Reagan Tax Plan Hits House Roadblock

By JIM LUTHER

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key Democrats in the House, rejecting basic elements of President Reagan's tax plan, are holding firm for a one-year tax cut that favors lower- and middle-income Americans.

Dashing hopes for a quick compromise, most Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee turned thumbs-down Thursday on Reagan's plan for a three-year, across-the-board cut of 30 percent. Similarly, they would have no part of an administration-backed alternative for a 25 percent cut over three years.

"They may win it on the floor (of the House) and they may win it in the Senate, but we're not going to give it to them," declared Rep. William Brodhead, D-Mich., a member of the committee. "Most everybody said that if they (the administration) are adamant about three years and across-the-board cuts, we can't deal with them."

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan "remains hopeful that a bipartisan coalition can be built in Congress."

"President Reagan's position remains firm: across-the-board, multiyear tax cuts are just as essential to economic recovery as across-the-board, multiyear budget cuts," said Speakes.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.,

chairman of Ways and Means, said there was no consensus during a two-hour Democratic caucus for a multiyear tax cut or for any plan that would give equal relief to the rich and poor. He favors a one-year tax cut tilted toward families with incomes between $20,000 and $50,000 a year.

Rostenkowski expressed hope the caucus position will not end negotiations with the Reagan administration. But no further meetings are scheduled, he added.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he still feels there are enough areas of agreement to continue three-way discussions with Rostenkowski and the administration.

Dole said he talked with 15 of the 20 members of his committee Thursday and found strong support for a compromise.

The 23-member caucus of Ways and Means Democrats acted after Rostenkowski, Dole and Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan had agreed over breakfast that a compromise was near.

"We think the ball was advanced," Regan said of his meeting with Dole and Rostenkowski.

But it took House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill little time to throw cold water on any expectation that the administration's 25 percent compromise would find acceptance among his fellow Democrats. "Progress has been vastly overstated by the press," he said.

At the White House today, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes noted that O'Neill had said the ball was in the president's court. "I am not so sure. I think it may be in theirs," Speakes said.

He said the administration would like the Ways and Means Committee to develop a consensus plan and submit it to the White House, which would then decide whether to support it.

He held out the possibility that Reagan would launch a publicity campaign to pressure the Congress. "There's a lot of support out there," Speakes said.

"Time is growing short if Congress is going to meet its deadline of Oct. 1."

Rostenkowski said the Democratic caucus was "worried and concerned about across-the-board tax reductions," such as proposed by Reagan, which would give the same 30 percent cut in tax rates to rich and poor alike. "The consensus was that across-the-board tax reductions would not do much for working Americans," the chairman said.

"There also was a feeling that a multiyear tax cut is not acceptable, at least at this time," Rostenkowski said.

Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, leader of a conservative bloc that first proposed the 25 percent, three-year compromise, presented that offer to the caucus and was disappointed at its reception.

House Redistricting Walkout Sparks Legislative Criticism

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — In

a move that could split the House and Senate over congressional redistricting, a state House leader forced a walkout Thursday of House members from a joint House-Senate redistricting committee.

The move by Speaker Pro Tem Alan Barbee, D-Nash, sparked angry criticism from other legislators and was seen as an effort to protect the political interests of U.S. Rep. L.H. Fountain, D-N.C.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green ordered the Senate half of the joint committee to schedule a meeting for Monday, and said he expects a redistricting plan to be sent to the full Senate by Monday night.

Thursday's meeting was called to consider four plans submitted by a joint subcommittee for redrawing the 11 districts.

But Barbee, claiming to speak for House Speaker Liston Ramsey, said the House committee members would not vote on the plans because House chairman Rep. J.P. Huskins was hospitalized in Statesville. Barbee then declared himself chairman of the House committee.

Before the meeting, several committee members said they had the votes to win joint approval of a redistricting plan by Rep. Ted Kaplan, D-Forsyth.

Barbee has adamantly opposed the plan, which would put largely black Durham County into Fountain's predominantly rural 2nd Congressional District. Durham could offer several strong candidates to oppose the veteran congressman, who is Barbee's close friend.

As the meeting began Thursday, Barbee said he was adjourning the House side of the committee. When legislators demanded a vote on adjournment, Barbee said the meeting was not legally constituted.

When House members voted on adjournment by a show of hands, Barbee announced that the outcome was 11 to 9 for adjournment, and most of the House members walked from the room.

Later, Barbee's reading of the vote was disputed. Sen. Helen R. Marvin, D-Gaston, chairman of the Senate committee, said the vote was 11-8 against adjournment.

Gas Tax Bill To Senate

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A proposal to raise the state tax on gasoline by 3 cents a gallon heads to the Senate floor next week amid escalating debate between Gov. Jim Hunt and opponents of his tax increase package.

Hunt, flushed with the success of his tax plan in its first legislative test Thursday, lashed out at his critics in the Congressional Club for what he said were "lies and insults" in their television advertisements.

"They're spending hundreds of thousands of dollars," Hunt said, "in a negative campaign, in a misleading ad campaign that frankly threatens good roads for North Carolina and our economic future."

The club, a conservative political organization that helped elect both of North Carolina's Republican senators, responded with a charge that Hunt was trying to shift attention from his tax plan and onto his political opponents.

"The governor is trying to make this thing more of a political issue than the anti-gas-tax crowd is," said Jim Cain, a spokesman for the Congressional Club, which has provided financing for the television campaign being waged by the Committee Against the Gas Tax.

BIG MAN, BIG GAVEL — United Mine Workers President Sam Church lifts a large gavel at the start of a session of the union's bargaining council to approve a tentative agreement reached between the union and the coal industry. (AP Laserphoto)

Tentative Contract Is Seen By Coal Industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of striking miners and the soft coal industry announced tentative agreement on a new contract early today. If approved by the rank and file, the pact will end a walkout that lasted more than two months.

Within hours, United Mine Workers President Sam Church set in motion the machinery that could lead to ratification of the contract, meeting with the 39-member union bargaining council that must approve the pact before it goes to the field.

Church had no comment as he entered the bargaining council session today — the 64th day of the strike.

It was Church who at 12:55 a.m. EST announced that a tentative agreement had been reached. "We have a contract," he said, ending a day of marathon meetings that had begun at 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

Bobby R. Brown, chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, emerged from the negotiating room in a downtown hotel moments later and said: "We have addressed most of the issues that were outstanding and we believe it's a good contract for the union."

Neither side would discuss changes made in the tentative pact since an earlier proposal was turned down overwhelmingly by UMW members more than two months ago.

Was the new contract a better one, Church was asked. "It's better," he replied.

Asked whether the union had won agreement on the crucial point that the industry pay a royalty on non-union coal it purchases, Church said, "That's no problem."

The union's bargaining council approved the earlier contract by a 21-14 margin only to see it rejected by rank-and-file miners by a margin of better than 2-to-1.

Nimitz Rushed For Turnaround

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The aircraft carrier USS Nimitz, in port after a jet crash that left 62 crewmen dead or injured and about $100 million in damage, may be cleaned up and ready to resume its training cruise by Saturday, Navy officials say.

The Nimitz sailed into its home port Thursday, returning damaged aircraft and the bodies of 13 of the 14 crewmen killed in the crash of the Marine EA-6B and its fiery aftermath.

The body of Marine 1st Lt. Laurence Cragun, the plane's electronics officer, still had not been found by today.

Twenty-one of the injured crewmen were flown to hospitals in Florida and Texas after Tuesday's accident off the Florida coast. The other 27 injured crewmen were treated in sick bay. The Nimitz carried about 3,000 sailors and 2,500 airmen.

Four young sailors severely burned in the crash were "alert and responsive" but still in critical condition at the Brooke Army Medical Center burn unit at Fort Sam Houston in Texas, Col. Basil A. Pruitt Jr. said Thursday afternoon.

The wreckage of four planes — the EA-6B Prowler that crashed and three F-14 Tomcats — was discarded overboard. Seven other aircraft suffered major damage and were sent off for repairs. Minor damage to another nine planes had been repaired.

There was no official value placed on the damage, but "$100 million would not be a bad estimate," said Vice Adm. Gus Kinnear, commander Naval Air Forces Atlantic.

"A lot of guys grew up last night," said Lt. Terrence Doyle, 27.

Fire Kept To One Room

BENEFIT BASKETBALL

Ott's Hotshots will meet the Wellcome Cool Cats in a benefit basketball game for Harold Battle and Kevin Harrell to be held Monday at 8 p.m. at Wellcome Middle School Gymnasium.

Appeals have been made for the two North Pitt High School students, Harold and Kevin, through Hotline in past weeks. Both are bone marrow transplant recipients at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Md. and both have incurred tremendous medical expense for their families.

The Ott's Hotshots team is composed of female members of the central administrative office staff of the Pitt County Schools; the Wellcome Cool Cats, female members of the Wellcome School faculty. Cheerleaders for the event will be The Foxy Frenzy, male members of the central administrative office staff. Local television personality Slim Short will be master of ceremonies and the Wellcome School Band will play. A concert by Wellcome School chorus will precede the event at 7 p.m. Tickets are priced at $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Proceeds from ticket sales and concessions all will be equally divided between the Harrell and Battle families.

Reports from Baltimore this morning say both boys are doing very, very well. The marrow cells implanted in Kevin two weeks ago are living and there is still very good hope they will multiply and flourish. He is exercising by walking, riding a stationary bike, lifting weights and playing volleyball (with a balloon) in his room with his father.

Harold, who received his transplant this past Tuesday, from his identical triplet brother, Darrell, is doing well, also, with high hopes for his body to successfully use his brother's marrow.

For those who would like to send cards to either or both of the boys: Kevin's room number is 332 South; Harold's, 324 South. Both are in the Oncology Transplant Unit of Johns Hopkins Hospital, 600 North Wolf Street, Baltimore, Md., 10205.

Winslow-Lewis Vows Exchanged

FARMVILLE — Pattie Frances Lewis and Lloyd Newbern Winslow Jr. exchanged wedding vows Sunday at three o'clock in the afternoon at Emmanuel Episcopal Church here. The Rev. William Hadden and Dr. Ronald Farrar performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Lewis and the late Mr. Lewis of Farmville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Newbern Winslow of Scotland Neck.

The program of wedding music was provided by John S. Barker III of Farmville, organist, and Mrs. John Brooks of Raleigh, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Dr. B. Frank Lewis Jr. She wore a formal white gown of silk organza. Pearl embroidered alencon lace fashioned the empire waisted molded bodice with a high crown collar underscored with a sheer yoke. The full bishop sleeves were accented in lace cuffed with pearl embroidered lace. Lace touched the gathered skirt edged with seed pearls which extended into an attached chapel length train. Lace scalloped the hemline of the skirt and the train. She chose a chapel length veil of silk illusion with beaded lace attached to pearls embroidered alencon lace covering the cap.

Mrs. William Ray Long of Wilson and Ellen Nann-El Lewis of Gastonia, the bride's sisters, were matron and maid of honor. They wore identical floor length gowns of white imported voile over taffeta. The fitted T-strap bodice accented a natural waistline with a self-fabric rope belt tied at the side with bow and streamers. The waist length jacket featured a jewel neckline and petal cap sleeves. A double layered flounce accented the jacket topping the bodice. The drindle skirt was accented with a cascading flounce extending from the waist to the hemline. They carried colonial bouquets of pink spring flowers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. B.F. Lewis Jr., sister-in-law of the bride of Chapel Hill, Mrs. James Champion of Newton and Sarah Ellen Carroll of Charleston, W. Va., cousins of the bride and Kaila Hires of Chapel Hill. They wore gowns identical to that of the honor attendants. They wore sprays of gypsophila in their hair and carried colonial bouquets of mixed summer flowers.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the DAR Chapter House. Mr. and Mrs. John Brooks and Mrs. and Mrs. Sam Edwards greeted guests at the door. Mr. and Mrs. Vann Carroll and Mrs. Donald Baucane presided at the bride's cake table. Mrs. Leonard Crawford, Mrs. Joanne Modlin, Mrs. Curt Stiles and Mrs. Ben Lewis poured punch. The table was centered with satin and tulle runners and an arrangement of roses. Mrs. Spurgeon Carroll presided at the guest register.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Winslow entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a rehearsal dinner at the Colonial Inn, Farmville. A wedding brunch was held at the Southern Sportman, Farmville.

The bride attended UNC-Chapel Hill and East Carolina University, and the bridegroom attended N.C. State University. He is presently engaged in agriculture.

After a wedding trip to the New England coast and Canada, the couple will reside in Scotland Neck.

Miss Gladson Speaks Vows

Kathryn Joy Gladson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Gladson of Chocowinity, and David Dale Elks, son of Mrs. Theodore Hodges and the late Isaac W. Elks of Chocowinity, were united in marriage Saturday at two o'clock in the afternoon at Green Springs Park here. The Rev. Preston Heath of Greenville performed the double ring ceremony.

The couple was married on the bridge under an arch decorated with white bows and greenery.

A program of wedding music was provided by Sharon Whitehurst, guitarist, and Paula Hodges played the piano. Mrs. Jean Cannon of Greenville, vocalist, sang "If" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride chose a formal ivory gown of chantilly lace over peau de soie. The gown featured a high stand-up collar bordered in ivory satin ribbon accented down the front with white pearl buttons which met in a yoke and had an overlay of chantilly lace over the bodice. The waistline was fitted and trimmed in ivory satin ribbon. The bottom of the dress was accented with an overlay of chantilly lace. The long chantilly sleeves were featured with fitted cuffs. The back of the gown was featured with a yoke to match the front and the back was featured with a long sash of chantilly lace. She wore an ivory hat of Brussels lace encircled with satin ribbon on the crown. The brim turned up in the back and was enhanced with illusion veiling. She carried a nosegay of white daisies with two red roses accented with yellow flowers. She also wore a diamond necklace that belonged to her grandmother.

Mrs. Faye H. Ross was honor attendant and Stephanie Gladson, sister of the bride of Chocowinity, was maid of honor. They wore formal length yellow dresses embroidered with white eyelet flowers. The bodice featured spaghetti straps with off the shoulder sleeves trimmed in eyelet white lace. The waist was featured with a fitted band and accented with a sash. They carried white parasols and wore baby's breath in their hair.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dusty pink knit dress with a matching lace vest. The mother of the bridegroom wore a street length blue polyester knit dress with a matching lace jacket. They wore corsages with two yellow rosebuds.

William E. Elks of Chocowinity was best man for his brother and the usher was Charles M. Jackson of Chocowinity.

A reception was held at Green Springs Park following the ceremony. The table was covered with a white Nottingham lace cloth and accented with yellow bows and bells. The centerpiece was a candelabra decorated with white satin bows and greenery. The three tiered wedding cake was cut by Mrs. Ester Boyd, the bride's aunt. Punch was poured by Mrs. Marlene Ingalls, sister of the bridegroom. Rosemary Price presided at the guest register. DeeAnna Davis and Karen Cutler, nieces of the bridegroom, passed out rice bags. Betty Whitfield assisted with the

The bride is a graduate of Beaufort Community College and is employed with Burroughs Wellcome. The bridegroom is employed with Texas Gulf, Inc. After a wedding trip to announced points, the couple will reside in Chocowinity.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

One day, my daughter brought me a glass of water as I walked and sweated guiding my mower through the tall grass like a horse at a plow. "Just think," I said, "one day all of this will be yours."

I never saw her again.

make it look like a green carpet.

I had broken my first rule of marriage ... if you can't do it sitting down, wait until you can afford to hire someone to do it.

There is no such thing as a unisex lawn — either the husband cuts it or the woman cuts it — but whoever starts it is committed to it for life.

We bought our first lawn mower the first summer we built the house. I said, "It's cute, but what does it do?"

"It cuts grass," said my husband.

"We don't have any grass."

"I'm going to fix that," he said, and proceeded to plant grass seed.

I yelled after him, "Hey, don't do this for me. I can keep busy washing, ironing, cooking, flushing, dusting, marketing, waxing, scouring and trying to keep awake."

When the grass started to grow, he made a speech to the kids. "Look, this is your mother's mower and I don't want to catch any of you trying to start it. Do you hear? Your mother is the only one allowed to cut the grass."

Somehow that speech was funnier when Tom Sawyer first used it.

My friends tried to persuade me to hold out. They said, "If you start that motor you will cut grass the rest of your life."

The grass grew around the base of the trees and over the sidewalk. It grew beyond the shrubbery and tickled the flag on the mailbox. The house was dark even on days when the sun shone. He was faking me out.

Finally, one morning, I started the mower and cut the grass. I found a sled, a Pinto and three pre-schoolers.

It also marked my enslavement to that lousy lawn mower. I wouldn't get it cut before he'd be out planting more seeds to make it thicker, fertilizing it to make it grow taller, and rolling it to

A Moderate Approach

Former President Jimmy Carter has been thrust from one of the most visible positions on earth to the sidelines of world affairs where he can only watch the maneuverings of his successor in the White House.

Dr. Robert Maddox, a former presidential advisor who is now an assistant in the office of the president at Pitt Community College, last weekend met with Carter. He was there to coordinate an interview with Carter by three journalists. It was only the second interview Carter has granted since leaving office.

He found the former president "serene" and says he is settled in Plains, still jogging and hard at work on his book.

Carter is convinced that the broad directions of his administration will continue and he feels the Camp David agreement was a prime accomplishment of his term.

Carter, a professed born again Christian, feels the religious right was a factor in the outcome of last year's election, but he feels they will have to moderate their extremes in order to survive.

Thus we have a picture of a Jimmy Carter generally at peace with himself as he takes up life in his hometown of Plains, Ga. His gentle and moderate approach to the nation's problems of family, morality and individual rights are a little out of style in Washington today where rightists have access to the White House. Yet if we are to maintain our liberties, sooner or later the leaders who succeed Carter will have to learn to stand up to the extremists.

Make It A Better Summer

School will be out soon — only a matter of days away — and the sweltering weeks of a Carolina summer are just ahead.

In summer months children are irresistibly lured by water. For some it is a happy relief from the heat; for others it is a dangerous venture. Pitt County has had its share of drownings in the ponds, streams and pools that abound in a water-rich environment. Most of the victims are youngsters, many of whom did not know how to swim, were poor swimmers, or had no respect for the basic rules of water safety.

Let them learn; insist they learn. Their families would rest easier; children will enjoy playing in a delightful element, and fears and concerns over their safety would be at least partially eased. Lives may well be saved.

The Red Cross is opening those doors to area families with the offer of swimming lessons for youngsters beginning June 1.

Knowing how to safely enjoy the water is a child's right and almost as necessary as learning to read and write. No parent should deprive them, nor themselves.

Crime Rate Fears

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There is a spreading sense of fear and isolation in the face of rising crime rates and acts of terrorism and vandalism in North Carolina, just as elsewhere across the nation, but this has not — so far — resulted in any noticeable growth in the ranks of such organized militant groups as the Nazi Party or the Ku Klux Klan.

That is the candid assessment of conditions offered by Burley Mitchell, secretary of the state's Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, and a former district attorney in Wake County.

But one of Mitchell's concerns is that from a sense of frustration and fear, people may be on the verge of getting active in some organization which promises relief through militant or vigilante defense methods.

The Klan and Nazi organizations, largely because of their unsavory reputations and their political and philosophical stances which are repugnant to most North Carolinians, are not providing the sanctuary which people are seeking.

Notice

Public attention on recent events has led some people to wonder if, perhaps, membership in those groups is growing. There have been a number of events such as wilderness survival training involving some North Carolinians; an alleged plot to overthrow the government of a Caribbean island nation involving North Carolinians; the Greensboro death clash and subsequent charges of a plot to bomb a portion of the city; and scattered reports of military training activities in rural locations around the state.

These activities, Mitchell is convinced, are isolated and sporadic; not part of an increase in either membership or purpose.

And while he is certain that membership is not growing, Mitchell can provide no figures comparing Klan or Nazi enrollees in this state to others; or at different times in recent years. "Anybody who would attempt to provide such figures would be doing so only to serve particular interests of his own...there is no way to get such figures, for obvious reasons," he says.

There are signs that Tar Heels are worried. Police-sponsored self-defense

Other Editors Say Why The Gesture

(Washington Daily News)

Being practical ought to be a measure of value among politicians. And we happen to believe practicality is a fine measure of how a politician rates.

In the 1977 session of the North Carolina General Assembly a constitutional amendment was introduced and passed which set up a referendum for the people of our state to decide the issue.

The issue was whether or not to allow the governor and lieutenant governor the right to succeed themselves. The people approved of this amendment, and Governor Jim Hunt and Lt. Governor Jimmy Green are the first incumbents to take advantage of the new law.

Now along comes Senator Bill Redman, Republican of Iredell County, and he introduces another bill which is a constitutional amendment prohibiting the governor and lieutenant governor from succeeding themselves.

Why would he propose such a constitutional amendment as this when the voters have just amended our state constitution to allow such succession?

Maybe Senator Redman feels that he can gain a little political mileage by making such a proposal. Maybe it might eventually become part of the North Carolina Republican platform. If that be true, then perhaps he proposed it because his party stands against such succession.

But the time of the senator himself and the legislature can better be spent in trying to handle business that can and ought to be handled. It is a case of wasting time to put in such a bill as this one right now, we believe.

Let us be clear on one point. What we say here is mere opinion, and yet we have the distinct feeling that Senator Redman's bill will never get out of committee. If it does, surely it will bear an "unfavorable" report.

This is the type of bill that only the majority party in the state legislature can handle with any promise of success. And since the bill is there under Republican sponsorship, we must guess that someone wishes to gain political mileage rather than constitutional success.

We do not know Senator Redman; but his bill stands just two chances in the legislature — slight and none.

But his bill is now before the Senate Constitutional Committee and that committee is overwhelmingly composed of Democrats.

We doubt that we shall hear from it again soon.

Strength For Today

TRUST THE CAPTAIN

A passenger aboard a cruise ship was very critical of the manner in which the captain handled and navigated the ship. Yet, when questioned about his own experience, the critic admitted that he was making his first voyage on the open sea.

It is a favorite human trait to find fault with the ship's course, so to speak, when we ourselves do not know how to navigate or even how to steer. Any private would gladly lecture the generals on strategy. We all know what is wrong with the world and how we would make everything right, if only we were running it and not God.

Yet, if God put the steering wheel in our hands would we really know which way to turn it? This is quite doubtful. We all have our own infinitesimally small tasks about this great ship which is the world. We should do these as well as we can, and have faith in the Captain who in his infinite wisdom sets our course. — Elisha Douglass

The Secular Humanists

The new threat to this country, if you believe the Moral Majority and the television preachers, is not Communists or fellow travelers, but "secular humanists."

The "secular humanists" are the ones who are brainwashing our children with books about evolution, sex, race relations, ERA and naughty words.

This means we have to get the books out of the schools and libraries. The book censors are starting to organize, the moral crusade has begun and the hunt for secular humanists is on.

I am always intimidated by book-burners, so I want to get on the bandwagon as soon as possible.

My problem is, unlike the Red-baiting witch hunts of the McCarthy days, I find it and novels, and explaining how babies are born. They pollute children's minds with how the world is, rather than how the anti-humanists would like it to be.

What makes them so dangerous is that secular humanists look just like you and me. Some of them could be your best friends without you knowing they are humanists. They could come into your house, play with your children, eat your food and even watch football with you on television, and you'd never know that they have read "Catcher in the Rye" "Brave New World" and "Huckleberry Finn."

Of course there are some who flaunt their humanism, and will brag they're for abortion, and against prayers in public schools. You can throw them out of the house.

But for every secular humanist who will tell where he or she stands on a fundamentalist issue, there are 10 who keep their thoughts to themselves and are working to destroy the American family.

No one is safe until Congress sets up an Anti-Secular Humanism Committee to get at the rot. Witnesses have to be called, and they have to name names of other secular humanists they know.

Librarians and teachers must be made to answer for the books they have on their shelves. Publishers have to be held accountable for what they print. Writers must be punished for what they write.

The secular humanists should be put on notice that they can no longer hide behind the First Amendment.

If we're going to go back to the old moral values that made this country great, we're going to have to do it with search-and-destroy methods. First, we must burn the books — and if that isn't enough, then we must burn the people.

(c) 1981, Los Angeles Times Syndicate impossible to know who a secular humanist is.

It was easy to tell a Commie or fellow traveler in the '50s, because he always carried a "Daily Worker" under his arm, and didn't bother to shine his shoes. He never had a nice thing to say about Sen. Joe McCarthy or Roy Cohen, and he kept taking the Fifth Amendment when he was called in front of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Also, you could check up on him by finding out if he once belonged to one of the hundreds of subversive organizations listed by the government as being for the violent overthrow of the government.

But a secular humanist is a different breed of cat. From what I can gather, he is much harder to identify unless he openly admits he thinks Darwin's theory of creation makes sense.

Secular humanists are not joiners. They don't have cells where they plot anti-American and anti-God propaganda. Most of them work alone, doing historical research, writing textbooks

Weinberger Scored Well

By ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Even before West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt arrived here for talks with President Reagan, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, in secret talks in Europe, had laid down a hard bargaining position to prevent the Germans from reneging on their commitment to modernize NATO's nuclear weapons.

Weinberger's warning: If the socialist regime in Bonn fails to follow through on modernizing NATO's antiquated nuclear arms and on building up the alliance's conventional strength, there will be harsh consequences; the Reagan administration will have no obligation to fulfill its pledge to negotiate reduction of Central European nuclear arms with the Soviet Union.

After that threat, the Germans acquiesced — at least for the time being. Thus, Weinberger's debut May 12 at the NATO meeting in Brussels as the West's foremost defense official proved a success.

He turned the tables on West Germany and some other members of the Western alliance. They are exerting pressure on Reagan to get the nuclear arms talks started with the Russians, but they drag their feet on the defense buildup.

Although the Weinberger threat was couched in diplomatic niceties, behind his calm words the chilling force of his argument was unmistakable. Sitting at the long table in NATO's Brussels headquarters, Weinberger did not like what he was hearing from West German Defense Minister Hans Apel. Apel seemed to be hedging on the long-established pledge for a 3 percent annual increase in NATO defense spending.

"Words, words, words," Apel complained to Weinberger. "All we do is talk about words and formulas." Instead of "words," said Apel, "performance" was the important yardstick.

That sounded to Weinberger like the overture to bad news from the Germans: a refusal by Apel to be pinned down to specific spending for strengthening NATO at the 3 percent rate. Such German reluctance conflicts with U.S. intelligence estimates that the Soviets have been escalating their Warsaw Pact spending at least by 4 percent a year since 1970.

Weinberger's suspicions proved accurate. When Apel offered a skimpy West German spending figure with a bonus the second year if his figures were accepted, Weinberger rejected it out of hand. Quite apart from its inadequacy for stockpiles and conventional arms, Weinberger told Apel that his offer would leave a dangerous shortfall in the nuclear modernization program — particularly for the ground-launched cruise missiles to be deployed in West Germany.

It was at this point that Weinberger, speaking quietly, issued his warning: If the Germans hedged on their commitment to nuclear modernization, they must understand that Reagan would be free to hedge on his pledge to start arms talks with Moscow.

Weinberger, backed by NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns, kept pressing Apel in a tense session that ran far beyond scheduled adjournment into the late evening. Here was Mr. Tough Cop skillfully following up Secretary of State Alexander Haig's Mr. Nice Cop routine at the Rome meeting of NATO foreign ministers two weeks earlier; the U.S. in Rome agreed to start nuclear talks with Moscow late this year.

Haig's performance laid the foundation for Reagan's unfolding NATO strategy: agree to nuclear talks while NATO rebuilds its nuclear arsenal. Weinberger added the superstructure in Brussels: Make clear that the promise to talk with Moscow was contingent on West Germany's performance on nuclear modernization.

Before recessing that evening, Apel had increased the West German contribution by almost one-third. He also had agreed to NATO

To the editor:

Well, it has happened again. The students of Chocod's sixth, seventh and eighth grades and D. H. Conley High School's band gave their spring concert May 21.

They all gave a splendid performance. They have worked hard and have every reason to be proud of themselves.

To the students that received music awards, I congratulate you for your accomplishment.

I would like to commend Mr. James Fleming for a wonderful job he did as the teacher and director for both school. He is a talented and dedicated teacher and it shows in his students when they perform.

I have one more thing to add. Thursday (May 26), the Chocod band and the Conley jazz band preformed for the students at Chocod. The jazz band did a superb job. Thanks to the East Carolina University student that accompanied them on the base guitar.

We as parents, teachers and members of the community are very proud of these students.

Thank you so much for all the hard work you have put into this.

Some Knew Inflation's Rules

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Those who managed to take a day trip to mountain, lake or seashore resorts over the holiday received a vivid and "maybe painful illustration of an important phenomenon of economic life, to wit:

While many Americans — two-thirds, by some estimates — are struggling to keep from being inundated by the tide of inflation, others are afloat in a life style they never had dreamed would be theirs.

The luxurious second homes, the boats, the fine cars, the clubs and fancy restaurants attest to the good times some people are able to live during a period of inflation that has left others badly strained.

Who are these people who have managed to figure out inflation? The professionals, to begin with. The doctors and lawyers who have been able to adjust fees to the rate of inflation, and sometimes even more.

Middle and top corporate managers join them — men and women whose families are raised and whose housing bills have been paid and who now find themselves at their peak earning power. Soon they will be retired.

Retirees, in fact, are often included among those enjoying the good life. Having had the fortune and foresight to invest when they could, they greatly supplement their pensions. And some have proceeds from selling city-area houses at prices higher than those at the resorts.

Two income-families are sometimes among the comfortable set. In many households both parents work because they must. In others they work for the "little" extras, like a cottage. Over the years they add to the cottage, probably renting it out from time to time. Their mortgage rate is low, and so is the mortgage itself. But the value has skyrocketed.

Entertainment people are among those living the good life. Performer incomes, including those of athletes in a dozen different sports, have soared in recent years. And none of them needs an investment adviser to encourage them to invest in the good life. They do it naturally.

And then there is that type of person we all know, the individual who figured out long ago that if inflation was the name of the game, as they say, he would learn the rules and play the game to the ultimate.

He ignored the old thesis that said you lived conservatively and you saved regularly for that day in the future when you could raise your lifestyle. He wanted it now, and he borrowed in order to buy it.

He bought his second home when they weren't so popular. He put down as little as he could and he borrowed the rest at interest rates less than half those of today. If pressed, he refinanced. Now he may rent his place at big prices to those with money beyond their immediate means.

These are among the people who own those places the day-trippers envy. Unlike so many hourly and salaried workers, they have the ability to float rather than be swamped by the inflation tide.

Various studies have long shown the sharp dichotomy in the two styles of life, but there is nothing like a day trip to the prime resorts near every population center to bring home the point in vivid, living color.

Five Wrecks Investigated By Police

An estimated $6,950 damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 3:05 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Elm Streets, involving cars driven by Charles Lewis Spivey of Garden Grove, Ca., Nola Cowell of B5 Wilson Acres, and Anne Suggs of 402 South Elm St.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $1,500 to the Spivey car, $800 to the Cowell vehicle and $500 to the Suggs car.

Betsy Marie Davis of Route 2, Conway, was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of a 3:30 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Grande Avenue and Chestnut Street.

Investigators reported the Davis car collided with an auto driven by McDonald Carr Jr. of Route 2, Winterville, causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the Davis car and $850 damage to the Carr vehicle.

A car driven by Lynne Griffith Markes of 809 East First St. and a truck operated by Elvis Earl Acklin of Route 1, Chocowinity, collided about 2:55 p.m. on Fifth Street, 25 feet west of the Meade Street intersection, resulting in an estimated $700 damage to the car and $250 damage to the truck.

Cars driven by Kenneth Earl Buck of Route 6, Greenville and Judy Christiansen Warren of 310 Queen Anne's Rd. collided about 4:17 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 1,500 feet west of the Arlington Boulevard intersection.

Damage to the Buck car was estimated at $400 while damage to the Warren vehicle was estimated at $350.

Officers said cars driven by Cecil Wayne Mercer of 529 Crestline Blvd. and Joe Anderson of 611 Clark St. collided about 4:34 p.m. on Greene Street, 750 feet south of the Moore Street intersection, causing an estimated $400 damage to the Mercer car and $200 damage to the Anderson auto.

Catholic Grads To Be Honored

The Greenville Catholic Community will celebrate a special liturgy honoring its graduating seniors Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

FOCUS

The Voting Rights Act

As recently as 1964, the basic right to vote was denied to many black Americans, especially in some Southern states. The Voting Rights Act of 1965 changed that. The changes in numbers of black voters in some states, from 1964 to 1980, were dramatic: In Alabama, from 111,000 to 350,000; in Louisiana, from 165,000 to 465,000; and in Mississippi, from 29,000 to 330,000. Now the future of the Voting Rights Act is in question. Recently Congress began debating whether to extend the Act, parts of which expire in 1982. Those arguing against the extension say the Act is no longer needed to ensure the basic rights of black voters.

DO YOU KNOW — Which President fought for and succeeded in getting the Voting Rights Act passed during his administration?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Jackie Robinson broke major league baseball's "color line" in 1947.

courses and handgun courses in various locations quickly fill up with enrollees interested in learning to defend themselves. There are some places, especially inner city areas even in this state, where the elderly fear walking alone to the local drugstore or cafeteria — even at noon — for fear of being mugged or attacked. Mitchell points out.

"There is a spreading sense of isolation and fear. It seems, sometimes, as though we are returning to Medieval times when each individual had to take responsibility for his own safety and learn to defend himself. People felt secure only in their own garden with men at arms on guard," Mitchell said.

Defense

"At this time there is no apparent movement to organize people into self-defense action groups, and there is no rush to join such as the Klan because most people don't like that organization. But there is a personal sense of isolation which, if an organization came along which they could identify with, a number of individuals might wish to join," he added.

The solution is to exercise the feeling that one must take personal action and responsibility, Mitchell feels, through a proven method — Community Crime Watch organizations. "The only way to return security to our society is to cut the crime rate; and we can demonstrate that a well-trained and organized crime watch program can cut crimes as much as 80 percent."

Mitchell hopes that through organized citizen response in a positive, non-militant way, along with renewed efforts by law enforcement people and the courts, safety can be restored to society.

Honors Two

ECU News Bureau
Michael Anthony Bell of Simpson and Morehead City and Helen Elizabeth Smith of Mooresville, both recent graduates of the ECU Department of Biology, were recognized at a recent departmental ceremony.

Bell was given the 1981 Mary Caughey Helms Award, on the basis of superior academic achievement and participation in independent research.

During his studies at ECU, Bell was involved in research on the mouse heart with Dr. Gerhard Kalmus of the biology faculty, the results of which were presented to the annual meeting of the N.C. Academy of Science in April. Bell has been president of Alpha Epsilon Delta pre-medical honor society, Phi Sigma Pi honor fraternity and winner of the 1980-81 campus-wide Outstanding Senior Award.

MUSIC PROGRAM

Mills Chapel Free Will Baptist Church will hold a special music program Saturday night at 8:00 p.m. The Golden Jubilee will be the guest. Pastor J.L. Swinson invite the public to attend.

He will enter the ECU School of Medicine this fall. His parents are Harry Bell Jr. and Doris Hill of Morehead City.

The Helms Award, established in 1967, honors a member of the East Carolina biology faculty for 40 years.

Also honored was Helen Elizabeth Smith, who was given the biology department's Outstanding Senior Award.

She is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Phi Eta Sigma and Chi Beta Phi honor societies as well as Alpha Epsilon Delta pre-medical society.

This fall, Ms. Smith will begin medical studies at UNC-Chapel Hill.

cruise missile spending of some $280 million to start the dangerously overdue process toward deployment of the ground-launched, nuclear-armed cruise missiles.

The May 12 session ended in harmony. It put the U.S. and West Germany on as solid a footing as possible, given the contradiction between Reagan's determination to restore Western defenses against the Soviet challenge at any cost and the tendency by the potent left wing of Schmidt's Social Democratic Party toward dealing with Moscow at any cost.

Chancellor Schmidt's visit to Washington did nothing to undermine the accomplishments of Reagan's men in Rome and Brussels. Still, the threat to the Washington-Bonn alliance has been diminished only marginally. It will take astute statecraft to reverse the centrifugal forces that are pulling the old allies apart.

Life As It's Lived

The Losing Battle In Correcting Of Grammer

By GAIL MICHAELS
Phillip and I realize that no married couple is ever going to be completely compatible. A husband and a wife just have to learn to live with each other's differences.
For instance, I've learned to accept the fact that the only way Phillip is ever going to clean the clothes of the top of the dresser is with a forklift. I've even managed to accept his definition of shared housework as wiping the table off after dinner. And he has accepted my belief that any woman who irons permanent press ought to be institutionalized.
But I will never get used to his grammar. I simply cannot avoid correcting him when he uses "I" as the object of the preposition.
It's a common error, I know. But I would rather have him run his fingernails across a blackboard than hear him say something like, "She went with Jimmy and I."
"You wouldn't say, 'She's going with I,' would you?" I ranted for the umpteenth time. "So you don't say, 'Jimmy and I.' You say 'Jimmy and me.' 'She's going with Jimmy and me.'"
He grinned. "I thought she was going with me."
"This is not a laughing matter. You're driving me crazy."
"So what else is new? Besides, that's the way I was taught."
"You were not. You were taught to say, 'She is smarter than I,' or 'He is as handsome as I.' You were not taught to say, 'She went with I.'"
Phillip sighed. "Living with you is like taking final exams."
"You'll be a better person for it."
"That's debatable. I just cannot understand why this bothers you so much when there are so many real problems in the world like hunger and poverty and —" he added in a more menacing voice — "wife abuse."

"If hearing you mutilate the English language isn't abuse, I don't know what is. And you're one of many. It's appalling."
"That should tell you something right there. After all, the English language is changing all the time."
"Not that much, it isn't. That's like saying lots of people are committing murder, so it's okay to poison your wife."
"I doubt very much if God considers bad grammar a cardinal sin."
"I don't know about that. I once had a professor who swore that when God found Adam and Eve hiding in the Garden, He wanted to know why, and Adam answered, 'Just between you and I, it was Eve's fault.'"

ECU Graduate Accepts Post

ECU News Bureau
Edward Nelson Burchette of Winston-Salem, a recent graduate of East Carolina University, has accepted a position with the ECU Program for Hearing-Impaired Students.
Burchette, who received the BA degree in geography, will teach credit courses in American Sign Language on campus through the ECU Department of Speech, Language and Auditory Pathology.
In addition to on-campus classes in beginning, intermediate and advanced sign language, Burchette will teach sign language classes for community groups and be involved in various citizen awareness work through the Eastern N.C. Community Service Center for the Hearing Impaired.
Before coming to ECU, Burchette studied at Gallaudet College in Washington, D.C., the nation's only college for deaf students.

"And God said, 'Get thee hence! Anyone who uses I as the object of a preposition does not deserve Paradise.'"
Phillip groaned. "In that case, I would like to point out that your grammar is not perfect either."
"I know. But my mistakes are called colloquialisms. Your mistakes are called sloppy."
He rolled his eyes.
"Well, if you don't care about my feelings, think of your daughter. Is she going to learn to speak incorrectly just because you're too lazy to clean up your act?"
I have to give him credit. For Meg's sake, he has tried lately to put my grammar lesson into practice. But he keeps forgetting. And every time he makes a mistake, I get the sinking feeling that, before long, Meg's grammar will be making me grit my teeth, too.
I was discussing this problem with a third grade teacher with whom I am acquainted, and she was commiserating with me. "But," she added, "just between you and I, it's a hard lesson to learn."
Something tells me I don't have a chance.

Driving Class To Be Offered

Pitt Community College will be starting an Adult Driver Training Class Tuesday night, June 2, at 7:00 p.m. The class will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7-10 p.m. for six weeks. The driving portion will be given late afternoons and Saturdays.
This course will cost $30, and to be eligible to register, one must be at least 18 years of age and out of public school. Enrollment will be limited.
For further information, contact the Continuing Education Division at Pitt Community College at 756-3130, Ext. 283 or 266.

Military Pay Raises Deferred

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite his call for higher military pay, President Reagan is agreeing to defer a July 1 across-the-board salary increase for the armed forces.
But a selective military pay increase, which Reagan endorsed this week during a commencement address at the U.S. Military Academy in West Point, N.Y., is expected to sail through a Senate subcommittee next week.
Reagan announced Thursday that he had agreed to postpone a flat 5.3 percent military pay raise from July 1 to Oct. 1. It was one of several budget changes approved by the president to trim about $4 billion from the projected budget deficit for the current fiscal year.
The White House said that without the cost-saving moves, the deficit would balloon to more than $60 billion because of cost overruns and other factors. It had been estimated at $55 billion when the president submitted his budget proposals in February.
Reagan had sought the July 1 pay raise in addition to an increase estimated at 9.1 percent to take effect Oct. 1.

The House Armed Services Committee voted to put the whole increase off until October, and members of the Senate panel have indicated they will do the same. This would save an estimated $420 million.
Reagan's deputy press secretary, Larry Speakes, said Thursday that the president had acquiesced in the deferral although it was "too bad" the House panel had not approved the July 1 increase.
In the commencement address, Reagan endorsed for the first time the idea of making the pay hike selective.
"We seek to channel pay increases and bonuses to those in the most needed skill areas," he said. "We are studying proposals for a merit pay system and increased flexibility in personnel practices."
Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on military manpower, and Sen. J. James Exon, D-Neb., the subcommittee's ranking Democrat, both have introduced bills to target the pay raises.
Greg Pallas, Exon's legislative assistant, said the two senators would try to reach a consensus on a single bill by the time the subcommittee meets next Thursday. He said Exon was "absolutely" confident a selective pay raise would be approved.
Mike Moran, Jepsen's press secretary, said he was "fairly sure" the subcommittee and the full Armed Services Committee would "move in the direction" of the Jepsen bill.
Under Exon's bill, all military personnel would get whatever increase a presidential board recommends. Noncommissioned and petty officers would get an additional 5.3 percent to 7.3 percent.

Exon said earlier this month that incentives are "critically needed" to encourage noncommissioned and petty officers to remain in the service.
Jepsen's bill would graduate the pay raise by giving a larger share of it to those with more years in the service. Jepsen told the Senate that "mid-career personnel are literally forced out because their military salaries cannot compete with those available in civilian life."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., also a member of the Armed Services Committee, has suggested basing salary increases on skills.
At a subcommittee hearing May 7, Nunn said a sergeant who is a computer repair specialist could earn about $35,000 a year in civilian life, or roughly double what he gets in the service. On the other hand, he said, a sergeant with a skill that is less in demand can make more in the service than he could outside.

At that hearing, Lawrence J. Korb, assistant secretary of defense for manpower, said targeting the proposed July 1 increases would "simply raise the frustration level of the 'have-nots' who will perceive that they have been left out in the cold."
Korb added, however, that the Pentagon was studying some kind of selective increases for October.
A House bill calls for an across-the-board increase of 14.3 percent.
An 11.7 percent military pay increase went into effect last October.

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

IN THIS MODERN DAY AND AGE, WE HAVE BECOME USED TO LARGE SIZES—HUGE FOOT-BALL PLAYERS, TOWERING BASKETBALL STARS, ETC. BUT WE STILL HAVE A LONG WAY TO GO IF WE WANT TO TOP WHAT THE BIBLE TERMS AS GIANT. THESE TWO SEVEN-FOOT BASKETBALL PLAYERS AND AN AVERAGE-SIZE FIVE-FOOT, TEN-INCH COACH PALE IN COMPARISON NEXT TO THE BIBLE'S GOLIATH.

WE LEARN IN I SAMUEL 17:4-7, THAT GOLIATH STOOD SIX CUBITS AND A SPAN. THE CUBIT BEING APPROXIMATELY TWENTY INCHES, A SPAN NINE INCHES, PUTS GOLIATH'S HEIGHT AT TEN AND A HALF FEET—A HALF FOOT HIGHER THAN THE BASKET WHICH HANGS TEN FEET ABOVE THE BASKETBALL COURT!

GOLIATH'S COAT OF MAIL, THE BIBLE TELLS US, WEIGHED FIVE THOUSAND BRASS SHEKELS—WELL OVER A HUNDRED POUNDS. THE IRON SPEARHEAD WEIGHED MORE THAN FIFTY POUNDS AND THE STAFF OF THE SPEAR WAS AS THICK AS A WEAVER'S BEAM, WHICH IS A LITTLE THICKER THAN AN AVERAGE MAN'S WRIST—A FEARSOME FOE IN EVERY RESPECT!

HOWEVER, THE SPRY AND AGILE YOUNG LAD, DAVID—WHO, NOT BEING FULL-GROWN, COULD HARDLY HAVE STOOD MORE THAN FIVE FEET AT THE TIME (JUST HALF GOLIATH'S HEIGHT) TAUGHT GOLIATH AND THE WORLD A BIG LESSON—THAT NO MATTER HOW FORMIDABLE THE ADVERSARY, ONE CAN OVERCOME IF HE IS FILLED WITH COURAGE AND A FIRM BELIEF IN THE RIGHTOUSNESS OF HIS CAUSE!

NEXT WEEK: A BIBLICAL EFFICIENCY EXPERT—IN NO UNCERTAIN TERMS!

Presbyterian Assembly Sees Harmony

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Presbyterians, with a bent for arguing theology, played it with rare harmony at their governing assemblies, overwhelmingly concurring on a key doctrinal stance and bringing sundry differences into accord.

A "love feast," William P. Thompson of New York, chief executive of the mostly northern United Presbyterian church, called the eight-day affair.

"A celebrative assembly," said the new moderator of the southern Presbyterian Church of the U.S., Dorothy Barnard of St. Louis.

Governing assemblies of both denominations, divided since the Civil War, met simultaneously in halls at opposite ends of a convention center, but they acted in concert on many matters, gearing up for reunion planned for 1983.

"A very solid stomping ahead," the southern church's administrator, the Rev. James Andrews of Atlanta, characterized the heavy week of morning-to-midnight deliberations, votes and worship, often of both denominations together.

"Liberals, moderates and conservatives were all together here," said the Rev. Robert M. Davidson of New York, moderator of the mostly northern body. "We were far more united."

What was seen as the main accomplishment was the virtually unanimous disposition of a threatening doctrinal cloud hanging over the mostly northern church, whipping gusts into the southern body.

Both dealt with the problem head on, proclaiming unequivocally their adherence to Christianity's hallmark conviction — that Jesus Christ is truly God and truly human.

"This mystery of God's grace in Jesus Christ ... is what ties Christians together in a common faith and life across the centuries," said the United Presbyterian declaration, similar to one by the southern body.

The affirmations aimed at dispelling fears over the church stand resulting from examination answers given by a recently admitted clergyman, the Rev. Mansfield Kaseman of Rockville, Md., who many felt had hedged on the issue.

But the church representatives, north and south, stood together solidly about it, including conservative groups that hailed the action.

In response to doubts cast on the church, Thompson told the assembly, "You have said resoundingly that this church adheres to the theological position it has held through the centuries."

The assembly declared, "God came to redeem this world of lost children and to open the way to eternal life, through the birth, life, death and resurrection of Jesus of Nazareth."

"This Jesus who is one with us in our common humanity is one with God as the

Both denominations also firmed up their links to local congregations, the larger northern church putting into effect specific new provisions that local church property is held "in trust" for the whole denomination. The southern church initiated similar provisions, still subject to ratification.

The change "makes explicit what always has been implied," Andrews said.

But spelling it out was necessitated by a 1979 U.S. Supreme Court decision up-setting a long-time precedent and holding that congregational property disputes may be settled under civil law unless a denomination specifies the "trust" connection.

About 66 of 8,832 United Presbyterian congregations and about 12 of the southern church's 4,159 congregations have sought to quit the denominations, often trying to take buildings with them.

Presbyterians have "turned a corner" in resolving the problem, Thompson said, noting almost unanimous ratification of the new property provisions, demonstrating the interlinked "organic character of the church of Jesus Christ."

He said deep pain was felt that some members "for one reason or another are disaffected and take action to sever relations. It's like amputation of a member of the body."

Expressing devotion to congregations that have resisted a new requirement of the mostly northern church

Choir To Give Sun. Program

The choir of First Free Will Baptist Church, 2600 South Charles St., will present a program of familiar Christian music Sunday at 7 p.m.

The choir will be directed by the pastor, Rev. Harry Grubbs, and will be accompanied by Mrs. Ruth Taylor, organist. Solists will be Donna George, Harry Grubbs, Connie Hines, and Wendy Mills plus a piano solo by Dr. Patricia Rice. Music by such contemporary guests as Ralph Carmichael, Bill Gaither, and Otis Skillings will be featured.

The choir, pastor and church invite the public.

Revival This Week

A revival will be held this week at Holy Mission, 905 Dickinson Ave. Services begin Sunday at 7:30 p.m. with Minister Quincy Gardner. There will be a different speaker each night.

Monday night, the service will be conducted by Eldress Annie Dixon from Greenville. There will be no service Tuesday night. Wednesday night, Eldress Mattie Ann Smith of Ayden will be in charge. Pastor Shirley Atkinson will lead the service Thursday night. Friday night, Evangelist Dianna Harris from Greenville will be the speaker. Pastor Shirley Atkinson invites the public to attend these special services.

that women be included among congregational officers, its assembly authorized a conciliatory letter to them.

The requirement, which allows for exemptions, is one of the practical differences with the southern denomination, which encourages inclusion of women among officers but does not make it mandatory.

"We've found that trying to force it is counter-productive," said Mrs. Barnard. "Guidelines and persuasion work better with us. We need to be sensitive and listen to the concerns and hurts."

Despite contrasts in style, however, leaders of both denominations spoke optimistically of the planned reunion and said compromises were envisioned for allowing options on some of the variations in custom.

Combined, the denominations have about 3.3 million members, with signs of growth reported after a long decline. 2.4 million in the mostly northern church, 900,000 in the southern body.

The southern church turned down a move that potentially would have allowed formation of joint regional units (presbyteries) outside the South with the mostly northern denomination, after a reunion leader warned that this might be resented as a roundabout way of achieving reunion through the back door.

But the southern assembly voiced strong support for reunion, urging increased joint work and declaring the shared "common heritage," the "unity of faith and life" and the "necessity of a strong Christian mission in this nation and world" behoove reunion.

Three May Run Against Hobby

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Three possible candidates are lining up to run against state AFL-CIO president Wilbur Hobby, indicted on federal charges of misusing job-training funds.

Christopher Scott, a former AFL-CIO lobbyist, said Wednesday he will run against his former boss for the top spot at the state labor organization's convention in September.

E.A. Britt, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer and now the group's acting president in Hobby's absence, is also a candidate for the job.

Another possible candidate is John Durand, a Burlington firefighter and head of a local chapter of the International Association of Firefighters.

State Jaycees Will Convene

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — More than 2,000 North Carolina Jaycees are expected to gather in Charlotte this weekend for the group's annual convention.

Touted as the "Party of the Year," the convention will be in stark contrast to last year's, when the Jaycees were rocked by the "Jamsam" scandal. Three past state presidents were indicted on charges of misusing charity money.

Dupree New Pirate Club
Exec. Director

Richard Bennett Dupree was named this morning the new Executive Director of the East Carolina University Educational Foundation.

Dupree succeeds Gus Andrews, who resigned in mid-May after being executive director of the Pirate Club since 1976.

The 32-year-old Dupree has been associated with ECU for 14 years, both as a student and a faculty member. After earning a master's degree in business administration in 1976, he became a faculty member in the School of Business.

"I'm staying at home. East Carolina is my home," Dupree said after being introduced by incoming Pirate Club president Tommie Little at a morning press conference announcing the appointment.

"I can describe in one simple word the real reason I want to work for East Carolina University and its athletic program — (Please turn to page 14)

Strike Deadline Extended; Hearing Set Wednesday

NEW YORK (AP) — It could be for just a week, but America today still had major league baseball to cheer, boo and argue over, thanks to a last-minute deal and a federal judge who quotes Abbott and Costello.

The threat of the sport's third strike in nine years evaporated for now when representatives of the players and the club owners agreed to extend the deadline beyond today when the players were to strike over the free agent compensation issue.

While not issuing a no-strike order, U.S. District Judge Henry Werker allowed the delay to take effect, and set a hearing for next Wednesday in Rochester, N.Y., on a National Labor Relations Board request for a preliminary injunction.

At a meeting of its executive board Thursday night, the Major League Players Association made it official: No strike, at least until Werker rules on the NLRB's injunction request.

"There will be no strike until we see what the court does," said Baltimore Orioles third baseman Doug DeCinces, the American League player representative. "Once they rule, we'll see if the outcome is positive or negative for the association."

"If it's positive, it looks like we won't have a strike. If it's negative, we could go out. And if there's no movement, there will be a strike."

Philadelphia Phillies catcher Bob Boone, the National League player rep, said there was "no way of telling" if the entire season would be played.

"There are too many variables involved," Boone said. "I would hope this issue can be bargained out and negotiated fairly. But now there's hope that we can keep baseball in front of the country."

Avoidance of a strike had nothing to do with progress at the bargaining table. The talks appeared deadlocked this week, and Thursday's scheduled session was canceled at the insistence of both sides, according to federal mediator Kenneth Moffett.

Moffett said he would contact both the Players Association and the Player Relations Committee, the owners' bargaining arm, today, but doubted that he could interest them in resuming negotiations until Werker has ruled.

The injunction request before Werker would rescind the free agent compensation plan the owners unilaterally implemented Feb. 20.

Similar to the collective bargaining agreement which narrowly avoided a strike last season, the NLRB proposal would have the two sides again try to reach a compensation compromise. If they again failed to do so, the owners could place their plan into effect between Feb. 15 and 20, 1982; the players would then have until June 1, 1982, to strike.

They could also strike within 24 to 48 hours after Werker issued his ruling on the injunction request. With the hearing to begin Wednesday, then, the earliest a strike could come would be next Friday. But Werker told the two sides that his consideration of the case could be delayed by other hearings and trials as part of his two-week assignment in Rochester.

The players favor the NLRB proposal. While it does not give them anything new, it would preserve the compensation system which existed since the reserve clause was struck down in 1976, so that a team losing a free agent receives only an amateur draft choice in return from the signing team.

"There's nothing concrete gained," said DeCinces, "but we maintain the status quo — and that's what we're asking."

The plan implemented by the owners last February would award major league players to teams losing "premium" free agents — those meeting certain statistical standards and picked by at least eight teams in the re-entry draft.

That plan, the players argue, would force them to give up freedom of movement they have won in previous court cases and negotiations.

The injunction request on free agent compensation is only part of the NLRB's action resulting from the Players Association charge of bad-faith bargaining by the owners.

A June 15 hearing is set here before an administrative law judge on a complaint by William Lubbers, the NLRB's general counsel, that the owners have engaged in unfair labor practices by keeping their clubs' financial records from the players.

Lubbers on Tuesday agreed with the players that they needed the information to determine the financial impact of free agency on baseball.

Thursday's agreement to postpone the strike followed 7½ hours of closed-door discussions involving Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association; Ray Grebey, director of the Player Relations Committee, and Daniel Silverman, the NLRB's New York regional director.

In the federal courthouse across Foley Square from the NLRB's offices, Werker opened the court session by alluding to a classic comedy routine about baseball.

"Use Abbott and Costello," he said. "Who's on first?"

Silverman explained the situation, and Werker told of his Rochester assignment. The judge then adjourned to his chambers with Donald Fehr, general counsel to the Players Association, and Louis Hoynes, the National League's attorney.

When they returned to the courtroom, Hoynes asked permission to read into the court records the agreement to postpone the strike.

"The parties to the agreement have asked that the strike be extended until 48 hours following a court ruling," Hoynes said.

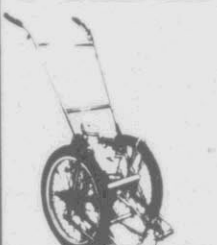

Miller said after the executive board meeting that the NLRB's request for an injunction was a victory for the players.

"We have been insistent all along, and now we have a national party charged with upholding labor law that agreed with us, that (the owners) have bargained unfairly," he said.

Grebey, however, said the matter belonged back in negotiations.

Rose Winners

Greenville Rose held its annual All-Sports Banquet last night. Among those receiving awards were (l to r): Jack Mann (golf MVP), Roger Williams (baseball co-MVP), Emmett

Walsh (baseball co-MVP), James Brewington (most dedicated basketball, most improved football) and Donald Johnson (basketball, football MVP, Dixon Cup). (Reflector photo)

A Staff Report

Donald Johnson and Bernestine Haselrig were named the most outstanding senior male and female athletes Thursday night at the Greenville Rose All-Sports Banquet.

In a vote of the school's athletes, Johnson won the Dixon Cup and Haselrig the H.L. Hodges Award as the school's outstanding senior athletes.

Stuart Ward received the Kiwanis Cup, symbolic of all-around sportsmanship by a senior.

Along with the Dixon Cup, Johnson was named the most valuable player in basketball and football. Haselrig also captured the Tennis Award and Most Outstanding Field Award in track.

Other double winners were Harry Williams, James Brewington and Kevin O'Neal. Williams received the Coaches Award in cross country and the Most Outstanding Track Award. Brewington was named most improved in football and most dedicated in basketball. O'Neal was named the most outstanding senior swimmer and also received the coaches award in swimming.

Roger Williams and Emmett Walsh tied for the Topping Award, symbolic of Rose's most valuable player in baseball. Paul MacMillan won the Joe Wilson Team Before Self trophy. Mark Douglas received the most improved award.

In other football awards, Bobby McRoy was named the best lineman, Jeff Ferrell best defensive player and Kenny Barnes best back.

In another basketball award, William Battle was named the most outstanding player.

In track, sprinter Erskin Evans received the Steelman Award, pole vaulter Mike Thurber the outstanding field award and Edward Frazier the most improved award.

Other MVP recipients for the boys were: Larry Talbert, boys' tennis; Kenny Smith, boys' cross country; Vincent Murphy, wrestling; Jack Mann, golf.

Other MVP recipients for the girls were: Mary Gay, basketball; Martha West, girls' tennis; Heather O'Neal, girls' cross country; Azita Bagheri, volleyball; Anne Richards, girls' swimming; Angie Atkinson, girls' track; Linda Winstead, softball.

In other awards: Heather O'Neal and Jim Piephoff won the most outstanding senior awards in boys' and girls' swimming, respectively; Todd Lynch received the Tennis Award for boys; Suzanne Wille the Coaches Awards in swimming; Belinda Haselrig, Coaches Award in girls' basketball; Tammy Mayo, most outstanding in girls' track; Kim McRoy, most improved in girls' basketball.

Donnell Lee swept the junior varsity awards, winning most valuable in football and basketball. Rudy Stalls was named the junior varsity baseball team's MVP.

Rose also won the Division I Conference All Sports Trophy, the fifth time in the seven years it has been given. The trophy is given for overall athletic excellence by a school.

Before the awards were given out, East Carolina coach Dave Odom gave the featured speech in the Rose High gym.

Mann Leads Rampants With 148

CHAPEL HILL — Greenville Rose, led by Jack Mann's 73, shot a second-day 313 to finish second in the North Carolina High School Athletic Association's golf tournament which concluded Thursday at the Finley Golf Course.

The Rampants finished the two-day tournament with a team score of 630, 23 strokes behind winner Burlington Williams. Mark Thaxton shot a two-under-par 70 Thursday for a 141 total to win individual honors to lead Burlington Williams to the title.

It was the third championship in four years for the Williams, which ended the tournament with a 36-hole total of 607.

High Point Andrews sophomore Mark Jones closed with a final-day 70-144 for second place, and Chris Kite of Alexander Central was third with 73-146. At 148 along with Mann was Neal Braxton of Williams (76).

Mann's 73 Thursday gave him a 148 total, top score on the team. Following Mann for Rose were Tom Brewer at 155 (78), Kelly Kee at 153 (76) and Brian Hill at 172 (84).

Farmville Central's Gary Hobgood finished with an 81 for a two-day score of 156. Ayden-Grifton's Warren Agee shot 80 on both days for a 160 total.

Mauch Finally Accepts Job As Angel Manager

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — "If it's not you, it will be someone else," California Angels' owner Gene Autry says he told Gene Mauch, when Mauch didn't want to take over for about-to-be fired Jim Fregosi as manager of the Angels.

"Then it's me," Autry said Mauch reluctantly told him after the former manager at Philadelphia, Montreal and Minnesota had turned down the job the night before, and repeatedly told the baseball team's owner in recent weeks he did not want to take the reins in midseason. But the Angels said that three teams have been asking the Angels to talk to Mauch about managing, and Autry did not want to lose him.

On Thursday former Angel shortstop Fregosi was formally fired from the team he had directed to its only American League West Division pennant in 1979.

Former movie cowboy and singer Autry offered the job to Mauch Tuesday night, and was turned down, but when he made the offer again Wednesday night Mauch accepted when he was told the Angels were committed to making a managerial change, Autry said.

Mauch, who managed in the major leagues 20½ years, never has won a pennant but finished second with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1964. He left Minnesota in mid-season last year and joined California this year as director of player personnel.

But Mauch has been highly-regarded for the work he did building the Philadelphia and Montreal teams. In Minnesota his teams never had pennant personnel, largely due to a club policy of turning loose high-priced top players, such as seven-time American League batting champion Rod Carew, now with the Angels.

In 1980 the Angels, with a lineup stocked with newly-millionaire free agents, lost most of them to injuries and sagged to a 65-95 record. This year California has started 22-25 to be 7½ games behind AL West leader Oakland.

It was rumored earlier this month that Fregosi, one of the most popular players in the team's history, was on his way out as manager. Autry wondered out loud if Fregosi inspired his players. That was followed by a strong mid-May winning streak, with most of the victories on their last road trip to Milwaukee, Detroit, Cleveland and Baltimore, but the woes of early May resumed when the team came home last week.

"Jimmy did his best," said Angels' executive vice president E.J. "Buzzie" Bavasi. "He gave 110 percent. The club just didn't respond. It was as if the whole team went into a hitting slump at the same time. The thing that bothered Gene most is that some of them just seemed to be going through the motions. Jimmy didn't believe in hitting them over the head, and I don't blame them. You shouldn't have to motivate grown men," Bavasi added.

"Jimmy has been a friend of mine for years," Autry said. "However, we have to think of the best interests of the club and for this reason, we think a change is necessary."

Fregosi, who told friends he planned to go fishing for a few days, reportedly has said privately he does not think the Angels' power-laden lineup fits into the bunt and hit-and-run philosophy Autry has mentioned as a way to push the club out of its slump.

More Rose Winners

Tigers Edge By Northern Nash

TARBORO — For the second straight game, Williamston scored two runs in the seventh inning to avoid elimination in the state 4-A/3-A softball tournament.

Tuesday afternoon the Lady Tigers pushed across two runs in the top of the seventh and went on to defeat Rocky Mount, 5-3. Thursday, Williamston did it again.

Sparked by back-to-back singles by Wanda Price and Gail Smith, Williamston rallied from a one-run deficit to edge past Northern Nash, 5-4, yesterday in the second round of the playoffs.

Williamston will play the winner of the Eastern Wayne-Pender game. Game site and time has yet to be determined.

The Lady Tigers trailed, 4-3, going into the bottom of the seventh and looked beaten when Theresa Duffy flew out for the second out of the inning. But the Tigers proved they weren't dead yet.

With Marsha Griffin on second with a single and Lynn Mills on first with a fielder's choice, Price singled to score Griffin with the tying run. Moments later, Smith singled to score Mills to give Williamston the victory, its 13th in 18 outings.

Northern Nash led 3-0 after three innings. Williamston scored once in the fourth to narrow the gap to 3-1. Northern Nash got that run back in the fifth but the Lady Tigers pushed across two runs in the sixth to cut the deficit to 4-3. One inning later, Williamston scored twice more to escape with the win.

Gail Smith led Williamston at the plate with two hits. She had a double among her two hits.

Hemingway, House Get Sports Awards

BETHEL — Bob Hemingway won two awards, including the Jimmy Bailey Dedication Award, and Ronnie House was named most outstanding in two sports at North Pitt's annual awards banquet this week.

Besides winning the Jimmy Bailey Award, given for overall dedication and excellence in sports, Hemingway also was named the most dedicated player on the baseball team.

House, meanwhile, was named MVP in baseball and was also named the most outstanding back on the football team. The most outstanding lineman award went to Mike Brown. Brown was also named most improved on the baseball team.

The dedication award for football went to Mitchell Leggett.

Paul Tucker came away with the most individual awards on the night — three. He won the Pride & Dedication Award for basketball, the Belvoir Community Award and the Bethel Rotary Athletic Academic Award.

Connie Dupree was also named the recipient of the Bethel Rotary award, which is given to both a male and female athlete. Dupree also won the leadership award in volleyball and the hustle award in basketball.

Gladys Roberson was the only other girl to win more than one award. She was named most improved in basketball and best all-around in softball.

Other awards winners included: Volleyball — Magnolia Harrington, most improved; Sherri Bradley, best all-around; Girls basketball — Jeannette Brown, most valuable; Boys basketball — Dennis Bradey, most improved; Greg Hines, defensive player of the year; Vince Parker, offensive player of the year; Softball — Madge Stancill, leadership award; Shonda Chance, most improved; JV Basketball — Charles Harris, most valuable player; B-team baseball — Mitchell Cox, most valuable player; Cheerleading — Terry Prichard, "Miss Pep".

Other special award winners included: Greg Briley, Stokes-Ruritan Award; Barry Warren, Pactolus Ruritan Club Award; Frank Hemingway and Pauline Tucker, Pride-Service Awards.

Players Waiting For Next Move

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball player union leaders have supported Executive Director Marvin Miller's participation in an agreement to put off their threatened strike, but they are taking a wait-and-see approach to a federal court case on which the postponement was based.

The executive board of the Major League Players Association voted Thursday night to hold off their strike plans while U.S. District Judge Henry Werker considers a National Labor Relations Board request for an injunction.

The strike, over the issue of free agent compensation, was to have started after Thursday night's games. But Miller and Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the 26 club owners, agreed hours before the deadline to allow the game to go on pending next week's court hearing.

"There will be no strike until we see what the court does," said Doug DeCinces of the Baltimore Orioles, the American League player representative. "Once they rule, we'll see if the outcome is positive or negative for the association."

"If it's positive, it looks like we won't have a strike. If it's negative, we could go out. And if there's no movement, there will be a strike."

If the NLRB gets the injunction it is seeking, the players will get another year of free agency as it currently stands, with the only compensation an amateur draft choice.

"There's nothing concrete gained," said Belanger, "but we maintain the status quo — and that's what we're asking."

The Philadelphia Phillies' Bob Boone, the National League player rep, said there was hope of avoiding a strike but refused to predict if the entire season could be saved.

"There are too many variables involved," Boone said. "I would hope this issue can be bargained out and negotiated fairly. But there's hope now that we can keep baseball in front of the country."

Borg Returning To Old Form

PARIS (AP) — Hopes for a long-awaited American victory at the French Open tennis tournament have darkened with the re-emerging brilliance of Bjorn Borg.

"I'm playing better," the Swedish star said Thursday after a second-round victory over Cassio Motta of Brazil. "I'm starting to get more feel for my game. I'm starting to get more confidence."

Borg is one of only three players who have been able to move into the third round on the rain-soaked red clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium. Downpours have marked the first four days of the two-week tournament and forced the postponement of 34 matches Thursday.

Before the rain clouds rolled in, No. 14 seed Wojtek Fibak of Poland and Frenchman Paul Torre, a little-known survivor from the qualifying stages, also made it into the third round. Fibak defeated Fernando Luna of Spain 6-0, 7-6, 6-0, while Torre upset Angel Gimenez of Spain 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Second-seeded American Jimmy Connors' match against Gabriel Urpi of Spain was delayed until Friday, as was the encounter between American Chris Evert Lloyd, No. 1 seed among the women, and Argentina's Claudia Casablanca.

Borg, looking fully recovered from a shoulder injury that kept him out of tournament action for six weeks, had little trouble in posting his 6-1, 7-5, 6-0 victory over Motta in a match played in light rain. Moments after Borg staged his second straight-set victory of the tournament, a storm swept in and halted all action.

"The last couple of games it was a little slippery," said Borg. "The weather has been bad every day since I've been here. But I've been lucky. I've managed to get 2½ hours of practice a day outside in the morning before the rain starts."

Borg knows how desperately he needs that practice. After a poor winter season, he lost to American John McEnroe at the Milan indoor finals in early April. He was eliminated in a first-round match of the Monte Carlo Open a week later.

Doctors determined Borg was suffering from tennis shoulder and ordered him not to pick up a racket for a month. He began practicing only two weeks before the French Open, a Grand Slam event he is favored to win for a record sixth time.

"I don't think I was missing too many balls today," Borg said. "But to get all the way to the finals, I'm going to have to improve my game. I really have to prepare for each match since I haven't played in a while. Every match is tough for me."

The next three seeds hope those matches will get tougher and allow one of them to become the first American man to win the French Open since Tony Trabert clinched the title 26 years ago. Connors and No. 3 seed McEnroe are not noted for their performances on clay. Gene Mayer, seeded fourth, contends he is a man for all surfaces.

"But I think the French Open is the toughest of the Grand Slams to win," said the 25-year-old who is ranked fourth in the world. "There are longer matches here and longer points and that's what makes it difficult."

In winning the individual scoring title in the NBA in the 1980-81 campaign, Adrian Dantley of Utah averaged 30.7 points per game and had 10 contests with 40 or more points.

Bradley, Alex Share Lead At Lights'
GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Much of the talk after the opening round of the $125,000 LPGA Golden Lights Championship focused on the course, with many of the players, especially the leaders, praising it as tough but fair.

The tournament is being played at the 6,239-yard Stanwich Club for the first time after having been held at the Wykagyl Country Club in New Rochelle, N.Y., the previous five years.

"It's truly a championship course from tee to green," said Pat Bradley. "It is a bear."

The 30-year-old Westford, Mass., resident shared the first-round lead after Thursday's play with Janet Alex. Both shot 69s on the par-72 course.

"This is one of the hardest we play," said Alex, 25, a resident of West Sunbury, Pa. "You have to hit the ball soft into the green."

Players who ended the day under par said they found the greens difficult to figure, which forced them to play cautiously. It's a strategy the rest of the field might well consider in the tournament's second round, which is to be played today.

Valenzuela, meanwhile, lasted only 3 1/2 innings and was shelled in the midst of a seven-run rally in the Braves' fourth. That marked the first time that the hard-throwing left-hander had failed to pitch at least seven innings and reduced his season's record to 8-2 after a brilliant 8-0 start that included five shutouts.

"My control was good but they were getting the hits when they needed them," said Valenzuela. "I was just pitching the same way as always. I know I'm going to win some and lose some."

Perry aided his cause with a two-run single in the fourth when the Braves sent 12 batters to the plate and scored seven runs on six hits, two walks and a hit batter.

Perry gave up the Dodgers' first run in the sixth on Ken Landreaux's RBI double, then allowed three more runs in the eighth, two on a homer by Steve Garvey, before getting ninth-inning relief help from Rick Camp.

Reds 7, Giants 4
San Francisco reliever Gary Lavelle's wild pickoff throw let in the tying run and touched off a five-run eighth-inning rally that lifted Cincinnati over the Giants. After Lavelle's off-target toss allowed the Reds to forge a 3-3 tie, Sam Mejias, a seventh inning defensive replacement, singled to put the Reds ahead by a run. George Foster continued the rally with a two-run double and Dan Driessen capped the burst with an RBI single to provide Cincinnati with a 7-3 lead.

"I don't have the words in my vocabulary to describe our fortune here," said Giants Manager Frank Robinson after three straight losses in Cincinnati. "We could have, should have, won all three."

The victory was bittersweet for the Reds, who lost first baseman Johnny Bench when he broke an ankle sliding into second base. A team spokesman said he will be out of action for about eight weeks.

Pirates 9, Cubs 4
Dale Berra's three-run double capped a five-run fifth inning and powered Pittsburgh past Chicago. The triumph was the third straight for the Pirates after dropping the opener of the series, while the woeful Cubs went down to their 31st loss in 40 decisions.

Eddie Solomon, 33, who contributed a run-scoring single in the third, was the winning pitcher while Bill Caudill, 1-4, took the loss.

"I've been able to hit with men on base because I've seen good pitches to hit," said Berra. "Also I've had the chances to hit with men on base. That's the second time I've cleared the bases this season and they add up quickly that way."

Brewers 7, Tigers 1
Roy Howell hit a grand slam homer in the fourth inning and Ted Simmons added a two-run shot in the eighth, leading Milwaukee over Detroit. Mike Caldwell, 5-4, and Rolie Fingers combined on an eight-hitter, with Fingers picking up his ninth save. "I hit it well, no question, but I wasn't standing at the plate, twirling the bat around and watching it," Howell said. "I was running hard and I didn't really look at it."

Rangers 6, Twins 2
Leon Roberts smashed a three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth inning to cap a four-run Texas rally that broke a 2-2 tie and gave the Rangers their victory over Minnesota.

Al Oliver and Buddy Bell opened the eighth with consecutive singles. One out later, John Grubb cracked Twins starter Roger Erickson, 1-5, with a run-scoring single. Roberts then greeted reliever Don Cooper with his second homer of the season.

Valenzuela Starting To Struggle

By The Associated Press

After a fabulous start, Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers is starting to struggle a bit.

Atlanta's Gaylord Perry knows something about struggling.

"It took a few games to get that one," said Perry after recording his 293rd career victory Thursday night with a 9-4 decision over the Dodgers and their news-making rookie pitcher.

The 42-year-old Perry had misfired on three previous starts for victory No. 293 and currently has a 4-3 record.

"The way some guys (pitchers) were getting demoted around here pretty quick, I decided I better do a little bit better, especially in the first inning," said Perry, who had allowed 11 first-inning runs in his last four starts.

As it was, Perry didn't allow a run until the sixth and left after scattering nine hits in eight innings.

Valenzuela, meanwhile, lasted only 3 1/2 innings and was shelled in the midst of a seven-run rally in the Braves' fourth. That marked the first time that the hard-throwing left-hander had failed to pitch at least seven innings and reduced his season's record to 8-2 after a brilliant 8-0 start that included five shutouts.

"My control was good but they were getting the hits when they needed them," said Valenzuela. "I was just pitching the same way as always. I know I'm going to win some and lose some."

Perry aided his cause with a two-run single in the fourth when the Braves sent 12 batters to the plate and scored seven runs on six hits, two walks and a hit batter.

Perry gave up the Dodgers' first run in the sixth on Ken Landreaux's RBI double, then allowed three more runs in the eighth, two on a homer by Steve Garvey, before getting ninth-inning relief help from Rick Camp.

Reds 7, Giants 4
San Francisco reliever Gary Lavelle's wild pickoff throw let in the tying run and touched off a five-run eighth-inning rally that lifted Cincinnati over the Giants. After Lavelle's off-target toss allowed the Reds to forge a 3-3 tie, Sam Mejias, a seventh inning defensive replacement, singled to put the Reds ahead by a run. George Foster continued the rally with a two-run double and Dan Driessen capped the burst with an RBI single to provide Cincinnati with a 7-3 lead.

"I don't have the words in my vocabulary to describe our fortune here," said Giants Manager Frank Robinson after three straight losses in Cincinnati. "We could have, should have, won all three."

The victory was bittersweet for the Reds, who lost first baseman Johnny Bench when he broke an ankle sliding into second base. A team spokesman said he will be out of action for about eight weeks.

JAZZ GREAT PASSES — Jazz pianist and composer Mary Lou Williams, who performed through the history of jazz from the 1920s until her death Thursday, poses in a 1980 photo. (AP Laserphoto)

Jazz World Loses One Of Its Great Figures

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Jazz pianist and composer Mary Lou Williams, described by Duke Ellington as "soul on soul," has died at the age of 71.

Miss Williams had been artist-in-residence at Duke University from 1977 until her death Thursday of cancer, said Jesuit priest Peter F. O'Brien, her manager since 1970.

Born May 8, 1910, in Atlanta, Miss Williams lived through all the eras in the history of jazz and played the music of each.

"Mary Lou Williams is perpetually contemporary," said Ellington in his 1973 biography, "Music Is My Mistress." "Her writing and her performing are, and always have been, just a little ahead.... Her music retains a standard of quality that is timeless. She is like soul on soul."

Self-taught from the age of 3, Miss Williams became known as "the little piano girl" in Pittsburgh, where she grew up.

She became a professional by her early teens and toured widely in the black vaudeville Syncopators band with saxophonist John Williams, who later became her husband. Miss Williams later took over the band and hired swing saxophonist Jimmie Lunceford.

From 1929 to 1941, Miss Williams played with Andy Kirk and his Clouds of Joy band. Hits she composed for the band and recorded include "Walking and Swinging," "Froggy Bottom," "Lotta Sax Appeal,"

"Steppin' Pretty," and "Little Joe from Chicago."

She wrote "Roll 'Em" for Benny Goodman in 1936 and "Camel Hop," which the swing clarinetist adopted as the theme song for his radio show, "Camel Caravan of the Air."

Miss Williams wrote and arranged for other major bands, including those of the Dorseys, Cab Calloway, Bob Crosby, Glen Gray and Louis Armstrong.

She was one of the few musicians of the swing era to complete a successful transition to the bebop style of the 1940s and 1950s. Her New York headquarters at the Cafe Society Downtown hosted such bop greats as Todd Dameron, Art Blakey, Kenny Dorham, Charlie Parker, Miles Davis and Dizzy Gillespie. She was close to bop piano patriarchs Bud Powell and Thelonious Monk.

From 1954 to 1957, Miss Williams dropped out of the music world and joined the Roman Catholic Church. She was coaxed back into jazz by Gillespie and performed with his band at the 1957 Newport Festival.

Miss Williams broke new ground when she composed and recorded her "Hymn in Honor of St. Martin de Porres," the first time jazz was used as sacred music.

Willie Balks At Buy-Up

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Country-western singer Willie Nelson has canceled a July 29 appearance at the Sonoma County Fairgrounds because the 20 fair directors bought up all 1,400 reserved seats before the public got a chance to purchase any.

Mark Rothbaum, Nelson's manager, said Thursday the singer "has been touring for over 20 years to play for the public that supports him and is not interested in performing at any public facility where his fans can't buy tickets in an equitable manner."

Fair manager Ignazio Vella claimed the directors bought up the $11 reserved-seat tickets because they "panicked" when they learned the singer had scheduled another performance June 27 in San Francisco.

Directors wanted to ensure enough tickets would be sold to cover Nelson's $51,000 fee, Vella said.

But other directors said they knew the concert at the 4,700-seat rodeo arena would be a sellout and wanted to ensure they would be able to get all the reserve seats.

'Mentioning' Is His Problem

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Michael Reagan says mentioning that President Reagan is his father has caused him more problems than if he tried to hide the fact.

The president's son resigned from Dana Ingalls Profile Inc. after he wrote a letter to a military base soliciting business for the firm. In the letter, he mentioned that his father was president, a fact was reported by journalists.

The younger Reagan claims journalists made much ado about nothing.

"My God," he said, "I was representing a 35-man machine shop, and they (the press) acted as if I was soliciting business for Boeing aircraft!"

pay-television business, promising viewers a fall lineup that includes views of centerfold-models unadorned by even a magazine's staple through the tummy.

Penthouse International Ltd. and TeleMine Co. Inc. announced Thursday the formation of the Penthouse Entertainment Television Network. The acronym "PET" is intended to conjure up the image of the Penthouse Pet, the model of the month.

Programming will include talk shows discussing sexual problems, interview programs in which entertainers use language that would not escape censors on commercial networks, filmed versions of the Penthouse magazine layout of its Pet of the month and movies such as the sexually explicit Penthouse production of "Caligula," according to Penthouse owner Bob Guccione.

But he said the system would not "offer typical X-rated genre films offered on Broadway and 42nd Street," referring to the seedy image of the film fare available on New York's Times Square.

"There will be no shock on our network," he said.

He added that in addition to being "adult in its physical content," the network's programs must also be educationally and intellectually stimulating.

Programs will also include discussions on topics other than sex, including alcoholism and drug use, and there will be game shows and variety programs, Guccione said.

"We will shock with investigative journalism on topical subjects," he said. "Our cameras will reveal candid glimpses of the men and women who set the international pace in their respective fields."

He said the service would compete with commercial networks and not with other cable systems.

Subscription prices were not disclosed, but Guccione said the monthly charge would be greater than other pay-television services. Home Box Office Inc., a pay-television subsidiary of Time Inc. that offers first-run movies, has an average charge of $8 to $8.50 a month for its service.

"We may be the most expensive, but we will deliver the goods," said Guccione.

Guccione said he did not anticipate becoming embroiled in obscenity lawsuits in every community the service is offered because the programs will be available only to subscribers and not over the public airwaves.

The service is expected to become available to cable television systems in the fall and will be transmitted daily via satellite with a 12-hour schedule of programming that will start at 8 p.m. on the East Coast and 5 p.m. on the West Coast, according to Penthouse and TeleMine. Guccione said he was aiming for around-the-clock programming by the end of 1982.

Two Professors Take New Posts

ECU News Bureau

Two ECU faculty members will become academic administrators in ECU's General College, effective Aug. 24.

Dr. William H. Cobb, assistant professor of history, will become associate dean of the General College, and Jo Ann Fralick Jones, assistant professor of English, will become assistant dean.

The appointments were announced by Dr. Donald Bailey, dean of the ECU General College.

"Professors Cobb and Jones were selected by a search committee from a field of highly qualified applicants," he said.

A Little Rock, Ark. native, Cobb attended Davidson College and received BA and MA degrees from the University of Arkansas. He received the PhD degree from Tulane University in 1969, the year he joined the ECU faculty.

He is a specialist in the history of France, and previously taught at Memphis State and Xavier Universities.

As part of ECU's "Pockets of Excellence" project, which was funded by the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, Dr. Cobb initiated a special studies program which enabled qualified students to earn college credit in history while strengthening their reading skills.

In connection with his new responsibilities, he will direct the program, which now includes about 200 students and classes in English, mathematics, library science, geography and philosophy.

Jo Ann Jones, who came to East Carolina in 1963, is a native of Orangeburg, S.C. An alumna of Limestone College, she received the MA degree from Duke University in 1961.

Before joining the ECU faculty, she taught at North Greenville, S.C. Junior College.

Both of the new administrators will continue to teach in their respective departments on a part-time basis.

Dr. Cobb replaces Dr. Wendall Allen who resigned after serving 11 years as General College associate dean. Mrs. Jones is replacing Dr. Lawrence Hough who resigned after six years as assistant.

ECU News Bureau

Three faculty members in the East Carolina University College of Arts and Sciences have accepted administrative positions, effective this summer.

They are Marie Farr, assistant professor in the Department of English, who will become assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences Aug. 24; Emily Stewart Boyce, professor of library science who will become acting chairperson of the Department of Library Science Aug. 3; and Gary Richardson, associate professor of mathematics who becomes acting chairperson of the Department of Mathematics this month.

Announcing the appointments, Dr. Angelo Volpe, dean of the ECU College of Arts and Sciences, said, "I am delighted that Professors Farr, Boyce and Richardson have accepted these positions and I am looking forward to working with them."

A member of ECU's English faculty since 1972, Dr. Farr previously taught at Seattle University. During her tenure at ECU, she has been awarded the annual Robert L. Jones Alumni Award for Teaching Excellence and a Danforth Associateship nomination.

She chairs the ECU Planning Commission's Subcommittee on Academic Support and has been active in other campus committees and task forces.

A specialist in modern drama, Dr. Farr has degrees from Loyola University, Purdue University and the University of Washington and has done field research in England and Greece. She is a native of Chicago.

Prof. Boyce, who joined the ECU faculty in 1959, is a Raleigh native and a former resident of Rich Square. An East Carolina alumna (BS, MA), she holds the Master of Science degree in library science from UNC-Chapel Hill and has done additional study at Catholic University, Washington, D.C.

Her professional career has included librarianships in Wilmington and a term as associate supervisor of library and instructional materials for the N.C. Department of Public Instruction.

She is a frequent consultant to educational institutions and librarians' groups and has reported on such contemporary issues as censorship, media resources and legislative and legal developments as they relate to libraries in library publications and featured addresses at professional meetings.

A native of Siler City, Dr. Richardson joined the ECU faculty in 1969. He holds degrees from N.C. State University.

A specialist in convergence spaces, Dr. Richardson has reported on his research at meetings of the American Mathematical Society and has been invited to conduct seminars on his studies at N.C. State University, the University of Arkansas, and Cameron University.

In addition to his teaching and research duties, Dr. Richardson has served as ECU Department of Mathematics coach for the Putnam Mathematics competition.

Dr. Farr's assistant deanship is a newly-created position at ECU. The other two appointments were made as a result of resignations of previous departmental chairpersons, Dr. Gene Lanier, library science, and Dr. Robert Shock, mathematics.

CHICAGO (AP) — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, the convicted collaborator, says changes in young women's hair and clothing styles were "one of the first things that freaked me out" when he returned to the United States after 14 years in Vietnam.

"It shocked me. ... Everything seemed so alien to me: the dress, the speech — the frankness of speech," Garwood said in an interview in the July issue of Playboy magazine.

Garwood was convicted by court martial of collaboration with the enemy during the Vietnam War, and he recently was cleared of charges that he attempted to rape a 7-year-old girl.

Garwood, who didn't testify in his court-martial, said that when he returned to America, "one of the first things that freaked me out, the first thing I focused on, was the girls."

"Their hair, you know, it wasn't taken care of like it was way back then. I mean, it looks like somebody stuck their finger in a light socket. And all the girls are in pants. There aren't any dresses."

"At first it was a real hassle. You really had to look very close to distinguish between a man and a woman."

After Garwood was brought back to the United States in 1979 he was accused of collaboration and tried at Camp Lejeune in North Carolina. His sentence was dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of pay and allowances from the time of conviction. The conviction is on appeal.

Garwood is living in Jacksonville, N.C. and is receiving psychiatric treatment in Charlottesville, Va., where his lawyer lives.

to leave Saturday.

Javits was defeated for re-election last year.

"I find it very hard to adapt and communicate with the world now ... I don't have a life now, really," he said.

Garwood, 19 when he disappeared in 1965, said he was captured by Viet Cong. The Marine Corps said he was absent without leave.

He denied interrogating U.S. prisoners of war, saying he "did some interpreting. ... Some people blame me because I learned the language ... You had to know the language to survive. Why is that such a crime?"

He said he was moved from camp to camp, where he lived apart from other Americans, and finally was sent near Hanoi, where he agreed to be a courier for his guards.

He said he went to hotels reserved for foreigners to buy liquor, cigarettes and candy for sale on the black market. In return, he could buy cigarettes and beer.

During one of these visits, he said he slipped a note announcing his presence in Vietnam to a Finnish banker who later informed American officials, leading to his return home.

"The only thing I really regret is that I might have thought about the other person more," Garwood said. "I wasn't ready to lay myself on the line — not to the extent where I thought I would be killed. ... I was in a better position than the other POWs, so I might have helped."

"When I think back on it," said Garwood, "this business about me deserting, or crossing over — it was a mixture of fear, revenge, survival. ... I was just trying to survive."

One accusation was that Garwood physically abused a fellow prisoner.

He denied it and explained that POW Russ Grissett "was taking the brunt of a beating by the communists for killing a cat, the camp cat," which was eaten.

Russ had been singled out to take the brunt of the punishment in which — well, two weeks later, he died from it. But, anyway, when I saw this ... I just went crazy when I saw Russ getting beaten, and I rushed into the compound and there was nothing I could do.

"Harker David Harker, another POW, was standing in the doorway of one of the hootches. I brushed him aside with the back of my hand, which he said amounted to a slap, to his ribcage or his stomach."

"I went inside and said, 'How the hell can you guys call yourselves Americans? Russ is out there getting beat. If you guys had stuck together, nothing would have happened.'"

"And we just stared at each other, and there was silence, and I left. And two weeks later, Russ died," Garwood said.

Newspaper Asking Wiretap Access

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Transcripts of wiretapped conversations involving Roy L. Williams, interim president of the Teamsters Union, are being sought by The Kansas City Star Co.

The Star Co. has asked a federal judge to make public the same records that were turned over last week to Nick Civella and his attorneys in connection with Civella's bond revocation hearing set for June 11. Civella has been identified in federal affidavits as the head of Kansas City's organized crime family.

The newspaper filed a petition Thursday saying that, since 1971, reports "have repeatedly surfaced" concerning an alleged relationship between Williams, Civella and other reputed organized crime figures.

Civella faces a four-year prison sentence on a conviction last summer for allegedly attempting to bribe a federal prison warden. Federal officials have sought to revoke Civella's bond in that case, alleging he is trying to flee the country.

Wiretaps involving Williams and others have been sealed and kept from the public, but were made available to Civella and his attorneys last week with the provision they not be disclosed to anyone else.

The Star Co., contending Williams has been a public figure for nearly 30 years, is seeking a court order from U.S. District Court Judge Scott O. Wright, seeking access to the wiretaps and related documents.

"There exists a common law right to inspect and copy judicial records which is indisputable," the Star's petition said.

CHAPTER TO MEET

The Cosmetologist Chapter Number 24 will meet Monday at 106 Catawba Road. Hostess will be Mrs. Theresa Ward.

Rededication Ceremony Set

The members of Pitt Lodge 234 and Golden Rod Temple 368 of I.B.P.O.E. of W. will have a rededication ceremony of their Elks Home Sunday.

Special guests will be State President Lem Long of Raleigh; Alton Bobbitt, district deputy, of Wilson; Carter Knight, special district deputy, from Tarboro; District Deputy Helen Knight of Tarboro; Latisha Biggs, district deputy, Scotland Neck; and Dr. Andrew Best of Greenville.

A parade will begin at 2:00 p.m. from the Elks Home on Bonner Lane and will continue to Fleming Street, W. 14th Street, W. Fifth Street, and Albemarle Avenue, ending back at the Elks Home. Six lodges and eight temples of the third district will participate in the parade.

There will be an Elk workshop for the third district followed by a barbecue dinner and disco dance at 6:00 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Daughter Says It Was Mercy-Killing

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — The daughter of an 85-year-old man who allegedly shot his wife to death and tried to kill himself says her parents were a "loving and devoted couple" and her mother didn't want to become a burden.

Edith Nicolson, 83, recently had two heart attacks and was recuperating at Sarasota Memorial Hospital. Llewelyn Nicolson visited her Wednesday, a .45-caliber pistol concealed in his waistband, police said.

He shot and killed his wife and shot himself in the neck in an apparent death pact, authorities said.

Nicolson was hospitalized in fair condition Thursday night and police investigators were reviewing the shooting to determine if charges should be filed.

"It took courage to do what they did," the couple's daughter, Alice McIlvaine, said.

The couple, of Siesta Key, had written wills asking doctors not try to extend their lives, Mrs. McIlvaine said, and "had talked about doing this several times."

"They cared very much for one another," Mrs. McIlvaine told the Sarasota Herald-Tribune. "She did not want to live in a nursing home. She pleaded with my father to kill her if and when things became intolerable."

Police said Nicolson visited his wife shortly before noon Wednesday in her hospital room. They had lunch together and he told nurses the couple wished to be alone, police said.

Nicolson, closed the door, police said. There was a loud blast, followed shortly by another. The gunfire startled patients and nurses and sent nearly a dozen police officers racing to the facility.

State Attorney Jim Gardner said he would await results of a police investigation before determining what action, if any, to take against Nicolson.

Reaching Top Is 'Secondary'

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — A university professor who plans to lead an expedition up Mount Everest says his main objective is to measure effects of high altitude and low oxygen on the body — not reaching the top of the 29,028-foot peak.

John West, professor of medicine at the University of California at San Diego, said he hopes results of his study could be applied to diseases that result in low levels of oxygen in the blood, including chronic bronchitis, emphysema and severe heart attacks.

West and about 20 climbers will leave from Katmandu, Nepal, and head for the Himalayan peak in August.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Avoid a dispute over past conditions with close ties and you can grasp the chance for a new beginning. You can easily get the backing you need to become more successful.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Ideal day to make plans than can bring greater abundance in the future. Show others that you're a logical person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use a new system now that can improve the quality of your work. Be alert to new interests that could prove profitable.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A new activity could be just the tonic you need now to gain greater happiness. Show loved one that you are truly devoted.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A day to entertain new acquaintances and make a fine impression on them. Show that you have poise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid controversial subjects when dealing with others today. Take no chances with your fine reputation. Be careful of finances.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study new ways to add to your income and decide what is best for you. Sidestep one who spends money foolishly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Steer clear of those you've had altercations with in the past and avoid trouble. A good time to engage in favorite hobby.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't waste energy over something which you cannot change. A new philosophy of life can be most rewarding now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make it your business to meet new and interesting persons today, but maintain loyalty to long-time friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Obey every rule and regulation that applies to you and thereby escape possible trouble with the law. Be happy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you take a new view of an old problem, you find that this can prove most advantageous. Be more objective in your thinking.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use good judgment for solving a dispute and forget those hunches which are erroneous now. Be wary of strangers.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be more concerned with the past than the present, so teach to hold on to which is good of the past and adopt that which is good of the present. Don't neglect the right kind of spiritual training.

Pacemakers Cause Bodies To Explode

By PAT FERGUS

Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — "It seems a bit bizarre," says

one lawmaker, but the state Legislature must come to the aid of crematory operators who contend that heart

pacemakers can cause corpses to explode.

The Assembly on Thursday

passed legislation requiring that death certificates state

whether bodies contain batteries or power cells. The bill goes to Gov. Hugh Carey.

A memorandum on the bill said the danger was noted in the British Medical Journal, which reported that the explosion of mercury-zinc batteries in a corpse shattered the brick walls of a crematory.

The bill's sponsor,

Assemblyman James Tallon,

a Binghamton Democrat,

said cemetery lobbyists

asked for the bill because pacemaker batteries have exploded during cremations

the past five or six years.

"It seems a bit bizarre, but it's a real problem that has affected cemeteries," Tallon said. "It apparently can cause serious damage and presents a potential threat to crematorium workers."

Tallon, chairman of the Assembly Health Committee, said he knew of no cases in which anyone was injured in a crematory explosion.

But Bernard Jaffee, a Melville, N.Y. cemetery manager and secretary of the New York State Association of Cemeteries, said a worker at the New Montefiore Cemetery narrowly escaped serious injury once when an explosion blew out the door of a crematory oven.

The worker, who was bending down, evaded flying debris and suffered only temporary hearing impairment, Jaffee said.

The bill would require the person making a medical certificate to certify whether the body contains a battery and to include the information on the burial or removal permit.

Handling trumps is a tricky business. Sometimes you draw them as soon as possible to prevent the defenders from scoring a ruff. At other times, you have more important work to do.

South's hand was worth more than the 10 points it counted in high cards, because the king of clubs was well positioned in view of East's overcall. So when his partner raised hearts, South felt justified in continuing on to game.

Had East, after winning the opening lead with the ace of clubs, routinely continued a club, declarer would have had an easy passage. He would have won the king, ruffed a club and forced out the ace of trumps. After clearing trumps, declarer would be able to establish spades at his leisure.

Unfortunately for declarer, East made an inspired shift to a diamond at trick two. When the jack of diamonds was headed by the queen and ace South had to reassess the situation. He was no longer in position to draw trumps immediately. If he led a heart, the defender who won the ace would continue diamonds, and the fate of the contract would then hinge on the spade finesse.

To give himself an additional chance for the contract, declarer came to his hand with the king of clubs and led a spade to the jack. East won the king and led another diamond. Declarer won the king and now he had to rely on a 3-3 spade division. When both defenders followed to the ace and queen of spades, declarer was able to get rid of his diamond loser, and the major hurdle had been safely negotiated.

All that remained was to handle the rest of the play with a modicum of care. Declarer led a low trump from the table and, when East played low, the ten won. A club was ruffed with the king of trumps and the last trump was led from dummy.

East won the ace and played another club, but declarer carefully ruffed high, drew the last trump and the contract was home.

Notice that drawing trumps was the last ace in declarer's play of the hand, not the first.

We care about keeping classified affordable.

From the very beginning we've been intent on keeping classified in the hands of the public—to operate effectively as a vehicle for exchanging information. For buying. For selling. For making life more convenient. And we've been successful.

You see, we know that to keep a good thing like classified going strong, the price has to be right. So while all around us prices have been going up, up, up, we've held the cost of classified down to keep it working for you. And that makes us awfully proud.

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS, AND PERSONS:

The City of Greenville proposes to request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) to be used for the following projects:

Project One:
1. Rehabilitation of substandard dwelling units in the Riverdale neighborhood (ED 17).
2. The project will upgrade approximately eight deteriorating dwelling units in the neighborhood to comply with City Codes.
3. The project area is located in the City of Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina.
4. The cost of the project will be $45,000.

Project Two:
1. Construction/reconstruction of sidewalks in the area of University Towers (ED 19).
2. The project will construct approximately 150 feet of new sidewalk and 650 feet of reconstructed sidewalk in the area of University Towers elderly mid-rise.
3. The project area is located in the City of Greenville, Pitt County, North Carolina.
4. The cost of the project will be $5,000.

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and, accordingly, the City of Greenville has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190).

The reasons for such decision not to prepare such statement are as follows:

Project One:
Rehabilitation efforts should not negatively affect the quality of life in the Riverdale area. Negative impacts will be only short-term; beneficial impacts will be long-term and negative as the quality of housing and ultimately, quality of life is improved for residents.

Project Two:
Construction/reconstruction of sidewalks will greatly enhance pedestrian accessibility in the University Towers area. Disruptive activities will be short-term and negative impacts will not seriously affect the quality of life. Long-term beneficial impacts will result as residents of the area gain better access to commercial areas.

An Environmental Review Record respecting the within projects has been made by the City of Greenville which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such statement is not required. The Environmental Review Record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying upon request, at the Office of the City Planner, between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted, prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the City of Greenville to the Office of the Mayor. All such written comments should be at City Hall, P.O. Box 1905, Greenville, North Carolina, 27834 on or before June 15, 1981. All such comments to be received will be considered and the City will not request the release of Federal funds or take any administrative action on the within projects prior to June 15, 1981.

Abortion Bill Sidetracked In N.C. House Committee

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two bills aimed at telling parents about medical treatment their children seek — including abortions and treatment for venereal disease — were sidetracked Thursday in a state House committee.

Saying the bills might discourage teen-agers from seeking proper medical care in some cases, the House Judiciary III panel rejected a bill that would have allowed physicians to notify parents — without the minor's permission — when the youths seek treatment for pregnancy, alcohol or drug abuse, mental illness or venereal disease.

Under current law, physicians must obtain the minor's permission before contacting the parents in such cases.

Rep. Robert Brawley, R-Iredell, who introduced the bill, said current laws put the physician between the parents and children. He charged that venereal disease, for example, must be reported to county health officials but not to parents.

Dr. Ron Levine, acting state health director, spoke against the bill, saying it might endanger family planning services offered by county health departments.

Levine said more than half the teen-agers seen in county clinics tell their parents they are visiting the clinic. He said that about a fourth of those teen-agers said they would not come to the clinic if they had to tell their parents about the visits and 2 percent said they would stop having sex if their parents were informed.

The panel narrowly voted to send to subcommittee a bill requiring physicians to notify the parents of a minor who is seeking an abortion when the doctor feels such notification is appropriate.

The bill, already approved by the Senate, would apply to minors who are unmarried and are either living with or dependent upon their parents.

Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, criticized the Senate bill because it would give physicians a choice regarding notification while setting up criminal penalties for violators.

"The bill is adding unnecessary and almost meaningless language to the General Statutes," he said. "I know what the original intent was and that was defeated in the Senate."

Adams referred to the original bill introduced by Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, which would have made notification mandatory. A lengthy series of amendments in the Senate gutted the bill.

In other legislative action:

Firearms

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill increasing penalties for theft of firearms. The bill sets a maximum 15-year sentence for gun theft, which is now considered general larceny and carrying an array of sentences depending on the value of the weapon.

Wildlife

A bill was enacted that establishes a state wildlife endowment fund. Action came when the Senate voted to concur in House amendments. The new law allows the purchase of lifetime hunting and fishing licenses, costing $100 to $300, depending on a person's age, with the money going to the new fund.

Road Signs

Senate concurrence also enacted a bill permitting the Department of Transportation to erect signs along interstate highways that include the logos of businesses, such as service stations and restaurants, located near the highway exits. The bill allows the department to charge the businesses for erecting the signs.

New Bills

Four senators filed a bill directing the Legislative Research Commission to study teacher tenure laws. The bill directs the study to focus on fixed term career contracts for tenured workers, grounds and procedures for demotion or dismissal.

Still A Drought Despite Rains

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Torrential rains over much of North Carolina on Wednesday were not enough to end the state's year-long drought, National Weather Service spokesman John McClain said Thursday.

"A couple rains would not end the drought," McClain said. "It'll take quite a bit of rain before we can say it's over."

Rainfall was reported up to 9 inches in the mountains, the heaviest downpours coming near Lake Toxaway. The northern piedmont received one-third inch, while the area between the southern piedmont to the southern coastal plain recorded 1 1/2 inches.

But the rains did improve agricultural conditions, said state Agriculture Department statistician Dan Tucker.

"Right now things certainly look greatly improved from just three, four weeks ago when it appeared several crops would have trouble getting sprouted and started growing," Tucker said. "Now, corn and tobacco are making good growth and pastures are coming back."

Dr. Guy L. Jones, crop specialist with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, said groundwater tables should rise in areas where heavy rain fell. Although some irrigation and farm ponds are still low, others have risen because of water runoffs, he said.

But McClain said the danger is not over. "We're not gaining very much," he said. "The agricultural bulletin released (Thursday) morning said farm ponds are still low and I think in some areas, farm ponds got pretty good moisture."

Relief may be on the way, however, McClain said. July is normally the state's month of greatest rainfall.

"The outlook is for some more rain moving into the western part of the state Saturday," he said. "It doesn't look to be as good a rain producer as this one, but it's so much better than we've had in recent months."

Total rainfall Wednesday, rainfall so far this year, normal rainfall by this date and percent below normal at five weather service bureaus are:

- Asheville, 70 inches Wednesday, 17.33 inches so far this year, 18.04 inches normal rainfall by this date, 4 percent below normal;
- Charlotte, 1.25, 10.27, 17.60, 42 percent below normal;
- Greensboro, .35, 10.96, 16.06, 32 percent below normal;
- Raleigh, .61, 10.76, 15.91, 32 percent below normal; and
- Wilmington, .89, 13.61, 16.94, 20 percent below normal.

Historical Drama Returns To TV

"Roots: The Next Generations," the "ABC Novel for Television" that extends Alex Haley's landmark saga of the triumph of an American family by nearly 100 years will be rebroadcast on seven consecutive Sundays beginning May 31 and concluding Sunday, July 12 (7-9 p.m.).

According to Anthony Thompson, President, ABC Entertainment, the network feels this new presentation will generate renewed interest among those who enjoyed the original broadcast, and will now be much more accessible to younger viewers as well. The program has been specially edited to conform to the early evening time period.

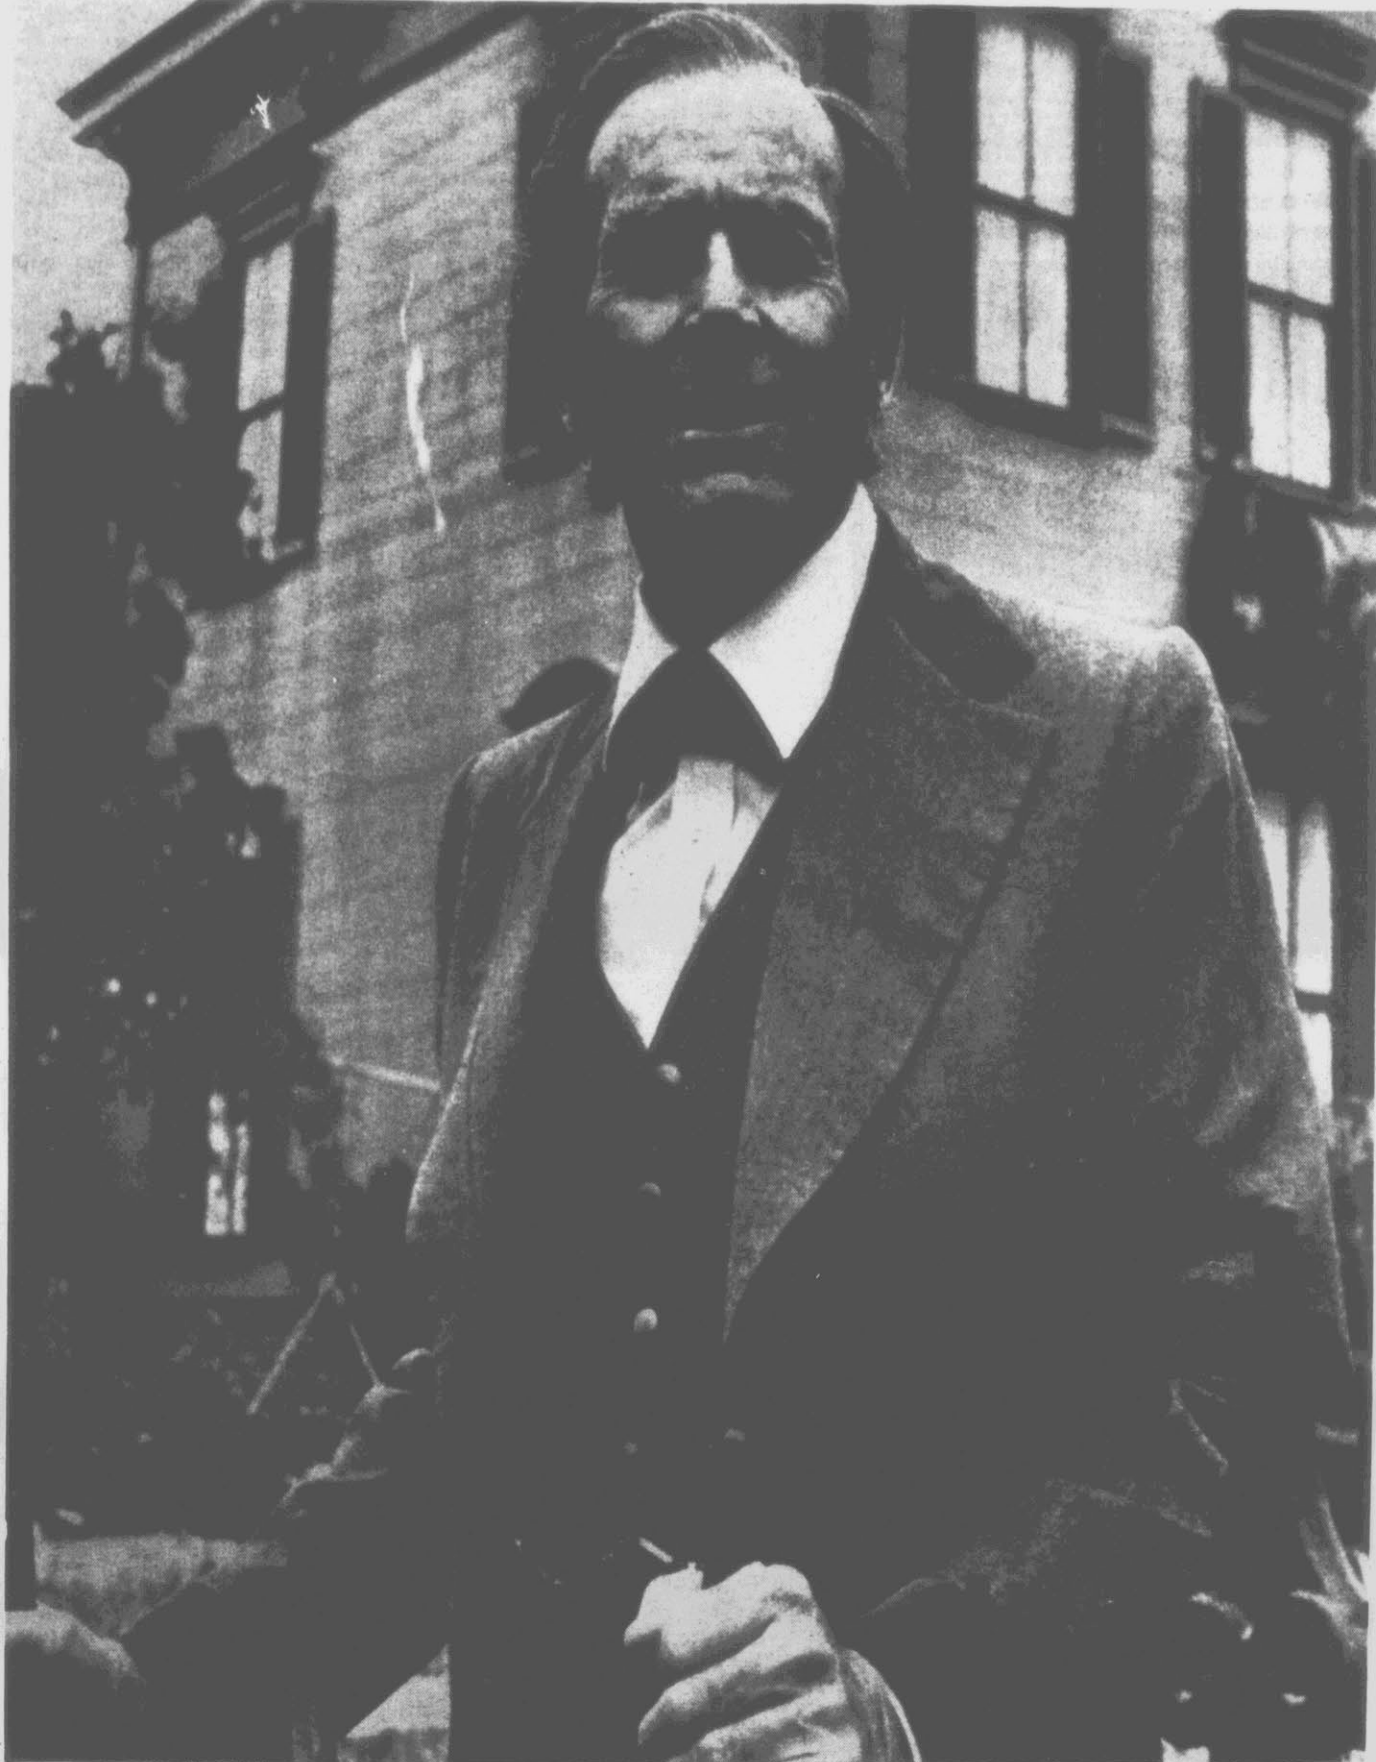

The mini-series follows four more generations of the family whose genesis was in Africa in the person of a youth named Kunta Kinte. The story of this young villager from his abduction into slavery plus the stories of his daughter, Kizzy, and her son, Chicken George, were the basis of "Roots."

Unlike the earlier production, this epic drama features characters who directly affected the life of Alex Haley, both as a youth and later in his life. It covers nearly a century of American history, from the turn of the century, through the depression, and through two world wars.

Among the characters portrayed are Sister Carrie (Fay Hauser), a young black schoolteacher who married the son of the leading white family in Henning, Tennessee, and went on to teach three generations of the Haley family including Alex himself. Jim Warner (Richard Thomas), Carrie's husband, was ostracized by his family, but accepted into the black community and became the beloved "Uncle Jim" to young Alex.

It was such family members as Aunt Liz (Debbie Morgan) and Cousin Georgia (Lynn Hamilton) whose stories of the old African Kunta Kinte launched Alex on a 12-year search for the facts behind his heritage.

Ernest Kinoy, who constructed the overall story for the production, wrote the first three scripts himself and supervised all the rest, organized the raw material into the 350 page scenario.

HENRY FONDA is a political leader who is forced to disown his son when the boy marries a black schoolteacher in the opening episode of "Roots: The Next Generations," beginning Sunday, May 31 (7-9 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Legend's Story Told

Struggles and frustrations, poignant emotions and finally, triumph and glory, unfold in "Don't Look Back," an ABC Theatre Presentation airing Sunday, May 31 (9-11 p.m.). Emmy Award-winning actor Louis Gossett, Jr. stars as the illustrious pitcher in the film which recounts the vibrant and remarkable life of legendary baseball great Leroy "Satchel" Paige.

Others in the cast include the late Jim Davis as Mr. Wilkenson, Cleavon Little as Rabbit Thomson, Beverly Todd as Lahoma Paige, John Berardino as Jake Wells, Ossie Davis as Chuffy Russell, Clifton Davis as Cool Papa Bell and Ernie Barnes as Josh Gibson.

Paige first learned to play baseball during his five-year stay in a reformatory. When he left the institution at age 17, he made the decision to pursue the game he loved as a career even though it was regarded as less than a serious occupation for blacks during the era.

'Bighearted' Rock

A bighearted Rock Hudson served up a special treat for his butler — he flew the butler's brother over from England for a reunion at Hudson's mansion. The two brothers hadn't seen each other since WW II.

Gail Not So Dumb!

Max Gail, who portrays dimwitted Detective Wojo on "Barney Miller," is nothing like his image in real life. He's an accomplished pianist, holds a bachelor's degree in economics and has a master's degree in international finance.

land Indians."

"When I heard from Bill Veeck, I didn't think I had enough left," Paige relates. "But I went out and started throwin' some and once I got heated up you could hear the glove poppin' a block away."

Satch's contributions helped lead Cleveland to the American League pennant, and earned him the distinction of being the first black man to pitch in the World Series. He was twice named to the American League All-Star Team, and in 1971, Leroy "Satchel" Paige was inducted into Baseball's Hall of Fame.

MARY TYLER MOORE stars as Betty Rollin, an NBC News Correspondent who had a mastectomy, in "First You Cry," airing Tuesday, June 2 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Michelle Will Tell

Q: Will the actresses who played Elizabeth Marler and Holly Thorpe in "Guiding Light" return to the show? R. BRUNSON, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: It's extremely doubtful that Lezlie Dalton and Maureen Garrett will return. The series writers evidently felt there was nowhere for their characters to go but out!

Q: Who played the part of Liberty Valence in the film, "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valence"? I say it was Lee Marvin, but my friend says it was Richard Boone. Who's right? T. OWENS, LEXINGTON, N.C.

A: You are! Lee Marvin was superb in his portrayal of the despicable villain.

Q: Who is the blonde girl on "Hee Haw" who sits in a swing and fans herself? L. DOWELL, ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C.

A: She's Marianne Gordon, the wife of Kenny Rogers, and the two met when he guested on "Hee Haw." Marianne, a native of Athens, Ga., enjoys working in Nashville, noting the folks are just plain friendly. "Why, the town reminds me of my home town," she says.

Q: I am writing about a movie I saw on television recently — "Dial M for Murder," starring Angie Dickinson. Wasn't this a remake? D. SOUL, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: Yes. The first "Dial M" was an Alfred Hitchcock thriller that was released in 1954. Ray Milland, Grace Kelly, Robert Cummings, John Williams and Anthony Dawson starred.

Q: I hope you can settle something about "The Love Boat" for my sister and me. Does the ship ever leave the harbor? Do the stars actually go on cruises while the segments are being filmed? C. ROBINETTE, TAYLORSVILLE, N.C.

A: Most episodes of "The Love Boat" are filmed at the 20th Century-Fox Studios, but a few are actually shot on the high seas.

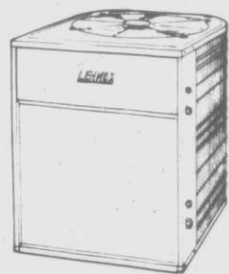

Q: What happened to "The White Shadow"? Will the series be coming back? "WONDERING" IN FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: The guys at Carver High got an 'A' for effort, but flunked the course! CBS has cancelled the series, but it will probably be back this summer during the 'rerun' season.

Clark To Dejay

Dick Clark has agreed to helm a three-hour weekly show for the Mutual Broadcasting System.

The show, titled "The Dick Clark National Music Survey," will include interviews with top recording artists, reports on industry trends, happenings and other features. The format will center around current hits and flashbacks, capitalizing on Clark's identification with past disk stars.

Deborah's New Skill

For Deborah Raffin, acting can be a "learning experience" in more ways than one. The pretty young actress has starred in more than 10 films in a short period and, in most cases, has picked up a new skill as well.

Miss Raffin enrolled in the Truck-master School of Trucking in Southern California and completed a 50-hour course in driving 40-foot-long big rigs. She felt it was necessary to be convincing in her role of a waitress in a truck-stop diner who decides she can do better for herself and her children as a trucker in "Willa," the "CBS Wednesday Night Movie" airing June 3, (9-11 p.m.).

Miss Raffin was so convincing in her course that she earned herself a Class A license, which qualifies her to drive the giant vehicles on the nation's highways. All the truck scenes in the film's over-the-road sequences in "Willa" are handled by Miss Raffin.

"I find learning new things a challenge," she explained. "It makes a role much more interesting. Repeating yourself is boring. 'Willa' is a role in which I could do something more than just decorate the scenery."

Also starring in the film are Clu Gulager, Diane Ladd, Nancy Marchand, Mary Wickes, Bob Seagren — John Amos as Virgil, with special guest star Cloris Leachman.

The mother of two small children, pregnant with a third, and abandoned by her husband, Willa Barnes refuses to accept as inevitable her seemingly hopeless situation. She is determined to make a better life for her family by driving one of those big shiny rigs that her late father used to drive.

Gulager portrays her friend, himself a trucker, until a crippling accident. He understands her frustrations, but still would prefer that she marry him and let him take care of her and her children.

'Quincy's' Boss Is No Clown

John S. Ragin, who plays Dr. Asten, Jack Klugman's boss on NBC-TV's hit series, "Quincy," went to the same drama school as Klugman — Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh — they never met until both were in Hollywood.

"And our first few shows together were not exactly comfortable," says Klugman, the title role star of the series which airs Wednesdays, (10-11 p.m.).

Now in the fifth season, Ragin agrees: "In the early going, Asten automatically opposed everything Quincy did. They screamed continually at each other. Now Asten recognizes Quincy's maverick nature does get results. Asten is more flexible and vulnerable, much more human."

"The problem was neither Jack's nor mine. Neither of us knew exactly what Asten was and our interpretations were also somewhat out of sync."

The producers encouraged Asten to do wilder comedy. "But Jack wanted more of a serious, relevant show. We really didn't know where it was going until Jack took more control. Now there's still humor, but it's a different kind — more natural," Ragin says.

With full consent from Klugman, Ragin helped in Asten's evolution by re-writing some of the stuffy doctor's scenes.

"I know," says Klugman, that John comes in with changes, and that's okay. This is a business where actors typically just do as the script says, no questions asked... but John questions the legitimacy of his scenes.

"He does research on actual cases involving medical examiners, and then inserts things which add authenticity."

He has guest starred in two television series and starred in a short-lived series titled "Sons and Daughters" in 1973. Other credits are "McCloud" and "Switch."

About Ragin's devotion to his artistry, Klugman once said:

"John would lose 50 pounds and shave off his hair if he thought it would improve his performance."

Ritter Didn't Forget Friend

As television stars become more and more popular, some begin to lose contact with their closest friends. An exception is John Ritter, whose closest friend continues to be one he had in high school. Their longtime friendship resulted in a television film that is highly personal to them both.

Ritter stars in "The Comeback Kid," about a washed-up ball player who finds a new meaning in life when he gets a job working with a gang of rambunctious street kids, airing as The ABC Friday Night Movie, June 5 at 9 p.m.

The film's screenplay was written by Joe Landon, who has been Ritter's best friend since high school. The story evolved from a personal experience. "A few years ago, I was scrounging around for a job and got work teaching a Sunday School class of youngsters," Landon recalled recently. "One day in class we somehow got on the subject of death, and I was just overwhelmed emotionally by the depths of the feelings these kids had. Their honesty was incredible. And it left me very moved and shaken."

JOHN RITTER, stars in "The Comeback Kid," airing as "The ABC Friday Night Movie," June 5 (9-11 p.m.).

During high school and college, Landon and Ritter had worked together very closely on plays which Landon wrote and Ritter directed and starred in. Later, Landon had become a Resident Writer at San Francisco's famed American Conservatory Theater, but he had never tried his hand at screen writing. After the experience with the kids, Landon began to formulate a screenplay into which a young man gains a new insight into life by working with kids. There was little doubt in his mind as to who should play the leading role — John Ritter.

"I took the idea to John and told him the basic idea, and he loved it," Landon said. "We both saw the film as being a story about how we can all gain wisdom from kids. We made a commitment then and there that we would do this film and do it together."

Landon spent three months writing the script, going through the usual writer's doubts whether he would ever get it off paper.

Once it was completed, Ritter took it to network executives, who in turn called in one of television's top producers, Louis Rudolph. It was a frightening time for the young writer.

"This was my first screenplay, and I guess my inexperience showed," Landon continued. "They seemed to want to make a lot of changes. But John assured me that the changes were only a means to make the story work better within the time frame we had. Suddenly, one day we had a start date."

'Of Old,' Please!

LPGA Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth is experiencing a rejuvenation of sorts on the 1981 tour after 'off seasons' in '79 and '80. When explaining the resurgence in her game, the 41-year-old Texan is particular about certain terminology. "I prefer to think of myself as the Kathy Whitworth of old, rather than the 'old' Kathy Whitworth."

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — The top brass around ABC-TV's executive suites hit the nail-biting stage when they found out NBC was attempting to woo SUSAN LUCCI away from "ALL MY CHILDREN." But smiles replaced the frowns when the sultry actress decided to continue in her role as the vixenish Erica Kane.

And word comes from "THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS" set that LYNN TOPPING has arranged for her twin daughters — ERIN and ROAMONA RICHTER — to portray her character's babies. It seems that LYNN wants to be near the infants and the series' producer was more than happy to grant her wish.

MARY TYLER MOORE and DICK VAN DYKE have been given a strong pitch to reunite for a feature film, "SHERLOCK," slated to begin production in the fall.

British photog TONY RICHMOND is telling everybody who'll listen that he'll tie the knot with JACLYN SMITH the minute her divorce from DENNIS COLE is final.

Although WILLIAM DEVANE has made one film after another since "FROM HERE TO ETERNITY" was cancelled a year ago, he's steered clear of another series — on purpose! "I like to work," says the outspoken actor, "but I never want another series. No one gets paid enough for that hassle!"

All you KISS fans: the group has decided to change their image as well as musical direction and will even be shedding their war paint!
