Reagan Economics Near Showdown House Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's economic program is heading for its first showdown in the full House with outnumbered Republicans optimistic they can deliver a crucial victory for the president. The Democrats' top vote counter figures they could either win by six or lose by 60.

Less than 40 hours after President Reagan personally appealed to a joint session of Congress to act quickly on his package of spending and tax cuts, the House was beginning debate today on whether to endorse a budget resolution backed by the president or a still-developing alternate plan being pushed by the Democratic leadership.

The House is the big hurdle for Reagan. His program is virtually assured of passing the Senate, where Republicans hold a majority.

Rep. Delbert L. Latta of Ohio, the ranking Republican on the House Budget Committee, said Reagan will "absolutely" prevail when the votes are counted in the House.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., predicted Wednesday: "We'll either win this thing by five or six votes or lose it by 60, because if you start to lose it, the swing will come."

Meanwhile, one congressman said as many as 35 of a group of 47 conservative Democrats probably will support the president's proposal over an alternative budget plan still being pieced together by the Democratic leadership.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, predicted that six to 10 Democrats who are not members of the Conservative Democratic Forum also will go along with Reagan.

If those shifts occur and Republicans sustain only two or three defections, as GOP leaders claim, it would assure Reagan of victory when a final vote in the House occurs next week, probably Tuesday. Democrats hold a 52-vote majority in the House and a net switch of 27 Democrats would enable the president to prevail if all the Republicans vote together.

However, Republican Whip Trent Lott of Mississippi remained cautious, saying, "We've still got a few ways to go."

O'Neill on Wednesday discounted the impact of Reagan's speech, saying it had not generated additional support for the president, as Republicans had predicted.

He also assailed the administration's plans for "brutal (spending) cuts that are going to hurt people in ways they don't even know yet," large budget deficits and "big tax cuts for the rich."

Referring to Democrats who plan to support the president's recommendations, O'Neill said, "We have members trying to reason with them."

Vice President George Bush said Wednesday that Reagan's speech gave the economic proposals a boost and that public sentiment is behind the president.

"If these congressmen listen to the people, I believe they will support the president," Bush told reporters. "I have underlying confidence that if given the option to vote on the Reagan package" or on a Democratic substitute, the House will choose the president's approach, he added.

Reagan originally proposed a $895.4 billion budget for 1982 with a $45.1 billion deficit.

Boy Survives 7200 Volts

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Seventy-two hundred volts of electricity passed through 14-year-old Douglas May's body Tuesday evening; yet he's well on his way to recuperating from second and third degree burns (mostly second) that appear to be his only injuries.

Douglas and his cousin Jay Allen were playing shortly after 7 p.m. on the grounds of the Farmville United Methodist Church which is across the street from Douglas's home at 902 W. Church Street here. They ventured inside a brick enclosure of a large steel cabinet housing an electrical transformer which serves the church. Douglas told his mother, Mrs. J. T. (Louise) Boyce, he was bending forward looking into the open door of the cabinet when he tripped and fell inside.

The next instant there was a loud noise that brought his parents and brothers and neighbors running. "It sounded like a gunshot or an explosion," Mrs. Boyce said, "and they (the crowd that quickly gathered) didn't want to let me go inside the courtyard he was in, because they thought sure he was dead. He was unconscious at first."

"I went in anyway, though," she went on, "and we saw he was alive."

Douglas was transported to Pitt County Memorial Hospital by the Farmville Rescue Squad, who report that he was able to talk to them on the way.

Douglas's physician, Dr. Howard Dawkins Jr., said Douglas has burns from neck to waist, most of them second degree (blistering, but likely to heal with no trouble). These, his mother says, were no doubt caused by his shirt's catching fire. No one knows how the fire was extinguished.

There is a third degree burn on his shoulder where it seems likely that the electricity entered his body, Dr. Dawkins said, and a dime-sized third degree burn near a knee where it must have exited. He has been in the critical care unit of the hospital through this morning, but will go into post-critical care today if there's a bed available, Dr. Dawkins said. Isolation procedures are being used to prevent infection of the burns.

Dr. Dawkins said he agrees with Douglas's mother when she says it's a miracle that her son is alive and doing so well.

"There's a critical portion of the heartbeat," Dr. Dawkins said, "during which being struck by electricity, no matter how small the voltage, will stop the heart. A shock by a home electrical outlet could do this. Obviously, Douglas was not struck at that instant."

Dr. Dawkins also said it is his belief that Douglas did not actually touch any portion of the transformer itself. Electricity can arc through air space, he said, and he was so very near so much concentrated electrical energy that I think that that's what happened," he said. "The electricity did flow through his body and turn to thermal energy which set him afire, but, fortunately it was not as direct contact as touching would have been."

Jay Allen, the child who was with Douglas at the time, was not injured and went for help immediately, witnesses said.

The loud noise witnesses heard was a fuse blowing. Farmville Utilities Director J. A. Wooten said. "It's a large fuse," he said, "and makes a big bang when it blows."

There is no damage to the town's equipment, Wooten said, the only cost that of replacing the fuse.

Asked if there are any extenuating circumstances that might have made the shock less damaging that one would think, low amperage or whatever, Wooten said, "No, this is a very large transformer. I can offer no explanation at all of why Douglas wasn't worse hurt. Everybody here's just so thankful that he wasn't."

Congressman Convicted In Abscam Gives Up Seat

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rep. Raymond Lederer, the only congressman to win re-election after being indicted in the Abscam inquiry, says he is giving up his House seat because of the "time and energy" needed to fight his conviction.

Lederer's announcement that he will step down May 5 came one day after the House Ethics Committee recommended he be expelled for his conviction in the FBI's undercover briberyconspiracy investigation.

"It is in the best interests of the people of the Third District for me to resign my seat," said a Wednesday statement from the 49-year-old Pennsylvania Democrat.

"This was a difficult decision for me because I believe that the mandate the voters gave me in November is something that must be taken seriously. On the other hand, those same voters have the right to a congressman who can devote his full energies to their service," said the statement.

Lederer was one of six House members convicted in the Abscam investigation, in which FBI agents masquerading as the representative of a fictitious Arab sheik offered money in return for favors.

He sent resignation letters to House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, Ethics Committee Chairman Louis Stokes and to Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh.

His resignation letter was read in the House chamber Wednesday.

"I leave with nothing but the highest respect for this House and with great appreciation to all of its members for the advice and support that has been given me during my tenure here," the letter said.

On Tuesday, the ethics panel voted 10-2 to recommend Lederer be expelled.

Last year, another

Philadelphia Democrat, Rep. Michael Myers, was expelled, the first congressman to be thrown out of the House since three were ousted for joining the Confederacy.

Myers, like Lederer, was convicted of accepting $50,000 from an undercover FBI agent in exchange for official favors.

James Binns, who defended Lederer at his federal trial in New York in January, has appealed the conviction, contending the congressman was entrapped by the government through the aid of an informant.

He hasn't appeared in Congress since he was convicted Jan. 20 of bribery and conspiracy.

UNDER COVER — Salvadoran troops take up firing positions under an armored car Wednesday in San Salvador. AP photographer Joaquin Zuniga made this photo just moments before he and another journalist were wounded and a Salvadoran interpreter was killed by fire from National Guard troops. The guardsmen said they were returning incoming fire. (AP Laserphoto)

U.S. Newsman In El Salvador Shot

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Two journalists, including one American, were wounded as they walked down a narrow street in nearby Soyapango while government troops searched for leftist guerrillas. A Salvadoran interpreter was killed.

Wounded Wednesday were Joaquin Zuniga, an Associated Press photographer, and George Thurlow, a reporter for the Daily Democrat in Woodland, Calif., who had come to El Salvador on a working vacation.

The dead man was identified as Gilberto Moran, Thurlow's 27-year-old interpreter.

It was not immediately clear whether the shooting came from soldiers, guerrillas or elsewhere. Zuniga was hit in the leg and Thurlow in the shoulder.

They were among a group of journalists who had gone to Soyapango, about four miles from San Salvador, after a power substation was attacked by leftist guerrillas trying to overthrow the U.S.-supported civilian-military junta.

Witnesses to the shooting said government soldiers first blocked off the area for an anti-guerrilla sweep, then told the journalists they could enter.

"We were walking up a street between two small hills when all of a sudden there was a lot of shooting and three people fell," said a

Salvadoran journalist, who asked not to be identified.

Thurlow, 29, arrived in El Salvador last Saturday for a week-long visit. Democrat publisher Kenneth Leake said the newspaper paid Thurlow's expenses and he planned to write stories for the paper and for sale to other publications upon his return.

"He's a real goer," the publisher said. "He had this idea of going to El Salvador and digging up stories." Thurlow worked for the Democrat for four years.

In San Salvador, no group had claimed responsibility yet for killing the director of the national lottery, Carlos Hidalgo.

The government said heavily armed men pulled the 47-year-old Hidalgo from his car Wednesday morning and shot him to death.

His family, however, said he received death threats recently from the leftist Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, one of at least six leftist groups operating in the war-torn country.

The government also said it had no new information on the whereabouts of the Rev. Roy Bourgeois, a 42-year-old American Roman Catholic priest missing since Sunday.

The priest, working as an interpreter for a Chicago television station, was last seen when he left his hotel.

In Washington, the House Foreign Affairs Committee voted to prohibit U.S. military aid and advisers to El Salvador unless President Reagan certifies the ruling junta is not abusing human rights.

The stand approved Wednesday by a vote of 26-6, was set forth in an amendment to the pending foreign aid bill. It would have to be approved by the full House and Senate to go into effect.

Administration officials said the six conditions for U.S. aid established by the amendment could be met if Reagan's hands in foreign affairs even though it does not conflict with the administration's goals.

The current El Salvadoran regime ousted the rightist government of Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero in 1979. The Human Rights Commission in the embattled Central American nation says 18,000 people have died in the left-right fighting that followed.

Fuel Costs Hike Airline Fares

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising fuel costs have prompted the Civil Aeronautics Board to authorize airlines to increase fares by 7.8 percent, effective Friday.

In announcing the action Wednesday, the board said average aircraft fuel prices increased from 94.1 cents a gallon in January to $1.04 a gallon in March.

TAMMY DIED

The East Carolina University School of Medicine has reported to Hotline that Tammy Hedgepeth, for whom there was generous response to a Hotline appeal last November, died in Johns Hopkins Medical Center Saturday, Apr. 18.

Tammy, a five-year-old leukemia patient, had the bone marrow transplant mentioned in the appeal and it was successful. Tammy succumbed to complications, Medical Social Worker Rhonda Stanley reports. "I feel it would be appropriate to notify Hotline readers of the outcome of Tammy's operation," Ms. Stanley said. "The response from Hotline was helpful in meeting the family's expenses during the procedure and for helping with burial expenses."

'Divine Disturbance' Forecast In '82 Elections

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Citing figures of funds spent by Republicans in the 1980 election campaign, and contrasting the figures with much smaller totals spent by Democrats, Mrs. Betty McCain at a Wednesday night meeting of the Democratic Women of Pitt County called on her audience to prepare "for a divine disturbance" in the forthcoming 1982 elections.

Mrs. McCain, long active in Democratic circles in North Carolina, is currently serving as the first woman in North Carolina to be appointed to the State Advisory Budget Commission.

Some of the figures mentioned by Mrs. McCain included $80 million spent by the National Republican Campaign Group as opposed to $18 million spent by the similar Democratic organization; an amount of $3.5 million the Republicans spent on state legislative races as against the Democrat's $77,000; and "the one million dollar interest group money" made available by the "beneficiaries of the Helms on Wheels Full Time campaign."

Mrs. McCain further touched on the extensive groundwork being laid by Republican forces in actions such as those of procuring precinct returns "from every precinct in the U.S. except for California" and a budget of "$3 million for an effort to attempt to effect redistricting."

She quoted John Dolan as saying to her recently "with this kind of money the Republicans could elect Mickey Mouse as president. I said to Sam 'by God, they did already.'"

A topic of current concern among North Carolina Democratic women touched on by Mrs. McCain is that of efforts to raise money statewide for the Democratic sustaining fund.

Double Ring Vows Performed Sunday

EDENTON — The Rocky Hock Baptist Church here was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Belinda Kaye Byrum and William Timothy McKeel. The Rev. Donald Wagner performed the double ring ceremony at three o'clock.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Wallace S. Byrum of Edenton and Mr. and Mrs. Ashley E. McKeel of Saratoga.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and her honor attendant was Peggy Spivey of Greenville. Bridesmaids included Pam Collins, Debra Boswell, Debbie Williams and Darlene Arnold, all of Greenville.

The flower girl was Susan Morris of Edenton and the ring bearer was Sandy Rose of Ahoskie.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers included Bryant and Wally Byrum of Edenton, brothers of the bride, John McKeel of Greenville and Mike McKeel of Saratoga, brothers of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Delores Hollowell, organist, and Bettie Beasley, soloist, presented a program of wedding music. Both are cousins of the bride.

The bride wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in silk raschel lace beaded with pearls. Matching raschel lace encircled the waistline of the empire bodice which was overlaid in French chantilly lace and trimmed the full sheperdess sleeves. The modified A-line skirt was enhanced by a tapered pleated center panel with panels of raschel lace on each side giving a redingote effect. The skirt extended to an attached cathedral train of imported French chantilly lace outlined in raschel lace. She wore a walking length veil of illusion bordered in scalloped clipped French chantilly lace held in place by a caplet overlaid in beaded matching lace. She carried a nosegay of daisies and baby's breath.

The attendants each wore formal length gowns of lilac crepe de sheen designed with an open neckline featuring miniature rolled shoulder straps that criss-crossed in back to a panel in front and lilac pearl button closures in back. The waistline was encircled with a rolled tie sash from which fell the gathered skirt. The sleeveless gown was complemented by a short jacket of lilac chiffon. They each carried a nosegay of daisies, baby's breath and purple statice.

The flower girl was dressed in a floor length white eyelet dress trimmed with lilac ribbon and carried a white basket of mum petals.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was given by the bride's parents.

After a wedding trip to Nags Head, the couple will be living in Greenville.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Look, just because I was in the park in a $33 pair of running shoes and a sweaty T-shirt, do you really think I sold out?

Can't you take a joke? Figure it out. You all know how I feel about physical fitness. Would I jeopardize my pillow image by converting to fresh air?

The truth is, I got sick and tired of being on the outside of every conversation. It doesn't matter that only one out of every ten Americans maintains a regular physical fitness program. What is significant is that ten out of every ten Americans pretend they do.

It's a status thing. Do you know what it's like to stand around at a party and not have three purple toenails in the process of falling off? You're nothing!

For the first time I really understand Rosie Ruiz at the Boston Marathon. It only takes a few minutes each day. I go to the park, throw my body against a tree and groan for five minutes. Then I ask the first person I see about his or her split time. Then, I run with the first jogger for a few feet and stop to re-tie my shoe. From then on, it's a slow dawdle.

I cannot tell you what a difference this has made in my social life. When people discover I run, they tell me how healthy I look and how much weight I've lost. They share with me their pain and their secrets. (A perfect stranger confided to me one night that his hemorrhoids were no longer a problem.) There is nothing to set you apart from the rest of the room like speaking metric. ("Anyone run the 10,000-meter race last Sunday?")

And not the least of it has been the actual time I've spent walking around the park. Have you any idea what it does to a woman in her mid-life to hear someone breathing heavily down her back? You can't buy that kind of excitement over the counter.

The charade has been working for weeks now, but yesterday, as I was stretching followed by my "run," a breathless, sweaty woman next to me asked how far I had run that day. I shrugged, "Four or five miles. I'm having such a good time, I lose track."

"I find it hard to believe you're that kind of a runner."

"What gave me away?" I asked.

"The handbag. Few runners carry 'em when they run."

Couple Honored On 50th Anniversary

BLOUNTS CREEK — Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Cox, of Rt. 2, Blounts Creek, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, April 18. They were given a reception at their home Easter Sunday by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Cox of Greenville and Robert of the home.

Guests were greeted and invited to sign the register by Mrs. Mildred McRoy of Blounts Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Cox

Mrs. Jean Cox and Mrs. Pennie Dunn of Greenville received guests and invited them to the refreshment table which was covered with a white lace cloth and decorated with white candles, magnolia and lily of the valley. Gifts were received by Mrs. Mavis Butts and Mrs. Linda Nelson of Greenville. The gift table was covered with a white lace cloth and the centerpiece was an arrangement of yellow daisies, pom poms and cembrodium orchids.

After the first slice of cake was cut by the honorees, Mrs. Jewell Chaplin and Mrs. Mildred Taylor of Blounts Creek served cake and poured punch.

Mrs. Cox wore a full length mint green dress styled with a blouson bodice and wore a corsage of yellow roses. Mr. and Mrs. Cox have a grandson, David. Approximately 100 friends and relatives called during the afternoon.

Some Angora sweaters are made of rabbit hair — the long, soft fur of the Angora rabbit. The animals originally were selected and bred for their luxuriant fur, probably in Turkey, according to National Geographic.

Reagan Well Received

President Reagan had them in the palm of his hand.

There was no question of that as he spoke to Congress Tuesday night in support of his economic package.

The president was making his first major appearance following the assassination attempt of a month ago. Likely it was planned that way for maximum effect and it was perfect theatrical timing.

There is little doubt now that the president's proposed bugetary changes will have virtually no trouble in Congress. Democratic House Speaker Tip O'Neill admitted as much, and even some strongly conservative members of the president's own party seem to have swung in line.

There may be some balking on the proposed tax cuts, with some members of both parties preferring to see a balanced budget before revenue cuts are made.

No one is betting though, that the president won't get everything he wants out of Congress, as he rides the current wave of popularity following his recovery from the assassination attempt bullet wound.

And why not? The cuts proposed aren't really all that drastic, as we can see by the continued grumbling of the far right. So far the president has proposed just what the public seems to want — a slowing down of the growth of government and some reduction in oppressive taxes. The plan isn't perfect, but it is a start.

Who Can Gain From War?

It becomes more and more difficult for those of us outside Northern Ireland to fully comprehend the situation there.

IRA terrorist Bobby Sands is near death from a hunger strike, demanding that IRA inmates be considered political prisoners, rather than criminals.

Outside, his supporters wait, apparently ready to plunge Northern Ireland into a bloody civil war with Sands' death as the signal.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has refused to give in to Sands' demands.

It seems a suicidal situation in which thousands could die, with very little to gain from it.

THIS AFTERNOON

How Fair Is Fair?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Suppose that a lady decides to have her spouse killed by a hired gun. The act is done, and she subsequently stands trial on a charge of conspiracy to commit a felony.

Under North Carolina's Fair Sentencing Act which takes full effect July 1 this year, that defendant could go to prison for 56 days; then freedom.

As always, with new laws and modified laws which are passed back and forth from Senate to House of Representatives; mulled by committees; much amended and fought over, the opportunity is great for things to be done which may or may not have been the intent of those who sponsored the law.

Gov. Jim Hunt sponsored the Fair Sentencing Act. It died in Committee in 1977, was rewritten and came back from a special committee of the N.C. Bar Association in 1978; passed the General Assembly in 1979, but was delayed until refinements could be made.

Legislators who opposed the measure fell in several camps. Primarily, though, there were trial lawyers who didn't want things nailed down too tightly nor with sentences too severe; friends of judges who wanted to give those court officials additional leeway in sentencing; and legislators who feared that guaranteed sentences of generally longer duration would cause prison population to swell at a time when more than 16,000 inmates already overcrowd the system and construction dollars are in short supply.

Shorter

Consider that conviction for conspiracy to commit a felony. At this time, the sentence maximum is 10 years with the individual eligible for parole after two and one-half years. Parole, of course, subject to the commission finding good behavior and likelihood the of the rules. The term is now down to 182 days.

Then, to further help relieve overcrowding, the new law allows the Secretary of Correction to give six days each month off for meritorious conduct and work, including work release. That's called gain time. The term is now down to 146 days.

Freedom

Then, to eliminate the delays which often accompany action by the paroles board, and to guard against politicking on that board, the new law says prisoners except those on life sentence lady will not commit another crime.

After a number of amendments, the Fair Sentencing Act establishes a three-year maximum sentence, with one year being the "presumptive" term. That is, the judge should give one year unless he finds, and puts in writing, reasons such as past criminal record, an offense against a law officer, committing the offense for hire, etc., for which a longer term can be given; or reasons like good character, mental condition, age, and so on to make the court hand down a lesser sentence.

But presuming all things are equal (and that is what the law seeks to do) the defendant will get one year. The paroles commission will not enter the picture until near the end of that sentence. Automatically, the law says you get one day off for ever day of "good time" served without "serious" breaking

To the editor:

The musical production of Lil Abner will be presented at Rose High May 1, 2 and 3. As a parent of a student involved in the play, I have watched its progress since March 17. Since I have been lending some help, I have had the chance to see first hand all the hard work that has been going on. There are practices almost every night and weekends. During Easter vacation, the students worked long hours creating the sets. They also had assistance from a few teachers and parents. All in all, this has been a major effort, yet it only rated one small picture in the back pages of our newspaper. A few weeks ago, there was a huge spread of pictures of the Shad Festival in Ayden. In Sunday's paper, the same for the Herring Festival in Jamestown. I enjoy reading about these events in other places, but it seems to me that this play at Rose High which is an important event in our own community is being slighted. The students deserve support for this endeavor and I know they would like to have some photos to put in their scrapbooks. The performers are ready to put on a good show and I urge everyone to attend. Pictures may be taken during the dress rehearsals, which are April 28, 29 and 30. There is still time. How about it, Daily Reflector?

Barbara Licko

To the editor:

In the Monday, April 27 Daily Reflector, the Institute for Women's Health Care ran an ad attacking Senator John East and the Senate hearings on when life begins. The hearings do, indeed, seem to be slanted toward the position that huma life begins at conception. When does life begin? For the mother who wants a baby, human life begins at conception, and she takes proper care of herself so that nothing will interfere with her giving birth to a healthy baby.

The aforementioned ad states that a small, but dedicated group of people want to take away your right to decide whether and when to have children, and your right to plan the birth of your children, and even your right to have children who are wanted and loved." To that slanderous crock of abortion propaganda, I say a resounding, "Bull!!!" The people who are really concerned about the issue of abortion have the strongest desire for families to plan the birth of their children. However, if children are not going to be loved and wanted, it is a tragedy to bring them into the world. Is the alternative abortion? No. The alternative is to avoid pregnancy. Pregnancy is never, absolutely never, an accident. It may be a mistake or error or the result of passion, rape, or incest, but it is not an accident. What we need in this society is truly responsible people who have moral standards and who do plan the births of their children, then abortion would become a mute issue. I am for abortion in case of incest or rape, but I have grave reservations about abortion to undo a deed of passion.

The ad says, "If responsible people like you don't stand up for your reproductive rights, pretty soon...never mind." We do have reproductive rights. I have two children (both planned) who experience love every day of their lives — this is my right and responsibility and also their right. Responsible people do not need abortion, they need moral standards.

Contest Lady's Prizes

NEW YORK (AP) — Two packages sit on Selma Glasser's dining room floor, unopened. One she recognizes as containing a kitchen blender. She has no idea what is in the other.

"So many things are being delivered all the time I can't keep up with them," she said. "I'll open it later, when I have time."

In the Brooklyn neighborhood where Mrs. Glasser lives, in a modest, stucco row house, she is known as the contest lady. But, among devotees of the rhyming jingle and the 50-words-or-less testimonial, her fame has long since o'erleaped the bounds of Brooklyn.

"I'm famous," she said. A simple fact, stated briefly.

Selma Glasser is a contest maven. No challenge on box top or matchbook cover escapes her eye. She knows them all, enters them all, and wins far more than her share of them.

It would be impossible to say, in 50 words or 500 words, how many prizes she has won in 30 years of entering contests.

Her freezer was a prize. Her stove was a prize, and her oven. Her car was a prize. She won it before she learned to drive. Her several bicycles, her motorcycle, her mink coat, all prizes. Prizes crowd her house. Indeed, warm her house: her gas heating system was a prize.

"I can't remember everything I've won," she said, "but the prizes that thrill me most are the ones I never would have otherwise."

"I mean, what chance would a Brooklyn housewife have to go on a date with Sid Caesar? I did that. Or to be a guest of Engelbert Humperdinck at a ringside table at a big hotel on opening night?"

"I've had trips to Rome, Paris, the Caribbean. Trips all over. Florida several times. California. A Texas dude ranch. Without contests, experiences like that just wouldn't happen to me."

Mrs. Glasser is a small, slight lady in her early 50s and is constantly on the go. When she is not working on her own contest entries she is spreading her secrets to others.

She teaches a course in the Brooklyn College adult-education program titled "Writing for Prize and Publication." She also offers a correspondence course, and has just recently finished a book: "A Complete Guide to Prize Contests, Sweepstakes, and How to Win Them."

"I am a writer," she said. "I am not a mental giant. You don't have to be to learn to write a few words for big money."

"A filler in the Reader's Digest is worth $50. I've hit Reader's Digest many times. I've hit Good Housekeeping, Saturday Evening Post, lots of them. And," she said, "I get a byline. You know what a kick a byline is."

Right now Selma is revving up to explain, in 25 words, why it pays to save at a certain bank. "That's 25 words for $20,000. That's a good payoff, and I have as good a chance as anybody to win it."

No argument there. Selma Glasser seems to have a knack for winning, a gift. She attributes it all to positive thinking.

"It's 99 percent enthusiasm," she says, with zest. "You have to say to yourself, why can't I do it as well as anybody? You're not going to win them all, but there's always a chance."

The first contest Selma entered, she won. In her mind it landed the best payoff of her contest career.

"My husband, who is now deceased, was my intended then," she said. "I wanted to marry him. One day he handed me an entry blank: 100 words on why I wanted a

White House Is Different

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — They brought back liquor, white tie, the herald trumpeters, and a full honor guard.

They stationed a uniformed Marine guard at the entrance to the West Wing lobby and made state dinners even more exclusive.

They raised $800,000 in private contributions to restore and redecorate the White House.

And they disarmed official Washington with their affability and joy of socializing.

After almost 100 days in office, President Reagan and his wife Nancy may not yet be full-fledged Washingtonians, but they have placed their mark on the White House and the city they now call home.

Washington, Reagan-style, has gone formal. Limousines and designer gowns are in demand.

"What I see is a president who, even before the events of the last few weeks (since he was shot in an assassination attempt), has disarmed the populace with his own good humor and statemanship and restored, to a large degree, a lot of the pride people want to feel in the country," said Sheila Patton, press secretary to the first lady.

Mrs. Reagan has her own style, too.

George Will, a conservative columnist who was among the first to host a dinner for the Reagans when they arrived in town just before the Jan. 20 inauguration, said the Reagan style was "like rain on parched ground after the Carter years."

Will said Reagan's personal affability makes it easier for him to govern. "He's asking people to do something no one really wants to do, which is allocate deprivations."

Mrs. Reagan has her own style, too.

She works out of the second floor living quarters, whereas Rosalynn Carter maintained an office in the East Wing, where the first lady's staff is located. Like her husband, who meets daily with his top three advisers, Mrs. Reagan meets each day with her chief of staff, Peter McCoy.

While the president has enjoyed a traditional honeymoon, Mrs. Reagan came into the White House on a cloud of controversy that is just beginning to abate. She is said now to have reconciled herself to the fact that first ladies are always criticized and her staff has been reading about her predecessors to prove their point.

The controversy occurred before the inauguration when Mrs. Reagan was reported to have hoped the Carters would move out early so she could redecorate. She also was reported to have spent several thousand dollars on her inaugural wardrobe, which included a new mink coat and several designer gowns.

"We got a lot of heat on her clothes," McCoy said recently. He said most of the mail about the Reagans' restoration of the White House was favorable, but that project also attracted controversy when the White House initially refused to reveal the list of contributors.

The redecoration of the living quarters now is about half completed, McCoy said. The state floor, where the Reagans entertain official visitors, is next.

As first lady, Mrs. Reagan has been slow to delve into her pet projects: foster grandparents and drug abuse. Mrs. Patton said that is because her staff still is researching the best ways for her to get involved. Mrs. Reagan, who brought a lot of furniture from their California home, has said she wanted to unpack first.

"Mrs. Reagan's role so far can be viewed as principally that of a wife and helpmate who has very definite interests of her own," said Mrs. Patton. "I think she's made quite a bit of progress in finding her niche."

The first lady does more public speaking now, but still rarely talks about substantive issues. Mrs. Carter, on the other hand, was one of her husband's most outspoken defenders.

As a city that has always placed importance on parties, Washington became frustrated during the Carter

Strength For Today

POISONED CHALICES

A story is told of an ancient king who one day when being handed a cup filled with poisoned wine, made over it the sign of the cross and uttered the name of Christ. The cup immediately fell from his hands and was dashed to pieces at his feet.

Actually there is some truth to what we might regard as an absurd story. If we bring Christ into the dangerous and threatening situations of life which confront us, we may avoid the poison they have in store for us. If we bring to Him the best we know every day, and ask Him to put it aside if it does not match the best He has in store for us — then the world's poisoned chalices of temptation will not harm us.

The way to separate the false from the true, the evil from the good, is to bring all things before the Lord of life for his judgment. What is evil will disappear; what is good will become our strength and inspiration. — Elilsha Douglass

More Jobs In Small Business

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — If a company's sales grew 366,567 percent in five years, as the sales of Cobb Resources did, it should make somebody's list. It does. It leads "The Inc. 100."

The Inc. 100 is unlike the Fortune 500, which is Fortune magazine's list of the 500 largest U.S. companies. Inc. is a magazine of "smaller companies," and its list is based not on sales but on sales growth.

That's why Cobb, a mining company based in Albuquerque, N.M., heads the list with sales of only $11 million. In 1976, the base year for measuring companies on the Inc. list, its sales were $3,000.

Its compound annual rate of growth since then — some 678 percent — doesn't mean it ran away from the others. In second place, DSI Corp., a Nashville, Tenn., company that transfers computer data onto microfilm or microfiche, grew 606 percent a year, or 248,224 percent in five years.

Of even greater significance than sales may be the job-producing consequences of sales. Smaller businesses, rather than the mature giant corporations, often are the job creators of American society.

The work force of the top 500 industrials, writes Bradford Ketchum, Jr., who supervised the compilation for Inc., climbed only 12 percent, but the work force of the 100 smaller companies leaped 663 percent.

This didn't surprise him, because earlier studies showed something similar. A House committee in 1978, for instance, said that between 1969 and 1976 "small businesses accounted for what can be considered virtually all the new private sector employment in this country."

Getting that message across, however, has proved difficult, and all the while the larger companies have been gathering in a greater share of the gross national product. Even in dealing with government, small business has had a difficult time, what with regulations that all but eliminated them as bidders or discouraged entrepreneurial effort.

In more recent years, especially since last year's White House Conference, smaller businesses have been on the attack. We, they say, are the job creators, the improvers of productivity, the competitors who serve to limit price increases, the inventors and the innovators.

Anyone with some familiarity with the nation's problems can see that such claims address themselves to the very economic issues that need to be resolved. And so, they are gaining adherents.

The Inc. list, and the comparisons derived from it, add documentation and probably more public support for smaller businesses. To quote Ketchum:

"The 1981 Inc. 100 companies are a symbol of true human achievement."

"During a year of economic turbulence marked by sky-high interest rates, punishing inflation rates, and a pseudo recovery, the entrepreneurs who run these 100 companies pushed their people to outperform all other business groups by every measure."

In 1980, says Inc., the nation's biggest corporations

"managed sales increases that barely kept pace with inflation, and profits that didn't." But the Inc. list shows a sales gain of 52 percent, and a surge in after-tax profits of 50.1 percent.

Rounding out the top five on Inc.'s list are Gulf Energy, a Salt Lake City oil, gas and coal developer; Tandem Computers, Cupertino, Calif.; and Tandem, a Chatsworth, Calif. maker of minicomputer disk drives.

Making up the next five are Electro-Biology, of Fairfield, N.J., a medical services company; Cray Research, Menlo Park, Minn., a manufacturer of large computers; NBI, a Boulder, Col. manufacturer of word processors; and Cado Systems, Torrance, Calif., a computer maker.

Five years from now, says Ketchum, most of this year's names will have been replaced. Their very success dictates that. They will have grown so large that their percentage increases cannot possibly match those of newer, smaller, eager young companies.

"must" be given "re-entry" parole 90 days before the term ends. That is to allow them to readjust to society.

So, 90 days before the end of that presumptive one-year term, minus good time, minus gain time, and minus any time spent in jail before the trial — our convicted felon walks out of prison free. That would be 56 days behind bars — less, if any time were spent in jail before the trial.

As for the fellow hired to do the deed, if a first degree murder charge were reduced to second — a not uncommon happening — and the presumptive sentence were applied, he would get 12 years. Minus good time, gain time, and re-entry (and jail time) he would be out in about four and one-half years. The present maximum for second degree murder is life in prison.

years over the reluctance of the president and many high administration officials to spend a lot of time socializing.

The Reagans, who seem to love parties, have left the White House frequently to attend dinners and parties and the theater.

They also have given their own parties, studded with Hollywood stars such as Frank Sinatra, Charlton Heston and Jimmy Stewart. And Reagan delighted the diplomatic community shortly after the inauguration by holding a white-tie reception for ambassadors. Reporters who cover such events have been ordered to dress in the appropriate style.

The number of guests invited to state dinner has been reduced from well over 100 to 96 so that the tables are not jammed with plates, glasses and silverware, McCoy said. In addition, guests who are not married will not be invited to bring escorts.

Probably the hardest thing for the Reagans to get accustomed to was the lack of privacy that seems to accompany the presidency.

That usually results in a presidential attempt to outwit reporters by leaving the White House without them. Reagan hasn't tried that yet, but his wife has. She attended three luncheons recently and ordered her press secretary not to reveal where they were.

Billie Jean King Suing 'Palimony' Claimant

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Billie Jean King's attorney says the tennis star will file suit against a hairdresser who contends she and Mrs. King lived together as homosexual lovers during the early 1970s.

Marilyn Barnett, 32, a former employee of Mrs. King, filed a "palimony" suit Tuesday seeking an interest in the house that she says Mrs. King bought for her. Ms. Barnett, confined to a wheelchair after a fall in the late 1970s, has lived in the house since 1974.

Mrs. King said in a statement Wednesday that Ms. Barnett's allegations were "untrue and unfounded."

The professional tennis player also said she was "shocked and disappointed" by the action of her former secretary, who used to make her travel arrangements and screen her telephone calls.

Mrs. King's attorney, Dennis Wasser, said he will file suit to have Ms. Barnett evicted from the house, owned by Mrs. King and her husband, Larry.

Wasser said he was an expert in defending such "palimony" cases, which have proliferated in California since Michelle Triola Marvin won $104,000 from her long-time lover, actor Lee Marvin, after they split.

Wasser contended Ms. Barnett's lawsuit stems from the Kings' attempt to empty the Malibu house so it can be sold.

Ms. Barnett contends Mrs. King promised to take care of her financial needs and gave her access to blank checks signed by Mrs. King.

"On or about May 1972 in Los Angeles, Calif., (Ms. Barnett) and (Mrs.) King met and began dating on a regular basis," the suit said. "Sexual intimacy between (Barnett) and (Mrs.) King commenced approximately six months after their first date."

Ms. Barnett said she gave up a hairdressing career to become secretary, confidante, companion and cook so that Mrs. King's energy "could be totally directed toward playing tennis."

Mrs. Barnett's lawyer, Joel Ladin, refused to say whether the alleged homosexual relationship took place while Mrs. King was living with her husband or whether Ms. Barnett paid rent for the house. He said those matters had nothing to do with the suit.

Wasser said Mrs. King was married in 1965 and the couple has never been separated.

In 1971, Mrs. King became the first female athlete ever to win more than $100,000 in a year. She was the No. 1-ranked woman tennis player in the world through most of the 1960s and early 1970s, and won or shared a record-tying 19 Wimbledon titles.

In a statement released by publicist Pat Kingsley and the Women's Tennis Association, Mrs. King said:

"When I decided to cut down on some of my business activities and concentrate more on playing tennis, Marilyn's work was phased out and she returned to her former profession as a hairstylist in Beverly Hills. My husband Larry and I have been very sympathetic to her plight in the last few years."

Another Fire For Wm. Simon

EAST HAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — A second fire in less than six months has heavily damaged the 18th century oceanfront mansion owned by former Secretary of the Treasury William Simon, authorities said.

East Hampton Fire Chief Kenneth Brown said workmen on Tuesday were finishing up repairs from a fire that occurred at the house last November when sparks shot out of the fireplace, igniting paint solvent used by the workmen.

One workman, 20-year-old Eric Anderson of Lake Ronkonkoma, was injured. He was treated for minor burns to his hand.

Brown estimated that 75 percent of the colonial-style mansion, valued at $500,000, was damaged by the blaze.

The Simon family was not in the home at the time, authorities said.

Atlanta Stages A Roundup Quiz

ATLANTA (AP) — Authorities are cracking down on prostitutes and petty criminals in an effort to extract information about the slayings of 26 young Atlanta blacks, officials said.

During police sweeps last weekend, 74 people were arrested on charges ranging from sodomy to the possession of drugs and firearms, officials said Wednesday. The people rounded up in the sweeps were then questioned about the rash of slayings since July 1979, officials said.

Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson told reporters police "have sent the word through the criminal element" to fill in police on any information in "the underworld grapevine" about the slayings.

Although the criminals "don't like the heat we're giving them," Jackson said, so far informants have not given any useful information to the special police task force.

Charge Made By ALE Agent

Robert Wayne Sauter, manager of the Cinnamon Tree Restaurant at 315 Stantonsburg Rd., was charged with "unlawful possession of alcoholic beverages upon a premises where (possession) (consumption) was not authorized by law," Monday.

The citation was issued about 3 p.m. by North Carolina Alcohol Law Enforcement officer Danny Dilda, after he allegedly found alcoholic beverages on the premises of the restaurant, which opened for business Monday.

Sauter also operates the Pipeline restaurant on Evans Street, the first local establishment to serve mixed drinks in Greenville — on March 9 — after voters approved by the drink sales of liquor in a referendum here in February.

The charge against Sauter was scheduled for trial in District Court here May 12.

A spokesman for the State Alcoholic Control Board in Raleigh said this morning that temporary liquor by the drink permits were issued yesterday for the Cinnamon Tree, pending the outcome of the Monday charge.

The official said the charge against Sauter allegedly involved a small quantity of whiskey left on the premises from a private party at the new restaurant Sunday. He said liquor was not being sold or consumed there on Monday.

nesday afternoon after the youth was found asleep in the basement of his home.

Sean Collier, 13, last was seen about 4:30 p.m. on the southwest Atlanta where he lived, but police spokesman Bill Todd said Collier was found asleep and unharmed early today.

Collier had been reported missing by a friend of the family, who told police that Collier's mother was too upset to call. Todd said the alert was canceled about 2:50 a.m. EDT.

The special task force is looking into the disappearance of only one youth — 10-year-old Darron Glass, who vanished last year.

The task force generally has not taken over investigations of missing youths until 72 hours after disappearance is reported.

Meanwhile, officials of the Georgia Department of Human Resources said child-death investigators haven't asked them for mental health records from Georgia. Officials at two mental hospitals in Florida reported receiving a request for the names of all patients discharged to the Atlanta area during the last five years.

The Florida hospital officials said the request came from the FBI, which is working with the Atlanta task force and also conducting a separate probe.

FBI agent Roy Klanger said in Tampa, Fla., Tuesday that agents requested information from mental hospitals in several states in an effort that he called "a long shot."

Neither Brown nor FBI spokesman Dick Berry in Atlanta would comment on Klanger's disclosure.

GOP Denies Roads Need New Taxes

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Tax increases are not needed to fortify the state's Highway Fund, Republican legislators said Wednesday in response to Gov. Jim Hunt's televised recommendations.

Charging that the problems of the highway program are the result of political abuse, the legislators gave their own five-point plan during a 30-minute televised response.

"I don't think we need to talk about gas taxes until we have a good old housecleaning in state government," said Sen. William Redman, R-Iredell.

Sen. Gilbert Lee Boger, R-Davie, and Rep. Roy Spoon, R-Mecklenburg, joined Redman on the show.

"Highway Need — A Republican View." The program, moderated by former state GOP chairman Jack Lee, was broadcast on the University of North Carolina public network and some commercial stations.

Hunt proposed Monday to collect more than $200 million for the highway program with a 3-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase and higher taxes on beer, wine, liquor, mining and vacation home rentals.

The Republicans proposed:

— Financing the Highway Patrol through the General Fund instead of the highway fund, which would free about $50 million for highway use.

— Applying sales taxes collected on auto parts to the highway program — about $60 million a year. Hunt suggested this, but the Republicans would require legislative approval of each highway project financed by these tax dollars.

— Cutting state government spending by 5 percent across-the-board — about $400 million a year.

— Re-establishing a government efficiency study commission consisting of business leaders.

— Urging highway builders to use new techniques in construction, especially in asphalt recycling.

The GOP legislators criticized the Transportation Department under Hunt, showing newspaper stories concerning what they termed political abuses and the highway bid-rigging scandal. "Political patronage and plums appear to run rampant in the Department of Transportation, at your expense," Redman said.

The Republicans also: — Mentioned the state's plan to improve highways next to land owned by Arthur Williamson, a major Hunt campaign contributor.

— Said the administration and legislature spent $347 in budget surplus money last year that could have been used for roads.

— Questioned the personal income tax credit Hunt proposed to offset the gas tax increase, saying it was unfair to the poor who would get no credit because they pay no taxes.

— Cited a legislative study showing the Transportation Department spend $40 million in consultant fees in the last few years.

They did not mention the proposed 50 percent increase in alcoholic beverage taxes, but Redman said later the GOP opposes that, too.

He said the Christian Action League and other anti-liquor forces should reconsider their support for the higher alcohol tax.

"The churches are going to have to make up their mind," Redman said. "Do they want to back off the alcohol tax or do they want to see bootlegging and more crime?"

Forest Fire Is Burning Again

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A forest fire that officials thought was extinguished a month ago is burning again near Pungo Lake on the Washington-Hyde county line.

The fire has spread over 2,000 acres and is headed northeast into Washington County.

Although the surface fire was put out a month ago, the fire continued burning underground, said state Forest Service spokesman Tom Hegele.

He said some of the peat-rich land is worth $7,000 per acre-foot.

Files Are Open To KGB Query

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William Casey says the agency spent $300,000 complying with a former employee's Freedom of Information Act request and would have to spend money if its Soviet counterpart, the KGB, asked for information.

Casey cited the examples of former officer Philip Agee and the KGB in a speech Tuesday to the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He said the CIA should be exempt from the information act.

"Do we really want to turn the CIA into the purveyor of information for the world rather than a supplier of intelligence to our policymakers?" he said.

Faces Life On Kidnap Charge

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — Lynwood Thompson, 21, faces life in prison for kidnapping a 30-year-old Charlotte woman after a Christmas party last year.

Thompson was also sentenced Wednesday to 50 years for second-degree sexual offense, rape, auto theft and passing a forged check.

Thompson claimed his trial was a "diabolical plot" against him and that the woman had consented to have sex with him after becoming drunk at the party.

O'Leary Concedes An Optimistic Note

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was a month ago today, Dr. Dennis O'Leary, describing President Reagan, said this: "I gather he seemed a little bit lightheaded, but he was cracking jokes and in very good spirits. He was in no time in any serious danger. He was alert and awake with stable, vital signs."

President Reagan remembers it differently.

"The more I tried to breathe and the deeper I tried to breathe, it kept seeming as if I was getting less air and you know that panic that you can get if you're strangling or something..."

O'Leary's optimism became a nation's reassurance, coloring the headlines; the nation went to bed that night assured the president, shot in the chest in an assassination attempt, would be able to function and make decisions when the sun arose the next day.

O'Leary says he may have put an optimistic spin on the facts, but he didn't distort anything a month ago today when — after hours of agonizing tension — he gave America that reassuring report on the health and the prospects of a wounded president.

"I think everybody had had all the drama they could handle that day," he says in a retrospective look on how he performed as medical spokesman on the president's condition.

That day and in the days to come, the soft-spoken, cigarette-smoking dean at George Washington University Hospital offered an upbeat picture.

He relayed word of a president who walked into the hospital under his own power, cracked jokes on the operating table and "stunned" his doctors with his recuperative powers.

O'Leary's assurances were subsequently contradicted by far more alarming reports. These suggested that Reagan was on the edge of a life-threatening situation when he collapsed in the emergency room doorway. But the surgeons who operated on Reagan back up O'Leary.

O'Leary says his words were chosen deliberately; he wanted to be upbeat but credible.

If his pronouncements were optimistic, they reflected his own "anti-dramatic" style, he says.

Where he made mistakes — errors which had the effect of portraying the president's condition as better than it had been — they resulted from his having been misinformed or having "gleaned" the wrong interpretations from what the surgeons told him, he says.

He has no regrets, he says, "although someone else might have handled it differently and just as effectively."

As for the surge of contradictory reports, the doctor says they were inevitable. He dismisses most as mere speculation.

Reagan's recovery from his shooting has been steady and appears to justify O'Leary's optimism. The doctor won national praise for his calm, soft-spoken report that night. A Washington Post editorial hailed him as "the nation's chief hand-holder." He is still getting grateful letters.

Larry Speakes, the deputy White House press secretary, heaps praise on O'Leary, too. "He lent assurance and calmness to reports on the president's recovery,"

Speakes says. "He gave us a heavy dose of credibility."

O'Leary, in his briefing seven hours after Reagan had been shot, understated by about one-half how much blood Reagan had lost and how much blood and intravenous fluids Reagan was given through transfusions. He made no mention of Reagan's collapse in the emergency room. He said the bullet in Reagan's chest missed his heart by three to four inches, not the inch or so reported later by surgeon Benjamin Aaron, who removed it.

And he said nothing at all about Aaron's frantic five-minute search for the dime-shaped bullet.

"Had I known about it, I think it would have been another thing that I would not have dealt with," O'Leary says.

"Five minutes doesn't sound like a lot, but I'm sure it was a millennium for Ben Aaron. I'm sure for five minutes there was a hell of a lot of drama in that operating room."

"But," he says, "the fact is he found the bullet and he took it out. That's the fact."

O'Leary said his soothing briefing that evening reflects his personal way of doing the job he had been given.

He says: "My own style, and it's really more subconscious than conscious, is anti-dramatic. The New York Times calls it 'upbeat' but I call it anti-dramatic."

"I think we could have presented a far more dramatic picture without question."

"My own feeling is that would have been self-serving for the institution because we could have presented a very dramatic picture and then demonstrated how we bailed everyone out of the situation and it would have looked good for the institution. But I do not think it would have been in the public interest."

As an example of the sort of dramatic detail he purposely left out, he cites the president's physical appearance shortly after he arrived at the hospital:

"When the president got down on one knee, he looked pale, gray; he was sweating; he was complaining of being short of breath. He looked awful."

TO SPEAK — Dr. Frontis W. Johnson, professor of History at Davidson College, will be the principal speaker at the 11 a.m. worship service at the First Presbyterian Church, Sunday, as the congregation observes the 90th anniversary of the founding of the church in Greenville. He is the grandson of Dr. Frontis Howe Johnston, the first Presbyterian minister ever to preach in Greenville and Pitt County. The Rev. Leonard W. Topping, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church from 1947 until 1957 will also take part in the service, along with the present pastor and associate pastor, the Rev. Richard R. Gammon and the Rev. Gerald M. Anders. A picnic will be held following the service.

Busboy Denies Setting Fire

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — An illegal alien from Guatemala who was fired from his job as a busboy at the Stouffer's Inn has pleaded innocent to setting a Dec. 4 fire that killed 26 business executives at the hotel.

Luis Marin, 25, was being held without bail after his arrest Wednesday at his Port Chester, N.Y., home. He was charged with 26 counts of arson, second-degree murder and criminal mischief.

At the time of the fire, Marin had proclaimed himself a hero who tried to rescue the victims.

Westchester County District Attorney Carl Vergari called Marin a "disgruntled employee" who had been fired for giving Stouffer's officials a phony name and Social Security number to cover up his status as an illegal alien.

"The investigation centered on this particular individual right from the start," Vergari told a news conference. He would not say what led to Marin's arrest.

Vergari said Marin was serving coffee in the area where executives of General Foods, Arrow Electronics, Nestle and Pepsico were meeting last Dec. 4. He had been given his notice "very shortly before" the fire broke out after 10 a.m. in the hotel's conference center adjacent to the 365-room guest area, Vergari said.

Vergari would not say how Marin allegedly set the fire but said a "highly flammable liquid" had been poured in a hallway outside the third-floor conference rooms where the business men were meeting.

The fire spread rapidly, raising temperatures to 1,500 degrees in the area. The 26 victims died almost immediately from heat and smoke inhalation, officials have said.

Arrow Electronics of Greenwich, Conn., lost most of its executive staff, including company chairman B. Duke Glenn, and 12 other top officials. Nestle lost 12 managers, and United Breweries lost one employee. Forty other persons were injured in the blaze.

General Foods' executives escaped by breaking out windows and jumping 35 feet to the ground below.

In interviews after the fire, Marin, using the name Pedro Davilo, said he helped catch some of the General Foods' staff as they jumped.

Vergari said he was not sure whether Marin's claim was true.

The district attorney said Marin was a native of Guatemala who entered the United States illegally but who has since married a U.S. citizen. The marriage entitles him to permanent residency status.

Would Issue POW Medals

WASHINGTON (AP) — An estimated 142,000 persons would be eligible to receive the Prisoner of War Medal Rep. Robert Badham, R-Calif., wants Congress to authorize.

Badham introduced a bill Wednesday to award the proposed medal to military personnel taken prisoner during World Wars I and II, the Korean and Vietnam conflicts and the seizure of the intelligence ship Pueblo in 1967.

If a POW were deceased, the medal could be awarded to a relative or a representative. Badham said the medal would not be given to anyone whose service during confinement was less than honorable.

Local Women Named Officers

BLACK MOUNTAIN — Two Greenville women were elected to state positions in the League of Women Voters of North Carolina during the 18th biennial convention of the league, held this past weekend.

Kay Adler was selected as second vice president and Rhea Markello as secretary of this 1,400 member organization which has 23 local league groups throughout the state.

Delegates to the convention approved a new study of utility rates and policies used to determine customer charges for electricity to be conducted over the next two years. The study will be a follow-up of the league's earlier informational investigation of energy policy making and rate-setting.

Diane Brown of Chapel Hill was elected president; Elizabeth Grant of Durham first vice president; and Kay Huey of Chapel Hill treasurer. New members of the board of directors will be Kitty Boniske, Asheville; Carol Hehlbach, Chapel Hill; Claudia Kadis, Goldsboro; and Barbara Price, Tryon.

Findings of the league utility study will probably be taken to the public staff of the N.C. Utilities Commission which can make recommendations for changes in regulatory policies to the N.C. Legislature, explained Kitty Boniske of Asheville, league director for energy concerns.

"People are concerned about the way future construction by power companies will affect their utility bills," Mrs. Boniske said.

Delegates to the three-day meeting at the Blue Ridge assembly also reaffirmed league support for ERA ratification, urged action to eliminate laws that discriminate on the basis of sex, directed local leagues to monitor the effect of proposed federal budget cuts on education, and opposed the construction of the Brunswick Energy Oil Co. refinery on the Cape Fear River.

The convention delegates also protested the proposed federal budget cuts in human services "because of the disproportionately severe impact they will have on the poor, elderly and disadvantaged."

"The proposed cuts will undermine the progress this nation has made in environmental quality and the preservation of natural resources," commented one spokesperson.

Delegates from Greenville included Patricia Dunn, president of the local LWV, Rhea Markella, Andrea Markello and Josephine Hookway.

Funds For MX Said Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force says it needs $366 million in design and construction funds in fiscal 1982 in order to get the first MX missiles in place as scheduled in 1986.

Brig. Gen. James P. McCarthy told the House Armed Services installations and facilities subcommittee Wednesday that the appropriation can be rescinded if the MX program is abandoned.

A special panel of outside experts studying the program, which the Air Force estimates will cost $33.8 billion, will make recommendations before President Reagan makes a final decision on it in August.

Committee Will Support Road Taxes

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Stressing that they are not endorsing any particular program, 75 leading business and political leaders announced Wednesday they are forming a committee to urge taxpayers to support quality state roads.

The purpose of the group is to provide facts about the needs of the state's transportation, said Hugh Morton, vice chairman of the North Carolinians for Good Roads committee.

At a press conference Wednesday, Morton, who is also a member of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Travel and Tourism, said, "We feel it is vitally important that North Carolina continue with an adequate highway and maintenance construction program."

The committee has set a goal of at least $150,000 for media advertising, Morton said, admitting that it has borrowed $9,900 from Gov. Jim Hunt's campaign funds for "seed money."

"The governor has not contributed anything, nor are any of his funds contributed," he said. "That probably will be the first money paid back."

Morton said the Travel Council of North Carolina on April 13 called for the effort to inform people about "what is at stake in preserving our highway program."

"The Travel Council will not endorse any one solution to the problem we face," Morton said. "This will be an educational process."

North Carolina must maintain its reputation as the "Good Roads State" or lose new industry and good jobs, Morton said.

Committee chairman Arthur Smith, a country-western music star, held a similar press conference in Charlotte.

Other members include Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox, Fayetteville Mayor Beth Finch, Greensboro Mayor Jim Melvin and Raleigh Mayor Smedes York. Former governors Dan Moore and Terry Sanford also endorsed the project.

LOSING COMMAND MADRID (AP) — The commander of the Spanish army's crack armored division, Maj. Gen. Jose Juste Fernandez, will be relieved of his command, reportedly for links with the right-wing military attempt to overthrow the government two months ago, Defense Ministry sources said today.

"Your own Betty Speir instituted the sustaining fund," Mrs. McCain commented, "and last year we raised $50,000. This year we're trying to raise $100,000. This money will be used for services we can provide in the 1982 elections."

Noting that $29,000 of the hoped-for $100,000 has been raised to date, Mrs. McCain said she's optimistic that we'll get "our finances in order to be ready for the big battle."

Mrs. McCain summed up the status of the Democratic Party at this point by saying, "We may be a lame duck limping, but we're still squawking."

State Senator J. J. (Monk) Harrington also spoke to the Wednesday night audience. Harrington focused on the recent request by Governor Jim Hunt for a three cent increase in gasoline taxes in North Carolina. He cited figures showing that "North Carolina has 76,000 miles of road, more than any other state in the nation. And they are the best roads in the nation. California may be equal to us in road quality, but it's the only state that is."

Harrington, who is chairman of the State Senate Committee on Transportation, said, "Lots of issues are emotional issues, and highways are one of them." On the timing of Hunt's request for new gasoline taxes for highway funds, Harrington pointed out, "The governor promised that he would not ask for increased gasoline taxes in his first four years, and he kept that promise."

"The truth of the matter is that these taxes should have been raised a couple of years ago" because within the next "one and one-half to two years our roads are going to be in bad shape if something is not done."

Harrington added that at this time some legislators say "if we raise taxes on gas we're not going to be voted in again. I tell them that if we let our roads deteriorate, we're also not going to be voted back in, so take your choice."

Mrs. Ann D. Evans, current president of the Democratic Women of Pitt County presided over the meeting. Among special guests and their spouses attending were Mrs. Janice Faulkner, executive director of the State Democratic Party; veteran Democratic leader and worker Mrs. J. B. Spilman; County Commissioners Charles Gaskins and Kelly Barnhill; Register of Deeds Mrs. Elvira Allred; Sheriff Ralph Tyson; Clerk of Superior Court Sandra Gaskins; and Sam McLawhorn, chairman of the Governor Hunt election campaign in Pitt County.

Honors For Junior Achievers

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Junior Achievement brings together the business community — to provide a hands-on approach to learning — and our free enterprise system — with our young achievers.

That's the way Frank Brown, who introduced the special guests attending the annual Futures Unlimited banquet at Abrams Hall last night, described Junior Achievement of Greenville and Pitt County.

According to Sue Lemish, community coordinator for the Junior Achievement program, students are recruited from the city and county school systems, form companies, then manufacture various products and sell them. The proceeds from the sales, along with contributions from local business and industry, help finance the program.

This year, four Junior Achievement companies were formed by 85 achievement students, and contributors gave some $100 to the program, Mrs. Brown reported.

The Junior Achievement program and the firms providing advisors for them were: Notoaco, Burroughs Wellcome Co.; JACO, Procter & Gamble; and Odessa Industries, TRW.

Notoaco produced "Fuzzies", small fuzzy wood figures, while JACO manufactured wooden key pads. JABWO produced wooden key chains and Odessa produced wooden

Haig Influence Seen Declining

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
The decline in influence of Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. is reflected in President Reagan's decisions

Bob Griffin Attends CofC Meeting

Bob Griffin, chairman of the board of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, joined a contingent of business people in Washington, D.C. this week in attendance at the annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

"After the program this morning (Tuesday) and Vice President (George) Bush's message, I believe all of us here and the rest of the country as well have hope and optimism for the future," Griffin observed.

He pointed out, "My chamber and the U.S. Chamber fully support the president's economic recovery program, and I want our congressional delegation to be aware of that."

Griffin noted, "People in North Carolina have the same concerns as citizens around the nation. They are worried about inflation eating away at their earning power, standard and quality of life, and are disturbed that Congress doesn't seem able to rally behind the president completely."

Addresses by Bush and William Verity, the Chamber's retiring chairman, highlighted Monday's morning session. David Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, called for support of the president's economic program during the luncheon session.

The meeting delegates staged a rally at the Capitol building, demanding reductions in government spending and taxes.

to lift the Soviet grain embargo and sell five sophisticated radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

Haig, the self-described vicar and general manager of foreign policy, argued both decisions were ill-timed, and in the aftermath both have drawn bipartisan criticism in Congress.

At the same time, however, they have given Haig a chance to establish himself as a team player and return to good graces in the White House.

While his private opposition to the two decisions was forthright, his public differences were mild, and he quickly supported the decisions once they were made. He strongly defended Tuesday them before a hostile congressional committee.

Criticism of Haig, which was rampant at the White House prior to his trip to the Middle East in early April, has been muted since his return, vindicating Reagan's advisers may be having second thoughts about the wisdom of public quarrels in an administration that promised a consistent foreign policy.

Nevertheless, the defeats on two key foreign policy issues showed that Haig's influence has been diminished considerably since he took office. He won the early battles, but not these.

Haig's argument against lifting the grain embargo was that it could undercut U.S. efforts to rally non-communist nations around the world to confront Soviet aggression.

The embargo was imposed because of Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Critics have said that since the Soviets have not withdrawn, lifting the embargo appears to reward them for not acting, while inviting questions about the United States' own resolve to stop Soviet advances.

There were domestic considerations in lifting the embargo, especially pressures from farm states for Reagan to deliver on his campaign promise. Although White House aides have denied there was any political motivation, Senate conservative leader Jesse Helms, R-N.C., also had said Reagan's farm bill was dead if the embargo were retained.

Some U.S. allies, however, adopted painful sanctions of their own against the Soviets at U.S. urging, and the Japanese already have complained that they weren't properly consulted about lifting the embargo.

State Department information showed that the embargo contributed to a sharp drop in Soviet meat production last year and that the Soviets had to pay premium prices for the grain they did buy.

Haig's argument against the radar planes — Airborne Warning and Control Systems, or AWACS — was that the sale could not now be justified to Israel. He said the decision should be delayed, at least until after Congress had a chance to consider another controversial decision to improve the attack capability of a fleet of Saudi F-15 aircraft.

Israel had just made a painful decision not to campaign against the F-15 armaments sale because it didn't want to risk blemishing its relations with the new administration. Against that background, the AWACS decision seemed like a betrayal.

Emphasizing what Israel perceives as a Saudi threat to its security was a statement by Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani in New York last week that the Israelis were the chief threat to Middle East peace, not the Soviets as the United States has argued.

As a result, the Israelis have signaled they will pull out all stops to block the AWACS decision in Congress, and possibly the F-15 decision as well.

It's not just the pro-Israeli lawmakers who question the AWACS decision. Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations, questions the stability of the Saudi monarchy and worries that the AWACS could someday fall into enemy hands — something Haig says the administration won't let happen.

Sen. Howard Baker, the Senate majority leader, says the outcome of the AWACS sale would be very much in doubt if it came to a vote any time soon. The result is that the administration will delay sending the Saudi arms package to Congress until mid-summer at the earliest.

Meanwhile, Haig has taken one significant step to reassert himself as a formulator of foreign policy, declaring in an interview with The Associated Press last week that the administration would slap a total trade embargo against the Soviets if their troops moved into Poland.

The White House appeared to wish he hadn't said it, but they didn't knock it down, either.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today following two days of broad declines as oil issues advanced but concern continued over rising interest rates.
The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which plunged 19.73 points in the past two sessions, fell another 2.07 points to 1,002.25 by noon.
But gainers held a 7-6 edge over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The NYSE's composite index of all of its listed common stocks rose .15 to 76.99. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.92 at 356.39.
Concern over rising interest rates and record-high yields in the bond market sparked this week's selloff.

Many banks raised their prime lending rates a half percentage point to 18 percent on Wednesday. Today, the move spread to Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank, No. 5 Morgan Guaranty Trust and No. 6 Chemical Bank.

Volume on the Big Board reached 21.39 million shares over the first two hours, down from 23.02 million in the comparable period Wednesday.

Eastman Kodak was the most active, down 7/8 at 77 1/2 after falling 4 points Wednesday. Trading included a block of 83,700 shares changing hands at 78 and a block of 20,000 shares crossing at 77 3/4.

Oil issues rose, including Standard Oil of California, up 1/2 at 41; Exxon, up 1/4 at 68 1/2; Mobil, up 1/4 at 63; Standard Oil (Indiana), up 1/2 at 57 1/2; and Texaco, up 1/2 at 37 1/2.

Five Old Films On China Tour

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Five U.S. films — only one of which is less than 13 years old — will begin a five-city tour of China on May 7, the first significant screenings of American movies there in more than 30 years, says the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

The subtitled movies will open in Peking as part of a cultural exchange agreement signed in 1979 between the United States and China, John Pavlik, Academy executive administrator, said Wednesday.

The films, which the Chinese selected from a list of 25 submitted by the International Communications Agency, are: "The Black Stallion," "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," "Shane," "Singin' in the Rain," and "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

PTA Council To Have Meet

Mrs. Madeline McElveen, state volunteer coordinator with the Governor's Office of Citizen Affairs, will be guest speaker at the Greenville City Schools' Council of Parents-Teachers Association to be held Tuesday, May 5.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. in the library/media center at Greenville Middle School.

Dr. Charles Coble, president of the City-Wide PTA Council, notes this is the last meeting of the year, and that election of new officers for 1981-82 will be taking place. Also, some plans for the coming school year will be initiated.

Parents, patrons and friends of the Greenville community interested in volunteerism are encouraged to attend.

Pleasant Thoughts Said To Ease Pain

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Mention pain killers and many people think of drugs. But two university researchers say pleasant thoughts also can reduce discomfort.

John Horan of Penn State and Gail Hackett of Ohio State taught 81 volunteers how to endure the discomfort of holding their hands in ice water by imagining themselves, for example, lying in a beautiful meadow where birds sing under a warm and cloudless sky.

In applying the technique, called "stress inoculation," the volunteers also were taught to relax their muscles and lessen their expectations of pain.

"If we think we're going to have a lot of pain, we will," Horan said.

By combining all three — muscle relaxation, pleasant thoughts and lowered expectations of pain — some of the volunteers were able to significantly increase their tolerance to pain, Horan said.

The experiment was described in an article published in the Journal of Counseling Psychology. The work was part of the search for alternatives to drugs and surgery for relieving pain.

Horan said he's not certain what types of pain can be controlled through stress inoculation.

"It might be appropriate for certain kinds of pain and not for others. It might help people prepare for child birth. It might be appropriate for minor surgery and certain kinds of dental work," he said.

But "I wouldn't want to have anyone's appendix taken out at this stage of development."

Probe How Gas Got Into Tank

AVONDALE, La. (AP) — Avondale Shipyards investigators were trying to determine how argon gas got into a cargo tank and apparently asphyxiated two tank inspectors, officials say.

John Chantrey, vice president of personnel for the shipyard, said the bodies of two men were found in the tank Wednesday. The cause of death was not immediately known.

He said argon is used in welding such tanks, but no welding was known to have been going on at the time.

proved, Rebounding Award, Free Throw Shooting Award; Mark McLaurin, Most Valuable Player; and Charles Watkins, Outstanding Newcomer Award. (Reflector Photo)

McLaurin Most Valuable Cager; Szymanski Takes Three Trophies

Mark McLaurin was named the Most Valuable Player, but lone senior Tom Szymanski walked off with most of the hardware last night as East Carolina University honored its men's basketball team.

The annual Men's Basketball Banquet was held at the Mendenhall Student Center.

McLaurin, a junior, who was also announced as one of the new tri-captains for the coming year, won the balloting by his teammates for the MVP award, presented by The Daily Reflector each year. He was cited by Coach Dave Odom during the presentation for his leadership ability both on and off the court.

Charles Watkins, who joined the team at mid-year from the U.S. Marine Corps, was the winner of the Outstanding Newcomer Award. The sophomore finished the year as the leading scorer for the Pirates.

The Best Defensive Player award went to Barry Wright, a freshman who usually drew the job of stopping the top opposing player.

Dr. Ken Karr, speaking at the ECU Men's Basketball Banquet last night, said that efforts are continuing to find a conference home for the Pirates.

"We need to find a way to get aligned with other schools for a chance at an automatic berth into the NCAA tournament," the ECU athletic director said.

"We are continuing to pursue it, holding hands with (four other schools) while we aggressively pursue a sixth school. There is no guarantee that it will come by July 1, or August 1, or even October 1, but we are continuing. I'm sure that once we are successful, it will have very positive ramifications for our basketball program."

Karr added the he and Coach Dave Odom are also working hard on scheduling, and that an improved schedule for the coming year could be expected.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (AP) — The basketball game had ended and the score was Lock Haven State 84, Edinboro 82.

Hold on! Both scorers had 84 points for each side in their scorebooks. Both teams were in the showers. Officials said they had to finish the game. Not that easy. Wrestlers already had two mats down in the arena for a quadrangular meet. Up came the mats.

Jump ball for a second overtime. An official gets hit accidentally by a player and is knocked cold. He's revived and the game goes on. Finally, it's over. Final score: Lock Haven 97, Edinboro 92.

Lady Pirates Open Quest For Berth In National Tournament

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's Lady Pirates, the defending regional champions, go for it again this time, but there's a little more at stake.

This year, for the first time, the AIAW is sponsoring a national slow-pitch tournament, to be held in two weeks in N.C. State in Raleigh.

The Lady Pirates, currently ranked number one in the country among those slow-pitch teams, would like nothing better than the chance to prove their ranking by bringing home that national title.

First, however, they have to do well in the regional, being played in Johnson City, Tenn., starting today.

The Pirates have put away 38 victories against only four losses so far this year, and include victories in the strong N.C. State Invitational Tournament, and the North Carolina state tournament.

Last year's team was 37-5, giving the lassies a fine 75-9 record for the past two years — so far.

Coach Alita Dillon feels that with the high ranking of the Lady Pirates, along with their state title that even if they do not win the regionals, they would still get an at-large bid.

"They have 16 teams in the final field," she said. "Ten of them will come from the regional winners and runners-up. N.C. State, as the host, is the 11th, leaving five at-large berths. I feel sure that unless something very unusual happens that we would get one of those berths."

However, Dillon would just as soon make the nationals by winning the way there by taking the regional championship.

The coach feels that there is no one secret that has helped the team to victory. "It's been a combination of things. We've been relatively healthy, we've been consistent on defense, and our offense has come through for us when we needed it to."

Dillon said that more people have been hitting more consistently for the team. "We haven't scored a lot of all of our games, but we're probably hitting more than last year. "One key for us has been depth. We're deeper than most teams we play. This gives us an advantage in the late innings, when we can go to our bench for a rested pinch-hitter or pinch-runner. That makes a difference."

Another key has been the outstanding speed of the outfield. The four girls there have been able to make catches that on other teams would have fallen in for hits. "We have robbed a lot of people," the coach said. "Then, too, we've been able to use our speed on the bases to force the defense into mistakes. And on defense, not only have we been able to get to the ball, but we have strong arms. Just the other day, someone hit one deep to center, and a runner on second tagged up and we threw her out at third by a good eight feet."

Whereas pitching may not play as big a role as it does in baseball, it's still an important factor. "You have to position the ball to try and get the best thing from it," Dillon said. "For instance, in our rules, a foul ball on the third strike is just the same thing as a miss. It's a strikeout. If you have control, you can put the ball in a place that makes it hard to hit it in the infield. You play the corners and try to get ahead and get a foul-out."

Jeanette Roth has been the mainstay for the Lady Pirates on the mound, but has gotten plenty of help from Angie Humphrey, especially in tournament play.

Fran Hooks handles the catching duties, while Shirley Brown is at first, Ginger Rothermel at second, Mary Powell at short and either Jo Landa Clayton or Maureen Buck at third.

Shepard is the leading hitter on the team with a .496 mark. She is second on the team in doubles with eight and is tied for first in homers with eight. She is the leader in runs batted in with 47.

Davis is next at .466, and leads the team in triples with five, setting a new school record of three in one game during the state tournament. She has five homers.

Riley is hitting .432, and leads the team in doubles with nine. She is also tied for the homer lead with eight. Hooks is hitting .421, while Clayton has a .414 average.

In the field, the Pirates are playing outstanding defense, with a .961 fielding average.

"We're approaching this tournament like we would anything else during the season. You can't get high as a kite for every game, so we just try to be consistent," Dillon said. She looks for no real surprises in the tournament, however.

The only thing that really concerns her is the layoff between the regionals and the nationals, should the Pirates get that far. "I would rather have some games in there, but everyone is going to be in the same shape. We're going to be working right along. We're not going to sit around waiting for the nationals to start."

Getting to the nationals is the first step. Bringing home that title will be the second.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The idea of doubling state legislators' terms from two to four years remains alive in the General Assembly after clearing an important hurdle Wednesday.

The House Constitutional Amendments Committee rejected 6-9 a move to sidetrack the proposed amendment to the North Carolina Constitution by sending it to a subcommittee for what could have been a lengthy study.

But the panel delayed a vote on the amendment itself until next week.

The Senate already has approved the amendment — introduced by Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne — which would provide for a statewide vote on the referendum, perhaps as soon as this fall.

If voters approve the amendment, the first legislators to serve a four-year term could be elected in 1982.

"When you walk out of here (this summer), you'll be 10 months away from a primary," Barnes told the committee. "You are going right out of this building and into a campaign."

Barnes has argued that legislators are forced to campaign too much in comparison to the time they spend making laws. He said that at the end of a two-year term, about 10 percent of the Senate will decide not to seek re-election.

The amendment does face some strong opposition in the committee. Rep. Kenneth Spaulding, D-Durham, charged the amendment "seems to be more of a politician's bill than a people's bill." He argued that four-year terms may make legislators less responsible to voters.

In other legislative action:

S&L's

A bill aimed at requiring savings and loan institutions and banks to pay the same kinds of taxes ran across a stumbling block in the Senate Finance Committee.

The bill would delete the present requirements that savings and loans pay excise and share and deposit taxes. Instead, it would require the associations pay income and franchise taxes like banks pay.

But Sen. Bob Swain, D-Buncombe, introduced an amendment to bring savings and loan deposits under banking laws that require depositors pay an intangibles tax of 10 cents for each $100 in savings. Swain said the amendment was supported by the banking industry.

After maneuvering aimed at killing the amendment, the committee adjourned before taking any action.

Gordon Allen, a lobbyist for the savings and loan industry, said the tax would affect 750,000 people and probably would raise about $1 million. Allen said he strongly opposes the amendment.

Utilities

A House committee approved and sent to the floor a bill changing the way interest is computed on refunds from public utilities to their customers.

Currently, the rate of interest is tied to usury rates and has an 8 percent limit. The bill would give the state Utilities Commission the authority to set the level with a 10 percent limit.

"Without this bill, utilities will continue to have an incentive to delay refunding the money," said Rep. Robert Hunter, D-McDowell.

Rules

The Senate approved by a 32-12 vote a bill that would give new powers to the Legislature in the review of rules and regulations issued by state departments of the executive branch.

It would allow the Legislature's Administrative Rules Committee to delay implementation of rules it found objectionable.

Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, restated his objections to the bill, saying he believed it violates part of the state Constitution requiring the separation of legislative, executive and judicial powers.

"We must observe our traditional commitment ... to the basic principles of the separation of powers," agreed Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gaston. "In effect we are providing for what in practice will be a veto."

Supporters of the bill argued it is a logical extension of the Legislature's right to delegate to state departments the power to make rules and regulations.

Juries

Jury lists would be drawn from lists of licensed drivers instead of lists of taxpayers under a bill filed by Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg. The bill is the result of a report by the North Carolina Courts Commission.

The commission acknowledged that some minorities are not accurately represented by the current method of drawing jury lists. The panel suggested lists of licensed drivers as an alternative method of composing the lists.

Anthem

Sen. Joe Johnson, D-Wake, filed a bill to adopt a state anthem, "North Carolina Everlasting." The anthem would be in addition to the state song, "The Old North State."

The words and music to the anthem were written by Dennis Laurence Cuddy, a Raleigh resident.

Trials

Rep. Richard Wright, D-Columbus, filed a bill that might ease the effect of the Speedy Trials Act. In most cases, the act requires a defendant be brought to trial within 120 days. That limit will drop to 90 days on Oct. 1.

But opponents, led by district attorneys, have argued the act sets unrealistic goals and would require the hiring of additional court personnel.

Wright's bill would stretch the 90-day limit to 120 days for a new trial in Superior Court on misdemeanor charges, from 60 days to 90 days in the case of a mistrial and from 60 days to 120 days for a new trial ordered by a state or federal appellate court.

Wright said his bill could delay trials by an additional 40 to 50 days. He said the state district attorneys' association helped draw up the bill.

U.S. Asking Soviet Influence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, describing fighting in Lebanon as ripe for a "blood bath," is asking the Soviet Union to persuade Syria to pull back its troops.

"The Syrians have got to back down," one official source, who asked not to be identified, said Wednesday. "We do not feel that morally we can sit idly by and watch a blood bath develop."

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said the fighting in Lebanon is "very worrisome" and said the situation is being monitored on an around-the-clock basis by a special working group at the State Department.

The Reagan administration has made appeals for Soviet cooperation both in Moscow and also directly to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin in Washington, the source said.

Specifically, officials want the Soviets to use their influence with Syria, whose troop movements into mountain-top positions between Beirut and Zahle threaten to worsen the fighting.

From there, the source said, Syrians can fire artillery in all directions, including at positions occupied by Christian Falangist forces and the port of Junieh, which Israel uses to supply the Christians.

The United States wants the Soviets to tell the Syrians to "cease and desist," according to the source.

The Soviets have a defense treaty with Syria, whose troops have been deeply involved in the fighting, especially against Christian forces around Zahle. Syria has about 20,000 troops in Lebanon as an Arab-sponsored peace-keeping force.

Haig, meanwhile, told reporters: "We have been following the situation in Lebanon very, very carefully. ... This is one of those more dangerous periods. Today the situation is very worrisome."

He said the United States is engaged in "extensive diplomatic activity" aimed at ending the fighting that has worsened recently.

He said Soviet cooperation is being sought because the Soviets have "special influence in one of the capitals of the region," an obvious reference to Syria.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said the United States has "not given a green light" to Israel to take any military actions in Lebanon, where Israeli planes have supported embattled Christian forces.

Fischer also disclosed that Undersecretary of State Walter Stoessel called Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin to the State Department on Monday and discussed the fighting in Lebanon.

Fischer indicated the meeting was part of "intense and sustained efforts" by the United States to try to bring peace to Lebanon, but he declined to offer details.

"It is incumbent on all governments in the world, including the Soviets, to do their best also to calm the situation," Fischer said.

Haig said recently that the United States would support greater United Nations involvement aimed at bringing peace to Lebanon, possibly including an expanded U.N. peace-keeping force.

Soviet support for an expanded U.N. presence would be required.

Eye Completing Of Interstate

WASHINGTON (AP) — There may be fewer rest stops than planned, but the Reagan Administration believes it can complete the interstate highway system by 1990 for $31.5 billion.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis told a Senate subcommittee Wednesday that the money should be sufficient to construct the 2,500 or so miles needed to finish the system.

"Our system may have fewer frills, such as rest stops and extended lanes," he said. "We want to re-define our system, close those gaps and close those long distances, like in Florida and Texas."

Quarterly Services

Quarterly meeting services will be observed at Allen Chapel Church this weekend. The following schedule will be observed:

Friday, 8 p.m., board meeting; Saturday, 8 p.m., service will be led by the Rev. W.L. Phillips and Rock Spring; Sunday, 11 a.m. service led by the Rev. J.L. Tyson, senior choir and ushers, 3 p.m. service will be led by the Rev. H.L. Hill and Union Grove Church.

Republicans Senate Draft Bill To End VISTA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key Senate Republicans are circulating draft legislation that would implement the Reagan administration's plan to end the VISTA volunteer service program by the end of fiscal 1983.

Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., chairman of the subcommittee handling VISTA legislation, plans to introduce the bill within a few days.

But in the House, where Democrats hold the majority, the administration bill has yet to find a sponsor, and Rep. Austin Murphy, D-Pa., has introduced a rival measure that would keep VISTA alive for four more years.

Murphy was opening hearings today on his proposal.

Denton, chairman of the Senate Labor subcommittee on aging and the family, declared his support for the administration plan at the opening of his panel's recent hearings on VISTA's future.

VISTA, the acronym for Volunteers in Service to America, began 15 years ago as part of the Johnson administration's anti-poverty program. VISTA had 4,800 volunteers serving 2,000 communities as of last September, but budget cuts are forcing a reduction to 2,725 in 1,400 communities by the 1982 fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Volunteers are paid a stipend averaging $375 a month for living expenses and are forbidden to take other jobs. They are assigned to work with non-profit local community organizations or government agencies.

The Reagan administration is trying to end VISTA because officials say the program's "limited successes do not justify the continued outlay of federal funds," said a memo announcing the decision April 3 to employees of VISTA and its parent agency ACTION.

Several private organizations are campaigning to save the program and are building some support among Democrats.

The draft Senate bill carries

Denton's name and was prepared by his subcommittee staff members who declined to discuss the contents until the measure is formally introduced in the Senate. The staff is circulating the draft to other subcommittee members for comment.

The draft bill would trim the authorized budget for VISTA and two smaller ACTION programs to $25.8 million for fiscal 1982 and $15.4 million for fiscal 1983. The current budget for VISTA alone is $32 million.

The memo distributed to ACTION employees said the administration wants to trim VISTA's budget to $20.7 million in fiscal 1982 and $10 million the following year, with those funds to be used merely to wind up the agency's business.

The draft Denton bill conforms to the administration plan, according to congressional sources who requested anonymity.

The sum in excess of the administration's VISTA figures would cover the costs of the two smaller programs.

Meanwhile, Murphy,

chairman of the House subcommittee on select education, proposed extending the VISTA program for four years. That bill would keep spending next year at $32 million and authorize 8 percent annual increases in the VISTA budget.

"CHARGE-IT!"

Whole Truth Will Mend Parents' Broken Hearts

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 28 and a nurse. She took a job several thousand miles from home and has been gone nearly a year. We were hoping she'd come home last Christmas, but she said she'd come home next summer and bring her fiance. (She had written about a young man whom she'd fallen in love with, describing his "beautiful attitudes, brilliant mind and outstanding character.")

Now we know why she didn't bring him home for Christmas. He's an amputee! He lost both legs just below the knee in an accident. We learned this yesterday from a letter she wrote us.

We are heartsick. She's such a beautiful girl and could easily get a whole man. Abby, how do parents adjust to knowing their daughter will spend the rest of her life caring for an invalid?

BROKENHEARTED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: What makes you think he's an invalid? You would be amazed how well some people can manage on artificial limbs. There is no reason to be heartbroken. If he's "whole" enough for her, it says a great deal for her values. Theirs could be a completely beautiful and fulfilling marriage.

DEAR ABBY: When my friend's children entered school, she was free to do all the fun things — bridge, golf, women's clubs, business trips to exotic places with her husband, etc. She paid no income or Social Security taxes.

When my children entered school, I went back to work, attended classes on a part-time basis and earned a college degree. With each promotion, my income and Social Security taxes increased.

We are now at retirement age. My friend draws an amount equal to half the Social Security benefits received by her husband. I cannot draw half of my husband's benefits nor can he draw half of mine.

My advice to women is: Don't work! That way you can have your cake and eat it, too. Sign me,

NOT AS SMART AS I SHOULD HAVE BEEN

DEAR NOT AS SMART: My sources at Social Security tell me that a wife who worked can take one-half of her husband's benefit or draw a benefit on her own record, whichever sum is larger.

The architects of the Social Security Act probably reasoned that the non-wage-earning wife needs half the Social Security benefits received by her husband because she has none of her own.

DEAR ABBY: Last year I had open-heart surgery. I have suffered nearly all my life with asthma, and just lately I developed emphysema. I stopped smoking seven years ago and cannot tolerate cigarette smoke.

For years I have allowed a neighbor to use my telephone. She's a chain smoker who comes to my door smoking a cigarette, with a pack of cigarettes in one hand and a lighter in the other. She walks in, starts looking for an ashtray, then proceeds to fill my place with smoke! She is also an alcoholic, and has telephitis when she is on a toot.

After so many years of letting her use my telephone, I don't think I could refuse her now, although she is much better off financially than I am.

What should I do?

THE COUGHER

DEAR COUGHER: Tell your nery neighbor that you cannot tolerate cigarette smoke and she may not smoke in your place. Period.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Fear Slaughter Of Kangaroos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Animal protection groups say millions of kangaroos will be slaughtered as a result of the Interior Department's decision to lift the six-year-old ban on importing kangaroo hides into the United States.

Spokesmen for groups including the Fund for Animals, Humane Society and American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said the decision weakens the nation's commitment to saving threatened species.

Dr. Eugene Hester, acting deputy director of the Fish and Wildlife Service, said that since 1974 the three largest kangaroo species — red, eastern and western gray — have reached "healthy numbers and are being properly managed in Australia."

Committee Sets Conditions For El Salvador Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Foreign Affairs Committee, rebelling at a "blank-check" policy on El Salvador, wants a ban on U.S. military aid and advisers unless President Reagan certifies that the ruling junta is promoting democracy and not abusing human rights.

The stand, set forth in an amendment to the pending foreign aid bill, was approved 26-6 Wednesday with support from 18 Democrats and eight Republicans.

Administration officials said the amendment, which sets forth six conditions for U.S. aid to the embattled Central American republic, could tie the president's hands in foreign affairs. Nevertheless, they added that nothing in the measure conflicts with administration goals.

To become effective, the amendment must be approved by the full House and Senate. Congress then would have to determine what conditions, if any, have not been met and enact separate legislation to withdraw aid and advisers.

"This vote represents a decisive repudiation of the blank-check military policy of the Reagan administration in El Salvador and constitutes a significant victory for those who believe we should not provide unconditional military aid to the government of El Salvador," said Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, D-N.Y.

The amendment was sponsored by Solarz and another New York Democrat, Jonathan B. Bingham, who said it was meant to "make use of this military assistance as leverage to help achieve the goals we all support in El Salvador."

The amendment would require Reagan to certify that the Salvadoran junta headed by President Jose Napoleon Duarte:

—Is not engaged in "a consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognized human rights."

—Has achieved "substantial control" over all government security forces "so as to bring to an end the indiscriminate torture and murder of Salvadoran citizens by those forces."

—"Is making continued progress in implementing essential economic and political reforms," including land reform.

—"Is committed to the holding of free elections at an early date."

—"Has demonstrated its willingness to negotiate with opposition groups an equitable political resolution of the conflict."

—Is making a "good-faith effort" to investigate the slayings of three U.S. Catholic nuns, a social worker and two American labor representatives.

The conditions are similar to ones that Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., says he will propose when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee considers its version of the aid bill.

Solarz attempted to make the amendment stronger by authorizing an immediate assistance cutoff if Congress finds White House assurances inadequate. But this was rejected by committee Republicans.

Also defeated by the panel were proposals by Rep. Gerry E. Studds, D-Mass., to cut off military aid immediately and by Rep. Michael D. Barnes, D-Md., to force withdrawal of all U.S. military advisory and training personnel.

Earlier Wednesday, James L. Buckley, undersecretary of state for security assistance, told the House Appropriations Committee that leftist guerrillas have made a "quantum jump" in efforts to disrupt El Salvador's economy by attacking facilities such as power plants and bridges.

He said the stepped-up sabotage underscores the need for expanded U.S. aid to help the Salvadoran economy and encourage land reform. He testified in support of the administration's request for $63.5 million more in economic aid to El Salvador in the budget year ending next Oct. 1.

The extra money will bring overall American economic assistance this year to $126.5

million — more than three times the $35 million in military aid which the United States also is providing.

According to Buckley, Duarte estimates that "economic sabotage" causes about $15 million in destruction every month.

Buckley said the economic aid will help the government meet immediate needs for food, foreign exchange to buy seed and fertilizer and domestic credit to finance agriculture and industry.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Ace of ♦.

Even a seemingly impregnable position can become vulnerable to a guerrilla assault. Declarer failed to consider the possibility and paid dearly.

With only 16 HCP and a freak hand, South realized that it was unlikely that an opening bid of one spade would be passed out. North dredged up a one no trump response in the hope of getting to play the hand in one of his suits, but he began to regret his action when his partner jumped to four spades at his next turn.

West led the ace of diamonds and continued the suit. Declarer ruffed the second diamond and led the king of trumps, feeling very secure in his contract. He was soon disillusioned. West took the ace of spades and, since declarer had not tried to ruff any clubs, the defender reasoned that declarer was not worried about that suit. Therefore, West shifted to a heart.

Declarer made the technically correct play of the king from dummy. East won the ace and returned his remaining diamond. Declarer's goose was cooked—whether he ruffed high or low, East's ten of trumps had to score a trick. Down one in a contract that should have been made.

Had declarer been aware of the potential threat to his trump holding, he could have taken a simple but effective countermeasure. A loser-on-loser play would have made the contract safe as long as trumps divided 3-2.

After ruffing the second diamond, declarer should have entered dummy by ruffing one of his club winners. Now, he leads a diamond from dummy but, instead of ruffing, he discards his heart loser!

By exchanging his heart loser for a diamond loser, declarer breaks communications between the defenders' hands and neutralizes the threat of a trump promotion. No matter what the defenders do, declarer can get to his hand twice with almost complete safety to draw trumps and thus make his contract.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Sinatra To Sing In S. Africa

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although Frank Sinatra will appear in concert in South Africa this summer, a spokesman for the entertainer says the contract will ban racial segregation at the performances.

Publicist Lee Solters said a standard clause was included in Sinatra's contract prohibiting segregation during the July 24 to Aug. 2 concerts at Sun City in Bophuthatswana.

The clause reads: "Promoter warrants and represents that there will be no segregation practiced at Sinatra performances in Sun City, either in the hotel or the site of the performances, and that all people, regardless of their race, color or creed, will be allowed to use all the facilities of Promoter and Southern Sun Hotels in Bophuthatswana."

Investigative journalism, Geraldo Rivera style, has taken the Hip One from the jungles of Laos to a spat with little Gary Coleman, with the aggressive "Look at Me" Rivera style chafing more than a few hides along the way.

But now Rivera is enmeshed in a controversy that may threaten his career and calls into question television's role as the probing eye.

The rather curious dogfight erupted between ABC News and CBS' Chicago station, WBBM, over a Rivera "20-20" newsmagazine report on an alleged arson-for-profit ring in Chicago. In the half-hour "20-20" piece, Rivera told of an alleged arson scheme involving one Charles Roberts, identified by "20-20" as one of several profiteers connected to 29 fires, some of which were fatal. (Roberts has sued ABC for libel.)

WBBM's documentary team, headed by producer Scott Craig, put together an expose-styled television report on expose-styled television reporting, focusing, in part, on Rivera's arson-for-profit story. The documentary, which aired last week, attacked the "20-20" report on points of accuracy and style, suggesting that Rivera & Co.'s "findings" were not valid largely because the U.S. Attorney's office had not been able to get a grand jury indictment against Roberts.

But the WBBM report further called into question the investigative methods routinely employed by Rivera and other TV-Eyes, specifically the flashy technique dubbed "the ambush interview." Rivera was chastened for approaching the startled Roberts on the street, cameras rolling, and giving him the third degree. It's a method designed, suggested the WBBM report, for "picture," not truth.

ABC News came down on the WBBM documentary hard and fast, and understandably so. The news profession, print and electronic, seems to be in the throes of a self-devouring frenzy in the wake of the Janet Cooke-Washington Post-Pulitzer Prize affair. ABC News and Geraldo Rivera were being spoken in the same breath as Janet Cooke, and ABC News didn't like it.

Indeed, the "20-20" report in question won television's version of the Pulitzer, an Emmy Award.

Anyway, ABC issued a nine-page rebuttal to WBBM's report and is planning a "20-20" rebuttal to be broadcast at least in the Chicago area, and possibly nationwide.

"We think we've been maligned," said ABC News Vice President David Burke. "We've been unfairly attacked and our integrity has been put on the line."

WBBM producer Scott Craig says he rather welcomes a "David and Goliath battle" if that's what ABC wants. But he insists that the purpose of his "Watching the Watchdog" documentary was merely to "open up a dialogue among journalists about the techniques used by television in investigative reporting, their use and abuse."

"If all of this means we've opened up that dialogue, I'm glad."

ABC's Burke isn't interested in dialogue right now.

"Their invitation to the clouds above Mount Olympus to discuss the finer points of television journalism," says Burke, "is a bunch of bull."

"It's easy for them to retreat now and say, 'Come, come, boys, let's talk about this in a professional way.' But we took a beating on this thing on the way to the mountaintop."

ABC maintains that it will stick by its story and offers documentation of its allegations. WBBM points to the absence of an indictment. ABC asks, Since when is an indictment the test of a story's newsworthiness?

Anyway, the "20-20"-WBBM brouhaha does bring into question, perhaps necessarily, some of the techniques employed in the TV-Eye game, both as applied by ABC to Roberts and by WBBM to ABC.

Interestingly, WBBM producer Craig recently won an award for an investigative report on a Chicago day-care center. And which TV-Eye technique do you suppose was conspicuously employed in that award-winning report?

Yes. The "ambush interview."

Comedians Are Dick Van Dyke Again A Team

Rules Notes, Tapes Are Not Evidence

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Saying the material is not legal evidence, a circuit judge has refused to order the editor and reporter from a Searcy, Ark., newspaper to turn over notes and a tape recording from an interview with a man acquitted of murder.

Circuit Judge Harlan Weber rejected a request Wednesday by a grand jury that Perrin Jones, editor of the Searcy Daily Citizen, and reporter Linda Hilbun be required to hand over the notes.

Weber met with Jones and Miss Hilbun for about 2½ hours after they appeared before the grand jury and refused requests to turn over the material.

Curran has claimed the man knocked him unconscious and killed Lester and Dorothy Little. But Curran has refused to tell the grand jury why he took the man to the Littles' house.

Miss Hilbun said Curran told her his reason in confidence.

Newspaper lawyer Ted Skokos said the judge decided that the information the grand jury was seeking from Miss Hilbun and Jones would be available from other sources.

"We were defending confidentiality," Jones said. "Our contention was it was privileged."

The grand jury subpoenaed them for notes from an interview Miss Hilbun conducted earlier this month with James W. Curran of Floyd, Ark.

Curran, acquitted of murdering a Little Rock couple last June, allegedly told Miss Hilbun during the interview about a man he Paychecks In 'Lost Mail'

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — About 1,300 missing payroll checks for civilian personnel at Fort Gordon may be in a mail sack that was misplaced, according to a postal official.

Augusta Postmaster Nathan Brown speculated on the missing checks Wednesday after alerting postal authorities across Georgia to be on the lookout for the checks. The amount of money involved was not available.

"We don't know the last point at which the checks were accounted for," Brown said.

Fort Gordon spokesman Maj. Joseph Page said if the checks are missing on Friday, the employees will be paid from a central point to be set up at the fort.

Civilian employees who normally are paid at the fort or through direct deposit to banks were not affected by the lost checks, Page said. The fort employs about 3,000 civilian workers.

Some 1,300 employees who are paid by mail expected to receive their checks Wednesday, and the problem was discovered when some workers complained they had not received their checks, Page said.

The checks usually go to a post office branch at the fort and are taken by truck to the main Augusta Post office for distribution, Page said.

Emergency Near in S. Fla. Drought

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — South Florida water managers are asking residents in eight counties to cut back water use voluntarily, saying they may be forced to declare an emergency this weekend unless it rains.

The National Weather Service said there was a chance of rain by Friday, but forecasters were making no promises.

"We had hoped to avoid this step," John Maloy, executive director of the South Florida Management District, said Wednesday. "But high demands and low rainfall have brought water conditions to a level where we must take steps to stretch the supply we have until the rainy season starts."

"We are asking that all non-essential water uses be stopped immediately, and that agricultural, industrial and municipal water users take steps to institute reductions," he said, adding the district might have to impose mandatory measures if rain doesn't fall soon.

He said the affected counties were Dade, which includes Miami; Broward, which includes Fort Lauderdale; Monroe, which includes Key West; Palm Beach, Martin, Lee, Hendry and Glades.

Gov. Bob Graham issued a statement in Tallahassee calling on residents to take precautions to avert a water shortage.

Meanwhile, 30- and 90-day weather outlooks issued Wednesday by the weather service predicted warmer and drier-than-normal conditions during May and warmer temperatures than normal for May, June and July.

Maloy said Lake Okeechobee, a supplier of fresh water to South Florida, was close to the 11.5-foot mark. He said the water level was low enough to indicate measures must be taken to avoid drawing the lake down too low before the rainy season begins. South Florida's wet season normally begins in May.

According to National Hurricane Center figures, Miami has recorded just .05 inches of rain for April, less than the record-low .07 inches received in April 1971 during a five-month drought.

A Royal Visit

Britain's Prince Charles will make two trips to the United States before his wedding in July. The first one begins today and will end with a White House dinner tomorrow. Charles is the heir to the British throne. His mother, Queen Elizabeth, once expressed her desire that he avoid "the Edward VII situation." Edward VII became King upon the death of his mother, Queen Victoria. He was 59 years old and not prepared for the awesome duties of a King. Unlike Edward, Prince Charles has been carefully groomed to become King. However, some observe that the Queen shows no desire to abdicate soon to her son. These observers say that Charles may be over 50 years old when he becomes King.

DO YOU KNOW — Who will Prince Charles marry on July 29, 1981?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Namibia, or South-West Africa, is seeking independence.

Sheriffs Support Manpower Formula

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's sheriffs and county commissioners are preparing to battle each other in the Legislature over a bill that would impose a formula for staffing sheriff's departments.

Under the bill, introduced last week by Sen. Joe Raynor, D-Cumberland, manpower for sheriff's departments would depend on county population figures. County commissioners would be required to finance one deputy per 1,000 residents.

The state Sheriff's Association began a lobbying effort for the bill two weeks ago. Howard A. Kramer, executive director for the association, said the bill would raise the manpower levels of all 100 sheriff's and county police departments.

"Their manpower hasn't kept pace with the state's population growth," Kramer said.

The North Carolina Association of County Commissioners almost certainly will oppose the bill, said staff attorney D.F. "Butch" Gunnells.

"I expect you're going to get some pretty negative reaction from the counties," Gunnells said. "I can't imagine you're going to see much local government support for it."

Footballers In Drug Round-Up

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An undercover drug operation in Raleigh nabbed 60 people Wednesday on felony drug charges, including two North Carolina State University football players.

More than 20 other people were charged but had not been arrested by Wednesday night. Some of the charges involved heroin and cocaine, but most people, including the two athletes, were arrested for selling and possessing marijuana.

The football players are Michael Anthony Quick of Hamlet and Ronnie Dean Shavlik of Raleigh, said Detective Lt. C.R. Stinson of the Raleigh Police Department.

Raise Questions On Tax Credit

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A legislative tax specialist raised questions Wednesday about Gov. Jim Hunt's proposed tax credit plan, designed to offset higher gasoline taxes.

But Hunt administration officials said they are still working on the details of the personal state income tax credit plan, which Hunt said Monday would soften the blow of his proposed 3-cent-per-gallon gas tax increase.

Tax specialist David Crotts told a Republican legislator in a memo that he cannot estimate or confirm the administration's estimate of the impact of the plan on state revenues.

There are "a number of unanswered questions that must be answered before the fiscal and administrative consequences of the proposal can be reviewed by the General Assembly," Crotts said.

"They asked me how much it would cost," Crotts told The Associated Press. "I said, 'How can you tell?'"

Hunt said in his televised speech Monday that the credit would reduce anticipated state revenues by some $11 million a year.

Hunt spokesman Brent Hackney said Wednesday the administration stands by that estimate and said officials are still working out the details of the plan.

But deputy state budget officer Marvin Dorman acknowledged that the figure could change because officials have not decided just who would be eligible for the credit.

Hunt said the credit would be limited to one per household, but Crotts asked whether the state would refuse the credit to a single employed person over 18 but still living at home.

Administration officials said other details concern whether an unmarried couple filing separate returns could each claim the credit, while only one member of a married couple could.

Hunt said the credit would be based on the amount of gasoline consumed — up to 750 gallons a year. But Crotts questioned how that could be administered, adding that it would be more practical to base it on the number of miles driven.

The per-gallon method would be based on trust,

Hackney said. "Yeah, you can be crooked about it and most of the time get away with it," he said. "That goes for reporting your income and a lot of other things, too."

Crotts also questioned Hunt's proposal to apply tax collections from auto part sales to the highway fund. Hunt said stores could separate taxes paid on automotive items.

But Crotts said it would be better to take the sales taxes from all stores dealing with automobiles, such as service stations, garages, supply stores and bicycle dealers. Collections by the Revenue Department's "automotive group" totaled $58.5 million last year — about the same amount of sales tax Hunt targeted for a shift to the Highway Fund.

Convict Duo In Extortion

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Wake County Superior Court jury convicted a 22-year-old woman and a 23-year-old man Wednesday of conspiracy and extortion for trying to use sexual favors to influence a former Wake County magistrate.

Allan Marie Scott was sentenced to five years in prison, and Danny Ray Wiggins was sentenced to two years.

Judge Judson D. DeRamus Jr. recommended immediate work release for the two after defense attorneys said Ms. Scott was at least seven months pregnant.

Ms. Scott and Wiggins were accused of conspiring and threatening to make public a tape and pictures of former magistrate Philip C. Anders if Anders did not get drug charges against Wiggins dismissed.

The pictures, introduced as evidence, show Anders lying nude on a waterbed on March 10 with Ms. Scott. The tapes, not introduced, allegedly recorded a bedroom conversation between Anders and Ms. Scott, testimony revealed.

Anders, who faces a maximum of four years in prison on two related charges, resigned after he was accused of accepting sexual favors from Ms. Scott in exchange for granting her favorable conditions for pre-trial release.

Anders pleaded guilty earlier this month to common law bribery, reduced from felonious bribery, in a plea bargain in exchange for his testimony against Wiggins and Ms. Scott. His sentencing was delayed until their trial ended.

Other Pension Plans Involved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost 50 percent of workers in commerce and industry and 75 percent of government civilian employees are enrolled in retirement plans other than Social Security. Their numbers are estimated at 49 million, says the American Council of Life Insurance Pension Facts 1980 booklet. More than 159 million had Social Security earnings credits, the booklet says, including about 136 million who qualify for payments at retirement.
