Many Recommendations

Mayor's Committee Reports Findings

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Stating that a "critical need for new resources to meet old deficiencies and new demands has outstripped the capacity of a simple raise in the tax rate," the Mayor's Advisory Committee has submitted to the city a package of recommendations, keyed to the annexation of the Industrial Park area.

The advisory body, established by Mayor Don McGlohon last August, presented to the mayor and City Council in a special session last night the recommendations which underline the full report that evolved from the committee's comprehensive study of city services.

Dr. Wallace Wooles, general chairman, explained that copies of the full, bound report, reflecting the detailed findings of all of the committee's study areas, should be ready for presentation to the city governing board in a week and a copy will also be made available to Sheppard Memorial Library.

Four priority recommendations, which head a list of 83, are included in the package and reflect the committee's proposals for finding "different, non-traditional sources of revenue."

The first priority is a recommendation, "That the city proceed with annexation of the Industrial Park complying with the map prepared by the office of the city planner of May, 1981. We urge that this action be completed by Jan. 1, 1982."

The committee recommended, "That the city simultaneously proceed with annexation of the following areas: Brook Valley, Oakgrove Estates, and Pactolus Highway areas as delineated in the 1978 report of the city...concerning annexation. We urge that this action be completed by Jan. 1, 1982."

Brook Valley, the report pointed out, "is a special case because it contains one of the two golf courses in our city, and the only one which will admit the general public." The committee recommended that Brook Valley be treated in the same manner as Greenville Golf and Country Club, with all buildings and appurtenances incorporated into the city and the golf course proper remaining in the county.

The report stated, "The committee understands that $6 million of the $24 million bond issue issued by the city...for the Greenville Utilities Commission remains unissued. We have been assured by...Greenville Utilities...that part, or all, of these funds could be used for the immediate expansion of necessary city services to these areas if City Council so decrees."

The committee recommended as its third priority, "That the turnover rate from...Greenville Utilities to the city be increased from the present rate of six percent of 'Citizen's Equity' to nine percent immediately."

The increase, according to the committee, "would produce a turnover...that would approximate the amount of turnover other utilities in our area provide for their municipalities. The... committee is dismayed to find that the city is charged for its electricity by its wholly owned subsidiary. The committee recommends an immediate end to this practice."

The committee observed that, "In 1980-81...Greenville Utilities turned over $1,127,000 to the city, or six percent of 'Citizen's Equity,' as defined by the...commission. When the $240,000 charged to the city for electricity is subtracted from the turnover, however, the net turnover was only $887,000 or less than 4.5 percent of this 'Citizen Equity.'"

The fourth "specific" recommendation is, "That the city tax base be increased to meet any deficit incurred in the event that the additional revenues generated by the aforementioned annexation and turnover proceedings are not adequate."

Saying that the committee applauded the efforts of the Police Department but "our report shows they need help," the committee recommended the addition of ten police

Reagan Courts Southern Conservative Tax Votes

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, directly challenging House Democratic leaders on a three-year tax cut, is embracing a slimmer version of his original plan with some added features while courting the Southern conservatives who gave him a big budget victory earlier this year.

One of the conservatives, Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, agreed Thursday with Rep. Barber B. Conable, R-N.Y., senior tax-writer in the House, to introduce Reagan's latest attempt at a tax compromise.

Reagan, refusing any further compromise with Democratic leaders, said the revised plan "will put us back on the road to a sound economy." Most of the package had been proposed three weeks ago by conservatives and had been embraced by Reagan advisers, if not by the president himself.

It includes a 25 percent cut in personal tax rates over three years, with the first 5 percent taking effect Oct. 1; reductions in the marriage penalty; liberalization of savings incentives; elimination of estate taxes for all but the wealthiest 2 percent of Americans; faster tax writeoffs for business; and a special tax break for those who own lands on which oil wells are located.

The original Reagan plan called only for a 30 percent cut in personal tax rates over three years and the faster writeoffs, or depreciation, for buqinesses. The 25 percent personal reduction is $16 billion smaller.

Reagan had wanted to leave the other features, such as the reduction in the marriage penalty, to a second tax bill he had planned to submit later in the year.

Vice President George Bush, speaking to Associated Press broadcasters at a White House meeting Thursday, predicted: "We will get a tax bill the president can sign. We're going to need the help of a lot of Democrats."

Flanked by congressional supporters, Reagan made a brief statement outside the Oval Office on the steps overlooking the Rose Garden and expressed his "special appreciation" to the group, saying it "is united in the belief that together we must rebuild the economy."

House Democratic leaders, who agreed Wednesday to push for a two-year plan with more relief for lower- and middle-income taxpayers, withheld comment on Reagan's latest move.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan told reporters that if the opposition "can come up with something at the last minute that accommodates this package, of course we'll talk." But he added: "It's not likely at this point."

In an interview today on CBS-TV's "Morning" show, Regan was asked whether the administration had the votes needed in Congress for approval of the Reagan tax cut plan. Regan quoted the president as saying Thursday: "If we don't have them, we'll get them."

Regan said business would get a $51 billion tax cut in the next three years — "the largest tax cut in the history of the United States for business."

The fate of the new Reagan plan is in the hands of the 190 House Republicans and 63 conservative Democrats who supported Reagan's budget-cutting blueprint earlier this year.

When It Rains,---

RAINY DAY ROMP — When the rain falls long enough and hard enough, there is no need for these youngsters on Vandergrift Drive near Jacksonville to leave home for water sports. The fun is right outside the front door, where rainwater flooded the street to depths of 2 to 3 feet as some 3.9 inches of rain fell in a 48-hour period. (AP Laserphoto)

ROCK DAMAGE FEEDBACK

In response to the flying rock how-to item earlier this week, I'd like to point out that people with damaged windshields who don't have comprehensive insurance or who have a deductible on windshield damage should look into whether their windshields can be repaired optically. Eighty percent can be so repaired and the cost is considerably less than replacing a windshield. Check with your favorite glass or auto body repair shop. S.W.

KEVIN-HAROLD FEEDBACKS

The basketball game held to benefit Harold Battle and Kevin Harrell at Wellcome Middle School Monday night was tremendously successful, according to Alice Keene, community schools director.

"I heard several people say there were more people than they'd ever before seen in the gym," she said. "And most of them laughed till our sides hurt, especially at those crazy cheerleaders." Male administrative office staffers were cheerleaders, while Wellcome female faculty and female adminstrative office staff faced each other on the basketball court.

Approximately $1,300 was raised to benefit the families of the two North Pitt students, both of whom are bone marrow transplant patients at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

A yard sale to benefit Harrell at Eaton Corporation on a recent Saturday netted about $800, Eaton employees have reported to Hotline.

System Damage Said Average In Pitt Storm

Pitt County fared better than other areas of coastal North Carolina as heavy rains, lightning and winds swept across the eastern part of the state Thursday.

Locally, .52 inch of rain fell between 8 a.m. Thursday and 8 a.m. today, bringing the total for the week to 2.25 inches, according to Greenville Utilities' Water Plant.

No serious damage was reported by Greenville Utilities due to lightning. "We had an average amount of trouble," said Assistant Director Malcolm Green. "Scattered fuses were blown, transformers, etc."

Green reported a tree down on a line on highway 33 East caused a power outage from the Simposon cutoff to Grimesland, the most substantial outage during the storm. "Power was disrupted for about an hour," he noted.

Precipitation amounts for the area have built steadily during the week. On the first only a trace was reported, but on the second .95 inch fell. June 3 brought .60 inch, followed by .18 inch on June 4.

Temperatures for Thursday ranged from 90 degrees Fahrenheit to 62 degrees F. At 8 a.m. today the level of the Tar River stood at 3.5 feet on the National Weather Service Gauge.

The National Weather Service forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies today and Saturday, with scattered afternoon thunderstorms through Tuesday. Temperatures will remain in the 80's and 90's during the day and in the 60's and 70's at night. Winds will be from the southwest at 10-20 knots.

Wholesale Prices And Unemployment Inch Up

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate shot up three-tenths of a percentage point to 7.6 percent in May, but the first decline in three years in wholesale energy prices held inflation at the wholesale level to a 0.4 percent increase, the government reported today.

The wholesale-price inflation rate, which translates into an annual rate of 4.6 percent, was the lowest since the 0.4 percent reported last December.

The unemployment rise, which many analysts have been expecting in light of the apparently weakening national economy, was the first since last October and also marked the highest level since that month's 7.6 percent.

The May increase — up from the 7.3 percent that had held for the preceding three months — was the biggest since May of last year, when the recession boosted the unemployment rate up 0.7 percentage point, also to 7.6 percent.

Total employment actually increased about 260,000 last month, according to the new Labor Department report released today. But the number of job hopefuls rose even faster, adding 425,000 Americans to the jobless rolls, the report said.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rates rose from 5.8 percent to 6.3 percent for adult men, from 6.6 percent to 6.8 percent for adult women and from 19.1 percent to 19.5 percent for teenagers.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said finished energy goods at the wholesale level declined 0.5 percent in May, the first decline since February 1978.

Within that category, gasoline prices declined 1.8 percent, and the index for home heating oil decreased 1.2 percent although natural gas prices rose somewhat, the report said.

Up To People

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina voters will be asked in the coming months whether to double state legislators' terms from two to four years.

The state House on Thursday voted 72-42 — exactly the three-fifths margin of 72 votes needed for passage — to put the constitutional amendment before voters in a statewide referendum. The Senate already had approved the amendment.

Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, the bill's sponsor, said a referendum probably will come in spring 1982. If voters approve the amendment, the first four-year term legislators would be elected in fall 1982.

Final approval by the House came minutes after a 70-42 vote that was challenged by two members. Reps. Mary Seymour, D-Guilford, and Jeanne Fenner, D-Wilson, said the electronic voting machine failed to record their votes.

To seal the victory, floor manager for the bill, Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, did some parliamentary maneuvering. By a 64-38 vote, the House approved the maneuver requiring a two-thirds vote to bring up the amendment again.

Lancaster had asked the House to reconsider its final vote of approval and then table that call for reconsideration.

Additional Policeman Planned For Each Shift By Department

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles prepared by the city on the 1981-82 budget.)

The Uniform or Patrol Division is the "work force" of the Police Department. The employees of this division provide routine police services including patrol protection, escorts, answering calls and complaints, traffic enforcement, crime prevention, and juvenile services.

The department has established several objectives to achieve during fiscal 1981-82. They include providing a high level of productivity through optimum use of existing personnel, changes in deployment of personnel, implementation of special tasks units, and initiation of police personnel programs which will improve overall department performance; better police-community relations; a greater amount of citizen awareness and citizen involvement in police programs such as the mobile crime watch team, community watch groups, and the junior police cadets; and peak levels of energy conservation.

Funds have been requested in the budget to increase law enforcement protection to local citizens by providing an additional officer on each shift. The positions would be funded by reallocating other full-time city positions.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon commented, "There is no question that our responsibilities have grown and will continue to grow through residential annexations, expanded commercial development, the university's student population, and the increase expectations of the citizens for a high level of law enforcement. The addition of one officer on each patrol shift will help us meet these demands."

In addition, the employment of two police typists has been proposed to work on the two busiest shifts to type and process reports, freeing patrolmen to spend more time providing law enforcement services.

Cannon, citing the need for good equipment and patrol vehicles, said funds have been requested to replace five marked police vehicles and four unmarked vehicles, and to replace several small equipment items such as mobile radios, sirens, blue light systems, and bullet-proof vests.

The operating budget for the Police Department is proposed at $1,585,967, and the proposed capital outlay budget is $89,000.

The lace gown tied at the natural waistline with a matching bow and streamers. The flowing skirt was accented by a cathedral train. She wore a halo of baby's breath and carried a bouquet of pink and cream miniature mums with greenery.

A reception followed the ceremony and a dinner was then given for out-of-town guests by the families of the bridal couple at the Casablanca. Music was provided by Dr. Jospeh Distefano.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I'm not sure, but I think I've stumbled onto something that may revolutionize air travel with children in this country.

How about carrying your luggage onto the plane and checking the children through baggage?

Now wait a minute! It's not as bad as you think. There's nothing children love more than running around and falling down in a big area where they cannot hurt themselves, and when they get to their destination ... the piece de resistance ... there's an exciting ride on a conveyor belt that takes them up a chute and slides them down onto a revolving carousel. I wouldn't be surprised if Disney's Land and World adapted it as a ride.

The problem is that adults don't really understand what entertains children. I saw a woman board a plane one day who looked like a floating garage sale. She carried a huge bag stuffed with a blanket, three furry animals, an inflatable pillow and a diseased-looking doll with one eye.

Her handbag bulged with storybooks, cookies, a game with a bell and a Marie Osmond thermos.

The kid spent the entire trip kicking the back of the seat and snapping the ashtray open and shut.

The idea of transporting the home with the child is a carry-over from the days when families weren't as mobile as we are today and our trips were limited to cars.

I can remember loading up the playpen, the portable feeding table, the plastic inflatable pool, the potty seat, the blankets, change of clothes, diapers, the plate that held heat, an assortment of food, small saucepan, a spinning top, extra towels, bottles of formula and a mobile. And that was just to tide me over for a Sunday dinner at Grandma's.

(That was when the child was three weeks old. Within six months, I had reduced the cargo to one diaper and a pacifier.)

You don't need a lot to keep a child occupied. Their own noses will keep them occupied for hours. So will taking apart a seat or removing other parts of the airplane. Last week, I saw a toddler with an airplane meal in front of him. He flattened out one pea at a time and pressed them onto his teeth and then looked into a mirror and smiled.

The kid was obviously a genius. For years, I had been eating the food.

The pineapple is actually a berry.

Sounding Off About Waiting

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: What's more frustrating than standing in a long checkout line, and when your turn comes, the clerk gets a telephone call, then starts fumbling around the counter to find the newspaper so she can check the ad and help the person on the phone? Meanwhile I'm waiting there with cash in my hand.

This always happens to me. I went to our local department store, found what I wanted, and after waiting for 15 minutes to pay for it, the clerk got a telephone call and I was kept waiting another five minutes while she helped the person on the phone!

Who is more important? The customer on the phone, or the person who has spent $1.40 a gallon on gas to get there? Why can't sales clerks tell the phone callers to wait until their customers with cash in their hands are waited on?

Even if you don't print this, I feel better writing it down.

OFF MY CHEST IN WAYCROSS, GA.

DEAR OFF: I'm sure everyone has been in your shoes. (I have.) But haven't you also been the party on the phone? (I have.)

DEAR ABBY: The B.C. Forbes definition of money is only adequate. Here's a much better definition by T.P. O'Connor, the editor of the once famous British weekly, "TP'S."

"Although money may not buy happiness, I know of no misfortune in the world that having money does not mitigate, and the lack of money does not aggravate."

It may sound cynical, but when you think about it, it makes sense.

FELIX DE COLA

DEAR FELIX: It makes no sense to me. Ask anyone who has lost a child if his or her pain would have been mitigated by any amount of money.

DEAR ABBY: It's true! The American Indian has it all over the white man when it comes to lovemaking. Ask any squaw who is familiar with the "Apache grip" or the "Kickapoo twist."

MINNIE HA HA

DEAR MINNIE: Not according to this San Francisco divorcee who's been around:

DEAR ABBY: This is for ED, who lost his girlfriend to an American Indian because they were supposed to be better lovers. (He had heard that closely guarded tribal secrets on how to please a woman were passed down from father to son.)

I'm an attractive divorcee, living in San Francisco and teaching at a nearby university. I've had highly touted Italian lovers, black lovers and even an Asian lover whom I met at the Hong Kong Hilton. (He was a lawyer from Wyoming.) In addition to the above, while visiting Mt. Rushmore, I met a tall, handsome Indian from a tribe near Rapid City, S.D. He was a good lover, but no better than the others. But he was exceptionally gentle.

No one ethnic group holds the secret to superior lovemaking. The best lover I ever had was an American (Scotch-Irish-English) whom I met in Louisville, Ky., at the Kentucky Derby. Sign me

Day Care Centers Bill Set For Final Senate Vote

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill that would free church-run day care centers from most state regulations and a $160-million-a-year cut in personal income taxes advanced Thursday in the General Assembly.

The day-care bill won state Senate approval on a 30-9 vote and was scheduled for a final Senate vote Friday.

The measure, sought by fundamentalist Protestant church groups, is similar to a bill that failed in 1979 after enactment of legislation removing similar regulations on church schools.

If enacted, the bill would drop the requirement that church-run day care centers seek state licenses. Licenses are based partially on standards for the number and qualifications of employees.

The bill would allow the state to continue to require the centers to meet health, fire and safety regulations.

"It's just part of the church ministry," said Sen. Bob Swain, D-Buncombe, a sponsor of the bill. "They don't receive any public funds. The burden is on the parents to see that they get what they pay for."

But Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gaston, said dropping the regulations would mean dropping assurances that a day care center had enough employees or that employees were literate.

Meanwhile, the House approved the tax cut, 106-6, and sent the measure to the Senate. But first, the legislators amended the bill to delay the tax cut until 1984.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, would lower taxes by adjusting income brackets. Lilley said that anyone earning between $10,000 and $17,000 a year could expect about a 15 percent tax cut.

But the cost of lowering taxes sparked criticism Thursday. Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, said the loss in revenue to the state could mean budget deficits for years to come.

"If we cut taxes without knowing what the revenues will be, without knowing what the increased costs will be ... we're going to have a deficit," he said.

But Lilley said the income brackets have not been adjusted in decades. He said they are unfair and people are calling for a tax cut.

That's when the House agreed to delay the tax cut until 1984 so it would not affect the budget for the coming biennium. The bill had been set to take effect in 1983.

Under the bill, the state's top tax bracket — 7 percent — would apply to incomes over $12,000. Currently the 7 percent applies to incomes over $10,000.

In other legislative action:

Bid Rigging

A bill that would give North Carolina one of the nation's toughest laws against bid rigging neared completion in a state House committee.

The Judiciary I panel expanded the bill, recommended by Gov. Jim Hunt, to make it a felony to conspire to rig bids involving private businesses or individuals. The original bill dealt only with state government contracts.

The measure makes it a felony for anyone to conspire on contracts or subcontracts for the purchase of equipment, goods or services.

If convicted, an individual would face a maximum fine of $100,000 and a 10-year prison sentence. He also could be prohibited for up to three years from entering into a contract or subcontract with a governmental agency, working for a business dealing with the government or could lose his contracting license.

Convicted companies could be fined $1 million. The bill also sets out civil penalties which the affected governmental agency may seek.

Banks

The House Banking Committee approved a Senate bill allowing small loan companies to increase their interest rates — but not by as much as the Senate had approved.

The House panel voted to set interest rate limits at 36 percent a year for the first $600 and 15 percent for loans from $601 to $3,000. The current limit is 36 percent for the first $300 and 18 percent for $301 to $3,000.

In comparison, the Senate had votad to increase the limit to 36 percent on $600, 30 percent for loans of $601 to $1,500 and 24 percent on loans of $1,501 to $3,000.

Plates

The Senate Finance Committee approved a bill that would put the words "First in Flight" on state motor vehicle license plates. Under the bill, plates manufactured in the future would bear the slogan and a superimposed drawing of the Wright brothers biplane.

The bill now goes to the full Senate.

Finance

The Finance Committee also discussed but delayed action on several bills, including one to require private businesses leasing government-owned property to pay property taxes on the land.

The panel referred to subcommittee a bill introduced by Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, that would provide a tax credit for businesses paying certain byssinosis claims.

He said the bill means the state would foot the bill for compensating brown lung victims who contracted the ailment before 1963. Since that time, Workman's Compensation and Workers' Compensation have gone to brown lung victims.

A spokesman for the state Brown Lung Association estimated about 150 workers would be affected. The limit on payments is $10,000 plus medical expenses.

Gun Control

The Senate postponed scheduled debate on a tough gun-control bill until next Tuesday after first defeating a motion to table — or to kill — the bill without debate.

Sen. Charles Vickery, D-Orange, asked for the delay until next week. He told reporters later that he planned to divide his bill on the Senate floor, in hopes that a portion of it might gain approval. The bill would ban cheap pistols known as Saturday Night Specials, ban the sale of handguns to convicted criminals and set up a centralized licensing procedure.

Sen. Walter Cockerham, R-Guilford, tried to kill the bill before any debate could be heard by moving to table it. That motion failed on a 27-15 vote.

Cigarette Tax

A bill backed by the legislative leadership, which would repeal the current 2-cent-per-pack cigarette tax and establish a new tax on cigarettes manufactured in this state,, was filed in the House. Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a top ally of House Speaker Liston Ramsey, sponsored the bill.

Also signing the bill were five other House members, including some top legislative powers — Finance Chairman Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus; Base Budget Chairman Al Adams, D-Wake; and Speaker Pro Tem Allen Barbee, D-Nash.

A similar bill is being pushed in the Senate by Ways and Means Chairman Ken Royall, D-Durham. Both measures would levy a three-quarters ccents per pack tax on all cigarettes produced in the state, yielding an estimated net gain of $96 million to $111 million a year.

Another cigarette tax bill, to double the 2-cents sales tax, has 17 sponsors in the 50-member Senate.

Redistricting

Another plan for redrawing North Carolina's 11 Congressional Districts emerged Thursday, representing what appeared to be a compromise among some of the legislative leaders.

The new plan left allies of 2nd District Democratic Rep. L.H. Fountain pleased since it would keep Durham out of the 2nd District and it also appeared to have the support of Republicans.

It would create a 6th District of Guilford, Randolph and Davidson counties, apparently solidifying the GOP's grip established when Gene Johnston defeated Preyer.

It would create a 5th District of Ashe, Wilkes, Allegheny, Surry, Yadkin, Stokes, Rockingham and Forsyth counties. The 6th currently is comprised of Ashe, Wilkes, Allegheny, Surry, Stokes, Forsyth and Davidson.

The 4th District would contain all of the Research Triangle Park — Orange, Durham and Wake counties. It now consists of Wake, Chatham, Durham and Randolph.

Fountain allies had hoped to drop Orange from the 2nd, where it now is placed, and wanted to avoid placing Durham in that district, as earlier plans would do. Durham's heavy black vote, some legislators suggested, could cause Fountain's defeat.

New Bills

Among the new bills filed was a proposed constitutional amendment that would allow recall elections for members of the General Assembly, judges and members of the executive branch. It was sponsored by Rep. Sam Beam, D-Gaston.

A bill calling for a legislative study of the Department of Transportation was filed by Reps. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe, and Dennis Wicker, D-Lee. The two House members were among the most vocal DOT critics while members of a special Select Committee on the Department of Transportation.

In a related matter, Rep. John Brown, R-Wilkes, filed a bill calling for the Highway Fund to be abolished. Money from the Highway Fund goes for building and maintaining state roads. Under Brown's bill, money for roads would come from the General Fund.

Rep. Robert Brawley, R-Iredell, filed a bill that would exempt all interest from state income taxes. Another Republican, Rep. James Craven, R-Moore, filed a bill that would phase out the intangibles tax on personal property over a 10-year period.

Also filed in the House were bills to purchase and maintain coastal lands for beach access and to set up a motorcycle safety course as a prerequisite to obtaining a motorcycle operator's license.

Court Ruling Clarifies

Municipal governments across North Carolina will find some satisfaction in the State Supreme Court's ruling (June 2) on annexation of property by cities. It (annexation) has been a fighting word in some places over the years.

Loosely speaking (some exceptions have been written into the law), North Carolina cities have the right to annex adjacent properties. It has long been recognized as essential to growth and enrichment of values all across the board.

At the same time, there are people and businesses located within greater metropolitan areas who oppose the principle.

Five Forsyth County couples carried their opposition to annexation by Winston-Salem all the way to the North Carolina Supreme Court.

The ruling:

"To suggest ... that inequality and injustice ... is inherent in the concept of forced annexation is to ignore reality. Annexation does not bring the burden of taxation without accompanying benefits.

"Fairness dictates that there comes a time when these residents must join in bearing the costs of those services."

The Supreme Court's opinion should go far to resolving misunderstandings and future disputes.

The Forsyth County objectors argued the annexation statute was an unconstitutional delegation of authority to governing boards of municipalities without adequate standards and guidelines.

There were also claims their rights to due process and equal protection had been violated because residents of annexed areas had no vote on the question of annexation.

They were overruled.

Rep. Bundy Made His Point

We like the amendment proposed by Rep. Sam Bundy of Farmville to provide a tax deduction for watch dogs if the legislature decides to allow up to $1,500 deductions for burglar alarm systems.

Rep. Bundy explained to fellow House members that "a lot of people down my way are not fat cat enough to buy those protective devices." After debate over whether Rep. Bundy was serious or not, the House sent the bill back to committee.

Serious or not, Rep. Bundy made his point that the burglar alarm tax deduction proposal is pretty ridiculous. The $1,500 deduction proposed for burglar alarms is several times the deduction a family receives for each child when it figures its annual state income tax.

But if the legislature decides to give the Mecklenburg proposal its approval, it should certainly honor Rep. Bundy's little amendment. After all, the watch dog has been man's best friend much longer than the more modern burglar alarm devices. It has long since proved its worth as a deterrent against unwanted intruders, it requires no installation, no electricity and is readily available in rural areas as well as in the cities. A watchdog can double as a smoke alarm, and a part-time garbage disposal, too.

Sic 'em, Sam!

The Art Museum

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — What can you say about a new art museum where there is no art? People come to see the art, not the building, don't they?

A preview of the sprawling, new, $15 million North Carolina Museum of Art jutting grandiosely from a hillside overlooking the Interstate Highway and Belt Line on the western approaches to the Capitol City leaves mixed feelings.

There, just next door, remains the prison unit for youthful offenders which was supposed to be removed, but will remain because the space is needed and the dollars are short.

But, in fairness, those outspoken critics who denounced the location on the outskirts as removing the facilities from downtown where the action is, to splendid isolation are now proven wrong. A new hospital just up the road; the rising steel skeleton of a new veterinary school just down the way; the hustle and bustle of numerous activities at the nearby State Fairgrounds and the ready access from increasingly busy streets and expressways hold promise that the new art museum will be much used, even more than the cluttered and crowded one downtown.

It is, after all, only a 10 minute drive from the Capitol to the new building.

Location

And by its suburban location, the museum gained an expanse of landscaping, sky and horizon which would not have been possible downtown. Some hasty planting of greenery is supposed to screen the view of the prison soon.

BILL NOBLITT

Inside and out the structure is a bland, monotone of beige and pale brown brick, masonry panels, carpet and ceiling. Sprawling lobbies yield to narrow, twisting corridors which suddenly surprise you with a soaring view upwards three floors to a glass wall showing sky and clouds. Then, a turn, and through a narrow door there is an

Other Editors Say Feathering Nests

(Washington Daily News)

We keep watching with a close eye the discussions about increasing the terms of legislators from two to four years. And the only ones we have found to date in favor of any such legislation are some legislators who seek to "feather their own nests".

We have yet to see any individual hog-tied and forced to run for the legislature. We have yet to see any campaign in which a candidate could not have dropped out of the race at any time he wished.

But we have seen elected officials take office and then later become very unpopular with the very people who put them there because they quit trying to serve people and began serving themselves.

Right today in North Carolina we are seeing legislators of our state moving ever closer to a "professional" status as members of the General Assembly.

North Carolina does not want professional legislators, and the state will be much poorer for it if ever we do arrive clearly to that place.

We realize that before any change can be made in terms of legislators, the people of our state will have to approve the constitutional amendment in a statewide referendum. But why put people in this position when only legislators and not the masses of people are asking for the change?

From all sides people seem to be saying "no, no" to the idea, but to some legislators what people want seems to make mighty little difference.

Two-year legislative terms as we have them now keep the legislators close to the people, and that is the way it should be. If one seeks reelection, he or she is accountable before the people every two years. That is good and wholesome, and it makes for better government.

Despite the lack of popular support, members of the legislature bent on feathering their own nests continue to work hard for the approval of this constitutional amendment in our state. And as we look at the picture right now, we must confess that we expect it to pass the assembly.

We then look ahead to the time when the people of our state will vote on the issue. We wonder how many legislators at that time will be willing to stand up and say "yes, I'm in favor of four-year terms ... I supported it in Raleigh and I still support it."

When this happens, we predict that a lot of legislators who right now imagine themselves to be statesmen will find out they are mere politicians after all.

The people will tend to this matter.

Strength For Today

VIRTUE PRESSED

The idea of the "golden mean" is pagan in origin, but has considerable value. Balance between two extremes generally brings one to a knowledge of the true, and the tendency to push even the most commendable virtue to an extreme may produce embarrassment, discomfort, and sometimes evil itself. Plato said, "For every good there are two evils, the extremes in both directions."

People are inclined to lose patience with a reformer, not because he denounces evil, but because he does nothing else. On the other hand, some people are so tolerant of evil that they will never take up arms against it. With bland confidence they will declare that they alone are following the true Christian line.

Truth usually resides about half-way between extremes. There are always two sides to every question. Watch out for the evil which flows out of good unwisely utilized or a virtue pressed too far. — Elisha Douglass

Geography Of A Joke

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Sometime between Thanksgiving and Christmas, or midway through my last root canal, my dentist told me a joke.

"What do you get when you pour scalding water down a rabbit hole?"

"Hot cross bunnies."

About a month later I saw the same joke in Reader's Digest. Then just recently the joke was reprised several times on "The Muppets Go to the Movies." And now you hear it everywhere.

I don't know why it is but dentists seem to have a pipeline to all the latest jokes. Maybe it's a special service they subscribe to like a telephone answering service or that canned music they play to drown out the sound of the drill. It's probably one of the hidden costs that pump up the bill. Certainly the jokes can't come from their patients. With all that cotton and wax and thumbs they stuff in your mouth, you'd never get to the punch line.

It used to be that you heard all the best jokes first down at the barbershop. When's the last time you heard a good joke from your barber? Since they began razor cuts, hair stylings and reshaping your head, the barbers prefer to talk about politics and nuclear proliferation. They don't even carry the Police Gazette or Playboy anymore. Now the magazine rack offers things like Baron's Weekly, Ecological Quarterly and Interior Decorators Journal.

Comedians, who are notorious kleptomanics in the joke market, used to claim that the prevailing ill wind of humor was westerly. Jokes originated with comics in Hollywood and Las Vegas and worked their way across the country. This, of course, was after the era of the traveling salesman.

When's the last time you heard a good (read bad) traveling salesman joke?

With the rise of television, the slip stream of slapstick was completely reversed. Manhattan became the bof capital of the world, and the wagonloads of witticism went west again, carefully harvested from the seedlings in the seedy basement nightclubs and shamelessly hijacked by the Madison Avenue script writers and late night talk show maestros who soon had to have their own writers.

Then television rediscovered the good weather and empty studios in California, and Johnny Carson and many of the big shows migrated westward, reversing the yuck flow once more.

The geography of jokes has long baffled experts in linguistics.

Who was the very first man or woman ever to contemplate the passage of a chicken across the road? Where did that shtick about hot cross bunnies originate?

Tracing the source of a joke has proved more difficult than tracing the source of the White Nile.

Jokes are as old as written language. Probably older. The Greeks had their comic writers, although I must say in four years of studying the ancient bof-meisters in the original I never fell in the classroom aisle at any of their togaed witticisms. In classical times, jokes were a valued weapon for orators and philosophers. Aristotle in his "Rhetoric" endorses Gorgias' strategy that in debate you should destroy your opponent's seriousness with jests and his jests with seriousness.

The first joke book in English literature was "A Hundred Merry Tales," published in 1526. Shakespeare certainly had it in his library. In "Much Ado About Nothing" Benedict accuses Beatrice of stealing her wit from it.

Purloining the one-liners of others is part of our cultural heritage.

When Oscar Wilde cried, "Oh, I wish I'd said that" in admiration of a one liner by James McNeill Whistler, the artist replied, "you will, Oscar, you will." And he did.

Getting back to my dentist, as I did yesterday for a

The Bull Market In Confusion

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The competitive battle for the saver's dollar in this era of high interest rates has touched off a proliferation of new types of accounts — and a bull market in confusion.

The newest weapon in the arsenal of the banks and savings institutions, for example, is something called a "retail repurchase program." Regulators gave the go-ahead to start offering them in mid-May.

Now "retail repurchase program" may strike you as a pretty unsexy name for something that is designed to compete with the high-flying money market mutual funds, which have attracted $117 billion, almost all of it in the last 2½ years.

Some banks obviously think so too. Reports from such diverse places as Maryland, Texas and California tell of institutions that are calling the accounts something flashier — namely, "money market funds."

The day may be fast approaching when banks can offer a product with all the characteristics of a money market fund. But it hasn't arrived yet.

And advocates of the "real" money-market mutual funds are quick to point out that what the banks have to offer right now is something quite different, regardless of what they might call it.

"These retail repo programs are not registered with the SEC (Securities and Exchange Commission), nor do they issue a prospectus, as investment companies are required to do," said William E. Donoghue in his newsletter, Donoghue's Money Fund Report of Holliston, Mass.

"Individual investors could be misled into believing that these 'funds' are professionally managed, diversified portfolios. But in the situation of bank failure coupled with rising interest rates, the individual investor could lose principal," he contends.

Donoghue's point is one that regulators have insisted the banks and S&Ls make clear in selling the repurchase plans. Unlike most other types of bank accounts, they are not deposits, not covered by federal deposit insurance, and in the words of the Comptroller of the Currency, not guaranteed "in any way" by the government.

In a repurchase plan, a bank sells a customer a piece of a portfolio of government securities it owns, agreeing up front to buy it back after a set period not to exceed 89 days. At the maturity date, it pays the customer back the original purchase price plus an agreed-upon amount of interest.

Minimum investments vary, generally from $1,000 to $3,000. So may the interest rates individual banks offer, and conditions under which early withdrawals are permitted or restricted.

One bank announced late last month it would offer repos for terms ranging from four to 12 weeks, at an interest rate 1 percent below the prevailing rate on six-month money-market certificates.

Experts say that any individual should study the merits of a repurchase program carefully. Unfortunately, given the propensity of bank marketing departments to dress up their products with catchy but confusing names, that's not always an easy assignment.

In California, for instance, some banks give their six-month money market certificates names like "T-bill account." A visitor to the state can find any number of friends and relatives who think they have actually bought "T-bills," when in fact they do not own Treasury bills at all.

It's easy enough to understand the urge to develop new products for banks and savings institutions to help them resolve the serious problems many of them now face.

At the same time, if those products actually represent a good deal for the customer, it's only natural to wonder why they have to be given names that obscure, rather than clarify, what they actually are.

Life As It's Lived

Desperation Comes In Form Of Broken Stove

By GAIL MICHAELS

Some of my friends tell me that they avoid the suppertime blues by preparing their meals in the morning. That wouldn't work for me. I'm one of those people who stagger into the bathroom, brush my teeth with Ben-Gay, spray my underarms with Static-Guard, and sit semi-conscious in front of a cup of coffee until 11 a.m. During that time I have difficulty putting three words together, I wouldn't even attempt two vegetables and a meat.

Unfortunately, 5 p.m. doesn't find me in much better shape. Just thinking about what lies ahead enervates me. Try as I might, I cannot convince myself that grating carrots is a legitimate means of creative expression. Neither is cleaning up the grater afterwards. In fact, the only thing associated with cooking which appeals to me in the least is eating, and when it's my cooking we're talking about, the appeal is limited at best.

That's why I don't usually start supper until I've exhausted all the possible alternatives, like sitting around and waiting for someone to suggest that we go out to eat. Don't get me wrong. I'm not wasting time while I'm waiting. A few days ago, for instance, I filled the time by practicing my ESP. I was trying to transmit the image of a pizza to Phillip's mind.

I failed. He breezed through the door uttering the ultimate banality: "I'm starved. What's for supper?"

"I'm not sure."

"But it's almost 6 o'clock."

"So?"

"So I know you hate to cook, but the only way to get something distasteful done is to plunge right in and do it."

"Sort of like cabinet locks."

He looked puzzled. "What do cabinet locks have to do with dinner?"

"Plenty. I've been asking you to plunge right in and put them on the kitchen cabinets ever since Zachary started crawling."

"I haven't had time."

"Right, and I haven't had time to cook because I've been too busy pulling Zachary out from under the sink."

He rolled his eyes. "Well, I'm here to look after him now."

I heaved myself up from my chair and, with much sighing, plodded toward the kitchen.

I heard him groan. "Gail, by any chance, would you like to eat out tonight?"

I didn't want to appear irresponsible. "Yes, but it's so expensive...."

"You're right."

I waited for some additional words of encouragement, but that was it. I had blown it.

The next day was so cool and invigorating that I decided to be inconsistent and get the kitchen drudgery over with as early as my friends had suggested. But when I turned on the oven, the smell of gas almost overpowered me.

At 5:30 I had assumed my standard position, As usual, Phillip greeted me with, "I'm starved. What's for supper?"

"Nothing. I think I broke the stove."

He just shook his head. "For heaven's sake, Gail, if you wanted to go out to eat, why didn't you just say so."

checkup, he told me one about a famous magician who was asked what was the most difficult trick he had to learn in his entire repertoire.

"Without a doubt," the magician replied, "Sawing a woman in half. It took me months. Of course, I had a great deal of support from my family during this trying time."

"Ah then," he was asked, "You came from a large family?"

"Yes. I had eight half sisters."

I am going to Anchorage, Alaska next week, where I shall ask my friends to keep a log on how long it takes that joke to get up there. They might even start a pool, like the one they have each spring on the exact minute when the ice breaks up in Cook's Inlet.

The prognosis is not good. Jokes don't seem to travel well anymore. I told the magician story to a priest friend who used it in one of his sermons. For the punchline, he said the magician had four step brothers and sisters.

I must give him the name of my dentist one of these days.

serve in the U.S. Army for four years."

"That seems fair."

"If you're 70 years old and have been paying into Social Security since you was a teenager, you're entitled to have every third filling in your mouth paid for, providing you ain't on a football scholarship."

"No one can argue with that."

"If you're over 75 years old — and can prove you're an orphan, you can get 100 percent of your benefits — unless you have a newspaper route and you don't declare your tips."

"That won't affect me. Your Ma is the one who has a newspaper route."

"If you win more than $2.50 a day at gin rummy, you have to pay the first $100 of your Medicaid bill."

"There goes my safety net."

"I'm sorry, Pa. But that's just the way it's got to be."

"I thought that fella Reagan said he wasn't going to mess with anyone's Social Security if he became president."

"He got no choice, Pa, what with you and Ma hanging on the way you've been doin'."

"Wal, your Ma and I ain't about to die just to balance the country's budget."

"Nobody wants you to die, Pa."

"Then what do them smart fellas in Washington want us to do?"

"For starters, you could go out and get a job."

He adds that Greenville is joining the National Recreation and Park Association in designating June as the time "to highlight the growing need of our citizens for constructive, creative and meaningful free-time activities."

The mayor further urges everyone to take part in the many programs offered by the City of Greenville.

odd-shaped little room. Across another expanse, some more small galleries behind walls. Angular, jutting, mazelike, highly contemporary, confusing, and dull-colored are apt descriptions.

But that reaction reckons without the eventual occupants of the building. The art will not be "at home" till late next year.

With just a little imagination, now, you can begin to understand what this building is all about.

A butterfly unfolding her wings on a dry-rotted tree stump has no competition for her color and beauty; a bluebird barely glimpsed flitting through a pine thicket is a flash of light in a dark forest.

Edgar Peters Bowron, the new museum director, is a man who must bring this world to life. He is busy, these days, prowling the still unfinished building as his mind seeks to marry a particular spot with a special work of art so that vista, light, background and angles will show a visitor what the artist meant him to see.

Permanent

The "Old Masters" of Renaissance and Baroque works are the "strengths of this museum," and with American works which as yet haven't been on public display will form the foundation of the permanent exhibit, Bowron feels now.

For the public, there will be a changing variety of displays since space permits both the permanent displays and more. Bowron hopes eventually to be able to attract the prestigious traveling tours such as those which drew thousands — King Tut; the Chinese porcelains. He is developing a "speaking tour" for visitors in which listening posts provide insight and information.

But above all, he is trying to get a feel for the environment and the future occupants so that the first priority — "To preserve North Carolina's cultural patrimony" — can be achieved. Then comes making the art available for public viewing; setting up library and research materials for study; the auditorium for lectures and films; even the children's wing with its own entrance and exit and snack area.

Art museums, says Bowron, are still "elitist" in that they seek to show only the best. But they are not elitist in seeking to let only the upper crust enjoy and learn from the displays.

"There have been tremendous changes in the world of art museums in recent years; and rapid change in the sort of people in museum work," Bowron says. Those changes will be on public view come the fall of 1982.

A Grandmother Finishes Work For Diploma

By SUE FERNALD
Reflector Staff Writer

"I always wanted to get an education before I died, and to inspire my 15-year-old grandson," reflected 53-year-old Margaret L. Foust, the oldest graduate of Pitt County Extended High School.

She and 11 others were presented their diplomas in ceremonies held at Pitt Community College Thursday morning.

Mrs. Foust dropped out of school when she was 15 to have her child and stayed out for 38 years. Three years ago she decided to complete her high school requirements.

"I didn't care what came

or went," she said, "I was going to finish." While taking high school classes she also received some college credit.

"It was a hard stuggle," she said, but it was all worth it. "I got an 'A' in all my college credits and I'm very proud."

The Pitt County Extended High School is located on the Pitt Community College campus and the principal, Irene Hanifer, helped arrange classes to fit Mrs. Foust's work schedule, which previously had interfered with her education. With the aid of tutors and specially arranged classes, she fulfilled her dream this spring.

Math was her favorite class, although it gave her the most problems. She added that English is becoming easier and easier. Perhaps the most important thing earning her diploma has done for her is to encourage her to go on to college.

"Now I'm beginning to believe I'm college material," she said, noting that she will begin work on a degree in human services technology at PCC this fall.

Education has opened her mind to new avenues. "To see your mind and brain come alive is an amazing thing," she said.

While at the Extended School, Mrs. Foust received honors in several areas. She was awarded first place in student achievement, recognizing her as the most studious pupil in 1980; she received the '79 certificate of honor for attendance and attitude; made the highest score in her school on the state-required math competency test in 1980; and was the 1980 high school student of the year.

Mrs. Foust has been employed by Pitt County for 25 years and is also active in her church, Selvia Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, where she is a member of the Senior Choir, Usher Board No. 2 and the program committee.

Rose Grad Scholarship Winner

Rose High senior James Vernon Piephoff has been named recipient of a Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps (NROTC) Navy-Marine Scholarship, a full four-year scholarship which carries tuition and other benefits currently worth as much as $30,000 at leading colleges and universities.

JAMES V. PIEPHOFF

James, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Piephoff, Jr., has tentatively selected The Citadel in Charleston, S. C. as the school of his choice in the NROTC program. Recipients of a NROTC scholarship can choose from among 55 American colleges and universities which have NROTC training programs.

Schools within the tri-state area of the two Carolinas and Virginia offering NROTC progrms in addition to The Citadel are Duke University, UNC-Chapel Hill, the University of South Carolina, the University of Virginia, and Virginia Military Institute.

James, a dedicated swimmer, is captain of the Rose High Swim Team and has received the most valuable swimmer award. He is also an active member of the Greenville Swim Club. He is a member of the National Honor Society, and is an avid reader, particularly of military history.

On the successful completion of four years of schooling under the terms of the NROTC scholarship, graduates receive a commission in either the Navy or the Marine Corps.

The NROTC program was established in 1926 and was significantly expanded during World War II.

League Board Talks Plans

The Board of Directors of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters met Saturday for a day of orientation during which plans were made for the 1981-82 general meetings and special activities.

President Patricia Dunn offered a slide presentation about the purpose and structure of the League and views of the recent state board meeting. Mildred Indorf reviewed local bylaws and the board considered needed changes. Rhea Markello, first vice president, presented an overview of the 1981-83 state adopted program. State board member Kay Adler of Greenville, who was recently elected second vice president, discussed procedures for developing programs of study and assistance available from the state. She also presented projected plans of the League for emphasis in the study area of human resources.

The board established a calendar for the League's monthly meetings which begin Sept. 15 with a presentation on alternatives for financing of Social Security. The annual meeting will be held Apr. 6. It was decided to plan for a candidates' forum on television in April, prior to the spring election of county commissioners.

Reputed Rackets Bosses Are Indicted

MIAMI (AP) — Reputed organized crime leaders Santo Trafficante Jr. and Anthony Accardo were among 16 people indicted on charges of conspiring to split $2 million in kickbacks on Laborers International Union of North America trust funds.

Federal officials said Thursday the single-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury followed a two-year investigation of the 475,000-member union.

They were charged with "conspiring to violate the Racketeer Influence and Corrupt Organizations Statute (RICO)" by offering to award the union's lucrative medical and life insurance policies to companies willing to give back up to 10 percent of the premiums, said U.S. Attorney Atlee Wampler.

The charge carries a mandatory penalty of 20 years in prison and a $25,000 fine for conviction, he said. If convicted, defendants who are union officers or pension fund trustees must be removed from office, Wampler said.

Identified in past federal investigations as the head of Florida's underworld, Trafficante, 66, never before was charged with a major crime. He told a magistrate he was arrested 15 years ago for obstruction of justice and later on a bookmaking charge.

There was no immediate comment from any of those indicted.

Accardo, 75, reputed to be a veteran figure among Chicago gangland leaders and once Al Capone's bodyguard, was arrested in Chicago, the FBI said. Trafficante surrendered at the U.S. marshal's office in Miami.

FBI spokesman Joseph Corliss said all 16 men — 12 in Chicago and four in Miami — had been taken into custody by Thursday afternoon. All were released on bond or personal recognizance.

Also indicted were:

—Union General President Angelo Fosco, 60, of Chicago, and his son, Paul, 32. Wampler identified the younger Fosco as former president of P.F. Insurance Agency of Chicago and vice president of Consultants and Administrators and Dental and Vision Care Centers of Miami.

—Bernard G. Rubin, 60, of Miami, a former international representative of the Laborers union and president of the union's Florida District Council. He was convicted in 1978 of embezzling $400,000 in union funds.

—James Caporale, 60, of Chicago, the secretary-treasurer of the Chicago and Vicinity District Council of Laborers union.

—Paul A. Di Franco, 51, of Chicago, a dentist who was a vice president of Dental and Vision Care Centers Inc., in Miami.

—John Giardiello, 49, of Fort Lauderdale, president and business manager of Laborers Local 767 and a trustee of the Southeast Florida Laborers District Council Dental, Vision and Preventive Care trust fund, also known as Florida Dental plan.

—Seymour Gopman, 56, of Miami, former counsel to the Dade County Health and Welfare Fund, and several other union funds.

—James F. Norton, 50, of Chicago, president of Consultants and Administrators and former vice president of the Dental and Vision Care Centers.

—Louis Ostrer, of New York, identified as the principal operator of Sales Administrators for Employee Fringe Advantages Inc., and Fringe Benefits Inc., both of New York.

—Terence J. O'Sullivan, 51, Washington, secretary treasurer until 1975 of LIUNA and later president of Worldwide Insurance Company of Washington.

—Alfred Pilotto, 60, Chicago, president of Laborers Local 5, and vice president of Laborers Construction and General Laborers District Council of Chicago and Vicinity.

—James Pinckard, 45, of Chicago, owner-operator of Pinckard and Associates Inc., and son-in-law of Pilotto.

—Salvatore Tricario, 49, Fort Lauderdale, business agent and recording secretary of Laborers Local 767.

—George Wuagneux, 48, Scottsdale, Ariz., former president of the Sage Corp., which was a Florida real estate development corporation.

Scholarship Named In Wife's Memory

ECU News Bureau

They met on the East Carolina College campus when both were students here nearly 30 years ago, a couple of starry-eyed young people from small eastern North Carolina towns. They fell in love and were married.

He is Robert Kenneth Butler, a successful and prominent optometrist who practiced in the metropolitan Washington, D.C., area for more than 20 years, and she was the former Janice Meekins of Elizabeth City.

Together they maintained close ties to their alma mater and took pride in its growth and development. They were active in the Washington area chapter of the ECU Alumni Association.

Her death from cancer ended their idyllic marriage last year. As her illness worsened, they moved from Woodbridge, Va., to the Tidewater Area of Virginia to be near her family.

Memories of college and the days of campus courtship had remained strong for the Butlers through the years, and now he has established an annual scholarship through the East Carolina University Foundation in loving memory of his wife, Janice Meekins Butler.

The Janice Meekins Butler Scholarship in the amount of $1,000 will be awarded annually for one academic year (two semesters) to a needy outstanding undergraduate majoring either in education or in nursing. The scholarship will be renewable.

"We are extremely pleased that Dr. Butler has chosen to provide a permanent and lasting memorial to his wife which will aid ECU students in their pursuits of education to advance mankind," said Donald L. Lemish, Vice Chancellor for Institutional Advancement and Planning. "Dr. Butler has been an active and loyal alumnus ever since graduation and feels a deep sense of commitment to East Carolina University."

Dr. Butler, a native of Kelford, N.C., now lives in Poquoson, Va.

Two of Butler's brothers also attended East Carolina University and one also married an ECU coed.

Divinity Degree For Magruder

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Jeb Stuart Magruder, a former White House aide who served a seven-month prison term for his role in the Watergate scandal, has received a divinity degree and plans to work at a church.

Magruder, 46, now a Princeton resident, was one of 247 students who graduated from the Princeton Theological Seminary on Tuesday.

"I had a great time there," Magruder said of Princeton. "In fact, I'll be continuing some work there," he said Wednesday.

Magruder also said he plans "to be working at a Presbyterian Church in the fall," but would not name the church or give any more details about his future.

"As you can certainly understand, we want to lead a normal life," said his wife, Gail.

Magruder also said, "I'm not willing to discuss Watergate in any way, shape or form, and I have not been for a number of years."

Magruder pleaded guilty to obstruction of justice for his part in Watergate and served seven months at a federal prison in Allenwood, Pa.

Case Is Closed

Greenville Police have closed a 1980 murder case, identifying a man killed in a February 13 shooting in Ayden as the alleged murderer, Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

According to the chief, Herman Earl Phillips, 46, of Grifton was shot in the head in a room at the Greenville Motel, 2309 South Memorial Dr. by an intruder who tied up a Phillips' companion, Joyce Faircloth Dixon of Snow Hill before the shooting.

A continuing investigation by local police, State Bureau of Investigation agents and other law enforcement officers, according to Cannon, has resulted in the woman identifying Marion Eugene Edwards, 33, of 100A Independence Ave. as the man who forced his way into the motel room, tied her up and shot Phillips.

Phillips, according to the chief, was shot and killed in an incident in Ayden on February 13.

Profiles in Pride and Performance

Doug Joyner is an inspiration to all who know him.

He joined the Farmville plant staff 14 years ago after some vocational rehabilitation professionals thought that he was too handicapped to ever hold a job.

Doug has cerebral palsy, a birth defect which affected the motor control functions of his brain, severely imparing the use of his left arm and leg.

"I couldn't buy that," he says, "and I told them that I was going to apply at Collins & Aikman."

It was his second visit to our personnel department. His desire and enthusiasm so moved our people that he was put to work the next day. It was one of the smartest moves we ever made.

"No one gives more of himself to his company and his job than Doug does," says Gene Crawford, director of quality assurance, and his boss. "He is a producer, an inventor and a standard setter for everyone who comes into contact with him. In addition, he's one of the best liked people in the plant."

Doug has received awards for his inventiveness, each of which has improved the running of his job and the marketability of his product line.

In this period when we Americans are working hard to regain our position as the world's quality and productivity leader, we can all learn a lot from Charles Douglas Joyner, a man who refuses to do less than his very best.

Harvey S. McNair found a home at Collins & Aikman.

"I liked my work and the folks I worked with so much that I got my son a job here, too. But I warned him, 'they're judging you by the way that you work - and that's reflecting on me too, 'cause I recommended you'."

The father has been with us for 10 years; the son for eight.

Harvey's job couldn't be more critical. He is a final inspector or grader, the last person to see our fabric before the customer does.

Harvey McNair has a personal Golden Rule that he applies to his job. "IF I wouldn't buy the fabric myself, I'm sure not going to palm it off on anyone else," he explains. So poor quality doesn't get by his station.

His enthusiasm and concern are reflected in many other sectors of his life. He is a deacon of the Reid Chapel Missionary Baptist Church in Fountain, where he has served as Sunday School superintendent and teacher. He is Grand Master of his Masonic Lodge in Fountain. He and his wife, Almeta, have three children. Their daughter, Linda, recently graduated from St. Augustine College in Raleigh and is now a social worker.

Life is an adventure for Edna Frazier.

She joined us 17 years ago, shortly after the Farmville plant opened. Since that time she has been a member of the warping department, most recently responsible for salvaging expensive cones of damaged filament yarns which otherwise would be sold as scrap at a tremendous loss.

It is a time-consuming task but one which pays big dividends when you consider the cost of yarn in today's marketplace.

"I've always liked my job," she says, "and I appreciate its value to our company."

While she seems a shy, quiet person, beneath that reserve there is the heart of an adventurer. "I love to travel," she explains, "so when I read or hear of a tour that sounds interesting, I sign up and away I go."

Her wanderlust has taken her to the Holy Land, the New England states and extensively through the Appalachian mountains.

Edna gives much of herself to her community. She holds the Martha station in the Order of the Eastern Star in Snow Hill, works with a rest home in which her 82 year old mother is a patient, and "grew up" in the Harrel's Chapel FWB Church, where she received a 21-year Sunday School pin.

Proud that Doug, Harvey and Edna are on our team.

MIDWAY'S ESCORT — Japanese police boats guard the U.S. aircraft carrier Midway Friday as tugs help dock the 51,000-ton vessel at Yokosuka, south of Tokyo. Demonstrators opposed to nuclear weapons met the arriving flattop in chartered vessels but were kept clear by authorities. Return of Midway to Yokosuka, her home port in Asia, aroused controversy following allegations that the U.S. had stored nuclear weapons in Japan against Japanese government wishes. (AP Laserphoto)

Close A Poisoned Lake

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Excessive mercury concentrations in fish from High Rock Lake forced state officials Thursday to close the lake to commercial fishing.

The fish is especially hazardous if eaten by pregnant women, said state epidemiologist Dr. Michael Moser.

Fish from adjoining Abbotss Creek and nearby Leonards Creek were also declared off-limits during a press conference held Thursday by Moser and officials of the state departments of Human Resources and Natural Resources and Community Development.

The announcement was the result of a five-week investigation into mercury contamination in Davidson County.

Richard Baxley, Davidson County health director, said no cases of mercury poisoning have been reported.

The mercury levels pose no immediate health emergency for people living along the lake who use it for purposes other than fishing, such as swimming, Moser said.

"The current atmosphere of panic is the most dangerous consequence at the moment," Moser said. "There's entirely too much mercury in the lake, but people would be doing themselves mroe harm worrying about it than simply not eating the fish."

Fish caught last month at the three bodies of water showed mercury levels of up to 2.7 part per million, almost three times the allowable limits, said Bryant Haskins, spokesman for the Division of Solid and Hazardous Wastes.

The highest levels were found in Leonards Creek, he said.

Soil and water tests taken around two battery companies in the area, Battery Technology on the lake and the Duracell plant in Lexington, indicated excessive mercury levels.

But Haskins said there was no sign that mercury from the plants had entered the lake.

"We're still investigating possible sources," said Fin Johnson, regional supervisor for the state Division of Environmental Management.

Dees Says He Told Of Bid-Rigging Years Ago

HOPE MILLS, N.C. (AP) — Former top paving exectutive Wilbur Dees, who recently ended a federal prison term for bid rigging, says he told federal agents about the statewide scandal as early as 1973 — but nothing happened for several years.

Since then, his information has led to allegations that Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green accepted free paving, to fines against 16 paving companies and to prison terms for at least 29 paving company executives.

In other bid-rigging news Thursday, state officials rejected a bid from Thompson-Arthur Paving Co., a Greensboro firm suspended from bidding on state highway projects after two of its officials pleaded guilty to bid rigging.

Before Dees left Crowell Constructors Inc. of Fayetteville in 1973, he said, he met with U.S Justice Department antitrust lawyer Arthur Feiveson and FBI agent Lacy Walthall. Feiveson refused to confirm or deny the meeting, but Walthall, who has since retired, confirmed it.

Dees, 47, said he told the investigators about the agreements not to compete on certain projects, the territories dominated by each paving company, the hiked estimates on contracts and the falsified company books. He said he told them everything he knew, including his own involvement.

Dees asked for no immunity for himself or his company in meeting with Walthall, but he asked for confidentiality. He said he feared contractors might seek retaliation.

But after the 1973 talks, nothing happened, he said. There were no indictments or trials.

Nothing happened until 1976, when a State Bureau of Investigation agent asked him to talk about the scandal. Dees refused because of his fears about confidentiality.

But in 1980, he told the story he told in 1973 to federal investigators in Washington — with a few new details.

Those details included revelations about the free paving done for state Transportation Department official J. Preston Allen and the allegations about Green. Dees said Crowell paved a driveway and parking lots for Green in the summer of 1977.

Dees said both Green and Allen were sent bills for which they wrote checks, then received a cash refund from Crowell Constructors president William Crowell. Green has denied any wrongdoing and has refused further comment.

Based on his testimony, Crowell and Allen were conficted on bid-rigging charges earlier this year.

"They're hot on Jimmy Green now," Dees said. "But that's not the main thing. The main thing is that bid rigging has defrauded the people of North Carolina of millions and millions of dollars. That part of the story has never been brought out."

Thompson-Arthur lost a $600,000 contract to renovate athletic fields at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro that did not involve paving.

Gave Time To 'Poorest'

NEW YORK (AP) — After receiving an award in Washington from Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker, Mother Teresa came to New York to promote natural birth control but took time out for her real mission — "the poorest of the poor."

The Nobel Prize-winning nun from Calcutta showed up Thursday night at Covenant House, where a Franciscan priest, the Rev. Bruce Ritter, operates a home for abandoned and abused children and a crisis center for homeless and runaway teenagers.

Mother Teresa paused briefly in front of television cameras to praise Ritter's "beautiful work" and to advise New Yorkers that the way to help the city's poor is to "love one another — if you love them you will help them."

In Washington, Schweiker said, "Maybe you could teach us how to do more with less. What impresses us is you don't have all the money we do, yet you do a lot more than we do."

Mother Theresa's society is responsible for homes which care for the dying, abandoned children and the destitute in Asia and Africa.

Mother Teresa's main mission in this country is, at the request of Pope John Paul II, to foster the training of Catholics in the use of natural birth control methods which she says have sharply reduced births in Calcutta.

You Don't Know 'Til You Try, Says Silverman

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With ratings on the tumble and affiliates threatening to jump ship, NBC canceled that bold experiment in daytime TV, "The David Letterman Show," last Oct. 20, and began a steady climb toward respectability.

NBC's share of the audience has increased since 'Letterman' left the air from 16 percent of the folks watching TV during the day to 20 percent. ABC, in the meantime, has lost three points, from 31 percent of the audience to 28, while CBS' share has dipped from 28 to 26.

No one blames Letterman himself for NBC's near-disaster. The talented comic recently won an Emmy as outstanding host of a daytime variety series — "Obviously, there's been some sort of mixup," Letterman quipped as he accepted the award — and remains under contract to the network.

"The pressure the stations put the network under was enormous," said Irv Wilson, an NBC vice president responsible for daytime programming. "If we hadn't canceled the show, the stations might have canceled out on us."

It was the kind of headache NBC's president, Fred Silverman, didn't need. Silverman has had his hands full since taking the job in the summer of '78, trying to lift the network from the prime-time cellar. But that's another story.

"I think it was a terrific idea to do that kind of show," Wilson said in reflection. "I just don't think Letterman's appeal was to the morning audience. But you don't know until you try."

NBC tossed a couple of new game shows, "Las Vegas Gambit" and "Blockbusters," into the 'Letterman' void, and the two have been at least moderately successful. In the meantime, Wilson and the people who work for him were determined to upgrade the remainder of the daytime schedule.

"We hit a low point when 'Letterman' was canceled," Wilson said. "The two games that we put in there are sound, interesting programs and seem to be doing well.

"We felt that the best thing the network could do was let the schedule settle in, then try to make the shows better — improve the writing, improve the production."

Among other things, NBC dumped Bill and Joyce Corrington as head writers for "Texas," the daytime serial introduced with fanfare last August opposite the ABC supersoap, "General Hospital."

"Texas" recently has shown some sign of vitality, though "General Hospital" remains tops in the afternoon field with 37 percent of the audience in the 3-4 p.m. slot to 15 percent for the NBC soap. "Days of Our Lives," 1-2 p.m., is NBC's highest-rated afternoon show, with nearly a quarter of the audience in its time period.

"I think what we have is better today," Wilson said, "and I think the ratings show that the tactic is beginning to pay some dividends."

Now, with momentum clearly a factor, NBC will test something new, a program called "Wedding Day," in which couples will exchange marriage vows and share other events like the bridal shower, bachelor party and reception with the TV audience.

"Wedding Day" will be broadcast in the "Password Plus" timeslot, 11:30 a.m.-noon EDT, June 8-12.

"I think the show plays exactly to the audience we are looking for," Wilson said, "and it's going to be an interesting trial."

And, for a bit of spice, "The Doctors," NBC's early afternoon serial — 12:30-1 p.m. — gets a real-life sex therapist this coming Friday, June 12. Dr. Debora Phillips, author of "Sexual Confidence" and "How to Fall Out of Love," will make several appearances on the show, counseling the leading characters.

"I don't think we're dealing with atomic scientists at the other two networks, and that's not a disparaging comment," said Wilson of NBC's daytime challenge. "But we all have bright people working for us.

"Because we are in third place, we tend to look at things more openly. You take more risks, and you can be burned. But you can also hit the jackpot."

Tobacco Fee Is Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee voted Thursday to delay implementation of a new fee system for tobacco grading by three months.

The measure, approved 25-16, would require tobacco farmers to begin paying the cost of grading and inspections Oct. 1, rather than July 1 as originally had been planned. The costs previously had been paid by the federal government.

It could save flue-cured tobacco farmers as much as $4 million this year.

The move was engineered by North Carolina Democratic Reps. Charles Rose III and Charles O. Whitley, who pushed the measure through the committee amid opposition from congressmen from burley tobacco states.

The Senate Agriculture Committee, chaired by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., approved the July implementation date on Wednesday. The two versions of the bill will be worked out in a conference committee.

The delay will allow most flue-cured leaf farmers to have their tobacco inspected at government expense this season, while burley tobacco farmers would have to pay for inspections.

The flue-cured season runs from July through November, while the burley marketing season runs from November through February.

State Suing Four For Dumping Toxic PCB

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state filed a $12.5 million damage suit Thursday against a Raleigh businessman and four others for allegedly dumping toxic PCB-laden oil along North Carolina highways.

Attorney General Rufus Emisten said the suit, which seeks $2.53 million in actual damages and $10 million in punitive damages, is one of the largest the state has ever filed.

"The amount of the suit is very appropriate because we have a very precarious environment as it is without people trying to dump toxic chemicals illegally," he said. "We're not going to tolerate the mucking of a very fragile environment."

The suit against Robert E. Ward, the owner of Ward Transformer Co. in Raleigh; former business partner Robert J. Burns of Jamestown, N.Y.; and Burns' two sons, Timothy and Randall Burns, came two weeks afer a federal court convicted Ward of aiding in the 1978 dumpings. The Burnses pleaded guilty to the dumpings in 1979.

The four men will be sentenced June 22 on the federal misdemeanor charges. They face up to a year in jail and a $25,000 fine on each of the eight counts.

PCBs, also known as polychlorinated biphenlys, are used in electrical transformers. The chemical has been linked to cancer in humans.

The suit contends the state would have to pay $2.5 million to clean the PCBs off the roadsides. It contends Ward was aware of the dumpings and paid Robert Burns $1.70 per gallon to remove the PCB oil and that Ward received a 70-cent "kickback" on each gallon.

The long black trails of PCB-laced oil are covered with a layer of asphalt, but the state's plans for a permanent dumping site have been tied up in litigation for two years.

A 1979 federal restraining order forbids the clearing of a Warren County area as dumping grounds for 10,000 truckloads of PCB-tainted soil. A Warren County citizens' group has challenged the state's plans to dump the oil in their county.

Meanwhile, a Johnston County farmer has sued the state for $10 billion to force state and federal officials to clean up the oil spills.

H. Al Cole Jr., a special deputy attorny general who will prosecute the civil cases against Ward and the Burnses, said the state is looking into the defendants' assets.

"I think at one time it was fairly certain that they had substantial assets," he said.

Ward could not be reached for comment, and Robert Burns refused comment.

Local Student Scholarship Recipient

Dennis Walter Hearne, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Walter Hearne of Greenville, has been named a co-recipient of the Cooke-Scales Scholarship in International Relations at Wake Forest University.

The Cooke-Scales Scholarship is awarded annually to one or two students on the basis of academic ability and a demonstrated commitment to serve in the field of international relations as a professional or an educator.

DENNIS HEARNE

When the scholarship is divided between two recipients, each receives $1,800 toward yearly tuition and up to $1,000 for study in a university approved overseas program. Hearne will share the award with Jane Jeffries of Roanoke, Va.

Hearne is a senior majoring in politics at Wake Forest. He is a 1978 graduate of J.H. Rose High School and attended East CArolina University for a year prior to studies at Wake Forest University.

Hearne is an editorial page editor of the Wake Forest Student paper and was selected as one of a group of students to study British government and culture in London for the fall semester of 1981.

Famed Statue At St. Gabriel's

The famed statue of the Pilgrim Virgin of Fatima will be visiting St. Gabriel's Roman Catholic Church here tomorrow.

The statue commemorates an incident in Fatima, Portugal in which the Virgin Mary appeared to three children in 1917. In the vision, she promised that when enough people prayed the Rosary, she would convert Communist Russia to Christianity. The statue has received a warm reception wherever it has been taken.

The Mass of the Virgin will be held at 7:00 in the Old St. Gabriel's Church, with the benediction of The Blessed Sacrament to follow. The general public, regardless of faith, is encouraged to attend.

TWO SERVICES

English Chapel FWB Church, Greenville Boulevard, announces two services for this weekend. Sunday at 11:00 a.m., a service will be conducted by Rev. James Smith. The junior choir and junior ushers will be in charge.

Sunday afternoon at 2:00 p.m., Mother's Anniversary will be celebrated, with speaker Eldress Rhuarma Knox. Mt. Shilo senior choir from Winterville will render music. Mother Louise Dixon invites the public to attend these services.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose today following an encouraging government report on inflation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell 2.97 points Wednesday, gained 4.17 points to 990.91 at noon.

And the number of stocks ris- ing in price held a 7-6 lead over losers in the midday tally of New York Stock Exhange-listed issues.

Before trading started today, the Labor Department reported that inflation at the wholesale level rose 0.4 percent in May, or at an annual rate of 4.6 per- cent, the lowest since Decem- ber 1980, but about what Wall Street analysts had expected.

The agency also reported that the nation's unemployment rate rose three-tenths of a per-centage point to 7.6 percent in May, the largest jump in a year and an indication of a further weakening of the economy.

But concern over rising interest rates lingered as Girard Bank in Philadelphia, the nation's 45th-largest commercial bank, today raised its prime lending rate to 21 percent from 20 percent. And there were fears that the Federal Reserve Board would report after the end of trading today that the nation's money supply grew after two straight weeks of declines, increasing pressures for interest rate hikes.

The NYSE's composite index of all of its listed common stock rose .31 to 76.33. But at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .08 at 369.29.

Volume on the Big Board reached 20.49 million shares over the first two hours today, down from 23.65 million in the same period Thursday.

Allied topped the NYSE active list at noon, up ½ at 53½, in trading that included a block of 300,000 shares changing hands at 53½.

Energy issues, which rallied Thursday, turned mixed today. Atlantic Richfield gained ¼ to 43¼, Exxon was up ¼ at 65⅝, Mobil was unchanged at 55⅝, Standard Oil of California slipped ⅛ to 37⅛, but Halliburton surged 2 to 59⅜.

Active issues included Bank-America, up ⅛ at 25½; Warner Lambert, up ⅛ at 23¾; Boeing, down ⅜ at 30⅛; and International Business Machines, up ¼ at 58¼.

Fatigue On Nimitz Also Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fatigue among pilots and crewmen who had worked 14-hour days for two straight weeks may have contributed to a crash on the aircraft carrier Nimitz that killed 14 people, the Navy says.

Officials declined Thursday to discuss any specifics regarding the air crew who flew the EA-6B radar-jamming plane which skidded across the flight deck last week, killing all three Marine fliers and 11 Navy men on deck.

But, in acknowledging that the fatigue factor is being investigated, they said the airmen had been spending about four hours a day flying and another 10 hours daily in other duties for 12 straight days before the crash.

Commander James Harness, a Navy spokesman, said the Nimitz' single fight deck crew "worked all through day and night flight operations." Other crews handling such duties as plane maintenance and operation of the ship put in 12 to 15 hours a day, he said.

In addition to the 14 dead, 48 men were injured and 20 planes destroyed or damaged in the crash last week off Jacksonville, Fla. It was the worst such incident since 1953, according to Navy records.

Harness said long work hours "most certainly" are common when any carrier is engaged in flight operations at sea.

In peacetime, Navy ships are manned below full wartime strength. The Nimitz is no exception, with about 5,500 sailors and air-related personnel compared with the 6,280 men the ship would carry in a war.

Maj. Gen. R. Dean Tice, the Pentagon's manpower chief, earlier this week cited the long hours worked by Nimitz crewmen, in asking Congress for a large military pay raise.

Navy officials have claimed that substandard pay and long overseas deployments are responsible for chronic shortages of skilled and veteran officers and petty officers.

Hunting Sub

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The navy reports it has detected an unidentified submarine in Swedish waters and is giving chase.

Naval ships and helicopters hunting for the sub made brief contact with it Thursday afternoon, the naval command said. The ships failed to determine the sub's national origin, but detonated a depth charge to warn it off, it said.

Wilson Edges Post 39 In Bottom Of Ninth

WILSON — The 1981 American Legion baseball season got off to a disappointing start for Pitt County Thursday night when Charles Simpson singled home Joey Page with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning to give Wilson a 7-6 victory over Post 39.

The winning run came just one inning after Wilson had scored three times to tie the game at 6-6 and erase what had once been a 4-0 Pitt County lead.

Page led off the ninth with a single to chase Pitt County starter Roger Williams for Doug McRoy. McRoy induced two quick ground outs before walking Don Doster. Simpson then followed with his two-out single to score Page and Wilson had won.

Pitt County will face Wilson again tonight, this time at home at Harrington Field at 8 p.m. Post 39 will then play host to Wayne County in a makeup game Sunday at 8 p.m. Originally, the game had been set for 3 p.m. but was changed to a night game yesterday by Pitt Co. coach Pat Smith.

Pitt County jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the second inning and added two more runs in the third to go up, 4-0.

With one gone in the second, Kenny Barnes singled. Mitch Brann then hit a shot that was just fair inside the foul pole in rightfield for a home run, giving the visitors a 2-0 lead.

In the third, Paul MacMillan singled to lead off and after two outs Gordon Douglas singled him to second. Barnes then doubled home MacMillan but was out after a rundown. Douglas later scored when Sammy Hodges reached on an error by Simpson, Wilson's third baseman.

Wilson narrowed the gap in the fifth with two runs and closed to within one in the sixth with another run.

Joel Patterson walked to start the fifth. With one gone, Brent Pope sacrificed Patterson to second. Donald Williams then tripled home Patterson for Wilson's first run of the night. Williams subsequently scored on a wild pitch.

In the sixth, Simpson singled, went to third on Al Hardison's single and scored on Chris Bradberry's sacrifice fly to cut the deficit to 4-3.

Pitt County regained a three-run lead one inning later when Post 39 scored twice.

Barnes singled and went to second on Brann's ground out. Greg Briley, pinch hitting for Billy Kittrell, then singled Barnes home. Mark Douglas then walked and Paul MacMillan reached on an error to score Randy Warren, who was running for Briley, and Pitt County led, 6-3.

But not for long. Wilson rallied for three runs in the bottom of the eighth to tie the game. Williams led off the inning by reaching on an error by Mark Douglas at shortstop and went to second when Deans walked. Simpson then singled to load the bases.

After Hardison struck out, Bradberry doubled home both Williams and Mark Davis, who was running for Deans. Simpson subsequently scored in a rundown that followed when Emmett Walsh missed thr throw by Jeff Wilson.

One inning later, after Pitt Co. went down in order in the top of the ninth, Wilson won, sending Post 39 home with a opening-season loss.

Par-Saving Putt On 18th Hole Gives Aoki Lead In Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Isao Aoki plans to return to Japan following the U.S. Open in two weeks, but he insists he's not gearing his game just for that prestigious event.

"I like to play each tournament the best I can," said the Japanese star who claimed the first round lead Thursday in the $300,000 Atlanta Classic with a 5-under-par 67.

"I missed the cut last week, so I have to play much harder this week," he said through an interpreter, calling it the best round he has played this season in the United States.

"If the weather stays this way, hot, but not too hot, I think I can do well in the tournament," he said.

Aoki prevented what would have been an 11-way tie for the lead when he sank a 5-foot, par-saving putt on his final hole to take a one shot advantage over 10 other golfers, including two of the game's top stars, Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson.

Nicklaus, finishing earlier in the day on the hilly, 6,945-yard Atlanta Country Club course, missed his chance to share the lead when he bogeyed his final hole, running a 16-footer five feet past the pin and missing that coming back.

Aoki, starting on the backside, birdied his first four holes, sinking putts from the 12 to 16 foot range on the first three before placing a pitching wedge seven feet from the hole on the par 3 13th for his fourth.

He sailed over the green at the par-4 No.5, but birdied that one anyway when he pitched in from 35 feet away. His other birdie came at No.7 from 10 feet and he finished off the round by saving par on the ninth green.

Nicklaus, who said he played well and putted well except for a three-putt at No.9, his final hole. He almost holed a 3-wood on the par-5 18th, where he knocked in a 5-footer for an eagle.

"Threes on par five have a tendency to lower your score, and help your frame of mind," he said.

Watson, who was 4 under at the turn but played the last nine holes in par, said he was surprised that the scoreboard had 24 players grouped so closely.

Others tied at 68 with Nicklaus and Watson were Lanny Wadkins, who played one string of four holes 5 under par with three birdies and an eagle; Gary McCord; Tommy Valentine; Calvin Peete; Stan Altgelt; Jack Ferenz; Bob Eastwood; and Roger Maltbie, who birdied his last four holes.

Ray Floyd, winner of consecutive tournaments early this year, led a group of 13 at 69.

Campo Says Colony Will Win Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Pleasant Colony will be the last horse loaded into the starting gate for Saturday's Belmont Stakes, but trainer Johnny Campo is certain his colt will be the first to finish the 1½-mile grind.

"Show me a horse in this race who has won three races in a row," said Campo Thursday after 10 rivals were named to oppose the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner. "The other horses win, get beat and they (trainers) make speeches in between. But they're entitled to get beat."

Pleasant Colony, who also won the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct April 18, will be bidding to become only the 12th Triple Crown winner in thoroughbred history. The early 4-5 favorite will go from the outside No.11 post with Jorge Velasquez in the saddle.

Nine others have won the first two legs only to falter in the Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park. The last to have his Triple Crown bid spoiled in the Belmont was heavily-favored Spectacular Bid, who finished third in 1979 to Coastal.

Saturday's field is the largest since 13 went in the 1971 Belmont won by Pass Catcher.

Campo said the surprisingly large field occurred because other trainers want to beat him because "I'm a big mouth. They're picking on me.

"But they can't beat my horse. They're running scared against the Fat Man. I beat 'em and they run and hide. He wins because he's an athlete. He was coming into his peak when I got him (in March.)"

The son of His Majesty-Sun Colony has won more than $600,000 this year in five starts.

Thursday he had his final workout, going four furlongs over a muddy track in 461-5 and going an additional furlong in 591-5.

"It's remarkable for him to go that fast over a racetrack that deep," said Campo. "He's not even blowing."

Key rivals are expected to be Greentree Stable's Woodchopper, Leone Peters' Tap Shoes and Pen-Y-Bryn Farm's Highland Blade.

Woodchopper, a fast-closing second in the 1¼-mile Derby and 11th in the 13-16 mile Preakness, is listed at 4-1 in the early line. Laffit Pincay replaces ailing Eddie Delahoussaye on Woodchopper.

Tap Shoes, who will be coupled with Stage Door Key in the wagering, also is rated at 4-1 in the early line. Ruben Hernandez will ride.

Tap Shoes skipped the Preakness after finishing 14th in the Derby. He won the Peter Pan at Belmont May 24 and trainer Horatio Luro said, "He runs well here. He likes this track. There isn't any horse unbeaten. Even Spectacular Bid lost."

Highland Blade didn't run in the Derby and ran sixth in the Preakness. Jacinto Vasquez has the mount and David Whiteley, who engineered Coastal's upset Belmont win, is the trainer.

Other 3-year-olds in the field include Double B Ranch's Bold Ego, 10th in the Derby, second in the Preakness, and Chares T. Wilson's Summing, winner of the Pennsylvania Derby May 25.

Is Baseball Heading Into Final Week Of Action?

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Baseball could be heading into its final weekend of action for a while today as federal judge Henry Werker considers arguments on a National Labor Relations Board petition for a preliminary injunction against the major leagues.

If Werker decides that the NLRB attorneys failed to make a good enough case for granting the injunction and he does not issue one, it could result in a player strike within 48 hours.

Management is ready for that contingency after arguing against the injunction which would delay any strike action for one year by forcing the owners to put off implementation of their free agent compensation plan until next February. The compensation formula to replace free agents lost in the re-entry draft with professional players from the teams signing them has twice brought baseball to the brink of a strike and Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, said the players are still ready to walk if necessary.

But Miller remained hopeful that some solution could be reached.

"The game is not over," he said at the conclusion of the hearings Thursday. "And it's not a game."

Throughout the two days of testimony, management attorney Louis Hoynes painted a picture of a financially healthy industry, completely capable of paying the high salaries that have evolved from free agency in baseball.

"The clubs have no inability to pay," Hoynes said. "That's a fact. Everybody knows that. This industry is not a 'mom and pop' operation. Our owners are captains of industry. To suggest an inability to pay makes no sense. There may be unwillingness but inability to pay is impossible to conceive."

Hoynes shrugged off published remarks by various management representatives and the speech last December by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn expressing concern over baseball's economics as "conduct carrying no credence in the capacity to pay.

"No such claim was made by management's authorized spokesman (Ray Grebey, director of the owners' Player Relations Committee.) No other spokesman was authorized."

Much of the NLRB's case was constructed around Kuhn's speech and other quotes in which management complained about costs. The labor board argued that the owners should open their books to support such claims and that refusal to do so constitutes an unfair labor practice of failure to bargain in good faith. An administrative law judge will hear that case June 15 in New York.

Hoynes called the NLRB injunction petition "a bizarre request that deserves swift rejection."

The attorney characterized the NLRB's charge "a sham and abuse of the jurisdiction of this court" and added that an injunction would cause "irreperable injury to the clubs by exposing them to a strike in 1982 and depriving them of protection arranged for 1981.

Grebey testifed Wednesday that management's $50 million insurance policy purchased at a cost of $2 million expires Dec. 31 with little hope of renewal.

Borg Advances To French Open Finals

PARIS (AP) — Defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden reached the finals of the French Open tennis tournament today, defeating Victor Pecci of Paraguay in straight sets 6-4, 6-4, 7-5.

Borg, the top seed, has not lost a set in his march toward a record sixth French Open crown.

In Thursday's action, Czechoslovakian stars Ivan Lendl and Hana Mandlikova sent the American players home empty-handed.

The lanky Lendl, a 21-year-old who is ranked fifth in the world, completed his upset over No.3 seed John McEnroe in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 to gain a berth in the semifinals of the $611,000 clay court tournament.

Hours later, Mandlikova made tennis history by becoming the first Czech woman to reach the finals of the prestigious tournament when she shocked Chris Evert Lloyd 7-5, 6-4. Lloyd had been heavily favored to win her fifth women's singles title here but Mandlikova, 19, ended Lloyd's incredible 64-match winning streak on clay.

"I think this is the greatest win in my life," Mandlikova said. "I've never beaten Chris on clay. She's the best player we've ever had on clay."

A third American hope also was drummed off the slow courts of Roland Garros Stadium. Andrea Jaeger, the No.3 seed, lost on her 16th birthday to Sylvia Hanika of West Germany, who moved into the finals with a 4-6, 6-1, 6-4 triumph.

The defeat of McEnroe, the two-time U.S. Open champion, ended any remaining hopes for the first American men's victory at this tournament since Tony Trabert took the title 26 years ago.

Lendl battled No.7 seed Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina today in the other men's semifinals.

Late last month Clerc beat Pecci for the Italian Open title.

Pecci, ranked 21st in the world, had defeated Borg once in their previous eight encounters. That defeat came only seven weeks ago in Monte Carlo, where Borg lost in the first round, then took off until this tournament.

Clerc had won five of his six meetings with Lendl.

Mandlikova and Hanika face each other Saturday. The men's final will be Sunday.

Yanks Down O's For 3rd Straight

By The Associated Press

Gene Nelson learns his lessons fast.

The last time the New York Yankee rookie faced the Baltimore Orioles, he leaned heavily on a changeup pitch and got battered.

Thursday night was different.

"I was told I had to establish my fastball in this game," said Nelson, and the result was eight innings of sparkling one-hit pitching and an eventual 12-3 victory for the Yankees.

"My fastball was really moving good and my slider was working," said the 20-year-old Nelson, the youngest player in the major leagues. "I really didn't have to use all my pitches. I didn't throw many changes, which is my best pitch.

"I'm sure they were sitting on the change. These guys are really aggressive hitters and if you throw strikes you can get them out. They were so far behind (7-0 after four innings) that all you have to do is throw strikes and let them hit the ball."

Nelson allowed only Al Bumbry's game-opening single for eight innings before tiring in the ninth and needing Dave LaRoche's relief help. The Yankees, meanwhile, put on their biggest offensive show of the season with 19 hits as Bobby Murcer drove in the 1,000th run of his career.

Nelson, 3-1, helped the Yankees complete a three-game sweep and moved them into a virtual tie with the Orioles for first place in the AL East.

The 12 runs and 19 hits which included a two-run homer by Dave Revering and three doubles by Jerry Mumphrey, were both season highs for the Yankees. Revering, Murcer, Oscar Gamble and Dave Winfield drove in two runs apiece and every New York starter collected at least one hit, with Rick Cerone getting two singles and a double.

"This is the first time I've smiled all year," said Yankee hitting Coach Charlie Lau.

White Sox 4, A's 2

Chet Lemon singled home the tie-breaking run in a two-run eighth inning to lead Chicago over Oakland.

Greg Luzinski opened the Chicago eighth with a single off loser Rick Langford, 5-6, continued to second on left fielder Rickey Henderson's error and went to third when first baseman Jim Spencer bobbled the relay for another error.

Harold Baines was given an intentional walk before Lemon singled and took second on right fielder Tony Armas' error. Tony Bernazard's sacrifice fly scored Baines from third for an insurance run and made a winner of starter Richard Dotson, 6-3. Reliever Ed Farmer got the last two outs for the White Sox, recording his sixth save.

Mitchell Page hit a two-run homer for the A's in the second inning.

Twins 7, Rangers 3

Ron Jackson and Danny Goodwin drove in two runs apiece to lead Minnesota over Texas. Jackson, who had three hits for the second straight game, singled home a run in the Twins' first inning and also drove home a run with a single in Minnesota's three-run third. Goodwin knocked in two runs with a single in the sixth.

Fernando Arroyo, 3-4, survived a shaky start and scattered 10 hits for the victory.

"I've always said that we should have Danny Goodwin and myself in the lineup at the same time," said Jackson. "I don't mind playing the outfield. Anything to get in the lineup."

"The way Jackson's hitting the ball we've got to keep him in the lineup," said Twins Manager Billy Gardner. "He's starting to do what he's best at — go with the pitch to right field instead of hitting home runs."

Red Sox 6, Indians 5

Designated hitter Carney Lansford sparked one rally with a single and hit the game-winning home run as Boston defeated Cleveland.

Winner Mike Torrez, 5-2, allowed six hits and two of Cleveland's runs before giving way to reliever Mark Clear with two outs in the sixth. Clear pitched into the ninth inning and gave up a two-run homer to Rick Manning before Tom Burgmeier came on to gain his fifth save.

Lansford led off the sixth with a single and eventually scored on Rich Gedmen's sacrifice fly to give the Red Sox a 5-1 lead at that point. Lansford's solo homer, his third, gave the Red Sox a 6-2 advantage in the top of the eighth and their eventual winning run.

Lansford, normally a third baseman, has served as Boston's DH in recent games due to a shoulder injury that has kept him off the field.

"Once we get him back on defense, we'll be even stronger," said Boston Manager Ralph Houk, whose team won two of three games from the Indians. "I hope it's not very long. He's just an outstanding hitter."

Metrosports To Televise ACC

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Promises of innovative programmmg, future telecasts of non-revenue sports and a commitment to tradition were apparently the key ingredients in winning Metrosports the rights to the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball telecast rights for the 1981-82 season.

Metrosports, a division of Metro Communications Inc. of Rockville, Md., beat out eight other telecast companies during presentations to the ACC's radio and television committee in Raleigh on Tuesday.

Ironically, Metrosports and its predecessor on ACC television, C.D. Chesley Co., have bumped into each other once before. Metrosports secured the rights to Notre Dame football telecasts last season after Chesley had brought the games on a delayed basis for almost a decade.

However, Metro president Leonard Klompus said in a telephone interview Thursday that he was looking forward once again to following in the footsteps of the company which had done ACC games for 24 years.

"There's a tremendous tradition that has been built by the C.D. Chesley Company and Atlantic Coast Conference basketball," Klompus said. "Needless to say, the standards he set will be maintained."

Klompus, a 1971 graduate of the University of Maryland, is by no means a newcomer to big-time basketball, especially since his crews have covered Notre Dame and UCLA basketball, as well as Big 10 and Big 8 events. Nonetheless, he was overwhelmed by receiving the one-year contract.

"I didn't say anything," Klompus said in describing his emotions when he received a phone call from ACC Commissioner Bob James in the early afternoon. "The commissioner told me and he says 'are you there?'"

The agreement allows Metrosports the worldwide television broadcast, cable and pay cable rights to 38 ACC games, including all conference tournament broadcasts from the Greensboro Coliseum.

None of the financial terms of the contract were released, either by Klompus or the ACC offices. But money doesn't seem to be a factor since Klompus plans to present an elaborate package to the most ravenous of fans.

"We go the whole nine yards from the advertising and promotion ... to newspaper ads to special features on the schools," he said.

Coverage will include a one-hour pre-game show, highlights of action from previous games and special features on players and schools.

"It's just unlimited the merchandising and marketing that could be done with the ACC package," Klompus said.

So committed is Metro to its new venture that, by August, it hopes to occupy an office in Greensboro, so it can answer questions from James and others from the ACC staff without being shuffled off to Metro's other offices in Rockville and Los Angeles.

As for other sports, Klompus said ACC non-revenue sports may join the Metro lineup in the future. Sports such as women's basketball and track and field will get coverage. And he said there may be even more.

"Hopefully, down the road, football will be a possibility," Klompus said.

James, in a statement released from his office, said Metro's reputation was evidence enough that his conference would get top-notch treatment.

"We are favorably impressed with the scope and quality of services Metrosports offers and are satisfied that it will continue to provide us the same respected and professional quality of broadcast we have had down through the years from our previous producer, C.D. Chesley," James said.

No play-by-play announcers have been lined up for next season, although Klompus said former UCLA coach John Wooden will serve as an analyst for some of the games. Klompus also said Metro is interested in Chesley and NBC analyst Billy Packer for some appearances, although the two parties have not officially met.

Among others involved in the bidding on Tuesday were Raycom, the company that took Chesley to court earlier this year.

Sunshine Garden Center 23
Aldridge & Southerland 4

Sunshine Garden Center managed just four hits but took advantage of numerous Aldridge & Southerland errors to capture a 23-4 victory Thursday afternoon in a Winterville Little League baseball game.

The second game pitting Pizza Inn against Edwards Auto was rained out and has not been rescheduled.

Neither team had anyone with more than one hit last night, but Leonard Bryant did have a double for A & S.

Sunshine Garden is now 4-4. A & S drops to 2-6.

Pepsi Cola 4
Moose 3

Owen Cox scored with one out in the bottom of the seventh to help lift Pepsi Cola past Moose, 4-3, Thursday afternoon in a Tar Heel Little League baseball game.

Moose led, 2-0, after the first inning and went up 3-0 with a run in the top of the fourth. Pepsi Cola cut the gap to 3-2 on Clay Young's two-run homer and then tied the game when Sullivan raced home on a passed ball in the fifth.

Then, in the seventh with one gone, Cox reached on an error and two walks loaded the bases before Cox scored.

No one for either team had more than one hit, but Greg Jones did have a double for Moose.

Lions 21
Optimist 0

Burt Aycock went five for five and drove in six runs, including three with first-inning home run, to lead the Lions to an easy 21-0 victory over the Optimist Thursday afternoon in a North State Little League baseball game.

The Lions scored six runs in the first inning and never looked back. With the Lions up 1-0, Mike Duncan reached on a fielder's choice and Tommy Moye walked before Aycock unleashed his blast. David Tripp then walked and Earl Evans followed with a two-run home run and the Lions were on their way.

The winners added three more runs in the second, two coming on back-to-back home runs by Duncan (a two-run shot) and Moye, and three more in the third.

The Lions scored eight runs in the fourth, sparked by a two-run double by Aycock and a two-run homer by Junior Taft. In all, the Lions hit five home runs on the afternoon.

Ralph Harper, Josh Shepherd and Taft all had two hits for the Lions. Moye had three RBIs for the Lions while Duncan, Evans and Taft had two RBIs each.

The Optimist managed just three hits and no one had more than one hit.

Bethel 10
Chicod 5

The Bethel Indians, sparked by a two two-run home runs, defeated Chicod, 10-5, Thursday in a Southern Pitt Little League baseball game.

Roosevelt Hines and D. Dancy both hit two run homers for the winners. Hines, who was two for three at the plate, also picked up the win on the mound.

Danny Boyd was three for three with a triple for Chicod.

Prep League

Elks 2
True Value 1

Ricky Outlaw scored on an error to break a 1-1 tie in the bottom of the sixth and overshadow a no-hitter by True Value's Ervin Best as the Elks defeated True Value 2-1 Thursday afternoon in a Prep League baseball game.

With the score tied at 1-1 going into the sixth, Kelly Barnhill reached on an error and went to second on an error before being forced out at third when Outlaw reached on a fielder's choice.

Anthony Coward then reached on a fielder's choice in which no one was out and Tommy Rosche made it to first on an error which allowed Outlaw to score the go-ahead run.

True Value then went down in the order in the top of the sevent to give the Elks the victory.

Robby Erhmann had two hits for True Value, including a triple. Kanetzke also had a triple for True Value.

2 Americans Left, In British Amateur

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Joel Hirsch changed his style of play and now the Chicago businessman finds himself in the quarterfinals of the British Amateur golf championships.

"The Old Course here is tough," said the 40-year-old American. "You just can't play it the way you would play a course back in the States.

"I went out and played 36 practice holes the second day after I arrived and made tremendous adjustments to my game. The wind means you have to hit the ball low. Now that I'm doing that correctly, I feel I can win the tournament.

"I felt that way after I played a couple of rounds and I feel that is the case even more now."

Hirsch defeated Arizona State student Donald DuBois 3 and 2 Thursday to clinch his place in the last eight. He faced today the only other surviving American, Tom Randolph, a UCLA economics graduate from Menlo, Calif.

The Californian defeated Alan Lyddon of England — who earlier in the day eliminated former San Francisco 49ers quarterback John Brodie — by two holes Thursday. Unlike Hirsch, Randolph had not modified his game to any great extent.

"You've still got to play all the shots," he said. "I've adjusted my game a little but not really changed anything major.

"My main strength is that I'm laying the ball up close to the hole all the time. I know Hirsch is a good player but I guess I can win it if I play up to my potential."

Stadium Record

Georgia Sprinter After 100 Crown

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Georgia sprinter Mel Lattany said he is literally counting on beating Houston's remarkable Carl Lewis in the 100-meter dash at the NCAA Track and Field Championships tonight.

Lattanay said he counts his steps when he's racing.

"For me to break the world record I'll have to run 30 steps," he said after a qualifying heat victory Thursday night.

"When I ran 10.04, I ran 31 steps."

For an instant Thursday night, Lattany thought he had miscounted his steps and shattered the world mark without knowing it.

He zipped through his qualifying heat and looked up at the scoreboard, which flashed 9.85 — a full tenth of a second faster than the world and American marks held by Jim Hines and set in 1968.

"I was amazed," Lattany said. "I counted 32 steps.

"I didn't feel like I was running that fast and I was just amazed."

He was right. The clock was wrong.

When meet officials heard the buzz that raced through the crowd, they quickly announced that the time on the scoreboard was from hand-held watches and therefore unofficial. Lattany's official electronic time was 10.28.

Lewis, who set the collegiate record at 10.00 earlier this year, ran his qualifying heat in 10.34.

Both runners eased up well before the finish line, knowing they had qualified for tonight's semifinals and finals.

Both will be competing in more than one event.

Lewis took one jump at the long jump and soared 26-8½, the best leap of the day. Finals in the long jump are scheduled for this afternoon.

Lattany will compete in the 400-meter relay and 200-meter dash in addition to the 100-meter dash. Lattany has qualified in the 200-meter, and finals are scheduled for Saturday. He will run a qualifier in the 400-meter relay today.

Texas-El Paso is bidding to be the first team since 1973 to win three straight NCAA championships.

Only two teams have ever won three or more NCAA track and field championships in a row.

Southern California won nine in a row, from 1935-43, and seven in a row from 1949-55. USC is on NCAA probation and cannot compete this year.

UCLA was the last team to string three titles in a row, 1971-73.

Thursday's best individual performance was turned in by Mike Juskus from little Glassboro (N.J.) State. Juskus threw the javelin 267-1, the best collegiate throw of the year.

San Diego Edges Astros

By The Associated Press

Wally Pipp, that sports world symbol of anyone who takes a day off and then watches his substitute tear up the league, is haunting the San Diego Padres clubhouse this season.

When Randy Bass started poorly this season as the San Diego first baseman, Manager Frank Howard replaced him with Broderick Perkins, who promptly became one of the hottest hitters in the National League.

Bass didn't start again for 32 games, and other players pasted Pipp's name over Bass' on his locker and Lou Gehrig over Perkins' name. It was Pipp whom Gehrig replaced — and then played 14 years without missing a game.

Unlike Pipp, Bass — last year's American Association Most Valuable Player when he hit 37 homers and drove in 143 runs — got another chance to win his job back, and he took advantage of the opportunity Thursday.

He returned to the lineup to drive in four runs with a single, double and home run as the Padres beat the Houston Astros 7-5.

After the game, Pipp's name was over Perkins' locker and Bass saw Gehrig's name written over his own.

"I went out and tried to hit the ball hard," said Bass. "I didn't feel any pressure. I knew Perkins could go out there tomorrow." Bass said he had no hard feelings when he didn't get back in the lineup after a few days' rest.

"Perkins got hot and Howard couldn't take him out of the lineup," he said. "When Howard said it would be two to five days at the most I accepted it. Well, it turned into 40 days. I accepted the fact there was nothing I could do."

In fact, Bass started wearing a Peanuts T-shirt that says, "Play Me, Trade Me, or Forget Me."

Perkins is still batting .321 despite slumping lately.

"Broderick has been struggling," said Howard. "I think we'll play Randy for a couple of days and see what happens. I may even have play Perkins in the outfield."

Bass, who started the game batting .200, led a 13-hit attack against four Houston pitchers, including starter Joe Niekro, 6-4, who had won five games in a row.

Right-hander Steve Mura, 3-7, was the winner despite giving up 11 hits and four runs in 62-3 innings, including homers by Jose Cruz, who was 4-for-5, and Cesar Cedeno. Gary Lucas pitched the last inning for his eighth save.

Bass, who had last started on April 28, hit a two-run single in the first inning and made it 3-0 in the third when he belted his third homer of the year, the Padres' first since May 24.

Bass drove in his fourth run in the sixth inning with a double.

Cardinals 4, Expos 1

Dane Iorg had three hits, knocked in a run and scored two for St. Louis against Montreal, while Lary Sorensen pitched a seven-hitter.

Iorg started a two-run rally against Montreal right-hander Bill Gullickson, 2-6, with a double in the second. After Sixto Lezcano walked, Mike Ramsey and Orlando Sanchez singled in runs.

Iorg also singled home a run in the third inning and singled and scored in the sixth.

Ramsey, who started at shortstop in place of regular Garry Templeton, broke a bone in his right hand when he was upended at second base by Larry Parrish in the second inning. The break was not discover until after the game and Ramsey played went all the way.

Pirates 5, Cubs 4

Lee Lacy tripled and scored on Dale Berra's single off reliever Lynn McGlothen to snap a 10th-inning tie and lift Pittsburgh over Chicago. The loss dropped the Cubs' record to 10-36, worst in the big leagues, and they remained winless in 17 games on artificial turf this season.

With one out in the bottom of the 10th, Lacy tripled off the left field wall against McGlothen, 0-3, the Cubs' fifth pitcher. Berra followed with his bloop hit to left and outfielder Jim Tracy had no play at the plate after bobbling the ball. The Pirates won for the 11th time in 15 games.

Pirate reliever Kent Tekulve, 2-3, pitched the last two innings for the victory, while Dave Parker drove in three Pittsburgh runs with a homer and a single and Tim Foli also rapped four hits.

Rose 8 Hits From Passing 'The Man'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Any day now, Pete Rose is going to erase one of baseball's hallowed records, Stan Musial's National League mark of 3,630 career hits.

Rose needs just eight hits to pass Musial and become the third all-time career major league hit producer.

The late Ty Cobb, an American Leaguer, amassed 4,191 hits, while Hank Aaron collected 3,771 — 3,600 in the National League and the rest in the twilight of his career in the American League with Milwaukee.

Rose is approaching the magic number at the age of 40, when most baseball players are waiting to become 50 and collect their pensions. He still plays like a 21-year-old.

Although Rose is thrilled to become the No. 1 hit man in the 105-year history of the league, he isn't jumping up and down with excitement — yet.

"Up to this point," says the Philadelphia Phillies first baseman, "it will be my biggest accomplishment. But I'll be honest with you, my proudest possessions are my three World Series rings. They're the things that mean the most to me.

"Of course it's a real thrill to be there alongside a great player like Stan Musial."

The two great ballplayers will be together in the stadium whenever Rose breaks the record. Musial has accepted the Phillies' invitation to be present on the night Rose appears to be on the brink of the record, team spokesman Larry Shenk says.

That could be this weekend in Atlanta or next week, when the Phillies return home to face Houston.

"He promised me he'd do it against Houston," joked Phillies Executive Vice President Bill Giles, who plans to set off fireworks and release 3,631 red and white balloons to mark the big hit.

Giles also plans to give color photos of Rose and Musial to each fan present when Rose breaks the record. There will be a special present for Rose, too, he said.

Rose says going after the Musial record is much easier than, for example, his record 44-game hitting streak in the National League.

Gretzky NHL's MVP

MONTREAL (AP) — Center Wayne Gretzky of the Edmonton Oilers captured the Hart Memorial Trophy, awarded to the most valuable player in the National Hockey League, for the second consecutive season, edging St. Louis Blues goaltender Mike Liut in the closest vote in the history of the award.

Gretzky collected 242 points compared with 237 for Liut in a poll of members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association.

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A new interfaith agency, embracing a broad spectrum of America's religious bodies, is being formed to coordinate their links with the nation's more than 3,000 military chaplains.

Although interreligious cooperation always has been a distinctive mark of clergy in the armed forces, plans for the new civilian liaison agency call for an unprecedented inclusiveness.

"It's unique in the breadth of coverage," says the Rev. Norman G. Folkers, a Lutheran veteran of 22 years in the Air Force chaplaincy and an official of one of the merging chaplaincy organizations.

The new agency is to be called the "National Conference on Ministry to the Armed Forces."

Folkers says it is to "involves all elements of Judaism, Catholicism, Eastern Orthodoxy and Protestantism, ranging from fundamentalists on the right to Unitarian Universalists on the left."

Guidlines for it were approved recently at meetings in Washington, D.C., of the two merging groups — the General Commission on Chaplains and Armed Forces Personnel and the Conference of Ecclesiastical Endorsing Agents for the Armed Forces.

They are committed in the guidelines to mutual cooperation and support of "the spiritual ministry to and moral welfare of armed forces personnel."

The general commission is a 64-year-old agency formed in World War I to coordinate the military chaplaincies for most major Protestant denominations and represents 36 of them, maintaining a permanent staff in Washington.

The conference of ecclesiastical agents is a loosely knit association of Catholic, Jewish and Protestant representatives formed only in 1976 to meet as a forum for interfaith exchange and cooperation, but with no headquarters or staff.

The interfaith aspect is being brought into the merger with the general commission and its long-time functioning staff and office.

Combining the two groups was seen as a means for greater operating resources, stability and efficiency, along with fuller interreligious cooperation.

The new joint agency is to begin operations at the end of the year following another meeting next October to approve final plans and elect leaders.

"This conference will add a new dimension to the voice of the church that is long past due," says the Rev. A. Carl Hart, Southern Baptist chaplaincy director and chairman of a steering committee organizing the new conference.

He says it may become one of the nation's most religiously pluralistic organizations. It will maintain an office and operating staff in Washington and meet twice yearly with chiefs of chaplains of the armed forces to share information and concerns.

Current chiefs of chaplains are Army Major Gen. Kermit Johnson, a Presbyterian; Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Carr, a United Church of Christ clergyman, and Navy Rear Adm. Ross Trower, a Lutheran.

Folkers says the new, broad agency will not replace denominational agencies which endorse clergy to the armed forces, but will serve as a clearing house of information, consultation and advice and a joint voice for them.

He says clergy in the military always have worked on the premise that ministers of "different points of view can work harmoniously together without having to give up positions of faith."

"It works," he adds, noting that it characterizes an old chaplaincy slogan, "cooperation without compromise."

"Civilian clergy who have never had the experience are sometimes dubious of it, but once they get involved in it, they discover that it works, that it comes naturally in the armed forces," says Folkers, assistant director and editor of the long-time Protestant commision.

The new organization comes at a time when the military chaplaincy is under challenge in a federal court suit in Brooklyn, claiming the chaplaincy violates separation of church and state.

The military chaplaincy dates back to the time of George Washington and the American Revolution.

We care about keeping classified affordable.

From the very beginning we've been intent on keeping classified in the hands of the public—to operate effectively as a vehicle for exchanging information. For buying. For selling. For making life more convenient. And we've been successful.

You see, we know that to keep a good thing like classified going strong, the price has to be right. So while all around us prices have been going up, up, up, we've held the cost of classified down to keep it working for you. And that makes us awfully proud.

Mayor's Committee Reports Findings

officers to the department in fiscal year 1981-82. The report explained that "annexation and the necessary extension of police services require additional personnel immediately. Expected growth in the population of Greenville independent of annexation will also require additional personnel. The committee subscribes to the belief that adequate police protection is one of the primary needs of any community." The report noted that the total number of officers employed by the department has declined by 15 men since 1971.

The committee recommended the addition of a "minumum of ten fire-rescue positions" in fiscal year 1981-82. According to the report, "At the present time, there are three firemen on each fire truck while the N.C. Department of Insurance recommends a minumum of four firemen per truck. This would increase the efficiency of fire fighting operations and insure the safety of the firemen involved."

The report added, "The committee is convinced that adequate fire-resuce services are too vital and important to all our citizens to allow the manpower level of fire-rescue services to remain below minimum standards."

It was recommended that the city's emergency medical services become a part of the county-wide emergency medical service operated and controlled by Pitt County. "Such a county service," it was proposed, "will be located in close proximity to the emergency care unit of...Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The operation of the emergency medical service will be under the supervision of the director of the...hospital emergency care unit, thus making possible supervision by physicians, in turn resulting in better training for emergency medical service personnel."

The committee contended that, "This arrangement will also have the wide range of medical knowledge and sophistication of the East Carolina University School of Medicine and the...hospital at its immediate disposal. All rescue service equipment, including vehicles owned by the city, should be given to the county to support a county-wide, county-operated emergency medical service."

According to the report, the committee "concurs in and supports the continuation of the cross-training program of the...Fire Department. If a county-wide emergency medical service is adopted, there would be no need of cross-training. We suggest that regular scheduling to reflect the primary area of interest of each person involved and a concerted effort be made to develop a career path plan for each individual."

Wooles said the committee recommended that "Pitt County be required to increase its support of the fire-rescue service to an amount proportional to the county use of this service in 1980-81."

The report stated, "In 1980-81, 25 percent of all rescue calls were to the county and 29 percent of total miles driven were in answering calls from the county. In the absence of proportional financing from the county, the City Council should seriously consider terminating rescue service at the city limit."

The committee proposed that City Council tenures be converted to four-year, staggered terms, with the mayor continuing to be elected to two-year terms. The report stated, "We believe that this system will provide greater continuity and will permit more effective long-term planning than is currently possible."

The report further stated, "While it is possible for Council members to serve many years by being re-elected for consecutive terms, we feel that the propspect of having to stand for election every two years has discouraged many able and qualified people from offering their services to the city. As the mayor provides both leadership and direction to the community, we feel that the shorter term of office would continue to insure maximum responsiveness to the wishes of the people."

The committee also recommended, among other items, that:

— The number of police vehicles, particularly police patrol vehicles, be immediately increased to a level consistent with proper police protection;

— City and county government officials consider the appointment of a joint committee to look into the feasibility of a combined city/county form of government;

— The city initiate feasibility studies to determine the advantages of combining agencies and services of the city and Greenville Utilities;

— A new headquarters fire station be constructed and operating within five years;

— The salary scale of all city employees be increased by ten percent, effective July 1;

— The Brownlea Drive fire station be replaced within the next ten years;

— Immediate action be taken to alleviate current and potential space problems of the Police Department;

— An 11-member city-ECU coordinating committee be established, involving six city members and five from the university, to promote coordination and information exchange between the city and ECU;

— A new county-wide radio system be installed in all emergency service vehicles throughout the county and that all fire-rescue communications be handled through the Pitt County Communication Center;

— The professional staff of Sheppard Memorial Library be increased by at least three members in fiscal year 1981-82;

— Pitt County should pay a proportional and equitable share of the cost of Sheppard Memorial;

— The number of full-time and part-time personnel assigned to the maintenance of park areas and recreational facilities be increased immediately;

— A full-time administrative assistant and full-time building custodians be added to the Recreation and Parks Department with the next two years;

— The annual allotment paid by the city to the Art Museum should be increased to represent at least 30 percent of the operating expenses;

— No change be made in the present garbage and trash collection program (the report observed that "this is a highly visible, very popular program which would not profit from change"); and

— A high priority be placed upon completion of the Comprehensive Community Plan with particular emphasis upon the Land Development Plan and Thoroughfare Plan, with an effective zoning ordinance to facilitate implementation.

The committee found that, "The most generalized problem that the committee discovered in its investigation was that Greenville, typical of smaller cities, had maintained an artificially low tax rate for many years. This has been accomplished by occasionally reducing the number of city employes, by either delaying or abandoning capital improvements, by not replacing equipment...and by postponing projects that meet immediate and future civic requirements."

The report stated that while many of the recommendations apply themselves to the city's fiscal dilemma, "others address a wide variety of general and specific situations that have emerged as present or potential problems of Greenville."

Wooles said last night that the committee was impressed with the quality of services provided here and the high caliber of city government personnel.

In presenting the initial recommendations to the mayor and council, the chairman pointed out that the committee "left nothing out" in its study. He said the committee feels its charge to the city has been completed and "we stand disbanded."

McGlohon, who mentioned that he and members of the council "intentionally" stayed out of the study deliberations, said the recommendations presented a "tremendous challenge" to the governing board and represented a long range planning tool for elected officials here to use for many years.

Councilman Louis Clark said he felt a "strong charge from the committee to bite the bullet." He told Wooles the council was challenged "to take your recommendations in very dear earnest and go about our duties."

Aproximately 150 volunteer citizens were involved in the overall study.

Graduation Services Held For School

Graduation exercises for the Pitt County Extended School were held on the campus of Pitt Community College Thursday afternoon.

The speaker was Frank Grooms, employee relations manager, Eaton Corporation of Greenville.

"Success is not a destination — it's a direction in which each of us should be traveling," he told the graduates.

The speaker emphasized that the seven requirements for the attainment of success in any endeavor are personality, humilty, responsibility, loyalty, determination, hard work and confidence.

Grooms explained, "These are not characteristics with which a person is born, but rather are developed by an individual through conditioning, concentration and effort. We are stopped from being all that we can be if we believe our life is controlled by outside conditions, but when we realize that we have a creative and divine power within us, then we become the master of our own thoughts, molder of our own character, and makers of our own destiny."

Mrs. Angela Holley Wilson of Greenville gave the graduates' response. She said, "You must have confidence in yourself to make it in school and in the world. We hope all of your dreams will fulfilled as you climb the ladder of success. You can make it if you try realizing that all of us must work hard in order to reach our goals in life."

In behalf of the seniors, Mrs. Wilson thanked Pitt Community College for the use of its facilities and expressed appreciation to the teachers, job coordinator, and principal, Irene Hanifer.

Mrs. Hanifer, principal of the Extended School, reminded the graduates, "Be proud of your accomplishments today and rejoice in yourselves, but only for today. Don't rest on your laurels too long and don't live in the past."

She continued, "You're here today to celebrate the beginning of a new life which can be filled with a great deal of meaning, satisfaction and accomplishment. You have ability, you have endurance and you have courage. You have demonstrated all those things to our staff and to yourselves.

"In our book, you're really good people," said Hanifer.

Graduate Margaret L. Foust recited a poem. Principal Hanifer introduced the graduates and welcomed the guests to the convocation.

Mrs. Christina Drye, Pitt County high school supervisor, presented the diplomas and the Rev. E.R. McNair, pastor of the Spring Garden Baptist Church, Washington, N.C., pronounced the invocation and the benediction.

Mrs. Shannan Hight was soloist, and Mrs. Hight and Miss Phyllis White were pianists.

Hopes To Be Last Director Of Vista

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Reagan Administration plans to create a volunteer program staffed by teen-agers but wants to phase out Volunteers in Service to America, VISTA chief and Greensboro attorney Jim Burnley said Thursday.

VISTA, the domestic equivalent of the Peace Corps, is under the ACTION umbrella organization with the Peace Corps and the Older Americans Volunteer Program. Burnley said the program had veered too far to the left.

Burnley, former Guilford County Republican Party chairman and current assistant director of ACTION, was in North Carolina to stump for the administration's plans to phase out VISTA by 1983.

Speaking before the Winston-Salem Kiwanis Club, Burnley said ACTION wants to have six to 10 pilot youth projects by the end of the year. But he said federal budget cuts could delay them until the start of the new fiscal year in October 1982.

Teen-agers would volunteer for part-time work in such programs as tutoring illiterate children, serving in foster homes and working in peer groups to help solve teen-age drug and alcohol abuse.

The program "would be to encourage in America's young people some sense of civic duty in the community," Burnley said.

Congress is now debating the future of VISTA, and a decision is expected within several weeks.

Meanwhile, Burnley said he has been trying to dispel the "romantic image" he says VISTA has developed since President Lyndon Johnson formed it in 1965 as part of his War on Poverty.

"Obviously, we haven't phased out poverty, but we've spent $4 million on VISTA since 1965," he said.

The groups urged advocacy programs, such as organizing demonstrations against city governments and utilities during rate hearings.

"As long as you can claim you're fighting poverty, you can do anything you want to," Burnley said. "I'm not sure an appointed official should have that kind of power."

Four Wrecks Investigated

An estimated $4,350 property damage resulted from four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 5:52 p.m. collision at the intersection of Chrles and Tenth Streets involving cars driven by Susan Lynn Eason of Troy, and Michelle Sheridan Bennett of New Bern.

Officers, who charged Ms. Bennett with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,500 to the Eason car and $1,000 to the Bennett auto.

Cars driven by Beatrice Barker Apple of Washington, and Carole Brooke Cook of Route 2, Grifton, collided about 2:15 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 35 feet west of the 14th Street intersection, causing $300 damage to the Apple car and $350 damage to the Cook vehicle.

An estimated $300 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in an 8:20 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 20 feet west of the Granville Drive intersection.

Police identified the drivers involved as Joseph Dana Pecheles of 202 Granville Dr. and Herbert Lyman Ormond III of 104 Martinsborough Rd.

Ormond was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of the mishap.

Deborah Ann Lambeth of 2002 Brook Rd. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 3:54 p.m. mishap on Cotanche Street, 15 feet south of the Third Street intersection.

Investigators reported the Lambeth car collided with a vehicle driven by Louise Jones Dupreê of 107 Vance St., resulting in an estimated $400 damage to the Lambeth car and $200 damage to the Dupree auto.

Boys Club Director At Nat'l Meeting

Chet Emerson, executive director of the Boys' Club of Pitt County, was among about one thousand professional youth workers and board volunteers from across the country attending the 75th annual National Conference of Boys Clubs of America.

The conference was held May 24-28 in San Francisco. At this event, Emerson attended workshops, training sessions, and discussions on a variety of issues relevant to the nation's youth — issues such as crisis in family life, youth employment, delinquency prevention and adolescent health.

"This year," Emerson commented, "has special significance as we celebrte our diamond jubilee as a national organization. These 75 years have been spent in helping young people lead more productive, successful lives."

The Boys Clubs of Pitt County is one of over a thousand clubs in America. The clubs provide daily eductional, recreational, social and guidance programs to more than a million young people.

Locally, about 500 boys and young men ages six to 18 attend programs provided by the Boys Club of Pitt County.

N.C. Education Bd. Kills Jobs

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The State Board of Education voted Thursday to abolish 65 state-funded jobs — but officials said there could be many more job eliminations if the Legislature refuses to add $32 million to the public schools' proposed 1981-83 budget.

Thursday's cuts were in compliance with cuts ordered by the Legislature in the budget of the Department of Public Instruction and the Controller's Office.

The board also approved eliminating 13 federally-funded positions because of action taken by the Reagan administration.

Effective July 1, 56 professional and clerical positions in the department and nine positions in the Controller's Office will be eliminated.

Controller J.A. Porter Jr. said the cuts could go much deeper if the Legislature refuses to add the $32 million.

Enrollment and teacher salaries far beyond previous projections have swelled education needs, Porter said.

Also Thursday, the board re-elected H. David Bruton to a third third term as chairman of the board and John A. Pritchett was re-elected vice chairman.

Bruton, a Southern Pines pediatrician and close ally of Gov. Jim Hunt, and Pritchett, a Windsor attorney, were elected by acclamation to two-year terms.

CRYPTOQUIP 6-5

BMJ LONGGZ FBMIQJZ FPMG FPSFOU: "QUIISL, NIZBIU?"

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — DELICATE ROSE MANTILLA FRAMED SENORITA'S FACE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: O equals H

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇.

When planning the play, look to see if there are any finesses available. Then search for a way to avoid taking those finesses, if possible.

The bidding is not without interest. Note that North suppressed his five-card suit in favor of raising his partner's suit — when responding to a demand bid especially, show a fit as soon as possible. South launched into Blackwood and settled in a small slam when he found out that too many kings were missing.

West led the king of diamonds. Those declarers who have heard of the Bath Coup might feel that it would be wise to duck and force West to shift. Fortunately, declarer realized that he would not relish a trump shift because that would remove a key card from dummy before it had been put to effective use.

Instead of betting all on the success or failure of the heart finesse, declarer decided that he would try to set up a long club in dummy for a heart discard.

So he won the diamond opening with the ace, cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed a club with a high trump. Declarer crossed to the ten of trumps to ruff another club, then to the jack of trumps to ruff one more club. Dummy's fifth club was now established.

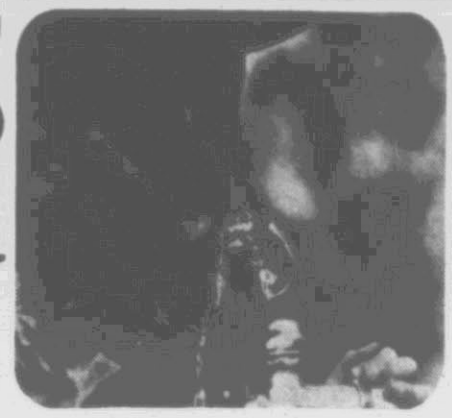
Getting to it was no problem. Declarer simply conceded a diamond trick to the opponents. No matter what the defenders did, declarer would win the next trick, enter dummy by ruffing his diamond loser, then discard his queen of hearts on the good club. Making six-odd.

Note that declarer would go down if he ducked the opening lead and West shifted to a trump. Now declarer would be an entry short to set up and enjoy the long club. He would have to fall back on the heart finesse, and a glance at the full diagram shows that that is doomed to fail.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

Soloists Annie Ogden of Wootentown, and Gladys Hines and Shirley Crawford of Washington will render musical selections Saturday, 7:30 p.m. at the Mustard-Seed Church, Gray Road, Chocowinity. The public is invited to attend.

FOCUS



Cool, Clear Water

A simple drink of water has seemed more and more precious in the past year as drought plagued much of the country from the northeast to the southwest. What many people don't realize is that water is a limited resource. Most of our water is drawn from underground reserves. But we use more water from these reserves than is replenished by rainfall. Though new rain falls every day, most of it either evaporates or runs into the oceans. By far the greatest amount of our water is used in agriculture. Each day almost 78 billion gallons of water are used for irrigation, while domestic consumption accounts for about 7 billion gallons.

DO YOU KNOW — In which state have "sinkholes" recently occurred as a result of drought conditions?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — The ancient Egyptians believed the cat was sacred.
