Hunt Aims At 3-Cent Gasoline Tax Hike

By WILLIAM M. WELCH

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt formally asks legislators today to increase North Carolina's gasoline tax by 3 cents per gallon and to approve a package of other proposals that would provide a small income tax credit as well as raise the tax on liquor and beer.

Hunt outlined his proposal, which coupled the gasoline tax hike with a personal income tax credit of up to $22.50 a year, in a speech televised live across the state Monday night.

Today at noon the governor is scheduled to deliver another speech to a joint session of the General Assembly, where legislative leaders were already reacting with caution but also with some encouragement for Hunt's chances of winning his latest political battle.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green both said they believe some form of a higher gas tax would be enacted this year.

"I would suggest that it will pass, or basically it will pass with some slight variations," Green told reporters. "The need is out there."

"I think some type of gas tax increase, something will pass,"

Ramsey said.

Ramsey also praised the package and said he believed the tax credit — designed to take the burden for higher gasoline taxes off the average person — is crucial to passage.

"I don't believe it would without the rebate or credit," he said. "That's designed to see that the people driving their car back and forth to work every day aren't paying it."

Hunt did not spell out his proposal for increasing the tax on alcoholic beverages, and the administration said an announcement of those details would come later. But he is known to be considering a Senate bill that would double the existing tax, generating perhaps as much as $100 million a year.

His package also included other elements, including increased fees for truck registration, driver's licenses and various other highway-related fees.

The proposal would also transfer $60 million a year to the highway program from the state's general tax fund. The transfer would involve collections of the 3 percent state sales tax for auto parts and accessories. The alcohol tax would be aimed at offsetting that loss. (Please turn to Page 6)

City School Budget Wins Approval At Board Meet

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A Greenville City Schools budget proposal totaling $10,869,626 for fiscal year 1988-82 was approved by members of the Greenville City Board of Education on Monday night.

At the action meeting for the month of May, school board members gave the stamp of approval to the budget which now goes to Pitt County Commissioners for their consideration and action in two major categories of the total budget.

The ten million plus budget falls into five major categories — the state fund, local current expense fund, federal grant fund, capital outlay fund, and school nutrition fund. Totals of categories within the budget are:

- State fund $6,110,579
- Local current expense fund $3,010,588
- Federal grants fund $786,52
- Capital outlay fund $215,950
- School nutrition fund $745,984

The local current expense fund request incorporates an amount of $2,131,091 requested directly from Pitt County tax fund sources, plus $879,497 which will come from state and other sources, including interest money earned.

Superintendent Glenn Cox also noted that in the event the county commissioners do approve the Pitt County School request for an amount of $2,128,700 in capital outlay funds, such action would, by virtue of county-city pro-rata fund sharing, result in $915,084 eligible for the city schools in capital outlay funds.

"If county commissioners approve a capital outlay amount that would result in funds in excess of the $215,950 requested by the city school board, we would submit a supplemental budget to reflect additional needs for capital outlay funds."

In this year's request for capital outlay funds, the administration and the school board trimmed the request to the barest minimum needed for the most essential items. There are any number of priority items that can be included in a supplemental capital outlay budget.

Grain Dealers Divided Over Impact On Area

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County grain dealers are divided on the effect the lifting of the Soviet grain embargo will have on local markets.

"This move will allow our local farmers to get more for corn and soybeans," said Fred Webb of Fred Webb Elevator, Inc. "We have a big market for these commodities here."

"All things indicated, since that market has been reopened, we'll have a substantial price increase," he continued. "Anytime we are restricted in selling to anyone, particularly a nation having the usage Soviet Russia has, it's bound to hurt the agri-sector. Consequently, since that restriction has been lifted, the effect will be constructive."

Webb noted that corn is Pitt County's largest grain crop from the dollar standpoint, with soybeans second and wheat third. According to the grain dealer, the county does export some commodities, but most of the grain grown here is consumed domestically. "Even so," he emphasized, "the farmer will get higher prices."

J.I. Morgan, owner of Morgan Grain and Fertilizer in Farmville, predicts that the lifting of the embargo will have basically a short-term effect on prices. "I don't see that it will make a whole lot of difference one way or the other," he projected. "Prices may rise temporarily but they also may decline just as quickly."

However, added Morgan, the removal of the embargo may have long-term beneficial results. "Because of the five-year grain agreement with Russia, we will have stability in the long run. This agreement gives us so much guaranteed business we can depend on and this will strengthen the market."

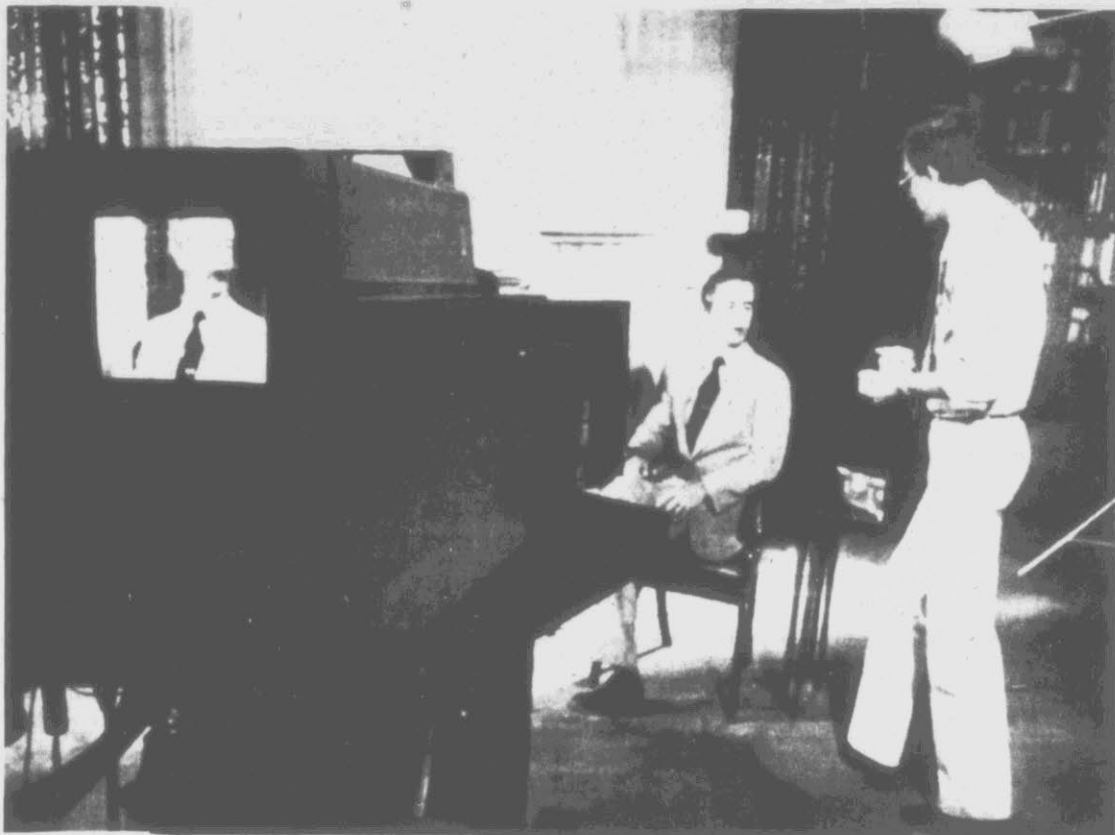

Morgan added that export corn production in the United States has increased dramatically over the last five to seven years, with much of this increase going to the Soviet Union.

"The first two or three days may cause the market to go up but it will go back down," speculated Brad Barnes, manager of Cargill, Inc.

Barnes said demand would increase at the export level but not at local markets. "Most of the grain grown here stays in the state," he noted, "so I don't see it having a dramatic effect on local demand."

Local agricultural extension agents say they are not sure at this time what effect the lifting of the embargo will have. "I feel relatively certain that prices will rise somewhat due to this," commented extension agent Sam Uzzell, "but it's really too early to tell how much or what kind of effect it will have."

"Should a step like the embargo be necessary again," commented Fred Webb, "I hope the farmer would not bear the brunt of it alone. A penalty against a nation should be born equally by all sectors of the economy."

President Will Ask Congress To Stop Talking And Begin Acting

WASHINGTON (AP) —

President Reagan, capitalizing on rising popularity since last month's assassination attempt, reassumes public command of his budget battle tonight with an appeal to Congress to stop talking and start acting.

Aides said Reagan will tell a joint session in the nationally televised, 9 p.m. EDT speech that Congress must shed the "old and comfortable way" because "a day of decision is near" for his tax and spending cut proposals.

"High taxes and excess spending growth created our economic mess," one source said Reagan will say. "To fail to act will delay — even longer and more painfully — the cure that must come."

The speech, expected to last about 15 minutes, comes as the administration program is picking up speed with Congress nearing key votes this week. Conservative Republicans on the Senate Budget Committee neared agreement on a revised budget blueprint, and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said enough Democrats may cross over to give the president a victory in the House.

The address is Reagan's third on the economy but his first public appearance since he was shot March 30.

It comes on the eve of his 100th day in office, and the selection of the well of the House is intended to focus the drama of Reagan's re-emergence on the forefront of the fight for his economic program.

One White House official, who asked not to be identified, said the president's attitude is: "Look, we've talked about the economy. We've analyzed it. Now is the time to do something. Now it's time to take the courageous measures to get the economy back on the path."

The president, who is not yet working full time in the Oval Office again, was putting the final touches on the speech today.

He worked on the message at his Camp David, Md., retreat over the weekend and met with his speechwriter, his congressional lobbyist and the deputy chief of staff when he returned to the White House on Monday.

The speechwriter, Ken Khachigian, took the notes Reagan had made on a draft and was preparing a clean copy for the president's final approval today, according to deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

Speakes said the president also planned to make a personal reference to the assassination attempt, although that will be "something he writes out himself ... straight from his own hand."

The full House is likely to take up the budget by the end of the week. The House Budget Committee approved a $714.5 billion budget, and Rep. Delbert L. Latta, R-Ohio, and Rep. Phil Gramm, a conservative Texas Democrat, have proposed a $689 billion alternative that Reagan is expected to formally endorse in tonight's speech.

Speakes said Reagan, who outlined his economic program in an address to the nation on Feb. 5 and also delivered a state of the economy address to Congress on Feb. 18, feels "it is important to go again to emphasize" his views on the economic legislation.

The administration seems to have regained momentum lost when Reagan was sidelined with a gunshot wound in the lung a month ago, and tonight's speech might be just icing.

"The president feels the day of decision is near and it is appropriate that Congress act as quickly as possible," Speakes said.

"The thrust is that we were elected in November to do something about the economy," he said. "As of yet, nothing has been done."

The spokesman predicted the vote on the Gramm-Latta proposal will be "very, very close ... tough, but doable."

O'Neill said numerous Democrats were defecting to the president's side and the momentum would be difficult to stop. He attributed it to Reagan's increase in popularity after the shooting, saying members of Congress "go with the will of the people and the will of the people today is to go with the president."

PURSES RETURNED

I am calling from Windsor to report that a crisis for two families was averted by the alertness and honesty of a Greenville citizen. Ms. Rosemary Hunt saw a lady's pocketbook on Red Banks Road, stopped her car, picked it up and proceeded to call the owner's home in Windsor long-distance. This handbag contained a month's pay for two teachers, one a patient in Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital. Greenville should be proud of one of her own.

A friend's teenage daughter lost her purse while visiting me during the Easter holidays. The purse contained many important papers and about $20. The next morning Mrs. Maria Perry, an employee of Wachovia Bank, called to report that she had found the purse, papers and money. She would accept no reward. She said she only wishes that if ever she is in a similar situation, the same will be done for her. What an asset Mrs. Perry is to Greenville! This act really restores my faith in people. J. F.

AT MEETING ... this morning, "break" chairman Mark Tipton and Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce Board Chairman Bob Griffin talk with Maj.Gen. David Barker, commanding general of the Marine Corps base at Camp Lejeune.

Marine General Cites Quick-Response Factor

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"The nation's most responsive force remains with the U.S. Marines embarked aboard amphibious ships," Maj. Gen. David Barker, commanding general of the U.S. Marine Corps base at Camp Lejeune, told members of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce here this morning.

Speaking on "America's Defense," Barker pointed out that the U.S. Marine Corps was created along with the continental navy in the fall of 1775. "The Navy-Marine Corps bond created by the Continental Congress has weathered the storms of war and has survived the often unfriendly winds stirred by critics of Naval forces and amphibious operations."

"The need for this country to retain a strong naval force with amphibious assault capability is a lesson we tend to forget and then re-learn," he said, citing that just before the Korean war, many military leaders said there was no need for an amphibious force. "Within less than a year, the 1st Marine Division was fighting its way ashore over the beaches and sea walls of Inchon, a Korean west coast port which few people knew or cared about," a short time before.

"Today," according to Barker, "the doubters of the value of amphibious operations still exist." But, he continued, the string of world events which have erupted recently — including the war between Iraq and Iran, the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the turmoil in Poland, and the unrest in the developing countries of South America — have spurred the development of, "a rapid deployment force...to be ready for combat operations," which includes Marines aboard ships of the 7th Fleet, which, "proved to be the most responsive force recently in getting into the Indian Ocean."

According to Barker, the rapid deployment concept employs the best features of airlift and shipping capabilities. "The idea being that troops can be moved more quickly by air to a trouble spot, while the fighting equipment such forces would need — such as munitions, food, vehicles — can better be moved by ships."

"The rapid deployment concept does enhance U. S. response time to crisis situations. But shortcomings do exist," Barker acknowledged.

"The equipment-laden ships must have a (Please turn to Page 6)

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Shivers of Winterville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Corey of Robersonville.

Special music was provided by Craig Everett, organist, and Norma Casper, who sang "We've Only Just Begun," "One Hand, One Heart" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, escorted by her son, Scott, wore a formal gown of ivory chiffon over ivory peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with scalloped schiffli embroidered lace. The blouson bodice was enhanced by an inserted yoke of scalloped silk embroidered schiffli lace. The sleeves were styled as short double split capelets and a chiffon rolled sash encircled the waistline from which fell the accordin pleated skirt which opened into a flared effect that continued to an attached chapel train. Her headpiece was fashioned from ivory silk flowers with satin streamers and she carried a cascade of red roses and spider mums.

The honor attendant was Martha Knox, who wore a formal gown of blue crepe de sheen with a sheer multi-colored lace yoke. The gathered bodice featured covered buttons at center front and the full sleeves were styled with ruffles at the cuffs. A rolled tie sash encircled the waistline from which fell the gathered skirt. She carried a nosegay of daisies.

Loyalty Day Plans Planned

Loyalty Day, May 1, was the topic of discussion at the meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars Thursday evening.

Loyalty Day is a special day set aside by Congress through the efforts of the VFW to reaffirm loyalty to the United States of America and for the recognition of American freedom.

American flag lapel pins will be given to the public this week by Post and Auxiliary members to be worn to honor servicemen and to declare "We are Americans and we are proud of it," said President Alice Moseley of the local VFW.

President Moseley said District Two meeting will be held in Goldsboro May 3.

Two new members, Mrs. Glennie Brewer and Mrs. Edna Hodges, were welcomed.

Americanism Chairman Reba Cannon reported pledge of allegiance pencils have been given to five school and two Scout troops.

Verna Mizelle and Ms. Moseley visited O'Berry Center, taking Easter favors. They also carried fruit and clothing. Myrtle Meeks, cancer chairman, reported $114 was made for the fund this month.

Officers for the coming year were elected and include: President, Rosa Lee Boyd; Senior Vice, Verna Mizelle; Junior Vice, Doris Harris; Treasurer, Margaret Brown; Chaplain, Ms. Moseley; Conductress, Helen Liles; Guard, Ms. Meeks; Three-year Trustee, Louise Cox; and Secretary, Carrie West.

Ray Brewer, Peggy Heath and Estelle Stienner were meeting hostesses.

Make your favorite little one the trend setter for the carriage set with this adorable six-piece crocheted outfit. Made with machine-washable baby yarn, it is worked in a simple pattern stitch with easy-to-follow instructions for six-month and one-year sizes. The set consists of a bonnet, sacque, pullover, diaper cover and pair of booties.

To obtain instructions for making the entire baby ensemble, send your request for Leaflet No. PC 3832 with $1.00 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or, you may order Kit No. K-3832 by sending a check or money order for $11.00 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes shipping charges and the kit contains sufficient Wintuk yarn to make the complete set. Please specify your choice of blue, pink, green, yellow or white.

The baby set featured today is worked throughout in single and in half-double crochet. For those who do not know how to work a half-double crochet, it is simply a shortened version of double crochet.

To practice, first make a chain of an uneven number of stitches. Then work a row of single crochet for a foundation row. At the end of this row, chain two and turn.

Now, work a row of half-doubles as follows: wrap the yarn once around the hook and insert it under the top of a stitch from the row below; wrap the yarn around the hook again and pull this loop through to the front of the work. You now have three loops on the hook. Wrap the yarn around the hook and pull it through all three loops on the hook, thus completing one half-double crochet. Work half-double crochets in the same manner in each stitch across. To start the next row, chain two, turn. Then, skip one stitch of the previous row and work a half-double in the next stitch. Repeat these two steps all across the row. When you repeat this row over and over, you will be working the pattern stitch used in the baby set. That's all there is to it.

Dear Pat: Would you do me a favor and please tell me how to make covered buttons for knitted or crocheted garments? — Mrs. R.M., Youngstown, Ohio.

Dear Mrs. M.: There are several ways to make covered buttons, but here are a couple of the more popular. You can get the button molds at most fabric stores and the plastic rings generally are available at the same source or in drapery departments.

To begin, chain three stitches and join them with a slip stitch to form a ring. Then, make six single crochets in the ring. Chain one to turn and mark the last stitch in the first round so that you will recognize the beginning of each new round. A small piece of contrast yarn makes a good marker.

For the next round, increase to 12 stitches by working two single crochets in each stitch of the previous round.

In the third round, increase in every other stitch so that you have a total of 18 stitches. This may be enough increase rounds. If not, make additional rounds, increasing by six stitches in each round, spacing them as before. Your crocheted circle should completely cover the button mold.

When it does cover the top of the mold, work one row of single crochet without making any more increases. Then, place the top of the mold in the crocheted circle and work a decrease round by skipping every other stitch. Repeat the decrease round until the button is covered.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My husband was unusually quiet at dinner the other night and when I asked why he said, "I knew you wouldn't notice."

"Notice what?" "It's not important," he said.

"Then why did you bring it up?"

"If you really LOOKED at me once in awhile, you'd know."

"Know what?"

"I went to a barber today instead of my hair stylist. It's cheaper and besides I'm ready to look my age." He spun around. "Whatya think?"

"It looks like you just got a haircut."

"Are you serious?" he said, slamming down his cup. "I don't want to walk around looking like I've just gotten my hair cut."

"You didn't mind it when you got it styled and it looked freshly blown."

"That's different," he said. "Men like hair that looks like it's just been blown and mussed, but no one wants a haircut that looks like you've just had a haircut."

He wasn't always this temperamental. I knew him before he was a "standing" in the days when he thought herbal was a tea. Before he had his own hair dryer and wrote to Sweden demanding they give the Nobel Prize for science to the inventor of Grecian Formula.

I couldn't help but think what I had been through with him: the enlistment crew cut, the sheep dog shag, the Doris Day bangs, the Dorothy Hamill swirl, the Hamlet helmet, the Prince Valiant number and his fur-face experience.

Once watched him nurture three strands of hair until they measured 13 inches long. Then he teased them, braided them, and coiled them carefully over a barren patch of scalp to make it look like top-of-the-line-plush carpet.

I watched him part his hair from ear to ear, brush it forward and live a tortured existence in fear of drafts.

I told him yesterday, "Stop stewing around about your hair. I find you devilishly attractive. Your hair has an Alexander Haig quality . . . a no-nonsense high over the

Bonds Of 1941 At Maturity

The Department of the Treasury, Savings Bond Division, advised that only those Series E Bonds issued in 1941 will reach their final maturity in 1981.

The division reported that on the 40th anniversary of the issue dates, bonds issued in 1941 will no longer earn interest.

Series E Bonds issued after 1941 through April of 1952 will reach final maturity 40 years from their original issue date, at which time they will stop earning interest, according to the Treasury Department.

It advised that rather than cashing Series E Bonds at final maturity, they may be exchanged for Series HH Bonds, continuing to defer the federal tax on accumulated interest until HH Bonds are cashed.

Why Not Go Home?

The Legislative Joint Appropriations Committee has decided to defer consideration of some $280 million in budget items until a short session in October.

The thinking is that some items can't be considered until the federal budget is approved and a determination can be made on North Carolina's finances.

The delay concerns Gov. Hunt. Included in the items is the state employee pay raise or benefits package and the reduction of public school class size.

It is part of the governor's plan to reduce class size in grades 4-6 to 28 next fall and 26 the year following.

If that is held up until October it would be too late to make changes for the 1981-82 school year.

We would think the Legislature ought to move on with its budget planning now. There is always uncertainty in planning anything so large as the state budget working only with projections of revenues.

But if the Joint Appropriations Committee feels it cannot do its work at this time, then the Legislature should wind up things as soon as possible and go home. There's no point in meeting every day if the real decisions are going to be made in October.

More Caution For President

President Reagan, after an extremely dangerous assassination attempt, was well enough to hold a press conference and return to the Oval Office last week.

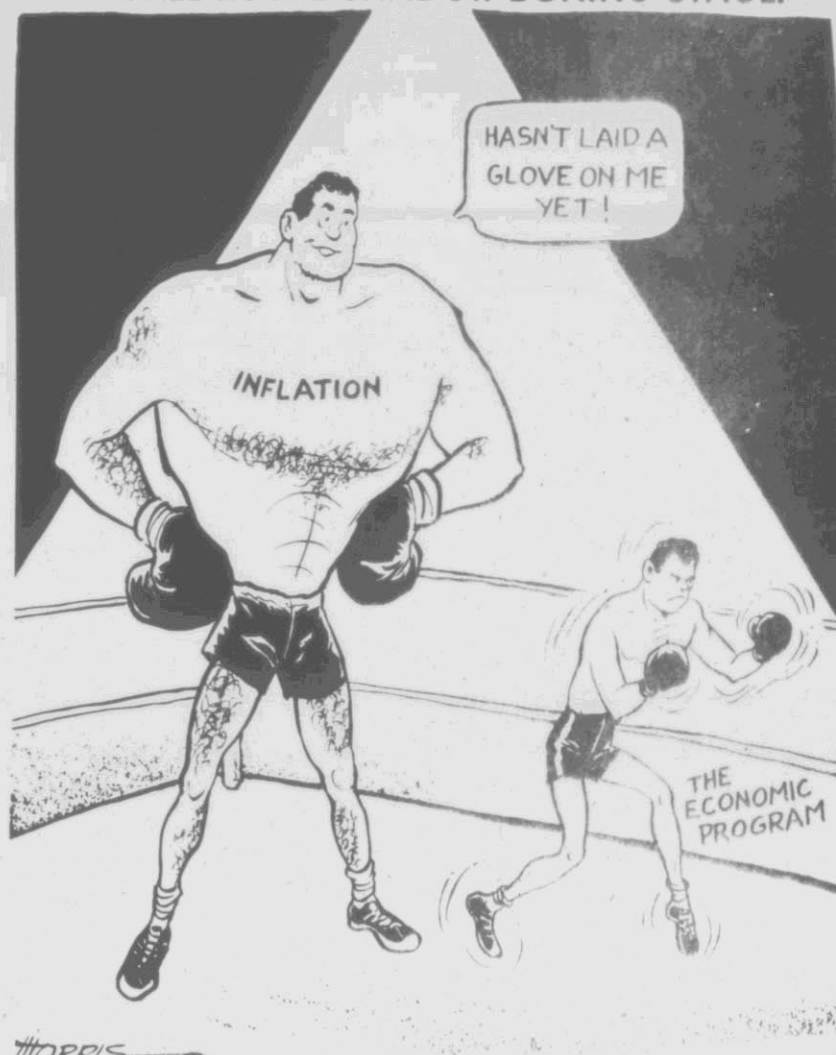

It was clear that the chief would be suffered was quite an experience. He described the pain as paralyzing and he realized he was injured when he coughed blood.

He told reporters he would not change the way things are done when he returns to a full schedule, but he would be more alert.

Obviously the president can't become a prisoner in the White House and be totally inaccessible to the public. But we hope there will be more care in the appearances the president makes — perhaps less milling with crowds. There are, after all, plenty of would-be assassins, but we only have one president.

STILL IN THE SHADOW BOXING STAGE!

THIS AFTERNOON

Far From Perfect

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — If the General Assembly of North Carolina is supposed to be the peak of representative government, it falls considerably short of the mark.

Students of the legislative process are now satisfied that the federal mandate of "one man, one vote" which was supposed to make the Legislature more truly representative of the state as a whole has to some considerable degree had the opposite effect.

Geographically, North Carolina is a sprawling state ranging from mountains to foothills to Piedmont to sandhills to Coastal Plains to soundshores and the coast.

It is the only place in the Union in which one can travel from West Virginia to Mississippi and never cross a state line. The people who live in those diverse places are different, and their unique needs are just as different.

But the power in the General Assembly is gradually concentrating in the hands of the more affluent, thickly populated sections of the state — extreme eastern and western sections are being left out.

No change. The redistricting process currently underway at the General Assembly as a result of the 1990 Census will do nothing to change the situation. In fact, it will only make the lack of direct representation worse in some areas because the rural areas will continue to be absorbed by roughly the same number of people from which state senators and representatives are elected.

Fully one-third of the counties out of 100 now have neither a senator nor a member of the house of representatives.

Only 21 of the states have counties have a senator. There are 50 senators. In the House of Representatives only 62 counties have direct representation in the 120-seat body.

The matter of direct representation is managed on a strictly informal and unwritten basis in some sections of the state where political leaders attempt to spread the local delegation out fairly. And when a vacant seat occurs, an effort may be made to rotate the place of residence of the lawmaker. In other places, though, the centers of population fight bitterly to take and keep all the power while outlying sections get nothing.

Two measures currently under study in the General Assembly would only serve to worsen the situation as to direct representation. Both would require amendments to the State Constitution.

One proposal would reduce membership in the House of Representatives to 100. Districts could be allowed to cut across counties without regard to county lines. The result could be an increase in numbers of counties without direct representation and even more confusion about who is "our representative."

Four Years

The other measure would extend terms in the legislature from two years to four years, which could only mean that, once seated, a member would remain longer, thereby denying for longer periods of time the opportunity for "unrepresented" counties of a district to secure representation.

Meanwhile, a subtle change in makeup of the urban delegations from heavily populated Piedmont counties is becoming noticeable. When as many as

Runnymede In Georgia

WASHINGTON — It's a long, long way from the meadow of Runnymede to the insignificant streets of Buford, Ga., but the spirit of Magna Carta was breathing last week in Dixie. The U.S. Supreme Court once again affirmed the doctrine that a man's home is his castle.

The opinion that will be reported as Steagald vs. United States is something less than a landmark. Other Fourth Amendment cases will be invoked more often. Nevertheless, the high court's decision is important; it reminds us that even a bunch of cocaine smugglers have rights that cannot be violated by the cops.

These were the facts: Back in January 1978, agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration received word through a reliable informer that a federal fugitive named Ricky Lyons might be found there. He disappears from the story at this point. But something else was there: 43 pounds of top-grade cocaine, concealed in a couple of suitcases. Hoyt Gaultney and Steagald subsequently were tried on drug charges. The record doesn't show what happened to Gaultney, but Steagald got two concurrent in the Atlanta area. Agent Kelly Goodwens located the lakeside cottage in Buford where Lyons was thought to be hiding. Goodwens put together a raiding party and descended upon the cottage. The agents swiftly grabbed two men who were just outside on the driveway.

One of the men was Gary Keith Steagald; the other was his partner Hoyt Gaultney. Inside the cottage was Gaultney's wife Cathy. It transpired that all three of them lived there. Several agents went to the door, demanded entrance, and told Cathy Gaultney they had an arrest warrant for the fugitive Lyons. "He isn't here," she told them. They put her at gunpoint against a wall and searched the house.

Sure enough, Lyons wasn't there. He disappears from the story at this point. But something else was there: 43 pounds of top-grade cocaine, concealed in a couple of suitcases. Hoyt Gaultney and Steagald subsequently were tried on drug charges. The record doesn't show what happened to Gaultney, but Steagald got two concurrent

Other Editors Say De-Frill The Roads

(The Raleigh Times)

Jim Hunt, to the exasperation of some legislators, now crying "He stole my idea", has proposed several ways to save goodly chunks of the king's ransom North Carolina and America have been spending on our lavish highway systems.

Many of these ideas have been around a long time in more minds than Hunt's. Those who have ridden on Europe's narrower high-speed roads, for example, have long wondered why America wastes so much real estate, expensive to maintain as well as to buy, on roadsides and cloverleaves.

Hunt proposes an end to that. Not only rights-of-way, he says, but also medians, shoulders and bridges could and should be narrower — much narrower, like 46 feet instead of 68 feet for four-lane roads.

Bridges can be shorter, and slope more. Access ramps certainly don't need the depth of pavement of highspeed main lanes — and some secondary roads may not either. Chemicals and simply letting grass row can save mowing. Prison labor should be used on roads wherever feasible. If recycled asphalt is cheaper, by all means let's use it.

Too, as legislators point out, the state Department of Transportation obviously needs to streamline its use of human resources as well as of land, cement, asphalt and aggregate.

But the not-guilty verdict on that free driveway paving in Raleigh, for a DOT engineer who gave the paving firm confidential estimates, shows the legislature needs to tighten the laws as well as DOT cleaning up its act. It is a disgrace that North Carolina has never until now gotten around to outlawing gifts and favors from pavers to DOT officials.

There's still more blame to hand out in the roads mess. It's the federal government that set the tone for much of the highway overdesign Americans have indulged themselves in. Apparently the feds aren't feeling hard-pressed enough yet to take the initiative toward more thrifty road standards.

We'd be proud to have North Carolina lead the overdue move to abandon the best-and-most-of-everything principle of highway design and management.

Whether the governor or members of the Transportation Committee are first to utter the ideas shouldn't matter a hill of beans. The thing to do is get on with putting them into effect.

Strength For Today

WHAT ABOUT THAT COMPASS?

No sailor would think of venturing out of a harbor without a compass. Furthermore, if he is going on any extended voyage, he wants to keep in very close contact with the stars. His eyes are more often raised to the heavens on a long voyage than they are to the horizons.

Yet millions of people go through life without the aid of a moral compass. Even more serious is the indisposition of people to look to the heavens for guidance — that is, until they find themselves in trouble. Then when the heavy hand of the law rests upon them or upon their loved ones, when a spouse or child is stricken with illness, when creditors serve notice they will foreclose on a certain day unless payment is made — then these people look up frantically to the heavens, raise imploring hands, and beseech a God whom up to that time they have for the most part ignored.

Navigation, in life and on the seas, is a fine art, and it depends upon the "compass" and on the stars. — Elisha Douglass

Youngstown Is Watching

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio — "Back Reagan!" Diane Rossi whispered to fence-sitting Rep. Lyle Williams as he entered the Holiday Inn-North here last Friday to face social workers lobbying against President Reagan's budget cuts.

Mrs. Rossi is a social worker herself, a supervisor in the Mahoning County (Youngstown) welfare department. But she told Williams that many welfare recipients "are loafers who can work if they want to" and the program "is full of waste." A lifelong Democrat, she voted the straight Republican ticket last year.

Once inside the meeting, Mrs. Rossi was lost among 300 social workers frowning and shaking their heads over Reagan's budget outrages. The contrast symbolized her mood in this economically-ravaged former steel city after Reagan's first hundred days. While the city fathers are horrified, there is substantial support for the Republican president from the overwhelmingly Democratic electorate.

Whether or not Reagan is the cause, there is hope for economic revival in the Mahoning Valley not visible to us on a reporting trip here almost a year ago. Industrialists who had given up hope for Youngstown have changed their minds because of the new spirit. The United Steelworkers Union has agreed on a plan to increase productivity at Commercial Shearing, Inc., plants here that will close unless they show a profit. General Motors management and the United Auto Workers at the notorious Lordstown plant nearby, after years of shouting at each other, sat down Friday to discuss productivity and quality.

This is the backdrop for the difficult decision facing Rep.

Williams, who in 1978 moved from his barbershop to Washington as this district's first Republican congressman in 42 years. No conservative (42 percent by American Conservative Union ratings), he is disliked by businessmen. No liberal (33 percent by Americans for Democratic Action ratings), he is despised by the social welfare establishment. He won an unexpected reelection landslide in 1980 by coming home from Washington every weekend and by cutting a fine line down the middle.

But there is no middle on the budget. Williams soon must choose on the House floor between the Reagan budget and the Democratic alternative of Rep. James Jones. Williams discloses, "I'm interested in the Jones budget," making him one of a handful of Republican House members who might defect on Reagan's first decisive vote.

Williams, who carried this district by 30,000 votes while Reagan was losing it by 7,000, does not want to appear as a regular Republican knuckling under to the president. City leaders try to exploit Williams' independence by making ferocious warnings. Pete Stark, senior member of the city council, says angered welfare recipients may kill for food. Mayor George Vukovich fears the city will be burned.

Such talk is fanned by the social welfare bureaucracy. The Holiday Inn emergency meeting was attended by paid professionals, men in three-piece suits and women in expensive dresses, with much at stake. Veteran County Commissioner Tom Barrett commented wryly as he entered the jammed meeting room, "It looks like a save-our-jobs rally by the social workers."

Williams has no intent of

Benefits Surge Against A Tide

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Lives there a person having no relative who receives Social Security benefits? Yes, but there aren't many. And that explains in part why benefits surge against a tide of conservatism.

It probably also explains as well as anything why the feelings of 90 million workers, most of whom grumble about the tax bite from their paychecks, are politically neutered while their burden grows greater.

Beginning early in July, benefits to Social Security recipients will rise 11.2 percent for about 40 million Americans, bringing the monthly average to $371, more than $100 higher than it was in early 1979.

That was before increases of 9.9 percent in July of that year and a 14.3 percent raise a year later, paid for out of the checks of workers who sometimes tried and failed to receive increases half that size.

Therein lies the secret of another word in the economic garden: If recipients can get hefty raises — top benefit to a 65-year-old retiring this year jumps $75.90 to $752.90 — shouldn't workers expect the same?

There follows a torrent of other questions, some white-hot, some cooled for the time being.

Why raises to beneficiaries potentially as inflationary as those for workers?

With workers and employers each paying up to $195.06 a year in Social Security Medicare taxes, and with further increases probably on the way, is the limit of ability and tolerance being strained?

Is the Consumer Price Index a fair measure of living cost increases?

Of all questions, the final one probably is examined more than all others, since percentage increases in the CPI automatically lead to identical increases in Social Security benefits. It's the law.

Is it a good measure? By most reckoning, the not. You could see a retirement academy, labor leaders and government economists, and probably not find one who would not be magnified by the fact that it distorts, because it automatically favors Social Security beneficiaries.

The criticism is many: that it ignores a natural tendency of people to avoid foods whose prices rise temporarily for seasonal reasons; that the housing component, which rises with mortgage rates, is flawed in assuming everyone is at all times a homebuyer; that the national CPI often varies greatly from the regional or local price index.

Critics argue that beneficiaries, mainly retirees, are like most other people in that they don't buy houses each year, and so are unaffected by rising mortgage rates. The elderly also avoid some other expenses, such as commuting costs, that younger urban families must contend with.

But they have their defenders too. For years, it is argued, America's older residents have been cheated by inflation. Having worked, saved and contributed to retirement plans through most of their lives, they arrived at retirement age to find inflation had depleted their assets.

It's hard to contest that argument. Following the Great Depression of the 1930s workers bought life insurance policies and then watched as the security promised by them shriveled in the heat of inflation. They saved, and saw the buying power of the savings almost disappear. They sacrificed and they avoided debt, and found debtors made out better because they repaid in cheaper dollars — with a tax break, to boot.

What the country is doing now, or so it is said, is merely atoning for damage done to those whose assets and ideas about financial virtue were swept away by a new, swinging financial style.

That does not, however, explain how to break links between Social Security and rising personal tax burdens, growing indebtedness, soaring government expenses and inflation. Nor does it assuage the feelings of workers who feel they are being unfairly burdened with the expenses.

In fact, say the harshest critics, the country is now trying to assure the security of those hurt by inflation by giving them more inflation.

The resolution, if it exists, is buried beneath a mound of festering economic and political controversy that nobody seems anxious to stir up. It's like an old, unresolved family issue that smolders on.

Sooner or later the two generations, recipients and payers, must reach an accommodation with each other and reality. Someone must sacrifice, an unpleasant prospect when each feels it has sacrificed enough.

three state Senators and eight house members can concentrate in one county, those elected become "delegates" rather than legislators. There is more caucusing to attain unified action, and more block voting and power brokering. Individual delegates, too, tend to be elected from special interest groups rather than from the county as a whole. For instance, a typical "big city" delegation in the General Assembly will be one black, one woman, one lawyer, one retiree, one businessman, and — if there is room — one working person.

Some interest is being expressed in changing the Senate to 100 members; one elected from each county. Interest comes mostly from unrepresented counties, however, so action is uncertain.

five-year sentences. He appealed.

His appeal rested on familiar Fourth Amendment grounds. The DEA agents had no search warrant for the cottage; they had only an arrest warrant for a fugitive who wasn't there. Under the exclusionary rule, Steagald contended, evidence that is seized illegally cannot be legally admitted at trial. Steagald's lawyers demanded that the suitcases, the cocaine and other paraphernalia be excluded. The trial court and the Fifth Circuit refused to buy this argument and thus upheld the conviction. Last week the Supreme Court reversed.

In an opinion by Justice Thurgood Marshall, the court held that the outstanding arrest warrant was not enough. The agents had both the time and the opportunity to seek a formal search warrant for the cottage. So far as the occupants of the cottage were concerned, they were "third parties." They had rights of privacy as precious as the rights of English freemen in the days of King John. The unwarranted search was "unreasonable." If it were otherwise, said Marshall, police could arm themselves with an arrest warrant for a single person and then search all the homes of the individual's friends and acquaintances.

Justice William Rehnquist, dissenting, scoffed at his colleagues' "ivory tower misconception" of the realities of law enforcement. Marshall's "beggingly simple" formulation, he said, "simply will not wash."

Rehnquist thought the evidence should be admitted and the conviction affirmed. It is painful to say this, for Rehnquist usually is an expositor of sound law, but this time he was wrong and Marshall was right. Granted, the accused persons in this case were not models of civic virtue. Evidence disclosed that they were engaged in a major smuggling operation, bringing in cocaine from Colombia in the hollowed-out bases of ornamental lamps. The seized drugs had a wholesale value of $2.5 million.

That is immaterial to the larger issue. Seven and a half centuries ago, the doctrine was laid down in Magna Carta that free men have rights that not even the Crown may violate. On balance, it is far more important to preserve such rights than to lock up a dealer in coke.

saving their jobs. "There is no question that you are going to be cut," he told them Friday. What bothers the congressman is Reagan's plan to eliminate the Economic Development Administration (EDA), credited with the forthcoming construction of a 1,700-job aircraft factory here. Unless Reagan offers a viable economic development alternative, Williams says he "absolutely" will vote with the Democrats for the Jones budget.

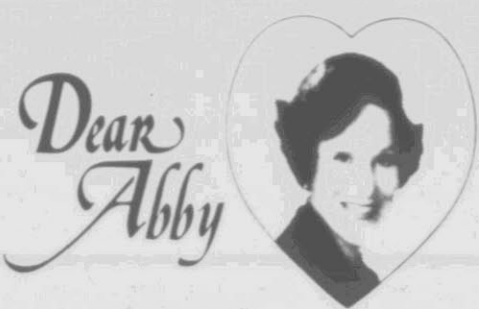

Yet, Williams has no illusions about EDA, which he says created 13 new jobs at the cost of $6 million in trying to develop an industrial park here. A major change in Youngstown is that hardly anyone believes any longer that either the rusting steel mills will reopen or that the federal government will provide money for new industries. "This town is going to have to do it itself," contends Democratic City Councilman Roland Fabrizio.

There is help from Reagan's Washington, but not in money, as shown when bureaucrats at the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) started tangling up a modest Republic Steel Co. construction plan in Youngstown. Williams placed a call to the White House, the White House called EPA and the tangling ceased.

That incident helped build pro-Reagan sentiment after a hundred days, including praise from the heart of the Democratic leadership. "The people like Reagan," says highly-respected Democratic State Rep. Tom Carney. "I admit I like him. There's a lot in his program that makes sense." Mahoning County's outspoken Democratic Chairman Don Hanni says, "I think people like the idea of cutting taxes." GM assembly line workers also like welfare cutbacks, according to UAW leaders.

The mood of the 85 percent or more of workers here who are employed was expressed by Rep. Williams when he called the social workers "the work force out there" can no longer support their activities. "We cannot let it get to the point," he added, "that they (the workers) do not have any incentive to keep going." One person in the rear (was it Diane Rossi?) applauded. But the views of workers will be weighed more heavily than those of social workers as Lyle Williams ponders his budget decision.

By Abigail Van Buren

(1981 by Universal Press Syndicate)

DEAR ABBY: A month ago I met a gentleman in a nightclub. I gave him my phone number and the next day he called me for a date. We went out and had a wonderful time just talking and getting to know each other. I told him I had recently lost 40 pounds and planned to shed another 25.

I didn't hear from him for a month. Then I received this letter:

"Hi. You are probably wondering why I haven't called you, so I might as well tell you the truth. First let me say I think you are a nice, cute girl and a wonderful person to talk to or I wouldn't have taken you out. I like you and I think you like me, but before I take you out again you must lose 25 pounds!"

"I am very picky about girls. They have to be TRIM! When you've slimmed down, call me. Take care."

Since receiving this letter I have lost more weight — for myself, not for him. Abby, please tell me, do you think this gentleman was trying to do a fat girl a favor? Or was he just showing himself for what he is — a conceited creep? What should I do?

FAT CHANCE

DEAR CHANCE: Revenge is sweet (and zero calories), so indulge yourself. Slim down, but don't call him. Arrange to run into him "accidentally," and if he asks why you haven't called, tell him you are "picky" about men. You prefer men who judge a woman by her character and personality, not her weight.

DEAR ABBY: We have a big problem at work. We are two women who manage a women's retail store. The dressing room is next door to our boss's office. We have found small holes in the walls in his office, which enable him to look into the ladies' dressing room. (The holes are covered by pictures.)

Do you have any ideas, Abby? We can't come right out and confront the boss or we might get fired.

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: A confrontation is not necessary. Every morning, check the dressing room wall for "holes," then cover them with adhesive paper. Do this routinely and your boss will soon realize that you are on to his dirty little peeping game.

DEAR ABBY: Should we be thankful for having more "choices" today? When I was in high school 30 years ago, my English teacher would stress, "You have a choice — you can go to the movies or you can stay home."

Never would she say, "You have two choices, you can go to the movies or stay home."

Was my teacher right? Everything you read today has "two choices."

STYMIED READER

DEAR STYMIED: According to my word maven, William Safire, "You can have a choice or two choices. Both are correct. But you cannot correctly say, 'You have two alternatives.' An alternative is the other choice."

So, take your choice.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CAN'T GET STARTED": Heed the words of Goethe: "If you think you can do it, begin it! Begin and the mind grows heated. Begin and the task is completed."

Enter Pleas Of Innocent

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Three former executives of the North Carolina Jaycees have pleaded innocent to charges stemming from the alleged misuse of charity funds raised by the organization.

Maurice Wilson of Charlotte, J. Harold Herring Jr. of Mount Olive and Johnny Lee Fletcher of Concord entered the pleas and waived formal arraignment Monday in Randolph County Superior Court. Wilson is a former executive director of the state Jaycees and Herring and Fletcher are former presidents.

District Attorney Garland Yates said the cases of the three will be tried in the same court session as those of Robert Archie Ruston of Gray, Ga., former national Jaycee president, and Thomas Anthony Alsop, a former president of the Charlotte Jaycees, on related charges.

The former Jaycee officials were indicted following a probe by the State Bureau of Investigation last spring of allegations that more than $140,000 raised by the state Jaycees for the North Carolina Burn Center at Chapel Hill was used to pay national dues for non-existent chapters around the state. Most of the money was raised through the organization's annual sale of grape jelly.

Wilson was indicted on several counts of embezzlement, misappropriation of funds and conspiracy.

Yates said he hopes to bring the cases to trial in May or June.

Another Body Is Found In Chattahoochee River

ATLANTA (AP) — Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, was found floating face down in the Chattahoochee River Monday — about the time police were deciding not to put his name on the special task force list of 25 other missing and murdered young Atlanta blacks.

The decision not to turn the case over to the task force was based on "the best information we had, information of his having been seen and we were going to check." Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown said Monday night. "The investigation was very intense, using missing persons and field operations as well as the task force."

Cause of Payne's death was not determined immediately.

A puff button can be made by crocheting in the same manner but without the use of a mold. To do this, just stuff the button firmly with yarn before fastening off the last stitch.

If you want ring-type buttons, just work a round of single crochet around a plastic ring of the desired size. Be sure that the ring is completely covered with stitches.

Turn the single crochet stitches so that the "bumpy" side is toward the center of the ring. Cut the yarn, leaving about a 12-inch end. Thread this yarn into a tapestry needle.

With the tapestry needle, run the yarn through a stitch directly opposite the last stitch you made. Then run the yarn through two opposite stitches, forming an "X." Continue to take stitches on opposite sides in a spoke-like fashion until you have a solid center.

As a nice finishing touch, try embroidering a few French knots in a contrasting color in the center of each button.

ately and an autopsy was to be performed today. Brown told a news conference.

Payne was about 5-foot-7 and 130 pounds. The last three young adults found dead in the Atlanta area also were in their early 20s and of slight build.

Payne was last seen April 22, going to the Omni sporting and entertainment complex, where he was hoping to sell some old coins, according to his sister, Evelyn.

He lived about a block from the home of Patrick Baltazar, 11, who was last seen alive at the Omni. Baltazar's body was found Feb. 13, in a DeKalb County office park.

Like 13 of the other victims, Baltazar had been asphyxiated. Six of the last seven victims were asphyxiated or probably asphyxiated, authorities said. Cause of one victim's death was unknown.

Payne's body was found just north of Bankhead Highway which runs northwest out of Atlanta. Four of the other victims lived or were staying in residential areas just north of that highway, in an area a mile or two closer to the inner city. They were: Milton Harvey, found Nov. 5, 1979; Curtis Walker, March 6, 1981; Clifford Jones, August 21, 1980, and Terry Poe, Jan. 13, 1981.

The sighting reports on Payne were similar to those which trickled into the Missing Persons Bureau after Timothy Hill disappeared March 13.

Hill's case was not added to the task force list until after his body was pulled from the Chattahoochee March 30, about 15 miles downstream from where Payne's body was spotted by two fishermen Monday afternoon.

What is a Money Market Mutual Fund?

A Money Market Mutual Fund is an investment pool, the funds of which are invested in interest bearing securities or deposits at market rates.

These may be corporate bonds, commercial paper, government bonds, large certificates of deposit (in some instances, in foreign banks) or others.

An investment in a Money Market Mutual Fund is shares in the fund, just like any other mutual fund.

What a Money Market Mutual Fund is not!

It is not a depository institution such as a bank or savings and loan. It is not regulated or supervised by any government agency, your investments are not insured nor are Money Market Mutual Funds required to maintain loss reserves.

Your investment in a Money Market Mutual Fund is not a "Money Market Certificate" which represents a deposit with a bank or savings and loan.

Your investment in a Money Market Mutual Fund is not a deposit with your broker. The brokerage firm merely handles your investment for you. It does not insure nor guarantee rates on your money.

The investments of Money Market Mutual Funds may be very high quality or very high risk. A Money Market Mutual Fund may be a good investment for you — but GET ALL THE FACTS BEFORE YOU INVEST.

Janna Weir Equestrian Winner

At a recent awards dinner in Charlotte Janna Weir, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Weir of Greenville, received two high point awards from the American Saddlebred Association of the Carolinas.

Weir, riding Bold Vanity, received the top awards in Saddle Seat Equitation, 14-17 age group; and her horse Silver Sea, received the highest honors for the American Saddlebred English Pleasure Horse ridden by a juvenile rider.

Weir is also winner of the grand championship in the Chapter 12 United Professional Horseman's Association Equitation competition. The UPHA is a national organization and awards 16 championships annually. Chapter 12 includes the Carolinas.

In a recent horse show in Winston Salem, Weir again rode Bold Vanity to victories in the UPHA Challenge Cup qualifying class, 14-17 age group equitation class, and the championship equitation class. She also rode Busy Bee, a five-gaited pony, owned by B & N Stables of Fayetteville, to blue ribbons in a qualifying and championship class.

Truckers Deny Charges Light

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A spokesman for the North Carolina trucking industry criticized as "misleading in the extreme" a preliminary federal study suggesting that states do not charge heavy trucks enough to use the highways.

J.T. Outlaw, executive vice president of the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association Inc., also questioned the acceptance of the report's conclusions by state Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw.

In a letter to Bradshaw, Outlaw said the report "provides absolutely no justification for proposed increases in North Carolina (truck) registration fees."

Bradshaw sent copies of the report to the Legislature's transportation committee members and said it found "heavy vehicles (60,000 pounds and more) to be underpaying."

"In terms of troops moving by air, consideration must be given to overflight rights and basing rights. After all, aircraft must land somewhere."

"My point is," Barker emphasized, "that most scenarios calling for rapid deployed troops would already have Marines pointed in the direction of the crisis. The Navy-Marine Corps team is still this nation's best ambassador. We can put Marines in motion without intrusion on anyone's territory and with no worry about benign ports, airspace rights, or a place to land our aircraft."

"The mere fact that we load out, sends a message — a very strong message — of deterrence. If we're needed, we're available and ready. If not, we turn around and sail back home."

Aside from its roll in national defense, Barker outlined, "what Camp Lejeune contributes to North Carolina," by saying the annual

to the state's general fund. The package was aimed at generating about $208 million next year, and slightly more the following year, in new revenue for the highway program. Hunt presented it in a 22-minute speech, declaring that "to get the amount of money essential for our roads and continued economic growth, we must increase the gas tax."

"North Carolina needs to reaffirm the commitment that has long seen us called

"the good roads state," he said. "We should pay a little more money now to keep our roads and highways in good repair."

The increase in the state's 9½-cents-per-gallon tax would be the first increase since a 2-cent increase in 1969. It would move North Carolina from 28th to 8th among the states in the amount of taxes it levies on gasoline.

Interspersed throughout Hunt's speech were videotaped shots of crumbling highways and potholes as well as poorly maintained roads in New York City and Pennsylvania, which he said would be the result if North Carolina did not act to shore up its dwindling road finances.

Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, chairman of the House Finance Committee where Hunt's proposals will be considered, praised the package as being "as good as anybody could come up with."

"I think the package will pass the General Assembly without a lot of problems and pretty much as is," he said.

The proposal was close to one put forward last week by Senate Ways and Means Chairman Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, and other legislative leaders for a 4-cents increase with a $30 rebate. Royall called Hunt's an "excellent package."

But Senate Finance Chairman Conrad Duncan, D-Rockingham, said he would prefer a hold-the-line budget for the next two years. After that, he said, the highway program's needs could be re-evaluated.

Asked his position, Duncan said: "I'm going to preside."

Council Meeting Is Held

A talk by Mrs. Sue B. May highlighted the meeting of the Pitt County Council on the Status of Women which was held Wednesday afternoon.

Her program topic was "Lifestyles of Today's Homemaker."

"The role of the homemaker is changing so much today and we are not stereotyped anymore... we can be homemakers, but these have different descriptions including — married with a husband at home, married with children at home, married with grown children away from home, widowed with children at home or away from home, divorced with children, divorced with no children, etc."

"Women now can choose whether or not to marry. A homemaker needs a plan for their life and we, as homemakers, change from time to time," said Mrs. May.

She also discussed the future of homemakers and forthcoming trends. She quoted a recent figure of $85,000 as the cost of raising a child from birth through four years of college.

Speaking for Network: Women, Dorinda Bryant presented copies of the group's proposed budget for the year and explained a survey the group is planning to mail in the near future. She said the group's meeting will be held April 28 at 7:30 p.m. at Wachovia Bank.

Guests present for the meeting were Sylvia Wheelless, a former council member, Ms. Bryant and Marilyn Fields.

The meeting was conducted by Chairman Willie Carney. The group's next meeting will be held May 27 at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office.

Package

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Here is a look at Gov. Jim Hunt's package of proposals for raising more money for North Carolina's highway program:

— A savings of $20 million a year through administrative cutbacks in the Department of Transportation. Hunt outlined a list of 16 changes, including scaled-down designs for new highways and bridges, last week.

— Moving from the general tax fund to the highway fund the sales taxes collected on motor vehicle parts and accessories, which would provide $59 million for highway use next year. The money would be replaced in the highway fund by the increase in the tax on alcohol.

— Increases in truck registration fees. The fee would rise 25 percent for trucks up to 60,000 pounds; 30 percent for 60,000 to 70,000 pounds; and 35 percent for 70,000 to 80,000 pounds. It is aimed at generating $16.9 million next year.

— Increases in driver's license fees from $4 to $10, and similar increases for other license fees. It is aimed at generating $14.4 million.

— Increases in fees charged by the department's License and Theft Division, aimed at generating $4.3 million next year.

— Increases in fees charged by the Division of Motor Vehicles other than driver's fees, aimed at generating $3.2 million.

— Increasing the tax on gasoline by 3 cents per gallon, from 9½ cents to 12½ cents. It is aimed at generating $90 million a year.

— An income tax credit for personal driving. The credit would be available up to a maximum $22.50 for any individual or household, to be subtracted from state personal income taxes. The credit would reduce anticipated state revenues by an estimated $11 million a year.

Church Locked During Congregation's Dispute

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A southside Catholic church was locked and guarded by off-duty policemen, posted to keep dissident members of the congregation from blocking changes in the sanctuary.

After word spread Monday that Christ the King Church had been closed, about 30 members of a conservative faction at the church gathered there to protest the changes. Some held picket signs displaying their opposition to the renovations, which include moving the tabernacle from the central altar to a less prominent position on a side pedestal.

The tabernacle contains the Eucharist, communion material consecrated as the sacred body and blood of Jesus Christ. The conservative group believes moving the enclosure violates the Catholic faith and diminishes the significance of the Holy Eucharist.

"The bishop is using armed force to impose this destruction," said Bob Utter, one of those locked out of the sanctuary. He later said he had entered the sanctuary and was praying when two officers carried him out. He was not arrested.

Auxiliary Bishop George F. Fitzsimons was away from his office Monday and unavailable for comment. A statement issued by the diocese said the church was closed temporarily "for the protection of people and the workers, and to assist in the orderly completion of renovations and improvements."

The diocese also sought, and was granted, a temporary restraining order Monday which prevents church members from interfering with construction work at the church.

Jackson County Circuit Judge Donald Mason issued the order and set May 7 for a hearing on whether a temporary injunction should be issued.

The incident was the latest in a series of problems in the 5,000-member parish, which has suffered deep divisions since a popular priest was transferred three years ago. The controversy over movement of the tabernacle developed earlier this year, and led to picketing during masses last month.

Bricklayers built the side pedestal for the tabernacle on March 30, but members of the conservative group dismantled it while the cement was still wet and hid the capstone in the church basement, church officials said.

The Rev. John Weiss, a spokesman for the diocese, said the changes were being made in the sanctuary to comply with directions from the Vatican on the modernization of worship services. "The bishop is going by the book," he said.

Find Pieces Of A Baby

DUNCAN, S.C. (AP) — Pieces of a baby's body believed chewed by dogs or other animals were found in rural Spartanburg County, S.C., Monday evening by a man mowing his lawn, an official said.

Spartanburg County Deputy Coroner Smith Thomas said John Morgan of Duncan, S.C., was mowing his lawn around dusk when he found a leg, a foot and the head of a baby that appeared to be 6 to 8 months old.

Thomas said the sex and race of the unidentified infant could not be determined. He said the remains would be sent to pathologists for tests to try to determine its identity.

The deputy coroner said the body may have been dragged by dogs from a nearby lake. He said there were marks on the body that appeared to have been made by dogs or other animals.

"The man was cutting grass in his yard when he saw what he thought was a rock," Thomas. "He climbed off his lawnmower to look closer and then decided he was looking at a piece of a doll. He started to pick it up and realized it was a human being."

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices plunged today amid concern over rising interest rates as President Reagan prepared to appeal to Congress for speedy passage of his economic program.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which reached an eight-year high Monday and opened higher today, retreated by noon, falling 7.21 points to 1,016.84.

Losers led a 94-edge over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The president was scheduled to appear before Congress tonight to press for adoption of his plan to curb government spending and cut tax rates.

But Larry Wachtel of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields said most investors believe "the president will get most of what he wants in budget cuts, will have a dog fight over tax cuts and that nothing is going to be changed by what he says tonight."

Wachtel attributed today's losses to higher short-term interest rates and also contended the stock market was suffering from "tired blood" and was ready for a "correction" in a rally that began in February.

Monte Gordon of Dreyfus said the stock market "has run about as far as it is likely to go" on the strength of earlier government reports of reduced inflation, increased business productivity and economic growth.

The NYSE's composite index of all of its listed common stocks fell 0.62 to 77.61. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 3.99 at 357.28.

Volume on the Big Board reached 28.47 million shares over the first two hours, up from 24.15 million in the same period Monday.

Citicorp was the most active issue, up 1/4 at 25 1/2, in trading that included a block of 503,500 shares changing hands at 26. Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank and a Citicorp unit, today left its prime lending rate unchanged at 17.5 percent.

Other bank stocks were also actively traded, including BankAmerica, down 1/4 at 25 1/2, and Manufacturers Hanover, up 1/4 at 35 1/2.

Eastern Airlines, which reported earnings rise in the first quarter, fell 1/4 at 10 1/2. Pan American, which reported a $114.5 million first-quarter loss on Monday, slid 1/4 to 5 1/4.

General Motors, which reported after the close of trading Monday that first-quarter earnings were up 23 percent from the same period a year ago, fell 1/4 to 55 1/2.

Tripp Named Recipient Of Award

NEW BERN — Billy Tripp, identification supervisor for the Pitt County Sheriff's Department, was selected as the recipient of the 1981 "Officer of the Year" award by the N.C. Division of the International Association for Identification (NCIAI).

Tripp received the annual statewide award, sponsored by National Police Supply of Charlotte, during a recent NCIAI conference here. The session dealt with various aspects of photo interpretation.

BILLY TRIPP

The recipient, who was selected for the award by a vote of the association membership, has been a member of the Sheriff's Department for four years. Prior to that time he served with the Greenville Police Department for 12 years.

A Pitt County native, he is married to the former Debbie Nachmer of Fairfax, Va.

During the meeting here, it was announced that James E. Allen of the Pitt Sheriff's Department and Gary M. Best of the Greenville Police Department had qualified for their Friction Ridge Examiners (finger print) certification issued by the NCIAI.

Allen, Best and Tripp are three of only five Greenville area residents to hold the certificates, it was noted. Pat Bundy of the Police Department and John Baker with the Sheriff's Department are also certified. Some 47 persons in the state hold the certificate.

Applicants seeking the NCIAI certification must meet certain criteria relative to educational qualifications, technical training, experience, letters of endorsement, and testing.

county represents an increase of a little less than 12 percent over last year's $1,883,000 budget amount from the county.

A brief look at items within individual categories of the budget reveal instructional and support services constitute the major portion of projected expenditures:

— State fund (total $6,110,579) — regular instructional programs, $3,468,613; other instructional programs, $814,936; special instructional programs, $447,891; and school administrative support services, $387,730.

— Local Current Expense Fund (Total $3,010,588) — School administrative support services, $986,233; regular instructional programs, $520,668; and vocational instructional programs, $488,117.

— Federal grants fund (Total $786,524) — Special instructional programs, $561,279; other instructional programs, $105,416.

Four amendments to the current fiscal year budget, amounting to a total budget increase of $55,542, were approved Monday night. These are:

— Budget amendment No. 11, current expense fund, an increase of $4,520 — $2,520 in CETA funds and $2,000 interest earned on investments.

— Budget amendment No. 5, federal grants funds, an increase of $8,500 in funds received for a career education grant.

— Budget amendment No. 7, capital outlay fund. An increase of $13,572, representing funds allocated for the purchase of a sedan and a maintenance truck.

— Budget amendment No. 3, school food service fund, an increase of $28,950 — $28,400 in U.S.D.A. regular grants and $550 interest earned on investments.

In personnel actions, the board approved the resignation of eight staff personnel, including teachers, librarians, and others; the election of 32 personnel to career status for 1981-82; and the election of 49 personnel to probationary status for school year 1981-82.

In a third personnel action, the board approved a recommendation presented by Cox for the non-election at this time of 15 part-time personnel and 11 full-time personnel.

The non-election recommendation, Cox said, includes several part time personnel who have for several years worked as part time in fields such as art, music, and drama. The full time personnel basically constitute new people who were added this past school year due to additional state teacher allocations to meet special conditions such as overload in classrooms in grades K-3.

Saints Select Rogers No. 1 UNC's Taylor Second

NEW YORK (AP) — The New Orleans Saints opened the 46th National Football League draft today by selecting running back George Rogers of South Carolina, the 1980 Heisman Trophy winner and fourth leading rusher in college history.

Rogers made an immediate appearance next to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle at the podium, holding aloft a Saints' helmet.

"I'm too excited really to say anything," Rogers said. "I'm certainly going to give my best every time on the field."

The New York Giants, with the second pick, wasted no time in selecting linebacker Lawrence Taylor from North Carolina.

The New York Jets were next and they picked UCLA running back Freeman McNeil.

The crowd of hundreds of fans ringing the balcony at draft headquarters, fans who cheered the Giants' announcement of Taylor, booed when McNeil's name was read.

Rogers, a 6-foot-2, 220-pound tailback, led the nation in rushing last season with 1,781 yards, averaging 161.9 yards per game. His career total was 4,958 yards, fourth place on the all-time NCAA rushing list. Rogers wound up his career with 22 consecutive 100-yard games. His best game was a 237-yard effort against Wake Forest in 1978.

The defense-poor Seattle Seahawks were next. Unlike the Saints, Giants and Jets, all of whom made their selections quickly, the Seahawks took 9:10 of their allotted 15 minutes. Then they named McNeil's UCLA teammate, free safety Kenny Easley, a three-time Associated Press All-American.

Each of the 28 NFL teams had 15 minutes on the first two rounds and five minutes for the remaining 10 rounds of the two-day draft.

McNeil, the Jets' No. 1 selection, missed two games last season but still rushed for 1,105 yards on 203 carries, a 5.4 per-carry average to Rogers' 6.0.

Taylor, who played defensive end in North Carolina's five-man front, is an imposing physical specimen at 6-3, 240 pounds. He was the Player of the Year in the Atlantic Coast Conference. His 22 tackles for losses included 16 quarterback sacks.

Easley was the first player in Pacific-10 history to win first-team all-conference honors four times, the only freshman ever chosen to the first team. He holds the UCLA career record of 19 interceptions, returning them for 186 yards and one touchdown. That came in his senior year when he intercepted only two passes, the only time he failed to lead the Bruins in that category.

The St. Louis Cardinals, taking nearly the entire 15 minutes, selected E.J. Junior, an outside linebacker from Alabama.

The Green Bay Packers, desperate for a top-flight quarterback to revive its offense, selected California's Rick Campbell, a 6-5, 220-pounder.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers, already solid on defense, strengthened themselves by picking Pitt lineman Hugh Green, who is expected to play linebacker in the pros. Green, like Easley, is a three-time All-American. Green will play alongside Dewey Selmon and behind Dewey's All-Pro brother, Lee Roy, an end.

The San Francisco 49ers, picking eighth, went for Southern California strong safety Ronnie Lott, who probably will switch to cornerback. Lott intercepted 14 passes during his career for 291 yards and two touchdowns. He led the Pac-10 with eight interceptions for 166 yards as a senior.

The Los Angeles Rams, using the No. 9 pick they acquired from Washington in a recent trade of first-round selections, chose Mel Owens, a speedy linebacker from Michigan, who made seven quarterback sacks last season. He was the fourth outside linebacker drafted in the first nine picks.

The Cincinnati Bengals took wide receiver David Verser of Kansas, who caught 30 passes for 576 yards last season. He ranks third in receiving yards and fourth in receptions on Kansas' all-time list.

Wills Tries To Pull Fast One

SEATTLE (AP) — An extra foot in the batter's box has the eye of American League President Lee MacPhail.

Oakland Manager Billy Martin noticed something unusual about the batter's box before Saturday night's game with the Seattle Mariners in the Kingdome and asked Bill Kunkel, chief of the umpire crew working the series, to investigate.

Kunkel discovered the box was 7 feet long instead of the prescribed 6. The extra foot was in the direction of the pitcher's mound and the groundskeeper said he was acting under orders from Mariners Manager Maury Wills.

MacPhail was contacted at Yankee Stadium Sunday by the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and asked about the incident. MacPhail said he had not yet received a report, but would look into the matter.

"The batter's box dimensions are there according to the rules and obviously you don't tamper with it," MacPhail said. "If that is being done, we will have to do something. It just looks like we are going to have to check the field up there in the future."

Because it was a first offense, MacPhail said he did not expect a suspension. "I'll wait to get (Kunkel's) report and I'll give the Seattle club a chance to respond," he said. "I don't think there will be any sensational action."

"A rule is a rule," Kunkel said. "Umpires don't go out there in an all-out war looking for cheating. But when the situation presents itself they have to correct it."

Wills didn't think it was a big deal, but Supervisor of Umpires Dick Butler, who was at the game, disagreed.

"It is like moving the bases 88 feet apart (instead of the prescribed 90 feet). If it is a couple of inches, which Wills admitted, it is just as bad as a foot. I've never seen anything like it in my 35 years."

Wills said after the game that he ordered the alteration because the A's were complaining that Mariner leftfielder Tom Paciorek was stepping out of the box toward the pitcher when he hit the ball.

Wills told the groundskeeper to add some length to the box. He said the addition was only a couple of inches, not a full foot.

Martin noted, however, that Rick Langford, a breaking-ball pitcher, was throwing for the A's Saturday night. By being able to move up a foot in the box, hitters would be able to cut at Langford's pitches before they broke.

Bishops Hand Pirates Third Loss In Row

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

It wasn't the way that Coach Hal Baird would have wanted to end the home season. East Carolina's Pirates, playing their final game in Harrington Field for this year bowed before N.C. Wesleyan, 9-6, in a game that maybe really wasn't that close.

The Bishops jumped on starting pitcher Kirk Parsons for five runs in the first two innings, chasing him. Then, they pounded reliever Bill Wilder for two home runs and added another on a passed ball to build their eventual victory margin.

The win was the 12th straight for Wesleyan, coached by former ECU aide Tony Guzzo, and their fourth in eight tries against Division I opponents. "This is real good for us," Guzzo said. "It should put us in good shape for a bid to the regionals, since we're winning and we won our (Dixie) conference championship."

The Bishops are now 29-10 on the season, while the Pirates tumble to 28-14.

"They've had a great year," Baird said of the Rocky Mount club. "They're ranked fifth in the country (among NCAA Division III teams), and this was a great win for them.

"We just don't seem to be getting the key hits," Baird continued, pointing to the fact that the Pirates had chance after chance to get back into the game, leaving 12 men stranded, including twice leading the bases.

"It's frustrating for the kids, since they are trying. They're not going about it halfway. Bill (Wilder) went with only one day's rest, and he really did a good job except for a few pitches. Getting behind early hurt us again, but at least this time, we didn't give the runs away."

The game was the 15th over the past 12 days, but Baird didn't believe total blame could be placed on that for the three-game dive the Pirates have taken at the end.

"Our pitchers are tired, sure, they've got to be. But I can't buy that the hitters are. If the pros can play every day for 162 games, then these young bucks ought to be able to do it for less than two weeks. If anything, it should groove their swings."

The Pirates eventually matched the Bishops in hits, each team getting ten. But Wesleyan had five extra base hits, including two doubles and three homers. East Carolina had four for extra bases, one homer and three doubles.

John Hallow, Todd Evans and Charlie Smith each had two for the Pirates, while Mike Jones was the only Bishop with a pair.

Wesleyan pushed over two runs in the first. Greg Clark led off with a single and moved up on a pickoff error. He scored on Jones' double. Jones then scored when Dan Hilling singled.

The Bishops added three more in the second. Tom Haverkamp singled and scored when Carson Aycock doubled. Jones then cracked a homer to center, upping the lead to 5-0.

The Pirates finally got on the scoreboard in the fourth, getting a run. Hallow opened the inning with a single and with one out, Todd Hendley reached on an error. After two were out, Fran Fitzgerald singled in Hallow, and Pete Persico walked, loading the bases, but a pop-up ended the inning.

Wesleyan got the run back in the sixth, scoring on Carey Griffin's lead off home run, making it 6-1.

The Pirates got two more in the seventh. Charlie Waynick opened the inning with a homer to left and Mike Sorrell followed with a double. With one away, Evans doubled, scoring Sorrell. Two walks loaded the bases, but a strike-out and a pop-up again ended the threat.

Wesleyan came right back again with two in the eighth. Griffin reached on an error and Willie Arrington provided another home run, making it 8-3.

East Carolina rallied once more, getting two in the bottom of the eighth. Robert Wells walked and with two outs, Hallow doubled him home. Evans beat out a single to short, and an error on the play allowed Hallow to come on home.

Wesleyan picked up one more in the ninth. Aycock was hit by a pitch and stole both second and third, scoring on a passed ball.

The Pirates also closed out their scoring with one in the ninth. Smith singled and Mark Shank came on to run, taking second on a wild pitch and third on a passed ball. He scored on Wells' single.

The third straight loss marked the first time since the latter half of the 1979 season that the Pirates have dropped that many consecutive games. In that '79 series, the Pirates fell four straight, losing doubleheaders to Pembroke and N.C. State.

The Pirates close out the 1981 season on Sunday, traveling to Chapel Hill to meet the University of North Carolina in a 2 p.m. game.

Angels Win Despite A's Triple Play

Out Of Reach

By The Associated Press
The way April has been going for Don Baylor, he'll take any kind of a hard-hit ball — even if it does result in a triple play.

Of course, he felt much better after hitting a home run as well Monday night.

"I've just been playing to get in a frame of mind where I could hit the ball good," he said after leading his California Angels to a 3-2 victory over the red-hot Oakland A's. "I haven't been able to do it all spring, but tonight I've had four good at-bats."

One of Baylor's four hard-hit balls was turned into a triple play in the sixth inning by the A's, thrilling a half-price night crowd of 41,760 at the Oakland Coliseum. But earlier, Baylor — who went into the game batting a paltry .058 — also had a sacrifice fly for his first RBI of the season and a tie-breaking home run.

"That's the first time this season he's swung the bat like I know he can swing the bat," said California Manager Jim Fregosi of Baylor, the American League's Most Valuable player two years ago.

Incidentally, it was only the second loss in 19 games this season for the West Division-leading A's.

Baylor's sacrifice fly came in the second inning and his homer in the fourth to break a 2-2 tie.

Right-hander Ken Forsch, 3-0, pitched a three-hitter to stop a six-game Oakland winning streak. At 17-2, the A's are one victory short of the major league record for most victories in April.

Steve McCatty, 3-1, was the loser, but pitched his fourth complete game and the 16th of the year for the A's staff.

In the bottom of the eighth, California left fielder Juan Beniquez robbed Mike Heath of a home run by leaping against the left field wall and grabbing a ball that would have cleared the fence. Beniquez went into the game in the eighth as a defensive replacement.

Orioles 5, White Sox 2
Red-hot Ken Singleton rapped four hits and drove in the winning run as Baltimore beat Chicago and snapped a six-game winning streak for the White Sox.

Scott McGregor, 1-1, a 20-game winner last season, scattered 11 hits, struck out six and walked two before needing relief help from Tippy Martinez in the ninth.

Singleton's four hits gave him eight hits in eight consecutive at-bats over two games. He had two singles and two doubles and raised his batting average to .512 with 21 hits in 41 at-bats. Singleton's fourth hit of the game, a single in the seventh, chased Chicago starter Francisco Barrios, 1-1.

Mariners 8, Twins 3
Lenny Randle capped a five-run 10th inning with a grand slam home run to lift Seattle over Minnesota. Earlier in the inning, Dan Meyer had delivered the tie-breaking run with a single.

Reliever Larry Andersen pitched the final three innings for the Mariners to even his record at 1-1.

"That's my first grand slam ever," said Randle, "and it's also probably my quota. I was just hoping I might accidentally get some RBIs."

Earlier in the game, Richie Zisk hit a solo home run — his sixth of the season — for the Mariners.

Rangers 10, Red Sox 0
Buddy Bell smacked a two-run homer in the first inning and Texas added four more runs in a sixth-inning outburst highlighted by a three-run Boston throwing error as the Rangers defeated Boston.

Doc Medich, 2-1, shut out the Red Sox on eight hits and helped his own cause on a fifth-inning double play, snaring a line drive from Gary Allenson and doubling Carney Lansford off first. Medich walked only one batter and struck out three during his route-going performance.

Yankees 3, Tigers 1

Bucky Dent hit a two-run homer and Ron Guidry scattered five hits in eight innings, as New York defeated Detroit to extend the Tigers' losing streak to eight games.

Guidry, 2-1, and Detroit rookie left-hander Howard Bailey were locked in a pitcher's duel until the seventh inning when the Yankees scored all their runs. Two of them scored on Dent's homer into the left-field seats at Tiger Stadium.

Guidry, who never walked a batter, called it his best outing of the season.

"My slider was better tonight than it has been all year," Guidry said. "That was my strikeout pitch."

Brewers 4, Blue Jays 3

Larry Hise's single scored Cecil Cooper from second base with two out in the 12th inning, lifting Milwaukee over Toronto.

Reggie Cleveland, 1-0, the fourth Milwaukee pitcher, earned the victory with two perfect innings of relief.

Pittsburgh Sues To Block N.O.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The City of Pittsburgh, calling its dispute with the Pittsburgh Pirates a "family affair," has sued to block alleged efforts to lure the baseball team to the New Orleans Superdome.

"To put it very bluntly, this suit is being filed to serve notice on the city of New Orleans and the management of its Superdome to butt out of this city's present contractual dispute with the Pirate management," Mayor Richard Caliguiri said after the suit was filed Monday in federal court.

Two months ago, the Pirates sued the Pittsburgh Stadium Authority in an effort to nullify the remaining 30 years of their lease at Three Rivers Stadium. The Pirates claim they've lost $7 million since occupying the facility in 1970.

At issue is a dispute over who will pay for an estimated $2 million to $3 million in stadium repairs. The Pirates also contend the city has failed to improve the highway access and develop the area around the stadium.

"The problems between the city and the Pirates are a family affair and we intend to resolve them here at home," Caliguiri said. "We have every intention of having the Pirates continue to play here."

The suit seeks an injunction against discussions between Pirate owners and Superdome officials. It was filed a day after Pirate owners and Superdome general manager Cliff N. Wallace met to discuss a possible franchise move.

Both Wallace and Pirate President Daniel Galbreath emphasized in a Sunday news conference here that the Pirates have no immediate plans to move.

"We have no intention in getting involved in Pittsburgh's family affair. We have a very clearcut intention in getting major league baseball in the city of New Orleans," Bill Curl, a Superdome spokesman reiterated Monday.

"We are not involved, nor do we intend to get involved, in a bidding war with Pittsburgh for the Pirate franchise. The chronology now is for the legal action the Pirates have taken to run its course," Curl added.

"And then, if the fact is the Pirates are not able to work out an equitable solution in Pittsburgh, we fully intend to get involved in making sure New Orleans stands head and shoulders above any other city that might be potential sites for that franchise."

Meanwhile, New Orleans attorney Salvador Anzelmo said he doesn't understand why that city is a defendant in the suit, since it has no direct involvement in the Superdome.

"The only connection that the City of New Orleans has with the alleged proposed removal of the Pirates to New Orleans is that, should it happen, New Orleans would welcome them," he said.

1. Sell that tuba that hasn't sounded a note the last three years. Any musical instrument will do if you don't have a tuba.
2. Take a good look in your garage. If there's a bike, moped, or motorcycle that hasn't had a rider in a long time, now's the time to exchange it for cash.

Valenzuela Naps, Then Hurls Victory

Remarkable Fernando

Los Angeles Dodgers' pitcher Fernando Valenzuela, sensational rookie left hander, tips his hat to the sold out Dodger Stadium after hurling his fourth shutout of the season and fifth straight completed game victory as he blanked San Francisco, 5-0, Monday. (AP Laserphoto)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a World Series atmosphere that gripped Dodger Stadium. Fans were arriving as early as three hours before the game and more than 100 members of the media were on hand to witness the latest performance of the remarkable Fernando Valenzuela.

So where was Valenzuela, the rookie Los Angeles left-hander, while all this was going on Monday night?

"He's getting up for the game, all right," said Dodger shortstop Bill Russell. "He's in there on the trainer's table, sound asleep."

The 20-year-old Valenzuela was wide awake a little later as he continued his incredible performance on the mound and at the plate. Valenzuela shut out the San Francisco Giants 5-0, allowing seven hits.

Valenzuela has started five games in his brief major league career and won them all, four via shutout, and in 45 innings this year, he has allowed only one earned run.

Monday night's performance lowered his earned run average to 0.20. With his third straight shutout, he has a string of 28 1-3 scoreless innings.

"Webster has no words to define him," said Los Angeles second baseman Dave Lopes, who helped the preserve Valenzuela's latest shutout with a running, over-the-shoulder catch of a fly ball in the second inning when the Giants had runners at first and third and nobody out.

The crowd of 49,478 accorded Valenzuela numerous standing ovations, on the mound as he strung out one shutout inning after another, and at the plate, where he collected three of the Dodgers' 11 hits and also knocked in the game's first run.

"He's entitled to all that but eventually was thrown out acclamation," said Lopes. "He's at the plate after Ken done things no one else has done. He's a star. He owns the city right now. He's a super kid and a great pitcher."

San Francisco Manager Frank Robinson, referring to right-hander had retired the Valenzuela's darting first two batters in the inning screwball, said, "He throws a pitch you don't see too often, and when you do see it, you don't know what to do with it."

San Francisco outfielder Jerry Martin, who had two of the Giants' seven hits, said, "He has more poise than any 20-year-old I've ever seen — that is, if he really is 20."

Afterward, Valenzuela, through an interpreter, said, "I feel great, no I wasn't tired, I went to my screwball more toward the end of the game."

On his hitting (he's batting .438 for the season with seven hits in 16 at-bats), Valenzuela laughed and said, "No, I've never been a good hitter. But I like to hit, and I try to hit well."

He singled in the third inning but eventually was thrown out at first base after Ken Landreaux had singled to center.

In the fourth, the Dodgers finally got to loser Tom Griffin, 1-2, after the San Francisco. Frank Robinson, referring to right-hander had retired the Valenzuela's darting first two batters in the inning

Mike Scioscia and Bill Russell singled, and Valenzuela promptly shot a base hit to right to drive in the first run, the second game in a row in which he has provided the game-winning RBI.

Lopes followed with a run-scoring single and Landreaux singled hope two more runs.

Valenzuela left two Giants on base in each of the first two innings, two more in the fourth and it wasn't until the seventh before he retired the side in order. He struck out seven to improve his National League-leading strikeout total to 43.

Phillies 3, Expos 1

Pete Rose tripled home one run and scored himself in the first inning to pace Philadelphia over Montreal and snap the Expos' six-game winning streak.

Right-hander Dick Ruthven pitched a four-hitter for his third victory in four decisions as the Phillies extended their winning streak to four. Bill Gullickson, 1-1, who pitched six innings and allowed just five hits, was the loser.

Lonnie Smith started the Phillies' first with a walk and scored as Rose tripled past a diving Andre Dawson in center field. Mike Schmidt struck out and then Rose scored on Gary Matthews' infield out.

Montreal had taken a 1-0 lead in the top of the first on a sacrifice fly by Jerry Manuel.

The Phillies added an insurance run in the fourth on a walk to Schmidt, a hit batter and Larry Bowa's RBI single.

"I wasn't a Picasso out there," said Ruthven, "but I was getting the ball over. I didn't run a lot of deep counts. I was under 100 pitches (97) for the game."

He struck just one batter, but that didn't bother him.

"I'm not a strikeout pitcher," he said. "In the seventh inning I tried to strike out (Larry) Parrish and he hit a rope (for a single)."

Bobby Jones' Defensive Play Difference In Win

BOSTON (AP) — It was the kind of play by which champions are crowned, the kind basketball purists savor — and the kind Bobby Jones makes as a matter of course.

And in a playoff series between two teams like the Philadelphia 76ers and Boston Celtics, who hounded each other throughout the National Basketball Association's regular season only to finish with identical 62-20 records, it was the kind of play that can make all the difference in the world.

Nate Archibald, Boston's veteran point guard, appreciated the play even though he was victimized by it. As he sat in front of his locker and replayed it in his mind, Archibald said, "The only thing between us and overtime was Bobby Jones — and he made a great play."

What Jones did was anticipate Archibald's half-court lead pass, step in front of intended receiver Larry Bird and, with the form of an all-pro free safety, pick off the ball with two seconds left to preserve the 76ers' 107-105 victory Sunday in Philadelphia.

That gave the 76ers a 3-1 lead in the series and a chance to wrap up the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final here Wednesday night.

The defensive gem by the 6-foot-9 Jones thwarted a comeback bid in which the Celtics had erased an 18-point second-half deficit, tying the score three times and once even edging it front by one.

And what made it so remarkable was that it came after Jones had missed an off-balance shot with 12 seconds left at the other end of the floor.

Boston's Cedric Maxwell grabbed the rebound and kicked it out to Archibald, who paused and looked at the Boston bench for advice. But he apparently neither saw nor heard Celtics Coach Bill Fitch, who was signalling "T" with his hands and screaming for a timeout, so he pushed the ball up the court, trying to catch the 76ers before they could get set defensively.

But Jones hardly ever gets caught off guard.

"After I missed the shot I hustled back and started looking for Bird because I figured they would go to him," recalled Jones. "About midcourt I found him and saw that he was drifting back toward the corner. I went toward him, then he broke to the ball. I didn't see the ball at first, but as the court opened up I saw it and it came right to me."

"I was open for a second," said Bird. "But it was a long pass and Bobby had time to get back while it was in the air."

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — Greg Dennis, a basketball star for Western Carolina, is 6-2. He was interviewed on a radio show recently and the subject was his many injuries.

Dennis had been hit by an ankle fracture, sinus infections, an elbow injury and a 10-day bout with the Bangkok flu.

"I need a body transplant," Dennis said, "and I'd like my new body to be about 6-8 and 240 pounds."

'Hill Street Blues' Will Live

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Somewhere, "United States" is smiling. "The Associates" is avenged. "Paper Chase" is enjoying a vicarious victory. Is there a canceled-TV-show heaven? If so, hosannas ring out.

"Hill Street Blues" has been saved. NBC, you done good.

Despite horrible ratings, a brutal time period and the label of critics' darling — the kiss of death in television — "Hill Street Blues," a series that deserves to live, is going to. NBC gave Mary Tyler Moore Productions a renewal on the show, which means that it will have at least 13 chances next fall to woo viewers.

This time, the good guys might win.

When a producer of a good television show says, "It just hasn't found its audience," he's usually copping an excuse for failure. But when Grant Tinker, MTM chief employs the phrase regarding "Hill Street," it rings true.

NBC is only just now giving the show a real shot on the schedule, moving its repeats from Saturday night — where any corner was murdered by ABC's "Love Boat" — "Fantasy Island" tandem — to Tuesdays, where it will probably land next fall, too.

Fred Silverman and his chief programmer aren't being altruistic here. "Hill Street" isn't just good TV, it's commercial TV. The downtown elements to this realistic cop show are carefully tempered by characters and situations of such breadth and simple comic appeal that success seems inevitable.

That's the difference between this show and other worthies that have vanished from network schedules after lighting fires in the eyes of critics and programmers but leaving Nielsen families cold.

Tinker and his producers have ideas to make "Hill Street" even more accessible without blunting its edge. For one thing, they might lose that innovative method of storytelling that strings some plots through several episodes. That's an experiment to be worked from a position of success.

"I'm delighted," says Tinker, "it's not been the biggest ratings winner to date — or, as we like to say, 'It hasn't found its audience yet' — but NBC clearly has faith that it will."

Cheers to NBC for that.

Ted Koppel, who otherwise has demonstrated himself to be a capable newsmen and an acceptably decent human being, had this to say recently on his ABC "Nightline" program:

"There is a minority in this country, and I number myself among them, who consider baseball to be one of mankind's more tedious pastimes."

Ted, Ted! Say it ain't so. You seemed such a nice boy.

Koppel did try for amends: "But as Mark Twain once noted, we are all ignorant, just on different subjects."

Right.

WILL VISIT PRESIDENT SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Prince Charles left Australia today for Venezuela, en route to Washington for a weekend visit. The heir to the British throne will call on President Reagan Saturday.

Network Revenues Up But Profits Declining

WASHINGTON (AP) — The major television networks, despite a healthy increase in revenues, saw their combined pre-tax profits drop by more than 7 percent last year.

The Federal Communications Commission, in its annual compilation of network financial data, said the net broadcast expenses of the three networks — ABC, CBS and NBC — totaled roughly $4.6 billion in 1980, up 11.5 percent over the $4.09 billion reported in 1979.

Broadcast expenses climbed 14.6 percent to $4.03 billion, however, leaving a combined pre-tax profit for the three networks of $534.1 million. That profit figure represents a 7.2 percent decrease from the $575.3 million reported in 1979 by the networks, the FCC said Monday.

In 1979, the networks reported a 15.3 percent gain in net revenues over 1978 and a 2.8 percent increase in pre-tax profits.

As was the case in 1979, the networks' overall financial record in 1980 would have been worse were it not for the performance of the five TV stations directly owned by each network.

The FCC said the 15 TV stations reported combined net broadcast revenues of $700.3 million, up 9.7 percent compared to 1979. Broadcast expenses totaled $491.8 million, up 13.6 percent, but the stations still managed to post a 1.6 percent gain in pre-tax profits — from $205.1 million in 1979 to $208.5 million last year.

By comparison, the pre-tax profits of the networks themselves, with the 15 stations excluded, plummeted 12.1 percent in 1980 to $325.6 million, compared with $370.2 million in 1979.

Net revenues from network operations totaled $3.86 billion in 1980, up 11.8 percent from the $3.45 billion reported the year before. But network operating expenses climbed 14.7 percent last year to $3.54 billion.

The annual network studies are prepared by the FCC using financial reports required of ABC, CBS and NBC as well as all radio and TV stations. The figures are aggregated, making it impossible to break down the financial results for any single network or TV station.

Deferred Payment Offer Is Rejected

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The chairman of the North Carolina Symphony refused an offer from symphony musicians Monday to renege on canceled concerts and to get paid for them later.

The remainder of the 1981 season after April 26 had been canceled due to lack of funds. The musicians offered to play concerts in Durham, Asheville, Greensboro and Raleigh this week on a deferred payment basis.

"This is a generous offer, which in effect, means that the musicians are willing to loan the Board of Trustees approximately $120,000 interest free," the musicians said.

But board chairman Charles Wade said the board doesn't have the money to accept the offer, even though he sympathizes with the musicians.

"The offer simply defers payment until next budget year and that budget isn't approved yet," Wade said. "It just isn't sound to operate on a deficit. That is what we decided at our April meeting and the situation hasn't changed yet."

Along with financial problems, the symphony has been troubled by labor unrest and image problems. The symphony has been without a permanent conductor since John Gosling was fired last year, and a strike paralyzed the orchestra in September.

Symphony officials said they will appoint a new conductor within a month — and they hope he is as brilliant in politics as he is at the podium.

The bidding:

Dble Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♠.

If you want to extract the maximum penalty when the opponents sacrifice, you must have complete confidence in partner. This hand is from a recent team tournament in Bridgeport, Conn.

West's opening bid of two diamonds was the Flannery Convention. It showed a minimum opening bid and a hand that contains specifically four spades and five hearts—a hand that is notoriously difficult to bid in any system. North's double promised diamonds, and East showed faith in the reliability of his partner's opening bid by leaping to six spades—despite the minimum point count, the hands rated to fit very well and the queen of hearts was a very important card. South chose to trust his opponents' bidding and opted for a sacrifice of seven clubs.

West led the king of hearts and East followed with the seven to encourage his partner. Now West shifted to his singleton diamond. East won the ace and returned the two of diamonds—a suit preference signal to show an entry in the lower-ranking suit, ♠ hearts. West ruffed with the five of trumps and returned a low heart away from his ace to East's queen. Now East returned the jack of diamonds, this time showing an entry in the higher-ranking side suit—spades.

West ruffed with the four, to complete a trump echo to tell his partner that he had started with three trumps. Then he dutifully underled the ace of spades. East won the king and played a fourth round of diamonds, allowing his partner to ruff with the queen while declarer helplessly undertruffed. Thus, the defense had extracted the maximum penalty—1300 points.

Note that, as the cards lie, six spades is laydown. Indeed, a grand slam can be made if declarer guesses to play North for a twice-guarded queen of trumps.

At the other table, East-West did not venture beyond four spades, which netted them 680 points. As a result, the fine defense shown earned a substantial gain for the East-West team.

FOCUS

Black and White in Britain

The classic image of British reserve was shattered briefly when race riots flared in the Brixton section of London recently. The event shocked many Britons into a new awareness of racial unrest in their country. One young man said, "They didn't know there was a problem here. Now they know." Indeed, multiracism is a concept that is new to many Britons. Before World War II, Britain was almost entirely white and Anglo-Saxon. Today, although only 4 percent of Britons are nonwhite, this segment of the population continues to grow. One black leader observed that if there is to be racial harmony in Britain, "attitudes are going to have to change. You just cannot imagine what it is like to be black in white Britain."

DO YOU KNOW — What percentage of the U.S. population is black?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Primates is the order of mammals that includes man, chimps, and gorillas.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use your intuition, which is accurate now, in handling financial affairs. Think along optimistic lines. Be logical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The right day to handle important matters of the past as well as current ones. Don't take risks when dealing with others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to be more successful in the future. The planets are now favorable for a successful endeavor.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure to complete any work left undone before taking on new work. Take time to study subjects that can be helpful to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Know what your personal wishes are and how best to gain them. This can be a particularly fine day for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take time to put your business affairs in better order. Await a better time for looking into new outlets. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Support persons who have been loyal to you in the past. Be more supportive of the one you love. Express happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your money situation and make plans to have more financial security. Handle credit affairs well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Have conferences with higher-ups and gain their backing and goodwill. Take time to improve your appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use more modern methods and get better results. A financial expert can give advice for a plan you have in mind.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Talk over mutual affairs with associates and make the future brighter. Handle important business matters wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can solve difficult problems, so direct education along lines of investigations for best results. Be sure to teach right spiritual and ethical precepts. There is a good sport in this chart.

Order Agnew Repay Kickback Money

KICKBACK PAYBACK — A judge has ordered former Vice President Spiro Agnew to pay the State of Maryland money allegedly received as kickbacks when he was governor. (AP Laserphoto)

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Maryland officials say they're not likely to file criminal charges against former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who has been ordered by the judge in a civil case to repay $147,500 in kickbacks he allegedly received while governor, plus interest.

Agnew, who served as governor from 1967-68, did not appear in court and was unavailable for comment after Monday's decision. His lawyer, Thomas R. Harrison, had said Agnew would not testify in the trial because his comments could be used against him if the state decided to press criminal charges.

However, Attorney General Stephen Sachs said it was highly unlikely such charges would be filed.

"This was the civil windup of the criminal prosecution. The criminal crack was taken by the feds," Sachs said, referring to the federal investigation that led to Agnew's no-contest plea to a tax evasion charge and his resignation in October 1973 as Richard Nixon's vice president.

Attorneys for Agnew said they would appeal the decision by Judge Bruce Williams, who ruled Agnew must pay $248,735 to the state because he accepted kickbacks from engineers seeking state contracts.

The decision was hailed by prosecutors as the first declaration by a court that Agnew did accept the money he has consistently denied taking.

But Harrison insisted it was not a finding that Agnew had accepted kickbacks. He did not elaborate.

Williams ordered Agnew to pay $147,500 in kickbacks and $101,235 in interest, ruling there was uncontested evidence that Agnew and two associates, I.H. "Bud" Hammerman and Jerome Wolff, were engaged in an unlawful relationship in 1967 and 1968 to solicit kickbacks from consulting engineers.

He said evidence also proved that Agnew accepted money directly from two engineers, Lester Matz and Allen Green.

"There is no question that Mr. Agnew violated his public trust," the judge said.

Testimony indicated that Hammerman, a close friend and adviser to Agnew, solicited kickbacks from engineers who received contracts from Wolff, chairman of the State Roads Commission.

Hammerman and Wolff split half of the money and Agnew got the rest, according to statements that Williams admitted as evidence in the civil case filed by three taxpayers and joined by the state.

The judge did not say if the payments continued when Agnew became vice president. Wolff testified he once met Green outside the Executive Office Building in Washington and that Green told him he had just delivered money to Agnew.

Wolff was dismissed from the case at the request of the state after he testified last week. Prosecutors had asked that Agnew be required to repay the $30,000 that Wolff said he got in kickbacks, but Williams said it would be unfair to the former vice president to ask him to pay back money which he never had.

Hammerman also was a defendant when the suit was filed, but his name was removed after he paid $30,000 plus $22,455 in interest.

After Agnew resigned the vice presidency, he negotiated a settlement with the Internal Revenue Service under which he paid, according to Harrison, about $162,000 in state and local taxes, penalties and interest.

Prosecutors tried without success to get details of the tax settlement admitted as evidence.

'Jane Doe' Will Go With Couple

PEMBROKE PINES, Fla. (AP) — Jane Doe, who remembers nothing of her life before she was found nude and near death in a state park, says she will go home with an Illinois couple that identified her as their long-lost daughter.

After a six-day leave to visit with Andrew and Irene Tomiczek, the 34-year-old amnesia victim said she would leave for Roselle, Ill., today with the two "nice people," though she is not sure they are her parents, officials said. She said she will keep the name Jane Doe.

South Florida State Hospital had been Miss Doe's home since a ranger found her in a Fort Lauderdale state park last September. Her search for her identity drew national attention, and last month, the Tomiczeks identified her as their eldest daughter, Cheryl Ann, whom they had not heard from in seven years.

While Miss Doe says she still has no recollection of her past, she told her doctors she wants to live for a while with the Tomiczeks in suburban Chicago.

"She came back from her leave of absence this morning with her mother, father and attorney," hospital spokeswoman Jackie Dale said Monday. "Very hesitantly and softly she said, 'I still do not feel they are my family, but they seem like nice people and I might like living with them for a while.'"

After meeting the Tomiczeks last month, Miss Doe asked the couple to leave her alone while she pieced her life back together. Mrs. Tomiczek stayed in the area and visited Miss Doe daily until the woman agreed to last week's leave.

"Even though she still doesn't recognize her mother ... there seems to be a feeling of warmth between them," said Mrs. Tomiczek's attorney, H. Gordon Brown. "But we've got a long way to go."

Even if she hadn't decided to go to Illinois, Miss Doe probably would have been released from the hospital soon, since she isn't on medication and could receive psychiatric treatment as an out-patient, Ms. Dale said.

School Break-In

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that deputies arrested two men early Saturday inside Belvoir Elementary School and charged them with possession of burglary tools, breaking, entering and larceny, and conspiracy.

He said the deputies, on night patrol, arrested Ernest Howard, 34, of Cool Acres Trailer Park, Rt. 6, Greenville, and David Earl Taft, 33, of 1304 S. Greene Street.

Sheriff Tyson said that entrance to the school building, located on the Belvoir Highway, was gained after a lunchroom door was forced opened. Two locks inside the facility were also forced, he noted.

The sheriff, who said that a 1975 model automobile was confiscated, added that the two men were placed in Pitt County Jail under $2,000 bond each.
