Reagan To Be More Alert

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, wondering why no one ever tried to shoot him before, says he won't be afraid to leave the White House again but "I have a hunch I'll be more alert" after last month's assassination attempt.

"There's not going to be any change in the way we do things," Reagan said Wednesday in his first interview since he was shot March 30.

The convalescing chief executive said constant security threats are part of the job and "you get a little used to it."

But he added: "You sometimes wonder in your mind when and how it's going to happen or any attempt or what it would be like."

Reagan said that since the attack which wounded him, White House press secretary James S. Brady and two law officers, he has seen films showing him milling in crowds "and I find myself wondering, 'Well, why didn't this happen 27 times before?'"

The president, interviewed by the senior White House correspondents of The Associated Press and United Press International, appeared ruddy-cheeked, his gait quick but somewhat stiff, his handshake strong, 23 days after he was wounded.

Under the ground rules set by White House deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver, questions were limited to the shooting, the president's recuperation, and related topics.

Reagan recounted his reaction to the assassination attempt, which he said "still seems kind of unreal," and his near-panic, gasping for air as the presidential limousine sped from the scene of the shooting outside the Washington Hilton Hotel.

Reagan said that once he heard shots "my first instinct was to take a look and see what was going on from where they were, but the Secret Service man behind me had a different idea and the next thing I knew I found myself pushed into the car."

And then there was the pain. It didn't occur as soon as the bullet entered his left side and came to rest in his left lung.

"It was the most paralyzing pain ... as if someone had hit you with a hammer," Reagan said. "Suddenly I found that I was coughing up blood."

On a cart at the George Washington University Hospital, "they found the wound and that I'd actually had been shot," he said.

"The more I tried to breathe and the deeper I tried to breathe, it kept seeming as if I was getting less air and you know that panic that you can get if you're strangling on something. I almost had the feeling that it was going to diminish to the place where I wouldn't be getting any and then they shut me up by sticking a pipe down my throat" to aid the breathing.

Reagan said "I'm feeling fine" now. His discomfort is diminishing, he said, and he has been able to resume his regimen of exercise, albeit at a slower pace.

"I don't think I'm going to hurdle any tables in the room here for a while," he said.

Still, the 70-year-old president said he is astonished by his recovery, adding that horseback riding, his favorite recreation, will "come along pretty soon."

Reagan did not say when he expected to return to the Oval Office, although top aide Edwin Meese III said separately that might come early next week.

The president said that with Congress in recess and with him now back at the White House, his schedule has hardly been altered by the shooting and his tax and budget proposals are "going along all right" on Capitol Hill.

His daily routine at the White House, as Reagan described it, is a mixture of work and relaxation.

On recent mornings, he has been speaking by telephone with members of Congress.

"I can get up in the morning without bothering to get dressed yet, put on a robe and sit and do the calls," he said.

"The only routine that I'm continuing is an afternoon nap. And that was never, in spite of some stories to the contrary, that was never a habit of mine," he said.

Of his alleged assailant, John W. Hinckley Jr., Reagan said:

"I hope, indeed I pray, that he can find an answer to his problem. He seems to be a very disturbed young man. He comes from a fine family. They must be devastated by this. And I hope he'll get well, too."

The president also said the attack has not changed his opposition to gun control, adding: "I'm not just being closed-minded or stubborn."

"We have the laws now," he said. "I don't know of anyplace — there may be some — but I don't know of anyplace in the country where it is now not against the law to carry a concealed weapon.

"Now, we've found that that can't prevent someone" from firing at the president, he continued. "The District of Columbia here has such a law. But a man was carrying a concealed weapon. So I don't see where we believe that adding another law that probably will be just as unenforceable as this one is going to make a difference.

"In fact, if anything, I'm a little disturbed that focusing on gun control as an answer to the crime problem today could very well be diverting us from really paying attention to what needs to be done if we're to solve the crime problem ... quicker, more effective justice," the president said.

Police To Evaluate New Information

ATLANTA (AP) — Police say they expect to evaluate quickly information from a civil rights group which says it has found a "psychopath" responsible for some of the 25 slayings of young blacks since June 1979.

"I don't consider the nature of the information something that will take a long time" to evaluate, said Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown. He did not say exactly how long it might take. He also said late Wednesday that police did not have enough evidence to arrest anyone.

The FBI said the information was "important. We will be checking it out. We are taking a look at what we have," said John Glover, special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office.

Roy Innis, staff director of the Congress of Racial Equality, announced Wednesday his investigators had found a "psychopath," plus a "witness" who they believe could link that person to at least six of the killings. He did not identify the witness or detail the evidence.

However, a newspaper editor who spent five hours Monday interviewing the "witness" said he felt the person's story was "plausible."

"I'm emphasizing that I'm using the word plausible, not believable or anything else, but plausible," said John Schaffner, managing editor of The Atlanta Constitution.

"I wouldn't literally call this person a witness, but it is a person that possibly might be able to shed some light" on the investigation, Schaffner said.

He would not reveal the person's name, the circumstances of the conversation nor the link between the "witness" and CORE's so-called "psychopath."

"We are very convinced we have broken this case, and we can prove it," Innis said, producing an envelope he said contained a picture of the "psychopath." Innis, fighting to retain control of the civil rights group, would not make the picture public.

However, the New York Daily News quoted Larry Mitchell, a spokesman for Innis, as saying the CORE suspect was a black man. Mitchell added the group's investigation indicated a conspiracy involving whites.

Innis said his investigators would "collar" their suspect by 1 p.m. Saturday if police had not arrested anyone or made some progress by then. Innis said CORE had the person under surveillance.

Wednesday night, Atlanta television station WAGA reported that Innis's witness was a Miami woman who had received information by telephone from an Atlanta man.

According to the station, the woman said she was told that a black man and white man were responsible for several recent slayings.

Brown declined comment on the WAGA report.

Schaffner, who refused to say if he talked to a Miami woman, said Innis aide George Holmes called him Monday and asked for a meeting to discuss evidence in the cases. The interview took place that evening.

In a statement, Schaffner said he told Holmes that unless the CORE investigators took their information to the police by 6 p.m. Tuesday he would do so. He said he called authorities Tuesday night.

Four-Cent Tax And $30 Rebate

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Motorists may pay 4 cents more tax on a gallon of gasoline to help ease the highway funding crunch in North Carolina, but some might get a $30 tax rebate, if a proposal now under consideration by several key legislators becomes law.

"We're discussing it," Sen. Kenneth C. Royall Jr., D-Durham, told the News and Observer of Raleigh on Wednesday.

The Royall plan would raise a projected $120 million a year for the Highway Fund and decrease the General Fund by about $15 million.

Taxpayers who could demonstrate that they drive no more than 12,000 miles a year would qualify for a rebate of up to $30, said Royall, chairman of the Senate Ways and Means committee.

There would be a single rebate per family, regardless of the number of vehicles owned, he said.

But legislators will not bring the 4-cent proposal before the full Legislature until after Gov. Jim Hunt appears on statewide television Monday night to announce his recommendations on finding more money for state highways, said Royall.

Hunt is expected to recommend a 2-cent gas tax and an increase in the state's liquor tax.

But legislative leaders disagree on whether highway users should pay most of the tax increases or whether the money should come from various tax sources and budget transfers from other state programs.

Royall, who confirmed that he developed the 4-cent proposal, discussed the idea with Hunt this week, but said he got no response. "I can't get any," he said. "That's what worries me."

Meanwhile, Hunt is showing legislative leaders copies of a poll taken in March that shows the public is more in favor or a 2-cent gas tax increase than the 4-cent boost. The current gasoline tax is 9.25 cents per gallon.

The poll shows 58 percent of North Carolinians would support a 2-cent increase and an unspecified increase in other taxes, including the state liquor tax, while 38 percent are opposed and 4 percent are undecided.

But 76 percent show strong opposition to a 5-cent increase, the poll found.

"The 4 cents scares some people, but ... with the rebate it's a good idea," said Royall. "I haven't had anybody oppose it yet."

Commercial operators and those using their cars extensively for business would be hit hardest by the Royall proposal.

Spokesmen for Hunt declined comment.

Planning Group In Short Meet

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

In one of its shortest meetings in recent months, the Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission Wednesday night endorsed a rezoning request and approved three subdivision plats.

The joint city-county board, also scheduled to meet, failed to have a quorum and an eight-item agenda, including three rezoning requests, went untouched.

Calling the failure to have a quorum an embarrassing situation, City Councilman Louis Clark, who attends the planning board meetings as a Council representative, suggested that "right sharp letters" be written to the three absent members. It was also agreed that copies of the letter should be sent to the Pitt Board of County Commissioners.

The city board, acting on a recommendation by the planning staff, voted to recommend to the Council that a request by Phil Carroll to rezone some 5.1 acres at the intersection of 14th Street and Laura Lane be approved. Carroll is seeking rezoning from Shopping Center to Office and Institutional.

Bob Browning, an attorney representing Carroll, said that the O&I zone is more restrictive than shopping center and the developers feel the rezoning will benefit the neighborhood.

Commissioners approved the preliminary plat of Tree Hill Subdivision, located on the west side of Brownlea Drive, just south of Maplewood Subdivision. The approved plat shows Eric Court, a street off Brownlea, as a dedicated section, according to Director of Engineering Ron Sewell, to be built to city specifications.

Sewell said questions arose earlier regarding the dedication of right of way on the street, which was shown on one plat as a private drive. He said if the street were used as a private drive, it would have to be withdrawn from dedication. According to Sewell, the plat submitted for planning board consideration showed the street as being dedicated.

Phil Dickerson, representing the developers, said that two plats were drawn because an attempt will be made to have Eric Court withdrawn from dedication. If the effort is successful, he noted, a revised plat will be submitted.

Sewell said that an existing portion of the street does not meet city standards and if it is developed, it will have to be built, with the existing section rebuilt, to city specifications.

Bill Wright of 1104 Brownlea Drive said that he has worked hard to have Brownlea Drive completed to Tenth Street and he added that he will not stand for Brownlea not being brought up to standards. Saying that he is "tired of dirt streets," Wright stated that he will not sign anything to have Eric Court withdrawn as a dedicated street.

Commissioners gave their approval to a final subdivision plat of Section I of Cambridge Manor, located on the south side of Sedgefield Drive, adjacent to Cambridge Subdivision.

Planning Director Bobby Roberson explained that the original plat submitted showed the development to involve an apartment complex. He noted that Section I has since been revised to reflect a townhouse development.

In a final matter, the final plat of Section II of the J. F. Arthur Division, located on the north side of Arlington Boulevard between Green Mill Run and the railroad, was approved.

Sewell said that the developers have been requested to provide an easement from Green Mill Run to the Floodway Zone limit for possible future use as a "green belt." He noted that a "green belt" along the mill run would involve such things as riding trails, bikeways or nature trails.

Under present proposals, the easement would give the city access to the property although it would not hold title to the land. It was noted that a resolution will be submitted to the Council regarding "green belts."

Decision Has Not Been Made On Grain Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokesman today stood firm by his contention that President Reagan "really has not made a decision" on phasing out the grain embargo against the Soviet Union.

The president has been talking with advisers about "what kind of signal we'd be sending" by such action, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said.

Amid speculation that the president was about to lift the embargo, imposed in January 1980 by former President Carter in response to Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, Speakes said, "I do not know anything on the president's schedule on the grain embargo."

The spokesman said Reagan received a national security briefing this morning from adviser Richard Allen, but "I wouldn't read into it that it was on the grain embargo."

CBS News quoted an unidentified official Wednesday as saying Reagan has approved a plan that calls for allowing the Soviets to purchase more wheat and possibly more soybeans depending on "how they behave" over labor unrest in Poland. Corn would not be included because of a drought in the Midwest, CBS said.

The report said Reagan approved the concept last week and would formally decide to lift the embargo at a meeting today with top officials. It is to be announced Friday after the commodity and stock markets have closed, the network said.

Speakes responded Wednesday by saying, "I can't confirm a meeting (today) and the president has made no decision." At the regular briefing for reporters earlier, Speakes several times said the president had not decided.

Jim Billington, an Altus, Okla., farmer who heads the Washington-based National Wheat Growers Association, said his organization had been told by major grain exporters and sources in the Agriculture Department that Reagan would hold the meeting.

However, one highly placed Agriculture Department source said today he was "not as optimistic" as the network report suggested.

John Ochs, an aide to Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, today declined comment because "it would be pure speculation on my part." He noted, however, that there was nothing on Block's scheduled indicating he would meet today with other administration officials on the embargo.

During the campaign, Reagan criticized the embargo and said he would lift it. But administration spokesmen said that to lift it while Warsaw Pact military exercises were being conducted in and near Poland would be sending "the wrong signal."

Former President Carter imposed the limitation on grain sales in January 1980, following the movement of Soviet troops into Afghanistan.

Officials at the State and Agriculture departments acknowledged last week that pressure to end the embargo would increase this week if the Polish situation remained calm.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said last Thursday that a partial lifting of the embargo implemented 15½ months ago in response to the Soviet Union's intervention into Afghanistan could come within two weeks.

Wedding Vows Are Spoken

TEACHEY — Kathy Anne Brinkley and Floyd Thomas Eastwood Jr. were united in marriage Saturday, April 11, at 6 p.m. at the Teachey Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Brinkley of Teachey and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Eastwood of Greenville.

Dr. Jesse Parks and Dr. Carl Uzzell officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of white chantilly lace over peau de soie. The fitted empire bodice was designed with an open Queen Anne neckline and sheer Victorian sleeves. The southern belle styled skirt and attached cathedral train were enhanced by cascading tiers of ruffled chantilly lace. Her walking length veil of illusion was edged with chantilly lace and attached to a semi-Camelot cap covered with lace, sequins and pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of white cattleya orchids, miniature white carnations, baby's breath and ivy.

Alice Anne Pate of Beulaville, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Rhonda Eastwood, sister of the bridegroom, Jill Howard of Greensboro, Cheryl Knight of Winston-Salem, Mrs. Hill Teachey III of Clayton and Donna Carter of Wallace. Beth Brinkley of Atlanta, Ga., cousin of the bride, was flower girl and ring bearer was Myron Carr of Danville, Va., cousin of the bride.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mary Sue Cummings, Linda Peele, Dasha Efird, Ann Dywer and Helen Collins.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and groomsmen included Jay and Steve Brinkley of Teachey, brothers of the bride, Stacey Eastwood, brother of the bridegroom, Jerry Jones, cousin of the bridegroom and Ervin Boyd, all of Greenville.

Prior to the wedding ceremony, a program of wedding mucis was presented by Edgar Wells Jr., pianist and organist. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Saunders rendered vocal selections.

Miss Nan Pate of Beulaville, cousin of the bride, presided at the bridal registry.

The bride is a graduate of the ECU School of Nursing. A registered nurse, she is employed at Pitt Memorial Hospital, Greenville. The bridegroom has attended ECU and is an agent for the Durham Life Insurance Co., Farmville.

A reception was held after the ceremony in the church fellowship hall given by the bride's parents. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Gene Wells.

Parents and grandparents of the couple received in the assembly room and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brinkley invited guests into the fellowship hall.

The refreshment tabel was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a silver epergne with white lighted tapers and a spring arrangement of daisies, mums, carnations, delphinium and baby's breath. Mrs. Carl Pate, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake and punch was poured by Mrs. Charles Tice, aunt of the bridegroom. Pat, Gayle and Alice Brinkley assisted in serving.

Hostesses-at-large were Mrs. Ben Brinkley Jr., Mrs. Charles Brinkley Jr. and Mrs. George Worsley.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Townsend. Rice bags were given out by Georganna and Missy Worsley.

After the reception the wedding party, family and close friends gathered at the Brinkely home for a picnic-style supper.

For a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., the bride wore a tropical designed sundress and jacket.

COTTAGE PANCAKES

An old-timer — delicious and nutritious.

3 large eggs, separated
¼ cup all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup creamstyle (small curd) cottage cheese
Strawberry preserves
Commercial sour cream

With an electric beater, beat egg whites until stiff. Without washing beater, beat yolks until thickened and lemon color; at low speed, beat in flour, salt and cheese until flour is moistened — small cheese curds will be visible; with a rubber spatula, fold into whites. Heat an electric griddle to 375 degrees and grease lightly. Drop mixture by heaping tablespoonfuls, a few inches apart, onto griddle. Bake until there are a few bubbles in the middle tops of pancakes and bottoms are golden; turn and bake other sides. Keep baked batches warm in a low oven.

Serve with strawberry preserves and sour cream. Makes 16 three-inch pancakes.

The Greenville Garden Club held its meeting Friday at the home of Mrs. R. K. Rowe. A program on flowers and arrangements in the daisy family was given by Mrs. R. M. Helms.

She also showed slides and talked about dandelions, thistle, daisy feabane, blazing star, gaillandia and coreopris.

Mrs. Marion Crounse was welcomed as a new member by President Mrs. R. A. Davis, who also conducted the business session.

The horticulture exhibit of red, pink and white camellias was explained by Mrs. R.R. Forrest.

A bluebird report was given by Mrs. Robert Little. A list is being kept by Mrs. Little and Mrs. Helms. It was announced the club now has three bluebird trails which will be monitored.

Meeting hostesses included Mrs. F. S. Corbett, Mrs. R. E. Laughter, Mrs. M. G. Martin and Mrs. J. B. Spilman.

Mom, Daughter Losers In Battle Of Wills

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: After you published a letter about visiting aging parents, I received a copy of it "anonymously." I'm sure it came from my mother, to whom I haven't spoken for four months.

I am 29, divorced with two children, live alone and support myself and my children. I don't drink or run around and I'm respected by everybody but my mother.

I know Mom loves me and I love her, but unless she can choose my friends and control my life, she wants absolutely nothing to do with me.

She helped me financially when I needed it, a fact she mentions every chance she gets, but she thinks that gives her the right to pick my friends. After I told her I intended to live my own life, she said she never wanted to see me again.

Since then, she hasn't called me and I haven't called her. Abby, I am so frustrated I could cry. She reads your column religiously, so please tell her I love her and want her to be my friend.

HURTING IN PA.

DEAR HURTING: Your mother (like most mothers) has become so accustomed to telling you what to do ("for your own good," of course), it's hard for her to break the habit. All self-supporting adults are entitled to live their own lives, and from what you say, you're doing an admirable job of it.

Regardless of who closed the door between you and your mother, open it, and try again. I assure you, your mother is hurting as much as you over the estrangement. And maybe more.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a waitress in Milwaukee for 12 years, and I have never been able to figure out why people will come into a cafe and always sit at a table where there are dirty dishes when there are plenty of clean tables available. I have asked waitresses who work at other restaurants, and they can't figure it out either. Can you explain it?

MERT

DEAR MERT: Probably for the same reason people choose to sit in a crowded kitchen even though there is a larger, more comfortable room available. Call it the coziness of clutter. And if it's any comfort to you, it's the same in Los Angeles as it is in Milwaukee.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Social customs are constantly changing, so perhaps you can tell me if my sensitivities are now outmoded.

I am a clergyman who is amazed at the number of well-meaning people who address me simply as "Reverend."

To address someone as "Reverend" without adding his name is worse than calling someone "Mister." I'd rather hear, "Hey, Rev!" At least that is not sanctimonious.

Am I too fussy? If not, perhaps people who wish to use the title "Reverend" out of respect would appreciate a reminder of its proper use.

THE REV. JOSIAH H. JONES

DEAR SIR: Those who address you as "Reverend" without using your last name think they are being respectful. Forgive them, Reverend Jones, for they know not what they do. (But after this, many should know better.)

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I hate to buy things that don't show.

Okay, so I admit it. I'm a snob, but you can't get respect out of a root canal or new underwear.

You could fork out a couple of big bills and have a septic tank so clean you could cook in it, but does anyone care? Plant a few geraniums in the side yard by the garbage can and people go crazy.

My whole house is flash and show. You walk into it and the first thing that hits you is the immaculate order of things. All the drawers are closed. There is a feeling of neatness. You know without asking that the people who live here have clean fingernails and pay their paper boy on time with cash.

Behind a closed door under the sink is a cookie sheet born the year "The Wizard of Oz" was shown for the first time.

Inside the bottom drawer are dish towels so dingy that if a child played with them, you'd make him put them down because you "don't know where they've been."

In the "catch-all" drawer is a pair of reading glasses made whole by a paper clip connecting the stem to the frame. Outside is a 45-foot garden hose with a torn-sheet tourniquet every three or four feet that puts the leaks in traction.

If something doesn't show, we don't fix it, paint it, empty it, clean it, cover it, deodorize it, polish it, alter it, bleach it, wax it, or recognize it in public.

Maybe if there were more of an incentive, we'd pay attention to non-visibles. Perhaps a sign by the front door that reads, "This house has just had a termite inspection and has been declared clean." Or, "The pad under this crummy carpet is waffled for comfort with little air pockets and it's the top of the line."

I learned a long time ago not to waste my time on things that could not be seen. I never sewed up a pocket in a winter coat, never hemmed a slip that you could turn over at the waistband, never bought a water heater until the basement flooded, never replaced the tiles behind the stove, never threw away the scissors with half the tip broken off.

All you people out there who paint the inside of closets — and you all know who you are — listen to me. It's like having your light burn out in the refrigerator. Who knows when the door is shut?

Dr. Rice Is Group Speaker

Dr. Patricia Rice, professor of housing, East Carolina University, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Susanna Coutanch Evans Chapter DAR held last week.

Her program topic was "Chairs — A Reflection of Our Heritage."

People are revealed in the chairs with which they furnish their homes and whether it is an original, adaptation or reproduction it identifies a period in history she said. Her talk was illustrated with slides.

Regent Mrs. Everett Ballengee thanked members who served as hostesses for the GAPA Heritage Tour.

Mrs. Renetta Smith read the national defense message.

Among guests attending were Mrs. David Ballengee of Hopatcong, N. J. and Mrs. Oral Parks.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Richard Dupree.

Problems Can Be Solved

Inflation is clearly gnawing at the pocketbooks of everyone and we were told during the recent campaign and afterwards that the economy is in terrible shape.

With all our economic problems, however, things keep booming along.

The first quarter of 1981 saw an economic annual growth rate of 6.5 percent. It was a solid growth which sent the stock market to new highs, at least for a day, and brought a warning from the president that it was no reason to scuttle the adminisration's economic proposals.

Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors said the figures "overshadow the fact that inflation and unemployment show little sign of near-term improvement."

The administration, sensitive to the need to get the economic package through Congress, said the first quarter figures were not indicative of a trend.

Indeed, we shouldn't be lulled into any feelings of economic security. Inflation and interest rates are still awesome. There is too much unemployment and too many of our basic industries are in severe trouble.

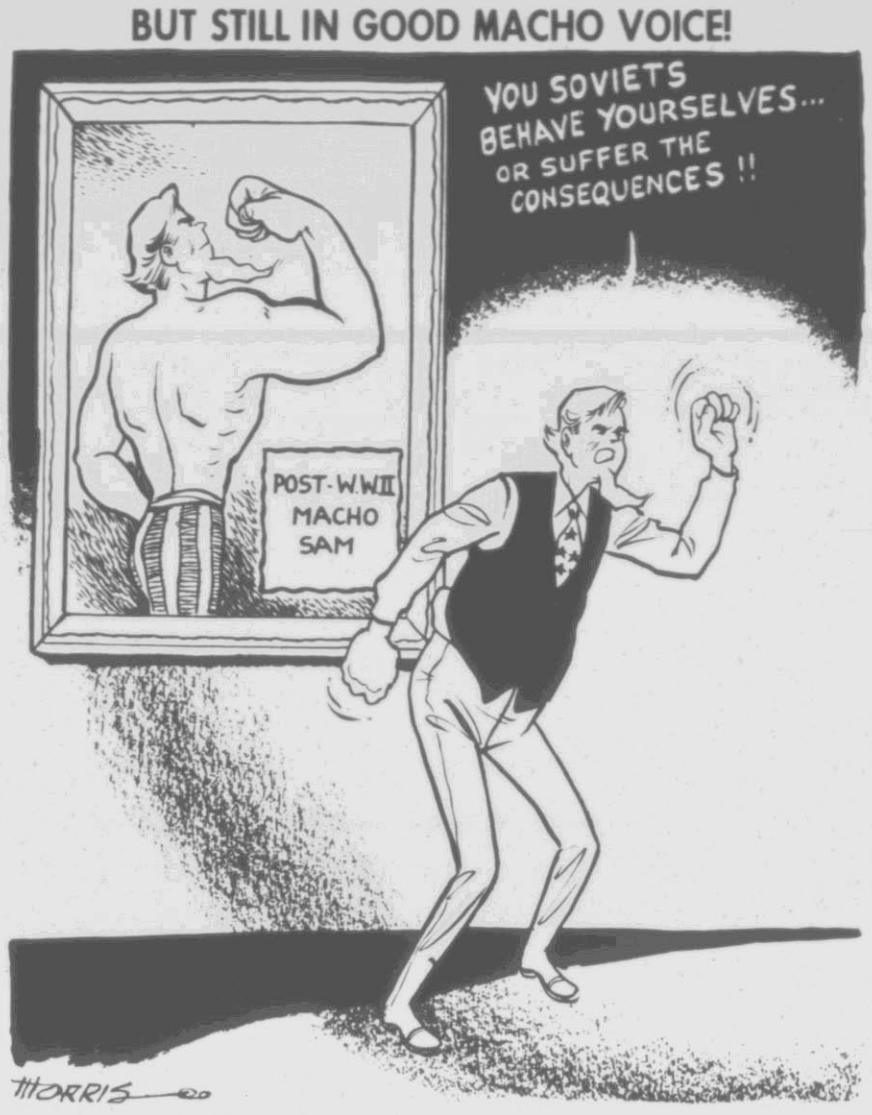
Nevertheless it is difficult to make a case at present for a 1932 situation when the nation's economy and, indeed that of the the entire world, was in shambles. There is much we need to do to increase productivity, increase employment and bring the inflationary use of high cost energy under control, but they are all problems we can solve without radical surgery.

Oil Price Hold Welcome

If there is a bright spot in the efforts to control inflation it is the current oil glut and Saudi Arabia's decision not to raise oil prices.

More than anything the shattering rise in oil prices, accompanied by a rise in costs of other fuels, has contributed to the inflation rate in this country and around the world. It has be a shock to our own economy, but it has been a disaster to the poor countries of the world.

If energy prices can be held steady for a time, we will certainly see a dramatic drop in the inflation rate. There's no going back to the days of cheop energy, but a leveling off will be welcome now.



THIS AFTERNOON

Tax Symbol

RALEIGH — If North Carolina is going to do so much to attract new industry, shouldn't she also do something special for those which have been around for awhile?

That is the symbolic agrument beneath a developing legislative battle over the local property tax on business inventories.

Gov. Jim Hunt has consistently opposed repeal of the inventory tax because of the dollars at stake. Local governments, over the years, have stood fast against repeal unless state government would make up the loss for them. The dollars are big enough to make a major political fight.

In recent years, the direction has been to phase in a program under which businesses would continue to pay the local property tax on inventories, offsetting that by taking a credit on state income taxes.

In that roundabout fashion, the state would gradually assume the revenue loss, local governments would continue to get the money, and the businesses would not be out the cost of the tax every year.

Big Dollars

Best estimates are that local governments currently collect between $130 million and $150 million from this source, with manufacturing inventories accounting for about $65 million. At this time, the tax break is being talked for manufacturing only, but merchants in wholesale and retail are certain to decend on the General Assembly demanding equal treatment.

This year's legislative proposal calls for a four-year schedule with the state picking up 25 per cent the first year, then 50, 75, and 100 percent.

To offset this, prepayment of corporate taxes would be required. This accelerated income would make up the state revenue loss. But insiders predict that such paper juggling of figures will only serve for four or five years. Then, the reality will be that North Carolina coffers will suffer a $200 million annual loss—only delayed for a few years while the politicians escape blame.

Another potential problem is that local government officials will prevail upon local businesses to pay more inventory taxes since they can write them off their state taxes. That would be possible since it is now widely recognized that in some cases local officials do not press hard to make sure all inventories are listed for tax purposes, and some businesses routinely transfer location or title of inventories at tax listing time.

Pressure

Pressure on the General Assembly is great from business and economic development interests to provide inventory tax relief. An editorial in "North Carolina" magazine published by the Citizens Association fairly summarized the approach: a tax break wouldn't cost a single dollar in the long run because new industry would be attracted and the economy will boom. "Phasing out inventory tax burdens would not be a favor for our old-time manufacturers. It would be giving them what is justly due them...."

Existing industry is especially irked by the state's continued investment of major dollars in efforts to woo new, high-technology, high-wage industries without some salute to the firms which have long been the economic foundation of the state.

The inventory tax, then, is taking on a symbolic importance far beyond its actual importance as a hindrance to industrial and other economic expansion. Numerous surveys have concluded that in the total scheme of tax structures and other considerations for a firm seeking a new location, the inventory tax is so small as to be insignificant.

But as a symbol of the state's willingness to help local governments and to recognize the importance of existing business, and as a symbol of a climate favorable to good relations between business and government, the inventory tax has become a major issue.

Relieving Extortion

WASHINGTON — Nearly 20 years have passed since the Supreme Court first addressed the grievance of a non-union worker who is compelled to pay dues to a union he abhors, but little by little a remedy is being fashioned. Some hearings next month in Baltimore will move us closer to a resolution.

Let me define the problem out of personal experience. I am under contract to Post-Newsweek to appear regularly upon a TV program known as "Agronsky & Co." I do occasional things under contract with CBS. A condition of these contracts is that I pay full "membership dues" to the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA). I just sent in a check last week: $232.50 down the drain! My Post-Newsweek employees, moreover, must pay a big chunk of money every year into AFTRA's Pension and Welfare Fund on my behalf.

I am not a member of AFTRA. The "membership dues" that regularly are extorted from me are supposed to be used exclusively for three purposes: 1) collective bargaining, 2) contract administration, and 3) grievance adjustment. But the union does not bargain collectively for me; I bargain for myself. The union has nothing whatever to do with my contract. It would not occur to me in my wildest dreams to ask AFTRA to adjust a grievance; if I had a beef, I would call Kay Graham or Bill Leonard on the phone. Thus the union performs no service for me except to cash my annual checks, a service I willingly would forgo. As for the P&W fund, as a non-member I have no voice in the fund's terms and administration, and I would rather have the compelled payment for my own pension fund.

The point at issue chiefly concerns the compulsory "dues." In cases involving railway workers, TV commentators, and public school teachers in Detroit, the courts have upheld the general proposition of an "agency shop" agreement. But the slowly evolving rule is that the unions may take money from non-members solely for the three purposes.

As a pending case makes clear, this rule is violated wholesale. The case is known as Beck vs. Communications Workers of America (CWA). It was brought a couple of years ago by Harry E. Beck Jr. and other employees of the Bell telephone system in Maryland. The National Right to Work Legal Defense Foundation is assisting them.

Beck's complaint goes straight to the point: He is compelled to pay "dues" that now amount to about $250 a year, and the CWA spends some substantial part of his money on things that are not directly related to bargaining, contracts and grievances. He and perhaps 32,000 like-minded colleagues want that part of their money back.

In May 1979, the case was assigned to a Special Master appointed by the District Court, William K. Barnes, to determine which expenditures are permissible under the three-purpose rule and which are not. The union argued piously that from 89 to 94 percent of its revenue from dues, amounting to $26.5 million in 1979, is spent for the permissible uses.

After a year of hearings, Judge Barnes last August ruled otherwise. He found that only 19 percent of this revenue goes for the three purposes. An astounding 81 percent, he ruled, goes elsewhere — for lobbying on such issues as the Panama Canal Treaty and the Equal

Recalling Joe Louis

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — My father spotted Jack Dempsey standing outside his restaurant on Broadway and hurried me, unwilling, across the street. We had just come out of the Automat, his favorite place for celebrating special events like birthdays, passing report cards and learning the Confiteor in Latin.

"Shake hands with Jack Dempsey," he urged, pushing me through the crowd of admirers gathered outside the window covered with fight pictures.

"Nah," laughed Dempsey, "you don't want to bother with an old has-been like me. Here, kid, shake hands with the next heavyweight champion of the world."

I found myself looking up into the swarthy, unsmiling face of a sleepy-eyed young man in a cream colored sports jacket. I was 10 years old and scared. He was the first black man I had ever shaken hands with in my life.

Joe Louis suddenly smiled and tousled my hair.

"Got yourself a real heavyweight there," he said to my father, calling attention to what I have called my pudgy build ever since. Then my hand was buried inside his warm friendly grasp. It seemed as big as a first baseman's mitt.

I couldn't understand what Jack Dempsey meant by this being the next heavyweight champion of the world. My idol, Jimmy Braddock, already was the champ. He had come off the relief rolls to take the title from Max Baer just a week before. We had seen the cars go by and listened to the fight on the radio. My mother had put the Atwater Kent on the windowsill, so the neighbors could bring their kitchen chairs and listen on the sidewalk outside our ground-floor tenement flat in Long Island City.

We lived, my two brothers and I, on what the locals called "the Boulevard of Broken Dreams and Jaws," the street leading from the Queensboro Bridge to the Madison Square Garden Bowl. In World War II this huge arena became the site of the APO, the big post office for overseas military mail.

Champions always had trouble holding onto their crowns in the Garden Bowl.

I had just turned 7, but I can still remember the traffic jams the night Jack Sharkey outpointed Max Schmeling for the title. That was June 1932. Ours was a predominantly Italian neighborhood, and a year later I recall the landlord breaking out a barrel of his best basement red when Primo Carnera knocked out Sharkey.

The neighbors openly wept the night Max Baer massacred Carnera, decking him nearly a dozen times. It was like a funeral, watching the cars come back from the bowl. The landlord went down to the cellar and stayed a long, long time.

Then it was Jimmy Braddock, the Cinderella man — New York Irish, like us — beating Max Baer to the punch, smashing that hard right into the no longer clowning features of the big Californian. Clem McCarthy's blow-by-blow unreels in my memory like a lovingly stored tape cassette. The cars came back blowing their horns that night, like New Year's Eve or after a church wedding.

A week after I shook his hand, Joe Louis made his New York debut. He put away Carnera in the sixth round at Yankee Stadium. I had my first schoolyard fight the next morning with the landlord's nephew, a rangy southpaw who tried to avenge his heritage against my new hero in a no contest affair that was broken up by Sister Thomas Gertrude, a better hitter with either hand than both of us.

Other Editors Say
More Tax Burden

The New Bern Sun-Journal

A tax break for industry is all the rage now at the legislative building in Raleigh.

To a lot of people, the idea must sound good. According to the rosy forecasts, the tax break, designed to repay industry for some of the tax burden local government imposes through the inventory tax, will make industry healthier, will attract new industries from out of state, will make North Carolina more competitive with other states that don't hit business so heavily, and the like.

The supposition is the working citizen will benefit, too, through more and better jobs.

The reality is more likely that the tax break will turn out to become merely an added tax burden to everyone except those who are heavily invested in industrial inventory, and that is what is wrong with it. Viewed in terms of the actual tax load as imposed by state and local government, it is little more than a subsidy designed to benefit one group of citizens at the expense of another ...

In essence, giving industry that "break" would benefit industry only temporarily, and would give the state another excuse to impose an even less equitable tax somewhere else.

If injustice cannot be eliminated or lessened, then we may as well leave it alone.

Making Profit Is Only One Worry

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If all they had to worry about was the next quarter's profits, the people who run American industry would consider their jobs relatively easy.

Essential as short-term profits are, they are but one item on a list of concerns that makes markets in the 1980s a ferment of activity and change.

The list includes:

—Economic volatility and an inability to make firm commitments to a future that cannot be foreseen.

—Erosion of the market basis of certain industries and the emergence of still undefined new markets.

—Competition among industries for the same consumer market, pitting banks, brokers and insurance companies into a hodgepodge market in which each seeks to manage all rather than a part of a family assets.

—A host of environmental, legislative, tax, ethical, and consumer concerns.

Some bizarre results already have evolved — oil companies urging people not to use their product; insurers, once rigid advocates of guaranteed returns, eyeing a future in stocks, where yields float or sink with the tide; media and other firms maneuvering to position themselves for an only dimly defined but potentialy huge "information market."

The market mixing also has involved tobacco firms as vital components of the food industry. An insurer, Prudential, is the largest single shareholder in several banks, and soon may control Bache & Co., one of the largest brokers; an oil company, Mobil, owns Montgomery Ward, one of the larger retailers; Sears Roebuck is considering mortgage loans.

In such an environment, few companies can relax, as once they did, with the confident feeling they are sticking to their last, that is, to the industry and products they know so well.

If they did, oil companies, for example, might find their original product dated by sun or synthetics, the makers of internal combustion engines might lose out to electricity, and consumer electronic firms might find their once exotic products have become commonplace.

The ferment is fueled as much by necessity as opportunity.

Tobacco companies diversify because of the specter of greater health restrictions. Insurers are forced to abandon the fixed return because of inflation and erratic interest rates. Hundreds of companies have diversified as a hedge against market unpredictability, hoping to offset sales declines in one product with increases in another.

Opportunity, however, still plays a big role.

In communications, to name one industry, a somewhat fuzzy picture is emerging about the electronic home of the future, in which news, ads entertainment, personal conversations, shopping and bill-paying would utilize electronic computers and television screens. So big is the potential, that rather than wait for clearer focus, companies already are positioning themselves with multi-million dollar commitments.

Big opportunities may also exist in the merger of broker and insurer interests. Since each aims at the same customer, efficiencies and new products could result, one being the stock-based insurance policy whose face value would rise or fall with the fortunes of the stock market.

Changes of such magnitude are relatively rare in industrial history, and few managers have experience to guide them or criteria to follow. Comparitively speaking, making money is easy.

Emerald Isle Mayor Accused In Sales

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Emerald Isle Mayor Ronnie Watson and his real estate firm partner have been accused of allegedly trying to sell resort property without the knowledge of some its owners.

Watson and Frank Rouse, former chairman of the state Republican Party, have been asked to appear before the N.C. Real Estate Licensing Board to answer the allegations. The were accused by a former salesman in their firm.

The salesman, William Parham, has accused Watson and Rouse of improprieties in connection with negotiations in 1979 to sell lots in a 29-acre Emerald Isle tract owned by Lands End Inc. Watson is president and a stockholder of the corporation.

Blanton Little, secretary-treasurer of the licensing board, filed a complaint Dec. 12 alleging that Rouse-Watson Real Estate Inc. represented itself in contracts as the seller of the Lands End lots.

But, the complaint states, the real estate firm did not won the lots and had not contracted to buy them.

Mulligan Col....

Then the hand that shook my hand outside Dempsey's place knocked out King Livinsky and Max Baer and everybody in sight. Almost everybody. I was in the fifth grade, too big to cry, when Max Schmeling KOed Louis in the 12th round, but I was more stunned and saddened than the bookie who worked out of the funeral parlor across the street and sold his new Pierce Arrow right after that.

But Jack Dempsey was right all along about Joe Louis being the next heavyweight champ. I felt like a traitor to my religion, my race, my Irish heritage when he met Braddock for the title in Chicago. Sister Mary Lawrence, our sixth grade nun, said boxing was a vile, barbarian spectacle, but it was all right to pray that a family man like Braddock didn't get hurt. She didn't say anything about praying for Louis, but she was a charitable, tolerant teacher and it probably never occurred to her that anyone in the class would be rooting for the challenger. When Braddock, my former idol, knocked Louis down in the opening round, I thought I had been both delivered from my dilemma and punished for my treachery, but when it ended in the eighth round I was proud again to have shook the hand that the referee was raising in victory.

By the time Louis avenged his loss to Schmeling with that stunning one-round bludgeoning in Yankee Stadium, I was no longer his solitary backer in St. Patrick's schoolyard. Even the girls went around with combs under their noses ridiculing the master race in outrageous imitation of Adolf Hitler. The Bum of the Month Club solidified the Brown Bomber's unique place in what one of the pundits the other day called the sociological history of our times.

Like junior welterweight, that particular title struck me as condescending of a truly great champion no matter how you read his record.

Just before I went overseas, Joe Louis visited our camp. He fought a three round exhibition with a paratroop jump sergeant named Caz Nizalowski — or something like that — who later became a priest. They say he got religion with the 101st in that disaster at Arnhem, but I think the lump the size of a hand grenade that Louis raised with a love tap to the fringe of his crewcut assisted in the conversion.

I was old enough to weep for Joe Louis and myself on the night Rocky Marciano let him know the career clock had run out.

Last week, when word came that Joe Louis had died in Las Vegas after taking in the Holmes-Berbick fight, the hand that shook the hand shook a little. Then it went to my forehead to bless myself for a moment of silent prayer for one champion who in the ring of life had something to teach us all.

Rights Amendment, for "community services," for publication of a newsletter, for foreign travel of delegates to international conventions, and for the CWA's own million-dollar dues to the AFL-CIO. Judge Barnes recommended that "CWA must refund to the plaintiffs 81 percent of the amounts heretofore paid by them to CWA."

The U.S. District Court in Baltimore, after reviewing the Barnes report, has granted the AFL-CIO's anguished motion for further hearings. The union contends that a new system of accounting will show that the 81 percent is much too high. On May 11 Judge Barnes will take a look.

Meanwhile, the good news is that the cause of individual freedom is looking better. Those of us who are victims of extortion, as we perceive it, will still be subject to the compulsion of pay-up-or-be-fired, but we won't have to pay up as much. For that, grateful thanks.

Funerals Touch Off New Irish Rioting

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The worst rioting in eight nights of violence hit Northern Ireland as police and troops battled mobs of young Roman Catholics after the funeral of two youths killed by a British army vehicle.

Meanwhile, IRA hunger striker Bobby Sands got weaker, and Pope John Paul II's ambassador to Ireland indicated the pontiff might try to get him to call off his fast unto death.

Rioting and street fighting raged Wednesday night in Catholic districts of Belfast and Londonderry, the province's two largest cities, and in Lurgan, Newry, Strabane and Portadown.

Roving bands of youths attacked police and troop patrols with rocks, bricks, gasoline and acid bombs and nails and ball bearings fired from slingshots. The troops retaliated with plastic bullets.

A score of cars and trucks were hijacked and most of them were set on fire.

No casualty count was available, but several soldiers were burned by gasoline bombs and several police were burned by acid.

The violence subsided shortly after midnight when the rioters went home to bed, police said.

The young Catholics took to the streets after simultaneous funerals in a Londonderry cemetery for two 18-year-olds killed by an army Land-Rover during a riot Sunday. The army said the deaths were accidental, but Catholic eyewitnesses charged that the driver deliberately plowed into the crowd at high speed after troops failed to disperse it with shots fired into the air.

The Irish Republican Army has promised more and worse violence if the British government lets Sands die. But the government gave no indication of retreating from its refusal to meet his demand that imprisoned IRA guerrillas be given the status of political prisoners instead of common criminals.

Sands, 27, was in the 54th day of his hunger strike in Belfast's Maze Prison, and members of his family who visited him Wednesday reported he was dangerously ill. They said he can no longer keep down water, his only sustenance since he stopped eating March 1. He has constant headaches, his sight and hearing are seriously impaired, and he has difficulty concentrating while talking, the family said.

They reported he was still determined to die if his demand was not granted.

The Vatican's ambassador to Ireland, Papal Nuncio Gaetano Allibrandi, met in Dublin with supporters of Sands. He said afterward Pope John Paul could intervene if he was asked to and if he considered it necessary. He noted the pontiff has "expressed concern" over the hunger strike.

Sands, who was recently elected to the British Parliament from a Catholic district of Northern Ireland, is serving a 14-year sentence on a gun charge.

British authorities denied that the release Wednesday of IRA member Dolours Price on medical grounds had set a precedent for clemency for Sands.

Miss Price, 30, was serving a 20-year sentence for setting car bombs in London. She developed anorexia nervosa, a nervous disorder that causes extreme loss of appetite, and the government said she was freed because she was "in imminent danger of sudden collapse and death."

Miss Price's sister Marion, who was imprisoned with her on the same charge, was freed a year ago after developing the same ailment. But their condition, unlike Sands', was not self-induced.

The Cabinet minister for Northern Ireland, Humphrey Atkins, said the release of seriously ill prisoners was a "well-established policy." But Northern Ireland's Protestant political leaders condemned the clemency.

James Molyneaux, head of the Official Unionist party, said Atkins had been "exploited and deceived by terrorists." The Rev. Ian Paisley, Democratic Unionist leader, said it was an "outrage."

The 3-inch-long, horned Madagascar cockroach can emit wheezes, rasps, and hisses heard up to 12 feet away by pumping its abdomen and expelling air through modified breathing vents on its flanks.

Budget Meet Planned

Mayor Don McGlohon reminded citizens that the next neighborhood budget meeting will be held Sunday, April 26 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 401 E. Fourth Street.

McGlohon said the meeting will be held for residents of the Tar River Neighborhood.

He encouraged citizens of the neighborhood to attend the meeting and let city officials know their views on the local budget.

Three Wrecks Investigated By Police

An estimated $2,100 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 7:25 p.m. collision at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Memorial Drive, involving vehicles driven by Northern Lee Lanier of Route 1, Greenville and Franklin D. Brown of 610 Roosevelt Ave.

Damage to the Lanier van was set at $250 while damage to the car driven by Brown was estimated at $1,000.

A warrant was issued for Brown, charging him with leaving the scene of an accident.

Terry Jerome Carter of Route 1, Vanceboro, was charged with having no operators license following investigation of a 5:45 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Greene Streets.

Investigators reported the Carter car collided with an auto driven by Ethlene Teel of Route 6, Greenville, resulting in $150 damage to the Carter vehicle and $400 damage to the Teel car.

A car driven by Douglas William Pinder of 125 Greenwood Dr. and a truck operated by Larry Richard Jones of 2817 Hamilton Dr., collided about 6:50 p.m. on Evans Street, 75 feet north of the Arlington Boulevard intersection, causing $300 damage to the Pinder car. No damage resulted to the truck, investigators said.

Denies Stars Singled Out

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A spokesman for congressmen investigating drug use denies that the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control is singling out the entertainment industry.

In the face of criticism from Hollywood celebrities, committee press deputy Phil Leshin said Wednesday that testimony before the committee was to deal with the entire West Coast.

Actors Dennis Weaver and Greg Morris were on the panel's roster of witnesses today, the second day of hearings.

Alan Horn, president of Tandem Productions, which produces "Archie Bunker's Place," was expected to describe for the committee how his TV programs have dealt with alcohol and drug abuse and to outline public reaction to such programs.

Actress Cathy Lee Crosby and Grant Tinker, president of MTM Enterprises, which makes "Lou Grant," had agreed to appear, but later backed out. They said unidentified committee members were holding the hearings to find out which celebrities were using drugs.

Miss Crosby, star of ABC-TV's "That's Incredible!" and a campaigner against drug abuse, charged Wednesday that "media hype and sensationalism have become more important than finding solutions to problems."

Law enforcement officials trundled voluminous statistics before the committee Wednesday to document what they said was an "alarming" influx of heroin, cocaine and marijuana in the Los Angeles area.

Despite increased arrests for drug trafficking, prison sentences for those felony offenses are relatively low, said state Attorney General George Deukmejian.

He said drug arrests by state agents increased 40 percent in California last year while 32 percent of convicted traffickers went to prison.

"Generally speaking, the penalties have beep light," Deukmejian said during the hearing.

Capt. Robert J. Blanchard of the Los Angeles Police Department's narcotics division said police confiscated nearly 25 tons of marijuana in the city last year — a 1,503 percent increase over 1979. He said 41 percent more cocaine was seized in 1980, 153 percent more phencyclidine (PCP) and 48 percent more heroin.

He attributed the increased heroin traffic to a breakdown in relations between the United States and heroin-producing Middle Eastern nations.

Confiscations of more traditional drugs such as amphetamines and barbituates declined in 1980 because "the use of other types of drugs is probably more fashionable," Blanchard said.

Rev. C.M. Dickens

Women's Day Service Set

The Annual Women's Day Observance service will be held Sunday at Sycamore Hill Missionary Baptist Church. Rev. C.M. Dickens will conduct morning services. He is affiliated with the Middle District Union of the Old Eastern Missionary Baptist Association.

Keynote speaker will be Mrs. Beatrice C. Terry. She is a retired teacher from Pitt County schools. A musical will be presented by women of the church at 5 p.m. A reception will follow the musical in the Ladies Parlour. The public is invited to attend.

'Rebel' Awards Banquet Friday

The Annual Awards Banquet for contributors to East Carolina University's art and literary magazine, "The Rebel," will be held at 6:30 p.m. Friday, April 24 at Mendenhall Student Center on campus.

Kathy Crisp, this year's editor of "The Rebel," has informed that prizes amounting to over $1,000 are to be awarded to contributors to the magazine in several categories and prize-levels in art, prose and poetry. The awards are being funded by two local businesses.

The top award of $200 will be given to the artist whose art work appearing in the forthcoming issue of "The Rebel" is judged as best-in-show.

In literature, a top award of $100 is to be awarded for the best work of prose; and a $100 top award is also to be given to the poem judged best in the magazine.

ECU Chancellor Dr. Thomas Brewer is among those scheduled to be present for the annual awards banquet.

CHOIR TO PERFORM

The Immanuel Baptist Youth Choir, under the direction of Ellen Heidenreich, will perform the musical "Celebrate Life" at Immanuel Baptist Church on Sunday at 7 p.m. Featured soloists and speakers are Catharine White, Jan Wheless, Beth Wheless, Janet Mizelle, Jeff Hargett, Jeff Prescott, Phillip Brown and Danny Scharf. There will be no charge and the public is invited to attend.

Food Service Class Awaited

FARMVILLE — For the last month, the faculty at Farmville Central High School has anxiously awaited lunchtime on every other Friday. That's the day when the food services class opens up their P.O.E.T.'S. restaurant and serves home-cooked meals to the teachers and staff.

P.O.E.T.'S. stands for Phooey On Everything, Tomorrow's Saturday. The food services class, taught by Debbie Boswell, began this project as a part of its learning process about the food service industry. According to Boswell, the restaurant not only provides the teachers and staff with a change in atmosphere, it gives the students experience in the restaurant business.

"The responsbilities for the restaurant are very similar to those of a public one," said Boswell. "Since starting their training, the students have been performing such duties as waiting on tables, cooking, bussing tables, washing dishes, hosting and cashiering."

In addition, students plan the menus they cook every other Friday. Teachers have a choice of two menus each week — the P.O.E.T.'S. delight or the calorie counter.

The P.O.E.T.'S. delight includes chicken cacciatore, hot Cincinnati chili, trout, hoagie sandwiches and chicken chowder, each served with a variety of vegetables.

The calorie counter menu offers chicken salad, chef salads, , tuna salad stuffed in tomatoes and other diet treats.

Students are given a chance to try several jobs by working on a rotation system. "The students also help with inventory, portion control, pricing and advertising after they have mastered these skills through practice in a classroom situation," added Boswell.

"I look forward to Fridays when we have P.O.E.T.'S. restaurant," commented Ms. Jinette Jackson of the faculty. "the food and service is excellent and its a refreshing change to sit down in the quiet of a classroom and be served by students."

On the Fridays the restaurant isn't operating, the Happy Sweet Shop is open to both faculty and students. "The sweet shop is similar to a small bakery where students gain experience in this area of the food service industry," noted the food services instructor.

"They cook and serve such baked goods as carrot and yellow cakes, brownies, peanut butter, oatmeal and the school's favorite — chocolate chip cookies." The sweet shop has been open all year.

Food services students Joyce Barrett commented on the program, saying her experience at preparing and serving food at school has made her real job meaningful. "The experience I have gotten from the P.O.E.T.'S restaurant and the sweet shop has helped me understand and do my work better at my fast food job," she said.

"Through the food service class and the simulated restaurant and bakery, the students are better prepared for the working world and have developed skills thwy can use throughout their life," concluded Boswell.

Doctors Do Surgery On Unborn Infant

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors using a hollow needle and "sound X-rays" drew off excess spinal fluid from the brain cavity of a 25-week-old fetus in what was believed to be the first brain surgery on a child before birth, a medical journal reported today.

The 20-minute operation was performed six times at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston over nine weeks to draw off more than a quart of fluid after ultrasonograms — sound X-rays — showed the unborn child had early signs of neonatal hydrocephalus, too much fluid that can compress and damage the brain.

The condition is a fairly common birth defect, occurring in about two of every 1,000 babies.

Dr. Frederic Frigoletti, the hospital's chief of maternal-fetal medicine, said techniques in the operation were "borrowed from other forms of prenatal surgery," such as blood transfusions within the womb.

He performed the surgery with Dr. Jason Birnholz, director of obstetrical ultrasound at Brigham.

The surgeons said their "success in reducing the hydrocephalus with this procedure in one patient suggests that it may be useful in similar fetal intracranial disorders."

Once they determined the exact position of the fetus in the womb with the ultrasonograms, the hollow needle was inserted through the mother's abdomen and womb and into the fetus's skull just above the ear and into the brain tissue itself.

Doctors say there is no way of knowing before birth if an infant's condition is caused by a basic flaw in brain development that hinders circulation of the fluid or by poor drainage.

Unless drained, the fluid presses harder and harder against the brain as the skull grows and hardens, causing progressive damage.

Vepco Says Move Is Unconstitutional

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP) — Business leaders in eastern North Carolina are trying to kick Virginia Electrict and Power Co. out of the state — and Gov. Jim Hunt is supporting their move for legislation to to that.

But Vepco said Wednesday that such an ouster would be blatantly unconsitutional because it would amount to confiscation of property.

Hunt and the business leaders are blaming Vepco for hampering industrial growth in the 22 counties it serves because of rates the businessmen say are 30 to 50 percent higher than those of other North Carolina utilities.

Vepco spokesman Nick Parham said Hunt and the business leaders are headline-hunting. Vepco's rates are on par with other North Carolina utilities and in some cases are 10 percent lower, he said.

There is no evidence of any industry or business locating elsewhere because of Vepco's rates and said there doesn't appear to be any economic motivation of justification for the proposed legislation, Parham said.

At one time, he said, there was a 15 to 20 percent disparity between rates but there is none now.

Locksmith, 13, Has Business That Is Growing

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE — Ralph C. Davenport Jr., at 13, has become a locksmith with a growing business.

Known to his friends as Clay, Davenport's curosity about keys led to a keen interest in locks, the successful completion of a correspondence course, and his mastery of the skills necessary for opening locks, making keys, and other locksmith crafts. He's now broadening his knowledge by studying safe locks.

Davenport has designed his own shop at his home, equipped with both manual and automatic key machines, combination code cutters, and other locksmithing tools. He's also been bonded and is working toward the time when he can be recognized as a master craftsman.

As a bonded locksmith, Davenport has re-keyed locks at the Winterville Town Hall and several businesses in Winterville and Ayden, and opened locks and made keys for a large number of individuals.

He's proud of the fact that he has made keys for a lock for a relative in Raleigh, when more experienced locksmiths in Raleigh were unable to do so.

In recognition of that feat the young businessman was interviewed by the "Tar Heel Traveler" on WRAL-TV in Raleigh.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Davenport Sr. of Winterville.

YOUNG LOCKSMITH . . . 13-year-old Clay Davenport works on lock in shop at his home near Winterville.

Bike-A-Thon Is Sponsored

Kappa Alpha Order of East Carolina University will sponsor a bike-a-thon from Raleigh to Greenville tomorrow.

Proceeds will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Pledges will be taken per mile. Raleigh departure is at 11 a. m.

For more information, contact Brad Edwards, 758-8957 or Jackie Petty at the MDA Office, 782-4735.

There are more than 325 muscular dystrophy patients in eastern North Carolina who look to the MD Association for hope and comfort, Petty said.

Admiral Robert E. Peary reached the Labrador coast Sept. 6, 1909, and announced that he and a party of five had reached the North Pole on April 6. Peary was then 53 and a veteran Arctic explorer. When the expedition reached the United States it learned that F.A. Cook, another explorer, claimed to have reached the pole in 1908, but Peary is generally accepted as having been the first.

Church Service Is Disrupted

Gregory Moore of 505 Watauga Ave., was taken to Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro, early today after disrupting a service at Joy Temple church on Howell Street last night and threatening to kill himself.

Chief Glenn Cannon said police responded to the church at 10:50 p.m. after it was reported that a man was holding the preacher and members hostage with a knife.

According to the chief, the first officers to respond found 30 to 40 persons milling about inside the church and Moore, sitting nude on a table in front of the pulpit, holding a knife to his throat.

After clearing the church, officers spent an hour talking with Moore, who they reported was incoherent, crying, and saying he intended to kill himself. He then started putting his clothes back on and walking toward the front door, the knife still in his hand.

After an unsuccessful attempt was made to grab the knife from Moore's hand as he walked, more time was spent talking with him. Moore then walked out the front door into the yard and dropped the knife, Cannon explained.

The chief said Moore was then taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for examination, committment papers were secured, and the man was taken to Cherry Hospital.

Southerners Will Experiment

ALCOA, Tenn. (AP) — Sales of specialty hot sauces are greater in the Southern and Western regions of the country than in the North, according to one producer here.

"Southerners are more experimental in their cooking than Northerners and more receptive to trying new sauces," said Fred Hafer of Gourmet Foods.

Tornadoes Kill Two In Missouri Towns

By The Associated Press

An elderly man died after his home was damaged, and an assistant manager was killed when a savings and loan was destroyed after several tornadoes, spawned by a line of thunderstorms, whipped through southeastern and eastern Missouri.

Property damage resulting from Wednesday's storms was estimated at $4 million in DeSoto, Mo., about 45 miles south of St. Louis. And the Missouri Highway Patrol said damages in two other towns hard-hit by the storm would run "in the millions of dollars."

The Joachim Savings and Loan Association was one of two buildings destroyed in DeSoto.

Rescue workers, including National Guardsmen, worked into the early-morning hours today before they found the body of Gary Huskey, 31, an assistant manager reported missing after a twister hit the savings and loan. His car was found outside, and police suspected that he had been trapped inside.

"Waiting is the most difficult part," said Huskey's aunt, Lettie Tyner, while the search was underway. "They found his desk; he wasn't under it or around it. The waiting is terrible — not knowing."

In Malden in extreme southeast Missouri, police said an elderly man died of a heart attack after his home was damaged by a tornado, but officials declined to say whether the death was related to the storm. He was not identified immediately.

Homes and businesses were damaged by the twister that hit Malden and then hopscotched across the rural countryside before touching down again in East Prairie, where two residential areas were damaged.

Power outages and downed telephone lines made it difficult to determine the extent of damage and injury in the area, officials said. But the Missouri Highway Patrol said property damage would run "in the millions of dollars" in Malden and East Prairie.

The highway patrol said no statewide injury report had been compiled, but there were dozens of minor injuries and several serious ones.

National Weather Service forecasters said 22 funnel clouds were sighted, and touchdowns were reported in 13 places.

Al Jordan, program director at radio station KYMO in East Prairie said he saw the tornado coming.

"It looked like it was going to come right into the station," Jordan said, "but then it pulled up. You could see stuff coming out of the sky for four or five minutes. It was worse than the 'Wizard of Oz.'"

CORRECTION

Valerie Cobb and Brantley Squires, whose names were reported on the principal's list at H. B. Sugg School, fourth grade, should have been listed on the honor roll in Tuesday's edition.

Association Holds Picnic

The Pitt County Mental Health Association sponsored an annual picnic Tuesday for county patients at Cherry Hospital. About 125 people participated in the gathering at the Pitt County Wildlife Club.

Volunteers assisting in the picnic included Alton Warren, who catered a barbecue lunch, and music therapy students from East Carolina University. Dr. Mary Fowler served as chairman of the planning committee. Also participating were Dr. Kenneth Taylor and Dr. Steve Creech.

Special guests included county commissioners Burney Tucker, Charles Gaskins, Kelly Barnhill and B. Alton Gardner and County Manager Reginald Gray.

Snail Darter May Not Be That Rare

MORRISTOWN, Tenn. (AP) — The snail darter's days of distrupting development and enthralling environmentalists may be numbered.

Biologists said Wednesday they probably will recommend next fall that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service begin removing federal protection for the tiny rare fish.

"It would appear that the snail darter is in a lot better shape than we thought," said Dr. David Etnier, a University of Tennessee zoologist who discovered the three-inch fish eight years ago in the Little Tennessee River.

Until late last year, the Little Tennessee was believed to be the snail darter's only natural habitat. And that was where the Tennessee Valley Authority was building the Tellico Dam.

The discovery of the fish prompted environmentalists to take the snail darter's fight for survival all the way to the Supreme Court. With the dam 90 percent complete, the court ruled in favor of the snail darter, a member of the perch family that feeds on snails in river beds.

But Congress and then-President Carter exempted the $136 million dam from the requirements of the Endangered Species Act, and the TVA closed the dam's sluice gates in November 1979.

Since November 1980, the snail darter has found the fish in four other east Tennessee waterways.

When the snail darter threatened the dam's completion, TVA spent $1 million studying and trying to transplant the fish into other streams.

Last November, Etnier found a few snail darters in South Chickamauga Creek near Chattanooga. He discovered more in March in the nearby Sequatchie River, and others were found in Sewee Creek and the upper Watts Bar Reservoir.

"It appears that these populations we have found have been there all the time, and they simply weren't found because we weren't looking in the right places," Etnier, a member of the Snail Darter Recovery Team, said Wednesday as the seven-member scientific group met to evaluate the discoveries.

That, he said, would mean the snail darter-Tellico Dam fight was unnecessary.

Three groups of reproducing snail darters must be found before the species can be removed from the endangered list.

The recovery team voted to ask the Fish and Wildlife Service to give Etnier a permit to capture and study snail darters from three streams. He will try to determine if they have been there all along or migrated from the transplant sites — a possibility he called doubtful.

Etnier said the team would keep an eye on the fish's reproduction with the goal of recommending that the snail darter's status be changed from endangered to threatened. That would remove the fish's special protection within a year or two, he said.

Disabilities Hearing Set

RALEIGH — The eastern North Carolina area hearing of four statewide hearings by the North Carolina Council on Developmental Disabilities will take place on Monday, May 7 between 7 and 9 p.m. at the James City School on Highway 70 east in New Bern.

The hearings are to help determine the unmet service needs of the state's estimated 109,000 to 126,000 citizens with chronic mental or physical disabilities which occurred before the age of 22 and which are likely to continue indefinitely.

All interested people are invited to attend.

Prayer Service

A prayer service will be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the Holy Mission, 905 Dickinson Ave. Eldress Annie Perry will conduct the service.

Eldress Ella Mae Brown will be the speaker at a service Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The pastor, Eldress Shirley Atkinson, will lead the Sunday morning service. Dinner will be served at 2 p.m. Sunday, followed by an evening service conducted by Evangelist Gene Jones of Whichard's Holy Church of Power.

Abortion Hearings Underway

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organizations as diverse as Planned Parenthood, the American Civil Liberties Union and the American College of Gynecologists and Obstetricians are complaining that they have been excluded from the first abortion debate of the 97th Congress.

Conservative Sen. John East, R-N.C., was opening hearings today on legislation that would define life as beginning at conception.

The proposal would give the fetus constitutional rights and critics say such a law would permit any woman who has an abortion to be prosecuted for murder.

Eight doctors and medical researchers have been called to testify on the proposal, which has divided anti-abortion forces in the Senate.

The legislation, sponsored by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., says Congress "finds that present-day scientific evidence indicates a significant likelihood that actual human life exists from conception."

It also would prohibit federal courts from striking down state or local anti-abortion laws.

The [illegible] were scheduled to appear before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers. The panel is headed by East, one of the most conservative freshmen senators.

According to the ACLU, seven of the eight witnesses have either been active in anti-abortion organizations or are known to oppose legal abortions.

Madeline Kochen of the ACLU's New York headquarters said six of the eight are Roman Catholics and all but one are "definitely opposed to abortion."

The lone exception is Dr. Leon Rosenberg of the human genetics department at Yale University, she said.

Aides to East say, however, that the witnesses were chosen for their expertise on when life begins, not their views on abortion. No organizations either for or against legalized abortion were invited to appear.

On Wednesday, the national organization of obstetricians and gynecologists officially protested its exclusion from the hearings.

Officials said the organization's president-elect, Dr. George M. Ryan Jr., had volunteered to appear. But the subcommittee declined to permit his testimony unless he agreed to speak only for himself and limit his testimony to the specific question of when life actually begins.

Similarly, Planned Parenthood, the National Abortion Rights League, the ACLU and other organizations said they also were rebuffed by the subcommittee in attempts to make their views known.

Most previous efforts to reverse a 1973 Supreme Court ruling legalizing abortion have focused on passage of a constitutional amendment which requires approval of two-thirds of the House and Senate and ratification by three-fourths of the states.

The legislation pushed by Helms and East would take only a majority vote of both the House and Senate, but its constitutionality has been strongly questioned by conservative and liberal legal scholars who contend it would eventually be overturned by the Supreme Court.

Anti-abortion organizations are pushing the legislation as a means of allowing states to adopt anti-abortion laws. Critics of the measure say they believe it will be followed by federal legislation specifically outlawing the right of a woman to end a pregnancy.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a conservative and chairman of a separate Judiciary subcommittee, also had been scheduled to participate in the hearings. But a week ago, he withdrew, saying he believes any hearings should include a broad review of the constitutional, social and economic impact of anti-abortion legislation.

Democrats Max Baucus of Montana and Howell Heflin of Alabama have decided not to attend the East hearing, aides said.

Shellfishermen Could Smile

By JIM TYER
Division of Marine Fisheries

Recent events have taken away some of the sting of water pollution many coastal shellfishermen have had to endure.

It could mean a $1 million smile before the year is through.

Presently, 52,232 acres along coastal North Carolina are closed to the taking of oysters and clams because of bacterial pollution. Hard hit are Brunswick and New Hanover counties, where 23,814 acres are closed.

Down south the dilemma is particularly tantalizing when low tides expose oyster beds high and dry, and exposed flats invite clammers to walk out and scratch up clams that can sell for 15 cents each. Last year, 4,537 individuals purchased in the two counties a license to gather commercial quantitities of oysters or clams.

The problem is not new. Closed acreage where clams and oysters grow has remained about the same during the last decade. What to do about it?

Eliminate or reduce pollution would seem to be the most simple maneuver, but solutions drag on. Especially thorny in the southern sector is determining South Carolina's contributions to the waterways of North Carolina.

Another plan is to move shellfish out of polluted waters into cleaner waters where the creatures will soon cleanse themselves. Gathering oysters by hand labor and moving them has had some success through the years.

On April 7, however, the process was mechanized by the maiden voyage of Marine Fisheries vessel Cape Fear. Only 30 feet in length, the stubby "work boat" with a metal arm attached to starboard will be used on polluted bottoms to reach down, dislodge shellfish with a rotating rake or water pressure and bring them to the surface on a conveyor belt.

With some 400 bushels aboard (a 60-minute task under ideal conditions), the ship can chug to a distant water and shellfish can be quickly dumped overboard.

Built for shallow waters and tight places, the vessel can, with adequate support funds and personnel, gather and move some $250,000 worth of shellfish each year. Commercial fishermen have used similar vessels (with hydraulic dredges) the past few years to harvest clams in deeper channels. The Cape Fear can be modified easily to gather oysters or clams.

Another interim method is to take advantage of sunny days linked together. When it does not rain, volume of runoff that reaches the coast decreases. With less bacteria being flushed onto shellfish beds, bacterial levels can drop to a point where shellfish are safe to eat.

During these "droughts" shellfish can be harvested. Termed temporary openings, health officials keep a close monitor on the water and close the beds immediately when bacteria counts get too high.

Fishermen can hustle in and, as they say, "make hay while the sun shines." A 950-acre temporary opening in Brunswick County from Jan. 12 through March 27 resulted in a clam and oyster harvest worth a half-million dollars, according to records. Another 300-acre temporary opening in Core Creek, Carteret County, meant big dollars. And another 600-acre temporary area still open in Queens Creek, Onslow County, has been very profitable.

Polish Youth Seek Reforms

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania opened a communist youth congress in Warsaw today amid signs some of the youngsters want social and political reforms for their organization just as their elders are demanding changes in the Communist Party.

In his keynote speech, Kania pledged to continue social reforms launched during last summer's strikes that led to the formation of Solidarity, the Soviet bloc's first independent trade union.

Warsaw Radio said that after Kania spoke to the 1,600 delegates of the National Congress of Socialist Youth, several delegates addressed the meeting and their speeches were "very sharp and uncompromising, never before heard at such congresses.

"Small wonder that the audience reacts with great animation and interrupts with applause passages that appeal to them," the radio added.

While it did not elaborate on what was said, the report indicated the youth union is facing many of the pressures and calls for reform that are emerging among the rank-and-file members of the ruling Communist Party.

The move toward reform in party policies has mounted ever since last summer's labor rebellion.

The official PAP news agency said Kania told the group that the main task of all Poles was to determine what could be done so "the present difficult time becomes a time of lasting peace and stabilization, a period of creative search and not conflicts.

"We have the unbreakable will to continue the line of socialist renewal," he told the delegates in the ornate Palace of Culture. "We want to analyze thoroughly all sources and causes of the present crisis."

Meanwhile, Warsaw's leading newspaper Zycie Warszawy said the current labor truce in Poland — where there has been no strikes for a week — is conducive to the development of "positive cooperation between Solidarity and the authorities.

"Solidarity is a mass movement which embraces millions of working people and it would be very difficult to solve the most vital issues without its participation," the paper said, adding, "More than ever before, we need national concord and unity."

In another development, a Solidarity newsletter said authorities have released one of at least seven members of a right-wing dissident group held since last December.

Jerzy Sychut, 32, was released because of "his family situation," the report said without elaboration. There was no official confirmation.

Dedication Set

Burley B. Mitchell, secretary of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety will be the speaker at the dedication program for the Pitt County Law Enforcement Officers Association's club house Sunday at 2 p.m.

The club house, located on the Port Terminal Road, has been under construction since 1977.

Mitchell, an Oxford native, is a 1966 graduate of N.C. State University and received his law degree fron the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1969.

He has been an assistant state attorney general, a district attorney, and was an Appeals Court judge before becoming Crime Control and Public Safety secretary in 1979.

The public is invited to the dedication program.

Billy Tudor Wins Speech Contest

KINSTON — Billy Tudor of Greenville took third place in the Northeastern Division Toastmasters 1981 Speech Contest held recently at Vernon Park Mall Cafeteria in Kinston. Tudor's topic was "The Pillar."

Top place winner was Pat Gallof New Bern, and second place was awarded to Vernon Chandler of Kinston.

Jake Strother, charter member of the host Kinston Club, presented the awards.

Clyde Rudd of Greenville was chief judge, and other judges were Nancy Deans, Charlotte Flanagan, Mary Ludwick, Mo Moseley, Emanuel Traub and Fallon Melvin.

FOCUS

The Noble Bard

To the best of our knowledge, today is both the birthday and death-day of the greatest dramatist and poet of the English language. William Shakespeare was born in the English market village of Stratford-Upon-Avon in 1564. Though there were no birth records, we know his baptism was on April 26. Scholars point out that babies were almost always baptized on the third day. He died on April 23 in 1616. Interestingly, Shakespeare also had one of his leading characters die on his birthday. In Julius Caesar, one of his 38 great plays, he gave Cassius these words: "This day I breathed first. Time is come round, and where I did begin, there shall I end."

DO YOU KNOW — What was the name of Shakespeare's wife?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — The government made zinc-plated steel pennies in 1943, in order to conserve copper for the war effort.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained ground today with the help of some favorable inflation news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.05 to 1,012.07 by noontime.

Gainers held an 8-5 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the market opened, the government reported that the rise of the consumer price index slowed to 0.6 percent in March.

Analysts noted some grounds for hope that increases in the index might continue easing off in the months ahead. In particular, they cited weakness in oil prices and evidence of a levelling off in housing costs.

Citicorp was actively traded, up ¼ at 24½. On Wednesday the company reported higher first-quarter profits.

Other gainers on the active list included General Motors, up 1¾ at 57⅛, and Xerox, up 1⅜ at 63¼.

Exxon, which reported lower first-quarter earnings, dropped ⅝ to 66⅝.

The NYSE's composite index climbed .22 to 77.63. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .46 at 361.94.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 28.15 million shares against 26.99 million at the same point Wednesday.

investigating the slayings as well as one disappearance.

Meanwhile, Brown said, police are trying to figure out the latest wrinkle in the string of slayings. Three of the past four victims have been adults. All 21 prior victims were children.

Before the bodies of Michael McIntosh, 23, Eddie Duncan, 21, and Larry Rogers, 20½ all described as small for their age — were discovered, "the oldest child was 16," Brown said.

"Now we are having young adults," he said. "We spent all day yesterday brainstorming what this means. It's another variable."

He said the young adults' deaths were assigned to the task force after evaulation of various characteristics of the deaths, including the method of killing and where the bodies were found.

Innis has been CORE's national director for eight years, but is embroiled in a fight for power within the group, whose dissidents call him a dictator.

He also is involved in a legal dispute with the state of New York over fund solicitation practices and alleged fiscal mismanagement.

Inflation Shows Dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's cost of living increased at an annual rate of 7.5 percent in March, bringing inflation below double-digit levels due mainly to moderating energy prices, the Labor Department reported today.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported a 0.6 percent seasonally adjusted rise in the cost of living for the month; substantially below the 1 percent increase registered in February and the lowest one-month increase since July 1980's 0.1 percent.

In January, consumer prices rose at an annual rate of 9.1 percent. In February, the department reported a 1 percent rise, which it said translated into a 12.1 percent rate of inflation if the pattern remained steady for 12 consecutive months.

Just one day after Bill Wilder struck out 18 batters, East Carolina's Bobby Patterson had his turn, and although he hurled only seven innings, he whiffed 14, matching Wilder's per frame average.

And his 3-1 victory in the second game of a doubleheader with Atlantic Christian gave the Pirates a sweep of the two with the Bulldogs. Rick Ramey came on in relief of Kirk Parsons to win the first game, 5-3.

Patterson allowed just four hits in knotching his fifth win in six decisions. He walked none, and struck out every man he faced, ten different players, at least once.

The only run off him was unearned.

Parsons, who started the opener, floated along in fine style until the sixth, when he suddenly lost it and was tagged for six hits and three runs. Ramey, in an inning and two-thirds of relief picked up the decision, his sixth in eight.

"I'm very pleased with the defensive play tonight," Coach Hal Baird said. "(Kelly) Robinette made two major league plays in the first game to help us out."

Twice the sophomore shortstop went deep into the hole to make fine plays, once picking a runner off second who had thought the ball was through and started to advance when he saw Robinette had stopped it.

"Patterson went with only one day's rest and he was tied, but still turned in a fine game. I thought Kirk pitched well too except for that one inning.

"Our pitching and defense really seems to be coming together now, and that's going to help us the rest of the way," Baird said.

But, the coach admitted, there is a problem ahead. "Our pitching staff is just worn out right now. And we have games right along every day through Monday. I just hope we can come up with someone who can go in there for a few innings and do the job."

Baird, too, admitted that he was worried about the lack on hitting in the last few games by the Pirates. They were outhit, 11-5, in the first game last night, and equalled ACC's four hits in the second game.

East Carolina jumped into the lead in the first game in the fifth inning, after having left men in scoring position in every inning but the third.

Robert Wells led off the fifth with a single and stole second. Mike Sorrell walked and so did Todd Evans. Mike Sage grounded back to the mound, and the ball was played to home, but thrown in the dirt, letting Wells score. Sorrell also scooted home while the ball was being chased down. Evans scored on Todd Hendley's sacrifice fly to left.

Atlantic Christian came back with three in the sixth on six hits to tie it up. Mike Burgess got on via a bunt single and Tim Hardison singled to left. Chuck Downs got a hit, scoring Burgess, but Hardison was thrown out trying to advance. Keith Modlin singled to the infield, and David Lawhon got a hit, scoring courtesy runner Russell Williamson. Frank Carmichael then singled off Parson's glove, reloading the bases.

Ramey came in at that point, getting Bill Clark on a fielder's choice, but pinchrunner Ricky Tew scored, tieing it up.

The Pirates then scored twice in the bottom of the sixth to pull out the win. With one down, Charlie Smith walked and Mark Shank came on to run for him, stealing second. Wells walked and so did Robinette. Sorrell singled to deep short, scoring Shank, and an error on the play let Wells score an insurance run.

No one had more than one hit for the Pirates in the first game, while Burgess, Hardison, Lawhon and Carmichael each had two for ACC.

East Carolina got all it needed in the first inning of the second game. Sorrell led off with an infield hit and John Hallow walked. Evans singled in Sorrell, and Sage singled to score Hallow. Hendley followed with a sacrifice fly, bringing home Evans.

The Pirates got only one other runner to second the rest of the night.

After leaving a man on second after a double in the fourth, the Bulldogs got their only run in the fifth. Carmichael singled to left and moved up on an out. He took third on a wild pitch, coming on home when the throw-down sailed over Hendley's head into left.

Carmichael finished with two hits in the second game, and again, no one had more than one for the Pirates.

East Carolina is now 27-10 on the year, and returns to action tonight at 7 p.m., hosting Davis & Elkins.

Rampants Erupt In 6th To Whip Williamston

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Williamston coach Mike Parrell prayed for silence. For five innings, silence it was at Guy Smith Stadium. But, in the sixth inning, the silence was no more and the sounds that replaced it were of a tune Parrell found none too soothing.

After five innings of near-silent bats, Greenville Rose found its rhythm at the plate in the sixth inning. The Rampants pounded out eight of their 12 hits and scored eight runs in the sixth en route to a 9-0 decision over Williamston Wednesday afternoon in the opening round of the Pitt County Baseball Tournament.

Rose, now 12-1, plays North Pitt Thursday at 5 p.m. in the winner's bracket. Williamston was to have faced New Bern today at 2:30 in the loser's bracket.

"I knew their bats had been silent and told our guy (pitcher James Clemmons) to keep the ball down," Parrell said. "I was praying we could silence those bats a little longer."

But silent it was not to be. The Rampants, who managed but four hits off Clemmons before the sixth, tagged the Tiger right-hander for five hits — all singles — and used three Williamston errors to win a game that was very much in doubt during the first five innings.

Had the Rampants lost, the second-guessers would have had a field day with Rose coach Ronald Vincent's decision to rest his potent starting outfield trio of Kenny Barnes (.433, 13 RBIs), Paul MacMillan (.681, 13 RBIs) and Mitch Brann (.290, 19 RBIs).

The Rampants did not lose, however, thanks in part to the pitching of left-hander Scott Galloway. But Rose did have more trouble than could have been expected with the Tigers, who drop to 5-8 after the loss.

Galloway, starting his first game since a 6-5 loss to Northern Nash, kept the Tigers off balance much of the afternoon with a sweeping curve and a knuckle ball. He ended the day with nine strike outs and three walks while giving up just four hits and upping his record to 2-1 this season.

Rose gave Galloway a 1-0 lead in the first inning thanks to a home run by Roger Williams, his first of the season. The home run, which gives every Rose starter with the expection of the Rampant leadoff batter (either Tom Buie or Mont Carter) a home run, came on a 2-1 pitch which Williams slammed over the left field fence, some 330 feet away.

The Rampants did not score again until the sixth. And they had their chances. In the second, third and fourth the Rampants left runners stranded at second and third but could not get anyone home.

Williamston was likewise unable to take advantage of runners on base. The Tigers' best chances came in the third, when they left men men at first and second, and in the fourth, when they stranded men at second and third.

"We didn't hit the ball when we needed to," Parrell said. "We had our chances to score and didn't take advantage of them. We had done a good job other than that, but it always seems like in the later innings we go to sleep and make some mental errors that hurt us."

Three errors in the sixth, and eight Rose hits, destroyed any thoughts the Tigers had of pulling off a shocking upset of the Rampants.

Gordon Douglas, who had three hits in four at bats, led off the sixth with a single and moved to second on Scott Galloway's ground out.

Bill Kittrell then sent a shot to the hole at shortstop which Ed Pippin stopped nicely but threw away at first. When first baseman Tony Rogers retrieved the ball, Douglas had scored and Kittrell was standing at third.

Sammy Hodges, playing for MacMillan in centerfield, then singled home Kittrell, stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Barnes, pinch hitting for Buie, walked and stole second.

Mark Douglas followed with a single to score Hodges and then stole second. On the steal Parrell called play #22, which had second baseman Greg Johnson taking the throw in the center of the infield if Barnes tried to score from third. But since Barnes remained at third, Johnson let the throw go but Pippin was not in position at second and the ball went into centerfield, allowing Barnes to trot home with Rose's fourth run of the inning.

Celtics Outplay Sixers, Tie Series

BOSTON (AP) — In a 24-hour span, the Philadelphia 76ers went from one-point winners to 19-point losers. The explanation, Coach Billy Cunningham and forward Julius Erving agreed, is simple.

"They established how they wanted to play," Erving said after Wednesday night's 118-99 National Basketball Association playoff romp by the Boston Celtics. "It would be foolish for me to really dissect what happened. We just didn't have it."

"They outplayed us in all phases," added Cunningham. "We didn't play well and they had a lot to do with it."

The Celtics' victory, one day after a 105-104 loss, evened the best-of-seven Eastern Conference championship series at one game apiece. The scene shifts to Philadelphia for games Friday night and Sunday.

The Celtics led all the way after scoring the first eight points. They broke the game open with a 14-0 burst late in the second quarter that boosted their lead to 59-41. They led 66-47 at halftime and never let Philadelphia closer than 14 points thereafter.

Larry Bird, who had 34 points and 10 rebounds Tuesday night, was deadly from the outside Wednesday night, hitting 14 of 21 shots. He scored 23 of his Celtic-high 34 in the first half and added 16 rebounds and five assists.

"What he did out there tonight was a season for some people," said Cunningham.

"They're looking to me now in this series," said Bird. "It

King-Led Kings Beat Houston, Even Series

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Del Harris has played, watched and coached too many basketball games to believe the home court advantage will forever remain almost nonexistent.

And he figures Friday night, when his Houston Rockets return home deadlocked 1-1 in their Western Conference championship series with Kansas City, would be the perfect time for the old "HCA" to reappear.

"We're happy to get the split," Harris said Wednesday after the Kings, led by 31 points from Reggie King and timely buckets by John Lambert and Ernie Grunfeld, toppled the Rockets 88-79. "We think the home court advantage still will show itself in the playoffs."

In twelve playoff games, the Rockets have won only once at home.

"Regardless of our road record, I still would rather be home, with the home crowd," he said.

Moses Malone struck for 31 points and helped bury the Kings in the series opener Tuesday night 97-98, but the Kings held the dominant center to just 18 Wednesday while King scored 21 in the first half and 10 in the second.

"I just went out there and played hard," said the 6-foot-6 power forward. "We had to win it tonight. You wouldn't want to go back to Houston 0-2. We have to control the tempo and we have to contain Moses. We have to contain him because we can't stop him."

Trailing by a point at halftime, the Kings jumped to a 61-54 advantage by outscoring the Rockets 14-6 the first six minutes of the third period. Houston got no closer than five in the fourth period.

Harris seemed miffed when questioned about Kansas City's defense of Malone. Only in one other playoff game, against San Antonio, was he held to fewer than 18.

"Hey, Moses Malone has played seven years and nobody has stopped him yet," said Harris. "If you think Moses Malone has been wiped out of the playoff picture, I'd say you're in for a surprise. Last night, it was our night. Tonight it was Kansas City's night. This is going to be an interesting series."

The Kings, still without injured guard Otis Birdsong, used only seven players.

"We played as tough as we know how," said Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "We got solid play from everybody. We played seven people and they did the job."

Lambert, a 6-10 reserve, scored 18 points, six more than his previous high this season.

"How many times have you heard people boo Lambert and tell me to get him out of there," said Fitzsimmons. "I'm glad I don't listen to people."

really takes a lot of pressure off when you start hitting from the outside."

Philadelphia planned to go inside to Darryl Dawkins and Caldwell Jones. Because of poor ball movement, Cunningham said, that failed and "we were settling for 20-foot shots."

Rookie guard Andrew Toney took a lot of them. He scored 35 points and led Philadelphia in scoring for the second straight game.

"I thought we shut down their break very well and they went more one-on-one tonight than they did last night," said Boston guard Nate Archibald, who had 19 points. "We may double team guys and see what they do from there. I don't think they can win with him (Toney) scoring 30 or Doc (Erving) scoring 30. The other guys just stand around when they play one-on-one."

Boston made 52 percent of its shots, compared to 47 percent in the first game, and outrebounded Philadelphia 52-41 Wednesday night.

Although Boston Coach Bill Fitch said, "I don't think this game will have any bearing on the next," Cunningham noted, "We weren't aggressive. We were reaching. We weren't moving our feet on defense.

"I didn't like the way we lost," Cunningham added. "If we play in Philly the way we played tonight, we're going to get beat."

North Stars Take Series From Sabres

By The Associated Press

Three teams whistled past the National Hockey League graveyard Wednesday night. But the Buffalo Sabres couldn't carry the tune.

The Edmonton Oilers, Philadelphia Flyers and St. Louis Blues averted playoff elimination with clutch victories to extend their quarterfinal series to a sixth game Friday night.

The Oilers trail the defending champion New York Islanders three games to two after a 4-3 road victory; the Flyers bombed Calgary 9-4 at home and are down 3-2 to the Flames, and the Blues edged the Rangers 4-3 in St. Louis and trail New York 3-2.

But the Minnesota North Stars continued their excellent play away from home, winning their fifth playoff road contest in five tries and ending the Sabres' season, 4-3. Minnesota won the series 4-1.

Kent-Erik Andersson broke a 1-1 tie at 13:14 of the second period, then set up Brad Maxwell to give the North Stars a 3-1 margin. They increased it to 4-1 on Al MacAdam's sixth playoff goal — his line, which includes Steve Payne and Bobby Smith, has 18 goals and 20 assists in eight playoff games.

The Sabres rallied within a goal with 1:42 left but Minnesota rookie goalie Don Beaupre closed the door.

"When it comes to the playoffs," said Beaupre, an all-star goaltender this season, "everything is done to perfection — every pass, every play.

"I think I was really following the puck. I wanted to play in the playoffs so bad" — this was just his second start in the eight games — "my concentration was really up.

"In the first period, I never really had a chance to get the feel of the puck," said Beaupre. "But in the second, I started to grab the puck and hang onto it and was able to get the feel."

Andersson thinks the North Stars, who made it to the Stanley Cup semifinals last season, are ready for anything.

"Five games? What did I think before the series? I thought: No way. It's unbelievable," said Andersson. "Now we know we can beat anyone. I think we can outskate anybody."

"I think you get a feeling that maybe you're a team of destiny. I feel that way right now," added Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor.

Oilers 4, Islanders 3

The Islanders lost because they didn't come prepared to play 60 minutes, according to two of their skaters, and because Edmonton goalie Andy Moog was sensational.

"In the first period, we started off lax," was the analysis of Islanders center Bryan Trottier. Trottier had one Islander goal and linemate Mike Bossy had the other two. "We were not aggressive enough and not skating or forechecking enough.

"We were a little soft and not concentrating. I guess it's human nature. You sort of expect them to come out flat after beating them in overtime in the last game. And you can be overconfident.

"We can't beat them playing one period of hockey."

Flyers 9, Flames 4

Philadelphia responded to the pressure of a must-win situation by blasting the Flames out of the Spectrum with five goals in the first period, three by Brian Propp. Bill Barber scored twice for the Flyers, giving him 50 lifetime playoff goals, and Ken Linseman had four assists as the Flyers blasted Calgary goalie Pat Riggin, who had stymied them the last three games, all Flames victories.

"We gave a tremendous effort tonight," said Flyers Coach Pat Quinn. "We forechecked well, we capitalized on the breaks and, most important, finished off our plays."

Blues 4, Rangers 3

St. Louis, which was second in league standings to the Rangers' 13th, looked like they wouldn't get beyond Wednesday night when New York grabbed a 3-1 lead. But the Blues applied constant pressure in the final two periods and rookie Jorgen Pettersson scored the tying and winning goals.

The Blues, who lost three straight to the Rangers after an opening victory, also got standout goaltending from all-star Mike Liut.

Purple-Gold Set For WOOW

The East Carolina Purple and Gold game Saturday night will be aired locally by WOOW, it was announced today by ECU.

Jim Woods and Lee Moore will announce the game, which starts at 7 p.m. Saturday. Air time will be 6:50.

From 5 to 6 p.m. an autograph and picture session will be held and is open to the public.

Dodger Rookie Wins Fourth

By The Associated Press

It was the kind of game Don Sutton used to pitch. In fact, he did pitch it — but Fernando Valenzuela pitched it better.

Sutton, once the ace of the Los Angeles staff and now wearing the rainbow colors of the Houston Astros, hooked up Tuesday night with Valenzuela, the Dodgers' 20-year-old super-rookie.

Sutton pitched about as well as you can — giving up just one run in seven innings, scattering six hits and striking out three batters without walking any.

It wasn't good enough. The unbeaten Valenzuela chalked up his fourth victory and third shutout of the young season, blanking Houston on seven hits, getting 11 Astros on strikeouts to raise his National League-leading total to 36 — and singling in the fifth inning to drive in the game's only run.

Elsewhere in the NL it was St. Louis 3, Chicago 0; Atlanta 7, Cincinnati 3; San Diego 4, San Francisco 0 and Montreal 4, Philadelphia 3 in 11 innings. The New York Mets' game at Pittsburgh was called due to rain after 8½ innings with the teams tied 2-2. The game will be replayed from the start at an undetermined date.

Cards 3, Cubs 0

Tommy Herr is in a rut. He keeps hitting triples and driving in runs. He did it for the third consecutive game — a two-run drive in the second inning this time — to extend St. Louis' winning streak to six games and Chicago's losing streak to nine.

"That's just guys getting on base," Herr said of his league-leading 11 runs batted in. "As long as I get the hits, I'm going to drive in runs."

Herr's hitting backed the four-hit pitching of unbeaten Lary Sorensen, who extended the Cubs' string of scoreless innings to 21.

Braves 7, Reds 3

Bob Horner's also in a rut. For the second consecutive game he drove in four runs against Cincinnati, this time with a homer, single and double. That's from zero to eight RBIs, from nowhere to second in the league.

The Reds saw the real Gaylord Perry, who checked them on six hits for his first victory and first complete game of the season. He's 10 victories away from becoming the 15th pitcher to win 300 games.

Padres 4, Giants 0

Juan Eichelberger and Gary Lucas teamed for a five-hitter and San Diego broke the game open with three runs in the eighth inning to beat the Giants.

Mike Phillips' triple and Gene Richards' single off Ed Whitson in the fifth gave the Padres the only run they needed, but they got their cushion when, with the bases loaded in the eighth, reliever Randy Moffitt threw Luis Salazar's comebacker wildly past home for two runs, and Barry Evans added a sacrifice fly.

Expos 4, Phils 3

Gary Carter singled with two but in the bottom of the 11th inning for Montreal, took second on Tug McGraw's wild pitch, continued to third on catcher Bob Boone's wild throw, then scored on Williz Montanez' single.

Ellis Valentine and Carter hit successive home runs in the seventh inning for the Expos. The Phils rallied for three runs in the ninth to tie it, two scoring on Mike Schmidt's third homer of the year.

Mets 2, Pirates 2

After an 89-minute wait with the Pirates coming to bat in the bottom of the ninth, the game was washed out. All records count but it will be replayed from the start.

Jason Thompson hit his third homer in three games and fourth of the season for Pittsburgh. Dave Kingman and Rusty Staub had RBI singles for the Mets.

Net Notes

The Greenville Tennis Club will hold its Spring Novice tennis tournament during the first two weekends of May at the Elm Street tennis courts.

The tournament will be played on May 1-3 and May 8-10 and will include men's and women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles. Entries should be sent to Ginny McDonnell, 307 Starwood Drive, Greenville.

For further information, contact the tournament director at 756-1939.

The GTC will also hold its spring picnic on Thursday, April 30, at 6 p.m. at the Elm Street Courts.

Pitt County Baseball Tournament

North Pitt, Vikes, Jags Win

House's Grand Slam Sparks Panthers

North Pitt got the Pitt County Baseball Tournament started with a bang Wednesday at noon.

The Panthers, sparked by Ronnie House's grand slam, exploded for 10 runs in the fourth inning and went on to wallop New Bern, 19-2, yesterday to advance to the second round of the tournament.

The Panthers, now 8-7, will meet Greenville Rose, which defeated Williamston, 9-0, Wednesday, today at 5 p.m. in the winner's bracket. New Bern will face Williamston at 2:30.

Neither team wasted time in getting on the scoreboard. New Bern, now 8-6, pushed across its first run (a home run by Buzzy Boykin) in the first and then scored its final run in the fourth.

The Panthers, meanwhile, scored five runs in its first at bat, added two more in the second and after pushing across 10 in the fourth got its final two runs in the sixth.

In the first, with one out and Gregory Briley on third and House on first, Bob Hemingway grounded out to the shortstop to score Briley. Jerry Simpson then reached on an error to score House. Simpson then stole second and when the throw got by the second baseman he came home.

Elwood Ayers followed with a single and Mike Brown walked. Greg Briley then doubled home Ayers and Gregory Briley singled moments later to score Brown and give the Panthers a 5-0 lead.

The Panthers added two more runs to their lead in the second. Simpson singled and went to second on Ayers' single. When the rightfielder misplayed the ball Simpson scored and Ayers moved to second. Brown then singled home Ayers and the Panthers led, 7-1.

But it was the 10-run fourth that had the Panthers roaring. The inning was sparked by House's grand slam, his third home run of the season. The homer, which landed over the leftfield fence, some 330 feet away, came with Dove, Ken Whitehurst and Gregory Briley on base. In all, House had six RBIs on the afternoon.

The Panthers were led at the plate by Simpson, who was three for four, Greg Briley, who was two for four with two RBIs and a double, and Ayers, who was two for five. No one for New Bern had more than one hit.

TOURNEY SCHEDULE

Today's Games:
12:00 — Kinston vs. Washington
2:30 — New Bern vs. Williamston
5:00 — North Pitt vs. Rose
7:30 — Farmville vs. D.H. Conley

Conley Blasts Washington

D.H. Conley, sparked by home runs by Emory Vines and Sammy Tucker, struck for six runs in the first inning, added four more in the second, and went on to whip Washington, 14-7, Wednesday night in an opening round game of the Pitt County Baseball Tournament.

The Vikings, now 7-7, play Pitt County foe Farmville Central tonight at 7:30 in the second round of the tournament. The Jaguars nipped Kinston, 4-3, earlier Wednesday.

Washington, now 7-4, was to have played Kinston at noon in the loser's bracket.

The Vikings trailed 2-0 after the first-half inning but quickly took command of the game with a six-run bottom of the first.

Vines led off the inning with a home run. Dixon Page and Roy Lassiter then singled and Tucker followed with a home run — his second of the year — to give the Vikings a 4-1 lead.

Doug McRoy then singled, Chris Buck walked and Todd Rouse singled home both runners and Conley led, 6-1.

Washington made it 6-2 with a run in the second but the Vikes countered with four runs in the second and all but seal the victory.

Page singled to led off the inning and stole second. Lassiter then singled him to third and stole second. Both then scored on Jeff Cox's single. Cox subsequently stole second and moved to third on a wild pitch before Buck walked and stole second. Rouse then singled both runners home and Conley led, 10-3.

Each team scored twice in the fifth. Washington scored its final run in the sixth and the Vikings added their final two runs inthe bottom of the sixth.

Lassiter led the Vikes at the plate with three hits in four at bats. Page and Rouse were two for three and Cox and Tucker were both two for four.

Washington was paced by Seth Edwards and Kevin Hucks, both of whom were two for three.

McRoy went the distance on the mound for Conley, striking out five and walking four to pick up his fourth win in five decisions this season. David Tyson was the loser for Washington. He is now 4-2.

Farmville Nips Kinston

Farmville Central's Bobby Avery doubled home Nat Norris from first in the top of the seventh to lift the Jaguars to a 4-3 decision over Kinston Wednesday afternoon in an opening game of the Pitt County Baseball Tournament at Guy Smith Stadium.

The Jaguars, now 6-8, were tied with the Vikings, 3-3, going into the seventh, but rallied for the victory.

With one gone, Alvin Baker reached on an error and Norris came in to run for the Farmville second baseman. After a fly out, Avery doubled and when the the Kinston leftfielder misplayed the ball Norris rounded third and came home with what proved to be the winning run.

Kinston went down in order in the bottom of the seventh and the Jaguars had won the right to play D.H. Conley, a 14-7 winner over Washington yesterday, tonight at 7:30 in the second round of the tournament. Kinston was to have played Washington today at noon.

Farmville broke open the scoreless tie with three runs in the third. David Cherry walked and went to second when Baker reached on a fielder's choice after the first of two errors on the second baseman.

Greg Hardison then reached on an error by the second baseman to load the bases before Wade Corbett walked, forcing Cherry home with the Jaguars' first run of the day. Jeff Moore then reached on an error by the shortstop to score Baker and Hardison and Farmville led, 3-0.

The Vikings rallied to tie the game in the fourth, sparked by Parrish Sasser's home run to deep centerfield, but the Jaguars pulled the game out in the seventh.

Kinston was led at the plate by Jeff Jenkins, who was three for four, and Mike Wade and Tony Grady, who each had two hits.

NBA Hardship

Sampson To Tell Saturday, Public Sunday At Noon

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — When the professional basketball world learns whether Virginia sophomore Ralph Sampson will join its ranks next season or remain in college, it will come in a press release from the university's sports information office — not in a public interview.

Virginia also said Wednesday that the 7-foot-4 center will make his decision public at noon Sunday, even though he must make it 12 hours earlier.

Sampson has until midnight Saturday to announce if he wants to be in the National Basketball Association draft of college players in June. Once a player declares his eligibility for the NBA draft, NCAA rules automatically end his college eligibility.

The Dallas Mavericks and Detroit Pistons, who will toss a coin April 30 for the No. 1 draft pick, have expressed interest in signing Sampson if he decides to turn pro this year.

Sampson met Tuesday with Detroit General Manager Ja McCloskey. Last week, he m with Dallas owner Donald Carter.

In a taped interview Wednesday, Sampson indicated he was having a difficult time with the pressure of making the decision.

"This week has been wild," he said. When people have pressed him about his intentions, "I've been short and on the defensive side."

Sampson received some advice Wednesday from former President Richard Nixon, who was visiting here after two days in the colonial capital of Williamsburg.

Nixon said it would be difficult for the basketball star to turn down a professional contract, considering the money involved, but he said Sampson should remain in school and get his degree.

Even a million dollars "goes awful fast in this period of inflation," the former president said.

Rampants Take Opener...

Consecutive singles by Williams, Gordon Douglas and Scott Galloway brought home the Rampants' final four runs. Galloway, Williams and Emmett Walsh all had two hits for Rose. Galloway and Williams both had two RBIs for Rose.

Gray Thomas had two hits, including a double, to lead Williamston.

"These guys just keep coming at you," Vincent said of his club. "That's what makes these guys so tough.

"Going into the sixth we weren't really playing bad, we just hadn't had that streak. We hadn't had that inning yet. They made a couple of errors and that's all it takes, hopefully, for us."

Wrestling Tourney Planned At DHC

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley will host a United States Wrestling Federation Tournament Saturday, April 25. The tournament will consist of four divisions: kids, school boy, juniors and open.

Weigh-ins are set for 9 a.m. at the school and wrestling will begin at 11 a.m.

Harrell SOs 14 As Bullets Fall

JAMESVILLE — Allen Harrell struck out 14 and held Jamesville to just three hits and Edenton scored seven runs in the seventh inning to blast the Bullets, 11-1, Wednesday night in the championship game of the Jamesville Invitational Tournament.

Harrell, who walked six, was named the tournament's most valuable player for his performance last night. Along with his pitching, he paced the Aces with two hits.

"We'd been averaging about three strike outs a game," Jamesville coach Ron Davenport said. "And for this kid to come in and strike out 14 was just unbelievable.

"We didn't play well either mentally or physically, but they've got a real good ballclub and their pitching is out of this world."

Edenton scored its first run of the evening in the first, added two more in the second and one in the third to lead, 4-0, going into the fifth. The Bullets managed their only run of the night in the bottom of the sixth when with two gone Ricky Bell walked and stole second. Clarence Thomas then walked and both then stole a base and when the throw to third got by the third baseman Bell scored.

Edenton answered that run and more in the seventh. Taking advantage of five Jamesville errors, the Aces scored seven runs and seal the win.

Jamesville, now 12-3, returns to action Tuesday when the Bullets play host to Mattamuskeet. The Lakers defeated the Bullets earlier this year, 3-2.

NASCAR Protests Miller Involvement

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — NASCAR officials say they have contacted representatives for Miller High Life to protest the firm's announcement last week that it plans to sponsor a series of NASCAR-sanctioned races this year.

Bill France Jr., NASCAR president, said Wednesday that the sanctioning body is "dismayed" by Miller's announced plans to "sponsor the NASCAR-sanctioned Late Model Sportsman Series in 1981."

"I am dismayed that Miller would make such a statement when we (NASCAR) have had no contact with Miller High Life or any of their representatives regarding sponsorship of any type in NASCAR racing," France said in a news release.

France said he was appalled at the "apparent disregard exhibited by Miller High Life for the confusion that its clearly inaccurate statement will cause among the racing community.

"In our view, what Miller High Life has done can be interpreted as an effort to trade upon the good will and reputation of NASCAR. At the very least, there appears to have been a misrepresentation of the pertinent facts regarding series sponsorship by the individuals involved," the NASCAR president added.

NASCAR officials said the racing group is communicating with Miller High Life and its parent firm, Philip Morris, Inc., to protest Miller's April 15 announcement.

Ben Banta, a spokesman for Miller in Milwaukee, said the firm plans to sponsor 20 Late Model Sportsman races at tracks from Maine to Florida and the winners would qualify for Miller's final event, a 300-mile, $150,000 race in Charlotte, N.C.

He said Miller's announcement should not be interpreted as meaning the firm will sponsor the entire NASCAR-sanctioned Late Model Sportsman series.

Banta said, however, that he could not comment on the sponsorship negotiations. Other Miller officials were not immediately available.

Win 14th In 15 Games For Oakland

A's Get 'Relief,' Down Twins, 2-1

By The Associated Press

In the Oakland A's bullpen, they play a waiting game.

"We sit out there cheering and yelling, trying to keep sharp so we're ready when they need us," Jeff Jones says of the little-used A's relief corps.

For a change, though, an Oakland starter didn't complete a game Wednesday — and Jones was thrown into the breach to save a 2-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins, the 14th in 15 games for the red-hot A's.

"I guess it's been determined that the bullpen won't be used that often," said Jones. "But when we are, we want to contribute."

Both Jones and Craig Minetto came on in the ninth inning and saved the game for starter Brian Kingman. Jones retired the last two Twins batters to earn the A's first save of the season.

"It couldn't have come too soon," said Manager Billy Martin of the relief help. "We looked dog-eared out there today. A day and a half of rest will do us all some good."

Last year, the A's put together a major-league-high 94 complete games. Before Wednesday, they had recorded 12 route-going jobs in 14 starts.

In other American League action, it was Texas 16, Boston 8; Milwaukee 8, Toronto 1; New York 7, Detroit 2; Cleveland 4, Kansas City 0 and California 7, Seattle 3. Rain postponed the Baltimore-Chicago game.

Kingman scattered six hits through eight innings before Minetto and Jones nailed down Oakland's victory. The A's scored both their runs in the first on Dave Revering's wind-blown RBI triple and Tony Armas' run-scoring double. It was the 19th RBI this season for Armas, the major league leader.

The Twins scored their only run in the fourth when Hosken Powell singled for the first hit off Kingman and scored on John Castino's double. Al Williams took the loss despite allowing only five hits.

The Twins now have lost six in a row to Oakland, scoring only eight runs in the process.

"I don't think they rolled over us," said Minnesota center fielder Mickey Hatcher. "It was all their pitchers. They've kept us in a slump that we haven't been able to shake. We're certainly capable of scoring more runs than that. Maybe it's good that we got this slump out of the way early."

Rangers 16, Red Sox 8

Pat Putnam drove in four runs and Billy Sample three as Texas walloped Boston. The Rangers shelled three Boston pitchers for 18 hits, snapping the Red Sox' three-game winning streak.

"When you play here (Fenway Park), you don't know what to expect and today was just one of those crazy games that you see often," said Ranger Manager Don Zimmer. "The only thing that surprised me a little was so many runs scored with the wind blowing in. That's unusual for this time of year. You're more likely to see a high-scoring game in July."

Brewers 8, Blue Jays 1

Paul Molitor hit the first grand slam homer of his major league career, the lone hit in the Brewers' five-run fifth inning, and he also singled home a run in the seventh to lead Milwaukee over Toronto.

Molitor's five RBIs helped make a winner out of Mike Caldwell, who recorded the Brewers' second consecutive complete-game victory with an eight-hitter.

Toronto starter Luis Leal had checked the Brewers on three singles before their fifth-inning rally.

"I know it's not my job to hit home runs, so that's what made it all the sweeter," said Molitor. "I was just looking for a pitch to drive and he (Joey McLaughlin) threw me a fastball right down the middle. It's the first one I hit since I played for Burlington (of the Midwest League), and I got two that year. I don't get an opportunity to do that very often."

Yankees 7, Tigers 2

Reggie Jackson walloped his 412th career home run and Jerry Mumphrey knocked in two runs in a five-run seventh as New York defeated Detroit.

After newcomer Steve Balboni tripled and scored on Bucky Dent's grounder in the third, Jackson gave the Yankees a 2-0 lead with his homer in the fourth. The Tigers tied the game with a two-run seventh, but then the Yankees locked it up with their rally in the bottom half of the frame.

Balboni walked with the bases loaded to force in the go-ahead run, Dent followed with a sacrifice fly, Mumphrey singled in two more runs and Dave Winfield then singled in the fifth run of the game-breaking inning.

Indians 4, Royals 0

Len Barker scattered seven hits and Mike Hargrove blasted a two-run double as Cleveland defeated Kansas City. The victory was the Indians' sixth in seven games on their current road trip, and sixth of nine overall, while the defending American League champion Royals dropped to 2-7.

Angels 7, Mariners 3

Dan Ford and Bobby Grich each had three hits, including solo home runs, to pace California over Seattle.

Ford, hitting only .206 entering the game, singled home Rod Carew from second in the first inning and led off the fifth with his third homer of the season.

North Duplin Downs Rams

CALYPSO — North Duplin defeated Greene Central, 6-3, in a nonconference tennis match Wednesday afternoon.

The Rams, now 8-6, play host to C.B. Aycock next Thursday.

Summary:

NCSU Edges Wake, To Face Carolina

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Joe Plesac allowed just three hits and walked four Wednesday as North Carolina State edged Wake Forest 2-0 in the nightcap of the opening round of the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball tournament.

Earlier Joe Reto clipped two doubles and a three-run homer to lead a University of North Carolina hitting spree as they coasted by Maryland 9-2.

And Clemson kept its slate clean in the double-elimination tournament in daytime action as Jimmy Key scored the winning run from second base in the 10th inning to squeeze to a narrow 7-6 victory over Georgia Tech.

In the first game, Bobby Brower hit a two-run homer and scored the winning run to lead Duke to a 4-3 victory over Virginia.

On Thursday, Georgia Tech was to meet Virginia at 10 a.m. and Wake Forest was to face Maryland at 1 p.m. in the losers' brackets while Clemson gets a shot at Duke at 7 p.m. and North Carolina goes against North Carolina State at 7 p.m. in the winners matchups.

North Carolina State worked its way into an unblemished record for the tourney when it scored two runs over Wake Forest in the third inning without the benefit of a hit.

Catcher Pat Sheehy and first baseman Louie Meadows got on base on walks.

Then Chuckie Canaday slugged a fly ball to right field that was dropped by fielder John Martin and Sheehy and Meadows scooted home.

The win gave the Wolfpack a 32-10 record on the year while Wake Forest fell to 19-18.

In the North Carolina-Maryland game, the Tar Heels broke it wide open in the seventh inning with seven runs on seven hits, punctuated by Reto's triple-score blast. North Carolina raised its record to 30-12 while Maryland fell to 18-9.

The Yellow Jackets took a 6-5 lead in the top of the 10th when Larry Maurer singled and moved to second on a sacrifice. Todd Moore reached on an infield hit, but Tiger shortstop Bryan Smith tried to make a play on Moore anyway and threw the ball away, allowing Maurer to score.

The Tigers rallied when Mike Mahoney singled and Jimmy Key followed him with a walk, marking the end for reliever Allen Walker. Greg Guin then greeted reliever Chuck Moore with a fly to center field which advanced Mahoney to third.

Craig Roberson singled to bring Mahoney home for the tying run. Key moved to second on the hit and scored on Bob Paulling's single.

Guin picked up the victory for Clemson, his first decision of the season. Walker took the loss, dropping his record to 0-5.

In the tourney opener, Brower's homer, combined with a solo blast by Buddy Copeland, gave Duke a 3-0 lead before Virginia scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth without benefit of a hit.

Brower opened the top of the ninth with a walk. He then stole second and third before racing home with the eventual game-winner on a Tom Brassil single.

The Cavaliers threatened in the bottom half when Joe Lange walked and advanced on another walk to Glenn Harris. Both men were sacrificed over before Lange scored on a fielder's choice. But Duke starter and winner Todd Lamb got Steve Heon to fly out to right field.

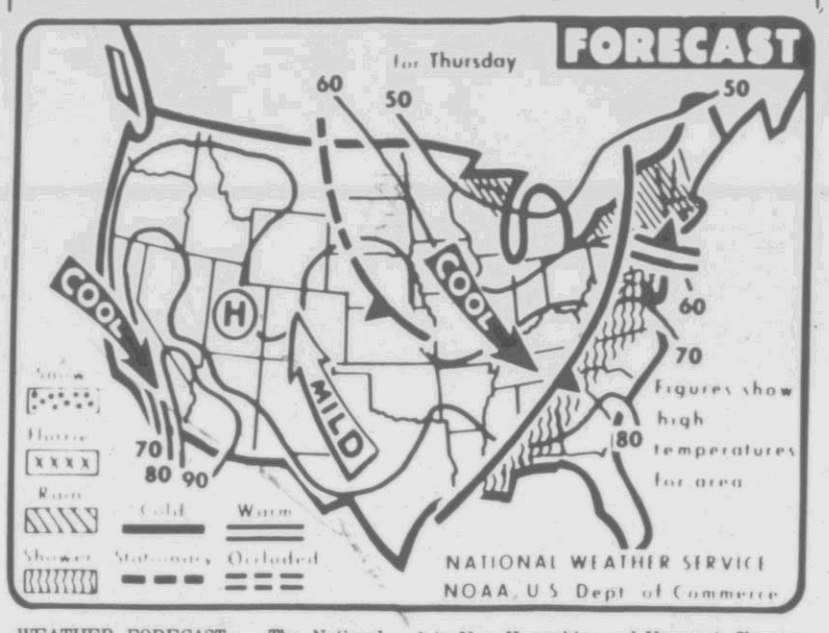
How's The Weather?



WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service Forecast for Thursday predicts rain in northern Wisconsin and from New York through Connecticut, Massachusetts into New Hampshire and Vermont. Showers are expected along a line from Louisiana and Mississippi into New York. (AP Laserphoto)

Nation's Weather

By The Associated Press

Heavy thunderstorms that spawned a series of devastating tornadoes in Missouri continued early today from southwest Texas across Arkansas into the western Ohio Valley.

A twister that touched down in DeSoto, Mo., Wednesday killed a 31-year-old man who was trapped when a savings and loan association was destroyed. An elderly man who was not identified died of a heart attack after his Malden, Mo., home was damaged by another tornado, but officials declined to blame his death on the storm.

DeSoto officials estimated damages at $4 million, and the Missouri Highway Patrol said property damage "in the millions of dollars" had occurred elsewhere.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered over northeast New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle and across the Great Lakes into the central Appalachians. Light rain also fell over the Pacific Northwest.

Later today, showers and thundrstorms were expected to reach from central New England across the Carolinas and Central Georgia and across the Great Lakes to the Gulf Coast from the Florida Panhandle to southeast Texas.

Showers were expected to be scattered from the western Dakotas across the northern Rockies to the northern Pacific Coast.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 25 in Montpelier, Vt., to 80 at Blythe and Thermal, Calif.

Here are the latest weather reports from some key cities around the nation:

We can't compound interest on this CD. But you can.

13.871%

The annual yield and rate on Six Month Money Market Certificates is available for $10,000 or more. Term: Six months, 26 weeks. Interest paid monthly, quarterly or at maturity. Federal regulations prohibit the compounding of interest on these certificates. Rate effective from 4-21-81 through 4-27-81.

Here's how. 1) Purchase an NCNB $10,000 Six Month Money Market CD. 2) Ask us to automatically deposit your interest every month in an NCNB Regular Savings Account, currently paying 5¼%, compounded daily.

So you're earning interest on interest. And you can count on this same interest for a full six months. Unlike Money Market Mutual Funds, your rate won't fluctuate with each day's news.

Dealing with NCNB, you also have the added security of knowing your deposits are backed by the largest banking institution in North Carolina. And every depositor is insured for up to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

So come see us at any of our 175 offices. You'll find that the best place for high interest is right in your neighborhood.

NCNB

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal. Each deposit insured to $100,000 by FDIC.

Brownbuilder Jane Millard is carrying on a North Carolina tradition

Jane Millard, from Wayne County, is a North Carolina Brownbuilder—one of the men and women of Brown & Root—at work in North Carolina.

Jane is typical of many North Carolinians who join Brown & Root and learn skills leading to advancement in the traditional way of craftsmen. A project secretary, Jane joined Brown & Root in 1980.

Brown & Root has a tradition, too. We're one of the world's largest engineering and construction companies, and we owe much of our success over the past half-century to the skills and loyalty of the thousands of people who work with us worldwide—North Carolina Brownbuilders like Jane, for example.

We take pride in the fact that, when there are job openings, local people get preference. We often train them on the job and regularly promote them on the basis of their individual ability and merit. That way, local communities, counties and the state get maximum benefit from projects on which we work.

Brownbuilders like Jane Millard are building in North Carolina today—building for North Carolina's tomorrow.

OPEN HOUSE . . . at Privateer Manufacturing Company's new boat plant near Chocowinity will be held Sunday afternoon, April 26. Plant tours will be given during the open house activities. The facility was rebuilt following a January fire.

Plant Rebuilds Following Fire

CHOCOWINITY — Privateer Manufacturing Co. Inc., forced to rebuild its boat plant near here following a January fire, will have an open house at the new facility on Sunday, April 26.

Warren Wilkerson of Greenville, who co-founded Privateer in 1977, said a ribbon cutting will kick-off the open house activities, which will include brief remarks, followed by tours of the plant.

Wilkerson said the public is invited to the 3:30 p.m. open house. Speaking will be Wilkerson; his partner Jeff Wiggins; Artie Rawls of Wimco, general contractors for the new facility; and Tom Jones, Branch Banking & Trust Co. of Greenville.

Privateer suffered a quarter of a million dollar loss in the Jan. 13 fire, according to Wilkerson, including the total facility, three finished boats inside the plant and several in various stages of production.

The firm began making new molds two days after the incident and in 16 days produced a new boat in a temporary shop. The new manufacturing facility was occupied on April 13 and is now in full production again.

Wilkerson said that the fiberglass boats manufactured by Privateer in a hand lay-up process are designed both in structure and hull and deck configuration for use in commercial applications.

Privateer was founded in 1977 by Wilkerson and Horace Bower, both of whom had previous experience in manufacturing, quality control, engineering, and design. In 1980 Wiggins joined the company, providing national sales experience.

Wilkerson, a Greenville native, attended Rose High School and East Carolina University. He is married to the former Linda Ensor and they have two children.

Wiggins and his wife, Gloria, have two children. He is from Richmond.

Social Security Benefits To Rise By 11.2 Percent

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 36 million Social Security beneficiaries will get a 11.2 percent cost-of-living increase in July that will boost the average retired worker's monthly check from $337 to $374, a $37 increase.

The annual automatic across-the-board increase was triggered by today's release of the Consumer Price Index for March. It reflects the 11.2 percent inflation rate from the first quarter of 1980 to the first quarter of 1981.

The 4.1 million aged, blind or disabled persons drawing Supplemental Security Income (SSI) welfare benefits also will get an 11.2 percent increase in July.

The benefit increase - the twelfth for Social Security beneficiaries in the past 13 years - will cost the beleaguered trust fund $15.4 billion more in the year ahead. Each 1 percent rise in the cost-of-living adds about $1.4 billion to the cost of Social Security.

Social Security officials said the maximum monthly benefit for workers retiring this year at age 65 will jump from $677 to $752.90, a $75.90 increase. The minimum benefit for a retiring 65-year-old will rise from $153.10 to $170.30, a $17.20 hike.

Here are other examples: the average aged couple's benefits will rise from $576 to $640 a month, a $64 increase.

For a mother with two children, the average check will rise from $782 to $870, an $88 increase.

For an aged widow or widower, the benefit will go from $313 to $348, a $35 increase.

For the average disabled worker with a wife and children, the benefit will rise from $731 to $812, an $81 increase.

The average benefit for all disabled workers will jump from $372 to $413, a $41 increase.

The maximum federal SSI payment for individuals will rise from $238 to $264.70, a $26.70 increase, and for couples from $357 to $397, a $40 boost. Most states supplement these welfare payments for some or all of the recipients.

But some of these welfare recipients may find themselves gaining no ground. More than half also get regular Social Security, and when those benefits rise, their welfare checks frequently drop. Some also could lose their eligibility for other types of welfare.

Since 1975, Social Security checks have risen automatically each July under a formula that provides for the increases when inflation exceeds 3 percent from the first quarter of one year to the first quarter of the next.

Requirements Are Completed

Greenville family physician, Dr. James M. Galloway Jr., has completed continuing education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians.

The requirements call for members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years.

Talent Contest At Grifton

GRIFTON — The Grifton Volunteer Fire Department is sponsoring an amateur talent contest on June 6 from 7:30-10 p.m.

Any interested participant can send a post card with name, address, phone number, age and type of talent to Grifton Volunteer Fire Department, Grifton, N.C.

Prizes will be awarded to individual age groups. All entries must be in by May 15.

Award Winner

Pitt County has been named as one of 25 national winners by the John Dana Library Public Relations Awards Committee of the American Library Association. The citation will be presented at the ALA conference in San Francisco in June.

Pitt County submitted a scrapbook of the 1979-80 public relations activities and a videotape entitled "A Winning Combination." The film features Sup't. Ott Alford, last year's recipient of the American Association of School Librarians' Distinguished Library Service Award for School Administrators.

Civitans Observed Birthday

The Greenville Civitan Club celebrated its 25th anniversary with a special banquet and program featuring an address by the same person who spoke at the club's first official meeting in April, 1956.

Eli Bloom of Greenville, district attorney for the Third Judicial District, was the anniversary banquet keynote speaker — Bloom was also the featured speaker at the club's charter night meeting on April 17, 1956.

Other guests helping mark the club's 25th anniversary were Greenville Mayor Don McGlohon and Hank Dressel of Greensboro, Governor of North Carolina Civitans in District East.

William F. Troutman, Jr., president of the Greenville Civitan Club, presided. Others appearing on the program included Jim Rodgers and Max T. Pollard, both charter members; club historian Hugh Wease; president-elect Julian Rawls; and club chaplain Ken Quiggins.

About 50 club members and guests attended the 25th anniversary celebrtion meeting.

Crusader Faces Sex Charges

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A 46-year-old man who led a campaign to ban sex education books from the children's section of a library faces charges stemming from the sexual molestation of two minors, police say.

Jack Gregorio, 46, president of Taxpaying Parents Against Kiddie Smut, was arrested Monday night and charged with sexual battery against a 17-year-old boy and performing a lewd and lascivious act involving an 8-year-old girl, according to Tampa police spokesman Johnny Barker.

The alleged offenses occurred between September and April, Barker said.

The sex education controversy began when a teacher confiscated the book "Where Did I Come From?" from an 8-year-old elementary school pupil and turned it over to a parent-teacher group.

The book, by author Peter Mayle, was one of six the group wanted the public library to keep out of the reach of children.

County Commissioner Jerry Bowmer took up the campaign and called on city officials to to remove the books from the library shelves.

But officials declined and the library's review board decided to keep the books where they were.

Last week, a few members of the group, which claims 180 members, protested outside city hall, where Gregorio was photograped carrying a placard that read "Save Our Kids From Smut."

Gregorio ran unsuccessfully for the Hillsborough County Commission and the Tampa City Council between 1979 and 1980.

ON DEAN'S LIST

Timothy Tingen, the son of Mrs. R.S. Tingen and the late Mr. C.A. Tingen, of Rt. 7, Box 480, Greenville, was named to the dean's list for the winter term at Wittenberg University of Springfield, Ohio.

HKHUXLCG GHKHUX IQCGX LIIQUHCG

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — AMUSED COWHAND WATCHES RAW DUDE MOUNT HORSE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Q equals I

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Opening lead: Ten of ♠.

You never know when a seemingly insignificant card will play a key role as the play of the hand develops. One pip in a side suit was the difference between victory and defeat on this example.

South did not want to open one no trump because of his weak doubleton in spades. When North raised, South made a game try in the suit in which he needed help. Despite his wasted king of spades, North correctly decided that his fifth trump and singleton in partner's "help wanted" suit merited acceptance of the invitation.

West led his top spade, and when dummy appeared, declarer feared that he might have to lose four tricks—two spades, and one in each minor suit. Declarer allowed the ten of spades to hold the first trick, and East won the continuation with the jack. Declarer ruffed the ace of spades with a high trump, then drew trumps in two rounds, ending in dummy. Declarer called for the seven of clubs, and East followed with the eight.

For a moment declarer toyed with the possibility that East might be ducking with the ace, but with three trumps still in dummy, that was unlikely. Declarer's club spots and the fact that East had played the eight suggested another line.

Declarer covered the eight of clubs with the nine and West won the queen. The diamond return was won by declarer, who now led the king of clubs. Obviously, declarer intended discarding a diamond from dummy if West followed with a low club; so West covered with the ace. Declarer ruffed in dummy and, when East's jack came tumbling down, both declarer's remaining clubs were established. He returned to his hand with his high diamond, and sluffed dummy's two diamonds on the ten and six of clubs. A diamond ruff in dummy allowed declarer to score up a well-played game and the rubber.

Note that if the six and five of clubs are interchanged, declarer has no play for his contract. He can obtain one discard from dummy, but that is all.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, APR. 24, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Don't allow yourself the luxury of criticizing others today or tonight, or you could lose out quickly where it means the most to you. Strive for success and happiness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sure to finish regular routines before thinking about recreation. Objectivity helps solve a situation that arises.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A situation at work could be troublesome, but be objective and you can solve it. Spend your money wisely today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A new project needs more study before going ahead with it. Take no risks with your reputation at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't argue with an associate and then all will be fine in the future. Be more reassuring to loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't jeopardize your financial standing by investing too heavily. Avoid one of the opposite sex who could give you trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take extra time to solve any problems you may have now and tomorrow you can carry through in a positive fashion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid taking any forceful action because you are annoyed, but profit through fine opportunities around you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may find it difficult to obtain the data you need, but don't let it frustrate you. It will soon be forthcoming.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have fine plans for advancing in career activities, but don't be too hasty in putting them in operation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to irk anyone in high position now, or you could regret it later. The evening can be a most happy one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may think of seeking greener pastures now, but this could be a mistake. Use extreme caution in motion.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make long-range plans to have more abundance in the days ahead. You are able to gain a personal aim at this time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who can see through most troublesome situations and know how best to handle them, so direct education along professional lines for best results. Don't neglect religious training early in life.

Winners In Child Design

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Dallas housewife and a Pennsylvanian are among six prize-winners in the Parsons—JC Penney Children's Wear Design competition. All are second-year students at the Parsons School of Design.

The four winners for most original and most saleable designs in two size ranges receive cash awards and have their designs made and sold in JC Penney stores with hangtags carrying their names and original sketches.

Linda Sovinksi, the Dallasite, took the $300 prize for most original design in sizes 3-6X. Her daughter, 7, was the inspiration for her balloon-pocket overalls and sweater. She plans to establish a children's wear boutique, using her own designs.

The $300 prize for most original design in sizes 7-14 went to Korean-born Jane Chung, of New York City, for her oversized jacket, jumpsuit and skirt.

The Aftermath of Hysterectomy

My sister had a hysterectomy operation a year ago. She recovered completely from the surgery, but she seems to be a totally different person. She once was gay and outgoing. Now she seems to be in a state of depression all the time. We have tried every way to talk her out of feeling so bad but we can't seem to get anywhere. — Mrs. R.L.L., Wash.

Dear Mrs. L.:

This story is not unusual. Many women who seem to be free from psychological turmoil or stress react this way after the removal of the uterus (womb). I say "seem to be" because many women have a potential for mild depression which does not come to the fore until after this kind of surgery. Women who have a history of emotional turbulence are, of course, even more prone to overreacting to this kind of surgery.

The uterus has always been a symbol of femininity because of its childbearing function. The surgical removal of the womb, especially in a highly-sensitive person, presents a great threat to a woman's feminine image. The fear that the removal of this organ may diminish her attractiveness or sensuality frequently forces a woman into a tailspin of anxiety.

Now in addition to the psychological impact of the operation, there are also very real symptoms that can be distressing — especially if the ovaries also were removed at the time of surgery.

Associated with such a complete operation is the sudden onset of menopause, or change of life. Frequently this is associated with fatigue, irritability, headache, hot flushes and episodes of depression. These common symptoms are attributed to a hormone imbalance that sometimes occurs after a hysterectomy.

Surgeons are aware of the impact that a hysterectomy has on a woman. Consequently they prepare their patients for the possible emotional changes that might occur after surgery. With proper preparation, the severity of the post-operative reactions is markedly diminished.

When women are not adequately prepared, the onset of symptoms of depression can be severe and prolonged. It is for this reason that the doctor enlists the support of the husband and family.

Since your sister's symptoms have persisted for almost a year, the depressive symptoms may be deeply ingrained. Perhaps some of these symptoms might even have been present prior to surgery. She deserves to be given the advantage of a psychiatric examination and support by such a specialist.

Many remarkable drugs are now available to help free patients from the burden of depression. With drugs, psychotherapy and the sympathetic understanding of the family, your sister will emerge emancipated from her problem. You should not wait too long before urging your sister to undertake such treatment.

Duke Group To Visit Africa

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A team of Duke University scientists plans to travel to East Africa this summer to study lakes in an effort to learn more about man's past that could lead to new oil reserves for his future.

The team, led by zoologist Dr. Daniel Livingstone and geologist Dr. Bruce Rosendahl, will make seismic surveys of four ancient lakes in the Rift Valley region of East Africa — some of which may be unchanged after 10 million years in existence.

The National Science Foundation, Mobil Oil Co. and Elf Aquitaine, a French oil company, are funding the expedition.

When the seismic surveys have been tabulated, Rosendahl and Livingstone said they would begin seeking $10 million to $15 million to take core samples at lakes Turkana, Tanganyika, Rukwa and Malawi.

A pipestem would pierce 10,000 feet of sediment to reach basement rock, Rosendahl said, then the cores from the pipe would be examined for pollen, grass and animal remains.

The types of vegetation found would indicate the type of climate in which it flourished, he said, and the depth of the strata would indicate the age of the sample.

Oil companies are interested in the research because they suspect organic materials necessary for oil formation is dumped in basins in the region.

Strip Searches Bring On Ire

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

A woman arrested for drunken driving in Arlington, Va., was taken to the county jail, stripped naked and searched. So was a woman arrested for playing her stereo too loudly. And a woman who ate a turkey sandwich on a subway.

In Fremont, Calif., it happened to a woman who went to the police station to explain she didn't need a new dog license because her dog had run away.

In Ocean City, N.J., it was a woman arrested for going barefoot on the Boardwalk, and in Wheat Ridge, Colo. it was a 14-year-old girl accused of stealing $1.35 worth of candy bars.

Despite new laws and policies limiting strip searches, many police departments still force some people suspected of minor offenses to undress and submit to searches that may include inspections of anal and vaginal body cavities, say the American Civil Liberties Union and the Justice Department.

"The practice is rampant," said Harriet Kurlander, an official at ACLU headquarters in New York.

ACLU officials say they have no argument with the police practice of strip searching people accused of serious crimes but maintain too many police departments strip search people accused of minor offenses.

"It seems to be strange that we require a warrant to search a home or office, but someone can put a finger into your body cavity without a warrant," James Joy, a Colorado ACLU official, said.

Police say strip searches help keep drugs and weapons out of the jails and protect officers and inmates. "It's not meant to punish anybody," Arlington County Sheriff Jim Gondles said. "It's meant to protect everybody."

Court rulings have generally upheld authorities' right to conduct strip searches. But the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that people who are illegally strip searched can sue for cash damages.

Lois Lipton, a ACLU attorney in Chicago, said strip searches can be unconstitutional on several grounds. Sex discrimination was the basis of the nation's first major strip search case, decided a year ago when Chicago police were named in an ACLU lawsuit alleging women were strip searched more often than men.

Ms. Lipton said strip searches may also violate the Fourth Amendment's guarantees against unreasonable searches and Fourteenth Amendment protections against government action "so offensive to human dignity as to shock the conscience."

In the year since Chicago police changed their rules and offered cash settlements to 191 women, suits have prompted new police procedures in Houston, Suffolk County, N.Y., Independence, Mo., Thornton, Colo., and Racine, Wis. And the Justice Department entered an out-of-court agreement with Lee County, Fla., to limit strip searches.

The city of Chicago offered each plaintiff $250 if she had been routinely strip searched and $1,000 if a body cavity search was done. More than 100 women are suing for more.

The ACLU said the largest strip search settlement thus far was the $25,000 which Suffolk County, N.Y., authorities last month agreed to pay legal secretary Diane Sala. She was subjected to a body cavity search after failing to respond to a summons she never received.

"I'm happy with the settlement, yet ... I will never in my life be able to forget the search," Mrs. Sala said. "It was horrible. It will stay with me forever."

Barbara Foster, a criminal justice researcher for the Natignal Conference of State Legislatures, said Illinois, Michigan, Missouri and Connecticut have passed laws limiting strip searches, and several other states are considering such laws.

The laws generally allow strip searches in minor cases only if officers have obtained a warrant, if the accused will be jailed or if there is reason to suspect concealed weapons or drugs. Vaginal or anal searches are usually allowed only by medical personnel of the same sex.

The ACLU says several new damage suits have been filed or are under consideration in spite of new safeguards. For instance, the ACLU has filed a $200,000 damage suit against New York City police on behalf of a woman who voluntarily answered a misdemeanor summons after she allegedly broke a pizzeria window in a dispute involving her 14-year-old son.

The woman, Linda Lindstrom of Queens, said she was strip searched despite 1980 police guidelines prohibiting such practice.

Gondles says strip searches of the Arlington women were legal because he had reason to believe they had drugs or weapons or might hurt themselves, police or other inmates.

He conceded he changed his policy under public pressure. Now, he said, people accused of misdemeanors can avoid strip searches if they behave while in custody and post bond within four hours.

"But if they come in screaming and yelling, making threats or obviously high on drugs, they will be strip searched," Gondles said. "I know cynics like to think we get off on looking at people's naked bodies, but we look for injuries, too."

He said he first ordered strip searches several years ago after a shoplifting suspect pulled a gun from his boot and killed a police officer.

"I'll go to my grave stating that you cannot show me that people don't bring drugs or weapons into jail just because they are not charged with a felony," he said. "Strip searches are a necessary part of corrections if you want to keep an institution secure."

Essay Contest Winners Announced

The Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors announced the winners of the Private Property Week high school essay contest and community amateur photo contest.

Essay winners were: Sarah Baker, Rose High School, first prize of $100 for essay on the contest theme, "How the Freedom to Own Private Property Will Affect My Future,";

Amanda Robinson, Rose High, second prize of $50,; and Woody Leggett, North Pitt High School, third prize of $25.

Judges for the competition, which was open to tenth, 11th and 12th graders, were Ann Bass, Sue Castellow and Marie Davis.

Wanda Leggett of Stokes, second prize in color, $50;

Dr. Stephen Thomas of Greenville, first prize in black and white division for his entry, "When I Get Bigger," $100; and

Essay and photo entries are on display this week at Carolina East Mall.

CBS Keeps Low After Victory

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This is weird. The 1980-81 prime time television season ended this week. Where's the hoopla? The laurels? The ticker tape?

Who won?

CBS, by a mile. In the strike-abbreviated 25-week season, CBS averaged a Nielsen prime time rating of 19.8, compared to ABC's 18.2 and NBC's 16.6. (That means that during the average prime time minute during the 25-week season, 19.8 percent of American homes with TV were tuned to CBS.)

CBS absolutely blew away its rival networks for the season victory, but has maintained rather a low profile about it all. CBS does mention, in restrained tones, that the 1.6 ratings point margin of victory was the biggest since 1973-74, when CBS beat NBC by more than two points.

What about the party hats? The noisemakers? The joyous shouts of "We're No. 1?" After its second consecutive season victory, I suppose CBS is beginning to feel regal again, and is pleased to be done with that nasty business of fighting it out in the streets with the hooligan ABC.

But I'm really disappointed in ABC. The erstwhile champion isn't even making a show of its loss this season.

Last season, when CBS dethroned ABC by a tenth of a point, ABC scowled and clenched its fists and grumbled on about how CBS didn't keep a proper count or it started the season too early, or some such. Eventually, ABC's publicity and research boys got together and programmed their statistical tea-leaves to read that ABC had won the ratings race.

But this year, ABC is trying to sneak away from the battlefield without handing over its sword. ABC, so boisterous in victory in the late '70s, is trying to slip silently away from the scene of its defeat.

This year, ABC isn't even acknowledging there is a prime time season. "We haven't taken a position on the season yet," says an ABC official. Gee, they took a position on it when ABC's 'kidvid' revolution knocked CBS out of first place.

ABC's backhanded way of acknowledging the end of the TV year will be to terminate the "season-to-date" tabulations in the weekly ratings reports to the press.

All I can say is thank heaven for NBC. Good old NBC, without whom the ersatz TV season would be forgotten, is carrying on and making noise about the season as if it had won. Which, of course, NBC was a long, long way from doing.

NBC, so sensitive about losing and about the tenuous status of President Fred Silverman, has made good sport out of the TV season. You may remember that NBC began its season on the traditional starting date of Sept. 15, despite the actors' strike, in order to milk "Shogun," for an early "season" lead.

The company line became "it's a 52-week season," which was meant to legitimize NBC's early start and de-emphasize the ratings race it figured to lose.

By NBC's count, it lost the season race, but by only 1.6 ratings points, "the closest race since the 1964-65 season." By CBS' count, the margin was 3.2 ratings points.

None of it really matters, anyway. Advertisers don't spend money on a network's finish in the ratings race, but on individual programs.

Brady Stable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surgeons closed a hole in the bullet-pierced brain of White House press secretary James S. Brady early today after a buildup of air had caused potentially dangerous pressure inside his skull. Brady was reported "very stable" through the 5¼-hour operation and in no danger.

His deputy, Larry Speakes, told reporters at midmorning that Brady had been returned to his room from the recovery room.

Richard Ellis, a spokesman at George Washington University Hospital, said doctors report today that Brady's vital signs, including temperature, are normal and that he remains in satisfactory condition.

"He has slept intermittently through the night as the usual effects of anesthesia wear off, but he is readily awakened and responds normally to questions," said the report relayed by Ellis.

The operation, which began late Wednesday and lasted past midnight, was described officially as "non-urgent."

Rose Club To Sponsor Move-A-Thon

The Key Club of J. H. Rose High School is sponsoring a "Move-A-Thon" on Saturday, April 25 as a fund raising benefit activity for the American Diabetes Association.

The Move-A-Thon will begin at 10 a.m. at Peppermint Park on 14th Street and proceed through neighboring residential sections. Participants can "move" any way they choose, as accomodations have been made for walkers, runners, joggers, bikers, and riders of other non-motorized vehicles.

Participants are to get sponsors to pledge an amount for each mile that the participant completes. The course is four miles long and can be rounded any number of times.

Cash prizes of $100, $50 and $25 respectively, will be awarded to the top three money raisers, and other smaller prizes will also be awarded.

Sponsor sheets with all details can be picked up at all Fast Fares in Greenville, at Bond's and Hodges' Sporting Goods, Krogers, T-Shirts Plus, Burger King, and other area businesses.

People of all ages are urged to participate in order to help support the American Diabetes Association.

In the event of rain on April 25, a rain date of May 2 is scheduled.
