Paper "Money" Changes Hands

Trimming Food Stamps Would Hit Pitt Economy

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

The rolling grocery basket comes to a halt at the checkout stand. It's filled with foodstuffs, enough for a good-sized family for a week, perhaps. As the clerk tallies the bill, the shopper reaches into a handbag and pulls out a bundle of coupons — the paper food stamps that serve as money for nearly 14,000 people in Pitt County.

Neighborhood stores in rural areas also benefit. Galloway Thompson says food stamps account for 10 percent of the business at his Convenient Mart in Simpson. "It certainly would be missed," Thompson said. The Senate Agriculture Committee, chaired by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., began public hearings last week on the Reagan administration's proposals to cut the food stamp program by trimming nearly $2 billion from the $12.5 billion budget advocated by former President Carter.

Rock-Throwing Mob Pelts Robed Klansmen, Police

By PETER HAWES
Associated Press Writer

MERIDEN, Conn. (AP) — A Ku Klux Klan rally turned into a bloody confrontation Saturday afternoon when anti-Klan protesters began hurling rocks and bottles at the white-robed Klansmen as they hid behind a human shield of policemen.

where they had retreated after about 125 members of the International Committee Against Racism rushed the building's steps during a speech by KKK Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson. After staying inside for about an hour, the Klan members slipped out a back door of the building under police escort. They had marched about 75 feet when onlookers began pelting them with rocks, bricks, bottles and lumber.

Meriden City Manager Dana Miller credited the riot-garbed city police with stopping the violence quickly. "They did a hell of a job," he said. Miller said that the Klan's decision to march back to their starting point provoked the crowd to violence. A planned St. Patrick's Day parade took place as scheduled, barely a half-hour after the demonstration broke up.

Peat Project To Begin

By SUE FERNALD
Reflector Staff Writer

"Swamp Gas" extracted from Eastern North Carolina peat bogs through a patented Swedish process can provide an alternative energy source, according to Robert W. Kaylor, president of Alcohol Corporation of America Inc. The corporation, which was formed here in early 1980 by area businessmen, plans to begin pilot projects within 90 to 120 days to recover the odorless methane gas formed underground through natural processes.

This is the first time the Swedish technique has been used in the United States. The process involves laying something similar to drainage pipes three to nine feet underground to carry the water found in peat bogs to a degassing station. The methane is then removed and stored, and the water put back into the bog.

The project will be implemented in areas which have little commercial value, such as swamp lands. The only visible machinery will be a small pump station measuring 12x12-feet for each 10-acre site. The pumps create the necessary action to extract methane from the water which is later converted to methanol.

Helms Gives Reagan An A-Plus

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration received generally favorable reviews Saturday from conservatives who rated it better on policy than on personnel.

pleased with the Reagan administration," Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., told the Conservative Political Action Conference. "I am not pleased with some of the appointments to high positions."

On policy, however, the conservative North Carolinian said, "I would give the president A-plus so far." Speaking at the conference's closing banquet, Helms told the conservatives that "before we become too self-satisfied I would caution the battle has just begun." He said President Reagan's economic program would test "the will of the American people and how much guts the Congress has."

Farm Leaders Optimistic About Leaf Program

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Farm leaders in Pitt County last week expressed optimism about the tobacco price-support program, and said the end to federal funding of the tobacco inspection and grading program as well as federally subsidized loans for the Commodity Credit Corp., should not hurt the industry. Their comments came in light of multi-million-dollar cuts proposed by Pres. Ronald Reagan in funds aiding leaf production and marketing.

276,000 farmers a minimum price for their leaf, based on the grade of their tobacco as determined — in the past — by government graders. Under the program, if a farmer's leaf does not bring the minimum price, the Flue Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. purchases the tobacco, then holds the leaf for resale. Atlas Wooten, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau and a member of the board of directors of the Flue Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp., said, "definitely," the price support program is, "settled...for 1981. We all feel confident that we're set for 1981. After that, well...we have no way of knowing whatsoever. We can't predict."

It. Will the farmer pay it all, or will other interests involved pay part of the cost? "Actually," Wooten said, federal loan subsidy, "was not a great thing in North Carolina last year." While in the past, Stabilization has received 8 1/2 percent money, last year it, "got 11 1/2 percent loans," according to Wooten. Paying 13 percent on the average for money throughout the year, he noted the subsidy amounts to only, "actually 1 1/2 percent."

actually, for us, it's better to sell the most recently acquired." He explained 1975 crop tobacco was purchased with 6 percent money, while 1980 leaf was bought with 11 1/2 percent funds. "We're moving our inventories now. With a reduction in quotas," for the coming season, "we may see a considerable drop in tobacco held by Stabilization."

Optimistic About Tobacco

"I expect the producer to pay the bill. It might cost a half to two-thirds cent a pound. But I'm willing to pay my part." And the farmer indicated, "I know what that will cost," because he raises 1.5 million pounds of tobacco a year. "I don't expect anyone in New York or California to pay it."

"If everyone bears as nearly as possible equal reductions in the federal budget, I think it's a step in the right direction." The cost to the tobacco farmer, "is very little when you consider the total program and benefits. With 1100 million pounds of tobacco, the industry can certainly stand it (the cost)."

As for the interest subsidy deficit, the farmer noted, "I thought it was more than what it is."

Another grower-warehouseman emphasized, "I think the (price-support) program is going to continue on like it is now for a long time to come."

As for the end of the government grading program, he said, "I don't want to pay," an assessment for grading. "But I think it might be a compromise... a cheap thing for us to do in order to make the program work. I'm willing to pay my part if that's what it takes to keep the program. This service is for the benefit of the growers."

"I don't really have a lot of information on it," Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service chairman Leroy James said of the proposal to end government grading. "But I really think it's really going to cost farmers. The government has been picking up the tab on this. Now it looks like it will come out of the pocket of most of our farmers."

"The companies may pay less to offset the cost, but somebody's got to pay the costs. It will fall on the company or fall on the sellers."

"I've just got the feeling it's going to fall on the farmers. It will be locked in there some way so the farmers will pay the difference."

Trimming Food Stamps

Helms, after Reagan's election last fall, said he would attempt to have 40 percent of the program's recipients cut off.

In opening his committee hearings last week, Helms said the American people were "almost up in arms" over waste in the food stamp program.

Grocer Harris, while saying he welcomed the business, also questioned the manner in which the program is handled.

"I definitely have seen people who didn't need food stamps," Harris said. "I have seen people come in with food stamps, pick up their food and then go out and get into a new car."

"I think what Reagan is doing is right. I'm behind the man. I'm against me having to pay someone else's way."

Harris continued, "As a grocer, I know that nobody seems willing to work. Nobody wants a job, they just want a title."

Other grocers denied having seen any apparent abuse of the program. Garrison also denied any widespread abuse, estimating that there was an 8 percent error probability in Pitt County's program, including fraud and administrative error.

"I believe that Mr. Helms is calling abuse those legal aspects (of the program) that he doesn't agree with," Garrison said.

"The program now provides that some people can qualify that, humanely, it doesn't seem they should qualify," he said. "Strikers are eligible for food stamps, and I don't agree with that."

Garrison acknowledged "fraud and abuse can occur... the fact that some people get stamps and trade them for wine is wrong."

"But it's no more wrong than it is for that white Anglo-Saxon American who, on April 15th, fills out that income tax return and claims a gold fish as a dependent. Just because people are poor and participate in programs like this, it doesn't make them crooked — no more than any other segment of the society," Garrison said.

Garrison said any report of possible fraud is investigated and, if found to be accurate, is corrected. He said administrative errors have been reduced in Pitt County because of the experience of his staff, which includes 19 people involved only with food stamps.

With the help of a planned computer operation, Garrison said he hoped to reduce the error potential in the county program to 3 percent. "I don't think we'll ever get better than that," he said.

Under current USDA guidelines, a household of one person and an income of $316 a month or less could receive up to $70 a month in food stamps. A family of four, with an income of $621 a month, could obtain a maximum of $233 in food stamps.

The program is graduated upward, depending on the number of people in the household and the monthly income, to a maximum of a 20-member household. In that case, which Garrison says is unlikely to occur, the household could have a combined income of $2,250 a month and still receive $1,055 in stamps.

Garrison said more than 60 percent of the households in Pitt County receive $105 a month or less. About 28 percent of the households receive between $106 and $252 each month, and just under 10 percent receive up to $460 a month. Only a small percentage — about 50 households — receive more than $460 monthly.

The federal government pays for the stamps, but the administrative costs are shared. For the current year, the federal government is paying 50 percent of the administrative costs in Pitt County, or $169,803. The state is funding 3 percent, or $20,376, and the county pays the rest, $149,426.

as conflict among religious groups which temporarily had suppressed differences during the campaign.

"The religious temperament represented by Moral Majority is opposed to compromise," he says.

Funeral services are incomplete at the Nortott & Company Funeral Home in Ayden.

Break-Up

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan State University professor says the conservative religious coalition represented by Moral Majority reached its peak of power in the 1980 presidential election. He predicts it will break apart into factions within two years.

It contains "basically incompatible elements," says Milton Powell, a specialist in religion in American history and author of a book on the subject, "The Voluntary Church."

He says there inevitably will be splits between new and old conservatives as well

Women Win Press Awards

Daily Reflector staff writers Carol Tyer and Rosalie Trotman, Reflector regular contributor Patricia Moore, and former Reflector staffer Joyce Evans won awards in their profession during the Women's Press Club of North Carolina meeting held in Raleigh Friday and Saturday.

First-place awards were won by Mrs. Tyer in news writing (dailies under 25,000), special reporting (interpretive), and page makeup; by Mrs. Moore in feature writing (dailies under 25,000) and interviewing (dailies under 25,000); and by Miss Evans in news writing (dailies over 25,000), and two in special articles-writing (one in education; the other in technical subject interpretation).

Capturing second place were an article by Mrs. Moore in the interviewing (dailies over 25,000) category and articles by Mrs. Tyer in the feature writing (dailies under 25,000), interviewing (dailies under 25,000), page makeup and news photography categories.

Third-place awards were those of Mrs. Trotman in the page makeup and interviewing (dailies over 25,000) categories; Mrs. Tyer in the news writing (dailies under 25,000), feature photography, and nature photography categories; and Miss Evans in the interviewing (dailies over 25,000) and news writing (dailies over 25,000) categories.

Mrs. Tyer is a general assignment reporter and Hotline column editor of "The Daily Reflector." Mrs. Trotman is Reflector woman's editor. Mrs. Moore is a former full-time Reflector staffer whose freelance articles appear in the Reflector and numerous other publications. Miss Evans is an education and health writer for "The Fayetteville Times" who worked part-time for "The Daily Reflector" until her graduation from East Carolina University last June.

Mrs. Tyer's awards were for the following efforts: first place in news writing for a story on the finding of a skeleton of a woman missing for nine weeks from Greenville Villa Nursing Home; first place in special reporting (interpretive) for a four-part series on agoraphobia; and first place in page makeup for a feature page layout titled "Life Is Good, Hope of Heaven Is Better."

Second place in feature writing for an investigative article on the Professional Diet Control program new in Greenville at the time; second place for an interview with Mrs. Pattie Winstead, a 92-year-old Williamston woman who had appealed, with the help of a niece, through the Reflector Hotline column for the words to the song she wanted sung at her funeral; second place in page makeup for a feature page layout titled "Margaret Williams Grows Daylilies, Other Delights"; second place in news photography for a picture titled "Outdoors" in which a Greenville woman stood surrounded by all her worldly possessions after her trailer home was repossessed; third place in news writing for a story on a Greenville woman whose trailer home was repossessed; third place in feature photography for an underwater photo of a swimming baby; and third place in nature photography for jacks-in-the-pulpit photographed in a wildflower area of Mrs. Margaret Williams' garden in Rocky Mount.

Mrs. Trotman's awards were a third place in page makeup for a feature page layout titled, "Don't Go Away: See North Carolina This Year" and a third place for an interview with Elizabeth Callis, supervisor of hostess training for Colonial Williamsburg.

Mrs. Moore's awards were a first place for feature writing for an article on the restoration and resumed use of the Long house at the corner of Fourth and Cotanche streets here; a first place for an interview with North Carolina poet Ardis Kimzey published in "The Daily Reflector" and second place for an interview with North Carolina novelist Sue Ellen Bridgers published in "The News & Observer."

Miss Evans' awards were a first in special articles (education) for an article on the problems of historically black institutions of higher education; a first in news writing for an article on the funding dilemma of the South Cumberland Health Center; a first for special articles (technical) on the use of computerization for enabling of the handicapped with varied special skills; a third place for an interview with television journalist Tony Brown; and a third place in news writing for an article on the problems encountered by a Cumberland veteran trying to reach the veterans' hospital in Durham by ambulance. All five were published in "The Fayetteville Times."

The Women's Press Club of North Carolina is an affiliate of the National Federation of Press Women Inc. All first-place entries from the state level have been sent for national competition. Announcements of winners will be made at a June convention in Philadelphia.

Patients Get Home Care

There are some situations in the medical world when being treated in the home environment may hasten a patient's recovery faster than hospital treatment. Eastern Home Health Services Inc. of Beaufort and Pitt County is a non-profit organization that provides nursing and supportive services to sick and disabled persons in their home.

This organization was formed 10 years ago to fill the need for home care services in the area. The agency is self supporting and provides five certified services to homebound patients: skilled nursing care, home health aide services, physical therapy, speech pathology and occupational therapy.

The agency has a full-time staff of an administrator, who is a registered nurse, three other registered nurses, five home health aides and two office personnel in Beaufort County. There is a nurse supervisor, four registered nurses, six home health aides and two office personnel in Pitt County.

In order to provide home health care, an agency must be licensed yearly by the North Carolina Department of Human Resources and surveyed and certified annually by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Resources.

A home health agency must meet requirements for sound administration, adequate record keeping, professional supervision, assessment, review and have an advisory board of local citizens. Its primary function is to provide skilled nursing service and at least one other therapeutic service.

When a patient no longer needs the constant supervision provided by a hospital, home health services can provide intermittent nursing and rehabilitative care to the patient in his own home.

Home care can work for the short-term convalescent patient who is recovering from an acute illness or surgery and the homebound patient who is chronically ill as well as the terminally ill person. When the patient recuperates at home and medically required services are available, the family has an opportunity to share in the care — a meaningful task to many families.

Through home health services, a diabetic can be shown how to adapt his diet restrictions and instructions provided in administering his insulin injections. Similarly, a stroke victim can work toward rehabilitation in his own home with the assistance of a trained health worker. Whenever needed, all disciplines work as a team to rehabilitate the patient to his maximum potential.

All patients receiving home health care must be under a physician's plan of treatment, which is reviewed periodically by the physician. Homebound patients are visited in the home and receive treatment as outlined by his attending physician. The cost for providing home health care is reimbursable through the Medicare and Medicaid programs, and most private insurance companies.

No patient is denied care due to inability to pay. All services are provided without regard to race, sex, color, or national origin.

As an additional community service, students from the East Carolina University School of Nursing and Physical Therapy departments receive experience in home health care by making visits with professional personnel from this agency.

The goal of Eastern Carolina Home Health Services Inc. is to provide services which support the family's choice of caring for an ill loved one at home and to help the patient maintain the highest possible level of functioning.

'Jane Doe' May Be From Chicago

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Doctors believe an amnesia victim found naked and near death in a state park seven months ago is the troubled daughter of a suburban Chicago couple who hadn't talked to her in seven years, a newspaper reported Saturday.

"It's looking more and more like it's her," a Florida State Hospital official told The Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel. Drawing on the woman's "truth serum" induced recollections of a Catholic childhood in suburban Chicago, doctors believe Jane Doe is Cheryl Ann Tomiczek, the 34-year-old daughter of a Roselle, Ill., engineer and his wife, the newspaper reported in a copyright story.

Jane Doe was committed to the state mental hospital after a ranger found her, emaciated and covered with sores, at Birch State Park in Fort Lauderdale last September. She regained her health but not her memory.

News reports of her plight and a national television appearance prompted hundreds of calls to the hospital from anxious families throughout the country who hoped she was their missing daughter.

Fort Lauderdale Police Sgt. Frank Schueler said Cheryl Tomiczek was one of three possible identities for Jane Doe.

"We've asked the Tomiczek family to make arrangements... that we will be notifying them within a week to come to Florida," Schueler told The Miami Herald. "We have alerted the other families that there's a possibility that we could call them and they were told we have on family we're going to call down first."

Irene Tomiczek said her daughter left Chicago for southern Florida in 1966.

Tax Counseling To Be Offered

Income tax counseling will be available free for retirees Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2-4 p.m. in the lobby of North Carolina National Bank, on First Street, through April 9.

Tax-Aide is offered by a group of trained volunteers from the local AARP Chapter.

Those desiring help should bring their tax forms, last year's tax returns and evidence of income received in 1980.

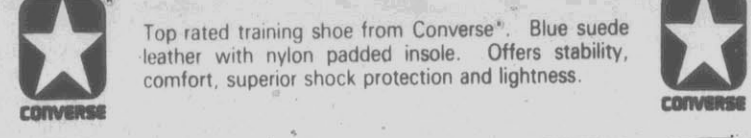

Highway Talk

"The Highway Fund Crisis and How it Affects Highway 264" will be the topic of a Pepsi break scheduled for March 31, according to Mark Tipton, chairman of the committee.

Tom Bradshaw, secretary of the N.C. Department of Transportation will be guest speaker for the meeting, to be held at 7:32 a.m. at the Willis Building.

All chamber of commerce members and interested citizens are invited to attend the meeting. Pepsi and pastries will be served. To make reservations call the chamber of commerce office at 752-4101.

First Can Be Shuffled Out

We can quickly see some problems with the plan by Rep. Allen C. Barbee, D-Nash, for redrawing the lines for the state's congressional districts.

The Barbee plan calls for shifting Lenoir, Greene and Martin Counties to the 2nd District and adding Onslow to the 1st.

The question immediately arises, why shift those counties from the 1st District?

They fit in very well with the rest of the 1st, philosophically and geographically. Thus we can see little reason to change the district simply for change sake.

It appears the heart of the Barbee plan is to place Orange, Wake and Durham Counties in a congressional district to themselves. The home counties of Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill might be closely allied, but for the life of us we can see no reason why other districts should be shuffled around to make way for such a congressional district as that.

Eastern legislators should get into this quickly. There is no justification for breaking away three 1st District counties, but if someone is not willing to stand up for the area in the Legislature it could well be done before we know what's happened.

Smoke Alarms Should Be There

Among the things we are glad to see is the report by Cliff Moore, vice chancellor of ECU, that fire alarm and smoke detectors are being ordered for installation in all dormitories.

Certainly every dorm should have these devices installed in numbers sufficient to provide adequate protection for all students living in the dorms.

It is the kind of thing we assume is always in place and always in working order. If the smoke detectors and alarms are not there they certainly should be.

Group Homes Show Gains

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Despite sporadic neighborhood opposition, occasional court battles, and even one case of unlawful burning, group homes for retarded and disabled citizens are making strong gains in North Carolina.

In just 10 years since the first such neighborhood facility opened in Forest City, group homes have increased to 102 across the state.

The recent ruling of the N.C. Supreme Court that a group home is a permitted activity in residential areas leads Human Resources Secretary Sarah T. Morrow to believe that even the substantial growth of the past decade only scratches the surface... the 1980s will see even more significant growth.

Group home living allows the retarded and developmentally disabled individual to live in a normal community setting, hold a regular job, and learn to be more self sufficient. In numerous cases, neighborhood objections have turned to neighborhood involvement and acceptance once the program is underway.

Besides the benefits to the individual, there is a considerable savings in tax dollars. Secretary Morrow said occupancy at the state's four mental retardation centers has declined by one-third since 1970, down from 4,862 to 3,243. "There is no way to tell how many people did not have to be institutionalized during these years because there were community alternatives", she said.

Now a new approach is in the works — apartment living projects. Already 60 residents have left group homes for the less structured and lower-care atmosphere of apartment living either in a cluster complex which has a counselor living in the area to provide help, or another type which does not have a resident counselor.

The cost comparison is worth note, says Morrow: to keep one person in a mental retardation center costs $36,000 per year; group home cost is $12,000.

Food Costs

The experts predict food costs will go up from 12 to 14 percent this year, even in the face of an overall lessening of inflation's bite.

But the farmer will see precious little of the increased income from food sales. The "food-marketing bill" takes 70 cents of each dollar spent by the consumer, labor takes 31 cents, packaging takes 8.7 cents; transportation takes 5.3 cents; and food firm profits take 3.8 cents.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture offers this explanation:

"Food processors and distributors are being hit with stagnant consumer purchasing power, high inventory charges, rising production costs, and higher prices for raw food products."

"These factors are reducing profit ratios, so firms have little choice but to pass on their increased costs..."

"Expanded services at the state ports seems to be paying off in more business. The N.C. Department of Commerce reports the "best six months in a long time" with revenues during the last of 1980 up 35 percent at Morehead City ($2.1 million); and up 26 percent at Wilmington ($4.3 million).

The loss situation at Morehead City which dropped $1,700 in the last six months of 1979 was reversed, and a profit of $300,000 shown. Wilmington profits were $750,000.

Sunday Morning Notes

There are all kinds of bumper stickers, from those promoting Carolina blue to Purple Power.

If there isn't one that promotes the cause you favor, then it is easy enough to have one made up.

The ultimate in bumper stickers might be the large mud flaps on the back of a tractor-trailer passing through town.

Like a huge bill board it proclaimed, "Jesus Carries My Load."

The pretty girl was distraught in a local store. She held up only the plastic shield which had encased the key to the car which she was driving. The key obviously was somewhere between where she parked the car and the counter where she picked up a prescription.

A thorough search by store employees and helpful customers failed to turn up the key.

"I'm so embarrassed," she said. She explained that she had borrowed the car from a roommate who had lost the original key. What's more, she couldn't locate the roommate...and she could think of only one other person she knew in the area.

Finally she reached that person, who came and gave her a ride. The keyless car was left stranded in the parking lot.

Charlie Phillips breathed a sigh of relief when we saw him at breakfast the other morning.

"I'm glad you all identified that saucer," he said, referring to the dish recently erected in the newspaper parking lot. "I thought it was some kind of solar collector."

Solar collector it's not. It will receive signals from satellite which will provide us with Associated Press service.

It has also been mistaken for a flying saucer, or some kind of death ray. Believe me, it is perfectly harmless.

Snow last week. Only two days before Spring at that.

Fortunately it was only a dusting and it quickly disappeared during the morning on Thursday.

Here is our weather prediction: no more snow during 1981 for Pitt County.

Furry Future Stars

AP Special Correspondent RIDGFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Irvin Feld, the circus impresario who tours the world looking for top acts, might want to drop by here some day, or some night really, and audition my performing raccoons.

They combine the best of Houdini, the Flying Wallendas and the Masked Marvel, with hilarious touches of the roly-poly comedy of Lou Costello, Oliver Hardy and Billy Gilbert (who sneezed his way through some 90 films), all rolled into one.

Last night this trio of ringtailed wonders — or fearless furry felons performing fantastic feats of facile facinorous fancy and fakery, as the circus flacks might gild them in their coruscating prose — staged another midnight raid on my bird feeder.

The fat one, or at least the fattest one, suspended himself from a high overhanging branch, so the other two could crawl over him and, almost like a trapeze act, swing down on top of my cedar shake feeder, which hangs by a length of piano wire from the limb of a dogwood tree.

Wait, you haven't seen anything yet. Held by his rear claws in the grasp of his partner (the medium fat one), the end raccoon in this tandem team managed to lift open the latched lid, remove one of the glass panels, which had been firmly inserted in wooden slots, and spill every last husk of sunflower seed onto the ground for their big after-show party.

Other Editors Say Not Worth Cost

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

Until educators can agree on the need for proposed class size cuts, Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. should put his proposal on the back burner. Hunt and the Advisory Budget Commission have asked the Legislature to commit more than $50 million during 1981-83 to reduce class sizes. Most educators feel that reducing the size of classes from 30 to 28 is not all that important. Making certain, where possible, that students with the same learning capabilities are placed in the same class is more important than reducing the number of students.

A study by Alkan T. Hill, the state Board of Education's assistant controller, reveals that the quality of teachers, not the quantity, is the single controllable factor that most affects student performance. Other factors, such as parents' income and education and the availability of a teacher aide, are less important, the Hill report revealed.

Most educators think that in the first three or four grades of school, as much individual attention as possible must be given. In the junior high and high school programs, so long as the number of students is not over 30, a good teacher can cope with that number. Ideal teaching conditions would be to have between 15 and 20 students in a class; but there is no way that any state in the union could operate such a program.

There is no doubt that reducing the teacher load from 30 to 28 would have some advantages. There would be fewer papers to grade, and fewer students to teach. Yet at a time when we in North Carolina are searching for additional highway funds and other money for desperately needed programs, we are not in a position to spend $50 million on an experiment for which no one has a logical answer. If Hunt and the Advisory Budget Commission are determined to spend $50 million for public school education, the money might be better spent on increased teacher salaries or physical facilities.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Supply-Side Breakthrough

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Just as supporters of Ronald Reagan's tax cut were beginning to panic, a liberal Democratic congressman from Detroit named William R. Brodhead tipped off a potentially historic breakthrough for supply-side tax reduction.

Rep. Brodhead, a member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, on March 10 introduced a bill to reduce immediately the present 70 percent tax on "unearned" income (dividends and interest) to 50 percent. That move suggested forthcoming bipartisan agreement on tax reductions that could smash all congressional obstacles and enact the heart of Reagan's economic policy.

The breakthrough could transcend this year's legislation. Behind the new stance by Brodhead and his Democratic colleagues on ways and means stands the prospect of ending traditional Democratic obsession with distributing the tax burden to restrict wealth. Instead of worrying about punishing the rich, they are now seeking a tax formula that will most benefit the economy even if the rich become proportionally richer.

In pressing to end the distinction between "earned" (wages and salaries) and "unearned" income, Brodhead hailed "the rechanneling of funds away from tax shelters and toward economically sound investments." It is a prohibitively high rate of taxation aimed at equalizing the tax burden that has forced the wealthy out of productive investments into non-productive tax shelters.

This was precisely the reasoning used by Reagan's experts at the Treasury early this year when they urged the Kemp-Roth tax cut formula — 10 percent cuts across the board each year for three years — be extended by the quick drop in rates on "unearned" income. But supply-side politicians lost their nerve, fearing demagogic attacks on them for favoring the rich.

Reagan shunned the bold counsel of his economists and heeded the cautious admonitions of his politicians. Even Rep. Jack Kemp flinched. Ever since that decision, announced Feb. 13, the supply side had appeared to be fading. A constantly shrinking tax cut seemed destined for ever later passage.

But something was happening behind the scenes that not even the participants fully appreciated. As Democratic congressmen met to ponder an alternative to Reagan, they were tacitly accepting premises unthinkable six months ago: First, tax rate reduction this year is essential; second, it must benefit all classes of taxpayers; third, no economic expansion is possible unless business profitability is enhanced by tax revision.

A tip-off came during ways and means hearings March 4 when Chairman Dan Rostenkowski asked a panel of economic experts whether a quick drop in the 70 percent "unearned" rate would be desirable; the answer was yes. Brodhead, chairman of the liberal Democratic Study Group (DSG) with a 94 percent liberal voting record as measured by the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), introduced his bill six days later.

Brodhead had not conferred with Rostenkowski, but he was not alone. Rep. Sam Gibbons of Florida, the committee's second-ranking Democrat, backs him. So does the sometime liberal enfant terrible of ways and means, 31-year-old Rep. Thomas Downey of New York. So does the committee's influential Rep. James Jones of Oklahoma, who is also House Budget Committee chairman.

All this excited suspicions within the administration of a plot against Reagan-Kemp-Roth. But Kemp himself immediately joined Brodhead as a co-sponsor, exuberant not merely because of Brodhead's bill but because of his rhetoric. While insisting that "I am not a supply-sider," Brodhead accepted the supply-side view of profound influence on investor decisions by the tax rate on the last dollar of income received.

What would Brodhead tell his labor union supporters back in Michigan if asked about this proposal? "I would tell them we have to reduce taxes on wealthy people to have more investment."

Vestiges of Democratic orthodoxy persist, such as desire by the ways and means Democrats to repeal tax shelters. But Downey told us that old liberal goal of "loophole closing" and the new 50 percent top ceiling (Continued on Page A-5)

Strength For Today

ONE FRIEND COUNTS

One day a girl who lived a lonely and impoverished life in a big city tried to commit suicide. She was rushed to a hospital, where a doctor — by prompt and effective treatment — saved her life. But before he left the bedside of the unconscious girl, he stood looking down at her very intently.

Two days later, when she was out of danger, a plant was delivered to her bedside with a card which read, "From a Friend". When the girl read it she smiled, for the first time in a long while, and from that point onward the depression which had led to her attempted suicide began to recede. She never knew that the "friend" who had sent the plant was the doctor who saved her life.

There are millions of lonely people in the world who above everything else need a friend. Not many friends, but just one. Those of us who are more fortunate can literally save lives if we can let the lonely and desperate know that someone cares. — Elisha Douglass

To the editor:
It is alarming to me to think that an article on such an important issue as world hunger could only merit a small blurb next to the want ads on page 18 of Monday's issue of your newspaper.

With all the U. S. concern about national security soaking the media these days, I am amazed that people cannot or do not see that hunger is closely related to global security. The Presidential Commission on World Hunger is firmly convinced that a major world-wide effort to conquer hunger and poverty, far from being a gesture of charity to be offered or withheld according to temporary political whims, holds the key to both global and national security.

This year is the tenth in which the Greenville Hunger Coalition has sponsored the annual "Walk for Humanity." Chancellor Brewer referred to the walk as "an outstanding humanitarian program."

In this country, for some reason, the magnitude of the problem does not seem to register with the people. I wonder how many realize that their domestic pets eat better than two-thirds of the world. People in the Third World countries cannot comprehend the fact that we grow grain to feed livestock!

But let's put the world problems aside. We certainly do not have to look far to see hungry people. There are people right here in this community who do not know where their next meal is coming from. Unfortunately, a large gray cloud of apathy has settled on most Americans. That is the real problem.

It is amazing that the Hunger Coalition has been around so long, but so few are involved. I commend Chancellor Brewer and hope others will follow him and see that this is an excellent opportunity for Greenville to help its own community and other regions of the world.

I know that one concerned citizen will do his part. I will walk. Would anyone like to join me?

To the editor:
City Council has accepted the citizens' petition AGAINST the unreasonable 500 percent increase in the City license tag tax.

Now... what action will our elected officials take? With only 2037 qualified petitioners AGAINST this increased taxation, they can afford to ignore the issue... as usual.

After all, over 12,000 taxpayers bought the $5 tags. As 2037 stood AGAINST the issue, some 10,000 silent citizens did not object. Thus, the silent majority gives the City Council a mandate to... tax at their will and desire.

The issue here... is not the $5 cost in itself. The issue is the arrogance of a city government to brazenly increase one privilege tax 500 percent... thus contributing to the damaging inflationary spiral which is embezzling every citizen's equity in this country.

True to the form and character of most politicians... "Greenville's Bunch" will probably take this mandate as a signal to further fleece property owners.

Soon, City Council will bring forth the '81-82 City Budget which will generate the TAX RATE on the recently revalued real property. The Mayor says... "We must raise taxes to procure funds to supply services demanded by the citizens." Where and how often have we heard that tired line of hokum?

But, will the Mayor and his "Bunch" also explain all the dollars being spent that DO NOT supply the necessary services? The Mayor publicly promised neighborhood meetings to explain the budget. This should prove very interesting.

Oh, well... with 12,648 registered voters on the roles and only 4,945 going to the polls in the last election (1979)... we must admit... we do get the kind of government we deserve.

Have no fear, folks... Your city government is alive and active... Let's just prance forward to the shearing pens... silent little lambs... and enjoy the future fleecing... Baa Baa Baa.

To the editor:
I have followed with interest and some curiosity the recent controversy concerning the decision to move three departments of the city government to the structure located at the corner of Fourth and Green streets. The charges concerning violation of the building code laws and occupancy should be investigated. As a citizen of Pitt County and a licensed contractor, these, of course, concern me.

I am intimately familiar with the building in question. I was church secretary for two years and taught Sunday School on the third floor for the last years of our church's existence at that location. I was also on the third floor of that building Feb. 26, 1981 (approximately a week before the news stories came out) and again Mar. 17, 1981.

I feel that what should be our primary concern has been entirely overlooked. I believe that requiring our city employees to work in such hazardous conditions is abominable. The possible lawsuits that could materialize by forcing the public to climb over wires, duck falling plaster, walk down freshly sanded stairs, etc. is, at best, foolhardy. I am accustomed to climbing around job sites, but many people, including most of the city employees, are not and I feel should not.

Did the city need a conference and duplicating room so desperately that they could not wait to move these departments when the renovation work was completed, I wonder? Proper management in any business doesn't put the cart before the horse. If there are departmental difficulties, management should manage, not victimize the public or the many city employees who cannot do or say anything about the situation.

"should not be locked together." Brodhead realizes that the new low rate on "unearned" income would, "in and of itself," discourage the use of tax shelters.

While they no longer oppose lower bracket tax cuts as prescribed by Kemp-Roth, the committee's Democrats still would like to trim cuts in the upper bracket rates on "earned" income. That is partly because of lingering concern over spreading out the tax burden, but mostly to keep down the tax bill's overall price tag. Thus, the Democrats are still inhibited by refusing to accept the revenue-raising dynamic in tax rate reduction. While Brodhead says his cut in "unearned" rates "would result in a reduction of $4.5 billion in tax revenues," the Treasury puts the figure at $3.2 billion if no attention is paid to its galvanic effect on investment. Actually, Treasury experts believe expanded investment would soon eliminate any significant revenue loss, and that before long the Treasury would be harvesting an extra $3 billion annually. When the Democrats accept those astounding facts, their supply-side conversion will be complete.

As I Recall It Five People Died Of Rifle Shots In Upheaval

By NOEL YANCEY

As a result of what he considered unfair treatment, Harvey Glenn McLeod was consumed by an abiding hatred of white people. A Central Prison social worker noted this in an evaluation in which he described the young Broughton High School janitor as "extremely prejudiced," and predicted he might "go off the deep end" if he suffered an emotional upheaval.

A year later, the 22-year-old youth did suffer an emotional upheaval and very decidedly did go off the deep end when he appeared at Raleigh's North Hills Mall with a newly purchased .22 rifle and very calmly began firing at passers-by. He felled 11 white persons, four fatally, before he fired a final shot into his own brain.

The event, of course, was a major news story, but it was given greater attention by the news media because U.S. Sen. B. Everett Jordan, running for re-election, happened to be campaigning inside the shopping mall. Jordan had just entered the mall's front entrance when the firing began shortly after noon on June 29, 1972. Jordan's press aide, Wes Hayden, who had lingered outside the entrance to wait for Raleigh attorney Lucius Pullen, was wounded in the chest.

As a matter of fact, Jordan saw Mrs. Jackie Wharton, a state Department of Revenue employee who lived in Durham, pitch forward when a bullet struck her in the chest. Jordan, who had greeted Mrs. Wharton and several other women seated on a bench outside the mall just minutes before, said he thought she had tripped and started to go to her assistance, but was restrained by Dorothy Austell, an aide who told him, "They are shooting out there."

Mrs. Bill Law, who was shopping with her husband at Ronson's, a women's clothing store, described the scene in front of the store. She said a man, later identified as James G. Henry, 31, of Cary, lay mortally wounded near his wife and two children — Teri Sue Henry, 6, and Carol Lynn Sutton, a 3-year-old foster daughter.

"I saw the mother grab the children," said Mrs. Law. "she crawled right on top of them. They were screaming and trying to get out from underneath, but she kept pushing them under her."

Law, a former member of the Raleigh City Council, said he watched helplessly as a man, apparently unaware of the sniper — walked into the parking lot where McLeod had stationed himself between two cars. Law said he yelled for the man to stay where he was.

"It seemed like an eternity that he (McLeod) was aiming at the man," Mrs. Law related. "When he was hit, he didn't lurch, but seemed to faint." The wounded man struggled to his feet, staggered toward the mall entrance and collapsed on the curb near the body of a woman.

"He was taking his time between shots," said Warren Baldwin, an employee of Bryant's florist and gift shop. "He was very calm and deliberate. If he saw anything move, he'd shoot. He was shooting anybody."

Witnesses said McLeod turned the gun on himself, apparently after he heard the sirens of approaching police cars. "He (McLeod) was looking into the barrel when he pulled the trigger," Baldwin related.

The dead, in addition to Henry and Mrs. Wharton, included Mrs. Jessie Best, 77, a retired employee of the state Department of Revenue, and Melvin D. Harrison Jr. The wounded, in addition to Hayden, and the Henry and Sutton children, included Mrs. Ralph Moody, wife of a deputy attorney general. Mrs. Wharton and Mrs. West were in the group of women Jordan had greeted.

Raleigh police and the FBI investigated the possibility that the shooting may have been politically motivated and that Jordan was the real target — partly because the incident occurred just a few days after Alabama Gov. George Wallace was critically wounded by a gunman during a political rally in a shopping center parking lot at Silver Spring, Md.

The Goat Farmer Who Ruffled Va. Milk Laws

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Christine Solem is a goat farmer. But she stepped out of the barnyard and into the courtroom this year in a case that has caused bitter dissent among her fellow goat-keepers and may have a lasting effect on Virginia's state milk laws.

For several years Ms. Solem made her living by selling raw goat milk at a Charlottesville health food store. She marked the cartons "Not For Human Consumption," so that nominally she was complying with state regulations prohibiting the sale of unpasteurized milk. When the health inspector caught up with her and told her to stop selling raw milk, she retreated momentarily, then resurfaced with an ingenious "Rent a Goat" program designed to allow her to distribute unpasteurized milk from her farm to people who came asking for it.

A customer signed a contract, renting a goat for a day at a time. Ms. Solem did all the work — feeding, grooming, milking the goat. The renter received all proceeds from that goat for that day — milk, manure, even a kid if one was born that day. Ms. Solem's clientele increased over a couple of months until once again she was paying for her goat herd with their own milk money.

Then the health inspector visited again. Ms. Solem was charged with violating Regulation 10 of Virginia's milk regulations, which state officials claim prohibits the sale of any unpasteurized milk, anywhere. This time Christine Solem took the case to court. She won her case: the judge decided that the regulations didn't cover those few people who deliberately go to a farm and seek out unpasteurized milk.

"I am prepared and certainly willing," said Judge David F. Berry of the Albemarle County Circuit Court, "to say that the customer is to be protected from himself when he knows what he is getting and is asking for it."

Not all the state's goat farmers are pleased with Judge Berry's ruling. Among its most outspoken critics are Bill and Mary Claire Wohlford, owners of the Cove Mountain Goat Dairy in Wytheville.

The Wohlfords returned home to Virginia about eight years ago, moving on to 500 scrubby acres which they intended to improve through the aid of their goats. They thought that a large, legal goat-milk dairy would be a pleasant, though taxing, business to operate in their later years.

"When we started there was no question of raw versus pasteurized milk," Mrs. Wohlford said. "It was legal versus illegal."

They called up the state dairy bureau to learn which requirements they must fulfill to qualify as a Grade A dairy and pasteurizing plant. They invested over $100,000 along the way and became the owners of the only goat farm in Virginia legally able to sell its milk — the only one, that is, until the Solem trial occurred.

"Now they're putting cards up on bulletin boards all over," complains Mrs. Wohlford about neighboring owners. Having found it all but impossible to sue the state for incompetence in enforcing its own regulations, the Wohlfords now contemplate individual suits against the "bootleggers," as they call the Virginia goat owners who sell unpasteurized milk from their farms. The Wohlfords have even run a want ad in the state dairy goat association newsletter, offering a $50 bounty for information convicting any Virginia seller of raw goat milk.

Goat farmers are taking up sides on this controversial issue. Dairy Bureau officials say the case won't rest as it is. Ms. Solem and her lawyer are ready to take the case to the U.S. Supreme court if need be.

What began for some parties involved as an attempt to get away from it all — to move to the country, plant a garden, milk a goat and live in harmony with nature — has become a bitter struggle and a bureaucratic nightmare.

Life's getting complicated, even on the farm.

Just Nodding The Head Tends Soothe Parents

Not long ago, Meg took a cup of milk into her bedroom and promptly spilled it all over the rug.

Naturally, I was angry. Cleaning milk out of carpet ranks right up there with cleaning soap scum off the bathroom tiles.

So I scolded her. "If you had stopped to think, you would have known better than to take this out of the kitchen, wouldn't you?" I roared.

Meg nodded her head. "I am sick of your not obeying our rules. Do you hear me?"

More vigorous head nodding.

"At least once can't you show me that you've got just a little bit of common sense?"

By this time her head was bobbing up and down faster than a woodpecker's.

Ten minutes later she came out of her room with her change purse in hand. She held out a fistful of pennies. "Mommy," she asked, "are these common?"

It was obvious that we were failing to communicate. I had thought I was really making my point, but I didn't remember that a child automatically responds to an angry adult by wagging his head like a twanged doorstop. Never mind listening. Just nod. That one small motion seems to soothe the savage beast like nothing else.

This incident was still fresh in my mind when I happened to read an article on reflective listening. I had first learned about this technique in one of my college psychology classes. The patient says something like, "I feel terrible today," and the analyst answers, "You feel terrible."

"Yes, I feel lousy."
"You feel lousy."
"Yeah, I'm really sick."
"You think you're sick."

In the article I read, parents were encouraged to use this revolutionary technique, with a little more finesse perhaps, to let their children air their feelings. After a child says, "I hate my brother," his parent might say, "You sound very angry." The kid says, "I am. He broke my favorite yoyo." The parent then says, "That is upsetting." The kid then runs back to play with his brother because he now knows that his parents understand him.

I figured that this was just the thing to bridge the communication gap between Meg and me. The next time Meg's milk hit the floor and her head went into motion before I even had a chance to open my mouth, I took a deep breath and said, "I frighten you when I get upset, don't I?"

She was surprised. "Yes," she said tentatively. "You scare me when you yell at me."

"You don't like my loud voice."
"It makes me think you don't love me."
"When I'm angry, you feel unloved."

Her lower lip began to tremble. "I feel like an egg that's been dropped on the floor."
"That bad?"

The tears started to stream down her face. "Awful. I think you want me to be perfect, and God didn't make me that way."

The lump in my throat was threatening to choke me. "You think I expect too much of you."

She held both hands to her heart and moaned. "Yes, you wanted a perfect child, and when I wasn't, you wanted to cast me out into the world with just a crust of bread."

I could barely keep back my own tears. "You think I don't want you."

She buried her head in her arms. "I could wander forever, hungry and alone, without even a toothbrush, no one caring whether I didn't have any teeth to chew the nuts and berries that I found."

One bright eye peered stealthily over her arm.

If we're bridging the communication gap, then why do I feel as if we're going it over the River Kwai?

'Save Our Aquarium' Howls Mark Protests

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — The uproar continues unabated. As the scope and magnitude of Mr. Reagan's economic proposals become more evident, the howls ascend to high heaven. Whole battalions of the aggrieved are marching upon Capitol Hill, carrying banners with a strange device.

Translated into a common phrase, the banners read: Save Our Aquarium! A more depressing spectacle seldom has been staged.

That universal exhortation stems from one of the more modest recommendations of the Reagan administration. There exists in the basement of the Commerce Department building a second-rate, no-account, downtown facility known as the National Aquarium. By any respectable yardstick — say, the yardstick of San Diego — this facility measures exceedingly small. Now and then a few platoons of school children troop past on field trips, but the whole works contains only 25,000 gallons of water, or about what you would find in a small swimming pool.

Mr. Reagan and his budget director, seeing $280,000 to be saved, have sensibly proposed that this dispensable outlay be dispensed with. You would think they had recommended that the Washington Monument be dismantled and sold, chip by chip, as a revenue measure. My own newspaper, the usually conservative, pinch-penny Star, has raised its eloquent voice: Save Our Aquarium!

So it goes. The milk producers are frantically trying to stall off a vote on suspension of a scheduled increase in milk price supports. I know the milk producers. They are among the finest capitalists on earth — free enterprisers, hard workers, horny-handed sons of toil. They fiercely oppose the excesses of government. But when it comes to holding down the support price or amending the school lunch program, it's a different matter. Save Our Aquarium!

Last week we heard from the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association. Its members make up one of the most affluent lobbies in town. Mr. Reagan has proposed to increase the tax on the aviation fuel they consume from 7 cents to 12 cents a gallon. Save Our Aquarium!

They have gone into loops and barrel rolls of indignation.

The merchant marine is barging in. There is not much left of the merchant marine, but this remnant crew still benefits from a special privilege. Since time immemorial — or at least since the days when merchant seamen might come home with awful tropical diseases — the taxpayers have maintained hospitals for their benefit. Eight of these hospitals still operate. For the past four years they have averaged only 60 percent occupancy; they are located in cities with excess beds and other federal hospitals. Mr. Reagan wants to phase out the eight institutions over the next two years, at a saving by 1984 of $200 million a year. It makes sense to me. But Save Our Aquarium!

The seamen's hospitals are a small part of the total health budget. The president also wants to trim grants to the National Institutes of Health. He wants to stretch out construction of Indian medical facilities. He wants to put an end to medical scholarships, and why not? In the past decade the number of medical graduates has doubled. By 1990 we will have doctors running out of our eyes, ears, nose and throat. The money could be far better spent in training those health professionals in short supply. But Save Our Aquarium!

OK, so it's human nature at work. The squeaky wheel gets the grease. Every pilot, student, sailor, lab technician and dairy farmer has a constitutional right to holler. But the outcry is depressing all the same. Back in January, President Carter proposed outlays in fiscal '82 of $739 billion. Mr. Reagan's hope is to cut that figure to $695 billion. If Mr. Reagan succeeds, his proposed outlays of $695 billion would still be $40 billion more than estimated outlays in the current fiscal year; they would be $115 billion more than we actually spent in fiscal '80.

In my own view these economies are vitally necessary if we ever are to get control of federal spending. But if the aquarium syndrome sufficiently infects the body politic, the mess we are in will get worse.

However, they concluded McLeod did not know Jordan would be there because the senator's attendance was a spur of the moment decision and was not announced in advance.

McLeod's actions apparently were triggered by his arrest and jailing during the previous weekend on a charge of turning in a false stolen car report. Police said he had reported his car stolen when he knew his uncle had the vehicle. Police Chief Robert Goodwin said there was "nothing unusual" about his incarceration and "nothing happened" that could have warned officers he intended to withdraw $100 from his savings account, buy a rifle and go on a shooting spree.

However, the young black man had been imprisoned several months the year before after pleading guilty to a charge of aggravated assault. He admitted stabbing a white man in the back during a softball game at a furniture factory where he worked. He said the white man had elbowed him and told him if he didn't like it, there was "another one where that came from."

A Central Prison social worker, Charles W. Berry Jr., recommended that McLeod be given a psychological examination. Berry had concluded during an evaluation test that McLeod was "extremely prejudiced" against whites and "doesn't trust white people at all." He described the young black man as "emotionally upset" and "very depressed."

Despite Berry's recommendation, there was nothing in McLeod's prison record to indicate he received psychiatric examination or treatment.

their daring aerial act. Did they panic? Did they climb a tree? Not at all, they clung resolutely to their precarious perches as if expecting applause.

Raccoons, they tell me, are distant relatives of the panda, which is not surprising since some of the world's greatest acrobats come from China.

The trio that booked themselves into our backyard for the winter season have only lately built their act around the bird feeder. They used to go after the garbage can box, rolling back the enormous stone at the door with prodigious puffing teamwork, burrowing in under the floorboards, unclasping with deft fingers the steel lid clasps that the Sears catalogue claims are "animalproof."

But with the boffo bird feeder shtik they have now moved to the center ring in our big backyard circus.

Nothing confounds their felonious little plans. Bruce the Bold, the predator squirrel who attacks the bird feeder in daylight hours, at least can be temporarily scared off by my pounding on the windowpane or occasionally dousing him with a pitcher of water.

Cavorting in the spotlight of the biggest available dry battery lamp, these nocturnal players look you straight in the eye from those bandit-masked faces and defy you to interrupt the act. I've tried pounding on the side of the house beating a Chinese gong, emitting horrendous shrieks, even peppering them with wine corks, which they find amusing if inedible. One morning after the lawn was so littered with wine corks, it gave the premises an air of dissipation that could not have escaped the notice of the neighbors.

The water treatment, even from the hose on the kitchen sink, they seem to like best of all, since raccoons, like bears, prefer to wash their food before eating. I suppose next the performing pirates will expect me to lay out finger bowls.

Small wonder then that throughout the history of the republic our politicians have demonstrated a fondness for coonskin caps. The furry headgear no doubt invests them with flair, cunning, boldness and rapacity, which after all are the hallmarks of the profession.

From 1838 to 1844, the raccoon was the emblem of the Whig Party, and party stalwarts were called "coons." They wore coonskin caps to identify themselves with the frontier traits of Davy Crockett and Daniel Boone. In the 1840 presidential campaign, log cabins with coonskins nailed to the door were rolled through the streets in torchlight parades advocating the candidacy of William Henry Harrison and John Tyler, also known as "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too."

Accused of being an egg-head in his 1956 run for the vice presidency, Sen. Estes Kefauver disguised his pate in the pelt of procyon lotor, to give the beat his pedigree, thus stressing his Tennessee background.

And Lyndon Johnson, if you recall, clashed head-on with the growing pacifist feeling among his supporters, by greeting U.S. troops at Cam Ranh Bay during a 1966 presidential trip to Viet Nam with the words: "I salute you. Come home with that coonskin on the wall."

In Lyndon's country boy idiom, the coonskin was a symbol of victory. I am not sure, however, if I ever win out over these midnight marauders I would care to have a furpiece on my den wall as a trophy. I have a feeling those defiant eyes would still be staring out of that fox-like face coaxing applause for that final act of derring-do.

One thing is certain. I should never have given away the raccoon coat I wore at football games in the days when I was possessed of boldness and dash. Just wearing it in nightly strolls around the garden might let my visitors know what the bottom line reads in the history of their species.

Meanwhile, I have just heard the thud of something pouncing on the bird feeder. Tonight's circus is about to begin.

RESIGNS POST

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — For religious reasons, Harold Kelly, 50, has resigned as president of the 120-store, $620 million-a-year supermarket chain, Bi-Lo Inc., because its executive committee decided to sell beer and wine in its six Charlotte, N.C., stores.

"I cannot be part of that," he says, citing effects of drink on families, children and those who become alcoholics.

Coal Miners Gear Up For Strike

By The Associated Press
Some 160,000 members of the United Mine Workers union planned church and a day with their families Sunday — just five days before an anticipated strike in which a key issue is whether Sunday should continue to be a day of rest.

Coalfields in six states were hit by wildcat strikes last week, apparently by miners angry over a breakdown in contract talks with soft coal operators. At week's end, some 12,000 miners were off the job.

Saturday was a regular day off for most miners. "Saturday's a maintenance day, at best," said Dan Fields, a spokesman for the West Virginia Coal Association.

Art Sanda, a public relations executive for Eastern Associated Coal Corp. in West Virginia, agreed. "The vast majority of people are not working today, but that's the way it's scheduled," he said. "The number working could be anywhere from virtually zero to somewhere around 20 to 30 percent."

The situation was much the same throughout the Appalachian coalfields. Telephones went unanswered at mines in the region.

Some miners were meeting to map strike strategy. In Virginia, UMW District 28 President John Kennedy said he discussed insurance coverage, negotiations and picketing with members.

"If the operators don't come (away) from their proposals, then I foresee a long strike," Kennedy said, urging workers at non-union mines to lay down their tools along with UMW members when the contract expires. "If that doesn't happen, more than likely there will be picket lines," he said.

In Pennsylvania, where up to 6,000 miners were off the job last week, state police said they had no reports Saturday of picketing, vandalism or violence that could be connected with wildcat strikes.

"I've been sold on The Albemarle since the beginning."

— Nina Fountain

"I haven't given retirement any sort of thought whatsoever. I'm just thinking about everyday living."

"The Albemarle will be a good second home for me — one where I won't have to worry about $400 oil bills and driving into town from seven miles out in the country."

"The lifetime care that it offers is important too. If you get sick you know that somebody is going to look after you — for the rest of your life if you need it."

"Convenience and security. Those are the reasons why I'm planning to live at The Albemarle."

"I don't see why everybody wouldn't be terribly excited about it."

First Class Mail Now Takes 18 Cents Postage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 15-cent stamp won't carry the mail anymore. Beginning at 12:01 a.m. Sunday, postal rates were to rise for the fifth time in 10 years. Another increase may be waiting in the wings. It will now cost 18 cents to mail a one ounce, first class letter within the United States. Postcards, once a penny, now will cost 12 cents. For each additional ounce on a letter, postal patrons will have to part with an extra 17 cents. The 18-cent charge is triple what it cost to mail a letter a decade ago. The Postal Board of Governors approved the new rates earlier this month because of an "urgent" need for more revenue, and asked the independent Postal Rate Commission to reconsider a request for more money. The panel said it was disappointed with the rate-making commission's decision to shave $1 billion of its requested rate increases totaling $3.75 billion and to reject a requested 20 cent stamp. "To achieve a lower stamp today, the commission has chosen to ignore more than $1 billion in revenue needs that will have to be collected in the near future," the board of governors said in announcing the hikes. "This is not cost-cutting, it is make-believe. As every American family knows only too well, costs and obligations that are ignored do not go away." Sunday's price hike is the first since May 1978, but the Postal Service said consumers will probably see another one soon. Postmaster General William F. Bolger said recently the Postal Service probably would seek another rate increase by the end of this year to keep up with rising inflation. Bolger has said a 20 cent stamp was necessary to stabilize rates for three years. With the new rates, the Postal Service is issuing a stamp embossed with a "B" on a purple background for 18 cent mail. The stamp is intended for domestic use only and eventually will be replaced with a stamp carrying the cost of mailing it.

The Postal Service also has supplies of "B" embossed stamped envelopes and a non-denominated postcard. Many post offices also have supplies of 18 cent stamps with the likeness of Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, the first American woman doctor. Production of three cent stamps has been increased so consumers can combine them with 15 cent stamps. The cost of mailing a letter has risen steadily over the last decade. Between 1968-71, it was 6 cents; 1971-74, 8 cents; 1974-75, 10 cents; 1975-78, 13 cents; and 1978-81, 15 cents.

Crowd Confronts Atlanta Police

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — A screaming, jeering crowd of up to 100 people confronted police at an Atlanta housing project Saturday, chanting

"we ain't gonna take this junk no more," to protest police actions concerning their self-defense patrol and the unsolved killings of 20 black children.

One Quint Grows Weak

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — One of the quintuplets born on St. Patrick's Day at Strong Memorial Hospital was in guarded condition Saturday because of breathing difficulties, doctors said.

About 20 people set up folding chairs around police car No. 5, saying they were holding it "hostage" until police freed a man arrested earlier in the day because he was carrying a .38-caliber revolver. Police said they wanted to avoid a confrontation. There were no reported injuries.

The baby's condition was downgraded from satisfactory condition Friday night, hospital spokesman Milton Lederman said. "We have only those two conditions," he said. "Guarded involves a possible threat to life."

It was the second consecutive day that police made arrests at the Techwood Homes project, where residents Friday began what they say are self-defense patrols to protect their children.

The other four infants and their mother all remained in satisfactory condition, Lederman said.

Meanwhile, about 150 volunteers took part in the 23rd weekend search for clues or evidence in the 20 unsolved deaths and the disappearances of two other black youngsters since July 1979.

The three boys and two girls were born Tuesday to 29-year-old Corinne Beach who had been taking a fertility drug. She and her husband, Timothy, of Ontario, N.Y., work for the Eastman Kodak Co. here.

The protest ended Saturday and car No. 5 was returned to police after authorities freed Jerome Gibbs, 22, and he arrived back at the project. He was charged with carrying a pistol without a license, and was told to appear in court Monday.

Lederman said the status of Deborah Jean, the last one delivered, was downgraded because "she's had increased breathing difficulties."

As officers drove away with car No. 5, the crowd chanted: "Goodbye, and don't come back."

Deborah Jean weighed exactly 3 pounds at birth, he said.

Gibbs said his gun was not loaded, and, "I'll carry it again." Chimurenga Jenga, a protest leader, promised one person would carry a gun each day.

The others, ranging in weight from 3 pounds, 7 ounces to 2 pounds, 14 ounces when delivered by Caesarean section, were named John Michael, Timothy, Patrick and Corinne.

Marion Green, wife of a patrol organizer, was critical when Gibbs was arrested, noting he was a Techwood resident. "They've been talking about outsiders," she said. "He's a tenant. Now they're coming to tenants."

All of the babies have experienced what Lederman described as normal weight loss.

Friday Collisions

An estimated $3,575 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police Friday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 5:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial and Sylvan Drives involving cars driven by Linda W. Dail of Route 8, Kinston and Mable Baker Crowell of 329 Montclair Cir.

Damage was set at $1,500 to the Dail car and $600 to the Crowell vehicle.

Cars driven by Mark Kevin Cahoon of Route 1, Swan Quarter and Lester Acklin of Route 6, Greenville, collided about 3:25 p.m. at the intersection of Fourth and Pitt Streets, resulting in $700 damage to the Cahoon car and $250 damage to the Acklin auto.

A 5:17 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson and Line Avenues involved cars operated by Charles Laughinghouse of 106 Salem Cir., and Kenneth Wayne Vickers of Farmville.

Damage was set at $500 to the Laughinghouse car and $25 to the Vickers auto.

Art Film, Lecture

The Visual Arts Forum of the School of Art, East Carolina University, will present Dr. Ned Rifkin, curator at the New Museum, New York, in a program that will feature Michelangelo Antonioni's film, "The Passenger," starring Jack Nicholson and Maria Schneider.

The film will be shown at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 24 in the auditorium of the Leo Jenkins Fine Arts Center.

Dr. Rifkin will introduce the film with a lecture entitled, "The Window as Modernist Metaphor: Antonioni's 'The Passenger.'"

A question and answer period will follow showing of the film and refreshments will be served. Admission is free and the public is invited to attend.

Taylor Tickets Now On Sale

Advance tickets for the April 5 ECU performance of The Billy Taylor Trio are now on sale at the Central Ticket Office, Mendenhall Student Center.

Tickets are priced at $4 for adults and $1 for students (ECU and local area schools). Proceeds from the concert will go to the ECU Foundation, which supports scholarship funds.

Folk Art In Virginia

WILLIAMSBURG, VA. — "Aspects of American Folk Portraiture" is the subject of The Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Center at Williamsburg. The comprehensive exhibition will be on view through September 20.

The exhibition highlights a large selection of 18th and 19th century oils and watercolors from the museum's collection.

This exhibit will also celebrate the forthcoming publication of "American Folk Portraits, Paintings and Drawings from the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Center." The Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Center is located between the Williamsburg Inn and Lodge on South England Street in Williamsburg. Its galleries are open daily from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Admission is by donation.

New Shows

Open At SECCA

WINSTON-SALEM — Two new exhibitions are opening this week at the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art (SECCA) in Winston-Salem.

On March 24 water works by Jim Galluci of Greensboro, a solo exhibition of outdoor sculpture, will open on the grounds at SECCA.

Also on March 24, Durham sculptor Wayne Hall will have a solo exhibition of outdoor sculpture going on view in the Sculpture Garden.

Other shows currently at SECCA include photographs by such well known photographers as Ansel Adams and Aaron Siskind, drawn from the collection of poet Jonathan Williams; and an exhibition of ceramic works by Susan Loftin of Atlanta, Ga.

There is no admission charge for any of these exhibitions, and the public is invited to attend shows at SECCA.

Sutherland Concert Set

CHARLOTTE — Dame Joan Sutherland will be the guest performer in an April 7 Charlotte Symphony Orchestra concert at Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S.C., the site of her American debut performance.

A concert is scheduled for the 20th anniversary celebration of Ms. Sutherland's American debut at Winthrop.

Her program will include the famed "Mad Scene" from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," and two works from Verdi's "I Masnadieri" — the "Tu del mio Carlo al seno" aria and the cabaletta.

The orchestra will perform the overture from Mozart's "The Magic Flute," a Wagner work and Respighi's "Pines of Rome."

For tickets, available by mail only, write to: Sutherland, Joyes Center, Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C., 29733. For information call (803) 323-2196.

Storyteller To Lecture

Ms. Jane Maier, a well-known storyteller, will be the featured speaker at the final lecture in the 1980-81 Library Science Lecture Series.

The program will begin at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 25 in Room 221, Joyner Library, to be followed by a social hour.

Interested people are invited to attend this lecture, which is free and open to the public. Additional information can be obtained by calling 757-6621.

CERT Award

NEW YORK — Glenn Nielson, recently retired founding chairman of Husky Oil, is the recipient of the first annual American Spirit Award. The award, "in recognition of achievements that demonstrate the courage, conviction and the capability characteristic of the spirit upon which this great nation was built," is one provided by the 25 American Indian tribes comprising the Council of Energy Resource Tribes (CERT).

Percussion Ensemble Concert

FOUR IN THE TEMPEST ... Four of the dancers to be seen in the March 30 PBS live broadcast of the San Francisco Ballet's production of "The Tempest" are (from top) David McNaughton as Ariel, Atila Ficzer as Prospero, Evelyn Cisneros as Miranda, and Tomm Ruud as Ferdinand.

A premiere performance of a composition by ECU composer Dr. Otto Henry is to be given during a concert by the East Carolina University Percussion Ensemble at 8:15 p.m. Monday, March 23 in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall. There is no admission charged and the public is invited to attend.

Professor Harold Jones directs the ensemble, assisted by graduate teaching assistant in percussion Timothy Haley.

Jacqueline Carnes, soprano, ECU School of Music graduate who toured last year with the Norman Luboff Singers, and Rick Brazelle, timpani player and ECU student, are to be the featured soloists in the concert.

"Three Pieces for African Ensemble" is the title of Dr. Henry's work being premiered. The pieces are entitled "The Path and the River," "Spider, Show Me Dancing," and "The Mask of Ogun."

Mrs. Carnes will sing compositions by George Crumb and Morris Lang. These are: three songs from Crumb's "Madrigal, Book I," and Lang's "Three Puerto Rican Songs" — (Morning, Afternoon, and Evening).

Other selections on the Ensemble's program are Murray Houllif's "Time Piece," and two John Bergamo works, "No. 33 Ensemble" and "Four Pieces for Timpani" with soloist Brazelle.

Travel Film On Spain

"Spain," a travel film by Thayer Soule, is the next attraction in the ECU Travel-Adventure Film Series. The film will be shown at 8 p.m. on Thursday, March 26 in Hendrix Theater in Mendenhall Student Center. Tickets are priced at $2.50 and are available at the door.

Soule's film begins by tracing some of the history of Spain, showing the influence of the Moors on the land. The glory of their architecture is shown in buildings such as the Giralda Tower in Sevilla.

the Great Mosque at Cordoba, and the Alhambra of Granada. The tomb of St. James the Apostle at Santiago de Compostela, the great pilgrimage goal of the Middle Ages, is also shown.

Things new as well as old are featured in the film — such as a trip to modern Madrid, the capital city, to Barcelona, a major port. Sevilla, where the solemn procession of the Holy Week draws huge crowds, and the Court of the Myrtles and Court of Lions in Granada.

Center Specials

CHAPEL HILL — Three highlight events — in opera, guitar and jazz music, and ballet, are scheduled to be seen over PBS television via The University of North Carolina Center for Public Television, (Channel 25) Greenville, during March.

The three programs and highlight details are:
— Monday, March 23, 8 p.m. — "Live from Lincoln Center" presents the historic get together of three greats in opera — soprano Joan Sutherland, mezzo soprano Marilyn Horne and tenor Luciano Pavarotti. Originating in Avery Fisher Hall, the concert will feature performances from the works of Verdi, Rossini, Bellini, Puccini and Bizet. Richard Bonynge will conduct the New York Opera Orchestra.

— Wednesday, March 26, 10 p.m. — Leo Kottke, master of the 12-string guitar, will be a guest on "Austin City Limits." Kottke has been awarded "Best Acoustic Guitarist" by "Guitar Player Magazine" for the past five years. In the second half of the program, Austin's jazz group, Passenger, will be featured.

— Monday, March 30, 8 p.m. — The San Francisco Ballet will be seen in a special live broadcast of Michael Smuin's "The Tempest." The full-length ballet, based on Shakespeare's romantic comedy, will be performed in San Francisco's War Memorial Opera House. This is one of a series of Great Performances' "Dance in America."

Student Recitals

Several students' recitals are scheduled for the coming week. Unless otherwise noted, all will be given in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Center on campus, with the public invited to attend. There is no admission charged for the recitals. Details are:

— Thursday, March 26, 7:30 p.m. — Dowell Idol, piano, junior recital, and 9 p.m. Mark Hite, clarinet and Teress Lassiter, piano. (No further details available.)

— Friday, March 27, 7:30 p.m. — Tanya Moore, flute, and Martha Bryan Almon, piano. Ms. Moore, of Cary, will perform J. S. Bach's "Sonata in G Minor," three Schumann "Romances for Flute and Piano," and a Lennox Berkely "sonatina." She will be accompanied by pianist Mark Sexton and assisted by bassist Matthew Morris.

Ms. Almon of Wilmington, will play two Antonio Soler sonatas, the Chopin "Polonaise in C Minor, Opus 40, No. 2" and two selections from Debussy's "Estampes" — "La Soiree dans Grenade" and "Jardins sous la Pluie."

— Friday, March 27, 9 p.m. — Eugene Cowan, trombone and Larry Lyles, violin. (No further details available.)

— Sunday, March 29, 3:15 p.m. — Diane Bridger, organ, recital at First Presbyterian Church. For her recital, Ms. Bridger, of Suffolk, Va., will play Pinkham's "Concertante," the Bach "Sonata VI in G," Persichetti's "Sonata for Organ" and selections from DuMagne's "Premiere Livre d'Orgue." She will be assisted by trumpeters Bill Frazier and Mike Bellinger, trombonists Glenn Johnson and Rich Moncure, and percussionist Stefan Stuber.

— Sunday, March 29, 8:15 p.m. — Ellen Kaner, flute and Mark Shelton, percussion. Both students are graduate teaching assistants in the ECU School of Music.
Ms. Kaner will be featured in Schubert's "Arpeggione" sonata, transcribed for flute, and piano, and the Marcello "Sonata in F." Shelton will perform Ervin's "Variations on a Gaillard" and Houllif's "Four Verses for Timpani."
Kaner and Shelton will join in the performance of Ingolf Dahl's "Duetto Concertante" for flute and multi-percussion. Pianist Stephen Maziarz, a member of the ECU keyboard faculty, will be accompanist.

Dickens Film
RALEIGH — The fourth and final of a series of movies based on the work of Charles Dickens is showing today at the North Carolina Capitol in Raleigh.
"David Copperfield," a 1935 film directed by George Cukor and featuring W. C. Fields is today's Dickens movie.
The program is free and the public is invited to attend.

TWO OF FOUR — Jay Neugeboren, novelist, and Janet Burroway, poet and novelist, are two of the four well known literary figures scheduled to give take part in "Readings: Four Writers," sponsored by the ECU Department of English. Burroway and Neugeboren will read at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 25 and at 8 p.m. on Thursday, March 26. Louis Simpson and Lawrence Lieberman, each a poet and critic, will read. Both of these events will be in Jenkins Auditorium. Workshops will be held by Burroway and Neugeboren at 10:30 a.m. Thursday and by Simpson and Lieberman at 10:30 a.m. Friday. The workshops will be held in Room 221, Mendenhall Student Union and will primarily be a time for questions and answers on poetry. The public is invited to attend the readings and workshop and there is no admission charged.

OBOIST DAVID HAWKINS

David Hawkins Recital Today

East Carolina University faculty oboist David Hawkins will appear in recital today at 8:15 p.m. in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall. There is no admission charge for the program and the public is invited to attend.

Hawkins will be assisted by faculty members Antonia Dalapas, soprano; E. Robert Irwin, harpsichord; Everett Pittman, piano; student Matt Morris, bassoon, and guest performer Anne Searl, flute.

For his program today, Hawkins has chosen J. F. Haydn's "Concerto for Oboe" in three movements — allegro, andante and rondo; Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Ten Blake Songs (For Oboe and Voice);" and J. B. Loeillet's "Trio Sonata in C Minor" in four movements — largo, allegro, adagio, and allegro.

String Concert

Paul Topper, a member of the East Carolina String faculty, will conduct the East Carolina University String Orchestra in a concert to be given at 3:15 p.m., Sunday, March 29 in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall. There is no admission charged and the public is invited to attend.

Four compositions have been listed for the orchestra's program. The concert opens with W. F. Bach's "Symphony in F Major" (vivace-allegro, andante and allegro). The next two works on the program are Schubert's "German Dance in C Major" and William Grant Still's "Tamborito" from "Danzas de Panama."

Following an intermission, the orchestra will perform a

J. S. Bach composition, the "Suite (Overture) in G Minor" (largo, tomo, arioso; adagio, minueto and capriccio).

Members of the String Chamber Orchestra (all music students at ECU) are: Violin I — Larry Lyles, concertmaster, Amanda Kartchner and Susan Harris; Violin II — Catherine Styron, principal and Susan Bitzer; Viola — Jeffrey Hertzberg, principal and Stephanie Tingler; Cello — Barbara Salter, principal and Jeffrey Tuthill; Double bass — Rick Vizachero; and harpsichord, Michael Regan.

Music Events Cancelled

The School of Music, East Carolina University, has announced the cancellation of three previously scheduled events. These are:

- The Donna Coleman piano recital, today.
- The ECU Concert Choir concert, Immanuel Baptist Church; and
- The Stephen Maziarz piano recital, March 29.

Among the Cham tribe of Viet Nam, people in mourning are not allowed to wear jewelry, participate in social affairs, nor allowed to listen to singing. During the mourning period, remarriage is permitted if the family of the dead spouse is reimbursed for all expenditures made on the wedding day.

Louisburg Folk Music And Dance Festival On March 27-28

THE BERTINIS... of Bulgaria, specialists in daring acts on wheels, are among several highlight acts in the "Holiday Hippodrome" circus coming to Greenville on Monday, March 30. The circus, sponsored by the Breakfast Lions Club of Greenville, will perform at 7 p.m. at Aycock Junior High School.

LOUISBURG — The Franklin County and Louisburg College Folk Music and Dance Festival, eastern North Carolina's oldest and largest festival, will take place this year on Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28 in the town and in the college auditorium of Louisburg College.

The evening festival events get underway at 7 p.m. on each of the two nights, with professional and amateur contestants in 14 categories of folk music and entertainment.

The evening festival sessions of entertainment will include a team of 65 people guiding the performers onto the stage. Each contestant will be limited to one song in the most "pure or traditional fashion."

By Saturday night, contestants will be narrowed down to 14 finalists from whom the grand champion will be named. Bobby St. Sing, a young farmer-fiddler from Macon and last year's champion, will return as a guest to join the professional performers. In addition to the evening music competition and professional events, one of the major day time outdoor attractions of the festival is the annual whistling contest.

Whistling concerts, contests, seminars and workshops will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. downtown at the Courthouse Square. The National and more than 300 types of whistles will be open to the public.

Hippodrome Circus To Perform

The "Holiday Hippodrome," billed as America's "Original Stage Circus" is coming to Greenville again with an appearance at Aycock Junior High School on March 30.

with a single performance at 7 p.m.

Tickets for the stage circus, which has performed in Greenville several years, are on sale from any member of the sponsoring organization, the Greenville Breakfast Lions Club or at the door beginning at 6 p.m., one hour prior to the 7 p.m. curtain time.

Highlights of the Holiday Hippodrome include the performance of Miss Christina in daring acts on the single trapeze, Danny Carey, a hand balancing acrobat, and the Bertinis of Bulgaria, who execute unusual bicycle acts.

Magic will be provided by Bradbury & Company, master of illusion, Randa Lynn will display foot juggling, and in the category of comedy, the Kimes Pork Chop Revue will be throwing in some barnyard antics.

Dr. de Paor Lecture Slated

Dr. Liam B. de Paor, Professor of History, University of College Dublin, Ireland, will be at East Carolina University on Thursday and Friday, March 26 and 27 as a visiting lecturer at ECU's Medieval and Renaissance Studies Seminar.

Room C-103, Brewster Building, Dr. de Paor will lecture on the topic "Irish Chalice and Liturgy in the Early Middle Ages." He will show slides with the lecture.

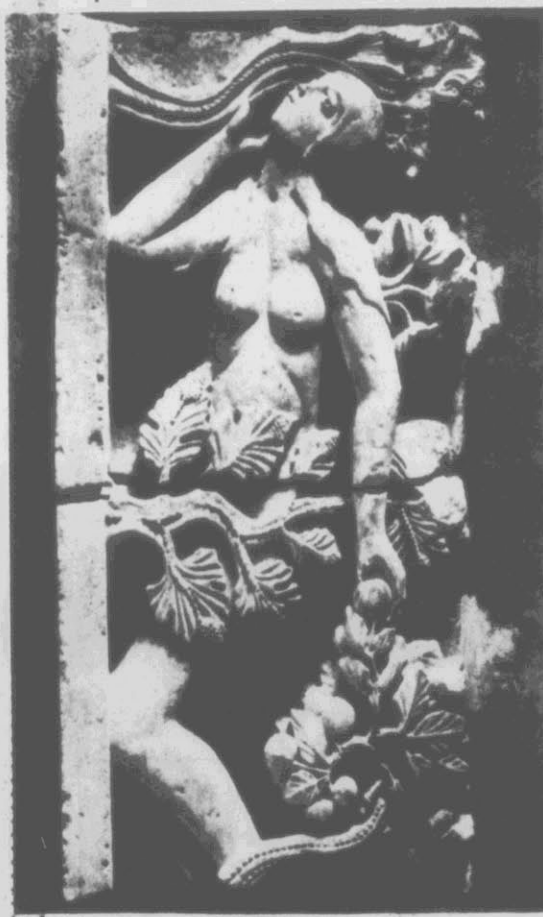

On Friday, between 9:30 and 10:30 a.m., Dr. de Paor will be in the Gray Art Gallery, Jenkins Fine Arts Center to meet and talk with people on an informal basis during a coffee hour.

The public is invited to attend both events, and there is no charge.

Dr. de Paor is a specialist in medieval history. His basic research area is Early Christian Ireland. He has lectured widely and published extensively on this field.

In addition to these two appearances, Dr. de Paor will speak at the seminar's interdisciplinary seminar Thursday evening and will meet with students and faculty of the Renaissance and Medieval Studies Program to discuss medieval response to classical antiquity. Dr. de Paor's visit is sponsored by ECU's College of Arts and Sciences, the History Department and the School of Art. Dr. Bodo Nischan, Department of History, is director of this year's Medieval and Renaissance Studies Seminar.

A SCULPTURE OF EVE... from the 12th century in the Museum Rolin, Autun, France, a town noted for its example of Romanesque sculpture, is a example of European art in the latter centuries of the Medieval era.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Meredith S. Foltz

Teenagers take a spring break with these new novels at Sheppard Library. "Gimme An H, Gimme An E, Gimme An L, Gimme An P," by Frank Bonham. Katie Norman, a bright, friendly high school cheerleader, seems an unlikely friend for Dana Furlong, who is interested more in science than in girls. But Katie sees Dana as someone to whom she can talk. Their friendship is encouraged by a teacher who is bothered by the serious emotional problems hinted at in Katie's reports and creative writing. As Dana tries to help, though, the situation is complicated by his own feelings and by Katie's vague and changing signals for help.

"Bus Ride," by Marilyn Sachs. The scene for this novel—a school bus—will be familiar to most students. Judy Koppelmacker and Ernie Russe, neither one especially attractive or popular, meet on the bus and begin to have daily conversations there. Through these conversations, they gradually become friends. Judy finally realizes, though, that Ernie's many questions about her friend Karen have a definite purpose.

"Maggot," by Mary Alexander Walker. Maggot and Elephant gave each other their uncomplimentary animal nicknames during a first wild meeting refereed by Josh. Maggot is a young woman living only to dance. Elephant is a black woman living only to protect her sister Ruthie May, another dancer. Josh works at an animal shelter and boasts of a large family which he does not really have. Since they are not in step with the rest of the world, these three join forces to create a more comfortable world of their own.

"Fat Jack," by Barbra Cohen. A high school production of Shakespeare's "Henry IV," Part I, has a natural Falstaff when fat Jack Muldoon takes the part. Directing the play is the librarian Mr. Sharf, and playing another role is Judy Goldstein. Working on the play acquaints Jack, Judy, and Mr. Sharf more closely, but with the play over, their friendships take some unpleasant turns.

"The Leaving," by Lynn Hall. Roxanne has grown up on her parents' Iowa farm and she loves it, but she is bent on leaving. Graduation from high school frees her to follow her dream of getting a job in Des Moines and making it on her own. As Roxanne begins to pursue what she wants, her parents also compare what they have wanted and what they have got in their lives.

Carolina Today

The following calendar of guests and topics will be aired on "Carolina Today" this week. "Carolina Today" is broadcast over WNCN-TV Channel 9, Greenville, between 6-8 a.m. daily.

— Wednesday, March 25 — 6:40 a.m., National Boy Scouts; 7:15 a.m., Education Spotlight with Margi Trotter and Sarah Ashton; 7:25 a.m., Social Security Information; 7:35 a.m., Lynn Olmsted, Billy and Sandra Stinson will discuss the Fine Arts Festival.

— Thursday, March 26, 6:40 a.m., Albert Potts, Curator of the Onslow County Museum will appear; 7:15 a.m., Evelyn Deloatch, home extension agent, will discuss cleaning and storing wedding gowns; 7:25 a.m., Employment Security Commission; 7:35 a.m., Bill Haney and Cindy Myslinsky will talk on Handicapped Awareness week.

— Friday, March 27 — 6:40 a.m., Carolyn Ferebee, Sandra Harshberger will speak about Community Schools evening classes; 7:15 a.m., Plant Doctor; 7:25 a.m., Greene County ARC (square dancing); 7:35 a.m., Earl Bell, Cola Hollowell of Roanoke Rapids Jaycees.

Among the Krem, Roh and some other tribes of Viet Nam, if a person going hunting or fishing meets a widow, they must return home. Also, on a trip, if any member of the group sneezes, the group must return home, as the sneeze is considered a bad omen.

Hospitality House Today

WASHINGTON — The Ocean Highway from New York to Florida is being featured on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" program, airing today from noon to 1 p.m. over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington.

Dot Tankard, president of Historic Bath, will be joined by Peggy Sinclair in discussing this travel route. They will also show slides.

Another guest is C. C. Rowe, Coordinator for Handicapped Services at East Carolina University. He comments on handicapped awareness week (March 29 — April 2) and what ECU is doing about the program.

Dolls are another subject on today's show with Drs. Re and Sam Sjostrom of Elm City, and Carrie Miller, a doll collector from New Bern.

In a taped interview, Kay talks with Carol Cutler, an award winning cookbook author and chef.

Sidewalk Art Show Details

Saturday, April 11 is the date of the Annual Sidewalk Art Show of the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 Evans Street.

Registration of works to be entered in the show is from 1 to 5 p.m. Friday and 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday. Registration forms are available at the museum and at the School of Art, East Carolina University.

The show opens at 11 a.m. Saturday and works displayed will be on view until 4 p.m. The show area will be the grounds and the street area adjacent to the museum. In the event of rain, the show will be held in the former Belk Building, Fifth Street, downtown Greenville.

Prize money this year totals $1,540. These funds are provided by the East Carolina Art Society, Inc., Pitt County Commissioners, the North Carolina Arts Council, and the National Endowment for the Arts. In addition, a $300 Best-in-Show award will be partially funded by Burroughs-Wellcome Company.

The show is open to everyone — professional, amateur, high school students and elementary school students. Categories for the show are paintings (oil, acrylic, mixed media), water color, sculpture, graphics, drawing, ceramics, crafts and photography.

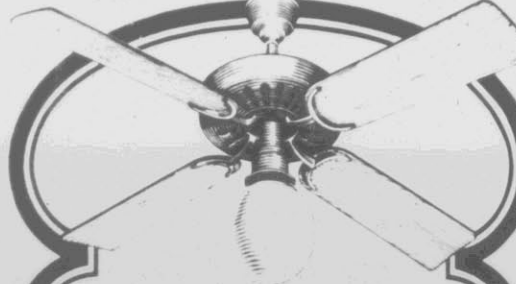

A people's choice award will be given to the work which the public votes as its choice.

Art From Many Nations In Show

PEACE CORPS SHOW — A fine selection of folk art and crafts, including baskets, figurines, masks, wood work, textile and fiber works is currently one of the shows on view at the Greenville Museum of Art (through March 26 only). Former Peace Corps members in the area have contributed items to this colorful show which covers representative items from West Africa, Thailand, Korea, Sierra Leone, Peru, the Philippines, Columbia and India.

Stamp News

SAVINGS STAMPS. . . of 1954 depicts The Minute Man. The statue of this guardian was the central design in four issues of Savings stamps.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Several readers have recently inquired about the value of American Savings Stamps. A check of the 1981 edition of Scott's Specialized United States Stamp Catalogue reveals some pleasant news for people who may have held onto savings stamps instead of having redeemed them for savings bonds.

Savings stamps were first issued by the Post Office Department in 1911 in ten cents denomination only. The first issue, in January 1911, had "U.S. Postal Savings 10 cents" for the design and was orange in color, the second issue was of the same design and was deep blue in color. The 1911 savings stamps were redeemable in the forms of credits to Postal Savings accounts.

It was not until April 1940 that a new design in postal savings stamps was issued. This again featured numerals, in four denominations — 10 cents deep ultramarine, 25 cents dark carmine rose, 50 cents dark blue green, and $1 gray black.

On May 1, 1941, the post office issued a new series of postal savings stamps in five denominations — ten cents rose red, 25 cents blue green, 50 cents ultramarine, $1 gray black, and $5 sepia. This issue was the first to depict the Minute Man which was used on all subsequent issues of savings stamps. It was also the last series to carry the wording "U.S. Postal Savings."

In November 1954, the Post Office issued another series, with the words "United States Savings Stamps" replacing the "U.S. Postal Savings" designation. The Minute Man remained the dominant feature in the design, but shields were added in the upper corners and the denomination numeral appeared in the lower corners surrounded by an ornate frame. There are five denominations in the November 1954 issue — 10 cents rose red, 25 cents blue green, 50 cents ultramarine, $1 gray black, and a new high value, the $5 sepia.

The 1954 issue was the last issue of several denominations. In November 1958 a single 25 cents dark blue and carmine stamp was issued with a 48-star flag behind The Minute Man, and the final savings stamp, 25 cents dark blue and carmine with a 50-star flag was issued in 1961.

The Postal Savings System initiated in 1911 with stamps issued through 1941 was discontinued March 28, 1966. The Savings Stamps issues of the 1950's was discontinued June 30, 1970.

On those pleasant surprises referred to earlier, listed below are quotations of catalogue values of some of the issues of the 1940's and 1950's. Anyone who purchased and saved plate blocks (corner blocks with plate numbers), or who put aside booklet panes of ten stamps are in luck. (Plain blocks of four stamps without a plate number are valued at four times the catalogue value of a single stamp)

1940 ISSUES

Single copy catalogue values:
— 10 cents, $8; 25 cents, $15; 50 cents, $30; and $1 value, $65.
Plate blocks of six:
— 10 cents, $150; 25 cents, $275; 50 cents, $650; and $1 value, $1,500.

1941 ISSUES

Single copy:
— 10 cents, 65 cents; 25 cents, $2.50; 50 cents, $9; $1 value, $16; and $5 value, $40.
Plate blocks of four:
— 10 cents, $10; 25 cents, $18.50; 50 cents, $50; $1 value, $110; and $5 value (plate block of six), $450.
Booklet panes of 10 stamps:
— 10 cents (four different types) — $75, $80, $120, and $135 respectively; and 25 cents (two different types) — $75 and $85.

1954 ISSUES

Single copy:
— 10 cents, 60¢; 25 cents, $1.75; 50 cents, $6.50; $1 value, $17.50; and $5 value, $45.
Plate blocks of four catalogue value:
— 10 cents, $3.50; 25 cents, $12.50; 50 cents, $40; $1 value, $100; and $5 value, $500.
Booklet panes of 10 stamps:
— 10 cents (two types) $175 and $200; 25 cents (two types) $200 and $225.

1958 ISSUE

— 25 cents — single, 75¢; plate block of 4, $7.50; and booklet pane of 10, $30.

1961 ISSUE

— 25 cents — single, 75¢; plate block of 4, $7.50; and booklet pane of 10, $150.

A reminder — catalogue values do not necessarily reflect market value of stamps. As a general rule, dealers sell most items at prices from 50 to 75 percent of the listed catalogue value — and pay 20 to 40 percent of catalogue value of items purchased from collectors.

Auditions Set

TARBORO — Tryouts for roles in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" are being held at 2 p.m. today and at 7 p.m. Monday in the Edgecombe Technical College Theater.

The audition is open to all interested people. Several older men, one older woman, two younger couples, several children and extras are needed for roles.

The play will be directed by Steve Pavelsky and will be presented by the Community Theater on April 30, May 1 and 2.

Benefit Concert

A benefit concert with proceeds to go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association will be held Sunday, March 29 from 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. at The Attic Night Club, downtown Greenville.

Steve Basset and Virginia Breeze are the artists appearing in the benefit performance. Tickets are priced at $3 and will be available at the door.

New Scholarship

WINSTON-SALEM — The North Carolina School of the Arts Foundation has received an endowment for an annual scholarship to fully assist the rising 12th grader at the school considered to be the most promising artist.

The scholarship, the Elizabeth Harriet Weaver Memorial Award, will be presented for the first time at this year's Awards Day, May 20.

The new award is one of 26 merit scholarships with an annual value of about $30,000 offered to School of the Arts students.

Cinema Tickets Still On Sale

The ECU based Cinema Society of Greenville is still selling subscriptions for the three remaining spring film features.

Today, interested people can purchase for $5 admission tickets to today's film and the two remaining to be shown, one in April, one in May.

The films in the Cinema Society series are shown on Sunday dates at 2 p.m. in Hendrix Theater. Admission price includes the film, refreshments and comments.

Today at 2, Jean Cocteau's "Orphens" is being screened. This is a modern retelling of the Orpheus-Eurydice myth in which a French poet travels to hell in a chauffeur-driven limousine.

Bertrand Blier's 1978 Academy Award film, "Get Out Your Handkerchiefs" is being shown at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 26; and the concluding film is a 1978 Australian film, the work of Peter Weir, "The Last Wave," starring Richard Chamberlain.

Sampson Propels Cavs To Philly

ATLANTA (AP) — A pair of All-Americans, Ralph Sampson of fifth-ranked Virginia and Danny Ainge of No. 16 Brigham Young, had differing views on a technical foul that turned the tide in Virginia's favor Saturday in the finals of the NCAA East Regional basketball tournament.

Ainge got slapped with a technical when he contended to an official that Sampson had grabbed the rim — an automatic technical — when the 7-foot-4 giant stuffed in a missed shot that put the Cavaliers ahead for good, 36-35, en route to a 74-60 victory.

"I thought Sampson grabbed the rim before he caught the ball," said Ainge. "I told the ref that, and he said I was complaining too much, and he gave the 'T'. I guess I was complaining too much."

"I don't really think I was holding the rim," said Sampson, who got 14 of his game-high 22 points in the second half when the Cavaliers took control and turned the game into a rout.

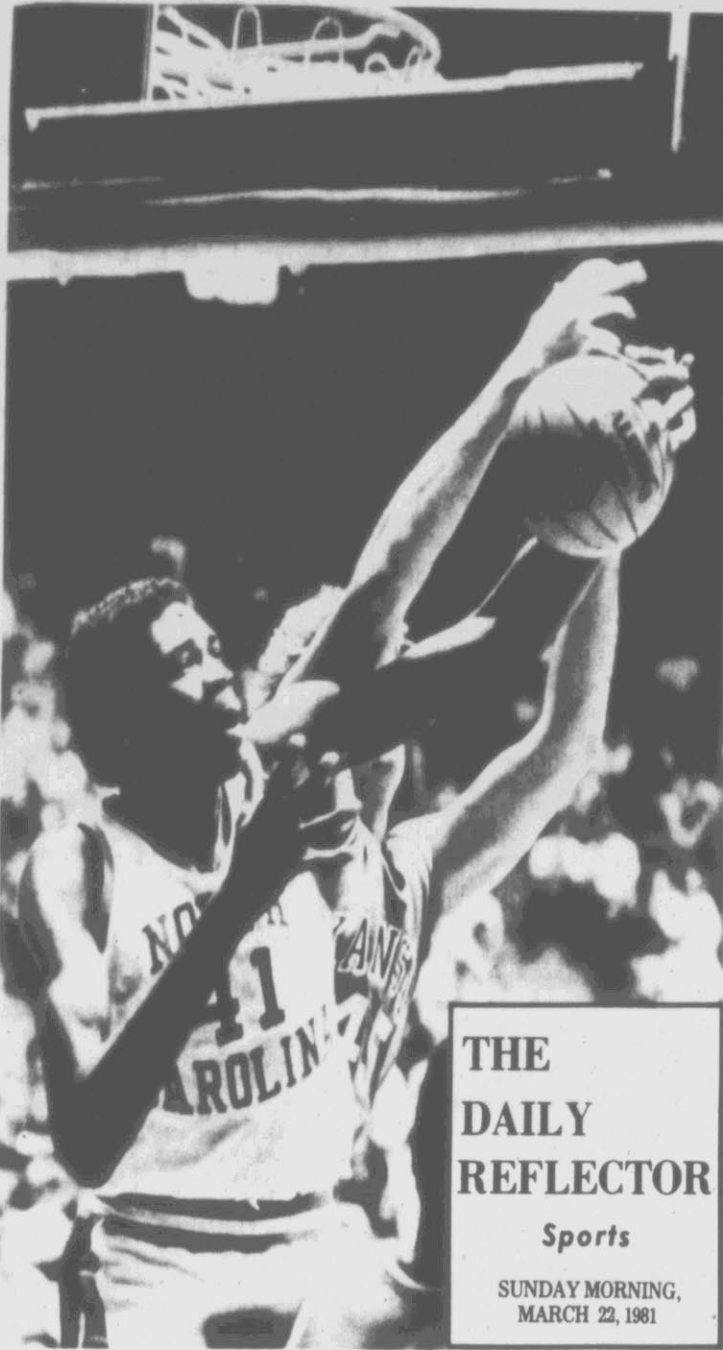

The victory propelled Virginia, 28-3, into the NCAA's Final Four at Philadelphia next Saturday, where the Cavaliers will seek their third straight victory over Atlantic Coast Conference rival North Carolina in a semifinal contest. The Tar Heels belted Kansas State 82-68 in the West Regional final.

Sampson's stuff came with 15:54 remaining, and Jeff Lamp hit the free throw on the Ainge technical. Virginia built its lead to 39-35 by scoring on their possession play after the technical, a 14-footer by Othell Wilson.

"As far as the technical goes, I think it had to be the turning point, because we had the lead before the play," said BYU Coach Frank Arnold. "They got five points out of it in one trip down court. I don't want to say that was what beat us, though. There were too many good plays by Virginia, not just that."

"Obviously, it was a tremendous team effort," said Coach Terry Holland of Virginia, which had five players scoring in double figures. "It's no fluke that we are going to Philadelphia. We're going because these guys have earned it."

After the five points resulting from the technical, Lee Raker, playing with a severely bruised thigh, hit from the left corner to complete a 7-0 Virginia run that gave the Cavaliers a 41-35 lead 14:46 from the finish.

Tar Heels Beat 'Cats' 3-2 Zone

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Coach Dean Smith couldn't remember a better game North Carolina played this season than the 82-68 pasting the Tar Heels gave Kansas State Saturday in the championship game of the NCAA West Regional basketball tournament.

"I think we played one of the better, if not the very best game of the year," Smith said. But even though the Tar Heels jumped to an eight-point lead eight minutes into the game and held a 42-29 halftime advantage, Smith said, "I never felt comfortable."

The Tar Heels won by beating Kansas State's vaunted 3-2 zone defense, with Sam Perkins and Al Wood consistently getting in for high percentage shots early.

"Any 3-2 zone, there is a hole there," said Smith. "Sam Perkins gives us a dimension inside we haven't had."

Wood, James Worthy and Perkins, a 6-foot-9 freshman center, combined for 52 points.

"It was fairly easy getting inside," said Worthy. "Big Sam knows what to do with it when he gets it inside."

Kansas State Coach Jack Hartman agreed that the Tar Heels' inside game "was more than we could deal with."

"North Carolina's inside people are very quick, very difficult for us to contain. I thought we were somewhat tentative, particularly with our shooting early," he said.

Perkins finished with 16 points and Wood had 21 in leading the Tar Heels, who will take a 28-8 record into the championship semifinals against the East Regional champion at Philadelphia next Saturday.

Kansas State, upset winners over San Francisco, Oregon State and Illinois in the first three rounds of the tourney, never got closer than 11 points in the second half. The Wildcats ended their season with a 24-9 record.

Rolando Blackman led Kansas State with 21 points, Randy Reed had 19 and Ed Nealy 12, 10 in the second half.

Kansas State made one run after the Tar Heels seized the momentum. A three-point play by Reed, a follow-up by Reed, and Blackman's 12-foot jumper made it 30-27 with four minutes remaining in the first half. But 20 seconds later Wood made a three-point play after Nealy, Kansas State's best rebounder, drew his third foul.

East Carolina rallied for three unearned runs in the bottom of the seventh inning yesterday to pull out a sweep of a doubleheader against Yale University. The Bucs won the opener, 4-3, then came back to win the second 3-2.

"We've got a bunch of cardiac kids here," Coach Hal Baird said shaking his head. "I think we had a little letdown in the second game. We knew that we were going to face their best pitcher (Ron Darling) in the first game and we've been psyching our kids up for three days to face him. All of the scouts say that Darling will be the first pitcher picked this year."

"We were really up for him, but the second pitcher (Joe Impagliazzo) pitched a better game for them."

Baird praised the pitching effort of Bill Wilder, who went the distance in the first game for his second win. He also noted that Kirk Parsons, who came out of the bull pen to win the second game, "continues to do a great job for us."

Wilder was in complete charge most of the way. He only faltered in the final two innings, giving up all three runs in the sixth. Meanwhile, he struck out ten, walked none and hit one batter, while scattering six hits.

In the sixth, with one down, Daniel Costello reached on an infield hit and Mark Conley followed with a single to right. Rich Diana then doubled to right, scoring Costello. Darling, who is slated to be the subject of an upcoming article in Sports Illustrated, reached on an error, which allowed Conley to score. Joe Dufek followed with a sacrifice fly, scoring Diana.

In the seventh, Wilder hit the first batter, then saw another reach on an error after his ninth strikeout. But an infield grounder caught a runner off third, and a strike out ended the game.

East Carolina got its first two runs in the second. John Hallow reached on a fielder's choice and Todd Hendley singled. With two away, Jay Carraway singled through the middle, scoring both runners.

The other two came in the fifth. Robert Wells opened the frame with a double down the left field line. With one away, Mike Sorrell reached on a single off Darling's glove, then stole second. After a fly out, Mike Sage hit a screamer off Darling's leg that bounced out between home and third, allowing Wells to score. Sorrell then scored when Hallow got a single to right.

Sorrell made the defensive play of the game, going deep behind second to throw out the runner going to first to end the inning with a runner on.

Both of the Yale runs came in the third inning of the second game. Both were unearned.

After leaving the bases loaded in the second, the Elis struck with two away. Diana reached on an error, and Darling cracked a two-run homer to left. Although Dufek followed with a double, nothing else came across.

Three doubleplays helped the Pirates through the next three innings.

East Carolina loaded the bases in both the third and sixth, but failed to push a run across in either.

In the seventh, however, three Yale errors helped bring in the runs. With one down, Sorrell walked and Evans reached on an error. Pinchrunner Mark Shank was then safe at second on another error on Mike Sage's infield grounder. Hallow then doubled to left center, scoring both Sorrell and Shank tying it up. When the ball was thrown into the dugout on the relay to third, pinchrunner David Wells came in with the game-winning run.

The victories boosted the Pirate record to 8-3. Yale fell to 6-6-1.

Emory: 2 Good Days Of Practice

"Overall, I think we've had two good days of practice. The coaches know where they are. The player have more of a feel for what we're trying to do than last spring."

Ed Emory was summing up his East Carolina Pirates' first two days of spring football practice after a Saturday afternoon session. The second-year coach is putting approximately 130 candidates through paces.

"They were awfully sore today from yesterday's first practice. But in spring practice, you don't wait around. You have to go after it and start hitting," Emory said.

Injuries, a problem which plagued the 1980 Pirates, have started to show up in the form of pulled muscles. Defensive end Mike Davis and tight end Steve Hamilton are nursing muscle pulls and offensive lineman Maury Banks injured a knee Friday. But, the Pirates are generally in good shape.

"Jeff Johnson (ECU strength coach) has done just a phenomenal job with weight training in the off-season. Sports medicine has done a good job. We've still got some kids who aren't 100 percent, but we've made lots of progress."

In specific areas, Emory likes what he sees at noseguard, does not like what he sees in the kicking game and is still holding judgement on his quarterback situation.

"One of the biggest improvements on defense has been noseguard. Wally Myers is better than he was last year at this time."

Rose Wins Fourth Straight, 13-2

Rampants Blast Rams

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

SNOW HILL — Greenville Rose's high-powered hitters took batting practice again yesterday — at the expense of three Greene Central pitchers.

Through four games the Rampants are averaging over 13 runs and 12 hits this season and Saturday afternoon they did nothing to damage that average. But for the second time in two weeks they did damage the Rams pitching staff.

Rose, which blanked Greene Central, 13-0, just over a week ago, banged out 11 hits and had near-flawless play in the field as the Rampants buried the Rams, 13-2, in a nonconference baseball game.

"We're hitting the ball well, but what's more important is we're hitting it well throughout the lineup," Greenville Rose coach Ronald Vincent said. "The entire lineup is hitting the ball well and that makes a difference."

Eight players had at least one hit for Rose yesterday and the Rampants as a team scored at least one run in every inning and had at least one hit in every inning except the second.

Rose, now 4-0, was led at the plate by Paul McMillan, who was two of three with three RBIs and a home run. Also with two hits for Rose were Emmett Walsh (two of three, 2 RBIs) and Mark Douglas (two of four, 2 RBIs).

"We just got beat by a better ballclub," said Greene Central coach Jim Fulghum, who lost eight starters and two pitchers off last year's 3-A state championship team. "They're solid and I think they ought to be one of the top teams in their league."

"If they play right at the right times they can win it. They've got the experience, the pitching and the hitting."

It did not take long for the Rampants bats to find a groove on Ram starter Larry Bryant. Rose tagged him for five runs (three earned) and four hits before he left in the fifth.

Rose leadoff hitter Tom Buie opened the first with a single and moved to second on Douglas' ground out to the pitcher. With two gone, Kenny Barnes singled down the third baseline to score Buie.

In the second, McMillan, Rose's #9 hitter, sent a one-out home run over the right-centerfield fence some 360 feet away to give Rose a 2-0 lead. The Rampants doubled that lead in the third.

Mitch Brann was hit by a pitch, moved to second on a passed ball and went to third on Walsh's ground out. Barnes followed with a walk and when he stole second Brann scored. A sacrifice fly to left by Gordon Douglas scored Barnes, who had gone to third on an error.

The lead went to 5-0 in the fourth when Bill Kirtrell was hit by a pitch, stole second and scored on Douglas' single.

Greene Central, which managed just three hits, pushed across its first run in the bottom of the fourth. With two out and Tony Barrow on first after a walk, Eddie Johnson tripled to score Barrow.

The Rampants, however, countered with a five-run fifth that all but sealed the victory. With one gone, Barnes worked Ram reliever Richie Chase for a walk and went to second on Douglas' single. Crowell Pope singled home Barnes and Kirtrell followed with a walk to load the bases.

McMillan then doubled home Douglas and Pope. Buie's sacrifice fly scored Kirtrell and Douglas's single brought McMillan home with the Rampants' fifth run of the inning.

Rose added another run in the sixth and two in the seventh and Greene Central scored its second and final run in

A Tale Of Two ECU Running Backs

Theodore Sutton

EDITOR'S NOTE: ECU opened spring football practice Friday without Anthony Collins and Theodore Sutton, two of 13 starters (all starters) the Pirates lost to graduation.

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
It is a well-traveled stretch of 28 miles that separate Kinston and Greenville, but the road taken by Theodore Sutton from his hometown to East Carolina is traveled by few. And survived by even fewer.

Sutton arrived on the ECU campus a walkon. He had to provide his own shorts, shirts and pads and was forced to live with the other walkons on the other side of Belk dorm, away from the regulars.

Five years later, when his career was over, Sutton had proved he belonged. When the final gun sounded on ECU's 1980 season, Sutton could look back on a career in which he had gained 2,730 yards, second only to Carlester Crumpler in ECU history.

Now, he hopes his football career isn't over, that he'll have a chance to play in the National Football League.

"I've worked out with eight or nine teams and they have all told me I'll definitely be drafted," said Sutton, one of 13 starters who ECU lost to graduation last season. "Cincinnati and Oakland have sent me a lot of information, but it really doesn't matter where I go."

What will it take to make the NFL? "Number one, I've got to work on catching the ball," Sutton said. "The fullback in the wishbone doesn't get to catch too many passes and I've got to concentrate on catching the ball." "Number two, I've got to work on my strength and speed. I've been running and lifting weights but it's a little harder to get psyched up working out on your own." And what of his chances? "I've always been in the underdog roll. Deep down under, though, I think I can do it. I've wanted to play professional football since I was a kid and now I've got the chance."

Five years ago, however, it didn't even seem Sutton would have a chance to play college football. Coming out of Kinston High School, Sutton was not recruited by anyone.

"My senior year we went to the state playoffs but I didn't run the ball that much," Sutton said. "I'd run the ball maybe eight or nine times a game. We ran the wishbone and I wasn't the featured back."

The chances of playing college ball remained slim until ECU coach Pat Dye spoke at the Kinston Athletic Banquet.

"I had already been accepted at East Carolina and I talked to Coach Dye about coming out," Sutton said. "He told me I'd get a fair shot and that's all I wanted."

He got his fair shot and also took his share of hard shots while being used as cannon-fodder for the ECU defense.

"Soon after I got here they put me on the scout team and we went up against the number one defense every day, guys like Cary Godette and Harold Randolph," Sutton said. "But I thought deep down I could make it."

Obviously, however, the early weeks of practice were not easy. Along with the bumps and bruises, he also had to give up his high school nickname for a more corrupted version.

"In high school everyone had a nickname so my cousin called me 'Toe.' When I got here coach Wright Anderson was runningback coach and he asked me if I had a nickname I told him I did. It was 'Toe.'

"Well, he started calling me 'Toad' and I said it was 'Toe.' But he told me if I didn't like it I could pack my bags and go back to Kinston."

The bags remained unpacked and wearing his high school pads because walkons don't receive equipment. Sutton proved to Dye that he could play.

"We'd be practicing and he (Dye) would look out of the corner of his eye at you. You'd catch a glimpse of that every now and then."

After being redshirted his freshman year, Sutton was promoted to the varsity in 1977. It didn't take long for Dye to notice the 5-9, 200-pound fullback.

He gained 706 yards his first season and followed that with seasons of 625, 818 and 594 yards. Perhaps just as impressive, though, is the fact Sutton lost but 24 yards while running the ball. Not bad for someone unwanted out of high school.

Now, while ECU football team is in spring practice, Sutton will be on the sidelines waiting for April 28 and the sure-to-come call from an NFL club. But what happens if he doesn't make it?

"I taking everything into consideration," said Sutton, who already has his business degree and when this semester ends will be 21 hours short of a masters degree in business. "I've thought about Canadian football but I haven't talked to anyone directly."

Anthony Collins

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
The days are a little longer now for Anthony Collins. The former East Carolina halfback is in that way-station between college and professional football.

Four years ago, when Collins chose ECU over Syracuse and Florida, thoughts of the National Football League were as distant as his Penn Yan, N.Y., hometown is from Greenville.

Four years later, thoughts of professional football are ever-present as Collins hopes his gridiron career did not come to an end when he walked off the field following last year's season-ending 36-14 loss to N.C. State.

For now, however, he waits. His days are bench presses, squats and 40-yard dashes as he readies for a hoped-for shot at the NFL. But mostly he waits.

"I've been on three trips, to Tampa, Dallas and New York, for physicals," said Collins, one of 13 players (all starters) the Pirates lost to graduation last year. "But you never can tell what's going to happen. Right now I'm just sitting around waiting."

And working out, mostly by himself. "It's kind of hard now working out by myself," he said. "It's easier to do it with someone else. It's harder to get motivated when you're by yourself."

Still, the chance to play in the NFL provides all the motivation any football player would ever need. Four years ago, however, professional football was just a game Collins watched on television.

"When I first came here I never thought about playing professional football," Collins said. "I guess I didn't start thinking about playing professional football until my junior year."

Following his senior year in high school, Collins signed a grant with the University of Florida. But a visit to ECU changed his mind and he was on his way to Greenville.

As with most freshmen, however, the early days of college were not the easiest. "It was the first time I'd been away from home," Collins said. "The first week I wanted to go home real bad."

But when the first football game came around, Collins was at ECU to stay. He gained only 95 yards his freshman season but 479 yards his sophomore year gave Pirate fans a glimpse of what was to come his junior year.

Collins rushed for 1,130 yards his junior year, good enough for 16th in the nation. He had also scored 14 touchdowns and averaged 7.3 yards per carry, second best among the top 16 rushers that year.

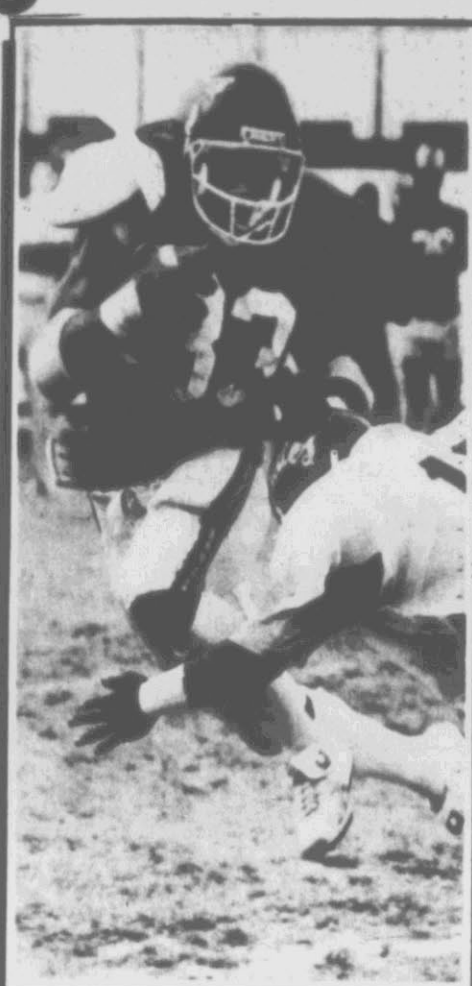

Then came the 1980 season. Coach Pat Dye had packed his bags for Wyoming and Ed Emory had taken over. Coaching changes are hardest on juniors and seniors, who have become used to one coach only to be told a change has been made. It was no different for Collins.

"It took me a long time to get over the fact that Coach Dye would be here," Collins said. "It was sort of like confusing. I knew how Coach Dye did things and Coach Emory's different."

Then came a scrimmage before the Pirates' season opener with Duke. Collins was sandwiched between two players as he was tackled. The result was bruised ribs, which would plague him the rest of the season.

"It was hard to move," Collins said. "That first night I couldn't sleep and it was difficult to breathe."

Still, he played. There were glimpses of his 1979 form, but they became fewer and fewer as the ribs and a young and oft-injured offensive line began to take their toll.

When the year had ended, a season that saw the Pirates finish 4-7, Collins had gained 535 yards on 110 carries. Added to his previous three seasons, Collins ended his career the fourth leading ground gainer in ECU history with 2,207 yards on 367 carries and a 6.1 average per rush.

Although his rushing yardage was less than half his 1979 total, Collins contributed in other ways, notably returning kickoffs. In an otherwise forgettable game, Collins took a kickoff and sprinted 100 yards for a touchdown against Florida

State in the Pirates' 63-7 loss. For the year, Collins returned 37 kickoffs for 990 yards and two touchdowns. His ability at returning kickoffs — in his four years at ECU he has returned 79 for 1,939 yards, an 24.5 average — may well open some NFL doors that might otherwise remain closed.

"Last year really didn't hurt me that much (with the pros)," Collins said. "The scouts take everything into consideration when they look at you. They knew what I had done my junior year and they told me just to keep working."

But while he works he is also waiting, for April 28 when the NFL draft will begin.

North Pitt Pounds Williamston Nine, 11-4

BETHEL — North Pitt banged out 12 hits, including four doubles, as the Panthers defeated Williamston, 11-4, Saturday afternoon in a high school baseball game.

The Panthers, now 3-1, scored three runs in the first and added two runs in the second and third and never were threatened after that.

North Pitt was led at the plate by Gregory Briley, who was three of four, and Quintin Dove, who was two of two. Ronnie House and Mike Brown both had two hits in three at bats. All four hitters had doubles.

"We played good defensively, especially Gregory Briley," North Pitt coach Pat Smith said. "We're glad to get this win with someone like Roger (Bell) going all the way."

Bell, in his first start this season, went the distance and struck out three and walked two while allowing nine hits.

In the first, Gregory Briley singled and moved to second on Dove's walk. House then doubled home both and later moved to third on a passed ball. He then scored on Jerry Simpson's sacrifice fly.

In the second, Brown walked and after two were gone Gregory Briley doubled to score Brown. Briley later scored on a fielder's choice by Bob Hemingway.

The Panthers added to their lead in the third with two more runs. With Elwood Ayers on first with a fielder's choice, Brown doubled him home and later scored on a fielder's choice himself.

Williamston scored twice in the fourth and added another run in the sixth but it was not enough as the Panthers countered with single runs in the fourth and fifth and two runs in the sixth.

North Pitt travels to Charles B. Aycock Tuesday.

The Lady Tigers pushed over two first inning runs, then put it away with six in the second frame. They added one each in the third and fourth, and three each in the fifth and sixth, before settling for one more in the seventh.

North Pitt got single runs in the second and sixth, and scored three in the seventh.

Cougars Edge Redskins, 8-6

ROBERSONVILLE — Southwest Edgecombe scored three runs in the second and third innings and then held off a late Roanoke rally to hand the Redskins an 8-6 loss Saturday afternoon in a high school baseball game.

Roanoke, trailing 8-2 after five innings rallied for four runs in the sixth before the Cougars cooled the rally with two strike outs.

Davis Harris and Neal Cargile walked to lead off the sixth and both scored on Joey Ross' double. Mutt Smith and Quincy Morning then walked to load the bases and when Ricky Simpson walked Ross was forced in.

Lee Briley followed with a sacrifice bly to score Smith but Smith and Harris then struck out to end the threat. It was as close as the Redskins got as they dropped their second game in three outings this season.

Ross had two hits in three trips to the plate to lead Roanoke. Benny Bell was two of three for Southwest.

Roanoke travels to Williamston Tuesday.

Jaeckel Leads TPC By 3 Strokes

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Barry Jaeckel knows he will be tested, by the demands of Sawgrass and his own nerves, in Sunday's final round of the prestigious Tournament Players Championship.

And Jaeckel, who had to work hard to retain his lead over the final few holes of the third round Saturday, thinks he's ready for it.

"I think I've got the guts for it and," he said and paused, then smiled, "this time I think I've got the game for it."

Both his game and guts were severely tried over the last three holes of the third round. He played those holes in par, completing a round of 72 that left him with a 3-shot lead. But he was quick to admit, "It's a good thing the round ended when it did. It was just in time. I wanted to get in. A few more holes and I'd have been dropping strokes in a hurry."

"I was getting tired and a little nervous, I don't mind admitting. My swing went to the dogs."

"A little choke was setting in."

And Jaeckel now has a shot at a $72,000 first prize — equalling the total earnings in his best year on the tour — and a 10-year exemption from qualifying if he can hang on Sunday.

"My chances are as good as anybody's," he said.

Jaekel, who had done little more than make expenses in six previous years on the PGA Tour, had a 54-hole total of 211, five shots under par on the windswept Sawgrass links that played slightly easier this mild, sunny day.

But while the temperature was higher and the winds less severe than the previous two days, Sawgrass still retained enough subtle strength to frustrate some of golf's greatest players.

Jack Nicklaus was a case in point.

He birdied two of the first three holes, moved within two shots of the lead at one time, then developed some problems with his closed putting stance and fell back.

Nicklaus, four shots back when the day started, dropped back two more with a wildly erratic 74 that included four birdies, six bogeys and eight pars. He had a 217 total going into Sunday's final round of the tournament that offers $72,000 to the winner from the total purse of $440,000.

John Mahaffey, Jim Simons and Canadian Dan Halldorson shared second at 214, three strokes off the pace. Mahaffey, a former PGA champion, had a 71, Simons 73 and Halldorson, who helped win the World Cup for Canada and then took the Pensacola Open title late last year, had a 74.

Curtis Strange, with a 71, was at 215 and was the only other golfer in the strongest field of the year to break par 216 for three trips over the 7,000 yards of windswept dunes and marsh, trees and trouble that make up Sawgrass.

Bruce Lietzke, a two-time winner this season, and defending champion Lee Trevino moved into a contending position at par 216.

Lietzke, who played his first six holes before the wind kicked up, shot a no-bogey 68, the best round of the day.

"I did all the damage before the wind came up," Lietzke said. "After the winds we had the first two days, I was Rose High School's Donald Johnson was the only Rampant to land on the ten-member All-Division I team selected by the coaches.

Johnson, a senior, was the team's scoring leader this year, averaging over 15 points a game.

Fike's Mo Ruffin led the team, and was selected as the league's Player of the Year.

Others on the team include George McClain of Rocky Mount; Ed Farmer and Thomas Loftin of Beddingfield; Jerry Strayhorn and Tracy Miles of Hunt, Thomas Mabry of Northern Nash, Kenny Griffin of Bertie and Perry Williams of Northeastern.

McClain, Strayhorn, Loftin and Mabry are all juniors, the rest are seniors.

Rocky Mount's Reggie Henderson was selected as coach of the year.

UNC Fills 'Big Hole' In Zone

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — North Carolina forward James Worthy expressed surprise following the Tar Heels' NCAA West Regional victory over Kansas State Saturday that it was so easy to move the basketball inside against the Wildcats.

Worthy, center Sam Perkins and forward Al Wood combined for 52 points and were named to the all-tournament team following their 82-68 victory over unranked Kansas State.

"I didn't think it would be as easy, but that was going to be a key," Worthy said of North Carolina's inside game. "There was a big hole in their zone."

Worthy said the sixth-ranked Atlantic Coast Conference champions had become used to confronting various defenses during league play, "but Utah and Kansas State just played a straight zone."

From the opening basket, North Carolina's big men were able to score seemingly at will from under the basket, frequently setting up the scores with crisp interior passes by Worthy, who had five assists. Worthy finished with 15 points.

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, whose Tar Heels play the East Regional champion next Saturday in the NCAA championship semifinal at Philadelphia, agreed with Worthy. "Any 3-2 zone, there is a hole there," Smith said. But in addition to his club's brilliant inside play, Smith credited North Carolina's all-around performance.

"I think we played one of the better, if not best games of the year," Smith said. However,

ECU Golfers 23rd

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Georgia Southern's Jodie Mudd shot a final-day eight-under-par 64 for a new course and tournament record Saturday afternoon to win the 23rd annual Furman Intercollegiate Invitational golf tournament.

Tennessee won the three-day tournament with a 865 followed by Wake Forest at 868 and Alabama and Clemson at 869. East Carolina finished 22nd out of 27 teams with a total of 918.

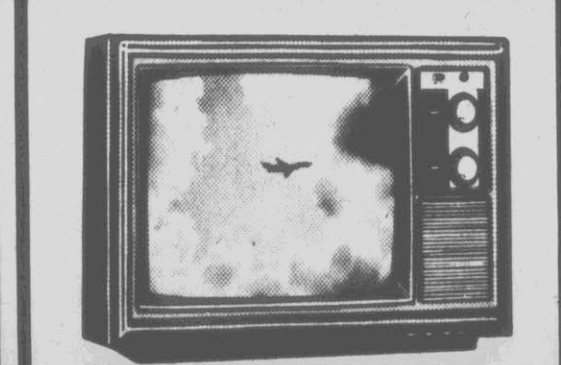

Mudd eight-under-par included six straight birdies and gave him a three-day score of 204, 12 under par.

Steve Lowry of Alabama was second at 211 and Kenny Perry of Western Kentucky was third with a 212.

ECU was led by Don Gaifner's 74 and Steve Jones' 76. Both ended the tournament with a total score of 228. Don Sweeting and Carl Beaman shot 80s yesterday and ended up with totals of 232 and 234 respectively. Mike Moye shot an 83 to end the tournament at 238.

Vikings Hold Off Panthers For 5-4 Win

 Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley stared a much-needed victory in the face and nearly flinched.

The Vikings watched a five-run lead melt to one before hanging on to defeat North Pitt, 5-4, Friday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

"Our defense is not playing the way it should be," D.H. Conley first-year coach Ritchie Wynns said. "I don't know what exactly's causing it."
 "Fortunately, today Doug (McRoy) pretty much handcuffed them. He held them to three hits and did a good job, especially in the last couple of innings."

While the Viking defense was committing six errors, McRoy, a lefthander, went the distance against the Panthers. McRoy did not allow an earned run while holding the Panthers to three hits and striking out two and walking two. And with the game in doubt he seemed to reach back for a little extra.

After seeing the Panthers score three times in the fourth and once in the fifth to cut the Viking lead to 5-4, McRoy cooled any thoughts the Panthers might have of tying the game or going ahead.

In the last two innings, McRoy allowed only two batters to reach base, one on an error and another on a walk, as the Vikings held on for their second victory in five outings. Conley is 2-1 in the league.

While the Panthers, now 2-1 overall and in the ECC, were unable to mount a threat in the last two innings, Coach Pat Smith said the key was the first inning.

"The mistakes in the first inning cost us," Smith said. "We should have got out of that inning without them scoring a run. I thought Greg (Briley) pitched a good game except for a couple of mistakes, but our (defensive) mistakes hurt us."

Briley, a righthander, gave up seven hits, struck out four and walked one. Two of the Vikings' five runs were unearned, and both came in the first inning.

After McRoy set the side down in order in the top of the first, the Vikings used two errors and a Jeff Cox triple to take a 2-0 lead.

With one gone, Sammy Tucker reached second when after a long run centerfielder Ronnie House could not hang onto a fly ball in shallow left-center. Tucker went to third on a passed ball.

Roy Lassiter followed with a walk after first baseman Ken Whitehurst failed to come up with his foul pop up. Lassiter then stole second, allowing Tucker to score.

On the play, Lassiter drew the throw from North Pitt pitcher Greg Briley to second baseman Richard Heller but Heller was too far off the bag to tag Lassiter. Meanwhile, Tucker raced home with the Vikings first run. Lassiter subsequently scored on Cox's triple.

The Panthers had runners on second and third with one out in the second but Bob Hemingway was tagged out at the plate on Mike Brown's grounder to first and Heller popped out to end the inning.

The Vikings added to their lead in the third. Emory Vines singled and stole second to lead off the inning. Two outs later Jeff Cox singled, moving Vines to third. Chris Buck followed with another single to score Vines. Todd Rouse then doubled in the left-centerfield gap to score Cox and Buck and give Conley a 5-0 lead.

That was all the Vikings got this day. And it was just enough.

Briley set the Vikings down in order in the fourth and fifth and killed a sixth-inning rally by forcing pinch hitter Keith Mills to fly out and then striking out Joey Joyner.

The Panthers, meanwhile, sliced the Conley lead to one. House and Hemingway led off the fourth with back-to-back singles. Then, moments after seeing Conley catcher Joey Joyner drop Jerry Simpson's foul pop up, Simpson sent a curling line shot down the right field line for a double, scoring House and Hemingway.

Fans Cheer Purdue By Duke

didn't get the crowd involved we'd be in trouble because we were just standing around on defense," the first-year Purdue coach said.

The Boilermakers, down three points at halftime, rallied behind senior Drake Morris, who finished with 28 points, and a trio of Boilermaker teammates for an 81-69 victory over Duke in Friday night's quarterfinal round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Purdue will play Syracuse in the NIT semifinals Monday night at New York's Madison Square Garden. Tulsa, which beat South Alabama 69-68 in another quarter-final game Friday night, will meet West Virginia in the other semifinal game.

"Drake got us off to a good start, but Duke really played hard-nosed," said Keady. "Duke was very patient once they got the lead and controlled the tempo of the game."

Purdue led early by six points as Morris, a 6-foot-5 forward, scored 10 of the Boilermakers' first 14 points. The Blue Devils, who lost to Purdue in the NCAA Midwest Regional championship game last year, finally tied the game at 18-18 and took a 31-28 lead at intermission.

"In the second half, once the crowd got hyper, the players started moving and we reached what I call the 'magic moment' on offense and the ball started going in," said Keady. "We played great from there on. Our kids had to execute under great pressure, and I'm very proud of them."

Duke's first-year coach Mike Krzyzewski, admittedly handicapped with the loss of Gene Banks, the team's leading scorer who broke his wrist in a first-round NIT victory over North Carolina A&T, said, "I don't think the crowd was that big a factor, at least not on our players. Our players have played in front of crowds like that all year."

Led in the second half by Keith Edmonson, who finished with 19 points, Russell Cross, who ended up with 13, and Brian Walker, with 11, Purdue finally caught Duke at 41-41, then took the lead for good on a basket by Edmonson and a three-point play by Walker with under eight minutes remaining. The Boilermakers

LSU, Wichita Gain Midwestern Finals

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Louisiana State University center Greg Cook says he knows he's in for a different type of game Sunday against Wichita State than he had helping his team to a 72-56 rout of Arkansas in the NCAA Midwest Regional semifinal.

LSU Coach Dale Brown credited Cook with helping to keep Arkansas guards U.S. Reed and Darrell Walker at long range Friday night while controlling Razorback center Scott Hastings. That trio had led Arkansas to a 24-8 season and the 20th spot in the national poll.

Reed and Walker combined for 22 points Friday night, but Reed was four for 10 from the floor, and Walker — held scoreless through the first half — was six for 14.

Wichita State beat Kansas 66-65 Friday night on a 20-foot jumper by forward Mike Jones with 2 seconds left in the game. LSU and Wichita State meet Sunday for a berth in the Final Four at Philadelphia.

While Arkansas built its season on the play of its guards, Wichita State rides on the inside play of its big men. 6-foot-10 Cliff Levingston and 6-9 Antoine Carr. Levingston got 18 points against Kansas and Carr got 16.

"Yeah, they're tough," the 6-9 Cook said after the game

Friday night. "I guess I'd better get a lot of rest before Sunday.

"But I like the competition. I play better against the good ones."

Usually cast in a defensive role, Cook hit 10 first-half points as LSU built a 34-18 halftime advantage. He sat out most of the second half with foul trouble and finished with 12 points.

But 5-10 guard Ethan Martin picked up the scoring slack.

After getting just two points in the first half, he finished with 16. He also had eight assists and two steals.

LSU had a 41-31 rebound advantage, with forward Rudy Macklin getting 10 rebounds to go with his 15 points.

Wichita State's Levingston led all rebounders for the night, grabbing 14 boards. Carr had nine rebounds as Wichita State dominated Kansas in that department, 45-32.

Kansas ended its season with a 24-8 record, while Wichita State advances with a 26-6 mark.

LSU, fourth in the season's final poll, is the highest-ranked team left in the NCAA playoffs and holds a 30-3 record.

One of those losses came at the hands of Arkansas, an 86-76 conquest in the Great Alaska Shootout in November. Cook didn't play in that game. He was suspended for a dormitory infraction.

"LSU's a lot better than it was in Alaska," said Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton. "Cook makes a big difference.

"We jumped with them for a while, but we just wore out. They have a lot of beef to go with their height.

"To win big, you have to be quick. But you also have to have a couple of big men inside. LSU has that."

So does Wichita State, but when it came down the final minute, with Kansas holding a three-point lead, it was 6-5, 185-pound reserve forward Mike Jones who was called on twice to hit long-range jumpers.

The first, a 22-footer, cut the margin to 65-64. The second, from 20 feet out, won the game.

"I like Mike Jones," said Wichita State Coach Gene Smithson, whose son Randy got 16 points from his point-guard post Friday night.

Kansas Coach Ted Owens said his team should have had one more chance to win it. He claimed his guard, Darnell Valentine, was victim of a flagrant foul as his team tried to get the ball inbounds after Jones' shot.

Valentine finished with 21 points, but missed a layup with 56 seconds left that could have been the margin of victory for Kansas.

Jones said he wasn't supposed to get the final shot after Wichita State had worked 22 seconds off the clock.

"We wanted to go to Randy," he said. "But when they reversed it to me, I knew I had to let it go. I looked forward to taking it."

Carr said he wasn't worried a bit when he saw Jones go up with the ball.

playoff action Friday night in New Orleans. LSU won and will meet Wichita State in the midwest finals today. (AP Laserphoto)

Greene Central Bombs Lenoir

WHEAT SWAMP — Greene Central, sparked by a grand-slam homer in the third inning, rolled to a 15-7 victory over North Lenoir Friday in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

The Rams, after taking a 1-0 lead in the first, powered over six in the third to take the lead for good.

David Shirley opened the third, reaching on a two-base error. Ronnie Tyndall singled and Jesse Freeman walked. Another walk, to Butch Brown, brought in Shirley. Chris Ginn then cracked the grand-slam homer, which was followed, an out later, by a solo blast by Tony Briley for a 7-0 lead.

North Lenoir rallied, thanks to a three-run homer by Maurice Thorbes in the bottom of the third, to close the gap to 7-3, then added three more on a three-run homer by Guy Sanderson in the fourth.

But the Rams picked up three in the fifth, then got five in the sixth, as Al Speight hit a three-run homer, to lead, 15-6. North Lenoir added a single run in the bottom of the seventh.

Ginn led the Ram hitting with three, while Freeman, Shirley and Tony Barrow each had two. Sanderson had two hits to lead North Lenoir.

The Rams are now 4-1 overall and 2-0 in ECC play. North Lenoir falls to 1-2 in the conference and 2-2 overall.

After a Saturday non-conference game with Rose, Greene Central travels to Southern Nash on Tuesday.

Rose Thinclads Roll By Bertie

Rose High School was an easy track victor over Bertie Senior High School Friday. The Rampants finished the day with 113 points, while Bertie got only 28.

Rose, using great depth to help pile up points, lost only one event, the 800-meter run.

During the afternoon, the Rampants had four double winners. Robert Brown won the discus and triple jump. Chris McLawhorn took the long jump and the 400-meter run. Erskine Evans won the 100 and 200-meter dashes, and Calvin Joyner won the two relay event, although he had to share first in the highs with a teammate.

Rose, now 4-0, returns to action on Monday, traveling to Farmville Central.

Rampants Down Fike

WILSON — Rose High School's tennis team gained a 6-3 victory over Wilson Fike Friday.

The win was the third in a row for the Rampants on the young season.

Fike won only two singles matches as Rose took a 4-2 lead, then won two of the three doubles matches to close it out.

The Rampants play host to Wilson Hunt on Tuesday.

built their biggest lead at 81-47 in the closing seconds.

The big gun for Duke was junior guard Vince Taylor, who scored a career-high 25 points, including seven in the final minute of play.

"We were in foul trouble the whole ball game," said Krzyzewski, "so we had to have some alignments out there that we don't like to have but had to have due to foul trouble. But Purdue is a good team and took advantage of those things."

Purdue, the 1974 NIT champion and runnerup to Indiana in 1979, raised its record to 20-10. It marks the third straight year Purdue has won 20 or more games, a first in Boilermaker history. Duke closed its season at 17-13.

Cross, a 6-10 freshman, was hampered by an ankle sprain and scored only two points in the first half. He finished with just two rebounds but blocked five shots.

Krzyzewski said the turning point was "a couple of Cross's blocked shots when we were coming close right at the end. I thought we'd get two or three points, but we came away with nothing."

Keady added, "The fact that Russell didn't practice for three days really hurt his rhythm and conditioning and involvement in the game. In the second half, he started to come around and that made the difference because we had a better inside game."

With Greg Stewart and Paul Pressey scoring 15 points apiece, Tulsa came back from a 12-point first-half deficit to beat South Alabama. Tulsa led 68-62 with 35 seconds left but needed Stewart's free throw with 11 seconds left to hold off the Jaguars.

Stewart's shots made it 69-66. Rory White's layup as time ran out pulled the Jaguars within one.

South Alabama, which ended the year with a 25-6 record, spurred to a 22-10 lead midway through the first half and led 38-29 at halftime.

Pressey keyed Tulsa's comeback and the Hurricane pulled into a 48-48 tie with 13 minutes left.

Tulsa took the lead for good at 60-58 with 6:15 left.

Herb Andrew hit two long shots in the final minute and Ed Rains, scoring leader with 24, hit a layup to pull the Jaguars to within 68-66 with 18 seconds left. That set up the free throw by Stewart.

White had 14 points and Andrew had 11 for South Alabama. Tulsa got 11 points from David Brown and 10 from Phil Spradling.

"I was thinking 'New York' all the way," said Stewart, who's from the city. "I was seeing my father's face."

Stewart said before the tourney began he notified relatives in New York to make plans to attend the NIT semifinals. He said his father had never seen him play college basketball.

In Coach Nolan Richardson's first season, Tulsa has its best record ever at 24-7. Four players from Richardson's national junior college championship team at Western Texas form the nucleus for the Tulsa squad.

Southwest Captures 3-A Girls Crown

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — Two sisters, Alpha and Bridget Jenkins, combined for 57 points Friday night as Southwest Edgecombe edged Mountain Heritage 65-64 and the Rocky Mount school took the 3A high school basketball state title.

Alpha Jenkins, a 6-1 center who is a member of the all-state team, scored 28 points, while Bridget Jenkins led all scorers with 29 tallies.

In leading the Cougars, who finished 31-0 for the year, Alpha led the first half with 16 points before Bridget fired the Cougars in the second half with 21 points.

Southwest Edgecombe led by as many as eight points in the second half. But it was a missed last-second shot by Mountain Heritage that iced the victory for Rocky Mount.

The losing Cougars finished the season with a 24-4 season. They were paced by Sherry Buckner with 17 and Kathy Young with 18.

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — Pam Leake, Diana Brown and Lois Wright combined for 45 points Friday night as Chapel Hill downed Cary, 67-46, to capture the North Carolina girls' 4-A high school basketball championship.

The Tigers raced to a 20-10 first quarter lead and were ahead comfortably at halftime by a 39-18 margin. Cary never made a serious threat after the first 16 minutes of play.

Donna Mullinax scored a game-high 22 points for Cary, while Sandy Martin added 20.

Chapel Hill closed out the year at 24-2, while Cary finished at 23-4.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — James Cook scored 26 points and Kevin Crudup added 16 points as Bunn captured the North Carolina 2-A boys' championship Friday night with a 76-58 trouncing of Bandys.

The Bunn defense kept high-scoring Vernon Odum in check for most of the night. Odum, who averaged 27 points per game during the regular season, was held to 15, including no field goals in the second half.

Bandys held a 14-12 lead after one period, but Bunn scored the first eight points of the second period to start the rout.

Henry Harris added 13 and Scott Denton scored 10 for Bunn, now 26-2.

Bryan Harvey led Bandys with 17 points. The Trojans finish the year at 29-3.

points Friday night as the Warriors claimed a 72-54 high school basketball playoff victory over Tryon and took home the state 1A title.

It was Pantego's 54th straight win over the past two years, their 32nd victory this year.

Pantego trailed most of the first half until with 2:10 left Phillip Brunch hit to make it 30-29. Six Pantego points later the half ended 36-29.

In the second half, the Warriors steadily pulled away, leading by as many as 20 points. Assisting Spruill in the scoring were Bruce Mann with 16 and Brunch with 15. Leading Tryon was Tony Cunningham with 24 points and Sam Miller with 16. Tryon finished the year with a 21-4 record.

Chargers Nip Jaguars, 1-0

FARMVILLE — Terry Locust's one-out single in the top of the 10th inning scored Doug Coley to break a scoreless tie and Ayden-Grifton held on to defeat Farmville Central, 1-0, Friday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

The Chargers, now 3-3 overall and 2-0 in the league, got a superb pitching performance from sophomore Tyrone Gay. Gay, now 2-1, went the distance and struck out 10 and walked four. The Jaguars only hit came in the sixth when Mike Tugwell singled to left.

But it was Locust's single that broke the Chargers' victory. Doug Coley singled to lead off the first and went to second on Chris Strickland's fielder's choice. After an intentional walk to Bernard Coley, Locust singled to left to score Coley with what proved to be the winning run.

In the bottom of the 10th, Gay struck out two and set the Jaguars down in order.

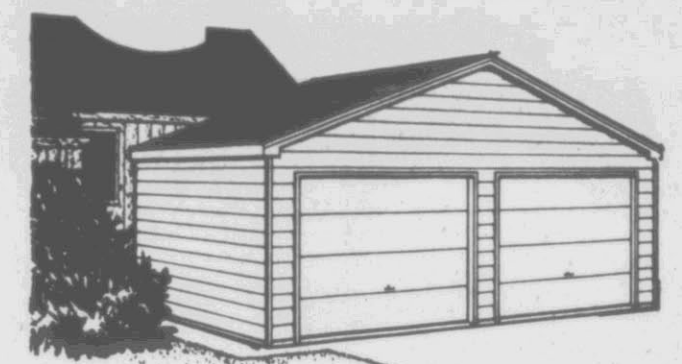

"I'm trying not to pitch Tyrone as much this year and that's the reason he could go 10 today," Ayde-Grifton coach Allan Wilson said. "He hasn't pitched in a week and was strong. Except for the four walks, I couldn't be more pleased."

The Jaguars threatened in the first, getting men on second and third but Gay ended the threat with a strike out.

For Farmville, Bobby Avery also went the distance, striking out nine and walking three. Ayden-Grifton travels to D.H. Conley Tuesday and Farmville Central plays host to Southwest Edgecombe.

Bullets In 11-4 Win

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville's Rex Bell knocked home four runs to lift Jamesville to a 11-4 win over Belhaven Friday afternoon in a Tobacco Belt Conference baseball game.

Jamesville, now 3-2 overall and in the league, jumped on Belhaven early, scoring three runs in the first, one in the second and five in the third and the outcome was never in doubt after that.

"We looked a little more promising," Jamesville coach Ron Davenport said. "Our hitting was better and I didn't think they're pitching was that bad."

The Bullets two losses this season have each come by one run, as the Jamesville bats failed to produce. Such was not the case Friday.

Clarence Thomas led off the first with a walk and stole second. Kevin Waters followed with a single to score Thomas. After a fly out, Greg Sullivan doubled to give the Bullets runners on second and third. Rex Bell then singled to scored Waters and Sullivan to give the Bullets a 3-0 lead.

Belhaven countered with two runs in the top of the second but the Bullets added a run in the bottom of the inning when Ricky Bell walked, stole second and scored when Thomas reached on an error.

It was the third, however, that sealed Belhaven's fate. Carl Ange singled and stole second to lead off the inning and scored on Sullivan's double. Keith Waters reached on an error and Rex Bell then doubled to score two runs.

Jeff Rogers walked and then after two outs Thomas doubled to score two runs to give the Bullets a 9-2 lead.

Belhaven cut the lead to 9-4 with two runs in the fourth but Jamesville countered with two runs in the fifth for the final total.

BEAR GRASS — William Roberson struck out 12 and scattered four hits to lead Bear Grass to a 2-0 victory over Chocowinity Friday afternoon in a Tobacco Belt Conference baseball game.

Roberson, who walked just one, struck out the first five batters he faced before a ground out broke the string. Chocowinity's first hit did not come until the third.

The Bears, now 4-1 overall and in the league, broke a scoreless tie in the fifth with a run and then added another run in the sixth.

Tony Leggett led off the first with a walk and then stole second. He moved to third on Mark Taylor's sacrifice and scored on Walter Bullock's squeeze bunt to give the Bears a 1-0 lead.

In the fifth, Roberson led off with a triple and then scored on Ricky Harrison's sacrifice fly to left field.

The Bears travel to Columbia Tuesday.

St. Joe's, Indiana Advance

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — St. Joseph's finds itself in the familiar role of underdog as it prepares to meet ninth-ranked Indiana in Sunday's title game of the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament, but it's a role it doesn't mind.

"We played all season long as an underdog," said junior guard Jimmy Clark, who combined with guard Bryan Warrick to stop Boston College's John Bagley as the Hawks from Philadelphia advanced with a 42-41 victory. It was Warrick's two free throws with 21 seconds left that lifted the Hawks over Boston College.

"We're used to the role and we don't mind people thinking we're going to get beat," said Warrick, who had 20 points for the 25-7 Hawks. "No one gave us a chance when we played DePaul, the top-ranked team in the nation, but we're here and they're not."

Indiana, 23-9, advanced to the title game with an 87-72 triumph over Alabama-Birmingham in Friday's second game before a highly partisan Assembly Hall crowd of 17,091.

"St. Joseph's has a real tenacity about them," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight. "They scrap well and play a tough zone defense."

That means the Hoosiers will look to Randy Wittman, who scored a career-high 20 points against the Blazers, in the title game. Wittman's outside shooting loosened up the Blazers' zone early, and then guard Isaiah Thomas and center Ray Tolbert went to work.

"I knew they play a zone and like to pack it in, so I was looking for my shot. We had to hit from outside to loosen them up and make our inside game work," said Wittman, who connected on 7 of 11 shots from the field.

"There was a point in the second half when I thought things might slip away from us," said Knight. "We were seven points up and we missed a shot. I told Jimmy Crews (an assistant coach) that we should have been up by 11 and instead they might cut it to three or five. But, then we came back to take control again."

The Hoosiers, seeking their fourth national basketball championship, led 42-37 at halftime. With Tolbert scoring nine straight points, making three dunk shots in the process, the host team took command with a 73-60 lead and only 6:34 remaining.

The Blazers, who finished their third year of basketball at 23-9, pulled to within seven but were forced to foul Thomas and the All-American guard hit eight consecutive free throws enroute to a game-high 27 points.

"I never had the privilege of seeing Isaiah Thomas play," said Birmingham Coach Gene Bartow. "He's a great team leader and an outstanding player."

Thomas, who also had eight assists, gave the praise for the victory to his teammates.

"One player doesn't win a game. You've got to work as a team. You can't be an individual and be a part of a team. It took us a long time to land as a team," Thomas said.

The 6-foot-1 sophomore said the national championship would mean a lot more to him than an individual award such as his selection as an All-American.

"If I wanted to be an individual, I'd go to the YMCA and play by myself," Thomas said. "And that's where I want to be is on a team. You have to make sacrifices as an individual for the good of the team."

The Blazers had plenty of praise for Thomas after the game.

"Isiah is a great guard," said junior guard Oliver Robinson, who finished with 17 points after scoring his team's first nine points. "He's one of the most outstanding players in the nation."

Fouls proved to be a problem for the Blazers, who were charged with 29 and lost three players on personals.

"We felt we could get their inside people in foul trouble and it would open things for us," Knight said.

Knight was also pleased with the role of reserve guard Jim Thomas, who came off the bench to help cool down Robinson.

"We needed a little more quickness against the zone and a little more maneuverability on defense," said Knight about the use of Jim Thomas.

In the first game, the Hawks patiently remained in their zone defense as the Eagles, who finished 23-7 passed the ball around. At one point, the teams played seven minutes without scoring a point.

"We thought about coming out of our zone in the second half, but we had great respect for Bagley man-to-man," said St. Joseph's Coach Jim Lynam, who had Clark and Warrick working against him on the zone most of the night.

"Those two guys did a super job playing him straight up. We wanted to keep him out of the lane,"

Bagley, who had 11 points to lead his team, made only four of 14 shots from the field. His 11 points was more than nine below the 20.7 scoring average he brought into the game.

"This game was a tribute to St. Joe's defense," said Boston College coach Tom Davis. "I guess the only good thing that comes out of a loss like this is that we went down to a team that we respect so much."

Rose High School's girls' softball team claimed its second straight victory over Washington High School yesterday, 7-2.

Rose scored three runs in the bottom of the first inning after giving up a run in the top of the frame. The Rampettes added four more runs in the second for their seven run total. Washington came back with one more in the third.

No one on either team had more than one hit. Rose shortstop Linda Winstead drew praise from coach Delores Bunting for her defensive play.

Rose, now 3-2, travels to Farmville Central on Friday.

WHEAT SWAMP — Greene Central's Netha Lane banged out three hits, including a home run, and drove in four runs to lead the Lady Rams to a 12-7 victory over North Lenoir Friday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference softball game.

The Lady Rams, now 5-1 overall and 2-0 in the league, jumped out to a 2-0 lead after the first inning and increased their advantage to 12-0 with a four-run third and a six-run fourth.

The Lady Hawks, now 4-1 and 1-1, cut the lead to 12-3 with three runs in the bottom of the fourth and added a run in the sixth and three in the seventh but it wasn't enough.

Joining Lane with three hits in four at bats for Greene Central was Cindy Hardison. Cindy Meadows was two for three and Pam Shackelford was two for four.

The Chargers, trailing 3-2 after two innings, exploded for 11 runs in the third inning and rolled the rest of the way, adding seven more runs in the fifth inning.

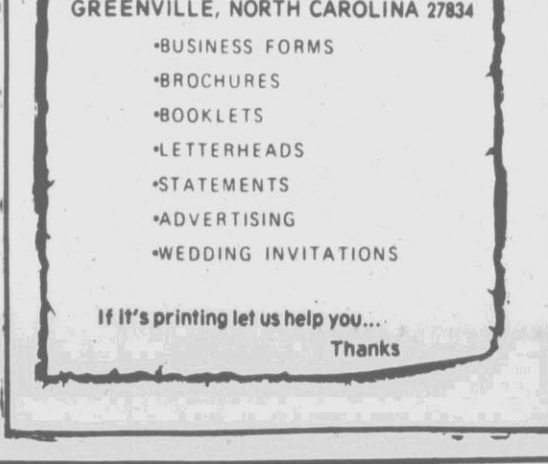

Ann Strong sparked the fifth, hitting a three-run homer.

Delise Black, Lisa Ward, and Linda Brown each had five hits for the Lady Chargers, while Angela Griffin and Strong each had four.

Farmville, now 0-4 overall and 0-3 in the league, was led by Shelia Shoulders and Shirley Gay, each with three hits.

Ayden-Grifton is now 2-0 both overall and against Eastern Carolina Conference play. The Chargers return to action on Tuesday, traveling to Conley. Farmville entertains Southwest Edgecombe on Tuesday.

Two Tar Heels Prepsters Land On Parade All-American Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Pat Ewing, a 7-foot center from Rindge and Latin High School in Cambridge, Mass., was named today for the third time to Parade Magazine's All-America schoolboy basketball team.

Ewing, who already has announced he will attend Georgetown, D.C., University, was the only unanimous selection to the team, which has 40 players from 20 states and the District of Columbia and is chosen by a board of several hundred college coaches, scouts and recruiters.

The only other three-time Parade selectees are six-time National Basketball Association Most Valuable Player Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Earl Jones, now a freshman at District of Columbia University.

The 1980-81 Parade All-America high school boys basketball team, with name, school, city and height:

FIRST TEAM
Pat Ewing, Rindge and Latin, Cambridge, Mass., 7-0; Greg Drelling, Kaplan Mt. Carmel, Wichita, Kan., 7-1; Sam Vincent, Eastern, Lansing, Mich., 6-2; Mike Jordan, Laney, Wilmington, N.C., 6-5; Anthony Jones, Dunbar, Washington, D.C., 6-4; Stuart Gray, Kennedy, Granada Hills, Calif., 7-0; Ennis Whatley, Phillips, Birmingham, Ala., 6-2; Walter Downing, Providence, New Lenox, Ill., 6-9; John Flowers, South Side, Fort Wayne, Ind., 6-10; Manuel Forrest, Moore, Louisville, Ky., 6-7.

For BYU, It Was A Case Of Too Much Sampson

ATLANTA (AP) — It was just a case of too much Ralph Sampson for Brigham Young Saturday as the towering 7-foot-4 Virginia center scored 14 of his game-high 22 points in the second half to power the fifth-ranked Cavaliers to a 74-60 victory over the Cougars in the NCAA East Regional basketball final.

Virginia, 28-3, will meet sixth-ranked North Carolina in a battle of Atlantic Coast Conference giants next Saturday at Philadelphia in the national championship semifinals.

"When Sampson got going, it got very difficult for us," said Coach Frank Arnold of the 16th-ranked Cougars, 25-7. "You can't get behind on Virginia because it makes you dictate certain things you must do on defense. When we were faced with two problems — Sampson and the deficit."

BYU led 31-28 at the half, but a technical foul on the Cougars' All-American Danny Ainge after a Sampson stuff turned into a five-point play when Jeff Lamp converted the technical free throw and Othell Wilson scored for a 39-35 Virginia lead less than five minutes into the second half.

"Once they got the lead and Sampson went to the sky hooks and jumpers, we were in trouble. There ought to be a law against 7-foot-4 guys making 18-footers," Arnold said.

"As far as the technical goes, I think it had to be a turning point because we had the lead before the play," he said.

Virginia Coach Terry Holland credited better defense in the second half and tremendous foul shooting down the stretch for the victory.

The Cavaliers outscored BYU 46-29 in the second half and converted 22 of 27 free throws after getting only one attempt in the first half and missing that.

"Obviously it was a tremendous team effort. All five of our starters played well and so did our guys coming off the bench," Holland said.

"One of the keys during the whole tournament has been our play in the second half. We've come from behind and played excellent basketball in all three of our tournament games," he said.

Lamp, who scored 18 points and was named the tournament's most valuable player, was joined on the all-tournament team by Sampson, teammate Lee Raker, Ainge and Notre Dame's Orlando Woolridge.

Lamp, who scored 14 of his points in the opening half to keep Virginia close, managed only free throws in the second half.

He said the reason he didn't score more in the second half was because BYU went to a man-to-man defense which allowed Virginia to get the ball inside to Sampson more often.

"I was glad to see them go man-to-man," Sampson said. "I had a few bad shots in the first half. I was a little nervous, but I loosened up in the second half and got ready to go."

Arnold said he felt the best team was going to the Final Four. "Sampson is a great player but they have so many other good players and that's why they are a great team," he said.

Cavs Advance...

Ainge led BYU with 13 points.

Three other Virginia players scored in double figures — Raker with 12 and Wilson and Jeff Jones with 10 apiece.

BYU got 12 points each from Fred Roberts and Steve Craig, both of whom fouled out in the closing minutes, and 11 from Steve Trumbo.

North Carolina defeated Kansas State 82-68 earlier in the day in the West Regional title game to set up its third clash with the Cavaliers this season. Virginia won both other meetings, 63-57 at home and 80-79 at Carolina.

The Cavaliers, who trailed 31-28 at halftime, held Ainge to only two free throws in the second half, and Roberts got only four points in the final half. The two BYU stars were averaging 44 points per game between them.

Virginia held a 58-46 lead with just under five minutes remaining and then converted 14 consecutive free throws down the stretch, including six by Wilson, to win handily.

Sampson, who hit nine of 16 floor shots — including a pair of hooks — was the game's leading rebounder with 12, and he also had four blocked shots.

His defensive intimidation helped Virginia hold BYU to only 45 percent shooting from UNC Wins...

(Continued from page B-1) Matt Doherty, who also scored 16 points for the Tar Heels, hit a follow-up, Wood sank a long jumper and then, with 44 seconds left in the half, Perkins sneaked inside for a stuff and turned it into a three-point play, giving the Tar Heels a commanding 42-29 halftime lead.

With Nealy in foul trouble, Kansas State's inside game was virtually neutralized and the taller Tar Heels dominated the rebounding, usually allowing the Wildcats only one shot.

James Worthy finished with 15 points for North Carolina, helping Coach Dean Smith raise his record in NCAA regional championship games to 6-0.

North Carolina used a confusing mixture of defenses, switching from zone to man-to-man, throughout much of the game. Most significantly, the Tar Heels were able to get the ball inside to Perkins, Wood and Worthy through Kansas State's 3-2 zone defense.

Mat Lessons Are Offered

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department is offering amateur wrestling lessons for boys six to 12 years of age beginning March 25.

Classes are scheduled for each Wednesday at the Elm Street Center from 7 to 8 p.m. This is a ten-week class and costs $11.

There must be a minimum of 10 boys in the class for it to be held. Pre-registration is required and has been extended to Tuesday, March 24, at 5 p.m.

For more information, call 752-4137, ext. 220 or 248.

Chocwinity Wins Girls' Crown; Rocky Mt. Falls

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — Vivian Myers and Barbara Green combined for 68 points Saturday night to lead Chocwinity to a 86-64 victory over Hiwassee Dam to capture the state 1-A girls championship.

In the boys 4-A finals, Chapel Hill defeated Rocky Mount, 57-54.

Chocwinity led for the entire contest, and held a 44-33 halftime lead.

For Hiwassee Dam, Janie Simonds scored 33 points while Leslie Graham added 16.

Chocwinity ends its season undefeated in 29 games, while Hiwassee closes out the season at 26-5.

Road Race Saturday

The Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Greenville, the Coastal Carolina Track Club and the Eastern-Seal Society will sponsor the Coca-Cola 10-kilometer Run on Saturday, March 28. The event was formerly known as the Greenville Road Race.

Defending champions Bill Miller and Sandy Wozny are both expected to be in the field for the event.

The race will start at 9:30 a.m. at the corner of Reade and Second Streets. A one-mile fun run will start at 9 a.m. at the same spot.

Pre-registrations have already closed, but late registration will be open until 9 a.m. on race day, at $6 per participant. Registration for the fun run will be accepted until 8:45 a.m. on race day at $1 per runner. Pre-registered racers may pick up their race packets on Friday from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Memorial Gymnasium on the East Carolina campus. They will also be available at the start-finish line.

Age group awards will be presented in the following categories, by sex, 19 and under, 20-29, 30-34, 34-39, 40-44, 45-49, and 50 and over.

Eagles Set Schedule

KINSTON — The Kinston Eagles will play 70 Carolina League games in Grainger Stadium this year, along with a pre-season exhibition with Louisburg College on Thursday, April 9.

The addition of Hagerstown, Md., to the league, replacing Rocky Mount brought about a realignment of the league for 1981, with divisions and affiliations as follows:

• Southern Division — Kinston Eagles (Toronto); Winston-Salem Red Sox (Boston); Durham Bulls (Atlanta); Peninsula Pilots (Philadelphia).

• Northern Division — Alexandria Dukes (Pittsburgh); Salem Redbirds (San Diego); Lynchburg Mets (NY Mets); Hagerstown Suns (Baltimore/Seattle).

The Eagle home schedule:
 April 9 Louisburg (exhibition); 10, 11, 12, 13 Alexandria; 14, 15, 16 Hagerstown; 20, 21, 22, 23 Winston-Salem; 24, 25, 26 Lynchburg.
 May 4, 5, 6, 7 Durham; 8, 9, 10 Salem; 18, 19, 20, 21 Peninsula; 25, 26, 27, 28 Hagerstown; 29, 30, 31 Alexandria.
 June 9, 10, 11 Winston-Salem; 12, 13, 14, 15 Lynchburg; 22, 23, 24 Durham; 25, 26, 27, 28 Salem.
 July 8, 9, 10 Peninsula; 18, 19, 20 Alexandria; 27, 28, 29 Winston-Salem; 30, 31 Lynchburg.
 August 1 Lynchburg; 10, 11, 12 Durham; 13, 14, 15 Salem; 22, 23, 24 Peninsula; 29, 30, 31 Hagerstown.
 Carolina League playoffs start September 1.

Little League Sets Meeting

An organizational meeting for the 1981 Little League Baseball season will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Recreation Building's Auditorium at Jaycee Park.

All officers, managers, coaches, and helpers are expected to attend.

The league is also seeking managers and coaches. Anyone interested is asked to attend.

All others interested in Little League baseball are also urged to attend.

Lawmakers Urge Delay For Bags

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two ranking members of the House Energy and Commerce Committee are urging the Reagan administration to delay for two years a federal regulation requiring air bags or automatic seat belts in new cars, starting with the 1982 models.

Committee Chairman John D. Dingell, D-Mich., and Rep. James T. Broyhill, R-N.C., the panel's ranking Republican, have called on Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis to amend the regulation to require compliance for "all passenger cars of all sizes" in 1984.

The rule now in effect requires air bags or automatic seat belts for 1982 models of all full-size cars. The requirement would be applied to mid-size cars a year later, and small cars would be covered when the 1984 models go on sale.

In a letter to Lewis, Dingell and Broyhill said they are seeking the two-year delay "for competitive, economic, safety and other reasons."

Citing "the current and projected substantial downturn and financial losses by the automotive industry," Dingell and Broyhill said the phased-in regulations "would exacerbate competition and financial problems current for the automotive industry and, most importantly, the people who work for the auto manufacturers and related suppliers."

Supporters of the requirement claim that air bags would save the lives of 9,000 crash victims a year and prevent an estimated 65,000 serious injuries.

Doctor, Visitor Are Killed In Emergency Room

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A man police described as "on drugs or a mental case," opened fire in a hospital emergency room with a 12-gauge shotgun, killing a doctor and a woman visitor, before evading two policemen and escaping. He remained at large, and a mystery, Saturday.

"He just walked in and started shooting," said Detective Al June of the shootings late Friday. "It's kind of off in left field."

The identity of the gunman, described as about 6-feet tall and wearing a denim shirt and a down vest, was not known, police said. He was being sought Saturday by police, and an alert was issued for large parts of Missouri and Kansas.

Police said they had few leads. They said they found a few shotgun shell casings at the hospital, but they provided little help. They said they knew of no motive for the shootings, which occurred at the University of Kansas Medical Center.

The hospital stepped up its security after the attacks.

Police said Ruth Rybolt, 54, and Dr. Marc Beck, 25, both of Kansas City, Kan., were killed immediately when they were hit by single blasts from the shotgun at about 10 p.m.

Beck, a second-year resident physician formerly of Omaha, Neb., was working a 24-hour shift and had been on duty since 7:30 a.m.

He treated Mrs. Rybolt's mother and then walked into an ambulance entrance hall where Mrs. Rybolt was waiting with her sister, said hospital spokeswoman Susan Shipley.

The gunman then entered and began shooting at random, police said. The first shot hit Beck in the left chest. Mrs. Rybolt jumped up and was trying to flee when she was struck in the chest by a second blast, police said.

Two policemen, Mike Whitfield and Terry

Mast, had brought in an injured person and were at the nurses' station filling out reports when they shots began. They turned and the assailant fired a third blast over Mast's head. Mast returned fire with his revolver but missed, police said.

The assailant ran out and paused to fire another shot that shattered the glass doors before fleeing. Officials cordoned off the hospital area and conducted a room-to-room search of the hospital complex, but found nothing.

Adopt-A-Pet

The Adopt-a-Pet of the Week is this black and brown male puppy, about 10 weeks old. He's friendly and loves children and other dogs. 756-6346.

Also being sought homes by the Pitt County Humane Society are the following:

— A male long-haired declawed orange tabby cat, one and one-half years old. 752-3995.

— A four-month-old male black and white cat. 756-8278.

— A female mixed German shepherd, tan-colored. Also male four-year-old black and white mixed collie. Both may be seen at Bateman's Animal Clinic.

— A neutered male black and white one-and one-half-year-old cat. Has all shots. 746-6459.

— A gray rabbit. 746-3557.

— A six-week-old male puppy, black and tan. Had all shots. 756-4767.

— Three puppies four weeks old, already eating. Mother injured. Need homes. Will be medium-sized.

To place an animal for adoption through this column, published free of charge each Sunday, call Elizabeth Savage, 756-4867; Barbara Haddock, 752-9922; or Carol Tyer or Mary Schulken, 752-6166.

Music Group At Festival

GRIFTON — A group of musicians from Jacksonville, "The Carousels" have been selected to play at the Grifton Shad Festival Street Dance, scheduled for April 4.

"The Carousels" play all types of music, including country-western, beach, rock-n-roll and top 40. They have recorded "Atlantic Beach Summer" and "Cheating Games" and are well-known in the Myrtle Beach, S.C. area.

The group will also participate in the Saturday parade.

Tour Group In Russia

Countries Differ, People Much The Same

Arriving at the Moscow Airport during a blizzard almost convinced Joni Buck of Greenville to return home on the next flight.

The group of students from St. Andrews College, Laurinburg, left New York City at night and arrived there at night.

The college offers a regular fall and spring semester. The month of January is set aside as a winter term during which time all students concentrate on one course. Students may choose from a variety of on-campus courses as well as cross-cultural experiences in the United States or other countries.

Joni participated in "Arts and Society in the USSR." The purpose of the trip was, in a short time, to learn as much as possible about the people and their lifestyle.

The tour group from St. Andrews consisted of 14 students and a college professor. "We were in the Soviet Union for approximately three weeks," Joni said. "Arrangements were made through the Soviet government and Tennessee travel firm, entailing almost a year of planning. We flew directly to Moscow from Helsinki, Finland. Our in-tourist guide, who remained with us throughout our stay, met us at the airport. We were in Moscow about a week and then took a 13-hour train ride to Kiev, located in the southern Ukraine. We were there five days and then flew up to Leningrad, where we spent the rest of our trip.

"The restrictions placed on us by the Soviet government were not unreasonable. We were asked to submit a list of books we wished to take into the country for personal use. We could take Bibles, etc.

but could not distribute them. We were also given a list of things which could not be photographed. These included military objects and installations, anyone in uniform, seaports, airports, train stations, bridges, tunnels, radio stations and similar structures. Pictures taken from planes were also forbidden and no pictures were allowed inside the Kremlin or most of the museums. In general, we were allowed to move freely about the city. I never felt 'guarded' and we were often given free time to wander about the cities on our own to shop, browse and take pictures. We were usually given the option of meeting at a pre-determined place or finding our own way back to the hotel by bus, trolley or metro. One final restriction was that we could not take Russian money out of the country. A few coins were permitted, but no paper money," said Joni.

"Russia is awesome in that everything is done on such a large scale. Moscow and its outskirts alone have a population of 30 million. Going from Greenville to any city of that size can be overwhelming. One surprising aspect of Moscow was that there are absolutely no houses; everyone lives in similar 'flats.' There are also no buildings over 12 stories tall and all over Russia there is the contrast of new and old. It is not unusual to find a new apartment building beside a 14th century cathedral. Some of the historical buildings I found especially fascinating were the Kremlin, St. Basil's Cathedral in Moscow and the Winter Palace in Leningrad. Each of these buildings is beautifully decorated with gold, paintings and mosaics."

"I was a bit apprehensive about how we as Americans would be treated by the Soviet people. There was no way we could be anything but foreign, as our jeans and bright jackets stood out like beacons in a sea of greys, browns and blacks. The people we met on the street looked at us with curiosity but were extremely courteous and willing to help when we were lost or trying to buy something. I never once felt any resentment or animosity from someone when they found out I was an 'Amerikanski.' The Soviet lifestyle is vastly different from ours. It is much simpler and lacks many of the luxuries we have come to call necessities."

"Clothing, fresh vegetables, fruits of any kind and foreign goods are extremely scarce and expensive. A common sight on any city street is the lines. There are lines in every store for almost any product and consumer supplies are erratic and often poor in quality. As a result, the black market is booming. Everyone in our group was approached numerous times with requests to exchange money, sell jeans and/or trade American items for Russian goods," she recalled.

"Few people we met complained about the lines or the supplies, for this is the Russian norm and most have no other system to compare it to. For those who lived through the Russian revolution or World War II, conditions are better than they have ever known and they consider themselves fortunate. They also feel that the Soviet government has done a great deal to improve their lifestyle.

"Our trips were oriented toward the fine arts and we were fortunate to be able to see a variety of performances and museums including the Bolshoi Ballet, the Moscow Circus, the Bolshoi Opera, the Kirov Ballet Company and the Leningrad Symphony. We also visited the site of the Babbiyar Concentration Camp outside Kiev, which was a sobering experience. When the Germans took Kiev in 1941, 900,000 people lived in Kiev. Approximately 720,000 were murdered at Babbiyar. It was this aspect of Russia that helped us understand the Soviet determination not to be invaded again. It also made home a lot more attractive," she added.

"We were fortunate to be allowed to meet with students and university professors from various disciplines. I was especially lucky to be given an unauthorized tour of the journalism and broadcasting facilities at Moscow University. In all of our meetings, we were free to ask questions on any subject. In most instances, we received frank answers."

"I feel extremely fortunate to have had an opportunity to visit a Soviet country at this particular time. Recent world events have made future travel between American and Soviet countries uncertain. I learned a great deal from the experience and would gladly visit there again, if given the chance, though I would never want to live there. The political and economic differences between the U. S. and USSR are great, but the people are much the same."

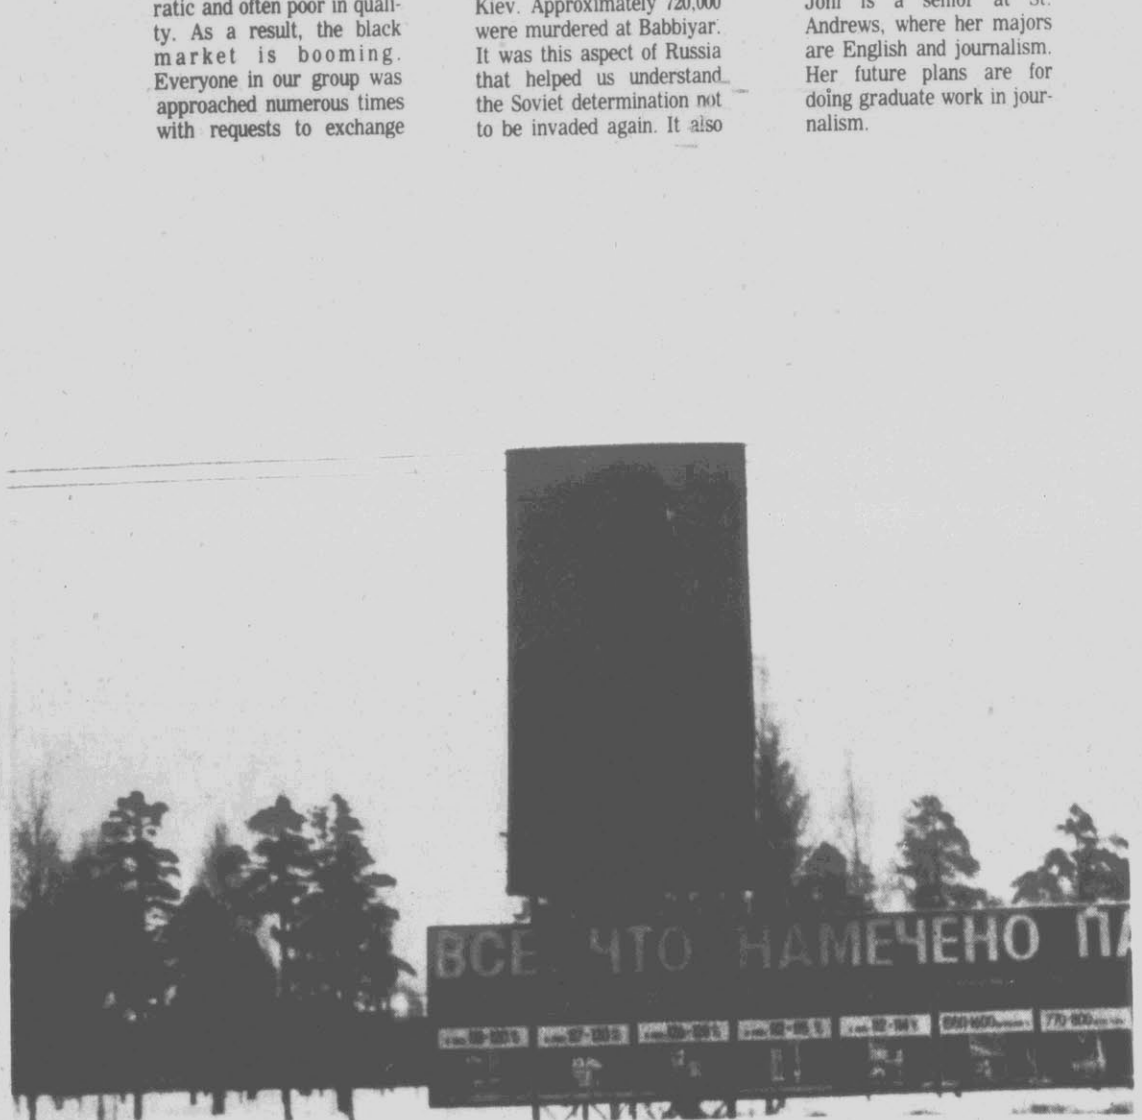

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah J. Buck of Greenville, Joni is a senior at St. Andrews, where her majors are English and journalism. Her future plans are for doing graduate work in journalism.

MRS. LYNN THOMAS PAYNE

Wedding Vows Said Saturday

RALEIGH — Laura Jayne Steigerwald and Lynn Thomas Payne were married Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church here. Father James Labosky performed the ceremony.

A program of wedding music was presented by Frank Vandensynden, organist, and Mrs. Andrea Parrish, flutist.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Steigerwald of Raleigh, the bride was given in marriage by her parents. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Payne also of Raleigh.

Cindy Steigerwald, sister of the bride, was honor attendant and bridesmaids included another sister, Denise Steigerwald, Josette Baffaro and Joan Payne, sister of the bridegroom, all of Raleigh.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers included Robert and Dean Payne, brothers of the bridegroom, Craig Steigerwald, brother of the bride, Le Kenan, all of Raleigh, and Tony Turner of Greenville. The ring bearer was John Payne III of Raleigh, nephew of the bridegroom.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown which was styled in traditional candlelight satin. The gown was fashioned full length and had a sweetheart bodice of alencon lace. Her fingertip veil was attached to a alencon lace seeded pearl cap and she carried a bouquet of silk mauve, burgundy and white flowers.

The attendants each wore a floor length mauve qiana dress styled with long sleeves of lace. They carried a silk bouquet of mauve, burgundy and colonial blue colored flowers.

The couple will be living in Raleigh after a Florida wedding trip.

The bride received B.S. and M.S. degrees in child development and family relations from East Carolina University. The bridegroom received a B.S. in industrial technology from ECU.

A reception was held at the North Hills Club after the wedding ceremony.

Miss Manzer Saad Is Bride Of E. F. Rowe

The wedding ceremony of Manzer Ann Saad and Edgar Lafayette Rowe Jr. was solemnized in St. Peter's Catholic Church Saturday afternoon at four o'clock.

Father Paul Byron performed the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Hattie Pignani, organist. Mrs. Jo Lewis presented a program of harp music before the ceremony.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Saad Sr. of Greenville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of ivory English net and re-embroidered alencon lace with pearls and iridescents over satin designed by Priscilla of Boston. Her gown was fashioned with a Victorian neckline with a sheer yoke enhanced with designs of bridal pearls, empire bodice and fitted long sleeves. Appliques of re-embroidered alencon lace accented with motifs of pearls and iridescents adorned the neckline, bodice and sleeves. The A-line skirt was trimmed with designs of re-embroidered alencon lace, pearls and iridescents and flowed into a chapel train highlighted with scattered appliques of lace, bordered with scalloped re-embroidered alencon lace. She wore an ivory chapel mantilla of imported silk illusion edged with scalloped re-embroidered alencon lace and double rows of scalloped bridal pearls which fell from a half hat of satin, re-embroidered alencon lace adorned with pearls, also designed by Priscilla of Boston. The bride carried a formal cascade of dusty rose European lilies, white butterfly roses and flock gypsophilia with ivy entwined.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lafayette Rowe Sr. of Richmond, Va. The father of the bridegroom was best man.

Lisa Poore of Washington, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and matron of honor was Lyla Hubbard Washburn of Rocky Mount. Bridesmaids included Janet Mills Joyner of Greenville, Valerie Buckshy Jones of Rahway, N. J., Marie Millan and Charlotte Millan Egert of Norfolk, Va., and Beth Mills Dunn of Chocowinity, cousins of the bride, Nancy and Betty Rowe and Ann Rowe Snell of Richmond, Va., sisters of the bridegroom. Erin Beebe of Greenville was flower girl and Brad Joyner of Greenville was ring bearer. Ushers included Michael Spangler, Clark Robins, Michael Lucas, William McCarthy and Tom Atkinson, cousin of the bridegroom, all of Richmond, Va., George Jones of Huntington, W. Va., Joseph Saad Jr. of Greensboro and Jimmy Saad of Greenville, brothers of the bride, Ted Kapel of Fayetteville, Theo Nassar of Manchester, N. H., cousin of the bride.

Honorary bridesmaids included Barbara Boyd Hart and Tammy Cayton Jones of Greenville, cousin of the bride, Kathy Harris Wiggins of Wilson, Mary Kay Cunningham of Richmond, Va., and Ann Tessier of Charlottesville, Va.

The attendants each wore a formal gown of dusty rose giana styled with a V-crystal pleated empire bodice and full A-line skirt. A cape with a round neckline and three-quarter length sleeves accented the gown. Each carried a bouquet of cascading European lilies, misty pink carnations, orchid majestic daisies and flock gypsophilia. They wore baby's breath in their hair. The flower girl carried an ivory wicker basket of dusty rose petals trimmed with silk ribbon streamers.

The mother of the bride wore a formal ensemble of apricot giana and the mother of the bridegroom wore a peach floral gown with a matching cape. Each were remembered with white cattleya orchids. Grandmothers were remembered with corsages of white cymbidium orchids.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. George Hodgkin of Goldsboro.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride is owner and manager of Xtra Special, Greenville, and the bridegroom is associated with Jack H. Moye Scale Co.

A reception was held at the Greenville Moose Lodge after the ceremony. Guests were entertained by an assortment of American and Lebanese traditions in food, and music was provided by the Contrast Dance Band.

Parents of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal party for the wedding party and out-of-town guests at the Holiday Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. George Saad honored the bridal couple, members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a brunch Saturday morning at their home.

MRS. WAYNE ERVIN ELKS

Miss McLawhorn Speaks Vows

Patricia Rose McLawhorn and Wayne Ervin Elks, both of Greenville, were united in marriage Friday evening. The candlelight ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry L. McLawhorn, by the Rev. Willis Wilson.

The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sam E. Elks.

The bride wore a formal gown of antique white batiste voile over taffeta fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in Venise lace that extended over the empire bodice to the waistline which was accented with a rolled tie laced closure. The long full sleeves featured pearl buttons at the fitted cuffs. An inset band centered with lace was featured at the waistline from which tie sashes extended to the back. The skirt featured tiers of gathered flounces trimmed with white satin ribbon. She wore a tiara of white and lavender violets accented with streamers of white satin ribbon and carried a bouquet of violets and baby's breath accented with white satin ribbon streamers.

The couple will be living in Greenville after a wedding trip to the Outer Banks.

The bridal couple both graduated from J. H. Rose High School. She is employed by East Carolina University, Computing and Information Systems and he works at Brown Wood, Inc.

A reception was held following the ceremony.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Robert Vernon Cobb of Rocky Mount announces the engagement of her daughter, Robbie Leigh, to Joseph Denny Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hassel Denny Allen of Rt. 1, Bethel. The wedding will take place June 27. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Mr. Cobb.

SUNNY OUTLOOK
WASHINGTON (AP) — Several million homes will be using solar energy in the next two decades, according to a prediction by the U.S. Department of Energy.

At present there are more than 40,000 solar homes in the United States.

While many Americans believe solar heating is comparatively new, passive solar-heated homes have existed since the Neolithic era, when the rock of man's early cave homes absorbed the sun's energy during the day and released it at night to warm his dwelling, says the Solar Energy Research Institute.

Also, the ancient Greeks relied on more sophisticated means of solar energy to heat their homes, while Rome's early emperors enjoyed the comforts of solar-heated baths.

Engagements Announced

GAIL C. MOLIC . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Molic of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Larry Cobb Nickens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell C. Nickens of Lumberton. A May 30 wedding is being planned.

BECKY MARIE ALLEN . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Allen Sr. of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Obie Devon Godley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Obie Lee Godley of Greenville. A May 24 wedding is being planned.

One of the most-often-asked questions I get from readers is, "How many children do you REALLY have?"

The answer is six.

I have the three "at home children." They're the ones who give me varicose veins of the neck from shouting. "Sit up straight! Say thank you! Clean up your plate. Get your feet off the furniture. Don't slam that door! Turn off the lights. Go to bed. Don't talk with food in your mouth. Get off the phone. Use your napkin. Tie your shoes. Wash your hands. Pay attention! I'm only saying this once."

Then there are the three "away from home" children people tell me about, who clear their own dishes away from the table, hold the door open for them, run errands, compliment them on their brownies, help them carry the groceries in from the car and devour vegetables they never touch at home.

The first time I heard of this phenomenon, I refused to believe it. My son had gone to spend the weekend at his friend's house. There was no doubt in my mind they would send him home by 10 in the evening, convinced he was sired by a tornado and raised by werewolves.

Morning came and still there was no frantic phone call. Around noon, a joyous voice came over the phone begging me to let my son stay through dinner.

"Who is this?" I shouted. "Is this some kind of a sick joke?"

She said my son was not only a pearl to have around and talk with, but he set a spiritual example for her son by washing out the tub, hanging up his towels, making his bed, and at this very moment was cutting the grass.

"Describe this child," I ordered.

"He's seven years old, has blond hair, a wonderful smile, and impeccable table manners."

"Put him on the phone," I said suspiciously.

The next sound I heard was one large surly whine. "Whadya want? I suppose you want me to rush home and clean my room or get your glasses for you and be your slave!"

It was him all right.

Only other mothers understand this phenomenon. The child who chews other people's gum out of an ashtray at home, but returns a spoon that has dropped on the floor to the cafeteria cook. The child who throws up eating coconut at home, but raves about Mrs. Miller's at Scout meeting. The kid who is so sick at home he cannot come to the table for his food, but becomes hysterical laughing at the doctor's riddle in the office.

A teenager visited our home last week and when he met me said, "Didn't I see you on the cover of Glamour magazine last week?"

Why call his mother? It would only depress her.

PAMELA JANE CAYTON . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Cayton of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Aubrey Scott Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Scott Dixon of Rt. 1, Grimesland. The wedding will take place May 23.

Miss Carter, Mr. Allen Speaks Wedding Vows

The wedding ceremony of Audrey Elaine Carter and Robert Melton Allen took place Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in the First Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The Rev. Frank Gentry conducted the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Daneel LeRoux, organist, and Mrs. Mahlon Pearce, who sang "I Can't Help Falling In Love With You," "If" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Jones Carter of Rt. 2, Winterville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jean O. Allen of Farmville and Mr. Thomas Ray Allen of Rt. 4, Greenville.

Escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in white silk floral Venice lace beaded with pearls. The beaded lace continued over the empire bodice and encircled the waistline. The full sheer bishop sleeves were trimmed at the cuffs with floral lace. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were accented by a ruffled flounce at the hemline edged in miniature Venice lace and topped by a row of floral lace. Appliques of silk Venice lace extended down the length of the sleeves and enhanced the front of the gown in a cameo design. She wore a fingertip length veil of illusion bordered in scalloped silk floral Venice lace attached to a Juliet cap overlaid in matching lace beaded with pearls. The bride carried a cascade of pink, lavender and white silk roses interspersed with daisies and violets.

The honor attendant was Kathy Carter of Rt. 2, Winterville, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Kathy Barefoot, Mrs. Debbie Bennett, Mrs. Debbie Hadcock and Miss Vickie Riggs, cousin of the bride, all of Greenville. Karen Cochran of Englewood, Tenn., cousin of the bride, was miniature bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers were Montgomery Hugh Carter of Winterville, brother of the bride, Claud L. Dunn of Smithfield and John R. Owens Jr. of Mebane, uncles of the bridegroom, and John R. Owens III of Mebane, cousin of the bridegroom. The miniature bridegroom was Eric Wilson, cousin of the bride.

The honor attendant was dressed in a formal gown of chiffon print in shades of orchid, pink, rose and green designed with an asymmetrical neckline, miniature rolled shoulder straps accented by a panel of chiffon print across the bodice. She carried a lace and satin fan adorned with orchid and pink silk flowers and wore a matching headpiece.

The attendants wore formal gowns of lilac chiffon designed with an open draped cowl neckline, blouson bodice with short split sleeves. The waistline was encircled with a lilac satin tie sash from which fell the modified A-line skirt featuring a flared peplum flounce. Each carried a fan identical to that of the maid of honor.

The miniature bride wore a full length dress of white chiffon stymed similar to the bride's gown. She wore a fingertip veil of white bridal illusion and carried a basket of orchid and pink silk flowers.

The mother of the bride wore a formal rose gown fashioned with a cameo neckline with a rose corsage. Mrs. Allen chose a formal sea green gown fashioned with a V-neckline. She wore a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Mary M. Allen of Greenville, grandmother of the bridegroom, was given a corsage of pink carnations.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Floyd T. Barefoot of Greenville.

Widow Needs To Advance Not Retreat

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have been widowed less than two years. Many friends and relatives said at the funeral, "Call me if you need anything." And, "Come and stay with me sometime." I thought they were so kind. However, as time passed, no one has reached out to me. A few have kept in touch by phone or mail.

Doctors advise, "Get out more, get involved in activities — keep on the go!"

I did and made a few new friends, but those friendships didn't last. It's not easy to keep on the go. I was formerly a homebody, and basically still am. But I love people, and socializing helps me more than counseling or medicine.

The grief and loneliness of being left alone make us hunger for something we can hardly define. And what's left of our tattered garment of pride, we wrap closer around ourselves, remain silent and withdraw even more.

Abby, please remind your readers again to reach out to those of us who live alone — especially the elderly. Too soon we, too, will be gone, but their neglect only hastens the day.

ALONE AND LONELY

DEAR ALONE: Your letter will surely remind many to be more considerate of those neglected folks who live alone. But please reconsider the advice of doctors who urge lonely people to "Get out more, get involved, and keep on the go!"

It's time to retire that "tattered garment of pride." You can combat your own loneliness and depression by reaching out to others (men or women) who are also hungry for company. Try it. It really works.

DEAR ABBY: A gay friend of ours has announced his intention to marry. In speaking with his intended bride, it is obvious that she is unaware of her fiancé's homosexuality.

Should my husband or I discuss this with the gay groom? Or do you advise us to inform the unsuspecting bride?

FRIEND OF BOTH

DEAR FRIEND: A homosexual is not likely to marry. In all probability, your friend is not "gay," he is bisexual, in which case he is able to function equally well with both sexes.

Many bisexuals choose to go the heterosexual route, so since your friend has obviously made this choice, to discuss it with him would be presumptuous, and to discuss it with the bride would be meddling. Back off.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband. We have three lively, mischievous children, ages 10, 7 and 5, whom my husband refuses to discipline. That's my job! The only time he will do any correcting is if I'm not home. I work 40 hours a week and I'm tired when I get home. When the kids fight among themselves, I yell at them, then my husband gets mad at me for yelling at them.

Now he tells me he can't stand my yelling at the kids all the time, and if I don't quit it, he is going to move out of the house.

I love him and want him to be happy, but I'm torn between disciplining the kids and trying to keep my husband home. Please help me.

NERVOUS WRECK

DEAR WRECK: Your method of disciplining the kids isn't working, or you wouldn't be yelling all the time. Try another technique. When they fight, separate them until they get good and lonesome for each other. (Don't worry, they will.) And keep them apart until they learn to get along better. Time is in your favor. The older they get, the smarter they get.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old single female engineer working in an oil field. I've worked for the same company for four years and am making a very good living.

When I was new in this business, and insecure in my position, I was pressured, or you might say, "sexually harassed," by a fellow engineer who was much older than I, married, and in a position to do me a lot of good (and harm) in the company. He got me alone several times and I had no choice except to comply with his wishes, so I did. I never told anyone. Fortunately, after a while he stopped bothering me.

Now I am involved with another engineer who recently joined the company. He is more my age, single, and I am really in love with him. We haven't advertised the fact that we're seeing each other because we figure the less talk, the better.

My problem is that the older engineer has sort of taken the younger one under his wing, and they have become very friendly. I am worried sick that the older engineer will tell the younger one about what went on between us.

So far I haven't said anything, and I don't plan to, but I wonder if that is wise. Should I keep quiet and hope he doesn't find out? Or should I tell him myself and hope it won't make any difference?

NOT OK IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR NOT OK: What was, was. If the younger engineer confronts you about the older one, don't lie. But for now, save your confessions for the confessional.

DEAR ABBY: I went to a shower for an acquaintance. The hostess was a lady I had met only once before. We played a game and I won a darling stuffed animal. I was delighted, and planned to give it to my youngest child.

In the hustle and bustle of leaving, I left my prize behind. The next day when I went to pick it up, the hostess told me that she had given it to the guest of honor. She said it was customary that all prizes be turned over to the honored guest! She said she assumed that my leaving my prize behind meant that I wanted her to have it.

I thought this was rather presumptuous and felt quite annoyed that she didn't leave that decision to me. Am I wrong for feeling that way? And are prizes won at a party traditionally turned over to the guest of honor?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Some prize-winners do give their prizes to the guest of honor, but it is not traditional. Your hostess should not have assumed that because you left the toy behind she had the right to dispose of it.

OAT TOPPING

Repeated by request, this recipe is from pre-granola days.

4 cups quick-cooking oats
1 cup firmly packed light or dark brown sugar
2-3rds cup butter, melted

With a fork stir together the oats and sugar; add the butter and mix well. Turn into a 15 by 10 by 1-inch jellyroll pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven, stirring several times, for 10 minutes. Cool about 15 minutes; toss with a fork to break into crumblelike form. Store in a tightly covered jar in refrigerator. Makes 5 cups.

On The Young Side

The Rose High Gym will soon be converted into Dogpatch, U.S.A. when Rose drama enthusiasts present "L'il Abner" May 1-3. The musical, which will be directed by Mrs. Betty Topper, is based on Al Capp's long-running comic strip by the same name.

The play will include such popular characters as Abner, Daisy Mae and Mammy and Pappy Yokum.

After a week of auditions, the cast and crew have been chosen with Stuart Ward and Karen Wheeler in the lead roles. Other students chosen include Jasper Dixon, Kim Lingerfelt, Chip Little, Johnny Jackson, Shaun Wallace, Alison Keel, Mike Thurber, Jeff Jones, Brian Berryman, Tim Shank and Anne Halevy. Michelle Kinley will serve as stage manager with Phillip Colcord assisting.

The Health Occupation Students of America sponsored their District I Congress yesterday at Rose. Participating in the day's events were high schools from Edenton, Elizabeth City, Bertie, Ahoskie and Plymouth. Students entered contests in the categories of medical terminology spelling, informative speech, job interview, job application, activity book and poster contests. Winners of these contests will compete at the state convention in May to be held in Raleigh.

Candidates for next year's president were also screened at the congress. Tammy Barrown, a senior at Rose, currently serves as president. Mrs. Dorothy Sugg serves as coordinator of District I.

The Eastern Region Honors Orchestra consisting of high school musicians from the eastern part of the state assembled at ACC, Wilson, earlier this month. The orchestra was conducted by Jackson Parkhurst, the assistant conductor and director of education for the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra.

The honors orchestra practiced Friday and Saturday and performed in concert Saturday night.

Participating from Rose were Heather O'Neal, chello, Bill Kittrell, viola, Hih Song Kim, Mary Dixon, Carol Moore, violin, Jim Bearden, clarinet and Tim Shank, bass.

Two Rose students have received recognition in a recently held Distributive Education Clubs of American competition. Teresa Brown won a proficiency award in the general merchandise contest. Lisa Sheppard was first runner-up in the oral communications division of the same contest. The purpose of DE is to prepare students for leadership roles in marketing and distribution.

The U. S. Department of Energy says wood may be the fuel of the future — already Americans are saving one million barrels of oil daily and $7.7 billion annually by burning wood. Soon the U.S. will be able to produce the equivalent of 2.2 million barrels of oil daily from the wood of lumber waste and dead trees.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very good morning to consider just what you can do to be more helpful to your close companions and to put such a plan in effect without delay. Make plans for the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You need to apply yourself more if you wish to gain your most cherished aims. Be more understanding of loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to please those who have done you favors in the past. Don't waste time with those who have an eye on your assets.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle routine chores early in the day so you'll have time for social activities later. Make this a worthwhile day.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to be of help to family members before seeking personal pleasures. Be active and you are happy.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study new interests that can give you greater abundance in the future. Take a little time for meditation. Be calm.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to be more practical now to gain your most cherished aims. Save time to engage in favorite hobby.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle little tasks around the house early in the day and then join congenials for recreation. Be clever with others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study your environment and do something to improve it. The afternoon and evening are fine for much sociability.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what your true aims are and then go after them in a positive manner. Show thoughtfulness to others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do whatever will add prestige to present standing in your neighborhood. Show increased devotion to family members.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study some new philosophy of life and put it to use for your betterment in life. Avoid one who brags too much.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use your hunches as well as your good judgment to solve problems today. Show more consideration for the one you love.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can easily comprehend what others are thinking and upon reaching maturity will become a most determined person with a strong will. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life.

The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MAR. 23, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day of mixed influences as the early day brings you some unexpected benefits, so be alert to accept them. Much patience on your part is required now to gain your true aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Your hunches are good early in the day, so be sure to follow them. Handle all duties painstakingly and get excellent results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A charming person can be very helpful to you early in the day. Take extra time to improve your appearance. Express confidence.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good deal of work can be accomplished today by making proper plans. Rid yourself of whatever deters progress.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to be more helpful in your relationship with co-workers. Study reports and make sure they are accurate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go to the proper sources for the information you need. Financial affairs are best handled later in the day. Be more optimistic.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You could get a pleasant surprise early in the day, but could become frustrated over a minor matter later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are able to reach a personal aim early in the day, but later unexpected difficulty arises. Relax at home tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are able to gain some aim that means much to you today. Avoid one who could harm you in some way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get in touch with as many friends as you possibly can and come to a better understanding with them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find a better system for handling your mounting financial affairs. Sidestep a foe who keeps annoying you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find the right way to gain your fondest aims and don't let others stop you. Be sure to improve your appearance.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A day when you can use more imagination and get excellent results in career activities. Strive for increased happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those fascinating young persons who will have a great interest in social activities and would do well in humanitarian work. Be sure to prepare a good education that will help bring this about.

The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to you!

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1981 by Chicago Tribune

ASK OMAR

Q.—The Laws of Duplicate Bridge have me confused. I was playing in a local tournament the other night and was declarer on a hand where the left-hand opponent took an interminable time before leading to a trick half-way through the hand. When he finally led a card, I said: "I haven't yet played to this trick, so I have the right to see the last trick." My opponent refused the right and the director was called and ruled against me. Was this ruling correct?—D. Evans, Vancouver, B.C.

A.—In rubber bridge, and until 1975 at duplicate bridge, you would have been entirely within your rights to inspect the previous trick until such time as your side had played to the next trick. Since your side had not done so, you could have looked at the previous trick and no one would have complained.

But the Laws of Duplicate Bridge were revised in 1975, and inspection of tricks was one of the areas where a major change occurred. Now, you can look at a trick until such time when you quit the trick by turning your card face down. Once all the cards to a trick have been turned face down, no one can ask to inspect the trick again, or even look at his own card.

There are many beneficial aspects of this rule, but not when it comes to slow play. Slow players can be a bane. At a tournament, you can ask the director to hurry up an excessively slow pair, but in private play it is much more difficult. There is nothing in the Laws to cover slow play. The only thing to do is to approach the guilty party and tell him that he is ruining other people's enjoyment of the game. Suggest that.

Microsurgery Requires Prepared Mind: Jacobson

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Someone has defined serendipity as looking in a haystack for a needle and discovering the farmer's daughter.

For Julius Jacobson, a surgeon, it was looking for a way to cut and rejoin a small artery in the neck of an animal — and seeing in his solution a revolutionary surgical technique.

Dr. Jacobson solved his problem by using a microscope, an answer that led to a sudden realization: What a surgeon can see, he can do.

With a microscope, Jacobson was the first to perceive, a surgeon can work on the myriad arteries, veins and nerves commonly thought too small to survive scalpel and suture. And he nourished this idea, demonstrating many applications, improving micro-scale instruments, overcoming the resistance of skeptical colleagues.

"It was serendipity," he says now, looking back 20 years, puffing a cigar in the dark-paneled library of his Fifth Avenue apartment near the Mount Sinai Hospital, where he is director of vascular, or blood vessel, surgery. "But you have to have a prepared mind."

Jacobson's innovation, microvascular surgery, opened a frontier in medicine. It has led to reimplantation of severed limbs, even the replacement of a lost thumb with a big toe (the "thoe"), the reversal of vasectomies, the reattachment of a complete scalp shorn in an accident, the repair of clogged heart arteries, and dramatically improved chances of surviving an operation to remove a tumor or rescue an aneurism deep inside the brain.

It was an obvious idea, really, as innovations often seem in retrospect. Ear surgeons, who do their work through a tiny opening, had been using microscopes for decades. Yet the imaginative leap of focusing a microscope on larger areas of the body was not made until 1960, when Jacobson took up his first job.

"Why? 'Chance,' the French scientist Louis Pasteur said, 'favors only the prepared mind.'"

Fresh from 16 years of training to be a surgeon, Jacobson was young, only 33, and people do their best work when young, he believes. As the newly-named director of surgical research at the University of Vermont Medical School, he had a place and means to work: laboratories and research grants.

And along the way to becoming a surgeon, picking up a master's degree in cell physiology, he had spent several summers peering through a microscope. It was second nature to him.

More important, though, "I was taught early on that half of what's in the textbooks is wrong — if you only knew which half," he says.

The English author Horace Walpole coined the term serendipity to express the gift of finding unexpected treasures, through chance and sagacity, while pursuing something else. Jacobson's breakthrough came as he pondered a basic research problem posed by two pharmacologists.

They were studying the effects of a drug on blood vessels and asked him to help disconnect the nerves surrounding the animal's carotid artery. He quickly saw that the only way to do this completely was to cut the artery and sew it back together.

"I became interested in why it couldn't be done, because you could cut a large artery and put it together without any trouble.

"I came to the conclusion that it was not that the artery was too small but that the eye could not see to tell the hand what to do."

He fiddled with magnifying glasses, but these didn't work well. Then he remembered the day he had wandered into an ear, nose and throat operating room, where an ear surgeon was using a microscope.

Jacobson borrowed one and looked at the animal's artery, magnified 40 times. "It was like looking through a telescope at the moon for the first time, just a whole wealth of detail that we didn't know existed." Severing and rejoining the artery was easy.

Jacobson recognized immediately what he had done, and he quickly put the microscope to previously inconceivable uses. "We were just grinding out the papers. Every structure — arteries, veins, nerves, ureters, vas deferens — every little tubular structure in the body that we could join together, we did."

Within a year, he was sewing together vessels one millimeter in diameter, roughly the size of paper clip wire. "The whole operating field is smaller than the head of a book match."

The Zeiss company in Germany now makes suitable microscopes. They cost up to $30,000.

Jacobson replaced traditional surgical tools, which were too large. At first he used jeweler's forceps, built to grip tiny watch parts.

"The thing I'm proudest of, I suppose," he says, is a visit by surgeons from Cleveland shortly after he published a paper on using a microscope in surgery. They had developed an X-ray technique to see if heart arteries were clogged, but the arteries were too small to operate on successfully. "They had read my paper and thought they had an application," Jacobson says. "Operating on coronary arteries is easy with a microscope. This gave birth to a billion-dollar industry, coronary artery surgery."

Since 1960, Jacobson has traveled the globe lecturing on microsurgery. An estimated 1,000 U.S. surgeons have microsurgery experience, and about 50 do micro work full time.

Shad Festival Planning Progresses

GRIFTON — Persons or groups wishing to compete for prizes in the Grifton Shad Festival Parade April 4 may contact parade chairman Jean McLawhorn at 524-4565 or co-chairman Joan Gaddy at 524-4009.

Trophies will be given for first and second place band, best marching unit, best overall unit (mayor's award), best representation of a fish, and best "Headin' for the Shad Roundup" theme float.

"News and Observer" columnist Dennis Rogers will be Grand Marshal, and area mayors and business/political leaders will review the parade from the speakers' platform.

The parade will begin at 10:30 a.m. and trophies will be presented around noon by the newly-crowned queen.

Prior to the parade, members of Greenville's Clown Alley will paint patterns on the faces of youngsters. Just after the parade, the 82nd Airborne Chorus from Fort Bragg will entertain the crowd, followed by clogging and dancing demonstrations with audience participation and with several dance groups.

Offer To Lease Idle Classrooms

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — School officials here want to bring business in when their classrooms go out of business.

Faced with declining enrollment and revenue, trustees for Modesto city schools have decided to try leasing unused classrooms.

"This would give the school district the ability to generate funds to help maintain the building and to keep the neighborhood schools open, which is an important point here," said Louis Medeiros, the district's newly hired marketing agent.

The board's decision last year to permit outside leasing hinged on the neighborhood school concept.

"We want local schools. We don't want kids to be bused out of their local area," explained Phillip Hennessey, an assistant principal heading a lease-study committee.

Enrollment peaked at 9,400 students four years ago and has fallen to about 8,500 students at present in this central California district's 23 elementary schools.

The district thus has about 40 surplus classrooms with enrollment increases not anticipated until late in the decade, Hennessey said.

Almost 20 prospective tenants have contacted the district about renting space.

"I found the response to be extremely high, in fact, surprisingly so," said Medeiros, who specializes in commercial real estate.

Four schools in north Modesto residential areas with two to five available classrooms were chosen for a pilot rental program scheduled to start in June. Rentals could boost district revenues about $40,000 a year, Hennessey said.

Likely occupants include day-care centers and non-profit groups looking for headquarters.

A two-year study also suggested that tenants could include adult education and recreation programs, a children's bookstore, counselors, and even a photographer in need of a studio.

A committee at each school will narrow the types of allowable businesses before the district seeks zoning changes from the city. "Rooms will be completely unfurnished. Tenants will make their own improvements and bring their own fixtures," Medeiros said.

Officials expect to lease classrooms for a minimum of a year under a plan developed at Belmont in San Mateo County. Lease contracts may extend to five years, and rates are expected to be competitive with private leases.

The rentals will not return enough money to cover district expenses, but Hennessey said, "We are all interested in keeping each of the local schools open. We see this as an alternative."

Pioneer In Rehabilitating Spinal Injury Patients

By PATRICIA WALSH
PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — The waitress walked up to John and Marjorie Young, looked at the man in his wheelchair, and handed the menu to Mrs. Young. "What would he like to eat?" she asked the woman. When the meal was over, she handed the bill to Mrs. Young. But instead of being angry, the Youngs had a good laugh. "It was funny because we could walk away from it," said Young, actually a healthy man who was experimenting to see firsthand how his patients were treated. For 25 years, Dr. Young, 60, has devoted his efforts to the care of those paralyzed by spinal injuries. He traveled last year to the Netherlands where he was awarded the annual medal from the international Medical Society of Spinal Cord Injuries as a pioneer of modern treatment. While treatment has vastly improved, he said, social attitudes have not. "People are still uncomfortable to be around people in wheelchairs. You can be a social, psychological mess, but if you look all right, you're okay." He decided on his specialty while still in medical school when polio was still routinely condemning young people to live in iron lungs. "I saw that medicine was good at keeping people alive, but not doing much to make life worthwhile. So I decided to specialize in rehabilitation." Later, as a doctor, Young put his theory into practice.

Walking along a pediatric ward as doctors were assigned to various cases, he noticed that one boy with severe brain injury was simply bypassed as a "gork."

"It made me mad and I said 'I'll take him.' In six weeks I had him riding a tricycle, speaking. It was no miracle. He had recovered somewhat but nobody had stimulated him."

Young said the therapy he used on the child then is common practice today. He said the approach to spinal cord injuries also has changed drastically.

"Before World War II, spinal cord injury patients only survived one or two years," he said. The advent of antibiotics lengthened their life, if not improved it.

"In the early days, the typical patient was lying in a hospital, covered with plaster-sized bedsores, infected bladders — emaciated, pitiful people," he said. "The feeling was, these are poor crippled people who'll die anyway."

"But we found if we got them in the proper atmosphere, with a proper staff, the change was truly miraculous. We have turned pitiful wretches into aggressive, healthy young kids."

Young said about half of all such cases are persons aged 15 to 25 injured in traffic accidents, falls and sports — especially diving.

"It's a young person's disease," Young said. He said 80 percent are males.

Numerically such cases are few — 8,000 new injuries a year and about 200,000 survivors. But the dollar loss in care and lost wages is staggering.

"They may cost $200,000 to $400,000 each during their lifetime," Young said.

A big contribution to improved treatment were regional centers. In 1957, Young developed one of the country's first in Denver at Craig Hospital.

Modeled on the polio respiratory centers for group care of polio victims, such centers consolidate paralyzed patients under a specially trained staff including medical doctors, therapists, psychologists and social workers.

The support that patients give each other is a side benefit.

"They are a living demonstration that yes, you can do it. They give each other hell and very little sympathy."

In 1968, Young came to Good Samaritan Hospital in Phoenix to set up another regional center. In 1975, he left direct treatment to head the National Spinal Cord Injury Data Research Center.

The Center gathers information from the 14 regional centers around the country to help lower hospital costs, improve care and reduce hospital stays.

Young said he misses direct contact with his patients — who have gone on to careers ranging from space science to motherhood. But he noted his specialty is apart from most in medicine.

"It's a funny field. It's a brand of medicine where by-and-large you can't cure, you've never been able to provide the patients with what they really want to have, which is to walk. You're shot out of the saddle before you start," he said.

"At the start, they are gravely disappointed at what I and the rehabilitation team are able to do for them. But as they become successful in their own eyes, there is a lot of warmth."

Study Goes Underground

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Aquifers, underground reservoirs found in many regions of the United States, are the focus of the world's largest single study of thermal-storage applications.

Researchers at Honeywell are helping the University of Minnesota to study the engineering, economic and environmental impacts of using aquifers for thermal storage. If the prospect is successful, the university will be able to heat 90 percent of its local office, classroom and hospital space using one of the aquifers under Minneapolis-St. Paul as a huge thermal-storage facility.

Two wells will connect the aquifer to the university's central heat and power plant. During the summer, 54-degree aquifer water will be drawn from one well to cool generating equipment via heat exchangers. When the water reaches 300 degrees, it will be piped back into the aquifer through the second well for storage until winter. At that time, the pumping process will reverse.

Shutdown Due Wrong Button

CRYSTAL RIVER, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Power Corp. nuclear plant at Crystal River was back in operation after a two-day shutdown caused by a technician who pushed the wrong button, a utility spokesman said.

The 825-megawatt unit cut off Tuesday. Florida Power spokesman Bill Johnson said a technician mistakenly took one circuit out of service before restoring another.

The unit was back in operation Thursday.

The secret of the magic sign.

In 1946, when we first opened Overton's, the grocery business operated like a lot of others. Come Monday morning, we'd open for the week's business. And every day, right on through Saturday evening each week, we'd work along helping customers, weighing produce and cutting meat.

But since that time, supermarket hours have become more complex. Big chains started extending their hours. Some went to 24 hour days. And then they decided to open Sunday, too. But, it seemed to us that the longer these markets stayed open, the less important being cheerful and helpful became.

Employees were forced to work all night. Keep odd hours. They frowned. They snarled. And who can blame them? Not very many people are cheerful at 4 A.M. on Sunday morning.

That's why we still open at 8 A.M. and close at 7 P.M. every day. Monday through Saturday. (Friday's till 8.) We expect our employees to be cheerful and helpful every hour that we're open. So, we don't ask them to work long days and odd hours.

And guess what? It pays off. Because Overton's real secret is good service.

Now some people might not agree that being closed on Sundays means good service. But we know our employees enjoy Sunday off. And we believe that being good to our employees means better service to you. So every Saturday evening at Overton's we hang out the magic sign.

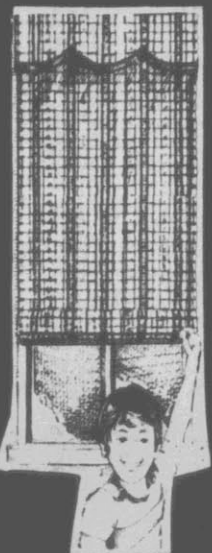

Come see us.

Tips On What To See In Washington

By SHERBOURNE
E. McGRATH

Senator John East isn't the only person traveling to Washington this year. Millions of tourists, including a number from Eastern North Carolina, will flock to our nation's Capitol, and before they go, many will seek advice on exactly what to see and do on their visit.

The best person to ask is someone who has lived in Washington. Since I fit in that description, I get many inquiries from friends, sometimes to their dismay.

Having lived and worked there for five years and escorted my share of friends and relatives around the city, I have my own list of favorite sites to visit, so any friend daring to ask for advice gets that list. Then, however, I revise the list according to the time of the year, or days of the week, or ages of children, or length of stay in Washington, or...well, you get the picture.

The trouble with Washington is there is so much to see that without some knowledge of the city and what's open when, it's easy to miss some of the more interesting spots because not enough time was allowed. That especially occurs in peak holiday times — any school break and from spring right on through the summer. People find themselves standing in line for several hours just to get into the more popular tourist spots, so plans for the rest of the day are thrown off kilter.

I always recommend, for friends planning a trip in advance, to begin by getting reservations for three specific (and my favorite) tours and then planning those visits to the monuments, the Smithsonian, Mount Vernon, Capitol Hill, Georgetown and so on around the tour times. Often, when I suggest these tours, friends are surprised they can be reserved in advance, so here is the way you can visit the White House, the FBI and the State Department Diplomatic Rooms with less pain and less standing in line.

The White House

There are unguided public tours of the White House. You show up at the East Gate (on 15th Street, N.W.), wait in lines which get terrifically long during peak months and then shuffle through five main public rooms: the East, Green, Blue, Red and State Dining Rooms. Oh, you also get a peek at the Library.

The better way is to get reservations for the Congressional tour, so called because applications are made through your representative or senator. These tours, given from 8:15 to 8:45 a.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, are guided by a member of the Secret Service's uniform division. Even better, you see not only the six rooms mentioned above, but three others: the Vermeil Room, which houses the extensive Biddle Vermeil Collection; the China Room, with its interesting display of State or family china used by each president; and the oval Diplomatic Reception Room, where the President greets state visitors.

How to get reservations: Call or write your representative or senator and request tickets, if possible giving several dates. A limited number of tickets is available, so don't expect to drop by your congressman's office and get tickets for the following morning. Make your plans in advance, especially if your visit is during tourist season.

Incidentally, this tour is not widely publicized, even on Capitol Hill. Several friends told me their representative had not known about the tour until they requested tickets!

Your congressman's office can also make reservations for the FBI and State Department tours, but officials at both of these agencies said it's simpler if applications are made directly to them.

The FBI Tour

One of the busiest places in Washington is the J. Edgar Hoover Building's tour area (entrance on E Street, N.W. between Ninth and 10th Streets). Almost half a million people took the FBI tour last year, and the special agent in charge of the tour office knows it's a slow day if buses are not double-parked the entire length of the block.

As with the White House, you can walk up to the building and stand in line for the tours, given Mondays through Fridays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., except for federal holidays. It's easier, though, to make a tour appointment, especially if there's a large group involved.

The FBI tour lasts 75 minutes and is divided into three parts. The first part consists of fiber glass displays showing FBI victories over such notorious criminals as Baby Face Nelson and Machine Gun Kelly, the Ten Most Wanted List, exhibits on white collar crime, a description of how fingerprints are processed, a display on kidnapping including an actual tape of a ransom demand, and J. Edgar Hoover's desk.

A visit to the FBI's laboratory area constitutes the second part. Tourists view chemists and technicians as they perform another kind of detective work: determining from a paint chip the make and model of a car, for example. There's also the document section which contains files of stationery watermarks, typewriter standards and notes used in bank robberies, and the 3,600-piece firearms reference file.

Finally comes the moment many wide-eyed children have been waiting for: a special agent gives a firearms demonstration using both a handgun and a Thompson submachine gun. This is done behind safety glass so there's no danger to spectators.

How to get reservations: Write to the Director, FBI, Attention Tour Office, Washington, D.C. 20535, one to two months ahead of your visit and give several dates and times. The Tour Office will confirm your appointment by mail.

State Department

The tour of the State Department's Diplomatic Reception Rooms is strictly by reservation and times are limited. Because the rooms are in frequent use, tours are given only at 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays.

On the eighth floor of the State Department Building (use the C Street, N.W. entrance, between 21st and 23rd Streets), this suite of rooms is used by the secretary of state, the president and vice president, and other cabinet members principally to entertain foreign dignitaries and the Washington diplomatic corps at receptions, dinners and luncheons.

The rooms are furnished with pieces of the period 1740-1825 in the American Queen Anne, Chippendale, Hepplewhite, Sheraton and American Federal styles at — and this is the best part — no cost to the taxpayer. All the furnishings have been donated or are on loan. It is a tribute to Clement E. Conger, the curator, that a visitor feels he is in a gracious home, rather than a utilitarian office building, once he is whisked by elevator to the reception rooms.

There are many outstanding pieces of furniture, paintings and accessories; to list a few: chairs belonging to Francis Scott Key's family; a silver spoon belonging to George Washington; a tankard made by Paul Revere's father; the English Sheraton rolltop desk where John Adams, Benjamin Franklin and John Jay signed the Treaty of Paris ending the American Revolution; Thomas Jefferson's desk said to have been used by him in Philadelphia; and Rembrandt Peale's portraits of George and Martha Washington.

How to get reservations: Phone the State Department Tour Office at 1-202-632-3241. If the tour office is closed, a recording will take your name and number, and the tour office does return the call! Note: young children will probably not enjoy this tour; lovers of antiques will.

Once you've taken any of these tours (and these are just some of those available in Washington), it's easy to pick up on the day's sightseeing. For example, after the early morning White House tour, you can stroll leisurely to the Washington Monument or have breakfast and catch the Metro to the Smithsonian Institution area. A half block from the FBI building is Ford's Theatre (511 10th Street, N.W. between E and F Streets) where President Lincoln was shot. The presidential box has been restored to its appearance on the night of April 14, 1965. Downstairs is a Lincoln museum; across the street is the house where Lincoln died. Both the Lincoln Memorial and the Kennedy Center are near the State Department.

Editor's Note: The author, Mrs. McGrath, is the former Sherbourne Everett of Greenville.

How To Get Around

By SHERBOURNE E. McGRATH

Washington, D.C. is an easy five and one half to six hour drive from the Greenville area, via Route 43 to Rocky Mount and Interstate 95 from then on. If possible, avoid arriving in the Washington area at rush hour, which starts about 4 p.m.

Washington is divided into four unequal quadrants, centered at the Capitol, and the quadrant initials — N.W., N.E., S.W. and S.E. — are an integral part of any address. North-south streets are numbered, and east-west streets are designated by letters and then alphabetized two-syllable names, three-syllable names and a list of trees.

However, this logical grid pattern is crossed by avenues named after states, which tends to make driving in Washington a challenge at times. Further, during rush hours, some one-way streets change direction, and on the large avenues, some lanes reverse direction.

Thus, since most of the tourist area is located in the Northwest quadrant, the easiest ways to negotiate downtown Washington are by foot, taxi, bus or the Metro, Washington's quiet subway which is still under construction in some areas.

Taxis charge by the zone, with an additional fee over the basic fare for each additional passenger and a surcharge during rush hours. They can, therefore, be unexpectedly expensive for a short ride. They come in an assortment of colors, too, and not just the basic taxi-yellow.

The Metro can be a very efficient way to get around parts of downtown Washington. Illustrated maps in each station are easy to decipher, but if you have a question, information personnel are stationed in nearby kiosks. For information on the Metro or on bus routes, call (202) 637-2437.

A New Role For Glass

By DAVID M. MAXFIELD
Smithsonian News Service

After 35 centuries of utilitarian use, glass now is appearing in a new role and a universe of new shapes.

Contemporary artists are working the ancient material into non-functional, imaginative sculpture — intriguing forms that can be satirical, funky, shocking, amusing, awesome, brosh or sometimes just playful.

If the objects are at all decorative in the traditional gift shop sense — or possibly even practical — those features are largely secondary to the craftsman's principal intention to experiment with the artistic and physical properties of glass.

Produced in small studio furnaces now available to independent sculptors, the new glass is making a major impression internationally: on other artists, gallery owners, museums, the glass industry and a new breed of collectors.

"People have a concept of what glass is," Michael Monroe, curator at the Smithsonian's Renwick Gallery in Washington, D.C., says, but when they see what is now being created, they react, "I didn't realize it could look like that, be used like that."

From at least 1500 B.C., the time of the oldest known existing vessels, which were made in Egypt, glass has been the substance for making useful objects, whether mundane or highly ornamental — jugs, bowls and vases, beads and trinkets, for example. Later came window panes, optical devices, lights, electronic components and, most recently, laser fibers.

But only in the last 20 years or so had glass caught the eye of American artists as an ideal material for personal expression, a substance that can be shaped for purely aesthetic purposes. Innovative glass-melting techniques, happily developed in the early 1960s, made this possible. And so did a new wave of teaching in museums and at colleges as well as changing American cultural attitudes about art after the 1950s.

The new world of abstract, sculptural shapes created by glass artists is not a result of mass production. Each object is unique, thus accounting for prices running into the hundreds or even thousands of dollars. Unlike a factory operation where design and fabrication are kept separate, the studio artists mold or blow and then shape the glass from their own designs, sometimes with the aid of an associate or two.

This is appealing to today's collectors, Monroe says. "Many want to be connected to the artists, to follow their work; they just don't want to buy an anonymous object."

The look of the new creations often can be conjured up by their names: "Woolly Eggs" — delicate, clear oval shapes containing spun glass threads; "Small Black Unidentified Animal Plate" — black amber glass with, well, an unidentified animal outlined in white; "Sparkling Star" — greenish cut and cemented plate glass, radiating from a central core along six planes, and "Space Spiral II" — tinted glass, laminated and cut, sweeping upward in a 270-degree arc.

"Glass is being conceived and appreciated in ways radically different from anything ever done before in its 3,600-year history," according to Thomas S. Buechner, president and director of The Corning Museum of Glass, Corning, N.Y. "Also evident," he continues, "is the fact that while craft and art are blooming, the glass industry is sitting relatively still. This may be because changes elsewhere are so novel and so evident that they overshadow the steady, more subtle improvements being made through design departments...."

Whether the studio glass is clear or opaque, sandblasted or shattered, geometric or freeform, bright and shiny or dull — in fact, whether it is considered fine art or craft little concerns such curators as Monroe and the artists themselves. "What an object is made of or how it is created shouldn't determine whether it is art," Monroe says. "What is important are the ideas behind the piece you're looking at. Does the object make a statement that transcends its technical merits?"

Pioneer glass artist and teacher Marvin Lipofsky, a Californian, agrees. "My biggest problem is that there's no personality in (many of the) works today. It's all technique. A statement is lacking in a lot of them."

Actually, the glass-making process and techniques have been pretty well mastered by the studio artists in recent years, a long journey from the early 1960s when "there was practically no information available," as one of today's leading craftsmen, Thomas Patti of Massachusetts, recalls.

A versatile, flexible, taffy-like material in its molten state, glass is made by melting sand with the proper amounts of soda and lime to a 1500-degree Fahrenheit glowing mass. This simple process, however, becomes more complex by adding cobalt, iron or other metallic oxides to the basic recipe to obtain color characteristics.

To Patti and other artists, the beauty of the material is that it is "expressionistic," that it can be twisted and controlled unlike any other substance but "it's kind of a wrestling match with glass," Patti says. "It's a battle to make the glass speak my language and not let the glass dictate me."

Although glass had been molded and formed around a core as early as 2000 B.C., the major breakthrough in glass making came in the Near East about the beginning of the Christian era. This was the discovery of glass-blowing, an important technique used today by both industry and the studio artist. The discovery permitted the production of glass objects in quantities and types previously unknown.

A second advance of comparable importance occurred early in the 19th century with the introduction of glass-pressing and bottle-making developed at the outset of the Industrial Revolution, but ironically these changes made glass so widely available that it began to be taken for granted, losing much of its earlier stature.

Enter New York glassmaker Louis Comfort Tiffany, France's Rene Lalique and other artists whose unique and ornate designs helped renew public interest in the material. Inspired by ancient glass, Tiffany, for example, created elaborate, one-of-a-kind, leaded glass windows, iridescent vases and now-prized decorative lamps.

The studio artist is a late link in the chain of reaction to mass-produced glass, but his generation, unlike Tiffany's, has parted from the old concepts that kept glass in functional forms for centuries. Many of these contemporary artists, too, seem little interested in the clean, geometric international design principles that have influenced designers since the 1920s.

The results, as revealed in a recent juried exhibition that was organized by The Corning Museum of Glass and appeared at the Smithsonian's Renwick Gallery, are fascinating: Some of the pieces are purely abstract, others offer social commentary ("Another Look at My Beef with the Government" is one title) and some, like "Blackbird Scent Bottles," satirize functional objects.

The diversity of studio glass now coming out of American small towns and urban centers is striking to Monroe. "All glass deals with light," he says, "but some artists are more fascinated with its relative qualities while others are concerned with its opaque aspects. Others are concerned with its delicacy and some with chunks, with mass."

In contrast to the "orderly and polite...tidier, more self-contained" functional glass of the 1950s, says design critic Russell Lynes, today's work is "more romantic and flowing on the one hand and expressionist and tough on the other. Its costume is blue jeans, not black tie."

The SunRise

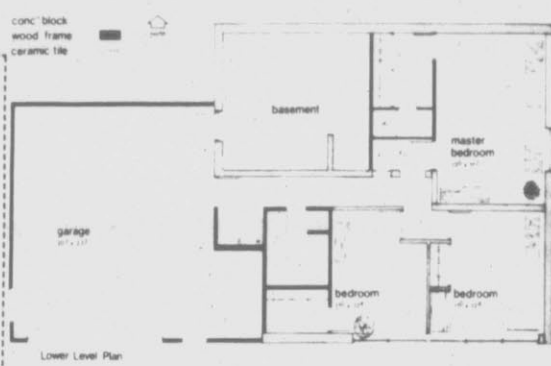

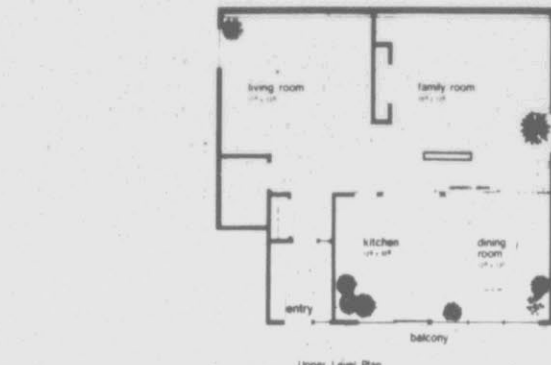

Solar Beauty And Elegant Living

By Jerry Bishop
A bi-level design with over 2,000 square feet of living space. The SunRise combines beauty and elegance with passive solar energy saving features to provide gracious living for a growing family.

The upper level shows a large kitchen with adjacent formal dining area with a full length deck accessible from both the kitchen and dining area, a separate family room, with built-in fireplace, and a sunken living room. The lower level has 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, laundry facilities and access to the basement and 2-car garage. Home heating requirements are reduced by exterior walls of 2 x 6 construction with R-31 insulation, R-48 ceiling insulation, triple glazing, an air-lock entry and earth berming. Direct solar gain through south facing windows with interior mass walls and a precast concrete floor provide about 50% of the space heating needs in the Eau Claire, Wisconsin climate.

In the Eau Claire area, The SunRise, would cost about $80,000 without lot, based on Spring, 1980 construction costs.

A New Look For Interior Design Is Goal For 1981

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures
Many people think of interior designers as people whose main job is to decorate a home, usually by choosing extravagant furnishings and colors.

But Jack Lowery, the new president of the American Society of Interior Designers, says this view of decorating is decidedly out-of-date. Lowery says he plans to implement programs to put interior design on a more professional footing during his two-year term as president of ASID.

transportation field, or in facilities for entertainment, such as theaters and concert halls.

Lowery said in his New York office that he concentrated on commercial design — which is known in the trade as the contract market (since each job is usually performed on the basis of a contract). Contract work holds a special fascination for him. "You create a space that lots of people must use. This provides an added dimension in terms of having an influence on people's lives," he said.

attitude comes at a time when the importance of physical surroundings is being emphasized.

"For many years, it was not realized that surroundings could affect one's mental state," Lowery said. "But today we know that the quality of the light, order or the lack of it, choice of colors and other physical characteristics such as temperature affect how people feel and act."

An example of the power of surroundings to influence activity was brought home to him in a recent job which involved redesigning a security-clearance area in a bank.

then redesigned the space to make it more convenient and attractive. We carpeted the area, put in a screen to provide a sense of privacy, put in recorded music, and even gave employees a choice of which art works to hang from a preselected group," added Lowery.

The results of the experiment were "almost unbelievable." Absenteeism and turnover were cut and productivity increased. The mistakes tapered off and employees even responded to their new environment by dressing better and walking around with a snap, summarized Lowery.

One goal is to set up a program for continuing professional education with classes to keep members current on new products, materials and methods. Another aim is to encourage ASID's education foundation to do research on subjects of professional interest.

According to Lowery, interior design is not really about creating pretty pictures. While good-looking spaces are certainly desirable, the real purpose of interior design is to solve problems of space, he said.

Nowadays, many designers never get involved in decorating residential spaces. Instead, they may specialize in hospitals and health-care facilities, in hotel and restaurant design, in store planning, offices or the

Here's The Answer

Q — We are thinking about getting a solar water heater this year. We do not know too much about them. How does a solar heater differ from a gas or electric water heater? Do we need a backup heater? What else can you tell us about the subject?

A — Solar, gas and electric water heaters are basically similar. The big difference is that the solar heater's source is collector panels which absorb solar radiation. These collectors must be exposed to direct sunlight most of the day. They can be installed on a roof, against a wall or on some kind of support frame. The collectors absorb the heat and pass it on to tubes holding water, air or a non-freezing liquid. Fluid inside the tubes carries the heat to a storage tank, from where it is dispensed to heat water.

On cloudy days or at night, when the temperature of the water is not up to the desired level, the backup heater takes over. There are some variations to this simplified version. You can get other solar information from the National Solar Heating and Cooling Information Center, P.O. Box 1607, Rockville, Md. 20850. For detailed information about the specifics of solar water-heating systems, there is a book titled "Hot Water From the Sun," put out by the U.S. government. It costs $4.75 and can be obtained by writing to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Q — I have old-fashioned compression faucets in our bathroom. One of them is leaking. Some years ago I put a new washer in a faucet like this, but it hasn't helped this time. I guess because the leak is not coming from the spout but from the large nut below the handle. How do I go about fixing this?

A — First, shut off the water to the faucet. Take off the handle. The screw may be visible or under the cap. The nut from which the leak is coming is known as a packing nut. Wrap it with adhesive tape to keep it from getting marred. Using an adjustable wrench, loosen the packing nut by turning it counterclockwise. This nut is removed in any one of several different ways. Common sense will tell you how to remove it after you have loosened it. It will have some washers or packing (a type of cord) around the area. Install new washers or packing and reverse everything just outlined. To get the same size and kind of washers or packing, take the old equipment to the hardware store. While you are gone, be sure nobody turns on the water or fools around with the faucet.

Q What is a nectarine? Can I grow one in the Raleigh area? (Mrs. S.C., Raleigh)

A The nectarine is a fuzz-less peach. Yes, you can grow one in the Raleigh area. It may be a little more difficult to grow than a peach because of two serious fungal diseases, brown rot and peach scab. These are diseases of peaches, too, but peaches seem to have more natural protection because of their fuzz. Here are some suggestions for growing both nectarines and peaches: Plant the trees only on a well-drained site. Prune and fertilize properly. Do not allow any fruit to remain on the tree after harvest (to carryover diseases). Use several well-timed applications of fungicides. After bloom, when petals have fallen, spray with captan. Repeat twice more at 10 to 14 day intervals. An insecticide in these sprays would reduce worms in peaches and nectarines. Two to three weeks before the fruit ripens, apply one or two sprays of captan combined with Benlate. Do not use an insecticide in these sprays. Follow label directions when using pesticides. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticultural specialist)

Q I constructed a plastic casement to protect my gardenia bush from winter damage. The plastic never touched the bush. Now the leaves are turning brown and drying. Why? (R.D., Hickory)

A The plastic was a good idea, but you must have gotten some cold damage anyway. Evergreen plants, such as gardenias, hollies and photinia often shed a few leaves at this time of year. It is a natural occurrence and nothing to worry about. Prune your gardenia of brown or dying limbs. New growth should start soon. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticultural specialist)

Q I've noticed that pine bark mulch comes in three sizes — nuggets, mini-chips and fines. Which is recommended for use around shrubbery? (E.W., Yadkinville)

A Fines are the smallest and least expensive, followed by mini-chips and nuggets. I would suggest using the smaller ones as a base and then top-dressing with nuggets. A three to four-inch layer of fines or minichips should provide good weed control and moisture retention. (Bill Stanton, extension forestry specialist)

Distressing Thoughts During Anesthesia

I had a simple operation done recently. I was put to sleep with a needle in my vein. People were talking and I remember distinctly going to sleep with a terrible panic and fear because of something I heard. When I told this to the nurses and my doctor, they did not give much credence to what I said. I wonder what your reaction is to this. — Mrs. C.C.T., Conn.

Dear Mrs. T.:

There is a tendency for some people in the operating room to forget, or even lack the awareness, that patients in the early phase of anesthesia are often highly tense and hear everything that's going on.

To start with, the fear of anesthesia is often greater than fear of the operation itself. The total loss of control is very terrifying to people of all ages, of all sizes, and of all emotional strengths.

It is now well recognized that patients during their induction period (the preliminary anesthesia) can hear everything that's going on. It is for this reason that the modern surgeon and anesthesiologist insist on absolute quiet in the operating room to be sure that no distressing thoughts are introduced to the patient. In fact, some studies even suggest that patients during the depth of anesthesia (not only during the induction period) can hear and recall things they heard.

I most certainly give credence to your story. I do hope that you at some time talked with your own doctor about the frightening thought that had been unnecessarily implanted in your mind. It would be sad to think that your fears still remain with you.

Small children and adolescents must be permitted the luxury of having temporary feelings of depression, commonly known as the blues. The complexity of their emotional lives is great — even though parents occasionally tend to ask "What do they have to worry about?"

It may be true that they do not have to earn a living and that the social problems of the family are not imposed on them. Yet they have conflicts, jealousies, insecurities, guilt, and sibling rivalry to upset their emotional composure.

When it is accepted that children have the right to temporary periods of depression, parents will respect it and support them and help them "live it through" without making them feel embarrassed or rejected.

It really is hard to grow up in this complicated age.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... Human understanding, kindness and caring by the physician is easily as effective as antibiotics.

TOYOTA EAST

Compare Toyota, You'll Buy Toyota...

At Toyota East, we know that if you compare Toyota with any other car on the road. . .really compare. . .you'll buy a new Toyota as your next car.

Compare gas mileage. . .compare resale value. . .compare quality. . .compare price. . .compare styling. . .compare driving pleasure. . .Toyota is the obvious choice. And for obvious reasons, all Toyota dealers would like for you to compare Toyota. . . but don't stop there. . .

To help you compare, if you'll stop by Toyota East this month, we'll give you a gas mileage and gas cost calculator absolutely free (licensed drivers only, one to a family, please). This handy device will help you compare various Toyota models to competitive makes. . .and help you calculate gas mileage and cost.

Stop by Toyota East soon and get your free gas cost/mileage calculator!

Compare Dealers, You'll Buy At Toyota East!

We're working hard at Toyota East to be the best place in eastern North Carolina to buy a car. Of course, with Toyota we have the right products. But we're dedicated to making our deals and our service so good that even if we were selling another brand, we'd be the best dealership for you to do business with.

That makes for a winning combination. . .the best deals. . .the best service. . .the best products. So compare. . .compare cars. . .compare dealers. . .you'll find that Toyota East is the best place to buy your next car!

GREAT OPPORTUNITY FOR TRAINEES

If you're smart, you'll start your career in sales with a first-class company that will help you move ahead fast.

Cleveland Cotton Products has built its success on finding individuals who want rapid professional and financial growth and who thrive on being successful.

If you are energetic, drive a late model car and are willing to dedicate yourself to achieving top income potential, you should talk to us about the opportunity that now exists.

You'll be trained to successfully represent CCP, the company that for over 60 years has led the nation in the development of industrial wiping materials and related products used by thousands of manufacturers, fleet operators, automotive shops and other commercial accounts across the country.

Following initial training, you will be relocated to your territory. There you will be given additional supervision to enhance your success.

We are prepared to hire a new trainee this week. If you're ready to get started now, arrange an immediate interview. Call Jim Fisher at 758-3401.

Monday, 1 p.m.-9 p.m.
Tuesday, 9 a.m.-9 p.m.
Wednesday, 9 a.m.-12 noon

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 3-21

QPSQX UKHYM SPT'C ZVAREJMY
HVRE GKCJQ ZAPGYTUYA CPUJX

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — GOOD OUTFIELDER RUNS IN; SAFELY CATCHES HIGH FLY.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals D

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Group Opposes Reagan Policies

DURHAM — More than 30 North Carolina organizations representing civil rights, labor, low income, women's and environmental interests will hold a conference to organize opposition to the Reagan administration's economic policy and other conservative programs.

The conference titled, "Organizing for the 80's," will be held next Friday and Saturday at St. Joseph's AME Church in Durham.

Speakers will propose specific strategies for unified grassroots lobbying efforts against conservative policies and budget cuts. Among these are the Rev. W. W. Finlator, N.C. advisor to the President's Commission on Civil Rights; Jesse Gray, leader of the National Tenants Association; Brenda Frazier, member of the national board of the National Organization for Women; Barbara Arnwine, an organizer of the National Black Independent Political Party; David Delinger, long-time civil rights and antiwar activist; and Jennifer Henderson, head of the North Carolina Hunger Coalition.

Among the participants from this area will be Golden Frinks and Bennie Roundtree.

H&R BLOCK TAX TEST

Question No. 18

H&R Block will accompany you to an IRS audit.

True False

It's TRUE. When H&R Block prepares your return, it's someone who knows all about income taxes and has carefully reviewed your return prior to the audit interview. It's someone who will go with you at no additional cost, not as a legal representative, but to answer all questions about how your taxes were prepared.

For Week Of March 22 - March 28, 1981

Gable Was 'King' Prior To 'GWTW'

Although both Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh have come to be closely identified with their roles in "Gone With the Wind," Gable, unlike his leading lady, was an established star. In fact, he had been deemed the "King of Hollywood" before taking on the role of Rhett Butler in the Margaret Mitchell epic.

Gable's dashing portrayal can be seen again by his millions of fans when the classic returns to television Sunday, March 22 (8-11 p.m.), and Tuesday, Mar. 24 (9-11 p.m.), on CBS.

Gable won the 'King' title in a newspaper poll conducted by columnist Ed Sullivan in 1938. Myrna Loy was named his queen, and the royal pair were crowned in an elaborate ceremony in Hollywood. It was a title that remained with Gable throughout his long career.

A poll also was partially responsible for winning him the role of Rhett Butler. As part of the media excitement over the prospect of filming the best-selling novel, readers were asked to name their top choices for the two leads. Bette Davis was first choice for Scarlett O'Hara and Gable led for Rhett. Although producer David O. Selznick had been leaning toward Gary Cooper for Rhett, he agreed that Gable was an excellent alternative.

Since Gable was an established star, his opinions and feeling were taken into consideration.

Scarlett may have been the principal character in the novel, but Gable wasn't about to let Rhett sink into the background. Reportedly, he wanted an action director, and was unhappy that Cukor was directing. Bowing to his star's wishes, Selznick regretfully let Cukor go and brought in Victor Fleming, who had just finished shooting another film that's also a classic, "The Wizard of Oz." According to some reports, losing Cukor upset both Leigh and co-star Olivia de Havilland, but neither then had the box-office clout of Gable.

Gable wasn't immune to pressure from others, either. Two years before, he'd been involved in an ugly court case which he easily won. But from then on, gossip mongers had focused on his relationship with actress Carole Lombard. Under pressure from both his studio and his producer, Gable had to settle on financially unfavorable terms to secure a divorce from his estranged wife and marry Lombard.

CLARK GABLE and Vivien Leigh star as Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara one of Hollywood's most memorable screen couples, in "Gone With the Wind," to be rebroadcast in two parts Sunday, Mar. 22 (8-11 p.m.) and Tuesday, Mar. 24 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

"Patton," the epic film about the World War II hero who was one of America's most famous and highly honored military leaders, returns to TV as The ABC Sunday Night Movie, Mar. 22 (8-11:30 p.m.).

The film, which dominated the 1970 Academy Awards with seven Oscars, was named Best Motion Picture and brought the Best Actor Award to George C. Scott.

This was also one of the top box-office hits of all time and drew one of the largest audiences for any movie in television history when it was first shown.

The movie recreated the style of the most dramatic American soldier of his time, and captured the scope as well as the behind-the-scenes action of World War II. But it is designed as much more than a military epic. It is a study of George S. Patton, Jr., a complicated man who was at the same time vain and compassionate. A determined rebel, he hated mass thought but loved the Army as he loved his life.

Patton's fame as a brilliant tactician whose armies achieved great victories is contrasted with his reputation as an outspoken individualist. His quick temper and lack of tact brought reversals to his career and made him the most controversial leader in the war.

Karl Malden stars as Gen. Omar Bradley, the steady, professional leader who began as Patton's deputy. Then he became his superior officer after the notorious incident in which Patton slapped a hospitalized soldier.

Patton was later given command of the Third Army and following the German surrender in 1945, was made military commander of occupation troops in Bavaria. Even in triumph he was soon in political hot water again.

The movie was filmed on location in Spain, Morocco, Crete, England and the United States. It is based on factual material in two books - "Patton Ordeal and Triumph" by Ladislav Farago, and Omar Bradley's "A Soldier's Story".

The supporting cast includes Karl Michael Vogler as German Field General Erwin Rommel and Michael Bates as Patton's arch rival, British Field Marshal Sir Bernard Law Montgomery.

Movie: "Sparkle" Starring Irene Cara. Three rhythm and blues singers see their music as an escape from ghetto life and a promise of fame.

Two For 'Valley'

Jean Simmons and James Coburn have been signed for key roles in "Jacqueline Susann's Valley of the Dolls." The four-hour miniseries, slated to air on CBS, has been updated for a contemporary audience.

New To Texas

Benjamin Hendrickson, one of the newest faces on "Texas," was starring in the title role of "The Elephant Man" on Broadway prior to joining the daytime drama.

As a founding member of John Houseman's repertory group, The Acting Company, Hendrickson appeared on Broadway and in national tours in over 20 plays, including "The Three Sisters," "The Indian Wants the Bronx," "The Way of the World" and "Arms and the Man." He also played Nick in "The Time of Your Life," a role he repeated on PBS' "Theatre in America."

He starred last year in the world premiere of the Hugh Wheeler opera "The Impressario Produces Abu Hassan" at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., and more recently portrayed Romeo opposite Tovah Feldshuh in the California National Shakespeare Festival's production of "Romeo and Juliet."

Michelle Will Tell

Q: What television series has James Farentino, who starred in "Evita Peron," been in? R. HOUSE, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: Farentino has been in only two series — "The Lawyers" (1969-72) and "Cool Million" (1972-73). Stage productions and motion pictures are "tops" with him. He has starred in several telefilms, however, including "Jesus of Nazareth," "Emily," "Silent Victory" and "Son Rise: A Miracle of Love."

Q: I am writing about Rene Enriquez, who plays on "Hill Street Blues." My husband has the same last name, and we were wondering if he is related to us in any way. What is his address? D. ENRIQUEZ, LELAND, N.C.

A: Rene is a native of San Francisco and his parental uncle was president of Nicaragua before the Somoza Dynasty. I no longer include addresses in this column, but this is an exception. Write to him c/o the show, NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Q: Isn't Richard Dawson, the host of "Family Feud," married to an actress? Are there any children? J. SMITH, MORGANTON, N.C.

A: Dawson was married to actress Diana Dors, but they've been divorced for several years. He and their two sons, Mark, 20, and Gary, 18, live in Beverly Hills.

Q: Will "Battlestar Galactica" ever come back on television, even as a daytime show? B. DAVIS, JR., CONNELLY SPRINGS, N.C.

A: Don't hold your breath! Even though "Battlestar" still has a faithful following, ABC has repeatedly turned a deaf ear to pleas to bring the show back. The problem seems to be that most sponsors aren't interested in a youth-oriented show.

Q: Are the actresses who play Erica on "All My Children" and Dorian on "One Life to Live" related? L. CATES, GOLDSBORO, N.C.

A: NO, but Susan Lucci (Erica) and Robin Strasser (Dorian) are certainly "lookalikes"! There are definite similarities off-camera, too — both gals, totally unlike the characters they play, are gracious, charming and devoted to their children.

Q: Has Gene Wilder ever been on television? C. BAKER, GREENVILLE, N.C.

A: Wilder prefers to work on the stage as well as in motion pictures, and is seldom on the small screen.

Grim Story Unfolds In Film

The human struggle to be free is a universal theme that most people can relate to," says Richard Michaels, director of "Berlin Tunnel 21," a moving account of a tunnel escape beneath the Berlin Wall during the early '60s, filmed entirely on location in West Berlin.

Richard Thomas, Horst Buchholz, Ute Christensen and Jose Ferrer star in the drama, to be telecast on CBS Wednesday, Mar. 25 (8-11 p.m.). It focuses on a group of seven men who risk their lives digging a passageway beneath the Berlin Wall to rescue friends, relatives and other loved ones.

Imagine waking up one morning and seeing a barricade of men with guns, barbed wire, tanks and chains cordoning the middle of the street, stretching as far as you can see," says Michaels.

"Unlikely scenario? But that's what happened in 1961 when the border between East and West Berlin was closed, restricting the flow of traffic," Michaels explained. "'Berlin Tunnel 21' is a story of interruptions, a feeling most Berliners have even today, of being simultaneously walled in and walled out, and it is an impression that Igor Luther, the cinematographer, and I attempted to convey.

"It is also a film about how some people refuse to accept the interruption of the Wall in their lives."

Michaels says he felt a personal responsibility to communicate the pressures of living in Berlin. "Like many other Americans, I didn't really know what life was like here, of not being able to, for example, go cross-town.

"There are those who are satisfied with their lives in East Berlin, who do not feel oppressed, who have no desire to leave. Fine. But when you don't have a choice, that's when there is a problem," he continued.

"Despite the contrivances that exist today to restrict most East Berliners from travelling to West Berlin — mined land areas and waterways, dogs trained to kill, armed border guards, and the gray concrete monstrosity of the Wall itself — East Berliners continue to risk their lives at whatever the cost to gain freedom," Michaels says.

CHARLES BRONSON stars as a cool but struggling melon grower in "Mr. Majestyk," a taut action drama Friday, Mar. 27 (9-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

They're After 'Mr. Majestyk'

Charles Bronson stars in the title role of "Mr. Majestyk," to be rebroadcast as the ABC Friday Night Movie, Mar. 27 (9-11 p.m.). The rapid-fire thriller focuses on a man who goes his own way against the syndicate and finds its retaliation fast and brutal.

Vince Majestyk (Bronson), an ex-con, buys a melon farm out West and is trying very hard to get his crop to market with or without the help of the local Cesar Chavez-oriented workers. Jailed for beating up a young punk who had tried to force him to hire 'winos,' Majestyk meets up with a Mafia hit man Frank Renda (Al Lettiere), and when Renda's confederates attempt a rescue, Majestyk winds up with Renda in tow instead. He then tries to make a deal with police but Renda gets away, and vows lead-spitting revenge.

Once out of jail, Majestyk finds — to his dismay — that the mob is retaliating by scaring all the workers off the farm in an attempt to destroy Majestyk and his crops.

Finally, Majestyk is compelled to sow the seeds of the mob's destruction.

Linda Cristal adds a note of vivacity to the film in her portrayal of Nancy Chavez, a Chicano farm worker who throws over all of her union ideals when she sees Majestyk's strength in standing strong against the syndicate.

BBC Contract

Wolfgang Bayer Prods. has signed a contract with the BBC, which calls for various projects focusing on the natural history field.

Bayer, who is headquartered in Jackson Hole, Wyo., was selected because of his background in producing wildlife documentaries. Among these is the recent National Geographic special, "Last Stand in Eden," which won him an Emmy nomination.

The BBC agreement calls for Bayer to cover locations in North America for a six-hour miniseries "Animal Behavior," that will air via PBS in 1983. Another project will be "Planet Earth," a series of 12 one-hour specials focusing on the history of our planet.

RCA 25" diagonal ColorTrak with ChannelLock Keyboard Control

ColorTrak is RCA's most advanced, most automatic TV—with eight automatic systems designed to lock even subtle shades of color on track.

- Automatic Color Control keeps colors consistent from program to program, channel to channel.
- Automatic Flashtone Correction keeps flashtones within a natural range.
- Automatic Contrast/Color Tracking lets you adjust contrast, color and brightness with one control.
- Automatic Light Sensor adjusts picture for changes in room light.
- RCA Super AccuFilter black matrix picture tube has tinted phosphors to help keep colors vivid.
- RCA's ChannelLock electronic tuning with all-channel Keyboard Control—so accurate, so automatic there's no need to fine tune—ever.
- SteelLock Contrast Circuit automatically maintains picture detail in black areas, white areas and all shades in between.
- RCA's energy-efficient XtendedLife chassis averages only 182 watts.

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — NBC must really believe in JAMES GARNER. He's been assured by the network that his new "MAVERICK" series, premiering in September, will run for a full year — regardless of how it holds up in the ratings!

LONI ANDERSON, who shot to stardom via her role on "WKRP IN CINCINNATI," and ROSS BICKELL, who's not had a decent role since they moved to Tinseltown, have gone their separate ways. "We just drifted apart," laments Ross. "Nobody came between us. There was no other man, no other woman."

DALE ROBERTSON is back in town because of his key role in the new "DYNASTY" series, but he heads for Oklahoma each weekend. "I hightail it back to my ranch as soon as the cameras stop rolling," says the rugged actor. "There's always work to be done."

Flying gliders has become ANSON WILLIAMS' favorite pastime, and he obviously loves it. But his wife, LORRIE, doesn't share his enthusiasm. She thinks it's extremely dangerous and is desperately trying to talk her hubby into trying something a little safer.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask" Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

Attorney Nizer: Conscience is king.

FOR LOUIS NIZER, attorney

Why do you represent only people whom you feel are innocent? Doesn't that make you a one-man judge and jury? — A.N., Altoona, Pa.

● I represent people whose cause I believe in. It is not wrong for a lawyer to represent a guilty person. But since many of us have to make a choice of how to devote our limited time, we have a right to select that cause which best enlists our conscience. Otherwise the client isn't getting the best out of his lawyer. As to the contention that a lawyer should not be the judge and jury deciding on his client's guilt, he is not. If I reject a client, I am not acting as a jury who could find him guilty and subject him to punishment by a judge. I am merely refusing my personal services to him. In that sense every lawyer must make a choice and has a right to do so.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

I heard that the favorite song of former Vice President Mondale is "Minnesota Rousers." Do you know what the number-ones of other celebrities are, or what they request from dance bands? — D.B., Jonesboro, Ark.

● Liz Taylor usually asks for "The Shadow of Your Smile," according to society orchestra leader Stuart White, musical director at the New York Hilton Hotel. He plays at or organizes 4,000 functions a year and says that our new First Lady, naturally, likes "Nancy." Terence Cardinal Cooke can't resist "Love Makes the World Go Round"; baseball star Reggie Jackson's choice is "Please Release Me"; former First Lady Ladybird Johnson adores "Lara's Theme," from the movie, Dr. Zhivago; former President Carter prefers "Georgia."

Liz and hubby: shadowy smiles.

FOR KAREN BLACK, star of Chanel Solitaire

Please advise why your diet differs from most, yet is more successful? — B.C., Greeley, Colo.

● Most people start off with either a small breakfast or no breakfast at all. That means they start the day hungry, have a big dinner and never catch up. I believe in having carbohydrates for breakfast and a tiny dinner with lots of vegetables — whole carrots, cucumbers, broccoli, string beans, preferably raw. Starting the day with a full stomach works for me.

FOR PETER USTINOV, star of Charlie Chan and the Curse of the Dragon Queen

You say this film fulfills a boyhood dream. Why? — O.M., Suffolk, Va.

● I've always enjoyed the Charlie Chan mysteries. I remember, as a boy, some friends shot arrows through my cap. The first shot struck dead center, and I delivered the line — in the character of Chan — "Ah, was expecting same." It delights me to have an opportunity of using that same line in this movie.

FOR LT. THOM McKEE, biggest money winner on Tic Tac Dough

Has winning all that money — $312,000 — changed your life? — M.W., Salisbury, Md.

● Well, we bought our dream house outside the Naval Base in San Diego, something we could only dream about before, and even in our wildest dreams, never believed it would come to pass. And my wife, Jenny, decided to quit her job. Other than that, nothing much has changed.

FOR KATHERINE HELMOND of TV's Soap

Why do you say an unconventional attitude is the secret of your long marriage? — G.H., Rapid City, S.D.

● I try to take it day by day. David and I have spent a great deal of our marriage apart; we both have careers (David is a sculptor), which means we lead together and separate lives. That's what's so stimulating about our marriage. Even though we're away from each other a lot, when we are together, life is very vital and filled with endless conversation.

FOR JUDITH KRANTZ, author of Princess Daisy

What makes some people quick readers and other slow ones, and in what category do you belong? — I.P., Lima, Ohio

● I really don't know why some people read quickly; I have no understanding of the mental process that makes someone a fast reader, and another a slow one; but I certainly think that a speed-reading course is the only thing I know of that can help you speed up. I have always been an exceptionally fast reader.

MICKIE MILLER, fashion consultant

How can I keep up with fashion without spending lots of money? — H.B., Westchester, N.Y.

● Leaf through current fashion magazines to become familiar with new styles. Then review your closet. You'll be surprised at how many of your "outdated" garments can be modified to reflect current trends. Simple accessories can modernize many garments, via a new blouse, sweater, skirt, belt, shoes. Remember shoes and bags make the look.

PRO Nelson T. Shields, chairman, Handgun Control, Inc.

My son Nick was killed with a Saturday Night Special. Why not make it difficult for criminals to get their favorite weapon, this easily concealable handgun, and get these guns off the street? We should stop the sale of Saturday Night specials; screen purchasers of other types of handguns for criminal records; and require a license to carry a handgun in every state. A similar licensing law in Massachusetts has reduced violent crime with a gun and saved lives. Such a national law could save your life or your child's.

PRO AND CON

Would a National Handgun-Control Law Significantly Reduce Violent Crime?

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con" Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $10 for those published.

CON Don B. Kates, criminologist

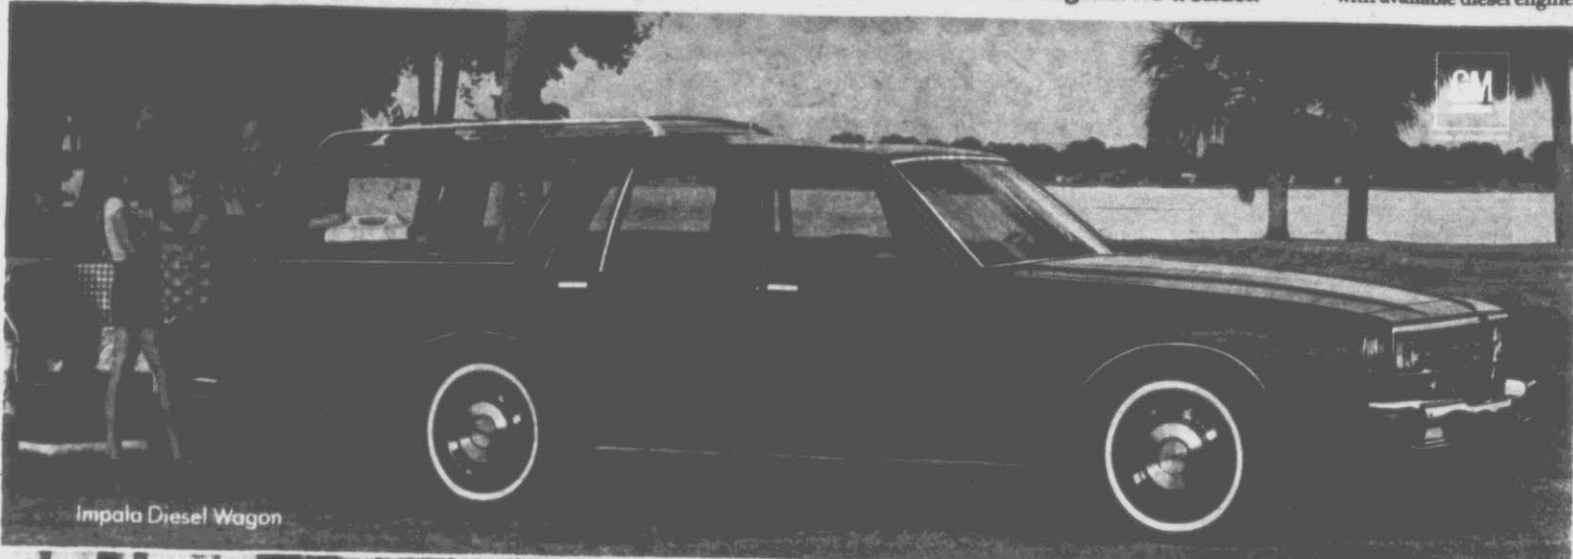

No. If such gimmicks worked, re-instituting Prohibition would be even better. Handguns are used in 50 percent of murders; 85 percent of murderers are drunk. Liquor's involvement is likewise greater than handguns in rape and robbery. But in the short run, gimmicky liquor or gun laws fail because violent people won't obey. And gimmicks shirk the long-range solution: reshaping the cultural and socioeconomic factors that produce proportionately so many more violent people here than in countries like Israel, where guns are a way of life.

How Should the President Handle the Press?

UPI
Press secretary James Brady and Reagan: How do you keep 100 reporters happy?

By Herbert G. Klein

If you read the stories written about Ronald Reagan during his campaign for the Presidency and then read the stories which have been printed since his election, you may get the feeling that you are learning about two entirely different men.

With all recent Presidential campaigns, including Richard Nixon's, it has become inevitable that, following the election, the President enjoys a honeymoon of unpredictable duration with the press. And inevitably, history indicates that this period will be followed by a much longer period of disenchantment, sometimes involving emotional hand-to-hand combat between the President and the media.

In fact, in a recent column, Art Buchwald speculated on just how long the Reagan honeymoon with the press would last and when newsmen could finally move in with their varied forms of barbs against the President. It was as if Buchwald suddenly had discovered a vacuum in the life of newsmen who were deprived temporarily of the game of "put a pin in the President."

And while Buchwald wrote to provoke a smile, there was more than a little truth in what he was writing.

Though we can't predict how long this honeymoon period will last, we can take a look at how the President and his press secretary deal with the press and some of the problems involved.

The size of the press corps in Washington has grown even more rapidly than Government bureaucracy in recent years. And there is no sign of a freeze on its numbers. Where Franklin Roosevelt dealt with 20 or 25 newsmen in his almost daily jousts with the press in the Oval Office, the President's press secretary now meets with anywhere from 50 to 150 newsmen in his daily briefings. A televised press conference is covered by a cast of hundreds.

Since the days of James Hagerly, President Eisenhower's press secretary — whom I would rate as the best of all who have held that job — the office of White House press secretary has assumed a role of growing importance, a role exceeded by few in the Cabinet or on the White House staff.

In the selection of most Presidential staffs, the press secretary is among the first appointees announced to the public, although this was not the case in the formation of the Reagan staff. James Brady, the nation's newest press secretary, was among the last senior staff members selected for this White House.

One of the reasons for the delay was that President Reagan's senior advisers toyed for a time with the idea of naming two, three or even four press secretaries instead of the usual one, or a combination press secretary/director of communications. The concept of multiple press secretaries would have included an expert in foreign policy, perhaps one in defense or economics and two others who would specialize in broad areas of domestic policy.

But the Reagan staff was finally convinced this would have been a disaster. Duties would overlap. Not all four spokesmen could work intimately with the President, and what newsmen want most is to hear the President's ideas, not those of some senior advisers. The question would have been: Who speaks for the President?

Richard Nixon went into his postelection transition in 1968 with the idea that the press secretary position could be downgraded to press assistant — Nixon even assigned Ron Ziegler that title. And newsmen covering the White House rightfully took this as a snub. Long before Nixon's 1969 inaugural, he was pressured by the media, including myself, to restore the senior position of press secretary.

President Reagan and his staff had another problem in finding a capable press secretary: Unlike most Presidents, Reagan had no one preselected for this all-important job.

Normal campaign procedure would have indicated that the job go to Lyn Nofziger, who held this post with Mr. Reagan in the California governorship and in all of the Reagan campaigns. Nofziger has been a Reagan insider since 1966 when he left the Copley Newspapers' Washington Bureau to join the Reagan race for governor.

But Nofziger was bounced out in the early campaign takeover by John Sears, the original Reagan-for-President campaign manager. And Nofziger was reincarnated only when Sears, in turn, was bounced out in favor of Bill Casey as campaign manager. Throughout all of this, Nofziger remained close to Reagan, but he was not Nancy Reagan's favorite candidate for White House spokesman.

Basically, Nofziger knew that a press secretary has no control over any part of his own life, and he announced from the moment he entered the Presidential campaign that he did not want to be press secretary. And thus in the postcampaign period, he created a vacuum, and there was a delay in naming his successor.

(Nofziger left the Reagan staff in early December, fully expecting to reopen his political public-relations business in Los Angeles. Only later was he convinced to return to Washington not as a press secretary but as a White House political operator. Nofziger is a loner, and he will remain behind the scenes, but he figures to have a major role on the White House staff and, inevitably, he will be dealing with the press as well as the politicians.)

And so it is James Brady, known to the press as "The Bear," who will be the official Reagan spokesman. Brady, 40, also has Washington public-relations experience and served first in 1980 as Author Klein with Nixon, whom he dissuaded from diminishing the status of his press secretary.

President Reagan Meets The Press

John Connally's press secretary and later was brought into the Reagan camp by Nofziger, who hired him as an assistant.

His biggest advantage in coming into his tough new role is that during the transition and while traveling with candidate Reagan, he had the opportunity to work not only with the political press corps but also with key Reagan operatives such as Edwin Meese, counselor to the President.

He also undertook the press office post with some serious disadvantages, the major one being that he had known Reagan only a short time and was not the first choice of the President or his wife. Several other candidates were interviewed and considered during the post-election period before Brady was flown to Los Angeles for a final interview.

Brady is familiar with Reagan's campaign policies, and he has been aided further by being a part of early Cabinet discussions. But he will have to find a way to spend a good deal of personal time with the President if he is to be his press alter ego, a spokesman who can respond to questions by instinct as well as with factual information.

One of the greatest difficulties for the person holding this position is that the job has a built-in conflict of interest. The press secretary works with the news media and must satisfy their interests, but he should never go so far as to be "one of the boys." His responsibility is to the President.

Brady's predecessor, Jody Powell, never lost sight of this fact, but some of his problems stemmed from the fact that he was too much of an insider and was called upon by President Carter for policy consultation, for individual political campaigning and even as a television spokesman for the Government.

A press secretary can succeed only if he is trusted by advertisement

I had no idea Geritol does so much for you.

"To tell you the truth, I always thought Geritol was for older people. Like my parents. But you know what I found out? Women my age are especially susceptible to iron-poor blood. It's a problem millions of us have...iron-poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today.

So now I take Geritol every day. With Geritol you're sure of getting enough iron to build iron-poor blood back to normal. Plus you get vitamins that are important to your health."

Geritol. Every day.

both the newsmen and the President's staff. This trust is something Brady will have to earn. The tendency with too many White House staffs is to believe that what the press secretary doesn't know will not hurt him. That is a quick route to trouble, as Ron Ziegler found out early in the Nixon Administration. Accuracy and full knowledge are the lifeblood of a news secretary.

During the Kennedy Administration, Defense spokesman Arthur Sylvester made a speech in which he propounded the theory that the Government has the right to lie. For a press secretary or for a President, that is the quick route to press distrust and eventually public distrust.

A press secretary is not obligated to reveal everything he knows, and he can avoid some questions. But he cannot lie and live professionally.

Ike with James Hagerty, who the author says was the best press secretary ever.

The Reagan Administration has come into power at a time when the need for communications, both internally and with the public, is accentuated more than at any previous time in history. It has the advantage of having a President who is more skilled in communicating with the public through the use of television than any previous U.S. President. And in today's world, he can easily address millions through the means of televised speeches.

But in order to maintain good lines of communication with the public, the President also must hold frequent press conferences. Few Presidents have struck a good medium in numbers of press conferences. Nixon hurt himself by having too few. Carter had too many and thus on many occasions met the press without full preparation.

Even a skilled communicator like President Reagan needs the backup of others in his Administration who can communicate capably with the American public. Ed Meese and chief of staff Jim Baker offer much promise as skilled spokesmen, but others will have to be developed within the Cabinet if Reagan is to succeed in his campaign to rebuild public confidence in Government. He cannot do it alone.

In order to carry out his campaign promises, Reagan will have to continue making tough and sometimes unpopular decisions, decisions that will be fought by varied and powerful special-interest groups. Success here too will be contingent upon communicating well with the American public and retaining its support. This means that the nation's newest press secretary has a tough job ahead.

The Changing American Family

Welcome to the "Electronic Cottage"

First it was the extended family, next came the nuclear family — and now we're entering the Third Wave, where "family" means a dazzling diversity of ways to live.

By Alvin and Heidi Toffler

The American family is not dying. It is diversifying. This is the "secret" to understanding what is happening to ourselves, our children and our society. Millions of people today are frightened about the future of the family. Dire predictions pour from the pulpit, the press, even from the White House. Emotional oratory about the need to "restore" the family is echoing through the nation.

Unfortunately, our attempts to strengthen family life are doomed unless we first understand what is happening. And all the evidence suggests we don't.

Despite misconceptions, the American family system is not falling apart because of immoral television programs or permissive child-rearing or because of some sinister conspiracy. If that were the problem, the solutions would be simpler.

To begin with, it is worth noticing that whatever is happening to family life is not just happening in the United States. Many of today's trends in divorce, remarriage, new family styles and attitudes toward children are present in Britain, France, Sweden, Germany, Canada, even in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. Something is happening to families in all these countries at once.

What is happening is that the existing family system is fracturing — and taking on a new, more diversified form — because of powerful pressures arising from revolutionary changes in energy, technology, work, economics and communications. If permissiveness and immorality play a role, they are far less important than these other, larger pressures.

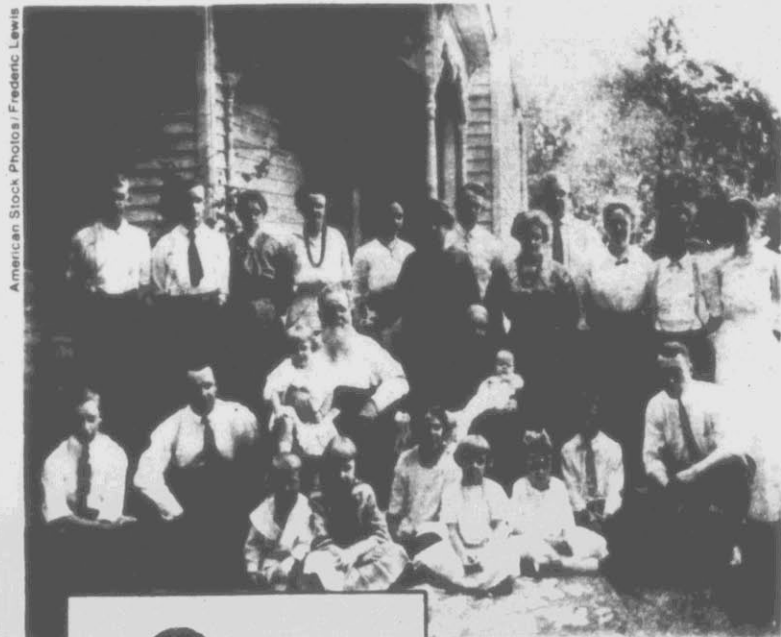

The whole world is changing rapidly, and it seems reasonable that you cannot have a revolution in all these fields without expecting a revolution in family life as well.

Human history has gone through successive phases — each characterized by a certain kind of family. In greatly simplified terms we can sketch these:

The First Wave family: Ten thousand years ago, the invention of agriculture launched the First Wave of change in history. As people shifted from hunting, fishing and foraging, the typical peasant-style family spread: a large household, with grandparents and children, uncles and aunts and sometimes nonblood relatives, as well as neighbors, boarders or others, all living together and — most important — working together as a production team in the fields.

This kind of "extended" family was found all over the world, from Japan to Eastern Europe to France to the American colonies. It is still the dominant type of family in the non-industrial, agricultural countries today.

The Second Wave family: Three hundred years ago, the Industrial Revolution exploded in England and triggered the Second Wave of change.

The First Wave: Large families were needed to harvest crops.

The Second Wave: The Industrial Revolution gave birth to nuclear families.

Alvin Toffler is the author of Future Shock and the current best seller The Third Wave, released this month in paperback (Bantam). Heidi Toffler, a journalist, participates in her husband's research and editing and accompanies him on speaking tours around the world.

The Third Wave: High divorce rates are creating aggregate families where two broken families become one. For instance, the Bob Cooper family (above) of Alabama includes one child from Mrs. Cooper's former marriage and four from Mr. Cooper's.

The old-style family which worked so well as a production team in the fields did not fit well in the new evolving world of factories and offices. The elderly couldn't keep up with the clattering machines. Children were too undisciplined to be really efficient factory hands. And the industrial economy needed workers who could move from city to city as jobs opened up or closed. That was hard to do with a big family.

Gradually, under these pressures, families became smaller, more streamlined, with the husband going out to work in a factory or office, the wife staying home and the kids marching off to school. Old folks were farmed out to their own apartments or nursing homes. Young people moved into their own apartments as soon as they could afford it. The family adapted to the new conditions and the so-called "nuclear" family became the most popular model.

This is the type of family that most of today's evangelists, politicians and others have in mind when they say we must "protect" the family or "restore" it. They act as though the nuclear family were the only acceptable form of family life.

Yet today, as society is struck by a new shock-wave of technological, economic, ecological and energy changes, the family system is adapting once more, just as it did 300 years ago.

Because the economic and other conditions that made the nuclear family popular are changing, the nuclear family itself is less and less popular. America is no longer a nation of poorly educated blue-collar workers. Most of us work in service occupations or spend our time processing information. And today only some 7 percent of Americans still live in classical nuclear families. The nuclear family is simply no longer the norm — and it is not likely to become the norm again, no matter how much pulpit-pounding or breast-beating we do about it.

The Third Wave family: In its place, a new family system is emerging. This new system is harder to describe because it is not based on a single dominant family form but on a dazzling diversity of household structures.

For example, look at what is happening to single life. Between 1970 and 1978 alone, the number of people aged 14 to 34 who live alone nearly tripled in the United States. Today fully one-fifth of all households are live-alones. Some are alone out of necessity, others prefer it.

Then there are the child-free couples. As James Ramey of the Center for Policy Research has pointed out, we are seeing a massive shift from "child-centered" to "adult-centered" homes. The number of couples who deliberately decide not to have children — whether for economic, psychological or ecological reasons — has increased dramatically.

Next come the single-parent households. Divorce rates may be leveling out in this country, depending upon how they are measured, but broken nuclear households are so widespread that today as many as one out of seven children is raised by a single parent. In big cities that may run as high as one in four.

In many countries at once, the single-parent household is becoming a key family form. Sweden gives one-parent households first crack at nursery and day-care facilities. Germany is building special blocks of apartments for them.

Then there is what we have called the "aggregate family." That's where two divorced people — each with kids — marry, and the kids from both sides come to know each other and form a kind of tribe. Often the kids get on better than the parents. It has been estimated that, before long, 25 percent of American kids may be part of such "aggregate families."

One out of 7 children is raised by a single parent.

Trial marriages...single-sex households...communes...all can be found as people struggle to find alternatives to the nuclear model. Some of these will turn out to be workable alternatives; others will fall by the wayside.

We can also expect to see an increasing number of "electronic cottage" families — families in which one or both spouses work at home instead of commuting to the job. As the cost of gasoline skyrockets and the cost of computers and communication plummets, companies will increasingly supply their employees with simple work-at-home electronic equipment.

In such homes, we may well find husband and wife sharing the same work. Even children and old folks might pitch in, as they once did in the agricultural household. In our day, such "electronic cottage" families are as much an outgrowth of changes in energy, technology and communications, as the nuclear family was a

Look Among Your Own Friends

To see how drastically the American family system is changing, all we need to do is look closely at our own circle of friends, neighbors and relatives. Where once we might have found most people living in traditional First Wave families, with several generations under the same roof, or in Second Wave families of the nuclear type, today we find a dizzying array of different family forms.

Before writing this article we simply asked ourselves how many different family structures we could find among our own friends and acquaintances. We quit when we reached 15. We could have found many more.

We suspect that if readers tried the same exercise, most would be surprised at the diversity of family relationships that surround them, too.

To start with, there are the "solos" who live by themselves out of necessity — and frequently out of choice. Barbara is a divorced ex-model we know, now still beautiful in her early 50's, who would rather live her own life than share it full time with a man. She is a hard-working professional in another field now, cares for her teenage son and leads a busy life.

Phil and Amy are a two-career couple, both hard-driving, successful business people who are raising two bright and terrific youngsters.

Debbie and Arthur are a childless couple. She practices law; he invests and serves on various civic boards. They have chosen not to have kids.

Then there are Richard and Leona. For many years, while Leona went to law school, Dick was almost a full-time househusband, caring for their boys, and essentially putting his own career as a writer into a deep freeze. Now that Leona is an established professional and the boys are off to college, Dick's own career has taken an upward turn. He has become a local television celebrity.

As we scanned our list of acquaintances, we also thought about Thomas and Frank — a homosexual couple who have lived quietly together for 25 years, worrying about the house they own, caring for a pair of tiny dogs. Thomas is a court reporter. Frank has retired from a small business. One might argue that they are not a "family," but whatever one's feelings about the matter, they are a household and clearly care for one another.

We also thought of Fran who is in her early 20's and lives with Peter. They are in a "trial marriage." If all works out, they think they will get married next year.

Then there are the multitudes of single parents. We know one divorced woman in her late 40's who is raising her kids on a nice suburban block. Right down the street is a single father who is caring for his kids. The two adults have become friends and lovers. They spend a lot of time together but do not plan to move into the same house or to marry because of the psychological complications for the children.

We also know Paul, who still lives in a functioning commune left over from the 1960's. He and six others not only live but work together in a small and reasonably successful business.

Given enough space, we could go on listing additional varieties of real-life families we know today. But these are enough to suggest the rich variety. (We have, of course, changed people's names and occasionally their occupations.)

Two things strike us as we examine the list. Most of these are white middle-class Americans. We suspect that family patterns would be different — but still diverse — among blue-collar groups and minorities.

The nuclear family is no longer the norm.

Second, the nuclear family survives — and will no doubt continue to survive. It serves many people well. But it is no longer the norm against which all other family forms must be measured. It is, increasingly, only one form among many.

Finally, we look at our own marriage: We have been married for more than 30 years and for many of those years we were a nuclear family. But with a difference. For unlike most, we both always worked together. We still travel together, interview and appear on the same lecture platform or television screen as a team and do research, writing and editing at home.

We are, in fact, a kind of "cottage industry," and now with a word-processor and computer at hand, we have turned our home into an "electronic cottage."

The key point is clear: America has an increasing variety of family structures — one more in keeping with our rapidly diversifying energy system, economy, technology and communications. If there is any lesson for all of us to learn as the Third Wave arrives, it is the lesson of tolerance for diversity. □ response to the factory system at the time of the Industrial Revolution.

In the new environment, nuclear households will no doubt continue to survive. For many people, they work. But this Second Wave family form will hardly dominate the future, as it did the recent past.

What we are seeing today, therefore, is not the death of the family, but the rapid emergence of a Third Wave family system based on many different types of family.

This historic shift to new, more varied and flexible family arrangements is rooted in and related to parallel changes now fast developing in other fields. In fact, we find the same push toward diversity at every level.

The energy system is diversifying, shifting from a near-total reliance on fossil fuels to new, alternative sources of energy. In the world of work, we see a similar trend: Older Second Wave industries engaged in mass production — turning out millions of identical items. Newer Third Wave industries, based on computers, numerical controls and robots, custom-tailor their goods and turn them out in small runs. At the consumer level, we see an increasing variety of products.

The same shift toward diversity is even stronger in communications where the power of the great mass media is increasingly challenged by new "mini-media" — cable TV, satellite-based networks, special-interest magazines. This shift toward diversity amounts to the demassification of the media.

In short, the whole structure of society is moving toward increased diversity. It is hardly surprising that the family system is in tune with this shift. The recent startling changes in American family structure are part of this larger move from a mass society to one that offers a far greater variety of life choice.

Any attempt to go backward to a simpler system dominated by the nuclear family — or by any one model — will fail, just as our attempts to save the economy by "reindustrializing" have failed. For in both cases we are looking backward rather than forward.

To help families adapt to the new Third Wave society, with its diversified energy, production, communications and politics, we should encourage innovations that permit employees to adjust their work hours to personal needs. We should favor "flex-time," part-time work arrangements, job-sharing. We should eliminate housing, tax and credit regulations that discriminate against nonnuclear families. We need more imaginative day-care facilities.

An idea put forward by one businesswoman: a bank of word-processors and a nursery located in a suburban shopping center, so that busy housewives or husbands can put in an hour or two of paid work whenever it is convenient for them, and actually have their kids right there with them.

In short, anything that makes it easier to combine working and self-help, job-work with housework, easier to enter and exit the labor force, could smooth the transition for millions of people who are now caught, as it were, between the old, Second Wave family arrangements and the fast-emerging Third Wave family system.

Rather than wallowing in nostalgia and praising the "good old days" — which were never as good as they may seem in retrospect — we ought to be finding ways to make the new system more decent, responsible, morally satisfying and humane. The first step is an understanding of the Third Wave. FW

At Home with Clair Bee, Super Coach, Super Author

By M.S. Goode

"Who's that guy? That 44?"

"That's Hilton! All-State! Best quarterback in the country!"

"You can say that again! Kicks off, makes the tackle, recovers the fumble and passes for a touchdown!"

"And kicks the goal! He's terrific!"

From A Pass and a Prayer
by Clair Bee

When Clair Bee was a boy, growing up in a boarding-house on a West Virginia mountainside, he realized that he was too small to play football. But instead of giving up, he fashioned himself a wooden nose-guard, attached it to a moleskin helmet with a piece of garter belt and went out to play on the rocks. "That's how I got my first broken nose and a couple of missing teeth," he recalls.

That same spirit infused him during candlelit nights, when he would sit in bed long after the railroad men and miners had gone to sleep, and read of the fabulous feats of Nick Carter and Frank and Dick Merriwell. And from those hardscrabble days and lonesome nights, the spirit of Chip Hilton — his famous fictional hero — was born. Chip Hilton, star of three sports at fabled Valley Falls High and State College and shining exemplar of young American manhood through 23 action-packed novels.

It was in very much the same spirit that Bee took on his first jobs as a basketball coach, first at little Rider College in New Jersey, and later at Long Island University in Brooklyn. In more than two decades of coaching, Bee's teams — nearly always underdogs, just as Chip's were — won a record 82.7 percent of their games. Indeed, Bee's 19 instructional books are considered the bibles of basketball.

Yet even with his remarkable coaching successes, Bee, now a gentle, sharp witted, nearly sightless 84, is most fondly remembered for his mythical Chip, the sinewy pillar of youthful idealism on and off the field, whose sportsmanship never faltered.

The Hilton books are out of print now; it is virtually impossible to find them, even in the most musty of bookstores. (Several publishers, though, are considering reprinting the series.) "I think books like mine went out of style when television came in," says Bee, "and people began to get saturated with sports. But I still think today's kids would read these stories.

Anyway, I'd like to bring mine back."

Before getting into coaching and writing, Bee worked in a variety of jobs. He quarterbacked a semi-pro football team in the days after World War I and later taught high-school accounting. But two pals from his football days wangled three scholarships to tiny Waynesburg College in Pennsylvania and persuaded Bee to join them. After graduation Bee accepted a teaching job at Rider College and reluctantly was persuaded to take over the basketball team.

It was later at tiny LIU, which he built into a national power, that Bee found an adversary who provided the perfect model for Chip — Bob Davies of Seton Hall, a rugged blond sharpshooter who is now enshrined, like Bee, in the Basketball Hall of Fame. "He was such a fine sportsman," Bee recalls. (Davies and Bee later played golf together, but Davies never realized, until Clair gave him one of the books for his son in 1957, that he had been the model for Chip.)

The cruel irony of Bee's coaching life was that some of his players were involved in the point-shaving scandals that all but destroyed college basketball in the early 1950's. This trauma convinced Bee to retire, permanently disheartened, in 1952. "That knocked me out," he recalls sadly. "I never got over it. I tried to coach again, but I never regained the spirit and drive and enthusiasm that I had before."

These days, Clair lives in upstate New York with his wife of 39 years, Mary Margaret. Son Clair Jr. and his family have a house close by, while daughter Cynthia lives in Cleveland with her husband — naturally, a coach. Though he can't see well enough to type anymore, Bee Sr. remains active and has begun mastering the Dictaphone so that he can continue writing instructional books.

"Just five more," he says, "and I'll hang it up for good."

TV

By Mark Goodman

Some years back, a young disc jockey/announcer at a small radio station in New England used to introduce himself thusly on the air: "This is Tadeus Wladyslaw Konopka bringing you five minutes of the latest news." Finally the station manager had to step in. "Tad," he said, "by the time you tell people your name, there's no time left for the news."

Tad took the problem home to his wife, Dorothy. They sat down to look through the telephone directory and, by morning, Ted Knight was born.

The new moniker did not exactly bring newsrooms around the country to a boil until Knight emerged in the early 1970's as Ted Baxter on The Mary Tyler Moore Show. But as fast as you can say, "Hear now the news," Baxter became a watchword for six-o'clock preening and pomposity, causing not a few TV anchormen to wince in embarrassed recognition.

Knight and Nancy Dussault on Too Close for Comfort: Stories underlined with love and concern.

Hear Now Ted Knight

TV's simpering anchorman is back on top with a hot new series. Not bad for a guy whose real name almost ended his career before it began.

And now, after briefly flopping in 1978's The Ted Knight Show (a series about a New York City escort service; the fiasco lasted one month), Ted is back in benighted gear. This time as Henry Rush, the classic beleaguered father in ABC's new hit sitcom Too Close for Comfort.

"Mainly, I'm just glad to be back in a regular job," says Ted of his latest TV success. "I'm at my happiest when I have something to complain about regularly. And my family doesn't suffer as much, since I'm out of the house most of the time."

In a role popularized well nigh to death a generation ago by Fred MacMurray and Robert Young, Knight plays an illustrator of children's books who moonlights as the manager of his San Francisco apartment building. He is also the father of two delightfully wayward daughters (Deborah Van Valkenburgh and Lydia Cornell); and, for a wonder, his wife (Nancy Dussault) is alive and still married to him. When an apartment on a lower floor is vacated by a transvestite tenant, the girls decide to move in downstairs, and the generation-gap merriment proceeds according to Spock, Freud and Knight's own sturdy sense of decorum.

"I believe in the simplicity of the family unit," says Knight, 57, himself married for 32 years and the father of three (Eric, 17, still living at home; Ted, 26, a C.P.A.; and Elyse, 20, an actress studying at U.S.C.). "We're trying to portray the family cell structure in an accelerated society, and doing it without the usual jiggle so prevalent these days. I think there are too many negative relationships glamorized on television, and we want to try to underline our stories with love and concern."

Lou, Mary, Ted on MTM: Turning pomposity into an art.

And perhaps just a touch of Baxter's priggish narcissism? Before the series opened, Knight promised that Rush would be nothing like gaffable Ted. But sure enough, the first laugh in the series's premier came when Knight stepped into the transvestite's all-mirrored bathroom and suddenly smoothed his patented silver hair.

Knight cheerfully confesses, "At least during the early episodes, I resorted to some Baxteresque stuff, if only to wean myself from Baxter. But I'm also giving Henry Rush some bits of business that are entirely his own [e.g. facing the stark truth that Baxter would never have admitted]: I'm 51. I'm as old as Donald Duck."

Indeed, Ted Knight himself may exist between the points where Ted Baxter and Henry Rush merge. Gavin MacLeod, the long-suffering Murray on MTM, once called Ted "a delightful Polish ham." Said MacLeod, "Look at him when he gets into his car to leave the studio. There's Teddy combing his hair in the mirror before he starts the motor. Who knows how many fans will spot him and wave on the freeway?"

And like Baxter, Knight watches his pocketbook very closely. Good friend Ed Asner once quipped, "I don't know how many dinners we had together, and I remember two things about all of them. He was tons of fun, and I always got the check."

Such a tight fist surely derives from a tough childhood as the son of Polish immigrants in Terryville, Conn., a factory town 20 miles west of Hartford. Young Tad's father was a bartender, and the now affluent Knight recalls sleeping three brothers to a bed during the Depression — and speaking no English until he started grade school. "I remember no money, and not even owning a bike," he says. "But I prefer to remember the family gatherings and the stuffed cabbage and duck's-blood soup and the weddings, which were like a Polish Playhouse 90, full of drama and excitement and music and relatives and the smell of food cooking."

After serving in World War II, Ted enrolled in a Connecticut drama school, going on to find work all around New England as a newscaster, talk-show host and even puppeteer. Then over the next 20 years he made appearances in a variety of films, stage shows and radio and TV series, everything from Lux Video Theatre to GunsMoke.

Still, Knight was basically just another silver mane until the The Mary Tyler Moore Show came along. Within the first few episodes, it became obvious that Ted's puffed chest and swollen head were one of the show's main drawing cards and, over the course of the show's seven-year run, MTM's producers and writers played Knight for all he was worth. His popularity even caused Mary to lightly crack, on location one day, "Never try to top children, dog acts or Ted."

The remark was meant in good fun, but it hit right at the heart of Ted's role — a combination of spoiled child and barking seal. Knight showed a keen eye for satire and even self-parody, as in the episode when Ted Baxter got into hot water for telling the Polish jokes Ted Knight has been listening to all his life. As Ted once reflected: "...They're the same jokes that have been told for years about other nationalities, and some of them are pretty funny. I'm tired of them now, but I'm not offended."

"What the jokes don't tell you about, though, is the real substance of the Polish character," he continues. "We're a very proud, stubborn and sentimental people. We also hold a tight reign on our emotions, which may be why there aren't too many Polish actors. Even now, a part of me is still guarded and inhibited. The walls are still up, and I can't give total release to my feelings. So, I pick the easy way out — I hide behind a funny character."

New and Surprising Facts on Fat

By Nancy Josephson

Each year, Americans buy millions of dollars worth of diet books, diet foods and diet aids in hopes of shedding excess weight. For most, their efforts are no more successful than Sisyphus' attempt to roll that rock up the hill and make it stay there.

Now a team of Harvard researchers has come up with a theory supporting what a number of hefties have maintained all along: There's something chemically wrong in their systems, making it difficult to control their weight.

This biochemical abnormality, says Dr. Mario De Luise, the physician who conducted the study, involves an enzyme called sodium/potassium ATPase, which, in below-normal levels in the human body, may actually predispose certain people to gain weight.

The enzyme ATPase exists in all cells in the body and helps burn off 10 to 40 percent of the calories that aren't used up during routine physical activity. But in obese people, the amount of ATPase is 20 to 25 percent lower than it is in those of normal weight. Doctors testing the ATPase levels in the red blood cells only, found that the heavier the patient, the less ATPase he had.

This is not to say that too much food isn't a problem. "Stop eating," says Dr. De Luise, "and you'll lose weight."

But two people, on a markedly reduced intake, will lose weight at different rates. "Some people are born with the unfortunate situation that the amount of food they require to gain weight is much below what the average person eats," Dr. De Luise reports.

Straight Facts About Fat

- You gain weight because you take in more food than you burn off.
- Someone who is old and sedentary will burn up fewer calories than someone young and active.
- Most people who lose weight gain it back, especially if they lose a lot of weight quickly.
- The first weight to go when you're on a diet is water weight. If you eat lots of carbohydrates, you'll put it back on.

- Most fat people have perfectly normal thyroids.
- The most successful diets incorporate some form of behavior modification to change your eating habits and cut your intake at the same time.

HEALTH

If the researchers' theory proves accurate, it would offer some comfort to millions of overweight Americans. The latest Government figures indicate that some 42 million adults are overweight and about half of them — eight million men and 15 million women — are legitimately obese. That means they weigh at least 20 percent over the ideal for their sex, height and age.

The risks of the hefty are many. Such medical problems as high blood pressure, diabetes and hypertension are all aggravated by weight. Excess poundage makes surgery more risky. And, according to the National Center for Health Statistics, obesity was blamed as the cause of 1,019 deaths in 1978.

one with any conclusive proof.

For example, one promising theory recently emerged from laboratories in Canada and Britain. This one suggests that overweight people have less brown fat than skinnies — or, that the brown fat they do have isn't working up to par. Studies with mice indicate that brown fat, called that for its color, burns up extra calories. "The

Some research suggests that when fat people diet, their metabolism slows down, so losing weight takes longer.

De Luise himself says the theory needs more testing in order to prove, beyond a doubt, that low enzyme levels are a cause, not a result, of obesity. But it's clear — at least to his colleagues — that Dr. De Luise has made progress.

"This is the first demonstration of an enzyme abnormality in the cells of fat people," says Dr. Fredda Ginsberg-Fellner, director of pediatric endocrinology and metabolism at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City. "Before this, most people thought you were fat because you ate too much or didn't exercise enough."

Dr. Robert Bernstein, an endocrinologist and director of the weight control unit at St. Luke's — Roosevelt Hospital Center in New York City, adds, "I think the study has credence. "But there's insufficient evidence to say whether this is the case and insufficient evidence to rule it out."

What troubles people most is that with all the theories about the causes of fatness, science has yet to pin down problem with this theory is that it's very exciting business for rats," says University of Vermont professor of medicine Dr. Ethan Sims, referring to recent laboratory experiments. "But its significance for people? We just don't know."

A theory that has held up is the one linking fat babies and fat adults. Dr. Jerome Knittle, director of nutrition and metabolism at Mount Sinai, explains that people who were fat in childhood tend to have an increased number of fat cells. Even if they lose weight, he says, the number of fat cells remains constant (although the actual size gets smaller). This, he concludes, increases the chances of growing fat later.

"There are two crucial times," Dr. Knittle continues. "One is from birth to about 5 years of age and the other is around ages 9, 10, 11 and 12."

Dr. Fredda Ginsberg-Fellner, who worked with him on the study, adds, "Our data indicates that certainly by the age of 2, babies who have too many fat cells are going to continue that way forever. We've followed these children for 15 years. We don't know, however, if you start out clean or if you start out with these fat cells and they enlarge and increase. But the theory says if you have them, you're stuck with them, and it'll be more difficult to lose weight."

There have, of course, been other theories. Some research suggests that, pound for pound, truly fat people need less food than their slimmer friends. Other research indicates that when fat people eat less, their metabolism slows down, so losing weight takes even longer.

No matter what the studies reveal, however, the best solution is diet. Lois Lindauer, national director of The Diet Workshop, based in Brookline, Mass., insists that to lose weight you'll need a formal diet, some knowledge of behavior modification, exercise and nutrition information. Lindauer, a former chubby, says the reason people fail is that they don't see themselves as capable of staying slim.

"You have to make the decision to be thin forever — then make the necessary trade-offs," she says. "I still don't have food in my house that I find hard to handle — food like cake and candy."

Adds Dr. Morton Glenn, a New York City internist, "The trick is to find out why you went off your diet last time. Was it nerves? Anxiety? Depression? The point is to deal with that, then start again."

Ideas for Low-Cost Meals

It seems — especially these days — that we can never get enough thrifty food ideas to tempt the family.

By Marilyn Hansen

NOODLE-CHEESE-VEGETABLE CASSEROLE

- 8 ozs. medium egg noodles (about 4 cups)
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 qts. boiling water
- 1 container (8 ozs.) plain yogurt
- 1 container (8 ozs.) creamed cottage cheese
- 1 pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen cut green beans, thawed
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- Dash Tabasco
- 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

1. Gradually add noodles and salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook, uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.
2. While noodles are cooking, combine yogurt and cottage cheese. In 2-quart round baking dish, combine noodles, yogurt mixture, beans, onion and Tabasco. Top with Cheddar cheese.
3. Bake in 400°F. oven 20 to 25 minutes or until cheese is melted and browned. Makes 4 servings

HONEY-BAKED LENTILS

- 2½ cups, (approximately) cooked lentils or 1 lb., uncooked
 - 1 teaspoon dry mustard
 - ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
 - ½ teaspoon ground black pepper
 - 2 tablespoons soy sauce
 - 1 cup chopped onion
 - 6 slices bacon
 - ½ cup honey
1. Cook lentils in 2½ quarts water in large saucepan about 30 minutes, or until tender; drain. Measure lentils; there should be about 2½ cups.
 2. In 2-quart casserole dish, combine mustard, ginger, pepper and soy sauce. Add onions and cooked lentils.
 3. Cut bacon in 1-inch pieces. Stir half of bacon into lentils with remainder sprinkled over surface.
 4. Pour honey over all. Cover tightly. Bake for 1 hour in 350°F. moderate oven. Uncover last 5 minutes to brown the bacon. Makes 8 servings

This is a great dish for buffet service. Serve with assorted dark breads, cole slaw, cheeses and cold meats.

IDAHO HAM SKILLET

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 2 cups cubed cooked ham
- 1 pkg. (5.5 ozs.) Idaho au gratin potatoes
- 2¼ cups boiling water
- ½ cup milk
- 1 pkg. (9 ozs.) frozen cut green beans

1. In large skillet, melt butter. Add onion and ham and cook until onion is tender.
2. Stir in potatoes and sauce mix; stir in remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling; reduce heat; cover and simmer 30 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Stir once or twice. Makes 4 to 6 servings

SHORT-CUT CASSOULET

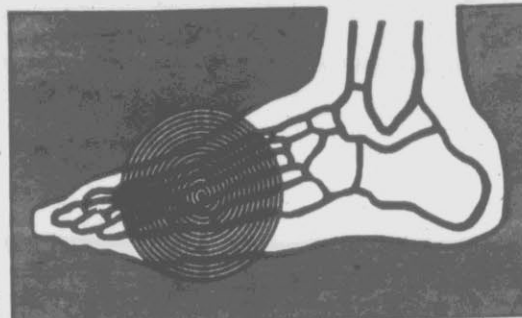

- 1 cup chopped onion
- 2 cups sliced carrot
- 1 green pepper, sliced
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 lb. sweet Italian sausage
- 1 lb. hot Italian sausage
- 2 chicken legs and thighs, split
- 3 cans (16-oz. size) pork and beans in tomato sauce
- ½ cup dry white wine
- 1 apple, peeled, cored and grated
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon basil leaves

1. In large skillet, sauté onion, carrot and green pepper in oil; remove and set aside.
2. In same pan, fry sausage until cooked and lightly browned; remove; cut into 1-inch pieces; set aside. Brown chicken in drippings.
3. Drain excess liquid from beans if necessary to avoid a "soupy" dish, as liquid content varies. Combine beans, onion-carrot mixture with wine, apple, Worcestershire and basil; arrange half the bean mixture in 5-quart casserole dish; top with sausage and chicken then remaining bean mixture.
4. Bake at 350°F. 1 hour or until heated through and flavors have blended. Makes about 8 servings

My Feet Were Killing Me ...Until I Discovered the Miracle in Germany!

It was the European trip I had always dreamed about. I had the time and money to go where I wanted — see what I wanted. But I soon learned that money and time don't mean much when your feet hurt too much to walk. After a few days of sightseeing my feet were killing me.

Oh, I tried to keep going. In Paris I limped through Notre Dame and along the Champs-Élysées. And I went up in the Eiffel Tower although I can't honestly say I remember the view. My feet were so tired and sore my whole body ached. While everybody else was having a great time, I was in my hotel room. I didn't even feel like sitting in a sidewalk cafe.

The whole trip was like that until I got to Hamburg, Germany. There, by accident, I happened to hear about an exciting breakthrough for anyone who suffers from sore, aching feet and legs.

This wonderful invention was a custom-made foot support called Flexible Featherspring. When I got a pair and slipped them into my shoes my pain disappeared almost instantly. The flexible shock absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand, even run. The relief was truly a miracle.

And just one pair was all I needed. I learned that women also can wear them — even with sandals and open backed shoes. They're completely invisible.

Imagine how dumbfounded I was to discover that these miraculous devices were sold only in Europe. Right then I determined that I would share the miracle I discovered in Germany with my own countrymen.

In the last nine years over a quarter million Americans of all ages — many with foot problems far more severe than mine — have experienced this blessed relief for themselves.

Here's why Feathersprings work for them and why they can work for you. These supports are like nothing you've ever seen before. They are custom formed and made for your feet alone! Unlike conventional devices, they actually imitate the youthful elastic support that Nature originally intended your feet to have.

Whatever your problem — corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve ends, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet, Flexible Feathersprings will bring you relief with every step you take or your money back.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, the miracle of Germany can help you. Write for more detailed information. There is no obligation whatsoever. No salesman will call.

WHAT PEOPLE SAY ABOUT THE MIRACLE:

"Received my wife's Feathersprings two days ago. They are super — neither of us can believe the results. She has had terrible feet for years; already no pain. Incidentally, her sore knee is much better. . . . As a retired physician, this result is amazing."

Dr. C.O.C./Tucson, Arizona.

"My husband felt a great relief and no more pain. They are truly an answer to our prayers. Only wish that he had heard of them twenty years ago."

Mrs. F.S./Metairie, Louisiana.

"I have checked your corporation with (A Consumer Protection Agency), and received an excellent report."

H.S.H./Louisville, Kentucky.

"I have been wearing your Featherspring Foot Supports for over a year now, and I just want to let you know the great comfort I am experiencing. Prior to wearing them, the pain and swelling in both feet and legs, especially the right, made me feel so drained. I too, say a million thanks for my Featherspring Foot Supports. Feel free to use my name. I have recommended them to many of our Sisters suffering from foot trouble."

- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

1. In large saucepan or Dutch oven, sauté turkey, onion and garlic in oil over medium-high heat about 4 minutes.

2. Stir in remaining ingredients; cover and simmer for 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Spoon into soup bowls and serve with rice.

Makes 2 quarts, 8 servings

MICHIGAN PORK AND BEAN SOUP

- 3 cups chicken broth
- 1 lb. (3 medium) potatoes peeled and cut in 1/2-inch cubes
- 1 small onion, finely chopped
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced celery
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 1 small bay leaf
- 2 cans (1-lb. size) beans in tomato sauce
- 2 cups diced cooked ham, roast pork, cooked chicken or turkey
- Salt
- Freshly ground black pepper

1. In saucepan, bring broth to boil. Add potatoes, onion, celery, garlic and bay leaf. Cover and simmer until potatoes are tender (about 10 minutes).

2. Add beans and diced ham. Stir and simmer 10 minutes more. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Serve in large bowls.

Makes about 2 quarts, 6 to 8 servings

Microwave Method:

1. In 2-quart glass or porcelain casserole, mix all ingredients except salt and pepper. Cover with plastic wrap. Cook in microwave oven 10 minutes. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

Easter Surprises!

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

You can create these decorative eggs easily.

Dipping, dyeing and decorating eggs have long been a part of welcoming spring. This year, why not try something different by creating unusual and dramatic designs using a common pin and melted wax or crayons. The designs are all created with one simple stroke, so no artistic ability is required. The variations are almost endless. It is a fascinating process, similar to that used for making the famous Ukrainian eggs, but requiring no special tools.

You can also make fabric-covered eggs with miniature scenes inside, bunny baskets so small they hold only one jelly bean, crocheted granny-square Easter baskets that hold a flowerpot after the candy is gone and even knitted chickens!

Surprisingly easy to make are fabric-covered panorama eggs. These are a modern-day version of an old favorite, where a miniature scene is created in one-half of the egg using small figures or greeting-card cutouts. The eggs are plastic, and the addition of an acetate window adds to the illusion of peering into a magic make-believe world.

A springtime bouquet in a basket is another elegant project. The technique involved is simple. Eggs — real, foam or plastic — are decorated with designs and then sprinkled with "diamond" dust.

basket, crocheted in pastel shades of pinks, greens and yellows, will hold Easter grass and candy. Later, with the handle removed, it easily becomes a flowerpot holder. The larger chickens can hold small gifts or candy inside their plastic egg bodies and, like their smaller, real egg counterparts, make a lovely centerpiece.

Now is the time to get ready for spring with these fun-for-everyone projects. Complete instructions on all of the items mentioned, along with photographs and illustrations, are included in our leaflet.

PEOPLE
QUIZ

Health and a Happy Love Life: Is There One Without the Other?

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The happier you are, the longer you're likely to live.

2. A man's psychological health and the quality of his marital sexual relations are closely related.

3. If you are an anxiety-prone person, instead of increasing your chances of getting coronary heart disease, it may actually reduce them.

4. If your life is filled with stress, such as working under pressure, it cannot help but take a toll, both mentally and physically.

5. There are certain mental attitudes which heighten a person's vulnerability to a life-threatening disease.

ANSWERS

1. True. Veterans Administration studies show that people who are 'allergic to happiness,' who lead dull, inactive lives and whose feeling of enjoyment is lacking in situations where it is normally present run the risk of shorter life spans than people whose styles of living bring them enjoyment and satisfaction.

2. True. A longitudinal study of married men, sponsored by the National Institute of Mental Health, explores this interesting question. Psychological health of subjects was determined by a battery of tests, including ratings by a panel of judges and the subjects' self-ratings. Findings show that "men who greatly enjoy their marital sexual relations are likely to be more mentally healthy than men who either mildly or definitely do not enjoy such relations."

3. True. A team of specialists from two universities (University of Southern California and Duke University Medical Center) cite findings indicating that highly anxious persons may behave in ways that actually reduce the risk of coronary heart disease. And "patients with a history of myocardial infarction were found to be significantly less anxious than persons without such history." It is concluded that high anxiety may serve a protective function.

4. False. A Washington State University study explored the relationship between stressful life events, personality trait patterns and development of health-threatening symptoms. It was found that except in extreme doses, stressful life events do not precipitate the development of such symptoms for relatively normal, psychologically healthy individuals. And as University of Kentucky research shows, it's not the amount of stress, but the ability of the individual to cope with it which determines the health response.

5. True. Menninger Foundation studies show that a life-threatening disease is likely to be preceded by "a sense of helplessness or hopelessness and some degree of resignation from life." Other research is reported which bears out these findings. It is interesting to note the highly important role that morale has been found to play — both in resistance to disease and recovery from it.

"Million Dollar" Zoysia Lawn! Water Once! Never Needs Watering Again!

UP TO 900
PLUGS!

Lakeland's Famous 30-Below-Zero Zoysia Takes Wear, Tear, Cookouts, Children's Games... After 30 Below Zero Winters, it Bounces Back Green, Thick, and Beautiful! Closest Thing To An Indestructible Lawn You Have Ever Seen!

Zoysia Lawn Wasn't Mowed For A Month! Not A Weed In Sight!

By Mike Senkiw, Agronomist, Lakeland Nurseries

If your family is like mine, you're squeezing every dollar to make sure you have enough to go around. And it looks like things are going to stay that way.

One way to cut expenses is to cut the costs, and work, of lawn care. For example, a woman wrote about her zoysia lawn that she had mowed it only twice ALL SUMMER. She hadn't spent a cent on weed-killers. Not one cent for fertilizers. Yet her lawn was as green and weed-free as a pile carpet.

ZOYSIA LAWNS STAY GREEN THROUGH HEAT AND DROUGHTS

Let the scorching sun burn lawns around you into hay—your zoysia stays fresh and green, an emerald isle of beauty. I have yet to water my own zoysia lawn. One day I saw that my sprinkler had gotten cobwebs! In Iowa, a zoysia lawn was declared the area's "Top Lawn—nearly perfect." Yet this lawn had been watered only once that entire summer!

CUT YOUR WATER BILLS. SAVE THE WORK OF LAWN SPRINKLING. START A FAMOUS ZOYSIA GRASS LAWN NOW.

Weed-killing chemicals are NOT NEEDED for a weed-free Famous Zoysia Lawn

How is it possible that Famous Meyer Z-52 Zoysia stays weed-free without using expensive, risky chemicals? It grows so thick that crabgrass (weed) seeds don't get enough light to germinate!

Has Cut Mowing To Once A Month

Zoysia grows sideways, not just up like ordinary grass. It forms a thick, interwoven carpet of turf that keeps its well-groomed look weeks longer. It cuts your mowing by half, 2/3 or more!

No-Reseeding—Not Ever!—With Lakeland's Famous Zoysia

Plug in Lakeland Zoysia and never buy grass seed again. Zoysia lawns don't grow old; they just grow better. They sparkle under 100° heat... stay green through droughts. They resist diseases and insects which ruin ordinary grasses. After sharp frosts, they only give up their green color, then green up better than ever each following Spring. Famous Zoysia gives you the closest thing to an indestructible lawn you have ever seen.

Ends Washouts on Steep Slopes Perfect Where Other Grasses Do Poorly Deep-rooted zoysia holds soil in place, stops it from washing away from slopes. It's your perfect answer for worn out or weedy areas, too.

In a typical newspaper article I read (quote):

NO NEED TO DIG UP YOUR LAWN PLUG IN Z 52 ZOYSIA

"upgrading your current lawn" requires the right selection of grass seed plus "regular applications of fertilizer (and lime where needed)." This article also said you need, "weed, insect and disease control." Sound familiar? Of course!

Why not forget all that work and expense, and plug in Famous Meyer Z-52 Zoysia? To upgrade your lawn with zoysia, don't dig it up. Just set plugs into holes in the soil a foot apart or less. Let those plugs spread toward each other so form a carpet of solid turf. Growth is so vigorous it chokes out old growth you want to get rid of. WEEDS INCLUDED.

From Coast to Coast People Write to Mike Senkiw

From Hudson, N.Y., E. La-Roche writes how he planted plugs "in the worst possible place—clay with weeds and gravel... It formed a 4" thick carpet of grass. Not children, dogs, cats, rabbits, extremely hot sun or drought could kill it."

From Sacramento, Calif., Jack Morse writes how he bought our Zoysia "for a yeed infested spot—it took care of the problem."

From Indiana, M.A. Low, Sr. writes how he visited a physician friend in Albert Lea, Minn. where he saw a "whole back yard was entirely in zoysia and it was beautiful... a deep green."

The success of many thousands of delighted Famous Zoysia owners awaits you. Prove it to yourself today.

"Same Day Fresh"

The day we cut your plugs is the day they are on their way to you. Because freshness counts, Lakeland has 2 shipping points, one in the Midwest and one in the East. Your plugs go out from the nearest point "Same Day Fresh" and ready to grow, shipping charge collection the most economical way. On credit card orders, the shipping cost will be prepaid by us and billed to your account.

Poor Soil? No Problem!

Our Famous Zoysia plugs are so vigorous we guarantee them to grow whatever your soil—from heavy clays to sandy sub-soils. You cannot lose.

IT'S SO EASY AND INEXPENSIVE TO START A MAGNIFICENT ZOYSIA LAWN

Start your own magnificent, perennial zoysia lawn with as few as 100 plugs. Just let your plugs establish solid turf. Then take up transplants and plug in other places to your heart's desire. Plugged areas grow right back into solid turf. Your supply of plugs is endless.

Prices and Bargains

If you plant more grass that sits there and struggles—or dies on you—you may not miss your work and money. It's the time you cannot recover! So please don't confuse Lakeland's 30-Below-Zero Zoysia with an ordinary turf offered as a "bargain." If our plugs cost a little more in the beginning, they remain, in the long run, the only true bargain for your lawn.

Order guaranteed Famous zoysia plugs now, for delivery from our nearest shipping point. Your order will be sent at the earliest proper time to plant in your area.

Lakeland's Total Guarantee

- Drought Won't Kill It
- Heat Won't Kill It
- Cold Won't Kill It
- Disease Won't Kill It

Even though we don't know your soil, we guarantee EVERY plug of Famous Z-52 Zoysia to live and grow in it. No ifs. No buts. Should any plugs fail to grow, just let us know within 60 days. We replace them FREE. That guarantee clearly means that Famous Zoysia has to do everything we say—and more! Otherwise there's no way we could give you such unique protection.

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass was perfected by the U.S. Govt. and released in co-operation with the U.S. Golf Association.

YOUTH

Now's the Time to Start a Summer Job Hunt

By Lesly Berger

It's difficult for students to think about summer when they're smack in the middle of winter. But, according to Mary Degonia, policy analyst with the National Youth Work Alliance in Washington, D.C., high-school students who want jobs this summer should start hunting now.

"There is a shortage of summer jobs for young people right now," says Ms. Degonia, "so those who start looking early will have a better chance to find them." For example, Walt Disney World, in Lake Buena Vista, Fla., which expects to hire approximately 800 young people this sum-

send away for the pamphlet, "Summer Jobs — Opportunities in the Federal Government, Announcement No. 414." It's available from the Federal Job Information Center, Office of Personnel Management, 26 Federal Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10278.

"Another way that young people can find summer work is through areas in their community that are especially active in summer, such as nearby resorts, camps, beaches, rural and urban parks, amusement parks, restaurants and fast food chains," Mr. Fishman says. Teen-agers can check the want ads in their local newspaper and also visit establishments in person to ask if there are openings.

mer. will complete its hiring by mid-May — so applications should be requested right away.

A good way to begin a job search is by getting any paperwork out of the way early. For instance, possession of a Social Security card is a prerequisite for many jobs. Teen-agers who do not already have their Social Security cards can apply for them at local Social Security offices. In addition, many states require working papers for those under 18 years old.

"The school guidance office is really the first place a student should turn to when looking for summer employment," says Betty Thielemann, career coordinator of the Career Center at New Trier Township High School in Northfield, Ill. According to Ms. Thielemann, guidance counselors can help students prepare a good résumé and learn about specific job openings available in the community.

Herman Fishman, senior employment manager of the Joint High School Program in New York City, suggests that, since the Government is by far the largest employer of young people, teen-agers should contact state employment services and city or county agencies to find out what jobs are available locally. They should also

While the competition for most summer jobs promises to be keen, Stephanie Skurdy, manager of corporate communications for McDonald's in Oak Brook, Ill., says that young people with the right kind of attitude will still have a good chance of being hired. "We look for people who seem to really want to be part of a team and who get along well with others. They should be flexible enough to work on weekends and holidays."

Teen-agers can also consider starting their own little businesses. The going rate for yard work can be as high as $5.00 per hour, for baby-sitting, $2.00 an hour. Ask around to find out what rates are in your area.

As a parent, there are many ways you can help your teen-ager. "Remember that getting that first job is an intimidating experience," Ms. Degonia says. "Be supportive of your child's efforts and try to instill in him or her a sense of self-confidence." Ms. Degonia recommends that parents give their children guidance in filling out job applications and "role play" interview situations.

However, Ms. Degonia cautions against parental overinvolvement. After all, it's your child's summer job; your job will be to show your confidence in his or her ability.

Next time you wonder why movie tickets are so expensive, keep this in mind: Of its $250,000 Oscar promotion budget, Paramount recently spent over $5,000 in trade ads to tout a baby and an inflatable doll for Academy Awards. Popeye's precocious Wesley Ivan Hurt was pushed for Best Supporting Infant, while Otto the Automatic Pilot was extolled as Best Supporting Actor for Airplane.

Who says Hollywood is a crazy town?

CRAMPING YOUR STYLE

On all of God's earth, probably nothing hurts more than a leg cramp in the dead of night. This can occur when the foot flops downward and the calf muscles suddenly contract.

The cramps often come at night because the foot may be stretched and the calf muscles offer no resistance until the cramping occurs, Baltimore neuro-surgeon Dr. Israel Weiner noted in Health Insurance News. Dr. Weiner advises that if you sleep on your stomach, let your feet hang over the end of the bed; if you sleep on your back, keep the covers loose around your feet.

The best remedy for a sudden calf cramp? Grab your toes and pull them toward your knees.

THE

Joanne Kaplan

Roughly 1.8 million taxpayers — or 2 percent — are audited by the Internal Revenue Service each year. And if that ominous day does come, it's no laughing matter. "The I.R.S. has very broad powers," notes professor Samantha Sanchez of Catholic University's Columbus School of Law. "If they believe you owe them, and you refuse to cooperate, they can take your car or freeze the money in your bank account. If you don't think you owe them, contact the I.R.S. immediately."

"However," adds Sanchez, "you do have rights, and you shouldn't automatically accept what the I.R.S. agents say." In fact, the I.R.S. puts out a free booklet explaining your rights in an audit and how to go about one. Call your local I.R.S. office (listed in the phone book under U.S. Government) and ask for publication #556.

VOYAGE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE POOL

To show what a person can accomplish under stress, Mark Crooks has body-floated 360 miles down the Missouri River, jumped off a 91-foot high bridge, driven a car into a lake and recently spent 45 hours underwater in a Kansas City pool.

Crooks, who holds a Ph.D. in exercise physiology, fell short of the Guinness world record of 67 hours underwater. He suffered no hallucinations (as feared) or physical ill effects. However, despite coating himself with layers of Vaseline, the pool's high level of chlorine rubbed his hands and feet raw and forced him out.

"Most people are immobilized by their fears and never achieve their full potential," says Crooks. "In all my carefully controlled experiments — these are not stunts — I've shown that if a person is in excellent condition, he can overcome his fears and his body [will] show no physical signs of stress." As an infant, Crooks, now 36, was given up for dead because of internal bleeding.

He overcame cancer at age 8, rheumatic fever at 9. He was in a near-fatal motorcycle accident at 26 and, a few months later, a shotgun blew up in his hand. He reflects: "It's like Edgar Allan Poe once wrote, 'I stood on the precipice, looked down, slipped and walked on.'"

Crooks plans to attempt the underwater experiment again very soon and, for his next feat, will try to take a blood sample during an aerial freefall.

ALCOHOL & SEX

Drinking large quantities of alcohol on a regular basis can lead to sterility and impotence in men, a new study reports.

Previous thought linked alcohol-induced liver damage with these sexual problems, but, according to 10 years of research by Dr.

David Van Thiel of the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine, alcohol directly affects the testes themselves and certain parts of the brain — including glands that control the function of the testes.

"It's long been known that four or five drinks at a sitting can cause temporary impotence," says Van Thiel. "But men who consume about a pint of liquor a day for five years or so — and that's nine million Americans by conservative estimates — are risking permanent, irreversible impotence and sterility."

FUTURE SHOCK

The Wallaces, that prolific family who brought us The People's Almanac and The Book of Lists, have a new one out — The Book of Predictions. Here are 10 happenings their experts foresee over the next 10 years:

People work a four-day, 32-hour week; most homes have flushless toilets; your TV set gets 300 channels; the U.S. Government nationalizes all gasoline stations; a locust plague sweeps the Eastern U.S.

The first human being is cloned; areas of Texas and California split off to form new states; wrist telephones are popular; a male astronaut in outer space kills a crewmate over a woman; Roger Maris's home run record of 61 is broken.

Stay tuned.

SPACE SHOT! Which heavenly body is famous for wine-making? The Planet of the Grapes. Which two nursery rhymes mention the planet Saturn? Little Miss Muffet Saturn a tuffet, and Little Jack Horner Saturn a corner.

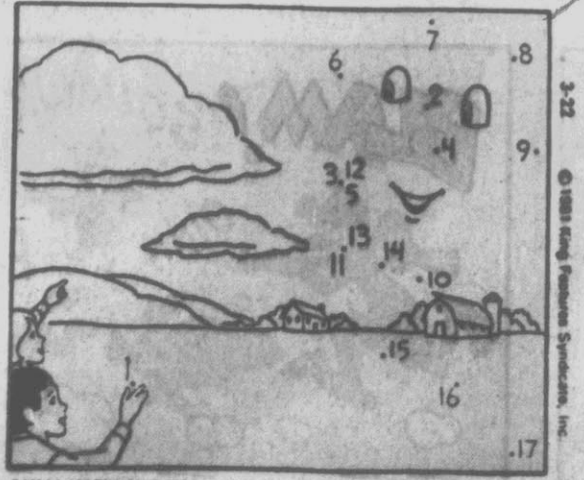

Think Back! Let's say Julius Caesar was born in 102 B.C. and died in 44 B.C. How old was Caesar four years before he died?

Money Talks! "I, sir, will have no part of a U.S. Grant," said the die-hard rebel, refusing to accept a U.S. dollar bill. Fill blank.

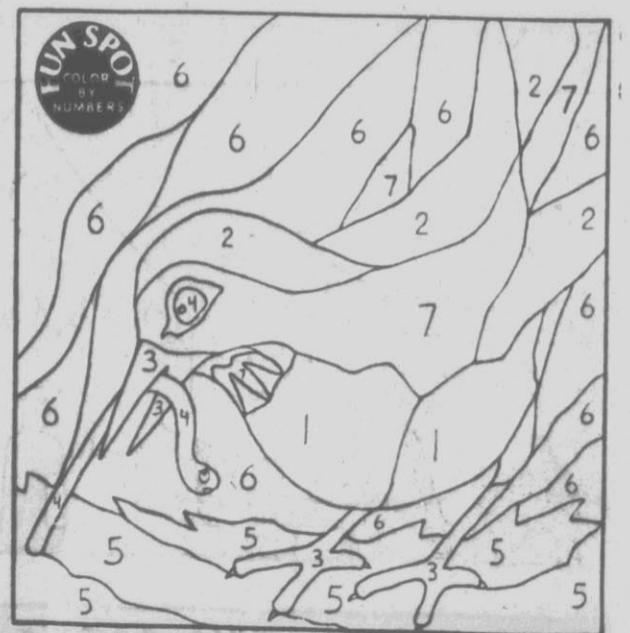

Tongue Tests: Steve Weaver's sister Sarah sells slinky satin slips. Jolly Jill lifted jaunty John. Tremblin' gremlins quit the Kremlin. Say them fast.

ALTERATIONS GOING ON!

Read this verse-riddle over carefully: This mystery word is a noun in plural number. 'Tis the name of such things that banish peace and slumber. To this word just add the letter S, and a strange thing takes place, all will confess. Plural it was, but it's plural no more. For all is sweet, what was bitter before. What's it all about? Cakes becomes cars.

SKYLINE! Something in the sky is attracting attention above. What can it be? To find out, add line dot to dot.

Our Story: SPRING HAS VANQUISHED WINTER, AND PRINCE VALIANT'S HEART IS LIGHT. HE WRITES TO ALETA IN CAMELOT. SHE WILL FORGIVE HIS ABSENCE--UNTIL HIS RETURN. NOW HE LOOKS FORWARD TO THE COMPANY OF HIS FATHER. BUT HOW HE HAS AGED!

AND HOW LITTLE TIME HE SEEMS TO HAVE. THRICE VAL HAS BEEN RUDELY BARRED FROM KING AGUAR'S CHAMBERS.

ONE DAY HE STORMS INSIDE TO FIND HIS FATHER TALKING STRATEGY WITH HIS GENERALS. AGUAR IS EMBARRASSED. "I DID NOT WANT TO TROUBLE YOU WITH PETTY MATTERS. THERE HAS BEEN A WEE REVOLT."

"FOR YEARS HAP ATLA AND I HAVE LEFT ALONE THE MOUNTAIN TRIBES THAT STRADDLE OUR COMMON BORDER. NOW COMES DALGRIND, WHO WARMS THEIR BLOOD WITH PROMISES OF A KINGDOM. MANY OF MY VASSALS HAVE FLED FOR THEIR LIVES."

VAL REMEMBERS DALGRIND, SON OF THE VALGRIND WHOSE PLOT TO USURP KING AGUAR'S THRONE COST HIM HIS LIFE. DID DALGRIND SEEK REVENGE?

"MY LORD," INTERRUPTS A MESSENGER. "DALGRIND SENDS HIS REPLY TO YOUR TERMS FOR PEACE." AGUAR OPENS THE CASKET... AND RECOILS IN HORROR. HIS EMISSARY'S HEAD LIES PACKED IN ICE. CLIPPED TO ITS MATTED LOCKS THERE IS THIS NOTE: "SEND ME ANOTHER."

WOW! IT'S NINE O'CLOCK ALREADY?

NO, DAD! IT'S ONLY SEVEN FORTY-FIVE!

THE CLOCK IS GAINING FIVE AND A HALF MINUTES MORE AN HOUR THAN IT WAS LAST WEEK!

THAT DOES IT! WE'RE GETTING A NEW CLOCK! I'M TIRED OF NEEDING A SLIDE RULE TO FIGURE OUT WHAT TIME IT IS!

DAD, DID YOU ORDER TWO CLOCKS?

NO, ARCHIE, JUST ONE! I'D BETTER WRITE TO THE COMPANY AND TELL THEM THEY GOOFED!

NEXT WEEK! HEY, DAD, LOOK-- ANOTHER PACKAGE FROM THE CLOCK COMPANY!

OH, NO! THOSE IDIOTS SENT TWO MORE CLOCKS!

MIGHT AS WELL GIVE UP, DAD. WE'RE AT THE MERCY OF THEIR COMPUTERS!

NO WAY! I'M DETERMINED TO GET THAT PILE OF WIRES AND TRANSISTORS TO ADMIT THEIR MISTAKE!

A FEW WEEKS LATER!

HOW'S DAD COMING ALONG WITH HIS WAR WITH THE CLOCK COMPANY COMPUTERS?

IT'S SO FUNNY! HE JUST RECEIVED TWELVE MORE CLOCKS TODAY!

HOW IS HE TAKING IT?

I THINK YOU'D BETTER COME INTO THE KITCHEN AND SEE FOR YOURSELF!

WELL, ISN'T ANYONE GOING TO ASK ME WHAT TIME IT IS IN BRISBANE, ISTANBUL, JOHANNESBURG, OR HONOLULU?

The PHANTOM

by Lee Falk

FANNY, THIS MAN... PRETENDING TO BE THE NON-EXISTENT PHANTOM, GAVE ME A START.

NONEXISTENT? JUST PRETEND I'M NOT HERE, PRINCE.

IT WILL DO YOU NO GOOD TO ROB ME. MY SOLDIERS SURROUND THIS PLACE.

I'M NOT HERE TO ROB YOU.

I BRING A PROTEST FROM 10 NATIONS... ABOUT YOUR PROTECTING FUGITIVE CRIMINALS HERE.

A MASKED MAN... PRETENDING TO BE THE PHANTOM... EXPECT ME TO BELIEVE YOU?

THIS PROVES WHAT I SAY.

PRINCE BUZABAL... THIS MAN, MR. WALKER... SPEAKS FOR US.

X. X. X. LAMUDA LUAGA PRES. BANGALLA
 J. GORANDA PRES. IVORY-LANA

THEY CHOSE AN ODD AMBASSADOR. HMM... COULD BE FORGED. NO MATTER.

FOR THE GHOST WHO WALKS.

THEY DON'T KNOW WHAT I'M REALLY DOING WITH THEIR CRIMINALS!

YES, I RECEIVE THEIR RIFRAFF... THEIR CROOKS AND KILLERS.

HAPPY NEW YEAR... IT'S NOT NEW YEARS, EVERY DAY'S NEW YEARS HERE.

BUT A TIME COMES WHEN THEY STAND BEFORE ME... WHERE YOU STAND...

WHAT SENTENCE?

THEN I AM JUDGE AND JURY! I PRONOUNCE THEIR SENTENCE.

THE CHUTE!!

WE LET THEM HAVE FUN...

COULD I HAVE A GRILLED CHEESE AND A SHAKE?

TODAY'S SPECIAL IS A FANTASTICAL FRENCH CASSEROLE.

OH?

IT'S A SPINACH PURÉE WITH A CHEESE AND WINE SAUCE.

YOU WANNA TRY SOME?

Voilà!

GLICK!

UH, SORRY, ROZ...

FLASH GORDON

by Dan Barry

FLASH TRIES TO KNOCK OUT THE COMPUTER "BRAIN" -- BUT...

ALARM!

IT'S PROTECTED BY A FORCE-SHIELD!

ARMED ROBOTS!

I'LL LET THE SUPER-BRAIN'S FORCE-SHIELD PROTECT ME!

UH-OH! THEY'RE COMING FROM ALL SIDES! DOESN'T LOOK TOO ROSY...

PHEW!! CHAIN REACTION!!

SOUNDS LIKE THE FOURTH OF JULY!
