Wounded Pope Said In 'Stable Condition'

By DENNIS REDMONT
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II was alert and in good and stable condition today when he woke up after 5½ hours of surgery for his bullet wounds, but he was running a slight fever and one of his doctors said he may need another operation within a month.

An official statement said the pope's prognosis was "strictly guarded" because of the risk of infection. Two women also were hit in the shooting. Ann Odre, 58, of Buffalo, N.Y., was in serious condition with a chest wound. Rose Hall, 21, who once lived in Shirley, Mass. and now lives in West Germany, was in good condition with a leg wound.

The pontiff, wounded by a gunman in St. Peter's Square Wednesday, spent a "tranquil night" in an intensive care unit after emergency surgery to repair his intestines, said a medical bulletin issued at 8 a.m. today, 2 a.m. EDT. "His mind is alert," it said.

Italian authorities today identified and charged the suspect taken into custody after the shooting. They said he was escaped Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca, convicted in absentia and sentenced to death in April 1980 for murdering a noted Turkish newspaper editor.

The suspect told police he was a follower of George Habash, head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a Marxist faction of the Palestine Liberation Organization. "I am a comrade of the communist Palestinians," police quoted Agca as saying.

A spokesman at Rome police headquarters said Agca, 23, has started a hunger strike. "He's not eating anything, he is just drinking water. He is a real stoic," the spokesman said.

Agca, who according to witnesses was about 25 feet to the pope's left when the shots were fired, was charged with attempted murder of the pontiff, attempted murder of two women wounded in the attack, illegal possession of arms and carrying false documents, police said. If convicted, he could be sentenced to life in prison. The death penalty is banned in Italy.

According to the Milan newspaper Corriere della Sera, the pope murmured, "How could they do it?" as he was being driven to the hospital after the attack, indicating more than one assailant was involved. Initial reports said two people were arrested and third was sought but police later said only one gunman was involved. Doctors at the hospital also said it was unlikely the pope could have spoken since his face was covered with an oxygen mask.

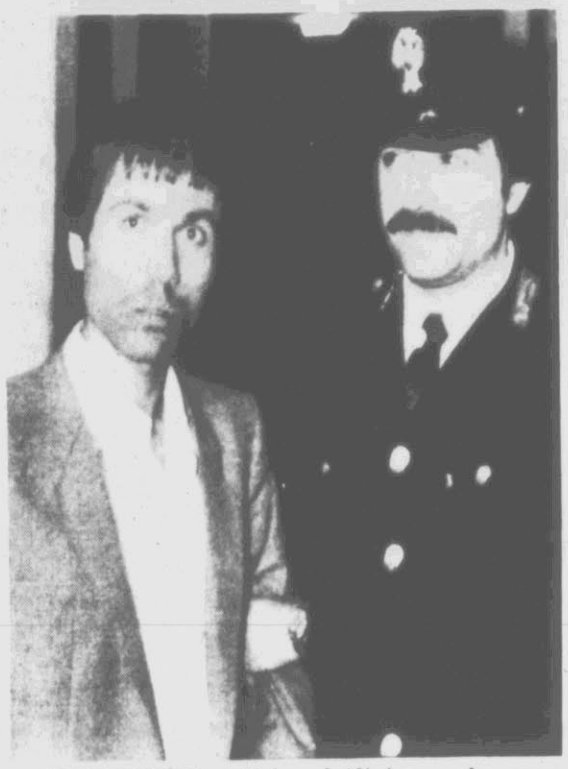

Hospital sources said the pope awoke during the night and exchanged a few words with his private secretary, the Rev. Stanislaw Dziwisz. When told that President Sandro Pertini of Italy came to the hospital to express his concern, the Pope replied, "Thanks to our president," a doctor said.

The medical bulletin said the Pope's temperature was 37.3 degrees Celsius, the equivalent of 99.14 degrees Fahrenheit — less than a full degree above normal on either scale. His heart rate was given as 105 beats a minute — faster than his normal pace of 70 to 75 beats a minute — but was steady with no signs of a possible heart attack. His blood pressure and breathing rate were slightly elevated.

One of the pope's doctors, Francesco Crucitti, told reporters the pontiff might have to undergo surgery again within a month to complete the healing of his intestines.

He said the new operation probably would be necessary to reroute the intestine, closing a hole in the colon that was opened to serve as an artificial anal opening.

"His prognosis is still guarded, and we must wait for at least two more days for possible late complications," Crucitti said.

Claim A Pilotless Craft Shot Down

By ALEX EFTY
Associated Press Writer

CHTAURA, Lebanon (AP) — Syria said it shot down "an enemy reconnaissance plane" today over eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley. Israel claimed one of its pilotless drones was downed by a Syrian missile while on a scouting mission over the valley.

Lebanese witnesses said Israeli jets also crashed the sound barrier over the Lebanese capital, drawing anti-aircraft barrages from Palestinian guerrilla positions in the heavily Moslem Western sector of Beirut.

Witnesses here said Syria fired three Soviet-made anti-aircraft missiles, but a Syrian military spokesman did not specify that missiles were used.

"Our forces opened fire and downed the plane," the Syrian report said, apparently referring to the Israeli drone.

The shooting occurred as President Reagan's special Middle East envoy, Philip C. Habib, was in conference with Syrian President Hafez Assad at the Mohajereen Presidential Palace in Damascus, trying to avert a Syrian-Israeli military showdown over the missile crisis.

It could not be immediately determined what impact the downing of the torpedo-shaped, clipped-wing reconnaissance drone would have on Habib's efforts to defuse the latest Mideast powder keg.

Associated Press correspondent Alex Efty, sitting on a hotel balcony in Chtaura, heard a loud explosion at 9:13 a.m. — 3:13 a.m. EDT — and watched the first missile rise vertically from a site on the western side of the valley near here.

Hundreds of people poured into the streets of Chtaura, a town on the Lebanese-Syrian border, after the first missile was launched.

Moments later, two more streaked into the sky from a spot near the Masnaa border checkpoint. All three exploded in quick succession.

Efty said he neither saw nor heard jets prior to the launchings, but after the first explosion, a small, white object was seen drifting slowly away from the site of the first explosion, toward snow-capped Mount Hermon without losing altitude.

The missiles exploded with big bangs and flashes of red flame turning into puffs of grey smoke, Efty said.

In Tel Aviv, a military spokesman confirmed that one of the pilotless drones the Israelis have been sending over the valley on scouting missions was shot down by a Syrian missile.

Military sources in Israel said the nation flies two types of drone reconnaisance aircraft, both U.S.-made, the more sophisticated Firebee and the Chucker. Both jet-powered craft end their flights by automatically opening a parachute to allow a helicopter to snatch them before hitting earth.

Israel's insistence that Syria's Soviet-made missiles must be removed and Syria's adamant refusal has raised fears of a new Middle East war.

David Whichard Is Returned To UNC Board

RALEIGH — David J. Whichard II of Greenville, president and editor of "The Daily Reflector", was one of nine persons elected by the General Assembly yesterday as members of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

Whichard, an incumbent at-large member, was one of four persons elected by the Senate. A member of the Board of Governors since 1973, he is currently serving as chairman of the board's planning committee. He is a former member of the East Carolina University Board of Trustees and was a member of the N.C Board of Higher Education from 1969 to 1971.

The Senate also elected incumbent Julia T. Morton of Linville to a seat designated for a woman, incumbent Geneva J. Bowe of Murfreesboro to a minority race seat, and Walter R. Davis, a wealthy oilman from Midland, Texas, as an at-large member.

Davis, a native of Elizabeth City, founded the Permian Corp., the largest independent crude oil marketing firm in the world today. He is a former chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and a member of the Duke University Board of Trustees.

The House elected Philip G. Carson of Asheville, R. Phillip Haire of Sylva, and William K. Woltz of Gastonia, to at-large seats, and Asa T. Spaulding Jr. of Durham, to a Republican seat on the 32-member board.

Martha F. McNair of Winston-Salem, appointed earlier this year to fill a vacancy, was elected to a full term in the seat designated for a woman.

Nineteen candidates for the nine seats had been nominated by Senate and House committees, and two more candidates were nominated from the floor of the House yesterday.

Income Tax Slash Said Next Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, with the third budget victory in a week under its belt, is telling Congress the president wants personal income taxes cut just as he proposed: 30 percent across-the-board over three years.

"We have seen no other program that will do as much for the economy," Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said as he delivered a no-compromise message to the Senate Finance Committee Wednesday.

He made the statement after being informed by Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., that a majority of the Republican-controlled committee favors tax reductions at levels below those President Reagan advocates.

But Regan left the door open when he added that the administration "will be more than willing to look at" tax cut proposals which would meet the president's goal of ensuring a steady growth of the economy.

Meanwhile, the Democratic-controlled House voted 329-70 for Reagan's $18.6 billion supplementary appropriations bill providing more funds for the military and less for social programs in the current fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

The bill moved to the Senate adding $11 billion in new military spending while cutting $5.2 billion from housing programs and taking back $1.7 billion previously appropriated for sewage treatment facility grants.

The measure, tighter than the one President Carter proposed before leaving office, also contains language to deny federal funding for abortions except when a pregnancy results from rape or incest or threatens a woman's life.

The House proposed similar restrictions last year, but they were rejected by the Senate, then controlled by Democrats.

In other congressional business Wednesday:

— The Senate moved toward a final vote today on the president's record $136.5 billion defense budget after adding $50 million for laser weapons designed to shoot down enemy missiles as they enter space.

The money was championed by Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., who said the Soviets reportedly plan to have such weapons in space by the mid-1980s. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said he expects a corresponding amount to be cut elsewhere in the defense budget.

— The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved the president's request for repeal of the five-year-old ban against covert U.S. operations in Angola after the administration accepted a condition.

The condition says that before such operations in support of anti-Marxist guerrillas could resume "substantial progress" would have to be made in the U.S. effort to help neighboring Namibia win independence from South Africa.

Recreation And Parks Dept. Reports Economies

By SUE FERNALD
Reflector Staff Writer

Through promised days off, the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department saved a total of 22.3 percent in electrical consumption during March, 1981 in comparison to March, 1980 usage at recreation facilities, reported Director Boyd Lee Wednesday night.

The April totals show an 8,212 kwh increase from 33,820 kwh in 1980 to 42,032 kwh in 1981; however, Lee said this rise in usage was partially due to the addition of a third floor in the Community Building.

The Recreation Department has set up a competition-like atmosphere where the employees of the facility that saves the most electricity qualify for a free day off. The same type of program has been set up for gas consumption. These measures were taken, according to Lee, because gas and electrical consumption "were just killing us." During April, Charles Vincent won the competition for gasoline consumption and the South Greenville facility used the least electricity, qualifying every South Greenville employee for a one day vacation.

"This program has created great interest and the people are really working," said Lee. "But, the sad part is we haven't saved any money, because the cost is not coming down. We're saving, but spending the same amount."

During the last board meeting, scheduled April 8, the committee noted that the director had received many letters asking that an access ramp to the Little League field be put at Elm Street Center so handicapped people would be able to get to the field. Director Lee announced last night that the ramp has been constructed at a cost of approximately $800 and is located beside the small building next to the ball field.

Senior citizens are a major concern of the department at this time as the occupants of University Towers are asking for aid in furnishing a recreation room. About 30 people showed up for a meeting held at University Towers earlier this month and requested that the department provide this service for those who could not get out to the Community Senior Citizens Center. The board is considering the matter.

Twelve community meetings have been held by the City of Greenville. The last one was held Monday night. The

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

BOMBECK'S LAW: You show me a carpet that lasts a lifetime and I'll show you an ugly carpet.

From my mouth to God's ears, let my voice go forth that never again will I buy ANYTHING with a lifetime guarantee.

I mean it. That kelly green plush carpet seemed like a great idea at the time, but how could I have possibly known that I was going to live this long?

There isn't a spring goes by that I don't look at that carpet and repent. Wouldn't you have thought someone would have warned me about it? Some floor-coverings spiritual advisor who set me down, patted my hand and said, "I know, dear, you think you love that carpet now, but what do you know about it? I mean really!

"You're seeing it for the first time in the full blush of its youth. You're enamored with one another. You want to spend the rest of your life running your fingers through it, caressing it in front of the fire, vacuuming it, and showing it off to your friends.

"But what will happen in a few years when you grow tired of one another? When it grows lint and every three hours yells, 'Clean me! Clean me!' or when you find you cannot live without a blue chair and you must choose between the two of them.

"Will your fervor for the carpet remain when every time you look at it you are reminded to clean out the refrigerator?"

But there was no spiritual carpet advisor, and I'm stuck with it in a loveless marriage.

Kelly green carpets never die. You can't kill 'em. Goodness knows I've tried. Our house flooded once, rotting away the baseboards, ruining the wallpaper, and warping the doors. The kelly green carpet never so much as showed a water mark.

Moths never touch it. Dragging furniture over it does nothing. Stains never stick. It never shrinks. It just endures.

My mother figured out that the carpet probably has done more to keep my marriage intact than anything else. She's probably right. My husband and I would have parted years ago, but with my luck, I'd get custody of the you-know-what!

Dear Abby

Baseball Fan Scores A Run

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I know a man who took his wife and recently widowed sister-in-law to a baseball game. No sooner had the three of them sat down in their reserved seats, when a nice-looking gentleman and his young son came in and sat right beside them. The man who had brought the two ladies happened to know the nice-looking gentleman, so he introduced him to the women.

The gentleman, who happened to be a widower, had the seat right next to the widowed sister-in-law. The two of them hit it off extremely well. Eight months later they were making wedding plans!

Not until then did the widow learn that her brother-in-law had bought all five tickets, and seated her next to his friend.

Wouldn't you say this was a lot better than trying to arrange a blind date?

DANNY IN DALLAS

DEAR DANNY: Much! Had the brother-in-law asked his friend if he wanted to meet a nice widow, the friend would probably have said, "No thanks, I know enough widows."

And if he had asked his sister-in-law if she wanted to go out with a nice gentleman, she probably would have asked, "How tall is he?"

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Please don't say that this is none of my business, because we care about our mother a lot. She just got divorced two and a half months ago and she already has a boyfriend. She doesn't know that we kids know. In fact, she tries to keep it a secret. Very often we see her sneak from her car into another car and drive off. She gets a lot of phone calls from "a friend."

We don't know why she wants to keep it a secret, but we think her "friend" is her boss at work. He is married. She's always talking about how great he is, etc. We kids never ask any questions because I once asked her who her "friend" was and she told me it was none of my business.

We don't want to pry into our mother's love life, but what are we to do? Go ahead and pretend we don't know, or what?

DESPERATE FOR ANSWERS

DEAR DESPERATE: Pretend you don't know. Maybe you don't. But if you do, such secrets cannot be kept forever.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TOM WHO WILL NOT ANSWER TO THOMAS": True, a little learning is a dangerous thing. But it's better than total ignorance.

Prayers Offered

Roman Catholics of this area are praying for the recovery of Pope John Paul II, wounded by a terrorist's bullets yesterday.

St. Peter's Church here dedicated its 5:15 Mass Wednesday to the Pope and plans to do the same today.

The priest of St. Gabriel's Church here is out of town, so no special services are being held there, but each class of St. Gabriel's School held special prayer services today, teacher Nancy Bray said.

St. Peter's school children were asked yesterday to remember the Holy Father in their prayers, Sister Wilma Louise said. She said a special service to honor Mary the Mother of God, already planned for tomorrow, will include prayers for the Holy Father's quick recovery.

St. Elizabeth's Church in Farmville is holding no special services because the church is being renovated and the congregation is awaiting the arrival of a newly assigned priest next week.

DR. JAMES CLAY YOUNG

Professor's Condition Said Critical

ECU News Bureau

An East Carolina University professor is listed in "critical condition" at a St. Augustine, Fla., hospital after a swimming mishap in the Atlantic, Sunday.

Dr. James Clay Young, age 30, an assistant professor of Anthropology, and his wife, Linda Garro, were swimming in the surf near Palatka, Fla., when heavy undercurrents overcame them. The two were pulled from the water by surfers who helped resuscitate Young who had been underwater for about ten minutes.

They were taken to St. Augustine Hospital. Ms. Garro was treated there and released.

Dr. John Maiolo, chairman of the ECU Department of Sociology and Anthropology, said Wednesday, that Dr. Young's condition, although critical, is "relatively stable" at the present time. He said the patient might be transferred to another hospital in Florida this week.

The couple was visiting relatives in Palatka when the accident occurred.

Dr. Young joined the ECU faculty in August 1978. He is a native of Ohio.

Uphold Right To Protest March

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — An Iranian students' group had a constitutional right to hold a protest march in San Antonio in December 1979 while the late shah was a cancer patient at Lackland Air Force Base, the state's highest court has ruled.

The Texas Supreme Court, in a 5-4 decision Wednesday, said fear of violence was not a "constitutionally permissible" reason for the city to deny a parade permit to the Iranian Muslim Organization.

Rec & Parks....

meetings were part of a program to find out how the community felt about the city budget. According to Lee there was positive reaction to the Recreation programs and budget proposals. However he pointed out, "basically the people in Greenville are satisfied, but don't want to cut or dig into their pocketbooks." Which, he continued, is quite understandable in these inflationary times. He further noted that "something has to give somewhere, though," either the department has to cut expenses, or the extra cash will have to come from taxes. Several suggestions for improved electrical consumption and additional recreation facilities were presented by the community and the board is considering these measures.

The Recreation and Parks Department was also active in the Eastern Carolina Arts Festival at the old Belk Tyler Building. Lee said the maintenance employees of Rec. and Parks helped to construct, clean and do any general handy work necessary for the exhibit.

Other community activites the department has been involved in include the April Easter Egg Hunts held at the Elm Street, South and West Greenville parks. According to Lee they were a success with 900 to 1,000 children participating, gathering over 10,000 eggs.

Lee presented the April report on administrative, maintenance, and programs of the department. In the report it was noted that there have been no accidents or any loss of man-hours due to accidents. In addition there has not been any vandalism to department property recorded.

The board voted to hold its annual supper meeting June 17 at 6:30 during which time the new officers will be recognized. Lee also suggested that the meeting be held at old public works site, which was given to the Recreation and Parks Department for use as a maintenance building, so the board members will get the chance to see the new facility. Lee stated that the maintenance employees "are really proud of our new plant, and have spent a lot of time fixing it up."

Dr. Edgar Hooks and Joe Taft were chosen as the nominating committee to appoint a new chairman and vice-chairman for the next year.

IRS On Brink Of Losing Fight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service stands on the brink today of losing a six-year battle over the release of secret computer tapes that a married couple says will show how taxpayers are audited unfairly.

Only a change of mind by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals or a decision by the U.S. Supreme Court stands between Philip and Susan Long and 58 tapes they have requested under the Freedom of Information Act.

The appellate court Tuesday ordered the IRS to turn over the tapes to the Longs or their lawyers by 5 p.m. EDT today and warned that failure to comply could trigger contempt proceedings.

"We're optimistic, but we won't believe it until Sue has the tapes in her hand," Long said from his Bellevue, Wash., home Wednesday night. Mrs. Long, a social science researcher at Princeton University in New Jersey, was ready to drive to Washington today to receive the tapes.

World Prays For Pope

There was more of the lunacy that has plagued the world with the shooting of Pope John Paul II at St. Peter's Square yesterday.

The pope was hit three times by bullets as he entered the square for a general audience.

Then the scene which has become so familiar to Americans unfolded. The pope's vehicle sped off and he was subsequently taken to a hospital. The world waited for information on how serious were the wounds which the pontiff had suffered.

The statements were to come from world leaders. The shooting, of course, was viewed as deplorable. The tragedy had particular meaning to President Ronald Reagan, who only a few weeks ago was the victim of a similar assassination attempt. The president was immediately informed of the shooting and commented "I'll pray for him."

No one really has an answer for stopping the gunman who is driven to try to kill a public figure. Security has been carefully developed, but almost nothing is sufficent to prevent the would-be assassin who is willing to die in the attempt.

We are certain that people of all faiths and all political persuasions are unanimous in their concern for this shooting, and the prayers of the world go out for the recovery of Pope John Paul II.

Safety Takes Constant Care

Working safely seldom makes the headlines, but it is important to all of us working in business, industry, farming and other areas to prevent accidents.

If we can avoid accidents we forego the pain, inconvenience and lost time which almost invariably are associated with them.

Many area businesses were recognized Tuesday night with certificates recognizing their safety achievements.

The certificates given out represented many thousands of hours worked without a time-lost accident. They represented countless employed people who have been careful on their jobs, thus sparing themselves acccidental injuries and keeping their organizations' safety records intact.

Certainly these employees who have maintained the safety records deserve the salute the community has given them.

KNOCKING-BUT NOT VERY LOUDLY THIS YEAR!

'Spokesman' On Hot Spot

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's nothing quite like watching a White House spokesman squirm when he is reluctantly sending out the word that the president might shave a particularly popular program.

So let's hear it for Larry Speakes, the deputy White House press secretary who spent several uncomfortable moments during the past week explaining how President Reagan might do just that.

The subject at hand was Social Security.

On Friday, when it began to look more and more as though the president would in some way recommend that cuts be made, Speakes came under increasing pressure to explain what options Reagan faced and which way he was leaning.

"What I do not want to see come out of this briefing is that the Reagan administration is going to cut Social Security. I have not said that," Speakes told reporters at one point in a long go-round on the subject that afternoon.

Headline on Tuesday: "Reagan Backs Cuts for Some Programs in Social Security."

In White House parlance, the word was "adjust," not "cut," the reasoning being that if current beneficiaries' checks were not being reduced, no cuts were being made.

Thus, in that view, the decision to penalize workers who in the future decide to retire before age 65 did not count as a cut — although it was cutting government costs.

And when there was an undeniable reduction in benefit increases now given retirees — by delaying a scheduled cost-of-living raise — the spokesman was hard pressed to maintain even a semblance of a denial.

At the heart of Speakes' problem was the president's promise of Feb. 18: "The full retirement benefits of the more than 31 million Social Security recipients will be continued along with an annual cost-of-living increase."

As the questions flew about whether Reagan was standing by that promise, the spokesman referred to the president's "social safety net" of public assistance programs intended to protect the undefined "truly needy."

He said: "What we're having to do is on the social safety net there are many programs, and we will have to make adjustments in these programs to protect the programs themselves."

Bill Plante, a CBS correspondent, harked back to his days as a Vietnam War correspondent and said he thought this sounded familiar.

"We're going to have to destroy this village in order to save it," he told Speakes. "I've run into this before."

At another point, reporters tried to clarify just how much the administration thought it had to save to meet its overall budget figures.

"You're saying that you need to find $8 billion in savings in Social Security, is that what you're saying?" Speakes was asked.

"In the entire safety net," he replied.

But then another White House official, policy analyst Jim Pinkerton, said: "We're going to cut the budget, but we're not going to affect the safety net. We're going to make changes which preserve benefits for the truly needy."

Reporter, to Speakes: "Well, now, didn't you just say that you had to find $8 billion in savings in the safety net?"

Speakes: "No, you said that."

Reporter: "No, you said it."

Speakes: "I didn't say in the safety net."

When the details of the president's decision were made public Speakes was

It COULD Happen

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Could a person conspire with another to murder a spouse and walk free after 57 days behind bars for conspiracy to commit a felony?

That possibility raised in this column the other day has sparked concern and argument throughout the criminal justice system, from the governor's office to the General Assembly to the Institute of Government.

The concensus: it could happen. That, and more, could happen as the new Fair Sentencing Act with its numerous amendments and rewrites takes effect this summer.

Gov. Jim Hunt's legal counsel, Jack Cozart, challenged the premise. Conspiracy to commit a felony can get up to 10 years, he insisted. After argument and legal research, however, this note came from Cozart: "I have done some research into the example you used in your recent column on the Fair Sentencing Act. It could happen the way you have written it.

Prosecutor

"But it all depends on what the district attorney charges, or to what he accepts a plea."

And that was the major point of the column, and is of considerable concern to a team of Institute of Government lawyers working at the General Assembly. Their worry is that while intent upon removing the discretions of judges which produced so many obvious inequities in sentencing in North Carolina courts, the new law simply puts the discretionary power in the hands of district attorneys at an earlier point in the criminal justice process, and behind closed doors instead of in open courtroom.

Emerging is the conclusion that by this act, district attorneys become the most powerful people in this state: they can decide to indict or not indict; on what charges; can drop or punish at their own discretion; can plea bargain for reduced charges or sentences in exchange for guilty pleas...all of that and more can be done before the case ever hits a judge's desk, and unless the judge asked, or is told voluntarily, he would never know that background.

Thus, the variance in punishment for different crimes can still be sharp but depending upon the mood, temperment, and competency of district attorneys. Admitted, those officials are elected by the public and must eventually answer in that way, but there is absolutely no supervisory or disciplinary system which oversees the potentiallu errant prosecutor — except that a citizen may complain to the grand jury and seek an investigation. Most people don't know that, and the district attorney in most instances "runs" the grand jury anyway.

How do such situations occur when legislators spend months — in the case of the Fair Sentencing Act, years — studying, debating and rewriting?

Compromise

The making of law is the art of compromise. In writing a complex law which has far-reaching effect, much compromise takes place among legislators, and those affected. Often, a minor point here is traded for another one there with neither side really digging down to see what effect that action might have somewhere else. The Fair Sentencing Act runs many pages with numerous references to existing law

Better Days For Navy

WASHINGTON — I have just made a definitive count. In this city of skeptics, debunkers and doubting Thomases, how many unquenchable, bright-side optimists may be found? The answer is two. One of them, of course, is the president. The other is the secretery of the Navy.

You have met Mr. Reagan, Now meet John F. Lehman Jr. The gentleman is gung ho. He is full speed ahead. He never served in the Seabees, but he is the walking embodiment of their famous motto: Can do! All in one confident breath, he proposes to restore at least one battleship, to win additional pay raises, to improve fringe benefits, to open new avenues for promotion of petty officers, and to plot a course that will bring us to a 600-ship Navy by 1991. He has some other happy thoughts, too.

Encountering Secretary Lehman is like encountering a sunny day in May. Over on Capitol Hill, it's raining all the time. There the talk is mostly of things that can't be done, of savings that can't be made, of budgets that can't be balanced, of bills that can't be passed. Mr. Lehman is only 38. He isn't old enough to take the jaded view.

During the Nixon and Ford administrations, this cheerful fellow served in various capacities having to do with foreign affairs and national defense. For a time he was counsel and senior staff member to Henry Kissinger and the National Security Council. He brings to his duties both a broad general education (St. Joseph's College, Cambridge University, a Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania) and a body of specialized experience in strategy and weapons.

Just reading the paper, you might wonder that Mr. Lehman finds much in the Navy to be happy about. After all, over the past decade his fleet has been cut in half while its obligations have roughly doubled. The Navy is short some 20,000 petty officers and junior officers. In 1980 the rate of attrition was plainly appalling. Because of long extended tours of sea duty, morale has been slumping. Meanwhile, the Soviet navy grows and grows and grows.

In light of all this, why is this man smiling? Since the first of this year, Mr. Lehman observes, things have begun to look up. In 1979 the reenlistment rate for first-termers was 38 percent. Now the rate is up to 44 percent. In 1979, only 45 percent of the second-termers were signing on for a third term. Now that rate has increased to 59 percent. "The trends are all in the right direction," he says. For the past 17 months in a row, the Navy has met its recruiting goals. More than three-fourths of these fresh-caught seamen have high school diplomas. "The quality is good."

Suppose Congress goes along with the proposal to take the New Jersey out of mothballs. Could the old battleship be manned? First off, says the secretary, the New Jersey isn't "old" by naval standards; she's actually had only 13.7 years of commissioned service. Since the first announcement of a possible activation, hundreds of former battleship sailors

TRUE RICHES

"A man is rich in proportion to the number of things he can afford to let alone," once wrote the 19th century transcendentalist philosopher Henry David Thoreau. This remarkable statement at first glance seems to be just the reverse of obvious truth.

Yet Thoreau's statement is truer than it seems. For example, many thousands of families today, overwhelmed with credit card debt and big ticket items bought on installment are finding that their possessions are not as much servants to help them enjoy life as masters which they must toil to support.

But Thoreau meant his statement in another sense. He saw how easy it was to become so engrossed in material possessions as to have little or no time for more important things such as love, friendship, worship, enjoyment of nature.

As Thoreau wrote elsewhere, "Most of the luxuries of life are positive hindrances to the elevation of mankind." — Elisha Douglass

To the editor:

Yes, we agree that it is tough to be a parent. The law compels dependency of children on their parents. Parents are given the authority, the power to set the standards to which their children must comply, and the standards range from the food they are supposed to eat to the schools they are to attend, to their behavior in the home and out of it.

Not too long ago, parents could bring up their children according to the standards of behavior set down by their community. When the standards were transgressed, there was community disapproval to reinforce parental discipline. What's more, their children's peers were brought up by the same standards. Today there is freedom and tolerance for deviating rules of behavior.

The strain of being a united healthy family is great. And with increasing frequency, that strain is breaking families apart. It is estimated that in the eighties, one in ten family is headed by a single parent. That single parent has to shoulder alone the immmense responsibility that the couple once shared with the community.

The message to parents of teenagers, and especially to parents of teenage mothers, is clear: they are needed. They must give their help and advice, even fearing that their guidance will be rejected. Parents of teens do need a full measure of patience and love and perhaps, most of all, parents of teens need to remember their own adolescence, though probably unpleasant, for adolescence is a time of stress. Decisions are made and parents consulted later. Even 20 years ago, choices were fewer and came much later: pressures, temptations and opportunities were less, though they were there and often frightening. Believe me, young teens need their parents. They need families.

To the editor:

At the recent meeting of the Pitt County Board of Education, an issue was raised which has tremendous repercussions for the citizens of our county. Members of the board were told that one of our county schools would not tolerate a redistricting of its students.

It is my understanding that a school board is responsible for insuring an equitable distribution not only of population, but of facilities, educational programs and materials as well. If there is reason to doubt that the existing situation is fair and impartial, the board must either prove its fairness or change the situation.

What school can dictate its population? If one school area is allowed to do this, why not the rest of us?

Sees Exception, Not A Trend

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Because it almost always managed to weather crises and remain profitable and confident, the domestic automobile industry was for years the symbol of U.S. industrial might.

Last year the mighty took an awful spill, and so did the confidence of millions of Americans who had taken U.S. industrial leadership for granted.

The industry lost more than $4 billion, saw imports reduce its market share, and was forced to lay off some 200,000 workers. It lost its invincible image too. Japan, it was said, could do things better.

Having accepted the grim reality of its fall, the industry now seeks to prove that the past few years were an exception rather than a trend. And F. James McDonald was here to demonstrate it.

McDonald, General Motors Corp. president, sat in his 25th floor New York office while fog obliterated the view of Central Park. In a few hours he would show the new "J-cars," which GM hoped would boost profits and prove the U.S. industry was headed for better times.

"The customer is king," he said. "If this is what he wants you don't change matters by advertising, but by execution." If he wants quality, fuel-efficient cars, that is, GM would try to provide them.

The situation of the past few years was being corrected, he indicated.

After the Iranian revolution, he said, the domestic market was permanently changed by the threat of fuel shortages. Customers chose smaller cars, a part of the market "where Japan has always been." The Japanese were, he said, "sitting there with that product line."

GM, he continued, had been "downsizing" since 1974, but that required time. The company was in a transition where, in a few years it sought to convert facilities to building front-wheel drive cars. When you do that, said McDonald, you "change all the components and gut your assembly plant."

Still, he said, GM had until recent months been able to hold its place in the market (Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. did not), accounting for 46 percent of all cars sold in the United States. And now with the J-cars, he said, "I say we ought to get a better share of the market."

The strategy, he said, recognizes that fuel efficiency, quality and price are the three most important factors determining a customer's choice. The American industry, he insists, is competitive in all.

Some might question that belief. They have, in fact, and nothing proves it like the decline in sales of domestically made cars. The market seems to have spoken, especially about quality and prices.

McDonald separates impressions and facts. It is a fact, he said, that the prices of cars haven't risen as fast as the Consumer Price Index. And criticism of Detroit's workmanship, he suggested, might be overdone.

In terms of long-term durability American cars are getting better, and in ride and performance U.S. cars match any, he said. The perception of poor quality, he contends, boils down to "fit and finish." The fit of doors and the finish of dashboards, for example.

Are American workers the equal of Japanese? "If we producee the proper tools, designs and environment, I say American workers can be motivated to do the same quality job the Japanese do," he replied.

In fact, it's already being done, he said, referring to GM's "Quality of Work Life" program, which involves union workers, often on their own time, in resolving assembly line problems. "The most exciting thing coming down the pike," said McDonald.

McDonald discerns more cooperation between industry and government, although he gripes that regulations shown to be needless remain on the books, adding to the price of cars.

In all, however, he said he is pleased with the "strong leadership today," and he commended it for "seeking to put responsibility back where it belongs at the local level."

Because of problems, McDonald said, the dialogue — between business and labor and business and government — has opened up. And that, he suggested, is a big step toward getting the American act together.

An omen? The sun dissolved the fog as McDonald prepared to tell writers about the new cars, which he said would deliver up to 45 miles a gallon on the highway and 29 miles a gallon in city use.

have volunteered to return to their old assignments. Finding 1,500 men to crew the New Jersey, says the secretary, would be no trick at all.

Mr. Lehman's guess is that New Jersey could be returned to service within three years, having been refitted with modern missiles and other weapons systems, for perhaps $326 million. On today's naval market, that's a bargain. Her sister ships, Missouri, Iowa and Wisconsin, present greater problems of restoration; they are not out of the picture but they're not much in it, either.

Ships are one big concern. The greater concern, in the secretary's view, is the morale of the men. Last year's pay raise, effective in January, has helped. Another raise of 5.3 percent, requested for this summer, will keep re-enlistment trends moving. As the fleet expands and manpower needs are met, the Navy can move toward its old peacetime practice of one month ashore for every two months at sea. Skilled sailors who had dropped out of the Navy may be moved to return. In the past six months, 5,815 old salts have come back.

To a skeptical newsman, all this sounds a little too good to be true. Navy life is still rough on Navy wives, and it will take five years to expand the Navy from 472 deployable ships to 546. But if optimism can fuel a fleet, Mr. Lehman will have them running at 40 knots in no time.

State Rep. George Miller of Durham said a project is now underway to prepare for judges and district attorneys a "chart" showing what crimes fall in which sentencing classification and what the prescribed sentences are.

Meanwhile, most experts concede that other conflicts will arise as the law goes into effect and that challenges to the North Carolina Supreme Court will take place with this law's bits and pieces in action as they have and continue to do with other laws.

To-The-Penny Retirement Plans Could Fall Short

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After paying Social Security taxes for 30 years, 61-year-old Beryl Weathers had her retirement planned "down to the penny." Now she could be $136 a month short.

The retirement futures of Mrs. Weathers and perhaps hundreds of thousands of people like her have been clouded by President Reagan's proposal to slash Social Security benefits by $53 billion over the next five years.

Mrs. Weathers said she had sold her furniture and her car, notified her employer she was retiring and booked a flight to England, where she is moving to take care of an ailing 85-year-old mother.

"I burst into tears," she said, recalling her reaction to the Reagan plan announced Tuesday. "Sitting in this three-quarters-empty apartment, I just went to pieces."

Mrs. Weathers, who makes $27,000 a year as a member of the promotions staff of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, planned to retire next month and draw $400 a month in Social Security benefits when she turns 62 on March 20.

"I had figured it all out very carefully. I worked it down to the penny," she said.

Now she figures to get $264 a month — 34 percent less — if Congress approves Reagan's plan to give early retirees 55 percent instead of 80 percent of full benefits, starting Jan. 1, 1982, for all those born in 1920 or later.

Mrs. Weathers says she has no choice but to go ahead with her plans and make do with less money.

"I wanted to keep on going, but I have a sick mother in England and I am the only child," she said. "The die has been cast. I've sold most of my stuff."

Jim Hacking, chief lobbyist for the American Association of Retired Persons, said the stiffened penalties for early retirement are "going to disrupt the retirement plans of hundreds of thousands of people."

One million of the 1.6 million American workers who retire under Social Security each year elect to take early retirement.

"The fact is that a lot of people approaching (age 62) have either already retired on pensions or have made irreversible plans to retire very soon," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. "Those people have been promised substantial Social Security benefits at age 62. I consider it a breach of faith to renege on that promise ... a rotten thing to do."

Mrs. Weathers expects a private pension of almost $500 a month for her 17 years' work at the rural electric cooperative. With $400 a month from Social Security, that would give her a retirement income of almost $11,000 a year. The Reagan plan would reduce that by more than $1,600.

Virginia Matthews, 56, an editor and publisher from Madison, Conn., who also is a consultant on literacy training, said she has been planning for years to put aside her administrative chores at 62 and work part time.

"I was planning for years carefully, getting myself in position so I could do this, and now I don't think I can do it. I think it's heartbreaking," she said.

"I'm lucky. I'm one of the mobile, joyous people who have loved working," she said. "I suppose I could keep on if I don't have a heart attack or if my arthritis doesn't get me."

Others, she added, aren't so fortunate.

The change would fall heavily on people in ill health and those who are tired of working and "just dreaming of being able to get away when they're 62," she said.

It is a "terribly bad thing for the young people" as well, she continued. "It's going to keep them out of jobs," with older people working longer. And it also is a message to the young that "you can't have any faith in your government, in long-term stability or planning the future," she said. "The hell with the future. I mean, what's the use? What good does it do to save and plan?"

Ms. Matthews, who is a delegate to the White House Conference on Aging later this year, said the present system of 80 percent of full benefits at age 62 is a "trade-off. You trade off those three years of rest and a little enjoyment of life while you're still able to hobble around for 20 percent less money." But Reagan's proposal for only 55 percent of full benefits "is not a trade-off at all," she added. "It's an impossibility."

Agnes Murdaugh, 60, of Whittier, Calif., is a medical secretary who was counting on retiring on her 62nd birthday in September 1982. Her 65-year-old husband retired after he had a heart attack just before he turned 62.

"It's really a blow and I feel very cheated," said Mrs. Murdaugh, who said she now wishes Social Security had never been mandatory in the first place. She favors a crackdown on disability benefits and welfare, but not checks for the aged.

A western Massachusetts businessman said he and his wife had been making retirement plans for the past decade. They had sold their home and bought another, with no mortgage, to live in after he retires at 62 on June 10, 1982.

Now, he said, "if this goes through, our plans are going to be shot to pieces."

He insisted upon remaining anonymous, saying publicity could hurt him in his job "if I have to work for three more years."

Home Health Care Plan Blamed In Abuse Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's reimbursement system for providers of home health care "simply does not work" and is in part responsible for abuses in the Medicare-funded program, says a spokesman for the National Association of Home Health Agencies.

"The process is open-ended, needlessly complex and presents the wrong incentives," Hadley Dale Hall, president of the association, said in testimony prepared for delivery today before the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations.

The panel heard testimony Wednesday that some providers of home health care have used Medicare as a "get rich quick scheme" to defraud the nation's taxpayers and the program's elderly beneficiaries.

Under the $1 billion-a-year home health program, Medicare pays to have nursing aides and therapists treat elderly patients in their own homes rather than confining them in nursing homes and hospitals.

Most home health agencies are reimbursed by the federal Health Care Financing Administration through intermediaries such as Blue Cross. Medicare will reimburse all "reasonable costs."

"Its 'reasonable cost' basis is vague and undefined, necessitating volumes of regulations and interpretations," Hall said. "As a result, agencies find their income tenuous and unpredictable and their expectations constantly subject to retroactive adjustments. At the same time, program costs have escalated and the total number of Home Health Agency visits increased at the rate of 12 percent a year."

He recommended that, instead of reimbursing providers after the services have been provided, a "prospective reimbursement" system be developed. This could be done, he said, either by establishing a target rate based on past cost experience multiplied by units of service or through the submission of a budget by the care-providing agency.

"There may always be a need to recover inappropriate expenditures or fraudulent claims, but emphasis should be placed on limiting to the extent possible the circumstances where these activities may occur," he said.

Paul R. Willging, deputy administrator of the Health Care Financing Administration, said a number of efforts are underway within his agency to control program abuses.

These include validation reviews of selected health care providers and a sanctions program to exclude providers found to have defrauded or committed abuses against the Medicare program.

In addition, he said, the administration has proposed legislation to deal with the problems, including a civil money penalty which would permit the secretary of health and human services to assess civil penalties against program abusers without resorting to full criminal prosecution.

In testimony Wednesday, J. Terrence Brunner, executive director of the Better Government Association, told the subcommittee: "We found evidence of fraud and abuse through over-billing, payroll padding and submitting fraudulent reports to the governsment."

He quoted an unidentified home health operator as saying: "Medicare bucks are falling out of the sky and the only thing is to have the biggest bucket."

Brunner, whose organization worked with subcommittee investigators to probe the workings of home health care providers, said some operators siphoned Medicare dollars from non-profit agencies they controlled through profit-making firms they also owned.

Buried Gold

MANILA, Philippines (AP) A bulldozer operator has unearthed gold objects valued at $3 million in a southern Philippines village, and thousands of treasure hunters have swarmed to the site.

One newspaper said the treasure reputedly was buried by Japanese General Tomoyuki Yamashita while he was retreating from U.S. and Filipino forces during World War II.

Dedication Of Two Buildings Scheduled Sunday

COMPLETED IN 1979...tne Kathryn V. Whichard Building, at PCC, above, will be dedicated Sunday. An open house will be held after the ceremony.

TO BE DEDICATED SUNDAY . . . are two Pitt Community College buildings. The Vernon E. White Building, above, was built in 1964.

Two Pitt Community College buildings will be formally dedicated Sunday afternoon, May 17 from 3-5 p.m.

Named the Vernon W. White Building and the Kathryn Van Nortwick Whichard Building, these two structures honor two outstanding Pitt County citizens.

The White Building, formerly known as the administration building, was completed in 1964 and has a total of 43,607 square feet. It houses many of the administrative staff offices and contains 19 classrooms, laboratories and shops. The student center, cafeteria and faculty lounge are also located in the White Building.

The Whichard Building, completed in 1979, has a total of 25,644 square feet. It contains 14 classrooms, shops and laboratories. Many faculty members have their offices in this building.

Lt. Jimmy Green will be the speaker for the dedication ceremony. Several local civic leaders will also be present.

An open house will follow the dedicatory program and will feature exhibits, demonstrations and presentations. Refreshments will be served.

Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., president of Pitt Community College, commented that he hoped many Pitt County citizens will visit the campus on Sunday.

"Historically, this will be a big day for PCC and its current and prospective students," added Fulford.

Charge Boys With Killing 4-Year-Olds

NEW YORK (AP) — Two boys, aged 7 and 9, have been charged in the drowning deaths of two 4-year-old cousins in a drainage basin near the Atlantic Ocean.

The two unidentified suspects, both from the Far Rockaway section of Queens, were charged with juvenile delinquency early this morning and released in the custody of their parents.

Police would not say specifically what led them to charge the two boys in the deaths last Sunday of Furquron Evans and Jabril Broomfield at in the Norton Basin drainoff of Jamaica Bay.

Neighborhood youths throwing rocks into the basin around 4:30 p.m. last Sunday found the bodies of the two youngsters lying face down in about four feet of water. They told fishermen who called police.

At that time, police specualated that the drownings were accidental and that the cousins might have slipped off a cement bulkhead and fallen 10 feet into the water.

But the parents of the boys insisted that there had been foul play.

Police said this morning that information developed in the community led to the arrests of the two children.

High Blood Pressure Risks Underlined By Doctor

Statistics on the damage and death done by high blood pressure (hypertension) are regularly published, but the people who will eventually become part of the statistics generally do not hear the news, Pitt County Health Director Robert F. Ehinger, M. D., said.

"Usully it's the poor and the old who will be in this group of people who neglect the unseen problem until irreversible damage is done. Poor black people who reside out in the country and relatively young males are at the highest risk.

"Hypertension is abnormally high pressure exerted by the blood within the arteries. It starts silently and creeps in almost without a stir, somewhat like a cancer, but the results are explosive and disastrous. Unlike cancer, however, high blood pressure can be easily discovered, even in the initial stages.

"Still some 17,000 Pitt Countians probably have hypertension. The worst part of it is that some of them are not aware of having it."

Dr. Ehinger quoted Dr. Charles A. Cook, Chief of the Health Assurance Section of the Division of Health Services and a kidney and high blood pressure specialist, as saying, "The fact is, the only way for somebody to know if their blood pressure is up is to have it measured by someone trained to do so. High blood presssure is painlesss. It has no symptoms when it begins doing damage."

"The damages include such things as strokes, heart attack, and kidney and heart failure. Permanent problems, such as spending the rest of one's life dependent on a dialysis machine, may be the final result," he went on.

"There is no cure, but medications keep it down. One must take the medications for the rest of his life. Sometimes, low-salt, low-fat diets are prescribed. People might be asked to lose weight and quit smoking.

"Current medical and research information is that blood pressures should be considered normal in reference to age. Acceptable normal levels by age are: Less than nine years, 110/70; 10-14, 118/80; 15-18, 125/85; 19-30, 140/85; 30-55, 140/90; and over 55 159/90.

"It takes as simple an action as coming in to any one of Pitt County's satellite or central clinics and saying, 'I'd like to have my blood pressure checked.'"

Printed information in limited quantity and special programs are available through the department's Health Education office and nurse screening can often be arranged for larger groups, clubs or organizations, he added.

Bubble's Place Is For Training

NEW YORK (AP) — At Bubble's Place, there's not much drinking, and there's very little of the merriment one normally finds at a bar. In fact, the place is full of police — but it's supposed to be.

Bubble's Place is the name of a training program set up by the police department to teach officers how to act if they find themselves at a bar during a holdup.

Officials decided the city's 23,000 officers need special training because at least six officers have been killed in bar holdups the past 10 years.

REVIVAL SERVICES

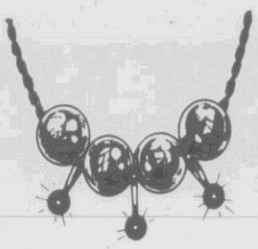

Cedar Grove Missionay Baptist Church will hold revival services beginning May 18 through May 22. Rev. W.K. Rain of Jacksonville will be the guest speaker. A different choir will sing each night. The pastor, Jasper Suggs, invites the public.

Child Describes Molestation By Robert Garwood

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An 8-year-old girl told a Superior Court jury Wednesday that Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, the only American to be convicted of collaborating with the enemy in Vietnam, took her out in his car last summer to get an ice cream cone, pulled off on a deserted road and attempted to rape her and force her to perform oral sex.

The first-grader, dressed in a pink-and-blue flowered dress and with her long dark pigtails tied back with pink bows, said she was afraid to tell her parents about the incident because Garwood warned her not to tell anyone.

"He said if I told somebody, he would get me," the girl said. "I thinked he would kill me."

Prosecution witnesses were scheduled to continue testimony today, the fourth day of the trial.

Garwood, 35, a balding Indiana man convicted of collaboration with the enemy during 14 years as a prisoner of war in Vietnam, is charged with first degree sex offense, which carries a mandatory life sentence upon conviction. He also is charged with attempted rape, attempted first-degree sex offense and taking indecent liberties with a minor.

The incident allegedly took place last Aug. 7 while Garwood was living in Hubert, about 12 miles outside of Jacksonville. The child and her parents also lived in Hubert.

The child, fidgeting nervously on the witness stand, told prosecutor William H. Andrews that Garwood, a friend of her parents, asked her if she wanted to go get an ice cream cone in nearby Swansboro.

"What happened after you got your ice cream?" Andrews asked.

"He took me to a road. It had trees and it didn't have no houses," the girl answered.

The child said Garwood then fondled her genital area, forced her to fondle his genital area, tried to force her to perform oral sex and attempted to rape her. She said at one point, Garwood got a pornographic magazine from under the car seat and showed it to her.

"It was a naked book. It had naked ladies in it," she said.

Earlier Wednesday, the child's father, Michael J. Gallen Jr., testified that the girl actually is the daughter of one of his wife's daughters and an unidentified man. He said he and his wife, Dorothy, adopted the girl when she was six weeks old.

Gallen, who was to have been a character witness in Garwood's court-martial, testified that Garwood was a frequent visitor to the Gallen home and was "like a big brother" to the child before the alleged incident.

He said he and his wife did not find out about what had happened until they found the girl hiding from Garwood about three weeks later.

"He was visiting our home and my wife and my daughter found her (the child) crouched down between the stove and the door. She was scared to come out while he (Garwood) was there," he said.

Gallen said he went to the Onslow County Sheriff's Department and demanded an investigation.

Other witnesses who supported the girl's testimony included her mother, county Chief of Detectives Douglas Freeman and Dr. James G. Grose, a Raleigh psychiatrist who examined the child last September.

Grose, who also is scheduled to testify for the defense, said he tried to hypnotize the girl to help her recall the alleged incident more clearly. He said he interviewed her for about an hour and a half at her home but failed to hypnotize her.

Garwood appeared to be upset before the child began her testimony, but sat with his hands folded in his lap and stared straight ahead while she described the alleged molestation.

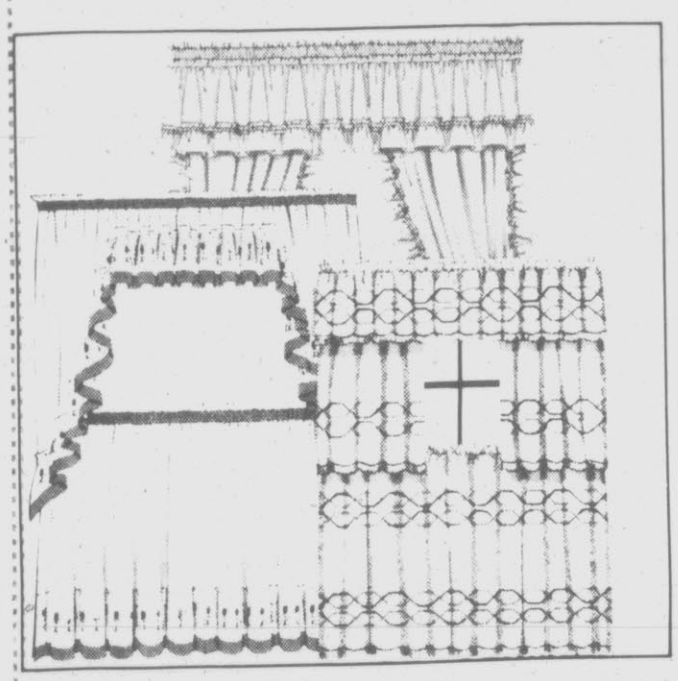

Garwood's attorneys have said they will use an alibi defense in the trial. But the testimony of a Swansboro drug store employee who said she saw Garwood and the child together Aug. 7 appeared to leave defense lawyers shaken.

Music Society Gives Honors

The Annual Pi Kappa Lambda initiation ceremony and banquet was held Monday, May 24 at the Three Steers Restaurant. Dr. Rosalie Haritun, president of the Beta Zeta Chapter of Pi Kappa Lambda in the School of Music presided over the ceremony.

Pi Kappa Lambda is the most prestigious of the national music honor societies for both men and women in all fields of music and the only music honor society recognized by the National Assciation of College Honor Societies.

The inititation ceremony included a special introduction service for Dr. Billy Taylor, newly elected honorary member of the Beta Zeta Chapter of Pi Kappa Lambda at East Carolina University. Honorary membership is based upon outstanding contribution and eminent service in the field of music.

Taylor is a classical American jazz pianist as well as a composer, arranger, author and teacher. He was born in Greenville and began his jazz education work with such personalities as Miles Davis, Dizzy Gillespie, Billie Holiday, and Milt Jackson. Taylor recently received his Ph.D. in Musicology from the University of Massachusettes and is currently on the faculty of Howard University. He is a member of National Council on Arts, ASCAP Board, New York State Commission on Cultural Resources, the New York City Cultural Council, and the National Association of Jazz Educator's Hall of Fame. During April he gave a concert with the ECU Jazz Ensemble in Wright Auditorium.

Other honorary members initiated by the Beta Zeta chapter include: Victor Borge, Jerome Hines, and Norman Luboff.

Music for the evening was provided by one of the newly elected members, Mark Ford, who has distinguished himself as the outstanding senior in the School of Music and is the runner up for the most outstanding male senior at East Carolina University. Ford played two selections on the marimba.

Closing remarks to the newly elected student and faculty members were made by Dr. Charles Stevens, acting dean of the School of Music.

Officers of the Beta Zeta Chapter of Pi Kappa Lambda are as follows: President, Rosalie Ann Haritun; Acting Vice-president, Brad Foley; Secretary, Ralph Shumaker; and Treasurer, Virginia Linn.

Public Works Week Noted By Mayor

May 17-23 has been proclaimed by Mayor Don McGlohon as National Public Works Week in Greenville.

He urged "citizens and civic organizations to acquaint themselves with the problems involved in providing our public works and to recognize the contributions which public works officials make every day to our health, safety, and comfort."

He said, "Public works services provided in our community are an integral part of our citizen's everyday lives." The mayor suggested that "the support of an understanding and informed citizenry is vital to the efficient operation of public works systems and programs such as water, sewers, streets and highways, transit, vehicle maintenance, solid waste collection, beautification, storm drainage, cemetery maintenance, and traffic signs and markings."

McGlohon said, "The health, safety and comfort of this community greatly depend on these facilities and services. The quality and effectiveness of these facilities, as well as their planning, design, and construction, is vitally dependent upon the efforts and skill of public works officials."

Woman Named New President

The North Carolina Medical Society has its first woman president — Dr. Josephine E. Newell of Raleigh.

Dr. Newell, who was a family practitioner in Bailey for 25 years and founded the Country Doctor Museum there, is now medical director of the EDS Federal Corporation in Raleigh.

Dr. Marshall S. Redding, an Elizabeth City ophthalmologist, is the new president-elect of the society.

Missionaries To Be In City

Elders Paul Thorley and Robert Ash are currently serving as missionaries for the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints here in Greenville.

Elder Thorley is from the Simi Valley in California. He recently graduated from Simi High School and is 19 years old. He worked for two years in a pharmacy to support his stay here.

Elder Ash is also a recent high school graduate, is 20, and is from Brigham City, Utah. He worked in construction to earn enough money to support himself during his missionary service.

The Elders will be in the Greenville area for four to five months.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a slow but steady advance today amid speculation that the interest-rate outlook might soon improve.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 4.32 to 972.08 by noontime.

Gainers outnumbered losers by close to a 2-1 margin in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After last week's rapid rise in interest rates, talk has revived in the past couple of days that the worst of the upsurge might be over.

But the bond and short-term money markets have remained unsettled, bracing for another expected jump in the money supply.

The weekly money-supply statistics aren't due from the Federal Reserve until after the close on Friday. Analysts generally agree, however, that they will show a sizable increase.

NLT fell 2⅜ to 31⅞ in active trading. On Wednesday the company's chairman, Russell L. Wagner, told the annual meeting that recurring rumors that the company was about to be taken over were unfounded.

Coastal Corp. rose 1⅛ to 39¾ on top of a 5⅜ gain Wednesday. The company says it is considering major changes in its structure.

The NYSE's composite index picked up .29 to 75.85. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 5.36 to 368.61.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 17.98 million shares at noontime, against 19.46 million at the same point Wednesday.

Puzzled By Odd Wounds

ATLANTA (AP) — Investigators were pondering the significance of puncture wounds found in the abdomen of 17-year-old William Barrett, whose strangulation death has been assigned to a special police task force probing the murders of 26 other young blacks.

Meanwhile, Georgia Crime Lab Director Larry Howard said Wednesday that lab analysis has matched fibers picked from Barrett's body with fibers found on some earlier victims in the string of slayings.

Barrett's fully clothed corpse was found early Tuesday — apparently just a few hours after he was killed — in a wooded area off a dead-end road in suburban DeKalb County, authorities said.

A police source who asked not to be identified told the Associated Press Wednesday that Barrett suffered the puncture wounds in his stomach after he was strangled.

It was the first time in the string of slayings dating back to July 1979 that violence was inflicted on a victim's body after his death.

"It's not like mutilation, though," the source said. "It's just a couple of puncture wounds." The wounds were inflicted after the youth's death with "a sharp object like a knife," he said.

Investigators considered the wounds "puzzling" and were not sure what significance to attach to them, the source said.

"It may mean a different murderer, it may mean something else," he said. "Anything that we would say now would be pure speculation."

DeKalb County Public Safety Director Dick Hand refused to comment on the punctures, but he said Barrett's death is linked to other recent deaths by "trace evidence" retrieved by police. Barrett also resembled several recent victims in race, sex, age, background and his asphyxial death, Hand said. An autopsy Tuesday indicated the youth had been asphyxiated, like 15 other slain young blacks.

Volcano Power Is Hawaii's Answer To Costly Oil

By LINDY WASHBURN
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — Electricity generated from a tap in the hellish bowels of Kilauea Volcano will surge into 3,000 homes next month, sparking hope that Hawaii one day no longer will depend almost entirely on imported oil for its energy.

Volcano power is just one alternative to oil, which costs the islands almost $1 billion a year, and sticks residents with the second highest household electric bills in the United States.

Sugarcane tops are burned to produce power at most sugar refineries on Hawaii Island and researchers are looking at the potential of macadamia nut shells and wastes from pineapples, two of the main export crops. And at last count there were solar heaters on the rooftops of 15,000 homes and businesses.

But John Shupe, chairman of the governor's advisory committee on alternate energy development, sees the tapping of volcanoes as the most promising source.

Already, permission has been granted for commercial developers to drill 24 other geothermal wells at Kilauea to produce steam to turn generators. At 676 degrees Fahrenheit, Shupe says, the volcano is "one of the hottest and most promising in the world."

Other backyard sources of energy are seen in the trade winds, ocean waves, bright sunshine and lush vegetation that lure tourist dollars to the islands.

"Solar collectors and biomass are already cost-competitive with oil," said Shupe, energy research coordinator at the University of Hawaii's Natural Energy Institute. "And geothermal and wind power soon will be."

By biomass he means vegetation, such as the sugarcane tops and bagasse — a fibrous cane residue — that are burned to produce 42 percent of the electricity used on Hawaii Island.

Efforts also are under way to produce ethanol from molasses, a sugar byproduct, and cultivate oil-producing algae.

Shupe estimates that by 1990, half of the state's electricity will come from renewable sources. By the year 2000, he predicts, the state will produce 90 percent of its electricity and half its liquid fuel from local sources.

Among the alternatives under consideration is a process called "ocean thermal energy conversion." The potential energy created by temperature differences between sun-warmed surface water and deep, polar-fed bottom currents is harnessed to generate electricity. Although theoretically possible anywhere in the ocean, close-to-shore sites where the sea floor drops rapidly are most practical.

In the energy-conscious islands, even the 19th century residence of Gov. George Ariyoshi is equipped with a solar water heater, while 124 state cars use gasohol.

But nuclear energy is definitely not one of the alternative energy sources under consideration in Hawaii. A state energy planning document notes "a climate of acceptance for nuclear energy is not found in Hawaii."

One of the reason is the islands are too small. Even the densely-populated island of Oahu, which uses 82 percent of the energy consumed, requires far less electricity than that produced by the smallest nuclear reactor presently on the market.

For the short term, foreign oil will remain crucial to Hawaii's two major "industries," tourism and the military.

"The estimated 35,000 barrels a day of aviation fuel used in 1980 represented nearly one-third of the state's total energy demand," the planning documents says, adding that the projected need is expected to increase 66 percent by 2005.

And money for research and development of energy alternatives are in short supply these days. The Reagan administration's energy budget calls for 68 percent cuts in support for solar and other renewable sources, a decrease from $751 million to $241 million.

"If this election had come in 1976," Shupe said, "it would have had a much more drastic impact. Fortunately, there is enough momentum now in the private sector to take many of these renewables on to full commercialization."

For example, Connecticut's Hamilton Standard and a small San Francisco firm, Windfarms Inc., recently cemented a deal with Oahu's public utility to build 20 wind turbines. Just 26 miles from Honolulu, the "wind farm" is expected to contribute 9 percent of the island's electricity by 1984.

A top priority for state spending is an underwater cable to transmit electricity from Hawaii Island to the population center of Oahu.

"It is probably the key to the development of geothermal power," Shupe said.

'Sabotaged' By Friends

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sabotage by family and friends is one of the most common causes of dieting failures, says the director of a Colorado diet clinic.

Dr. Wilmer M. Asher says diet sabotage often is based on jealousy aimed at undermining the dieter's efforts.

Saboteurs will say such things as "One piece of cake isn't going to hurt. Just eat it and go back on your diet tomorrow," the doctor said.

Other forms of sabotage, Asher added, include eating rich foods in the company of the dieter, ridiculing the dieter's reducing program or trying to convince the dieter he or she doesn't really need to lose weight.

Asher's views are included in an article by Richard Trubo in the May issue of Glamour magazine.

Trubo also quotes California psychologist David B. Hoffman as saying parents often sabotage a child's diet.

"In many instances, feeding her family is the only way a mother feels able to express love and affection for them," Hoffman said. When her child goes on a diet, even as an adult, the parent sometimes perceives that as a rejection, he added. Hoffman has conducted a government-funded study of 200,000 dieters.

Apply Cold To Relieve Pain

NEW YORK (UPI) — The quick use of cold applications for injuries such as strains, sprains, contusions, and inflammatory conditions such as bursitis and tendonitis is manifold, according to Family Practice News, a leading medical publication.

The cold packs provide instant relief from pain by lowering the excitability of nerve endings and peripheral nerves. It also lessens the inflammatory response of the body, causes a reduction in blood flow and increases the stiffness of collagen.

Compress used in conjunction with ice and usually applied in the form of an ace bandage also is very effective in controlling swelling, the publication reports.

Alarm At Anti-Terrorist Law

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Human rights and opposition political groups are questioning the constitutionality of a tough anti-terrorism law decreed by Peru's civilian government, which took office last July after 12 years of military dictatorship.

Using emergency powers while Congress was in recess, the government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry decreed an anti-terrorism law in March which defines terrorism as a crime and establishes its penalties.

Human rights organizations and opposition politicians say the law is unconstitutional and threatens the basic freedoms of press, speech and free association.

The government defends the law as necessary to combat terrorism concentrated in the southern Andes, the same region where guerrilla actions plagued Belaunde's first government, which ended in a military takeover in 1968.

In recent months the terrorism has crept into major cities along the coast, including this capital of more than 5 million people.

The terrorists have blown up power and communications towers, derailed trains, thrown quarter-sticks of dynamite at government offices and police stations, burned and bombed schools, hoisted revolutionary flags in public plazas and seized radio stations to broadcast revolutionary statements.

Although only a handful of people have been hurt, a policeman was killed in April when he was machine-gunned while guarding a power line tower near the mountain town of Huancavelica.

There have been 700 acts of terrorism by official count, including 400 dyanmitings.

Belaunde and his interior minister, Jose Maria de la Jara, took a soft line at first, blaming the dynamitings on a small, Maoist-Communist group called the Sendero Luminoso (Lighted Path).

Then a few months later, De la Jara doubled the police force fighting terrorism and sent a special counter-insurgency battalion to the mountains.

The law decreed in March establishes maximum penalties of 20 years in prison and a fine the equivalent of $8,000 for anyone convicted of terrorism.

It is the law's broad definition of a terrorist that has alarmed human rights activists and government opponents.

Under the law, one is a terrorist if convicted of any of the following:

—Provoking fear or terror among the general population.

—Destroying public or private buildings, highways, communications facilities or pipelines.

—Committing acts which endanger the life, health or the possessions of other people.

—Making, acquiring or storing firearms, explosives or their ingredients.

—Adversely affecting international relations or the security of the state.

—Forming part of a band of three or more people who utilize terrorism to accomplish their objectives.

—Using the news media to incite people to terrorism.

—Speaking out publicly in favor of an act of terrorism or a terrorist.

The National Human Rights Commission has begun a campaign to collect 50,000 signatures on a petition requesting the national legislature to repeal the law, which the commission describes as unconstitutional and a threat to basic human rights.

Most of the public opposition has come from Marxist politicians and publications, although Vice President Javier Alva Orlandini said he favored eliminating the reference to news-media terrorism.

No political organization has claimed responsibility for the terrorist acts and the dynamitings have been condemned by extreme leftist and rightist groups.

The government blames the Lighted Path, a small group of students and professors operating out of the university in Ayacucho, but their complicity in the violence has not been proven.

The independent, but generally pro-government newspaper La Prensa of Lima suggested that drug traffickers were paying peasants to carry out the terrorism to divert police attention from drug activities.

Police sources said a majority of the peasants detained in the Andes claim they were paid to set their dynamite charges, but deny knowing the identity or motives of those who paid them.

Five Necks Saved By Miterand's Election

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Five condemned men on Death Row in French prisons have been saved from the guillotine's blade by the election of Socialist Francois Mitterrand as France's next president.

Abolitionist leaders say Mitterrand's victory could mean the "national razor" — which has lopped off some 4,600 heads since it was set up in what is now the Place de la Concorde in Paris during the French Revolution — is never be used again.

Robert Badinter, a leading abolitionist and one of the inner circle of Socialist leaders, said after the election Sunday, "I consider a new era opened for French justice."

Using a classic French expression for escaping the guillotine, Badinter said the five convicts "saved their heads" when Mitterrand won.

Mitterrand formally reaffirmed his opposition to the death penalty during the election campaign. He said the law gave "an excessive power to one man: to dispose of the life of another."

Formal abolition of the death penalty could only be carried out by Parliament. Such a move must await legislative elections next month, in which Mitterrand will try to reverse the current conservative majority.

"There are much more important economic questions to deal with first," Badinter said. "But there was a large abolitionist sentiment in the current National Assembly, and it would certainly be carried by a leftist majority."

Once abolished, it would be difficult to reimpose the death penalty, which all other Western European nations have abolished, either in law or in practice.

There is no need for immediate action, because all death sentences go automatically to the head of state for a final decision. Mitterrand has promised to exercise clemency in every case.

The five condemned men are: Philippe Maurice, 24, sentenced for killing a policeman in a Paris shootout; Yves Maupetit, 31, for the murder of a farmer and of a married couple while on the run fr9m prison; Jean-Jacques Nicolas, 23, for the murder of young man; and Paul Laplace and Bruno Albert, for a joint murder.

Valery Giscard d'Estaing said he was against capital punishment when successfully campaigning against Mitterrand in 1974. In office, he exercised clemency for four man, but let three others be executed. Following the practice of the late President Charles de Gaulle, executions were carried out in the cases of murders of prison officers, or when particular cruelty was involved.

Giscard d'Estaing did not allow Parliament to debate abolition, saying it should not be discussed until there was a greater feeling of security among the French people.

Polls show 60 to 70 percent of the French people in favor of retaining the guillotine. But in a television interview, Mitterrand said those findings wouldn't sway him.

"I don't need to read the polls which say a majority is for the death penalty," he said. "I tell the French people what I think, to what I adhere, my spiritual feelings, my beliefs, my concern for civilization: I am not in favor of the death penalty."

Raising Hundreds Of Colorful Birds

A BIRD WITH MANY LIVES — A half-moon conure named J.D. rests on Homer Gunn's finger. J.D. has suffered several near tragedies in short life, including being struck by a car and being in a house on fire. (AP Laserphoto)

A FAMILY AFFAIR — Gunn and his wife Joyce watch several of the birds they breed in their home. Mrs. Gunn admits becoming attached to the birds, having treated many for pneumonia. (AP Laserphoto)

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Homer and Joyce Gunn have raised a huge family in their Thomasville mobile home — a family consisting of hundreds of colorful birds.

In addition to a "bird room" in their home, where they keep parrots and cockatiels, the Gunns have two bird houses outdoors. One is for parakeets and the other for cockatiels and African love birds.

"We claim them all as pets," said Gunn.

"Birds have psychological problems just like people do," Mrs. Gunn added. "They have different personalities and they like to be members of the family."

J.D., for instance, is a half-moon conure who was hit by a car and lived through a house fire. When Gunn takes J.D. outside, the bird promptly flies away. But Gunn retrieves J.D. from a tree a short while later.

Mrs. Gunn takes the young birds from their mothers and raises them by hand.

It's not unusual for her to have a whole row of young birds lined up on her kitchen counter with their mouths open, waiting for the warm formula she feeds them with a hypodermic syringe.

"The first thing they see is her, and they think she's their mama. They identify with her," Gunn said.

Mrs. Gunn said it costs about $100 a month to feed the birds, but she and her husband believe the rewards are great.

"They make fantastic pets," she said. "They like to show you affection."

Lenient Parole Process Costs

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Benjamin Higgins, sent to prison for 10 years for the armed robbery and brutal beating of an elderly woman, was released on parole after serving two and a half years.

Within weeks, he was arrested again for shooting two people in the head during a grocery store robbery. He is now serving a 20-year sentence.

David Armstrong, Louisville's district attorney, said Higgins will be eligible for parole — and will probably be paroled again — in four years.

"We're turning out career criminals, violent criminals, almost as fast as it takes us to put them away," he said. "The public confidence in the criminal justice system is shaken by that."

Higgins' case is not unusual, and cases like it are raising serious doubts in many states about the traditional wisdom of parole, a cornerstone of this country's rehabilitation-oriented criminal justice system for a century.

In Maryland, a recent report said lenient parole procedures played "an increasingly significant role" in the state's rising crime. And in Illinois, another recent report said 10 percent of the prisoners given early release were back in prison within six months.

Parole is an integral part of the "indeterminate" sentencing system used in Kentucky and most other states. The judge pronounces a minimum and maximum term of imprisonment — say 2 to 10 years — but a parole board can decide the prisoner has been rehabilitated and order his release almost any time before the maximum term is up, in some cases before the minimum term is served.

In Kentucky, for example, an inmate is eligible for parole after serving 20 percent of the maximum.

"It's a sham," Armstrong said. "Ten years doesn't mean 10 years. It means two years."

He wants Kentucky to join 15 states that have scrapped parole in the last five years in favor of "determinate" sentencing in which the judge orders a flat prison term within a narrow range established by the Legislature for each offense. There is no parole under this system.

"You do the crime, you pull the time," Armstrong said.

Thirty-seven percent of Louisville's crime is committed by 7 percent of its criminals, he said, and more than half the inmates who are paroled are charged with new felonies within three years.

Armstrong said that putting more criminals away for longer periods of time would keep career criminals off the street and also deter others from making a career of crime.

He is not alone in advocating the change. Paul Summitt, a staff attorney for the Senate Judiciary Committee, said determinate sentencing is being considered as part of a major overhaul of the federal criminal code.

Under the latest version of the proposal, he said, judges would be required to set sentences within specific year limits set by Congress. If a sentence was shorter than the minimum or longer than the maximum, the judge would have to file a written explanation and the sentences can be appealed.

There is a problem with making sentences longer and tougher, however. Even now, state prisons are dangerously overcrowded and some have been forced to release inmates prematurely to make room.

Three dozen states, including Kentucky, are either already under federal court order or are facing legal action to reduce prison overcrowding.

Armstrong, president-elect of the National District Attorneys Association, said overcrowding forces Kentucky's full-time, five-member parole board to release prisoners almost automatically when they come up for parole.

Don Weaver, executive director of the board, said nearly two-thirds of the inmates who appear before the board each year are released. He said a prisoner has about a 50-50 chance of being paroled the first time he's eligible.

In 1979, the last year for which figures were available, Kentucky paroled more people — 1,486 — than it admitted to its prisons — 1,481.

Nationally, while 96,100 new prisoners were entering state and federal prisons in 1979, there were 79,400 leaving on parole.

The parole process is another source of dispute.

In Kentucky, the parole board weighs four factors in deciding whether someone should be freed: the nature of the offense; criminal history; conduct inside prison and plans after release — where the parolee will work and live.

Board members study reports prepared by local parole officers before the inmate was sentenced to learn his full criminal record and the evidence and other details of the crime.

Then they look at progress reports kept by prison guards, administrators and social workers. This includes the good and bad, from progress in drug therapy to correspondence course grades to fistfights.

The prison social worker assigned to the inmate also forwards a report and evaluation of what the inmate plans to do if released.

Finally, board members look at references and letters — pro and con — from prison officers, friends, family, past or prospective employers, and anyone else who wants a say in whether the inmate should be returned to society.

The inmate's actual hearing, face to face with the board, is private. Not even his lawyer can attend. Records are not open to the public.

One problem with this system, Armstrong said, is that inmates participate in counseling, training and education programs simply to help themselves get out of prison — not out of any desire to be rehabilitated.

"The inmates call it shuckin' and look at the whole parole process like it's a game," he said. "It's part of an act to get out."

Prison social workers have limited contact with inmates, but in Kentucky's largest prison they have caseloads of about 20 inmates each and are available to discuss progress and plans on a daily basis.

Weaver acknowledged that good behavior in prison does not always mean a parolee will behave in society, but he added that prison conduct is often a good indicator of whether a convict is willing to begin following society's rules and regulations.

Moreover, board members Harry Rothgerber Jr. and Newton McCravy Jr. said that once released, parolees are kept under "close" supervision for three to six months, reporting to their parole officers once a week. There is usually an additional 12 to 18 months of lighter supervision.

However, Armstrong said, parole officers do not have enough time to really help parolees adjust to the outside world; their caseloads are so heavy that they may see their clients only a few minutes a week.

Proclaimed By Picklers

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Pickle packers couldn't have picked a more particularly precarious part of the month to publicly praise pickles, so the pickle packers picked the president's wife in a ploy to promote their product.

Pickle Packers International Executive Vice President William Moore said the packers have always felt "particularly presumptuous" in celebrating the 10 days of International Pickle Week, as opposed to one day for the nation's mothers.

"For 34 years we have sponsored International Pickle Week in May in direct competition with Mother's Day," Moore said at the labor union's convention here.

Thus, first lady Nancy Reagan has been named "first mother" by the pickle packers.

By pointing with pride to Mrs. Reagan, the packers simultaneously urged everyone to honor mothers 365 days a year — beginning with the first day of Pickle Week, May 21, Moore said.

Designation of Mrs. Reagan as "first mother" was accompanied by a decision to present her an award — a giant green pickle — and a request that she "please wear a nice pickle-green ensemble on some important occasion."

Thousands Aged Corvairs Pampered, Treasured

By MARK HEINRICH
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFORT, Ill. (AP) — It was a funny-looking compact car with the engine in the rear, condemned by Ralph Nader as "unsafe at any speed." General Motors quit making them a dozen years ago.

The Corvair, like Ford's Edsel, fell victim to a throw-away society.

But thousands of the little Chevrolets have survived, pampered and polished by members of a Corvair cult who say it's really the only way to go.

One of them is Larry Claypool, who was only 5 years old when the first Corvair rolled off the assembly line in 1960 and too young to get a driver's license when they went out of production in 1969.

At Claypool's auto repair shop in this rural Will County community near Chicago, there are Corvairs in various states of disrepair scattered all over the lot and two ramshackle sheds stuffed with rare Corvair parts.

In his home there are Corvair movie reels, Corvair photo albums, Corvair postcards and two shelves lined with trophies he won in Corvair cult races. Claypool owns seven Corvairs.

Is Claypool's brain running on empty?

Nader, the consumer advocate, denounced the Corvair as "unsafe at any speed" in his 1965 book of the same name. Chevrolet reacted by gradually phasing out production.

Claypool says Corvair enthusiasts were undaunted and business at his repair shop, The Vair Shop, known by Corvair drivers all over the Midwest, has improved every year since he started in 1972.

"In the beginning, people tried to tell me, 'Oh they don't make them any more, what are you gonna do in two years?'" he said. "Well, the number of Corvairs on the road falls with every passing year, but at the same time fewer and fewer places are fixing them, so I keep a good business. I'm backed up two months in orders."

Nader said the Corvair oversteered in sharp turns and its rear wheels tucked inward when the car slid sideways, increasing the danger of a roll at high speeds.

Bit in 1971, two years after the car's termination, a federal study found the Corvair no more dangerous than other contemporary cars when driven at reasonable speeds. Consumer Guide magazine subsequently judged the last model year to be a good used-car buy.

Claypool belongs to the Corvair Society of America, a group of 7,800 Corvair owners with 100 chapters around the nation and in Canada, Sweden and Iceland, with names such as Association of Corvair Nuts (Rochester, N.Y.) and Choo Choo Corvairs (Chattanooga, Tenn.).

The national organization puts out a monthly magazine, Corsa Communique, and stages yearly conventions featuring car rallies and parts swaps.

The Chicagoland Corvair Enthusiasts is part of Ice Challenge Events, a group of five Chicago car clubs that makes an annual winter pilgrimage to Twin Lakes, Wis., for ice races.

"The Corvairs do real well because with their rear-mounted engines, their traction (on ice) is great," Claypool said.

Charles R. Bell, a Chicago taxi driver, says a Corvair he owned from 1965 to 1975 was the best Chevrolet ever made. "I drove it to Arizona and back three times," said Bell, 59. "No kind of weather stopped it. It was the sorriest move I ever made to sell it. I can tell Nader that to his face."

Claypool says he helped his older brother buy a new 1969 Corvair for a pittance a few weeks after they went out of production.

A couple of years later, Claypool found an abandoned, 1961 Corvair station wagon. He located the owner and bought the car for $10.

"Then I got my driver's license and started picking Corvairs up regularly for $50 or so, fixed them up a little and resold them."

Two dank, gloomy sheds are treasure troves of rare Corvair parts Claypool has collected. There are turbochargers, tinted windshields, adjustable telescopic steering columns, chrome trims, wire wheel rims, original upholstery and accessories such as tissue dispensers, mounted clocks and trailer hitches.

Claypool now runs a mail order business in parts.

He says Chevrolet still stocks many parts but many dealers are unwilling to provide service for a long-defunct vehicle. However, he says, in recent years small independent firms, with names like Corvair Underground, have formed to specialize solely in reproduced Corvair parts.

"Many of the reproduced parts are better than the originals because now more care goes into making them," Claypool said.

4-H Club Participates In Horse Show

The Hayfield Hayburners 4-H Horse Club participated in the annual District Horse Show competition Saturday in Plymouth and qualified for state competition. The show was hosted by Swain's Arabian Farm.

Those qualifying to attend the state competition were Ashlie Tripp, Slade Tripp, Alexis White, Missy Daughtry and Lisa Holloman. Also qualifying were members of the Horse Fanciers 4-H Club including Emily Wilkerson, Tammy Irwin, Susanna Hudson, Angela Bunn and Elana Powell.

The members of the 4-H Horse Clubs have accumulated points during the year by attending various activities and participating in other 4-H activities enabling them to participate in the District Show. The State 4-H Competition will be held at Dorton Arena in Raleigh July 17-19.

Alexis White captured the High Point Championship in the Hunt Division at the Plymouth show and Missy Daughtry was awarded the 4-H Showmanship Award for the 1981 year and was Reserve Champion over all in the Hunt Division.

The next area horse show will be held at Stonington Stables in Kinston and is an accredited Eastern Hunter Association event.

Students Named ECU Marshals

ECU News Bureau

Eighteen East Carolina University students have accepted positions as university marshals for the 1981-82 academic year.

ECU marshals serve as ushers for campus concerts and ceremonies. They are elected by the student body and are required to maintain superior academic grade point averages.

Chief marshal is Margaret Milliken of High Point, a junior in the ECU School of Nursing. Co-chief is Tawanda Bowden of Mount Olive, a junior biology major.

A highlight of marshal service is the academic procession at ECU's annual Commencement exercises which is led by marshals in formal dress and official regalia.

Malone's 'Needle' Woke Celtics Up

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A needle from Houston center Moses Malone has injected new life into the Boston Celtics, shaking them from their lethargy and sparking them to within one victory of the National Basketball Association championship.

And tonight, in Game 6 of the best-of-seven playoff finals which they lead 3-2, the Celtics will try to wrap up their 14th NBA title and end the Rockets' hopes of becoming the first team with a losing record in the regular season to wear an NBA crown.

Malone's brash comments after Houston's 91-86 victory in Game 4 Sunday, that the Celtics were not all that good and that he could take four guys off the streets of his hometown of Petersburg, Va. and beat Boston, have become the cause celebre of this championship series, adding zest to what had been a rather dull playoff.

"What Malone said got our blood boiling," declared Rick Robey, the Celtics' reserve center, after Boston got its running game untracked for the first time in this series and romped to a 109-80 victory Tuesday night in Boston Garden.

"None of us appreciated his comments," added rookie Kevin McHale of the Celtics. "I think he was just blowing smoke because they had won their second game Sunday. If we win the championship, I don't think he'll have much to say. We'll see him Thursday."

Malone, meanwhile, stood by his words Wednesday and even threw more fuel into the fire.

"I spoke from my heart and I still believe it: Boston is not that good," he declared. "Philadelphia should have beaten them (in the Eastern Conference finals, when Boston rallied from a 3-1 deficit to win).

"I've got a lot of pride. I was raised in the ghetto and I grew up believing you should say what you believe. I don't mean this to be disrespectful of anyone who plays for Boston, but I just don't think they are that good.

"It doesn't make any difference if I get Boston riled up. I'm a proud man and I say what I feel. If we play like I know we can play, we will beat them. If they beat us, it will be because we just aren't working."

As for tonight's game, Malone predicted, "They aren't going to drink champagne. They'll be drinking Gatorade to try to get their strength back."

When it was suggested to some of the other Houston players that Malone's sounding off might have been akin to waving a red flag in front of a bull, forward Robert Reid responded, "I've never seen a bull win a bullfight yet. I'm pretty sure it fired them up, but if that's what Moses says we back him up. Whatever he says goes."

"That's right," agreed guard Allen Leavell. "He's the biggest and baddest man on the floor. Whatever he says goes."

The Rockets will need Malone at his biggest, baddest best tonight if they hope to send the series back to Boston for a seventh game on Sunday.

Malone was contained to 20 points and 11 rebounds the last time out and Houston needs more from him than that, because a dominating Malone is vital to the Rockets' slow-paced game.

Boston, meanwhile, has no intention of getting into a war of words.

"We haven't talked about anybody since the start of the season," said forward Larry Bird, "and we're not about to start now. We just want to play basketball and end this season with a championship."

Houston will not have the services of reserve guard Calvin Murphy for the rest of the playoffs. He suffered what was diagnosed late Wednesday as a shoulder separation in Tuesday night's game.

The Celtics, meanwhile, would like to make tonight's game their last one. So they'll try to run the way they did in Game 5, when they scored 33 points off their fast break and raced to a 17-point first-quarter lead.

"That's our game — running, filling the lanes and not committing turnovers," said Boston reserve guard Gerald Henderson. And Cedric Maxwell, who had 28 points and 15 rebounds, added, "That was the Celtic fastbreak, Celtic pride and winning tradition. When we play like that, few teams can beat us."

McHale went a bit farther.

"We run better than any team in the league," he said. "When we're going good, no team in the league can beat us. That's what it's all about — keeping the beat up and winning the championship."

All of which they'd like to do tonight.

"We don't want to play any more games than we have to," said guard Chris Ford. "This season has been going for nine months and we've played over 100 games. All we have to do is execute the way we did Tuesday night."

Valenzuela Seeking His Eighth Victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There will be a new chapter tonight in the saga of Fernando Valenzuela, whose storybook rise from the Mexican countryside to big league baseball stardom is becoming instant sports legend.

The entry could be his eighth consecutive victory, or sixth shutout, or — his rapidly growing legion of admirers shudder — his first loss.

Valenzuela, the 20-year-old left-hander who has stood the baseball world on its ear, will take the mound tonight against the Montreal Expos, a team already included among his collection of seven victims.

Bill Gullickson, with an embarrassing-by-comparison 1-3 record, draws the duty for the Expos.

When Valenzuela pitches, it's World Series time in Dodger Stadium, no matter that it's only May, and another capacity crowd is expected to turn the place into a madhouse once again.

Valenzuela remains officially a rookie since he was a Dodger for only three weeks in 1980, with a 2-0 record in relief and one save. He allowed no runs in 18 innings.

This season, Valenzuela has a microscopic earned run average of 0.29 per game. The major league record ERA of 1.00 for a season was set by Dutch Leonard of the Boston Red Sox in 1914.

One of the runs he's allowed came in Montreal, when he left the game with it tied 1-1 after nine innings. But the Dodgers erupted for five runs in the top of the 10th inning.

"I'm questioning whether he's really human," Dodger third baseman Ron Cey said of his screwball-throwing teammate. "What I can't believe is his earned run average ... that ERA, that's almost inhuman.

"Maybe we ought to follow him home sometime."

"I'm back there playing behind him, watching, and I still can't believe it," shortstop Bill Russell said of Valenzuela. "It's like playing in a World Series every time he pitches, and I think we get really fired up.

North Stars Look For Stagefright To Vanish

By SCOTT PAPILLON
AP Sports Writer

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — As much as the Minnesota North Stars tried to fight it, the aura of the Stanley Cup finals caught up with them Tuesday night in Game One, a 6-3 triumph for the defending champion New York Islanders.

But the North Stars, young and fiesty all season long, expect that stagefright to disappear tonight when they battle the Islanders again at the Nassau Coliseum.

"We didn't know what to expect," said 20-year old rookie Dino Ciccarelli. "Now we do. We've had our bad game. We'll regroup and correct ourselves."

"I'm sure Minnesota will work things out," said New York's Wayne Merrick, who scored twice in the third period to lock up the stunning first-game victory. "I don't see any panic on their side."

For the North Stars, the entire game was a nightmare from the drop of the first puck. Anders Kallur scored just 2:54 into the game and then Bryan Trottier and Kallur scored shorthanded goals 47 seconds apart while teammate Bob Bourne was serving a five-minute major penalty for spearing.

"That was the key to the game," said Minnesota center Bobby Smith, who directs the North Stars' normally effective powerplay "We were really flat on the powerplay and we should have been at a fever pitch. Maybe that's a sign of our inexperience.

"What we have to realize is that it's going to be a terribly intense series and we'll have to play it that way. I have a lot of respect for the Islanders, but I'm not in awe of them and I still think we can beat them."

The Islanders, exhibiting the poise and ability which enabled them to sweep the Rangers in the semifinals, simply outclassed the dazzled North Stars in nearly every phase of the game.

While Minnesota expects to play better during the rest of the series, so does New York, a frightening prospect for the North Stars.

"I was lazy until the third period," said Merrick, whose team had been idle since May 5. "I think it's a plus going into the second game knowing that we can play better."

"We were okay, but not great," said Trottier of the first game.

"Minnesota will be much looser in the next game," predicted winger John Tonelli. "But they'll have to hit harder if they expect to win."

Minnesota has seven rookies on its playoff roster and a number of others with just two or three years experience. Coach Glen Sonmor admitted that first-game jitters probably had something to do with his club's dismal performance in the opener.

"I felt nervous myself," Sonmor said. "This is my first Stanley Cup final too, you know. I guess we were still basking in just being here and maybe that's wrong. Before the game the guys appeared to be cool and ready. For whatever reason, we just didn't play our game.

"In the other playoff series, we've come out tramping in the first period, but not here. We looked tentative and not very poised."

"I was trying to keep myself relaxed before the game, but once it started my whole mind changed," said Brad Palmer, a 19-year-old rookie. "I was nervous and uptight and I think quite a few of the guys had trouble dealing with the first game. I hope it's over with."

If it isn't, the Stanley Cup finals soon will be.

Conley Romps Past Cougars

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley, putting on a spurt at the end of the season, rolled to a 19-3 victory over Southwest Edgecombe in an Eastern Carolina Conference baseball game yesterday.

The victory boosted the Viking record to 9-5 in the conference, giving them a chance to tie for second place in the league standings with victories in their final two games.

Southwest scored first, getting a run in the first. Junior Best walked and Lonnie Lewis singled. Bell then singled, scoring Best.

Conley came right back to score three times in the bottom of the inning to move ahead. Emory Vines doubled and Joey Joyner singled. Sammy Tucker then doubled to drive in both runners. Jeff Manning walked and Wesley Smith reached on an error, scoring Tucker.

After the Cougars came back with two in the second, the Vikings pushed over five in the bottom of the frame to put it out of reach, 8-3. Vines walked with one out and Joyner also got a walk. Tucker singled, scoring Vines. Manning reached on a fielder's choice, getting Joyner at third. Smith was then hit by a pitch and Jimmy Kaler singled in Tucker. Chris Buck singled to score Manning, and Keith Mills' double brought in the final two runners.

Conley added four more in the fourth and seven in the sixth.

Conley's hitting was led by Vines, Doug McRoy, and Buck each with three, while Joyner, Tucker and Dixon Page each had two. All but Buck collected doubles during the game. Southwest was led by Billy Wooten with two hits.

Conley, now 11-9 overall, will play host to Southern Nash today.

Yastrzemski Homer Paces Boston Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Life in the 1981 season has finally begun for 41-year-old Carl Yastrzemski.

The only player in American League history to collect 3,000 hits and 400 home runs, Yastrzemski is finally hitting his weight — barely — thanks to his first home run of the season Wednesday night, a three-run shot that powered the Boston Red Sox to a 5-2 triumph over the Minnesota Twins.

"Maybe I'm on the way to putting something together. I hope so," said Yastrzemski, who boosted his batting average from .181 to .186, one digit above his listed weight.

In other AL action, the California Angels downed the Milwaukee Brewers 6-3, the Oakland A's edged the New York Yankees 5-4, the Cleveland Indians shaded the Chicago White Sox 4-3 in 16 innings, the Baltimore Orioles blanked the Toronto Blue Jays 4-0 and the Detroit Tigers nipped the Seattle Mariners 1-0. The Texas-Kansas City game was rained out.

Yastrzemski's 420th career homer came after Jerry Remy and Dwight Evans singled with one out in the third inning off Fernando Arroyo. Jim Rice doubled and Tony Perez then singled, with Rice scoring on a grounder by Carney Lansford to give the Red Sox a 4-0 lead. In the seventh, Yastrzemski walked and scored on a double by Perez.

"The first two weeks of the season I was hitting the ball hard consistently," Yastrzemski said. "They just weren't dropping in up until about six games ago. When they stopped doing that, I made a change. I had started taking good pitches and chasing bad ones. You chase the pitcher's pitch, and when he comes in with one you should handle, you're thinking about the last one."

Angels 5, Brewers 4

Bobby Grich's two-run homer sparked a four-run fifth inning and Don Baylor drove in two runs, leading the Angels to their fourth consecutive triumph behind the eight-hit pitching of Steve Renko and and Andy Hassler.

The Angels trailed 3-2 entering the fifth but tied it on a bunt single by Rod Carew, a single by Rick Burleson and a sacrifice fly by Baylor. Grich followed with his two-run homer and a double by Bobby Clark chased loser Mike Caldwell. Baylor had an RBI single in the Angels' two-run first inning.

The Angels got hot shortly after owner Gene Autry and general manager Buzzie Bavasi expressed concern last week over the team's slow start. Manager Jim Fregosi's job was said to be in jeopardy.

"I can't worry about it," Fregosi said. "If they want to fire me, they'll fire me. I can't say, 'Don't fire me.' We've been getting good pitching all year. We're finally getting some hits when they count."

A's 5, Yankees

Unbeaten Matt Keough held New York to one hit over the first seven innings. Keough, 6-0, kept the Yankees hitless until Willie Randolph doubled with one out in the sixth. The Oakland right-hander was kayoed in the eighth when the Yankees scored all their runs, two on a double by Dave Winfield and two on a homer by Reggie Jackson.

"One minute I had a no-hitter, then I had a one-hitter, then they had four runs and I'm hoping to get a win," Keough said.

The A's scored in the first inning when loser Tommy John balked a run home. Mike Heath singled in the second and scored on Dave McKay's double. Fred Stanley's RBI single in the fourth made it 3-0, Johnson homered in the fifth and the A's added what turned out to be the winning run run on a bunt single by Tony Armas, a sacrifice, two walks and McKay's sacrifice fly.

Indians 4, White Sox 3

Jorge Orta led off the top of the 16th inning with his first home run of the season. Orta's homer off Dennis Lamp broke a scoring drought that existed since the White Sox tied the game in the bottom of the sixth on singles by Harold Baines and Jim Morrison plus Mike Squires' grounder. Cleveland's Mike Stanton, 1-0, who pitched the final five innings, was the winner. He allowed three hits. The game would have been suspended by an AL 1 a.m. curfew had it not ended in the 16th inning.

Orioles 4, Blue Jays 0

Scott McGregor hurled a three-hitter with a career-high nine strikeouts and John Lowenstein drove in two runs, one with his first homer of the season. The Orioles got a run in the second inning on Eddie Murray's single, Terry Crowley's double and Lowenstein's sacrifice fly. Baltimore added a run in the fifth when Doug DeCinces doubled, moved to third on Rick Dempsey's single and scored when Bob Bonner hit into a forceout. Murray's infield hit got a run home in the eighth and Lowenstein homered in the ninth.

Tigers 1, Mariners 0

Rick Peters singled home the game's only run in the bottom of the ninth to support Dan Petry's three-hit pitching. Champ Summers worked reliever Dick Drago for a leadoff walk, pinch runner Kirk Gibson stole second and Richie Hebner was given an intentional pass. The runners advanced on Lynn Jones' sacrifice bunt and Lou Whitaker was walked intentionally to load the bases. Peters then lined a 1-1 pitch into left for the winning run. Petry pitched out of a threat in the eighth when the Mariners had runners at first and third with none out.

Jackson Homers Off Keough

Matt Keough, Oakland A's pitcher, bends and stares at the dirt as the New York Yankees' Reggie Nackson, left, circles the bases after hitting an eighth inning two-run homer Wednesday night at Yankee Stadium. Keough had a no-hitter through five inningss and a one-hitter until the eighth when he gave up four hits and four runs. The A's held on to win the game for him, 5-4. Keough is now 6-0. Redskins Halt Pam Pack Drive

WASHINGTON — Roanoke High School threw a road-block into the path of Washington High School last night, upsetting the Pam Pack, 10-7, in Northeastern Conference baseball.

The loss just about insured Washington of having no chance to gain a share of the league championship.

Roanoke jumped ahead with six big runs in the second inning. Angelo Spruill, Ricky Simpson and Robert Smith all walked, loading the bases. Walks to Lee Briley and Edward Grimes forced in two runs, and Jerry Bryant grounded out, scoring Smith with the third run. Joey Ross walked, reloading the sacks, and Neal Cargile's single scored Briley, but Grimes was thrown out at home. Mutt Smith singled and Spruill, back up, singled to drive in the final two runs.

Roanoke scored once in the third, while Washington came up with two.

Then, in the fourth, the Redskins added three more to hold a 10-2 lead. Cargile was hit by a pitch and Mutt Smith singled him in. Spruill singled and Robert Smith got a hit, loading the bases. Briley singled, scoring two runners.

Washington tried to rally, scoring once in the fifth and four times in the seventh.

Cargile, Mutt Smith, Spruill and Robert Smith each went two-for-three to lead the Roanoke hitting. Washington was led by Seth Edwards, with three in four trips, while Lonnie Harris and Ty Crooks were both two-for-three.

Roanoke is now 8-13 overall and 5-8 in league play. The Redskins close out the season tonight, hosting Plymouth.

Sally Little Sheds Homesickness, Sets To Work On Women's Tour

By RUTH BONAPACE
AP Sports Writer

PARAMUS, N.J. (AP) — Sally Little has finally shed her homesickness, become an American citizen and emerged as one of the strongest players on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

"I've been out here so long, it's about time," Little said during the Wednesday's LPGA Pro-Am tournament here. "It was such a slow start for me."

Little, who joined the tour in 1972 after emigrating from South Africa, had difficulty accepting the rigors of constant travel, without friends or family, in a country that is 24 hours by air from her homeland.

Until 1976, when she won $44,764, the soft-spoken, beguiling athlete couldn't top $14,000 in earnings, even though she averaged more than 20 tournaments a year. Since, Little has climbed steadily and last year recorded her personal best of $139,127, seventh best on the circuit.

This season, Little is ranked second, right behind Nancy Lopez-Melton. With three tournament victories, the 29-year-old golfer is well on her way to another outstanding year.

"I think basically, just being away from my family and not having any friends while traveling from week to week affected my game," said Little, whose father, Percy, was her only teacher before she turned pro. "I had a hard time adjusting as a foreigner."

Now, her family in Cape Town visits once a year, making a trip Little describes as taking "24 hours to get there and three weeks to recover."

Little credits her breakthrough to relentless practice, made ever more palatable by the heady flavor of victory.

"Before, when I had a month off, I would take three weeks off, and use one week to get back in shape," said Little, who was preparing for this weekend's Coca Cola Classic at the Ridgewood Country Club.

"But now, I hit balls every day and it makes a world of difference. I'm also running and keeping in good condition," said Little, who this year scored victories in the Elizabeth Arden Classic, the Olympia Gold Classic, and the CPC Women's International two weeks ago. Last week, Little was the runnerup in the Lady Michelob won by Amy Alcott.

"My game all around is better," said Little, "although there is always something to work on because the competition has gotten so good. I feel great to be in a position to win and I feel good coming into this week.

"I've become very much a student of the game," said Little, who added she won't be satisfied with mediocrity again.

"I'll either keep working on the game or I'll just give up. I keep working on it, trying to invent new shots. It's gotten to be so much fun, maybe because I've been doing well.

Tarboro Tops Tigers, 12-8

WILLIAMSTON — Tarboro outslugged Williamston, 12-8, in an eight inning Northeastern Conference baseball game yesterday.

Tarboro scored first, getting a run in the first. Williamston then took the lead, scoring twice in the second. Greg Johnson singled and Sterling Mizelle singled him in. Keith Bryant then singled to score Mizelle.

Tarboro tied it up with one in the third, but Williamston picked up two in the bottom of the inning to take a 4-2 lead. Tarboro moved ahead with three in the fourth, only to see Williamston come back with four for an 8-5 lead. Tarboro then scored once in the sixth and twice in the seventh to tie it up and force extra innings.

In the eighth, however, Tarboro pushed over four runs to take the lead and eventually the win. Mark Taylor reached on an error and B. Martin singled. Kevin Cannon walked, loading the bases. Jerry Butler singled to score two runners, and Billy Parrisher walked, reloading the bases. A walk to Timmy Webb and a single by Keith Bishop brought in the final two runs.

Tarboro's hitting was led by Parrisher and Bishop with three each, while Webb and Steve Caldwell each had two. Victor Thomas, Greg Johnson and Tim Hines each had three for Williamston, while Ed Pippen had two.

The loss dropped Williamston to 6-14 overall and 3-10 in league play. The Tigers close out the season on Friday, hosting Ahoskie.

Pirates Nips Atlanta In 13th Inning

Winging It

The Pittsburgh Pirates haven't had much good fortune in Atlanta Stadium of late, but finally got something going their way in a lucky 13th inning Wednesday night.

The Braves opened the door for them with three walks from Tommy Boggs and then Tony Pena got two of them home with a single to provide the Pirates with a 7-5 victory.

"I don't know what the trouble has been here," said Pittsburgh third baseman Dale Berra, who slugged a three-run homer for the winners. "(But) now we know we can come in here and win — and that's going to help us."

The Pirates had lost 11 straight games to the Braves and hadn't won at Atlanta Stadium since July 15, 1979.

While the Pirates were breaking a jinx, the Montreal Expos continued to be frustrated by one at Dodger Stadium. The Dodgers stopped the Expos 8-6 for their eighth straight victory over Montreal and 18th in the last 20 games in Los Angeles.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Houston 3, St. Louis 0; Cincinnati 8, Chicago 3; San Francisco 5, Philadelphia 2 and San Diego 5, New York 0.

Boggs, 1-5, had entered the game in the 12th as a pinch-hitter after the Braves had exhausted all their non-pitcher pinch-hitters and singled to center, but Rafael Ramirez was thrown out at the plate attempting to score from second base.

Ramirez had reached base on a disputed play that resulted in the expulsion of Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner. Umpire Steve Fields ruled that Ramirez' sinking liner to left had been trapped by Lee Lacy.

The Pirates also had a man thrown out at the plate in the 12th, when Lacy singled, stole second, was sacrificed to third and was cut down on a perfect throw from Terry Harper on Tim Foli's fly ball.

Dodgers 8, Expos 6

Ron Cey hit a two-run homer with two outs in the bottom of the ninth to cap a furious four-run rally as Los Angeles came from behind for a wild victory over Montreal.

The Expos had scored five times in the top of the ninth to overcome a 4-1 deficit and move in front 6-4. But the Dodgers tied the score when Steve Garvey got a two-run single. A two-out error by Montreal shortstop Chris Speier on Reggie Smith's grounder — his fifth error in two nights — opened the door for the Dodger rally.

Cey, who hit two home runs Tuesday night, then followed with his sixth homer of the season.

Astros 3, Cardinals 0

Don Sutton gained his first shutout in a Houston uniform with a five-hitter and Art Howe slugged his third home run of the season to lead the Astros past St. Louis.

Sutton, obtained by the Astros as a free agent before the season, raised his record to 3-4, striking out four and walking one. The former Los Angeles Dodger hurler retired 12 straight batters over one stretch en route to his first complete game as an Astro.

Howe's two-run homer in the third inning gave Houston a 2-0 lead and all the runs Sutton needed.

"They were hitting them where people were standing," Sutton said. "I have to win by changing speeds and moving the ball around. I'm not going to gas anybody like Nolan Ryan does. That's the best command I've had of my four pitches. That's about has good as I can be."

Reds 8, Cubs 3

George Foster drove in three runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly and Tom Seaver hurled a five-hitter to lead Cincinnati over Chicago. Foster slugged a two-run homer, his seventh, off Cubs starter Mike Krukow, 1-3, as the Reds waged a 15-hit assault on five Chicago pitchers.

Seaver, 4-1, gained his 249th career decision and inched within two victories of Bob Gibson, who is 30th on the all-time victory list.

Seaver continued his fine spring showing, after shoulder tendinitis put his career in doubt last season.

Giants 5, Phillies 2

Milt May slugged a two-run double in the second inning and Darrell Evans hit a three-run homer in the third to lead San Francisco past Philadelphia.

With one out in the second, Larry Herndon singled off Marty Bystrom, 2-2, and took third on a double by Joe Morgan. May then doubled for the game's first two runs.

Enos Cabell and Jack Clark got two-out singles in the third before Evans slammed his fifth homer of the season. San Francisco starter Allen Ripley, 3-3, allowed 11 hits in 7 1-3 innings, but was supported by three double plays.

Padres 5, Mets 0

Rookie Chris Welsh tossed a seven-hitter for his first major league shutout. Ruppert Jones doubled home two runs and Joe Lefebvre stroked three hits as the trio of ex-New York Yankees led San Diego over New York.

Welsh, 2-2, was acquired along with Jones and Lefebvre in a spring training trade. The 26-year-old left-hander, tossing the Padres' second consecutive shutout at the Mets, walked two and struck out one. New York loser Ed Lynch, 1-1, surrendered two runs on seven hits before leaving in the fifth inning.

First Federal 6
Pepsi-Cola 3

First Federal won its third straight Tar Heel Little League game yesterday with a 6-3 victory over Pepsi-Cola. Chris Meeks struck out 12 Pepsi batters on the way to his 4-hit victory.

First Federal picked up two first inning runs on homers by Rodney Harris and Brian Joyner, but they put it out of reach with three in the third.

Harris singled to lead off the third and Joyner walked. Stacey Best singled in both runners, then scored when Meeks singled.

The other First Federal run came in the fifth as Joyner again homered.

Pepsi scored all three of its runs in the fifth.

Harris, Joyner and Best each had two hits to lead First Federal, while Bobby Sullivan had two for Pepsi.

Union Carbide 11
Optimists 2

Kevin Fisher threw a one-hitter at the Optimsts as Union Carbide romped to an 11-2 victory in the North State Little League yesterday.

Fisher gave up the only hit in the first inning of the game. He struck out nine and walked five.

Union Carbide got all it needed in the first, scoring three times. Tim West singled and Bily turcotte reached on an error. Morris Johnson then hit a three-run homer.

Union Carbide added three more in the second, four in the fourth and one in the fifth for its 11-run total. Both of the Optimist runs came in the sixth inning.

Bettehnausen To Try Again

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Gary Bettenhausen charged from 32nd to third in last year's Indianapolis 500, but the veteran driver doubts he could have won even if he had started closer to the front of the pack.

"I possibly could have been second, but I couldn't have outrun Johnny Rutherford," Bettenhausen said of last year's finish behind Rutherford, who started from the pole, and Tom Sneva, who like Bettenhausen threaded his way to the front from a last-row start.

"I was outrunning Sneva all day long," said Bettenhausen. "But I had 11 pit stops and he had only nine. Also, I didn't have a radio in my car, so when the yellow came out I had to go around an extra lap to alert my crew (for a pit stop) while Sneva just came in the first time around.

"It just kept me busy all day. I had to race for 500 miles. The car and engine were working well, and if they weren't I wouldn't have finished as well as I did. It just worked out that after the last yellow light, he was ahead of me and I was alt," out of fuel and didn't want to take a chance of running out."

Bettenhausen, 39, of Monrovia, Ind., will be seeking a spot in his 13th Indianapolis race when qualifications resume on Saturday. His father, the late Tony Bettenhausen, was killed in practice for the race 20 years ago.

Gary's younger brother, Tony, is a rookie driver this year and will also try for a starting spot in the final weekend of qualifications for the May 24 race.

Two drivers reached 200 mph in Wednesday's practice. Rick Mears was clocked at 200.312 mph and Danny Ongais matched his top lap on Tuesday with another run at 200 mph on the nose.

Also among the 19 drivers who have topped 190 so far in practice were Sneva, a two-time pole winner who set the official track record for one and four laps three years ago, Bill Whittington, Sheldon Kinser and Larry Cannon. Also above 190 was Wally Dallenbach, clocked at 191.042 in the car he will attempt to qualify for Mario Andretti, who will be competing in a Grand Prix race in Belgium over the weekend.

Others over 190 Wednesday were Bobby Unser, who took the Penske backup car around at 195.865, Mike Mosley at 196.7, Gordon Smiley 193.298.

There also were two crashes on Wednesday. Joe Saldana apparently broke something in his suspension coming out of turn three, suddenly sliding into the concrete barrier. And Spike Gehlhausen spun out and whacked the wall coming out of turn three later in the day. Neither was injured.

Rain ended Wednesday's practice at 5:15 p.m. (EST), 45 minutes before the scheduled track closing.

Bettenhausen said he drove "an obsolete race car" that was the slowest qualifier in last year's. His new car this year is a Cosworth-powered Lightning that Janet Guthrie tried unsuccessfully to qualify last year.

"They had some problems with it, and she wasn't able to make the race," Bettenhausen said. "This is the first full ground effects car I've driven, and it's potentially as fast as any other car here."

Bettenhausen's top practice speed has been unofficially timed at just over 190 mph, but that was with last year's Cosworth engine. He's expecting a new engine to arrive on Friday.

The ground effects aerodynamics make cars "just faster. It's unbelievable how hard you can drive them without slipping and sliding. The car feels like part of the race track when it's working well."

He said the new Cosworth has been updated "with new cams and pistons and gets about 70 horsepower more than this one."

Bettenhausen, whose best previous finish before last year was fifth in 1973, started racing go-karts in 1961 and moved into U.S. Auto Club stock cars in 1963. His first champ car race was at Phoenix in 1966 and made his first Indy start two years later.

Former Champ Is Charged

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Former world lightweight champion Esteban DeJesus, the first man to beat Roberto Duran, was in jail today following his first-degree murder conviction for killing an 18-year-old construction worker.

Superior Court Judge Elpidio Batista sentenced DeJesus to life imprisonment, in addition to separate sentences of five years and six months for violations of two articles of the firearms law.

DeJesus' lawyers said they would appeal the decision to the Puerto Rico Supreme Court.

DeJesus was convicted of the murder of Roberto Cintron Gonzalez, who died of gunshot wounds in the head Dec. 1. In the alibi defense presented by DeJesus' lawyers, DeJesus' wife, Nelly Clemente de DeJesus, testified that her husband was in their home on the morning of Nov. 27, when the ex-fighter allegedly shot Gonzalez with a .25 caliber pistol.

The police could not recover the weapon.

Doctor Has Charge Of UNC Sports Medicine

Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Timothy Taft says there's nothing that has made his work different this year from any other year he's worked at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He says it's just a matter of the people involved.

Taft, 39, is the head of orthopedic sports medicine at UNC and the last 12 months of his work have been filled with rather notable names out of the fold of Blue Heaven. But out of the approximately 5,000 students he's seen during the 1980-81 school year, the names of James Worthy, Jimmy Black and Steve Streater stand out most prominently.

After graduating from Princeton University and attending the University of Missouri medical school, Taft arrived in Chapel Hill just as the name of Bill Arnold was making headlines — tragically.

Arnold died in 1972 of what was determined to be dehydration. Although the death raised serious questions about the workouts football players are subjected to, it brought sports medicine into a highly specialized area. It also established a program in which team trainers are responsible to Taft and Dr. Joseph DeWalt, team physician, instead of the respective coaches.

"We do not have coaches who would put pressure on a trainer to play a kid that shouldn't," Taft says. "But that probably does happen and it's more likely to happen if the trainer's boss is the coach. That's not true here."

Taft's work does not end with athletes. With the help of the Student Health Service, his clinic is responsible for everyone on the UNC campus. He says they get the same treatment Lawrence Taylor would get if he was injured in the line of battle. No student gets shortchanged, especially since they've paid for the service through student fees.

"There's a lot more to it than an ace wrap, crutches for three days and go back when you feel ready," he says.

Taft readily admits that his blood runs Carolina Blue. But he says he's retained his objectivity at a time when many people might not have.

In treating Worthy, he says what was needed for the Gastonia native was a stabilization of his ankle, in essence, putting bone fragments back in place and using pins and rods to make sure the ankle was indeed stable. Although his ankle is better, it's not perfect.

"He does not have, nor will he ever have a normal ankle," Taft says.

Black's injury was somewhat more serious. He had what was described as an "unstable cervical spine fracture," a potentially dangerous injury because of the threat to the spinal cord.

"He was at a significant risk of having a spinal cord injury. If we had tried to treat him in a brace or some other device, the risk of a spinal cord injury placed him at a great risk for reinjury," Taft says.

Black underwent a spinal fusion operation, designed to stabilize the vertebra. The operation was successful and he returned to Carmichael Auditorium for his junior year of basketball. Taft says the fact he survived the accident was remarkable.

"He never did have any cord injury anywhere along his whole course. He's a lucky kid," Taft says.

The third case, just several weeks old, hit a lot closer to home for Taft. So much, in fact that another doctor is handling the case.

"I knew him so well beforehand. I think it's very important that a physician maintain his objectivity. It's kind of like doctors don't take care of their families. There are some people that you can become so emotionally involved with that you run the risk of losing your objectivity.

"Clearly, what happened to Steve is a tragedy. You've got a high performance athlete who is not gonna get better," he says.

The next step for Streater is to get his condition stabilized in Chapel Hill before he goes on for further rehabilitation. Taft says the best facility in the area in Streater's case would be in Charlotte.

"This is the kind of thing that needs a very specialized and sophisticated care facility," he says.

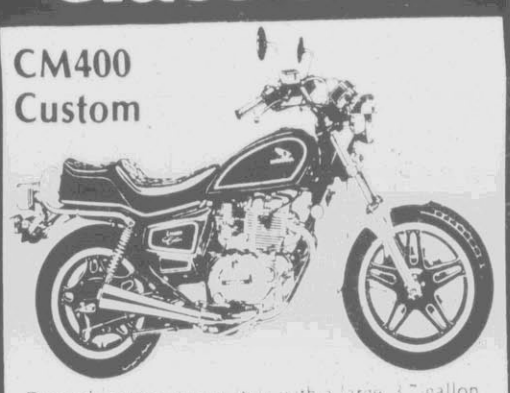

But, just as he is objective, Taft is a bit frustrated. His job is to make people better. In the case of Steve Streater, improvement from his paralysis is not likely.

"We've done a lot of things for him and we've helped him. I wish we knew more."

The field of medicine is clearly frustrating in some circles. Streater's case points out that frustration in clear terms. Taft says that for all the work accomplished with other body functions, the spinal cord is an area that still leaves doctors stymied, but not defeated.

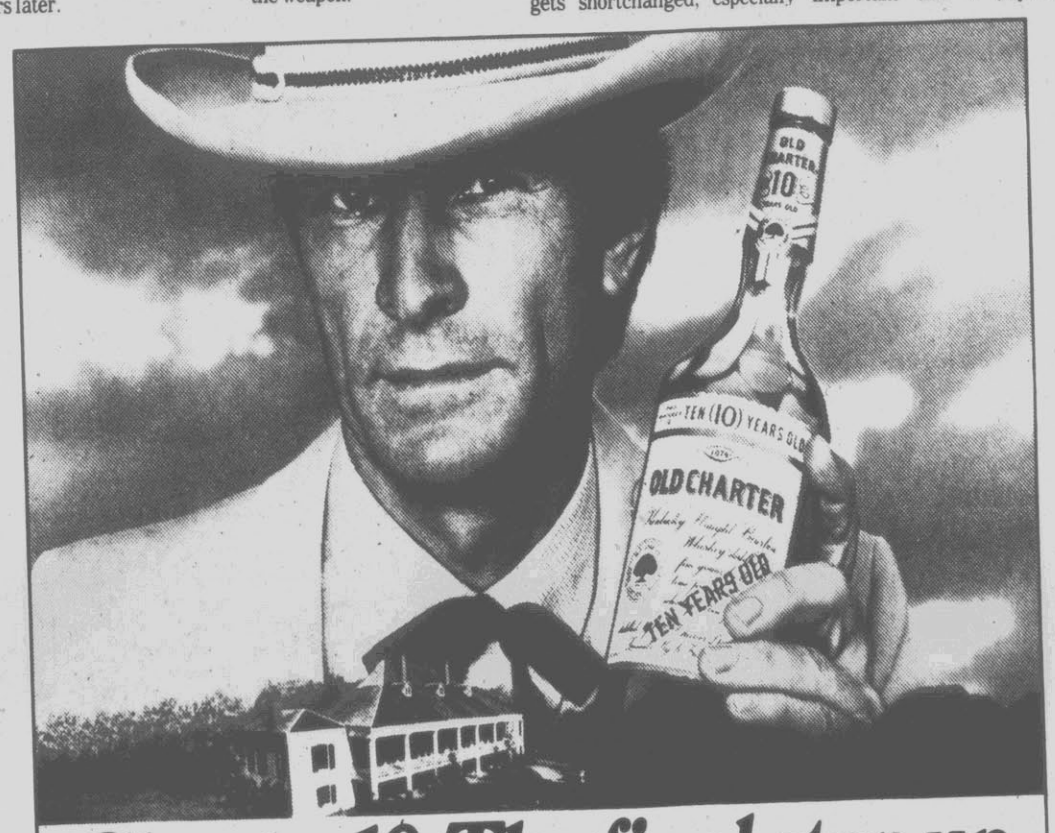

"It may be a system that can't be fixed," he says. "We aren't ready to throw in the towel yet."

Guess Who's Taking On Sugar Ray?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Quickie quiz: Who squared off in the ring against Jack Dempsey, Joe Louis, Rocky Marciano and Sugar Ray Robinson and renews his fistic career this weekend against Sugar Ray Leonard?

You don't have to turn to page 63.

The answer: Bob Hope.

"It started back in 1947 with Joe Louis and there have been periodic renewals," said the ski-nose comedian from his home in North Hollywood, Calif., before taking a plane East today. "Sugar Ray Leonard may be the last.

"I'm getting too heavy for the trainer to carry me out of the ring."

Hope's mock battle with the WBC welterweight champion will be part of a giant two-hour extravaganza being filmed at West Point, N.Y., Sunday for the "Hope All-Star Comedy Birthday Special" to be aired May 25 on NBC-TV.

The indefatigable, ageless movie and TV star will be 78 on May 25. He'll be surrounded by a glittering cast, including Elizabeth Taylor, George C. Scott, Mickey Rooney, Mary Martin, Glen Campbell, Brooks Shields and the cast of the Broadway musical, "42nd Street."

Hope always manages to work some sort of sports motif into his comedy shows. He is an incurable jock. He has played golf with five American presidents. He sponsors his own golf tournament on the PGA tour, annually presents the The AP's All-America college football team on his show and even has dabbled in big league baseball as part owner of the Cleveland Indians.

While most fans associate him with golf — as maestro of the long-running Bob Hope Desert Classic and as the favorite fairway partner of the late President Eisenhower, the comedian's first love was boxing. It's an infatuation that hasn't dulled.

"I got in the ring with Louis — what a great champion and great man that was — in Madison Square Garden in 1947," Hope related. "It was a benefit for the Air Force. Clark Gable, Jimmy Stewart and a lot of other Hollywood celebrities were in the audience.

"I did the same with Dempsey in 1952. He was still a robust, vibrant man at that time and in 1968 I got in the Garden ring with Marciano — what a bull of a man he was, and what a wonderful, down-to-earth person.

"Bing Crosby was in my corner as trainer. Barbara Eden stood by as a nurse. Willie Pep was in Marciano's corner. In 1972, I did a boxing skit with Sugar Ray Robinson in the backyard of my Hollywood home.

"We've invited Dempsey to come to West Point for the shooting this weekend. He once had a part in one my movies called "Military Policeman," with Mickey Rooney and Marilyn Maxwell."

"I wore pillows for gloves — 10 times the normal size," he said. "I'm trying to find the gloves — I lent them to a disc jockey."

Hope, born May 29, 1903, recalls his first and last fling at a fistic career when he was a tough street kid in Cleveland.

One of his Alhambra poolroom pals told him that he had entered the Ohio state amateur boxing tournament under the name of Packy West.

"Next day I went downtown and registered in the lightweight division," Hope related, "as Packy East. It was a rib on Whitey's fighting name. 'That Hope,' they (the gang) said, 'he's a card.'"

The comedian tells the gory details in his autobiography entitled "Have Tux — Will Travel."

"I was 16, and I weighed 128 pounds," he said. "If I'd taken the apples out of my pocket I could have qualified as a featherweight (126 limit).

"I creamed my first opponent. I put on my turtle-necked sweater and began to swagger when I walked."

Hope got in the semifinals. The tournament moved from Charlie Motta's Athletic Club to Moose Hall in downtown Cleveland. For his next opponent he drew a guy named Happy Walsh.

"He was called Happy because he just smiled back when he was slugged," Hope said. "Nothing bothered the fellow — fists, knives, guns, nothing."

Hope survived the first round and then, prancing on his toes while his pool hall pals cheered, he started to throw a right.

"I never got my arm back," he said. "Happy hit me on the chin. I fell in a sitting position, bounced and fell over.

ABC Gets Cut Price; Will Show Quick Cooney KO

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't blink or you'll miss Gerry Cooney's 54-second knockout victory over Ken Norton, which ABC-TV has decided to air Sunday after it was able to negotiate a lower rights payment because the fight had already been seen in at least two cities.

"A number of major markets aired it," Jim Spence, senior vice president of ABC Sports, said Wednesday. "We were successful in negotiating a reduction in the rights price based on partial violation of our exclusivity."

Spence said ABC would broadcast the fight, which was held here Monday night at Madison Square Garden, on "Wide World of Sports." Howard Cosell was in the studio Tuesday taping interviews with Cooney and Norton.

The wrangling over the rights fee happened because the Cable News Network showed the fight, taking the feed from Home Box Office, the authorized live broadcaster of the event.

Lou Falcigno, president of Momentum Enterprises, a New York-based production company that sold delayed broadcast rights to ABC for $200,000, said Tuesday night that at least three stations — two in Boston and one in Pittsburgh — had shown excerpts of the fight from CNN.

He had said Tuesday night that he wouldn't accept a reduction in his rights fee because "as far as I'm concerned, I have a deal." Falcigno was not available for comment after ABC's Wednesday announcement.

At CNN's headquarters in Atlanta, spokesman Arthur Sando said he was unaware of the controversy.

"We did show a part of the fight. I don't think we ever showed the whole thing," Sando said.

CNN is owned by Ted Turner, the maverick broadcasting and sports magnate. Turner, owner of baseball's Atlanta Braves, filed suit this week against President Reagan, White House aides and the three major television networks over CNN's limited access to presidential news conferences.

Lietzke Opens Texas Defense

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Triple winner Bruce Lietzke, flirting with one of golf's top prizes, opened defense today of his coveted Colonial National Invitation crown.

"If $200,000 doesn't interest you, you're in the wrong business," quipped the game's newest millionaire before attacking Colonial's Trinity River treachery.

Leitzke's playoff victory Sunday in the Byron Nelson Classic at Dallas earned him a shot at the Texas Bonanza, a nifty $200,000 windfall for successive triumphs in the two tournaments.

"Back-to-back wins are rare," said Lietzke, pointing out also that the bonanza increases the normal pressure of a title defense.

"I was the best player last week. The odds of me being the best player this week are slim."

In almost the same breath, the sharpshooting Texan said he's up for the challenge.

"I've come down very quick from this past tournament," he said. "I've been able to concentrate on this one.

"I'm ready to play Colonial."

Lietzke tore the normally proud 7,190-yard par 70 course apart last year en route to the $54,000 prize, posting a near-record 9-under-par 271.

"I rank Colonial in my top five favorite courses," he said, adding that the victory here last year is the most cherished of his eight titles.

"It's the only invitational and it's a select field," he said.

The 1981 lineup includes all of this year's winners, including Tom Watson, Lietzke's playoff victim in the Nelson, and previous Colonial champions Lee Trevino, Ben Crenshaw, Al Geiberger, Rod Curl, Tom Weiskopf, Jerry Heard, Gene Littler, Dave Stockton and Bruce Devlin.

Lietzke fired a pressure-packed 69 in a tense head-to-head duel with Crenshaw here last year and said that windswept triumph was even more rewarding than beating Watson in the Dallas playoff.

HOW A GOAL SOUNDS

NEW YORK (AP) — When Phil Esposito retired as a player with the New York Rangers this winter, he had a total of 717 goals. His best year was the 1970-71 season with the Boston Bruins which saw him score 76 goals and add 76 assists for a record 152 points.

Senate OKs Weakened Abortion Notification Bill

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A weakened version of a state Senate bill aimed at requiring doctors to tell parents when their daughters are considering an abortion is headed to the House.

With no debate, the Senate voted 34-12 to approve the bill Wednesday. The approval ends weeks of debate and parliamentary maneuvering over the measure.

The measure, introduced by Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, would affect young women under age 18, who are unmarried and are dependent on or are living with their parents.

Opponents of the bill had proposed a series of amendments aimed at gutting the measure. They succeeded in amending the bill to give doctors discretion whether or not to notify parents.

But they did not succeed in removing the maximum penalty of a $500 fine and six months in prison for failing to notify a young woman's parents that she is considering an abortion or failing to give the young woman the names and addresses of two licensed adoption agencies.

A leading opponent of the bill, Sen. Charles Vickery, D-Orange, said in an interview that he had hoped to take the penalties out of the bill before it was sent to the House.

"Criminal penalties attached to a permissive bill are as useless as a bad headache," he said.

Vickery charged that the bill would send young women to disreputable abortion clinics that will not tell their parents about the procedure.

But Harris said the bill, although it was weakened, should still help family relations.

"It's still got some requirements in there," he said. "It's still got fines. There are still some good provisions in it."

Harris said he did not know what the bill's chances in the House are but Vickery said he did not expect the measure to reach the House floor.

In other legislative action:

Divorce

The House approved and sent to the Senate its version of a bill dividing property equally in case of divorce.

The Senate, after long debate and a series of unsuccessful amendments aimed at weakening the measure, has approved its version of the bill. The House action Wednesday means the approval process in the Senate must start over again in committee.

Both bills would allow couples to ask the court to divide their property when they divorce. The property would be divided evenly unless certain factors, such as financial contributions to the marriage, indicated that would not be fair.

Highway Patrol

A Senate committee toughened a House bill that would prevent the Highway Patrol from setting quotas for the number of tickets its troopers must issue, then sent the bill to the Senate floor.

The panel took the action over the strong protests of Burley Mitchell, state secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety.

The bill was passed by the House after its main section was deleted in floor action. That provision, preventing patrol officials from basing pay or promotion decisions on the number of tickets issued, was restored by the Senate committee on an amendment by Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg.

Hazardous Waste

Despite objections by several legislators, a bill to regulate hazardous and low-level radioactive wastes in North Carolina advanced toward a possible vote on the Senate floor this week.

Sen. R.P. "Bo" Thomas, D-Henderson, unsuccessfully tried to amend the bill to require that such wastes be buried within 25 miles of the plant that generated the waste. The amendment failed for lack of a second in the Senate Finance Committee.

The bill is being supported by Gov. Jim Hunt and is the result of a special commission's study on hazardous wastes. It would set up a 15-member board to regulate waste disposal in the state.

The bill also would give the governor authority to overrule local ordinances and zoning in locating a disposal site.

OSHA

The Senate panel also approved a measure to grant manufacturers a property tax exemption for equipment used to clean air inside their plants. Current laws exempt only that equipment used to prevent air and water pollution outside the plant.

Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, said it could not be estimated how much the exemption would reduce anticipated state tax collections. The bill primarily would affect textile manufacturers, who use equipment to lower cotton dust levels in air inside the plants. The equipment is required by the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

The House already has approved the bill.

Tax Credit

A bill that would grant a credit instead of a deduction for child-care expenses was approved by the Senate Finance Committee. A similar bill was approved by the House finance panel Tuesday.

The change would allow families who now claim those expenses as deductions on their state income taxes to instead claim the expenses as a credit reducing their tax bill. The move would amount to a tax savings for families below the top state income tax bracket.

The credit is for 7 percent of child-care expenses, up to a $2,000 limit on the expenses that can be claimed per child.

Restraints

A bill to require passenger restraints for children younger than 4 years old moved toward a House vote after being approved unanimously by the Highway Safety Committee.

Should the bill be enacted, violators would receive warning tickets until June 30, 1983. After that time, all violators would be fined $10.

The bill would expire June 30, 1985.

Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, urged passage of the bill, saying it would immediately begin saving the lives of young children.

Consumers

A package of consumer protection bills, supported by state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, was to be filed in the House and Senate.

The bills would require discount-buying clubs to be bonded, restrict rental referral agency earnings, require that businesses advertising going-out-of-business sales really be going out of business and tighten loopholes in the state's business opportunity law.

Carolina Action

About 200 members of Carolina Action, a statewide citizens group, demonstrated outside the Legislative Building while more of the group's members sought meetings inside with legislative leaders.

The group was protesting a bill, already passed by the House, that would provide manufacturers with a credit on their income taxes to offset their local property taxes on inventories.

The group also supported a bill in the House Finance Committee, called a "circuit-breaker" on property taxes, that would base property tax payments in part on a taxpayer's income.

"We're saying corporations shouldn't have the relief," said Barbara Harris, president of the group. "The relief should come to the citizens."

ABC

With relatively little debate, the Senate gave tentative approval 43-4 to a bill rewriting the state Alcoholic Beverage Control laws. A final vote on the bill was scheduled Thursday.

The bill would make it illegal to use a false identification card when buying beer, remove the one-gallon limit on liquor stored in homes, increase the number of signatures required to call for a liquor-by-the-drink vote and extend liquor by the drink to Guilford County without a local vote there.

Group Homes

A Senate bill aimed at permitting group homes for the handicapped to be located anywhere survived a series of amendments aimed at gutting the bill. The bill, approved 35-12, now goes to the House.

The bill, introduced by Sen. Henry Frye, D-Guilford, would allow family care homes to locate anywhere regardless of zoning regulations or local ordinances.

The measure was amended to restrict the handicapped with violent tendencies from being cared for in such homes. Frye did not oppose the amendment because he said, "these are the persons we'd want to exclude anyway."

State Workers

The Senate State Government Committee approved, but then sidetracked, a bill aimed at allowing state employees to use flexible time schedules and to have two part-time workers share a single state job.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Wilma Woodard, D-Wake, was approved by the committee but ordered sent to the Appropriations Committee, where its chances of passage were considerably dimmer.

New Bills

Sen. Charles Vickery, D-Orange, filed a bill that would require teachers and state employees be provided psychiatric care medical insurance.

Another Senate bill was filed to dissolve the criminal code commission which was first established in 1971. A bill was filed in the House to prohibit members of one branch of state government from serving on agencies of another branch.

Auto Sales Increasing

DETROIT (AP) — Auto sales by U.S. manufacturers were up 7.2 percent in early May but according to one analyst the improvement is unsatisfactory considering last year's sales disaster.

"They (sales increases) are measured against the May performance a year ago when the sales reached their lowest ebb since the boom ended in March 1979," Arvid Jouppi, a Detroit-based auto analyst for John Muir & Co. said Wednesday. "To be 7 percent ahead of that is not at all satisfactory."

The automakers reported they sold 135,323 cars in the May 1-10 period compared to 141,990 in the 1980 period. Because the 1980 period had one more selling day, the percentage comparison is based on the rate of sales per day.

Jouppi said interest rates, which have been increasing in recent weeks, "are proving to be very effective in delaying automobile sales."

Chrysler Corp. said it sold 15,662 cars in early May, up 38.9 percent from 12,694 in 1980, and Ford Motor Co. announced sales of 33,356 cars, up 22.5 percent from 30,638.

Governor's Gasoline Tax Plan Is Filed With N.C. House, Senate

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt's gasoline-tax package has been filed in the House and Senate for formal introduction today, with slightly different versions in the two chambers.

Included in the package are the key elements of Hunt's proposal to raise some $186 million in new highway revenue.

Not included, and expected to be filed in separate bills later, are his companion proposals for higher taxes on alcoholic beverage and new levies on mining and vacation home rentals.

Included in the bills to be introduced today is a 3-cent increase in the 9¼ cents per gallon tax on gasoline as well as a transfer from general tax uses of the estimated $59 million or so collected each year in sales taxes on auto parts.

Also included are increases in fees for drivers' licenses and trucks and a personal income tax rebate of up to $22.50 per driver to partially offset the impact of higher gas taxes.

"I think it'll pass," said Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, House Base Budget Chairman and one of the sponsors. "I don't think it'll be very close."

The bills were filed in the clerks' offices of both chambers late Wednesday, ending days of confusion over the bills' final form, and are to be sent to committees today.

The major stumbling block in working out final details of the bill was a difference between House and Senate leaders over the transfer of the sales tax. House leaders wanted that transfer to be conditional, effective only if the Legislature also passes the second package of tax bills aimed at replenishing the general fund.

As a result, the House version stipulates that the transfer would take place only if the General Assembly finds more tax money for the general fund, while the Senate version lacks that stipulation.

The differences would have to be reconciled by conferees if both chambers pass their version of the tax package.

Sponsoring the bill in both chambers were the key finance and appropriation leaders as well as other top legislative powers.

One of the sponsors in the Senate is Sen. Conrad Duncan, D-Rockingham, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and a highway contractor with some $10 million in road and bridge construction contracts with the state.

Besides Duncan, other Senate sponsors include Sens. J.J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Bertie; Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, chairman of the Appropriations Committee; Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery, chairman of the Base Budget Committee, Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, Senate president pro tem, and Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, Ways and Means chairmen.

House sponsors are Adams and Reps. Allen Barbee, D-Nash, House speaker pro tem; Rep. Aaron Plyler, D-Union; Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, Finance chairman; and Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, Appropriations chairman.

Barbee's endorsement of the package comes after he served as House cochairman of a joint Select Committee on the Department of Transportation, whose members were highly critical of the department and released a report finding major faults in its policy decisions.

The other chairman of that committee, Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, has expressed opposition to the higher tax.

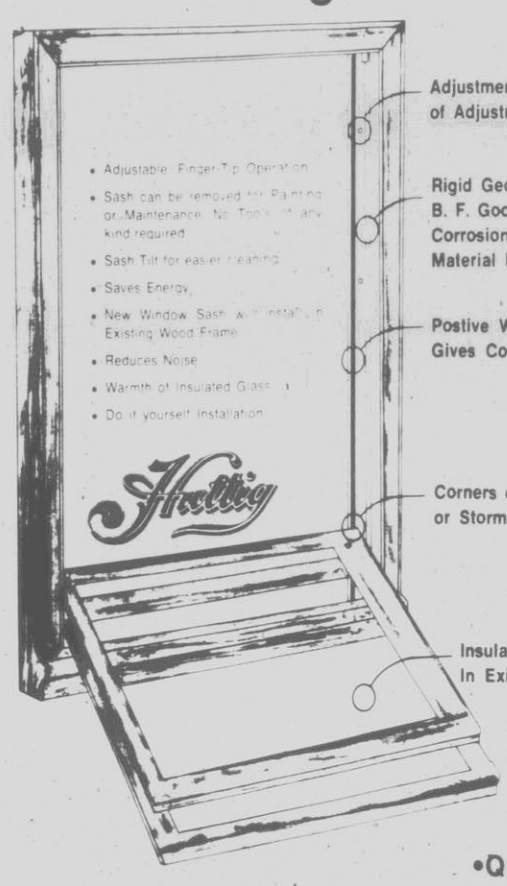

"No one has proved we need an extra penny, that's the point I'm making," Rauch said.

In Greensboro Wednesday, Hunt told a leadership conference that good roads are among the best investments the state can make. He said good roads mean growth and good jobs.

"In a recent survey by the Wall Street Journal, business people all over the nation listed a good transportation system as the third most important factor in locating an industry, behind only a good labor supply and good energy supply," Hunt said.

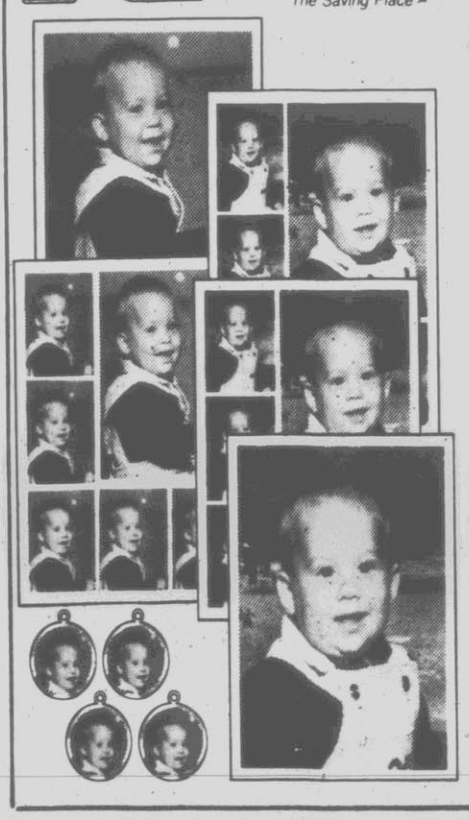

"We must not let proper concern for limits on government spending cause us to brush aside innovative and progressive investments," Hunt said in remarks prepared for the meeting, which was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Election-Handling Under Fire

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As so often happens, public outrage over the TV networks' handling of last November's elections was spent fast, the issue slipping into silence sometime right around Christmas. Disenfranchisement by television, being but a quadrennial problem, is as easy to forget as it is to get mad about.

But this time some of the angst of last November lingers. Enough, anyway, to warrant a U.S. Senate committee hearing into the matter. Four pieces of legislation, proposing two radically different solutions to the problem, are now before the Rules and Administration Committee.

If they become law, TV's Election Day show will never be the same. Neither will freedom of the press, the networks insist.

The four bills, Senate Bills 55, 56, 57 and 58, were introduced by California Sen. S.I. Hayakawa in response to a common feeling in California that this state's participation in last November's election was directly affected by network TV projections and President Carter's early concession.

While voter turnout in California promised to be higher than expected during the day — 80 percent or 81 percent, Secretary of State March Fong Eu thought — polling places suddenly turned into morgues at 5 p.m. By then, the election as delivered by network television was over.

CBS News President William Leonard told the Senate committee last week that "nobody knows whether in fact projections have any effect on voting patterns where the polls have not yet closed," and he, as does NBC news chief Bill Small, continues to downplay the role of TV in elections. Disenfranchisement by TV, he says, is but a "perceived problem."

Perceived? A Field poll conducted among California voters in January found that approximately 400,000 voters didn't bother to go to the polls because they'd heard network projections or Carter's concession. Indeed, the state turnout was not 80 percent or 81 percent, as Mrs. Eu had guessed at midday, but 77.24 percent, below the original prediction.

The no-shows could have affected at least one congressional race, between incumbent Democrat Jim Corman and Republican challenger Bobbi Fiedler. Mrs. Eu's guess is that if the Field poll was nearly correct, 5,900 Democrats and 1,540 Republicans stayed away from that race. Democrat Corman lost by 752 votes.

The problem clearly is real; but how to solve it?

Hayakawa takes a duel approach: Bills 55, 56 and 57 would open the polls for two days, or on Sunday, giving Westerners plenty of chance to vote before Eastern results are in. But since network projections are based largely on exit polling, this solution wouldn't stop projections, it would just allow them to be made earlier.

The most controversial solution is Hayakawa's Senate Bill 57, which would make it against federal law to make election results available to news organizations before all polls were closed.

This is what Leonard had in mind when he expressed CBS' "vehement opposition" to "any proposals which would require any news organization to suppress information in its possession, or would deny to us access to any information which would otherwise be available through the normal process of news collection."

An irrefutable point.

So, what to do? Jack Eddinger, an aide to Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., says the mood on the committee is to do something about ever-shrinking voter turnout. Whether Hayakawa's answers are the ones the Senate chooses remains to be seen.

But, as Mrs. Eu suggested to the committee, any of the above cures "would be as bad as, or worse than, the projections." It would be better, she said in a fit of outlandish optimism, if the TV networks practiced some self-restraint.

In the meantime, Mrs. Eu said, projections are something "we may have to learn to live with, just as we do the common cold .. . and hope that one day those media Merlins misread their electronic crystal balls and so discredit the practice as to remove it as an influence in politics."

Mixed Reaction Given Made-For-TV Movies

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' three-week run as the No. 1 network in prime-time ended in a dead heat with ABC, although NBC had the most-watched program in the period ending May 10, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co.

NBC, in last place for 10 consecutive weeks, scored with the concluding installment in the two-part "Murder in Texas" miniseries, and had three shows in the top 10. But NBC's rating for the week was 15.2, still below the 16.5 figure for each of the competing networks.

The networks say that means in an average prime time minute during the week, 16.5 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to CBS, and the same percentage to ABC.

"Murder in Texas" took the No. 1 spot held 18 times in the last 27 weeks by CBS' "Dallas." "Dallas," in rerun, dropped to 27th place for the week.

The rating for Part II of "Murder in Texas" was 26.8. Nielsen says that means of all the country's homes with TV, 26.8 percent saw at least part of the program.

"Murder in Texas" began its two-night run the week before, and the premiere installment finished fifth in the ratings. NBC did not fare as well, however, with another two-part dramatization drawn from a real-life story.

Part I of "The People vs. Jean Harris," based on transcripts from the recently completed New York murder trial, was No. 52 for the week, with the concluding chapter 65th.

The TV premiere of the Barbra Streisand-Ryan O'Neal film, "The Main Event," scored for ABC — No. 10 for the week. CBS' made-for-TV movie, "The Gentleman Bandit," finished 20th.

The five highest-rated programs of the week were first-run productions, with "M-A-S-H" on CBS in second place, followed by "Love Boat" and "Three's Company" on ABC and "Diff'rent Strokes" on NBC.

NBC had three of the week's five lowest-rated shows, including "Nero Wolfe," No. 64; "The People vs. Jean Harris," Part II, No. 65, and "The Gangster Chronicles," No. 67. A "Pink Panther" special on ABC finished 66th, with another ABC special, "Benjie Takes a Dive at Marineland," 68th.

Movie, "Murder in Texas," Part II, with a rating of 26.8 representing 20.9 million homes, NBC; "M-A-S-H," 23.2 or 18 million, CBS; "Love Boat," 21.3 or 16.6 million, and "Three's Company," 21.2 or 16.5 million, both ABC; "Diff'rent Strokes," 21.1 or 16.4 million, NBC; Movie-"Broken Promise," 21 or 16.3 million, CBS; "60 Minutes" and "Nurse," both 20.5 or 15.9 million, both CBS; "Facts of Life," 20.4 or 15.8 million, NBC, and Movie-"The Main Event," 20.1 or 15.6 million, ABC.

The next 10 shows:

"Laverne and Shirley" and "20-20," both ABC; "Battle of the Network Stars" and "Too Close for Comfort," both ABC, tie; "CHiPs," NBC; "Fantasy Island," ABC, "Real People," NBC, and "House Calls," CBS, three-way tie; "Happy Days," ABC, and Movie-"The Gentleman Bandit," CBS.

Fed Up Over Controllers

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Conductor Maxim Shostakovich says he defected from the Soviet Union last month because "dumb functionaries have responsibility for music" in his homeland.

Shostakovich, interviewed in New York City by the West German magazine "Stern," published Wednesday, said he chose to live in the United States "because it is the land that champions human rights."

The 42-year-old son of the famed composer Dmitri Shostakovich, who died in 1975, was one of Russia's most popular conductors before defecting April 11 with his son, Dmitri, a 20-year-old pianist.

They defected in Fuerth, West Germany at the end of a concert tour by the Soviet Radio Symphony Orchestra, and entered the United States five days later as political refugees.

Shostakovich is to make his American conducting debut May 25 with the National Symphony at a Memorial Day concert in Washington.

FOCUS

The Longest War

Namibia, twice the size of California but with just a million people, is a land of diamond and uranium wealth — and of Africa's longest-running war. When South Africa's foreign minister visits Washington today, Namibia is expected to be a major topic. South Africa has ruled that land, also known as "South-West Africa," since World War I. In 1966, the UN ordered the South Africans to give up control. They refused. That same year, the South-West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO) began a guerrilla war against the white South African rulers. Thousands of lives and 15 years later, Namibia is the only white-ruled land remaining in black Africa — except for South Africa itself.

Cite Sabotage In Coal Strike

By The Associated Press

Utility crews worked to restore electricity to a large non-union coal mine in Maryland after nine power poles were cut down with saws. Meanwhile, Kentucky State Police blamed striking miners for two small explosions that damaged wooden railway ties and loosened some spikes.

By Wednesday, power still had not been restored to the Mettiki coal mine, which has continued operating despite a nationwide strike by the United Mine Workers union. The strike entered its 48th day today.

The Western Maryland mine lost power early Tuesday when the poles were severed, causing "thousands of dollars" worth of damage, according to sheriff's officials in Preston County, W.Va., a rural area near the Maryland border where the poles were located.

Dick Roschli, Potomac Edison district manager, said utility officials hoped to restore the mine's power today after repairing the poles.

When asked if he believed the incident was related to the strike, Roschli said, "You can surmise that. I don't know that for a fact."

Meanwhile, Kentucky State Police said an attempt to blow up railway tracks probably was linked to the UMW strike and was similar to earlier attempts at sabotaging lines that carry coal trains.

Authorities said two small explosions were set off along Chessie System railway tracks near Martin, Ky., late Tuesday night. The blasts damaged a small number of wooden ties and loosened some spikes, state police said.

Three other railroad bridges in Kentucky were dynamited in the same area last week, authorities said.

NATO Pledge To Assist U.S.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — NATO defense ministers gave the United States a vote of confidence by honoring a 1978 Carter administration request for a three percent annual increase in defense spending and a new Reagan administration plea for help in defending Western interests in the Middle East.

A communique released at the end of the two-day session Wednesday said the ministers had decided to honor the spending pledge because of "an unrelenting buildup of Soviet military strength across the spectrum."

Britain, West Germany, and some of the smaller of the 14 countries in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization had criticized the three percent goal as a burden in view of the recession sweeping Western Europe.

U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger said the alliance ministers had also agreed to help the United States develop a Middle East-targeted Rapid Deployment Force.

NATO's 1949 charter forbids use of its allied command structure for activities outside Western Europe. But Weinberger noted the individual governments could offer assistance to the force in areas such as facilities, overflights and the use of airfields.

"I have no doubt whatever that the countries whose vital interests would be affected by denial of access to the oil fields would certainly want to provide the facilities necessary to assist repulsing such an invasion," Weinberger said.

The force was created in response to the 1979 Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and fears of what would happen if the Soviet Union or any other country blocked access to the Persian Gulf and its oil.

LIBYANS EXPELLED — Libyan diplomatic personnel chant slogans at Dulles International Airport near Washington, D.C. before their flight to Libya late Wednesday night. The Reagan Administration ordered all Libyan diplomats expelled for their country's alleged support of terrorist activities. A portrait of Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy is held up by one of the men. (AP Laserphoto)

Bridge administrators do not have to be great bridge players. But there are a number of exceptions. One is Tommy Sanders of Nashville, Tenn., recently elected as a member of the Board of Directors of the American Contract Bridge League. Not only is he an expert player who will captain the U.S. team in this year's world championship, but his wife, Carol, will be a member of the U.S. Women's Team.

At the recent North American Spring Championships, Sanders became declarer at a four spade contract on the auction shown, during the quarter finals of the Vanderbilt Team Championship. In view of their perfectly balanced distributions, North might have forgone the use of Stayman in the hope of finding a 4-4 major fit and South might have bid three no trump at his third turn. Note that a no trump game is easy from the South seat unless West is inspired enough to lead a diamond – which would be our fourth choice.

A diamond lead would also scuttle four spades, but West chose to lead a club. East won the ace and shifted to the king of diamonds. Declarer ducked one round, then won the diamond continuation with the ace. His dim hopes of bringing in the contract improved slightly when he cashed the ace-king of trumps and felled West's queen. The scene was set for an end play.

Declarer drew a third round of trumps, cashed the king-queen of clubs and ace-king of hearts, and now had two routes to success. He could lead a diamond, which would leave East on play with nothing but diamonds. On the forced return of that suit, declarer would ruff in one hand while sluffing his losing heart from the other.

Sanders chose an equally successful method. He led another heart, forcing West to win. Now West was left with nothing but hearts and clubs, and whichever suit he led would permit declarer to ruff in one hand and discard his losing diamond from the other.

Red Balloon Is A Lucky Find

RANKIN, Texas (AP) — A little red balloon set free in Santa Barbara, Calif., floated 1,700 miles to this sparsely populated, mesquite-covered area of West Texas.

The decorated balloon had lodged under a greasewood bush, without bursting, when James Braden found it. He advised California shopping-center officials who had released it two days earlier in a local promotion.

The officials were so amazed, they gave Braden and his wife, Almina, an all-expenses-paid four-day vacation to Santa Barbara, complete with gifts at the mall.

Braden, a utility man at Phillips Benedum gas plant north of here, found the balloon and the vacation when he was looking for deer, which he couldn't find.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

As President of the Greenville Home Builders Association, it is my distinct pleasure to welcome you to our 1981 Parade of Homes.

At a time when high interest rates and high inflation have interfered with the American public's desire to purchase their own home, it is important to remember that housing in Greenville is still a good buy.

As housing needs change, we endeavor to adapt our product to meet those changing needs. We are hopeful and confident that as you review our homes this year, you will conceive that we have met this challenge.

It is our objective to provide you, the consumer, with efficient, sound, and economical housing, and as in the past we pledge our continuous efforts and resources to that end.

SOLAR LIVING

"The incorporation of current solar technologies in any and all forms of new construction and remodeling should at all times be considered, at least thought about and throughly investigated. The results could be staggering to our energy consumption patterns in the immediate and long term future."

These thoughts are certainly not original with Jeff Mathis of J.L. Mathis Construction Co., they are the sentiments of an ever increasing sector of the building community across the country. They have been translated into whole communities based around the principle that we can tap an energy source that regularly puts out daily enough energy to fuel the whole world's current energy needs for a year--3500 times over! What J.L. Mathis does hope to do is integrate the theory and technique of solar energy collection and distribution into his work at any level that is economically viable. Though quite new to the Greenville area, Jeff is constantly working to offer the public an alternative in housing that comes from the premise that the housing market must attempt to off-set the continuing rise in the cost of home ownership by not only conserving the energy in the home, but generating some of that energy with simple technology and solid performance.

Jeff is a member of the Greenville HBA, National Assoc. of Home Builders, International Solar Energy Soc., North Carolina Solar Energy Soc., and National Assoc. of Solar Contractors.

The home featured here is a combination of tight construction, open traffic patterns, and a combined direct gain-isolated gain solar system. The brick on slab floors act as both collector and distributor of heat gained from south facing windows and a possible wood stove set in a brick alcove. The isolated gain system is a window seat arrangement with drop down insulated doors incorporating water drum storage. The domestic hot water usage will be serviced by a KTA Series 10 active solar water heater. From now until late fall it will be supplying virtually 100 percent of the hot water needs of a family.

Other features include an oak countertop, two baths, three bedrooms, Pella windows with slimshades, and a whole house ventillating fan. And for the even distribution of stratified air within living area, a paddle fan with variable speed control. A Carrier heat pump system is also supplied for non-believers and August humidity.

KTA SERIES-10 DESIGNED TO LAST

The SERIES-10 has been engineered to eliminate the problems encountered in many other domestic hot water system designs. Solar systems can only become a real investment if the equipment is designed for long service life & ease of in-field maintenance as well as high thermal efficiency. The return on an investment in a SERIES-10 system will continue long after other systems have stopped. In the following chart, the relative advantages of the KTA system are displayed.

UNIQUE DESIGN

Uniquely designed contemporary offers the most usable living area for just over 1200 square feet. Great room opening into dining room gives spaciousness abound for this size home. Separate utility room to keep things tidy. Bedrooms are spacious with two full baths conveniently located. Walk-in closet in the master with practically no hall way. This is a must-see for homes under $50,000.

BILL CLARK

BRICK - SAFE & DEPENDABLE

Fireplace builders and chimney sweeps have learned that brick makes the safest, most durable fireplaces and chimneys.

With a brick fireplace, plenty of chimney fires happen and nobody even knows about them. They catch fire and burn themselves out. Metal chimneys may burn up. Many of the problems with metal chimneys may be attributed to faulty installation. Nearly anyone can attempt to install a metal chimney, as a result, improper installation is more likely than with brick chimneys. Brick chimneys are very rarely installed by the novice. Brick is much safer than metal because it will not bend, melt, warp, or rust.

Another advantage of the brick fireplace is that brick will continue to heat a room long after a fire has gone out because no other building material absorbs and retains heat better than brick.

TRADITIONAL ELEGANCE AT IT'S BEST

Traditional elegance with a touch of class describes this traditional two story, four bedroom design. Located on a lovely lot in Club Pines, this home offers an elegant, practical, and energy efficient setting that will meet the needs of any family.

The exterior construction is of beaded masonite siding painted white and trimmed in amber with contrasting black shutters. Quality construction and personalized charm are just a few words that could be used to describe this traditional setting.

The use of an open two story foyer creates a convenient traffic pattern for easy living and entertaining. The foyer is enhanced by sidelights and a full size window in the upper portion that creates a felling of spaciousness. The hardwood floor and wallpaper below the chairail add to the warmth and beauty of a traditional setting.

The practical arrangement of the first level consists of a 'great room' with typical wood wainscotting and mouldings on the walls and framing the floor level masonry fireplace. An adjoining formal dining room is trimmed with two piece chairail and crown moulding. French doors leading to the wooded back yard creates a delightful atmosphere for dining.

The pullman style kitchen is efficiently arranged and offers ample work and storage space. A separate utility room is located off the breakfast area with additional storage space above the washer and dryer.

The unique feature of a downstairs bedroom lends itself to a variety of possibilities, such as a guest bedroom, study, office, master bedroom or den. It is served by a full ceramic tile bath which is accessible from the hallway or the bedroom.

The second story originates with a wide hallway which overlooks the grand entrance. To the left of the stairway is a master bedroom, large enough to accommodate a full bedroom suite with room to spare. Be sure to notice the convenience of a walk-in closet and nicely arranged master bath. Also on the second story are two other full size bedrooms, another centrally located ceramic bath, and plenty of closet and storage space.

This home has been built with adherence to the Greenville Utilities E-300 energy efficiency program. It has also been professionally decorated by Sandra Thomas, Interior Decorator at Larry's Carpetland and its color coordinated with colors and textures designed to blend with a variety of furnishing colors and styles.

SPACE AND UNIQUENESS

In forming Blount & Ball Realty Co., Inc. in 1971, Bill Blount and Lee Ball's concept was, as it is today, to provide the most comprehensive service to clients in buying, selling, or building a home. This has allowed the prospective home buyer to receive "one stop" service whether his interest lies in existing resale homes or new custom construction.

In addition to supervising construction at Blount & Ball, Lee has been very active through the years in local and state construction related organizations. A charter member of the Greenville HBA and a past president, he is currently on the Board of Directors and the Builders Council. In 1978 Governor Hunt appointed him to serve on the North Carolina Code Officials Qualifications Board until 1982. Active, too, in the Greenville-Pitt County Board of REALTORS Lee is a past president and member of the Board of Directors and is currently serving on the By-Laws Committee. In addition Lee serves his community through other organizations and is now Director for the University City Kiwanis Club.

Other than his duties at Blount & Ball, Bill Blount is also President of Lynndale Development Co. He, too, is a past president of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of REALTORS. A graduate of the North Carolina REALTORS Institute (G.R.I.), Bill last year obtained the designation of C.R.S. (Certified Residential Specialist) from the REALTORS National Marketing Institute. Bill holds offices and directorships of several local businesses and organizations, including Home Builders Supply Co., Dixie Supply Co., Blount-Harvey Co., Branch Banking & Trust Co., North State Savings & Loan Assoc., and is Chairman of the Board of Carolina Country Day School.

#11 323 PINEWOOD DRIVE (PINEWOOD FOREST)

From the street the house and lot appear to have weathered time together and aged into graciousness slowly. The natural stain applied over the cypress siding will further mellow with age and the house will continue to blend further with its surroundings. The natural wood deck that encompasses the entire back of the house is accessible from the back yard, the driveway, the Den and the breakfast nook. Partially open for sunning and partially covered for shade and protection from the elements, the deck provides endless possibilities for outdoor entertaining.

The use of a central foyer, highlighted by distinctively patterned wallcovering and the rich parquet flooring, creates a convenient traffic pattern for easy living and entertaining. Simplicity enhances the formal natures of the living and dining rooms, leaving numerous decorating possibilities. In the kitchen, custom cabinets are filled with built-in features including a slide-out racks for pots and pans, a corner lazy susan, a spice rack, and a tray storage rack.

The greenhouse window with its tile base will add cheerfulness no matter the season. A JennAir range and energy saving dishwasher complete the efficient, practical design of this open kitchen work area. Large windows off the breakfast nook provide brightness in addition to a lovely view of the wooded surroundings. The half bath and a large coat closet in the hall are convenient to all rooms downstairs which creates an added plus for those times when company arrives. In the den the ceramic fireplace is maintenance free and the built-in bookcases combined with the soft effect of the grasscloth wall covering and subdued carpet give off a warm, relaxing aura. Double french doors leading onto the deck outside provide a pleasant view and the filtered light that is so good for indoor plant life.

Upstairs, the hall bath has a completely enclosed linen closet with added shelves, cabinets, and a built-in clothes hamper. The two complementary light wallcoverings and the large white floor tile help to emphasize the spaciousness of this bath. Both of the two bedrooms to the right of the hall bath have large closets with shoe racks and/or shelves and shirt rods. Whether used as a children's rooms or guest rooms, there will be ample space for accomodating everyone.

The master bedroom and bath encompass the entire left side of the upstairs with uncompromising space and functional amenities, including double walk-in closets. In the master bath, the corner Futura step-in tub and the separate glass shower are unique and are accented by the contrasting brown tile and use of complementary patterns in the wallcoverings. The dressing/vanity area is highlighted by the rich tone of the countertop and the bronze tinted vanity lights.

Blount & Ball's 1980 Parade house is fully covered by the ten year HOW warranty and is approved for Greenville Utilities' E-300 energy efficient award

SOLAR RANCH

Earl Hardee is a native Pitt County builder. He has been building in this area for over 32 years. Earl is a member of the Greenville Home Builders Association and is an approved H.O.W. builder. Earl builds a very energy efficient home and is incorporating active solar systems in the homes he has built in the last year. This system provides the primary heat source for the home and heats the domestic hot water. He also is involved in installing this system in existing homes in the greater Greenville area. Earl feels that solar homes will be the best selling homes on the market in the years to come and he is dedicated to building this type of home. Earl builds custom homes as well as spec homes.

Earl is a member of the Moose Lodge, The Elks, The Farm Bureau and is active in the community. He is married to Mary Lou Hardee and they have one daughter, Cathy.

This 3 bedroom masonite ranch includes 2 full baths and a single car garage that has been wired and finished. Excellence abounds as only stick-built cabinatry and a lot of trim work exists. The floor plan consists of an eat-in kitchen with a washer/dryer room, a formal dining room, large great room with stick-built fireplace mantel and bookshelves. The three bedrooms are large with the master having his and her's closets and a full bath. This home has an active solar system which supplies all of the domestic hot water and heats the entire home in the winter. This is done by ten solar panels and a hydrograte in the fireplace to heat the water in a 400 gal. storage tank. This hot water is circulated through a hot water radiator that is located in the homes duct work in front of the circulating fan to provide the heat. In addition the street water is routed through a heat exchanger and heated to the holding tank temperature and then stored in an energy-saving hot water heater. A circulation pump constantly circulates the hot water through the house so that you have instant hot water at any tap in the home. The home has a heat pump for back-up heating and air conditioning in the summer. The fireplace has outside air source for fire combustion and a blower system to expel hot air back into the home. Much care is taken to ensure the home is energy efficient and insulation values are R-11 floor, R-19 walls, R-30 ceiling. Masonite lap siding is used instead of the traditional brick-v veneer to provide a tighter, more efficient home. The home is an E-300 energy efficient home.

HOW

Before you put your name on the most expensive document most people ever sign, you probably put a lot of thought into it.

It's easy to get boggled by floorplans and locations, lot sizes and mortgage terms and closing costs.

But it's easier to feel a lot better about the whole process if you just know how.

When you see the HOW symbol on a new home, you know you're getting a 10 year protection plan. Your home is protected against workmanship and material defects the first year. Defective wiring, ductwork and piping in the second. And your home is protected against major structural defects that vitally affect the use of your new home for 10 full years* Your builder can give you all the details, including the reasonable exclusions.

When you add up all the things you're looking for in a new home, it's probably a list a yard long. Put the Home Owners Warranty program at the top of it.

Insist on it. It's the best way to protect against facing the wrong kind of signs in the future.

Dollar signs.

HOW

Home Owners Warranty Corporation

Warranty and insurance coverage applies only if the builder properly enrolls the home and is in good standing with HOW at the time of settlement.
