

Ready And Waiting

WAITING FOR THE SEASON TO COME — These old-style tobacco barns in Pitt County seem to be standing quietly, patiently awaiting the time when the 1981 tobacco season will put them to work again. Tobacco will be set out in the area in about two weeks, according to county agricultural extension chairman Leroy James. "We anticipate most of it being put in the fields between April 10 and April 15-20," he said, "although some may be set out even earlier." James said last week was the peak time for corn planting in the county. "But a few farmers will still be getting it in the ground this week," he added. (Reflector Photo By Larry Zicherman)

Senate Demos Seek GOP Stamp On Budget Action

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Senate Democrats, hoping to win political if not legislative points after being unable to overcome the Republican majority, are trying to put a clear GOP stamp on President Reagan's budget cuts in social programs.

One Republican, meanwhile, is trying to beat the Democrats at their own game and restore money that Reagan wants cut from some of such programs as aid to education and help for poor people to pay fuel bills.

Senate leaders plan to complete action on the $36.4 billion budget-cutting package early this week.

The work was resuming today, beginning with debate on an amendment by Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., that would restore $800 million in fiscal 1982 to retain the minimum Social Security benefit of $122 a month.

In all, the Senate is considering a Budget Committee measure that would slash $2.8 billion from the budget for the remainder of fiscal 1981, which ends Sept. 30, $36.4 billion for fiscal 1982 and $47.7 billion for fiscal 1983. It is a virtual carbon copy of Reagan's proposed cuts.

Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said Saturday that the public will feel the pain of Republican cuts and "will know who inflicted it" when they vote in the 1982 elections.

The House Budget Committee, controlled by Democrats, still is laying the groundwork for drawing its own budget blueprint next week.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which will not begin writing a tax-cut bill until after Easter, is continuing hearings this week to take testimony from various interest groups who have their own ideas of how taxes should be reduced.

In two days of often-fiercy Senate debate last week, Republicans turned back four Democratic attempts to restore money to social programs.

Byrd said the Democrats would have more amendments this week to restore money for mass transportation, college student loans, regional economic development, education and programs that help low-income people pay their energy bills.

But Byrd, almost conceding defeat, said: "The Republicans are standing together and they are outmaneuvering the veterans; they are outmaneuvering the school children, they are outmaneuvering the old people."

The Democrats' best chance appeared to be a plan pushed by a Republican, Sen. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island.

Chafee planned to seek restoration of about $1 billion for programs including elementary and secondary education, fuel assistance, weatherization, urban development projects, mass transit and community and mental health.

On Friday, Riegle asked rhetorically "who's next" if the Social Security minimum benefit is dismantled.

"It's obvious they're (the administration) testing the water. ... No one on Social Security is going to be safe if they get away with this," Riegle said.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said Friday that Reagan needs the reductions to "straighten out a mess that many of them (Democrats) created over the years with their votes."

The measure under consideration in the Senate does not actually make the budget reductions.

Race Against Time In Warsaw Parleys

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Labor and government leaders raced against time today in talks aimed at averting a nationwide general strike in this Soviet bloc country racked by political and economic turmoil. A government leader warned a strike would be "the threshold of a precipice."

There was no sign of a breakthrough as Lech Walesa, leader of the Solidarity independent union, met with Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski in a government building in Warsaw. Warsaw Pact military maneuvers continued in and around Poland, an ominous background to the talks.

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted a Polish Communist Party official as saying, regarding a general strike, "our country has no reserves that would enable it to survive this catastrophe economically. Therefore the structure of our state and its very survival are at stake."

The official, Kazimierz Barcikowski, spoke at a meeting of the party's Central Committee which gave its ruling Politburo a vote of confidence to deal with the situation after stormy debate.

After flexing its muscles in a four-hour warning strike Friday, the union, angered by the beating of three members in Bydgoszcz on March 19, threatened an indefinite general strike starting at 6 a.m. Tuesday (11 p.m. EST tonight) if its demands are not met in the last-ditch talks. The chief demand is dismissal of those responsible for the beatings.

Solidarity leaders alerted regional chapters to await the final strike order by 8 p.m. (1 p.m. EST.)

"We face a general strike with effects that may be catastrophic," said Rakowski, deputy premier and chief labor trouble shooter for the government in comments reported by the Polish news agency PAP from the session of the party's central committee.

"The general strike would be the threshold of a precipice," he was quoted as saying.

Rakowski told reporters before the meeting with Walesa: "The prime consideration is to remove reasons for the enormous tension in the country as a result of the Bydgoszcz conflict."

Walesa said the government must negotiate seriously and not stall for time if the union is to be able to rescind its strike call.

Solidarity's deputy chairman, Andrzej Gwiazda, said "at the moment we are exactly where we have been before — nowhere."

Another union leader, Andrzej Slowik, said a strike would be a last resort. "We don't want it, the government doesn't want it, the people don't want it. But we have no other way."

The Warsaw radio broadcast excerpts of a speech made at the party meeting by Internal Affairs Minister Miroslaw Milewski. He said people "who hanker after power and are irresponsible in their actions" have penetrated Solidarity.

"The time has come to curb the widespread lawlessness and lack of observance of the law," he said.

In addition to stating its support of the Communist leadership, the committee called on government officials to meet with Polish workers in their factories and told workers to "put an end to strikes," the official PAP news agency reported.

Reacted To Rose Report

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

For the two men closest to the scene, the headline "Beer, Whiskey Flow Freely at Rose" in the lead front page story in Sunday's issue of "The Daily Reflector" is a head they label totally false and misleading.

Superintendent of City Schools Glenn Cox said, "I think the headline is absolutely ridiculous, totally misleading. It has no basis in fact and really doesn't relate to the context of the article."

Cox remarked that he has "no real problem with the text of the article, although I don't believe there's much sense in using the suggestion of a 16-year old coed at Rose, and the comments of a 14-year old at Aycock that he has tried alcohol and seen several Aycock students drinking as a basis for the findings about drinking problems and percentages. After all, he's only one of 766 students at Aycock."

Another point Cox takes exception to are the comments made by Hugh Benson in the story. "Hugh speaks of eight or ten parties a week with 30 to 50 kids at a party. I don't think Hugh knows how many parties are held, or how many go to them."

"I understand the attempt to establish a rate, a percentage as the key to the article, but so far as the headline is concerned, I think 'The Daily Reflector' owes an apology, in big headlines, to the staff and students at Rose."

"Finally," Cox commented, "I simply don't see why a story of this type rates top billing on the front page."

Rose principal Howard Hurt also objected strongly to the article's head. "It is totally false, completely misleading, implying that alcoholic beverages are readily available at Rose High, which of course is not the case."

"I've been told this morning by a number of teachers that several ministers in town used this head for their sermons Sunday morning. The teachers said they had to go the ministers after service and straighten them out on the matter."

"I feel that if the headline had been to the effect of concern about drinking problems of teen-agers, that would have been a proper picture of the situation."

"In general," Hurt added, "I was not too much bothered by the text."

Greenville Ranks Sixth In Building

Greenville ranked sixth among 44 North Carolina cities of more than 10,000 population in the value of building permits issued during 1980, according to a report released by State Labor Commissioner John Brooks.

The commissioner said that permits valued at $33,725,999 were issued here during the year, ranking the city behind Charlotte ($198,978,133), Raleigh ($170,335,222), Greensboro ($86,151,201), Winston-Salem ($75,911,117), and Durham ($54,375,584).

Building value figures for December of 1980 in Greenville amounted to $1,058,178 as Greenville joined 14 cities with permits exceeding $1 million during the month.

Total construction authorized in Pitt County during December amounted to $1,311,032, including 15 single-family units valued $527,854, 13 multi-family units valued at $290,000, seven non-residential units valued at $171,036; and 57 additions and alterations valued at $322,142.

Totals in several neighboring cities for 1980 and for December included: Elizabeth City, $6,680,101, $241,100; Goldsboro, $8,666,842, $485,600; Jacksonville, $18,323,077, $872,170; Kinston, $7,829,432, $209,743; New Bern, $4,125,389, $196,075; Roanoke Rapids, $7,899,311, $1,844,973; Rocky Mount, $16,848,321, $711,319; Tarboro, $3,161,375, $186,200; and Wilson, $13,601,172, $638,801.

Brooks said a new record in building activity value was set in 1980, with the 44 cities recording $1,009,753,269 in estimated construction cost for 39,876 building authorizations.

He called the first billion-dollar year in building activity in the state "only a reflection of inflation, not to be read as an indicator of economic recovery or growth."

APPEAL FOR WITNESSES

Bobby Williams and Ronnie Anderson were pushing Randy McLawhorn's car, which had run out of gasoline, while Randy steered Saturday evening between 6 and 7 p. m. on Highway 11 near Ayden.

Suddenly Williams, 18, an employee of Coastal Chemical Company here, was hit by a car. He sustained injuries to his legs and face, particularly his left leg which was run over by the wheels of the car. He is in serious condition in Pitt County Memorial Hospital, according to his mother, Mrs. Robert F. (Mavis) Williams of Rt. 1, Winterville.

Witnesses to the accident are urged to contact the Williamses, 746-3549.

Deprogram Action Okayed By High Court

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Supreme Court let stand today Minnesota rulings which allowed parents to lock up an adult "child" and try to "deprogram" her out of a religious cult.

The justices, as usual, did not explain today's action, leaving open the option of tacking at some future date the thorny questions of religious freedom and "brainwashing."

Susan Louise Peterson grew up on a farm near Bird Island, Minn., with her Lutheran parents, Norman and Margaret Junglaus. She joined a religious organization called The Way Ministry while attending Moorhead State College.

As the Minnesota Supreme Court later summarized it, "The Junglauses grew increasingly alarmed by the personality changes they witnessed in their daughter; overly tired, unusually pale, distraught and irritable, she exhibited an increasing alienation from family, diminished interest in education and decline in academic performance."

They concluded, the court said, that Ms. Peterson "had been reduced to a condition of psychological bondage." On May 24, 1976, Junglaus picked up his daughter, then 21, at the college. Instead of driving her home, she claimed, he drove her to a house in Minneapolis where she was held and subjected to intense persuasions to leave The Way Ministry by a pair of "deprogrammers."

For the first three days, the state court said, Ms. Peterson resisted and was physically confined. She later stopped resisting, and was allowed freedom of movement.

Plan Final Countdown For Shuttle's Launch

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Kennedy Space Center workers are preparing for a final countdown tentatively leading to an April 10 launch of America's trouble-plagued space shuttle Columbia.

"We feel the 10th is a viable launch date," shuttle launch director George Page said Sunday after an exhaustive physical inspection confirmed the success of two critical tests of the system's silo-shaped aluminum fuel tank.

The 73-hour launch countdown is set to start at 11:30 p.m. EST this Sunday, Page told reporters at a briefing.

The formal announcement of a launch date is not expected until a flight readiness review, to be conducted Tuesday at Kennedy Space Center by National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials.

Last week's fueling tests involved the 154-foot fuel tank, which serves as the backbone of the shuttle system. The tank is designed to carry 526,000 gallons of super-cold liquid oxygen and hydrogen that will fuel the Columbia's three main engines for eight minutes after blastoff.

The tank will be jettisoned just before the shuttle goes into orbit. If all goes according to plan, the Columbia itself will glide back to Earth on wings for a landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California following its first 54-hour orbital flight.

The $8 billion shuttle program is more than two years behind schedule.

A weekend "hands-on" examination of cork insulation panels on the outer surface of the tank, which fuels the orbiter's main engines, revealed "absolutely no debonding problem" as a result of the fueling tests, Page said. A similar fueling operation in January had loosened the bond holding some of the insulation and damaged 32 of the panels.

"Basically, both tests (on Wednesday and Friday) were successful," Page said. He said minor cracks in a foam covering sprayed onto the insulation would be repaired immediately and would not interfere with the mission.

Seek Alternatives In Funding Tobacco Program

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

The Reagan administration's proposals to end government subsidies for farm crops has renewed interest in finding alternative sources of funding for a privately financed price support program for tobacco.

Industry-led leaders say they are confident the price support program will remain intact for the 1981 auction season, primarily because financial commitments based on the program's support levels already have been made and some crops have been planted.

But the program's fate for 1982 is another matter. And many of the proposals being considered could mean still another nail in the economic coffin of the small farmer.

Fred Bond, general manager of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp., said several studies have been made as to what would happen if the federally financed support program were terminated.

"These studies are on-going," Bond said in an interview, "but they're still only concepts."

Bond said the alternatives "would be in the commercial area," referring to banks or other financial institutions with available money to support the multimillion-dollar program. However, he did not rule out the possibility of a grower-financed program.

Dr. Carlton Blalock, director of agricultural extension services at North Carolina State University, also speculated that growers may develop their own program to maintain stable prices.

"It's possible for growers to get together and finance such a program," Blalock said. "They might take the tobacco into a pool situation, and be paid a pro rata share of its value — not the full amount."

Blalock said he believed financing agencies would go along with such a program, although "over a period of time prices would go down." Such a program, tying tentative income reductions to ever-growing production costs, would "intensify the trend toward big farmers," Blalock said.

Abrupt termination of the existing program, Blalock said, would lead to "economic chaos ... There would be more bankruptcies than you could shake a stick at."

But Blalock said he was optimistic that some type of industry-federal program would continue. "If we can get through this year, I believe the industry is ready to sit down and talk," he said.

Tobacco accounts for roughly one-third of North Carolina's $3.6 billion annual farm income. Livestock and poultry make up another third and all other crops make up the rest.

The extension service and some other farm-related agencies have been preparing for an end to tobacco for years, seeking alternative sources of cash income for farmers who have grown dependent on the highly valuable leaf.

"We've had a serious search for alternatives for about 15

Voice Some Hope Poland To Avoid A Major Crisis

By KEVIN M. COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says there are signs a major crisis in strike-torn Poland may be avoided, although "a heightened state of readiness" of Soviet troops along the Polish border leaves the situation "very, very tense."

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., who had said the weekend could be crucial to peace in Poland, said Sunday that moderate elements in the Polish government "seem to be surviving."

An intervention by the Red Army is "neither imminent or inevitable," Haig said, but he added: "I do believe that that varies hour to hour by various postures taken by Soviet forces... The situation is still very, very tense."

An announcement by the East German news agency ADN in Berlin said "new units" have been sent to join Warsaw Pact military maneuvers now under way on Polish soil and along its border, as Poland's large independent labor union, Solidarity, prepares for a general nationwide strike on Tuesday.

If the Soviets do intervene in Poland, said Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger, the United States would consider a "broad spectrum of activity — political, economic, diplomatic."

Weinberger, appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers," declined to say whether a U.S. "military response" was also a possibility.

Weinberger and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., in a separate interview, agreed that any movement by Soviet troops into Poland would end the possibility of any future arms limitation talks with the Russians.

Percy, appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," also said he has "reason to believe" the Carter administration was considering providing military armaments to China in the event the Soviets intervened in Poland. But he said he does not know whether the new administration is still considering the plan, although it was an "ongoing project" a month before Reagan took office.

As the administration watched and worried about the Polish situation, Haig sounded a trace of optimism.

"I think there are some signs that perhaps a major crisis can be avoided if the moderate elements in the political leadership continue to prevail and maintain their influence," Haig said in response to the question of whether the administration views the Polish situation as being any "less critical" than it did late last week.

Haig said Friday that the weekend "could be critical" in determining whether there could be a peaceful outcome to Poland's internal problems.

Questioned Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," Haig said there are "growing frictions between the moderate and rightist elements in the political leadership itself."

"There are some good and also some continuing worrisome signs," Haig said.

"The good signs would involve some indication that the moderate elements in the political structure of Poland seem to be surviving well at the current moment and maybe will continue to prevail," Haig added.

Haig said the Soviet troops along Poland's border are "at a heightened state of readiness, with communications in place, and with some indications of increased posturing which could lead to (a movement of Soviet troops into Poland)."

"I think most of the worrisome signs involve readiness measures being taken along the Baltic military region, in Eastern Germany, and in some of the other satellite states," Haig said, adding he was also troubled by the Soviets' "sophisticated communications capabilities."

Both Haig and Weinberger continued to express their concern about what they view as an indefinite continuation of what started as routine military maneuvers by Warsaw Pact troops.

"A maneuver of that kind provides a perfectly good cover, or springboard, if you like, for an invasion, and those activities are continuing and that is necessarily a matter of very considerable concern," Weinberger said.

"I think we're seeing additional signs of threats that are being made to the existence of Poland as a nation that should be entitled to determine its own destiny."

In Warsaw, meanwhile, the Communist Party Central Committee urged Polish workers early today to "put an end to strikes" and said central authority and party discipline should not be questioned, the Polish news agency PAP reported.

The official Soviet news agency Tass, in dispatches from Warsaw, said conditions were "extremely tense" and accused Solidarity of "provocation" and "open methods of struggle against the legitimate state authority."

Bill-Introductions Still Below 'Par'

By SAM D. BUNDY
N. C. House of Representatives

The number of bills introduced in the House has increased to 563, while the number in the Senate has reached 332, for a total of 895. This is still well below the number in recent sessions. Since April 1 is the deadline for local bills, the number of bills to be introduced will go to even a slower pace. In my opinion, this is all well and good.

The Senate has finally passed a banking bill dealing with usury laws. The final decision by the Senate was to set rates on loans under $25,000 on a floating scale tied to six months treasury notes. If six months treasury notes are quoted at a stated price, then banks can charge rates six percent higher. This means if six months treasury notes are quoted at 12 1/2 percent, the banks may charge 18 1/2 percent. This main criticism here is that 16 percent is a floor, which means that if six months treasury notes should go down to eight percent, the banks could still charge 16 percent, rather than 14 percent. I believe this will be contested in the House.

The House spent two days and about six hours in debating and finally passing a comparative fault bill (H. B. 377), which means that in case of accidents, etc. the jury apportions the fault upon which determination award of damages will be made. Many think this bill will have hard sledding in the Senate.

Last week my page was Lynn Pollard from Farmville, and this week, Connie Dupree from Bethel. Rev. Scott Sowers and a group of 16 from the Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church were in Raleigh on Tuesday. I was privileged to eat lunch with them, show them around the Legislative Building and have them recognized in regular session by the Speaker.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday

MOUNT OLIVE — Sharon Lynn Moxing and Paul Ford Humphries were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in the Mount Olive Presbyterian Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Billy Adams.

A program of wedding music was presented. Mrs. Lillian B. Langley, organist, and Mrs. Regina S. Williams.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Roland Henderson Moxing of Rt. 6, Mount Olive, and Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Humphries of Fayetteville.

The maid of honor was Nancy Elaine Edwards of Greenville. Bridesmaids included Kathy Lee Thompson of Mount Olive, Sharon Denise Rambeau of Wilmington, Delia Anne Jordan of Goldsboro and Jennifer Ann Myers of Raleigh, both cousins of the bride. Heather Lynn Goode of Goldsboro, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers included William Crawford Creech and Don Walter Lewis, both of Greenville, Charles Neil Franks of Raleigh and William Henry Goode of Goldsboro. The ring bearer was Roy Andrews Beavers of Mount Olive.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal ivory gown with a high neckline encircled with re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with seed pearls with covered button closure in back. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke of organza outlined in the re-embroidered alencon lace that continued over the entire bodice, encircling the waistline and continuing into the modified A-line skirt. The full sheer bishop sleeves featured beaded appliques of lace with the cuffs overlaid with matching lace. The skirt and attached chapel length train were edged at the hemline with the ivory alencon lace. She wore a fingertip veil of ivory illusion bordered in alencon lace attached to a semi-Juliet cap overlaid in matching lace beaded with pearls. She carried a white cattleya orchid with daisies and miniature cymbidium orchids, gypsophila and white sweetheart roses tied with satin streamers of candlelight and daffine rose.

The attendants wore formal gowns of daphne rose with each gown designed with an open neckline featuring small shoulder straps, fitted criss-cross bodice and flared accordion pleated skirt. A sheer chiffon drape complemented the gown. Their bouquets were of daisies, gypsophila and miniature cymbidium orchids with matching streamers.

The flower girl wore a formal length gown of ivory organza designed with an open neckline featuring a ruffled bertha collar, fitted empire bodice and modified A-line skirt accentuated by a ruffled flounce at the hemline that extended up the back of the gown to a silk rose at the waistline to form a bustle. She carried nosegay matching the attendants.

The couple will live in Greenville after a cruise to the Bahamas.

The bride graduated from UNC-Wilmington and Cape Fear Valley Hospital School and Medical Technology and works at Pitt Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom attended Fayetteville Technical Institute and is a manager trainee with Carlyle Co.

The reception was held at the Southern Belle Restaurant after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur King presided at the guest register.

Punch was poured by Miss Verna Goode, aunt of the bride and the five tier wedding cake was served by Mrs. Bobby McClees and Ms. Allie Watts. Assisting were Ginger Jordan, cousin of the bride, and Nancy Smith.

Rice bags were given out by Leigh Beaver and Scarlett Jordan. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Breedlove Shaw.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner at the Southern Belle Restaurant for members of the wedding party and guests.

Sam Uzzell Is Speaker

Sam Uzzell, from the Agricultural Extension Service, was speaker at the meeting of the Greenville Garden Club held Friday at the home of Mrs. Ernest Holt.

His program topic was pruning. He told when to prune and what to look for when doing so.

Mrs. Delphia Corbett, Mrs. Gilbert Peel, Mrs. J. A. Piver, Mrs. J. E. Ricks and Mrs. Eugene Sutton were meeting hostesses.

Mrs. R. M. Helms explained her arrangement of zanthorhiza simplicissima. Mrs. Sally Klingenschmitt gave a garden therapy report and reminded members to start cuttings for the workshop in April with Mrs. Nancy Walters class at Aycock Junior High School.

The horticulture report was given by Mrs. Helms. Thirty-one members planted 5,205 items. She also reported on the birch tree planting at the Junior High School.

An arrangement of pink quince, camellias and white spirea decorated the dining table.

The event was sponsored by the East Carolina University Club and fashion show coordinators Phyllis Wooten and Lynda Wilms reported over $600 was realized from the event, which was held for the Lillian J. Jenkins Scholarship Fund.

The number attending the fashion show luncheon was 514. Members assisting the coordinators were Nancy Crowe, Sue Lemish and Becky Orr, invitations, Linda Davis, models coordinator, Gloria Fletcher, staging, and Rebecca Buck, Carol Dohm, Peggy Hursey, Vicky Marx and Ms. Orr, special project.

Other models included Nancy Emory, Lori Ehlbeck, Lane Hartley, Sonya Daniels, Cameron Warren, Nelda Hedges, Patti Clark, Marty Gartman, Peaches Jordan, Karen Collier; Gerda Nischen, Bertie Fearing, Pat Terrell, Sue Lanier, Diane Bowen, Sue Lanier and Pete Benton.

Showing fashions were Blount Harvey, Belk Tyler, Happy Talk, Namedropper, Virginia Crabtree, Traffic Light, Golden Gull, Certain Things and Annie's Bride Beautiful.

Narrating the show was Jim Rees while background piano music was rendered by Charles Bath.

Fashions modeled in the show offered a variety of colors including red, white, navy, green, misty lilac, apricot, several shades of beige, silver, cream, black and jade.

Popular styles for the spirit of spring are suits — walking shorts with matching jackets, culotte suits, jump suits and three-piece suits. Other fashionable notables are notched collars, waist tucks, mad plaids, unpressed pleates, inverted pleats and the swing skirt.

Additional interest in the Saturday event was provided by an anonymous phone call to the writer Saturday morning, a model's pose by a dark-haired young lady in the audience (with a show of leg) and those waiting in line on a typical spring day.

The term "partially sighted" is rather imprecise since it covers a wide range of visual conditions. In one case a partially sighted person might have fairly good sight. In another, a partially sighted person might be legally blind. While most partially sighted people learn to live with their visual deficiency up to 80% can actually improve their sight if given visual therapy. There are over 500,000 blind people in this country. Many of those blind people were once partially sighted. Given a desire for self-sufficiency and a willingness to try new ideas the partially sighted person need not join the ranks of the blind.

Diligence Pays Off

It appears almost certain now that the city will receive funds for the South Evans Community Development project.

In view of the budget slashing going on in Washington, city officials are elated that Greenville has been chosen to make a full application for funding to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Mayor Don McGlohon noted the project was given top priority. It was emphasized by the previous council, and the present council favored continuing the efforts.

Qualifying was difficult this year, and chances for obtaining the federal funding were not thought to be good. Nevertheless the city went on with the application and it appears now the effort will be successful.

It can be seen that continuation of the project is vitally important to Greenville in that further improvements of 14th Street are involved.

This is an important east-west traffic artery leading to the rapidly growing Pitt County Memorial Hospital area.

All city officials are to be commended for their diligence in pursuing the funding for this project.

The Public Deserves Thanks

It appears that the White House is going to be redecorated with private donations, helped greatly by contributions from the oil industry, appreciative of President Reagan's early deregulation of oil prices.

And why not? The deregulation will certainly help the oil interests make the tax deductible donations.

There's one thing, though. Maybe when President Reagan gets around to expressing appreciation, he should send the letters to the motoring public who, after all, will pay the bill in the long run.

Unionism Tactics

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The term "collective bargaining" triggers such negative response among public officials, the general public, and even the membership of the North Carolina Association of Educators that the organization at one time tried to get the press and public to adopt another label: Professional Negotiations.

Bargaining smacks of unionism, and while a hardcore band of activists in the NCAE — many in positions of leadership — have that goal in mind, insiders say the majority of teachers do not want to see their professional organization become a labor union.

A detailed strategy called "Collective Bargaining Project, 1980-81" was detailed in this column recently. That report spelled out the scheme by a small task force to target a limited number of "lighthouse local" school districts in which a small cadre of trained representatives of the Classroom Teachers Association division of NCAE would persistently disrupt local school board meetings until the board members would finally agree to accept bargaining with elected spokesmen of the NCAE.

Next Step
What would have happened next? Some argue that this does not necessarily move in the direction of unionism. The answer is contained in several pages attached to the Collective Bargaining Project in the form of a flow chart. No narrative description is contained in that section of the plan, and definitive approaches are not spelled out in detail.

But to those who know how to define terms and read a flow chart, the progression is simple. Here is a report on that plan for future action:

As the monthly pressure is built on the local school board, an "Exclusive Representation Card" is distributed to teachers in the district who are NCAE members. If 50 percent or more sign the cards, then the local school board would be confronted with a dual proposition — a majority of the teachers want NCAE representation in collective bargaining, and, such bargaining would put a stop to the monthly hassle and bickering now taking place.

If the school board agrees, and if enough cards have been signed, the flow chart says "File With NLRB". That is the National Labor Relations Board, and the purpose of filing is to say that most of the teachers in that district want NCAE to represent them; the local school board has agreed; and therefore, a union election is to be held.

The bargaining process begins, in the meantime, and the local leaders are instructed to "Develop reasonable proposal list and priorities... but keep secret."

A series of proposals, the election, and finally "Begin Contract Maintenance" follow as further steps are outlined.

Demands
Clues to the various proposals which will make up the contract can be found in legislative priorities prepared by NCAE, from talks with insiders: from experience; and from a study of contract demands which are now being prepared for action in the Fort Bragg school system where the NCAE is the union.

The demands would include NCAE dues checkoff so that all teachers could be required to pay the membership fee which supports the statewide and the National Education Association; overtime pay for extra-duty assignments; a reduction of trial period prior to tenure from three years to 30 days; a seniority system to be followed if any jobs are eliminated; and the right to take "job actions" free from the threat of punishment — job actions including slowdowns, demonstrations and even strikes.

Other Editors Say Little To Offer

(Gastonia Gazette)

A downeasterner lawmaker in the N.C. General Assembly is attempting to add even another exception to the state's Open Meetings Law.

A bill by Rep. Douglas Clark, D-Kenansville, asks that local boards of election be allowed to hold executive sessions (meetings closed to the public) to discuss alleged irregularities of elections and to determine whether investigations into reported irregularities should be launched.

The closed sessions would be held after public hearings, the bill states.

On the surface, the bill has a harmless-enough ring. And there is always the argument that people will speak their minds more if they can do so without the eyes and ears of the public/press watching and listening to everything that is done or said.

Irresponsibility is born and bred behind closed doors, however. Responsibility blooms in open meetings and as surely as sunshine brings growth to spring gardens. It is not the capable and the responsible legislator who fights for executive sessions; it's the unsure person who realizes that a public gaffe might lose him votes in the next election.

The state's Open Meetings Law is better than it used to be, but it still is not good enough. Already there are 18 exclusions to the law that allow public boards to meet in private to discuss personnel matters, land acquisitions, possible disciplinary measures and related matters which the General Assembly felt should be discussed without the public's presence.

Representative Clark's bill brought a lusty "no" from most of Gaston's senators and representatives. Sen. Marshall Rauch, a longtime opponent to secrecy in government, came on strong when he questioned the bill's necessity, adding that a democracy relies on the public exchange of information.

Sen. Ollie Harris said simply and succinctly: "I'm for the Open Meetings Law; I helped instigate it." Of the legislators, only Rep. E. Graham Bell had a reservation about condemning the bill. By and large, however, the local delegation finds the contents of the bill much in disfavor.

What the law needs are fewer, not more, loopholes.

The local delegation is on track on this issue.

Students Really Needed

With education tuition soaring, student loans being cut to the bone, and the 1960s baby boom coming to an end, many colleges are desperately looking for warm bodies to fill their freshman classes.

For the first time schools are advertising for students in newspapers, magazines and on television.

An advertising agency recently made a presentation to the board of Desperate Tech University, which had decided to spend a million dollars trying to attract students.

Honeybee, the account executive, said, "Gentlemen, our surveys indicate that today's students are interested in sleeping late, partying and not being bugged about their studies. We have to go after this market and persuade them to come to Desperate Tech."

"How do you propose to do it?" a board member asked.

"I think we should do it in a wedding gown in front of the student chapel. The text reads, 'I went to Desperate Tech to get an education, but I wound up with something much better — a husband. He is going into his father's oil business, and we will start married life on a 10,000-acre ranch just outside Dallas. If I hadn't gone to Desperate Tech I might have wound up working in a massage parlor. There are many men like Ted and you won't have any trouble finding 'Mr. Right,' if you just fill out the coupon on the bottom of the page!"

ART BUCHWALD

Honeybee continued his presentation. "Now I think we should also go into newspapers in a big way — on the comic pages. Here you see a puzzle. It is a series of numbered dots and the copy reads, 'If you can connect all these dots to each other, and make a football player out of them, then you've passed your entrance exam to Desperate Tech. If you fail to do it, we'll permit you to take a make-up exam in next week's comic pages.'"

"What else do you have?" someone asked.

"Well, this is another TV commercial. We show the president of the university standing in front of the administration, like Lee Iacocca does for Chrysler. He says, 'Desperate Tech is now offering the largest close-out sale in university history. We have to get rid of 100,000 college degrees by April 15. That's why we're offering $700 rebates to every college freshman who applies this month. Whether you're looking for a B.A. or a B.S., or just want to waste four years of your life, stop into one of our

"First, we need a catchy slogan. How does this grab you? We show a TV commercial with John Belushi throwing food at his fraternity brothers, while they're teaching the science lab. A voice-over says, 'If you liked the movie "Animal House," you'll love the real thing at Desperate Tech.'"

"Won't that put Desperate Tech in a bad light?" one of the board members asked.

"Gentlemen, we have to resort to a hard sell. Our competitors are offering free cars to the kids, two-week paid vacations in Fort Lauderdale, and remedial rock music classes. If you expect to get a share of the freshman market, you're going to have to top them. Now here is a magazine layout I believe has tremendous student appeal. As you can see, it shows a co-

new vehicles only.

It is important to make sure that whoever offers the service contract has enough money to pay claims for repair bills. "Some companies... lack funds or insurance or go out of business," says the Federal Trade Commission.

The recent failure of a company that marketed service contracts called "Car Life" demonstrates the potential problems.

Jackie Schmitt of the FTC said the company, which did business under the names North American Dealer Services and North American Dealer Group, sold an estimated 500,000 "Car Life" service contracts across the country between 1977 and 1981. In February the company filed for bankruptcy.

Ms. Schmitt said holders of "Car Life" contracts should check their records to make sure they do not suffer. Two types of contracts were sold, she said. One was issued by individual dealers; the contract includes the words: "This vehicle service contract is between the issuing dealer and the service contract holder." People with this kind of contract should have no trouble getting repairs, despite the bankruptcy, Ms. Schmitt said, since the dealer, not North American, is the provider of service.

The second type of contract, sold through a variety of outlets, including credit unions, is more complicated, Ms. Schmitt said. These contracts were written as insurance policies against the Great Atlantic Insurance Co. Ms. Schmitt said holders of this type of contract should send a copy of their policy and repair bills to the insurance company at 59 John St., New York, N.Y., 10038.

No matter who is issuing the contract, you should ask several questions before you sign up for anything. Among them:

—What does the contract cover? Some contracts will pay for routine inspection and maintenance only; others take care of all defects and breakdowns. Are towing costs included? What about the expense of a rental car while your auto is being fixed?

—What does a service contract provide that a warranty doesn't? The contract and the warranty may overlap for a year or more. According to the FTC, most service contracts cost between $100 and $350 and last anywhere from a few months to five years or 50,000 miles. Ask yourself whether the additional coverage from the service contract is worth the additional money.

—How will repair bills be paid? Do you have to pay for the work and then wait for reimbursement from the contract company?

—Where can I get service? Some contracts require you to do to the dealer where you bought your car; others offer nationwide service at any one of a network of repair stations.

—What will I have to pay in addition to the original cost of the contract? Most service contracts have "deductibles," just like insurance policies. You may have to pay the first $50 of any repair bill, for example.

—What happens if I sell the car? Many companies require the payment of a transfer fee if the car changes hands.

Uncertainty Over Change

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Just about everybody agrees that changes are needed in North Carolina's regulation of automobile insurance, with calls for regulatory overhaul coming from the state Supreme Court, Gov. Jim Hunt and legislative leaders.

But there is a growing uncertainty that this is the year any major changes will be achieved.

With the 1981 legislative session at its mid-point, the General Assembly has been largely quiet on the issue of how insurance rates should be set.

In the 11 weeks of legislative session, only three bills dealing with auto insurance regulation have been introduced, including Insurance Commissioner John Ingram's proposal to ban rate surcharges and another to ban territorial rates. None have advanced so far as a committee vote.

And none of those proposals addresses the big picture — how rates should be regulated in North Carolina — that has bedeviled North Carolina legislators for the past three terms.

"There's a general feeling over here and in the courts that the courts are tired of being the regulatory body and something's got to be done," one legislative veteran observed last week. "But nobody wants to get the son-of-a-gun who picks the fight with Ingram."

The lack of proposals may be changing, however. Legislative sources say several bills calling for new insurance regulatory systems will be introduced within the next several weeks, including one that would establish a new board or commission to decide insurance rate cases and reduce the commissioner to the role of public advocate.

"I think the lieutenant governor (Jimmy Green) wants something to be done and I think he's a little anxious that no bills have been introduced," said

Green's Senate Insurance Committee Chairman, Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Charlotte.

Indeed, feeling is widespread that North Carolina's hybrid system of auto rate regulation is inadequate. After a fight that left deep political scars, the 1977 General Assembly tackled the insurance problem by stripping Ingram of much of his power to block rate increases and at the same time imposed an arbitrary 6 percent a year limit on rate hikes for auto coverage.

It was a solution that has done little to abate calls for a better method — either from Ingram, who has fought bitterly with the insurance industry and turned down nearly all their rate requests, or from other quarters.

The state Supreme Court, in its March 4 decision upholding rate surcharges, noted that appeals courts have been required to rule in more than 30 insurance disputes since Ingram took office eight years ago. Almost all went against Ingram.

"We do not think it unreasonable to observe that these disputes are far too numerous..." the court said. "We think the Legislature should hasten to rewrite the insurance laws in question in clear and unmistakable language."

Green, in a rare address to Mathis' committee in early February, recommended opening automobile insurance up to allow companies to file competitive rates.

And Gov. Jim Hunt said last week he wanted legislators to act: "I would hope they would give us a new approach that would work in this session of the Legislature."

The possibilities are many and varied. One proposal expected to be introduced would do away with the N.C. Rate Bureau, which makes uniform auto policy rate requests for all insurance companies, and allow each company to make its own rate requests.

Another would establish a regulatory board patterned

I believe you owe an apology to the students of Rose High School and the Greenville community. The headlines in the Sunday, Mar. 29, paper read "Beer, Whiskey Flow Freely at Rose." Yet, the article had nothing to do with a drinking problem at Rose High School. In fact, the very last sentence in the article was "... but drinking doesn't go on at school."

The article concerned itself with a problem of teenage drinking. It properly associated the problem with parental guidance. Yet the headlines conveyed the message that it was a school-related problem.

Since titles and headlines to articles are supposed to convey the main idea of the article — how could your headline have been selected? Hopefully, it was unintentional to associate the teenage drinking problem with Rose High School.

Examine A Service Contract

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Automobile buyers looking for protection against big repair bills often spend extra money for service contracts, but consumers have to shop carefully to avoid hidden pitfalls.

It is important to understand what you are buying and who you are buying it from.

A service contract is not a manufacturer's warranty. It is designed to cover repairs for a fixed period of time, generally extending beyond the life and scope of the warranty. The cost of the contract — unlike the cost of the manufacturer's warranty — is not included in the price of the car. The contract is sold separately from the car; you do not necessarily have to buy it from the dealer who sells you the car, although you may want to do so.

A service contract may be offered by a manufacturer, an independent contract company or an individual dealer or dealers' association. It may cover either a new or a used car, although contracts provided by manufacturers usually apply to new vehicles only.

It is important to make sure that whoever offers the service contract has enough money to pay claims for repair bills. "Some companies... lack funds or insurance or go out of business," says the Federal Trade Commission.

Supply-Side Economics: Stimulating Production

EDITOR'S NOTE: The laws of supply and demand govern our lives. But when economists speak of "supply-side" and "demand-side" theories, it can get confusing. In the first of a three-part series, AP Writer Glenn Ritt examines the new "supply-side" economics.

By GLENN RITT

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Only two years ago, the term "supply-side economics" was alien to virtually everyone except economists.

Today, it trips off the tips of politicians' tongues and journalists' pens, a catch phrase for President Reagan's untested brand of economic theory.

While the Reagan administration champions the "supply side," opponents of the president's economic program are routinely referred to as "demand siders."

The rhetoric can be confusing, but needlessly. For supply-side and demand-side economics actually are two sides of the same coin.

"It is not at all a choice between supply and demand," says economist Richard Dym. "For years, the scale has tipped toward controlling the economy by controlling federal spending and consumption. Now, it may begin to lean toward stimulating production through incentives."

Similarly, the supply-side argument is neither liberal nor conservative, Democrat nor Republican. One of its early legislative advocates was Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who promoted the concept as chairman of the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Supply-siders believe that significant cuts in the tax rate lead to greater economic growth, encouraging people to work, save and invest — as opposed to spending for more luxurious, consumer-oriented items, or speculating in real estate and commodities.

"More work, production and savings mean higher productivity, less unemployment and less poverty," says Arthur Laffer, who helped popularize supply-side thinking and the notion of a 30 percent cut in income tax rates which Reagan adopted.

Inevitably, says Laffer, this economic growth will raise enough tax revenues to more than offset the original tax cut, thus shrinking the federal deficit and reducing inflation.

Applying this theory, the Reagan administration foresees a far rosier future than traditional economists. If Congress approves the president's proposed reductions in taxes and federal spending, the administration predicts, inflation will be cut in half by 1984 and the economy — now virtually stagnant — will grow more than 4 percent a year beginning in 1982.

The supply-siders' guiding principle is incentive. "Why save money if double-digit inflation eats up interest?" they ask. "Why work harder if taxes steal away earnings?"

Professor Irving Kristol calls inflation and the progressive tax system an "unholy alliance."

"A lot of blue-collar workers today are in the 40 percent to 50 percent tax bracket," says Paul Craig Roberts, Reagan's choice as assistant treasury secretary for economic affairs.

"Every additional dollar they make, they can keep only half of it. That increases absenteeism and their decision whether to upgrade skills," says Roberts. "They ask, 'Why make all that effort and get so little back?'"

Reagan budget director David A. Stockman says the rising tax burden is "unjust, unfair and counterproductive."

In effect, Roberts and Stockman are talking about the price of work and investment versus leisure and consumption. High tax rates decrease the price of labor and profits; lowered rates increase these prices. Just as farmers will plant more corn when its price rises, so will people invest more and work harder when the incentive to do so increases, says Roberts.

"I'm not saying that people will run out and save huge chunks of their income," says Roberts. "But if every worker took only a slightly better attitude toward work, then a little for one can be multiplied by 100 million," he says.

The average American now saves about five cents of every after-tax dollar he or she earns. The administration hopes this rate can be increased to seven or eight cents by 1984.

That savings becomes the pool of money that business can borrow to expand their plants, buy new equipment and eventually hire new workers.

Supply-siders also favor reducing government regulation to free more money for productive uses rather than paperwork. They also repudiate wage and price controls, or even voluntary guidelines, claiming these artificial limits reduce incentives.

Never before has government emphasized the economy's supply side so forcefully, even though most supporters acknowledge that the theory still awaits proof that it works. However, Stockman says: "The old theories have been tried, and we know their results."

Former British Prime Minister Denies Plot

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Contradicting his closest associate while he was prime minister, Sir Harold Wilson denied her charge that the late Earl Mountbatten plotted to overthrow his Labor government in 1968.

Wilson in a statement said there was a plot by "one or two people high up in the press." He said they approached Mountbatten, the World War II hero and cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, and Sir Solly Zuckerman, his government's chief scientific adviser.

"Mountbatten and Sir Solly sent them packing in the best quarter-deck manner," said Wilson after the Sunday Times revealed the alleged plot.

However, publisher Cecil

King, one of the alleged plotters named by the Sunday Times, said Mountbatten approached him and his deputy, Hugh Cudlipp, about letters to the queen complaining about the Wilson government.

King said he told the earl the time might come when the armed forces and the monarch "might have a part to play, but it certainly was not then."

Wilson's former political secretary, Marcia Williams, who took the name of Lady Falkender after he made her a life peeress, said Mountbatten was a "prime mover" in the plot, the Sunday Times reported. Wilson said the charge was "an unwarranted slur" on the soldier-statesman, who was assassinated by the Irish Republican Army in 1979.

Mountbatten was the fourth prominent dead man attacked by a British newspaper within a week. The Daily Mail reported last week that Sir Roger Hollis, former head of MI-5, the counter-intelligence agency, was suspected of being a Soviet spy and never cleared; that Tom Driberg, longtime Labor member of Parliament and chairman briefly of the Labor Party, was a double agent for MI-5 and the Soviet KGB, and that Charles Howard Ellis, Britain's No. 3 intelligence officer at the end of World War II, confessed in 1965 that he had spied for both Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union.

Hollis died in 1973, Ellis in 1975 and Driberg in 1976.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons on Thursday that Hollis had been investigated twice and cleared. She did not discuss the charges against Ellis and Driberg.

King, who in 1968 was chairman of the company that owned the pro-Labor Daily Mirror, said the Sunday Times report was a lie but admitted that he and Cudlipp met with Mountbatten in May 1968. He gave this version of the meeting:

The earl summoned them to his London apartment, and Zuckerman arrived later. Mountbatten told them the queen was "distressed and disturbed" by letters of complaint about Wilson's administration. The earl said he saw little purpose in sending the letters to government officials, "the people complained of."

"I said there might come a time when the armed forces might have a part to play or the monarch might have a part to play, but it certainly was not then," King continued.

"In view of his position, I said it was important that he should keep his hands completely clean. It was not only advisable for him to do nothing, it was imperative for him to do nothing."

Two days later, the Daily Mirror carried a front-page editorial by King calling for Wilson's resignation.

The Labor government at the time was in trouble because of its failure to cope with the nation's economic woes.

after the Utilities Commission, and still others would completely open the market to competition and drop the legal requirement for drivers to have liability coverage.

Rep. Mary Seymour, D-Greensboro, chairman of the House Insurance Committee, said it is likely that combinations of those options will come forward — such as establishing a commission and allowing each company to file rates on their own.

Ingram has often called for a return to his pre-1977 power, when he could block a company from applying higher rates. But no such bill has been introduced this year and, Mrs. Seymour noted in an interview last week, under legislative rules next Wednesday is the deadline for introduction of bills sought by departments of state government.

In fact, the 6 percent annual limit on insurance rate hikes expires July 1, and there has been no bill introduced to extend the cap or to extend it at a higher level.

Whether any of the expected proposals for new regulatory systems will gain the support needed for enactment this year is in doubt. With controversial decisions pending on an increase in the gasoline tax, statewide budget cuts and reapportionment, a bloody fight with Ingram over insurance may be more than most legislators want this year.

Recognizing that, both Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Mathis say their committees may do no more than lay out the options this year and perhaps ask for a study commission to recommend a solution.

"If we're going to make some really substantial changes in law, it will require plenty of study, maybe by a commission with a report to the 1982 session, or maybe the 1983 session," Mrs. Seymour said. "But knowing there are going to be some bills introduced, we need to see what kind of support is out there for each concept."

I'M COMING TO TOWN TO CHANGE THE WAY YOU BANK.

Imagine. Once I get to the Arlington Boulevard Office of BB&T in Greenville on April 16th, you'll never have to worry about getting to the bank before it closes. Or rush to make a deposit first thing Monday morning. Or even wait in a teller line.

Why? Because I'm Tillie, BB&T's automated Alltime Teller. I can do just about anything a regular teller can do. And I can do it in less than 30 seconds, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

All you need to bank with me is a BB&T Alltime Teller card and your own secret personal code that lets me know you're really you. To get them in time to bank with me as soon as I get to town, all you have to do is fill out an Alltime Teller card request at any BB&T office. Or call me at 752-6889 or send in the coupon below and I'll see that an Alltime Teller card request is mailed to you.

Do it today, and together we'll change the way you bank as soon as I get to town on April 16th. See you then.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
Cnty. Ext. Chairman
Sicklepod has been labeled the most troublesome weed in North Carolina soybeans. More and more farmers are seeing this weed pest in their fields, and whether they call it sicklepod, coffeeweed or indigo, those who have faced it know it can be a serious problem.

Like any weed, sicklepod competes with soybeans for light, water, and plant nutrients. Research has indicated that one sicklepod per foot of row can reduce yields by 11 percent.

Sicklepod is an annual plant that emerges in late spring and grows until frost. It has two to three pairs of small, pear-shaped leaflets for each compound leaf. It produces small, yellow flowers.

When sicklepod first emerges, the two cotyledonary (seed) leaves are almost round and about the size of a penny. Seedlings closely resemble peanuts. One important fact about the growth habit of sicklepod is that it does poorly in shade.

Cultural practices and herbicides can effectively bring sicklepod under control. Early planting in early or mid-May often gives soybeans a competitive advantage. Weather in May is normally more favorable for soybean emergence and growth than for sicklepod.

A good stand of narrow row or drilled soybeans can provide some sicklepod control because of the quick shade and canopy that the crop forms. Again, the key is good weather. Soybeans must get a head start on sicklepod to give effective shading. The more vigorous the early growth of soybeans, the better the control. Seeding rates for narrow rows should be only slightly higher than for conventional.

One method of trying to insure that soybeans get an initial jump in sicklepod is preemergence or preplant herbicides.

Lexone Sencor alone or in combination with Dural or Lasso has been the most effective preemergence treatment. For early planted soybeans Lexone Sencor is better as a preemergence but in late planting situations works better shallowly incorporated. Adequate moisture is necessary to activate the preemergence herbicides.

Vernam applied preplant incorporated has provided satisfactory control in some years. If Vernam is used in a field with Johnsongrass problems, it should be used with Treflan, Treflan, Basalin, Prowl and Tolban have no activity on sicklepod.

Lasso plus Dyanap is an effective ground cracking treatment. It must be applied just as soybeans are emerging but before the cotyledonary (seed) leaves are unfolded.

Early cultivations can also substantially aid in sicklepod control. One final means if control is directed sprays. Paraquat, Lexone/Sencor plus two, four-DB and Lorox plus two, four DB can be post directed to control sicklepod. Soybeans should be at least 12 inches tall and spray must be carefully aimed at the base of the soybean plants to avoid crop injury.

Plan To Bar Jobless Pay

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Most military personnel who leave the service after July 1 and cannot find civilian jobs will be ineligible for unemployment benefits under a Reagan administration proposal.

The proposed cut would leave about 6,000 North Carolina residents with no income after they leave the military, according to the state Employment Security Commission.

The program paid an average $89.45 per week to 1,256 people in February, according to ESC statistics. The commission does not keep statistics about how long each recipient stays in the program.

Appointed To Commission

RALEIGH — Governor James B. Hunt has announced the appointment of Arthur T. Edmondson to the Tryon Palace Commission. The commission oversees the operation and maintenance of Tryon Palace and other historic properties in New Bern.

Edmondson, a Tarboro native, is senior vice-president and city executive of Planters National Bank and Trust Co. in Tarboro. He has been active for many years in preservation, having served as past president of the Edgecombe County Historical Society and as past chairman of the Tarboro Historic Commission. He was active in the Coastal Plains Commission during that body's existence.

Currently, Edmondson is vice-chairman of the Tarboro Redevelopment Commission and is a state director of the North Carolina Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Acid Rain A Major Concern To Canada

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Canadians are becoming "increasingly impatient" with those who resist spending money to combat acid rain, which drifts into Canada from the United States, Canada's environment minister says. "The United States should move quickly to prevent emissions of sulfur dioxide and oxides of nitrogen which produce acid rain in my country," John Roberts said Sunday at an environmental conference.

The acid rain pollutes Canada's water and kills wildlife, he said.

Roberts said about 8 million tons of sulfur dioxide and nearly 4 million tons of oxides of nitrogen fall on Canada every year. At least half of that amount drifts across the border from the United States, he charged.

Roberts, addressing the New England Environmental Conference at Tufts University, said Canada cannot address the problem without "massive cooperation" from the United States. "The government of Canada and the provinces affected have become increasingly impatient with those who argue that we do not yet know enough about the effects of acid rain to spend money controlling it,"

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Mild weather is expected in the forecast period until Tuesday morning for most of the country. Cold weather, with some snow flurries, is expected for the western Plains; rain is seen for the Pacific Northwest coast. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Much needed rain fell entered North Carolina from the west early today and was expected to spread across the state by afternoon.

After a weekend in which temperatures reached the upper 60s and low 70s, precipitation spurred by a cold front moving east from the Mississippi Valley moved into the mountains. However, the state should be rid of the weather system by the evening.

The passage of the cold front will produce a strong southwest flow of winds which will result in temperatures well above seasonal norms.

The precipitation will taper off and end in the west during the afternoon and over the coast tonight. Fair skies will return to the state tonight and Tuesday. Lows tonight will range from the 40s in the west to the 50s in the east. Highs Tuesday will be in the 70s with some 80s in southern sections.

The next chance of precipitation for the state will be on Wednesday as another front approaches from the west.

VEGETABLE GROWERS TALK ABOUT VIKING SHIP® CALCIUM NITRATE

"Calcium Nitrate increased our snapbean yield 700 lbs. per acre"

Jerome and Gerald Woyak
Woyak Bros. Farm
Bancroft, Wisconsin

The Woyak Bros. raise 360 acres of snapbeans and 155 acres of potatoes. In 1978 they decided to test Calcium Nitrate on some of their snapbean acreage. Jerome Woyak comments on the results: "Over the years we had noticed that higher quality, better yielding produce crops were coming from areas that tested high in calcium. We decided to try Calcium Nitrate on some of our snapbeans in comparison to our regular program. We were very pleased with the results. All fields received 6-18-18 in the row, then were sidedressed with either Calcium Nitrate or 28% solution. The Calcium Nitrate snapbeans showed dramatic growth response; leaves were much larger and healthier looking than check plants. Our records show Calcium Nitrate increased our yield 700 lbs./acre, compared to the 28% solution check crop."

Now Normal Life In 'Haunted House'

By JOHN WILDMAN
The Charlotte News
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The music box that played on its own is silent.
The clock that didn't work has stopped gonging, and the creaking of soft footsteps has ceased.
The $65,000 house, built about 30 years ago in a prestigious, tree-lined neighborhood in south-central Charlotte, certainly doesn't look haunted.

But then, of course, it isn't now. The occurrences — experienced by 11 persons, including a minister and his wife — stopped last December and life has been normal there since.
Gary Williams, 34, was reluctant to talk about the strange happenings at his home between April and December last year. He insisted that the real names of those involved in this story be kept confidential and that his address be kept secret.
He moved into the house last March. The previous owners, Jerry and Cynthia Green, had lived there for four years with their two children.
As the sale was being closed, Williams asked Green if there were anything else he should know about the house.
"Just that it's haunted," Green told him.
When Williams expressed alarm, Green assured him that he was joking, and that he only meant that he had occasionally heard strange noises in the house.
Williams was unconcerned about Green's comments until last April when he was working in his large basement.
"I thought I heard footsteps in the living room, so I went upstairs to check." Williams found nothing until the same thing happened three or four more times in the next two months. Each time, he was alone and working in the basement.
He chose not to tell anyone, because "I thought I might be imagining it all." In June, he found out he wasn't.
"A friend (George) and I were in the basement, hooking up the water line to the ice maker on my refrigerator," Williams recalled. "I heard the same sound of footsteps and they came halfway down the basement stairs."

"Who's upstairs?" George asked.
"No one," Williams answered, which brought a quizzical look from George. So Williams shared his secret. He also shared the story with his girlfriend, Alice.
But things were quiet in the house, for the most part, from June through September, and Williams' thoughts of ghosts vanished.
In mid-October, he and Alice went into the attic of the house to store some things, and noticed some boxes left there.
What caught their attention were personal letters they found.
They belonged to Floyd and Gladys Barton, a couple who moved from the North into the then-new house in 1953. They sold the house to the Greens in 1975.
"There were love letters they had written before they were married (in 1919)," Williams said, "and others from the man to his wife, while he was away from home. It was obvious they were very close."
(Green, who met Mrs. Barton, recalled that she seemed quite attached to the house and had called it "our little love nest." He also remembered that she used a cane and had a rocking chair.)
In the attic, Williams and Alice also found some women's handkerchiefs, linens and a pearly embroidered piece of material, apparently part of a wedding dress.
Their curiosity satisfied, they left the letters behind but brought the handkerchiefs and material downstairs and put them in a bedroom.

On the Tuesday before Halloween, two friends, Joe and Wanda, came over to watch a television show "about ghosts," Williams said. It was the perfect time to tell them about the strange noises.
At about 8:30 p.m., he took them into the basement and they quietly waited. Soon the noises started.
"Joe heard it first, the sound of steps. Like always, it sounded like it started in the main bedroom, went across the den, then into the kitchen to the landing going into the basement."
Just as before, the noises were soft, "like someone was walking around in stocking feet."
On Halloween, Joe and Wanda visited again.
"We were sitting in front of the fire and we were all startled by the sound of furniture scraping in my bedroom," Williams said. "As we looked toward the room we saw the door swing open."
After calming down, Williams checked the bedroom window for a draft and found none. A little later, they heard the clock above the fireplace, which had not been wound, tick momentarily. His once-skeptical friends became believers.
Shortly after that, Alice called Duke University's parapsychology department, renowned for its work with the supernatural.
"They told us it could be a friendly spirit and were anxious to come right down and investigate," Williams said.
But he refused, fearful of the commotion it could cause in the neighborhood. Instead, he took their advice to use tape recorders and to keep a diary of strange events. The advice paid off.
From early November to Dec. 16, the noises — now more varied and louder — occurred about two times a week. They have recordings of some of the noises.

— Nov. 11 - At 2 a.m., five minutes after he went to bed, Gary heard a tapping that sounded like a wooden cane on a wooden floor. It began in the kitchen, went through the den and into the hall, stopping right under the attic stairs.
— Nov. 21 - At about 8:30 p.m., we (Gary, Alice, Joe and Wanda) went into the basement. In less than a minute we heard tapping and footsteps. It was walking right over our heads. We heard what we thought was the rocking chair (Gary's) swaying. Then it all stopped.
— Dec. 5 - 8:45 p.m. We turned off all the lights and went into the basement. We began hearing variations of sounds — like ripping and something being slid across the floor, and then a loud bang, like something fell. The sounds ceased. We waited 10 minutes and went upstairs. We found the kitchen light on! We saw a bedroom door swing open again, slowly. At 10 p.m., the music box (which was not wound) began playing in the bedroom! We all went into the room and watched it until it stopped. We can't believe it all!
— Dec. 12 - 8:30 p.m. Locked outside doors, closed room doors. Went to basement to listen. Present: Gary, Alice and seven friends. Noises started at 8:45 p.m. and lasted for 10 minutes. Heard steps on floor, rocking, some dragging and heard a door slam shut. Returned upstairs and found doors to two rooms open.
— Dec. 16 - 8:20 p.m. in basement with four friends, including minister and his wife. 8:35, banging in bedroom. 8:37, music box begins playing. 8:38, sound of a rocking chair swaying, very deliberately. Music and chair stop within a minute. 8:50, return upstairs. We can't find the music box! It was on Gary's dresser. We finally found it in a cabinet over the refrigerator.

For Williams, that was the last straw.
The following Saturday, Dec. 19, he bagged up all of the Bartons' belongings — the letters, photos, material, hats and shoes. Williams took them to a friend who stuffed the bags into a stripped-out car in his backyard.
The noises stopped immediately.
"I didn't know how to stop it but I had to do something. It was an intolerable situation," Williams said, adding that he wasn't worried about further studies on the matter.
"I was more concerned in getting rid of it," Williams said the minister offered to put the personal items in his study at the church to see if anything happened.
"My friends couldn't understand why I didn't want to pursue it any further. But they didn't have to live here. It was like I was never alone."
The late Rod Serling, who hosted the television show "The Twilight Zone," might have asked these questions:
Did the Bartons, who died after moving from Charlotte, return in spirit?
Why did the noises increase after Williams tampered with the Bartons' possessions?
Why did the noises stop as soon as Williams removed the possessions?
What would happen if Williams put them back in the house?
The questions may go unanswered.
Williams is planning to contact the couple's son, and ask him if he would like to have at least the letters and photos mailed to him.

Find Bodies Of Victims

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Fourteen bullet-riddled bodies, including those of two schoolgirls, have been found in the same forest outside Kampala where former dictator Idi Amin used to dump his victims, hospital sources said today.
Police had no comment on the discovery but sources speculated that the 14 were victims of recent disturbances involving government troops and guerrillas trying to oust President Milton Obote.
The two girls, believed to be about 14, wore uniforms from the Old Kampala Primary School, sources said.
Villagers spotted the bodies near Namanse, a forest about four miles east of the Ugandan capital, three days ago. They were taken to Mulago Hospital and were to be buried today in a mass grave.
Hundreds and perhaps thousands of bodies were dumped in the forest during Amin's reign of terror. He was deposed in April 1979 following an invasion by Tanzanian and Ugandan exile forces.

In Washington, Stockman Style

WASHINGTON (AP) — In Britain the hot haircut may be the Lady Di, but in Washington it's the Stockman, in imitation of the longish mane of Budget Director David Stockman.
Jesus Rodriguez, owner of Washington's Executive Men's Hairstyling, says his customers have started asking for the Stockman by name.
The Stockman style is straight hair, parted on the right and falling a bit over the ears.
"I guess they wanted to blend in with the administration," Rodriguez was quoted as saying in the April 6 issue of People magazine.
humane and with the personal integrity, wisdom and humility which have earned him our respect and affection," the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, Notre Dame president, said.

Not so long ago, saving money meant having just a savings account at your local bank. But times have changed. While regular savings accounts are still important, BB&T now offers a variety of savings certificates to give you an opportunity to earn higher interest on your savings. Branch Banking and Trust gives you a choice of ten Certificates of Deposit, eight of which require a minimum deposit of only $500. With terms ranging from thirty days to eight years, there are certificates for both your short-term and long-term needs. And in most cases, you have the option of having the interest credited to your checking or savings account, paid directly to you by check or added to your certificate principal. Interest can be received monthly, quarterly or at maturity.
For more information about BB&T certificates, call or stop by your nearest BB&T office. We'll tell you more about the options you have and the money they can earn you at a full-service bank.

Flood Of Applicants For Shooting Course

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — When Stanly Technical College was planning a program to teach women how to use firearms, officials figured it would draw only limited attention.

But Doug Jackson, coordinator of law enforcement training at the school, says he has been flooded with applicants for the course.

Seventeen women took part in the initial class Saturday at the Law Enforcement Center firing range in Monroe, and a total of 117 women have signed up for the training.

"It's overwhelming how much interest we got from this course," Jackson said. "We figured we'd get maybe 30 or 40 people."

Most of the women who participated in training session over the weekend said they have not been the victims of crime but decided to buy guns for security.

"I live out in the country," said Connie Littlejohn, 48. "I could holler for hours if somebody was breaking in and nobody would hear me. You better believe my gun gives me security."

But Beverly Park, who lives near Marshville, said she bought a .32-caliber revolver after someone broke into her home about three weeks ago.

"I have never felt that kind of anger that I did after they broke into my house," she said after firing about 50 rounds during target practice.

"I have a home and two children. One way or another I'm going to protect them," she said.

The instructor of the course, Lt. Richard Armstrong of the Cabarrus County Sheriff's Department, said the program should lessen the probability of gun owners hurting themselves or their families through carelessness.

He said the No. 1 lesson is to "never point a gun at anyone unless you intend to kill that person. And if you do kill a person, you had better be justified."

After hearing that advice, several women indicated uncertainty over whether they could kill another person.

"I don't know if I could do it. If it was a life-threatening situation, maybe," said Jan Armstrong, 28. "I really don't know what I'd do."

BAN IS RELAXED

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Uruguay's military government, cut off by the Carter administration from purchases of most U.S. military equipment because of alleged human rights violations, has received permission to buy three American anti-submarine fighter planes, the Uruguayan naval commander says.

Installation....

Worthy Guard, Clarence Cannon.

Honorary officers installed were: U.S. Color Bearer, Mrs. Sarah Caprell; Banner Bearer, Mrs. Penny Garris; Courier, Mrs. Ethel Allen; Madonna, Mrs. Katherine Hastings; Angel, Mrs. Annie Turner; Queen's Attendants, Mrs. Virginia Detwiler; Mrs. Billie McLawhorn; and Mrs. Elizabeth Sumrell; King's Guards, Harold Detwiler and Clifton Stokes; and Prompter, Mrs. Maxwell.

To be installed later are: Worthy Herald, Mrs. Lillian Hendrix; Worthy Organist, Mrs. Pauline Dail; Christian Flag Bearer, Mrs. Ethel Ricks; Queen's Attendants, Mrs. Rose Gause and Mrs. Lillie McLawhorn; and King's Guard, Carl Tisdale.

Mrs. Nancy Corbett sang two selections as Mr. and Mrs. Sharp were installed. Mrs. Sharp gave her acceptance address, explained the yearly theme and recognized distinguished sojourners: Mrs. Blanche Jackson, A.E. Forrest, Mrs. Mary Kiger, Al Barrentine, Mrs. Clara Heuay and Tharp. Also recognized were: Mrs. Freeland and Forrest, Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron of Greenville Chapter No. 149, OES, as well as Clifton Stokes, Mrs. Virginia Everett and John Wilner Heuay, District Deputy Grand Master of the Fifth Masonic District, and Mrs. Nellye Knight.

Tharp gave his acceptance address, after which Mrs. Jackson and Kiger, P.W.O.S., presented the couple with past officer remembrances from the Shrine and Mrs. Penny Garris presented gifts from the officers.

The Tharps' daughter, Mrs. Scott Shanley and granddaughter were present. The installing officers and others assisting in the installation were remembered with gifts.

A reception followed in the dining room with refreshments served from a table covered with white organdy and lace and centered with an arrangement of red roses flanked by red candles in silver candelabra. Those serving were Mrs. Penny Garris, chairman, Mrs. Caprell, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Hendrix and Mr. and Mrs. Youmans.

Producing Artificial Muscles And Tendons

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A Chapel Hill research team has combined animal cells with the main ingredients in gelatin to produce artificial muscles and tendons.

While the process might explain how cells group into muscles and connective tissue in developing embryos, the artificial fibers could not work in the body because they lack the nerves that are present in real muscles.

"They (the cells) make something I think could fool anybody," said Albert K. Harris, an embryologist at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "It looks like real muscles and tendons that you dissect out of animals."

Scientists may be able to use the information to eliminate complications that sometimes develop when wounds and burns heal, Harris said in a telephone interview.

Harris and his colleagues accidentally made their discovery while studying a common trait of cells — movement.

Previously, the UNC researchers used silicon rubber to study the pull exerted by certain cells called fibroblasts when they move across a surface.

From the way the cells distorted across the rubber, Harris decided the fibroblasts were exerting much more force than needed just for motion.

The researchers tried the same studies on the surface of a material that is present in the bodies of all animals: collagen.

Surprisingly, they found that the fibroblast cells, which were taken from animals, began rearranging the collagen around themselves into something that looks like tendon fiber.

Adding muscle cells to the mixture produced a more complex arrangement that resembles a natural combination of muscle fibers, Harris said.

Collagen, an animal protein, is present in many body tissues and is the main ingredient in gelatin.

Fibroblasts and collagen are found in normal tendons, the fibrous cords to which muscles are attached.

Harris believes his discovery may explain how fibroblasts expend the extra energy they don't need for movement. They use it to pull collagen fibers into new arrangements.

It also could answer the riddle of how different kinds of cells become grouped into muscles and connective tissue in the first stages of life, he added.

But the most important medical bonus might be in explaining runaway tissue contraction that occurs during the healing process, Harris said.

The mechanism for such contractions has been debated. But with certain injuries, the results can be painfully obvious — disfigurement during recovery from burns or plastic surgery. Harris thinks a process similar to the one he observed with fibroblasts may cause such contractions.

"The best road to understanding how to control it is to understand the mechanism," Harris said.

Some of Harris' findings recently were scheduled for publication in Nature, a British scientific journal.

Five Charged With Beer Violations

Five persons were arrested in Greenville over the weekend in connection with possession of alcoholic beverages by under-aged persons.

North Carolina Alcohol Law Enforcement agent Danny Dilda reported 17-year-old William Ray Stallings Jr. 17 of 107 Cheshire Dr. was charged with purchasing beer from The Dodge Store on Memorial Drive, about 8 p.m. Friday.

Dilda added that the clerk at the store, 21-year-old Brenda Kay Pollard of 213 Patrick St., was charged with "knowingly selling a malt beverage to a person under 18," in connection with the same case.

Greenville police reported that three 17-year-olds were arrested about 12:30 a.m. Sunday, near the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets, on charges of illegal possession of beer.

Investigators identified the three as Wanda Kay King of Route 2, Farmville, and Warren Ken Howell and Linda Marie Barley, both of Route 1, Farmville.

Ms. Drake said Banks' wife was brought to the hospital in critical condition and underwent emergency surgery.

Wrongly Convicted Man Is Found Dead

MCDONOUGH, Ga. (AP) — A man twice convicted of murder, who spent six years in prison before the charges against him were dismissed in December, apparently wounded his wife and then shot himself to death Sunday, Henry County Sheriff Jimmy Glass said.

Jerry Banks and his critically wounded wife, Virginia, were found in the front yard of a relative's home in Stockbridge, Glass said.

Mrs. Banks was reported in critical condition undergoing emergency surgery early today.

The shootings resulted from a domestic problem between Banks and his wife, Glass said, adding that a preliminary investigation indicated that Banks shot his wife and then turned the gun on himself.

Banks' death had not yet been ruled a suicide, Glass said, adding that authorities would await the results of an autopsy before ruling on the nature of the death. But he said authorities had "reason to believe he did shoot himself and reason to believe he shot his wife."

Banks was shot once in the abdomen with the bullet lodging near the heart, Glass said, and his wife was shot twice in the back. The sheriff said a .38-caliber pistol was recovered at the scene of the shootings, but he would not disclose where the weapon was found.

The shootings occurred about 8 p.m. in the front yard of Mrs. Banks' aunt's home next door, Glass said.

The Atlanta Constitution quoted Mrs. Banks' aunt, Opal Lee Phelps, as saying family problems were what "sparked it off. He shot himself this afternoon, right here in my front yard."

Betty Anne Drake, a spokeswoman for Henry General Hospital, said Banks was dead on arrival at the hospital about 8:30 p.m. Sunday from a gunshot wound.

Workshops Set

Persons interested in learning more about pruning, landscaping or vegetable gardening should plan to attend a series of workshops, scheduled for three nights at Greenville schools.

The dates and locations are as follows: March 31, at Wahl-Coates School, April 2 at Greenville Middle School, April 14 at South Greenville School.

All workshops begin at 7 p.m. They are sponsored by the Greenville City Schools and the Agricultural Extension Service. Other workshops will be held each night on a variety of topics by experts from the Pitt County area.

Each night will feature two sessions, enabling persons to learn about vegetable gardening, pruning or landscaping in one night. Each topic will last about one and one-half hours. There will be an opportunity to ask questions.

For further information contact Carolyn Ferebee at Greenville City Schools, 752-4192, or Sam Uzzell, Pitt County extension agent, 758-1196 or 758-1197.

The miracle on Jarvis Street.

Once, before the advent of pre-packaged cheese slices and fancy french bottled sparkling water, patrons of local markets rightly expected to be able to fill their entire grocery list with a single shopping trip.

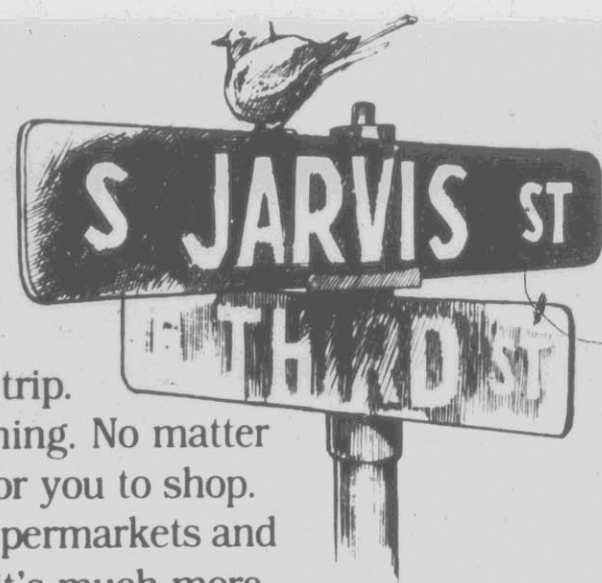

The old supermarkets had everything. No matter which day was more convenient for you to shop.

But then came the "modern" supermarkets and special "stocking days". You see, it's much more efficient for these big modern markets to let their stocks dwindle until the days they decide to restock. If they are out of bread, then you may eat cake.

People forgot. They forgot that truly super supermarkets are supposed to have what you need, when you need it.

But, at Overton's, we didn't forget. We still stock our shelves every single night. So if you want Del Monte stewed tomatoes, you get Del Monte stewed tomatoes. If you want Ivory soap, we'll have all you need. And, if you prefer bread, ours just arrived. All at low "super" market prices.

Some big grocery people say it's a miracle that we can still stock our shelves every day and stay in business. It's no miracle. It's just the way we've stayed in business here on Jarvis Street for the past 35 years. Come see us.

Credit Card Hangover?

Homeowners try our "BUDGET ADJUSTER LOAN"!

We care that your monthly payments are too high to live within your budget. Let us try to lower your payments by paying off those credit card and department store charges.

We reduce your payments by allowing you a longer repayment term with our BUDGET ADJUSTER LOAN. Often there will be no increase in the rate of interest you pay. You can afford the things you want and need right now.

Check the chart below and compare to the rates charged by Visa, MasterCard and most department stores for extended terms.

Add up the balances and monthly payments on all your charge and credit card accounts. If you need extra cash now, add that amount to the total balance. Then call us at the number listed below. Ask the manager to quote you the BUDGET ADJUSTER LOAN monthly payment.

There is no obligation and if you prefer, you don't even have to give your name. Stop by or call us today!

Amount Financed	Monthly Payment	Term of Loan	Total of Payments	Annual* Percentage Rate
$ 5,907	$150	60 Mo.	$ 9,000	18.00%

Possible Child-Killing Clues In Laboratory Work

By NANCY KENNEY
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Experts trained in analyzing trace evidence and performing autopsies are taking center stage in Atlanta's child murder probe as mysterious fibers and asphyxiations are debated as possible links in the cases.

Tiny bits of fiber, most of them no larger than lint, reportedly have been found on the clothes or corpses of seven children.

Police officers briefed on the wisps of material have combed the homes and cars of suspects in search of a fiber matchup, but their efforts have been fruitless, says Byron Dawson, assistant director of the Georgia

Crime Laboratory.

"The key is finding a good suspect," Dawson said in an interview. "Until we find one and match up the fibers, they can't do us any good."

Sources say the fibers are of several colors and types.
But state crime lab officials have refused to discuss details about the materials, fearing a killer may throw away a carpet or cloth which could serve as evidence in a murder trial.

A special police task force is probing the slayings of 20 black children and the disappearances of two others over the past year and a half. At least nine of the 20 were suffocated or strangled.

It was the medical examiners involved in the autopsies, rather than police, who highlighted the unusual nature of the killings.

In a typical year, most child slayings result from beatings or gunshot wounds, says Fulton County Medical Examiner Robert Stivers. He finds the abundance of asphyxiations unusual.

Medical examiners' reports have helped spark the theory of "a gentle killer" who slayed some of the children without leaving marks on their bodies. When 14-year-old Lubie Geter was found strangled in February, Stivers said he found the absence of scratches, bruises or other signs of a struggle odd.

"It was as though someone caught him by surprise, perhaps in a chokehold from the back seat of a car," Stivers said.

The techniques of medical examiners also have played a crucial role in identifying the bodies of the murdered children.

Six of the youngsters' bodies were decomposed so badly by the time they were discovered that a cause of death could not be determined, and many had been gnawed or pulled apart by dogs.

Stivers and John Feegel, associate Fulton County medical examiner, turned to dental records in identifying the decayed corpses. Their biggest challenge was presented in the case of 10-year-old Earl Lee Terrell, whose incomplete skeleton was found in January.

Terrell had no teeth X-rays or dental records of any kind.

An onlooker at the wooded site where Terrell's body was found made matters worse by handling Terrell's skull and scattering teeth across the ground. Feegel later returned to the scene with police and scratched delicately through the dirt until he found two front teeth.

Feegel inserted the teeth onto the skull and X-rayed it.
With a photograph of Terrell's face superimposed on the skull X-ray, he began searching for "matching points," Stivers said.

After examining the facial features and consulting dental experts, Feegel decided the body could only be Terrell's. His conclusion was supported by a swimsuit found near the body, for the boy was last seen when ejected from a city pool for roughhousing.

With the absence of a crime scene — all of the children were dumped at various sites after they were murdered — medical examiners have taken pains to preserve evidence which has been found on the bodies.

In Fulton County, where most of the bodies have been found, each child has been undressed on a white sheet, then placed on an examining table. The medical examiner explores every inch of the child's body for trace evidence such as hairs and fibers.

The folded white sheet — along with trace evidence, fingernail and hair clippings, and blood and urine samples — is transferred to the Georgia Crime Laboratory for analysis.

Armed with magnifying glasses and fine-pointed tweezers, crime lab investigators unfold the sheer and inspect it inch by inch for clues, mounting microscopic particles on slides under high-intensity light, Dawson said.

"You can take a pile of stuff off any clothes from any particular case," says Larry Peterson, the crime lab investigator working on the case full-time.

Dawson offered examples:
"There's pollen on all of us, for one thing. If he's a nail biter, you'll find pieces of fingernail. If there was a coal-burning fireplace in his home, there may be coal dust."

To ensure that no fiber evidence is lost, police have been forbidden to tramp through sites where bodies are found until Peterson arrives and inspects the area.

"There's a principle," said Peterson, "that in any contact between two objects there's a transfer of material. But determining the relevance of the material" can be difficult, he said.

"Whoever manufactured a carpet fiber, for example, manufactured a lot of it. He may sell it to someone else, and you have no way of knowing how many end products there could be. You have to have the suspect before you have any links."

Police have obtained hair and fiber samples from the homes of the slain children and from members of their families, in part to eliminate material which may be unimportant, Dawson said.

He said fibers common to several of the cases are considered "significant" links, and full reports have been submitted to the police task force investigating the deaths and disappearances.

Meanwhile, thousands of wisps mounted on slides remain stored under lock and key at Georgia's crime lab, awaiting a possible matchup when an arrest is made in one of 20 unsolved murder cases.

Hunt Wants Indiana Hog

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —
North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt, who has won oysters, honey, beefsteaks and a Virginia ham in past wagers, is going whole hog over tonight's NCAA basketball finals between his state's Tar Heels and the Indiana Hoosiers.

An optimistic aide to Hunt says the governor wants to take possession of a prize hog being wagered by Indiana
Gov. Robert Orr at half-court after North Carolina
trounces the Hoosiers.

Hunt spokesman Brent Hackney said the two governors made the final arrangements for their hog wager in a telephone conversation Sunday night. Both were expected to be in Philadelphia tonight to watch their teams compete.

Virginia's Lt. Gov. Chuck Robb owes Hunt five bushels of oysters, while Gov. John Dalton lost a Virginia ham after the Cavaliers lost a 13-point decision to the Tar Heels Saturday.

Hunt's winning ways netted him a barbecue at the expense of Texas Gov.
William Clements after the Carolina football team defeated Texas in the Bluebonnet Bowl. Wagers on the regional North Carolina basketball games have brought in three pounds of honey from Utah's Gov. Scott Matheson and some Kansas beefsteaks from Kansas Gov.
John Carlin.

Staff Nurse Is Promoted

Lenoir County native
Peggy T. Chrisco, a staff nurse in the Tar River Sub Center of the American Red Cross in Greenville, has been promoted to head nurse for the organization.

A graduate of James Sprunt Institute in Kenansville with an associate degree in nursing, Ms. Chrisco has been with the Greenville center since August. She will be attending the Red Cross Management Seminar at the national headquarters in Washington, D.C. later this spring.

The Tar River Sub Center processes an average of 425 units of blood weekly. It and the Blood Services Center in Norfolk are the only sources of blood and blood components for the 60 hospitals in southeastern Virginia and eastern North Carolina. The entire region will collect some 110,000 units this year to meet the needs of hospital patients in the area.

MEETING SET

The Beautification, Clean-Up and Litter Control Committee will meet Wednesday, April 1 at 7:30 p.m.
at the Public Works facility, 1500 Beatty Street.

Weinberger Defends Charge Of Terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) —
There is good evidence that the Soviet Union is indeed behind international terrorism and to say the CIA thinks otherwise is "quite wrong," according to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

A draft CIA report circulating in Washington "strongly disagrees" with the Reagan administration's conclusion that Russia is a key supporter of international terrorism, government sources revealed over the weekend.

Asked about the document Sunday on the ABC television program "Issues and Answers," Weinberger said it was a "very preliminary draft of the thinking of some of the people (in the CIA). It has specifically not been issued, and it doesn't constitute the final judgment of the CIA."

"I myself have no doubt that there is good, clear evidence that the Soviets have been participating in the training and in the equipping of groups that, for want of a better term, can be called terrorist groups...it's really a question of degree, whether all of the evidence is supportive or whether only some of it is supportive," the secretary said.

The sources who disclosed the existence of the CIA's draft National Intelligence Estimate said it concluded there was "circumstantial evidence" of Soviet backing

Lear Assails Simplistic View

BOSTON (AP) — Television producer Norman Lear has attacked the Rev. Jerry Falwell and his Moral Majority for offering "simplistic solutions to our most complex problems." He says the real problem in America is an obsession with making quick profits.

"The single most destructive societal disease of our time — and the single biggest reason for the decline of public morality and ethics is American leadership's fixation with what has become known as the bottom line," Lear said Sunday. He spoke at Northeastern University after accepting an award for defending First Amendment liberties.

"In industry, government or academia, leadership everywhere seems all too ready to sell the future short for a moment of success," said Lear, producer of TV's "All in the Family" and "Sanford and Son."

Lear cited the race for TV audience ratings as an example.

"No one will take a chance with an original and innovative idea," he said.

of terrorism but not enough "credible evidence."

The draft, according to one source, contained the contrary opinion of the Defense Intelligence Agency that "the Soviets are in it up to their necks."

Weinberger asserted, "Any suggestion that the CIA has found that the Soviets are not behind the training, equipping and encouraging of international terrorism would not only be very premature, it would be quite wrong."

On another program, Secretary of State Alexander M.
Haig Jr. defended the administration's conclusion that guerrillas in El Salvador are communist-led.

On Friday, a retired CIA officer, Ralph W. McGehee, said he believed — but could not prove — that the CIA fabricated information used to justify the administration's denunciation of communist backing of the guerrillas.

McGehee's conclusion also appears in an article in The Nation magazine scheduled for publication in the April 11 issue. The magazine is suing the CIA to restore deletions the agency has insisted on.
McGehee said the captured documents supplied by the government of El Salvador to the United States and used to justify the Reagan administration's assertion that the Soviet Union and Cuba are arming the rebels "can be none other than the product of yet another CIA forgery."

On NBC's "Meet the Press," Haig was not asked about McGehee's analysis but whether the guerrillas
"may be, in their own minds, genuinely fed up with what they look on as oppression, past injustice, and right-wing murder squads."

"The initial revolution which placed the current government in place was a consequence of those extremes of the right," Haig replied. "And we don't welcome them and we don't endorse them."

"But what is clearly evident to us is that the leftist movement, the rebel activity, its command, control and direction, is now essentially in the hands of external forces, Cuban, Nicaraguan and of course indirectly Soviet."

"We have very sophisticated, detailed, hard evidence to confirm it. For example, the command and control of communications network that has been implanted in El Salvador, which manipulates the rebel activity, is centralized outside of El Salvador," Haig said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed in quiet trading today amid doubts about the interest-rate outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.61 to 997.39 by noon.

But losers held a slight lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

A little more than a week ago, open-market money rates turned upward, just when it appeared they were beginning a steady decline.

Last Friday, the Security Pacific National Bank of Los Angeles raised its prime lending rate from 17 to 17 1/2 percent, only three days after cutting it to 17.

While that turnaround was taking place, the Dow Jones industrial average reached an eight-year closing high of 1,015.22 last Wednesday. But then it retreated more than 20 points Thursday and Friday.

Precious-metals issues declined broadly as gold prices fell in world markets.

Homestake Mining dropped 3 to 57. ASA Ltd 2 1/4 to 52 1/2. Dome Mines 3 1/4 to 85 1/4, and Campbell Red Lake 1 1/2 to 52 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index rose 0.3 to 77.62. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 13 at 358.00.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 14.68 million shares at noon, against 20.05 million at the same point Friday.

Can't Keep Up With Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department just can't spend money fast enough to keep it from piling up, says Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis.

Aspin said in a statement Sunday the Pentagon increased its backlog of "unobligated surpluses" to $24.2 billion on Sept. 30, up 15 percent from four years earlier. The increase for other agencies was only 9.7 percent.

Aspin said delays in starting programs for which money had been appropriated accounted for the backlog.

Pentagon officials declined immediate comment. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has said his department will be able to handle efficiently the large increases in defense spending the Reagan administration has proposed.

A NEW PRESIDENT

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Retired General Roberto Viola began a three-year term as president Sunday, pledging to continue the "National Reorganization" announced by the military when it seized power from President Isabel Peron in 1976.

PROMOTIONS NOTED

The board of directors of Peoples Bank & Trust Co. announced the promotion of Robert R. Mauldin to president. He joined the bank in 1969 as executive vice president and was elected to the board of directors in 1971.

William H. Stanley will retain the duties of chairman of the board and chief executive officer, it was reported.

The bank noted the promotion of H. Leigh Ballance Jr., an English native, to senior vice president in branch administration. He joined Peoples Bank in 1972 as a management trainee and has also worked in the Comptroller's Department.

The election of Charles T. Lane and Robert W. Hooper, both of Rocky Mount, and Robert L. Hubbard of Henderson as new members of the board was also reported.

WARSAW PACT MANEUVERS — Armored infantry vehicles shoot anti-tank guided missiles against targets in a training area in the south of East Germany. Troops from the Soviet Union, East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland continued their "Soyuz 81" exercises Saturday. The East German news agency ADN reported "new units" were en route to join maneuvers that have been underway in and around Poland. (AP Laserphoto)

Man Dies Of Injuries

A Greenville man died Sunday about 9 p.m., the result of injuries sustained Saturday night when he was struck by a car in front of Burning Bush Church north of Greenville.

Trooper John Brinkley said Randy Maurice Kinlaw, 19, of 429 E. Third St., Greenville was crossing the highway and apparently stepped from between two cars into the path of a northbound car driven by Henry Earl Hardee, of Rt. 1, Stokes.

Kinlaw died in Pitt County Memorial Hospital of head injuries sustained in the accident. Medical Examiner Dr. Stan Harris said.

The accident occurred on Rural Paved Road 1523, about two miles north of Greenville off N.C. 903.

No charges have been made, Trooper Brinkley said.

"There's one thing I'd like to say about Rose. I've noticed that at times the community seems to be ashamed, embarrassed by Rose High. But I've been in six high schools and Rose is a very good school."

Hurt said that students and teachers were deeply concerned about the implications of the headline and some of the facts in the article. "Many of the students came to talk to me, to find out what they can do to help. We all know we have some problems with drinking, with drugs, with all these things, but reporting such as this is no way to go about solving the problems."

AYDEN — Mrs. Vermelle Worthington Smith, 84, died early Sunday. Funeral services were held today at 2 p.m. at Ayden Christian Church with the Rev. Victor Wilson officiating. Burial followed in the Ayden Cemetery.

Mrs. Smith was a member of Ayden Christian Church, a member of the Home Demonstration Club of Pitt County, and was a 1917 graduate of East Carolina Teachers Training School in Greenville. She was a lifelong resident of Pitt County and was a former school teacher.

Surviving are a son, David Harold Smith of Ayden; three daughters, Mrs. Frances Springett of North Myrtle Beach, S.C., Mrs. Jeanette Ruedrick of Cary, and Mrs. Charlene Bennett of Winston-Salem; a sister, Mrs. Ruby McArthur of Winterville; ten grandchildren and one great grandchild.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that friends consider contributions to the Ayden Christian Church.

Farmer Funeral Home here was in charge of arrangements.

Williams

GRIMESLAND — Mr. Leroy Williams died Sunday at his home. He was the husband of Mrs. Lera Richardson Williams. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Flanagan's Funeral Home.

Blame Congress In Late Checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress should permit government agencies to spend in advance of specific appropriations or else millions of people may face more frequent delays in getting their money, a new report to Congress suggests.

In the most complete report yet on an 11-day delay in approving money bills last October, the General Accounting Office said in a report now being studied in congressional offices that such gaps "have become the norm rather than the exception" as the appropriations process gets bogged down in wrangling over such touchy issues as abortion.

The GAO, a congressional watchdog agency, noted that in the last 20 years, 85 percent of agency appropriation bills have been passed after the beginning of a new fiscal year.

Last October, checks were delayed for 100,000 people going to school on the GI Bill, 22,000 victims of black lung disease, 1.6 million people in a nutrition program for mothers and infants and numerous others, the congressional auditors said.

"Had the funding gap continued for another week or two, federal payments would have been cut off to such large groups of beneficiaries as recipients of food stamps, veterans' compensation and military retirement pay," they said.

The agencies were complying with a ruling of then-Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, who said they could only close down in the absence of specific permanent or temporary appropriations. Before that, government agencies went ahead with near-normal operations when appropriations were delayed, on the assumption that Congress wanted them to.

The October hiatus also meant that "Federal employees became unsure of whether they would be allowed to report for work," and even at work did nothing productive because they were ordered only to prepare to close their agencies, the report said.

About $1 million was spent to issue paychecks covering only part of a pay period. In addition, about $1.1 million was spent to prepare plans on how to comply with the Civiletti opinion, GAO said.

The GAO could not estimate the total cost of the delay because it surveyed only 18 agencies.

Import Sales In Michigan Soar

DETROIT (AP) — Import sales have doubled in the Detroit and Michigan auto markets, even though the state remains the worst sales market for foreign cars, an automobile trade publication says.

The 1980 sales figures reported by Ward's Automotive Reports and the Detroit Automobile Dealers Association show that foreign-made car sales rose to 11.4 percent of all sales in the three-county Detroit area and 13.5 percent of those across the state, compared with about 5 percent to 7 percent between 1971 and 1978.

Hawaii and California, where 64 percent and 51.5 percent of the new cars purchased last year were foreign, lead the nation in foreign car sales, the trade journal reported last week.

Nationwide, imports claimed 28

Knight Vs. Smith: The Bad Guy Vs. The Good Guy

Bobby Knight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bobby Knight's skirmish with a heckler over the weekend pointed up the sharp personality contrast of the rival coaches in tonight's big game for the college basketball championship.

It's the good guy-bad guy theme right out of those dime pulp magazines of the 1930s — plots polished up by an imaginative Hollywood and fed us in movies and on the screen.

It's Alan Ladd's Shane going eye-to-eye with black-suited Jack Palance (a North Carolinian, ironically) all over again.

There's Knight, coach of the Indiana Hoosiers, whose molecular makeup is a little bit of Billy Martin, a sprinkling of General Patton and a lot of the late Vince Lombardi and Woody Hayes.

Down the floor apiece there's fatherly, mild-mannered Dean Smith, who will be directing the maneuvers of the North Carolina Tar Heels.

"People always say, 'Nobody can be that good,'" says UCLA's Coach Larry Brown, a former Smith understudy. "They dismiss him as some kind of goody two shoes. But that's the way he is ... a good, caring person."

Nobody says that about Knight, the curly-haired terror who kicks chairs, grabs players by the nape of the neck and occasionally shoves a tormentor against the wall — as he did Saturday night to a Louisiana State fan with whom he got into a shoving-cussin' match. It happened in the lounge of a suburban Cherry Hill, N.J., motel after Knight's Hoosiers had crushed the Bayou Tigers in the NCAA semifinals.

"We didn't trade shoves," Knight said later of the incident. "I did the shoving. We didn't trade insults — he did the insulting."

Thus the NCAA Championship Final in Philadelphia's Spectrum, one of sport's premier spectacles, focuses the spotlight on the two brain trusts on the sidelines, subordinating the activities of the young men on the floor.

This undoubtedly would be the case even if there weren't such a marked disparity in the two men's behavioral patterns, philosophies and techniques.

They are the two foremost college coaches in the country, moving into sacred spheres once reserved for such predecessors as Phog Allen, Hank Iba, Adolph Rupp and John Wooden.

Smith, now 50, a disciple of the immortal Phog Allen at Kansas, has a record of 19 winning seasons in the 20 he has been at N.C., 429 victories and 142 defeats, not counting the playoffs. He has made numerous innovations — his "four corners" defense the most notable — coached an Olympic gold medal team and sent scores of his pupils into pro ball, many becoming stars.

This is his sixth time in the NCAA's Final Four, exceeded only by Wooden's 11 times and 10 victories. The late Rupp made the finals six times, winning four. This is No. 3 for Knight, whose Hoosiers won in 1976.

Knight, 40, a sub on the great Ohio State teams of the early 1960s which included Jerry Lucas and John Havlicek, has established a remarkable record of 228 victories and 68 defeats.

He is a born winner.

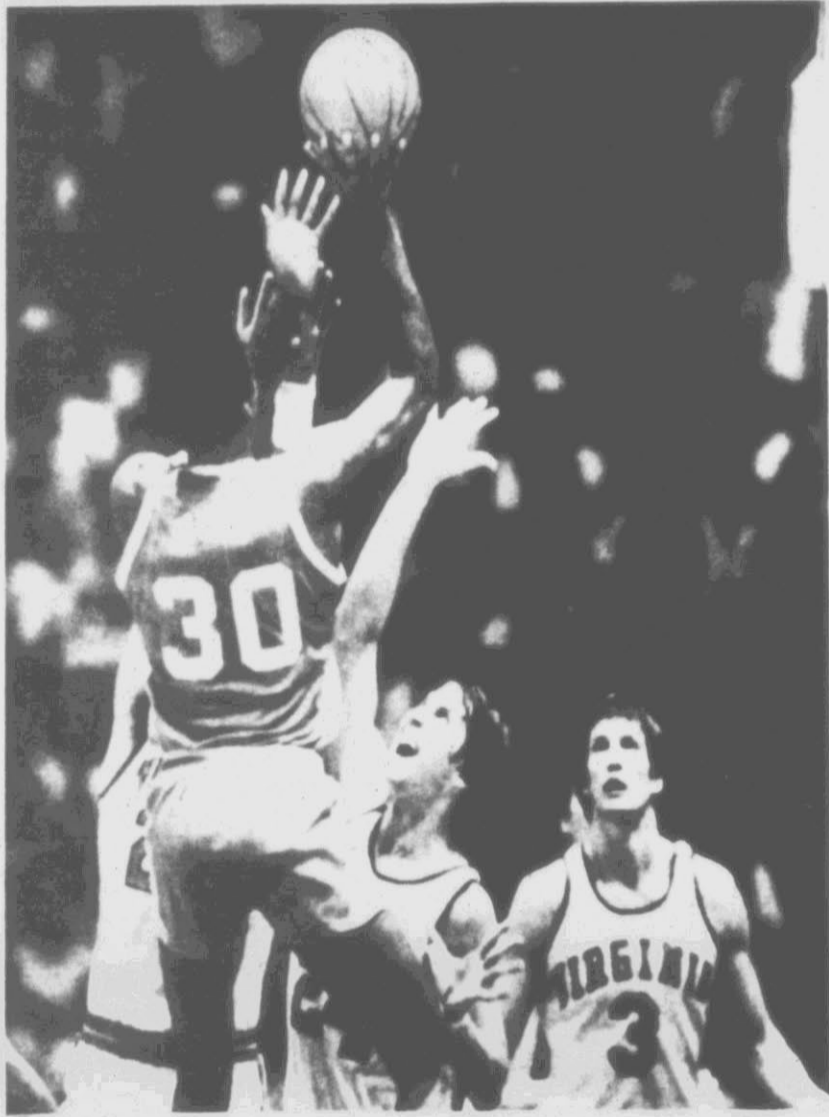

He also is a man with a split personality — brutally tough as a coach, arrogant and insulting often with the press, a strict disciplinarian whose dress codes went out of style a quarter of a century ago.

He can be crude and insensitive — as in the case when he had a hassle with a

UNC Faces Indiana For Crown

Tar Heels Look For First NCAA Title Under Smith Tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defense, rebounding, patience on offense and above all teamwork — that's the gospel according to Bobby Knight and Dean Smith and that's the kind of basketball to be played tonight when Indiana takes on North Carolina for the NCAA championship.

Although Knight was the focus of controversy following a run-in with a Louisiana State fan at a hotel Saturday night, that sideshow didn't diminish the appeal of tonight's glittering final.

The records may be tarnished — ninth-ranked Indiana is 25-9 and sixth-rated North Carolina is 29-7 — but everything else about the title game is pure gold.

Both schools have great basketball traditions. Both coaches, Knight of Indiana and Smith of North Carolina, are among the acknowledged leaders of their profession. Both teams have brilliant individual athletes, but both utilize them within the team concept — just the way the basketball purist would want it.

And both are playing at the top of their games, to the point where both coaches say you can ignore the result of their most recent meeting, a 65-56 North Carolina triumph in December.

"That game is so long ago, you're probably talking about two different teams," said Knight. "In each case, we're a far better team today."

"We're both different clubs since the first game," agreed Smith, who is in the Final Four for the sixth time but has never won the championship. "They are a much better team. For one thing, they've settled on one lineup, which they didn't have then. And we've made progress since then, too."

"Hey, when you get this far, both teams should be good."

Both teams are Indiana, which won the title here in 1976, has won 18 of its last 22 games and has overwhelmed its four NCAA tournament opponents by an average of 25 points. That includes a 67-49 decision over LSU in Saturday's semifinal.

North Carolina, meanwhile, has taken 11 of its last 12 starts, including a 78-65 semifinal victory over Virginia.

And then there are the coaches. Knight is the martinet, the disciplinarian who couldn't resist a verbal taunt Saturday night that prompted an LSU fan to respond with insults — shaping and molding. Ted Kitchel, who is 6-8, guarded Wood in the regular-season game and Wood scored 18 points. Knight wouldn't divulge whether Kitchel would get the nod again.

"I think he'd prefer to have Wittman on Wood, but that would leave Kitchel on Pepper," speculated Smith, referring to Mike Pepper, a 6-3 North Carolina guard. "I don't think he would want that. They may elect not to play one or two people closely so they can concentrate on others. In a sense that's a zone, like a triangle-and-two."

There's no point in trying to guess what defense North Carolina will use. Over the course of the 40 minutes, Smith uses them all.

"Our main difference in philosophy is on defense," Smith said when asked to compare his approach to the game to Knight's. "I think it's important to do different things because it makes the other team prepare for so much more."

"We do play the man-to-man best, but we'll also throw out the junk — our scramble defense, our point defense. We'll use them all."

Is Knight worried? Silly question. "We spend far more time on our team than on the other team," he said. "It's a game of identifying your strengths and weaknesses and then playing to your strengths and avoiding your weaknesses. Only then do we try to suit this to whatever team we're playing."

"North Carolina does present a different set of problems, however," he conceded. "They go from one defense to another better than any team in the country, and play them all well."

Is there a key factor to watch for tonight?

"I don't think so," said Knight. "Victory will go to the team that makes fewer mistakes."

Smith was a bit more precise in his analysis.

"The No. 1 key is rebounding and they are a very physical team," he said. "Their rebounding was devastating against LSU. Also, we have to have patience to play for the good shots."

The battle up front will be waged by 6-10 Landon Turner and 6-9 Ray Tolbert for Indiana against 6-9 Sam Perkins and 6-9 James Worthy for North Carolina.

Another player to watch is All-American point guard Isiah Thomas of Indiana, who was hampered by foul trouble in the semifinals but is capable of dominating the floor with his quickness and court sense. Jim Thomas, no relation to Isiah, did a brilliant job of running the team against LSU and gives Indiana backcourt depth.

North Carolina's guards are Pepper and playmaker Jimmy Black, two players who get much less publicity than the Tar Heels' frontcourtners but who play key roles in Smith's scheme of things.

The only injury question involves Wood, who has been playing all season with a shoulder that sometimes pops out of place. It happened late in the semifinal win over Virginia.

"There's a lot of pain, but it's not a lasting thing. It pops out and pops back in," said Wood. "I iced it Saturday night and it shouldn't bother me Monday."

Whoever wins will earn a spot in the NCAA record book.

If it's North Carolina, the Tar Heels would tie the 1977 Marquette Warriors for the NCAA champion with the most losses, seven. If it's Indiana, Marquette would be supplanted by the Hoosiers.

It may not be the most enviable of records, but it's one either coaching genius, Smith or Knight, would gladly accept.

Waltrip Eases To Valleydale Victory

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip made it look easy in winning the Valleydale 500 Grand National stock car race, but he said it really was due to his Junior Johnson-prepared Buick.

"It did a great job for me today. This car has really won a lot of races here," Waltrip said Sunday after coasting to a two-second victory over Ricky Rudd at Bristol International Raceway.

Actually, it was the 13th triumph for a car prepared by Johnson in the last 20 Grand National events on the high-banked, .566-mile track, but this is Waltrip's first season driving for him.

Because of eight caution flags for 44 laps, Waltrip averaged just 89.529 mph after having set a track qualifying record of 112.135 mph when he won the pole position in Friday's time trials.

All those associated with the race wore green ribbons to call attention to the deaths of Negro children in Atlanta.

Afterward, Waltrip — who went past the $2-million mark in career earnings — said he was donating part of his purse "to help find the Atlanta killer."

The race really wasn't all that close even though 11 drivers exchanged the lead 21 times.

Waltrip, who went in front for good with 79 laps remaining, led seven times during the race for a total 323 laps. Benny Parsons was in the No. 1 spot three times for another 57 laps.

A collision that proved a boon to Waltrip might have cost Parsons the No. 2 spot. Parsons tangled his Ford with Joe Millikan's Buick in the late stages of the race while he was running second.

"That last caution flag came in perfect," Waltrip said of the yellow flag that resulted from the Parsons-Millikan encounter. "We were able to put on four new tires and keep going."

Rudd, driving an Oldsmobile, slipped past Bobby Allison's Pontiac with just four laps left to take second place. Allison was third and Morgan Shepherd fourth in a Pontiac. All three were in the final lap with Waltrip at the finish. Parsons was one lap down in fifth place.

Two other contenders were knocked out early.

Celtics Defeat 76ers, Receive 48-Hour Reward

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Bill Fitch made his Boston Celtics an offer they couldn't refuse.

"I offered them 48 hours rest if they won this one," said the Celtic coach. "That's the best bribe I could make."

It turns out that the Celtics will get more than 48 hours off as a result of their 98-94 National Basketball Association victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Sunday.

They'll get a bye that could amount to nine days in the NBA playoffs, which start Tuesday night.

"We need the days off," said an exhausted Chris Ford. "The season has really taken a toll on us. (Larry) Bird has played a great number of minutes this season and he and the rest of us really need some rest."

The Celtics and 76ers actually finished the regular season with the same NBA best records of 62-20. They also were tied in head-to-head competition, 3-3, and in their record against Eastern Conference opponents, 42-16. But the Celtics claimed the Atlantic Division title with a better record within their division, 19-5 to 15-9.

The 76ers will jump right into first-round playoff action Tuesday night with the start of a three-game series against the Indiana Pacers. In the other first-round Eastern Conference playoff series, the Chicago Bulls will oppose the New York Knicks.

The Western Conference playoffs start Wednesday night with Houston visiting Los Angeles and Kansas City at Portland. The Kings nailed down the final playoff spot in the West with a 113-104 victory over Dallas Sunday night while Golden State was dropping a 96-92 decision to Seattle.

Along with Boston, other division winners to draw first-round byes are Milwaukee of the Central Division, San Antonio in the Midwest and Phoenix in the Pacific.

Larry Bird and Robert Parish each scored 24 points to lead the Celtics, who built up a big advantage quickly and then withstood a late rally by the 76ers. The Celtics led by as many as 20 points, 79-59, going into the last quarter before the 76ers came back.

"When you fall behind by 20 points," said Philadelphia's Julius Erving, "you know it's not just one or two things... it's a total collapse."

The Celtics' emphatic victory at Boston Garden reversed a mediocre week for the Atlantic Division champions, who had lost by 32 points to the 76ers at Philadelphia the previous Sunday.

"We played good, hard-nose defense, and our decisions today on offense were better than they have been," said Boston's Cedric Maxwell. "Good defense sometimes makes a good offensive team look bad. That's what they did to us in Philly. And that's what we did to them early in this game."

Kings 113, Mavericks 104
Scott Wedman scored a game-high 27 points to lift Kansas City over Dallas and boost the Kings into the NBA playoffs for the third year in a row. Otis Birdsong added 25 points and Ernie Grunfeld had 23 as the Kings snapped a four-game losing streak at home.

Sonics 96, Warriors 92
James Bailey had eight of his 24 points in the fourth quarter to trigger Seattle past Golden State. The Sonics entered the final period trailing 70-67 but took the lead for good when Vinnie Johnson made a three-point play with 4:13 left.

Spurs 135, Rockets 109
George Gervin had a game-high 30 points as San Antonio routed Houston. Gervin finished his fourth straight season with more than 2,000 points.

Bulls 101, Pacers 97
Rick Sobers and Artis Gilmore each scored in the final 42 seconds to lead Chicago over Indiana. The Pacers had tied the game at 97 on a free throw by Billy Knight with 54 seconds left before the Bulls took over.

Bucks 132, Hawks 128
Sidney Moncreif scored five points in the final 29 seconds of overtime to lead Milwaukee over Atlanta. The Bucks finished with a 60-22 record, second best in the NBA.

Bullets 138, Cavaliers 103
Kevin Porter had 27 points and 18 assists, leading Washington over Cleveland. The game marked the end of a 13-year career for Washington center Wes Unseld, who was honored in halftime ceremonies. Unseld, bothered by a sore knee, scored two points in a token appearance.

Knicks 103, Nets 95
Ray Williams scored 19 points to pace New York over New Jersey. The Knicks broke the game open with a six-point burst in the last three minutes that gave them a nine-point advantage, 99-90.

Suns 105, Jazz 90
Walter Davis and Joel Kramer had 16 points apiece as Phoenix beat Utah. The Suns, who clinched the Pacific Division title Friday, had their entire roster score at least two points as they closed out their regular season with a 57-25 record, best in the club's 13-year NBA history.

Blazers 144, Clippers 129
Billy Ray Bates scored a career-high 40 points to lead Portland over San Diego. Bates, a late-season sensation last year after joining the Blazers from the Continental League, had just two points in the opening quarter. But the 6-foot-4 guard scored 19 points in the second period to key the Trail Blazers' triumph.

Nuggets 148, Lakers 146
Led by David Thompson's 43 points, Denver rallied in regulation play, then went on to beat Los Angeles in overtime. The Lakers committed two turnovers in the last 1:15 of overtime, losing any opportunity to score.

Rogers Hangs On To Claim Heritage Win

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Hale Irwin followed his game plan perfectly — even better than he could have hoped for — in the final round of the Sea Pines-Heritage Classic.

But it backfired on him and helped spur Bill Rogers to victory Sunday.

"I told my caddy before we started I'd have to put some heat on early, and after the first hole I thought I could," Irwin said.

And apply the heat he did. And as early as possible. He holed out a 160-yard 6-iron shot for an eagle-2 on the first hole.

But it didn't have the desired effect.

"Hale's 2 on the first hole was absolutely the best thing that could have happened to me," said Rogers, who withstood that challenge and series of threats from a variety of players. He hung on grimly, never surrendering the lead, in display of thin-lipped determination that won him his second PGA Tour title and $54,000.

After Irwin, playing in the same threesome with Rogers, had scored his eagle, "I said to myself, 'it's going to be a long day. I can't just sit back.' It made me play harder and I got rid of my jitters right away," Rogers said.

He won this one with a closing 70, 1-under-par on the 6,650-yard Harbour Town Golf Links, and had a 278 total, 6 under par.

Irwin, a two-time winner of this prestigious title, Gil Morgan, Australian veteran Bruce Devlin and Craig Stadler finished a single stroke back at 279. Irwin and Morgan, both with the front-running Rogers in the last threesome, each had a closing 68. Stadler and Devlin each shot 67.

All put the pressure on. But none of them ever caught the skinny guy from Texarkana, Texas. He started with a 3-shot lead, built it to 5 at one time and then grimly clung to a one-stroke lead over the last four holes that lead down to Calibogue Sound and the looming, red and white lighthouse.

Rogers won important big money titles in Japan and England. But his only previous victory in the United States had come three years ago in the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Irwin, one of golf's greatest competitors, just missed on a 60-foot putt on the final hole that would have tied it and sent the tournament to a playoff.

"Hale's putt," said Rogers, "was so good it just stopped my heart."

"But things happen like that when it's your turn to win."

Louisiana Tech Wins ALAW Title

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Unbeaten Louisiana Tech parlayed a formidable rebounding advantage into a 79-59 victory over Tennessee Sunday in the championship game of the ALAW Division I basketball tournament.

Old Dominion edged Southern California 68-65 earlier in the day for third place in the tournament of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women.

"You got to give our kids credit for getting all those rebounds, and we were taking good shots," said Louisiana Tech Coach Sonja Hogg, whose Lady Techsters won all 34 of their games. "I just can't say enough about them. Our kids held their composure, held their poise."

Louisiana Tech got 39 rebounds to Tennessee's 29.

"We thought going into the game that rebounds would be the key to the outcome, and that's exactly what happened."

The Lady Techsters remained ahead after that, putting down a brief rally that brought the Lady Volunteers to within 10 points at 58-48 with 8:51 left in the second half.

Turner was named most valuable player of the tournament.

Lea Henry and Mary Ostrowski led Tennessee scoring with 15 points each.

Anne Donovan of Old Dominion scored 21 of her game-high 25 points in the second half to lead the Lady Monarchs to victory over Southern Cal, and teammate Jean Walling scored 18.

Turner was named most valuable player of the tournament.

ECU Golfers 10th

CAMP LEJEUNE — East Carolina's golf team finished 10th with a three-day total of 938 in the Camp Lejeune Invitational Golf Tournament, which concluded Sunday afternoon.

The Pirates were far behind Wake Forest, which won the tournament with an 871. Temple was second at 873 and James Madison third at 897.

UNC-Charlotte's Chris Tucker, who led all three days, captured the individual title with a 212. Temple's David O'Kelly and Wake's Tom Knox tied for second at 215.

ECU was led Sunday by Don Sweeting's 78 and Dan Lawruk's 79. Sweeting had a 75 and 77 the first two days for a 230 total. Lawruk shot 72 and 79 the opening two days for a total of 230 as well.

Other scores for ECU were: Jerry Lee, 240 (80-79-81), Craig Phillips, 246 (80-84-82) and Bill Molloy, 247 (85-80-82). John Derrico had a 76 and 84 before withdrawing because of illness Sunday.

Guidry Making His Case On Field

By HERSCHEL NISSENON
AP Sports Writer

If Ron Guidry was trying to impress George Steinbrenner, he certainly succeeded.

Sunday morning, Guidry's lawyer met with Steinbrenner to discuss the pitcher's contract, which expires at the end of the season. Guidry is seeking $6 million over five years.

Sunday afternoon, he went out and stilled the world champion Philadelphia Phillies in only his second spring exhibition outing. Guidry retired 12 of the 13 batters he faced, allowing only a fourth-inning home run by Mike Schmidt. That was the only ball the Phillies hit out of the infield against Guidry as they lost to the New York Yankees 6-4.

John Schneider, Guidry's lawyer, said the meeting with Steinbrenner was held in "a very congenial atmosphere." Steinbrenner, who called it "very productive," did not offer a counterproposal but scheduled another session for April 10.

"George is still concerned about the fourth and fifth year," Schneider said. "The fast ball is Ron's 'out' pitch and George is asking what happens if it goes after three years. He wants Ron to develop another pitch that could increase his longevity. I think he could be satisfied if he feels comfortable that Ron is making good progress on developing a third pitch and doesn't get complacent because he has the money."

Guidry, who complements his fast ball with a wicked slider, said he has been "working on developing a change-up for two years now."

The bulk of the Yankees' attack against the Phillies consisted of a solo homer by Johnny Oates and a three-run shot by Bucky Dent.

There was good news for the New York Mets, who broke a five-game losing streak by walloping the Minnesota Twins 13-3 as John Stearns, recuperating from finger surgery, drove in four runs with two singles and a triple.

Meanwhile, Pedro Guerrero homered, doubled and drove in five runs to lead an 18-hit Los Angeles attack in as 19-5 pounding of the Montreal Expos. The Dodgers scored nine runs in the fourth inning.

Rookie Terry Harper socked a grand slam homer in the first inning and Bob Horner slammed a three-run shot in the second — both off Cy Young Award winner Steve Stone — to power the Atlanta Braves to an 8-4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Rookie Mike Richardt had three hits and drove in three runs to lead the Texas Rangers over the Houston Astros 9-3, collecting 13 hits off Bob Knepper and three relievers.

Rookie pitchers Howard Bailey and Jerry Ujdr scattered nine hits as the Detroit Tigers beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-1. "I made a lot of bad pitches," said loser Tom Seaver. "I feel fine physically but I was not happy with my mechanics."

Wayne Gross drove in three runs, including the game-winning run with a 10th-inning single, and Rob Picciolo went 5-for-5, including a leadoff triple in the 10th, as the Oakland A's beat the Chicago Cubs 7-6.

Mike Ivie collected three hits for the second consecutive game, including a 400-foot home run, and powered the San Francisco Giants to a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Fred Lynn drove in three runs with a single, double and sacrifice fly while Bobby Grich and Butch Hobson homered to lead the California Angels over the San Diego Padres 11-7.

Luis Leal allowed one hit in five innings as the Toronto Blue Jays edged the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2.

Mike Easler belted a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning, his second of the game, to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 9-8 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Garry Hancock homered and singled and Glenn Hoffman had three hits as the Boston Red Sox beat the Chicago White Sox 9-5.

Rose Faces Important Week

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville Rose's baseball team has opened the season by ripping off five straight nonconference victories and, with the exception of a 5-2 decision over D.H. Conley two weeks ago, has done so with ridiculous ease. But just how good are these Rampants?

Almost to a man, the Rampants agree that the upcoming week will tell them, their fans, fellow conference foes and Coach Ronald Vincent just how good the team is.

Rose, coming off a 23-0 shellacking of D.H. Conley Saturday afternoon, opens its 1981 Division I Conference season Tuesday afternoon when the Rampants travel to Northern Nash. The Rampants follow that with a Thursday home stand against arch-rival Rocky Mount in Guy Smith Stadium.

"They're the two strongest teams in the conference and the ones we'll have to contend with," Vincent said. "This is going to be the toughest week of the season for us."

D.H. Conley coach Ritchie Wynns, who coached in the Division I Conference at Wilson Hunt before coming to Conley, agreed.

"I coached in the 4-A and I know what's coming back over there and after Tuesday you should get a good idea of how good they are," he said. "If they beat Northern Nash Tuesday they should be able to win it."

Following the victory over the Vikings Saturday, the Rampant players were already looking forward to Tuesday and a chance at the Knights.

"We'll know after Tuesday and Thursday just what kind of team we have," centerfielder Paul MacMillan said. "These will be the toughest games of the season for us."

MacMillan, however, already has a good idea what kind of team the Rampants have.

"This is the best team I've ever been on. We've got 13 guys who can hit the ball out at any time," said MacMillan, who was two of three Saturday, including a two-run home run.

"If we got five guys injured we'd still be able to replace them with players who could be starting for most any other teams around here."

"I just hope we don't get the 'Greenville Choke' this year," rightfielder Kenny Barnes added. "Every year it seems we settle for second. This year's the guys know it's all or nothing."

Asked if the easy victories are getting the Rampants overconfident, MacMillan said,

"No, I don't think so. Coach Vincent keeps us in line."

Then he offered an example. "We played the jvs in a scrimmage game and we beat them by only four runs," MacMillan said. "At one point we were losing, but Coach Vincent tells us never to overestimate your opponent."

While the Rampants celebrated Saturday's victory, Wynns and the Vikings returned home to plot new strategy. The Vikings have won just two games in seven outings this season and are 2-3 in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

"I thought going into the season we'd be able to win the conference with the talent we've got," Wynns said. "But we're suffering from something and our attitude is not directed in the right places right now. "I work the kids hard and they like to come out and play baseball, but they don't know what it takes to win. Once they find that, they're going to be tough. We've got some talent."

Notes... Although early in the season, Rose is hitting .401 as a team and has made just seven errors while giving up only five runs. Rose is averaging 15 runs and nearly 19 hits a game thus far this season. MacMillan is nine for 11 so far this season. Both he and Barnes, who hit two two-run homers Saturday against Conley, now have two home runs to lead Rose in that department. Vincent said he will start Scott Galloway against Northern Nash Tuesday...Galloway struck out two of the three batters he faced Saturday...

Navratilova Downs Jaeger For Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Martina Navratilova, a former teen-age star now considered an oldtimer in women's tennis, feels the pressure of age even as the game becomes more enjoyable for her.

"The traveling, the press conferences and the parties are grueling, but on the court I enjoy it more than ever before. I even enjoy practice," Navratilova said Sunday after winning her third winter tour singles title in four years with a 6-3, 7-6 victory over Andrea Jaeger in the final of the $300,000 Avon Championships.

Navratilova, 24, was the oldest player in the eight-woman field and the only one who had been in a winter tour finale before. Jaeger is 15, and the third-place finisher in the tournament, Bettina Bunge of West Germany, is 17.

Navratilova, who won $100,000 Sunday, was easily the top player in women's tennis in the first months of this year, but she still is behind Chris Evert Lloyd and Tracy Austin in the world rankings. Lloyd skipped most of the winter tournaments and Austin has been injured since January.

"I'd like to be No. 1 again, but I'm getting older and can't keep saying 'Next year, next year.' Sooner or later I will run out of next years, so I have to get going," said Navratilova, who wore a green ribbon shaped in an inverted "V" in sympathy for the black children murdered in Atlanta.

Not nearly as colorful and quotable as Billie Jean King and others who were stars when she first came on the tennis scene in 1973, Navratilova seems happier on the court and even jokes with reporters.

"It was nothing really — just a heart attack," she laughed when asked about chest pains which developed late in the first set when she stretched for a shot, but didn't affect her play.

Her victory Sunday, only her second against Jaeger in five tries, was decisive. Navratilova, who defected to the United States from Czechoslovakia 5½ years ago, didn't lose her serve in the first set and then held off the charge of Jaeger in the second when the teen-ager played better.

Bradley Gives Herself A Birthday Gift

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Pat Bradley gave herself a 30th birthday present. It was a little late, but she didn't mind.

Bradley, a consistent contender on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour for the past several years but usually a non-winner, left no doubts Sunday by firing a 1-under-par 70 to capture the $175,000 Women's Kemper Open by five shots.

"No more seconds," Bradley, who turned 30 last Tuesday, said with a big smile shortly after her first victory of 1981. "I just played my own game today. I just felt calm and patient. Being out there playing and taking nothing for granted kept me going."

Bradley finished with a 72-hole score of 284, even-par over the 6,134-yard, par 36-35-71 Mesa Verde Country Club course. She had rounds of 71, 75 and 68 before Sunday and either led or was tied for the lead at the conclusion of every round.

The victory was worth $26,250 and boosted Bradley into the top spot on this year's LPGA money-winning list of $69,821 in earnings. Her 284 in this third Women's Kemper Open tied the tournament record set last year by Nancy Lopez-Melton.

The victory was Bradley's eighth official triumph since she turned pro in 1974. She finished fourth on the LPGA money-winning list in 1979 with $132,428 in earnings despite not winning a tournament, and was sixth at $183,377 last year with two victories.

Bradley has finished second 10 times, including twice this year, since the beginning of 1979.

The winner brought a four-stroke lead into the final day, but it was cut to two shots after nine holes despite a 1-under-par 35. But she birdied the 12th and 14th holes as Jane Blalock, her closest challenger, faded. Bradley's bogey on No. 18 was meaningless.

"It was a little tougher than I thought," said Bradley. "When I birdied 14, I felt pretty good. I breathed a little bit of a sigh then."

What do you bid now?
A.—Probably the one feature of your hand that is of the least interest to partner is the fact that you have five spades, so don't waste your time rebidding two spades. Tell partner that you have a balanced hand with stoppers in the unbid suits. Rebid two no trump. If partner has an unbalanced hand with three or more spades, he can still bid three spades to offer you a choice of contract.

What do you bid now?
A.—Your five-card trump support looks attractive, but in reality it does little to enhance the value of your hand. Your hand is riddled with losers, and the queen of clubs might be worthless. A free raise to two hearts does ample justice to your holding. If that doesn't draw another bid from partner, your chances of missing game are slight.

More Basketball, The Oscars Tonight

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Oscar checks in on ABC tonight, which means a three-hour-plus telethon that is at once utterly compelling and crashingly tedious. This year, as usual, the folks putting on the TV show promise that a snappy pace and lively entertainment will ease viewers through the long grind.

Johnny Carson will host the Academy Awards presentation again, which is the surest preventative treatment for viewer squirm yet discovered. If you know Carson will soon return quipping, it's easier to sit through those agonizing orations.

And this year, producer-director Norman Jewison ("In the Heat of the Night") takes charge of the Oscar show, planning a special event meant to jazz up the front of the program — a taped address to the Academy from Ronald Reagan.

There may be some, however, who'd question the entertainment value of a presidential address.

Anyway, you'll notice that the Oscar show doesn't begin until 10 p.m. in the East. Last year, at ABC's "suggestion," the Academy moved the start up to 9 p.m. in the East on the premise that viewers would as soon go to bed before 1 a.m. on a work night.

But by starting earlier, ABC discovered that Oscar lost viewers on the West Coast, where the show began at 6 p.m. It seems that the studios had to shut down at ten in the morning to allow "the girls to get their hair fixed, and all that jazz."

The Academy's explanation, not mine. Besides, it didn't look right, somehow, for these glamorous Hollywood stars to be arriving at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion in evening clothes when it looked like high noon. This is a TV show, remember.

As it turns out, the latest starting time this year serves more than cosmetic purposes.

Over at NBC, one of the most exciting of television sporting events, the NCAA basketball championship game, is being telecast on Oscar night. How dare they? Here's how:

First of all, it's not NBC's fault. They televise the championship game when the NCAA schedules it. Nor is it college basketball's fault. The NCAA scheduled its big game before Oscar laid down his plans. But it seems that the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians' contract expires in April, when the Oscars are usually held. To be safe, the Academy moved the awards into late March.

They landed on the NCAA's toes, but by starting an hour later, the Oscars will just be getting under way when the final buzzer sounds in the basketball game.

Being an adventurous soul, I'll offer a prediction. Pick a category. Special effects? OK, "The Empire Strikes Back."

Actually, the "Star Wars" sequel has already been designated recipient of that award, the only statue it will earn at this ceremony. Even though "Empire" was one of the biggest hits of the year, as big as "Star Wars" was, it didn't gather any nominations. Receiving only a special technical award when you've been packing theaters is a little worse than kissing your sister. It's like kissing your uncle.

Worse than kissing your uncle, however, would be to miss the NAAs because your wife wants to watch the Oscars. Reason, for once, prevailed.

Audience Tied Show Canceled

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's New York affiliate has canceled what was supposed to be an audience-participation program on the grounds that the contents were largely made up by several employees.

The cancellation reportedly came after a man from Queens filed suit because his name had been used without his permission, according to a station spokesman.

Bill Fyffe, the vice president and general manager, appeared on the air Saturday at 7 p.m., the show's starting time, to announce that "Airmail Special" was being canceled immediately.

Fyffe said what had been billed as an audience-participation program was largely the concoction of several employees of the show. They had misled not only viewers, but the show's host, John Johnson, and several WABC reporters who appeared intermittently on the program, he said.

An unidentified source told The New York Times the incident that led to the lawsuit began when the show decided to do a feature about "how to lose your New York accent." A staff member on the show suggested attributing the letter to one of his neighbors in Queens. The neighbor, Phil Medici, sued the station after the segment ran.

In his announcement, Fyffe said that "most of the letters were made up by members of the program production staff, sometimes using fictitious names and sometimes using names of actual persons who did not partner is a passed hand. Game is out of the question, and you have no reason to suppose there is a better suit in which to play the hand than hearts. After all, you have a doubleton honor in partner's suit and, for all you know, partner might be void in your suit. Pass.

Fyffe also said the pictures of people who ostensibly submitted questions were in most instances pictures of WABC employees or of persons who had not written in with questions.

"Airmail Special" was conceived last fall as a service feature show in which entertaining information was provided in response to suggestions and questions contained in letters from the public. WABC carried the show in the 7 p.m. "access" time period reserved for local stations, and its producer was Clay Cole.

Fyffe said no questions had been raised about the "accuracy or completeness of information broadcast in response to the letters." However, he said the use of fictitious names, letters and pictures represented a violation of WABC policy.

'Electronic' Church Studied

NEW YORK (AP) — A coalition of Christian denominations and broadcasters has launched a major research project on effects of televised evangelism, often called the "electronic church."

Both mainline and other church groups are participating, including leading broadcasters themselves, the National Religious Broadcasters, the National Council of Churches and the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Terming the project important to religious communications, NCC communication executive William Fore says, "I think it's going to give all of us, in both the fundamentalist and mainline churches, some real benchmarks on which to base our future course and directions in the next 10 years.

And The Winner Is ...
 Besides the popular categories of Best Film, Best Actor, and Actress, Academy Awards will be given tonight for outstanding technical achievements, including Best Sound Track. Sound in a motion picture is recorded on a narrow band, called the sound track, which runs along one side of the film. During the production of a movie, the dialogue, music, and sound effects are first recorded on separate magnetic tapes. These tapes are carefully blended onto a single master tape through a process called dubbing. This master tape is then recorded on the film itself. As the film passes through the projector, the sound track, which is really a pattern of light on the film, is converted into the sound we hear in the theater.
