

Reagan Says Canada Trip Heartwarming

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, describing his first state visit as a

"very heart-warming experience," says he and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau established "a basis for further working together" even though differences remain between the two North American neighbors. The Canadians said

Reagan, without giving guarantees, eased their fears that his proposed budget cuts and policy changes would hurt projects important to their country. Friction over U.S. involvement in El Salvador and Reagan's withdrawal of a fishing treaty also seemed to have been lessened.

In a televised speech Wednesday to the Canadian Parliament, Reagan pledged to revitalize the U.S. economy and said that would restore the confidence of allies and produce millions of jobs, many of them in Canada.

The speech was repeatedly interrupted by applause, ending Reagan's two-day trip on a high note. He had been dogged by hecklers earlier in Ottawa.

After returning to the White House, Reagan said he and Trudeau had "a very fine meeting, really. I think we established the basis for further working together. We were very pleased and I think they were, too — a very heart-warming experience."

Earlier, on the return flight to Washington, presidential aide Michael Deaver was asked whether the trip had been hampered by several U.S. actions opposed by the Canadians, such as withdrawal of a fishing treaty. He replied: "While some of the rough edges showed, by and large it was a successful trip."

Deaver said he had been "pleasantly surprised by the relationship (Reagan) and Trudeau established in a short time."

"Some Canadian officials were upset about some things, but we certainly did not get the feeling that they were anything but happy about the visit," Deaver said.

Reagan and Trudeau had never met before.

Talking alone and with aides, the two leaders held extensive talks Tuesday on issues ranging from El Salvador to fishing to pollution. They had not intended to solve any of the issues, and no breakthroughs were announced. But both pledged their determination to seek mutual solutions.

Before returning home, the president met with opposition leader Joe Clark, addressed the Canadian Parliament and visited the U.S. Embassy.

At the embassy, Reagan promised to do "all in our power to help and protect you in your line of work," a reference to Americans who had been held hostage in Iran for more than a year.

At a news conference after Reagan departed, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and his Canadian counterpart, External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan, sought to gloss over the issue of U.S. arms aid to El Salvador, which Canada opposes. Instead, they stressed that Canada and the United States hoped for a political rather than a military solution to the civil strife in that Central American country.

Find 'Safety Net' Has 'Rips, Tears'

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The safety net President Reagan says will protect the needy from sharp budget cuts is woven primarily from programs that give more money to the middle class than the poor, several independent economists say.

"There are lots of rips and tears in the safety net," said Walter Heller, a leading private economist who helped design President Kennedy's tax cut and the Johnson administration's Great Society poverty programs.

"You can't cut food stamps, housing aid, CETA and dozens of other programs so drastically and not hurt the disadvantaged," Heller said. "Overall, I see them taking a drubbing."

The three largest programs making up Reagan's safety net are basic Social Security, Medicare and veterans benefits, Heller said. These are all distributed without regard to recipients' income and therefore go primarily to people who have worked and are middle-class, he said.

Programs aimed at the least fortunate — Medicaid, food stamps, welfare, free legal services, child nutrition and housing assistance — all would be slashed.

Gar Alperovitz, director of the Washington-based Center for Economic Alternatives, said Reagan's overall program means a "very significant redistribution of income," not only through budget and tax cuts but also through oil deregulation.

Since Reagan removed price controls on domestic oil in January, gasoline prices have increased more than 10 cents a gallon in many parts of the country and home heating oil prices have made similar jumps. The administration says part of those increases are due to higher costs of imported oil.

Alperovitz said low-income people who drive vehicles spend about 30 percent of their disposable income on energy, about three times more than the average American.

"This is taking income directly away from the people who can least afford it and transferring it to owners of oil-related companies," he said.

The Reagan administration says its budget cuts will not hurt the "truly needy," but economists like Heller and Alperovitz said Wednesday this term has yet to be defined. The line between "near-poor and poor, deserving and undeserving" is hazy at best, added Barry Bosworth of the Brookings Institution.

"If you are in the upper half of the nation's income distribution, you ought to be overwhelmingly in favor of Reagan's program," said Bosworth, who was director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability under President Carter from 1977-79.

The budget cuts — totaling $48.6 billion — would fall most heavily on those with incomes below $20,000 a year, Bosworth said.

The administration's proposed federal tax reductions are, in dollar terms, much bigger for the upper-middle class and the wealthy, Bosworth said.

A four-member family earning $15,000 a year in taxable income would save about $900 under Reagan's three-year plan, while a family with an annual income of $100,000 would be able to keep about $17,000 it now pays in federal taxes.

Despite the short-term pain these economists say will be placed on less-fortunate Americans, they could benefit significantly in the long-run — if Reagan's plan succeeds.

That's because the program aims to spur economic growth and improve productivity. This would cut inflation and create more jobs, a so-called "trickle-down" effect.

"After two years, the net (positive) effect will be proportionately greater for medium- and low-income groups because the tax and spending cuts will spur productivity and lower unemployment," said Alan Greenspan, a leading private economist and close adviser to Reagan.

People "on the margin" of the economy will be the first to benefit from new jobs, he said.

Greenspan also said that despite big spending cuts, the proposed budget still would provide many more long-term benefits to the poor than to either middle-income or wealthy Americans.

Hijackers Threaten Kill 3 Americans On Airplane

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Hijackers threatened to kill three American hostages they identified as CIA agents and refused to extend today's deadline for blowing up a Pakistani jetliner.

The Americans have been identified as Frederick Hubbell of Des Moines, Iowa, a lawyer; and businessmen Craig Richard Clymore of California and Lawrence Clifton Mangum of New York City, who reportedly lives in Pakistani authorities from the plane at Damascus airport. The letter was released by the official Syrian news agency, SANA.

The hijackers, who have already killed one hostage—a Pakistani diplomat last Friday—are reported to have demanded the release of 55 prisoners. Pakistan is said to have agreed to free 21 and to be willing to negotiate on others.

Spain. A U. S. Embassy official in Islamabad, Pakistan, said "we have no idea how they (the hijackers) could have come up with the deduction that they're CIA agents."

In Washington, the White House refused to discuss the threatened executions.

The letter said the Americans would be shot if the three hijackers' demands were not met, and that the air pirates would not extend the 11 a.m. EST deadline for Pakistan to free political prisoners.

Commission Asserts Social Security Still Best System

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national commission concluded today that Social Security is still the best system to support elderly and disabled workers and it argued against any government move to force employers to provide private pensions.

The National Commission on Social Security issued its final report after a two-year study. Congress created and funded the nine-member citizens' panel to conduct the independent review of Social Security.

It came out against the private pension proposal advanced two weeks ago by the President's Commission on Pension Policy, which was appointed by former President Jimmy Carter. That panel recommended a new payroll tax of 3 percent on employers to set up a minimum universal pension system. It said too many workers now lack coverage or lose pension credits when they change jobs, eventually reaching old age with no income other than Social Security.

But the national commission said it "does not believe the federal government should require employers to provide pensions."

It said the workers who lack pension coverage generally are lower paid and their wages might drop even further if their employers were hit with a new payroll tax.

It said the employers who do not provide pensions "tend to be small businesses or less successful firms that are hard-pressed to meet their current obligations. The added financial and administrative burden of mandatory pensions would be more than some could bear and still remain in business."

The commission announced its major recommendations in January. It called for raising the eligibility age for full Social Security retirement benefits from 65 to 68 early in the next century, restraining cost-of-living hikes for beneficiaries when inflation climbs faster than workers' wages and paying for one-half of Medicare from general revenues. To do the latter, it recommended slapping a 2.5 percent surcharge on personal income taxes.

The commission, chaired by Milton Gwirtzman, a Newton, Mass., attorney, concluded, "The Social Security system is sound in principle and, of all alternatives, is the best structure of income support for the United States."

But four commission members added a warning to the report that if American productivity keeps declining, Social Security benefits will be jeopardized.

Democrats Plan To Hold Caucus

Democrats from Pitt County will caucus at their precinct polling places Thursday, Mar. 26, at 8 p.m., George Saleeby, chairman of the County Democratic Party announced today. Any registered Democrat is eligible to attend.

"These precinct meetings are grass roots democracy in action," Saleeby said. "Democrats all over North Carolina will gather to elect delegates to their county Democratic conventions and to discuss and pass resolutions on issues that concern them."

Saleeby stressed the party is seeking broad participation in its meetings at both precinct and county levels. "We urge all Democrats to attend these meetings and show their interest in good government," he said.

But the national commission said it "does not believe the federal government should require employers to provide pensions."

Hobby Trial

Set For June 8

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal prosecutor says state AFL-CIO President Wilbur Hobby is scheduled to go on trial June 8 in Raleigh on fraud and conspiracy charges in connection with misuse of federal job-training funds.

Hobby, 55, was indicted by a federal grand jury in Raleigh last month on four counts of fraudulently obtaining and misapplying $34,150 in federal funds under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act in 1979-80, and on two counts of conspiring to misapply funds.

At the embassy, Reagan promised to do "all in our power to help and protect you in your line of work," a reference to Americans who had been held hostage in Iran for more than a year.

At a news conference after Reagan departed, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and his Canadian counterpart, External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan, sought to gloss over the issue of U.S. arms aid to El Salvador, which Canada opposes. President Reagan's proposed cuts to the dairy subsidy program will not have a direct effect on Pitt County dairy farmers, according to Bill Phelps, director of Dairy Services for the N.C. Farm Bureau.

"These cuts will affect the entire state indirectly," he stated, "because the subsidy program itself is designed to put a floor underneath manufacturer's milk produced mainly in the Midwest." The term manufacturer's milk refers to milk that is processed for butter, cheese and powdered milk. Most of the milk produced in North Carolina, according to Phelps, ends up as fluid milk, ice cream and cottage cheese.

"The federal subsidy doesn't affect us directly," said Pitt County Dairyman Charles McLawhorn, "except in the class II payoff." Class II refers to items such as butter and cheese. "What will affect our income is the fact that the 61 cent per hundred pound price increase scheduled for April 1 has been dropped."

Eliminating this increase, says McLawhorn, will lower dairy producers' profits, because the increase is based on a formula based on cost of living, feed, labor and other expenses.

The National Milk Price Support Program, which Reagan has proposed cutbacks in, requires the secretary of agriculture to adjust the milk price semi-annually. The adjustment is based on 80 percent of parity, or a figure that represents the rate of inflation and the cost of production.

"The government does not buy any milk at the support price," explained Phelps. "It does not pay any subsidy or money to dairies." When a support price is set, continued Phelps, the amount of products that can be manufactured from 100 pounds of milk is tabulated. For example, 100 pounds of milk with an average butterfat weight will yield 4.2 pounds of butter, 8.2 pounds of dry milk powder and nine pounds of cheddar cheese.

"The government uses the support program to buy surplus butter, powdered milk and cheese from manufacturers when there is no market for it, to insure that the processors will pay the farmers something for it," noted the dairy director. "It is stored and then sold when there is a market, and that's where the trouble with the support program begins."

"What has happened in the past year and one-half is that there's been too much additional milk produced in the Midwest, which has lowered a burden on the government," continued Phelps. "Last year a drain of $1.3 billion was created because of surpluses and lower consumer purchases."

"I don't think it would matter who was president, an adjustment had to be made," he said. "This came as no surprise to dairymen." Congress is now writing the new farm bill that will include the milk price support at 75 percent of parity rather than 80 percent, but secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has been quoted as discussing a 70 percent of parity price level.

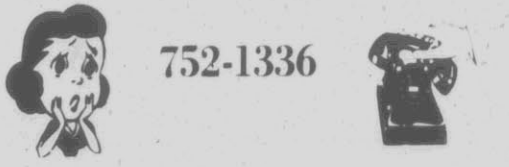

"Our biggest concern," concluded Phelps, "is the action in Washington to eliminate some of the nutrition programs such as the milk program in the schools."

"We think this is wrong because dairy farmers will have reduced consumption and of course we don't like it from the nutritional standpoint," noted the dairy director. "The milk program has been a proven program in the schools for 30 years and we feel it should continue."

I want the public to know that all the mothers of babies whose pictures were entered in the March of Dimes benefit Beautiful Baby Contest weekend before last did not feel offended like E. M., whose comments were used in the Hotline column last Wednesday. I do not feel that using the dog photo was distasteful and I think we should all be thankful that there are wonderful people like the Greenville Jaycettes who are willing to devote their time to help raise money for such a good cause as the March of Dimes. A. T.

Hotline also heard from the manager of the Docktor Pet Center at Carolina East Mall, saying that he apologizes to anyone he offended by entering the picture of the two schnauzer puppies in the contest. He felt it was a positive gesture when he did it, he said, and was gratified to see that some people did donate on behalf of the pups.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Ballard have asked Hotline to convey thank yous for everything their family, burned out of their home, received as a result of a Hotline appeal. "It was a great help and meant a lot," they wrote.

Puzzle Expert Has Rare Degree In Enigmatology

By JULES LOH
AP Social Correspondent
STAMFORD, Conn. (AP)

— Question: Who is and who is not an enigmatologist? Haven't a clue?

Will Shortz is. Everybody else is not. "That is correct," Will Shortz affirmed last weekend, chatting between rounds of the fourth annual American Crossword Puzzle Tournament, which he directs. "I am the only person of record in this country with a bachelor's degree in enigmatology."

Puzzle a moment over that word. There is nothing enigmatic about it. Enigmatology, clearly, is the study of enigmas. Puzzles. Will Shortz is a 14-letter word for a puzzle expert.

In all the land, across and down, there breathes no other.

"My degree is from Indiana University," he said. "I designed the course. I took it. So far, nobody else has. Why should they? I mean, how many jobs are waiting out there for an enigmatologist?"

You don't have to look in the back of the book for the answer: not many. Will Shortz, though, has managed nicely. Expertly.

He is 28, just four years out of law school, seven years out of enigmatology school, eight years out of economics school. But, wait, we are getting ahead of the game. Back up, to square one.

"When I was a kid growing up in Crawfordsville, Ind.," he said, "my mother limited us to one hour of television a day. Other kids watched television, I did puzzles. I did book after book of them."

"Soon I began constructing my own puzzles. It was fun. I sold my first puzzle to a magazine at age 13. When I was 15 I had a regular word-game feature in Dell's puzzle magazine."

"I used to joke that when I went to college I was going to major in puzzles. Nobody took me seriously, of course."

He was serious, all right. After three years he had completed all his requirements for an economics degree, but economics did not interest him. Puzzles did. All manner of puzzles: word puzzles, math puzzles, logic puzzles, you name it. He had constructed and worked them all.

"I also was interested in the history of puzzles. I prowled libraries. I dug up every scrap of information I could find. My own shelves now contain about 2,500 books and magazines. I believe I know as much about the history of puzzles as anyone alive."

As it happened, Indiana University had what was called an Individualized Majors Program. If the school didn't offer a major a student wanted, the student could design his own.

Will Shortz told his counselor he wanted to major in puzzles. She looked at him quizzically, but agreed.

"I got the chairman of the linguistics department to be my faculty adviser. He guided my research. I found a history professor to supervise my course in the history of puzzles. I found a philosophy professor for my course in logic puzzles, a math professor for math puzzles, and so on. I wrote papers on each subject."

"I did a thesis: 'The History of American Word Puzzles before 1850.' Then I found that old word, enigmatology."

Averette

Attends Meet

Al Averette, city finance officer, recently attended the annual conference of the North Carolina Finance Officers Association in Chapel Hill.

Topics discussed included indirect cost recovery for cities, legal liabilities, and providing services through contract from private agencies.

Leavy Brock, purchasing agent for the city, attended the annual Local Government Purchasing School in Chapel Hill and heard discussion regarding equipment leasing, disposal of surplus property, and cooperative purchasing.

and dusted it off. That's my course."

Will Shortz went on to law school — "lawyers are problem solvers, of a sort" — got his law degree, but decided that puzzles were his cup of pekee and took a job at Games magazine.

Now he is associate editor of the magazine, editor of another called The 4-Star Puzzler for hard-core puzzle addicts, and has written or edited a half dozen books of puzzles.

"I like puzzles," he said. "I like tricks, humor, freshness, novelty, ingenuity, all that puzzles encompass."

"Is it a worthwhile professional pursuit? I believe so. Puzzles are a form of escapism, yes, but they allow you to exercise your brain just for the sheer joy of it. Man is the only animal that can do that. So, isn't it worthwhile?" Enigmatologically speaking, sure.

Pale Lavender Is Popular Choice Now

One of this season's best colors, pale lavender, was on the fashion parade during yesterday's annual charity fashion show, sponsored by the Welcome Wagon Club. Among the styles in lavender was a raincoat, skirt and blouse ensemble, dress, skirt and jump suit. With summer just a step ahead, other colors viewed included pewter, kaki, plaids, white, kelly green, light blue, floral prints, pale yellow, raspberry, and color combinations of navy and green as well as royal, red and gray.

Popular materials included polyester, silk, raw silk, linen, denim and cotton blends. Among the newer looks this year are jump suits showing the bare shoulders, straight lined jackets with a longer length, softer pants, three-piece combinations in skirts, blouses and jackets as well as shorts, blouses with a matching jacket, sports and play clothes for the younger set and their mothers and swim suits (with some having the European cut).

Dee Schaff organized and narrated the show which followed a luncheon. Welcome Wagon President Barbara Savage welcomed members, guests and sponsors present.

Fashions were presented by White's, The Traffic Light, Virginia Crabtree and The Name Dropper.

Models included Melinda Stroupe, Eileen Mills, John Savage, Sara Lynn Thompson, Eve Avery, John Trolley, Elizabeth White, Virginia White, Shirley Stroupe.

June DeAndrea, Susan Powers, Kim Bronstein, Katherine Vinson, Ruth Gooding, Sylvia Loeco, Marcie Byrd, Lee Ann Martin, Wanda Johnsrude, Molly Emanuel, Sherri Cash and Cindy Mills.

The program for the April meeting will be on "Interior Decorating."

Members were reminded of the pig pickin' and square dance scheduled for April 4 at the Greenville Moose Lodge. For tickets, contact Ms. Schaff.

The next board meeting will be held at the home of Lynn Sprecher on March 25.

New members of the club are Fran Buch, Ruth Gooding, Marion Crouse, Barbara McBride and Paul Scholtens.

Interest groups of the organization include: hospital volunteers; ladies bridge; couples bridge; couples gourmet; ladies bowling; couples bowling; and Gad-a-Bouts.

Dear Abby

Weather Talk Will Break Ice

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: There is this interesting-looking gentleman I see on the train on my way to work every morning. I have a feeling that we share a mutual interest in each other, but I don't know how to break the ice. I keep waiting for him to say something to me, but what if he doesn't? I'm afraid this man will walk out of my life without my having met him, and I will have missed a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. Please advise me in your column, as I'm sure a lot of other people face this problem daily.

J.B. FROM BROOKLYN

DEAR J.B.: For openers, smile pleasantly, and say, "Good morning. Isn't it cold (or windy, or slippery, or beautiful) out?"

And if your interesting-looking fellow traveler has a mutual interest in you, he will take it from there. And if he doesn't — well, at least you tried.

DEAR ABBY: I am 32 years old, never been married, but I have been living with a 51-year-old man for four years. (I'll call him Frank.) Frank gave me an engagement ring and promised to marry me, but he finds one excuse after another to avoid it. He is married but has been legally separated from his wife for 15 years. Since he probably will never marry me, I want to make something of myself, so I started back to school to get my high school diploma. Frank hides the car keys so I can't get to school. He's even locked up my clothes and shoes so I can't go.

He is a college graduate himself and makes $55,000 a year. He's given me a wonderful home. I've never had to work, and he buys me whatever I want. But, Abby, I want a high school diploma so I can get a decent job and leave him. Living with a man is not what I want. I want a husband — which reminds me, he rations sex. It's Saturday night only, and I want more than that. What should I do?

TRAPPED

DEAR TRAPPED: The longer you stay with Frank, the more difficult it will be to break away. (You're almost a prisoner now.) Inquire about getting a high school diploma by mail. It's possible. And tell Frank frankly that it's marriage you want, and if he doesn't deliver, it's bye-bye.

...

DEAR ABBY: For the last two years I've been dating the sweetest girl in the world. We've talked of marriage, and I believe she's the kind of woman I want to be the mother of my children. I'm approaching 30 and have never been married. My problem is this: I still find myself very much attracted to other women — not emotionally, but physically.

I have had a variety of women in the last two years, and must admit that I still enjoy the adventure and excitement of the hunt.

Of all my married friends, not one has said he wouldn't cheat on his wife if the right opportunity presented itself. So should I marry this girl because I love her, or refrain from marrying her because I love her and don't want to tie her down to a possible philanderer?

LOVINGLY RELUCTANT

DEAR RELUCTANT: If you consider yourself a "possible philanderer," you're not ready to make a commitment to forsake all others. Give her a break and break it up.

Represents Good Start

President Reagan laid out his proposed $48.6 billion budget cuts Tuesday saying it was then "up to Congress" to take action.

The $695.3 billion budget, even with the cuts would still have a $45 billion deficit.

The budget will favor one thing, and that is national defense. The percent expended on defense would increase from 24 percent in 1981 to 27 percent in 1982.

Much of the reduced spending would come from social programs. Welfare spending could be reduced by $1 billion, there would be fewer public housing units, cut backs in education and a drop in food stamp funds.

The president sees the program as a way to "stop runaway inflation and revitalize our economy."

Some of the cuts are going to hurt without question, and we are yet to be assured that the president has actually gone after the "fat" in government, as he promised.

Still the reductions are not severe, given the huge leaps the federal budget has been taking in recent years. It is clear that the growth of government has to be halted. This is a start.

We Must Keep Friendship

President Reagan, despite an early visit, has gotten off to a poor start in improving relations with our neighbor, Canada.

Cancellation of a fishing rights agreement created immediate problems and the president was greeted by hecklers and demonstrators in Canada.

The United States and Canada have a long history of friendship, with a virtually unguarded border which is unprecedented in the world.

It is important that the two nations stand together in the years ahead. The friendship will be tested, but President Reagan should do everything possible to bring the two nations closer.

NOT BAD FOR HIS FIRST BIG SHOW!

To the editor:

So now we're faced with the possibility of the resurrection of the draft by the end of the year, sans any deferments or exemptions other than conscientious objector status, hardship cases, etc. I wonder how many other young adults my age are ready to be trained in the "art" of killing. Not many, I should think. Let's face it, America, war is inevitable. Time is the only factor. Already we are on the verge of involvement in El Salvador. The government is gearing up its war machinery, and we are careening out of control directly into what could be the final chapter in Earth's history.

Am I willing to fight? Personally, I cannot swear to obey any orders in a country that advocates the killing of people to reach a goal, regardless of what that goal is. Call me coward, unpatriotic. But just keep in mind that killing is wrong, period. I refuse to have any part in it. I was hardly able to walk during the Vietnam Era, and was only eight years old when the issue of Life came in the mail with pictures of mangled and bloody bodies plastered between the pages. I wasn't old enough to understand what that war was all about, but I could see what it was like. To this day, no one can tell me that war is a solution to any problem. How can murder be a solution to anything?

To all those who were old enough to understand what Vietnam was all about, are you ready for that same violence that swept across our country like wildfire? Are you ready for your sons and daughters to die in vain? Are you ready for East Carolina University to become another Kent State? Because, believe me, that will happen. The wound of Vietnam is still fresh, and another war now would be like salt in that wound.

Human life — any life — is sacrosanct. No one has the right to take liberties with another's most prized possession. And I will do everything I can to not be a part of that "justifiable massacre" we so easily refer to as war. Eugene V. Debs once said, "I would no more teach children military training than I would teach them arson, robbery or assassination." I wholeheartedly agree with him, and I'm sure there are millions of others like me who do, too.

50-50 Idea Cools

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There, for a short while, it looked like equitable distribution of marital property when a couple splits was a popular notion.

That was before the lawyers started picking to shreds the proposal put forward by State Senator Helen Rhyme Marvin and a host of colleagues.

suddenly dawned on a lot of men that the single proprietor, closely held corporation, or partnership businesses which they had built through the years would, under the new law, become one-half the property of the wives upon divorce opens the door for litigation, it's these bills."

Present law says when a husband and wife divorce and there is no agreement on property division, each person keeps that which is in his or her name. Frequently, the home, business, and real estate is in the husband's name alone, and the law will not give the wife title to any of that property.

Legislators now are searching for a fair way to determine if one or the other party in a divorce has done something to deserve more or less of the property, and how to set up a law to that end. Another problem now cropping up is: if property is evenly split, shouldn't the debts be split, too?

BILL NOBLITT

General public reaction was Yes, when a married couple divorce, the property ought to be evenly divided. The Senate was on the verge of passing the measure.

Suddenly, with the Equal Rights Amendment obviously dead, some of the same people who had stood so strongly against that step turned their attention to property rights.

State Senator Jim McDuffie of Charlotte got a thorough briefing on the proposal from Charlotte Attorney Allen A. Bailey, a statewide leader among Baptist laymen, and a political activist. Opposition began to spread, and staunch conservatives within the General Assembly and Fundamentalist Christians across the state began to see things wrong with the Marvin proposal.

No Fault

First of all, there was "no fault." The split would be made down the middle even if one or the other spouse was a wastrel, good-for-nothing, drunk, or was playing around. That didn't set well with those who felt a hard working party in the marriage would wind up giving half of his or her gains to a partner who didn't share in creating the wealth.

Then there was the matter of allowing a district court judge to determine what was an equitable split if, as it began to appear, a 50-50 division was not acceptable. The prevailing sentiment became that few would trust the courts to handle the matter fairly for all.

But perhaps most of all it and the little lady would suddenly be able to hire and fire and set salaries and tell them how to run the business. That pretty well wrote the end of equitable marital property distribution until a lot of careful study and rewriting takes place.

Bailey, in his exhaustive review of the subject, took strong exception to the 50-50 split because he feels that most marriages end "because someone isn't doing their share or trying to make the marriage work. Would you want a drunk, no-good, unemployed spouse to take off with half of everything you have worked all your life for?"

Lawsuits

The bills, Bailey concluded, create atrocious problems, and if enacted into law, "I'll rent another floor in this law building, fill it with lawyers doing nothing but domestic work, and make $3 million in the next five years. If I have ever in my life seen legislation that

THE INSIDE REPORT

Real Loser In Struggle

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The clear loser so far in the backstage power struggle over national security policy waged over the past month is not Secretary of State Alexander Haig or presidential assistant Richard V. Allen. It is Ronald Reagan himself.

In seeking to avoid conflict, President Reagan unwittingly has reaped confusion. How much confusion was reflected at a National Security Council (NSC) staff meeting when the new Soviet expert, Dr. Richard Pipes (formerly of Harvard), asked NSC staff director Allen: "What I want to know is, what am I supposed to be doing here?"

Amidst the confusion of more than 30 interagency committees dealing with national security that are chaired by the State Department, the president still has no plan for crisis management. The conscious downgrading of Allen to avoid the NSC-State Department hostility of the past and make Haig the self-styled "vicar" of foreign policy has left the president's interests unprotected and vulnerable.

The extent to which this has happened became clear in an NSC staff meeting when Allen was urged by his assistants to obtain "rough draft" cables, written in the State and Defense Departments, before they are dispatched to diplomatic posts abroad. Allen's reply stunned his staffers. Reading cable traffic was often boring and time-consuming, he replied.

In fact, Allen knows all too well that cable traffic is the lifeblood of policy. Under any of his predecessors, no cable of significance was allowed to leave the U.S. without first being cleared by NSC staffers.

Allen's problem is not ignorance but weakness. Haig, backed by the Reagan dictum of State Department precedence in policy-making, decided on his own not to clear his cables with Allen. Reagan and presidential counselor Edwin Meese, Allen's boss, almost certainly would support Haig in any showdown over cables. To challenge Haig on cables, Allen fears, would invite defeat.

Allen's separation from cable traffic is a symptom of the threat to President Reagan in a national security staff system forced to cede its true function: protecting the interests of the president. Far worse, despite weeks of backbiting over Haig's control of day-to-day NSC staff work, the question of "crisis" management has still not been decided. That is shown by the fact Vice President George Bush has now become a possible candidate for that important role.

"Crisis" management is quick handling of unexpected trouble such as the Mayaguez affair during the Ford administration. Under every previous NSC arrangement, Allen would supervise the U.S. response, pulling together conflicting strategies of the departments, as Henry Kissinger and Zbigniew Brzezinski did in their day.

But Allen has been downgraded so far by Reagan's dictum that, as one national security specialist told us, it would be "unnatural" for him suddenly to seize the helm in a crisis. Since Haig is perceived as having a parochial interest to protect — his own department — Meese is known to be considering Bush as a compromise.

But Bush would be most improbable as a crisis manager, despite sometime experience in intelligence (CIA director) and diplomacy (ambassador to the U.N. and China). He lacks authority over the departments, is not a full partner in the NSC committee system and is charged (Continued on Page 5)

Other Editors Say Attrition A Snail

(Gastonia Gazette)

North Carolina's Speaker of the House, Liston Ramsey, must have been asleep when the voice of the people boomed across the land last November.

In a recent interview Ramsey said that the state should be able to avoid layoffs of state workers whose jobs will be eliminated by the loss of federal aid.

He went on to say that he is confident that there is enough turnover in state jobs to ensure that people now holding state government positions that are paid for with federal grants can find other jobs within state government.

The answer," he said, "is to reduce the number of state employees by attrition."

Attrition is a nice-sounding word, and it works sometimes. It is the kind of word that comes in handy when a politician is groping for a reason not to do something at that time and is hoping that it all will blow away in the months ahead.

Maybe the voters can wait for attrition to handle the federally paid people now working for the state, but we'd like to know more about how many they are and how much they are being paid. We rather doubt that there are many people on the state payroll who are leaving these days. It always has seemed to us that there is more shuffling around from one bureaucratic job to the other inside government than there are people moving into the private sector.

But, say that the Speaker is more right than wrong (and we have serious reservations about that). What seems to be more distressing is that it still is business-as-usual among some of the state's highest leaders, and that flies in the face of what the voters said in the last election. They don't want business as usual. They said that they want government to reduce spending. They want the governmental monkey off their backs. They want to see inflation brought under control, and they believe it can be done best by government acting responsibly.

State officials as yet have not targeted which positions are threatened by Reagan's proposals for cutting federal aid. But it is estimated that the cuts will mean a loss of some $204 million a year in federal aid now received by North Carolina. Between 700 and 1,000 jobs could be affected.

It is doubtful if that many jobs can be maintained while the attrition process is at work.

GOOD AND BAD CONSCIENCES

Let your conscience be your guide.

Good advice? That depends on what kind of conscience you have. The Bible speaks of a good conscience before God and of an evil conscience. People of evil conscience are certain that the evil things they choose to do are right. The communist has a conscience — an evil one, but a conscience nonetheless. He believes that the abolition of private property, and labor camps, and murder, and lying — all these things are thoroughly justified considering the end in view — the classless society. This is an example of an evil conscience.

The word "conscience" means "with knowledge." If your knowledge of right and wrong has come about through sinful experience, then your conscience is the worst of all possible guides. Right and wrong are based on moral principles, and the most authoritative commentary on them is contained in the Bible, the Word of God.

Borrowing From The Workers

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Confronted with interest rates that sometimes exceed 20 percent, small businesses throughout the country are considering or actively financing their operations by borrowing from employees.

The extent of the borrowings aren't known, because the loans generally are neither regulated nor publicly recorded, but inquiries of those who have borrowed indicates the interest is widespread and enthusiastic.

"I've heard from companies all over the country," said Alfred Knief, president of Lincoln Contractors Supply, Inc. of Milwaukee, who raised more than $100,000 in one week to finance seasonal inventories.

The benefits flow both ways. By offering 12 percent or so, companies cut their interest costs far below the typical prime rate-and-two points offered to small businesses. Simultaneously, they afford workers a chance to earn far more than the 5.25 percent passbook interest rate.

"So long as the differential (between passbook savings and what an individual can obtain by lending to a company) stays large or gets larger this market will grow," says Professor William Dunkelberg, associate director of Purdue University's Credit Research Center.

Those inclined to lend to their employers, he says, are those who may not understand or may not trust money market mutual funds, some of which now yield 15 percent or more. They prefer the personal touch and the sense of security that comes from dealing with people they know.

Nevertheless, some dangers exist, especially for the unsophisticated lender who may not understand a company's ability to repay.

Says Dunkelberg: "The way problems will come up are (1) if a company fails, and (2) if someone says he has been coerced into giving a loan or was denied a raise because he wouldn't lend." Banks, Dunkelberg feels, also may complain if the practice drains their funds.

Meanwhile, the enthusiasm is apparently contagious among workers and employers. "It has increased esprit de corps and cost-consciousness," said Knief. "And customers often compliment the salesmen. 'It's a boost for the image of our company," he said.

Lincoln Contractors was founded 25 years ago but its greatest growth has been in the past few years. Revenues in 1979 totaled $3.5 million, more than double those of four years earlier. New lines of equipment have been added, and a new branch, the fourth, is being opened.

"We're vastly undercapitalized — under $200,000," said Knief, "so we depended on banks to finance inventory." Not now. Seventeen loans from employees and relatives, payable on three days demand, now take care of that. "We all eat out of the same cash register," he says.

Robert Loughlin and Lynn Wallace, chairman and president respectively of Western Food Equipment Co., Portland, Ore., have been borrowing from employees for at least 20 years. "We average 4 points under prime," said Wallace, while employees earn an average of about 15 percent.

He said the company has $300,000 outstanding, and would like to bring the total to $600,000, replacing its entire line of credit at banks.

Loughlin and Wallace, whose annual revenues total $8.5 million, have taken the practice a bit further, inviting relatives and friends to lend to them. In fact, they have helped change the law to make it easy.

Before the change, small companies might have had to spend as much as $8,000 to make a public offering. Now, with cooperation from the state securities commissioner, Frank Healy, they may solicit up to 35 lenders without a license. All they need do is register their plans.

Loughlin and Wallace, like Knief, feel such innovations are not only a characteristic but a requirement of small business. They want to spread the word, and they are doing it through letters, phone calls and more.

After the Milwaukee Journal described his experiment, Knief wrote the National Federation of Independent Business "my phone has been literally ringing itself off the hook. The last 48 hours have been the most interesting period in my life."

Loughlin and Wallace have been active in another way, in helping to found a small-business bank in Portland. "It's up to small business to look after itself," said Wallace. "For sure, the big banks aren't."

To the editor:

After reviewing the proposed budget of the Pitt County School Board for the coming year, I ask that there be further consideration in the area of capital outlay.

Since the Chicod Elementary School cafeteria burned 5 years ago, the situation has been most unpleasant. Two classrooms were converted temporarily to house a cafeteria and the students were shifted to an old agriculture shop. The request was made for a new cafeteria, and I understand that request has been reiterated for the past six years. Promises were made, but repeatedly the school has been denied an adequate eating facility, as well as adequate classroom space.

As will happen in ignored situations, the temporary classroom space, as well as being inadequate structurally, now houses 76 students, with no bathroom, but with a noisy adjoining bathroom. The cafeteria continues to be what it was in the beginning, temporary in size and ability to meet the needs of staff and students.

As the proposed 1981-82 budget is reviewed by the school board, my request is that there be renewed consideration of, and support for, the immediate construction of a cafeteria at Chicod. Inspection of the existing structures by interested school board members will be welcome.

Tax Bill Is Approved By Legislative Subcommittee

By W.A. WERONKA JR.
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A legislative subcommittee tentatively approved a tax bill Wednesday after a delegation of South Carolina legislators told the North Carolina lawmakers it was time that something was done to make the tax burden on non-residents more equitable.

The bill would provide South Carolina residents working north of the border the same tax benefits as North Carolina residents.

Rep. Herbert Kirsch, D-Clover, S.C., pointed out that North Carolina was only one of two states that do not allow non-residents the same deductions as residents. Kirsch also said that South Carolina had allowed North Carolinians working south of the border to claim its tax deductions, but had changed that in 1979 so it would not be allowed until North Carolina made a change.

"The taxing policy of North Carolina has put many citizens of South Carolina in an extremely difficult position ... Because their personal deductions are fewer, non-residents paying income taxes to North Carolina pay an estimated 25 percent greater tax than resident North Carolina taxpayers.

"We feel that the time has come for North Carolina to accord those non-resident taxpayers, who work in North Carolina and earn their income there, fair and equal tax treatment."

Kirsch added that the taxing situation in both states affects 70,000 people, 50,000 in South Carolina and 20,000 in North Carolina.

If the bill passes, officials of the state Revenue Department told the subcommittee that it would cost the North Carolina about $1.1 million in fiscal year 1981-82.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Kinston, who chaired the subcommittee, now goes to the full Finance Committee for further consideration.

In other legislative action:

Property Tax

Leaders of a local property tax revolt told a legislative committee that some North Carolinians are being forced to sell their land to pay local property tax bills.

The taxpayers appeared before the Senate Finance Committee to urge passage of a Republican-backed bill that would reduce property taxes by almost a third.

The panel referred the measure to a subcommittee. Sen. Cary Allred, R-Burlington, introduced the measure, which would reduce the maximum property tax rate from $1.50 per $100 property valuation to 50-cents per $100 valuation. Local voters could approve higher rates.

Insurance

The House and Senate Insurance committees discussed the effect of a recent state Supreme Court decision on automobile insurance laws and the N.C. Reinsurance Facility. But the panels took no action.

The Supreme Court last week reversed a state Court of Appeals decision, ruling that the facilities recoupment surcharges are not rates and not subject to review by the state Insurance Commissioner. The court also admonished the Legislature to clear up the language in current insurance laws so the court could avoid dealing with the issues.

TB Tests

With House approval, a bill to require all positive tuberculosis tests to be reported to the Department of Human Resources became law.

Constitution

The House Constitutional Amendments Committee referred to subcommittee a proposal that would require each legislator to be elected from a single district, ending the current practice of several at-large legislators elected from one district.

The proposed state constitutional amendment would reduce the number of House members from 120 to 100, and would not take effect until 1991.

New Bills

A bill was filed in the House that would transfer the Butner Public Safety Department from the Department of Human Resources to the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

Another bill, sponsored by Rep. Ruh Cook, D-Raleigh, would provide that interpreters be available for deaf persons in certain judicial, legislative and administrative proceedings.

Rep. Betsy Cochran, R-Advance, filed a bill requiring tighter security for prisoners doing road work. Her bill would require that the Correction Department post signs indicating a prison road crew is working in an area, notify local law enforcement officials of the presence of the prisoners, and provide portable toilets for the inmates.

Other bills filed would allow married women to set up a separate domicile for the purpose of voting and increase courtroom fees.

Abortion

The joint base budget subcommittee on Human Resources brought the state funding of abortion for this first time this session, and decided to let the full Appropriations Committee deal with the issue.

The state allocates $1 million a year for abortion.

Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Kings Mountain, brought up the issue to the subcommittee because he said he had a deep interest in it and wanted to make sure it was considered. But he added in a conversation with Sen. Bob Jordan, D-Mount Gilead, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, they decided it should be brought up in the full committee.

Sen. Russell Walker, D-Asheboro, said he felt sure the full committee would bring the issue up, even if the subcommittee took no action.

Not Much Help In Missing Children

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Missing-child reports, such as that involving the disappearance of 5-year-old Neely Smith three weeks ago, routinely can be relayed to the nationwide Police Information Network. But, other than that, "there's really little ... that could be done," the FBI says.

Robert Pence, FBI agent-in-charge for North Carolina, says the frustration being voiced by Neely's mother, Kimberly Griffin, is not uncommon. Thousands of children disappear annually in the United States, he said.

Most of them are run-aways, but included among them is a group of children 10 years old or younger who vanish inexplicably. Unlike the abduction-murder of 20 black children in Atlanta, no bodies are found.

Neely Smith disappeared while returning home from a nearby neighbor's apartment. Her description was put out on PIN, but only one response — which was negative — has come in.

Her mother has placed more than 100 telephone calls to national television networks, police, the FBI, Gov. Jim Hunt's office and even to the Charlotte-based PTL Club.

Mrs. Griffin, 23, has written newspaper editors and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. So far, the response has been the same in all cases: there's nothing more that can be done.

FBI agent Roy Hazelwood of Washington, a specialist in child disappearance cases, said Wednesday there is no central agency to record missing-child reports.

"We're not aware of all the (missing) children who are out and about, and that's unfortunate," Hazelwood said.

with numerous political chores for the president incompatible with national security. The continuing inability of the White House staff to resolve this question is a time bomb for Ronald Reagan compounded by his own inexperience with national security.

At one Reagan meeting with a visiting foreign leader, Allen barely gained a seat at the table. By such downgrading of his national security assistant, Reagan has insensibly downgraded a system of self-protection 30 years in the making. This is the real source of trouble, not Allen's well-publicized opposition to Haig's selection of ex-Kissinger deputy Lawrence Eagleburger as an assistant secretary of state.

For the time being, Reagan must hope that no sudden crisis arises. But insiders predict that when the president realizes the consequences of what he has done, he will rehabilitate the NSC system. That means granting Allen the authority he needs to coordinate national security for Reagan while leaving Haig as the nation's chief diplomat.

Legislative Plans Eyed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — While legislators grapple with reapportionment, one veteran representative is pushing a constitutional amendment that would change the entire face of the General Assembly 10 years from now.

Rep. Chris Barker, D-New Bern, is sponsoring a constitutional change that would drastically change the way state legislators are elected beginning in 1991, and would even change the number of members of the state House.

Barker's proposal would require that distinct districts be drawn for all legislators, for the Senate and House. Each legislator would be alone in representing a single House or Senate district, and there would be 100 members of the House rather than the 120 now. Each Senate district would be composed of two House districts.

Some legislators now represent districts in which they are the only House or Senate member. But many others represent districts that have two or more representatives or senators who are elected at-large from that district.

"The longer I stay in the General Assembly, the longer I think such a bill is going to be necessary," Barker said in a hearing on the bill Wednesday before the House Constitutional Amendments Committee.

"We have too many people on the ballot. We have too many people in the Legislature," he added. "When people in my district talk to me, they feel like they're only talking to one-third of a legislator. They have to convince the other two from the district to reach a consensus."

Proposals for single-member districts have been raised in the past. But state constitutional requirements that counties not be divided by legislative districts prevent the use of single-member districts in many areas.

Even in some rural districts, the lines have been drawn so that several legislators represent one large area. The 1st Senate District, for example, has 14 counties and two senators.

"I think you get different representation with single-member districts," said Rep. Doug Clark. D-Kenansville, a cosponsor of the bill and chairman of the House Election Laws Committee. He represents a single-county, single-member district.

"When you run one-on-one, candidates are more likely to bring up issues. The elections are more issue-oriented," he added.

Under Barker's proposal, one large city might have a number of legislative districts. They could be drawn along the lines of townships, precincts or even streets.

Barker's proposal isn't given a strong chance of gaining the three-fifths approval needed in both chambers for a constitutional amendment. If it does, it still must go before the people in a referendum.

His proposal has built in some opposition, because it would reduce by 20 members the size of the House. Legislators aren't likely to be quick to vote to reduce their chances of winning election, he acknowledges.

To try to counter that, Barker has written his proposed amendment so that even if approved this year, it would not take effect until 1991.

He also gained some bipartisan support. "This has a lot of merit," said Rep. Bill Hiatt, R-Mount Airy.

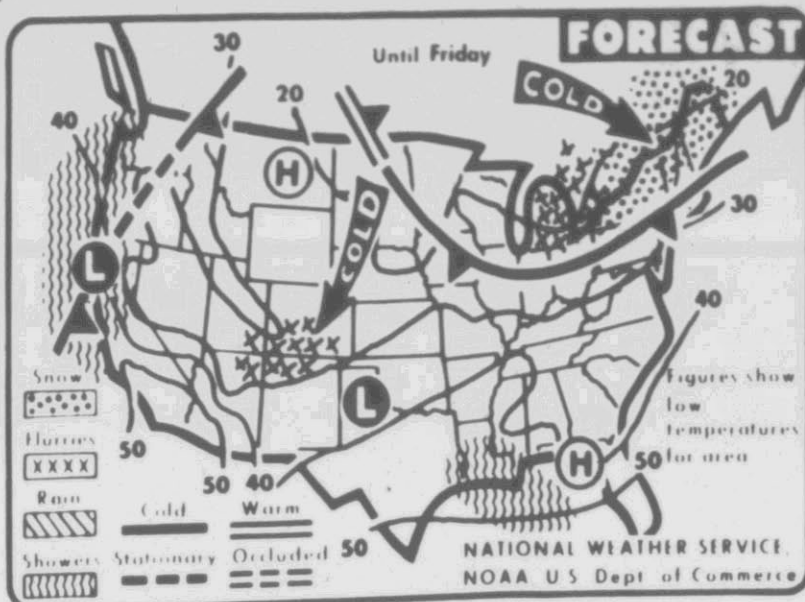

Schools Hold Solo Day

Pitt County Schools sponsored their annual county-wide junior high solo day at Chicod School last week. The competition involved students from across the county performing solo selections.

The winners were: boys, first place, Michael Cannon, Grifton; second place, Michael Clark, A.C. Cox; girls, first place, Monica Wilkes, Farmville Middle; second place, Martha Allen, Bethel; unchanged, first place, Troy Barnes, Farmville Middle; second place, Darwin Barnes, Farmville Middle.

"This was the best quality competition we have ever had," said Meriam Harris, cultural arts supervisor for Pitt County schools. "The competition ran smoothly

War-Torn Country

El Salvador is one of the poorest, most over-crowded countries in this hemisphere. About 13,000 people have been killed in a civil war there during the past year. For many years, a small group of landowners controlled the country's wealth, while most citizens remained poor and illiterate. "Left-wing" groups are fighting to overthrow the military government, because it has not lived up to promises of early free elections and reforms that would give large amounts of land and wealth to the poor. Ultra-conservative groups, backed by the wealthy minority, oppose any changes. These "right-wing" groups are fighting the government and the "left" to keep what they have.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the leader of El Salvador's military government?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Richard Nixon was the last U.S. President to travel to Ottawa for official meetings.

'Preservation
Week' Is Proclaimed

Mayor Don McGlohon proclaimed the observance of April 4-11 as "Preservation Week" in Greenville "to emphasize the importance of developing an awareness of and conserving the city's historical, architectural, and cultural heritage."

McGlohon said, "There exists within the city many fine examples of the community's historical, architectural, and cultural heritage." He added that "it is important to identify and preserve the city's heritage."

The mayor mentioned that "it is equally important that the citizens of Greenville be fully aware of their community's heritage."

He said the Greenville Area Preservation Association and other local organizations have assumed a leadership role in developing the community's awareness of its heritage.

Billy's Home
Threatened

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — The roof over Billy Carter's head isn't secure yet.

Officials of a savings and loan association here say they plan to foreclose on Carter's Marion County home if arrangements for payment of the mortgage are not made within 30 days.

Dexter Followill, president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Columbus, said Wednesday a legal advertisement on the intended foreclosure was to run today in a local newspaper.

Carter, brother of former president Jimmy Carter, assumed payments on a $100,000 mortgage held by the savings and loan association when he purchased the 7,700-square-foot home. Followill declined to give details of the mortgage or the foreclosure plans.

The Internal Revenue Service had threatened earlier this year to sell Carter's house at public auction to pay off a $105,000 tax debt. The sale was called off when Carter made a partial payment of the debt and agreed to pay the balance within 90 days.

Iran Official Vows Revenge

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The No. 2 man in Iran's Moslem religious hierarchy today vowed revenge for escalated Iraqi missile attacks on Iranian border cities and promised a spring offensive to drive Iraqi forces from all occupied Iranian territory.

Tehran Radio said Ayatollah Hussein Montazeri made the vow in telegrams to local government and religious leaders in Ahvaz and Dezful, the two Iranian cities hit by volleys of Iraq's Soviet-made Frog-7 missiles during four of the past five days.

The latest missile attacks at midnight Wednesday killed 26 Iranians and injured 32 in the two cities in Iran's southwestern oil province of Khuzistan, Tehran Radio said.

Montazeri, the heir apparent to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, blamed the United States for the attacks although the missiles were made in the Soviet Union and fired from Iraqi territory.

"These attacks came after Iran's rejection of the peace that the United States wants to impose on us," he was quoted as saying. "Therefore, this shelling is part of the plot hatched against us by the United States and its agents."

Since the Iran-Iraq war broke out on Sept. 22, the Khomeini regime has repeatedly accused Iraqi President Saddam Hussein of being a U.S. ally despite the 14-year-old break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Iraq, which has close ties with the Soviet Union.

According to Tehran Radio, Montazeri said the recent peace effort by Islamic nations was aimed at saving Hussein's regime from collapse. "But we have faith that these intrigues will fail and current preparations for a counter-offensive against the aggressor will lead to victory," Montazeri was quoted as saying.

Recent reports from Tehran have been referring to an offensive in the spring, when the snow melts in the western foothills of the Zagros mountains and the muddy marshes dry up in rain-drenched Khuzistan, the two major theaters of the 25-week-old war.

Neither Iran nor Iraq accepted the truce proposals offered last week by a nine-man delegation representing the 42-nation Islamic Conference.

Find Place For Toxic Sludge

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Toxic sludge dredged from the Hudson River may be stored temporarily in a park just across the river from the Statue of Liberty, U.S. District Judge Herbert Stern has ruled.

Stern on Wednesday rejected a request from Howard Singer, a biology professor at Jersey City State College, for a temporary restraining order blocking the $1.3 million dredging project.

Deputy Attorney General Rebecca Fields, representing the state Department of Environmental Protection, said the Army Corps of Engineers will start dredging the river Friday to prepare for construction of a seawall. More than 100,000 cubic yards of sludge will dry at the site for up to two years before disposal, she said.

Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The multibillion-dollar coffee industry says its studies show no link between coffee and cancer, but a Harvard study indicates that people who drink a cup or two a day are nearly twice as likely as non-drinkers to get cancer of the pancreas.

Cancer of the pancreas is the fourth most common fatal malignancy in the United States.

The Harvard researchers cautioned that although they found a strong link between coffee drinking and the cancer, there was no proof coffee caused the disease. They stopped short of advising people not to drink it.

The researchers found no association between tea drinking and pancreatic cancer, suggesting that caffeine — the stimulant in coffee, tea and some colas — was not a factor.

The pancreas, a gland located behind the stomach, produces digestive juices and contains cells that make insulin. Because cancer in the pancreas is often advanced by the time it is spotted, the chances of survival often are poor.

About 20,000 Americans die of the disease each year, and the American Cancer Society says that less than 10 percent of the victims survive for five years.

The Harvard researchers found that people who drink up to two cups of coffee daily have 1.8 times the risk of pancreatic cancer as non-drinkers. Those who drink three cups or more face a risk 2.7 times greater than non-drinkers.

The coffee association estimates that the average American over age 10 drinks two cups of coffee a day.

Dr. Brian MacMahon, the study's director and head of the epidemiology department at the Harvard School of Public Health, said researchers felt that if people were concerned about a possible link between coffee and pancreatic cancer, "they should know there is at least a suspicion of this."

"But I don't think it's time to put on the missionary role yet," he said.

The study was published in today's edition of the New England Journal of Medicine.

"The National Coffee Association has sponsored numerous research projects on possible adverse effects of coffee in humans and none have been established to date," said David Kuhnert, a spokesman for the trade organization.

MacMahon said, "The association with coffee should be confirmed in other studies before too much effort is put into identifying a specific causative agent or ingredients."

In addition, the researchers wrote that the association "should be evaluated with other data. If it reflects a causal relation between coffee drinking and pancreatic cancer, coffee use might account for a substantial portion of the cases of this disease in the United States.

"If the distribution of coffee consumption in our control group reflects that in the general population ... we estimate the proportion of pancreatic cancer that is potentially attributable to coffee consumption to be slightly more than 50 percent."

The doctors based their findings on interviews with patients at 11 large hospitals in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Data about the smoking and drinking habits of 369 people with pancreatic cancer was compared with information from 644 patients with other diseases.

"A strong association between coffee consumption and pancreatic cancer was evident in both sexes," they reported.

The researchers had set out to see if there was a link between this form of cancer and cigarette or alcohol use. They said they were surprised by the association with coffee.

Like earlier studies, this one did find a weak association between cigarette smoking and cancer of the pancreas. But smokers also often drink coffee, and when coffee drinking was taken into consideration, the smoking link was not significant statistically. The researchers found no link between alcohol use and pancreatic cancer.

Minority Recruiting Rejection By Govm't Said Basis For Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's failure to explain its rejection of a 1978 minority recruiting plan led to current efforts by the Department of Education to cut off federal funding to the University of North Carolina, a UNC official testified Wednesday.

Jeffrey Orleans, an attorney and a special assistant to the 16-campus university's president, said UNC had agreed to upgrade its desegregation plan in May 1978. The revised plan would include proposals for recruiting black administrators and faculty members, he said.

The plan was submitted to the government in August 1978, Orleans said, but was rejected in January 1979 without explanation.

Nearly $100 million a year in federal funding is involved in the longstanding dispute between UNC and the department's Office of Civil Rights, which has accused the university of maintaining the vestiges of a segregated system.

Orleans testified Wednesday at an administrative law hearing to determine whether DOE's arguments for a cutoff of funding will be allowed. The government presented its side of the case last fall, and UNC began presenting its case in February.

Orleans said the plan did not, in all cases, call for annual quotas for individual institutions as the government had claimed in testimony during the hearing. Instead of annual quotas, Orleans said certain areas projected five-year goals with annual adjustments.

He defended that approach, explaining that progress depended on such factors as availability of blacks and frequency of job openings.

"Assuming that even if all the institutions tried equally as hard" to recruit annually, not all would be equally successful, he said.

Government counsel Jeffrey Champagne agreed later that both sides had interpreted the negotiations differently.

Orleans said the plan is now being followed and is a success. Champagne said that although he has not reviewed recent minority hiring statistics, he thought the university was doing better in hiring and recruiting minorities.

Motorcycle Rodeo Planned

A county-wide Motorcycle Rodeo will be held April 11 (rain date is April 25) at the Jaycee Park on Cedar Lane, Greenville, beginning at 9 a.m.

This day-long event is for all boys and girls 9-19 years of age and is dedicated to the deceased David Dixon of the Clarks' Neck 4-H Club. Interested adults can also participate and the cost is $2 per person.

The rodeo will feature a series of skilled events performed at low speeds to demonstrate motorcycle riding ability. Competition will involve a series of five events consisting of two separate age divisions (junior and senior) with first, second and third place trophies for overall winners.

There will be a winners ribbon and various prizes awarded for each event in each age division. Adults may participate in the skills course but not in competition. Concessions will be available.

The Motorcycle Rodeo is sponsored by the Pitt County 4-H Clubs with the cooperation of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department; Greenville City Police, juvenile division; N.C. Highway Patrol; ECU Driver and Traffic Safety Education Department; Pitt County Board of Education; Greenville City Schools; Honda of Greenville; Yamaha of Pitt County; the Brotherhood Motorcycle Club; Frog Level Motorcycle Club and the Unaffiliated Free Riders.

Pre-registration for the rodeo is required by April 1. Interested persons should call the 4-H office at 752-2934 or 758-1196 to pre-register. Information and instructions will be mailed to participants upon registration.

Club Makes Donation To March

Clemency For Cash Is Admitted In Tennessee

By DEAN FOSDICK
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two aides to former Gov. Ray Blanton face sentences of up to five years in prison after pleading guilty to conspiring to sell paroles and clemencies.

T. Edward Sisk, Blanton's legal counsel from 1974 to 1978, and Charles Frederick Taylor, a former Highway Patrol lieutenant once assigned to Blanton's security staff, pleaded guilty Wednesday and agreed to testify against a co-defendant.

In exchange, prosecutors dropped a racketeering charge against the two men, who were indicted March 15, 1979. Their first trial ended in a mistrial.

U.S. District Judge James P. Churchill scheduled jury selection for March 26 in the case of Charles Benson, a former extradition officer in Blanton's administration.

Blanton was Tennessee's governor from January 1975 until he was ousted three days early on Jan. 17, 1979, after pardoning three people and granting executive clemency to 49 inmates.

"I am shocked and disappointed, and I feel sorry for those families that are involved," said Blanton.

He is not charged in the case but goes to trial April 20 on a charge of conspiring to sell state liquor licenses.

Chattanooga nightclub operator William Aubrey Thompson, who is serving a two-year prison sentence on an unrelated income tax conviction, pleaded guilty Feb. 6 to a racketeering charge and has agreed to testify. He was sentenced to four months in prison on the racketeering charge.

Prosecutors agreed with a defense request Wednesday that Sisk and Taylor be sentenced for less than five years to a minimum security prison, preferably at Maxwell Air Force Base near Montgomery, Ala.

Churchill said he would not sentence Sisk and Taylor while Benson is being tried and ordered pre-sentencing reports for the pair.

The pleas came as the second trial for the defendants entered its second day. The first trial ended in a mistrial in September 1979 after U.S. District Judge Charles Neese suffered a heart attack. The 6th U.S.

Circuit Court of Appeals ruled the defendants could be retried and the U.S. Supreme Court last January declined to review the case.

Sisk told Churchill on Wednesday that he accepted $10,000 in loans from Thompson to use his influence in arranging the release of two inmates.

Taylor, his arms folded across his blue denim suit, said he met with Arthur Wayne Baldwin — the government's informant in the case — and on Sept. 13, 1978, was given $10,000 to secure the release of some prisoners. He said he shared the money with Sisk.

FBI agents said Sisk and Benson were carrying marked bills when they were arrested Dec. 15, 1978.

HOSE PRACTICE

Pitt Community College is sponsoring a 12-hour hose practices class beginning March 17, 1981 at the Stokes Volunteer Fire Department. Classes will meet from 7-10 p.m. on March 17, 18, 23, and 24.

Workshop Planned On Courses

At 9 a.m. on Thursday, March 19, in Mendenhall Student Center, one-day workshop will be held to explore opportunities for taking college-level courses for advanced college credit.

The workshop is under the auspices of the Atlanta-based Southern Regional Office of the College Board.

Charles B. Bedford, associate director of the Atlanta office, and a team of education consultants will describe the Board's Advanced Placement Program to high school teachers and administrators as well as to college faculty and staff involved in curriculum and placement.

In North Carolina, high school students in 1980 achieved 12,822 credit hours of college work, saving themselves an estimated $2,099,766 in college course fees.

Advanced Placement study areas include English, French, German, Spanish, American and European history, biology, chemistry, physics, calculus, art and music.

Two Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $1,900 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8:35 a.m. collision on 14th Street, 30 feet south of the Greenville Boulevard intersection involving cars driven by Patricia Ann Wilkerson of Route 9, Greenville and Charles H. Evans of 67 Azalea Gardens.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $900 to the Wilkerson car and $700 to the Evans auto.

A truck operated by Chester Lee Keyes of Route 5, Greenville, and a car driven by Heins Guenther Harshberger of 1600 Willow St. collided about 3:45 p.m. at the intersection of Pitt and Fifth Streets, causing $300 damage to the car. No damage resulted to the truck, police said.

Sees A Weak Economy Due

NEW YORK (AP) — David Stockman, a chief architect of President Reagan's budget-cutting plan, says he expects the housing industry to lead a "substantial" weakening of the economy through the first half of the year.

In an address Wednesday to a gathering of Wall Street executives, Stockman predicted high interest rates would continue to hurt the housing market and produce a "substantial softening of the economy."

But he said a recession this year was unlikely.

Stockman told executives of First Boston Corp., an investment firm, that the administration "needs 98 percent" of the $48.6 billion in spending cuts proposed to Congress. Stockman made two appearances in New York to tout the package of tax and spending cuts which Reagan formally submitted to Congress on Tuesday.

In defending the spending reductions, Stockman said austerity would "provide some certainty, provide some confidence ... that we have the possibility of bringing federal spending under control."

Once the public believes the growth of government spending will decline, inflationary expectations will abate, Stockman added.

"Our national economy cannot heal itself," he said. "Inflationary psychology cannot be abated ... so long as inflation continues at double-digit rates. Only by jolting the economy ... can we have an economic performance that can get our financial position back in order."

Stockman declined to predict how long it would take the administration's proposed budget-cutting strategy to bring down interest rates and inflation. But he said the first indication of the plan's success would come in the long-term credit markets.

CHOIR ACTIVITIES

The W. J. Best Traveling Choir will have rehearsal Saturday, March 14 at 4 p.m. at Sweet Hope Free Will Baptist Church, Galloway's Crossroads.

The choir will celebrate its first anniversary Sunday, March 15 at 5 p.m. at the church with several guest choirs sharing in the musical service. Registration for all choirs participating will begin at 4:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

SERVICES

Weekend services for Mills Chapel FWB are as follows:

Saturday — 7:30 p.m., the speaker will be Elder Annie Peal Ellerderson and the Poplar Hill choir and congregation.

Sunday — 5:30 p.m., the speaker will be Elder O'Dell King.

The pastor, Elder J.L. Swinson, invites the public.

Kiwanis Announces Year's Theme

The Kiwanis Club of Greenville has announced the theme of this year's major emphasis program, "Communication Disabilities."

According to Dr. Steve Bartlett, chairman of the major emphasis committee, the first phase of the program was to identify and publicize the needs of the community.

Activities to date have included two programs presented by Mike Ernest, director of the program for Hearing Impaired Students at ECU, and Robert Muzzarelli, chairman of ECU's Dept. of Speech, Language, and Auditory Pathology. Both speakers emphasized the types of services provided for individuals with communication difficulties and suggested ways by which the club could assist in providing services.

The club presented Ernest with a check for $260 to be used to purchase a television caption adapter which will make it possible for hearing impaired students to enjoy captioned television programs.

The club will also assist the ECU Circle K Club, and the Department of Speech, Language, and Auditory Pathology with a free hearing screening clinic on March 21. The clinic will be held from 9 a.m. until 12 noon and from 1-4 p.m. at the Belk Allied Health Building Annex.

Order Aflatoxin Check Be A Permanent Rule

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The State Board of Agriculture adopted permanent regulations Wednesday requiring laboratory inspection of corn intended for use by humans in an effort to keep excessive levels of aflatoxin off the market shelves.

The board adopted emergency rules requiring such inspections in January after more than 50 dogs died in Bladen County after eating dog food prepared by aflatoxin-contaminated corn.

Aflatoxin is a sometimes lethal byproduct of a mold that grows on corn and other products, such as peanuts, in extremely dry, stressful weather. Much of North Carolina's 1980 corn crop was contaminated.

Some researchers have identified aflatoxin as a carcinogen and others say it can be lethal if taken in sufficient quantities. There have been no known cases of aflatoxin poisoning in humans in North Carolina, although the substance has caused severe problems for corn growers in recent years.

State and federal agencies temporarily lifted the level of aflatoxin allowed in corn to be shipped across state lines during the winter. That action came after growers and buying stations reported pileups of corn that could not be sold because of aflatoxin.

Under the rules approved Wednesday, corn mills must have corn inspected at a state-approved laboratory within 30 days of the time it is to be ground into meal. The state Department of Agriculture has funding for the inspections through June but no decision has been made as to who will pay for the checks after June.

In other areas, the board also agreed to permit the sale of seed peanuts this year with germination certifications as low as 50 percent. Such peanuts must have the germination level accurately identified and the label must be marked "substandard germination."

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said the action was taken because of a shortage of seed peanuts resulting from last year's drought-damaged crop.

"We will not have enough seed peanuts unless the level is lowered from the 70 percent minimum for this year," Graham said.

RESCUE AT SEA

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Seventeen people, the crew and passengers of an Indonesian helicopter en route to an oil drilling site in the Natunas Islands, were rescued by the U.S. aircraft carrier Midway when their aircraft crashed in the South China Sea, the newspaper Sinar Harapan reported yesterday.

Libya Plans Purchase Of Big Rockets

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The Libyan government has signed a contract with a West German firm to buy medium-range missiles capable of carrying nuclear warheads to any target in the Middle East or southern Europe, official Moroccan sources said today.

In Munich, an official with the firm said it was merely testing sub-orbital satellites in the Libyan desert under an oral agreement with Libya and that reports of a contract to provide Libya a missile system by 1986 were "complete nonsense."

The Moroccan sources claimed Libya is developing a nuclear weapon in a separate program.

They said the first missile trials were carried out in the Libyan desert recently by the West Germany company Orbital Transport and Raketen Co. or OTRAG, which was involved in an East-West controversy when it conducted similar missile trials in Zaire in 1978.

Moroccan officials are usually well-informed through diplomatic and intelligence sources on events in Libya. The report of the contract was carried by the official Moroccan news agency.

There was no immediate Libyan comment on the Moroccan account.

In Bonn, OTRAG officials announced that the tests conducted in the Libyan oasis of Sebha, 350 miles south of Tripoli, on March 1 were of a missile intended for "launching communications satellites."

Frank Wukasch, technical director of OTRAG, said in Munich that reports the company will supply Libya with a nuclear missile system "is complete nonsense...totally made up."

"A military use has never been contemplated and will not be contemplated," said Wukasch. "I regret that still another campaign has been started against OTRAG.

OTRAG pursues nothing else but the aim listed in the trade register of West German firms, namely the construction of commercial carrier rockets."

He said there was no formal contract between the company and the Libyan government, but an oral agreement that the tests could be carried out in the Sahara. OTRAG claims it is trying to develop low-cost satellite carriers that can be used by poor nations for communications and other uses.

The company, thought to be the world's only private rocket maker, says it has invested about $75 million in developing inexpensive rockets since its founding in 1974.

Present plans call for it to be expanded to a nuclear capability three years later, they added.

Book Three As Smugglers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Three men were in custody for investigation of alien smuggling after Border Patrol agents stopped a tractor-trailer truck and discovered 107 illegal aliens inside, authorities said.

A Border Patrol spokesman called Wednesday's seizure one of the largest apprehensions in a single vehicle since the mid-1970s.

The truck was stopped Monday night at the San Onofre checkpoint near San Clemente, 75 miles north of the U.S.-Mexico border.

Bail was set Tuesday at $5,000 for Eugene Montijo, 33, allegedly the driver of the truck, and $3,000 for Rex Hostetter, 52, of Ramona, and Manuel Avila Mendoza, 55, a Mexican citizen with resident alien status. They appeared before U.S. Magistrate Edward Infante.

CHAIN COLLISION

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Eighty vehicles piled up on the Highway of the Sun about 18 miles out of here Wednesday in a chain collision blamed on thick fog, traffic police said. Ten people were hurt.

Ambassador Interested In People

What interests Shaun Wallace, Greenville's 1981 Community Ambassador, is the day-to-day life of the people whose country he may visit. "I'd like to study the people, their customs and way of life," he said.

Wallace was recently selected as the city's community ambassador. His first choice country is Denmark followed by Norway and Sweden. His visit, slated for mid-June through the first week or so of August, involves living with a family of the country for 30 days and two weeks of travel around the country.

A junior at Rose High, Wallace is an active member of the swimming team, the drama club and enjoys photography and sailing. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Kelly Wallace of 306 Hastings Court.

Upon his return Wallace will be expected to give talks and slide shows on his experiences. "I would like to thank the committee for choosing me," he said in closing.

Ministers To Hold Meet

RALEIGH — Over 400 United Methodist ministers from across eastern North Carolina are expected here for a special seminar, sponsored by the N. C. United Methodist Conference. The annual bishop's seminar on the ministry will be held March 16-18 at Highland United Methodist Church.

According to Bishop William R. Cannon, Raleigh, this year's seminar focuses on worship. Topics to be discussed at the three-day event include communion, baptism, confirmation, marriage and funeral services.

The event will include lectures, panel discussions and worship services and it is designed as a continuing education event for clergy as well as a time for fellowship and renewal.

Four Students Serve As Pages

RALEIGH — Four E.B. Aycock students, Susan Carter, Chris Sessoms, Jordy Smith and Steve Wall, served as pages in Governor Jim Hunt's offices the week of March 2-6.

Carter is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James W. Carter, 417 Longmeadow Rd. and is a freshman. Sessoms is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Sessoms, 103 Warren St. and is a freshman.

Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Smith, 415 Winchester Dr. and is in eighth grade. Wall, also in eighth grade, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wall, 405 Winchester Dr.

SINGING SATURDAY BETHEL — The Rock Island Singers of Fountain, the Edwards Singers of Greenville and the Community Male Choir of Bethel will sing at Mayo Chapel Baptist Church here Saturday at 7 p. m.

Everyone is welcome to attend, according to the sponsors, the church usher board.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swung upward today, reversing the decline of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 8.75 Tuesday and Wednesday, recovered 3.96 to 971.63 by noon today.

Advances held a 9.5 lead over declines in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market has been bouncing around erratically since the start of the month, unable to establish any lasting trend.

But analysts said it apparently got a lift today from the prospect of further cuts soon in the bank prime lending rate.

The nominal rate on blue-chip loans now stands at 18 percent, down from a peak of 21 1/2 at yearend.

St. Joe Minerals led the active list, up 1/2 at 46 in trading that included a 260,000-share block at 45 1/2.

The stock jumped 15 1/2 on Wednesday after Seagram made a $45-a-share takeover bid for the company. St. Joe opposed the offer as "grossly inadequate."

Other gainers on the active list included Asarco, up 1 1/2 at 41 1/2; Phillips Petroleum, up 2 1/2 at 48 1/2; and Pennzoil, up 1 1/2 at 41 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index rose 43 to 74.96. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.03 at 338.42.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 1943 million shares at noon, down from 21.56 million at the same point Wednesday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Midday stocks were mixed, with a high of 14 1/2 and a low of 14 1/4.

Act To Spur Gas Sales

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc. says it has begun offering dealers across the country rebates of 4 cents a gallon on some gasoline purchases, while reliable industry sources say Shell Oil Co. has cut wholesale gasoline prices 2 cents a gallon in the Midwest.

Analysts said the moves were taken to spur sluggish sales after the increase of almost 12 cents a gallon in retail gasoline prices that has occurred since federal oil-price controls were lifted Jan. 28, eight months ahead of schedule.

Texaco, the nation's third-largest oil company, said Wednesday it began offering "rebates" of 4 cents per gallon to dealers March 1.

Texaco said its 4-cent a gallon rebate would apply to dealers who sell more than 80 percent of the quantity of gasoline they sold in March 1980.

Dan Lundberg, publisher of an oil industry newsletter, said Texaco's rebate might show up shortly at the pump.

"It will be on a station-by-station basis. Nothing requires dealers to pass it on to the customer, but many unquestionably will," Lundberg said.

Lundberg said Texaco's rebated regular gasoline was selling for an average of $1.41 a gallon at full service stations as of March 6.

East Carolina Announces Grid Signees

East Carolina University head football coach Ed Emory announced today the signing of 28 players to the national letter of intent. The group includes 24 high school seniors and four junior college transfers.

All-state players Steve Johnson, a 6-4, 275-pound defensive lineman from Brevard and Jimmy Walden, a 5-10, 170-pound running back from Greensboro head the list of North Carolina recruits.

Johnson, rated one of the top linemen in the state, selected East Carolina over Clemson and North Carolina, while Walden picked the Pirates over N.C. State and several other schools. Both of them were named to play in the Shrine Bowl.

Expanding the recruiting base this year, the Pirates signed Metro Player of the Year in the Tidewater Virginia area, Ricky Nichols, a 5-11, 170-pound wide receiver. From Gaithersburg, Md., the Pirates signed all-Metropolitan Aaron Carter, a 6-2, 211-pound defensive end.

Four players from Chowan College have signed with East Carolina. Mike Grant, a 6-1, 210-pound linebacker from Charleston, S.C., Kenny Phillips, a 6-0, 190-pound defensive back from D.H. Conley near Greenville; Jody Schulz, a 6-3, 225-pound defensive end from Hester, Md., and Amos Twitty, a 6-1, 210-pound linebacker from Lancaster, S.C.

"I feel we have had the type year in recruiting that we must have for three or four years to compete with the teams on our schedule," Emory said. "For the first time in years, East Carolina went truly head-to-head with major schools, both in-state and out-of-state, for outstanding talent. And, we signed several players that were highly recruited by top name football schools."

"I'm very pleased, although these were other players we wanted that we lost to name schools. But you can't sign everyone. We have a strong base to continue building our program for the future."

The Pirates' list of recruits show 20 from North Carolina, three from Georgia, two each from Maryland and South Carolina, and one from Virginia.

Roanoke Hopes To Stop Fast Break Of Jordan

By RICK SCOPPE, Reflector Sports Writer
Roanoke coach Clarence Atkinson has not seen the Durham Jordan fast break up close and personal, but he has heard enough about via the telephone lines to make stopping it one of the Redskins' main duties Friday night.

The Falcons, 21-5, enter their Eastern Regional battle with the Redskins tomorrow night averaging 75 points a game. In other words, the Falcons have not been standing around too often.

"We've been stressing this week stopping the first outlet pass on the fast break," Atkinson said. "When they come down with the rebound we'll have someone right there with him to try to slow the outlet pass. We've got to stop the layup on the other end."

Within the framework of the Jordan fast break, 6-6½ senior David Shaffer is the key. Shaffer goes into the tournament averaging 19.4 points and 10.3 rebounds a game, statistics that have not been lost on Atkinson.

"Our big concern is trying to neutralize the big boy, David Shaffer," Atkinson said. "We've got to try to keep him off the boards."

"We know we're not going to be able to stop him, but we're going to try to minimize his scoring and rebounding. He'll get his points but we hope to keep him in the teens. We don't want him having a 25, 30 point game."

"We're not going to do a lot of things different," he added.

"The only change we will make is trying to keep Shaffer from catching the ball down low."

Atkinson said the Redskins will start out in a zone Friday night, probably a 2-3 or 1-3-1, and will press fullcourt early. The hope is to disrupt the Falcons and take some of the advantage of being in the playoffs for the second straight season away from them.

"The opening three to four minutes could be the most important part of the game," Atkinson said. "They've been here before and they've got a lot of maturity. But if we're three up or three down after the first period I'll be satisfied."

Whether the Redskins are able to do that will depend in large part on the play of senior forward Maurice Chance. Chance, the District I most valuable player, is averaging 15 points and 7½ rebounds a game.

"Maurice Chance is molded along the same lines for us as Shaffer is for them," Atkinson said. "Chance makes us play well in all areas but we've got a lot of other kids, too."

Joining Chance when the ball is thrown up Friday will be 6-4 Ricky Highsmith (11.8 ppg, 7.8 rebounds), 6-4½ Michael Neal (5.5 ppg, 5.4 reb) at center and Angelo Spruill (10.5 ppg) and Jeremiah Outerbridge (2.5 ppg).

Those five will be opposed by Shaffer at center, 6-3 Cliff Morris (13.2 ppg, 6.0 reb) and 6-4 Scott Pearce (11.0 ppg, 6.0 reb) at forwards and 6-1 Andre Webb and 6-0 Mark Michelsen at the guards.

Jordan, which finished third in the state with a 27-2 record last season, is among the favorites to take the state title this year.

Said Atkinson: "If we get by Jordan it will be a giant step for us. I think they're the toughest team in the regional. Even if we won, though, there won't be any time for relaxation. But if we can win it'll be a giant step for us."

Tournament Schedule

The Eastern Regional tournament gets started tonight at Wilson Beddingfield High School with the two girls' games. The boys play Friday and the championship games for both are set for Saturday evening.

The schedule:

8:30 — Southwest Edgecombe (27-0) vs. East Duplin (17-6)

Friday
7:00 — West Carteret (21-4) vs. Burlington Cummings (22-7)
8:30 — Roanoke (23-4) vs. Durham Jordan

Saturday
7:00 — Girls' Championship game
8:30 — Boys' Championship game

North Pitt Tops Hawks By 6-1

BETHEL — North Pitt opened the 1981 baseball season with a 6-1 victory over North Lenoir yesterday.

Bob Hemingway hurled the victory for the Panthers, going all the way and allowing only one hit. That was a Maurice Thorbes homer in the sixth inning that accounted for the lone Hawk run.

North Pitt pushed ahead in the third inning, scoring three times. Gregory Briley walked and Quinton Dove doubled. Hemingway sacrificed, scoring Hines with the first run. Richard Heller followed with a single, scoring Dove, and Whitehurst scored when Edward Ayers reached on an error.

The Panthers added their other three runs in the bottom of the sixth. Mike Brown reached on a fielder's choice and Greg Briley walked. Jerry Simpson reached on a fielder's choice, loading the bases. Successive walks to Dove, Hemingway and Whitehurst brought in the three runs.

Dove led the North Pitt hitting with two, both of them doubles.

Now 1-0, the Panthers play host to Southern Nash on Tuesday.

Southern Nash Trips Vikings

STANHOPE — Southern Nash gained a 7-3 baseball victory over D.H. Conley yesterday. It was the third straight loss for the Vikings, but their first in Eastern Carolina Conference competition.

Conley scored first, getting a run in the top of the first. Emory Vines doubled and scored on Roy Lassiter's single.

In the bottom of the frame, Southern Nash tied it up. Alan Hardy walked, stole second, then when he attempted to steal third, an error let him come the rest of the way.

Conley moved back ahead with one in the top of the second. Joye Joyner walked and Keith Mills singled. Vines walked, loading them up, and Dixon Page singled in courtesy runner Sammy Tucker.

The Firebirds came right back to score two and take a 3-2 lead. After two were out, Scott May singled and Terry Best walked. Both moved up on an infield out, and scored when Hardy singled.

Conley tied it once more in the top of the third. Jeff Cox singled and stole second, moving to third on an out.

Joyner walked and a double steal scored Cox.

But Southern came back with two in the bottom of the inning to take a 5-3 lead. McCullen Wiggins doubled and Elvis Perry reached on an error. After both stole up, May singled them in.

Southern added two more in the fourth.

Hardy, Nathan Manning and May led the Southern hitting with two each, while Page had a pair for Conley.

The Vikings return to action on Tuesday, traveling to Charles B. Aycock.

Duke Captures Title In ECU's Golf Tournament

Duke University captured both the individual and team championships in the East Carolina Invitational Golf Tournament yesterday, an event hoped to become an annual affair.

Duke's Charles Bolling came from one stroke off the pace after the first day of the two day event to take the championship, finishing with a 145. He carded a 70 for the final day of competition. East Carolina's Steve Jones had been tied with N.C. State's Eric Moehling and Appalachian State's Richard Kincaid after the first round. Moehling finished third with a 149, while Jones was seventh at 153, tied with teammate Carl Beaman. Kincaid did not finish in the top ten.

Duke won the team championship with a 761 total while N.C. State was second at 769. North Carolina finished third at 775, followed by East Carolina's "A" team with a 782 total. The Pirate "B" team finished eighth at 816. A total of 12 teams participated.

"I think it was a great tournament," East Carolina coach Bob Helmick said. "We hope to repeat it next year. The weatherman treated us well, even though it was windy. The wind kept the scores higher than we expected."

Helmick said that finishing fourth behind Duke, State and Carolina was "satisfying," but that he had hoped to do better on Brook Valley, the Pirate home course. "Fourth in this field isn't bad."

Duke coach Rod Myers said that while the wind bothered the Blue Devils, he was pleased to win. "N.C. State is one of the finest teams in this district, and this was a big win for us. We were trying to get settled and get into the right framework."

Myers said that Bolling was four-under after 16 holes, but bogeyed the final two to finish 70. "When you get a great course coupled with winds like these, things don't always go like you want."

Team Scores
Duke 761, N.C. State 769, North Carolina 775, East Carolina "A" 782, Appalachian State 796, William & Mary 805, UNC Charlotte 812, East Carolina "B" 816, Campbell 818, Temple 819, UNC Wilmington 822, Old Dominion 833.

Road To Philadelphia Starts Tonight

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The road to Philadelphia begins tonight when the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 43rd annual basketball tournament gets underway in such far-flung outposts as Providence, R.I., and Los Angeles, with in-between stops at Dayton, Ohio, and Austin, Texas.

Four members of The Associated Press Top Twenty will see first-round action tonight — No. 16 Brigham Young, No. 17 Wyoming, No. 18 Maryland and No. 20 Arkansas — while the other 16, led by top-rated DePaul, drew opening-round byes and swing into action over the weekend.

Tonight's lineup sends BYU (22-6) against Princeton's Ivy League kings (18-9) and Georgetown (20-11) against James Madison (20-8) in the East regional at Providence and Wyoming's Western Athletic Conference co-champs (23-5) against Howard (16-11) and Kansas State (21-8) against West Coast Athletic Conference winner San Francisco (24-6) at Los Angeles in the West regional.

The other half of the 48-team draw pits Maryland (20-9) against Tennessee-Chattanooga (21-8), the Southern Conference representative, and Creighton (21-8), winner of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament, against St. Joseph's, Pa., (22-7) of the East Coast Conference in the Mideast regional at Dayton.

In the Midwest regional at Austin, Arkansas' regular-season Southwest Conference champs (22-7) meet Mercer (17-12), the Trans-America Conference tourney survivor, while Southland Conference titlist Lamar (24-4) faces Missouri (22-9), the regular-season Big Eight winner.

The first round continues Friday night at four other sites. In the East at Charlotte, N.C., Houston meets Villanova and Virginia Commonwealth goes against Long Island. The West shifts to El Paso, Texas, with Fresno State-Northeastern and Idaho-Pittsburgh on the schedule.

Friday's Mideast action will be at Tuscaloosa, Ala., where Boston College meets Ball State and Alabama-Birmingham faces Western Kentucky. In the Midwest at Wichita, Kan., Wichita State plays Southern and Kansas tackles Mississippi. Second-round action is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday with the regional championships March 19-22 at Atlanta, Salt Lake City, Bloomington, Ind., and New Orleans. The final four is March 28-30 at the Spectrum in Philadelphia.

Georgetown Coach John Thompson insists his club is not looking past James Madison to a possible meeting with Notre Dame.

"If we lose, it'll have nothing to do with Notre Dame," he said. "It'll have to do with James Madison. We're not foolish enough to look ahead of this team because if you've gotten into the tournament, you've got to be pretty good."

Thompson's Hoyas are led by guard Eric "Sleepy" Floyd, a second-team All-America.

First-teamer Danny Ainge leads BYU against Princeton's deliberate attack and tenacious man-to-man defense. The Tigers, under Pete Carril, have been known to knock off big-time teams who take them lightly.

In the West, Wyoming, a team on the upswing, makes its first NCAA appearance since 1967. The Cowboys are seeded fifth in the region while Howard, led by 6-foot-9 James Ratliff, is 12th and last.

Kansas State is in the tourney for the 15th time despite a loss to Kansas in the final of the Big Eight postseason tournament. The Wildcats are led by 6-6 Rolando Blackman. High-scoring San Francisco had to win a WCAC playoff with Pepperdine to make the select field.

In the Mideast, St. Joseph's has a chance to make it to the final four in its home town but even if the Hawks beat Creighton, their next opponent would be DePaul. In the other game, Maryland's Albert King-Buck Williams gang is the solid favorite over Tennessee-Chattanooga.

A year ago, Lamar knocked Oregon State out of last year's NCAA Tournament. This time, the Cardinals are out for revenge against Missouri, a team they lost to 92-70 last December in the Show Me Classic.

"We owe Missouri something," said Mike Olliver, who scored 26 points against the Tigers in that losing cause.

However, quipped Pat Foster, Lamar's first-year coach, "I'd rather be playing Mercer."

That task belongs to Arkansas. Mercer is an unknown quantity, one of 11 teams making its first NCAA appearance.

Softball Roundup

North Lenoir 16

North Pitt 12

BETHEL — North Lenoir outtraced North Pitt to a 16-12 softball victory yesterday. It was the first game of the year for the Pant-HERS.

Both teams scored a pair of runs in the first, and after North Pitt took a 3-2 lead in the second, North Lenoir moved ahead for good with five runs in the third, 7-3. The Lady Hawks moved out to a 16-6 lead before North Pitt rallied for six in the bottom of the seventh.

North Lenoir's hitting was led by Debbie Hardison and Michel Chapman, each with two hits. North Pitt was led by Delores Pittman, Jeanette Brown and Trudi Sheppard with three each, while Magnolia Harrington had two.

Now 0-1, the Pant-HERS travel to Southern Nash on Tuesday.

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville's girls rolled to a 5-1 softball victory over Creswell yesterday. It was the second win in as many starts for the Lady Bullets.

Jamesville got a run in the first and added two each in the third and sixth. The lone Creswell run came in the fifth frame.

Jamesville's hitting was led by Tammy Williams, who had three hits, while Terri Bell and Suzanne Spence each had two. One of Bell's was a triple. M. Lewis had two hits for Creswell.

The Lady Bullets play today at Mattamuskeet.

Georgia Rebounding Sets Down ODU In NIT's First Round

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Georgia Bulldogs, laden with heavily recruited schoolboy basketball superstars, know they have one weakness — the lack of what has come to be known as an "aircraft carrier," the towering center underneath the basket.

The talent of such blue-chip recruits as Dominique Wilkins, Vern Fleming and Terry Fair carried Georgia to 18 victories this season, but the fact that none of them are taller than 6-foot-7 is conceded to be the reason it lost 11.

So when the Coach Hugh Durham's Bulldogs met Old Dominion Wednesday night in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament, they stressed rebounding and came away with a 74-60 victory.

"We knew rebounding was one of their strong suits," said Fair, who scored 15 points and pulled down 13 rebounds as Georgia won the battle of the boards 47-43. "We came out ready to play."

In other first-round games, Minnesota bounced Drake 90-77, South Alabama beat Texas-Arlington 74-71, Toledo tripped American University 91-83 and Texas-El Paso nipped San Jose State 57-53. The home team was the winner in each case.

The first round continues tonight with Connecticut at South Florida, Duquesne at Michigan, North Carolina A&T at Duke, Temple at Clemson, Alabama at St. John's, Holy Cross at Southern Mississippi and Rhode Island at Purdue. On Tuesday, Dayton edged Fordham 66-65 in double overtime.

Wilkins, the Southeastern Conference's leading scorer with a 23.8 average, led Georgia with 21 points, and the acrobatic 6-6 forward also pitched in underneath with 12 rebounds.

"We outrebounded them and played hard defense," he said. "Coach Durham felt rebounding would be the key to the game."

"Old Dominion's strength is their rebounding," said Durham. "One of the things we try to do is zero in on the strength of the other team. If we hit their strong point it gets to them mentally."

Old Dominion shot only 28 percent in the first half and never caught up after trailing 32-20 at intermission. Leading Monarchs scorer Ronnie McAdoo scored only two points in the first half before finishing with a team-high 18.

While Georgia won with its small front line, 7-3 Randy Breuer and 6-10 Gary Holmes both scored 21 points as Minnesota, a 1980 NIT finalist, defeated Drake. The Gophers led by as many as 21 points in the second half before Drake, led by Lewis Lloyd's 28 points, cut the lead to eight before falling back again.

Senior forward Ed Rains scored 26 points, including the clinching basket with one second left, as South Alabama held off Texas-Arlington in a game that had 20 lead changes and 11 ties.

Harvey Knuckles scored 29 points and Mitch Adamek 20 and both had 10 rebounds in Toledo's triumph over American.

Julius Wayne led defense-minded Texas-El Paso with 14 points, including six free throws in the final 64 seconds against San Jose State.

Big Cat, Rube Make Fame Hall

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The "Big Cat" and "Ol' Rube" made it, but it was a long time coming.

For John (Big Cat) Mize, the slugging first baseman whose bat rocked three decades of pitchers, it was 28 years of waiting and hoping.

For Andrew (Rube) Foster, the long wait covered more than half a century, but he wasn't around to appreciate it. The grandpop of the old Negro leagues died in 1930 at age 51.

Now both Mize and Foster will be in baseball's Hall of Fame — chosen here Wednesday by the Veterans Committee — with the inductions to take place, in Foster's case posthumously, next summer in the museum at Cooperstown, N.Y.

Mize, in his home at Demorest, Ga., had helped carpenters pile up some lumber and gone into the house shortly before noon Wednesday to eat lunch and catch the news on the radio.

The 6-foot-2, 215-pound bull of a man had been told an announcement was expected at noon from Tampa and he knew from reading the papers that his name was high on the list of the Veterans Committee.

The job of this committee is to review the names and records of outstanding players who had failed to be honored by baseball writers in the 15-year specified period five years after quitting the game.

Big John watched the mid-day news and kept his ear tuned to a telephone ring. Came 12:30. No news. No call.

"I told my wife that there was another year gone," he said, "and I went out to finish stacking lumber. I'd already given up when the phone started ringing."

The "Big Cat" was in. So was Rube Foster. Celebrations could start.

"The first word came from sports writers a little before 1 p.m.," Mize said by telephone from his Georgia home. "The committee was a long formally notifying me. They had the wrong number — a 5' instead of a 6' at the end."

Lady Rams Are Third In Meet

STANTONSBURG — Wilson Beddingfield won a girls' track meet with three other schools yesterday, easily outdistancing the rest of the field.

Beddingfield finished with 102 points, while C.B. Aycock was second with 64. Greene Central was third with 49, while Rocky Mount was fourth with 23.

There were four double winners in the meet, three of them from Beddingfield. Beddingfield's Lofton won the 100 and 200-meter dashes, while Brooks won the high and long jumps. Price took the shot and discus. C.B. Aycock's Thomas won the 400 and 800-meter runs.

Greene Central returns to action on Monday, March 23, visiting Hunt.

Judges Turn 'Tough' To Stop Soaring Crime

By RHONDA COOK
United Press International
There are some tough judges in the United States — including one who gave a Georgia woman a year in jail for stealing two bars of soap.

But, Chief Justice Warren Burger of the U.S. Supreme Court, and others, say even stricter courts are needed.

Most, however, would probably consider Ruby Mobley's sentence for stealing 77 cents worth of soap extreme. But, in another case, Atlanta Judge Daniel Duke sentenced first offender Mary Bell to six months in jail for stealing a six-pack of beer.

Many experts say such actions only reflect a feeling among judges that they must slow the increase in crime with swift, sure punishment regardless of the offense.

Tough judges now are found in liberal states as well as conservative, in cities as well as the rural courts.

Some experts say the tough judge has become as much a problem as the jurist who is quick to release offenders. They say sending an offender to jail, rather than giving probation or a term in a restitution center, could push the prisoner toward a permanent life of crime as well as cost taxpayers unnecessary dollars.

But, in a recent speech to the American Bar Association, Burger — the nation's top judge — said several changes are needed in the judicial system to stop the "reign of terror in American cities."

He called for the "deterrent effect of swift and certain consequences: swift arrest, prompt trial, certain penalty and — at some point — finality of judgment."

"Our search for justice must not be twisted into an endless quest for technical errors, unrelated to guilt or innocence," Burger said.

"I certainly don't get any satisfaction with putting people in jail," said Harry Lee Coe III, circuit judge for Hillsborough County (Tampa), Fla. Called "Hanging Harry," Coe is said to have sentenced more people to 100-year-plus jail terms than any other judge in west Florida's 13th judicial circuit.

"I wouldn't want to spend a day in there, myself," he said. "But it (the rising crime rate) speaks of a lot of failures. The schools, the system — whoever. There is that 10 percent who come through the system who seem never to abide by the rules of society. The tough sentences are for them. When those persons haven't conformed, the consequences are obvious."

He has also been known to hand down unusual sentences.

Coe ordered a woman convicted of trying to ram a girlfriend with her car to stay in her home for a year, saying she could only leave in cases of emergency. He sentenced a man convicted on drug charges to one year in college and told him not to leave the campus.

U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti, a San Francisco federal judge who focuses most of his wrath on drug offenders, said that before "you start considering rehabilitation, which so many bleeding hearts advocate today, you have to punish the offender."

Many a convicted person appearing before Conti has found his plea for an appeal bond denied and spent his first night in jail without a toothbrush or other similar items.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals stopped Conti's practice in this regard, but the jurist still routinely hands down maximum sentences and delivers blistering lectures.

In New York City, Mayor Edward Koch wants tougher judges. Pleading for "reform of our criminal justice system," he has said making the defendants rights paramount "is no longer acceptable."

The city's jurists have responded angrily. The mayor has been accused of making the criminal-justice system a "whipping boy" for inadequate police work. Koch, who makes some judicial appointments, has responded by declaring he will henceforth personally "interrogate" prospective appointees.

U.S. District Judge Malcolm Muir, a bespectacled 65-year-old man, is known for dispensing swift and stern justice in Pennsylvania.

After berating an attorney's courtroom behavior as "grossly reprehensible," Muir told Carroll Leppo, a former York County commissioner convicted of extorting $300 from a Harrisburg architectural firm, he will go to prison for three months.

"The toughest part of this job is sentencing," Muir said. "I've lost all kinds of sleep over sentences. I find it dreadful."

He says he hands down tough sentences in hopes of deterring others similarly situated.

William Morgan, a former assistant U.S. attorney in Pennsylvania, was sentenced to four years for mail fraud. He asked Muir to reduce his sentence to probation because he was a first offender, a good husband and father and he had already lost his job, money and reputation.

After hearing pleas for mercy, Muir expressed sympathy for the convicted man's family. He remarked that affidavits from his wife and her psychologist were "particularly touching." He denied sentence reduction.

"When I took this job, I wanted to render what I felt was a real service — not to the lawyers but to the people," Muir said. "I find this an extremely lonely job. Regrettable as it is, I think it's the right way. I'm not running a popularity contest."

"It's a public attitude," said Howard Eisenberg of the National Legal Aid and Defenders Association. "The hanging judge isn't too far removed from the law and order attitude."

Henry Wade, a Dallas district attorney, said the Texas city has long been ahead of the swing toward tougher justice.

"We had this feeling seven or eight years ago," he said, noting that many 15- and 16-year-olds are now being tried as adults.

Many experts complain that judges are swayed by public pressure and politics.

"More and more judges are getting elected (to the bench)," Mintz said. "That puts a lot of pressure on them and a lot of pressure on the people who run against them."

Eisenberg says many judges are former prosecutors elected to the bench on their records of being tough on criminals.

"They come (into office) with their minds set. The attorney as a prosecutor wants to run for judge and he runs saying 'I'm going to be tough on crime.' So you not only have a prosecuting attorney in the courtroom but a judge who thinks like a prosecutor."

"It's a public attitude that is reflected in the candidates and the type of campaigns they run," he said. "The criminal justice system can't be seen apart from other political systems. Judges are nothing more than human beings who have friendships and are under pressure. They are under a lot of scrutiny so they are more likely to do what the public wants."

Eisenberg said one solution is to "stop electing judges who are going to be tough on crime and (elect those) who are going to be more deliberate."

There is, however, a recurrent charge that most judges are too lenient.

case where an assailant was released because the judge thought the case didn't warrant a high bail. Once released, the offender kidnapped and raped another woman.

"The victim can't appeal anything," he said.

Despite the public attitude that the U.S. court system is too lenient, a recent report by the National Council on Crime and Delinquency shows that the United States has the third highest imprisonment record in the industrialized world.

"The Republic of South Africa apparently has the world's highest rate of imprisonment, however, many of the inmates are considered political prisoners," said David Mintz of NCCD.

Mintz said Russia was second to South Africa but the majority of its inmates were also regarded as political offenders.

"On Dec. 31, 1977, the United States had 290,547 prison inmates and in February 1978, 158,394 inmates in jails, for a combined figure of 448,941 inmates or a rate of 208 per 100,000 population," Mintz said. "Few inmates can be regarded as political offenders and the U.S. thus has the world's largest rate of imprisonment for the common criminal."

Although prison populations are increasing, Watts said crime was not necessarily rising as rapidly. He credited the apparent rise in crime to improved reporting.

"Everything we've done since World War II has not reduced crime," Watts said. "My concern is you have 23,000 state trial judges in the nation and you put them on the bench with no training. What do you expect?"

Watts said untrained judges were more likely to bend to public pressure. "It's scary. Everybody believes judges have the answer to crime and that's not true.

"Everyone wants law enforcement to be tough and fair with everyone except themselves," he said. "There is no easy solution to this problem. It may be one of the toughest we have. But I don't see too many people wanting to address it. Most of the answers I get are: we're too busy. We don't have time and you see how self-defeating it is."

Mintz said it costs an average of $20,000 a year to support a prison inmate and about $65,000 a cell in a new facility.

The cost of building a prison ranges from $90,000 per single cell in New York to $25,000 in Tennessee.

Supporters of tough sentencing complain that dollars and cents should not be a concern when rehabilitation of a criminal is at stake while opponents urge the system to be reasonable.

However, some officials ask about the practicality of sending an offender to prison for a year for small item theft.

Burger suggested that first-time, non-violent offenders be given "generous" use of probation coupled with "intensive supervision and counseling and swift revocation if probation terms are violated."

Some experts insist that restitution centers are more practical, costing the government virtually nothing while the offender works to repay the victim as well as to pay for his or her room and board.

For example, Quincy District Court Judge Albert Kramer began Massachusetts' restitution program known as "Earn-it." Kramer estimated that the program saved the state $25,000 to $40,000 per defendant annually.

"Our program in particular has a philosophy that no one should be given a second chance without earning it," he said.

"The American taxpayer will finally figure out that they are buying nothing with their tremendous outlay of tax dollars and sooner or later they will react to the squandering of tax funds," said Mintz of the NCCD. "Unfortunately that won't happen quickly but it has to happen eventually."

Berger warned that changes in the judicial system will be "long, painful (and) costly." But, he said it will be "less costly than the billions in dollars and the thousands in blighted lives now hostage to crime."

In hopes of discouraging judges from being too heavy-handed with their sentencing, a Rhode Island study committee worked out a "fair sentence" range for 70 percent of the crimes that come before state judges. A jurist must submit a written explanation if sentence is imposed outside that range.

In Georgia, a judicial review committee looks at any sentences over five years that appear too harsh.

George Hardesty, who was sentenced to 51 months on bad check charges and is president of the American Association of Ex-Offenders in Kentucky, feels juries should set the sentences because he says judges are aware of the parole schedule.

"That's what's in the back of their minds — keeping them (inmates) in longer," said Hardesty, the first ex-con to become a parole officer in Kentucky. "I want the juries to set the sentences. Anyone who is going to sentence should do so without regard to the parole

Choral Group Has Drive

The Greenville Choral Society, a non-profit performing arts organization and a member of the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council, is now conducting a fund-raising drive which will last for a period of four weeks.
 The purpose of the drive is to supplement last fall's fund raising effort which failed to reach its goal.
 The Greenville Choral Society has been active in the community since its founding in 1969, performing in concerts for area residents.
 One of the high points of the Choral Society's recent history was the Christmas concert last December.

Contributions of any amount are welcomed and are tax deductible. Contributors will be recognized with listing in concert programs. Persons, groups, firms or agencies wishing to make contributions are to make checks payable to: Greenville Choral Society and mail them to: P. O. Box 1357, Greenville, N. C., 27834.
 The next community concert by the Greenville Choral Society is scheduled for April 5.

1961 Redistricting Impact Should Pose 'Lesson'

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If Democrats dominating the North Carolina General Assembly should be tempted into an effort to oust some of the state's four Republican congressmen by tinkering with their districts, they should pause long enough to recall what happened in 1961.

Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, chairman of the House Congressional Districts Committee, may have had some of the lessons of 1961 in mind when he said recently that some incumbent congressmen may lose out because of the necessity, in drawing up a 1981 redistricting plan, to equalize populations of the 11 congressional districts.

But if this does happen, Huskins said, it won't result from "partisan politics."

The 1961 General Assembly, dominated by easterners and faced with the necessity of reducing the state's representation in Congress from 12 to 11, tried to solve its redistricting problems by placing Republican Rep. Charles R. Jonas of Lincolnton in the same district with Democratic Rep. A. Paul Kitchin of Wadesboro. The Democratic legislators hoped that Kitchin would defeat Jonas in the 1962 elections.

To bolster Kitchin's chances, they included in his new 8th District a group of counties that had favored Democratic congressional candidates by a 52.3 per cent margin in 1960.

This political jockeying, which the Charlotte Observer called "unfair and dishonorable" and the Greensboro

Daily News denounced as an "outrageous gerrymander," appealed to easterners because it kept their representation in Congress intact while it forced the populous Piedmont to give up a vote in Congress. This was done despite the fact that the east had lost population in the previous decade while the Piedmont had grown rapidly.

The legislative action gave the Republicans an issue in the 1962 campaign. Their cry of "gerrymander" so aroused the voters that they swept Jonas, a veteran lawmaker, to victory in his revamped district. In addition, the Democratic tinkering had so weakened the party's position in the adjoining 9th District that Republican James T. Broyhill of Lenoir defeated Democratic Rep. Hugh Q. Alexander. The popular Broyhill has remained in Congress ever since.

The 1961 redistricting was so flagrantly politically motivated that it was quickly attacked in federal court shortly after the U.S. Supreme Court handed down its "one-man, one-vote" decree in 1965.

The U.S. Middle District Court directed the Tar Heel legislators to come up with a redistricting plan by Jan. 1, 1966. It said if the Legislature did not come up with an equitable redistricting plan, that the court itself would draft a "just and equitable" plan.

Early in 1966, the court ruled that a second redistricting plan, adopted during a special legislative session, did not meet the one-man, one-vote test.

The district court said the population deviation between districts was excessive and for the first time ruled that congressional districts must be compact and composed of contiguous territory. It also indicated it did not object to a redistricting designed to protect incumbent congressmen but said this could not take priority over the other principles.

However, the court permitted the 1966 redistricting to be used in the election that year, but it directed the Legislature to come up with a new plan by July 1, 1967.

During the 1967 legislative session, nine different redistricting plans were introduced. The one finally enacted placed Broyhill in the same district with Democratic Rep. Basil Whitener of Gastonia and Democratic Rep. L.H. Fountain in the same district with Republican Rep. James C. Gardner. In the 1968 voting, Broyhill defeated Whitener and Fountain won without opposition when Gardner ran for governor.

In upholding the 1967 redistricting plan, the fourth one the state had during the 1960s, the federal court said, "Regrettably, we note that tortuous lines still delineate the boundaries of some districts, particularly the 9th and 10th." It said it hoped the 1971 Legislature would come up with "reasonably compact" districts.

"We've got to play within such strict guidelines that we have very little room for partisan politics," Huskins said of the current planning. He pointed out, however, that Broyhill and his fellow Republican Rep. James Martin and Democratic Rep. W.G. Hefner live so close together that it may be necessary to place two of them in the same district.

Huskins said population growth and shifts have been so great during the last 10 years that the task of coming up with equitable districts will be more difficult than it was 10 years ago.

"If it places two (congressmen) in the same district, it will just have to happen," Huskins added.

Huskins, and Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gastonia, chairman of the Senate Congressional District Committee, have received data which shows that the state's 11 congressional districts range in size from the sixth, whose population of 496,967 is 6.43 percent below the average of 531,101, to the 4th District whose population of 573,349 places it 7.95 percent above the average. By contrast, the population range when the plan was adopted 10 years ago was only minus 1.67 percent for the smallest district to plus 2.12 percent for the largest.

Since the 1980 election in which Republican William Hendon captured the 11th District seat then held by Rep. Lamar Gudger, some Democrats in the 11th District have urged that heavily Democratic Cleveland County be shifted to the 11th District to bolster their chances of regaining the seat.

Huskins said that, if the Democrats came up with a workable plan of doing this, his committee would be glad to study it.

"But, I personally don't see that in the cards," he added.

The history of gerrymandering congressional districts dates back to the election battles of Whigs and Democrats before the Civil War.

In 1911, the easterners so dominated the Legislature that it approved a redistricting plan in which the 5th District in Piedmont North Carolina had a population nearly 50 percent above the state average. The lawmakers were oblivious of the "one-man, one-vote" principle.

Now, Huskins noted, the guidelines laid down by the courts are so strict that "I think, actually, partisan politics is going to play a very minor role" in the 1981 redistricting.

Emission Solution?

MORAINE, Ohio (AP) — The radiation that brought cooking into the space age will be used to make sure that fuel is burned to perfection in a new diesel engine produced at Chevrolet's Moraine assembly plant, engineers say.

Chevrolet has unveiled a 6.2-liter engine that is designed to be less smoky than conventional diesels because it will be calibrated with a microwave device.

"This will cut down on smoke emissions, there's no doubt about it," Chevrolet engineer Jack Lienesch said at a ceremony Wednesday.

Chevrolet General Manager Robert Lund called the development a major breakthrough in diesel technology and said it was part of the automaker's commitment to reducing air pollution.

Lund said the new engines would be available in Chevrolet's 1982 light pickup trucks and sport vehicles, and possibly on later passenger cars. He refused to discuss other aspects of the new diesel engine, such as fuel efficiency and cost.

The microwave device, used to determine the top dead center, or maximum length, of a piston stroke will make calibration of the engines more precise, Lund said.

Mark Krage, from General Motors research labs, said that finding top dead center of a piston stroke is vital because that determines, in part, how cleanly and efficiently fuel is burned.

Finding that point with a microwave sensor inserted in the glow plug hole allows the engine to be calibrated within one degree, compared with conventional tolerances of more than two degrees, Krage said.

Cigarette Shortage For Polish Smokers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says smokers in Poland are experiencing a cigarette shortage, partly because the nation's tobacco industry can't afford paper to make them.

A report Wednesday by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said the shortage "is particularly acute in Silesia and on the Baltic coast."

Poland's output this year is expected to total 87.5 billion cigarettes, compared with an expected demand for 95 billion, the report said. Through February, production was 2.4 billion cigarettes less than last year's pace.

"The Polish tobacco industry attributes the decline

Yesterday, we saw a loser-on-loser play employed to cut enemy communications. Today, we will look at another reason for using that tactic — to protect a weak spot from attack by a particular defender.

The auction was routine. West did not want to lead from either ace, and a singleton trump is seldom a good lead. So he opted for the passive lead of a low club. Declarer won in dummy with the ace and drew both trumps by leading the queen. He then paused to take stock.

If the club finesse succeeded, declarer would be able to discard a heart on dummy's fourth club and make an overtrick or two, depending on which defender held the ace of hearts. But what if the finesse should fail?

Hearts was declarer's weak suit, and if East gained the lead, the king of hearts would be exposed to a lead through. So declarer came up with an alternative plan that might assure the contract no matter who held the queen of clubs or ace of hearts.

At trick three, declarer led the king of diamonds from dummy. When East followed with a low diamond, declarer simply discarded a club!

In with the ace of diamonds, West could not profitably attack hearts. He exited with a club. Declarer rose with the ace and, when the queen dropped, he discarded two losing hearts on the good clubs in dummy, making five odd.

While declarer was fortunate to drop the queen of clubs, it was not an essential part of his campaign. Suppose that the queen of clubs did not drop under the king. Declarer would simply continue by leading the ten of clubs from dummy. If East does not produce the queen, declarer sluffs a heart. West can win, but the defenders can come to only one more trick since declarer will discard another heart on the nine of clubs, using a trump as an entry.

If East follows with the queen of clubs on the third round, declarer ruffs, get back to dummy with a trump and discards a heart on the good nine of clubs. He can lead up to the king of hearts to look for an over-trick.

Asks Prayers For No Wedding

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The former wife of George Wallace is asking for the prayers of "all Christian people" in hopes that the former Alabama governor will think twice about marrying a singer half his age.
Cornelia Wallace, whose marriage ended in divorce in 1978, said Wednesday she isn't ready to step aside for Wallace to marry blonde Lisa Taylor of Jasper, a 32-year-old country-western singer whose father owns a coal mining concern.
"I'm not giving up on a reconciliation," Mrs. Wallace said. "I simply ask for the prayers of all Christian people that George will search his heart and find God's perfect will in this matter."
Wallace's first wife, Lurleen, died of cancer in 1968.
Miss Taylor, who has a 5-year-old son, is divorced, according to her relatives.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAR. 13, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to consider the problems and perplexities that face you, and to plan a better way to operate in the days ahead. Take positive steps to gain your most cherished aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your financial status and make plans to have more security in the future. Find a better way to be more productive at work.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You want to have more abundance in the future but make sure your plans are practical. Relax at home tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't do anything at this time that could jeopardize your fine reputation. Sidestep one who is detrimental to your progress.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are tempted to be too extravagant now, so take right steps to control this. Clear up whatever is in error.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact a most successful person who can give you good ideas. Avoid the social today and concentrate on business affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Forget ideas of expansion right now and take care of problems at hand. Take pains to handle routine tasks in an effective manner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure to carry through with promises you have made. Keep busy at tasks that could bring you increased income.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Applying yourself with more vigor at this time can result in added income. Don't neglect to pay an important bill.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use your ability to solve a difficult problem. You have excellent judgment now and can easily gain your aims.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Strive to be more efficient at work and have more rapport with co-workers. Be more serious and get good results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study whatever has been puzzling you in the past and come up with the right answer. Your hunches are accurate now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure not to invest more than you can afford or you could regret it later. Take modern treatments to improve your health.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a clever person who can solve problems easily and should be given as fine an education as possible to make the most of this quality. There is musical ability in this chart. Teach good manners early in life.

Retardation Week Noted By Mayor

March 15-21 has been proclaimed locally as "Mental Retardation Week."
In his proclamation, Mayor Don McGlohon said the Association for Retarded Citizens is an organization of volunteers "...devoted to helping all mentally retarded individuals develop to their maximum potential."
He said the association "devotes its attention exclusively to the welfare of the retarded and continues to carry on intensive research programs into the causes and possible prevention of retardation."
The Association for Retarded Citizens/Pitt County, he observed, is committed to serving the 3,000 mentally retarded in the county along with their 9,000 family members.
"We have a very important task in helping all retarded and handicapped citizens obtain the best our community has to offer while helping these individuals adjust socially and become as independent as possible," he said.
McGlohon urged "all citizens...to recognize and accept retarded individuals as human beings — who like all human beings — need acceptance, understanding and love and are worthy to be treated with dignity and respect."

Witnesses Attend Meet

Jehovah's Witnesses from this area will attend a two day Bible convention in Fayetteville, March 14 and 15. W.R. Nichols, a local minister, said the theme of the event is "Fight the Fine Fight of the Faith".
Several Jehovah's Witnesses from eastern North Carolina will appear in the program. Local Witnesses, according to Nichols, are now making an effort to invite people to attend this free convention designed for all persons who are "lovers of righteousness."

Gift From Kiwanians

ECU News Bureau
A telecaption decoder, enabling deaf persons to receive the spoken words broadcast on closed-captioned television programs, has been given to East Carolina University by the Kiwanis Club of Greenville.

The device will be connected to a television set in the lobby of Aycock Dormitory for the immediate use of five deaf students now residing in that dormitory as well as other deaf students on campus.

Michael Ernest, director of the ECU Program for Hearing-Impaired Students, said an increasing number of network programs are broadcast with closed-captioning, visible as printed words to viewers with specially-equipped television sets.

"We are very grateful to the Kiwanis Club for its generous contribution of the telecaption decoder," said Ernest. "Such support of our program will enable our students to have access to the entertainment and educational world of television that has been largely unavailable to them."

Journalist As TV Sports Guy?

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's something daring and new: a network sports chief who is steeped in news tradition. He's talking about creating an investigative sports journalism team for his network.

Hmm. Can a journalist be a TV sports guy? I mean, is that legal? I thought a head network sports type had to be a pyrotechnician with a deep appreciation for female mud wrestling. What does journalism have to do with TV sports? I thought network television's idea of a sports reporting was to hire an ex-jock who could say, "Some kinda quarterback!" and throw his arm around the hero's shoulder at the end of the game. I thought the guy who hired him, the network sports chief, had to be a fellow in gold jewelry walked around shrieking, "Give me visual!"

But, no. CBS Sports has brought into its employ one Van Gordon Sauter, a man whose resume includes employment as war correspondent for the Detroit

Free Press and as CBS' Paris bureau chief. From such a man, one could only have expected such comments as these, made before the National Television Academy last week:

"We are ... getting out of the trashsports business as quickly as we can work off contracts."

Huh?
"We are no longer going to have motorcyclists moving walls with their faces. We are no longer going to have misshapen men hauling refrigerators up steps to a Playboy Club somewhere in New Jersey."

Okay, what gives?
This:
CBS Sports, old and weary and lagging far behind its competitors in sports coverage, both in terms of what it covers and how, clearly needed a change. It was the only network without regular coverage of college sports. It was the only network without baseball. Its "Sports Spectacular" was neither spectacular nor often concerned with sports. Its NFL coverage, while featuring some good broadcasters, lacked innovation and spark.

Last summer, sports chief Frank Smith was removed from his post. But instead of trying for the quick fix by hiring a production hot-shot to run things, CBS looked for an architect who could redesign the entire sports division.

In Sauter, they have a man of keen mind and proven organizational skills. In 2½ years as general manager of CBS' station here, KNXT, Sauter transformed a moribund news operation into one of the market's leaders. At CBS Sports, which he joined last summer, Sauter has already begun to make a difference.

One of the first things Sauter did was scuttle "CBS Sports Spectacular," which had become an embarrassment next to ABC's "Wide World of Sports" and NBC's "SportsWorld." In its place, beginning mid-April, will be a new sports anthology series hosted by Brent Musberger.

The new series will be hosted live and will be the showcase for the new sports journalism team. And there won't be trash sports.

"We're getting out of events we don't think appropriate to our image."

Sauter said in an interview, "things like 'The World's Strongest Man' and 'NFL Cheerleaders.' We hope to acquire new, quality events, and to broaden the show's appeal."

Two events already signed for the new series (which has not yet been given a title) are the 24-hour Le Mans endurance race and the 152-year-old Oxford-Cambridge crew race.

And, in a major victory for CBS Sports, Sauter announced this week an agreement with the NCAA that will bring the college basketball championship tournament to CBS for three years, beginning in 1982. The college game has been a boon to NBC, which has made stars of its college basketball broadcasting trio, comprising Al McGuire, Billy Packer and Dick Enberg.

CBS hasn't been in college sports for 19 years, and the college game — football or basketball — demands a different style than that applied to pro sports. Sauter says he will create "a whole new organization to handle the NCAA."

He'd like to import McGuire or Packer, but says

NBC Turns To Friday Changes

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Carson has rejected a request from NBC to extend his "Tonight Show" to 90 minutes to counter the growing success of ABC's "Fridays," network sources say.

NBC's request was an attempt to rebuild its competitive standing in the lucrative late-night programming arena. Carson's refusal, not entirely unexpected, led NBC to develop a new late-Friday program to compete with "Fridays."

"Midnight Special," in its eighth year on NBC, will be canceled.

The new NBC program, designed to attract the coveted 18-to-34-year-old crowd now going to "Fridays," probably will be unveiled for NBC affiliates over the weekend, said the sources, who asked not to be identified. Affiliates will be in New York for the National Association of Television Programming Executives convention.

Ironically, the show NBC is launching will counter an ABC program that was invented to siphon off some of the popularity of an NBC show, "Saturday Night Live."

Further, "Saturday Night Live" isn't even on the air now except in repeat, having taken a month off to recuperate and rebuild after a disastrous start this season.

This peculiar scenario would have seemed untenable to NBC two years ago, when its "Saturday Night Live" was the prince of late-night weekend television, virtually unchallenged in its grip on the valuable but elusive youth audience.

It still would have seemed an unlikely circumstance to NBC bosses last year, when ABC forwarded "Fridays," which was dismissed as a cheap imitation of "Saturday Night Live." "SNL," while tiring a bit from an aficionado's view, was more broadly popular than ever.

But "SNL" creator Lorne Michaels and the entire cast quit the show after last season. His successor, Jean Doumanian, delivered what critics considered an inferior version, and "SNL" began to fade.

Ms. Doumanian quit the show this week and was replaced by Dick Ebersol, who helped develop the original "Saturday Night Live."

In the meantime, "Fridays" has grown, in quality and audience level. Last month, for the first time, "Fridays" surpassed "Saturday Night Live" in the ratings.

Even though the two shows aren't in head-to-head competition, they do compete for advertisers. It's reported that advertisers seeking to reach the younger, late-night audiences are now spending their money on "Fridays."

"Saturday Night Live" has reportedly slashed its commercial rates in half, dropping rates from $60,000 to $30,000 per half-minute.

Thus, the restructuring of "Saturday Night Live." In the meantime, NBC wanted a program that could compete directly with "Fridays." The network's first impulse was to ask Carson to extend his Friday night show by 30 minutes.

NBC has been trying to broaden the appeal of "Midnight Special," a rock 'n' roll show that followed Carson on Fridays. Various new formats were tried and considered, finally leading the show's host, Wolfman Jack, to quit the show last week.

Heart-Lung Transplant Keeps Woman Alive

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — When doctors told Ofelia Jones they wanted to take her son's heart and lungs, she told them to "go for it." Now, "a little part" of the teen-ager is helping keep Mary Gohlke alive.

Robert Jones, 15, was killed Friday night in a bicycle-car accident near his Chula Vista home. But his heart and lungs were flown to Stanford University Medical Center, where on Monday surgeons transplanted them into Mrs. Gohlke, 45.

The Mesa, Ariz., woman became the world's only living double-transplant recipient and was in critical but stable condition Wednesday night.

"I've always been a realistic person," said Mrs. Jones. "Once you're dead, the soul leaves the body. So if you can help humanity, great."

"My little guy isn't here anymore, but his heart is still there," she said.

The surgery marked the end of a 10-year gap in heart-lung transplants. Three previous attempts, between 1968 and 1971, ended in the recipients' deaths. The longest-living of the three survived only 23 days. None of the operations was performed at Stanford.

But doctors are more hopeful in Mrs. Gohlke's case. The newspaper advertising executive has been receiving an experimental drug, cyclosporin-A, that fights rejection of the new organs without knocking out the body's ability to combat infections, said Dr. Bruce Reitz, head of the transplant team. The windpipe is especially vulnerable to infections.

On Tuesday, physicians removed Mrs. Gohlke's respirator, forcing the new organs to function on their own.

"She's progressing very normally, although she's still a bit tired," said Mary Campbell, a hospital spokeswoman, adding that Mrs. Gohlke was expected to remain at the hospital for two months.

The hospital said Mrs. Gohlke was able to sit up and drink clear liquids Wednesday.

Mrs. Gohlke decided to have a transplant because less drastic measures had failed to stop the heart damage done by pulmonary hypertension, a lung disease.

'Bomb Threat' Just Old Note

SODDY DAISY, Tenn. (AP) — A written bomb threat that led to the evacuation of 10 workers at the Tennessee Valley Authority's Sequoyah nuclear plant was actually a discarded note composed as part of a safety drill, say officials.

The writer, an employee who was not identified, tossed the note into the garbage last week, the TVA said. It was found Monday by another worker, leading to the evacuation of the reactor containment building and a four-hour hunt for a bomb, officials said.

The mistake was discovered when the writer, who was off Monday, returned to work Tuesday and heard about the evacuation. The utility gave no explanation why the note was tossed into the trash or how it was used in the drill.

No-Wait Rebates!

With most other rebate offers, you have to wait for a check from the manufacturer. But not at Bob Barbour's!

We're offering you Instant Cash this month on Volvo, AMC Spirit, Concord and Eagle, Jeep, Renault LeCar and 18i. You can apply the money to your down payment, if you want—check these instant cash offers!

$600 Instant Cash on Jeeps CJ-5 & 7.

$500 Instant Cash on Volvos.

$400 Instant Cash on Le Car.

$800 Instant Cash on Renault 18i.

$500 Instant Cash On AMC Cars.

100 Gallons Free Gas With A New Honda!

Why offer a rebate on a car that gives you such great performance, quality and unbelievable resale value? Why not? And this month you can get your rebate check when your deal is closed! You don't have to wait.

We can't offer a rebate on Honda cars. Their great styling, durability and fuel efficiency has made them so popular that we have a hard time just getting enough for those of you who want them. But to make March special for all of our customers, we're giving 100 gallons of gas free with each new Honda sold this month.
