Shea Re-Elected As Utilities Chairman

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission last night elected officers for the coming year, recommended a proposed $49.45 million budget for 1981-82 to the City Council for consideration, and adopted a list of goals and objectives for the coming year.

Tom Shea was re-elected chairman of the board, while Gene Prescott was re-named vice chairman. Curtis Howell was re-appointed secretary, while Donald Hudson was re-appointed assistant secretary.

The proposed 1981-82 budget includes $1.15 million turnover to the city from the gas and electric funds (the city will also receive an estimated $950,000 in franchise tax on electric and gas purchases), a 10 percent cost of living and/or merit pay increase for employees, and takes into account a projected 31 percent base electric wholesale rate increase expected September 1. It also takes into account a proposed 5-cents per 100 cubic feet water and sewer rate increase July 1 and a similar 5-cents per 100 cubic feet rate increase January 1.

In the electric fund, which totals $38.75 million ($32.59 million this year), proposed expenditures include: operations, $3.6 million ($3.2 million this year), purchase of electric power, $28 million ($21 million this year), capital outlay $2.1 million ($1.6 million this year), and city turnover $1.3 million ($936,700 this year).

The $2.7 million water fund ($1.8 million this year), includes, $1.03 million for operations ($929,000 this year), and $275,948 for capital outlay ($290,000 this year), while the proposed $1.56 million sewer fund ($1.3 million this year), includes $904,400 for operations ($792,800 this year) and $272,199 for capital outlay projects ($195,000 this year).

The proposed $6.4 million gas fund ($4.8 million this year) includes: $566,200 for operations ($501,700 this year), $5.15 million for natural gas purchases ($3.64 this year), $50,000 for propane gas purchases ($50,000 this year), $463,500 for capital outlay ($425,000 this year), and $124,810 for city turnover ($190,000 this year).

The nine goals adopted by the commission to be worked on during the coming year were:

—To secure the long-term lowest cost, firm electric power supply available.

—To develop a reasonable, long-term plan for setting and distributing enterprise fund earnings.

—To improve productivity and effectiveness of Commission operations.

—To define and achieve orderly growth, in coordination with the City Council.

—To provide adequate physical facilities under the Commission's responsibility.

—To achieve fair and equal employment.

—To reduce energy consumption throughout Commission operations and to serve as a source of information for the consuming public.

—To improve the Commission's credibility.

—And to encourage citizen participation in the Commission's decision-making process.

Along with the goals, essentially the same goals as set for the current fiscal year, the commission adopted a list of objectives designed to help meet the goals.

A number of service fee increases, to reflect the current costs of service, were approved by the Commission, to become effective July 1.

Russian Jet Is Searched

WASHINGTON (AP) —

U.S. customs agents are trying to determine whether three pieces of equipment seized from a Moscow-bound Soviet airliner detained at Dulles Airport for about four hours was properly licensed for export, the State Department said today.

The official Soviet news agency blasted the Tuesday night incident as an example of "international terrorism."

State Department spokesman Joe Reap said the plane, Aeroflot flight 318, was boarded by customs and FBI agents because officials had "reason to believe that cargo aboard the aircraft might not have been appropriately licensed."

"They did find some equipment that they decided to detain overnight to see that it was properly licensed," he added.

Meanwhile, customs spokeswoman Chris Ligoske said, "The investigation is continuing." But she said she did not expect any announcement of its findings until later in the day.

Export licenses are required for a variety of high-technology goods, including computers, electronic equipment, chemicals, metals and building equipment.

Ulster Again Seethes Over Second Death

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Hundreds of mourners lined the streets of Roman Catholic districts of west Belfast today to watch the body of a second IRA hunger striker, Francis Hughes, begin a last journey home.

Young Catholics had barricaded streets, set buildings on fire and hurled gasoline bombs at British soldiers in angry overnight rioting sparked by his death Tuesday.

Hughes, 25, once the most-wanted Irish Republican Army gunman in British-ruled Northern Ireland, had gone 59 days without food in Maze Prison in a campaign to force the British government to reverse its policy of treating convicted IRA guerrillas as common criminals.

The coffin containing Hughes' wasted body was to be carried through west Belfast on a last journey home after officials released it from a Belfast morgue after an autopsy.

He was expected to be buried with full IRA military honors at his home village of Bellaghy in County Derry, 50 miles northwest of Belfast.

His fellow hunger striker, Bobby Sands, was given the same military-style ceremony after his death eight days ago.

Receive Awards For Job Safety

For outstanding achievement in on-the-job safety, the Collins & Aikman Corporation Farmville plant received a certificate of special recognition from the N.C. Dept. of Labor.

Assistant State Labor Commissioner Charles Jeffress presented the award last night during dinner ceremonies sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce. The Collins & Aikman plant earned the department's million-hour award by compiling an even 1,000,000 safe employee hours, without a lost-time or disabling injury, from Aug. 15, 1980 through April 13, 1981.

During the seventh annual Chamber sponsored dinner ceremony, Jeffress also honored 44 businesses, governmental units and service establishments with the department's annual award for safety achievement. Recipients came from communities in Beaufort and Pitt Counties.

Presiding at the awards dinner, held at the American Legion Building located on St. Andrews Drive, was Reid J. Hooper, vice chairman of the chamber of commerce organization and membership council. Hooper is vice president of Wachovia Bank and Trust.

Robert S. Griffin, chairman of the Chamber board, welcomed guests. Griffin is plant manager of Procter & Gamble Paper Products. The Rev. Gene M. Adams, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church gave the invocation. Pat Burnette, administrative assistant of the Chamber, and Mavis Butts, special projects chairman, were in charge of local arrangements.

Eyes On Prime Rate As Clue To The Future

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

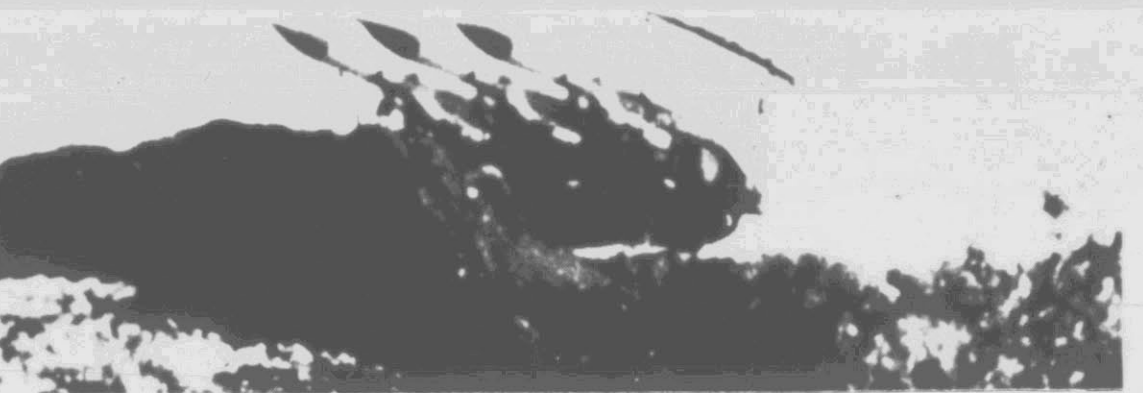

Bankers and borrowers alike are keeping a close eye on interest rates today for some indication as to what will happen next.

Prime interest rates, which many analysts said had stabilized in late winter, have jumped from a low of 17 percent in March to 19½ percent this week — only two percentage points below the all-time high set in February.

"It's like a roller coaster," according to loan officer Pat Sealey of the Bank of North Carolina in Greenville. "We had hoped they (prime rates) had leveled off, but they obviously aren't as stable as we believed."

Banking officials acknowledge they aren't certain where the rate level will go next but at least one, North Carolina National Bank spokesman Jim Hicks, said he believes "we are going to see high levels through the summer."

The latest increase — the second this month for most banks — was set off Monday by Chase Manhattan Bank in response to last week's announcement by the Federal Reserve Board that it was raising its discount rate on funds available to banks.

Compromise Offered To Defuse Mid-East Crisis

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — President Reagan's special Mideast envoy, Philip C. Habib, reportedly has proposed a compromise aimed at defusing the Syrian-Israeli powder keg that drew closer to flashpoint when Syrians fired anti-aircraft missiles at Israeli jets.

Habib left here today for Damascus and Beirut after two days of talks with Prime Minister Menachem Begin. He flew to Damascus then drove to Beirut, and there was no immediate word on what, if anything, he had accomplished in the Syrian capital.

As Habib arrived in Beirut, a booby-trapped car exploded near the offices of a leftist group in mostly Moslem West Beirut, killing five pedestrians and wounding 15 in addition to setting afire 10 cars parked at the scene, police said. No other details were given.

Israeli opposition leader Shimon Peres, who met with Habib before his departure from Jerusalem, said: "Nothing is over, no one has anything in his pocket."

Israel Radio and the Jerusalem Post quoted high Israeli sources as saying Habib's proposal included a limit on Israeli flights and the removal of Syrian missiles from Lebanon.

There was no official confirmation of the reports. Begin's office denied that the Habib proposal would limit Israeli bombing attacks and reconnaissance flights, and Peres said the media account was "not exact."

The Israeli-Syrian showdown over Syria's deployment of surface-to-air missiles in Lebanon has raised fears of a new Middle East war. But Israel Radio said Tuesday that Israeli ministers who attended a special Cabinet meeting later indicated they believe a solution is possible.

In a speech to Parliament after meeting Habib on Tuesday, Begin reiterated his insistence that Syria must remove the missiles it brought into eastern Lebanon on April 29. Syria has refused adamantly to yield to Israel's demands.

Begin said every diplomatic avenue will be pursued but, if all fail to persuade Syria to take the missiles from the Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, "military means will be used."

The missiles were fired Tuesday at Israeli planes in what was considered a major escalation of the crisis, although reports conflicted on the details.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Unknown assailants shot at Pope John Paul II as he entered St. Peter's Square for a general audience today and he was hit, Vatican Radio said.

Vatican Radio said the pope was hit and fell into the arms of his secretary, Don Stanislaw Dziwisz. The jeep in which he was riding drove off at break neck speed.

Blood could be seen on his neck, witnesses said.

HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

FINANCED, CANCELED EARLY

I bought insurance on a building on Jan. 28 for six months for what I understood was a premium of $477. I made a down payment of $159. On Feb. 27 I cancelled the policy and I'm still waiting for the refund. Besides the long wait, I'm dismayed to learn that my refund will be only $47, pretty expensive one month's coverage — $112. The local agent was Hal Moore of Ayden and the company was New Hampshire Company. J. B.

Hotline talked to Moore who said he would go ahead and issue your $47 refund ahead of receiving the reimbursal himself, since he has been assured by the company that it will be forthcoming. The delay has been caused by a computer mixup in New Hampshire, he indicated.

The reason the amount you ended up paying was so high was that the insurance company can legally charge a higher per-month premium when the policy is canceled early by the policyholder, Larry Brewer in the N. C. Insurance Commissioner's Consumer Division said, and because there were finance charges. The $318 that remained after your downpayment was paid by a premium finance company in Charlotte, Capitol Finance Company. Making the payment in full on your behalf gave this company power of attorney and meant that the refund was sent to this company initially, not to you or the office where you bought the insurance. $347 was taken by the finance company as repayment of the amount you owed it, plus finance charges. Then the remainder, $47, is being sent on to the office in Ayden and to you.

You say you're satisfied and have learned a valuable lesson, that buying insurance with the aid of a premium finance company is an expensive proposition.

NAME WRONG

The name of the city-county schools transportation officer was incorrectly given in yesterday's Hotline column. The correct name is Rodney Bullock.

with the higher rates.

"I think we have seen a general slackening off, not so much in the dollar amount of the loan ... just a general feeling on part of business borrowers to borrow only when they need to," McLean said.

Fringe effects of the prime rate increases have had their impact on such areas as car loans — although Sealey said "dealer loans are still booming" — and home mortgages.

Fixed-rate mortgages are no longer available at two of Pitt County's larger savings and loan associations, First Federal and East Federal, and the chief loan officer for the Veterans Administration in North Carolina says the relatively new variable-rate or "rollover" mortgages are here to stay.

VA loan officer George Byars said earlier this week that he believes efforts by the Reagan administration to balance the federal budget will slow inflation. With that, Byars said, he expects long-term, variable rate mortgages to become the rule for homes.

"We're not talking about 30-year loans anymore," Byars said. Instead, he said, loans with lifetimes in excess of 50

Can Lifestyle Factors Be A Cancer Cause?

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

The multi-million dollar, worldwide hunt for the cause of cancer isn't much of mystery these days — to hear Dr. John Higginson tell it.

"We now know 80 to 90 percent of all cancers are dependent directly or indirectly on our 'personal environment' — smoking, alcoholic intake, diet and exposure to sun," said the world-famous cancer hunter and head of the World Health Organization's International Agency for Research on Cancer.

The impeccably dressed Higginson sipped a bloody Mary, the pre-luncheon drink of his choice, as he explained.

In the 1950s, Higginson studied the incidence of certain tumors among blacks in Africa and America. He came to the conclusion at least two-thirds of cancers had an environmental cause. As such, in theory, the cancers were preventable.

The world of science took notice and Higginson was on the way to stardom as a cancer epidemiologist — one who looks for patterns of the disease, lifestyle factors and then tries to match up similar factors in the lives of cancer victims.

For a while the theory was misinterpreted. Some cancer fighters thought he meant air pollution when he talked about environmental causes.

Higginson said he actually had in mind factors people "directly or indirectly" have control over. Things like diet, behavior, smoking, drinking booze, tanning.

And the environment he had in mind was the insides of the digestive tract and the life support systems built into human anatomy for survival on planet earth.

To hear him tell it, pollute yourself with enough bad stuff — every night a pint of booze, for example — and you shouldn't be surprised in 20 or 30 years to hear a doctor pronounce you've got cancer of the esophagus. Or stomach. Or gut.

He said the workplace, the air and water are not the leading sources of carcinogens — things that cause cancer.

Occupational exposures in the workplace, he claims, account for probably no more than six percent of all cancer in males and two to three percent in females.

That means, he says, people have some control over causes of the 80 to 90 percent of cancers linked to lifestyle factors. No mysterious killer bug is at work. People, to some extent, set the scene for their cancers over their lifetime.

Surprisingly, for women, he sees something special in the way of lifestyle factors when it comes to guarding against breast cancer. It could be teen-age mothers have, by having a baby, unwittingly done something to offset future breast cancer.

"We know having a baby before age 19 makes a woman the least susceptible to breast cancer," he said.

If a woman has a baby at 24, the theory goes, she is more susceptible to breast cancer than the one who has a baby under age 19 but less susceptible than the woman who has her first baby at 30.

And if a woman has her first baby over age 35 she is four times more at risk for breast cancer than the one who has a baby before 19.

Higginson considers the age on first becoming a mother a lifestyle factor. In this era of women's liberation, delayed motherhood is a lifestyle for many who opt for careers until they're "up against the biological clock," that is, almost getting too old to have a baby.

While making his points, Higginson was stowing away a lunch that included fried shrimp and French fried potatoes. The shrimp, of course, is loaded with cholesterol — something many cancer fighters think it's a good idea to eat only sparingly. Other cancer fighters frown on fried food.

"All things in moderation. I think is the key," Higginson said.

"I am not one to live on apples, spinach and fruit juice alone."

Looking at a spinach salad, he remarked, "That spinach contains a lot of things that promote cancer and some that inhibit it."

Higginson has written more than 160 reports on environmental carcinogenesis, geographical pathology and liver disease.

He has done extensive research for the University of Glasgow, South African Institute of Medical Research, University of Kansas and the American Cancer Society.

He studied at Trinity College in Ireland where he was born in 1922. He is now an American citizen.

The WHO International Agency for Research on Cancer that he commands was founded in 1966. It looks into cancer worldwide, following patterns of disease and looking for common causes. The work is supported by funds and scientists from 11 countries.

Included are the United States, the United Kingdom, Italy, France, West Germany, Holland, Belgium, Sweden, Japan, Australia, the Soviet Union.

Other highlights from the interview with Higginson:

—By the year 2,000 he sees treatment and prevention of cancer a good deal better than today.

—Getting married later, a trend, may mean breast cancer incidence will go up. This, due to women postponing motherhood until later ages.

—The sperm may or may not be an index of environmental pollution, as has been suggested in a recent report.

"But this is hard to believe," Higginson said. "Only 10 percent of sperm are viable so this theory will be very difficult to demonstrate."

—The longer a person smokes the more he or she is in danger of coming down with lung cancer. A person who smokes 10 cigarettes a day for 40 years is at greater risk than a person who smoked 20 cigarettes a day for 20 years.

—Puffers versus inhalers. "Evidence is that the inhalers are more at risk for lung cancer."

—Coffee and a possible link to pancreatic cancer, as suggested in a recent report in the "New England Journal of Medicine." "This is by no means conclusive. For one, why do the British — big tea drinkers — have a high pancreatic cancer incidence?"

—"A glass of wine a day doubles the risk of esophageal cancer"—that is, over the risk of a person who does not drink any alcoholic beverages.

—Is charcoal broiling dangerous? "It comes down to a few pleasures that are acceptable. To say that these things are very risky makes one feel that everyone will be dead if they do these things and eat this charcoaled broiled meat. But everyone isn't dead. And we eat it — even though we know when the amino acids in the meat are heated this way you get more cancer-causing things than if it were not cooked this way."

—Spinach. Fifteen compounds in spinach do different things. Some promote cancer and some inhibit it. "And we don't know which is winning."

—Some compounds are metabolized differently and alter susceptibility to cancer-causing things.

—On cigarettes and lung cancer: "We know one in 10 who smoke will get lung cancer but we do not know why nine in 10 who smoke do not get lung cancer."

—Moderation in all things seems a good rule. "But we are not 100 percent certain of that either." Some prefer life in the fast track.

—Is there a cancer danger in video display terminals — the so-called word processors used in newspaper offices, banks, and lots of offices? "Probably not any more dangerous than a television set."

Dear Abby

Jewelry Interest Flies Around

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 36, attractive and well-liked. He owns his own business, which requires some traveling and night entertaining, but he's always come home at a reasonable hour, ready, willing and able to make love to me, so I had no reason to worry.

One day last week before sending his suit to the dry cleaners, I checked the pockets and found a paper cocktail napkin on which was scribbled "Margo" and a telephone number. Then I did something I'm not very proud of. I wrote down the number and kept it.

When my husband came home, I casually handed him the cocktail napkin, saying, "This was in your pocket; it might be important."

He took it very matter-of-factly and said, "She's a woman with a wholesale jewelry connection. I was going to surprise you with something for your anniversary next month."

Later that evening when I was alone, I called the number and Margo answered. I told her I was interested in buying some jewelry, and she said I must have the wrong Margo because she was an airline stewardess!

So far I haven't told my husband about that call, but it's been bothering me. Should I tell him, or let it go?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Tell him. But wait until after your anniversary. One "surprise" deserves another.

DEAR ABBY: My parents are divorced. I live with my mother but spend every other weekend with my father. When I'm with Dad, he asks a lot of questions about Mom. Like, "Does she go out very much? Who does she go out with? Does she have company at the house? And does she ever say anything about me?"

And after a weekend with Dad, Mom wants me to tell her everything that happened and everything Dad said. Should I tell?

I don't want to answer and I don't want to lie, but I feel funny telling the truth. What should I do, Abby?

TO TELL OR NOT

DEAR TO TELL: Be honest. If you feel uncomfortable telling one parent about the other, ask both of them, respectfully, not to question you.

DEAR ABBY: On a recent trip to Scotland, I stayed with my 73-year-old maiden cousin who made our trip most enjoyable with her humor and gracious hospitality.

One morning she said, "Where's the newspaper? I want to see who quit smoking."

Amazed at this, I asked, "Do they publish the names of people who quit smoking in the Scottish newspaper?"

"Aye," she said. "In the obituary column."

FRANK GALLAGHER, KENT, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: This question has been on my mind for a long time. Which hand do you put the wedding band on if the person is left-handed?

DUMMY

DEAR DUMMY: The left hand, the same side your heart is on.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

The changes include: gas service cut-on not requiring checking or servicing of appliances, up from $10 to $15 on weekdays and up from $15 to $25 at night, on holidays and weekends; cut-on gas service requiring checking or servicing of appliances (new) $15 on weekdays and $25 nights, holidays and weekends; read and leave on electric, gas and water for new account up from $5 to $7.50; new fees for gas appliance installation and service ranging from $10 to $30 with parts at cost plus 50 percent, and an hourly rate charged for service; and new minimum charges and hourly rates for locating and/or assistance in restoration of electric, water or sewer service where trouble is found in a customer's system and new tapping fees for gas service.

In other business last night, the commission awarded an audit contract for the current fiscal year to John C. Proctor & Co. for $6,000; accepted a low bid of $78,986 for water and sewer extensions along secondary road 1202 by Roanoke Construction Co.; approved the purchase of 10 padmount transformers from Westinghouse Electric Supply Co. for a low total ownership cost bid of $3,897 per transformer; and accepted low bids for the purchase of gasoline and diesel fuel for the coming year, including approximately 77,000 gallons of regular leaded gas from W. L. Allen Oil Co. for $90,821, approximately 67,000 gallons of premium unleaded gas from W. L. Allen Oil Co. for $85,056, and approximately 7,000 gallons of premium diesel fuel from Sutton Service Center for $8,183.

The commission also adopted a resolution authorizing the filing of an application for federal and state grants for Step 2 in the 201 Sewer Facilities planning process. Step 2 includes the detail design work for a new sewage treatment plant for Greenville.

That action came after it was reported that the Step 1 201 Facilities Plan has been completed and was delivered to the State's Department of Environmental Management in Raleigh yesterday for review.

Hopefully final federal Environmental Protection Agency approval of the plan and grant application approval will be completed so a grant offer can be extended and work can be started on plant design in August.

Six Hearings Are Scheduled By City Council

Six public hearings are among the agenda items scheduled for consideration by the City Council at Thursday's regular 8 p.m. meeting at city hall.

The hearings involve: amendments to the Zoning Ordinance; a request to rezone 7.86 acres at the northwest corner of the intersection of Hooker Road and Arlington Boulevard from RA-20 to Highway Commercial; a request that 3.83 acres north of Red Banks Road be rezoned from R-6 to Office and Institutional;

A request to rezone 19,800 square feet on the east side of Pamlico Avenue from Unoffensive Industry to R-6; a request by Greenville Cable TV for approval of "bulk rate" and "stand alone" converter rental fees; and an application by Charles Wayne Buck and Warren Brent Cade for a special use permit to operate a nightclub on the east side of US 264 Bypass some 1,000 north of the new fairgrounds.

Divergent Philosophies

The voters of France have spoken and they turned out Valery Giscard d'Estaing and elected Socialist Francois Mitterrand as president for a seven-year term.

It was not a favorable development for the western world.

The election portends changes in France at least as notable as those in the United States with the election of conservative Ronald Reagan. Those of the right in France are concerned about radical changes in the way the government is operated and there is also a fear of Communist influence in the operation of the government.

There was fear in Washington, too, about the change in philosophies in the French government.

The administration said it looked forward to working with the new government. The statement, however, expressed concern about possibility of Communist being included in that government.

Relations between Washington and Paris have not been entirely smooth for a number of years. The Reagan administration has expressed an obviously sincere desire to work with the new French premier; however the conservative outlook of Reagan and the Socialist background of Mitterrand won't make it easy.

Diplomatic Solution Needed

Syrian missiles in Lebanon have brought on the latest war threat in the Middle East.

Israel strongly objects to the SAM missiles being placed there and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has threatened to bomb them out if they are not removed.

He has called on Syrian President Hafez Assad to remove the missiles "and humanity will breathe a sigh of relief."

In the meantime United States' diplomats have worked feverishly in an attempt to work out a resolution of the difficulties. It appears, however, that Syria is not willing to remove the missiles.

No doubt diplomatic efforts will continue in this matter. The world does not need another military action in the Middle East.

THIS AFTERNOON

Haunting Future

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Flirtation with Sunset legislation in North Carolina probably has done more harm than good.

Legislative leaders have ordered an end to the experiment which started just three years ago as a means of demonstrating that numerous governmental functions were still in existence only because they had been in existence for a long while and had not been challenged. The object: to demonstrate a public need, or let the sun set on the program. Hence the name, Sunset.

At least three results derive from that illfated effort which likely will haunt Tar Heel taxpayers and decision-makers in years to come:

—The score of regulatory and licensing agencies which emerged unscathed despite intensive staff probing can now be considered more entrenched than ever. Those agencies can insist that even though investigations demonstrated need for change, even termination in several instances, no action by the Sunset Commission or the General Assembly means things are all right as they are.

Control

Refusal of the Sunset Commission itself to take action; refusal of the General Assembly to take action; and refusal of the leadership of the General Assembly to let the experiment continue clearly demonstrates the power and control of special interest groups over the state's political process.

—Maybe most regrettably, the death of sunset with no success dealing with licensing and regulatory agencies clearly means that the hope for expansion to study and recommend change in regular state government agencies will die aborning.

As he was closing the files, Executive Director Paul Jordan expressed hopeful optimism that the experiment may produce some good results. It at least showed that careful analysis of government programs can come up with definitions of problems and suggest alternative directions.

Now, a couple of months later, Jordan is not so sure that anything worthwhile was gained. In fact, Jordan now feels that the process was doomed to failure by a Sunset Commission which was so politically oriented that it only rushed to the defense of any attack upon established groups, and voted for the status quo. But even if the commission — which had some legislators on it — had recommended substantial changes, Jordan is convinced that the General Assembly would have defended the system.

Those numerous organizations, after all, represent campaign contributions and blocks of votes and internal newsletters; all of which work to the advantage of friendly politicians.

Starting with licensing and regulatory agencies, the Sunset goal was to determine if the programs serve to protect essential public needs; or if they only cost the public more while creating a monopoly and establishing stumbling blocks to some who might choose to enter various fields of work.

No Change

It was found, for example, that barbers must spend more hours in training than do commercial airline pilots. The staff recommended an end to barber licensing. It also suggested terminating state control over watchmakers, landscape architects, librarians, employment agencies (which get $50,000 in tax money), and water treatment facility operators, among others. The commission did not go

To the editor:

The students and teachers who worked so diligently to give Greenville a beautiful production of "Lil Abner" are to be commended. The program listed the names of the principal players, minor players, visiting players, technicians, parents and down to the smallest involvement. A very careful search through the program, however, failed to reveal the names of the members of the outstanding pit orchestra.

The 19 young people who repeatedly performed at a professional level certainly deserve recognition. Other musical productions in our area have hired their musicians; however, the orchestra for "Lil Abner" was composed entirely from the student bodies of Rose High School and Aycock Junior High. These students worked long hours and deserve their share of the credit for the play's success.

Congratulations on a job well done. We are proud of you, strings, Hih Song Kim, Jeri Walter, Holly Rodgers, Elizabeth Ellen, Carol Moore, Kevin O'Neal, Heather O'Neal; woodwinds, Beth Congleton, Shaela Ray, Shannon Stanforth and Wendy Mills; trombones, Mike Pollard, Jim Hamilton and Tracy Cain; trumpets, Bill Saunders, Todd Lynch and Marc Sasser; and percussionists, Steven Bath and Art Pittman.

To the editor:

I am the parent of students at both D. H. Conley and Chicod Elementary Schools. Recent musical performances at both schools and a science fair were wonderful credits to our community.

I commend Jane Wilson for a splendid job as director of the musical, "Annie Get Your Gun" at Conley. I would like to say to the director, accompanist, cast and production staff, what a wonderful job all of them did. I can't say enough. Also, for the parents of the cast and crew who let their children come out and put the time in to bring this musical to us, thank you. Young people you were all GREAT! I'm looking forward to next year.

And just as enthusiastically, I commend Anton Wesley, director of the musical play, "The Runaway," performed at Chicod Elementary School. The children gave a splendid performance. To the assistants, accompanist, cast and production staff, my compliments to you for a job well done.

Also to the children who did the science projects in the media center. They all were fantastic. There was a lot of time and effort put into them.

We have so many good and talented children in our schools, we need programs such as these to encourage them to continue on. Thanks to the parents, teachers, and principals for their time and effort on behalf of the children and the excellent work they perform.

A TOUGH FORCE TO CONTEND WITH!

BY ART BUCHWALD

A Political Computer

If you want to know who is going to take over American politics in the near future, it's not a person, but a computer. The computer is located in Virginia.

It has a memory bank filled with millions of names of people, who can be tapped for millions of dollars to defeat anybody who doesn't go along with its ultra-conservative ideology.

By sheer luck I managed to tap in to the computer and get an exclusive interview.

"Is it true, sir, that you have a hit list of congressmen and senators who don't vote the way you want them to?"

"That is correct," the computer typed out. "Do you have any names you want me to add to the list?"

"Not at the moment. But if I think of any I'll let you know."

"You do that. Money's no object when it comes to zapping my enemies."

"I guess you're one of the most powerful computers in America," I typed. "How do you operate?"

"In different ways. I can remember every vote of every politician in America. When I decide he isn't one of us, I start sending out letters to his constituents, telling them what a rotten no-goodnik he really is."

"And that does him in?"

"No, that's just a letter asking for money to defeat him in the next election."

"So people send you checks?"

"You wouldn't believe it. I can write a letter that can scare the hell out of anyone in this country."

"Could you give me an example of how you do it?"

"Well, let's say a senator voted for the Panama Canal Treaty. I have the name and address of every Panama Canal lover in his state. I'll spit out 100,000 letters in three hours warning the people if they don't send in a check, the senator plans to give Alaska back to the Russians."

"And if that doesn't bring in enough money?"

"Then I'll send out another letter saying the senator wants to take God out of the schools."

"You're really a hardball computer," I said with admiration.

"The big money-getters are the letters I write about politicians who are pro-abortion, pro-ERA or pro-handgun control. When our people get one of those letters, they start writing out their checks before they get to the second paragraph."

"So you get a windfall of money when you send out the letters? What do you do next?"

"Then I go into my second program, which is to allot the money for a vicious media campaign against the person on my hit list."

"I didn't know you were programmed for that."

"What kind of dumb computer do you think I am? I can program television commercials, newspaper ads, and even word-of-mouth campaigns. The trick is to hit my man below the belt and let him scream 'Foul.' I can portray my target as anti-family, soft on Communism, a socialist free-spender and tri-lateralist, all in a 30-second commercial."

"It's the old political dirty trick game with electronic sophistication."

"I don't care what you call it. It does the job."

"I guess in the next election you'll be calling all the shots."

"I'm not waiting for the next election. I have to raise the money right now. There are a lot of people who better shape up or they're going to find themselves out on their

Frightened By Sec. Haig

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Before the missing American priest turned up unharmed in El Salvador, Secretary of State Alexander Haig frightened President Jose Napoleon Duarte with a tough telephone call misinterpreted as a warning that the U.S. soon might stop supporting the Salvadoran government.

Speaking to Duarte in English without an interpreter, Haig mentioned strong pressure against the Reagan administration's Salvadoran policy in both Europe and the U.S. Duarte thought Haig was threatening total withdrawal of U.S. support. Haig meant only to press Duarte to apprehend the killers of four murdered American nuns and find the then missing priest, Father Roy Bourgeois (who, like the nuns, belonged to the Maryknoll order).

The pressure against the Salvadoran government eased when Bourgeois reappeared — after having spent 10 days with communist guerrillas, just as Duarte had speculated. Furthermore, a joint investigation by Duarte's government and the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador resulted in the arrest of soldiers who may have killed the nuns.

Nofziger Wanted?

President Reagan's senior White House staff, searching for ways to strengthen the press operation under deputy press secretary Larry Speakes, is eyeing this possibility: Move top political aide Lyn Nofziger into a temporary role as chief White House communicator.

Nofziger became an instantly-acclaimed celebrity when he took over the briefing microphones at George Washington University Hospital on that fateful March 31 and cleared away anxieties over the president's condition. Letters poured into Nofziger's office in the ensuing weeks praising his performance. He then returned to his job as Reagan's political troubleshooter.

With press secretary James Brady still hospitalized, the senior White House staff wants more muscle in the press office but will not name a new press secretary out of deference to the wounded Brady. The solution: Bring Nofziger in, but not with the title of press secretary, for a couple of months. Nofziger would not take a permanent job as presidential spokesman.

Tangling Texans

The normally convivial luncheon of the Texas Democratic congressional delegation turned into a confrontation when Majority Leader Jim Wright accused unnamed colleagues of disloyalty in backing President Reagan's economic package.

Rep. Ralph Hall repeatedly asked Wright to reveal just whom he was talking about, and Wright repeatedly refused. Finally, Rep. Kent Hance volunteered that Wright meant him. Hance, who has a coveted seat on the Ways and Means Committee, backed Reagan's budget and is seeking to devise a modified version of Reagan's tax plan.

Wright has grumbled to colleagues that he secured seats for Hance on Ways and Means and Rep. Phil Gramm, another conservative Texas Democrat on the Budget Committee, only to have them defect from the Democratic leadership and support Reagan's economic proposal. But at the tense Texas luncheon meeting, Hance told Wright to his face that he was out of touch with the times.

Anti-AWACS Reaganites

The proposed sale of AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia, in enough trouble as it is with a solid Senate majority presently against it, may soon encounter even more difficulty with an unfavorable report from President Reagan's Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA). Eugene V. Rostow, ACDA's newly-appointed director, is a longtime friend of Israel and is known to have deep misgivings about the AWACS sale. That could mean the arms control impact statement, required from ACDA for every weapons transaction abroad, will be negative on the Saudi deal.

Strength For Today

STEALING

"Thou shalt not steal."

Most of us have never consciously stolen something of value from another person, but theft can be associated with something more than the mere taking of things of value. There are hundreds of little dishonesties of thought and attitude in which respectable people participate. The most overt type are such things as cutting corners on income tax returns and expense accounts. But one can steal without ever laying his hand on something which does not belong to him, for theft has as much to do with mental attitudes as action.

The most serious forms of dishonesty result when we are dishonest with ourselves and God. We are dishonest with ourselves when we fail to live up to the best that is in us. We are dishonest toward God when we ignore Him and his revelation, or when we misuse the abilities He has given us.

We can all grow very uncomfortable when we ponder the words, "Thou shalt not steal." — Elisha Douglass

Hard Times For The Old Pro

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tip O'Neill has spent nearly 30 years in the corridors of Washington power, polishing his skills as legislator-lobbyist-leader of House Democrats. But seniority isn't what it used to be, and these are hard times for the old pro.

His House troops defected in droves in the first test of party loyalty under a Republican administration. His leadership style is under criticism within Democratic ranks.

It is not unusual for a party suddenly out of White House power to be restive about its leadership. As speaker of the House, O'Neill is now the ranking Democrat in Washington. But he is the kind of leader who is most comfortable, and probably most effective, in the lobby, not the limelight.

He is a burly Boston politician, "a loveable old bear," according to Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., who has publicly criticized O'Neill's leadership.

"Tip doesn't understand the explosions that have been going on since November," Aspin wrote his constituents. "The entire Democratic leadership has really gotten out of touch."

Aspin and other liberal critics notwithstanding, O'Neill can read his House. He knew when the Democrats were beaten on President Reagan's budget. He said so, and that candor may be part of his problem.

But only part.

While Reagan and his allies are making constant and effective use of television to sell the administration program, O'Neill shuns the cameras. Administration spokesmen seek spots on the network interview programs. O'Neill declines invitations.

While the Reagan team was out lobbying for his budget during Congress' Easter recess, O'Neill was out of the country.

Not that it made much difference. Reagan had evidence that the voters are on his side, and Democrats can read public opinion polls. There are 51 more Democrats than Republicans in the House, but those numbers don't mean much when the issue is one that could echo into the next election campaign.

In the end, 63 Democrats voted for the Reagan plan, and the president won easily last Thursday. The vote for his budget blueprint was 253-176.

So O'Neill's reading was right. But that made his virtual concession no less dismaying to Democrats who thought — or wanted to think — that they had a chance on the budget vote.

O'Neill said long before the vote that there were likely to be widespread Democratic defections. He said the will of the people was that their congressmen go with the president on the budget vote.

"I've been in politics an awful long time and I know when you fight and when you don't," O'Neill said.

But he fought later. "What has happened to the Democratic Party?" he asked at caucus of House Democrats on May 5. "Are we running into the woods because we are frightened, because a man, the president of the United States, is as popular as he is?"

He said Democrats will find next year that their constituents aren't nearly as pleased with the results of Reagan spending cuts as they are now with the prospect of them.

And he lectured Democratic defectors as they prepared to vote for the Reagan budget. "If you are leaving on the question of conscience, I have respect for you, but if you are leaving because not to leave may ... cause you harm in the next election, then I have no sympathy for you whatsoever," he said.

But Reagan's side could argue that the sympathy of the voters was with the administration.

"He is asking you now to go with him because the budget is a symbol that America wants," O'Neill said. "Ronald Reagan does not know how this process works."

Perhaps so. But it certainly has worked his way to this point.

Spina Bifida

The Spina Bifida Association will begin its annual conference today in California. Spina bifida is a spinal malformation that occurs within the first three months of fetal development. Normally, a series of protective bone segments, called vertebrae, fuse around the delicate spinal cord. However, with spina bifida, some vertebrae split, or fail to fuse properly. The result is that spinal fluid, or even the spinal cord itself, may be thrust between the split vertebrae. Since the spinal cord is the main neurological link between the brain and most of the body, a person with spina bifida may have neurological problems below the affected portion of the spine.

A footnote: More bad news for the AWACS deal came at a top-level May 4 meeting when Assistant Secretary of Defense Bing West reported failure so far on an attempt to get Saudi Arabia to permit greater U.S. control over the planes.

Baldrige Nixes Switch Secretary of Commerce Malcolm Baldrige, worried about moves to create an independent tourism office outside his department, has warned Congress in a private letter that he will strongly recommend a veto if such legislation gets to President Reagan's desk.

The effort to set up an independent federal agency to promote tourism, which is a big asset in the balance of payments, has been defeated before, Baldrige claimed in his letter to Rep. John J. Dingell, chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, that the proposed independent agency "would be an orphan" and that much of the money Congress appropriates for tourism would be diverted into creation of a new bureaucracy.

Baldrige may lose the Maritime Commission to the Transportation Department. On top of that, loss of the tourism division and its $7.6 billion budget would further downgrade his department. A presidential veto, however, may be the only salvation for Baldrige. The Senate has already passed the bill.

along except with the first such recommendation — watchmakers. But that suggestion met defeat by two-to-one in the House of Representatives.

The staff also proposed deregulation of eyeglass sales; relaxation of the practice of optometry which might have saved consumers $13 million; and changes in the generic drug law to make cheaper drugs available to the public at a savings of $6 million.

The commission rejected those and all other proposals including consolidation of construction trade licensing boards, and a major change in regulation and licensings of numerous professions.

Jordan, a member of the board of the N.C. Consumers Council, spoke at the annual meeting of that agency recently and commented that in failing to push for change, the commission and the General Assembly "in fact legitimized unnecessary and in some cases harmful law. You will hear many times in the future a politician say, 'These laws have just been reviewed by an impartial commission'. The Commission's failure will do more harm than had the process of review never existed," Jordan said.

Service League Gives Devices

The Greenville Service League has recently contributed $78,490 worth of medical care equipment to Pitt County Memorial Hospital through the hospital's Gift Fund.

A multifunction micturition monitor, a urethro-profilometer and a uroflow station (total value — $12,250) were given to the urology section of the surgery department.

A choledochoscope costing $2,200 was given the surgery department. An intraaortic balloon pump, a system trainer-patient stimulator, and a pressure module with digital display (total value — $24,040) were given the medicine and surgery departments. And a $40,000 telemetry cardiac monitoring system to be used on the North B patient tower was given, also.

"The Service League is pleased to offer assistance in the purchase of this equipment that we understand is on this year's priority list," Kathryn Mcconnell, chairman of the Service League Gift Shop, said.

Gifts Committee Chairman Joe Clark expressed appreciation to the service league and its continuous service to the community served by Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Job Placement Work Underway

The Human Resources Development Program (HRD) at Pitt Community College is now accepting applications for enrollment. An eight-week job placement program, HRD is set up to help adults who are school dropouts, unemployed and economically disadvantaged. Recipients of public assistance are especially encouraged to apply.

According to Charles Dickens, HRD coordinator, "HRD's objective is to reduce public assistance payments, unemployment and underemployment by making it possible for the chronically unemployed to become and remain productive employees."

Dickens noted, "Target groups for the Human Resources Development Program include people from many walks of life — minorities, veterans, women and youth."

"The program does not terminate its concern for the participants upon graduation, but continues to make contacts every few months up to a year," said Dickens.

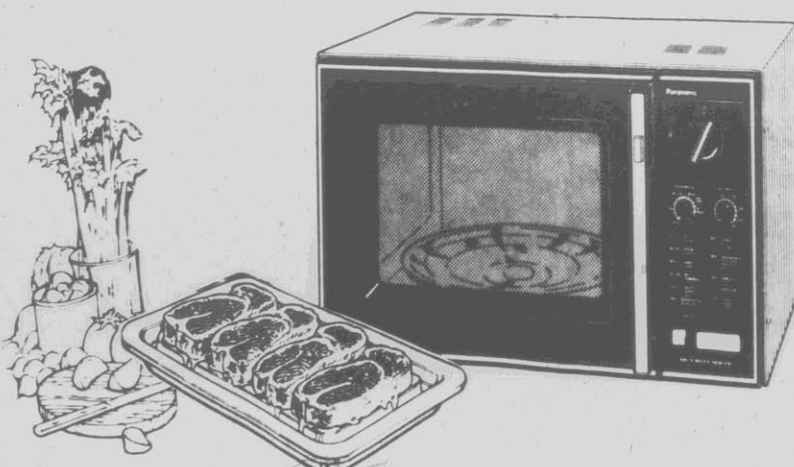

Other services included in the HRD program are work orientation, counseling, employability assessment, job placement and job development.

Appointments for interviews should be made by coming to the PCC campus or by calling 756-3130, ext. 255.

The Effect Of Social Security Change

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration's plan to avert bankruptcy in the Social Security system entails a series of sweeping cuts that ultimately would affect all 36 million people now drawing benefits and the 114 million workers paying taxes to provide them.

Here are some questions and answers about the package:

Q: I'll be 62 in December 1981 and plan to retire then. Are they going to reduce my Social Security benefits?

A: No, but anyone who turns 62 on Jan. 1, 1982, or later will be affected if Congress approves the Reagan plan. Social Security officials say no one should rush to retire now to beat the benefit cuts, because they will affect everyone born in 1920 or later and will not affect anyone born in 1919 or earlier. It remains to be seen whether Congress will approve the package and whether it will do so before Jan. 1.

Q: How much will I lose if I retire early in 1982 or later?

A: Lots. Instead of getting 80 percent of full benefits at age 62, workers will get only 55 percent. A 62-year-old spouse of a retired worker now can get 37.5 percent extra; under the Reagan plan, she would get only 27.5 percent.

Q: What if I wait until 65 to retire? Am I safe from the budget cuts?

A: Not if you were born since 1920. Reagan wants to change the way initial benefits are figured for everybody. The net, long-term impact would be a 10 percent reduction in benefits. Social Security now aims to replace 55 percent of a low-income worker's final yearly earnings, 41 percent for the average worker and 28 percent for someone paying the maximum tax. The Reagan package ultimately would cut these replacement rates to 50 percent for the low-income, 37 percent or 38 percent for average workers and 25 percent for top wage-earners.

Q: They talked about a tax cut, too. When?

A: The payroll tax, now at 6.65 percent on income up to $29,700, will get worse before it gets better. It is due to jump to 6.7 percent in 1982, 7.05 percent in 1985, 7.15 percent in 1986 and 7.65 percent in 1990. The Reagan administration hopes to be able to keep the rate at 6.95 percent in 1985 and 7.05 percent in 1986, then to cut it in 1990 to 6.45 percent, slightly below the current level and 1.2 percent below the scheduled rate. It would still have to jump to 7.55 percent in 2020 to pay for the retirement of the post-World War II "baby boom" generation.

Q: What about our cost-of-living increases? Are they going down the drain?

member of the 4-H Livestock Judging Team, and the school's VICA program, Science Club and Key Club.

Gary is one of 100 young men and women from throughout the state attending the workshop, which will include classroom and field study of land use and conservation practices, watershed protection and management, soils and their managements, forest management and protection, wildlife conservation, and fisheries management.

Sponsors of the workshop are the N. C. Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts, the N. C. Chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America and the N. C. Soil and Water Conservation Commission.

Collision Investigated

Cars driven by Elzie James Wallace Jr. of Route 2, Grifton and William Thomas Smith of Clark Trailer Pk., collided about 9:37 p.m. yesterday on Greenville Boulevard, 150 feet west of the Hooker Road intersection.

Police Department investigators, who charged Smith with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $400 to the Wallace car and $300 to the Smith vehicle.

REVIVAL SERVICES
Revival services will be held at the Baptist Tabernacle Church beginning Thursday and continuing through Sunday. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The guest evangelist is Don Currin. A nursery will be provided for the services. Pastor Chester Fussell said the public is invited to attend. The church is located three miles east of Farmville on Highway 264.

A: No. Reagan is not changing the automatic cost-of-living increase formula, and the 36 million beneficiaries will get a 11.2 percent benefit raise in July as scheduled. However, Reagan wants to postpone for three months the 9.3 percent increase expected in July 1982. Shifting that raise to October 1982 will cost beneficiaries $3.3 billion in 1982 — almost $100 apiece — and $3 billion more by 1986.

Q: What about the earnings test? Reagan promised to liberalize that during his campaign.

A: He plans to make good on the promise, wiping out by 1986 all restrictions on how much the elderly can earn without losing Social Security benefits. Currently there is no restriction on those 72 and older, and in 1982 those 70 and older will be free to earn as they please. Benefits now are reduced $1 for each $2 earned above $5,500 a year by those 65 through 71. The income limit goes to $6,000 for those 65 through 69 in 1982. Reagan would allow those 65 through 69 to earn $10,000 in 1983, $15,000 in 1984, $20,000 in 1985 and unlimited amounts afterwards.

Q: What about members of Congress, federal workers, and other government and non-profit group workers? Will they be forced to join the Social Security system?

A: No. Reagan has ruled out any attempt to mandate universal coverage. However, he wants to change the benefit formula to eliminate windfalls for some civil servants who work only a few years under Social Security. The formula would take into account the pensions these people get from the civil service or other jobs not covered by Social Security. The military, who are covered by Social Security, would not be affected.

Q: Will it be harder to get disability benefits?

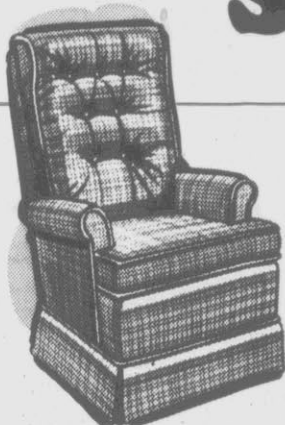

A: Yes. Homemakers and others out of the work force will lose their disability protection more quickly. Reagan wants to require that workers be in the work force for 7 1/2 years, instead of five years, in the past 10 years to be protected against disability. He also wants only medical factors weighed in the determination, not the person's age, education or work experience, and the disability would have to last at least 24 months instead of 12 months.

Computer Is A 'Know-It-All'

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — Sophia is a know-it-all at Smith College here, but she'll never earn a degree.
 Almost everyone at the century-old women's liberal-arts college comes to her for advice. She helps students find compatible roommates, untangles registration rosters, comes up with answers when asked about scholastic and alumnae records and other matters. She works long hours without complaints.
 Sophia is a Honeywell computer whose acronym was derived from Smith's Omniscient Paraphernalia for Helpful Information Activities. Others claim she is also named for Sophia Smith whose bequest founded the college in 1871. She is programmed for all sorts of information that affects the school and its students and alumnae.

Likes To Believe Tragedy Preventable

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Laurence Layton likes to believe he could have prevented his family's tragedies, somehow, if only he'd known what was happening at the Rev. Jim Jones' Peoples Temple.

But no one told him. And no one prevented the tragedies.

In October 1978, Layton's wife of 30 years, Lisa, died of cancer in the Temple's jungle settlement in Guyana. Before she left for Jonestown in late 1977, she divorced her husband and turned over her share of their property — worth $300,000 — to Jim Jones.

One month later, U.S. Rep. Leo Ryan — spurred to action by testimony from Layton's daughter, Deborah, a defector from the Guyana settlement — was gunned down during an expedition to investigate Jonestown. Jones reacted by ordering mass suicide in Jonestown; 908 died.

Layton's son, Larry — the first family member drawn into Jones' fold — was accused of the slaying and jailed for two years in Guyana. Last spring, he was tried and acquitted there of attempted murder. He is now jailed in San Francisco, awaiting trial on charges of conspiring to murder Ryan.

And Laurence Layton, a retired research scientist who never met Jim Jones, who is "ashamed to identify myself, to be identified with such a horrible situation," is traveling with daughter Deborah to promote a book that examines it all.

The book, "In My Father's House," was written by his eldest son, Tom, a University of California archeology professor, with Min S. Yee, a professional writer, and with help from all the Laytons.

"This book tears me apart," Layton said. "But Deborah and Tom feel that if people can understand, it might help them."

"We were an ordinary family with high standards who struggled to bring up our family properly. Each of these things could have happened to other people. They just happened to us."

First Larry, in 1968, joined Jones' California Temple. He encouraged Deborah to join. Soon their mother, restless with her children grown and eager to serve the needy, followed.

Business Meet Held By Club

Town and Country Senior Citizen's Club held its regular business meeting at St. Paul's Episcopal Church last week.

An invitation to attend the "Salute to Senior Citizens Program" May 16 at 10 a.m. at the Middle School was extended to the club by Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority. The event will be sponsored by the sorority.

Mrs. Ruby Parkerson reported Mrs. Louise Tucker is a patient in Pitt Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Mary Crawford is in the Greenville Villa Nursing Home.

Mrs. Sarah Ashton told the group that the follow-up for the March of Dimes will be at the May 21 meeting.

Phillip Alder from East Carolina University gave a talk on conservation and preservation of the seashore of North Carolina.

A covered dish luncheon is scheduled for the next meeting.

Beatrice Maye Will Be Speaker

WILLIAMSTON — Mrs. Beatrice Maye from Sycamore Hill Baptist Church will be the guest speaker at Mt. Shiloh Baptist Church Annual Woman's Day program.

Mrs. Maye is employed by the Greenville City Schools as a librarian. She received her B.S. degree from N.C. A & T University in Greensboro and her B.S. in library science from North Carolina Central University, Durham.

She has been a Sunday School teacher, served on the Deaconess Board and the board of directors of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church.

The service is scheduled for May 17 at 11 a.m. The church is located on Academy and Elm streets, Williamston. For further information contact the Rev. Kenneth Hammond, Mary Lloyd or Maggie DeVane.

"My mother had an affluent childhood and she was affluent later," Deborah said. "She was always saying she should do more for other people. Jim Jones knew exactly how to home in on that guilt."

Tom and a sister, Annalisa, each visited the California Temple in the early 1970s, but chose not to join. Layton, curious and concerned about the church that lured away his wife and two of his four children, asked if he could attend a service, but was told he would not be admitted.

"Jim Jones hated my father because my father was always telling us to think for ourselves," Deborah said. "That was very threatening to Jim Jones. He had to be the ultimate authority."

Deborah, once a trusted Jones aide who jetted around the world depositing Temple monies in secret accounts, defected from the Guyana settlement in 1978, leaving her ailing mother behind. Now 27, she is married to another former Temple member and working in a brokerage firm in San Francisco.

"Sometimes I still dream," she said. "You are a prisoner of your dreams. I dream that I'm carrying my mother out. She's safe."

"The book was hard for me. It's extremely truthful and it's very painful to read what happened. I just hope people will interpret the family open-mindedly."

When she joined the Temple, it was a "social group of very, very idealistic people who wanted to alleviate poverty." But, she said, as Jones' political power grew, so did his paranoia and ambition. Most members felt helpless to escape:

"People didn't realize that you couldn't just be active, be of service for a while and then quit. They didn't understand that once you were in Peoples Temple, they wouldn't let you out."

The book describes beatings, intimidation, threats. The Laytons write that many Temple members signed confessions to crimes; these were filed as insurance against their defections.

"My father and my brother and my sister didn't know how isolated and helpless and afraid we felt," Deborah said. "They couldn't know we needed help."

"The book doesn't try to tell what went wrong. There is no one answer. But people who read the book say now they see that it could have happened to them, to anyone," she said. "You think it couldn't happen to you. You can't imagine."

In the book, Larry Layton asks, "Where did things go wrong? First, when discipline became so austere that people were afraid to speak their minds. Second, power corrupts absolutely."

For now, Deborah is trying to make a normal life. She will not reveal her husband's name. His parents brought him into the Temple as a child, she said, and he left when he was in college.

"He doesn't deserve to be labeled a cultist. He's already lost one job because he said something about being in the Temple," she said.

Both Laytons hope their story will save others from similar experiences.

"The big answer," said Layton, "is that individuals who were idealistic were susceptible and there was a man who was willing to take advantage of them. There are people around like that now."

Deborah added, "No one person has all the answers. When you're in a situation where you can't question, then you're dealing with a Jim Jones. That's when it's dangerous."

Animal Deaths Warned Of Poison Earth Hazards

By JAMES SIMON
Associated Press Writer
CLINTON, Mass. (AP) — Chewbacca the cat was the first to go. She sickened and died almost overnight, and the veterinarian discovered that for some mysterious reason she was missing lung tissue.

Lady the dog contracted a fatal cancer and another dog, Shannon, became bloated and died. When 11 prized ducks died over an eight-day stretch in March, the toll had risen to 20 animals in two years.

The string of deaths was followed by sudden, unexplained hair loss among some people in the area. And now this old mill town tops the Environmental Protection Agency's list of hazardous waste trouble spots in New England.

The source of the problems may be a tannery that was washed out in a flood more than 100 years ago, or a wetlands that was filled in with trash. But officials don't know for sure, and they're testing the soil, the water, the animals and the people in a concerted effort to pinpoint the problem and find a solution.

Ginny Frye, who saw the animals die at her "animal orphanage," starting in 1979, first turned for help to a scientist at the University of Connecticut, Dr. Louis van der Heide. He tested the dead ducks and found they had been contaminated with lead and thallium.

"We lived here for four years with no problem, and all of a sudden it hit," said Ms. Frye, a 39-year-old former nurse who lives on a 1½ acre farm with her three children and co-owner Elaine Stevenson. "What do you do? We don't live near a big dump. There aren't hundreds of barrels of chemicals here. It's a beautiful farm — and suddenly it's contaminated."

State and federal tests confirmed Van der Heide's findings: 10 acres, including the farm, some wetlands and housing projects, contained spots with very high levels of chemicals.

Water samples had lead concentrations as high as 450 parts per billion, the tests found. People can become ill consuming water with 50 parts of lead per billion. Arsenic in water samples were as high as 2½ million parts per trillion. People show symptoms of arsenic poisoning at only 22 parts per trillion.

There also were minute traces in the soil of thallium, a heavy metal once used in insecticides. Thallium, banned by the federal government in 1972, is so rare that state environmental scientists said they didn't know what a safe level of exposure

Chapter Has Guest Night

The Greenville Area Prospective Chapter of Sweet Adelines will hold guest night Monday, May 18.

Special guests for the evening will be a quartet from the Greenville Chapter of the Men's Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. They will give a program of barber shop harmony.

The Greenville Chapter is endeavoring to become a charter member of the National Sweet Adelines, Inc., which will enable the group to perform for civic and charitable organizations.

Women in the area interested in singing barber shop harmony are invited to meet at 7:30 p.m. at The Memorial Baptist Church. For further information call Membership Chairman Helen Turner, 758-5656.

The women will also learn a short song in four-part harmony.

Examinations Will Be Given

The U.S. Postal service announces an examination for substitute rural carrier at the Greenville Post Office. The examination is to be given at Rocky Mount.

Opening date for applications is May 18; closing date is May 29. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, religion, color, national origin, sex, political affiliations or any other non-merit factor. Interested persons may apply at the Greenville Post Office.

would be. In October 1980, neighbor David Forbes reported that part of his beard was falling out. A month later, his daughter, Heather, developed a bald spot "the size of a half-dollar" on her head, Forbes said.

Scientists became increasingly worried because loss of hair is a symptom of thallium poisoning. State environmental officials quickly put up signs warning people to stay out of the area because of the potential health threat. Tests were conducted on the Forbeses and the five people living in the Frye house. Comprehensive soil and water tests have been scheduled.

Local officials, searching for the cause of the contamination, learned that in 1876, a flood washed out a nearby tannery. Chemicals used by tanneries have been blamed for hazardous waste problems.

State officials say another source of the contamination could be a wetlands filled in with dirt and assorted cement blocks, old tires, sofas and other trash.

Forbes said he had taken dirt from the wetlands and used it to fill in holes beneath a fence that separates the farm from the housing development in which he lives.

State health officials have sent samples of Forbes's blood to the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta for tests, with results expected at the end of June.

Neither the Forbes and Frye household has moved. They say they can't afford to and there aren't likely to be any buyers.

On the Frye farm, eight dogs, 15 cats and a guinea pig are kept in the house, while 14 chickens, six Canada geese, five African geese, 23 ducks, two horses, two ponies and a goat are restricted to a quarter-acre.

They continue to suffer health problems, and Mrs. Frye said: "People used to use canaries in mines to show if there was an air problem. These animals are our canaries.

"If it weren't for the animals, we wouldn't have noticed anything wrong until we were deathly ill. The animals may have saved our lives."

Cigarette -Tax Bills Are Filed In The N.C. Senate

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Smokers across the nation might be spending more in the near future if a pair of cigarette-tax bills filed in the state Senate Tuesday become law.

The bills, filed by Sen. Rachel Gray, D-Guilford, would raise the current 2-cent-per-pack tax to 5 cents and put a new tax on manufacturers.

The manufacturer's tax would be applied on all cigarettes produced in North Carolina including those distributed in other states.

Ms. Gray said although the manufacturer's tax would raise the price of cigarettes nationwide it should not hurt cigarette sales.

North Carolina's current cigarette tax is the lowest in the nation. The first bill would hike that by 3 cents.

Under the second bill, the current 2-cent-per-pack tax would be repealed on cigarettes sold in North Carolina and the manufacturer would be asked to pay the 2-cent tax on every pack of cigarettes it makes.

"This transfers what the consumer has been paying and places it on the manufacturer," Ms. Gray said.

The manufacturer's tax would generate about $325 million, Ms. Gray said.

The current 2-cent-per-pack tax on cigarettes sold in the state now generates $16 million in state tax collections. The increased taxes would go to the state's general fund to help replenish the fund if Gov. Jim Hunt's highway tax package passes.

Hunt has proposed an increase in the tax on gasoline and transfers of about $70 million from the general tax fund to highway needs and an individual tax credit.

In other legislative action:

Workers Compensation

A legislative committee gave the first approval to a bill that would liberalize the state's workers compensation law.

The bill would remove the need to prove an accident when seeking benefits under the law. Court interpretation of the current law requires that to claim benefits, a worker must prove that an injury was caused by an accident or by an unusual act not part of the worker's everyday duties.

Under the bill, the worker, however, would still have to prove that the injury occurred on the job and was caused by duties required by the employment.

The bill now goes to the House floor.

Children's Day

Backers of an event designed to focus attention on legislative issues affecting young people told legislators at a public hearing that the state needs a system of treatment programs for emotionally disturbed children.

Child Watch Inc., a non-profit group headed by former Gov. Dan Moore, brought speakers to the hearing to support pending legislation that affects the children of the state. The speakers touched on vocational education, daycare and treatment programs.

District Judge George Bason said a system of local treatment programs for emotionally disturbed children was desperately needed in the state. He said Gov. Jim Hunt was planning on introducing a supplemental budget request to begin work on such a system.

The system would break the state into 13 geographical regions. Each system within a region would be levels of care that would incorporate the people not now adequately cared for.

The allocation for the biennium would be $21 million.

Minimum Wage

After defeating an amendment, which would have brought the state's minimum wage in line with the federal level, 50 senators approved the legislation and sent it to the House.

The bill, introduced by Sen. Glenn Jernigan, D-Cumberland, would raise the minimum wage to $3.10 July 1 and to $3.35 (the same as federal minimum wage) July 1, 1982. It would also reduce from four to three the number of employees necessary to qualify for the state wage.

Jernigan noted that the state wage covers only about 20 percent of the state's employees. Presently, only those businesses that have less than $325,000 in retail sales a year and four or more employees qualify. The rest are covered by the federal minimum wage.

The House passed a similar bill but it would become effective January 1, 1982. That bill has been delayed in a Senate committee.

Prisons

A joint appropriations subcommittee voted overwhelmingly to eliminate a top prison administrative job. The appropriations subcommittee on justice and public safety voted to recommend to the full committee that money be eliminated for job of assistant director of the Division of Prisons, now held by W.L. "Kip" Kautzky.

The vote was 11-5 and was a victory for Rep. Wilma Woodard, D-Wake, chairman House Corrections Committee, who had lobbied for months to get the votes needed to take the $46,000 annual salary out of the upcoming state budget.

Sen. Walter Cockerham, R-Guilford, said Kautzky had angered some committee members with answers to questions in earlier appearances before the panel.

Auto Tags

The cost of getting an city automobile license sticker or tag may be going up to as much as $10.

The House Finance Committee approved on a 25-15 vote and sent to the full House a bill authorizing city governments to charge up to $10 for their auto licenses. The bill would replace many local laws passed by the General Assembly that allow varying prices for tags. Some cities now charge only $1, while others charge $3 or $5.

Currently Charlotte, Greenville, Asheville, Fayetteville and Wilmington are allowed to charge the maximum $5 rate, said Gerry Cohen, staff analyst for the committee.

Tax Credit

The House finance panel also approved a bill that would grant a credit instead of a deduction for child-care expenses, a move that would amount to a tax savings for families below the top state income tax bracket.

The child-care change would allow families who now claim those expenses as deductions on their state income taxes to instead claim the expenses as a credit reducing their tax bill. The credit is for 7 percent of child-care expenses, up to a $2,000 limit on the expenses that can be claimed per child.

David Crotts, legislative fiscal analyst, said the deduction now has a larger cost savings for those in the upper income bracket. The credit, he said, would provide the same amount of tax savings for those in lower brackets as for those in the maximum 7 percent tax bracket.

The change would reduce anticipated tax collections by $1.3 million next year, he said.

Energy

The House Finance Committee approved and sent to the floor two bills providing tax incentives for use of alternative energy sources. One of the bills would provide a tax break aimed at encouraging development of plants producing olive brick used to store heat. The second bill would provide a corporate tax credit for construction of facilities using photovoltaic equipment, which converts sunlight to electricity.

Community Colleges

Carl Horn Jr., chairman of the state Board of Community Colleges, appeared before another appropriations subcommittee to ask for more money for the 58-institution system. He asked for $12.6 million to buy new equipment for the schools and said earlier legislative actions had trimmed the equipment appropriation to $5 million in the upcoming two-year state budget.

"It is apparent that the Advisory Budget Commission had not heard of Governor Hunt's proclamation of 1981 as 'the year of the community college' when it passed on our budget request," Horn said.

New Generation

A Senate committee turned a bill to repeal the New Generation Act into a bill rewriting the controversial act. The rewrite would remove all references to "new generation" in the act and would deny any intention to interfere with parental authority.

The New Generation Act was aimed at reducing the infant death rate in North Carolina, which is one of the highest in the nation, and was pushed by Gov. Jim Hunt. It was to help coordinate efforts by the state and local health services.

But it sparked opposition from conservative and religious groups who charged it would allow the government to interfere with the family. Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, introduced the bill to repeal the act because he said its

Jury Set For Garwood Trial

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
JACKSONVILLE, N.C.

(AP) — Testimony was scheduled to begin today in the sex trial of convicted collaborator Marine Pfc Robert Garwood, charged with sexually molesting a 7-year-old girl last year.

Two days of jury selection ended late Tuesday with the seating of an eight-man, four-woman panel. Attorneys questioned about 30 prospective jurors before agreeing on the panel.

Onslow County District Attorney William H. Andrews said Tuesday he does not know who the first prosecution witness will be. The child allegedly molested by Garwood is scheduled to testify along with her parents.

The incident allegedly occurred last Aug. 7 while Garwood was taking the girl to her home in Hubert, about 12 miles from Jacksonville.

Garwood, 35, is an Indiana native who was convicted by a Marine Corps jury in February of collaborating with the enemy while he was a prisoner of war in Vietnam.

He is charged with first-degree sexual offense, attempted rape, attempted first-degree sexual offense and taking indecent liberties with a minor. He could be sentenced to life in prison if he is convicted.

Before the trial, Andrews said there were other children Garwood molested who may come forward at the trial. But in a bill of particulars filed with the court Tuesday, no other children were named. However, the document stated that prosecutors had evidence that Garwood had committed other sex offenses last year while he was living in Hubert.

Dates of the alleged offenses were not listed, but Andrews said the acts occurred at Garwood's home.

Defense attorneys have objected to Andrews' statement, saying he has led the public to believe "there are a host of children out there that Bobby Garwood has molested."

Services Planned

There will be worship services on May 14 and 15 at Corey's Chapel FWB Church beginning at 7:30 p.m.

On Thursday the Rev. Lenzy and his choir will render services and on Friday night the Rev. A.J. Clark and his choir will be present.

The public is invited to attend these services sponsored by the ushers of Corey's Chapel.

CHICKEN SUPPERS

Plates of barbecued chicken will be sold Saturday from 4-6 p.m. at the Winterville Pentecostal Holiness Church, sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary. The costs will be $2.75 for adults and $1.75 for children. The public is invited. The church is located in Winterville on the corner of Main and Vernon Streets.

effectiveness was hampered by such misconceptions of the bill.

The Senate Judiciary I Committee approved the rewrite of the New Generation Act as a compromise between those who wanted to repeal the measure and those who supported it.

Logos

The panel also scuttled a Republican-backed bill aimed at removing the red, white and blue outline of North Carolina from state government materials. Sen. Don Kincaid, R-Lenoir, introduced a bill and a resolution aimed at removing the outline, which he said was used by Hunt in all his political campaigns.

"I am still concerned by the fact we seem to be drifting away from using the great seal of the state," Kincaid said. He added that by using the tri-color design, "someone is taking advantage of the proper use of tax dollars."

But Sen. Cecil Jenkins, D-Cabarrus, criticized Kincaid's action as "a strictly political move that is aimed at the governor of North Carolina who is a Democrat."

Although several members of the panel felt Kincaid's bill was too strong and had asked him to prepare the resolution, both measures were defeated.

Divorce

A bill supporters say would recognize homemakers' contributions to a marriage won tentative approval in the House on a 101-9 vote. But the introducer, Rep. Patricia Hunt, D-Orange, indicated she would propose several amendments to the bill Wednesday, when it comes up for a final vote.

The bill would allow a husband and wife who are seeking a divorce to petition the court to divide the property. The property would be divided in half unless certain factors indicated the property should not be split equally.

Such factors include the spouse's health, earning potential and the length of the marriage.

The Senate already has approved a version of the bill.

Loans

The House amended a bill that would raise rates of interest on contract loans to exclude individuals selling their own real estate. Under the bill, interest rates on loans like 90-day notes commonly obtained by businesses would float upward in times of tight money.

The bill would allow rates of 16 percent or, if higher, a rate 6 percentage points above the average rate on six-month U.S. Treasury bills auctioned by the government.

Rep. Jim Morgan, D-Guilford, amended the bill to exclude anyone selling their own real estate. He said such people now are limited to charging interest rates of 10 percent on first mortgages and 12 percent on second mortgages.

The House approved the amendment 62-47 and then approved the bill as amended, 90-8. The measure was scheduled for a final vote Wednesday.

Prosecution

The House gave final approval 62-24 to a bill that would give district attorneys power to withhold prosecution in some criminal cases, settling them without going to trial or entering a conviction. The approval means the bill now becomes law.

In some cases, the bill would allow district attorneys to impose an alternative sentence, such as probation, instead of taking a case to trial. In return, the defendant would have no conviction entered on his record.

Opponents of the bill had argued it would open the way to a double standard of justice, allowing those with enough money to win negotiated settlements.

New Bills

Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, filed a bill aimed at curbing instruction in the use of firearms and explosives. The bill would make it a felony to teach a person how to use firearms or explosives if the instructor has reason to believe such knowledge would be unlawfully used in a civil disorder.

"This is aimed solely at preventing instructions in armed insurrection," Barnes said. "If Nazis or communists or any other group want to get together and talk about how to vote somebody out of office or change some laws, that's one thing. But we can't have armed military camps teaching how to shoot or bomb the opposition."

Rep. Jeff Enloe, D-Macon, filed a bill that would increase the legislative supplemental tuition grant to $650 per academic year in 1981-82 and $750 in 1982-83.

CANNOT BE BARRED — Gambler Kenneth Uston, shown at a blackjack table in Atlantic City, has won a suit against Resorts International Hotel Casino in New Jersey. An appeals court has ruled that the casino could not bar Uston from playing blackjack because of his skill at memorizing the cards dealt in the game. The ruling said only the Casino Control Commission could bar players from a casino. (AP Laserphoto) years may soon become standard. Byars said these "lifetime loans" would have variable interest rates that could be renegotiated periodically. Home builders could increase monthly payments in times of inflation, he said, and lengthen the life of the loan as payments went up.

Byars compared the lifetime loans to financing methods employed in other countries.

"There are people in Europe," he said, "with about the same type of home and lifestyle that we have, who are paying 20-plus interest rates on their homes and are living with it quite well."

He said the current interest rate on VA home loans is 15.5 percent as of Friday, while the rate for mobile home loans is 17.5 percent through VA.

Byars also warned that federal loan programs should be a last resort in financing construction.

First Federal in Greenville has slowed its mortgage activity to a virtual standstill while it switches from fixed-rate to variable-rate mortgages.

East Federal, which began using its "rollover" rates last year, is offering home mortgages with an initial interest fixed at 17 percent. After three years, that rate may be altered, up or down, by as much as 1 1/2 percent. The rate may change by as much as 5 percent over the term of the mortgage.

Celebrate Anniversary

ECU News Bureau

East Carolina University's chapter of Sigma Tau Delta national honor society for students and professors of English celebrated its 20th anniversary in a recent campus ceremony.

Guest speakers at the event were Dr. Edgar Jenkins, a former Department of English chairman and a charter member of ECU's Omicron Theta chapter, and his wife, Antoinette Jenkins, the chapter's first faculty advisor. Both are retired and residents of Greenville.

The history of the society, which now has 235 chapters, was given by Sharon Leigh Vaughan of Lewiston, chapter historian. Dr. David Sanders of the ECU English faculty, the chapter's third vice president, also spoke, and former chapter president Joe Collins performed his original songs with guitar accompaniment.

Omicron Theta chapter currently has 87 members. Its purpose is to reward and encourage studies in English language and literature. Activities of the local chapter have included sponsorship of dramatic readings of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" and Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" for the campus and local community.

Dr. Douglas McMillan is current faculty advisor to the chapter. Officers include Thomas Beverage of Jacksonville, president; Patricia Creasman of Asheville, first vice president; Stephanie Tingle of Williamston, second vice president; Thomas Hall of Surry, Va., secretary; and Rose Drake of Como, treasurer.

Bradshaw Will Quit DOT Job

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

North Carolina Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw is getting out of the Hunt administration, perhaps to run for office himself. But even Bradshaw says the resignation won't protect him from the political fallout of his support for higher gasoline taxes.

"I don't believe I can disassociate myself from that," Bradshaw, who has been at the forefront of Gov. Jim Hunt's call for more highway taxes, said Tuesday. "I've been the point man for a long time."

"If someone says Tom Bradshaw raised my gasoline tax, I would stand there and say, 'Yes I did. I recommended that we do that in the name of keeping our highway system sound as possible.'"

Bradshaw, 42, one of the original members of Hunt's cabinet, disclosed his resignation Tuesday, to take effect July 1. He said he was considering running for Congress in 1982 against 4th District Democrat Ike Andrews, as well as other possible campaigns and opportunities in private business.

His resignation was included in a two-page letter to Hunt dated May 1, and Bradshaw said it reflected their discussions that he intended to leave the administration after the General Assembly acted on Hunt's gas-tax package.

"This is the commitment I made to the governor," Bradshaw told reporters. "We've talked about this for some time."

Hunt, in a prepared statement, called Bradshaw, "one of the most dedicated and talented individuals ever to serve in state government."

"Tom and I will continue to work together to pass our good-roads program in the General Assembly," Hunt said.

Rams Hand Ayden-Grifton Third Straight Defeat

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — A year ago Greene Central won the Eastern Carolina Conference and went on to capture the 3-A state baseball championship. One year later Ayden-Grifton hopes its future holds the same results.

If it does, the Chargers will surely have to hit the ball better and field better than they did Tuesday night against the Rams.

Greene Central used four unearned runs and a three-hit pitching effort by Ritchie Chase to subdue the Chargers, 4-3, in the regular season finale for both teams.

The Rams saw a 4-0 lead shrink to one in the bottom of the seventh on two singles and two errors — on the same play — before Chase struck out Doug Coley to end the game and hand the Chargers their eighth one-run defeat in nine losses.

Greene Central, which lost nine starters and two pitchers off last year's state championship team, ends its season 11-12 overall and 8-8 in the conference.

Ayden-Grifton, in the midst of a three-game losing streak, its longest of the year, stands 14-9 overall and ends the ECC regular season at 12-4 to win its first league crown under Coach Allan Wilson.

The Chargers now have a week off before opening play in the state playoffs. Ayden-

Grifton will travel to the home of the Northeastern Conference champion in the first round of the playoffs.

Roanoke Rapids, which lost to Washington, 1-0, last night is tied with Edenton, a 15-0 winner over Williamston last night, for the league lead at 9-3. One game back is Washington at 8-4. The Aces travel to Roanoke Rapids to play the Yellow Jackets Friday night.

"We had hoped to win this game going into the playoffs, but I don't think the three losses will hurt us," Wilson said. "I told the kids that the whole season when we knew we had to win, had to win, had to win, we did. But when we knew we had the title clinched we let up some. The pressure was off."

The Chargers clinched the ECC crown last Thursday when Farmville Central defeated Southern Nash. Before that loss, the Chargers had needed a win in one of their three remaining games to clinch the title. After the loss, the win was not needed — and never came.

"I think it would have been different had Farmville not won," Wilson said. "I know that I couldn't sleep a lot the last couple of weeks and I know the pressure affected the kids. But once we clinched...I think we let up."

The Chargers were not at their best last night and they still had a chance in the end to win the game. Down 4-0 with two outs and runners at the corners, Ayden-Grifton scored three runs before Chase struck Coley out on a 2-2 pitch to end the game.

Terry Locust hit an 0-2 for an infield single to lead off the seventh. After Chuck Smithwick struck out, Tyrone Gay walked but was forced at second on Brandt Allen's fielder's choice.

Art Rouse then hit a 2-0 pitch into centerfield for a single to score Locust. Rouse moved to second on the throw home to give the Chargers runners at second and third.

Chase then threw the ball into centerfield on an attempted pickoff play at second and when centerfielder Jesse Freeman failed to come up with the ball both Gay and Larry Edwards, running for Allen, scored.

"I called the play," Greene Central coach James Fulghum said. "I figured we'd try it. Usually when we try it we throw it away but at least it cleared the bases."

It also allowed Chase to concentrate fully on Coley, whom he struck out for his eighth strikeout of the game. A sophomore right-hander, Chase walked two and allowed only one earned run in raising his record to 4-1.

"I thought he pitched a good game," Fulghum said. "He threw the ball pretty well, about as good as he's thrown it all season."

Fulghum won't get any argument from the Chargers. Before the seventh inning outburst, Ayden-Grifton managed just one hit off Chase, a second-inning single by Gay. The Chargers did not get a man to third until the seventh.

The Rams had nearly as much trouble with Allen, but managed to score four runs — all unearned — on the Ayden-Grifton right-hander, who struck out three and walked none while seeing his record fall to 4-4.

Leadoff batter David Shirley started the Rams off in the first by fighting off an 0-2 pitch to rightfield for a single. He then stole second and went to third on Tony Barrow's fly out to center. Shirley scored when Chris Suggs reached on the first of two errors by first baseman Tyrone Gay.

After going down in order the next two innings, the Rams added another run to their lead in the fourth. Suggs reached on an error by second baseman Bernard Ricciarelli and went to second when Gay missed Allen's attempted pickoff throw to first.

Suggs subsequently stole third and scored on Dwight Daniels' shallow pop fly that landed just inside the leftfield foul line. Daniels was out trying to stretch his single into a double or the Rams would have scored another run when John Mayo followed with a double.

Allen then set down the next eight hitters before Mayo reached on an error by third baseman Joey Kennedy in the seventh. After moving to second on a ground out, Mayo went to third on a single by Chris Ginn. Ginn was pinch hitting for catcher Butch Brown. Barry Tyndall then hit a 1-2 pitch up the middle for a single to score both runners and the Rams led, 4-0.

Lady Pirates Open AIAW Title Quest

East Carolina's Lady Pirates open their quest for the AIAW National Slo-Pitch Softball championship tomorrow in Raleigh. The tournament, drawing 13 teams, is being played at N.C. State University.

The Lady Pirates, ranked first in the country much of the season, go into the tournament as the second seed, behind Florida State. The Lady Seminoles, 50-7, have a first round bye in the tournament, along with the Lady Pirates, 42-6, and third-ranked North Carolina, 43-20.

The tournament will last through Saturday, with a double elimination format. Nine games will be played on the first day of competition.

In the first round, Western Carolina (25-17) will meet Wilmington of Ohio (21-1), in an 11:30 a.m. game, while N.C. State (30-13) takes on Morehead State (22-6) in a 1 p.m. contest. Also a 1 p.m. Lakeland of Ohio (20-3) faces South Florida (34-21). Florida

State will then meet the Western Carolina-Wilmington winner at 5:30 p.m., while the State-Morehead winner meets the Lakeland-South Florida survivor in another 5 p.m. game.

Georgia Southern (29-10) faces Auburn (34-8) in a 2:30 p.m. game, with the winner meeting North Carolina at 7 p.m. In another 2:30 game, Florida (32-11) meets Northern Kentucky (24-9) with the winner playing East Carolina at 7 p.m.

East Carolina has twice met Florida, splitting with that team, and has beaten Northern Kentucky in the only meeting of the two.

The Lady Pirates come into the tournament with statistics to back up their play. They are hitting .374, while holding opponents to a .250 batting average. East Carolina has slammed 42 homers, while allowing only four. Overall the Lady Pirates have 582 hits and 338 runs, while giving up 342 hits and 101 runs.

The pitching staff of Jeanette Roth and Angie Humphrey have a combined ERA of 1.90. Ruth is 31-4 with a 2.02 ERA, while Humphrey is 11-2 with a 1.60 ERA.

Grand Slam Lifts DHC By Jags

FARMVILLE — Doug McRoy drove in five runs including four with a grand slam home run in the third to lead D.H. Conley past Farmville Central, 6-3, Tuesday afternoon in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game.

The Vikings, now 10-9 overall and 8-5 in the ECC, led 1-0 going into the third inning. With one gone, Emory Vines walked, Dixon Page doubled and Sammy Tucker was intentionally walked to get at Jeff Cox.

Cox popped up to the second baseman for the second out of the inning but McRoy then hit the first pitch he saw from Farmville's Bobby Avery over the rightfield fence, some 320 feet away, for a grand slam to give Conley a 5-0 lead.

The Vikings added another run in the fourth for a 6-0 lead. Farmville finally scored in the sixth, pushing across one run, and in the seventh, scoring two runs.

With one out in the seventh Greg Hardison singled. Bobby Avery and Wade Corbett then reached on consecutive errors by DHC shortstop Todd Rouse. Hardison scored on Rouse's second error. Then, with two outs, Joey Steppe singled home

Avery but that was all the Jaguars could get.

McRoy went the distance for the win, his fifth in seven decisions. He struck out eight and walked three and allowed just one earned run.

"Doug pitched well," D.H. Conley coach Ritchie Wynns said. "He had everything yesterday. He had a good fast ball, was changing speeds well and kept the ball low."

He also cooled a third-inning bases-loaded threat without giving up a run. With the bases loaded and none out, McRoy got Corbett to look at a called third strike, got a pop out and then struck out Mike Tugwell

Chesley Denies Retiring Announcement By James

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Bob James announced Tuesday that C.D. Chesley was retiring after 24 years of televising ACC basketball and football games.

However, Chesley issued a statement last flatly denying his retirement.

In his statement, James said "Chesley's contract would have had another year. We regret this action was chosen but it's understood. He leaves us with our best wishes."

James said the request was not made at the urging of the ACC despite a suit filed Wednesday by Raycom Inc. of Charlotte, N.C., alleging antitrust violations in connection with the television contract.

"I personally feel he had been thinking about this for a long time and discussed it with his family long before the suit was filed," James said.

The ACC commissioner said the conference would be accepting bids for televising the 1981-82 season "at the earliest time possible" and would negotiate "with anyone interested in bidding for the rights."

"Raycom will be accorded the opportunity to bid like all other interested parties. We'll check our files and give anyone who has expressed desire to televise our contests in the past a chance to bid for the rights," he said.

Later, Chesley said, "I have not retired from producing sports television and it is with reluctance I gave up my contract with the conference."

Chesley said his reasons were "caused by a series of factors which made it impractical if not impossible to continue television coverage in keeping the high professional standards I think are required."

"A number of representatives of member universities were clamoring for higher rights fees from me while at the same time side deals were being made by the conference with other networks and television producers which diminished the number of games available for me to telecast," Chesley said.

Meanwhile, Duke Athletic Director Tom Butters announced the format for the ACC basketball tournament scheduled at Greensboro, N.C., March 5-7, 1982.

Butters said the four Friday games would pit the No. 1 team against the No. 8 team at noon; the No. 4 team against the No. 5 team at 2 p.m.; the No. 2 team against the No. 7 team at 6 p.m., and the No. 3 team against the No. 6 team at 8 p.m.

On Saturday, the winner of Friday's first two games will meet at 1 p.m. and the other two winners will play at 3:30 p.m. The championship game is set for 1 p.m. Sunday.

Birds' Palmer Headed For Bullpen?

By The Associated Press

Jim Palmer, a three-time winner of the American League's Cy Young Award, may be about to say sayonara to the Baltimore Orioles' starting rotation.

"I just don't think I should start any more," the 35-year-old right-hander said dejectedly Tuesday night after giving up four runs on five hits in 41-3 innings as the Orioles bowed to the Toronto Blue Jays 5-2.

"I just can't go long enough any more. I proved it at the end of last season and so far this season. It just seems ridiculous to keep going out there. There are just too many other guys on this club that can pitch longer and probably do a better job."

Does that mean Palmer is bullpen-bound after making 459 starts in his 487 big league appearances, including 199 complete games?

"That would probably be the best thing for the sake of the ballclub," he said.

Palmer has won 20 or more games eight times, the first American Leaguer since Lefty Grove in 1935 to accomplish that feat. But his last 20-game season was in 1978, last year his earned run average of 3.98 was the highest of his career and for the first time he yielded more hits (238) than innings pitched (224). This season he has completed one of six starts and has allowed 37 hits in 362-3 innings with a respectable 3.44 ERA ... but only 10 strikeouts.

The Orioles staked Palmer to a 2-0 lead on Mark Belanger's RBI double and Eddie Murray's first home run of the season but managed only two other hits off Dave Stieb.

After a walk, Garth Iorg's single and a forceout, newly acquired Buck Martinez doubled home two runs to tie the score 2-2 and Alfredo Griffin chased Palmer with an RBI double.

Yankees 4, A's 1

New York collected only five hits off Rick Langford but four of them went for extra bases. Bobby Murcer homered and Graig Nettles rapped an RBI single in the fourth inning.

Twins 4, Red Sox 3

Mickey Hatcher and Roy Smalley hit consecutive home runs off Tom Burgmeier with two out in the bottom of the 10th inning as Minnesota snapped Boston's five-game winning streak. The Red Sox had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the 10th on singles by Jerry Remy and Dwight Evans and Carl Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly. Ron Jackson homered for the Twins' first two runs.

Royals 3, Rangers 2

Kansas City rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth to snap a four-game losing streak and win for only the seventh time in 23 games. Amos Otis doubled leading off the inning and Lee May singled him to third, chasing Texas starter Jon Matlack. After reliever Steve Comer walked Willie Aikens to load the bases, Frank White's sacrifice fly tied the score. One out later, Wilson delivered the game-winning hit off John Henry Johnson.

White Sox 7, Indians 4

Tony Bernazard tripled and singled, driving in one run and scoring two others, and Carlton Fisk drove in three runs with a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly. The White Sox jumped on Rick Waits for five runs in the first two innings and added another in the sixth to offset solo home runs by Cleveland's Dave Rosello and Joe Charboneau.

Angels 4, Brewers 0

Ken Forsch pitched a seven-hitter while Rick Burleson scored once and singled home another run. Burleson's single, a sacrifice, a two-out walk to Brian Downing and a single by Ed Ott gave the Angels a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning. They added two runs in the fifth on singles by Juan Beniquez, Larry Harlow, Burleson and Rod Carew. Forsch was aided by five double plays and did not allow a runner to reach scoring position.

Tigers 6, Mariners 2

John Wockenfuss drove in three runs to back the five-hit pitching of Milt Wilcox. Wockenfuss drove in a run with a second-inning grounder and added a run-scoring double in the fourth and an RBI single in the fifth.

Niekro's Knuckleball Baffles Pittsburgh, 2-0

By The Associated Press

After a blistering power mower accident at home, Phil Niekro wasn't sure he could pitch.

"I couldn't throw a fastball," he said. "The blister on my finger touched the ball when I tried to throw it. But it didn't affect my knuckleball."

Actually, that was just about all Niekro needed Tuesday night in pitching a two-hitter to pace the Atlanta Braves to a 2-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I was just fortunate enough to get the knuckleball over and when I do that, I can get them to swing at some bad pitches — and they did," said Niekro, who used about 90 per cent knucklers in controlling the Pirates.

The accident occurred last Saturday when he was mowing his lawn and touched the muffler on his power mower with the index finger of his right hand.

"I didn't know I could pitch until I warmed up before the game," said the right-hander.

The shutout, incidentally, was the 40th of Niekro's career and was also his 235th lifetime victory.

Niekro, 2-1, never allowed a runner past second base. He walked three and struck out five and yielded only singles to Phil Garner in the second inning and Tony Pena in the fifth.

The Braves scored their runs without an RBI. Dale Murphy raced home with the first run on a misfired rundown play in the fifth inning. Atlanta added a run in the sixth when Claudell Washington scored on a wild pitch by Eddie Solomon.

Cardinals 3, Astros 2

Tommy Herr's suicide squeeze bunt scored Gene Tenace from third with the winning run in the 10th inning as St. Louis edged Houston. Tenace led off the 10th with a double off Joe Sambito and Ken Oberkell bunted Tenace to third before Herr's squeeze play put the Cardinals on top.

Bruce Sutter pitched two innings in relief of starter Bob Forsch to get the victory. Jim Kaat pitched the 10th to get his second save.

"I just wanted to get the run in," Herr said. "It doesn't matter if you hit away, squeeze or have a passed ball. The run scored, and that's all that matters."

The bunt by Herr was picture perfect. All the charging Sambito could do was shovel the ball with his glove towards catcher Alan Ashby, far too late to tag Tenace.

"They executed well, and we just did what we could," Sambito said. "They did what they were supposed to do. It's one of the exciting plays in baseball, though I don't like getting beat with it. My mistake was earlier, with that double to Tenace."

Reds 2, Cubs 1

Cincinnati beat Chicago as Ray Knight raced home from first base with the winning run in the ninth on right fielder

Leon Durham's wild relay throw on Ron Oester's base hit.

Knight had walked with one out off Cubs reliever Dick Tidrow and Oester singled to right. Durham's relay trying to nail Knight at third bounced into the Cubs dugout, letting in the winning run.

Mario Soto scattered five hits and struck out 10 for his second complete game of the season. Randy Martz pitched seven innings for Chicago before yielding to Tidrow in the eighth.

Padres 3, Mets 0

Juan Eichelberger scattered seven hits and Broderick Perkins, the major leagues' leading hitter, smashed a home run, double and single and drove in three runs as San Diego defeated New York.

The shutout was the first of Eichelberger's career and the first for the Padres this year. Eichelberger didn't walk a batter and struck out five.

Meanwhile, Perkins, now batting .422, extended his hitting streak to 11 games. The Padres scored twice in the first off Pat Zachry on Perkins' two-run single. Perkins then gave the Padres a three-run cushion in the fourth with a homer.

Giants 4, Phillies 0

Enos Cabell and Larry Herndon had RBI doubles in the first inning as San Francisco beat Philadelphia behind the combined nine-hit pitching of Doyle Alexander and Greg Minton.

The Giants got four hits and three runs in the first inning off Nino Espinosa for all the runs they needed.

"I can't explain my success against Philadelphia," said Alexander, who pitched six shutout innings in beating the Phillies 10 days earlier. "The key for me against them is keeping men off base ahead of Mike Schmidt."

Schmidt, the major leagues' home run leader, was hitless Tuesday night, and the Phillies had only one hit from their top four men in the batting order.

Dodgers 5, Expos 0

Ron Cey knocked in four runs with two homers and a single and three Los Angeles Dodgers pitchers combined to shut out Montreal. Burt Hooton earned his fifth victory without a loss, pitching the first 61-3 innings. Bobby Castillo and Steve Howe followed Hooton, with Howe recording his fourth save.

Ray Burris took the loss for Montreal, which has not won in Los Angeles since 1979.

Tim Raines, the major league leader in stolen bases, notched his 29th and 30th of the season for Montreal.

Softball Marathon Set For State's Handicapped

As many as 60 teams will be "going to bat" for handicapped North Carolinians in the Second Annual Miller Time Softball Marathon for Easter Seals, sponsored by the Miller Brewing Co.

Scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, June 13-14, at Jaycee, Evans and Guy Smith parks in Greenville, the event will attract softball enthusiasts from city, industrial, church, women's and mixed leagues from Wilson to Cherry Point.

Last year's Marathon attracted over 40 teams and generated over $10,000 for Easter Seals with Hamilton Beach of Washington raising $1,000 as top money.

Qualifying teams entering the Marathon can win a host of awards including special edition T-shirts, cases of Miller High Life or Coca-Cola, plus free refreshments for the team. The two top teams raising the most money will receive the Marathon Award Trophy. Teams winning their 2½-hour Marathon game will also receive trophies.

Other contributing sponsors for the event include WOOW radio in Greenville, WSFL-FM in New Bern, WNCT-TV in Greenville, WCTI-TV in New Bern, and Hot Dog City in Greenville. J.C. Penny, Sears, Bond's Sporting Goods, H.L. Hodges Co., and Coca-Cola have contributed team-level prizes which can be won by teams in the event drawing.

Spectators can also enjoy the antics of the Clown Alley Clowns, and music by EJ and Company and the Elbo Room.

Lionie Willer's parachute team will open the final game by presenting the game ball from 12,000 feet to the winning team on Sunday, June 14, at 2:30 p.m.

Wellcome scored twice in the first, but Carroll matched that in the bottom of the inning. Carroll then took the lead with two in the second.
But Wellcome came back to score three in the third to regain the lead for good. Andrew Perry reached on an error and scored when Greg Vanscoy sacrificed him in. Warren and Cobb then followed with back-to-back homers to put Wellcome up 5-4. Wellcome added two more in the fifth.
Warren had three hits, while Vicki Parrott had two to lead Wellcome. Travis King had two of the three Carroll hits.

Some Congressmen Retire With Campaign Money

By MARTIN WALD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Several congressmen who retired from public life last January pocketed contributions for the re-election campaigns they didn't stage.

The practice, which has been going on for years, is legal and constitutes one of the little-known retirement benefits of being in Congress.

Former Rep. John Wyder, R-N.Y., who apparently got the largest amount this year, walked away from Capitol Hill with $38,519 for "personal, political and other lawful expenses," according to records on file with the Federal Election Commission.

Most veteran congressmen keep their fund-raising committees active between elections, piling up cash for the next race. Many also use the accounts to pay for travel back to their districts, entertainment, Christmas cards to constituents and other incidental expenses.

When they decide not to seek re-election, many have substantial sums in their accounts. Some return money to their contributors. Some make contributions to charity or other political candidates. And some just keep it.

Under federal election law, the only constraint appears to be paying personal income taxes. Former congressmen do not have to say how they spend the money.

Some lawmakers ask their financial backers if they mind the money being used for personal expenses.

"I wouldn't want to be so presumptuous as to do it and not have their expressed consent," said former Rep. Mendel Davis, D-S.C., who said he plans to spend his $23,612 on treatment for a back ailment. Davis previously borrowed $20,000 from his campaign committee and never repaid it.

Election commission records show that former Rep. James Hanley, D-N.Y., was chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee when he retired with $29,406.89 in his campaign chest.

In 1979, the last year he raised money before deciding to quit, Hanley received $36,100 from the political action committees of special interest groups, many of them representing the public employee unions and direct mail users whose activities were regulated by his committee.

Hanley spent some $10,000, about half of it on personal travel, after announcing he would not run.

Repeated attempts to reach Hanley for comment were unsuccessful.

Former Rep. Democrat Edward Patten, D-N.J., spent thousands on dinner tickets and political contributions, bought a camera for $382 and still had $3,327 to take home for his personal use.

Former Rep. William Harsha, R-Ohio, threw a $1,145 going-away party for his staff, flew back to Chillicothe for another party in his honor at a cost of $728 and bought an $831 video cassette machine on which to replay his appearances in House floor debates. He had $2,152 left over.

Former House Budget Committee Chairman Robert Gialmo, D-Conn., paid the Democratic National Convention expenses for himself and a longtime aide and routinely drew out sums of $100, $150 or as much as $400 to pay "miscellaneous expenses" when he went home for visits.

Former Rep. Robert McEwen, R-N.Y., however, claimed the last $687 in his campaign account as only "partial reimbursement—political expenses, 1980."

But there is also the example of former Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, who retired last year without having raised or spent any money since his last election. Although he was not independently wealthy, Vanik was known for spurning contributions and running low-budget — and even no-budget — campaigns.

Some congressmen, however, have an abundance of money. North Dakota Republican Mark Andrews, for instance, ran a successful $400,000 Senate race without ever dipping into his $131,709 House account.

"It wasn't necessary," said his press aide, Ed Doherty. So the money sits, collecting interest, until Andrews' finance committee decides what to do with it.

"The senator has divorced himself from those decisions," Doherty said.

Other former representatives who retired with substantial sums in their accounts include:

—David Satterfield III, D-Va., who said he hasn't decided what to do with the $21,528 left in his account. "We'll probably give it to some charities. I'm not going to use it myself," he said.

—Keith Sebelius, R-Kan., who said he would divide his leftover $26,562 between a family charitable foundation and a new political action committee he planned to establish.

—Morgan Murphy, D-Ill., $13,350 and Bob Wilson, R-Calif., $2,030, who claimed their money for unspecified personal uses.

—The Rev. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., $15,721, and Ray Roberts, D-Texas, $14,679, who had large balances remaining in their accounts, but could not be reached to determine the disposition of the funds.

Imported Wild Boars A Nat'l Park Problem

By TOM EBLE
Associated Press Writer
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — In 1912, a group of hunters released 10 European wild boars in a private Smoky Mountain game preserve in hopes that they would multiply.

And boy, did they multiply! The game preserve near Cooper's Bald in western North Carolina has long since vanished. But an estimated 2,000 descendants of those 10 porkers now live in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, and park authorities aren't one bit happy about it.

The game preserve near Cooper's Bald in western North Carolina has long since vanished. But an estimated 2,000 descendants of those 10 porkers now live in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, and park authorities aren't one bit happy about it.

The boars, which resemble domestic pigs, weigh about 70 to 80 pounds apiece and eat a variety of plants and small animals. Their favorite meals include two of the $18,000-acre park's most prized resources — salamanders and lilies.

Coleman said rangers were most worried about the boars' effect on the red-cheek salamander — a species rare in the Smokies and almost nonexistent elsewhere.

"There are people who come from all over the world to study our salamanders," he said. "Being that they are rare, it's not a neat idea to have them consumed."

The pigs have also taken to digging up lilies so they can eat their starchy bulbs. Coleman said boars had ruined several specimens of turk's cap and gray lilies — two rare species of the flower.

He said there was also concern the boars were robbing native animals of food supplies and causing erosion that contaminates streams.

So far, the boars have posed no direct threat to humans, Coleman said.

"Sometimes they will get bold and actually come into a campsite," he said. "But we don't have any attacks on record. They don't seem to be a problem in that respect."

The hardest part of the park's boar problem is how to get rid of them. "You could have a 40 percent harvest rate and the population still wouldn't decline," Coleman said.

He said rangers had set cage traps throughout the park in an effort to snare the animals, which are then given to state hunting preserves in Tennessee and North Carolina.

Rangers will also shoot any boars they see while on patrol and leave the carcasses to decompose in the forest, he said.

The park's charter doesn't allow hunting. But even if it did, Coleman said that would be a risky way of dealing with the wild boar problem.

"The Smoky Mountains is one of the most heavily visited national parks in the country with about 8½ million visitors a year," he said. "There is a real concern with public safety in putting hunters and hikers together."

Yale Course On Racing

By DAN HALL
Associated Press Writer
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A non-credit course at Yale University on horse racing that was scratched by an official is back on the card for next fall under different circumstances, says the prospective teacher.

Bill Drew, general manager of New Haven's unique off-track betting theater, which shows races live by closed-circuit television, said he had been invited to teach seminars on various aspects of the "sport of kings" at a Yale residential college.

He declined to identify the college because of controversy that killed a similar course last fall.

Plans for a similar free, non-credit course at Timothy Dwight College were canceled when the residential college's master objected to some of the subject matter.

Drew, who formerly worked with New York City's off-track betting operation, said a news reporter had given an incorrect impression that the course would emphasize the knack of reading past-performance charts used in parimutuel betting.

Although the charts will be discussed in the course, it will also involve discussions of race track finance, talks by a jockey and a trainer and other aspects of racing, he said.

"One of the problems race tracks have had is that racing hasn't been getting enough of the right kind of publicity," Drew said. "Horse racing is a sport. Treat it as a sport."

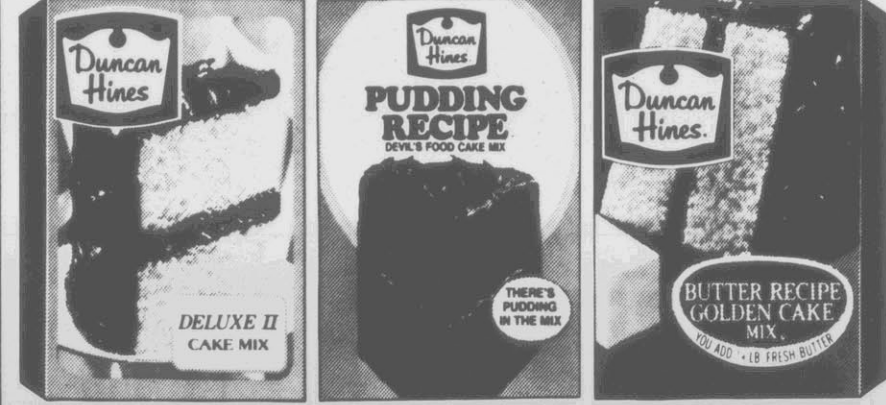

He acknowledged that the image of horse racing as a betting event has caused most news media to virtually disregard it as a sport. As a result, the average age of race fans has risen to 43 years and continues to rise, he said.

Drew said if 100 other "lovers" of horse racing talked it up with younger people, 2,500 more people a year could be reached.

RESCUE AT SEA
MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A U.S. Navy submarine and a patrol plane teamed up to rescue 209 Vietnamese refugees from two boats in the South China Sea, a 7th Fleet spokesman at Subic Bay Naval Base says.

Piracy Still Problem In Thai Gulf

By JOHN LAIRD
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Six pirates boarded a fishing trawler in the Gulf of Thailand recently, shot five crewmen in the head and made off with their catch.

That incident, and stories from Vietnamese refugees of having their boats rammed and sunk at sea, suggest that piracy is still an enormous problem in the waters off Thailand.

However, officials reporting on a U.S.-financed anti-piracy operation along the southern coast say 15 arrests have been made since early February and they expressed a belief that the operation will soon have a deterrent effect.

A Thai Interior Ministry official said recently that seven Thai fishing boats had been attacked by pirates in the last two months.

A lone survivor of the attack in which five fishermen were killed said a small vessel pulled alongside the trawler in late April near Kra Island, about 30 miles from the port of Songkhla in Thailand's far south, according to the official.

The pirates boarded the trawler with shotguns and ordered the catch, valued at $2,500, to be handed over. The pirates then told the crew to lie down, and shot five of them in the head, according to the account.

The survivor said he was wounded while attempting to escape, and feigned death as the pirates departed.

Figures released here by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, and based on accounts from Vietnamese boat people, indicate that three-quarters of about 160 boats reaching the southern Thai coast between January and March were stopped by pirates.

According to the refugee accounts, three other boats were rammed and sunk by pirate vessels after being attacked, resulting in as many as 125 refugees being lost at sea.

Almost all the boats were robbed, refugees said, and more than half the women on board alleged that they were raped. Some killings were reported.

The Thai navy's anti-piracy operation, with U.S. assistance, began on Feb. 6 with patrols by two reconnaissance aircraft, a coast guard cutter and a decoy craft.

Since then, four encounters at sea have resulted in 15 arrests, according to Thai and U.N. officials.

Piracy in the gulf is ages old, but it came to world attention about 18 months ago when pirates towed Vietnamese refugee boats to rugged Kra Island where they robbed the refugees and raped women.

Overflights by the anti-piracy operation now prevent that.

"Refugees going ashore there now are met by Thai officials," said one U.S. official.

"A lot of the worth of the program will be seen when the word gets around about the arrests," he added. He said the program also helps refugees in distress — perhaps a few hundred to date — while the planes have buzzed suspected pirate boats and interrupted possible pirate attacks.

The pirates are often hard to identify, but observers venture that the depressed nature of Thailand's fishing industry has induced some desperate fishermen to prey on helpless craft at sea.

But refugees also report many acts of kindness at sea from Thai fishermen who sympathize with the plight of boat people fleeing Vietnam.

Ustinov Again In Sleuth Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter Ustinov stars in Agatha Christie's "Evil Under the Sun," which goes into production on the Mediterranean island of Majorca shortly.

Ustinov repeats his role from "Death on the Nile" as master sleuth Hercule Poirot.

The movie also stars Jane Birkin, Colin Blakely, James Mason, Roddy McDowall, Sylvia Miles, Denis Quilley, Diana Rigg and Maggie Smith.

How House Members Cast Votes

By Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area House members were recorded in major roll call votes between Apr. 30-May 7.

BUDGET BLUEPRINT — By a vote of 253 for and 176 against, the House approved the Reagan Administration's budget plan for the fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1 and rejected a Democratic alternative. The budget resolution (S Con Res 115) is only a guideline to be firming up later in the year in committee and floor votes on specific programs.

The Administration blueprint, the so-called Gramm-Latta amendment, anticipates $688.8 billion in outlays for fiscal 1982, a $31 billion deficit, and a $51.3 billion tax cut. The repudiated Democratic plan also mandated austerity but without the massive dismantling of social programs urged by the Administration and endorsed by Gramm-Latta supporters.

Supporter Eldon Rudd, R-Ariz., said "we must back our president. We are not Republicans or Democrats when it comes to this budget at this point in history. We are Americans."

Opponent James Jones, D-Okla., said some members voting with the Administration might reverse themselves on later votes on specific spending measures. "We should not cast a vote for what is politically expedient at the moment but which we intend to renege on later," he said.

Members voting "yea" favored the Administration budget plan.

Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Ike Andrews, D-4, Eugene Johnston, R-6, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and William Hendon, R-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Charles Whitley, D-3, Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Rose, D-7, and W.C. Hefner, D-8, voted "nay."

A LIBERAL ALTERNATIVE — The House rejected 119 for and 303 against, a fiscal 1982 budget resolution designed by liberals. The amendment sought more social spending, lower defense outlays and to balance the budget, a deferral of individual tax cuts until 1983.

Supporter William Ford, D-Mich., said "What the Administration seeks to do through its Alice in Wonderland economics is turn back the social clock in the areas of pensions, unemployment insurance, public assistance, education."

No opponents raised arguments during debate on the amendment.

Members voting "yea" wanted higher funding of social programs in fiscal 1982 along with a balanced budget.

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Johnston, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Hendon voted "nay."

BLACK CAUCUS BUDGET By a vote of 69 for and 356 against, the House rejected an amendment that was the Congressional Black Caucus's version of the fiscal 1982 budget resolution (see preceding votes). It called for less spending on defense and more on food stamps, education, housing and other programs important to the poor, and it recommended a tax cut weighted toward middle-income workers and away from the wealthy.

Supporter Parren Mitchell, D-Md., called the Reagan Administration's budget "a denial of a long-standing commitment made by America to American people that somehow or another, when every other resource failed in this nation, the government would stand by its people."

Opponents did not speak during debate on the amendment.

Members voting "yea" supported the black caucus's fiscal 1982 budget proposal.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Johnston, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Hendon voted "nay." Jones did not vote.

VISITING RUSSIA MOSCOW (AP) — Congolese President Denis Sassou-Nguesso arrived here Tuesday on an official visit, and was met at the airport by Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, Tass news agency reports.

Some Reagan TV Bloopers Are Available; A Ban Can Hurt Image

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — I see that Ronald Reagan, the president, has refused to allow a collection of on-camera gaffes made by Ronald Reagan, the actor, to be included in a TV show featuring funny bloopers from television and the movies. This could be a political mistake.

The researchers for the NBC show, "TV's Censored Bloopers," found the Reagan boo-boos in the outtakes from two old Warner Bros. movies — "Voice of the Turtle" and "An Angel From Texas" — and an Army training film. "We knew we didn't have to have his permission to use them," said Lee Miller, the show's producer, "but out of respect for the president, we asked for it."

Officially, the President nixed the use of his bloopers because, according to assistant press secretary Mark Weinberg, "doing so would imply commercial endorsement" of the show.

"I think that with the prestige of his office, he doesn't want to be held up in any light that might be seen as ridicule," said Miller. "But we don't want to embarrass anybody, we feel strongly obligated to that. We didn't want to be party to anything that was embarrassing."

In one of the bloopers, Eve Arden introduced Reagan to Eleanor Parker as "Van Johnson, president of the Screen Actors Guild."

In another, Reagan was trying to zip Eleanor

Parker's dress, but when he touched the zipper, the dress came off.

Embarrassing? Why, that's the sort of thing that might enhance a president's image. I rather like the idea of a chief executive who could, if he wanted to, remove a dress with a mere touch. At least, it's no less presidential than clowning around with Bonzo the chimp.

Besides, now that everyone knows a collection of Reagan bloopers exists... well, it's only natural for the imagination to supply its own bloopers. It's like Richard Nixon's infamous 18-minute tape gap, which, as fancied in erasure is probably much more damning than it was in reality.

Indeed, try as I might to stifle the thoughts, imaginary Reagan bloopers keep appearing on that screen in my head. That Army training film, for example...

Ronald Reagan, in uniform, sits behind a desk giving his spiel on the armed forces to the camera.

'ROCKY' REVISITED — Actor Sylvester Stallone pats statue of himself that will be used as a prop in his new movie, "Rocky III", as he walks past it in Philadelphia. First of three days of filming in the Philadelphia area began at the statue erected for the movie at top of the steps of the city's Art Museum, site of a scene from the first "Rocky" film. Budget Risk In Children's TV

By JAMES SIMON
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Children's programs developed during the past decade are threatened by plans to cut the federal budget and censorship by groups such as the Moral Majority, says the president of Action for Children's Television.

"If the Reagan administration succeeds in its budget cuts, public broadcasting could cease to be an alternative, especially in children's programming," Peggy Charren said Tuesday.

"The anti-regulatory fever in Washington also is producing an atmosphere of 'anything goes,'" she said. "Just this week one of the networks announced it would add another 30-second commercial to Saturday morning shows starting this September."

The Moral Majority's threat to boycott products of sponsors who advertise on television shows it finds offensive also will discourage programmers from experimenting, said Ms. Charren, whose group formed 13 years ago in an effort to promote more diverse television shows for youngsters.

Ms. Charren admitted she herself finds many current shows offensive. "But I just don't watch them — I don't try to get them taken off the air. The Moral Majority is compiling a 'hit list,' and that's the kind of censorship we're ready to fight."

Despite the political problems, ACT found "a wealth of talent working in children's programming" last year, she said.

The 15,000-member organization, based in Newton, Mass., gave awards Tuesday to 15 shows for 1980 programming.

The award winners were: WCVB-TV, Boston, "The Body Works," KGO-TV, San Francisco, "Dudley's Diner," WLBT-TV, Jackson, Miss., "Kids Corner," KDKA-TV, Pittsburgh, "Trolley Show," WFTV-TV, Orlando, Fla., "On the Go."

Also, Public Broadcasting Service, Children's Television International, Falls Church, Va., "Gettin' To Know Me," PBS, Rainbow TV Works, Los Angeles, "Righteous Apples," PBS, KQED, Inc., San Francisco, "Up And Coming," New York State Education Department, "High Feather," Children's Television Workshop, New York, "3-2-1 Contact."

Also, Continental Cablevision of New Hampshire, "I Like Kids Creating," Minneapolis Children's Health Center and Abbott Northwestern, "Electronic Get Well Card," Black Hawk Communications, Hurst, Texas, "Reach for the Sky."

Also, WLS AM-FM, Chicago, "Express," and NBC-TV, "Cartoons With a Conscience" segment of "Drawing Power."
