Dry Skies Hamper Control Of Fires

By The Associated Press
Winds up to 20 mph and little chance of rain Tuesday were expected to hamper firemen fighting blazes that have consumed thousands of acres of Onslow County woods, state forest officials said.

"If it doesn't rain, we're in for another big siege," state Forest Service spokesman Tom Hegele said. "It seems like it has been going on forever but we have had almost continual fire activity since the end of February. It's been almost two months now since the firefighters have had a rest."

On Monday, the forest service dispatched air tankers to battle a new blaze in the county as high winds pushed along by a storm front gave weary firefighters little chance for rest.

State Forest Service spokesman Tom Hegele said some areas were expected to get showers late Monday, but that winds gusting to 25 mph whipped up three already-burning fires.

Flames have destroyed about 3,700 acres at Pine Green, 14,000 acres at Sandy Run and an unknown amount of acres at a new fire north of Jacksonville, Hegele said.

Firebreaks at the Pine Green and Sandy Run fires held through Sunday, but gusty winds threaten to send them burning out of control again, Hegele said.

More than 200 firemen have been assigned to eastern North Carolina and Marines and students from Wayne Community College have provided volunteer help.

Workers from forest-related industries also are pitching in, Hegele said.

Shallow layers of peat are burning underground, and firefighters say several days and several inches of rain are needed to quench them.

Similar fires have been known to burn for months without intervention, and the Onslow County fires must be completely extinguished because the fires could spread to the fuel-rich forests of the area, officials said.

The fires are threatening one portion of the Hoffman Forest northeast of Jacksonville, Hegele said.

Burning permits remain canceled in the eastern and southeastern parts of the state, Hegele said, but permits for the rest of the state are being issued again because of improved conditions.

Forest officials said the unusually high number of forest fires are depleting their budget for firefighting this year.

Police Ponder New Body

By WILLIAM E. SCHULZ
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Like the two adults whose slayings are being investigated by a child-deaths task force, 23-year-old Michael C. McIntosh had a slight build. Like five of the 24 victims, his body was found disrobed along a river.

Police were investigating these and other similarities today to determine whether McIntosh's death should be turned over to the task force, which is investigating the deaths of 24 young blacks and the disappearance of one other over the last 21 months.

Fulton County medical authorities performed an autopsy on the body today and said the results would be available after completion of laboratory tests.

A farmer found the nude body Monday in the Chattahoochee River near where the bodies of two other young blacks were found three weeks ago. The slayings of those two, 13-year-old Timothy Hill and 21-year-old Eddie "Bubba" Duncan, are among those being investigated by the task force.

Joseph Bell, 15, the 24th victim on the task force list, was found Sunday in the South River in southeast suburban DeKalb County. He was clad only in undershorts, and medical examiners ruled Monday that he probably had died of asphyxiation, the same cause of death as at least 12 of the other victims.

The first of the five victims found along rivers was discovered in November.

Fulton County Assistant Police Chief Louis Graham said McIntosh, who had a criminal record, lived alone on the city's southwest side — near where two of the other victims were last seen.

Only two of the cases assigned to the task force so far involve adults, and in both those cases, like McIntosh, the victims were small in stature. The two earlier adult victims were described by police as mentally retarded.

Graham said that while there is no record that McIntosh is retarded, "based on what we learned tonight ... there's the possibility that he might have been slow."

McIntosh stood 5-feet-5 and weighed 120 pounds when he was arrested last fall, Graham said. He said the victim's arrest record included armed robbery, theft, criminal trespass and possession of a small amount of marijuana. Records on the disposition of those cases were unavailable.

McIntosh was last seen alive about three weeks ago although he was not reported as missing, Graham said. The body was identified through fingerprints.

"I'm very concerned at this point, in more ways than one," Graham said during an early-morning news conference after notifying McIntosh's mother of her son's death.

"One, this man lived in the area where Joseph Bell and Yusef Bell were last seen," Graham said. Other reasons for concern were the location of the body and the fact that he disappeared about the time that the bodies of Hill and Duncan were found, he said.

Yusef Bell, 9, was found in an abandoned school on the southeast side Nov. 8, 1979. He was not related to Joseph Bell.

Asked if he thought the case would be turned over to the task force, Graham said: "I hope so."

In other developments Monday:

—The Atlanta City Council approved an extension through Aug. 2 of a curfew for juveniles. The ordinance prohibits children under 14 from being on the streets alone between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m. and makes parents liable for fines and imprisonment if their children violate the curfew.

—FBI spokesman Dick Berry said the agency has taken no disciplinary action against the head of its Macon office, Mike Twibell, whose remarks last week that parents were responsible for some of the slayings touched off a storm of controversy.

—Some 200 unarmed volunteers took to the streets for the beginning of community patrols organized by the United Youth Adult Conference, which has been sponsoring the weekend searches by volunteers for clues in the cases. The volunteers, who have been instructed by police, are to report suspicious people or events, but are not allowed to make arrests.

Cable Franchise Given Approval

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners today approved a franchise agreement with Alert Cable TV to serve a portion of the county around Farmville, and decided to take no action on a request by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce to set more stringent controls for the sale of precious metals.

The franchise agreement with Alert Cable TV provides for the payment of a $1,250 application fee and 3 percent of the firm's collections, to the county.

Commissioners took no action on the Chamber of Commerce request after county attorney W. W. Speight told commissioners that two bills are pending in the North Carolina General Assembly which would regulate the sale of precious metals state-wide.

In other business today, commissioners approved final plans for Treetops Subdivision and Sweet Briar Subdivision; tabled action on a recommendation to reduce the size of the Planning Board; approved a maintenance agreement for telephone equipment at the county office building; and awarded a contract for the purchase of a cab and chassis for an ambulance to Messer Chevrolet Inc. of Farmville for a low bid of $9,567.83.

The board reappointed W. Jack Edwards to the Pitt County Social Services Board and recommended the reappointment of Kathryn Lewis to the Social Services Board by the State Social Services Commission. Commissioners also reappointed Henry C. Oglesby to the Pitt Community College board of trustees and appointed Linwood Rouse to replace Mrs. Linwood Hooks who resigned from the board of trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital.

County manager Reginald Gray told commissioners that county forces are attempting to have the required 24 inches of cover material installed at the old Greenville landfill by June 1.

The board also approved the Community Based Alternative Program, dealing with delinquent juveniles, for the coming year. The program is funded by $13,000 in local in-kind match and a $56,000 grant.

Bush Seeks Support For Economic Plans In State

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Vice President George Bush, stumping for the administration's economic proposals with the fervor of a political campaigner, had a quick response Monday evening for those who would differ with President Reagan's tax and spending cuts.

"They weren't elected president, and he was," Bush reminded a cheering group of North Carolina businessmen and Republican state leaders.

Bush appealed for broad public support, clearly hoping that it would yield votes in the House and Senate, where Reagan's economic package has run into criticism and where opponents have offered a counter proposal.

Describing himself as a "poor substitute" for the president, Bush boosted the Reagan program in a speech to about 1,000 people at a Civic Center gathering of chambers of commerce officials from Raleigh and nearby Durham and Chapel Hill.

He later held a private session with some of the state's GOP state legislators and new Republican state Chairman Dave Flaherty at a Raleigh hotel.

Bush linked the proposals for a reduction in the growth of government spending and a 10 percent annual income tax cut over three years along with administration plans to reduce government regulations, describing them as three "fundamentals" on which Reagan will not waver.

"He is not in a mood to compromise," Bush said in a brief news conference. "He does not intend to compromise and I don't think he feels he has to compromise in order to get it through."

The vice president's North Carolina visit followed a stop in Dallas on a tour devoted to promoting the Reagan package in the face of an alternate program put forward by Democrats, which calls for a one-year tax cut of varying amounts.

"We're getting to the crunch on this economic program," he said. "We're getting to a time when we really need people to be heard from."

"Give us your support for these fundamentals, and let everybody fine tune it later on," he added.

Appearing with Bush at every turn was North Carolina's senior Republican senator, Jesse Helms, who briefly sought the vice presidential nomination won by Bush at the Republican National Convention in Detroit last July.

Helms, seeking to keep Reagan to the political right, originally was unenthusiastic about the nomination of Bush. He offered a bit of an explanation for that Monday night.

"I didn't know George all that well," Helms said,

"prior to his receiving the nomination in Detroit."

But Helms praised Bush, saying he has proved to be a "conscientious" supporter of Reagan and "remarkably adept" at using the Senate rules to help the GOP when he presides over that chamber.

Also appearing with the vice president was freshman GOP Sen. John East and two of the state's four Republican congressmen, first-termers Gene Johnston of Greensboro and Billy Hendon of Asheville.

The vice president flew into Raleigh-Durham airport and, for security reasons, arrived and departed from the air freight terminal.

A scattered number of protesters awaited Bush's arrival at the Raleigh Civic Center. Eight demonstrators lined one street, holding signs proclaiming, "End the killing, get out of El Salvador." They identified themselves as the Ad Hoc Committee For Civil Rights in South America.

Across the corner, seven counterpicketers from the Unification Church branches in Raleigh and Chapel Hill sang "God Bless America" and held up signs. One sign proclaimed, "Ronnie and George, America Supports the Fight Against Communism."

Police said both groups had permits to picket.

Bush told reporters his visit to North Carolina was not intended as a way to pressure the state's Democratic congressmen, who hold seven of North Carolina's 11 seats in the House, to support Reagan's economic proposals in the House.

Instead, Bush said he was trying to garner wide public support for the essentials of the president's economic program.

"I'm saying, now look, our president was elected to do something and now we need

Reagan Seeking Support

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A recuperating President Reagan, not yet ready to appear in public, is relying on private meetings and telephone calls to help rekindle momentum in Congress for his proposed tax and spending cuts.

The president invited nine governors to a private session in the living quarters of the White House today, and aides said he also was making his way gradually down a list of about two-dozen telephone calls to wavering members of Congress.

The governors were Democrat Forrest James of Alabama and Republicans David Treen of Louisiana, Richard Thornburgh of Pennsylvania, James Rhodes of Ohio, Bill Clements of Texas, Robert Orr of Indiana, Pierre du Pont of Delaware, Frank White of Arkansas and Lamar Alexander of Tennessee. They were described by White House officials as supporters of the administration's program and represented the first outside group to meet with Reagan since he was wounded in an assassination attempt March 30.

In addition, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the president has jotted down a few thoughts for a nationally broadcast economic speech he intends to make in the near future. No date has been set, but some aides say the address could come next week, when Congress returns from a two-week recess.

Meanwhile, Speakes said Reagan now is spending about five hours a day working on official business.

On Monday, for example, he had two meetings with top aides Edwin Meese III, James A. Baker III and Michael Deaver, received a written national security briefing, made a few phone calls to members of Congress and looked over paperwork.

But he remained upstairs while his wife, Nancy, represented the first family at the annual Easter Egg Roll on the South Lawn, an event attended by thousands of children accompanied by adults.

Speakes indicated security concerns dictated that the president not attend.

Reagan has not been seen by reporters or the public since he returned to the White House from the hospital on April 11, although his aides report he is making a strong recovery from a gunshot wound to his left lung.

Speakes said he did not anticipate Reagan would return to the Oval Office this week.

"We're not pushing him, the doctors aren't pushing him and he'll be his own judge," Speakes added. "If he wants to come he'll come."

In the interim, administration officials conceded that the momentum behind Reagan's economic package has slowed since the assassination attempt last month.

"I would much prefer to see him in the office working," one aide said.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige also said he felt Reagan's recuperation has slowed the push on getting the administration's economic recovery program through the Congress.

The president is asking for massive budget cuts and a 30 percent, across-the-board cut in personal income taxes over three years to help revitalize the economy.

That program suffered a setback two weeks ago when the Senate Budget Committee rejected a budget drawn to the president's tax and spending specifications.

Brady's Rash, Fever Improved

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House Press Secretary James Brady is continuing to recover from the rash and fever he developed over the weekend during his recuperation from a bullet wound in the brain, the White House announced today.

In a written statement, the White House said that doctors at George Washington University Hospital report Brady "continues his slow but steady neurologic improvement" after the shooting March 30 in which President Reagan and two other men were also wounded.

"The drug reaction which developed over the past weekend is resolving satisfactorily as Mr. Brady's rash and temperature elevation continue to diminish," said the brief statement.

Brady's temperature began rising Friday evening and peaked Saturday night. While doctors won't disclose the extent of his fever, they indicated it was in the range of 103 degrees to 105 degrees Fahrenheit, with 98.6 degrees normal.

After tests showed no sign of infection, doctors removed Brady from medication he was taking to ward off seizure and to control high blood pressure.

Once substitute medication was prescribed, Brady's temperature began falling and the rash began fading.

ROADBLOCK

At approximately 7:15 one morning recently, the Greenville Police Department set up a roadblock at the exit to Red Oak Subdivision to hand out citations for non-display of city auto license tags. It held up hard-working people trying to get to work. I think the police department has its priorities mixed up. Let them clear the streets of drunks, dope pushers, reckless drivers and robbers of homes and businesses first. Then they can hassle the hard-working, tax-paying property owners of this newly annexed subdivision. S. G.

TRASH, TREASURE NEEDED

The Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors has asked Hotline to appeal to the community for the donation of items for a trash and treasure sale, the proceeds of which will go to the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center.

The sale is to be held Saturday from 7:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. at the Elm Street Recreation Park. Donation of household goods, clothing, plants, baked goods — whatever — will be appreciated and may be made to any Realtor. For pick up of items, call 756-5395. Turkey Steaks Are Diet Delights

Turkey steak is a dieter's delight (157 calories per three and one-half ounce serving.)

Compare that with a three and one-half ounce serving of sirloin steak with 387 calories.

If you can't find turkey steaks in your store, cut your own from a turkey breast.

BARBEQUED TURKEY STEAK

6 turkey steaks
1 cup lemon-lime carbonated beverage
one-half cup cooking oil
one-half cup soy sauce
one-eighth tsp. garlic powder (or to taste)

Thaw turkey steaks or cut your own. Combine marinade ingredients and marinate steaks for 4-24 hours. Cook over medium coals for 15-20 minutes or until meat is done.

TURKEY STEAKS... are a sure-fire barbecue winner. And they're lower in calories and lower in prices than comparably-sized sirloins, of course.

Housekeeper - Girlfriend Has Second Thoughts

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 35-year-old divorcee in love with a 39-year-old professional man I'll call Ben. Ben is divorced and has custody of his two sons, 7 and 10.

Ben and I started seeing each other last November. In January he lost his housekeeper, so he asked me to move in with him. He said I would stay in the maid's room and we'd tell the boys that I was the housekeeper so as not to upset them.

I do all the housekeeping and cooking and look after the boys. They're good kids, but they are a handful. Ben and I have to sneak around to see each other. I saw more of Ben when I had my own place.

"Mr. G." (as I must call him in front of the boys) frequently goes out in the evening and stays until morning. Women call him here and I have to take their messages. I am hurt and jealous. Also, I don't like being treated like a servant.

I love Ben but I don't know how much longer I can stay in the job. I used to make between $350 and $400 a week as a cocktail waitress. This housekeeper's job pays $200 a month. What do you think of this setup? And what should I do?

UNHAPPY HOUSEKEEPER

DEAR UNHAPPY: I think this setup is wonderful — for Ben. Resign your job as housekeeper and tell Ben you were much happier being a waitress and his girlfriend.

DEAR ABBY: While visiting my 25-year-old daughter in her college town, I extended an invitation for dinner to include her semi-serious boyfriend, who is by no means poor. He selected an expensive Japanese restaurant. The food was excellent and the evening pleasant.

When the bill came, I put my money on the little tray. When the change was returned to me, I left what I considered to be a fair tip.

As we were leaving, the gentleman took a couple of dollars out of his wallet and put them on the tray! I felt humiliated, but said nothing. Am I wrong to feel that I was made to look cheap?

SACRAMENTO MOM

DEAR MOM: I doubt that the gentleman's intention was to humiliate you or make you look "cheap." He may have acted clumsily, but since he's obviously generous, "semi-serious" about your daughter and "by no means poor," as a favor to your daughter, don't make waves.

DEAR ABBY: I was married three years ago, but for some reason or another I have managed to send out only a fraction of the thank-you notes I owe for my wedding presents. I feel just awful about this and it's been a heavy burden on my mind.

Should I just forget about them, or start writing them even though they are terribly late? If I should write them, how can I possibly explain my lateness?

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: Of course you should write those thank-you notes! A late thanks is better than none. Don't try to "explain" your lateness, but do apologize for it. A simple, "Please forgive my inexcusably tardy acknowledgment of your wedding gift," etc.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I swear, advertisers don't know anything.

There isn't a day goes by that I don't pick up a newspaper or a magazine and get asked a provocative question like, "Do You Want Healthy Hair?" or "Are You Sick Of Roaches?"

Okay, so you make allowances for a dozen or so weirdos who consider dandruff a turn-on and are lonely for pets, but I think we can safely assume the answers are yes.

A full-page advertisement the other day wasn't taking any chances. Across the top was the musical question, "Do You Want To Be In Debt The Rest Of Your Life?" Below were two boxes. One said, "NO! Quick! Send me your pamphlet, 'Free at Last,' on trial so that I may thumb my nose at bankers and be a millionaire without leaving my home." The second box was "YES! I want to drift aimlessly for the rest of my life and die a failure."

Don't tell me that agency couldn't have figured out the number of yes's and no's from a simple poll in the elevator.

Who writes that stuff? Rip Van Winkle? "Do You Want To End Nagging Backache?" "Are You Tired Of Being Ripped Off?" "Do You Want To Look Ten Years Younger In Two Minutes?" (Are they crazy? I'd give 'em TEN minutes to make me look TWO years younger.)

"Would You Be Interested In Playing At Parties At Christmas And Having The Time Of Your Life?" "Would You Like To Save Money And Live Like A King?"

"Do You Want To Lose 12 Pounds In Three Days?" "Would You Like Prostate Relief?" (If you can spell it, you can cure it.)

Frankly, I hate quizzes. Always have. I get rattled. A salesman at the door the other day asked, "Are you interested in saving 15 cents a copy on each magazine you receive?" What am I supposed to say, "No, I want to get in my car, use gas I don't have, run down to the corner drugstore, buy that magazine off the newstand before it's sold out and pay an extra $12 a year for the privilege?"

Later, as I stood there with a five-year subscription to the "Bleeding Gums Journal," my husband asked, "Why didn't you just tell 'em you didn't want the magazine?"

"Because that wasn't the question."

The next time I see, "How Will You Spend Eternity?" on a bumper sticker, HE can answer it.

Psychologist To Speak On Research Of Rats

While many wild animals find it difficult to co-exist with humans, there is one species that thrives. It is Rattus norvegicus or simply—rats.

You might call them "warf," "river," "barn," "chicken," "cellar," "sewer" or just plain "brown" rats but they are all the same species, says Dr. Richard K. Lore, a psychology professor at Douglass College, Rutgers—The State University of New Jersey.

Lore will discuss his research on rats at an East Carolina University Psychology Colloquium on April 23 at 3 p.m. and will present a Sigma Xi lecture on "Aggression in Animals and Children" at 7 p.m. Both presentations will be held in room 129 Speight (Education/Psychology) Building.

"The human population explosion has driven numerous animal species to extinction and sharply limited the range of many others. Yet, rats manage to thrive despite our fears and the elaborate exterminating technology our superior primate brains have developed to combat these animals," Lore said.

In a magazine article, Lore humorously suggests one way of getting rid of them is to "either develop a fad for coats made of rat fur or push fried rat as a gourmet meal." But the psychologist contends that rats are not all that bad. There is no such thing as a "dirty rat," he says, and they are particularly useful at laboratory research animals.

A native of Roanoke Rapids, N.C., Lore received his undergraduate degree from the University of North Carolina and his Ph.D. from the University of Tennessee. He joined the faculty of Douglass College in 1965.

He is the author and co-author of more than 35 publications relating to human behavior and to the behavior of rats.

Modifications Practical

North Carolina may soon be going from ideal to practical in road building specifications.

Gov. Hunt last week announced a 16-point plan for cutting costs of construction and maintenance of roads.

Included were proposals for reducing bridge lengths and building deeper bed slopes, lighter bridge structures, reducing from 44 to 36 feet the width of bridges and re-evaluating projects now planned.

It was also suggested that the number of prison inmates used be doubled from 1,000 to 2,000, reductions of medians and reductions of right-of-ways. There could also be reductions in thickness of pavements on access ramps, reduction of paved shoulder widths, less mowing, reductions of crews, less costly methods of resurfacing and other items.

There is clearly room for cost cutting in road constructions. We want safe highways, and yet all roads and bridges don't need to be built to carry military tanks.

We must watch carefully to determine that any standards reductions will not mean even higher maintenance costs for future generations, but some modifications such as the governor has proposed seem logical.

Sinking Needs Investigating

The Japanese are understandably irate over a United States submarine sinking of one their freighters. The nuclear sub evidently did not report the sinking and it was unknown until survivors were found in a lifeboat.

The United States apologized but Japanese authorities are demanding that a full investigation be expedited. There certainly should be a full inquiry. Not only should we do all we can to maintain good relations with one of our closest allies, but also the Navy should find out what happened and why quicker action wasn't taken to help the survivors.

THIS AFTERNOON

Waste Disposal

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — State specialists in economic growth and development are saying that waste management and disposal has climbed near the top of the list of concerns for business firms seeking a location for new or expanded industrial operations.

This ingredient joins the well-known list of other items such as labor supply, livability, transportation, business climate and such.

That is the key reason that Gov. Jim Hunt and the General Assembly are dealing with the subject of waste disposal in such a priority manner this year. More jobs and better-paying jobs has been established as the single most important goal of the Hunt Administration, and one which of itself will have important affects upon any number of existing problems such as family income, health, nutrition, and education.

Until recent years, North Carolina did not have the concentration of industry which contributed to disposal and storage problems now coming to the surface with so much damage to people and the land in such well know instances as Love Canal.

Change

That situation has changed rapidly. Now, this state is ranked 11th nationally in generation of hazardous wastes; fourth in generation of nuclear wastes, both from medical and other research, power plants, and industrial applications.

The Governor's Task Force on Waste Management with its recent report to Gov. Hunt and resulting legislative proposals are just beginning to stir public reaction and interest. There are some controversial matters in that guidebook and in the proposed law, chief among them that the state condemn land for waste disposal sites; that local zoning restrictions could be over-ridden by the state; and that, as an incentive to communities to accept an otherwise objectional facility, special taxing powers be established to "reward" local governments and help them both pay any added costs such as health or fire protections, and provide community amenities such as parks or schools which might otherwise have been lost because some economic growth potentials will not then consider locating near a disposal site.

But burial, burning, or long-range storage above ground are considered by the task force and knowledgeable specialists in governments and industry as only stopgap measures. That is why the task force report devotes considerable attention to future steps, not just those necessary to solve the immediate problem.

"...the sheer volume of known hazardous wastes generated in North Carolina in 1980, estimated at somewhere between 600,000 and 1.8 million tons per year, means that the state can not afford to continue to rely upon the technologies of the 1960s and 1970s to handle this growing problem," the report notes.

Danger Ahead

To continue on the present course not only endangers more and more land which will one day be needed for farm and home; exposes more and more people to known danger; and leaves the door open for damage from unprincipled operators, but allows future generations to be left vulnerable to dangers not even recognized at the present time.

The drive for more and better technology is "creating a potential for the hazardous waste problem to grow quickly out of control," the task force concluded.

So while the present question of disposal is critical, the bigger question to the future enjoyment of land, water, air and food control of hazardous byproducts in the manufacturing process itself—reducing the hazardous wastes, eliminating processes that generate them, recycling them into other uses or learning how to completely destroy or alter their characteristics so they are not only harmless, but possible beneficial.

Down the road, the Task Force suggests, a major research effort must be launched.

Other Editors Say Happy Easter, Jim

The Raleigh Times

The Easter stories this year run all the way from heavy drama to bright farce.

Zealous persons carried heavy crosses in Jerusalem, and in Manila one such let himself by symbolically crucified. And a 6'4" disc jockey, clad in an Easter-bunny suit and bound for a promotion appearance when his VW stalled on a busy New York bridge, unfolded himself, floppy ears and all, from the car and passed out jelly beans to calm his fellow motorists while awaiting the tow truck.

But the secular story that says most about this Easter to us is Jim Brady's. This likable man's gradual, astonishing earthly resurrection from a bullet in the brain is, no doubt, of a lesser order of magnitude from that resurrection near Jerusalem two millennia ago.

Brady's comeback from so near death that his obituaries were being written is partly, perhaps largely, a miracle of medical science.

But Brady's victory is also, all the same, partly a product of faith and courage—his own, his wife's, and Americans' generally.

Whenever decency and humor, warmth and humanity score a comeback, whenever they manage to escape from the chill, clammy grip of fear and from the sisister clout of violence, then good has once again conquered evil, light conquered dark, life conquered death.

That is what Easter celebrates. Happy Easter, Jim Brady. And happy Easter, everyone who helped to pull and pray Jim Brady—and his president and ours—through the Vally of the Shadow to the sun of spring.

SEED LONG PLANTED

Dr. Frederick G. Banting, who in 1922 discovered insulin as a specific for diabetes, is said to have come upon his world-shaking discovery as a result of reading an old, outmoded book on medicine. This book had been relegated to the stacks of practically dead books in a medical library. Perhaps the man who wrote it died feeling that his efforts had been in vain. Few people had taken notice of his books while he was living.

HASN'T LOST HIS JOB IN THE BIG CUTBACKS!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Resurrection In The Hills

SCRABBLE, Va. — Spring came slowly this year. We saw a false start back in February, when the cheerleader crocuses raised their school colors on the lawn. March was cold and drab. Nothing much happened until just a week ago, Palm Sunday, when the miracle began to unfold.

And it is a miracle. We take spring too much for granted, as if it's like, you know, well, it happens every year, and what's the big deal? I do not mean to preach an Easter sermon, but in reverence and in awe I might respond. The big deal is just exactly that: It is a Big Deal.

When spring finally decided to come on stage, it entered to arpeggios of April rain and a roll of kettledrums in the mountains. The thunder rippled around Old Rag and Red Oak for an hour or so, while we sat in the kitchen and applauded every crash of cymbals. It has been fearfully dry since last fall, and we needed every drop.

Then the sun came out, leaving the willows hung in diamond pendants, and we went looking for spring in the hills. The dogs had to come too — Macduff, the big collie, and Happy, the scrappy sheltie. They were only puppies in their first spring a year ago. They got up a couple of rabbits and flushed an irritated robin, and chased a grumpy groundhog to his hole. There is one thing about spring: It is eternally an act of discovery.

What we truly were looking for, I suppose, was the miracle — the tangible evidence that the grand design endures. This is the glory of April, that once again we come to know — not to think, or to suppose, or to take it on faith, — but to know that life goes on. Two weeks ago this maple was dead, or so it surely seemed. Now it is tasseled, red and green. The birch was dead. Now the yellow speckled pods, big as caterpillars, dangle from every branch. The dogwood buds, tightly furled, showed no promise at all. Now the tiny fetal balls unfold in creamy petals, oxblood tipped, and we marvel at the jeweler's diadem inside.

The evidence abounds. Down in the rock garden the rain-wet little things are suddenly alive — bloodroot, trout lilies, creeping phlox, hyacinths are absurdly hatted as Buckingham guards. Now we not only see the spring but hear it also — crescendos of forsythia, harps of bleeding heart, a trumpet choir of daffodils. Two bumblebees are out, buzzing their base viol scales.

After the winter stillness, spring moves. The juncos have gone. A towhee has returned. For the first time — we have our fingers crossed — a family of purple martins may have occupied the high-rise penthouse we put up two years ago. The bluebirds are back. Robins are nesting in the pines. After months of sullen silence, our mountain streams are dancing in the sun.

What does the rebud teach us, or the flowering apple, peach, and pear? By chance, a slim little volume came in the other day, a collection of Thoreau's thoughts on man and nature. Like Happy and Macduff, the sage of Walden Pond also had "an appointment with spring," and he too went forth to sip the sparkling cider of an April morning. "What a world we live in!" he cried. He saw a "crystallized and radiant universe" around us.

Thoreau saw in plants and trees, in animals and fish, in tides and seasons, in the anatomy of man, what all of us see but many will not recognize — that all living

Brady's Job Is Still His

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A decision at the highest White House level rules out any new presidential press secretary during the convalescence of assassination-attempt victim James Brady, now recovering miraculously at George Washington University Hospital.

Until recently, White House chief of staff James A. Baker III and presidential counselor Edwin Meese III were casting about for an "acting" press secretary to serve until Brady returns. That return may be quite far off, at least several months.

But when they thought it through, Meese and Baker, strongly backed by Ronald Reagan, changed their minds. Even with the "acting" in front of a new name, Brady would be bound to look upon the new man as a potential threat to his future — or worse, as an indication that the White House might feel Brady would not return to the job he loved. So signals were changed. Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes remains the president's spokesman.

Hard-Nosed White House Lyn Nofziger's political office in the Reagan White House, until now used mainly to check the conservative purity of the president's appointments, is about to embark on a hard-nosed policy of threats and reprisals to pass the Reagan economic program.

House Republican leaders have been huddling with Nofziger and his aides to devise tactics for harassment of Democratic congressmen from marginal districts who oppose President Reagan's budget and tax proposals. That includes both paid media attacks and the dispatch of Republican operatives into the offending congressman's district.

The two Nofziger aides handling the operation are both experienced Republican political operatives: Lee Atwater and Paul Russo. Atwater, a South Carolinian well versed in Southern politics, is zeroing in on conservative Southern Democrats.

Helms And The Eagle
Sen. Jesse Helms tightened noticeably when Assistant Secretary of State-designate Lawrence Eagleburger started a negative answer to the senator's question, in a private interview, as to whether he subscribed to the entire Republican platform.

He wished he could say yes, Eagleburger began, but there was one part of the platform that bothered him. "I don't think we ought to do away with the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit," Eagleburger answered deadpan. But on the other aspects of the platform, he said, he had no problems.

Helms, a right-winger with a genial sense of humor, relaxed. But he still has not cleared Eagleburger for the post President Reagan wants him in. A potent figure on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Helms put a "hold" on the nomination two months ago and will not remove it until he hears Eagleburger say in public, during confirmation hearings, what he told Helms in their long private meeting in Helms' office.

Reagan Missed Takeoff
Although President Reagan had an unannounced plan to fly to the Cape Canaveral, Fla., launch of the Columbia the weekend of April 10, the cancellation forced by the assassination attempt did not reduce his political profit from the most spectacular space trip ever made.

Anytime the nation scores a stunning success, such as the Columbia's voyage, the man who happens to be president always cashes in. What made this trip different was the president's physical inability to involve himself personally at the beginning or end of the flight.

There was one other dif-

To the editor:

On March 29 you ran a front page story about drinking at Rose High School. Even though many have written saying that the number of drinkers had been exaggerated, no one wrote to condemn the use of alcohol itself. No one condemned a parent or parents for drinking and passing the habit on to their children. The sad part about the Rose High story is not how many drink, but that drinking is a habit pattern accepted by almost all the students, whether they drink or not.

The abuse of the use of alcohol is causing concern to our nation, state and community. Alcoholism is costing our nation some $60 billion a year. It is estimated that alcoholism is costing North Carolina better than $634 million a year, plus another $233 million for various businesses in the state. Here in Pitt County, alcohol-related problems are costing over $9 million per year.

There are now over 16 million alcoholics in the United States. North Carolina has 200,000 alcoholics, plus about 69,000 problem drinkers between the ages of 10 and 19. Every one of these problem drinkers started with a first drink. Hopefully, none of these are students at Rose High School.

Debit Cards Offer Alternatives

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer

A growing number of Americans are paying for their purchases with a new kind of money called the debit card — a sort of "plastic check" which provides an alternative to cash or credit.

The most widespread debit cards are the ones from Visa and MasterCard. They are used in conjunction with computer terminals. When a customer makes a purchase and pays for it with a debit card, the money is automatically transferred from his or her bank account to the merchant's. Charges for the service vary from bank to bank.

The Visa debit card was introduced five years ago, but the real growth did not occur until 1980. "The time (for the debit card) has come," said Cynthia Chaddick of Visa. "It certainly is picking up."

Ms. Chaddick said there were several reasons for the recent success of the debit card. "People are being more prudent with their financial resources," she said.

They want to avoid interest charges for credit purchases, but they do not want to carry large amounts of cash or face the inconvenience that sometimes accompanies the use of checks.

As of the end of last year, Ms. Chaddick said, there were 1.4 million holders of Visa debit cards issued by 193 banks. She said the company expects the number of issuers to double this year and estimates that volume will triple.

The MasterCard II — the debit card companion to the MasterCard credit card — made its appearance late last year. A spokesman for MasterCard said 42 financial institutions now issuing the debit card and added, "They're piling up so fast that it's hard to keep an accurate count." The institutions have a potential cardholder base of "well over one million," said the spokesman who asked that his name not be used because he works for the public relations company which represents MasterCard rather than for MasterCard itself.

The spokesman said that while the popularity of debit cards with banks was "growing by leaps and bounds," it is too early to measure reaction from the general public.

Debit cards have, however, been a success with depositors at the Wilmington (Del.) Savings Fund Society.

The society started offering debit cards — unconnected with either Visa or MasterCard — late in 1972. Customers who use the cards for purchases at participating merchants get a bonus; 2 percent of the value of their purchases is deposited in their savings account each month. If, for example, you buy $500 worth of goods or services using your debit card, $10 will be deposited in your savings account at the end of the month.

William Robinson, senior vice president of the society, said 45,000 of the bank's 53,000 depositors have the type of account with which they get a debit card. Half of the debit card holders use their cards at least once every month, he said, adding that retail purchases on the debit cards in Delaware in 1980 added up to almost $50 million

Are the cards popular? "Very much so," said Robinson. He said the number of transactions has grown by 75 percent a year since 1975. Robinson added, however, that he was watching the Visa and MasterCard debit cards with interest to see whether they would be successful without the incentive of the savings bonus.

One possible drawback to the debit cards for consumers is the loss of the "float" that occurs when you make a purchase, write a check, then run to the bank the next day to make a deposit. The computer terminals have the potential for instantaneous deductions, although in practice there is still a time lag in most cases.

The Wilmington debit card is different from the Visa and MasterCard II in that it is not, at the present time, used with a computer terminal. The transaction is recorded on a three-copy paper form and the merchant must deposit one copy with his or her bank, then wait for the "check" to clear the purchaser's bank.

Sands Near Coma As Youths Riot

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — IRA hunger striker Bobby Sands was reported about to go into a coma in Belfast's Maze Prison as young Roman Catholics rioted in Londonderry for the sixth night.

Sands, 27, was in the 52nd day of a fast demanding political status for jailed guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army. Government officials reported he was growing "progressively weaker." His family said he could no longer keep water down and was about to lose consciousness.

John O'Connell, a doctor who with two other members of the Irish Republic's Parliament visited Sands Monday, estimated that he had five to six days to live. O'Connell said a prison doctor told him the starving man was in danger of a cardiac arrest.

Another visitor said although Sands was suffering from headaches and failing eyesight, he was lucid and resolute.

"I got the impression that Mr. Sands was determined to die," said O'Connell. But the British government also was adamant. "The government will neither negotiate with the prisoners nor concede to the principle of political status," said David Mitchell, a spokesman for the Northern Ireland Office.

As Sands' condition

worsened in the hospital wing of the Maze, his supporters set vehicles ablaze, built street barricades and threw blast bombs at the police in Belfast, and for the sixth night pelted the police and British troops with stones, bottles and gasoline bombs in Londonderry, Northern Ireland's second largest city and a stronghold of Roman Catholicism in the Protestant-majority province.

Catholic leaders appealed for calm in Londonderry, where on Sunday night two 18-year-old rioters were killed by a British army Land-Rover during street clashes. The army and the police said they were killed accidentally, but their fathers said it was a "clear case of murder." The army said it was making a full investigation.

Sands, who is serving a 14-year sentence on gun charges, has vowed to fast to his death unless the government concedes that the IRA fight against British rule in Northern Ireland is political and gives imprisoned guerrillas political status. This would entitle them to wear their own clothes instead of prison uniforms, do no prison work, mingle freely while in custody and have more visitors.

The government takes the position that they are criminals convicted of crimes of violence. It says to give them political status would lend legitimacy to the IRA's guerrilla war to reunite Northern Ireland, where Protestants outnumber Catholics 2 to 1, with the Irish Republic, which is 97 percent Catholic. The government says Sands' death will not force it to retreat.

The Irish parliamentary delegation spent 80 minutes with Sands and told a news conference they wanted a "very early meeting" with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher "before it is too late." They also asked for the European Commission of Human Rights to intervene on Sands' behalf and warned that violence in the province would escalate if he died.

Mrs. Thatcher returns Saturday from a visit to India and Persian Gulf countries. Her office said any request for a meeting "would be considered."

The prison visit by the Irish delegation angered Protestant politicians in Northern Ireland. James Molyneux, the leader of the Official Unionist Party, said the three legislators should first tell the IRA to stop murdering innocent people.

Sources close to Northern Ireland's militant Protestant organizations reported they were on a "war footing" in expectation of Sands' death and retaliatory IRA attacks. The Rev. Ian Paisley, the most vocal and visible of the hard-line Protestant leaders, told a rally Sunday night:

"Let the IRA men know that the Protestants of Northern Ireland do not require the British army to defend them. They will defend themselves."

At least 10 IRA hunger strikers have died in British prisons since 1920, including two in the past decade.

Car Overturns On Skinner

Greenville police reported two persons were injured when a car overturned on Skinner Street, between the Howell Street and Norris Street intersections about 9:22 p.m. yesterday.

Officers said Belinda Sharpe Little of Farmville, the driver of the car, and a passenger, were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries they received in the mishap.

Damage to the car was estimated at $800.

It is not by chance that spring comes slowly to our Blue Ridge Mountains, greening the high slopes a hundred feet a day. It is by design. And it is the recognition of this unerasable grand design that breeds conviction — not hope, but conviction — that there is indeed no death. This is the meaning of April, and of Easter. Look at the dogwoods! They were not dead, but only sleeping. And just as it is with dogwoods, so it must be with all mankind.

The careful separation of Vice President George Bush, by his own decision, from any seeming effort to bask in the glow of America's latest heroes was a sharp contrast to then Vice President Lyndon Johnson's lobbying for physical proximity to the first American astronaut, now Sen. John Glenn, in 1962.

Whither Kemp?

As Congress moves closer to final passage of a tax bill, pressure will mount on Rep. Jack Kemp to give a final "yes" or "no" on whether he will run for governor of New York next year.

Kemp has finessed queries from politicians, businessmen and labor leaders by telling them that he cannot even consider running until Kemp-Roth tax reduction becomes law. "That excuse is about to run out," one New York Republican political insider told us. "Now, if he doesn't want to run, he'll have to say he's too lazy or just not interested."

Though Democratic politicians consider Kemp the toughest Republican against vulnerable Gov. Hugh Carey, they think he will not run. They expect State Controller Ned Regan to be the Republican nominee, but Regan could be surprised by ex-GOP State Chairman Richard Rosenbaum. Although once a leader in the state's liberal Rockefeller wing, Rosenbaum has been courting conservatives with some success.

Showers Fail To Dampen Festival Spirits

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

JAMESVILLE — Heavy, intermittent showers failed to dampen the inpour of hungry fish eaters at the annual Easter Monday Herring Festival in Jamesville, a small village on the Roanoke River in the eastern end of Martin County.

Before 11 a.m., long lines were filing into the two restaurants at the site — the all-year round brick and glass "River's Edge," and "Cypress Grill," a weatherbeaten wood structure which operates only during the herring run season.

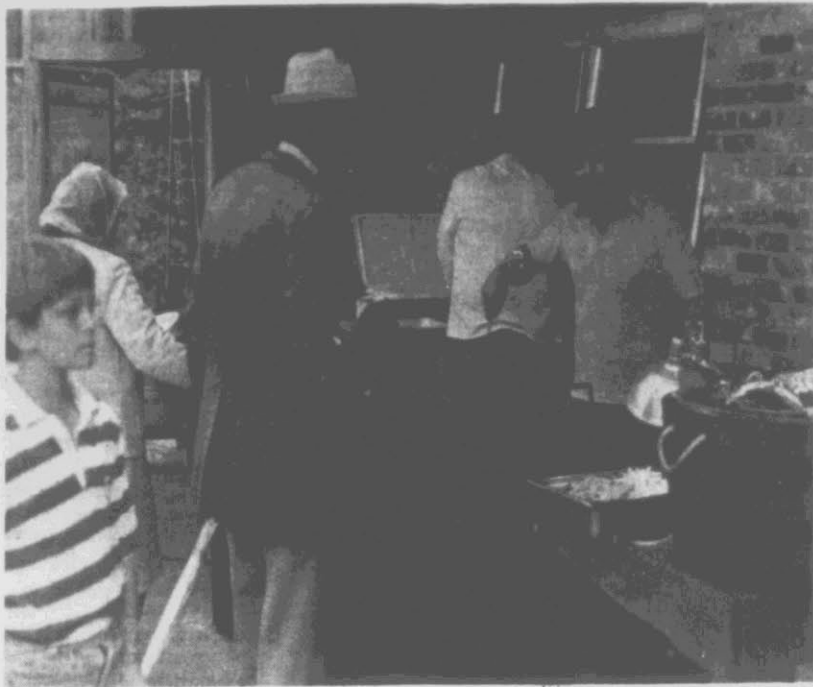

Fishermen in unpainted wood buildings along the river were kept busy selling catches of fresh fish, the slender, silver herring, as well as rock and shad, and the prized delicacy, fresh herring roe.

On the river, other fishermen, garbed in bright yellow rain slickers, were busy tending their nets, occasionally bringing their catch to shore.

The morning showers, which most people declared they welcomed since it was badly needed for tobacco planting, soon churned the sloped road and the flat site along the river into a foot squishing area of mud. Some gallant men found bits of plank to lay in the muddiest areas to help women keep their sandaled feet from becoming too mud encrusted, and youngsters delighted in scampering up the slick slopes.

This year, for the first time, the Herring Festival featured arts and crafts booths. Long before noon, dozens of children, and older people too, sported painted pictures of flowers and butterflies, dragons and fish and other creatures on their faces and arms. Country musicians drew attentive crowds, and a benefit auction caught the attention of bargain hunters.

People seemed to enjoy the trappings, but it was the eating of herring and herring roe that, as usual, brought in a steady stream of fanciers of this migrating fish at the time of its spawning.

SOUNDS AND SMELLS . . . the sound of frying fat and the appetite whetting smell of frying herring prevailed throughout the day Monday at the annual Herring Festival in Jamesville. Periodic showers didn't dampen the enthusiasm of herring lovers, as hundreds arrived from far and near for a feast of herring and herring roe. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Damaged Track Report Said To Be Ignored

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Four tanker cars carrying jet fuel to Ft. Bragg may have derailed Sunday because railroad officials failed to respond to a report of damaged track, a railroad official said Monday.

Four of five Seaboard Coast Line Railroad cars derailed about 8 p.m. Sunday at the edge of the military reservation were loaded with about 10,000 gallons each of JP-4 fuel, authorities said. The fifth car was an empty boxcar.

No injuries occurred. The derailed cars, which were undamaged, were placed back on the track, the track was repaired, and the line was again open for operation by 5 p.m. Monday.

Ray L. Bullard, Seaboard's assistant vice president for corporate communications, said the derailment "was apparently caused by damage to the track as a result of a highway accident."

Bullard made the statement during a long-distance telephone interview from his home in Jacksonville, Fla.

"The investigation hasn't been completed," he added.

Records show that Earl Godwin, roadmaster for the railroad in the Fayetteville area, was warned by the Cumberland County Sheriff's Department Saturday night that a highway accident had damaged tracks at about the spot where the derailment later occurred.

Bullard was asked if it were normal procedure to move a train over tracks where damage has been reported. He replied, "No, it isn't — and that's one of the things being investigated."

Records show that Deputy Lee Hecht of the sheriff's department made a report to the Law Enforcement Center by radio about 10:30 p.m. Saturday that the railroad tracks had been damaged by an automobile involved in an accident.

Firefighters who arrived on the scene shortly after the derailment Sunday night said the derailed cars were just behind the locomotive and were trailed by about six other cars.

The locomotive ran off the track but remained upright on the trackbed. The others left the bed to the right, with three of the tanker cars overturning. Another freight car ended up half on and half off the tracks, a fireman said.

One of the overturned tanker cars apparently lost some jet fuel before the air vents closed, the fireman said.

About two dozen railroad workers were assisted by a truck crane and a railroad crane which arrived at the accident about 3 a.m. Monday.

Approximately 60 new railroad ties were put down in the torn-up section of the rail line before new tracks were laid. The derailed cars were righted and placed back on the track at a rate of about one every hour-and-a-half.

Shortly after the accident, officials determined that the tank cars were not leaking and, therefore, the situation posed little danger. Consequently, residents of homes and proprietors of businesses along Murchison Road were not required to evacuate the vicinity.

Revenue Hearing

The city will conduct a proposed use hearing tonight on the appropriation of revenue sharing funds for 1981-82.

The hearing, scheduled for 7 p.m., will be conducted by City Manager Ed Wyatt in the third floor council chambers at city hall.

Wyatt encouraged citizens of Greenville to attend the hearing and present comments on the proposed local use of revenue sharing funds.

British Riots Continue During Easter Holidays

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — White teen-agers rioted at seven English seaside resorts while black West Indian youths ran wild at three Easter holiday fairs in London, police said.

Easter violence at the shore first erupted in the 1960s with fights between rival youth gangs of sharply dressed "mods" and garish "rockers." This year they were joined by shaven "skinheads" and outlandishly-clothed "punks" in Easter Monday rioting.

The gangs arrived on mopeds, motorcycles and trains and surged through Southend, Brighton, Margate, Great Yarmouth, Scarborough, Weston-super-Mare and Bournemouth. They fought running battles with each other and with the police, upset picnicking families, smashed shop fronts, attacked lone strollers and looted drinks from bars and cafes.

More than 300 arrests were reported.

Southend police said they took racist leaflets decorated with swastikas from some of the youths. Mobs of youngsters and girls gave the police Nazi salutes and shouted "Sieghell!"

One 17-year-old drowned when he fell from the girders under Brighton's Palace Pier.

Meanwhile, youths of West Indian descent went on the rampage at the Finsbury Park and Ealing Common fairs in north London and at Wansted in the eastern part of the city. A total of about 1,600 black teen-agers were involved, Scotland Yard estimated.

Bike-A-Thon Benefit Friday

Kappa Alpha Order of East Carolina University is sponsoring a Bike-A-Thon from Raleigh to Greenville. The road ride will take place on Friday, April 24.

All proceeds from the event will go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association, with pledges taken per mile for those riding in the Bike-A-Thon.

People interested in riding or sponsoring a rider are to contact Brad Edwards, in Greenville at 758-8957, or Jackie Petty at the Muscular Dystrophy Office, Raleigh, 782-4735.

The three districts had not previously seen such violence. There were 50 arrests and 17 policemen injured, the Yard said.

Police, who were out with anti-riot shields, said there was no apparent reason for the outbreaks and that the teen-agers just seemed to go "berserk." Eyewitnesses at Finsbury Park said the first victim was a Pakistani beaten up on a fairground by West Indian teen-agers.

The police said dozens of shops were looted and passersby were attacked with bricks and bottles. Scotland Yard Cmdr. James Dickinson's nose was broken when he was kicked to the ground and booted in the face. His deputy, Chief Supt. Pat Carson, was thrown through a shop window and attacked as he lay among the broken glass. Several of his ribs were broken.

Reporters said they saw bricks thrown at passing buses and a police car set ablaze with a gasoline bomb. Taverns and hotels were attacked and three subway stations had to shut down.

The police drew no connection between the rioting and riots a week earlier by young West Indian blacks in the Brixton slum district of south London. The trouble started there when a crowd said a policeman trying to help a black and thought he was being arrested. The rioting continued for four nights, some 30 buildings were burned out, damage was estimated at more than $2 million, more than 150 police were injured and more than 200 youths were arrested.

It was Britain's worst racial rioting.

The public is invited to attend, according to the Rev. Matthew Best, pastor.

Slim Pickings

Most grocery shelves around the country are offering a slim selection and high prices for products made from peanuts. The peanut shortage has been linked to last summer's heat wave, which caused a drought in the southern peanut-growing states. Although peanuts are one of America's most popular snack foods, they have amazing nutritional value. Pound for pound, they provide more protein and vitamins than the best sirloin steak or beef liver. Peanuts are also rich in energy. One pound of peanuts provides approximately the energy value of 9 pints of milk or 36 medium-sized eggs.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was the famous black American agricultural researcher who developed more than 300 products from peanuts?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Christianity, with 985 adherents, has the largest following of any religion in the world today.

Pilot Vanishes After His Crash

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — A state police investigation into the crash and explosion of a twin-engine airplane at the Taos airport lacked one major item — the pilot.

The pilot survived the crash and explosion Monday and walked to the nearby airport terminal noticeably shaken. However, after telling authorities there he was going to a hospital, he disappeared.

A check by state police of area hospitals failed to turn up any trace of the unidentified man.

"Nobody could find the pilot," said Steve Quintana, airport manager. "He radioed in and said he was taking off and about three minutes later we heard sputtering noises and we saw him come back."

Quintana said the pilot apparently jumped out of the airplane just before it exploded. "He was all shook up when he got back to the terminal. He had what appeared to be minor facial burns. He was walking, but he was all shook up."

The craft, a Piper Aztec, crashed and exploded on impact — "there was a huge mushroom cloud, the whole deal," Quintana said.

"The sagebrush was burned where it impacted on the ground," he said. "It landed about 50 yards from the runway and maybe skidded another 50 yards and then exploded. I don't think he had time to say anything on the radio."

"There was a couple of the HUGE HAILSTONES PEKING (AP) — Hailstones weighing 33 pounds battered southern China early this month, killing five people and injuring 225, the Canton Evening News reported.

engines left and a little bit of wing and the seats — just the skeleton of the plane. It was pretty much destroyed."

State police said the aircraft was registered to P. Collins of St. Louis, Mo.

There was no one else aboard the airplane, which was valued at about $40,000, Quintana said.

Federal Aviation Administration officials were also investigating the crash, he said. The FAA's Albuquerque flight service station reported the pilot had not filed a flight plan.

Lebanese Fight Closes Airport

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian troops and Lebanese Christian militiamen exchanged artillery and rocket fire through the night in Beirut, driving about 100,000 residents into basements and bomb shelters and forcing the closing today of Lebanon's main international airport.

Newspapers reported 21 people killed and more than 80 wounded by the shells and rockets that blasted residential districts on either side of the so-called Green Line dividing Moslem West and Christian East Beirut.

"The gates of hell were loose," said the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio station after dawn brought a lull in the duel.

Public Works Minister Elias Hrawi ordered Beirut International Airport closed until further notice after 10 artillery and rocket rounds hit the field on the southern edge of the capital. All incoming international flights were diverted to Larnaca, Cyprus, or other airports.

The airport was closed briefly on Monday after several shells hit a runway. The new fighting Monday and Monday night broke a 13-day-old cease-fire that halted eight days of Syrian-Christian fighting in Beirut and the eastern Christian city of Zahle. But there was no official announcement it had collapsed.

Each side blamed the other for the latest round of fighting as Lebanon's Christian President, Elias Sarkis, and its Moslem Prime Minister, Shafik Wassan, meet representatives of the two sides in a bid to restore the truce. Scores of tank and artillery shells and rockets fell Monday on residential areas on both sides of the city, killing at least two civilians and wounding 20 in West Beirut. There was no report of victims in the Christian sector.

U.S. Embassy Vice Consul Steve Patterson was slightly injured when a stray bullet smashed through a window of his West Beirut apartment and struck him just below the waist, embassy spokesman Bougos Malek said.

Guns on both sides continued to pound the port district, which has remained closed since shortly after the Syrian-Christian power struggle began on April 2.

Two leftist Moslem groups met with the Syrians said they were firing Soviet-made missiles into the Christian port city of Jounieh, 12 miles north of Beirut. The Christian Phalangist Party's radio station said Jounieh was under artillery attack.

In Tel Aviv, meanwhile, a military spokesman said one civilian was wounded early today by Palestinian guerrilla rockets fired across the Lebanese frontier into the northern Galilee town of Kiryat Shmona. Israeli artillery returned fire across the border, a spokesman said.

A Lebanese provincial government spokesman said Israeli jets were flying over the area, apparently spotting targets for the Israeli artillery.

On Monday, hundreds of Israelis cut short Passover vacations as guerrillas fired three volleys of Soviet-made Katyusha rockets into resort areas in northern and western Galilee.

No Israeli casualties were reported in three waves of rocket fire Monday. Israel responded with air strikes on two suspected guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon and several hours of artillery fire aimed at the Palestinian rocket batteries, the Israeli military command said in Tel Aviv.

Lebanese provincial authorities said the air strikes killed or wounded nine people.

The Israeli command reported one Israeli officer killed and two Israeli soldiers wounded when the Palestinian gunners shelled the southern Lebanese city of Marjayoun, the headquarters of Maj. Saad Haddad's renegade "Free" Christian enclave along the Israeli-Lebanese border.

A spokesman said the Israelis were helping their Christian militia allies search for landmines when they were killed. Israel has acknowledged keeping about a dozen liaison officers in the buffer zone but has denied reports that it has several hundred troops there.

The search for landmines was made after three Christian militiamen were killed and one was injured Easter Sunday when their two jeeps hit mines.

In reprisal, Haddad's militia made a long-range artillery attack that killed 16 Lebanese in the port city of Sidon. Then Moslems in Sidon set fire to the city's Maronite Christian and Greek Catholic cathedrals, and the militia on Monday shelled the port city of Tyre.

Pope John Paul II today condemned his fellow Christians for the Easter shelling of Sidon, expressing his "most energetic" disapproval of the "unjustified" attack.

HEAVY FIGHTING between Syrian troops and Christian militia engulfed Beirut and Sidon in artillery and rocket fire Monday while Israeli warplanes bombed Palestinian guerrilla targets in Southern Lebanon. (AP Laserphoto)

Gave More Than Shirt

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — Ray Miramontes ended up by giving away more than the shirt off his back when he stopped to pick up a hitchhiker on Interstate 8.

The hitchhiker, dressed as a Marine, pulled a gun Sunday on Miramontes and ordered the 19-year-old El Centro man out of both his pickup truck and his clothes, Imperial County Sheriff's deputies said.

They said Miramontes was left standing nude on the highway, while his 1980 Chevy pickup rolled off towards Yuma, Ariz., with the hitchhiker inside. The pickup truck and the clothes were still missing.

STORED ARMOR
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Soviet Union has stored 2,000 tanks in Libya and 1,000 tanks in Syria, Prime Minister Menachem Begin said this week in an Israeli television interview.

Break-In Arrest

Greenville police Saturday arrested Carlton Ray Matthews, 22 of 400A Howell St. on breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with a Thursday night break-in at Hallow Distributing Co. at 401 West 14th St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said entry to the building was gained by cutting a hole in a metal wall at the rear of the structure. He noted that a truck belonging to the firm was used to haul away 80 cases of beer, valued at $763, a television set valued at $100, and a filing cabinet valued at $505.

Cannon said the truck was recovered Friday morning on Hopkins Drive, while the filing cabinet was found in a field off Deck Street a short time later.

A quantity of beer and the television were recovered Friday from a dwelling at 207 Deck St.

among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that Monday's rally followed a government report showing first quarter economic growth at 6.5 percent, a brisker pace than many economists had expected. The report also said prices in the first quarter, as determined by a broad GNP-based measure, rose at a 7.8 percent annual clip compared with a 10.7 percent rate in the fourth quarter.

Today several major banks, including Citibank in New York, joined the upward move to a 17.5 percent prime corporate lending rate. Many bank economists have said, however, they expect rates to drop between now and mid-year.

Among today's prices, Citicorp, parent of Citibank, was up 1 in heavy trading at 23 1/2. The bank holding company reported a sharp increase in first-quarter earnings.

American Express, which announced plans to acquire Shearson Loeb Rhoades, opened shortly before noon at 41, down 2 1/2. Shearson shares had not yet opened.

In the chemicals sector, Dow Chemical was off 3/4 at 36 and Union Carbide slid 1 to 60 1/2. Both had reported steep declines in first-quarter profits.

Big board volume in the first two hours of trading totaled 26.9 million shares, up from 20.2 million in the same period Monday.

The NYSE's composite index fell .25 to 77.92. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index slipped 2.08 to 363.78.

Oil Spill Threatens Florida Keys

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A 10-mile-long oil slick of undetermined origin was riding the tide early today toward shore between Sugar Loaf Key and Key West, an area inhabited by the great white heron, authorities said.

The amount of oil, moving towards shore in large patches, was not immediately known, but officials said as little as 100 barrels of oil could have a devastating impact on the delicate reefs, beaches and wildlife of the lower Florida Keys.

Some oil reached shore at uninhabited Loggerhead Key late Monday, but there was no report on damage, Florida Marine Patrol Sgt. Mike Tucker said. The small island is located about one mile from the Keys coastline.

The Coast Guard initially described the slick as 15-20 miles long, but later said it was about two miles wide and 10 miles long.

Chief Petty Officer Johnny Long of the Coast Guard

Marine Safety Office in Miami said a plane dispatched by his agency was flying over the slick to assess the damage. Experts from the Coast Guard, federal Environmental Protection Agency and Florida Marine Patrol also planned a cleanup strategy meeting at Coast Guard headquarters in Key West, he said.

The Gulf Strike Force, a team of Coast Guard oil-spill specialists, was called in from Gulfport, Miss., but was delayed by aircraft trouble, officials said.

A Marine Patrol officer first reported the spill at 2:30 p.m. Monday, Tucker said in Marathon. He said a Marine Patrol aircraft spotted the large globs of oil in an area approximately 15 to 20 miles long and five miles wide about a quarter mile off shore.

"We're anticipating it will come ashore," Tucker said. "The tide looks like it's carrying it toward Key West and Sugar Loaf Key."

Tucker said there was a potential for ecological and property damage between Sugar Loaf Key and Key West, habitats for the rare Key deer and the great white heron.

He said the heavy black oil was about two inches thick and appeared to be crude or bunker "C" oil.

William Taylor, chief warrant officer of the Coast Guard Marine Safety Office, described the spill as "very heavy, black oil." He said the largest patch was about one-quarter mile wide. Taylor said the Coast Guard did not have time to make an air survey before nightfall Monday so he had no word on the extent of the spill.

"It sounds like a big one, but here again it's puzzling how that large a quantity got inside the reef barrier," Taylor said. "It was the Marine Patrol that first reported it. It seems like the local fishermen would be the first to call."

He said at this time of year, currents in the lower Keys run north to northeast. Taylor said he was sure the spill occurred Monday and that "it would have to be from a source close in."

Marine Safety officials planned to meet with the strike team and private contractors to discuss ways of keeping the oil off shore and cleaning up any spills that reach land.

Taylor said even clean-up efforts on shore posed a threat.

"That's a very sensitive area," Taylor said. "It's touch and go. You've got to decide which is going to do the greatest harm, the cleanup or the oil."

Soviets Ask Poles To Remain In Fold

By BRYAN BRUMLEY
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet newspapers marked the 36th anniversary of the Soviet-Polish Friendship Treaty with new calls today for Polish Communists to act firmly to keep their country in the socialist camp.

The commentaries followed the line set forth earlier this month by President Leonid I. Brezhnev, that he was confident the Polish leaders would defeat the "counter-revolutionaries."

"One should believe that the Polish Communists, with the support of all real Polish patriots, will be able to give the necessary rebuff to the intentions of the enemies of the socialist system which are also the enemies of the independence of Poland," said the military newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda.

Still hewing to Brezhnev's line, it added:

"The Polish people can firmly rely on the unwavering support of the Soviet people."

Repeating a standard Soviet theme, the paper said counter-revolutionaries supported by "outside forces" have created anarchy and are "striving to turn the development of events in the country into a counter-revolutionary course." But it said the "new leadership of the Polish Communist Party and government and all honest people and true Communists are working to overcome the crisis situation."

Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper, said "certain circles in the West would like to use the present difficulties in Poland to inflict damage on the socialist gains of the country and try to divert it from the road it embarked on after liberation from the fascist invaders."

Socialist Industry, the organ of the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee, quoted the assurance given in February by Stanislaw Kania, the new head of the Polish party, that "Poland was and will remain a socialist state, a loyal ally of the Soviet Union and an unbreakable link in the socialist community."

Stanislaw Wronsky, a member of the Polish party's Central Committee, said Kania "expressed the opinion of all Polish Communists when he said that we have enough force and will to block the road to counter-revolution, and that the party will be able to lift the country out of the present social and economic crisis, to stabilize the internal situation and create favorable conditions to the further construction of socialism," the newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya reported.

Stockholders Would Bear Burden Under Bill

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Stockholders — not customers — would have to pay higher utility costs caused by "imprudent management practices" under a controversial bill now before the state Legislature.

Robert Fischbach, public staff director for the state Utilities Commission, drew up the bill, and Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, introduced it two weeks ago.

Utilities "can imprudently accrue fuel expenses and they are not accountable," Fischbach said.

The bill comes after the commission failed last year to penalize Virginia Electric and Power Co. for alleged mismanagement.

The state Court of Appeals rejected a commission order directing Vepco to refund $6 million in fuel charges to customers in 22 northeastern North Carolina counties.

The order also would have forced Vepco to reduce its fuel charges about $4 million a year on the grounds it failed to maintain its coal-fired generating plants properly, resulting in frequent shutdowns and high-priced replacement power.

The court ruled that the state law allowing utilities to recover rapidly rising fuel costs does not permit the commission to weigh alleged mismanagement in deciding whether those costs are reasonable.

Some consumer groups say a provision in the new bill that would allow utilities to collect estimated fuel expenses six months early is anti-consumer and pro-utility. Currently, utilities may recover only money they have already spent.

"It gives the utilities very little incentive to hold those costs down," said Bill Holman, lobbyist for the Conservation of North Carolina and the Sierra Club.

Utilities could keep excess fuel revenues interest-free for a year, said Wells Eddleman, utilities project director for the state Public Interest Research Group in Durham.

"This will make consumers bear all the risks of future fuel expenses," he said.

But Fischbach said excess costs will be "trued up" and lowered every six months. He said consumers would be better off under the bill because the public staff and commission would have more leeway in controlling fuel cost pass-throughs. Duke Power Co. general counsel Steve Griffith said the bill would improve cash flow for utilities, but said the company has not decided whether to support the bill because of the penalty provision.

But Vepco, which prompted the "imprudent management practices" provisions, supports the bill.

Last October, the commission let Carolina Power and Light Co. recover $58 million in fuel charges arising from shutdowns at its Brunswick nuclear plant.

The public staff argued unsuccessfully that management was partly to blame and should absorb $31 million of the costs.

Two days after being forced into an early exit by Baptist College, East Carolina's Rick Ramey returned to the mound against Campbell College looking like a different pitcher.

The ECU senior right-hander hurled nearly six innings of no-hit baseball and the Pirates scored an unearned run in the bottom of the seventh to escape with a 2-1 victory over the Fighting Camels in the opener of a doubleheader.

The Pirates could have used Ramey in the second game, and some surer hands in the infield, as Campbell scored seven runs in the second inning - six of which were unearned - en route to a 9-0 victory and a split of the doubleheader.

The shutout was the first for ECU under second-year coach Hal Baird and the first in 76 games, dating back to April 27, 1979 when the Pirates dropped a 3-0 decision to Methodist in the first game of a doubleheader.

The split leaves ECU at 24-10 for the season. Campbell is 19-22.

"It's always tough to take a doubleheader," Baird said. "And we'd won all five we've had here this year and we'd beaten (Campbell) three straight times this year, so maybe we were due."

Perhaps. But so was Ramey. After giving up four runs to Baptist in the first inning Saturday, Ramey retired to the bench for the rest of the afternoon. Monday, it was the Campbell batters who were seeing more than their share of the bench.

The Camels did not get a hit until there were two gone in the fifth. Ron Brooks, who had five hits in seven at bats yesterday, ended the no-hit bid by slapping single through the right side of the infield.

"He threw super today," Baird said. "The other day probably helped him today. He came out ready to pitch."

For the day, Ramey threw 74 pitches, struck out three, walked one as he upped his record to 5-2 this season. Only once did he go 3-0 on a batter and only three times did he throw three balls to any batter.

"He usually throws less than that because he normally gets by without striking out a lot of people. He gets a lot of first- and second-pitch outs," Baird said. "But 74 pitches isn't that bad for him."

Yet, he easily could have lost the game were it not for an error in the seventh inning that gave the Pirates the win.

East Carolina entered the seventh inning tied with Campbell at 1-1. But Charlie Smith singled to open the inning and the Pirates were on their way to their sixth straight victory.

Former Greenville Rose star Mark Shank was sent in to run for Smith and immediately stole second. Robert Wells then put down a sacrifice bunt - his third of the game - that Cloniger fielded cleanly but threw over the second baseman's head at first, allowing Shank to race home with the winning run.

"It was a bunt and run," Baird said of the winning play. "If the ball's over the plate we bunt it, if not it's a straight steal."

"The game could have gone either way," he added.

"Campbell's got a good club and they're right at .500 and I guess we should feel fortunate to win three out of four from them this year."

For a time, it appeared the Camels might sneak away with the opening game. The Camels broke the scoreless tie in the sixth when, with two gone, Herb Williams walked, moved to

Payne Leaving ECU For Belmont Abbey

East Carolina assistant basketball coach Eddie Payne has resigned to take over as head basketball coach and athletic director at Belmont Abbey College, located just outside Charlotte.

Payne, 29, came to ECU three years ago as an assistant coach under Dave Odom after coaching at Truett-McConnell Junior College in Cleveland, Ga., where he was 25-5 and participated in the national junior college tournament. Before that, he was a graduate assistant at Clemson University.

"I've had two extremely fruitful years at East Carolina," Payne said following his resignation. "It has been a personally rewarding experience for me to work with coach Odom, our basketball staff, our players and the entire East Carolina community."

Odom, who last month lost assistant coach George Felton to Georgia Tech, expressed his regrets at Payne's leaving.

"Once again our basketball program has lost a faithful friend and coach in the moving of Eddie Payne into his new position at Belmont Abbey," Odom said. "Eddie's loss leaves a terrific void in our basketball staff which will be difficult to fill. But as with George Felton's resignation, we are happy to see our staff improve itself."

Before getting into coaching, Payne was a guard at Wake Forest from 1969 to 1973. He also played guard in the European Pro League in Dommene France during the 1973-74 season.

Japan's Seko Captures Marathon In Record Time

BOSTON (AP) — Japan's Toshihiko Seko, a speed merchant with physical endurance to burn, appears ready for an all-out shot at the world marathon record after his Boston Marathon victory, but his coach may have other plans for the immediate future.

Seko, 24, avenged one of his rare defeats Monday and ended Bill Rodgers' domination of the Marathon. He shaved one second off the American distance king's course record in winning the 85th annual run in 2 hours, 9 minutes, 26 seconds.

Two years ago the Japanese sensation pressed Rodgers to the fastest marathon in U.S. history before losing by a narrow margin. On his return, he put Rodgers away with about six miles to go and then wore down unheralded Craig Virgin on the hills.

Seko's training both in speed and on the hills during 26 days in New Zealand before coming here paid off. He breezed over three hills, including famed "Heartbreak Hill" which proved his undoing in 1979, but missed the generally recognized world mark of 2:08:33 set by Derek Clayton in Belgium 12 years ago.

Asked about his future, Seko, whose three Fukuoka International victories and the two Boston visits represent his only marathons since late 1978, said through an interpreter: "I don't know. Ask my coach."

Coach Kiyoshi Nakamura hedged a bit before mentioning a possible 10-kilometer race in Prague July 19. Nakamura may want his young protege to try for shorter distance records.

Seko appeared to be in command after easily clearing "Heartbreak Hill," although Virgin, also a speedster running only his third marathon, hung tough. Seko pulled away as he passed Rodgers' sporting goods store with less than four miles to go.

"I ran my own race, set my own pace, even though I knew where he (Rodgers) was all the time," Seko said. "I've been training for the hills and they didn't bother me today. I just didn't want to have to fight at the end."

Then, turning to Rodgers, he said, "I'm sorry I broke your record."

Jury Clears Kush Of Charges

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — After close to five hours of deliberation, an eight-member jury cleared former Arizona State University football Coach Frank Kush of forcing punter-defensive back Kevin Rutledge to quit the team in 1979 through verbal and physical harassment.

The Maricopa County Superior Court jury of six women and two men cited "a lack of sufficient evidence" in the second phase of Rutledge's $2.2 million damage suit.

Kush in an interview with ABC Radio Sports says he was very concerned and nervous throughout the entire proceedings.

"The entire American sports system would have been in major jeopardy if Rutledge had won the case," Kush said in an interview with ABC Radio Sports. "It would open up an entire new avenue if a player in any sport decided he didn't like the procedure taken by the coach."

"If this case had gone in the other direction, sports in America would not be played on the field, it would move to the courtroom. You don't know how relieved I am."

Jurors voted 5-3 that Kush and ex-Sun Devil defensive secondary coach Bill Maskill did not drive Rutledge off the team and cause him to forfeit his scholarship — thus constituting a breach of contract.

On March 20, the same jury found in Kush's favor at the end of the first phase by an identical 5-3 margin on allegations that he had punched Rutledge in a 1978 game and misrepresented the school's scholarship policy to him in 1977.

Rutledge's father, Gordon, and attorney, Robert Hing, said Monday that they plan to appeal the verdicts in both phases.

Kush said he was relieved about the decision. Asked if he was bitter about the lawsuit, he said: "No, it is obvious that Mr. Rutledge has a lot of problems — a lot more problems than I had first realized."

Neither Kush nor Rutledge was present for the reading of the verdicts.

Kush, the new coach of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Canadian Football League, took a flight back to Canada after watching Judge Thomas C. Kleinschmidt read final instructions to the jury Monday morning.

"I do not plan to change my coaching style," Kush said. "I plan to approach the CFL the same way I coached in the collegiate ranks. I've been coaching for 25 years and I feel the style I have developed is one of a winner. I will not change. I will not be intimidated by any individual that does not agree with my style."

Kush's wife, Fran, who also was a defendant in the suit, said: "It's a victory for all future football players and coaches, not just for Frank."

"I couldn't tell you how happy I am," she added. "But I still think it (the lawsuit) was a waste of time."

On the 36th trial day encompassing a three-month span, the jurors also voted 6-2 in favor of the Arizona Board of Regents that it did not breach the school's scholarship contract to Rutledge. The jury also ruled by a 6-2 count that university President John Schwada was not negligent in his supervision of Kush.

Earlier in the week, Rutledge told The Associated Press that he wanted a change of venue for the trial and planned an appeal "if I lose."

Hing said he was "very surprised and very disappointed about the verdict (but) we'll file the appropriate post-trial motions."

"I hope Rutledge doesn't appeal. I hope it's over with," said Board of Regents' attorney Michael Gallagher. "There was no evidence of Frank Kush mistreating this player and that's what the jury found. I hope Rutledge leaves it at that, but he probably won't."

"I don't know if any lawsuit deters people from doing anything they want to do," Platt said. "But if he had won, it would have been a very sad day for athletics."

Two elderly jurors voted consistently against Kush in all six verdicts in the trial's two phases, but would not comment on the case Monday.

Cynthia Krayer Shaidnagle and Teri Ritz, however, both said they "didn't feel there was enough proof" presented by the plaintiff.

"I didn't feel that the evidence was strong enough on all counts," said Ms. Shaidnagle, 19, of Scottsdale. "I didn't feel there was enough evidence that he (Rutledge) had been punched."

Mrs. Ritz, 34, of Phoenix, said that she "realizes football is a tough game, a violent game. But a football player should be able to take that rough treatment from his coach or whoever. I feel he (Kush) used it to motivate his players — to make them better."

"And it didn't sound to me like Kevin put enough effort into becoming a good player," she added. "He missed practices and he didn't bother showing up for meetings."

Kleinschmidt handed jurors four sets of verdicts for the second phase and said a majority of five was needed for each decision.

He told them that if they found for Rutledge, they must have determined that Kush and Maskill "intentionally interfered with his scholarship contract and were wanton, showed spite and ill will toward the plaintiff."

Maskill is now an assistant coach at Tulane University.

During the trial, Hing labeled the 51-year-old Kush "a sadistic animal who ran off players that did not meet his standards for performance with malicious means."

High-Flying A's Blank Twins For 12th Triumph

By The Associated Press

Some people are never satisfied. Take Art Fowler, pitching coach of the high-flying Oakland A's.

In rolling to a 12-1 record, the A's have thrown four shutouts, including Matt Keough's five-hit 3-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins Monday night. The Oakland staff has not allowed more than three runs in any game while completing 11 of 13 starts and Fowler's flingers have allowed only 17 runs in 117 innings for a team earned run average of 1.31.

You'd think any pitching coach who ever lived would be pleased with that kind of record.

"The one area we've been lacking in is we've been giving up too many walks," says Fowler. "I just tell them to get the ball up to the plate, and when they hit their spots more consistently they'll be even better than they have been."

In other American League action, the Cleveland Indians downed the Kansas City Royals 4-2, the New York Yankees trimmed the Detroit Tigers 6-2, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Texas Rangers 4-2, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Toronto Blue Jays 5-4 in 12 innings and the California Angels beat the Seattle Mariners 6-1. The Baltimore-Chicago game was postponed by cold weather.

Keough, 3-0, struck out six and walked one. He has allowed only one run and 15 hits in his three outings — his earned run average is 0.33 — and has pitched two shutouts against the Twins. Keough was backed by home runs from Mike Heath and Rob Picciolo off Jerry Koosman.

"I was a little worried about this game after the loss on Sunday," Manager Billy Martin said, referring to the end of the A's record 11-game season-opening winning streak in the nightcap of Sunday's doubleheader.

"You have to be concerned when a streak ends that a team will go in the dumps," he said. "To me, this was our most important game of the year so far. It proved that we're back on the beam again."

The Twins say that beam may be slightly illegal.

"They all throw spitters when they have to in critical situations," said Minnesota's Roy Smalley, who struck out with two runners on base in the ninth inning. He said Keough fanned him on a spitter.

"They don't throw it all the time, but every one of their pitchers will throw a wet one when they have to. I've been in the game long enough so that I won't swing and miss at a sinker by five feet," Smalley said.

Indians 4, Royals 2

Cleveland, like Oakland, is getting some pretty good pitching. John Denny and Dan Spillner stopped Kansas City on six hits and the Indians scored twice in the ninth inning on an error and a passed ball to defeat the Royals, whose runs were unearned. The Indians haven't allowed an earned run in their last three games.

Bo Diaz greeted Kansas City relief ace Dan Quisenberry with a single with one out in the ninth that sent Toby Harrah, who drew a walk from loser Paul Spittorff, to third. Ken Brett came on and second baseman Rance Mulliniks booted Jorge Orta's grounder, allowing Harrah to score. Diaz scored on catcher Jamie Quirk's passed ball. Andre Thornton homered for the Indians, his first since 1979. He missed all last season with a knee injury.

Yankees 6, Tigers 2

Reggie Jackson and Oscar Gamble slammed consecutive home runs with two out in the first inning, helping extend Rudy May's consecutive-game regular-season winning streak to 11 over two seasons. May, 3-0, scattered seven hits, including a Kirk Gibson homer.

With Jerry Mumphrey on first via a single in the first inning, Jackson punched an opposite-field home run to left off Dave Rozema. It was Jackson's first home run of the season and his 411th lifetime. Gamble followed with a long solo shot to right-center. Dave Winfield added a pair of RBI singles and also scored on a single by Gamble.

Red Sox 4, Rangers 2

Dwight Evans hit a towering two-run homer to back the seven-hit pitching of Mike Torrez as Boston spoiled Texas Manager Don Zimmer's return to Fenway Park. "I didn't know where to stand in the dugout," said Zimmer, who was with the Red Sox for seven years as coach and manager.

Brewers 5, Blue Jays 4

Cecil Cooper singled in the 12th inning and scored on Ben Oglivie's triple as Milwaukee snapped a four-game losing streak. The Brewers tied the score with three runs in the ninth on singles by Ted Simmons, Roy Howell and Gorman Thomas, a bases-loading walk and then a hit batsman and another walk.

Angels 6, Mariners 1

Fred Lynn hit a two-run homer and Geoff Zahn benefited from three key double plays while scattering 10 hits. Lynn's second home run of the year came with two out in the first inning and scored Rick Burleson, who singled. The drive off Jerry Don Gleaton carried 400 feet to left-center field.

second after Johnny Baldwin reached on an error and then scored on Kelly Hoffman's double to deep centerfield.

The Pirates, who managed just five hits off Campbell freshman Darin Cloniger, countered with a run in the bottom half of the inning.

Sage doubled down the right field line with one out and then after a ground out scored when Todd Hendley hit a 3-2 pitch to right for a single. One inning later, the Pirates scored again for the victory.

The second game resembled the first for only one inning. After that, it was Campbell all the way.

After ECU starter Bob Patterson set down the Camels in order in the first, he was stung for seven runs — six of which were unearned — in the second, thanks to two errors in the infield.

Terry Strickland led off the inning with a walk and moved to third on Wayne Dale's double to right. After Brooks struck out, Phil Hunt walked to load the bases.

Kenny Fisher then sent a grounder to shortstop Kelly Robinette, who booted the ball, allowing Strickland to score. The Pirates then committed their second straight error and the game was on its way to being over.

Mark Calcutt put down what appeared to be a delayed squeeze bunt and when Patterson bobbled the ball Ron Ammons, running for Dale, raced home to score and the Camels led 2-0.

Williams followed with a double to score Hunt, Fisher and Calcutt and send Patterson, now 4-1, to the dugout. Johnny Baldwin greeted Mike Lloyd, the ECU reliever, with a ground rule double to left, scoring Williams. After a flyout, Strickland slapped the Camels' third double of the inning to bring home Baldwin with Campbell's seventh run of the inning.

The Pirates were never able to rebound after that second inning. ECU did not get a runner to third against Campbell sophomore Joey Stephenson all game. Only twice did ECU managed to get two men on base — in the fifth and seventh. Both times Stephenson, who held the Pirates to four hits (all singles), escaped further damage by getting the next two batters out.

"Their kid pitched well," Baird said. "The key for us to have been able to sustain our momentum from the first game would have been to get a good pitching effort (in the second game). We didn't get that."

Tigers' Anderson Dons Cloak Of Modesty In NY

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

Sparky Anderson brought the second hottest baseball team in the American League — the Detroit Tigers — into New York's Yankee Stadium this week and immediately donned the cloak of modesty.

He shrugged off the excellent start of his own club and preferred to talk about the amazing spurt of Billy Martin's Oakland A's.

"We're actually not playing that well," said the snow-haired field boss, who won two world championships, four National League pennants and five division titles with the Cincinnati Reds in the 1970s. "Of the first nine games, we only had a couple I would call good ones, yet we won seven."

"We were lucky. We have some tightening up to do. We can compete with anybody but we're about three players away from being outstanding. We need more speed, another dependable starting pitcher and a player who can give us punch at the plate."

"Now you take Billy Martin and the A's. There's a difference in our styles but there's no question they are faster than we are, have a stronger pitching staff and they're ablaze with desire."

"You have to give Billy credit for that."

Sparky, nattily attired in a gray plaid suit, white shirt and tie, lit a pipe after devouring a waffle at the Tigers' hotel headquarters.

"I said before the season started that the A's and the Baltimore Orioles were going to be the best teams in the league," he said. "Nobody's got better pitching than those two clubs. The A's have the best outfield in baseball (Dwane Murphy, Tony Armas and Ricky Henderson). They catch every ball. All three have speed and are run producers."

Anderson scoffed at suggestions by some baseball observers that Billy Martin inherited a clover field of talent and is reaping personal rewards from a team made to order by former Oakland owner Charles O. Finley.

"I don't buy that," the Detroit skipper said. "They're the same players who were around in 1979. This is a Billy Martin team. He is totally involved and they are responding to his special brand of leadership."

"They were a bunch of ragamuffins before Billy took them over. They felt they were minor league players. They had no pride or direction. Billy gave it to them."

"He put the ball club on notice. He said, 'Hey, you guys, you've come to the ball park and we're going to win. If you don't play your damndest from the first inning through the ninth, I'll tear the clubhouse down.'"

"To instill fear is sometimes a good thing — especially in the case of a young club like this that needs motivation."

Anderson has a certain affinity with Martin because both of them were influenced by the late Charlie Dressen.

Martin has admitted that Dressen, the former Cincinnati and Dodger pilot, had tremendous influence on him, as did the late Casey Stengel. "Dressen was the first to tell me I should get into managing," Sparky said.

It was Dressen who impressed upon both Sparky and Billy the importance of putting emphasis on good pitching, speed and defense, rather than home run power.

"If you stress 'offense, offense, offense,' you'll find you never win anything," Sparky added. "It's easy to get run-motivated and top-heavy. Look at the statistics and you'll find that the most successful teams are those who hit and run, steal, squeeze and nurse runs across the plate, depending on pitchers to hold."

With .584, Sparky has the second-best winning percentage of all managers 10 or more years in the field, trailing only Baltimore's Earl Weaver (.599). Only four other managers in the game's history have better marks — Joe McCarthy (.614), Billy Southworth (.593), Frank Chance (.592) and John McGraw (.589).

Sparky was asked how come most of the best managers were never standouts as players, many — such as Weaver, Anderson and Walt Alton — having little or no major league experience.

Some of the greatest players, Rogers Hornsby a prime example, were flops as field generals. Ted Williams' record was average. Babe Ruth was never given a chance.

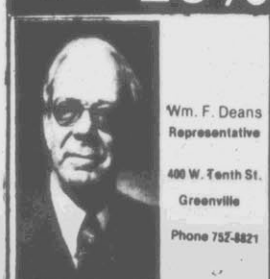

"It's all up here," Sparky said, tapping the side of his forehead. "The greats expect players to do everything they did. They can't relate. Us little guys, we realize our inadequacies. We are always thinking, always trying something different, using every device we know to try to win."

Astros Drop Fourth Straight

HOUSTON (AP) — The script was different but the outcome was the same as the Los Angeles Dodgers continued their hot streak and the Houston Astros kept sliding deeper in the National League West standings Monday night.

The Astros had been getting fine pitching and poor hitting. But Monday night the pitching wasn't good enough to make up for the lack of hitting as the Dodgers took a 5-2 victory.

The victory gave Los Angeles a 9-1 record while Houston lost its fourth straight, falling to 2-8, seven games behind the division-leading Dodgers.

Someone suggested that a team meeting might be in order but pitcher Joe Niekro figures "a couple of wins would do us more good."

The victory was also the fourth straight over Houston for the Dodgers, who lost a one-game playoff to the Astros for the division title last year after sweeping a three-game series to catch them. Although there is no revenge motive, second baseman Davey Lopes has gained a certain amount of enjoyment from the victories over Houston.

Houston has been losing because of subpar hitting in spite of fine pitching. The script changed somewhat Monday night when the Astros rapped out 11 hits and their pitchers issued eight walks.

Loser Joaquin Andujar, 0-1, loaded the bases with walks to lead off the game. A two-run single by Steve Garvey and an RBI hit by Ron Cey staked Los Angeles to an early 3-0 lead before a batter was retired.

Houston narrowed the count on sacrifice flies by Jose Cruz and Alan Ashby in the first two innings but Pedro Guerrero's run-scoring double and Mike Scioscia's sacrifice fly restored the Dodgers' three-run lead.

Burt Hooton, 3-0, was the winner while Dave Goltz was credited with a save.

Expos 9, Phillies 8
Jerry White's three-run pinch homer in the eighth inning broke a 6-6 tie and Montreal hung on for the victory over Philadelphia.

White connected on the first pitch from Phillies relief ace Tug McGraw and then veteran Woodie Fryman came out of the bullpen to shut off a two-run Philadelphia rally in the ninth and save the victory.

"I went up to the plate looking for a strike and that's exactly what it was," said White.

McGraw described the pitch as a slider. "But I got it up higher than I wanted to," said the left-hander.

Cardinals 6, Cubs 1
Keith Hernandez drilled three doubles, driving in one run and scoring two others for St. Louis as the Cards won their fourth straight and sent Chicago to its seventh consecutive loss.

Bob Forsch, Jim Kaat and Bruce Sutter combined for a three-hitter.

Hernandez doubled home the Cards' first run in the first inning, then doubled and scored in the third on George Hendrick's single and doubled and scored on Ken Oberkell's two-base hit in the eighth.

Giants 9, Padres 0
Vida Blue scattered seven hits in 7-1/3 innings and Enos Cabell drove in three runs with a pair of singles. The victory gave Blue a lifetime record of 8-0 against the Padres. Cabell singled two runs across in the fifth and another in the seventh.

At 5 p.m. North Pitt-New Bern winner will meet the Rose-Williamston victor and then at 7:30 the winners of the other two games will play.

The two victors in the winner's bracket (the last two games Thursday) will play at 7:30 Friday night for the tournament championship. The two winners in the loser's bracket (the first two games Thursday) meet at 5 p.m. for third place.

The losers of Thursday's first two games will meet at noon Friday, followed by the game between the losers of Thursday final two games.

Louis Buried In Arlington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Old and young black and white by the thousands were paying their last respects to Joe Louis, an American legend being buried today among the nation's heroes.

"That's the great Brown Bomber," Moses Quarles said Monday as he leaned forward to get a better view in the hushed sanctuary of Washington's 19th Street Baptist Church. "There will never be another man like him. He was one of a kind."

Louis, 66, who held the world heavyweight boxing championship longer than any man in history, died of a heart attack in Las Vegas April 12.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: P equals I

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

One of the best played hands to have crossed our desk is this example from the trials to select the British team for last year's Olympiad. South was a young British star, Roman Smolksi.

Once North showed at least a tolerance for hearts with his bid of two no trump, South elected to gamble on the heart game.

Had West made the normal lead of the ten of clubs, declarer would have had few problems. Unfortunately for South, West hit upon the double-dummy opening of a low spade. Declarer played the king from dummy and, when the queen dropped, declarer was in a parlous state—looking at all four hands, it seems that declarer must lose a trump, a diamond, a club and a spade ruff, since he has no quick entry to his hand to draw trumps.

However, declarer was not about to give up. At trick two he led a low club from the table. East could have defeated the contract had he played low—West would win the ten, give East a spade ruff, and a diamond shift by East would allow the defenders to score two more tricks. But East inserted the jack of clubs—and we must confess that we would probably have done the same. He shifted to a diamond, and the ten was covered by the jack and won by the ace.

Now declarer found a second brilliancy in the hand. He led the queen of clubs from dummy and, when East

Cable Stealing Network Viewers

By PETER J. BOYER

AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Observers of television, insiders and outsiders, are spending a lot of cocktail dialogue on the subject of the networks' dwindling share of the prime time audience. The favorite question: Where are the viewers going?

New Technology zealots claim the answer is obvious. With nearly 18 million homes hooked into cable, they say, networks have to lose audience.

Detractors of the New Technology are currently in vogue. They like to go on about how tiny is the percentage of American homes equipped with video cassette units or hooked into cable.

They have other suspects in the prime time audience theft — ranging from a new interest in books (is it possible?), to improved programming by independent stations, to amateur athletics.

Sound reasoning, all around. But to the other question, less asked but no less central — Why? Why are viewers fleeing network TV at the slow-but-sure rate of 1, 2 or 3 percentage points every three months?

The question has become passe in Hollywood, possibly because its answer is taken as an incontrovertible truth, beyond discussion. The answer, the simple truth, is that most network television, the front-line, day-to-day product, isn't very good.

To put it another way, here are some prime time attractions, as described by network publicists:

From ABC's "That's Incredible!" —

"A Spectacular Team of Amputee Skydivers Sets a New Mid-air Record" — "Because each member has either an arm or a leg amputated, the (human star) formation was particularly difficult to achieve because of the aerodynamic effects on their different body shapes... Several of the one-legged club members carry their aluminum peg legs during free-fall and land perfectly on one leg before attaching the aluminum peg leg and walking away."

And —

"A professional motorcycle stuntman challenges a speeding car to a daring duel inside a tunnel of fire; a victim of the mysterious fiery force known as spontaneous human combustion and one of its few survivors relives his terrifying experience." (A rather rare affliction, a science writer assures me.)

From ABC's "Vegas" —

"Insane Performer Believes He Is The Real Wayne Newton..." Or at least, eccentric.

From NBC's "Friday Night at the Movies" —

"The Harlem Globetrotters on Gilligan's Island." Relevance makes a comeback.

And this from CBS, regarding an episode of its series "Flo" —

"Just as a beer-loving tour group is due to visit the Yellow Rose, Flo learns to her horror that a vital part of the bar — the rest rooms — really belong to Randy's dad ... and he's offering them for sale."

That's why.

Court Clears Tape Showing

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal appeals court has cleared the way for broadcast of Abscam videotapes shown at the trial of former City Council President George X. Schwartz and councilman Harry Jannotti.

Floyd Abrams, an attorney representing Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. and the three major networks, said he hoped the tapes could be broadcast in the next several weeks.

A 34-page decision of the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned two rulings by U.S. District Judge John P. Fullam last fall that the tapes could not be televised.

Fullam said broadcasting the tapes, shown in a September trial, would create adverse publicity that could infringe upon the defendants' rights.

The tapes show Schwartz and Jannotti meeting with FBI undercover agents who posed as representatives of a fictitious Arab sheik interested in building a Philadelphia hotel.

According to Monday's ruling, the tapes must be inspected by Fullam before they are broadcast to make sure there are no libelous references to individuals who are not parties to the case.

The two former City Council leaders were convicted in connection with bribery payments they allegedly accepted. Fullam ruled last November that the defendants had been entrapped and overturned the convictions.

An appeal by the Justice Department to reinstate the convictions is pending.

Schwartz resigned his City Council post after he was indicted; Jannotti stepped down as majority leader but remains a councilman.

Leap Saves One Frog

SPRINGFIELD, S.C. (AP) — Sixteen feet, 10 inches may not be an Olympic record in the triple jump, but it may have saved Herman from the terrible fate awaiting some of the 172 other, less athletic frogs in the 15th Annual Governor's Frog Jump.

Herman's owner, Laura Bolin, 18, said she had never entered the three-jump event before, even though she lives in Springfield. "It's the first time I ever picked a frog," she confessed.

Miss Bolin, who named Herman after her boyfriend, said she planned to keep her frog. But the many losers of the contest were destined to be returned to area ponds or be fricasseed.

The frogs hailed from ponds, lakes, and rivers around the state, and a good number were sold out of a pickup truck for $5 apiece before the contest.

Columbia's Return Is Delayed

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The space shuttle Columbia's return to Kennedy Space Center in Florida has been pushed back another 24 hours, with departure now set for Friday.

The reason for the delay is "nothing specific," and nothing serious, said Les Reinertson, a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Operations have taken longer than anticipated since the Columbia returned from its inaugural space flight April 14. The preparation of the craft is a training experience for new crews who will be working on future shuttle trips, Reinertson explained Monday.

Columbia's trip on the back of a special Boeing 747 jet to the Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral had been postponed earlier from Tuesday to Thursday, and the Friday timetable could slip again, Reinertson said.

"We have no problems with the orbiter at all. It's just us getting all our eggs in order out here," he said. "Obviously we don't feel pressured by a timeline on it. We want to do it right. This is not a countdown; it's a count-up."

Maintenance crews and engineers were working around the clock to prepare the first reusable space vehicle for its return to its Florida launch site. On Monday, crews continued to purge Columbia's various power systems and lines of toxic fuels, Reinertson said.

When preparations are completed, Columbia will be hoisted 60 feet off the ground by a giant lift that will be used to mate it to the 747 jet. That will probably occur Wednesday, Reinertson said.

The piggyback flight to Oklahoma City's Tinker Air Force Base, where the 747 will make an overnight refueling stop, is expected to take 3½ hours, he said. The remaining flight to the Kennedy Space Center will take three hours and 20 minutes if all goes as planned.

Peace Corps Director Here

U. S. Peace Corps Director of Recruiting Margaret Holmes will conduct a workshop for prospective Peace Corps volunteers here tonight at 7:30 p.m.

The workshop will be held in the Multipurpose Room of Mendenhall Student Center. Holmes and another Peace Corps recruiter are in Greenville today and tomorrow to talk to prospective Peace Corps workers. If interested one may call or visit the ECU Career Planning and Placement Services office, 757-6393, where the two will be interviewing.

Even persons who want to plan ahead several years about joining the Peace Corps are welcome. Peace Corps alumnus, Emily Coble, said. There are now 88 North Carolinians in the Peace Corps. There were 5,996 from all over U. S. at the end of the Carter administration. More and more of the work of the Peace Corps recruiting must be done by volunteers. Coble added, since funds are being cut by the Reagan administration.

ON DEAN'S LIST

PARTICIPANTS

Stars Balk In Drug Testimony

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Despite assurances from a congressional aide that "we have no intention of asking people to name names," Hollywood resistance is threatening to scuttle an investigation of drug abuse in the entertainment industry.
"We are tired of people always starting their investigations with Hollywood just because it is prominent and will generate publicity," said Kim Fellner, spokeswoman for the Screen Actors Guild. "We know that alcohol and drug abuse exist in our industry, but in no greater proportion than in the rest of society," she said.
"These hearings have overtones of the 1950s," said actor Ed Asner of CBS-TV's "Lou Grant," quoted in this week's People magazine. "We can't blow the whistle on commies anymore, so we blow the whistle on people who snort."

"The whole town of Hollywood is coked out of its head," actor Robert Blake has said. A number of actors and actresses have been arrested for investigation of possession of cocaine, which is often taken through the nose by sniffing or "snorting."
As late as Monday, Zeffereetti and Leshin were scrambling to line up celebrities as witnesses. Two of those who had been scheduled to testify backed out, saying they feared the hearings would lead to a blacklist like the one of people suspected of being communists. Sen. Joseph McCarthy conducted hearings in the 1950s to investigate alleged communist subversion in the U.S. government. A number of Hollywood figures refused to testify before a House probe of alleged communist subversion in the entertainment industry.

"The perception is the industry has closed ranks and said, 'We're not going to testify,'" Leshin said of this week's hearings. "Everyone's clamming up."
Among them are actress Cathy Lee Crosby of "That's Incredible," who last year asked the panel to correct "the false picture that the majority of celebrities are druggies."
Kathie Wasserman, a spokeswoman for Miss Crosby, said the actress decided not to go along this time because she felt the committee was investigating "who's taking drugs in Hollywood."
"I don't know why they're so paranoid," Rep. Thomas Railsback of Illinois told People. "I think there must be a very serious problem."
Leshin said producer Alan Horn, president of Tandem Productions-TAT Communications, and actor Phil McKeon, who plays Tommy on the CBS series "Alice," are expected to testify before the committee.

Other witnesses will include Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley and California Attorney General George Deukmejian.
"Some people have tried to cast Zeffereetti and some committee members as McCarthy types who are trying to get people to name names and build a blacklist," Leshin said. "This is simply not true."
"What Mr. Zeffereetti is trying to do is to develop a federal strategy for dealing with a problem that has reached epidemic proportions."
Ms. Fellner said SAG was "not making a recommendation to our members one way or the other" regarding the hearings.

Ways To Trim Mailing Costs

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — With the cost of a business letter now $6.07, a manufacturer of mailing equipment says there are ways to cut mailing costs.
According to Clifford Bennett of Pitney Bowes' postal education center, firms should:
—Double check postal scales for accuracy.
—Avoid excessive packing, since heavier packages cost more to mail. Also, use lighter weight envelopes and half sheets where possible.

Navy Accepts Liability For Freighter Sinking

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is accepting liability for the sinking of a Japanese freighter, a move that Japan says still fails to provide an adequate explanation for the collision with an American nuclear submarine.
The Navy's brief statement Monday said that accepting liability was not the same as pinning blame on the skipper of the submarine, Cmdr. Robert D. Woehl, or any of its crew.

Woehl's sub, the George Washington, collided with the 2,350-ton Nissho Maru, bound for Shanghai with a cargo of cotton, in the East China Sea about 110 miles off the southern tip of Japan on April 9. The captain and one crewmen of the freighter are missing and presumed drowned. 13 other crewmen were rescued.

The Navy said Secretary John Lehman "accepts liability ... in order to preclude lengthy litigation and to permit the Navy to enter promptly into negotiations with all involved parties."

Japanese lawyers have estimated that claims for loss of the ship and cargo and on behalf of the crew would total about $4.2 million. Since the Navy secretary is limited by law to payment of $1 million for a single claim, any amount over that must be approved by Congress.

The Navy said its liability extends only to actual damages because punitive damages and reparations are not recoverable under admiralty law.

The Navy said its action "in no way is intended to predetermine" any responsibility on the part of Woehl, 41, a native of Palo Alto, Calif., on his fifth tour of submarine duty, or any of the crew.

The Navy has started an investigation of the incident in Guam, where the George Washington is based.

In Tokyo, a spokesman for the Japanese Foreign Ministry said the Navy's action accepting liability showed "good faith in coping with the incident."

But the spokesman, who asked not to be identified, added: "The incident has not been explained to our satisfaction. We don't know what actually took place, why a rescue operation was not immediately conducted and why a report was not made immediately after the collision."

The George Washington, traveling at shallow depths in the East China Sea, surfaced undamaged after the collision but "sighted the vessel steaming away in no apparent distress," the Navy has said.

The weather was described as foggy and rainy. A U.S. plane in the area was ordered to conduct a search, but sighted "no vessels or personnel in distress," the Navy said the day after the incident.

The United States has been heavily criticized in Japan not only for failing to conduct a rescue operation, but also for waiting 24 hours to announce that a U.S. vessel was involved.

Foreign Minister Mafayoshi Ito warned earlier of a "danger that the relationship of trust between the United States and Japan would be affected."

Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said, "I look forward to the results of the investigation being conveyed to the Japanese side" before he meets with President Reagan in Washington next month.

U.S. leaders from President Reagan on down have apologized.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told Ambassador Yoshio Okawara of the acceptance of liability in a private meeting before it was announced.

"This was not a political decision," the Navy said in response to questions, citing a similar decision after a submarine collided with a Greek ship in 1978 and a 1974 federal court decision that "a submarine is a 'give way' vessel at any time that it is operating submerged at a depth that might create a risk of collision with surface vessels."

Rezoning Items Are On Agenda

Six rezoning requests are among the items scheduled for consideration by the Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions at Wednesday's 8 p.m. meeting at city hall.

Business on the joint board's agenda includes: request by Thomas F. Taft to rezone 15.61 acres at the northwest corner of the Stantonsburg and Allen Roads intersection from RA-20 to Highway Commercial; request by Durward Harris to rezone 2.37 acres on the east side of NC 43, just north of Bells Fork, from RA-20 to Shopping Center;

Request by Harry Hardee to rezone 18 acres on the east side of NC 43, just north of Bells Fork, from RA-20 to Shopping Center; request by Harvey Bradshaw to notify property owners which adjoin the major thoroughfare plan within the city jurisdiction;

Consideration of a Subdivision Ordinance change, Article B "Procedure for Review and Approval of Subdivision Plats," Section 9-5-43; amendment to Section 9-5-100 "Access to Streets" of the Subdivision Ordinance to reflect the recent change regarding access to streets; amendment to Section 32-144 "Public hearing required, following published notice thereof" of the Zoning Ordinance to reflect the new time requirements for zoning amendments; and a Subdivision Ordinance change regarding private drives.

Business on the city agenda includes: request by J. Russell Fleming to close a portion of Willow Street; request by Phil Carroll to rezone 5.1 acres at the intersection of 14th Street and Laura Lane from Shopping Center to Office and Institutional; request by Leroy Cherry to rezone 50 acres west of Memorial Drive and south of Greenville Country Club from RA-20 to R-15 and R-6;

Request by J. T. Manning Jr. to rezone 4.51 acres east of Tucker Farms development on the south side of Fornes Run from RA-20 to R-9; final plat approval of J. F. Arthur Division, Section II on the north side of Arlington Boulevard between Green Mill Run and Seaboard Coastline Railroad; preliminary plat approval of Tree Hill Subdivision on the west side of Brownlea Drive, south of Maplewood Subdivision; and final subdivision plat approval of Section I of Cambridge Manor on the south side of Sedgfield Drive, adjacent to Cambridge Subdivision.

Wilkerson Is Speaker

John D. Wilkerson, insurance representative, spoke to the Greenville chapter of the AARP Monday on the health insurance needs of the elderly, especially the need for insurance to supplement Medicare.

Precautions he noted were to deal with a licensed agent and to either read the policy carefully or have the agent explain the coverage.

Reports were given on community services, Tax-Aide and legislative goals. Polly Dail reported on the White House Conference on Aging recently held in Raleigh. Williams announced that the National Area Forum will be held in Baltimore May 19-21. Coping with inflation is the subject to be discussed.

The guests for the meeting were Virginia Frizzelle and Katie Modlin.
