Gas Tax Vote Again Delayed In House

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Members of the state House Finance Committee today forced another delay in voting on Gov. Jim Hunt's proposal to raise gasoline taxes and appeared hesitant to support a compromise plan.

Before the committee meeting, chairman Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, said legislators appeared to be lining up behind a compromise measure to eliminate Hunt's proposed rebate to taxpayers and shaving a quarter of a cent from the gas tax increase.

The state Senate already has approved the plan to increase gasoline taxes by 3 cents a gallon.

But at the suggestion of Rep. Charles Holt, D-Cumberland, the panel voted 29-25 today to hear all alternatives for bailing out the ailing Highway Fund before voting on Hunt's package. They left Hunt's proposal hanging until the committee meets again, next Tuesday. The group spent an hour and a half discussing those alternatives — including varying amounts of increased taxes on cigarettes, alcohol, coffee and tea — and adjourned before voting on any of them.

Quinn also had scheduled for debate the gasoline tax package and proposals to raise taxes on cigarettes and liquor.

Hunt has proposed a 50 percent increase in taxes on alcoholic beverages as one way to make up for money lost to the highway program from transfers in his tax package.

But Quinn and other legislative leaders are suggesting that a smaller alcohol tax increase of 25 percent stands a better chance of passage.

Leaders also are suggesting that a cigarette tax increase of 3 cents per pack might win approval.

Rep. Allen Barbee, D-Nash, today said that Senate leaders had agreed to support removing the rebate from Hunt's package and lowering the gas tax increase to 2 1/4 cents, making the state tax an even 12 cents.

"All of us had to give," he said. "This is just what everybody had to do."

But Barbee predicted the votes on increasing the cigarette and alcohol tax would be closer. He said he didn't believe Hunt's plan would lose support before the committee looks at it again next Tuesday, but he acknowledged "we had hoped to get it out before the weekend."

"I think we'll gain really, because by giving everybody a chance (to explain their alternative plan) it will leave a better taste in their mouth," Barbee said.

Holt said the vote to discuss the alternatives was meant as a sign to Hunt supporters that House members do not want any one plan thrust upon them. Instead, he said, committee members want to write their own plan.

Hunt's legislative liaison, Zeb Alley, said he was disappointed there was no vote on Hunt's plan but he said that did not mean the support for the package was not there.

Seek Link To Inflation Curb

Demos Maneuver On Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats are seeking support for a compromise proposal to implement the final installment of President Reagan's three-year tax-cut plan only if inflation is contained. But the president's tax advisers, contending that they'll get the votes for their package anyway, are having no part of such a plan.

"We would not go for any" proposal that does not guarantee the third-year reduction, John E. Chapoton, assistant treasury secretary for tax policy, told the House Ways and Means Committee on Wednesday.

Such a provision, he added, would remove the certainty that Reagan insists must be provided for investors and businesses.

"There's a lot of agreement up here" for such a "trigger" on the third-year tax cut, Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, told Chapoton. "But it seems like you'd rather go for broke."

Chapoton rejected Pickle's assessment as the committee began writing its version of a tax-cut bill. No votes were taken, although some might occur by Friday on Reagan's plan for cutting business taxes by allowing faster deductions for buildings and machinery.

Chapoton spent most of Wednesday explaining Reagan's revised tax-cut plan, first to the Senate Finance Committee, which generally supports it, and then to Ways and Means, which does not.

The Finance Committee agreed that any reduction in taxes on capital gains, the profits from the sale of assets, should be retroactive to Wednesday. That idea, suggested by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, was aimed at eliminating incentives for investors to delay their decisions until Oct. 1, when the bulk of the individual tax cuts would take effect.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the Ways and Means chairman, told Chapoton that Democrats who control his panel insist that more tax relief be directed toward the working poor. And he repeated the Democrats' position that a tax cut be for a maximum of two years.

Rep. Barber B. Conable of New York, senior GOP member on the committee, said the president and other Republicans have a program "to give the American people a real tax cut — not an illusory one." Conable said anything less than a three-year cut would not do that.

Rostenkowski said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" show today that the Democrats' biggest asset is their insistence on targeting the working poor for the bulk of a tax cut. Reagan, he said, would subsidize business while taking benefits away from Social Security recipients, and "I don't believe a majority of the American people would buy that."

Arab League Mapping Joint Response To Raid On Iraq Nuclear Plant

By STEVE K. HINDY
Associated Press Writer
BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — The Arab League began an emergency conference today to map out a joint response to Israel's surprise attack that destroyed an Iraqi nuclear reactor, the Iraqi News Agency reported.

It said the session would "discuss the dimensions of the Zionist aggression on Iraqi nuclear installations and the deterrent measures which must be taken to stop the Zionist aggression on the Arab nation."

Although the closed-door meeting was billed as a foreign ministers' conference, at least two members, Syria and Libya, sent lower ranking representatives. Syria, which has long feuded with Iraq and broke diplomatic relations after the outbreak of the Iran-Iraq war in September, sent its deputy foreign minister Farouk Al Chare.

Iraq had announced that all 21 league members were expected to send delegations to the meeting. Egypt's membership in the organization was suspended after President Anwar Sadat signed a peace treaty with Israel in 1979.

Western and Third World diplomats in the Iraqi capital say the Baghdad regime will seek "practical" economic sanctions rather than military retaliation against Israel or an oil embargo against its allies.

The United States, which supplied the F-15 and F-16 fighters Israel used in Sunday's lightning raid, is likely to draw strong condemnation from the Arab foreign ministers.

"There is a limit to what they (Iraq) can do in the way of retaliation, so I think they will try to get as broad a front of international political condemnation of Israel as they can," said a Third World diplomat, whose country condemned the Israeli raid as a "criminal act."

The diplomat, who said he was speaking privately and asked that his name not be used, speculated that the Iraqis want to gain the support of the United States and the Soviet Union against Israel, and want to avoid polarizing the issue along superpower lines.

However, he added, if the United States does not support Arab League proposals against Israel at the United Nations then there may be a move toward more radical measures against Israel and the United States, possibly including an oil embargo.

Six-hundred and fifty Pitt County high school seniors received their diplomas and a hearty handshake signifying the end of an era in their lives Wednesday night under clear skies during graduation ceremonies.

"A challenge not for the future, but for today," was issued to graduating seniors of D.H. Conley High School by selected speaker David Adams.

He urged his friends to move out and make waves, make their own decisions and seek out their dreams. He added "Even if you never succeed, you will have the satisfaction of being able to say, 'I tried,' or 'I did my best,' instead of 'I wish I had tried' or 'I wish I had done something about that.'"

Susan Dunn of D.H. Conley also spoke during the program on "The Road Not Taken," a popular poem of Robert Frost. She urged her fellow 190 graduates to take a different road. For those people, scientists, explorers, philosophers and religious and moral leaders are the people who veered from the beaten path. "These individuals did not stumble onto their paths by accident, rather they followed their convictions and dared to reach for the unknown," Miss Dunn concluded with a challenge of her own — for graduates to choose a less travelled path that will make all the difference.

Farmville Central seniors also had their moment last night on the school athletic field. Student Debbie Gowen told her fellow graduates that "there is always more to learn by listening to others even if their opinion differs from our own. It does not matter if each and everyone of us does not become famous or leave a lasting mark on the world, because each of us will be a vital part of the future."

Susan Holsenback joined Miss Gowen in addressing Farmville Central graduates and called her friends' attention to their individual achievements. "Mr. Cotten (F.C. principal) will call each of us by name, not by number and not as a group."

"For whom does the bell toll," she quoted. "It tolls for thee."

At North Pitt High School's ceremonies, held in the school gymnasium, Fran Lunsford recognized the most important things education and life give — "We have learned the joy of loving and being loved," she told the class of 162 graduates. She noted that she and all her friends have learned many lessons in compassion, and life's ups and downs, and that these qualities are an invaluable key to everyone's future success.

Tammy Lee also spoke during North Pitt ceremonies. She pointed out that "the fundamental principles and precepts of law have been expounded, but daily in our complex civilization new questions arise for which answers must be found, more wrongs to be righted, and more crimes to be condemned."

"Members of the Class of 1981, we are the hope of the world," she said in closing.

Seniors of Ayden-Grifton heard speaker Regina Hardee, tell her fellow graduates what they made of their lives was largely up to them. "We should not be too timid and squeamish about our actions, because all life is an experiment and the more experiments we make the better." She thanked those who had done so much planning, and caring during the past 12 years that made graduation possible for the 147 students.

"By using patience, and carefully weighing out a situation we can produce a solution easily," said Patsy Potter, Ayden-Grifton student speaker. "If none of these work, we can just back up ten yards and punt."

Scholarship Goes To Grad

AYDEN — Ayden-Grifton senior Regina Raye Hardee is this year's recipient of "The Daily Reflector" Scholarship. The scholarship is awarded on alternate years to a student from the county, and on other years to a Greenville student.

Regina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ray Hardee of Ayden, is active in school and church activities.

She has been a member of the Keywanette Club for four years, serving as secretary and president and receiving the club's outstanding service award. She is also a member of the National Honor Society and was the society's president in her senior year. For three years she was a member of the Student Government Association and served as treasurer and secretary.

Other school activities include membership in the Math and Pep Clubs, consultant to the Debate Team, and copy editor on the yearbook staff.

In church work at Black Jack F.W.B. Church, she is active in "Sugar Frosted Saints," a church youth group, sings with the church choir, teaches a kindergarten class and served as secretary for the Vacation Bible School.

REGINA RAYE HARDEE

Street Lights No Cheap Item

(Editor's Note: This is the sixth in a series of articles prepared by the city on the 1981 budget.)

The cost of providing street lighting and traffic control lights is expected to cost local citizens some $300,000 in fiscal year 1981-82, and city officials are concerned about meeting the demand for additional street lights.

Costs related to street lighting and traffic control devices have accelerated, and they are expected to go even higher. City Manager Ed Wyatt noted, "Energy costs affect us in every department, and we are hurting in the cost of electric power we consume through our street lights and traffic control lights."

He said the city pays a fixed charge to Greenville Utilities for each street light based on wattage, life of the pole and lamp, and maintenance expense. The city also pays GUC a fee each month to maintain traffic control signals.

He said the city is making an effort to reduce the cost of street lighting and traffic control devices without affecting service levels. The Public Works Department has assumed responsibility for replacing lamphoods in traffic signals and this should result in a savings of $5,000 annually.

In addition, in order to reduce energy consumption, traffic signals in the Central Business District are placed on flashing at 11 p.m. and every other street light along First Street downtown is turned off after 1 a.m.

Wyatt said the cost of installing a street light usually runs from $100-$150 annually, depending on the type of light installed. The city averages receiving about one request weekly for additional street lighting.

"Despite the increase in city expenses, the city has traditionally set a high standard for municipal street lighting and reasonable requests for new lights will continue to be evaluated properly and every effort made to take care of problems with street lights," Wyatt said.

He added that citizens who feel they have a problem with the lights on their street can make their requests known to the city by calling Gail Meeks, ombudsperson, Citizens Concern System, at 752-4137, Ext. 224.

TRIBUTE

My family would be homeless if it were not for the dedicated volunteer activity of the members of the Eastern Pines and Simpson Fire Departments and of my neighbors, Chris Sumrell and Betty Whitfield. I had a grease fire Saturday morning which quickly went into the attic. Summerell went in immediately and put out the fire around the cookstove and Ms. Whitfield helped calm me and my children. The fire departments were there in five minutes flat and put out the attic fire. The insurance adjuster told me that only a couple of minutes more may have made the difference in whether our damages were big or total. I think tribute should be paid all these people. Debbie Davis.

KEVIN-HAROLD FEEDBACK

Several projects at North Pitt High School have netted more than $800 for the relief funds for the families of Kevin Harrell and Harold Battle, both North Pitt students and both oncology transplant patients at Johns Hopkins Hospital. The event that was probably the most fun was students' buying chances to throw pies at teachers, guidance counselor, Mrs. Rebekah Crandol, reported. She said the money was equally divided between the families of the two boys.

Wedding Vows Said In Farmville Church

FARMVILLE — Brenda Joyce Harris and Billy Roy Taylor, both of Greenville, were united in marriage Saturday at Moye's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church here. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Willie Joyner.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James David Harris and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Taylor, all of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Roger Ingram, organist, and Mrs. Wanda Adams, soloist.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white chantilly lace and silkened organza over peau de soie. The lace fitted bodice featured a colonial neckline and long full sleeves closing with cuffs. Bridal pearls adorned the bodice and neckline. The A-line skirt was enhanced with a panel of lace down the center back. Both the skirt and train were bordered with chantilly lace. The two-tiered full length veil featured scattered lace motifs and pearls and was attached to a Juliet cap of schiffli embroidery and pearls. She carried a white bouquet of mums and daisies enhanced with baby's breath and foliage.

Donna Lavalie Adams of Atlanta, Ga. was matron of honor. She wore a green crepe chemise gown with a matching chiffon draped overlay. She carried a yellow bouquet of mums and daisies enhanced with baby's breath and foliage.

Bridesmaids were Anita Harris, Paulinda Council and Marshall Graham, all cousins of the bride. Janet Taylor, the bridegroom's sister, and Jackie Pearson, all of Greenville. They wore yellow polyester knit gowns with double spaghetti straps and gathered bodices. The gowns featured empire waistlines with pleated skirts with a nylon chiffon knit caplets enhanced by round yellow necklines. They carried bouquets of large long-stemmed mums with green and yellow ribbons.

Diji Council, cousin of the bride, and Seadra Duncan, niece of the bridegroom, both of Greenville, were flower girls. They wore floor length dresses of green and yellow frock with puffed sleeves over taffeta accented with high necklines and trimmed in lace. Toyey Tyson, cousin of the bridegroom of Greenville, was ring bearer. Train carrier was Phillip Baker, the bride's cousin of Farmville.

Bobby Taylor, the bridegroom's brother of Sittland, Md., was best man. Ushers were Ricky Concil, Larry Daniels, Larry Williams, Carrie Williams, Nathaniel Weaver, Curtis Floyd and Dino Harris, the bride's brother, all of Greenville.

MRS. BILLY ROY TAYLOR

The mother of the bride wore a floor length pink dress with an empire waistline and pleated skirt with butterfly sleeves. The bridegroom's mother chose a floor length baby blue dress with a V-neckline and empire waistline.

A reception was held in the church dining room following the ceremony. Punch was poired by Nina Barrett, cousin of the bride, and cake was served by Mary Brown, the bride's aunt. Gifts were received by Mattie Baker, aunt of the bride. Deloris Thompson, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of J.H. Rose High School and Pitt Community College. The bridegroom is a 1974 graduate of North Pitt High School and Pitt Community College.

After a wedding trip to Washington, D.C., the couple will reside in Greenville.

Dear Abby

Dumbfounded By Con Man's Game

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last September a man came to my door and asked me if I had anything that needed to be fixed, so I gave him my hearing aid. He said he would bring it back in three days in perfect condition if I would give him $25, so I gave him the cash. Well, I never saw him or my hearing aid after that, and my hearing aid cost me $398 new! I don't know what company he was with or what his name was, as I forgot to ask him. I know it was dumb of me, but he had the nicest smile.

I would like to get my hearing aid back. Answer soon because my husband is sick of yelling at me.

DEAF AS HELL IN INDIANA

DEAR DEAF: With no name, no company, no receipt and no clue as to who the man was, you are out of luck. But your experience might serve to remind other trusting souls to check out such characters before handing over anything of value.

DEAR ABBY: Five years ago, I met you and your husband at a dinner party in Tulsa. I was 47, weighed 205 and smoked two packs a day. When I asked if you objected if I smoked during dinner, you said, "You'll do us both a favor if you don't."

I want you to know that I have reformed, but it took some bad news to do it. Two and a half years ago, my doctor found some cancerous tissue on my tongue and he ordered me to quit smoking, lose weight and shape up. Today I'm down to 170, don't smoke and I'm in great shape. How did I do it? I took up running.

I've put together some suggestions for people who are considering running. You may want to pass them on to your readers:

1. Have a physical examination to see that everything is pumping all right.
2. Get a good pair of shoes. Otherwise, your feet will hate you. A common malady among runners is a black toe, which is caused by a blister developing beneath a toenail that rubs against a poorly fitting shoe.
3. Don't let a pair of cheap socks come between you and your shoes. Buy athletic socks with cushioned soles.
4. Start slowly and work your way up to longer distances.
5. Don't hop in the car and drive home immediately after completing your run. It's as important to warm down as it is to warm up. Walk around a while and do some leg-stretching exercises.

Most of all, don't get discouraged. Your muscles won't always hurt. Warm regards,

LINDSAY ALEXANDER

DEAR ABBY: You recently received a letter from a man who was troubled by being called "Reverend" (which also makes me cringe), and you indicated that his last name should be used with the title. That implied the addition of the last name would make everything fine. Ten lashes with an English grammar book!

Though it is the style among some Protestants to use the title as you say, the word is an adjective, not a noun. To say "Reverend Jones" is the equivalent of addressing a judge as "Honorable Smith." Either "Father" — if the man is a priest — or "Mister" — if a minister — is all that ought to be expected. I do not know what one should call the new Protestant Episcopal priestesses. How about "Mother"?

THE REV. FATHER ANDREW L. JAMES, ATHENS, OHIO

DEAR FATHER: I don't think it would play in Peoria.

Parrish-Waters Vows Said

CLAYTON — Vicki Lane Waters and Gregory K. Parrish exchanged wedding vows May 31 at Amelia United Church of Christ here. The Rev. Jim Norris of Amelia and the Rev. Maurice Grissom of the First Baptist Church, Clayton, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Cathy Whitley of Zebulon, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Carol Core and Kathy Jackson, both of Raleigh. The flower girl was Kendall Parrish of Durham, cousin of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white organza which featured a Queen Anne neckline, bishop sleeves of chantilly lace and a bouffant silhouette. Imported Venise lace accented the fitted bodice. Scalloped layers of lace created an apron effect on the gathered skirt and circular chapel train. The gown was enhanced by a fingertip veil of imported silk illusion edged with matching Venise lace. She carried a bouquet of miniature carnations.

Billy Parrish of Clayton served his son as best man. Ushers were Marshal Phipps of Stedman and Randall Hardee of Clayton. Ring bearer was Brian Parrish, brother of the bridegroom.

Gina Adams, cousin of the bride, attended the guest register. Traditional wedding music was provided by Jim Elmore, organist of Clayton. Soloist was Sheila Holland of Garner. The wedding was directed by Jake Barnes of Clayton.

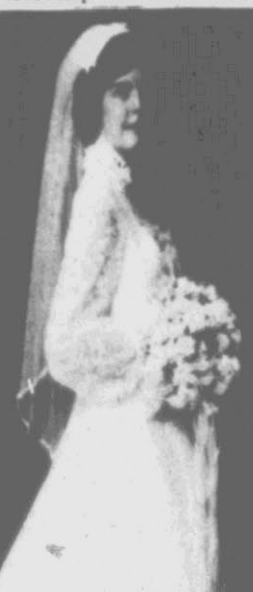

A reception followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Penny. Mrs. Ramon Cash cut the cake. She was assisted by Mrs. Judy Cox. Mrs. Rena Langdon poured punch and was assisted by Mrs. Faye Boyette. Mr. and Mrs. Lynwood Powell said good-byes.

The couple was honored with a pig-picking on May 30 by the bridegroom's parents.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and is a staff nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is employed with Jim's Serv-A-Set in Greenville.

After their wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C., the couple will reside in Greenville.

On television the other night, a beautiful woman answered her phone and told the caller he had the wrong number. They talked for 20 minutes, speculating on what each looked like and how much they had in common and when they were going to get together.

I never talked to a wrong number in my life who didn't break the phone in half hanging up.

It's usually, "Hello!"

Jean?"
"No, this is not Jean."
"Who is this?"
"What number were you calling?"
"I'm calling 555-5855."
"I'm sorry, but that's not the number you dialed and there's no Jean here."
"Then why did you answer the phone, bimbo?"
Thirty seconds later when the phone rings again and I know Big Al is ready to "reach out and crush somebody" and he's going to be ticked that he didn't get Jean again, I say, "Hi, there. You're still dialing the wrong number." Then my mother answers, "Look, I know my own daughter's voice and if (Please turn to Page 3)

Couple Weds In Outdoor Wedding

KINSTON — Nancy Novella Jones and Dennis Elmer Whitfield were married Saturday, May 30, at 4 p.m. in an outdoor ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Clark. The Rev. Travis Owens performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.T. Jones Jr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ruth French of Kinston and Mr. Elmer Whitfield of Deep Run.

A program of nuptial music was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Rob Oehrli of Ayden.

Jennie Warren, of Greenville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Roscoe Whitfield of Kinston, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Amy Whitfield, daughter of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid and Brian Whitfield, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. Both are from Kinston.

Wendi James, daughter of the bride, was flower girl and Clifton Whitfield, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. Both are from Kinston.

Mrs. Nancy Whitfield, sister-in-law of the bridegroom,

Mrs. Dennis Elmer Whitfield

directed the wedding.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Whitfield after the ceremony. Mrs. Marie Clark, aunt of the bride, served cake and Ms. Delores Lewis poured punch.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in Kinston.

A rehearsal cookout was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Whitfield given by family and friends.

you don't want to talk to me just say so," and hangs up.

A lot of people I know get some really wonderful wrong numbers. A reader who lives in the Southwest has a reverse number of a desert museum. He gets wonderful calls and has a fun time with them like, "What do you charge for children under 12?" And he answers, "I'm temporarily out of stock but expect more in at the end of the week."

One day he got a call that asked, "There's a turtle dove in my backyard with a broken wing. What should I do?"

He told her to dress it and have it for dinner.

At present, we're a digit away from a travel bureau. Travelers are not happy people. They don't even say hello. They want to know where their luggage is. Where their refund is. Where their ticket is.

The other night I was out in the yard. When I heard the phone ring, I put down the garden hose which spun around crazy and soaked me before I could turn it off. I tripped over the dog who yelped in pain. I turned off the TV set, ran to the kitchen where I slipped on the tile and twisted my knee, and answered the phone on the sixth ring.

The voice said suspiciously, "Is this John?"

I said yes.

To dress warmly in cold weather, layers of clothing are better than one extra-heavy layer.

First Element Is Selected

SENECA FALLS, N. Y. — The Elizabeth Cady Stanton Foundation has obtained funds to purchase the late Ms. Stanton's home in Seneca Falls, N. Y., where the house is slated to become the first element of the Women's Rights National Historical Park authorized by Congress on December 28, 1980.

The new park, commemorating efforts of 19th century feminists who worked to establish new rights and freedoms for American women, will eventually encompass the Stanton home and adjoining properties. These will include the Wesleyan Chapel of Seneca Falls, where the first women's rights convention was held in 1848; the home of Quaker feminists Mary Anne McClintock and Jane Hunt in nearby Waterloo, N. Y.; and the Seneca Falls home of activist Amelia Bloomer.

Funds to purchase the home were completed when actor Alan Alda, an honorary trustee of the foundation, donated $11,000. Other funds received were: $16,000 from the New York Office of Parks and Recreation; $5,000 from Gould Pumps, a Seneca Falls industry; and $5,000 from Rhoda Barney Jenkins and John Barney, Ms. Stanton's great-grandchildren.

City Needs County Help

The Mayor's Advisory Committee had done an exemplary job of studying the city's needs and making recommendations for more effective city government.

As with all studies of government, the committee found that additional funding would be needed to carry out some of the things it recommended.

It thus had as its top priority a recommendation that the city proceed with the annexation of the Industrial Park area north of the city. It urged that the annexation be completed by Jan. 1, 1982.

The Daily Reflector has opposed the annexation of the Industrial Park for the most practical of all reasons — that it could mean the end of industrial expansion in the area and we would lose the potential jobs that would be created by the location of new industries there, and the expansion of old ones.

There are few communities that can boast of the caliber and variety of industries such as those which have located north of Greenville. They have meant hundreds of jobs for people of our area. There can be more ahead. Some of the industries have purchase land well beyond their present plant needs which gives them room for future expansion. In addition there are adequate sites for new plants to locate in the area. Who can doubt it when we are told that new expansion might not take place if the industries have to bear the additional cost of city taxes.

If we are not to annex the area, where then is the city to get the money it needs to finance growth and the need for municipal services? While the industries are not in the city, they are in the county . . . and their location there has been a boon to the county government in providing additional property taxes.

The county government must recognize that the city has financial problems which compel it to eye the annexation of the industrial area. The county must assist the city with some of its financing for services which extend well beyond the city limits. It would be easy for the county government to do nothing, but if political pressure builds to the point where some City Council does annex the industries, it could mean a future loss of revenues for both the county and city governments because some companies could decide not to locate here.

The Mayor's Advisory Committee made recommendations for the county government's assuming some municipal functions, an area we will discuss in future editorials.

'Splendid Fight' Faded

WASHINGTON — What had promised to be a nice, noisy, knockdown and drag-out fight over the nomination of Ernest W. Lefever has now been cancelled. The gentleman Friday evening asked that his nomination be withdrawn as assistant secretary of state for human rights and humanitarian affairs. We will have to go back arguing over tax cuts.

This is a pity. The Washington press corps, whose ennobling motto is "Let's You and Him Fight," had been looking forward to a splendid exhibition of political bloodletting. What kind of blows would the president have suffered? Damaging blows.

Apart from the disappointment of the press, other considerations prompt regret. I happen to believe that Mr. Reagan made a tactical error in nominating Dr. Lefever for this particular job. The president had abundant warning, well in advance, that he would be wounding the Senate's bleeding hearts. With his budget and tax cut proposals on the line, there never was anything useful to be gained by a time-consuming battle over an assistant secretary's job at State.

Dr. Lefever should have been confirmed — for two reasons. The first is historic and traditional: Absent the most compelling reasons to reject a presidential nominee, a president — any president — should be entitled to have his own choices confirmed for Cabinet and sub-Cabinet positions. This rule of comity has served us well and wisely for generations, and surely it should have been applied at the level of an assistant secretary. Second, Dr. Lefever is superbly qualified for the job. The 62-year-old scholar has been a lifelong student of foreign policy and of world affairs in general. Yes, he is a hard-line anti-communist, but so what? He is also a former pacifist and an ordained minister. He advocated policies of quiet diplomacy toward human rights violations under such regimes as those in Argentina and the Philippines, but again, so what? Under President Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance advocated substantially the same policy.

Let it go. A far better solution to the Lefever affair could have been found simply by repealing the law that requires an assistant secretary of state for human rights and humanitarian affairs. After all, who needs one?

I am serious about this. The position did not even exist four years ago. It was created as part of the State Department's authorization act for fiscal '78. Jimmy Carter had said in his inaugural address that "our commitment to human rights must be absolute," and somehow it seemed a likely idea to elevate the Office of Human Rights, headed by a director, to a full-blown Bureau of Human Rights, headed by a more Olympian boss.

It was a poor idea in the first place. The foreign military and economic aid. There is something unseemly in publicly proclaiming our own virtues in contrast to the sins of other nations. See generally, Matthew 6:14.

The principal function of an office, or a bureau, of human rights is to prepare an annual report to the Congress on the status of human rights around the world. Under the law, "human rights" are broadly defined. The term

To Make A Long Story

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP)—There's a most story about these two circus roustabouts trying to load a reticulated giraffe onto an airplane for a special engagement in Las Vegas.

I hope you haven't heard it already. Good. Well, it seems there were these two circus roustabouts . . .

Yes, Miss, we'll have cocktails . . .

That's right: two vodka martinis, rocks, and Gibson and a Bloody Mary.

Anyhow, these two circus hands had this giraffe in a cage on the back of a fork lift truck . . .

Twist? Yes, Miss, that'll be fine, a twist in the martinis.

Getting back to these two chaps with the giraffe in the cargo area at Kennedy Airport. You see, one of them was a rather crude Alabama redneck and the other a spaced out . . .

Celery stalk in the Bloody Mary? Right, but don't bother salting the rim of the glass.

Where was I? Oh, yes, the other animal handler was a way out Ivy League drop-out who had joined the circus after living in one of those scream therapy clinics in California, and the two of them . . .

Oh, menus already? We'll have another round of drinks while we see about our orders . . .

Now you must remember this was a reticulated giraffe, which is the point of the whole story . . .

The chef's special today? Not on the menu? I see. How is that sole Veronique done? Not frozen, is it? Oh, too bad.

As I was saying, the giraffe as we all know is the tallest living quadruped . . .

Ah, there you are. All right we're all going to have the lamb's stew special — you don't call it Mulligan's Stew, do you? No? A pity — except for Ted over there who'll have the cold Kennebec salmon maitre d' . . .

Now the giraffe, you must remember, is the tallest animal. Just as the reticulated python is the longest snake. And he comes into the story a little later, so don't forget about him . . .

Bread? Yes, we'll all have some bread. Well, they managed to get the giraffe's cage on the forklift alongside the cargo hatch . . . What kind of bread? I'll have the pumpernickel, and I think the others would prefer the hot rolls . . .

No wonder the prices are so high here, when they have a bus boy going around just handing out bread. Of course the trick to the whole operation was to get the giraffe to bend its neck long enough to . . .

Oh, you're out of the Kennebec salmon? Ted, would you care to join us in the stew? Fine. That'll simplify everything and allow me to get on with this very amusing story. You see, once they got the giraffe aboard the Boeing 747, it could stretch out, really up, to that little upstairs cubicle which they use as a first class lounge on passenger flights.

Salad dressings? Creamy Italian will do me. Ted prefers the house dressing and the other will have the Roquefort . . .

Anyhow, giraffes have these long necks so they can eat the leaves and fruit at the top of the trees in the veldt or open savannas, which are their natural habitat. The redneck had the idea of stringing eucalyptus leaves at the head of the stairwell, but you must remember this was a reticulated giraffe, which is not exactly spotted but has kind of a network of bands or ribbons . . .

The Roquefort will be 50 cents extra? That'll be all right, bring it anyway.

So they went ahead and hung these leaves and some pomegranates high up inside the plane, but the hippie type also added some hallucinogenic mushrooms . . .

OK, captain, I'll have a peak at the wine list. Since we're all having the lamb, a carafe of the house red will do nicely.

So this Ivy League space cadet mixes up these crazy mushrooms, hoping to practice a little scream therapy on the . . .

Oh, you've had complaints about the house wine being too acidic. Let me have a look again. We'll take a bottle of your Number 27, the nouveau Beaujolais.

Giraffes, of course, can't scream. They have no voices, but they do moo a little and rumble like camels. Anyhow, the zonked out roustabout had neglected to tell his partner he had just released a reticulated python in order to . . .

Here comes our orders now. That's right, Miss, I'm the creamy Italian and Ted over there is the house dressing. The rest are Roquefort.

The Klutz, you see, had brought along the python to tie down the giraffe . . .

Fresh ground pepper? No, thank you. Oh, no, here comes the kid with the rolls again.

Well, to get to the point of the story, it was the python who ate the mushrooms and as a result . . .

After dinner drinks? Very Well. Bring them Irish coffee and bring me the house cyanide . . .

So the python began to scream just as the flight crew . . .

Do I want the yellow or the green cyanide? Neither, thank you, I'll just take this knife here and . . .

Looking To 1984?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Future politics is beginning to have considerable impact on things happening right now in North Carolina.

It is difficult at times to tell whether some of the events are "real," or whether they are being deliberately set up to give future political advantage to one or another faction.

One such situation has to do with federal funds for teachers across the state, pitting Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and Schools Supt. Craig Phillips in an advantage struggle.

The fight for and against a gas tax is another, with U.S. Senator Jesse Helms, a Republican, and his Congressional Club labeling this "Hunt's Gas Tax" while Gov. Jim Hunt insists it is a "Good Roads" plan. The Democratic governor's term expires and the Helms Senate seat comes up for grabs in 1984.

Yet another instance is the charge that Lt. Gov. Green took favors from a paving contractor. Yet another gubernatorial hopeful, Rufus Edmisten, is boss of the State Bureau of Investigation which is running the investigation. Whatever the outcome, Green's name, his leadership ability in the General Assembly, and his image in the 1984 governor's race has been smeared.

A Leak
Edmisten played no role in leaking the information on Green to the press, but with a campaign organization already in place at critical places in state government, it is considered likely that an ardent Edmisten supporter leaped at an opportunity to cut down an opponent.

A cardinal rule of politics is: reward thy friends, punish thy enemies. Sooner or later, Green allies will strike back at Edmisten on this one, insiders tell us.

Meanwhile, some people

close to Craig Phillips are spreading the word to press and others that much of the legislative chopping at the educational establishment budget is a direct result of Green's conviction that Phillips is a potential opponent in the 1984 governor's race. Numerous regional and supervisory jobs across the state, and at public school headquarters in Raleigh, have been trimmed from the budget. The motive, say Phillips advocates, is not so much to save dollars but to trim the potential campaign structure and throw the superintendent himself into political hot water.

That is also given as the background in contradictory and confusing events about federally funded teaching positions. There are $280 million federal dollars spent in the schools, primarily in vocational education, education of the handicapped, headstart and remedial efforts for low income people, as well as school lunches and other special programs.

The federal budget will be cut. Some say up to 25 percent, but most hope not more than 15 percent. Even so, as many as 1,600 jobs are on the line.

State officials sent word to local school people to cut employment for next school

(Washington Daily News)

When people want something badly enough, they also are willing to pay for it. Over the years of watching and being involved, we have found from experience that the people must come first.

The proposed three cents per gallon increase on gasoline would bring the state tax from 9.25 cents per gallon to 12.25 cents. The State Senate Finance Committee, numbering 25 senators, approved the governor's road tax package by a vote of 14-11 with 14 Democrats voting for the measure and six Republicans and five Democrats voting against.

There are now 25 other Democrats to be heard from as this measure reaches the senate floor. It will be debated thoroughly, make no mistake about that. The words will flow freely and yet in all the talking the one question involved here above all others is this: Do the people of North Carolina want road improvements badly enough to add the three cents per gallon to their tax bill?

Elected leaders make the judgment in the legislature, but elected leaders who fail to heed the voice of the people sometimes find themselves in difficulty. We are in no manner implying that people feel one way or the other, because we have made no poll locally to see how our people feel. We are merely looking at the proposal and examining its probably journey through the legislature.

At this time we are going to guess that the proposal basically will be approved. There might be an amendment or two tacked on, but Democrats have enough strength in the legislature to enact it. If the 14-11 vote is indicative of the full legislature, and we would suspect this might well turn out to be the division, it would pass the senate by about 28-22 and the house by about 67-53. There are 50 senate members and 120 house members.

We do feel this way about it. We do not know how much expression from the people "back home" legislators are getting on this issue. But it is wholesome that the people let their elected officials know how they feel. If one is in favor, then say so. If one is against, say so. All the talk and debate in the world will hardly be a good substitute for how people feel. And if people do not express themselves, it is entirely possible for a legislator to interpret public opinion one way when in truth the other way strongly exists.

The whole program offered by the governor is subject to debate. The fuel tax here will also fuel a lot of political ammunition for later use. Now is the time for an expression from the people.

Strength For Today

WEIGHING GARBAGE
In a certain resort town the authorities estimate the number of tourists present by carefully weighing the garbage. They allow two pounds of garbage per person per day, and by noting the increase during the tourist season they can estimate the increase in the tourist population.

Figuratively speaking, there are some people who always evaluate others by weighing the garbage. They can tell you all the scandal in the community. They have no good words for anybody except people of their own kind. Mention anyone in terms of praise and these maligners will immediately begin to speak of them in terms of disparagement.

Weighing the garbage may be a good way of finding out how many tourists are visiting a resort town, but it certainly is not a good method of judging persons. Garbage gives only a very distorted picture of character, personality and values. — Elisha Douglass

Defer Planned Sale Of Conrail

By GENE GRABOWSKI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says it is willing to delay selling Conrail for at least a year to give the federally funded railroad time to become profitable and, thus, attractive to potential buyers.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, said the delay is the best way to maintain freight rail service in the Northeast and Midwest while preparing for the sale of Conrail.

Meanwhile, the House Energy and Commerce Committee declared Wednesday that the administration's plan is unacceptable and voted to continue federal support for Conrail until Dec. 1, 1983.

As announced by Packwood, the administration's timetable for the sale would be:

—Conrail can be sold only in one piece between June 1, 1982 and Dec. 1, 1982.

—If the railroad begins to show a profit by Dec. 1, 1982, it must be sold in a single piece. If it continues to be unprofitable by that time, it may be dismantled and sold in parts to different buyers.

—After Aug. 1, 1983, the government may sell Conrail as a whole or in parts.

Until now, the Reagan administration favored divesting the federal government of its interests in Conrail as soon as possible. Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis proposed last March that Conrail's federal subsidy be withdrawn in the next fiscal year.

Opponents of that plan argued that it could destroy vital rail service to the areas served by Conrail.

Conrail, the Consolidated Railroad Corp. formed by Congress in the mid-1970s, is the Northeast's major rail freight carrier and serves portions of the Midwest. It also operates commuter trains carrying 500,000 people daily, chiefly into New York City and Philadelphia.

"Our goal remains the same," Packwood said. "Rail freight service is vital to the Northeast and to our nation's economy and it must be continued."

"This agreement will give Conrail an opportunity to do all in its power to become profitable and to continue essential service," he added.

Later, the chief spokesman for the Senate Commerce Committee explained that the primary goal of the new plan would be to prepare Conrail for eventual sale, not to preserve it as a government-backed corporation.

"The intention is still to make Conrail a self-reliant entity," said spokesman Bob Witek.

The Transportation Department may sell Conrail without approval from any other party, but the decision on how to fund Conrail must be made in Congress.

In addition to the sale schedule, Packwood said the proposal includes incentives to potential buyers and guarantees of federal financing while any transfers take place.

For example, it would enable Conrail to pay each worker up to $25,000 and abolish the worker's job. A buyer also could apply up to 12 months of resulting labor expenses against the purchase price of Conrail property.

The House Energy and Commerce Committee voted by 30-12 Wednesday to provide an extra $375 million to operate Conrail until Dec. 1, 1983, providing the railroad meets certain performance standards.

Scientists Prepare Expedition To Hunt Dinosaur

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It sounds like a "Late Show" movie, but two scientist-adventurers say they're going to search uncharted African jungles this summer for what may be a living species of dinosaur that somehow escaped extinction 60 million years ago.

"Whether there are dinosaurs or not, we don't know. But we're going to check it out," said biologist Roy P. Mackal of the University of Chicago. "I admit to having some romance in my soul."

He concedes much of the scientific community is skeptical or worse, but "That doesn't bother us. You have to have a thick skin."

"If they say it's extremely unlikely, then I'm the first to agree," he said Wednesday. "But it's not impossible. We've got to check out the longshots because they pay off once in a while."

Mackal said in a telephone interview that natives, primarily pygmies in remote areas of the Congo, frequently have reported encounters with a bizarre creature twice the size of an elephant. Such tales, he said, were almost always second-hand. They called the water-dwelling creature mokele-mbembe.

But last year, Mackal said, he spent a month in the Congo and "we were able to penetrate to an area where we got first-hand reports, not just people saying, 'My grandfather told me about this when I was a boy.'"

He said members of different tribes and regions "all described essentially the same thing. That leads me to think that there is an animal of some kind out there."

He said the region, rarely visited by outsiders, has changed little in 70 million years, "so if there is a relic species, this would be a good place for it ... It's like a lost world in some ways."

In Los Angeles, consulting engineer Herman Regusters, a co-organizer of the three-month search to begin in the Congo in August, said Mackal showed the natives pictures of a variety of animals.

They readily identified the creatures as an elephant or hippopotamus. They almost always identified as the mokele-mbembe an artist's drawing of a brontosaurus, a classic vegetarian dinosaur.

"The interviews he conducted are pretty convincing," Regusters said. "I wouldn't waste my time if I didn't believe in it."

Regusters said natives describe a brownish-gray creature with short, thick legs that weighs perhaps 9 to 15 tons and stretches some 35 feet from its small head on a long neck to the end of its tail.

He said stories tell of fishermen being killed, but not eaten, by the creature and of at least one mokele-mbembe being killed by pygmies about 1959.

He also cited reports of footprints "a lot like the footprints of an elephant but with claws. They were about 36 inches across."

"They said it (the creature) is rarely seen except in the early morning and late evening when it emerges from the water (to feed on riverside vegetation). Other than that, it seems to stay in the water like a hippo."

Regusters said the expedition, which also is to include botanist Richard Greenwell of the University of Arizona, has been approved by the government of the Congo. He says the team has no interest in killing or capturing a mokele-mbembe, but only photographing it.

"What would three guys do with a 10-ton carcass out in the middle of the jungle after you had to hack your way in?" Regusters said.

"I'm not a believer in fuzzy pictures," he said referring to photos that are often offered to prove the existence of other mysterious creatures such as the Loch Ness monster of Scotland or bigfoot of the American Northwest.

"I think we would have to have sharp photographs that will stand up under scientific photographic analysis," he said.

The expedition, with the official support of no institution or foundation, is being run on a shoestring. Regusters said they may take the trip with as little as $30,000 in private contributions and an assortment of instruments, cameras, weapons and other equipment donated by various companies.

He said the group plans to live off the land most of the time.

Three Wrecks Investigated By Police

An estimated $4,800 damage resulted from three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from an 8:36 a.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 50 feet west of the Granville Drive intersection involving cars driven by Joyce Elaine Hardee of Winterville, and Jackie Daniels Little of 212 Cherrywood Dr.

Police, who charged Little with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, set damage at $1,200 to the Hardee car and $2,000 to the Little vehicle.

Little and a passenger in the Hardee auto were reported injured.

An estimated $500 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in an 11:28 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Charles and 11th Streets.

Drivers involved were identified as Karen Elizabeth Adcock of 409 Elizabeth St., and Donald Richard Tripper Jr. of 3105 Gordon Dr.

Ms. Adcock was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign in connection with the collision.

Gladys Venters Wiggins of Route 1, Grimesland was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 10 a.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Ione Street.

Investigators reported the Wiggins car collided with an auto driven by Nancy Cahoon Shirley of Route 1, Hookerton, causing $500 damage to the Shirley car and $100 damage to the Wiggins car.

No Jobs

Then the other day local school officials got word from Board of Education Comptroller Joe Porter that no contracts for federally funded positions next year should be approved. This has thrown the entire program involving thousands of teachers into confusion. Porter says the memo did not really say no positions could be filled ... just hold back.

Local officials in many cases say the order is clear and they must not sign any contracts for next year.

That internal fight will be smoothed out, but the bigger question is why the legislative leadership under Green's direction prevailed upon state budget officials to warn Porter that local schools must not hire any federally funded teachers for next year.

The word is spreading rapidly through the state's public school grapevine that Jimmy Green is responsible for the jobs being lost or put in limbo. If several thousand jobs are to be lost, say Green critics and Phillips supporters, the lieutenant governor wants them cut now as school adjourns for the summer rather than next October when the General Assembly is in session and school is just starting. "He doesn't want some angry teachers marching on him", a critic snorted.

At the very least, it seems to me, this section of the present law might be modestly rewritten. Who ever appointed the United States to serve as headmaster to the world?

New Charter Is Approved

The city has recently received approval of its new city charter from the North Carolina General Assembly.

The revised charter primarily represents a technical revision and update to remove obsolete provisions and those which are now governed by statewide laws, it was pointed out.

According to the city, the most significant change in the new charter reflects a clarification of when the mayor should vote on issues before the City Council.

TEST TUBE CALF — Virgil, the world's first test tube calf (according to Dr. Benjamin G. Brackett, of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine) is petted by Dr. Brackett less than 24 hours after its birth Tuesday at the school's New Bolton Center, near Kennett Square, Pa. A research team led by Dr. Brackett fertilized egg from donor cow in laboratory and transferred it to recipient cow for development and eventual birth of calf. (AP Laserphoto)

Bolster Shroud Claim

CHICAGO (AP) — A computer analysis of the Shroud of Turin shows a Pontius Pilate coin over the right eye of the figure of a man, bolstering claims that the fabric is the burial cloth of Jesus Christ, a Jesuit priest says.

The Rev. Francis L. Filas, a Loyola University theology professor who has studied the controversial shroud for 35 years, said results will be released today of a three-dimensional computer analysis of photographs of the shroud that he says confirm his contention that the cloth can be dated to between the years 29 and 36 A.D.

The analysis shows 24 "coincidences" that fit only a coin issued by Pontius Pilate between those years — about the time of Christ's crucifixion, Filas said.

The coin covering the right eye of the man in the shroud plainly bears the markings of an astrologer's staff with Greek lettering, minted only during Pilate's reign in Palestine, which coincides with Christ's death, he said.

During the time of Christ, Filas said, it was common practice to cover the eyes of the dead with coins.

The shroud, a strip of linen that some say bears the imprint of a crucified man, is kept under heavy security in a Catholic church in Turin, Italy.

School Buses Safer This Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Statewide figures on school bus accidents, while not yet final, indicate buses were safer this school year than last.

There were only two bus-related fatalities this school year, compared with 12 the previous term, according to Joseph K. Register, director of traffic records for the state Department of Transportation.

He said the number of students injured in bus-related accidents also showed a significant decline. From September to January, 64 students were hurt in school bus accidents, compared with 111 in the same period of the previous year, Register said. He indicated that the publicity given the number of fatalities last year increase public awareness of bus safety, and might have contributed to the fall in injuries.

Service Honors Slain Children

The Medley Chapel C.M.E. Church, Bethel, will hold a memorial service in honor of the slain black children of Atlanta, beginning at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 14.

The event is sponsored by the Inspirational Choir. The speaker is to be Rev. Houston A. Drone. Singing will be performed by the "Sensational Martinares," a group of inmates from the Martin County Correctional Center. Johnny C. Edwards, an organist and vocalist, will accompany the group.

The "Sensational Martinares" has written and composed several songs, and will be singing their latest song, "Why Did It Have To Happen To The Children?," based on the Atlanta slayings.

The public is invited to attend this third memorial service to be held by the prison group. Those attending are asked to wear green ribbons, with the green representing life.

Seeing A Move To Conciliation

By LAURINDA KEYS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —

The nation's largest Protestant denomination appeared to be backtracking from a movement toward stricter standards of belief for seminary professors and agency leaders as Southern Baptists wound up a four-day convention here.

For the fourth year in a row, most of the 13,389 "messengers" at the Southern Baptist Convention voted Wednesday to reaffirm the 1963 Baptist Faith and Message statement declaring the Bible "truth without any mixture of error." It also emphasizes individual choice in beliefs.

The motion was made by Herschel Hobbs, retired pastor of the First Baptist Church of Oklahoma City, who drafted the 1963 statement. He was booed when he made the same affirmation motion at the Southern Baptist convention in St. Louis last year.

Hobbs' motion took on special significance this time because it was supported by the Rev. Bailey Smith, who on Tuesday beat back the strongest challenge to an incumbent president in 22 years.

Smith, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Del City, Okla., was first elected at the St. Louis convention, which also produced a resolution urging stricter codes and belief for Southern Baptist seminaries and institutions.

Southern Baptists traditionally have avoided tests of faith and adoption of creeds, asserting "the priesthood of believers," in which each person is responsible for ascertaining the word and will of God through study of the Scriptures.

But the fear of a growing movement toward a strictly literal interpretation of the Bible prompted Abner McCall, chancellor of Baylor University in Waco, Tex., to make the unusual challenge against the convention president, who is usually accorded an automatic second term. McCall took 40 percent of the vote in Tuesday's election.

In a post-election news conference, Smith said that the 1963 statement "is the strongest statement Southern Baptists need to make." He said the 1980 convention resolution about seminaries and agencies was just another way for some people to underscore what the Baptist statement already says.

While he still wishes that "everyone believed the Bible is true," Smith said the issue should not be pursued "as an ax."

On Wednesday, the convention elected Christine Gregory of Danville, Va., as first vice president, edging out the Rev. Stan Coffey of Albuquerque.

The Rev. Don Kim, pastor of a Korean congregation in downtown Los Angeles, was elected second vice president, over James Morton of Livermore, Calif.

Ordinance Requires Lot Cleaning

The city Inspections Office reminded citizens of the ordinance requirements regarding weeding and cleaning of properties.

The ordinance provides that any person who owns real property within the city is required to cut and remove all weeds and grass before it reaches a height of 12 inches and to keep properties free from trash and refuse.

The city pointed out that most complaints on overgrown weeds and grass usually involve vacant properties. People interested in more information should contact the Inspections Office at 752-4137.

Chairman Is Re-Elected

Phil Dickerson was re-elected chairman and Doug Wilms was elected vice chairman of the city's Environmental Advisory Commission at its May meeting.

The commission welcomed Cordell Avery who was recently appointed by the City Council as the representative from the legal profession.

The board was established by the council in 1975 as an advisory commission on matters of city-wide environmental concern, to provide environmental evaluation of community development projects, and to insure that the natural and social resources of the community remain for future generations.

Cotton Is Granted Assistantship

Russell Cotton, principal at Farmville Central High School, is one of three North Carolina public schools principals who have been granted one-year assistantships with the State Department of Public Instruction's N.C. Leadership Institute for Principals.

The two others named for the one-year program are Sid Zullinger, principal of South Toe Elementary School, Burnsville; and John George, principal, Jones Junior High School, Trenton.

The three join the state department office on July 1 to assist the staff in the operation and management of Institute activities, to serve short-term internships with schools to receive practical experience for individual needs, and to coordinate staff development training activities on a regional basis.

Cotton, a principal for the past 12 years, has a masters degree in education administration from East Carolina University. He is a former assistant principal, coach and teacher.

Superintendent of Pitt County Schools Ott Alford said that the Pitt school board has named James McAdams, an assistant principal at Farmville Central, as interim principal for the coming school year. Linda Wall, a counselor, has

Bid-Rigging And Beer-Drinking Crackdown Pushed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Bills that would crack down on bid-rigging and ban the drinking of beer by people in cars have won initial approval in the state Legislature and face more tests today.

The bid-rigging bill, sought by Gov. Jim Hunt and Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, would make it a felony for contractors to conspire or collude in bidding on state contracts.

Hailed by its sponsors as a tougher law than any in the country, the measure won tentative approval by a 108-0 vote. If given final House approval it will head to the Senate.

"We cannot legislate a person from violating the law," said the sponsor, Rep. George Miller, D-Durham. "But we can give notice that violations will be dealt with, and dealt with severely."

The bill was proposed after paving contractors in several states including North Carolina were convicted on federal charges for rigging bids on state projects. North Carolina law currently makes the act a misdemeanor.

The bill covers other types of contractors doing business with the state, and also covers contracts between two parties — even if the state isn't one of them — in which there is a restraint of trade.

Violators could be sentenced to a presumed three-year sentence with fines of up to $100,000 per person and $1 million per corporation. Courts could also levy civil penalties and revoke licenses to operate.

"Bid-rigging is now a household word," Miller said. "The governor has said that the people are mad, and they have a right to be."

Approval came as the Senate considered the beer bill, legislators tried to draw new congressional districts by resorting to crossing county lines, and Republicans failed in efforts to impose large budget cuts.

The Senate voted 41-7 to approve the ban on open beer or wine containers in cars. Violators, which would include passengers who drink while someone else drives, would face possible sentences of 30 days in jail and $500 fines.

The bill exempts buses but also the drinking of beer or wine from cups.

In other legislative action:

Budget

The joint base budget committees turned back Republican-sponsored moves to cut state government spending by 5 percent and to limit state money for abortions for poor women. The GOP had promoted a 5 percent spending cutback as a solution to the shortage of highway money.

But when Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, chairman of the House Base Budget Committee, gave the Democratic-controlled panel a chance to vote Wednesday only five — or about half the Republicans — voted to make the cuts.

Morrison

The joint House-Senate Appropriations Committee approved a cut in salary for the director of the Inmate Grievance Commission.

Morrison has said he expects to be fired this week, and some officials say the move was prompted because he has sided with inmates, rather than state officials, on occasion. He met with Gov. Jim Hunt on the issue but said he received no explanation of the possible action or assurance he would not lose his job.

The vote by the panel reduces Morrison's salary from more than $43,000 to about $34,000.

Jump From Car Causes Death Of 10-Year-Old

A 10-year-old Greenville girl died last night of injuries she received when she jumped from the back of a station wagon on Avon Lane, lost her balance and landed on her back and head.

Police Department investigators identified the child as Christian Staples VanNortwick of 1700 Canterbury Rd.

Kay Yearby VanNortwick, the child's mother, said she was driving along Avon Lane a short distance from their Canterbury Road home, when she looked in the rear-view mirror and saw her daughter turn a backward flip. She said the car at the time was traveling about five miles per hour.

A 10-year-old friend of the VanNortwick child told police that Christian told her she was going to get out of the vehicle and walk home. The child said she told Christian not to jump, but that she did anyway.

The companion said Christian landed on the street feet-first, flipped over backwards and landed on her back and head.

The child was pronounced dead at Pitt Memorial Hospital at 7:25 p.m. The cause of death was listed as head and internal injuries.

Investigators said the mishap occurred about 7 p.m.

Food Services Program Held

A special program sponsored by the Food Services Division of the Greenville City Schools was held at noon Tuesday in the cafeteria at Elmhurst Elementary School.

Food services from all nine city schools contributed items to the program's menu. Eastern furnished baked beans and franks; Rose High contributed ham quiche and rice; Teriyaki steak was Greenville Middle School's specialty; E. B. Aycock provided chicken croquettes and iced tea; Wahl-Coates, potato salad; Third Street and Agnes Fullilove contributed congealed fruit salad and oatmeal shortbread, respectively; Elmhurst furnished peanut butter bread; and applesauce cookies and fudge brownies were the contributions made by South Greenville and Sadie Sautler.

Linda Tingle, supervisor, Child Nutrition Services for the city schools greeted those attending. Sallie Boyd, manager at Elmhurst Cafeteria, welcomed the guests, and Myrtle Givens, cashier at E. B. Aycock, gave the invocation.

The cafeteria managers gave a short skit entitled, "The Unhappy Children," and presentation of recognitions were made by Ms. Tingle. These included Third Street's employee Mrs. Lula James, a 14-year veteran of food service; Mrs. Vivian Godley of Wahl-Coates cafeteria; Mrs. Sallie Boyd, with 12 years service at Elmhurst; and Mrs. Mary Evans, now at Middle School, for 14 years of service.

Sanitation awards were presented to Mrs. Hazel Smith and staff at Sadie Sautler and to Mrs. Ethel Williams and staff at Wahl-Coates.

Ms. Tingle noted that 12 cafeteria personnel will be attending the Food Service state convention to be held in Charlotte June 18-20; and 14 will be attending the Summer Institute at ECU July 14-17.

In addition to principals, assistant principals, cafeteria managers and employees at the banquet, special guests included Supt. Glenn Cox, Supervisor of Grounds and Maintenance Robert Stewart and school board members Mrs. Terry Shank, Jerry Smith, and Ernest Brown.

Membership Drive Planned

The Pitt County branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will launch its annual membership drive Sunday at Dilda's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

The special program, scheduled for 7:45 p.m., will feature Reddick Wilkins of Warsaw, state special membership chairman, as the guest speaker.

Yearly memberships range from $2 to $10, with life memberships set at $500.

The Pitt NAACP branch will also sponsor Freedom Tag Day on Saturday.

Momentum Swings To Redistricting Proposal

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Faced with crumbling support for a redistricting plan that once seemed to hold a majority, the Senate returned its first realignment map to committee on Wednesday, giving impetus to a move to split county lines in reapportioning North Carolina's 11 congressional districts.

The Senate voted 30-15 and sent to the House a resolution authorizing legislative committees to draw up new maps without regard to county lines in order to arrive at numerically similar districts.

The resolution, sponsored by Sen. Dallas Alford, D-Nash, was an effort to head off the map approved by the Senate Congressional Redistricting Committee. That map shifted Durham County into the 2nd District, a move opposed by Alford and 2nd District Rep. L.H. Fountain, a Democrat.

The resolution was unnecessary, however, since there is no legal or constitutional bar to violating county lines in congressional redistricting.

Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gaston, chairman of the Senate panel, requested the return of the map to committee, saying, "There seems to be growing sentiment on the part of many in the General Assembly to look at other alternatives."

In the House, all the members of a redistricting subcommittee voiced support for crossing county lines.

"It's breaking tradition, but I really believe we need to go ahead and look at splitting county lines to get the numbers right," said Rep. Graham Bell, D-Gaston, chairman of the subcommittee.

The panel took its first look at a map that split three counties but took no action. The subcommittee agreed to look at other alternatives Thursday.

The map would split off 13,840 residents of eastern Mecklenburg County, moving them from the 9th to the 8th Districts. Moved would be the residents of Clear Creek Township Six, including Mint Hill.

It would move 20,902 residents of northeastern Wake County from the 4th to the 2nd districts. Shifted would be Wake Forest, New Light and Little River townships.

Part of Chatham County, 13,765 people, would be moved from the 4th to the 6th Districts, representing Matthews, Albright and Bear Creek townships, including Siler City. The shifts would bring the numbers of each of the districts within 2.46 percentage points of each other.

The map, drawn by Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, chairman of the full House Committee, would make the following changes in the current alignment:

— 1st. Drop Jones, Add Northampton.
— 2nd. Drop Orange, Northampton. Add part of Wake, add Alamance.

— 3rd. Add Jones.
— 4th. Drop Randolph and parts of Wake and Chatham. Add Durham and Orange.

— 5th. Drop Davidson. Add Rockingham and Yadkin.
— 6th. Drop Rockingham and Alamance. Add Randolph, Davidson and part of Chatham, keeping Guilford.

— 7th. Drop Hoke.
— 8th. Add Hoke and part of Mecklenburg. Drop Yadkin.

— 9th. Add Alexander. Drop part of Mecklenburg.
— 10th. Add Avery. Drop Alexander.
— 11th. Drop Avery.

Pirates, Smith Top Heels By 6-2 Score

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Charlie Smith spent his freshman year in college at the University of North Carolina, then transferred out.

Pirate and the Robersonville native got a sweet victory over his former teammates in the North State Collegiate League last night, hurling ECU to a 6-2 victory.

The start was Smith's first of the season in the league, and he went the distance. "That's the longest I've been on the mound since I was pitching American Legion ball," Smith said afterwards.

But while it may have been his best effort in several years, it was an outstanding one. Smith held the Tar Heels to just four hits, three of them coming in the sixth inning, while he walked two and struck out six.

"My control was really good," the ex-Roanoke High School star said. "I wasn't overpowering with any of my stuff, but control was the key."

That proved true. In the sixth, with two away and the bases loaded, Smith worked out a full count against pinch-hitter Steve Gehlmann. The batter then fouled off four straight balls in the strike zone. But Smith calmly cut the low outside corner of the plate for a third strike to get out of the threat and record one of his strikeouts.

"I thought maybe I was getting a little tired, but after we had that big inning (four-run fifth) I got a little stronger. But then, when they had their big threat, I thought maybe I was giving out."

"It's been a long time since I had a game like this," Smith smiled, "and it feels good to be up there. Working with Coach (Hal) Baird since the regular season ended has really helped me a lot."

Coach Gary Overton, who handles the North State entry for ECU echoed Smith's words. "He pitched an outstanding game, and we got some key hits to help him out. Actually, our hitting so far has been a pleasant surprise."

Overton felt that the Pirates probably had the chance to break the game open earlier than they did, in the fifth. "We had a couple of chances earlier, but that big inning really did the trick."

That big inning came after the Pirates had lost a 1-0 second inning lead to the Tar Heels, who scored twice in the third. ECU had tied it up 2-2, in the fourth.

Smith helped his team along by leading off the second with a single to center. He moved up on a double to center by Charlie Waynick, and both watched as Robert Wells beat out a bobbled infield grounder. Mark Shank then walked to force Smith over with the first run.

But the Tar Heels quickly responded with two runs of their own. Jeff Hubbard led off the third, getting hit by a pitch. Ronnie Broome then drew one of the two walks issued by Smith. They were sacrificed up, and scored when Mitch McClenny got the first UNC hit of the night.

But except for the sixth, when Smith did slow somewhat, allowing three hits and a walk (but helped by a double play), the Heels were kept off the bases after that. In fact, the second and sixth were the only innings North Carolina put a man on base.

East Carolina tied it up in the fourth, after leaving a man on second in the third. The tying run came on a lead-off bases-empty homer to left by Jay Carraway. The Pirates later put a man on second, but left him there.

In the fifth, however, the Bucs came up with four runs to salt away the win. Todd Hendley reached on a fielder's choice and Todd Evans singled. Smith was hit by a pitch, with David Wells running for him.

Carraway drew a bases-loaded walk, forcing in one run, and Jack Curlings and Robert Wells followed with singles to left, each scoring a run. Shank finished off the bases loaded for the second time during the night.

East Carolina's hitting was led by Evans and Wells, each with two, while McClenny had two of the four UNC hits.

East Carolina is now 2-0 in league play, while UNC drops to 1-1.

"I'm not really surprised to be 2-0," Overton said after facing the two teams, UNC-Wilmington, and UNC-Chapel Hill, picked to dominate the league and beating both. "I'm not surprised, but I am elated about it. I still feel that those two are the strongest in the league."

The Pirates travel to N.C. State on Friday for a 5:30 p.m. game, then return to Harrington Field on Saturday to entertain Wilmington in a doubleheader, starting at 6 p.m.

Judge Says No Unfair Practices, Players May Strike On Friday

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
"Play ball!" said U.S. District Judge Henry Werker.

But Werker's ruling, issued in New York, could cause the 1981 baseball season to end — or at least be disrupted — following tonight's games.

"Hopefully there might be some serious negotiations to avoid the strike," said Doug DeCinces, Baltimore Orioles third baseman and player representative for the American League. "There is always that possibility."

"Damn it all," said New York Yankee outfielder Lou Piniella. "This hurts us, not the owners. They got the money."

Negotiations between the Major League Players Association and the Player Relations Committee were scheduled to resume this morning in New York with the prospect of a shortened season in the balance.

"This is not unusual," said Chicago White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa. "Both sides talk tough and hang tough until the bitter end. Then they give in and come up with a settlement."

"The same thing happened last year, didn't it? It looked as bad last year as it does this year, and there was no strike."

"There is always a chance for a settlement. They'll come up with something."

Twice in the last 13 months, last-minute agreements have staved off a players' walkout. The National Labor Relations Board went to court last week, presenting its case for an unfair labor practice complaint and seeking an injunction.

In denying the injunction, which would have delayed a strike for a year, Werker said there was "no reasonable cause to believe an unfair labor practice has been committed" by the club owners. "The petition is therefore dismissed."

William Lubbers, general

counsel to the NLRB, was expected to announce today whether he will recommend that the board appeal Werker's decision. Lubbers said Wednesday that the decision "will have to be studied closely" before the board decides whether to appeal the decision to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second District in New York.

Lubbers said that if an appeal is taken, the board also may seek a stay pending appeal to delay the strike deadline.

"I hope we strike," said Minnesota Twins second baseman Rob Wilfong. "I want to get it over with, and if a strike is what it takes to get this all settled, then I'm for it."

"We've been talking about this for years and years," Wilfong said. "We've been having deadlines and decisions and meetings and nothing's been accomplished. It's all been a big waste of time. We should have done it last year because here we are again."

The players had charged to the NLRB that the owners' refusal to release their clubs' financial records violated fair labor practice laws. But Werker, who held two days of hearings last week in Rochester, N.Y., ruled in favor of the club owners on every issue.

"It would seem less than forthright if I didn't tell you I am elated by the judge's decision," said Ray Grebey, the owners' chief negotiator. "We went in believing we were right, and when a federal court says you're right, it can't help but make you feel good."

Ted Simmons, catcher for the Milwaukee Brewers, was dismayed by the ruling. "What people do not understand is what the injunction sought," Simmons said. "It sought a delay. It was not an effort to get the books open."

"This was an attempt to show that in previous cases when management had not made records available to employees, an injunction like this was granted. Every effort was made to show that this was not an unprecedented position. We cited previous cases like this where time and again judges granted injunctions."

"This time he hasn't, but none of this surprises me." If last-minute negotiations fail, it would mean Cleveland and Oakland in the American League and four National League teams — Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Houston and San Diego — may have played their final games. They were not scheduled to play today. Wednesday night, Philadelphia first baseman Pete Rose singled in the first inning to tie Stan Musial's National League record for career hits.

Baltimore's DeCinces, however, wasn't as optimistic as some of the other players. "There is always that possibility" that a strike might be averted, DeCinces said, "but we have been trying to negotiate for 16 months. One day isn't going to change it."

Baltimore General Manager Hank Peters was optimistic. "I think many times when people are trying to position themselves in negotiations, they keep avoiding the issue and, of course, the issue in this is compensation," Peters said. "And now that both sides, in a sense, are painted into a corner and there's no question that a strike would have to be called ... you cut through a lot of the rhetoric. Perhaps we can get down to some serious negotiation."

If negotiations fail, the first game to be affected by a strike would be San Diego at Chicago, the only afternoon contest scheduled for Friday. However, San Diego pitcher John Curtis, the Padres' player representative, held out a slight hope that the strike still could be averted.

"We are the flagship team in Chicago," Curtis said. "If the (players') executive board feels that substantial progress is being made at the bargaining table, we very well may suit up. The Padres will be at the ballpark Friday ready to

No New Record Tonight

The Phillies' Pete Rose smashes his bat on the ground in frustration after being struck out the third time by Houston Astros' Nolan Ryan to keep Rose from setting a new National League hitting record Wednesday night. Rose matched Stan Musial's 3,630 career record with a first inning hit, but fanned the next three times. See story on page 14. (AP Laserphoto)

Even With 3 Strikeouts, Rose Is A Hero

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Even when he strikes out three times in a game — and Pete Rose hardly ever fans three times in one night — "Charlie Hustle" finds a way to please the fans.

Wednesday night, Rose made 57,386 Philadelphia faithful happy with a first-inning single that boosted him into a tie with Stan Musial for the National League lead in career hits. The 40-year-old first baseman has 3,630 hits in his 181-3 seasons; Musial spent 22 seasons with the St. Louis Cardinals.

After Rose lined Nolan Ryan's fourth pitch of the night to center field for his basehit, he virtually took the rest of the night off as the Phillies rallied for a 5-4 triumph over the Houston Astros. Ryan struck him out the next three times Rose came to the plate.

"When I got that first hit, I felt like 20," said Rose. "And when I struck out the next three times, I felt like 40."

Rose might not get a chance to beat Musial's mark for a while. If the players go on strike after Thursday's games, as they've threatened to do, the Phillies won't play again until the players return. That doesn't worry Rose.

"It won't last until 1985," Rose said. "I'll get the hit sometime."

He might not get it if Ryan is on the mound, however. Not only couldn't Rose get good wood on the ball against the flame-throwing right-hander, he could barely see the ball.

"If he threw every pitch like he pitched tonight," said Rose of Ryan, "I'd be going after my 1,000th hit instead of 3,631. He was geared for me. It was good morning, good afternoon, see you later."

The baseball that Rose hit for his record-tying blow will be given to Rick Sutcliffe, a Los Angeles Dodgers' pitcher, who plans to use it in an auction to raise money for crippled children.

Rose said the ball he hits for the record-breaker will go to the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

While Rose held the spotlight, Garry Maddox was the Phillies' hero. Rose's first-inning safety was the only Philadelphia hit until the eighth. Ryan, leading 4-0, retired the first two batters in the eighth but then gave up a pinch-hit single to George Vukovich.

Steve Carlton, 9-1, had left for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Mike Proly and Tug McGraw pitched the ninth.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Los Angeles 4, St. Louis 1; Cincinnati 2, the New York Mets 0; Montreal 11, Atlanta 2; San Diego 3, Pittsburgh 2, and Chicago sweeping a pair from San Francisco, winning the resumption of a suspended game 2-1, then taking the regularly scheduled contest 7-4.

Dodgers 4, Cardinals 1
Jerry Reuss' masterful three-hitter paced the Dodgers over the Cardinals. Reuss surrendered a home run to Garry Templeton with one out in the first inning, then set down 22 straight batters. Tito Landrum's infield single ended that streak.

"He had total command out there," said Dodgers catcher Mike Scioscia. "We finally got him some runs. If Jerry had any luck, he wouldn't have given up three hits."

Ken Landreaux had a two-run single and Scioscia added an RBI double to lead the 14-hit attack for Los Angeles.

Reds 2, Mets 0
George Foster supplied the power with a fourth-inning homer and Mario Soto handcuffed the Mets on six hits, striking out 11.

Foster said he got a fastball on the "black" and a little up from Mets left-hander Randy Jones for his 13th homer.

"It was a fastball on the black — my black bat. My black, Foster-treated bat launched it out of center field," Foster said.

Soto, 6-6, has struck out 10 or more batters three times this season and has a total of 85 strikeouts. It was the sixth consecutive complete game for the fireballing Soto and his fifth victory in his last six decisions.

"All I could think about was striking him out," said Soto of fanning New York slugger Dave Kingman in the ninth. "I don't know if that's good or bad but it's the way I am. When I get them 0-2, I want to strike them out."

Expos 11, Braves 2
Tim Lincecum stole two bases, giving him 48 and placing him 20 games ahead of Lou Brock's pace when Brock stole 118 in 1974, and Larry Parrish had a three-run homer to back Bill Gullickson, 3-6. The Expos had scored a total of 11 runs in Gullickson's losses.

"Tonight was a team win," said Gullickson. "They hit the ball all over the place. When you have a lead like that, you feel comfortable knowing that you can give up a few runs and not get hurt."

Padres 3, Pirates 2
Ruppert Jones followed singles by Terry Kennedy and Randy Bass with a three-run homer in the sixth to push San Diego to victory. Juan Eichelberger, 6-3, and Gary Lucas combined on a six-hit, with Lucas getting his 10th save.

"We have a right to be happy," said Padres Manager Frank Howard. "We beat a good team."

Cubs 2-7, Giants 1-4

Chicago held on to win a game suspended Tuesday by darkness with the Cubs ahead 2-0. Then Mike Lum homered and had two singles and Bill Buckner and Jerry Morales felt good at the plate and the other guys are hitting and that helps too," said Lum. "We're playing good and it would be a shame if we had to stop now."

Rose Ties Musial, But May Wait For Record

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Rose tied Stan Musial for the all-time National League career hit record of 3,630, but if the major league baseball strike materializes it may be some time before he breaks the record.

A federal judge Wednesday dismissed a National Labor Relations Board charge of unfair labor practices against baseball's owners in negotiations with the Major League Players Association.

Unless the players and owners reach agreement on compensation for free agents, the players have indicated they'll strike by Friday.

Rose said he didn't want to get involved with the labor problems although he backed the players' association.

"I'll be at the ball park at 8:05 Friday night hoping to get a hit off Atlanta's Gaylord Perry, or Saturday night against Phil Niekro," said the 40-year-old Rose, noting, "They're both older than me."

Rose singled in the first inning Thursday night during the Philadelphia Phillies' 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros for the record-tying hit, then he struck out three times against one of the game's best fastball pitchers, Nolan Ryan.

Rose was happy about his latest milestone and pleased with the Phillies' five-run eighth inning rally that produced the victory.

He admitted, however, that he was disappointed with himself.

"I thought I would get two or three hits after that first one," Rose said. "But if Ryan threw every pitch like he did tonight, I'd be going for my 1,000th hit instead of 3,631."

Ryan said he was pitching at his best, adding, "If he had got a hit, I would have tipped my hat to him."

Rose said he saw the ball well on the three strikeouts, but some of the pitches he just heard.

A crowd of 57,386 stood and cheered with every pitch to Rose, who received a standing ovation after his leadoff hit in the first.

But Ryan was to see that it was Rose's last hurrah of the night.

Rose, who described Ryan's pitching as "good morning, good afternoon, see you later," said he felt he disappointed people who had come to see him break the record.

His mother, Laverne Noeth was there from Florida. His son and daughter were there. Musial sat behind the Phillies' dugout. And Willie Mays, like Musial, a Hall of Famer, had come from Atlantic City, N.J., where he is a promotion man for a casino.

Throughout his 18 years in the major leagues, Rose has always been a team player, despite his spectacular individual accomplishments.

He showed it again Wednesday last night. When Garry Maddox hit the game-winning home run, the first player to greet the outfielder at the plate was Rose.

He points to his three World Series rings and says that's what baseball is all about.

Rose said that when Houston got a runner in the ninth, umpire Nick Colosi told him the Astros would tie the game, Rose would get another at-bat and get the game-winning hit and the record.

"Heck, I didn't want a tie game. I didn't want another at-bat that bad. I wanted to win," Rose said.

"I'll get that 3,631st hit. I'm just glad we won," he said.

Umpires Will Honor Strike

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The president of the major league umpires association says that group is prepared to put its jobs on the line in the event of a players strike.

"There is no winner in a strike," National League Paul Runge said Wednesday night in respect to the threatened walkout scheduled for Friday.

"I want to play, not strike," said California Angels outfielder Bobby Clarke. "But if that's what it takes to settle this thing, I'm all for it."

Pitcher Jerry Reuss, the player representative of the Los Angeles Dodgers said the last-minute negotiations "seems like a long poker game to me. They're just trying to turn over their cards and see how they read."

Pittsburgh Pirates executive Harding Peterson said he feels "there will not be a strike because (negotiators) Marvin Miller and Ray Grebey realize a strike would be terrible for all concerned."

Meanwhile, player representative Phil Garner said he told the Pirate players to be ready for a strike on Friday.

"I said also that as far as we read the decision, there probably will be no appeals," Garner said. "There's no tomorrow on Friday."

Babe Ruth League

Planters Bank 20
Home Builders 2

Tony Daniels banded out four hits and pitched Planters Bank to a 20-2 victory over Home Builders last night in the Greenville Babe Ruth League.

Planters took the lead in the top of the first, scoring once, but Home Builders rallied to tie it up. Planters then moved back ahead with one in the second.

In the third, however, Planters scored what proved to be the winning run. Daniels walked and then stole second. He moved to third on a passed ball and scored when Jordy Smith singled.

Planters then went on to add five runs in the fifth, ten in the sixth, and two more in the seventh. The other Home Builders run came in the bottom of the seventh.

In addition to Daniels' four hits, Smith added three, while Richard Pace, Calvin Bradley and John Jordan had two each. Home Builders was led by James Smith with two hits.

Pitt Babe Ruth

Bethel 10
Ayden 5

AYDEN — Bethel rolled up a 10-5 victory over Ayden in a Pitt County Babe Ruth League game last night.

Victor Grimes hurried the victory, with help from Chris Ayers. Jackie Conway took the loss for Ayden.

Bill Blount led the Bethel hitting, getting two in three trips. Junior Huber, Grimes and Daniel Keel each added doubles for Bethel. Ayden was paced by Rober Moye and Wesley Hardy, each going two-for-four. One of Moye's hits was a homer.

Bethel is now 4-1 in league play.

Little League

Wellcome 8
Exchange 1

Wellcome rallied for seven runs in the bottom of the fifth inning and pulled out an 8-1 victory over the Exchange yesterday in Tar Heel Little League play.

Wellcome scored first, getting a run in the first, but Exchange tied it up with one in the fourth.

It stayed that way until the bottom of the fifth, when the Wellcome team exploded for seven big runs.

Greg Vanscoy singled and Terry Warren reached on an error. Anthony Cobb then walked, loading the bases. Vicki Parrott walked, forcing in Vanscoy, and Robbie Moye reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Warren. Chris Brown singled in both Cobb and Parrott. Andrew Perry doubled, driving in Moye and Brown, and two wild pitches brought him around with the final run.

Perry led the Wellcome hitting, getting two of their four hits off Tim Clark.

Dallas McPherson and Parrott combined to hold Exchange to just two hits.

Kiwanis 10
Jaycees 4

The Kiwanis scored early, then held off a last Jaycee rally for a 10-4 North State Little League victory yesterday.

The Kiwanis pushed over one run in the first as Scott Davis cracked a homer. They added three more in the second, all scoring when Timmy Bland homered.

But it was in the third, when they scored four runs, that the Kiwanis closed it out. Jason Galloway opened that inning with a solo homer, the third of the game for the Kiwanis. Davis got a single and Jimmy Gillihan brought him around with a double. Russell Williams then claimed another homer, scoring two runs.

The Kiwanis added two more runs in the fourth. All four Jaycees runs came in the sixth on a grand-slam homer by Michael Garris.

That hit was only one of three allowed by Bland in hurling the win. Davis, Robbie MacDonald and Bland each had two hits to lead the Kiwanis.

SNAPPER HI-VAC™ RIDERS GET YOU MOWING BEFORE THE DEW DRIES OUT.

The "high vacuum" action of your SNAPPER Hi-Vac™ rider lets you mow during high moisture conditions. The power will give you a jump on your chores as your SNAPPER vacuums cuttings, leaves and litter into an optional 6 bu. catcher or trailing 30 bu. Bag-N-Wagon. The floating cutting unit gives you a smooth even cut and minimizes scalping and damage. Cutting height and speed can also be adjusted while on-the-go. And, tight spots are no problem when you have immediate response steering.

SNAPPER mowers are worth more because they do more and their price is competitive with other quality mowers.

Hit Sandbar

SHIP AGROUND — The USS Detroit, a 793-foot fast combat supply ship, remained hard aground in the Chesapeake Bay overnight, waiting for the help of high tide today to pull it off a sandbar. The ship ran aground early Wednesday, about 2 miles east of Old Point Comfort, almost the same spot where the battleship Missouri got stuck for 15 days, 31 years ago. The Navy spent most of the day unloading fuel to lighten the 53,600-ton vessel so it would be easier to refloat. The Detroit has a capacity of 7 million gallons of fuel, and was almost filled to capacity when it ran aground entering Hampton Roads says a Navy spokesman. (AP Laserphoto)

Band Director Sets Up Scholarship In Music

PROVIDES SCHOLARSHIP — Harold W. Grant, band director at Aurora High School, confers with his old friend ECU Music professor Herb Carter (right) about a scholarship in Grant's name, providing for an East Carolina University music student. (ECU News Bureau Photo)

ECU News Bureau

The idea of providing a college scholarship for a talented and needy young music student occurred to Harold W. Grant of Aurora one day last January and now that idea has become a reality.

In part, Grant was thinking about his son. Also a talented musician, the younger Grant attended the University of Illinois for three years on similar scholarships and is now a senior majoring in violin. He is also an accomplished clarinetist and has a strong interest in conducting.

"Part of my original thinking was wondering whether a scholarship with similar intent might benefit students at my alma mater," Grant said. East Carolina University popped in mind.

Grant drove to Greenville, 60 miles away, to East Carolina where Grant received his degree in music in 1950, and discussed his idea with Donald L. Lemish, Vice Chancellor for Institutional Advancement and Planning.

Within a very short period the details were established, incorporating Grant's wishes, particularly that the first scholarship actually be awarded for the 1981-82 school year, and that it go to an incoming freshman majoring in wind or percussion.

This too has become a reality. ECU School of Music officials have announced that Paul Self, a recent graduate of South Mecklenburg High School, Charlotte, a French horn instrumentalist, will be the first recipient of the $500 annual Harold W. Grant Scholarship for wind and/or percussion study.

He was chosen for the Grant scholarship award on the basis of talent displayed at his audition at East Carolina University.

The scholarship will be renewed through the senior year. An additional Grant Scholarship will be added annually until four are in force and eventually supported by endowment income, Lemish announced.

"Mr. Grant has indicated that he plans to expand this fund in the future to provide an endowment which will perpetuate these scholarships," Lemish said. "Harold has a strong loyalty to ECU and feels extremely fortunate for his education. Establishment of this scholarship is his way of saying thanks."

Grant, a trombonist, has taught in a number of school band programs, mostly in North Carolina, and has been band director at Aurora High School for the past six years. A long time friend and associate of ECU Music professor Herbert Carter, Grant performs with chamber groups and orchestras or jazz groups in the area. He also has a daughter, 21 years old, who is a drama major at Southern Illinois University.

Urge Rejecting VEPCO Boost

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Public Staff of the North Carolina Utilities Commission recommended Wednesday that Virginia Electric and Power Co. not be granted a proposed 22 percent increase, stating that Vepco's "imprudent management" necessitated the higher rates.

The Public Staff also urged the commission to tell the company to cut its rates by about 4 percent.

Richard Fischbach, executive director of the Public Staff, said it was unusual for such a recommendation, "especially in these times of high inflation." But he said Vepco was more to blame for its higher operating costs than was the national economy, despite the fact that the utility had not requested a rate hike since 1978.

"We have conducted a thorough investigation and have filed a sound case," Fischbach said. "It's our position ... that Vepco customers should not be punished for Vepco mistakes."

The Utilities Commission will examine the case along with one Vepco filed in December 1980, but is not expected to rule until after a series of public hearings in Raleigh and in counties served by Vepco over the next four to five weeks. Vepco serves a number of counties in northeastern North Carolina.

Vepco spokesman Nick Parham has denied allegations of inefficiency.

"We feel we've operated in a very prudent manner," he said, adding that the company is prepared to argue its case before the commission.

Parham said he "just couldn't understand" the adjustments made by the Public Staff.

The Public Staff said Vepco incurred excessive expenses by failing to maintain and control power generators effectively. It said the company "failed to achieve and maintain reasonable and satisfactory levels of availability, heat rate, and capacity factor, particularly at its base load units."

The staff also took issue with Vepco's figures on rate base, revenues and expenses, claiming they failed to recognize that amounts customers paid accumulated depreciation.

It reduced the rate base by more than $1 million to recognize additional nuclear fuel expenses ratepayers had paid and by another $6,458,000 to recognize a settlement Vepco received from Westinghouse Corp for the latter's failure to deliver promised uranium.

New Tourism Director Has No Fear Of The Future

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Charles Heatherly is one man who has no fear of the energy crisis — a rather odd claim, coming from the state's new director of travel and tourism.

"I've been in the travel line for 12 years, and one thing that's never changed is people's need to get away and restore their sanity once or twice a year," Heatherly says.

"It's true that habits have been altered by the energy situation. But people are still traveling and they'll continue to travel. You just have to offer them enjoyable things to do that they'll be able to afford."

And Heatherly, whose appointment was announced by Commerce Secretary D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth last week, says he's determined to spread the message throughout the nation that North Carolina is the place where that ideal vacation can be had.

It's a constant challenge, he says, especially since neighboring states including Georgia and South Carolina have mounted fierce campaigns to attract travelers. But he says North Carolina has some natural advantages he plans to promote.

"Our location is great — right in the middle of the eastern seaboard," he says. "It gets cold enough in the winter for skiing and hot enough in the summer to make the beaches a great attraction."

The state's four geographical regions — mountains, piedmont, sandhills and coastal plain — can accommodate entertainment interests of most people, he adds.

Heatherly says his office will promote North Carolina as a tourist haven using methods that have worked for years. But he says those methods will be refined to reflect changes in travelers' habits.

For example, he says, the state will continue to pump money into out-of-state advertising because "that's always been successful." But now it will emphasize the state's attractiveness to traveling groups in light of a trend in that direction.

"Group travel is the big thing now," he says. "It's more economical and convenient, especially for senior citizens. Travel agents take care of all the details like transportation, meals, lodging and entertainment. And often it ends up costing less than traveling on your own."

Group travel also benefits the tourist business by providing a "stable, dependable flow of customers," he says.

Heatherly says another trend is toward shorter trips, though North Carolina remains largely dependent on out-of-state travelers. "So again we're adjusting to that," he says, "advertising a lot in nearby states."

This year's advertising campaign apparently is paying off, he says, as inquiries are up 15 percent over this time last year and surveys of resorts show similar results.

In an effort to boost things even further, Heatherly says, his office is planning a replacement of the state's 10-year-old promotional film, which will portray favorite vacation spots and tout North Carolina as hospitable.

The planned 26-minute film will be sent to television stations throughout the country — especially cable stations — as filler material.

"We won't have any choice about what parts will be shown; beggars can't be choosers and we'll definitely be beggars," Heatherly says. "But our experience is that if you send them these films they'll use them. And the response is great."

Another area of emphasis will be extending the state's "peak" tourism period, which presently is confined to summer months, Heatherly says.

"We're going to push North Carolina tourism in what we call the 'shoulder' months, like April, May, September and October," he says. "If we can increase our volume during those times we can really give our economy a boost because you know the summer is going to remain strong."

Heatherly says he's excited about being in charge of promoting the state's third-largest industry (behind textiles and tobacco).

"We're talking about something that provided 200,000 jobs last year and brought in about $2.3 billion into the state," he says.

"Everybody from the governor on down knows how important it is to keep our

Sol Turned To PBS With Idea Popular Music Rooted In South

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Sol Korine is bound to the conviction that popular American music has its roots in the South, and he's equally as sure that there are millions out there who would like to know about it.

Selling that idea, however forcefully put, to television is another matter.

Forget the commercial networks right off; they're not interested in documentary series of any sort. How about the Public Broadcasting Service?

"It was our feeling a long time ago," says Korine, a New Yorker by birth who lives today in Tennessee, "that PBS served basically an elitist audience. But we felt if we could do an intelligent program — a populist program that wouldn't alienate the intellectual — we could interest them in it."

Korine and Blaine Dunlap produced "Southbound" in 11 parts for less than $200,000 — two-thirds of the total from the National Endowment for the Arts, some from the Lyndhurst Foundation and some from the Tennessee Arts Commission. The Georgia Educational Television Network provided some equipment and facilities.

Still, PBS would not accept "Southbound" for its core schedule, and the series is being distributed to stations for broadcast if — and when — they wish.

"We were told it was a regional series. Then when John Alpert does something like 'Third Avenue,' that's considered national," Korine says of the acclaimed documentary that was part of public TV's "Non-Fiction Television" series.

"We try to humanize TV," the filmmaker says. "That's what people tell me a lot: 'It was like being with the people.' It hurts when you're an artist, and you can't get people to look at your work. It gets depressing."

The fact is, though, "Southbound" is on the air, a fascinating tour of the musical South — to fairs, into musicians' homes, to dance halls and churches.

Blues star B.B. King, jazz fiddler Papa John Creach, country-western swing fiddler Johnny Gimble, and rockabilly star Roy Orbison are among the feature artists.

"These people never get the credit they are due," Korine says. "B.B. King worked the 'chittlin' circuit' for years and never got his due. The Rolling Stones did his stuff, and everyone went wild."

"Uncle Dave Mason was the most popular star in the early days of the Grand Ole Opry," he says, "the man who took 19th-century folk music and turned it into country music. In a certain sense, he was more important than Elvis. But who ever heard of him?"

"A lot of these artists are lower-class, and a lot of them are black, and there are prejudices," Korine says. "They are populist artists, but the people who do the respecting are the intelligentsia. If it's respected in New York, it's respected in the rest of the country."

The series is divided into the following parts, in order

Injury Suit By Stuntwoman

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds and all other principals in the movie "The Cannonball Rally" are being sued for $35 million by a stuntwoman permanently crippled while doubling for actress Farrah Fawcett in a car-crash scene.

Heidi Von Beltz, 23, was paralyzed from the waist down and lost use of her hands in the June 25, 1980, accident, her attorneys said Wednesday. The car was supposed to narrowly avoid collision with five other vehicles but collided with a van. The stuntman driving the car also was injured but has since returned to work.

None of the suit's defendants could be reached for comment.

Ratings Reflect Heavy Week For Re-Run TV

NEW YORK (AP) — Only a dozen of the 63 programs broadcast in prime time in the week ending June 7 were on the air for the first time, and ratings for the period reflected the heavy menu of repeats.

CBS won the race with an average rating for the seven-day period — 14.2 — that was the lowest recorded by a winner in nearly a year, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed. CBS won the weekly competition for the week ending Aug. 17 with a 12.4 score.

CBS' first-place finish was the network's third in a row and was accomplished with help from "M-A-S-H," "House Calls" and "Lou Grant," the week's three most-watched programs. NBC finished second for the week with a rating of 13.9, and ABC was third at 13.6. The networks say CBS' rating means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 14.2 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS.

The rating for "M-A-S-H," the week's No. 1 show, was 23.9. Nielsen says that means of all the nation's homes with television, 23.9 percent saw at least part of the show.

Ratings normally fall off in the late spring and summer when viewers tend to spend more time away from their sets. In addition, reruns generally discourage high ratings.

Of the 10 highest-rated programs, only one, ABC's "20-20," was an original broadcast. CBS' "60 Minutes," with one new segment and two previously shown, finished in eighth place, with "20-20" ninth.

Other original programs that scored in the ratings were ABC's "Barbara Walters Special," tied for 12th place; an episode of "Taxi" on ABC in 16th; "ABC Comedy Special," No. 28, and CBS' broadcast of Broadway's Tony awards program, No. 31.

ABC had three shows among the six lowest-rated, including "American Dream" and "Baryshnikov on Broadway" tied for 58th, and Part II in the reprise of "Roots: The Next Generations," tied for 62nd with CBS' "Palmerstown." "White Shadow" on CBS was No. 60, "Sanford" on NBC No. 61.

The week's 10 highest-rated programs:

"M-A-S-H," with a rating of 23.9 representing 19.1 million homes, and "House Calls," 22.4 or 17.9 million, both CBS; "Lou Grant," CBS, and Movie "Detour to Terror," NBC, both 20.7 or 16.5 million; "Diff'rent Strokes," 20.3 or 16.2 million, NBC; "Three's Company," 19.6 or 15.7 million, ABC; "Facts of Life," 19.4 or 15.5 million, NBC; "60 Minutes," 19.1 or 15.3 million, CBS, and "20-20," 18.9 or 15.1 million, and "Laverne and Shirley," 18.8 or 15 million, both ABC.

The next 10 shows: "Too Close for Comfort," ABC; "Happy Days" and "Barbara Walters Special," both ABC, Movie "First You Cry," CBS, and "Real People," NBC, four-way tie; "Taxi," ABC; "Duke of Hazzard," CBS; "Barney Miller," ABC, and "Quincy, M.E.," and "CHiPs," both NBC, tie.

Premiere In Washington

NEW YORK (AP) — A Mozart symphony written by the composer at age 9 and discovered only recently will have its U.S. premiere July 8 at the Kennedy Center in Washington.

"The symphony had been missing for 216 years, except for 15 measures," Bill Lockwood, director of a "Mostly Mozart Goes To Washington" festival, said at a news conference Wednesday.

"We don't know who found it or where," he said. "It's owned by the Bavarian State Library in Germany. They don't want this information made public."

After the Washington performance, the work will be played opening night July 13 of a Mozart festival in Lincoln Center in New York and then repeated July 15. It was performed once in Germany last May.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An excellent day and evening for you to rely more upon your prophetic insight. Advancement can now be gained by looking into activities that have not been part of your life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Your success can be increased if you seek the guidance of experience persons. Exercise caution in travel.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You know exactly how to make a better impression on the one you love, so follow through on such. Don't neglect duties.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Formulate a plan whereby you can ascertain what your true position is with associates. Cooperate more with co-workers.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care of routine tasks that need doing instead of procrastinating. Take time to improve your health and appearance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you study the details concerning entertainment plans you have, you can be successful with them later. Use common sense.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Gain the views of family members and then make your home more comfortable. Happiness can be yours for the asking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are able to entertain friends today after your work is done and have a delightful time. Plan your activities wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are in need of more income now and will be inspired just how to get it. Consult an expert before making any decisions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan for tomorrow's activity during spare time today. Attending a social affair tonight will be to your advantage.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Coordinate new ideas with the plans you have in mind. Help good friends who in turn can be of service to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you show good friends that you value the alliance, you will gain their loyalty. Show increased devotion to loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put aside personal matters and handle civic affairs in a most efficient way. A quiet and restful evening is best for you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have many good ideas developing early in life. It is wise to plan a fine education that will include the study of foreign language and varying philosophies. There is likely to be much travel in foreign countries in this chart.

a 4-0 trump division. He won the queen of clubs and cashed the king. The ace-king of diamonds, ace of clubs and ace-king of spades were cashed, followed by a spade ruff. Declarer ruffed his last high diamond in dummy. Now he and East were each reduced to four trumps, while dummy held three trumps and a spade.

The last spade was led, and East was a dead duck. If he ruffed low, declarer would overruff with the nine. So East ruffed with the ten of trumps. Declarer undertruffed! East was forced to exit with a trump honor, but declarer won in dummy with the king, finessed the nine of trumps and claimed his slam. Louie's silence had cost his side a vulnerable slam!

Until his dying day, "Loose-lip Louie" never understood why he was a consistent loser. He liked to play in strong games, but he was seldom quiet. When he didn't give away his hand by what he said, he revealed it by what he didn't say.

Louie's defense against slams was a case in point. Unless he held K-x in the suit, he always led a trump against a slam, at the same time announcing: "We'll let them row their own boat, partner!" Yet he could not understand why declarers always seemed to produce brilliancies against him.

North-South reached an excellent slam on this hand, which depended only on a trump break no worse than 3-1. On the actual distribution in 999 out of 1,000 cases, declarer would go down. This was the thousandth time, for sitting in the West seat was Louie.

Declarer expected a trump lead, but instead Louie led a club. Since the king of trumps came down in dummy, declarer was quick to conclude that the only thing that would make Louie go against his natural instincts was that he didn't have a trump to lead! So declarer set about the hand assuming

Veterans Going To Washington

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A dozen Vietnam veterans on a hunger strike say they will either form a convoy or "just start marching" to Washington to demand an Independence Day meeting with President Reagan.

The group is seeking independent reviews of Veterans Administration hospital care and the effects of the defoliant Agent Orange and a study of the psychological problems of veterans.

A 'Condensed' Bible Coming

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Readers Digest editors have been condensing great books for three decades, so it was only a matter of time before they tackled the Bible.

Now, the five-year project is almost complete.

"We've already had all the jokes, like which commandment are you leaving out and all that stuff," says John Allen, a Readers Digest vice president and director of corporate affairs.

Allen says a staff of biblical experts has spent years creating a volume designed to supplement the traditional family Bible, not replace it.

"People have been after us for a long time to do something to make the most-bought book in the world also the best-read book, editing it so that it's more readable," he said in a recent interview while here to promote the magazine's writing workshops at the University of South Carolina.

He said the new Bible won't be ready until September 1982, but the company will begin a direct mail promotional campaign soon.

"We haven't cut it that much," he said. "The easiest example is all the begets and begats. There's a great deal of repetition which can be avoided."

Allen said Readers Digest is expecting criticism from fundamentalists and others who don't believe the scriptures need editing.

"We've already had letters," he said. "I know they're sincere, but you know a lot of them probably believe the Bible was written in English."

"It's been through a number of translations and editions already," he pointed out.

REQUESTS APPROVED
Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits in Greenville.

Cannon said the requests were submitted by: the Pitt County Shrine Club to conduct a sidewalk solicitation on July 24 and 25 in order to distribute newsletters to raise funds for the Shriners Crippled Children's Hospital; and by The Guiding Light Temple of Faith to conduct bake sales at several business locations from June 6 to July 19 to raise funds to pay for church expenses.

A Beginning In UNIVAC

By CYNTHIA ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer
BLUE BELL, Pa. (AP) —
The date was June 14, 1951. It was a time when chips were chocolate or potato, not the computer kind. And it was a day that would change the nation, forever immortalizing these six words:
Do not fold, spindle or mutilate.

The world's first commercial computer, designed for the U.S. Census Bureau, was unveiled that afternoon. Scientists, bureaucrats and military brass came to gawk at the future, wrapped in a gleaming metal box known as UNIVAC I.

Measuring 8 feet high, 7½ feet wide and 14½ feet long, the Universal Automatic Computer (UNIVAC) proved to be a perfect luncheon guest, quietly consuming strands of magnetic tape for the curious.

Next to UNIVAC was a control panel, described by one newspaper reporter as "a contraption that looks like a combination pipe organ console, a linotype machine and a telephone switchboard." Nearby, he added, was a "Buck Rogers type-writer."

Thirty years later, pioneers of the Census Bureau remember astonished faces when they recall those first close encounters of a computer kind.

"It was a great mystery. People just marveled over it, thought of it as some kind of superhuman brain," said Robert P. Stephens, 57, who trained people to service the computer and is now in computer performance evaluation for the Census Bureau.

The early UNIVAC was highly accurate, but electronically cantankerous, breaking down two or three times a day.

Beckoned from Philadelphia to Washington to help keep the system running, Edward Stein, 55, recalls Census workers regarded UNIVAC "as an oversized toaster. You'd just push a button and the 'toast' would pop out.

"They didn't understand it. They envisioned some kind of black art."

UNIVAC I was a first for the nation, but it was just another in a series of computer designs for Dr. J. Presper Eckert, who with the late Dr. John W. Mauchly invented the 30-ton granddaddy of them all — the Electronic Numeric Integrator and Computer, or ENIAC.

Although ENIAC had two fathers, necessity was the mother of that invention, said Eckert, 62, who is now vice president and technical adviser to the president of Sperry-Univac.

When U.S. forces landed in Africa in November 1942, the Army discovered the change in environment would force recalculation of thousands of firing tables for artillery guns. But no machine existed that could work at the required pace.

Enter Eckert, a 23-year-old graduate student, and Mauchly, an Ursinus College physics professor who came to the University of Pennsylvania to attend "a class for smart people who needed to know about the war's problems," said

Eckert, then a lab instructor. He and Mauchly began a hasty collaboration on an electronic computing machine for the Army that could deliver ballistics tables quickly and accurately. The proposal was delivered to the Army Ordnance Department at Aberdeen, Md., on April 9, 1943 — Eckert's 24th birthday.

"Those were war days and everything was done on a handshake. We had hoped to finish in 18 months, but they kept adding to the project. It was a brand new area. We were stumbling along in the dark," said Eckert, who has received a number of awards for his contribution, including an honorary doctorate from Penn.

Classified as Project PX, the computer grew more complex with each demand made by the military. While the project wasn't top secret, it was not to be loosely discussed and Eckert found his work difficult to explain, "especially to my draft board. I couldn't tell them what I was doing."

ENIAC, with its 18,000 glowing vacuum tubes in a 30-by-50 foot machine, was delivered to the Army in 1946 at a cost of $400,000. It could do 5,000 calculations a second, not too impressive by today's standards, but it was 1,000 times faster than anything else in those days.

"As it turned out, it wasn't finished in time to help with the war," Eckert said. But its development pointed the way for computer calculations relating to the hydrogen bomb, wind tunnel design, cosmic ray research and weather predictions.

Eckert and Mauchly later formed their own company, the Eckert-Mauchly Computer Corp., which struggled for four years to develop UNIVAC, in part because the firm lost a $2 million government contract after "somebody decided Mauchly's secretary knew a communist, and so that made us unreliable," Eckert said.

In 1950 they sold the company to Remington Rand Inc. (now Sperry-Univac) for $250,000 each. Mauchly became an independent consultant; Eckert remained with the firm.

When they unveiled UNIVAC I in 1951, computers were little more than a novelty. As Eckert put it: "At that point, we were considered a bunch of lunatics."

They sold about 40 of the UNIVAC I model, for more than $1 million apiece. For '50s business executives, the technology was baffling, especially UNIVAC's magnetic memory tapes.

Remote Cape Cod, A National Jewel

By STEVE WILSON
Associated Press Writer
SOUTH WELFLEET, Mass. (AP) — A quarter of the nation's population lives within a day's drive of Cape Cod's magnificent beaches and dunes, and millions make the journey every

Yet along miles of spectacular seacoast, there are no condominium complexes, no high-rise hotels, no tawdry resort buildings clustered in vacation ghettos.
Much of Cape Cod survives as a haven of sea and solitude.

What went right?
Since 1961, some 27,000 acres of beachlands and marshes have been preserved as the Cape Cod National Seashore, a move hailed at the time as "the finest victory ever recorded for the cause of conservation in New England."

The park was not universally accepted when it was created; even today it's at the center of a bitter dispute over use of off-road recreation vehicles, but there's little doubt a treasure has been preserved.

Cape Cod juts into the Atlantic from Southeastern Massachusetts like a bicep-flexing arm. The national seashore stretches along the outer beach from Provincetown at the very tip of the Cape down to the elbow at Chatham.

The rest of the cape is not immune to crowding and development. In fact, it's part of the fastest growing county in the state — Barnstable. Towns like Hyannis, Harwich, Dennis and Provincetown are overrun in the summer.

But the protected seashore, even with 5 million visits a year, avoids being a garish tourist trap. It has remained a sanctuary of sandy beaches, majestic dunes, salt marshes, pitchpine trees, fresh water ponds and historic remnants of earliest Colonial times.

The national park must survive an annual summer crunch when, on a typical day, parking lots and beaches are filled by 10 a.m. and bumper-to-bumper traffic stretches for miles at closing time.

"There are times when it's not that serene," says Superintendent Herbert Olsen.
"But what you have to remember about a seashore is there's quite a bit of room for play and recreation without crowding."

Considerate visitors and early morning cleanup crews have kept the area from becoming a garbage-littered dump site.

The only fee is a $1 charge for a day at any of the seashore's six beaches, which each hold 300 to 350
carsloads.

"Everything we've done at this park is low-key and tasteful," says Marge Burl-ing, former secretary for the National Park Service here.
"A couple can come here with their kids and spend the whole day and the only cost is the beach fee. It's a real bargain."

But there are problems and pressures, too — vandalism, erosion, brutal winter weather, community gripes and boundary disputes.
Nothing has angered some Cape residents more than the government's recent decision to restrict the use of off-road vehicles within the park.

"I wish the National Seashore would just get out of here," says Truro Fire Chief Raymond S. Joseph.
"They're taking away my rights."

Just establishing the seashore posed unique problems. Within its boundaries are six towns — Provincetown, Truro, Wellfleet, Orleans, Eastham and Chatham — owned and inhabited by Cape Codders for over 300 years.

Unprecedented features were adopted: Homes built before Sept. 1, 1959, were permitted to remain in the park. There are approximately 582 of them. The Park Service agreed not to condemn any property if the towns adopted zoning laws to freeze development. A local advisory commission was set up to work with the Park Service in running the seashore.

Despite the precautions, the seashore is not trouble-free. Erosion is widespread.
Visitors ignore signs and fences around sensitive areas to slide down the dunes. Occasional disputes arise over boundaries since some property is jointly owned by private individuals, the state and the park.

Visitors sometimes stray onto private property, unaware that they're trespassing.

But the hottest issue today is the restriction of off-road vehicles — four-wheel-drive beach buggies and campers.

In April, Olsen banned them along a 15-mile stretch of beach and marshland from Provincetown to Eastham. Buggies are still allowed in a corridor along the outer barrier beach from Hatches Harbor to Coast Guard Beach.

Olsen said a five-year study found the vehicles were destroying dunes, vegetation, salt marshes, sand flats, bird nests and shellfish.

Four days after the announcement, the seashore's bathhouse in Truro burned down. It will cost $100,000 to rebuild. Authorities believe the fire was set. Olsen says he fears for his safety.

Despite the squabbles, few disagree that the seashore has kept vulgar exploitation away from a precious section of the cape.

"It's safe to assume (that without the park) the lower cape would be filled with condominiums and pitch-and-putt courses," says David Martin, who helped draft the legislation 20 years ago. "You couldn't have it both ways. It had to be one or

More About Drugs...

There seems to be a great deal of confusion among my readers about the effects of certain drugs, both those that are prescribed by physicians and those that are bought over the counter. Following are two letters I recently received:

Q. Is the combination of penicillin and alcohol dangerous? Can a person taking penicillin go out in the sun?

A. There does not seem to be any interaction in the body between the intake of penicillin and the mild use of alcohol or tobacco. Exposure to the sun while taking penicillin does not add any risk to the patient.

It is difficult to believe that it is almost four decades since penicillin and its allied wonder drugs were first discovered.
Since that initial discovery, sulfa drugs and the tetracyclines have added immeasurably to the control of devastating disease.

Penicillin works by destroying bacteria. Wherever there is an accumulation of these germs and pus, and where a concentration of penicillin can be brought to that area by the bloodstream, the effectiveness of the drug becomes evident.

Viruses are not destroyed by antibiotics. Nevertheless they are often given to patients with severe viral infections in the hope that secondary invasion by bacteria would be interrupted by the antibiotics.

It is believed that anticid drugs may reduce the absorption of penicillin and consequently modify its effectiveness. Some of the mycin drugs are not used with penicillin because they too seem to decrease the effectiveness of the penicillin.

Nursing mothers should be careful about using penicillin.
For sometimes the drug present in the mother's milk may sensitize the infant to penicillin.

Most of what has been said about penicillin applies also to the tetracycline drugs. It is believed that antacids and dairy products may interfere with the absorption of these antibiotics and markedly reduce their effectiveness.

Q. Are there any dangers to using too many antacids?

A. The overuse of any drug — even though it may be said to be "totally harmless" — can be dangerous.

Antacids work by neutralizing the hydrochloric acid that is normally produced in the stomach. By diminishing the acidity of the stomach, they prevent the irritation of the inner lining of the stomach and reduce inflammation and ulceration.

Many anticid drugs contain aluminum hydroxide. It is not commonly known that when taken in large doses this can be responsible for intestinal obstruction, especially if inadequate quantities of fluid are taken with the antacids.

Calcium carbonate, found in some antacids, can, when taken in large doses, be responsible for kidney stones and for impaired kidney function.

Although there is no dependence on antacids, many people keep popping them all day long without first investigating the reason for their intestinal distress.

Those who are taking other drugs should remember that antacids may reduce the effectiveness of penicillin, the tetracyclines, and other drugs. Consequently it is wise not to continue on an anticid regime indiscriminately and for a long period of time.

Sesame Street Targets Parents

NEW YORK (AP) — The producers of Sesame Street, the internationally shown television series that has sought to educate children for the past 12 years, have launched a monthly publication for the parents of their young viewers.

The Children's Television is aimed at mothers and fathers of 2-to-8 year olds.

Regular features include a parents' round-table discussion of issues such as discipline, sibling problems and working mothers; a fathers' page on which men offer their perspectives on parenting; medical information and advice; first-person accounts of the problems of parenthood, and regular polls which allow parents to communicate their concerns.

Now 101 Uses For A Dead Cat

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—There may be more than one way to skin a cat, but only one man is willing to risk the wrath of 23 million cat lovers with 101 suggestions for what to do with the hide.

That man is Simon Bond, a 33-year-old Englishman who professes to love cats even though they make him sneeze.

His best-selling book, entitled "101 Uses for a Dead Cat," is a dementedly whimsical collection of cartoons purporting to show how cats can be useful even after they've exhausted their nine lives.

Some call it disgusting, obscene, sadistic, horrible and sick. Others call it very funny. And everybody calls it very, very successful.

Already, 200,000 copies of the $2.95 book published by Clarkson N. Potter Inc. of New York are in print, pushing it well past the "cat books" it spoofs.

It's even more popular than the recent publishing phenomenon "The Official Preppie Handbook," which spoofed an altogether different sort of cat.

Bond's uncaptioned drawings show stuffed cats used as bookends on the mantle above a fireplace and as little throw rugs, like bearskins, before the hearth. "Monstrous and obscene," Roy Youngdale of Los Altos, Calif., said in one of dozens of outraged letters received by the publisher from cat fanciers. "An open call to sadism."

Bond, who said he got the idea for the 95-page book during a conversation with friends in Britain's zany Monty Python comedy troupe, has sketched rigor mortis cats with tails sharpened so they can be thrown at dartboards.

"Weirdness," wrote Nancy Orr of Tampa, Fla.

One of Bond's kitty carcasses has been hollowed into a bowling ball bag; several others are mounted above prison fences with their tiny ears holding barbed wire in place.

"The death of a cat is not a funny circumstance," Ann Green-Cloutier of Warren, R.I., wrote.

A cat's foreleg serves as a tone arm on a phonograph and a carcass draped over a teapot as a cozy. One flattened kitty, grasped by the tail, serves as a tennis racket. Another squished feline, without tail, is a perfect Frisbee.

One writer, W. Michael Long, suggested another book: "101 Uses for a Dead Simon Bond."

The book also depicts four cats as dining table legs, while a cat on its hindquarters with forelegs extended is a functional wine rack. Two tails are portrayed as windshield wipers and little paws are transformed into rubber stamps.

"Horrible," wrote Laurie Zane. "This man must be a sad and despicable human being."

Actually, Bond is a rather impish fellow whose asthma and allergies led him to move to Phoenix, Ariz., several years ago.

His cartoons have been published in magazines like Esquire and the New Yorker, but Bond swore in an interview that he had never earned more than $10,000 in a single year—until now.

He said "101 Uses" was put together for fun, not money.

"I couldn't have done the book if I thought it was terrible," he protested. "I'm the first to start sneezing when a cat comes round, but I'm also the first to start petting it."

Nancy White Kahan, the publicist promoting "101 Uses," says more than 200,000 copies of the book have been printed, and booksellers are ordering in quantities surpassing the previous record fast-seller, "The Official Preppie Handbook."

This week "101 Uses" hit No. 7 on the New York Times list of trade book bestsellers and No. 1 on the Walden and Dalton bestseller lists, ahead of other books in the cat category like "The Official I Hate Cats Book," the "Cat-calender" and "Garfield Gains Weight."

Despite the letters, Ms. Kahan says booksellers report most of the buyers are cat fanciers.

"A few people have just lost their sense of humor and their perspective over it," she said.

Psychologist Joyce Brothers agrees. While Bond's catty humor may be slightly sick, she said, it is nonetheless a harmless sort of comedy that produces laughter and relieves tension.

"It's a put-on," she said. "If you get upset at this, you have too much emotional involvement in your pet."

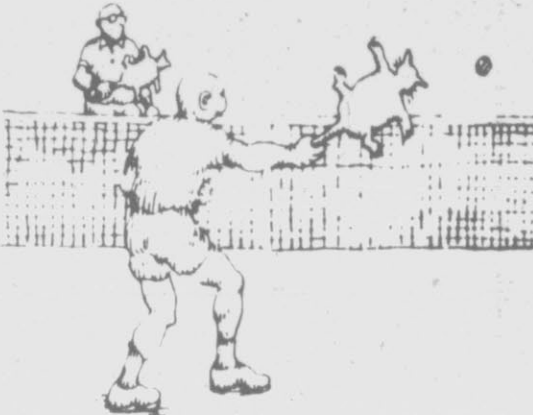

There have been favorable letters, too. One arrived on the stationery of the Bahrain Dead Cat Society, purportedly from the State of Bahrain on the Arabian Gulf. The group's motto is "Feix Morte," and its cable address is FLATCAT.

The society said it was "eagerly" ordering five copies to share with its affiliates. And who are they?

Well, the letter listed them as the North American Dead Dog Society, the Kenyan Institute for Crushed Aardvarks, the Fiji Squashed Squid Squad and the North Scunthorpe Hedgehog Hit Men.

Devilish Mascot Under Fire Of A Citizen's Group

Joke Was On Eatery Chain

By BRENDA INGERSOLL
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The giant grocery store-style coupons plastered on buses and in subway stations were meant to be a gag; the owners of Lettuce Entertain You Enterprises never dreamed the advertisements would be dragged into the company's nine Chicago-area restaurants for redemption.

But the joke — and dinner — was on the restaurant group as about 100 patrons showed up at the eateries lugging the posters — some of which were 12 feet long and weighed as much as 40 pounds — and demanded the promised free meals.

The posters read in part: "If you redeem this poster and take us up on this offer of a free meal, we'll serve you some good eats — and you'll probably serve some time."

"So just bring this poster to (any of Lettuce Entertain You's restaurants) for a free meal. And for dessert we'll call in the authorities."

Rich Melman, co-founder and president of the company, which owns restaurants ranging from inexpensive to the fashionable Pump Room, said 200 of the posters adorned buses and about 25 were put up in subway stations and on elevated train platforms.

"It was just to promote our corporation's 10th anniversary celebration Wednesday," says Melman, 39. "I thought people would laugh. We thought at most we'd get 10 or 15 of them back."

The posters came in two sizes, 6 feet and 12 feet long. Michael Jaye, head of promotions for Lettuce Entertain You, said promoters "had no idea people would actually begin removing them — and in some cases it was tough to do."

"A few were on the back wall of subway stations, and we learned that someone had actually crossed the third rail to get over and peel it off the wall," Jaye said. "We took the rest of those down right away."

And then there was the couple riding a motorcycle who spotted one of the giant coupons on the back of a bus.

"They came to a light and hopped off to remove part of it. The light changed, and they followed to the next light where they got a little more. It took them three lights before they got it all," Jaye said.

"I guess the lesson here is never underestimate someone looking for a free meal," he added.

As for the coupons' remarks about "serving time" and "calling in the authorities," Melman and Jaye said several enthusiasts arrived at restaurants huffing and puffing after eluding well-meaning police officers and bus drivers who thought the coupon removal amounted to vandalism.

"We had all types of phone calls the first day of the promotion from people who

VERNON, N.Y. (AP) — The public school system's Red Devil mascot is under fire from a citizens group led by an 81-year-old grandmother who says the students are worshipping Satan by showing school spirit.

"I can't think of any symbol for the team which would be worse," said Catherine Brewer, who formed "God's Concerned Citizens." The 35-member group is trying to exorcise the Red Devil from the Vernon-Verona-Sherrill school system where it has reigned supreme for the past 25 years.

The Red Devil is the symbol for girls' and boys' sports teams. The district, about 25 miles east of Syracuse, enrolls about 3,000 students in grades 1 through 12.

Since last fall, several attempts by God's Concerned Citizens have failed to persuade the board of education that the devil should go.

"If they could come to me and show me that the mascot makes our kids different in any adverse ways, then we'd consider changing the thing," said school Superintendent Albert Kouba. "But they haven't proved that. Our kids are good kids."

Mrs. Brewer, a grandmother of seven and semi-retired lawyer, said she first learned about the mascot in 1978 when she saw it on a refreshment truck in the parking lot of her church. "I asked my grandson, 'Bill, why is the devil in our church's parking lot?'" Mrs. Brewer recalled. "He said, 'Why, Grandma, that's our mascot in school.' Well, I couldn't believe this. It stunned me. He was an athlete in high school, and he puffed up his chest and said 'Grandma, I'm a Red Devil.'"

"I told him what a terrible thing that was for him to say." Later, Mrs. Brewer said, the wide use of the mascot persuaded her to start her campaign. A mat outside the school doors reads "Welcome to the Home of the Red Devil." A sign in the basketball gym reads "Satan's Pit." A caricature of a devil's head is painted on the gym floor. The student newspaper is called "The Devil's Advocate." The Red Devil has also appeared on school mugs, pencils and class rings.

Now, Mrs. Brewer's group is trying rally constituents against the Red Devil, hoping the threat of ballot box pressure might change the school board's mind.

"I am certain we represent the views of every Christian in this town. It's just that they don't want to come forward to speak," she said.

The group recently sent letters to the 350 voters who turned out for the last board election. The letters point to what Mrs. Brewer calls the "high alcoholism" of VVS students, a problem she says may be related to the Red Devil. School officials deny her allegation of rampant alcoholism in students.

"To me, the devil is not a joke," said the Rev. Donald Bauer of St. Helena's Church in Sherrill, another member of the anti-devil group. "He
