Stamina Impresses Doctors

Report Wounded Reagan Condition Is Very Good

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, in "exceptionally good condition" and "excellent spirits," resumed the duties of the presidency today from a hospital bed after an assailant's bullet was removed from his chest.

Less than 24 hours after he was shot outside a Washington hotel, the 70-year-old president was joking with nurses at George Washington University Hospital and impressing his doctors with his physical stamina.

At 7:15 a.m. EST, top White House aides visited Reagan's room and found him sitting up in bed, brushing his teeth after breakfast. Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan used his breakfast tray to sign a dairy price support bill the aides had given him.

"He could probably put in a full day today, if he gets a nap this afternoon," said Dr. Dennis O'Leary, a hospital spokesman. "I would not be surprised to see him up walking around in a couple of days."

O'Leary said Reagan "is doing extremely well," could be discharged from the hospital in a week or two, "then a couple of months until he's back riding horses."

O'Leary said White House press secretary James Brady, who was shot in the forehead during the assassination attempt, was "much improved" after extensive exploratory surgery conducted Monday to determine the extent of damage to his brain. Brady's progress, he said, "has been extraordinary."

The doctor reported there was "fairly extensive damage" to the right side of the brain, but minimal damage to the left side, which controls all speech and mental processes.

"We believe he is going to live," O'Leary said of Brady, "but we have no idea where he is going to end up."

The doctor said Brady is able to move his right arm and leg on command, but cannot speak. "His eyes are open and his pupils are small and reactive to light," he said. If there is continuing paralysis, "it probably will affect the left side of his body."

The suspect in the shooting Monday, identified as John Warnock Hinckley Jr., 25, of Evergreen, Colo., was held without bond on a charge of attempting to assassinate the president — a federal crime carrying a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Hinckley was to undergo psychiatric examination later today to determine whether he is competent to stand trial. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Thursday morning.

O'Leary said Reagan was told the suspect is "a young man who came from a good family." Reagan's reaction, the doctor said, was "non-committal."

The hospital spokesman added that as of this morning, Reagan had not been told that Brady or two other persons — a Secret Service agent and a District of Columbia policeman — had been shot.

The two law officers were reported recovering satisfactorily from their wounds.

As for Reagan, O'Leary said, "He's doing as well as any patient who's had an operation in his chest could do."

The president "had an excellent night" but got little sleep because of the intensive activity around him. Still, he kept up a running series of one-liners throughout the night.

Concern Voiced By Local Officials On Assassination Try

By LEIGH COAKLEY and STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writers
Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield, William McKinley, and John F. Kennedy were presidents who were assassinated in this country. Unsuccessful assassination attempts, however, have been made on other presidents such as Andrew Jackson, Harry S. Truman, and Gerald Ford's life was threatened twice. President Ronald Reagan's name is now added to that list.

Local public officials voiced their concern about the attempted Reagan assassination which occurred around 2:30 p.m. Monday afternoon. Six shots were reportedly fired as Reagan was leaving the Washington Hilton Hotel after speaking at an AFL-CIO conference. Reagan was shot in the left lung and underwent emergency surgery late Monday afternoon. Also shot were Reagan's press secretary, James Brady, a Secret Service agent, and a Washington policeman.

"I'm stunned," said Sally Keel, vice chairman of the Pitt County Republican party. "I suppose it's always a little unnerving when something like this happens to a public official. But to happen to Reagan, I think it is outrageous."

"This is a great tragedy," said Frank Steinbeck, owner of Steinbeck's Men's Shops and a locally active Republican. "There are certainly a lot of sick people in this world. I'm interested in what the outcome of all of this will be. Someone said that there was a gunman present protecting the assailant. I believe in capital punishment, and I hope in this case, it will be used. I hope and pray President Reagan will be all right," he said.

James McIntyre of McIntyre and Gerry, Inc., and former Republican chairman of Pitt County and active treasurer for the John East campaign said, "I'm shocked and dismayed, I've been watching it on the news, and it doesn't look as if Reagan is hurt that badly. I would like to know who did it. It amazed me that he didn't even know that he had been shot."

Farmville Mayor Linwood Mercer said, "It's a complete outrage and a shock to everyone."

"I think it is a dreadful situation when our public officials are subjected to this type of violence. We are all sick at heart, and our best wishes go to the president for his recovery," said Betty Speir, vice chairman of the state Democratic party.

Commenting on the assassination attempt, Ayden Mayor Ross Persinger said, "It's a shame. Crime is rampant in this world, and we must get on our knees to do whatever is necessary to stop it. I'm definitely in favor of capital punishment," he said. Persinger said that gun control is a touchy topic because people can be killed with a knife and other weapons. Bradshaw Says 264 Project Is On A Fast Track

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Tom Bradshaw, Secretary of the North Carolina Department of Transportation, told members of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce today that the U.S. 264 project from Wilson to Greenville is, "on a really fast track," because of the people along the route working together.

Bradshaw, speaking at a Chamber of Commerce-Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. sponsored Pepsi Break, said right-of-way acquisition on the portion of the proposed U.S. 264 freeway from N.C. 58 at Wilson to the Wilson-Greenville County line should begin in July, while acquisition of the right-of-way from there to Greenville should get underway between October and the first of 1982.

"The first construction project," according to Bradshaw, that portion of the freeway between N.C. 58 and Greene County, should begin, "by this time next year."

In addition to the project between Wilson and Greenville, Bradshaw noted that bypasses at Wilson and Greenville are being considered. He noted that a hearing will be held this summer on the proposed Wilson bypass, while, "a corridor hearing," will be held, "very soon," on the proposed bypass at Greenville, which would link the U.S. 264 freeway with the Eastern bypass at Greenville.

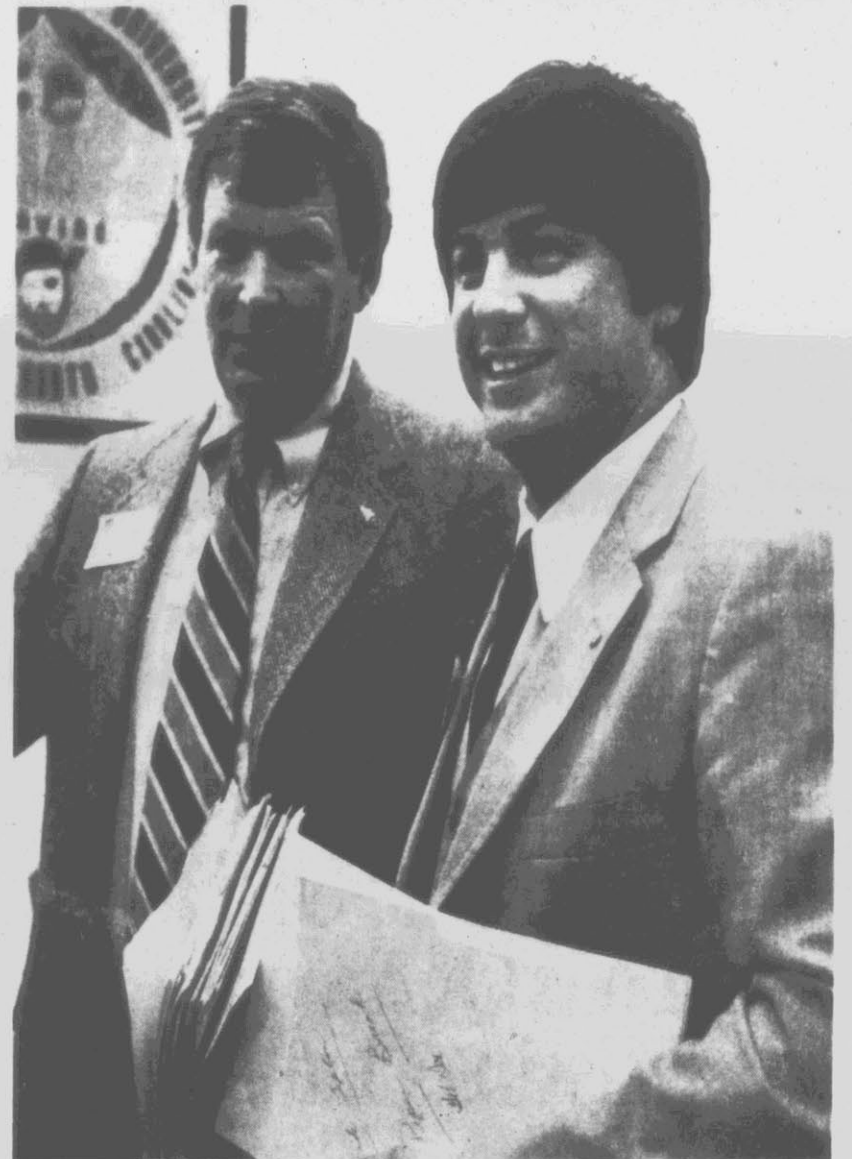

Bradshaw emphasized that there is, "a major commitment by the Board of Transportation for this (U.S. 264) project."

Although Bradshaw outlined the status of the proposed U.S. 264 freeway, his comments, and a slide presentation, centered mainly on the shortfall in highway fund revenues and the high rate of inflation in highway maintenance and construction.

As revenues decline and prices rise, "we're being hit from all sides," the speaker suggested. Of most concern, Bradshaw said, is maintaining the present 75,000 miles of roadway in the state.

Many miles of roads need resurfacing, Bradshaw suggested. If such maintenance work is not done, reconstruction of those roads will cost four to five times as much.

MAIL ORDER HELP

Hotline continues to be deluged with many more requests for help concerning mail order dissatisfaction than we can possibly handle with our limited staff. We asked the Greenville Post Office what kind of assistance it can provide.

Van Van Dyke says the post office encourages customer to state their situations to the company in question in a CERTIFIED letter. This is proof, he said, that the letter was sent and perhaps demands more attention on the other end, too.

Then, if there is no response in a reasonable time, the customer is advised to send all the particulars to the Postal Inspector for this area. He's W. R. Jordan, Postal Inspector, Fayetteville, N.C. 28301.

Editor's Comment

To the extent that the headline for the article in Sunday's edition was interpreted by some to mean that alcoholic beverages are prevalent on the premises of Rose High School itself, we apologize.

The text of the article, in our judgment, represents fairly and accurately the responses of students and responsible officials who were asked about alcoholic beverage consumption among local teenage students.

City School Board Votes Request An Apology

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Calling the headline and story in Sunday's "Daily Reflector" referring to free-flowing whiskey and beer at Rose High "irresponsible journalism," Greenville City School Board members last night directed the superintendent and vice chairman to request an apology and public acknowledgement for what they termed "a false image."

"I was appalled on Sunday morning to open a good community newspaper and see that headline and story," said acting chairman Jon Tingelstad. "I was particularly disturbed by the headline, but I also feel the story itself was full of supposes, based on no documentation."

The resolution requested that the editor of the "Reflector" publicly apologize to the faculty, staff and students at Rose High School. It also asks "the editor to acknowledge publicly that the lead headline of the March 29 edition was not a true fact."

Tingelstad added he felt the paper owed parents, students and the school board an apology. "Everyone involved deserves an apology," he commented. "To imply that any public school in North Carolina served alcoholic beverages, which is what that headline implied, is deplorable."

Stating that the sources quoted in the article could not provide factual data, and that the headline projected a false image of the faculty, staff and students, the board noted that

Heritage Tour Set For April 4

The Greenville Area Preservation Association will sponsor the Heritage Tour of Homes Saturday, April 4, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Tour stops include 14 architectural and historical homes, the Cherry Hill Cemetery and the old section of the Pitt County Court House located in Greenville.

Chairman of the tour is Mrs. Meg Smither. Proceeds will benefit the preservation of homes including the Robert Lee Humber residence, one of 14 on the tour. The Humber home will soon be used for a branch office of the N.C. Division of Archives and History.

Tour stops are outlined as follows:

The Myra Skinner Ficklen-Edward Bancroft Ficklen residence, now occupied by the East Carolina University Sigma Tau Gamma Fraternity, 508 W. Fifth St., was built about 1899. This Victorian home has a hidden closet which was reportedly used as a wine cellar.

The Rosa M. Flanagan-Edward Gaskell Flanagan Home, now restored by the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 S. Evans St., was completely gutted from fire in 1934 except for the exterior walls when the Flanagans were at the Chicago World's Fair. A nationally known architect rebuilt the Neoclassical home and added three additional rooms, a third floor for parties and dances and a wrought-iron circular stairway. The home became a showplace and has been pictured in "House Beautiful."

The Jacob Wilson Higgs Home, now restored by The Gathering Place, 1112 Dickinson Ave., is presently a restaurant, where refreshments will be served during the day to ticket holders.

The Loula White Fleming-Margaret Fleming Winstead residence, 302 S. Greene St., is a Southern architectural landmark with a structured little tower built in 1902. The home is now being negotiated by the City Council and the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce for leasing as office space for the Chamber.

The J. N. Williams Home, now the Lily Richardson property and occupied by the East Carolina University Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity, 422 W. Fifth St., has a "Gone With the Wind" winding stairway, imported crystal chandeliers, high ceilings, detailed moldings and ceramic fireplaces.

The William H. Long Home, now the Malcolm J. Howard and J. David Duffus Jr. Law Firm, 200 E. Fourth St., was restored close to its original condition in 1979. The house features eight-inch thick walls with decorative woodwork and crown moldings.

The Jones-Lee residence, 805 S. Evans St., soon to be owned by Lily Richardson, is a boldly fashioned home possessing a well-preserved architectural character and is the only remaining home on S. Evans St. in an urban renewal area.

The Helen Forbes White Hawes residence, now the East Carolina University Luther M. Taylor-E. Marvin Slaughter Jr. Alumni Center, 901 E. Fifth St., is a Georgian style home with Corinthian columns and a large 350-year-old gilded pier mirror hanging in the main entrance.

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for MISSING SOMETHING who said she felt like "half a woman" because she lost both breasts following a bout with cancer.

I went through exactly the same thing, and I can honestly say that I still feel very much like a woman even though I no longer have breasts. (I no longer have cancer either, which is much more important!)

It sounds as though your attitude toward meaningful relationships is based entirely on your "boobs." If so, you need a complete reassessment of values. If you are so shallow as to feel that your desirability and worth as a woman flew out of the operating-room window, then the malignancy in your head is far more devastating!

BOOBLESS AND ALL WOMAN

DEAR ABBY: May I say something to MISSING SOMETHING? It may comfort her. I just lost a wonderful wife to whom I was married for 3½ years. It was a second marriage for both of us.

When I started dating this lady, she told me that she had had a double mastectomy 24 years before. She wasn't sure how this would affect our relationship, but she felt it best that I knew.

I assure you, I loved her and accepted her as she was, and we had a beautiful and fulfilling relationship. Never did I allow her to feel like "half a woman." I miss her terribly. She died at 72. I just turned 69.

NOTHING WAS MISSING

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago I, too, had a double mastectomy and, like MISSING SOMETHING, I also felt like half a woman. I was only 28 and thought my life was over. Thank God, three months after my surgery my wonderful physician referred me to a fine reconstructive plastic surgeon. Abby, that plastic surgeon performed a miracle! I now have a beautiful figure — much more beautiful than before.

I met a woman in the hospital who had had a double mastectomy 20 years before, and she only recently knew that this type of operation was available. Please let your readers know about it, Abby. Some physicians don't even mention it.

BORN AGAIN IN MONTANA

DEAR ABBY: Six weeks ago I had a left mastectomy. Thank God that the cancer did not spread. I was barely out of recovery when my doctor started urging me to seek reconstructive surgery. (He doesn't do it, but referred me to a surgeon who does.)

The 12-inch scar is not a very pretty sight! My kind and loving husband of 28 years is not repulsed by it, but I would not want to expose a "new man" in my life to the trauma.

Abby, please do your readers a favor and make them aware of the modern miracle of reconstructive surgery. I suppose we "survivors" should be grateful we're alive, but we shouldn't be made to feel that all we're entitled to is survival.

BEEN THERE

DEAR READERS: If you are interested in this type of surgery, contact the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons, or the American Medical Association, in order to obtain the names of board-certified surgeons. I should add that this type of surgery is not for every woman, but it has done wonders for many.

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago I read a book by a so-called "expert" on how to beat the crap tables. It fascinated me, so after reading it several times, I built a crap table, bought some dice and poker chips and practiced this system until I had it down pat. After six months I showed a considerable profit on paper.

Now, common sense caused me to ask myself, "Why isn't the author of this book in Nevada cleaning up at the crap tables instead of sitting at home writing books to sell to people?"

On the other hand, his system worked for me at home when I played just for fun.

School Board.....

"this type of sensationalism is not journalistically appropriate."

Board member Terry Shank recommended the resolution demand a front page apology and retraction from the paper. The resolution asked for public acknowledgement that the headline was not a true fact.

The board also held a hearing on a complaint against Rose High School brought by Mrs. Patricia Brown. Brown's son was suspended from Rose in early March because of discipline problems, but given the option to attend Agnes Fullilove School.

Brown told the board members she felt the treatment Rose gave her son was unfair. "A child should have at least three suspensions before he is expelled and sent away," she said. "He had only been suspended once. I don't think at this point he should have gone to Fullilove and I would like to ask for some second thought on this from the board."

Rose High Principal Howard Hurt commented that Brown's son had, in his opinion, several chances. "Darren has a record of behavior problems dating back to September," he explained, "and the most serious was a fight in the cafeteria that occurred in February."

"On February 23 a hearing was held and Darren was told he would be given another chance, but any further problems would result in suspension and attending Agnes Fullilove," Hurt added that this was the recommendation of the local committee that decides problem cases.

Further problems ensued in March, and the student was suspended. Mrs. Brown withdrew her son from school prior, and reported he had been out since.

The board voted, after considering the matter in executive session, to uphold the decision of the committee, suspending the boy but giving him the option to attend Agnes Fullilove.

The board concluded their itemized review of the 1981-82 current expense budget but no action was taken. "Just keep in mind what we have discussed," Sup't. Cox told the board, "as our April 27 deadline approaches."

In other action, Sup't. Cox gave the board a list of recommended program changes for Rose High School and E.B. Aycock High School. "This is just information at this point," he said. "It deals with what's in courses, what's new and what has been dropped." Cox added that most of the deletions were recommended because of lack of interest.

ing, with poor health care, inadequate protection and substance diets, you must also relinquish your cultural lifeline — the reason, sometimes, you get up in the mornings; the respite you look forward to of an afternoon; the relish of working at your own art."

Now, that is hogwash with a very high vitamin content. It is balderdash to be treated with a kind of reverence — but it is typical of the caterwauling all around.

Let me get a word in edgewise. Mr. Reagan has erred. He ought to ask that the arts appropriation be abolished altogether.

Search the Constitution as you will, you will find no authority for the Congress to spend the taxpayers' money as the endowment has been spending it. Only by the most tortured distortion of the general welfare clause can these grants be justified.

Put the constitutional objection to one side. It simply is no business of our federal government, in a free society, to subsidize Painter Rose, or Playwright Page, or Pianist Sharp. It would be equally no business of the Treasury to ladle out grants to Goalie Puck or Shortstop Ball or Golfer Green. Under the act creating the endowment, public funds are to be given only to "individuals of exceptional talent," but individuals of truly exceptional talent will make it on their own. Individuals without exceptional talent ought not to be publicly encouraged.

The fear of the doomsday crowd is that if federal aid is reduced, especially in the form of matching grants or challenge grants, private contributions to orchestras, art museums and string ensembles will dry up. This is pure conjecture, having no foundation in probative evidence. Long before the endowment came along in 1965, private support of the arts — especially corporate support — had been increasing. There is no reason to believe it would dry up now.

Mr. Reagan's critics, professing their love of the arts, must have a low level of confidence in them. Willy-nilly, subsidy or no, symphonies will continue to perform the old enduring works, and talented composers will continue to write new ones. Our art schools swarm with budding Pollacks and ambitious Wyeths. In the groves of Erato a hundred million poets are scribbling on their tablets. Are they starving? Probably not, no. But if the unsolicited poems that flow across my desk are typical, starvation is too kind a fate.

"guns don't kill people; people do. We don't teach our children enough about crime and violence in our own homes," he said.

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said, "I sincerely regret everything that has happened and wish Reagan a speedy recovery. Being in law enforcement, I hope that they will now take a stronger look at gun control and the use of capital punishment."

Malcolm Howard, local attorney, said he was very shocked and concerned about the situation. "The President seems to be recovering, but I am very much concerned about Jim Brady, whom I have met on several occasions," he said. Howard was a member of the legal staff assistant-to-the president (deputy to the legal counsel) during the Nixon administration and Watergate. Howard said that part of the media confusion was a result of the Secret Service taking charge in the case of a conspiracy. He said that they use code words and generally do not let out any news about the president until the vice president has been "secured."

Dr. Tinsley Yarbrough of the East Carolina Political Science Department said that he was glad to see that Reagan is pulling through all of this and expressed his best wishes for Brady. "If we wanted to be cynical about this," he said, "we could think of the irony in it. Reagan was an opponent of handgun control, and he was shot with a handgun." He said that there is no saying whether or not this would or would not have happened had legislation been passed in the favor of handgun control.

Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray said of the shooting incident, "It's just shocking. Why anyone would want to do it is just incomprehensible to me."

The victims of the shooting, he added, "are in our prayers."

Charles Gaskins, a member of the Board of County Commissioners, said his feelings are, "just the same thing that everybody feels — a real sadness about it."

Expressing "concern for our country that such things take place," Gaskins said he has sympathy for the victims and families of the victims, adding, "I just wish there was something somebody could do about it."

State Representative Same Bundy said, "We all regret it. Mr. Reagan is our president. It looks like we have come to a sad state of affairs when public officials can't move around without getting shot at. I regret such things as this and deplore such action."

The presentation also noted that in 1967, the 9 1/4 cents per gallon gasoline tax (used to fund highway projects) represented 29 percent of the price of a gallon of gasoline. That same tax today represents less than 8 percent of the per-gallon cost.

Saying Pennsylvania, "used to have the best transportation system in the United States," Bradshaw noted that lack of maintenance has caused that state to become known as, "the pot-hole state," a distinction that no one wants for North Carolina, which now has the largest and best road system in the nation.

Asked about bid-rigging by contractors on state highway projects, Bradshaw pointed out that 41 paving contractors have been barred from doing work for the state. Twelve of the contractors, he noted, have been reinstated after paying some $5.6 million in restitution.

"We have taken the profits and then some," the transportation official explained. "Justice is at work. We have a strong commitment to get full restitution."

705 Rose Students Signed Petition

In response to the article in Sunday's paper about use of alcohol among teenage students, a total of 705 students at Rose High School on Monday signed and presented to "The Daily Reflector" a petition.

The text of the petition reads: "We, the students of J. H. Rose High School, strongly request a formal front page apology for the front page headline and article (Sunday, March 29) which falsely portrays the quality of student life at Rose High School."

The petition was presented to managing editor Alvin

Taylor by three students chosen as a committee to deliver the petition. The three were Jackie Brown, Mike Thurber and Leslie Woole.

Annual Conference On Family Life April 1-2

ECU News Bureau

"Intimacy: Developing and Maintaining Close Personal Relationships" is the theme of East Carolina University's 21st annual Family Life Conference, April 1-2.

Speakers include Dr. Francis X. Walton, South Carolina psychologist; Kathleen Walton, director of Adlerian Child Care Centers in Columbia and Harbison, S.C.; and Dr. Wayne Sotile, Winston-Salem marriage and family counselor.

The Waltons will speak on "Developing Intimacy in Male-Female Relationships" at 10 a.m. and on "Maintaining Intimacy in Relationships" at 2 p.m. April 1.

Both sessions will be held in 129 Speight Building.

On April 2, Dr. Sotile will speak on "The Impact of Male Sexuality on Interpersonal Relationships" at 10 a.m., "Treating Problem Relationships" at 2 p.m. and "Intimacy and Interpersonal Relationships" at 8 p.m.

The first two sessions are scheduled for 129 Speight, and the evening session for 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the Leo Jenkins Fine Arts Center.

Francis X. Walton is co-author of "Winning Children Over: A Manual for Teachers, Counselors, Principals and Parents" and author of "Winning Teenagers Over in the Home and School."

He is a past president of the North America Society of Adlerian Psychology and a member of the faculties of the Alfred Adler Institute of Chicago, the Adler-Dreikurs Institute at Bowie State College and the University of South Carolina's child development department.

Kathleen Walton, a faculty member of the International Adlerian Summer School in Europe and the South Carolina School of Alcohol and Drug Studies, is an adjunct faculty member of the Adler-Dreikurs Institute.

Wayne Sotile, a specialist in psychotherapy for adults and adolescents, is a consulting psychologist at the Wake Forest University Cardiac Rehabilitation Program.

All sessions of the conference are open to the public.

With Wachovia IRA's, you can earn interest at money market rates... and save on taxes, too.

Wachovia pays interest on Individual Retirement Accounts based on current Money Market rates. And don't forget that all the money you put into your Wachovia IRA is tax-deductible for the year in which it's deposited. In fact, none of the money in your IRA or the interest it earns is subject to any Federal or State income tax until you withdraw it during your retirement years, when you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket.

If you aren't covered under a qualified retirement or pension plan, there's never been a better time to open your own retirement account with Wachovia. If you open it before April 15, you can deduct your deposit from your 1980 taxable income. Why not make a wise investment for your future... and save on taxes right now! See your Personal Banker this week about opening a Wachovia Individual Retirement Account. No Federally insured bank or savings and loan association can pay a higher rate on regular deposits.

President Hoover Studies Plans To Help In Recovery

Variety of Proposals Are Under Consideration at White House at Present

Much Time Is Given In Hope Of Definite Scheme

Agriculture, Employment and Living Standard are of Interest in Turn by President With National Ogden Mills

In the foreign field, Mr. Hoover is preparing to speak on international trade next week at a meeting of Pan American commercial representatives. He is gathering material also for forthcoming conversations with Premier Laval of France. One feature and another of the various topics examined at the conference were the principles of the new plan.

A variety of proposals are under discussion, whether any of them will reach the stage of actual fruition in the future remains speculative. The various proposals reach into the fields of Depression Cause Of Pauperization Throughout U.S.

CLEVELAND, (AP)—The man who directs one of the country's largest charitable organizations believes present widespread unemployment is creating pauperization, although, the average worker would rather than financial relief alone. Edward Lynde and his staff of 65,000 to 99,000. Lynde said the number of unemployed is still, employers' responsibility. Lynde said there has been evidence of appreciable employment stabilization. Almost everywhere has developed a psychology more sympathetic to the worker. The action of President Hoover in calling industrial labor leaders here a year ago was said to have aided the situation and there has been minimal labor disturbance. "But 'man' a job. Relief is not the main thing," he added, "is to have a job he can do. Relief is secondary."

New Peoples Bank Opens With "Confidence In The People."

One hundred and two customers of the new Peoples Bank & Trust Company which opened today, had deposited $56,531.75 at 2 o'clock and were showing no signs of slowing up. F.P. Spruill, president and trust officer, stated that a continual stream of new customers had filed into the bank since opening hour this morning and that he felt "very gratified" at the way things were looking.

Thirty-one telegrams from local business houses, individuals and organizations, including the Merchants' Association, offered congratulations to the new venture.

President F.P. Spruill, who began his career as cashier of the Rocky Savings & Trust Company in 1911, stated that the philosophy of the Peoples Bank would be "confidence in the people of the community." Mr. Spruill said this is the only way any institution can survive the economic chaos shaking our country.

Mr. Spruill also expressed the basic aims of the Bank. These include assisting the community when they need financial help whenever possible, promoting thrift, and paying the highest savings interest permitted by federal regulation. Spruill also said he hoped that he and the other officers of Peoples Bank would get to know their customers on a personal basis.

Other personnel at the new bank include William W. Shaw, assistant cashier, Paul H. McRae, bookkeeper, and teller, and a number of other bank

50 Years Of "Confidence In People" Has Made Us More Confident Than Ever.

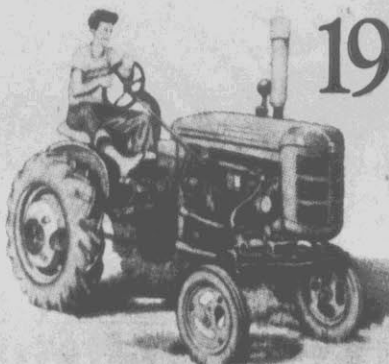

When we first opened our doors on Main Street, Rocky Mount, April 1, 1931, we proved that April Fools' Day does have its exceptions. 50 years later, we at Peoples Bank still attribute that early success during the Depression, and the Bank's continued prosperity, to the philosophy upon which Peoples Bank was founded: Having confidence in the people we serve, and serving them well. From one community in 1931, Peoples Bank has grown to serve 28 prospering communities across eastern North Carolina. Here is a glimpse of the Bank's progress over the last half century. Perhaps it will bring back a few memories.

In 1935, the notorious Ma Barker died in a shootout with federal agents in Florida, while Warner Brothers premiered G-MEN starring James Cagney. By September 1st of that same year, Peoples Bank had branches in Nashville, Whitakers and Zebulon.

Peoples Bank's Trust Department became the first in North Carolina to establish a Farm Relations and Services Division. That same year, FDR died, Germany surrendered, and the atom bomb was dropped on Nagasaki pushing Japan to surrender.

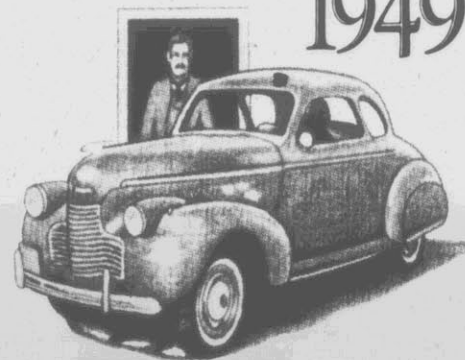

1945

William W. Shaw became the second president of Peoples Bank and F.P. Spruill was named Chairman of the Board. Also in 1954, The Holy Bible was the best-selling non-fiction book of the year, and Walt Disney Productions, with the help of Fess Parker, created a $100 million Davy Crockett boom. On November 24, 1958, Peoples Bank's Sharpsburg branch was opened, raising the number of communities served by the Bank to nine. In addition, two Consumer Credit offices were in operation. Meanwhile, millions across the nation were spinning to the Hula-Hoop craze.

1954

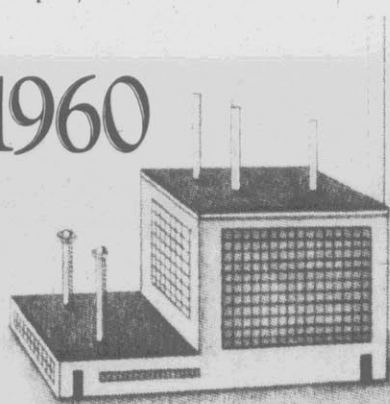

Americans were buying 100,000 television sets a week, and Peoples Bank opened one of North Carolina's first drive-in banking facilities in Rocky Mount.

1949

Kennedy defeated Nixon in the 1960 Presidential election, and vowed to put a man on the moon within the next decade; Peoples Bank merged with Commercial & Industrial Bank in Henderson and Hertford Banking Company in Hertford.

1960

In January of 1968 W.W. Shaw was elected Chairman, while W.H. Stanley was elected the third President of Peoples Bank. On December 21st of that year, Apollo 8 carried men into the moon orbit for the first time. 7 months later, Apollo 11 would carry Armstrong, Collins and Aldrin to the moon. On August 16, 1972, Peoples Bank merged with the Industrial & Commercial Bank of Elizabeth City. That same year, the president visited China and reached an agreement to improve relations between the two countries.

On November 16, Peoples Bank merged with Cumberland Bank of Fayetteville. That same year, Leon Spinks won the heavyweight boxing title from "The Greatest", Muhammed Ali, and the first test tube baby was born. In 1980, Peoples Bank opened three branch offices and completed the first phase of the new Operations Center in Rocky Mount. In November, Ronald Reagan replaced Jimmy Carter as President of the United States.

1981

Wednesday, April 1st is our 50th birthday. We'd like all our friends to stop by and celebrate with us. There will be birthday cake, (of course) and refreshments at each of our 50 locations. Please join us because it's your celebration too. The success of Peoples Bank is only a reflection of the prosperity this area has experienced over the last half century. We offer our thanks to the people of North Carolina for their confidence. Together we will prosper for a lot of years to come.

NCAA Finals: Knight-Mare For Heels

Gets A Technical

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bobby Knight can be arrogant and rude, haughty and unyielding, scrupulously honest and principled to a fault. He is also, indisputably, a brilliant basketball coach.

On a day marred by the shock and sadness of the shooting of President Reagan, when serious consideration was given to postponing the game in deference to the tragedy, Knight guided the Indiana Hoosiers to the NCAA basketball championship with a marvelously orchestrated 63-50 victory over North Carolina Monday night.

Isiah Thomas, the Hoosiers' gifted sophomore point guard, was voted the outstanding player of the tournament after scoring 19 of his 23 points in the second half. But although Thomas wore the ceremonial net around his neck after the game, Knight was the star of the show.

After North Carolina jumped in front 16-8 in the first 10 minutes, Knight made the key strategic move of the game. He switched 6-foot-6 swingman Randy Wittman from guard to forward to replace the foul-plagued Ted Kitchel and brought guard Jim Thomas off the bench, going with a three-guard offense and putting Jim Thomas on North Carolina scoring star Al Wood.

"We had trouble getting our game started," explained Knight. "I really thought the crucial point came when it was 16-8. Carolina had a chance to take us out of the game, but our kids did a heck of a job hanging in."

"Maybe it was a bad thing to get Kitchel in foul trouble," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, who has reached the Final Four six times and the championship game three times in his 20 years at Chapel Hill, N.C. "In comes Jim Thomas and he plays like he should be on the all-tournament team."

Told that both Thomases had been voted to the squad, along with Wood, Landon Turner of Indiana and Jeff Lamp of Virginia (which beat Louisiana State 78-74 in the consolation game), Smith joked, "Gee, you sports writers are smart."

North Carolina led for 15:59 of the first half, but Indiana regrouped behind its three-guard offense and finally took the lead 27-26 on Wittman's jumper from the right corner at the halftime buzzer.

"I think the most important play of the whole ballgame was the shot Randy hit at the end of the half," said Isiah Thomas. "It gave us momentum, got us on the right track. And we took it from there."

Actually, Isiah took it — literally.

The Hoosiers started the second half with an 8-2 spurt that included a pair of steals and layups by the cat-quick guard. That made it 35-28 and the North Carolina collapse was only a matter of time.

With Jim Thomas playing inside Wood's uniform, stalking him all over the floor, the Tar Heels could manage just eight points in the first 10 minutes of the second half. By now it was 45-34 and Indiana, 26-9, was on its way toward becoming the losingest champion in tournament history.

"That's a distinction we don't mind," said Knight. "I'm extremely proud of this team. We were 7-5 in December but they never gave up. I've never seen a group of kids stay with a goal and work harder towards an end."

And now the end is here. The Hoosiers won 18 of their last 22 games, including their final 10 in a row. Ranked ninth in The Associated Press' final poll, the Hoosiers beat Maryland, Alabama-Birmingham, St. Joseph's and Louisiana State to earn the spot in the final.

There they ran into North Carolina, which finished 29-8 but had won 11 of its last 12 before being shut down by Indiana's tenacious man-to-man defense.

"Indiana was more aggressive defensively than in our first game," said Smith, referring to a 65-56 North Carolina victory over Indiana back in December. "We would have liked to get Wood the ball more, but Jim Thomas did a great job of overplaying him."

Wood, who had scored a career-high 39 points in North Carolina's 78-65 semifinal triumph over Virginia, was limited to 18 points this time — and 10 of them came after Indiana had broken the game open.

Center Sam Perkins was North Carolina's only other double-figure scorer with 11. For Indiana, Wittman scored 16 and Landon Turner had 12. In addition, Ray Tolbert grabbed 11 rebounds and Jim Thomas handed out eight assists.

Fouled out—Gates, Sampson, Mitchell, Macklin, Martin, Carter.

North Carolina shot 50 percent in the first half to 38 percent by Indiana, but trailed by one because it committed five more turnovers than the Hoosiers. In the second half, Indiana's shooters began finding the mark. The Hoosiers connected on a sizzling 63 percent and held the Tar Heels to 36 percent.

Virginia Edges Tigers In Consolation Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "I blew it. I let my teammates down," said Louisiana State University team captain Rudy Macklin after Virginia edged LSU 78-74 in the NCAA basketball tournament's consolation game Monday night.

"It was a nightmare," added Macklin, the senior forward who finished his career as the Tigers' leading rebounder and No. 2 scorer.

He failed to score a point in the game, and had five rebounds before fouling out after playing only 16 minutes. He was playing with an injured finger.

Greg Cook, who was LSU's top scorer of the game with 21 points, was the only starter on the team who didn't foul out.

"Greg had his best game in four years," said LSU Coach Dale Brown. "He was a dominating force and was just fantastic."

Despite losing, LSU outshot Virginia from the floor, 32-22.

But the Cavaliers went to the free throw line 20 more times than the Tigers, hitting 34 of 38, while LSU converted only 10 of 18.

Virginia, fifth-ranked nationally, led 37-29 at halftime.

Then LSU, No. 4 in the country, outscored Virginia 7-2 in the first 2:01 of the second half.

But the Cavaliers ripped off an 8-2 burst in the next 2:15 to lead by 46-38.

Trailing 60-48 with 9:31 left in the game, the Tigers shifted into high gear and outscored the Cavaliers 15-7 and took their first lead since the game's opening basket by Howard Carter.

But Jeff Lamp came up with a three-point play to give Virginia the edge at 69-67, and LSU couldn't get in front again.

Virginia was in front 75-74 with 55 seconds remaining, and ran the clock down to 13 seconds before Othell Martin was fouled, and sank one from the free throw line.

Lee Raker hit two free throws for the Cavaliers as time ran out.

Lamp was Virginia's leading scorer with 25 points.

Louisiana State finished the season 31-5. Virginia closed at 29-4.

Rain Hits Contests

Rains forced the postponement of all sports activity on the local level yesterday.

Three events, all track meets have been rescheduled for Friday. They include Southern Nash, Greene Central at Farmville Central in track; Rosewood, Farmville Central, Conley, Charles B. Aycock at Eastern Wayne in girls track; and Greene Central at Southern Nash in girls track.

Reset for April 27 is Conley, Rosewood at North Lenoir track.

To be reset at later dates are the Eastern Carolina Conference golf teams at Farmville Central; and Ridgecroft at Greenville Christian in baseball.

A girls' track meet between Goldsboro and Rose has been cancelled.

For Dean Smith, NCAA Title Is Still Elusive

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — He came, he saw — but again Dean Smith failed to conquer. Smith's North Carolina Tar Heels returned to Chapel Hill, N.C., without the NCAA championship they sought, as 19 second-half points by Isiah Thomas and Indiana's aggressive defense lifted the Hoosiers to a 63-50 victory Monday and their second national collegiate basketball title in six years.

Smith has compiled a 436-142 record in 20 years at North Carolina, including eight Atlantic Coast Conference championships and seven consecutive appearances in the NCAA tournament. In fact, only former UCLA Coach John Wooden, with 12, has been to the Final Four more often than Smith, with six appearances.

But the highest Smith's teams have finished is second — three times, including this year. And so, he must face the questions that he earlier said he didn't want to answer anymore.

Like, is it frustrating to lose the final again?

"I guess we can be like Penn State football. They're No.2 every so often," said Smith.

"At least we get here."

"I'm thrilled as a coach and thrilled for this year's team. I'd rather play the 8:15 (p.m. final) game than the 5:15 (consolation) game," Smith said.

The Tar Heels started out well, as guard Jimmy Black twice stole the ball from Thomas for layups and freshman center Sam Perkins got four quick baskets inside for a 16-8 Tar Heel lead midway through the first half.

"We really wanted to get the ball inside," said All-American forward Al Wood, who led North Carolina with 18 points. "That's what got us here, but tonight (Monday) it just wasn't meant to be."

Indiana crept back into the game on the outside shooting of Randy Wittman, whose jumper from the corner at the buzzer gave the Hoosiers their first lead of the night, 27-26 at the half.

"At the half, I thought we were in good shape," said Smith.

But Thomas came out smoking, making two quick steals and four fast buckets as Indiana bolted to a 39-30 lead with just 3:25 gone in the second half.

"Those uncontested layups — it was like we spotted them points," said Wood. "They just snatched the momentum away, and then we just couldn't stick the ball in the hole at the other end."

With Thomas, who had a game-high 23 points, directing the Indiana attack, the Hoosiers moved to a 45-34 advantage with 12:30 to play.

"Isiah Thomas — there's not enough you can say about him. He's smart, quick and intelligent on the court," said North Carolina forward James Worthy.

"It just goes to show how quick the game of basketball turns," added Black.

Dean Smith knows only too well.

Second Title

Indiana coach Bobby Knight cheers on his Hoosiers as they gained a 63-50 victory over North Carolina in the NCAA finals last night. It was the second title in the past six years for the Indiana coach, both championships coming in finals played in Philadelphia. (AP Laserphoto)

Knight's 2nd Title Puts Him In Exclusive Group

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bobby Knight joined a select circle Monday night. He became the seventh coach in the 43-year history of the NCAA basketball tournament to win the title twice.

His Indiana team beat North Carolina, 63-50, to win college basketball's biggest prize for the second time in five years. It's sort of like having your footprint in Grauman's Chinese Theater.

Only six other coaches have accomplished the feat.

Look at the list of the coaches who have won the national title more than once — John Wooden (UCLA), Adolph Rupp (Kentucky), Ed Jucker (Cincinnati), Phil Woolpert (San Francisco), Henry Iba (Oklahoma State) and Branch McCracken (Indiana).

Bobby Knight is controversial. He admits it. It seems you either like him or hate him.

Everybody, however, agrees on one thing: Knight is one of the premier basketball coaches in the world.

Knight isn't bashful about his genius as a coach, but he chose to credit his players for the 1981 accomplishment because they came so far.

"I've never seen a group of kids stay with a goal, work harder toward that end (the championship) they had set for themselves, never losing sight of the fact they had to improve," Knight said.

Then, he explained his philosophy of coaching.

"Ours is a game of doing what we want to do the whole game," he said after beating the Atlantic Coast Conference champions.

"If we can do that, our ultimate objective is to break down a team over the whole 40 minutes. If we can stay with our defense and pressure the ball and stay with our offense and be patient, we're going into the last part of the game and we've gotten control."

The Indiana coach belongs to a group who have won both NCAA and National Invitation Tournament titles. He was the youngest head coach to win 200 games, then 300. He now has 333, losing only 118 for a percentage close to 740.

NCAA Finals

Indiana's second half was as well as anyone's played against us all year," said Smith. "I think Isaiah's two steals were the turning point in the game. He has amazing quickness."

"I was trying to help out the big guys," said Isaiah. "I tried to anticipate the passes and was able to pick them off. It's a matter of being in the right place at the right time."

It sounds simple, but it isn't. It's the product of hard work, which is the only way Knight knows to get things done.

"Discipline is our success," said Wittman. "We can't go like a lot of teams, just get out and run. We have to be patient, and that takes discipline."

"You need discipline and composure to win," said Isaiah Thomas. "We have those ingredients. We concentrate on ourselves and what we have to do. If we decide the game, then the opponent doesn't matter."

Knight, the center of controversy when he became involved in a run-in with an LSU fan over the weekend, described his battle plan in terms similar to those used by his players.

"Ours is a game of doing what we can do for the entire game," said Knight, who has compiled a 231-68 record in 10 years at Indiana. "If we can do that — apply pressure on defense and maintain patience on offense — we can break a team down over 40 minutes."

The Hoosiers only needed 30 to break down North Carolina and its assorted defenses, which Indiana patiently exploited. The last 10 minutes were gravy.

"To see the way these kids developed over the course of the season was extremely gratifying," said Knight. "Coaching basketball in general is very satisfying to me personally. I coach basketball the way I think the game should be played."

But this was a game that almost wasn't played. The NCAA's Division I Basketball Committee met twice during the consolation game, and it wasn't until President Reagan came out of surgery and was pronounced in stable condition that the decision was made to play the game as scheduled.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Postponing the game might have been a pretty gesture, but it wouldn't have helped President Ronald Reagan or the other three men shot by a would-be assassin, said Coach Bobby Knight after his Indiana University team won the NCAA basketball championship.

NCAA officials debated calling off the championship match between Indiana and North Carolina, but decided to go on with it as reports indicated the president would recover.

"I think the kids felt as we all did about the tragedy, that both teams were here to play — nothing we could do," Knight said after the game Monday night.

"I'm sure their thoughts this afternoon were with the president and the other people that were injured in Washington. I think they know they had a ballgame to play, and they made the adjustment and played."

The president had a bullet removed from his left lung and was said to be joking with doctors late Monday night.

His press secretary, James Brady, was in critical condition with a bullet wound in the head. Secret Service Agent Timothy J. McCarthy and District of Columbia police officer Thomas K. Delahanty were also wounded.

"A lot of people got shot. We were just glad he was still able to think with his brain," said sophomore guard Isaiah Thomas of Indiana, the game's most valuable player.

His teammate, Randy Wittman, agreed.

"It was a tragic thing. We felt for him and the others who were shot, but like Isaiah said, we had a national championship on the line, and we just had to go out and win it," Wittman said.

Teams and coaches learned of the assassination attempt as they were boarding buses for the arena. At that time, Reagan was reported unhurt except for a bump he received as he was piled into a waiting limousine by bodyguards.

Big 10 Commissioner Wayne Duke, chairman of the NCAA basketball committee, called his group together during halftime of the Virginia-LSU battle for third place.

He said the decision to hold the game was made only after talking to both coaches and after getting encouraging words on the president's condition.

"I stand behind the decision to play," said North Carolina Gov. John B. Hunt Jr. as he moved through North Carolina fans to his seat in the Spectrum. A pair of bodyguards watched the crowded stands with hard eyes.

He said every elected official has to be anxious about such things.

"It's a horrible thing to have happen in this country, but you have to go on and do your duty," he said.

"President Reagan is a strong man, and he's not going to be intimidated."

Red-jacketed security personnel and black-uniformed ushers surrounded the court at the Spectrum, guarded every door, watched every ramp. Security Director Terry McKinney said he had not called in extra guards, because he didn't feel it was necessary.

Bryant Gumbel, play-by-play announcer for the game, said there was considerable sentiment among the NBC crew to postpone the contest. The telecast of the Academy Awards, scheduled for Monday night, was postponed.

"Nobody can sit here and pretend it didn't happen," Gumbel said before the game.

"It's a terrible thought, but what if you start and five minutes into it, the president dies?"

Al McGuire, who teams with Billy Packer on color and analysis for the network, said he was afraid his flippant style might be considered disrespectful.

"What does a court jester do in a situation like this?" he asked.

"I think part of me is extra deep," he said. "I keep thinking of this tough, 70-year-old guy hanging in there."

LSU Coach Dale Brown, whose team lost to Virginia in the early game, said he seldom takes time to watch television, but turned it on in his hotel room while waiting for his wife and daughter to go to the game.

"It was very deflating and terrible feeling," he said.

"Frankly, it was hard to leave the room."

"The game lost so much importance, yet in the rally and the excitement of it, it seems to slip from your mind."

"The team came on the bus and low-key and very depressed."

Virginia Coach Terry Holland said the news created a strange atmosphere in the pre-game dressing room.

"We did not know the details, but things kept filtering in," he said.

"When the game started, we treated it as a basketball game and the pride of both teams came forth."

His star center, 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson, said he caught the first reports on television before boarding the bus for the Spectrum.

"I was one of the last ones out, and I saw it on TV and saw he was taken away to, I guess, a hospital," he said. "The whole team knew it was going on with the assassination attempt, but as far as what actually happened, we didn't know."

Knight said he was glad the NCAA basketball committee decided to hold the game Monday night, but he would not have protested about a postponement.

"I felt at the time that these people had their fingers on the pulse of the entire situation, and I told them that I would abide by any decision they made," he said.

NBC Provided Just The Touch

NEW YORK (AP) — Indiana and NBC-TV provided basic, no-nonsense basketball and both executed it beautifully Monday night at the NCAA college basketball championships.

The Hoosiers, under the disciplined hand of Coach Bobby Knight, set down North Carolina 63-50, depriving Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith of the national title once again.

And NBC, under the capable direction of executive producer Don Ohlmeyer, subdued its telecast in deference to the shooting of President Reagan. Yet, NBC still combined its technical excellence of its game coverage with a feel for the flair and faces of the tournament scene.

Four times, including once at halftime, NBC broke away with updates on the president's condition. Otherwise it was all basketball, although "tempered considerably by the events in Washington, D.C.," low-keyed host Bryant Gumbel said solemnly in his pre-game introduction.

Director Harry Coyle's cameras alertly documented the game action, including interesting overhead angles, while coordinating producer George Finkel contributed the appropriate replays.

The flavor of the event was punctuated by crowd shots of the red rooters of Indiana and blue boosters of North Carolina. Meanwhile, Knight, the man of the hour, kept bottled inside the ecstasy of victory in numerous reaction shots.

Dick Enberg, on play by play, told the game story and let his analysts, Al McGuire and Billy Packer, fill in the holes in their inimitable style.

"The refs are calling tickle fouls," said McGuire early in the first half. "They want to control the game right away."

"That Carolina defense can be put in mothballs," said Packer as Indiana moved out quickly in the second half. "Isiah (Thomas) goes right to the foul line and has a three-on-one situation."

As Indiana continued to frustrate North Carolina, NBC provided an explanation with repeated graphics on the turn-over differential.

Packer and McGuire, meanwhile, pointed out correctly that the Tar Heels weren't getting the ball to star forward Al Wood, although the commentators were lax in explaining how Indiana was denying him the ball.

All in all, NBC and its broadcasting trio will be sorely missed when CBS takes over coverage of the tournament next year.

Will Success Spoil Phils? Expos Picked

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Will success spoil the Philadelphia Phillies? After almost a century of failure, the Phillies won their first world championship in 1980, thanks mostly to brilliant seasons by Steve Carlton and Mike Schmidt.

At the age of 35, Carlton (24-9) led the National League with 24 victories and 286 strikeouts in 304 innings, ranked second in earned run average (2.34) and captured the Cy Young Award.

Meanwhile, MVP Schmidt led the majors with 48 home runs and topped the league with 121 RBIs, 342 total bases and a .624 slugging percentage.

The modern-day Phillies are far removed from the 1950 Whiz Kids. Carlton and relief ace Tug McGraw are 36, catcher Bob Boone 33, first baseman Pete Rose 40, shortstop Larry Bowa 35, and left fielder Greg Luzinski is gone. Luzinski, whose 223 career homers did not figure in Manager Dallas Green's plans for 1981, especially in view of the recent acquisition of outfielder Gary Matthews from the Atlanta Braves, was sold Monday to the Chicago White Sox.

Lonnie Smith, who replaced Luzinski more and more as the season progressed, is the only regular under 30, and that includes second baseman Manny Trillo, center fielder Garry Maddox and right fielder Bake McBride, along with Schmidt and Matthews. The speedy, aggressive Smith gave the Phillies a new dimension by stealing 33 bases in only 100 games.

Carlton and Dick Ruthven (17-10) are a solid lefty-right punch and Marty Bystrom (5-0) was an impressive rookie in September. Boone, a superb defensive catcher, hopes to rebound from an off-year with the bat and Rose, who failed to bat .300 for only the second time in the last 16 years, needs just 74 hits to break Stan Musial's NL record.

The key to Philadelphia's season probably will be how much injured pitchers Larry Christenson and Nino Espinosa can contribute.

"We can win again, and I think we will," says Green.

In 1979, the Montreal Expos wound up two games behind Pittsburgh in the NL East. Last year, they won five fewer games but came within one of the Phillies in another runner-up finish.

"The experience of consecutive pennant races going down to the last weekend of the season will definitely help this club in the late stages of 1981," says Manager Dick Williams.

He lists two problems. The first is the void in left field created when Ron LeFlore opted for free agency and jumped to the Chicago White Sox; the other, however, is no more serious than finding a backup for workhorse catcher Gary Carter.

Rookie Tim Lincecum, who stole 77 bases in 106 games as a second baseman in the American Association and five more in 15 games with the Expos, will get a shot at replacing LeFlore, who led the NL by swiping 97 in 139 games. If Raines flops, Warren Cromartie will return to left field after a year at first base and Willie Montanez will be the regular first baseman.

Raines, second baseman Rodney Scott (63 steals) and center fielder Andre Dawson (34) give the Expos loads of speed in front of Carter and the rest of the power people — right fielder Ellis Valentine, third baseman Larry Parrish and Cromartie. Chris Speier will again be the shortstop.

The pitching staff is young and talented. Steve Rogers and Scott Sanderson were 16-game winners and Bill Gullickson is on the verge of stardom. He fanned 18 Chicago Cubs in a September game. A veteran bullpen includes Woodie Fryman, Stan Bahnsen and Elias Sosa.

"One thing for sure — 1980 wasn't nearly as much fun as 1979," says Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner. That's because the Pirates skidded from the world championship to a third-place finish.

Many of the Bucs' big guns played hurt or were sidelined — right fielder Dave Parker, first baseman Willie Stargell, center fielder Omar Moreno (96 steals), third baseman Bill Madlock, second baseman Phil Garner, first baseman-outfielder Bill Robinson, pitcher Don Robinson. Comebacks are essential from them, as well as left-hander John Candelaria and relief ace Kent Tekulve, who slumped. All the injuries gave left fielder Mike Easler (.338, 21 homers) a chance to reach stardom.

Veteran Jim Bibby (19-6) is the ace of the pitching staff but the 6-foot-5 fastballer is 36. Candelaria, Don Robinson and Rick Rhoden also will be in the rotation, with Grant Jackson, Enrique Romo and newcomer Victor Cruz joining Tekulve in a bullpen which Tanner considers "the best in the world."

Any similarity between the 1980 and 1981 St. Louis Cardinals is purely coincidental. Manager-GM Whitey Herzog's housecleaning disposed of Ted Simmons, Pete Vuckovich, Rolie Fingers, Ken Reitz and Leon Durham.

The starting eight features plenty of hitting, speed and defense. It has free agent Darrell Porter behind the plate, an infield of Keith Hernandez, Tom Herr, Garry Templeton and Ken Oberkirk, with Sixto Lezcano, Tony Scott and George Hendrick in the outfield.

To cure the pitching shorts, Herzog traded for Bruce Sutter, baseball's premier reliever. Starters Bob Forsch, Larry Sorensen and Silvio Martinez must produce big years.

Outfielder Dave Kingman is back in New York to hit balls over buildings and first baseman Rusty Staub returned as a free agent. But except for center fielder Lee Mazzilli, the rest of the lineup is punchless. Rookie outfielder Mookie Wilson adds speed.

The fine young Neil Allen-Jeff Beardon bullpen won't get a chance to save many games unless starters Craig Swan, Pat Zachry and Randy Jones are over their arm miseries. Rookie Tim Leary has been called "the next Tom Seaver." He'd better be.

Having finished last with Sutter and Kingman, the Chicago Cubs decided to try it without them. The new-look Cubs hope to blend newcomers Steve Henderson and Leon Durham in the outfield and third baseman Ken Reitz with NL bat king Bill Buckner at first base, shortstop Ivan DeJesus and pitcher Rick Reuschel. Lefty Ken Kravec, acquired last week from the crosstown White Sox, should help.

PREDICTION: Montreal, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, New York Chicago.

Next: NL West.

Chicago White Sox Deal Again, Come Up With Greg Luzinski

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

First Ron LeFlore. Then Carlton Fisk. Now Greg Luzinski. Any resemblance between this year's Chicago White Sox and last year's club is purely coincidental.

"As of today, I think the rest of the American League West has to consider us seriously," Eddie Einhorn, Chicago's new president, said Monday after the White Sox purchased slugger Luzinski from the Philadelphia Phillies for an undisclosed amount of money. "Now we have the power we didn't have."

The sale of Luzinski climaxed days of rumors that he would be leaving the world champion Phillies, especially since they acquired Atlanta outfielder Gary Matthews last week.

Luzinski, 30, fought back tears when he told newsmen: "There's no question my emotions are such that I could cry. I'm an emotional person. I may not show it on the field. It's very hard to say goodbye. I'll take a day off and straighten up and report Wednesday. I'm going to prove at age 30 that I'm not written off as it has been said."

"This was the hardest deal I've ever had to make," said Phils' general manager Paul Owens. "I've been together with the Bull for 14 years. He'll always be a part of the Phillies' family."

The Phillies' first selection in the June 1968 draft, Luzinski was been the Phillies regular left fielder from 1972 until he lost his job to rookie Lonnie Smith last season. In his nine-year career, Luzinski compiled a .281 batting average with 223 home runs and 811 RBIs.

"Certain people came to the Phillies when I was younger and taught me how to win," Luzinski said. "I think I can do that with the White Sox. I'm going to a team with a great pitching staff. They've had trouble scoring runs, but with the addition of LeFlore, Fisk and myself I think we're going to turn this thing around."

The White Sox' new-found power was missing Monday. Instead, home runs by Cincinnati's George Foster and rookie Dave Van Gorder keyed a 12-hit attack and backed the six-hit pitching of Mario Soto, Doug Bair and Tom Hume as the Reds handed the Sox an 8-3 exhibition defeat.

The Phillies, however, batted around three times, scoring five runs in the first and seventh innings in a 15-3 rout of the St. Louis Cardinals.

In another deal, the Los Angeles Dodgers, seeking outfield insurance if Reggie Smith hasn't recovered from shoulder surgery, acquired Ken Landreaux from the Minnesota Twins for rookie third baseman Mickey Hatcher and two minor leaguers. Landreaux batted .305 in 1979 and .281 last season, when his 31-game hitting streak was the longest in the majors.

Rob Wilfong collected four singles for Minnesota and Glenn Adams drove in four runs but the Twins lost to the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-8 as Mike Easler paced a 17-hit attack with two home runs and a double.

Despite home runs by Pedro Guerrero and Steve Garvey, the Dodgers bowed to the New York Yankees 6-4 as Bucky Dent's two-run homer and a two-run triple by Dave Winfield keyed a five-run sixth-inning rally.

Winfield's long ball came just in time since the Yankees learned that slugger Reggie Jackson has a partially torn plantaris tendon and had his right leg placed in a cast. Jackson is expected to be sidelined a minimum of two weeks and probably will miss the season-opening series beginning April 9.

The injury began bothering Jackson while he was running in the outfield before Monday's game. He traced it to a weekend series in the New Orleans Superdome.

"I think I hurt it in New Orleans," he said. "I did too much running on the artificial turf. When you get older, you can't come to spring training and play every day. But with the advent of big salaries, there has been too much emphasis on making stars play every day in spring training."

Jerry Mumphrey drove in four runs, three with a seventh-inning homer, as the San Diego Padres beat the Oakland A's 11-5 and Ted Simmons knocked in three runs with a single and homer and Larry Hise also homered as the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Chicago Cubs 9-8.

Jerry White had five hits, including a two-run homer in the 10th inning, as the Montreal Expos defeated the Kansas City Royals 8-6. The Expos rallied with six runs off Renie Martin to tie it in the ninth, three on a triple by White.

Dan Ford tripled home two runs and scored during a three-run fourth inning as the California Angels defeated the Cleveland Indians 4-3.

Pinch hitter Claudell Washington singled home the winning run in the 10th inning as the Atlanta Braves edged the Houston Astros 4-3.

Gary Roenicke capped a two-run eighth inning with a game-winning single, giving the Baltimore Orioles an 8-7 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Dwight Evans belted a solo homer leading off the eighth inning and then capped a Boston comeback with a three-run shot in the ninth, his fifth and sixth spring homers, leading the Boston Red Sox to an 8-6 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Darrell Evans' two-run homer helped the San Francisco Giants defeat the Seattle Mariners 6-5.

Toronto was idle, but Brigham Young University's All-American basketball player Danny Ainge reported to the Blue Jays to begin his third season.

"It's baseball 100 percent from now on," said Ainge, who helped BYU reach the finals of the NCAA Basketball Tournament's East Regional before the Cougars lost to Virginia.

Chicago Bulls Carry Eight Game Winning Streak Into The Playoffs

By LARRY SIDONS
AP Sports Writer

In comedy, timing is everything. The Chicago Bulls hope the same applies to the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Bulls are the NBA's hottest team, riding an eight-game winning streak into tonight's opener of their three-game Eastern Conference mini-series against the New York Knicks.

"We're just about as ready as we're ever going to be," said forward David Greenwood, at 6-foot-9½ the shortest member of the Bulls' starting frontcourt.

Added Artis Gilmore, their 7-2 center: "The way we're playing now excites me."

In tonight's other Eastern Conference mini-series opener, the Philadelphia 76ers host the Indiana Pacers.

The Western Conference playoffs begin Wednesday night. The Los Angeles Lakers, the defending champions, will be home against the Houston Rockets, while the Portland Trail Blazers will host the Kansas City Kings.

Those four games begin the long road to the championship, which will probably be decided in late May or early June.

New York's chances of advancing to the second round of the playoffs appear to hinge on keeping the ball away from Gilmore, the NBA's leading percentage shooter.

"I expect him to be going all out," said Bill Cartwright, who will split the time at center for the Knicks with Marvin Webster. "Between the two of us it's going to be a thing of who can stop who from getting to a certain spot offensively."

The Knicks rely heavily on their guards, particularly Ray Williams and Michael Ray Richardson, and the series will pit their finesse against the height and strength of the Bulls.

"We have to be aggressive from the beginning," said New York veteran Campy Russell. "If our guards control the game, they'll be in trouble."

"But if we let Reggie Theus and Bob Wilkerson (the Bulls' backcourt) control our guards, and get the ball inside to Artis, we could be in trouble. We've got to control the tempo, speed things up."

The Knicks will have a definite home-court advantage in the best-of-three series against the Bulls. They were 28-13 at Madison Square Garden during the regular season and beat the Bulls 127-117 there in their last meeting March 13 to even the season series at 3-3.

"I know it's awfully hard to beat them there," said Chicago Coach Jerry Sloan. "But our guys will be ready to play. They have a lot of confidence in their game and a lot of confidence in themselves."

The 76ers had expected to be relaxing on a southern beach or around the house this week, resting up for the second round of the playoffs. But, while their 62-20 record tied Boston for the NBA's best, the Sixers' 98-94 loss to the Celtics in Sunday's regular-season finale cost them the Atlantic Division title and a first-round bye.

"Like they say, no rest for the weary," said 76ers center Darryl Dawkins. "But it's nothing new for us. We did it last year."

Role As Host Of Talk Show A Survival Move

By KENNETH CLARK
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Why would an established leading man in the movies, married to a beautiful established leading lady in the movies, want to become a talk show host when there already are so many of them the viewers need a program to keep them straight?

"Survival," said Gary Collins with the camera-ready grin he seems to have been born with.

That, and a growing fascination with people and their problems, has sustained Collins for the past seven months as the affable helmsman of Group W Productions' syndicated "Hour Magazine" which now keeps an audience comprised 85 to 90 percent of women happy and stimulated five days a week on 109 stations, nationwide.

By "survival," Collins, whose wife is actress Mary Ann Mobley, means only the new horizons he's always sought. "Hour Magazine" is just one more.

"Mary Ann and I have always worked in the live arena," he said. "We have a musical act. We've done musical comedy. We've done plays. We've done conventions, industrial shows — everything."

"Long ago, we decided that if we're going to survive, we'd better develop all the talents that we have. So we have survived, and we've done very, very well."

Still, Collins proved a reluctant host, despite his success as an occasional stand-in for Mike Douglas and his wife's urging that the two of them develop a show of their own.

Again and again, he turned down opportunities — until Group W came along and offered him a job.

He took it and it was his wife's turn to balk.

"I came home and I told Mary Ann," Collins said. "And she said, 'Why would you want to do that? It'll ruin your career. It's fine to do it with me, but on your own.' Are you crazy? I mean, who's going to look out for you?"

As it turned out, Collins — who now cohosts with Pat Mitchell — looked out for himself so well in two-week trial runs in Boston and Philadelphia that he now mediates a range of topics ranging from sex change surgery to suicide, and he said the job has made some profound changes in his outlook.

"You know, I had always thought that I had listened as an actor," he said. "I never listened. I mean, I listened in the sense that I knew what the other guy was going to say because I had read it in the script. Here I found myself in a situation where I had to listen so hard I got a headache."

He said "Hour Magazine" was born out of a Group W survey of women's needs and desires in daytime television. "The overwhelming response was consumer items and give me a way to cope," Collins said. "Mental health, child-parent relationships, divorce, marriage

— all of that was on their minds. We're not offering instant solutions. What we're offering really is a mirror — a window to the world."

"We are a third-generation talk show — first generation being Johnny Carson and Mike Douglas and second being Phil Donahue. We've taken the best of both and dropped the variety. It's been demonstrated that the variety of daytime talk shows is losing a little of its luster. There are just so many people to go around."

Collins boasts that the emphasis on issues makes his show one of the most educational on television.

"If anyone who sees our program feels that there's something in our story that particularly relates to them or somebody they know, they will certainly know at the end of a segment who to see, where to go and how much it's going to cost," he said. "At that point, it's their participation that becomes the key ingredient — the exciting thing — because people are becoming aware of what's going on with themselves, not just of solutions."

Even the host, it would seem, is not immune to that sort of participation.

"I've learned more about my wife. I've learned more about my children," he said. "I've had situations covered on the show on a Wednesday, and on Friday afternoon, my daughter comes home from school with her problem — and I did it already!"

Denies Singer 'Seriously Ill'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A spokesman for Glen Campbell has discounted printed reports in England that the popular country singer is seriously ill.

Jim Mahoney said Campbell felt dizzy 10 days ago while taping a TV show at the Grand Old Opry in Nashville, Tenn.

"Glen stayed in a hospital overnight and was released; a doctor told him he was all right, just working too hard," Mahoney said Monday.

After a week's rest, Campbell started an appear-

Offer Five New Productions

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan Opera will present five new productions during its 30-week 1981-2 season at the Metropolitan Opera House in Lincoln Center. They are Rossini's "Barber of Seville," Puccini's "La Boheme," Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffmann," Mozart's "Così fan Tutte" and a Stravinsky triple bill of the operas "Le Rossignol" and "Oedipus Rex" and the ballet "The Rites of Spring." The Met originally planned to present four complete cycles of Wagner's "Ring" during the 1981-2 season, but has postponed them at least a year.

ance last week at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev. He and singer Tanya Tucker will begin a tour of the British Isles on April 20. Mahoney said.

were postponed for the third time in the awards' 53-year history.

The decision to delay the Oscar telecast 24 hours was made three hours after the attempted assassination of President Ronald Reagan on Monday and just 4½ hours before the star-studded event was to begin.

Jewison conferred with Academy President Fay Kanin, host Johnny Carson and ABC network officials before deciding on the postponement.

President Reagan, a one-time movie actor, had taped a brief introduction for the program 10 days ago.

"The presidential portion of the program will be decided by the White House tomorrow morning," said Jewison.

He said the program, originally scheduled to be broadcast on ABC Monday at 10 p.m. EST, "will obviously require certain changes." He added that the introductory remarks would reflect the tragic events in Washington D.C., but the basic elements of the telecast tonight would remain the same.

The show was rescheduled to go on at the Los Angeles Music Center at 10 p.m. EST tonight.

"I think the show will be probably the same length as planned — about two hours and 15 minutes," Jewison said.

Some presenters may be absent because of previous commitments, Jewison added, but the major nominees are expected to attend the program tonight.

The academy normally spends up to $800,000 putting on the glittering Oscar program, and it was unclear what extra expense would result from the postponement.

The Academy Awards were postponed in 1938, when flooding in Los Angeles prevented the presentations, and in 1968, when the televised show was postponed three days because of the assassination of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

Among the nominees who will be in the audience tonight are Robert Redford, the expected winner as director for "Ordinary People;" Robert DeNiro, the favorite as best actor for "Raging Bull;" and Sissy Spacek, who has been touted as the winner of best actress award for "Coal Miner's Daughter."

Reagan had been scheduled to introduce the awards with a brief talk. His comments touched on his having been a former member of the academy, and he had spoken of this year's theme of "Film is Forever."

He added, "I've been trapped in some films forever myself, and as a former member of the academy, I ask you now to join Nancy and me in enjoying this year's ceremonies."

Songs Well Done For Tammy Wynette Movie

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Imitation is such a commonplace item in television's tool-chest that being a rip-off hardly counts against a TV show anymore. Which brings us to this evening's CBS movie, "Stand By Your Man."

It's the story of country music queen Tammy Wynette, a sweet-voiced daughter of the blue-collar South who endures hard times and hard men to realize her dream of stardom.

You may notice a similarity to Oscar-nominated "Coal Miner's Daughter," the story of Loretta Lynn. Chalk it up to slipstream television.

If you can get past the brazen borrowing, though, you'll find a worthy TV movie here. It will most appreciated by viewers who haven't seen "Coal Miner's Daughter," against which this pales a bit, but it has some very commanding strengths of its own.

Foremost, there is Annette O'Toole, who not only renders a splendid Tammy Wynette, but sings the Wynette songs. Beautifully, I mean to tell you, her "Cheatin' Heart" and "Stand By Your Man" are worth the watch alone.

Anyway, the story chronicles Tammy wasted a few years with a shiftless wanderer, her nervous breakdown (not very well set up here), her storming of Music City Row and, mostly, her stormy life with George Jones (nicely portrayed by Tim McIntire — Jones' songs sung by Ronnie McCranie).

(You'll notice — oh, irony — that Tammy Wynette doesn't do much standing by her men. She's married twice in this movie, twice or thrice more since, in real life. Gee, does this mean we can't take country music lyrics literally?)

A so-so, second-hand story, great music.

Window Cleaner A Comedy Fan

NEW YORK (UPI) —

Window cleaner Brian Weinburger has paid to see the Off Broadway two-woman comedy "A Couple White Chicks Lying Around" 159 times, out of a total 353 performances through March 3. He has met all four different casts of the play at the Astor Place Theater, and got a bouquet of flowers across the footlights from Louise Lasser the night she played her final performance as Hannah May Binder.

Festival Plans August Events

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) — The 1981 San Luis Obispo Mozart Festival will take place Aug. 3-9 on the campus of California Polytechnic and in Mission San Luis Obispo and Mission San Miguel. The festival will include 14 concerts plus lectures, recitals, films, and instrumental workshops, including a Hubbard Keyboard Instruments Workshop at Cal. Poly.

Piano Finalists Are Selected

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Forty finalists have been selected for the May 17-31 1981 Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, from 127 applicants from 24 countries. The prize-winning performances will be shown live in a 90-minute TV special on PBS stations May 31. First prize will be $12,000 cash plus major international engagements.

Honored For Gift Of Song

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Enrico Macias, French composer and singer, has been honored for giving the U.N. Children's Fund the copyright to one of his songs so the royalties can help children around the world.

The song, already a hit, is "Malheur a Celui qui Blesse un Enfant" — "Bad Luck to Him Who Hurts a Child" — with music by Macias and words by Jacques Demary. It has been recorded in New York and Paris.

French U.N. Ambassador Jacques Leprette stood by as Tarzi Vittachi of Sri Lanka, the fund's executive director for external relations, presented Macias a framed citation at a reception Monday.

The fund is best known as UNICEF from its original name of U.N. International Children's Emergency Fund.

cranked up for its 1982 coverage of the NCAA basketball tournament with coverage of the College All-Star basketball game on April 4.

CBS Sports Chief Van Gordon Sauter says that he'll assemble an entirely new broadcasting unit to cover the NCAA, and hopes to come up with a team that will make viewers forget NBC's Al McGuire-Billy Packer-Dick Enberg squad.

McGuire has a new NBC contract, but there is talk that Packer may join CBS. Look also for University of Texas Coach Abe Lemons, who will get an audition on the April 4 all-star contest.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

In the highest circles, no card is played randomly. Every card is intended to convey a message, and its correct interpretation can make a world of difference.

While we have no strong objection to the bidding, our own preference is to open the South hand with one spade and rebid two hearts. That would have led to an unbeatable contract of three no trump, perhaps with overtricks if declarer guesses the club position.

Since the bidding suggested that his partner might be short in clubs, West found the excellent lead of the ace of clubs. At trick two he continued with the two of clubs. East ruffed, and declarer unblocked the queen in case he needed to finesse for the jack later in the hand. The fate of the contract now hinged on East's return.

Seeking Cause Condo's Fall

By MATT BOKOR
Associated Press Writer
COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Developers of a condominium that collapsed and killed 11 workers say they "are as anxious" as federal investigators to find out what caused the unfinished building to fall.

Mike Mervis, a spokesman for Univel Inc., said the firm "agreed to cooperate fully" in the Occupational Safety and Health Administration probe. "We told OSHA we are as anxious as they are to find out what happened," he said.

Mervis said detailed construction information about the project may be handed over to the federal officials as early as today.

The accident Friday injured 23 people at the Harbour Cay condominiums on the Banana River in east central Florida.

Investigators from OSHA met with Univel officials on Monday and asked for specifics on concrete preparations and other construction information on the Harbour Cay project.

OSHA officials said they would not comment until the probe is finished, but Mervis said the investigators had asked for 10 items, most of them dealing with how the concrete was mixed and how it was supported once it was poured.

There was some speculation that the accident resulted from supports being pulled from the concrete while it was still wet, but investigators refused to comment on the theory.

OSHA officials told the Cocoa Today newspaper that Univel had been cited at construction sites for unspecified violations.

If East and West just lead the card nearest their thumbs, then East is completely in the dark about how to get back to his partner's hand. The logical play is a spade, but that would permit declarer to make his contract. He would win in dummy, cash the ace-king of diamonds, discarding a club, and then lead trumps. The defenders would get only the ace of trumps in addition to the two tricks in the bank.

But if East-West use suit preference signals, East can and should work out that his partner wants a trump return? Can you see why?

If West wanted his partner to return a spade he would not have led his lowest club at trick two. And he can't possibly want a diamond return—the top diamonds are in dummy for all to see and West cannot be void in diamonds because that would give South five diamonds, an impossibility on the auction.

Therefore, by process of elimination, the only suit that offered any hope was trumps. We are happy to report that East duly shifted to a heart, West won the ace and returned another club. East's ruff spelled down one.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Mervis called the violations minor and stressed that the problems had been corrected immediately.

Early Monday morning, rescue workers called off the search for additional victims. The crushed body of the 11th man, Darrell Nowakowski, 22, was pulled from the rubble Sunday afternoon. Ironically, Nowakowski's father, Con, insured the project.

Harbour Cay, a $10 million five-story structure, was to be the first of five buildings in the project. Mervis said no plans on redeveloping the site will be made until investigations are completed.

Ways and Means

Tonight Vice President Bush is scheduled to present the Copernican Foundation Award to Congressman Dan Rostenkowski of Chicago for his contributions to that Polish-American organization. As chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Mr. Rostenkowski is one of the most powerful leaders in Congress. His committee must first write and approve all suggested laws that Congress debates about taxes, Social Security, or other money matters. Mr. Rostenkowski's actions as chairman can influence the kinds of tax laws Congress passes. The Reagan Administration, along with the rest of the nation, is interested in the recommendations Mr. Rostenkowski's committee will make about the President's proposed tax cuts.

Selecting Jury In Brilab Case

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) —

Prospective jurors are being asked whether they would be prejudiced by profanity and racial epithets expected to turn up on secretly made tapes submitted as evidence in the Brilab trial of organized-crime boss Carlos Marcello and four others.

The defendants are accused of scheming to bribe state officials for lucrative insurance contracts.

Five prospective jurors were questioned and excused for various reasons Monday in the first day of jury selection in U.S. District Court. Jury selection resumes today.

Brilab — which stands for bribery-labor — was the code for FBI investigations into alleged official corruption and labor-group contracts.

Judge Morey Sear told prospective jurors Monday the trial might last three months or longer. Among other questions, he asked prospective jurors whether they would be prejudiced by profanity or racial epithets.

Marcello has long been described by government investigators as a boss of organized crime along the Gulf Coast.

In addition to Marcello, 70, of New Orleans, the defendants include Charles Roemer, 57, of Baton Rouge, who ran day-to-day operations of state government for eight years as commissioner of administration, a post he relinquished a year ago.

All five defendants are charged with conspiracy, racketeering and mail and wire fraud in an alleged scheme to bribe state officials to give them multimillion-dollar group insurance contracts covering state employees in Louisiana. The government charged that the men would have shared the lucrative commissions from the insurance.

Other defendants are I. Irving Davidson, 59, a Washington lobbyist; Vincent Marinello, 43, a New Orleans lawyer accused of delivering bribe money; and Aubrey Young, 58, an alleged intermediary for Marcello. Young, after being indicted, resigned as aide to Lt. Gov. Bobby Freeman.

A key government witness is expected to be Joseph Hauser, 49.

FARMER DEMANDS
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Hundreds of angry farmers marched and shouted outside the headquarters of the Common Market yesterday to demand higher prices for agricultural goods.

Three Killed In Accident

Three persons were reported injured and an estimated $16,600 property damage done in a series of six traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:58 p.m. collision on the Stanfordsburg Road, 71 feet east of the Medical Drive intersection, involving cars driven by Nelson Isaac Baldree of Grifton and Carl Junior Barron of Elm City.

Police, who said both drivers and two passengers in the Baldree car were injured, estimated damage at $3,500 to the Baldree car and $2,500 to the Barron vehicle.

Cars driven by Thomas Critcher Roulet of Stratford Arms Apts., Gloria Medlin Batts of Route 1, Greenville, and Denny Lee Grimes of Winterville, were involved in a 1:16 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Arlington Boulevard, causing $2,000 damage to the Roulet car, $2,000 damage to the Batts auto, and $200 damage to the Grimes vehicle.

Investigators said cars driven by Sandra Jean Swain of Greenville and Charles A. Costin of Warsaw, and an as yet unidentified truck were involved in a 1 p.m. mishap on Memorial Drive which caused $2,500 damage to the Swain car and $1,200 damage to the Costin vehicle.

Cars driven by Gail Rene Gurnee of 2605 East Third St. and Camilla Henderson Taft of 106 Kenilworth Rd. collided about 2:55 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 121 feet east of the Elm Street intersection, resulting in an estimated $1,000 damage to the Gurnee car and $300 damage to the Taft vehicle.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 1:35 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive, 50 feet south of the Pine Street intersection.

Police identified the drivers of the cars involved as Donna Faye Griffin of Route 2, Veedersburg, Ind., and Vickie Gail Williams of Route 3, Greenville.

Cars driven by Faye Williams Waters of 400 Hillcrest Dr. and James Ray Murchison of 103 Abbe Rd., collided about 10:45 a.m. on North Greene Street.

Investigators said an estimated $300 damage resulted to each of the two vehicles.

An Economic Primer

New Program Pitted Against Keynesian Dogma

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional battle over the Reagan economic program is the first political challenge in more than 40 years of the theories of a British economist that have guided American presidents since Franklin Roosevelt.

FDR used the theories of John Maynard Keynes to lift the nation out of the Great Depression. Ever since, Keynesian economics has been a political sacred cow, advocated by most Democratic and Republican economists, used by most Democratic and Republican presidents.

Until now.

Ronald Reagan was elected president on a platform that included a turn-away from Keynes to "supply side" economics.

With his budget and tax proposals before Congress, the economic battle has been joined.

Democratic legislators, particularly the heirs of Roosevelt's New Deal philosophy, are the staunchest defenders of Keynes' once-revolutionary idea that government could battle inflation and unemployment by controlling demand for goods and services.

In Roosevelt's day, the followers of Keynes repudiated the hands-off philosophy of Herbert Hoover and proposed tax cuts, budget deficits and heavy government spending to manipulate the economy into health. "We are all Keynesians now" was their popular slogan.

Today, a new group of revolutionaries — the "supply-siders" — believe Keynes' theories are as outmoded as Hoover's. They say government must stop trying to control demand and instead find ways to expand supply.

Ironically, the Keynesians and the supply-siders rely on the same tools, the government's budget-making and taxing powers. But their emphasis is dramatically different.

Keynesian policies call for much more government involvement in the economy.

Supply-siders want more economic power returned to individuals.

Government spending and the resulting budget deficits actually pushed the economy out of the Great Depression. During the worst of the depression in 1933, the government was spending only $2 billion to purchase goods and services at a time when one-fourth of the labor force was unemployed.

But World War II forced Roosevelt to spend as never before. Between 1940 and 1945, the federal deficit totaled more than $200 billion. The government's share of the gross national product — the total output of goods and services — reached 46 percent by 1943. Unemployment fell to only 1.2 percent by 1944.

The first deliberate use of Keynes' theories occurred in the early 1960s when President John F. Kennedy asked Congress to cut taxes by a then-hefty $10 billion, even though a $4 billion budget deficit existed.

Kennedy's advisers insisted that such a reduction was needed to increase lagging employment and reduce fiscal drag. Enacted after Kennedy's death, the tax cut proved highly successful as it boosted the gross national product, jobs and business investment.

In succeeding years, however, the nation became enmeshed in Vietnam and rapidly expanding military spending. President Lyndon B. Johnson's economic advisers, applying Keynes' theories, urged him to increase taxes and thus reduce demand. Deficits were mounting as the economy approached full employment. The result: inflation.

Johnson, however, didn't act until 1968. Fiscal restraint came too late to prevent an inflationary buildup that continues today.

President Richard M. Nixon announced his "New Economic Policy." It was intended to reduce rising unemployment by increasing the budget deficit and cutting taxes. He also imposed wage and price controls aimed at halting persistent inflation.

Keynes' theories didn't assume that inflation and unemployment could occur at the same time. Until Nixon, government needed only to increase or decrease demand to control one or the other economic ill.

Today, Reagan is relying on the same tools of government. He wants to cut federal spending and taxes simultaneously, but not because he believes Washington can fine-tune the economy. His advisers are not all that worried about demand.

Rather, they believe Reagan's program will make it more profitable for people to work and invest, thus boosting the economy through production rather than consumption of goods.

Doug Wilkerson To Appear Here

Doug Wilkerson, veteran guard of the San Diego Chargers, will be visiting Greenville to talk informally to students on Wednesday, April 1.

On that day, Wilkerson will be making appearances at five North Carolina schools, meeting and talking with students. The one-day tour is being sponsored through the Governor's office under the auspices of the Division of Youth Services.

Wilkerson will begin the day's activities with a morning kick-off from Governor Hunt and conclude the day at a banquet in Fayetteville.

He is scheduled to put down (by helicopter) on the grounds adjoining Agnes Fullilove School just before 1 p.m. Wednesday. Plans are for Mayor Don McGlohon and superintendent of city schools Glenn Cox to be on hand to welcome him. He will then spend about an hour talking to students at Agnes Fullilove Community School.

A graduate of North Carolina Central University, Wilkerson's first professional playing was with the Houston Oilers in 1970. After a one-year rookie stint, the Oilers traded him with San Diego for Willie Frazier.

The six foot two, 260 pounds player has remained with the San Diego Chargers each season since, and has racked up a record of starting in 114 consecutive games — a streak that remained unbroken until he received an injury last year in the preseason game against the Los Angeles Rams.

Wilkerson and his wife Glyn have two young daughters and are now permanent residents of San Diego.

Israeli Strike Guerrilla Bases

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli soldiers raided a Palestinian guerrilla camp near the Lebanese port of Tyre during the night, killing "several" guerrillas and returning safely to base, the Israeli command said today.

Provincial authorities in Lebanon reported three guerrillas and three civilians killed and seven people wounded. Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization claimed the raiders were driven off and Israeli shelling killed a Palestinian civilian and wounded five others.

The Israeli command said naval vessels put the raiding party ashore north of Tyre, which is eight miles north of the Lebanese-Israeli border. It said in addition to the guerrillas killed, Palestinian vehicles were destroyed. No other details were given.

A PLO communique issued in Beirut said the Israeli commandos, in eight rubber dinghies, tried to land near the Rashidieh refugee camp and the towns of Ras el-Ein and Chabriha.

The statement said the raiders were supported by helicopter gunships and a warship.

"Our forces intercepted the raiders and opened up with all types of weapons, forcing the enemy to pull back to the open sea after a one-hour battle," the communique said.

It said Israeli missile boats later fired rockets into the refugee camp, where more than 14,000 Palestinians live, and coastal artillery answered the attack.

It was the eighth Israeli strike at guerrillas in Lebanon this year and the first ground attack since Feb. 23. On March 2, Israeli planes attacked a Palestinian base near Tyre. Five days later, two guerrillas were captured trying to fly into Israel aboard hang gliders.

The PLO and the Lebanese government reported 44 Palestinians and Lebanese killed in the seven previous attacks.

A Note Before Shooting

MCDONOUGH, Ga. (AP) — Jerry Banks, freed after six years on death row, left a note asking relatives to "forgive me" before he critically wounded his wife and killed himself, authorities say.

Banks, 29, and his wife, Virginia, were found Sunday in the front yard of a relative's home in nearby Stockbridge.

Authorities ruled Monday that Banks died of self-inflicted gunshot wounds. Mrs. Banks was in critical condition at a local hospital.

Attorney Wade Crumbley said his client was despondent because his wife had filed for divorce earlier this month.

Banks was twice sentenced to death for the 1974 slayings of a high school band leader and a 19-year-old woman. The convictions were overturned by the Georgia Supreme Court. Banks was to stand trial a third time Jan. 5, but prosecutors dropped the case when testimony by a key witness was discredited.

Colorado Joins Takeover List

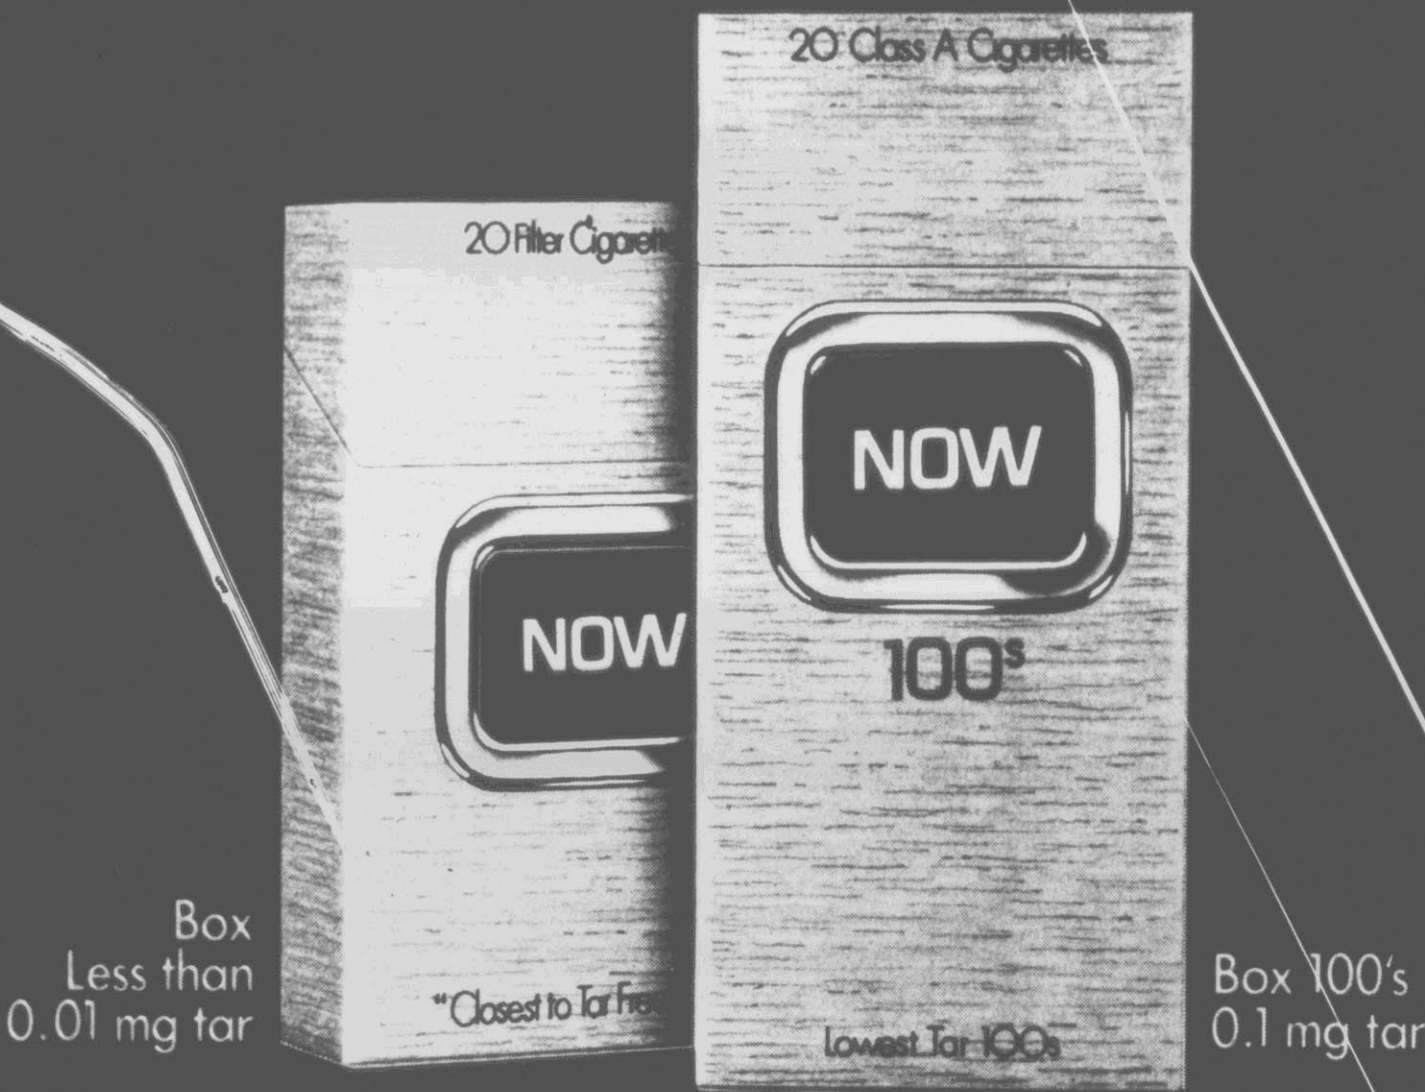

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Senate has voted overwhelmingly to join the Sagebrush Rebellion, giving final approval to a bill proposing a state takeover of 22 million acres of federal land.

The measure, which now goes to the House, cleared the Senate on a 25-to-9 vote Monday.
