No Scientific Evidence Of When Life Begins

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is no scientific evidence to prove when human life actually begins, a Senate subcommittee taking testimony on proposed abortion legislation was told today.

"I have no quarrel with anyone's ideas on this matter, so long as they are held out not as scientific truths, but as personal beliefs based on personal judgments," Dr. Leon E. Rosenberg, professor of human genetics at the Yale University School of Medicine, told the Senate Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on the separation of powers.

"Science, per se, doesn't deal with the complex quality called 'humanness' any more than it does with such equally complex concepts as love, faith or trust."

Another witness, Dr. Alfred M. Bongiovanni, professor of pediatrics and obstetrics at the University of Pennsylvania, told the panel, however:

"I have learned since my earliest medical education that human life begins at the time of conception."

Bongiovanni added, "I submit that human life is present throughout this entire sequence, from conception to adulthood, and that any interruption at any point throughout this time constitutes a termination of human life."

The two testified during the second day of hearings on legislation to redefine life as beginning at conception. The legislation would give an unborn fetus the same constitutional rights as those already born.

Sen. John P. East, R-N.C., began the hearing by asking that the public "reserve judgment on the nature, quality and extensiveness of these hearings ... until the final end."

Critics of the hearings have charged that they were stacked with witnesses who oppose abortion.

East said he believes that by the time extensive hearings on the legislation are completed, the public will conclude that "we did do it fairly, openly, extensively and exhaustively."

The prospectively long and brutal battle over the proposal to give fetuses constitutional rights opened Thursday, and six members of a women's liberation group were arrested on charges they disrupted the hearings.

Among the eight witnesses scheduled to testify today, only Dr. Leon Rosenberg of the Yale University Medical School was considered a supporter of legalized abortion.

There were complaints that East had tilted the hearings in favor of anti-abortion forces led mainly in the Senate by Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who sponsored the bill.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., the senior minority member on the subcommittee, did not attend Thursday's hearing but protested that Democrats were denied the right to call their own witnesses.

Abortion issues, Baucus wrote, are "complex and controversial." In a rare public display of internal Senate disagreement, Baucus said abortion questions "demand a full and exhaustive hearing at which all sides are given an opportunity to testify."

East also had refused to permit organizations on either side of the abortion question to appear before the panel. Only medical, scientific or legal experts speaking for themselves were appearing Thursday and today. Two additional hearings tentatively have been scheduled for May 4 and May 6.

However, on Thursday, East indicated that he might also permit testimony on the religious and social implications of abortion. "I would be happy to hear testimony of the kind or any other that is germane to the issue," he said.

The Helms bill would give an unborn fetus the same constitutional rights as those already born.

Critics say such a law would make a woman who has an abortion subject to prosecution for murder.

When the Supreme Court ruled in 1973 that women have a constitutional right to end a pregnancy, the justices said the 14th Amendment did not extend to the unborn.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a member of the subcommittee and a strong opponent of legalized abortion, said Thursday that he had strong doubts about the constitutionality of the Helms legislation.

Hatch has indicated previously that he might prefer a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortion. An amendment would require approval by two-thirds of the Senate and the House and ratification by three-fourths of the states.

In Thursday's testimony, five doctors said they believe life begins when the egg and sperm join at conception.

"Drawing a line is ridiculous," said McCarthy DeMere, a doctor and lawyer from Memphis, Tenn., about efforts to decide when a fetus becomes a person.

"Life is present from the moment of conception," agreed Dr. Hymie Gordon, a Mayo Clinic geneticist.

In the midst of the testimony, three women who said they belonged to the Women's Liberation Zap Action Brigade stood on chairs and raised hand-lettered signs declaring their opposition to the Helms proposal.

"Stop these hearings," they shouted. "What about the lives of women?" Police peacefully escorted them from the room.

Later, three more women staged a similar protest.

Handling Of Assassination Try Boosts Reagan's Public Image

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ronald Reagan's handling of the attempt on his life has boosted his store of goodwill with the public and has pushed his ratings as a person and as a president to their highest points so far, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

As the end of Reagan's first 100 days in office approaches, more than two out of five Americans say he has accomplished more at this point than past presidents.

The latest AP-NBC News poll is based on telephone interviews with 1,604 adults across the country April 13-14 and was conducted in part for an NBC News special on Reagan's 100 days broadcast Thursday night

More than three-quarters of the public — 77 percent — expressed a favorable opinion of Reagan in general, with only 15 percent saying they have an unfavorable view of him. Eight percent were not sure.

That is 19 points higher than the results of the January AP-NBC News poll, with almost all of the change coming from the ranks of those who were previously uncertain about Reagan. In that survey, 58 percent had a favorable opinion, 18 percent an unfavorable one and 24 percent were not sure.

Public opinion of Reagan's work as president also surged after the assassination attempt, with much of the boost coming from the ranks of the previously uncertain.

Sixty-six percent now say Reagan's work is excellent or good, versus 56 percent who said that in the late February AP-NBC News poll. Twenty-two percent said his work has been "only fair," versus 21 percent two months ago. Five percent rated his work poor each month. Seven percent were not sure this month, compared with 18 percent before.

Reagan's job ratings now stand higher than those given Jimmy Carter in the opening months of his presidency. In the April 1977 NBC News poll, 53 percent rated Carter's work excellent or good overall, and in May 1977 the mark was 61 percent — both below Reagan's current ratings.

Americans say they think Reagan has accomplished a good bit in his first months in office, but they are not really surprised.

Reagan Back In Oval Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, giving himself "his own go-ahead," returned to the White House office wing today to preside at a Cabinet meeting.

He entered the Oval Office shortly before 9:45 a.m. EST for the first time since he was shot.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, announcing the president's plans, also said Reagan would fly by helicopter to Camp David Saturday afternoon and is planning to stay at the presidential retreat in Maryland until Monday afternoon.

"He expressed a wish to get out among the dogwoods and fresh air on the mountainside," the spokesman said.

Speakes said Reagan expected to spend about 30 minutes at the Cabinet meeting. No agenda was announced, but it was expected to focus on whether to lift the embargo on the sale of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union.

STOP SIGNS NEEDED?

Today I have seen three near-miss collisions between cars in the Carolina East Convenience Center adjacent to Carolina East Mall. I've seen wrecks before. One dangerous point is right in front of the Plitt Theater, another is between the bank and the Show Room. I have called over to the mall office a number of times and they've never done anything. They've got some four-way stops over there they don't need. I wish they'd move some of those same signs over here.

Hotline called the Mall office and was referred to the office of Goodman-Segar-Hogan in Norfolk, Va. We talked to Jerry Tillinger in the development department, who said he'd be in touch today with the engineering firm that designed the center for another study to see if, indeed, the signs are warranted. "We'll certainly put them in if they're needed," he said. Anyone wishing to have input into this matter may contact Jerry Tillinger, Development Department, Goodman-Segar-Hogan Co., One Commercial Place, Norfolk, Va. 23510; phone 804-627-0661.

KEVIN HARRELL APPEAL

Fourteen-year-old Kevin Harrell is in Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Md. awaiting a bone marrow transplant.

The youngest of four children of James M. (Tom) and Lucille Harrell of the Mount Pleasant community on Rt. 6, Greenville, Kevin and his family learned last March that he has a rare kind of cancer related to the lymph system. He was an eighth grader at Wellcome Middle School at the time of the diagnosis and has continued to study with a homebound teacher.

Fellow members of Mount Pleasant Christian Church have set up a Kevin Harrell Fund to help with the tremendous expense the Harrells have encountered with Kevin's illness. His father works in the maintenance department of East Carolina University and his mother has had to give up her job because of Kevin's situation.

Donations for the Kevin Harrell Fund may be mailed to Mount Pleasant Christian Church, Rt. 6, Greenville, and are, of course, tax-deductible. Inquiries may be made by calling Mrs. Milton (Patsy) Spain, 752-6025.

Split On Lead In Atlanta

By DAVID PACE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Authorities are split in evaluating information provided by a civil rights leader who says he has identified a "psychopath" responsible for some of the 25 slayings of young blacks here. The FBI says it is "plausible." But a prosecutor says the information will probably "go down the drain" once checked.

Fulton County District Attorney Lewis Slaton, whose office has jurisdiction in 18 of the 25 killings, also was critical Thursday of the attention the FBI was giving to information from Roy Innis of the Congress of Racial Equality. He said "the FBI really gave it more credence" than it deserved.

Meanwhile, missing persons investigators today were searching for a 21-year-old black man who is similar in stature to three of the last four victims.

Jimmy Payne, last seen Wednesday, was described as standing 5 feet 3 and weighing 130 pounds. No decision has been made on assigning his case to the special police task force investigating the deaths because authorities have not determined that it fits the pattern of the other cases, said police spokeswoman Marion Lee.

Innis announced at a news conference in Atlanta Wednesday that CORE had "broken" the case by finding a "psychopath" responsible for at least six of the killings. Innis said CORE had the person under surveillance.

Slaton said the public statements by Innis would probably hurt the police probe "a great deal" if true.

Slaton said he feared that CORE surveillance would tip off the person being watched.

x"if I was the killer, I'd figure I was under surveillance" and try to slip away, Slaton said.

At the news conference, Innis produced an envelope he said contained a picture of a suspect and spoke of a witness who allegedly had information about the suspect.

Innis refused to identify the witness or the suspect, but an aide, Larry Mitchell, said Thursday that the suspect was a black man who obtained victims to be killed by whites.

The Miami Herald and the Knight-Ridder News Service reported today that the witness was a 26-year-old woman from Hollywood, Fla., near Miami, who had a drug problem.

"She's a heroin addict," said her brother.

"Everybody knows she doesn't have all her senses about her," said her father.

Her father was quoted as saying he hadn't known that she was being questioned about the Atlanta case.

The Herald and the news service said the woman was charged with murdering her lover in 1979, but claimed self defense and was acquitted.

Both Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown and John Glover, special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office, refused comment on earlier reports that Innis's witness was a Miami woman.

The mother of one of the victims said she had identified a photograph shown her by Innis supporters as that of a black man who frequented her neighborhood. But mothers of some of the other victims said they did not believe the controversial civil rights leader's story and said he was trying to salvage his reputation through publicity.

After the news conference Wednesday, Innis met for three hours with Glover, who later called Innis' information "important."

Glover and Innis met again Thursday, joined by Brown. After the meeting, Glover said only that Innis' story "seems plausible."

Brown said afterward, "We had a crucial discussion with Mr. Innis. We're in the posture now of having an investigation into the information."

Brown and Glover refused to say Thursday whether authorities have questioned Innis' witness, but sources close to the investigation said the witness was in the meeting Wednesday with Glover and a representative of Slaton's office.

Meanwhile, the chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality ordered Innis — the group's staff director — to end his independent investigation of the slayings.

CORE Chairman Waverly V. Yates said in Washington Thursday that Innis' probe was not authorized by CORE. He said if Innis refuses to turn over all his information to police and end his activities, "we have ways of correcting that." He declined to elaborate.

Innis said in response that Yates and his allies had "no constituency, no CORE members that support them."

Innis has said that CORE investigators will apprehend their suspect if police have not arrested him by 1 p.m. Saturday or made significant progress in their probe.

Innis refused to say Thursday whether he intends to enforce the ultimatum. But Brown said he did not think the ultimatum was "an issue now. That's water under the bridge."

In another development, friends and relatives of the 24th victim, 15-year-old Joseph Bell, buried the teen-ager Thursday after an emotional service at 2nd Mount Olive Baptist Church.

Bell, whose body was pulled from the South River Sunday, had been missing since March 2. Medical examiners ruled that he died of asphyxiation, as had at least 13 of the other victims.

Innis' entry into the Atlanta investigation is the latest in a long list of controversial causes he has embraced in his eight years at CORE, a New York-based group that played a major role in civil rights' struggles of the 1960s. In the past two years, there has been a movement within CORE, headed by Yates, to oust Innis.

Innis' claims also drew fire Thursday from mothers of some of the young victims, who charged that Innis was trying to use the tragic string of slayings to salvage his reputation.

"We don't want him to involve us in this mess. We don't want him using us for no publicity stunt," said Willie Mae Mathis, mother of slain Jeffrey Mathis and vice chairman of the Committee to Stop Children's Murders.

Mrs. Mathis said Innis met with the mothers and "asked us for our support. We said no. They're running him out of New York and he's trying to set up down here now."

One mother, Annie Hill, whose 13-year-old son Timothy was the 21st victim, said CORE representatives showed her a photograph of a black man she had seen frequently in her southwest Atlanta neighborhood.

She said the organization told her the man was a suspect and that a black man and a white man are responsible for six of the child killings.

Pulitzer Board Studies Changes In Selection Of Award Winners

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pulitzer Prize board members, engaging in rare public soul-searching after honoring a bogus story, are weighing possible changes in how the winners of journalism's most coveted awards are chosen.

Thomas J. Winship, editor of the Boston Globe, said he is proposing several changes, including more time for the board to review entries and more communication between jurors who screen the nominations and board members who make the final decisions.

"I feel strongly that the Pulitzer Prize is in trouble," said Winship, one of 17 members of the Pulitzer board. "The vast prestige of the Pulitzer has suffered greatly over the past few years."

The secret Pulitzer selection process has been plagued with controversies in recent years, the latest being the award of a Pulitzer to Janet Cooke of The Washington Post for a story about an 8-year-old heroin addict who, it was later revealed, did not exist.

After disclosure of the hoax last week, the Post relinquished the prize for feature writing and Miss Cooke resigned from the paper.

One of Winship's recommendations would have board members consult with jurors whenever the board rejects a jury's first choice or when an entry is moved from one category to another.

Such discussions might have led to warnings about Miss Cooke's story and prevented the award, Winship said. The board's final deliberations are now conducted in secret without discussions with the jurors who initially reviewed the entries.

The Post entered Miss Cooke's story in a local reporting category, but the board shifted it to the feature writing category without consulting the feature jury.

Winship also said the Pulitzer board should set aside more than one day to review entries, establish a more formal voting procedure, better define some writing categories and consider making public the names of finalists before the final choices are made.

He proposed that the reforms be acted on at an emergency board meeting later this spring.

Another board member, Eugene C. Patterson, editor and president of the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times, has proposed that less sweeping changes be considered at the board's regularly scheduled meeting in November.

Patterson said he is urging the doubling, from one day to two, of the time the board spends reviewing entries.

"I had felt a need for fuller reflection," Patterson said.

Oregon Plans For Hood Eruption

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — On the anniversary of the devastating eruption of Mount St. Helens, the emergency center beneath the Oregon state Capitol will be buzzing with reports of earthquakes, flying ash and a furious eruption at Mount Hood. But the sleeping volcano, in all probability, will still be dozing.

State officials want to know what to do if Mount Hood ever erupts, as Mount St. Helens in Washington did on May 18.

So the state Emergency Services Division has planned a mock eruption to test a new Oregon volcano emergency plan.

Division Director Harvey Latham said Gov. Vic Atiyeh called for the plan, named Annex N, last summer after the U.S. Geological Survey warned that Mount Hood had the potential for a major volcanic eruption.

In July, two days of earthquakes under the mountain shocked area residents still jittery from the Mount St. Helens eruption, which left 61 people dead or missing.

"The plan is, for all intents and purposes, completed, but it's no good unless we test it," Latham said Thursday.

The 11,235-foot Mount Hood, 45 miles east of Portland, is one of several particularly suspect mountains in the Cascade chain, said U.S. Geological Survey geologist Susan Russell-Robinson.

The others include Washington's Mount St. Helens, Mount Baker and Mount Rainier, and California's Mount Lassen and Mount Shasta.

It is believed that Mount Hood last erupted in the mid-1800s, although little historical information is available.

Latham said details about the mock eruption are being kept secret by a team of emergency planners, but he said at least 100 people will be involved in the May 18 exercise. He said warning earthquakes, ashfall and mudflows could be included.

The experiment will test Oregon's emergency operations center located in the basement of the state capitol and a coordination center in the Mount Hood National Forest Headquarters in Portland, he said. Although state and federal agencies will participate, there will be no movement of troops, Latham said.

Pay Visit To Volcano

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens remained quiet as scientists ventured into the crater of the volcano for the first time in five days, officials said.

The only seismic activity registered by earthquake-recording devices Thursday was "the usual little low-level stuff ... avalanching and such," said Bob Norris at the University of Washington geophysics center.

Clouds and rain kept U.S. Geological Survey teams from reaching the crater for days.

"The last time they were out in the field was Saturday," said Thom Corcoran of the U.S. Forest Service.

USGS scientists visit the peak as often as weather permits to record minor expansions and contractions of the crater area and changes in the layers of volcanic ash, Corcoran said.

The last eruptive phase included an ash eruption April 10 and growth of the massive lava dome in the crater that continued over the next few days.

The volcano's biggest eruption this century on May 18, 1980, left 61 people dead or missing.

Taxes Advertised

Floyd Little, city tax collector, reported that the first date the advertisement of all unpaid city 1980 taxes will appear in the newspaper is May 11.

Little said the advertisement will include the name of the listing taxpayer with parcel number, street address and lot and block numbers.

He said residents who have bought or sold property during 1980 or were annexed into the city during the year may wish to verify that taxes have been paid before their names appear in the advertisement. Little said verifications can be obtained by calling 752-4137.

The tax advertisement will continue on May 18, 25th and June 1st, with sale date at 12 noon on June 8, the spokesman reported.

Break-In Investigated

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating a break-in that occurred Thursday at a rural residence.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said the break-in at the John Gurganus home at Rt. 1, Box 57, Stokes, was reported at 4:58 p.m. yesterday and apparently took place between 12:45 p.m. and 4:15 p.m.

He said Gurganus reported the theft of a .357 magnum pistol, $4 in dimes, two gold necklaces, and two pairs of earrings, with a total value of $339. A bedroom was rifled in the incident, he added.

Entrance to the house was gained by breaking out a back door window, the sheriff said. Damage was set at $50.

Easter Show Is Presented

The Majestic Civic Club of Greenville held its 13th annual Mr. and Miss Bunny Easter Parade Sunday afternoon.

This annual fashion show was held at Sadie Saulter School Auditorium with 25 little bunnies presented to the audience by Mrs. Sudie M. Moore, mistress of ceremonies.

The event was highlighted by the crowning of Mr. and Miss Easter Bunny, 1981-82 by the club president, Mrs. Rosa L. Harris. The winners were Demetrice Jenkins, son of Ms. Willie M. Jenkins of Greenville, and Kenyetta Johnson, daughter of Ms. Fannie Johnson of Greenville.

First runner-up were Omar D'Shean Ingram of Winterville; second runner-up, Lawrence Terrell Teele of Greenville.

Ohter participants were Tomeka Gay, Dana Payton, Gamarde Cannon, Luke Joyner Jr., Jarian Knight, Kelish Wooten, Elijah Jenkins, Torrence Jones, Latrice Best, Denise Foreman, Arleesha Harper, Scott Maye, Montean Edwards, Daron Cannon, Tomeka Person, John Alton Hooks Jr., Monteessa Cherry, Tashia Hardy, Shantance Short, Tenesha Carr and Quadryaph Dawkins, all of whom received Easter baskets.

E. T. Love Sr. gave the invocation; Mrs. Carrie Connor, the welcome; Mrs. Lillians Elks, the acceptance on behalf of the community and Mrs. Annie Suggs and Simon Hemby, the presentation of the program and guests. A medley of Easter and spring music was presented throughout the program by Roger Ingram, organist, of Ayden.

Morris Hits Drug Panel

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The only major actor to appear before a congressional panel investigating drug abuse castigated the committee for spending money on such an inquiry and said he was "incensed" at "innuendoes that imply this industry is drug-oriented."

Money spent on the hearings could be "better expended bolstering the narcotics agencies, the border patrol," Greg Morris told the panel Thursday as it wound up two days of controversial hearings.

Morris, co-star of the TV series "Vega$" and best known for his role in "Mission: Impossible," entered the hearing room angered by recent allegations of rampant drug use among Hollywood entertainers.

"In 20 years in this business, and I have been to a lot of Hollywood parties, I have never been offered drugs," he told the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control.

Morris had told reporers outside the hearing room he thought a McCarthy-like "witch hunt" might be under way.

"I am incensed, just as they (the congressmen) would be incensed if I accused them all of being in Abscam (a federal bribery inquiry)," Morris told reporters. "I'm upset over the innuendoes that imply this industry is drug-oriented."

"We didn't come here to create some kind of McCarthy-era investigation," said committee chairman Leo C. Zeferetti, D-N.Y., noting that the panel sought "advice and guidance."

"I want to tap the genius of American performing arts. I sincerely believe we cannot win the battle (against drug abuse) without your help," Zeferetti said in response to a suggestion by TV executive Alan Horn that Hollywood establish an advisory board to aid the government in its antidrug education programs.

After those assurances, Morris said the refusal by some celebrities to appear before the panel was due to a misperception of the committee's purpose. He said celebrities would be willing to appear in anti-drug films and TV programs if the government would fund the effort.

Actor Dennis Weaver, formerly of "McCloud," was scheduled to testify Thursday, but backed out Wednesday night citing "another commitment," according to committee press aide Phil Leshin.

Actress Cathy Lee Crosby of ABC-TV's "That's Incredible" also reneged, saying committee members were grandstanding or just trying to find out which celebrities were using drugs.

Horn, whose Tandem Productions makes such shows as "Archie Bunker's Place," said reports of Hollywood drug use distorted the public's perception of the industry.

"Nothing could be further from the truth" than the impression that "drugs, and cocaine in particular, are the very currency with which the television community does its business," he said.

Also testifying was former child actor William Gray, who played Bud on the 1950s TV series "Father Knows Best.' Gray said the TV industry has a responsibility to educate the public about drugs.

"Government warnings ... have gone tragically unheeded," he said. "You're never going to convince these kids they're going to destroy their lives with this experimentation."

Vows Said In GardenSetting

Miss Rosalyn Russell Williams and Clyde Edwards Jr. were united in marriage in a garden ceremony Saturday at 3 p.m. on the lawns of Mr. and Mrs. James Williams, parents of the bride, and Mrs. Mable Lang.

The single ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. C. R. Mosely of Asheville.

The bridegroom's father is Clyde Edwards Sr. of Newport News, Va.

Wedding music was presented by Rodger Ingram, organist, and Mrs. Rosa L. Harris, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The garden area featured an arch adorned with greenery and a nile green bow with inserts of green and yellow bows. The background was azaleas where the vows were spoken. The prelle kneeling bench was decorated with a green and yellow bow.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silesta designed with a draped cowl neckline, blouson bodice of floral lace with short elbow length split sleeves and a flared skirt. The waistline was accentuated by a double sash of nile green and maize satin ribbons with bows and streamers at center front. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion bordered in scalloped schiffli embroidered lace interspersed with miniature bows of nile green and maize satin ribbons and was attached to a caplet overlaid in lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of lily of the valley and daisies.

Patricia Johnson of Washington, D. C., cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Pamela and Phyllis Johnson of Washington, D. C., cousins of the bride. They each wore a formal gown in nile green styled similar to that of the bride and carried a yellow mum with matching streamers.

Tracy Bennett of Washington, D. C., niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a formal yellow dress of matte jersey diacetate nylon overlaid with lace and had a capelet collar. She carried a green wicker basket filled with yellow and white rose petals tied with green and yellow streamers.

Charles Deloach, cousin of the bridegroom of Conway was best man.

The mother of the bride wore a floral street length dress and an orchid corsage.

The bride graduated from Rose High School and attended St. Augustine College, Raleigh. The bridegroom works at N.C. Central University.

The couple will be living in Durham.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Decorations included summer flower arrangements and three branch candelabra. The table was covered with a white nylon cloth trimmed in lace. Mrs. Dianne Bennett, sister of the bride of Washington, D. C. presided at the register.

Cake was served by Mrs. Thelma R. Jones and punch was poured by Mrs. Althea Wooten.

A buffet dinner followed for the family and out-of-town guests.

The educational service is housed in the public library and is sponsored by local businesses.

Telephones Supply Homework Aid

WINSTON SALEM — "Now, wait a minute...Think about what you should do next...No, almost...Okay. Now you've got it."

That's how a Homework Hotline teacher in Winston-Salem might guide a student caller through a math homework problem. Unaided by face-to-face contact and visual teaching techniques, Hotline teachers have easily overcome the challenge of teaching via telephone by imaginatively adapting their classroom instruction techniques.

Homework Hotline also is an example of how businesses and communities work together to improve education. The Hotline grew out of a recommendation from the Forsyth Association of Classroom Teachers and was given the use of space, telephones and reference books by the Forsyth County Library. The tutoring program is supported by local businesses, including R. J. Reynolds Inc. as the chief sponsor.

Six school system teachers operate the Hotline from 5 to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday. The teachers receive about 150 calls a night, mostly from students in grades five through eight. Usually, most of the questions are about math.

The program has been so popular with students that some of them, when frustrated by busy signals, have resorted to declaring an emergency to telephone operators.

In helping the students, says Marcia Epstein, director of support services for the Winston-Salem/Forsyth County school system, "emphasis is not on providing the answer, but on getting the students to solve their own problems. I am amazed at how the teachers accomplish this over the telephone. By the end of a call, the student has always found a way to solve his or her problem."

The Hotline aids students who might not get help with their homework at home and motivates students who need individual attention, Epstein says.

The teachers spend an average of less than 10 minutes with each student. That's enough time, says Epstein, to bring about "understanding through the ear."

Because of the small amount of time teachers spend with students and because teachers can't see mistakes students make, it might seem that teaching via telephone would be difficult.

It isn't, Epstein says. A teacher guides a student through a math problem, for example, by having the student describe his or her steps as the teacher works through the same steps. Sometimes teachers describe to students how to create their own visual teaching aids.

That's what Shelly White did.

When the Kernersville Elementary School teacher received a call from a kindergartener having trouble coloring inside the lines of drawings, she wondered for a moment what to do.

"I said, 'How am I going to deal with this over the phone?' A grapefruit popped in my mind and I told him to draw a circle on white paper. The white part would be the part we eat, and the lines would be the rind that we don't touch. There I was coloring my grapefruit and he was coloring his."

Spring Banquet Is Announced

The Beta Nu Chapter of Sigma Theta Tau will hold its spring banquet Wednesday night, April 29, at six o'clock at the Greenville Country Club.

Speaker for the banquet will be Sister Rosemary Donley, Ph.D., F.A.A.N. She is the national president of Sigma Theta Tau and dean and associate professor at the School of Nursing, The Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C.

Sr. Donley is a fellow in the American Academy of Nursing and holds many national and local nursing honors. She has published over 20 articles in professional journals and three books. She has presented numerous papers and conducted seminars, workshops and conferences.

The topic of her presentation to the local chapter will be "Changing the Public Image of Nursing."

Interested persons are invited to attend the proram. Each participant will pay a fee of $8.00 for the banquet meal. For further information call Lou Everette or Ann Roberson, ECU School of Nursing, 757-6061.

HONEY GEMS

Our adaptation of a recipe that won a prize in a California recipe contest.

1¼ cups wholewheat (graham) flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 large egg
½ cup honey
½ cup butter, melted
¼ cup lemon juice
½ cup firmly packed finely grated pared carrot

In a small bowl or on wax paper stir together the flour, baking powder, soda and cinnamon. In a medium bowl beat together the egg, honey and butter until blended; add the flour mixture, lemon juice and carrots; stir only until flour mixture is moistened and carrots are evenly distributed. Ladle into buttered muffin-pan cups (each 1-3rd cup capacity) filling them only one-half full. (Batter will be bubbly.) Bake in a pre-heated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 20 minutes. With a small spatula loosen edges, remove and serve at once. Makes 1½ dozen small gems with level tops.

Members Hear Ms. Galloway

Eta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held its meeting last week at the home of Jeanne Turcotte. The group will give a donation of $750 to the local Cerebral Palsy Center.

The money donation was raised through the club's annual casino night.

A program on time management was presented by Kay Galloway.

Members brought small gifts to be given to three elderly residents of the University Nursing Home.

Barbara Turcotte served as co-hostess.

DIAMONDS: THE GROOM'S CHOICE

"When the right person comes along, you'll know it." I'm sure you've heard that saying before, and if you're ready to seal your engagement, you can personally vouch for the truth of it.

How about "When the right diamond comes along, you'll know it"? Have you heard that one? Well, if you have, DON'T BELIEVE IT! Because it takes more than human insight to judge a diamond. It takes a trained eye and gemological know-how to understand what's what with diamonds. You should seek the help of a gemologically trained jeweler.

If you're in the market for a diamond engagement ring, you should seek out a jeweler who can explain diamond quality to you and present you with your alternatives. American Gem Society jewelers are well educated in this respect and will be happy to show you your diamond under magnification or graphically illustrate the effect Cutting, Color, Clarity and Carat weight have on diamond value.

At Lautares Jewelers we distribute consumer information brochures to our customers which explain these Four C's of diamond value. Our trained staff makes sure that our customers understand exactly what they're buying. We know how important this is, especially when buying as meaningful an item as an engagement ring.

Weather All Important

Always April and May are critical for the farm. Crops are in the fields and too little or too much rain can mean the difference in success and failing in producing the year's farm products. Dry windy weather can be detrimental and a late frost can be disastrous.

This year it is lack of rain that is worrying the farmers. The rainfall for April is down — way down from an average of 3.31 inches in April over the past ten years to only .73 of an inch this April. With young plants in the field the county farm agents see the situation as "almost critical" and in some cases it is critical.

There is some replanting of tobacco and some are delaying of setting out tobacco. There was the possibility of rain overnight, but the monthly rainfall will still be far below the average.

The weather, as always, is all important to the farmer as the growing season moves along.

Recruiting Is Competitive

Pitt County Memorial Hospital has increased its pay for entry-level registered nurses to $7.25 an hour effective July 1. The pay was increased from $6.42 per hour.

There can he no doubt the increase is needed in the highly competitive nurse recruiting field.

The new bed tower may be open by Nov. 1 and the 36-bed psychiatric unit is expected to be ready May 4. The new facilities will be of little use without qualified nurses and the hospital has to go out and actively recruit them.

LET'S HOPE THAT'LL PERK HIM UP A BIT!

Averting GOP Retreat

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The threat of a Senate Republican retreat from President Reagan's economic program before the battle is truly joined was finessed at breakfast April 15 when budget director David Stockman lobbied the Republican staff on the Senate Budget Committee not to turn tail and flee, with apparent success.

That staff, headed by Steve Bell, had been sounding retreat for five days by plotting a moderate Republican-Democratic coalition on the budget resolution that would slow down and stretch out Reagan's tax rate reductions. Thus, while preparing for a setpiece budget resolution battle in the Democratic House, the White House was on the brink of losing the war in the Republican Senate.

Although many congressmen of both parties still do not appreciate it, the tax reduction is the cutting edge of the Reagan economic program. There will be eventual compromise, but toward intensifying the impact of tax rate reduction, not softening it. That would mean dropping tax rates on "unearned" income and perhaps settling for heavy rate cuts over two years. If the Senate Budget Committee goes off in the opposite direction under the chairmanship of New Mexico's Sen. Pete Domenici, the result could fatally undermine Reagan's program.

The rationale for early Senate Republican retreat was that only a shrinking of the tax cut would achieve the balanced budget necessary to pass the budget resolution. In truth, howver, the budget committee staff seemed to be expoloting the projected budget deficit to win a desired political objective: killing the Kemp-Roth tax bill.

That tone was set from the start by the Republican staff installed at the budget committee by Domenici—especially Steve Bell. A 37-year-old ex-newspaper reporter, poet and self-styled Renaissance man, Bell has inveighed against "supply-side ideologues" and belittled tax rate reduction. Add to that anti-tax cut bias by the committee's Republican economists, and it is no surprise that Domenici has been downgrading the Reagan tax plan all year.

It was sour economic assumptions by Domenici's staff that produced a $40 billion-plus deficit in the projected budget for fiscal year 1984. That prompted three conservative Republicans led by Colorado's Sen. Bill Armstrong to join Democrats in defeating the budget resolution in the Senate committee April 9, just before the current Easter recess.

What was afoot became clear immediately after that unexpected vote. Domenici's staff proclaimed, with unconcealed delight, that Kemp-Roth was dead. Bell was explicit. He told fellow staffers that future cooperation between Domenici and Armstrong wa futile. Instead, said Bell, a coalition with Democrats could reduce the deficit by stretching out the 30 percent tax cut—from 10 per cent annually for three years to 7.5 per cent a year for four years. Moreover, he would cut back liberalized depreciation procedures.

The votes to pass such a package were in the budget committee. Armstrong and his two colleagues, Sens, Steve Symms of Idaho and Charles Grassley of Iowa, were the three members of the committee most deeply committed to Reagan's tax and budget reduction. Yet, they would be overridden as the rest of the committee sought revenue in the way Jimmy Carter did: by caution on tax reduction.

Word was quickly passed to Stockman, who quickly responded. Telephone lines between Washington and Albuquerque were filled with pleas to Domenici. Bell and his colleagues were invited to breakfast with Stockman on income tax day. Although nobody was certain, the inclination to retreat seemed to be stemmed.

Domenici is deeply skeptical about tax reduction, but also deeply worried over charges of succumbing to liberal Democratic othodoxy. When the Wall Street Journal on April 14 accused him of Keynesian deviationism in an editorial titles "John

Growing Benefits

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — When members of the North Carolina General Assembly take advantage of an opportunity to denounce growth of governmental bureaucracies, seldom do they mention that the legislative branch is one of the fastest growing of all state institutions, both in cost and personnel.

There is considerable momentum toward election of legislators to four-year terms instead of two-year terms which, if not this year, will eventually be done.

And when the next session convenes in 1982 a new building now under construction will be occupied. Spacious offices with room for expanded staff and improved space for committee meetings will relieve what some in the General Assembly consider a space crunch in the present State Legislative Building, occupied since 1963.

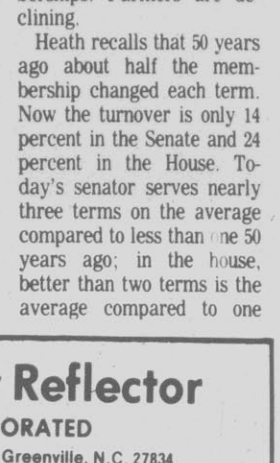

Quick Growth

Moving from the old Capitol where his desk was his office, and a typist from the secretarial pool handled essential correspondence, a Tar Heel lawmaker will soon enjoy a spacious office with a reception room; a fulltime secretary when in session; a research assistant if assigned a committee chairmanship; and a computer system at his fingertips to keep track of data and help write laws.

The figures tell a story. The new building when completed and funished will have cost better than $10 million. The operating budget of the General Assembly next fiscal year will be more than $10 million annually. Total staff will number in the neighborhood of 650, with heavy emphasis on lawyers and fiscal analysts.

All of this signals an important change in directions. Once a "citizens legislature" of part-time members who served briefly, often at some personal sacrifice, to come to Raleigh once every two years, today's General Assembly meets every year for longer terms and has grown increasingly toward a permanent watchdog assignment. Instead of a remote policy-making board, the Legislature is behaving more and more as a full-time board of directors which not only tells state agencies what to do, but how to do it, and constantly monitors through staff people and investigating committees the numerous day-to-day activities of state government.

Milton Heath of the N.C.

BILL NOBLITT

Institute of Government at Chapel Hill has worked in the General Assembly for many years. In a recent review of 50 years of the institution, he reached some significant conclusions.

And Change

Lawyers once dominated, with essentially half the membership. Now, that number is down to less than 25 percent. Real estate and insurance interests have emerged as the second most populous group at 16 per cent in the Senate and nearly 15 percent in the House. Educators are gaining influence with 10 percent of the memberships. Farmers are declining.

Heath recalls that 50 years ago about half the membership changed each term. Now the turnover is only 14 percent in the Senate and 24 percent in the House. Today's senator serves nearly three terms on the average compared to less than one 50 years ago; in the house, better than two terms is the average compared to one term 50 years ago.

Results are mixed, Heath concludes. The General Assembly has modern facilities and equipment; is "more broadly representative, more open, and more accessible," and has turned away from purely local interests to a more intelligent, statewide perspective.

But, the changes raise questions as well about whether growing power and involvement encroaches on functions of the executive branch; whether a professional assembly is more desired than a citizen's assembly; do legislators tend to represent narrow special interests more; is careful deliberation yielding to speedier action; and is staff properly trained and directed in light of growing influence from that group?

Luggage Same In Space

The "Columbia" Space Shuttle went off without a hitch. That was because it was on television, and everyone involved took extra pains to see that nothing went wrong. But in several years when we take Space Shuttle flights for granted, astronauts can expect the same problems that people who fly commercial airlines encounter.

"Are you in charge of luggage for the spaceship 'America'?"

"Yes sir."

"Well I was on it, and my luggage didn't arrive. It had my electric razor and all my food-paste in it."

"These things happen. Could you show me on this card what bag it resembles the most?"

"This one here."

"I see. Well, let me call and check if Cape Canaveral knows anything about it ... George, Harry here at Edwards Air Force Base. You haven't seen a brown three-suiter with green straps, that was supposed to be on the 'America' flight today? Yeh, it was routed from the moon, via Atlanta. The number is 43216-E, like in Eastern Airlines. Take a look around will you? Hmnnn. You haven't? Thanks, I'll check with Atlanta."

"Did they locate it?"

"No sir. But I'm sending a telex to Atlanta to see if it might have been offloaded and put on our red-eye flight to Venus."

"You have to find it. I've got film in it of the Earth that has never been seen before."

"Now don't get excited. I'm doing the best I can."

"Why can't you people at NASA be more careful with people's luggage?"

"I only work in Lost and Found. I'm not responsible for the entire space program."

"I'm expected at the White House tomorrow for a dinner with the President of the United States. My tuxedo is in that bag."

"Just calm down. We'll find it. Atlanta should be back to me any moment."

"Why, when I take a flight to the moon, does my luggage have to go through Atlanta?"

ART BUCHWALD

"Everything has to go through Atlanta. It's an FAA regulation."

"I'm going to write to the head of NASA about this."

"You'll only get a form letter back."

"I'm not leaving until you find it."

"Here comes the reply from Atlanta. Hmmm. There seems to have been a slight mixup. Your bag was apparently put on our supershuttle flight to Jupiter."

"When will I get it?"

"Let's see, it will take a year to get there, and a year to get back. You should have it by June of 1987."

"I can't wait that long. I packed all my moon rocks in the suitcase."

"Now that was a silly thing to do. Why didn't you put them in your carry-on bag?"

"BECAUSE I HAD TO PUT ALL MY OXYGEN GEAR IN MY CARRY-ON BAG."

"Please don't shout. You're making the other people who lost their luggage nervous. What hotel are you staying at? We'll send it by taxi as soon as it arrives."

"I don't know what hotel I'll be staying in."

"We'll be very happy to supply you with a toothbrush and shaving gear until the Jupiter Shuttle returns."

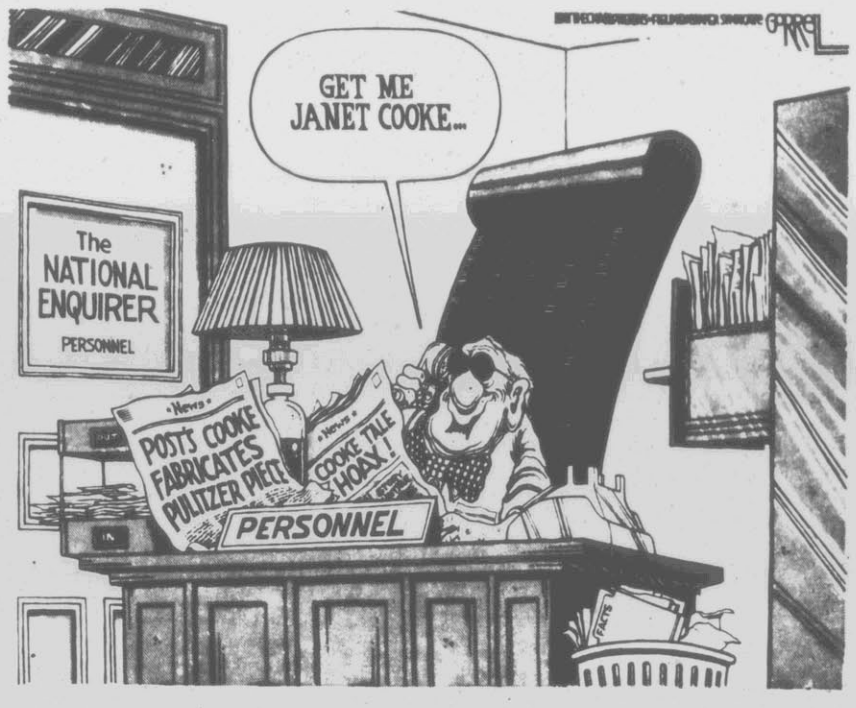

"I don't want a toothbrush. I want my luggage."

"Oh dear, I hate to see an astronaut cry, sir. Maybe Atlanta made a mistake and your bag was only sent to Mars. Then you'd get it back by next winter."

"What you're really trying to tell me is that you have no idea where my luggage is, and you just gave me this cock-and-bull story about it going to Venus to get rid of me."

"To be honest, it could have gone to Venus or Biloxi, Mississippi. When our people tag the luggage, they always get the two places mixed up."

Other Editors Say A Responsibility

Tarboro Daily Southerner

The first amendment to the U.S. Constitution protects free speech; it even protects a lot of irresponsible and indecent speech. It must do that in order not to set dangerous precedents which might make it possible to curtail responsible and decent criticism or commentary.

While the constitution may permit the uttering of stupid or vicious remarks, no newspaper need give staffers space to print such rubbish.

A University of Pennsylvania senior used space in the university paper to regret the amateurishness of President Reagan's would-be assassin. "I hope Reagan dies," he is quoted as having written.

One does not have to like Reagan to hate such writing. To espouse murder of a popuarly elected official is to deny the democratic process. What right has a single gunman to overturn the decision of the voters? Defending violence is to encourage it.

If a president is easily shot, and the shooting is applauded, why cannot anyone in authority be shot? Landlords, parents, school teachers all could be targets to those who are influenced by them.

The sadistic jerk who penned that comment has a right to his opinion, but no newspaper worthy of the name ought to have printed it, except as a quote within a news story. It should never have appeared as a comment by a staffer.

Analysts Hope For Clearer Picture

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometime this summer American consumers and producers are going to learn where those volatile, costly, hard-to-predict, near-record-high interest rates are headed.

And when they do, a now fuzzy economic portrait is going to assume the appearance of a sharply focused picture. Relatively speaking, anyway.

Right now the scene is cluttered up. The prime rate, falling since last December, recently reversed direction. Home mortgage rates are heading higher too. But some short-term Treasury bills have declined.

If you ask the people who make a living in those markets, you will find that their feelings are as mixed as the market's.

David Barry of Manufacturers Hanover Trust feels the prime rate may fall by summer, probably to 15 percent from its current 17.5 percent. Despite recent increases, Barry's expectation is widely shared.

So is the other view. Says William Sullivan Jr. of The Bank of New York, "...dramatic progress toward lower interest rates seems improbable, and continued challenges on the upside seem likely."

Such mixed markets and mixed feelings seldom persist very long, if only because economic decisions aren't indefinitely postponable. Sooner or later borrowers make decisions, and rates rise or fall.

Like some of their counterparts who deal with corporations, many home mortgage lenders feel a decision won't wait beyond this summer, and some are convinced that rates will fall. Both real estate organizations and the U.S. League of Savings Associations have such expectations.

Other researchers, such as Sindlinger & Co., a Media, Pa., data firm, think such notions are absurd. Sindlinger has gone so far as to refer to "any sucker who still thinks interest rates are to come down."

Sullivan observes that the pressure for higher rates will remain "as long as the markets are confronted with high inflation, a generally restrictive monetary policy and continued gains in economic activity."

So indistinct are the trends, however, that analysts reviewing the same material can see the economy moving in different directions.

At the investment firm of Goldman Sachs, for example, they see the economy "shifting to a slower growth path," with a "downshift" in housing, foreign trade, and possibly federal budgetary stimulus.

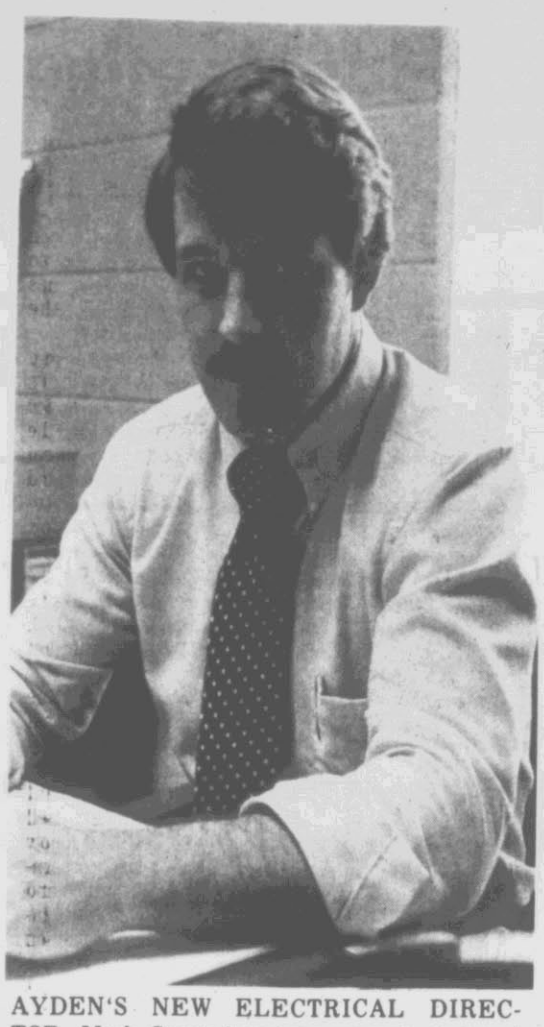

Because of this, Goldman Sachs feels "short- and long-term interest rates should fall below current levels sometime in the second quarter," although with "some upward pressure" in the second half

Nobody who makes a living is willing to go on record as saying he doesn't know what to expect, but that in essence is what the various analyses add up to. In fact, that is what the market has been saying.

The indistinct patterns, and the equally indistinct forecasts, reflect rather than foretell. Answers, when they come, will be based not so much on professional forecasts as on individual perceptions of how sound or dangerous the economy is, and how strong are the needs of borrowers.

This summer, the analysts are saying, could be when the minds of potential borrowers are made up — about the Reagan administration, about the economy, about their own pocketbooks and their own needs.

The current impasse cannot last, they say. And, many of them add, it won't. They expect the decision and the direction will come this summer.

AYDEN'S NEW ELECTRICAL DIRECTOR...Mark Suggs has been named electrical director for the town of Ayden, replacing Michael Finney who resigned to accept a similar position with the city of Washington. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

Ayden Names New Director

AYDEN — Mark Suggs has been named electrical director for the town of Ayden, replacing Michael Finney who resigned last month to accept a similar position with the city of Washington.

Suggs, a town employee since September, 1980, worked for Greenville Utilities as an engineering assistant for three years before coming to Ayden. Since September he has served as an intermediary between the electrical director's office and work crews.

The new director graduated from the two-year architectural drafting curriculum at Pitt Community College. His experience at Greenville Utilities included overhead distribution engineering layout.

Originally from Walstonburg, Suggs graduated from Greene Central High School in 1975. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M.L. Suggs Jr. He has been active in scouting, attaining the rank of Eagle Scout, and was a member of the local volunteer fire departemnt and rescue squad in Walstonburg.

"I feel Suggs' training and his prior experience with Greenville Utilities, as well as his work with the Ayden system for the last seven months makes him very well-qualified for this position," commented town manager Don Russell. "His work with us has given him an opportunity to see how our system, which is a little different from most, works, and has given him insight into our situation."

Suggs is married to the former Lura Murphrey of Farmville and they live near Bell Arthur.

Wrecks Cause Some Damages

An estimated $7,570 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 9:25 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Elm Streets, involving vehicles driven by Connie Rae Hardee of 105 South Warren St., and Bruce Earl Haddock of Route 1, Grimesland.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to the Hardee car and $1,500 to the Haddock truck by officers who charged Haddock with failing to stop for a red light.

A car driven by George Benjamin Rush of Sanford, and a motorcycle operated by Willie James Rogers Jr. of Route 8, Greenville, collided about 3:43 p.m. on Anderson Street, 150 feet south of the Tenth Street intersection, causing $250 damage to the car and $2,500 damage to the motorcycle.

Andrea Lee Bizzell of 400 Rotary Ave. was charged with driving under the influence, following investigation of an 11:57 p.m. mishap on Evans Street a tenth of a mile south of the 13th Street intersection.

Police reported Ms. Bizzell and a passenger in the car were injured when the vehicle left the roadway and struck a utility pole, causing an estimated $1,300 damage to the car and $20 damage to the pole.

Maynard Domenici," the chairman was livid. His letter to the editor published April 20 disavowed Keynesian taint and claimed suport for the president's program "in word and deed."

Stockman has devised a high-wire alternative for achieving a fiscal 1984 budget balance that does not sacrifice tax reduction. His sceme would cut another $20 billion, mainly by accouting devices (such as different economic assumptions regarding interest rates and defense spending rates). Another $20 billion would come on a promise for later cuts in Social Security outlays.

Stockman's plan reeks of gimmickry. But in truth, the whole notion of making precise budget projections for a budget over two years away is in the realm of entrail-reading. Stockman finds himself reduced to gimmicks to save the Reagan tax cut plan that he and other administration policy-makers feel is essential to ever achieve the economic growth needed to balance the budget.

While senior administration officials privately admit there will be a time some day soon to compromise, the compromise will not be to stretch out tax rate reduction but to hasten it. Armstrong is aware of this even if Domenici and his staff are not. "If the tax program is flawed," he told us, "it is not because of cutting too much, too soon, but in being too cautious."

Train Robber Is A Free Man

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Ronald Biggs, the British Great Train Robber, walked out of the Rio airport today a free man, with a guarantee from the Brazilian government that he can continue to reside in this South American country.

Biggs entered Brazilian territory in Belem, at the mouth of the Amazon River, in a chartered jet from the Caribbean island country of Barbados, where kidnappers took him last month, apparently in an attempt to get him extradited to Britain.

"I'm the happiest man in the world," Biggs said as he arrived here on a regular domestic commercial flight from Belem, 2,000 miles north of Rio. "Brazil is a wonderful country. I'm so happy to be back and to see my son again."

Biggs and his 6-year-old son, Michael, joined in an emotional, tearful embrace inside the Rio airport's baggage retrieval section. Dozens of reporters and photographers from all over the world pressed against the glass to document the reunion.

Michael brought his father an Easter egg he had painted. He also brought drawings done by him and his little Brazilian friends, which had sayings such as "We love you, Biggs" and "Welcome home, Ronald Biggs."

Biggs, who was wearing a plaid shirt and beige slacks, wedged his way into a car with Michael and a local couple who had been taking care of the boy, apparently headed for the couple's apartment in the city's beachfront Copacabana neighborhood.

As reporters shoved microphones and tape recorders into Biggs' face between the airport exit and the car, Biggs said he did not try to fight the group of men who snatched him from a Rio restaurant last month, "Because they threatened my son's life."

"What could I do?" Biggs asked.

Michael's mother is Brazilian and because of the child, Brazilian law protects Biggs from deportation. The mother works as a nightclub dancer in Switzerland, and Michael has been staying with a Rio couple since his father was kidnapped.

Brazilian authorities said Biggs would be allowed to return to his status of "provisional liberty," in which he is required to report periodically to police.

On Thursday after slipping through a loophole in Barbados' law that prevented his extradition to Britain, Biggs exclaimed, "It's back to Brazib! Champagne for everyone!"

The Barbados Supreme Court, overturning a lower court decision, ruled Thursday that the British fugitive could not be returned to Britain because the Barbados Parliament had not yet ratified an extradition treaty with the United Kingdom.

Britain asked for Biggs' extradition so he could finish serving 28 years of a 30-year sentence for his part in the 1963 robbery of $7.2 million from a London-Glasgow mail train.

The 51-year-old Briton, who escaped from a British prison in 1965, was kidnapped from a Rio bar by three former British soldiers who brought him to Bridgetown aboard a yacht in a kidnap-for-hire caper.

After the Barbados Supreme Court ruled in his favor, Biggs took refuge under tight security in the Brazilian Embassy to ward off any further attempts to return him to Britain — legal or otherwise.

Since Barbados is a Commonwealth nation, authorities said the court's decision could be appealed to London. But neither Barbados nor British authorities appeared eager to pursue the matter.

In London, a government spokesman said there was no official comment yet, but former Scotland Yard's Chief Detective Superintendent Jack Slipper, who chased Biggs for years, said he would have taken no satisfaction from having the fugitive returned after he was the victim of a kidnap.

"Common sense seems to have prevailed," Slipper said. "If we were going to accept a person being brought back after an offense committed on him, such as kidnapping, we would be opening the gates for all sorts of things in the future."

British newspapers displayed mixed reactions to the release.

Some front-page accounts today were light-hearted.

"He's done it again" headlined the Daily Mail.

"Oh, lucky Ron" exclaimed The Sun.

But an editorial in the Conservative Daily Express complained, "Is this the stuff of which heroes are made? If so, it is a sad comment on the basic values of those who make him one ... We refuse to join in making a folk hero out of this crook."

John Miller, the head of the British security firm paid to abduct Biggs, told The Sun of London that he was "delighted for Ronnie."

"There was never anything personal in our abduction of him," Miller said in a telephone interview from Los Angeles. "We did a professional job and we're all pleased he has given Scotland Yard the slip."

Two of the 14 gang members who staged the Great Train Robbery with Biggs said they were thrilled with his luck, and they said the gang members in Britain will be getting together to celebrate.

Another robber, Jimmy White, now a house painter, said, "When they (kidnappers) took on Ronnie Biggs they took on Dame Fortune — she's been courting Ronnie for years."

Roads Meeting

A public meeting will be held by the state Board of Transportation on the Transportation Improvement Program will be held here May 5 at 2 p.m. at the Willis Building at the intersection of First and Reade Streets, for counties in Highway Division 2.

The meeting, to reassess and reorder highway construction priorities in light of the limited financial resources, will update the TIP — the Department of Transportation's basic highway construction planning document — through 1987.

"We strongly urge the public to help us make a very careful review of the projects already in the 1980-86 TIP," DOT Secretary Tom Bradshaw said. "We want the people of the state to share with us their opinions on what our priorities ought to be in view of our funding crisis."

Protestant Extremists Threaten New Violence

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Protestant extremists angered by Roman Catholic rioting spurred by the death fast of a jailed Irish Republican Army member threatened today to retaliate against the IRA and its supporters.

The spread of Protestant backed murders of new sectarian violence in this British-ruled province, where Roman Catholic militants have pledged to unleash a campaign of terror if hunger striker Bobby Sands dies.

Sands was reported near death on the 59th day of his hunger strike in Maze Prison outside Belfast. Officials of Sinn Fein, the IRA's political front, said he could be gone by Monday.

Sands' family requested today the European Commission on Human Rights intervene and launch an investigation of prison conditions. Two member of the 21-member commission reportedly left from Strasbourg, France, today for London to assess the situation. However, Sands had said earlier that he could not see what good such intervention would have at this very late stage.

"The current situation is considered to be of such a serious nature that all personnel of the organizations have been put in a state of readiness," the Ulster Defense Association, largest of the Protestant street armies, said after forging a new alliance with four other rival groups in a secret summit meeting in Belfast.

The Protestant threat came after nine days of rioting in Belfast, Londonderry and other towns in support of IRA demands to end British rule in this predominantly Protestant province and unite it with the mainly Catholic Irish Republic to the south.

The Protestant statement was issued by the "Joint Army Council," which was said to represent the UDA and two outlawed organizations, the Ulster Volunteer Force and the Red Hand Commando, as well as the Orange Volunteers and former members of the "B" Specials, a force of police auxiliaries disbanded by the British in 1970 because of their anti-Catholic activities.

Altogether, the Protestant organizations can muster more than 15,000 men and are known to have sizable caches of arms across the province. They have claimed responsibility for killing scores of Catholics since sectarian bloodletting began here in August 1969.

The new alliance between the rival groups underlined the growing alarm among the province's 1 million-member Protestant majority over events in Northern Ireland, and their deepening distrust of the British, who have been improving their ties with the Irish Republic.

The Protestant move followed a flurry of last-minute efforts by Sands' supporters, including former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark, to mediate an end to the hunger strike "to the death."

Clark arrived in Belfast Thursday, along with the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, hoping to see Sands, but British authorities rejected their request, saying "it would serve no useful purpose."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy also appealed to Britain on Thursdy for "new and urgent efforts" to defuse the hunger strike crisis.

Sands, who was elected to the British Parliament from a Roman Catholic district on April 9, is demanding jailed IRA guerrillas be treated as political prisoners.

Conservative British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government has refused on grounds the guerrillas were jailed for common crimes. The showdown is widely seen as the ultimate test of Britain's will to stamp out terorism after 11½ years of conflict.

Sands' supporters today occupied the Irish Republic summer vacation home of the late Lord Mountbatten, the uncle of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II who was killed in 1979 by IRA terrorists.

The demonstrators moved into Classiebann Castle in County Sligo and unfurled banners backing Sands' demands for changes at the Maze Prison. There was no immediate move to evict them.

As tensions climbed, leaders of Ireland's four major churches appealed for an end to the hunger strike and the street violence.

"The explosive situation is building up and can only be exacerbated by further deaths, whether in prison or outside," they said in a statement.

It was signed by Catholic Cardinal Tomas O'Fiach, Anglican Archbishop John Armstrong, Methodist Rev. Sydney Callaghan and Presbyterian Minister Ronald Craig.

East Carolina Students Counseling Businesses

ECU News Bureau
Special to the Daily Reflector

Five area students in the East Carolina University School of Business are counseling small business firms in eastern North Carolina this semester. These business students are Robert Kittrell, Eva E. Pittman, Benjamin T. Singleton, Elizabeth A. Butler, and Robert Jones.

They are among 33 students currently involved in the ECU Small Business Institute, a program sponsored by the U.S. Small Business Administration. This program not only helps the businesses, but provides a valuable link between schools of business and the small businesses of the community — usually those with SBA loans.

At this time, the program involves 12 eastern North Carolina businesses including retailing, manufacturing, and service firms. Teams consisting of two or three ECU seniors furnish detailed management assistance and counseling to the participating firms — usually in the recordkeeping, selling, advertising, and management areas.

The student counselors assist the business owners to determine their problems; under the direction of Dr. R.B. Keusch of the ECU School of Business, the students make suggestions to overcome the problems of the businesses.

Since the start of the SBI program at East Carolina University seven years ago, East Carolina students have worked with over 180 firms. Further, the ECU-SBI program has won three awards in the last five years. Two awards were for the North Carolina SBA district, and the third award was for the entire Region IV consisting of eight southeastern states, in competition with 54 other universities.

"The businesses participate in the program voluntarily, and of course, our students may only advise. However, many of the recommendations of our student teams have been successfully put into practice in some manner," said Dr. Keusch.

Dean James H. Bearden of the ECU School of Business stated that the Small Business Institute has proved to be an asset to the community and is beneficial to the student counselors who work in the program. He said, "It should be noted that the students participating in the program gain valuable practical knowledge from the businessmen they work with, and also have a unique opportunity to utilize what they have learned in the classroom. At the same time, many business owners receive sound business expertise and counseling which they could not otherwise afford."

Interruption Is Planned

The Pitt-Greene Electric Membership Corp. said today that an interruption of service is planned for Sunday morning.

Officials said Carolina Power and Light Co. has requested the interruption, weather permitting, from 6:15 a.m. to 7:45 a.m. at the Davenport substation and from 6:15 a.m. until 9:15 a.m. at the Farmville substation.

The two substations supply the Davenport System around Snow Hill, Farmville, Walstonburg, Lindell and Peanut Crossroads.

Greenville In Top Ten In Construction

Greenville was one of ten North Carolina cities of more than 10,000 population recording construction activity exceeding $2 million in January, according to N.C. Labor Commissioner John Brooks.

Building value figures here for the first month of the year amounted to $2,131,718, Brooks' report indicated, compared with $1,058,178 reported in the previous month.

Construction activity in Pitt County during January totaled $2,289,718, including $847,750 for 25 single-family units, $991,000 for 40 multi-family units, $65,072 for four non-residential units, and $385,896 for 52 additions and alterations. The December total in Pitt was $1,311,032.

January totals in several neighboring cities, compared with December, included: Elizabeth City, $351,800, $241,100; Goldsboro, $524,400, $485,600; Jacksonville, $557,238, $872,170; Kinston, $166,900, $209,743; New Bern, $1,869,500, $196,075; Roanoke Rapids, $408,410, $1,844,973; Rocky Mount, $1,260,954, $711,319; Tarboro, $52,000, $186,200; and Wilson, $627,882, $638,801.

Brooks said Charlotte led individual cities during the month with $21,051,659, followed by Raleigh with $7,911,542, Asheville with $5,691,307, and Winston-Salem, $4,703,030. Durham and Greensboro recorded more than $3 million apiece, while Cary, Hickory and Wilmington joined Greenville with construction exceeding $2 million.

The commissioner noted that construction cost of a single-family home in the state averaged $42,286 in January, down 4.5 percent from the $44,289 average a year ago but still the highest recorded in the past six months.

Seminar Is Planned On Campus

ECU News Bureau

"Building Organizations through Personal and Professional Development," a one-day seminar for administrative and personnel assistants, training staff, office managers and secretaries, will be offered by the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education.

The program will be held in Greenville May 20 and in Fayetteville May 21.

Designed to build a more effective business team through personal and professional development, the program includes specific sessions on employee interaction, interpersonal skills, self-improvement and time management.

Participants will be involved in role-playing situations, open discussions and lectures.

The program is directed by J. Michael McDonald, teacher and consultant in professional development, who is currently an assistant professor of industrial management at Clemson University.

Further information about the program is available from "Building Organizations," Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville, N.C., 27834.

Biology Students At Meetings

ECU News Bureau

Advanced students in the ECU Department of Biology along with ECU faculty members reported on their research at two recent meetings.

Reporting at the annual meeting of the Association of Southeastern Biologists in Knoxville, Tennessee, were Milbrey Cate of Houston, Tex., and Linda Hemingway of Charlotte. Their research was carried out with Dr. Donald Jeffreys of the biology faculty and Dr. Bernard Kane of the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

Also reporting at the Knoxville meet was student E.D. Whedbee of Ahoskie. His project was supervised by Andrew Ash of the ECU biology faculty.

ECU's biology department was also represented by student scientists at the annual meeting of the N.C. Academy of Science in Charlotte.

Reports were given by Michael Bell of Greenville, E.H. Crumpler of Greenville; Pamela Ellis of Bynum, John Powell of Washington, Kim Smith of Roxboro and Barry Adams of Greenville.

Contest Set Saturday

The annual Miss College Bound Contest will be held Saturday at 8 p. m. in the Roxy Theater on Albemarle Avenue.

Twelve high school senior girls will participate.

The dance group from North Carolina Central University in Durham will present the program. Mrs. Nancy Pickney directs the groups.

The contestants will be escorted by their fathers. Each will receive a scolarship to the college of her choice. There is no admission and the public is invited, according to contest chairperson, Mrs. Rebecca Norcott.

Solicitations Requests OK'd

Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits in Greenville.

Cannon said the requests were submitted by: the Pitt County Law Enforcement Officers' Association to conduct a telephone solicitation from April 23 through June 15 to sell advertisements and tickets for a country-western show to raise funds for the association; and by Gamma Beta Phi Society to conduct a car wash on April 25 at the Plaza Shell Station on Greenville Boulevard to raise funds for the society's scholarship fund.

Lecture Set On Campus

ECU News Bureau

"History Under the Water" is the topic for a public lecture and visual presentation of East Carolina University, Monday, April 27, by Gordon Watts, North Carolina's underwater archaeologist.

Watts, who has directed numerous expeditions to locate and recover sunken artifacts, particularly Civil War ships and relics, will speak in room B-102 of the Brewster Building on 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cooler weather is expected in the forecast period Friday until Saturday morning for the Northwest and Northeast. Most of the country is expected to have warm weather. Rain is forecast for northern New England. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press

Showers and some thunderstorms covered the Pacific Northwest and the Atlantic Coast early today.

There also were some widely scattered thunderstorms over southern Texas. Light snow fell over parts of the western Great Lakes.

Rain was expected to extend from New England into Delaware and will reach across the lower Great Lakes and from Michigan through much of Kentucky.

Thunderstorms will be possible across northern Florida and southern Texas. And showers will be scattered from western Montana across Idaho, Nevada and the Northwest Coast.

Temperatures ahead of the nation at 1 a.m. EST ranged from 27 in Grand Forks, N.D., to 79 in Phoenix, Ariz.

Here are the high weather reports from cities around the nation:

Western U.S. — Albuquerque 56 fair. Anchorage 41 cloudy. Los Angeles 59 hazy. Phoenix 79 fair. Salt Lake City 52 fair. San Francisco 53 fair. Seattle 49 rain.

Canada — Montreal 41 rain. Toronto 43 foggy.

Hobby Wants Tapes, Records

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Attorneys for state AFL-CIO president Wilbur Hobby, seeking evidence to defend him against fraud and conspiracy charges, are asking for records and tapes of the Congressional Club and two local television stations.

The Congressional Club and Capitol Broadcasting Co., which owns WRAL-TV in Raleigh, are challenging the request as "unreasonable, oppressive and too broad." WTVD in Durham has not responded.

A hearing on the motions is scheduled for today in U.S. District Court in Raleigh.

A federal grand jury indicted Hobby, an associate and a state manpower planner in February in connection with alleged misuse of federal job-training funds by Hobby's printing company. All three have pleaded innocent.

Hobby's trial is scheduled for June 8 in Raleigh.

Attorneys Donald H. Beskind of Durham and David S. Rudolf of Chapel Hill requested copies of television and printed advertisements funded by the conservative Congressional Club in an election attack on the administration of Gov. Jim Hunt.

The commercials outlined Hobby's contracts with the state for Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds and asked, "Was this a political payoff?"

Beskind and Rudolf also asked for any letters, handbills or documents distributed by the club that concern Hobby or the CETA contracts.

A Congressional Club attorney responded with a court document that said the request violates a contractual obligation of the club not to disclose its contributors. It said the request "chilled" the First Amendment rights of speech and association.

This month, Hobby's attorneys requested a hearing to determine whether grand jurors were biased by the club's television commercials.

The attorneys also asked that the television stations provide video and audio tapes, along with scripts of newscasts dealing with Hobby, CETA contracts and any other related person, business or subject.

They asked the stations for records of the frequency of the broadcasts and the estimated number of viewers.

A lawyer for the Capitol Broadcasting Co. said the request violates the station's First and Fourteenth Amendment rights and is "oppressive and unreasonable" in that it would require weeks of preparation.

WTVD news director Edward R. Warwick said the station has not decided what action it would take.

Time To Tell After Operation

ESC Manager Says Not Out Of Business

Jim Hannon, manager of the Employment Security Commission office in Greenville, said at least four applicants told him Thursday they had been told the ESC was going out of business.

"That is not so," Hannon said. "We will remain staffed adequately to do the job services we have performed in the past. We have received this information from applicants and we wish to disspell any question whatsoever at this time. We will remain in business."

An official of a newly formed computerized employment agency acknowledged Thursday that it has told applicants they would be laid off if they sought jobs at the ESC.

Andrea Thomas, general business manager of Thomas & Thomas, blamed the advice on a misunderstanding of a television news report about cutbacks due to budget-slashing efforts.

"We thought we were going on reliable information," Ms. Thomas said.

She said her agency was formed two months ago.

Agency Sets Monthly Meet

The monthly meeting of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency will be held May 13 at 7:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn.

Included on the agenda is the confirmation of new governing body members and project review action on a proposed expansion of ancillary departments at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The ECHSA Project Review Committee will also meet May 13. That meeting is set for 5 p.m. at the Ramada Inn.

A 30-minute public hearing on projects will begin at 4:30 p.m.

Information of projects scheduled for review at the session may be secured by calling 758-1373, or write Director of Project Review, Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency, P.O. Drawer 7306, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

BOARD TO MEET

The Pitt County Board of Social Services will meet Monday at 12 noon at the Three Steers Restaurant on Memorial Drive.

The regular meeting is open to the public.

Officer Says Funds Invested

Al Averette, city finance officer, reported that the city's investment program is saving the citizens of Greenville tax dollars.

Averette said the [illegible] earned $12[illegible] since July by investing [illegible]. He noted that the [illegible] earned on investments [illegible] equivalent to three cents [illegible] the 1980-81 tax rate.

The finance officer [illegible] noted that in [illegible] earned approximately $149,800 from [illegible] representing four cents [illegible] the 1979-80 tax rate.

Averette said money earned on investing city funds goes in the general fund budget and is used to operate city departments.

28 Inmates Graduated

The 21st class of graduates of the Pre-Release tercare program [illegible] from a four week [illegible] noon on Wednesday. [illegible] graduation class of 28 inmates was hosted by Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church and was coordinated by Mrs. Martha Dixon. Bishop W. Jones gave the invocation. E. Hemby opened the program with a welcome to the inmates and their families and a luncheon was prepared by the ladies of the church.

Jack E. Kannan, personnel director of Dewey Brothers Inc. of Goldsboro was the guest speaker. Kannan is currently vice-president of Wayne County Personnel Association, chairman of the Governor's Advisory Council for Youthful Offenders and he also works on various other committees and advisory groups throughout Wayne County and North Carolina.

He spoke to the graduates about setting goals for themselves and taking steps to reach their goals, emphasizing the importance of a positive attidude towards work and the willingness to help oneself.

Priest's Silence Earns Contempt Fine

BARNSTABLE, Mass. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest has been fined $1 after being held in contempt of court for refusing to reveal details of a conversation he had with a man accused of beating a 2-year-old boy to death.

The Rev. William Costello termed the fine "a small price to pay to safeguard the secrecy of the confessional and the confidentiality of priestly advice," the Rev. Peter Conley, a spokesman for the Boston diocese, said Wednesday.

Costello, chaplain at Sturdy Memorial Hospital in Attleboro, Mass., refused to describe a conversation he had last May with Peter Kane, who is accused in the beating death of 2-year-old Robert Amorin of North Attleboro.

The conversation took place the night the youngster was taken unconscious to the hospital. He died a week later in a Rhode Island hospital.

The boy's mother, who lived with Kane, was convicted of manslaughter earlier this year in the case. Kane is on trial for murder.

Costello told the court earlier this week that he would not disclose what Kane had told him during the conversation at the hospital. He did, however, report on other conversations when a third party was present.

"According to the law of the church, I feel I cannot answer that question," Costello said. "I feel my responsibility as a Roman Catholic priest is to maintain confidentiality."

Superior Court Judge Robert S. Prince levied the fine Tuesday after he held the priest in contempt. He banned Costello and others in the diocese from discussing the case.

Under Catholic law, a priest who reveals information obtained in a confessional faces excommunication from the church and suspension of all duties.

Rev. Dennis Burns, president judge of the church's metropolitan tribunal in Boston, said Wednesday that private conversations are treated differently by the church but still are considered confidential. He said church law doesn't expressly forbid priests from divulging confidential conversations, but said he would advise against it.

Religious Roundup

NEW YORK (AP) The United Methodist Church's world division has adopted guidelines that in cases of kidnapping of overseas personnel "no ransom will be authorized."

Such a reponse would place "in jeopardy all personnel and programs of the church," the guidelines say.

The guidelines, subject to review by legal counsel and approval of overseas missionaries, are similar to those recently adopted by the Southern Baptist Foreign Missions Board.

The church positions came in the wake of the recent kidnapping and subsequent killing in Colombia of an American linguist of the Wycliff Bible translators.

The Methodist guidelines say the world division would work jointly with local leaders in any country concerned in "seeking a solution to the problem" and would "rely on local leadership to determine the motives" of any kidnappers and to suggest alternative solutions to paying ransom.

The world division would notify families of hostages, "requesting their cooperation in an emergency" and would "be in active and prayerful supportive community with personnel held hostage, and with their families, as release of personnel is sought through all appropriate channels," the guidelines say.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Rev. Murdale C. Leysath has been elected minister of the United Church of Christ Minnesota Conference, the first woman to hold a top state office in the denomination.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An Islamic scholar, S. Hossein Nasr of Temple University, has been chosen to deliver the famous Gifford Lectures April 27 to May 15 at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland.

He says his theme in 10 lectures will be "the relationship between knowledge and the sacred," tracing "the process whereby knowledge became separated from the sacred in the West, in contrast to all other civilizations, especially those of Asia."

Nasr, born in Iran, is the first Moslem named to give what is considered the world's most famous lecture series in philosophy and religion. Being picked for that role is sometimes compared to winning a Nobel prize in theology. The series was established in the late 19th century.

PINEVILLE, La. (AP) — "Today's world is perishing for want of moral order in its soul," the head of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission said in a recent lecture to Louisiana College students.

The Rev. Foy Valentine said unless churches get more serious about recovering and communicating moral values, Western civilization cannot survive the current moral anarchy.

DENVER (AP) — A coalition of religious and other groups opposed to nuclear weapons plans rallies, marches and other events in cities across the country this weekend under the banner of "Freeze the Arms Race."

The actions, scheduled in about 60 cities in about 25 states, call for a halt to further testing, producing and deployment of nuclear weapons system by the United States and the Soviet Union and resumption of arms-control negotiations.

Simultaneously, churches and synagogues in many cities are observing "Peace Sabbath" this weekend, urging a change in policies seen as emphaszing military solutions rather than political-economic solutions.

At New York's Riverside Church, the Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr. said the Reagan administration plans to increase military spending by 50 percent during the next five years, getting the money by cutting social services for the poor.

"The American government is becoming a Robin Hood in reverse — robbing the poor to feed the military," Coffin said.

Harvard University theologian Harvey Cox, in a prepared sermon for Sunday, said, "It is time to say 'no'. We have had enough of this plummeting plunge toward nuclear oblivion."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted aimlessly today, continuing its recent indecisive pattern.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about an 8-7 margin in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

But the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 1.44 to 1,008.83 by noontime.

Analysts noted some encouragement over recent evidence that inflationary pressures might be easing.

Thursday morning the government reported that the rise of the consumer price index slowed to 0.6 percent in March.

But they also noted some persistent skepticism among investors. They pointed out that the bond market, which presumably should rally strongly on good inflation news, remains depressed.

Bankamerica was the volume leader, up ⅛ at 25⅜ in trading that included a 500,000-share block at 25.

Citicorp, also active rose ½ to 25. Earlier this week both bank holding companies reported higher first-quarter earnings.

Energy issues continued their recent slump amid forecasts of a drop in spot oil prices. Cities Service lost ½ to 44⅝; Standard Oil of Indiana ⅞ to 58⅜, and Texaco ⅛ to 34¼.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .06 to 77.32. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.83 at 358.74.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 26.71 million shares at noontime, against 28.15 million at the same point Thursday.

On handling the economy, 52 percent of those surveyed said Reagan's work has been excellent or good, 27 percent said only fair and 11 percent poor.

On foreign policy, 51 percent percent gave Reagan's efforts top marks. Twenty-nine percent said his work was only fair and 8 percent said poor.

In dealing with Congress, 62 percent rated Reagan's work good or excellent. About a quarter — 24 percent — judge it only fair and 5 percent rated it poor. In each case the remainder were not sure.

The public also likes Reagan's dealings with the Soviet Union. Seventy percent said Reagan had set the right tone in dealing with the Soviets, while 14 percent said he has not been tough enough and 5 percent said he has been too tough.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC News polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,600 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of such chance variations. That is, if one could have talked to all Americans in the country with telephones last week, there is only one chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for a number of other reasons, including differences in the exact wording of questions, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing.

Deodorizer Termed 'Safe'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new carpet deodorizer that is safe around children and pets is made from a special grade of 100 percent pure, large grain baking soda. The product is packed in a shaker-top box. Investigating Fighter Crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force board is investigating the April 15 crash of an F-4 Phantom jet fighter plane into the Gulf of Mexico during an exercise in which four of the fighters fired air-to-air missiles for target practice, a spokesman said today.

Maj. Bob Nicholson, the spokesman, said the Air Force would not comment on speculation that the F-4 might have been shot down by one of the other planes engaged in what was called a "weapons system evaluation program" flying out of Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

The two members of the downed F-4 fighter parachuted and were rescued from the water, Nicholson said.

He said in exercises of this kind air-to-air missiles are fired carrying inert, or non-explosive, warheads.

Investigating boards normally take about 60 days in such investigations, Nicholson said.

The F-4 was one of three Air Force planes lost over the Gulf within the past couple of weeks. Nicholson said there was no connection among the incidents and that none of the crewmen were hurt or lost.

An F-16 fighter plane flying out of MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Fla., went down in the Gulf during a training mission, Nicholson said, and a T-33 trainer plane flying out of Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla., crashed during a flight in which a new pilot was being checked out.

'Used' Space Ship Is Passed To New Crew

By The Associated Press

Astronauts John Young and Bob Crippen are passing their "used" spaceship Columbia to a new crew, unofficially ending a three-year association with the craft that often tried their patience before earning their glowing respect.

"I hope you take care of it," Young said Thursday as he and Crippen transferred Columbia's "key" at a news conference in Houston.

The new commander couldn't resist kidding Young, the 50-year-old veteran of five space trips.

"Would you buy a used spaceship from this man?" asked Joe Engle. "It's been driven only by an old guy from Florida, who didn't go more than 20,000 miles an hour, and it has only 900,000 miles on it."

Young and Crippen set the tone for the conference, interlacing a series of jokes and one-liners with their reports of Columbia's "phenomenal" performance on its maiden flight earlier this month.

They had a right to be relaxed and relieved. For all those years they had watched and waited, sweating out one space shuttle problem after another — little technical things at first, then the engines, then the thermal tiles.

The launch date, originally set for March 1979, slipped — and slipped — and slipped.

Finally, two years late, Columbia roared into orbit on April 12. After 54½ virtually flawless hours, Young and Crippen brought it back to a picture-perfect landing on an arid runway in California's Mojave Desert.

The world's first reflyable spaceship was back on Earth, to be refurbished and taken up again.

"It worked like a dream all the way," Crippen said Thursday. "John and I just sat back and enjoyed it."

Young, the normally taciturn commander, couldn't contain the superlatives. As he described the performance of each of the systems, he spilled out "superb ... fantastic ... terrific ... remarkable."

Since their return to Earth, they have been closeted with the experts, discussing the flight in detail. They will be called on for more information, and there will be a trip to the White House and other public appearances.

But when they turned in their pilots' reports and held the news conference at the Johnson Space Center on Thursday, it was an unofficial end of their association with Columbia.

They signified that when they summoned the spaceship's second crew, Engle and Richard Truly, to the stage and presented them with a large gold-painted key with "Columbia" stamped on it.

The second flight is scheduled in September.

"We have only one spacecraft right now and we have to take turns flying it," Young told them. "I hope you take care of it."

Young and Crippen also said they're getting in line for another flight — if not on Columbia, one of three other shuttles now planned, Challenger, Atlantis and Discovery.

"I'd love to go up again," Crippen said.

Young said the shuttle fleet is going to make a lot of things possible in space, and he wants to be part of them. Meanwhile, he has returned to his old desk job as chief of the astronaut office.

With only minor problems to report, the astronauts showed movies and slides of their trip and answered questions about the view.

"It was so beautiful, it's too difficult to describe," Crippen said.

"Seventy-two sunrises and sunsets in 2½ days is what makes space flight really exciting," Young stated.

And, no, they weren't concerned when they saw that a handful of the 30,922 thermal tiles had been damaged on the top of the tail section.

Crippen said one problem they had — the loss of their commode four hours before the flight's end — would definitly have to be corrected.

"There will be people going up there for a week before long, and they're going to need a commode," he said.

Crippen, asked why his heart beat soared to 130 while Young's registered only 85, during the liftoff, replied: "I was excited. I had waited so long, and here it was."

Young, the cool one, commented: "What you don't understand is that I was excited, too. I just can't make my heart beat any faster."

They beamed a slide of a picture they snapped of Tehran from 172 miles up and said they planned to send autographed prints to the 52 Americans once held hostage there, "to show them a picture of their former hometown."

Asked to compare Columbia's runway touchdown with his watery splashdowns in the Gemini and Apollo programs, Young cracked: "Land landings are smoother than water landings, and you don't have to swim as far."

The U.S. Virgin Islands — purchased from Denmark in 1917 — have flown seven flags in the course of their history.

Since 1960, the output per hour worked in agriculture has risen 172 percent, or nearly three times as much as in nonfarm business.

Purple And Gold Game: It's Beans For Losers

By John Stallings
Special To The Reflector

Yesterday afternoon as East Carolina University's Golf team was running through final preparations for tomorrow night's spring game, the Purple team decided to take a jaunt — through the middle of the Gold's practice session.

There was much bantering and the impression was left thatthe 7:30 p.m. Saturday affair at Ficklen Stadium will be highly competitive, not just another workout.

That's the ways ECU head coach Ed Emory wants it and planned it. Rather than run a controlled scrimmage, the second-year head man likes the added spice of game situation. With braggin rights, a steak dinner and 11 vacated starting slots, Emory expects some outstanding individual performances.

The game atmosphere will exist for the fans as well. The ECU pep band and the cheerleading squad will be on hand.

Prior to the game, a one-hour photo-autograph session will be held on the Ficklen turf with players on hand in uniform. The session begins at 5 p.m. Admission to the session and the game is free.

If pride does not drive some of Emory's young players, hunger may. The winners of the game get a steak dinner — served to them by the losing team. The losing team? It gets a bean dinner.

When the Pirate seniors drafted their squad last week, their picks transcended the realm of football players and coaches. The local media was split and given honorary coaching positions. Daily Reflector sports editor Woody Peel will be a Gold squad coach — from the press box.

On the field, coaches expect to see quick, aggressive defense and some powerful blocking up front on offense.

Wright Anderson's Gold defense will be led by Fee Griffin, tackles George Crump and Hal Stephens, junior transfer defensive end Jody Schultz and defensive backs Chuck Bishop, Freddie Jones, Marvin Elliott and Smokey Norris.

The Purple defense of Norm Parker features noseguard Wally Myers, linebackers Ronald and Donald Reid, formerly of Farmville Central, defensive end Jeff Pegues and cornerback Gerald Sykes.

The defense in spring drills showed one overriding quality — speed. Emory has said this is "the fastest defensive football team that (he's) ever been associated with." He cane put a starting lineup on the field that averages less than 4.8 in the 40-yard dash.

Offensively, regular quarterback Greg Stewart, who finished the 1980 season after Carlton Nelson was knocked out of action, will control the Purple attack. The sohomore will have Earnest Byner and Harold Blue at halfbacks and Roy Willey at fullback.

Converted quarterback John Felton at split end and returning starter Norwood Vann at tight end will be Stewart's primary targets.

Sophomore quarterback Jeff Neale, who climbed through the pack duringthe spring, will handle the the Gold offense. His backs will not have the experience of the Purple backs. Sophomore Errick Redmond and junior Leon Lawson are the best bets for a long run for the Gold.

Reurning starter Larry O'Roark is at split end and Will Saunders and Steve Hamilton will play tight end.

Senators Bury ECU, 12-5

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina learned quickly what kind of game it was going to be last night. On the very first pitch of the game, Davis & Elkins' Mike Ryan slammed the ball up the alley in right center for a double.

From there on for the Pirates it was downhill.

The Senators jumped on starter Rob Harper for four runs before chasing him with just one out. They finished the first frame with six runs and were on their way to record what became a 12-5 victory over the Pirates.

East Carolina could never get things on track in the game, although the Pirates finally ended up with five runs.

"I've got a little sympathy for our regular position players," Coach Hal Baird said. "They played hard, but we were at the end of the pitching line — at the bottom of the barrel. We were hoping to get some good games from Harper, but it just didn't turn out that way tonight.

"We were hoping that we could hang in there for most of the way and make it close," Baird added.

He also noted that the pitching problems caused him to pull out reliever Rick Ramey after the sixth. "We just wanted to keep him as fresh as we can and hope to get some more pitches out of him later on.

"We're just one pitcher short really. When we made this schedule (15 games in 12 days), we thought that we'd have five to come through for us."

It became quickly obvious that Davis & Elkins, now 19-2-1 on the year, was on top of its game from the start, scoring six quick runs.

After Ryan doubled, Lonnie Fansler walked. Then, after a fly out, Bob Makar singled in Ryan. Rob Gilray walked and that brought on Ramey. Craig Bills reached on an error, scoring Fansler, and a passed ball let Makar score. Mark Goddard finished up the inning's scoring with a three-run homer over the fence in dead center.

The Senators added one in the fifth. Makar reached on a fielder's choice, moved up on a hit and an error and scored on Goddard's sacrifice fly.

Three more crossed in the sixth. Pitcher Rob Diaz singled and Fansler got a hit, with an error on the play allowing the lead runner to score as Fansler raced to third. Makar drove in Fansler with a single, and moved up on a hit by Gilray, scoring when Bills singled.

The final two came in the ninth. Diaz singled, moving up on an out and scoring on a hit by Fansler. Tim Wharton tripled, scoring Fansler.

East Carolina was stymied by good fielding by the Senators, and good pitching by Diaz — the regular center fielder making only his second start: both victories.

One of the twin killings probably saved a run in the fourth. With Todd Hendley on second after a double, Kelly Robinette hit a ball that looked like it would get through, but Fansler made a diving catch, rolled over and jumped up to tag second, doubling off Hendley.

The Pirates avoided a shutout in the fifth. Mike Sorrell singled and went to third on a pickoff error by Diaz. He scored on a wild pitch.

Three scored in the seventh. Fran Fitzgerald singled and courtesy runner Mark Shank moved to third when Robert Wells hit a ground-ruled double. John Hallow then cracked a homer to right.

The other run came in the bottom of ninth, as Wells walked, moved up on an out and a wild pitch and scored on Hallow's sacrifice fly.

The Pirates, who got nine hits, were led by Todd Evans and Wells with two each. Hallow, only one for two, had four rbi's.

Fansler and Bills, with three hits each, led Davis & Elkins, while Makar and Gilray each had two. The Senators had 16 hits.

The loss dropped the Pirates down to 27-11 on the year, and Baird still feels the Pirates have an outside chance at an NCAA bid. "I don't think this loss will have any more effect than any other loss. We've got to win 30 and have 11 or 12 losses. It's going to be tough, and we have some strong opponents coming up. Wilmington (UNC-W) is red-hot now, and (North) Carolina is going to be strong too."

East Carolina continues its final home stand today, hosting UNC-Charlotte at 3 p.m. today. UNC-Wilmington is here Saturday at 7 p.m. and on Sunday at 1 p.m. The final home game is Monday at 7 p.m. against N.C. Wesleyan.

Rose, Jaguars In Finals

Baker's 2-Out Single Gives Farmville Win

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

The 1981 baseball season has been one of struggle for both D.H. Conley and Farmville Central. The struggle continued Thursday night.

In a game that won't be remembered for its outstanding fielding plays, each team committed six errors and combined for four wild pitches and two passed balls.

What this game will be remembered for is this: The Vikings scoring three runs in the top of the seventh to tie the game just one inning after the Jaguars had scored a run that put them on top by three.

Most of all, however, the game will be remembered for this: Farmville Central second baseman Alvin Baker looping a two-out single down the right field line to score Joey Steppe with the winning run to give the Jaguars a 7-6 win over the Vikings in the second round of the Pitt County Baseball Tournament.

The win moves Farmville Central into the tournament finals tonight at 7:30 against Greenville Rose, a 5-0 winner over North Pitt Thursday. D.H. Conley was to have played North Pitt for third place at 2:30.

"We really stunk it up tonight out there," D.H. Conley coach Ritchie Wynns said. "We made a lot of multiple-base errors and its hard to score enough runs to overcome that.

"I don't mind losing, but I hate to lose like this. What it comes down to is with two outs they had their number nine batter up and we needed to get him out and we didn't."

With two gone and Steppe on second after a fielder's choice and David Cherry's single, Baker came to the plate. In three previous appearances, Baker had sacrificed, grounded out and walked.

The first pitch was a high fast ball that

4-Run Fifth Paces Rampants By N. Pitt

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Greenville Rose used much the same formula, with a bit of variation on the timing, to subdue a stubborn North Pitt team Thursday night in the second round of the Pitt County Baseball Tournament.

On Wednesday, the Rampants used a first-inning home run by Roger Williams and an eight-run sixth inning to power their way to a 9-0 victory over Williamston in the opening round of the tournament.

Last night, the home run came one inning later and the outburst — this time a four-run package — one inning earlier to defeat the Panthers, 5-1, and advance into tonight's championship game.

The Rampants, now 13-1, face Farmville Central, a 7-6 winner over D.H. Conley last night, at 7:30 p.m. for the tournament title. North Pitt, now 8-8, was to have played D.H. Conley at 2:30 for third place.

"I'm proud of the effort we got today even though we made some mistakes on things that we had practiced on," North Pitt coach Pat Smith said. "We had our chances but just couldn't get a hit when we needed it.

"Of course, they've got a good ballclub and they capitalized on our mistakes. I don't think they let us get away with a mistake today."

One day earlier it was the same story. Williamston trailed by only one going into the sixth but committed three errors in the inning, all of which the Rampants used to spark their eight-run outburst.

One day later and one inning earlier it was deju vu for Rose. Ahead 1-0 going into the fifth, Rose took advantage of two North Pitt miscues to tally four runs and take command of a game that the Panthers wanted dearly.

"People say that taking advantage of other team's mistakes is a sign of a good team,"

Bears Down Tigers On 10th-Inning HR

Tommy Best's two-run home run in the bottom of the 10th inning gave New Bern a 10-8 victory over Williamston Thursday afternoon in the second round of the Pitt County Baseball Tournament.

With two gone in the 10th and Timmy Jones on first with a fielder's choice, Best connected on a shot that easily cleared the left field fence, a distance of about 330 feet away, to give the Bears the win.

Only three innings earlier the Tigers looked like the winners. With the score tied at 4-4, Williamston pushed across three runs in the sixth to take the lead.

Victor Thomas walked to lead off the sixth and moved to second on Tim Hines' single. Gray Thomas then reached on a fielder's choice when the throw to third was late.

After two outs, Greg Johnson sent a grounder to the left side that the second baseman misplayed and when the Bears finally retrieved the ball three Tigers had scored.

The Bears, however, rebounded to score three runs of their own in the bottom of the sixth. Harvey Case doubled, pinch hitter George Gray and Roy Davis walked to load the bases.

Pete Hardee then singled home one run and Ricky Hardee with a single to score Gray and Davis and the score was tied at 6-6.

The Tigers, now 5-9, loaded the bases in both the seventh and eighth and the Bears did the same in the seventh but neither team could score. Finally, in the bottom of the seventh the Bears won on Best's two-run shot.

Williamston opened the game with a three-run first on Victor Thomas' three-run home run with Ed Pippin and James Clemmon aboard.

The Bears cut the deficit to one, 3-2, with two runs in the bottom of the inning but Williamston added a run in the second for a 4-2 lead. The Bears tied the game in the fifth only to have the Tigers, on Phil Peaks double, which scored Gray Thomas, regain the lead, 5-4, in the sixth.

Fitch: Have To Do Unto 76ers As They Did To Us

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Boston Coach Bill Fitch knows all too well the challenge facing his team tonight when the Celtics take on the Philadelphia 76ers in the third game of their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference final.

"We have to do unto them as they did unto us in Boston Tuesday night," said Fitch, referring to Philadelphia's 105-104 victory in the series opener that took the homecourt advantage away from the Celtics.

"Once they had achieved what most teams usually try for in the early part of a series, which is a split of the first two games on the road, the pressure shifted onto us. We had to win the next game," added Fitch.

That they did, leading from wire to wire in a 118-99 romp Wednesday night that left 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham shaking his head.

"They just outplayed us in all phases of the game," he said. "I didn't like the way we lost. If we play in Philly the same way, we're gonna get beat."

If that happens, it will be Boston's first victory here in its last 10 visits and will continue the unusual success of road teams during postseason play. To date, road teams have compiled a 22-17 postseason record after being able to win just 38 percent of the regular season games.

The best-of-seven series continues here Sunday afternoon. Fitch is hopeful of winning at least one of these two games to avoid facing a must-win situation when the series goes back to Boston Wednesday night.

The Celtics' Larry Bird has been brilliant, scoring 68 points and grabbing 26 rebounds while playing the entire first game and all but seven minutes of the second. Caldwell Jones and Bobby Jones, Philadelphia's two best defensive players, have thus far been unable to contain the Boston's second-year star forward.

At the other end of the floor, Philadelphia's Julius Erving has had one good game and one bad one. He contributed 25 points, nine rebounds and some brilliant passing to the 76ers' victory in the opener, but was limited to a quiet 12 points in Game 2 by Boston's Cedric Maxwell and Kevin McHale.

Besides getting more offense from Erving and point guard Maurice Cheeks, who has just 11 points and 10 assists for the two games, Philadelphia must also keep its two big men, Darryl Dawkins and Caldwell Jones, out of foul trouble. Without that "Gruesome Twosome," the 76ers don't have the muscle to cope with Boston's improved inside game, which is led by forwards Bird, Maxwell and McHale and centers Robert Parish and Rick Robey.

Tonight's intangible is Boston's inability to win at the Spectrum since Jan. 20, 1979, a nine-game losing streak the Celtics have tried to play down.

K.C. Out To 'Picket' Murphy, Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — The Kansas City Kings' defense couldn't have been more effective if Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons had put a picket fence around Houston's Calvin Murphy and guarded Moses Malone with the Third Army.

The third game of their National Basketball Association Western Conference final resumes here tonight and Houston Coach Del Harris says the Rockets can't afford a repeat of Wednesday night's 88-79 loss.

"The big story was that we shot 27 percent in the second half and we went through the entire San Antonio series shooting 52 per cent," Harris said of the loss, which evened the best-of-seven series at 1-1.

Fitzsimmons kept running in fresh troops against Malone and when those got tired he'd send in another regiment. Second year forward Reggie King may receive a battlefield promotion for his defensive work on Malone.

"It's the first time I've ever guarded Moses, and it was no picnic," King said. "I didn't guard Moses by myself. I fronted him, and the other guys helped from behind. You have to hit Moses before he hits you. He's awfully strong, awfully big, not just tall."

Sam Lacey and Leon Douglas also contributed to Malone's frustrating evening.

"It's going to be a great series," Lacey said. "It's not over by a longshot. We've got three more to win and they've got three more to win."

The Kings' strategy would not have worked, Harris said, if another Rocket had a hot hand.

"If (Robert) Reid or anybody else was having a good night, they couldn't lay back and zone up on Mo and concentrate on Murphy," Harris said. "If the other guys are having a decent night we are all right."

The Kings played only seven men Wednesday night, including guard Phil Ford, appearing in only his second game since Feb. 22. Ford had been sidelined with blurred vision after undergoing eye surgery.

"I took my time and tried to get into the flow of the game instead of trying to force things," Ford said. "It was a great team game. I'm just happy that we won. Everybody did a great job, offensively and defensively."

The Rockets will be trying to overcome the homecourt "disadvantage" against the Kings. In 24 playoff games, Houston and Kansas City together have won only four home games.

Farmville Nips DHC...

Baker chopped at, missing badly. The next pitch, however, he poked to left field for a single. DHC leftfielder Keith Mills retrieved the ball quickly and threw home.

Catcher Chris Buck swung his glove around in an attempt to tag Steppe, but the Farmville third baseman slid home safely and the Jaguars had advanced to the tournament finals and upped their record to 7-8. D.H. Conley is now 7-8 also.

"It was an outside fastball and I went with the pitch," Baker said of his game-winning hit. "He (Coach Carl Brock) told me to keep my head up because I had swung at a bad pitch before that. I just kept my head up and swung at it."

"I'm real happy for the kids," Brock said. "We've had to struggle all year and we've had some tough losses. I'm just glad to make to the finals."

The Jaguars almost found themselves in the third place game. Two times the Jaguars lost leads on this night. Behind 3-1 after three, Conley rallied for two runs in the fourth for a tie. Behind 6-3 after six innings, the Vikings did it again, tying the game with a three-run seventh.

With one gone, Jeff Cox singled and went to second when Sammy Tucker walked. After both runners moved up a base on a wild pitch, Doug McRoy reached on a throwing error by Steppe at third to score Cox.

Todd Rouse then doubled down the third baseline to score Tucker and McRoy and the game was tied at 6-6. Rouse was later picked off second and Emory Vines popped out to the shortstop to end the inning, but not the game. Baker did that moments later with his single.

•

D.H. Conley broke on top first with a run in the third when Tucker hit an 0-2 pitch for a single to score Lassiter, who had singled to open the inning and moved to second on a wild pitch.

Farmville countered with three runs in the bottom half of the inning. Cherry walked to lead off and moved to second on Baker's sacrifice bunt.

Greg Hardison, who was three for four on the evening, then singled Cherry to third and stole second. When the throw was bobbled by Lassiter, Cherry scored.

Hardison came home moments later when Bobby Avery reached on an error by Cox at third. When Cox missed the throw from right fielder Ken Holland, Avery rounded third and scored to give Farmville a 3-1 lead.

The Vikings tied the game one inning later. Mills reached on an error by Cherry at first, stole second and scored on Dixon Page's single. Lassiter then singled and both runners moved up a base when left fielder Eddie Jones mishandled the ball. Page later scored on a passed ball.

The Jaguars regained the lead in the fifth on two-out singles by Farmville's Jeff Moore and Mike Tugwell which scored ocred Avery and Wade Corbett to give the Jaguars back the lead at 5-3. It went to 6-3 in the sixth when, with the bases loaded and two gone, Corbett walked, forcing home Jones.

Rampants Down ...

But wait the Rampant head man had to do, thanks mainly to the pitching of North Pitt right-hander Bob Hemingway. The Panther senior, now 3-5 this season, held the vaunted Rose hitting attack to five hits, struck out three and walked one.

Rampant right-hander Gordon Douglas did even better, however. The Rose junior hurled a three-hitter, striking out four and walking four in winning his fifth game in as many decisions.

"There was very good pitching for us and them tonight," Vincent said. "Our people think that he (Hemingway) is the best pitcher we've faced this year."

North Pitt threatened twice before scoring its only run in the seventh inning. The Panthers had runners at first and second with two outs in the first but failed to score and then in the fourth stranded Quintin Dove at second. Dove had led off the inning with a double.

Rose's only run before the fifth came on a second inning home run by catcher Emmett Walsh. With a New York Yankee scout looking on, Walsh hit the first pitch he saw over the centerfield fence, some 340 feet away.

After that, Hemingway retired eight straight before Walsh reached on an error in the fourth, a foreshadowing of things to come one inning later.

The fifth started off innocently enough when Gordon Douglas grounded out to short. But Crowell Pope then walked and went to second on Scott Galloway's single.

Pope came home on Paul MacMillan's single through the left side of the infield. A passed ball brought Galloway home and moved MacMillan to second. Mont Carter walked but was forced at second on Mark Douglas' fielder's choice, putting MacMillan at third.

Douglas then stole second and when the throw was mishandled by Gregory Briley MacMillan scored. Douglas subsequently scored wehn Mitch Brann reached on an error by Briley, giving Rose a 5-0 lead.

North Pitt scored its only run two innings later. With one gone and Jerry Simpson on third and Elwood Ayers on second, Mike Brown grounded out to second to score Simpson.

Beacham Edges Stancil In P-P

Robert Beacham aced the first hole of sudden death to beat Edward Stancil and win the Thursday Nite Amateur Tournament at the local Putt-Putt Golf Course last night.

Beacham and Stancil each shot six-under-par 66s in the two-round tournament to force the playoff. Alan Wooten, who shot a 30 in the second round for the best 18-hole score, finished third at 67.

Bobby Beacham was fourth at 68 and first-round leader Don Lewis was fifth at 71.

Jags Beat Bethel

FARMVILLE — Billy Godley banged out four hits and Mike Anderson three to lead Farmville Middle School to an easy 21-10 decision over Bethel Middle School Thursday afternoon.

Godley got the win on the mound and included in his four hits were three doubles.

In the girls' softball game, Farmville defeated Bethel, 10-8, behind Christy Smith's four hits. She had two in-the-park home runs for two of her four hits.

ECU Golfers Third

NAGS HEAD — East Carolina shot an opening-round 298 and Don Gafner was fourth in the opening round of the Old Dominion Invitational golf tournament at the Seascape golf course.

The Pirates trail ODU at 282 and UNC-Charlotte at 293 going into today's second round. Gafner's first-round 71 placed him fourth, behind leader Billy John of ODU, who shot a 68, and Paul Wyatt of UNCC and Greg Lia of ODU, both of whom are tied for second at 70.

Jerry Lee had a 75 for ECU while Carl Beaman and John Derico each had 76s for the Pirates.

Duke Nips Tigers, UNC Whips State

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Coach Tom D'Armi's outburst in the fourth inning of Duke's game with Clemson earned him the heave-ho Thursday. But it also spurred the Blue Devils to a 1-0 victory over the Tigers in the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball tournament.

The victory sent Duke to a 4 p.m. meeting with North Carolina in today's tournament action. The Tar Heels thrashed North Carolina State 7-1.

Earlier in the day, consecutive home runs by Tommy Thompson and Danny Watkins led Georgia Tech to a 5-2 win over Virginia, while Wake Forest used an 11th-inning home run by Brick Smith to capture a 3-2 victory over Maryland. Both the Cavaliers and the Terrapins were sent home with the losses.

Duke's Don Pruett was called out on a bang-bang play at first. Before Pruett could turn around to protest the call to the umpire, D'Armi raced out of the first-base dugout. But D'Armi had hardly spoken when the ump directed him toward the showers.

Duke then shut Clemson down behind the pitching of Ken Fay. The issue was finally decided when, after Buddy Copeland reached on a walk, Gary Brown smashed a triple to the center field fence.

Browne said D'Armi's ejection fired up the Blue Devils, especially after a similar play cost Duke a victory at Clemson earlier in the season.

"We got a bad break at Clemson earlier in the season," Browne said. "It happened again and coach just snapped. It sorta threw gas on the fire."

Shawn Dean's fifth-inning triple highlighted a four-run outburst as North Carolina beat arch-rival N.C. State.

North Carolina broke a 1-1 tie after Chris Pittaro singled to center. Scott Bradley moved Pitarro over with another hit. Designated hitter Eddie Waynick walked to load the bases and Joe Reto's grounder brought Pittaro home.

Jeff Hubbard grounded out to score Bradley before Dean lashed a Dan Plesac pitch down the rightfield line to score the final two runs.

The Tar Heels added single runs in the sixth and eighth innings to help Chris Kahler gain his sixth victory against one loss.

Kahler escaped a bases-loaded situation in the second and escaped a fourth-inning predicament by surrendering the Wolfpack's lone run.

North Carolina raised its season's record to 31-12 while N.C. State fell to 32-11 and losing pitcher Plesac saw his record fall to 6-3.

The Duke-Clemson game developed into a pitching duel from the opening batter. Fay yielded just three hits in gaining his seventh victory of the near. The Tigers stranded seven-base-runners and never got a runner to third in the entire game.

Williams, who has had plenty of chances to watch the ups and downs of sales during 40 years directing the Raleigh Merchants Bureau, said the merchants had entered the first of the year expecting a flat first half with increasing sales in the second half.

"The thinking back then was that the last half of the year would offer greater hopes in increases in sales, thinking that the tax cuts proposed by Reagan would become effective by July 1 and that the people, most of them, would spend most of that money rather than save it," he said.

So, said Williams, increased sales have been a "pleasant surprise." But now, he says now there seems to be less enthusiasm for increases in the second half.

The reasoning is that President Reagan's economic program "seems to have lost a good deal of its momentum and that Congress is not moving as expeditiously as expected," Williams added.

He said he felt consumers had confidence early in the year because of Reagan's election and inauguration and that people thought "things are looking better and we'll spend a little more."

Williams added that there also was "right much of a pentup demand." People had delayed purchasing things which they normally wouldn't delay, he explained. This early surprise in sales to date — I think a lot of it can go back to the confidence they had."

He said pessimism that is building about the second half of the year is "based on the fact that the consumers don't see Congress acting. Even what they see coming out of the General Assembly doesn't inspire consumer confidence."

Williams said the threat of a special legislative session to consider the effects of federal spending cuts, legislative delays in voting pay raises to state employees, the general spirit of austerity hanging over the General Assembly and the budgeting deliberations of the appropriations committees all are likely to detract from consumer confidence and cause buying to drop again.

Rose Sets 6 Marks, Wins Pitt Co. Meet

Greenville Rose captured all 17 first places and set six meet records en route to an easy victory in the Pitt County Track Meet.

The Rampants scored 135½ points to easily outdistance Farmville Central's 23 and D.H. Conley's 19½.

Rose set meet marks in the high jump, pole vault, 1,600-mter run, 400-relay, 165-meter hurdles and 200-meter dash.

Chris McGlowhorn, Erskin Evans, Harry Williams and Calvin Joyner all won two events for Rose.

McGlowhorn captured the 400-meter dash (49.75) and the long jump (22-9). Evans won the 100-meter dash (10.9) and the 200-meter in a meet record time of 21.91.

Williams was first in the 3,200-meter run (9:54.9) and set a meet record in the 1,600-meter run with his time of 4:24.9. Joyner captured both the 110-meter high hurdles (14.83) and the 165-meter low hurdles in a meet record time of 19.87.

Rose travels to New Bern Saturday.

Goldsboro Gallops Past Rose, FC, DHC

FARMVILLE — Goldsboro overwhelmed Greenville Rose and two other Pitt County schools Thursday in a girls' track meet.

Goldsboro tallied 120½ points to easily outrun Rose at 61, Farmville at 42½ and D.H. Conley at 21.

One of the Rampettes bright spots on the afternoon was Angie Williams' school record leap in the long jump of 17-0. It was Rose's only first place.

Another was the 440-yard relay team tying a school record with a time of 51.0 for second place.

Summary:

Long jump — An. Atkinson (R) 17-0 (school record); Finley (G) 16-1½; Suggs (G) 15-9½; Williams (FC) 15-5½; Small (DHC) 15-5.

3 ♠	Pass	5 ♠	Dble.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

Many conventions are designed for competitive bidding. But even the best of these will, on occasion, provide a blueprint to the play of the hand. Consider this example.

West's bid of two clubs was Michael's Cue-Bid. It promised at least ten cards in the major suits. North passed—there was no point to bidding hearts when it was known that that was one of West's suits. However, he came to life when his partner freely rebid at the three-level, vulnerable. East's double was loud and clear—charity begins at home, after all.

South was John Rau of San Francisco, a veteran of more than 50 years of tournament competition. He showed how easy the game of bridge can be if you know where the cards are. He won the first trick with the ace of hearts and led the five of clubs from dummy. East played low and declarer followed with the four. When West showed out, dummy had won the trick, so declarer continued with another club. This time East played the ten, and declarer won the queen.

Declarer continued to show superb technique. He cashed the ace of spades and exited with the jack. West won the queen and made the fatal error of trying to cash a heart—it was essential to play diamonds. Declarer ruffed, cashed the ace of diamonds and entered dummy with a diamond to the queen. Now he ruffed a spade, reducing his trumps to A-9, while East was down to K-J-8 in trumps. Declarer held two diamonds and East only one.

Declarer crossed to the king of diamonds and led a heart from the table. East's goose was cooked. If he ruffed with the eight, declarer would overruff with the nine and lose only a diamond to make his contract. So East ruffed with the jack. But declarer countered neatly by sluffing his diamond. Now East was forced to lead from the K-8 of clubs into declarer's A-9 tenace. That gave South the last two trump tricks and the contract.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APR. 25, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early morning brings new activities that can help you gain the progress you desire. Make sure you don't make any mistakes in communicating with others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is best for handling responsibilities and to avoid unpleasant strife in the afternoon. Happiness can be yours.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your surroundings and make long-range plans for improvement. Attend a social function in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have work to do that requires special care, so be precise and gain added benefits. Be kind to loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) It may seem difficult to gain your aims early in the day but conditions are bound to improve later.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to reach a fine understanding with your family and to keep any promises you have made. Engage in favorite hobby.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Morning is fine for handling routine chores, but be alert for possible danger in the afternoon. Cooperate more with others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use good judgment in the morning where finances are concerned, but later there are likely to be confusing conditions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Showing others that you are a true friend will gain their added goodwill now. Don't neglect important business matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what your true desires are and how best to attain them. Be more optimistic about the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good friend can be of help to you today, so accept and get busy on projects. Avoid the social in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Delve into civic matters of importance and gain the assistance of loyal friends. Engage in hobby with congenials.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take a new approach on a matter that has been puzzling you a long time and you solve it wisely. Be alert at all times.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to get at the truth of any situation, so direct the education along lines of investigation and there could be much success during lifetime. Your progeny will be very good in sports and could become famous.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 4-24

V E O X B M I G B - O S E U X O M N I G B O X S U N G V N O X V E O X

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — ELECTORS SELECT FIRST OFFICERS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: B equals D

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Discs Flying For Good Cause

NEW YORK (AP) — Discs will be flying from coast to coast this summer to help fight cancer.

The American Cancer Society is arranging a series of Flying Disc Fairs from May 1 through July 31 in parks, parking lots, on beaches and other areas where large groups of people can take picnic lunches and join in the disc-throwing fun.

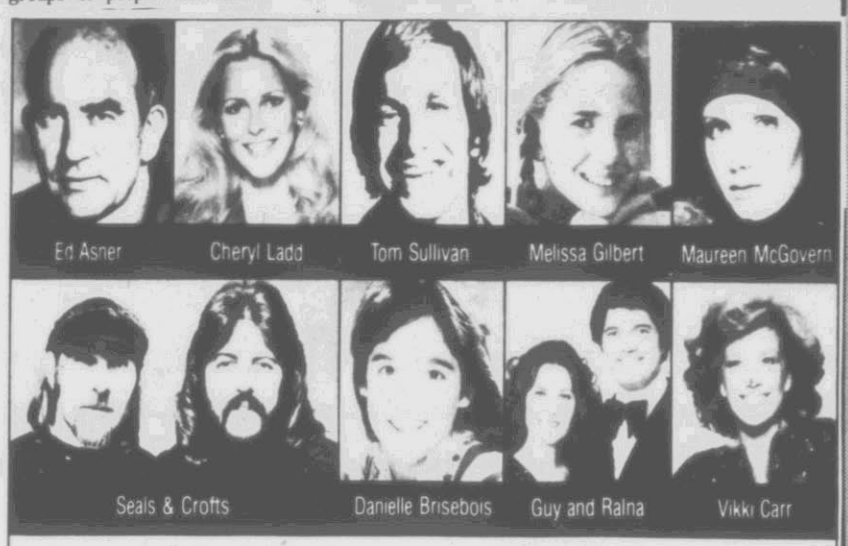

Plans call for 200 fairs in cities and towns throughout the U.S. As sponsor of the events, Coppertone will provide equipment, pledge entry forms and many of its products as prizes. All proceeds will go for the American Cancer Society's cancer-control program.

SILVER SHOW

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An exhibition of more than 200 silver objects illustrating the role of silver in American life is being shown through May 10 at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

The museum says the exhibition "in addition to its artistic and decorative appeal, is unique in its exploration of the multi-faceted role silver has played in the cultural and technological history of this country in the past 300 years."

The objects shown were drawn from various Yale University collections.

Scout Camporee Will Be Held

The 44th annual Camporee of the East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be held the weekend of May 1-3 at Camp Bonner North near Washington.

Council officials said that the event, designated as a "Pioneer Camporee," is expected to be the most colorful in the history of the encampments, first held here in 1936, with grandsons of the first participants in attendance.

Joe Goodson of Greenville, camporee chief, said that provision of extra points for gateways and entrances is expected to create hundreds of colorful settings featuring more scout-built equipment than ever before.

Goodson said another attraction, in addition to the customary patrol events, will be a Saturday night campfire program featuring a parade of Eagle Scouts. George Williams, program director, noted that all registered Eagle Scouts in the Council have been invited to attend.

Camporee registration will begin at 1 p.m. on Friday and events will be staged on Saturday at pre-arranged activity fields, beginning at 8 a.m. On Sunday, inter-denominational religious services and mass for Catholics will start at 7 a.m.

John Bush, scout executive of the council, which embraces 20 northeastern counties, said registrations indicate tht more than 3,000 scouts and scouters will attend this year's event. He invited parents and other interested persons to visit the camporee on Saturday.

Your Private Property Rights... Know and Protect Them

Real Property Ownership:
A President's Perspective

"A moment's reflection must convince you ...that lands are of permanent value: that there is scarcely a possibility of their falling in price, but almost a moral certainty of their rising exceedingly in value."

George Washington, 1st President

The United States may have been new when Washington was president, but the real estate ownership rights of the individual were already well-established. There was also nothing new in Washington's belief that real estate was a valuable asset.

Now, however, 200 years later, while real estate is still a valuable asset, our rights to real property ownership are gradually being eroded. Certain laws that limit community growth have made some properties virtually worthless, resulting in the owners' loss of investment capital.

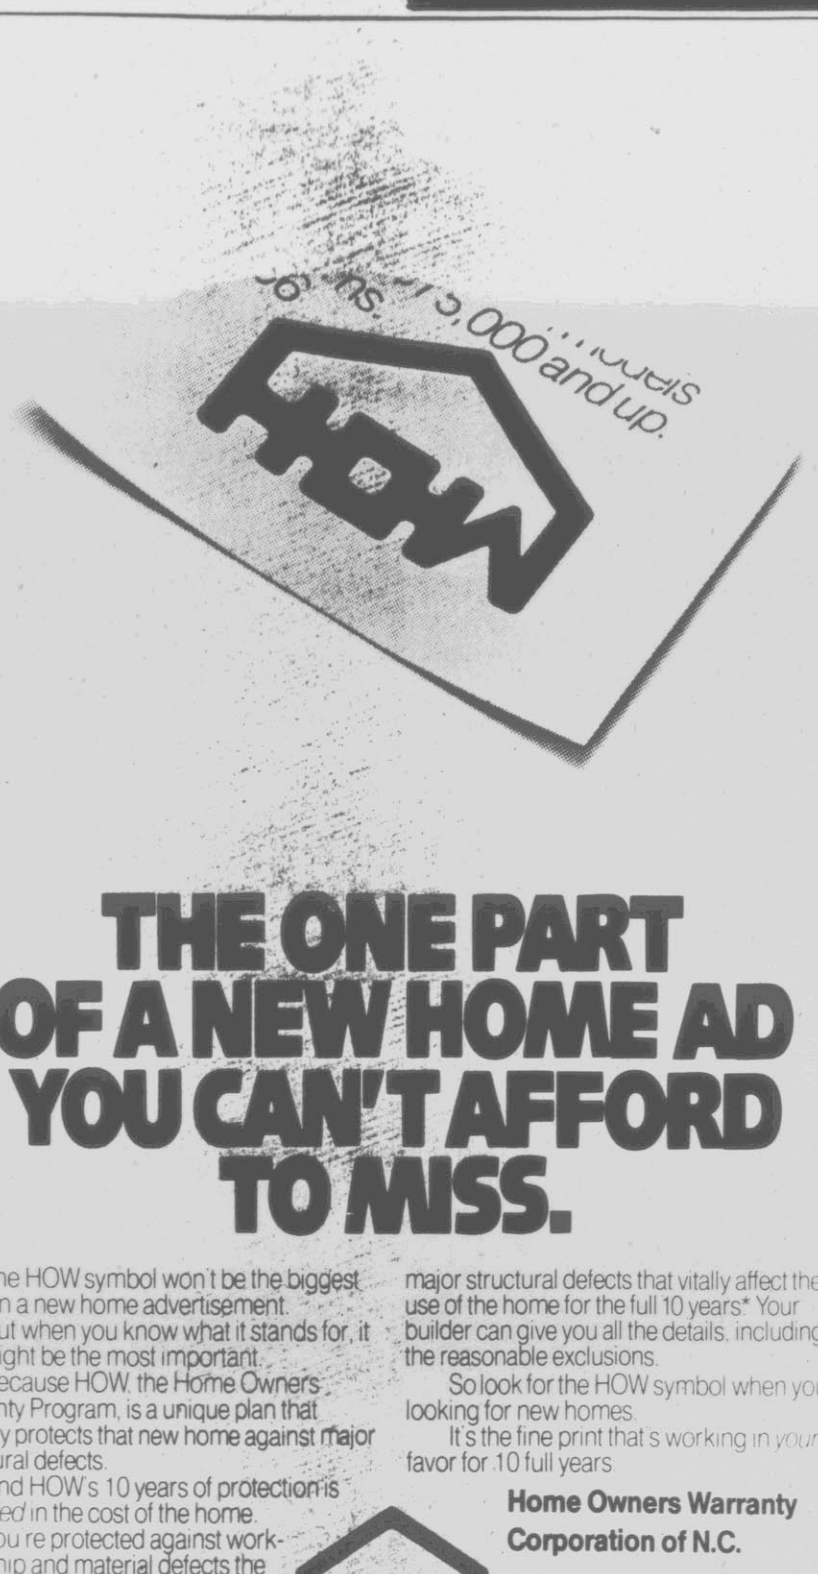

To maintain real estate as a valuable asset and protect ownership rights from further erosion, the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® is observing Private Property Week. It's a time to emphasize our individual liberties; it's also a time to remind one another that we must protect these liberties. They are fundamental to our free enterprise system.

Let's all participate—in the observance of Private Property Week and in the determination to preserve the freedom we now enjoy.

THE ONE PART OF A NEW HOME AD YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO MISS.

The HOW symbol won't be the biggest thing in a new home advertisement.

But when you know what it stands for, it just might be the most important.

Because HOW, the Home Owners Warranty Program, is a unique plan that actually protects that new home against major structural defects.

And HOW's 10 years of protection is included in the cost of the home.

You're protected against workmanship and material defects the first year. Defective wiring, ductwork, and piping in the second. And your home is protected against major structural defects that vitally affect the use of the home for the full 10 years* Your builder can give you all the details, including the reasonable exclusions.

So look for the HOW symbol when you're looking for new homes.

It's the fine print that's working in your favor for 10 full years.

Home Owners Warranty Corporation of N.C.

Warranty and insurance coverage applies only if the builder properly enrolls the home and is in good standing with HOW at the time of settlement.

Budget Meets Hear Residents

Budget meetings were held recently by city officials in two residential sections of Greenville to discuss the 1981-82 city budget.

In one of the meetings, residents of Lynndale, Grayleigh, Pinewood Forest, Lakewood Pines, and Brentwood questioned city officials about guidelines which will be used in preparing the budget, what the city will do to replace programs or people lost through a reduction in federal funds, and whether the city will be able to keep the budget at the same dollar amount as the current package.

It was also suggested that the city seek approval from the legislature to increase revenues such as the local option sales tax. Residents suggested that the city teach the community a greater degree of self sufficiency and that local citizens help take care of themselves by working together to accomplish projects such as painting recreation facilities.

Residents of Windy Ridge and Quail Ridge inquired in their meeting about the city's future annexation plans and the revenues generated through annexation.

Interest was expressed relative to the provision of additional recreation programs and retaining qualified employees in the Police and Fire-Rescue Departments.

FOCUS

Le Grand Charles

This weekend, French citizens will vote in the first round of their national elections. In many ways, all the candidates seeking election can be considered heirs to the late Charles de Gaulle. De Gaulle led French resistance against Germany in World War Two, and restored order in France after the war. He drafted a new Constitution for a Fifth Republic of France, and served as the Republic's President from 1958 until his resignation in 1969. De Gaulle led his country through a difficult period in which Algeria and other parts of France's overseas empire won independence. His leadership restored French political and economic stability, and again made France one of the leading powers of Europe.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is now President of France?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Anne Hathaway was Shakespeare's wife.

Meg Is Finding Her Calling; She's The Family Matchmaker

By GAIL MICHAELS

The institution of marriage will never die as long as there are people like Meg around. Meg considers marriage an adult's natural state. And she will not rest easily until all her loved ones have entered it. The only loved one she is not pushing into matrimony is her uncle and that's because she is saving him for herself.

She has, however, been prodding her aunt and her aunt's boyfriend mercilessly. He meets the one criterion Meg has for all family members. "David likes to play with me," she said after her first encounter with him. "Aunt Gail needs to marry him."

Not long afterwards, when Gail was visiting us, she complained of being tired. "Are you pregnant?" Meg asked hopefully.

"I'm not even married," her aunt protested.

Meg sniffed. "Well, you ought to be."

Time did not alter Meg's resolve to make this match permanent. Every time she was around her aunt, she dropped broad hints like, "You need to get married before you get too old to look good in a wedding dress."

David was not exempt from Meg's lobbying either. "How many babies do you and Aunt Gail want when you get married?" was a typical remark.

Her preoccupation with babies became more pronounced after her cousin, Christopher, and her brother were born. "Why doesn't Aunt Gail get married?" Meg would moan. "I do so much need a girl baby to play with."

Finally, Gail and David did announce their engagement. Meg's first response was, "Now they can have a little girl cousin for me!"

"You'll have to give them a little time," I said. "Most married couples like to wait a few years before they have children."

This was beyond Meg's comprehension. "What for? Don't they like babies?"

"Sure they do. But they need to get used to living with each other before they have to get used to living with a whole new person."

She pondered at this a moment. "Where are they going to live?"

"They haven't decided yet."

Meg brightened immediately. "They can live here. I'll lend them my bedroom."

"That's very generous, sweetheart, but they'll want a house of their own."

"Then we'll buy them the house next door."

"Meg, honey, I doubt very much that they will live in Smithfield. They don't have jobs here."

She refused to be discouraged. "They can help Daddy make televisions."

"Still, I expect they'll stay in Raleigh. They like it there."

"Why?"

"Well, Raleigh is a nice town, and there's lots for them to do there."

"Like what?"

"Like going out to eat. Raleigh has plenty of nice restaurants."

"So does Smithfield. We have a Pizza Hut."

"That's true, but I still think they'll be living in Raleigh."

When Phillip got home that evening, Meg was the picture of gloom and despair. She was sitting at the kitchen counter with her head buried in her arms.

"Why the long face?" Phillip asked. Aren't you happy that Aunt Gail is getting married?"

"Yes, but they aren't going to have a baby girl and they aren't going to live with me, so what's the use?"

Volunteer Week Set By Governor

Gov. Hunt has proclaimed Apr. 26-May 2 as National Volunteer Week in North Carolina.

"Remember When Someone Helped You?" is the theme for this year's observance. The proclamation, issued by the governor this week, cited "a long and outstanding heritage of citizen volunteering" and the fact that "thousands across North Carolina have come from all segments of society to serve their neighbors" as reasons for this observance.

"Volunteering is important for several reasons," Gov. Hunt said. The person doing the volunteer work gets a real sense of satisfaction from helping someone and often learns new skills or gains valuable work experience.

"Also, volunteering does make a difference. One-on-one, volunteers can teach a child to read, turn a young life from crime, or make an elderly person's life happier," Hunt says. "Volunteering also fills in the gaps where government can't meet people's needs. We know that government cannot do everything we need — but individuals and groups of volunteers can contribute a tremendous amount of valuable service to the people of their state and nation."

Volunteers in state government contributed more than $200 million of service, Charles Petty, executive director of the Governor's Office of Citizen Affairs, said.

Quarterly Meet

Quarterly meeting will be held at Perry Temple Full Gospel Free Will Baptist Church on Highway 264 a half mile west of Saratoga this weekend.

Communion will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Dinner will be held at the close of the morning worship Sunday and Elder Roger Hooks will deliver the evening sermon at 4 p.m. The public is invited, says the pastor, the Rev. J. N. Perry Jr.

Career Event Is Sponsored

In honor of the Ameircan Legion's observance of April as Children and Youth month, Post 160, Greenville, is sponsoring a Career Orientation Program Sunday at 2 p.m.

The program will be presented at the Foreman (formerly Eppes) Gym. Children and youth will have an opportunity to meet and interact with community leaders, persons in job decision-making roles and others who can help them gain insight into responsible citizenship and the importance of Americanism.

Entertainment will be provided. The public is invited.

RECOGNIZED

KINSTON — The Mental Health Association in Pitt County was recognized recently at an annual reception held at Caswell Center. The association was cited for its volunteer efforts throughout the past year.

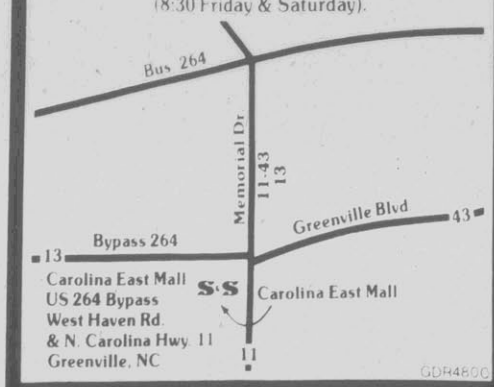

Those activities included participation in a trip to the Pitt County Fair, the Halloween Celebration, a Christmas party and Operation Santa Claus.
