Hunt Road Plan Tonight

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt is expected to propose higher taxes on gasoline when he goes on statewide television at 7 tonight to give his recommendations on the Highway Fund crisis.

The proposals will come after months of suspense, during which Hunt insisted that he still hadn't decided just how to find the annual $200 to $250 million that officials say the state's highways need.

A Blue Ribbon Study Commission concluded last December that the Highway Fund needed that amount for basic maintenance. The fund is a pool of money from gasoline taxes and highway-related fees that has traditionally been set apart from the state's general tax dollars.

"Up to this point, I've been doing a lot of listening," Hunt said. "After this, I'll be doing a lot of convincing, I hope."

The Hunt-appointed commission, led by former Gov. Dan Moore, had three recommendations. Each option would add 5 cents to the state's 9 1/4-cent-per-gallon gasoline tax or 4 percent to the wholesale price of gasoline, which would add about a nickel.

But many observers say Hunt will propose a gas tax increase of only 2 cents or 3 cents, given the resistance to a larger increase in the General Assembly.

Legislators and the commission say these options could be included in Hunt's package:

—A transfer of the Highway Patrol to the state's general fund. That would generate no new money, but would free an annual $50 million from the Highway Fund for road maintenance and construction.

—An increase in fees for truck and auto plates and driver's licenses, which could produce $40 million to $50 million.

—Raising the $120 limit on collection of the 2 percent sales tax on new autos, which could generate $20 million to $30 million.

—Raising liquor and beer taxes by up to 100 percent. Already part of a pending Senate bill, this proposal could raise up to $100 a year, but opponents say it could be less because it would reduce sales.

—Shifting other revenues to the Highway Fund, such as all sales taxes collected on auto parts and accessories.

The budget Hunt proposed in January anticipates $342 million less will be available for state highways during the next two years than was available during the two years ending this July.

But the commission said a "minimum" highway program would need another $404 over the next two years.

The roots of the Highway Fund crisis lie in the increasing gasoline prices since the Arab oil embargo of 1973-1974. Gasoline sales and gas tax collections have fallen as highway construction costs have become increasingly inflated.

After promising not to increase taxes during the 1976 campaign, Hunt proposed and won a $300 million highway bond increase in 1977. Those bonds run out next year.

Return Of Space Shuttle To Cape Is Facing Delay

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A mechanical problem delayed the return of the space shuttle Columbia this morning, and NASA officials said weather conditions in California might force another postponement in the space-craft's piggyback flight back to the Kennedy Space Center.

The Columbia was scheduled to leave Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., today on the back of a Boeing 747 jumbo jet. But a problem with a brace holding the shuttle to the jet forced a delay, NASA spokesmen said.

Kennedy Space Center spokesman Rocky Raab said Rockwell International technicians had to make a new brace for the Columbia's tail cone.

"They had to machine the thing and they're trying to put it on now," Raab said.

The repair work was complicated by a stipulation line that prohibits the Boeing 747 from taking off if the temperature in the California desert goes above 70 degrees.

"It might stay below that for a while because it was pretty cool last night," Raab said. "We're just crossing our fingers ... that's about all we can do at this point."

Meanwhile, National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said Columbia's arrival at the space center would be a low key event, attended only by a few center officials and reporters.

"I'm not aware of any big hoop-de-doop being planned or anything" for the return, said NASA spokesman Dick Young.

"It's going to be coming back here many, many times and it's just part of routine operations now," said Hugh Harris, the space center's chief of public information.

Momentum Swings Back To Administration Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, which left President Reagan's economic program in limbo two weeks ago, returns from recess to find momentum swinging back to the administration and to hear the recuperating chief executive himself offer cooperation but not compromise.

Reagan goes before a joint session of the House and the Senate at 9 p.m. EDT Tuesday — his first public appearance since the attempt on his life almost a month ago — to make a pitch for his tax and budget-cutting plan.

The president spent the weekend polishing the speech at his Camp David, Md., retreat. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan intends to tell Congress and a national television audience that "now is the time to act" on his program.

The administration's offensive is two-pronged: to cement Republican support in the Senate and to gain Democratic votes in the House. Both seem to be working.

The House had been expected to be stiffest test, but head counts by both parties last week showed considerable new Democratic support for a slightly modified Reagan program — perhaps more than enough to pass it after the House begins debate Thursday.

In the Senate, Budget Committee Republicans scheduled a vote today on a plan to allay conservative skepticism about Reagan's ability to balance the budget by 1984. That was the issue that derailed the president's program on April 9, when three Republicans joined the panel's Democrats in turning down a budget-cutting package for fiscal 1982 because of projections it still would leave a $60 billion deficit.

The proposed settlement, which over the weekend appeared to have gathered enough support to win approval, would trim the projected deficit to $45 billion, Reagan's original estimate.

In the administration view, that's merely an adjustment, not affecting the program's basic philosophy. Speakes said Reagan's speech will promise to cooperate but not to compromise, especially on his proposed 30 percent tax cut over three years, which many members of Congress are reluctant to accept.

The speech is the keystone of a stepped-up lobbying drive.

"The big push will be on," said Dick Legitt, an aide to

Rep. Stan Parris, R-Va., the chief GOP vote-hunter in the House.

Republicans and Democrats ready to vote for Reagan's program in the House reportedly planned to wear lapel pins sporting small baseball bats this week — a symbol of their willingness to "play hardball," as Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. called it, to push the plan through Congress. GOP leaders said Reagan might wear one of the pins himself during his speech.

Democratic leaders, meanwhile, were worried about defections. "We're losing an awful lot of Democrats," confided one top House Democrat who asked not to be identified.

Democrats hold a 242-190 majority in the 435-member House, with three vacancies. If Republicans vote as a bloc, only 26 Democrats are needed to earn a majority for the Reagan plan in the House.

An informal GOP count showed at least 20 Democrats ready to vote for the Republican plan, GOP sources said. Republicans have been circulating a list of 62 conservative Democrats considered potential crossover, and Reagan spent much of the last week on the phone personally appealing to Democrats to support him.

The program before the House is Reagan's basic budget-cutting plan, plus $6 billion in additional spending reductions proposed by Reps. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, and Phil Gramm, D-Texas.

Reagan formally endorsed the modified plan last week.

The administration may have a tougher time trying to steer its farm bill through Congress.

The Senate Agriculture Committee was beginning work today on merging a series of proposals into a consensus program to replace the expiring Food and Agriculture Act of 1977.

Subcommittees in the House are still drafting those parts of the farm program they're responsible for. The House Agriculture Committee will begin putting its version of the bill into final form before mid-week.

The new bill will cover commodity programs for four years, beginning with the 1982 crop.

The Reagan administration's proposal for the new farm program calls for unprecedented discretion for the agriculture secretary in setting price-support loan rates for most commodities.

But key members from both parties have countered with their own proposals, and the bills emerging from the two committees by mid-May will probably fall short of Reagan's recommendations.

The administration may have gained support for some of its proposals last week when Reagan lifted the 15 1/2-month grain embargo against the Soviet Union. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, had told the administration that chances for its bill rested on ending the grain embargo.

VIETNAM VETERANS OF AMERICA?

Is there a chapter of Vietnam Veterans of America in Pitt County? If there is, do they conduct rap sessions and counseling for Vietnam veterans and their families? B. W.

Walter Tucker of the Veterans Services Office here said he knows of this organization nationally, but has not heard of a local chapter's being formed. He referred us to the Veterans' Outreach Center in Fayetteville.

There we talked to Dick Byrd, a counselor in the Outreach Center and at Victory House, a refurbished mansion on Hay Street where down-and-out veterans of Vietnam or any American-fought war can stay.

He said any veteran from our area is welcome to avail himself of the services of the Fayetteville Outreach Center, which is, at present, the only one in the state. The house, he said, is normally used by men seeking work in the Fayetteville area. To stay at the house, one must be actively seeking a job and must show willingness to share the work of the house.

Byrd is one of three masters-level veterans' counselors who work out of Fayetteville serving this state. He asked that you contact him about any particular need or if you believe there is sufficient interest to start a Vietnam Veterans of America chapter here. He said, if so, he will be glad to come here and speak or do whatever else is necessary to help out. His phone number is 323-4908.

Hotline also checked with the Pitt County Mental Health Center to see if there is a specific program there for Vietnam veterans. We were told that there is not, though the center does sometimes get referrals from veterans' hospitals and will be glad, of course, to see any veteran or members of his family who feel they need the services of the mental health center.

Jeep Faces End

DETROIT (AP) — Like the horses used 40 years before it, technology has finally caught up with the Army's faithful jeep.

Today was the deadline for major automakers and suppliers to present the Army with design suggestions for one vehicle to replace the jeep and several other military vehicles, including the half-ton truck.

The Army made the request of 61 companies in the hope of having such a multi-purpose replacement vehicle in use by early 1984.

But the jeep's military career is not over completely.

Art Volpe, a public affairs specialist for the Army Tank-Automotive Command in Warren, Mich., said current plans call for an initial order of 15,000 of the replacement vehicles — far short of the 100,000 or so that would be needed to replace all the jeeps and other vehicles that are to be phased out.

"That's quite a way down the pike," Volpe said.

And the jeep — which received its name from World War II GIs who shortened General Purpose vehicle to GP — will receive an honorable discharge when it does go into retirement.

Volpe said the change is not a result of dissatisfaction.

"The basic style of the (jeep) has been very reliable and there have been no major maintenance problems," Volpe said.

But the new vehicle — dubbed the High Mobility Multipurpose Wheeled Vehicle in Army-ese — is necessary to catch up with changing technology, he said.

Made by AM General Corp., a subsidiary of American Motors Corp., the military jeep has remained essentially the same, outside of gradual changes in such things as body panels and suspension systems, since it was introduced during World War II, Volpe said.

Since then, the Army has been busy introducing new weapons systems and some of them, such as rocket and grenade launchers, need mobile platforms for firing. The jeep, long used as a platform for machine guns and recoilless rifles, no longer is equal to the task.

"It's a move toward standardization, really," Volpe said of the new vehicle. "It will be useable for a wider range of jobs."

HONORABLE DISCHARGE — After 40 years of faithful service the U.S. Army jeep is headed for retirement. The Army has asked 61 companies to suggest designs for the jeep's replacement. (AP Laserphoto)

Couple Marries In Garden Setting Sunday

Faye Eubanks and Alex Warren, both of Ayden, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony Sunday. Azaleas and dogwoods provided the setting for the garden wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Warren of Snow Hill, parents of the bridegroom. Mr. and Mrs. Archie Eubanks of Trenton are parents of the bride.

Keith Jarrett's "Koln Concert" was the background music as guests arrived. "Color My World" by Chicago opened the ceremony conducted by the Rev. Jim Stonely of Holy Innocence Episcopal Church, Moss Hill.

The bride wore an original "Gunn Sax" light blue gauze long formal gown. The long sleeved dress featured a bodice trimmed in scalloped lace and a sweetheart neck trimmed with net, satin and lace. Lace on the tiered skirt matched the sleeves and bodice. She also wore a string of pearls. She carried a long-stemmed arm bouquet of daisies and baby's breath which were also worn by the bridegroom and their parents.

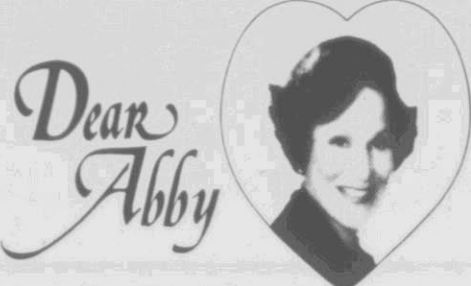

An outdoor reception was held immediately following the ceremony. Camellias, azaleas and other natural flowers complemented the setting. The tables were covered with white linen and decorated with blue gingham bows and a centerpiece of natural flowers in a woven basket were used for the buffet.

Mary Simpson of Kinston, Kay Moore of Ayden and Nancy Sumrell of Greenville assisted with the reception.

The bride is a graduate of Lenoir Community College and is employed as a stenographer at the Kinston Du Pont plant. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is plant editor at the Kinston Du Pont plant.

The couple will reside at in Ayden.

Check Holds Family Hostage

By Abigail Van Buren

1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A year and a half ago our son married a girl whose well-to-do family lives out of town. My son and his bride (I'll call them Ann and Sam) wanted the wedding here, but insisted on keeping it simple and intimate, so we agreed. They were married by a justice of the peace in a shopping center near our home.

We had a party for them at our home following the ceremony, and we gave them a check for $1,000 as a wedding gift. Sam was ecstatic and thanked us, but Ann didn't say a word! We were in shock.

Days passed and we didn't hear from Ann. We were so hurt, we stopped payment on the check and told Sam that if his wife found it so difficult to say thank you, now she wouldn't have to say it at all!

Here it is, a year and a half later, and things have gone from bad to worse. They have a new house, a new car, a baby (planned) and they are drowning in debts. Our son wants "his" $1,000.

Abby, we are not rich people. Sam and Ann are now subjecting us to emotional blackmail, saying if we don't give them "their" $1,000, we can't see our grandchild.

Any suggestions would be gratefully appreciated.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: You were wrong to have stopped payment on the $1,000 after giving it to Sam and Ann as a wedding gift. Sam thanked you, which should have been adequate.

Sam and Ann are understandably angry, but refusing to let you see your grandchild unless you fork over "their" $1,000 is indeed blackmail. However, if you hope to have any kind of relationship with your son and his wife, you can start by giving them the $1,000.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question concerning invitations that specify, "No gifts, please."

Does this mean the party-givers expect nothing except your presence at their party? Or does it mean they prefer money instead of a gift?

PUZZLED IN MONTREAL

DEAR PUZZLED: "No gifts, please," means, please do not bring a gift. Money is considered a gift, so bring nothing but yourself and your good wishes.

DEAR ABBY: A recent column leans heavily to surgery as the solution for breast cancer.

Please ask for letters from women who have been treated with alternatives to surgery. There is a growing group of radiotherapists who are treating cancer of the breast with interstitial Iridium 192 implantation.

When a tumor is implanted with radioactive seeds, no mastectomy is needed and no reconstructive surgery. Statistics are showing that radiation therapy is offering the same number of cancer-free years as mastectomy, with a great improvement over surgery in quality of life and the emotional health of the patient.

Let the women who have been treated this way speak up!

MRS. R.S.

DEAR MRS. R.S.: Consider this an invitation for women who have had experience with the alternative you mention to speak up.

You're never too young or too old to learn how to make people like you. Get Abby's new booklet of practical advice. Send $1 and a stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

1 small butternut squash, peeled, seeded and chopped
1 large onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons Indian curry powder
3 cups chicken or beef stock
3 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper to taste
2 cups milk

In a large pot, combine the squash, onion, garlic, curry powder and stock. Bring to a boil. Reduce the heat, cover and cook over low heat for 45 minutes. Remove the pot from the heat. Mash the mixture until it is smooth. Add the butter, salt and pepper, stirring until the butter melts. Add the milk and stir to blend thoroughly. Serve the soup lukewarm or reheat it without boiling. If, as Rothman does, you prefer the soup cold, refrigerate it, covered, for 2 hours. Serve it plain or experiment with toppings like chopped parsley or cucumber, yogurt or sour cream. Easley-Little Vows Spoken

Margaret Branch Little and Jackson Robert Easley III were married Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock in a garden ceremony performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Little, Rt. 1, Winterville.

The Rev. A. E. Brown Jr. officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Hagan Little of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Easley Jr. of Goldsboro.

Charlene L. Clay of Tucson, Ariz., sister of the bride, was honor attendant and bridesmaids included Ardeith K. Little, cousin of the bride, and Cindy D. Kittrell, both of Greenville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers included Charles and Kevin Little of Greenville, both cousins of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a long off-white chiffon dress with an empire waistline accented in lace flowers adorned with beaded pearls. The attached train was bordered with lace and beaded pearls. She carried a bouquet of daisies and baby's breath.

The honor attendant wore a long blue dress with a lace collar and carried a long-stemmed red rose with white streamers. The bridesmaids wore long peach colored dresses and each carried a long-stemmed rose with white streamers.

The couple will be living in Kinston after a wedding trip cruising coastal waters.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of East Carolina University and are eighth grade teachers at Kinston Junior High School.

A reception was held after the ceremony and was given by Mrs. James Little and Ardeith Little, aunt and cousin of the bride.

The reception was held in the azelea garden.

Mrs. A. E. Brown Jr. and Mrs. J. K. Hardee, aunts of the bride, presided at the reception table.

Some Complain Sen. East Violated Traditions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate abortion hearings have revealed freshman Sen. John East, R-N.C., as a subcommittee chairman willing to wield the power of his post.

But some fellow conservative Republicans and some Democrats were startled by East's apparent lack of familiarity with the rules and traditions that govern hearings.

The hearings last week, before East's Judiciary subcommittee on separation of powers, were on the bill sponsored by his political mentor, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill.

The bill seeks to define a "person" legally as existing from the moment of conception, a way to nullify a 1973 Supreme Court decision permitting abortions during the first six months of pregnancy.

If the Helms-Hyde bill is passed, an abortion would be considered the destruction of a person and thus could be prosecuted as murder or manslaughter.

East favors the bill, and seven of the eight medical experts he brought before his subcommittee on Thursday and Friday did too.

When the ranking Democrat on the panel, Sen. Max Baucus of Montana, asked to call witnesses for the other side, East denied his request, Baucus said.

Under Senate rules, East does not have the authority to do that. The rules require that members of the minority party be given at least one full day of hearings to present their own witnesses.

Originally, fellow conservative Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, was to chair the hearings along with East. But Hatch pulled out — and his staff said he left because he disapproved of East's one-sided witness list.

East denied he intended the hearings to be "stacked."

"I think we were misunderstood," he said after Thursday's hearing. Not permitting all sides to testify "would very frankly defeat the bill," he said.

East told the hearing audience he wants the hearings to be "extensive, exhaustive and fair."

"I'm only asking that the public reserve judgement until the end," he said Friday.

Still, East has scheduled no pro-abortion witnesses, although he said the hearings will last into June.

East apparently violated senatorial courtesy in other ways, Democratic senators said. For example, he would not allow staff lawyers for the Democrats on the subcommittee to question witnesses.

Baucus complained to East in an April 22 letter that Baucus made plans to leave town because he thought East had agreed to let Baucus' staff question witnesses.

East told reporters he thought it would be "inappropriate" for a staff member to ask questions like a senator.

Senate rules make no provision for such questioning but do not prohibit it. It is common in both houses of Congress.

Meanwhile, some Democrats on the committee staff said East's approach would actually hurt the anti-abortion cause.

"They made a big tactical error by doing that to Baucus," one staffer said, adding that it would anger other senators who believe the majority party should at least appear to play fair.

Charges Made After Incident

Gorman Walter Ledbetter Jr., 53 of Greenville, was arrested early Sunday on charges of discharging firearms in the city, assault with a deadly weapon, and two counts of damage to personal property, following an incident at 1602 East Wright Rd.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Ledbetter, an East Carolina University associate professor, allegedly broke a glass out of a door at the Wright Road home of Ms. Hilda Smith, pointed a pistol at Ms. Smith and Donald Lee Smithwick of Route 1, Merry Hill, and damaged Smithwick's car by firing several shots into it.

The incident was reported at 12:22 a.m.

SURVIVES CHALLENGE
PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Bettino Craxi was re-elected leader of the Italian Socialist Party today after surviving a last-minute challenge by the party's small pro-communist left wing.

SENATOR JOHN EAST WHY ARE YOU DOING THIS??

If you want to hang on to some of our most basic human rights, read on.

Because a small, but dedicated group of people want to take away your right to decide whether and when to have children.

And your right to plan the birth of your children.

And even your right to have children who are wanted and loved.

If you don't want to lose access to accurate information about human reproduction and responsible sexuality, it's time to do something.

Even access to contraceptives and our vital cancer and diabetes testing is in jeopardy. Not to mention your right to a medically safe, legal abortion.

Senator John East, Republican of North Carolina, will be holding hearings on April 23 and 24 for the purpose of providing legislative findings on the important question of when human life begins. To date, he has insisted upon hearing only medical testimony and excluding testimony from the religious, legal, ethical and political communities which believe that they can offer legitimate insights into the question of when human life begins.

Furthermore, there have been no guarantees from the sub-committee that the hearings they hold will represent a balanced, Pro-Choice-Anti-Choice view.

Is this the same senator that is supposed to represent all of the people?

Stand up for your reproductive rights now.

Write Senator John East and ask him why is he muzzling the truth from the other side of the argument.

You can make a difference to protect your rights.

If responsible people like you don't stand up for your reproductive rights, pretty soon--never mind.

A Time To Talk Roads

Even as Gov. Hunt prepares to make his recommendation for increased funding for highway maintenance and construction, legislators are discussing a 4 cents per gallon tax increase on gas and a $30 annual income tax rebate to motorists.

Sen Kenneth C. Royall, Jr., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee acknowledged that such an idea is being discussed. The plan, which has not been put into the form of a bill yet, would have the effect of transferring money from the general fund to the highway fund. The 4 cents tax would raise some $120 million, and around $15 million would be refunded to taxpayers out of the general fund.

It is not known what the governor will propose tonight but most observers feel he will suggest a 2 cents gas tax increase. The governor had not reacted publicly to the rebate plan.

The governor's office in the meantime was distributing a poll which showed North Carolinians would support a modest gas tax increase to support road maintenance.

No doubt following the governor's talk tonight the picture will be much clearer as to where we are headed in finding increased financial support for the highways.

Generally we think it would be better if road maintenance and building is supported from the highway fund, rather than turning to general revenues.

Limit Inventory Tax Credit

The inventory tax credit bill is being sold as one which will increase industrial location in our state. If so, it can mean additional jobs.

There is no reason, however, why the inventory tax credit should be extended on other areas such as retail and wholesale businesses.

Gov. Hunt has vowed an all-out fight if such an effort is made. Even with a phase-in period the inventory tax credit bill will cost the state general fund considerable money. The hope is the benefits of new industry locating in the state will more than off set what is lost.

If the tax credit is extended endlessly, however, there is no estimate of what it will eventually cost the state and, consequently, other tax payers.

We believe the governor is correct in opposing extending the tax credit beyond bonafide industries.

THIS AFTERNOON

Affecting Industry

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The economic pressures hitting you in the pocketbook at the gas pump and grocery store are having even more serious effect on the economic future of North Carolina.

High interest rates for building money, high land costs, and high construction costs are forcing those industries looking to expand or to build new plants to rethink their decisions. Already there are reports of some announced projects in this state either scaled down, delayed, or cancelled altogether.

Industry hunters at the State Department of Commerce say the heaviest demand right now is for already build structures which can be adapted for new uses.

The times when industrial firms bought sprawling acres of land with a view to future expansion may be drawing to a close in favor of smaller buildings located in clustered industrial parks.

New Ways
Trends produced by the economically changing times bear close study, say specialists in Raleigh, and while things won't be as they were, growth will continue in some new and different ways. Those communities which study the trends, adapt to meet them, and stay on the ball in hunting and wooing new industry can continue to benefit.

This concern is behind a major push in this session of the General Assembly to provide relief on the inventory taxes which manufacturers pay in their local property taxes. It is the hope of civic boosters that the change will demonstrate a willingness of government to help business, provide a little boost to the talking points when selling a prospect, and signal a response of government to existing industries that while trying to get new ones, the state appreciates the old ones, too.

Economic development specialists say North Carolina has no oil, gas, or coal; and can do nothing significant to help a prospect in this area either in nailing down a supply, or shaving costs. Transportation needs are making sudden changes. Rail locations are still considered lina is going to have to pull every trick it can find from the bag in the next few years. A rapidly changing situation is that states which once snubbed industrial prospects entirely are now going after them; and states which by various taxing and service policies have been causing their industries to look for new locations are changing those practices. The competition, then, is getting more keen.

Different Needs

The various ingredients in the formula which industries use to weigh location decisions are shifting dramatically and rapidly, in the meantime. Energy costs once were negligible, but now take a prominent posi-

(Winston-Salem Sentinel)

Once upon a time the North Carolina General Assembly met every two years. The citizens elected to serve spent three months or so attending to public business, then went home to mind their own business. The state survived and thrived with relatively little legislating.

That was not so very long ago, well within the memory of many Tar Heels. Then, about 20 years ago, the legislature built itself fine new quarters. The staff was expanded to help fill the pace. It seemed a shame for such facilities and personnel to go unused so much of the time. Besides, the state's budget was growing and economic conditions were much less predictable. It became the usual thing for the General Assembly to meet every year.

Now, leaders are talking about the possibility of recessing the current session to meet again in the fall. The explanation is that action by Congress on the federal budget will have an impact on state spending that will have to be taken into account.

Adjusting the budget could be taken care of in a week, Lt. Gov. James C. Green suggested. The idea would be to limit the fall meeting to budget changes required by the action of Congress.

Does a pattern seem to be emerging? North Carolina has departed from the old practice of a session every two years. The twice-a-year format is described as an emergency, but it could easily become the custom. That's what happened with annual sessions.

The General Assembly has been meeting for three months. There is very little on the record to show for it. Major issues — the budget, highway financing, redistricting in accordance with the 1980 census — have yet to be settled.

No doubt there are reasons for the slow pace. One is that lawmakers know they are not under the pressure of a deadline. They are certain they will come back to Raleigh next year. Annual sessions, whatever the benefits, have lead to a habit of putting off issues, turning them over to study commissions and otherwise avoiding rather than confronting them.

The state is moving closer and closer to a full-time body of legislators, at a climbing cost and little to show in improved quality of government. Citizens should ask themselves if that is what they really want, or will serve the public interest.

A fall session may be required by the circumstances. If so, the budget adjustments which will be involved certainly warrant more than a few days of debate and the rubber-stamp to decisions made by a handful of leaders. And care should be taken to assure that the session responds to an emergency, and is not simply a further step away from the concept of a citizens' legislature.

"I got into Wesleyan."

"Not me, dummy, my kid. We just got accepted."

"You mean your kid just got accepted?"

"We looked at a lot of schools. His mother thought Middlebury was very nice, and I was very impressed with Stanford."

"What did your son think?"

"We didn't ask him. What did he have to do with him?"

"I thought since he would have to go there, he might want a say in the matter."

"You're not going to let a kid make a decision like that. After all, his entire future is at stake."

"I can see your thinking," I said.

"Unless you're a parent, you can't appreciate the agony you go through when your kid applies to college. When Harvard turned us down, my wife stayed in bed for two days. The doctor explained that it wasn't her fault, and she shouldn't take it personally. But she felt she had let us all down."

"It's hard for mothers to have their children rejected," I sympathized.

"Funny enough, the Har-

"Dartmouth doesn't care who it puts on its waiting list," I said. "I hope you told the school where to go."

"I certainly did. I wrote a letter and said if that's the way the school felt about us, it could take its winter carnival and stuff it."

"I'll bet it didn't expect anyone to react that way."

"My wife and I don't want to be associated with any school that plays games with its applicants."

"I admire you both for that. How did your kid feel about it?"

"He seemed happy he had even made the waiting list.

Many See Quality's Decline

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Modern technology has broken down.

Newer doesn't always mean better. To many people, it means worse.

Half of the people questioned by the American Society for Quality Control in a survey of 7,000 households late last year said the quality of American products had declined over the past five years.

The society, which is made up of people who work in the field of quality control, said one-fourth of the public thought quality had improved and one-fourth thought it had stayed the same.

A little more than 27 percent of the people questioned said foreign-made products are better than domestic ones; just under 24 percent said U.S. products are better. The rest said imports and domestic goods are equal.

There is no single, objective standard by which to judge the thousands of consumer products on the market. Quality frequently is in the eye of the customer.

People in business, in government and in the consumer movement generally agree that the basic quality of big-ticket items — cars, major household appliances and television sets, for example, — is better than ever, whether the public believes it or not.

There is less of a consensus about things like small appliances, clothing and the gadgets of everyday life in the 1980s.

"It's mixed," said Ralph Nader, when asked about quality. "Some products are not made the way they used to be," said the long-time industry critic. Small appliances seem to break more quickly. "Clothes," Nader said, "are falling apart."

Does the public care? Monte Florman, director of the technical department for Consumers Union, the non-profit testing organization,

Meese Has Rescue Role

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III personally handled details launching President Reagan's campaign to sell AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia, showing Reagan's commitment to what is best for U.S. interests in the Persian Gulf despite Israeli objections.

An earlier rescue mission by Meese might have prevented the disarray between the State and Defense Departments. The clash between Secretary of State Alexander Haig and Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, almost blew up the AWACS package before it was tied. As it is, the administration still faces an uphill climb to win Senate approval.

Shortly before noon on April 21, Meese placed a conference call to Haig and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger to plan Reagan's kick-off statement later that day. Meese's personal involvement resolved doubts about Reagan's own intent to make Saudi Arabia a full partner in protecting the Persian Gulf oil jugular.

Meese also helped draft the statement in Reagan's name, declaring that sale of the five airborne radar ships was "essential to protect our interests." That contradicted the authoritative memorandum published by the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC), which mirrors Israel's views, that the sale "will seriously endanger American interests."

Gen. Jones (an Air Force officer) and Air Force generals had negotiated the AWACS deal in detail in late March after a tentative go-ahead from the National Security Council (NSC) in mid-February. Secret negotiations were conducted in the Pentagon with two top Saudi air force commanders.

Why did Jones rush the sale? For one thing, with Saudi Arabia completely lacking high mountain tops for fixed radar, Jones wants the Saudis to have their own AWACS for future 24-hour surveillance of one of the world's most strategic regions. For another, the $1 billion to $2 billion price of the five sophisticated AWACS is money saved by the Pentagon that would otherwise be spent, making the deal a budget bonanza.

When the NSC met on the subject for the second time April 1 (without the hospitalized president), Haig was astonished to learn that the AWACS deal had been concluded. So was Vice President George Bush, presiding over the NSC in Reagan's absence. Bush asked Weinberger: Have we gotten assurances that the Saudis will pool their information with us (when the AWACS are deployed in 1985)? The answer: No!

Obtaining such approval was the State Department's job, but so rapidly had the Air Force negotiations been conducted that Haig's men were left behind. Word flashed through Congress that Saudi Arabia, America's oldest friend in the Middle East, had not agreed to "pool" the vast intelligence expected out of the AWACS. The Israeli lobby had new and telling ammunition.

When Haig returned from the Mideast 10 days later, he brought private Saudi assurances to pool the surveillance product of the five AWACS. More than that, Haig brought back strong indications that, although the Saudis would never admit it publicly, the five aircraft plus 62 F-15s previously sold along with other American military aid would in fact give the U.S. a greatly enhanced presence in the desert kingdom. Thus, the deal was clearly in U.S. interests.

But if the AWACS were not sold because of a congressional veto, all would be transformed. Haig was cautioned with typical Saudi circumlocution that the kingdom would quickly cool its ardor for the long-standing American partnership.

When Haig reported these facts to Reagan after his return here, congressional opposition to the sale was beginning to peak. Thanks to Davy Jones' end run, none of the lobbying work normal in take a screwdriver, tinker under the hood and fix your car yourself. Power steering and air conditioning didn't used to break down because there was no power steering or air conditioning. Automobiles, said Nader, are safer. "The problem is they're more complex." That means more things can go wrong.

—There is a shortage of skilled repairmen, particularly in the auto industry. What starts as a minor problem becomes a major headache when it isn't fixed the first time.

—We know more than we used to. Older products may have had just as many potential hazards, but we weren't aware of them. There was no mechanism for recalling unsafe items, for example. "The general quality (of products) has improved over the years," said John Bell, spokesman for the Consumer Product Safety Commission. But he said that publicity about problems has made the public more aware of them.

—There is no fixed definition of quality. Is durability the test? Cost? Is a new, lightweight, three-speed hairdryer that costs $15.95 and lasts two years better or worse than an older, heavier, two-speed model that cost $29.95 and lasted five years? How important are energy efficiency and safety? Nader said, for example, that people don't think about auto safety until they have an accident. "It's the rattles and the bugs that people complain about," he said.

At Consumers Union, Florman said: "Except for automobiles, I'd have to say things are better than they used to be ... Major appliances are probably better than they've ever been ... TV sets are terrific..."

The automakers take exception to Florman's exception. "By any objective measure, they (cars) are made better," said Thomas H. Hanna, senior vice president of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association. He said today's autos need less regular maintenance and fewer repairs than older models.

"We feel that our people are committed to building the best product we can," said Don DeVoto, quality control director at the General Motors assembly plant at Tarrytown, N.Y., which produces X-cars, the compacts GM introduced in 1979 to compete with the imports.

GM is staking its quality reputation on its forthcoming J-cars, subcompacts which will go on sale May 14. The company says it has improved "fits and finishes" — things like body work and joints. The side frame of the four-door model will be stamped in one piece to eliminate joints and weld marks. Robots will be used for some of the welding and to check the accuracy of things like windshield size.

The number of automobiles recalled every year already has declined. Just under four million domestic vehicles were recalled last year, compared to about seven million in 1979, eight million in 1978 and a record 10.7 million in 1977.

At the same time, however, 62 percent of the more than 2,500 people questioned in January by the marketing research firm of H.R. Bruskin said the quality of new automobiles was not as good today as it was 5 or 10 years ago.

Other products fared nearly as poorly. Fifty-one percent of those surveyed said furniture isn't as good as it used to be; more than 45 percent said the quality of appliances and clothing was down. In each case, less than 20 percent of the public said quality had improved.

John Nevin, chairman of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., disagrees. "American quality tends to be very good," he said. "The perception of shoddy American quality is a uniquely American perception," Nevin added, citing airplanes, computer technology and weapons systems as examples of U.S. products that are in demand around the world.

Leek also said the perception of poor quality is important. "Whether it's true or not becomes somewhat immaterial," he said.

critical, but the nation's trains seem to be cutting back on service and scheduling. Truck operating costs are climbing rapidly. And, if efforts to woo micro-electronics interests to the state succeed, the airplane will take added importance because a month's production of silicon chips can be transported in a briefcase.

Similar changes in these and other areas such as labor supply and costs affect economic growth all across the nation, so say the experts: those communities which help come up with solutions will be ahead of the game.

Meanwhile, waste control and disposal has moved several notches up on the list of industry concerns. Pollution control requirements have added significantly to the cost of producing a product, and in some cases have all but closed down some operations. State sources say industrial prospects are now hunting help in meeting those requirements, and in properly disposing of wastes. This is one reason state

Leek said that foreign manufacturers have "done a wonderful job in the past 15 years" of making their products last longer. "They have made quality part of the management woodwork," U.S. companies have not. "American management," Leek said, "became too obsessed with the profit and loss statement."

He has problems with self-respect."

"So after all this, why did you decide on Wesleyan?"

"Well, we checked it out with all our friends and they didn't see anything wrong with our kid going there. It wasn't as if we were sending him off to NYU or the University of Maryland. Wesleyan sounds Ivy League, even if it isn't. Also, when someone asks why we didn't choose Yale or Princeton, we can say in all honesty, we preferred a smaller school, where you get to know the other kids. Frankly, when the acceptance letter arrived yesterday, I was terribly relieved."

"Have you told your son yet where he's going?"

"No, but I don't see any problem."

"He said as long as we were happy with his college choice, he'd be happy."

"I like a kid who thinks for himself," I said. "How does your wife feel about it?"

"She's relieved also, though she did say we hadn't heard from the University of Pennsylvania yet, and maybe we should wait before sending Wesleyan the registration fee."

"I didn't know you two were considering Penn," I told him.

"We have to consider Penn, just in case we want to go to business school for our master's degree."

such cases had been done. The speed of the Air Force brass in completing the deal outpaced the ability of the politicians to keep up.

That handed the president a dilemma. To change his mind about the AWACS would bring the beginning of the end of the U.S.-Saudi alliance, a fact not disputed by military or diplomatic specialists here. But to affirm the sale officially would trigger severe political opposition, more from the pro-Israel lobby here than from the Israeli government.

Haig, Weinberger, CIA Director William J. Casey and Bush all argued that Reagan could not let Israel wield a veto on U.S. foreign policy in the Middle East. Strongly agreeing with them was Meese, who had taken a leading role in the April 1 NSC meeting. At the end, Meese summed up the essence of the session while Bush and other members listened.

Reagan himself showed no doubts about proceeding, nor self-deception about the political trouble he now faces in avoiding a congressional veto. But down deep, the president believes that after a delay of a few months, he can persuade Congress that he knows more about America's "interests" in the Persian Gulf area than Israel does.

Want Pay For Legal Service

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The federal government should continue paying for legal services and legislative lobbying for people who can't afford lawyers, the North Carolina Bar Association says.

The association's board of governors voted 10-4 Friday to urge Congress to continue spending about $320 million for Legal Services Corp., the federal agency that provides civil lawyers free to poor people nationwide.

The move is significant because North Carolina has produced some of the most influential and vocal opposition to Legal Services, said North Carolina Legal Services spokesman Jim Abbott. The state group spends $6 million a year.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Rep. Eugene Johnston, R-N.C., have been strong and vocal opponents of Legal Services.

Association president Dewey Wells said the resolution urged continuation of the funding for all of its programs.

Some of those programs, especially Legal Services' class-action suits and legislative lobbying, are the major reasons the agency is fighting for its financial life against the Reagan administration's efforts to discontinue funding.

The board voted against the wishes of Wells, an Elizabeth City Republican considered a top candidate for a $60,000-a-year Eastern District federal judgeship. That judgeship will be filled by the recommendation Sen. Helms makes to President Reagan.

The board's vote "indicates that at least the lawyers of North Carolina still are committed to giving low-income people access to the legal system," Abbott said.

Reagan, Helms and Johnson oppose Legal Services Inc. because it has lobbied for abortions and "all sorts of government social programs" and against cuts in taxes, food stamps and the federal budget, said Sam Currin, a Helms legislative aide.

Currin, who is expected to get Helms' recommendation for the $50,000-a-year job as U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District, said Legal Services is "trying to force judicial solutions to political or public policy questions."

He and other critics believe Legal Services should limit its work to individual clients and routine legal problems such as evictions, government benefits and debts.

Supporters of the organization say almost all of their work involves such cases. The lobbying and class-action suits constitute "a miniscule" part of the Legal Services' programs, said Denison Ray of Raleigh, executive director of North Carolina Legal Services Inc.

A baby's world is very immediate. Visually speaking, it is within a few feet. A month old baby does not see objects at a distance but where formerly he focused with one eye at a time, he will begin to focus both eyes at the same object. By the time the baby is three months old, the eyes should be working as a team and not wandering off by themselves. A child's eyes that are constantly turning or wandering off at the time of his first birthday requires help. Failure to receive such help at this critical juncture of life could result in abnormal development or amblyopia (a lazy eye).

Church Will Observe Anniversary

The First Presbyterian Church at the intersection of Elm and 14th Streets will observe its 90th anniversary in services Sunday.

Dr. Frontis W. Johnston, professor of History at Davidson College, will speak on the history of Presbyterians in North Carolina at the 11 a.m. worship service. The congregation will have a picnic "Under the Oaks" on church property along 14th Street following the worship service.

The day's events will conclude with a brief historical sketch of the church, "Highlights, Sidelights, and Light Sides of Church Life."

Dr. Johnston, a native of Summerville, S. C., graduated from Davidson College, and received his doctorate from Yale University. He served as dean of the faculty at Davidson and in 1970 was named dean of the honors college there. He was moderator of the Presbyterian Synod on North Carolina in 1974.

A Ruling Elder in the Davidson Presbyterian Church, Dr. Johnston is the grandson of the first Presbyterian minister ever to preach in Greenville and Pitt County, Dr. Frontis Howe Johnston. His cousins, Christine and William Johnston, were life long members of the First Presbyterian Church here.

The Rev. Leonard W. Topping, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here from 1947 until 1957, the church's present pastor, the Rev. Richard R. Gammon, and the present associate pastor, the Rev. Gerald M. Anders, will also take part in the Sunday services.

Rev. Topping, a native of Hampton, Va., came to Greenville from Griffin, Ga., then served as associate pastor at the First Presbyterian Church in Spartansburg, S. C. and as associate pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Charlotte, before his retirement.

Rev. Gammon, a Davidson College and Union Theological Seminary graduate, was pastor of a church in Columbia, Tenn., before coming to Greenville in 1958, while Rev. Anders, a West Virginia native, came here in 1978 from Birmingham, Ala.

The church was organized with 11 charter members, and the first building, dedicated in 1897, was located at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Greene Streets. In 1929, the congregation moved to a new building at the intersection of Fifth and Pitt Streets.

The present church building, at the intersection of Elm and 14th Streets, was dedicated in 1971.

The church membership totals more than 750 persons today.

Closing Arguments On Repayments By Agnew

By TOM STUCKEY
Associated Press Writer
ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Attorneys were going to court today to present closing arguments in a civil suit seeking repayment of kickbacks that former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew allegedly received while governor of Maryland.

The trial, which began last week, was winding up without testimony from Agnew. Prosecutors tried to subpoena Agnew as a witness, but Judge Bruce Williams ruled the former governor did not have to testify.

Agnew's attorney, Thomas R. Harrison, said Friday that Agnew "would love to testify" but wouldn't appear because of concern that any testimony he gave could be used against him if the state decided to file criminal charges.

The civil suit filed by three taxpayers and joined by the state later asks that Agnew be required to pay to the state treasury $177,500 in kickbacks he allegedly accepted on highway contracts while he was governor in 1967 and 1968. The suit also asks $120,610 in interest from Agnew.

Weapon Arrest Made

Greenville police arrested Edward Earl Pate, 20 of Route 3, Snow Hill, early today on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and possession of a weapon in an establishment serving alcoholic beverages.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Pate was taken into custody following a 2:31 a.m. report that the man was in the Chapter X nightclub at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche Streets, with a weapon.

The chief noted that officers confiscated a .38 caliber Derringer from Pate.

A federal investigation into those allegations resulted in Agnew pleading no contest to a charge of income tax evasion and resigning as vice president on Oct. 11, 1973. He paid about $160,000 in back taxes, penalties and interest to the state and federal governments in 1974, Harrison said Friday.

The state has never tried to prosecute Agnew, but Harrison said criminal charges still could be filed.

Asked what Agnew would say if he appeared on the witness stand, Harrison said he would testify that he paid the taxes rather than defend himself in tax court.

"He would say that he made the payments so he would be left alone. It was less expensive than trying to defend himself. He was not acknowledging any guilt," Harrison said.

Before court recessed for the weekend, Agnew's former lawyer, George White

Jr., testified that he confronted the former vice president in February 1973 with allegations that kickbacks had been solicited from consulting engineers and that Agnew had gotten a share.

"I said, 'Ted, this is serious. You've got to level with me. I've got to know,'" White said, recalling the meeting with Agnew.

"His answer was, 'It's been going on for a thousand years. What Jerry and Bud told you is true,'" White testified.

"Jerry and Bud" were Jerome Wolff, chairman of the State Roads Commission in 1967 and 1968, and I.H. "Bud" Hammerman, a close friend and adviser to Agnew when he was governor.

Two Collisions Are Reported

An estimated $2,200 damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville police Sunday.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 9:24 a.m. mishap at the intersection of 14th and Chestnut Streets, involving cars driven by Albert Glenn Williams of Route 3, Greenville, and Charles Douglas Gatlin of 1114 Ward St.

Police estimated damage at $200 to the Williams car and $1,500 to the Gatlin vehicle.

Investigators charged Raymond Siebern Eubanks III of Route 1, Grifton, with driving under the influence following investigation of a 1:04 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Evans Street and Greenville Boulevard.

Officers reported the Eubanks car collided with a utility pole, causing $400 damage to the car and $100 damage to the pole.

DOT Consultant Fees Are Under Criticism

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The state Department of Transportation has awarded more than $40 million in consultant fees to private firms since January 1977—and state legislators are criticizing the spending.

The department has spent or agreed to spend more than $1 million each with 12 of the firms for jobs that range from designing bridges to performing archaeological studies on proposed highway rights of way, DOT figures show.

During a hearing earlier this month before the joint Select Committee on the Department of Transportation, Rep. Dennis A. Wicker, D-Lee, said he was astounded by the $40 million figure.

Wicker and other committee members have asked transportation officials about their use of consultants, especially those from out of state.

They were angered that the department has spent so much money as highway revenues dwindle. Gov. Jim Hunt is scheduled to announce his recommendations for the highway fund crisis results, Rose said. That was one reason for the high consultant cost for roadway design, he said.

"You get a hue and cry from people who say here we've provided the money and we don't see anything being done," he said. "There's a rush after a bond issue to show the people tonight.

Some legislators suggest that the agency relies too heavily on consultants. They are skeptical about DOT officials' insistence that much of the expertise they require does not exist in North Carolina.

Four of the 12 firms that have received large consultant contracts are based in North Carolina.

Most of the consultant money was spent in two areas: a federally mandated bridge inspection program ($16.96 million) and roadway design ($11.87 million).

The department has personnel in both areas, but needed consultants because quick response was necessary for specific situations, said Highway Administrator Billy Rose.

When taxpayers approved a $300 million bond issue in 1977, they expected quick you're spending the money you've got."

Also, Rose said, if department employees had been hired to do the same work, they would have been laid off when the work was done.

"Since our work loads peak and fall off we try to keep a work force to take care of the work load that is sustaining," Rose said.

Most bridge safety inspections were done by consul-ants because DOT failed to meet a Dec. 31, 1980, deadline to qualify for the state's full share of federal funding for repairs, Rose said.

That deadline was met, and the consultants are now working on the second round of bridge inspections, he said.

Rose said DOT had negotiated the price of consultant contracts rather than asking for bids and giving the work to the low bidder. But he said DOT is considering asking for bids for routine consultant work.

"Some other states, Georgia for example, have gone to a competitive bid system," he said.

Inspection At Conley

The D.H. Conley JROTC battalion had its AFJ (Annual Formal Inspection) recently.

The inspectors arrived at 9 a.m. and were greeted by the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Emory Vines, along with battalion executive officer Major Dane Smith. A brief meeting with the battalion staff followed and the inspection of the cadets then began.

The procedure included a formal in-ranks inspection in front of the school and a pass-in-review marching inspection. The files, supplies and arms room were also examined.

The men's and ladies' drill teams, headed by Cpt. Reginald Johnson and Lt. Mary Mitchell performed for the inspectors after the proceedings.

REQUEST APPROVED
Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of a request by Grindle Creek Church of God youth group for permission to sell barbecue and chicken plates at the King's Department Store parking lot on May 2 to raise funds for the group.

Secretaries Luncheon Held

Some 285 area secretaries and bosses attended an annual luncheon here recently, sponsored by the Greenville Chapter of Professional Secretaries International in honor of Secretaries Day.

During the program, held at the Casablanca, awards were presented to Ms. Helen Rollins as Secretary of the Year and to Ms. Anne Harrington as the local chapter's Outstanding Member of the Year.

Secretaries Week is celebrated during the last full week in April each year. The Greenville organization sponsors several functions during the week for chapter members and public participation.

Get Mocap. Before nematodes get your soybeans.

Nematode damage can cost you 15 to 20 bushels of soybeans per acre. But thanks to Mocap® nematicide-insecticide, it's a loss you can easily avoid.

Mocap controls root-knot, sting and lesion nematodes that feed on the root system of soybean plants. By destroying these nematodes, Mocap helps insure the development of healthy roots that can channel important nutrients and soil moisture to your plants. And that can help you get the kind of yields you should be getting.

Mocap comes in two easy-to-apply formulations—Mocap 10G (granular) and Mocap 6 EC (liquid). And it's economical to use. So see us for the Mocap you need this season. And see the difference it makes in your soybeans.

Trying Air-Cured Tobacco In Pitt Co.

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer
Air-cured tobacco may be a common sight in Pitt County and other sections of the flue-cured growing area this summer — but it may be the first and only widespread fling with the so-called "Maryland" tobacco.
A federal marketing official has suggested in meetings in North Carolina and South Carolina within the last week that barriers to free planting of Maryland tobacco may be imposed for the 1982 crop season.

John H. Cyrus, chief of tobacco affairs for the state Department of Agriculture, says he is confident this will be the last year such tobacco can be planted at will, with virtually no restrictions on where it is grown or how much is produced.

Maryland tobacco — a light, air-cured tobacco that is not under the production quota program and can be produced at less cost than flue-cured leaf — is similar in nature to burley tobacco grown in western North Carolina and Kentucky. Burley, in short supply after two years of low production, averaged nearly $166 per hundred pounds at auctions last year.

Maryland tobacco has been grown throughout North Carolina for two or more years, but 1981 is the first time it apparently will be grown in significant quantity.

Cyrus said seed companies have reported sales sufficient to produce several million pounds of Maryland tobacco, with estimates ranging from 5 million pounds up to 15 million pounds. Less than a million pounds of Maryland-type tobacco was produced in North Carolina last year.

Sam Uzzell, farm extension agent in Pitt County, said he expected several hundred acres of the non-quota leaf to be planted in this area.

One farmer who is considering such a crop is Willie Mozingo of Farmville, who already has transplanted 80 acres of flue-cured leaf. He has seed beds for Maryland tobacco, and is considering up to 12 or more of the variety.

His reason is typical. "I have to lease (flue-cured) tobacco poundage at 55 cents to 60 cents a pound. If I can plant this without the quota costs, I'm way ahead. And you cut it, instead of curing it, so you cut out curing oil and electricity," Mozingo explained.

Maryland-type tobacco normally is produced in the Marlboro area of Maryland near Washington, D.C. A typical harvest there would have the entire stalk cut in the field and then hung under a shelter or open barn for curing. In North Carolina, many growers prime it two or three times, tie the leaves on sticks and then hang it in conventional stick-type barns for drying.

Cyrus also noted that some farmers have cured the leaf in bulk barns, using little or no heat. He said heat tends to cause the tobacco to lose some of its darkness, which would jeopardize its character as a non-quota leaf.

There is no quota restriction on Maryland-type tobacco but, if it is planted on a farm where flue-cured leaf is produced, the total acreage of the two types of tobacco cannot exceed the allotment for the flue-cured leaf. There are no restrictions on the amount of Maryland tobacco that can be planted by growers who have leased their flue-cured poundage off the farm.

The import yields 1,200 to 1,400 pounds per acre, far below the ton or more that is typical of flue-cured tobacco. It normally is planted later than flue-cured and is harvested later, usually beginning in August. One or more auction days for the Maryland tobacco, which does not carry a price support, are planned in this area near the end of the market season for flue-cured leaf.

Uzzell said cultural practices for Maryland-type leaf are essentially the same as used for flue-cured tobacco.

T.A. VonGarlen, director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Tobacco Division of the Agricultural Marketing Service, has suggested in meetings in Raleigh and Myrtle Beach, S.C., that prohibitions on Maryland-type tobacco will be imposed for the 1982 season.

Two possibilities appear to have the strongest favor within the USDA: To classify Maryland-type leaf as quota tobacco if it is grown in a quota area such as North Carolina, or to prohibit outright the production of all non-quota tobacco in an area under the quota system.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
Cnty. Ext. Chairman
This year will be a challenging one for soybean growers across the southeast.

The disastrous drought of 1980 reduced yields to the extent that a good crop in 1981 is needed to put many back on their feet financially. The key to this is management!

More than ever, it will be necessary to refine management inputs to maximize profits. Costs for lime, seed and equipment have increased and interest rates are still high.

N.C. Agricultural economists report that the 1981 break-even yield, considering variable and fixed costs, is around 20 bushels per acre for $7.50 soybeans. So how are profits to be made?

There are two ways to reduce costs or increase yields. With good management it should be possible to do both, given a non-repeat of the 1980 drought.

GOVERN ACREAGE
Don't plant more soybeans than you can manage properly. In recent years, as costs have escalated, the tendency for some growers has been to increase their acreage.

QUALITY SEED

Don't plant uncleaned seed of questionable germination in 1981. There are shortages with some varieties, but there is no cause for panic, although prices are $5 plus per bushel higher than in 1980.

SOIL TEST

Don't guess, soil test. It's an old slogan, but it is very pertinent to today's situation.

Growers who want to cut back on costs should not start with lime. If it is needed the ideal soil pH for soybeans in North Carolina is 5.8 to 6.2.

EXCESSIVE LODGING

Don't overplant. There are still too many growers suffering from excessive lodging due to overplanting. The optimum population is six to eight plants per row foot for 30-40 inch rows.

WET SOILS

Don't plant soybeans in soil wet enough for swelling and even germination, but too dry for emergence. Many learned some tough lessons with this in 1980.

It is probably okay to plant in dry soil if a rain is expected within a week; but if moisture at the planting depth is marginal, it is best to wait. Under ideal moisture conditions, emergence should occur in five to seven days after planting.

Lid On Prices

RALEIGH — Producers can expect top hog prices per hundredweight to average near $40 until mid-May, and then rise seasonally to the $50 range in July, say specialists with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service.

"Large meat supplies and weak consumer demand are keeping a lid on livestock prices," the specialists said in their monthly summary of their market outlook for farm commodities.

Average hog slaughter weights continue to be two percent above a year ago, and slaughter volume has continued to be larger than expected.

The inventory of hogs and pigs in 14 leading states on March 1 was down an estimated nine percent from a year earlier. The reduced inventory and rapid movement of hogs to market through early April should prevent further weakness in prices during April and May, the North Carolina State University specialists said.

Slaughter during June-September is expected to be seven to eight percent below last year but large enough to keep prices in the low $50.

The specialists said the long-term outlook for hog prices is favorable if producers follow their intentions and cut back substantially on production.

Prices for choice slaughter steers at Omaha are expected to average in the $60-$65 per hundredweight range until late May, the specialists said.

"A continued abundance of excessively finished cattle, large cow and nonfed slaughter, and large supplies of competing meats have resulted in depressed cattle prices," they said.

Prices for all types of cattle during the next two to three months will depend heavily on spring moisture for range and pasture development. If good grazing conditions exist in most areas of the country, significant declines are expected in cow and nonfed steer and heifer slaughter.

This would allow feedlots to work off their backlog and get more current on marketing. Once feedlots become current, fed cattle prices will likely be near $70 per hundredweight, this summer before trending lower in the fall.

Disappearance Is Investigated

ATLANTA (AP) — The disappearance of a 21-year-old black man is being investigated informally by a special task force probing the murders of 25 young blacks even though the man's name has not been added to the official task force list, authorities say.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown reviewed the case of Jimmy Ray Payne on Sunday and decided not to turn it over immediately to the task force, which also is investigating the disappearance last September of 10-year-old Darron Glass.

But police spokesman Roger Harris said Sunday the task force and investigators from the missing persons unit are working "hand in hand" in an informal way on Payne's case.

Payne was last seen Wednesday morning when he left his southwest Atlanta home to sell old coins at the Omni, a downtown hotel complex where 11-year-old Patrick Baltazar, one of the 25 victims on the task force list, was last seen in February.

Only three of the 26 task force cases involve adults, and Payne, like those three, is small in stature, standing 5-foot-3 and weighing 130 pounds. Unlike those three, however, Payne has not been described as mentally retarded or "slow."

Payne was reported missing Thursday morning by his sister, Evelyn Payne, who said she became concerned when he failed to meet his girlfriend Wednesday night at a neighborhood transit station.

In other developments Sunday, FBI Director William Webster said he did not authorize comments earlier this month by FBI Agent Mike Twibell, who told a Macon civil club that parents were responsible for some of the 25 slayings.

"I don't think those kind of statements help in a situation where a city is in turmoil," Webster said on NBC-TV's Meet the Press.

Webster also said there was nothing new in the past two weeks to report on the FBI's investigation of the slayings.

Asked if a compulsive killer was involved, the FBI director, noting that at least four and perhaps five slayings have occurred in the past two months, said, "You can draw that inference if you wish."

Also on Sunday, the attorney for a man police want to question in connection with the slayings said her client has "information which could be helpful" to the investigation.

But Sharon Meade, attorney for Larry Marshall, said he won't talk to the task force unless he is granted immunity from prosecution for crimes unrelated to the killings.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today following last week's surge.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which hit an eight-year high on Friday, gained 0.18 to 1,020.53 by noon.

Advances held an slim lead over declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

But the NYSE's composite index fell 0.02 to 78.03.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 0.24 at 361.32.

The Labor Department reported this morning that business productivity increased in the first three months of 1981 after declining in the final quarter of last year.

Some analysts said the report was a hopeful sign in the battle to control inflation. But others said the report of improved productivity would make it more difficult for President Reagan to convince Congress of the need to act quickly on his economic program.

Robert Stovall of Dean Witter Reynolds said there was optimism for at least short-term progress in controlling the growth of the nation's money supply. Too fast growth is a sign of increased inflationary pressures.

Stovall cited a Federal Reserve Board report following the close of trading Friday that a closely watched measure of funds readily available for spending declined slightly in mid-April after spurring higher for several weeks.

Big Board volume totaled 24.15 million shares over the first two hours, down from 26.71 million in the comparable period Friday.

Texas Utilities was the most active issue, up 3/4 at 18 1/2, in trading that included a block of 200,000 shares changing hands at 18 1/2.

There was further evidence of the impact of a world surplus of oil supplies as Venezuela reduced the price of its residual fuel oil, which is used mainly for heating. And Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, told reporters in Spain that his country has no plans to raise crude oil prices.

Oil issues were mixed in early trading, including Standard Oil (Indiana), down 7/8 at 57 1/2; Texaco, unchanged at 35 1/2; Atlantic Richfield, down 1/4 at 46 1/2; Exxon, up 3/4 at 67 1/2; Mobil, up 1/2 at 60 1/2; and Standard Oil of California, up 1/4 at 37 1/2.

Airlines, which had suffered from rising fuel costs, moved higher. Trans World rose 7/8 to 27 1/2 and Eastern Airlines gained 1/4 to 11.

Develop Goals

City officials are in the process of developing the local 1981-82 goals and objectives program.

In 1981-82, it was pointed out, priority will be placed on achieving three goals — to improve productivity of city employees, achieve fair and equal employment, and to reduce energy consumption by the city.

The program will be completed by June 30 and will become effective on July 1.

The city reported that its goals and objectives system was initiated within the city organization in January of 1980. One of the most noteworthy accomplishments under the program is the reduction of automobile gasoline consumption by ten percent.

Under the system, city employees are encouraged to seek ways of improving their assigned jobs and functions.

Patricia Hearst Loses In Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today left intact Patricia Hearst Shaw's 1976 bank robbery conviction, turning away arguments that famed trial lawyer F. Lee Bailey gave her "insufficient" legal help.

The justices, without comment, refused to consider ruling that defense lawyers automatically fail to give adequate legal help when they agree to write a book about a trial before it begins.

Today's action, however, does not end Mrs. Shaw's attempt to overturn her bank robbery conviction. Her new lawyer now will have a chance to convince a federal judge that Bailey's conduct "adversely affected" Mrs. Shaw's chance of acquittal.

Mrs. Shaw, now represented by San Francisco lawyer George Martinez, charges that Bailey created a conflict of interest when contracting for the publishing rights of a book about his client and her trial.

Her Supreme Court appeal contended that the conflict denied Mrs. Shaw of her right to a fair trial.

"We submit that the issue presented herein goes to the heart of our judicial system," the appeal said.

"The potential or apparent violations of several (American Bar Association) disciplinary rules and canons of professional conduct as the result of the prohibited contract... could never be other than an actual conflict of interest."

Horse Show Awards Made

WOODLAND — Josie Forbes, a native of Greenville, took two first place awards in the Coastal Plains Horse Show Circuit event held in Woodland on Sunday, April 26.

Riding her pleasure horse, she placed first in both the American Saddlebred English Pleasure and the Pleasure Horse Stake divisions.

Second place in the Pleasure Horse Stake was won by Silver Sea, owned and ridden by Janna Weir of Greenville.

In other events, winners were:

— Amateur Third Gaited — first place, Shamrock's Champion, owned and ridden by Janna Weir; second place, Woodstock, owned and ridden by Faye Creegan of Greenville.

— Three Gaited Stake — first place, Shamrock's Champion, owned and ridden by Janna Weir; second place, Woodstock, owned by Faye Creegan and ridden by Randy Cole.

The next show for Shamrock's Champion and Woodstock will be at Statesville beginning Wednesday, April 29 and continuing through Saturday, May 2.

Writers To Meet On Tuesday

The second meeting for the month of May of the Greenville Writers Club will be held beginning at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 28 at the home of Pat O'Leary, 2813 Ellsworth Drive, Lake Ellsworth Subdivision. Anyone interested in any form of creative writing is invited to attend.

CAR STOLEN

FARMVILLE — Farmville police are investigating the apparent theft of an automobile from the backyard of a Farmville couple 10 days ago.

Gordon E. Lee reported that a 1976 tan and red Chevrolet Impala was stolen from his residence at 307 N. Main Street here while he and his wife were away from home. The keys were left in the vehicle, police said.

Anyone having information about this car is asked to contact the Farmville Police Department.

The NFL Draft

Even Here, Oakland's Davis Stands Alone

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty-seven teams in the National Football League belong to scouting combines, those computerized professional organizations which scour the world for the best pigskin prospects.

One team does not. Guess which one. If you said the Oakland Raiders, go to the head of the class — where the Raiders happen to be these days.

Al Davis, the NFL's Machiavelli (or Mephistopheles), is a man alone. He prefers to operate outside the usual channels.

He's going head-to-head with Commissioner Pete Rozelle and the rest of the league over whether his Raiders should be allowed to move from Oakland to Los Angeles. And in the next couple of days, he just might break some more new ground.

The NFL draft will be held Tuesday and Wednesday. In 12 rounds, the best of the nation's college seniors will be divided up by the league. In the first couple of rounds (barring such unexpected developments as defections to the Canadian Football League), they'll be picking "sure things," players virtually guaranteed to make the 1981 rosters — and to make their 1981 tax returns worthy of the attention of a battery of accountants.

As of now, all the teams are expected to draft players whose college eligibility has ended. But there is the chance — albeit a slight one — that the Raiders may "waste" a middle or low-round pick on a player now considered by NFL standards to be ineligible.

The draft as it now exists was approved by the league and the players' union in February 1977 as part of a five-year collective bargaining agreement. The draft was guaranteed, in that agreement, through 1986. Prior to that, the draft had been ruled illegal by the courts, but the union and club owners agreed upon a revised version which has yet to be tested.

The present system still prohibits a player — Herschel Walker, for example — from entering the NFL if his class has not graduated, even if he's already quit college and played for a while in the CFL.

The willingness of Davis to challenge his fellow owners in the NFL, and the wooing of Walker, the sensational freshman running back from Georgia, by Nelson Skalbania, owner of the CFL's Montreal Alouettes, opens the door to all sorts of speculation that a blockbuster development could emerge from this draft.

That is not to say Davis would draft Walker. Probably not. Although Davis is willing to challenge the establishment (of which he is a part), Walker is not that type. And it would likely take a lawsuit — or the threat of one — for the NFL to accept any "underage" players into the fold the way pro basketball and hockey now do.

But on a gridiron somewhere in this country is a football player who, justified or not, thinks he's ready to play with the pros in the same way that teenagers Moses Malone and Wayne Gretzky showed they were ready for basketball and hockey with the big boys.

The biggest running back — in reputation, not size — in this year's draft is George Rogers of South Carolina, almost certain to be selected No. 1 by the New Orleans Saints.

Bum Phillips, coach of the Saints, knows the value of a super runner. He built the Houston Oilers into contenders with Earl Campbell (three seasons, three rushing titles) as his centerpiece, his workhorse.

Rogers, perhaps a shade below Campbell's magnificence, is nevertheless the same kind of back, a man who can carry the ball play after play after play without wearing down.

The rest of the first-round order is the New York Giants, New York Jets, Seattle, St. Louis, Green Bay, Tampa Bay, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Cincinnati, Chicago, Baltimore, Miami, Kansas City, Denver, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Minnesota, New England, Washington, Oakland (from Houston, as partial payment for tight end Dave Casper), Cleveland, Buffalo, San Diego, Atlanta, Dallas, Philadelphia and Oakland again.

Among the other premier players likely to go before the first round ends are a trio of defensive end-linebackers — Hugh Green of Pittsburgh (winner of the Lombardi Trophy as the nation's top lineman), Lawrence Taylor of North Carolina and E.J. Junior of Alabama — along with safeties Kenny Easley of UCLA and Ronnie Lott of Southern Cal. running backs Freeman McNeil of UCLA and Randy McMillan of Pitt, wide receivers David Verser of Kansas and Mark Nichols of San Jose State, and quarterbacks Neil Lomax of Portland State and Rich Campbell of California.

Rockets One Away From NBA Finals

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Rockets Coach Del Harris told his team to play the Kansas City Kings as if they were in the final game of the National Basketball Association Western Conference finals with only 48 minutes separating them from elimination.

The result was a stunning performance by center Moses Malone, who scored 42 points and grabbed 23 rebounds as the Rockets decked the Kings 100-89 Sunday.

Now, Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons will make the same speech Wednesday night in Kansas City, but he'll be telling the truth — the Kings have only 48 minutes to avoid elimination from the playoffs.

Houston has a 3-1 lead and is one victory away from a spot in the NBA championship finals against either Philadelphia or Boston.

"Before the game, Del went to the board and wrote 'pretend this is game seven,'" Reid said. "He said we always play better in the last game. He told us to forget our lead and think it was 3-3 with 48 minutes left."

The Kings have had difficulty picking which Rocket is the decoy and which one is armed with live ammunition.

The Rockets used Malone as a decoy last Friday night, so Calvin Murphy and Robert Reid blasted away for a total of 43 points and a 92-88 victory. But Malone came out firing Sunday.

"I just want to win this series, I don't care how many points I get myself," Malone said. "I got 12 Friday night and we still won and it's no different when I get 42."

"I really think it's great that the two Cinderella teams that nobody thought would make it this far, are battling it out for the Western Conference championship."

Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons praised his team despite the loss and guaranteed the Kings would return to Houston Friday for a sixth game.

"We were with them all the way," Fitzsimmons said. "They didn't kick us and I will guarantee you we will be back here. We play the hand that is dealt us and this time we've got a pretty tough hand."

We've survived two tough series and we aren't out of it yet. Granted, they may beat us, but if they do, then they'll have earned it."

The Rockets outscored the Kings 13-4 in the opening minutes of the second quarter to take a 33-23 lead, with Malone hitting nine of the points in the spurt.

Boston Returns Home Down 3-1

76ers Turn Back Celtics

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Julius Erving said he felt the Philadelphia 76ers showed their character as a team in turning back the Boston Celtics' second half onslaught.

The 76ers, led by Erving's 20 points, beat Boston, 107-105, Sunday to take a 3-1 lead in their National Basketball Association best-of-seven Eastern Conference final series.

The Celtics twice trailed by 19 in the first half, and were behind 65-48 at halftime. Their star, Larry Bird, had been held to six points, only one field goal.

As Boston coach Bill Fitch put it, "we lost the game in the first half with miserable, horrible play. We were one pass behind... But this team is still capable of winning the series."

The fifth game is in Boston Wednesday night, with a sixth, if necessary, here Friday.

Erving said the Sixers showed what they can do by rallying after blowing the 19-point advantage.

"We didn't win 62 games (during the regular season) by allowing teams to come back all the way on us," Erving said. Boston actually outscored the 76ers from the field, 46-39, but lost at the foul line, where Philadelphia converted 29 of 39 and the Celtics only 13 of 19. Boston was devastating from the field in the third period, shooting 14 for 21 (67 percent).

In that third period, Chris Ford scored 10, Bird 8 and Cedric Maxwell 7, as the Celtics slashed the huge Philadelphia lead to 82-79. In the final period, Boston actually went ahead by a point, 84-83, with 10:42 left. But Bobby Jones regained the lead for Philadelphia, and although the Celtics tied it three more times, they couldn't get ahead again.

The last tie was at 97. Philadelphia's Maurice Cheeks then scored a pair of baskets for a four-point Philadelphia lead. The closest Boston got after that was two points.

Technical Electronics And Maintenance, Inc. 756-1387

In the final eight seconds, Philadelphia's Bobby Jones missed a short jumper and Boston got the rebound. Tiny Archibald threw a long pass toward Bird in the corner, but Bobby Jones raced back to intercept, held on for two seconds and the final horn sounded.

"I decided to head for Bird," Jones explained, "because I figured the others would converge on our basket. I really didn't see the ball until just before I caught it."

Bird said he felt he could have made the play if Jones hadn't leaped into the air to get the ball.

UNC-W Sweeps Season Series From Pirate Nine

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The University of North Carolina at Wilmington made it a clean sweep Sunday afternoon, downing East Carolina's Pirates for the fourth straight time this year, 9-3.

And Coach Hal Baird was just a little more than disturbed about it.

"They're good, but we played poorly. Our defense cost us the game last night, and it put us behind today," Baird declared. "(Bill) Wilder pitched well enough to win Saturday, and if we had done anything to help Bobby (Patterson) today, we'd have been okay in this one."

In each of the first three innings, the Pirates put men into scoring position, but left them standing each time. "We haven't hit the ball well for a long time when it really meant something," Baird said. "We just haven't gotten the big hit — the timely hit. And our weaknesses are so obvious now that people are taking advantage of it."

While saying he felt that Wilmington may be a better team, Baird still said he felt the Pirates were capable of beating them. "It's just that our poor defense in both of these games did us in."

The Pirates committed five errors Sunday afternoon, and they helped account for four unearned runs by the Seahawks. "What disturbs me most is that I thought our defense was going to be one of our strengths at the start of the season, and it's proved more than once to be our downfall."

Baird said that he really felt bad for both Wilder and Patterson. "They have both given some great efforts only to lose because we've played like dogs behind them."

And the twin losses to Wilmington sealed the door on any chance of a post-season bid, Baird feels. "I felt that if we could have won 30 games, we'd have had a chance. We still can win 30, but I don't think our hopes are realistic now for a bid. We still need these last two wins to build a foundation for next year, since nearly everyone is back. This is a low time for the team, but we can still finish strong."

"I guess at the start of the season, if someone had told us we'd win 28, I would have taken it right away. But after you win 28, you want 29," Baird said.

Twenty-nine didn't come Sunday afternoon however, at least for the Pirates, who remain at 28-13. Wilmington, however, is now 29-14.

The Seahawks got their first run in the opening inning off an unearned run. With one down, Patterson hit Johnny Slaughter. Tom Jones grounded to short, but second baseman Mike Sorrell let the ball get through on what could have been a double play, and Slaughter ended up on third. Clyde Holley then doubled to left, scoring Slaughter.

The Seahawks added a second run in the fourth. John Milkovits led off with a single to left and scored on Paul Murr's double.

In the fifth, a third UNCW run came over. With two away, Jones singled, stole second and scored on Holley's single. The sixth saw one more score, that on a homer by Kelly O'Donnell.

But the 4-0 lead wasn't enough for the Hawks, who added three more in the seventh. Tim Whitehead reached on an error, as did Jones, spelling the end for Patterson. Holley greeted Rick Ramey with a double to left, scoring Whitehead. Milkovits followed with a single to center, scoring the other two runners.

The final two UNCW runs came in the eighth. Tommy Phillips walked and Whitehead reached on an error. A single by Slaughter and an infield out by Jones brought both runners in.

The Pirates, who didn't score until the seventh, had their chances early not only to tie it up but to take the lead, but they could not get the hit when they had to have it.

In the first, after the first two men singled, a fly ball and a double play killed the rally. In the second, after an error, a walk and a single loaded the bases with one away, a strike-out and an infield grounded again killed it.

Then, in the third, John Hollow singled, moved to third on two infield outs, and wat-

Triple Bogey Spurs Watson To Victory

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The minor disaster of a triple bogey-7 early in the tournament served as the turning point in Tom Watson's victory in the USF&G New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

Watson returned to that jarring experience — a shot out of bounds that could have knocked him out of the tournament — after he'd scored a two-shot triumph in a successful defense of his title.

"That was just stupid," he said of the triple bogey on Friday's second round. At that point, he was far out of contention and was, in fact, in some danger of missing the cut for the final two rounds.

"I was really very mad at myself," he recalled Sunday. "I just had a little talk with myself. That's stupid. Really stupid. Get your act together. With a few good shots you can get back in the golf tournament."

And he did. He salvaged a 69 in that round, followed that with a brilliant, 8-under-par 64 that put him in a tie for the top after 54 holes, then pulled away from Dr. Gil Morgan with a burst of three birdies in a four-hole stretch over the last nine.

He won it with a 270 total, 18 strokes under par on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course that, Watson said, is "maybe a little too easy. It's probably the easiest course we play on the Tour."

"With the greens as big as they are, and given these playing conditions, we're going to shoot lights out every time," he said.

The victory, worth $63,000 from the total purse of $350,000, came only two weeks after Watson had won the Masters and extended his history of making successful title defenses and scoring multiple triumphs. The outstanding player in the game since 1977, Watson now has scored 21 of his 27 career triumphs in only nine events. He has successfully defended tournament titles six times since the start of the 1977 season.

And he'll be looking at another title defense in his next start. He'll skip this week's Houston Open and will next compete in the Byron Nelson Classic, which he has won four times, including the last three.

Winning Fling

Tom Watson is all smiles as he rears back to throw his ball into the gallery after winning the New Orleans Open Sunday. Watson shot a four-under-par 68 to take the $63,000 first prize. (AP Laserphoto)

Bruce Fleisher came out of the pack to take second with a 6-under-par 66 and a 272 total. The second place check of $37,800 was not only the largest of Fleisher's career, but also was more than he'd won in any of his previous 10 seasons as a touring pro.

Morgan, tied with Watson for the lead much of the way, dropped back to third with a 71-273. Barry Jaeckle was next at 69-275. Tied at 276 were rookie Fred Couples, Lon Hinkle, Ron Streck and Jay Haas.

From a tie for the top, Watson nailed it down with birdies from 10 and 6 feet on the 11th and 12th, padded his margin with a 20-footer on the 14th and then managed to save par after hitting one in the water on the 15th, giving him a three-shot lead with three holes to play.

But it was Morgan's putting problems over the front that gave Watson the opportunity to win it.

"If Dr. Gil had putted at all, he'd have won the tournament," Watson said. "He hit the ball very close to the hole on the first seven and made only one putt. If he'd had three or four birdies, got three or four in front, he'd probably have won."

First AL Start A Success For Former Philly Lerch

By The Associated Press
Randy Lerch knows the Milwaukee Brewers are behind him — even the guy in front of him.

That guy is catcher Ted Simmons, on the receiving end Sunday of Lerch's masterful pitching. The big left-hander, who suffered through 1980 in Philadelphia, then was traded to Milwaukee last March 1, made his first American League start an eight-inning six-hitter as the Brewers bombed Kansas City 11-1.

It was his second victory and lowered his earned-run average to a miniscule 0.64. Reggie Cleveland pitched the ninth inning.

"The situation got overbearing in Philadelphia," Lerch said of his 4-14 record and 5.16 ERA. "There was bad blood between me and other people in the organization. A lot of it was my fault and a lot of it was the organization's, and it got to the point, when I went on the field, there was a very unconfident feeling in the other players. If they're not confident in me, I couldn't be confident in myself."

"Now I get the feeling the guys behind me are happy to see me pitch," Lerch went on. "It's a feeling of being accepted."

Nowhere is there more acceptance than from Simmons, the Brewers' veteran catcher who gave Lerch all the offensive support he needed with four runs batted in.

Crittenden Wins Open Singles Title

Dan Crittenden, playing a serve and volley game, gained a 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 win over Randy Bailey in the Heart Fund open singles championship.

Meanwhile, John Eatman, using a strong serve and ground strokes, downed Steve Creech 6-3, 7-6 in the over 35 singles championship.

In the over 45 singles final, Bill Still reversed the results of last year's championship match, defeating Al King 6-4, 7-5.

Play in the doubles events will take place this weekend. Those interested should consult the schedule at the River Birch Tennis Center.

"When we got him this spring, I said I was really glad," Simmons said. "Today he was wild and getting behind the hitters for the first three or four innings, but in the fifth he really started to come on."

Simmons hit a two-run homer in the second inning, a sacrifice fly in the seventh and an RBI single in the eighth. Gorman Thomas had a two-run homer in the fourth and Paul Molitor also drove in two runs.

Blue Jays 2, Yankees 1
Dave Stieb, 1-3, finally got some runs to work with — after 23 innings on the mound with nothing but goose-eggs from his teammates — and made them stand up against the Yanks.

"It's pressure pitching when your guys don't score," he said. "You don't really change your style. You just bear down and try not to give up the stupid run. I guess it's just bad luck. I know they (his teammates) don't have anything against me."

Meanwhile, Tom Underwood of the Yanks is working on a streak of his own. He's gone 132-33 innings this year without a run to work with and is 0-2.

"It gets pretty frustrating," he said. "I had very good stuff today. If I go out 30 times with that kind of stuff, I'll win 20 games. But that's life. We just have to hit. Nothing I can do. Remember, pitchers don't hit in this league."

A's 9, Mariners 4
Oakland made it another unbeaten week — six more victories in a row — as Dwayne Murphy drove in four runs, three on a homer, and Matt Keough pitched a six-hitter against the Mariners.

The A's are 17-1 for the year and 11-0 on the road. Keough is 4-0 with four complete games.

And pity Mike Parrott, Seattle's starting pitcher. Since winning on opening day a year ago, he's 0-17.

White Sox 5, Tigers 4
Pinch-hitter Bob Molinaro drilled a two-run triple in a three-run seventh inning that extended Chicago's winning streak to six games and Detroit's losing streak to seven games.

A walk to Greg Luzinski, Lamar Johnson's single, a hit batter and Carlton Fisk's sacrifice fly produced the first run off Mill Wilcox before Molinaro, batting for Greg Pryor, tripled to right. Lance Parrish homered for the Tigers.

Red Sox 7, Orioles 5
Jerry Remy's hitting gave Boston its first two runs in the eighth inning and his heads-up baserunning gave the Red Sox the last of their three which helped carry them past Baltimore.

Glenn Hoffman singled and Rick Miller doubled before Remy singled to right. He took second on the throw home. Then, when Jim Dwyer crashed into the right field fence while catching Carl Yastrzemski's drive, Remy scrambled all the way home.

Indians 4, Rangers 3
Cleveland erupted for three runs in the bottom of the ninth inning, the game-winner on Mike Hargrove's looping single to left. Alan Bannister, who scored on Hargrove's hit, drove in Cleveland's first run in the fifth inning. John Grubb had a two-run single for the Rangers.

Angels 7-2, Twins 1-5
Rookie Mike Witt two-hit Minnesota for the Angels in the opener, one of the hits a John Castano homer in the ninth inning. California erupted for four runs in the fifth inning to victimize loser Roger Erickson. He threw too late to third trying to nail Bobby Grich on one play, then missed a tag when Grich fell down during a rundown between third and home, Grich scoring.

In the second game, Roy Smalley, who had the other hit off Witt, hit a two-run homer, his fifth of the year, in the fourth inning off Jesse Jefferson. Smalley also singled in the sixth and scored on a double by Glenn Adams.

High-Flying Cards Edge Pittsburgh For Eighth Straight Win

By The Associated Press
What a relief it is for Bruce Sutter to be out of Chicago!

"It's a lot more fun when you're winning," says the new ace of the St. Louis Cardinal bullpen.

Sutter is responsible for much of that winning, of course. On Sunday he saved another game for the high-flying Cardinals as they defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 and boosted their record to 9-2, their best start since the World Series-winning season of 1946.

"We're having a good time right now," said Sutter, who pitched for the Cubs last season and saved 28 games. "I've got a lot of good friends on that Chicago team, but I'm a Cardinal now. We've got so many good ballplayers here and it's really great being in St. Louis."

Sutter, by the way, seems to be just as effective as ever with his enigmatic knuckle-curve. He's saved four games so far for the Cardinals.

While Sutter's new team was winning, the Cubs, meanwhile, continued to tumble by losing their 12th straight game with a 6-2 loss to the Philadelphia Phillies. The Cubs are one loss away from a team record of 13 successive losses set in 1944.

Sutter came on in relief of Jim Kaat after the 42-year-old left-hander pitched eight strong innings for the Cardinals. The Cardinals won the game on pinch-hitter Tito Landrum's tie-breaking RBI single in the ninth.

With two out in the St. Louis ninth, Tom Herr singled off Grant Jackson and stole second base before Landrum bounced his winning hit up the middle to hand the slow-starting Pirates their sixth loss in 10 games.

"We played well today," said Pirate shortstop Tim Lincecum.

"But we didn't have the key hits when we needed them."

"It's a 162-game season. It's nice to get off to a good start, but it's also important to realize every team is going to go through tough times, whether they come now or at the end of the year."

Phillies 6, Cubs 2

Mike Schmidt's two-run homer triggered a four-run third inning to lead Philadelphia over the slumped Cubs. The Phillies erased a 1-0 deficit with a run in the second on Bob Boone's RBI grounder, then sewed it up with their four-run third as Schmidt cracked his fifth homer of the season and 32nd of his career at Wrigley Field.

Marty Bystrom, whose major league record is now 6-0, worked seven innings and scattered six hits for the Phillies. Bill Caudill took the loss for Chicago in his first start of the year.

Dodgers 3, Padres 2

Reggie Smith's pinch double in the eighth inning broke a 2-2 tie and Jerry Reuss scattered seven hits as Los Angeles beat San Diego. The hit was the first of the season for Smith, who is recovering from a shoulder operation last year and has been relegated to pinch-hitting duty.

Steve Garvey led off the Dodgers' eighth with a single off loser Gary Lucas. Ron Cey sacrificed, Pedro Guerrero walked, and then Smith, batting for catcher Mike Scioscia, lined a double to left-center to drive in Garvey.

Astros 1, Reds 0

Denny Walling's first-inning leadoff home run, along with the eight-hit pitching of Bob Knepper, enabled Houston to beat Cincinnati and break a four-game losing streak.

Walling jumped on a 2-0 pitch from loser Mario Soto, slamming the ball over the right-center field wall at the Astrodome. Knepper struck out three and walked one in recording his second shutout in three starts. He has given up one earned run in 21 innings for an earned run average of 0.43.

Expos 8-7, Mets 4-6

Ellis Valentine and Gary Carter each slammed two-run homers to back the six-hit pitching of Ray Burris as Montreal beat New York in the opener of their doubleheader.

It was the second victory in three decisions for Burris, both triumphs coming against his former teammates. Burris walked one and struck out six.

Jerry Manuel hit his first major league home run, a three-run blast in the seventh inning, to lead the Expos to their second-game victory.

Giants 3-8, Braves 1-5

Enos Cabell's sixth-inning RBI double and Jack Clark's seventh-inning home run triggered San Francisco's first-game victory over Atlanta.

Doyle Alexander, a former Braves pitcher, pitched 7 1/3 innings, allowing only one run and five hits against his old teammates, whom he beat for the second time this season.

Darrell Evans slugged four hits, knocked in a run and scored twice to help the Giants win the nightcap. The Giants had a season-high 17 hits as they overshadowed a three-run homer by Dale Murphy and Bob Horner's solo blast for the Braves.

Terps' Williams Decides To Go Hardship Route

By The Associated Press

Isiah Thomas, Mark Aguirre and Buck Williams, three outstanding underclassmen who were all members of the 1980 U.S. Olympic team, have decided to turn pro, adding lustre to the June 9 National Basketball Association draft. But the brightest college star of all, Ralph Sampson, has once again decided to stay in school.

Sampson, Virginia's 7-foot-4 sophomore center who was wooed by the Boston Celtics a year ago, entertained offers from the Dallas Mavericks and Detroit Pistons — the last-place conference finishers who will take part in Thursday's coin flip to determine which club will draft first — before announcing Saturday that he planned to remain with the Cavaliers.

Underclassmen had until midnight Saturday to notify the NBA of their intention to turn pro, thus renouncing the remainder of their college eligibility. They no longer have to file evidence of financial hardship, but merely must indicate their desire to be considered for the draft. The full list of applicants will be released by the NBA office on Wednesday.

Thomas, Aguirre and Williams are all virtually certain to be selected high on the first round of the draft.

Thomas, the sophomore point guard who led Indiana to the NCAA title in March, said he considered this "a once in a lifetime opportunity. I can always go back to school and get an education, but I can't always make a million dollars. I'll still have a lot of problems, but I'd rather be rich with the problems than poor."

Thomas, an All-American who is rated by scouts as an ideal guard for running a pro offense, is sought by the New Jersey Nets, who have the third pick in the draft.

Aguirre, the high-scoring 6-foot-7 junior forward from DePaul who was college basketball's Player of the Year in 1980 and an All-American the last two seasons, said he had second thoughts about his decision. "Of course, my greatest regret in leaving at this time is not having helped bring an NCAA championship to DePaul and Coach (Ray) Meyer," he said.

Williams, a 6-9 junior center who averaged 15.6 points and 11.7 rebounds per game for Maryland, may be tried at power forward by whichever NBA team lands him.

Sampson would have been the No. 1 pick in the draft had he decided to turn pro. But after considering presentations from both the Mavericks and Pistons, he decided to stay at Virginia. That could prompt the two clubs to consider trading away their picks to other teams seeking to move up in the draft, since Sampson was rated the only collegian capable of immediately turning a pro franchise around.

Another highly regarded college player, sophomore forward Dominique Wilkins of Georgia, who led the Southeastern Conference with a 23.8 scoring average, also decided not to turn pro.

to take third. Sorrell then scored on Todd Evans' infield grounder.

The other run came in the ninth. Charlie Waynick singled to deep short, Sorrell followed with a single and Hallow reached on a fielder's choice. Evans then singled to score Waynick, but the rally died there.

East Carolina's hitting was led by Sorrell with three, while Hallow had a pair. Holley, with two doubles and a single, led Wilmington with three, while Milkovits added two.

The Pirates close out their home season tonight at 7 p.m., hosting N.C. Wesleyan. The season comes to a close on Sunday, when the Bucs travel to Chapel Hill to face North Carolina.

Flames Whip Flyers, Move To NHL Semis

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Flyers had the momentum, the playoff experience and the home-ice advantage.

Their opponents, the Calgary Flames, came to the Spectrum for the final game of their best-of-seven National Hockey League quarterfinal playoff matchup having once led the series, 3-1.

"We thought they might have folded here," said Flyers Coach Pat Quinn after the game.

The Flames had other thoughts.

Taking advantage of early Flyer penalties and forcing the action, Calgary beat Philadelphia 4-1 Sunday night to advance to the NHL semifinals.

The Flames, who had never advanced beyond a first-round series in their nine-year history, will host Minnesota Tuesday night.

"The monkey is off our back," said Calgary's Willi Plett, whose early power-play goal got the Flames rolling. "We've buried the past."

"They kept coming at us, but I think we beat them at their own game," said Flames' goalie Pat Riggin, who dashed to a pay telephone to call his parents after the game.

Meanwhile, the subdued Quinn admitted his team may have taken the game too lightly.

"We underestimated them. We expected an easier game," Quinn said. "We certainly didn't play with the spark I thought we might have."

The Flyers hurt themselves only 1:26 into the game when they were caught with too many men on the ice. Plett, suspended for Game 6 of the series after a fifth-game brawl, was left alone in front of the Flyer net and neatly deflected a shot by Guy Chouinard past Flyers' goalie Rick St. Croix for a 1-0 lead three minutes into the game.

Another Flyer penalty five minutes later gave Calgary a man advantage and Ken Houston took a pass from Chouinard to turn a two-on-one break into a 2-0 lead at the 8:33 mark of the first period.

"When it was 2-0, they started making positional mistakes," said Calgary's Bill Clement, an ex-Flyer who scored Philadelphia's Stanley Cup-winning goal in the 1974-75 season. "The Flyers never make positional mistakes."

Clemson Downs UNC, 7-5

Tigers ACC Champions

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL — Clemson's Mike Mahoney became a hero for the Tigers Sunday in their 7-5 victory over North Carolina in the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball tournament — eight years after he started his baseball career at the school.

With the bases loaded, Mahoney lashed a pitch from reliever Chris Kahler to the base of the fence in left-center field for a three-run double in the top of the ninth to cap a rally that helped the Tigers escape a defeat.

Mahoney started his college career at Clemson in 1973. But with his grades on the decline, he left the school at the end of his junior year for the Navy. He admitted after the game that the military experience helped, but also said it made him long for baseball even more.

"It was hard. Every year in the Navy, especially in March when I was reading the box scores," the 26-year-old Mahoney said. "But today made all that worth it."

"I made a fiasco of school. The Navy made me see things a little better," he added.

Mahoney returned to the Clemson baseball program in 1980, but calcium deposits in his right shoulder delayed his return ever further. Finally, with his academic and physical woes behind him, Mahoney batted .346 on the year with four home runs, 26 runs batted in — and at least one very important double.

"This is great. This is really great," Mahoney said, hugging his wife and friends after the battle.

Clemson attacked starter and loser Mark Ochal for three runs in the first inning, while the Tar Heels managed just one in the bottom half of the frame. The Tigers added one more in the third before UNC erupted.

With one out in the fifth, Shawn Dean singled to left, followed by a Mitch McCleney hit to deep shortstop. Chris Pittaro followed with another single to score Dean, and, after Scott Bradley brought McCleney home with a sacrifice fly, Pittaro scored on Pete Kumiega's single to right.

Greg Schuler connected in the sixth inning for his third home run of the tournament to give the Tar Heels a temporary lead before Mahoney unloaded the game-winner in the ninth.

Ochal settled down in the middle innings and appeared to have things in hand before issuing a single to pinch-hitter Steve Van Dyke and walking John Fulton. Ochal was then replaced by Kahler when disaster struck. Ochal's record dropped to 10-2, while UNC's mark went to 32-14.

Greg Guin started the game at first base for the Tigers, but ended up as their third pitcher of the afternoon and picked up his second victory of the year in as many decisions.

Clemson, now 34-22, will await word from the NCAA to find out where it will play in the first round of the collegiate baseball championships.

Hitting Streak Ties Record

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Phil Stephenson, a junior first baseman for Wichita State University, stroked a fifth-inning single Sunday against Loyola of Los Angeles to extend his hitting streak to 45 games, tying a collegiate record set 10 years ago.

Wichita State, 45-9, went on to win the contest 10-9 in 12 innings.

The record tied by Stephenson was set in 1971 by Roger Schmuck of Arizona State.

Former Singer For Welk Dies

DALLAS (AP) — "Champagne Lady" Alice Lon Bowling, who greeted millions of viewers on the popular "Lawrence Welk Show" in the 1950s, was being buried today.

Mrs. Bowling died Friday in Baylor University Medical center of scleroderma, a disease that thickens and hardens the skin. She was 54.

Born Alice Wyche in Kilgore, she rocketed to fame after being selected as Welk's "Champagne Lady" in 1955 while she was singing on the Don McNeill Breakfast Club Show in Chicago.

Mrs. Bowling, who sang under the name Alice Lon, wore multi-layered crinoline petticoats, which became her trademark on Welk's show.

The bandleader said Saturday in Los Angeles that he was "sorry to have heard of her death. She was such a lovely girl."

Mrs. Bowling quit the Welk show in 1959, saying, "I just couldn't take it any longer. It isn't the same happy family it used to be when I joined him six years ago. Lawrence is hard to work for now. He lacks consideration and there are no exceptions in his book."

From the time she left the show until she retired in 1964, Mrs. Bowling sang at supper clubs, state fairs and recorded several record albums that featured songs by Cole Porter, George and Ira Gershwin and Irving Berlin.

She is survived by her husband, George, and three sons.

Joni Buck In Recital Tuesday

LAURINBURG — Joni Buck, a soprano and senior at St. Andrews Presbyterian College, will be in recital at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 28 in the Vardell Gallery. She will be accompanied by Lee Kesselman, pianist and chairman of the St. Andrews music department.

For her program, she will sing early English and American folk melodies, selections by the French composer Gabriel Faure, and show tunes by Porter, Gershwin and Coward.

The public is invited to attend, and there is no admission charge.

Mrs. Buck is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Buck of Route 3, Greenville.

Raise A Third Of Funds Goal

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina is almost one-third of the way toward its goal of raising funds for a 21,100-seat basketball arena.

The $30.5 million arena will be the third largest college sports center in the nation.

Fund raising passed the $9 million mark Thursday and commitments of $30.5 million are hoped for by January 1982.

'Dallas' Star Jim Davis Dies In His Sleep; Cast Feels Loss

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Davis, who played the crusty, white-haired patriarch of TV's scheming and extremely popular Ewing clan, has died in his sleep at the age of 72, just weeks before filming of "Dallas" was to resume.

A memorial service will be held Friday for Davis, who was found dead Sunday afternoon by Blanche Davis, his wife of 32 years, according to Ruth Marsh, a close family friend. The gravel-voiced actor, who recently underwent surgery for a perforated ulcer, died as he napped at the couple's Northridge ranch home.

Davis portrayed oil tycoon Jock Ewing on the hit CBS-TV series, a tough man with a powerful empire but a soft heart for his family.

"He was a father to all of us," said Steven Kanaly, who played Ray Krebbs, Jock's ranch foreman and illegitimate son.

"He was one of the finest men I ever met," publicist Michael Druksman quoted Kanaly as saying.

"Losing him was like losing a real member of our family," said actress Linda Gray, who portrays the hapless Sue Ellen, in a statement from her Los Angeles home. Actor Larry Hagman, who plays Jock's son, J.R., the best-loved villain on TV, was vacationing in Europe and could not be reached for comment.

JIM DAVIS

Lorimar Productions spokesman Tom Bishop said Davis had been on the job filming "Dallas" until March 23, when he underwent surgery.

"We completed production for the season April 9, so he really only missed one episode," Bishop said. That episode is scheduled for broadcast next Friday.

But Grant said the cast had been notified about a week ago that Davis' condition was not good.

Producers for the series said they had no immediate plans on how to proceed with the "Dallas" storyline following Davis' death.

Davis, who stood 6-3 and looked every inch the part of a cowboy oil baron, appeared in more than 150 films and 300 TV shows before striking it rich with "Dallas."

"He's a diamond in the rough who thinks young," Davis once said of Jock. "He has compassion for people, but on the other hand he can be ruthless if he feels his legs are being chopped off."

In addition to his wife, Davis is survived by his mother and two sisters. The couple had only one child, Tara, who died as a teenager in an automobile crash several years ago.

Davis' official CBS biography listed no year for his birth. Mrs. Davis referred questions to Ms. Marsh, who said the actor was 72.

The Edgerton, Mo., native attended William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo., and spent a year as a rigger with a tent circus before becoming a salesman for an auto company. A promotion took him to California and in 1940 he filmed a screen test with then-newcomer Esther Williams, which resulted in a $250-a-week contract.

Among Davis' films were "The Iron Mistress" with Alan Ladd, "Gallant Bess," "Last Command," "Winter Meeting" with Bette Davis and "Eldorado" and "Rio Lobo" with John Wayne.

More recently he appeared in "Parallax View" with Warren Beatty, "Monte Walsh" with Lee Marvin and "The Choirboys."

He also appeared in the television series "Stories of the Century," "Rescue 8" and "The Cowboys."

Although Davis was glad to accept his success with "Dallas," he said he had no illusions about what the type of show it was.

"This show has grabbed a certain type of people," he said with typical Jock Ewing candor. "We all know this show's just a ... soap opera — glorified."

Burstyn Role In 3-Hour Movie

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ellen Burstyn will star in "The People vs. Jean Harris," a three-hour NBC-TV movie recreating portions of the trial involving the private school headmistress convicted of slaying Dr. Herman Tarnower last month.

Miss Burstyn, who won the Oscar for best actress in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," will portray Miss Harris in the drama which ended in a 64-day trial and conviction in the shooting death of the author of "The Scarsdale Diet."

George Schaefer will produce and direct the film which the network said will be televised in late May.

Ripley Series To Debut In May

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Robert Ripley's collection of "Believe It Or Not!" facts and oddities will become a television special from Rastar Television Inc. on ABC in May.

Jack Haley will produce and direct the one-hour special with Jack Palance as host and narrator. The show will film on locations throughout the United States and in many countries abroad.

"This show will tantalize the outer limits of human curiosity," said John Withers, president of Ripley International which still syndicates "Believe It Or Not!" in scores of newspapers.

Chimp Chat

Until recently talking to the animals was relegated to the world of Dr. Doolittle. But today researchers are proving that intelligent communication can exist between humans and animals by using sign language. Dr. Roger Fouts began working with a chimpanzee named Washoe, 13 years ago. Washoe can use 240 signs. More significantly, Washoe has begun to teach "signing" to her son. Some skeptics say the chimps' use of language is nothing more than memorized repetitions. But Washoe's supporters have cited numerous examples of her expressive creativity. Once during an argument with a monkey, she put two unrelated words together, "Dirty Monkey!" She won the argument.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
1981 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J982 ♥76 ♦AK3 ♣AJ75
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Though you have a minimum opening bid, do not seize this opportunity to bow out of the auction. It is still your duty to steer the hand into the best spot. With four-card trump support and a weak doubleton, you should return to three spades.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A95 ♥KQ83 ♦AK104 ♣94
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You are too strong for a simple raise to two spades, and you can't make a jump raise to three spades with only three-card support. The solution is to make a waiting bid of two diamonds and then support spades at your next turn if you get the chance.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠986 ♥8 ♦KQJ6 ♣AQ1096
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—After a two-over-one response, a simple raise of partner's second suit is forcing. Therefore, there is no need for you to bid more than three diamonds now. This hand might produce slam, but a jump to four diamonds would crowd the auction unnecessarily. If partner's next bid is three no trump, you will complete the description of your hand by bidding four spades.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9 ♥K85 ♦Q1076 ♣AKQ84
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 1 ♦ 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ 2 ♦ 3 ♠ Pass
3 NT Pass 4 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner has shown a hand with at least six good spades and only four hearts. At a heart contract, the hand could fall apart if partner is forced to ruff diamonds early. Although it might seem strange when you have a singleton in partner's first bid suit and three to a king in his second, we suggest you return to four spades.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K ♥AKQJ86 ♦QJ8 ♣A63
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass 4 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—In view of partner's strong auction, slam should be laydown if he has either first- or second-round control of diamonds. Bid five hearts. By bidding over game after three suits have been bid, you draw partner's attention to the fact that you need a control in the unbid suit to venture any further.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ ♥954 ♦A52 ♣AKQ62
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 3 ♦ Pass 3 NT ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Yes, we realize that you have a certain set in your own hand by leading the king of spades, but what guarantee do you have that, if you double, the opponents won't run to some diamond contract that you cannot be sure of beating? You know that partner must have a bust, so be satisfied with a small profit.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, APR. 28, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fine day for deciding the policies and the tenets under which you would like to operate in the days ahead, so think them out with care. You can gain much success as a result.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study new ideas that could lead to advancement in your line of endeavor. Enjoy the company of close ties tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't criticize a close tie at this time or there could be a severance of connections. Don't rely on your intuition today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can get excellent results if you are more supportive of associates. Maintain your poise at all times today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get an early start on work ahead of you and gain benefits. Be more cooperative with fellow workers.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Figure out a practical way that could give you added security in the days ahead. Follow the advice of a financial expert.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You know exactly how to improve conditions at home, so don't waste any time. Show more devotion to loved one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Gain the cooperation of close ties for gaining a personal aim. Steer clear of one who has an eye on your assets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Analyze personal aspects of your life and figure out the best way to improve them. Not a good day for taking risks.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Daytime hours are best for pursuing personal aims. Obtain the information you need from the right sources.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Morning is best spent handling career matters. A new plan needs more study before you put it in operation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A business matter could cause you to worry early in the day but later it turns out fine. Strive for happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Morning is fine for handling civic matters. In the afternoon influential persons can help you advance in career matters.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will easily comprehend varying schools of philosophies which could lead to a most successful life. Teach not to be so overly independent and to become more interested in humanities. There is musical talent here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
