Tough Reagan Task On Tax Cut Fight

CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, whose intense lobbying paid off with victory for his budget blueprint, has his work cut out for him in trying to lure Democrats to his side as Congress begins writing a tax cut package this week.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., the top-ranking elected Democrat in Washington, is conceding nothing to the president this time and is injecting a more personal tone in the rhetorical battle by charging that Reagan doesn't understand the working class "because he doesn't associate with those types of people."

"Right now, we have the votes," O'Neill said Sunday. "Can he (Reagan) take them away from us? Let's see."

The House Ways and Means Committee, which initiates tax legislation in Congress, begins drafting a tax bill Wednesday. But, as with the budget resolution adopted last month, the real battle will come on the House floor.

The committee is almost certain to reject Reagan's plan and send to the floor a Democratic proposal for a two-year reduction in personal tax rates.

Democrats hold a 2-1 edge on the committee, but just 27 Democrats voting with all Republicans on the House floor would give Reagan a victory.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said today there may be "minor adjustments" in the president's proposal, but "I wouldn't look for any major changes..."

As with the spending plan, the president and Democratic leaders are competing for the votes of 47 conservative Democrats, some of whom already are in Reagan's camp.

Those members of the Conservative Democratic Forum who are backing Reagan's plan for a 25 percent cut in personal income tax rates over three years already have drawn the anger of Democratic leaders.

A senior Democrat in Congress, who insisted that he not be quoted by name, said House leaders were caught by surprise when several of the conservatives agreed to back Reagan. "Apparently there are some in our party to whom the party means nothing," he said.

The lawmaker indicated Democratic leaders also were angry when Reagan embraced a revised bill, scaling down his original proposal for a 30 percent cut and adding several new features. He insisted the leadership was still trying to negotiate with the White House at the time.

O'Neill said Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers" that "I don't think we've lost 10" conservatives to the Reagan camp.

"If the vote were tomorrow, we could win it," the Massachusetts Democrat said. "The quicker we can get to the floor, the better off we're going to be, to be perfectly truthful, because I know the power of the presidency."

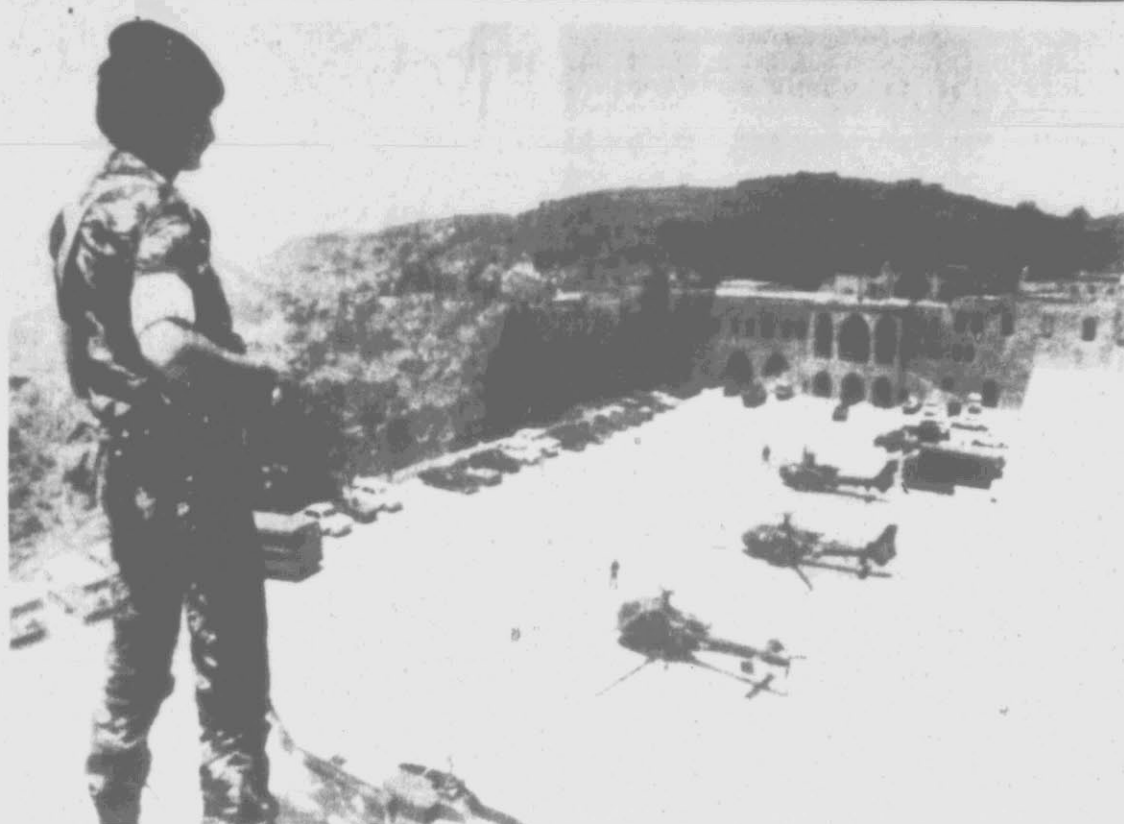

O'Neill learned about that power in the budget battle after Reagan's personal lobbying campaign helped draw 63 Democrats to vote with unanimous House Republicans and seal a victory for the administration.

James A. Baker III, the White House chief of staff, acknowledged Sunday that "the budget fight was tough but doable. We think that the tax fight is tougher but nevertheless doable."

Speaking on CBS's "Face the Nation," Baker disputed O'Neill's head count. "We have, according to the counts of the members of the Conservative Democratic Forum, some 15 to 20 members of that group who are firm for the president's tax package," Baker said. "I think in the final analysis we will prevail."

Baker added, however, there are 10 to 15 Republicans in the House whom "we will have to sit down with and explain the program to and work with in some detail."

Baker also said the administration is willing to compromise on details of its slimmed-down business tax cut proposals, which were criticized last week by business lobbying groups who want to restore $50 billion in reductions dropped from Reagan's original plan.

Israeli Warplanes Wreck Nuclear Reactor In Iraq

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked and destroyed Iraq's nuclear reactor outside Baghdad on Sunday, the Israeli military command announced today.

There was no immediate confirmation of the report from Iraqi authorities in Baghdad.

The French-built, 70-megawatt research reactor, said to be ready for completion this summer, had stirred controversy because its fuel could be used to make nuclear weapons.

The Israeli military said it would not explain the reason for the extraordinary action, carried out by Israeli warplanes against a target 600 miles from Tel Aviv.

"We don't wait for the reactor to be completed to destroy it," a military spokesman said.

Some 100 to 150 foreign experts were working on the reactor and reportedly were on a Sunday day off when the Israeli planes struck, the command said. It said all the Israeli planes returned safely, but it did not say how many took part in the attack.

The surprise attack against the Arab nation came during a period of heightened tensions in the Middle East because of Israeli objections to the presence of Syrian anti-aircraft missiles in Lebanon.

Last Sept. 30, a week after the outbreak of the Iran-Iraq war, the Baghdad atomic facility was attacked — but reportedly not damaged — by warplanes bearing Iranian markings. One report at the time said the planes were Israeli, but this was never confirmed, nor did Iran acknowledge that it staged the raid.

The Israelis said today the French reactor was scheduled to be completed in July or September.

If it was not yet operational and there was no fuel on the site, 12 miles east of Baghdad, Sunday's attack presumably did not spread radioactivity in the Iraqi capital. A smaller Soviet-built test reactor on the site was already in operation, but it could not be learned whether it was hit by the planes.

The $275-million, French-built Osirak reactor has been under construction since the mid-1970s.

Duke Grants Are Announced For The Area

Hospitals and churches in Pitt, Martin and Greene Counties received a total of $87,929 in grants from the Duke Endowment during 1980.

The annual report of the Endowment, just released, shows that in Pitt County, $29,427 in grants were received. Of this figure, $20,127 went to Pitt Memorial Hospital for free bed days, administrative service and professional study. Another $2,500 was for access to health care in Pitt County.

Methodist churches in the Greenville District were allocated $6,800 to assist in a program of student and assistant summer pastors.

In Martin County, the Robersonville Community Hospital was granted $40,000 for construction and equipment, and $484 in administrative funds. Martin General Hospital in Williamston was the recipient of $1,518 for administrative services and professional study.

Mt. Calvary Methodist Church, Snow Hill, received a grant of $16,500 in building project funds.

During 1980, the Duke Foundation made $33.5 million in grants to hospitals, educational institutions and child care institutions in the two Carolinas, and to the rural United Methodist Church in North Carolina.

The year-end market value of assets of the Duke Endowment exceeded $380 million. This ranks the Duke Endowment among the ten largest philanthropic foundations in the United States. The $33.5 million allocated during 1980 ranks Duke Foundation seventh among the nation's private foundations in amount of funds distributed. Income to the trust during the year amounted to $37,291,487.

Four educational institutions received $15 million in 1980 — Duke University, $11.5 million; Furman University, $1.3 million; Davidson College, $1.2 million; and Johnson Smith University, just under $1 million.

In the two Carolinas, 41 child-caring institutions received $1.5 million.

Rural United Methodist churches in the two states received $1.3 million for buildings and operations, and retired Methodist preachers and their widows and dependents children received $361,873.

The Duke Endowment was established by James B. Duke in 1924. As of December 31, 1980, grants totaling $538 million have been made by trustees to the beneficiaries named by Duke.

Spot Market Oil Prices Falling And Official Cuts Sure To Come

By FLOYD NORRIS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — With oil prices tumbling in the spot market, the big question regarding official price cuts may be how large they will be, not whether they will occur.

Ecuador, a small member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, notified oil companies Friday it was cutting its oil price by $3.80 a barrel, industry sources said.

The Ecuador cut followed a $4 reduction earlier in the week by Mexico, a non-OPEC member, and came on the same day that Britain indicated it was willing to cut its official price, although not by as much as oil companies are demanding.

So far none of the major OPEC producers has made official price cuts, but a British reduction would put increased pressure on such countries as Libya, Nigeria and Algeria, whose prices range up to $41 a barrel. Unconfirmed reports during the week said Libya and Nigeria were offering some oil below their official prices.

The Wall Street Journal reported today that Nigeria had reduced the price on some of its oil by $4 a barrel, although Nigeria has made no official announcement of price changes.

The Journal cited oil-trading sources, which it did not name, as saying Nigeria was selling between 60,000 barrels and 100,000 barrels of oil daily to an international oil-trading company for $36 a barrel — $4 less than its publicly posted price. The amount represents perhaps as much as 10 percent of Nigeria's total daily production of oil.

A number of oil companies have sent officials to Nigeria to seek a price cut. "We've run into a stone wall so far," an official of one of the countries said Friday.

But Nigeria is seeing its sales drop and some analysts think its need for cash may soon force substantial cuts from the official price of $40 for a 42-gallon barrel.

"I understand their (Nigeria's) production has been cut in half as a result of the fact they are out of line with the prices of oil which can be obtained elsewhere," Ian Walker, a top executive of British Petroleum, said Friday. If that is true, Nigerian production would be down to about 1 million barrels a day.

The price of oil in the spot market, where oil not sold under long-term contract is sold, fell to $30.84 a barrel for Saudi Arabian oil this past week, a price that is below the official Saudi price of $32.

In London, industry sources said the British National Oil Co., representing the government, indicated a willingness to cut its price by $2 a barrel, but that oil company executives said a cut of at least $5 was needed to bring the price, now $39.75, into line with market conditions.

Negotiations on that price were expected to be settled next week, probably somewhere between the two figures, the sources added.

Arrested After Moonshine Find

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A 58-year-old Rougemont man faces liquor violations charges after authorities seized 191 gallons of moonshine whiskey from his property.

Purvis Jacobs was charged with possessing liquor, for which taxes have not been paid and possessing the liquor with intent to sell it after Friday's raid.

Hundreds Died In Rail Disaster

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 400 people are missing after a packed passenger train toppled off a bridge, a railway official said today. An Indian news agency said the train jumped the tracks to avoid hitting a cow, the animal held sacred by India's Hindus.

"The train had a capacity of carrying 500 passengers and only 67 were rescued," national railways spokesman S.G. Purohit said. "The coaches were fully used and some people were travelling on the roofs."

The chief minister of Bihar State, Jagannath Mishra, said the accident was the "biggest and worst in living memory" in India.

Purohit said navy divers had recovered 48 bodies from the rain-swollen Bagmati River near Mansi, 248 miles northwest of Calcutta, where seven of the train's nine coaches plunged Saturday night. Only one of the seven coaches had been located, he said.

The United News of India said injured passengers reported the train toppled into the river when the engineer braked suddenly in a windstorm to avoid hitting a cow on the rusty tracks of a bridge.

The railway minister gave a different explanation, saying the train was "blown off" the bridge by a fierce gale. The Railway Ministry denied reports that the old 1,464-foot bridge collapsed and tumbled the train into the river.

Scharf Winner Of Scholarship

EVANSTON, ILL. — Daniel R. Scharf, a senior at Rose High School, is one of a few additional college-sponsored four-year National Merit Scholarship winners just announced.

Scharf joins more than 4,700 Merit Scholars in the 26th annual 1981 competition for awards worth nearly $15.5 million and underwritten by about 600 program sponsors.

Daniel, son of Ray and Freida Scharf, is recipient of a Georgia Institute of Technology Merit Scholarship. The Institute is located in Atlanta.

Daniel is an avid chess player, has been a member of the Chess Club for three years and president for one year. He is a member of the National Honor Society, was for one year a member of the Quiz Bowl Team and on the swim team for two years. He has also been active in cross country track and was a Key Club member.

In church work, Daniel is active as a Church Youth Group member and sings with a Church Youth Choir. He is also a scholarship winner in the University of Dallas National Competitive Scholarship examination.

Demands Up On Fire-Rescue

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles prepared by the city on the 1981-82 budget.)

The Greenville Fire-Rescue Department will effectively fulfill its responsibilities during the 1981-82 fiscal year despite budget restrictions, according to Fire-Rescue Chief Jenness Allen.

He said, "Greater service responsibilities have been placed on this department in recent years to provide fire and rescue services to newly annexed areas, new residential subdivisions, and new commercial development; but at the same time, we have not increased our manpower or replaced any major equipment."

In order to meet the increasing service demands, Allen has requested the addition of one fire-rescue officer on each of the three shifts. The positions would be funded through re-allocating other full-time city positions.

Allen said that in the last eight to ten months, the department has faced some major breakdowns in fire suppression and emergency rescue equipment costing approximately $12,000 to repair. He said some of the department's equipment is old and parts are no longer available.

The chief has requested funds in the budget to replace several automobiles, re-power two fire engines for which parts are no longer available, to purchase an equipment van, and to replace an emergency rescue vehicle. Funds have also been requested to purchase additional fire hoses, fire nozzles, resuscitators, suction unit, trauma kits, and several other small pieces of rescue equipment.

The operating budget for the department is proposed at $1,322,984 for next fiscal year, and the proposed capital outlay budget is $69,686.

PROBLEMS SOLVED

According to Ed Walker of the Greenville-Pitt County Chamber of Commerce, the problems concerning the Farmers' Market's meeting city regulations have been solved. The sign has been painted with fire retardant paint and two toilets have been installed, he indicated, adding that a Grand Opening is set for June 23 at 8 a.m.

SAFETY SEAT LOAN PROGRAM SPONSOR?

The Pitt County Health Department has asked Hotline to appeal for a civic or service organization to adopt a project for a safer future for Pitt County children.

The Governor's Highway Safety Program and the UNC Highway Safety Research Center have assisted numerous communities in setting up a safety seat loan program for parents of infants and small children who would like to have their children protected while riding in automobiles, but who may find safe restraint seats beyond reach financially.

Any group interested in this project to reduce infant/child motor vehicle-related injury and death should contact Pat Byrd, health educator, at the Pitt County Health Department, 752-4141.

See related story on Page 2 of this issue.

Child Restraints Said Needed In Automobiles

"Would you willingly place your infant or toddler at risk for a free fall of 30 feet to a cement sidewalk every day? Once a week? Ever?" Pitt County Health Educator Pat Byrd asks.

"In normal everyday wear-and-tear, children hold up nicely. But in a car that stops suddenly or crashes, many children do not do well at all," she said.

"To get the picture," she quoted an example from the UNC Highway Safety Center, "imagine a car traveling 30 mph. You and your toddler are in that car, also traveling 30 mph. The car crashes to a sudden stop. Neither you nor your toddler will stop moving ahead at 30 mph until something — inertia, a seatbelt, a dashboard, a convenient tree, or perhaps the pavement — stops you. That contact with a dash or windshield is roughly the same force one might experience in a free fall from a three-story building. It may turn out to be a deadly experience, especially for the unrestrained infant or toddler passenger."

In 1979, in North Carolina, 23 children less than five years of age were killed while riding in automobiles, and hundreds more were seriously injured. Crash-tested child restraints, if properly used, could have saved the lives of 17 (80 percent) of these children, and reduced serious injuries by 60 percent.

"Kids," Byrd continued, "have very little choice about what they will hit or be stopped by in the event of motor vehicle accident. However, parents and adults do have a choice and can make those decisions for their children. Unfortunately, one survey indicates that only five percent of the children involved in motor vehicle accidents were properly restrained — but none of these were killed."

The Governor's Highway Safety Program has for some time offered social service employees the opportunity to provide foster children with child safety seats. In addition, many areas in the state are taking advantage of the Infant Safety Seat Loan Program through which seats are rented or loaned out at a very reasonable cost to the consumer of about 50 cents per month per seat. This program brings normally expensive infant child safety seats within financial reach for virtually everyone.

"The problem," Byrd said, "is that this program requires sponsorship and some volunteer labor in order to establish and maintain itself."

The Governor's Highway Safety Program will provide seats on a one-for-one matching basis, train volunteers, assist in setting up the filing and small bookkeeping system required to keep track of the rentals, and set the project on the road in any county or city that wants the program. Usually a local agency such as the Health Department serves as a link between the community and the Highway Safety Program for any group interested in this project.

Throughout the state, groups such as the Jayettes (who have adopted this as a state project), women's clubs, civic organizations, service sororities, and other volunteers have seen value in the program and have accepted a role in the prevention of motor vehicle-related infant/child death and injury.

No group considering a project for the coming months could find one any better," Byrd said. "We will be happy to provide detailed information and assistance. Call me at 752-4141."

Just think — the next Pitt County fatality could be your child, grandchild or a neighbor's child. If you already have an infant child automobile restraint seat, please use it. We would like to get this program underway in Pitt County, so that all parents of young children may have access to crash tested seats.

Chamber Events Are Scheduled

Bob Griffin, chairman of the board of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce announced a number of chamber events this week.

The Governmental Affairs Committee of the Ayden Council will meet at Bum's Restaurant Tuesday at 7:30 a.m.

The Chamber's "Spring Roundup" will be held at the Carolina Opry House Tuesday, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

A Small Business Workshop, sponsored by the Coastal Plains SCORE Chapter and the chamber will begin at 9 a.m. Wednesday at Pitt Community College.

"Attracting a Traveler to Pitt County" will be the topic for discussion at a Travel Task Force meeting scheduled for Wednesday at 12 noon at the Ramada Inn.

On Thursday, the Local Concerns Committee of the Greenville Council will meet at the Three Steers Restaurant at 7:30 a.m. This meeting will be followed at noon by a meeting of the Greenville Council Merchants Committee at the Three Steers.

The Bethel Council Board of Directors will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the conference room of the Bethel branch of Wachovia Bank.

The Ayden Community Development Committee will meet Thursday at 5:00 p.m. at the Ayden Town Hall.

On Friday, the chamber will conduct a grand opening at the Life Force Center on Pitt Street at 10 a.m.

Griffin noted that two staff members of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce will attend the Institute for Organization Management at the University of Georgia during the week of June 15-19.

Pat Burnette and Frances Faust will attend the institute, according to Griffin, who noted that the institute's course of instruction includes six annual one-week sessions composed of background reading, lectures and discussions.

This year's session will be Mrs. Burnette's fifth year and Mrs. Faust's first year.

Additional information concerning any of the events may be had by calling the chamber office at 752-4101.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are expected in the forecast period until Tuesday from the Midwest into the Northeast, for southern Florida, the eastern Gulf, and areas of the northern Plains and Rockies. Cool weather is expected from the north Pacific coast to the Great Lakes and warm temperatures are expected elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Warm weather with occasional thunderstorms — especially in the southeast — is in store for North Carolina for the rest of the week, the National Weather Service reported today.

Overnight showers and thunderstorms will linger on over the southeastern counties today.

Today's highs were expected to peak into the 80s to low 90s east of the mountains. Somewhat warmer levels are expected for Tuesday.

A weak cold front pressing south over the state Sunday stalled over the southern counties overnight, causing thunderstorms to persist into the morning hours today.

A cluster of these thunderheads were stationary over the southern area of Franklin County for a few hours after midnight. Radar indicated heavy rains from this family of storms.

The flow of air was becoming more westerly aloft today, so the threat of thundershowers was expected to diminish over the state.

The month of May ended wet, and June brought more of the same. All of this has improved water table readings over the state.

Sunday afternoon saw temperatures hit the low 90s over the coastal communities, with 91 reported in Jacksonville.

Elsewhere east of the mountains the range went from 82 at Cape Hatteras to 88 at Wilmington.

Grandfather Mountain had a cool 64 degrees while Hot Springs with 84 completed the temperature range for the mountains.

House Now Awaits Tax Package Issue

By SAM D. BUNDY
N.C. House of Representatives

Bills introduced as of this date total 1,815 with 1,175 being House Bills and 640 being Senate Bills. The two major items this week were the Governor's Roads Tax Package in the Senate and the constitutional amendment in the House dealing with four-year terms for members of the General Assembly. The Tax Package consumed two day's debate in the Senate with numerous amendments being offered; however, they were all defeated. On second reading, the Senate vote was 32-16 in favor, and on third reading the vote was 30-17 in favor. This issue now goes to the House and will be taken up in the House Finance Committee on Tuesday and, if passed, will be debated and discussed on the House floor by Wednesday or Thursday. Many are predicting a close vote.

In the House, interest centered around the four-year term for legislators. After a two-hour debate on Wednesday, the House voted 77-39 in favor. A three-fifths vote.

or 72 votes, is required on constitutional amendments. On Thursday, the vote was 72-42 or exactly the number needed. I voted "yes" on Wednesday, but for a particular reason, I voted "no" on Thursday. This matter will now be settled by the vote of the people, probably in May of 1982.

Incidentally, the House voted this week for income tax reduction of $160 million beginning in 1984.

Utilities Meet Is Planned

The Board of Commissioners of the Greenville Utilities Commission will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Utilities Building at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets.

Included on the agenda are reports from the attorney selection committee, the computer study committee and the 201 Sewer Facility plan; the consideration of water service to a development on secondary road 1701 and non-betterment electric costs on the 14th Street widening project, and consideration of a number of bids for fencing, chemicals and water line construction.

Railroad Car Arrest Made

George Miller Jr., 25 of 1906 South Pitt St. was arrested about 2:15 a.m. Sunday on charges of breaking and entering a box car.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Miller was charged with entering the car on the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad tracks 150 yards from the intersection of Howell and Beatty Streets, and attempting to take a quantity of beer.

He was jailed under a $5,000 bond pending a court hearing of the case.

High Court To Rule On Parole Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether criminals have a constitutional right to be told about parole terms tacked on to plea-bargained prison sentences.

The court said it will consider reinstating the parole-violation convictions of two Chicago men.

A federal appeals court overturned the parole-violation convictions because the two were not told, when pleading guilty to the burglary charges, that they faced parole terms after their time in prison.

Illinois prosecutors contend the appeals court was wrong, and that criminals have no such constitutional right to be informed of mandatory paroles.

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling last Oct. 22 overturned the convictions of Lawrence Williams and Oscar Southall, who pleaded guilty to unrelated Chicago burglaries in 1975.

Each man served time in prison and was released on parole. Neither had been told during the plea-bargaining process that he would face a parole sentence after leaving prison.

Each subsequently were convicted of violating his parole.

The 7th Circuit's decision overturning those convictions was based on a 1977 decision in which it ruled that when a judge fails to tell a defendant about a mandatory parole any guilty plea is "unfairly induced" in violation of due-process rights.

In 1979, the Supreme Court ruled that criminal defendants may not mount "collateral appeals" to guilty pleas just because a judge forgot to tell them about a mandatory parole that would be tacked on to their prison sentence.

But that ruling was based on federal law — not the Constitution.

In seeking Supreme Court review, Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner argued that the 1979 ruling should control the Williams and Southall cases.

As a back-up argument, Fahner said the 7th Circuit's 1977 ruling should not have been applied retroactively to the two 1975 plea-bargain deals.

Heavy Rains May Have Hurt Some Tobacco

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Heavy rains Saturday may have helped the ground water situation in Pitt County, but at the same time, may have caused some drowning of tobacco, a Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service agent said today.

According to Sam Uzell, "I heard of tobacco that was drowning last Friday. I expect there is more tobacco throughout the county that's similarly affected," since Saturday's heavy rainfall. However, the Extension Service agent said, "things still don't look real bad."

The Greenville Utilities Commission's weather station reported today that 3.2 inches of rain fell during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Sunday. No rainfall was recorded between 8 a.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday, or during the 24 hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

Temperatures Saturday ranged from a low of 72 degrees to a high of 87, while temperatures Sunday ranged from a low of 69 to 87 degrees. The temperature at 8 a.m. today stood at 75 degrees.

Uzell, who said Extension Service agents were out today checking crops in the county noted that, "we might be making some progress on ground water now," which was considered unusually low earlier this Spring because of the lack of rainfall.

"One interesting sidelight," of recent heavy rains, according to Uzell, is the probability that, "it ought to make us some mosquitoes."

The Saturday storms — one about noon and the other about 4:30 p.m. — knocked out a total of three distribution transformers, caused five primary lines hit by lightning to burn down, knocked out some 30 fuses, and caused two primary circuits to go off, spokesmen for the Utilities Commission reported.

According to Malcolm Green, a "bad switch" in a primary line cut power to the Carolina East Mall for about 45 minutes during the afternoon, while another primary line out of the Winterville Substation went out, causing interruption of power in the White Road and Bell's Fork areas for about 30 minutes.

Spokesmen for the Greenville Public Works Department said the heavy rains caused only minor problems on city streets.

One Death Due Plane's Crash

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — One of four people injured in the crash of a small airplane Friday died Sunday at North Carolina Memorial Hospital, a hospital spokesman said Sunday.

Dr. Alan R. Kolber, 42, of Carrboro, owner of the plane and a part-time professor of pathology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, died at 1 p.m., the spokesman said.

Ruth Helsley, 26, of Chapel Hill, remained in critical condition. Lisa Bondy, 23, of Chapel Hill, and her husband, Dr. Stephen Bondy, both remained in fair condition.

Bondy is an adjunct professor of pharmacology at UNC.

The four were injured when their single-engine plane crashed while attempting to take off at the university-owned airport just north of town. The cause of the crash in under investigation.

Tugwell-Smith Vows Spoken

The wedding ceremony of Susan Elaine Smith and Robert Donald Tugwell was solemnized at Faith Pentecostal Holiness Church Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The Rev. Paul Brafford performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Franklin Smith of Winterville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dee Tugwell.

A program of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Eloise Jackson. Randy Sawyer sang "God Has Given You To Me," "Whither Thou Goest," "More" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown designed by George Maurier. The white floor length gown featured a cathedral train of silk organza and re-embroidered alencon lace. The fitted bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline, organza full length tapered sleeves and natural waistline. Re-embroidered alencon lace outlined the neckline and adorned the bodice and sleeves. The full length skirt extended into a cathedral train, which was trimmed with alencon lace garlands. Scalloped alencon lace bordered the hemline of the gown. The bride chose a fingertip layered mantilla of scalloped bridal illusion accented with lace motifs flowing from a Juliet caplet etched with seed pearls. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, baby's breath and greenery.

Cathy Stokes of Greenville was maid of honor and wore a formal gown of apricot chiffon over apricot taffeta with an off the shoulder neckline trimmed in ivory schiffli embroidered lace with a ruffled capelet collar. From the semi empire bodice fell the modified A-line skirt, which was encircled at the waistline with a chiffon tie sash. In her hair, she wore baby's breath and carried an ivory lace fan intertwined with miniature chrysanthemums and comstock in shades of apricot and baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Angela Tugwell, sister of the bridegroom of Raleigh, Terrie Weisner of Greenville and Donna Edwards of Raleigh, cousins of the bride, and Debbie Boyd of Greenville. The bridesmaids wore dresses and carried ivory fans identical to that of the maid of honor.

Brandy Edwards of Winterville was flower girl and wore a formal gown of apricot organza over apricot taffeta designed with a crushed organza scalloped neckline, accented with self-fabric roses, fitted bodice, full flared skirt with ruffled flounce at the hemline. She carried a fireside basket of rose petals.

The honorary junior bridesmaids were Tina Venters of Ayden and Erika Spain, cousins of the bride of Greenville. They wore formal gowns of mint organza over mint taffeta with each gown designed with a portrait neckline and featuring a ruffled bertha collar edged in miniature white chantilly lace. They each wore light apricot colored corsages of silk.

The mother of the bride wore a blue silk chiffon gown. The mother of the bridegroom selected a maize chiffonette gown. They each wore a corsage of white carnations with baby's breath.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Faye Barefoot of Greenville. Mrs. Brenda Edwards presided at the guest register.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and groomsmen were Michael Smith, brother of the bride of Winterville, Jeff McLawhorn of Kinston, Scottie Dixon of Grimesland and Howard Corey of Greenville.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. The wedding table was decorated with a silver epergne of pastel colors Mrs. Floyd McDaniel, aunt of the bride, served cake, and Mrs. Earl Spain, aunt of the bride poured punch. Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Spain welcomed guests to the reception.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tugwell, parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Ray McLawhorn and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Mills at the Trinity Church fellowship hall.

The bride attended D.H. Conley High School and received her B.S. degree in business education from ECU. The bridegroom is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and received his A.S. degree from Pitt Community College. He is employed with Greenville Utilities in the Energy Conservation Department.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Wedding Vows Said Sunday

Tina Marie Lloyd of Winterville and Robert A. Rouse Jr. of Ayden were united in marriage Sunday at three o'clock in the afternoon at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. Dr. James H. Bailey performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll E. Lloyd of Rt. 1, Winterville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seigler and Mr. Robert A. Rouse Sr. of Grifton.

A program of wedding music was provided by Mrs. Andrea Norris of Ayden, organist, and Mrs. Barbara Wilson of Winterville, soloist.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk organza over peau de soie. The empire bodice featured a V-neckline and long fitted calla pointed sleeves. Appliques of re-embroidered alencon lace centered with pearls decorated the bodice and sleeves. A pleated ruffle trimmed the neckline. The A-line skirt fell into an attached chapel length train. A Juliet cap of bridal illusion was attached to a cluster of flowers and pearls with an attached combination face veil and long train. Her wedding bouquet was a cascade of white silk gardenias mixed with white azaleas and baby pink rosebuds tied with white ribbon and white satin streamers.

Teresa L. Lloyd, the bride's sister of Winterville, was maid of honor. She wore a pink gown of sheerganza and rachele lace. The gown was fashioned with a scooped neckline accented with a bertha effect lace trimmed ruffle which also formed the sleeves. Lace and satin ribbon encircled the waistline and featured a bow and streamers in the back. The flowing skirt featured a lace edged ruffle. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and pink satin streamers.

Bridesmaids were Earlene Mullen, Connie Harper and Debbie Koon, all of Grifton. They wore dresses styled identically to the maid of honor and carried similar bouquets.

Courtney Ann Lewis of Wake Forest was flower girl. She wore a formal gown of pink organza. The gown was designed with a round neckline accented with a bertha effect ruffle which also formed the sleeves. The gathered skirt encircled the waistline with a satin ribbon and an apron effect organza overlay was accented with a lace edged ruffle at the hemline. She carried a lace basket accented with pink ribbons and was filled with rose petals. She is cousin of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a sea green magic knit gown. The bridegroom's mother chose a street length formal gown of pink lace and silk. They were remembered with rose corsages.

Randall Rouse of Grifton, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Johnny Penul and Mike Harris, both of Grifton and Art Rouse of Ayden.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church parlor. Assisting were Mrs. Jean Hardee, Mrs. Nancy Butts, aunts of the bride, Mrs. Ann Lewis, Mrs. Wilma Shackelford and Mrs. Linda Stallings, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Dorothy Hudson. Mrs. Ann Lewis, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest register. Mrs. Dorothy Hudson directed the wedding.

The wedding party and out-of-town guests were honored at a rehearsal dinner given by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seigler at their home in Grifton.

The bride and bridegroom are presently attending Pitt Community College. The bride is a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and s employed with Wachovia Computer Operations Center, Greenville. The bridegroom is also a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High

MRS. ROBERT A. ROUSE JR.

Couple Marries Sunday

Robbie Lynn Riggs of Greenville and Timothy Paul O'Connor of New Bern were united in marriage Sunday at three o'clock at the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. R.M. Stewart performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. James Stuart Riggs and foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Reid of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mary Louise O'Connor of New Bern.

A program of nuptial wedding music was presented by Mrs. R.M. Stewart, organist, who also sang "The Wedding Prayer" as the benediction. Leaky Dixon Jr. sang "Love the World Away" and was accompanied by Mrs. Leaky Dixon Jr.

The chancel of the church was decorated with tree candelabras on both sides centered with a prie-dieu where the bridal couple knelt for the wedding prayer.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white crystal chiffon over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with French re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice was accented by a sheer yoke of English net with embroidered cameo design. The back closure featured self-fabric covered buttons. The sheer bishop sleeves repeated a profusion of appliques with calla pointed cuffs edged in schiffli lace. The sheer pleated skirt and attached chapel length train were trimmed at the hemline with a flounce of lace. Her veil of silk illusion fell from a headpiece of re-embroidered lace petals encrusted with pearls. She carried a colonial nosegay of yellow sweetheart roses and white miniature carnations interspersed with lily of the valley and tied with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Maxine Mills, sister of the bride, served as honor attendant. She wore a formal gown of yellow polyester which featured an empire waist accented by a cape of yellow alencon lace and an accordin pleated skirt. She carried a hand bouquet of yellow silk butterfly roses with white daisies tied with yellow satin streamers.

Bridesmaids were Kathy G. Riggs, sister-in-law of the bride, Wanda Whitehurst, sister of the bride, and Deana Sullivan. They wore gowns identical to that of the honor attendant.

Wendy Harris served as flower girl and wore a formal gown of yellow crepe polyester with chiffon overlay and carried a basket of rose petals. Joseph Guy was ring bearer.

Tracy Barrentine of New

MRS. TIMOTHY PAUL O'CONNOR

Bern served as best man. Ushers were Jeffrey Riggs, brother of the bride, Michael and Tommy O'Connor, brothers of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride wore a light blue formal gown of polyester crepe. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal gown of green polyester. Both mothers wore corsages of white silk mums.

Monica Fornes presided at the bridal registry and rice bags were distributed by Crystal Foster and Kristy Gurkins.

After the ceremony, the bride's father and foster parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth over green and centered with an arrangement of summer roses.

After the bridal couple cut the first traditional slice of cake, Mrs. Edna Mills served guests. Punch was poured by Mrs. Ann Wilson. Mrs. Jean Haddock, Mrs. Rebecca Rhodes, Jamie Landers, Lissie Reid, Barbara Reid, Cindy Gaskins and Gina Williams assisted in the serving. Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Worth Hardee.

The bridal couple and wedding attendants were honored with an after-rehearsal party Saturday night in the church fellowship hall by James Stuart Riggs and Mr. and Mrs. Foster Reid.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is employed by S & S Cafeteria. The bridegroom is employed at Trent Oldsmobile, New Bern.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in New Bern.

Miss Taylor Entertained

A miscellaneous bridal shower was given Friday night for Miss Angenette Taylor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie E. Barnes.

Hostesses were Mrs. Ann Barnes and Miss Annette Barnes.

A decorating color scheme of yellow and sonia was used. The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of white carnations accented with yellow and sonia flowers.

Corsages were given to the honoree, her mother, Mrs. Ruby Taylor and Mrs. Rosa L. Harris, directress.

A True Citizens' Report

The final report of the Mayor's Advisory Committee is in hand, and the work is quite literally worth more than its weight in gold.

Readers can only be impressed by its scope, resulting from the work of committee members who gave freely of their time and researching the field of Greenville's present and future needs, as well as proffering their conclusions on how they might be attained.

Too much credit cannot be given Mayor Donald McGlohon for launching the Talent Bank of citizens who volunteered to share their expertise to aid in serving Greenville. (Most of the Advisory Committee came from their ranks.) And the Mayor scored again with creation of the committee with his August, 1980 announcement.

We remember when Dr. Wallace Woolees came to East Carolina University. He was billed then as a superb organizer and administrator. As General Chairman of the committee his reputation has been embellished. People of Greenville owe him and the committee as well as local officials and governmental employees a debt of gratitude.

Mayor McGlohon noted on announcing the study that a panel made up of local citizens seemed the best possible resource, because they would also be among the ultimate recipients of benefits the study involved. The concept was sound. The Committee proved to be well-qualified group and we trust that with conclusion of this chore more will be heard from them.

So we have a report covering research and thought that involved months of work, reduced to 37 pages including the foreword and appendix. The Daily Reflector considered it of such value that an exceptional amount of space was devoted to the report in its June 5 publication.

Details of the recommendations will be discussed in future editions; but for today we acknowledge our appreciation to all involved in the work and praise for a job well done.

NOT LIKE WAITING FOR A JURY--BUT STILL--

Tax 'Rebate' To Be Small

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The personal income tax rebate of up to $22.50 is a sweetener that has helped Gov. Jim Hunt's gasoline tax-increase package through the state Senate and into the House.

But the rebate has generated many questions since being proposed by Hunt and administration officials acknowledge that the average North Carolina taxpayer will receive a far smaller rebate than the maximum $22.50 if it is passed as the governor proposed it.

In fact, according to the administration's own calculations, the average income tax rebate will be small — only $4.58 per taxpayer by one estimate — if all those who are eligible actually file for it.

"It'll be a whole lot less than half (the maximum)," says John A. Williams, Hunt's budget officer and senior advisor, "because the average (increased) gas tax burden that fellow pays isn't going to be anything like $22.50."

In fact, if the average Hunt tax rebate turns out to be larger than that, then the total cost — in terms of decreased state revenues — will be greater than the $11 million estimated by Hunt.

"I don't think it is going to be a whole lot, when you look at the way people drive," says Williams.

The rebate, the brain-child of Williams and legislative leaders, is a part of Hunt's bill to raise gasoline taxes by 3 cents per gallon. It has allowed some legislators who otherwise opposed the increase to support it now.

The credit was offered by Hunt as a way to partially offset the burden of increased gasoline taxes for average drivers. It is to be based on the number of gallons of gas consumed for "essential" driving.

To figure that, taxpayers will have to fill out a complicated form showing the type of car they drive, what kind of gas mileage it gets and how many miles they drive each day to go to and from work and school.

They'll have to do some complicated calculations, too, converting those miles to the number of gallons consumed. They'll be given a yearly "allowance" of 1,500 miles, which means that state will assume everybody drives that much for necessary, personal reasons.

For a car getting 15 miles per gallon, that amounts to a $3 rebate. To get any more than that, you'll have to prove it in miles driven commuting for work or school.

"They're going to have to show where they commuted to and from," says James Piner, assistant state budget officer. "It's not going to be a simple matter of claiming $22.50."

Here are a few facts about the rebate:

— There is no question that most taxpayers won't be eligible to receive the $22.50 of the full credit offered by Hunt.

— If they all did get it, the cost would be astronomical. There are 3.2 million taxpayers in the state, and the administration estimates 2.4 million will be eligible for some size rebate. The rest don't have cars or don't drive.

— If the 2.4 million sought the full amount, the cost to the state in reduced revenue would be $54 million — more than half the $90 million collected by the increased gasoline tax.

— If the 2.4 million who are eligible divide up the $11 million Hunt says it will cost, the average rebate would be only $4.58 per taxpayer.

— The $11 million estimated cost of the rebate amounts to 12 percent of the $90 million that would be raised by the higher gasoline taxes. What that means is the Hunt administration is betting that of all the gasoline purchased in North Carolina by businesses and individuals, only 12 percent of it is for the kind of driving — necessary personal driving — covered by Hunt's rebate.

Administration officials don't like to talk about an average amount of rebate, and you won't hear them citing the $4.58 figure — or anything like it — as the size of the rebate. They contend there is no such thing as an average taxpayer, and that any taxpayer who shows he is entitled to the full $22.50 will receive it.

Piner has also done some complicated calculations, based on elaborate assumptions — some of which he won't reveal — that he says shows the $11 million is a firm estimate. Even though 2.4 million people may be

Something To Think About

Sometime in the months ahead North Carolina voters will decide at the polls whether state legislators will serve two- or four-year terms.

The Legislature decided last week that the matter should be put to a referendum. Presently the legislators serve two-year terms and proponents of longer terms think that too much time is spent running for office.

Our tendency is to look at the change critically.

Serving in the Legislature is another world from what our good old boys (and girls) are accustomed to back home. It is expensive account living at its best and there's always a lobbyist around to make any lawmaker feel important.

It is easy to lose touch with the home folks, even in only a few months. Thus if the legislators have to run every two years, at least they have to get out among we common folk that often, and perhaps that brings them back to earth.

That's the way the issue strikes us now . . . but we are willing to think about it between now and the referendum.

Surplus Butter Crisis

The good news from the State Department is that the United States is stuck with 100,000 tons of surplus butter. The bad news is that the only customer for it is the Soviet Union.

According to my friends at the Washington Post, Robert Kaiser and Lee Lescaze, Secretary of State Al Haig is holding up the sale of the butter because he is afraid of sending the wrong signal to the Soviets.

I called my man at the State Department to find out what was happening.

"We're going ahead with the wheat sale," he said, "because we feel that it is not rewarding the Soviets for their aggression in Afghanistan. But if we also provide them with butter for their bread, they'll think we're not serious about our hard-line stand."

"That's good thinking," I said. "I've been to the Soviet Union and they can't eat their bread without butter on it."

"The secretary feels that our butter should only go to countries who play by our rules. If we sell the Russians the butter at the same time we sell them wheat, we would be giving up one of our biggest chips in any summit talks between Reagan and Brezhnev."

"I'm on Haig's side. What's the problem?"

ART BUCHWALD

wants to unload the butter on the Soviets now, while they're still interested in buying it. Agriculture is putting pressure on the president to make a bread-and-butter package deal at the same time."

"But don't they see that would be a wrong signal?"

"Agriculture isn't interested in diplomatic nuances. They've been buying up surplus butter from the American farmer at 10 million pounds a week, and if they can't unload it, they're going to have to eat it."

"Why don't we sell the butter to our friends and spite the Russians?"

"Because most of them have enough butter, and, besides, if we glutted the market in the Free World with 100,000 tons, the price would tumble and the president would have every butter-producing NATO country on his back."

"Suppose we sold the butter to the Soviets, but printed on each package in Russian that the proceeds from the sale were going to buy new weapons to prevent them from continuing their expansionist policies?"

"It's not that simple. But-ter on the world market is now going for $1.05 a pound, half of what it's selling for in the United States. This means that not only would the Soviets have our American butter but they would be getting it at 50 percent cheaper than what the American consumer has to pay for it. How can the president persuade Americans they have to give up butter for guns, when we're practically giving the butter away to our arch-enemy?"

I said, "Wait a minute. I have a face-saving way out for you. The State Department announced we were going ahead with the grain sales because the Soviets didn't invade Poland. Why don't you declare you've decided to sell them butter, because they didn't invade Yugoslavia?"

"We're way ahead of you," he said. "We're going to announce it next week."

THIS AFTERNOON

A People's Lobby

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Those who bemoan the lack of interest and control which the average citizen has over governmental affairs would do well to remember political parties.

Special interest groups, big businesses, and employee organizations, it is said, have too much power in shaping what the North Carolina General Assembly does.

Such organizations hire lobbyists who keep regular contact with legislators. Some think that winning, dining, and arm-twisting all too often give special interest their way in legislative chambers.

Such is not truly the case. The influence comes from what lobbyists do for the people back home, and what those people do in response. Lobbyists inform their employers what is happening and keep them posted on what is likely to happen.

The people at home make contact with their representatives and let them know how they stand, and what they want the lawmakers to do.

Everybody has a lobbyist. It is said, except the people.

People's Lobby

Actually, the people do have a strong lobby which has been shown effective time and again in shaping decisions of government. It is called a political party. The problem is that in recent times political parties have failed to grasp the potential and power which is theirs.

Democrats, largely as a result of quotas and guidelines to guarantee broadest possible representation of minorities and special interests have been on the verge of degenerating into a nest of splinter groups more intent on battling one another than on presenting a united front and cohesive effort.

Republicans have moved to fill that void. Where once this organization was considered the plaything of the rich whose "country club" mentality excluded the average man, last year's election and events since then demonstrate that the Republican Party on the national level, at least, has tapped some close ties with the people across the nation.

The North Carolina General Assembly clearly illustrates how decision-makers have gotten out of touch with the people back home. The reason is obvious. Precinct-level politics have fallen into little more than campaign and promotional organizations.

A political party can adopt a series of position state-

Other Editors Say U.S. Unmatched

In June some 3.2 million seniors will graduate from the nation's high schools, a figure which represents about 80 percent of American youth aged 17 and 18. This achievement is unmatched by any other country, even those with comparable standards of living.

Education is more than the quarterly report card sent home on the latest standardized test charts. Secondary school is the place where parents entrust their most precious possessions, sons and daughters alike, to become responsible adults. The parents and the community want "good people" as graduates as well as adequate scholars. They want successful personalities as well as favorable test scores. The class of 1981 meets these demanding standards.

As the graduates receive their diplomas, principals, assistant principals and teachers should take pride in the many academic successes of the graduating class and in their promise as responsible adults.

Certainly the task of "raising seniors" is not of easy these days. But the results are good, and they are incalculable value to each student, to each family, to each community and to the nation at large.

Strength For Today

The two seas, or lakes, in Palestine illustrate the Christian life. Into the Sea of Galilee flows the Jordan River from the springs around Mount Hermon, and the water flows out again at the other end of the lake. Since the water flows in and out again, the Sea of Galilee is filled with life, and fishermen fill their nets and provide food for the people of the area. Then the water goes winding down the course of the river and into the Dead Sea, which has no outlet and therefore contains no life.

By analogy, if the water of life flows into a Christian and out again to others, it will be living and vital. But if the Christian takes God's blessings and does not give anything in service to others, he will be as dead as the sea which has no outlet.

Moreover, as the Dead Sea is far below sea level, so these people live far below the levels of satisfaction which God intended them to have. — Elisha Douglass.

French Luxury Field Sanguine

By SUZY PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — "Business is just fine," said Frank Klein, managing director of the Ritz Hotel. "The Ritz always does well, no matter what political changes occur."

The stock market plummeted and the franc sank following the May 10 election of a Socialist president, Francois Mitterrand, who promised massive increases in social benefits and nationalization of a number of major companies including the remaining private banks.

Despite the fears of the well-to-do, however, expensive restaurants are still booked weeks ahead and some other luxury establishments are faring better than ever.

Owners and managers in the luxury fields are sanguine. "About 50 percent of our guests are American, and they came even when the dollar was way down," said the manager of the Ritz. "Now, of course, they get more for their money. We're nearly fully booked for months to come."

Last week the government increased the basic minimum wage 10 percent, from $2.71 an hour to $2.99. But "the Ritz's wages are already well above the new minimum wage," said Klein. Nor does the possibility of increased taxes on profits and resulting higher prices for the guests bother him.

"If you're paying $180 or so for a room, a $10 difference probably won't ruin you," he observed.

"Like all people in government here, the Socialists like to eat well. They're among our best customers," said Claude Terrail, owner of the three-star Tour d'Argent restaurant.

"We've got a new 'Bureau of Free Time' with the new regime. But whatever you call these things, they're promoting enjoyment of France, so I don't see them treating us badly."

The fashion industry is also optimistic. Says designer-magnate Pierre Cardin, who recently bought a majority interest in Maxim's restaurant: "Without our luxury goods and services, France could hardly survive. So we expect the government to treat us well. After all, France without its couture, its perfume, its hotels and restaurants would be unthinkable!"

Jacques Mouchel, president of the French fashion and other artisanal syndicates, is elated. "I'm not a Socialist," he said, "but if this government comes through with their promises, our industries will benefit. They are planning to reduce social security and other charges by 50 percent to artisanal business, like the couture. I've been agitating for this for years."

"I can't see governments discriminating against the artisans. Collective turnover for our luxury industries is 40 billion francs ($7 billion) whereas metallurgy is only about 27 billion francs ($4.7 billion)."

"Don't let's dramatize. Things will calm down."

"After all, Mitterrand's minimum wage rise, compared to inflation rates, is somewhat less than Valery Giscard d'Estaing's increase seven years ago."

"It was time for a change, and a breeze of socialism can't upset this country. France is still France."

Kate Sullivan-Pomeroy drew the cartoon. 1980.

Rostenkowski's Political Savvy Is Put To The Test

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — All of Dan Rostenkowski's training as a student of Richard J. Daley in the Chicago school of politics and a veteran of 22 years in Congress is being tested in the battle over President Reagan's tax-cut plan.

As chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, the heat is on Rostenkowski to keep Democratic leaders from suffering the same kind of defeat as when 63 of their members broke ranks to vote for Reagan's budget blueprint earlier this year.

Just how much he can accomplish is unclear, with liberal Democrats adamant against Reagan's proposal for an across-the-board tax cut and the possibility that Southern conservatives might bolt again to the White House position.

But those who know the 53-year-old Rostenkowski say he is well-suited for the role.

"He has a tremendous amount of political savvy," says former Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., the longtime Ways and Means chairman.

Rostenkowski, at a husky 6-foot-4 with piercing eyes and the enlarged jaw of a professional wrestler, "is a natural leader," Mills says. Big, bluff and at times gruff, Rostenkowski looks down from the chairman's seat on the raised platform of the Ways and Means Committee with a tangle of hair straggling down his forehead, his lower lip jutting outward in seeming defiance. His fellow lawmakers, says a Republican congressman who asked not to be identified, "like him very much and I think they're afraid of him. ... They genuflect."

But Rostenkowski also puts a premium on loyalty and is ever willing to help, or at least console, a fellow politician in the hour of need.

When the House was in the process of expelling Rep. Michael Myers for his Abscam bribery conviction last year, the Pennsylvania lawmaker sat alone in the chamber. Rostenkowski strolled in, sat next to Myers and threw an arm around him. "Danny Rostenkowski doesn't care what you or any other reporter writes about him," Common Cause President Fred Wertheimer once said. "What he cares about is how he stands with his peers."

"He works hard, he talks to people, he gives people a sense of confidence and reassurance and the protection of a group," Rep. Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo., says.

New York Rep. Barber Conable, the senior Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, attributes Rostenkowski's skill to his background in Chicago politics.

"He came up through a very tough political organization and it reflects his training," Conable says.

Rostenkowski was born into politics. As his father and grandfather were before him, he is Democratic committeeman of the ward on Chicago's North Side where he grew up.

His father, Joseph P. Rostenkowski, also was a member of the Chicago City Council.

With such lineage, Rostenkowski was steeped in politics early on and also was helped in his career. He went to the Illinois Legislature in 1953, two years after his graduation from Loyola University, and arrived on Capitol Hill in 1958.

Immediately, he became a favorite of Mayor Daley. "He was Daley's pet," Mills says. "Daley gave him all the advice and training you could get from a really good political leader, and Daley was one of the best."

Rostenkowski first popped up on the nation's television screens at the 1968 Democratic National Convention. With Daley's police fighting antiwar demonstrators in the streets and delegates growing rebellious in the hall, Daley ordered the towering and forceful Rostenkowski to take the gavel from diminutive House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., and restore order.

Order was restored, but Albert never forgot.

In 1970, Rostenkowski was stunned when he was ousted as chairman of the House Democratic Caucus by Rep. Olin "Tiger" Teague of Texas.

But Rostenkowski bounced back into the party leadership a few years later as chief deputy whip. House

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. has paid homage to him as a master at counting votes. Last fall, with the defeat of Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., and Majority Whip John Brademas, D-Ind., the Chicago congressman had his choice: chairman or whip.

Rostenkowski chose the committee, although many thought reluctantly so. Quite a few lawmakers think his heart's desire is to be speaker and Ways and Means chairman may not be the best springboard for that.

"If you were to pick two guys or three guys who are likely to be speakers at some time in the future, he'd be one of them," Rep. James M. Shannon, D-Mass., says. Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., the No. 2 Democrat on Ways and Means, says: "I think he will be speaker."

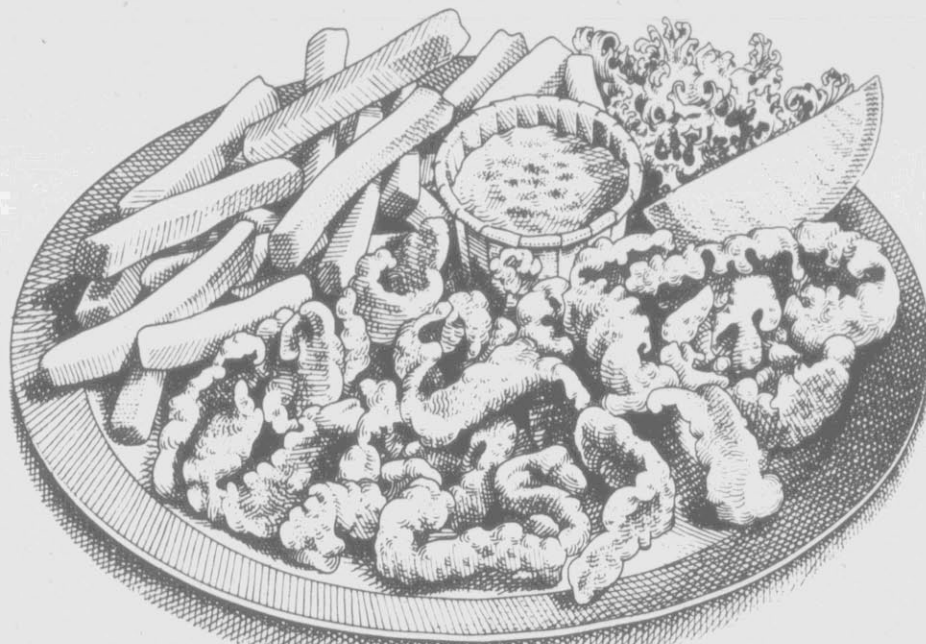

Rostenkowski's House seat is in no danger.

Lest there be any doubts, John F. Urbaszewski, an 85-year-old retired undertaker who was Rostenkowski's Republican opponent in 1976, summarized the situation exquisitely when he told a reporter: "If elected, I'll demand a recount."

ments and choose candidates who abide by those beliefs and philosophies.

After being nominated and elected, a political party can exercise discipline over subsequent actions of the candidate by continuing to support him or her, and by keeping in close touch at both ends — at home where the people live, and in Raleigh.

When a representative fails to follow the party doctrine or to listen to hometown advice, public attention can be focused on that, and withdrawal of future support promised.

Lately, Republicans in North Carolina seem to have started using party politics more effectively than their counterparts; whether by accident or design. Still, Republicans are fractured in this state by the continuing disunity between rank and file and the Congressional Club faction led by Senators Jesse Helms and John East.

When lobbyists parade their special interest backers in front of a legislative hearing or committee meeting, the point is always made in varying ways that these people vote ... if you want to keep winning, you need that vote.

But if political parties could grasp the potential for citizen lobby effectiveness in government, none of the special interest groups would be big enough to undo the power and effect.

What that would require is a political party run by the people for the people — rather than an election machine run by the politicians and for the politicians.

eligible, Piner says, not than many will file for the credit — either because they carpool, drive a company car that doesn't qualify or because they don't want to go to the trouble of filling out a form.

The rebate stirred a lot of questioning from opponents during Senate and committee debate last week, and it is likely to face more as it begins House hearings this week. Although the rebate has the support of some legislative leaders, amendments are expected to be offered in the House to drop it from the package.

But Hunt stood by the rebate under more questioning last week, and told reporters it is valuable if for no other reason than as an illustration.

"The credit or rebate," Hunt said, "makes the point about how little this thing will really cost you, if you think about it."

Pistol-Toter Identified

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The mystery of the pistol-packing woman in the state Legislature has been solved — and it turns out she works for none other than Gov. Jim Hunt.

The mystery arose this month as the state House debated a bill, pushed by the Hunt administration, to make it a misdemeanor to carry a weapon in a state building or on the grounds.

During the debate, Rep. Edd Nye, D-Bladen, announced that he knew of a woman who carried a pistol in her purse around the Legislative Building. Nye refused to identify the woman.

But Anita Munns, secretary for the governor's legislative liaison, Zebulon D. Alley, acknowledged to reporters that she was the gun-toter.

She showed reporters a .25-caliber automatic that she carries in her purse for "protection" at all times — including her hours in the state building.

When a reporter asked Alley if he knew his secretary was armed, he quipped, "Are you from the Congressional Club?"

The club is the political organization of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and has been filling the airwaves with ads opposing Hunt's highway proposals.

Tax Protesters Are Convicted

During the past 30 months, 265 illegal tax protesters have been convicted nationwide of criminal tax offenses and investigations of 362 other individuals suspected of participating in illegal tax protest activities are being conducted, the Internal Revenue Service says.

In North Carolina, during the same period, two illegal tax protesters were brought to trial by jury and both received prison sentences and were heavily fined. Anyone convicted of a criminal tax offense is subject to a jail term of up to five years and a fine of up to $10,000, says Joe Pagani, Chief of the IRS Criminal Investigation Division in North Carolina.

During Fiscal Year 1980, there were 66 illegal tax protest returns received in North Carolina, Pagani said. Of that number, 23 claimed that the income tax is unconstitutional and 10 were from persons claiming vows of poverty or exempt status as ministers.

Pagani warned against the practice of simply failing to file a tax return in the expectation that the IRS will not catch the offender.

Nine Dead In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
Traffic accidents in North Carolina killed nine people over the weekend, the North Carolina Highway Patrol reported early today.

The fatalities bring the year's death toll to 545, compared to 575 at the same time last year.

The latest reported death occurred Sunday at 1 p.m. on N.C. 97, 1.5 miles west of Zebulon. William R. Cooley, 33, of Wendell was killed when the car in which he was riding left the road at high speed and overturned six times, troopers said.

Early Sunday Joey Lee Measley, 15, of Middlesex was killed when he was thrown from the back of a pickup truck he was riding in near Middlesex.

Antonio Brown, 19, of Sunbury was killed Saturday when the car he was driving ran off the road, struck at telephone pole and overturned in a creek. The accident occurred 1 mile west of Sunbury on U.S. 158.

The patrol said 2-year-old Michael Stephen Bullard of Maxton was killed Saturday when the car in which he was riding ran off the road and struck an embankment about four miles north of Red Springs.

A 25-year-old man from Monroe, N.Y., died early Saturday in a motorcycle accident two miles east of Winston. The patrol reported that Richard F. Peirini lost control of his motorcycle, hit a curb, a metal house and two trees.

In other deaths this weekend, which began at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Sunday, a 26-year-old Hiddenite woman who was killed in a head-on collision on U.S. 221 near Blowing Rock.

The patrol reported that Janie Alexander Mitchell was a passenger in a vehicle that was struck head on about 12:35 a.m. Saturday.

William Henry Knight, 60, of Tarboro was killed Saturday when he lost control of his vehicle, and ran off N.C.

Hunting-Fishing Plan Approved

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A five-part plan offering lifetime hunting and fishing privileges for North Carolina residents has been unanimously approved by the General Assembly.

The interest on the money collected from the sale of the lifetime permits will be earmarked for future conservation projects in the state.

The licenses include a $300 lifetime sportsman's license for people aged 12 and over.

44 near Princeville.

In another Saturday accident, a 22-year-old Wilson man lost control of car, ran off the road and overturned. The patrol identified the victim as Malory Alfred Pittman.

In Craven County Saturday, Robert Nelson Jarmon Jr., 31, of New Bern was killed when the car he was driving ran off the road, struck two trees and overturned.

Pork Contest Being Planned

The Pitt County Livestock Development Association and the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service are sponsoring a junior pork production contest. Boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 19 are eligible to participate. The individual whose pig has the highest average daily gain will be the winner of the contest and will receive a trophy and a $30 prize. Second place will receive $20 and third $10.

Pigs must be weighed between June 15 and June 30 and must weigh between 50 and 70 pounds. Pigs will be weighed again on September 28 at the Pitt County Fair and the average daily gain computed. Hogs must be shown in the appropriate class of the Pitt County Market Hog Show to be held Tuesday, September 29. Each junior exhibitor will sell one individual hog at the sale following the market hog show.

Pigs may be barrows or gilts, crossbred or purebred. Each exhibitor is allowed to enter a maximum of three individuals and one pen of three, or two pens of three for a total of six pigs. Pigs must be ear notched or tattooed and weight and identification certified by agricultural extension agents.

Participants in the contest are encouraged to maintain feed consumption records to provide more complete production project records. North Carolina 4-H swine record books are available for this contest.

To enter the junior pork production contest and schedule the initial weighing, contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, 1717 W. Fifth Street, Greenville, 758-1197.

AMA Convention Is Underway

CHICAGO (AP) — A plan to curtail abuse of prescription drugs such as amphetamines and sleeping pills is one of the issues facing members of the American Medical Association at their annual convention this week.

More than 100 resolutions and reports, including one dealing with the medical needs of homosexuals, are expected to be considered at the convention being held in Chicago.

The AMA's policy-setting House of Delegates has been asked by the AMA Council on Scientific Affairs to urge state medical groups to act on the problem of often-abused, inappropriately prescribed drugs.

Several measures were recommended to prevent falsified prescriptions and theft of prescription drugs and order forms for prescriptions.

The science council also has urged the AMA to educate physicians to be aware of the psychological and physical problems homosexual patients may have. The council states that a patient's sexual preference sometimes can make a difference in treatment.

Sometimes misdiagnoses occur, the council says, and "some physicians may be less than objective in dealing with a professed homosexual."

As the AMA convention got off the ground Sunday, U.S. Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., charged that federally funded cancer research programs have been poorly managed and violate the public's trust.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the American Medical Association Auxiliary, Mrs. Hawkins said congressional investigations of cancer projects showed "a major violation of trust between the taxpayer and some medical researchers."

Mrs. Hawkins, elected in the 1980 Reagan landslide, said testimony before the Senate Labor Committee and the subcommittee on Investigations and General Oversight — which she chairs — revealed lax control of the tax-supported fight against cancer.

One researcher suspected of being less than truthful about his findings was given a $900,000 grant by the National Cancer Institute for new research, the senator said.

"Practices such as this reveal a gross breach of professional ethics and will not be permitted to continue," Mrs. Hawkins said in prepared remarks released by her office in Washington.

The senator complained further that advances in cancer research are not being communicated effectively to local doctors, who care for most cancer victims.

"That means that life-saving information about drugs and treatment may not be getting from the researchers to the doctors administering treatment," she said.

"The point I'm making is that doctors and researchers are people like the rest of us, and they must be held to the same standards as the rest of us," Mrs. Hawkins said.

Worried Over Federal Corporate Tax Proposal

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State legislative leaders are worried that a Reagan administration proposal for accelerated corporate tax writeoffs will lead to demands that the state also speed up depreciations in the value of plants and equipment.

Cars Damaged In Collisions

An estimated $5,500 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Sunday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from an 8:50 p.m. collision at the intersection of Reade and Fourth Streets involving cars driven by Kenneth Newton Glover of Route 1, Wilson, and Gregory Dempsey Holland of Route 6, Greenville.

Damage from the collision was set at $2,500 to the Glover car and $2,000 to the Holland vehicle.

Police, who reported both drivers were injured, said that Glover was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Cars driven by Beverly Rippard Reid of 314 Rutledge Rd. and Jon Charles Rogers of 205 Belvedere Dr. collided about 2:10 p.m. at the intersection of Country Club Road and Clubway Drive, causing $800 damage to the Reid car and $200 damage to the Rogers vehicle.

The North Carolina General Assembly has always made changes in the way the state taxes corporations to conform with federal changes.

But Reagan's proposal for an accelerated depreciation would have a major impact on North Carolina's corporate income tax collections if legislators make the conforming changes in state law, said North Carolina General Assembly fiscal analyst David Crotts.

Crotts, in two memos to House Speaker Liston Ramsey and other legislative leaders, estimated that the changes could cut North Carolina corporate tax collections by $40 million to $100 million a year. That would amount to a cut of 8 percent to 20 percent, he said.

The depreciation times vary for different types of equipment. Crotts said most of the proposals would make the writeoff times "significantly shorter" — decreasing to 10 years for factory buildings and stores; five years for much machinery and three years for automobiles and light trucks.

North Carolina is one of 33 states that base their corporate taxes on the federal tax base, Crotts said. North Carolina legislators could avoid a loss of anticipated state revenue by abandoning that tradition and choosing to keep the current depreciation procedures no matter what changes Congress makes in federal taxes.

But James Senter, deputy state revenue secretary, said corporations would find it burdensome to have to comply with different federal and state tax depreciation schedules.

"There'll be no question about it but that it would create a hardship for corporations to file different returns," Senter said in an interview. "They'll have to have two different computations for the different schedules... This would definitely be my thinking, they'll want to follow the federal (changes)."

There have been various proposals in Congress for changing the schedules, and Crotts said that it is too early to tell with any certainty how much money North Carolina revenue may be at stake.

"However, any agreed-upon changes will still be quite significant once they are fully phased in," he said.

Ramsey and other House leaders said they had seen Crotts' analysis and were concerned about the prospects for the change.

"It progresses each year. It'll be astronomical," said House Appropriations Chairman Billy Watkins, D-Granville. "It will grow into a tremendous problem."

Arrest Made In Cutting

Floyd Lee Daniels, 26 of 112 Greenfield Blvd., was arrested by Greenville police about 2:25 a.m. Sunday following a cutting incident on Fourth Street, just west of the Cotanche Street intersection.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Daniels, charged with assault inflicting serious injury, allegedly stabbed Carl Milton Ober Jr. of 106 Tripp Ave. six times in the back following an argument.

Ober was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for his wounds and then released.

Shuford Speaks To Council

Forrest H. Shuford II, chief deputy commissioner of the N.C. Industrial Commission, spoke to the Pitt County Safety Council Thursday during its luncheon meeting at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Shuford provided information about the North Carolina Workers' Compensation Act, which his commission administers. He is the coordinator of the hearing which he and 11 deputy commissioners conduct throughout the state in contested Workers' Compensation cases. He also serves on the full commission which reviews appeals cases.

The Safety Council's next meeting will be held the first Thursday in September.

Huge Cocaine Cargo Seized

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two New England men face drug charges after federal, state and local officers confiscated more than 400 pounds of cocaine from a small airplane early Sunday in what authorities said was one of the largest cocaine busts in the nation — and the largest ever in North Carolina.

A first appearance was scheduled for today for Kessler Joseph Powell, 32, of Somerville, Mass., and Robert Maurice Rivard, 31, of Saco, Maine. They are being held under $900,000 bond each in the New Hanover County Jail.

The wholesale value of the drug, believed to have been made in South America, was estimated at up to $16 million, and its street value easily could exceed $100 million.

A laboratory analysis showed the seized cocaine to be "as pure as cocaine comes," said State Bureau of Investigation assistant director Cuyler L. Windham.

The largest cocaine seizure in North Carolina before Sunday's was less than 10 pounds, he said, while the largest seizure in the United States was more than 800 pounds taken earlier this year in Florida.

Powell and Rivard were arrested after they landed their twin-engine Cessna at New Hanover County Airport at about 2:30 a.m., U.S. Customs Service officials said. A customs plane had trailed the aircraft since it was spotted off the Florida coast at about 10 p.m. Saturday, federal agents said.

Authorities said the cocaine probably originated in Columbia, the source of much of the white powder coming into this country. The origin of the flight has not been determined.

The two men were charged under state law with cocaine trafficking, a felony with a minimum prison sentence of 16 years and a minimum fine of $250,000 upon conviction, Windham said. Federal charges were still pending Sunday.

The cocaine apparently was not intended for North Carolina, said Gil Payette, patrol director for the Customs Service office in Wilmington.

He said the airplane passed over North Carolina after midnight and continued to the Virginia border, where bad weather forced it to turn back. The airplane landed in Wilmington, the nearest airport with good weather, Payette said.

The men were arrested at the airport by Customs agents and officers from the federal Drug Enforcement Agency, the SBI and the New Hanover County Sheriff's Office. Payette said the two were unarmed and offered no resistance.

Federal investigators are trying to trace the origin of the cocaine shipment and its destination because they believe a larger organization could be involved, Payette said.

"Just by its volume, you would assume that there's more to it than just two people in an airplane," he said.

N.C. Farm Bureau Federation Is Too Big , Some Farmers Suggest Says Governor

Knew Scandal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The 200,000-member North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, boasting a $72 million insurance service, a $13.5 million purchase program and a $15.8 million marketing program, has become too big, some farmers say.

The farmers say the bureau, the largest farm organization in a major agricultural state, has become too diversified to pay proper attention to all of their needs.

Some flue-cured tobacco growers, contending the bureau can't adequately represent their interests, recently decided to form their own commodity group. Other farmers and agriculture observers complain that bureau policy is set at the top and passed down, rather than responding to needs at the grassroots level.

But when the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation talks, people listen.

The state's congressional delegation seeks out the Farm Bureau as a barometer of North Carolina agriculture in a relationship that dates back to 1936.

Leadership of the state organization has led to national prestige. Thirteen of its members are on national Farm Bureau commodity committees, more than from any other state.

Murray W. Jones, agriculture aide to Sen John East, R-N.C., said he's convinced the North Carolina Farm Bureau represents the views of the state's farmers. "We use them almost like a pollster," he said.

Rep. Stephen L. Neal, D-5th District, said that when his office has a question about tobacco, "We don't wait for (the Farm Bureau) to call us, we'll call them about it."

But Donnie Taylor of Pink Hill, leader of the fledgling flue-cured tobacco growers' group, disagreed.

"(The Farm Bureau) just can't meet the needs of the flue-cured growers because it's got all the commodities to be concerned about," he said. "The job that we want done, I just don't figure they can get done because they've got so much to look after."

Several other flue-cured growers agreed, but all refused to be quoted. As one agricultural observer said, "It's almost like talking against God, motherhood and the Democratic Party. The Farm Bureau is so powerful ... folks don't want to unnecessarily upset them."

James F. Wilder, executive secretary of the North Carolina Soybean Producers Association, is another commodity group leader that says single-commodity groups can do a better job than the Farm Bureau.

"They don't have the resources to do the things we're doing," he said. "They're not our spokesman — heavens no."

Farm Bureau president John W. Sledge said, "We're unlike the commodity organizations in that we're a general farm organization, and we've got to mix and mingle and try to come out with the ultimate that's good for the total."

Sledge said the bureau prides itself on its members' participation in the decision-making process.

But Samuel R. Berger, author of a book on the American Farm Bureau Federation entitled "Dollar Harvest," disagreed. He said that Farm Bureau decisions at the state and national levels are made at the top and filtered down to the members.

"The organization essentially is self-perpetuating in terms of its leadership," he said. "The county leaders go to the state convention and the state leaders go to the national convention."

Another agriculture observer, who refused to be identified, agreed.

"The problem with any farm organization or commodity group is it tends to be captained by those from within who have a lot of money and a lot of time, and that tends to be farmers who are older, more established and wealthy," he said.

Investigation officers said the Holder car collided with an auto driven by Christine Mills Manning of 1604 East Wright Rd., causing $1,000 damage to the Manning car and $25 damage to the Holder auto.

Says Governor Knew Scandal

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt knew as early as 1974 about the bid-rigging scandal on North Carolina highway paving contracts, says a former paving executive whose testimony has led to prison terms for 29 paving executives.

Wilbur Dees, former vice president of Crowell Constructors Inc. of Fayetteville, told the Greensboro Daily News that another executive told Hunt about the conspiracy while Hunt was still lieutenant governor, two years after Dees told federal agents about it.

Dees, 47, said Tom Avent of the Cape Fear Construction Co. of Lumberton told Hunt at a breakfast meeting in 1974 that Dees would be willing to provide further details of bid rigging. Dees and Avent never heard from Hunt after the alleged offer, he said.

A Hunt spokesman said Friday that the governor denies having "any knowledge whatsoever" about bid rigging in the state before 1979.

"What Dees is saying is simply untrue," said Brent Hackney.

Avent said he never had a private meeting with Hunt, but recalled that he and Dees met with Hunt several years ago "about an airport matter."

Avent, a member of the airport board in Lumberton at the time, said the meeting was "so long ago" that he does not remember whether bid rigging was discussed.

See A Bias In Energy Grants

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Department grants to develop alternative fuel sources have been biased in favor of large corporations, with more than one-third of available money funneled to companies with assets of more than $5 billion, the General Accounting Office charged today.

In contrast, the GAO said, only 15 percent of the energy money went to small firms. The congressional accounting agency said the department's selection process was consciously weighted against small businesses.

The GAO study was released today by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., who said he was shocked by the favoritism shown for big business.

"It amounts to nothing less than a backdoor rebate of the windfall profits tax," Eagleton said. The windfall tax was imposed on the extra revenues taken in by oil companies after decontrol of oil prices.

Eagleton conceded that large companies would have to be relied upon to develop alternatives to oil and natural gas, but he added, "These are the companies least in need of a federal handout to get the job done."

"That's what we are paying those high gasoline and oil prices for," he said. "The companies said they need those huge profits so that they can invest in new energy sources. They didn't say anything about Uncle Sam being their banker."

Energy Department officials could not be reached for comment over the weekend.

The GAO studied Energy Department grants last year totaling $298.1 million that were intended to develop alternative fuels other than alcohol. Of the total, the agency said, 82 percent — $243.6 million — went to large corporations. Only 15 percent — $44.4 million — went to small corporations, defined as independently owned and operated and qualifying under Small Business Administration criteria.

The other 3 percent, or $10 million, went to other entities, including Indian tribes, governmental bodies and international ventures.

Of the total, the GAO said, $120.1 million went to corporations with assets of more than $5 billion and $73.5 million went to corporations with assets between $1 billion and $5 billion.

Over half the federal grants were given to corporations on the Fortune 500 list of the largest U.S. industrial firms, the GAO said.

The agency said the Energy Department was biased in favor of big business both in the selection process and in the views of department evaluators.

The selection process was based entirely on written proposals, the GAO said, with outside discussions and visits to proposed project sites forbidden.

"Large corporations, who are more likely to have considerable proposal-writing resources and experience to draw upon, had an advantage over small business proposers," the GAO said. "In addition, according to several small business proposers we spoke with, the cost of preparing a highly detailed proposal, as was required on this competition, can be burdensome to small businesses with limited resources."

The agency said department evaluators frankly admitted their bias for large corporations, arguing that those companies were more likely to be successful in developing a commercially successful fuels plant.

"In general, they stated that small businesses simply could not raise the capital necessary to put together a commercially viable operation and had no real chance to enter the industry," the GAO said of the evaluators.

"Therefore, they told us, they generally could not justify giving high technical evaluation scores to small businesses," the report said.

Bani-Sadr Is Given Warning

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, in a warning apparently aimed at President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, said today he would seek the arrest of "any provocative speaker" who causes unrest.

The warning, in a speech broadcast by Tehran Radio and monitored here, followed Sunday's indefinite closure of Bani-Sadr's newspaper, Enghelab Eslami, and five other Tehran publications. Prosecutors said they had published articles tending to cause "a poisonous and strife-ridden atmosphere at a time of war." Iran has been at war with neighboring Iraq since last September over disputed territorial claims.

A few hours after the closure was announced Sunday, Bani-Sadr vowed to "stand firm" and speak out "in any form, namely re-

DEADLY MEASLES
JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A measles epidemic in central Java has killed 52 persons, the government has reported.

To gather food, it needs receding water from fertile wet prairies, where fish concentrate.

Earlier this century, most of the wetlands were allowed to go from wet to dry every year, and the wood storks flourished. But by the 1960s, as the land was utilized for commercial purposes, the number of storks had dropped to only about 20,000 and is still falling.

corded tapes, announcements and so on." In a statement carried by the official Pars news agency, he charged the closure of his newspaper was part of a plot by his political foes to eliminate him.

"I will put anyone, however he is and in whatever position he is, in his place if he makes speeches that cause unrest," Khomeini said in an address to a Health Ministry delegation visiting his residence north of Tehran.

"The army, security forces and revolutionary guards should arrest any such provocative speaker," said the 81-year-old patriarch. "Even if I do so too, the military or security forces should arrest me and hand me over to court. There are no exceptions."

Khomeini did not mention Bani-Sadr by name. But the warning appeared directed squarely at the embattled president, who is being challenged by Islamic hardliners backing Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai.

"Everyone must bear this in mind: The day I feel the Islamic republic is threatened or Islam is in danger, that day I shall no longer sit and give advice. I shall cut off everyone's hands," Khomeini said.

"I shall deal with those who plan to create corruption, who want to create dissension by speeches, who want to set up ranks against the public prosecutor's office, against the Majlis and other authorities, as I have dealt with Mohammad Reza (Pahlavi, the late shah)."

Court Refuses Speedy Review

By RICHARD CARELLI

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Supreme Court today refused to give speedy review to the agreement that led to the release of 52 American hostages from Iran.

The justices, without comment, turned down the appeal of a Texas-based computer company to halt the transfer next month of Iranian assets in the United States to an international arbitration panel.

Electronic Data Systems Corporation Iran, a subsidiary of Electronic Data Systems Corp. of Dallas, told the court speedy action is needed to protect a $20 million federal court award it won against the Iranian government.

"The executive branch, under the tremendous pressure of the Iranian hostage crisis, has committed itself to a course which is irreconcilable with the constitutional principle of separation of powers," EDS lawyers told the justices.

The transfer of up to $4 billion in Iranian assets, frozen in the United States by then-President Carter on Nov. 14, 1979, in retaliation for the hostage seizure, is scheduled for July 19.

President Reagan has said he will honor the transfer deal, which nullified all suits filed by American firms against Iran.

Carter ordered the transfer just before leaving office last January as part of the agreement that led to the hostages' release.

Justice Department lawyers urged the court to reject the EDS challenge, stating that it suffered from a procedural flaw. The EDS subsidiary won its award June 13, 1979 — five months before Carter's freeze.

The EDS appeal asked for expedited action — including oral arguments on June 29 — so a decision could be announced before the July 19 deadline.

A challenge to the transfer agreement — one involving a "post-freeze" attachment — reportedly is on its way to the nation's highest court from California.

A Los Angeles-based engineering firm, Dames & Moore, told the justices in a letter that its appeal to the agreement would reach them by Tuesday or Wednesday.

More than 450 court actions have been filed challenging the president's authority to order Iranian assets released by the various courts and banks now holding them.

Found Woman In Cargo Hold

ATLANTA (AP) — An airport worker who heard noises coming from a jetliner's sealed cargo hold thought he would find a cat but instead discovered a woman walking inside the compartment, the FBI said.

Kathy Hargan, 21, was charged with conspiring to steal from an interstate shipment and violating the federal stowaway act after allegedly hiding inside the cargo hold on a New York-bound Delta Air Lines flight Saturday, said FBI Agent Mark Smith.

Although Ms. Hargan had a small tank of oxygen and a nose piece, Delta spokesman Jim Ewing said her life could have been in danger because not all cargo holds are pressurized and heated.

Officers suggested no motive for the incident.

Obituaries

Bostic

Mrs. Nora Sandlin Bostic, 93, died this morning at her home, 1204 E. Second Street.

A graveside service will be held Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in Greenwood Cemetery by the Rev. Percy B. Upchurch and the Rev. Hal Melton.

Mrs. Bostic, a Duplin County native, had been a resident of Greenville since 1914. She was the widow of Berry Bostic and was a member of Memorial Baptist Church.

Surviving her are a daughter, Mrs. W. Rex Hodges of Farmville; two sons, Alfred Quinn Bostic Sr. of Winterville and Clifford N. Bostic of Benson; two sisters, Mrs. Norwood G. Stone and Mrs. Robert Smith, both of Smithfield; seven grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the Wilkerson Funeral Home tonight from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and tomorrow from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Anyone desiring to make a memorial contribution may consider the Memorial Baptist Church Memorial Fund, the family suggests.

Brock

Jeffrey Thomas Brock, 23, art director of WNCT-TV, died Saturday night at Pitt Memorial Hospital. Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. A.C. Morgan, Free Will Baptist Minister of Winterville. Burial will follow in the Winterville Cemetery.

Mr. Brock was a native of Winterville and had lived in Delaware and Valdosta, Ga., with his family before returning to Winterville in 1975. He was a graduate of Valdosta High School and East Carolina University. He had been associated with WNCT-TV as art director for the past year. He was a member of Northside Baptist Church, Valdosta, Ga., and attended the Missionary Baptist Church in Winterville and was a member of the Winterville Jaycees.

He is survived by his parents: Mr. and Mrs. Jack T. Brock of the home; a brother, Gary Brock of the home; and his grandmother, Mrs. Raymond Brock of Winterville.

The family has suggested that those desiring to make a memorial contribution consider the Division of Hematology-Oncology, ECU School of Medicine, c/o Dr. Mary Raab, Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The family will receive friends at the Wilkerson Funeral Home from 7-9 p.m. today and at other times will be at the home near Winterville.

Carmon

Monique Schmelle Carmon, 7 months, died Wednesday at her home on Rt. 3. Graveside services were held today at 3 p.m. at Branch's Cemetery, Had-dock's Crossroads, with the Rev. Matthew Best officiating.

She is survived by her parents, Ernest Lee and Gwendolyn Carmon of the home; two brothers, Arturo Le-on and Surell Ronze Carmon, both of the home; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Reloyd Edwards of Winterville; paternal grandparents Emma Mae Carmon of Baltimore, Md. and Willie Carmon of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Hardee's Funeral Home.

Mills

Mr. Harvey Mills of Rt. 3, Greenville, died this morning. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by the Wilkerson Funeral Home.

Ross

Mr. Hubert E. Ross, 55, died Saturday. A memorial service will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the Calvary Pentecostal Church on the Belvoir Highway near Greenville.

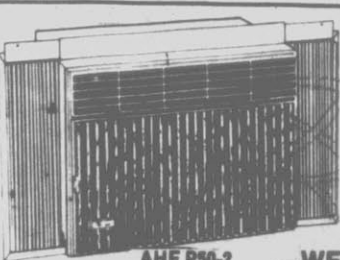

Mr. Ross, a resident of Pitt County, spent most of his life in the Ballards Crossroads Community and for the past nine years had made his home in Ayden.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Lucy V. Ross; two children, Patricia Diane Ross of Greenville and Hesley Earl Ross of Ayden; his mother, Mrs. Ora Ross Gaskins of Rountree; six brothers, Curtis, Harold, Mickey and Kenneth Ross, all of Greenville, David Ross of Wilmington, and Fonda Ross of Tacoma, Washington; five sisters, Mrs. Annie Gurganus and Mrs. Kathleen Flake of Farmville, Mrs. Ruby Joyner of Greenville, Mrs. Mary Novak and Mrs. Doris Ande, both of Riverside Calif.; a step-brother, Crude Bradley of Greenville; and one grandchild.

The family requests that in lieu of flowers contributions be made to the Foundation for the Blind.

The family will be at the home of Mrs. Lucy V. Ross from 7-9 p.m. today.

East Carolina Overcomes 6-0 Deficit To Edge Wilmington

RALEIGH— East Carolina rallied from a 6-0 deficit here Sunday to gain a 7-6 win over UNC-Wilmington as centerfielder Robert Wells lined a two-out single to drive in the clinching run.

The Pirates, playing their opening game of the Summer League, actually scored the winning run after failing on an attempted squeeze play that cost ECU its second out. Wells, after missing the squeeze sign and seeing Charlie Smith cut down at the plate, stepped back in and cracked his single down the first base line to score Jack Curlings.

The ECU-Wilmington match-up completed a Sunday doubleheader here and followed UNC-Chapel Hill's 6-5 win over host N.C. State.

ECU saw the Seahawks jump out to a 4-0 lead in the third inning on four hits and a walk, keyed by a two-run single by Tom Jones. Wilmington added two more runs in the fifth inning for the 6-0 margin. Singles by Tim Whitehurst and Paul Murr, coupled with an ECU error and a sacrifice fly, plated the two final runs.

After being shut down through four innings, the Pirates broke through for four runs on four hits and three walks in the fifth frame, knocking out starter Mike Antle. Mark Shank drove in the first run with a double, and singles by Pete Persico and Todd Evans made the score 6-3. Smith then came through with a bases-loaded walk to close the gap to 6-4.

The Pirates put together the winning rally in the seventh. After scoring one run on a wild pitch to make it 6-5, Jack Curlings singled in Todd Hendley to tie the game. Wells then came through with his game-winning single after the missed squeeze play.

Robbie Harper (1-0) picked up the opening win for ECU, pitching two and two-third innings of no-hit, no-run ball, striking out two. Donnie Walker took the loss for Wilmington, now 0-1.

Persico had three hits to lead the Pirate hitting, while Shank added two hits. Whitehead, Murr and Slaughter each had two hits for Wilmington.

ECU, 1-0 after Sunday's win, meets UNC-Chapel Hill here Wednesday in a 7:30 p.m. game at Harrington Field.

Pleasant Colony Proven Not One Of The Greats

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — The balloon of Johnny Campo and his flop-eared running sensation has been exploded by the pounding hooves of a 7-1 shot, Summing, and it is just as well.

It would have been a miscarriage of justice if Pleasant Colony, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, had won the Belmont Stakes Saturday and gone into the realm of thoroughbred immortality with such giants as Whirlaway, Citation and Secretariat.

Pleasant Colony is a fine horse, pock-marked and ungainly as he is, with all the pluck in the world.

But proved not to be the horse that the bombastic Campo made him out to be, and he never was generally accepted as one of the potential greats of the sport.

After all, he had lost to this same Summing in his first career race by 16 lengths and, before his now-broken winning streak began, had four times trailed a non-descript colt named Akureyri, who since has been retired to stud because of injury.

It also is good for the sport that the Triple Crown sweep wasn't accomplished a 12th time, the fourth time in the last eight years.

The achievement, which before Secretariat completed the sweep in 1973, had not been attainable for 25 years.

That's the way it should be. The Triple Crown should not be cheapened by constant repetition. It should stand out as a goal that only the greatest can attain.

This is not intended as a reflection on trainer Campo nor on his gutsy animal, who defied odds and reason to go as far as he has.

Campo is a delight — a fast-talking, boastful product of New York streets who never grew out of his environment nor wanted to.

One of the most successful trainers in the business, with more than 60 stakes victories and $13 million in winnings, he breathed life into what was becoming a mundane story by predicting victory after victory for his colt.

"You can sleep on it," he told all who would listen.

They laughed and said, "Old Johnny — he's a card."

This is an interesting horse, but it's difficult to visualize a statue of him gracing the foyer of some future thoroughbred Hall of Fame. When he's washed down, ribs are detectable pushing against his deep mahogany skin. He has splotches on both flanks, the result of a rash. His ears flop. A late foal — May, 1978 — his body has not yet grown to his bones. They called him "the ugly duckling," — an insult that drives Campo mad.

It probably was an injustice since Pleasant Colony, for all his blemishes, had done more than the other 3-year-olds of the year. He had won the Wood, Kentucky Derby and Preakness and, up to Saturday, fulfilled every Campo boast.

But it is doubtful that the world of racing would ever have accepted him as a true champion. He didn't fit the part.

Jaycees Win Over Optimist

Jaycees defeated Optimist 11-2 Sunday in North State Little League action at Elm Street Park. Pitchers Bruce Koonce and Michael Garris held Optimist to two hits.

Jaycees scored six runs in the first inning. David Lee singled and Carl Willie hit a home run. Michael Garris singled and Mark Coburn walked. Garris scored on Jody Barnes' fielder's choice. Brian Pierce also hit a fielder's choice, and errors allowed Coburn, Barnes and Pierce score.

Optimist scored once in the first inning and once in the third. Jaycees scored four more runs in the second and one run in the fourth.

Leading hitters for Jaycees were David Lee with three singles, and Carl Willie with one single and a homerun.

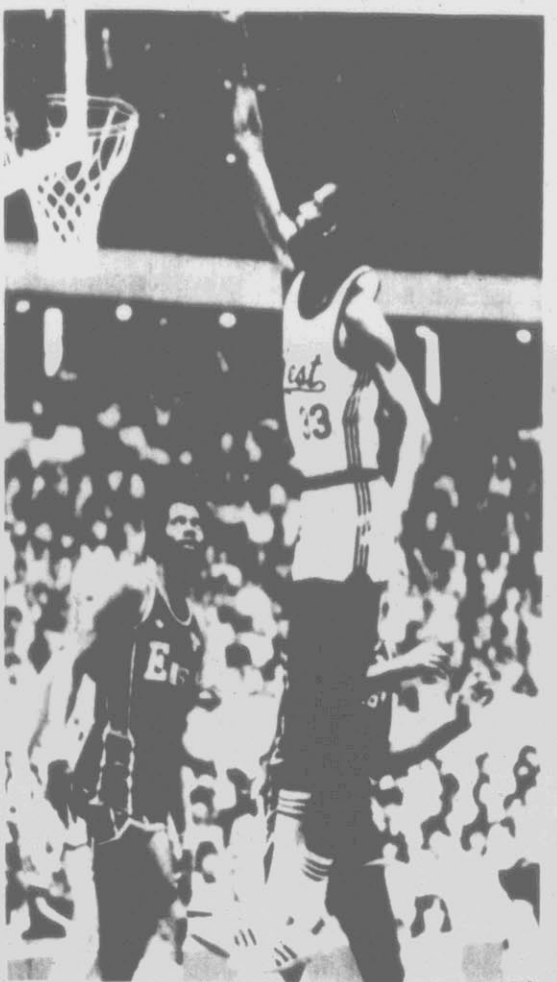

BC Insurance Beats Kiwanis

BC Insurance defeated Kiwanis 8-2 in a Senior Babe Ruth makeup game Sunday night.

Kiwanis scored once in the first inning and once in the second to lead the game. BC Insurance tied the game with two runs in the second and took the lead for good with two runs in the fourth.

Scott Galloway doubled and Terry Smith walked. Both runners moved up on a balk, and Galloway scored on a wild pitch. Smith then scored on Tom Buie's single. BC Insurance scored four more runs in the fifth to make the final score 8-2.

Leading hitters for BC Insurance were Billy Dough with three hits, and Ken Kirkland and Scott Galloway with two hits each.

Baseball Talks Appear To Reflect Some Hope

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A faint ray of optimism seemed to be just under the surface as the mediator in baseball's free-agent compensation negotiations prepared to begin another week of trying to bring the two sides closer together.

"I'm not as pessimistic as I was last week," said Kenneth E. Moffett. "I'm not saying I see the light at the end of the tunnel. Maybe I'm just getting a second wind."

He will need it because nothing has been resolved and a strike by the players remains a very real possibility.

While both sides awaited U.S. District Judge Henry Werker's decision on a National Labor Relations Board petition for an injunction against the owners — a decision could come today — negotiations continued here.

Management and union representatives were summoned by Moffett to a session scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. EDT.

Moffett's revitalization may have come from a proposal made Saturday by Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association. That plan was rejected by the owners, but Ray Grebey, director of baseball's Player Relations Committee, indicated that management at least had given serious consideration to it.

"It was not dealt with summarily or given immediate rejection," Grebey said of the proposal, which called for a pool of professional players from which compensation to the team losing a free agent through the re-entry draft could be drawn. "But, after thorough examination, we do not feel it provides a framework for a settlement."

Miller said he thinks the reason his plan was rejected was that it did not penalize a team signing a free agent. Instead, each major league club would designate an unspecified number of players for the compensation pool. Then teams losing quality free agents could replace those players either with the selection in the amateur draft currently provided or a player from the pool.

A selection from the pool would cost between $20,000 and $40,000, depending on the position in the standings of the team selecting the player.

On Feb. 19, the owners implemented their own compensation plan, which called for direct compensation of a player from the roster of a team signing a free agent. The players have voted to strike over that plan.

It's been this kind of a season for Bruce Berenyi: he's either awful or awesome.

"That was a once-in-a-lifetime game, probably," said Cincinnati catcher Joe Nolan after handling Berenyi's 2-0 one-hit beauty over the Montreal Expos.

The Cincinnati right-hander allowed only a two-out single to Andre Dawson in the fourth inning and a walk to Warren Cromartie in the eighth. The Expos only hit two balls out of the infield — Dawson's single and a fly ball by Tim Lincecum. And Berenyi finished with a classy 10-strikeout, one-walk performance.

Quite a difference from Berenyi's outing two weeks ago against the Los Angeles Dodgers, when he walked seven batters in less than four innings and tossed 15 straight balls at one point.

"I'm not going to try to figure it out," says Berenyi about his up-and-down season.

At one point, the young hurler said he was so frustrated that he had to sit down with his parents and have a long chat with them.

"I've been throwing well in most of my starts recently," Berenyi said. "I've just had control problems."

Of course, Sunday's performance was a tremendous boost to his ego.

"That was the best game I've ever pitched in my life," said the 26-year-old Berenyi, who had a two-hitter earlier this season. "The thing I'm really thinking about is the one walk I gave up. I'm not really disappointed I didn't get the no-hitter. The Expos hit some balls hard that didn't get through."

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Philadelphia 7, Atlanta 5; Los Angeles 7, Chicago 0; San Diego 5, St. Louis 1; Pittsburgh 3, San Francisco 2 and New York 3, Houston 1.

Berenyi, 5-2, pitched to only 28 batters, one over the limit, because Cromartie was erased on a double play. He posted his first victory since May 14.

Nolan gave Berenyi all the support he needed when he hit a solo homer off Ray Burris, 3-5, to give the Reds a 1-0 lead in the second. A throwing error by Burris led to an unearned Cincinnati run in the third.

Phillies 7, Braves 5

Pete Rose drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly, closing in on the all-time NL hit record, as Philadelphia defeated Atlanta. Rose batted in one of three fifth-inning Philadelphia runs with a single that left him four hits behind Stan Musial's NL career record of 3,630. Rose's sacrifice fly came in the sixth, when the Phillies scored two more runs.

Sparky Lyle, 5-1, who replaced starter Nino Espinosa after four innings, got the victory. Ron Reed pitched the final three innings to earn his fourth save. Gaylord Perry, 5-4, was the loser.

Dodgers 7, Cubs 0

Dusty Baker slugged a two-run homer and double to back the six-hit pitching of Bob Welch as Los Angeles beat Chicago. Welch, 4-3, struck out a career high 11 and walked none in turning in his first complete game of the season. He also sacrificed twice, setting up a run each time.

Baker hit his fourth homer in the first inning off loser

Randy Martz, 2-5, after Ken Landreaux had singled. Baker also doubled in the third, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Ron Cey's grounder.

"He had a bone spur in his right elbow this spring and we thought he might have to have an operation and we might have to go without him this year," said Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda of Welch. "We brought him back slowly, we nursed him along. The last time he pitched I told our writers I thought he had finally come around, and he proved it today."

Padres 5, Cardinals 1

Gene Richards socked a three-run homer and drove in another run with a single as San Diego beat St. Louis behind Chris Welsh's eight-hitter. Richards' blast climaxed a third-inning uprising, in which the Cardinals aided the San Diego cause by committing two of their three errors.

Welsh struck out five and didn't walk a batter in one of the strongest performances of his young major league career.

"It was a good ball, down low in the strike zone," said Richards of the pitch he hit for his third home run, off Bob Shirley, 4-3. "That was the only place I was going to hit it. I had enough pop on it, and I was able to get it out."

Pirates 3, Giants 2

Bill Madlock's solo home run in the sixth inning lifted Pittsburgh over San Francisco. Winner Eddie Solomon, 5-3, got help in the seventh from reliever Enrique Romo as the Pirates won their second game in the three-game series with the Giants. It was Romo's eighth save.

Vida Blue, 5-5, was the loser despite yielding only three hits and striking out five. Only one of the three runs off Blue was earned.

Pittsburgh first scored in the first inning on Mike Easler's two-run double. San Francisco scored both of its runs on homers, Darrell Evans' in the fifth and Joe Morgan's in the sixth.

Mets 3, Astros 1

Mike Scott and Neil Allen combined on a six-hitter and Scott knocked in a run with a seventh-inning sacrifice fly as New York beat Houston and handed Bob Knepper his first defeat of the season after five victories.

Scott, 3-4, struck out one and walked one, giving up Houston's only run in the ninth on Danny Heep's RBI single before Allen got the last three outs to record his sixth save.

Dave Kingman hit a solo homer, his 13th, for the Mets in the eighth inning.

AYDEN — Friday was a special day for Joseph Gillahan of Greenville. The Ayden Golf and Country Club presented him with a plaque recognizing him as "Outstanding in Athletics."

Gillahan, 23, has been active in Greenville Special Olympics for six years. Last year he won the basketball competition in Pitt County and went on to compete at the state level. At the State Special Olympic Games in Asheville, Joseph earned a bronze medal for third place in basketball.

Basketball is only one of the many sports

Gillahan participates in. He has been presented ribbons and medals in such events as bowling, track and softball. But Gillahan says his favorite sports are swimming, bicycle riding and golf.

Gillahan, a student in the Adult Developmental Activity Program, is also an active member of Trinity Free Will Baptist Church. He enjoys his church youth group and often participates in church sports activities, such as bowling.

Sports are an important part of Gillahan's life, according to his family. They have increased his involvement with others and he has made many close friends.

The New York Yankees have a unique strategy for their starting pitchers — go five or six innings and then give 'em the "1-2 Punch."

The Seattle Mariners don't have the old "1-2 punch" — but they do have Julio Cruz.

Ron Davis and Rich Gossage, the men the Yanks call the "1-2 punch" combined with starter Ron Guidry on a six-hitter Sunday as New York posted its seventh straight victory, beating Chicago 3-1.

"You hate to see those guys," said White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa, who set it in 1921 with the Philadelphia A's, and Nellie Fox, who equalled it in 1952 with the Chicago White Sox.

"I didn't know anything about it (the fielding record) until they announced it on the loudspeaker," Cruz said. "After they told me about it, I was hoping every ball would be hit to me."

Ironically, Cruz has been thinking about breaking a different record — Kansas City Royals outfielder Willie Wilson's AL standard of 32 straight stolen bases. He is one shy of that mark after an 11th-inning theft that set up Seattle's winning run.

Cruz ignited the winning rally with a one-out single and eventually scored on Tom Paciorek's one-out single.

Cleveland tied the game in the ninth on Ron Hassey's two-run single. The Indians also got RBI hits from Rick Manning and Jorge Orta.

Seattle runs came on a two-run single by Jeff Burroughs, an RBI hit by Bruce Bochte and Gary Gray's 12th home run of the year.

isn't as overpowering as the Davis-Gossage combination. But the Mariners' second baseman quietly established an American League record Sunday, handling 18 chances flawlessly in the first nine innings of Seattle's 11-inning, 5-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Cruz, who handled 19 chances in the game without an error, fell one short of the league mark of 20 in a game set by Willie Randolph of the Yankees in a 19-inning contest in 1976.

The old record for nine innings of 17 chances without an error was shared by Jimmy Dykes, who set it in 1921 with the Philadelphia A's, and Nellie Fox, who equalled it in 1952 with the Chicago White Sox.

"I didn't know anything about it (the fielding record) until they announced it on the loudspeaker," Cruz said. "After they told me about it, I was hoping every ball would be hit to me."

In other AL games, Detroit blanked Minnesota 3-0, Kansas City whipped Milwaukee 7-1, Baltimore downed California 4-1, Oakland edged Boston 4-3 in 11 innings and Texas bombed Toronto 9-0.

Orioles 4, Angels 1
Dennis Martinez fired a six-hitter and John Lowenstein and Eddie Murray cracked homers as Baltimore defeated California.

"I'm really happy with the way I've been throwing," said Martinez, who spent two stretches on the disabled list last year with an ailing shoulder.

The victory was the Orioles second in their last eight games. They remained a game behind first-place New York in the AL East.

A's 4, Red Sox 3, 11 innings
Dwayne Murphy clubbed a one-out 11th inning homer as Oakland, which stayed alive on Tony Armas' two-out, two-run home run in the bottom of the ninth, edged Boston, handing reliever Mark Clear his first loss in eight decisions.

"I've never seen this team give up yet," said Murphy. "We were all sure Tony could tie it up."

Reliever Dave Heaverlo, 1-0, got the victory. Glenn Hoffman hit his first home run of the year for Boston.

Royals 7, Brewers 1
Lee May, making a rare appearance in the starting lineup, capped a three-run third inning with a two-run double and George Brett fueled a Kansas City attack with three hits as the Royals downed Milwaukee.

"Lee has always been a good RBI man and was always a great clutch hitter at Baltimore," said Royals Manager Jim Frey, who started May in place of regular first baseman Willie Aikens.

"His average with men in scoring positions was always about 200 points higher than his other average. We know he is not the Lee May of a couple of years ago but we believe he can help us."

It was only the seventh start of the year for May, who is batting .333 and has driven in seven runs on eleven hits.

Tigers 3, Twins 0
Milt Wilcox scattered five hits and Detroit scored three times in the seventh inning in blanking Minnesota and posting its fourth straight victory.

Wilcox, who admits he has trouble against the Twins, struck out three and walked two.

"Maybe the fact that they were in last place made me bear down a little harder because I know we've got to win all the games against teams that are struggling," Wilcox said.

Rangers 9, Blue Jays 0
Danny Darwin fired a four-hitter, Buddy Bell blasted a grand slam home run and Al Oliver cracked four hits as Texas bombed Toronto.

The triumph gave the Rangers a three-game sweep of the Blue Jays and kept them a game behind Oakland in the AL West. Darwin, 7-4, struck out nine and walked four as the Blue Jays dropped their seventh straight.

Mittleman Is Again Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — Stu Mittleman won the New York Invitational 100-mile run for the second straight year, crossing the finish line in 13 hours, 11 seconds Sunday.

Mittleman, a 30-year-old physical education teacher at Queens College, fell short of the American record of 12:54.31, set by Jose Cortez in 1971.

Cahit Yeter of New York was second in 14:08.10, while Nancy Sheehy of New York, the only woman in the field, completed the race in 22:05.38.

Frazier Sold To Columbus Club

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals have sold right-hander George Frazier, a 26-year-old farmhand to Columbus of the International League for an undisclosed amount.

Frazier, who had been out-righted to Springfield of the American Association prior to the 1981 season, had a 1-2 record for that club and 3.09 earned run average. He was 1-4 for St. Louis in 1980 with a 2.74 ERA.

Bjorn Borg Takes Sixth Title At French Open Championship

By CAROLYN LESH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Bjorn Borg's record sixth title at the French Open tennis championship was marked the most difficult final he had ever played on the red clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium.

"I think the big problem was that we play kind of similar games," the Swedish star said Sunday after his 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1 victory over Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl, the 21-year-old who is ranked fifth in the world.

The 3-hour, 13-minute match was the first time Borg had failed to take a straight-set victory this year in the $611,000 tournament, the first event in the Grand Slam of tennis.

"I knew it was going to be a difficult match before it started," said Borg, the world's top-ranked player. "I don't know if this was the most difficult match I've ever played, but it was the toughest final I've ever played here."

In rallies that lasted 30 and 40 shots, Borg kept his patience.

"He just played well on the big points," said Lendl, who has called Borg the greatest clay court player in the history of tennis. "I did my best. I tried the hardest I could."

Cubs Bring Up A Left-Hander

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs have brought left-handed pitcher Willie Hernandez up from their Triple A farm club in Iowa and optioned outfielder Scott Thompson to the Iowa team, the National League club announced.

The changes were announced Sunday.

Hernandez, 26, played in spring training with the Cubs but failed to make the roster. He was 3-5 with a 4.22 ERA this season at Iowa. Thompson played in 38 games and was batting .178 this year for the Cubs.

Only 4 Shy Of Musial Record

ATLANTA (AP) — Pete Rose had one single in five at-bats during the Phillies' 7-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves, leaving him four shy of Stan Musial's National League career hit record of 3,630 today.

Rose flied to center field in the first inning and grounded out in the third before collecting his 3,626th career hit, an RBI single in the fifth. He also had a sacrifice fly in the sixth and flied to center in the eighth.

Lifters Chosen 'Outstanding'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cal Schake and Kevin Winter were named the outstanding lifters at the 1981 U.S. Weightlifting Federation National Championships, which concluded here Sunday.

Fans Will Pick Their Singers

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music fans get their chance to pick their favorite singers tonight in the 15th annual Music City News Cover Awards.

The show will be syndicated live to most of the country's television markets from the Grand Ole Opry House from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. CDT. These awards are the only country music awards voted by fans.

Winners in the 14 categories are picked in two rounds of voting by readers of the Music City News, a Nashville-based monthly music publication.

Marty Robbins, who has resumed his career after suffering a heart attack earlier this year, has led the balloting so far by reaching finalist standing in seven of the 14 categories.

He is a finalist for male artist of the year, musician of the year, top comedy act, best album of the year for "With Love" and best single record for "An Occasional Rose." The Marty Robbins trio is a finalist for vocal group of the year and the Marty Robbins band is a finalist for band of the year.

Other finalists for top male vocalists are George Jones, Eddie Rabbit, Conway Twitty and Don Williams. Up for female vocalist of the year are Emmylou Harris, Loretta Lynn, Barbara Mandrell, Anne Murray and Dolly Parton.

Finalists for best album of the year are "Coal Miner's Daughter," the movie soundtrack, "I Am What I Am" by Jones, "I Believe in You" by Williams, "Tenth Anniversary" by the Statler Brothers and "With Love" by Robbins.

NEW YORK (AP) — A storybook show business fable and the haunting tale of a man obsessed with another's talent grabbed Broadway's highest honors at the 35th Tony Awards presentation.

"42nd Street" was named best musical and "Amadeus" was chosen best play of the season during the nationally televised awards ceremony Sunday night. "The Pirates of Penzance," a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, won a Tony for best revival.

Of three actresses better known for movies or rock singing, Lauren Bacall won an award and Elizabeth Taylor and Linda Ronstadt didn't.

Miss Bacall won as best actress in a musical, playing a TV newswoman in "Woman of the Year."

Miss Ronstadt is the ingenue in "The Pirates of Penzance." Miss Taylor, who presented the Tony for best musical, said during the evening's last awards presentation that appearing on Broadway for the first time in "The Little Foxes" is "the most exciting experience of my life." She added, "This isn't an acceptance speech," and giggled. She giggled again about mispronouncing some of the names of producers of nominated musicals.

"Amadeus" was the night's big winner. Peter Hall won for directing it. Ian McKellen for playing court composer Salieri, and John Bury for designing sets and lighting. Author Peter Shaf-

Rose" by Robbins, "I Believe in You" by Williams, "He Stopped Loving Her Today" by Jones, "I'd Just Love to Lay You Down" by Twitty and "Could I Have This Dance?" by Anne Murray.

—Best Score, Musical: "Woman of the Year," John Kander, Fred Ebb.
—Best Featured Actor, Play: Brian Backer, "The Floating Light Bulb."
—Best Featured Actress, Play: Swoosie Kurtz, "Fifth of July."
—Best Featured Actor, Musical: Hinton Battle, "Sophisticated Ladies."
—Best Featured Actress, Musical: Marilyn Cooper, "Woman of the Year."
—Best Choreography, Musical: Gower Champion, "42nd Street."
—Best Scene Design: John Bury, "Amadeus."
—Best Costume Design: Willa Kim, "Sophisticated Ladies."
—Best Lighting: John Bury, "Amadeus."

fer said, later in the evening. "The play is about a man's great, obsessive desire to be an artist — a composer. I mean Salieri; Mozart was an artist. It's to Mozart I bow my head tonight. I've been privileged to be able to celebrate in a play something that cannot pass away, the wonder and consolation of Mozart's music."

Shaffer said he got the idea for the play from the rumor that Mozart, on his deathbed, accused Salieri of poisoning him. Winning the Tony, Shaffer said, "is enormously encouraging. I just want to get back to a desk and start another play."

Kevin Kline, swashbuckling as the pirate king in "The Pirates of Penzance," won the Tony for best actor in a musical. The show's director, Wilford Leach, also won a Tony.

Jane Lapotaire, making her Broadway debut in "Piaf," portraying the late French singer Edith Piaf, won a Tony as best actress in a play. She said "Piaf" started in a theater in England which "seats 120 people in plastic chairs." Brian Backer, youngest winner this year, at 24, also making his Broadway debut, won a supporting actor Tony for what is considered "the Woody Allen part" in that writer's "The Floating Light Bulb."

Swoosie Kurtz won the supporting actress Tony for her role as a would-be recording star in "Fifth of July." Musical supporting actress and actor awards went to dancer Hinton Battle in "Duke Ellington's Sophisticated Ladies" and Marilyn Cooper, a frumpy housewife in "Woman of the Year." That musical also was named as having best book, by Peter Stone, and best score, by John Kander and Fred Ebb.

Gower Champion, who died the day "42nd Street" opened last August, was named best choreographer by the 618 members of the Broadway theater community eligible to vote for Tonys. Gregg Champion, his brother Blake with him, accepted their father's Tony.

"42nd Street," based on the movie classic, is about an aspiring actress who is elevated from understudy to stardom when the show's leading lady breaks a leg.

Willa Kim won a Tony for costumes, evocative of Cotton Club shows, for "Duke Ellington's Sophisticated Ladies."

A special Tony went to Lena Horne, now performing a one-woman show on Broadway, "Lena Horne: the Lady and her Music." Smiling radiantly, she said, "I'm just so happy I'm getting all these flowers while I've still got my teeth." Another special Tony, for the Trinity Square Repertory Company, was accepted by director Adrian Hall. He said they began 17 years ago, thinking a permanent ensemble presenting plays might be possible, based in Providence, R.I., and touring.

The Tony Awards are presented by the League of New York Theaters and Producers. They are named for the late Antoinette Perry, who was chairman of the American Theater Wing during World War II.

Progress In Long Strike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Weekend negotiations between the striking Writers Guild of America and major motion picture and television producers went a long way toward ending the eight-week-old strike, spokesmen on both sides of the dispute said.

However, still to be resolved when talks resume Tuesday are the difficult home video provisions of a new contract — the major stumbling block to a settlement so far.

But Writers Guild spokesman Gary Ellingsworth said negotiations were "going very well," and Billy Hunt, who represents the producers, was even more optimistic.

"With any luck we'll have it (the strike) resolved this week," he said.

A breakthrough with the writers could reduce the likelihood of a strike on July 1 by the powerful Directors Guild of America, which currently is in negotiations with producers.

The major issue in the writers' walkout, which began April 11, has been the residuals to be paid for made-for-TV shows, videocassettes and discs. The writers had been asking 4.5 percent of the sales of pay TV shows after producers recoup certain costs.

The major producers have offered 1.5 percent of the revenues from pay TV programs after they have played 10 days within a year on all pay TV systems. For cassettes and discs, producers have offered the same percentage after 100,000 units have been sold.

It was not revealed Sunday if either side's position had changed.

The Writers Guild has already struck a bargain with a number of independent producers, including Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show."

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ 2♦ Pass 3♦
Dbl Pass ?
* Preemptive jump overcall.
What action do you take?
A.—Despite your initial pass and the fact that you are vulnerable, partner wants you to bid at the three-level. Obviously, he has considerable extra values and you have a very good hand for him. You certainly want to play in game in one of the major suits, or clubs, but you can't be sure which. Bid four diamonds. That asks partner to pick a suit, and you will be happy with whichever he selects.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9862 ♥J10753 ♦K98 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1♦ Dbl 3♦ Pass
Pass Dbl Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Even though you could have nothing, partner is forcing you to bid at the three-level. You have some useful values, especially the singleton club, so a bid of three hearts doesn't do your hand justice. The choice is between four hearts or a cue-bid of four clubs. We slightly prefer the former. At a heart contract, you might be able to get rid of a spade loser on partner's diamonds.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South, with 70 on score, you hold:
♥7 ♥K965 ♦AJ92 ♣AK76
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3♦ Pass Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—The opponents could be stealing from you, but there is no safe way for you to find out. Pass. Ideally, you would like to make a penalty double, but that action would be for takeout and partner would surely bid some number of spades. Be satisfied with a small profit and don't risk a large loss. Bear in mind that partner couldn't act over three clubs though he is surely short in that suit. Therefore, he may be very weak.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K8 ♥AK72 ♦A7 ♣K10965
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♦ 3♦ 3♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—The auction has gotten uncomfortably high, and you are going to have difficulty describing your strong hand. A bid of four hearts offers the most flexibility. If partner returns to spades, he will have a good suit and you can afford to cue-bid diamonds at your next turn. If he passes, you will probably be in the right spot. And if he supports either of your suits, you should probably take a shot at slam.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠872 ♦KJ107652 ♠984
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1♦ 2♥ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Don't attempt to rescue partner from his presumed folly. Pass. Partner has overcalled at the two-level, vulnerable, so he should know what he's doing. Three diamonds would be acceptable if you could guarantee that partner would pass, but he will probably bid again. Should partner get doubled, you can then institute a rescue operation.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K10872 ♥6 ♦A9 ♣AKQ62
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass 1♦ Dbl Pass
2♥ Pass 2♣ Pass
4♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Despite the fact that partner passed originally, we cannot conceive of a hand that he could hold that doesn't offer a reasonable play for slam. We would cue-bid five diamonds, but six spades is a reasonable alternative. All you need from partner is the ace-king of hearts and queen-jack of spades to virtually assure a slam, and that is certainly not too much to ask for in view of his bidding.

FOCUS

Oil Power

When President Jose Lopez Portillo visits the U.S. today he comes not just as a neighbor, but as the head of an emerging oil giant. During the past five years, Mexico has gone from the 15th to the 5th largest oil producer in the world. Only the Soviet Union, Saudi Arabia, the U.S. and Iraq produce more oil. Mexico has known reserves of about 60 billion barrels of oil, compared with about 150 billion for Saudi Arabia. But experts say that the Mexicans may have another 200 billion barrels in the ground. Because Mexico is limiting production it may still be producing oil 60 years from now, long after other oil-rich nations of today have run dry. U.S. energy needs and Mexico's energy wealth will be factors in today's meetings.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY NOTICE OF HEARING DOCKET NO. WU-108

BEFORE THE NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Western Union Telegraph Company, Washington, District of Columbia filed revised tariffs with the North Carolina Utilities Commission for authority to increase its rates and charges for Telex services, Teletypewriter Exchange Services (TWX) and Infomaster Services (TCS) to its North Carolina subscribers. The revised tariffs would produce an increase in gross annual revenues of approximately $44,456. The proposed rate changes are as follows:

TELEX SERVICE		Present Rate	Proposed Rate
Subscriber-dialed calls
Usage rate		9 pulses/minute	9 pulses/minute
Rate per pulse		$.025	$.0375
Infomaster (TCS)
TCS-Telex
Service charge per minute		.10	.12
Usage charge per 1/10 min.		.0225	.034
TCS-TWX
Usage charge per minute		.55	.80
Charge for collect, per message		.05	.25
TWX SERVICE			Charge for each minute or fraction thereof
		Present	Proposed
Local calls		.20	.41
Interchange calls
	Rate Mileage
	Over	Up to and Including
	0	40	.30
	41	124	.40
	125	355	.44
	356	550	.48
Infomaster (TCS)
TCS-TWX		Present Rate	Proposed Rate
Service charge per minute		.10	.12
Usage charge per minute		.35	.41
TCS-Telex
Usage charge per minute		.85	1.20
Charge for collect, per message		.05	.25

In addition to the changes shown above, Western Union proposed the elimination of 60 word-per-minute TWX service and operated-assisted collect and conference TWX calls. The filing also provides for deletion from the North Carolina tariff of certain rates and provisions, such as equipment rates, which are included in tariffs filed with the Federal Communications Commission and for changes in the availability of Telex Service.

FURTHER DETAILS

The details of these proposed adjustments can be obtained at the Business offices of Western Union Telegraph Company in Charlotte, Fayetteville, Greensboro, Raleigh and Winston-Salem or at the office of the Chief Clerk of the Commission, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina, where a copy of the filing is available for review by any interested person. The Commission will consider additional or alternative rate proposals which were not included in the original application and may order rate increases or decreases which differ from those proposed by the Company. Upon request the Commission will place copies of all trial documents in centrally located public libraries. The material may be copied without prohibition at the library.

HEARING SCHEDULE

The Utilities Commission has suspended the revised tariffs, has set the filing for investigation and hearing and has required Western Union to comply with all provisions of law and Commission Rules in support of its filing to show that the proposed increases are just and reasonable.

The hearing on the matter has been scheduled for Tuesday, July 28, 1981, at 9:30 a.m., in Commission Hearing Room 537, Dobbs Building, 430 North Salisbury Street, Raleigh, North Carolina. The Commission will begin the hearing with the testimony of public witnesses and then proceed with the testimony and cross-examination of Western Union, the Public Staff and intervenors.

COMMENTS, APPEARANCES, INTERVENTION

The Commission requires that Western Union inform its customers of the following procedures by which comments regarding the filing can be made part of the record of the case upon which the Commission must base its decision. Persons desiring to intervene in the matter as formal parties of record should file a motion under North Carolina Utilities Commission Rules R1-5, and R1-19. Persons desiring to present testimony for the record should appear at the public hearing. Persons desiring to send written statements to the Commission should submit their statements prior to the hearing and should include any information which those persons wish to be considered by the Commission in its investigation of the matter.

The contents of letters and petitions will be received in the official file as statements of position. Specific facts, however, will be considered on the basis of testimony presented at the public hearing. Intervention or statements should be addressed to the Chief Clerk, North Carolina Utilities Commission, P.O. Box 991, Raleigh, North Carolina 27602.

The Public Staff of the Utilities Commission through the Executive Director is required by statute to represent the using and consuming public in proceedings before the Commission. Statements to the Executive Director should be addressed to:

The Honorable Robert Fischbach
Executive Director
PUBLIC STAFF-North Carolina Utilities Commission
Post Office Box 991
Raleigh, North Carolina 27602

The Attorney General is also authorized to represent the using and consuming public in proceedings before the Commission. Statements to the Attorney General should be addressed to:

The Honorable Rufus L. Edmisten
Attorney General
c/o Utilities Commission
Post Office Box 829
Raleigh, North Carolina 27602

ISSUED BY ORDER OF THE COMMISSION.
