin profits to finance its war for autonomy from Burma.

Ten kilograms of opium, bought in Chiang Mai for about $4,000, will produce 1 kilogram of deadly white heroin powder. The kilogram of heroin will fetch $11,000 in Bangkok.

It is here that the real risks begin. By the time that kilogram reaches the streets of an American or European city, it is worth anywhere from $1 million to $5 million.

About 35 percent of the heroin used by America's 400,000 addicts and about 20 percent of that used by European addicts comes from the Golden Triangle. The rest is supplied by Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan and Mexico.

It is nearly impossible to estimate the size of the opium crop now harvested because Burma and Laos have banned international surveying of their fields.

"Two years of bad drought in the Triangle caused a scarcity of heroin, sent prices skyrocketing, and encouraged the hill people to plant extra large crops this year," said one Western agent.

"But heavy rains in September and October washed a lot of seeds away and gave what was left of the crop a bad case of fungus. Our best estimate, and it's really a guess, is that they'll harvest about 400 tons. That includes 250 tons from Burma, about 100 from Laos and no more than 40 tons in Thailand."

The agent said the estimated 40 tons of opium Thailand would produce this year compared with 74 tons in 1978, the last big year of production.

Although the 1981 crop will be better than the last two years of weather-affected production, the 400 tons is still down from the 450 to 500 tons of previous years.

Prince Bjisedev, a distant cousin of the king's who works full time with the hill tribes, says one reason crop substitution in Thailand is catching on is that "opium is a risky crop."

"The price of opium is high only when the harvest fails," he said. "When the crop is good the price falls to rock bottom and the people don't even earn enough for food.

"This place shouldn't be called the Golden Triangle," the 59-year-old prince said, gesturing at a cluster of ramshackle huts. "Look at these people. They're dirt poor. They have nothing. This should be called the poverty triangle."

Bjisedev said more and more of Thailand's 264 opium growing villages have applied for help with crop substitution.

"News travels fast in the mountains," the prince said.

Pittsburgh Plans A New Image

By EARL BOHN
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The city that made urban redevelopment a household word is at it again.

Despite the troubled economy's high-flying interest rates, Pittsburgh is adding some $1.5 billion worth of glamour to its skyline and zip to its public transit system.

"It's really an unprecedented amount of construction over the next three years," says Ben Hayllar, the mayor's coordinator for redevelopment. "We're talking about five major office buildings ... a new subway ... the convention center ... a couple of hotels."

Some 40 years after former Democratic Mayor David Lawrence teamed up with Republican financier Richard K. Mellon to redefine Pittsburgh's infamous "Smoky City" image, the flurry of independent projects are converging in Renaissance II, as Mayor Richard Caliguiri calls it.

Such a building boom might get lost in bigger cities. But here, the downtown area is compact, locked between two rivers, and even minor changes make an impact in the nation's 29th most populous city and fourth-largest home for U.S. corporations.

Hayllar estimates the boom will create 30,000 jobs, from ground-breaking to white-collar hirings in the expanded office space. Together with recent job gains in technical and professional areas, Renaissance II jobs should more than compensate for the estimated 37,000 steel and manufacturing jobs lost in the last decade.

Meanwhile, the Environmental Protection Agency and the region's largest steelmakers have struck deals to further reduce pollution in the city air and in the Ohio River and its tributaries, the Monongahela and Allegheny. U.S. Steel, the nation's largest steelmaker, agreed to spend an estimated $350 million to meet anti-pollution laws by 1982.

"Environmental cleanup was the key in Renaissance I, but it's not as important in this renaissance project," Hayllar says. The emphasis now is construction.

The price tag was some $500 million when Pittsburgh introduced America to urban redevelopment shortly after World War II.

The centerpiece of that first renaissance is Gateway Center, an office-apartment complex, and next to it, Point State Park. The two occupy what used to be a blighted expanse of riverfront warehouses.

Redevelopment slowed considerably in the 1960s under former Mayor Pete Flaherty, but it resumed in part because the Caliguiri administration prides itself on a good working relationship with corporate leaders, Hayllar says.

The city's blacks and other minorities, which represent about 30 percent of the population, are very much involved, according to Robert Pitts, head of the minority rights group called The Agency.

The Agency helped minority businessmen boost their share of public transit construction contracts "from a meager 1 or 2 percent at its inception to 17 percent," he says. Several private developers have committed 15 percent of their Renaissance II contracts to minorities and other builders may soon follow, Pitts says.

Among the highlights of Renaissance II are:

—PPG Industries' gleaming, 40-story, $100 million glass tower with a medieval touch. It will stand near Gateway Towers;

—The David Lawrence Convention Center with a cable suspension roof to free the convention floor of all but four supporting columns. Some 12,000 people can be accommodated in the $35 million building;

—One Oxford Centre, a 46-story office and shopping center and 900-car garage along Grant Avenue;

—Grand Street East, a 53-story headquarters for the Dravo Corp. next to U.S. Steel's 64-story rust-colored tower;

—A $125-million Vista International Hotel with office space adjacent to the convention center. A 300-room Sheraton Hotel is also under construction at the fashionable Station Square shopping center.

The building burst will create 5 million square feet of office space, increasing current room by 25 percent.

Nor is housing being neglected. The Urban Redevelopment Authority sold $30 million worth of revenue bonds in the last three years to provide cut-rate mortgages and home improvement loans in six areas.

"We were the first city in the country to raise revenue bond money for home improvements," says Abby Mendelson, authority spokesman.

The authority points proudly to the rehabilitation of the Mexican War Streets section on the North Side, where rundown buildings are becoming fashionable townhouses, condominiums and apartments.

Public transportation will get $600 million with the construction of an express busway east of downtown and a new trolley system to the west. The trolleys will speed across the downtown via subway tunnels.

The Penn-Lincoln Parkway, a six-lane highway on the downtown's edge, is scheduled for a $57 million rebuilding this year as well, the largest highway reconstruction ever undertaken in Pennsylvania.

When the dust settles, Pittsburgh will have a new look to accompany its changing nature.

"Our economy isn't wholly dependent on the basic steel industry any more," Hayllar says. "U.S. Steel is more than steel. It's chemicals and a lot of other things. And the University of Pittsburgh is the biggest employer in town. ... We are considered a blue-collar, hard-hat town, and much of our pride is focused on that, but we're very much a white-collar city."

Net Course Is Planned

Pitt Community College is sponsoring a class in "How to Hang Drift Nets and Set Nets." This course will teach the student what materials are needed, what size mesh net to use for various aspects of fish, and give the student experience in hanging a net.

The class will begin February 28 at 8 a.m. at the Wellcome Middle School gymnasium. The class is to meet four hours each Saturday for five consecutive weeks. The cost of the course is $5. Supplies will be the responsibility of the student.

For further information contact the Continuing Education Division of Pitt Community College, 756-3130, ext. 233.

Reducing Paper Mountain

TUSTIN, Calif. (AP) — Each month, people and businesses write 3.5 billion checks in the United States.

Micrographics techniques, such as microfilm and microfiche, enable the nation's banks to cope with this mountainous paperwork.

The space problems created by retaining many years' accumulation of paperwork is greatly reduced by "shrinking" items for storage and retrieval on microfiche sheets.

A personal check, for instance, can be reduced to less than one-third of a square inch, according to AM Bruning, a micrographics systems and equipment manufacturer.

About 98 percent of our financial institutions now use micrographics.

FRANK STEINBECK, Co-Chairman, CONCERNED CITIZENS.

FRANK STEINBECK, says, "Thanks and appreciation is extended to the CONCERNED CITIZENS for their efforts and contributions during the recent campaign.

I am neither a prophet nor a son of a prophet, but I do predict that Greenville will rue the day it voted in L.B.D. If the liquor distributors sell as much as they anticipate, the capacity of the Jones Alcohol Center will have to be greatly increased. If they do not, then about one third of the restaurants and bars will be closed within two years.

The CONCERNED CITIZENS will remain intact to observe and, if conditions become favorable in Greenville, we will plan action.

Now, let us ALL go forward with Love to All and Malice to NONE."

THE SPEIGHT HOUSE TODAY . . . The two story, 11-room house has been nominated for the National Register of Historic Houses. The house, outbuildings and 3.26 acres of land are being offered for sale under protective covenants.

THE BEAUTY OF THE OLD WOOD . . . in the buildings at the Speight house is evident in this massive support beam in one of the smoke houses.

THE DETACHED KITCHEN . . . is a traditional single room structure commonly used in the 18th and 19th centuries. A fireplace formerly filled the open space in the building.

THE GUEST HOUSE . . . was often used to sleep boys in the family when visitors made overflow sleeping place necessary.

Birthplace of Artist Francis Speight For Sale Under Protective Covenants

Text and Photos By Jerry Raynor

Fifty miles from Greenville, in rural Bertie County, in a grove of magnificant old oak trees, stands the Speight House, boyhood home of artist Dr. Francis Speight, now a resident of Greenville.

Recently nominated to the National Register of Historic Houses, the Speight House has been donated to the Hope Foundation by Thomas Sharrock Speight, currently the clerk of court for Bertie County, and nephew of Francis Speight.

The house and other buildings on the 3.26 acre tract of land is being offered for sale jointly by the Historic Preservatipon Fund of North Carolina and Historic Hope Foundation. The Hope Foundation administers the reconstructed Hope Plantation five miles east of the Speight House on N.C. 308.

Plans are to sell the house, outbuildings and land for $29,000 to a purchaser who will agree to restore the buildings under the stipulations of protective covenants.

Although the Speight House is primarily significant as the birthplace of Francis Speight, one of North Carolina's most prominent artists, the homestead has a number of other historical connections important in the history of Bertie County.

The land on which the house is situated was owned in the 18th century by the King family, prominent in the early days of Bertie County. John Freeman, sheriff of Bertie County, became owner of the property in about 1828, through marriage to the daughter of Willie King.

Sharrock Purchase

The land was purchased in 1856 by Whitnel T. Sharrock, Francis Speight's grandfather. In 1876, after her father's death, Margaret Sharrock married Albert Valentine Cobb. They had one son, Albert V. Cobb Jr., who became treasurer of Bertie County from 1908-1912.

The senior Cobb died in 1880, and in 1887 his widow, Margaret, married the Rev. Thomas T. (T.T.) Speight, D.D. A Baptist, Speight also served as a member of the North Carolina Senate in the early years of the 20th century.

Francis Speight was born September 11, 1896, the youngest and sole survivor of a number of brothers and sisters. One brother, James (Jim) Speight, served several terms in the N.C. Legislature. A sister, Julie Speight, who died in 1976, was also an artist.

Two Phases

The two-story house was originally constructed in two phases. The earlier part was built in the first quarter of the 19th century. The later section, probably dating about 1828, is a federal-style structure which still retains its elegant woodwork. The two sections are built at right angles to each other, and are connected by a wraparound porch.

Among outstanding interior features is a six-paneled door in the front parlor with hand-grained panels and a federal-style mantel and wainscot.

Altogether, there are 11 rooms in the house, plus two downstairs and two upstairs hallways.

Two of the outbuildings on the grounds are of special interest. The two-room guest house, a one-story building with two front doors, has a central chimney with two mantels of marbelized panels. The other is a one-room building, the old kitchen, located in the traditional manner, some distance from the house. Also, there are two smoke houses. The smoke houses have planks of thick hand-hewn cypress held together by heavy wooden pegs.

Wanted To Write

Francis Speight's early ambition was to be a writer. He attended high school in Lewiston, five miles distant from his home, and in 1915 entered Wake Forest. It was at Wake Forest that he had his first art lessons, on Saturdays, with Miss Ida Poteat at Meredith College in Raleigh. The art lessons were suggested by his artist sister, Tulie, who told Francis it would give him training to illustrate the writings he wanted to do.

Then, during Wolrd War I, at the request of an older brother, Francis came home to be with aging parents with a promise of assistance in attending art school when the war ended. In 1919 Francis Speight attended the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, D.C. for a semester before entering the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts School in 1920.

The Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts was home to Francis Speight for 40 years — five as a student, two as a student teacher, and 33 years as a teacher.

In 1936 he married an artist, Sarah Blakeslee. Mrs. Speight is well-known for her portraits and landscapes, and has won several professional prizes and scholarships.

Returned To N.C.

Nearly 20 years have passed since the Speights retired from Pennsylvania. When they returned to eastern North Carolina in 1961, Speight joined the faculty of the School of Art, East Carolina University.

His evocative, color-filled landscapes of Pennsylvania and North Carolina have long been favorites for collectors and museums. His paintings are owned by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City; the Pennsylvania Academy of Art; the North Carolina Museum of Art and the Greenville Museum of Art, among others.

He has been the recipient of numerous awards and honors, including the North Carolina Medal for Achievement in Fine Arts and election to both the National Academy of Design and the National Institute of Arts and Letters. Retrospective shows of his work have been held in Pennsylvania, in Raleigh and in Greenville.

Memories

For the 84-year-old artist, his Bertie County birthplace and its environs have always been dear to the heart. He has painted several versions of the "Old Home Place" with its weather faded buildings and giant gnarled oaks. Two Bertie County water places, the Sans Souci Ferry and an old fishing site, Shipyard Landing, are also favorite scenes for his paintings. Sarah Speight, too, has become attached to her husband's rural boyhood home and has painted scenes of the place, including an interior of the parlor door with its interesting panel textures.

"There's so many different things I recall about my old home," Speight says. "I remember when we replaced the huge old kitchen fireplace with a smaller one. And when I was a boy, I helped with the work on replacing the parlor chimney. It had a crack which was said to have been the result of the Charleston earthquake of 1886.

"I remember, too, that there were often many visitors, so that we boys had to sleep out in the guest house in the back yard."

Today, a pleasant quietness reigns at the unoccupied Speight House. Perhaps this will change soon, with a new owner renovating the buildings and bringing the ring of life and living to a fine old rural home that has known generations of people now all gone with the exception of Francis Speight.

For further information about the Speight House, interested people are to contact: Ms. Melanie Murphy, P.O. Box 27632, Raleigh, N.C. 27632, or John E. Tyler, Oakland, Roxobel, N.C., 27872

The ParkLand

Passive Solar Design Features Walk-out Family Room

By Jerry Bishop

An attractive ranch design of 1,400 square feet, The ParkLand, features a large living room with an energy efficient fireplace to help curtail the utility bills. A comfortable combined kitchen and dining area is included in this 3-bedroom, 2-bath home. A large family room shows sliding glass doors to the patio, inviting out door bar-b-ques and relaxed family living. The lower level offers a variety of possibilities, another bath, a laundry room, work shop and plenty of storage space. Driveway access to the attached garage is from the north. A south sloping site will accommodate the walk-out basement.

Energy conserving construction techniques include 2 x 6 exterior walls with R-24 insulation, R-38 ceiling insulation, insulating curtains, an air-lock entry and overhangs and trellis for summer shading. South facing windows for direct solar gain, and quarry tile over post-tensioned concrete floors will meet about 72% of the home's space heating requirements in the St. Louis area.

In the St. Louis area, The ParkLand, would cost about $65,000 without lot based on Spring, 1980 construction costs.

Victorian Furnishings Are In Demand Today

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Lace curtains, old-fashioned furniture, velvet cushions, the cluttered look and fabrics in colors like emerald green and Chinese red are just a few examples of Victorian-style home furnishings that are in demand today.

These are some of the same objects that you couldn't give away 10 years ago.

It's a truism that decorative objects and styles have their ups and downs. And the popularity of Victorian interiors is an excellent case in point, since only recently they were considered the height of bad taste.

Did you ever wonder how a classic antique or a popular style gets that designation?

"The public is really the last to know," says Margaret Caldwell. Ms. Caldwell, who has watched interest in and prices for Victoriana build over the past five years as 19th-century furniture specialist for Sotheby Parke Bernet, the New York auction house, explained further that institutions are usually in the forefront of a reevaluation of some category of decorative arts.

Once institutions such as museums and corporations become aware of the potential value of some objects, they begin buying them up and talking them up. Then, designers get into the act; they use these objects in the rooms they decorate. The magazines show their work and writers discuss it. Newspapers document the rise in prices and popularity of the objects. And soon the resulting publicity stimulates the public to seek the objects and use them in their homes. By this time, the real thing is getting scarce and manufacturers and retailers begin to produce and sell reproductions and interpretations of the style in question.

Such a state of affairs appears to be the situation with Victorian furnishings. In November, an auction at Sotheby's brought a record $60,000 for a table by John Henry Belter, one of the best-known producers of ornate Victorian furniture. And major museum shows of Victoriana have been mounted in the last few years, according to David Hanks.

Hanks, an authority in the field, has himself helped organize a museum show of innovative furniture that will open March 10 at New York's Cooper-Hewitt Museum. Examples of Victorian furniture will be on view in the show, which will be paired with another of the work of Belter.

"The Victorian revival has been occurring quietly for several years, as museums have built their collections and private collectors have increased their holdings. You even see more reproductions of Victorian objects in the commercial market," said Hanks. And, more designers are using Victorian furniture and objects in their rooms, he added.

Already the interest in Victorian reproductions has begun at the broad consumer level. According to one furniture manufacturer, the market for elaborate, 19th-century, American furniture reproductions is growing.

"Right now, demand is being met mainly by antique barns and small manufacturers who specialize. But there is no question that the market will grow," said Richard Udouj, president of Riverside Furniture Corp. His firm has been selling a Victorian oak furniture collection for five years.

From a decorative point of view, it's not surprising that this ornate and flamboyant style should have become popular, according to Catherine Crane, a designer and decorating-book author.

"The mood today is for cosiness, for romance, for connections with the past. Victorian-style furnishings are a very handy way to relate to this past. There may even be some Victorian furniture in the attic," noted Ms. Crane.

One more indication of the strength of this period is that interest in it extends beyond the home furnishings of the era and into the style of life. The Victorian Society was set up about 10 years ago to promote and study the Victorian period. There are 40 chapters across the U.S. and more than 6,000 members, according to Kristina Butvydas, executive secretary of the Philadelphia-based society.

The group's activities include lectures and tours as well as study and description of the arts, crafts and history of the period.

"If you look for it, you will find Victorian influences throughout our society. It's no longer esoteric," said Ms. Butvydas.

"The interest in the old is a reaction to the sterile, disposable society we have today. We return to another era to learn from it and to save the best of the past," she concluded.

Q. — From time to time I have seen questions and answers in your articles and those in magazines concerning the cleaning of the grout between wall tiles in the bathrooms. I thought I would tell you and your readers of a method that has been used in my family for generations.

I am writing to you at this time because I just finished using that method again and it still works very well. I take ordinary dishwashing detergent and clean the grout with it, using a fairly stiff brush. I make sure to wear rubber gloves or gloves of some sort when doing this job.

After doing a small area, I rinse off the soapy liquid and then dry the grouted portion with a large towel. If the tiles also need a cleaning, I make sure to do them at the same time as I am doing the grout. You would be surprised at how well this simple method works.

A. — After your letter, a test disclosed that you and your family have found an excellent way to do this kind of chore. Thanks.

Q. — You said some time ago that denatured alcohol can be used to clean a varnished surface. A friend of mine says that there is a chance of softening the varnish that way. Can you verify that I remember correctly what I read?

A. — I have been using denatured alcohol for many years as a cleansing material for varnished surfaces and have never had any trouble. Your friend may be confusing shellac with varnish. If you rub a shellacked surface with denatured alcohol, some softening may take place, since alcohol is a solvent for shellac.

Q. — What causes varnish to take on a slightly bubbly appearance after it has hardened? The bubbles are not conspicuous, but are there if you look at the surface in a certain light.

A. — It seems likely that you shook or stirred the varnish before using it. This is one of the most frequent questions asked of this department.

Q. — What's an easy way to sand a floor?

A. — There is no easy way. You'll have to rent a sander and put up with the work and mess. Unless, of course, you want to hire a professional, which is a good idea in many cases.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents PLUS a stamped, long envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Agricultural Ext. Serv. Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. Last year I fumigated my garden for nematodes and later when I planted vegtables some of the seed were killed before they could germinate. How long should I wait after fumigating before planting vegtables? (K.P., Concord)

A. The length of time varies widley, depending on soil temperature, moisture, and physical properties. One way to tell if the fumigant is gone is to set out a tomato plant. If the fumigant is still there, the leaves on the plant will become crinkled and have a dwarfed appearance. (Larry Bass, extension horticultural specialist)

Q. I have a Stayman Winesap apple tree in my yard. My neighbor, one block away, also has one. Are they close enough to cross-pollinate? (L.B., Durham)

A. Both Stayman and Winesap varieties are pollen sterile. They cannot pollinate themselves or another variety. I suggest planting a Golden Delicious for pollen. In the meantime, while your Golden Delicious is getting large enough to bloom, try "hand pollination." Get a hand full of bloom branches from someone's Golden Delicious tree. Place them in a can of water and hang them in your Stayman or Winesap tree. Bees will do the rest. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticultural specialist)

Q. I have several overgrown yellowbell bushes that need pruning. How much can I cut them back? (S.W., Lilesville)

A. Wait before you cut them back. Yellowbell (Forsythia intermedia) is a spring flowering shrub. The buds have already formed this year and if you prune now you will cut off many potential blooms. The best time to prune is immediately after bloom, just as the blooms begin to fade. Remove a third to half of the older mature canes at ground level. Use hand pruners to keep the natural overall shape of the plant. If sheared with hedge clippers, they will look scalped of baldheaded. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. What variety of sunflower do you recommend for birds and what are some tips for growing them? (W.A., New Bern)

A. Mammoth is a common variety grown for bird seed. It reaches a height of about 10 feet. The stalks are topped with huge golden flowers eight to ten inches across. The heads mature and are ready for harvest about 80 days after sowing. Plant sunflower seed in late Spring after the soil is warm. Choose a sunny spot in well drained soil. After the heads mature, you may want to cover them with cheesecloth to keep birds out. Cut off the heads when they are plump and fairly hard, and spread them in a warm, airy place to dry. Shell when they are throughly dry and store. Feed later in the winter when normal bird feed supplies are depleted. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

There are obvious reasons why Americans are buying more Volvos. Reasons like quality construction, safety, comfort and performance. But there's an equally good reason for you to consider a new Volvo: it's price. Because after you see what other cars have to offer for the money, you may find a Volvo is exactly the change you need.
So come in and test drive our 1981 Volvo sedans and wagons today. Volvos have always had a reputation for being less expensive in the long run. Now we could get a reputation for being less expensive from the start.

SALES OPPORTUNITY

Fancy Resumes Not Necessary
We Hire Salespeople--Not Paper

If we have captured your interest so far, you may well be the person we are looking for!

Mantak is the fastest growing division of a $260 million NYSE company in the specialty maintenance products industry. Our professional sales representatives can earn in excess of $22,000 their first year with a potential of over $40,000 in three years in their "local" territories. They also participate in a magnificent fringe benefit program. Most importantly, you are treated as a respected member of our people-oriented team and know that we have a vested interest in your success.

We are looking for a special individual who can turn sales prospects into friends, has a proven history of accomplishment and is willing to make initial sacrifices for a lifetime opportunity.

Even if you aren't really "looking around" for something else, send us a letter or resume. It may be the best thing you ever did!

To arrange a local interview call TOLL FREE 800-241-3302

NORTH CAROLINA WILDLIFE RESOURCES COMMISSION
Notice of Public Hearing

In accordance with Sections 143B-18 and 150A-12 of the General Statutes of North Carolina, notice is hereby given that the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission will conduct a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. on March 19, 1981, in the Superior Court Room, Beaufort County Courthouse, 112 West Second Street, Washington, North Carolina, for the purpose of soliciting public reaction to the following proposal:

To amend Rule 15 NCAC 10B .0115 so as to add Beaufort County, or a part thereof, to the list of counties in which the intentional shining of lights on deer is prohibited between 11:00 p.m. and one-half hour before sunrise in areas frequented by deer and which are subject to substantial night deer hunting or in which residents have been greatly inconvenienced by such shining of lights.

The said amendment is proposed under authority of Section 291.1 of Chapter 113 of the General Statutes of North Carolina, to become effective June 21, 1981.

Interested persons may present their views either orally or in writing at the hearing, or prior to April 2, 1981 by communicating with the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission, Archdale Building, 512 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina 27611.

This 11th day of February, 1981.

W. Vernon Bevill, Executive Director
N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission

Inventor Of Respirator

By SUE MANNING
Associated Press Writer

SANDPOINT, Idaho (AP) — This man's machines have breathed life back into millions of people.

In the 1950s, Dr. Forreso Bird started work on a respirator that would control the flow of oxygen into the body. The first Mark 7 prototype was plugged in at Bellevue Hospital in New York in 1957 and a year later, the first production unit was put into operation.

Since then, the tiny boxes with their magnetic clutches and rate-of-flow control have literally breathed life back into millions of people with respiratory or heart problems.

"It's the world's best known respirator and is in almost every hospital in the world. It's the Model-T Ford of respirators — easy to maintain and repair," Bird says.

There are some 30 types of Bird respirators today, but the Mark 7 remains in production. "No one has ever come up with a respirator to replace the Mark 7. It's been the workhorse used over the years, primarily because of its simplicity," Bird says.

It all started during World War II when Bird was a Navy pilot.

"We didn't have very good ventilation equipment in the planes. We had to work hard to breathe. We had a cylinder of oxygen with a metering valve that flowed into a bag," he explains.

Respirators in existence then were designed to provide the air needed by a healthy, 21-year-old male, he says. But there was no way to change the flow of gases for someone younger, older or unhealthy.

"We needed to apply a regulated form of pressure — that's where I came in. I just improved on an existing art."

Bird calls himself a "self-styled biomedical engineer." He won't talk wealth or fame, although it's obvious from a visit to his multimillion-dollar compound that he has few financial worries.

Bird was born in Stoughton, Mass. He and his wife, Mary, have been married 31 years and have one daughter, recently married.

He says he has one hobby: work. He puts in 10 or 12 hours a day, depending on what he's working on or where he's traveling to or from.

Bird's respirators can be found not only in hospitals, but also in ambulances, airplanes, nursing homes, clinics, and many homes.

Two years ago, the 60-year-old inventor physician sold his business and assigned most of his patents to the 3M Corp., which now manufactures respirators through its Bird Products Division.

He retained his research and development centers in Sandpoint and in Palm Springs, Calif., though, and set to work on his newest life-saving device — the Bird Transport Respirator.

"I am closer to the perfect respirator than I've ever been before," he says.

He has designed an oscillating respirator that can be used on any person of any age suffering any form of heart or lung failure.

Prototypes are already in use in medical research centers as experimental devices, but it will probably be two years before the machines are approved for worldwide use.

The oscillating respirator prevents lung tissue damage sometimes caused by long-term use on other machines because it requires so much less pressure.

The oscillation eliminates gas buildup in the lungs. "It not only gets oxygen in, but gets carbon dioxide out," Bird says. "We have been unable to do that before."

Even before experiments are performed on animals, Bird tests new respirator developments on himself. "I have a reverence for all life — and am never careless doing animal research," he says.

His Baby-Bird, the most complicated device he put out until now, has helped save hundreds of thousands of infants since 1970.

"The survival rate of premature infants was 30 percent in 1970. They died of intracranial hemorrhage," he says. "Because of the Baby-Bird, we have increased that survival rate to over 90 percent."

With his newest respirator, he believes at least half of the infants who now die can be saved.

Bird's elaborate complex houses a pair of Bell helicopters; a Piper J-3 Cub, vintage 1940, on floats; and a Cessna 185 on amphibious floats — all equipped with Bird respirators. He also keeps a plane at Spokane International Airport.

The flying physician can get anywhere in almost any weather because of his sophisticated transportation network. He also uses his planes and helicopters to chauffeur in medical researchers from universities and military installations around the country to his Sandpoint "think tank."

Bird teaches researchers the technology behind his inventions, "and together we develop the clinical protocol to put them into use."

When Bird isn't inventing, building, teaching or flying, he's visiting hospitals, giving lectures or meeting with fellow physicians to determine how he can improve his machines.

Once the Bird Transport Respirator is on the market, Bird wants to develop a transport ventilation anti-shock system — complete life support — for a GI stretcher. "It will include a device to squeeze the heart when it's not squeezing itself without hurting the soldier. I've already started work on the pneumatic computer," he says.

"I work as if I were going to be the next person to need a respirator," he says. "When the 11th hour comes and they say, 'Bring out the Bird,' and it works, that's my reward."

Dunaway Portrays Argentine Legend

Faye Dunaway and James Farentino star in "Evita Peron," the true story of a beautiful, ambitious peasant girl who married Argentine dictator Juan Peron and became one of the world's most powerful women.

The two-part drama will be telecast by NBC Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 23-24 (9-11 p.m. both nights).

Jose Ferrer, Signe Hasso, Michael Constantine, Rita Moreno, Katy Jurado, Pedro Armendariz and Robert Viharo co-star.

PART I

In the poor Argentine village of Junin, youthful and impressionable Eva Duarte (Dunaway) falls for the charms of a tango singer, Augustin Magaldi (Ferrer). She leaves her mother, Dona Juana (Juardo), and her brother, Juan (Viharo), and her sisters and accompanies Magaldi to Buenos Aires, where she seeks fame and fortune as an actress.

While working at a radio station, experienced actress Fedora (Hasso) befriends Eva and advises her how to succeed as an actress. Eva dyes her hair blonde and quickly entices the station's owner, Jaime Yankelovich (Constantine) into a trap she baits with promises of love.

Unsatisfied with only a mediocre radio career, Eva sees bigger opportunities in politics and expands uses of her feminine wiles and charismatic personality to reach the top. In one dynamic scenario, she meets Colonel Juan Peron (Farentino), fights off his celebrity date Renata Riguel (Moreno), ousts his mistress to become his new mistress — and thus launches her new life running Peron as well as Argentina.

PART II

Eva, with the help of Cypriano Reyes (Armendariz), and other labor leaders, rallies Argentina's masses to support Colonel Peron's candidacy for the Presidency and they get him elected. Peron then marries Eva, appoints her head of the Eva Peron Foundation, a charity to help the poor, the crippled and the sick.

The people love her and name her Saint Evita — and Evita Peron's powers seem boundless until she learns there really are some things she cannot control or conquer.

DAZZLING IN DIAMONDS — Faye Dunaway, in the title role of "Evita Peron," airing Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 23 and 24 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV, wears one of the most valuable collections of diamonds ever assembled for a television motion picture production. The ensemble, necklace, earrings and bracelet, total about 260 carats and are worth more than $13 million.

Role Brought Field An Oscar

A determined young woman takes on the management of a textile mill where she works in "Norma Rae," coming to television as the ABC Sunday Night Movie, Feb. 22 (9-11:25 p.m). Sally Field stars in the title role, and this portrayal won her an Oscar as Best Actress, 1979.

Ron Liebman and Beau Bridges co-star.

Although Norma Rae is only in her 20s, she's lived a lifetime. The widow, with two children, has been through one rough time after another and seen too much of life in the small Alabama home town. She works in a textile mill, as did her parents, and she knows all too well that the same dead end that trapped her parents will eventually be her fate in life.

When a labor organizer (Liebman) comes to town from New York and attempts to unionize the mill workers, he is met with hostility by the bosses and apathy by the workers. But Norma Rae listens to what he has to say and decides to help him win his case. As she becomes deeply involved in his cause, she gradually acquires self-esteem and distinguishes herself by speaking out on pertinent issues.

The film delves deeply into Norma Rae's complex relationships with those dear and not so dear to her, in particular the organizer and her new husband (Bridges).

"Norma Rae" effectively evokes the rhythms of life in the rural South, and the casting is flawless. Liebman is superb as the brash, committed and caring Northerner, while Barbara Baxley and Pat Hingle are totally convincing as Field's parents. Bridges is extremely convincing as her compassionate mate.

Sally Field's portrayal of Norma Rae is truly a triumph and she makes every gesture, thought and emotion clearly felt.

Michelle Will Tell

REX HUMBARD SENDS THE FOLLOWING MESSAGE TO HIS MANY FANS WHO HAVE WRITTEN ABOUT HIS DAUGHTER, ELIZABETH: "We want you to know that we appreciate your concern and interest in Liz. Liz has taken a leave of absence and she is using this time to rest, recouperate and to ask the Lord for His guidance as she seeks direction for her life. We ask that you continue to pray for Liz." (Humbard's address is: Cathedral Productions, 2690 State Road, Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, 44223.)

Q: Please settle an argument — is Billy Dee Williams, who was in the recent TV film "Children of Divorce," the actor who portrayed Gayle Sayers in "Brian's Song"? C. TAYLOR, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: Yes. But, as with everybody, time takes its toll on waistlines, faces, etc., and nine years lapsed between the filming of "Brian's Song" and "Children of Divorce." Williams' other movie credits include "The Last Angry Man," The Out-of-Towners," "Lady Sings the Blues," "The Take" and "Mohagany."

Q: Can you tell me something about Stoney Jackson? L. ABERNATHY, HICKORY, N.C.

A: There is a new breed of young performers before the cameras these days, and Stoney, who's playing J.B. Mitchell on "The White Shadow," is one of the standouts of this new Hollywood. Off camera, the foxy guy loves to dance and masters all of the new steps as fast as they become popular. Although he's guested on many other series, his only other recurring role was on a PBS show, "Up and Coming."

Q: Is Larry Hagman as mean in real life as his character is on "Dallas"? M. OXENDINE, LUMBERTON, N.C.

A: Lee Rich, who is executive producer of "Dallas," best described the real Larry Hagman recently when he said: "Larry is one of the joys of my life...a complete pro, always on time, and he even works when he's sick." Does that sound like J.R.?

Miniseries Filming

Rock Hudson and Suzanne Pleshette are toplining "The Star Maker," a four-hour two-part miniseries now in production.

Hudson is portraying Danny Wildblood, a movie director who is famous for his ability to spot young beauties with the potential of becoming international film stars under his guidance. But that 'guidance' includes marriage to three of the beautiful women.

Pleshette is cast as one of his brides.

Disney Animation

Production has been completed on "The Art of Disney Animation," a one-hour TV special to air on NBC-TV March 1.

Hayley Mills, star of six Disney films as a teenager, hosts this tour of Disney studios and will help to unravel the mysteries of the art of animation.

Pearl Bailey makes a cameo appearance, in which she is seen taping a voice-over for "The Fox and the Hound." Several veteran animators will also appear on the program.

Brief Courtship

Two of the little people — 3 foot 6 inch Judy Lee Page and Lou Carry, 4 foot 6 inches — met while they were filming "Under the Rainbow." Then, the day production on the film was completed and they announced their engagement. When asked about their whirlwind courtship, Lou said, "Little people take a shorter time to propose marriage."

A 'Golden Oldie'

PBS has announced plans to telecast "Days of Wine and Roses" as part of its reprise of "The Golden Age of TV." The drama originally was presented on "Playhouse 90" in 1958.

An interview with Piper Laurie, who won an Emmy for her performance in the production, will also be aired the same night.

Reynolds Heads 'Aloha Paradise'

Debbie Reynolds is starring in "Aloha Paradise," ABC-TV's newest series that's premiering with a special two-hour segment, Wednesday, Feb. 25 (8-10 p.m.).

The glamorous and beautiful island of Hawaii is the setting, and Reynolds' character, Sydney Chase, is the vivacious manager of a plush, secluded resort on the Kona Coast. 'Regulars' include Bill Daly as the skittish office manager, Stephen Shortridge as the lifeguard-pool boy, and Pat Klous as the recreation director. Mokihana plays the bartender who dispenses tropical drinks along with wise counsel, and Charlie Gleischer is seen as the gardener.

Paradise Village, built on the site of an ancient Polynesian village, is the epitome of the serenity and precious gentleness one would expect of Hawaii 100 years ago. A unique spirit, generated by Hawaiian legends, surrounds the area with traditions that are carried out by Sydney and her eager staff.

The series basically has the same format of "The Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island," and episodes will focus on the trials and tribulations of the hotel's guests.

Guest stars in the premiere presentation include Van Johnson, Dean Jones, Dana Wynter, Louis Jourdan, Lorne Greene, Misty Rowe, Grant Goodeve, Jayne Meadows Allen and Connie Stevens.

Gift For Hostages

The recording industry has completed recording albums containing a broad selection of hit tunes of 1980 that will be presented to the 52 returned American hostages.

The music was selected by a seven-member commission appointed by former First Lady Rosalynn Carter and headed by record producer John Hammond.

These albums are being distributed to the former hostages through the Family Liaison Group in Washington, the main organization for the hostage families.

'Wizard' Is Ageless

When Judy Garland began her cyclonic trip "over the rainbow" and down the yellow brick road to stardom on the set of the now classic motion picture "The Wizard of Oz," she was a relatively unknown teen-ager.

"But once we started to work with her, we realized there was something special about her," recalls Margaret Hamilton, the veteran actress who starred as the Wicked Witch in the film, to be rebroadcast Friday, Feb. 27 (8-10 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Recalling her years both as a kindergarten teacher and as an actress, Hamilton notes: "No one impressed me quite as much as Judy did those first days. She had those marvelous, expressive eyes, and there was a feeling of wonder displayed in that little face. Her enthusiasm was contagious."

Although the veteran actress was aware of the star quality in the young Judy, she had no real idea that the film would become a classic, reaching landmark status in motion picture history. Nor did she envision its popularity lasting the better part of a half century.

On television alone, it has an impressive record. As of this telecast, it will have been presented on the tube 23 times.

"Now I can see why it became a classic, but then, when we were still filming it, I didn't visualize its lasting ten years," Hamilton admitted, slightly sheepishly.

"When they cut a scene because it included a jitterbug dance that they feared might date the movie, I asked them how long they expected it to play," she recalled. "When they said, 'about ten years,' I said, 'You're crazy!'

"Of course, when you're in the process of something like that, you don't always see the whole picture. For instance, I didn't know how frightening the witch was until I saw her on screen. I rather enjoyed her then."

As a former teacher of young children, Hamilton only hoped at that point that she wasn't too frightening on screen. But her fears have been allayed by a letter from a little girl who stated, "I was so sorry when you melted."

"I think the reason many children rather like the witch is that she had tremendous frustrations — she never got what she wanted," said the actress. "All she wanted was that pair of magic slippers. She really didn't want to hurt anyone."

Hamilton, who lives in New York City, still keeps close to children and visits the classes of teacher friends from time to time to talk to the students.

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — JOYCE DEWITT and JOHN RITTER are convinced they can carry "THREE'S COMPANY" without SUZANNE SOMERS, but viewers think differently — the show's rating gets lower each week.

Friends of ANN MARGRET and her hubby, ROGER SMITH, are very concerned.... Rog has checked into Mayo Clinic for further treatment of myasthenia gravis, which L.A. doctors originally thought was under control.

JOHN FORSYTHE says he enjoys playing a 'heavy' in "Dynasty." "It's a lot more fun than playing good guys, and I personally like this change-of personality." Incidentally, it was John who gave LINDA EVANS, his on-camera wife, her first job — when she was 13 — in a segment of his "BACHELOR FATHER" series!

PHIL DONAHUE may be a hit with the viewers of his daytime talk show, but it's a different scene on the home front. Sources close to the talk show host say his marriage to MARLO THOMAS is on very shaky ground and are predicting that the couple will be making a trip to Splitsville soon.

That handsome blonde actor who's playing Lance Prentiss on "THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS" is none other than DENNIS COLE, once wed to JACLYN SMITH, who was one of "CHARLIE'S ANGELS".

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask" Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022
We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

For our teen-agers: romance lives.

FOR EVELYN SHAEVEL, executive director, Young Adult Services Division, American Library Assn.

Are youngsters in small towns more inclined to read than those in big cities? What kind of reading matter do they favor? — W.E., Green Bay, Wis.

● I don't think it makes much difference if a young person lives in a small town or a large city. Teen-agers are reading, but, as with everyone else, they are reading less. The non-print media, television, radio and records, take up much of the teen-agers' time. Favorite categories of books have remained constant over the years. Mystery, adventure, humor, science fiction and fantasy among both boys and girls, while romance and teen "problem" novels, though popular with both sexes, are far and away the most popular subject areas for teen-aged girls.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Is it true that Chris Reeve, who went to so much trouble to build himself up for his title role in Superman, now refuses to work out and has lost all his brawn? — E.M., Oklahoma City, Okla.

● No. He just lost interest in working out, but his 6-foot-4 shape certainly has not suffered. Reeve, now starring on Broadway in Fifth of July (in a part, the complete opposite of Superman. He plays a double amputee.) was in terrific form as he told us: "I don't think weight-lifting is a worthy pursuit. I consider it vain and rather narcissistic — provided one is healthy. I think all the present involvement with the sculpture of one's body is boring." He adds that he never inspects himself in the mirror and that perspiring men who give themselves the once-over in the mirror after a session at the gym is not a pleasant sight.

FOR ERNEST W. HOLZ, national commander, Salvation Army

How do you rate your accomplishments during the past hundred years? — S.F., Las Vegas, Nev.

● Our growth from a tiny band of enthusiastic men and women to a national federation of services is uniquely equipped to minister to the whole person. But there are times when we can't seem to give fundamental, life-changing help. However, we do believe that "with God, all things are possible."

FOR NATALIA MAKAROVA, prima ballerina, American Ballet Theater

How many pairs of shoes do you use a month; how much do they cost; what do you do with your discards? — G.D.K., Lansing, Mich.

● I rarely wear a pair of slippers for more than one performance. They wear out. I average 25 pairs a month, using old ones for rehearsals, and they end up being given away, signed. New shoes cost about $25, and I order hundreds at a time.

FOR DANIELLE BRISEBOIS, featured in CBS-TV's Archie Bunker's Place

Since you work with adults and are more advanced for your years than most 11-year-olds, are you happier with kids or grown-ups? — S.J., Little Rock, Ark.

● Kids, starting with 9 up. Grown-ups are boring. All the ladies worry about is their high heels, that every little hair should be in place. Guys worry about their cars. That's silly. And all adults pinch my cheeks, which I hate. Why do they think all kids are babies?

FOR HARVEY F. DAVIS JR., Chief, Program Operations Section, Environmental Health Services Division, Department of Health and Human Services

Is it an exaggeration that the rat population exceeds that of man in the world? — E.T., Westchester, N.Y.

● I would find it difficult, if not impossible, to estimate the worldwide rat population. But in the U.S., it has been estimated that the rat population is between 100 and 200 million. Food loss and property damage alone cost Americans $500 million to $1 billion annually.

FOR JOYCE A. BOCKAR, M.D., author of The Last Best Diet Book

Why do some people gorge themselves when nervous, yet others can't look at or swallow food? — E.W., Redondo, Calif.

● When we are nervous, there is a tendency for digestive processes to slow down or stop. This is felt by thin people as a "knot" in their stomach, which prevents them from eating. Fat persons usually were trained in childhood to use food to assuage anxiety.

FOR LEO SAYER, singer-composer

You say American violence is nothing compared to what you experienced in your young days in London. Please explain — T.I., Danville, Va.

● I started out in this business on the streets of London. I used to get beaten up every five minutes after my two buddies and I would jam (I was on the harmonica). That's because it was my lousy job to go around holding out a hat. When I got pushed around, the other two guys vanished from sight.

PRO AND CON

Should Illegal Aliens Be Made Eligible for Citizenship?

PRO Representative Hamilton Fish Jr., (R.-N.Y.)

Statutory legalization of illegal aliens is the least costly and most practical approach to resolving the problem. Legalization should be limited to persons with a certain continuous period of residency and a demonstrated desire to be part of our society. First, we should reinforce our border controls to decrease fraudulent entries and enact laws to punish those who knowingly employ illegal aliens. The alternative solution to the problem: Massive deportations are inhumane and very expensive.

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $10 for those published.

CON Representative Norman D. Shumway, (R.-Calif.)

I could not condone the practice of offering U.S. citizenship to illegal aliens. Such a step would devalue citizenship for those who have worked to obtain it through naturalization and for those who are natural-born citizens. It would be counterproductive to reward illegal aliens who contribute nothing at the expense of the tax-paying, law-abiding citizen or legal alien. To grant the precious gift of U.S. citizenship to illegal aliens would make a mockery of much we hold dear.

Lakeland's Famous 30-Below-Zero Zoysia Takes Wear, Tear, Cookouts, Children's Games . . . After 30 Below Zero Winters, It Bounces Back Green, Thick, And Beautiful! Closest Thing To An Indestructible Lawn You Have Ever Seen!

Zoysia Lawn Wasn't Mowed For A Month! Not A Weed In Sight!

By Mike Senkiw, Agronomist, Lakeland Nurseries

If your family is like mine, you're squeezing every dollar to make sure you have enough to go around. And it looks like things are going to stay that way.

One way to cut expenses is to cut the costs, and work, of lawn care. For example, a woman wrote about her zoysia lawn that she had mowed it only twice ALL SUMMER. She hadn't spent a cent on weed-killers. Not one cent for fertilizers. Yet her lawn was as green and weed-free as a pile carpet.

Weed-killing chemicals are NOT NEEDED for a weed-free Famous® Zoysia Lawn

How is it possible that Famous Meyer Z-52 Zoysia stays weed-free without using expensive, risky chemicals? It grows so thick that crabgrass (weed) seeds don't get enough light to germinate!

Has Cut Mowing To Once A Month

Zoysia grows sideways, not just up like ordinary grass. It forms a thick, interwoven carpet of turf that keeps its well-groomed look weeks longer. It cuts your mowing by half, 2/3 or more!

ZOYSIA LAWNS STAY GREEN THROUGH HEAT AND DROUGHTS

Let the scorching sun burn lawns around you into hay—your zoysia stays fresh and green, an emerald isle of beauty. I have yet to water my own zoysia lawn. One day I saw that my sprinkler had gotten cobwebs! In Iowa, a zoysia lawn was declared the area's "Top Lawn—nearly perfect." Yet this lawn had been watered only once that entire summer!

Cut YOUR water bills. Save the work of lawn sprinkling. Start a Famous Zoysia Grass lawn now.

No-Reseeding—Not Ever!—With Lakeland's Famous® Zoysia

Plug in Lakeland Zoysia and never buy grass seed again. Zoysia lawns don't grow old; they just grow better. They sparkle under 100° heat . . . stay green through droughts. They resist diseases and insects which ruin ordinary grasses. After sharp frosts, they only give up their green color, then green up better than ever each following Spring. Famous Zoysia gives you the closest thing to an indestructible lawn you have ever seen.

Ends Washouts on Steep Slopes Perfect Where Other Grasses Do Poorly

Deep-rooted zoysia holds soil in place, stops it from washing away from slopes. It's your perfect answer for worn out or weedy areas, too.

NO NEED TO DIG UP YOUR LAWN
PLUG IN [illegible] Z-52 ZOYSIA

"upgrading your current lawn" requires the right selection of grass seed plus "regular applications of fertilizer (and lime where needed)." This article also said you need, "weed, insect and disease control." Sound familiar? Of course!

Why not forget all that work and expense, and plug in Famous Meyer Z-52 Zoysia? To upgrade your lawn with zoysia, don't dig it up. Just set plugs into holes in the soil a foot apart or less. Let those plugs spread toward each other ao form a carpet of solid turf. Growth is so vigorous it chokes out old growth you want to get rid of. WEEDS INCLUDED.

From Coast to Coast People Write to Mike Senkiw

From Hudson, N.Y., E. LaRoche writes how he planted plugs "in the worst possible place—clay with weeds and gravel . . . It formed a 4" thick carpet of grass. Not children, dogs, cats, rabbits, extremely hot sun or drought could kill it."

From Sacramento, Calif., Jack Morse writes how he bought our Zoysia "for a weed infested spot—it took care of the problem."

From Indiana, M.A. Low, Sr. writes how he visited a physician friend in Albert Lea, Minn. where he saw a "whole back yard was entirely in zoysia and it was beautiful . . . a deep green."

The success of many thousands of delighted Famous® Zoysia owners awaits you. Prove it to yourself today.

At Ease with Film's Giggly Golden Girl

Goldie Hawn is now boffo at the box office as well as a power in executive suites, but her enormous success has spelled trouble for her personal life.

Steve Shapiro / Sygma

Warner Bros.

As Private Benjamin Goldie is consoled by Sam Wanamaker and Barbara Barrie.

By Roberta Plutzik

To some of us, Goldie Hawn will always be the giddy, giggly, golden girl who won our hearts 13 years go by continually flubbing her lines on TV's Laugh-In. In her two recent — and highly successful — films, Private Benjamin and Seems Like Old Times, she does manage to parachute out of airplanes and win court cases as a defense attorney, but there is nonetheless a lot of bumbling and slapstick about the way she does it.

Yet appearances are most definitely deceiving when it comes to Goldie. The actress also happens to be a shrewd — and powerful — businesswoman. Today, she commands $2.5 million per movie and gets it because of her sensational draw at the box office. And as executive producer for Private Benjamin, she not only helped orchestrate a perfect vehicle for her charm and talent as an actress, but she shares in the film's profits: It's grossed over $60 million to date.

Such successes are important to Goldie Hawn. But the top priority for the 35-year-old actress remains "the little people" in her life: Oliver, 4, and Kate, 1½. "Obviously," she beams as she pulls a wrinkled amateur snapshot from her wallet, "the sun rises and sets on those kids."

Much of what Goldie says about her children rings with lessons learned during her own early years growing up in Baltimore. She is not afraid or embarrassed to attribute her development — and her success — to her parents. "I think I'm blessed," she says. "I really do. A lot of my outlook and attitude is because of the love I received from my family. I have a father in show business — a musician. He's done it all and has given me very sound advice. My mother has been the mother of mothers. I have memories of her loving and caring and warmth that are as good as you can get. She knew where I excelled and that's where she nurtured me."

Goldie remembers having a sense of purpose as early as the age of 3, when dancing lessons began: "If anybody would ask me what I wanted to be, I would just say, 'happy.' I said this from a very young age and to this day I haven't changed my ideas. I worked very hard. I got a job at 17. I opened my own dancing school. I was always a very industrious young woman."

Goldie is trying to employ in her own home much of what she learned from her parents: "You're raising a separate person — this is the key to bringing up your children properly," she contends fervently. "I went to school to talk to Oliver's teacher. She said to me, 'Goldie, it's very rare that a mother really sees her child. You do.' The one piece of advice I have is to forget what you expect from your children. Toss it out. Admit their real emotional structure, even if it's not just like yours. Because your children are their own little people."

The call to mothering forced the actress to make decisions about how to balance her career with her home life. Though both of her marriages have floundered, she is determined that her children be happy: "My personal style is that I do not do business at home — ever." Goldie says she does this without an iota of worry. "For some reason I have a tremendous ability to make divisions. I can cut off one thing and start another. Originally, I took three years of my life to get married, build a home, have a baby and to spend the first year with the baby — and I did it — and then I had a second baby. I didn't work and I didn't worry. I don't worry."

Goldie's philosophy about work is that "it's either going to be there or not." Should the charm and wit and vulnerable appeal of her performances fail to touch audiences one day, Goldie sees herself opening a school.

But if she imagines her life coming to that, few others do — least of all her still-growing legion of fans. Right now, she is being called the most popular actress in America. But her drawing power took time to develop.

Things got off the ground in 1968, when Goldie was cast from virtual chorus-line anonymity to a place in TV's Laugh-In team of human crackups. Goldie was the show's perishable, waiflike doll, and off-screen, the assumption was that she was every bit as birdbrained as she appeared on camera. That, and the instant adulation foisted on her as a comedienne extraordinaire, was hard to take. "If people laughed at me before," she says, "it was because they thought I was amusing — but to think I was a funny person — never! It was quite jolting to find that out."

Though she left Laugh-In after a season, going on to win a part in —

nd later an Oscar for — the film Cac-us Flower, some producers continue o believe that there are feathers in her ead. "My intelligence is a big sur-rise," she notes. "I am bright. I know hat. Yet I walk into a room and peo-le say, 'Doesn't she look c-u-t-e. ova ya, Goldie! So a-d-o-r-a-b-l-e!' "

Actor Chevy Chase, who co-starred ith Goldie in both Foul Play and eems Like Old Times, puts it this ay: "Though she's always light-earted and happy, and she's a great omedienne and actress, Goldie, in fe, is not a person who is always mak-ng jokes. Her nature is definitely more erious than that."

During the early 1970's, Goldie as busy making films: There's a Girl n My Soup, Sugarland Express, The Girl From Petrovka. Not all were what Goldie calls "out-and-out comedies, nd none was commercially success-ul. For a time, the career with so nuch promise seemed to dim. Today he regrets none of these projects. 'Each was a step toward my maturity, even if it didn't look like it. Besides, ou make your flops, let's face it....If ou can survive all the bad stuff, then ou have a fighting chance."

Then in 1975 came Shampoo, the Warren Beatty comedy, and it was he hit that reintroduced Goldie Hawn. She says proudly that she was 'the only person in the film with any olidity and any real future: the tradi-ionalist who wanted children, husband, family."

In a nutshell, that is also what Goldie Hawn desires, perhaps more now than ever, even if she isn't willing to abandon work to preserve them. And so she runs into the familiar contemporary female tangle — work vs. marriage. She may be convinced that, through sheer determination, everything is possible. Her husbands haven't been so sure.

Goldie's first marriage to young director Gus Trikonis ended over the disparity between her career and his: "I was more famous." Her second, to Bill Hudson of the musical Hudson Brothers (he is the father of her two children), recently broke apart after four years — over essentially the same frustrations, according to friends.

"You have to give each other something different than just money or food. Understanding is the most important thing," Goldie says earnestly. "Unfortunately, you've got to get there before you can see the mistakes. Marriage takes an enormous amount of work. I think it's inherent in men to be competitive, and the new crop of women are also competitive, amazingly so. This can kill a relationship."

But, always known for her resilience, Goldie is bouncing back. "I've always been somebody who looks at life very positively. I'm strong enough to take the pain, sorrow and disillusionment," she argues. "My goals were originally very simple and I'm still made that way. I know my limits and I try to keep a close, objective view of myself. I never sat and fantasized about what my life would be like when I was rich and famous. I am a romantic...but I do have self-preserving qualities. I'm definitely not like that girl on Laugh-In. I'm not someone wide open, like a squashed tomato." FW

The Marriage Tax: Double Trouble for Working Couples

By Julian Block

In recent months, numerous couples announced on TV shows such as 60 Minutes that they regularly divorce each other in December and then remarry in January. They do so to avoid an extra tax bite for being married. The Internal Revenue Service has since successfully prosecuted some of these couples in tax court for evading payment. The question is, do married individuals face a heavier tax burden than singles?

It all depends on the circumstances. Strictly from a tax standpoint, marriage definitely pays off for a one-income couple filing jointly (or in a case where one spouse reports considerably more income than the other). But marriage is a costly proposition for today's growing ranks of dual-income couples. Their tax tab as Mr. and Mrs. is more than it would be for two single persons who set up housekeeping and report exactly the same total income.

To illustrate the tax benefits for a one-income married couple, consider what happens if you earn $22,000, your mate has no income and you use the standard deduction. At tax time, your joint-filing tab comes to $3,219. A single person has to pay $4,517 on exactly the same income, so in this case you save $1,298 by being married.

The savings grow rapidly along with your taxable income (what's left after deductions and exemptions). For example, the savings are $1,724 if you report taxable income of $30,000; $3,289 if you report $50,000.

But the rules of the game change when both spouses report similar taxable incomes. Suppose, for instance, that you and your mate earn $22,000 apiece. As married persons, you have to reckon with a tax bill of $11,086 — a hefty $2,052 more than the $9,034 due if you simply share quarters without being married. Here, too, the "marriage penalty" escalates as the two of you advance up the pay scales. Virtue, alas, remains its own reward.

The way the I.R.S. reads the rules, it considers you a married person for the entire year, even if you should get married as late as December 31. Similarly, it considers you a single person for the entire year even if you divorce or legally separate as late as December 31. The I.R.S. recently issued a ruling that says it will disregard a divorce obtained solely to save taxes and require the couple to recalculate their taxes as if they had stayed married for the entire year.

> A new bill may ease tax burdens for married couples.

The quirks in our tax system can be traced back to 1948, when the one-breadwinner family was the norm, as opposed to the more prevalent two-earner arrangement nowadays. That's when couples filing jointly first became entitled to use "income splitting" rates. Joint filing provides a sizeable savings for couples when one spouse reports considerably more than the other, because it allows them to treat the income as though each spouse had received half of it.

But this fact made many singles unhappy right from the start. Congress eventually provided a measure of relief for single persons who qualify as a head of household. Their rates fall about halfway between those for joint filers and those for singles.

Another bit of tinkering by Congress made income-splitting available to a "surviving spouse" for two years after the death of the wife or husband, providing the survivor has a dependent child and maintains a home for the child.

The last significant response to complaints of flagrant discrimination in the tax laws was in 1969. Congress tried to pacify singles by trimming their rates from as much as 40 percent to no more than 20 percent above those imposed on marrieds filing jointly. But singles remain unhappy.

The advancement of more working wives up the pay scales has swelled the ranks of the outraged because Congress left the rates for marrieds unchanged.

Now, a new bill suggested by Representative Barber B. Conable Jr. (R.-N.Y.) aims to create a marriage-neutral system that would impose equal burdens on singles, marrieds and heads of households. But the Ways and Means Committee won't consider it until this spring, and the earliest it could go into effect is for the tax year of 1981.

A Champion's Search For His Roots

Boxer Matthew Saad Muhammad's life has been one long battle, both in the ring and out. His toughest fight so far — finding out who he really is.

Rocky Balboa bounded up the Art Museum steps, turned, thrust his fists into the air and stared in triumph down the loveliest street in Philadelphia, Benjamin Franklin Parkway.

Matthew Saad Muhammad's life has been rockier than Rocky's: from foundling to juvenile delinquent to prisoner to World Boxing Council light-heavyweight champion — a title he will defend Monday night in New York's Madison Square Garden vs. World Boxing Association champ Eddie Mustafa Muhammad.

If they ever make a movie about Saad Muhammad's life, it will also feature shots of the Franklin Parkway — because that is where the cops found him wandering at age 3 or 4.

"I remember an older brother," Saad Muhammad recalls. "I remember we were going to my grandmother's house. We must have got lost and got separated. I remember a policewoman asking me my name and I couldn't tell her."

It was mid-June, 1959. He was hungry, tearful, confused, bitter. The police turned him over to the nuns at the Catholic Social Services. When no one claimed him, they named him Matthew, after a favorite saint. And gave him Franklin as a last name, because he was found wandering on the Franklin Parkway.

Years later, the mystery remains. Who was this little lost boy? Who did he belong to? Matthew, who later changed his last name for religious reasons, still doesn't know who his parents are. He doesn't even know his correct age. He guesses that he's now about 25 years old.

To help fill the poignant gap in his life story, Saad Muhammad has offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the identity of his parents. So far, though, no luck. "We got one approach, but then they backed off," he says glumly. "I think there's too much guilt involved after all these years. I'd know my brother. But he hasn't come forward. Maybe he just ran off that day and left me.". (Saad Muhammad has considered hypnosis to dredge up lost details but says he's been too busy fighting to try it yet.)

Perhaps the experience has toughened him, for he has proven to be one of the fiercest fighters anywhere. No glass jaw he, Matthew isn't afraid to take a punch. With a record of 28-3-2, including 15 wins in a row, Saad Muhammad's reputation has become one of a street brawler, rallying from the brink of defeat to frenzied, crowd-pleasing victories.

Such a fight came on the night of April 22, 1979, when Saad Muhammad, still Matt Franklin then, faced Marvin Johnson. Bloody and battered, his style as primitive as a cave drawing, Matthew punched Johnson into helplessness halfway through the eighth-round to take the WBC light-heavyweight crown.

Soon after, he announced his conversion to the World Community of Al-Islam of the West. And he spoke proudly of his new name. "I'm keeping Matthew," he said at the time, "because it's a good Bible name. Saad means bright future. And Muhammad means worthy of praise. Not knowing your real name is like being nobody. Now I feel like I know what my name is, and I'm somebody."

Matthew's discovery of both boxing and the Islamic faith can be traced back to the tortured days of his adolescence. In his childhood he was shuttled from one foster home to another before John and Bertha Santos took him in. The neighborhood was ominous, and he had to scuffle his way through the mean streets. He recalls: "Guys would walk up and ask, 'What gang you belong to?' I'd tell 'em, 'I don't belong to any gang.' They'd say you had to belong to somebody. And then they'd start beating on you."

The grim search to belong to someone or something led him down dark paths — to truancy, gang warfare and ultimately a weapons offense, when he was caught with a 10-inch knife. He then began making the rounds of detention centers. "They had to keep moving me," he says, "because I'd start riots."

UPI

About this time, Matt Franklin was introduced to religion. A fellow inmate offered him a copy of the Islamic paper, and the confused young man found a purpose.

Later, in solitary confinement at one particularly tough boys' home, Matt began to channel the fury inside him. "I remember slapping myself," he says. "I said, 'Matthew, the way you're goin', you have a great chance of spending the rest of your life in places like this.'

"Fighting was something that always had been natural to me. In jail, I remember punching on the walls until my hands bled, just to take off some of the pressure....Finally, a teacher told me that since I was always fighting I might as well try to make some money out of it."

That's just what this 6-foot 1-inch, 175-pounder has been doing. And quite nicely, thank you. He'll earn at least $1 million for Monday's title bout against Eddie Mustafa Muhammad. The two fighters met before in March 1977, and Mustafa Muhammad (then named Eddie Gregory) won a controversial decision. He remains the last boxer to beat Saad Muhammad. "People are gonna see one of the greatest fights ever fought," promises Saad Muhammad. "I'm out to teach Eddie a lesson. He talks too much about material things, like his Rolls-Royce and all that."

Interesting to hear Saad Muhammad complain about someone else flaunting his wealth, considering he drives a snazzy BMW and lives in a sprawling home in an affluent Philadelphia suburb. Among the furnishings — a $23,000 ivory piano which he is just learning how to play. He's even doing designer jeans ads these days and pursuing an acting career. (He's read for the role of Sylvester Stallone's ring opponent in Rocky III.)

But Saad Muhammad defends his new lifestyle. "Sure, I have velvet and silk and nice things. A champion should have those things. But the money I earn from endorsements, I put towards a foundation, to help children. That's where it's at. Children are our hopes for the future."

Even though he has moved to the suburbs, Matt is still emotionally tied to the plight of troubled inner-city kids. To that end, he sponsors a program in Philadelphia called FOCUS (Fresh Opportunities Create Useful Students). It's designed to work with the Board of Education and the juvenile justice system in providing jobs for underprivileged kids who've had trouble with the law.

Matthew Saad Muhammad, remembering those hours of infancy on a Philadelphia bridge, and the years of pain that followed, says, "I see kids struggling, looking lost, reaching out. Hey, I know the feeling." FW

Now In America! From A World's Leading Medical Authority On Obesity:

London University 14-Day Wonder Diet

BURNS AWAY FAT up to 22 TIMES FASTER THAN EXERCISE!

SHRINKS DOWN YOUR WAISTLINE as much as A FULL SIZE SMALLER IN JUST 24 HOURS ...4 SIZES SMALLER IN JUST 14 DAYS!

From London, England—from the world's leading medical authority on obesity—comes this "bombshell announcement" of how for over 10 years at one of the world's foremost research centers, scores of hopelessly overweight people were ushered through a plain, unmarked door . . . then once inside . . . were told of special combinations of plain, everyday foods, (many of which you probably have in your refrigerator today), which caused a wondrous bio-chemical change to take place in their system that forced their body to grow slimmer after every time they ate! Yes, burns away fat so fast . . . that of all medically sound reducing programs, ONLY TOTAL STARVATION WORKS FASTER.

Yes, actually STOP their system from producing a SINGLE OUNCE OF EXCESS FAT anywhere on their body . . . by preventing all excess fat-builder calories from entering their system! Meaning: they burn away fat and excess fluid SO FAST, just in the very first 48 hours they immediately start to lose as much as A FULL POUND EVERY 8 to 12 HOURS—as much as 1½ to 2 POUNDS EACH DAY—and, depending on how overweight they are, burn away bulging pockets of body fat with such hour-to-hour speed that:

IN JUST ONE SINGLE DAY they shrink down their waistlines as much as A FULL SIZE SMALLER—and 2 to 4 SIZES SMALLER IN JUST 14 DAYS!

IN THE VERY FIRST 72 HOURS ALONE they lose anywhere from 3 to 7 pounds of both excess fluid and fat—and up to 7 pounds more the next 14 days!

IN JUST ONE SINGLE WEEKEND, shrink down their waist, tummy —unwanted bulges with over 20 times the speed of exercise!

Medical Science Proves You Can Actually Force Your Body To 'Feed Away Fat'! Grow Slimmer and Slimmer From Meal to Meal!

What is this amazing 14-day fat-destroyer wonder diet that helps you burn fat by the hour? Briefly stated . . . a remarkably simple way to take special combinations of high-burn foods and create what doctors call a 'hypocaloric effect' to take place inside their bodies . . . that turns their system into a GIANT FAT-BURNING MACHINE! Yes, actually reverse your body's fat build-up process as you COMPLETELY STOP EXCESS fat-builder calories from entering your system . . . or being absorbed by your body and turned into fat like in the past! So obviously, down go the calories, up goes the rate of fat-burn-off and off come the pounds and inches at a rate that absolutely staggers the immagination! Just Look:

Gov't Official Loses 10 lbs. In Just 72 Hours!

When doctors at this leading London research center wanted to prove how fast this 'crash-burn' concept worked—not on ordinary overweight people but on extreme cases of obesity . . . they tested it on a Govt. official, whose entire life had been a nightmare struggle against fat. The startling result! 10 pounds of excess fluid and fat came plummeting off after just the first 3 days alone! And that was only the beginning!

Melts Away As Much as 50% of All Excess Weight in Just 14 Days!

When average overweight people who for years lugged around a 'spare tire' bulge of 10, 15 or even 20 extra sagging pounds . . . when these people finally determined to free themselves from that prison of fat and test this London University crash-loss diet . . . it seemed like a dream come true, as they MELTED AWAY AS MUCH AS 50% OF ALL EXCESS WEIGHT . . . IN JUST 14 DAYS!

IF YOU READ NOTHING ELSE, READ THIS!

This program involves a high-speed crash-loss diet that lowers caloric intake, essential to the reduction of body weight. Such results cannot be achieved solely through the use of the capsules. The more overweight you are, the higher caloric requirements, the more you should lose the faster you should lose it. Before starting this weight-loss program, consult with physician to be sure you are in normal health, that your only problem is excess weight and simple obesity. Individuals with high blood pressure, diabetes, heart, kidney disease, thyroid problems, or pregnant or nursing women should not use except on advice of a physician. Do not exceed recommended dosage.

U.S. Medical School Calorie Burn-Off Research Illustrates the Kind of Staggering Crash-Loss Results You Can Look Forward To!

Because based on data from energy burn-off tests conducted at California's leading medical school . . . the calorie-deficit created in your system by this proven FAT-DESTROYER program, (a staggering internal deficit of for example as much as 2,400 calories a day, depending on your intake), works with such breathtaking speed you can actually:

BURN AWAY FAT!

up to 4 TIMES FASTER than running 20 to 25 miles a week!

up to 7 TIMES FASTER than over 2 hours of sit-ups or push-ups!

up to 22 TIMES FASTER than even a non-stop back-breaking half-hour of brutal weight-lift workout!

as you—COMPLETELY SHUT DOWN YOUR SYSTEM'S PRODUCTION OF EXCESS FAT FOR 14 DAYS AT A TIME!

A World's Leading Medical Authority on Obesity Reports:

'...as much as 50% of all excess fat gone in just 14 days.'

Amazing 'Furnace-In-A-Capsule' Helps Trigger the Most Dynamite Fat-Burn Spree of Your Life!

Now come the most exciting news of all. Because now from London, England comes the thrilling announcement and release to the American public of a wonderous reducing-aid formula that not only works before meals to reduce hunger . . . But after meals supplements this London University 14-day 'crash-loss' diet, and helps you keep the fat-burning chain reaction going in your body . . . NON-Stop all day long.

First it TURNS YOU OFF— Then it TURNS YOU ON— Then YOU TURN SLIM!

Called 'Meta-drene/14' this amazing time release capsule (which you take before meals) has been medically designed to help you lose weight with a 2-stage ALL OUT ATTACK:

STAGE 1—the outer layer of each capsule acts like a chemical switch' that slams the brakes on runaway appetite—stops it dead in its tracks—TURNS OFF that maddening urge to eat—makes it easier to lower caloric intake.

STAGE 2—the inner core of each capsule releases into your system tiny grains of a special bio-extract that safely, surely TURNS UP the level of your fat-burning metabolism after every time food enters your body on this London University wonder-diet program.

Meaning, the food you take in, the calories you enjoy, are burned away even more quickly by your own stepped-up metabolic system . . . yes, METABOLIZED and OXIDIZED in as little as 2 to 3 hours after eating!

Most Important Of All—what happens after 14 days if you want to lose even more weight?

You STOP—for one full day—to let your body rest up from the high-speed loss of deep-set fat. On that day you treat yourself to FEASTING on a wide range of highly nutritious, highly delicious food all programmed to maintain your new slimmed down figure. Then start additional 2-week weight-loss wonder-cycles—until you've reached your perfect, model-size weight. With not one single extra pound, not one single extra inch.

Stop the Food You Eat From Turning to Ugly Pockets of Excess Fat!

Yes, obviously, lowering calories is a lark . . . and since the calories you do take in on this London University 'crash-loss' wonder diet are burned right out of your body every time you eat . . . you start to TURN SLIMMER, not only the very first day BUT—after the first meal—and every meal thereafter! as excess fat starts to disappear—GET OXIDIZED BY THE HOUR!

Prove Every Lost Ounce, Every Lost Inch Entirely at Our Risk!

You've read the facts. You've read the thrilling wonder results. You've seen the kind of rapid weight loss you can look forward to based upon extensive research in England and calorie burn-off studies at leading American medical schools. The rest is up to you.

Right now, look at your figure in the mirror and ask yourself these questions—the solution to which is right now within your grasp.

How would I look one week from today as much as 5 to 10 pounds lighter?

How would I look in 2 weeks with my waistline 2 to 4 sizes smaller?

BUT DON'T STOP THERE—if you need to lose still more inches, then continue the London University "crash-loss" diet, continue to take META-DRENE/14 until you've reached the figure of your dreams:

6 INCHES CARVED OFF YOUR HIPS . . . AS MUCH AS ANOTHER

3 INCHES CARVED OFF YOUR THIGHS . . . ANOTHER

4 INCHES OFF YOUR BUTTOCKS . . . ANOTHER

6 INCHES OFF YOUR STOMACH . . . ANOTHER

6 INCHES OFF YOUR WAISTLINE!

Because NEXT TO COMPLETE STARVATION THERE IS SIMPLY NO OTHER MEDICALLY SOUND REDUCING PROGRAM THAT WORKS FASTER.

And since all you risk is the 30 seconds it takes to fill out the coupon below . . . the only thing you have to lose is excess pounds and unwanted inches. It works for you . . . and works with unbelievable speed . . . or you do not lose a penny.

THE MARCH OF MEDICINE

Just a few years ago, getting a complete diagnosis often meant painful tests, or even exploratory surgery. But with today's new noninvasive technology, diagnosis is becoming painless, quick, and most important — safe.

By Lesly Berger

There was a time when a doctor's invitation to "come in for some tests" could mean an ordeal of arduous, time-consuming and even painful procedures which often necessitated an expensive stay at the hospital. But now, technology and sophisticated new diagnostic equipment and methods are beginning to change all that.

Through a process known as ultrasonography, for example, doctors — and mothers — can look at pictures of unborn fetuses. With CAT scanning (computerized axial tomography), a three-dimensional cross section of the brain can now be viewed. It is even becoming possible for doctors to actually see physiological processes such as blood flow and oxygen metabolism taking place within the body.

Much of the equipment used to perform such feats looks rather intimidating. But ironically, this complicated gadgetry is simplifying the procedures many patients go through. It is all part of a new trend toward noninvasive technology — a technology less painful, less dangerous and less time-consuming than the older methods of exploratory surgery, the injection of foreign substances into the body or repeated exposure to X-rays.

The following diagnostic equipment and procedures all fall under the broad heading of noninvasive techniques (some do involve radiation and injection of substances into the body, but at far less risk and discomfort than previous techniques). They are only a few of the highlights in a field so exciting and so quickly changing that even as you read this, other equally significant and fascinating advances are on the way.

A Look at the Body's Structure

The CAT scan enables physicians to see three-dimensional cross sections of the human body. While normal X-ray pictures show only length and width, the CAT scan adds the dimension of depth. According to Dr. Marc Lapayowker, director of diagnostic radiology and professor of radiology at Temple University Medical School in Philadelphia, the process works as follows: Thin beams of X-rays are sent through the body while multiple detectors are monitoring the radiation and transmitting the information into a computer. The information is then displayed visually, in the form of a three-dimensional picture on a computer console screen.

The CAT scan was developed about 10 years ago and was originally intended for use in examining the brain, but in the past five or six years new uses have been developed for the rest of the body as well. It is now also possible for physicians to use the CAT scanner to see the liver, pancreas and adrenal gland areas. Previously, the only way a doctor could take a look at these organs was through exploratory surgery.

The current "generation" of CAT scanners works much faster than its predecessors. While earlier it took up to two and a half minutes to see images, they are now able to be seen in as little as two to five seconds. This great speed enables physicians to examine the chest and abdomen without being hindered by the motion caused by simply breathing.

What can we look forward to in CAT scanning? As you might have guessed, even faster scanners are being perfected, which will eventually make it possible to complete the entire exposure within one second. With this speed, Dr. Lapayowker predicts, we can one day use CAT scanning to examine the heart, since heart motion will not interfere with the procedure at such high speed.

CAT SCAN:

Developed almost contemporaneously with the CAT scan was ultrasound, a technique which involves passing an extremely high-pitched sound (inaudible to human ears) into the body and receiving reflections back from different body tissues. Since body tissue differs in density, when these reflections are picked up by a television monitor, they can create an image on the console screen.

According to Dr. Lapayowker, who, along with his other credentials, is chairman of the Commission on Ultrasound for the American College of Radiology, ultrasound makes it possible to see an image of what is going on inside the body at the moment it is happening. The technique can be used to prepare an image of the heart and upper abdomen, as well as the gallbladder and ducts of the liver, even better than with CAT scanning and without the use of any radiation at all. Ultrasonography can also be used to examine blood vessels repeatedly — with no damage to the patient — and can reveal aneurysms or dilations of the aorta.

Although ultrasonography and

CAT scanning can be used to examine similar things, they are more complementary than competitive and should be used in conjunction with each other, according to Dr. Lapayowker. For example, CAT scans do a better job, in general, of seeing through bone and cartilage and can be used with more success on people who weigh over 165 pounds, while ultrasound is better at differentiating between body tissues and is best suited to people under 165 pounds.

"By far the greatest use of ultrasound is in pregnancy, where it has almost excluded X-rays from obstetrics," says Dr. Fritz Fuchs, who is a professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center. "Ultrasound is the most important technology we have for monitoring the high-risk mother and fetus," he adds. It can be used to diagnose early pregnancy as well as any abnormalities in the pelvis such as cysts or tumors. Ultrasound can be used to detect multiple births early in pregnancy. It can also determine the fetus's heart rate and position in the womb and is useful in monitoring fetal growth and development.

The future of ultrasound will bring technical improvements in resolution and detail of imaging, says Dr. Lapayowker. This should make it possible to achieve even greater accuracy of diagnosis.

Observing the Body's Functions

An impressive type of high-technology equipment now making it possible for physicians to examine the body's physiological functions is Positron Emission Tomography or PET scanning. It uses complicated nuclear medical equipment to view a transverse section of the brain as if it were cut on a horizontal plane. According to Dr. Robert Ackerman, who is director of the Cerebral Blood Flow Laboratory and also of the Carotid Evaluation Laboratory at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, with this sensitive method it is possible to observe the flow of blood in the body, as well as the metabolism of oxygen and glucose. And this is an essentially

How much of your vitamin C gets lost on the way to the table?

Picking, packing, processing.

All these plus transportation can lead to the destruction of part of the vitamin C in your foods. In fact, some of this important nutrient can be lost in just the first few days after harvesting.

Time takes its toll.

Vitamin C is one of the most fragile vitamins. So, foods stored over a long period of time or exposed to air and light can lose a good deal of their vitamin C.

The more you cook, the less you get.

Probably the greatest loss of vitamins is due to cooking. For example, potatoes are a good source of vitamin C. But, if you bake, boil, or fry them much of their vitamin C content will be destroyed.

There are many ways the vitamins that were originally in your foods can be lost. Just to be sure you're getting all your body needs, eat a balanced diet. For extra insurance, you can look for fortified foods when you shop and take a supplement containing vitamin C every day.

ULTRASOUND:

Body tissues differ in density, and when a high-pitched sound is passed through them, their different reflections form an image on the screen. Because ultrasound doesn't involve radiation, it's often used in examining pregnant women.

noninvasive technique which is not dangerous to the patient. PET scanning differs from CAT scanning and ultrasound in that it provides very different types of information. CAT scanning and ultrasound reveal the body's structure while PET scanning can show the functioning of the body.

Since PET scanning is capable of showing physiological functions in localized areas of the brain, physicians at Massachusetts General are looking into its application for examining stroke patients. According to Dr. Ackerman and his colleagues Nathaniel Alpert, Ph.D., and Jack Correia Ph.D., initial information suggests that the type of alterations in blood flow and oxygen metabolism seen in a patient in the hours and days immediately after he has had a stroke can demonstrate changes in the body tissue that are not identifiable at that point in time by any other instrument. Their investigative work suggests that eventually PET scanning might be able to predict the extent of injury to body tissue caused by stroke. Since early therapy is important, discovering quickly which tissue can be worked with and which is dead, can add much to the recovery of stroke patients.

PET scanning is also being applied experimentally in a variety of other ways. At the University of California at Los Angeles Medical Center, for example, doctors are exploring PET's use in identifying the site of epileptic seizures. At New York University Medical School, PET is being used to differentiate between varied types of psychiatric illness by looking at specific ways the brain functions.

Another device which examines the body's physiological functions is called Spectral Phonoangiography. When used alone, or in conjunction with other ultrasonography, it further contributes to the more detailed view of our bodies that is becoming available to physicians.

According to Dr. Robert Lees, who is director of the Noninvasive Diagnostic Laboratory at Massachusetts General, and professor of cardiovascular disease at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), spectral phonoangiography was originally developed at MIT and was then brought to Massachusetts General, where it is being used to diagnose stroke.

The premise behind its use in stroke diagnosis is this: It is now believed that the narrowing of the blood vessels in the carotid artery (the big artery in the neck that leads to the brain) is responsible for about 20 percent of all strokes. When blood vessels are narrowed, the blood flow becomes turbulent, making a noise called a "bruit," which can be heard at the skin's surface. Using spectral phonoangiography, it has become possible for physicians to plot out the sound spectrum of each bruit, which can then be used to determine how severe the narrowing of the blood vessel actually is.

The simplicity of phonoangiography makes it preferable to the prior diagnostic approach of an angiogram, which involved placing a tube in a patient from groin to neck, injecting X-ray dye and taking repeated X-ray pictures. While this new technique is not yet widely available, Dr. Lees predicts that it soon will be.

One of the most exciting developments in diagnostic medicine is the field of Nuclear Magnetic Resonance, or NMR, which can show both body structure and function. NMR basically involves the use of two different types of technology — powerful magnets and a radio frequency field, instead of X-rays.

Dr. Gerald Pohost, who is a cardiologist and associate professor of medicine at Harvard Medical School, explains NMR as follows: The body contains tiny magnetic atomic nuclei which when exposed to an external magnetic field will line up in a cer-

TO L.P. GAS (PROPANE) WATER HEATER OWNERS

Under certain conditions, the thermostat on your L.P. gas water heater has the potential of causing an explosion.

Please read and act today.

A voluntary recall of certain propane gas water heater thermostats manufactured by the White-Rodgers Division of Emerson Electric Co., and installed on A. O. Smith and other brands of residential water heaters is underway. These thermostats, installed on L. P. gas water heaters sold between 1961 and mid-1980, may pose a potential risk of explosion and serious injury if physical damage to the pilot gas control knob of the thermostat has occurred. If your water heater is equipped with one of these thermostats and the pilot flame goes out, do not attempt to relight it yourself. Instead, call your gas supplier or plumber immediately.

White-Rodgers will replace the thermostats without cost to you. If you own an L. P. gas water heater manufactured by A. O. Smith, including such brand names as A. O. Smith, American Standard, Continental, Glascote, Kee, National, Minnegasco, NORGAS and Homart, or own a water heater manufactured by any other company and is likely to have been purchased since 1961, call immediately toll free to White-Rodgers at tain way. Radio frequencies are then used to "disturb" these atoms out of line. The atoms normally rotate in a pattern similar to that of the spinning of a top. When the radio waves hit them, their axis is changed, and as they return to their original positions they give off a characteristic radiation that reveals their location to a computer.

Although it will require a whole new type of technology involving giant magnets, Dr. Pohost speculates NMR may have many possible applications in the future. For example, NMR could eventually be used to determine whether body tissue is dead or alive and whether there are any malignancies present — all without the use of X-rays. It could also be used to measure blood flow. It is conceivable that NMR technology could one day be used to detect cancer, heart disease, tumors and coronary artery disease earlier than is possible today.

Detecting Disease

Not all diagnostic advances involve million-dollar equipment and massive computers, however. One of the most striking examples of an area where the technology is less grand-looking but no less important is the area of virology. Diagnosis of viruses has been greatly simplified by immunoassay tests, which, by using tracer materials, can measure infectious agents in the blood.

Radioimmunoassay, or RIA, which was developed in the 1960's, uses radioactive isotopes to trace antigens (a substance that stimulates the production of antibodies, disease fighting agents). According to Dr. Harry Daugharty, who is chief of the diagnostic products evaluation branch at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, the RIA technique was first used to determine the concentrations of various hormones in the blood. Today, however, it is being used experimentally to detect extremely small amounts of antigens in the blood. This technique is leading to quicker diagnoses of cancer and such viral diseases as influenza, rubella and herpes simplex.

Enzymeimmunoassay, or EIA, works on the same principle as RIA but uses enzymes rather than radioactive tracer materials. Dr. Kenneth Herrmann, who is chief of the perinatal virology branch at the Centers for Disease Control, says that EIA requires the uses of a complicated instrument called a spectrophotometer to determine the amount of antibody present in the blood.

THE FUTURE:

Tomorrow's diagnostic methods will cut back even more on the risk to patients.

"This method is still being studied," Dr. Herrmann says, "but it looks as if it can be widely applied in many different areas of viral diagnostic testing." He believes that EIA will eliminate many of the pitfalls and errors that might creep into diagnostic laboratory tests, since it involves fewer technical manipulations, is more likely to be accurate and has the added capability of testing large numbers of specimens in a short time.

Immunofluorescence is a diagnostic tool that can be used along with conventional techniques of virus isolation to examine viral infections. It involves the use of a fluorescence microscope equipped with special filters. Tiny samples of infected material, such as herpes simplex virus, can be collected from skin lesions, respiratory secretions or a biopsy, and after incubating for 18 hours, they can be examined under a fluorescence microscope — saving one to two weeks of laboratory tests.

"This technique benefits both the patient and the doctor," says Dr. Craig Lyerla, a microbiologist for the laboratory training and consultation division of the virology training branch of the Centers for Disease Control. "It avoids the use of unnecessary antibiotics and eliminates the need for other diagnostic tests."

Immunofluorescence has been extremely helpful in pediatric medicine. Quick diagnosis of infants with respiratory infections enables them to be placed in isolation where the spread of the disease will be prevented and treatment can begin. The same principle is also being applied in nursing homes for isolation and treatment of pneumonia patients, says Dr. Lyerla.

The possibilities of the new diagnostic technology are vast. While in most cases a great deal of experimentation, funding and equipment are required, we are well on the way to an era of quicker, more accurate diagnosis, at far less discomfort and inconvenience to the patient. What can we look forward to in the coming years? As New York Hospital's Dr. Fritz Fuchs puts it, "If we knew what technology to expect, it would already be here. All we can say is, something new and better is certain to be coming along." FW

The Big Cover-Up

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

The next time you feel your home decor needs a lift, consider the miracles that can be done with different types of fabric. And you don't need to be a genius with a needle and thread. "Wonderful furnishings for the home can be achieved with little or no sewing at all," according to Karen Rosen and Kris Brame of KMR Designs, Ltd. Here are some projects to try.

A Draped Tablecloth

Buy a sheet in a print or color you like and drape it over a table, making sure the sheet is properly centered. For a 36-inch round table, for example, a flat king-size sheet would be appropriate. Carefully staple the sheet under the edge of the tabletop all the way around the perimeter. Staple about five inches from the edge. Be sure to gather the material evenly underneath so the fabric doesn't bunch.

A Decorator Lampshade

Buy a lampshade frame, available in lamp stores, and cover, using twine, yarn or silk cord. You will be working from top to bottom. Start by making a tight knot and securing the cord to the top horizontal part of the frame. Then bring the cord straight down on the outside of frame and begin looping around the bottom horizontal frame part. Do the looping as many times as is necessary to compensate for the difference in diameter between top and bottom of frame before bringing cord back up to top. The object is to have no spaces in between cord lines, so that frame is completely covered and the lines are straight. (Note: Extra looping would not be necessary for a drum-shaped frame, for example, where top and bottom part of the frame are equal in diameter.) End cord with a concealed knot inside the top part of frame.

Make this lampshade for a fraction of what it would cost to buy.

A Room Divider

Determine the size you want your room divider to be, and when buying fabric — canvas or cotton duck — allow for 5-percent shrinkage and about eight extra inches in length.

Preshrink fabric in hot water. Then buy two wooden dowels, broom handles or Lucite poles cut to width. Glue fabric horizontally around poles; paint a desired pattern on it or leave plain if you wish. Suspend your design from the ceiling using invisible fishing line to separate room areas.

Cafe Curtains

You can make these quickly by opening out a pair of pillowcases, taking advantage of the ready-made hem on the bottom of the case. Using an iron, first press back ¼-inch along side edges to give sides body. Then turn, press and stitch 1-inch side hems. Next, press down ½-inch along top edge. Then turn, press and stitch a 1-inch hem. To hang, use clip-on cafe rings or insert rod through top hem. Another pair of pillowcases makes a quick valance.

A Terry Cloth Bath Carpet

Buy cotton terry cloth towels ("seconds" will do) and sew together to form wall-to-wall bathroom carpet. It will be soft, easy to clean and quick-drying.

Pretty Party Seating

Give your folding chairs an upholstered look with fabric or sheeting. You'll need about 3½ yards for each chair and have to cut it in two lengths. First do the seat section. Cut a piece of fabric or sheeting long enough to go from the rear legs up and over the seat and return to rear legs. While standing in front of chair, place the fabric on seat. Feed one end through the space between the seat and the back, the other under the seat, so that both ends can be gathered around the rear legs at floor level. Now gather fabric at each leg and tie with a ribbon for a "shirred" effect. Now you are ready to completely cover the backrest portion of the chair and the front legs. Cut a piece of fabric long enough to go from one front leg, up over the back and down to the other front leg, working on the outside of the chair frame. Start by gathering the fabric around one of the legs and tying with ribbons. Bring fabric up over the back of the chair, pulling it taut and drawing it down along the frame to the other front leg. Gather and tie with a ribbon. FW

PEOPLE QUIZ

Do Men Get More Out Of Love Than Women?

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Whether you are a romantic idealist and believe in "the starry-eyed love of pure romance," or whether you take a more practical, down-to-earth view, is likely to depend on which of two personality types you belong to.
2. Women get more out of a love relationship than men do.
3. A woman who plays hard-to-get, builds a romantic aura around herself, which makes her appear more attractive and more desirable to most men.
4. In romantic love relationships absence does make the heart grow fonder in most cases.
5. Women who are searching for Mister Right have a better idea of what they are looking for than men.
6. The significant woman in a man's life — if he finds her — enriches the quality of his life, markedly increases his sense of well-being and his ability to experience and enjoy new dimensions in living.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies at Utah State University that measured attitudes toward romantic love, men and women of various ages and walks of life were interviewed in the privacy of their own homes to determine love attitudes, and then they were given personality tests. It was found that what psychologists term the internally oriented personality type — who feels that what happens results chiefly from one's own efforts — tends to take a more practical, down-to-earth, meat-and-potatoes attitude toward love and romance. On the other hand, the externally oriented personality type — who feels life is controlled more by forces outside oneself, such as luck, fate or powerful others — is more likely to subscribe to the belief that love is an intense, mysterious and idealized experience.

2. True. A team of behavioral specialists at the University of Toronto investigated the attitudes of both men and women undergraduates toward their romantic partners (engaged, going together, married, etc.), employing standard personality and attitude tests, as well as a "romantic love" questionnaire. Results: females demonstrated attitudes of greater love, liking and trust and experienced more euphoria (a feeling of well-being, relaxation and happiness) than men in love relationships.

3. False. Studies on men's attitude toward the hard-to-get woman, conducted by a team of University of Wisconsin investigators, have shown that a hard-to-get woman is esteemed only if she is hard-to-get for other men but easy-to-get for the subject.

4. True. That was the opinion of a representative sample of single college men and women, ranging in age from 18 to 27 years, drawn randomly from three different colleges and three different universities in a San Jose State University (Calif.) study. Students were asked to fill out, anonymously, a brief survey form requiring them to indicate their age, sex and to answer the following question: "With regard to romantic love relationships, which of the following statements do you feel is the more nearly true? 'Out of sight, out of mind' or 'Absence makes the heart grow fonder.' Seventy percent of the males and 72 percent of the females endorsed 'Absence makes the heart grow fonder' as a truer statement than 'Out of sight, out of mind.'"

5. True. After a study on dating and mating-selection choices of young men and women, a team of Florida State University investigators concludes from the findings that "women more than men appear to know what they want in a date and a mate." Men may be just as idealistic when they search for 'the girl of their dreams,' but what they think they want and what they really want is likely to have less in common than is apt to obtain with the opposite sex. This suggests that the happiest and most enduring marriages may result when the girl actually picks her mate, but who shrewdly permits the man to think that it was he that did the choosing.

6. True. A study conducted at the California School of Professional Psychology (San Diego) explored the way in which men experience the Significant Woman in their lives in a wife/lover relationship. The findings of leading studies were evaluated and supplemented by a series of personal interviews. It was concluded that: 1) The significant woman in a man's life tends to represent a very powerful influence on him; 2) that one of the ways in which this influence is characteristically manifested is its ability to change him and lead him to different types of experience, especially to an expanded awareness...of emotionality and spirituality; 3) that she possesses the potential to fill in or counteract gaps or weaknesses that he perceives in his own personality. SYNOMETRICS...an Olympic Champion's Discovery!

Turn Belly Fat into a Rock-Hard Lean Stomach

Introducing IKE BERGER
Olympic Champion

Olympic Gold medal winner (U.S. team) weightlifting • World Champion (three times) • Pan American Games Champion (twice) • National Champion (12 times) • Elected to Hall of Fame

IN JUST 7 SHORT MINUTES A DAY with the amazing SYNOMETRICS (scientific concept of ISOMETRIC + ISOTONIC)...the fantastic new discovery for speed shaping away ugly, embarrassing fat and flab with proper caloric reduction...to reveal a brand new rock-hard, lean, trim, handsome body!

IKE BERGER explains SYNOMETRICS™...the new EASY speed method for figure beauty

What is SYNOMETRICS? You've probably heard about the Isotonic and Isometric principle of body dynamics for years. Each method has its own believers and supporters. I used BOTH methods in my daily training. Finally, I developed a special exercise unit that employed BOTH methods AT THE SAME TIME in one device. The effect was simply amazing. I was able to keep in trim, slim shape in only a fraction of the time I previously needed!

The Science of SYNOMETRICS

I later learned the scientific reason for this amazing result. It's called SYNERGISM—meaning that when you combine two methods the result is greater than the both of them separately. I now called my new discovery SYNOMETRICS and developed a special exercise unit I call the SPEED SHAPER. And that's just what it is...a speed method to give you results in minutes, NOT hours! Now...build yourself a "fantastic looking body" with the incredible SYNOMETRICS – the invention that works on the exciting new scientific concept of ISOTONIC + ISOMETRIC.

What is the SPEED SHAPER?

Ingeniously designed, in an amazingly compact slimming & shaping discovery • No doorknobs needed • Adjust tension to your own needs, for any age • Slip into pocket or purse (5 oz.) fits anywhere!

"I'm over 50 and I thought my fat and flab was with me for life. SYNOMETRICS "burned" it off in only 7 days. In fact results came so fast I had to cut my daily 7 minute workout to 5 minutes to slow down the slimming process. It's the most amazing method I've ever tried...and I've tried just about every gadget and gimmick I've seen in magazines and TV."

Iron Clad Money Back Guarantee

In just a few days you must actually begin to see measurable, real results...or your money back promptly and without any question.

BOOK PEOPLE

Author Ken Follett

Hitting the Right Keys Has Made Him a Millionaire

By David Grunwald

Jerry Bauer

The key to Follett: "He grew up reading James Bond novels without distraction."

Up until a few years ago, author Ken Follett was working part time for a publishing company and writing trashy paperback novels under a pseudonym on the side. Then one day he convinced a publisher to give him a decent advance payment to try something more serious. As soon as the manuscript was finished, Follett chucked his job. "I was fairly sure," he recalls, "that the book was going to be much more successful than anything I had done before."

But Follett never imagined just how successful his first hardcover thriller would be. Eye of the Needle quickly jumped onto the best-seller list and has to date sold five million copies worldwide.

Thanks to the success of Eye of the Needle and his next two blockbusters, Triple and The Key to Rebecca, Follett is a millionaire at the ripe old age of 31. The slender author lives with his wife of 13 years, Mary, and their two children, Emanuele, 12, and Marie-Claire, 7, in a villa in the South of France and has a "loft" apartment in New York City's Soho.

Not bad. Not bad at all for a young man from Cardiff, Wales, and the son of a clerk in Britain's equivalent of the I.R.S. Follett was lucky, though. His parents were inveterate readers who never bought a TV set until their son was 16, so Follett grew up reading James Bond without distraction.

After taking his philosophy degree at the University of London, Follett used a bit of experience in college journalism to gain a two-and-a-half year apprenticeship on the South Wales Echo and then a reporting job on the London Evening News.

In 1973 he got stuck with a large car repair bill and decided to try his hand at fiction after a fellow reporter mentioned he had just sold a paperback novel for 200 pounds (then the equivalent of $560.00). "In fact, my car bill was exactly the same sum of money," notes Follett wryly. "It was the coincidence of the sum that was . . . ah . . . inspirational."

Called ironically enough The Big Needle, it was a far-fetched tale about a businessman who takes on the London drug scene single-handedly after his teen-age daughter almost OD's on heroin. The book didn't sell particularly well. Ten more hard-boiled paperbacks followed, and then Follett finally hit on the right formula with Eye of the Needle.

His latest book, The Key to Rebecca, which People magazine called "the runaway hit of the season," is set in World War II Egypt and based very loosely on the exploits of a Nazi spy who fed British military secrets to Field Marshal Rommel. It sold over 200,000 copies within the first two months of publication (while at the same time the paperback edition of last year's best seller Triple reached the top of the paperback best-seller lists).

Follett hasn't been as thrilled with the release of another book with his name on it — The Gentlemen of 16 July. The story is an account of the $10 million robbery in 1976 of a bank in Nice and was written by three French journalists under a pseudonym. Follett says he was hired to edit an English translation, but a book company is using his name as one of the authors to help boost sales. In a lawsuit decision, a Federal judge ruled that his name can appear on the cover as one of the authors because he did substantial rewriting of the book.

In any event, Follett is currently working on his fourth thriller. Set in pre-World War I Britain, "it's about a Russian anarchist in London who is trying to commit an assassination. The heroine is an aristocratic English girl who becomes a suffragette and joins the early women's movement," he explains.

But you'll have to wait until 1982 before finding out how it all turns out. After that, another World War II thriller is on the agenda. And then?

"I may do something a little different, but I hope not too different. I hope I will continue to write popular commercial fiction. So," laughs Ken Follett, "I am not planning to do a long, heavy, boring novel about the problems of a writer living in the South of France." FW

Collectors! Investors!

Now! A unique collection of the finest example of rare U.S. Coinage... in Solid Silver!

THE FIVE MORGAN DOLLAR INVESTMENT COLLECTION

Minted about 100 years ago.

Numismatic Collectors Guild has acquired a limited supply of fine Morgan Solid Silver Dollars, considered by experts to be the peak of the engravers art. These Solid Silver Dollars, 412.5 grains of 900% Fine Silver, are the most sought after coins ever minted in the United States. Some Morgan Silver Dollars sell for as much as $20,000 and a prime mint condition Morgan Silver Dollar recently sold for $42,500.

George T. Morgan, who created coins for the Royal Family in England, was persuaded by the U.S. Mint to design and sculpt this Silver Dollar in 1876. The initial "M" is found on each authentic coin at the base of the neck. The coin has become so popular that collectors and investors have been hoarding them for years. As a result, there are no longer any Morgan Silver Dollars in circulation. Silver Dollar coins, in general, have increased over 1,000% (that's right, over 10 times) in value in preceding years.

Now Numismatic Collectors Guild has assembled its rare supply into exquisite Solid Silver Investment Collections of 5 Rare Morgan Dollars. Each set is displayed on a royal blue background in a handsome presentation case with embossed lettering. Makes a lifetime gift which can be handed down from generation to generation.

Recently, these rare coin sets were selling at $250.00 per set, but we are now able to offer them to you at our low price of $175.00 per set for the next 30 days only. Our supply is limited, but if you order now, you won't miss out. Orders will be filled on first come, first shipped basis until our small horde is exhausted. Money back if you are not completely satisfied. This offer may not be repeated.

Numismatic Collectors Guild, dealers in gold and silver bullion and rare coins for over 30 years, is a member of the Retail Coin Dealers Association and The American Numismatic Association.

Try Make-Believe Quilting

Here comes the clown, in gay, colorful patchwork, to delight the whole family.

A calico print flower against a yellow background will brighten any wall.

Here's an exciting new way to make gifts, decorate your home, contribute to the church bazaar or just enjoy a new craft. It's a simple technique which involves pushing fabric swatches into a piece of plastic foam. With it, you can make a host of items from baby toys and wall plaques to pincushions and ornaments, in no time. The completed pieces resemble quilting, as though they had been stitched and stuffed; yet no sewing or stuffing is needed.

You can work with cotton, velvet, suede cloth or felt. Even plastic bags or leftover lengths of ribbon can be used. Scissors and a paring knife are the only tools you will need along with plastic foam, available in a variety of shapes, which is used as the base.

The teddy bear plaque pictured is an excellent example of this technique. The design was adapted from a child's coloring book and made into this make-believe quilted plaque in a few hours.

The happy, colorful patchwork clown made with bright cotton prints in reds, greens and yellows was created on a foam circle.

In contrast to the large, brightly colored wall plaques are small ball-shaped pincushions made in more subdued colors. A pale rose-colored version is made of suede cloth and piped with strips of flowered ribbon. A dark red velvet version is piped with gold tying cord for a touch of elegance. Both sit on small ring bases.

Another delight to make, a puffed patchwork ball, makes a charming toy for a baby to play with or to hang on the side of the crib.

For an interesting, inexpensive and unusual craft, try this new easy-to-learn technique of pushing and puffing with fabric and a knife.

Complete instructions for making all of the items mentioned above with photographs and illustrations are included in a leaflet.

Mushroom Magic Enchants All

Step right this way, folks; here comes the glamor girl of the kitchen — the mushroom — with fresh, natural and simply beguiling ways to charm your cooking chores.

By Marilyn Hansen

Once a unique or special-occasion food, mushrooms have grown in popularity and use almost magically in recent years. Last year, in fact, some 399 million pounds of commercially cultivated mushrooms were produced by American growers, a figure more than double that of only 10 years ago.

Today, of the 38,000 varieties of mushrooms, only one — Agaricus bisporus — is grown widely commercially. A few specialty food stores, may have the delicate stemmed enoke mushrooms or the large black Shitaki mushrooms or even delicate morels. However, it is the Agaricus bisporus, found in every supermarket in America, that we are talking about.

While Pennsylvania still accounts for 57 percent of all mushroom production in the U.S., large growing operations are being developed all over the country. Twenty-two other states have also become suppliers and are helping to increase mushroom production by about 10 percent or almost 40 million pounds per year.

And so, with all their new popularity, mushrooms continue to fascinate and charm the cook looking for the right touch to turn the simplest of dishes into something special.

HOW TO BUY MUSHROOMS:

Look for firm, smooth mushrooms with the veil (the membrane between the cap and the stem) still attached to the mushroom cap. These mushrooms will be crunchy and delicately flavored, excellent for fresh uncooked use. If the veil is detached and the cap is darker, it is a result of oxidation and loss of moisture. This mushroom has deeper flavor and less moisture. The open-veiled mushroom will be just as good for cooking but will not store as long.

HOW MUCH TO BUY:

When recipes call for a cup of sliced mushrooms, you need less than three ounces! So, mushrooms may sound expensive by the pound, but remember you use them by the ounce. Just one pound yields six cups of sliced mushrooms.

WHAT ABOUT SIZE:

Small mushrooms are basically the same as large ones. Both are equally mature. Big mushrooms are particularly good for stuffing, while medium and smaller mushrooms are good for slicing and make fine, bite-size pick-ups for dips.

STORAGE:

Keep them in the box in which they were purchased and refrigerate. Since mushrooms need to breathe, they should be kept in porous containers. Brown paper bags also make good containers for fresh mushrooms. The crisper drawer of your refrigerator is the best place to store the package or bag of mushrooms, as it is more humid.

PREPARATION:

Rinse mushrooms quickly in a colander or strainer and blot dry with a paper towel. If the end of the stem seems dry, trim off a thin slice. There is no need to peel mushrooms.

Now they are ready to eat raw or to be used in a variety of cooking ways.

COOKING TIME:

Mushrooms don't have to be cooked at all. But in soups and stews, mushrooms may be cooked a half-hour or longer. The longer cooking period draws out the flavor to mingle with the broth or cooking liquid. For sauté-ing, three to five minutes are fine.

MARINATED MUSHROOMS

1 lb. small, fresh mushrooms (about 36)
¼ cup finely minced onion
¼ cup wine or rice wine vinegar
3 tablespoons dry sherry or sake
2 tablespoons imported soy sauce
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper

1. Rinse, pat dry and trim stem ends of mushrooms. Place in a medium bowl.

2. In a small saucepan, combine onion, vinegar, sherry, soy sauce, sugar, salt and pepper. Bring to boiling point; pour over mushrooms. Stir well; let cool, stirring occasionally. Cover and refrigerate about 24 hours.

3. Serve as hors d'oeuvres or piled in lettuce cups as a first course.

HEARTY SPINACH AND MUSHROOM SALAD

½ cup salad oil
¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 small garlic clove, crushed
¼ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 egg yolk
1 pkg. (8 ozs.) sliced bacon
1 lb. fresh spinach
8 ozs. fresh mushrooms
4 hard-cooked eggs, cut in sixths

1. In a small bowl, combine oil, lemon juice, salt, garlic, paprika and black pepper. With a wire wisk or rotary beater, beat in egg yolk until dressing is smooth and creamy; set aside.
2. In a skillet, fry bacon until crisp. Drain bacon on paper towels; crumble and set aside.
3. Wash spinach, drain and trim stems. In a large bowl, tear spinach into bite-size pieces. Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms (makes about 2¾ cups); add to spinach, reserving a few slices for garnish.
4. Add all but 1 egg to spinach and mushroom mixture. Add dressing to taste; refrigerate remaining dressing.
5. Garnish salad with reserved bacon, mushrooms and egg. Serve immediately.

Makes 6 to 8 servings

BEEF AND MUSHROOM TERIYAKI STIR-FRY

½ cup soy sauce
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
2 medium onions, sliced lengthwise
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon minced garlic
¾ teaspoon ground ginger
2 lbs. round or flank steak, cut into thin diagonal strips
1 lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced
¼ cup oil
2 cups finely shredded cabbage
1 can (1 lb.) bean sprouts, drained
1 can (8 ozs.) water chestnuts, drained and sliced

1. Combine soy sauce, water, sugar, onion, vinegar, garlic and ground ginger. Add beef to marinade. Cover and refrigerate two hours.
2. In a large wok or 12-inch skillet, heat oil. Add mushrooms; sauté three-minutes. Add cabbage; sauté two minutes.
3. Add beef and marinade; stir-fry five minutes. Add bean sprouts and water chestnuts; stir-fry five minutes longer. If desired, serve with hot cooked rice.

Makes 8 servings

MUSHROOM MOUSSE

1 lb. fresh mushrooms
3 tablespoons sweet butter
1 small clove garlic, crushed
4 finely chopped shallots
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
3 cups chicken stock
1 cup white wine
3 cups heavy cream
2 eggs, beaten
2 egg yolks, beaten
½ bunch chives, chopped
Salt, pepper and ground nutmeg to taste

1. In large skillet, sauté mushrooms with shallots and garlic in butter.
2. When lightly browned, add thyme and bay leaves. Add 2 cups of the chicken stock and the white wine. Simmer slowly, uncovered, until all the liquid is absorbed.
3. Grind fine to produce "duxelle" in food processor.
4. Put ½ of the duxelle or very finely minced mushroom mixture into a mixing bowl; add 1 cup heavy cream, the eggs and yolks. Season to taste with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Stir in chives.
5. Spoon mixture into six greased custard cups. Bake in a preheated 350°F. oven in a pan filled with an inch of hot water for about 20 to 25 minutes or until mixture is firm.
6. Mix remaining duxelle, chicken stock and cream in medium saucepan. Simmer mixture, stirring constantly until a creamy sauce consistency. Season to taste.
7. Unmold mushroom mousse on individual serving plates; cover with the sauce and sprinkle a little chopped chives on top. Serve immediately.

Makes 6 servings

Recipe from Tom Holmes, proprietor of the Little Club Restaurant, New York, N.Y.

MUSHROOMS FLAMBE

1 lb. small whole mushrooms
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onions
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ cup chopped parsley
¼ cup brandy

1. Rinse, pat dry and trim stems of mushrooms; halve, if desired.
2. In a large skillet, melt butter. Add onions; sauté for 1 minute. Add mushrooms; sauté for three minutes.
3. Stir in salt, black pepper and parsley. In a small pan or ladle, gently heat brandy; ignite; pour over mushrooms, stirring with long-handled metal spoon. Serve with buttered noodles, rice, toast or with steak or chops.

Makes 6 servings

WHAT IN THE WORLD

FORTNIGHTLY CONTACTS

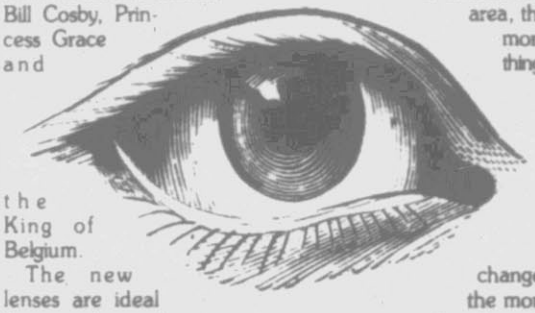
Contact lenses that can be left in the eyes for two full weeks without removal were recently approved for general use by the Food and Drug Administration. The new "extended wear" lenses are thinner and contain more water than conventional soft lenses and cost about $150 to $200 more, according to Dr. Robert Morrison, an ophthalmologist who practices out of Harrisburg, Pa., and New York City and whose clients include Barbara Walters, Bill Cosby, Princess Grace and the King of Belgium.



Bettmann Archive

The new lenses are ideal for many types of patients, not to mention those who simply don't want to change their contacts every day. "Certain people cannot put contacts in themselves," notes Morrison. "Some are too nervous; some, like arthritis victims, have hand problems; and some just cannot see well enough to put the contacts in. We can put the new contacts in for these patients, see them again in two weeks, take the contacts out, clean them and just put them right back in."

PASSED THE TEST OF TIME

Among the 575 mid-year graduates of Florida State University last December 13 marched Virgil Conner, 92 years young and the proud recipient of a graduate degree in history. (It was interesting, he notes, to compare what his professors and textbooks had to say with his own memories of the early 1900's.)

College has changed quite a bit since Conner got his undergraduate degree from Arkansas' Ouachita College in 1912, he admits, although in at least one area, the more things change, the more they happily stay the same. "I can't really say the girls are prettier now," Conner laughs. "And I can't say my appreciation has dulled either. They were pretty then, and they're pretty now. It's still a great world."

He declined to elaborate, noting that one woman has looked after him pretty well —that would be Willy May, his wife of 65 years.

YOUR MONEY OR YOUR DIGITAL READOUT

We thought the world's worst approach to bank robbery was already seen in the film Take the Money and Run, when Woody Allen slips the teller an illegible note that's misread "I have a gub." But now word comes from Charleston S.C., of a would-be bank robber whose ineptitude far surpasses Allen's.

One night recently, long after banking hours, the armed thief drove up to a shiny new IBM automatic teller machine and, his face hidden by a ski mask, slipped it a note demanding all its money. As the electronic teller sat there, silent in the dark, the irate (and slightly tipsy) robber drew his pistol —and pumped two shots into the machine's belly. Still, it wouldn't budge. So the man sped off in his getaway car, only to be stopped shortly by a policeman who had witnessed the entire debacle.

The automatic teller, reportedly shaken just a bit by the experience, was back at work in a few hours.

IF I COULD TALK TO THE ANIMALS

If your pet hasn't been itself lately, it may need more than a walk or a new dish. It may need a psychiatrist.

Yup. Dr. Peter Borchelt, for instance. New York City's Borchelt is one of only a handful of animal psychiatrists in the country, and he stresses that he is not a veterinarian or an obedience trainer. He holds a doctorate in comparative psychology.

Walt Disney Prod / Movie Still Archives

Does this cat need a shrink?

Borchelt will visit a dog or cat whose owner has complained that his pet is having problems like aggressive behavior, eating disorders, fear of being alone. Borchelt snoops around a bit ("I'm more a detective than anything else," he notes), perhaps spending time alone with the pet, before coming up with a diagnosis and treatment for the owner to follow.

Borchelt has treated some 450 to 500 pets over the past three years, almost all of which are dogs or cats. He'll check in on an occasional horse or monkey and recalls one unusual call that still puzzles him. "I can't imagine what kind of problem a turtle could have," he laughs.

INDIANS' CHIEF CAREERS

According to a study by the Native American Information Center at Oklahoma's Bacone College, of all major professions, American Indians are proportionally best represented in the field of psychiatry. Indians are least represented in geology and dentistry. There are, indeed, no Indians among the estimated 20,515 geologists in this country and of the 120,000 U.S. dentists, only six are American Indians.

GAMBLING WITH THE I.R.S

The total profits of bookmakers are usually subject to the whims of chance. But when it comes to taxes, bookies have stacked the odds decidely in their favor. A recent Internal Revenue Service report estimates that bookmakers avoid paying as much as $3.6 billion a year in Federal income taxes on the $8 billion to $10 billion they annually gross from illegal bets on horse races and other sporting events.

GIANT CLIMBING TOMATOES

Vines Grow 12'-18' – Sometimes 25' Tall!
Produce Tomatoes Up To 6" Across – Weigh 2 Lbs.!

Enjoy growing your own big, sweet, juicy, vine-ripened tomatoes this year – even if you don't have room for a garden. It takes only a few feet of space, because these big crimson tomatoes will grow on a trellis. Or they will out-yield other varieties when grown as a bush tomato. And how they do grow! We have letters from customers who have harvested as much as 2 bushels of these tomatoes from just one vine! These climbers are plump and smooth, with meaty centers and solid divisions, excellent for canning and sauces and eating fresh. EASY TO GROW – even beginners have good luck with them. They produce crop after crop all summer long. Blight-free and drought-resistant. Save money and eat better this year.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: "'THE WANDERER' SENT YOU HERE BECAUSE YOU ARE TOO PROUD," THE HERMIT SAYS. "YOUR PRIDE HAS BROUGHT RELIEF TO SOME BUT GRIEF TO OTHERS. NOW I WILL SHOW YOU HUMILITY. FOLLOW ME."

IN HIS TINY CHAMBER THE OLD MAN RUMMAGES THROUGH A CHEST: "CHARITY... COURAGE... LOYALTY... AH, HERE IT IS!"

"BRING THIS TO 'THE WANDERER' AND YOUR QUEST IS ENDED." BUT PRINCE VALIANT IS CONFUSED: "SURELY THIS CANNOT BE HUMILITY..." THE OLD MAN INTERRUPTS HIM IN FURY. "I CARE NOT FOR YOUR OPINION," HE THUNDERS. "DO AS I SAY."

LATER THAT NIGHT VAL RECEIVES A VISITOR: "FORGIVE MY TEMPER," THE HERMIT SAYS, "BUT THERE IS MUCH YOU DO NOT KNOW. IN THAT CASKET IS HUMILITY ENOUGH FOR ALL OF BRITAIN. DO NOT OPEN IT UNTIL YOU FIND 'THE WANDERER.'"

DEEP UNDERGROUND, VAL CANNOT TELL IF IT IS MORNING, BUT THE IMPS ROUSE HIM FROM SLEEP. IT IS TIME TO GO. FOR TWO DAYS THEY LEAD HIM DOWN THROUGH A SECRET PATH IN THE MOUNTAIN'S INNARDS. FINALLY, A GREAT ROCK IS ROLLED AWAY.
