WAR GAMES USED TO THREATEN POLISH UNIONISTS - Infantry fighting vehicles cross a pontoon bridge somewhere in Poland as Warsaw Pact maneuvers continue. The war games and the publicity given to them were seen as a threat to the

Critical Polish Parleys Resume Under The Gun

BYDGOSZCZ, Poland (AP) - Labor leader Lech Walesa and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski resume critical negotiations today under the twin threats of new nationwide strikes and the spring war games in and around Poland by the Soviet army and other Warsaw Pact troops.

Polish Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania warned Walesa's Solidarity labor federation that its threat of four-hour strikes by 10 million members on Friday and a nationwide general strike Tuesday was an invitation to suicide.

After a two-day recess for meetings of Solidarity leaders, Walesa and Rakowski were making another try at defusing Poland's worst crisis since the nationwide strike wave last summer spawned the independent labor movement.

They were seeking to resolve the union's demand that the government fire three officials Solidarity blames for the police beating of 23 unionists in this northwestern city last Thursday, the first official use of force against Solidarity members.

Walesa told Warsaw Radio he hoped the negotiations would yield "satisfactory" results and end the need for a general strike. But the federation increased its demands on the government.

Solidarity's national commission voted earlier Tuesday to call a four-hour nationwide warning strike on Friday, followed by a general "sit-in" strike next Tuesday if the demands were not met. Before the vote of 35-3 with two abstentions, Walesa overcame a mini-rebellion by militants demanding immediate strike action and the breakoff of negotiations with the government.

Kania warned that the strike threat pushed the debt-ridden communist nation to the brink of explosion.

"Who has the courage to make out of a local incident a national cause threatening catastrophe?" he asked in a speech to agricultural officials broadcast by Warsaw Radio. "How can one call for strikes in this situation?"

He cited Poland's $27 billion debt to the West and said, "We have to undertake more. Export is dropping because of decreasing production. This diminishes possibilities to buy food and increases our debts.

"We are debating at a difficult moment for the country, the most dangerous since the August crisis. The economic crisis has been compounded by a deep political crisis. In such a situation, how should we understand the call to strikes? It cannot be understood otherwise than a call to self-annihilation."

This appeared to renew the threat of military intervention by the Soviet or Polish armies, possibly under the guise of the current maneuvers. Film clips and radio reports of the annual spring war games have become a daily staple on the government TV network.

A summit meeting Tuesday of the European Common Market nations cautioned against Soviet Bloc military intervention, saying Poland "has shown that she is capable of facing her internal problems herself" and "should continue to do so... without outside interference."

Development Pre-Application Is Approved

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer Congressman Walter Jones confirmed today the approval by the Department of Housing and Urban Development of Greenville's pre-application for funding under the Small Cities Community Development program.

The pre-application approval for Greenville involves $996,200 or the proposed first year funding. The total three-year grant request for the South Evans CD project is some $3 million.

Jones said that Greenville and other cities receiving pre-application approval may submit a full application for funding "at such time as they are officially notified of the approval action."

The congressman noted that HUD also approved pre-applications submitted by Bethel for $500,000 in CD funds and Fountain for $350,800. Both of those Pitt towns will now be able to submit full applications for funding consideration.

Until now, the city had been unsuccessful in its pre-application efforts for CD small cities money. Greenville's pre-applications were turned

Teacher Aide Cuts Face Pitt Schools

By MELVIN LANG Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County schools stand to lose about $800,000 in federal funds through proposed cutbacks in spending by the Reagan administration, but School Superintendent Ott Alford says all professional teaching positions appear safe.

Alford said budgetary adjustments may, however, cause a sharp reduction in the number of teaching aides, especially those in the middle grades and those in small classes.

Alford also said he expects to maintain a free lunch program for 1981-82, although about $400,000 of the projected reduction in federal funding would be for food services.

Alford and Naomi Edwards, finance officer for the Greenville city school system, discussed their budget processes Tuesday night at a forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters. They were joined on the program by Jim Wall, a staff member of the comptroller's office for the state Board of Education.

Mrs. Edwards devoted her presentation to a review of how a budget is adopted.

Alford, who elaborated on his remarks today, said he anticipates a reduction of about $250,000 in federal Title I funds, which go for handicapped children capable of being educated; $60,000 in a program for exceptional children and $30,000 for two occupational positions.

"But I don't anticipate we will lose any teaching positions in the county. Our recommendation will affect the non-professional (teaching) aides," he said.

However, Alford said he was making that projection on the premise that Gov. Jim Hunt and area legislators will be able to block a move in the Legislature to trim state funding to public schools.

Proposals now before the General Assembly call for the elimination of up to 9,500 teaching aides across the state. The legislative package also would reduce teacher workdays and raise class size in grades kindergarten through three from 26 pupils to 29.

Alford told the League of Women Voters' audience that the budget restraints will make this "a day when common sense will come in... (and) I'm not too sure it's not good."

"Sometimes we have more funds than the managerial skill to get the most for the dollars," he said.

Alford said he expects to keep the free lunch program, which now goes to 70 percent of the students in the county school system, by offering more "supplemental" items for sale in cafeteria lines. Those items, such as alternative beverages and snack foods, were begun in the late 1970s.

"We found that many of those receiving free lunches were buying supplemental items," Alford said. "Our scheme probably will be to use these supplemental items to cover costs... selling things kids like."

Alford said he wasn't "too alarmed" at the budget problems.

"We're going to pick up and go on with it the best we can," he said.

Capital Outlay Sum For Pitt Schools Requested

By MARY SCHULKEN Reflector Staff Writer

After hearing presentations from representatives of Ayden Middle, the Winterville schools and Chicod on serious capital outlay needs, the Pitt County Board of Education last night directed Assistant Sup't. Thomas Craft to prepare a budget asking for $2,128,700 in county funds for capital outlay.

This figure would provide enough money to complete the Ayden Middle School project and begin construction on a new facility. Included is an allotment for a new cafeteria at Chicod, an enclosed walkway at A.G. Cox and funds for other projects around the county.

Spokesman for the Ayden community Robert Long addressed the board during its workshop session on what he termed "unsafe and unpleasant conditions at Ayden Middle." Long asked that the new facility, in the works since the early 1970's, be the board's priority in the 1981-82 capital outlay budget.

Long noted that rotten ceilings and warped floors exist throughout the present facility, built in 1929, and called the heating system "inadequate."

"We have been in a situation for years," explained Elaine King, guidance counselor at Ayden Middle, "where new (Please turn to Page 16)

Vice President Designated To Key National Security Role

WASHINGTON (AP) - Vice President George Bush is being given a key national security role following a bitter power struggle in which Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., the self-described "general manager of foreign policy," emerged as a clear loser.

Bush's appointment Tuesday night as chairman of a "crisis management team" came several hours after Haig made the unusual admission in testimony on Capitol Hill that he had not been consulted and was unhappy about the prospective decision.

There were rumors - quickly and emphatically denied by the State Department - that Haig had threatened to resign if Bush were appointed.

And presidential press secretary James S. Brady said today that both White House and State Department officials had assured him Haig was "totally on board." On Capitol Hill, Senate Republican leader Howard Baker told reporters he had "no indication that he will resign."

Brady said Reagan had called Haig to inform him of the decision Tuesday. Brady described it as a "good conversation" and said Haig "had concurred in the decision."

The press secretary also said, "My sense is this had been discussed with him" before the first accounts of the plan were published last weekend. That comment conflicted with Haig's testimony Tuesday.

The skirmishing offered fresh evidence that the Reagan administration, at least during its first two months in office, is no more successful than its predecessors in avoiding infighting over control of foreign policy.

In his new role Bush will be responsible for coordinating the government's response to foreign and domestic emergencies.

Brady said Bush will chair the team in President Reagan's absence.

DRUG PRICE SOUND OFF

I know that it's legal for a store to charge whatever it can get for a product. But I don't think it's ethical. I was appalled to find that for months and years now, my brothers and sisters and I have been paying way more than I had to for my 80-year-old mother's medicine. We are not well-off people, so I feel extremely offended now that I've learned the truth. I won't use names of specific stores, but I'd like for the public to know that they should call and ask about prices before they buy medicine. A hundred five-milligram tablets of Ritalin can vary from $12.48 to $17.09 at Greenville drug stores; Limbitrol (100 tablets), from $16.09 to $19.35! And people should not be deceived by the implications of the word discount in names and in advertising by any particular firm. Mrs. I. B.

Farmville Woman Now Missing Since Mar. 2

By CAROL TYER Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE - Until Mar. 2, 1981, Mrs. Charlie Dean Harper lived a quiet life, almost entirely within the confines of the well-kept house at 514 Cameron Street here.

"Mama, you raised me by myself," she used to tell her mother, Mrs. Addie Ross, "and I just don't like getting out with other people. I like to stay home. I like being by myself."

The most important people in her life seemed to be her husband, Lafayette Harper, who died of cancer in 1973; her daughters, Ila, now 15, and Tina, now 14; her father, Eddie Ross, who died of cancer in 1972; and her mother, Mrs. Ross, who came to live with her after Harper died.

Yet Monday, Mar. 2, about noon, when Mrs. Ross got home from shopping in downtown Farmville, her only child, Charlie Dean, was not there. Her small black clutch purse, the one she always carried on the rare occasions when she did go out, was in the drawer where she always keeps it. So were crisp bills, neatly stacked - the cash from the V. A. check she received on behalf of her daughters, children of a deceased veteran. No clothes were missing from her closet. The house was as neat as ever. Mrs. Harper, 46, was gone, yet she had taken no money, no provisions at all for a trip.

Mrs. Ross and Ila and Tina waited the entire evening before calling Farmville police. A description was taken and Tuesday, Mar. 3 police knocked on the door of every house in the 400 and 500 blocks of Cameron Street, asking everyone if they'd seen Mrs. Harper. No one had.

Mrs. Harper is short, 5 feet, one inch tall. In recent years she's gained weight till she now weighs close to 200 pounds. She has small teeth, almost like baby teeth, and a noticeable burn scar on the back of her right hand. Her skin is very dark. She probably was wearing, her family says, black slacks, a blouse with orange and green flowers on a white background, a short coat, gray with red stripes;

Money Ills—Prevention Or Remedies??

By Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler
Today money problems are increasing and affecting more consumers each day. Dr. Thelma Hinson, Extension Family Resource Management specialist, suggests that everyone be on the alert for "Moneyitis"—an unsound financial condition. It is like a disease that is spreading toward epidemic proportions. Moneyitis is caused by living beyond one's means or spending beyond one's financial capacity. It is characterized by a variety of money problems such as: having no savings for emergencies, piled-up bills, excessive credit, consolidated debts, and bankruptcy. Warning signals of pending trouble are:

1. Spending increasing faster than income.
2. Using savings for on-going everyday living needs.
3. Juggling bill payments or late payments.
4. Increasing revolving credit where only the minimum payments can be made (for credit card, charge account and check draft credit).

Too frequently, says Dr. Hinson, "these warning signals are ignored or are justified by popular myths instead of facing facts and actions necessary to ease or solve the problems."

Myth: Inflation and easy credit are the major causes of people's money problems.

Fact: Inflation and easy credit are not the cause of people's money problems. They are only used as excuses. Think for a minute: who made the decision to buy goods or use credit? How many things are bought that were not really necessary? With inflation or increasing prices more money is required to buy the same amount of goods and services. But people are responsible for reducing spending or increasing income in order to live within their income.

Myth: My financial situation is sound as long as I can pay my bills.

Fact: A sound financial status requires ability to pay bills, plus adequate savings for emergencies, plus additional savings for future goals, plus protection against major financial risks. Just keeping bills paid does not assure a sound financial standing.

Myth: I don't have enough money to budget or manage.

Fact: The more limited the money, the greater is the need to budget. Otherwise the money ends before the pay period and necessities or commitments may not be provided. Having no spending plan is a big money leak.

Myth: My checkbook stubs and cancelled checks provide records of my expenditures.

Fact: Checks nor the stubs give enough details about spending to spot the money leaks. For example, a check given at the grocery store doesn't assure that the money was spent for groceries—think of all the other things purchased at the grocery store.

Which Choice—Prevention Or Remedies??

A. Preventing money problems is easier than solving the problems when they occur. Preventing problems requires one to be alert to his/her financial situation at all times and regularly following sound money management practices. When minor warning signals occur, adjustments in earning, spending, saving and borrowing should be made to prevent money problems. Sound money management practices include:

1. Accept responsibility for financial status and keep watch on the situation—amount of income, savings, credit outstanding and records of expenditures.
2. Plan for savings, necessities and commitments, then wants. Prioritize spending. Balance savings and spending plan with income. Follow plan when buying.
3. Shop smarter to get money's worth.
4. Eliminate waste and do things for self.

B. Remedies are needed when money problems occur. Begin remedies before things get out of hand. Remedies to

1. Cut out all spending except for those things absolutely necessary for life.
2. Simplify or reduce living needs to match income—change standards and tastes, cut out luxuries. Do more things for self.
3. Increase income through extra work, or get financial assistance available from public funds, family or available agencies.
4. Resolve problems and learn to practice sound money management.

Dear Abby

Mother-In-Law: May Be A Crowd

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: WAITING IN WASHINGTON writes to say that her husband's 80-year-old mother has come to live with them. She's financially secure and draws a nice Social Security check. There are four teen-agers at home and they are barely making ends meet. Grandma has been paying $150 a month, but daughter-in-law added up all the household expenses and divided them by the number of people who live there, which comes to $275 each.

WAITING asks you (and your readers) what Grandma's fair share should be. I say at today's prices $275 is a bargain for room and board. Tell Grandma to pay up or pack up! OREM, UTAH

DEAR WAITING: The woman who thinks $150 a month is sufficient is living in a dream world. My mother pays a nursing home in Spokane $1,260 for a 30-day month, and $1,301.50 for a 31-day month! Sign this. REAL WORLD

DEAR WAITING: The mother-in-law should pay $300 a month. She sounds like a selfish old witch who whines, "You'll get it all when I die." Then she leaves everything to a home for stray cats. TIRE OF FREELoadERS, BOZEMAN, MONT.

DEAR WAITING: In my community, a modest nursing home is $600 a month. Husband's mother should keep her mouth shut, pay the $275 and be thankful her family doesn't just put her in a home and forget about her. RHODE ISLAND READER

DEAR ABBY: I am 88 and live with my daughter and her family. I give them my entire Social Security check ($370.70 a month), which I think is fair. I have a small additional income for expenses, so I manage. I'm treated with kindness and respect. I'm unable to help with the housework, but I do care for myself. Hope this helps. ANCHORAGE, ALASKA

DEAR WAITING: You are giving your children a great example to follow by quibbling about how much your mother-in-law owes you because you have to set the thermostat up a little higher. I pity you when your time comes. Your children will thumb their noses at you and say, "Pay up, Mom. You owe us!"

Both my in-laws, who are 85 and 90, are living with us. One is blind and the other is senile. Caring for them is not a burden. I consider it a privilege. NOT COMPLAINING

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for WAITING. My 73-year-old aunt checked into an old ladies' home. They told her she could expect to live another 12 years, so they wanted $55,000 in advance. She paid it, moved in and died a year later. No refund. (P.S. All her personal belongings "disappeared.")

She should do all she can to show her appreciation for having been rescued from life in a nursing home. SAN MATEO, CALIF.

DEAR WAITING: Teen-agers surely eat more than a little old lady in her 80s. Do your children pay you $275 a month for their room and board? You say, "But they are my children." Well, our parents, when they grow old, become our "children," as we were once theirs. AGHAST IN ASHVILLE

DEAR WAITING: If you are smart, you will play a waiting game. The less mother spends now, the more she will leave for the loving family who took care of her during her declining years. ALSO WAITING (IN FLORIDA)

DEAR WAITING: I am almost 80 and hope I never have to live with a relative. However, should that ever happen, whoever looks after me and gives me a home may have my whole darned Social Security check. Mine is $399.50. And where can you buy total care for that amount? NOT THERE YET

A&T Nursing Program Said Below Standards

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The nursing program at North Carolina A&T University — a predominantly black school in the University of North Carolina system — still does not comply fully with state standards, the state Board of Nursing says.

There has been some progress in upgrading the program, but A&T still has a low number of faculty members and many students who lack qualifications, say sources who have seen the report by the board's review team.

Problems also persist in finding quality clinical experience for nursing students, the sources told the News and Observer of Raleigh.

Students often do not receive the detailed supervision needed, or they are not exposed to a variety of experiences in nursing subject areas, sources said. And in some cases, nursing students were assigned for learning experiences to facilities that nursing board standards deem unsuitable.

The A&T program, on conditional accreditation since 1978, faces closing under the state Nursing Practice Act unless school officials can quickly upgrade the rating.

The report and A&T's response to it are scheduled for discussion at the nursing board's April meeting.

Before moving to close the school, the board would schedule a hearing and weigh evidence presented at that proceeding.

Acting A&T Chancellor Cleon F. Thompson refused to comment on the report until he finished reading it and met with nursing Dean Naomi W. Wynn.

Sources told the News and Observer that the report praises A&T for revising the curriculum and admission standards for students on the Greensboro campus and for adding a learning laboratory for students with difficulties.

But it said the school continues to admit students with questionable qualifications and allows some students to repeat failed nursing courses more than once — a violation of nursing policy.

The policy requires a student who fails nursing course twice to withdraw from the program.

Because of poor performance by their nursing graduates on state licensing exams, A&T, N.C. Central University in Durham and Winston-Salem State University are under a mandate from the University of North Carolina board of governors to improve.

By the end of this year, at least two-thirds of the graduates of these schools must pass the exams the first time or the program will face closing. By 1983, the passing rate required jumps to three-fourths.

The nursing board team noted that some students failed to have the minimum score of 750 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test required for admission to the nursing program.

Although the number of A&T faculty positions has risen to 20 to improve the quality of nursing instruction, five of those posts are vacant, the team found.

Three faculty members are on educational leave, while the other two openings followed a resignation and a retirement.

State Ports Profits Up

Profits Up

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — In a year of sluggish national economic activity, both state ports in North Carolina showed an increase in profits, according to figures released Tuesday at a meeting of the State Ports Authority.

Revenues at the ports increased 25 percent over the first eight months of this fiscal year, according to the figures.

For the period, Wilmington had revenues of $5.87 million, compared to $4.68 million for the same period in the last fiscal year.

At Morehead City, the eight-month revenues were $2.58 million, compared to $2.01 million in the same eight months in the last fiscal year.

Net profits at Morehead City were up to $139,210, compared to a $24,000 loss in the last fiscal year.

Morehead City may be headed for its first profitable year in over a decade, ports officials said.

Profits at Wilmington have increased from $429,223 to $908,782 for the first eight months of this fiscal year.

'High' May Limit Pot's Medical Use

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK (AP) — Marijuana may be limited as a medicine because of several side effects — including the euphoric "high" that made it popular as an illicit drug, say researchers meeting at Research Triangle Institute near Raleigh.

Researchers, physicians and other medical experts from across the country meeting at RTI last week said they are concerned about marijuana and its active ingredient, delta nine tetrahydrocannabinol (THC).

Medical researchers are studying use of the drug and THC in treating glaucoma, in preventing nausea and vomiting in cancer patients and in relieving spasticity in multiple sclerosis patients.

Many patients complain about the euphoria, or "high," both from marijuana cigarettes and from delta nine THC, said Dr. John Merritt of the University of North Carolina, of the pioneers in experiments using marijuana to treat glaucoma.

In some patients — especially older people who don't ordinarily use alcohol — the reaction is so profound Merritt called it "dysphoria" and said the symptoms include hunger, thirst, euphoria and feeling cold.

While decreasing intraocular pressure — pressure in the eye — marijuana also increases heart rate up to 10 to 15 beats a minute and increases anxiety, said the associate professor of ophthalmology.

It also lowers blood pressure an effect more pronounced in patients with high blood pressure, Merritt said. He said that suggests that marijuana might be a potent drug for such patients.

LARGEST SEIZURE — Amid boxes of confiscated cocaine, Tennessee Bureau of Investigation Director Arzo Carson speaks with reporters Tuesday. A few hours earlier authorities had raided an unattended plane at Sevier County, Tenn. Airport and seized 614 pounds of 90-percent pure cocaine with an estimated street value of $217 million. It was later flown to Nashville for analysis. Carson said the cocaine represented the largest seizure of drug contraband from an aircraft in U.S. history. (AP Laserphoto)

Coal Strike Averted

If there is any strike at all, it is certain to be a short one for the soft coal industry.

Negotiators for the United Mine Workers and the industry have reached tentative agreement for a three-year contract. The agreement surprised many observers in that it came so promptly, although it was not believed a strike would be a long one.

Because of the ratification process, the miners are expected to be out of work for a few days, but the long coal strike that could cripple the nation's economy and slow down efforts to reduce our dependence on imported oil seems now to be diverted.

Coal is an ancient fuel. It was used for heat many centuries past. Still the United States has more coal reserves than any other fuel. With the convenience of oil products, coal was less favored as a fuel in this country. Now with the soaring price of oil, coal has become a fuel we are looking to again as an energy source.

Thus it is obvious why a coal strike would not have been desirable at this time.

Coal can substitute for oil and even nuclear power in the generation of electricity. There is also apparently enough for export, thus offsetting some of the cost of oil we are importing.

We can be pleased that a long-term coal strike has been averted.

Just Pass The Cost On

Fifteen cent U.S. Postal stamps are still worth 15 cents, but they won't do what they did last week — that is carry a first class letter across town or across the nation.

The fee for that has increased by 20 percent, up to 18 cents as of last weekend.

Does that follow any guidelines for holding down price increases in the nation's battle against inflation? You can bet that it doesn't.

The worst is yet to be. Already there is talk of another increase to 20 cents for a first class letter.

As long as the Postal Service can obtain increases like that, who needs more efficiency.

Bypass Assembly

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — It is now obvious that the recent announcement by the North Carolina Association of Educators that collective bargaining was being withdrawn as a legislative priority only because officials of that organization have a better plan.

That plan is the "Collective Bargaining Project, 1980-81"

Recognition both in Washington and in Raleigh that recent election results and public temper make it all but impossible to get a collective bargaining law on the books is beneath the new approach now in place across North Carolina.

The strategy is simple: trained representatives of the Association of Classroom Teachers unit of NCAE will make repeated demands on local school boards, creating trouble to the end that local officials would welcome relief.....relief in the form of a recognized bargaining agent.

Here, in the elaborate description contained in the secret planbook, is the heart of the project:

The Plan

"Track Four is the 'bread and butter' of the program. It will involve several (anticipate 15) participating local units. Each of these locals will agree to present identical or very similar policies proposals to their respective Boards of Education.

"Each month a different proposal will be made, for example it might be a new transfer policy in September, a new RIF (reduction in force as teachers are displaced by declining enrollment) policy in October.... The participating locals will meet prior to the implementation of the program and monthly thereafter to review the situation."

Involved in this process are officials from the National Education Association in Washington and NCAE in Raleigh, but the plan takes pains to tell those to keep a low profile because local people might resent outsiders. Other policy matters to be stirred up include letting teachers off on workday status to attend NCAE meetings, and demanding board agenda material prior to the meetings then causing an uproar if it is not delivered.

The narrative continues: "The final goal of this procedure is not (emphasis theirs) the adoption of the policies as it would seem from the information given so far, but rather the realization on the part of the various Boards of Education that perhaps an orderly procedure for handling policy changes is needed.

"At that time we will present a 'professional participation policy'... a form of bargaining agreement that will act as a model for the other locals in the state and as a demonstration of the effectiveness of bargaining for teachers."

Other Steps

Other parts of the plan, labeled "Tracks" call for public relations, news release and advertising activities to try to change public opinion on collective bargaining and unionization; approaches to swaying NCAE members themselves opposed to collective bargaining, and ways to correct the "lack of accurate information (among) a small but vocal minority strongly opposed to Collective Bargaining. These folks, combined with self-serving administrators and some caught-in-the-middle principals have succeeded in slowing action... to almost a stand still."

The criteria spelled out for choosing action centers for lighthouse locals include communities "not overly hostile to bargaining", where

Peanut Butter Luxury

WASHINGTON — Anyone who has been to the grocery store lately knows what a rare and expensive delicacy peanut butter has become.

Therefore it came as a real surprise when the Brokaws brought out an entire jar of it for cocktails the other evening. The jar, which weighed at least a pound, contained the extra-crunchy kind that you can find in only the finest restaurants: It was sitting in a carved figure of ice surrounded by toast and pats of jelly.

"I didn't know this was a special occasion," one of the guests said.

Meredith Brokaw replied, "It isn't, but every once in a while Tom and I get the urge to splurge and we treat ourselves to a luxury."

I whispered to my wife,

ART BUCHWALD

"There must be money on her side of the family, because I know Brokaw could never afford a jar of peanut butter on what he makes."

She said, "Hush, they'll hear you. Anyway, what difference does it make? You only get to eat peanut butter once in your life. Let's make the most of it."

We all gathered around as Mrs. Brokaw started spreading the golden substance on toast and passing it to her guests.

Some people asked for jelly with theirs, but a few purists like myself wanted it without any condiments.

We all "oohed" and "ahhed" as we tasted it.

"This is the real stuff," I said. "Where on earth did you find it?"

"We have a connection at the United Nations," Brokaw said. "He gets it through the diplomatic pouch."

"Did you know it takes three pounds of peanuts to make one jar of peanut butter?"

"No wonder no one can afford it," I said.

One of the guests said, "I remember when I was a kid, my mother used to keep a jar in the closet and after school we used to spread it on bread like butter."

Another one said, "I recall those days. I didn't know what I had and used to trade my peanut butter and jelly sandwiches at lunch hour for ham on rye."

"Help yourselves," Meredith Brokaw said. "We don't want it to go to waste."

We didn't need to be asked twice. I put two large teaspoonfuls on a piece of toast.

"Don't make a pig of yourself," my wife whispered. "You act as if it's the first time you ever ate peanut butter."

"It's the first time in months," I whispered back. "If they're crazy enough to serve it, why shouldn't we get our share?"

"I was once on the Queen Elizabeth and they gave you all the peanut butter you

To the editor:

I quote a passage from an article in "The News and Observer": Thursday, March 12, page 37, fifth column. "We must face the facts," Hunt said. "We need substantial additional revenues if North Carolina is going to have the kinds of roads, highways and airports that will encourage economic growth in the future."

I support the Governor in this statement, but I have a question or two to ask. Do not the Railroads already exist? We do not have to buy good, valuable farm and commercial lands for them. I believe the Railroads are part of the Transportation system. Why not include the Railroad (Amtrak) in the D. O. T. and encourage their use and save energy? Give the Railroads their equal share in transportation and publicity.

To the editor:

On Thursday evening, March 19, the last portion of the CBS evening news was devoted to the problem of starvation of people, especially women and children, in the Horn of Africa. The awful conditions of the people of Somalia, Ethiopia and Uganda are heart-rending. Our federal government has done a pitifully small amount in terms of food and other relief in this area.

Oxfam-America, the organization largely responsible for bringing effective relief to Cambodia and making that country nearly self-sufficient in food production, is now concentrating efforts in drought-ridden Africa. The people of Greenville have the opportunity to contribute to the relief of the hungry of both Pitt County and of Africa by supporting the Tenth Annual Walk for Humanity on April 11. Half of the proceeds will stay in Pitt County and half will go to Oxfam-America. If we care, we must share with those in need.

Strength For Today

OUR EMOTIONS AND RELIGION

We cannot worship God with our minds alone; we must worship Him with the feelings also. Some people consider that emotion of any kind is inconsistent with a reasonable religion. We are supposed to apprehend God with the mind and to commune with Him through our spiritual nature. But we are not to allow emotion to enter in. When it does so, it supposedly spoils everything. None of this is true. Emotion is just as much a part of our equipment as is reason.

We do not come to a satisfactory and saving knowledge of God by traveling any one pathway.

Jesus said that our full duty consists in loving God and loving man. Love is more than an emotion, but love very definitely involves emotion. So we should not let anyone deprecate our religious outlook because it involves certain emotions. Liturgy, music, prayer, Bible readings — all these are factors of a sound religious experience, and all involve emotion. — Elisha Douglass

Independent Ambassador

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Although the clandestine visit to Washington by the chief of South African military intelligence was denounced by State Department officials, it included a secret meeting with United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick.

She conferred with Lt. Gen. Van Der Westhuizen at the offices here of the American Security Council, a private organization that was host to him and four other senior South African military officers. State Department officials publicly complained about the issuance of visas as a mistake violating U.S. policy barring visits here by the South African military.

But Kirkpatrick may be as independent an envoy to the U.N. as was Andrew Young in the Carter administration — in exactly the opposite direction. As part of her determination to resume U.S. dialogue with white political leaders in Southern Africa, she again violated State Department policy less than a week after meeting the South Africans by lunching with Dirk Mudge, the white Namibian leader.

Bills For Billings

Hired as assistant secretary of education for private schools to appease the rebellious new right, the Rev. Bob Billings is being sidetracked to a different job as Secretary Terrel Bell's "special assistant."

Billings, formerly executive director of the Moral Majority, arrived on his new job March 5 and got the word that Bell wanted him to travel the nation for a few weeks studying various educational techniques. Al Senske, the holdover assistant secretary from the Carter administration, Bell told him, would be staying on the job awhile. Was that all right with Billings?

Billings said yes. Then, later the same day, Billings read an internal department newsletter that quoted "high officials" as saying that Billings would not be taking over the private schools assignment at all. That word shocked President Reagan's supporters on the fundamentalist right so much that Bell may be compelled to change his mind.

Fritz Gets Started

Down the hall from former

Vice President Walter F. Mondale's new law office in Washington is a new business consulting firm that will serve for the next year or so as the skeleton campaign office of the 1984 Mondale presidential campaign.

The consulting firm is headed by Jim Johnson, a veteran Democratic political operative and Mondale's aide in vice presidential days. He will run the opening stages of the Mondale campaign and may end up as its manager.

Sharing office space with Johnson but functioning as a separate consulting firm is Richard Holbrooke, assistant secretary of state for far eastern affairs in the Carter administration. He will be available to Mondale for foreign policy advice and undoubtedly will become part of the Mondale campaign.

Auto Quota Skirmishing

Guerrilla warfare between the Treasury and Transportation Departments over Japanese auto imports continued March 17 when a super-secret luncheon broke up in disagreement over whether to recommend a quota.

Deputy Treasury Secretary R.T. McNamar, upon returning to his office, told a meeting of his colleagues he could not brief them on the luncheon, thereby insuring that the Treasury could not be blamed for any leak. At that moment, he was handed a Dow-Jones ticker dispatch reporting that the meeting tilted toward a voluntary Japanese quota.

Treasury officials blame their Transportation counterparts for that leak and for erroneous accounts circulating through the lobbyist community that Treasury and the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) had bowed to Transportation's push for quotas. In truth, no agreement has been reached, and President Reagan himself will not decide for another week.

Percy's Nuke Fears

Tested By Faintheartedness

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The popular mood of the marketplace, which now seems to be characterized by a good deal of faintheartedness, may provide a real test for the leadership of President Reagan, the optimist.

The market doesn't seem nearly as confident as the president seems to be about the future. Investors still act cautious. The big money and the big plans are being held in abeyance.

Such timidity could disappear and, in view of the president's ability to deliver a convincing message, a matter hardly in dispute, the possibility cannot be underestimated.

Still, scores of large companies are seeking greater productivity in a more conservative direction: By cutting inefficient operations rather than making them efficient through heavy commitment of money.

Stock market investors seem to pull back from the market each time it approaches or exceeds 1,000 points on the Dow Jones.

In credit markets, the decline in interest rates now is widely believed to be the forerunner of higher rates later in the year, a prophecy that could, as others have been, self-fulfilling.

Commodities, too, are involved with the same psychology. Most prices took a fall late last year, and they remain relatively low. But many analysts say demand soon will push prices higher again.

In each instance it can be said that investors view good news as spawning bad news, and that few investors really believe that stable, productive, growing economies are on the horizon.

Some financial people speculate that current readings only reflect a wait-and-see attitude about Reagan's programs, and that attitudes could change if the programs shows signs of succeeding.

They say that after having dealt with more than a decade of volatile economic conditions, investors are adopting a "show me" attitude, insisting that they be given results to buttress the premises.

If so, it isn't the first time that attitude has been seen.

During President Nixon's years, the public wearied of assurances from Herbert Stein, chairman of the council of economic advisers, that the worst of inflation was behind them. Anticipating more price increases, they bought in advance of need and destroyed Nixon's hopes.

Early in his administration, President Johnson won investor's faith, and the stock market soared. When he sought to pay for Vietnam through budget deficits he lost their confidence and stocks plunged.

In contrast, President Kennedy seemed to win and retain the confidence of those who bet on the future, although the aith was diminished by what some thought were intimidating attacks on business.

That retention of confidence, even if diminished, helped his tax cut program succeed in spurring the economy, although some well known economists had gone on record as questioning it's ability to do so.

If Reagan succeeds in building confidence, his prophecy too would have a large self-fulfilling feature. At the moment though, it doesn't seem to be as evident as he would like it to be.

could eat." "They always make a big deal of that on luxury liners," someone else said.

We all laughed as we kept digging into the jar.

One of the guests said, "Does anyone here remember when we used to feed peanuts to the elephants at the zoo?"

"I recall when we used to eat them at baseball games."

Mrs. Brokaw brought out more toast and jelly.

"I went to a bar when I was in college and you'll never believe this, but there was a bowl of peanuts on each table," I said. "We used to throw the shells on the floor."

By this time the jar was empty and the toast and jelly were gone.

I tried to lick the inside of the top, but my wife stopped me.

It was an evening I'll never forget. I've been to houses recently where there have been a few canapes of peanut butter mixed in with the smoked salmon sandwiches. But I've never been in a home where someone actually brought out an entire jar of it, and passed it around like it was caviar.

Whether it will be circulated before the administration decides to use it as a formal protest to the Soviet Union for alleged treaty-breaking in the field of nuclear weapons production has not yet been decided by Secretary of State Alexander Haig. Although President Reagan has not yet finally decided to challenge Soviet compliance, most high officials think he is certain to do so.

The compilation of alleged violations was written by a high official of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA) and is now being "scrubbed" for airtight accuracy. Percy learned about it by chance and immediately made his formal request. ACDA officials privately worry that if details of the charges against Moscow get out, it will weaken their case.

Hear Grievance

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A department level personnel advisory review board met Tuesday afternoon to conduct a hearing on a grievance filed by Alton Warren, who was suspended earlier this month from his duties as the city's chief building official.

Warren, contacted this morning, confirmed that the grievance board did meet yesterday but he said he had no comment regarding what took place at the session.

The suspended official did note that the three-member board is expected to "make a finding" within three days of the meeting and he said that the deadline would mean that he should hear from the grievance panel "by 4 p.m. Friday."

City Manager Ed Wyatt said today that Warren's indefinite suspension status remains the same but he would not comment on the review board or confirm that a grievance session was held.

Warren contended following his suspension that the action was taken after he claimed he was being forced by his department head to violate state building codes in occupying the city-owned community building at the corner of Greene and Fourth Streets.

He said the facility was "occupied before it should have been and was occupied in an unsafe and hazardous condition."

Warren said Ron Sewell, the city's director of engineering, informed him in a letter that Warren had been derelict in his duties and the suspension was for Warren's failure to perform his duties.

According to Warren, the director of engineering informed him that he was calling a personnel advisory review board to advise him in his decision to suspend Warren.

The city's Personnel Policies Ordinance points out that the review board will involve "three active employees of the city," with the aggrieved employee appointing one member, the department head, with the confirmation of the city manager, naming one member, and the two appointees jointly selecting a third member.

According to the ordinance, "The decision of the board is a recommendation to the department head or city manager, who is not bound by its advice."

The community building, which has housed the city's engineering, inspections and planning departments on the third floor since early February, was inspected by a N.C. Department of Insurance official on March 3. The department reported that the inspection revealed only minor changes and additions were necessary in order for the building to comply with state building code statutes relative to existing buildings.

The OSHA Division of the N.C. Department of Labor also inspected the community facility and Sewell reported that the review indicated "a few minor things" that have now been corrected or are in the process of being corrected at the site.

Woman Still Missing....

and black shoes. Her hair was plaited on top of her head. She wore no jewelry.

On Wednesday, Mar. 3, police put an all-points alert on the PIN network of law enforcement agencies in a 50-mile radius. Local citizen Jack Farris and Police Chief Ron Cooper searched the area from the air in a cropdusting plane. And 25-to-30 volunteers walked the area around Marlboro, including a pasture and wooded area where Mrs. Ross and the girls said that Mrs. Harper would sometimes go walking. Two ponds in the area were dragged by the Farmville Rescue Squad.

Pictures of Mrs. Harper and appeals for information about her whereabouts were aired on area television stations and stories were published in "The Farmville Enterprise" and "The Daily Reflector."

After nearly a month, the searches and the appeals have turned up nothing.

One of the few people Mrs. Harper ever visited was Ray Gay, a paraplegic who is undergoing examination at Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh to see if his physical handicaps are sufficient enough to keep him from being imprisoned for crime of which he's been convicted, including conspiracy to commit breaking and entering. He has an apartment in a public housing project several blocks from Mrs. Harper's home.

"I don't even know what Ray Gay looks like," Mrs. Ross said, "and I never knew why Dean liked to go see him. She said he was nice, though, not like a lot of other men, really nice."

Gay was not at home at the time of Mrs. Harper's disappearance. His apartment, though it was locked and the lock had been changed, was searched, Chief Cooper said, to no avail.

"Mrs. Harper is not on the list of visitors that Gay can have at Dorothea Dix," Chief Cooper said. "But, to be safe, we have filed a description of her with the unit where he's confined, with instructions that we are to be notified if she should ever go there. We've heard nothing from them."

Neighbors, when questioned by the police, mentioned that Mrs. Harper drank to excess. Her mother and daughter say, however, that she did not. "She had bad nerves," her mother said, "and every once in a while she drank some. But then she'd go for weeks and not drink at all. I don't call that a drinking problem. And most of the time, if she did drink, it was here in the house and she'd soon go on to bed. She stayed in bed a lot, often reading her Bible, when she wasn't cooking and washing clothes. She really did a lot of work here in the house. She liked things clean and nice."

"She was a nice girl. She just couldn't face things that some people can. She used to speak of her husband often and say she just didn't think she'd ever get over his death. He'd been a good husband, built them this house and paid for it while he was working at the Formica plant. His death went hard with her. He was only 40."

Police have searched places that winos frequent in the Farmville area, based on reported sightings of Charlie Dean. But none have proved fruitful. "I knew they wouldn't," Mrs. Ross said. "My daughter didn't go around with slack people. She didn't mix with anybody much at all. Except for going to Ray's, I never knew her to go anywhere but uptown once in a great while and over to Heath's Grocery. She left most all the shopping and cashing her social security and V. A. checks to me. She was a good mother to these girls, always here when they needed her."

"She is a good mother," Ila corrected her grandmother. Ila feels, as do Tina and their grandmother, that Mrs. Harper is alive somewhere, possibly disoriented by depression.

"I believe she's alive," Ila said, "because I know she wouldn't kill herself. She was sad sometimes, but she was not the kind of person who would kill herself. And I don't know why anybody would want to harm her."

Anyone who believes he or she has seen Mrs. Harper is asked to contact Farmville Police, 753-4111.

Banks Trim

Prime Rate

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte-based First Union National Bank and Winston-Salem's Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. followed the lead of the nation's major banks Tuesday and lowered their prime interest rates to 17 percent.

With demand for business loans still sluggish, several major banks across the country joined the move to a 17 prime lending rate, a trend which started last Thursday when Chemical Bank in New York lowered its rate.

North Carolina National Bank, also based in Charlotte, said Tuesday that it would join other banks in the state and lower its prime rate.

Analysts said they expect the reductions to spread throughout the banking industry and predicted even further cuts in the weeks to come.

No major national bank joined the move until Tuesday, when No. 2 Citibank, No. 5 Morgan Guaranty, No. 9 First National Bank of Chicago and No. 10 Security Pacific National Bank in Los Angeles all followed Chemical's lead.

The prime is the interest rate on which banks base charges to their most credit-worthy corporate customers. Many smaller percentage point more for a loan. It is not tied directly to consumer loans, but is considered a benchmark for many other interest rates.

Faces Trial On Forgery

VICTORVILLE, Calif. (AP) — A producer of the television series "Fantasy Island," his wife and 13 other people have been charged with kidnapping his son and two grandsons from a religious sect.

Charles and Gloria Webster and the others were charged Monday in Municipal Court with conspiracy, kidnapping and false imprisonment.

They allegedly tried to kidnap Webster's 36-year-old son, Dennis Webster, and Dennis Webster's sons, Todd and Benjamin, from the River of Life sect's ranch in Apple Valley, Calif., on Feb. 21. Deputies stepped in before the three could be taken away.

All defendants pleaded innocent. A May 4 preliminary hearing was set.

Former members of the sect have held news conferences recently to tell of beatings of women and children. Books published by the sect speak of women and the mother-child relationship as being sources of evil.

down in the previous three years and city officials expressed little optimism that the current effort would be successful.

It was pointed out during hearings on the Small Cities CD program here that the main reason the city's pre-applications were turned down in previous years resulted from the city being unable to spend local CD funds as required by HUD. The city made a concerted effort this year to spend the remaining CD funds and the close-out of local urban renewal projects apparently helped Greenville meet HUD threshold requirements.

Other pre-applications approved, according to the congressman, included: Hertford, $1 million; Washington, $989,700; Lenoir County, $500,000; Pamlico County, $482,500; and Morehead City, $500,200.

Woman Charges A Surgical Slip-Up

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Virginia Herrington says the pain following her fairly routine abdominal surgery last week was so severe "it felt like someone had sawed me in two." Then X-rays revealed that doctors had left a foot-long surgical tool inside her body.

"I suffered, I mean I suffered," Mrs. Herrington, 45, said Tuesday. "I was getting hot and cold chills. They were giving me pain shots every three hours."

For three days, Mrs. Herrington said she complained of excruciating pain following a March 17 operation at Tampa General Hospital to remove an ovarian cyst and bowel adhesions.

She could not sit up and cried out when she was bathed, said an aide, who told nurses about the woman's constant pain and swollen abdomen.

Last Friday, the Tampa obstetrician and gynecologist who performed the surgery — Dr. Thomas McDonald — ordered X-rays, which showed a 1½-inch wide instrument called a "retractor" in her abdomen, Mrs. Herrington said. A retractor is used to pull back tissue to allow a surgeon to better see or manipulate organs during an operation.

McDonald refused comment, as did the hospital. Neither denied the instrument was left in the woman by mistake, however.

Break-In Arrest

Greenville police this morning arrested George Reid Jr., 23 of 604 Ford St. on breaking, entering and larceny charges after seeing Reid and another man inside the offices of Dr. David W. White and Clear-Vue Opticians at 1705 West Sixth St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers responded to a burglar alarm about 1 a.m., found a door to the offices open and saw two men inside.

According to the chief the two started running from the scene. Reid was apprehended, but the second man escaped.

Dogs were used to track the second man to Bancroft Avenue, Cannon said, where the trail was lost.

An estimated $1,400 in merchandise, including a typewriter, clock, calculator and cash drawer were recovered by officers outside the offices.

Investigation of the break-in is continuing, the chief noted.

Expanding Scope Of N.C. Probe Into Bid-Rigging

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Federal and state investigations into highway paving contract bid rigging are expanding to probe other facets of road construction, prosecutors said Tuesday.

State investigators said they are looking at stone suppliers and bridge builders, while federal investigators said they were looking at all aspects of highway construction.

"We're just getting into it," said H. Al Cole Jr., special deputy attorney general in charge of the state probe into the conspiracy among contractors to divide up highway jobs.

"At one point, we thought we had a crack in the door, but the lead didn't pan out as well as we thought it would. We're looking real hard" for informers with knowledge of industry practices, Cole said.

Reid Stuntz, a trial attorney for the U.S. Department of Justice in Washington, said a federal grand jury in New Bern is investigating "all facets of highway construction."

The grand jury has focused on paving, but never restricted itself to paving," Stuntz said in a telephone interview.

In the federal probe, continuing over two years, 16 North Carolina paving firms and 29 executives have been indicted or charged with antitrust violations involving fixed state highway bids.

Cole and Highway Administrator Billy Rose agreed that critical factors leading to collusion among pavers are also present in the crushed-stone quarry industry.

During bid-rigging hearings and trials, testimony showed that the paver with the shortest hauling distance from asphalt plant to job site has a bidding advantage because of the lower cost, and that a paver with the only asphalt plant in an area will get most of the contracts there.

"The same thing has to apply to the quarries," Cole said. The quarry nearest the construction site is virtually assured of providing the stone, he said.

Prosecutors declined to elaborate on the possible antitrust violations they are reviewing.

But during a recent hearing on charges involving a highway paver, testimony suggested that small paving firms were charged higher prices for stone by quarries that may have had agreements with pavers involved in the bid-rigging conspiracy. Stone and bridge work generally are done by subcontractors under agreements with prime contractors and not through submitting bids to the state.

That's why state officials don't keep records on which stone suppliers the prime contractors use, officials said.

Rose said he believes most of the subcontracting business goes to a handful of firms that control most of the state's quarries.

There are 107 crushedstone quarries in the state that have mining permits from the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, and 271 sand and gravel pits with state permits.

Fred R. Allen, president of the N.C. Aggregates Association, said, "We're not aware of any problems in the crushed stone industry."

Ex-Premier Is Carter Visitor

PLAINS, Ga. (AP)

Takeo Fukuda, the former prime minister of Japan, became the first foreign dignitary to visit former President Jimmy Carter and was followed almost immediately by the second.

Fukuda and a Japanese delegation drove into Plains for a 20-minute meeting with Carter Tuesday. Then the Carters and the Japanese drove into Americus for lunch.

Fukuda thanked Carter for maintaining friendly ties with Japan and stressed the importance of strengthening the bonds between the United States and Japan.

Soon after the Carters returned to Plains, Jehan Sadat, wife of Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, helicoptered into town.

Carter told about 100 tourists gathered at a baseball field, "This is one of our best friends in the world."

May Testify For State On Jamscam

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — A defense attorney for former state Jaycee President Maurice Wilson, indicted on charges of misusing charity funds, says Wilson may testify for the prosecution in the upcoming "Jamscam" trial.

Attorney Archie Smith Jr. of Asheboro said Wilson met with prosecutors and State Bureau of Investigation agents in Raleigh last week. At that meeting, "the possibility of Maurice being a state's witness was discussed," Smith said.

Wilson and four other former Jaycee officers have emerged from an SBI probe into Jaycee finances that began last May. The investigation has been dubbed "Jamscam" because some of the charity funds allegedly misused were raised through jelly sales.

Wilson, formerly of Asheboro and now of Charlotte, testified Monday before the Randolph County grand jury. The grand jury then indicted him and former N.C. Jaycee presidents J. Harold Herring Jr. of Mount Olive and Johnny Lee Fletcher of Concord.

Smith said he had not ruled out the possibility of Wilson becoming a key state witness. He said prosecutors "offered nothing" to Wilson in return for his grand jury testimony.

Wilson's knowledge of Jaycee financial transactions could be vital to the state when the cases come to trial, the Asheboro Courier-Tribune reported.

Wilson was directing dispersals of Jaycee charity and organizational funds during the periods misuse and conspiracy allegedly took place, the newspaper said.

"It is true," Smith said, "that Maurice is probably the best person to interpret these matters."

Wilson has entered pleas of innocent to indictments that charge misapplication of some $239,590.

Some of the money was allegedly diverted from charity to pay dues on bogus Jaycee chapters; some to pay operating expenses of the state Jaycee organization; and other money to miscellaneous purposes.

Much of the charity money in question was raised for the N.C. Burn Center in Chapel Hill.

Previous indictments in the SBI probe named former U.S. Jaycee President Robert Archie Rushton of Gray, Ga. and Thomas Anthony Alsop of Charlotte, former president of the Charlotte Jaycees.

Wilson was the first person indicted in "Jamscam." On Oct. 20, the grand jury named him in nine counts of embezzling and misapplying $66,449 in Jaycee money while serving as state Jaycee president. In all charges naming other top Jaycees, Wilson is listed as a co-conspirator.

On Monday, the grand jury handed down eight two-count indictments, each naming Wilson. Herring was charged in four of the indictments, while Fletcher was named in four other charges. Herring was president of the state organization in 1978-79 and Fletcher was president in 1977-78.

Wilson was executive vice president of the N.C. Jaycees at the time he allegedly conspired with Herring and Fletcher, in separate transactions, to misapply funds.

SBI agent Claude Greene, who had headed the state attorney general's probe, declined comment Tuesday on whether the state hopes to use Wilson as a witness at the trials.

Smith emphasized that Wilson has entered innocent pleas and said "that's still his plea."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are expected in the forecast period until Thursday morning for most of the West. Showers are also indicated for the eastern Gulf and from the Ohio Valley to the Great Lakes. Mild weather is forecast for most of the country. Cold temperatures are expected for the northeastern Plains. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Spring may actually seem like spring for the next few days in North Carolina, according to the National Weather Service.

High pressure extending from the Great Lakes region to the Gulf of Mexico will drift slowly east today and tonight to a position off the East Coast on Thursday.

A weak area of low pressure over the Southern Plains will track east behind the high pressure area, but this area of low pressure is expected to weaken and move east to the north of our area on Thursday.

Temperatures will warm to seasonal levels today under sunny conditions. Light mostly northerly winds will prevail in response to high pressure to the west of our region.

Temperatures this afternoon will range from the 50s in the northern mountains and over the northeast portion upward to the low- and mid-60s over the southwest portion.

Then under a mostly clear sky and calm winds, temperatures will chill into the low- and mid-30s tonight. Winds will begin to favor a southwest direction on Thursday as high pressure moves offshore.

This will help in pushing temperatures into the 60s over much of the state Thursday with further moderation through the balance of this week. Some rain and scattered thundershowers may show up by Sunday.

The high pressure area Tuesday brought plentiful sunshine to the state. Light northerly breezes kept a slight coolness in the air.

Afternoon temperatures were mostly in the mid-50s to around 60 east of the mountains. The one exception was along the outer banks where the colder ocean waters limited cape Hatteras to 49 on Tuesday.

In the mountains, there was a large spread in temperatures, ranging from the low 30s on the continued snow covered higher elevations to the upper 50s over the far southwest portion.

It remained clear across much of North Carolina overnight. There was some cloudiness over the northeast portion of the state during the early morning hours.

Pre-dawn temperatures were mostly in the upper 20s and lower 30s. The lower values were generally confined to the two extreme ends of the state — the mountains and along the Outer Banks.

House Gets Senate Bill On Bank Interest Ceilings

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislation that would raise legal rates of interest on most types of consumer loans headed to the state House today after overcoming long delays to win Senate approval.

The two bills, sought eagerly by the state's banking industry, would set new interest rate ceilings that would float upward as the national money market rates grow higher.

But with the defeat Tuesday of a pair of amendments sponsored by the bill's chief opponent, Sen. Charles Vickery, D-Chapel Hill, the bills approved by the Senate would not allow interest rates to float back down in times of easy money.

Instead, backers of the bill and banking industry supporters succeeded in keeping a provision in the bills that would set a minimum ceiling of 16 percent, so that banks could charge that much for loans no matter how low prevailing interest rates might fall in the future.

"It's clearly more than is necessary," Vickery said after losing on a series of amendments. "But I think you see the mood the Senate was in. They were going to approve whatever the banks want, and they did."

Both bills were sent to the House on 41-2 votes, after four Vickery amendments were defeated on votes of 33-31 and larger margins. Only Vickery and Sen. Robert Varpen, D-Benson, voted against the bills themselves.

The two bills set new interest rate ceilings on installment loans, such as for autos; on second mortgages and on contract loans, such as 90-day notes. They apply on amounts of $25,000 or less.

The bills establish a formula setting a maximum legal interest rate of 6 percentage points over the weekly rate on six-month Treasury bills sold at federal auction, rounded off to the next highest one-half point.

At this week's Treasury bill rate of 12.274, the formula would provide a legal ceiling of 18 and 12 percent. Under current law, the loans are limited to 12 to 15 percent.

Sponsors, led by Sen. Joe Johnson, D-Raleigh, argued that the higher rates are necessary in order for lenders to be able to afford to loan money.

"A rate 6 percent above that (Treasury bill rate) would help banks across the state be able to lend money," said Sen. Billy Mills, D-Mayesville, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

Most of the debate centered on the Vickery amendments, and he argued that the 16 percent minimum ceiling was unfair.

"Why shouldn't the consumer benefit when the rate goes down? Isn't that fair?" he asked.

Johnson responded, however, that small, unsophisticated banks were unable to keep up with the fluctuating rate and needed the 16 percent minimum ceiling for stability.

Vickery also failed in an effort to remove the provision that allows the rate to be rounded off upward to the next half-percentage point but not downward.

He called that provision a "greedy gimmick" by the banks.

Vickery predicted that both the minimum ceiling and rounding-off provision would be removed by the House.

Vickery stopped short of a threatened move to have the bills sent back to committee after Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green warned him of a Senate rule preventing any senator from speaking personally against another Senate member during debate.

Vickery distributed documents, however, showing that two Republican senators had asked to be excused from voting because of a conflict of interest when one of the bills was up before the Senate last month, but then voted in committee for the bills.

The two, Sens. Walter Cockerham, R-Greensboro, and Cass Ballenger, R-Hickory, defended their actions and voted for the bills on the floor.

Both had cited their positions as bank directors in the earlier Senate action, and marked a line on his form indicating he wished to be excused from voting on "all votes taken on this measure."

Ballenger told the Senate he originally asked to be excused because he had been under criticism from the Hickory Daily Record for having a conflict of interest.

"I didn't really feel I had a conflict of interest. My newspaper at home was attacking me for an apparent conflict. I don't have one and today I'm going to be rather than seem," he said.

Cockerham said he was now "satisfied that as a bank director and stockholder I have the right...to vote on this issue."

The two are part of a majority of members of the Senate Banking Committee with ties, either as stockholders, officers or employees, with banking institutions.

Ship Builder To Explain Failure

By JANE ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Soon after P. Takis Veliotis became general manager of the Electric Boat shipyard in Groton, Conn., he promised to deliver submarines on time. Today he gets his chance to tell a House subcommittee why he couldn't.

"I am going to maintain my delivery schedules," Veliotis said when he took over in October 1977.

Electric Boat has announced repeated delays in finishing the first Trident-class submarine, the Ohio, now scheduled for delivery in December, two years and eight months late.

Members of the House Armed Services seapower subcommittee have said they planned to ask Veliotis not only why the Ohio fell so far behind but also whether he has construction schedules for seven other Trident-class boats under contract to Electric Boat.

The Electric Boat division of General Dynamics at Groton and nearby Quonset Point, R.I., is one of only two submarine-building yards in the United States and the only one that can build the giant missile-firing Trident class. The other yard is run by Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. in Newport News, Va.

Both yards produce nuclear-powered attack submarines of the SSN-688 class designed for underwater torpedo attacks against other ships. Last week, Navy Secretary John Lehman announced the award of contracts for three SSN-688 subs to Newport News, ignoring Electric Boat's bid because of the long delays with the Ohio.

Lehman acted in the direction of Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger who said he realized the contract denial had caused "a lot of pain and suffering" in Connecticut. But, Weinberger added, he himself had "gone through a lot of pain and suffering" because of Electric Boat's performance.

That means Newport News, which is the only builder of nuclear-powered surface warships, will have received contracts for 16 attack submarines against 20 for Electric Boat.

recently told the seapower subcommittee that the average cost of an attack sub at Newport News was $98 million while the average cost of the same sub at Electric Boat was $148 million.

Fowler, commander of the Naval Sea Systems Command, said Electric Boat used the wrong kind of steel in making some welds, the wrong kind of metal for some plugs on submarines, and improper paint.

"Serious quality control and assurance problems have been experienced at Electric Boat. Similar problems were not experienced at Newport News," he said.

Two Wrecks Investigated

An estimated $2,300 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

According to officers, heaviest damage resulted from a 3:40 p.m. collision at the intersection of Elm and Fifth Streets involving cars driven by Martha Melver Larkin of Kings Row Apts., and William Don Suer Jr. of Wilson Acres Apts.

Damage from the collision was set at $700 to the Larkin car and $1,000 to the Suer vehicle by officers, who charged Suer with failing to reduce speed enough to avoid an accident.

An estimated $300 damage resulted to each of two trucks involved in a 9 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Washington Street and Gum Road.

Investigators identified the drivers of the vehicles as Jacqueline Ann Pearson of 1503 Mill St. and Samuel Thomas Atkinson of 1407 North Washington St.

Restraint Urged On N.C. Budget Cuts

workers and provide legal representation of law enforcement officers in civil cases.

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State legislators are looking at compiled lists of recommended cuts in the proposed 1981-83 state budget, but at least one senator is urging them not to accept the reductions.

Sen. Henry Frye, D-Greensboro, chairman of a subcommittee studying the education budget, urged the joint House-Senate Appropriations Base Budget Committee Tuesday to avoid using his panel's recommendations to reduce the state budget by 6 percent, goal identified earlier by legislators.

Meanwhile, U.S. Rep. Jim Martin, R-N.C., paid a visit to the Legislature to boost President Reagan's proposed budget cuts. The cuts are estimated to cost North Carolina $300 million next year.

Martin told reporters that although the cuts may be painful now, they will reap long-term benefits.

The congressman's visit came on a day when leaders of five legislative subcommittees began presenting their budget-cutting recommendations. The appropriations committee is expected to begin voting on which recommendations to accept next week.

"We felt we had the hardest job of all the committees because we had the biggest budget," Frye said. "All identified (budget cuts) were very painful for our committee."

The subcommittee identified cuts in the first fiscal year amounting to more than $84 million for public schools, more than $10 million for community colleges and more than $32 million for higher education.

Frye urged legislators not to consider what he called the budget cuts of last resort — cuts that would seriously affect education in North Carolina.

Among such cuts were reduction of more than 9,500 aides in kindergarten through third grade for the biennium, cutting the amount of teacher workdays in half and allowing classes of 29 pupils in kindergarten through third grade as compared to the present 26-pupil limit.

But Martin urged state legislators to make such painful cuts.

"Yes, there will be pain. Yes, there will be some decisions people don't want to make," he said. "But far more importantly we ought to anticipate what the good effects will be."

He said he was worried the president's budget-cutting program could be sidetracked if political leaders attempt to protect their own state's special subsidies while attacking those of other states.

Part of North Carolina's budget cuts will come in the form of a $54-million reduction in the school nutrition program next year, a move that will drive up the cost of school lunches for some students currently receiving subsidies.

"I don't have any problem with that at all," Martin said. "I think these families have far more to lose from continuation of that program than they do from 60-cent lunches."

In other legislative action:

Supporters of a proposal to require a deposit on all soft drink and beer containers filed a bill Tuesday in the House that would allow voters to decide the issue in a referendum next year.

Rep. Dave Diamond, D-Pilot Mountain, and 11 others are sponsoring the bill, which is aimed at reducing litter by providing an economic incentive for people to return their empty bottles and cans.

"We feel very strongly that the people of North Carolina should have the opportunity to choose — the status quo or removing the soft drink and beer bottles and cans from their front yards, farm pastures, parks, beaches and roadsides," Diamond said.

If approved by the General Assembly, the issue would be put to the voters in the November 1982 general election.

Supporters have failed to win passage of similar bills in every legislative session since 1973. This year's version differs in that it would authorize a statewide vote of the people to decide the issue.

Sentencing

A subcommittee presented its report on proposed amendments to the uniform-sentencing act to the House Judiciary I Committee. The report recommends three substantial changes, said Rep. Parks Helms, D-Charlotte.

The first would lower the presumptive sentence for Class H felonies, which includes breaking and entering and is the most common felony, from three and a half years to three years to ease a predicted rise in prison populations.

The second would exclude plea bargains relating to sentence from the uniform sentencing act. And the third change would expand a defendant's right to appeal his sentence. Another amendment would make the uniform sentencing act and its amendments effective July 1.

The uniform sentencing act, approved by the 1979 General Assembly, spells out punishments for specific crimes and requires the judge to list mitigating or aggravating circumstances should he hand out a different sentence.

The Senate already has approved a set of amendments to the act, which is scheduled to go into effect April 15. The Judiciary I Committee took no action on the amendments.

Milk Prices

The Senate Agriculture Committee voted against a measure to take away the pricing authority of the state Milk Commission, which sets the minimum price paid to farmers.

Sen. Cary Allred, R-Burlington, said the pricing authority means "state government is allowing intervention in private enterprise and that is encouraging inefficiency.... The federal government is out here prosecuting people for price fixing but here we're sanctioning it."

He presented figures showing that milk prices in Raleigh are higher than those in Richmond, Va., and Columbia, S.C.

Grady Cooper, executive secretary of the commission, said the price-setting authority is necessary "to maintain an adequate supply of milk in North Carolina." He said that without state control, dairy farmers probably would look to the federal government to set minimum prices.

Cooper said the commission also has the power to set minimum wholesale and retail milk prices but has never used that authority. He said the commission has allowed retail prices to fluctuate widely across the state.

Unemployment

The Senate gave tentative approval to a lengthy rewrite of the Employment Security Act. The bill was scheduled for a final vote Wednesday.

The bill consists mostly of technical changes and rewording to comply with federal regulations. But one section of the rewrite would make it more difficult to receive unemployment benefits when there are jobs available.

Another section would allow workers to receive retirement benefits or pensions at the same time they collect unemployment compensation.

Records

The Senate approved a bill aimed at making it undesirable for businesses like bulk-mailing firms to obtain lists of North Carolina drivers and their addresses.

The bill would require payment of a $1 fee for each name obtained from the state.

Because of an amendment, the bill now heads to the House for concurrence.

Greeks

Greek Independence Day will join Robert E. Lee's birthday, Columbus Day and the date the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence was signed as a public holiday.

The Senate unanimously gave final approval to recognize March 25, the anniversary of the Greeks' independence from Turkey, as a public holiday.

The action does not mean another holiday for state workers. Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gastonia, said it will be just another day to write on the calendar. But he noted some Greeks may ask to be relieved of jury duty to celebrate the holiday.

Transcripts

A bill that would make it a misdemeanor to forge school diplomas or transcripts was unanimously approved by the Senate. The bill now goes to the House for concurrence on amendment.

New Bills

A bill was filed in the House that would give the state treasurer more flexibility in investing idle state monies. It would allow him to invest the money in certain commercial papers and banker's acceptances, which are similar to certificates of deposit.

The bills filed on the House would allow wildlife officials to issue warning tickets for game and fish law violations, appropriate a total of $3 million over the biennium for community-based alternative programs for juveniles, allow counties and cities to offer group health benefits to retired

French Farms Grow 'Green Oil' Crop

By JACK ABOAF
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — France is beginning to see results in its plan to grow enough food for export to pay a major part of its oil-import bill — $26 billion last year.

The increased agricultural output is being called "green oil."

"We have a major trump card and we are going to use it," a top agricultural official said recently. "We have no oil but we have food."

In less than three years, France's farm-food industry moved from a trade deficit of $660 million in 1977, which was largely due to a severe drought, to a record surplus of about $3.4 billion in 1980.

Although short of the government's target set in 1973 — the year that saw oil prices skyrocket — for a surplus of $4 billion, the turnaround is regarded as impressive.

Apart from higher world prices for certain commodities, the surplus was largely achieved through greater state-assisted marketing efforts both in traditional and rapidly expanding new outlets such as the Middle East and the newly industrialized countries.

According to Michel Debatisse, secretary of state for agri-business, a new Cabinet-level post created in 1979, the export performance will continue to improve in the future thanks to the establishment of more French commercial units abroad and the consolidation of existing ones.

Cereals, sugar, dairy products, beverages and livestock continued to figure prominently as the biggest export items, producing a combined trade surplus of $8.16 billion, up from a surplus of $6 billion in 1979.

There were recorded surpluses in these areas last year in all major industrialized nations except for the United States and the Netherlands.

The major deficit sectors, totaling $4.46 billion, were coffee, cocoa, tea, spices, tropical and citrus fruit, fish, meat, fats and oils, animal feed and tobacco.

The government is not only trying to consolidate last year's good performance, it also is planning to turn France's fragmented food-processing sector into a viable export industry.

The farm-food industry is set to contribute a growing share of France's exports and help pay the energy import bill which amounted to about $26 billion last year. This compares with farm-food exports of $15.5 billion.

Despite the government's evident satisfaction over the results obtained so far, French farmers complain that they are not reaping the full benefit of their efforts. They maintain their real income is steadily declining and blame the annual price-fixing decisions of the European Common Market for most of their ills.

With an eye on France's April-May presidential elections, the government bowed to recent demands by farmers and announced a $200 million package aimed at offsetting last year's real income loss. The French aid package has raised protests from some Common Market members, notably Britain.

France, which prides itself of being the "breadbasket" of Europe, is determined to draw the fullest advantage of its vast agricultural potential. It currently accounts for about 40 percent of cereal production in the 10-nation Common Market.

Philadelphia Mob War Deadly

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bullets and bombs have sent a string of reputed mob bosses and lieutenants to early graves in a violent, year-long reorganization of organized crime here.

The latest target was Philip "Chicken-Man" Testa, 56, torn apart when a bomb loaded with inch-long finishing nails and shotgun pellets blew out the four-foot concrete-and-brick front of his South Philadelphia home before dawn on March 15.

"He looked like he went through a giant paper shredder," a police officer said.

Testa, distinguished by a bulbous nose that sat like a fat strawberry on a pock-marked face, was the seventh victim of persons unknown since the local alleged godfather of them all, Angelo Bruno, 69, was blown away by a shotgun blast as he sat in a parked car outside his home March 21, 1980.

That first assassination, still unsolved, triggered a year of blood and mob vengeance that still has prosecuting crime-busters puzzling over a new question from an old tune: "What's breaking up that old gang of mine?"

Has war erupted between the New York and Philadelphia crime families for control of the lush casino territory in Atlantic City, N.J.?

Is there a drug connection, with characters from the motorcycle scene demanding a piece of the heroin-speed-cocaine action?

Was the Testa killing, unusually violent for a typical mob hit, a byproduct of Irish Republican Army vengeance?

Theories on the vicious executions keep cropping up. G. Michael Brown, director of the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement, is certain this violent year is just part of the struggle to take over crime-related interests in casino businesses.

"These murders show that the mob considers Atlantic City worth fighting over," Brown said. "But they also demonstrate no faction has control."

"The wonderful thing about organized crime work is you can say almost anything," George Parry, chief of the Philadelphia district attorney's organized crime section, said.

An FBI source, who earlier this year helped in an investigation that led to Testa's indictment with nine pals on federal racketeering and illegal gambling charges, and who asked not to be identified, was just as candid: "We just don't know what is going on yet."

Except they know, of course, about the executions that followed Bruno's:

—April 18: Two Bruno lieutenants in North Jersey, Antonio "Tony Bananas" Caponigro, 67, and his brother-in-law, Alfred Salerno, 64, were found in the trunks of two abandoned cars, their bodies stabbed and riddled with bullets.

Caponigro allegedly controlled the waterfront rackets for "the family" while Salerno acted as his bodyguard. Shredded $20 bills were stuffed in Caponigro's body openings, a vulgar mob sign that he was too greedy.

—Sept. 19: Bruno's cousin, John "Johnny Keys" Simone, 69, allegedly in charge of the gang's numbers racket, was shot and killed. He wore an expensive suit but no shoes.

—Oct. 30: Frank Sindone, 52, a Bruno associate reportedly in charge of loansharking, was shot twice in the head. His blanket-wrapped body was stuffed in garbage bags and dumped in an alley.

—Dec. 16: Roofers leader John McCullough, 60, boss of the city's toughest construction union and a close Bruno friend, was shot six times in the kitchen of his home by two men who gained easy entrance by carrying Christmas flowers.

And now Testa, Bruno's reported handpicked heir, whom some investigators say was locked in a power struggle with McCullough and may have ordered the labor leader's assassination to protect the lucrative Atlantic City turf.

One investigator said if IRA sympathizers believed Testa had McCullough wiped out, they would use their own brand of swift justice "by leaving a bomb at Testa's doorstep."

"The pipe bomb is the hallmark in the IRA arsenal," said the source, who was quoted anonymously in the Philadelphia Bulletin. "McCullough supported the IRA ideologically and financially. He was loved and respected by known IRA operatives in this city. This is where the heat of the investigation is centered right now.

"The mob traditionally doesn't jeopardize other people if they're hell-bent on murdering somebody. This bomb here could have blown up gas lines and killed anyone passing the house when the thing went off."

There is also a theory that supposedly supports the New York connection. Testa, according to some police sources, reportedly arranged Bruno's death because Bruno was not aggressive enough in peddling drugs and seeking power in Atlantic City. Then one-by-one he eliminated those who might have retaliated with bullets of their own.

Testa, assisted by such reputed mobster friends as Frank "Chickie" Narducci and Harry "Hunchback" Riccobene, allegedly aligned himself with the old New York Genovese family.

Investigators speculate the Gambino family of New York, on the outs with the Genovese gang, might have decided to step into the vacuum left by Bruno's departure.

Police and FBI sources also mentioned a theory that local members of the Pagans motorcycle gang, allegedly trying to control area traffic in methamphetamine (speed), might have killed Testa because he stood in their way.

Testa was buried last week. Who takes over now?

"There just doesn't appear to be a logical successor. Testa's killing was a surprise," said the FBI source.

Senate Vote Record Of Tar Heels

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area senators were recorded on major roll call votes March 16-20. There were no House votes.

LIMITING FARM IMPORTS — By a vote of 45 for and 53 against, the Senate failed to kill an amendment limiting imports of casein, a dairy byproduct that countries such as New Zealand, Australia, Ireland and the USSR sell on American markets. A protein component of milk, casein is used in industrial processes such as glue-making and in producing dairy products such as coffee whiteners. Foreign sales to the U.S. last year totalled $330 million.

Supports of quotas said farmers in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Idaho, California, Washington and other states would find casein markets as a result of the amendment. Opponents said that by limiting casein imports the government would invite retaliation against U.S. exports, including farm exports.

The vote came during debate on a bill to cancel the milk price support payment scheduled for April 1. The bill (S 509) awaited final Senate action.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a supporter of killing the amendment, said the measure "will not generate any appreciable increase in the demand for nonfat dry milk or any other domestic dairy products." He added that he has "no stomach for inviting a retaliatory trade war."

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., who wanted to limit casein imports, said "This amendment will not cost the U.S. government one thin dime... it will have the dual effect of saving additional federal dollars (by lowering price supports) while giving some support to our dairy industry."

Senators voting "nay" favored import quotas on casein.

Sens. John East, R. and Jesse Helms, R. voted "yea."

COMMITTEE VOTE — By a vote of 14 for and 2 against, with one abstention, the Senate Agriculture Committee approved and sent to the Senate floor a bill (S 509) eliminating the scheduled April 1 hike in federal milk price supports. If the full Senate and House go along, this will keep retail milk prices from going up an estimated 7 or 8 cents per gallon, and it will save the Treasury about $147 million in unspent price supports. It will hurt dairy farmers financially.

Voting yes: Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.; Robert Dole, R-Kans.; S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif.; Richard Lugar, R-Ind.; Thad Cochran, R-Miss.; Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn.; Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa; Paula Hawkins, R-Fla.; Walter Huddleston, D-Ky.; Edward Zorinski, D-Neb.; David Pryor, D-Ark.; David Boren, D-Okla.; Alan Dixon, D-Ill.; and Howell Heflin, D-Ala.

Voting no: Sens. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., and Patrick Leahy, D-Vt.

Present but not voting: Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont.

Divorce Party Is A Success

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Pam King was sipping champagne, eating cake and batting away balloons as she sat beneath a chandelier strung with crepe paper. Her guests were signing a guest book and picking up little white matchbooks printed with Ms. King's name in gold.

Her divorce party was a success.

She and Gary Finster — who said they see each other socially but have no plans to marry — decided to celebrate their brand new divorces with a party that had all the trimmings of a wedding celebration.

Ms. King said she wanted the party "because it was more or less a happy occasion. It wasn't one of those type of things where you would be real depressed or anything like that."

"This was a release that I needed," said Finster. "Now I feel I can begin putting my life back together."

China Woos Millions Of Mao's Foes

By PHIL BROWN
Associated Press Writer
PEKING (AP) — The Chinese Communist Party is wooing the millions of foot soldiers who fought Mao Tse-tung's Great Cultural Revolution, calling on them to repent, be forgiven and join in the new crusade to modernize the vast country.

Mao is dead, and his widow, Jiang Qing, and other commanders of the upheaval that wracked China from 1966 to 1976 have been tried and sentenced. But the party, in the name of national unity and because it needs them, is telling the millions who danced to Mao's revolutionary tune that bygones can be bygones.

They were accused of having aggravated discord by looking too zealously for enemies of the working class and signs of capitalism, of having promoted impractically grandiose projects and of having denounced veteran officials, many of whom now are back in command.

Now many of these diehard "leftists" are accused of obstructing progress by resisting party policies described as stabilizing, practical and conducive to improvement in the standard of living.

But Red Flag, the party magazine, says educating and "saving" them could help the party "win the popularity of the masses. And unlike the case in the past, no diseases will be left lurking behind for a long time after a great political struggle."

"Leftist" mistakes have influenced the party for more than 20 years, the People's Daily said, tracing them back by implication to Mao's economically disastrous Great Leap Forward toward speedy modernization in the late 1950s.

"The question is not whether party members are affected by 'left' things, but the extent and degree of the influence and whether they awakened earlier or later," the party newspaper said in a conciliatory commentary.

Another commentary in the paper noted that many of the party's grass-roots leaders were worried about their future because the present leaders are stressing the need for young experts.

Young specialists are important, it said, but the older officials made contributions and could continue to do so. Their past mistakes brought complaints from the peasants but often resulted from mistaken ideology at higher levels, it said. The answer to such mistakes is self-criticism, "comradely mutual criticism and mutual help," the People's Daily said.

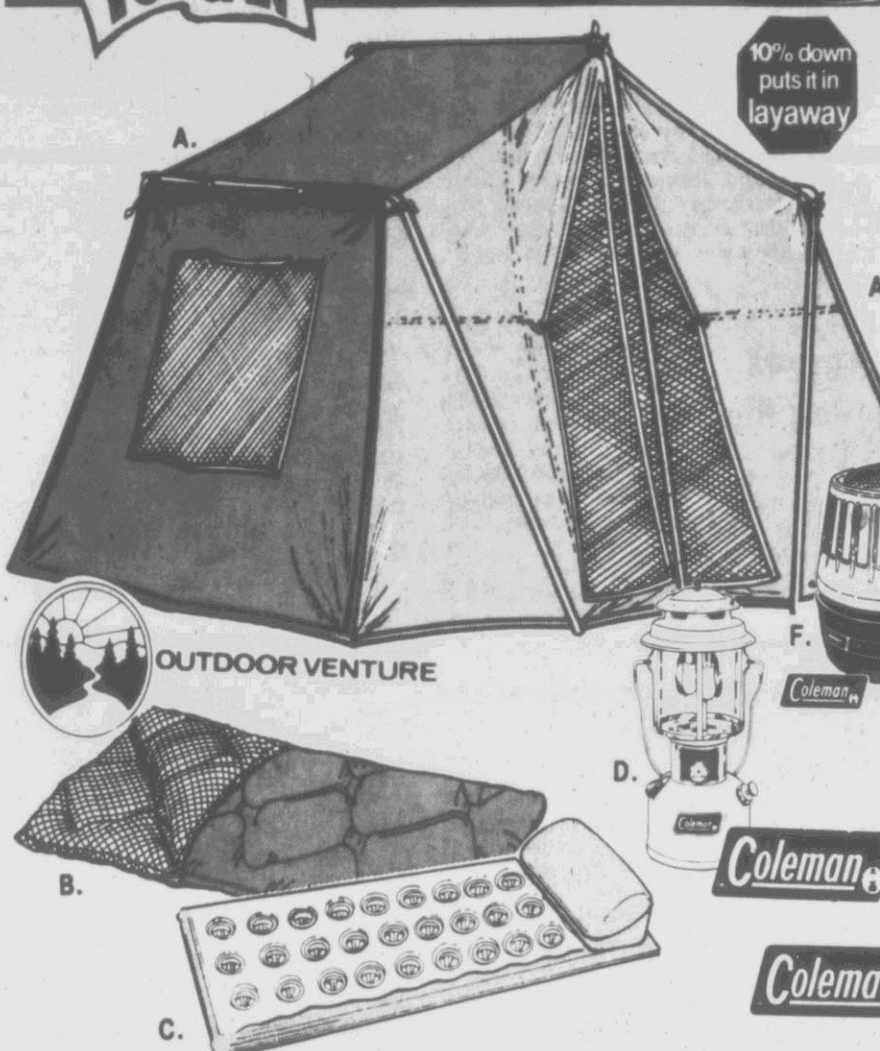

Repentance is necessary, it explained, to win the trust of the masses. But remarks made in criticism sessions should not be put on file; in the past "others held personal grudges against people who criticized them and looked for opportunities to retaliate."

Western analysts said the new policy of clemency appears aimed at mobilizing maximum support for Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping's program to modernize the country rather than digging out past mistakes.

Some of the so-called leftists are still well entrenched and know how to defend themselves, they said. Press commentaries on the stubbornness of some local officials attest to their staying power.

Average Tie A Little Louder

NEW YORK (AP) — The average man now has a dozen ties.

According to Marvin A. Blumenfeld, president of April-Marcus Inc., a merchandising consulting firm to some 175 mens' stores, five of the ties are striped, three are solids, three are dotted, and one is often a "little louder" than the other and is worn for special social occasions.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market was mixed today, leveling off after Tuesday's decline. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 8.10 on Monday, recovered 1.35 to 997.48 in the first half hour today.

But losers held a 4-3 lead over gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The first two sessions of the week marked the fourth time in the past five months that the Dow Jones industrial average climbed above 1,000, only to fall back immediately.

The prime lending rate continued its descent Tuesday.

Pitt Schools.....

people come into our community and come to enroll their children in school and are appalled by the conditions. In many cases folks take their children elsewhere.

"Ayden is a nice place to live and Ayden Middle gives a high quality of education," she continued, "but you could never tell that from the building."
 "We know this a year when a lot of no's will have to be said," added Long. "But please don't say no to the Ayden Middle School."

Chicod Principal Charles Johnson explained to the board the Chicod cafeteria needs. "My cafeteria workers every day face a situation where their serving line is 28 inches away from the hot stove," he said. "We are very lucky that there have been no serious injuries so far."

"Certainly this is a situation that is not safe and one that needs to be corrected," added the principal. "We are dropping our request for additional classroom space and are asking that a new cafeteria be the priority for the school in this year's budget." Johnson noted seating capacity is so limited in the cafeteria that each student is allowed only 20 minutes to eat.

A representative of the Winterville schools addressed the board on the area's past and continuing growth and the needs this growth has spawned in the schools. "In the fifth school month, which is just past, Conley ranked number one in the county in number of students enrolled," said C.P. Shaw, a member of the local advisory council. "Cox ranked third and Robinson ranked fourth."

The spokesman estimated that the system will grow by another 390 pupils in the next few years. "We think that you should take this into consideration when you prepare your budget," he concluded.

Assistant Sup't. of Testing John McKnight appealed to the board for a soundproof booth and two pieces of equipment that would enable the county to do their own audiological evaluations. The county is presently using East Carolina's facilities, which McKnight reported "is becoming a problem." The total cost of the project is $7,500, with used equipment available for around $4,200.

No action was taken during the meeting on any requests.

but board members Bill McLawhorn and Walter Gaskins recommended that Ayden Middle be the board's priority and that $1 million be added to the tentative capitol outlay request for completion of this project.

In other business, Sup't. Ott Alford asked that the board study the Reduction In Force policy he presented at the last meeting. "We need at the April meeting to adopt this policy or some type of policy in light of the cutbacks that seem inevitable," he explained.

Alford estimated that the county will lose $800,000 in federal funds if the Reagan budget cuts are implemented.

The board also denied a request by Pitt County NCAE President Annette McRae to allow 12 teachers professional leave time with pay to attend the NCAE convention in April.

"It has been my position for two years that we not grant professional leave and I would prefer that it remain that way," Alford told the board. The request would require that the county pay approximately $750 in substitute pay. Assistant Sup't. McKnight reported the county presently has around $700 in that fund and no state monies were used for this purpose.

Sect Charges Kidnapping Plot

LOS ANGELES (AP) - David A. Williams Jr., charged with forging Mickey Rooney's signature on a TV movie contract and embezzling a $10,000 fee, has pleaded innocent and faces a May 12 trial.

Williams, whose father is a federal judge here, was arraigned Tuesday before Superior Court Judge Julius Leatham on one count each of forgery and embezzlement, said deputy district attorney Lea D'Agostino.

Williams is accused of forging Rooney's signature last June 18 on a contract with Marble Arch Productions for a prospective NBC-TV film. After accepting a $10,000 fee on Rooney's behalf, Williams allegedly altered copies of the contract to conceal the payment and deposited the money in his own bank account.

Rooney fired Williams after accusing him of forgery on Aug. 15.

Bobby Patterson hurled a one-hit shutout at Princeton as East Carolina took a 1-0 victory in the second game of a doubleheader yesterday.

That teamed with a 10-4 win in the opening game to give the Pirates a sweep of the two with the Tigers, running the ECU record to 10-4 on the year.

Patterson, overpowering the Tigers with ease, gave up the lone hit to the second man he faced. That runner was the only one to reach during the game for Princeton, and he never got off first. The lefthander walked none and struck out 10 in gaining his first decision of the year.

In the opening game, Rick Ramey ran his record to 4-0, but wasn't satisfied with his effort. He gave up seven hits, five of them in the final three innings, when Princeton rallied from a 9-0 deficit.

"I lost my concentration," Ramey said later. "I started trying to keep them from scoring, rather than trying to get them out."

Ramey spent much time in the dugout in the fourth inning, while his teammates scored six runs, and he admitted that that could have had an effect on his pitching.

Coach Hal Baird was pleased with both efforts, however. "Bobby had the best outing of anyone this year. I hope that will boost him on to better things. Rick threw well except for one inning. And we were trying hard to get through that game without having to use anyone else.

"I was pleased with the way we played. That second game was as fine a college game as you're likely to see. It was well-played and well-pitched."

In the first game, the Pirates hit the ball well, banging out 11 hits, including three homers — all three career firsts for the hitters — Todd Evans, Robert Wells and Kelly Robinette.

"I was pleased to see us hit the ball well in the first game. We beat some fine opposition too. Princeton had the best ERA in the country last year."

East Carolina jumped ahead in the first inning of the first game, scoring three times. Mike Sorrell reached on a fielder's choice and Evans singled. Both moved up on a wild pitch, and Mike Sage hit a sacrifice fly to score Sorrell. John Hallow then singled in Evans, and a double by Todd Hendley brought in Hallow.

The Pirates then broke it open with six in the fourth. Todd Hendley opened the frame with a walk and Charlie Smith doubled. With one out, Wells cracked his homer to left, running the lead to 6-0. Kelly Robinette kept it going with a walk, and Sorrell greeted a new Tiger hurler with a first-pitch single to left. Evans then hit a 1-0 pitch over the fence in right for another three-run shot.

Princeton came right back to pick up four runs in the top of the fifth. Kelly Martin led off with a single and Gerry Rodts walked. Tom Michel also walked, loading the bases. Paul Steinhauser singled in Martin, and with one away, Martin Lockenmeyer reached on a bad-hop single, scoring two runs. Scott Minnash followed with a hit, scoring Steinhauser with the fourth run.

Princeton also threatened in the sixth, putting two on with none out before Ramey bore down and retired the side.

The other ECU run came in the sixth, as Robinette opened the inning with a solo homer to left.

Patterson hooked up with Steve Kordish in the second game for a classic duel. Kordish allowed only two hits in the first five innings of the game.

But in the sixth, the Pirates touched him for four, and the first three accounted for the lone run of the game.

With one down, Sorrell and Evans got back-to-back hits. Sage then hit sharply through the middle, and the ball banged into second base, carrying high in the air. Sorrell raced in from second as the ball was being chased down.

Hendley followed with an infield hit, loading the bases, but Kordish retired the side with no further damage.

Patterson, however, kept it up, setting down the side in order to retire 20 straight after allowing his only hit.

East Carolina takes Wednesday off before hosting Fairfield University at 3 p.m. Thursday.

A-G Beats Conley, Now 3-0 In League

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton won its third straight Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game Tuesday afternoon as the Chargers downed D.H. Conley, 6-3.

The Chargers led after the first inning, 1-0, and increased their lead to 3-0 after two. The lead went to 4-0 after the fourth before the Vikings cut the deficit to 4-3 with a three-run sixth. But A-G countered with two runs in the bottom the sixth to seal the victory, the Chargers fourth in seven games this season.

In the second, A-G's Roger Moye singled, stole second and scored on Doug Coley's single. Chris Strickland followed with a single and both he and Coley moved up a base on Bernard Ricciarelli's sacrifice bunt. Coley then came home on Terry Locust's sacrifice fly to give A-G a 3-0 lead.

The Chargers led 4-0 after the fourth but the Vikings

Orangemen Battle Golden Hurricanes Tonight

Syracuse Out For NIT Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Syracuse hopes to complete a month-long cycle of disappointment and happiness on a positive note tonight when the Orangemen meet Tulsa in the championship game of the 44th annual National Invitation Tournament.

Syracuse completed the regular season Feb. 28 with a 15-11 record, its worst in 11 years, followed that with a glorious three-game sweep of the Big East tournament and then was crushed when three other conference schools were invited to the NCAA championships and it was ignored.

Instead, the NIT selection committee came calling and the Orangemen responded with four more victories leading to tonight's game with the Golden Hurricane, this year's best rags-to-riches basketball team.

"Our backs were to the wall after the 15-11 season," said high-leaping forward Tony Bruin, a standout in the postseason after a so-so year. "Now the NIT is our reward for winning the Big East tournament."

"It's funny how life works out sometimes," said assistant coach Brendan Malone, who represented Syracuse at a news conference Tuesday while head Coach Jim Boehem kept a speaking engagement in Philadelphia. "We were so disappointed a few weeks ago. Now we're just delighted to be in the NIT. For some reason we've put seven real good games together."

In addition to the three victories in the Big East tournament, the Orangemen have won four in a row in the after the score was tied 63-63. "He'll be there Wednesday," said Malone. "He's in his hotel room with his foot in ice right now."

"When the adrenaline starts flowing, it's amazing what the body will do when the mind starts talking," said Richardson, expressing no doubt that he will have to contend with Schayes' height and outside shooting touch.

Tulsa, which beat West Virginia 89-87 in Monday night's other semifinal, relies heavily on four transfer players, all of whom were on Richardson's national championship junior college team at Western Texas last season. scorer during the regular season with a 15.2 average and he scored 19 against West Virginia.

"When I heard Coach Richardson was bringing four players with him from junior college, I didn't know what to expect," said senior forward Bob Stevenson, the lone hold-over starter from last year. "Then I saw we would have more talent than we had at any time since I've been here, and I realized my role would change."

Greg Stewart, a 6-9 center, and Paul Pressey, a 6-5 swingman, are the key players Richardson brought to Tulsa. Stewart was the leading

Lotz: Carolina Can Lose Three Times To Cavs

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

It's not often, if ever, that North Carolina coach Dean Smith will publicly criticize a player for a poor performance. Which is not to say a bad performance goes unnoticed.

"One of the worst things a player can do is go into the film room and see the projector turn back," UNC assistant athletic director John Lotz said. "Take James Worthy. Coach Smith knows James can be a great player and so he pushes him. He'll turn back the film and say, 'James, who're you guarding?' Great defense, James. Where were you?"

Since that rerun earlier this season, Worthy's defense has been among the items Smith has talked about in postgame interviews. It is also one of many reasons the Tar Heels are once more among the NCAA's final four.

UNC will face Virginia Saturday for the right to advance to Monday's NCAA finals against either Indiana or LSU.

"A lot of Carolina people are saying we can't lose three times to one team," said Lotz, speaking at the Greenville Sports Club's biweekly luncheon Tuesday. "Yes you can, if you don't play."

Still, Lotz, a former head coach at Florida and an assistant under Smith for eight years, likes the Tar Heels' chances.

"I think we're a lot better team now than we were earlier in the season," Lotz said. "The injury to Pete Budko may have been a blessing in disguise. 'It forced (Sam) Perkins to play 35 minutes a game.'"

And play he did. All the 6-9, 220-pound Latham, N.Y., freshman has done in his first season is become the second freshman ever to be named the most valuable player of the ACC tournament. This past week he was also named Basketball Weekly's Freshman of the Year.

"He looks like he's not aggressive, but then he throws one of those arms up that seem to keep unwinding and gets off that hook," Lotz said. "I think he's the type of player that could get Sampson in trouble."

But, one player does not a championship team make. It takes five players working together toward one goal — winning. And that, Lotz said, may be the key to winning.

"I think to win in basketball you have to have the right chemistry. Basically this year Jimmy Black is doing what Coach Smith wants him to. He doesn't want a point guard scoring 30 points a game.

"Then you have Al Wood, who may be the best leader North Carolina has ever had. When someone asked how he wanted to be remembered he told them he just wanted to be remembered as someone who played on a national championship team."

To do that, however, the Tar Heels must first get by Virginia, a foe they have yet to defeat this season.

"They're whole team seems different with those two little midgets — Othell Wilson and the other kid, (Ricky) Stokes," Lotz said. "They're like rabbits and yet with the kind of quickness they have they don't have to worry about someone getting by because they've got the fly swatter back there."

In the other NCAA semifinal game, Indiana faces an LSU team that Lotz feels may abandon its running attack if and when it gets ahead.

"If LSU gets ahead I think they'll make Indiana play a checkers game," Lotz said. "What I mean is that they'll make Indiana play defense against (LSU guard) Ethan Martin. He was a walkon but I don't know if (Indiana guard) Isaiah Thomas is any better."

"Anytime a team plays just one defense, as Indiana does with its great man-to-man, you sometimes have a problem if you get behind. You have to press and play different defenses trying to get the ball back."

Regardless of the outcome, Lotz said Saturday's games will be among the best played all season.

"The LSU-Indiana game will be as good as any played this year," he said. "The semifinals are the most competitive year-in and year-out. Coaches usually go to those and then leave Sunday afternoon and watch the finals on tv."

Holland: All Teams Confident

Virginia Faces Tar Heels Saturday

By The Associated Press
Confidence could be a factor, says Virginia Coach Terry Holland, but it will favor all four teams in the finals of the NCAA college basketball tournament that gets underway Saturday in Philadelphia.

Holland's fifth-ranked Cavaliers meet Atlantic Coast Conference rival, North Carolina, ranked sixth, in one of the semifinal games, while No. 9 Indiana and fourth-rated Louisiana State meet in the earlier contest.

The championship and consolation games are scheduled for Monday.

Virginia, 28-3, beat the Tar Heels twice during the regular season, but Holland feels North Carolina is a changed team.

"They're playing with a lot more confidence," the Virginia coach said, "but I think that's true of any team in the Final Four. I know we are, and I would guess Indiana is and LSU is."

During the season, Virginia beat North Carolina by scores of 63-57 and 80-79, in overtime, but both times, the Cavaliers had to rally from large second-half deficits. In the first game, it was 13 points — 16 in the second. North Carolina Coach Dean Smith's famous four-corners offense, a half-court spread, led to both defeats.

"Let's face it, they're a great team with a great tradition, and I don't think they'll change their game for us," Holland said. "We'll have to change our strategy, though. Down 14 won't work again."

Virginia won the ACC's regular season title, while North Carolina won the conference tournament. But while Virginia never has been to the Final Four before, Smith has made it five times — without winning the title. The last time North Carolina won it all was in 1957 under Frank McGuire.

"This one is for all the marbles," Holland said. "We have two films on them, and they have two films on us."

Holland will send one of the best big men in basketball, 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson, against what has become one of the best front lines in basketball. Freshman center Sam Perkins, 6-9, will be giving away seven inches to Sampson, but he will get plenty of help from forwards Al Wood and James Worthy.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight will be going after his second NCAA title. His Hoosiers won it in 1976, but with a more experienced team that relied on a starting five of Bob Wilkerson, Scott May, Quinn Buckner, Tom Abernethy and Kent Benson. All are still playing in the National Basketball Association.

"As long as we win, it doesn't matter who plays," said sophomore Isaiah Thomas, Indiana's All-American guard. "We have to count on guys like Chuck Franz (sophomore), Mike LaFave (freshman) and Phil Isebnarger (senior)."

"These guys might not see a lot of playing time, but they're the guys who play the opposing team in practice, and they're the ones who take all of the bumps and bruises ... they're the guys who set the picks and the ones who get knocked around," Thomas said.

Knight will start only one senior against LSU, 6-foot-9 center Ray Tolbert, along with three juniors and Thomas.

"This is not a one-man team," junior forward Ted Kitchel said. "It's a 13-man team. Just because some of the other guys don't play as much doesn't mean they don't work as hard in practice. They're probably the main reason why we're here."

LSU, meanwhile, will use dislocated the little finger of his right hand in the Tigers' 96-86 victory over Wichita State in the Midwest Regional title game last Sunday. Although Macklin is a left-hander, he still could have problems since a cut on the finger required three stitches to close.

"The X-rays showed no broken bones or torn ligaments," said Jordy Hultberg, one of Coach Dale Brown's assistants. "When there's something this big at stake, you can just forget the pain."

Hultberg also pointed out that since Macklin is not called upon to handle the ball often, "he'll still be able to post up, get his turnaround jumpers and rebound."

Indiana has the worst record of the four teams in the tournament, 24-9, while LSU has the best mark, 31-3.

The LSU-Indiana semifinal begins at 12:45 p.m. EST, with the second game at 3:15 p.m. On Monday, the consolation tipoff is set for 5:15 p.m., with the title game following at 8:23 p.m.

Conley Runners Nip Washington

WASHINGTON — D.H. Conley won all three relay events, and that provided the winning margin as the Vikings eeked out a 77-64 win over Washington yesterday.

A meet between the two schools' girls' teams was cancelled.

While Conley won nine individual events, as compared to five for the Pam Pack, Washington put together much more depth to keep it close. The three relay victories, however, were decisive.

Conley had two double winners. Stoney Speller won the 400 and 800-meter runs, while Dennis Carney won the high jump and the low hurdles.

Conley now 1-1, takes part in the Dual Conference Meet at North Lenoir on Friday.

Doherty Excited About Philly Trip

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina freshman Matt Doherty says he's excited about going to the NCAA basketball championships in Philadelphia Saturday to play Atlantic Coast Conference rival Virginia.

"I've dreamed about going to the Final Four since I was a kid," Doherty said. "It was even better to me than the NBA playoffs. There's a special feeling you have about it — and I'm fortunate to have that feeling."

The sixth-ranked Tar Heels square off with the fifth-ranked Virginia Cavaliers Saturday at 3:30 p.m., just after the first semifinal game between Indiana and LSU at 12:30 p.m.

After fading almost out of sight during the ACC tournament, Doherty resumed his solid sixth-man role in three NCAA playoff games. Against Pitt, Utah and Kansas State, he bounded off the bench and contributed 35 points on 12 of 18 shooting with 13 rebounds. He also played relentless defense and handled the ball with grace.

"I was embarrassed by my play in the ACC tournament," Doherty said. "I didn't play well and I didn't play much. So afterwards I went home and discussed it with a couple of my friends. I was able to get my act together again."

From the moment the 6-foot-7, 208-pound Doherty stepped onto the Carmichael Auditorium court, he looked like a Tar Heel. And he fit into what is called "The System," playing early and playing well. But bad luck struck two days before Indiana came to town. Doherty stumbled over someone's legs at a local theater, fell and broke his thumb. He was sidelined for several weeks.

"That was the most embarrassing thing that has happened to me since I've been here," he said.

But now Doherty is looking forward enthusiastically to the game with the Cavaliers — who, he says, can be beaten. "We've been up on them before," he said, recalling how North Carolina lost big leads in two regular-season losses to Virginia. "We have to work on defense against them. They've got a lot of guys who can really fill it up."

"We were young and we've grown up," Doherty said. "We've come a long way. We're going pretty good now."

Doherty says he admires the big names of college basketball, but has never been awed by the big-time ACC atmosphere. Part of that can be linked to his background.

Mackovic Quits, Going To Dallas

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — John Mackovic resigned his post as Wake Forest football coach Tuesday to become quarterback coach with the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

Mackovic said he is leaving immediately. After leading the Deacons to a 14-20 record in three seasons, Mackovic will take the job held by former Cowboy assistant Dan Reeves before Reeves left to become head coach of the Denver Broncos.

"During my three years at Wake Forest I have had the special experience of having worked with a group of outstanding young men and I am very proud to have been part of the development of a positive image for Wake Forest athletics and our football program," Mackovic said.

"This is a unique career opportunity for me and I look forward to the challenge of making positive contributions to the Dallas Cowboy program."

Wake Forest Athletic Director Dr. Gene Hooks said a search for Mackovic's successor will begin immediately and that he regrets Mackovic's decision to leave the college.

"John Mackovic brought a style of football to Wake Forest that was a joy to watch and a pleasure to support," Hooks said. "He leaves us with an excellent coaching staff and a team upon which we can continue to build our program, and I feel confident that we will be able to do just that."

"We wish him well in his new job with an organization I consider to be the best in football," Hooks added.

Mackovic came to Wake Forest from Purdue, where he had been an assistant coach, and pumped new life into a sagging football program at the Atlantic Coast Conference school. He graduated from Wake Forest in 1965 after having played quarterback for the Deacons in 1964.

His first team in 1978 had a 1-10 record, but he improved that mark to 8-4 in 1979, when the Deacons went to the Tangerine Bowl and Mackovic was named coach of the year in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Wake Forest had a 5-6 record last fall.

The Deacons posted a record of 9-24 in the three years prior to Mackovic's arrival.

Before coming to Wake Forest, Mackovic was an assistant at Army, San Jose State, Arizona and Purdue.

North Pitt scored seven runs in the bottom of the fifth but it wasn't enough to overcome the Aycock lead.

The Pant-HERS were led by Shanda Chance, Gladys Roberson, Trudy Sheppard and Frances Woods, all of whom had two hits. Sheppard had a double for one of her hits.

Parish Blocks 7 As Knicks Win

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Since the New York Knicks were honoring Dave DeBusschere, a hero of the past who was best known for his defense, it was fitting that the game's outcome should hinge on a pair of great defensive plays.

Robert Parish, Boston's 7-foot center, blocked seven shots, including two in the final minute, to help the Celtics beat the Knicks 118-116 Tuesday night and move into a first-place tie with Philadelphia in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division.

"It's a psychological thing," Parish said of shot-blocking. "It makes the other team think twice about taking a shot, and once that happens they're at a disadvantage."

Parish also led Boston with 26 points, 18 of them in a brilliant first quarter. Nate Archibald scored 24 and Larry Bird contributed 16 points, 13 rebounds and 10 assists for Boston.

The Celtics are now tied with Philadelphia at 60-19 for the best record in the NBA. Each club has three games left and it will most likely go down to their head-on collision Sunday in Boston — the winner gaining the division title, a first-round playoff bye and the home-court advantage throughout postseason play.

Boston led 114-108 with 2:03 to go before the Knicks rallied to pull within one. But Parish blocked a layup attempt by Larry Demic with 16 seconds to play, and after two free throws by Gerald Henderson extended Boston's lead to three. Parish swatted away Ray Williams driving shot attempt. M.L. Carr hit two clinching free throws for the Celtics with four seconds left, making Michael Ray Richardson's three-point goal at the buzzer meaningless.

"Timing and intimidation are my two strategies in blocking shots," said Parish, who ranks fourth in the NBA in that category. "You just have to anticipate what the man is going to do. You can't worry about fouling or goaltending. You just have to wait till he makes his move and then react."

At halftime the Knicks retired the uniform No. 22 worn by DeBusschere when he helped New York to its only NBA titles in 1970 and 1973. Among those on hand for the ceremonies were Willis Reed and Walt Frazier, teammates whose Nos. 19 and 10 have already been retired, and Bill Bradley, whose No. 24 will be retired next fall.

Rockets 114, Mavericks 111
Robert Reid scored 32 points and Moses Malone added 30 points and 22 rebounds as Houston edged Dallas in overtime. The victory, along with Kansas City's win and Golden State's loss, left the three teams tied in their scramble for the final two West playoff spots.

Kings 105, Jazz 92

Otis Birdsong scored 30 points and Reggie King 20 to help Kansas City break a five-game losing streak. The Kings led 57-46 at the half and were never in trouble after that. NBA scoring leader Adrian Dantley had 32 points for the Jazz.

Lakers 110, Warriors 103
Guards Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Norm Nixon scored 24 points each as Los Angeles won its fourth in a row and climbed within two games of first-place Phoenix in the Pacific Division. Golden State, which has now lost seven of its last nine starts, was without guard Lloyd Free, who has a bruised right knee. Joey Hassett topped the Warriors with 23 points, including three three-point goals.

Blaizers 120, Suns 111
Mychal Thompson scored eight of his 20 points in the final four minutes to give Portland the victory and enable the Blazers to clinch the home-court advantage in their first-round playoff series against Houston, Kansas City or Golden State.

Bulls 121, Cavaliers 108
Chicago won its sixth in a row as Artis Gilmore and Dwight Jones each scored 18 points and four others hit double figures. The Bulls now own the fifth-best record in the East, one-half game ahead of Indiana. Mike Bratz scored 22 for Cleveland, including four three-pointers.

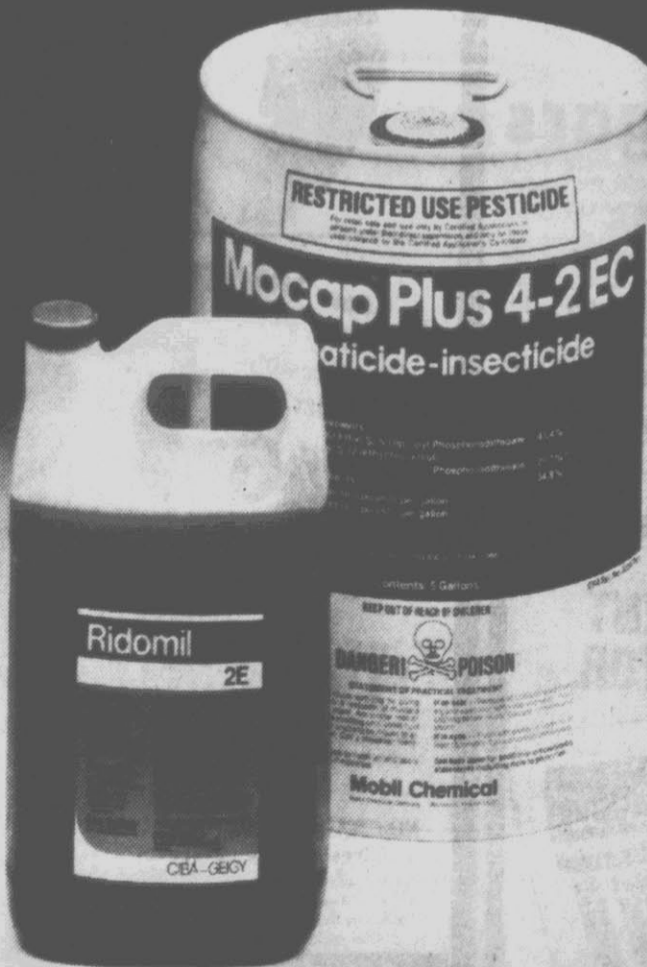

Hawks 96, Pistons 91

Tom McMillen and Wes Matthews combined for 13 points as Atlanta beat Detroit by outscoring the Pistons 15-6 down the stretch.

Bucks 131, Nets 107
Milwaukee pulled away from New Jersey with a 14-2 spurt early in the second quarter and went on to win easily as Marques Johnson scored 20 points and Mickey Johnson added 18.

Nuggets 125, Spurs 123
San Antonio's Mark Olberding hit a desperation three-pointer with two seconds left to tie Denver at 123-123, but the Nuggets' Alex English took an inbounds pass, dribbled once and fired in a 21-footer at the buzzer for the victory.

Lady Pirates Take Pair From North Carolina

East Carolina's Lady Pirates, behind a record tying homer by Cynthia Shepard, rolled to a two-game sweep of the University of North Carolina in softball yesterday.

East Carolina won the opener, 3-0, then came back to take a 6-1 victory in the nightcap.

In the first game, East Carolina pushed over two runs in the fourth and added one in the sixth.

Kathy Riley, Shepard and Jo Landa Clayton each had two hits along the way for the Pirates, who outhit Carolina, 8-4 in the game.

In the second game, East Carolina pushed over a run in the second, then added two in the fourth before Carolina got its only run of the day in the fifth. The Pirates closed out the scoring with three in the sixth.

Shepard and Riley both homered in the game. Shepard's round-tripper was her fifth of the season, tying Riley's single season mark.

Riley's homer was her second of the year. Clayton and Susan Spears of Carolina each had triples, while ECU's Ginger Rothermel had a double.

The victories raised the East Carolina record to 13-2 on the season, while Carolina dipped to 11-5.

East Carolina travels to the Western Carolina Invitational on Friday.

Ainge Not A Typical Athlete

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The pretty lady with the baby in her arms appeared in momentary distress.

"Oh, goodness," she said, "Ashlee needs her pacifier and Danny's got it in his pocket. I can't disturb him. He's tied up on television."

"That's OK," said a good

Samaritan, moving to the rescue, "I'll get it."

"Hey, Danny, your wife says the baby needs her pacifier!"

Danny Ainge blushed with embarrassment, reached in the breast pocket of his jacket and produced the soothing object.

The TV cameras had to grind to a sudden halt for this touching little domestic scene.

It's hardly what you would expect in the case of a talented young athlete, already involved in a major league baseball career, flown into New York and brought to one of the city's fanciest restaurants to be honored as college basketball's "Player of the Year."

Yet it behooved the man of the hour.

Ainge is a skinny, scruffy-faced guy of 22 who looks more like 16 but whose sports talents are of such magnitude that he has had operatives of Major League Baseball and the National Basketball Association scrapping for his professional services.

Danny chose baseball, signing a three-year, $500,000 contract with the Toronto Blue Jays. The NBA, which undoubtedly would paid $1 million or more, was left with its tongue hanging out.

The 6-foot-4 high-leaping, high-scoring star of Brigham Young University had to delay reporting to the Blue Jays' Dunedin, Fla., training camp.

First, he and BYU were involved in the NCAA playoffs and then came the trip to accept the coveted Eastman Award, which goes yearly to the collegian picked by the National Association of Basketball Coaches as the best player of the year.

Ainge joins a distinguished parade of past winners, including Larry Bird, Marques Johnson, Michael Brooks, David Thompson, Phil Ford and Scott May. He is the only one, however, who is taking another road for his career.

"I prefer the leisurely pace of baseball," he said. "I have to think my knees will last longer and I will have a longer career. It's a decision I made with my wife, Michelle."

"Money wasn't the main consideration."

Michelle, holding 15-month-old Ashlee, concurred. She told interviewers she wanted a husband who could romp with the kids when he was 50.

Danny grew up in Eugene, Ore., in a sports-oriented family.

"I've been playing organized baseball, football and basketball since I was in the third grade," he said. "My dad was always the coach. And I learned a lot from two older brothers — Doug and Dave — who never went on to pro sports."

Ainge, whose driving goal in the final seconds upset Notre Dame and sent BYU into the Regional Finals where the team lost to Virginia, rewrote the basketball record book in the Western Athletic Conference. He scored 2,467 points and had a streak of 112 straight games in which he scored in double figures.

"It probably would have been easier for me to break into the NBA," the nimble-footed guard said. "In baseball, I haven't even experienced a spring training yet. Mixing it with basketball, I haven't been able to give it all of my dedication.

"It may take me two years, but I am confident I can make the grade. I wouldn't have signed the contract if I didn't think so."

Two Pirates Get Honors

Two East Carolina basketball players have been awarded honors by Basketball Weekly, a national publication on that sport.

Kathy Riley, a member of the women's basketball team was named to honorable mention status on the newspaper's women's All-America team, while Barry Wright, a member of the men's team, received the same status on the publication's freshman All-America team.

Dancing Is Her Escape From Jail

By MARK PETERSON
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Susan Stanton usually can be found hanging around bars. During the day it's her job — at night, her avocation.

Ms. Stanton is Jackson County's director of corrections and boss at the county jail in Kansas City. Her office is situated amid the maze of steel bars that house 400 or so inmates.

She also is a dancer, spending many evenings twisting through exercises at the ballet barre. Dancing is her "escape" from the jail, where she's responsible for the welfare of about 5,000 men who pass through its peeling pea-green walls each year.

"There are times when I ask myself, 'My God, how did I get into this?'" she said. "But I've never regretted taking the job."

She was offered the post in January 1977, after working at various jobs in or around the jail for five years. At first, she didn't want it, but offered to serve as acting director and help screen applicants.

"But I didn't see anyone who I thought would do a better job than I could," she said. So, Ms. Stanton, who wrote in her high school yearbook that her goal was "to be truly feminine," took over the Department of Corrections, and became a jailer.

Besides handling a myriad of budgetary and administrative duties, she serves as the inmates' liaison with the courts, police department and other social agencies. She also spends much of her time responding to fights, sexual attacks, hunger strikes, belligerent inmates who refuse to leave their cells, and just about any other problem that arises.

As far as she knows, no other woman in the country runs a jail of comparable size.

"When I meet people in a social situation, it's like they don't know what to do," said Ms. Stanton. "I guess most people get this strange image of me. There's a real stigma attached to working in a jail. They think I'm some kind of freak ... or like the prison matrons you see in the old grade-B movies."

But she's not. "I make a conscious effort not to be," said Ms. Stanton, named one of Glamour magazine's 10 Success Choices for 1980, an award for women who have been pioneers in their field. "It would be very easy to be less feminine in this environment. I mean, a lot of people think of me as one of the guys. But I don't."

Her low-key style belies a tough streak. "I'm no bleeding heart, and obviously there are going to be situations that demand we use some kind of force, or make some show of strength," she said. "But we try not to unless it's absolutely necessary."

She said she tries to calm many volatile situations simply by talking with the inmates.

"A lot of people in that jail come from homes where the mother was the dominant force," she said. "They're used to a woman. If they do something I ask, they explain it away as just being nice to a lady, rather than giving into anything. It doesn't upset their ego."

She said she tries to be as fair and "up front" as possible with the inmates. For on the whole, she said, she likes them.

"When I first started, I didn't think there would be anything I'd like about these people," said Ms. Stanton, who's from an upper-middle class, private-school background. "But some of them I find I can't help but like. They're natural leaders or they have this great sense of humor. They just have a real charisma."

Ms. Stanton, who majored in political science in college, said that if she decides to leave her present job, it probably will be for a position in government.

"I have no desire to work in the federal prison system," she said. "There are no bigger and better jails for me. This is the one that has my life's blood in it."

Good Fence Opened For Clinic Care

METULLA, Israel (AP) — Sometime this year, the 200,000th Lebanese Arab is expected to come through the "Good Fence" into Israel for medical treatment at a border clinic run by the Israeli army. It is for people who lost virtually all medical services in the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war.

The stream of Arabs crossing the border every day is a counterpoint to the cycles of violence that so often rage along the Israeli-Lebanese frontier. One recent morning, about 30 Lebanese braved a freezing rain to seek medical help in Metulla, Israel's northernmost town. That same afternoon Israeli warplanes struck Palestinian bases in Lebanon, killing 15 people by Lebanese count. The Palestinians responded with a wave of rocket attacks on Israeli border villages in which Israel said three civilians were wounded.

The medical help is part of a humanitarian aid program at the "Good Fence" — the name given by the Israelis for the freely opening gate here in a border fence that is elsewhere heavily patrolled to stop Palestinian infiltrators.

The "Good Fence" is observing its fifth anniversary this month.

The gate opens each day at 6 a.m. for about 400 Lebanese who work in hotels, factories and farms in northern Israel. Around 8 a.m. sick call starts in the two-room clinic, one of a cluster of red-painted metal huts in the "Good Fence" compound a few steps inside the border. A Lebanese nurse assists the Israeli army medical team of a doctor, nurse and health technician.

The stream of patients includes infants with coughs and sniffles, children with cuts and burns from household accidents, adults who are ill or injured and the elderly with their complaints. Automobile accident victims also get treatment here, and some days the clinic treats people who have been wounded in the sporadic warfare in southern Lebanon.

"It's gratifying to help these people, because they have nothing in Lebanon, and we have saved some lives," an Israeli official said.

The clinic's clients come from the "Free Lebanon" enclave run by the breakaway Lebanese army officer, Maj. Saad Haddad, whose Maronite Christian militias are supported by the Israeli army.

Based in Marjayoun, five miles north of Metulla, Haddad controls a strip averaging six miles deep along the border, and his forces often engage Palestinians farther north in artillery duels.

Haddad helps Israel by keeping the Palestinians away from the frontier, and Israel, while helping to arm and train his troops, gives a wide range of aid to the 100,000 people in his enclave. The hope is that this will act as an incentive to the southern Lebanese to keep the guerrillas away.

Claiming success for the program, an Israeli officer noted that the enclave, which has a large number of Shiite Moslems, has avoided most of the Christian-Moslem friction that inflames the rest of Lebanon.

"This is the only part of Lebanon where the Christians and Moslems aren't fighting each other," the Israeli said.

Marjayoun is largely cut off from Beirut, the Lebanese capital, and all of the town's doctors fled five years ago when the Lebanese civil war made life here dangerous. None has returned.

"The Moslem doctors are afraid to come here, and the Christians can't get through the Palestinians' road-blocks," said a Lebanese Medical technician at Marjayoun's hospital.

Once a busy facility serving southern Lebanon, the Marjayoun hospital was deserted for several years and only now is being reactivated — with Israeli army doctors.

The hospital now can handle some minor operations, and it has X-ray facilities and an electrocardiogram machine. But if more treatment is needed, the Arab patients are sent to hospitals in northern Israel.

Super Hero Series Offers Fun

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's a sweet connection: television that's light and silly and very well done. Much of the time, we have to settle for two-out-of-three, or less.

ABC's "Great American Hero" suggests what a comic book might be if it were written by Art Buchwald and drawn by James Wyeth. In television terms, its credits are almost as impressive. The show is made by Stephen Cannell, a writer-producer who has worked in such classy shops as "The Rockford Files" and "Tenspeed and Brown Shoe," and by Juanita Bartlett, a former "Rockford" producer.

What they're doing here is lampooning the super hero theme a little bit and having some fun while they're at it. When you were a kid, didn't you wonder exactly what it was that Superman and those other caped ones did when they took off on a flight? Did they just say to themselves, "Fly!" and off they went?

The Great American Hero wonders. He's Ralph Hinkley, a schoolteacher (nicely played with a sort of innate bemusement by William Katt) who suddenly finds himself with a magical Super Power suit. The mysterious aliens who gave him the suit charge him with the minor task of saving Earth from self-destruction.

Alas, Ralph loses the instruction booklet that came with the suit, which puts him in a classic Cannell-Bartlett situation — a reluctant hero, trying to get by on a minimum of heroics and a goodly portion of bumbling.

First, he had to learn to fly. Not for noble purposes, right off, but to get to his child custody hearing. After posing in front of a mirror ("It's a bird, it's a plane... It's Ralph!") he managed takeoff and promptly thumped into the nearest brick wall. Two passing policemen ungraciously escorted him to the nearest loony ward.

In on Ralph's little secret is Robert Culp, an outlandishly rigid G-man whose mind is a wellspring of Comie-catching "scenarios." This is great Culp here, played straight without tongue bulging conspicuously in cheek, the best Culp since "I Spy."

Also privy to Ralph's grand mission is his lawyer girlfriend (Connie Sellecca), who needs some time to adjust to her fiance's new circumstance. "How do I marry a guy in a cape and long-johns?" she asks. "How do you work that into a marriage?"

Ralph isn't especially keen on things either. When Culp urges a fast retreat a la flying Ralph, our hero fusses, "Look, you — I'm Captain Crash...I navigate like I was hit with a can of Raid."

The two-hour premiere movie was good, inspired fun. How the bumbling super-hero routine will wear as a weekly series is undemonstrated, but "Great American Hero" has a pretty good team in control.

Where this show could use a super hero is in the courtroom, where a copyright infringement suit against it will be settled. Warner Brothers has tried to stop the ABC series, alleging it looks too much like its own DC Comics "Superman."

Cannell and ABC won the first round when a judge refused to grant a restraining order to block the first broadcast.

Anyway, give this series a try, if it happens to stay on the air. This is good television that has nothing to do with fat-lady arias or pro-silly, feet-up-and-popcorn TV.

Fun TV, and that's all right.

"Gentlemen:
"Our game last night almost ended in an uproar after this hand. Order was restored only after East and West agreed to let you act as arbitrators to determine who was responsible for this debacle.

"North-South reached five diamonds in what can be described as routine fashion. West led the deuce of clubs, and everyone was aware that it was a singleton. Declarer won in dummy as East followed with the three, then led a trump to the king and West's ace. West tried to reach his partner by leading a low heart, but declarer won, drew trumps and made the rest of the tricks, ending up with an overtrick on a hand where he should have been down one.

"We leave it to you to decide who was most to blame — East or West.

"Sincerely,
"A Troubled Reader"

It is not very often that we are asked to adjudicate the blame for allowing declarer to make a contract that should have been defeated, and we can make both defenders happy — or equally unhappy, as the case may be. The fact is that both East and West were guilty for this mishap.

East made his mistake at the first trick — he should have followed with the ten of clubs rather than the three. Since that could not be a signal requesting a club continuation, it would have to be a suit preference signal, asking for the lead of the higher side suit — in this case, spades. When West gained the lead with the diamond ace, he would obediently shift to a spade and get his club ruff for a one-trick set.

However, West did not wait long to compound his partner's error — his mistake occurred at trick two. There was no hurry to win the ace of diamonds. Had he held up the ace for one round, West would have given his partner the chance to signal for a spade shift on the second trump. West would still have had a trump left for a club ruff.

'Old Country' Opens April 4

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — The Old Country, Busch Gardens, will reopen for the 1981 season on April 4, it was announced.

The 360-acre outdoor family entertainment park, four miles east of Williamsburg, offers exciting rides, shows, entertainment, shops, restaurants, exhibits and eight authentically detailed 17th century European hamlets.

New Galaxy Discovered

A large galaxy, or huge cluster of stars, farther away from us than any previously known, was recently discovered. The scientists at the University of California who made this discovery, estimate that light from the galaxy has taken 10 billion years to reach Earth. This means that the light we see left that galaxy almost 5 billion years before Earth took its final shape! Astronomers measure the large distances between stars and galaxies with a unit of length called a "light-year." A light-year is the distance light travels in one year. Because the new galaxy is 10 billion light years away, its distance from us is truly astronomical!

DO YOU KNOW — In which galaxy is the Earth located?
TUESDAY'S ANSWER — The nation had a 12.4 percent inflation rate for 1980.

Court Approves Roberts' Dream

By JERRY SCARBROUGH Associated Press Writer OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The City of Faith Hospital, the controversial project that received a financial boost from Oral Roberts' "vision" of a 900-foot Jesus, has won the approval of Oklahoma's highest court.

"We're grateful to God, and we're grateful to the state Supreme Court," said Richard Roberts, the evangelist's son. The court's decision Tuesday means the hospital — where Oral Roberts says he will combine "the natural and the supernatural" in the healing process — will be eligible for Medicare, Medicaid and other federal reimbursements. Far fewer patients would be able to afford hospital care without such reimbursements. The court ruled 6-3 that despite bitter opposition from other Tulsa-area hospitals, the Oklahoma Health Planning Commission acted properly in granting a "certificate of need" for the $120 million hospital on the Oral Roberts University campus.

The 1978 OHPC order had been overturned by a Tulsa County judge. The Tulsa Area Hospital Council contends Tulsa already has too many hospital beds. Officials say the City of Faith — scheduled to open Nov. 1 with 294 beds and space for 777 beds — will make health care more expensive by reducing the patient load at other hospitals, forcing the competing facilities to charge more.

The council's lawyer, Rick Ford, said Tuesday the ruling is "a decision we believe the U.S. Supreme Court might well want to review." The hospital is part of a three-tower complex that contains the tallest building in Oklahoma. There is the 30-story hospital, a 20-story research tower and a 60-story clinic tower. A 60-foot-tall pair of hands is the centerpiece.

Outside the massive structure Tuesday, Richard Roberts said, "It's a great day for Tulsa. It's a great day for the state of Oklahoma and for the partners of this ministry." The "partners" are the financial supporters. Last September, Oral Roberts said he had a vision of Jesus Christ, 900 feet tall, and that Jesus assured him through the "partners," the hospital would be finished.

The letter drew $5 million in donations within a month. Skeptics said he was bilking his public, but Roberts said, "I've got to have a big Christ because I've got big needs." Roberts also solicits donations through his television program, "Sunday Night Live." Richard Roberts said the decision came when his father was out of town. Oral Roberts' early days as a minister featured services in which worshippers said they had been cured of various illnesses after Roberts placed his hands upon them and directed they be healed by divine power.

In reinstating the certificate of need, the Supreme Court noted Roberts' contention that "the laying on of hands by touching the patient is a method of transferring concern and compassion." It said the other Tulsa hospitals do not provide the combination of expert medical treatment and healing prayer that Roberts says his facility will provide.

The court said the planning commission had determined there would be no problem in filling the hospital because of the widespread following of the evangelist. "OHPC found that the existence of a constituency was apparent from the receipt of OHPC of approximately 400,000 hand-written letters from people who believed that their medical and physical needs cannot be met in other hospitals," Hodges wrote. Ford contended it is unlawful for a public health planning agency to approve a hospital "based on the religious beliefs of people who want to use it."

Chamber Music Set For Tonight

Three compositions are to be performed on the program of the Faculty Chamber Concert of the School of Music, East Carolina University. The concert is to be presented at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

There is no admission charged, and the public is invited to attend. Seating will be on a first-come, first-seated basis. The program will open with a work by Claude Debussy, "Sonata for Flute, Viola and Harp" in three movements, pastorale, interlude and finale. Performers are Anne Searl, flute; Rodney Schmidt, viola; and Marian Harding, harp.

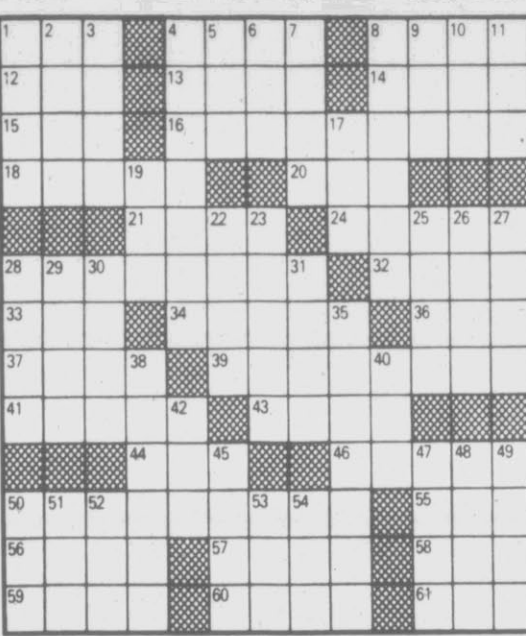

The second selection to be performed is "Chansons Madecasses" by Maurice Ravel in three parts entitled "Nahandove," "Aoua! Aoua!" and "Il est doux." Vocalist for this piece is Virginia Linn, mezzo-soprano, with Anne Searl, flute; Selma Gokcen, violoncello; and Patricia Foltz, piano. The final selection scheduled for the program is Akira Yuyama's "Divertimento for Marimba and Alto Saxophone," with Harold Jones, marimba, and Brad Foley, alto saxophone.
