

Budget Approved, Congress Goes Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — After establishing the "most significant and drastic spending change by the federal government in 25 years," congressmen headed home today for a 10-day vacation.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., used those words to describe the "watershed resolution" the Senate approved 76-20 Thursday in adopting a $695.4 billion budget outline tailored to President Reagan's tax and spending program next year.

The Senate action came a day after the House agreed to the compromise hammered out last week by budget writers for the two chambers. The package calls for massive cuts in social programs and increased defense spending.

After returning from the Memorial Day recess, Congress will resume the more difficult task of actually cutting individual programs to fit the targets set by the non-binding outline.

Meanwhile, the Reagan administration and key Democrats are inching closer to agreement on a tax-cut plan but neither side wants to take the final step without a guarantee that the other will go along.

"We couldn't ask members to support a package giving the president three-quarters of what he asked for only to have the president disown and denounce it and work with others to seek something different," House Majority Leader Jim Wright said Thursday.

"If Congress is going to give birth to his child, then he must own up to its paternity," the Texas Democrat added.

Despite the caution by both sides, a Treasury Department official confirmed Thursday that the administration generally supports a substitute offered by conservative Democrats that would cut personal tax rates by 25 percent over three years instead of the 30 percent cut Reagan sought.

Reagan won't be drawn into the discussions until congressional leaders give their assurance that the substitute can be passed without a long, costly fight, the officials said.

In a major victory for foes of legalized abortion, the Senate voted 52-43 Thursday to remove incest and rape as justification for abortions under the federal Medicaid program. That means that a low-income woman will qualify for federal funds to end a pregnancy only if her life is threatened.

The vote provided a vivid demonstration of the strength conservatives are likely to have later this year on more general legislation seeking to reverse the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortions. The House already had approved a similar amendment.

In other action Thursday:

—Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., reportedly has urged the White House to withdraw the nomination of Ernest W. Lefever to be President Reagan's human rights adviser. Lefever, accused of ignoring human rights abuses by right-wing governments, faced tough questioning this week by Percy's Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Richard Fairbanks, an assistant secretary of state, said any such request "will not be followed."

—The Senate voted 49-46 to approve an extra $538 million for food stamps to avoid a cutback in the program this summer. The Agriculture Department said that without the extra money, it might be necessary to reduce food stamp outlays by 17 percent for some 23 million Americans who receive the coupons.

—The Senate voted 50-48 to kill a move aimed at shelving a controversial Reagan administration plan to spend $20 million on a new generation of nerve gas weapons. The House already had approved $20 billion for the program. The money would be used to produce so-called binary nerve gas that is harmless until chemicals from separate chambers are combined on impact.

—The House Interior Committee voted 23-18 to prohibit the Interior Department from approving oil or natural gas drilling leases on 1.5 million acres in the Bob Marshall Wilderness Area of Montana. Democrats said the vote to invoke the obscure section of federal law was in response to Interior Secretary James Watt's attitude toward wilderness preservation.

—The administration defended its proposal to slash Social Security benefits — especially for early retirees — but conceded in the wake of congressional hostility that it is ready to compromise. "We have 13 provisions in this bill, and they're all negotiable," Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker told the House Select Committee on Aging.

Uncovered Bootleg Still

IT'S A RAID — State and County law enforcement officers examine an illegal still found off the Rocky Run Rd. in Onslow County after acting on a tip. The still was capable of producing a quart of whiskey every three and one-half minutes. After checking the still, officers destroyed it in a matter of minutes. The still had a capacity of 250 gallons of mash. Two men operating the still escaped in the woods. (AP Laserphoto)

Syrian Missiles Downed Two Israeli Spy Planes

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian surface-to-air missiles downed two Israeli spy planes over eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley today, the Damascus command said. Israel admitted one pilotless craft shot down by the missiles it demands be pulled back and that Syria refuses to budge.

The Reagan administration pursued its mediating mission, and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev called for an international conference to defuse the missile crisis. But Syria's leading newspaper said Israel's latest demands amounted to a "declaration of war."

The Syrian command in Damascus said the Israeli planes were brought down at 12:19 p.m. — 6:19 a.m. EDT — while they were on a "spying mission. One plane crashed near Kafraya and the second near Jib Jannin. We have collected the wreckage of both planes."

Kafraya and Jib Jannin are 12 miles southwest of Chtaura, the Lebanese Bekaa city that houses the command of Syria's 22,000-man army in Lebanon.

The Israeli command in Tel Aviv said one pilotless drone was downed over eastern Lebanon. It was the second one shot down since May 14, two weeks after Syria deployed the missiles in the Bekaa Valley and following the downing of two Syrian helicopter gunships in the area by Israeli jets.

The newspaper of Syrian President Hafez Assad's ruling Baath Party said Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's demands to withdraw the missiles and pull back Syrian troops from some areas of Lebanon "constitute a declaration of war" without waiting for "diplomatic efforts to be exhausted."

President Reagan's envoy, Philip C. Habib, returned to Beirut and told reporters after 2½ hours of talks with Lebanese President Elias Sarkis. "As you know I have been saying diplomatic efforts continue and they are continuing. I have nothing else to say."

Brezhnev, in a nationally televised speech from Tbilisi, capital of the Georgian Soviet Republic, warned that if Syria-Israeli fighting breaks out the "flames of war" could spread beyond the Middle East. He called for an international conference to take up the missile crisis.

"One miscalculation and the flames of war could sweep the entire Mideast region. And it is not known how far the sparks of this fire could scatter," he said.

Arab foreign ministers, meanwhile, convened an emergency meeting in Tunis to discuss the Syrian-Israeli crisis. Pre-conference reports from the Tunisian capital indicated the Arab ministers are likely to support Syria in the showdown with Israel.

Rioting, Firebombings Again Sweep Northern Ireland; Follows Death

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Fierce rioting, firebombing and sniper fire swept this British-ruled province today after the death of another Irish nationalist hunger striker. Authorities said one rioter was killed and about 12 others, including five soldiers, were injured.

The unrest followed the death Thursday night of Patrick "Patsy" O'Hara, 24, in the 61st day of his fast at the Maze Prison outside Belfast. Authorities said one rioter was killed and about 12 others, including five soldiers, were injured.

Another hunger striker was reported seriously ill today with internal bleeding in the eighth day of his fast, and the Northern Ireland Office said he was refusing medical aid. At the Maze Prison outside Belfast, authorities said another Irish Republican Army prisoner had refused breakfast, joining the IRA hunger strike to back demands for political prisoner status.

Police arrested about 25 people in the rioting, which raged until the early hours in Roman Catholic areas of Belfast, Londonderry, Dungannon and Newry.

Officials said the man killed in the rioting was believed to have been struck by a plastic anti-riot bullet fired by security forces.

O'Hara was the fourth hunger striker to die in the Maze, but the first fatality from the outlawed Irish National Liberation Army, a radical faction allied with the IRA's Provisional wing. The INLA issued a statement threatening "fierce retaliation" against all aspects of British rule in Northern Ireland.

Hunger strikers Bobby Sands, who died May 5, Francis Hughes, who died May 12, and McCreech were members of the IRA, which is also outlawed.

The Northern Ireland Office said today that Brendan McLaughlin, 29, who is serving a 12-year sentence on conviction of firearms offenses, "needs a blood transfusion, but has so far refused medical treatment."

Inflation Rate Fell Off In Last Month's Figures

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gasoline and grocery prices fell in April, holding the nation's overall inflation increase to 0.4 percent — an annual rate of 5.1 percent and the best monthly performance since last July, the government reported today. Inflation is averaging about 8.4 percent so far this year, four percentage points under the 12.4 percent rate for all of last year.

The April figure, which follows a 0.6 percent increase in March, is the best since the 0.1 percent rise last July.

Overall food prices, which many economists expected to rise substantially this year, remained steady in April after gaining only slightly in the previous two months, according to today's consumer price index released by the Labor Department.

Prices for food purchases at groceries actually fell 0.2 percent, but prices for restaurant meals and alcoholic beverages were slightly higher.

Gasoline prices declined 1.4 percent in April after rising 13.4 percent in the first three months of the year, the report said. And economists say that a current worldwide oil-production surplus makes it unlikely that there will be any big energy-cost increases in the next few months.

Transportation costs in general declined 0.1 percent in April, with the gasoline-price drop-off partly balanced by a 1.8 percent rise in new car prices with the end of big rebate programs.

All of the figures are adjusted for seasonal variations.

The report said the unadjusted consumer price index rose to 266.8 in April, which means that goods and services that cost $10 in 1967 would have cost $26.68 last month.

The Labor Department also said real spendable earnings — after taxes and after adjusting for inflation — dropped 0.1 percent in April for an average married wage-earner with three dependents.

Real spendable earnings were down 2.5 percent from April 1980, while the CPI was 10 percent higher for that 12-month period.

The Reagan administration is predicting an 11.1 percent rate for this year, but many economists say overall inflation for the year may be lower than that.

BRING BACK GERANIUMS

I'm wondering how so many people think of so many mean things to do. I have just returned from the hospital where I spent two and a half months. Two very dear friends sent me beautiful geraniums for a welcome-home present. When I looked out my window Tuesday morning, they were gone. So many passers-by had stopped to admire them. If there is a conscience in whoever took them, I hope they will return them as quickly as possible. I would greatly appreciate it. A. E. Fullilove., 1600 E. Fourth Street.

RUG TAKEN BY MISTAKE

The driver of a beige Oldsmobile who attended a yard sale last Saturday is asked to return a rug put in his car by mistake. The person who took it may be unaware of it, since the rug was rolled up and placed on the floor of the back seat. Arrangements for returning the rug and collecting a reward may be made by calling 756-2233 or 756-8200. The placer of this item has appeared unsuccessfully through ads this week.

Full Accreditation For ECU School Of Medicine

The East Carolina School of Medicine has been awarded full, four-year accreditation from the Liaison Committee on Medical Education, according to ECU Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer.

Brewer said the LCME, the national accrediting agency for medical schools, also has granted the school permission to increase freshman enrollment to 52 students in the fall of 1981.

ECU graduated its first class of 28 physicians recently. "We are pleased that the announcement of full accreditation coincides with the graduation of the first class of medical students," Brewer said. "The accreditation confirms the excellence of our medical education program, our faculty and our students."

ECU received provisional accreditation for the four-year medical school in April, 1977 and admitted the charter class in August of that year. The accrediting agency has made annual visits to the school to review the development of the program and inspect physical facilities.

LCME representatives last visited the school in November, 1980 to examine the progress of the four-year program before the graduation of the first students.

Brewer noted that it was unusual for the LCME to grant four-year accreditation to a new medical school. He attributed the success of the program to the school's faculty and to medical school Dean William E. Laupus, who joined the university in 1975 to direct the development of the four-year school.

Laupus said that the accreditation and approval to increase student enrollment "reflects the quality of the faculty and the performance of the students."

"We're proud that the LCME was so impressed with our development," Laupus said. "Their approval shows their confidence in our faculty, students, facilities and the clinical services we sponsor in conjunction with Pitt County Memorial Hospital."

"The development of the new school has been a most challenging and heartwarming experience for all of us involved. We are now looking ahead to a bright future of providing the state with well-trained physicians and increasing the availability of needed patient care services."

The school will have a total enrollment of 174 medical students next year.

Life As It's Lived

Oneupmanship Game Learned At Early Age

By GAIL MICHAELS
No matter how many new games Meg learns, her favorite is still oneupmanship. She and her friend, Misty, compete over everything from the contents of their lunchboxes to who can be the first to tell the parent on carpool duty what they did in school that day.

I have tried to discourage their efforts to outdo each other, but I haven't met with much success. The most trivial remark can result in a vigorous verbal exchange between the two.

For instance, when I asked Misty if she had a nice Easter vacation, she told us that her grandparents had come for a visit.

"Well, I went to the beach with my grandparents," Meg crowed, "and they gave me a real marionette from Mexico."

Misty could not resist the implied challenge. "Well...well, my daddy brought me a sweater all the way from the Atlanta airport. What do you think of that?"

Meg sniffed. "Atlanta's no big deal. I go there all the time."

Misty gave it another try. "Well...well, my daddy is going to take me there in a few weeks, and we're going to Six Flags. have you ever been there?"

"No, but my granddaddy is going to take me there this summer."

Misty grinned triumphantly. "Since I'll be going first, I'll tell you all about it."

Meg tossed her head. "You won't have to. I suppose it's like Busch Gardens, and I went there last fall."

Several days later it was Misty's turn to have the last word.

When I stopped by her house to pick her up for school, she came limping out to the car with the expression of Melanie Wilkes on her sick bed in "Gone With the Wind."

"I have a pulled muscle," she moaned.

Meg was solicitous. "Is it just too painful?"

"Yes," Misty's voice fell off to a weak whisper.

"It's sort of like my chin when I fell out of the tree. It was blood all over the place, and I had to have seven stiches. It was the worst."

Misty revived immediately. "I already know about your old chin," she snapped. "That happened too long ago to make any difference. I'm the one that's suffering now."

Meg got silent, but she didn't forget the conversation. That afternoon she walked out of her room with an exaggerated limp. "I think I have a pulled muscle, Mommy. I guess I shouldn't have jumped off that chair."

"I guess you shouldn't have. Does it hurt very much?"

She sighed. "Oh yes. I may not get better for months and months."

Luckily, I happened to have an infallible cure on hand. She and Phillip had scheduled a hiking trip to the mountains that weekend.

"Gee, I am really sorry. I know you'll be sad when you can't go on your camping trip with Daddy and Uncle Greg."

"Why can't I?"

"You can't hike with a pulled muscle, can you?"

She looked down at her leg; then she looked at me. She seemed torn by indecision. "Mommy," she said finally, "do you think Misty's ever been camping before?"

Science Camp For Children

ECU News Bureau
A weeklong science day camp for young children will be offered by the East Carolina University Department of Science Education June 15-19.

Children will be involved in high interest science activities, many of which will be out-of-doors, from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. each day. The final camp day will feature a visit to the Fossil Museum in Aurora.

The camp is open to children in grades K-3, or five through eight years of age. Fee per participant is $55, which includes cost of transportation and insurance for the Aurora trip.

Further information and application materials are available from Dr. Charles Coble, ECU Primary Grade Science Day Camp, Department of Science Education, ECU, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Church Party For Newcomers

More than 70 new members and their families who have joined Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church will join together in a Newcomers Party Sunday, May 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of Jarvis Church. Master of ceremonies will be Charles Kavanaugh.

On the program with Kavanaugh will be Mr. and Mrs. Mike Aldridge, Dr. Edward M. Davis, Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Creech, Dr. and Mrs. Henry C. Ferrell Jr., Martha Ann Ferrell, Cissy Taft and Rev. and Mrs. David Goehring.

The party has been designated as a memorial to the late Mrs. Helene Higgs Kirkpatrick, who sensed the concern for new members to get to know one another even better, and who chaired the party for a number of years until her death in 1978.

A nursery will be available.

Award Won By ECU Student

ECU News Bureau
Kimberly Boyd of Kernersville, a student in the East Carolina University School of Business, has been awarded the Piedmont Triad Advertising Internship for the summer of 1981.

A marketing major at ECU, Ms. Boyd competed with nominees from more than a dozen other universities and colleges across North Carolina.

Purpose of the annual award is to give the winning student practical experience in the advertising field.

Denies Knowing PCB Being Dumped In N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Robert E. Ward Jr., accused of encouraging the dumping of toxic PCB-laced oil along North Carolina highways, testified Thursday that he didn't know his business partner had dumped the chemicals illegally.

Ward, 56, of Raleigh admitted that his friend and occasional business associate Robert J. Burns of Jamestown, N.Y., told him in June 1978 that he had dumped 750 gallons of PCB at Fort Bragg.

But Ward, owner of Ward Transformer Co., said he did not "know for sure" that Burns was responsible for other dumpings in the state.

Ward is charged with violating federal pollution laws by aiding and abetting dumping the cancer-causing chemical along 200 miles of North Carolina roads in 10 counties in 1978. He was acquitted of state pollution charges in the dumpings in 1979.

Burns and his two sons pleaded guilty to charges stemming from the dumping. They testified as part of a plea-bargaining arrangement.

Ward testified in U.S. District Court that when the news media first reported the dumpings in 1978, his son Bob called him with the news while he was vacationing in the mountains. Ward said he told his son to call Burns.

"I know that if PBC oil was spilled, it was Bob Burns and not me," he said.

A few days earlier in Raleigh, he called Burns into his office and asked if he were responsible for the dumpings, he testified.

"Do you really want to know?" Ward said Burns asked him.

"I said, 'No, I don't want to know,'" Ward testified.

Under cross-examination by U.S. Attorney James L. Blackburn, Ward said: "I would say I did not know for sure. I may have had a gut feeling, but I did not know Bob Burns was dumping the oil."

Ward also said Thursday that Burns told him he had dumped 750 gallons of the poisonous PCB at Fort Bragg. Defense attorney Wade G. Smith of Raleigh asked Ward what his reaction was.

"I got really mad," Ward said. "I said, 'Damn, Burns. You know the regulations just as good as I do.'"

Ward said Burns replied, "I swear I'll never to that again. It was the stinkiest damn mess I've ever seen."

Ward's testimony Thursday contradicted that of Burns and his two sons. Burns testified Tuesday that Ward knew about and agreed to 11 illegal dumpings of the chemical.

Burns' two sons, Timothy P. Burns and Randall J. Burns, who actually dumped the PCB, testified Wednesday that their father told them Ward knew of the action.

If convicted of the eight misdemeanor charges, Ward faces a maximum of one year in prison or a $25,000 fine on each charge.

Horse, Pony Show Set For Sunday

The annual Ayden-Grifton Kiwanis Club Horse and Pony Show will be held near Ayden May 24. The show is a part of the Coastal Plains Horse Show Circuit.

Hayfield Farm, located about three miles east of Ayden, just off N.C. 102 near Ayden Golf and Country Club, will be the site of the 41-class event. The show will begin at 9:30 a.m., when time special and added classes will be shown. The coastal plains show will begin at 12 noon.

The lead line class, open to all children from toddlers to six years, requires no special dress. In this class, the exhibitors lead their horses around the ring with a child riding. Parents having children who want to participate should contact any member of the Ayden-Grifton Kiwanis Club, or call Hayfield Farm for more information at 746-4616. The entry fee is $4 for the class, scheduled for approximately 11 a.m.

Barbeque chicken plates will be served at the show.

Funds derived from this fifth annual sanctioned show will be divided on a 60-40 percent basis with the Ayden-Grifton High School Band and the Kiwanis Club. The Kiwanis Club utilizes funds it receives in a number of community service endeavors, such as assistance to needy families at Christmas, girl scouts, boy scouts, and scholarships to Ayden-Grifton High School seniors.

Since 1976 the club has donated over $13,000 to community service. Around $10,660 has gone to the local schools to help such groups as the band, cheerleaders, yearbook staff, Key and Keywanette clubs and athletics.

The public is invited to attend this show. There will be an admission charge at the gate.

Students Should Apply For Jobs

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I own my own business and I hire many high school students for part-time work. Abby, you cannot imagine how many parents call me and ask if I have a job for Ann or Tom!

If Ann and Tom want to work, I think they should do the asking. Having Mama or Dad ask for them doesn't say much for the child's initiative.

I feel it is important for young people to work and I give as many of them a break as I can, but I have made it a policy never to hire anyone whose mother or father calls and asks me to give the child a job. If a boy or girl is old enough to draw a salary, he or she is old enough to ask for a job.

I am sure other employers share my viewpoint. And if this letter helps to wake up just one teen-ager, it will have been worth the time I took to write it.

E. IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR E.: I'm glad you wrote. I'm sure you woke up more than just one teen-ager. (And a few parents, too.)

DEAR ABBY: I'm 42, very happily married with four teen-aged children. The oldest married six months ago. Our family has been complete for 14 years — and now I'm pregnant again!

Abortion is out of the question. The only thing that will sustain me through this pregnancy is the knowledge that someone else who desperately wants a child will receive fulfillment and happiness from my labor. Yes, I want to put this child up for adoption, but I am concerned about the social pressures against such action.

My husband has called this pregnancy "a cruel blow" and "a great disappointment." He said that if I'm lucky I will have another miscarriage. (I had one.) But thus far I have not been able to get him to go along with giving up the child.

We are active in religious education and practically run the Sunday school at our church. We had looked forward to our middle years together — unencumbered. This would be impossible with a new baby to raise.

The main fact of this mess is that I can't mentally or physically face this middle-age pregnancy without the thought that I will be relieved of the burden in November. What counsel can you give me?

PEARLS: THE BRIDE'S CHOICE (Part I)

The ancients claimed that the god Vishnu searched the ocean's depths for just the right pearl to adorn his daughter on her wedding day. Since pearls were considered harbingers of love, happiness and good fortune, this was indeed an appropriate gift. To this day, many brides still choose pearls to adorn their wedding costumes.

A strand of natural or cultured pearls is sometimes given to the bride by the groom. Occasionally a dotting grandparent, uncle or aunt will ask for the honor to present such a gift.

The pearls must be selected with the neckline of the wedding gown in mind. A choker (15") or princess (17½-18½") length may be appropriate for a low neckline. However, with a high neckline, only a princess length would work, and only then if the top of the bodice is a simple one that will provide a gentle backdrop without conflicting with the beauty of the pearls.

Some brides prefer a pearl pendant to a strand. There are many beautiful styles to choose from, some of which are accented with diamonds.

The pearls themselves may be in the traditional spherical shape or in an unusual, asymmetrical form. The latter provides a modern touch.

Whatever the bride's specific choice may be, the fact that she chooses pearls in the first place puts her in the company of noble and royal ladies of many centuries as well as contemporary women who are known for their fine taste in dress.

Marriage Improvement Program Set

ECU News Bureau

"How to Make a Good Marriage Better," a two-session workshop for couples in stable marriages who want to improve an already good relationship, will be offered at East Carolina University this summer.

The workshop will meet Wednesday, June 10 and 24 from 7-9 p.m. Director is Dr. David Knox, head of ECU's marriage counseling program and a certified marital and family therapist. He is also the author of five books on marriage and family relationships and numerous articles in professional journals and popular magazines.

Each of the two sessions will focus on practical aspects of marital living—enhancing communication, reducing conflict and increasing the satisfaction of each spouse.

Further information is available from the Office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Named To Publication

Mrs. Eleanor Fern Kinnaman of Greenville is being listed in the 1980 edition of "The World Who's Who of Women."

State Meet Held Recently

ASHEVILLE — The North Carolina Medical Record Association held its annual meeting here at the Inn on the Plaza Hotel.

Newly elected officers were installed and include Kim A. Bell of Greenville, vice president and Peggy Wood, also of Greenville, a delegate.

Approximately 270 medical record administrators from throughout the state attended the meeting which included a mountain jamboree with a blue grass band and a dress contest for the "best dressed mountaineer."

Among the topics presented during the three days were "Women in Management," "Folklore Medicine" and "Interviewing Techniques."

Mrs. Capps Is Speaker

Members of Pirate Charter Chapter, American Business Women's Association heard a talk by Mrs. Pat Capps of Protective Services, Pitt County Social Services, on "Child Abuse" during its meeting Monday.

She explained how to tell if a child has been abused or neglected and why a person should report abuse.

Mrs. Terri Gray, education chairman, gave a report on the group's local scholarship award recipient, Julie Clemons, a rising junior at ECU, has been awarded a $150 from the fund. She is a music major, specializing in voice.

ABWA has designated May as Scholarship Month. Through the combined efforts of local ABWA chapter scholarship programs and the national scholarship fund, more than a million dollars in awards have been made to women to pursue their career objectives last year.

Restraint Was Wrong

A Superior Court judge recently issued a restraining order against the Burlington News-Times to keep it from publishing items from the personnel file of a school principal who had been suspended.

The order was issued by Judge D. Marsh McLelland of Burlington. He lifted the order in only two days, but a dangerous precedent could have been set.

William C. Lassiter, attorney for the N. C. Press Association, said the order was "absolutely repugnant." He saw it as a violation of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and the North Carolina Constitution.

"Prior restraint is the worst form of violation of the First Amendment," Lassiter said. "Any time the press is kept out of a place where it should be, it is wrong."

Judge McLelland later agreed that the order was in error in view of the wording of the State Constitution concerning freedom of speech and press.

We are pleased that Judge McLelland concedes that, for prior restraint on the press is always dangerous in a democracy. Suppose this involved information critical to a campaign on the day before an election. Its suppression, even for a few hours, could deprive the public of facts it needed to make an intelligent decision on a candidate.

Judicial orders restraining the publication of material are always in conflict with the First Amendment and with the State Constitution which says, "Freedom of speech and of the press are two of the great bulwarks of liberty and therefore shall never be restrained, but every person shall be held responsible for their abuse."

Gas Plentiful; Price Still High

If it is any consolation, the Carolina Motor Club reports that the world oil glut will mean plenty of gas over the Memorial Day holiday.

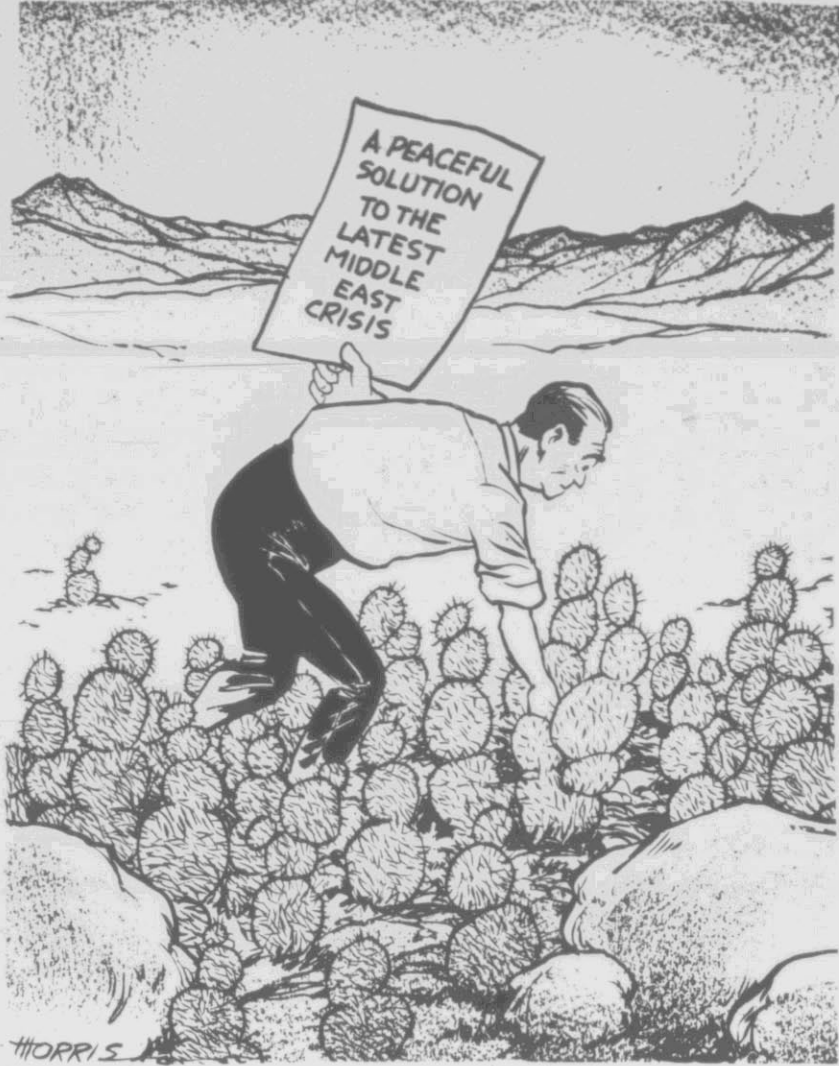

What's more the prices motorists pay for gas will be down fractionally from last month.

If all that sounds like good news it is well to remember that gas is still an average of 19 cents per gallon higher this year than it was at the same time in 1980.

Thanks to energy conservation and the willingness of Saudi Arabia to continue pumping oil, motorists this year don't face the spectre of gas and other fuel shortages. There is not a lot of hope, however, that we will ever see substantial drops in the price we pay for gas and other oil products. Long range the prices will almost surely spiral upward.

Those Wedding Poopers

A group of some of the world's greatest minds met in the back of the "Class Reunion," a noted think-tank in Washington, to form the "Royal Society to Ignore the British Royal Wedding."

The idea was inspired by the controversy a few weeks ago over whether United States Chief of Protocol Lee Annenberg should or should not have curtsied to Prince Charles as he got off the airplane on American soil.

One of the members of the standing committee, named Wilkie, said after his fourth martini, "I don't see how it can be done. We're talking about the heir to the throne of England. Every newspaper

Healy. "My problem is when I refuse to read about it — my wife reads it to me."

Novak, who was trying to rescue an onion from drowning in a tumbler of vodka, said, "I believe our biggest mistake would be if we vowed never to read another word about the Royal Wedding again. It's too hard to keep such a promise. What I suggest is that we take a page out of Alcoholics Anonymous, and every morning when we get up we each pledge for the next 24 hours to ignore Prince Charles completely."

"What about television?" Shields wanted to know.

"If Prince Charles and Lady Diana appear on our screens," said Novak, "we must promise to stand up and turn our backs to the sets."

"I'll drink to that," said Oliphant.

Dumbarton, who follows the races, asked the committee, "Suppose Prince Charles falls off his horse again? Do we have to ignore that?"

in the world is going to go bellyup over the story."

"Anything can be done if we put our minds to it," Oliphant said, "but it's going to take fortitude to ignore the royal nuptials. We can easily keep from reading about them in the newspapers and magazines — the real problem is can we do the same with television?"

Nelson said, "I have a remote control on my TV. I can turn them off any time they come on the screen."

"That's fine for you," said Shields. "But what about the rest of us who have to jump out of our seats and reach for the knob every time they appear?"

"As I see it," said Tuck, "we can't control what the media will do with the story. But we have to decide how much wedding hype each one of us can take."

"I got an overdose last week when I saw an interview with the people who are making Lady Diana's dress. The wedding's two months away and I think I've reached my pain threshold already," said those who distribute funds for him, refuse to pay penalties on delinquent bills owed to others.

"This is simply unfair," said Hilton Davis, a vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who strongly supports S.1131, which seeks to force some changes in Uncle Sam's financial habits.

"In effect," Davis claims, "the federal government is borrowing up to $11 billion per year from local business firms by not paying its bills on time."

S. 1131 would require government to pay its bills in 30 days, or pay interest on overdue payments. Any penalty payments would come out of an agency's funds rather than from the Treasury. Moreover, it would end the practice of taking early payment discounts, when payments are tardy.

The Season For Lovers

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — In spring, a young consenting adult's fancy lightly turns, the poets assure us, to thoughts of love.

The songwriters, too, are quite emphatic on that point. In "Let's Do It" ("...let's fall in love"), his first big hit, Cole Porter catalogued an entire Noah's Ark of amorous awakenings.

Clams do it, his lyrics inform us. Bees, fleas and chimpanzees do it. So do bluebirds, oysters, sponges, jellyfish, electric eels, shad, sole, sloths, centipedes, mosquitoes, ladybugs, katydid, dragonflies, goldfish, locusts, moths, guinea pigs, bears, kangaroos, giraffes, hippopotamuses and Pekinese dogs.

I forgot whether he said gnus do it, but they would have fitted in nicely with the rhyme scheme.

Astronauts fall in love. Lt. Cmdr. Robert Lee Gibson and Dr. Margaret Rhea Seddon are over the moon (as the British say) about each other and have planned a spring wedding in her home town of Murfreesboro, Tenn. Gov. Hugh Carey of New York is in love again at age 62. Prince Charles has pledged his troth to Lady Diane Spencer in what the Fleet Street scribblers insist will be the royal wedding of the century.

The whole world it seems is in love, save for a few painfully public exceptions. Pandas apparently do no pander to the stirrings of the vernal equinox.

Or if they do, only reluctantly.

The National Zoo here in Washington is shipping back to London British lover boy Chia-Chia, after wooing but failing to win the heart of Ling-Ling, who previously had spurned the attentions of Hsing-Hsing, her former fiancée. Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing, you may recall, are the pair of pandas presented to President Nixon by the People's Republic of China on his 1972 visit to Peking.

They have become the most popular attraction at the National Zoo, except to each other, which is why that British chap was imported. Chia-Chia's failure to find true love on the banks of the Potomac should not be construed as any sort of blot on his stud book.

Proposing to another panda is not the easiest job in the world. For one thing, a fellow has to be jolly quick about it. What zoologists at the Smithsonian delicately term the spring estrus — the time for purposeful dalliance — lasts only five to seven days. No time for Noel Coward dialogue or languid London handholding underneath the arches.

Chia-Chia, give him his due, gave it the old Piccadilly Circus try. But his approach was so abrupt, Ling-Ling uncorked a kung-fu klop across his chops that dumped him on his furry white and black duff. After that, there was a distinct cooling in their relations.

But let's face it, Washington in springtime, even with the cherry blossoms in bloom and the pedal boats aimlessly adrift in the Potomac Basin, is not a city for lovers.

Certainly chimpanzee Ham, our first astronaut, never found it to be so. Just a few months ago, the National Zoo shipped him off to a zoological park in Asheboro, N.C., on "a breeding loan, a paternity leave," as officials phrased it, to find love and happiness. The move proved Cole Porter was right about chimpanzees.

From what I can ather, the middle-aged (by chimp standards) Lothario cut a wide swath through the Carolina chimpanzee colony, and now has a steady thing going with a sexy simian named Maggie. Just getting away from the bureaucrats and that suffocating air of statesmanship probably added 10 years to his life.

Anyhow, the experts say Ham has been "resocialized" and made "more sexually aware," which unclinically speaking means he has gone ape over this thing called love.

Perhaps the London Zoo was not the most promising place in the world to find a partner for Ling-Ling. Her Majesty's breeding specialists have not been noticeably successful in locating a lover for Guy, the confirmed old bachelor gorilla, who seems as determined as Professor Henry Higgins never to let a woman in his life. It is even being bruted about in the House of Commons that Guy may be gay, but you know how gossip gets around in the British Isles. Still, they've tried importing gal gorillas from all over

Questions Abound

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Did Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw stand aside to help gain support in the General Assembly for Gov. Jim Hunt's package to boost the state's Highway Fund?

Will North Carolina get a higher tax per pack on cigarettes to gain legislative acceptance of the proposals the governor put forth?

Why are some of the ingredients in that package so complex and controversial as to almost guarantee legislative opposition; and the details of some still not available?

These and other questions swirl around the effort to boost Highway Fund revenues by some $200 million per year; an effort which has so preoccupied Gov. Hunt that he gives little time or attention to any other matters of state these days.

There has been stiff opposition in the General Assembly and across the state to boosting the tax on gasoline. Hunt proposed a three-cents-per-gallon increase coupled with a public relations gimmick to ease the impact — an income tax rebate for "essential driving" so that Tar Heels would escape a little of the tax.

Confusing That would tap the General Fund of $11 million. Hunt first said that when he proposed a tax credit of $2.50 per household. Then, to cover low-income people and households where two or more do "essential driving," the tax credit was doubled; but still at $11 million total loss to the General Fund. Meanwhile, the package proposed a severance tax on rock, stone, gravel, phosphate and other minerals mined from North Carolina soil; a new and little understood approach to government taxation with no details available as to how it was raised on a tobacco farm, and has roots in eastern soil where his strongest support exists. He is still opposes a cigarette tax, but at a recent press conference he at least acknowledged would be administered, what the tax rates would be, or what impact it would have on the economy.

There is also a proposed state tax on beach rental properties, with no specifics available on how it would be administered; what it would cost; or how it would affect coastal tourism.

Are these "tradeoff" pieces of the package? Even Hunt agrees that his approach is not cast in stone. He and every governor knows that complex proposals to the General Assembly are subject to change and compromise.

The cigarette tax, for example, has been at the top of Hunt's list of no-nos. He

I am actively involved in the life of the Greenville community. One area of the community life that I am aware of is education. When I picked up the Sunday paper, I read on the front page a full coverage story of a traffic jam. This greatly disappointed me. I was aware that Pitt Community College was having a dedication service to honor individuals who were involved in the development and expansion of this community college. This coverage was found on Page A-16. My question to you is, when does a traffic jam carry more importance than education?

To the Editor:

Every spring Greenville's artistic community explodes with a series of recitals and festivals. Every spring there is the same inevitable search for a suitable location to have performances. Greenville lacks any suitable public auditorium or civic center.

In the past, music or dance recitals have been held in churches, the Moose Lodge, Rose High and Aycock Gymnasiums, Mingos Coliseum or private homes. None of these places was built for music or dance. They each have major disadvantages. Churches lack a large performance area. The Moose Lodge stage is too narrow for many types of presentations. Any gymnasium lacks proper floors, comfortable seats and good acoustics. Obviously, private homes are too small for anything but the smallest recitals. There is no alternative as East Carolina University's facilities are usually reserved for university functions and the public schools above the elementary level lack auditoriums or stages. Many of the small towns nearby have some sort of auditorium in their high schools, but Greenville students perform on basketball courts.

If the citizens of Greenville wish to have a strong arts program, they must show some support. A public civic center is essential to the performing arts. Greenville has shown great support for local sports in the past. Shouldn't the arts deserve the same opportunity to be performed in adequate facilities? If a civic center and community support are added to the talent available, we would have an unbeatable combination.

A MOUNTAIN IN CHRISTIANITY

In every mountain range there is always a line of lofty summits which convey a sense of awe and beauty which no other ranges in that particular mountain system can give. It towers above all the rest. It appears to hold together all the other ranges of hills, rising one behind the other.

In the whole range of Christian teachings, the Sermon on the Mount appears to do this. Somehow or other, we always come back to it. Christianity, of course, is much more than the Sermon on the Mount alone. But without these three comparatively brief chapters? The spiritual genius of Jesus laid hold on human situations and in a few brief declarations, set the whole tangled picture of human relationships in a new perspective, a new setting, a new order.

If the Sermon is not the whole of Christianity, at least we might say that it is the soul of Christianity. — Elisha Douglass

Pennies, Dollars & Uncle Sam

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) —

Viewed politically, two particular items now being considered by the nation's elected officials probably don't amount to a precinct's worth of votes. But in dollar and cents they do add up.

The first involves Uncle Sam and the way he pay his bills, which is often late. A 1978 General Accounting Office study found that while most businesses pay bills in 30 days or less, Uncle Sam often does not.

This might not seem you to be a serious offense, considering everyone you know is pinched these days. You probably do the same, and when you get dunned or have to pay a fine you accept it as a rule of the game.

Uncle Sam doesn't. He demands interest on payments overdue to him, but he does not reciprocate. He, and practices are particularly reprehensible when interest rates are high, as they are. He contends that "90 percent of the everyday commercial products bought by the federal government come from small dealers, distributors and manufacturers," which means the biggest burden of slow payments falls on relatively small businesses.

All that is sought, said Davis, are "sound business practices" by Uncle Sam.

Something of the same thing is being claimed by the copper industry, which seeks to prevent the Bureau of the Mint from producing zinc pennies. While the concern is pennies, the issue involves at least $200 million of taxpayer's money, says Robert J. Wardell, a copper man.

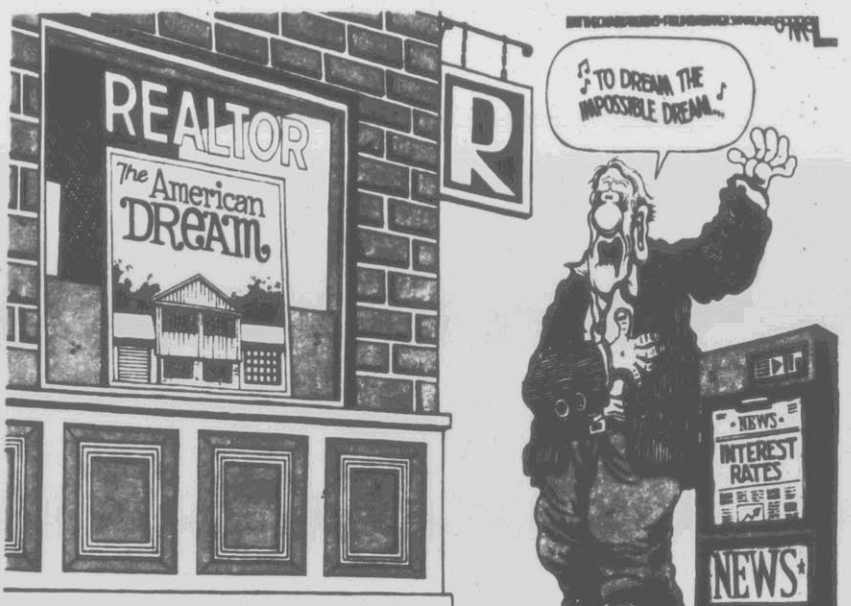

Wardell, president of the Copper & Brass Fabricators Council, sees red. He maintains the change would cost rather than save money, as some government people have claimed. It would, he said, cost hundreds of thousands of dollars in replacement costs, new facilities, pollution control equipment, handling and transportation.

It might also cause hoarding of copper pennies, he says, beginning a litany of liabilities. It would mean shifting from a metal in plentiful supply to one that is 60 percent imported. Conceivably, it could worsen the balance of payments. And the new pennies might even be corrosive.

The two items might seem dissimilar, and in most respects they probably are. But they do share something in common during these days of strained budgets.

That is, Americans these days will fight for every dollar due them, and every red penny too.

Son-in-Law Plans To Quit Court Job

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Wake County juvenile court counselor resigned Thursday amid criticism that he had been given the job on the recommendation of his father-in-law, Bert M. Montague, director of the Administrative Office of the Courts.

John Douglas Smith announced he would resign effective June 5 after a meeting with Montague and chief court counselor Lonnie A. Reynolds.

"It was a joint conclusion," Montague said after the conference. "We all felt that under the circumstances, Doug would not be able to function in his full effectiveness in this office."

Smith said that in light of recent newspaper articles, he decided he should step down. He said that since he started work April 21, he had sensed a tenseness from colleagues who questioned the hiring practice.

On Wednesday, the state Supreme Court criticized Montague for recommending his son-in-law for the job over an applicant with more experience and education who had been recommended by the juvenile court office.

Smith is not the only member of Montague's family who has worked in the judicial department. Earlier Thursday, Montague admitted that between 1973 and 1976 he had hired three other members of his family for temporary work.

Montague said that four times he had hired his daughter, who is married to Smith. He said he also had hired his son during the summer of 1979 and a relative of his wife for about six weeks in 1978.

The court took no action Thursday regarding the hiring of Montague's family members. Chief Justice Joseph Branch said the court decided that because the appointments were temporary, "what has happened is not so bad."

However, in light of the recent disclosures, Branch said he would recommend that the court adopt a policy on the hiring of relatives in the judicial branch.

Unlike other areas of state government, the judiciary is not subject to the State Personnel Act, which forbids family members from working in jobs in which one would have influence over the other, court officials said.

Branch said that Montague informed him that he had been following the provisions in the act but interpreted that policy to mean that two family members could not work in the same division, where one would have direct supervision over another.

"I had the understanding with the personnel department that you could not hire a close relative where one would be in a supervisory role," Montague said. "I do not have a thing to do with Doug."

A 1977 graduate of East Carolina University, Smith has a bachelor's degree in psychology but no prior juvenile court experience. His last job was assistant manager in a women's shoe department.

that there are legislators and others in North Carolina who believe such a tax is a legitimate way to increase revenues. Some observers now believe that Hunt will publicly oppose a tobacco tax; gracefully yield in order to gain legislative approval of most of his package; and let the cigarette tax take the place of such "ifly" suggestions as the severance and rental properties taxes.

More Trouble

With all of those troubles built into the legislative battling, attention continued to focus on problems in the Department of Transportation. Opponents were able to swing away at a four-lane road for Hunt supporter Arthur Williamson of Columbus County; at a high-rise bridge across a drying creek; at $40 million spent for outside consultants to do various design and planning work for the state; at failure of the cash-flow funding system installed by Hunt and Bradshaw to generate added funds — in fact, it cost money because of lower interest collections; at a hefty spending project to protect a magnolia tree; at a 14-member public relations office at Transportation costing better than $300,000 yearly; at rest stops costing nearly $3 million.

Hunt flatly denies that Bradshaw stepped aside to pacify leading legislators. But insiders know that key lawmakers were warning Hunt that Bradshaw was a stumbling block on the access ramp to new highway funds. This may well be only the first of many compromises reached in this toughest of hardball political battles to hit the North Carolina General Assembly in recent years.

Getting back to Cole Porter, I wonder if musk oxen do it.

Maybe a barefoot pharmacist will have to be brought into the musk ox cage to administer ginseng root, powdered water buffalo horn, musk of Manchurian mink and some of the other aphrodisiacs commonly employed in Peking these days to inflame the passions of Chinese citizenry.

Or perhaps, like everything else, spring fever isn't what it used to be.

"It's a good question," said Nelson. "It really doesn't have anything to do with the wedding, does it?"

"Yes and no," said Tuck. "Until Prince Charles announced his engagement, no one much cared if he fell off his horse or not. But now everyone is very concerned when he takes a spill, as it could affect the date of the wedding."

"Then," said Wilkie, "does that mean we can't watch Prince Charles fall off his horse anymore?"

"I think it's best not to," said Novak. "At least until the couple returns from their honeymoon."

"July is going to be the toughest time for everybody," I said. "I don't see how we can keep our vows until then."

"Why don't we all go deer hunting?" Oliphant said. "If we go deep enough into the hills and no one brings a radio, we won't know if they got married or not."

"That's a bully idea," said Tuck. "I've always wanted to go deer hunting out of season."

Nelson raised his glass. "Gentlemen, to the Royal Couple. May they live happily ever after — as long as none of us has to read about the bloody details."

Endorsement

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch endorsed Gov. Jim Hunt's gas tax proposal Thursday as he announced that state general tax and sales tax collections increased during April.

Lynch, appointed by Hunt, departed from his customarily dry, figure-laden revenue report to endorse Hunt's proposal to raise new highway revenue through higher gasoline taxes and other changes.

He said gasoline tax collections have declined for 22 of the past 24 months and he said the General Assembly should take some action to restore highway money.

The state's highway fund collections, primarily from gasoline taxes, fell 3.2 percent in April and 2.9 percent for the year, he said.

The general fund tax collections were $250 million in April, 8 percent over the April 1980 figure, Lynch said.

In March the general tax collections fell slightly compared to March 1980 for the first time in three years. Lynch attributed the decline at the time to an aberration in income tax collections and he said the new figures confirmed that.

For the 10 months of the fiscal year, general tax collections were $2.4 billion, up 7.6 percent over the same figure of the previous year. That figure is almost exactly the amount anticipated in the current state budget, Lynch noted.

But "the most encouraging sign," Lynch said, was that sales and use taxes, an indicator of consumer buying, were up

Jurors Weigh Fate Of The 'Yorkshire Ripper'

LONDON (AP) — The jury in the Yorkshire Ripper trial began deliberations today on whether self-confessed killer Peter Sutcliffe is a murderer or a madman.

Sutcliffe, a 34-year-old truck driver from Bradford, Yorkshire, has admitted killing 13 women and trying to kill seven others in the street attacks that terrorized northern England for five years. But he pleaded guilty only to manslaughter, on grounds of diminished responsibility, or mental incompetence.

The six-man, six-woman jury left the courtroom at 10:21 a.m. (5:21 a.m. EDT) after Judge Sir Leslie Boreham concluded more than seven hours of summing up over two days.

He told each of the jurors to maintain an "open mind" throughout the lengthy summation. "Then you can make quite sure that at least you will have as balanced a view as I am capable of giving you."

Long lines formed outside London's historic Old Bailey central criminal court as people tried to get a seat in the small courtroom for the 14th and perhaps final day of the hearing.

Some 20 women, waving banners declaring "English Collective of Prostitutes," kept up a chant demanding a murder verdict against Sutcliffe, who brutally overpowered his victims with hammer blows, then stabbed and mutilated them with knives and screwdrivers.

The defendant testified during the trial that he heard "God's voice," which told him his mission was to kill prostitutes.

Psychiatrists said he was a paranoid schizophrenic. They said he didn't tell police of his mission when first arrested Jan. 2 because he was trying to hide it.

During hours of cross-examination, the doctors stuck to their diagnosis, while conceding that they might have been duped by Sutcliffe.

If convicted of murder, he faces life imprisonment. He would be sent to a mental institution for an indefinite period if found insane. Britain does not have capital punishment.

By JEFFREY ULBRICH
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — President Francois Mitterrand dissolved the French Parliament today, paving the way for legislative elections in June aimed at electing a leftist majority to help carry through his Socialist program.

The franc firmed on European money markets this morning following the announcement Thursday night by Premier Pierre Mauroy of a tightening of exchange control regulations to shield the franc from what Mauroy called "temporary problems."

The currency had hit a record low of 5.59 per dollar Thursday, dipping below the mark of 5.5894 set in October 1969. On Friday morning, the franc firmed to 5.52-54.

Later today, Mauroy was to announce the composition of his government, which is to take such immediate social measures such as increasing the basic wage and old age pensions, and fight the elections, expected to be held June 14 and 21.

Mitterrand's spokeswoman, Nathalie Duhamel, announced the dissolution of the National Assembly after the new president held formal consultations with the presidents of the Senate, Alain Poher, and the Assembly, Jacques Chaban-Delmas.

The government was getting down to business after Mitterrand's inauguration day of solemn ceremonies and wild street celebrations lasting into the early hours.

Mauroy said the pressure on the franc was not justified by the fundamental trends in the French economy "and by the economic and financial policy to be proposed by the new government."

Since the Socialist Mitterrand defeated conservative President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in the May 10 elections, the franc has been falling steadily and the stock market has declined sharply.

Investors are worried by the new president's economic program, which calls for nationalization of many major industries and financial institutions as well as higher wages for workers and higher taxes on corporations and the wealthy.

In a related development, the Bank of France said today it has raised its discount rate on seven-day treasury bills to a record high 22 percent in what was seen as a bid to help reduce pressure on the franc by making it more attractive to investors.

Mitterrand hopes to reverse the center-right majority in Parliament in elections next month, establishing a Socialist-Communist majority to push through his programs.

The new president officially took office Thursday morning in a 35-minute meeting with Giscard d'Estaing, who then left the Elysee Palace for his country residence.

Before 500 guests in the Elysee Palace, Mitterrand made his first public speech since the election, calling for national reconciliation and stating France's duty "to achieve the new alliance of socialism and freedom."

"There cannot be order and security where injustice reigns, where intolerance governs," he said.

As thousands lined the broad Champs-Elysees avenue, Mitterrand laid a wreath at the tomb of the unknown soldier and welcomed prominent members of the Socialist International who came to Paris to help him celebrate.

After lunch at the presidential palace with about 200 French and foreign personalities, Mitterrand made an official visit to the Paris city hall where he made another call for unity, saying "debate and the expression of differences are legitimate ... but not confrontations, I call for the cohesion of our country."

The day was capped by a ceremony at the Pantheon, where many of France's heroes are buried.

After a ride across central Paris, the president got out of his car and walked the last few blocks to tomb. As the Paris Orchestra played Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, crowds jamming the Rue Soufflot pushed through the barricades and police lines to fall in behind Mitterrand, cheering and chanting in an explosion of joy.

Entering the building, he paid homage to Jean Moulin, a martyr of the French Resistance during World War II, and Socialist pioneer

Jean Jaures, putting red roses on their tombs.

As Mitterrand returned to the Elysee Palace, the celebrations continued in Paris and around the country with dozens of inaugural balls, concerts and parties. Long after midnight, crowds surged through the streets in the Latin Quarter and lines of cars with horns blaring cruised the major boulevards.

Iran Claims Forces Recapture Height

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran claimed its forces recaptured the strategic heights of Mount Allah Akbar from invading Iraqi forces as the Persian Gulf war ended its eighth month.

Mount Allah Akbar overlooks the highway crossroads town of Susangerd a few miles from Iran's western border with Iraq.

More than 300 Iraqi soldiers were killed and 555 captured in the early morning surprise attack along a 100-mile battlefield from Shush to the Mount Allah Akbar area, the official Iranian news agency Pars reported Thursday. Pars cited 23 Iranian deaths in two days of fighting.

A joint military communique said the Iranian forces also destroyed 35 Iraqi tanks and seized large quantities of ammunition from the Iraqis, Pars said.

Iraq made no direct comment on the Iranian claims, but a war communique broadcast by Baghdad Radio acknowledged the large scale fighting around Susangerd.

The reports could not be independently confirmed since neither side allows foreign correspondents into the battle zone.

Iraq invaded Iran on September 22 after abrogating a 1975 treaty placing the border between the two oil giants down the middle of the Shatt-al-Arab waterway. Iraq wants full sovereignty over the waterway, it's only shipping outlet to the Persian Gulf.

HOPE FOR PILGRIMS
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — External Affairs Minister P.V.N. Rao says India wants to resume sending Hindu pilgrims to two holy lakes in China, and he will discuss the matter with Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua next month.

Most Offices Will Be Closed

Most city, county, state and federal offices, with the exception of emergency, fire and police departments, will close May 25 to observe Memorial Day.

According to the Greenville city manager's office, all city offices, including public works, will be closed. Fire and police personnel will be on duty.

With the exception of the Pitt County Board of Education, all offices at the county office building will be closed, said the county manager's office. The landfill will be open and sheriff and deputies will be working.

All state and federal offices will close to observe the state and federal Memorial Day holiday. The North Carolina Highway Patrol, however, will be on duty.

Alford Award Is Established For Program

The establishment and presentation of the first Ott Alford Achievement Award highlighted Pitt County's third annual awards and recognition luncheon held today for supporters of the county's blood program.

Hosted by Pitt County Memorial Hospital, the Medical Society and the Pitt County Chapter of the American National Red Cross, the luncheon honored blood donors from throughout the county who annually support the area's 25 blood drives. Pitt County has an annual goal of 3,500 units of blood. Collections for the fiscal year which ends June 30, 1981 amounted to 4,410, or 126 percent of the goal.

Alford, Pitt County Blood Chairman and superintendent of the Pitt County Schools, was surprised with the presentation of an award named for him, which will be given annually during the recognition luncheon to the individual or group making the most significant contribution to Red Cross Blood Services in the county. The award was established by the American Red Cross Blood Services and the Pitt County Medical Society and was presented to Alford by Dr. E. W. Larkin, who is associated with both organizations.

Alford, who will retire on June 30 as county blood chairman, has provided leadership to the blood program since 1978. He has served, also, on the board of directors of the Pitt County Society for Crippled Children, as chairman of the Cerebral Palsy Drive for Pitt County and as a past member of the board of directors of Pitt County Mental Health Association.

Other groups and individuals recognized included Ed Tadlock, G. Carl Worthington Jr., Joyce Steinbeck, Glenn Cox, Betty Bailey, Tom Baines, Bob Carraway, Empire Brushes Inc., WOOW radio, WNCT-TV and Carolina Today, WCTI-TV, WITN-TV, Ayden-Gritton High School and "The Daily Reflector".

OTT ALFORD

Schmidt Urges Role Of World Power

By MAUREEN SANTINI Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, saying the time is right for nuclear arms talks, is telling President Reagan it is "crucial for the United States to live up to its obligations as a world power."

The chancellor was returning to the White House today for a second round of talks with Reagan. He also was scheduled to address the National Press Club.

As he welcomed Schmidt, Reagan offered an assurance Thursday that the United States intends to pursue "meaningful negotiations" with the Soviet Union to limit nuclear arms in Europe but did not say when.

A senior American official, asked if the chancellor had urged Reagan to speed the nuclear arms talks, said no pressure had been applied, but that the subject may arise in later meetings.

After his meeting with Schmidt today, Reagan departs for a five-day holiday at his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch. Schmidt is returning to West Germany on Saturday.

Under heavy pressure from his political opposition in West Germany, Schmidt was expected to seek an American promise to start the nuclear weapons negotiations with Moscow by early fall.

The United States has said the talks will begin before the end of the year but has set no date.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko are expected to devise a schedule for the talks when they meet in New York for the U.N. General Assembly this fall.

Schmidt and Reagan met privately Thursday in the Oval Office for an hour of what were described as largely symbolic talks. It was their second meeting since Reagan's election, but the first since his inauguration.

Asked by reporters how his negotiations with Reagan were going, the West German leader replied: "Beautiful." Afterward, Schmidt visited Capitol Hill for meetings with the Senate and House foreign affairs committees.

Schmidt told a news conference Thursday night that he suggested to members of Congress that the United States establish a "mini-Marshall plan" for Central America — with the condition that no arms be accepted from outside the area. He said congressmen reacted with interest.

The original Marshall plan, proposed 35 years ago by then-Secretary of State George Marshall, consisted of billions of dollars in U.S. aid — largely grants in the form of food and industrial goods — to the countries of Western Europe. It is widely credited with helping the region recover after the losses suffered in World War II.

Asked if the West Germans and other Europeans would contribute anything to the plan, Schmidt replied: "It would be much more effective if the Americans did it themselves. The Germans already to a great deal, for example, with regard to Poland."

After Schmidt's visit to Capitol Hill, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, quoted him as saying the climate and time were right for arms-control talks.

Percy also said Schmidt praised Reagan's recent nomination of former Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns as ambassador to Bonn.

A high-ranking administration official, who asked not to be identified, said Thursday's wide-ranging conversation between Reagan and Schmidt returned several times to the Middle East and the latest crisis between Israel and Syria.

The official said Reagan believes special U.S. envoy Philip Habib has made "considerable progress" in preventing an outbreak of hostilities as he shuttles back and forth between capitals trying to help the two sides resolve their differences.

At a state dinner Thursday night at the White House, Schmidt praised Reagan's reaffirmation of a U.S. commitment to support a 1979 NATO decision to deploy 572 cruise and Pershing II missiles in Western Europe in 1983. The same NATO action called for U.S.-Soviet talks on nuclear weapons deployment in Europe.

"America's political and military presence in Europe is not only an indispensable condition for the security of West Europeans, it's also an essential element of global security," Schmidt said.

The world economy also was a topic between Reagan and Schmidt, who is known to believe that high interest rates in the United States are hurting Germany, whose economy has turned down sharply in recent months.

But at the banquet, the chancellor praised Reagan for his "great energy and personal commitment" to his economic program. He said

Burglary Arrest Made At House

Greenville Police this morning arrested James Lee Blount, 26 of 1107 West Fourth St., on two counts of first degree burglary and two counts of possession of stolen property.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers were called to the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity house at 409 Elizabeth St. at 5:40 a.m. He said fraternity brothers were holding Blount captive after finding him climbing a flight of stairs in the home with a hammer in his hand.

The chief added that while officers were investigating the incident there, members of the Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity reported their house at 508 West Fifth St. had been entered, and several items taken at the Fifth Street dwelling were recovered from Blount.

Blount was charged with burglary in connection with both cases and with possessing stolen property from the Sigma Tau Gamma home.

Impaired Students Among ECU Grads

ECU News Bureau

Among the 1981 graduates of East Carolina University were four deaf or hearing-impaired students, three of whom received baccalaureate degrees and one, a master's degree in education.

This year's four graduates bring to five the total of ECU graduates with hearing impairments since ECU established its Program for Hearing-Impaired Students in 1977. The program provides classroom sign language interpretation and other services for deaf students.

The 1981 graduates are Edward Nelson Burchette of Winston-Salem (BA, geography) who transferred to ECU from Gallaudet College, Washington, D.C.; Rachael Elizabeth Ramsey of Greensboro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Meinelt of New York, N.Y. (BS, speech, language and auditory pathology); Vexi Allen of Aurora (BA, psychology) and Bryanne Peters of Wilson, a teacher at the Eastern N.C. School for the Deaf (Master of Arts in Education in reading education).

The students were personally greeted by N.C. Gov. James Hunt, who was featured speaker at ECU's 1981 Commencement. The ceremony was interpreted by ECU staff interpreters Michael Ernest and Kathleen Westbrook and student interpreter Dennis Hamrick of Shelby.

Local Legion Plans Service

American Legion Post No. 39 announced plans for the annual Memorial Day service, to be held on the grounds at the Post home on Sunday, May 24 at 3 p.m.

Capt. Harold J. Streeper, USN-Retired, will be the guest speaker for the activities.

The service, a yearly program of Post No. 39, is held to pay honor and tribute to citizens who died in our nation's wars.

The 514th Military Police Co. of the N.C. National Guard and the D. H. Conley High School Junior ROTC will be charge of flag ceremonies. The Rose High School Band, directed by James R. Rodgers, will provide special music for the occasion from 2:30-3 p.m.

The public is invited to attend the activities, beginning with the 2:30 p.m. band concert.

New officers elected to serve the post for the 1981-82 Legion year include: Seth Jones, commander; Lester E. Adams, first vice commander; Eugene M. Sutton, second vice commander; Ernest L. Avery, adjutant and finance officer; Harrold D. Weaver, chaplain; W. Connor Eagles, historian; Phil L. Goodson Jr., sergeant-at-arms; and Walter L. Tucker, service officer.

Elected to one-year terms on the executive committee were Dr. Marshall Helms, Reid W. Tripp and Norman Wilkerson. Outgoing Post Commander James W. Langley Sr. will serve as an ex-officio member.

Rescue Manual By Local People

A revised edition of "The International Manual of Basic Rescue Methods" by former Greenville resident Dawson Nethercutt, has been published.

Nethercutt, head of training for the N.C. Department of Insurance's Fire and Rescue Services division first published the manual in 1975. It has been adopted by the International Rescue and Emergency Care Association, the North Carolina Association of Rescue Squads, and other states as the standard for basic rescue methods.

Photographic illustrations for both the first edition and the revised manual were made by Stuart Savage, staff writer and photographer for "The Daily Reflector", while technical assistance was furnished by Wilburn Small of Greenville, an Insurance Department fire and rescue services instructor.

Nethercutt, Small and Savage are all former members of the Greenville Rescue Squad, and both Nethercutt and Small are former Greenville Fire Department employees.

Some 6,000 of the first edition manuals have been sold to rescue squads, major industries such as Exxon, Mobile, Shell and Amoco Oil refineries and universities such as Princeton, Texas A and M and Western Kentucky.

In addition to users in the United States and Canada, the publication has been purchased by organizations and individuals in such countries as Germany, Japan, England, the Netherlands, Venezuela and Australia.

The 128 page revised edition includes a chapter on rappelling—a technique for descending a rope on a steep or vertical slope or incline and used widely in mountain climbing—the first time detailed instructions and photographic illustrations of the technique have been published.

The printing of the manual was done by Morgan Printers, Inc. of Greenville.

Nethercutt, brother of Paul Nethercutt, assistant chief of the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department, now lives at Route 4, Chapel Hill.

Shift Emphasis In Bid-Rigging Probe

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State prosecutors are shifting the emphasis of their investigation into bid rigging by North Carolina paving companies, the News and Observer of Raleigh reported today.

As a result, the state may seek civil settlements with many companies that have neither been indicted nor convicted of federal antitrust charges.

Previously, the state had sought settlements only with those companies that had been indicted or convicted.

"We wrote to some companies some time ago, suggesting that they come in for a talk," said H. A. Cole, the special deputy attorney general in charge of the state probe. "We've had that on hold, but now that we've caught up with the feds, we're looking at them."

The state has made civil settlements of $6.64 million with 12 paving companies that have pleaded guilty or have been convicted of fixing bids on paving contracts. Three other companies, guilty of similar charges, have not settled.

About 25 companies have been singled out for discussions with the state Department of Justice because "we can't deal with 100 at once," Cole said.

Cole admitted that it was a delicate matter to pose settlement offers to companies that have not been indicted or convicted.

"We're trying to formulate some game plan now," he said.

Softball Coach On Radio Show

Alita Dillon, coach of the East Carolina University women's softball team is the guest Saturday on "ECU Concepts," airing at 9:15 a.m. on WOOV Radio.

The 1981 women's softball team under Coach Dillon finished its season last week ranked number three in the nation in AIAW slow pitch softball. Earlier in the season they had been ranked as high as number one in the country.

Dr. Thomas Brewer, ECU chancellor, is host for the 15 minute weekly series which features interviews with campus and community personalities and with visiting celebrities.

Sacrifices Mark Social Security Plan

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan doesn't like to talk about sacrifices, lowered expectations and such, but sacrifices are the key to his plan to save the Social Security system from its financial troubles.

Those sacrifices, however, fall almost entirely on the generations now working and paying Social Security taxes — the generations whose benefits are years or even decades away.

That facet of the Reagan plan could hold the seeds of serious political trouble and, in the long run, might threaten the basic foundation of faith on which Social Security rests.

Reagan wants to fix the Social Security system by cutting benefits for all future retirees — including reductions of up to 40 percent from current law for those who retire early. As a potential — but not firmly promised — sugar coating on the benefit cuts, Reagan's plan foresees somewhat lower Social Security taxes years in the future.

In line with an oft-repeated campaign promise, Reagan refused to cut retirement benefits now being paid and he refused to change the cost-of-living benefits increases built into current benefits.

To sum it up, Reagan's plan calls for sacrifices by the 114 million Americans who are now working and who hope to eventually retire.

No sacrifices are required of the 36 million or so already receiving benefits.

Politically, those numbers alone make Reagan's plan a chancy one — 114 million potential votes to 36 million potential votes.

But there are other risks in the situation that go beyond even Reagan's political standing.

Higher and higher Social Security taxes paid to trust funds that always seem to be running out of money have triggered resentment and frustration among many workers.

By better than a 3-to-1 margin, today's workers cynically believe they will never see a penny in benefits for all their taxes, that the system will have gone broke long before their retirement, the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

It's not that workers necessarily feel the benefits now being paid are generous. In fact, a poll conducted in late 1979 by Peter Hart Research found more than half of the public saying Social Security benefits are, at best, barely enough for a retired person to pay their bills.

The rub is that workers have seen their paychecks' buying power ravaged by the inflation of the past decade, while watching Social Security benefits rising to keep pace with inflation during much of that time.

Thus, the biggest risk of all with Reagan's proposals is linked to the very nature of the Social Security system.

Despite some widespread misconceptions, the Social Security system is not — and can never be — a pension plan like the ones set up by private companies.

The key difference is this: Not one dime is currently being put aside for anyone's future retirement in the Social Security "trust funds." The taxes now paid by workers just go out the other end of the system in benefit checks.

Therein is the key understanding that supports the whole system. Those who are working now pay taxes to pay benefits to those who aren't working. The expectation, of course, is that today's workers will get benefits themselves when they retire.

As long as the current generations of workers support the retirees through the Social Security tax payments, the system survives.

But Reagan's plan might create new tensions between those paying the taxes and those receiving the benefits. In a system that depends on a delicate political agreement among the generations, such tensions could create enormous problems.

That political agreement has resulted, thus far, in a congressional consensus for the law that requires the overwhelming majority of American wage earners to pay into the system.

But Congress made that law and Congress could change that law if the pressures to do so became great enough.

Fiscal Aspects Of Government To Play Big Role

By SUE FERNALD
Reflector Staff Writer
"During the next decade those involved in the economic and fiscal side of government will have the most important role we've had to play in the history of the state," said Edward Renfrow, state auditor.

Renfrow and his wife, Rebecca, attended a dinner Thursday night given by the Friends of Edward Renfrow of Pitt County, headed by Marvin Little. According to Gwen Canady, a member of Renfrow's staff, the proceeds from the $25-a-plate dinner will be used to "retire his campaign debt" of approximately $15,000 left over from the 1980 primary and general elections.

Representatives from Martin, Harnett, Wayne, Carteret, Onslow, Greene and Wake Counties attended the dinner meeting.

Little, superintendent for the state auditor's Greenville district, presided at the dinner. Ott Alford, Pitt County superintendent of schools, delivered the invocation and Greenville Mayor Don McGlohn welcomed the visitors. He challenged "those of you who are not involved in local government to become involved."

Renfrow outlined the duties of his office, underlining its responsibility to be "a fiscal watchdog over taxes sent to Raleigh."

Renfrow cited three questions he said the auditor's office, government and the public must ask themselves to insure economic stability: 1, how much government is enough; 2, how much government (programs and services) can we afford, and 3, how can we fund programs from reliable sources and insure them working in a responsible way?

"It's just not fair to crank in programs in excess of a rate we're not able to maintain. The people of the state are ready to see things plane out," Renfrow said.

"Of course, we have problems," he commented. "Since I was a little boy I can never remember when there weren't."

Lodge Planning An Observance

The Winterville Masonic Lodge No. 232 has scheduled a weekend of activities in observance of St. John's Day, the day recognizing biblical characters in masonry.

Friday at 8 p.m. a regular communication will be held at W.H. Robinson School, Winterville. All master masons are invited.

On Saturday beginning at 7:30 p.m. there will be work in the third degree at Robinson school gym. Candidates for the third degree are: Willie Reid, Johnny Edwards, Harvey Hammond, Joe Louis Brock, Zevandah Mobley, Rayfield Vines, Guy Ingram, William Gorham, Leslie Koonce, Carlton Parker, Johnny Mack Frank. District deputy Lonnie B. Anderson will confer the degrees. All Master Masons are invited.

Sunday at 7 p.m., a St. John worship service will be held at Mt. Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church in Winterville. The Rev. Maurice Laws, pastor, will deliver the message, assisted by the Rev. David Hammond.

Music will be presented by the Maurice Laws Gospel Chorus.

Calvin C. Henderson, master, invites the public to attend.

beginning May 25 at the Pactolus Volunteer Fire Department. Classes will meet from 7-10 p.m. on May 25-28.

EDWARD RENFROW

Renfrow said his conception of the importance of his job has changed since the election.

"I didn't think state auditor was a very important position when I was running. I didn't realize how important it was, until I was on the job for a few days," he explained.

Today Renfrow was to go before the General Assembly to ask for extra manpower for his department.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by Teresa Little on the piano and Rose High School students. Rose student Karen Wheeler sang "More," "You Light Up My Life" and "The Grand Old Flag." She was accompanied by Tim Shank on "I'm Past My Prime" from the schools recent production of "Li'l Abner." Linda Davis accompanied them on the piano.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

MEAT AND MILK NOT TO BE EATEN AT THE SAME MEAL!

THREE TIMES THE BIBLE SPECIFICALLY STATES "THOU SHALT NOT SEETHE (BOIL) A KID IN HIS MOTHER'S MILK." (EXODUS 23:19, EXODUS 34:26, DEUT. 14:21). THIS WAS GOD'S LAW LAID DOWN TO ISRAEL BY MOSES AND, TO THIS DAY, THE ORTHODOX HAVE NO MEAT AND MILK AT THE SAME MEAL. MANY PEOPLE THINK THIS WAS A DIETARY LAW—THAT MILK AND MEAT TOGETHER WOULDN'T DIGEST WELL, ESPECIALLY IN THE HOT DESERT CLIMATE—WHICH IS NONSENSE! MILK AND MEAT, BOTH HIGH PROTEIN FOODS, DIGEST AS EASILY TOGETHER AS THEY DO APART—HOT WEATHER OR COLD... BUT THERE WAS A GOOD REASON, IN MOSES' EYES, FOR THIS LAW—VERY UNDERSTANDABLE WHEN WE EXAMINE A CUSTOM OF THE IDOL WORSHIPERS WITH WHOM THE ISRAELITES CAME INTO CONTACT IN THEIR DAILY LIVING....

MOSES CONSTANTLY ADMONISHED HIS PEOPLE TO STAY PURE IN GOD'S EYES—TO HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH HEATHEN IDOLATERS. THE YOUNG MEN WERE FORBIDDEN TO "GO WITH THE DAUGHTERS OF BAAL," WHICH MANY OF THEM DID! MOSES COULD FORESEE THE DANGER OF HIS YOUNG NATION DISAPPEARING FROM EARTH, NOT BY WAR, BUT BY THE SIMPLE PROCESS OF INTER-MARRIAGE—SO HE ORDERED ISRAEL TO AVOID ALL CUSTOMS OF THEIR HEATHEN NEIGHBORS TO FORESTALL ANY OF THEIR WAYS CREEPING INTO THE LIVES OF HIS PEOPLE. JUST AS ISRAELITES BROUGHT SACRIFICES TO GOD'S ALTAR, SO DID THE HEATHEN TO THEIR IDOLS—A POPULAR OFFERING WAS A TASTY DISH OF BOILED YOUNG KID OR LAMB IN ITS MOTHER'S MILK (OR ANY MILK FOR THAT MATTER). THE MEAT JUICE AND THE MILK BOILED INTO A SAVORY SAUCE SO DELICIOUS THAT THE PRIESTS AND TEMPLE PROSTITUTES COULD HARDLY WAIT TO GRAB AND EAT IT BEFORE THE DONOR, WHO HAD BROUGHT IT, LEFT THE TEMPLE!

NEVER A DAY WENT BY THAT SOME HEATHEN FAMILY DIDN'T TURN UP AT THE TEMPLE WITH THIS DELECTABLE DISH, CONVINCED THEIR GODS WOULD ENJOY IT AND SO SMILE DOWN ON THEM WITH FAVOR! IS IT ANY WONDER, THEN, THAT MOSES ORDERED HIS PEOPLE TO HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH THIS DISH AT ANY TIME—EVER! THE IDEA THAT SOME ISRAELITE MIGHT OFFER TO GOD THE SAME THING THAT WAS GIVEN TO A STONE IDOL WAS UNTHINKABLE! YE SHALL NOT DO AS THE HEATHEN DO, WAS THE ORDER OF THE DAY SO THAT ISRAEL MIGHT CONTINUE... "A PECULIAR (SPECIAL) PEOPLE... ABOVE ALL THE NATIONS THAT ARE UPON THE EARTH." (DEUT. 14:2)

NEXT WEEK: GIANTS THEN AND NOW!

If You Have a Habit Of Following The Crowd, We Suggest, The Best Crowd to Follow is the Crowd Going To Church

Opening Door To Other Priests

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Under guidance of an ecumenically minded bishop, the U.S. Roman Catholic Church is starting to process applications from married, former Episcopal clergy to become Roman Catholic priests.

BISHOP B.F. LAW

They're to be admitted while maintaining their marital status, and those who wish to do so may continue some aspects of their former church's ways of worship. It's the first time these features have been extended to non-members entering Roman Catholicism in this country.

But the procedure in no way diminishes Roman Catholic efforts toward re-union with Episcopal and other churches, says Bishop Bernard F. Law of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Mo., picked to handle the new processing.

"We want to act with utmost ecumenical sensitivity," he said in a telephone interview. Although a few, individual Episcopal leaders initially saw the plan as competitive, the misgivings have eased. "The Catholic Church is committed to ecumenical dialogue with the Episcopal Church, nationally and internationally," said Law, an experienced veteran of ecumenical work for Christian unity.

"I am committed to it and I trust in its ultimate fulfillment. My hopes and dreams regarding that dialogue are unabated. At the same time, we have a responsibility to respond to those who as a matter of conscience want to become part of the Roman Catholic Church."

Accepting newcomers from other churches is "nothing new," Law noted. It's everyday policy of all churches, Catholic, Protestant and Eastern Orthodox.

As for the dissatisfied former Episcopal priests or laity seeking entry into Roman Catholicism, Law said they are to be taken on a case-by-case basis "by the conscientious, free decision of each individual."

What's new, under the Vatican's authorization of last year, is the provision for retaining some earmarks of Episcopal worship in cases of whole congregations, and allowing married priests as motives, academic work, baptism and ordination. A written and oral examination also is to be given. Depending on the line of succession of Episcopal bishops who had ordained the applicant, he then will be ordained, conditionally or definitively, as a Roman Catholic priest.

Law, working with several other bishop consultants and with a former Episcopal priest, the Rev. James Parker from Albany, Ga., as an assistant, is to process each case, and forward it to the Vatican's doctrinal congregation for approval.

Those parishes may retain a "common identity reflecting certain elements of their own heritage," according to the Vatican provision. Details of the features still are being developed.

The parishes "will be fully in the Roman Catholic Church," Law said. "But elements of life and worship will carry forward their tradition."

Priest applicants make their requests to local Catholic bishops, who prepare dossiers on background, marital state, spiritual and psychological status.

Law noted that acceptance of married Episcopalians as Catholic priests does not mean any change in the church's regular requirement of priestly celibacy.

Although Roman Catholicism in some European countries has a few married, ex-Protestants who have become priests, and also married priests in its Eastern Rite, it has previously had none in the Western Rite in the United States.

Salaries for the married ex-Episcopalians doubtless will have to be higher than for celibate priests, Law said. "If not, it would be another miracle. They will be adequately compensated to take care of their families, and financial assurances made for their retirement."

Cites Risks Of Mideast War

By BRYAN BRUMLEY
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev said today "flames of war" threaten the Middle East, and repeated his desire for international conferences on the Arab-Israeli conflict, the Persian Gulf region and the civil war in Afghanistan.

"What is happening in the Middle East is profoundly tragic and dangerous," Brezhnev said in a nationally televised speech from Tbilisi, capital of the Georgian Soviet Republic.

"One miscalculation and the flames of war could sweep the entire Mideast region. And it is not known how far the sparks of this fire could scatter," he said.

The Soviet leader said tension in the Persian Gulf region "is being sharpened because Washington is trying to bring gross pressure on Iran and organize intervention against the Afghan revolution. The strain is aggravated by the unprecedented concentration of military forces of the United States in the entire region."

Iran has been fighting Iraq, a Soviet ally, for eight months. The Soviet Union has based at least 85,000 troops in Afghanistan since January 1980 to help the pro-Soviet Afghan regime battle anti-communist Moslem rebels.

Brezhnev's speech underlined separate Soviet campaigns to regain lost diplomatic ground in the Middle East and gain international recognition for the Afghan regime of Babrak Karmal.

His proposal for a Mideast conference is certain to open up next Tuesday when Jordan's King Hussein begins a three-day visit to the Soviet capital, his first since 1976. Hussein, a staunch U.S. ally, is considered an essential player in any comprehensive regional settlement because of the large number of Palestinians living in Jordanian territory bordering Israel.

Moscow has consistently opposed the 1978 Camp David accord involving the United States, Egypt and Israel, and has sought to reassert itself in Mideast negotiations.

Brezhnev called for a conference "to reach an agreement separately on insuring peace and security in the Persian Gulf region, and also separately on settlement of the situation around Afghanistan. Or to discuss the international aspects of both these questions."

Western governments have opposed such a conference on grounds it would be seen as an implicit international endorsement of the Karmal regime set up with Soviet intervention in December 1979.

Brezhnev and Soviet Defense Minister Dmitri Ustinov were in Tbilisi to mark the 60th anniversary of the Georgian Republic.

Court Declines Cut Sentence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Supreme Court has refused to cut eight months from the sentence of Dan White, who was convicted of gunning down the mayor and a supervisor in their City Hall offices.

The court, without comment Thursday, denied a request from White to strike down one of the two additional terms that was tacked on to his sentence because he used a gun to kill Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk.

White contended it was unjust for a judge to penalize him twice for using a gun to kill the two men because he only used one gun. He was sentenced in July 1979 to seven years, eight months in prison.

Herring Harvest Is Lowest Ever Spent 4 Days Lost In Swamp

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — The state's river herring harvest was the lowest ever, and biologists are blaming dry weather and pollution from a Virginia pulp mill.

The spring harvest totaled about 4.3 million pounds, down 2 million from last year.

Michael W. Street of the state Division of Marine Fisheries said state agencies are investigating the possibility that the poor harvest in the Chowan River is related to a discharge from a Union-Camp paper mill on a tributary of the river in Virginia.

The spring harvest totaled about 4.3 million pounds, down 2 million from last year.

Police say Ms. Kosty, 35, of Painted Post, N.Y., was found Tuesday by searchers in the 700-acre Fox River Swamp in central Wisconsin. They said she apparently had fallen asleep while she was driving to Gillette, Wyo., to visit her fiancé, struck her head on the steering wheel and crashed into a ditch.

She wandered into the swamp, officials said. She was reported in good health when found by rescuers. Her fiancé flew to Wisconsin and together they headed west.

Heavy Losses In Onslow Hail Barge Ran Into A Drawbridge

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The hail that pelted northwest Onslow County with golf-ball-sized hailstones on Tuesday caused $2.25 million in damage to almost 10,000 acres of crops, said county extension agent Dan Baucom.

The county's second hailstorm of the spring destroyed about 500 acres of tobacco, 3,000 acres of corn, 5,000 acres of wheat and numerous spring gardens, he said.

The hailstones also damaged rooftops, mobile homes and vehicles, Baucom said.

The incident also stopped all traffic on N.C. Highway 101 for most of the day, but the road was expected to be open today.

The accident occurred about 1:45 a.m. when a tugboat pushed two barges approached the bridge. One of the barges drifted off course and collided with the bridge, the spokesman said.

Lennon Murder Trial Postponed

NEW YORK (AP) — The murder trial of Mark David Chapman, accused of gunning down ex-Beatle John Lennon, has been postponed until June 22.

Agreement to delay the trial, originally set to begin June 1, was reached at a meeting Thursday between defense attorneys and Manhattan Assistant District Attorney Allen Sullivan.

Celebs Chosen Year Fathers

NEW YORK (AP) — Former hostage L. Bruce Laingen, theatrical producer Joseph Papp, television anchorman Dan Rather and boxer Sugar Ray Leonard were among the men selected as "Fathers of the Year" by the National Father's Day Committee.

Richard A. Vande Sande, an electrician from Burlington, Wis., was chosen Thursday as "Working Father of the Year." He was nominated by his children.

Laingen, who was in charge of the U.S. Embassy in Iran when it was seized by students in November 1979, said he accepted the award "in the name of all the fathers in Tehran whose children missed them all the 444 days" the Americans were held hostage.

Others selected as Fathers of the Year were: Robert W. DeBolt, who has adopted 20 children; actor Richard Thomas; federal Housing Secretary Samuel R. Pierce; former football great Kyle Rote; actor John Rubinstein; entertainer Tom Jones; director Geoffrey Holder; and columnist George Will.

Another Bribe Count Lodged

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Angelo Errichetti of Camden, N.J., who was convicted of bribery and conspiracy in the Abscam probe, has been indicted on new bribery charges in connection with sewer projects.

The indictment returned Thursday by a federal grand jury accused him of traveling and aiding others to travel to promote bribery.

The indictment claims Errichetti was bribed on federally subsidized sewer projects by co-defendants Charles Walsh and Vincent J. Cuti.

Yellow Jackets Blank Chargers In Playoff Opener

By RICK SCOPPE
 Reflector Sports Writer
ROANOKE RAPIDS — Roanoke Rapid right-hander Chubby Butler accomplished something Thursday night no other pitcher was able to this season against Ayden-Grifton. He shut out the Chargers.

The shutout could not have come at a more opportune time for the Yellow Jackets, or a more inopportune time for the Chargers.

Roanoke Rapids combined Butler's three-hit shutout with three unearned runs in the fifth inning to defeat Ayden-Grifton, 3-0, last night at Doyle Field in the opening round of the state 3-A playoffs.

Butler, who has already signed a letter-of-intent with East Carolina, struck out 10 and walked five for his 13th win in 16 outings this season. Despite getting only three hits off

Butler, the Chargers, who end the season at 14-10, had their chances, leaving at least one runner stranded in every inning.

In the fourth, Ayden-Grifton had runners at second and third with no outs only to exit the inning without a runner crossing homeplate. In the sixth, the Chargers had runners at first and second with no outs but again failed to score.

"We just couldn't get a hit to drop in when we needed it," Ayden-Grifton coach Allan Wilson said. "If we had just had a couple more hits we might have come away with the win."

"In fact, we gave them more trouble and had more situations to score than they did. We just couldn't get the hits when we needed them."

Neither could the Yellow Jackets, that is until the fifth inning, when the Yellow Jackets finally broke through against Ayden-Grifton left-hander Tyrone Gay.

Gay, a sophomore, was touched for four hits while striking out seven and walking four en route to his fifth loss in 14 decisions this season. He pitched well enough to win, but three unearned runs in the fifth proved the difference in this tense battle played before a large, vocal crowd.

Mike Massey, the Yellow Jackets' #8 hitter, led off the fifth with a walk. Chip Edwards then popped out to Gay on an attempted sacrifice bunt and Chris Wray struck out.

Tim Hux then sent a slow dribbler toward third that A-G third baseman Joey Kennedy raced forward to field only but threw off-balance and wildly past first base to give the Yellow Jackets runners at second and third.

Butler was then intentionally walked to load the bases and up came Carpenter, Roanoke Rapids' #4 hitter. Carpenter, who tripled in the second, worked the count to 3-2 and then lined a double into the right-centerfield gap to score all three runners and give the Northeastern Conference champions a 3-0 lead with two innings left.

"I know Butler's a good hitter, but I walked him to set up the force play," Wilson said. "The infield can play back and knock down a hard grounder and get the force out and get us out of the inning. But that double hurt us."

The pain became more severe in the top of the sixth. Terry Locust walked and Chuck Smithwick singled to give the Chargers runners at first and second and none out. But Gay flew out to center and Brandt Allen and Art Rouse struck out to end the threat.

In the seventh, Butler struck out Doug Coley and Kennedy and then gave up a walk to Chris Strickland before striking out Bernard Ricciarelli to end the game and the season for Ayden-Grifton.

"Coming up here we knew Roanoke Rapids had a good team and an overpowering pitcher," Wilson said. "But I think we were ready."

A-G's Strickland opened the game by reaching on an error by first baseman Chip Edwards. But was forced at second on Ricciarelli's bunt. Locust then flew out to leftfield and Ricciarelli, tagging up on the play, was out at second for what appeared the final out.

But, after the Chargers had taken the field, the umpires ruled that Massey, RR's leftfielder, was out of bounds when he threw the ball. Locust's out still stood, but Ricciarelli was given second. Butler quickly ended the inning — again — when he struck out Smithwick.

One inning later the Yellow Jackets appeared set to take the lead. Leading off the second, Carpenter rapped a liner into centerfield that Art Rouse misjudged. The ball rolled to the fence and Carpenter wound up with a triple.

Weisner then walked and stole second to give Roanoke Rapids runners at first and second with no outs. But Gay then struck out Griff Burgwyn and Greg Clifton and induced Massey to ground out to short to get out of the inning safely.

In the fourth, the roles were reversed but the results were the same. Smithwick led off with a walk, stole second and went to third on Gay's single — A-G's first hit of the night off Butler.

Larry Edwards, running for Gay, then stole second, the throw having been cut off by Butler. Butler whipped the ball to third baseman Tim Hux who tagged out Smithwick. Allen and Rouse struck out to end the inning.

"I had just told him to make the throw go through," Wilson said. "I told him if the throw went through to go. The ball was thrown hard and evidently he thought the ball was going through and took off. It was too late then to get back."

Roanoke Rapids threatened in the bottom of the fourth. With one gone, the Yellow Jackets Weisner ripped a double down the third baseline and went to third on a passed ball. Burgwyn then walked and stole second.

But Weisner was tagged out in a rundown after Clifton missed the ball on a suicide squeeze. Gay then struck out Clifton to end the inning.

One inning later the Chargers were not as fortunate, as the Yellow Jackets scored three times. It was all the runs Butler needed.

Rose Second In East Regional Meet

WILSON — Rose High School advanced seven individuals and one relay team to the State High School Track and Field Championships yesterday, and finished second in the team standings on the Eastern Regional.

Rose took two firsts to finish second in the team standings behind strong Northern Durham. Northern completed the meet with 84 points, while Rose had 53. Ahsokie finished third with 39.

The only other area team in competition was Roanoke, which collected six points, as Donnie Wallace took third place in the shot put with a toss of 55 feet, 3 inches.

The top four in each event qualify for the state meet next week on Thursday.

Mike Thurber set a new school record in winning the pole vault competition with a leap of 14 feet. Erskin Evans then won the 100-meter dash in 10.4 to give Rose its two wins.

Evans also finished third in the 200-meter with a time of 21.8 seconds.

Harry Williams joined Evans in being a double qualifier. He finished third in the 1600-meter runs in 4:20.0, and was third in the 3200-meter run in 9:31.5. Kenny Smith also qualified in the 1600, finishing fourth in 4:22.8.

The 880-yard relay team of Roderick Harrell, Tyrone Forbes, David Sherrod and Edward Frazier finished second in 1:28.2 to also grab a spot in the finals.

Chris McLawhorn finished sixth in the long jump with a leap of 22-7, and the 440-yard relay team of Harrell, Sherrod, Frazier and Evans finished fifth in 43.4 seconds, but did not qualify.

Conley Gains Playoff Berth

HOLLYWOOD — Karen Barrett's sacrifice fly in the seventh brought home the tying run and the winning run followed on an error as D.H. Conley nipped Greene Central, 9-8, Thursday afternoon in a one-game playoff for the right to advance to the state playoffs.

The Valkyries and the Lady Rams tied for the Eastern Carolina Conference regular season title and were forced into a one-game playoff yesterday. The win by Conley moves it into the playoffs against Eastern Wayne. The game site and time have yet to be determined.

Barrett's sacrifice fly scored Tammy Streefer from third to tie the game at 8-8 in the bottom of the seventh. The Lady Rams misplayed the throw to the plate, allowing Lisa Hardy to score the winning run.

Greene Central led, 4-2, after the first inning but the Valkyries tied the game at 6-6 after two innings. Conley then went ahead with a run in the third only to have the Lady Rams regain the lead in the fifth with two runs.

Two innings later, the Valkyries erased that deficit to win the game and a playoff berth.

Greene Central was led at the plate by Letha Taylor, who was three of three, and Netha Lane, who was two of three. Conley did not have anyone with more than one hit.

New York Downs North Stars, 5-1

Islanders Capture Cup

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Long before the final buzzer had sounded, fans of the New York Islanders roared their approval and the players began the ritual of congratulatory handshakes and hugs.

The Islanders dissected the Minnesota North Stars 5-1 Thursday night to win their second consecutive National Hockey League Stanley Cup championship, taking four of the five games in convincing fashion.

"It was a helluva lot more fun this way," said Bob Bourne, referring to last year's title, which ended after six games when Bob Nystrom scored in overtime.

"The last five minutes we had nothing at stake," Bourne said. "We knew we were going to win the game and the Cup."

Sparked by Butch Goring, who won the Conn Smythe Trophy as most valuable player in the playoffs, New York built a lead of 3-0 before the North Stars were able to score. The Islanders, in fact, dominated from start to finish, and probably earned the respect they felt was missing for much of the season.

"It means last year was no fluke," said Bryan Trotter. "And we're still hungry. It's a great feeling."

Minnesota avoided the embarrassment of a four-game sweep by winning 4-2 Tuesday night in Game 4. But there was little doubt about the outcome Thursday, especially when New York exploded for a 3-1 first-period lead.

"I've seen the guys up before," said Clark Gillies, "but never like tonight in the first period. Butchie told me he wasn't going to play more than five games, so it's a good thing we won tonight."

Goring opened the scoring at 5:12 of the first period with a power play goal, the first of his two goals in the game.

With rookie Brad Palmer off for holding, Goring took a pass from Bourne at the right faceoff circle and drilled a slapshot past Don Beaupre, Minnesota's 19-year old goaltender.

Just 25 seconds later, John Tonelli slipped a pass from behind the net to Wayne Merrick and Merrick banged it past Beaupre for a 2-0 lead.

Strike Deadline Seven Days Away

NEW YORK (AP) — On the anniversary of a marathon negotiating session which prevented a strike in 1980, baseball is just seven days away from another scheduled walkout which could shut down the sport.

The difference is that a year ago, management negotiator Ray Grebey was a lonesome voice of optimism surrounded by gloom. He kept declaring then that there would be no strike. This time, he's not so sure.

The two sides talked for the better part of 19 hours on deadline day last year before hammering out a settlement. But Grebey always felt there was room for a settlement then.

"There were 100 issues on the table then and, with that much room to move, it was unrealistic to be so certain there would be a strike," he said. "But now, we have only one issue. I'm not optimistic about the situation. Right now, I'm very pessimistic."

Grebey went back to the bargaining table with Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, today after both sides reported no progress Thursday.

The players reported no enthusiasm for changes in the compensation clause which management offered earlier this week.

Grebey would not term the changes a new proposal, describing them as "alternatives."

"What we said is we've taken our best shot, put all we have and all we know on the table," he said. "If they like it, we'd be glad to substitute it for what is already in the basic agreement."

The players, however, don't like it.

"We need a workable definition of who's in the (ranking) group," said Miller. The players have offered a plan whereby no more than 5 percent of free agents would require compensation. The owners' plan calls for 50 percent.

"We're not saying our 5 percent is scientific or exact," Miller continued. "We are saying that 50 percent is absurd."

Grebey said the atmosphere at the bargaining table has been gloomy.

"In the opinion of my committee, the association has set a standard for settlement which is both unrealistic and unattainable, a plan on paper only with no practical application," he said. "Their goal is a clause that would not impact on a single player. While the players association may say it is interested in compromise, the only compromise they will accept is elimination of compensation for ranking-free agents or not having any ranking free agents at all. That's not the kind of compensation acceptable to the 26 clubs."

Tires The Topic At World 600

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tires and handling problems were the primary topics of discussion during Thursday's qualifying for NASCAR's World 600 at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

One of the drivers least bothered by tire problems was polewinner Neil Bonnett, who put his Wood-Brothers-prepared Thunderbird on the pole with an average speed of 158.115 mph.

"The car ran real good," said Bonnett. "The tires were different than we expected. But they were still real good. In last year's World 600, we used 57 tires. The new tires may knock the top off the 160 mph laps, but it will make more an even and more competitive race."

But even one of the more successful drivers was given a gloomy forecast for Sunday's race.

"It's going to be rough Sunday," said Dale Earnhardt, the day's fifth fastest qualifier.

"You're not going to have your car tight and confident." Many drivers had handling problems, and though they reported one cause was oil on the track, most cited tires as the major problem.

"We knew speeds were going to be slow, but not that slow," said third-fastest Richard Petty. "The tires are harder and the cars are not handling as well. They (Goodyear) wanted to solve a problem, so they got the harder tires and now they handle worse."

"We're not running a bad tire," said Earnhardt. "It's just a hard one. And it's cutting down speeds because the track is also cured out from last year. Dale Inman and Doug Richert have slung in every spring and their hasn't been much change. All you can do is use your foot and your head and hope you don't bust your fanny. I imagine there are a few drivers around dreading this race."

"We'd run one good lap with the engine and then a bad one, so that proves the car wasn't handling," Petty said. "But everyone is having problems. We're using the shorter cars and the tires aren't as good as last year."

The late model sportsman cars, which qualified for Saturday's Mello Yellow 300 after the Grand Nationals, used a softer compound tire with 11 drivers posting faster speeds than Bonnett.

Prequalification changes for Bonnett's car were virtually nonexistent.

"My car is handling with a quality setup," Bonnett said. "It's a pretty reckless setup. We made a little adjustment this morning to tighten it up and it pushed a little bit. But our car was first in line and first for inspection. After that we didn't make a change. We were ready."

"The tires simply are not working as good," Petty added. "It's the same compound as last year, but a different carcass."

Petty was knocking at the door for a 158 mph lap his first two circuits before dropping to 156.418 the third time around. He finished third fastest at 157.305.

"That's what happened the third lap," he said. "I lost it and made a whole lot of slide. I thought the first two laps felt pretty good, the third pretty bad and the fourth only fair. We've still got a long way to go to get the car ready."

"I got loose on the first lap," said Cale Yarborough, the second fastest qualifier at 157.512. "I didn't know how hard I could drive the rest of the way. As it turned out, it got better. If I had known it would be better, I would have stuffed the car down in there a bit faster. But that's one of those things you have no way of knowing."

"I've been real pleased with the car," Yarborough said. "We've blown the doors off all year, but we've had a bunch of bad luck. If we'd had good luck

Islanders Win Cup...

At 10:03, Goring notched his 10th goal of the playoffs for an insurmountable 3-0 bulge.

"In the first period, we didn't do what we did so well in Minnesota," said Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor. "We were kind of staring at the puck instead of picking up loose people."

Steve Christoff scored for Minnesota at 16:06, trimming the margin to two goals, but the rest of the game belonged to New York.

The Islanders outshot the North Stars 16-4 in the second period and almost came away empty-handed before Bourne scored from the faceoff circle at 19:21 after Minnesota failed to clear the puck from behind its net.

"That was the real turning point," said Beaufre. "Until then we still had a shot."

If a three-goal lead wasn't enough, Mike McEwen took care of that with his sixth goal of the playoffs with only 2:54 remaining in the game.

But by then, the Islanders were already celebrating.

"It's sweeter than last year," declared Islanders' Coach Al Arbour. "Last year we had a taste of it, but it tastes so much better this time."

"It's a little different this year because we were expected to win," said record-setting Mike Bossy. "But it's still exciting. We realize that we've got a great team."

Bossy's assist on Goring's second goal gave him 35 points in the playoffs, a Stanley Cup record and tying his previous total playoff production.

Trotter scored in his 18th consecutive playoff game, also a record for one season, and 25 games over two seasons.

Rampants' Talbert Falls In Regionals

KINSTON — Rose High School's Larry Talbert bowed out in the second round of the Eastern Regional Tennis Tournament yesterday in Kinston.

Talbert had a bye in the first round of the event, but then lost to number one seeded Clint Mathers of Southern Pines. Mathers won the match, 6-3, 6-2.

Mathers is ranked fifth in the state among 18 and under tennis players.

Brown Wins Putt-Putt

Mike Brown finished with a flurry of aces to win the weekly Thursday night Amateur Tournament at the Greenville Putt-Putt Golf Course.

Brown became the seventh Thursday night champ this season as no one has been able to repeat.

Robert Beacham came in second, two strokes behind the winner with a 67. Tim Allen won a sudden death playoff from Duane Grooms for third place after they tied with 71's. Bobby Beacham and Greg Melton split fifth place with 72's.

Rose Nine Faces Vital Div. I Game

Rose High School's baseball game with Northeastern was postponed yesterday and will be played today at 2:30 p.m. in Elizabeth City.

Meanwhile, Northern Nash downed Wilson Hunt, 4-2, and clinched at least a tie for first place in the Division I final standings. Should Rose win today, the two would be knotted for first. A Rose loss, however, would award Northern the title.

Since the league has only one playoff spot available this year, a tie would bring about a playoff on Saturday. That is scheduled for 2 p.m. in Fleming Stadium in Wilson. A $2 admission charge will be made for spectators.

The conference winner will host Wilmington Hoggard in the first round of the 4-A playoffs.

Rau, Angels Snap Birds' Winning Streak

By The Associated Press
It was a long time between wins for Doug Rau — two years and 10 days — but it was worth waiting for.

The 32-year-old left-hander's career appeared to be history when he was released by the Los Angeles Dodgers over the winter after more than a year of recuperation from rotator cuff surgery. He had not won a game since May 11, 1979.

But the California Angels, desperate for pitching, gave him a shot in the minors and brought him up earlier this month. Rau paid his first dividend Thursday night, yielding five hits in five innings — no walks, one strikeout — in the Angels' 2-0 triumph over Baltimore that snapped the Orioles' eight-game winning streak.

"I don't expect any great things," Rau said. "The best thing that could have happened was to get on the 'W' side of the ledger. I didn't have great stuff, but it was better than I had in Detroit." The Tigers shelled him in the fourth inning last Saturday. The Angels got the only run they needed off Jim Palmer on Dan Ford's fourth-inning homer. Ed Ott singled home another run in the seventh.

"I tried to convince myself that I would get back last year, but I was fooling myself," said Rau, who sat out the 1980 season. "I was depressed and disappointed when the Dodgers let me go. I wasn't bitter, but I was confused why they didn't give me through spring training this year instead of releasing me in February after being with the organization 11 years."

Baltimore pitching coach Ray Miller said Rau "spotted the ball well in the first three innings. In the last two, he got the ball up and we hit it hard. He looks like a guy coming off of arm trouble, but he has experience and poise and could help that club."

Don Aase worked the last four innings to pick up his fourth save.

Red Sox 3, A's 0
Jim Rice lined a three-run homer with none out in the ninth inning and Dennis Eckersley pitched a two-hitter and struck out 12. Oakland's Brian Kingman scattered five hits before faltering in the ninth. Dwight Evans led off with a single and Carl Yastrzemski, after failing to sacrifice, also singled. Rice then drilled the next pitch for his fifth homer.

Eckersley allowed only an infield hit by Brian Doyle in the third inning, a double by Tony Armas in the fourth and five walks in winning at home for the first time in nine starts since last Aug. 10. His 12 strikeouts were the most by a Boston pitcher since Luis Tiant had the same number in 1976.

Brewers 8, Twins 2
Gorman Thomas drove in five runs with a pair of homers, his 10th and 11th of the year, giving him the AL lead. Pete Vuckovich allowed one run and eight hits in seven innings in winning his fourth consecutive decision. Milwaukee took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Thomas walked and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ted Simmons. The Brewers erupted for five runs in the third, three on Thomas' first homer.

Mariners 6, Indians 3
Glenn Abbott, Jerry Don Gleaton and Larry Andersen combined to scatter nine hits and Jerry Narron drove in three runs to pace a 14-hit Seattle attack. Cleveland took a 2-0 lead in the first inning but the Mariners tied it in the second on a walk, Dan Meyer's double, an infield hit by Tom Paciorek that loaded the bases, Dave Henderson's sacrifice fly and a grounder by Narron. They took a 3-2 lead in the third when Dave Edler, Bruce Bochte and Burroughs drilled consecutive singles, and they chased Wayne Garland in the fourth when Paciorek singled, stole second and scored on a single by Narron.

Cubs 5, Reds 1
Leon Durham smashed a three-run homer, a double and a pair of singles and rookie Randy Martz pitched a seven-hitter, his first complete game in the majors and the first of the season for the Cubs' beleaguered pitching staff. The triumph was only the sixth of the season for the Cubs, who have lost 27.

Durham's homer, his third of the season, came off Frank Pastore in the sixth inning after Joe Strain and Bill Buckner singled. Durham also doubled and scored in the second inning and singled to set up a run in the eighth.

Cardinals 3, Astros 1
Rookie John Martin fired a four-hitter and the Cardinals converted four hits and two Houston errors into a 3-1 victory. Martin, a 25-year-old left-hander who started the season in the minors, outdueled Nolan Ryan, who left after 62.3 innings.

"He (Martin) had more complete games than anybody in our organization," Manager Whitey Herzog said. "His chances of pitching a complete game were good because we didn't have Bruce (Sutter), we didn't have Jim (Kaat) and we

True Value Hardware scored nine times in the fourth inning to gain a 15-8 victory over First State Bank in the Greenville Prep League last night.

True Value took the initial lead with a run in the second, but the Bankers came back with two in the bottom of the second, then added two more in the fourth for a 4-1 lead.

But in the fourth, True Value exploded for nine runs to put the game on ice. Tyrone Jones led off, reaching on an error. George Saad singled and Robbie Erhaman singled in Jones. Jim Hall singled to score Saad and Erhaman, and Steve Iboni singled. Robert Joyner walked, loading the bases, and Lark Weatherington doubled in all three runners. Irvin Best then singled in Weatherington, but was thrown out trying to advance. Jones walked and took third on an error as he stole second. Saad walked and Erhaman singled in Jones. Chris Hillard singled to score Saad with the tenth run for True Value.

True Value added five more in the seventh, including an inside-the-park homer by Weatherington. First State Bank added two more in the sixth and two in the seventh, with Robert Evans and Matthews each hitting an inside-the-park homer.

Weatherington, Jones and Erhaman each had two hits to lead True Value, while Evans had two for the Bankers.

Lions 8
Union Carbide 2

The Lions won their sixth game of the Little League season yesterday, downing Union Carbide, 8-2, in North State Play.

Union Carbide put a scare into the Lions, however, scoring two first inning runs.

But the Lions came back with six runs in the third inning to put it away. Carlos Harris singled and Junior Taft tied the game with a two-run homer.

With one down, Mike Duncan singled and Tom Moye was hit by a pitch. Burt Aycock reached on an error, scoring Duncan, and Donald Perkins singled in Moye. Aycock scored on a passed ball, as did Perkins

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Patty Sheehan tied a women's Corning Country Club course record with a 6-under-par 66 to take a two-stroke lead after the first day of the $125,000 Corning Classic.

Cathy Morse was in second place at 68. Nancy Lopez-Melton, Debbie Austin and Lenore Muraoka were two strokes behind at 69.

for a 6-2 lead. The Lions added two more in the fifth inning.

Harris, Duncan and Perkins each had two hits to lead the Lions.

Union Carbide got only one hit off Moye, who went the first five innings, and none off Aycock, who went the final inning.

First Federal 7

Moose 1

Brian Joyner had three hits and drove in four runs to lead First Federal past Moose, 7-1, yesterday in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game.

After a scoreless first inning, First Federal scored twice in the second to take a lead it never lost. Stacey Best, who was two for three, singled to open the inning and moved to second on Richard Lewis' sacrifice bunt.

Best went to third on Billy Bob Anderson's single and scored on John Bolen's sacrifice fly. Anderson later scored on Rodney Harris' double to give FF a 2-0 lead.

First Federal added two more runs to its lead in the fourth and scored its final three runs in the sixth. Moose got its one run in the fourth.

Greg Jones led Moose with two hits in three at bats.

Pay-Cable Network Took Time To Explain Mistake

By TOM JOR
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When a technician's goof lopped the best-known song — "Supercalifragilistic" — from a recent Showtime screening of "Mary Poppins," the pay-cable network took two minutes to tell subscribers what had happened.

It was a notable development in an industry that has seldom cared much for what viewers think about anything, much less the minor irritants; watch, or don't watch, and we'll take it from there has been the prevalent attitude.

CBS recently canceled a monthly program begun in 1978 called "Your Turn: Letters to CBS News," which answered viewer complaints in a sort of "electronic letters to the editor" fashion.

The current exception is "Letters to Showtime," brief on-screen spots introduced by the No. 2 pay network last November to answer questions and discuss complaints from subscribers.

"The industry in general is not a two-way street," says Stephan Schulte, Showtime's vice president for operations and production services. "This is the kind of thing that will help us make our product more successful."

Says Mike Weinblatt, president of Showtime Entertainment and a former NBC executive, "Viewer feedback has always been an important factor in shaping our policies. We envision 'Letters to Showtime' as part of our relationship and obligation to subscribers."

Showtime's motive, of course, is not entirely altruistic, though the network does want to know — indeed, need to know — what subscribers think of the service. The network serves about 1.8 million subscribers nationwide.

"I see this as an active rather than a passive situation," says Schulte, the man responsible for "Letters to Showtime."

"The networks are big enough so they don't have to respond to viewer complaints, unless the pressure gets so great that advertisers are bothered, too."

"In our business," he says, "a subscriber's complaint can be the reason for a cable operator to tune us out."

"Letters to Showtime" also provides the pay network with an informal gauge of viewer preference. The network received 510 letters in April, 176 of them addressed to "Letters to Showtime." Of the letters, 210 were requests for specific movies, 99 were complaints and 29 programming suggestions.

"We want to show we are responsive to complaints and suggestions," Schulte says. "At least, we want to make sure that the subscriber, who decides each month whether to pay for Showtime, knows what's going on."

"There are those who say that only negative people write in. We've seen positive letters, some fairly erudite letters from people who have no ax to grind."

Of the complaints received in April, 21 percent dealt with repeats, 28 percent with programming policies and scheduling, and 16 percent with the program guide.

"Letters to Showtime" considers general complaints as well as the more specific. When subscribers objected to program promotions fed over the credits of a preceding movie, for instance, the network eliminated the practice.

Actress Lauren Sydney is Showtime's on-camera correspondent, and Schulte says the effort has been to produce "Letters to Showtime" in an entertaining, if not necessarily dramatic, style.

The spots are fed several times a week, and Schulte says he'd like a regular slot — like just before the 8 o'clock movie. "We're not anchored in any one place now," he says. "I'm aiming for prime time."

Inmates Hear Willie Nelson

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Country music star Willie Nelson told inmates at the Missouri State Penitentiary that he felt like an outlaw in his own way and gave them a chance to stomp and cheer for a couple of hours with his songs.

Nelson, one of the nation's top musical entertainers, gave the free concert Thursday at the maximum-security prison at the invitation of some 1,500 inmates and 200 guards who signed petitions wishing him a happy birthday last month.

Nelson didn't disappoint the inmates who waited for weeks for the first major concert given at the penitentiary in years.

In an interview shortly before going on stage, Nelson noted he had a reputation as an "outlaw" in the country music business before he struck nationwide fame and said he felt an affinity for the inmates.

"We're all outlaws in our own way," he said.

Foray Into Laotian Jungle Camp Reopens Wounds

DEFECTORS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY — Thai troops lead blindfolded Vietnamese soldiers near Kok Sabang, Thailand. Thai authorities say the Vietnamese crossed over into Thailand

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Reports of two unsuccessful U.S.-backed forays into a Laotian jungle camp in search of American captives are reopening a painful dispute on whether any are still alive in Indochina.

Pentagon spokesman Henry Catto said Thursday the United States will continue to take any appropriate action to check reports of American prisoners and "end any captivity."

But, Catto said, "The fact is that we have found absolutely no credible evidence of the existence of any MIAs (missing in action)."

"I think as time goes by, increasingly you have to be skeptical because there is no credible evidence," he said.

A leading spokeswoman for families of the missing called Catto "out of date and misinformed," saying 280 reports of sightings indicate Americans are alive.

"They should not wait until credible evidence is dumped in their lap," said Ann Mills Griffiths, president of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia. "They should go out and look for it. That is their job."

But the reported missions into Laos have encouraged the families, Ms. Griffiths said. "If anything, this will give the families hope because after eight years the government is finally doing something," she said.

U.S.-financed Asian mercenaries — possibly including American citizens — made a secret foray into Laos six weeks ago and again two weeks ago but found no evidence Americans are alive, administration sources said.

They said satellite pictures indicated Americans might be in a jungle camp but photographs taken by the mercenaries indicate it was "some sort of re-education camp" for Asians.

Catto refused to confirm or deny the missions.

A total 2,528 Americans are still unaccounted for from the Indochina war and the Pentagon now lists nearly all of them as "presumed dead."

In the most recent report to Congress, the Defense Intelligence Agency said last December it has 280 first-hand reports from Indochina refugees of sightings of Americans.

But the agency's director, Lt. Gen. Eugene F. Tighe Jr., said "there unfortunately are none which can be substantiated relative to Americans being detained against their will in Southeast Asia."

There have been reports that several Americans may be there voluntarily. One, Marine Pfc. Robert S. Garwood, returned to the United States and was convicted as a collaborator with the enemy.

Congress also jumped into the dispute, which began shortly after the U.S. withdrawal from Indochina in 1973, again Thursday.

Rep. G. V. Sonny Montgomery, D-Miss., who chaired a select House committee which investigated the question, said the reported Laos missions only produced further evidence that no American prisoners are left alive.

"I'm sorry they didn't find any Americans," Montgomery said. "But that's the way all these rumors end up — they crumble in your hands."

Montgomery said Vietnam long since would have used American captives as bargaining chips in its effort to get $3.2 billion in U.S. reconstruction aid after the war.

But Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., chairman of a House task force on the missing in action, said the 280 sightings are overwhelming evidence that American captives were alive as of December 1979, the time of the last reported sighting.

Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., chairman of the Senate Asian affairs subcommittee, said the reported sightings also convince him that American captives are alive.

Most Smokers Said Unaware Of Serious Health Risks They Face

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The message about the serious health risks connected with smoking cigarettes is not getting across to millions of Americans, a major new government report says.

In a report to Congress, the Federal Trade Commission staff said Thursday that most Americans know that smoking is harmful to health but don't realize how serious the danger is or which people are especially vulnerable.

The report questioned the effectiveness of health warnings in cigarette advertisements and suggested possible ways to make them stronger.

"Fewer than 3 percent of those who see cigarette ads even read the warning," said James H. Sneed, director of the FTC bureau of consumer protection.

He called the current warning "too general, too abstract." That warning, contained in all cigarette ads and on all packs, says, "Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

Using previously published studies and its own research over five years, the FTC staff said:

—Some 40 percent of smokers think that only heavy smoking is dangerous, which is contradicted by medical evidence.

—More than one-third of smokers polled think falsely that those who smoke low-tar cigarettes have little more risk than non-smokers.

—A 30-year-old smoker will shorten his life expectancy by six to eight years if he smokes a pack or more a day, but 40 percent of smokers polled did not know that life expectancy was shortened at all.

—Nearly half of all women do not know that smoking during pregnancy increases the risk of miscarriage.

The Tobacco Institute said the FTC staff report showed the authors' "complete misunderstanding of the intended purpose of cigarette brand advertising in particular. The few individuals who are responsible for the document have made it clear that it is their desire to substitute their will for individual decisions."

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said, "It's clear that consumers want and need to be educated about smoking hazards." Packwood, chairman of the Commerce Committee, which has jurisdiction over the FTC, said, "I hope our committee will have an opportunity to explore the problem further."

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, commented, "We need a comprehensive campaign to educate Americans on smoking and what it can do to them."

The FTC staff said possible changes include making the warning, which it said is seldom read by consumers, more prominent in ads, making it more specific and having various warnings that could be rotated.

"Without more specific, concrete information, consumers have a more difficult time remembering and are less likely to consider health information at all in making their smoking decision," it said.

ElectriCities Names Lawyer

ElectriCities of North Carolina has named the Rocky Mount law firm of Spruill, Lane & McCotter as North Carolina counsel for the association, according to Ralph W. Shaw, executive director.

Shaw said that DeWitt C. McCotter, a partner in the 11-member firm, was designated as the association's principal counsel.

McCotter has been city attorney for the City of Rocky Mount since 1967. The statewide association of 67 municipal electric systems, of which Greenville is a member, had been represented since 1974 by Louis B. Meyer of Wilson. The attorney was named last December by Gov. Jim Hunt to the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Senate Agrees Amend Hazardous Waste Bill

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Environmentalists and local governments won a battle Thursday as the state Senate agreed to amend a hazardous waste bill to make the governor's selection of a disposal site subject to judicial review.

After amending the bill, the Senate voted 42-6 in favor of the measure. A final vote on the bill, which is being strongly pushed by Gov. Jim Hunt, was delayed until next Tuesday.

In the original Senate bill, introduced by Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph, the governor would have the power to override local zoning and ordinances in locating a disposal site for hazardous or low-level radioactive wastes. The governor's decision could not be appealed under Walker's bill.

But Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, raised questions last week during meetings of the Senate Human Resources Committee whether it would be constitutional to give the governor final authority in site selection.

In committee, Allsbrook tried unsuccessfully to amend the bill to make the governor's decision subject to review. Then Allsbrook, the bill's supporters and Hunt said Thursday they had reached a compromise on the amendments.

The change approved unanimously by the Senate would not change the governor's powers to override local rules but it would permit review of the governor's decision in the state Court of Appeals. A written appeal would have to be filed within 30 days of the governor's decision.

Three amendments proposed by Sen. R.P. "Bo" Thomas, D-Henderson, were soundly defeated. Two of the amendments were aimed at forcing disposal of hazardous wastes near the facility where they were produced.

The third amendment would have made the state liable for up to $1 million in damages from the facility when the operator was no longer liable for the site. Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, said the state now is liable for up to $100,000 in damages.

In other legislative action:

Redistricting
Only one speaker showed up — a lobbyist for the public-interest group Common Cause — as the Senate Redistricting Committee held a public hearing on the reapportionment issue.

"Does this mean they don't care?" asked a surprised Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba. "It kind of hurts your feelings."

The committee chairman, Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, was at a loss to explain the lack of attendance. He said the hearing was announced more than a week ago and had appeared on the daily Senate agenda for a week.

Donna Jones, executive director of Common Cause in North Carolina and South Carolina, was the lone speaker. She reminded the legislators of the voting rights act and urged the panel to draw up a map that did not gerrymander blacks or Republicans, and that made districts as concise as possible.

Taxes
The House Finance Committee approved a package of bills aimed at encouraging the use of alternative energy sources. They would provide income tax credits for installation of solar, hydro or wind energy devices.

Trip
Both the House and Senate adjourned early so legislators could travel by bus to the Texasgulf mining facility in Beaufort County. The trip was paid for by Texasgulf, which provided a tour of its operation and treated lawmakers to dinner and reception.

The trip came after Gov. Jim Hunt proposed a mining severance tax, the details of which have not been fixed but which would almost certainly be levied on Tex-asgulf's phosphate mining operation.

Rep. Howard Chapin, D-Beaufort, who arranged the trip and who is opposing the mining tax, denied that the tax and trip were related. He said he extended the invitations in early April, and Hunt did not reveal his severance tax until April 28.

"If I'd known about this I wouldn't have set it up, but I'm not going to back down now," Chapin said before leaving.

About 80 lawmakers made the trip, he said.

New Bills
Bills were filed in the House to provide an income tax credit for building a peat facility and permitting state workers to retire with full benefits after 27 years of service.

See Severe Financial Crunch On Family Planning Services

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — President Reagan's proposed changes in programs funded by Title 10 of the Public Health Service Act could have a severe impact on family-planning services in North Carolina, state officials say.

Lauri Johnson, president of Planned Parenthood in Charlotte, was among representatives of 11 health, religious and political agencies who met to voice opposition to Reagan's plan. She said in some instances the proposal could reduce funding by 25 percent.

"Under the current plan being discussed in Washington," she said, "Title 10 would be lumped together in a preventive health services block grant where family planning services would have to compete with other much needed programs, such as screening for genetic and venereal diseases, programs for pregnant adolescents, rat control and fluoridation."

Under the current Title 10 program, North Carolina receives about $4 million a year for family-planning services. Family-planning clinics are conducted by each county's health department.

Under Reagan's plan, the programs now funded by Title 10 of the Public Health Service Act would be replaced with block grants to the states. Four broad funding categories would be created — health services, preventive health services, social services and low-income energy assistance.

Ms. Johnson said she is trying to coordinate a letter-writing campaign to stave off the funding cuts.

"We are urging everyone who wants to see family-planning clinics continue to help women who need help to write their congressmen," she said, adding that some 200 letters have been sent to North Carolina representatives backing family planning so far.

She said several groups have lobbied in Washington, D.C., to keep the Title 10 program intact, but they have received no solid commitments from the legislators.

In addition, Planned Parenthood has prepared a full-page advertisement to run in the next two weeks in newspapers in Rep. James Broyhill's district. The ad urges Broyhill to vote to "save America's family-planning program."

Ms. Johnson said more than 8,000 babies are born to teen-agers in North Carolina each year. It is in those situations that family-planning services are instituted. She said the services help young and low-income women pay for medical care and consultation.

According to Planned Parenthood, it costs at least $18,000 to raise a child born to a low-income mother from birth to age 18, including public assistance, Medicaid, the national school lunch program and other welfare services.

"Each dollar invested in family planning by the government yields a savings of $2 in health and welfare costs associated with unwanted births," Ms. Johnson said. An estimated 800,000 unwanted pregnancies were prevented in 1979 because of the national family-planning program, she said.

Workers Comp
A bill that would make it easier for injured workers to obtain insurance compensation through their employers was sidetracked when the House Manufacturing and Labor Committee put the measure in a subcommittee.

The bill had been approved by the House Insurance Committee and sent to the floor Wednesday, where opponents won a narrow vote to send the bill to the second committee.

The bill would allow compensation for injuries sustained in normal job duties. Supporters argue that the state's courts have required that an accident apart from normal job duties must be sustained before an award can be made.

The sponsor, Rep. William Clark, D-Cumberland, said North Carolina is the only state where the law, as interpreted by the courts, is

Modeling Instructor Voted Miss USA

By TERRY GOGGIN
Associated Press Writer
BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — As Miss New York sat in the audience, "depressed" by her disqualification for padding her swimsuit top, a 20-year-old modeling instructor representing Ohio was crowned Miss USA.

The winner, Kim Seelbrede, gave no indication that her victory was marred by the padding controversy.

"Pageants are stigmatized as being a lot of hard work with tough competition and cut-throat girls. But it's really not like that," said Miss Seelbrede, who was Miss Ohio. "I've gotten to meet a lot of super girls. They're all very nice. They're not cut-throats like I had anticipated."

Miss New York, Deborah Fountain, was a paying spectator in the pageant audience Thursday night, and no substitute was allowed to represent New York State in her place.

"I'm very depressed," she said as she walked from her hotel to the Mississippi Coast Coliseum, where the pageant was held.

Miss Fountain had filed suit to force pageant officials to readmit her, but the suit was dismissed Thursday afternoon by a New York Supreme Court Justice who ruled there was not enough first-hand information to support such an order.

The 25-year-old Bronx resident vowed to continue her legal battle, however, to "let them know I haven't been treated fairly."

The absence of a Miss New York was not explained to the national television audience but Miss Fountain was shown briefly with other contestants modeling swimsuits in a portion of the program taped before she was ejected.

Miss Fountain said she padded her swimsuit top because the garment was ill-fitting and the pageant staff had refused her requests to alter it. She contends a pageant official took her into a restroom and pulled down the front of her swimsuit after an unidentified contestant had complained.

Miss Fountain also charged Wednesday that at least five other contestants had silicone implants in their breasts to improve their figures and as many as 20 had padded their swimsuits.

A statement prepared by the contestants Thursday said they were "incensed and outraged by the self-serving charges of widespread padding and infractions by Miss USA contestants ... and we categorically deny them."

"I feel she is capitalizing on her notoriety and prostituting the pageant," Lise Thevenet, Miss New Mexico, said of Miss Fountain before the pageant started. "We have worked too long and too hard for us to be disgraced."

Pageant officials say Miss Fountain was disqualified for breaking the rule against padding and for publicly discussing the controversy.

Miss Indiana, Holli Dennis of Fort Wayne, was first runnerup. Miss Louisiana, Lisa Lynn Moss of Shreveport, was second runnerup. Miss California, Cindy Kerby of Los Angeles, was third runnerup, and Miss Hawaii, Teri Ann Linn of Honolulu, was fourth runnerup.

As winner, Miss Seelbrede received $22,500 in prize money, a car, a fur, jewelry and a year's use of an apartment in New York City, where she will participate in the Miss Universe Pageant in July.

The other semi-finalists were Miss Alabama, JoAnne Henderson of Tuscaloosa; Miss Arizona, Cassie Hill of Phoenix; Miss Georgia, Lisa

Joyce Condry of Decatur; Miss Maryland, Linda Susan Lambert of Baltimore; Miss Tennessee, Sharon Kay Steakley of Nashville; Miss Texas, Diana Louise Durnford of El Paso, and Miss Virginia, Pamela Elizabeth Hutchens of Newport News.

Jasper Lewis Is Named To Board

The board of directors of Branch Banking and Trust Co., meeting in Wilson, elected Dr. Jasper L. Lewis Jr. to the Greenville City Board, according to Carl E. Brown Jr., vice president and city executive here.

Lewis, a pedodontist

DR. JASPER LEWIS

(children's dental care specialist), is a graduate of La Grange High School, Wake Forest University, and the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry.

The new board member is president of the Division of Dentistry-Department of Surgery for the East Carolina University School of Medicine and past president of the North Carolina Society of Dentistry for Children. He is also chairman of the Eastern Area Health and Education Center Dental Advisory Committee.

Lewis is president-elect of the Rotary Club, chairman of the Boy Scouts of America troop committee, and a former Pitt United Way division chairman.

Lewis is married to the former Anne Haynes of Martinsville, Va. and they have three sons. He was formerly on the Lay Advisory Board of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, where he serves as an usher.

Report Capture Prison Escapee

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Cleveland County police report they captured a man Thursday who escaped from the state prison unit near Shelby Tuesday night.

Officials said Hoyle Lee Minzey, 24, was captured in Shelby about 6 p.m. and was returned to the prison unit.

Minzey escaped Tuesday by climbing a fence and was the object of a two-day manhunt. He is serving a 10-year sentence for breaking and entering.

Four Received ECU Awards

ECU News Bureau
Sandra Showers of Raleigh and Mount Airy, a recent "summa cum laude" graduate of the East Carolina University School of Business received two "outstanding senior" honors at ECU.

She was named most outstanding senior in the business school's Department of Finance as well as most outstanding student in the entire school.

The daughter of John W. Showers, formerly of Raleigh, now of 320 Robin Drive, Mount Airy, Ms. Showers is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, Phi Sigma Pi and Beta Gamma Sigma honor societies and has been a member of the ECU Ambassadors and a university marshal. She was also recognized as most outstanding member of the Student Union Special Events Committee at the campus Student Union banquet earlier this spring.

Other School of Business award winners were Susan Diana Shelbourn of Tarboro and Valentine, Nebraska, most outstanding senior in the Department of Marketing and Management; Debbie Wood of Elizabeth City, most outstanding senior in the Department of Accounting; and Virginia MacMillan of Greenville, most outstanding senior in the Department of Economics.

The award recipients graduated with Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degrees and had achieved superior academic grade point averages.

Each received an engraved plaque from the Vice Chancellor for Student Life.

More Winners

In addition to the award winners from E. B. Aycock Junior High School in the annual Tar Heel Junior Historian winners listed in Thursday's edition, the names of other winners not previously provided have been received. These are:
— Pam Dix and Mary Jon May in the group arts category for their project, "Cape Hatteras Lighthouse Model."
— Also, the students working on the "One Woman's View of the Confederacy," were Rebecca Pace, Amy Dohm and Josie Wilem. The project was listed in the earlier article without the names of the three students involved.

Weekend Services

There will be a fellowship service this weekend at Mills Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

Saturday Services begin at 8:00, with Elder Corocot as the guest speaker. Pastor J.L. Swinson will conduct the Sunday morning service at 11:00. At 3:00 Sunday afternoon, the speaker will be Elder Bland from Ayden.

Sunday evening a musical program will be presented by Southern Spiritual of Ayden. The public is invited to attend these services.

Sets A Record On Tall Stilts

NEW YORK (AP) — If you are sitting in a fourth-floor office and you see a man walk by the window, it could be John Russell, who claims a world record for the longest stilts.

With the publisher of the Guinness Book of World Records standing by, Russell, of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, took 34 steps Wednesday on 33-foot stilts.

Publisher David Boehm said Russell had broken his own record of walking on 31-foot stilts for 30 steps.

Russell, dressed in blue jeans and a striped T-shirt, sat on a swing and was hoisted to a pipe from which he mounted the stilts. Why didn't he walk further? It's not exactly like wearing sneakers. Each of the stilts weighed 40 pounds.

Boehm counted 34 steps before Russell became too tired.

Recall Ordered For Canned Mushrooms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration late Thursday announced a nationwide recall of certain four-ounce cans of mushroom stems and pieces because they may be contaminated with botulinum toxin and may cause illness if eaten.

The recall is an extension of one begun last week by Oxford Royal Mushroom Products Inc. About five million cans were distributed nationwide under about 30 brand names. Some cans were sold under generic names.

FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said each of the cans carries a code on its lid which begins with the letters DK or EK. The two letters would be followed by three numbers. Under the first set of coded letters and numbers, the letter P followed by a single digit or the letters LP followed by a single digit appear.

Pines said the cause of the contamination is still under investigation. The recall was expanded when tests conducted by FDA and by the National Food Processors Association, the trade association for canners, turned up several cans contaminated with botulinum toxin.

"We are telling consumers if they have four-ounce cans of mushroom pieces and stems, look carefully at the lid. If they have mushrooms with those codes they should return them to the place of purchase. Certainly that product should not be opened or consumed," Pines said.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

It is only natural, when playing a no trump contract, to try to set up your long suit first. However, the overall considerations of the hand might require that you restrain these impulses in favor of a more logical approach.

North-South conducted a normal auction to their best spot. Each player showed his long suit and, after South described a balanced, minimum hand, North settled for the obvious game.

With a spade lead, a careless declarer would go down. He would win the second round of the suit and try the diamond finesse. East would win and return a spade, and declarer would find that he could not come to more than eight tricks before West gained the lead with the ace of hearts to cash his established spades and defeat the contract.

The thoughtful declarer would realize that, if the diamond finesse were to succeed, the contract was foolproof. Therefore, he would search for a line that could succeed even if the king of diamonds was offside.

Declarer must try to establish a ninth trick while eliminating the entry to the danger hand—in this case, West. Therefore, declarer should lead a heart from his hand at trick three. If the defenders do not win this trick, declarer abandons hearts and sets up his diamond suit to bring home his contract. So let's assume that West wins the ace and knocks out declarer's last spade stopper.

Now declarer can take the diamond finesse with almost complete safety. Unless West has led a spade from a short suit, the contract must succeed even if the finesse fails. As the cards lie, East does not have a spade to return after he wins the king of diamonds, so declarer makes the rest of the tricks. But if East does have another spade, the suit should break 4-4, which limits the defenders to two tricks in spades—the king of diamonds and the ace of hearts.

Seek Indict 6 In Car Thefts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Columbus police plan to ask the Franklin County Grand Jury next week to issue indictments for six persons involved in a multi-state, steal-to-order and auto insurance fraud ring.

A team of detectives, which said the auto theft ring may have been operating from Columbus for more than a year, traced the operation through Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina and Florida.

The number of persons involved is expected to increase after law enforcement agencies in other states receive information on the ring.

Yonadi said it's believed that half the stolen vehicles were part of an insurance fraud operation and the other half were stolen while on test rides.

"They (the auto owners) would have someone steal their cars, collect from the insurance company and then split the money with the guy who stole it," he explained, adding that the thieves would sell the car and split the money.

"Another way was by stealing the car when they were test driving," Yonadi said. "They'd either drive the car off the lot and not return or go somewhere and have another key made. Then they'd come back later and steal it."

Many of the vehicles, some of which were stolen from private owners during test drives, were driven to other states and changed in appearance by switching the fenders and panels, he said.

Cars stolen in Ohio and driven to Florida would be resold to a buyer who had "ordered" a specific make and model. The thieves would then steal an equal number of vehicles and drive to Kentucky, repeating the process, police said.

First the Good News ...
Despite inflation, experts say many items are easier to afford than they were ten years ago. That's because workers' incomes went up even faster than prices during the 1970s. Prices went up 110.7 percent between 1970 and 1980. But the average American's after-tax earnings went up 136 percent. So, though prices were up, average goods and services that took an hour of work to earn in 1970 took about 53.6 minutes in 1980. But this wasn't true of everything. For example, it would take an hour and a half's work today to buy the same amount of gasoline you would have earned by working an hour in 1970.

Hope Vaccine Ends Hepatitis

ATLANTA (AP) - A new vaccine for deadly hepatitis B, or serum hepatitis, which apparently is related to some forms of cancer, holds hope the disease can be wiped out, health officials said Thursday.

The vaccine should be on the market this year. Dr. Donald P. Francis, the chief of epidemiology for hepatitis at the national Centers for Disease Control's infectious diseases center in Phoenix, Ariz., told the 16th Immunization Conference here.

Hepatitis B, which is untreatable, strikes about 200,000 people in the United States each year, he said.

Hepatitis B is spread through the use of contaminated needles, transfusions of blood or blood products containing the hepatitis virus, or intimate personal contact.

Liver disease and cancer of the liver are usually complications of hepatitis B, Francis said.

Between 250 and 1,000 chronically ill hepatitis B victims die each year, while another 3,400 die from hepatitis-related cirrhosis of the liver and 800 to 900 from hepatitis-related liver cancer, Francis said.

Studies show that "hepatitis B looks like it is truly a cancer-producing virus," he said.

The less serious hepatitis A is usually spread through close contact or through contaminated water and food.

The new vaccine will cost about $30 per dose, and a patient will need three doses, Francis said.

HOW

THE SIGN TO LOOK FOR BEFORE YOU SIGN.

Before you put your name on the most expensive document most people ever sign, you probably put a lot of thought into it. It's easy to get bogged by floorplans and locations. Lot sizes and mortgage terms and closing costs. But it's easier to feel a lot better about the whole process if you just know how HOW—the Home Owners Warranty—is America's first comprehensive homeowner's protection plan. When you see the HOW symbol on a new home, you know you're getting a 10 year protection plan. Your home is protected against workmanship and material defects the first year. Defective wiring, ductwork and piping in the second. And your home is protected against major structural defects that vitally affect the use of your new home for 10 full years.* Your builder can give you all the details, including the reasonable exclusions. When you add up all the things you're looking for in a new home, it's probably a list a yard long. Put the Home Owners Warranty program at the top of it. Insist on it. It's the best way to protect against facing the wrong kind of signs in the future. Dollar signs.

Home Owners Warranty Corporation of N.C.
Warranty and insurance coverage applies only if the builder properly enrolls the home and is in good standing with HOW at the time of settlement.

Agca's Footsteps Add To Mystery Of His Motive

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

Mehmet Ali Agca, the brazen young killer who stalked a pope, left a trail over three continents so faint and twisting — and sometimes so puzzling — that a platoon of detectives could take months to finally trace it.

If they succeeded, they might also uncover clues to why Agca would have done what is alleged — tried to assassinate Pope John Paul II.

The trail begins two autumns ago, when the 21-year-old Agca, disguised as a soldier, slipped out of a Turkish prison. It ends 16 months later in the afternoon light of Rome's St. Peter's Square, where the modishly dressed young "tourist" was seized as the suspect in a crime that shocked the world.

In between, according to police and their sources, Agca's odyssey took him to some of the pleasurable way stations of an Old World tour — a picturesque hill town in Italy, Austrian alpine valleys, a North African beach resort.

But the story pieced together from reports by Associated Press bureaus in Europe and Asia indicates that investigators face unexplained gaps and troubling questions.

Did right-wing Turkish expatriates harbor and finance Agca in West Germany? Or is there a blank between the day he is said to have fled to revolutionary Iran in February 1980 and the day he reportedly stepped off a Tunisia-to-Sicily ferry the following December.

Here is the tale of what is known and not known about life on the run for this self-described "individual terrorist," a man who was at once the hunter and the hunted.

NOVEMBER 1979-FEBRUARY 1980

Agca had been jailed at Turkey's Kartal-Maltepe military prison, near the mouth of the Bosphorus strait southeast of Istanbul, waiting trial in the slaying of a liberal newspaper editor. Police said he confessed to the murder, and he was later sentenced to death — but it was in absentia, because on the night of Nov. 23, 1979, he escaped, allegedly with the aid of sympathetic right-wing soldiers who smuggled a uniform in for him.

The escapee is believed to have melted into the teeming back streets of Istanbul, apparently finding shelter in a "liberated zone" patrolled by extremist right-wing gunmen.

By now the young man who had boasted to interrogators that he was "born for great things" had conjured a new enemy — the Roman Catholic pope, scheduled to visit Moslem Turkey in four days.

In a handwritten letter to a newspaper, Agca declared he had escaped for the sole purpose of assassinating the pope, "a Crusader commander" who he said was trying to suppress Moslem power on behalf of "Western imperialists."

Pope John Paul II went on with his historic visit despite considerable Moslem outrage. "Love is stronger than danger," he said. Turkish security was airtight, and Agca apparently stayed out of sight.

A street peddler tipped off police to Agca's whereabouts, but the escapee killed the informant and disappeared, Turkish authorities said. In mid-December, Turkish sources said, Agca's protectors drove him to central Turkey and eventually into the care of rightist activist Timur Selcuk in the mountainous province of Van, near the Iranian border.

Selcuk later confessed he arranged for Agca to be smuggled into Iran Feb. 1, 1980, prosecutors say. They say Agca's right-wing comrades provided him with at least one false passport. He was now "Faruk Ozgun."

FEBRUARY-DECEMBER 1980

Publicly at least, investigators indicate they have little firm information about Agca's wanderings through most of 1980. They know where he traveled: Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, West Germany, France, Britain. But they remain skeptical about much of his story.

The investigation of these hazy months in the Agca chronology has focused on West Germany, where 1.5 million Turks work and live. Many still carry on the left-right vendettas that roil their homeland.

West German officials said they received 10 tips that the fugitive had been sighted in West German cities, but none panned out.

Turkish authorities suggest the Germans did not press the hunt forcefully. Italian investigators, without further explanation, claim Agca did, indeed, enter West Germany in early 1980.

If he was there, he might have received refuge and money from the "Gray Wolves" or other right-wing Turkish expatriate groups. Turkish leftists in West Germany allege Agca became a paid killer in the bloody political struggles in the expatriate community.

Agca's "ideology" appears to be a rainbow of political belief. "I am neither fascist, nor leftist nor anarchist," he once told Turkish police. He told his Italian captors he sympathized with "Palestinian communists." His hatred of the pope and his dreamy "hit list" of world leaders smacked of religious fanaticism and nihilism.

When Pope John Paul II visited West Germany last November, authorities were aware that a would-be papal assassin might be lurking there. But no incidents were reported.

DECEMBER 1980-FEBRUARY 1981

On Dec. 11, the Turkish Embassy in Bonn formally requested Agca's extradition from West Germany. But, if he ever was in Germany, it was too late. By then, Tunisian sources say, he was installed at a luxury hotel among the lemon groves and Mediterranean beaches of Hammamet, in northern Tunisia. He spent several weeks there, they say.

A vacation for a jobless fugitive? A rendezvous with accomplices? Italian and Tunisian police are looking for the answers.

What is known is that Agca disembarked from a Tunisian ferry at Palermo, Sicily, on Dec. 13, checking into the $10-a-night Liguria Hotel at 11 p.m. "A distinguished, well-mannered person," the owner recalled.

The trail picks up a week later, in Rome, where he checked into the Pensione Isa, a small seedy hotel near the Vatican. He went to St. Peter's Square to observe the pope's movements, he later told investigators.

Late December and January remain murky in the known itinerary of "Faruk Ozgun." But he stayed at the Rome pension again for three days in late January, and on Feb. 2 is known to have been in the northern Italian city of Milan, investigators say.

On Feb. 4, the Turkish consulate there received an anonymous telephone tip that the wanted man was seen with two other men at the fashionable Biffi alla Scala bar, near Milan's famed opera house. But when Italian police arrived, he was gone. And from there the trail fades again for two months.

APRIL 1981

On Wednesday, April 8, "Ozgun" arrived in Perugia, a medieval hill town overlooking the Tiber valley, investigators say. Staying at the deluxe Hotel Posta, he enrolled in a three-month Italian-language course at the University for Foreigners, paying the $150 tuition in advance.

But he attended only one day's classes. Little is remembered of him there, except that — as usual — he dressed well.

He apparently left Perugia on Easter Sunday, April 12, and began a hectic month of international travel.

Italian investigators believe he stopped over in the northern port of Genoa, and at some point went to nearby Cuneo and bought a ticket for another "vacation" — a two-week, $450 sojourn on the Spanish Mediterranean island of Majorca.

The investigators believe, too, that he crossed into Austria or Switzerland. Turkish informants told of seeing Agca in April in Austria's Vorarlberg province, near the Swiss border, Austrian authorities said.

The 9mm Browning automatic pistol used to shoot the pope is known to have been in the possession of an Austrian dealer. Just where and when Agca allegedly bought it remains unclear, but Italian investigators believe he returned by train to Rome April 20, put the weapon in a locker in the central railway station, and then headed back north, catching his flight from Milan to Palma, Majorca, on Saturday, April 25.

MAY 1981

The escaped murderer was an unlikely figure among the Italian honeymooners at Palma's Hotel Flamboyant. "Members of the staff told me he was an obscure, sad and solitary man who hardly spoke to anyone," said the hotel manager.

TO ANOTHER JAIL — Turkish terrorist Mehmed Ali Agca, charged with attempted assassination of Pope John Paul II, is transferred to the Rebibbia jail Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

The trim and dour young "Ozgun," who arrived with a beard but shaved it off, went jogging each morning among the pine groves edging the beach.

Meanwhile, on May 6, Turkish authorities issued an Interpol bulletin warning of Agca's imminent arrival in Italy. But "Ozgun" returned with no trouble, landing at Milan's Malpensa Airport at 10:26 a.m. on Saturday, May 9, and then, police say, going on to Rome, apparently by train.

He spent three nights at a YMCA at Piazza Indipendenza, near the railway station, investigators say, and moved across the Tiber to the Pensione Isa at midday Tuesday, May 12.

The next afternoon Pope John Paul II prepared for his weekly Wednesday appearance in the Vatican's vast piazza. In a third-floor room 16 blocks away, the young Turk dressed himself in his well-cut, Italian-style gray suit, strode out into the Roman sun and headed toward the great dome of St. Peter's.

In his pockets, police say, he carried the 9mm Browning and a note scribbled in Turkish:

"I, Agca, have killed the pope so that the world may know of the thousands-of victims of imperialism."

Hunt Keeps Distance In Hot Insurance Dispute

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Keeping his customary distance from the politically volatile insurance issue, Gov. Jim Hunt said Thursday he has no position on a bill that would hand over the regulatory powers of the elected insurance commissioner to an appointed three-member panel.

Hunt said last year that a rate-setting commission might solve North Carolina's continuing insurance disputes. But at his weekly news conference, the governor said insurance is an issue for legislators to decide — and that he may take no position on the proposal in the future.

"I really haven't had a chance to weigh it out and see whether or not I think this is the best approach," Hunt said.

Since he took office in 1977, Hunt has avoided legislative brawls over insurance. That year, the General Assembly removed the commissioner's power to block insurance rate increases before they are implemented.

During his re-election campaign last year Hunt mentioned the commission idea, patterned after the state Utilities Commission, as a possible solution.

But Hunt emphasized to reporters Thursday that he had never staked himself out on the issue and had only mentioned the commission as one of several possible alternatives.

"The idea of a commission is one that I said we ought to look at, way back," he said. "I've never taken a position in favor of it, per se."

State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has been increasingly critical of Hunt in recent weeks, charging that the governor has done nothing to help Ingram battle several insurance proposals before the Legislature. But Hunt defended himself against those charges, saying he had met with Ingram several times and that there was no deep split between them.

"No, he's my best friend," Hunt said.

Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, has proposed the bill now in a House committee that would give most of Ingram's authority to a panel appointed by the governor, lieutenant governor and House speaker. Ingram has fiercely opposed the bill.

Quarterly Meeting

Quarterly meeting will be observed at Arthur Chapel Free Will Baptist Church this weekend.

Saturday at 5 p.m., Holy Communion will be held, followed by a sermon by Elder Theodora Underhill. Sunday at 11 a.m. morning worship will be led by Bishop J. N. Gilbert. At 3 p.m. Elder Willie Joyner and Moya's Chapel will render services. The public is invited, says Bishop Gilbert.

Hunt also sidestepped another issue, gun control. He declined to take a position on a bill introduced by Sen. Charles Vickery, D-Orange, that would impose strict handgun control and ban the cheap pistols known as Saturday Night Specials.

"I have not looked at that, and so I really don't want to take a position on it," Hunt said. "But I will look at it. I'm concerned about this whole area, but it's one I would want to examine before I took a position."

Weekend Services

Poplar Hill Free Will Baptist Church will hold a prayer meeting and board meeting tonight. The congregation is encouraged to attend.

Saturday night, Holy Communion will be celebrated with Rev. N. Darden from Live Oak FWB in Grifton. The choir and ushers will also attend.

Sunday morning, Poplar Hill will have its Homecoming with Pastor J.L. Tyson and the combined choirs and ushers of Allen Chapter and Poplar Hill. Dinner will be served at 2:00. The public is invited to dine.

There will be a service Sunday afternoon with Rev. James Vance of St. Mark's, along with the choir and ushers.

Sunday at 7:00 p.m., Rev. Bobby Grader from Danbury, Conn., a graduate of South Ayden High School, will speak. The public is invited to attend.
