Cheered News President Shot

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — English was the last class of the day for 16 seventh graders at Tulsa Central Academy. Just before dismissal, the principal came on the intercom and told them President Reagan had been shot.

About 10 of the students cheered. "I was dumbfounded. I didn't know what to do," said John Zannini, their teacher. "Here were these kids cheering that the president had been shot. I didn't know what to say."

He checked around and found that some students in the eighth grade had reacted the same way.

Teacher Lynn Morris was out of her room when the announcement was made but returned to find her eighth-graders discussing it.

"Three or four were laughing about it. They asked me if he (President Reagan) was dead. When I said no, that he was doing well, they snapped their fingers and said 'shucks,'" she said.

"I was stunned, shocked."

Mrs. Morris said the students responded to her reaction and made sarcastic comments such as, "Oh, she really thinks we're cold-hearted, doesn't she?"

"They didn't seem to care at all that someone could be dying," she said. "It was like TV to them. It didn't seem real."

Principal Tom Hayes said, "When I made the announcement, I tried to make it as soft as possible. I told them the president had been injured but that he was doing well. I told them that three others had also been shot."

Zannini said he thinks it has to do with the violence children see daily on television.

"The teachers told me, and I agree, that they felt it came from an insensitivity to violence that has built up over a long exposure to television," Hayes said.

He suggested it came as a result of not understanding violence and from an immature response of the children.

"The kids basically do not reason like adults," he said. "They hear criticism at home and transfer that dislike to a person."

"The lack of respect for any kind of government is transferring to the kids."

Budget Limitations Are Begun By School Board

Freezing salary supplements to the superintendent, assistant superintendent, associate superintendents, and various supervisors at the present level, the Pitt County Board of Education made their first move last night towards cutbacks in the 1981-82 current expense budget. The action came in a special workshop session.

The freeze, called for in a motion by Jack Edwards, will not decrease salaries.

Affected personnel will receive the five percent state salary increase but their supplement will remain at the 1980-81 rate.

"I just think this is one way we can show the commissioners we are serious about saving money in one area because we desperately need it in another," said Edwards. No figures indicating how much money is involved are available.

The freeze will not affect teachers' supplements, predetermined by education and seniority. "We are not interested in freezing teacher supplements," added Edwards, "which are already set in advance by policy."

The teacher supplements cost the board an estimated $17,000 above the amount budgeted this year, prompting the board to add this (Please turn to Page 2)

Hospital Room Now New 'Oval Office'

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-spirited President Reagan, turning his hospital room into a temporary Oval Office, is described as ready to take charge in any emergency while he recovers from an assassination attempt that sources said may have been planned to gain the attention of a young actress.

Various sources said John W. Hinckley Jr., 25, the man accused of shooting the president, described his plans in an unmailed letter to 18-year-old actress Jodie Foster and said, "I'm going to do it for you." Miss Foster starred in a movie about a plot to kill a political candidate, and congressional and Justice Department sources said the letter indicated Hinckley was "infatuated" with her.

Reagan, meanwhile, was reported recovering "extremely well" from the gunshot wound to his chest, and White House counselor Edwin Meese III said the president would begin receiving his daily national security briefing today at George Washington University Hospital. He met with his top aides Tuesday.

At the White House, it was business as usual.

"The government did not skip a beat," deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Tuesday.

"It's just as if the president were here in the Oval Office the way the White House is running," added Michael K. Deaver, the White House deputy chief of staff.

Vice President George Bush was pinch-hitting on the ceremonial duties of the presidency following Monday's assassination attempt, but the White House made it clear that Reagan is still in charge. Bush said, "It's business as usual to the best we can do it."

"He is the president of the United States and actually signed a bill this morning," Bush said.

Meese, interviewed on the Public Broadcasting System, stressed that Reagan "had his full faculties" when he signed the legislation, which repealed increases in dairy price supports, and that he was ready to take charge in any emergency.

Reagan continues to make all policy decisions and Bush may give orders to help implement them, Meese said.

Communications equipment was installed at the hospital shortly after Reagan arrived Monday. His appointments secretary, David C. Fischer, set up an office in a nearby room.

Reagan sat up in bed Tuesday, read newspapers, visited with his family and aides and joked with his nurses.

He also met with the triumvirate of his administration: Meese, chief of staff James A. Baker III and Deaver.

He signed the dairy-subsidy legislation on his breakfast tray, ordered Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. to go ahead with a trip to the Middle East on Friday and gave permission for the Academy Awards to use a video-taped speech he had made several weeks ago.

Meese said he did not know yet whether Reagan would be moved to another hospital or remain at George Washington until he's ready to return to the White House.

Meese said doctors were "astounded" at Reagan's progress. Dr. Dennis O'Leary, dean for clinical affairs at George Washington University Hospital, said the president could be walking in the next couple days, out of the hospital in a week or two, and on a horse — his favorite pastime — in a couple months.

Reagan learned for the first time Tuesday that his press secretary, James S. Brady, had been shot in the head, and that two law officers also had been injured.

"Oh damn. Oh damn," the president exclaimed when he was told a bullet had entered Brady's brain. His eyes brimmed with tears.

White House chief of staff James A. Baker III told reporters it was "incredible" that Brady had survived. Doctors said Tuesday that Brady's chance of recovery was good, possibly without severe mental or physical impairment, although he remained in critical condition.

Eastern Carolina Arts Festival Starting Today

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Chances are that April 1, 1981 will become a landmark date in the history of Pitt County. Today, the first Eastern Carolina Arts Festival gets underway. Between now and Sunday evening, April 16, an array of activities of visual and performing arts will be offered to area people morning, noon and night.

This 16 day long celebration will involve singers, painters, writers, instrumentalists, dancers, clowns, sculptors, filmmakers, choral groups — young and old, amateur and professional, local and out of area talent, in festival offerings that should tempt people to hurry through completion of income tax forms and to take a vacation from television fare to see, hear and enjoy "the real thing."

Grifton's long-running, annual Shad Festival has the honor of being the focal point for the festival kick-off, with local tale spinners competing in the folksy "Fishy Tale Contest." That is to take place at 8 p.m. tonight in the Grifton School cafeteria.

Then, on Thursday and Friday, the early days of the festival will feature a performance for children by the North Carolina Opera company at 10 a.m. in Ayden Grammar School; with Friday's main event to be a 10 a.m. Friday performance by the Greenville City Schools String Concert at Greenville Middle School. In Grifton's School Auditorium on Friday, the Shad Queen Pageant will begin at 8 p.m.

Also on Friday, local and area literary talent — Ovid Pierce, Charles Whedbee, Tom Forbes, Sue Ellen Bridges, Joyce Proctor Beamon and Mebane Holloman Burgwyn will be honored at Joyner Library (with the absence of veteran children's novelist Nell Wise Wechter due to ill health).

Saturday, April 4 is the date that the festival will get into the full steam ahead stage. From ten in the morning until six in the afternoon, history and architecture fanciers can tour historic homes in Greenville. At the Shad Festival, craft and art shows, a museum open house, face painting, a parade, and two full hours of clogging and square dancing will keep viewers entertained from ten in the morning until four in the afternoon.

Sunday, April 5 is Greenville's first day of multiple events, with a reception for an art show at Gray Gallery, a choral society concert, and Greenville's own Billy Taylor returning for an jazz concert in Wright along with ECU jazz talent.

Then, for 11 days, from Monday, April 6 through Thursday, April 16, the word is a non-stop round of entertainment.

The talent to be seen and heard will include notables such as Metropolitan Opera baritone John Reardon and violinist Sidney Harth, and the North Carolina Symphony lead flautist, Martha Aarons, all on the ECU campus.

Musical talent, faculty and student performers of the School of Music, ECU, as well as community and elementary and high school music makers will be in evidence in concerts (Please turn to Page 2)

Hinckley Described His Plans To Young Actress

WASHINGTON (AP) — An infatuated John W. Hinckley Jr., accused of shooting Ronald Reagan, described his desperate plans and said "I'm going to do it for you" in a letter to a teen-age actress who starred in a movie about a plot to kill a political candidate, sources say.

The letter, written to 18-year-old actress Jodie Foster but never mailed, was quite specific about Hinckley's plans and reflected an "I-don't-care-what-happens-to-me" frame of mind, the sources said.

The letter was described by four congressional and Justice Department sources, who refused to be identified. Congressional leaders were briefed Tuesday about facts in the case by Attorney General William French Smith.

Miss Foster played a pre-teen prostitute in "Taxi Driver," a film about a New York cab driver who is fascinated by guns, revolted by rampant pornography in the city and plans to assassinate a Senate candidate.

Two sources said authorities were aware of a second Hinckley letter, and one source said that letter had been mailed but declined to say to whom.

NBC News, however, quoted federal agents in Connecticut as saying that Miss Foster told them she had received several love letters from Hinckley in recent months. The network also said pictures of the actress were found in Hinckley's wallet. Federal authorities in Connecticut and Washington declined to comment on the report.

$17,000 to the $133,000 already requested for 1981-82.

In addition, Edwards suggested that the county delete the $44,000 proposed for purchase of library books for 1981-82 only. "I'm wondering if we can eliminate the $44,000 just for one year without hurting our programs," he said. "This would be another way of showing them (the county commissioners) we're serious about cutting back."

"We should keep this in mind in case of an emergency," he continued. "I feel it is an area we could cut without drastically hurting what we have."

Assistant Sup't. of Instruction Kathryn Lewis concurred with Edwards, saying, "I am not suggesting that we do this, but I feel it is something we could live with." No action was taken by the board.

The 1981-82 Community Schools budget, totaling $107,995, was approved by the board. The budget, presented by coordinator Alice Keene, calls for $81,807 in county appropriations, $26,188 from the state, and $11,749 from other sources.

The budget requests $16,000 for capital outlay, $3,500 for equipment, $5,500 for instructional supplies, $15,000 for contractual services, $5,000 for travel and the rest for fixed expenses such as social security, salaries, etc.

The 1981-82 food service budget was reviewed by the board but no action was taken. The budget, according to food services director Donna Ware, reflects the needs of the service if the proposed Reagan cuts are implemented. "In light of Reagan's proposed budget cuts," she told board members, "which total over one-half of the child nutrition programs budget, this budget is a realistic one if the current guidelines and requirements are left unchanged."

The food services budget totals $1,917,160.27.

A short overview of the Title I budget was also made, but no action was initiated. This budget must return to the state, and explained Sup't. Ott Alford, the program's future is uncertain at the point. The board tentatively agreed to shave $100,000 from Title I funds, but not until the budget is returned to them.

Limits College Program

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The college of business administration at the University of Texas has gotten too big for its facilities. So President Peter Flawn has ordered a limit on new students in the program.

More than 25 percent of the university's 43,000 students are in the business program, and Flawn says classes are overcrowded and teachers overworked.

Jones and East Show Concern

WASHINGTON, D. C. — "Like all Americans, I am quite delighted that President Reagan is doing so well, and I'm deeply thankful that his life was spared," N. C. First District Congressman Walter B. Jones commented Tuesday afternoon.

Jones said the assassination attempt "will very likely again raise the question of a gun control act. There are many who feel that there is no capability of controlling hand guns and Saturday night guns. I feel the assassination attempt will again bring out the division of opinion among lawmakers about this matter."

Jones added, "My own conviction is that we must uphold the constitutional right of citizens to own arms to protect themselves and their homes. At the same time, I think that legislation can be enacted that would provide for proper registration and control of firearms. Then, if a person is found in illegal possession of a fire arm, I would favor a stiff penalty, something like a prison term of 15 to 20 years for an offender."

"On legislation of this nature I would be willing to take a favorable stand."

Jones reiterated his pleasure "that our president seems to be well on the road to recovery and will soon be able to resume his full duties."

Sen. John East, a long-time political supporter of the President, said, "It was indeed fortunate for our nation that Pres. Reagan's life was spared in Monday's attack. Mr. Reagan is a truly great president, and never has our nation needed his leadership more."

The State's junior senator continued, "We are thankful that he is now safe and recovering well from the attempt on his life."

"I want to wish Mrs. Reagan well. We are thinking of her. She is a remarkable and courageous lady and I know this has been a most difficult time for her and her family."

As for White House Press Secretary Jim Brady, the Secret Service agent and the Washington police officer who were shot, East said, "We are praying for their full and speedy recovery."

Art lovers can select from shows at Gray Gallery and the Greenville Museum of Art, a special art show at Burroughs Wellcome, crafts and arts from Martin County in the Belk Building downtown, exhibits, demonstration, lectures and color slides by members of fiber, embroider and ceramic guilds and craftsmen on campus and at the mall downtown.

Drama fanciers can catch the final dinner theater performances (through Saturday) of "And Miss Rearden Drinks a Little," plan to attend the work of a master, William Shakespeare, on campus or the first public workshop presentation of plays by Greenville's own playwright Christine Rusch.

Vote Against

WASHINGTON (AP) — The specter of a protracted strike looms over the nation's soft-coal industry after miners scorned a proposed contract that would have paid them up to $111 a day and ended one of their shortest walkouts in years.

Union officials, who had supported the agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, said rank-and-file members voted against the offer Tuesday by a 2-to-1 margin. Three-fourths of the ballots were counted.

Eldon Callen, the UMW's chief spokesman, said that with about 102,600 votes tallied from almost 160,000 miners, there were 68,937 votes against the settlement and 32,299 in favor of it. Callen said no more figures would be released until late votes were reported from Western and Midwestern districts.

UMW President Sam Church reportedly was unwilling to concede defeat. But Church, having just returned from the coalfields, was unavailable for comment.

But Callen said of the contract: "It doesn't look like it will pass."

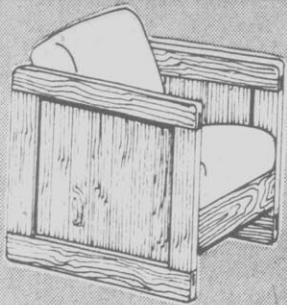

Church, who avoided reporters after vote totals were reported, had warned that rejection of the contract will assure a long strike. While Callen tried to underplay the likelihood of a lengthy walkout, union officials in the coal fields agreed with Church's prognosis.

"It certainly is going to mean a fairly long strike to say the least," said Cecil Roberts, vice president of UMW District 17, one of the union's largest.

"It would probably take at least another month or so to get another agreement put together," Roberts said.

In a last-ditch campaign swing across the country to endorse the contract, Church quoted B.R. Brown — chief negotiator for the coal operators — as saying, "If you vote it down, call me back in two or three weeks."

Initial industry comment seemed almost resigned.

Mom Grieves Over Broken Romance

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My son went steady with a wonderful girl for four months. (I'll call her Janie.) They broke up right after Christmas. While they were going together, I grew to love her like a daughter. Janie lived 45 miles away and spent many weekends at our home. She was so perfect for our son, I prayed that one day she would be my very own daughter-in-law.

Well, for some reason unknown to me, they stopped dating. My son started dating another girl, and I understand that Janie is now going with another fellow. I miss her terribly and, of course, she doesn't call me anymore. Abby, believe me when I tell you that I loved that girl so much that this is simply killing me! I suppose I should be grateful that my son isn't grieving the way I am, but it's as though I actually lost a daughter. I am suffering a very deep depression. I cry about it until I'm weak. I can't stand it. Abby, I'm making myself sick over this. Please help me.

LOST A DAUGHTER

DEAR LOST: I can understand your disappointment, but you apparently assumed that your son's little romance with Janie was far more serious than it was. Be grateful that your son isn't grieving. If your depression persists, please seek professional help. Your suffering is gravely disproportionate to your loss.

DEAR ABBY: I'm over 21 and so is he. We've been seeing each other for the last four weeks and have become very, very close. I wear braces on my teeth and have good dental hygiene.

The problem is that although we've been intimate several times, he hasn't once kissed me on the mouth! This takes away from an otherwise great romantic relationship. This also makes me very angry with him. I asked him why he won't kiss me and he wouldn't answer. What do you think?

MISSING KISSING

DEAR MISSING: Your braces are probably responsible for your kissless relationship. (Braces have been known to cut the lips if too much pressure is brought to bear.) Don't pressure him. After your braces come off, you'll have the answer.

DEAR ABBY: Peace and all good things! I am a nun writing in desperation, hoping that you have a charitable solution to a most annoying problem.

Threat To Democracy

President Reagan has been wounded in a shooting that occurred as he was leaving the Washington Hilton Hotel where he had just spoken Monday.

His Press Secretary James S. Brody, a Secret Service agent and a Washington policeman were wounded by gun shots fired by a man who was quickly taken into custody by law enforcement officers.

Initial reports were that the president was not injured in the shooting. He was quickly shoved by Secret Service agents into the presidential limousine and rushed from the scene.

Later there was concern as it was announced the president was grazed on the chest by a bullet. Then it was announced that he was hit in the chest and the bullet was still in him. Concern was growing nationally during the afternoon about the president.

Now it appears that the president is doing well and will recover fully to resume his duties. We are horrified to think, though, how close some crazed gunman has come to taking the life of the man who the majority of Americans felt was best qualified to lead our nation.

It has happened far too often in our nation's short history. It is perhaps the ultimate threat to the democratic processes.

Protection Is The Best

In all the turmoil surrounding the presidential assassination attempt on Monday it should not be forgotten that brave Secret Service agents and other law enforcement officers put their lives on the line to protect the president.

Pictures of the shooting scene show the agents reacted quickly to protect the president and, indeed probably saved his life by their quick actions.

It is their job, of course, to provide protection, but there is no amount of money that can entice anyone to risk his own life. That has to be done out of devotion to duty.

If there has to be some kind of open season for crackpots to shoot at the president, it is comforting to know there are those who are giving their best efforts to protect him.

RALEIGH — Staff of the North Carolina Agency for Public Telecommunications and the board of directors chaired by Charles H. Crutchfield of Charlotte, longtime guiding force behind WBTV have put together a comprehensive set of possibilities for programming when The N.C. Co-Op goes on the air.

No firm commitments are possible at this early date, but talks have been held and verbal agreements reached with a number of public and private broadcast people to pull together the million-dollar program to produce and distribute a variety of public service programs. Final word is awaited this spring on a federal grant of more than $600,000 to launch the enterprise.

A production studio in downtown Raleigh with cameras and editing facilities along with a working agreement to use the N.C. State University public television studio for larger jobs — field production units to handle live remote coverage of events and to tape projects for later broadcast — and a statewide satellite-ground station-cable system linkup are included.

Really Public

This, say proponents, is "public television" at its purest. The university system and the Public Broadcasting System have gone more into entertainment, cultural, and informational programming. A genuine public TV and radio network designed for North Carolinians and used by North Carolinians is the aim of the new approach which, in this early stage, is being dubbed The Co-Op.

What would be on the air? "Electronic Town Hall" could give live coverage of major meetings of boards and commissions such as those in transportation, education, education, utilities, goals and policies, etc. Sessions of the General Assembly and committees, interviews and news conferences involving major officials, and other unedited coverage of governmental action.

From the Math and Science High School at Durham, from the School of the Arts in Winston, from the Governor's Schools or other special interest locations, master teachers could demonstrate to classroom teachers and parents across the state their techniques and philosophies at work.

Two-way satellite hookups could link students and teachers in North Carolina with families or schools in foreign countries so that foreign language and cultural studies could come alive.

Special programs to help the handicapped, farmers, rural residents, the elderly, prison inmates and so on could be aired.

As UNC television network gets more into non-educational programming, the public network could carry instructional video and audio materials for school use.

Two-Way Talk

Statewide teleconferences with participants able to communicate with one another over the air could make training sessions, press conferences, administrative hearings, and seminars possible at con-

Other Editors Say It's How We Cut

(Washington Daily News)

This state cannot cut down old Joe and allow Jim to get by unscathed. The budget cuts must be for everybody and everybody must be called upon to make the proper sacrifices.

How we cut is extremely important, and the proposal to cut down on the Primary Reading program in grades one through three pains us deeply. We very conscientiously feel that too many boys and girls are sent up now to higher grades and do poorly, even becoming dropouts, because they have never learned to read.

To cut back on the reading program may save $35 million a year, but it will also lower the educational quality of our schools, we feel.

Education must bear its fair share of the budget cutting. There are other places more practical, we feel, to cut back than on any reading programs. We consider the proper teaching of reading in those early formative years to be absolutely essential.

We believe that many boys and girls in later grades do poorly in English, in history, in economics, and in just about every academic course because they have just never learned to read. Had they been adequately taught to read early in life, the closing years of high school, academically speaking, would be so much smoother.

Perhaps teachers do not understand; but we can look more kindly upon the proposal to cut down from 14 to seven the number of days teachers go to school for workdays and without pupils to teach.

We can understand cutting down on the number of aides teachers normally have. And cutting down on the number automatically will increase the load for the teachers. But as we view the full picture, we realize that if we are faced with the mandate to cut back six percent, some cuts must absolutely be made somewhere.

We can better understand the cut in administrative help that has been proposed, if we compare the proposal with that of cutting back on reading programs.

Education is our most important challenge to our children. If we fail them in the field of education, we have also failed them in the realm of opportunity in later life. In fact, if they cannot read properly, we have failed to help them achieve their proper potential now and in the pursuit of life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness in later years.

Cut back six percent in education if we must. But let that six percent fall somewhere else except on the very important primary reading program. Reading is just too important to "monkey" with.

Strength For Today

ALL WORK TOGETHER

One hundred and seventy-five years ago, Lyman Beecher, an outstanding evangelist, began his career as a minister. He was soon known everywhere as an inspiring preacher. Hundreds of people were led to repentance by his message.

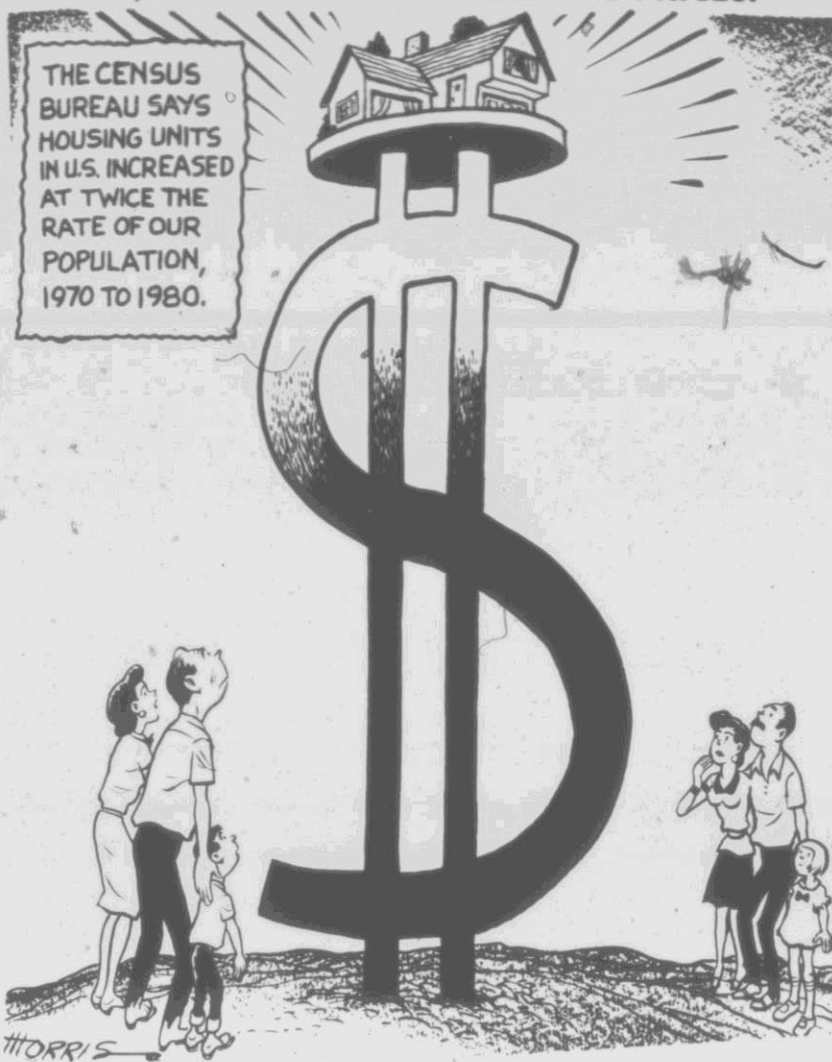

But often he puzzled his newly-made converts by inquiring about their habits of daily living. Many who came to him wanting to confess their sins were asked about their patterns of eating and sleeping. Beecher was sure that some people who came to him for relief from a sense of sin were really suffering from what we would call today neuroses resulting from some irregularity in physical habits.

In other words, Beecher recognized the close connection between physical, mental and spiritual states. A sick body could not only make a sick mind, but also a sick soul.

Body affects mind, and mind affects soul. Every part of us is linked to every other part of us. — Elisha Douglass

Third Theory Emerges

The battle being waged in the schools has pitted the Creationists (those who believe the Bible's version of how man appeared on Earth), and the Darwinists, who claim that man walked out of the sea millions and millions of years ago and eventually developed into the human being that we know today.

But there is a third theory which combines the two, and this one should also be taught in the schools.

Professor Heinrich Ap-

plebaum has been researching it for years and here is what he has come up with:

"I believe God did create Adam, and then made Eve from one of his ribs, but I can't buy the story of why they were driven out of the Garden of Eden."

ART BUCHWALD

"What do you think happened?"

"Well, Adam and Eve were living happily in the Garden when some geologists came along and suspected there was oil under it. They recommended that some test wells be drilled. Adam protested that the Garden of Eden was a perfect paradise, and oil companies would destroy it if they started putting up rigs on the property. Adam pointed out that God had set aside Eden as a place where man and woman could commune with nature. He said he would take them to court if they tried to drill on it."

The oil companies took their case to the secretary of the Interior, who was charged with protecting public lands.

He accused Adam of being an environmentalist and trying to stop the human race from developing its natural resources.

"We can't just let the oil sit there under the ground to protect a Garden which only two people are using," he said on Meet the Press. "Our job is to see that we use our natural resources for the benefit of all mankind. Besides, I have no intention of giving permission to the oil companies to drill all over the Garden. I'm setting 20 percent of the land aside for drilling, and the rest will be kept in its present natural state."

Adam complained to God, who said, "The oil lobby is much more powerful than I am. There isn't anything I can do to stop them."

The Interior Department auctioned off the leases, and it turned out there was not only oil but gas on the land.

The next people to apply for permission to dig were the coal companies. The secretary of Interior decided to let them go ahead, despite

To the editor:

There are so many points of contention in Stuart Savage's recent front page article concerning the consumption of alcohol by area teenagers that it is impossible to discuss them all in a letter of this nature. Therefore, I will concentrate only on the more obvious points of concern.

Without a doubt, the headline painted a false picture not only of the contents of the article itself, but also of what goes on at Rose High School. To state that beer and whiskey flow freely at Rose is a falsehood and projects to the public a negative image of Rose students, faculty and staff. I can conclude only two possible explanations from this type of headline: Either the Reflector took a "cheap shot" at Rose or inept journalism prevailed. In my opinion, "The Daily Reflector" owes an apology to the staff and students of Rose High School.

Secondly, to draw such profound conclusions about the community based on the opinions of a limited sampling is questionable and seems unfair to the students who do not drink and to those who have done so on an experimental basis only. Clearly all responsible adults want to do all that is possible to combat and reduce the use of illegal drugs and alcohol among our youth. However, it does not seem to me that sensationalized and misrepresentative headlines suit this purpose.

Finally, the good and positive accomplishments of our students so often ignored in the media certainly warrant front page attention. For too long local news reporting has tended to obscure the fact that J. H. Rose High School is a fine school with many excellent staff members and high quality young people.

To the editor:

As a 17-year-old junior at Rose High whose family recently had a similar experience to the one which appeared in your March 26 edition, "Strangers Stop To Aid A Collapsed Pedestrian," I would like to take this opportunity to point out how fortunate the residents of Greenville are to live in a city where people care about one another.

I moved to Greenville when I was two years old and watched it grow as I grew. At times it seemed we both suffered from growing pain, but Greenville, a Christian community, of which I am proud to be a part, has managed to keep a very important part of every person's life, "love for thy neighbor."

Wherever my life may lead, I hope to practice what I have learned from the people here. Thanks again for caring, and let's keep up the good work!

In my opinion, your headline in Sunday's newspaper was disturbing in many ways. When I first read the headline, Beer, Whiskey Flow Freely at Rose, I was shocked and disbelieving. But when I read the article and realized that the headline was totally untrue, then I became angry.

There are many people who will only read the headline and never read the article. Since the article was continued on another page, many people will never read the last sentence which states that there is no problem with drinking at Rose High.

Is this responsible reporting? Did such an article deserve to be the lead article of the day? The faculty, students and parents of Rose High are due an apology.

To the editor:

A feeling of resentment ran high Monday morning before the tardy bell rang at Rose High School. As the day progressed it continued. Students and faculty were upset and hurt by an article which appeared on the front page of The Daily Reflector, "Beer, Whiskey Flow Freely at Rose."

My respect for Mr. Stuart Savage has diminished somewhat. The headline is deliberately misleading. The implication of the headline is that there is plenty of beer and whiskey to be found at Rose High School during school hours on any school day. This headline would be more fitting for the Enquirer than The Daily Reflector.

It appears that Mr. Savage was trying to point out a major problem — teenage drinking. No one denies this is a problem; but why Rose High School in such a pointed manner? Why such a cheap shot?

Thriffs Attack Money Market

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The thrift industry has begun an offensive against high-interest money market mutual funds, accompanied by warnings of grave economic problems unless such funds are more closely regulated.

The industry, made up of savings and loan associations and savings banks, claims the so-called MMMFs have drained from them many scores of millions of dollars which they would have used to support housing.

They seek to bring the MMMFs under closer regulation, including limits on the amount of interest MMMFs can offer to purchasers, and forcing them to maintain reserves similar to those required of banks.

In a list of accusations, the thrifts claim MMMFs worsen inflation, undermine housing, threaten homeowner equities, deprive local businesses of funds and make long-range planning almost impossible.

The thrift industry claims the MMMF threat to local economies results from their draining hundreds of millions of dollars from small communities to big-city and overseas banks.

In the seven weeks that ended March 18, the savings associations say they lost $591 million of deposits. Meanwhile, MMMF assets have surged to $110 billion from $75 billion last December and $10 billion in 1978.

High rates paid by funds also adds to the demand for short-term money, said William B. O'Connell, executive vice president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, and thus helps "accelerate inflation and impede the Federal Reserve's efforts to contain it."

In fact, he said in an interview Friday, "by creating so many financial problems, the funds threaten to undermine the new administration's entire anti-inflation strategy."

He and others say withdrawals from thrifts as a result of higher rates offered by MMMFs are depriving the housing market of mortgage money at a time of potentially great need, since members of the post-World War Two baby boom are now reaching the prime home-buying ages.

"Every homeowner has a stake in money being available for housing," he said, warning that continued shortages of mortgage money could destroy the housing market and cause existing equities to shrink.

He and Paul A. Schosberg, president of the Savings Association League of New York State, conceded that the basic problems were inflation and economic uncertainty, and said that until these are reduced the thrift industry wouldn't be able to meet demand. For the next few months at least, said O'Connell, mortgage money will be "very, very tight."

Asked why thrifts don't seek higher rates for depositors, O'Connell replied that such a course "would only make matters worse by pushing mortgage rates higher and aggravating the current heavy ressure on thrift institutions' earnings."

Instead, he, Schosberg and other thrift officials seek to restrain the MMMF activity through a three-point program they hope will be considered by the House Banking Subcommittee on Domestic Monetary Policy, which begins hearings on MMMFs April 8.

They seek to subject the MMMFs to the same interest-rate limitations that now govern money market savings certificates at all depository institutions, such as savings associations and banks.

Next, they would extend general reserve requirements to the funds which, said O'Connell, "would make them part of the monetary policy system and provide greater stability and safety for shareholders."

Finally, they would require the funds to invest a portion of assets in short-term U.S. government securities, "to help fight inflation and reduce the cost of federal borrowing."

Such a portfolio, O'Connell claimed, would reduce MMMF yields and reduce also the potential for major savings losses at thrifts, as well as lowering Treasury bill rates by increasing demand for them.

"That in turn would reduce the institutions' cost of money market certificates and also have a modest benefit in helping efforts to bring the federal budget into balance."

Asked about the alternative of seeking higher rates on interest paid by thrifts, O'Connell said it would "only make matters worse by pushing mortgage rates higher and aggravating the current heavy pressure on thrift institutions' earnings."

What is needed, he and Schosberg said repeatedly, is a return to a noninflationary environment that would encourage people to save. They indicated they might seek approval to offer tax-shelter, with the tax savings to grow the longer the money was left on deposit.

In order to support housing, said Schosberg, "we have to have a pool of predictable funds," not "hot money going in one door and out the next." What exists, he said, is only "a pool of uncertainty."

to 90 and nine-tenths percent of the students in high school drink or have drunk alcoholic beverages. Later in the article less specific percentages are used because no one has any definite figures. In fact, as far as figures are concerned, this is mere supposition.

I would hope that Mr. Savage and all who deal with teenagers know that this age group likes to "shock" the establishment. Teenagers are inclined to exaggerate for this purpose and for their own importance.

Unfortunately, the damage has been done. Few people will read the last line of "Beer, Whiskey Flow Freely at Rose." Many students will be saddled with an undeserved reputation.

C. B. West

To the editor:

I would like to express the animosity that is now "flowing freely" through J. H. Rose High School. The article that appeared on the front page of Sunday's Daily Reflector (March 29) has stirred up a great deal of emotion among students and teachers alike.

The popular opinion about this article is that it was extremely biased. To begin with, the headline which read, "Beer and Whiskey Flow Freely at Rose," implied that students drink during school hours while at school. This idea is an untruth based on no facts. As a Senior at Rose, I can honestly report that I have never witnessed the partaking of alcoholic beverages at school.

As for the eight to ten parties a week that the article stated were given by Rose High students, I am positive that any parent could testify that there is no feasible way eight to ten parties a week could even be given. I feel that I generally know what is going on socially, and I have never known an occasion in which there were more than two parties on the weekend. (I never remember any during the week.)

I feel it is very unfair for a newspaper to exploit high school students in such an unreasonable way. I found no facts in this article which was based on hearsay and opinion. There is no denying that drinking does go on among high school students, some of whom are 18 and of legal drinking age, but these false percentages and false accusations are unreasonable.

J. H. Rose High School is one of the top academic high schools in the state, but in order to maintain this standing, the school needs the support of the community. A slanted article such as this one does not support the school in any way. I would like to add that I generally accept the articles in the Daily Reflector as truthful, but I now doubt that I will ever trust what is written in my own local paper again.

Kerri Warner
Senior

To the editor:

Every year students in my senior English class here at Rose discuss media censorship. I share with them rather forcefully my personal conviction that freedom of the press is a first ideal we must protect in order to preserve those things we value most about American life. Together, we generally conclude that surely the news agencies will not grossly abuse our sacred trust that they stand as honorable reporters of truth.

The Reflector's top front page story Sunday, Mar. 29, is a harsh violation of the principles of good journalism. The headline says that we consume alcoholic beverages freely here at Rose. The story it heads does nothing to support such an allegation. You have betrayed me and my interest in the eternal word as news of truth and you have betrayed the students and their interest in the same thing. You have also betrayed the general public which looks to you for an impartial rendition of the facts.

If it is the intention of the Reflector to persist in what has often appeared to be a campaign against the whole City School System, you would do well not to use the students as libeled pawns in a type of news coverage that can only do harm to the good things that do exist.

The students here are especially bright, beautiful and good for the times. I have wished to send mine out to support and protect the good things I have hoped you stand for. The majority of them will probably go out as believers in humanity, regardless of how you handle the ideal. Some time before they leave us in June, I hope you will find words to print an affirmation about the powerful gifts of the young to face life knowing that as Plato's Socrates said, "No evil can happen to a good man."

Anne W. Nelson

To the editor:

After reading Ms. Keel's letter in Sunday's Forum, I feel it is my duty to set the record straight concerning my comments on the food stamp program. First of all, I was misquoted by Ms. Keel. I did not say that people don't need food stamps because they drive new cars. The reporter asked me over the telephone if I had seen any apparent abuse of the program. My answer was yes, noting that, although I could not prove it, I had seen abuse. I went on to say that I have seen people using food stamps get into new cars. All I said was what I have observed in the past.

I am proud to say that my father, Durward Harris Sr., was the first groceryman in Pitt County to go to the county commissioners some years ago to get the food stamp program started in Pitt County for the needy. But he and I both feel that there has been some abuse in the program.

Finally, let me say that Harris Super Markets gladly accept food stamps and will always do so as long as they are available. But we will also strive to eliminate any abuse that we see in order to keep funds available for the truly needy people of our community; not the greedy ones. I hereby stand by my convictions and hope I have not offended anyone.

For many years I have defended the Daily Reflector when friends have called it the Daily Neglector, the Daily Rejector, the Daily Dejector, but after Sunday's headline, "Beer, Whiskey Flow Freely at Rose," I have a name of my own, the Daily Enquirer.

What a sensational, misleading headline based on an interview with six Rose High students and one juvenile officer who says himself that his information is based on what kids tell him.

The headline infers that a beer and whiskey river flow down the halls of J. H. Rose High School daily. Maybe we do have a severe alcohol consumption problem in the Greenville area, but why such a sensational headline, condemning Rose High School campus? Why not address the alcohol problem of young people in the Greenville area? Don't condemn students and a school with your headlines!

N.C. House OKs Compromise On Sentencing Law

By W.A. WERONKA JR.
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state House pushed through a compromise bill Tuesday that would make substantive changes in the uniform criminal sentencing law scheduled to take effect this month.

The original law was passed during the 1979 session of the General Assembly and was strongly supported by Gov. Jim Hunt.

The action came on a day that saw legislators in both chambers react to the attempted assassination of President Reagan with comments and prayer.

The effective date of the uniform sentencing law was pushed back several times by legislators, the last time to April 15 to allow more time for consideration of a Senate bill that was introduced to amend the law.

But the House Judiciary I Committee had concerns over the Senate bill and substantially amended it before taking it to the House floor for a vote. House members admitted that the end result was not what everyone wanted but it was a good compromise. And Hunt even praised the House action Tuesday.

"The House showed very strong commitment to fairness and to effectively deterring crime in North Carolina," Hunt said. "I believe the amendments ... strengthen the Fair Sentencing Act. I urge the Senate to act swiftly in concurring with the amendments."

The law categorizes and prescribes presumed sentences for felony convictions. Judges could alter the sentence but would have to state the reasons for their decision.

The House committee amended the Senate bill by reducing the prescribed sentences for five of the 10 categories of felonies by 25 percent and allowing plea bargaining arrangements for sentences to stand.

The committee's changes also allow the defendant the right of appeal if the sentence levied is greater than the prescribed sentence, and postpones the effective date until July 1.

Committee chairman Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, said the sentences were reduced because of the committee's concern "that the sentences in the current law would add to the prison population," which was already overflowing.

He added that the committee was assured by state officials that the altered sentences would not add to the population.

"We didn't get all we wanted and the governor didn't get all he wanted," said Rep. George Hux, D-Hallifax, one of the instigators of the changes.

"I want to separate the fair sentencing bill from this bill. I feel that's a bad bill. These amendments make a bad bill less bad. This is a compromise...."

In other legislative action:

Parties

The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill changing the requirements for establishment of a new political party in North Carolina.

The bill sponsored by Rep. Al Adams, D-Raleigh, would require that persons signing a petition supporting the certification of a new political party would have their voter registration changed to become members of that party once it is officially certified.

Under the bill, a party would be certified after gaining the signatures of 5,000 persons, at least 200 of whom were each from four different congressional districts.

The bill was approved on a 94-5 vote.

Savings and Loans

The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill that would change state tax laws as they apply to savings and loans, reducing the taxes they pay by allowing them to be taxed the same as corporations.

The bill had been sent back to the House Finance Committee last month in order for the House to maintain control over it until the state revenue picture became clearer. But the bill's sponsor, Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Kinston, said the Senate had a companion bill that had passed its finance committee and was being held in the Senate Ways and Means Committee. He said that is probably where the House bill would end up until the Senate was ready to give it final consideration.

The bill was amended before it was approved to delay its effective date until 1982. Lilley said it would cost the state about $7 million a year.

Transportation

The joint House-Senate Base Budget Appropriations Committee reviewed the proposed 1981-83 Transportation Department budget, and a member of the legislative fiscal research staff explained that Highway Fund revenues, which come from gasoline taxes, are expected to be $20 million less than estimated in the budget. For the first eight months of the current fiscal year, Highway Fund revenues are down by 4.9 percent.

Testimony

A bill that would allow spouses to testify against each other in criminal trials appeared to move forward in the House Judiciary I Committee.

Several members expressed support for the bill and two amendments were adopted.

Eight Named To Advisory Council

Gov. Jim Hunt has named eight area women to the Pitt County Treatment Facility for Women Advisory Council.

Six of the appointees are Greenville women, including: Sister Jane Paris of St. Gabriel's School; Freddy Jacobson of WOOW radio; Pearlina Felder, an employee with the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center; Sandra Walton, a mental health nurse therapist; Grace Carraway, chairman of the Home Economics Department at Rose High School; and Betsy H. Lee, a school psychologist with the Pitt County schools system.

Also named were Willie Mae Carney of Bethel, an employee in the personnel department at Burroughs Wellcome Co. here, and Mariem House of Grifton, a volunteer at REAL House Crisis Center.

The council serves as a liaison between the treatment facility and the community and helps in the recruiting and training of volunteers to work in the facility, the governor's office reported.

There is no admission charged for "An Evening of Dance," and the public is invited to attend. A reception will be held following the performance.

Washington Sets Dance Program

WASHINGTON — "An Evening of Dance" featuring the Dance Repertory of New Bern, N.C., with a guest appearance by the East Carolina Dance Theater, will be presented at the Washington High School at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 4. The event is sponsored by the Beaufort County Arts Council.

Dolores Clifford, founder and artistic director of Dance Repertory, was formerly a soloist for the Arts Festival Ballet Company and has performed with various civic companies.

The company's 25 dancers include teachers from area studios and advanced students from East Carolina University. Several of the dancers have appeared as guest artists or soloist for other companies.

The East Carolina Dance Theater consists of dance majors within the Department of Speech and Drama. The Dance Theater dances took part in the Southeastern Regional American School of the Arts in Winston-Salem this spring, and will be performing in informal productions and lecture-demonstrations for the East Carolina Arts Festival in Greenville later in April.

Dance faculty members at ECU are Patricia Pertalion, Petrus van Muyden, Paula Johnson and Patricia Weeks.

High Stakes Economics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of the Reagan economic program say it will cut inflation in half by 1984, spur savings and launch new business activity.

Opponents expect price surges, a consumer spending boom and higher interest rates that can only dampen business activity.

Both are looking at the same evidence, but through decidedly different lenses.

President Reagan's proposal for a 30 percent cut in tax rates, even with sharp federal spending reductions, is bound to give people more money to spend on appliances, cars, restaurant meals and bubble gum. Reagan's critics say that will mean more demand and thus higher inflation.

A big increase in military spending will only worsen the inflationary pressures, they say, recounting what happened in the late 1960s at the height of the Vietnam War.

In addition, the Federal Reserve — with Reagan's blessing — has promised to reduce the supply of money and credit. As a result, the critics say, interest rates will remain high and companies won't be able to produce fast enough to keep up with rising demand.

"Instead of holding consumption down to make room for more investment, the Reagan administration is going to be raising consumption and pre-empting the funds that should go for investment," says Lester Thurow, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology economist who helped design the 1964 tax cut proposed by President John F. Kennedy and adopted after his death.

Three leading private forecasting firms, all considered "demand-oriented" as opposed to the pro-Reagan "supply-siders" have put Reagan's program through their complex computers. They predict continued budget deficits and more inflation.

"The proposed tax changes will no doubt stimulate investment and productivity to some extent," says Robert Gough, vice president of Data Resources Inc. "But the magnitude of these 'supply side' effects will be much smaller than the increase in demand, especially in the first few years."

"In the short run, therefore, the proposed tax cuts will frustrate the attempt to reduce inflation," Gough says.

Paul Craig Roberts, Reagan's designated assistant treasury secretary, says these traditional, demand-oriented economists are missing the point.

How a taxpayer uses his initial tax savings is virtually irrelevant, says Roberts. "They can burn it or spend it," he says, so long as they are motivated to make — and then save — more money in the future.

Today, says Roberts, many workers choose an hour of leisure instead of an hour of overtime because each extra dollar earned yields less after-tax income. This is because more pay pushes the worker into a higher tax bracket.

A 30 percent reduction in their tax rate will knock these workers back out of high brackets. For example, a middle-income family that pays 37 cents in taxes on the last dollar it earns would pay only 27 cents three years later under Reagan's plan.

Roberts foresees people saving two to three cents more of each dollar earned, a big improvement over today's near-record low.

"For savings to increase as much as Reagan expects, people's inflationary expectations will have to be broken very fast," says Gough.

Paul Wachtel, a New York University economist, says the administration's claims make sense. Yet, he said, "the real danger here is that nobody has a true idea of exactly how the tax cuts will stimulate savings."

"Most studies show that changing tax rates have very little impact on the supply of labor," says Lawrence

Chimerine, chairman of Chase Econometrics Associates. He predicts many people actually will work less when their tax burden declines because "they can maintain their prior income with less work effort."

Jerry Hausman, an MIT economist, calculates that the loss of tax revenues from a 30 percent tax-rate cut will far offset gains in the labor supply.

Reagan's budget director, David Stockman, has attacked these analyses recently, saying that "demand-oriented" economists are unable or unwilling to envision how the administration's program will alter people's behavior.

Stockman says they believe the "most drastic policy change in postwar history — unprecedented spending cuts, deep supply-side reductions, extensive regulatory relief — will register on the economy like a falling tree in an empty forest. No sound or impact."

JAYCEE'S CONTRIBUTION — Mike Joyner (left), president of the Greenville Jaycees, presents a check for $7,666.66 to Chet Emerson, executive director of the Pitt-Greenville Boys' Club. The check is an installment on a $25,000 pledge to the Boys' Club made by the Greenville Jaycees in 1979. The money is helping in the construction of the new Boys' Club building on Arlington Boulevard, which is due for completion in late May. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Nazi Chief Quits Post

By TOM MINEHART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Citing "intense persecution" of American Nazis and saying his party will go underground, Harold Covington has resigned as president of the National Socialist Party of America.

Covington, 27, claimed that the arrests of six Nazis in Greensboro, N.C., last month on bomb conspiracy charges and the arrest of John Warnock Hinckley Jr., 25, on a charge of trying to assassinate President Reagan show that the federal government is "going to try to ban the Nazis, then going to try to ban guns. We're coming into a period of intense persecution."

Hinckley was a Nazi for three to four months during 1979, Covington said. Michael Allen of Chicago, president-elect of the organization, said Hinckley was dismissed because he espoused violence.

Covington said there are no longer any ties between the party and the president's accused assailant.

"John Hinckley has had no association with the NSPA for almost two years, and his actions certainly do not represent the policies of the party. But John Hinckley is a sign of the times," Covington said.

Covington said he is "just paranoid enough" to suspect that Hinckley was working for the government.

"It just doesn't add up," he said. "(Hinckley) isn't stupid. Why would he use a junk gun like a .22-caliber pistol when going after big game like the president?"

"Maybe he didn't mean to kill anyone. Maybe he was trying to discredit the party," Covington added.

He said he and Hinckley, who lived in Lubbock, Texas, never met but that they had talked by telephone and exchanged letters. Covington said he did not save any of the letters.

"He and I discussed at some length why the party could not engage in armed violence at the moment," Covington said. "For some people, we're just not militant enough. They want to go wage war for the white race, but they find we're not their cup of tea and they move on."

Covington said the March 2 indictment of six Nazis in Asheville shows that "the Reagan administration is not playing by the rules."

The six Nazis are charged with plotting to bomb a shopping mall, a section of downtown Greensboro, a fertilizer plant and an oil storage facility outside the city. The plot was to have been carried out if guilty verdicts were handed down in last year's trial of six American Nazis and Ku Klux Klansmen in Greensboro.

The Klansmen and Nazis were acquitted of murder in the shooting deaths of five anti-Klan demonstrators, and there were no bombings.

SHOWING HIS PIECE — Former Nazi Party leader Harold Covington shows reporters his "Charter 44 Bulldog Son of Sam Special" while talking about his resignation as President of the National Socialist Party of America. (AP Laserphoto)

"We had a contingency plan after Greensboro," Covington said. "We're just going to fade into the shadows because of the harassment and infiltration."

Covington derided the arrest of the six Nazis on the Greensboro conspiracy charges as being based on a "complete fabrication" and "absurd."

"We're not going to do anything illegal," he said. "We're just going to urge our members to spend as much money as they can on weapons. We want to be ready." Pointing to infiltration of the Nazis by an agent of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms before the Klan-Nazi shootout in Greensboro, Covington said, "Going underground will stop the infiltration. From now on, you don't join the Nazis. We join you."

Covington said he will remain with the Nazis in the role of a spokesman for party philosophy.

Henny's Joke For April 1

NEW YORK (AP) — "Do you know I've been in love with the same woman 45 years? If my wife finds out she'll kill me," quips Henny Youngman as Dial-A-Joke celebrates its seventh birthday on April Fool's Day.

The popular stand-up comic also was the first to record his joke when New York Telephone Co. started Dial-A-Joke in 1974.

Since then, about 61 million callers have dialed the service in New York City;

CONFERENCE SITE BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Representatives of police unions from throughout Western Europe are holding a five-day conference on terrorism at the Europa Hotel.

Buffalo, N.Y.; Detroit, and Philadelphia to hear a different comedian in the weekly joke rotation, the telephone company said.

Youngman's first

Dial-A-Joke: "Fella walks into a doctor. Doctor says, 'You're gonna live to be 60.' He says, 'I am 60.' Doctor says, 'See, what did I tell you.'"

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pushed ahead today, extending the rally that began on Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 4.24 to 1,008.11 in the first half hour.

Gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said investors continued to be heartened by President Reagan's rapid recovery from the attempt on his life Monday afternoon.

In a television interview this morning, James Baker, the White House chief of staff, said the events of the past few days "on balance perhaps will be helpful to clearing the administration's economic program through Congress."

Brokers said the market also was responding to declining interest rates. Several banks today lowered their prime lending rates from 17 1/2 to 17 per cent.

Early Big Board prices included K mart, up 1/4 at 19 1/2; LTV, unchanged at 24 1/2; and Gulf Oil, up 1/4 at 35 3/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 11.71 to 1,003.87.

Advances outnumbered declines by close to a 3-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 50.98 million shares, against 33.50 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .91 to 78.27.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 3.95 at 360.60.

Copper Penny Fated To Fade

WASHINGTON (AP) — The penny offered for your thoughts one day won't be made of copper, according to the Treasury Department.

Starting in 1982 and continuing for a long period, the department will start coining pennies containing 97.6 percent zinc and 2.4 percent copper instead of the alloy of 95 percent copper and 5 percent zinc now used. Treasurer Angela Marie Buchanan told a House subcommittee on Tuesday.

The change, which does not require legislation, will save production costs and keep speculators from melting pennies for the copper. When copper costs $1.50 a pound, it pays to melt pennies, and the price touched $1.43 recently before settling back to about 90 cents, she said.

Zinc, which was used to make the 1943 pennies because of the wartime copper shortage, has never cost more than 42 cents a pound, she said.

Richardson's HR Lifts Knights Past Rampants, 6-57th-Inning Grand Slam Fells Rose

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
ROCKY MOUNT — Greenville Rose coach Ronald Vincent seemed to have all the aces going into the bottom of the seventh and gambled that Northern Nash was without one.

The Knights, however, had one ace left unplayed — Carl Richardson. Trailing 5-2 with one out in the seventh, the Knights loaded the bases on two walks and an infield hit. The Knights' then played their ace.

Richardson, a stocky 5-11 junior, hit a thunderous shot over the rightfield fence and when he struggled through his joyous teammates to touch home plate the Knights had come away with a stunning 6-5 victory over the Rampants Tuesday afternoon in a Division I Conference opener for both teams.

"What a way to lose," said a shocked Vincent afterwards.

"What a way to lose."

Indeed, Going into the seventh the Rampants appeared ready to win their sixth straight. Not only did Rose have a three-run lead but the Knights three scheduled hitters — the #8, #9 and #1 batters — had one hit between them off Rose lefthander Scott Galloway.

Galloway, who appeared to be tiring in the sixth, got Tony Thomas to fly to center to lead off the seventh. Nothing went right after that.

Galloway proceeded to throw eight straight balls and walk Kevin Payne and leadoff hitter Thomas Mabry.

With righthanders Roger Williams and Gordon Douglas warming up, Vincent went to the mound to talk to Galloway. When the discussion was over, Vincent returned to the dugout and Galloway stayed on the mound.

Pitching carefully, Galloway induced Doug Hammitt to hit a slow grounder between the pitcher's mound and first base. Both Galloway and first baseman Bill Kittrell went for the ball and when Galloway picked it up there was no one covering first. Even worse, the Knights had the bases loaded with their best hitter coming up.

Had the Rampants gotten the out first base would have been open and Vincent could have intentionally walked Richardson had he wanted to. Now, he had little choice.

In his first at bat, Richardson had slammed two long drives foul which, had they been fair, would have been home runs. This time he straightened the drive out.

With a 1-0 count, Richardson connected solidly and the drive easily cleared the rightfield fence for a grand slam and gave the Knights their fifth win in six games.

"It was a fastball," Rose catcher Emmett Walsh said. "He was trying to get ahead of him with the first pitch and then the second one got into his wheel house and he hit it."

"He was due," Northern Nash coach Donnie Weaver said. "He had been hitting them off the end of the bat all day and even this time he didn't get all of it."

He got more than enough for Vincent and the Rampants, who dropped their first game of the season in five outings despite outplaying the Knights for much of the game.

"We outplayed them and we're a much better ballclub than they are," Vincent said. "But we got in trouble in the seventh with the two walks to their ninth place hitter and their leadoff man."

"They hadn't done a lot of damage against Galloway today and I thought he'd be able to get them out. I thought about taking him out but I wanted him to pitch to (Richardson)."

"They had two lefthanders coming up and we had only righthanders (warming up). And he (Richardson) had hit both Roger (Williams) and Gordon (Douglas) well in junior high."

The grand slam overshadowed the Rose hitting performance against Northern Nash ace lefthander Bruce Ellis. The Rampants managed eight hits against Ellis, who in three previous victories this season pitched two one-hitters and one two-hitter. Ellis struck out six and walked four yesterday.

"Bruce hasn't had any team hit him like that," Weaver said. "They can hit the ball." "Ellis is as good a pitcher as there is around here," Vincent said. "He's one of the best in the area, if not the best, and there aren't a whole lot like him. Or at least I hope not."

The Rampants, coming off a 2-30 win over D.H. Conley, wasted little time in greeting Ellis. With one gone in the first, Mark Douglas walked, stole second and scored on Mitch Brann's single to give Rose a 1-0 lead.

Northern Nash tied it in the second when Ellis scored on Tony Thomas' sacrifice fly. The Knights took the lead two innings later.

Phillip Sikes doubled to lead off the fourth, went to third on a ground out and scored on a wild pitch, giving the Knights a 2-1 lead.

Rose had just three hits up to that point but the Rampants rallied for three runs in the fifth to regain the lead.

With one out and Paul MacMillan on second and Tom Bue at first, Mark Douglas doubled over the centerfield fence to score MacMillan and tie the game. Brann, who was two for three and had three RBIs, followed with a single to score both Bue and Douglas and the Rampants led, 5-2.

It stayed that way until Richardson's seventh-inning swat left the Knights victorious and the Rampants stunned.

East Carolina Sweeps ACC

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WILSON — Led by two fine pitching efforts by Bobby Patterson and Bill Wilder, and a five-hit attack by John Hallow, East Carolina captured a doubleheader from Atlantic Christian last night. The Pirates won the first game, 5-2, then came back to sweep the second, 12-1.

The twin victories ran the East Carolina record to 14-5 on the season.

Wilder, now 4-2, hurled the first game, getting hit hard at times, but pitching well enough to get past. He struck out ten batters, while walking two and allowing seven hits.

Patterson, who upped his record to 2-0, had an outstanding effort in the second game, giving up just three hits, and only one of those came prior to the seventh and final inning of the game. He fanned nine and walked none.

Hallow, who got all five of his hits in the second game, drove in six runs all together, and had three singles, a triple and a home run.

Mike Sorrell had four hits for the night, two in each game.

"We had two fine pitching efforts tonight," Coach Hal Baird said. "Patterson had a very strong game, and although Bill pitched well, they were looking for the good stuff. If he had been a little wilder, no pun intended," Baird laughed, "he might have been more effective."

Baird also praised the second game effort of Hallow, calling it a super performance. "We needed a game like this second one. I wanted a couple of wins to get us started on this road trip. I hope we can use it for the start of a little streak."

Patterson, who had soared along with a no-hitter the first three innings, gave up a bunt single in the fourth that might possibly have been played. David Lawhon dropped a fast liner down the third base line, and third sacker Todd Hendley elected to allow the ball to roll foul rather than make a play on it. But the ball walked the chalk line until it bumped into third, and by then Lawhon was safely on first.

Only one other batter reached first earlier, on an error.

But in the seventh, Patterson was tagged for a run. With one down, Tim Hardison, who had come first from Williamston High School to East Carolina, but then transferred to ACC, stroked a triple to deep center. He scored when Mike Burgess followed with a single to right.

"I think Bobby got a little tired in the seventh inning," Baird said. "But we just didn't want to use any other pitchers with the string of games we've got coming up."

Bullets Defeat Bear Grass, 2-1

JAMESVILLE — Matthew Moore scored on an error in the fifth inning to break a 1-1 tie and send Jamesville past Bear Grass, 2-1, Tuesday night in a hard-fought Tobacco Belt Conference baseball game.

The Bullets, now 6-2 overall and in the league, jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first but the Bears tied the game with a run in the fourth. Jamesville then pushed across what proved to be the winning run in the fifth.

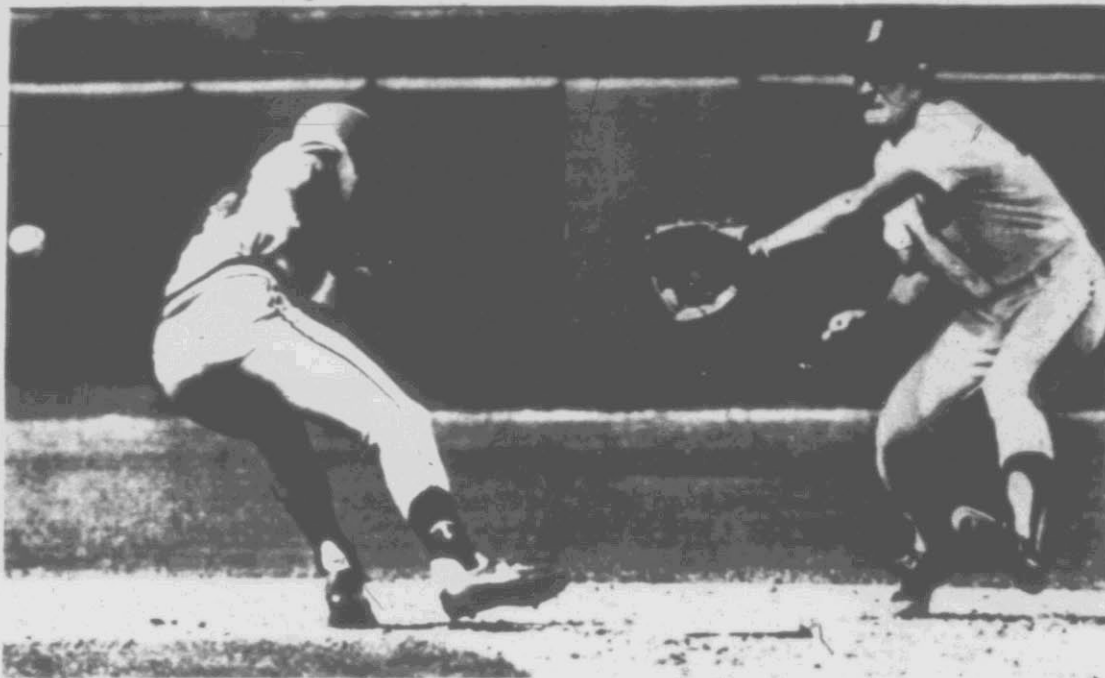

Jeff Rogers reached on a fielder's choice and then Moore, running for Rogers, subsequently stole second and third. He scored when Tommy Fortenberry, on first with a walk, stole second and the throw got away from the second baseman.

In the first, Carl Ange singled — the Bears only hit of the day off William Roberson. Matthew Moore, running for Ange, stole second and third, his third and fourth steals of the day. Greg Sullivan then walked and when he stole second Moore came home on the throw.

The Bears tied the game in the fourth when Roberson tripped and scored on Clay Gardner's double.

Bear Grass, now 6-2 overall and in the league, travels to Manteo Friday. Jamesville plays host to Chocowinity Friday.

Chargers Down Hawks; Now 4-0 In League Race

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton's Terry Locust went two-for-two, including a double, and drove in three runs to lead the Chargers to a 9-7 decision over North Lenoir Tuesday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

The Chargers scored twice in the first, four times in the second and added single runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings to capture the win, their fifth without a loss in league play. A-G is 6-3 overall.

Trailing 4-2 going into the bottom of the second, Ayden-Grifton rallied for four runs. Doug Coley singled and scored on Chris Strickland's double. Locust followed with a double to score Strickland.

Chuck Smithwick then singled and stole second before Tyrone Gay singled to score both Strickland and Smithwick. The Hawks tied the game with two runs in the fourth but the Chargers regained the lead in the bottom of the inning when Bernard Riccarelli, on third after a single and a stolen base, scored on Locust's single.

North Lenoir again tied the game in the top of the fifth but A-G took the lead for good in the bottom of the inning. Brandt Allen singled, stole second and moved to third on an error. He subsequently scored on Art Rouse's sacrifice fly to centerfield.

Ayden-Grifton added an insurance run in the sixth when Locust's sacrifice fly scored Strickland, who had singled and moved to third on Riccarelli's single earlier.

Allen led the Chargers with three hits in three at bats. Strickland, Riccarelli, Gay all had two hits for Ayden-Grifton. Strickland had a double among his two hits.

ECU Shuts Out Spartans Twice

East Carolina University's women swept aside UNC Greensboro yesterday in two shutout victories. The Lady Pirates took the first game of the doubleheader, 8-0, then came back to capture a 12-0 win in the second contest.

In the first game, East Carolina scored single runs in the first and second innings, then added another in the fourth. Three more scored in the fifth, and two in the sixth.

Lydia Rountree led the East Carolina hitting in the contest, going two for three.

Angie Humphrey hurled the win, her 10th in 11 decisions, allowing only two hits by Greensboro.

In the second contest, which was halted after five innings, Jeanette Roth hurled a one-hit victory, running her record to 11-1. Roth also led the Pirate hitting with two in three trips. Shirley Brown had an equal afternoon.

East Carolina pushed over eight first inning runs in the second game to put the game on ice. They added three in the second and one in the fourth to wrap it up.

Now 21-2, the Pirates return to action today, hosting N.C. State in a doubleheader at 3 p.m.

Bulls, 76ers Capture Openers

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The streaking Chicago Bulls and the rebounding Philadelphia 76ers have drawn first blood in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Bulls, who won their final eight games of the regular season, racked up victory No. 9 Tuesday night by beating the New York Knicks 90-80 as Ricky Sobers scored 18 points and Artis Gilmore grabbed 16 rebounds and blocked seven shots.

The 76ers, shaking off the disappointment of their season-ending loss at Boston which cost them the division title, overpowered the Indiana Pacers 124-108 behind 32 points by Julius Erving and 10 points apiece by Darryl Dawkins and Bobby Jones.

Today the playoff focus shifts West as the other two best-of-three mini-series get under way with Houston at Los Angeles and Kansas City at Portland.

The Bulls fell behind 24-12 after a dreadful first quarter but recovered and shut down the Knicks' running game as Gilmore anchored a staunch defensive effort. The 12 points were the fewest scored by the Knicks all season.

"We made an extra-special effort to stop them on defense," said Gilmore. "At first our guys were tight but then we relaxed, executed on offense and played good defense."

Chicago closed to within 40-35 at halftime, then Gilmore and David Greenwood teamed to lead a 17-5 spurt starting the third quarter that put the Bulls ahead to stay. Greenwood, who had just two points in the first half, scored 11 points in that surge and Gilmore blocked three shots.

"Coach told me I was not taking my jumpers," said Greenwood. "He told me to go out and assert myself and I did."

That spurt put Chicago in front 52-45. The Bulls led by 10 early in the fourth quarter, saw the Knicks draw within three at 72-69 with 4:30 to go but put New York away with six straight points by Dwight Jones.

Greenwood finished with 17 points, Jones 16 and Gilmore 13. Ray Williams led New York with 19 points and Russell scored 17.

Philadelphia outscored Indiana 16-6 in the final 3:13 of the first quarter to lead 38-33, then broke the game wide open with a 16-4 spurt to start the second period for a 54-37 advantage.

Indiana, making its first playoff appearance in five NBA seasons, pulled within 10 points three times in the second half but could come no closer.

"The defense was the big difference tonight," said Bobby

Jones. "We played smart basketball, helping each other out and double-teaming. Indiana has a lot of shooters and can get hot quickly."

Pacers forward Mike Bantom says his club was outmanned.

"Philadelphia has tremendous depth," he said. "They have four forwards and they get the ball inside."

Billy Knight led the Pacers with 25 points and Bantom had 19.

Chicago will have the home-court advantage when it tries to wrap up its first-round series against the Knicks Friday night, while Philadelphia will try for a sweep at Indiana Thursday night.

Los Angeles begins its quest to become the first team to successfully defend an NBA championship since the 1968-69 Boston Celtics against Houston, which comes into the mini-series loose and free-wheeling.

"If the Lakers lose to us, they would catch a lot of criticism," observed Rockets guard Mike Dunleavy. "That's the meaning of pressure. We're in a position where we can just go in and take our best shot."

Although the Lakers compiled a 54-28 record, Los Angeles' season was disrupted by the injury to guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who missed 45 games because of torn knee cartilage.

"We're certainly entering the playoffs from a different vantage point," said Lakers Coach Paul Westhead. "Last year we were divisional champions and were perfectly programmed. Our team was more settled and our starting unit was intact."

"We haven't had that advantage this season."

The series features a matchup of premier centers — six-time Most Valuable Player award winner Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Lakers and rebounding champion Moses Malone of the Rockets.

Injuries could play a factor in the Portland-Houston series.

Guard Jim Paxson, Portland's leading scorer at 17 points per game, reinjured a foot while walking across the practice floor Monday. Trainer Ron Culp said Paxson suffered a pinched nerve surrounding the joint behind his big toe.

"It's sore and it's going to be sore for awhile," said Culp. "But he should be playable."

Billy Ray Bates, the Blazers' explosive reserve guard, aggravated an injury to his right knee in the regular-season finale Sunday but expects to play. Playmaker Kelvin Ransey and forward Calvin Natt also had been bothered by injuries, but both were expected to be back at full strength by tonight's tipoff.

Kansas City, meanwhile, will be without playmaker Phil Ford and the Kings say it is "very unlikely" he will play at all in the series. Ford is suffering from blurred vision after being poked in the eye in a Feb. 22 game against Golden State.

Tigers Beaten, 2-0

WASHINGTON — Junior David Tyson struck out nine and scattered six hits to lead Washington to a 2-0 win over Williamston Tuesday afternoon in a Northeastern Conference baseball game.

The Tigers, who were led by Tony Rogers two hits and Tim Hines' double, had runners on second and third with two outs in the seventh but Tyson, now 2-0, struck out James Clemmons to end the game.

Clemmons also went the distance on the mound against Washington and pitched well. He struck out four, walked two and allowed only two hits for the Tigers, who drop to 1-5 overall and 0-3 in the league.

Washington is now 5-1 overall and 2-1 in the league.

Williamston plays host to Plymouth Friday.

Parnell's 2B Lifts Knights To Victory

John Parnell's double with none gone in the bottom of the seventh scored Joseph Sasser gave Greenville Christian a 4-3 victory over Goldsboro Christian Tuesday afternoon in a high school baseball game.

The Knights, in their opening game of the season, led 3-0 after three innings but Goldsboro rallied for three runs in the sixth to tie the game. Then, in the seventh, Parnell doubled to score Sasser, who had singled and stolen second earlier.

Parnell also went the distance on the mound for the Knights, striking out four and walking four. He also led an incredible running performance by Greenville Christian. The Knights stole 17 bases and Parnell led the way with three. Seven other players had two each.

Greenville Christian travels to Falls Road Friday.

Atlantic Christian came back with single runs in the fourth and fifth, both scored by Hardison — who scored all three of the ACC runs for the night. In the fourth, he led off with a double and scored after Baker singled and Chuck Downs doubled. In the fifth, he hit a solo home run.

East Carolina added two more runs in the seventh. With two away, both Mike Safe and Hendley walked, scoring when Smith tripled off the fence in deep center.

The Pirates started their scoring parade in the second game in the second inning. Hallow reached on an infield hit and moved up on a balk and two walks. He scored when Fitzgerald singled.

In the third, four runs crossed. Sorrell walked and moved up on a passed ball, scoring on Todd Evans' single. Hallow tripled in Evans and scored on a double steal after Hendley was hit by a pitch. Hendley scored on Smith's single.

In the fourth, three more runs scored. Sorrell reached on a fielder's choice and Evans on an error. Sage singled in one run and Hallow drove in the second. Smith reached on a bases loaded error to score Sage.

Two more crossed in the sixth, with Sage getting a hit before Hallow cracked his homer.

The final two came in the seventh. Robinette and Sorrell both walked and moved up on a long fly. A wild pitch scored Robinette, and Hallow's fifth hit brought in Sorrell.

Atlantic Christian is now 7-14 on the year.

East Carolina travels to N.C. State on Thursday, on to UNC-Charlotte on Friday, and back to Campbell on Saturday for a doubleheader. They face Old Dominion in Norfolk on Monday before returning home to face North Carolina on Tuesday.

Reds, Dodgers, Astros To Battle For West Crown

One in a Series
By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Know how close the Houston Astros came to winning the National League playoffs last year?

If Gary Woods hadn't left third base too soon, costing the Astros a vital run in the fourth game, Houston would have won the game in nine innings and the playoffs in four games instead of losing in 10 innings and five games, respectively, to the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Astros settled for the championship of the NL West despite losing J.R. Richard to a stroke and having to go without fellow right-hander Ken Forsch for a while. A 1981 return for Richard is still questionable.

Manager Bill Virdon isn't making any predictions but will say that the Astros "are a stronger club than we were a year ago," warning, however, "The entire Western Division is stronger."

To strengthen an already solid pitching staff, Houston traded third baseman Enos Cabell to San Francisco for Bob Knepper and signed Los Angeles' Don Sutton as a free agent. They join starters Joe Niekro, Nolan Ryan, Forsch and Vern Riffe, backed by Joe Sambito, Dave Smith and Frank LaCorte in a deep bullpen.

The Astros are built for their spacious Astrodome, a pitcher's paradise. They have little power, featuring instead a bunch of contact hitters who will run you to death. The base stealers include outfielders Cesar Cedeno, Jose Cruz and Terry Puhl and second baseman Rafael Landestoy.

The rest of the revamped infield will have Danny Heep at first, Craig Reynolds at short and Art Howe at third but the Astros will miss the leadership of Joe Morgan. Alan Ashby will handle the bulk of the catching, although newcomer Alan Knicely provides much more power.

"We have given you many things, except for one thing — a world championship. You shall have it in 1981," Los Angeles second baseman Davey Lopes promised faithful Angelinos at a luncheon in January. The Dodgers tied for the NL West title a year ago, losing a one-game division playoff to Houston.

To accomplish their goal, the Dodgers must stay healthy, something they haven't been able to do the last two years. The keys are right fielder Reggie Smith (shoulder), shortstop Bill Russell (finger) and relievers Terry Forster (elbow) and Don Stanhouse (back and shoulder). For insurance, in case Smith hasn't recovered from surgery, the Dodgers traded for Minnesota's Ken Landreaux this week.

Russell, Lopes, first baseman Steve Garvey and third baseman Ron Cey will comprise the infield for the eighth year in a row.

Garvey, Cey and outfielders Dusty Baker and, hopefully, Smith will try to make Los Angeles the best home run team in the league for the fifth consecutive year. The Dodgers also hope for more punch from their troika of catchers — Joe Ferguson, Steve Yeager and Mike Scioscia. Rudy Law should improve in center.

With Sutton gone, it will be up to Jerry Reuss, Bob Welch and Burt Hooton to pick up the slack, along with last year's sensational September rookie Fernando Valenzuela. With Rookie of the Year Steve Howe and Bob Castillo on hand, the bullpen will be loaded if Forster and Stanhouse return to their old form.

"Only one National League team had a better record than the Dodgers last season," Manager Tom Lasorda points out. "If we can stay healthy, we can pass them this season."

The Cincinnati Reds finished 3½ games out last year despite the assorted ailments of slugging left fielder George Foster, pitching ace Tom Seaver, shortstop Dave Concepcion and pitcher Paul Moskau, plus Johnny Bench's reduced work behind the plate. Bench has said he will now catch only two games a week.

Bench would like to unseat first baseman Dan Driessen, third baseman Ray Knight, Foster or Dave Collins, who moves from center to right with Ken Griffey going the other way. Second baseman Ron Oester, a coming star, rounds out the everyday lineup.

Seaver, Frank Pastore and Mario Soto give Manager John McNamara a solid threesome on the mound, and Tom Hume is a top-notch reliever.

Bobby Cox gave up a job as first base coach for George Steinbrenner in New York to become manager for the equally unpredictable Ted Turner in Atlanta. Turner spent a fortune on free agent outfielder Claudell Washington, then refused to yield to Gary Matthews' salary demands and shipped him to Philadelphia, opening an outfield job for rookie Terry Harper.

Bob Walk, who came to Atlanta in return for Matthews, could be a big man on a pitching staff threatened by creeping senility with 42-year-old Phil Niekro and Gaylord Perry in the rotation. John Montefusco and Tommy Boggs are other key starters. Rick Camp is a solid reliever.

Center fielder Dale Murphy, third baseman Bob Horner, first baseman Chris Chambliss and Washington will break down a few fences and second baseman Glenn Hubbard and shortstop Rafael Ramirez are an up-and-coming keystone combination.

San Francisco has a new manager in Frank Robinson while huge Frank Howard will try to whip the Padres into line. Joe Morgan has hooked on with the Giants, along with third baseman Enos Cabell, outfielder Jerry Martin and pitcher Doyle Alexander. Starters Vida Blue and Ed Whitson, plus a strong bullpen, will provide good pitching but the only Giant who really scares anyone at bat is right fielder Jack Clark.

The punchless Padres have even less with Dave Winfield gone. Howard will try to do it with speed and hungry youngsters like third baseman Luis Salazar, shortstop Ozzie Smith, catcher Terry Kennedy and outfielders Gene Richards, and Alan Wiggins, who stole a pro record 120 bases in the California League. Outfielders Ruppert Jones and Joe Lefebvre, acquired Tuesday from the Yankees in a six-player trade involving Jerry Mumphrey, also may help. Of the pitchers, only veteran John Curtis won as many as 10 games in the majors last year.

PREDICTION: Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Houston, Atlanta, San Francisco, San Diego.

SW Edgecombe Edges Rams

SNOW HILL — Southwest Edgecombe took advantage of nine errors and 12 walks by Greene Central to defeat the Rams, 5-4, Tuesday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

The Cougars scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth. Junior Bess singled, stole second and then went to third when the throw rolled into centerfield. Then, two outs later, Bess scored when catcher Eddie Johnson's attempted pickoff throw went into leftfield.

Southwest Edgecombe broke a scoreless tie in the fourth with four runs. With the bases loaded and two outs, Porky Proctor sent a shallow fly ball to center. Centerfielder Jesse Freeman attempted a shoe-string catch but the ball got by him, scoring three runs. Proctor later scored on a passed ball.

The Rams, however, countered with four runs of their own in the bottom of the inning. Freeman walked, moved to second on Ginn's single and to third when Tony Barrow walked.

After Freeman was forced out at home on Butch Brown's fielder's choice, Eddie Johnson and Marlowe Gilmore walked to force home two runs. Then, with two gone, David Shirley reached on an error by the third baseman to score both Brown and Johnson and tie the game.

Greene Central did not have anyone with more than one hit. Proctor led the Cougars, now 1-4 in the league, with two hits in three at bats. He also had two RBIs.

The pitching duo of Ronnie Tyndall and Larry Bryant, who came on in the fifth, combined for 10 strikeouts and 12 walks.

Woodard is the all-time leading scorer in women's college basketball with a four-year total of 3,649 points. Beginning as a freshman, her scoring averages were 25.2 points per game, 31.0, 23.8 and 24.5.

past Farmville Central, 7-4, Tuesday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

House's three-run homer in the first gave the Panthers a 3-1 lead they never lost. On base when House connected were Gregory Briley with a single and Quintin Dove with a walk.

North Pitt, now 5-3 overall and 3-3 in the league, saw its lead dwindle to one, 3-1, going into the bottom of the third but the Panthers answered the Jaguar challenge with two runs.

House walked, moved to second on Bob Hemingway's sacrifice bunt and scored on Jerry Simpson's triple. Simpson later scored on Richard Heller's single to give North Pitt a 5-2 lead.

Farmville cut the deficit to 5-4 with single runs in the fourth and fifth but single runs by North Pitt in the fifth and sixth sealed the victory.

Jeff Moore led Farmville with two hits in four trips to the plate. Gregory Briley was two for four for North Pitt.

'Ordinary People' Top Winner Of Oscar Awards

BEST OF THE BEST — Actor Robert De Niro and actress Sissy Spacek get together after presentation of their Oscars for best actor and best actress at the 53rd annual Academy Awards show in Los Angeles. De Niro won the Oscar for his role in "Raging Bull," and Miss Spacek won hers for portraying Loretta Lynn in "Coal Miner's Daughter." (AP Laserphoto)

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Oscar, a bit subdued this year, packed few surprises and spread his favor around a bit. The biggest winner — "Ordinary People," which was named best picture — took just four of Hollywood's Academy Awards.

Robert De Niro and Sissy Spacek were named best actor and actress, for their performances in "Raging Bull" and "Coal Miner's Daughter."

Major awards also went to two novices in "Ordinary People": director Robert Redford, a film star himself, and supporting actor Timothy Hutton.

"I will never act again," Redford joked backstage.

Hutton, who strongly resembles his father, the late actor Jim Hutton, said of his dad, "I wish he was here."

The movie's fourth award went to Alvin Sargent for screenplay adaptation.

Only one other movie, "Tess," took more than two awards. It won in three of the lesser-known craft categories: cinematography, art direction and costumes.

In years past, some films have garnered a fistful of awards. "Ben Hur" took 11 Oscars in 1951.

The 53rd Academy Awards presentation was not as electric as some past shows, probably due to the attack on President Reagan. The show was postponed from Monday after the assassination attempt, and it opened with a straight-faced Johnny Carson introducing a 2-week-old videotaped message from the president.

The Reagan assassination attempt came up again after the ceremony. De Niro, who won the best actor award for his portrayal of boxer Jake LaMotta, walked out of the interview room after repeatedly being asked about the possibility that a movie he starred in, "Taxi Driver," prompted the attempt on Reagan's life.

De Niro said he didn't want to discuss it. When a reporter continued to ask the question, De Niro became angry, curtly thanked everyone, and left.

John Hinckley Jr., who is accused of shooting the president, reportedly addressed a letter to actress Jodie Foster saying that he intended to kill Reagan. Miss Foster co-starred with De Niro in "Taxi Driver," in which there is a plot to assassinate a political figure.

Ms. Spacek was named best actress for her portrayal of down-home country girl Loretta Lynn in "Coal Miner's Daughter." Miss Lynn smiled in the audience.

The other major acting award of the Oscar ceremony, best supporting actress, went to Mary Steenburgen for her part in "Melvin and Howard."

"Melvin and Howard" could be considered the surprise of the Oscars. It was nominated in only three categories, but won two — Best Original Score and Best Original Song. They were the only other multiple winners in competitive categories.

"Raging Bull" added an editing award to De Niro's best actor award and "Fame" won for best original score and best original song. They were the only other multiple winners in competitive categories.

"Moscow Does Not Believe in Tears," from the Soviet Union, was named best foreign film.

A highlight of the ceremony at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion was a tumultuous greeting for Henry Fonda, the 75-year-old star who had never won an Oscar.

The crowd came to its feet as Fonda slowly walked onstage with the help of a cane. "This has been a very rewarding 46 years for me," Fonda said, "and this has got to be the climax."

We Nearly Lost Barney Miller To A 'Gesture'

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was "Barney Miller" episode No. 140 and the set was a mess. The set is always a mess, but this was more like a disaster. The show had been about some Hasidic Jews who went on a rampage and destroyed Capt. Miller's Greenwich Village precinct house.

Windows were smashed, doors were broken, desks upended. A typewriter sat in the middle of the floor, somehow lending absurdity to the disarray.

It was 8:20 p.m., last Thursday night, Bob Garon, who has worked as publicist for the show since it began, surveyed the scene and thought to himself, "My God, an atomic bomb has been dropped on this set."

No, the bomb had yet to drop. It came a few minutes later when Danny Arnold, creator and executive producer of the show, visited the set for the first time this year.

"Barney Miller" was over, Arnold told the cast and crew. He wanted the show to bow out, as "Mary Tyler Moore" had gone. Better mourned than scorned.

The cast and crew were stunned. Ron Carey, who plays little Officer Levitt, got in his car and just drove around for two hours. "It's like the merry-go-round was still going, and somebody just turned the switch off," Carey said. "We knew it could go around for another ride. Just one more ride."

Cheer up, Ron, Mr. Arnold has turned the switch back on. One more ride, on the house. Actually, the ride is really on ABC, which apparently persuaded Arnold to change his mind about the show.

It's said that ABC programming chief Tony Thomopoulos, not eager to lose a classy hit because some producer had altruistic notions of going out in style, insisted that "Barney Miller" return for at least one more season.

Others say that Thomopoulos is in no position to insist on another year, but that Arnold changed his mind because his business partners — including "Barney" star Hal Linden and the show's co-creator, Ted Flicker — wanted at least one more year.

Arnold would not comment on the matter. But as of Tuesday, it seems that "Barney Miller" will be back for one more season.

Arnold had assembled the cast three weeks earlier to tell them that producer-writer Tony Sheehan, who'd been the show's soul for four seasons, was quitting, burned out. Arnold said he'd try to find a replacement for Sheehan, but he only had three weeks before the players' contract options were up.

No replacement for Sheehan was found, prompting Arnold's dramatic visit to the set last Thursday.

It would have been missed. "Barney Miller" has been one of those rare TV sitcoms whose comedy is drawn from its characters, a wonderfully diverse but complimentary group who played off of one another the way Carl Yastremski played the left field wall at Fenway Park.

Hal Linden's Barney, controlled and coolly droll, is the show's center... Max Gail's Wojo, the lumbering innocent... Ron Glass, the natty novelist-in-waiting, Harris, Steve Landesberg as the dry-humored precinct savant, Detective Dietrich... the late Jack Soo, whose lean, affecting rendition of Detective Nick Yemana epitomized the economical method this show so effectively employs.

A glance, a word, a grimace...

There is something to be said for going out on top, as Arnold had wanted, but there's something to be said for good TV, too, and that is this:

We'll take another year, thank you.

Oscar Theft Is Suspected

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — An imposter may have made off with an Oscar for Best Animated Short at the 53rd Academy Awards, an Academy spokesman says.

Ferenc Rofusz' film "The Fly" won the Oscar, but the Academy isn't sure whether a man who accepted the award Tuesday night was the Hungarian producer.

Rofusz was not scheduled to attend the ceremonies at the Los Angeles Music Center. But just as presenters Alan Arkin and Margot Kidder were announcing that the Academy would accept for Rofusz, a bearded man bounded onto the stage.

The man made a short acceptance speech, posed for the obligatory photographs and left with the golden statuette.

There was no immediate confirmation that an Oscar had actually been stolen, but Academy spokesman Art Sarno said the possibility was being investigated.

Los Angeles police spokeswoman E. Cookson said the department had not been contacted by Academy officials about an Oscar theft.

"The Fly," a film by Pannonia of Budapest, won the best animated short over "All Nothing," produced by Frederic Back, and "History of the World in Three Minutes Flat," produced by Michael Mills.

N.C. Votes In Congress

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 19-25.

HOUSE COMMITTEE BUDGETS
— By a vote of 184 for and 225 against, the House rejected the more austere of two proposals for holding down the budgets of the 24 House committees. Most members voting for the measure were Republicans and most opponents were Democrats.

The rejected proposal sought to cut committee budgets by 10 percent of what the panels actually spent in 1980. The other, less-austere measure — adopted by a near-unanimous vote — reduced 1981 committee spending by 10 percent of what was authorized in 1980. Because authorizations are higher than money actually spent, the latter measure still permitted a six percent hike over 1980 committee spending levels.

The votes came during debate on H Res 115 which, as later approved, authorized about $39.6 million for 1981 committee budgets. Most of the money pays staff salaries.

Supporter Robert Michel, R-Ill., said "congressional committee staffing has increased at intolerable levels" without any accompanying increase in congressional productivity.

Opponent Frank Annunzio,

D-Ill., said "Congress must have adequate resources to do its work and the most vital part of our work is performed by our committees."

Members voting "nay" were opposed to a deeper cut in committee budgets.

Reps. Eugene Johnston, R-6, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and William Hendon, R-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, and W.C. Hefner, D-8, voted "nay."

Rep. Charles Rose, D-7, did not vote.

SENATE GRAIN EMBARGO — The Senate adopted, 58 for and 36 against, a resolution urging President Reagan to lift the embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union that former President Carter imposed last year in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. Reagan said during the campaign that he would end the embargo, but as President he has not followed through. The vote came during debate on S 509, the milk price supports bill (see vote below).

Supporter John Melcher, D-Mont., said "our farmers do not appreciate being singled out to serve as a pawn in a diplomatic chess game."

No senator spoke against the resolution, which is not binding on the president.

Although all senators voting "yea" wanted the embargo lifted, many of them were willing to settle for this advisory measure rather than a stand that might have forced the president's hand on the issue.

Sens. John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

MILK SUPPORTS — The Senate passed, 88 for and 5 against, and sent to the House a bill (S 509) cancelling the scheduled Apr. 1 hike in milk price supports. Supporters said this will save $147 million and keep the price of a gallon of milk from going up 8 cents.

Supporter Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., said "a vote for this legislation is not a vote in any way against the dairy farmers of this country." No opponents spoke against the bill.

Senators voting "yea" opposed hiking milk price supports Apr. 1.

Voting against the bill: Sens. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., Robert Kasten, R-Wisc., Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., William Proxmire, D-Wisc., and Robert Stafford, R-Vt.

Not voting: Sens. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., Russell Long, D-La., Richard Lugar, R-Ind., Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, and Harrison Williams, D-N.J.

Voting for: All other senators.

Students participating are as follows: algebra I: Alisha McLawhorn, Denise Robinson, and Kathy Vernelson — algebra II: Valerie Laney — geometry: Jennifer Collie, Sharon Dixon, and Brenda Mills.

ECU Professor Is On Board

Governor Jim Hunt today named Mary Ann Stone of Greenville to the N.C. State Hearing Aid Dealers and Fitters Board.

Stone is an assistant professor in the Department of Speech, Language and Auditory Pathology at East Carolina University. She is a member of the N.C. Speech, Hearing, and Language Association. Her term on the board will end September 24, 1982.

The board consists of seven members, all appointed by the Governor. The board licenses qualified hearing aid dealers.

CHAIRPERSONS
AYDEN — Stuart Tripp and Gil Davis have been appointed chairpersons for the annual "Wheels For Life" bike-a-thon in Ayden scheduled for April 25. The "Wheels For Life" event will benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

Trump Coup Tommy had been in his usual form—bidding recklessly and playing badly. The distributions had been rather flat, and had not afforded him the opportunity of displaying his rare genius—the ability to play like a world champion when trumps broke badly.

Sitting West was a visitor to the club. Having seen Tommy in action for the past hour, there was no way he possibly could suspect that Tommy possessed a peculiar talent, so when his opponents reached four spades in quick time, he must have felt that his ship had just come in. West's double was loud and clear.

West led the queen of hearts. That marked East with the ace, and made it obvious to Tommy that West must have doubled on a trump stack. His moment had arrived.

With nothing to guide declarer, the normal way to play the hand would be to take finesse in trumps and clubs. But armed with the knowledge that the trumps were on his left, Tommy displayed commendable technique.

He ruffed the opening heart lead in dummy, crossed to the ace of diamonds and ruffed another heart. Back to the king of diamonds for another heart ruff, and then the queen and jack of diamonds from dummy. When East discarded a heart on the fourth diamond, Tommy smiled quietly—he had read the hand correctly!

Tommy had discarded two clubs from his hand on the diamonds. Now he cashed the

Fooling Around

Today is April Fools' Day, so watch out! Your friends may make a fool of you. If they do, you will be keeping company with the hundreds of fools who have appeared in literature throughout the ages. Fools in literature are comical and often clown-like characters who fall below human standard in their behavior, intelligence, or appearance. However, quite often, the literary fool says or does something that is exceptionally truthful. Shakespeare was particularly fond of this kind of "wise fool." One of his most treasured is Touchstone, from As You Like It, who said, "The fool doth think he is wise, but the wise man knows himself to be a fool."

DO YOU KNOW—Who said, "You can't fool all of the people all the time?"

Road Clean-Up Program Set

RALEIGH—As part of its continuing effort to cut road maintenance costs, the North Carolina Department of Transportation (NCDOT) has invited Pitt, Greene, Beaufort, and Lenoir city and county officials and other interested organizations across the state to participate with the department in a concentrated campaign to clean up litter along N.C. highways.

Gov. Jim Hunt has designated April 13-17 as "Clean Up Litter Week in North Carolina."

To accommodate youth groups that want to participate in the litter pickup campaign, Hunt proclaimed April 11 as "Youth Involvement Day in North Carolina."

State Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw said, "We are most appreciative of the organizations that have already volunteered to work with us, and we urge other local groups that want to participate in the litter clean up effort to contact the NCDOT division or district engineers in their areas."

Bradshaw noted that in view of the declining revenues for the highway program, the cooperative litter pick up program allows the department to provide higher level of service than would be possible otherwise without substantially increasing the department's annual cost for litter control.

NCDOT currently spends in excess of $1.5 million annually on roadside control statewide.

This concentrated effort is the first phase of a two-part program conducted annually by the department. The second phase of the clean up litter program will be held September 8-12.

Local groups may contact C.W. Snell Jr., Division Engineer, P.O. Box 1587, Greenville, NC 27834 for assistance.

The Jupiter Effect Has Met Match

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —
With a title like "The Jupiter Effect," it was a shoo-in to interest cult followers and sci-fi buffs.

But when its authors said the celestial phenomenon would trigger earthquakes, Californians and others with reason to worry about the shifting Earth perked up.

Seven years later, and one year before the book said the planets of the solar system would align themselves against the sun and spark a worldwide wave of earthquakes, the theory has largely been put to rest.

Serious scientists, disdainful of the hypothesis when it was first proposed in 1974, emphatically reject "The Jupiter Effect" as bad science. Even one of the two British authors has recanted.

"I have bad news for the doomsayers: the book has now been proven wrong. The whole basis of the 1982 prediction is gone," the co-author, astrophysicist John Gribbin, wrote in Omni magazine's June 1980 issue.

Only a cult of determined believers insist the book's worst scenario will come to pass, bringing a flurry of quakes to California's susceptible San Andreas Fault. And Gribbin wrote the Omni article with them in mind.

"Because of the way the book has been misused by cultists who must never have read it," he said, "I want to make it clear that there is no reason now to expect any unusual seismic disturbance in 1982 from the causes given in the book."

"The Jupiter Effect," which Gribbin wrote with Stephen Plagemann, contended: "Planetary alignment is ... the key to the trigger for unusually high levels of terrestrial earthquake activity. It turns out that there will be a very rare alignment of the planets, with all of them pulling together on the sun, in the early 1980s," and becoming most potent in 1982.

The idea is that the combined gravitational forces of the nine planets will be aimed at the sun, where the resulting tidal forces would spark extraordinary solar activity.

This activity, in turn, would greatly increase the number of charged particles streaming from the sun, known as the solar wind. This flood of subatomic particles racing toward Earth would cause such turbulence in the atmosphere that the Earth's rotation would be changed slightly.

That, the book contends, "will agitate regions of geologic instability into life. There will be many earthquakes, large and small, around susceptible regions of the globe."

Scientists flatly reject almost every point in that scenario, beginning with "the grand alignment" or what some people have called "the ultimate syzygy." Syzygy is the configuration of the sun, Earth and moon or planets in a straight line.

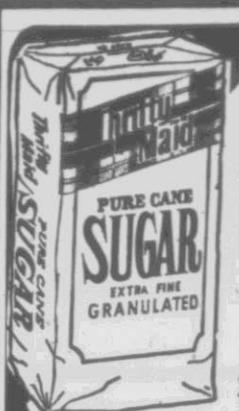

Similar alignments of the planets occur about once every 179 years, so "it is something that has happened periodically and none of these things have ever been proven to actually have occurred," said Kenneth Seidelmann, director of the U.S. Naval Observatory's Nautical Almanac Office.

"I don't think it's going to have any impact," Seidelmann said, adding that at the time the planets are supposed to be lined up they'll actually be spread over much of the sky.

The closest alignment will be on March 10, 1982, he said. But on that day, if the sun were at the center of a giant clock, Neptune would be at about 11:30, the Earth at about 3:15, with the others scattered in between.

Gravity, the force that keeps the planets orbiting the sun and the moon orbiting the Earth, decreases very quickly with distance. Thus the moon has a much stronger influence on Earth than distant Jupiter, which is 24,000 times as massive as the moon.

Gravity from even the most favorable planetary alignment, scientists say, would be 20,000 times weaker on the sun than the influence of the moon on Earth.

Rev. Rawls Is Pastor Of Church

The Rev. Melvin Rawls is serving as minister of the First Church Christ, a new congregation in the restoration movement.

The church's purpose is forming a religious corporation under the laws of the State of North Carolina. Alton Jones, Jerry Ward, Tommy Harris, Elmer Britt, Albert Blanton and William Whitehurst, elected trustees and directors, wrote the Articles of Incorporation and the church was legally chartered by the state on March 13, recognizing it as a non-profit organization.

REV. MELVIN RAWLS

The congregation started Oct. 22, 1980, as a prayer group and its first worship was held Nov. 9 last year.

Church services are held at Eastern Elementary School.

A native of Martin County, the Rev. Rawls is married to the former Virginia Harris also of Martin County, and they have two sons, Ray and Kevin.

He graduated with honors from Roanoke Bible College and has held evangelistic meetings and rallies in North Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina and Ohio.

He started the Gold Point Church of Christ in 1972 and has aided work in Richlands Christian Church. He served the Draper Christian Church, Eden, and also had a weekly radio program.

Rescuer Suing Over Ailment

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A tugboat deckhand praised for helping save passengers from a jetliner that crashed into a bay nearly three years ago has filed a $1 million suit against the airline.

Bill Kinney, of Gulf Shores, Ala., claims he is suffering from a lung ailment because he swallowed or inhaled fumes from the jet fuel and hydraulic fluid that covered the water at the crash site, his lawyer Richard Warfield said Monday.

The suit against National Airlines, once based in Miami but now part of Pan American World Airways, was filed last week in Escambia County Circuit Court.

Three of the 58 passengers and crew aboard the Boeing 727 died after the jet belly-flopped into the bay while trying to land at fog-shrouded Pensacola Regional Airport in May 1978.

Changing Fast Food Fare

NEW YORK (UPI) — An older population with increasingly sophisticated tastes in eating away from home is bringing changes in the fast food restaurant industry.

An article in Restaurant Design, a quarterly trade magazine, says some fast food operators are copying the look of more expensive, tablecloth restaurants. For example, a Burger King franchiser in Providence, R.I., calls his establishment Bankers Quarters and describes it as "a little Victorian castle."

Fast food operators are also expanding their menus to include more fresh food and specialties such as quiches, date-nut bread, soups, salads, yogurt and fresh fruits, the magazine article said.

Small Houses Unique Haven For The Dogs

By SUE MANNING
Associated Press Writer
NEWPORT, Wash. (AP) —
Do Lilliputians live here?

That thought occurs as you pass the cluster of tiny houses alongside the highway a few miles south of Newport in northeastern Washington near the Idaho border.

The village is a little run down — though you eventually find out it's an extravagant improvement over the lifestyle most of its dwellers have been accustomed to.

Your fantasy is dispelled when the entire neighborhood begins to bark.

Bertha Renfro, director of the Pend Oreille Humane Society, is used to answering questions from puzzled travelers.

"The dogs just love their houses. None of the roofs leak; short-haired, animals live in the best-insulated houses and the duplex is reserved for inseparable companions like the two basset hounds we got who had been together since they were born."

Add to this room service — "We bring their dinners right to their front doors" — and you know why some people refer to this canine community as "Hound Dog Haven" or "Pooches Paradise."

Others, bothered by the dogs' barking, are less generous with their praise and dub the place "Mutt's Motel." But whatever the degree of sentiment, Mrs. Renfro thinks there is no other humane society in the country like it.

It's not only the unique conglomerate of dog houses that make it different — it's Mrs. Renfro's strong affinity for all creatures, homeless, hungry and lonely.

"I've always been interested in animals. When I was little, I made friends with squirrels and saved a wild canary with a broken wing and rescued a sparrow that fell in a well. I have such a good feeling remembering this."

When donations trickle in to the privately-run society too slowly to keep its 100 dogs fed properly, the 67-year-old Mrs. Renfro digs into her own Social Security money. "Right now they require 125 pounds of dry food a day."

She makes a stew each day that goes over the dry food to make it "more edible." The dogs have been feasting on bear meat in recent weeks — a donation from Mrs. Renfro's son in Montana.

Mrs. Renfro has been sparing the lives of distressed animals for eight years.

"I have an old softy for a vet and he won't put an animal down unless it's suffering and beyond recovery," she said. "You just don't give up until you've tried everything possible."

"People soon learn you're a pushover for strays. Folks seem to come from everywhere to dump their dogs — but they've come from Canada, Michigan, Texas and Montana to adopt them, too."

Ideally, those who drop off animals will also leave a donation, but most of the time the abandoned animals are left at night and there is no money — so funding is always a problem, as are volunteers. The society operates on donations and sometimes there is barely enough to pay the $50 payment due each month on the lease of the land.

Some dogs, like dobermans, shepherds and huskies, are quickly adopted. Cockapoos, poodles and spayed females are also popular.

Mrs. Renfro provides shelter for 100 dogs with only 30 doghouses. They are rotated from the houses to pens and the overflow winds up in her mobile home.

Mrs. Renfro's humane society got started in 1974 when she somehow acquired 12 strays — she just couldn't say no. "I put an ad in the paper and we formed a society. This land and abandoned gas station were just sitting here, doing nothing, so we found out who it belonged to from the assessor's office and signed a lease."

Her first problem was one of overcrowding. People started donating doghouses to ease the problem.

"I plan to make it look like an old town, a village with all the different storefronts. I was even going to have a little church with a steeple on top of a dog house. I just haven't gotten to that yet."

Angora Rabbits A Wool-Source

SHARON, Ontario (AP) — Sheep don't have a monopoly on wool.

Little Angora rabbits can each produce a pound of wool a year, says Leopoldine Meyer, who raises the animals in this Toronto suburb.

"The wool is very warm. In a rabbit's lifetime, about six years, an Angora rabbit can produce enough wool for 12 sweaters."

"Their soft, warm fur, is spun into yarn, then made into clothing such as gloves, scarves and hats, in addition to sweaters," Meyer said.

City Works To Alleviate Flood Problems

The city's Public Works Department has taken steps to ensure that traditional spring rains do not present drainage problems relative to natural streams in the area.

Mayo Allen reported that the department prepares for the heavy rains season each month through a routine drainage maintenance program. He added that a storm drainage policy was adopted several years by the city, accepting the responsibility for the upkeep of the local streams.

Those streams include: Green Mill Run, Tar River westerly to the city limits west of Memorial Drive; Fornes Run, from Green Mill Run to N.C. 43; Reedy Branch, from Green Mill Run to Red Banks Road; Town Branch, from the Tar River southwesterly to 13th Street; drainage ditch south of Blount Fertilizer Plant, from Green Mill Run westerly to Dickinson Avenue underpass; and Lincoln Park drainage system, from Tar River through Lincoln Park to Memorial Drive.

Under the drainage policy, it was noted, the Public Works Department maintains all waterways which are part of the natural streams. Each of the waterways has been placed on a maintenance schedule and is assigned a month in which it is cleaned of trash, debris, and underbrush.

Allen said the department has a crew, aided by specialized drainage equipment, assigned specifically for cleaning ditches.

Local citizens, he noted, can help by keeping the storm drains in the street free of trash and leaves and making sure that litter and debris is not thrown or discarded in ditches.

Residents who would like to know the month assigned to clean the ditches in their neighborhood should contact the department at 752-4137.

Social Security Boss Paid But $2,000 A Year

By CHRISTOPHER
CONNELL

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — At about $2,000 a year, Robert J. Myers figures he will be the lowest paid employee in the Social Security Administration. And he'll be one of the bosses, at that.

The 68-year-old Myers will help chart policy as a deputy commissioner, the second highest position in the agency.

Myers will continue to draw a $49,000 federal pension from his earlier career at Social Security from 1934 until 1970. But the customary $51,000 salary for his job will be reduced by the amount of his annuity.

Myers also is giving up an equivalent outside income from work as a consultant and professor that he said had pushed his earnings into the six-figure range.

His appointment by the Reagan administration marks both a return and a restoration of Myers, who fired a well-publicized salvo at Social Security's liberal leadership when he quit as chief actuary in 1970.

Even before he quit, Myers broke with civil service protocol by writing signed articles for Reader's Digest and other magazines assailing "expansionists" whom he charged "could soon steer Social Security down a dangerously unsound financial course."

In a resignation letter printed in the Congressional Record, Myers warned that Democratic holdovers from the Johnson administration "have not — and will not — faithfully and vigorously serve the Nixon administration. Rather, they will exert their efforts to expand the Social Security program as much as possible."

Today, the white-haired Myers speaks in mellower tones, saying the movement to expand Social Security "greatly slackened off after 1972" and ardently defending the program against charges that it is not a good buy for young workers.

Myers is on an interdepartmental task force preparing options on how the Reagan administration can put the troubled $136 billion program on a sound footing both for the near future and the next century.

Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker has said there are only three choices: raise taxes, raise the retirement age or lower benefits.

Myers was on a Reagan transition task force that recommended sweeping changes in Social Security, including a gradual shift to age 68 instead of 65 for full benefits, a phase-out of spouses' benefits and changes in benefit formulas to lower both initial payments and cost-of-living increases.

Myers also served on the National Commission on Social Security. He voted with the majority in favor of a higher retirement age, but voted against its call for using general revenues to pay for half of Medicare.

Myers has been an outspoken critic of "double-dippers" — federal workers who draw both civil service and Social Security pensions. He has found that 80 percent of civil service retirees also qualify for Social Security at 62 and Medicare at 65.

"They're getting windfall benefits," said Myers, who added that from his own work outside government in the past decade, he and his wife could draw a "phenomenal" Social Security benefit of $1,000 a month were he not still working.

The Reagan administration has proposed an immediate end to the minimum Social Security benefit of $122 a month, charging that it goes to many federal workers and others who are not poor. Critics contend many poor elderly women would be harmed by eliminating the minimum payment.

Myers says double-dippers usually get far more than the minimum from Social Security. "Generally, I believe in phasing things in, but there are times when I believe in quick action," he said. But he added, "If I was not in step with the Reagan administration, I wouldn't be here."

Myers, who looks younger than his 68 years, said that with no mandatory retirement age in the federal government, he expects this hitch to last "for life plus 10 days."

Pays Price To Be Rich, Famous

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Thomas Clark Twyman wanted to be rich and famous by the time he was 30. Another $50 and he will be.

A Jackson County judge approved Twyman's request for a name change last month. His new name? Rich N. Famous.

But the Kansas City man isn't officially Famous yet. "I have to pay my lawyer $50 more before I can pick up the order," he said.

Famous is a musician, which is the reason he gave the court for wanting the name change. He plays three instruments and wants to play professionally.

"They're not going to take me seriously if I say my name is John Smith," said Famous.

Model Adds Some Light To Ice Ages

By KEVIN McKEAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The great glaciers that once pushed as far south as Pennsylvania and Missouri may return for another 114,000 years, according to a new model of the Earth's climate based on astronomy.

The Belgian and American scientists who developed the model do not view it as cause for alarm. The next cold spell may not arrive for thousands of years.

But the model, published in the current issue of the British journal Nature, gives new support to the idea that the march of the glaciers is guided by conditions of the Earth's orbit around the sun.

Ice has been the rule rather than the exception for the last million years of Earth history. Glaciers up to several thousand feet thick have intermittently covered as much as a third of the land area.

Relief has come only from a few, brief warm spells. Studies of ancient pollen, sea-level changes and ocean sediments show there have been four of these in the last 350,000 years, lasting about 10,000 years each.

The most recent one, which began 11,000 years ago, has seen the flowering of human civilization.

The new climate model was developed by George Kukla, Ramona Lotti and Jeffrey Brown at Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory, and by Belgian astronomer and mathematician Andre Berger of the Catholic University of Louvain. It is published in the current issue of the British science journal Nature.

The scientists discovered that the most recent warm periods — those beginning 11,000, 127,000, 220,000, and 330,000 years ago — shared two peculiarities of the Earth's orbit in common.

First, the perihelion — the time in its orbit when the Earth is closest to the sun — was occurring in June as each warm period began.

This meant the Earth was receiving maximum solar energy in June. The perihelion now comes in January. But its time advances as years go on, completing one circuit of the calendar every 13,000 to 25,000 years, depending on gravitational influence from the outer planets.

The second feature shared by recent warm periods was that the tilt of the Earth was always near maximum.

The Earth's axis is tilted with respect to the plane of its orbit. The angle varies from about 22 to about 24.5 degrees. The tilt causes the seasons, since it allows sunshine to fall on more northerly or southerly latitudes at different times of the year.

The combination of maximum tilt plus June perihelion could have made summers particularly warm in the northern hemisphere, where the glaciers were concentrated. This could have affected the seasonal advance and melting of snow and pack ice and tipped the balance in favor of a warm period, the scientists said.

Although the effect of the extra sunlight in any given year would be negligible, its cumulative effect could be enormous.

Their model predicts a continuation of the cooling trend that began after the current warm period peaked about 6,000 years ago. The next cold peak is expected in about 4,000 years. Astronomical conditions do not favor a new warm period for another 114,000 years, the scientists said.

But Kukla stressed that the model was based only on natural causes of climate. "We know the atmosphere is being loaded with carbon dioxide and this could change the future climate completely," he said in a telephone interview. Many scientists believe the carbon dioxide from fossil fuels will cause a global warming trend.

Mail From Home Often Has Inserts

By PHIL BROWN
Associated Press Writer
PEKING (AP) — Foreign residents in Peking say their mail from home occasionally arrives with something extra slipped in — apparently by anti-communists, supporters of the now-imprisoned "Gang of Four" or foes of President Reagan.

Neatly resealed letters, especially those bearing greeting cards or other bulky material, contain mimeographed, Chinese-language declarations inserted somewhere along the route. The insertion work sometimes delays them by a month or so.

At least some of the insertions are believed done in Hong Kong, and Western analysts say almost all certainly come from outside China, rather than from dissident groups within the country.

Deng Xiaoping, the Chinese Communist Party's vice chairman and the nation's top leader, was quoted as telling a Japanese visitor, however, that there were underground leaflets within China attacking him.

One of the mailed declarations describes Deng, party General Secretary Hu Yaobang, Premier Zhao Ziyang and Politburo member Peng Zhen as a "new gang of four."

The declaration, entitled "Voice of the Heart," said the Communists had established a feudal, fascist dictatorship in China, a natural foundation for the rise of the "Gang of Four."

The four, led by Chairman Mao Tse-tung's widow, Jiang Qing, recently were tried by a special court. Jiang Qing and former Vice Premier Zhang Chunqiao were given suspended death sentences on charges of frame-ups and persecution.

The declaration claimed this was only revenge and a move in a power struggle within the party. It charged that under the "new gang of four," the people's fate would be the same — "enslavement and oppression" — and the only answer was to root out "Marxist poison."

Another, signed by a "group of education workers," said it was "daydreaming" to think that the convicted "Gang of Four" could be made a scapegoat for 30 years of evil, despotism and corruption in China.

But, it added, if the gang's trial is the first step in criticizing Marxism, Mao's thought and Communist Party dictatorship, "then it accords with the will of the broad masses of the people."

Still another, labeled "Voice of the Masses," spoke of the "poverty and backwardness of socialism" contrasted to "blossoming flowers" on Taiwan, seat of the rival Nationalist Chinese government.

It urged "a great political revolution to emancipate minds in earnest, encourage free airing of views, practice democracy and renounce Marxism and the dictatorship of the proletariat."

It also said the ultimate goal of the workers' strikes in Poland is to overthrow the Communist regime — there, and "the suffering of the Chinese workers from oppression and exploitation are ten times and even a hundred times more than that of the Polish workers."

A statement by the "Shanghai branch of the Chinese Communist Party Anti-Revisionist Comrades' Association" contained Jiang Qing's purported defense statement at her trial.

It denounces Deng and the late President Liu Shao-chi, whom she allegedly had persecuted to death, as peddlers of feudalism, capitalism and revisionism.

The party had expelled Liu, the statement said, adding: "Could Jiang Qing alone be able to make the decision to expel Liu Shao-chi from the party once and for all?"

It also predicted the "inevitable" overthrow of "a handful of capitalist roaders in power headed by Deng Xiaoping."

Jiang Qing's entire defense statement has not been made public, although sources who attended the trial said she did denounce Deng as a revisionist.

KROGER BROCCOLI.. better
nutrition with Flowers

Many Americans may be short of vitamins and minerals they need. And Broccoli (a good buy at KROGER now) can help fill those nutrition gaps—with flowers.

For while Broccoli is famed as a "green, leafy vegetable"—and while it has all the richness in vitamins and minerals for which that family is noted—it is really a flower stalk.

Broccoli's mild taste is liked by many—especially children—who aren't partial to stronger-tasting greens, such as spinach, kale or chard. Yet Broccoli has all their nutrition—sometimes more. It has much the vitamin A of carrots and the vitamin C of oranges. It's a storehouse of hard-to-get B vitamins—especially folic acid.

This little known vitamin is essential for making new cells. When there is active growth or body repair, folic acid may be lacking, as it is for many children and most pregnant women. Folic acid also helps us make use of some of the many minerals in Broccoli, such as iron.

KROGER is now posting nutrition values on selected produce items. We want you to know what nutrition bargains vegetables such as Broccoli can be. KROGER is providing cooking and meal-planning ideas—to help you give your family the taste-pleasing variety that spells good nutrition.

Five Weekly Contests.
A Winner Each Week.
Pick the winner of one of five NASCAR races and you could win one of five "Racing Weekend" trips to the World 600! Each race week, from April 1st to May 9th, every Lowe's store will hold a drawing. You must register each week at any Lowe's store to be eligible for each week's drawing. The first entry drawn that correctly names the winning driver of that week's race will be sent to Lowe's Headquarters, where a Grand Drawing will be held to determine the trip winner for that week. No purchase necessary. Enter each time you visit. You must be 18 or older. You do not have to be present to win; winners will be notified. Only one trip per person. Void where prohibited by law. Deadline for entry in each week's contest is the Saturday before each week's race. Stop by soon!

Lowe's Pricing Policy:

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. This reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our selling area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail price does not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling price. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include taxes and delivery charges.)

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered.

Brake job for disc or drum systems

Our trained specialists will inspect brake system, install new disc pads or brake shoes, rebuild calipers or wheel cylinders, turn drums or rotors, install new front grease seals, clean and repack front wheel bearings, flush brake lines and replace with heavy-duty brake fluid. Sears may decline to perform partial brake jobs if it appears, in Sears judgment, that additional work is needed for your brake system to function properly. Replacement of master cylinder, power booster, drum/rotor are extra if needed. For most American-made cars (not available in Danville, Florence, Gastonia, Greenville, High Point, Jacksonville, Rock Hill, Rocky Mount and Shelby).
