Surplus Allocated Development Work

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

In one of five public hearings conducted Thursday night, the City Council approved an amendment to the 1979-80 Community Development program relative to the allocation of over a million dollars in surplus urban renewal funds.

Ben Shivar, the city's CD coordinator, said the program is assured of receiving $1,222,585 in turnover from the close-out of the Central Business District and Southside projects and he said the figure will probably reach some $1.5 million.

Shivar said proposed funding areas for the surplus money includes: administration, including funding of the CD staff and $50,000 in staff support money for the Redevelopment Commission, $126,785; completion of urban renewal projects, $110,000; construction of 14th Street from Charles Boulevard to the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad, $833,800;

Completion of 14th Street from Broad Street to Farmville Boulevard, $45,000; completion of Wyatt and Howell Streets, $12,000; additional acquisition costs in South Evans, $45,000; housing rehabilitation, involving all target areas, $45,000; and a sidewalk on Third Street in the area of the University Towers midrise for the elderly, $5,000.

The Rev. R. Lee Griffin appealed to the council to give more attention to homes in the South Evans area, rather than allocate the bulk of funding to the 14th Street thoroughfare program. Lee said it appears doubtful the city will be successful in its application for a Small Cities grant and he said "why not be fair" and use money in hand to help residents in South Evans.

He added that "people are practically living outdoors" in sections of South Evans and he suggested the "quality of their lives" is more important than the completion of a street.

Shivar said the city can put rehabilitation money from the turnover funding into South Evans and it is expected that additional funds will be received when the final close-outs of the urban renewal programs are executed. However, none of the turnover funds will be available for use until May, he reported.

The CD director noted the city also hopes to receive word on its Small Cities pre-application in the next few weeks.

Mayor Don McGlohon mentioned that one of the reasons the 14th Street improvements received priority consideration was the need to have a corridor to serve traffic to and from the medical complex.

In a related matter, council members authorized City Manager Ed Wyatt to file an amendment to the 1979-80 CD program with the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Wyatt said the amendment involved the appropriation of additional funds realized from several sources, the bulk of which amounted to $10,146 from the sale of land in West Meadowbrook to Hoke Construction Co.

The city manager said the income will provide additional CD administrative funds for salaries and travel through May.

The council, after a public hearing, voted to concur with the recommendation of the state Board of Transportation that the section of Sedgfield Drive, between Hooker Road and Seaboard Coast Line Railroad, and the section between St. Andrews Drive and Memorial Drive, be deleted from the local Thoroughfare Plan.

Wyatt said a portion of Sedgfield from Evans Street over to the railroad had already been removed from the plan at the (Please turn to Page 2)

OPERATION GROUPE — Vernon D. Myer, Southeast Regional Director of the Drug Enforcement Administration points out areas involved in smuggling routes for illicit drugs. A federal investigation led to indictment of ringleaders of 14 smuggling operations responsible for 30 to 40 percent of marijuana smuggled into the U.S. (AP Laserphoto)

Drug Agency Claims Pot Traffic Badly Crippled

MIAMI (AP) — Authorities who candidly acknowledge they were outgunned in the past by wily drug traffickers have arrested more than 120 people and seized $1 billion in drugs in what they are calling the nation's largest marijuana-smuggling crackdown.

U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration estimated Thursday that the arrests and seizures effectively stopped the flow of about a third of the controlled substances used in the United States.

"This will put them out of operation temporarily. We hope ultimately it will mean an elimination of them," said Vernon D. Myer, southeast regional director for the DEA.

Federal officials said they had rounded up 122 of an estimated 155 "high level managers" named in indictments stemming from the investigation dubbed "Operation Grouper." More suspects were being sought today.

President Reagan extended his "personal commendation" to the agents involved, said Attorney General William French Smith.

"It's just remarkable that all these seizures could take place, and our men never were caught," said Peter Gruden, chief of the DEA office in Miami.

Federal grand juries in Florida, Louisiana and Georgia returned indictments Thursday charging defendants with one or more counts of possession with intent to distribute a controlled substance, conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute a controlled substance and participating in a continuing criminal enterprise.

DEA Administrator Peter Bensinger said in Washington the 22-month investigation resulted in the seizure of 1.2 million pounds of marijuana, 831 pounds of cocaine, 3 million doses of methaqualone, 30 ocean-going ships used to smuggle drugs, two airplanes and $1 million in cash.

He placed the value of the drugs at more than $1 billion and said the crackdown dismantled 14 drug rings responsible for $22 billion in retail drug sales annually.

He said "Operation Grouper" was "the single largest enforcement activity ever domestically against the marijuana trade."

Three defendants, Jose Fernandez, 36, of Vero Beach, Fla.; Reuben Perez, 37, of Miami, and Paul Hinderling, were being held on $20 million bond or more, Bensinger said. Hinderling's address was not immediately known.

"Operation Grouper" began in Panama City, in the Florida Panhandle, and spread to other points, Myer said.

Bensinger said nine DEA agents gained the confidence of drug smugglers by posing as drug off-loaders, providing smugglers with sophisticated electronics equipment wired to the Coast Guard and "safe" storage areas in the Bahamas and the United States.

He said finding a source of supply in Colombia, South America, was easy, as was purchasing ships and distributing drugs in the United States. Unloading drugs from mother ships offshore was the most dangerous point for drug traffickers because of law enforcement surveillance, he said.

In 24 instances, information supplied by undercover agents allowed the Coast Guard to seize drugs on the open ocean. Bensinger said six times, to establish trust, the agents allowed the drugs to be taken ashore. Then they tipped local law enforcement authorities so they could seize the drugs.

DEA agent Ted Weed of Miami said in other instances, agents provided the smugglers with sophisticated electronic communications equipment that, unknown to the smugglers, also monitored by the Coast Guard.

Students Aided

East Carolina University financial aid director Robert Boudreaux said that every student whose work-study funds ran out has been assisted with some other type of aid when there was need.

About 200 of the 575 for whom the cutoff of work-study funds was announced on or about Feb. 25 were "picked up with the other institutional programs," he said. Most indicated they can get along by "tightening their belts." He said, as far as he knows, none have had to go to private lending institutions for loans to finish the school year. "I think they would have come to us first," he said.

Governor Says Gas Tax Boost To Be Necessary

AYDEN — Calling the completion of U.S. 264 from Wilson to Greenville "the single most important thing to be done," Governor Jim Hunt spoke about transportation to a crowd of over 250 at the first Ayden Council Pepsi break this morning.

"The completion of U.S. 264 from Wilson to Greenville will play a vital role in the continued economic development of this area," he added. "It is a goal I have worked toward my whole life and one I know many of you have dreamed about." Hunt offered no information in his speech, which dealt heavily with transportation, as to when this completion would take place.

"We — the people of North Carolina — have built the largest state-maintained highway system in the nation — 75,000 miles," added the governor. "In a real sense, our economy — and our jobs — ride on our roads."

"But I have to give you some bad news today," he continued. "Our road and highways are in trouble. And we — the people that built them — are going to have to face up to that problem."

Indicating there would be an increase in the state's gasoline tax, Hunt said "The amount has not crystalized yet but most legislators are convinced we need something." Hunt added legislators were also considering alternatives such as taxes on luxuries.

Hunt said in 1970, it cost the state $9,600 to resurface one mile of a highway. Now, he explained, it costs $25,000. "In 1970 a ton of the asphalt we use in resurfacing cost $31.63," noted the governor. "Today, that same ton costs $153.23."

According to Hunt, the state resurfaced 2,810 miles of roads in 1970, but this year will resurface 740 miles. "Right now we need to resurface 20,000 miles just to stay ahead," he emphasized.

"Ayden is ripe for further industrial development," he continued. "Your town has grown an amazing 26.9 percent in the last 10 years. That points out the need for more attention (Please turn to Page 12)

"WE MAY HAVE TO RAISE GASOLINE TAXES A LITTLE", . . . said Governor Jim Hunt in Ayden this morning, "but the amount has not crystalized yet." More Than A Third Of Public Said Qualify For Govm't Aid

By RANDOLPHE E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A

new Census Bureau study indicates more than a third of all American households qualify for at least one government aid program.

In its first look at who gets government help, the Census Bureau compiled statistics on the recipients of five programs in 1979: Medicare, Medicaid, food stamps, school lunch assistance and subsidized housing.

Of an estimated 79.1 million households at the time, the bureau found that 27.2 million were reached by one or more of the programs studied.

However, Gordon W. Green Jr., author of the study, cautioned against interpreting the numbers as an indication of wide use of poverty programs.

The survey showed Medicare covered one or more persons in 18,526,000 households in 1979 and that more than 15 million of those included someone aged 65 or older. For 13,835,000 households, about 51 percent of the 27.2 million, Medicare was the only one of the benefits studied for which someone in the household was eligible.

According to the report released Thursday, 90 percent of the people covered by Medicare were white, 9 percent black and the rest were listed as Hispanic. The bureau said it counted people covered by the program but did not compile figures on how many of them actually received benefits during 1979.

Of the Medicare-covered individuals, 40 percent either lived alone or with people not related to them, and in 78 percent of the cases the head of the household was a woman.

The median income of households with someone covered by Medicare was $8,584, compared with $16,533 for all households in the country. However, Green noted that most Medicare recipients are over age 65 and living on retirement income.

Eligibility for Medicaid, on the other hand, is based on income. This program tries to help needy families and those with dependent children. It covered 18.1 million people in 8 million households under a complex array of rules which vary from state to state.

The median income of households with Medicaid coverage was only $5,990.

Of them, 68 percent had a white householder, 30 percent were black and 9 percent Hispanic.

Those totals, and some others, will add up to more than 100 percent because Hispanics are not considered a race. People of Hispanic origin may list their race as black, white or other.

Turning to food stamps, the report said about 5.9 million households received stamps, 66 percent of which had children under age 19 in the household. These households had a median income of $5,300 and 77 percent of them had incomes under $10,000.

Of these families, 42 percent had female householders with no husband present and 17 percent were aged 65 and over. Of the households receiving food stamps, 63 percent white, 35 percent black and 10 percent of Spanish origin.

While all public school lunches are at least partly subsidized, special programs provide free or reduced cost lunches to children from low-income families.

Cab Rates

The City Council adopted a revised rate schedule for local taxicab fares last night, amounting to an increase of approximately 25 cents in the rates charged for each taxicab zone, as well as rates charged from one zone to another.

The new rates will become effective in Greenville on Monday, March 16. It was pointed out that the last taxicab rate increase was in June of 1979.

Council members also approved an amendment to the taxicab zone map. The amendment adds a sixth zone in the area of U.S. 264 Bypass West from Mail Drive westwardly and includes the Red Oak and Oakdale subdivisions.

The new area will be designated as Zone Six.

Charge Swindle

MIAMI (AP) — A leader of the Cuban exile community has been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of mail and telephone fraud in connection with the boatlift that brought more than 125,000 of his countrymen to Florida last year.

Hildo Romeo, 45, was arrested Thursday on charges that he used the mail, telephone and telegraph in a plan to defraud seven Cuban exiles.

The government alleged Romeo told the exiles he would get their relatives out of Cuba, obtained $7,500 from them and kept the money.

Romeo pleaded innocent to two counts each of mail, telephone and telegraph fraud.

U.S. Magistrate Herbert Shapiro released him on $50,000 bond.

Romeo's indictment resulted from a continuing investigation by the Justice Department Cuban Boat Flotilla Task Force, which includes U.S. Customs Service and postal inspectors. The team has been looking into possible violations related to last year's "Freedom Flotilla" boatlift.

The indictment alleged that Romeo traveled to Cuba and told several people he could get them out of the country for a fee. It also charged that he had "sufficient influence with the Cuban government to secure their release."

SALVATION ARMY NEEDS FURNITURE

The Salvation Army's supply of furniture to help the needy and sell in its thrift store to finance further helping of the needy is nearly depleted. "Lately, people just haven't been donating furniture as they once did," Salvation Army secretary Linda Whorton said. "Guess it's the economy," she said. "Maybe they're selling it themselves. Maybe they're holding onto it. Whatever the reason, we're encountering real needs we cannot meet without the help of the community."

She reminded that any gift to the Salvation Army is tax-deductible.

Furniture that the donors find too large to transport to the headquarters at 2337 W. Dickinson Avenue will be picked up upon request, Whorton said. Pickup times are Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons.

GREAT HELP

Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Ballard have asked Hotline to convey thank yous for everything their family, burned out of their home, received as a result of a Hotline appeal. "It was a great help and meant a lot," they wrote.

request of Union Carbide.

Approval was also given, following a hearing, to an amendment to the subdivision regulations of the City Code regarding design standards for subdivision plats.

Under the amended section, "All portions of every building shall be located within 600 feet of a public street which has been dedicated to the public and is currently being maintained by the city or for which the guarantee of street improvements has been accepted by the city."

The amendment also provides that, "A terminal private drive shall be a maximum length of 500 feet and shall have a cul-de-sac at the end of said drive or an approved turn around as specified in the Manual of Standard Designs and Details.

An amendment to the Zoning Ordinance was approved relative to petition filing fees and corner lots. The planning staff recommended a $50 filing fee be established for rezoning petitions. The corner lot amendment stipulates that whenever a commercial district adjoins a residential zoning district, the side yard of the commercial district shall be equal to the adjoining front yard setback of the residential zoning area.

A resolution was adopted, following the fifth hearing, confirming the assessment roll and levying assessments for improvements on portions of Beaumont Road and Evergreen Drive.

H. P. Streeper presented a petition to the council that he said contained the signatures of 2,038 "citizen taxpayers" opposed to the $5 city automobile license fee.

Citing a 500 percent increase in the tag privilege tax, Streeper told the council members it was their "fault there is widespread opposition to increases in taxes."

Streeper asked for the council to consider three things: a $3 rebate to the taxpayers from the $5 tag cost; cancellation of the city tag requirement; and scheduling of a public meeting to discuss the tag matter and city tax rate.

McGlohon pointed out the city will have a number of public hearings on the budget process and the matter of city tags will again be an area of consideration.

He said the city will have to find revenue sources to support the services demanded by the majority of the citizens. The mayor reasoned that if money is refunded, the city will either have to cut back on services or find additional means of raising the funds.

He encouraged citizen input at the public hearings.

The bid submitted by Barium Spring Home for Children at Barium Spring, N.C. for one of the city's surplus Mercedes buses was approved in the amount of $7,511 and three other bids were rejected.

The bid submitted by Mervis Uniforms of Virginia Beach ($9,143) for police spring and summer uniforms was approved. Hub Uniform Co. of Charlotte actually offered the low bid by $74.33, it was pointed out, but the city has its current contract with Mervis and the difference in the bid was not viewed as being enough to justify a change in contracts. Mervis also submitted a 30-day delivery schedule while Hub offered a delivery date of 60 days.

Approval was given to a budget amendment amounting to $2,200 to fund basic carpentry work at the Humber House and also to pay fuel bills and insurance premiums relating to the use of the structure as a regional office by the Division of Archives and History.

Wyatt said the project involves a joint effort with the county and it was pointed out that a fund raising effort on the part of local citizens is apparently in the works as a means of raising funds for capital improvements on the house.

The council authorized Wyatt to negotiate an agreement for lease of the Winstead property at Third and Greene Streets to the Chamber of Commerce for renovation and use of the structure for its offices.

Thomas M. Shea completed one three-year term on the Greenville Energy Commission and did not wish to be reappointed. The council appointed Margaret Wirth, who currently serves on the Greenville Utilities Commission, to succeed Shea on the energy board for a three-year term.

The appointment of L. Frederic Robbins Jr. to a five-year term on the Utilities Commission, succeeding Dr. Ray Minges who completed the maximum of two five-year terms, was approved.

Cosmonauts In Salyut Flight

MOSCOW (AP) — Two Soviet cosmonauts rocketed toward a linkup with the Salyut 6 orbiting laboratory as the United States continued preparations to launch its first manned space flight in six years, the shuttle Columbia.

One of the cosmonauts, engineer Viktor Savinykh, is the 100th person to fly in space. He and Col. Vladimir Kovalyonok, the mission commander, roared into orbit Thursday aboard a Soyuz T-4 spacecraft.

The Soviet news agency Tass said all systems were functioning normally, the cosmonauts were "feeling well," and that they would do maintenance, repairs and experiments on the Salyut 6 after linkup.

It did not give a date for docking or say how long the mission would last. Salyut 6 has been in orbit since Sept. 29, 1977. Linked with it is a resupply craft, Progress 12, sent aloft Jan. 26, 1981. Tass said.

The Soviet mission was the first manned space flight of 1981 and came exactly one month before the 20th anniversary of the first one ever — by Soviet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin.

The last manned U.S. space flight was in 1975, when Apollo 18 linked up with the Soviet spaceship Soyuz 19. The next manned U.S. mission will be the launch of Columbia, set for early April.

The longest American space flight was 84 days — in 1974 aboard Skylab 5. But the Soviets still hold the record, 185 days aboard Salyut 6. It was set by cosmonauts Valery Ryumin and Leonid Popov, who returned six weeks ago.

REGAINED SIGHT — Joseph Sardler, of Mt. Airy, N.C. with his 5-year-old daughter who he saw for the first time Wednesday after a freak accident restored his eyesight. (AP Laserphoto)

Regains Sight In An Accident

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — A man who tripped over a dog and hit his head on a wall says the accident has given him something he thought lost forever — his sight.

"I'm finally able to see my five-year-old daughter and my two boys and my wife," an ecstatic Joseph Sardler said Thursday.

The 32-year-old Sardler lost the sight in one eye because of optic nerve atrophy when he was 14 months old. He became blind in the other eye about six years ago.

For years, he could see only light and dark patches. He was unable to work and his wife earned money by working at a factory.

On Wednesday night, Sardler said he went to the basement to wash some clothes for his wife, tripped over a dog and hit his head on a wall.

When he came to, he said, he could see the furnace. He yelled out to his family. "I can see."

The family telephoned the rescue squad, which took him to a local hospital. Doctors told him he was hyperventilating and almost in a state of shock from being able to see again with one eye.

Dr. J. Dale Simmons, who examined Sardler on Thursday, said the man "can read now and recognize things that he could not before."

The doctor refused to connect the fall with the return of Sardler's sight, but said it couldn't be ruled out either.

Sardler said that since regaining his sight he has spent a lot of time outside looking at trees and flowers and the sky.

"Sight is the most precious thing there is once you lose it," he said.

Sardler said he lost the feeling in his legs after the accident, but that has returned.

Two Wrecks Occur At Same Location

An estimated $6,050 property damage resulted from two pre-dawn collisions here Thursday, police department investigators reported.

Officers said the first mishap, at 3:25 a.m., involved a truck driven by Charles Edwin Houck of Jacksonville.

According to police, the Houck truck ran off Greenville Boulevard, 270 feet south of the Rosewood Drive intersection, struck a Department of Transportation pole supporting signs across Greenville Boulevard, struck a mailbox, a Greenville Utilities Commission pole guy wire, and bushes in another yard.

Investigators, who charged Houck with driving under the influence, estimated damage at $2,000 to the truck, $1,000 to the DOT pole, $250 to the GUC pole, $500 to the yard at 1811 Rosewood Dr., and $300 to the yard at 978 Greenville Boulevard.

The second mishap occurred at the same location at 3:44 a.m., when a car driven by Lonnie Lawrence McCoy of 107A Brookwood Dr. collided with a cable and the DOT poles knocked down in the earlier mishap.

Damage to the McCoy car was estimated at $2,000.

Declare Alaska Is Now 'Free'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank Murkowski says the signing of orders implementing the Alaska lands bill, represents "emancipation of our state from the shackles of the federal government — 22 years after statehood."

The Alaska Republican was among a group of state officials who praised the orders after their signing Thursday by Interior Secretary James Watt. But environmentalists say the action signals Reagan administration plans to push ahead with oil, gas, timber and mineral development in areas they fought to preserve.

The orders dealt with legislation putting 104 million acres into protected areas. A little more than half the land would be totally off limits to development.

Solidarity Leader Try Avert Another Strike

By THOMAS W. NETTER Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leaders rushed to Radom today to try to avert the second strike threat of the week. Poland's communist regime also was expected to open talks in Radom, but continued a campaign against dissidents.

A spokesman for Solidarity, Poland's big independent union, said the leaders went to Radom to "discuss the issues there and possibly win some sort of postponement" of the strike threat made Thursday by representatives from 340 factories in the industrial city 50 miles south of Warsaw.

The factory representatives said unless the government began talks by Tuesday there would be a two-hour warning strike in Radom Wednesday, and that if talks failed to begin by March 22, a general strike would start March 23.

The Radom workers listed 17 demands, including wage increases, a purge of local police and Communist Party officials and a memorial to rioters beaten by security forces in Radom in 1976 during a protest against meat price hikes.

Radom has been a center of labor unrest for years, and the tensions increased there earlier this week after four men beat high school students who saw them tearing down Solidarity posters, a union spokesman said.

On Tuesday, some 500,000 Solidarity members in Lodz, Poland's second biggest city, held a one-hour warning strike and threatened a province-wide strike Thursday.

But government negotiators met Wednesday with Solidarity chief Lech Walesa and agreed to meet the workers' demands to reinstate five fired hospital workers and allow Solidarity to continue organizing.

The Lodz province-wide strike was averted and Walesa then appealed to the Radom workers to call off their strike threat, but they refused to listen to him. Walesa planned to travel to Radom again Monday.

Meanwhile, Adam Michnik, a leader of the dissident Committee for Social Self-Defense, which advises Solidarity, was hauled into the prosecutor's office in Warsaw, told to report three times weekly and threatened with arrest if he left the capital, Solidarity sources said.

Michnik refused a summons a week ago, saying it was improperly prepared. The committee's chairman, Jacek Kuron, spent five hours in detention last week and was handed a summons saying charges would be preferred against him. The government has accused the committee of fomenting recent student strikes.

Four other dissidents of the ultra-nationalist Confederation of Independent Poland face trial on charges of anti-state activities, and the Polish media accused them Thursday of working with foreign collaborators to undermine the regime.

Poland has been buffeted by sporadic labor unrest for nine months, and Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania said Thursday that "the stabilization of the economic and political situation" will be one of the key tasks of the next party congress.

"The preparations for the congress must be conducive to actions aimed at improving our difficult situation, both in the political and economic spheres," he told the commission preparing the agenda for the congress, Warsaw Radio said.

Poland is a key member of the Warsaw Pact, and the Soviets have announced East Bloc military exercises will start in Poland and neighboring countries later this month. This has led the Reagan administration to restate U.S. concerns about military intervention in Poland.

Keep Jewelry In Bank Vault

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My mother is an invalid, close to 80. She has live-in help to look after her, and she changes help very often. With so many strangers coming and going, a problem has come up.

Several years ago, when Mother first became ill, we agreed that I would place her jewelry (which is very valuable) in a bank vault. Now she wants me to bring all her jewelry home.

I told her that I would be glad to take out special pieces for her to wear on special occasions, but this doesn't seem to please her. She wants all her jewelry at home.

I am so afraid it will be stolen. It's her jewelry, Abby. What to do?

WORRIED DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: One of the most controversial issues people must deal with is, "How much can one properly do for somebody else's 'own good'?"

Your reluctance to let your mother keep her valuable jewelry at home is understandable, and very wise indeed. It may be her jewelry, but you are her daughter and responsible for her welfare.

Bring all the jewelry home for Mother to see and handle, and then return it to the bank for permanent safekeeping. Continue to reassure your mother that

DEAR ABBY: I laughed at the letters in your column many times, thinking that people just made up stories to tell you. Now I find I'm one of those people, and believe me, I'm not laughing.

Some time ago I had relations with a girl I had known for a while, never anticipating the consequences. Well, a year and two penicillin shots later, my doctor tells me I have herpes, and that this virus comes and goes and cannot be cured. He also stated that there is a good chance that I may pass it on to whomever I were to have sexual contact with. Knowing this makes me feel like a leper, and I have not had relations with anyone since — except prostitutes, which is all I deserve.

I am 22, Abby, and I'm ashamed of putting my foot into my mother's house. If anyone knew, well, I just couldn't handle it.

Please research this and tell me what to do as soon as you can. It's driving me crazy.

SECOND-CLASS CITIZEN FOR LIFE

DEAR CITIZEN: Unfortunately there is no known cure for Herpes Simplex 2, which is the type you have. For more information on this subject, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: HELP, P.O. Box 100, Palo Alto, Calif. 94302.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

JOIN THE EASTER PARADE (PART II)
Easter is a time to celebrate rebirth and renewal. The Church rejoices over the resurrection of Jesus Christ. In a more general sense we are also rejoicing over the resurrection of nature after the winter. We celebrate the joys and beauties of the first signs of greenery and the blossoms which promise to bear nourishing fruit and fragrant flowers.

The world of fashion also celebrates. As people shed their winter cover-ups, they pay more attention to delicate detail in their clothing and accessories. When the overcoats and scarves come off, fine jewelry finds new importance. This spring's jewelry is a truly joyous celebration of two of the beauties of nature: precious metals and gemstones. Both metals and gem minerals are mined—from deep within the earth's crust or from the hills and mountains which were formed during the early earth's violent volcanic activity. They are truly a miracle of nature.

Nature did a wonderful job of creating these wonders, but jewelry craftsmen take the beauty of the raw materials and magnify it by cutting, faceting and polishing. The finished pieces of jewelry are works of art. And this season's jewelry really befits the happy season.

In my next article I'd like to tell you about diamonds, aquamarine, emerald and pearls—probably the freshest, most alive gems of spring. I'll explain their importance to this spring's well-dressed woman.

Choosing Priorities

Things are going to be tight for the Greenville city school system, just as they will be for all school systems.

The prospect is for cuts in funding on the federal and state level and the board of education is having to face that prospect now.

Terry Shank noted the cuts have to be made, "and yet our mandates are the same."

Other board members said they had talked to County Manager Reginald Gray and the indication was that severe cuts were ahead.

The conversation took place in a workshop session dealing with the school's budget.

Quickly put off was the purchase of two lots adjacent to Sadie Sautler School.

There there was the question of $61,500 for roofing at South Greenville, Agnes Fullilove, Sadie Sautler and Eastern.

It appeared that heating considerations might take precedence. Around $60,000 is needed for boilers at Rose High and it was pointed out they are 20 years old. If they go out in the dead of winter it would mean closing the school.

Site improvements funds were tabled, as was $25,000 for planning, since there is nothing to plan with funds being so limited.

If we must choose between things so basic as roof repair and boiler replacement, we are indeed in a crucial crunch for education funds.

"I'm not asking any questions! I was just curious how you people have managed to keep this a secret from the president."

"It hasn't been easy. We see him all the time, and we have to be very careful we don't spill the beans, because he'd get very mad if he heard we were soliciting funds from businessmen doing work with the government. But once we put Ronnie in the White House, we made a vow he'd get all the support we could give him. We expect the business community to do more than pay lip service to Ronnie's programs."

"Mr. Flick, I'm writing the check as fast as I can."

"Take your time. There's no rush. I'm on my way to see the Queeg Boat Company. They're hoping to get a big submarine contract from the Navy."

"I'm sure they'll come across."

"I wish you wouldn't put it that way, Mr. Ellis. This is purely a voluntary fund drive. If someone wants to give, fine. If he doesn't, we can always find another boat company to build our submarines."

"Mr. Flick, would you get angry if I gave you $150,000 instead of $100,000?"

"I don't think so. But I want it clearly understood that whatever you donate will have no effect on whether you get the $500 million contract for your superb air-to-air missile."

Impact Aid Is Potent

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — On one budget-cutting issue, President Reagan and Jimmy Carter are in solid agreement. So were Presidents Ford, Nixon, Johnson, Kennedy, Eisenhower and Truman before them.

But that unanimous lineup hardly budged Congress, which has invariably renewed — and often increased — school subsidies to what are called federally affected areas, communities with concentrations of government employees whose children attend public schools.

The program now sends federal aid to more than 4,300 school districts, one out of every four in the nation. More to the point, some of the money goes to schools in more than 400 of the 435 congressional districts.

That's a potent lobby, and impact aid is likely to be one of the most difficult targets on Reagan's list of budget cut proposals.

It has withstood the insistence of presidents past and present, Republican and Democratic, that the program has become something it wasn't supposed to be.

The original idea, 30 years ago, was to compensate school districts that educate the children but cannot collect taxes either from federal employees or on government property.

But the present program provides some aid whatever the tax status of the parents. There is aid for pupils who live in federally subsidized public housing. In some cases, school districts get to count the children of people who work in government buildings, whether they are on the federal payroll or not.

Advocates of the program say that's only fair, since the federal presence does indeed have an impact on local school costs. Reagan and his predecessors say otherwise.

In his farewell budget, Carter proposed a drastic cut in impact aid, from an estimated $932 million now to about $457 million next year.

He said aid should be maintained only for school districts where at least 20 percent of the pupils actually live on federal property, which isn't subject to local taxes. He recommended that the balance of the program be sharply curtailed.

Under Carter's formula, which now is Reagan's, aid would go to 323 school districts, to compensate for about 168,500 pupils, in 1982.

Under the current program, impact aid covers more than 2.3 million pupils under one or another of 23 different formulas for payments.

In his budget proposals, Reagan said that in a time of austerity, the government can no longer provide the aid simply because of the residence pattern of federal employees.

"With the exception of the tiny fraction of federal employees who are exempt from income taxes in the District of Columbia by virtue of employment with a congressman from their home state, all other federal employees pay state income, real property and personal property taxes in the jurisdictions in which they live in a manner no different than other citizens," the Reagan message said.

"To the extent that well-paid federal employees augment the tax base of the regions in which they live, there is no justification for additional federal payments to the schools to which they send their children solely on the grounds of residence."

His administration, like all the others that have tried to cut the program, said the current system sends aid to some of the wealthiest school districts in the country.

That includes the school districts of the Washington suburbs, with their heavy population of government employees.

Reagan said that should end, that state and local governments should "assume total responsibility," save in those districts with major concentrations of families who both live and work on federal property.

It's not a huge program, but it will take a major battle to win the cuts Reagan wants — or even a portion of them. And it will be a major victory if he succeeds where seven presidents have tried and failed.

THIS AFTERNOON

On National Scene

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Future political fortunes of Gov. Jim Hunt are likely to take an upbeat look from two major developments: he will head a national committee to reform Democratic Party and nominating procedures; and he has close ties to the new chairman of the National Democratic Party.

Hunt and Los Angeles lawyer-banker Charles Manatt go back a long way as friends and allies. The North Carolina governor went out of his way to encourage fellow Democratic governors and others in the party machinery to back Manatt for the post.

Now, Manatt and Hunt are conferring on the scope and process for studying and drafting the reform moves which will be designed to "reform the reforms" which have put control of the party into the hands of non-political fringe elements.

While no timetable has been set, Gov. Hunt feels the changes must be in place in the next year and one-half, in time for the selection of a presidential candidate for 1984.

Reforms

Hunt prefers that the steps which lie ahead not be called "reforms." Actually, it is reform of the convention and nominating procedures which led to the present dilemma. The party adopted rules which gave power to racial minorities, women, and other non-political groups while stripping power from elected Democratic officials and precinct or state-level Democratic stalwarts. Open primaries were encouraged and proliferated which, Hunt now believes, will only get longer and more costly down the road unless steps are taken that.

Another little noted side effect of the present system is that largely uncommitted and inexperienced delegates produce the party platform at convention, while the platform planks become the responsibility of elected officials at state and national levels even though those officials had no significant role to play in drawing up the document. The net result has been an ever growing gap between what the convention says the party stands for and will do; and what results. This creates a serious policy problem and a credibility gap of some concern to politicians.

Says Hunt of the work which he will now direct:

He doesn't want to see the party back up on the commitment which has been made to fairness in the process, and thinks involvement of women, racial minorities and young people can be protected.

Other Editors Say Business Climate

(Salisbury Post)

Too often what is the manufacturer's meat is the working men's poison. Or at least that appears to be the conclusion reached from a study that shows North Carolina had the second best manufacturers' business climate in the United States.

While "business climate" conjures up the image of bright skies and happy workers, the survey has nothing to do with weather, good working conditions or even contentment. The survey tells what the manufacturers regard as a good climate ... for them.

In this case, it means that unionization, at 6.9 percent, is the lowest in the nation, the average manufacturing wage, at $207, is the second lowest in the nation, workmen's compensation payments the second lowest and taxes the sixth lowest.

We would hope that other factors are as important in the continuing industrial development of North Carolina. We would like to think that good transportation, productive workers, convenience to markets, a basically rural orientation and splendid recreational opportunities would be as important to industry as the bread-and-butter factors cited in the survey.

Perhaps this is expecting too much. But in recent years businesses locating in the state have stressed the non-economic facts — perhaps hypocritically — in discussing why they came to North Carolina.

The issue of North Carolina's low average in manufacturing pay has been debated about, wept over, and studied to death. No matter what, the conclusion is always the same. North Carolina is one of the most heavily industrialized states in the union, and a high percentage of that industry is devoted to textiles, garments and furniture. And these, for historic and capitalization reasons, pay relatively low wages.

Some demon statistician once figured out how many Miller Brewing plants ($10 an hour and up) it would take to drag us up the per-capita income ladder. We can't recall the figure; suffice it to say the rest of the nation would have to spend 18 hours a day drinking beer to get us about midway.

The survey may be realistically cold-blooded about what makes a favorable business climate. But we would hope that North Carolina has more to offer than a haven from unions and an unlimited supply of low-priced labor. We think it does, but admittedly, it is easier to put a price tag on labor than it is to measure and price a favorable (weather) climate, a lack of congestion, and the small town atmosphere.

Strength For Today

WHAT MAKES RELIGION GENUINE?

Many people have all the appurtenances of religion without having any real religion in their hearts. In the last analysis, religion is primarily a trust in God. If we have that trust, the door is open to everything else religion has to offer. We have belief, confidence, kindness, and right conduct. Yet, on the other hand, we may have belief but no trust — even good conduct, but no trust in God.

Some people can be religious in the sense of the outward observances. They go to church, read their Bible, pray — but they do not trust. At the basis of all satisfactory human relationships lies the trust that persons have in one another. All satisfactory relationships between God and man reside in our being able to trust in Him who, by His very creation of us, indicates that He trusts us. Trust is so important that it should be in the forefront of religious life. —

Painful Realities Are To Come

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — If you're mortgaged to the limit — first mortgage, second mortgage and probably a home improvement loan too — you have some understanding also of the condition of American industry.

These are hard times. Businesses are paying some of the highest interest rates ever, and they're paying them on bigger loans than they can really tolerate. They need them to survive.

Henry Kaufman, a man who keeps reminding us of the painful realities of our personal, business and government economies, says the financial positions of corporations are worse than at any time in decades.

Kaufman, a partner of Salomon Brothers, the investment bankers, has offered so many grim reminders of late that he might by now have lost his audience were it not for his credibility and reputation, built by numerous demonstrations of economic knowledge and forecasting acumen.

He relates this "alarming" tale about the deteriorating credit structure of American corporations:

—The ratio of liquid assets to short-term liabilities has been cut to one-third the level of the 1950s. It is now at a record low of 0.60 for the post-World War II period. (In the case of an individual, a record like that might earn him a flag on his file at the local bank.)

—The ratio of corporate long-term debt to short-term debt is now at a new low of 2.5 to 1, compared with nearly 4 to 1 in the late 1950s and 3.4 to 1 in the second half of the 1960s. (It's hard to borrow long when you have no notion at all what to expect in the next decade.)

—The growth of corporate liabilities in the past five years is outpacing the growth of equity by the huge margin of 3.5 to 1. (If that happened to you it would present a sick, sinking feeling. Maybe it is.)

—The interest expense of corporations is now equal to a "vast" 45 percent of net profits before taxes, compared with 14 percent in the 1960s. (Try applying that ratio to your household budget.)

—Corporate credit quality, as reflected in credit ratings, is disturbing. In 10 of the past 12 years, more corporate bond issues have been downgraded than have been upgraded.

And now for the worst: Despite good intentions, President Reagan's fiscal policy is unlikely to be sufficiently forceful in throttling inflation, which is the prerequisite for improving corporate credit.

That's Kaufman's latest forecast, based on an analysis that also produced the possibility of a fiscal 1982 budget deficit of $60 billion or $70 billion instead of the $46 billion foreseen by Reagan.

Deficits of that sort feed inflation, and they force government — ironically, the highest rated borrower — into the bond market. That means high interest rates. High rates further erode corporate finances.

The first priority of fiscal policy, Kaufman concludes, must be the elimination of government budget deficits; which in turn would mean the lessening of government pressure on the bond market. Under current policies, he doesn't see that happening for a while.

His analysis is grim, and his conclusion isn't encouraging, but that's the way Kaufman has been talking of late. Above all, he's a realist. These are rough times.

Reject Pay Raise

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly everyone from President Reagan to congressional leaders to a presidential commission agree that more than 37,500 top government officials — and probably House and Senate members — deserve a hefty pay raise.

But as Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker has said, these are not "normal times." And so Congress resoundingly turned back Thursday a recommendation for a 16.8 per cent increase in salaries.

Sen. William Roth, R-Del., chairman of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, said the additional $182 million the increases would have cost are "just a drop in the bucket" compared with the rest of the federal budget.

But he said any pay increase — no matter the cost — "would be highly inappropriate at this time."

Similarly, in the House, Majority Leader Jim Wright said when Congress is preparing to reduce spending for programs like food stamps, "this is not the time to be raising salaries for members of Congress."

Both houses of Congress voted overwhelmingly to reject the scaled-down recommendation from the Quadrennial Commission on Executive, Legislative and Judicial Salaries.

The commission said last year there was a "quiet crisis" in government because top officials were being drawn to private industry by the lure of higher pay.

The nine-member panel suggested a 40 percent pay increase, a recommendation cut to 16.8 per cent by former President Carter.

Top government managers now may receive at most $50,112 annually, while members of Congress get $60,662 and Cabinet secretaries are paid $69,630.

Had the Carter recommendation been approved, those salaries would have gone up to about $60,000 for top federal employees, nearly $71,000 for members of Congress and $84,000 for Cabinet members.

Since Congress has linked all three pay scales, the politically troublesome effort of raising the pay of House and Senate members also has kept down compensation for top federal executives, who have been permitted only one raise of 5.5 percent over the past four years.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, a major proponent of higher salaries, said the salary ceiling was hitting especially hard among senior military officers. As the salaries of medium-level officers are permitted to rise, he said, generals will be paid the same as colonels.

When there was a similar debate on the pay issue last December, President-elect Reagan said he supported the increase, in part to encourage the recruitment of talented executives from private industry to join his administration.

But the president has reversed himself and now opposes the increases. His revised 1982 budget proposal said increases should be delayed because of "current economic conditions."

The president remains "deeply concerned" about the drain of high-level executives and will seek new pay increases before the presidential commission makes a new recommendation in 1984, the budget document said.

Baker said once the congressional debate over Reagan's proposed $48 billion in 1982 budget cuts is over, he will push for an increase for top federal executives.

Space Shuttle Launch Tests Begin Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as repairs are being made to insulation on its huge external fuel tank, a series of critical tests begins Saturday to determine the space shuttle's readiness for its first flight in early April.

Technicians at the Cape Canaveral, Fla., launch pad will run tests leading to the start of a "dry countdown" next Tuesday. The latter is a rehearsal for the real thing that includes everything but fuel in the tanks and fire from the engines.

"We will do everything we do on launch day," Bob Sieck, the shuttle project engineer, told reporters Thursday.

Target date for the shuttle's launch is April 8. On its first flight, the craft is scheduled to orbit earth 36 times, but that may be extended if nothing goes awry.

"There are a lot of tests we'd like to conduct when we're up there and if everything is going well, we just might stay another day," Christopher C. Kraft Jr., director of the Johnson Space Center, said in an interview in Houston, Texas.

Astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen, who will pilot the first voyage of the shuttle Columbia, said there is a good chance a system failure would cause the flight to end early.

"As they pointed out, we will not hesitate to bring the vehicle down if we are the least bit doubtful about any kind of spacecraft problem," Kraft said. "On the other hand, don't be surprised if we go an extra day, too."

Space agency officials still don't know what caused some of the 400 insulating panels on the shuttle's external tank to come loose during an earlier test. At first it appeared that 17 panels needed rebonding, but Sieck said Thursday that 14 more had been found to be loose. The work is expected to be completed next week and won't interfere with the countdown.

While preparations are proceeding to a tentative April 8 launch, officials stressed that a firm liftoff date won't be set until the tank is filled twice more, on March 23 and March 26, to test whether the insulation will hold.

Officials appeared confident that the dry lakebed at Edwards Air Force Base, the prime landing site for the winged shuttle after its return from orbit, is drying nicely after recent rains. If Edwards becomes unusable, the alternate landing site would be White Sands, N.M.

given a strong part in the process. He suggests no quota... rather, "affirmative action". Elected officials at local, state, and national levels can provide a more balanced view of problems and positions, more experience in judging candidates, and knowledge on how to govern, he feels.

The primaries should be held closer together, and designed so that they're not as costly, and do not make later reconciliation so difficult.

"Chuck and I do go back a long way," Hunt recalls. The two were state leaders in Future Farmers of America in college — Hunt in this state, and Manatt in Iowa. Later, both worked at Democratic Party headquarters in Washington at the same time and over the years the two have become personal friends, visiting on occasion, and in regular contact. Suspect Pain Is Result Of Fall

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The severe neck and rib pains which forced the hospitalization of singer Glen Campbell probably were the result of a recent fall, a doctor says.

Dr. Jerry Maynard, who admitted Campbell to Donelson Hospital Wednesday, said the singer would be released today "unless something unexpected happens."

X-rays showed no fractures or tumors. Campbell was in stable condition Thursday.

Campbell, who was staying at Opryland Hotel while taping a "Country Comes Home" program for CBS, awoke Wednesday complaining of pain. He entered the hospital on the advice of Maynard, the hotel physician.

"I understand that a week or so ago, while in Hawaii, he fell, injuring his neck and ribs," Maynard said.

The doctor said he would recommend that Campbell take a brief vacation before resuming work.

Life As It's Lived

Theories Wilt Under Impact Of Family Flu

By GAIL MICHAELS

Dear Ann says that if a man doesn't appreciate his wife's housekeeping efforts, she should get the flu and let him take over.

That's exactly what I did. I took my kids to the pediatrician's office for a routine check-up and brought home three cases of epizootis (my mother's diagnosis for any upper respiratory ailment which makes you wish it were terminal even if it's not).

Mine struck on a Saturday, and Phillip eagerly rushed in to relieve me. Although he was motivated in large part by kindness, I think he was also looking forward to the opportunity to implement his organizational theories without my interference. Until then he had usually been like those regular contributors to "Letter to the Editor" who could clear up the welfare mess in 10 minutes if they weren't stymied by government regulations.

Of course, Phillip is far too gallant to suggest openly that my housekeeping system resembles the welfare system. But I can tell that he wonders how I accomplish so little in a 24 hour period by daily comments like "why can't I find any clean socks?" (It might help if he had more than three pairs, two of which are under the bed.) I would have let him get a taste of pure, unadulterated housewifery long ago if I hadn't been afraid of the havoc he would wreck without my supervision.

This time, however, I was too weak to offer anything more than token resistance. "I thought you had to work this weekend," I croaked.

"I do," he said. "But I can do it here."

I was incredulous. "When?"

"Now, while the baby is napping."

Zachary, on cue, began to scream. Undaunted, Phillip decided to put up the baby gate and work while Zachary crawled around.

For the next hour I listened with interest to the thuds, squeals, and shrieks as Phillip scrambled to and fro between his desk and our incautious little explorer. Then it was Meg's turn. Confined to her own sickbed, she had tired of cartoons. The new order of the day was seeing how fast she could make Daddy run.

"I'm thirsty," she would moan. "I'm lonely." "I want a story." Her big favorite was the wail. "Daddy, Daddy!" followed by the comment after his quick appearance. "I'm sick of being sick."

Still, Phillip wasn't really put to the test until lunch. He was trying to clean Meg's milk off the floor, force strained bananas between Zachary's clenched teeth, and grill a cheese sandwich for me. I sat and watched silently as long as I could but I finally felt compelled to rescue the cheese flambe from the top of the stove.

For the rest of the weekend, however, I played only the role of spectator and friendly adviser. For instance, it was I who offered the solution when Phillip announced, "Zachary's almost out of clean diapers."

"Then wash the dirty ones," I said.

Pitt Board Will Meet

The Pitt County Planning Board will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Pitt County Office Building at 1717 West Fifth St.

Included on the agenda is the consideration of preliminary and final plats for Clarence Hardy Moye Subdivision, Section II in Pactolus Township. Ulysses G. Payton Subdivision in Grimesland Township and the Donald R. Warren Subdivision in Carolina Township.

Also for consideration is the preliminary plat for Mill Run Subdivision on N.C. 43 West of Greenville near Rock Springs.

In addition to the subdivision plats, there will be preliminary discussions of the 1981-82 budget.

Decrease For Labor Force

The civilian labor force in the Greenville labor area was estimated at 50,220 in January, 1981, a decrease of 830 over the mid-November total of 51,050, according to James E. Hannan, manager of the Employment Security Commission.

Total unemployment was up 490 from November and the unemployment rate rose from 5.9 percent in November to 7 percent in January. Total employment, estimated at 46,710, in January, was down 1,320 over the two-month period, primarily due to a decline of 860 in the agricultural sector.

In June of each year, unemployment typically rose due to students and graduates entering the labor force. Rates fell in July, August and September as agricultural activities gained momentum and leveled off. The jobless rate reached a high of 7.9 percent in June, 1980, in the Greenville labor area, noting the highest unemployment rate in the last three years. "High unemployment rates throughout 1980 reflected national economic problems experienced during the year," said Hannan.

Auto Layoffs Slightly Down

DETROIT (AP) — Indefinite auto industry layoffs dipped slightly this week, but temporary furloughs dropped sharply, according to reports from the major U.S. automakers.

Meanwhile, an industry journal reported Thursday that planned auto production by the major U.S. manufacturers increased 4.5 percent this week from last week but remained 9.6 percent behind production for the same period in 1980. Automotive News also reported year-to-date car production lagged 17.2 percent behind production through the same time a year ago.

A total of 186,450 workers are on indefinite layoff, down 1,700 from last week's 188,150, according to the industry reports. Temporary layoffs dropped to 8,450 from 24,750 last week.

General Motors Corp. accounted for the largest number of indefinite layoffs with 83,000 workers on open-ended furlough, the same as last week.

GM said its Janesville, Wis., auto assembly plant and the heavy-duty truck line at the GMC Truck and Coach Division plant at Pontiac, Mich., will be closed a week, for a total of 5,700 temporary layoffs. That is down from 9,800 indefinite layoffs reported at three GM plants last week.

Ford Motor Co. reported 52,300 indefinite layoffs, down from 53,500 last week. Ford said it had 2,050 temporary layoffs this week, down from 9,650.

At Chrysler Corp., indefinite layoffs dipped to 46,600 from 47,100 reported last week, but temporary furloughs rose slightly from 300 last week to 700 this week.

American Motors Corp. reported 4,550 indefinite layoffs, unchanged from last week, and no temporary layoffs, down from the 5,000 reported idle last week. Workers at Kenosha, Wis., returned to the job this week.

Volkswagen of America has no layoffs.

Automotive News said automakers planned to build 140,039 cars this week, up from 133,968 a week ago but down from 154,857 during the 1980 week.

For the year, automakers have built 1,217,326 cars compared to 1,469,810 through the 1980 period.

Merv Warned To Curb Noise

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Television talk show host Merv Griffin can continue skeet shooting on his rural Monterey County property, but officials warn he'll have to keep the noise down.

The county this week threatened to send workers with noise monitors if Griffin's Carmel Valley neighbors continue to complain about the gunfire.

Griffin's neighbors have been grousing about his morning practices since 1977. Prompted by the objections, the Board of Supervisors adopted an ordinance restricting trapshooting in unincorporated areas.

Hunt Looks To Possible N.C. Control

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — States need greater flexibility in how they spend federal money if proposed federal budget cuts become a reality, Gov. Jim Hunt said Thursday.

While saying President Reagan's proposals for cutting federal spending are an "historic opportunity," he noted the need to deregulate state spending controls.

Hunt, who called for greater flexibility in federal regulations while testifying before a congressional subcommittee earlier this week, called Reagan's proposals to cut federal spending an "historic opportunity."

"But it would be a tragic mistake if Washington, instead, plays a shell game with the taxpayers and simply shifts federal costs to state and local governments," Hunt said in a news conference. "If states and cities and counties are forced to raise taxes, the taxpayers have gained nothing."

He cited the Medicaid program as a need for greater leeway by states in administering the spending. Instead of Reagan's proposed 5 percent cap on growth in federal government payments in Medicaid, Hunt said the government should require a 10 percent limit on the amount of increased hospital and nursing home costs Medicaid will provide.

Hunt said the federal government should give the states flexibility to require that Medicaid recipients use cheaper hospitals, to negotiate rates for Medicaid patients, and to require that recipients pay a portion of their bills.

As he spoke, the Legislature's joint base budget committees on human resources considered several cutbacks in Medicaid services that are available to the state.

Hunt said latest figures show as many as 4,100 jobs in education in North Carolina will be lost due to the decreased federal aid proposed by Reagan. He said 3,200 are teaching or teachers aide jobs, and the rest are administrative.

Earlier reports by the state budget office had predicted 3,200 jobs would be lost in the schools due to the loss of federal impact aid in counties with large government installations.

On tobacco, Hunt said growers could pick up the costs of federal tobacco graders.

"I think tobacco farmers ought to take their fair share," he said.

But he called it a "mistake" to increase interest rates on loans used to purchase tobacco that does not reach federal price support levels at auction under price supports.

"I would hate to see that cut back," he said.

Billy Carter To Sell Property

BUENA VISTA, Ga. (AP) — Billy Carter plans to avoid a threatened foreclosure on his home by selling other property in his hometown of Plains, says his wife.

Sybil Carter also said Thursday that her husband, the brother of former President Jimmy Carter, has taken a job as a traveling sales representative for Wood Grain Molding Co., covering Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and other states.

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Columbus placed a legal ad in a Marion County newspaper Thursday, threatening to foreclose on the Carters' home unless arrangements are made to make mortgage payments within 30 days.

Dexter Followill, president of the institution, said Carter assumed payments on a $100,000 mortgage held by First Federal when he purchased the 7,700-square-foot home near Buena Vista.

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, awaiting the first congressional test of his military aid package for El Salvador, is readying a request for $63.5 million in new economic assistance to the embattled Central American country, sources say.

The new economic aid, expected to be announced by the State Department today, would be part of a $140 million plan to be filled out by international aid organizations, primarily the International Monetary Fund.
Meanwhile, a Senate subcommittee was expected to clear today the only part of Reagan's military aid request subject to Congress' approval.
The Senate Appropriations foreign operations subcommittee and a similar House panel have veto power over $5 million of the $25 in military aid for helicopters, patrol boats and other equipment to help the Salvadoran government fight leftist guerrillas.

The House panel is scheduled to vote March 24, and several of its members are considering visiting El Salvador over the weekend.
But one of the House members, who asked not to be identified, said the trip may be cancelled because of the risk of attack. That could complicate the U.S. role in El Salvador, he said.
"I'm trying to make up my mind whether it's smart or not," the congressman said. "We're getting conflicting views on whether it's safe to go."

The $5 million in military aid does not require the full Congress' approval because the administration is taking it from funds already appropriated for other programs. It is, however, subject to veto by the two appropriations subcommittees.

Reagan is sending the other $20 million in military aid to El Salvador under his emergency power to send limited military equipment, services and advisers to a trouble spot without Congress' approval.
There is more opposition to the $5 million in the House subcommittee than on the Senate panel.

Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., chairman of the House panel, was asked earlier this week if the House panel was working out a compromise for its approval of the money.

"The only compromise I'm interested in is them not sending the advisers down there," Long said. "It's just a macho effort to show how tough they are."

Neither the subcommittees nor any other part of Congress, however, has any veto power over Reagan's decision to raise the number of U.S. military advisers in El Salvador from 34 to 54.
Pentagon officials said Thursday night the 20 new advisers include 15 members of the Green Berets, who will help train Salvador government forces in guerrilla warfare.

Legislators Confused In Medicaid Cost-Cut Study

By W.A. WERONKA JR.
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The subject of cutting state Medicaid costs left lawmakers on a legislative budget committee with glazed eyes and a confused state Thursday.

Along with considering how to cut the program for 1981-1983 operating budgets, the joint base budget subcommittee on Human Resources also is faced with making plans should proposed federal cuts in the program become a reality.

The fiscal research staff of the Legislature presented the committee with a list of options for paring down Medicaid should the federal cuts come down.

Some of the possible reductions in Medicaid services include elimination of payments for treatment by chiropractors, optometrists, podiatrists and for purchasing hearing aids and services of drug treatment centers and mental health centers. The committee may consider some of the options for its own 6 percent cuts, such as limiting payments for eyeglasses to those whose eyesight is severely impaired, and reducing dental coverage.

Senate chairman Russell Walker, D-Asheboro, said the committee probably will not get down to making any decision before next week.

"The problem we're facing is basic cost shifting," he said. "If we cut something out one place, then it's got to be picked up someplace else, like in the counties."

In the area of the possible federal cuts, Bob Daughtry of the research staff said nothing definite will be known for a while. He said the staff is considering recommending that the committee prepare a list of program changes and empower the governor to make the changes should the federal cuts become a reality.

Walker said that was a possibility, but added that the General Assembly might not go for it and instead call a special session.

The state contributes about $150 million a year for the nearly $600 million Medicaid program in the state.

In other legislative action:

Loans

Legislation that would raise the state usury limits was sent to a Senate subcommittee after a University of North Carolina professor endorsed a banking industry proposal to tie interest ceilings to a rate set by the state treasurer.

Richard McNally, a banking professor, told the Senate Banking Committee that the state treasurer's rate, set weekly, was a better indicator of the national money market than the discount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank, which the banking industry had originally backed.

McNally's comments came after the banking industry had withdrawn a bill that would tie most consumer and small-business loan interest rates to the federal discount rate.

Meanwhile, the House Banking Committee approved a bill that would completely rewrite state law regulating savings and loan associations.

The 148-page rewrite of savings and loan associations was approved after the sponsor, Rep. Ruth Cook, D-Raleigh, said it was recommended by a banking study commission, a House subcommittee and the savings and loan industry.

She said the rewrite attempts to modernize and consolidate current laws, clarify vague sections of the current law and bring state law in line with federal S&L regulations. The changes from current law are largely technical in nature.

Crime Victims

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten told legislators that victims' compensation legislation should be considered the most important subject before the General Assembly. Edmisten called for compensation programs to help victims of all types of crime during his appearance before a House judiciary committee. The panel was considering a bill by Rep. Kenneth Spaulding, D-Durham, calling for compensation of up to $500 per person to reimburse rape victims for medical costs.

The committee took no action on the measure.

Property Tax

The House Finance Committee began looking at a proposal that would set a property-tax limit and require the state absorb the revenue loss rather than the cities and counties.

Rep. Jim Morgan, D-High Point, introduced the measure, often referred to as the circuit breaker. He acknowledged the proposal would be expensive, costing an estimated $138 million a year, but said, "at the very least this session, I hope we will all come to understand it."

The bill was referred to a subcommittee.

Fault

Insurance costs in North Carolina would not be affected by enactment of comparative fault legislation, several speakers told the House Judiciary III Committee in a public hearing.

Rep. Paul Pulley, D-Durham, has introduced a bill that would allow courts to determine the relative amount of fault in an accident and award damages proportionally. At present, no damages are awarded if both people contribute to the accident.

An attorney representing Southern Railway spoke against the bill, charging it could raise insurance costs by as much as 15 percent because of increased damage awards.

Campaign Contributions

The Senate approved a bill that would raise the state limit on campaign contributions from $3,000 to $4,000. Sen. J.J. Harrington, D-Lewiston, the bill's sponsor, was asked why he thought it needed to be raised.

"Of course you know we got inflation," Harrington said. "I just thought it would be fair to give a person a chance to give more if he wanted to. I didn't consider nothing else."

The bill now goes to the House.

Tax Exemption

Companies are now exempt from paying tax on goods sold to non-residents while they are being held for shipment. Final approval came in the Senate.

New Laws

A number of bills became law with Senate approval. One would allow school boards in towns with populations under 7,500 to purchase goods or services from a member of that school board. Another clarifies elections laws so someone who has not voted in two consecutive presidential elections can be purged from the voter registration records. And the Senate passed a bill that give local governments the power to hire and fire local election supervisors.

Charge Boy, 12, With Murder

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Catawba County authorities released a 12-year-old boy to the custody of his parents Thursday after charging him with first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of a middle school student.

The boy, whose name was not made public, was accused in the shooting Wednesday of Teresa Ann Young, 13, at her home in a rural trailer court. She was shot in the head with a bullet fired from a .32 caliber pistol.

Officers said they had received conflicting accounts of the shooting.

Mary Cline, an adult neighbor, said the boy told her he had struck the pistol against the kitchen counter and it fired accidentally.

"He was crying and said, 'I didn't mean it, I didn't mean it, I didn't know it was loaded,'" Mrs. Cline said.

But she said Jimmy Young, the dead girl's 10-year-old brother, told her the boy had pointed the gun at his sister and pulled the trigger. Deputies said the pistol was owned by relatives of the boy, who had it without their permission.

As part of the conditions for his release, District Judge Edward Crotty ordered the parents to keep their home free of firearms, that the boy change schools and that he be examined by a child psychiatrist.

Crotty said it would be up to District Attorney Donald Greene to determine whether the boy would face other proceedings in Juvenile Court. Greene said a decision had been delayed pending

Budget Cut May Scuttle Audit Of Reagan Adviser

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal audit of a Houston oilman who advised President Reagan on energy matters may be scuttled by Reagan's subsequent decision to slash the Energy Department's enforcement budget, a House Democrat says.

Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., charged Thursday that Reagan's proposed 80 percent cut in enforcement money threatens a planned audit of Michael Halbouty, who headed the Reagan energy transition team that advised Reagan before the inauguration.

Gore said Halbouty's name was on a list of 12 planned audits released last year. Eight have been completed, he said, with Halbouty's among those still pending.

Gore did not accuse Halbouty of trying to stop the audit, and he noted that the plans to check Halbouty's books did not imply wrongdoing. Audit targets were selected by the size of their business, not by suspicion of illegal activities.

But his mention of Halbouty's name brought sharp criticism from Republicans on the House Energy subcommittee on investigations, who argued Gore was smearing Halbouty by innuendo when there were no allegations of wrongdoing.

"For the gentleman from Tennessee to go through that list (of audit targets) and to use that is the height of unfairness," charged Rep. Marc L. Marks, R-Pa.

Gordon W. Harvey, assistant administrator for enforcement of the department's Economic Regulatory Administration, said auditing will continue at nearly the present levels through the summer, so Halbouty's audit may be completed.

But Gore asked Harvey if there would be government lawyers this fall under Reagan's budget to prosecute any wrongdoing an audit might uncover. Harvey conceded there may not be.

"So those who are next on the list (for audits) have nothing to worry about," Gore concluded.

While stressing he was making no accusations against Halbouty, Gore said the oilman's position spotlighted the effect of Reagan's proposal to slash spending for the agencies responsible for uncovering violations of oil pricing regulations.

In two days of hearings, government witnesses have testified that auditors already have identified more than $10 billion in overcharges. Of that $10 billion, the cases unresolved by court actions or settlements total somewhere between $7 billion and $8.5 billion.

But under Reagan's reduced budget, department lawyers will be able to pursue only $3 billion in violations, the department witnesses said. As to the other $5.5 billion, Harvey said, "They will not be pursued by my office with the resources available to us in fiscal year 1982."

"So we're going to save $40 million and lose $5.5 billion in illegal overcharges," Gore said. "That's an interesting view of economics."

Republican Rep. Bob Whittaker of Kansas defended the decision. He said that while violations should be pursued as best possible, "what we have here are 1,261 auditors and lawyers who are trying to build themselves a permanent retirement home."

Harvey said the office already has referred 80 cases involving some 150 firms to the Justice Department for criminal prosecution, with 11 firms and 39 individuals thus far found guilty of criminal violations.

He repeated assertions of his boss, Energy Secretary James B. Edwards, that investigations would merely be postponed by the budget cuts, not stopped.

Warrants For Three

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Warrants have been issued for a Salvadoran and two Houston businessmen indicted on charges of smuggling 55 Salvadorans found near hear last month.

Immigration officials said they believe Victor Fuentes, a 25-year-old Salvadoran named in the indictment, is an important link in a human-smuggling pipeline between the strife-torn Central American country and the United States.

A federal grand jury returned an indictment Tuesday against Fuentes and co-defendants Juan Bolanos and Jimmy Gonzalez.

Fuentes also was indicted by a federal grand jury in December in connection with the smuggling of 30 Salvadorans into the country.

Fuentes and Bolanos, owner of a Houston import-export firm, are accused of planning the smuggling operation. Gonzalez, Bolanos' partner, got involved a few days later, the indictment charges.

In seeking the indictments, prosecutors said Fuentes and Gonzalez rented a van Feb. 21 in Houston and drove to Monterrey, Mexico, where they contacted a man named "Carlos."

Then, they drove to Matamoros, Mexico, and met the 55 Salvadorans, who formed a human chain and waded across the Rio Grande into the United States, the government charges.

The 55 were picked up the next day at the small community of Ranchito by an unknown man driving the rented van. The driver escaped when U.S. Border Patrol agents apprehended the aliens.

Threats Fail Stop Work

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With a colleague slain by terrorists in Colombia, the 109 other Wycliffe linguists working there were offered the option of pulling out. But they're sticking to their task of putting unlettered languages into writing.
"All of them voted to stay," says Anne Minor, communications director at the organization's International Linguistics Center in Dallas. "It's risky. Wherever there are terrorists, it's dangerous. But the work will go forward."
That fortitude is characteristic of Wycliffe Bible Translators — Summer Institute of Linguistics, whose global corps of more than 4,000 linguists are the world's chief pioneers of the newly written word.
Serving in remote, primitive areas in 30 countries among tribes whose spoken tongues have never been put in writing, the linguists analyze the phonetic meanings, develop alphabets, basic dictionaries and, finally Scriptures.
"We emphasize service to all," says W. Cameron Townsend, 84, the folksy, amiable founder, president emeritus and premier diplomat and negotiator with governments in spreading the organization's work.

"We identify with the people we serve. We don't sit in judgments on governments and never meddle in politics. That opens doors. We help them and they help us. It works."
"We're non-ecclesiastical and we're not propagating any doctrine or denomination or starting any organizations. We feel if we give the people the word, God will take care of the rest of it. And he has."

"Uncle Cam," as he's called, flew to Colombia this week from his base in Waxhaw, N.C., to encourage the staff there in the wake of the kidnap-slaying of American linguist Charles A. Bitterman, and to confer with government officials in working out any ensuing difficulties.
The linguistic organization, although started by California-born Townsend in the 1930s, now has an international staff from 22 nations and various denominations, Protestant and Catholic, specially trained in researching unwritten languages and giving them written form.
It takes 10 to 20 years for each one. With a budget of $27 million annually, contributed by individuals and churches, the linguists currently are working with more than 750 languages.

So far, the organization has completed alphabets, elemental dictionaries and Scripture portions in about 600 new languages. New Testaments in 150 of them, with the number now growing rapidly.
Although putting the Bible in reach of the people is the final goal, this first requires producing the written language and teaching people to read it, which gives the work broad literacy-educational value.
There are more than 5,000 languages in the world, many of them isolated tribal tongues and distinct dialects. At least one book of the Bible has been published in 1,710 of them, the American Bible Society says.

Wycliffe translators work closely with the national Bible societies around the world. They do most of the printing, once the languages have been set to writing.
The linguists serve on the staff of the Summer Institute of Linguistics or SIL, so named for its nine-week summer training courses given at the universities in six countries, including four U.S. campuses.
Its headquarters are in Dallas, while its U.S. adjunct, Wycliffe Bible Translators, is based in Huntington Beach, Calif.

Banks-less Duke Whips Aggies, 79-69

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
DURHAM, N.C. — Duke University proved Thursday night that its fate does not rest on the shoulders of forward Gene Banks alone and North Carolina A&T paid the price in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Banks suffered a bruised back and sprained wrist midway through the first half of the game, but his supporting cast banded together and downed the Aggies 79-69. That supporting cast included guard Vince Taylor, who led the attack with 18 points, while forward Kenny Dennard scored 17. Chip Engelland came off the bench and scored 14.

Banks was scheduled to undergo X-rays this morning to determine the extent of his injuries.

The bench play of the two teams proved important. After Engelland's 14, reserve center

Allen Williams played his best game of the year in collecting 9 points and 5 rebounds. In all, Duke reserves scored 28 points, while four A&T players combined for 11 points from the bench. James Horace scored 8 of those.

Duke was propelled by a 13-2 spurt midway through the first half which brought the team from a 13-12 deficit to a 25-15 advantage. Williams, Dennard and Taylor did most of the damage as the Blue Devils ran up a 39-22 halftime lead.

The Aggies refused to quit, although they were hampered by their errant long-range shots and sloppy ballhandling. Twice in the second half, they pulled to within nine points and appeared ready to challenge Duke on its home court. But the rallies died when A&T missed several shots down the stretch.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said the Blue Devils did not play smart basketball in the second half, a factor which allowed A&T to chip away at the huge halftime deficit.

"A lot of that has to do with A&T and the fact that we just had a number of different lineups in the game that we hadn't had in due to foul trouble and injuries," Krzyzewski said. "They took full advantage of it and I give them credit for that."

The Aggies shot a paltry 36 percent in the first half on 9 of 25 shots. Coach Don Corbett acknowledged that the drought was crucial.

"We made some mental errors which hurt us," Corbett said. "I think that was mainly due to inexperience."

A&T was also hurt by an injury to starting guard Ron Stinchcomb. Although his left leg was heavily taped, Stinchcomb gave Duke fits throughout the night, penetrating the lane to dish off and taking jumpers from far outside.

"I just wish that Ron Stinchcomb's leg was better," Corbett added. "That might have made a difference."

Stinchcomb scored 15 points, while James Anderson led the Agiess with 19 points. Forward Joe Binion had 18 for A&T, now 21-8 for the season.

Duke will play Alabama next Monday night in Durham. The Crimson Tide downed St. John's in overtime, 73-69.

Fuller May Be Small (5-9), But He Plays Tall For Long Island U.

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — If the basketball fans in Charlotte need a reason to attend tonight's opening round of the NCAA East Regional basketball tournament, they should look for Long Island University's Earl Fuller.

Fuller is listed at 5-foot-9, but his lack of height seems to be no problem when it comes to slam-dunking.

So, if Virginia Commonwealth lets Fuller get away on a transition break, they should let him go and treat themselves — as well as the fans — to an extraordinary leaping exhibition.

After that contest, Houston and Villanova, two teams which have been involved in final four competition in previous years, will square off in the nightcap of the doubleheader.

The winner of the first game meets Tennessee, while the victor in the final contest faces Virginia. Both games are scheduled for Sunday.

Despite his small stature, Fuller says getting the ball into the hole at such a dizzying height is simple.

"People see how short I am and they think I can't possibly throw it down," Fuller said. "But I can touch the little square above the rim. Dunking is no problem."

It will be the goal of Virginia Commonwealth coach J.D. Barnett to keep his team from becoming a bit awed at a 5-9 guard who can probably get his elbow in the rim.

"They're basically a street team — a collection of New York playground graduates who play a lot of transition basketball," Barnett said. "They are a team that will shoot after two or three passes."

Barnett said earlier this week that his team feels comfortable going into the game with the Blackbirds, adding that the Rams aren't lacking for confidence. But he also said Long Island won't likely panic and run away, either.

"Long Island isn't of the national scope of Notre Dame or Purdue or North Carolina. But they've got a lot of talent ... and they've got to be awfully good to be here," Barnett said.

Long Island enters the game with an 18-10 mark while VCU is 23-4.

In 1968, Houston challenged UCLA for the national chamampionship. After upsetting the Bruins in the Houston Astrodome, the two teams met again in Los Angeles. UCLA took revenge and drubbed the Cougars, 101-69.

Houston hasn't achieved the same measure of national prominence it enjoyed in the late 1960s. But Coach Guy Lewis hopes to bring the Cougars back into the spotlight with a pair of victories this weekend.

"I'm tickled to death just to be in the tournament," Lewis said earlier in the week. "I'm just disappointed for our fans because we might have had 5,000 or 6,000 fans going to Austin."

Austin is the site for first-round games in the Midwest

Regional this weekend.

Lewis said he had little knowledge of the Wildcat attack, but he was aware of a couple of victories they captured in the state of Texas last December.

"I do know they won the Sun Bowl Tournament by beating San Francisco and then the University of Texas at El Paso," Lewis said. "Beating UTEP on its home floor isn't easy for anyone to do."

Villanova lost a triple-overtime decision to Syracuse in the finals of the Big East basketball tournament last weekend. But it was the Wildcats who received the bid to the NCAA, while Syracuse was sent to the National Invitation Tournament.

Houston enters tonight's game with a 21-8 record, while Villanova is 19-10.

Lady Bucs In Swims

MARQUETTE, Mich. — East Carolina University's women collected 32 points during the first day of the AIAW Division II Swimming and Diving Championships being held at Northern Michigan University last night.

The meet continues through Saturday.

The Pirates, in the top 20, had seven of eight girls who participated in the first day's events, make all-America status.

'Flat' Clemson Falls To Temple In NIT First Round Game, 90-82

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — "We were just flat," was Clemson basketball Coach Bill Foster's explanation of his team's 90-82 first round National Invitation Tournament loss to Temple Thursday night at Littlejohn Coliseum.

"If we had gotten over this one," he said, "we might have gotten refueled and gone on. But we were just flat." Clemson finished the season with a 20-11 mark.

"We didn't have any heart in the game," said Foster. "Temple has a good club and they have a lot of heart."

The Owls, who are now 20-11, go on to play the winner of Friday's Penn-West Virginia first round NIT clash. Temple Coach Don Casey called Thursday night's victory "a tough win."

"It's tough to win anywhere on the road," he added. "We beat a team with stature and a very supportive crowd. We got behind, made a run, got the lead again.

"We did a super job," Casey said, "but we had to do a super job to beat this team. It was the high point of our season."

Of four NIT games, Clemson has won only one, a victory over Kentucky in 1979. The Tigers lost in second round play to Old Dominion that year.

Thursday, Keith Parham poured in 25 points to lead the Owls to victory.

Parham's performance overshadowed a 34-point effort by Clemson senior Larry Nance. In his final home court appearance, Nance set a school record for games played at 117.

Nance ignited Clemson in the first half but Temple prevailed at intermission, 39-36.

In the second half, the Tigers struggled back from a 43-36 deficit to a 48-47 advantage with 14:48 left to play and extended their lead to five points, 59-54, with 10:54 left when freshman Marc Campbell hit a jumper from the baseline.

But Temple rattled in eight straight points to go ahead 62-59 with 8:04 remaining, and Clemson never again led.

But the Tigers tied the score at 68-68 with 3:57 to go. Then, Clemson's Vince Hamilton was fouled and a technical was called on Temple's Ron Wister.

Hamilton missed on the front end of a one-and-one and Campbell missed a shot on the technical.

"The technical could have been the turning point against us," said Casey, "but as it turned out, it wasn't."

Wister and Terence Stansbury joined Parham and Neal Robinson in double figures with 14 and 13 points, respectively. For Clemson, Clarke Bynum had 14 points to join Nance in double figures and Chris Dodds finished with 10.

Labonte Grabs Surprise Pole

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Terry Labonte was the surprise pole winner Thursday for Sunday's Coca-Cola 500 Grand National auto race, but the shocker was the continuing spoiler saga of Bobby Allison, who was not allowed to qualify.

Labonte, a 24-year-old youngster who finished second to Allison at Riverside earlier this year, toiled his Buick around Atlanta International Raceway's 1.522-mile super speedway oval at a speed of 162.940 mph Thursday to narrowly edge Harry Gant for the inside front-row position.

Gant, also in a Buick, had a run of 162.839 mph, and will hold down the outside front-row spot in Sunday's $317,000 race. It was the first pole ever captured by Labonte in his four years on the circuit. The native of Corpus Christi, Texas, won his only NASCAR race last year, taking the Southern 500 in Darlington, S.C.

Allison, who was scheduled to be the first on the track to qualify Thursday, failed to pass inspection by NASCAR officials, who ruled the 3½-inch spoiler on the rear of his Pontiac LeMans was excessive.

King Sparks Maryland Rally

By The Associated Press
Back in December, the Missouri Tigers thrashed the Lamar Cardinals in the "Show Me Classic."

Thursday night, it was the Cardinals' turn to show the Tigers.

Getting revenge for a 92-70 rout in the holiday tournament, the Cardinals upset the Tigers 71-67 in the NCAA basketball tournament and headed for a second-round game of the Midwest playoffs Saturday.

"We wanted the game real bad," said Lamar Coach Pat Foster. "I think we had an advantage coming into the game with Missouri having beaten us as bad as they did the first time."

With center B.B. Davis of the Southland Conference champions in foul trouble, the Cardinals played at a deliberate pace most of the game. And it paid off.

"We had to get deliberate," said Foster. "We didn't feel we could run with Missouri. The first time we tried to run with them, they blew us out."

A 25-point performance by Mike Oliver led the Cardinals, who pulled off their second upset in as many years in the NCAA playoffs. Last season, they knocked off Pac-10 winner Oregon State in an early round. The Cardinals advanced to the second round Saturday against No. 4 Louisiana State.

In Thursday night's other Midwest game at Austin, Tex., 20th-ranked Arkansas held off upset-minded Mercer 73-67. Darrell Walker came off the bench to score 19 points for the Razorbacks, who advanced to a meeting Saturday with Louisville.

Atrocious free-throw shooting by the Razorbacks helped keep the 13-point underdog Bears in the game. Arkansas hit only 19-of-40 free throw attempts and Walker could hit just 3-for-13. But the Razorbacks just had too much depth for the Bear who finished third in the Trans America Athletic Conference but won the postseason tournament.

In other tournament play, Linton Townes led James Madison on a nine-point run midway in the second half, and the Dukes held on to beat Georgetown 61-55 in the first round of the East Regionals at Providence, R.I. The victory sent the Dukes into a Saturday game with seventh-ranked Notre Dame.

Danny Ainge scored 21 points and Brigham Young University solved Princeton's deliberate offense in the second half to beat the Tigers 60-51 in the other first-round East game. The 16th-ranked Cougars will face 10th-ranked UCLA Saturday.

It's not as big a surprise as some thing," said James Madison Coach Lou Campanelli of the upset. "I know a lot of people will pick up their newspapers tomorrow morning and be pretty surprised, but we thought all along that we could beat Georgetown."

"This is the best victory ever for our basketball program. To have the opportunity to compete against Notre Dame Saturday on television will be a tremendous thrill."

Tony Costner's 14 second-half points, including two free throws with three seconds left, rallied St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania to a 59-57 victory over Creighton in NCAA Midwest Regionals.

Costner finished with 18 points and John Smith added 20 for the Hawks in the game at the University of Dayton Arena. Kevin McKenna had 18 points for Creighton and George Morrow added 17.

St. Joseph's, the East Coast Conference champion, moved into Saturday's second round game against DePaul.

"Tony in a quiet way has had as productive a season as any freshman out there," said St. Joseph's Coach Jym Lynman of Costner. "We have come from behind to win several games and the big fellow has played an important part in all of them."

Albert King scored 25 points to lead Maryland to a come-from-behind 81-69 victory over Tennessee-Chattanooga in the night's second game. The Terps, of the Atlantic Coast Conference, will meet No. 9 Indiana Saturday.

Held in check most of the way, Rolando Blackman put Kansas State ahead to stay with 2:19 remaining as the Wildcats rallied for a 64-60 victory over the University of San Francisco in the West Regionals at Los Angeles.

Randy Reed led the Wildcats with 24 points.

The Wildcats moved into Saturday's second round against second-ranked Oregon State.

"I never got loose during the whole game," said Blackman, who finished with just eight points. "In fact, I never even got into the game. My last four points were just a matter of being at the right place at the right time."

Kansas State Coach Jack Hartman, whose team trailed by as many as 12 points early in the second half, praised the Dons of the West Coast Athletic Conference, calling them "a very fine and talented team."

"I feel very good to have won," said Hartman. "We were very fortunate. It takes a lot of poise to show patience and not try to catch up in a brief period of time. I thought our players did a good job of controlling that urge."

Charles Bradley and Bill Garnett combined for 38 points as 17th-ranked Wyoming crushed Howard University 78-43 in the nightcap of the West doubleheader. Wyoming will face 19th-ranked Illinois Saturday.

First-round action continues tonight at other sites in the four regions.

In the East at Charlotte, N.C., it's Virginia Commonwealth vs. Long Island University and Houston against Villanova. In the Midwest at Tuscaloosa, Ala., Ball State faces Boston College and Alabama-Birmingham meets Western Kentucky.

In the Midwest at Wichita, Kan., it's Kansas vs. Mississippi and Southern University against Wichita State. And in the West Regional at El Paso, Tex., Idaho takes on Pittsburgh and Fresno State tackles Northeastern.

Lottany Overshadows Walker In Sprints

DETROIT (AP) — Overlooked in all the publicity centered around Herschel Walker, the University of Georgia's All-America football sensation and track standout, has been the performance of his teammate, Mel Lattany.

But Lattany, a member of the honorably 1980 U.S. Olympic Team and ranked fifth in the world in the 100-meter dash — behind indoor record holder Stanley Floyd, Olympic champion Allan Wells of Scotland, two-time Pan American Games champion Silvio Leonard of Cuba and James Sanford, rated No. 1 in 1979 — has been overshadowing Walker in the sprints, if not in fanfare, this year.

Going into the trials of tonight's NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships at Joe Louis Arena, the fun-loving Lattany, a senior from Brunswick, Ga., had run two of the fastest sprint times of the year (6.09 seconds and 6.10) among the entrants in the 60-yard dash.

The fastest clocking (6.06) belonged to University of Houston sophomore Carl Lewis. But the trials and the quarterfinals of the 60 were to be held at the same time as the final of the long jump, in which Lewis is the defending champion.

With Lewis likely out of the 60, the experienced Lattany, the Southeastern Conference champion, was considered the favorite among a strong field that included Walker, fellow Olympian James Butler of Oklahoma State, SEC runnerup Calvin Smith of Alabama, Herkie Walls of Texas, freshman Rod Richardson of Texas A&M (who has run 6.09), 1980 NCAA runnerup Jerome Deal of Texas-El Paso, and LaMont King of Arizona State.

Walker, the celebrated freshman from Wrightsville, Ga., who finished third in the 1980 Heisman Trophy balloting after setting a national collegiate record for first-year ground-gainers with 1,766 yards, had not been nearly as successful at the track. His best time for the 60 has been 6.24 and he false-started twice — an automatic disqualification — in the recent SEC meet.

Still, he professes to enjoy track more than football.

"I love track more," he said.

"I love to compete on a 1-on-1 basis. If I make a mistake, it's my mistake."

To prove his point, Walker is skipping spring football practice at Georgia to run track.

"I'd rather win a gold medal in the Olympics than win the Heisman Trophy," he said. "If I win a gold medal in 1984, I've shown that I am the best. A Heisman is different because there are so many good running backs that there's no way to prove who is really the best."

While Walker is still trying to prove his mettle on the track, Lattany already has shown he is a world-class athlete.

Last year, he finished fourth in the NCAA Indoor meet, then outdoors he won the Drake Relays and Liberty Bell Classic and finished third in the Olympic trials; and in 1981, he has won the Track And Field Association and Mason-Dixon Games titles.

The 60-yard dash semifinals and final will be held Saturday, along with the semifinals and final in the 60-yard high hurdles and nine other finals. Today's first final was the 35-pound weight throw, at Eastern Michigan University, with six finals scheduled tonight.

Texas-El Paso, with virtually the same team that won last year's championship with a record 76 points, is an overwhelming favorite to capture its sixth title in eight years.

Mattamuskeet Nips Bullets

MATTAMUSKEET — Mattamuskeet pushed across what turned out to be the winning run in the bottom of the sixth and then killed a seventh-inning rally by Jamesville to defeat the Bullets, 3-2, Thursday, in Tobacco Belt Conference baseball game.

The Bullets, now 1-2 this season, trailed 3-1 going into the seventh after Mattamuskeet had padded its lead with a run in the bottom of the sixth. But with two outs the Bullets loaded the bases and appeared ready to go ahead.

With two gone, Clarence Thomas reached second on an error. Carl Ange then doubled to score Thomas before Mattamuskeet pitcher Larry Gill walked Greg Sullivan intentionally.

Rex Bell then sent a slow roller down the third baseline and when the third baseman was unable to tag Ange at third the bases were loaded. But Jeff Rogers popped out to the catcher to end the threat and the game.

"We've lost two of these like that," said Jamesville coach Ron Davenport, referring to the Bullets' 2-1 loss to Manteo Tuesday. "We just can't score no runs."

"Our bats just aren't working for us. We couldn't get the hits when we needed them and two runs ain't gonna win many games for you."

Mattamuskeet led after the first inning, 1-0, but the Bullets tied it up in the second when Rogers reached second on an error and Marty Swinson singled him home.

Mattamuskeet regained the lead with a run in the third and scored what proved to be the winning run in the bottom of the sixth. Meanwhile, from the second to the seventh the Bullets left five men on base, not including the three in the seventh.

Jamesville, which has won the 1-A state title the past two years, was led by Waters, who was two for three, and Ange, who was two for four. Credle had two hits for Mattamuskeet.

Jamesville plays host Pantego Tuesday.

Valkyries Win First

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley romped to a 22-13 softball victory over West Craven in the first game of the season for the Valkyries yesterday.

Sparked by two home runs by Angie Roberson, the Vikings had little trouble in claiming the victory. Roberson had a solo homer in the fourth inning, and added a three-run blast in the fifth.

After falling behind, 2-1, after one inning, Conley rallied for 13 runs in the second inning to put the game out of reach.

Cynthia Barnes, Tammy Streeter, Darlene Cannon, Sherri Waters and Zena Harrington each added two hits to the Conley total. M. Brown and Lancaster each had three hits for West Craven.

The Valkyries return to action today, hosting Southern Nash in an Eastern Carolina Conference game.

Uncounted Millions Spent Seeking A Prized Oscar

Idle In Illegal Broadcasting

By ROBERT WIELAARD
Associated Press Writer
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The last time anyone counted, there were 130 private radio stations operating in this nation of 10 million people — a remarkable number in a country where private broadcasting is illegal.

"Because the government won't act, we are headed for anarchy in the airwaves," Frans Grootjans, a Conservative legislator, complained the other day.

He has introduced a bill to legalize the private broadcasters — or "free radios" as they're known here — formally ending a state monopoly the government has defended tooth and nail.

As recently as 1979, private radio broadcasting was only for those quick enough to elude the law or brave enough to risk confiscation of their transmitting equipment. Police used to regularly raid private radio stations — usually located in unmarked homes and offices — cart away all the equipment and fine anyone in sight.

"There has been a growing tendency at the political level in this country to legalize the free radios," said a spokesman for Communications Minister Freddy Willockx, explaining the sudden end to the raids.

Although the government apparently is willing to change the current legislation, it has taken no formal steps in that direction. In the meantime, starting up still illegal private radio stations has become something of a growth industry.

Today, police will act only if a station interferes with air traffic control or police radio, and often officers simply will ask station operators to adjust their transmitters or use another frequency.

Nowhere is the pirating of the government-owned airwaves more evident than in Brussels, a city of about 1.1 million, where at last count 30 private broadcasters are crowding the unused area on the FM band.

Those stations, and others elsewhere in the country, broadcast up to 24 hours a day in Flemish and French, two official languages in Belgium. At least two stations feature shows in English.

Topics range from open line talk shows to high-octane punk music, from interviews to lengthy local newscasts.

Most of the stations have limited transmitting power — in some cases reaching only about seven miles. Two stations can be heard throughout the country.

"We provide counter information," said a spokesman for Radio Scorpio in Leuven, a university town 14 miles east of Brussels. The comment reflects the general dissatisfaction among private broadcasters with the quality of programming on the state-run BRT-RTBF network.

All pirate broadcasters shun commercials — which are illegal on all Belgian radio and television — although some eventually would like to have them as a source of revenue. "There's no point in being masochistic," commented one.

So far, the country's private stations have been able to operate with the help of donations and fund-raising events. Some stations, like Radio Contact — Belgium's largest pirate station — "plug" records. "This yields up to 100,000 francs ($3,000) a month," said Georges Neuckens, a former Radio Contact disc jockey.

The sudden boom in free enterprise broadcasting has drowned out American Forces Network radio, which broadcasts from Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe or SHAPE, 40 miles south of Brussels.

A favorite with thousands of Americans and countless other foreigners in Belgium, AFN offers U.S. radio news reports and entertainment round the clock. But in the past year, the station has been swamped with letters from listeners complaining they can't receive it anymore because of the many pirate stations competing for space on or near the frequency AFN-SHAPE has been using since 1967.

The private radio stations have taken a big bite out of the BRT-RTBF listenership. According to a recent poll, almost 20 percent of Belgians listen to the private stations. In the 18-24 age group, this figure is almost 40 percent, the poll showed.

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Can a movie star buy an Oscar? Can a studio?

The question has been asked almost since the awards began 53 years ago.

No one means to question the integrity of the 3,700-member academy nor is there intent to imply for a moment that the prestigious accounting firm of Price-Waterhouse, which tallies the Oscar ballots, can be bought.

But the plain fact is that studios, stars, directors, producers, agents and press agents DO spend uncounted millions of dollars advertising for the Oscar in Daily Variety and The Hollywood Reporter.

This year the self-congratulatory ads surpassed any previous Oscar season. Variety printed its all-time record number of pages — 100 — most of which were Oscar ads. The Reporter racked up big revenues, too.

BREAK UP MARCH
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Police yesterday broke up a silent march by relatives of missing political prisoners and seized 68 people.

A full page black-and-white ad in the Reporter costs $834, and $1,184 for a two-color ad. Variety's rates are comparable.

Virtually all nominated films and performers — and many of those that failed to be nominated — were earlier presented in ads "for your consideration" directed at voting academy members.

Special parties are held for academy members, dinners and screenings set up to promote movies that have a chance for nominations. A big campaign can cost a studio a half-million dollars.

"Urban Cowboy," like many other films, took blanket ads, suggesting voters consider five different categories for Oscars — cinematography, art direction, costume design, film editing and sound.

"Urban Cowboy" failed to win a single nomination.

Warner Bros. advertised Clint Eastwood of "Bronco Billy" for best actor while Paramount thumped for Walter Matthau in "Hopscotch." Both ran out of the money.

Unbridled optimism

among losers was probably best exemplified by Richard Pryor's ad for an Oscar nomination for best actor for his performance in "Stir Crazy."

Motion picture academy officials are aghast at the blatant electioneering. The reminder list of eligible pictures was accompanied by a note from the board of governors reading:

"This year, as in the past, you will be importuned by advertisement, promotional gifts and other lobbying tactics, in an attempt to solicit your vote.

"Each year these crude and excessive solicitations embarrass the Academy, embarrass you and demean the significance of the Academy Award of Merit for outstanding achievement. All attempts by the Academy to discourage such promotions and advertisements have been in vain.

"We call upon each Academy member to disregard these attempts to influence your vote, and we urge you to register your displeasure with those who in an unrestrained and ambitious manner attempt to do so..."

A nomination is almost as coveted as the Oscar itself, and not purely for egotistical gratification. Many stars, directors and other creative people are solidly against the ads.

Studios and producers make immediate profit from the nominations by hyping their film's ads and using theater marquees to crow about the number of nominations their films have garnered.

Without doubt, nominations stimulate the box office, sometimes accounting for millions of dollars in additional revenue.

"The Elephant Man," for instance, trumpets its eight academy nominations, listing them in order, as does

"Raging Bull."

"Altered States," with a modest two nominations, attempts to entice patrons into theaters with ads heralding nominations for best score and best sound.

Producer Walter Mirisch, an academy board member, abhors the nomination hype but he's convinced it doesn't influence voters.

"I don't like the commercialization," he said. "Somehow it makes people think possibly that is the way to win an Oscar. I know from observation and experience it has very little or nothing to do with winning.

"Most people advertise defensively. They figure everyone else is taking ads and if they don't, their films will be forgotten. I got hooked on it for 'Fiddler On The Roof' with a substantial campaign. 'French Connection' won that year and I doubt if they spent as much money as we did.

"One year 'The Graduate,' 'Bonnie and Clyde,' 'Dr. Doolittle' and 'Guess Who's Coming To Dinner' spent fortunes, yet we won with a very small campaign for 'In the Heat of the Night.'

"As a voter and observer, I think members often times are put off by ads."

Former Moral Majority Leader In Education Job

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — The former executive director of Moral Majority has been named by the Reagan administration as a special assistant to Secretary of Education Terrell Bell.

The Rev. Robert Billings, 54, said Thursday his duties and title in the U.S. Department of Education still haven't been defined. He began work Wednesday. A formal announcement of his appointment is expected in a few days.

As a federal education official, Billings supports returning prayer to the public school classroom and opposes almost any form of government regulation of private schools, he said in an interview Thursday.

Billings' appointment was called "unfortunate" Thursday by another Baptist minister who heads a Washington lobbying group favoring strict separation of church and state.

Billings was the first executive director of Moral Majority, the Washington lobbying group founded in 1979 by Lynchburg television evangelist Jerry Falwell. He left that post last summer to work on President Reagan's campaign staff.

Before joining Moral Majority, Billings founded the National Christian Action Coalition, another conservative lobbying group now run by his son. He became a lobbyist after the Internal Revenue Service proposed putting racial quotas on tax-exempt private schools.

Billings is a graduate of Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C. He has taught in both public and private schools, rising to president of Hyles-Anderson College, a small Christian college supported by the First Baptist Church of Hammond, Ind.

An ordained Baptist minister, Billings said he enjoyed preaching "but my first love is education."

Along with school prayer, Billings supports tax credits for private school tuition so long as they don't lead to more government regulation. Reagan promised to push for the tax credits during the campaign. But Billings said Thursday he did not know if those issues would come up in his new job, and also did not know what the department's position on them would be.

He supports Reagan's promise to eliminate the Department of Education as a separate agency.

It may leave him without a job, but "that's all right," he said. "I'm going along with the president's program. I think he's doing all the right things."

Falwell praised Billings' appointment as "proof positive that the president is committed to excellence in both public and non-public education."

Cal Thomas, vice president for communications of Moral Majority, said the organization did not view Billings' appointment as "a payoff."

"Every special interest group, and we are just one of many, loves to have people in government who are responsive to its principles, who not only listen but also agree," Thomas said.

Under President Carter the department "had departed from the traditional values and principles that once made public education in America something to be proud of," Thomas said.

But the Rev. R.G. Puckett, director of Americans United for Separation of Church and State, said the appointment "gives a platform to someone whose views on church-state separation, religious liberty and education are outside the American mainstream."

The appointment was also criticized Thursday by Linda Tarr-Whelan, director of governmental relations for the National Education Association.

"The Moral Majority took an extreme position on matters of public education, and it seems inappropriate to us for a person who has taken those positions to be entrusted with a position of public responsibility in public education," she said.

Prepared Pay $1.165 Million

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An attorney for the S.T. Wooten Construction Co. said Thursday the firm has agreed to pay the state $1.165 million in settlement for its role in the manipulation of bidding on highway projects.

Transportation Department officials planned to recommend the Wooten settlement and at least three others to the State Board of Transportation at a meeting today, The News and Observer of Raleigh reported.

In confirming the settlement, Raleigh attorney G. Eugene Boyce, who represented Wooten in negotiations with the state, said the plan called for Wooten's immediate restoring to the list of qualified bidders for state highway paving projects.

"We hope it doesn't put us out of business," Boyce said of the settlement.

Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten and H. Al Cole Jr., the special deputy attorney general who is negotiating the settlements for the state, declined to confirm the settlements.

S.T. Wooten, president of the Wilson company, pleaded guilty in December to federal charges that he violated the Sherman Antitrust Act by rigging bids. He is serving a 120-day term in the federal prison at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama.

His company also pleaded guilty to the federal charges and was fined $400,000.

Such a settlement with Wooten would be the largest negotiated by the state so far as a result of guilty pleas or convictions in federal courts. The state has not filed any charges on its own.

Rea Construction Co. of Charlotte paid $650,000, and Barnhill Construction Co. paid $450,000. Those agreements were approved last October.

Fifteen paving companies in North Carolina either have been indicted on or pleaded guilty to charges of violation of the federal Sherman Antitrust Act as part of a U.S. Department of Justice investigation into collusion among pavers.

Today's Cryptquip clue: Y equals A

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

"Aces were made to capture kings," is an old bridge adage. South helped his opponents achieve that objective on today's hand, yet they were strangely unappreciative.

South had a classic three no trump opening bid—25 points and a perfectly balanced distribution. Since North's original pass had already been something of an overbid, he had nothing further to contribute.

West led his fourth-best spade and, before playing to the first trick, South paused to consider the possibilities. The opening lead assured him of seven tricks, and diamonds was the obvious suit to develop for two more. If the suit divided evenly, it would always produce three tricks. But in the event of the more likely 4-2 division, declarer would need to take two diamond finesses. Unfortunately, there was only one sure entry to the table.

Declarer found a neat solution to his problem. At trick one, he played the ten of spades from dummy. When East took the ace, declarer jettisoned his king under it! Since West held the queen of spades, dummy's jack was now an entry. No matter what the defenders did, the contract could no longer be beaten. Declarer used the ten of spades as an entry for one diamond finesse, and the queen of clubs to repeat the finesse. Since East held the king of diamonds, declarer came to one spade trick, two hearts, three diamonds and three clubs.

As the cards lie, there is a double dummy line that will enable declarer to make his contract even if he does not unblock the king of spades under the ace. He wins the spade return, enters dummy with the queen of clubs and takes the diamond finesse. Now declarer cashes his remaining winners in clubs and hearts, then exits with a heart. East must win and, at the end, lead a diamond from the king to give declarer a second finesse. But that line would fail if West started with three or more hearts.

Board To Meet

Included on the agenda is the acceptance of bids for a new ambulance cab and chassis, a report from the Pitt County Transportation Committee, consideration of proposals received for food service at the county office building, consideration of a proposal from Alert Cable TV for a franchise for the Farmville area, and a meeting with representatives of the League of Women Voters to discuss service by women on various county boards.

Stockman Seeks 'Flexible' Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director David Stockman said Thursday he would like to find "a more flexible" substitute for the tobacco price support program, especially one that would not require substantial loans from the Commodity Credit Corp.

Stockman also said he favored a reassessment of the overall price program for tobacco, but he said there was no rush.

"It ought to be reassessed," Stockman said. "It is a very complex thing, and it is not one of my top priorities."

Stockman, considered an opponent of price supports for farm commodities, discussed the tobacco program in an interview after participating at a seminar sponsored by Rep. James T. Broyhill, R-N.C.

He said similar comments had been given in testimony Thursday before the Senate Budget Committee, where he was questioned by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, an opponent of the tobacco program.

Stockman said Metzenbaum repeatedly "keeps hitting the subsidy idea."

"I tried to explain to him that it is not a subsidy. It is a total market management program, and if you want to do anything about it, you have got to find some other way to run the program."

Stockman said he wanted to develop an alternative program, "one that does not create these large outlays on the budget every other year, depending on the state of the market."

CCC loaned $172 million to grower-owned tobacco cooperatives in fiscal 1980 to support the price program. Under that program, a farmer's tobacco goes into the price support program if it does not attract a market price at least one cent more than the support level.

CCC is paid back when the

FOCUS

The Fall of Caesar

Julius Caesar is regarded as one of the greatest men in the history of the world. He became a brilliant military leader and helped make Rome the center of a far-reaching empire. He was also an excellent writer, speaker, and politician. These outstanding qualities helped him become the dictator of the Roman world. Many of Caesar's opponents feared that he had become too powerful, and a group of them plotted his assassination. According to plan, they stabbed Caesar to death as he entered a Senate meeting. The anniversary of Caesar's brutal assassination is this Sunday, March 15, on the "Ides of March."

DO YOU KNOW — According to Shakespeare's famous play about Caesar's assassination, what were Caesar's last words?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Jose Napoleon Duarte is the leader of El Salvador's military government.

cooperatives that administer the program sell the tobacco.

Agriculture Secretary John Block announced earlier this week that he was cutting off preferential interest rates for the tobacco program and for other crops. But he again said he did not favor changing the basic support program.

His predecessor, Republican Bob Bergland, said in Fayetteville Thursday night that he also favored retention of the program, especially if it were coupled with import quotas on foreign tobacco. But Bergland cautioned tobacco farmers to look for other sources of income, predicting that changes in the marketplace will lessen the demand for tobacco in the years to come.
