Stocks Plummet In France With Socialist's Win

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Socialist Francois Mitterrand, who pledged economic change and pulled support from Communists and moderates, defeated Valery Giscard d'Estaing's bid for a second term as president of France and ended an era of center-right government.

The French stock market plummeted in a tidal wave of selling today — a reaction to Mitterrand's vow of widespread industrial nationalization and the possibility he will give France's pro-Soviet Communists a Cabinet role. A harried broker said it was the worst selling wave he could remember.

The franc dropped to 5.45 to the dollar, approachin the lowest level since 1971 when the dollar was worth 5.52 francs. Gold soared. The Bank of France urged calm on the foreign exchange market.

Early today, with almost 98 percent of the votes counted, Mitterrand had 15,639,673 or 52.06 percent and Giscard d'Estaing had 14,396,439 or 47.93 percent.

In a victory statement
Sunday night at Chateau Chinon, the 64-year-old Mit-terrand said Frenchmen had endorsed his proposals for public jobs programs, nationalization of several large industries and higher corporate taxes. He proclaimed he had "no other ambition than to justify the confidence" of the French people" during his seven-year term.

Stock selling orders on the floor of the Bourse, which opened 30 minutes late because of the flurry of unloading, were concentrated from nine major corporations in the front-line of Mitterrand's nationalization plans. Z half-hour later, traders could quote prices for only five of the 200-plus French issues listed on the forward market.

The outgoing premier,
Raymond Barre, said today
he fears Mitterrand's election will lead quickly to "the deterioration of the domestic and international situation of our country."

Barre blamed the defeat on neo-Gaullists led by Paris Mayor Jacques Chirac — a former premier under Giscard d'Estaing whose support for his former chief in Sunday's election was lukewarm. Barres accused them of playing "double or quits with the fate of the Fifth Republic."

Chirac, expected to emerge as the new opposition leader, today appealed to the center-right to unite behind one candidate in each legislative district to offer the strongest possible opposition in Parliament elections expected to be called by the new president for next month.

Barre said he would work to ensure a smooth transition.

Mitterrand's victory — in his third run for the Elysee Palace — ends two decades of conservative government that began under Charles de Gaulle and brings the first transfer of power from right to left under the Fifth Republic, which de Gaulle founded in 1958.

It also set the stage for new elections, expected in late June, for the 491-seat National Assembly, where the center right has a majority.
If Mitterrand does not win enough votes to support his program in the assembly, an institutional crisis could develop.

Mitterrand, who has promised profound economic change at home but continuity in foreign policy, takes office at the end of May, but the exact date is still unclear.

Begin Vows Syrians To Remove SAMs, Or Else

JERUSALEM (AP) —
Prime Minister Menachem Begin, ready to meet today with a U.S. special envoy trying to prevent a Syrian-Israeli clash, told a cheering crowd that Israel's air force is ready to act if the Syrians do not withdraw their missiles from Lebanon.

"And when our air force goes to work, it get results," the Israeli prime minister said Sunday in his first explicit promise to take military steps if diplomacy fails to budge the Syrian anti-aircraft missiles from eastern Lebanon.

Begin planned to make a final, formal appeal to the Syrians in a speech to Parliament today before meeting U.S. diplomatic troubleshooter Philip C.
Habib, Israel Television reported.

Habib flew to Israel today from Damascus, where he saw Syrian leaders Sunday.

After the meetings, the official Syrian news agency quoted Premier Abdel-Raouf Kasam as saying, "Threats and warnings will only boost Syria's firm stand."

President Reagan's envoy met for four hours with Syrian President Hafez Assad as the Arab nation's warplanes circled overhead, but the retired American career diplomat had no comment later on how long his mission might last or its likelihood of success.

"I have other views to examine and discuss elsewhere," Habib said. "I want a full opportunity to review the positions of all those involved."

Begin had hinted before that Israel was prepared to act if Syria did not withdraw the Soviet-made anti-aircraft missiles it deployed April 28 in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, the day after Israeli warplanes shot down two Syrian helicopters.

The prime minister's speech to a political rally of his Likud bloc supporters, however, was his most adamant stand on the issue to date. He did not set a deadline.

"If they don't remove the anti-aircraft missiles after the special and extraordinary efforts made willingly by the United States ... an order will be given to act," he said.

Begin said the United States and Israel agreed there must be a return to the status quo that existed in Lebanon before Syria introduced its three anti-aircraft missile batteries.
Israel contends that the missiles jeopardize its ability to monitor Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon.

Shimon Peres, leader of the opposition Labor Party, also said the Syrian missiles must be removed, but said diplomatic possibilities must be given the opportunity to work first.

"We will see what Habib has to suggest," Peres said in an Israel Radio interview.

Sources in northern Israel reported increasing tension, bomb shelter preparations and meetings to review security in Kiryat Shmona, Metulla and the Golan Heights, where residents were getting ready for a Syrian-Israeli fight.

Israeli military correspondents reported that Syria has not increased its troop strength in Lebanon since the start of the missile impasse.

A Syrian statement that followed Habib's talks in Damascus said: "President Assad reiterated Syria's point of view and its keen interest in preserving Lebanon's independence, unity and the principle of non-interference in Lebanon's internal affairs."

Habib's visit followed Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Georgiy M. Korniyenko's three-day stay in the Syrian capital.

Syria contends that the missiles were placed in Lebanon solely to protect its 22,000 soldiers there. The Syrian troops remained in Lebanon after the 1975-76
Lebanese civil war to police an armistice between Moslems and Christians.

The day before the surface-to-air missiles were brought into Lebanon, two Syrian helicopters operating against Christian militias in eastern Lebanon were downed by Israeli jets.

Although the Syrians originally intervened on the side of the Lebanese Christians, the Christians now say what was to be a peacekeeping force is more like an army of occupation.

The Israelis have vowed not to allow the superior airpower of the Syrians annihilate the Christian militias. The Syrians, in turn, say links between Israel and the Christians threaten Syria's national security.

Hints Of Compromise On Reagan Tax Cut Sounded

WASHINGTON (AP) —
With Senate Republicans poised to do their part for President Reagan's budget, House Democrats and administration officials are showing the first signs of moving toward a possible compromise on tax cuts.

In a weekend of conciliatory comments, the chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee offered to meet with Reagan; a top administration official said the president might be willing to consider a smaller tax cut;
and the White House's chief lobbyist on Capitol Hill advised Democrats to "get the best deal" they can now.

At the same time, the leader of conservative Democrats who broke party ranks to support Reagan's budget-cutting plan in the House last Thursday said the group will meet this week to search for a "consensus...a bipartisan tax plan."

The Senate, meanwhile, was resuming consideration of the budget today, and Majority Leader Howard H.
Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said he hopes to complete work on it Tuesday. It is unlikely the Republican majority will have any trouble delivering the plan intact.

House and Senate negotiators will have to work out differences between the two budget blueprints.

The big difference is a Senate-endorsed plan for a $7.9 billion reduction in annual cost-of-living increases for those covered by Social Security and Supplemental Security Income programs as well as railroad, federal and military retirees —

about 44.1 million people in all.

That's not in the House measure, and the administration has not endorsed it, either.

A letter from Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan and budget director David A.
Stockman to Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd reaffirmed the president's opposition to changing the yearly adjustment in Social Security, Health and Human Services Secretary Richard

S. Schweiker will come up with "a package of reforms designed to maintain the solvency" of the Social Security Trust Fund, they said.

New Chancellor Brewer Works Behind Scenes

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

It was a startling change in leadership for East Carolina University when, three years ago this summer, Dr. Thomas Brewer became chancellor of the school.

Brewer, a historian, maintains a low profile off campus, is relatively unknown in non-academic circles and rarely if ever is involved with public politics. He works behind the scenes, in planning, in administrative organization, in fund-raising.

His predecessor was Leo Jenkins, considered by some as a "living legend" who helped reshape the structure of higher education in North Carolina with his flamboyance, an outspoken desire for more support of ECU and his political ploys.

But while Brewer was unknown off campus, his presence became known quickly within the ECU community as he set about reorganizing the university structure to fit his own philosophy of operating an educational institution.

Two vice chancellors were abolished — he says funds for those jobs were needed elsewhere — to make way for two new positions: vice chancellors for institutional planning and advancement and for student life. The vice chancellor for health affairs was one of those eliminated, but Brewer now has the medical school dean reporting directly to him.
Another vice chancellor returned to teaching and the director of admissions retired, making way for two more Brewer appointments.

The result is a higher echelon oriented to Brewer's thinking.

Those changes created a flurry of resentment on the East Carolina campus. The opposition swelled at first but, apparently, has subsided as the new administration shows more and more evidence that it is succeeding as planned.

A special planning committee is nearing completion of a long-range growth policy for the university, which projects a student body expansion of less than 1 percent annually for the next decade.

Revisions have been made in the university's policies governing appointments and personnel.

Although state funding other than for the new medical school has stagnated, private giving has soared. In 1977-78, private giving was listed at $50,000 from 1,600 sources. It climbed to $74,000 from 5,000 alumni in 1980, and the goal for 1981 is $215,000 from 7,000 sources. Total giving to the university increased 59 percent from 1979 to 1980.

Offices have been created for such areas as resource development, annual giving and planned giving — wills, bequests and such. Brewer said the planned giving staff has identified $2 million in gifts earmarked for the university.

The Alumni Association last week increased its merit scholarship program by 25 a year. The association now supports 65 students in each class, and Brewer says he wants that figure increased to 100 a year.

Such financial support, he said in a recent interview, allows a university to provide a "margin of excellence" that is not available through basic funding.

"Chapel Hill is Chapel Hill because of its private support," Brewer said. He said it "is unlikely that we will be able to emulate Chapel Hill," contrasting the 200-year history of the University of North Carolina to 74 years for East Carolina, where "80 percent of our graduates have graduated in the last 20 years."

"Our alumni have just reached the age of success," Brewer said.

Brewer noted that any such changes "increase the anxiety level," but he expressed the opinion that the "reorganization has worked well."

"With any reorganization the only test is time — if it works.
We've been in it two years, and it has worked," Brewer said.

SAVE OUR BEES!

I am a beekeeping hobbyist and am appalled to learn every once in a while that certain people will destroy a swarm of bees they encounter as if they're some sort of threat. This might especially be true if the swarm is under the siding of a house or whatever. Please, Hotline, let people know that there are beekeepers in this area who will gladly come at once when called to lure a swarm away to a hive. Eastern North Caroli-

Prime Rate Up To 19.5 Percent

NEW YORK (AP) — Chase Manhattan Bank today raised its prime lending rate a half percentage point to 19.5 percent, reflecting higher borrowing costs for banks and soaring loan demand.

The move by the nation's third-largest commercial bank was not immediately followed by the rest of the industry, which boosted its prime lending rate to 19 percent from 18 percent just one week ago.

The prime rate last stood at 19.5 percent in late February, when it was declining from a record 21.5 percent peak hit in December 1980.
But the prime rate began rising in April after falling as low as 17 percent.

The prime rate is represented to be the interest banks charge for loans to their best-risk corporate borrowers, but banks have increasingly lent money at interest rates below the prime to valued customers.

Small-business borrowers pay one percentage point or more above the prime rate for their loans. Consumer loans are not based on the prime rate, although movements in the prime rate often signal trends in other financing charges.

Interest rates have soared in recent weeks as the Federal Reserve Board has tightened its credit reins in an attempt to slow the growth of the nation's money supply in its fight against inflation.

Although the money supply declined sharply in the latest reporting week, its growth still remains above Fed targets. Too rapid growth in the funds readily available for spending may heighten inflation.

Dedicate Gift Fountain Thousands Graduated In N.C.

DEDICATED... to the glory of God and honoring Mrs. Mattie Moye Gaylord, a fountain was dedicated by the First Christian Church yesterday. Pictured with Mrs. Gaylord (second from right) are Dr. Will Wallace, Mother's Day was chosen by the First Christian Church here for the dedication of a fountain given the church in honor of Mrs. Mattie Moye Gaylord by her daughter and son-in-law, Virginia and W. M. (Booger) Scales.

The fountain, situated in front of the church, was designed by Loddie Bryan Jr., a Raleigh architect, after the idea was conceived by church members, Sarah Sugg and Myrtis Evans. Its design has religious significance, church minister, Dr. Will Wallace, said. Its water symbolizes the living water; its three Christ; and the inscribed stone tablets, the "I Ams" of Christ.

Mrs. Gaylord is the longest living member of the congregation, having been a member since 1901, Dr. Wallace pointed out.

House Tops 1,000 Mark In New Bills

By SAM D. BUNDY
N.C. House of Representatives

Bills are still being dropped in the hopper. The House has gone over the thousand mark with 1001 bills and the Senate with 532, for a total of 1,533.

The big issue in the House this week was S. B. 100 and S. B. 101 dealing with interest rates. The banking industry lobbied long and hard for the bills, which tie the interest rate to the Treasury Notes plus six percent. For example, if the T-Notes are quoted at 15 percent, the banks can charge 21 percent, and if the T-Notes should fall to 10 percent, then the banks could charge 16 percent. In short, a six percent spread would prevail. The main issue round which most of the debate centered was the fact of a 16 percent floor under which the interest rate could not fall. For example, if T-Notes were quoted at eight percent, then the set percent spread would make the interest rate only 14 percent. The banking industry did not want this because it would cause the interest rate to fall below 16 percent. Many of us

By The Associated Press
Thousands of college students across North Carolina marched off into the future this weekend, armed with new diplomas and varied advice from commencement speakers.

The advice ranged from a warning on the dangers of an inordinate fear of communism to a call to "remember what your institution has done for you."

Duke University, the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, Bennett College, Western Carolina University, Pembroke State University, Guilford College, Fayetteville State University, Atlantic Christian College and Elizabeth City State University were among the schools presenting graduation ceremonies.

At Duke, 2,200 graduates received degrees and heard 1947 Duke graduate and Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist William Styron warn the United States not to strike out in aimless terror against communism as it has done in the past.

"For free men, a hatred of communism should be as natural and vital a response as breathing air," said Styron. "But between hatred of communism and fear of it, there is a large and consequential difference. Fear of communism has more often than not poisoned our roots."

Styron won the Pulitzer Prize in 1967 for his novel "The Confessions of Nat Turner."

Styron pointed to the Vietnam War as an example of fear of communism. "Thousands and thousands died utterly futile deaths, or returned home maimed and brutalized in body and spirit," he said.

Duke President Terry Sanford conferred honorary degrees to the following:

— Gwendolyn Brooks, poet and the first black Pulitzer Prize-winner; doctor of letters.

— Laurance S. Rockefeller, a force behind the creation of the Smoky Mountain National Park; doctor of humane letters.

— Edward H. Levi, former U.S. attorney general; doctor of laws.

— Dr. Philip H. Abelson, physicist; doctor of science.

— Dr. Harry Eagle, famous cell biologist; doctor of science.

— Dr. Gerald Holton, Harvard professor of physics; doctor of laws.

— Dr. Clifton R. Wharton Jr., chancellor of the State University of New York; doctor of laws.

At UNC-Greensboro, former New York Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman told 1,927 graduates that American women need the protection of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment.

"You can make North Carolina the 36th state to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment," she said. "You can tell the country in this way that the people of North Carolina respect and value women in this state and the women of this nation."

At Bennett College in Greensboro, Elizabeth Koontz, the assistant superintendent of the state's Department of Public Instruction, said civil rights advances of the last 20 years are eroding.

Conservative politicians are declaring "open season on anyone who is not an Anglo-Saxon Protestant and of their way of thinking, no matter what that thinking may be," Ms. Koontz told the 72 graduates of the private black women's college.

At Western Carolina, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green pledged his support for the mountain region.

WCU and its special relationship with Western Carolina tomorrow, a non-profit corporation set up to research change in the region, are demonstrating "a form of integration that exceeds any that is based upon race or creed or other civil concerns," Green said.

"I see here the integration of a university into the life stream of a region and the transfusion into the university of the main current of your mountain society," Green told the 821 graduates.

Pembroke State University chairman John R. Jordan told 430 graduates that the school would strengthen new master's programs in elementary education and educational administration between now and 1985.

Jordan also said the university would be "called upon to do increasing work in the paramedical field."

At Elizabeth City State University, Dr. Therman E. Evans, assistant medical director of Connecticut General Life Insurance Co., urged 221 graduates to "get in step" with the natural and social order.

"Always remember what this institution has done for you," he said.

Serve CIA And Soviet

LINDSBORG, Kan. (AP)

— The Lenin State Library in Moscow has four weeks to peruse a book called "The Atomic Age." Then the book is due back on the shelves of the Bethany College library.

The Soviet request for the book was one of two unusual requests recently for volumes held by the tiny Kansas school, says librarian Dixie Lanning. The other, from the CIA, was for an article on Islamic education.

The requests came through computerized interlibrary loan systems.

The volume borrowed by the Lenin library contains no A-bomb plans or other secrets, but instead is a book about art and design in the 1950s. What does it contain?

"Oh, pictures of Howard Johnson's restaurants, things like that," Mrs. Lanning said. "It's not a very large or sophisticated book. I'm afraid they may be disappointed."

The request for the book was forwarded to Bethany from the library at the university of Kansas. The volume was sent airmail to Moscow, and the library absorbed the $4.20 postage cost as its contribution to international relations.

Redford Hails Mormon Stand

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Actor Robert Redford, who owns a mountain ski resort east of Provo, Utah, says the Mormon Church's opposition to basing the proposed MX missile system in the state is a healthy sign of a return to a "divine stewardship" of the land.

In a telephone interview published Sunday in the Salt Lake Tribune, Redford said the church's stand "is a gesture to preserve, on a moral basis, the integrity of the quality of our lives."

Urge Teachers 'Skip School'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Association of Educators is urging teachers to take a day off from teaching Tuesday and help lobby the Legislature for more pay and smaller class sizes.

Volunteers Recognized

Mildred Manning has been a volunteer at Pitt County Memorial Hospital six and a half years. Ann Stalls has donated 2,250 hours of volunteer service to the hospital.

Manning, Stalls and 45 other volunteers recently were honored with a banquet in recognition of their service to the hospital.

The Greenville Service League was cited for more than 30 years of service.

General Director Jack Richardson thanked the volunteers for "sharing their friendly personalities and time with patients and staff."

"Our volunteers provide indispensable services to the hospital and the community," he said. "As a volunteer and a citizen, you help us make our hospital a better one for the patients who come to us for care."

During the banquet, Richardson and Executive Director M. E. Gilstrap awarded certificates of appreciation to Manning, Stalls, Service League members and 19 other volunteers who have contributed more than 100 hours each during the past year. The others included Ina Venters, 955 hours; Jean Weaver, 470 hours; Juanita Elks, 385 hours; Gene Tripp, 380 hours; Jack Herring, 350 hours; Selma Walker, 200 hours; Susan Mills, 150 hours; Mary Pope, 150 hours; Edythe Price, 150 hours; Hila Johnson, 135 hours; Rita Ayscue, 120 hours; Kay Minges, 120 hours; Linda Parker, 115 hours; Marjorie Angstadt, 110 hours; Mark Blahove, 100 hours; Christine Dillon, 100 hours; and Donnell Staton, 100 hours.

Couple Unites In Marriage Saturday

Donna Faye Grimes and Eric Thomas Pollard, both of Greenville, were united in marriage Saturday at three o'clock at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. Dr. James H. Bailey performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raby J. Grimes of Washington. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jack Soltis of North Kingsville, Ohio and Mr. Troy Pollard of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore her sister's gown, a formal length beige organza over taffeta featuring a Victoria neckline of antique lace edged in ruffled cluny lace and Venice lace trim. The gown was enhanced by a bib effect of antique lace outlined in ruffled cluny lace and Venice lace flower appliques centered with pearls. The long fitted lace sleeves were entirely beaded in the same pattern with ruffled cuffs of cluny lace. The princess line gown featured an attached cathedral train with hemline bordered in a deep ruffle flounce of scalloped antique lace and sprays of floral lace appliques centered with pearls. She wore a fingertip mantilla with beige antique lace held by A Camelot cap of matching lace and beaded with pearls. She carried a bouquet of miniature pink carnations, lavender bachelor buttons and baby's breath and ivory lace streamers attached to an ivory and gold lace fan.

Mrs. Nancy Mayo, the bride's sister of Seminole, Okla., was honor attendant. She wore a printed violet, off-shoulder, peasant style gown. She carried a bouquet of miniature carnations, jack frost, mums and daisies attached to a bamboo fan with attached pink streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sarah Smiley of Washington and Sharon Bryan of Elizabethtown. They wore dresses and carried bamboo fans with attached lavender streamers styled identically to that of the matron of honor.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of mauve pink knit. The sleeveless gown featured a V-neckline with an overlay drape of matching mauve chiffon. The mother of the bridegroom wore a blue ice, crystal pleated chiffon gown, featuring a sleeveless bodice with a V-neckline with a cape effect extending to the elbow.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Gary Pollard, the bridegroom's brother of Raleigh, and John Grimes, the bride's brother of Chocowinity.

A program of nuptial wedding music was provided by Doug Newell, organist, and Mrs. Susan Bell, who sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Wedding Prayer."

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at Brook Valley Country Club. The wedding tables were covered with white lace cloths with pink floor length underlays with lace borders. A centerpiece of spring flowers was used on the bride's table and a variety of spring flowers decorated the reception area. Lisa Grimes, sister of the bride, presided at the register. Betty Grimes, the bride's sister-in-law, cut the wedding cake and Donna Latham, the bride's aunt, poured punch. A rehearsal dinner, given by the bridegroom's parents,

Knowledge Can Be Wonderful

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Ten years ago I gave birth to a daughter out of wedlock. I was very young and decided that my child was entitled to a better life than I could give her, so I gave her up for adoption.

Even though I subsequently married and have been blessed with two more daughters to love and raise, Mother's Day is the hardest day in the year for me. Not only was I unable to keep my firstborn, I know nothing about what kind of person she is; indeed I don't even know if she is alive.

Abby, you could do a tremendously important service if you would print this request to all mothers of adopted children:

Once a year, on Mother's Day (or on your child's birthday, Thanksgiving, New Year's or any day at all) write to the agency that placed your child with you and provide updated information about your child's development, interests, activities, and a little about your family life if you are willing. Request that your letter be forwarded to the child's natural mother. No identities need be revealed.

Believe me, Abby, for a mother who has had no word of her child for 10 years (or five or 15), there could be no greater Mother's Day gift.

MOTHER OF TWO PLUS ONE

DEAR MOTHER: Thank you for a wonderful suggestion. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am a new mother whose heart is overflowing with gratitude to a 15-year-old girl I have never seen. I understand that she is a beautiful, intelligent person who became pregnant accidentally and decided on her own that her baby should have a better life than she was able to provide, so she put it up for adoption.

As soon as our son is able to understand, I shall tell him about his "real" mother and what a courageous person she is.

In the meantime, I pray daily for her well-being and good fortune. Sign me . . .

BLESSED IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR BLESSED: Thank you for an appropriate letter following Mother's Day. I agree that giving up a child for its own good is the ultimate in unselfishness. God bless those mothers who did.

I hope that you, and all other adoptive mothers who share your view, will act on the above suggestion.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed IMPATIENT SISTER complaining because another nun kept bothering her for help with crossword puzzles interested me. May I offer a solution?

I worked with several women who were crossword puzzle freaks. When they'd come to me for help, I'd ask to see the cross clues, then I proceeded to fill in the squares in ink — and always wrong!

In a matter of seconds the puzzle was unworkable. Of course, I always apologized for my "mistakes," but I soon had the reputation of being a "Dumb Dora" who ruined puzzles, so nobody came near me with one after that.

NOT-SO-DUMB DORA

DEAR NOT: To deliberately ruin a crossword puzzle while pretending to be "dumb" is hardly ethical conduct. Better to be thought impatient than improper.

Optical Topics

Senior citizens often complain about watering and tearing of the eyes. This situation usually occurs when the eyelids lose some of their muscle tone and no longer rest flush against the eyeball. The moisture which covers the surface of the eye is normally drained through a thin tube. The opening is located at the inner corner of the lower lid. The condition is sometimes temporarily solved by using a type of tape. A simple operation will usually resolve the situation permanently. Another possible reason for excessive tearing is that the tube which carries away the tears may be blocked. This, too, is generally easily corrected.

Major Reagan Victory

There can be no doubting the impact of President Reagan's victory in the House of Representatives last week which saw the approval of his general budget proposals.

Democrats joined Republicans in adopting a $689 billion budget for the fiscal year 1982. It projects a $31 billion deficit, assuming a tax cut proposed by the president is enacted.

The victory has to be significant because it puts a lid on the growth of the federal government. There can be little doubt that was what the American public was telling the leaders in last year's elections. Democratic members of the House read the message and heeded it in voting for the administrations proposals.

It is not going to be all that easy, however, when the actual cuts are considered. Many worthwhile programs will be affected and individual congressmen are going to find it difficult to vote for cuts which specifically affect their constituents.

Book May Shed Some Light

Washington is talking now about the book by Joseph A. Califano, former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in the cabinet of former president Carter.

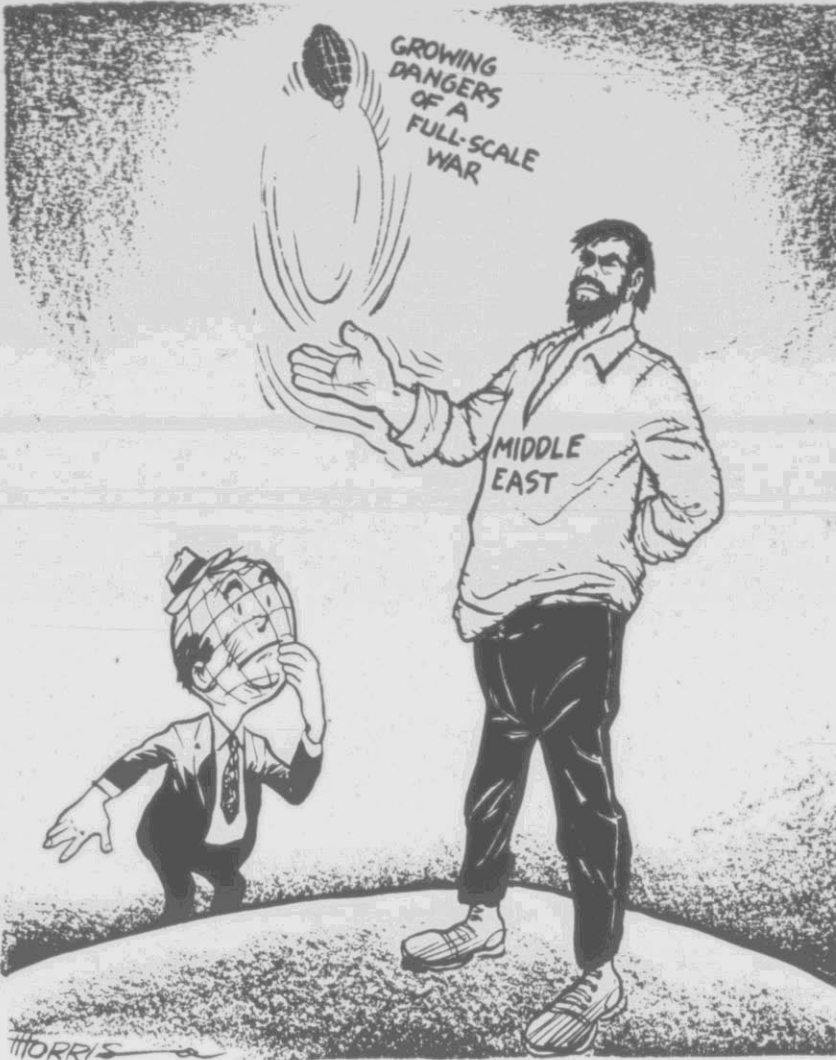

Califano, who was fired by Carter, sees the former president as in trouble from the beginning of his term. He said the administration "lacked cohesion" and was "obsessed" by leaks to the press.

Califano also claims that the president upbraided Andrew Young, who was eventually to be removed as ambassador to the United Nations.

The book, entitled "Governing America: An Insider's Report from the White House and the Cabinet," will be published May 29.

It will be an interesting and critical book on the four years President Carter spent in the White House. It cannot be taken as the perfect account of the Carter years, of course, given Califano's abrupt departure from the cabinet. It may, however, shed some light on what went wrong in the Carter administration to bring about his resounding defeat in 1980.

PRETTY UNNERVING PASTIME!

BY ART BUCHWALD

Jas. Whistler's Mom

Things have changed since the days when James Whistler did his famous portrait of his mother in 1871.

If he were painting it today, this is how the conversation might go:

"Okay, Mom, just sit in this straight chair over here. I'm going to make you famous."

"How come I only see you when you want to paint me?"

"Aw' come on, Mom, don't start that again. I've been busy at the advertising agency. I call you once a week. Isn't that enough?"

"You know I play tennis on Sunday at the club. It's the only chance I have to get some exercise. Please, Mom, I don't have much time."

"Don't you think I ought to put on a nice dress if you're going to paint me?"

"The one you're wearing is perfect. Here put on this lace hat, and face the window. I want to do you in profile."

ART BUCHWALD

"Are you ashamed to do me full face?"

"No, but I want something different. This is for the 'Mother McGarry's Home Made Pie' campaign. It will appear in magazines and newspapers all over the country."

"Why don't you paint Mother McGarry?"

"There is no Mother McGarry. The company's owned by a conglomerate out of St. Paul. Okay, Mom, hands on the lap, and feet on the stool."

"I thought you were going to paint me. What are you doing with a camera?"

"I'm taking Polaroid pictures, because I can only give you one sitting. I'll work from the photos at my office."

"You mean this will be the only time I get to see you?"

"Mom, just look at the window and don't talk. I want to get a beautiful, motherly expression on your face. Don't smile, for heaven's sakes!"

THIS AFTERNOON

Where The $$ Go

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Listening to reports from the governor's office, Department of Transportation and General Assembly of late, you would think that every penny of that complicated formula for increasing the Highway Fund would be pumped directly into asphalt, concrete and steel.

Actually, a relatively small portion of the state's Highway Fund winds up on the roads. Like all government programs, most of the spending goes for personnel, and various personnel supports such as fringe benefits, supplies and equipment, office space, and such.

Much has been made of the 346 percent hike in asphalt paving over the last 15 years; of the 327 percent jump in concrete prices; of steel costs climbing 400 percent; and of gravel, up 261 percent.

But the real costs are in personnel and administrative services in the Department of Transportation which grab 84 cents of every Highway Fund dollar spent. Of course, say the experts in transportation, those expenses are essential to building and maintaining the roads — you have to provide the people, the planning, the engineering, the research, and all the administrative backups before a mile of road gets paved or repaired.

Review

Still, it is fascinating to review as much as possible the actual spending practices of the $460 million budget of the Department of Transportation, and ponder how the $200 million-plus would be applied.

A great deal of creative bookkeeping goes into producing the Department of Transportation budget, making it difficult to pull out figures which are genuine in many cases, but with considerable expert help from fiscal analysts and veteran budget-readers, this is a fair summary of Highway Fund spending at this time:

Personnel has remained relatively stable for 10 years, running from 12,399 in 1970 to 12,301 this year. Plus some 1,500 temporary employees.

BILL NOBLITT

That is just for the highways. Another 1440 highway patrolmen, plus 1,464 in the division of motor vehicles, and 25 in the governor's highway safety program push the total to 15,205; with vacancies and contingencies allowing the figure to stabilize at 15,259. At an average salary of $12,000 yearly, this takes up the biggest chunk of Highway Fund money — $183 million.

State employees get fringe benefits such as retirement, merit pay, health insurance and social security contributions generally amounting to another 20 percent of salary. The actual budget figure in "reserves and transfers" is $37 million.

Then, if the General

Assembly comes up with a five percent pay hike, add $9 million for a grand total of $229 million annually.

Those personnel costs are spread throughout the various budget categories and make up the bulk of the costs in such programs as general administration, $15.6 million; highway division administration, $24.5 million; the Highway Patrol costing $45 million; and division of motor vehicles costing $35 million.

Shuffle

There is a neat budget maneuver in the equipment category. That's a $60 million

Other Editors Say Thomas Pearsall

(Greensboro Daily News)

The death of Thomas J. Pearsall at 78 in Rocky Mount ended the career of an influential leader in North Carolina politics during the early years of public school desegregation.

This former state House speaker and attorney-farmer-businessman played a key role in North Carolina's decision, not to stand in the schoolhouse door over the U.S. Supreme Court's Brown decision. His moderate leadership, working with Gov. Luther Hodges Sr. helped North Carolina avoid violence and massive resistance typical of neighboring southern states.

Some critics thought it slowed the pace of Tar Heel school desegregation. In retrospect it's difficult to see how confrontation and possible violence resulting in closed schools could have served good purpose.

The Daily News supported the Pearsall Plan, even though parts of it later were declared unconstitutional. We did so because we agreed with former Gov. Terry Sanford that it represented "a very liberal approach, given the times, that helped North Carolina" move toward integrated schools. It allowed desegregation to begin in those areas where it could be accomplished peacefully. It also provided "safety valves" for closing schools which, though never used, helped North Carolina get through difficult times.

"We had to buy time and let emotions subside," Pearsall said of his plan in later years. "Almost everyone in the state wanted to close the schools, but a lot of people had fought, bled and died to keep the schools open, and we were not going to let them close."

In retrospect, achievements spawned by the Hodges-Pearsall leadership contributed to the cause of good race relations. By providing alternatives the Pearsall Plan dramatized the futility of total defiance. It kept the state's eyes turned more toward the future than the past.

That it did with minimum discord must be attributed, in great part to the persuasiveness and good-faith integrity of Tom Pearsall. During his distinguished career, Pearsall touched many civic endeavors of enormous importance — expansion of the UNC education system, the Research Triangle Institute and N.C. Wesleyan College.

But the endeavor which most challenged this genial, compassionate man was the plan which bore his name. In the long run it represented responsible leadership in which North Carolina can take pride.

FATHER'S BUSINESS

"I must be about my Father's business."

This is the first recorded utterance of Jesus. The last recorded utterance was, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." Attending to his Father's business had led to the cross.

It is well for us to remember that attending to the Heavenly Father's business always involves the cross in some way or other. The Father's business for you and me means something more than believing a creed and attending church and keeping up our pledged contributions. It means carrying the spirit of Christ into everything we do. It means lighting a flame of love in the home. It means fighting the good fight of righteousness against the host of evil forces which beset all communities. It means pondering the Word of God every day in order to let its wisdom sink into our minds and souls.

"I must be about my Father's business," said the Lord. And we must follow his example. — Elisha Douglass

Tobacco Is Risky Field

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Where there's tobacco smoke, there's a danger of political fire.

Joseph A. Califano Jr. started one while he was working for Jimmy Carter and for a while, it seemed, that administration debated itself on the health dangers of cigarettes.

There is none of that in the Republican administration. President Reagan, who quit cigarettes long ago in favor of jellybeans, is not going to tangle with Southern conservatives by threatening cuts in tobacco subsidies, let alone an administration campaign against smoking.

He needs those Southern votes in Congress. His budget would require tobacco farmers to pick up the cost of grading and inspection programs, about $8 million a year. It would not reduce the tobacco price-support program, which isn't very expensive anyway. According to the Agriculture Department, the net cost of tobacco subsidies between 1937 and 1980 totaled only $56.7 million.

"If you did away with the program, the price of tobacco might be reduced," said Agriculture Secretary John R. Block. "With cheaper tobacco in the country more people would smoke more and what have we accomplished?"

Not that Carter commissioned the Califano anti-smoking campaign. By Califano's account, he launched his crusade against cigarettes after the president told him that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare should intensify preventive health programs.

As secretary, Califano figured the anti-smoking campaign fit those instructions.

Califano tells the story in his new book, "Governing America," a less-than-complimentary account of the way the Carter administration worked when he was in the Cabinet.

Actually, he writes, he suggested an anti-smoking drive when he was puffing two packages a day as a White House aide to Lyndon B. Johnson. Califano says he recommended that Johnson propose legislation to ban cigarette advertising on radio and television.

That came later, in legislation Richard M. Nixon signed into law. Johnson wouldn't touch it.

"Perhaps Johnson, who was conscious that even he could fight only a limited number of battles with special interests, did not want to add the controversy of tobacco to his overriding quest for racial justice, which was then focused in the South," Califano says. "For no venture into preventive health care created more controversy than my anti-smoking campaign."

Califano says that even while he was putting the program together, the White House set about putting some distance between the president and the campaign. He contends that Carter's aides judged it too dangerous politically.

He quotes Carter as telling him in a telephone conversation on Feb. 6, 1978, "I think your decisions on smoking and on desegregation are correct," but that the politics were unfortunate.

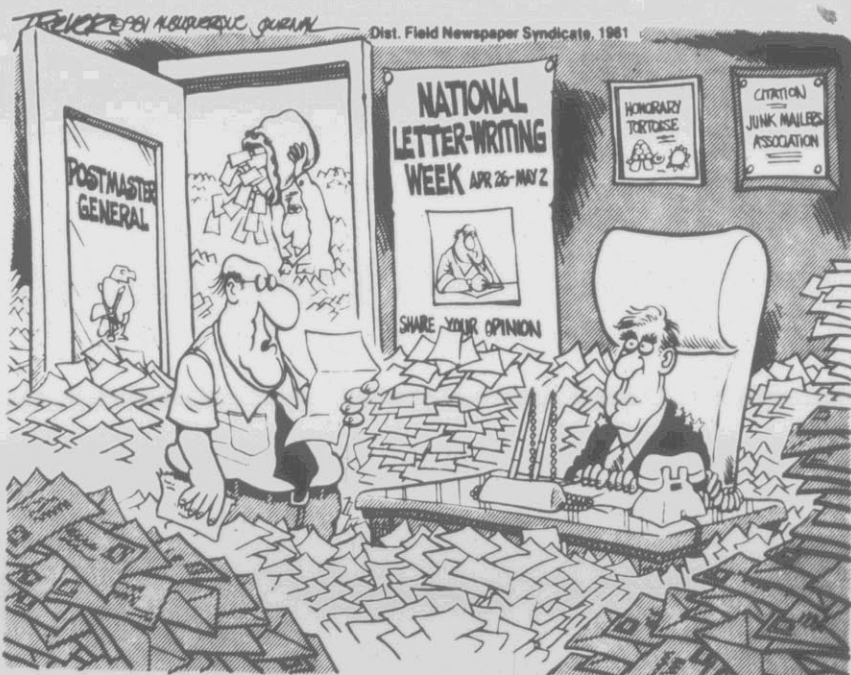

Later, he says, two leading North Carolina politicians met with Carter and urged him to have Califano "cool the rhetoric" on cigarettes, saying it could undercut any chance the Democrats had of unseating Republican Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina. Helms was re-elected in 1978.

According to Califano, they suggested that he campaign against alcohol instead of cigarettes.

While Califano was campaigning against cigarettes, Carter went to North Carolina to say in one speech that the administration would conduct "a balanced campaign to protect the health of the tobacco industry," and in another that the government would try "to make the smoking of tobacco even more safe than it is today."

By Califano's account, the president never told him to

No Answer On Social Security

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — What are we going to do about Social Security?

That exasperating question has been asked over and over again in the past few years, but no final answer has yet appeared.

In the vast family of government programs, Social Security is one of the severest problem children. Born, like many others, in President Roosevelt's New Deal, it has since grown and grown.

But along the way, it has developed a voracious appetite for money from the wage-earning segment of the public. And even though the feedings have been increased repeatedly, the experts report that Social Security is sick, and getting sicker all the time.

Some people argue that Draconian measures — severely scaling back the program or gradually eliminating it — are the only solution.

But no politician has ever found such ideas to be workable in the real world. Even President Reagan, elected with a presumed mandate to make heavy reductions in government spending, has taken pains to keep Social Security sheltered from the budget-cutting ax.

The millions of Social Security recipients represent a powerful political force, quick to flex their muscles whenever threatened.

And who is to say that people who have contributed to the system for years don't "deserve" fair treatment when their turns come to start collecting from it?

Indeed, the defenders of the system say it has made a major positive contribution to American society, saving countless people from the fear of winding up in the poorhouse.

The Social Security system is sound in principle and, of all alternatives, is the best structure of income support for the United States," a commission appointed by Congress recently concluded.

If we want to keep it, however, we're going to have to pay for it. During President Carter's administration, sharp increases in the payroll tax that supports it were enacted. Yet a crisis still looms.

"In the short term, the Old Age and Survivors Income fund is likely to become insolvent in 1982, if Congress does not take action," says Buck Consultants, a New York employee benefits consulting firm.

"In the long run, the 'graying of the population' could lead to prohibitively high tax rates to keep the system in the black."

Because of wide fluctuations in birth rates, the "youth explosion" that occurred in the two decades or so after World War II is over. Now the average age of Americans is rising, shifting the Social Security balance steadily away from the contributing side of the system to the receiving side.

"It is clear that taxes must be increased or benefits decreased or both in order for the Social Security System to make a go of it financially over the long run," Buck said.

"The trick is to find the right blend of tax increases and benefit decreases that will be politically palatable and yet put Social Security on a sound footing."

Congress is now grappling with that task, considering a wide range of possible measures. One of the most prominent is a proposal to raise from 65 to 68 the age at which workers could retire and begin drawing full benefits.

Meanwhile, suggestions for changes in the system's structure pour in from all sides. As the debate continues, almost everyone agrees, the problems get worse.

"The resources of the United States are finite and the graying of the population is inexorable," Buck noted. "Some hard choices must be made."

Free Prisoners To Make Space

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — More than 500 minimum- and medium-security prisoners were released early from North Carolina prisons in the last two weeks in an effort to relieve overcrowding, state officials say.

State Correction Department spokesman Stuart W. Shadbolt said Saturday that about 435 prisoners were released the last week in April and that 100 to 150 were released last week.

About 150 medium-security prisoners were moved last week from the overcrowded Central Prison in Raleigh to other units where space became available because of the early releases, Shadbolt said.

All inmates released early were considered low-risk prisoners who had exhibited good behavior and were within 90 days of their scheduled release dates, officials said.

Cars Collide On Memorial

Cars driven by Gary Mitchell Best of Rocky Mount and Stanley Eugene Nichols of Route 4, Greenville, collided about 1 p.m. yesterday on Memorial Drive, one-tenth of a mile north of the Third Street intersection.

Police Department investigators, who made no charges, estimated damage from the mishap at $2,100 to the Best car and $1,900 to the Nichols vehicle.

"I sacrificed and sent you to art school so someday you'd be doing paintings for phony homemade pies?"

lay off the campaign. But Califano writes that Carter told him it was something to "keep off my desk and on your own desk."

He says he kept it there.

Under a policy approved last month by Gov. Jim Hunt, the prison system will review each month all low-risk prisoners within 90 days of their scheduled release. Eligible prisoners are those in medium or minimum custody with no infractions within the preceding 90 days.

Prison officials will decide whether to restore to the prisoners "good time" — time off for good behavior — that may have been revoked because of infractions. Good time is earned every month and applies to a prisoner's release date.

"In some of the cases, if there were no infractions within the last 90 days and the inmate appeared to pose no other threat to the community, the good time was restored," said Ralph D. Edwards, director of the Division of Prisons.

Edwards said 1,200 prisoners were reviewed last month. While prison officials at every level are involved in the reviews, the State Paroles Commission makes the final determinations, he said.

Prison officials hope the early releases will reduce overcrowding in the system that has caused the Department of Correction to overspend this year's budget by $2 million to $3 million, Edwards said. Officials also want to relieve tension caused by overcrowding, especially as hot weather approaches, he said.

Before the program, Central Prison housed 1,350 inmates in a complex designed for 900, Edwards said.

Survey Planned By Bureau

The Census Bureau will conduct a survey in this area to find out how many Americans are holding more than one job, how many are working overtime and the amount of overtime pay.

The household sample will be taken during the week of May 18-22 by Mrs. Janet P. Conway of Greenville.

Fifth Child Graduates From NCCU

Grossie Ella Smith, daughter of Emanuel and Janice Smith of Winterville, is graduating from North Carolina Central University with a BS degree in social services during May 16 commencement exercises. She is the last of five Smith children to graduate from NCCU.

The father Emmanuel Smith, a part-time barber and employee of Cox Trailer Company, has worked two jobs for the past 30 years.

The mother Janice Smith, a machine operator, still remembers hard times as she made sacrifices throughout the years. She says the liberated woman's spirit was a part of her daily life as she held down a full-time job and also served faithfully her home church.

"It's very hard to put my feelings into words at a happy time such as graduation. I'm more proud than I can ever say," Mrs. Smith reflected.

Band Boosters To Held Meet

The Greenville City Schools Band Booster Club will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. at E.B. Aycock Jr. High. The advisory committee will meet at 7 p.m.

The meeting will feature a concert by the Aycock Jr. High School Band under the direction of James Rodgers. A short business meeting will follow. The following new officers will be introduced: president, Bruce Thompson; vice president, Billy Davis; secretary, Ruth Mills; treasurer, Adele Prescott; Rose High representative, Wilma Dupree; Aycock representative, Edith Wilbourne; Middle School representative, Jo Ann Murphy.

Tax Freedom Day

Today may seem like any other working day. But looked at one way, it's the first day of the year that your earnings are all your own. Yesterday was Tax Freedom Day. To understand this idea, imagine that the average worker in the U.S. had to pay all of his annual taxes before he could start to earn money for himself. According to the Tax Foundation, if a worker started to pay his taxes on January 1, he would have to give up the full amount of every paycheck until May 10 to finish paying his 1981 federal, state, and local taxes. In other words, the average worker in 1981 will pay in taxes the equivalent of his first 130 days' salary. That's six days longer than in 1980 and 12 days longer than in 1970.

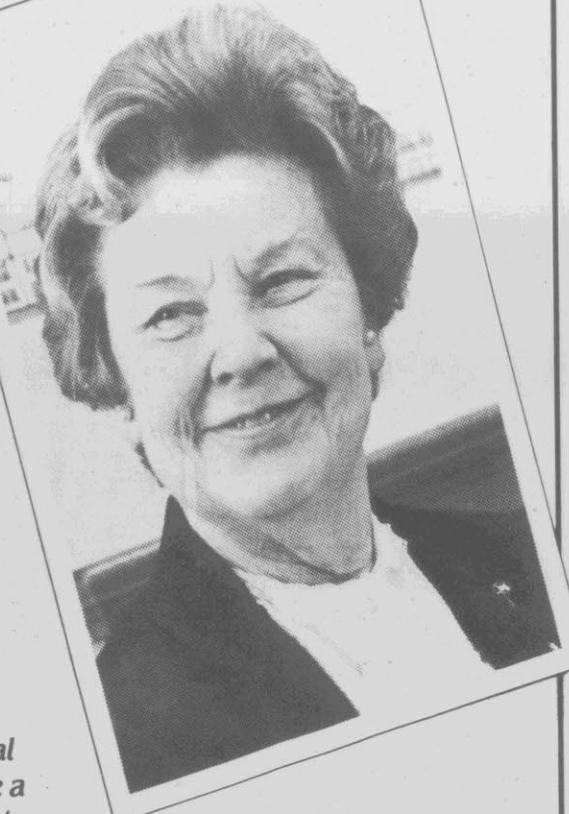

DO YOU KNOW — Which amendment to the U.S. Constitution legalized federal income taxes?

Garwood Trial Starting Today

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Prosecutors in the child-molestation case against convicted collaborator Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood say they won't force several of Garwood's alleged victims or their parents to testify when his trial begins today.

Garwood is charged with sexually molesting a 7-year-old girl, who is expected to testify about an incident that allegedly occurred Aug. 7, 1980 as Garwood was walking her home. The trial was scheduled to begin at 10 this morning.

The 35-year-old Indiana man became the only American soldier convicted of collaboration with the enemy in February after spending some 14 years in Vietcong prison camps.

Now he faces life in prison if convicted on charges of first-degree sexual offense, attempted rape, attempted first-degree sexual offense and taking indecent liberties with a minor. Garwood has pleaded innocent to all charges and has been free on $10,000 bond.

District Attorney William H. Andrews said testimony by parents of other children allegedly molested by Garwood could be a key part of his case, but said he would not force them to testify.

"They are reluctant to cooperate because of all the publicity, reluctant to allow their young children to get involved in the case," he said. "I would be very hesitant to force these children to take part in the trial if they and their parents are opposed to it."

Andrews said he would not know until the trial began today whether the children or their parents would testify, and said he would not subpoena them if they chose not to.

He said the case against Garwood would be weaker without the testimony, but said, "That's just the way it will have to be if the parents say no."

Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse refused Thursday to order two young girls named in the case to submit to questioning by defense attorneys, ruling that North Carolina law does not require prosecution witnesses to undergo questioning by defense attorneys before a trial.

Garwood's attorneys, Vaughan Taylor of Charlottesville, Va., and Edward Bailey of Jacksonville, contended that the due-process clauses in the Constitution support their request. Defense lawyers have refused to discuss their case with reporters.

Andrews said there have been no negotiations between prosecution and defense lawyers and said he does not expect any plea-bargaining arrangements in the case.

Andrews said he is confident Garwood will be convicted. "His only defense, as far as I can tell, will be, 'I didn't do it,'" he said. "Unlike his military trial, I don't think there will be any psychiatric testimony. I think the whole thing will be over within a week."

During his lengthy court-martial, Garwood's attorneys presented testimony by several psychiatrists who contended that 14 years of imprisonment and brainwashing had driven Garwood insane. He has been undergoing psychiatric testimony in a Virginia hospital since the Feb. 13 conviction.

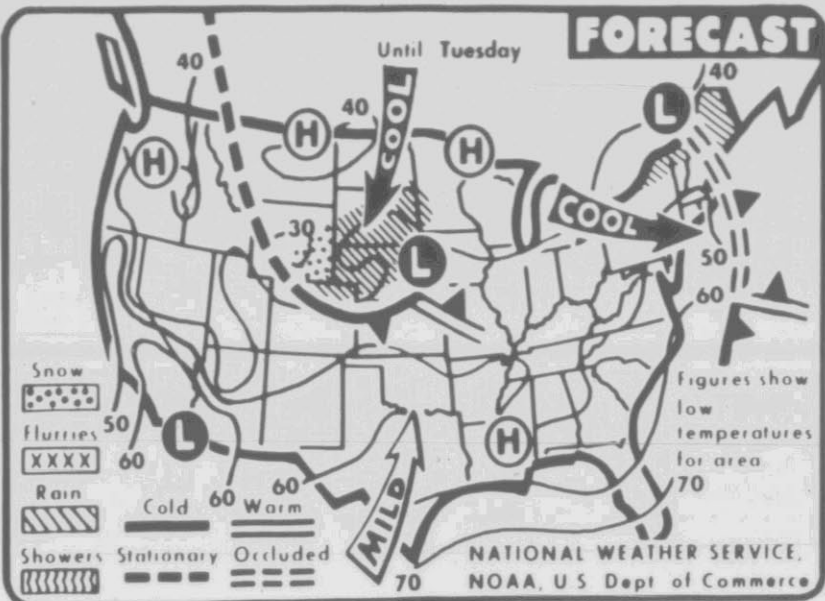

Fellow POWs testified during the court-martial that Garwood cooperated with his captors to the extent of becoming a "white Vietnamese." They said he wore the Vietcong uniform, indoctrinated other American prisoners and physically and verbally abused them.

Psychiatrists, however, said that Garwood had been brainwashed to such an extent that he was a "puppet" and a "monkey" of his captors.

The military judge dismissed a charged of desertion against Garwood, but he was convicted of collaboration and abusing a fellow POW. He is on leave pending review of the conviction, which carries a penalty of dishonorable discharge, demotion to private and forfeiture of pay and allowances.

Garwood was an emotionally troubled 19-year-old jeep driver when he disappeared into the jungles around Da Nang in 1965. He Thundershowers sweeping the state should end in the east tonight, followed by sunny skies and pleasant temperatures Tuesday, the National Weather Service reported today.

Scattered thundershowers today could reach severe limits over eastern areas by afternoon, but the water has been a welcome relief for dwindling water tables and smoldering forest fires.

High temperatures with a brisk south wind will reach into the low 80s this afternoon while 70s will be scattered elsewhere over the piedmont and coastal plain. The mountains will have some cooler 60s.

Clearing skies tonight might leave a few lingering showers along the north coast with low temperatures dipping into the 40s over mountains areas ranging to near 60 over the southeast.

A large storm moving northeast out of Ohio this morning had a trailing cold front cutting through western North Carolina and South Carolina.

This cold front contained numerous showers and thundershowers and was moving east to northeast at about 35 mph.

Promises More Aid To Colleges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush has told graduates at predominantly black Howard University that the Reagan administration will increase, not cut, federal aid to black colleges and universities. Bush, who did not discuss specifics of increased aid, said the intention is part of "the commitment of the Reagan administration to our nation's civil rights laws

Houston Defeats Boston, Evens Series At 2-2

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Coach Del Harris had the winning player combination, forward Robert Reid had the right pregame drill and the results erased Boston's chances of a quick kill in the National Basketball Association championship playoff series.

Harris used only six players in the brutal fourth game of the best-of-seven series Sunday and with Mike Dunleavy playing the catalyst's role with 28 points, the Rockets defeated the Celtics 91-86 to even the series at 2-2.

The series resumes in Boston Tuesday and will return here Thursday for Game 6.

Neither Rockets guard Calvin Murphy,

a super substitute off the bench throughout the playoffs, nor Allen Leavell got into the game. In fact, Bill Willoughby was the Rockets' only substitute.

"There was no poison there, no animosity that Murphy or Leavell did not play," Harris explained. "I would have used them if the situation called for it. Why mess up the chemistry if it's working?"

Dunleavy responded to the mixture by scoring 28 points, a personal playoff high, and Moses Malone, although battered beneath the backboards, scored 24 points and grabbed 22 rebounds.

Reid, meanwhile, held Celtic forward Larry Bird to eight points for the second straight game and said an embarrassing 94-71 loss to Boston Saturday did not make him tight about Sunday's game.

"I got up this morning, ate some Fruit Loops, watched Tarzan save Boy from an alligator on television and came down here to take my warmups," said Reid, who scored 19 points and grabbed 10 offensive rebounds. "When I saw Bird get the ball the first time, I thought it's time to keep it out of his hands."

The Rockets controlled the offensive rebounds 28-17 and won the overall rebounding 49-47, leading Boston Coach Bill Fitch to make a promise.

"We are going to do unto others as they have done unto us," Fitch said of the violent activity beneath the boards. "I think the rest of the series is going to be more physical than it has so far."

Reid said the Rockets respond better when the are in pressure situations.

"So we just told ourselves that this was Game 7 and if we lost there would be no tomorrow," Reid said. "Now we have a tomorrow. If we had lost today, it would have been tough to win three straight against the Celtics."

The Celtics and Rockets battled back and forth in the first half with neither team leading by more than four points and it ended at 50-50. Although Boston tied the scored several times, then never led after the first quarter.

Houston held a 10-point bulge with 5:20 to in the third quarter for the biggest lead of the game.

The Celtics struggled back in the closing minutes of the match, but Fitch said the Rockets never had a chance to break.

"We made a lot of mistakes when we were behind and didn't rally to get back into the game," Fitch said. "We didn't give Houston a chance to see if they would break if we came back. We didn't even bend them."

"We just have to hit the boards a lot better," said Cedric Maxwell, who led the losers with 24 points and 14 rebounds.

"We've put the pressure on ourselves now. We wanted to end it in Boston and we certainly don't want to come back down here behind 3-2."

Fitch said he's not worried about Bird's shooting performance in the playoffs, explaining: "Larry does enough things to help us win even if he's not hitting."

Fitch also wanted Houston to have some credit for the victory.

"I thought they played an excellent game," he said. "That's the best they've played in the four games. Now people will realize that it's going to be the great series we always thought it would be."

'Heady' Dunleavy Sparks Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — There's nothing fancy about Mike Dunleavy. He's not especially fast and doesn't jump particularly well. Basketball may come easily for some players, but there's hard work and plenty of sweat behind every move Dunleavy makes on the court.

Maybe that's why Houston Rockets Coach Del Harris is so happy to have Dunleavy on his team.

"He is a good, hard-nosed, coach's basketball player," Harris said of the gritty, 6-foot-3 guard from New York City. "Every coach in this league would like to have a Mike Dunleavy on his team. He is an extremely heady player and he knows what it takes to win."

Sunday it took outside shooting for Houston to win, and Dunleavy provided it. He hit 11 of 22 shots and scored a game-high 28 points as the Rockets beat the Boston Celtics 91-86 to tie the National Basketball Association championship series at two victories apiece.

"I haven't been looking for my shots in the playoffs," Dunleavy said. "Our strategy has been to go inside, so I haven't been shooting much. But before the game we talked about it and the other coaches and players said, 'If you take a few shots it will open things up inside for Moses Malone.'"

"So I came out looking to shoot a little more. I figured if I could get going, it would lift the team and make things easier for Moses."

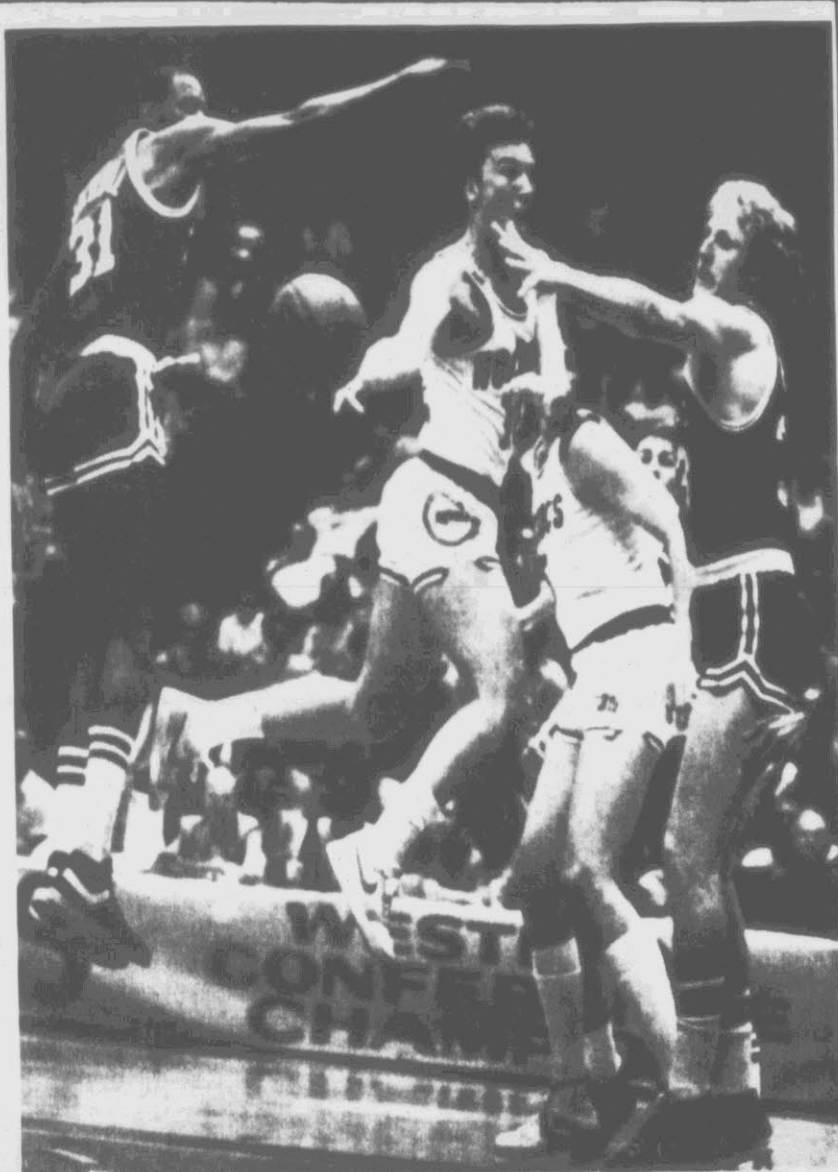

That's exactly what happened in the third quarter, when the Rockets pulled away from a 50-50 halftime tie by outscoring Boston 25-17. Dunleavy scored 13 points in the period and Malone eight.

"Dunleavy really had a great game," said Malone, who finished with 24 points and 22 rebounds. "When he's hitting those outside shots, it opens the middle for me."

While some may be surprised that the Rockets, only 40-42 during the regular season, are tied with the 62-20 Celtics in the best-of-seven title series which resumes Tuesday night in Boston, there was no such feeling in the Houston lockerroom.

"We belong in this series," declared Malone. "I don't think we had anything to prove, but if there was any doubt, it should be gone by now."

"We've got a lot of pride," said guard Tom Henderson. "It hurt to come home and lose like we did (94-71) Saturday. It was embarrassing to play like that in our own home. We had to show what we were made of, so we came out and played our game at our pace. When we do that, we can beat anybody."

Expos' Lea No Hits San Francisco, 4-0

By The Associated Press

You're not supposed to talk about a no-hitter in progress, so the baseball axiom goes.

Obviously the Montreal Expos didn't worry about breaking that cardinal rule Sunday.

"We talked about it a lot," said Charlie Lea. "My teammates knew it, and everybody in the ballpark knew, so there was no need to keep quiet."

At the end of the game, a lot of others knew it, too. Lea pitched the first no-hitter of the major league season, a 4-0 classic over the San Francisco Giants in the second game of a Sunday doubleheader.

"I don't think I ever got nervous," said Lea, who walked four batters and struck out eight. "I wanted to do it from as early as the third inning."

Lea almost lost the shutout in the eighth inning when he walked three batters, but he pitched out of trouble with the help of a double play.

"I was just tired," Lea said of his wild streak. "It's the longest outing I've had this year."

The 24-year-old right-hander, a native of Orleans, France, who lives in Memphis, Tenn., came into Sunday's game with an 0-1 record and inauspicious 7.36 earned run average. Last season, his first in the majors, he had a 7-5 record while being used as a spot starter.

Earlier, the Giants won the opener 5-1 as Enos Cabell and Darrell Evans whacked homers and Tom Griffin hurled a four-hitter.

Lea's spectacular performance was the first no-hitter in the majors since Los Angeles left-hander Jerry Reuss pitched one against the Giants on June 27 of last year. It was the third by a Montreal pitcher. Bill Stoneman had the other two — the first against Philadelphia in 1969 and the second against the New York Mets in 1972, both by 7-0 scores.

The Expos scored all their runs in the seventh inning, on a solo homer by Tim Wallach, a two-run double by Rodney Scott and an RBI double by Andre Dawson.

In the opener, Griffin, 3-2, walked two batters and struck out two on the way to his second complete game of the season, retiring 17 of the last 19 batters. He has won three straight games and eight of 11 career decisions against Montreal.

Astros 7, Reds 5

Jose Cruz drove in three runs and Craig Reynolds collected three hits, including a triple that set up the go-ahead run in a three-run third, as Houston defeated Cincinnati.

Right-hander Joe Niekro, 3-3, pitched five innings as the Astros snapped a two-game losing streak. Niekro, forced to leave the game when he hurt his right elbow while batting, was replaced in the sixth by Dave Smith. Smith was chased in the midst of a three-run Reds' ninth highlighted by Ken Griffey's RBI triple and Frank LaCorte came in to get the last out, recording his second save.

Padres 8, Phillies 4

Ozzie Smith's fielder's choice grounder in the sixth inning drove in the go-ahead run, and Joe Lefebvre slammed a three-run homer in the seventh to lead San Diego over Philadelphia.

Steve Mura allowed nine hits in six innings to gain his first triumph of the season after four defeats. Gary Lucas pitched four innings in relief to earn his fifth save. Larry Christenson was the loser.

Pirates 8, Cardinals 2

Dave Parker had two singles, a double and a homer, driving in three runs, as Pittsburgh beat St. Louis and handed Larry Sorensen, 4-1, his first NL setback. The victory by Pittsburgh, finished in the rain, was played in 42-degree temperatures in St. Louis as the Pirates salvaged the final game of a three-game series.

Dodgers 5, Mets 3

New York Mets third baseman Hubie Brooks tied a modern-day NL record by committing three errors in the fourth inning, opening the door for four unearned runs that helped Los Angeles beat New York.

The Dodgers, who sent 10 men to the plate in the fourth, registered the four runs without benefit of a hit and after the Mets had retired the first two batters. The three errors by Brooks tied a record held by nine others.

Cubs 5, Braves 5

Rain forced postponement of the Chicago-Atlanta game after they had played 14 innings and sat through two rain delays totaling one hour and 31 minutes. The Cubs had tied the game at 5-5 in the ninth when pinch-hitter Hector Cruz hit a two-out solo homer.

Strike Seems Imminent

NEW YORK (AP) — After two weeks without any bargaining, negotiators for the owners and major league baseball players were to return to the table today. But the chances of averting a May 29 strike deadline didn't appear any brighter than when they last talked.

"I'm not optimistic," said Ray Grebey, the owners' chief negotiator. "A year ago I said there would not be a strike. I had the sense of the bargaining — the issues and how they could be dealt with. This time I don't know whether there will be a strike."

Last year's one-year settlement allowed the owners to implement their own formula for the stumbling block issue of free-agent compensation, if the study group of two management officials and two players could not work out a satisfactory solution.

There was no workable solution, and the owners put into place their own system, prompting the players to exercise the option allowed them by last year's settlement. They could set a strike date, and they did.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, wondered about the validity of the owners' concern that the old compensation system — amateur draft choices — had skyrocketed salaries, in light of recent contract signings.

"In the last month or so, 21 clubs have signed 48 players to new contracts — large multiyear, guaranteed contracts, none of which had to be signed now," Miller said. "I'm

SOs Don't Keep Mendoza, Evans Off First Base

By The Associated Press

When you're hot, you're hot. Just ask Mario Mendoza of the Texas Rangers and Dwight Evans of the Boston Red Sox.

Both players wound up on first base after striking out Sunday. Baltimore catcher Dan Graham was charged with a passed ball on Mendoza's strikeout, which came in a five-run second inning that carried the Rangers to a 7-3 triumph over the Orioles. Evans fanned on a third-strike wild pitch by Toronto's Roy Lee Jackson to trigger a four-run 10th inning that gave the Red Sox a 9-5 victory over the Blue Jays.

"When you can get on base after you've struck out you know you're hot," said Boston Manager Ralph Houk.

In other American League action, the New York Yankees downed the Seattle Mariners 5-2, the Milwaukee Brewers pounded the Oakland A's 13-5, the Cleveland Indians trimmed the Minnesota Twins 5-1 and the California Angels nipped the Detroit Tigers 4-3. The Kansas City-Chicago game was rained out.

The usually slick-fielding Orioles committed a month's worth of mistakes against the Rangers as their five-game winning streak ended.

In a five-run second inning, Texas loaded the bases on a double by Bill Stein and singles by Leon Roberts and Jim Sundberg. Stein scored on a passed ball by Graham and Roberts came home on a wild pitch by loser Mike Flanagan.

Mendoza struck out but reached first when Graham couldn't handle the pitch for another passed ball.

Sundberg scored when Mendoza stole second and Graham's throw sailed into short right field for an error and two more runs came home when Bump Wills tripled and Mickey Rivers singled. That was enough for Danny Darwin to record his third consecutive victory.

"They got the breaks," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, "and that's the way it will be throughout the season. Some days you get the breaks and some you don't, but the team that takes advantage of them the most is the team that will be the contender."

Even one of Manager Don Zimmer's boners turned into a Texas run.

"I messed it up," he said of a second-inning play that saw Mendoza dashing home on what appeared to be a suicide squeeze only to have Bump Wills swing away ... and deliver a triple to right field. "I meant to give the squeeze sign and gave the hit-and-run by mistake."

"I was hoping he would hit the ball to right or up the middle," said Mendoza, his eyes wide. "I was praying, 'Don't pull it or I'll be dead.'"

Red Sox 9, Blue Jays 5

Evans, who homered in the first inning and threw out a runner at the plate in the eighth, led off the Boston 10th by striking out but reached first when the ball hit the plate and bounced to the backstop. A sacrifice and Carney Lansford's single, his fourth RBI of the game and Evans' fourth run scored, put the Red Sox in front 6-5. Lansford was caught stealing but Jim Rice and Tony Perez singled and Joe Rudi slammed his first home run of the year.

Yankees 5, Mariners 2

Third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez, starting his first game of the season, slammed home runs in his first two 1981 at-bats and Dave Winfield added a two-run shot as the Yankees snapped a three-game losing streak.

Rodriguez, who had appeared in only one previous game, subbed for the slump-ridden Graig Nettles. He got his first swing of the season with Barry Foote on base via a walk in the third inning and put Jerry Don Gleaton's second pitch over the left field fence. Willie Randolph followed with a single and one out later Winfield homered. Rodriguez connected again in the fifth inning as the Yankees handed Rene Lachemann, the Mariners' new manager, his first loss in five games.

Brewers 13, A's 5

Outfielder Mark Brouhard, recently recalled from the minors, homered, singled and drove in five runs to lead Milwaukee. The Brewers, who pounded out 16 hits, chased Oakland ace Mike Norris in the third inning, handing him his first defeat after six victories. Brouhard smacked a three-run homer in the second inning to start the scoring and added a two-run single in Milwaukee's five-run fifth. The triumph enabled the Brewers to snap a four-game losing streak while the loss was just the seventh in 31 games for the A's.

Indians 5, Twins 1

Andre Thornton capped a four-run fifth inning with a two-run single to support Wayne Garland's seven-hit pitching. Bo Diaz led off the fifth with a double and came around with the game's first run on singles by Dave Rosello and Tom Veryzer. The fourth straight hit, a single by Alan Bannister, loaded the bases and Larry Littleton made it 2-0 with his first major league run batted in, a sacrifice fly. Veryzer and Bannister moved up on an infield out and scored when Thornton singled, making it 4-0 and chasing Minnesota starter Jerry Koosman.

Angels 4, Tigers 3

Brian Downing's two-run homer with two out in the eighth inning capped a four-run California rally from a 3-0 deficit. Downing's fourth home run of the season came off reliever Aurelio Lopez, who had just entered the game. Starter Dave Rozema was sailing along on a five-hitter when Butch Hobson opened the eighth with a single. Rick Burleson singled with one out and the runners advanced as pinch-hitter Fred Lynn bounced out. However, Don Baylor singled to score Hobson and Burleson and also chased Rozema, bringing in Lopez to pitch to Downing.

USC Runner Wins 100, 200 At UCLA Meet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Sanford's goals are lofty but, considering his performances so far, not out of the realm of the possible.

"I think my ultimate goal is 9.8 seconds for the 100 meters, and a world record in the 200," Sanford said Sunday after he swept both sprints in the UCLA-Pepsi meet. The world records currently are Jim Hines' 9.95 in the 100 and Pietro Mennea's 19.72 in the 200.

Sanford, the world's top-rated sprinter in 1979 and a redshirt at Southern Cal this season, won the 100 in 10.05 seconds. He beat Stanley Floyd, last year's No. 1 sprinter, who was clocked in 10.10. Sanford then took the 200 in 20.20.

"I respect all the sprinters, but especially Stanley Floyd," Sanford said. "He's still the No. 1 sprinter in the world — until after 1981, when I hope James Sanford will be."

Sanford's two victories were among the highlights of the meet that also included Greg Foster's 13.10-second clocking in the 110-meter high hurdles, the second faster ever, and a prodigious long jump by Carl Lewis that turned out to be wind-aided.

Lewis, from the University of Houston, jumped 28 feet 3¼ inches, the second best ever, but the wind was .02 meters per second over the allowable 2.00. It was the top long jump ever at or near sea level (Bob Beamon's world record of 29-2½ came in the high altitude of Mexico City in the 1968 Olympics).

"I felt real good and everything seemed to go just right," Lewis said. "I tried to wait until the wind died down a little bit, but I guess I didn't wait quite long enough. Still, I'm pleased."

Lewis' jump cannot be entered in any official record books because of the wind.

Foster's clocking in the high hurdles shaved .12 seconds off his previous best, and he also beat rival Renaldo Nehemiah, the world record holder at 13.00, Nehemiah, making his first start of the season, finished third, and it marked the second year in a row Foster has beaten him in this meet.

C.B. Aycock Routs Rams

PIKEVILLE — Rusty Talton ripped two home runs and drove in five runs to lead Charles B. Aycock to a 14-4 decision over Greene Central Saturday night in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

The Falcons, now 13-8 overall and 11-5 in the ECC, jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first and increased it to 3-0 with a run in the second.

Talton then hit his first of two home runs, a two-run shot in the third, to spark a three-run inning that gave the Falcons a 6-0 lead.

One inning later, Talton was back again. This time his three-run homer helped the Falcons score seven runs in the fourth and take a 13-0 lead.

Aycock's final run came in the sixth. Greene Central, now 10-12 overall and 7-8 in the league, scored once in the sixth and three times in the seventh, but it was far from enough.

In the seventh, John Mayo walked, Richie Chase singled and Barry Tyndall reached on an error to load the bases. David Shirley singled home Mayo and Chase and Tony Barrow then singled home Tyndall for the Rams' three runs.

Chris Suggs led the Rams at the plate with two hits in three at bats. Kenny Grantham had three hits for Aycock.

North Pitt Rips Roanoke By 11-1

ROBERSONVILLE — North Pitt High School romped to an 11-1 baseball victory in a non-conference game against Roanoke Saturday night.

The Panthers got two-hit pitching from Bob Hemingway, who went the distance in claiming the win.

North Pitt scored a run in the first to take the lead. Gregory Briley doubled and scored when Ronnie House singled.

In the second, the Panthers pushed over a second run, insuring the victory. Elwood Ayers reached on an error, as did Richard Hedler. Ken Whitehurst then hit a sacrifice fly to score Ayers.

The Panthers added four more in the fourth, two in the fifth, one in the sixth and two more in the seventh. Roanoke got its only run in the bottom of the fourth.

Hemingway, Mike Brown and Hedler each had two hits to lead North Pitt. Both of Roanoke's hits were made by Mutt Smith.

Woody Hayes Satisfactory After Surgery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Former Ohio State football Coach Woody Hayes is listed in satisfactory condition after surgery to remove his gallbladder, a hospital spokesman said.

Hayes, 68, who had been suffering from a persistent chest cold, checked himself into Ohio State University Hospital for treatment on Wednesday. Doctors later discovered Hayes had gallstones, and hospital spokeswoman Nancy Grover said the gallstones were removed during the surgery Saturday.

Hayes has been a professor emeritus at Ohio State's Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation since being fired as coach following the 1979 Gator Bowl.

THE STANLEY CUP

Islanders Look To Repeat Against North Stars

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — In reaching the Stanley Cup finals, the defending National Hockey League champion New York Islanders have compiled an 11-2 record. Champions are supposed to do that.

On the other hand, a team that finishes ninth out of 16 playoff qualifiers would seem to have no business playing for the most coveted trophy in hockey.

Yet, here they are, the Minnesota North Stars, who will bring their phenomenal road show to the Nassau Coliseum for Tuesday night's first game of the best-of-seven series.

The North Stars are riding the crest of a near-perfect wave that has carried them further in postseason play than they have ever gone. Minnesota has an 11-3 playoff mark this spring, 6-2 on the road. And they've won all three of their series openers as visitors, a role they seem to enjoy.

"We don't go into anyone's building with fear," said North Stars' veteran forward Al MacAdam. "We've felt in every series that we're just as good as the other team, no matter where we're playing."

Minnesota managed ties in both of its regular season contests here — the Islanders won twice in Minnesota — and the knowledge of the North Stars' success in the Islanders' home is not lost on the champions.

"Any team that gets this far is a great team," said Islanders left wing John Tonelli. "We know we'll be pressed all over the ice right from the start...here, in Minnesota, or anywhere else."

The Islanders, idle for a week after sweeping their semifinal showdown with the New York Rangers, got down to serious preparation for the North Stars after Minnesota's 5-3 triumph over Calgary Saturday night.

They don't seem concerned about the layoff.

"It may take us a period to get going but it shouldn't take any longer," said Islanders defenseman Ken Morrow. "You never know what effect a layoff might have. But, at this point, we have no excuses."

"The big key is for the whole team to play well together. If one of us starts out sluggish, another one will pick us up."

Nor are the North Stars counting on any advantage because their opponents — who finished atop the regular season standings, 23 points ahead of Minnesota — had to skate in neutral for so long.

"They're the defending champions, and they're playing as well as ever," said North Stars Coach Glen Sonmor. "A layoff shouldn't have any effect on that good a team. They don't think anybody can beat them, but we're going to give it a heckuva shot."

North Stars goaltender Gilles Meloche says he's certain his teammates realize what it will take to win their first Stanley Cup.

"We have to give 100 percent on every single shift," said Meloche. "We know the Islanders will be doing that and we know if we give our best, we will be in the game with them."

Both teams are without one key performer but have not been hurt by it. Islanders defenseman Steffan Persson broke his jaw in the fourth game of the quarterfinals against Edmonton and is not expected back in this series. Minnesota center Tim Young injured his knee in the semifinals against Calgary and also will be absent for the finals.

Illinois Awaits Judge's Decision

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — The eligibility case of University of Illinois quarterback Dave Wilson, which led to sanctions against the university, could be heard in federal court or circuit court, depending on the decision of a federal judge.

A hearing on the matter was set for today in the courtroom of U.S. District Judge Robert Morgan. The judge could hear the case himself or remand it to Champaign County Circuit Judge Harry Clem, who issued the original preliminary injunction in September that allowed Wilson to play on the university football team.

As a result of the case, the Big Ten Conference placed the university on probation for three years, barred the school from postseason competition for two years and denied the school its share of conference revenue for the same period. The sanctions could cost the school more than $1 million.

The conference charged that the school had deceived the conference in relation to Wilson's academic status. University officials have denied they intended to mislead the conference.

Wilson, who transferred to the university from a California junior college a year ago, filed suit when the Big Ten denied him eligibility for two seasons. Conference officials ruled Wilson had one year of eligibility remaining and it would begin in the fall of 1981.

Last month, the Big Ten's faculty representatives, noting that Wilson had played during the 1980 season under the court order, ruled that his eligibility had expired and refused to allow him to play in 1981.

Clem dissolved his injunction Sept. 17 but it was reinstated two days later by the Illinois Appellate Court and allowed to stand Oct. 3 by the Illinois Supreme Court.

Wilson's attorney, Robert Auler, amended the suit in February, alleging that the Big Ten had violated Wilson's civil rights.

Because Auler claimed violation of federal statutes, the Big Ten asked that the case be moved to federal court.

Miller wouldn't reveal any names, but he may have been referring to players like pitcher Dennis Leonard of Kansas City, who recently signed with the Royals for five years at a reported $900,000 a season, and Oakland's Mike Norris, who signed a five-year deal that could earn him as much as $1 million a year.

"I can't figure it out," Miller said. "We talk about compensation and the impact it would have on the salary structure and then we look at what they've done in the past few months."

Lietzke Wins Duel With Watson

DALLAS (AP) — It was high drama and most unlikely, but Bruce Lietzke wrote a sudden-death ending to Tom Watson's storied romance with history and the Byron Nelson Golf Classic Sunday.

"I went head-to-head with the best golfer in the world today ...and beat him at his own game," said Lietzke. "But we did not see the real Tom Watson today."

"I think he beat himself."

It was a tense, remarkable duel, with Lietzke winning the $300,000 Nelson Classic on the first hole of sudden death when Watson 3-putted from 35-feet for a bogey 5.

Lietzke tapped in a short par putt to capture the $54,000 first prize, propel himself into millionaire status, clinch a berth on the Ryder Cup team and seize the current money-winning lead with $243,172.

He did so on a Preston Trail course he thoroughly detests and against odds he considered overwhelming.

Lietzke conquered the grainy greens, tricky winds and thin, hardpan fairways to match par 70 and erase a three-shot deficit on the final 18 holes to earn his third tour victory of 1981.

Watson, the leader all the way, closed with a 73 for a 72-hole total of one over par 281.

The playoff loss ended Watson's bid for an unprecedented fourth straight Nelson crown. Had he won, he would have entered the history books alongside legendary Walter Hagen, who won four straight PGA titles.

Hagen, however, won his tournaments in the 1920s over four different courses. Watson would have become the first to win a 72-hole medal tournament four consecutive times on the same course.

Watson admitted that he played poorly and had problems with his drives, but blamed his putter for his downfall.

Tom Purtzer and Bobby Clampett, both of whom flirted with the lead earlier in the day, wound up tied for third at 283, two shots off the pace. Purtzer closed with a 71, Clampett with a 73.

Both earned $17,000.

Alone at 284 was Texan Ben Crenshaw, whose 69 was the only sub-par round of the day.

But the story was confined to the final threesome which included Watson and Lietzke.

Lietzke dedicated the victory to a young boy who was struck in the head by the champion's tee shot on the par 3 No. 4 hole.

Lietzke said he intended to spend time fishing in Oklahoma and would return to Fort Worth next week to defend his title at the Colonial National Invitation.

As the Nelson winner, he can pocket the $200,000 Texas Bonanza with successive triumphs.

Alcott Overcomes Five-Shot Deficit To Capture Title

ROSWELL, Ga. (AP) — Amy Alcott refuses to take herself, or golf, too seriously.

"When I start rolling, I just let it happen," Alcott said Sunday after firing a 6-under-par 66 to overcome a five-shot deficit in capturing the $125,000 Lady Michelob golf tournament.

"I just try not to be fearful of success," she added. "Some people are."

Alcott, upset after shooting a 74 Saturday to fall well back in the pack, got her winning round under way with an eagle 3 on the first hole, then moved ahead of the field with five birdies in a six-hole stretch on the back nine.

She finished with a 7-under-par 209 total on the 6,123-yard, Brookfield West Golf and Country Club course to claim the $18,750 victory, her second on the LPGA tour this season and the 15th of her career.

Sally Little, bidding for her fourth title this year, had a closing 70 to finish in second place at 210, barely missing a 25-foot birdie putt on the final green that could have forced a sudden-death playoff.

Alcott's eagle came after she dropped a seven-wood shot 15 feet from the hole. She began her birdie binge with a six-footer at No. 12, got another on a seven-foot, sidehill putt at the 13th and put together three in a row from 15, 15 and 12 feet beginning at No. 15.

"I was kind of angry after yesterday," said Alcott, who last year won the U.S. Open by nine shots.

"I was not on the leader board, and it got me kind of mad," she said. "I'm too good a player not to be on the leader board."

"I play better when I'm mad," she said. "I figured it (her game) had to come sometime when I got mad enough."

Her only bogey of the day came at No. 3 when she missed a 10-foot putt.

Little, who won last week at Hilton Head, S.C., appeared to be in control early until she struck a shot out of bounds on No. 12 and took a double bogey six. She followed that with a bogey at 13 and got her chance to regain a share of the lead on the final two holes when she birdied from 15 feet at No. 16.

"It's not a nice feeling to have the lead and all of a sudden the wheels fall off," Little said. "It's hard to get motivated after that."

Dale Lundquist finished third at 71-211; and Dot Germain, 72, and Pat Bradley, 69, tied for fourth at 212.

Hollis Stacy, the two-time U.S. Open champion who led after each of the first two rounds, skidded to a 75 to close at 213. Her downfall began with a double bogey six on No. 4.

Hold Rites Today For Nelson Algren

SAG HARBOR, N.Y. (AP) — A brief graveside service was planned today for the late Nelson Algren, a writer known for his novels and short stories about hustlers, losers and hobos he met while drifting in the South in the 1930s.

Algren died of a heart attack Saturday at the age of 72.

His body was claimed by a niece, according to a funeral parlor making arrangements. The service was scheduled for 3 p.m. at the Oakland Cemetery.

Algren was elected in February to the American Academy-Institute of Arts and Letters and was to be inducted May 20.

The writer was known for his novels and short stories about "fringe" society. The best known of his works are two novels, "A Walk on the Wild Side" and "The Man with the Golden Arm."

Although Ernest Hemingway listed Algren as one of the best American authors, Algren was not especially favored by the literary establishment, and his election to the academy surprised him. Leslie Fiedler, the critic, once dismissed Algren as "the bard of the stumble.um."

Algren grew up in a blue-collar neighborhood of Chicago. He worked his way through the University of Illinois, graduating in 1931 with a degree in journalism.

NELSON ALGREIN

After college he drifted South to New Orleans and the Badlands of Texas. It was at this time that he decided to become a writer.

He stole a typewriter but was caught and imprisoned for four months in Alpin, Tex.

Drifting, Algren met the characters that populated his writings.

When he died, Algren had finished "The Devil's Stocking," a novel about a black boxer accused of murder.

The author's body was found in his home Saturday by a guest arriving for a party.

At Its Best As A Living Room Bijou

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Anyone who has ever spent a rainy Sunday afternoon watching an old Sherlock Holmes movie (Basil Rathbone version) knows that television is at its best as living room Bijou. Keeping old movies alive is the tube's sweetest function.

How many novels have gone unwritten or lawns unmowed because Joel McCrea's "Foreign Correspondent" beckoned from the tube?

Ah, Lionel Barrymore and Lew Ayres in the "Dr. Kildare" series, the lambent Miriam Hopkins in "These Three," James Cagney in "Roaring 20s" or "White Heat" ... Look, Ma! Top of the world!

"Casablanca."

Alas, there is a disturbing trend in TV's moviehouse role, a development of the past few years as inevitable as it is loathsome: insidiously, and with increasing frequency, "old" made-for-TV movies are taking the place of the real stuff.

Instead of Robert Taylor in "A Yank at Oxford," we're getting "The Sex Symbol," a 1974 made-for-TV job with Connie Stevens. Instead of "The Road to Morocco," we're getting "The Daughters of Joshua Cabe," a 1972 TV number with Buddy Ebsen.

The trouble with TV movies, of course, is their unrelenting ordinariness (rooted partially in television's imitation of the movies), which is tough enough to swallow when they're brand new. To repeat them six years later in a time slot Providence reserved for a real movie is a moral crime.

Consider some of the stuff being passed in the Los Angeles market this week:

—"Something Evil," a 1972 TV flick in which Sandy Dennis discovers her new home is Satan's playground.

—"Guide for the Married Woman," a 1978 TV yarn with Cybill Shepherd as a bored housewife dreaming of romance.

(Earlier in the week, thank heavens, another station in town is playing the real thing, "Diary of a Mad Housewife.")

—"The Horror at 37,000 Feet," a '73 Chuck Connors haunted airplane yarn.

—"Hurricane," a Martin Milner TV movie.

And at 7 o'clock last night on Channel 5 in Los Angeles, this was offered as the evening movie: "To Lasso With Love," starring Robert Bray in what the listings termed "a TV movie edited from the 1960s series, 'Lassie.'"

Can you imagine? Where's "Dead End?" "Strawberry Blonde?" "The Good Humor Man?" For that matter, what's wrong with the real "Lassie?"

Walt Baker, the programming director for L.A. station KHJ, one of the film-rich independents in town, says I'm all wet. "TV movies aren't necessarily bad just because they're TV movies," he says. "For example, we have 'Brian's Song.' "If it's good, people will watch it, if it's bad, they won't. And that goes for any movie, theatrical or made-for-TV. It really depends on the title." Perhaps, but I can't argue the point now. "Deadline U.S.A." is coming on. Humphrey Bogart, 1952. Not made-for-TV

Art Carney Is Ordered Rest

DALLAS (AP) — Actor Art Carney is under doctors' orders to rest at home after spending the weekend in the hospital for treatment of an unspecified "recurring illness he's had over the years," a spokesman said.

Carney, who won fame as sewer worker Ed Norton on television's "The Honeymooners" and an Oscar as an aging widower in the movie "Harry and Tonto," was admitted Friday to St. Paul's Hospital in Dallas.

Bob Hargrove, production manager for a TV version of the John Steinbeck classic, "Of Mice and Men," said the 62-year-old actor was to be discharged by today and fly home to Westbrook, Conn.

He did not know whether Carney would return for filming on "Of Mice and Men," scheduled to be finished May 27. But Hargrove said Carney "is in no danger whatsoever. It's not serious."

Need Help In Clean-Up Of Oil Spill

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — More people are needed to help clean Outer Banks beaches left tainted with about 3,000 gallons of oil from a ship collision, officials said Sunday.

Fewer than 100 workers sacked oily sand Sunday from about two miles of Coquina Beach, soiled by fuel oil that spilled when the cargo ships Hellenic Carrier and Lash Atlantic collided last week.

Owners of the Hellenic Carrier hired Industrial Marine Services Inc. to remove the oil from the beaches under the supervision of the Coast Guard at an estimated cost of $200,000.

"The quality of the help has been excellent," said IMF president James H. Parker. "But he quantity (of workers) is less. We could use 200 or 300 people."

Parker said many of those helping Sunday were vacationers who expected to leave Sunday night. "We're probably going to be shorthanded Monday," he said.

But Parker, whose company is paying workers $4 an hour to help shovel and rake the oily sand into bags, said, "The ocean is 100 percent clean and the beaches are 99.9 percent clean."

"From a human point of view, you can go swimming all you want down there. There's nothing here that should keep anybody from going swimming," he said.

The oil slick came ashore over a 17-mile stretch of beach, but it was largely concentrated on Coquina Beach.

"Basically, the area of concern is between the Outer Banks Fishing Pier south to Coquina Beach," said Coast Guard spokesman, Bruce Pimental.

Pimental said the fuel oil is easier to clean up than many types of oil spills because it does not mix with water.

Moreover, he said, "We were fortunate because we had an extreme high tide the day the oil came in." That meant then ocean could not pull the oil back into the water on later high tides.

So far, authorities say the spill has had no major impact on the marine environment, although a porpoise and several sea birds were killed as the oil swept in Thursday night.

Pimental said the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service had picked up 15 loons covered with oil, but service officials could not be reached for comment.

The worst areas of the oil slick were on Coquina Beach, in stretches up to 50 feet long and up to 15 feet wide, Pimental said. Between the oily patches was clean beach or area littered with tar balls, he said.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard Marine Safety Office in Norfolk, Va., said it would open its investigation Tuesday into the collision of the two cargo ships.

Would Tighten Up SBA Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Small Business Administration should tighten requirements to prevent misuse of disaster loans and improve collection procedures to recover nearly $200 million in past due loans, an SBA advisory council says.

The loan program, which has increased nearly tenfold in the last decade, should be more closely monitored "to make sure disaster loans are restricted to truly needy purposes and are not used to compensate for insurable business losses," according to a 77-page report released Sunday by the SBA's inspector general.

"The idea is that you don't want to be giving out money so someone can build a swimming pool for themselves, which has happened," said one agency official who requested anonymity.

President Reagan has asked Congress to cut the SBA's loan commitments for 1981 from $2.3 billion to $1.5 billion. The SBA has estimated that without restrictions demand for disaster aid would exceed $4.9 billion this year.

Saturday's Cryptoquip — POWER LAWN MOWER
CAPERED; LANDED ATOP CEMENT WALL.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: R equals N

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
1981 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦J7 ♥AQ ♦Q1097 ♦QJ873
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
1 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—It is a choice between a jump to three clubs and rebid of two no trump. Your hand is improved by the fitting cards in partner's suits, but an eleven-trick contract seems unlikely because your values are "soft"—mostly queens and jacks. Bid two no trump—if the hand is to be played in no trump, you should be the declarer to protect your heart tenace.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q95 ♥K63 ♦954 ♦AJ98
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
Pass Dble ?
What action do you take?
A.—You have an absolute maximum for your no trump response, and partner should be apprised of this. Redouble. Knowing that you are at the top of your scale, partner will strive to double the opponents wherever they come to rest, and if he does, you can anticipate a juicy penalty.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KQ985 ♥A ♦KJ ♦J8762
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—It is tempting to launch into Blackwood, but knowing how many aces partner has may not help you—even if he has two, you might have a certain trump loser. Jump to four clubs. If partner is looking at good clubs and an outside ace, he will surely cue-bid, and now you can bid the slam with some degree of confidence.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K7 ♥J108 ♦AQ1087642
The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♥ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 3 NT Pass
What action do you take?
A.—South's pass in first seat might raise a few eyebrows, but this sort of distributional freak can often be handled more easily after passing. Obviously you have no intention of playing in no trump, and raising hearts, opposite a partner who could not rebid the suit, is equally out of the question. Since a bid of four diamonds doesn't tell partner that you have a good eight-card suit, you are left with only one choice. Jump to five diamonds.

Q.5—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦K1054 ♥A9 ♦AQ7 ♦KJ93
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ Dble Pass 1 ♦
Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—You are strong enough to make one move, but nowhere near good enough for a jump to three spades. That would require a minimum of 19-20 points because you must allow for the possibility that partner is broke. A raise to two spades describes your hand adequately.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable with 60 on score, you hold:
♦AQJ4 ♥AKQ982 ♦103
♦Q
The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 4 ♦ Pass
What do you bid now?
A.—Partner has made a move toward slam by cue-bidding the ace of clubs, so he surely holds the king of spades. The only remaining question is whether or not he has the diamond suit controlled. Jump to five spades—that is a specific query about the unbid suit. If partner has the ace of diamonds, he should cue-bid it on the way to six spades in case there is a grand slam. With second-round diamond control, he should bid six spades. And if he has two or more losing diamonds, he must pass.
