Annexation Of Industrial Park Raised

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

One of the subcommittee areas of the Mayor's Advisory Committee is expected to recommend that the city consider the annexation of the Industrial Park north of Greenville as a possible source of additional revenue.

In anticipation of that recommendation, a five-member segment of the advisory committee's executive branch met with several local industry representatives on Thursday to discuss annexation and provide a forum for the plant personnel to comment on the proposal.

When a city study relative to the annexation of the industrial area surfaced in 1978, local industry spokesmen not only expressed opposition to any move to bring their plant sites into the corporate limits but also criticized the city for the way the matter was handled.

Industry officials stated publicly that they were concerned that several months of study by the city regarding potential annexation measures had taken place before they were informed of the matter. After several weeks of controversy regarding the proposal, the city council voted not to pursue the annexation move.

Yesterday's meeting provided an opportunity for industry to have early input into the subcommittee's expected annexation proposal.

Dr. Wallace Wooles, general committee chairman, pointed out that the mayor's committee is purely a volunteer advisory body and has no statutory authority. He said the six subcommittees studying all areas of city services are in the process of completing their reports for presentation to the executive segment and it is hoped that an overall report will be compiled and presented to the mayor and city council around the first of June.

Wooles, noting that it is "likely" the annexation recommendation will be made by the "new revenue sources" subcommittee, said that the views of the industry representatives will be included in the overall report.

Local industry spokesmen who offered comments yesterday expressed general opposition to annexation of the industrial section, citing among other concerns the deterrence of new industry locating here if they are faced with city taxation and the discouragement of expansion by existing firms.

G. Henry Leslie, general site manager for Burroughs Wellcome here, said that the company "does not believe that annexation is in its best interests and certainly not in the city's long-term best interests."

Leslie observed, "The allegation most often raised in a situation like this is that by not being in the city we are getting a free ride." He said Burroughs Wellcome is Pitt County's largest manufacturing employer and the third largest among all employers. Last year, BW employees here earned $23,211,000 in wages and Leslie said that some 475 of a total of 1,374 employees "live within the corporate boundaries where the full impact of their wages are felt in terms of purchases and taxes."

Last year, the spokesman said, Burroughs Wellcome paid Pitt County taxes of $669,928 and since locating here in 1969 the company has purchased nearly $8.5 million worth of water and sewer services, natural gas and electricity from Greenville Utilities. He added that $1,720,000 worth of these purchases were made in 1979-80, reflecting $103,200 returned by the utility to the general fund of the city.

Leslie also mentioned the company's monetary support of local activities, including the hospital and university.

He noted, "A company's financial resources are very finite. Decisions on expansion are based on ability to achieve an adequate return on investment. Taxes sap those resources and can cause expansion to happen elsewhere or not at all."

Leslie said, "Annexation may appear to be a quick way to solve the city's current economic ills, but I urge you to think long and hard about the future consequences."

Committee member Reid Hooper asked Leslie if his company had received stated or implied assurances that it would not be annexed. Leslie said no statement in writing or specific promise was made when BW looked at the Greenville site but the possibility of annexation was not mentioned. He said if the "stigma of annexation had been hanging over the community," Burroughs Wellcome probably would not have located here.

Super-Deadly 'Devastators'

Gunman Used Exploding Bullet

By KEVIN M. COSTELLO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The gunman who tried to assassinate President Reagan apparently used super-deadly, exploding bullets, and one of them could have blown up as doctors pulled it from the chief executive's chest, the FBI says.

"Our seat-of-the-pants determination is that all six bullets were devastator (exploding) bullets," FBI spokesman Roger Young said early today of the 22-caliber shots fired in Monday's attack.

A final analysis to determine whether the bullets were explosive was expected to be completed today, Young said.

Asked if he could rule out the possibility that the bullet in the president's lung might have blown up as surgeons worked feverishly to remove it, Young replied: "I can't say that... It could explode on the table."

Dr. Howard Champion, director of the Washington Hospital Center's shock-trauma unit, said exploding bullets are significantly more deadly than ordinary bullets, particularly when they explode on impact. And such an explosion in an operating room, he said, could seriously injure anyone in the vicinity, not just the patient.

Most exploding bullets are hollowed out at the tip, filled with an explosive charge similar to that used in a normal gun cartridge and are meant to explode on impact.

"You couldn't call it a dum-dum bullet, but the technical differences are small," Young said.

The bullets are not common and are normally used when a gunman intends to do serious harm to his victim. They are made both commercially and privately. FBI spokesman Ed Gooderham said today the only manufacturer the agency was aware of is Bingham Ltd. of Norcross, Ga.

The Washington Star reported today that the FBI knew as early as Monday evening, just hours after the assassination attempt, that explosive bullets might have been used. Agents searching the hotel room where accused assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. had spent the previous night found an empty cartridge box marked "Devastator," the newspaper said, but it added there was no explanation why it took 72 hours for the FBI to notify medical authorities.

Agents went to the Washington Hospital Center on Thursday to recommend that surgeons remove the bullet that had lodged near the spine of District of Columbia policeman Thomas Delahanty, who also was wounded in the assassination attempt. Doctors had thought of leaving the bullet in the officer's neck.

In a tense, 2 1/2-hour operation, three surgeons removed the bullet shortly before midnight Thursday and gave it to a waiting FBI agent for further tests.

Young said the bullet that ricocheted off the presidential limousine and came to rest several inches from Reagan's heart "did not fragment," but he could not say why it remained intact. Another shot hit the rear window of the limousine and "simply disintegrated," Young said.

Young said the bullet which lodged in the brain of White House press secretary James S. Brady broke into four pieces, leading investigators to believe it was a devastator bullet.

"Chances are good the Brady bullet blew up," Young said.

Champion said the bullet that hit Delahanty "could have been fatal" and at the very least would have done "significant damage" if it had exploded in the wounded officer's neck.

Once the bullet lodged in Delahanty, Champion said, it could have blown up if it had been exposed to "impact or high temperature."

Young said he could not say what happened to the bullet that hit McCarthy.

Wholesale Prices Soar

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Inflation at the wholesale level surged at a 16.2 percent annual rate in March - the steepest climb in eight months - as food prices resumed their rise and energy costs accelerated from an already quickened pace, the government reported today.

The 1.3 percent March increase was the largest since last July's 1.7 percent and compared to February's 0.8 percent rise.

But the government also reported that unemployment held steady at 7.3 percent last month despite earlier government reports that construction and industrial production have been off.

The Labor Department said the price of finished energy-related goods rose 6.1 percent in March, at least partly due to President Reagan's Jan. 28 oil-decontrol order, and made up more than half of the overall 1.3 percent rise in the Producer Price Index.

Food prices, which had dropped 0.6 percent at the wholesale level in February, climbed 0.8 percent in March, led by a brisk 19.4 percent increase in prices for fresh and dried vegetables.

The index, which is adjusted for seasonal variations, usually gives a good indication of the future trend of prices at the consumer level.

Included were a 9 percent increase in heating oil prices and a 7.5 percent rise in gasoline prices.

DOUBTS RAISED - Tamara Rand, in a tape segment carried Thursday on the NBC-TV "Today Show", predicted a mishap for the President in the last days of March. Thursday night, a station manager where the tape was made, said "We have reason to believe the interview was taped on March 31, the day after the assassination attempt". (NBC Photo via AP Laserphoto)

Pitt Board Meet

The Board of County Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the Pitt County Office Building at 1717 West Fifth St.

Included on the agenda is the consideration of bids for solid waste disposal site containers, consideration of a request by the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees for a revision in the affiliation agreement with the East Carolina University School of Medicine, and consideration of final plans for the Clarence Hardee Moyer (Section II) subdivision in Pactolus Township, the Ulysses G. Payton Subdivision in Grimesland Township, and the Donald R. Warren Subdivision in Carolina Township.

Other items on the agenda include the appearance of Division 2 highway engineer Charlie Snell regarding the secondary road bond fund program for the coming fiscal year; consideration of food service proposals for the county office building; consideration of a request by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce for an ordinance regulating the sale of precious metals in the county; and other items.

Scout Jamboree

Boy Scouts, Cubs and Explorers of Pitt County will attend a Jamboree here Saturday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Pitt Fairgrounds.

Mayor Don McGlohon will open the Jamboree activities with a ribbon cutting and a scout spokesman said that Dr. Thomas Brewer, Chancellor at East Carolina University, will also have a part in the event.

Demonstration booths will be operated during the day and troops will provide outdoor demonstrations of scouting activities.

A Pitt County run-off for the Pinewood Derby champion is also scheduled for 10:30 a.m.; it was noted.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

SHOW & TELL APPEAL

Lillie Reid, librarian at Third Street School, has asked Hotline to appeal for a Show and Tell phonoviewer for the school library.

Someone has donated slides and records for use with such a machine, she said, but library funds don't permit the buying of the machine itself, which would be useful for teaching and also fun for elementary school children. Anyone who can help is asked to call Mrs. Reid at 752-3227.

DRIVER TRAINING AGAIN

As feedback to a Hotline item published some time ago about the lack of a driver training program at Pitt Community College due to the unavailability of a car, Jim Brown of PCC reports that the college now has purchased a car and driver education classes will begin Monday. For further information, see a related article in this issue or call the Continuing Education Division of PCC, 756-3130, Ext. 238 or 266.

and Pam Davis. The show is installed in the old Belk building, Fifth Street, downtown, site of the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival. A public reception opening the headquarters is being held from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, April 5.

Cite Reasons To Doubt Psychic's Predictions

By PAUL SIMON
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Did psychic Tamara Rand really foretell the assassination attempt on President Reagan, complete with details on his wound and the suspect? Or did she do her "predicting" the day after he was shot?

Two television executives say they have reason to doubt her, but she says she stands by her account.

Ms. Rand won wide attention Wednesday night when a videotape labeled "Jan. 6" was shown on the Cable News Network. On the tape, Ms. Rand predicted a "thud" in President Reagan's "chest area" during "the last few days of March."

Reagan was shot March 30 - in the chest.

CNN said the tape was of the Richard Maurice talk show, recorded Jan. 6 for broadcast later in the month on Atlanta station WTBS.

News services carried reports about the tape, and NBC and ABC ran portions of it on their Thursday morning news shows.

But on Thursday evening, general manager Ed Quinn of KTNV, the Las Vegas television station where the tape was made, said, "we have reason to believe the interview was taped on March 31, the day after the assassination attempt."

Ms. Rand, 32, disputed his claim, although she admitted that she had participated in a taping session at the station on March 31. She said the purpose of that session was to tape several other segments and to "rearticulate" her earlier predictions.

Quinn said his review showed that a Maurice show on which Ms. Rand appeared was broadcast on KTNV on Jan. 25, but he said it did not contain any of the predictions.

Ms. Rand said, "I slurred and stumbled over the words and that's why that particular segment (prediction) of the Jan. 6 interview was deleted."

Interviewed live on CNN Thursday night, she said she believed the tape shown on television "was the tape that was made Jan. 6."

Quinn said he had not watched the taping, but had talked to "five people (crew members) that viewed the tape on the 'Today' show and were involved in taping the show on March 31. And they said it was the show they were involved in," he said.

Arthur Lord, director of West Coast network news for NBC, said early today, "We now have grave doubts about the authenticity of the tape we aired on the 'Today' show."

Lord said he spent most of Thursday night "talking to members of the KTNV crew and, after double-checking with the people who had originally told us about the authenticity of the tape, we have strong doubts about it."

He said NBC has asked Ms. Rand to produce a copy of the March 31 re-enactment to see how it differs from the Jan. 6 tape, but "up to now (early today) we haven't gotten a tape."

Arthur Sando, director of public relations for CNN and WTBS, said Ms. Rand arrived with the tape at CNN's Los Angeles bureau on Wednesday.

"She came in allegedly with the tape of the show that she had done for Dick Maurice..."

Festival Headquarters Opens To Public Sunday

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The headquarters space for Pitt County's first Eastern Carolina Arts Festival in the old Belk Building on Fifth Street downtown Greenville is a far cry from the conventional information booth and hand out counter spaces of most headquarters.

The place is a museum of rustic treasures, contemporary realistic art and nostalgia. Diversity is a strong element in the composition of the area - with Martin County's big crafts of the past entitled "Embark On A Stationary Voyage Into A Rural Community" combined with an exhibit of art by school children.

And within the building there are five other attractions - an exhibit of photorealism paintings by Outer Banks artist Vic Gillespie; art work by Rachel Sturz; an art exhibit by students of Rose High School; a photographic exhibit by members of the East Carolina Camera Club; and a display by members of the Pitt County-Greenville Boys' Club.

The public will have an opportunity to view the arts and crafts from the past and of today at an opening reception being held Sunday, April 5 from 2 to 5 p.m.

Lynn Olmsted, executive director for Eastern Carolina Arts Festival, says, "We hope lots of people will take this chance to see all the wonderful things in the festival headquarters. There's something to appeal to

Early Calm In Miners' Strike

By The Associated Press
A warm, Appalachian spring that coincided with the first week of a nationwide coal strike sent many miners fishing, but police say they fear there will be trouble as the strike draws on.

"I hope it doesn't get any worse," said George Mcanich, a Belmont County, Ohio, deputy sheriff. "But I have a feeling we're going to have more problems."

A southwest Virginia miner, who would not give his name, agreed.

"This strike is like a hurricane," he said. "This is the calm before the storm."

The 160,000-member United Mine Workers union rejected a proposed contract agreement by a 2-1 margin Tuesday, setting the stage for what many union leaders believe will be a strike of at least a month's duration.

Meanwhile, a union spokesman who asked not to be identified said UMW President Sam Church had ordered "extensive" layoffs at union headquarters in Washington effective April 15.

He said money to operate the union's international headquarters is taken from union dues, which miners do not pay during a strike, costing the union up to $1.5 million a month.

The spokesman said he did not know the exact extent of the layoffs, but said some safety officials and organizers in the coalfields also will be affected.

There have been only sporadic incidents of strike-related violence in recent days. This morning sheriff's deputies patrolled entrances to a Marrowbone Development Co. mine near Delbarton, W.Va., where pickets were had several confrontations with non-union miners earlier this week. Non-union miners did not show up for work today.

Elsewhere in West Virginia, where the strike is expected to cost nearly $16 million a month in tax revenues alone, Gov. Jay Rockefeller announced a state hiring freeze and a 10 percent spending cutback. "It's not anything that creates a crisis, but it's something we have to pay attention to," said Herschel "Ned" Rose, West Virginia's tax commissioner. "We weathered the '77-'78 strike, and we expect to get through this time."

That strike lasted 111 days, during which the union's bargaining council rejected two tentative agreements and the rank and file turned down a third.

Burning Ban Re-Invoked

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Outdoor burning was outlawed again Thursday as forest fires returned to char hundreds of acres of North Carolina woodlands.

Officials designated today a "Red Flag Day," meaning that fire conditions will be at their most severe point. Today's forecast calls for temperatures in the 70s and 80s, gusty winds and humidity as low as 11 percent, foresters said.

State Forester H.J. Green said the dry weather is forcing the North Carolina Division of Forest Resources to cancel burning permits statewide for the second time in less than a month.

The burning permit cancellation means that all outdoor burning, regardless of the distance to wooded areas or the time of day, is prohibited.

Two major woods fires were burning out of control late Thursday. A fire in Caldwell County had burned 375 acres by 5 p.m. and another in Hyde County had burned 300 acres.

The Hyde County fire was two miles southeast of New Lake near the Hyde-Tyrrell County line, said Dane Roten of the state Forest Service. He said the fire had the potential of scorching several thousand acres before it comes under control.

Advisory Action....

The benefits of being in the city, as opposed to the company's current situation, would be minimal, Leslie suggested.

Les Fuchs of Hampton Industries, which owns Prepshirt here, said he feels annexation would hurt development of the industrial area and affect the overall growth of Greenville.

Saying that competition is great among companies, Fuchs contended that "all things being equal," a firm would pick a site where cost factors, including taxes, are lower.

If the annexation of the industrial section takes place, he added, "I don't think you will see any more expansion."

Asked to suggest ways to find revenue to provide services here, Fuchs said "being in business, there are always viable alternatives." He said that if there is interest in finding alternative revenues sources, "there are enough resources here to look into it."

Wooles said that the Industrial Park is not the only area being considered for annexation.

Dick Hybil of TRW said that many things are involved in the criteria for selecting a plant site, including the tax structure, with the bottom line involving "what it cost."

He said that the firm picked an expandable site here and the same criteria would apply in making any decision to expand.

"I'm not saying we will not expand if...taken into the city, but it would be a factor," he said.

Wiley Corbett of Grady-White Boats here said that the company needs to expand and a decision will have to be made in the next six months. Corbett cited potential tax costs that would be more than the company could afford "in a few years" and said Grady-White "very strongly opposes annexation."

Corbett said that industrial growth has been a bonanza for Greenville and the city "doesn't need to kill that for the good of Greenville." He said "if you annex, future companies will go somewhere else."

The plant spokesman said that "maybe an increase in local taxes is an answer," with all citizens sharing in the effort to provide more revenues.

George Chapman of Vermont American Corp. also expressed opposition to annexation of the industrial section. He said his company looks for and expands in small communities where industrial parks are not taxed by the city and he mentioned a community in Virginia that "literally died" after "this sort of action" was taken regarding taxation.

Gene Parker of Procter & Gamble said company officials here feel strongly that "annexation is not in our...interest and the community's interest."

J. Melvin Moore of Fieldcrest said that the company is running its city plant at 50 percent of capacity. He said "we could be a dying industry here" and out of business at one of the company's two local facilities. Moore said Fieldcrest "stands firm in the fact that we need to reduce expenditures to make a profit." The company does have a plant and expansion property outside the city.

Fred Strom of Empire Brushes said his company was one of the first to locate in the industrial area here in the 1960's and Empire Brushes implemented a training force, spent a great deal of money in its training program, and eventually moved all of its operations to this area.

Strom said that "we are committed. We don't have the resources to move." He suggested that "we should concentrate on becoming more of a partner with the governmental unit" and he said a joint commission could possibly look at attracting more business here to increase the overall base.

Wooles told the industrial representatives that "we fully recognize the unique things you bring to our community," not only tax dollars but the "people you have brought to us." He asked, "Please look for ways the city can...provide for the people you bring in."

West German Pleads For Non-Interference

MOSCOW (AP) — West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher today urged all countries to follow a policy of "non-interference" in Poland's affairs and appealed for an "independent, non-aligned Afghanistan free from Soviet troops."

In a luncheon speech after a 3½-hour meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, Genscher said West Germany, Poland's No. 1 Western creditor, is providing economic aid to Poland "as a contribution to cooperation in Europe."

"At the same time," he said, "we adhere strictly to the principle of non-interference."

Genscher, who arrived here Thursday from Bonn for a two-day visit, also reminded the Soviets they are signatories to the Helsinki accords on European security and detente.

"We are convinced that the same behavior of all nations which signed the final act of Helsinki and an honest effort to improve East-West relations are ways to aid the Peoples Republic of Poland in overcoming its difficult problems," he said.

Gromyko did not respond, West German sources said.

West Germany has supported Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's proposal that he and President Reagan hold an early summit meeting. Referring to the need for East-West dialogue to reduce world tensions, Genscher said, "The Soviet-American dialogue has an eminent meaning for this."

Brezhnev's proposal, Genscher said, was "highly regarded and praised throughout the West."

Reagan has said he will tie a summit meeting to Soviet international behavior.

Genscher also said the world situation can be stabilized only if neither the East or West uses "instabilities in the Third World" for unilateral advantages.

The Soviets sent 85,000 troops into Afghanistan in December 1979 to support the Marxist government there against Moslem insurgents.

West Germany sources said today's talks were "open, clear and factual" but did not resolve any major differences in East-West relations.

Juror Said High On Pot

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A judge has been asked to order a new trial for two convicted murderers on the ground that a juror said he was "high" on marijuana during the proceedings.

"I assume there will be some kind of inquiry" before the court decides what to do with the motion, Charles M. Oberly III, an assistant state prosecutor, said Thursday.

The motion for a new trial was filed Wednesday in Wilmington Superior Court by defense attorneys Eugene J. Maurer Jr. and James A. Rambo. They also filed an affidavit from 23-year-old John C. Duffy, the juror.

The defense motion says that Duffy smoked marijuana before coming to court and that he consumed alcoholic beverages at the luncheon recesses during the nearly month-long trial.

In the affidavit, Duffy admitted smoking marijuana before coming to court in the morning, and said he had a "few drinks each day" during the luncheon recesses.

The trial in Judge Robert C. O'Hara's court ended in 1978 with first-degree murder convictions against Richard F. Massey, 33, and Robert J. Martin, 26, for the shooting death of Nancy C.P. Repman during a burglary at the woman's home in fashionable Greenville north of Wilmington.

The two men are serving life sentences with no chance for parole on the murder conviction, and are serving lengthy sentences on related charges.

The state Supreme Court upheld their convictions last month, clearing the way for the motion for a new trial.

Dear Abby

Son Fights For Parents

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: During my 12-year marriage to Diana, my parents grew to love her and regard her as their daughter. We have two children.

The problem is that now that Diana and I are divorced, my parents continue to treat her as their daughter, but I am treated like an outcast!

They believe Diana's accusations that our divorce was caused by another woman. (It was not.) They constantly invite Diana to visit them — with or without the children — but I am invited only occasionally, even to family gatherings. (Diana is always there.)

Now that I am seeing a woman about whom I am serious, my parents insist that she broke up my marriage, and they refuse to even meet her! This is very unfair to me as well as to my fiancée.

What can I do? I am terribly hurt by my parents' lack of trust in me. I still love them and don't want to give up all hope of restoring our once loving relationship, but must I forever have to fight against my ex-wife for my parents' love and acceptance?

HURT IN NASHVILLE

DEAR HURT: I hope not. But there's nothing you can do except leave the lines open for communication. Let your parents know that you love them, miss them and (like Delta) you are ready when they are.

DEAR ABBY: You've printed letters from wives and "other women," but I've never seen one from an "other woman" who is being dumped for another "other woman," so this could be a first.

Tom is an ex-priest who gave up the priesthood and married soon after. He was 50 and knew very little about sex. I met him shortly after he was married and we fell in love. That's when his "lessons" began. He was a slow learner. It took me three years to make an accomplished lover of him. (He was very inhibited.)

Imagine my surprise when he introduced me to his new girlfriend! We struck up an immediate friendship, and I discovered that he is using the same line on her that he used on me. I don't want to interfere with his marriage (he has a small child), but I feel sorry for the new girlfriend because I know the heartache she is in for.

Should I have a private talk with her and tell her what a fink he is? Or should I let her be hurt as I was?

DOUBLE DUPED

DEAR DUPED: Regardless of your motivation, your warnings will be unappreciated, misunderstood and probably unheeded. Let the lady learn the hard way.

DEAR ABBY: My father's mother married my mother's father. It was a second marriage for both of them. Now the problem: My father's mother wants to be buried with her first husband, but my mother's father wants to be buried with her — his present wife. The family is trying to stay out of it, but we want to know how you think this should be settled as there is considerable arguing about it.

DADDY'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Stay out of it. This should be decided by the couple concerned. If a man or woman prefers to be buried with a first spouse, that preference should be honored without argument or discussion.

DEAR ABBY: What should a man of 87 do with a collection of interesting old letters? I had over 1,000 until today, when I burned over 100. I felt like a murderer, but storage space is limited.

My children would not be interested in them, as most were from friends and relatives I knew before they were born. Some were from very distinguished people whose literary style was quite wonderful.

GEORGE FROM GEORGIA

DEAR GEORGE: If your children aren't interested in these letters, perhaps their children or grandchildren will one day appreciate them. To burn such letters is to destroy a part of history. Offer them first to someone in your family. If you have no takers, give them to any interested friend.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Couple Has Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Garris were honored at a golden wedding anniversary reception Sunday, March 22, given by their children.

Hosts and hostesses were Hubert and Andy Garris of Greenville and Mrs. Hazel Tripp of Raleigh.

The reception was held in the Red Oak Christian Church fellowship hall, which was decorated

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Garris throughout with spring flowers. Approximately 100 guests called during the afternoon.

Greeting guests were the couple's children and sisters, of the couple assisted in serving refreshments.

The grandchildren of the honorees received gifts and said good-byes.

Mr. and Mrs. Garris were married here Jan. 21, 1931.

COMPANY FARE
Stuffed Roast Chicken
Mint Carrots Green Beans
Caramel Meringue Coffee
MINT CARROTS

The carrots and their sauce may be prepared ahead separately and heated together at serving time.

$\frac{3}{4}$ pound (about 6) carrots, peeled and sliced $\frac{1}{8}$ -inch thick (about 2 cups)
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
 $\frac{1}{8}$ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh mint leaves or 1 teaspoon dried crumbled mint leaves

In a covered 2-quart saucepan boil carrots in 1 cup boiling water until tender-crisp — about 4 to 6 minutes; drain and reserve 1-3rd cup of the liquid. In the clean saucepan over medium heat melt the butter. In a small bowl stir together the sugar, cornstarch and salt; stir into butter until smooth; gradually stir in the reserved liquid until smooth. Stir in lemon rind, lemon juice and mint. Stirring constantly, over moderate heat, cook until boiling, clear and thickened. Add carrots and toss to glaze evenly and heat. Makes 4 servings. Peanut Program Hit

If anyone living in a farm oriented economy has to be hit over the head with the attitude of the present administration toward farm programs, he only has to read what Agriculture Secretary John R. Block has to say.

The secretary is proposing to Congress that the peanut acreage allotment system be eliminated immediately and that the marketing quota system be phased out by 10 percent a year.

This Secretary Block calls the unleashing of the peanut industry from government constraints.

Rep. Charles G. Rose III, D-N. C. said he intends to fight the proposals. N. C. Agriculture Commissioner James A. Graham said, "This could kill the peanut program as we know it in North Carolina." He saw the proposals as having a "drastic, severe economic impact" on peanut areas.

Indeed it will. Isn't there anyone in the administration willing to admit that farm programs are there because they work? Under the programs American farmers have been able to produce bountiful food supplies and still remain solvent. Without the programs vast overproduction is sure to develop and it could bring ruin to many farmers. A bankrupt farmer is not going to produce much food.

Aim Is Fame Of Sorts

It is bizarre but predictable that the presidential assassination attempt of last Monday possibly involved the unrequited love for a young actress by the alleged assailant.

It has been revealed that John W. Hinckley, Jr. wrote letters to Actress Jodie Foster, now a student at Yale. One unmailed letter read, "I will prove my love for you ...

through a historic act."

Miss Foster turned some of the letters over to university authorities.

It all fits the pattern of previous presidential assassinations and attempts.

They involve confused people with no real political aims for their acts. It is their one opportunity for some kind of twisted fame.

To the editor:

We are writing in reference to the article, "Trimming Food Stamps Would Hit Pitt Economy," dated Sunday, March 22, 1981.

Mr. Edward Garrison, Director of Pitt County Department of Social Services, is seemingly very responsive to the needs of the 13,000 people receiving food stamps. It is enlightening indeed to know that a man of such honest judgment is in this position. We, too, acknowledge that fraud and abuse can and probably do occur and agree with Mr. Garrison's statement that fraud is fraud on whatever level it appears.

There are many myths relative to, not only the food stamps program, but welfare in general, that people like Durward Harris Jr. of Harris Supermarket tend to perpetuate. We, as well as many other persons in the black community, were very disturbed about his comments regarding food stamps recipients and feel that a public apology is due for such blatant remarks, which imply that food stamps recipients are fraudulent. The black community can certainly recall when Harris Supermarket was only one store located on West Fifth Street (presently Hardee's Funeral Home), although he may have forgotten such. This area was and continues to be a predominately black community. We wonder to whom the Harrisises attribute their successful expansion.

It is interesting that Mr. Harris' career as a grocer has given him expertise in assessing one's willingness to work and one's desire for upward mobility. Apparently, his observational skills are keen. We might suggest to him that he further investigate and learn who those new cars belong to that those food stamps recipients are getting into.

Again, we emphatically request an apology.

To the editor:

I became very concerned as I picked up the Sunday edition of The Daily Reflector and read the headline, "Beer, Whiskey Flow Freely at Rose." That statement is false, to say the least. The headline made it sound as if any student could go to the cafeteria or concession stand to buy alcoholic beverages. The article did not deal with the factual statistics, which makes me wonder why the article rated front page news.

Those of us who do not drink (which are quite a few) do not appreciate the reputation we get just because we attend Rose High School. As a non-drinker who attends Rose, I must suffer the consequences of your irresponsible journalism. I hope your reporters will work harder to promote your slogan, "Truth in Preference to Fiction."

To the editor:

If the quality of our town's newspaper falls short enough to use yellow journalism as the lead story on page one of a Sunday paper, then I think it is time for a change. It is not in the best interest of our society to use misleading evidence as fact. The Sunday edition of any newspaper is the most highly distributed edition by far and such editorialism as displayed in the March 29th issue is inexcusable. Such articles belong on page four with other editorials, not on page one as the most important story.

Articles outside of pages four and five are to be based on facts and not personal views. Students are not qualified to make percentage accounts of a particular group. Teachers and other staff members are more aware of the subject at hand and are a much more valid source. The sources used in the article were students not totally prepared for answers to

Conflict Exposed

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Political infighting for leadership of the North Carolina Association of Educators has been exposed to the light of public scrutiny as one important result of recent disclosures regarding a statewide collective bargaining project.

The running battle between a band of militant, aggressive teachers who are pushing hard for control of the powerful education organization to use its muscle both as a union and a political tool, and a more reasonable professional majority has long been apparent to numerous observers. The situation has been routinely denied by staff and officers of the group, however.

Growing power in the classroom teacher division of NCAE which is led by the militant faction is largely responsible for the losses of membership which have plagued the unit across the board, and more critically for withdrawal from NCAE by superintendents and principals across the state, and now, by supervisors.

Losing Power
Now, even top NCAE officials concede that the conflict has meant the loss of many of the most experienced and brightest leaders, and a considerable drop in political understanding and influence once provided by administrators.

The classroom teacher division now numbers some 38,000 members in the organization with a total membership of 44,000. NCAE spokesmen are going out of their way to explain that membership in that division is automatic for classroom teachers joining the NCAE itself, and therefore the entire membership does not necessarily endorse the militant unionism of the leadership. The problem, it is said, is that teachers don't participate locally, so the aggressive activists assume control and capture statewide leadership by default.

Even that leadership element concedes in its handbook for collective bargaining that a majority of teachers have "negative" attitudes and that educating them to the benefits and success possible through collective bargaining is a critical problem.

When Jim Bell, president of the classroom teachers, called a press conference to respond to reports published in this column regarding the collective bargaining project, his only complaint was that the handbook was "intended for internal use ... It is apparent that someone wanted to leak the information early ..."

Bell refused to identify the so-called Lighthouse Locals where the strategy of regularly confronting the local school boards in an effort to create confusion and frustration leading to acceptance of collective bargaining by the elected officials is underway. He insisted there are some 30 such districts.

Loretta Martin of Thomsville, president of the NCAE, followed Bell to the lectern to deny that the action of the classroom teacher division is a project of NCAE.

Conflict

Yes, she and NCAE directors had approved the project, routinely. But, No, she did not approve of any illegal activity. There is a state law barring collective bargaining. Neither does she condone disrupting and hassling school boards, Mrs. Martin said.

Has the situation, then, (Continued on Page 5)

Stranger Amongst Us

Anyone in the public eye, whether it be a movie star, a television personality, a politician, or even a columnist, has a better idea than most people of what happened in front of the Washington Hilton Monday afternoon.

Somewhere out in this country are sick people, who, though complete strangers, harbor bitter grievances against well-known individuals who have never done them any harm. But for some reason, they have decided that a particular person is responsible for their pain.

The mail arrives and among the letters are the anonymous scrawls of anger and hate. The scrawls can be threatening, or they can make no sense at all. You tend to laugh them off, because you don't want to admit to yourself that somebody out there has chosen you as the target for their discon-

sion as quietly and gently as you possibly can. Fortunately, very few people act out their fantasies of "getting even" with the person they have chosen as the one who is tormenting them.

But every once in a while someone decides he or she must take action. The most obvious person in this country to take action against is the president of the United States. It doesn't matter what party the president belongs to, or what his political philosophy is. The stranger has decided to have his day in the sun.

The problem of obtaining a gun to carry out the fantasy is no problem. In almost any state you can buy a weapon. You can get one for as little as

Other Editors Say If Hosts Liable

(The Raleigh Times)

If you were a tavern operator, how would you react if a law were passed automatically revoking your business license if a patron was arrested for driving drunk on the way home?

Or, as an ordinary citizen entertaining at your house, what if you were subject to civil damages from the victim of an accident caused by a drunk driver who had spent the evening at cocktails with you?

Wouldn't you try harder than you do now to see that your patrons or friends were sober enough to navigate their way home safely?

Such laws, already in the experimental stage in a few areas, may be the eventual answer to curbing the rising highway carnage traced directly to drunk driving. Such a law might have saved the lives of two N.C. State students snuffed out recently by a driver charged with his fourth offense of driving drunk, driving 80 miles an hour, and driving with his license revoked.

And a seven-year-old Raleigh girl would still be enjoying first grade today if someone had tried to dissuade the driver charged in her death from getting behind the wheel of her car.

There were 359 alcohol-related road fatalities in North Carolina last year and almost 12,000 alcohol-related road injuries. The Highway Patrol does its share to protect the public from these deadly menaces — arresting last year 48,270 drivers on DUI charges; 2,300 more than the previous year.

But the courts more often than not fail to deal firmly with offenders — convicting only 58 percent of those charged and rarely sentencing defendants to jail. The man charged in the State students' death, though thrice arrested on DUI, has never served a day behind bars.

The situation is desperate enough to demand new and imaginative approaches to the problem. One would be requiring bars and clubs to operate a breathalyzer for patrons. California is experimenting with that idea. Another would be dram laws that make tavern owners liable in court for selling whiskey to patrons too drunk to drive ... now being tried in New Jersey and some midwestern states.

In North Carolina, the drunk driver is punished primarily through increased insurance premiums. That isn't enough. It's up to the legislature and a public that hasn't yet displayed nearly enough indignation to see that something more is done.

Strength For Today

A DIVINE GOAL

Every life of real significance must have a plan. The glorious thing about the Christian life is that there stands at the center of our faith a Figure toward which thought, devotion, and the whole movement of believers' lives are directed. "Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith."

This Jesus, therefore, is the end of, and the object of, the Christian life. By this we mean that a personal relationship exists between the believer and the Savior. Many people regard Christianity as little more than a system of ethical teaching. Christianity involves the commingling of the human life with the divine. Through Christian faith a personal relationship is set up between God and man. Jesus is the source of this relationship.

The life of the individual is surrendered to Christ, and Christ's life, in turn, is fused and mixed with the life of the believer. — Elisha Douglass

Uncertainty Bane Of Markets

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Uncertainty is the bane of all investment markets, as was proved again when stock and bond trading was forced to halt Monday on news of the attempted assassination of President Reagan.

Exchange officials knew that many investors almost reflexively dump their holdings until the immediate future comes back into better focus, so they simply call an end to trading and wait.

It didn't take long. U.S. and Canadian exchanges closed within an hour after the shooting, and bond markets by 4 p.m., but all opened again for trading on Tuesday morning. The immediate crisis was over.

The longer term economic problem remains, however. Uncertainty, so prevalent today, is raising havoc with markets, its influence being found in prices of the dollar, gold, stocks, bonds, credit, energy and commodities, and probably in about everything that has a price.

Paul A. Schosberg, president of the Savings Association League of New York

State, gave an impressive illustration the other day when he said that if the nation perceived the future as being sound, it might, almost overnight, knock 2.5 percent to 3 percent from home mortgage rates.

That much, he said, is the psychological factor. Fearful that rates will go even higher in the future, borrowers take what they can today. Afraid that inflation will drive the cost of money skyhigh, lenders are unwilling to commit themselves without adding on an insurance factor.

The debacle in bond markets is even more pronounced. Bonds are long-term loans, so those companies and governments who rely on them for financing have to pay dearly. Why? Who knows what the future holds?

And in the stock market, the plight of those stocks that make up the Dow Jones industrial average are evidence enough of what uncertainty means. Where is the average today? About where it was 15 years ago.

Since shortly after 1966, when the average reach 1,000 points, the market has been beset by worsening inflation and rising interest rates, and many professional investors are worried the trend will continue.

It would be another story if they expected an economy similar to that which prevailed in the early 1960s, when inflation amounted to only 1 or 2 percent a year, and changes in interest rates were a rarity.

With such a stable situation prevailing back then, investors eagerly bet on the future. The number of individual shareholders rose sharply, and so did stock prices. They could see the future, and it was good.

Good until 1968 or so. Then, with inflation beginning to erode values, and with interest rates moving higher, the stock market went through a great convulsion. Prices plunged, and shareholders quit the game.

Investors gradually returned, and prices returned to their earlier highs, but no higher. And when today's prices are adjusted for inflation, they turn out to be actually lower than the prices of 1966.

Now, all eyes are on President Reagan, short-term and long-term. That he endured the ordeal so well, and that the medical prognosis is good, clarifies the immediate future for everyone, investors included.

The longer term economic outlook isn't as clear. Some commentators foresee the Reagan anti-inflation program gaining sympathetic support, and that could affect the direction of prices and interest rates.

The marketplace, however, is likely to await concrete results. It has been waiting patiently for more than a decade, a time when interest rates and prices rose, and bond prices and common stocks plunged.

It now seems to have a "show me" attitude. It is watching the Reagan program day by day, and some say it is poised to leap at the first solid signs that a return to stability is a real possibility.

That is, investors await the day when they can see five years ahead rather than a week or month or two. They are seeking certainty, or at least, less uncertainty.

the question. Their spontaneous remarks should not be considered fact.

Hugh Benson's comments of a 90 percent usage at Rose and 50 percent usage at Aycock gives the implication that these percentages are of recurrent drinkers. Instead, if one reads the statement more carefully, they will find it is a combination of the people who have tried alcohol and also those who use alcohol regularly. Benson's statement and those presented by the other individuals had no basis as fact. The article itself pointed out that information was a guess and not documented.

Therefore, opinions are not fact and should not be classified as news. I think the singling out of Rose High and Aycock schools was totally uncalled for. The problem discussed is present in all high schools. The singling out of the two schools ruins their reputation. How about a word about Rose being among the top academic schools in the state and its competition in Division 14A sports?

I feel the students and faculty of Rose and Aycock deserve a formal apology.

Keith Stocks
Rose High Junior

To the editor:

I was a Daily Reflector paperboy for two years. In those two years, I tried to do a good job for your circulation. I must say that, after reading the headline of last Sunday's paper, I regret having anything to do with your newspaper.

The headlines read "Beer and Whiskey flow freely at Rose." What kind of headline is that! I admit that there is a large consumption of alcohol among minors, but this kind of headline for a teenage drinking problem is slanderous and misleading.

You seem to neglect the fact that J. H. Rose High School is one of the top academic schools in the state. Student and faculty work hard together to make Rose High School a school to take pride in and to look forward to graduation.

I feel you owe the students and faculty of Rose High School an apology. Greenville deserves an apology, too, for having supported your newspaper all these years as their only newspaper. All of the local high schools teach better journalism than that.

First Lady Said To Have Guilt Feeling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan has lost her appetite and has trouble sleeping since her husband was wounded during an assassination attempt, and she has cried with friends over the guilt she feels for not being with him when it happened, says one of the first lady's closest friends.

"Everytime I think about him in the back of that car without me..." the first lady was quoted as saying by her longtime friend, Nancy Reynolds, a vice president of the Bendix Corporation. She recounted the incident Thursday night.

The head of Reagan's Secret Service detail, Jerry Parr, shoved the president into the backseat of his limousine after six shots rang out as Reagan left a Washington hotel Monday.

The first lady, who had just returned from a luncheon in Georgetown, was informed of the shooting and told White House press secretary James S. Brady and others had been injured. She left immediately for the hospital, but did not learn until she arrived that her husband had been shot in the left lung.

Though Mrs. Reagan said she will "always feel a little bit guilty" that she was not with the president, Mrs. Reynolds said she tried to reassure her friend by saying that if anything had happened to her, it would have been twice as hard on Reagan.

"I think Wednesday was her worst day," Mrs. Reynolds said. "When I got to blubbing on the phone, we got choked up."

She said the petite first lady can't eat and has lost "four or five pounds, which she can ill afford."

Mrs. Reagan was exhausted and has not been sleeping well, according to Mrs. Reynolds. The first lady — alone at the White House since her children ended their brief visit Tuesday — gets up in the middle of the night, eats a piece of fruit and writes in the diary that Mrs. Reynolds once gave her.

Mrs. Reynolds said Mrs. Reagan and her husband both became tearful when they read a telegram from longtime friend and actor Jimmy Stewart. He said: "I would have taken that bullet."

gotten out of hand? "I would question some of the things which I have read in the papers..." the president responded. Would she take steps such as cutting off funds for the project or ordering it stopped?

"We plan to take a look and get the facts. If it has gotten out of hand, it would be up to the board to take whatever action they feel necessary," she responded.

Later talks with several NCAE staff and officials revealed a candid acceptance of the internal problems, and the hope that the present conflict can lead to positive action returning the NCAE to its once respected status as a professional association of educators.

$20 or one for $200, and in many places you can buy a gun with no questions asked.

Stalking a president is also no problem in a country where presidents mingle with the people. The opportunity to fire the gun is a matter of luck and daring. No Secret Service or umbrella of police personnel can protect a person from the stranger who is intent on shooting someone.

And sometimes the deed is carried out, as it was Monday, when a smiling president waved to a friendly crowd on the streets of the capital of the United States.

But presidents are not the only targets for the sick people who walk the land. The victims can also be John Lennon or a little black child in Atlanta.

And every time it happens, the American people rise up in anger and say "What can we do?"

Stop the sale of handguns? It might be a good beginning, but the gun lobby will never let it happen. Lock up every sick person in the country? It can't, and shouldn't be done.

The truth of the matter is that there is very little that can be done.

The brooding stranger, who dreams of taking his revenge, is always amongst us. But until the gun is fired, nobody knows his name.

Hospital Spokesman Denies Reagan In Danger

By MICHAEL PUTZEL, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan lost almost half his blood after he was shot in an assassination attempt and doctors said they "thought they might lose him" at first because of problems finding the wound, qualified medical sources say.

A hospital spokesman, who earlier had refused to comment on the report, denied today that Reagan ever was in danger of losing his life.

The sources' description of the first anxious moments at George Washington University Hospital on Monday conflicts with the earlier statement by the hospital's dean of clinical affairs — which he reiterated today — that the president "was in no time in any serious danger."

The spokesman, Dr. Dennis O'Leary, conceded at a White House briefing that his information came second- and third-hand from people who were in the emergency room when the president was being treated.

The sources who recounted the events to The Associated Press said doctors examining Reagan concluded shortly after he arrived at the hospital that he was in danger of slipping into fatal shock due to loss of blood.

O'Leary conceded that in his assessment, he was relying on information he obtained second- and third-hand from people he claimed were in the emergency room seconds after Reagan was brought in. The sources, however, including one of the senior physicians involved, said the primary sources O'Leary named did not arrive until after the problems had been found and treatment had begun.

White House officials had said they could neither confirm or deny the report. They had initially ordered hospital authorities not to discuss the account, given on condition the sources not be identified.

The sources said doctors described Reagan as "pretty ashen looking," as though he could be in shock, after he collapsed at the emergency room door and was caught by Secret Service agents and medics.

Reagan was hoisted quickly onto a stretcher, where doctors noticed that his blood pressure was low and falling rapidly. The New York Times quoted an intern, Dr. William O'Neill, as saying that the president's blood pressure was 78, lower than usual, but that it returned to normal after he lay down.

Dr. Solomon Edelstein, an anesthesiologist and director of the hospital's emergency services, said he arrived in the emergency room at least several minutes after Reagan. He gave the president's blood pressure as 80 — still low — but discounted reports that Reagan's life was in extreme danger.

The figures given by O'Neill and Edelstein were for the systolic, or upper, component of blood-pressure measurement. Doctors were unable to obtain the lower, or diastolic, reading because of background noise — a common occurrence.

Edelstein confirmed that Reagan almost fainted but attributed that to standing up for the first time after losing a significant amount of blood.

Other sources, however, said Reagan's blood pressure fell rapidly, suggesting he was bleeding heavily, but the doctors saw no immediate sign that he had been shot and the president, who remained conscious throughout the crisis, didn't realize it himself.

Hospital and White House authorities have said the 70-year-old Reagan complained of pain in his left side and said he was having difficulty breathing.

The sources said physicians examining Reagan with a stethoscope heard no breathing sounds on Reagan's left side, leading them to believe a lung had collapsed and that his chest cavity was filling with either air or blood. The doctors concluded, the sources said, that Reagan was in danger of slipping into fatal shock due to the loss of blood, but they still could find no ready explanation for the apparent internal hemorrhaging.

It was at that point, the sources said, that the doctors "thought they might lose him."

The problem, as doctors described it, was that the .22-caliber bullet that struck the president had entered his chest just below his left armpit and made a small, non-bleeding entry wound. The bullet hole was concealed by Reagan's upper arm as he lay on the emergency room table, the sources said.

With mounting evidence of internal bleeding, the doctors carefully searched for a wound and found the bullet hole. At that point, a drainage tube was inserted into Reagan's chest cavity and substantial quantities of blood began flowing out, the sources said.

Convinced then that the president was hemorrhaging, the medical team began giving the president five pints of blood by transfusion and were relieved that it could keep up with the rate of bleeding. Normally, an adult male has 10-12 pints of blood.

The president had lost nearly half his blood supply already and if he had continued to bleed faster than doctors could transfuse fresh blood into his circulatory system, he could not have survived long, the sources said.

After Reagan's condition

stabilized, the decision was made to perform exploratory surgery to remove the bullet and repair the damage to Reagan's lung, the sources said.

A senior physician who reached the emergency room five to seven minutes after the president said Reagan was saved by immediate blood transfusions. "My feeling is at no time in the emergency room was the president in danger, mainly because he was resuscitated immediately," said the doctor, who asked not to be identified. "If he had not been resuscitated immediately, he would have been in very serious danger."

Two Attend Conference

Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Blount, representatives of Pitt County, attended the North Carolina Foster Care Conference held in Alamance recently.

The theme for this year's Spring Conference was "Coping From the Foster Parent's Perspective".

Featured speakers were Carl and Rachel Rossow, founders of Alpha & Omega Family, a non-profit organization founded in 1974 and chartered to protect handicapped children by providing a home environment and family setting for handicapped children.

The Blounts received certificates for their participation in the "Who is an Abuser" workshop given by Jane Moss Brady, child abuse prevention service of Greensboro and "Communication With Your Kid" workshop given by Norman Godfrey, private marriage and family counselor and counselor for Christian Counseling Center, Burlington.

Mrs. Blount is presently the president of Pitt County Foster Parents' Association.

New Location

The P.I.T.T. for Christ Evangelistic Tabernacle will be holding services at its new location, 720 Atlantic Avenue.

Morning worship services will begin at 11:30 a.m. with pastor Evangelist Dr. Nina E. Blount speaking along with minister of music Deborah Carr and the Tabernacle True Salvation Choir. Evening services will begin with an hour of prayer at 7 p.m. and evangelistic services begin at 8 p.m. The public is invited.

Driver Course

Pitt Community College will offer an Adult Driver Training Course beginning Monday at 7 p. m. in Room 24 on campus.

The classroom portion will be held each Monday and Wednesday night from 7 to 10 p. m. for six weeks. Each student's driving schedule will be arranged with the instructor.

Cost of the course is $30. Anyone 18 years or older and not enrolled in a high school is eligible for the course. It is important that the Monday evening session be attended by anyone who wishes to take part. There will be limited enrollment. Registration will be conducted on a first-come, first-serve basis.

For further information, contact the Continuing Education Division of Pitt Community College, 756-3130, Ext. 238 or 266.

Revival Planned

The Rev. Churchill Thomas will conduct revival services at Selvia Chapel FWB Church, 1701 Green Street, Monday through Friday.

Services will begin at 7:30 each evening. Music will be furnished by different choirs of the city and by Wilson Chapel Choir Thursday night.

Rev. Thomas, a Greenville native and resident, is pastor of Wilson Chapel FWB Church in Wilson and is Bishop of the Northeast Annual Conference B Division of the United American Free Will Baptist Denomination.

The public is invited, says the pastor, the Rev. C. Gardner.

N.C. Infant Mortality Statistics Encourage

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's infant mortality rate is still the fourth highest in the nation, despite dropping 30 percent between 1973 and 1979, the state Department of Human Resources said Thursday.

The infant mortality rate is the proportion of babies who die before their first birthday.

Department representative June Milby said the statistics are encouraging. "What it means is we're doing a better job of saving premature infants," she said.

"But the battle is far from over. We still have a death rate of 15.7 per 1,000 births, which means for every 1,000 babies born, about 16 will die before they reach their first birthday. But in 1973, 21 babies would die for every 1,000 births."

Dr. Sarah T. Morrow, secretary of the department, said: "This is a clear indication that North Carolina's pregnant women and infants are getting healthier. I think that the decline can be attributed to better overall general health care, better nutrition and improved care during pregnancy and childbirth."

Ms. Morrow said a growing and closer partnership between public and private health care agencies and increased legislative support have helped reduce the mortality rate.

Even more significant, she said, is the increase in the survival rate of premature and low birthweight infants.

From 1973 to 1979, the death rate of infants at birth weighing three pounds or less declined by 14.1 percent and those weighing between three pounds and five pounds declined by 32.5 percent.

The death rate of infants of normal weight also dropped by 33.3 percent.

"We're still not preventing premature births, but we are doing a better job of saving them," Ms. Milby said.

She attributed the declining rate to mothers taking better care of themselves and their babies and to the state's system of perinatal care centers. The centers were funded beginning in 1974 by the North Carolina

Legislature, which now provides for 11 centers statewide.

The statistics show the death rate of babies from 20 weeks of pregnancy through the first 28 days of life declined by 30.7 percent, fetal mortality from 20 weeks of pregnancy through birth dropped 27.6 percent and neonatal mortality from birth through the first 28 days of life dropped 33.3 percent.

Prayer services will begin each evening at 7:30.

The pastor, Rev. Clifton Gardner, invites the public to attend.

Personal Pride — The Important Extra In Our Products

All too often these days when there is talk about American industry and its products, we hear that American workers no longer take pride in their jobs.

Buck Joyner, Earline Everette and Earl Rogers are bucking this trend, as are hundreds of other Farmville plant employees.

For 10 years, Buck has been an outstanding performer with us. A boiler and airconditioning mechanic, Buck plays a heavy role in keeping our utilities equipment operating smoothly. When we get new equipment, he is among the first to study its upkeep. "Things change so fast these days, you have to keep studying just to stay even," Buck says.

His dedication doesn't stop when he leaves the plant. During his leisure hours he serves as captain of the Hookerton Volunteer Fire Department and sergeant of the rescue squad. He's also a Runtan and a member of the Hookerton Christian Church.

Buck's contributions to his community are no secret. Last year he was named Fireman of the Year for the Hookerton District. He and his wife Louise, have two children, Renate and David.

The opening of the Farmville plant in 1963 ushered in a new period for Earline. (Mrs. L. R.) Everette. It marked her first job in the working world. She was one of the first three knitters trained and she has continued to grow in stature with the company. Today she is an "inside person," responsible for the meticulous and time-consuming tasks required to prepare a huge knitting machine for a new style. Hers is not a job for the careless, for tolerances are measured in millimeters and one slip can cost hundreds of dollars.

"My job is my bread and butter," she quips, "and I love bread and butter." Her care and concern carries over outside the plant. She manages a beautiful yard and garden, a ceramics hobby and a lot of miscellaneous chores. Aside from the joy she takes in her daughter and son-in-law, Earline receives her greatest satisfaction in an afternoon a week she spends assisting at a nursing home in Wilson.

"I started going there to visit my brother," she says, "but I've found so much pleasure working with other patients as well, that I'd make the trip even if I didn't have family ties there."

If Earl Rogers makes a mistake, a lot of expensive fabric winds up without a market. He puts a lot of extra effort and pride into making sure that mistakes don't happen.

Earl is a dye mixer, a vital link in the dyeing and finishing chain.

Dyestuffs must be selected with care, weighed with precision and mixed according to delicate formulas, for no customer will pay for fabrics which don't match specified shades.

"My parents taught me responsibility," Earl explains. "From my early childhood I had chores to do — and if I didn't do them I heard about it pretty quick. I found out that if I didn't do it right I had to do it again — and I fell behind with my other jobs. There was a lot less grief if I did it right the first time."

He brought an earnest enthusiasm to the job when he joined us more than 10 years ago and he's set a lot of good examples along the way.

Like Buck and Earline, Earl carries his personal pride with him on and off the job. He, his wife, Ada, and their four children live in Walstonburg. They belong to the Washington Branch FWB Church, where he serves as an usher and a trustee.

Life As It's Lived

Couples Take Chance In Playing Cards Together

By GAIL MICHAELS
Couples that stay together don't play cards together. At least, that's what I've always heard, and the evidence bears it out. For instance, I have learned from anonymous sources that my parents used to play bridge as partners when they were first married. But now they won't get within 10 feet of a bridge table together. If they are asked if they'd like to play a game or two, the expressions on their faces convey instantly a preference for almost any other form of entertainment short of a Wayne Newton telethon.

After nine years of marriage I'm beginning to understand their aversion. The few times Phillip and I have played cards together have been less than satisfactory. The problem stems from Phillip's peculiar attitude toward games. He says he plays for the fun of it, I play for the fun of it, too, but it's much more fun when I win.

In my defense I might add that his attitude changes when he plays a game like gin rummy. I have a sneaking suspicion that his love of the pastime results from the fact that he always wins.

But because I'm better at bridge and he's too lazy to catch up with me, he has concluded that he doesn't like it.

"You're just being stubborn," I told him while trying to convince him to accept an invitation to a couples bridge party. "Playing bridge is the only way to meet people in a small town."

"Then I'll have to become a hermit."

"And you don't care about my feelings at all?"

His eyes narrowed. "I don't remember your being especially sensitive to my feelings the last time we played."

"I merely questioned your choice of cards."

"You jumped up from your chair and shrieked, 'You trumped my king!'"

"I was upset. You could have won another trick if you hadn't done that."

"You called me stupid."

"Well, I apologized later, didn't I?"

"You embarrassed our opponents so badly that they hardly spoke for the rest of the evening."

"They were just speechless over your lack of skill."

"Now see what I mean? If you think I'm going to subject myself voluntarily to that kind of verbal abuse, you're crazy."

I was contrite. "Come on, Phillip, please. We haven't had any social life since we moved here. Please let me say that we'll go."

He sighed. "Oh, all right. I hate bridge and I hate playing it with you even more, but I'll go. And I'll try to enjoy the evening for your sake."

"Thank you, sweetheart. You won't be sorry. I promise I won't get upset or make snide remarks about the way you play." I paused. "Why are you looking like that?"

Phillip bore an infuriating resemblance to a Cheshire cat. "Something tells me that you're going to have a lot harder time keeping your end of the bargain than I am."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A CASE OF "WOMENS LIB" OVER THREE THOUSAND YEARS OLD!

IT IS RECORDED IN JUDGES, CHAPTERS 4+5 THAT DEBORAH (CIRCA 1296 B.C.) "...THE WIFE OF LAPIDOTH, JUDGED ISRAEL AT THAT TIME". THIS WAS BEFORE THE ADVENT OF KINGS. WHOEVER JUDGED ISRAEL WAS ACCREDITED LEADER OF ALL THE PEOPLE. DURING THIS PERIOD, THE ISRAELITES WERE BEING SEVERELY PERSECUTED BY A CANAANITE KING, NAMED JABIN, AND THEY APPEALED TO DEBORAH TO RID THEM OF HIS DOMINATION....

...DEBORAH APPOINTED A MAN OF GREAT VALOR, BARAK, TO LEAD TEN THOUSAND ISRAELITES AGAINST THE VAUNTED ARMY OF SISERA, KING JABIN'S GENERAL, WHO HAD NINE HUNDRED CHARIOTS OF IRON! BARAK, KNOWING DEBORAH ALSO AS A GREAT PROPHETESS AND SEER, INSISTED SHE BE WITH HIM ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE AND, BECAUSE OF THIS, SHE SAID THAT SISERA WOULD DIE BY A WOMAN'S HAND AND NOT BY A MAN'S... FOLLOWING DEBORAH'S ADVICE, BARAK ATTACKED THE CANAANITES FROM THE HEIGHTS OF MT. TABOR, DRIVING SISERA'S ARMY HARD AGAINST THE BANKS OF THE KISHON RIVER, WHERE HIS CHARIOTS COULD NOT MANEUVER AND, IN FACT, WHERE MANY OF THEM BOGGED DOWN AND WERE SWEEPED AWAY BY THE WATERS, GIVING ISRAEL A GREAT VICTORY!

THE GENERAL, SISERA, ESCAPED FROM THE BATTLE AND SOUGHT REFUGE BY HIDING IN THE TENT OF HEBER, THE KENITE. HERE, HEBER'S WIFE, Jael, SLEW HIM WHILE HE SLEPT—THUS FULFILLING DEBORAH'S PROPHECY AND PLACING HER NAME NEXT DEBORAH'S AS THE TWO PERSON'S MOST RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CRUSHING DEFEAT OF THE CANAANITES!

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed little change today, continuing Thursday's indecisive pattern. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.16 to 1,011.17 by noon. Gainers and losers ran about even in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Analysts said traders were caught up in some renewed uncertainty about interest-rate prospects. After declining earlier in the week, open-market money rates turned upward Thursday. In the economic news, the government reported that the producer price index of finished goods climbed 1.3 percent in March. Brokers described that sign of persistent strong inflationary pressures as no real surprise, however.

Shad Queen

GRIFTON — The 1981 Shad Queen will be selected tonight as 14 Grifton area girls compete in the 1981 Shad Queen Pageant, scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Grifton School.

Craig Webber of WCTI-TV will be master of ceremonies, according to chairman of the event, Sandra Craft. Entertainment, in addition to the contestants, will include western songs by two members of the Snow Hill Ramblers, a belly-dancing troupe from Goldsboro, and traditional clogging and banjo-playing from the Appalachian area by Pitt Community College visiting artist Beverly Cotten.

Decorations will follow the "Headin' For the Shad Roundup" theme.

The young ladies competing for the title of Miss Shad 1981 are: Aretha Cannon, Valerie Harris, Kim Oakes, Michelle Carmody, Sherry Pate, Diane Smith, Stephanie Muzikar, Gina Dixon, Lisa Tucker, Renee Watson, Mary Catherine Spikes, Cindy Cox, Lori Jackson, and Debra Gray. Last year's winner, Susan Howes, will relinquish her crown to one of these 14 contestants at the close of the pageant.

Pageant-goers are invited to stop by the Grifton School cafeteria afterwards for refreshments and "Shad-O."

Committee Is To Meet

The Project Review Committee of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency will meet April 23 at 7 p.m. at the Willis Building at the intersection of First and Reade Streets.

Projects to be reviewed include applications by the Pitt County Mental Health Center and Real Crisis Intervention Inc. for drug and alcohol services, prevention and education.

A 30 minute public hearing on projects to be reviewed is scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Information on project reviews may be had by contacting the director of project reviews for ECHSA, P. O. Drawer 7306, Greenville, or calling 758-1372.

Man Charged After Chase

Robert Allen Wilkins, 23, of 413 Nash St., was charged by Greenville police yesterday afternoon with speeding to elude arrest, failing to stop for a blue light and siren and having no liability insurance, following a chase.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the chase began near the intersection of Washington Street and Gum Road, continued along Church and Greene Streets to N.C. 11 North. The fleeing car turned off N.C. 11 at Wellcome Middle School and continued along rural roads until stopped on rural paved road 1417 about 2 1/2 miles from Forbes' Trailer Park.

Rampants Top Rocky Mount By 3-0

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Roger Williams hurled a neat 3-hit shutout as Rose High School jumped on Rocky Mount's Gryphons for a 3-0 victory yesterday.

extra bases, including doubles by Mark Douglas and Kenny Barnes and a home run by Emmett Walsh. All three of those hits played a role in the scoring.
The victory evened the Rampant record a 1-1 against Division I competition, and handed the Gryphons their first loss of the year in conference play.

"Our aim at the start of the week was to have no worse than a split out of these two games," Coach Ronald Vincent said, in reference to this game and Tuesday's with Northern Nash. In that earlier game, Rose bowed, 5-4, on a grand-slam homer in the final inning.

"Our defense is playing well," Vincent said after the error free performance by the Rampants. "(Gordon) Douglas did a good job at third, making several key plays, and Walsh did a fine job behind the plate.

"We're still swinging the bats pretty good. Although we didn't get a lot of hits, we made good contact."
Vincent wasn't happy about a couple of baserunning errors the Rampants made that took them out of scoring opportunities, however.

In the first inning, leadoff batter Tom Buie walked, but was then picked off by lefthander Bill Wilkes.
Later, in the third, Rose had gotten Paul MacMillian and Buie on board via walks with only one out, only to see another mistake. A Wilkes pitch in the dirt was blocked by catcher Ted Reece, but the ball bounced away from him down the third base line. As he scrambled after it, both runners left the bases, but MacMillian stopped. Buie, trying to go back to first, was chased down by Reece, who finally made the tag near second. MacMillian, who broke late to third was thrown out at that base.

After the third inning disaster, Rose came back to add two insurance runs in the fourth. Mark Douglas opened the inning with a double to center. He scored on Mitch Brann's single to center after advancing on a wild pitch. After Brann moved up on a passed ball, Walsh was intentionally walked and Williams reached on a fielder's choice, getting Brann. Barnes then doubled to score courtesy runner Sammy Hodges.
Rose offered no other threat. The win boosted the Rose record to 1-1 in Division I play and to 6-1 overall. Rocky Mount falls to 1-1 in the league and 6-2 overall.

Rose returns to action on Saturday, traveling to Kinston for a 2 p.m. game

Mental Mistake Costs Pirates

RALEIGH — When a fielder makes an error, he will usually hang his head in disgust, kick the dirt and get back to the business of playing baseball.
But yesterday at N.C. State's Doak Field, East Carolina's Mike Sorrell was probably wishing he could crawl under second base and hide.
Sorrell lost track of how many outs there were, and it cost the Pirates a chance at sweeping a two-game set from the Wolfpack this year. Instead, the Pack came away from the game with a 4-3 victory.
East Carolina had earlier beaten State, 2-0, in Greenville.

runners advanced on a long fly out by Chuckie Cannady.
Chris Baird then followed with a triple, scoring both runners to tie it at 3-3. Ron Wojkovich then walked, putting runners on the corners with just one out.
It was then that memory fled Sorrell. Tim Barbour grounded back to shortstop Kelly Robinette, who picked up the ball close to second and flipped to Sorrell. It was the start of an easy double play that would get the Pirates out of the inning without further damage.
But Sorrell, after taking the throw, began to trot toward the dugout. He later said he had thought the force-out at second was the third out. Meanwhile, Baird trotted home with what proved to be the winning run, as Barbour raced safely to first.

East Carolina had gained the lead in the game in the third inning, scoring a pair of runs. With one out, Sorrell singled to left and moved up on a hit by Todd Evans. Sage then tripled down the right field line, scoring both Sorrell and Evans.
State rallied for one in the bottom of the same frame. Ken Sears singled with one out and stole second. He scored when Meadows singled to left.
In the fifth, the Pirates pushed over another run to take their brief 3-1 lead. Robinette singled and Sorrell got a hit. Evans hit into a fielder's choice that got Sorrell at second, and Sage followed with a hit, scoring Robinette.
But it wasn't to be, as State came back to score three in the bottom of the inning, taking the lead for good.
East Carolina did manage to threaten, in the final inning, as Robinette and Sorrell both singled with two away, but a pop-up by John Hallow ended the game.

East Carolina outlasted State, 9-7, with Robinette and Sorrell each having two hits and Sage getting a pair. Meadows and Cannady each had two hits for the Wolfpack.
East Carolina dips to 14-6 with the loss, while State climbs to 23-6, having won their last ten in a row.
The loss was also the first tagged on Rick Ramey this season. He went five and two-thirds innings, giving up all seven hits. Only two of the four runs against him were earned, in comparison to all three of the ECU runs being earned. Robbie Harper, in relief, shut down State the rest of the way, not giving up a hit in two and a third frames.
East Carolina continues its road trip today, traveling to Charlotte to face UNCC. They are in Buies Creek for a doubleheader against Campbell on Saturday, then are in Norfolk, Va., on Monday against Old Dominion. The Pirates return home on Tuesday for a 7 p.m. game against North Carolina.

Kratzert, Haas Share First Round Lead

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Bill Kratzert and Jay Haas shared the lead in the $300,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament when today's second round began, but it was understandable if they were casting anxious glances over their shoulders.
For there, only a single stroke off the pace, loomed the formidable figure of Lee Trevino.

Only an 18th hole lapse — following a string of five consecutive birdies — kept Trevino away from a tie for the first round lead, set at 68 by Haas and Kratzert.
"I'm starting to strike the ball pretty well again," said Trevino, who rewarded his big gallery with that exciting burst of birdies coming home

Thursday on the 6,984-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course.
And, said Trevino, who shot a 3-under-par 69 in the warm, sunny weather, he may have something else going for him.
"I like this golf course," he said. "It's a U.S. Open-type course. They could play the Open here. But if they ever let the rough grow up, it'd take two weeks to finish it."

Trevino, of course, generally recognized as one of the finest shotmakers in golf's history, has a record of success on the tougher courses, the U.S. Open-type courses. He's won the American national championship two times, along with two British Opens, and last year won the Vardon Trophy with the lowest stroke average in 20 years.

"I like these courses where you know nobody is going to burn it up, where par is a good score," Trevino said.
He was tied with George Burns, Larry Nelson, Leonard Thompson, Doug Black and rookie Tim Norris.
Lanny Wadkins topped a big group at 70. Tom Weiskopf, needing a victory here to qualify for next week's Masters, shot a 71. Defending champion Craig Stadler was another stroke back at 72.
Bill Rogers, winner of last week's Heritage Classic, slipped to a 75. Seve Ballesteros of Spain, the current Masters titleholder and a former winner here, struggled to a 76 and must improve today if he is to make the cut for the final two rounds.
Burns, like Weiskopf, needs to win here to make it to the Masters. And it's very much on his mind.
"I needed a round like this," Burns said. "I've been in a semi-slump. But I always seem to play well here."

Jags Win, 3-2

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central squeezed out a run in the seventh inning to nip Southern Nash, 3-2, in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game yesterday.
The win was the second in six ECC games so far this year for the Jaguars, and their third in eight overall starts.
Farmville took the lead in the second, scoring a single run. Mike Tugwell walked and Jeff Moore reached on an error. Eddie Jones singled, scoring Tugwell. In the third, the Jaguars got another run for a 2-0 lead. Greg Hardison reached on an error and was sacrificed up. Tugwell walked, and Moore singled, scoring Hardison.
Southern Nash rallied for two in the fourth to tie it up. McCullen Wiggins walked and was sacrificed up. Elvis Perry reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. Both runners scored when Nathan Manning singled.

Farmville got the winning run in the bottom of the seventh. Joey Steppe singled and Wade Corbett walked. Hardison then doubled to score Steppe with the game-ender.
No one on either team had more than one hit.
Farmville returns to action on Tuesday, hosting North Lenoir.

Rose Tops Farmville

Rose High School added a seventh victim to its growing list for 1981 with a 30-stroke golf victory over Farmville Central yesterday.
Rose toured the Brook Valley Country Club course in 304 strokes, while Farmville finished with 334.
Jack Mann led the Rampants with 37-36-73. Tom Brewer was next with 40-36-76, followed by Scott Wilson, 37-40-77 and Brian Hill, 38-40-78.
Gary Hobgood led Farmville with a 39-38-77 round. Jeff Cutler carded a 45-39-84, while Bert Warren had 43-43-86 and Alan Wooten had 44-43-87.
Rose, now 7-0, has won 117 straight matches. The Rampants travel to Rocky Mount on Monday to meet the other Division I teams.
Farmville returns to action on Tuesday, visiting Ayden-Grifton.

Can Brett, Royals Make An Encore?

Last of a Series
By HERSCHEL NISSENEN
AP Sports Writer

What can George Brett and the Kansas City Royals do for an encore? Well, Brett can hit .400 and the Royals can win the world championship.

They fell a mite short of those goals a year ago. Brett wound up at .390 — best in the majors since Ted Williams hit .406 in 1941 — after flirting with the magic .400 mark while the Royals lost the World Series in six games to the Philadelphia Phillies and had to be content with an American League playoff sweep of the New York Yankees.

Brett, who drove in 118 runs in just 117 games, isn't Kansas City's only sweet swinger. First baseman Willie Aikens hammered 20 homers and sent home 98 runs and Willie Wilson hit .326, rapped out 230 hits and stole 79 bases. Wilson will play center field this year while Amos Otis goes to left.

Clint Hurdle is back in right, Hal McRae returns as the DH and the Royals have a slick double play combination in second baseman Frank White and shortstop U.L. Washington. The major loss is catcher Darrell Porter, who opted for free agency. His replacement, John Wathan, lacks Porter's power but has a higher average and can steal a base, like most of the jackrabbits Royals.

The pitching staff is again headed by Dennis Leonard, Larry Gura and Paul Splittorf. Another big year from submarining reliever Dan Quisenberry (12-7 with 33 saves) is a must.

Despite the loss of Porter, Manager Jim Frey says the Royals "have fewer questions than last year. We know Washington is set at shortstop and that Aikens is sound physically and can play on an everyday basis. Hurdle is more established and Quisenberry has removed most of our questions in the bullpen."

The Oakland A's have plenty of questions in their bullpen, which is why starters Mike Norris, Rick Langford, Matt Keough, Steve McCatty and Brian Kingman accounted for 93 complete games. The A's also need help in the infield, especially up the middle. Dave Revering at first and Wayne Gross at third supply power, as does catcher Jeff Newman.

Manager Billy Martin produced a hustling club that climbed from seventh to second in the standings while attendance jumped by more than a half-million. Martin is the general manager, as well, and baseball won't have Charlie Finley to kick around any more. The A's are now owned by the folks who run Levi Strauss & Co.

Martin installed such an aggressive running game that left fielder Rickey Henderson stole 100 bases, an AL record. He is part of a superb outfield that includes Dwayne Murphy and Tony Armas. Mitchell Page and Cliff Johnson form a potent DH duo.

"When I took over the A's last year, all I kept hearing was how bad a team they were," says Martin, "but after watching them in spring training camp I realized that we had a good group of young players that just had to be taught how to win."

The Minnesota Twins finished a surprising third under Gene Mauch and Johnny Goryl. The latter starts his first full season as a major league manager, hoping for big years from shortstop Roy Smalley and catcher Butch Wynegar. The usually tight-fisted Twins signed both to lucrative contracts.

The Twins' success will depend on pitching and outfield defense, Goryl says. Minnesota got rid of one of its best hitters, sending Ken Landreaux to Los Angeles for third baseman outfielder Mickey Hatcher.

There are plenty of other outfield candidates, although the infield seems set with Ron Jackson, Rob Wilfong, Smalley and John Castino reading from first base to third. Aging Jerry Kosman anchors a questionable starting corps while the Twins could use a left-hander to go with 1980 rookie sensation Doug Corbett in the bullpen.

Don Zimmer, canned as Boston's manager, resurfaced at Texas. The Rangers have new ownership, which is bound to be more stable than the Brad Corbett regime.

Zimmer inherits some nifty ballplayers — third baseman Buddy Bell, outfielders Al Oliver and Mickey Rivers, second baseman Bump Wills, catcher Jim Sundberg, first baseman Pat Putnam. To shore up a defensive weakness at shortstop, the Rangers acquired Mario Mendoza from Seattle and Mark Wagner from Detroit.

With first baseman Lamar Johnson, third baseman Jim Morrison and outfielders Chet Lemon and Harold Baines, the Sox now have some sock.

They still need more defense to support a talented pitching staff that includes Britt Bruns, Steve Trout, Richard Dotson, Lamarr Hoyt and relief ace Ed Farmer.

The California Angels, power-rich but pitching-poor, signed free agents Geoff Zahn and Bill Travers and traded for Ken Forsch to cure an injury-plagued mound staff. Assuming the rest of the Angels stay healthy, the club could challenge the team record of 866 runs in 1979.

The lineup is guaranteed to give opposing pitchers nightmares: Brian Downing and Ed Ott behind the plate; Rod Carew, Bobby Grich, Rick Burleson and Butch Hobson in the infield; Don Baylor, Fred Lynn and Dan Ford in the outfield.

Maury Wills, Seattle's speed-minded manager, has second baseman Julio Cruz, and lots of left feet. Also, gaping holes at catcher and shortstop. Outfielders Richie Zisk, Jeff Burroughs and Dan Meyer are longball threats, especially in the cozy Kingdome, and third baseman Dave Edler looks like the real thing.

Wills is trying to find a place for fleet Kim Allen, who stole a Pacific Coast League record 84 bases last year. Starter Floyd Bannister and reliever Shane Rawley head a shell-shocked pitching staff.

Rampettes Bow

Rocky Mount's Lady Gryphons pushed over 18 runs in the second inning and went on to record a 25-12 softball victory over Rose High School yesterday.

The loss was the second straight to Division I competition by the Rampettes, who saw their overall record evened out at 4-4.

Rocky Mount, after gaining a 2-1 lead in the first, put the game away with the 18 in the second inning, taking a 20-1 edge at that point.

Rocky Mount blasted three homers during the game, two by Bynum. One was a solo shot in the first and the other a three-run homer in the second. Lee also had a three-run homer, that coming in the third.

Rose had two homers. Frances Barnhill had a three-run homer in the third, while Linda Winstead equalled that with a round-tripper in the sixth.

Susie Kinley and Karen Lang led the Rose hitting with two each, while Janet Mizelle added a triple.

The Rampettes return to action on Tuesday, traveling to Beddingfield.

What do you get when you put Mocap and Di-System together?

Nematodes, wireworms and flea beetles. That's what you get.

You already know how effective Mocap® nematocide-insecticide is in controlling nematodes and wireworms in tobacco. But did you know there are two Mocap products that can help you get flea beetles as well. Mocap Plus 10-5G and Mocap Plus 4-2EC contain Di-System® for systemic control of flea beetles. And that means even better protection for your valuable tobacco crop.

When you come to buy Mocap for this year's crop, ask about Mocap Plus. Because when it comes to Mocap, there's more than one good way to put it together.

Sixers Eliminate Pacers In Two Straight

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers' playoff experience, and Indiana's lack of it, helped end the Pacers' first-ever appearance in the National Basketball Association playoffs with a two-game sweep.

Philadelphia's Julius Erving had a game-high 23 points as the 76ers advanced to the Eastern Conference semifinals against Milwaukee with a 96-85 victory over Indiana Thursday night. The Bucks-76ers series will open Sunday in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia led all the way against Indiana, turning back the Pacers' attempts to rally in the second half.

"We got up on them, they challenged us, but we had enough to reach back," said Erving. "Our playoff experience helped us."

The victory gave Philadelphia an 8-0 record against the Pacers this season — six of the victories coming in the regular season and two in the playoffs.

"Playoff experience might have been the difference," agreed Indiana Coach Jack McKinney, who guided the Pacers to their first winning season and first playoff berth since the team joined the NBA in 1976. "We did make a lot of costly errors and we missed a lot of nice shots."

The Pacers shot just 38 percent from the field, making 35 of 91 shots.

"We were right there in the game," said Indiana guard Johnny Davis, who topped the Pacers with 21 points. "But we made a few mistakes in the fourth quarter that enabled them to build the lead back. From then on it was an uphill struggle."

Indiana, which trailed 52-41 at halftime, closed to within three points, 68-65, with 1:55 remaining in the third quarter. Darryl Dawkins then scored the final points of the period in a layup to start a 9-0 Philadelphia spurt. Dawkins also got the final basket of the surge to give the 76ers a 77-65 advantage with 10:29 remaining.

"The key was that we played defense as well as you can play it early in the fourth quarter," said Cunningham. "Our aggressive defense was magnificent. We helped each other and closed off the lanes."

Cunningham and Dawkins both said an improved performance by Indiana center James Edwards made victory more difficult than Tuesday, when the 76ers coasted to a 124-108 triumph in the first game of the best-of-three series. Edwards was scoreless in the first game but had 14 points this time.

"Edwards was a different ballplayer tonight," said Cunningham. "We couldn't give our centers any help and we got in foul trouble."

"They looked to go to Edwards more tonight," said Dawkins. "He moved around a lot more. It did create some problems and he got a lot of good screens."

For the second consecutive game, the 76ers got double-figure scoring from two reserves. Forward Bobby Jones contributed 14 points and guard Andrew Toney 10 to Philadelphia's total.

For Indiana, rookie Louis Orr came off the bench to score 16 points.

The other three mini-series resume tonight with New York at Chicago, Los Angeles at Houston and Portland at Kansas City. All three home teams are trying to wrap up their series.

Artis Gilmore was the dominant player in the Bulls' 90-80 victory in the opener at New York with 13 points, 16 rebounds and seven blocked shots.

Instead of driving the middle and challenging the Bulls' 7-foot-2 center, the Knicks are expected to pull up and take jumpers. New York also is hopeful of running against Chicago rather than playing a slower, half-court game.

Houston surprised the Lakers 111-107 in Los Angeles in their opener as Moses Malone outplayed Kareem Abdul-Jabbar in the battle of the pivot. Malone outscored Abdul-Jabbar 38-25 and out-rebounded him 23-15.

The Lakers started the game with 6-11 forward Jim Chones guarding the 6-10 Malone, then switched to the 7-2 Abdul-Jabbar. But neither could contain the aggressive Houston center, who was the league's leading rebounder and No. 2 scorer during the regular season. A Houston victory tonight would bring an abrupt end to the Lakers' hopes of becoming the NBA's first repeat champion since the 1968-69 Boston Celtics.

Jackets Top Redskin Team

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Roanoke Rapids won the mile relay, the last event of the day, to edge Roanoke, 65-63, Thursday afternoon in a Northeastern Conference track meet.

The Redskins led, 63-60, going into the mile relay but the Yellow Jackets team ran the relay in a time of 3:46.5 to capture the five first-place points and the victory.

Roanoke had eight first place finishers, led by Ricky Highsmith and Ronnie Broadie, both of whom won two events.

Highsmith captured the high jump with a leap of 5-10 and the triple jump with a jump of 42-3. Broadie captured the 400-yard dash with a time of 55.6 and the 200-yard dash with a clocking of 23.3.

Other winners for the Redskins were: Fred Williams in the long jump with a leap of 19-10; Donny Wallace in the shot put with a throw of 51-6; Donnell Sheppard in the 100-yard dash with a time of 10.5.

Roanoke's 440-yard relay team also captured first place with a time of 47.0. Running for the Redskins were Dwayne Lanier, Sheppard, Anthony Howell and John Jackson.

Summary:
Long jump — Williams (R) 19-10 (won on better second jump); Howell (R) 19-10; Harris (R) 18-8; High jump — Highsmith (R) 5-10; Munson (RR) 5-8; Harris (RR) 5-7; Shot put — Wallace (R) 51-6; Andrews (R) 45-11; Wood (RR) 38-6.

High Stakes In 'Masada' Film

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's star-studded, lavishly costumed "Masada," probably the most expensive television miniseries ever produced, is about to be broadcast in an atmosphere of controversy and high-stakes competition for viewers.

Yigal Yadin, the Israeli archaeologist who excavated the mountaintop fortress that is the locale for "Masada," said Thursday in Jerusalem he is concerned the eight-hour ABC miniseries will distort what his people consider a sacrosanct chapter of their history.

Yadin, a deputy prime minister who worked at the desert site from 1963 to 1965, acknowledged he had not seen the film but had heard "from people whose opinion I trust and who have seen it." Based on their information, he said, the drama does not follow historical events as he understands them.

ABC's "Masada," to be broadcast each evening, Sunday through Wednesday, 9-11 p.m. EST, is a spectacular dramatization of the Roman siege 2,000 years ago of the Judean fortress and takes as its focus the mass suicide of 960 Jewish zealots.

It was produced at a reported cost of $23 million, and ABC hopes the investment will pay off as "Roots" did in 1977. "Roots," broadcast over nine nights, became the most-watched TV miniseries ever and helped establish ABC as the No. 1 network in prime-time.

ABC relinquished that position to CBS last season, and network executives have been criticized in recent months for failing to present programming that would reverse the rival network's momentum.

Yadin said he was concerned the TV drama gives equal weight to the roles of Eleazar Ben-Yair, the leader of the zealots, and the Roman commander, Silva. He maintained that compared with the epic scope of the zealots' act, the Roman role was secondary.

He said he also was worried about reports that Peter O'Toole, who plays Silva, was better cast and more compelling a figure than Peter Strauss, as Ben-Yair.

ABC, in a statement, said, "Professor Yadin did not see the film, and we believe that when he does, his fears will vanish. Hundreds of members of Jewish organizations, and a number of Israeli officials, have seen 'Masada' and expressed their admiration for it...."

"As far as giving equal weight to the leading roles," the ABC statement continued, "it is the playwright's prerogative to strengthen or weaken a character to heighten or intensify the drama. 'Masada' is not a documentary, it is being presented as 'An ABC Novel for Television.'"

"As for casting," ABC said, "Peter Strauss was chosen because he is an Emmy-winning actor ('Jericho Mile') and one of the finest young actors in America. Peter O'Toole was selected for his international reputation as an actor."

Yadin said he especially was concerned about reports he had received suggesting the producers had insinuated a parallel between the events at Masada and the Jonestown massacre in Guyana three years ago.

"At no time did ABC or any of the producers ever draw a parallel between Masada and Jonestown," the network said in response. "Moreover, we see no such parallel, and there is none." Masada, a colossal hunk of dolomite rearing 1,400 feet out of the desert near the Dead Sea, is regarded by many Israelis with reverence. Masada, Yadin has written, is "a chapter both splendid and tragic which, for many generations, was the symbol of the zealots' resolution never to be slaves." Today, he said, "Masada has become a challenge and warning that Masada will never fall again."

FTC May Wind Up TV Commercials Study

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission is considering ending its investigation into whether commercials on children's television are deceptive following a staff report that there would be no practical solution in any case.

The report, issued Thursday, said the only effective remedy would be a ban on all such advertisements but added, "Such a ban, as a practical matter, cannot be implemented."

The report was criticized by a spokeswoman for Action for Children's Television, one of the groups that originally requested the FCC investigation.

"These FTC staff recommendations threaten the health of American children," spokeswoman Peggy Charren said.

She charged that many ads aimed at young children are for sugary cereals and other sweets that can lead to tooth decay, a major childhood disease.

Ms. Charren said her group plans to carry on its work, "concentrating on a case-by-case basis," whatever the final decision of the commission.

The National Association of Broadcasters, on the other hand, was pleased with what it termed a "reasonable recommendation."

"Broadcasters and advertisers have their responsibilities. Parents must be keenly aware of what their children watch, it is not the role of government or television to be their surrogate," said NAB president Vincent T. Wasilweski. Although the report concluded that nothing can be done about the problem, it said the staff investigation found support for three basic conclusions that children aged 6 and under:

—Do not possess the ability to adequately evaluate advertising directed at them.

—Place indiscriminate trust in televised advertising messages.

—Do not understand the persuasive bias of ads.

The report noted that since the investigation was launched in 1978, the advertising and broadcasting industries have voluntarily increased the amount of nutritional and health information provided for youngsters.

The final decision on whether to discontinue the investigation will be made by the full commission, following a period of public comment. As to the sugared cereal advertising aimed at children under age 12, the staff said the evidence is inconclusive as to whether these ads affect children's attitudes about nutrition.

While tooth cavities are a major childhood disease and sugar contributes to forming cavities, the staff said, "there is no accepted scientific methodology for determining a specific food's capacity to cause cavities."

Meanwhile, the Federal Communications Commission has been developing regulations covering children's programming. That group decided in 1979, however, not to take any action on advertising aimed at children beyond the guidelines that have been in effect since 1974.

Uniform Sentencing Amendments Go To Senate

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Senate leaders prepared to do battle today over a set of amendments that, among other things, would significantly lower the prison sentences set forth in the uniform-sentencing act.

Tentative approval was given to the amendments Thursday, in a 47-0 vote. There was little debate on the amendments after Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green urged the senators to give the bill a second reading and hold the lengthy debate for the final reading today.

The amendments, originally introduced in the Senate, were changed by the House Judiciary I Committee and are required to be approved again by the Senate before they can become law.

The uniform-sentencing act, approved by the General Assembly in 1979, sets out prison sentences for certain crimes. A judge may vary from the sentences, but he must list the mitigating or aggravating reasons for doing so.

Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Goldsboro, explained the House version of the amendments reduces the prison sentences in increments ranging from six months to five years and opens the way for more appeals of the sentences.

"If you support fair sentencing, you should like these amendments," Barnes said. "If you oppose fair sentencing, you should like these amendments."

Sen. R.C. Soles, D-Taber City, also urged the legislators to pass the amendments.

"The problem is that (in 1977, when uniform sentencing was approved) the state of North Carolina was sold a bill of goods," he said. "This makes something passed two years ago better."

In other legislative action:

Loans
Several members of the House Banking Committee, as they began considering two bills to raise interest rates on most kinds of consumer loans, questioned the need for a floor on such rates.

The banking bills set new interest rate ceilings on installment loans, such as loans for auto purchases, on second mortgages and on contract loans, such as 90-day notes. The limits would apply to loans of $25,000 or less.

The bills establish rates under a formula setting the limit at least 6 percentage points above the published rate on six-month Treasury bills auctioned weekly by the government. But the bills also allow lenders to charge as much as 16 percent on such loans regardless of how low national money market rates fall.

Senate opponents of the 16-percent cutoff failed to amend the bill to allow the rates to float up and down freely. But the Senate criticism was echoed by several members of the House committee.

Legislators
The Senate Constitutional Amendments Committee appeared responsive to a measure that would make legislators' terms four years in length. But the committee postponed a vote on the measure until next week.

Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Goldsboro, who introduced the bill, said 38 states elect some legislators for four years, 96 counties in North Carolina elect commissioners for four years and more than half the cities in the state elect town councilmen to four-year terms.

"There are a lot of people out there who can't run because it's such a sacrifice," Barnes said. "I don't want the Legislature to be made up of retired people and rich people. I think this would encourage the average person (to run)."

Child Support
A bill that would give both parents of a child equal responsibility for the child's support in case of divorce won approval from the House Judiciary I Committee. Current laws give the father primary responsibility for supporting the child.

Trials
Supreme Court Justice David Britt appeared before a Senate committee to urge passage of a bill that would require attorneys object to jury instructions before jury deliberations begin.

"Now that many trial lawyers also appear regularly in federal courts ... they could easily adjust to following the same procedure in state courts," Britt said, noting that federal courts already have instituted the rule.

But Sen. Henson Barnes,

D-Goldsboro, compared the practice to reading each bill before the Legislature aloud and asking legislators to correct each mistake without seeing a written copy of the bill.

The Senate Judiciary III Committee did not vote on the measure.

ERA
The subject of the Equal Rights Amendment was re-surrected briefly when Sen. Carolyn Mathis, D-Charlotte, read a response to an editorial by Greensboro television station WFMY that had been distributed to legislators.

The editorial condemned a written agreement, signed by several male leaders of the Senate, not to bring up the constitutional amendment during this session of the Legislature.

Mrs. Mathis, in the statement, agreed the ERA should not be discussed and supported the written agreement.

She said the constitutional amendment's chances died when a majority of ERA opponents were elected to the Legislature, and "the deal only provided a quiet burial (for the ERA)."

Her comments provoked quick response from the other two women in the Senate — with Sen. Rachel Gray, D-High Point, pledging to continue to speak out for the ERA, and Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gastonia, strongly criticizing the written agreement not to bring up the issue.

Teachers
The Senate, crowded with representatives of the N.C. Alliance for Public Education, suspended the rules to allow the Asheville High School band and a Marine ROTC group to make a short presentation on the flag.

The alliance is a coalition which includes members of the state Congress of Parents and Teachers, the N.C. School Boards Association, the N.C. Association of School Administrators and the N.C. Association of Education Office Personnel.

Microelectronics
A letter distributed Thursday to state legislators from the Durham-based N.C. Occupational Safety and Health Project condemns the proposed Microelectronics Center as a health hazard.

The group contends the center, strongly supported by Gov. Jim Hunt, would bring dangerous industrial chemicals into the state. As a result, the group says, legislators should establish a task force to study what impact a microelectronics center would have on the state.

New Bills
Sen. Bob Wynne, D-Raleigh, filed two bills that would affect state school bus drivers. One would require that bus drivers have one year of driving experience before being hired to drive a school bus. The other bill would appropriate funds to pay an average of $4 an hour for bus drivers.

A bill filed by Rep. Doug Clark, D-Kenansville, would change the way the 1 cent sales tax is distributed to counties, raise the tax from 3 cents to 4 cents in Burke County and would repeal the $10 sales tax limit in Mecklenburg County.

Other bills filed in the House would promote public and private ridesharing and increase the compensation of emergency justices and judges in the state.

A bill filed by Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gastonia, and others, would repeal the New Generation Act, pushed through by Gov. Jim Hunt in 1979 and later opposed by fundamentalist Christian groups.

Other new Senate bills would increase penalties for illegal sales of firearms and for rustling of cattle, horses and mules.

ST. MATTHEW CHURCH
The Rev. Stacy Smith and family of New Bern will hold services at St. Matthew Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Smith's seven-year-old daughter will be the special singer. The public is invited, according to Pastor Cobb.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 4-3

NUVF NHNC NHMTG UV THNC
HS VUSNF EGM SUVGEF

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — BUSY BUSINESSMAN HURRIES WITH MATE ON WAY TO NOWHERE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: F equals Y

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Program Set At St. James

"Sonlife" will be presented by the Oakmont Baptist Church Chapel Choir at the St. James United Methodist Church Sunday evening at 7:30.

The program is a musical expression of spiritual renewal and will be directed by Treva Fidler. The public is invited to attend.

The narrator for the musical is Glenn Dykstra. There will be 20 members of the 40-voice choir participating in solo parts. Choir members range in age from 13 to 25.

Jim Perkins and Ronnie Tripp will be in charge of the program's audio.

The choir will be performing the program in several other cities and also for one performance in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

A nursery will be provided at the church during the program.

SUNDAY SPEAKER

GRIMESLAND — The Rev. Elisha Crandall Jr. will preach at the St. Monica Church Sunday afternoon at 3:30. The program is being sponsored to aid the Women's Day service to be observed in May.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a good day to look over your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Devise quicker ways to handle chores. Maintain a cheerful manner at all times.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make plans to gain your finest aims. Make certain that you understand exactly what close ties expect of you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can now develop good ideas for improving your personal and business life. Use tact in handling a communication.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take time to go over business matters with others for mutual gain. Try to be more understanding of others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take steps to cooperate more with close ties instead of bucking them and you get good results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) There is much work ahead of you so waste no time early in the day in accomplishing your tasks. Control your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Stay within your budget if you go out for amusement or you will regret it later. Engage in favorite hobby.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle routine chores early in the day and bring more concord at home. Plan how to add to present income via new interest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study your monetary position and figure out a sensible way to improve it. Make needed property repairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to improve the quality of your life through idealistic concepts. Make this a most productive day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Making plans early in the day to gain your personal goals is wise. Take it easy tonight and express happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get in touch with fine friends who can help you solve a delicate problem. Take good care of your health.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to make your future brighter and then visit with friends and have a good time. Strive for happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will find the right philosophy to follow at a comparatively young age and it will last a lifetime. Teach to handle money wisely, and to be more considerate of others. Don't neglect religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

No one likes to be in a position of having to guess right to make a contract. It is far more satisfying to have your opponents resolve your problems for you.

The auction was routine. South showed a balanced hand of 16-18 points, and North's 11 points were adequate for game with something to spare, but not enough for slam.

West led the seven of diamonds, and South captured East's jack with the queen. There were now eight tricks on top and several possibilities for developing a ninth: the hearts could split evenly, which would give declarer the fulfilling trick with his long heart; or either black suit finesse could succeed. Though the combined odds on one of these chances materializing are tremendous, notice that, as the cards lie, all are fated to come to naught. Yet declarer experienced no undue difficulty in bringing home his contract.

First declarer tested the hearts, and he was only mildly disappointed when West sluffed a club on the third round—that meant that West's diamond lead was almost surely from a long suit. Rather than commit himself to either black suit finesse, he next cashed the ace of diamonds, and was highly gratified when East discarded on this trick. The contract could now be underwritten.

Declarer continued with another diamond, and West found himself on play. He could cash two more diamonds, but there was no escaping declarer's web. He was down to nothing but black cards, and he was reduced to a Hobson's choice. Whether he led away from his queen of spades or king of clubs, it would be into one of declarer's tenaces and would present South with a gift of the game-going trick.

How do you choose the best opening leads? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

The secret that time forgot.

Back in 1946, when we first opened on the corner of 14th and Evans, Overton's wasn't much different from the three or four other grocery stores in town. We started with two men (both of whom still work at Overton's). Both of these men cared about quality products and the "extra" service that keeps customers coming back. Because if those customers didn't come back for groceries, our two men knew they wouldn't last very long.

Vance Overton was one of those two men. Sam Davis was the other. And they had a secret they passed on to all of us. Hard work and customer service. Often, they'd drive to Raleigh's Farmer's Market before sunrise to make sure the produce was fresh each day. They'd give each customer a friendly greeting when the customer came in. And these two men would never leave the store 'till the work was done.

Vance Overton and Sam Davis passed on their secret to all of us at Overton's. And even today, you'll find that our hard work and customer service are the two things we take the most pride in. So you see, the secret that time forgot isn't really a secret at all. It's just a way of doing business that too many people in this day and time have forgotten. We think that working hard and giving our customers the very best service we can is still the best way to do business. And Vance Overton and Sam Davis are still here at Overton's. Just to make sure we don't forget. Come see us.

Spring Games Are Planned

The eighth annual Greenville Special Olympics Spring Games, hosted by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and East Carolina University, will be held Wednesday, April 8 at the East Carolina University track, Bunting Field. The event is to begin at 9:30 a.m. and conclude at 2 p.m.

A total of 450 Special Olympians, representing 20 Greenville and Pitt County schools, as well as the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, A.D.A.P., EARTH, and TEACCH are to take part.

They will compete in track and field events, including the 50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 220 yard run, 440 yard run, 440 yard relay, running long jump, softball throw, tennis ball throw, standing broad jump, and wheelchair race.

This year, too, the athletes will be able to compete in two frisbee disc events, as well as events especially designed for the multi-handicapped.

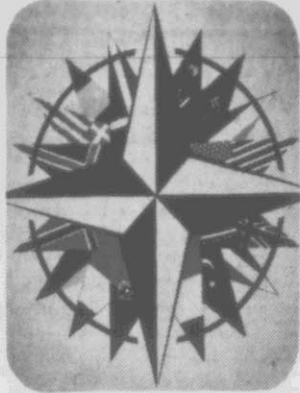

From the April 8 games, athletes will be chosen to attend the State Spring Games, to be held in Charlotte on May 28-31.

Sponsors of the 1981 Special Olympics include McDonald's, the Knights of Columbus, Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens, Circle K, the Pitt County Health Department and the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

The Parade of Athletes and opening ceremonies will begin at 9:30 a.m., with competition scheduled to get underway at 9:45 a.m.

Parents, principals, teachers, friends — anyone interested in the Special Olympic athletes, are encouraged to attend and to support these competitors.

FOCUS

What's In A Name? (WIAN?)
SALT. WASP. OPEC. UNICEF. VISTA. These "words" have something in common. They are all acronyms, words formed from the initial letters or groups of letters of words in a set phrase. The military is fond of using acronyms, such as: WAC (Women's Army Corps); SAC (Strategic Air Command); and SHAPE (Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers, Europe). Sometimes an acronym takes on a life of its own. For instance, the word Mafia abbreviates a thirteenth-century Sicilian battle cry, "Morte Ai Francesi gl'Italiano Anelo." Radar comes from "radio detecting and ranging." Thirty-two years ago tomorrow, a new acronym was coined. NATO (the North Atlantic Treaty Organization) was formed.

DO YOU KNOW — What does the acronym NASA stand for?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Hans Christian Andersen was born in Denmark.

'Dead Language' Brings New Life To Our English

BRINGING ENGLISH TO LIFE — Three students gather with their teacher at blackboard in a Philadelphia elementary school to learn Latin. The Philadelphia school system teaches Latin to some 16,000 children in 85 elementary schools in hopes of improving their use of English. (AP Laserphoto)

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Salvete, discipuli," calls out the teacher, and the fourth graders sing out in response, "Salve, magister!"

It's the "good day" greeting at the start of an unusual Latin class at the Stanton School where 10-year-olds dig into the words of the ancient Romans so they can better read and speak English.

Then they all stand and pledge allegiance to the flag — in Latin. "It's fun, especially when you know what the words mean," said Shawn Brown, a pupil.

"It makes it kind of special," said Latin teacher William Torchia. "The kids look forward to it."

Teaching Latin to improve English is not a new idea, having begun experimentally here in 1968 and gradually expanding. But it's just starting to catch on in public schools across America.

Dr. Rudolph Masciantonio, curriculum specialist for classical languages in Philadelphia's public schools, said "about 70 percent of the words in English come from Latin."

"A pupil who knows that the Latin word aqua means water has the key to such English words as aquarium, aquatic, aqueous, aqualung and aquamarine," Masciantonio said. "And the Latin word for hand, manus, is the root for manufacture, manual, manuscript, manure and manipulate."

In Philadelphia some 16,000 children in 85 elementary schools, mostly in the fifth and sixth grades, now are getting Latin instruction in 20-minute classes a day.

The school district, which started with only two Latin teachers, now has 33 and is involved in a $120,000 federally financed program to train more than 100 language instructors how to bring Latin into their English classes. Specifically, the idea is to give at least one year of Latin to every elementary school pupil, two years if the money lasts.

"The emphasis of our program is to develop English verbal skills through the use of the Latin language," Masciantonio said. "We teach Latin words and sentences, and we pick English words that fall from them."

The school district wants eventually to bring Latin to all fourth graders because 10-year-olds, and even those 8 and 9, "are more receptive to language learning, and we want to capitalize on them," Masciantonio said. "It is marvelous for a young child to see how another language works."

The short daily exposure is the best for kids to learn and absorb. Pupils at the fifth grade level advanced one full year in standardized vocabulary test scores as compared with pupils with similar backgrounds who got no Latin.

Torchia writes on the blackboard "unus," the Latin word for one, and immediately the class calls out derivatives — unity, united, union, unit, unitarian, universe.

Then comes the word "tres," meaning three, and the children call out triangle, tricycle, trio, triplet.

"It's good. I like to do it because it improves our word power, and it helps us learn English better," said Yvette Martell, 10.

William Palmer added, "You find out where the words come from, and I think I've been reading better since we started Latin this year. When I see a word now I can tell if it comes from Latin, and I like knowing that."

Masciantonio says researchers found similar improvement for kids who took Latin in Washington, Easthampton and Worcester, Mass.; Indianapolis, Baltimore, Chicago, Los Angeles, and Erie County, Pa.

Many other towns across the nation, taking a cue from Philadelphia, have injected Latin into their elementary curriculum and report exciting turnarounds in their youngsters' vocabularies.

Torchia said: "These kids know some words, like puerile, which means childish, that I didn't know until college."

"Latin provides a new beginning for kids," Masciantonio said. "It is a chance to start all over again. Kids who have experienced difficulty with English in conventional programs have a chance to start fresh, and experience success."

"Children are fascinated with classical mythology, and you get a lot of that in Latin. The image that Latin is dusty and forgotten is inaccurate. In most European countries Latin is standard fare, and it is required in Asia, Africa, South America."

Latin, rarely taught anymore in high schools, may soon make a comeback there too, Masciantonio said, particularly to help those planning careers in medicine, law and the health sciences where Latin words are used liberally.
