Social Security Benefit Cuts Proposed

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration today proposed sharp cuts in Social Security benefits for Americans who retire early, greater incentives for people who work past age 65 and reducing the tax burden for workers who pay into the system.

The plan, announced by Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker, is a far-reaching set of proposals designed to save the destitute system from possible bankruptcy.

Highlights of the package, which is being submitted to Congress, include:

—More than doubling the penalty for people who retire before age 65. Instead of getting 80 percent of full Social Security benefits at age 62, they would get only 55 percent.

Spouses would get 27.5 percent at age 62 instead of the current 40 percent. These changes, the administration said, would save $17.6 billion between 1982 and 1986.

—Abolishing limits on how much people between the ages of 65 and 72 can earn without losing benefits, for a projected cost of $6.5 billion.

—Keeping the minimum age for full benefits at 65, instead of 68 as proposed by the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security.

—Lowering Social Security tax rates on the 114 million workers now paying into the system. A 7.05 percent payroll tax scheduled to take effect in 1985 would be pared somewhat and taxes would be reduced from the current 6.65 percent by 1990.

—Tax sick pay for the first six months of an employee's illness. Currently, sick pay is untaxed. The administration calculates a saving of $2.6 billion from this proposal.

—Delaying for three months starting in 1982 the annual cost-of-living adjustment from July to October to save about $6.3 billion by 1986. The administration said the average beneficiary would lose about $100 in the first year under the proposal.

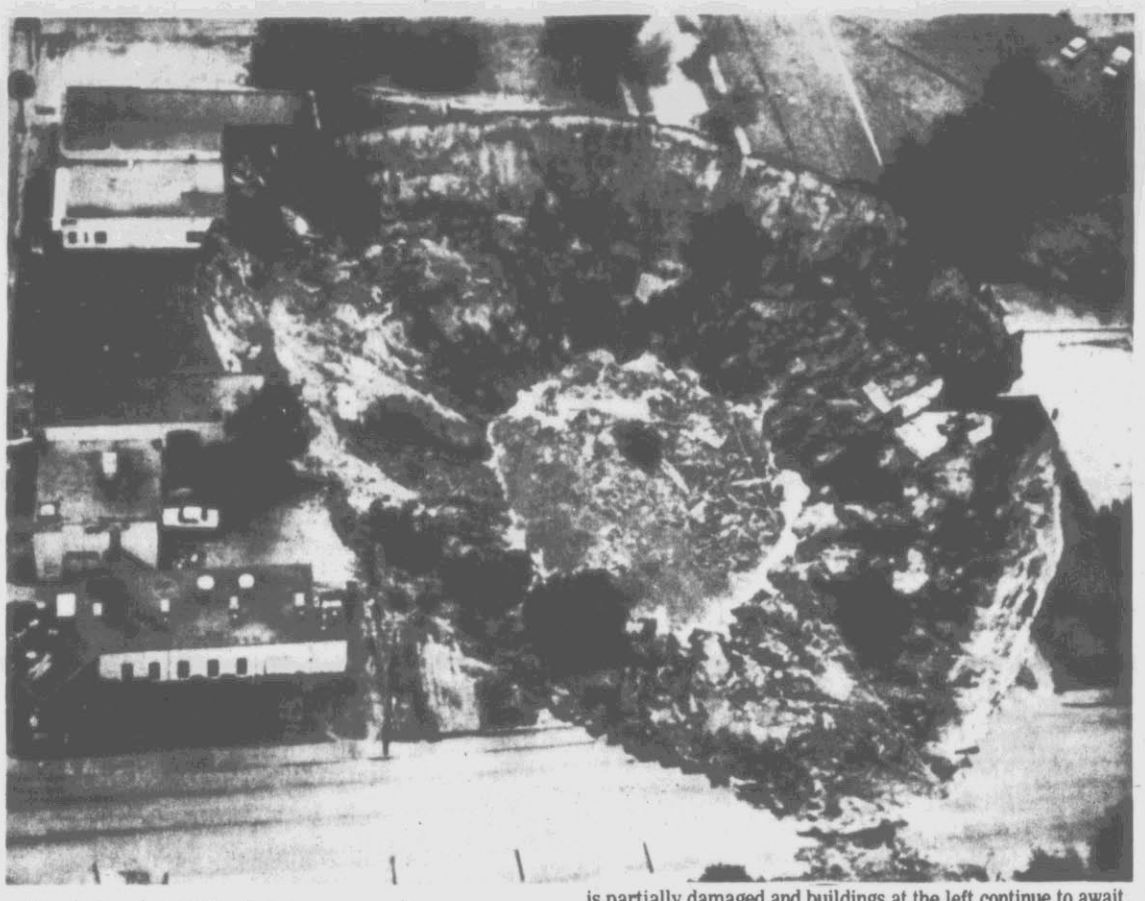
The 11.2 percent increase due this July would not be affected, and deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan would honor his pledge not to reduce Social Security pensions for those already retired.

—Eliminating benefits to dependent children of early retirees. The system now pays benefits to children under 18, or under 22 if they are in school, if their parents are retired, dead or disabled. This would save $1.9 billion, the administration says.

—Eliminating "windfall" benefits for retired federal workers who also collect Social Security benefits. This would save $600 million by 1986, the administration said.

—Tightening disability assistance requirements to require that a worker's disability be determined solely by medical factors. The law now allows consideration of the worker's age, education and job experience, as well as health. This would save $7.7 billion by 1986.

The administration would also increase the waiting period for disability benefits from five months to six months, saving $1.4 billion.



Sinkhole Nightmare

STILL GROWING — a large sinkhole in Winter Park, Fla. continues to grow as workers try unsuccessfully to retrieve expensive sports cars from its depths. A swimming pool (right) is partially damaged and buildings at the left continue to await more crumbling which would lead to further destruction. So far, the sinkhole has claimed one house and six cars. Residents have moved their possessions from their businesses, waiting for the hole to either stop growing or help to keep it from growing. Syrian SAMS Fired At High-Flying Israeli Jets

By ALEX EFTY
Associated Press Writer

CHTAURA, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian anti-aircraft missile batteries fired at high-flying Israeli jets over the eastern Bekaa Valley at daybreak today but none was hit, according to Lebanese who said they saw the firing. The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio also reported that Syrian missiles were fired.

Syria and Israel had no comment but Israel Radio said unidentified Israeli sources denied the report. Israel has said Syria risks war if the surface-to-air missiles aren't removed, but has shelved plans to knock them out to give President Reagan's Mideast troubleshooter more time to defuse the crisis.

Lebanese citizens in Chtaura, a Lebanese city near the Syrian frontier, said they saw two SAM-6s blast off from half-track vehicles two miles south of the Lebanese border airfield of Rayak into the clear, blue sky toward the white vapor trail of the jets.

This reporter was shaken out of his bed by two explosions at 4:50 a.m., and from his hotel window, saw two vapor trails heading toward the contrails of the high-flying jets. The missile trails died out before reaching the jets. The jets did not bomb.

Military sources said the SAM-6 can destroy targets up to 35,000 feet, and they speculated the Israeli jets were flying much higher than that.

The reports, if confirmed, would be be Syria's first use of its Soviet-made surface-to-air missiles since they were moved into the Bekaa Valley on April 29, spurring the most dangerous Syrian-Israeli confrontation since the 1973 Mideast war.

It came while U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib was in Jerusalem on a mission to ease the crisis between Israel, which demands the missiles be withdrawn from Lebanon, and Syria, which refuses to move them.

The incident appeared to be a display of Syrian determination to keep their anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon and use them if challenged.

It came on the morning after Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin appealed to Syrian President Hafez Assad to "retreat from the brink" and withdraw the missile batteries from Lebanon.

Begin said Monday night in an address to Israel's Parliament that the Syrians would pose "a danger to Israel's existence" and dominate all of Lebanon if they controlled Lebanon's skies and its central mountain peaks.

"War would be inevitable, and in the worst possible conditions for Israel," Begin said. He also disclosed that he had ordered his air force to destroy the Syrian missiles 12 days ago but canceled the operation first because of bad weather and then because the United States pleaded for time to solve the crisis peacefully.

President Reagan later dispatched Habib, a former state department undersecretary, on a three-nation Mideast tour to try to avert a Syrian-Israeli military showdown.

Habib was in Jerusalem today conferring with Israeli leaders after two days of talks in Lebanon and two days more in Syria produced no sign of a breakthrough.

The Syrian missiles were installed one day after Israeli jets downed a pair of Syrian helicopters operating against Israel's Christian militia allies in eastern Lebanon.

PCC Budget Request Set

The Board of Trustees of Pitt Community College yesterday approved a county operating budget request of $462,905 for 1981-82.

The request, which was recommended by the board's finance committee, represents a 14 percent increase in the operating funds request over last year's budget.

The board also approved, upon the recommendation of its finance committee, a capital outlay county budget request of $121,873. Two of the major priorities were $50,000 for six mobile classrooms, 24 feet by 30 feet, and $20,342 to complete the paving of a parking/street area.

According to board chairman C.W. Everett Sr., "This is a realistic budget that has been trimmed to the bare necessities. The need for additional funds is well-documented." He cited the 30 percent growth in student enrollment over the past three years as a major reason for the additional classrooms and parking.

The personnel committee, chaired by Kay Whichard, presented the following recommendations:

— Appointment and reappointment of PCC's faculty and staff for 1981-82, as recommended by president Fulford and subject to the availability of funds.

— A 1981-82 holiday schedule for PCC.

— Granting of authority to the board's personnel committee to approve employment of personnel required for the summer.

The board approved all three recommendations.

The board also granted educational leave for the summer to PCC's dean of students Edgar L. Boyd.

The policy and personnel committees of the board presented a joint policy report entitled "Selection and Employment of Personnel," which was approved by the trustees.

A $250 contribution from Texasgulf, Inc. was formally accepted by the board.

Chairman Everett appointed a nominating committee to consider nominations for the 1981-82 officers of the board of trustees. Appointed to the committee were R.E. Davenport Jr., chairman; Joseph M. Taft; W.F. Tyson. The committee will mnake its report at the September, 1981 board meeting.

PCC president William Fulford reported that the current spring quarter enrollment was up 22.66 percent over spring quarter, 1980. He reminded the board that the dedication of the Vernon White and Kay Whichard buildings and open house will be held on May 17 at 3 p.m. and that Lt. Governor Jimmy Green will be the speaker.

President Fulford announced that graduation would be held May 31 with Dr. Larry Blake of the North Carolina Community College system as the commencement speaker.

Early Find Of Atlanta Boy's Body Spurring Police Activity

ATLANTA (AP) — The body of 17-year-old William Barrett was found early today in a wooded area east of Atlanta, apparently the 27th victim in Atlanta's series of killings of young blacks, police in suburban DeKalb County said.

"We are going on the assumption that the child was murdered," said DeKalb County police spokesman Chuck Johnson.

Barrett was reported missing by his mother about the same time his body was found, and he was last seen late Monday afternoon, police Col. James Stanley said.

The case likely will be turned over to a special Atlanta police task force investigating the deaths of 26 other young blacks since July 1979, Johnson said. The string of deaths includes 13 youths whose bodies have been found since Jan. 1. Members of the task force were called to the scene when the body was discovered.

"We believe it is related," Johnson said. "It certainly fits the profile of the other" slayings.

"A rough guess would be that he had been dead approximately three hours," Johnson said.

Authorities at DeKalb police headquarters today questioned the man who found Barrett's body and a man whose car apparently broke down nearby. Neither man was identified.

OVERCROWDING OF BUSES?

I live in Ayden and am the parent of a child who rides a public schools bus. Do most parents know that the State of North Carolina permits and even encourages the overcrowding of school buses — up to 25 percent more than the seating capacity of each? I think this is wrong and the public should know about it. L. D.

City-county school bus safety officer, Charles E. Mayo, confirmed your percentage figure. Up to 25 percent more children are allowed on a bus than there are seats, by North Carolina law, he said. The intent of the law he said he believes is to use this very costly tax-paid service to the maximum. Routing is planned, he said, so that there will be seats for as many riders as possible at all times. The problem, if there is one, usually comes, he said, when the buses have just left the schools in the afternoons and as they're nearing them in the mornings, often inside town limits. He said new routing will be done this summer for next school year. Any parents who has an opinion on the matter is encouraged to contact him or Rodney Faulkner, city-county transportation officer, both at 756-1424 during working hours, or the principal of the school that his or her child attends.

City, Redevelopment Board Await HUD's Okay

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The city and Redevelopment Commission are awaiting word from the Department of Housing and Urban Renewal (HUD) relative to approval of a amendment to the city's Community Development cooperation agreement that will allow work to proceed in several key project areas.

It was pointed out at last night's Redevelopment meeting that until HUD approval is received, funds turned over to the city by the commission as a result of a cash surplus realized through close-out of the Southside and Central Business District urban renewal projects can not be used.

Joe Laney, executive director, said that when the CD amendment is approved, projects targeted for completion utilizing the turnover money can proceed, particularly the 14th Street improvement work from the railroad to Charles Boulevard.

Laney, saying that approval is expected in the next week or so, mentioned that the amendment to the city's cooperation agreement also includes some $50,000 to fund Redevelopment Commission staff activities for the remainder of the year. Some $110,000 is also included to complete activities in Southside.

Total turnover to the city from the project close-outs amounts to roughly $1,850,000. In addition to the 14th Street completion, funds will be utilized for additional acquisition in South Evans and for rehabilitation work in the West Greenville section.

Laney said that while the commission awaits word from HUD, the limited staff has been busy working with the Housing Authority's Section Eight moderate rehabilitation program. He noted that 21 units are under lease and rehabilitation work on 21 more local structures is "in the works."

According to Laney, all but four parcels involved in the 14th Street right-of-way phase have been closed and those parcels have been turned over to the city for the initiation of condemnation proceedings.

The director reported that a one-year lease has been executed between the commission and local Farmer's Market for use of a tract on Reade Circle between Western Auto and the Marathon Restaurant for the market activities. The lease contains a clause whereby either party has the right to terminate the agreement with 30 days notice.

Laney, who said that a $1 lease fee is involved, noted that the arrangement will give the market a chance to develop a viable program. Nearly two acres are included in the tract and the market is currently in operation Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Faye Brewington, staff real estate officer, reported that one acquisition was closed in the South Evans area since the April meeting and demolition of one structure housing five uses took place. Three parcels were sold in Southside, she said, and one relocation took place in South Evans.

Commissioners gave their approval to the final budget control statements and balance sheets for the Southside and CBD projects.

Gene Taylor informed the board that he is resigning as a commissioner and will be moving to Charlotte soon as part of his duties with North Carolina National Bank. Taylor has served as vice president and city executive for the bank in Greenville.

Ayden To Provide School Site Water, Sewer

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — Calling its support for the new Ayden Middle School "100 percent," the board of commissioners passed a resolution last night declaring that it can and will supply water and sewer to the school site.

The board also approved a second resolution requesting that the county commissioners appropriate the long-awaited funds for the new school.

"We passed a resolution of support for this project two years ago and we haven't retracted a word of it," said mayor Ross Persinger.

"There may be a problem with the best approach to the site with sewer and water," he added, "but by no means does this indicate we aren't perfectly willing to cooperate."

County school board member Bill McLawhorn appeared before the board and stated that remarks in last week's "News Leader" taken from the board's workshop session had caused concern among board members.

The paper reported that town manager Don Russell called the extension of existing services to the school site "difficult at best," and commented that he was not sure whether the cost responsibility was to the property line in this case.

"I had calls from my fellow board members from Fountain, Stokes, Bethel, etc. and they seemed to think it sounded like we didn't want a school down here," McLawhorn explained. "When the board decided on the site I was told by a town

Dear Abby

Psychologist Not Content To Sit by His Couch

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My home is on the verge of breaking up. If I leave my husband, there will be three teen-aged children without a father, but I see no other solution.

My husband is a successful therapist. He recently admitted to having had sexual relations with a young woman patient, but he claims he still loves me. Is this possible?

We were married when we were both in college (23 years ago) and our sex life has always been good, yet he tells me that "in the line of duty" he helped this woman find her "ego identity" by teaching her how to make love.

I can't stay married to a man who is having sexual relations with other women in the line of duty, or for any other reason.

Is this something new in psychotherapy? I can't believe psychologists really believe this will help their patients. And what about their own emotional involvements, and those of their families?

HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: No ethical therapist in his right mind would have sexual relations with a patient. Your husband needs treatment himself and should not be allowed to continue practicing until he has been rehabilitated.

If you love him, you will not leave him, but you will insist that he seek help from a colleague about his problem. If he continues as he is, he probably will lose not only his family, but his practice as well.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Last week my partner and I were walking together when we spotted a wallet on the sidewalk. My partner picked it up and upon examining the contents, we discovered $140 in cash and a bankbook with the owner's name on it.

My partner took $70 and gave me $70 and the bankbook. My conscience will not allow me to keep the $70, but if I return it with the bankbook, the owner will probably assume that I held back $70.

My partner refuses to give up his $70. He said the Lord put it there for him to find, and if I don't want my half, he will take it.

What should I do?

CONFUSED IN CULVER CITY

DEAR CONFUSED: Tell your partner you are returning your $70 and the bankbook to the owner. And warn him that if he doesn't return his $70, you will not hesitate to identify him.

It will undoubtedly end your partnership, but you'll come out ahead. Who needs a crook for a partner?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday my boss's wife came to the office while he was out of town. She went into his private office and closed the door. I heard her opening and closing drawers and rummaging around in there. Whether she found what she was looking for or not I do not know.

She rarely comes to the office, and when she does she is very cold, abrupt and unfriendly. She has asked me some questions about her husband's activities, but I am very careful not to give her any information. After all, my first loyalties are to my boss, and I am not about to give his wife ammunition.

Now I wonder if I should tell my boss that his wife was down here rummaging around in his drawers. Would you?

LOYAL EMPLOYEE

DEAR LOYAL: I wouldn't.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: LISA asked, "Who should give me away at my wedding — my father or my stepfather? I love them both equally and don't want any hurt feelings."

I had the same problem 26 years ago and I solved it by walking down the aisle on the arm of my future husband. No problems.

Awards Presented By ECU Honor Fraternity

ECU News Bureau

Virginia Hope MacMillan of Greenville and Michael Anthony Bell of Simpson have been named Most Outstanding Seniors at East Carolina University by a campus fraternity.

The awards were presented by ECU's Tau chapter of Phi Sigma Pi national honor fraternity at the chapter's recent 45th annual Founder's Day banquet.

Miss MacMillan, a business major, and Bell, a biology major, were selected from nominees by all of ECU's academic departments and schools on the basis of academic achievement and contributions to the campus.

Recipient of several scholarships and honors during her studies at ECU, Miss MacMillan has been active in student government and a member of several honor societies, a university marshal, an ECU Law Society member and a page in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Bell, also several times an award winner at ECU, is an active member of Alpha Epsilon Delta pre-medicine/pre-dentistry honor society and has presented reports of his research at meetings of the North Carolina and New Jersey Academies of Science.

The chapter also presented its annual Richard Cecil Todd and Clauda Pennock Todd Scholarship to four rising senior or junior members: Douglass Cline of Charlotte, Mary Daniel of Oxford, Michael Hosey of Washington and Howard Tucker of Greenville.

The Todd scholarships, established 12 years ago, are made from interest accrued on a $25,000 fund, and are awarded to upperclassmen among Tau chapter's members on the basis of scholarship, leadership and fellowship, the three ideals of Phi Sigma Pi.

The Todd awards program, established by Dr. Richard C. Todd, ECU history professor emiritus and past advisor to the chapter, is increased each year by members' fund-raising efforts and matching gifts from Dr. Todd.

Michael Hosey was also the recipient of the chapter's first Jack Thornton Scholarship, to be given each year to the most outstanding new member.

VIRGINIA MACMILLAN

MICHAEL BELL

Thornton is Tau chapter's current faculty advisor and national president of Phi Sigma Pi. Todd award recipient Mary Daniel also received Tau chapter's annual Outstanding Philosophy of Life Award.

Outstanding senior award recipient Michael Bell also received a service key, the chapter's highest recognition of service from a senior member. Bell served as Tau chapter president this year.

Certificates of recognition for service were also given to seniors Ellen Ballance and Timothy Ballance of Fremont; Rayford Barnes Jr. of Wilson; Cynthia Browning and James Kittrell of Greenville; Robert Horne Jr. of Rocky Mount and J. Randall Sessoms of Southern Pines.

The chapter's annual Outstanding Alumnus Award went to Carl Joyner, a 1971 ECU graduate from Raleigh who was guest speaker at the banquet. Two Clauda Pennock Todd Fellowship Awards were presentged to members Willard Oliver Jr. of Roanoke Rapids and Howard Tucker of Greenville.

Tucker, Tau chapter president for the 1981-82 academic year, administered the oath of office to the following new officers: Michael Hosey, vice president; Mary Daniel, secretary; Douglas Cline, treasurer, and Charles Canoy of Asheboro, pledgemaster.

Gary Tiffany of Raleigh and Thomas Hall Jr. of Surry, Va. will serve second terms as historian and reporter, respectively.

Founded in 1936, Tau chapter of Phi Sigma Pi is ECU's oldest fraternal organization, and is open to student leaders of both sexes.

BAND SCHOLARSHIP

Michelle Sutton of Alma, Ark. has been awarded a band scholarship to the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gene Sutton, she earned the scholarship by auditioning to play saxaphone in the Marching Razorback Band. Her major will be business.

Michelle's father is a former resident of Pitt County and her aunt, Mrs. Carolyn Moore, lives here.

Ancient Will Provides Education For Children

BRUNSWICK, Ohio (AP) — John Norman's heirs no longer have to consume eight quarts of beer a week or mend their shoes according to his rules, but they're still drawing money from his legacy, more than 250 years after his death.

When he died in 1724, Norman, Mayor of Norwich, England, left an 11,000-word will that said his descendants, all traceable to his uncle or his first wife, could draw on an education fund. That fund is now lending a hand to two children in this small northeastern Ohio town, Karl Kunc, 13, and his half-brother, Mark Tzatzaris, 6.

"Just think, some guy living way back then can help me go to college and study something as modern as electrical engineering," said Karl, a seventh-grader at Brunswick Middle School.

The two boys, Norman's nephews nine times removed, are among about 100 current beneficiaries of the fund. The youths trace their relation to Norman through their mother, Penny Tzatzaris, who came to the United States from England in 1963 to be a governess and later marry an American.

Many of Norman's descendants were gathering today in Norwich at an annual memorial service to pay tribute to their ancestor, who was an alderman and mayor of the city in the early 1700s.

"As I understand it, there is one other American family that receives the money," Mrs. Tzatzaris said. "This was a far-sighted, philanthropic man."

The yearly stipends, which Karl has been getting since he was 8 and for which Mark will be eligible in two years, are stashed away in a college education fund. Their mother said she would rather hold the money, nearly $500 a year per child, for the future. She signs a yearly affidavit guaranteeing the money will be used for education.

The annual payments continue until the children's 18th birthdays.

Mrs. Tzatzaris, who descended from Norman on her father's side, did not receive the inheritance because female heirs were excluded until 1971, when they were allowed the same status as males.

Under the original will, the male descendants were to be schooled in Latin and Greek. A weekly food allotment included quantities of bread, cheese, butter and eight quarts of specially brewed beer. It also was specified how many pairs of shoes and socks each boy should have and how the items should be mended.

Though he was wealthy, Norman's money would not have lasted much after the original bequest. But a foundation governed by five trustees in Norwich planned well.

Travel Along with Q T I

Janet Stoughton

Americans' love affair with European travel dates back to 1867. In that year, Mark Twain "toured" Italy and France and his "Inocents Abroad" is a recounting of this journey. In these early days, it was mainly Europeans who traveled through Europe. It was the time of the "Grand Tour" which lasted up to a year or more. The notion of a "package" tour was introduced by Thomas Cook in 1841. From the turn of the century until the depression, great ocean liners presented a veritable golden age of European travel.

You can still take the Grand Tour, although, we admit, things have changed quite a bit. For instance, we have jets that can move you faster than anything ever could before. And here at QUIXOTE TRAVELS INC. we have a computer connected directly to all major carriers that enables us to give you almost instant reservation service. Come in and take a look. We're at 319 Cotanche St. 758-3456.

TRAVEL TIP:
After World War II, a person of ordinary means could visit Europe "on $5 a day". Today the cost is higher but the allure is as strong.

Council Has Spring Meet

"A member of an organization is to the organization as a bolt is to machinery—each needs to be in its rightful place helping the total to work properly," said Mrs. Rena Manning, extension homemaker county council first vice president, at the spring council meeting.

A film on the Heimlich maneuver to treating choking victims was shown by D. R. Daniels of the Greenville Fire and Rescue Department. This treatment is 90-95 percent effective, he said.

President Linda Howard conducted the meeting which included a report of the Northeastern District Extension Homemakers annual meeting given by Mrs. Rubelle Goin. She is district first vice president.

The clothing for the handicapped exhibit was discussed by Chairman Jo-Anne Clayton. Extension homemakers were also encourged to participate in tree planting Arbor Day and the bake and take project for May.

President Is Installed

Linda Hanrahan was installed as president of the St. Peter's Women's Club at its meeting last week. She received the gavel from Sheila Lueck, outgoingpresident.

Ms. Thompson recognized other outgoing officers: Eleanor Close, vice president; Anne Allen, secretary; Beth Guertin, treasurer.

Other new officers are Anne Allen, vice president, Phyllis Collingwood, secretary, and Fanny Flower, treasurer.

It was announced the organ recital will be held Saturday, May 16, instead of May 17 and will begin at 5 p.m. followed by a 5:30 Mass and an informal party and then a covered-dish supper at 7:30.

Ms. Guertin will be in charge of the group's scrapbrook for the coming year.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

For some reason, this country has suffered a "trust recession."

I see it in our attitudes toward the government, consumerism, and national institutions like the phone company and the six o'clock news.

I'm one of those people who want to believe everything I see and read. I want to believe Peter Pan can fly. Or that Chrysler will pay dividends next year, and that the woman who uses Oil of Olay and wears a 43 on her T-shirt is lying about her age.

I want to believe that my car will never be recalled, my prescription has been taken by someone other than a research monkey, and that my plumber will indeed show up on Friday, June 12 after lunch.

I want to believe, but I can't. Sometimes, I think I'm getting paranoid about people who have given me no reason whatsoever to doubt them, but I can't help it.

I never take my children to a pediatrician whose office goldfish have died.

I never leave my dog with a vet who says, "What seems to be her problem?" (The dog's name is Murray.)

I never trust a bank where all the fountain pens have been ripped off, or a restaurant with no garbage cans.

I don't trust people who say, "Trust me."

I don't accept drinks from a urologist with a sense of humor. I become very suspicious when a garage mechanic has clean fingernails or a doctor carries his instruments in his gym bag.

I wish I could go back to the way I used to be, but during the past ten years or so, there have been too many political bribes, too many broken warranties, too many broken promises and too many washer repairmen who have retired to Hilton Head on my service calls.

I even looked with suspicion on my husband the other day when he said to me, "Erma, you really look like you've shed a few pounds."

I looked at him closely. He was the man who drove an Edsel with a McGovern bumper sticker on it. Who wouldn't spring for an 8 1/2 percent loan ten years ago because houses were going down. Who bought Nehru jackets in five colors.

What the heck! You have to take a chance on people once in awhile!

Ms. Barnhill Is Speaker

Ms. Nancy Barnhill, assistant district attorney, was speaker for the Gamma Delta Chapter, ESA, at its dinner meeting.

She spoke on women's legal rights regarding property, bank accounts and other issues.

Helen Sermons, outgoing president, conducted the meeting and members were reminded of the ESA State Convention to be held here during the coming weekend. Alpha Omega Chapter of Greenville will be meeting hostesses.

Rubelle Goin, a chapter member, was installing officer. New officers are President, Hester Latham; Vice President, Shelby Bradshaw; Secretary, Frances Cassick; Treasurer, Edna Branch; Educational Directory, Ruth Forrest; Parliamentarian, Helen Sermons.

Mrs. Goin used a book theme for the installation.

Dear Pat: I'm a long-time seamstress but only recently have started to crochet. Until now, I have only made small items that required little or no finishing, but I am eager to make some garments now. Is there anything wrong with sewing the various pieces together by machine and if not, are there any special tips you could give me? — Sally J., Greentown, Ohio

Generally speaking, Sally, hand-finishing is preferable to machine-finishing for knits and crochets. If you are an expert seamstress, however, you may achieve excellent results with certain types of yarn and pattern stitches.

Before attempting to join garment pieces by machine, I would suggest that you make a couple of sample swatches with the yarn and pattern stitch to be used in the garment and try stitching them together by machine.

The first thing to check after doing so is the amount of bulk in the seams. This is one of the primary objections to machine-joining. If the resulting seam is not too bulky for your tastes, check to see if the seam has enough elasticity. Finally, turn the pieces to the right side and see if the machine stitching has interfered with the effect of your pattern stitch.

If you are satisfied on all three points, then you will probably be able to use your machine for joining the various pieces.

You may have to do some adjustments as you crochet and add extra stitches to each edge where you will be having a seam allowance. Normally all knit and crochet directions are written assuming that an edge-to-edge joining will be used and therefore there will be no allowances for seams.

If yours is a simple pattern stitch with a repeat of the pattern every two or three stitches, this will present no problem. With many pattern stitches, however it will take several stitches to work one repeat of the pattern. In this case, you would need to be expert enough to know how to work partial patterns at all side edges.

You might also want to place a piece of tissue paper below and on top of the crocheted fabric so that it will not catch on the machine. The tissue paper is, of course, torn off after the stitching is completed.

Personally, I do prefer hand-finishing and I will give some tips on such finishing in future columns

What is a Money Market Mutual Fund?

A Money Market Mutual Fund is an investment pool, the funds of which are invested in interest bearing securities or deposits at market rates.

These may be corporate bonds, commercial paper, government bonds, large certificates of deposit (in some instances, in foreign banks) or others.

An investment in a Money Market Mutual Fund is shares in the fund, just like any other mutual fund.

What a Money Market Mutual Fund is not!

It is not a depository institution such as a bank or savings and loan. It is not regulated or supervised by any government agency, your investments are not insured nor are Money Market Mutual Funds required to maintain loss reserves.

Your investment in a Money Market Mutual Fund is not a "Money Market Certificate" which represents a deposit with a bank or savings and loan.

Your investment in a Money Market Mutual Fund is not a deposit with your broker. The brokerage firm merely handles your investment for you. It does not insure nor guarantee rates on your money.

The investments of Money Market Mutual Funds may be very high quality or very high risk. A Money Market Mutual Fund may be a good investment for you — but GET ALL THE FACTS BEFORE YOU INVEST.

Rain In Nick Of Time

The rains came over the weekend and changed what could have been a disaster for Eastern North Carolina farmers into prospects for a bountiful year.

It was difficult to recall when the area had been as dry as it was prior to the beginning of the precipitation last Thursday. For most of the East the situation was considered extremely critical. Only a few days more without rain could have meant a crop failure of monumental proportions. Nature is seldom so cruel, however, and the precipitation came just in time for most crops.

Extension agent Sam Uzzell said the rainfall meant a change in attitude for those connected with farming. "More optimism about the year has been expressed; people aren't quite as negative," he said.

The rain might be late for some pastures, but it activated herbicides on the formerly dry fields. And farmers will now be able to plant soybeans and peanuts.

Tobacco and corn, mostly already in the fields, can be expected to benefit greatly from the rainfall which spanned several days.

There are still critical days ahead for area farms. Too little rain could harm the crops; too much could drown them.

The weekend rains, however, put us a giant step forward toward a successful farming season in Eastern North Carolina.

Productivity Must Increase

David T. Kearns, president of Xerox Corp., told a Raleigh group last week that the United States must increase its productivity and exports in the equivalent of a worldwide "economic war."

"The countries that are beating us in the economic battle today are behind us in technology and behind us in natural resources," Kearns said at a Productivity Conference. Those countries, however are ahead in productivity and exports.

If we don't increase productivity "our children will be the first generation of Americans to not live better than their parents."

It's as simple as that. American workers don't have to go back to 12 hour days to achieve the goal. Somehow, though, management must be given the freedom to motivate workers to take more pride in their work. And productivity can be increased with new investments in equipment. Possibly robots may be a part of the production facilities in the near future.

Whatever is done we can't afford to ignore the message that productivity must be increased. If it isn't, we will soon be priced out of world markets.

Time Is Big Money

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Time is money, they used to say. That usually referred to a businessman's time.

In these days of high interest rates on short-term loans, time really is money. Big money. For Tar Heel taxpayers it is more than $137 million in the last fiscal year. That is how much the Cash Management Program in the State Treasurer's Office cleared, making this the biggest source of non-tax revenue for state government.

State Treasurer Harlan Boyles says the system has turned to a cash concentration program using electronic communications so that all the state's money at a given time can be identified; any outstanding debts earmarked; daily deposits anywhere in the state centrally tallied; and any left-over funds can be invested in highly liquid, short-term investments which produce real income.

The Treasurer's Office is, in fact, a bank. To make a payment, the state issues a "warrant" which is much like a check and is processed through the commercial banking system anywhere, and eventually coming to the Treasurer's Bank Clearing Section for payment.

Business

"Over 13 million warrants, with a face value of $11.3 billion were processed during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1980," Boyles said.

In order to get money collected into action quickly, the accounting section has concentrated all the money deposited anywhere in the state by various state agencies. For example, when the local driving license office closes and makes its deposit of receipts, the local bank immediately credits the money to the central account in Raleigh. "By this process of concentration, funds which have little impact when scattered around the state become an important potential source of non-tax revenue," Boyles observed.

BILL NOBLITT

Each day, the Investment Management Section figures how much cash is on hand and how many warrants for payments are outstanding. The excess cash is quickly invested in securities — sometimes only for a day or so; but in huge amounts, producing big returns.

One of the more lucrative investments is to "lend" state-owned securities — for a fee — to a securities dealer who is short on certain securities at a particular time. That netted nearly $4 million last year. Another technique is to sell options on securities which a dealer later buys, or forfeits the fee. That netted more than $3 million last year. The state is also putting up short-term construction money for

Dollars & Sense

(Winston-Salem Sentinel)

The General Assembly's fiscal research staff has computed that North Carolilna would save some $44 million in the next school year if the 12th grade were made optional for students who need the time to complete minimum graduation requirements.

What would be lost is the opportunty for seniors to sharpen academic skills, to bring career options into focus and to get ready for college or a job. How do you put a price on that?

The fiscal facts can be neatly sorted out. The educational values, though far more important in the long run, cannot be so precisely analyzed.

What is certain is that the state's goals for education should not be set at the bare minimum. That is one reason today so many young people leave high school ill-equipped for employment and lacking the credentials to compete for college acceptance.

State Treasurer Harlan Boyles knows a great deal about finances. He is concerned about the cost to keep students in high school after they have acquired the minimum credits for graduation. He has proposed that the 12th grade be eliminated from the public school system, or made optional for those who still need courses.

Dr. A. Craig Phillips, state schools superintendent, knows more about education. He is opposed to abolishing the 12th grade because he feels it is essential in rounding out the high school experience with courses outside the required curriculum. There is a need, Phillips said, to redefine goals for secondary schools and to assure flexibility in the choices for students.

The 16 units set by the state is a minimum which many local systems regard as too low. They have raised the figure to 19 or as high as 21. The state Board of Education also has decided to increase the minimum from 16 to 19 units, effective for students who graduate in 1983.

There is a move in the legislature to set up a commission to look at the 12th grade and recommend whether to retain or abolish it. If such a study is made, it should rely on the advice of those who know more about the value of an education instead of fiscal experts who are more concerned with dollars.

Strength For Today

KEEPING GRACE IN OUR HEARTS

St. Paul shortly before his death declared, "I know whom I have believed and I am persuaded that he is able to guard that which I have entrusted to him against that day."

Most of us say today, "I know what I have believed," but not St. Paul. What he had believed was not necessarily a set of teachings but the Teacher himself. For St. Paul had grasped the thing most essential in Christian teaching, namely, that this thing which we call Christianity is the experience of human personalities with a divine personality. Furthermore, this communication has been channeled to us through the personality of a Man who overcame death and is an eternal and ever-living reality in the hearts of millions of believers.

What that Personality taught, and what He did, constitute a set of circumstances to which the sinful soul of man can appeal for forgiveness of sins and for relief from life's burdens.

Our Incredible World

WASHINGTON — Long before Janet Cooke invented Little Jimmy, the media were having trouble with their credibility. Those of us who deal with the printed word, much chastened by the humiliation of the Washington Post, can explain our problems if we can't excuse them. Our colleagues on TV have other difficulties; and I have a theory.

My theory is that many persons doubt what they see on TV because Starsky always has a place to park.

Around our house we watch the reruns of "Starsky and Hutch" all the time. These two characters are supposed to be plain clothes detectives for the Los Angeles Police Department. They don't wear plain clothes, but that's not the problem. It's mainly the car they drive around in.

In order to be inconspicuous, they drive a flashy red job that any crook could spot a mile away. But this is the unbelievable thing: They always have a place to park. It's incredible. As everyone knows who's ever tried to park in downtown Los Angeles, assuming downtown Los Angeles can be found, there's never a place to park. This is because L.A. has 10 million people and 8 million cars, and the competition is ferocious. Most of the 10 million people never get to work; they never get home; like doomed sailors on the Flying Dutchman, they cruise the streets forever.

Not these two cops. In the heart of the city's honky-tonk precincts, Starsky has only to roll up in his sassy machine and half a block of parking spaces open up. Half a block! Who could believe a thing like that?

JAS. J. KILPATRICK

It is a wonderful thing, this car. It never runs out of gas. It starts instantly. Whoom! Off they go. My car never starts like that.

It's not only the car that undermines our credibility. When Starsky calls, the phone almost always answers. Second ring. When the phone doesn't answer, it's significant: The dame is dead. Otherwise these birds never hit a busy signal. Never. I can tell you as a newsman who lives on the telephone, life is not that way.

Starsky and Hutch always get names right the first time. "Detective Starsky, I want you to meet Ignatius Polizincynski." Does Starsky say, how's that again? No, indeed. "Glad to meet you, Mr.

Fearful Of A Bonn Split

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Deputy Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci touched the sensitive nerve of U.S.-West German relations when he remarked at a closed-door session of the Armed Forces Council May 4 that the U.S. must never allow West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's left wing to "dominate" NATO's policy toward the Soviet Union.

Carlucci's comment in the Pentagon came as Secretary of State Alexander Haig was struggling in Rome to keep Schmidt fixed to U.S. insistence on deployment of modern, medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe during arms-control talks with Moscow. Despite Haig's best efforts, West German political sensitivities forced deletion from the official communique of a flat warning that Soviet intervention in Poland would kill negotiations.

At issue here is what one Western European diplomat described to us as "the gravest threat" to the Western alliance: a Washington-Bonn split. Reaganite hard-liners in the White House and Pentagon define it differently: Is the U.S. permitting Schmidt, out of deference to his precarious political position, too much elbow room against President Reagan's defense buildup in Europe and his challenge to Soviet aggression?

The tentative answer approved by Reagan is "no," representing a victory for Secretary of State Alexander Haig's emphasis on strengthening the Western alliance. But Carlucci's position at the May 4 Pentagon meeting reflects simmering discontent within the national security apparatus that will erupt if Schmidt fudges on his nuclear weapons commitments made at Rome.

Carlucci's remark was personally endorsed by Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger at the Pentagon meeting. Behind this were weeks of struggle inside the national security bureaucracy with hard-liners fighting a rearguard action against negotiations. When agreement could not be reached at the working level, the problem was kicked upstairs to senior officials.

The struggle was continued there and finally resolved in a defeat for the hard-liners, which was sealed at the April 30 National Security Council (NSC) meeting. Haig was given instructions to proceed with the nuclear arms talks, (though senior Pentagon civilians remained skeptical).

The president himself backed Haig at the NSC meeting. Just before Haig left for Rome, Reagan talked alone with him. Those talks confirmed Haig's strategy: Schmidt had to be kept on the U.S. track, and nothing less than talks with Moscow could do that.

Reaganite hard-liners never have forgiven Schmidt's presumption in barging into a meeting with President-elect Reagan in Blair House last November, but their present concerns with the German chancellor are more substantial. They fear Schmidt, in order to protect himself from the activist left wing of his Social Democratic Party (SPD), will hedge on commitments to install the new medium-range nuclear weapons in his country. The hard-liners want a much stronger declaration of Reagan's aim to rearm Europe, in hopes of shocking Schmidt into reducing the impact of the SPD left wing on Western defense strategy.

Schmidt's domestic problems are mounting. On May 3, a regional SPD conference in the state of Baden- Wurttemburg, voted overwhelmingly to force the party to review its 1979 approval of new nuclear weapons for NATO. It demanded an "immediate start" of arms talks with the Russians, vaguely set by the Rome NATO meeting for late this year.

That promises more political trouble for Schmidt. Some diplomats in Washington think he could

Small Business Week Marked

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Because of a bureaucratic compulsion to designate if not dedicate each week as something or other, we now celebrate U.S. Small Business Week, per order of the President of the United States.

Oddly, the celebration for the small-business free-enterprisers is largely an affair of government, which many small-business people long have contended has been and may remain the No. 1 enemy.

The enemy because of the way it taxes them, and regulates them and writes contract regulations that big companies can handle but which are too costly for some small businesses to adjust to.

The enemy also forgets them and forgets the country isn't made only of big government, big business and big unions, but of millions of small companies providing scores of millions of jobs in many thousands of communities.

In a typically entrepreneurial way, small-business groups have fought hard, and over the past couple of years have begun winning their share of legislative victories. They still have a way to go, though, and still must contend with bigness; they just can't avoid big government.

The latest confrontation came last week at Senate hearings on proposed new standards defining the size of small businesses eligible for federal programs, mainly those of the Small Business Administration.

One proposal seemed innocuous. The SBA said it would like to establish a single standard for determining what constituted a small business. It would be based on the number of employees.

But nothing is quite that simple in dealing with the bureaucracy.

The SBA said that to be fair the standard should vary from industry to industry, depending on the level of competition. A four-digit code based on the Standard Industrial Classification system would determine an industry's competitiveness, and that would mean a small business might range from just 15 to as many as 2,500 employees.

Some small-business owners and organizations were outraged at the proposal, which the SBA said would be more rational as well as simpler than the "mish-mash" of criteria developed since the 1950s.

An officer of one small business testified that size standards should be based on average annual sales. Another critic said the proposal was based on bad data. And another contended that "the superficial appeal of just one number" must be resisted. The proposal was withdrawn.

Who is to blame? Is anyone to blame? Or, indeed, is there really any problem at all? An attempt to answer produces still another question: "Who can say?"

One thing is certain: Small business is exceedingly difficult to define, and some people who have spent years dealing with what they say are small-business matters have very flexible definitions.

Dozens of definitions exist based on the number of employees and sales, such as that offered by the Walter E. Heller Institute, which states that a small business is one with annual sales between $1 million and $50 million and 50 to 500 employees.

That definition, of course, eliminates any business with 25 workers, and fails altogether to deal with small proprietorships such as the local drug or grocery store. And its range is perhaps too sweeping.

Moreover, almost any definition breaks down when money is introduced, as in federal procurement and aid programs.

Odd, isn't it, that as U.S. Small Business Week is observed the very definition of small business is in doubt? And ironic, too, that the latest definitional problem involves the old enemy, the bureaucracy?

Doing More With Less Is Challenge

"The real challenge of the future is doing more with less," Willie Nelms, new director of Sheppard Memorial Library, told the Pitt-Greenville Media Society last Wednesday.

Nelms pointed out that anyone can have a good program with plentiful funds, but resourcefulness is needed when funds are short. Nelms presented a three-point strategy: continuation of quality public service, facing the economic facts of the times and assessing the needs of the community.

He said better cooperation among area libraries will cut down on waste by eliminating duplication and he expressed his appreciation at finding a group like the Media Society already functioning. He said he hopes to increase circulation five percent in the coming year, apply the use of a microcomputer, provide access to the North Carolina collection, develop an active volunteer program and review hours of operation.

The society elected officers for the coming year. Beatrice Maye is president; June Parker, vice president and president-elect; and Linda Teel, secretary-treasurer.

Recognition was given to Mrs. Maye, who is retiring from E. B. Aycock Junior High School Media Center at the end of this school year, and to Mrs. Lily Weaver of Wahl-Coates Elementary. Both librarians have been with the Greenville City Schools for many years and have been active in the growth and improvement of library services in the area, Dr. Carol Veitch, outgoing president said.

This meeting, the culmination of this academic year, was attended by librarians from Greenville City and Pitt County Schools, Pitt Community College, East Carolina University, Sheppard Memorial Library and the Health Affairs Library.

Mitchell Talks At Rose Meet

Calling upon the present generation of high school students to meet the challenge of these exciting times, Burley B. Mitchell Jr., secretary of the N. C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, addressed those attending the Rose High School Employer-Employee banquet Thursday evening.

Held each year to honor the employers of Cooperative Education students, the banquet was held this year at the Casablanca Restaurant. More than 340 students and employers attended. Pam Tyson, W. A. Mills, Jerome Cox and Michael Taylor thanked the employers for their involvement in public education. Taylor told the group that, because of the mutual effort of the employers and the employed students, the students are better prepared to meet the challenges of the future. Miss Tyson said she has concluded the cooperative education students like herself have "the best of two worlds."

The meal was prepared and served by the Food Service Class of Rose High School.

Secretary Mitchell reminded that these are times of great danger in our economy. But times of danger, he said, bring great opportunities. "You are the cream," he said. "I am looking forward to your generation taking over a leadership role in American business."

He called upon the students and their employers to help solve the economic problems of America and to keep America second-to-none.

School Wins Award

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central High School won a district award for an outstanding project entered in the 1980-81 North Carolina Beautification Program.

The award was presented today by Barbara Deverick, the president of the Keep North Carolina Beautiful, Inc.

A total of 178 schools from across the state competed in this year's beautification program. Projects focused on improvement of school buildings and grounds and ranged from building bookcases and planting flowers to building nature trails.

"Losing Hair? Try This At No Risk"

HOUSTON, Texas—If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss...and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss...but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair...now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days—at their risk—if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail. ADV.

not get a new SPD national conference to reaffirm the 1979 nuclear green light.

Polls commissioned by the U.S. International Communications Agency show opposition to nuclear arms rising to alarming peaks throughout Europe. It is particularly high in West Germany, with the latest poll showing 60 percent against deployment of modern nuclear weapons. The poll questions did not point out the huge Soviet superiority in European-based nuclear weapons, but the answers nevertheless disturb U.S. officials.

Also ominous for Schmidt are the West Berlin elections next week. The Christian Democratic Union (CDU) is close to gaining control of the legislature after decades of SPD rule, possibly bringing in a CDU mayor for the first time since the early days of the Federal Republic. This rebuff to Schmidt's party could strengthen the influence of its well-organized left wing.

That is precisely what worries Reagan's hard-liners. Even though the president came down on Haig's side April 30, the door is not closed on U.S. policy. If the chancellor fails fully to abide by the terms of the Rome agreement, the U.S. officials who say internal German party politics are undermining Reagan foreign policy will have powerful ammunition against Haig.

These are just a few of the various approaches which the state is using to make money on its money, greatly improved through the advent of electronic communications in the world of finance.

The Wire

Until recently, state government had to send funds to investment or paying agents several days prior to the due date; tying that cash up for some period of time. Now, a wire transmits the cash on the morning of the date due.

Equally, all dividend and interest payments are received by the Treasurer's Office by wire. "Our experience was that too often, funds due us just simply weren't mailed timely or that the mail delivery left something to be desired," Boyles comments.

Meanwhile, separate bank accounts, bank statements, and reconciliation and auditing processes have been reduced from 39 to only two; and the money in seven separate retirement systems and several dozen smaller trust funds has been pooled into three accounts so that the cash can be invested, and, Boyles, adds, internal paperwork was cut by 60 percent.

Tar Heels Used Less Energy

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina residents used nearly 6 percent less energy than expected in 1980, Gov. Jim Hunt announced Monday.

Hunt attributed the savings to the state's energy plan, designed and administered by the Energy Division of the state Department of Commerce. The plan was developed to meet federal conservation guidelines calling for a 5 percent reduction in state energy spending.

The energy saved is equivalent to about 18 million barrels of oil and the energy used to power homes in the state for about six months, Hunt said.

Polizincynski," he says. He even gets the spelling right, and he never takes a note. Fantastic!

It's not the big moments on TV that bother me. When Starsky and Hutch get in gun battles, their guns shoot forever. This is a lucky thing for them, because they have no extra ammunition. Where would they carry extra ammo in those clothes? The bad guys always just miss. Zing! Duck, Starsky! Bam, bam! Look out, Hutch! On such occasions, as Coleridge advised us, we cheerfully grant that willing suspension of disbelief that constitutes poetic faith.

The thing is, Starsky and Hutch are to the cops what Lou Grant is to city editors. Does any reporter know a city editor who spends half his working hours in a bar? After hours, maybe, but not working hours. No way. And thinking of the Lou Grant show, that gung-ho young reporter never has any problem with his telephone calls, either. It's miraculous.

Now, Starsky and Hutch and Lou and Mrs. Whatshername, the publisher with the Rolls-Royce nose, have nothing to do with TV news. But they're part of the medium. In my theory, the incredulity rubs off. If Starsky always can find a place to park, who's to believe Dan Rather?

The answer to our miseries, it follows, is to have art imitate life. One evening, in hot pursuit of some swindler, Starsky rolls up to the honky-tonk in that flashy red heap, and Hutch says un-huh, no place to park. "I'll double park," says Starsky. Hutch says no. "With our luck we'd get a $25 ticket." They drive around a block. Two blocks. Six blocks. Twenty minutes go by, and the car falters. "Out of gas," says Starsky. "That's life," says Hutch.

And in next week's Gallup Poll, our credibility rating soars to 96 percent. After Little Jimmy, it's a happy thought.

Polly Dail Services Recognized

The Pitt County Safety Council, meeting recently, recognized the "outstanding services" of Mrs. Polly Dail as secretary-treasurer of the organization since 1953.

H. P. Norman, immediate past president, installed the new slate of Safety Council officers for the coming year. They are: Dr. Al King, president, from East Carolina University; Ralph Dudley, vice president, from Burroughs Wellcome; Mrs. Dail, secretary-treasurer; John Watson, board member, from Pitt Memorial Hospital; and Mrs. Mary Alvan, board member, from Union Carbide.

Norman presented a plaque to Mrs. Dail on behalf of the Safety Council.

Since moving to Greenville some 32 years ago, it was noted, Mrs. Dail has been involved in a variety of area activities, among them: member of the Greenville Business and Professional Woman's Club for 32 years, serving as president for two terms; member of the Greenville Woman's Club; member of the Democratic Women of Greenvlle; employment by the Pitt County Council on Aging; member of the American Assocition of Retired People; member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church; and serving on the Older Adult Advisory Committee, studying the needs of senior citizens in the eastern part of the state.

The Safety Council was organized in 1951 by citizens in the county who were interested in promoting safety in their homes, on the highways, in industry, and for their children in traveling to and from school.

With the exception of July and August, the Safety Council meets the first Thursday of each month at the Greenville Country Club.

Activities Set For Area Scouts

Boys and young adults in the East Carolina Council of Boy Scouts of America will participate in a variety of outdoor experiences this summer as part of the council's year-round camping program.

John Bush, scout executive, explained that each troop goes to summer camp with its own troop leaders and camps with each patrol operating as an individual unit within a specific troopsite.

Boys who are at least 11 years of age and have completed the fifth grade are eligible to register with a troop and attend camp this summer.

Cub Scouts will attend Cub Scout Day Camp in each district of the Council. The day camp program is designed to meet the needs and interests of boys eight through ten years of age.

According to a Council spokesman, more than 500 scouts are registsed for this year's program.

See Enhanced Soviet 'Blitz'

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Soviet Union in 1981 increased its ability to mount independent and rapid military operations, enhancing its "blitz" capabilities throughout the world, NATO's military committee said today.

The assessment, issued at the opening day of a two-day meeting of NATO defense ministers, also said the Kremlin is spending between 12 and 14 percent of its Gross National Product on defense, enough to "manipulate detente."

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was scheduled to give a more detailed, secret briefing on Soviet capability later in the conference. He was also expected to ask the allies to contribute logistic support to a U.S. Rapid Deployment Force designed to intervene in Middle East crises.

In the military committee report, NATO said, "The restructuring of Soviet ground elements makes it increasingly evident that NATO must consider facing the threat of Soviet and Warsaw Pact armies composed of a high number of brigade-sized units, capable of independent and rapid operations.

The units can execute deep and rapid penetration offensive maneuvers supported by "seemingly ever increasing number of attack and assault helicopter gunships," such as those operating in Afghanistan, the report said.

official the site was OK at the time and now were are confronted with this situation."

"No one checked with me at any time," replied Russell. "I didn't know anything about the site being chosen until we began to work on this." Russell stated that providing utilities was not a simple "yes, we can do it — it will take study."

"The session was for information only," commented commissioner Elliot Dixon. "We were merely assessing the situation and discussing possible solutions. I can see how someone might possibly misconstrue or twist this for their own political purposes."

"No matter what was said," added Mayor Persinger, "we support that school 100 percent."

The board also appointed three new members to the Recreation Commission. Andrea Norris will fill the unexpired term of Monte Little, effective until December 1982 and Joey Pollack will replace Alan Gorrod, whose term also expires in December 1982. Jeff McAllister was approved to take Ted Hahn's position, effective until December 1983.

After a public hearing was held, property at the intersection of highway 11 and state raod 1120 belonging to Bill McLawhorn was rezoned from M-1 manufacturing to B-2 highway commercial and RA-20 agricultural. McLawhorn stated that his son wishes to put a strawberry patch in the field.

An amendment adding the classification of B-2(R) highway commercial to the zoning ordinance was approved. This classification applies where no public water and sewer is available, and includes areas with a minimum of 20,000 square feet.

Bids on rehabilitation of houses under the Community Development Program were considered. Aubrey Rogerson of Williamston was granted one bid and the other three went to Reynolds Construction.

In other business:

— Action on an increase by Seaboard Caostline Railroad for leased property for Marshall Desten's Wild West Show was deferred until next month.

— Town manager Russell reported that Blue Cross/Blue Shield had increased the rates to the town and presented an alternate plan he felt would provide the same coverage at a lower cost. No action was taken.

— A public hearing on small power cogeneration was held, and no interest in the subject was expressed. Th board passed a resolution asking for a waiver of Federal Energy Regulatory Commission Order no. 69 which required the commissioners to assess public interest in cogeneration.

— The final plot of Strawberry Banks was considered but no action was taken because of possible problems with a large ditch on the property. Board members agreed to investigate the possibility of erosion difficulties.

The board voted to place three stop signs on Second Street and West Avenue. The signs will stop traffic on the east side of West Avenue going north and on both sides of Second Street.

Blame It On Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) —The 435 members of the House of Representatives will get a total of about $2 million more a year in expense allowances under an order issued by its Administration Committee

The order, effective May 1, increases the travel allowance for congressmen by 65 percent to a base of $4,950 a year. Officials said the increase reflects higher airline fares since the last boost of travel allowances in 1979.

The new allowance provides 18 to 30 cents per mile for travel, depending on the length of a trip. Longer flights cost less per mile.

The Committee also raised by 30 percent, from $27,000 to $35,000, the amount of equipment and furnishings a congressman can buy for his offices in his home district.

The annual allowance for postage, stationary, newsletters, and other materials used for corresponding with constituents was raised 10 percent to $47,300 for each representatives.

The increases, justified by committee staffers as an effort to keep up with inflation, were announced by Committee Chairman Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif. They require no further House action.

"Now I know who to talk to. There's no more runaround."

"It makes banking easier," is the way George Shanks describes having a Personal Banker. "You don't have to look for someone to talk to."

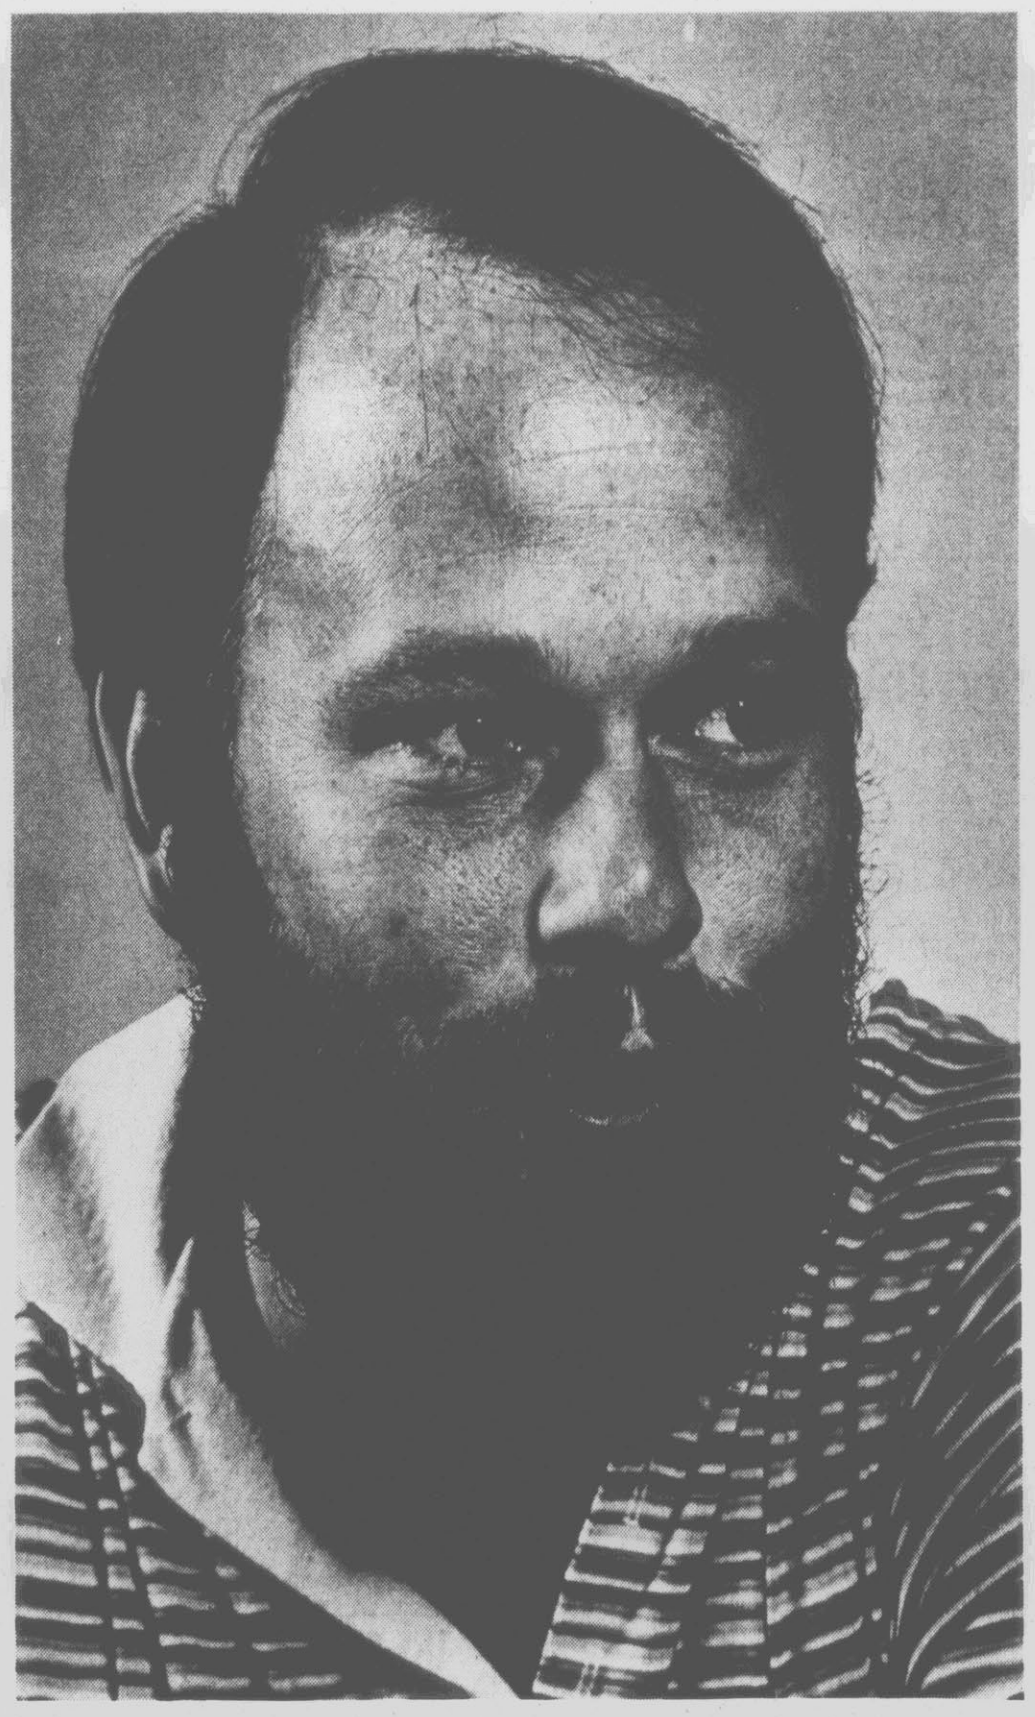
George has been banking at Wachovia for over ten years, ever since his brother suggested he try us for a car loan.

"It was a big difference," he says. "Where I banked before, it seemed like nobody had the authority to make decisions. It was just a runaround.

"Now I deal with someone who's eager to help. It's a good feeling . . . knowing I can go right in and talk to my Personal Banker anytime I like."

Is that the kind of banking relationship you want? Then stop by and have a talk with a Wachovia Personal Banker this week.

We promise there'll be no runaround.



You have a Personal Banker at Wachovia.
And only at Wachovia.

Bill Allowing DA Impose Probation Near Passage

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislation that would give district attorneys power to withhold prosecution in some criminal cases, settling them without going to trial or entering a conviction, is nearing enactment in the General Assembly.

The bill, already passed by the Senate, withstood a long and emotional debate Monday and won tentative approval in the House by a 76-32 votoe.

In a long evening session, the House also approved overwhelmingly and sent to the Senate a bill that would delay for a second time the effect of tighter speedy trial requirements, as requested by Gov. Jim Hunt.

The deferred prosecution bill was sponsored by Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe. It would allow district attorneys in certain cases to impose an alternative sentence, such as probation, instead of taking a case to trial.

In return, if the defendant agreed to the settlement, he would have no conviction entered in his record.

The bill would give the prosecutor authority to defer prosecution in cases involving a first offender charged with a crime that carries a sentence of 10 years or less in prison. The judge would also have to agree to the arrangement.

Opponents of the bill said it would open the doors to a double standard of justice, allowing those with enough money to win negotiated agreements that avoid conviction.

"It completely disregards the concept of fair sentencing," said Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne.

"We're going back to the old system of if you're white and rich, you'll get deferred prosecution, and if you'r poor and black, you'll get the 'fair' sentence," he said.

Rep. George Hux, D-Halifax, floor manager for the bill, said it would give prosecutors a third option, in addition to that of dropping a case or taking it to trial. He said it would be used when a prosecutor did not believe the person would commit a crime again.

"This will keep a felony conviction off their records if they go out and behave themselves," he said.

Rep. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe, said the bill was a unique way to find alternatives to prison sentences, and Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, a former prosecutor, said he believes district attorneys would use the authority only in "marginal" cases.

But other legislators argued that it would gut other laws setting mandatory sentences for some crimes and would run counter to the presumptive sentencing act pushed through by Gov. Jim Hunt, which was enacted under the theme of swift and certain punishment for criminals.

"It spits in the face of trying to prosecute criminals in North Carolina," said Rep. John Brown, R-Wilkes.

In other legislative action:

Speedy Trials

The decision on speedy trials would postpone the effect of a requirement passed by the General Assembly two years ago, requiring that criminal cases be brought to trial within 90 days of arrest or indictment.

Currently the requirement is 120 days, and it originally was to be reduced by 30 days in 1980. The General Assembly last year postponed that date until this October, and the latest House action would delay the 90-day provision until October of 1983.

The House adopted the delaying amendment on a voice vote, adding it to a bill making other minor changes in the speedy trials act. It then voted 108-1 to send the bill to the Senate.

Nurses

The Senate gave final approval to a measure that changes state regulation of nurses. The bill, which had already won approval in the House, gives nurses more control over the board regulating their profession, and also has the effect of restricting certain duties to be handled only by licensed nurses.

Open Meetings

The House refused to concur in changes made by the Senate to a bill that would clarify circumstances under which state and local boards of elections could hold closed meetings. Rep. Doug Clark, D-Duplin, sponsor of the bill, asked the House to reject the Senate changes, and House Speaker Liston Ramsey turned the bill over to conferees.

The House version would have made clear that the boards could hold private meetings to hear investigative reports and consider taking action in disputed election cases. Lobbyists for the North Carolina Press Association did not object to the bill.

But Clark said Senate changes rewrote the bill and, in his opinion, rendered it useless. "I don't think the bill does anything now," he said.

Utilities

The House voted narrowly to return to committee a bill empowering the Utilities Commission to hire lawyers and expert witnesses when appearing before federal courts and agencies in natural gas rate cases.

The House voted 56-54 to send the bill back to the Public Utilities Committee, after Rep. Ben Tison, D-Mecklenburg, vigorously opposed the measure. Tison said natural gas companies object to the bill because they are being assessed for the attorney fees yet had no say over who was hired.

Elections

The House also voted narrowly to defeat a controversial election-law bill. On a 55-53 final vote, the House defeated a bill that would have required counties to file with the state copies of their precinct maps.

The vote reversed an earlier House vote in favor of the bill. The reversal came after the bill drew bipartison opposition, including a strongly worded attack by Republican Rep. Howard Coble of Greensboro.

Report Receipt Of Paving Funds

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE — Mayor Walter Dail reported to the Winterville Town Board Monday night that paving funds for the Warren-Gardner Subdivision have been received and placed in savings until the time they are needed to pave the streets in the new subdivision.

Dail said the cost of the paving includes an increase since negotiations began on the project. Dail added the owners have requested that a ditch near the property be filled in, saying they will supply the needed tile if the town will supply the labor. The board approved proceeding with the subdivision project.

Town attorney David Duffus reported on the status of the North Winterville Cemetery. Duffus said county records showed the owner of the land as Joe Tripp of Ayden and the tax value on the property listed as $1,200. Mayor Dail agreed to talk with Tripp to determine what agreement has been worked out with persons buying plots.

Duffus also reported on the Person Street matter saying that when the town received the property about 20 years ago, the area residents had, according to state statutes, two years to ask the town for compensation for the land. No such action was taken, and now the statute of limitations had run out and the citizens could be barred from taking any action against the town.

The land was given to the town to complete a street and install water and sewer lines about 20 years ago. Dail said written records of the transfer could not be found, but the land was given verbally during a town meeting about 1960, by Mrs. Lovenia Person.

During heated discussion on the problem of ownership, Alderman Bobby Crawford said, "This has been going on long enough. It's not fair to the citizens who live on the street and not fair for the other landowners. If the street were finished and drained it would make your land more valuable, also getting the street dragged."

Attorney Duffus was instructed by the board to check the actual value of the land involved and report back to the board.

Mayor Dail also reported that delivery for the new police vehicle will be June 20.

In new business taken up by the board, it was agreed that a new six-inch water main would be installed on Sylvania Street to serve the Cox house.

The board also approved Farley, Prescott, Mizzelle, & Co for the annual audit and approved the Powell bill letter.

Tax to be released were approved. They were; 1980, $142.43; 1978, $13.83; 1977, $1.09.

The board was read a letter from Fred Baggett, Associate General Counsel, North Carolina League of Municipalities concerning the board of adjustments. In the letter it was clarified that the town board was not required to create the board of adjustments, but was only given permission to, which in turn gives them the authority to abolish it if they see fit. After some discussion by the board on the matter, the matter was tabled until the next meeting.

In final business, the board approved budget meetings for May 15, June 1, June 18, and June 29.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged lower today as concern lingered over rising interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which lost 12.96 points Monday, fell .81 point to 962.62 by noon.

Losers led gainers by a 7-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After reaching an eight-year high of 1,024.05 on April 27, the Dow Jones industrials plummeted 60.61 points in the past two weeks as interest rates soared and the bond market faltered.

On Monday, banks nationwide raised their prime lending rates to 19.5 percent from 19 percent. Two weeks ago, the prime rate stood at 17.5 percent.

Predictions of another bulge in the nation's money supply figures to be reported Friday have raised fears of further prime rate spurts.

But analyst Leslie Pollack at Shearson Loeb Rhoades says he believes the stock market "seems to have found some stability" following the interest rate shocks of the past two weeks.

The NYSE's composite index of all of its listed common shares fell .07 to 74.98. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.15 at 356.51.

Volume on the Big Board reached 17.91 million shares over the first two hours, up from 15.64 million in the comparable period Monday.

NORAD Name To Be Changed

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The North American Air Defense Command, known as NORAD for 23 years, gets a new name today.

NORAD, located deep in Cheyenne Mountain, will be known as the North American Aerospace Defense Command, officials said. The name change will reflect expanded surveillance and missile warning responsibilities of the joint United States-Canadian command.

The change was part of the new NORAD agreement signed during President Reagan's recent visit to Ottawa.

The documents extending the NORAD agreement for another five years were signed by Reagan, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Defense Minister Giles Lamontagne, External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

CAR HITS BRIDGE — Rescuers remove the driver of a car after it collided with a concrete bridge rail on Mumford Road Monday night. Trooper A. G. Wright reported a car driven by Earline Butler, of Shady Knoll Mobile Home Park, was headed east on Mumford Road when it crossed the center line and struck the concrete bridge rail head-on. Wright identified a passenger in the auto as Ms. Butler's two year old daughter, Tammy. Both Ms. Butler and her daughter were transportated to Pitt Memorial for treatment of their injuries. Ms. Butler, according to Wright, was charged with operating left of center, and operating a vehicle while license was revoked. The accident occurred about 9:50 p.m. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Talk Future Of Missions

NEW YORK (AP) — The future of Maryknoll missionaries in El Salvador is being discussed in a Guatemala meeting following the return of a priest who surfaced after a secret sojourn in the countryside.

One possiblity is that the order will cease all missionary work in El Salvador if it is decided that pastoral work is being impeded, or that the missionaries' safety is at stake, said Mike Lavery, a local spokesman.

Such a decision would be discussed first with religious leaders in El Salvador, Lavery said.

The Rev. Roy Bourgeois, a Maryknoll priest based in Chicago, disappeared April 26 from San Salvador, where he had been serving as interpreter for a Chicago television crew.

Bourgeois, active in an El Salvador solidarity committee in Chicago, returned from the countryside 10 days later, saying he had taken "a walk with the poor" and met with leftist guerrillas.

His disappearance sparked fears that he had been killed by pro-government extremists, fears heightened by the shooting deaths of three nuns and lay religious workers, including two Maryknoll nuns, last year.

Computer Firm Plans Expand

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Raleigh computer manufacturer says it will spend $1.7 million to double its engineering and manufacturing capacity.

Gov. Jim Hunt announced the proposed expansion Monday by Telex Corporation's Terminal Communications Division. He said the move could result in 200 additional jobs at the plant, which currently employs 500.

"We're pleased this outstanding electronics-related corporation has decided to undertake such a significant expansion," Hunt said.

Harry L. Eberly, president of Telex Terminal Communications Division, said it will take between one and two years to reach the expected employment level of 700. New employees will begin work in nine months to one year, he said.

Bess Truman Is 'Critical'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Former first lady Bess Truman remained hospitalized in critical condition today after kidney and heart complications developed following hip surgery, a hospital spokesman said.

Tom Peck, a spokesman for Research Medical Center in Kansas City, said Mrs. Truman, 96, spent a quiet night in the intensive care unit.

He said her blood pressure stabilized and her potassium level returned to normal during the night, but doctors continued to monitor her kidney output.

"It's nip and tuck," Mrs. Truman's long-time personal physician, Dr. Wallace Graham, said Monday evening. "But I certainly think we can beat it."

Graham said Mrs. Truman's kidneys began to fail Sunday night, causing her potassium level to fall very low, a condition which could lead to heart failure. He said the former first lady also had experienced cardiac irregularities and fluctuations in her blood pressure, but the problems were "under control."

"Anyone 96 should be considered in critical condition until removed from the intensive care unit," Graham said. "Statistics show the percentages are against her, but all things considered, she seems to be holding up quite well."

Graham said Mrs. Truman developed a problem with kidney output because doctors had restricted her fluid intake to prevent a buildup of fluids on the lungs, which could lead to pneumonia.

A catheter was inserted near Mrs. Truman's heart late Monday afternoon so medication could be administered to relieve her ailing kidneys and stabilize her potassium level.

Graham said Mrs. Truman's kidneys were working at about one-third of their capacity.

The widow of the late President Harry S. Truman was admitted to the hospital last Wednesday after breaking a hip in a fall at her home in nearby Independence, Mo.

She has been in intensive care since undergoing surgery Thursday to repair the broken hip. Her vital signs had been in stable condition until the complications developed.

Cooney Destroys Norton In 54 Seconds

NEW YORK (AP) — At this rate, we may never get to find out if Gerry Cooney can take a punch.

Ken Norton landed precious few of them on the undefeated 24-year-old heavyweight before Cooney destroyed him in the first round of their scheduled 10-round heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden Monday night.

Cooney spent just 54 seconds doing away with Norton, tearing into the former World Boxing Council champion with a savage, devastating shower of punches. The end came with Norton slumped in his own corner as referee Tony Perez waved Cooney away.

It was the 25th consecutive victory for the youngster from Huntington, N.Y., and set the stage for an almost certain WBC title shot against Mike Weaver. And promotor Don King was a ringside letting it be known that Cooney, the No. 1 ranked contender in both boxing divisions, could have a fight with Larry Holmes for the World Boxing Council version of the title.

For Norton, listed as 35 years old, it could mean the end of his career, once and for all.

Ironically, the quick knockout came four years to the night after Norton had devastated Duane Bobick in the same Garden ring. That fight took 58 seconds but Cooney was finished four seconds faster. The end came so quickly that Cooney remembered almost everything that happened in the fight.

"I hit him with a right hand to the jaw, a straight right," he said. "Then I dropped down to the body and caught him inside with two punches."

The lefts to the body left Norton grimacing, crouched in his corner.

"I heard him gasp," Cooney said. That's when he moved in for the kill, drilling Norton with six straight punches to the head.

"I got a little frightened," Cooney said. "I was hitting him and he was unconscious. I was afraid I might hurt him."

As Norton slumped under the storm of blows, referee Perez moved in and signalled the end of the fight. Later, the former champion reflected on what had happened.

"It's self-explanatory," he said. "I did not expect Gerry to come out that quick. He hit harder than I thought he would and quicker than I thought he would. He surprised me with everything he did. I just didn't expect it. He's a very talented fighter."

For Norton, it could mean the end of a long, distinguished career. This was the second one-round knockout he's suffered in his last four fights. After losing the WBC title to Larry Holmes in 1978, Norton was knocked out in one round by since-retired Earnie Shavers, March 23, 1979. Then came a 10-round draw against Scott LeDoux Aug. 19, 1979 and his announced retirement. He stayed away from the ring for 15 months before returing last November to outpoint previously unbeaten Randy "Tex" Cobb and set up the date with Cooney.

Originally, this was scheduled as part of a boxing extravaganza promoted by Ross Fields, also known as Harold J. Smith. But that program collapsed under financial difficulties and charges of bank fraud. When the show was resurrected, Norton wasn't the only one knocked out. The crowd of 9,436 paid $77,121 and even with $500,000 from Home Box Office for cable television rights, the Garden took a bath with Cooney's guaranteed $1 million payday and the $850,000 Norton got.

In the undercard, 20-year-old Marvis Frazier scored his fourth consecutive heavyweight victory, stopping Steve Zouski in the sixth round of their bout and Miguel Montilla stopped Domingo Ayala in the third round of their welterweight bout. In other prelims, Mike Fisher stopped Ron Huston in a light heavyweeight fight, Jimmy Clark stopped Kid Samson in a heavyweight bout, Carlton Tillery outpointed Fred Brown and Phillip Brown and Mike Benning fought a six-round heavyweight draw.

Then came Cooney and Norton and Cooney wasted no time in his pursuit of the veteran. That strategy came from his trainer, Victor Valle.

"We knew we had to be careful of Norton," he said. "We didn't want to happen to Gerry what happened to Bobick. So I told Gerry to go right to work. Don't lose any time. The faster you're out of the ring, the better it is."

Cooney has specialized in fast finishes. His last fight against Ron Lyle ended at 2:49 of the first round and in his last fight before that, he stopped Jimmy Young in four rounds. That means since Dec. 14, 1979, he's boxed less than six rounds in three fights.

"I know he can take a punch," Valle said. "We don't have to prove it. I hope we never have to prove it."

Cooney bristled at the suggestion that he still hasn't been truly tested.

"I don't have to listen to that," he snapped. "I've been tested 25 times now. No fight is easy. Anybody who weighs over 200 pounds is tough."

Cooney also offered another view of the Norton fight.

"I got one step closer to my goal of becoming heavyweight champion of the world," he said. "There's a song, 'Movin' Up.' Now, I'm gonna go have a Shirley Temple."

Cooney Feared He'd Hurt Foe

NEW YORK (AP) — Gerry Cooney said he looked into Ken Norton's eyes, and that what he saw frightened him.

With about 30 seconds gone in their scheduled 10-round fight, Cooney hit Norton with a hard left on the ropes. Norton, a former world heavyweight champion, moved into his own corner, dazed. Cooney hit him again, and again, and again — until Norton was sitting on the canvas.

"I was taught to watch my opponent at all times," Cooney said after the fight. "I watched his eyes. I don't know how many punches I threw, but I knew he was hurt. He was unconscious on the ropes. It crossed my mind then that I might hurt him."

Referee Tony Perez stopped the fight after it was only 54 seconds old, giving Cooney his ninth consecutive victory by knockout and second in a row in the first round. While the loss probably ended the boxing career of the 35-year-old Norton, Cooney's victory moved him one step closer to his ultimate goal, the world heavyweight championship.

Dennis Rappaport, one of Cooney's managers, said his fighter was "very, very close to a fight with Mike Weaver," the World Boxing Association heavyweight champion. "There'll be a press conference in the near future," Rappaport said.

Cooney now seems to have his choice of title chances. While Rappaport was telling a press conference about the possibility of a Weaver bout, promoter Don King stood at ringside and told anyone within earshot that he would put Cooney up against World Boxing Council titleholder Larry Holmes.

Cooney went into the Norton fight as the No.1 contender for both versions of the heavyweight title.

Norton appeared at a postfight news conference, by all appearances none the worse for the wear. He did admit, however, that he was out when the fight was stopped.

JACKSONVILLE — Sparked by school-record performances by Bernistine Haselrig, Angie Atkinson and Judy Daniels, Greenville Rose's girls' track team finished third in the Eastern Sectional Track meet Monday afternoon.

The Rampettes scored 46 points to trail first-place Goldsboro, which finished with 112 points, and second-place Jacksonville, which ended up with 61 points. In other area results, Williamston was seventh with 21 points, Farmville Central tied for 10th with 16 points and Roanoke tied for 20st with seven points.

Haselrig led the Rampettes in the 32-team field meet. She finished first in the discus with a school-record throw of 117-4 and second in the shot put with a toss of 34-9½. Haselrig now advances to the Eastern Regionals set for this Thursday at Wilson Fike.

Haselrig will be joined at the regionals by Atkinson, Daniels and the Rose 800-meter and 400-meter relay teams. Also at the regionals from area schools will be Farmville Central's Charlene and Rose Lang and Williamston's Vernita Ore.

Atkinson set a school record in the long jump with a leap of 17-8½, good enough for third place. Daniels also set a Rose record, finishing second in the 100-meter dash with a time of 12.3.

Rose's fourth and final school record of the day was set by the 800-meter relay team, which finished second behind Goldsboro with a time of 1:45.5. Running for Rose in the relay were Daniels, Tammy Mayo, Shelia Murphy and Atkinson.

Rose's 400-meter relay team also qualified for Thursday's meet, finishing third with a time of 51.1. Running in the relay were Atkinson, Deidra Brewington, Murphy and Daniels.

For Farmville Central, Charlene Lang finished first in the shot put with a throw of 38-10 and Rose Lang was fourth in the 400-meter dash. For Williamston, Ore qualified for Thursday's meet by finishing fourth in the triple jump with a leap of 35-7.

Hunt Captures Golfing Title

WILSON — Wilson Hunt ousted Rose High School as the reigning Division I golf champion at the conference's championship match yesterday.

Hunt finished the day with a 306 total, while Rose and Northeastern tied for second place with 309 scores.

Wilson Fike finished in fourth place at 338, followed by Rocky Mount at 344, Northern Nash at 347 and Wilson Beddingfield at 359.

John Williams of Hunt captured the individual title, carding a 35-34—69 round, three under par.

Rose's Jack Mann finished second with a 73, while Ty Poston of Northeastern was third with a 74. Glen Bulliner of Northeastern was fourth with a 75, followed by Fike's Bill Boyette with a 76.

Tieing for sixth place, with 77's were Harry Umphlette of Northeastern and Kelly Kee of Rose. Davis Lane of Hunt had a 78 for eight place, followed by Tom Brewer of Rose and J. Pittman of Hunt, both with 79. Brian Hill of Rose, T. Smith of Northern Nash and Ken Williams of Hunt finished in a tie for 11th with 80's.

Each of these finishers was then named to the All-Conference team.

Rose continues competition next Monday, traveling to Jacksonville for the regionals. Hunt, meanwhile, has been placed in the Durham regional. The top two teams in the regionals qualify for further state playoff competition.

Valkyries Top Southwest, 8-2

PINETOPS — D.H. Conley continued to maintain its hold on first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference Monday afternoon. Sparked by Karen Barrett's first-inning three-run homer the Valkyries defeated Southwest Edgecombe, 8-2, in an ECC softball game.

The victory left Conley at 12-2 overall and 11-2 in the league, one game ahead of second-place Greene Central.

The Valkyries jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Barrett's home run and did not score again until the seventh, when they pushed home five runs.

Meanwhile, the Lady Cougars narrowed the deficit to 3-2 with a run in the third and the sixth but it was not enough.

D.H. Conley was led at the plate by Tammy Streeter's three hits in four at bats. Lisa Hardy and Irish Barnhill were both two of three for Conley while Barnes, Angie Roberson and Lori Kandrotas were all two for four.

D.H. Conley was to have played at Farmville Central today. The Valkyries travel to Southern Nash Thursday.

Royals Meet After Losing Another

By The Associated Press

The Kansas City Royals, having lost 16 of 22 meetings with other American League teams and at their lowest point in nine years, hope their latest meeting may turn things around.

Catcher Jerry Grote called a players-only meeting Monday night following the Royals' 9-1 loss to the Texas Rangers. The setback was the Royals' ninth in 11 home games and dropped them 10 games below .500 for the first time since June 1972. The defending American League champs are last in the West Division, 13½ games behind the pacesetting Oakland A's.

"What was said in the meeting was for the players, not for the press," Grote said. But shortstop U.L. Washington called the session "a pretty good idea. It wasn't yelling — it was to shake us up, get us together. Just calling the meeting was something that needed to be done. The point was to get everybody pulling together. But it was too short a meeting to get it all off our chests. That would have taken a couple of hours."

Bump Wills rapped four hits and drove in three runs to lead Texas over the Royals, who have lost four games in a row. The Rangers got started with three runs in the third inning off Larry Gura, two coming home on a double by Buddy Bell. Wills singled a run home and scored in the fifth inning and added an RBI single in the sixth and an RBI double in the eighth.

"I understand the frustration they're going through," Wills said of the Royals' slump. "I've been there, being with the Texas Rangers for five years."

"They're struggling right now," said Texas Manager Don Zimmer. "But I guarantee you one thing — somebody will pay for it."

"We haven't really had someone get hot with the bats in terms of RBIs," said Kansas City Manager Jim Frey. "Eleven RBIs (Amos Otis) is leading the team, and that shows no one has been hot driving in runs."

Indians 3, White Sox 1

Joe Charboneau, who hit 23 home runs last year as a rookie, slammed his first this season, a tie-breaking two-run shot in the seventh inning. Bert Blyleven picked up his fourth consecutive victory and also posted his fourth complete game, yielding four hits while striking out nine.

Charboneau, who brought a .158 batting average into the game, said he is not concerned about a sophomore jinx. "I'd never heard of it before," he said. "I'm not worried about home runs. I want to hit for average. The home runs will come. I just want to get my average up."

Red Sox 7, Blue Jays 6

Gary Allenson drove in five runs with a pair of singles and a double and Rick Miller tied a major league record with four doubles to pace Boston to its fifth straight victory. Miller and Allenson hit consecutive doubles to produce the winning run with two out in the ninth inning. Miller also had a single in a 5-for-5 game. Jorge Bell and Willie Upshaw homered for Toronto, which has dropped four in a row, all to Boston.

Astros 5, Reds 0

Nolan Ryan struck out 11 batters, the 133rd time he has whiffed 10 or more in a game, and Jose Cruz slammed a two-run homer to pace Houston. Ryan, the third most prolific strikeout pitcher in baseball history, gave up seven hits and walked three.

Houston scored three times in the first inning off Mike LaCoss after Terry Puhl and Craig Reynolds led off with singles. Cesar Cedeno doubled for one run and, after an intentional walk to Danny Heep loaded the bases, Art Howe delivered an RBI single. LaCoss walked Alan Ashby to force in the third run. Cedeno singled and scored ahead of Cruz's homer in the fifth.

Braves 3, Pirates 2

Bruce Benedict drilled a run-scoring single with two out in the 10th inning to give Atlanta the victory. Benedict's hit off Kent Tekulve came after Chris Chambliss singled with one out and Glenn Hubbard drew a two-out walk. It was the ninth consecutive setback for Tekulve, who dropped his last seven decisions a year ago.

"I think that's the first hit I've ever gotten off him," said Benedict. The game-winning hit also enabled Atlanta to beat the Pirates for the 12th time in the last 13 meetings, with Tekulve dropping five of those decisions.

"My most frustrating time," Tekulve said of his current slump.

Lions 5
Jaycees 4

The Lions remained unbeaten in three North State Little League outings yesterday with a 5-4 win over the Jaycees.

The Lions scored first, getting a run in the first. They added a second score in the third inning. In the fourth, however, the Jaycees rallied for two, tieing the score at 2-2. In the top of the fifth, the Jaycees moved ahead with two more runs for a 4-2 margin.

But the Lions rallied for three in the bottom of the fifth to pull out the win. Earl Evans led off with a walk and Tom Moye also walked. Junior Taft singled, scoring one run. Ralph Harper sacrificed in Moye, and Mike Duncan reached on an error, scoring Taft with the winning run.

Taft led the Lion hitting with two, while Jody Barnes had two to pace the Jaycees, now 1-2 on the year.

Moose 6
Exchange 3

The Moose won their first game in three tries Monday, downing the Exchange, 6-3, in Tar Heel Little League action. The Exchange is now 0-3.

The Exchange did score first, getting a pair of runs in the second. The Moose came back with one in the third, then pushed over five in the fourth to win it.

Timmy Ricks led off the fourth with a walk and Jay Mattox reached on a fielder's choice. Tripp Andrews then cracked a three-run homer for a 4-2 lead. L.L. Everett kept it going with a walk and Greg Jones also got a free pass. Wesley Jackson walked to load them up, and walks to Neil Bullock and Ricks forced in two more runs.

The other Exchange run came in the fifth.

The Moose had no one with more than one hit, while Chris Coble had two to pace the Exchange.

To the Editor:

Yesterday (Wednesday) I was fortunate to be a witness to one of the most exciting and incredible events possible in sports. At Rocky Mount our Rose High Jr. Varsity defeated Rocky Mount in baseball 12-0. Our young Billy Owens went all the way on the mound. He not only won the game, pitched a shutout, issued no walks, threw a no-hitter, but pitched a perfect game. That's right—he faced 21 men and retired 21 in order! This is something a lot of people never see in a lifetime.

This afternoon in the Reflector I was flabbergasted to find that our newspaper, the Reflector, had not one word about this incredible accomplishment. All of us who were there were filled with great pride in our team, who backed Billy flawlessly, and with pride in our city. What an unbelievable oversight by the Reflector in not carrying the story of this once in a lifetime accomplishment.

I'll bet the Yankee ownership and many other clubs learned of it even before the people in Billy's own town heard of it. Can't something be done about this lack of coverage by the Reflector?

(Editor's Note: Coverage is a two-way street. There is no way a two-man sport staff can actively staff every sporting event that goes on in the coverage area. Nor are we mind readers. It takes an effort by those officials of the schools involved to get the news to the newspaper. No one, not the athletic director, the principal, the coaching staff, the players, parents...no one bothered to let us know about this game until it was too late for publication under long established policy. Even then, it was only mentioned to us in passing.

You are right in that a performance like this should not have gone unrecognized, but officials at Rose High School are just as guilty of the oversight as the Reflector.)

No Movement On Anything As Sides, Federal Mediator Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug DeCinces summed up the progress of talks aimed at averting a major-league baseball strike with the same smoothness he displays around third base for the Baltimore Orioles.

"There hasn't been any movement on anything," DeCinces, the major-league player representative, said after a two-hour bargaining session with a federal mediator Monday.

The two primary negotiators — Ray Grebey for the owners and Marvin Miller for the players — were less blunt. But neither was declaring that baseball's second players strike in nine years, threatened for May 29, could be avoided.

Grebey, director of the Player Relations Committee, said the session in his office had been "a good meeting" but declined to be specific.

Asked if anything could be assumed from the length of the first negotiating session in two weeks, Grebey replied: "You can draw whatever conclusions you like."

Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, said only that the two sides would meet again whenever called by Kenneth Moffett, the federal mediator. Moffett gave no indication when the next session would be held.

Earlier, Grebey had said he was "not optimistic" about averting a walkout, and Miller had asked: "Has anyone among the owners reassessed the need for what they are demanding?"

"We still have a long way to go," said DeCinces.

What the owners want is compensation for certain free agents lost in the re-entry draft, the only issue unresolved last spring when a last-minute compromise averted a strike.

A panel of players and owners was then unable to reach agreement on the issue and, on Feb.19, the owners unilaterally implemented their compensation plan. Ten days later, the players said they would strike.

The owners say soaring free-agent salaries will leave them bankrupt. They want compensation in the form of a roster player if they lose a top-line performer to free-agency.

Since the free-agent bonanza started in the mid-1970s, the only compensation a club has received for losing a free agent has been a pick in the annual amateur draft.

The players argue that any compensation other than the amateur-draft pick would cut down on the freedom of movement they won in previous contract negotiations.

Last week, the players' union filed unfair-labor charges against the owners, accusing them of failing to turn over information about their balbclubs' finances. The players say they need the data to determine if the owners' arguments are valid.

Malone Statement Handed Out In Boston Locker Room By Coach

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Coach Bill Fitch walked from locker to locker, silently dropping a piece of paper in each one.

What the Celtics found in their cubicles after practice Monday were copies of a newspaper report. It was a statement made Sunday by Houston center Moses Malone after the Rockets tied their National Basketball Association championship series with Boston at two games each.

"I don't think they're all that good," it began. "I think we're a better team."

If Fitch was trying to incite his players to prove Malone wrong in tonight's fifth game here, the point was lost on Larry Bird.

"So what?" Boston's outstanding forward said of Malone's remarks.

"Guys just talk all the time. They can say what they want to," said Bird. "Words and talk don't get the job done. Playing basketball and scoring points and rebounding and going out and doing your best get it done."

The Celtics, 62-20 in the regular season, haven't been doing their best, and Bird has not been scoring points. Consequently, they have not done the job many people expected of them in the best-of-seven series with the underdog Rockets, who were 40-42.

Part of the credit for limiting Bird's scoring goes to Houston forward Robert Reid.

"He's done a good job," said Bird, last season's NBA rookie of the year. "There's no doubt about it, I'm not scoring. I'm not shooting the ball well, but everybody just looks at the scoring. I think I'm averaging about 18 (actually, 16) rebounds a game.

"When he keeps me under 10 points, five rebounds and three assists a game, that's when I'll start talking about how great he is."

"That's right," Reid said upon the Rockets' arrival here late Monday afternoon. "You're not going to completely stop Larry Bird.

"The two previous games, Larry said he was concentrating on rebounding. That's great. I hope this game he decides to concentrate on assists."

Bird has made just three of his 11 field goal attempts and scored eight points in each of the last two games, his first consecutive single-figure games of the season. His average of 13.3 points per game for the Houston series is below his 21.2 regular season mark and 25.5 average for his previous 11 playoff games this season.

But he has grabbed 64 rebounds in the four games with the Rockets, including 10 and 12 in his eight-point games Saturday and Sunday. He also had seven assists in Sunday's 91-86 loss in Houston.

"Larry hasn't been shooting well but he's been very aggressive on the boards, played good defense and passed well. So you're not going to stop him," said Reid.

But has Bird hit a slump at the wrong time?

"We'll find that question out tomorrow night," he said.

"I'm concerned about Larry only to the point that he's not concerned. Anytime he's gotten into difficulty with his game, we've talked about it," Fitch said. "This time, he hasn't talked to me about it."

If Fitch isn't overly troubled about his top player, he is concerned about the Celtics' ballhandling. They have had 74 turnovers in the four games.

"The fast-break team (like Boston) will make turnovers," he said. "I'm more concerned about the turnovers when we set up or the no-brainers where you pass the ball and all the other guy can do is pass it again."

After being walloped 94-71 Saturday, Houston slowed down the game Sunday. Boston will be out to set a faster tempo, which, said Celtics guard M.L. Carr, is generated by strong defense.

Allison Ups Point Lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Allison has strengthened his lead over Ricky Rudd in NASCAR's Winston Cup Grand National point standings, according to the latest statistics.

Allison, with 1,731 points, holds a 158-point lead over Rudd who has amassed 1,573 points in his bid for a first NASCAR Grand National driving title.

Wichita Says Proof Lacking

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A three-month internal investigation of alleged payoffs to Wichita State University basketball players has led to the issuance of a WSU committee report saying the accusations can't be proved.

The 33 pages of findings distributed at a news conference Monday concerned only charges raised in articles printed by The Kansas City Times in early February. Committee members said some allegations have been made by people other than the four players quoted in the Times and those new issues will be investigated further and covered in a later report.

The report issued Monday contains little opinion and few obvious conclusions, but one committee member said he reached a personal conviction about the conduct of the coaches accused of participating in the payoffs.

"The evidence, to my mind, seems very, very strong that the coaches are not guilty," said Dr. Dwight Murphey, a WSU professor.

Another member of the panel, Dr. James J. Rhatigan, WSU vice president for student affairs and dean of students, said some of the charges in the Times articles were disproved during the probe, while others were found to be suspect because of "the web of contradiction and implausibility that surrounds them."

WSU President Clark Ahlberg, who appointed the committee, said in some instances the accusations were "one person's word against another's" with no potential for independent corroboration.

Times Managing Editor Chris Waddle said in response to the university's report, "The Kansas City Times stands by its story. I think it's important to point out that the independent investigation by the (National Collegiate Athletic Association) NCAA is forthcoming."

A woman the Times said received an abortion at the expense of a WSU coach refused to sign a medical release to allow investigators to check out the story.

One source told the committee the woman entered a Wichita hospital as an indigent patient and never was billed for the abortion, the report said.

Rhatigan said one of the Times stories referred to WSU's basketball team as one of "the best teams money can buy." He said the committee is convinced "such a statement is neither justifiable nor responsible."

Rhatigan said the committee felt the Times reporters should have been able to locate some of the same people and evidence the committee found.

The committee completed 60 hours of tape-recorded interviews with 40 people and non-taped interviews with about 260 others during their probe.

The committee said about 60 percent of the accusations recounted in the Times stories came from former WSU player Richard Williams.

The committee said it found numerous contradictions in his allegations.

Controversy Goes On At Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The motors at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway may be quieted by a wet track, but the sound of controversy can still be heard in Gasoline Alley.

The track was closed for the second straight day Monday by rain and cold temperatures. However, officials for the May 24 Indy 500 were busy trying to resolve questions about the lineup for qualifying attempts presented by three drivers.

Two of the three Whittington driving brothers, Don and Bill, along with rookie Phil Caliva spent most of the day hoping to hear that their positions in the lineup for qualifying attempts had been improved.

The question of position becomes vital because it determines whether a driver can try for the pole position or if he even gets an opportunity to make a four-lap qualifying attempt.

Rules for the race guarantee every driver who drew for a qualifying position and took his place in line at the start of Saturday's time trials will have one chance to qualify for the pole or the race. Other drivers could guarantee themselves a chance to be among the 33-car fastest qualifiers by lining up behind those who drew for position.

As soon as there is a break in the line, with no one ready to make a qualifying attempt, all guarantees are over.

The Whittingtons drew for position, but their cars were not in line when qualifications began. Chief steward Tom Binford said that meant they had lost their guarantee to compete for the pole position. Caliva's situation was different. He did not draw for position, but said he had the car on the track and was ready to take his position behind the last driver going for the pole.

"There were about 30 people who can verify we were at the right spot at the right time," Caliva said Monday while awaiting word from race officials. "Someone made a mistake in recording. We didn't file a protest because we didn't know there was a question about our position until we saw it in the newspaper today."

Binford said late Monday Caliva's position was still being reviewed.

The Whittingtons refused to comment on their situation until a ruling had been made, but were not available after Binford announced the ruling.

Binford said after an informal review of the facts regarding Don Whittington's car it was decided to place it in the qualifying line in a position where it was not guaranteed a qualifying attempt.

"This position is the one assigned by the control official at the time the car reported to the line," Binford said. "The original position assigned as a result of the drawing on Friday evening remains forfeited due to the non-compliance with the regulation requiring a car to be in line at the start of qualification."

Don Whittington, a 35-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was in line and was to be the next driver to attempt a qualification run when rain halted Saturday's action here.

Binford was asked what would have happened if he had gone out and qualified in the position which officials have now said he forfeited by arriving at the line 15 minutes late.

"I don't want to answer a hypothetical question," Binford said.

The chief steward said the question of Bill Whittington, who reported about 45 minutes late, was not discussed Monday.

In another off-track development, it was announced that Wally Dallenbach, retired as an active driver, had agreed to attempt to qualify Mario Andretti's Patrick Wildcat while Andretti is competing in the Belgian Grand Prix next weekend.

Andretti did not get a chance to run in the rain-abbreviated first weekend of qualifying. He's committed to driving in the Formula One race for Alfa Romeo this weekend when the time trials are scheduled to end.

The rules state that the car must start at the back of the 33-car race field if it is driven by someone other than the person who qualified it.

Andretti, the 1969 Indy winner, asked that he be allowed to qualify the car early this week. But he was turned down by Binford, who explained to Andretti that there was no provision for such a situation in the entry blank.

That left team owner U.E. "Pat" Patrick with the option of using another driver to qualify the new car or of not having it in the race, which he said never was considered.

Dallenbach, 44, retired from racing after the 1979 season and now works for Championship Auto Racing Teams as co-chief steward of their Indy car racing series. He was not even in Indianapolis when contacted by the Patrick team.

Dallenbach drove in 13 Indy 500s, finishing as high as fourth twice.

Mexican Rookie's Pitching Has Dodgers, Fans Doing Cartwheels

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Fabulous Fernando.

His numbers are outrageous, his emotions are invisible, and his affect on baseball this young season is enormous.

Fernando Valenzuela has the National League standing on its collective ear and the Los Angeles Dodgers doing cartwheels.

The rookie left-hander from Mexico is 20 years old and pitches like somebody who's been doing it forever. He has a screwball that makes veteran hitters look foolish and poise that is disarming.

Viva Valenzuela.

Manager Tommy Lasorda, who once was a left-handed pitcher of somewhat limited success, has handed Fernando the ball seven times this season. Valenzuela has returned a victory each time and has neglected to give up any runs in five of those starts.

He has surrendered two runs in 63 innings for an 0.29 earned run average. Add on to that 172-3 scoreless innings last September for a major league ERA of 0.22. And before he reported to the Dodgers, he had a string of 35 scoreless innings at San Antonio of the Texas League, so that for the last 1152-3 innings he's pitched, his ERA is 0.16. He leads the league in six pitching categories and is one short of the rookie record for consecutive victories set by Dave "Boo" Ferris of the Boston Red Sox in 1945.

The counsel for the National League Hitters Association would like a word — in Spanish, of course — with Valenzuela, who speaks almost no English.

Lasorda was winless in his major league career but still sees similiarities between himself and Valenzuela. "We look alike, don't you think?" the manager said the other day. "See, two arms, two legs."

Until Lasorda started jogging a couple of months ago and trimmed some weight, he did look like Valenzuela. The Mexican is thick-bodied with a barrel chest. It was suggested to Lasorda that the pitcher looked...well, 'err...chunky.

"To me, he looks like Robert Redford in the face and Charley Atlas in the body," decided the Dodger manager.

Fernando forever.

Lasorda has picked up enough Spanish to get by when he has to communicate with his pitcher. One of the few occasions he had to visit the mound came in Houston during Shutout No.3. Mike Ivie, just acquired by the Astros, was the batter in a tight spot and Lasorda wasn't sure Valenzuela was familiar with the baseball tradition of trades that move players from one team to another overnight.

'I just went out to explain that Ivie was the same guy he'd gotten out in San Francisco the week before," said Lasorda. "But I didn't have to tell him. He knew who was up and he remembered how he'd gotten him out before."

Valenzuela has a strange pitching technique. He says he's unaware of it, but at the height of his windup, he looks away from the plate, seeming to train his eyes on the peak of his cap.

"We think he has notes written up there," said Lasorda.

His impact at the gate has been awesome. Last Friday night, he drew almost 40,000 to Shea Stadium where ordinarily, the Mets might have expected about 15,000. He attracted about 10,000 more than might have otherwise been expected for his previous two starts and the Dodgers have only general admission seats left for his next start, Thursday night against Montreal.

Cockroft Says He Is Ready

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — Don Cockroft, long one of the more consistent field goal kickers in the National Football League, says he is healthy and ready to take on any challengers to his Cleveland Browns job.

The Browns have signed four free-agent kickers — Les Petroff, Dave Jacobs, Mike Ditchfield and Bob Stracina. Steve Cox, a draft choice, is a punter who can also try field goals.

Cockroft came to town last week for a veterans' minicamp at Baldwin-Wallace College. The camp concluded Sunday, but Cockroft stayed for two more days to practice.

He is now 36 and has been the Browns' kicker for 13 years. Last season, he made 16 of 28 field goal attempts and was 0-for-3 in attempts of over 50 yards. He also had knee, leg and back problems.

"I'm the first to admit last season was not what I would have liked it to be," Cockroft said. "Physically, it was a very difficult year, even though I was more prepared mentally than I ever had been.

"But now that my knee is 100 percent sound, I don't anticipate any of the problems I had. I have as much snap in my leg as I ever did. I don't think I have slowed up a bit."

REGGAE STAR DIES — Jamaican reggae singer Bob Marley died of cancer in Miami Monday. Marley, whose band Bob Marley and the Wailers was one of the world's best known reggae groups, had been flown to Miami last Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor, who made her Broadway debut Thursday, and Eva Le Gallienne, who first appeared on Broadway in 1915, are in the running for the Tony Awards citation for best actress this season.

They'll be competing against two other women nominated Monday for best actress in a play — Glenda Jackson and Jane Lapotaire — when the Tony Awards are announced June 7.

Miss Jackson was nominated for "Rose," and Miss Lapotaire for "Piaf." Both played their title roles in London before opening on Broadway. Miss Taylor is in a revival of Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes." Miss Le Gallienne plays a grandmother besieged by selfish grandchildren in "To Grandmother's House We Go," which has closed.

None of those productions was nominated as best play of the season, which officially opened May 12, 1980, and closed Sunday. Two plays opened Sunday, the last day of Tony eligibility, but they weren't nominated either. The nominated plays are "A Lesson from Aloes" by South African playwright Athol Fugard; "A Life" by Hugh Leonard, whose "Da" contains some of the same Irish characters and won a Tony two years ago; "Amadeus" by Peter Shaffer, whose "Equus" won a Tony in 1975; and "Fifth of July" by Lanford Wilson, whose "Talley's Folly" won a Pulitzer Prize last year.

Nominess for best actor in a play are Tim Curry and Ian McKellan as composers Mozart and Salieri in "Amadeus;" Roy Dotrice in "A Life;" and Jack Weston in "The Floating Light Bulb" by Woody Allen. Curry, McKellan and Dotrice are British.

Gower Champion, who died Aug. 25, the day his show, "42nd Street," opened on Broadway, was nominated as best director and best choreographer for the production. The show, based on a movie, also was nominated as best musical.

"Sophisticated Ladies," a revue of songs by Duke Ellington, was nominated as best musical. Its director, Michael Smuin of the San Francisco Ballet, was nominated for best director. Its leading man, Gregory Hines, was nominated as best actor in a musical.

Neither of those scores was eligible in the best musical score category, since they weren't written for Broadway.

"Woman of the Year," based on a 1942 Katharine Hepburn-Spencer Tracy movie, and "Tintypes," a musical revue arranged as American history, are the other nominees in the best-musical category.

Lauren Bacall, who won a Tony in 1970 for "Applause" the last time she was on Broadway and is starring now in "Woman of the Year," was nominated as best actress in a musical. So was rock singer Linda Ronstadt for her first Broadway role "The Pirates of Penzance;" Chita Rivera, remembered for "Bye Bye Birdie," in this season's short-lived "Bring Back Birdie;" and Meg Bussart in "Brigadoon."

Male performers nominated from musicals are Kevin Kline, the pirate king, and George Rose, the modern major general, in "The Pirates of Penzance;" Martin Vidnovic, the bad guy in "Brigadoon;" and Hines.

Nominated directors are Wilford Leach, "The Pirates of Penzance;" Robert Moore, "Woman of the Year;" Champion and Smuin for musicals. Peter Coe, "A Life;" Peter Hall, "Amadeus;" Marshall Mason, "Fifth of July;" and Austin Pendleton, "The Little Foxes," were nominated as best play directors.

Seventeen theater experts, chosen by the League of New York Theaters and Producers, were on the Tony nominating committee. They voted Monday, after having seen all eligible plays and musicals. The winners are chosen in voting by 620 members of the theatrical community, including leading critics. Tony Awards, named for Antoinette Perry, founder of the American Theater Wing in World War II, will be presented in the Mark Hellinger Theater and televised live by CBS.

Charged With Task Of Watching Prime Time

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There are 4,000 souls across this land who are charged with the weighty task — O, wretched Pilgrims! — of watching every single minute of prime time television dispensed by the three commercial networks.

Every single minute. Commercials, too.

They are in this service for the Lord, volunteers who see their grim task as the stitching up of a torn and tattered national moral fabric. They will do that, they believe, by watching TV with a vigilant eye toward jiggle and an ear toward cuss.

They march under the banners of the Moral Majority and the Coalition for Better Television, in 21 squadrons of two or more people. You may have heard of this prime time search-and-destroy mission. The networks call it censorship, and abridgement of the First Amendment.

But the Rev. Don Wildmon, the Tupelo, Miss., preacher who leads these soldiers, marches steadfastly on. His squads are already issuing their reports. His computer is already ranking advertisers according to their inclinations to sponsor nasty stuff. The day of reckoning approaches, in the form of a national boycott against television's advertising sinners.

So, you wonder, just how do these squads determine what's ruining America?

Well, they sit in front of their television sets and look for sex, violence or profanity. Sex gets three subcategories of its own:

"Skin scenes," as Wildmon calls them, meaning "unnecessary emphasis on the human anatomy"; implied sexual intercourse (which can result in implied pregnancies) and sexually suggestive comments.

The elimination of suggestive comments alone would render prime time mute.

Anyway, the squad captains (trained in special video courses and instructed against bias, says Wildmon, "because we don't want to look silly") send their findings to Tupelo, where a formula is applied to the raw data, it's fed into Wildmon's computer and the baddies are identified.

They include, says Wildmon, companies such as Alberto Culver, which Wildmon classifies as a "buzzard" advertiser. "Buzzards" are companies that sit on their advertising dollar until they spot a chance for relatively cheap advertising, the sort of opportunity that often comes with touchy programs.

The Coalition has already begun communicating with the targeted sponsors, issuing them warnings last week. The warning tells the company "if you desire to make changes in advertising practice, we suggest you might desire to do so quickly."

"We didn't feel it was fair to sit back and monitor these programs and then, without warning, say, 'We're going to boycott you,'" Wildmon says. "We wanted to give them a chance to respond."

Some have. Among the companies lowering their sex scores since last fall are Revlon, American Motors and Carnation, according to Wildmon.

Sponsors don't like to talk about such things. If they publicly yield to the Coalition, they're admitting past transgressions. If they defy Wildmon's group, they face boycott. More will yield than fight, likely, but a couple of sponsors, most notably General Foods, have joined the networks in their stand against the Coalition.

The networks, on the other hand, are most willing to talk about the Coalition's threatened boycott. ABC, NBC and CBS have sent their gray-suit brigade tramping from one end of the country to the other, telling every civic luncheon that will listen that the First Amdendment is under siege.

It occurs to me that the network noise is wasted effort. If sponsors are inclined to bend under the weight of Wildmon's group, network protests won't stop them. Anyway, the networks know that as long as Wildmon's Skin Squads are glued to their tubes, someone, at least, is watching.

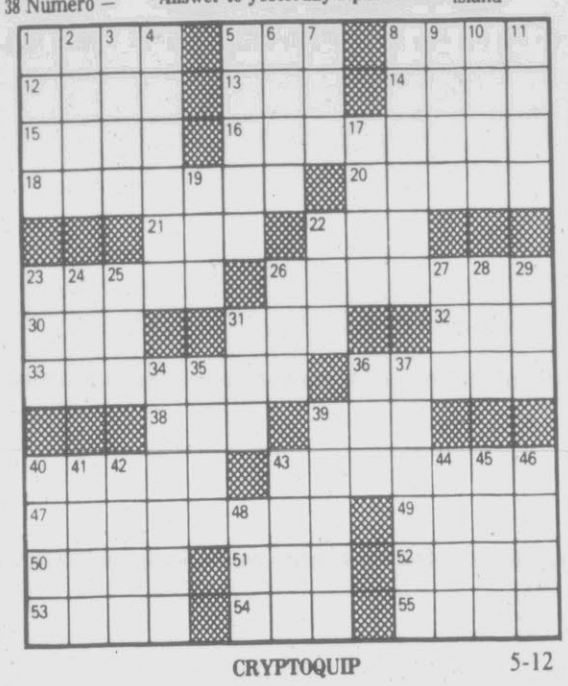
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



FOCUS

Burns and Artificial Skin

Approximately 100,000 Americans are hospitalized for severe burns each year. Besides causing agonizing pain, burns are the third-leading cause of death in the U.S. Recently a group of doctors in Massachusetts offered new hope for burn victims when they reported that artificial skin had been successfully grafted onto humans for the first time. Every square inch of skin contains a hundred sweat glands, several feet of blood vessels, four yards of nerves, and more than 3 million cells. Burn damage to more than 35 percent of the skin's surface can cause death. Doctors hope the new artificial skin will save the lives of many burn victims by keeping the body's vital fluids in, while keeping infection out.

DO YOU KNOW — Of first, second, and third degree burns, which is the most severe?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — The 16th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution legalized federal income taxes.

Opening lead: Ten of ♡.

A blueprint of the hand provided by one defender and careless play by the other allowed Jo Morse of Silver Spring, Md., to bring home a difficult contract on this hand from the recent Spring North American Championships in Detroit.

East's overcall of two clubs was the Brozel convention, and showed a heart-club two-suiter. The rest of the auction was natural and the final contract was, to put it mildly, tenuous.

West led the ten of hearts, won by dummy's king. Entries to the closed hand were at a premium, so declarer chose to come to her hand with the king of diamonds. A low trump to the nine won, and declarer was now in dummy with no sound way to get back to her hand and no clear line of play to ensure the contract.

Declarer decided that her best chance was to find East with 5-5 in his announced two-suiter, so she cashed the ace of diamonds to remove East's last card in that suit, then followed with ace and another heart. East won, but had no exit. A club return would run to declarer's queen, while a heart would allow declarer to sluff a club from hand while ruffing in dummy. She could then cross to her hand with the ace of clubs for a second spade finesse. Either way, the contract was secure.

It is not clear how declarer should tackle the hand if the conventional bid had not told her exactly what East's distribution was likely to be. However, that does not excuse West for failing to defeat four spades.

It was obvious that the queen of spades was not going to win a trick, so West might as well have put it to good use. West should ruff his partner's heart trick with the lady, cash the ace of spades and queen of diamonds to complete the defensive book, then simply exit with the fourth diamond. Now declarer has no way to avoid the loss of a club trick for down one.

Yes, we admit that declarer could always have made the contract by playing west for the exact distribution he held, but the winning line, as we mentioned earlier, is by no means obvious.

Can See End Of A Beach Clean-Up

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — Careful sunbathers dodged the remaining patches of oil on Outer Banks beaches Monday as more than 100 workers neared the end of their mission to clean up an 8,000-gallon fuel spill.

The oil washed ashore Thursday when two cargo ships, the Hellenic Carrier and the Lash Atlantico, collided.

A Coast Guard investigation panel was to meet in Norfolk, Va., today to determine the cause of the accident, Coast Guard officials said.

The water is completely clean now and the beaches are "mostly clean ... if a person looks where he is going," said Jim Parker, president of Industrial Marine Services Inc, hired by the owners of the Hellenic Carrier to shovel and scoop the sand from the beaches.

The oil was concentrated along five miles of beach from Nags Head to Coquina Beach, although it came ashore in a 17-mile slick.

"This oil was as non-toxic as possible," Parker said. "It doesn't mix with water, so we don't expect any problems with shellfish."

But six of 31 common loons picked up with oil on them have died, said Dr. Don Schultz of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The migratory fowls were to be transported from Pea Island to New Bern, where the state is setting up a cleaning center.

No other afflicted animals were picked up by Monday afternoon and none were expected, Schultz said.

"It was fortunate that it didn't occur three weeks from now, when the sea turtles would be coming in a laying eggs," Schultz said.

Meanwhile, IMS, which cleans 75 to 100 spills a year ranging from 1 to 100,000 gallons, is paying $4 an hour and $6 an hour for overtime to rake the sand into bags and carry it away. About 100 volunteers and 14 full-time IMS workers were at the cleanup, estimated to cost about $200,000.

Parker said the workforce was larger than he expected, although he said he could use another workers. About 10,000 man-hours will be needed to do the job, he said.

Bad weather concentrated the oil, which "could have been spread out otherwise," said Paul Preus, a spokesman for the insurers of the Hellenic Carrier.

The oil was heavy and lay on top of the sand, he said, adding that officials will test the sand to make sure no oil has seeped underground.

Meanwhile, large rolls of newsprint estimated to weigh two tons each were also washing ashore from the collision. Preus said the rolls may be sold as salvage.

Preus said the Coast Guard did a good job of monitoring the oil slick before it hit shore. But he criticized the media for exaggerating the oil spill, saying it was only "a medium oil spill."

Lowe's Pricing Policy

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. This reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our selling area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retails do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling price. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)
Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.

All Prices In This Tabloid Are Guaranteed Thru May 20th.
