Climbers Buried By Avalanche

By CAROL WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
PARADISE, Wash. (AP) — When the 100-yard-wide wall of ice snapped from the glacier high atop Mount Rainier, Larry St. Peter said he and his fellow climbers stood transfixed in awe for a moment.

"All of a sudden there was a crack and a snap," St. Peter said. "The thing I remember vividly was everybody just going, 'Oooh,' kind of like they were watching a Fourth of July display."

Just as suddenly, however, chunks of ice as big as automobiles rained down on the 29-member climbing party, burying 11 of them in an avalanche of ice and snow that roared across Ingraham Glacier near Disappointment Cleaver shortly after sunrise Sunday.

Searchers held out little hope today for the survival of any of the 10 climbers and one guide. Mount Rainier Park Ranger Larry Henderson said there was a slim chance that the bodies could be uncovered even if they could be found.

Two teams with a total of 22 mountain rescue volunteers, park rangers and climbing guides left here for Camp Muir at the 10,000-foot level of the 14,410-foot peak late Sunday. The search party spent the night at Camp Muir, a guide service camp, before leaving for the icefall scene at daybreak today.

"The likelihood of being able to remove them is extremely slim," Henderson said. "The first evaluations are not good at all as far as being able to do anything."

In another climbing accident Sunday, five members of a Portland, Ore., group were killed after they fell while descending Mount Hood, authorities said.

The Hood River County sheriff's office said four of the climbers died on the mountain, while authorities at the Portland Adventist Hospital said another died after reaching the hospital.

Sheriff Robert D. Lynch reported that all 12 climbers in the party were involved in the same fall. He said five of them, including the man who died, were taken off the mountain in critical condition.

The injured were taken by Air Force Reserve helicopters to local hospitals.

The fall occurred at about 9,000 feet elevation on Eliot Glacier, which is on the northeast side of the 11,235-foot mountain about 50 miles east of Portland. Mount Hood is about 100 miles south of Mount Rainier in Oregon.

Once the extreme avalanche danger subsides on Mount Rainier and stormy weather improves enough to allow a helicopter to reach the area, chain saws and other tools may be flown in to help searchers remove the ice chunks, said Park Superintendent Bill Briggie.

Dennis Robertson, along with St. Peter, of Edmonds, was a survivor. Robertson said no one moved as the wall of ice fell, but "Then the guides yelled to run."

A block of ice slammed into Robertson's shoulder and he was "sent flying. Two rope teams just disappeared from sight."

Those who escaped reported bumps and bruises but no major injuries.

The missing climbers may have been swept into a 100-foot deep crevasse, witnesses said.

A climbing party of six guides and 23 customers left Camp Muir before sunrise on a summit attempt conducted by Rainier Mountaineering Inc., said Jerald Lynch, president

Air Controller Pact Reached

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide strike by air traffic controllers was averted today after all-night negotiations produced a tentative contract settlement just two hours before the threatened walkout.

The agreement was announced by the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization and confirmed by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Controllers around the country reported for work as usual as the 7 a.m. EDT strike deadline passed. A strike would have grounded about half the nation's commercial flights, costing the airlines an estimated $80 million to $100 million a day and the economy in general two to three times that much.

Airport control towers reported normal operations with no major delays and airlines told passengers who had made backup reservations to use regularly scheduled flights.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis told reporters at mid-morning, "We're very pleased to report that we have reached an agreement subject to ratification by the union membership ... It is fair and equitable and one that all parties can accept."

Union president Robert Poll said, "I'm pleased with the settlement of the contract. I'm tired, but I feel good about it." He said members would vote on the tentative pact next week and that it would take an additional week to count the mail ballots.

Lewis said the 42-month contract would cost the government $40 million, the same figure the administration had offered. The union had sought a contract worth $770 million, but Poll said that "under present economic conditions, I feel it's the best we could achieve." He said he was convinced that President Reagan would not endorse any additional money.

The union had sought $10,000 raises for the controllers, who average $34,000 a year, with a low of $20,500 and a high of $49,200.

Lewis estimated the tentative pact will provide each of the nation's 17,000 controllers an average, immediate pay hike of $4,000.

He said the average salary increase in the first year would be about 6.6 percent, in addition to the increase of approximately 4.8 percent that all governmental employees are due to receive this year.

The controllers' workweek will fall from 40 hours to 36, although they will still be paid for 40 hours, four of the hours as overtime. The union had sought a 32-hour workweek.

The union also won a voice in FAA decisions affecting controllers and an increased night pay differential.

ident and co-owner of the private guide service. The other owner is famed mountain climber Lou Whittaker.

Three members had tired and decided against making the summit attempt before the accident. One guide led them back down, leaving five guides and 20 other climbers, Lynch said.

At Ingraham Flats, about 11,000 feet up the mountain, three guides separated from the party to check avalanche conditions ahead, while the remaining rope teams of four, five or six rested below, he said.

Then, said Briggie, who spoke with three of the RMI guides after the disaster, a massive ice wall fell about 800 feet and "literally exploded when it hit the ground," sending snow, ice and other debris roaring toward the climbers.

The icefall left rubble strewn 70 feet deep and 150 to 300 yards across, Henderson said.

"I felt it was beyond my capabilities, as did two other climbers," said Bob Hammon of Federal Way, one who turned back before the tragedy. "I feel very lucky to be alive."

Okay Curbs On Krishna Groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — States may restrict religious groups, such as the Society of Krishna Consciousness, from distributing literature and soliciting donations in certain locations, the Supreme Court ruled today.

The decision reinstated a Minnesota law preventing the Krishna Consciousness members from roaming the state fair's 125 acres to sell and give away literature and seek contributions.

But the ruling also appeared to allow states to restrict such activity at other public places, such as airports and bus stations.

Nixon Subject To Penalty In Court's Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today upheld a ruling that will force former President Nixon and two of his top aides to pay money damages for illegally spying on American citizens.

Today's action sends the case back to a federal trial court, where former national security aide Morton Halperin will try to prove that he and his family are entitled to a substantial award.

A federal appeals court had ruled that a nominal money award was insufficient to make up for the constitutional violations caused by a 21-month wiretap on Halperin's home telephone.

Today's decision carries little or no impact on future cases because it was affirmed by an equally divided 4-4 vote.

The major resolution which had been expected in today's ruling — that is, when a president can be held personally liable for money damages for his misconduct in office — will have to wait for another day.

The court today agreed to review just such a case posing that question. The case was brought by government whistle-blower A. Ernest Fitzgerald, who claims that Nixon is liable for money damages because Fitzgerald was illegally fired from his civil service position.

Included in today's 4-4 affirmation are former Attorney General John Mitchell and former Nixon chief of staff H.R. Haldeman. Also to be decided when the case is sent back on the damage question is a similar allegation against former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

According to Halperin's lawyer, the basic question of liability, rather than the amount of money damages, still remains to be determined in Kissinger's case.

Abstaining from the 4-4 vote was Justice William H. Rehnquist, who was a Justice Department lawyer at the time of the alleged violations.

Rehnquist did not note that he was abstaining from the Fitzgerald case. That indicates that the court is expected to have a detailed opinion when it decides the case, probably some time next year.

Suspect Is Linked To Atlanta Killing

By DAVID PACE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — A 23-year-old black free-lance photographer charged with the murder of one of 28 young blacks slain in Atlanta was arrested after laboratory tests linked fibers found on the victim with evidence taken from his home, sources said.

Wayne B. Williams, arrested Sunday, was questioned about the slayings and released less than three weeks ago. He became the first person charged with any of the killings of 23 juveniles and five young adults.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown told a hastily called news conference at the Fulton County Jail on Sunday that Williams had been charged with "one count of criminal homicide" in the death of Nathaniel Cater, 27, whose body was found May 24 in the Chattahoochee River. Williams was jailed, waiting for his preliminary hearing to be set.

Brown refused to say if Williams would be charged with any of the other killings. "That's something that's not to be discussed at this time," he said, adding that the investigation would continue "full steam ahead."

A committal hearing for Williams was tentatively scheduled for noon EDT today in State Court. At that hearing, a judge will decide if probable cause existed to arrest Williams and if evidence against Williams can be presented to a county grand jury.

By law, Williams must be given a hearing within 72 hours of his arrest unless he asks that his case be continued.

WAYNE WILLIAMS

Fulton County Sheriff Leroy Stynchcombe said Williams was being held in isolation in the maximum security wing of the jail.

He denied reports that death threats against Williams had been received. "We have him properly guarded, both for his own protection and also for security," Stynchcombe said, declining to elaborate.

Authorities said Williams had been charged five years ago with impersonating a police officer after allegedly speeding to a crime scene with red lights flashing under the grill of his car. The charges were reduced and disposed of in traffic court, officials said.

Traffic charges also were pending against Williams as a result of a June 10 incident in which he allegedly ran a red light, police said.

Meanwhile, The Atlanta Journal reported today that top law enforcement officials met last Friday for seven hours at the governor's mansion at the request of Vice President George Bush.

Bush telephoned Gov. George Busbee on Thursday after reviewing an FBI report on the investigation and asked Busbee to meet with local FBI and Justice Department officials for a briefing, according to the Journal.

The newspaper quoted an unnamed official familiar with the meeting as saying Busbee told the group he would support whatever decision local prosecutors made, but added that Williams' status — under surveillance but not charged — should not continue indefinitely.

After an indication that sufficient cause existed to charge Williams in the Cater slaying, those at the meeting then discussed how Williams would be arrested, the Journal said.

Busbee's press secretary, Duane Riner, declined to confirm or deny the report of the meeting, but he did say Busbee spent Friday at the mansion.

The Journal said those attending the meeting included: Busbee, Fulton County District Attorney Lewis Slaton, Georgia Attorney General Arthur K. Bolton, Georgia Bureau of Investigation Director Phil Peters and several of their aides.

On ABC-TV's Good Morning America show today, Brown denied that any pressure was applied by Washington for an arrest in the case.

"I don't know that it takes any pressure," said Brown. "It's not necessary for anyone to place pressure on us to do our job."

"I'm like everybody else. All I know is what I've read in the paper. But I'm delighted," ECU Chancellor Dr. Thomas Brewer said this morning of the settlement of the 10-year fight over desegregation of the University of North Carolina system.

U.S. Secretary of Education Terrel Bell announced the settlement with the UNC Board of Governors Saturday and said the settlement has "great significance" for higher education.

"We are all concerned with offering all the students in North Carolina the finest education experience we can," Brewer said. "I haven't seen any details, but I'm delighted they've settled the issue."

"All I know is what I've read. I don't know anything beyond that. But I'm very definitely glad it has been settled," Troy Pate, chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees said today. "It's been a long, hard battle. I admire the tenacity of the Board of Governors for standing up for the fact that we're going to control our own educational system," Pate added.

Although all of the details of the settlement have not been announced, Bell said he hopes to apply the solution used in the case to other desegregation cases that are still pending.

The solution of the case, according to Bell, involved "incentives rather than coercion." The most significant part of the settlement, he added, is the establishment of 29 new "high-demand" programs at five traditionally black colleges which would "attract a greater number of white students to the schools and retain a number of the brighter black students who might now go off to the flagship school."

The new programs include courses in engineering, accounting, music, education and other subjects.

The settlement also calls for increasing black enrollment at white schools from the current 7.4 per cent to 10.6 per cent by the 1986-87 academic year and increasing white enrollment at the former black colleges from 11.2 percent to 15 percent.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which started the action against the university system, still has the right to ask the court to disallow the agreement.

David J. Whichard II of Greenville, a member of the UNC Board of Governors, said "I'm pleased with the settlement" which he said "protects the integrity of the university" and "provides realistic goals."

The settlement of the case, Whichard added, "will mean the university officials can devote their attention to running the university rather than the inordinant amount of time spent in this litigation."

He added that the settlement "pretty well follows" what the Board of Governors outlined in the system's five year plan adopted some time ago.

Pope-Jones Vows Are Solemnized Sunday

DURHAM — Glendolyn Pope were united in marriage Sunday at Sarah P. Duke Gardens here. The Rev. Richard McMillian performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Knight. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Doris Sanders of Hickory. The bride's grandmother is Mrs. Johnnie Mae Jones of Behtel.

Given in marriage by her cousin, Carlton Jones of Fayetteville, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza over peau de soie designed with an open V-neckline outlined in imported re-embroidered chantilly lace beaded with bridal pearls. The matching lace was repeated on the empire bodice. The full bishop sleeves had cuffs of lace. The modified A-line skirt was fashioned with panels of imported lace. Silk covered buttons enhanced the back of the gown from the neckline to the waist. She wore a shoulder length mantilla held in place by a Camelot cap.

MRS. JAMES E. POPE

She carried a bouquet of silk roses and blue pansies.

Mrs. Rosslyn Crandell and Cheryl Knight, sisters of the bride, were matron and maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Valerie Quick, Barbara Carney, Mrs. Florine Purdie, Mary Stanley, Mrs. Vicki P. Adams, sister of the bridegroom, Rennie Pope, cousin of the bridegroom, and Laverne Weaver, cousin of the bride.

Tomeka Adams, the bridegroom's niece, was flower girl. Shaun Williams, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. Mrs. Carolyn Blount directed the wedding.

Chris Collins was best man. Ushers were Gerald Jett, Bobby Crandell and Michael Lynch and Sam Tucker Jr., both cousins of the bridegroom.

A reception was held following the ceremony at Royal Oaks Clubhouse in Durham.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of UNC-Chapel Hill. The bride is employed at Frank Porter Graham Child Den Center. The bridegroom is employed with AVCO Financial Services.

After a wedding trip to Canada, the couple will live in Durham.

Customers: Pay For Newspaper

By Abigail Van Buren

1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My son is a newspaper carrier. He just came home terribly disappointed after attempting to collect his paper route bills. Apparently many people do not realize that newspaper carriers are in business for themselves. They must pay for the newspapers out of their own pockets, and collect the money in order to stay even. If the carrier fails to collect from the customer, the carrier is out of luck!

My son's enthusiasm for his paper route has dropped to the point where he is thinking of quitting. I would hate to see that happen, Abby, because his paper route was his first step toward financial independence and maturity.

Abby, please say something in your column about the importance of paying the newsboy. You wouldn't believe the number of people who move away without paying. Also, there are those who keep asking the carrier to "come back another time." Some of those poor kids have had to go back four or five times to get their money and they take a lot of verbal abuse to boot.

SACRAMENTO DAD

DEAR DAD: Here's your letter, and I hope it helps.

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to the bed hopping wife, WEAK IN ILLINOIS, missed the mark. She said, "I've gone from one adulterous affair to another until now I can't even count them. I'm not oversexed; in fact, I'm just the opposite. I get nothing out of these affairs, and can't for the life of me understand why I deliberately get myself into such miserable situations that offer no sexual fulfillment, knowing if I'm caught I'll lose my husband and children. Can't something on the order of Alcoholics Anonymous be organized for compulsive adulterers?"

You replied, "I can't imagine a compulsive adulterer phoning another compulsive adulterer and being talked out of it."

Abby, I am a recovering compulsive adulterer who tried two psychiatrists, one psychoanalyst, three group therapies, various religious approaches and finally exorcism! Understanding what motivated me did not give me the power to control my actions. I lost my wife and children, and I was about to lose my second family when I found a program based on the principles of Alcoholics Anonymous to help compulsive "lusters" control their lust in the same way compulsive alcoholics control their drinking.

It is "Sexaholics Anonymous," a fellowship of men and women who share their experiences and help each other conquer their common problem.

I am now free from the obsession of sex, and have not had sex with either myself or anyone other than my wife for the last five years. That is a miracle for which I thank God and Sexaholics Anonymous.

In 1979 we received authorization from Alcoholics Anonymous to adopt its 12 steps, but there is no organizational affiliation between S.A. and A.A. There are no dues or fees. Like A.A., S.A. is entirely self-supporting and accepts no outside contributions. The only requirement for membership is a sincere desire to stop lust and help other sexaholics to achieve sexual sobriety.

SET FREE IN L.A.

DEAR FREE: Until I received your letter, I had never heard of "Sexaholics Anonymous," and after checking it out, I am convinced that yours is a serious, legitimate program. If there are others out there whose lives have become unmanageable because of compulsive lust, information about this newly formed organization can be obtained by writing to: P.O. Box 300, Simi Valley, Calif. 93062.

MRS. DAVID DONALD MOORE JR.

Double Ring Vows Spoken

Debra Darline Jones of Winterville and David Donald Moore Jr. of Greenville were united in marriage Sunday at three o'clock in the afternoon at Hooker Memorial Christian Church. Dr. Ralph Messick performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Roberson of Greenville and Mr. George E. Jones of Tarboro. The bridegroom's father is Mr. David Donald Moore of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Tom Hawley, organist, accompanied by Kay Belangia, guitarist, and Cliff Harris, who sang "Evergreen," "If" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of white tulle designed by Bianchi. The gown featured an empire bodice decorated with alencon lace outline soutache and a bolero jacket with long bishop sleeves ending in lace wedding cuffs. The formal length A-line skirt extended into a chapel train. The bride wore a fingertip layered mantilla of scalloped bridal illusion accented with alencon lace, soutache and seeded pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses, orchids, baby's breath and greenery.

Barbara Slate of Laurinburg was maid of honor. She wore a two-piece aqua green styled gown with spaghetti straps and gathered bodice. The A-line skirt was complemented by a removable jacket. In her hair, she wore a daisy with baby's breath and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers.

Bridesmaids were Robyn Taylor of Tallahassee, Fla., Peggy Braxton, Pansy Jones, the bride's sister, Donna Coghill and Nita Burroughs, both cousins of the bride, all of Greenville. They wore aqua blue gowns styled identically to the maid of honor with floral print jackets and carried similar bouquets.

April Coghill of Greenville was flower girl. She wore a white eyelet dress with fitted bodice and full flared skirt with ruffled flounce at the hemline. She carried a lace basket filled with mixed flowers. Scott Coghill of Greenville was ring bearer. He carried a white satin pillow.

David Belangia of Winterville was best man. Ushers were Mike Pearce, Howard Speight, Ashley Roberson, the bride's stepfather and Greg Jones, the bride's brother, all of Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a blue silk chiffon gown. The mother of the bridegroom selected an aqua green chiffonette gown. They each wore a corsage of pink roses with baby's breath.

A reception, given by the

Miss Narron Is Bride

WILSON — Amy Elizabeth Narron and Shay Lawrence Weir exchanged wedding vows Sunday afternoon here in a three o'clock ceremony performed by Lt. Col. John B. Narron, chaplain. The double ring ceremony took place in the First Free Will Baptist Church.

Parents of the bride are Lt. Col. and Mrs. Narron of Griffis AFB, Rome, N. Y. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Weir of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Sandra Pearson, organist, Shawnee Weir, sister of the bridegroom, flutist, Ruth Marie Narron, sister of the bride, and William G. Barbe, soloists.

Clifford T. Moore was best man and the matron of honor was Rhonda W. Moore, both of Greenville.

Bridesmaids included Ruth Marie Narron of Rome, N. Y., sister of the bride, Janna Lee Weir of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom and Bonnie A. Narron of Blytheville, Ark., sister-in-law of the bride.

Ushers included Gene Freeman and Dr. Tom Knutson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, both of Greenville and 1st Lt. John Mark Narron, USAF of Blytheville, Ark., brother of the bride.

Given in marriage by her brother, 1st Lt. Narron, the bride wore a gown of chantilly lace and tulle over satin fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and yoke of illusion. The fitted sleeves ended in calla lily points over the wrists and the full skirt extended into a chapel length train. The dress was worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day. The headpiece was a fingertip length man-tilla of bridal illusion bordered with chantilly lace appliques attached to a satin cap. Her bouquet featured apricot roses, white pixie carnations, white daisies, baby's breath and Baker's fern in a cascading style.

The honor attendant wore an apricot floor length gown featuring off the shoulder blouson top with accordion pleated skirt. She carried a nosegay of apricot pixie carnations, yellow daisies, baby's breath with yellow and apricot streamers.

The bridesmaids were dressed like the honor attendant and carried identical bouquets.

A reception followed in the church fellowship hall.

Tables were covered with white lace on white and decorated with ivy, baby's breath and apricot satin roses. Mrs. Annette Farmer poured punch. Miss Betty Davis served cake. Miss Ramey Jo Dickerson, all cousins of the bride, entertained at the piano. Miss

Top with remaining patties, seal securely by pressing sides together and grill.

Nora Narron, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register.

The couple plan to live in Wilson after a wedding trip to Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The bride is assistant manager with Lerner, Parkwood Mall, Wilson. The bridegroom is assistant manager at T-Shirts Plus, Carolina East Mall,

Farmers Mart Important

N. C. Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham was the speaker for the grand opening of the Greenville Farmers Market on Reade Circle Friday morning.

It was an important occasion for vegetable growers of Pitt County and their customers, so a major occasion was called for.

Sam Uzzell, assistant agricultural extension agent for the county, said, "This is an event to make the Department of Agriculture and the public aware of what folks are doing here in the county in relation to horticulture."

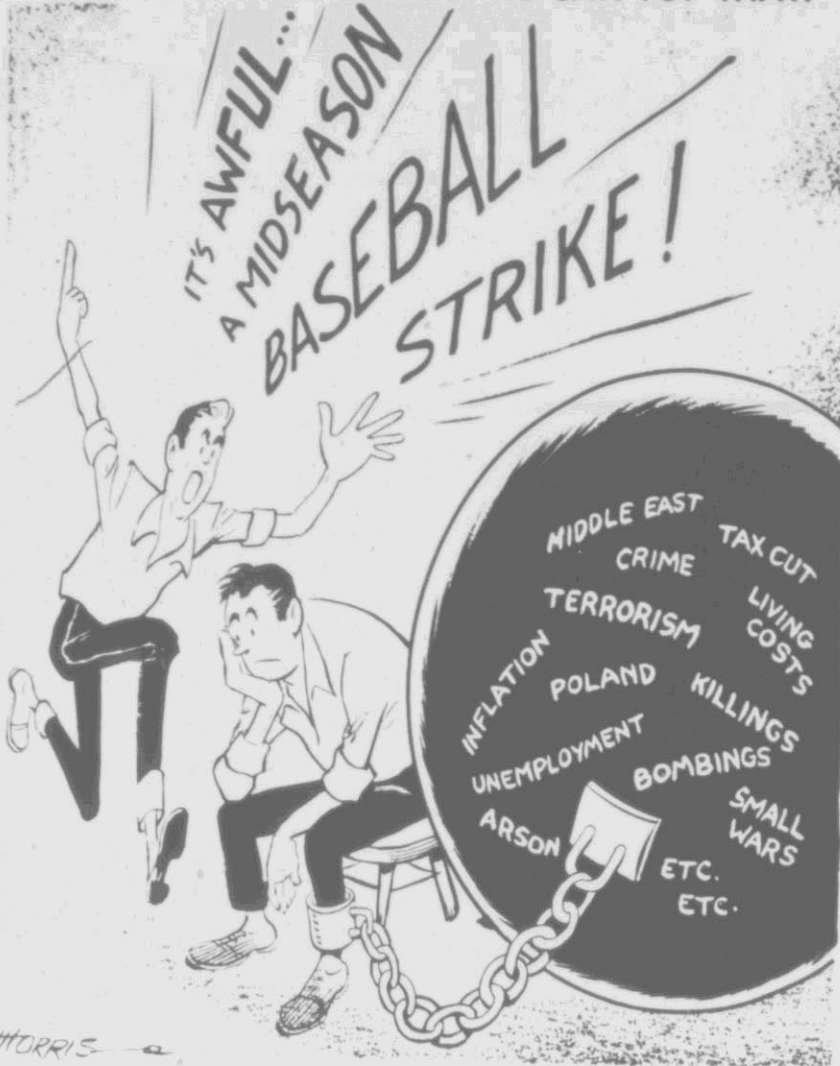

Uzzell said the Farmers Market began "from a feeling that we needed a chance to sell locally grown fruits and vegetables in an effort to diversify field crops in the area. Uzzell saw this as the best season yet for the market.

Indeed, it opened with a new location on Reade Circle which is easily reached. Customers can go there expecting to find fresh locally grown produce. The market operates Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday mornings from 8 a.m. to noon and on Fridays from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Pitt County farming is diversified. As world need for food increases it can be expected that vegetable and fruit growing will become more important. It is through such ventures as the Greenville Farmers Market that food production will be encouraged in Pitt County.

LONDON (AP) — Shortly after the Kremlin sent troops into Afghanistan in December, 1979, President Carter declared that "while the invasion continues, we and other countries cannot continue business as usual with the Soviet Union."

After some hesitation, America's major allies joined the U.S.-led chorus of condemnation and implemented some of Washington's economic and political sanctions designed to make the Soviets "pay" for their action.

The freeze had hardly begun when some authorities began expressing doubts that the Soviets were suffering significantly.

Today, the Kremlin still has an estimated 85,000 soldiers in Afghanistan, but Soviet trade with most countries is nearly back to normal. The exception, officials say, is a continuing embargo on sensitive high-technology hardware.

The most dramatic of the measures taken against the Soviets was the U.S. embargo of 17 million tons of grain. America's allies in the European Common Market refused to replace the embargoed U.S. grain, and the Soviets bought from Argentina, Australia and other countries.

President Reagan lifted the grain embargo in April, claiming it was unfair to American farmers. Two days later, the Common Market followed suit.

In London last week, U.S. and Soviet negotiators closed a deal for delivery of 6 million tons of American grain, and U.S. officials have indicated the Russians can have all the grain they can buy.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was the most vociferous supporter of a firm line against the Soviets, saying repeatedly there could be "no business as usual" as long as Afghanistan was occupied. A month after Reagan lifted the grain embargo, Britain welcomed a Soviet trade delegation to lay the groundwork for orders for British equipment needed for the 1981-85 Soviet five-year plan.

Japan moved quickly to relax monetary sanctions against the Soviets. The Japanese Export-Import Bank agreed last week to provide $949 million in loans for Siberian development projects. Japan also is expected to help the Soviets and Western Europeans to finance a 3,000-mile natural gas pipeline from Siberia to Western Europe.

The U.S. attempt to promote an allied boycott of the Moscow Olympic Games last summer was only a partial success. Canada, Japan and West Germany were the only major countries to join it. Now, without any sign of official discouragement, the U.S. national track and field team — including many of the athletes who would have gone to the Moscow Olympics — is scheduled to meet a Soviet squad in Leningrad next month.

While some official visits and cultural exchanges were cut back during the Carter administration's year-long anti-Soviet freeze, French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing went to Poland to meet with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev in May 1980. West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt met with Brezhnev in Moscow the next month, and West Germany has agreed to a visit from Brezhnev within a few months.

The Economist, Britain's leading financial weekly, estimates that during the freeze, West Germany stepped up its exports to the Soviet Union 20 percent, and French sales increased 23 percent.

Official Soviet statistics show trade turnover with the United States and Britain was slightly less in 1980 than in 1979, but trade with West Germany, France and Japan increased. Overall trade totals have risen steadily, Soviet officials say, although some of the rise may be due to inflation.

Partial Common Market figures indicate trade with the Soviet Union did not suffer, except for grain.

The West still lectures Moscow for its Afghanistan incursion. "It remains and will remain totally unacceptable to the Allies and world opinion," said a North Atlantic Treaty Organization communiqué in May. But the repeated Western statements

Those 'Lost' Aydenites

When the U.S. Census Bureau "lost" something in the neighborhood of 5,000 people in Pitt County... most of them in Ayden and Ayden Township (can you imagine Ayden being listed as having a population of 184?)... it was the last straw.

The Census Bureau had ten years to prepare for the 1980 nose-count; it had the experience of past decades as guides for their work, yet they blew it.

If the bureau could make such a big mistake in such a small area, the probability of error in counting all the country makes that probabity a certainty. The 1980 census is thus turned into a guess.

It is one more indicator that Americans are becoming incapable of accomplishing major undertakings.

It isn't just the census bureau; we see it in many aspects of government, industry, and yes, in private lives.

Still more grim: we have run out of excuses. There are no more excuses left, no more alibis.

The thought should serve to brighten our days and keep us awake at night.

The End Of The World?

A lady called me up the other day and said, "I've been reading the newspapers and watching television, and what I want to know is, does the baseball strike mean the end of the world?"

I felt I couldn't lie to her. "For some people it does, but my information is that others will survive it, though nobody knows what shape they'll be in."

"Why," she persisted, "is baseball so important to the United States?"

"Because," I told her, "it's the American pastime. Since we play it, and hardly anyone else does, it makes us different from any other country on the face of the globe. God has blessed our people with the ability to hit and field a little ball over a vast area, guarded by some of the highest-paid men in sports. When American men refuse to play the game, the entire world could read this as a sign of this country's lack of resolution and fortitude."

"Are you saying," she wanted to know, "that a baseball strike could encourage aggression and adventurism by the other side?"

"But isn't a baseball strike much more serious to the nation than a coal strike?" she asked.

"To some people it is — mostly the owners. But there are others in this country who are not baseball fans and couldn't care less."

"They can't be Americans."

"I'm sorry to say they are. Some are football fans. Others prefer to watch basketball, and many would rather play a sport of their own. It is this apathy that made the strike possible in the first place and could slow down a fast and just settlement."

"How can a sport that only requires nine men to each side affect so many people in the nation?"

squander this power until all hope is lost. That is the reason he did not get involved in the recent coal strike which tied up the Eastern part of the country."

RALEIGH — The local governmental event likely to stir taxpayer anger and resentment more than any other is revaluation of property for tax purposes.

That is done every eight years in North Carolina, and invariably reaction is hostile. Especially as recent inflationary trends have pushed new real estate values up as much as 50 percent, taxpayers resist the sharp increase.

County commissioners, in setting new tax rates, can announce sizable reductions. But with the lower rate applied to property valued considerably higher, the taxpayer almost always winds up paying more.

One way out of the dilemma, state and local tax specialists have long contended, is to set up a system which gradually raises real property values, each year, instead of waiting so long between revaluations. That is a matter which a study commission of the General Assembly will look at between now and the 1983 session of the General Assembly.

Available The computer equipment and techniques using figures from real estate transactions in specific neighborhoods for comparable property is now available. Local tax office employees could keep the data current rather than hiring outside consultants to do the work.

The annual upgrading system is appealing to tax collectors and local government officials. The take increases regularly, and in such relatively small amounts that demonstrating citizens become less likely. But what does it do for the taxpayer?

The bottom line is — it costs more in the long run.

If you have property appraised for tax purposes at

BILL NOBLITT

$50,000 and the local tax rate is one dollar per $100, your tax bill would be $500. Assuming that the tax rate remains stable for eight years, and then revaluation occurs, your property might be increased 40 percent to a valuation of $70,000, and your tax bill would become $700. That's when the screams begin.

What if the property value increased five percent each year, however, for a total increase of the same amount in an eight-year period? The tax bill creeps up $25 or more annually, not enough to raise your hackles.

At the end of the eight year term, your total tax payout would have been $4,800 with annual upgrading, compared to $4,000 if rates and values remained stable during that same period.

Furthermore, your yearly tax bill in that eighth year if there were annual valuation would be $730, whereas the "big jump" tax bill would be $700.

Truth

State Senator Charles Vickery of Chapel Hill has been pushing a legislative proposal which would require local governments to make plain to all taxpayers all of the figures regarding property valuation, how much an increase would yield and how much the tax rate would need to be in order to produce the same amount of income spent in the past years. That, he hopes, will unveil the

Other Editors Say Forget 'Jaws'

(The Raleigh Times)

It used to be that when you went to the beach the only things you had to worry about were sunburn and sand fleas.

Of course there has always been the rip tide or "undertow" that tries to pull you out to sea. But being alert to the first signs of the phenomenon and having a good lifeguard within yelling distance usually takes care of that problem.

All that was before "Jaws" put the fear of sharks into the once carefree worshippers of sea and surf.

With beachtime upon us again, a rebuffing on the shark menace of Carolina's beaches is in order.

Dr. Frank J. Schwartz, the man who knows about sharks at the University of North Carolina's Institute of Marine Sciences, says the sharks will probably be seen at play again around Bogue Banks and Shackleford Island where they set off shark scares last year. Seeking relief from July-heated ocean water trapped around the Banks, the sharks moved around looking for deeper, cooler haunts. Numerous sightings resulted in shark warnings being posted at several coastal resorts.

A swimmer stands a far greater risk of choking on a fish bone, being struck by lightning or dying in a boating accident than he does of being bitten by a shark, says Schwartz, one of the nation's top shark experts.

Only four shark attacks, including one last year at Ocean Isle, have been authenticated in North Carolina since 1935. Follow-up investigations reveal that most reported "shark bites" turn out to be bites from bluefish or barracuda, according to Schwartz.

So put aside your fear of sharks and worry about real threats such as being struck by a surfboard, a passing boat, or bumping into one of those Portuguese man-of-war whose poisonous stinging tentacles can send you to the hospital.

If you're counting on bringing home a souvenir from the beach, make it a suntan. Shark's teeth are hard to come by at our beaches.

Strength For Today

WORDS TO PONDER

There are four important words which every reader of the New Testament should watch for and ponder when he encounters them.

The first of these is "repent." Jesus began to preach saying "Repent." There can be no start made on a better life until we separate ourselves from the old life.

The second word is "believe." Belief is the wellspring of all action, and we will only act the way we should when we believe what we should.

The third word is "go." The Bible will not let us rest in complacent religion. If we have something which really lights up our souls and fills us with happiness, we want to scale new heights in the light of that experience.

The fourth word is "give." It means, above all, the giving of ourselves in a loving attitude toward our fellows and the giving of loving service to help them meet their needs. — Elisha Douglass.

20-Cent First Class Stamp?

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, turned down twice on requests to raise the price of a first-class stamp to 20 cents, is considering doing it anyway.

The board of governors called a special meeting for today on ways to increase mail charges, and sources said a major option likely to be considered was bypassing the independent Postal Rate Commission and charging 20 cents for a letter, starting this summer.

That has never been done before, and it could trigger lawsuits.

First-class mail rates increased from 15 cents to 18 cents on March 10.

The Postal Service wanted 20 cents then, which would have been the biggest jump ever, but the rate commission turned it down and repeated that stand earlier this month when asked to reconsider.

The commission is charged by law with reviewing Postal Service proposals and recommending its own to the board of governors, which has always gone along before.

To impose a new rate unilaterally, the nine-member board would have to vote unanimously and show that the 18-cent rate approved by the commission is not enough for the agency to break even, as Postmaster General William F. Bolger has repeatedly contended.

Sources said the board's other option was to begin a new rate case with the commission, a step that could lead to an increase next year to 21, 22 or 23 cents to mail a first-class letter.

Postal officials refused to speak on the record about the possible increase this summer, but several close observers of the mail agency predicted the board would opt for that course, rather than wait until next year.

"The way they are calling this special meeting says to me they are going to take their own case and say, 'Move it to 20 cents,'" said John Jay Daly, head of a Washington law firm which represents companies that use the mail heavily.

But he added: "Be prepared for court suits" if that happens.

Daly predicted the first-class letter rate would be 20 cents "before Labor Day, maybe before the end of July."

By law, the board must give at least 10 days' notice before putting any increase into effect.

David Harris, chief administrative officer of the rate commission, also said the Postal Service could impose the 20-cent rate without asking again for commission approval, although lawsuits would result.

"Most of the people here think that is what will happen," he said.

Matthew Perlman, attorney for a trade association that tries to hold down first-class mail rates, said any unilateral increase also should apply to second-, third- and fourth-class mail.

"If they make it 20 cents and raise everyone else's rate, that would make it (legal)," said Perlman, who represents the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

When the commission rejected the 20-cent rate earlier this year, it trimmed about $1 billion in extra annual revenue from the $3.75 billion the Postal Service said was needed to deliver the mail.

The Postal Service then put the 18-cent rate and charges for other classes of mail into effect, but only under protest.

Washington State And Feds Square Off On Nuclear Ban

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Washington state Attorney General Ken Eikenberry is squaring off against the federal government and a coalition of pro-nuclear groups over the constitutionality of a nuclear waste ban approved by Washington voters.

"We will make the best case possible," Eikenberry said, but added, "It will be tough to marshal a case that can win."

Initiative 383 — the Radioactive Waste Storage and Transportation Act — is to take effect July 1. The ban, approved by a 3-1 margin in November, calls for a halt to out-of-state, low-level, non-medical radioactive waste shipments to the Hanford nuclear reservation, one of only three such burial sites in the United States.

Operators of Hanford, out-of-state shippers, pro-nuclear groups and the state builders' union filed suit in March, alleging the ban illegally interferes with interstate commerce and conflicts with federal laws regulating the nuclear industry.

In April, the Justice Department filed a separate suit, maintaining that the federal government, not the state, has the power to regulate nuclear storage on a federally owned site and asking the court to declare the ban unconstitutional.

The federal government last month asked the two lawsuits be consolidated. That request was denied, but U.S. District Judge Robert McNichols agreed to hear oral arguments today on both plaintiffs' motions for summary judgment.

If granted, the new law would be overturned on grounds that the plaintiffs' cases were so overwhelming there was no need for a trial.

State Assistant Attorney General Michael Hanbey said that even if the federal government has the authority to regulate waste on the 570-acre Hanford site in Richland, the state has the power to determine what materials may be transported legally on its highways.

"The state would make the argument that although they have the authority to put whatever they choose on Hanford, they still have to carry the material over state roads, and the carrying of it constitutes a harm to the citizens of this state," he said.

Eikenberry has said before that he wanted the power "to bop Uncle Sam on the nose whenever he got too involved in our business."

Hanbey said the state intends to enforce the law pending a court decision. "The people have spoken," he said.

By March, Hanford, the only site accepting cleanup waste from Pennsylvania's crippled Three Mile Island plant, was receiving about 100,000 cubic feet of waste a

Reverse Agreement In Custody Battle

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — An avowed lesbian mother who fought a long and sometimes bitter battle to retain custody of two of her daughters has agreed to allow them to live with her former husband.

Under the agreement that ended the seven-month case, Stanley Silverzweig was granted immediate legal and physical custody of the girls, Jennifer, 9, and Amy, 11.

The daughters will move from the Trenton home they shared with their mother, Margaret Wales, and her lesbian companion, Rosemary Dempsey, to the Tenafly home of Silverzweig, his wife and another daughter, 15-year-old Leslie, who chose to live with her father in 1979.

During the case, Ms. Wales, 42, admitted her lesbian relationship with Ms. Dempsey but vehemently denied her husband's allegations that she was an unfit mother. Those allegations included charges that sexual acts by visitors had taken place at the home before the children and that Ms. Wales required her daughters to cut their hair in a masculine style.

She will be allowed custody of her daughters — who had been living for five years with her, Ms. Dempsey and Ms. Dempsey's two children — for three out of every four weekends, half of their school-year holidays and all of every July.

The arrangement reached Saturday before Superior

Court Judge Daniel R. Coburn was a reversal of an earlier custody arrangement between the parents, who were married in 1958, separated in 1976 and divorced in 1977. The judge did not issue a ruling because the parents came to the agreement on their own after protracted negotiations.

month — four times the amount it accepted a year ago and almost 20 times what it received in 1978.

"hidden" income increases which now occur. That measure will also be taken up by the legislative study commission.

A reader from Virginia, E.M. Miller, Jr., of Richmond, was visiting in Salisbury recently and read a previous column in this space discussing Vickery's "Truth in Taxation" measure. Miller is author of Virginia's 1976 Truth in Taxation law. He writes that the Virginia law provides for automatic rollback in the real estate rate when revaluation takes place so that local government "does not get a free ride brought about by escalating values in real estate."

Miller also warns of the dangers in annual revaluation as "an extremely expensive process which will be paid by the local taxpayers. It should be resisted by taxpayers at all costs."

Mount Hood Accident Reportedly Fatal To 5

HOOD RIVER, Ore. (AP) — An entire party of 12 mountain climbers was involved in a fall on Mount Hood that claimed five lives, authorities say.

The five members of the Portland-based Mazamas climbing group died Sunday when they fell at the 9,000-foot level while descending the 11,235-foot mountain, according to the Hood River County sheriff's office.

It was the second accident on a mountain in the Pacific Northwest Sunday. Eleven persons were presumed dead after being buried in an avalanche of ice and snow earlier in the day on Washington state's Mount Rainier, about 100 miles north of Mount Hood of a climbing party died Sunday after they fell while descending Mount Hood.

Dominica Plot Still Probed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal grand jury will probe evidence that businessmen staked mercenaries with more than $75,000 in an abortive scheme to overthrow the government of the tiny island of Dominica, prosecutors say.

Two men were convicted Saturday of plotting to invade the Caribbean island. Seven others had pleaded guilty in a plea bargain.

"We'll keep investigating until we find out who was involved in it, where all the money came from, and are satisfied that everyone has been brought to justice," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Lindsay Larson.

Larson left for Dominica on Sunday to provide that government with evidence on alleged co-conspirators held by island authorities and to collect more information for the grand jury.

A U.S. District Court jury found Stephen Donald Black, national grand wizard of the Alabama-based Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and longtime active Klansman Joe Daniel Hawkins guilty of two counts in their seven-count indictment.

A third defendant, former Klansman Michael S. Norris, 21, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., was acquitted on all counts.

Hawkins, 37, of Jackson, Miss., was released on $250,000 bond and Black, 27, of Birmingham, Ala., was freed on $100,000 bond pending sentencing July 22. They each face a maximum penalty of eight years imprisonment and $13,000 in fines.

Bani-Sadr Followers Shot

By SCHEHEREZADE FARAMARZI

Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary leader, fired President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr today and then appealed to the fugitive Bani-Sadr to return to the fold of the Islamic revolution as a theoretician, Tehran Radio reported.

The 81-year-old revolutionary patriarch acted a day after the fundamentalist-dominated Parliament declared Bani-Sadr incompetent to continue in office, a decision followed by the firing squad execution of some of Bani-Sadr's leftist-leaning followers and demonstrations by mobs chanting for the president's death.

"In the name of God the compassionate, the merciful, after the vote of the decisive majority of the noble deputies of the Islamic Majlis ... his excellency is dismissed from the presidency of the Islamic Republic of Iran," Khomeini informed Parliament in a letter, according to a Tehran Radio broadcast monitored in Beirut.

The radio then broadcast an hour-long recorded speech by Khomeini in which he appealed to the French-educated, 47-year-old former president, Iran's first since the fall of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi 2½ years ago.

"It would be in your interest to repent and return freed from corrupt and criminal cliques to serve as a thinker and writer. I now advise Mr. Bani-Sadr not to fall into the trap of those groups abroad who are lying in ambush to disgrace what is left of your honor ... Repent and take a step toward God and God will accept you. Your honor will return. So will your dignity."

Bani-Sadr has not been seen since Tuesday and some rumors say he fled the country while others have him sneaking between Tehran hide-outs.

After Parliament's impeachment vote, State Prosecutor Ali Qudosi, also an ayatollah, called on the public to help track down Bani-Sadr and arrest him for prosecution "over several matters."

The presidency will be taken over by a triumvirate of leaders from the Islamic Republican Party who led the campaign against Bani-Sadr — Ayatollah Mohammad Hussein Beheshti, the supreme court president; Ayatollah Hashemi Rafsanjani, the speaker of the Majlis, and Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai.

Rafsanjani said the three-man council will arrange for election of a new president within 50 days.

In a public summons over Tehran Radio, Qudosi said, "All the heroic people of Iran are asked to arrest (Bani-Sadr) wherever they see him and hand him over to the security committees or the Islamic revolutionary guards ... Anyone or any authority helping him to cross the border will be liable to severe prosecution."

The arrest order came as government firing squads executed the president's supporters. Tehran Radio said 23 of them, including four women, went to their deaths Sunday.

The government radio said they were "counter-revolutionaries" implicated in bloody fighting in Tehran Saturday between the president's supporters and those of the Moslem fundamentalists leading the successful crusade to depose him. The broadcast said the victims were members of the two leading leftist guerrilla groups in Khomeini's revolution against the late shah, the Mujahdeen Khalq and the Fedayeen Khalq.

Official figures issued in Tehran said 30 people were killed and about 300 were injured in the street fighting Saturday in the capital as the Majlis, Iran's Parliament, began its debate on a motion declaring Bani-Sadr incompetent.

More street battles were reported Sunday in Tehran and seven other cities when the Majlis voted for his impeachment.

Hunt Ex-Agents In Radar Thefts

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two former CIA operatives, already sought by the government for allegedly selling weapons overseas, are also under investigation in the thefts of sophisticated radar equipment, according to The Philadelphia Bulletin.

The newspaper quoted an unidentified top Justice Department official in Sunday's editions as saying that Frank E. Terpil and Edwin P. Wilson stole the equipment from the U.S. Naval Testing Center at China Lake, Calif.

The radar units allegedly include types which, when placed aboard an aircraft approaching the continental United States, will register as "friendly" on the computer banks of the North American Radar Air Defense System, the Bulletin said.

"They (Terpil and Wilson) stole a ton of stuff out of China Lake," the Justice Department official said. "China Lake was a sieve. The thefts were going on for several years."

Terpil and Wilson allegedly funneled the "friend or foe" radar equipment out of the country through an import-export business that federal investigators have described as "a front for classified intelligence operations," the newspaper said.

Terpil, who jumped bail and is believed out of the country, was convicted in absentia in New York last month on gun-running charges. He and Wilson are also under indictment by a federal grand jury in Washington on charges of selling weapons and sensitive military equipment to the government of Libya, the Bulletin said.

The newspaper reported that federal investigators are trying to discover if there is any link between Terpil and Wilson and five other men, including two government employees at China Lake, who were indicted recently for stealing military nightscopes and other equipment from the installation.

REPORT CAPTURE

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A newspaper says police have captured Khotso Seotholo, a reputed leader of the 1976 Soweto race riots, along with seven student leaders of the exiled South African Youth Revolutionary Council.

Pope Given More Tests

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II underwent X-rays and blood tests today as doctors tried to learn why he has a nagging fever that is delaying his recovery from a would-be assassin's gunshots.

Doctors said the tests on the 61-year-old pontiff would help determine if he has pneumonia or pleurisy, an inflammation of the membrane that covers the lung and causes difficult, painful breathing.

Dr. Emilio Tresalti, chief medical officer for Gemelli Hospital, said the pope had a chest X-ray and an X-ray of his abdomen. The chest X-ray would reveal if he had pneumonia, pleurisy or any other lung infection and the X-ray of the abdomen would show if there were any abscess formations or any scar tissue in the large intestine, doctors said.

X-ray technicians reported earlier that the pope underwent a barium enema but Tresalti said the test was not performed.

John Paul was returned to the hospital Saturday after running a fever for several days. His doctors at first feared he had an infection in his intestines, where he was shot May 13 as he greeted crowds in St. Peter's Square.

"The pope may have a lung infection but we don't think there is anything wrong with his intestines," hospital spokesman Dr. Giuseppe Pallank said Sunday.

Tresalti said the pope's life was not in danger. Dr. Luigi Candia, one of the pope's doctors, said he was on a normal diet, indicating the fever was not caused by intestinal infection.

Tresalti said the Vatican had not authorized the hospital to release a medical bulletin today on the pope. He said a bulletin might be released Tuesday, but it was more likely it would be Wednesday. He refused to characterize the pope's condition or say how long he would be in the hospital.

"There are no conclusive results (of the tests) at this time," Tresalti said. "He has no interventional fluids and he is under normal medical care."

Authorities said four of the climbers were killed on the mountain, while officials at Portland Adventist Hospital said another died after reaching the hospital.

Sheriff Robert D. Lynch reported that all 12 climbers in the party were involved in the same fall. He said five of them, including the man who died at the hospital, were taken off the mountain in critical condition. Three survivors walked out.

The names of the victims were not immediately available.

The injured were taken by Air Force Reserve helicopters to the Portland hospital and to hospitals in Hood River and The Dalles.

Lynch said the Mazamas climbing group was descending the mountain at the time of the fall.

The sheriff's office had reported earlier in the day that the climbers were affected by an avalanche, but Sheriff's Sgt. Greg Sandercrook said his office subsequently learned that no avalanche occurred.

He said the earlier report got garbled because one of the climbing party who "might have been a little dazed" contacted another group of hikers after walking part way down the mountain.

Two weeks earlier, David H. Turpele, 52, of Portland and Bill Pilkenton, 17, of Newberg, were killed in falls while on a group camping trip in the same area of Mount Hood.

Gas Tax Hike Costly To Hunt

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Now that Gov. Jim Hunt's gasoline tax increase essentially has been won and only the details are left to be settled, the question that remains is, what did it cost him.

In winning his legislative goal, the higher tax, Hunt gave up other elements he wanted — such as an income tax rebate and a quarter of a cent of the per-gallon increase. But the question that will take time to answer is whether he has been politically bloodied by the fight.

Hunt won a 2 1/2 cents a gallon tax increase — only Senate concurrence in amendments remains — less than two months after he unveiled it in a televised speech to the state.

But the votes concluded a much longer campaign by Hunt for the tax that really began last year, while he was running for re-election and warning that tough decisions faced his second administration.

Hunt knew when he undertook the tax effort that such battles have killed the political futures of previous governors.

As the final votes were being taken last week, Hunt told reporters that he considered the gasoline tax fight the toughest battle of his political career. It was even tougher, he said, than his 1977 battle for the right to a second term — a fight without which this latest one wouldn't have been possible.

"Oh clearly, absolutely, there's no question about that, and you know I think the real test comes when it's tough," Hunt said. "This has by far been the toughest battle."

Hunt's Republican opponents have done their best to heighten the political costs, with the Congressional Club's anti-gas tax committee continuing its television advertisements even after the House and Senate voted to approve the tax. The ads, many legislators believed, were aimed not at their vote on the gas tax but at the public's perception of Hunt.

Among some Democratic legislators there is a feeling that the cost to Hunt has indeed been steep.

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, who opposed the gas tax, acknowledged that Hunt won the big pieces he was after in the gas-tax bill and lost only the window dressing. But, warns Rauch, it will have a long-lasting effect.

"I think he's gotten what he went after," said Rauch, who has not been counted as an ally of Hunt. "But I'm afraid he'll suffer a tremendous political loss and follow in the footsteps of Terry Sanford and Bob Scott."

Both those former Democratic governors fought for and won new taxes — Sanford, a sales tax on food and Scott, cigarette and gasoline taxes. But neither got very far in later campaigns — Sanford, for president twice, and Scott for governor in 1980.

"Hunt will now become the third party to lose his political clout because of taxes," Rauch said.

One measure of the damage or lack of it will be in battles for the rest of what Hunt wants — and his call for more taxes on alcoholic beverages, mining and vacation home rentals already appear to be in jeopardy.

But beyond that, many Democrats and Republicans believe Hunt may be headed toward a 1980 race for the U.S. Senate — the seat now held by Republican Jesse Helms, whose Congressional Club organization took Hunt on with the gas tax.

But other Democrats disagree, and Hunt aides state with certainty that they have accomplished their goal at a minimal loss — and perhaps even parlayed it into a positive.

"I think he's strengthened," said John A. Williams, Hunt's senior advisor and state budget officer. "He's advocated a program against tremendous odds, and he's won."

"And people love a winner," added Williams. "He's a stronger man today than he was three months ago."

If the Congressional Club's charges and television advertising against the Hunt administration have left any political scars, Hunt and his aides have at least been able to laugh about it.

Following the club's television and newspaper adds charging the administration with "cronyism" in personnel and transportation policies, Hunt aides printed up a batch of T-shirts bearing the words, "I'm One of Jim Hunt's Cronies."

They also printed up a shirt for the governor and Mrs. Hunt to wear — saying, "No. 1 Crony" and "No. 1 Crony's Wife."

Feels Shame Over Reporters' Ethnic

SAN DIEGO (AP) — U.S. Ambassador to Mexico John Gavin says he felt "great shame" for the American reporters who leaked his off-the-record remarks to a Mexican newspaper.

"What is evident — and as an American I say this with great shame — is that our press, so ready to look down their noses at their Mexican colleagues, should think about their standards of professionalism and responsibility," said Gavin, speaking to reporters before a speech Saturday at the National Conference on Immigration.

The former film star said that in leaking a report of a background press session, one or more U.S. reporters "did not respect the ground rules."

After the recent briefing, excerpts of his remarks appeared in Excelsior, a major Mexico City newspaper.

The paper reported that Gavin called the Cubans "marionettes" of the Soviets. It criticized the ambassador for allegedly telling the U.S. journalists that President Reagan would cancel plans to attend the October North-South summit in Cancun if Mexico attempted to "negotiate" the attendance of Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

Mexican officials reportedly had agreed before the White House announced Reagan's participation that Castro would not be invited.

Gavin, responding to charges that he often is unavailable to the press, quoted a Spanish proverb. Roughly translated, he said, "The fish dies when he opens his mouth to take the bait."

Neurologist To Be Speaker

Dr. Miles Drake, neurologist from Duke University Medical Center, will be the speaker for the June meeting of the Multiple Sclerosis Support Group to be held Sunday from 3 to 4 p.m. in the Occupational Therapy Department of the Regional Rehabilitation Center of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

His topic will be multiple sclerosis. For more information, one may contact Donna Lee Fillion, physical therapist, 757-4443.

Trident Sub Back To Sea

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — The Trident submarine Ohio, after successfully completing its first sea trials, will head back to the North Atlantic for further tests on Tuesday, according to Electric Boat shipyard officials.

Escorted by four tugs, the 560-foot submarine returned to the shipyard a few hours ahead of schedule Saturday afternoon following three days of tests. Only one mechanical problem was encountered during the trials, but it was solved, officials said.

"The sea trials were highly successful. Everything performed very well," said Spencer Reitz, Electric Boat's deputy general manager. "The commanding officer should be very proud of his crew."

Reitz, the top Electric Boat official to participate in the sea trials, said the submarine was able to return to base early by performing several tests simultaneously rather than in sequence.

During the voyage, the Ohio underwent several tests, reportedly including full-power operation of its 90,000-horsepower nuclear reactor.

The submarine, the first of its class and the largest ever built by the United States, is designed to carry 24 missiles, each of which can carry eight nuclear warheads.

THE WINNER — Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos is about to receive a kiss from his wife and Metropolitan Manila Governor Imelda R. Marcos after Parliament formally proclaimed Marcos winner of the June 16 Philippine presidential election over 12 little-known opponents. Marcos beat his closest rival by 16.5 million votes. Opposition leaders claimed the election was "rigged" and warned it could drive the Philippines to communism. (AP Laserphoto)

Iran-Iraq War Has Settled Into A Long Stalemate

By STEVE K. HINDY
Associated Press Writer

QASR-E-SHIRIN, Occupied Iran (AP) — Amid the political warfare in Tehran and the fallout from Israel's destruction of Iraq's nuclear reactor, Iraq and Iran are still fighting a limited, almost forgotten war now 10 months old.

Western diplomats in Baghdad speculate that Iran's Islamic clergy, having won their power struggle with President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, may try to step up or expand the war with Iraq. Or Iraqi President Saddam Hussein may launch an offensive to take advantage of the civil strife in Iran.

But for the moment "it's a non-event that is happening," said one Western diplomat who declined to be quoted by name.

He noted that the Iraqis were entrenched in the same positions they held last November, the Persian Gulf oil routes are still open, and both combatants are exporting oil again.

Iraqi soldiers in this key Iranian border city 90 miles northeast of Baghdad appeared relaxed, almost bored, when the Iraqi Ministry of Information brought a busload of foreign correspondents from Baghdad.

There was none of the V-for-victory-sign bravado of last autumn.

"There is nothing going on here, but there are shelling exchanges to the east at Sar-e-Pol-e-Zahab and to the south at Gilan-Gharb," said a military policeman in a smart red beret, standing in front of a mosque renamed for President Hussein.

Those are two Iraqi-besieged areas where Western diplomats say the Iranians made "limited inroads" during their last offensive in April and May. Only a few supply trucks were seen moving toward the area during an afternoon's visit.

Hussein has said his armies occupied 8,000 square miles of Iranian territory to win recognition of Iraqi sovereignty over the Shatt-al-Arab waterway, Iraq's outlet to the Persian Gulf, and other disputed border territory.

The Iraqis apparently do not plan to stay permanently in Qasr-e-Shirin, which means "sweet palace" in Persian. The city's 50,000 inhabitants have fled, and all shops and major buildings appear to have been looted or dynamited.

Nor do the Iraqis appear to expect an attack. The radar screens of the SAM-6 anti-aircraft missile batteries were not rotating. There were television aerials over some of the foxholes on the Zein el-Qaws bluffs in Iraqi territory just to the south.

It is difficult to judge the morale of the army or the civilians in closely censored, tightly controlled socialist Iraq. But diplomats in Baghdad estimate that 10,000 Iraqis have been killed and 20,000 wounded since the war began.

There are no food shortages. The power blackouts in March and April that followed pinpoint Iranian air raids on power stations have ended. So have alternate-day driving restrictions.

With about $20 billion in cash reserves and loans from other gulf oil governments, and massive foreign construction projects going ahead, life has the appearance of being normal. But Western diplomats say the inflation rate is about 20 per cent, and many people are feeling the pinch.

Diplomats say the war could weaken or even bring down Hussein's authoritarian government or Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's theocratic regime. Many have theorized that Hussein started the war to prevent Khomeini's Islamic revolution from spreading to Iraq.

Khomeini's Shiite Moslem sect is the majority religion in Iraq as well as in Iran, but Hussein and most of his associates are Sunni Moslems, the majority religion in the Arab world.

There have been sabotage and assassinations in Iraq by dissident Shiites. Diplomats speculate that the Shiite Islamic Call Party was responsible for the explosions that blew up the Abu Ghraib ammunition dump and fuel depot near the Baghdad airport on May 28.

A 16-year-old worker in Baghdad's main market recently told a reporter he was a member of the party and it was carrying out bombings and other sabotage acts.

"There is a war in Baghdad every night," he said. "The people are against the government."

In a country where many are reluctant to discuss politics, the youth was the only person interviewed who expressed any opposition to the government. Most people expressed support although complaining the war had gone on too long.

Western and Third World diplomats agree that Hussein is firmly in control, for the time being.

Pitt Students Are Chosen For Academy

Michael Tucker of Greenville and Lynn Pollard of Farmville are being sponsored by Carolina East Mall for participation in the 1981 Academy of Achievement's Awards Program in Dallas, Tex. June 25-28.

MICHAEL TUCKER

Tucker was selected to represent the Greenville City Schools. He was ranked No. 1 in a class of 415 and was student body president and has been named "Teenager of the Year".

LYNN POLLARD

Miss Pollard, a rising senior at Farmville Central High School, represents the Pitt County Schools. She has been named "Teenager of the Year," and was editor of the school yearbook and ranked No. 1 in her junior class of 200.

Each year two students from each area where an E. W. Hahn-owned/or managed shopping center is located, are selected to attend the Salute to Excellence program. Hahn provides an all-expense-paid trip for each to attend the academy where famous achievers from all walks of life share their experiences.

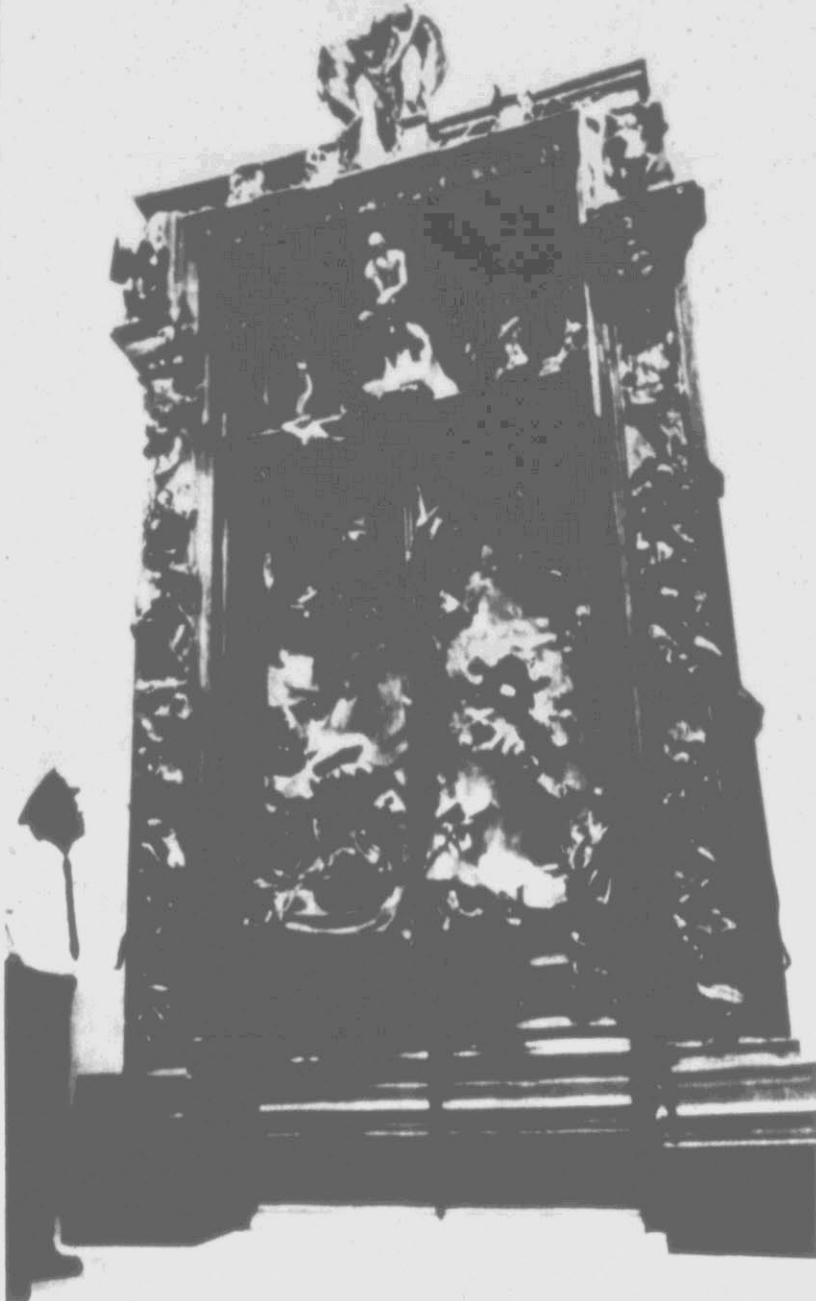

Both students will appear on WNCN's Carolina Today Program July 3 at 6:40 a.m. and WITN's Almanac July 6 at 6:30 a.m. to tell of their experiences.

FEAR MASS INFLUX

HONG KONG (AP) — Authorities fear a mass influx of Vietnamese refugees to this British colony following the latest arrival of 264 boat people Sunday.

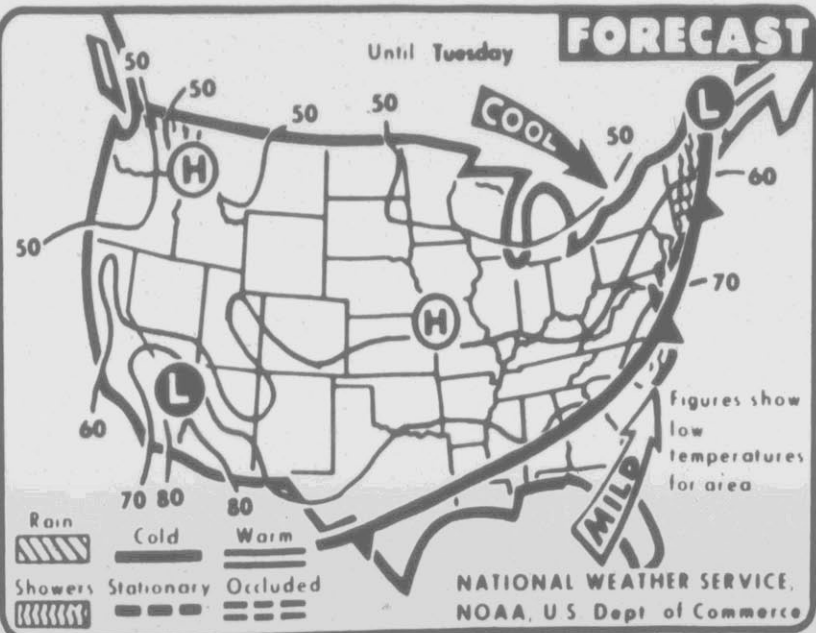

LAST CLASS DECORATION — Luann Elvey, left, of Midland, Mich., and Cindy Michela, Woodridge, Ill., members of the last graduating class of Michael Reese School of Nursing in Chicago, adjust the bandages and other treatments on a statue of Michael Reese in front of the school. Decoration of the statue by the graduating class has become a tradition during the 90 years the school has been in existence. The school will close after graduation ceremonies at the end of the month. (AP Laserphoto)

RODIN EXHIBIT — A guard examines the massive "Gates of Hell" installed at the National Gallery of Art east building in Washington recently. One of the largest exhibits of Auguste Rodin's works will open

June 28 with over 350 sculptures and drawings. The bronze gates were designed for a Paris museum and took 20 years, from 1880 to 1900, but were never cast in Rodin's lifetime. (AP Laserphoto)

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm, sunny weather is expected in the forecast period until Tuesday morning for most of the nation. Cooler weather is expected from the northern

Plains to the Great Lakes. Showers are predicted for northern Atlantic coast states. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
A high pressure over the southeastern United States continued the bout of hot, humid weather across North Carolina today, with temperatures expected to climb into the 90s and 100s.

The National Weather Service predicted a weak cold front from the Ohio Valley would bring some cloudiness and thunderstorm activity to the state by Tuesday, cooling things off.

Sunday mostly sunny skies pushed the temperatures in most sections of the state into the 90s, with 80-degree readings only in the mountains and on the Outer Banks.

Jacksonville reported a statewide high of 98, while Boone came in as the cool point with a 78-degree reading.

A few thunderstorms developed over the northwestern part of the state Sunday afternoon and evening, with a half-inch hail reported at Hickory.

Recreational weather outlook...Sunny and hot weather was expected across the state today. Tuesday should be partly cloudy with highs in the 90s, with 80s in the mountains and a chance of thunderstorms across the state.

Collision At Intersection

An estimated $1,800 damage resulted from a 10:51 a.m. collision yesterday at the intersection of Tenth Street and Greenville Boulevard.

Police Department investigators listed the drivers of the cars involved as Deborah Lynn Narron of 220 Churchill Dr. and Silas Carter Clay of Route 1, Gretna, Va.

Damage was estimated at $1,500 to the Narron car and $300 to the Clay vehicle.

MARIJUANA ARREST
Greenville Police Saturday night arrested David Wayne Wynne, 20, of Route 2, Williamston, on charges of possession of marijuana.

Investigators said Wynne was charged after officers found a quantity of marijuana in his possession in a parking lot behind 525 Evans Street about 11:15 p.m.

BLAMED FOR RIOTS
CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — Riots to protest food prices were fomented by socialist Democratic Workers Confederation, a large labor union, the government of this North African nation says.

Enjoy!

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged upward today as hopes for lower interest rates revived again.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 4-3 margin in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.05 to 999.24 by noon.

Airline stocks were generally strong on word that a strike of air controllers had been averted with a tentative contract agreement. American Airlines rose 1/4 to 19 1/2; Delta 1 1/2 to 76 1/2; UAL 1 1/2 to 28; and U.S. Air 1/2 to 22 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index rose .17 to 76.92. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .75 at 371.36.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 17.67 million shares at noon, against 22.81 million at the same point Friday.

ECU Residents Complete Work

The Department of Family Medicine of the East Carolina University School of Medicine Sunday afternoon honored the second group of residents to complete postgraduate training in family practice and dentistry.

Two of the family practice residents, Dr. Charles McGaw and Dr. James Nicholson, have set up a private practice in Robersonville known as Robersonville Family Physicians. Both were among the 20 members of the last class of the one-year medical education program at ECU in 1974. Both transferred to UNC-Chapel Hill and received their medical degrees there, then came back to Greenville to complete their residencies in family medicine. McGaw is from Windsor and Nicholson is from Wilmington.

Dr. Janice Daugherty and Dr. Richard Rawl, who are husband and wife, are the other two family practice residents honored yesterday. Dr. Daugherty will join the faculty of the Family Practice Center and Dr. Rawl will join the faculty, also, as director of the Bethel Family Practice Center, which is a satellite unit of the Greenville facility. Both received medical degrees at Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Winston-Salem. Dr. Daugherty is from Florham Park, N.J.; Dr. Rawl from Lexington, S.C.

The dental resident honored was Dr. David Madow, who will join a group practice in Baltimore, Md.

Last year the first six graduates of the family practice and dentistry residence programs here were recognized. Of the four family practice residents, two set up a joint practice in Salisbury; one was invited to join the faculty of the Family Practice Center here; and one set up a private practice in Greenville.

Mexico To Cut Its Oil Exports

By The Associated Press
A large French petroleum company today said it is slashing its oil imports from Mexico, which intends to raise prices despite a worldwide glut. Mexico said it will accept reduced exports.

Cie. Francaise des Petroles said it will cut its Mexican imports in half, to 50,000 barrels a day, beginning July 1. A spokesman in Paris cited the "marked" decline in world oil prices in recent weeks.

The slumping world oil prices have dropped prices in the spot market below the official prices in every country, including Saudi Arabia. A Japanese government official said today Saudi oil was offered to a Japanese company at a price of $31.60 a barrel on the spot market.

The official Saudi price of $32 a barrel is the lowest of the world's official oil prices, but companies that buy it are evidently now willing to re-

Fans Can Cut Electric Bill During Heat

Using fans could cut your electricity bill and make your home a bit cooler if used with an air conditioner unit, according to Malcom Green, acting director of Greenville Utilities.

"Usage is high with these hot nights and will continue to be high," said Greene. However, he added that Greenville Utilities had no load problems over the weekend even with high temperatures.

To cope with increasing electric bills Green suggested that customers begin using fans in their homes. He has tried it in his own with excellent results. He turned up the thermostat as high as he could bear it, and used a box fan to circulate air. "My wife said it was almost more comfortable with the fan on."

Using fans will make a tremendous difference in your energy consumption. Green elaborated. "A box or window fan uses approximately 200 watts whereas a normal sized air conditioner uses up to 4 kilowatts."

People aren't the only ones to be affected by this hot weather, according to James Garrison, manager of Paramore B. Gene Egg Farm No. 14 in Grimesland. His chickens aren't really bothered by the heat because they're so young. But, he reports, substantial losses at the No. 16 farm in Grimesland which houses the older laying birds. "Egg Farm No. 16 is losing 75 or 100 birds a day," he said.

Officials report yesterday's highs at 93 degrees Fahrenheit, lows — 71 degrees, with the river level at 3.2 feet. At 8 a.m. this morning the temperature was 83 degrees and the river level was measured at 3.7 feet. The rise, according to a water plant spokesman, could be due to winds, or rain received upstream.

BLASTING OUT OF OPEN TRAPS

ARDMORE, PA. (AP) — David Graham marched to the U.S. Open Championship title with poise, precision and perfection.

He needed nothing fancy, no miracle putts, no fancy bunker shots. He reached 18 greens at the Merion Golf Club in regulation. He three-putted only once, and he was in the fairway 17 times.

The first Australian ever to win the Open, the first foreign winner since Tony Jacklin of England won in 1970, Graham shot a final round 67, 3-under-par. For the tournament he was 68-68-70-67-273.

He moved from three strokes behind George Burns III at the start of the final round Sunday, and literally swept aside Burns with his consistency.

"Today would have to be as good as I've ever played in my life," Graham said. "I can't play any better."

Burns, who led after the second and third rounds, tumbled from contention with erratic drives that left him in the rough time and again. He and Bill Rogers finished tied for second place, three strokes back at 276.

"You can't win when you're putting for pars instead of birdies," Burns said.

Rogers, a consistent big money winner on the tour but with only one victory, had a 69 on the final day after previous rounds of 70, 68 and 69.

"I'm proud of my play this week," he said. "I thought I played better than anyone, but then they told me David hit 18 greens today, so obviously he was better than I was and a worthy champion."

Graham was simply unyielding. He birdied four holes and bogeyed only one, No. 4, where he 3-putted.

His 7-under-par was the second lowest ever in the Open. Jack Nicklaus, a contender until the final nine, won the Open last year at Baltusrol with a record 272.

John Cook and John Schroeder tied for third place, six strokes back at 279.

Nicklaus, troubled by poor putting, never put on the charge Graham and many others thought he would. He finished at even-par 280 with Frank Conner, Lon Hinkle, Samuel Rachels and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Jim Thorpe, who held the lead after the first day with a 66, finished at 281 along with Ben Crenshaw and Isao Aoki of Japan.

"I couldn't win the Open, but I'm going to the Masters," said Thorpe, one of the few black golfers on tour. He had never qualified for the Masters before.

Graham started the final round at four under par, three strokes behind Burns, the reluctant leader of the second and third rounds.

"My golf game is not suited to Open courses," Burns had said, then set out to prove the opposite with three consecutive sub-par rounds.

But Graham applied pressure on Burns quickly.

He birdied the first and second holes to move to within one stroke of Burns.

When Burns bogeyed No. 4, the two front-runners were tied at 6-under. But Graham promptly bogeyed No. 5 and not until Burns bogeyed No. 10 were the two tied again.

The coup de grace came on

No. 14, a par four, 414-yarder.

There, Graham dropped his second shot four feet from the pin and sank it for a birdie.

He put the match away on the next hole with another beautiful iron 6 feet away.

"My salvation, I guess, was putting the ball so close," he said.

Graham, who has won titles on five continents, said he felt less pressure in the Open than he did when he won the 1979 PGA title because he needed that win to be exempt from qualifying for tournaments.

"Mentally, this is the best I've ever been in golf," he said, noting that he didn't bite his fingernails once. "I can't believe it."

"Today, I religiously stuck to playing the golf course the way I intended to. I really felt I maintained my composure very well. I did not get excited nor did I get any thoughts about winning the Open until I hit my tee shot at 18."

That was a particularly difficult moment. He had hit three poor drives on the earlier rounds.

But his drive this day was perfect.

"If I hit a bucket of balls I couldn't hit it any better than that," he said.

Though Graham was playing with Burns, he said Rogers and Nicklaus were his biggest concerns.

"Nicklaus is always a threat, and I know Rogers has the game to win," he said.

Allison Wins Gabriel

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Bobby Allison figured it was time some of the racing luck went his way.

The 43-year-old leader of Grand National stock car racing's "Alabama Gang" came away the winner of Sunday's Gabriel 400 at Michigan International Speedway after a series of spectacular crashes five laps from the end put him on top.

Allison, who holds a huge point lead in the NASCAR season championship, wound up crossing the finish line under a caution flag, waving to the stunned crowd as his Buick Regal cruised along at about 80 mph.

"Usually I lose them like that," Allison said. "That's the first time in all the years I've been racing that I've won one of those."

A spectacular finish appeared on the horizon as pacesetter Darrell Waltrip held off challenges from Buddy Baker, Dale Earnhardt, Benny Parsons and Cale Yarborough after taking the lead 12 laps from the end.

However, Kyle Petty blew an engine on lap 193, apparently oiling down the asphalt surface in turn two of the two-mile oval.

On lap 196, Yarborough's car suddenly veered into the wall on turn two and Baker spun up near the wall. While a crowd estimated at more than 65,000 gasped at that site, Waltrip and Earnhardt came together and spun into the wall farther down the backstretch.

Allison, who now has won four races this season and 64 in his NASCAR career, was able to avoid all the spinning cars and debris, then outraced Parsons, who spun but didn't hit anything, and Harry Gant, who had to slow down to avoid hitting the other cars.

At that point, the pace car came onto the track and led the field through the last four slow laps.

"I was beat if the accident didn't happen," Allison said. "I probably had enough to maybe run fourth."

"But, after I got through it all and won the drag race back to the finish line, I was sure they (race officials) couldn't restart it. I told my crew (on his two-way radio): 'We just won.'"

Gant, a non-winner who finished second for the seventh time in his career, said, "I got into the oil, too, but I never hit anything. I guess I was just lucky to finish second this time."

Parsons was third, followed by Jody Ridley and Earnhardt, whose car looked like it had been through a demolition derby. In fact, Waltrip and Yarborough also were able to continue in their battered cars, finishing seventh and eighth, respectively.

Several drivers, including Yarborough, were mad that officials did not throw a yellow flag after Petty oiled down the track.

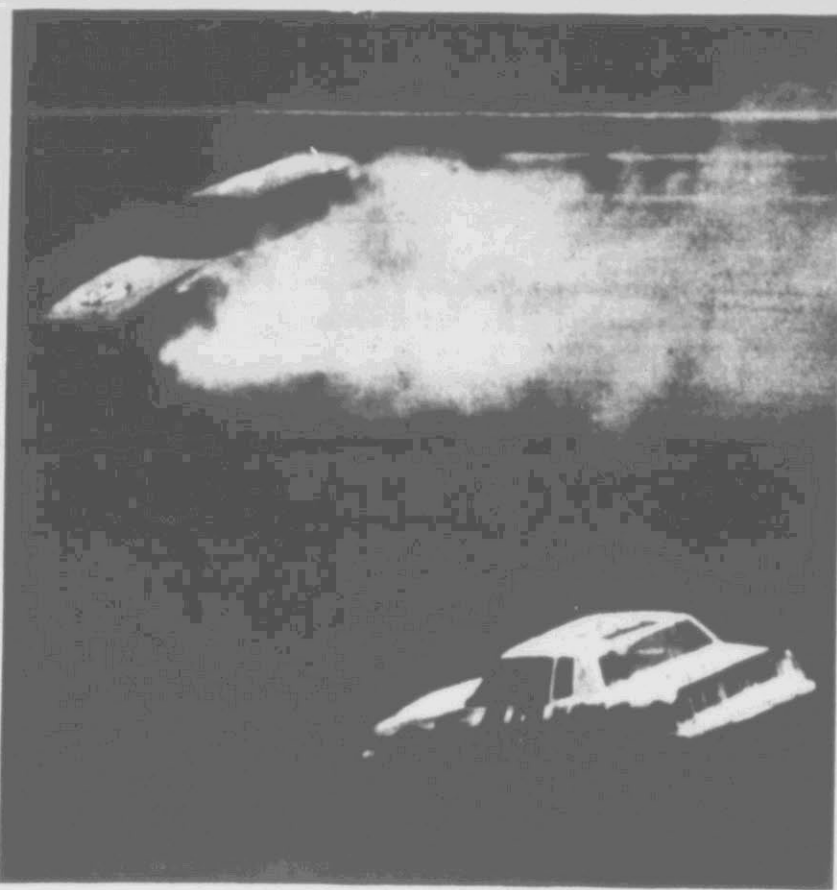

"They had a lap to throw the yellow," he said. "That whole situation was stupid. It should never have happened. It (the yellow) should have been thrown."

Waltrip, dejected by the sudden turn of events, was uncharacteristically quiet. When asked what happened, he said, "I don't really know," then turned and walked away.

Earnhardt, the defending national champion and still looking for his first 1981 victory, said, "Waltrip was down low and all of a sudden he shot up the track and took me into the wall. I don't know if he saw me or what, but I can't believe it happened."

"Actually, it was really uncomfortable out there the whole race," said the 43-year-old Allison. "There are a lot of spots on the track that are patched, and the material that they used to fix them felt like oil from a blown engine."

"I never got the car adjusted to compensate for the patches. You'd go across those things and go into a big slide, have to recover and go on again." Allison, who earned first-place money of $24,075 for the team operated by Harry caution flags. There were no Ranier, averaged 130.589 mph other serious accidents, however, and no injuries.

Babe Ruth

Coca Cola 12

Pepsi 6

Coca Cola scored four runs in the fifth and added five runs in the sixth to erase what once was a four-run deficit and take a 12-6 victory over Pepsi Cola Sunday afternoon in a Babe Ruth baseball game.

Pepsi jumped out to a 5-1 lead after two innings thanks to three Coke errors and two walks. But Coca Cola began its comeback in the third with two runs, sparked by Miko Smith's one-out triple.

Coke then took the lead with a four-run fourth. The inning was highlighted by two errors and a triple by Emory Battle. Coke sealed the victory with a five-run sixth.

In the sixth, Mike Iaboni singled, moved to second on Smith's single and scored on Traye Fugua's single. Eric Woodworth followed with a double to score Smith.

Fugua, Woodworth and Billy Michel, who reached on an error, all scored when Battle reached on an outfield error.

Smith and Fugua had three hits for Coke. Battle and Woodworth had two hits for the winners. Ted Stanley had two hits for Pepsi.

Home Builders 15

Aaction Movers ... 12

Home Builders scored five runs in the first and fourth inning and then held off Aaction Movers in the late innings to take a 15-12 decision over Aaction Movers Sunday afternoon in a Babe Ruth baseball game.

Home Builders led, 5-0, after the first inning, sparked by Tony Taulor's two-RBI triple and Todd Martin's two-RBI single. Aaction Movers countered with a four-run second inning and trailed, 5-4.

Home Builders added three runs to its total in the third but Aaction Movers tied the game at 8-8 with four runs in the top of the fourth. However, Home Builders scored five runs in the bottom of the inning, sparked by two errors and two walks and Jerry Mayo's two-RBI single, to take the lead for good at 13-8.

AM scored once in the top of the fifth and HB countered with two runs in the bottom of the inning to lead 15-9. AM scored three times in the top of the seventh, led by Jaye Wynne's two-RBI single, but could not get closer than three runs.

Toby Fisher had three hits for AM while Billy Godley, Miko Walsh and Hause ;il had two hits. David Jester, Taylo and Mayo all had two hits for HB.

Prep League

True Value 23

Auto Speciality 1

True Value scored seven runs in the fourth inning and six runs in the fifth and sixth to bomb Auto Speciality, 23-1, Sunday afternoon in a Prep League baseball game.

True Value led 1-0 after the first inning, 2-0 after the second and 4-0 after the third before the winners erupted for 19 runs in the next three innings. Many of those runs came via walks. In all, True Value received 17 base on balls in the game.

Larke Wetherington, Erving Best and Clark Stallings all had two hits for the winners. No one for AS had more than one hit.

1st St. Bank 12

Elks 11

First State Bank scored five runs in the fourth inning and then held off the Elks down the stretch to take a 12-11 victory Sunday in a Prep League baseball game.

Elks led, 3-0, after the first inning but saw First State rally for two runs in the second and close the gap to 3-2. First State then took the lead at 5-3 with three runs in the third and push its advantage to 10-4 with a five-run fourth.

The Elks rallied for five runs in the fifth and two more runs in the seventh, but First State, with two runs in the sixth, had enough to hold the visitors off and capture the win.

William Smith had two hits for First State. No one for Elk had more than one hit.

The only American man to win a swimming gold medal in the 1932 Olympics at Los Angeles was Buster Crabbe, who later became a movie star.

Borg Begins Quest For 6th Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg begins his quest for a sixth straight Wimbledon tennis title today, and Peter Rennert, a 23-year-old bearded Californian, was to be the first man in his path.

It was a tough assignment for a man who finished 62nd in the world computer rankings last year, but friends encouraged Rennert by reminding him that the Swedish superstar is vulnerable in the early rounds of Wimbledon.

It does not mean he has ever lost in the early round, but he has been in trouble

These famous grass courts can be the scene of upsets. They are reportedly playing fast this year. A big server who strikes form might upset a higher-ranked player.

The big servers have worried Borg in the early rounds more than once.

In 1977, the second year he won Wimbledon, Borg was two sets down to Mark Edmondson of Australia in the second round.

In 1978, in the first round, he trailed by two sets to one to Vic Amaya, the big American.

In 1979, he was two sets to one down against Vijay Amritraj of India in the second round.

Borg always came back, however, to keep his title. There is always an air of excitement when he walks on to the center court to lead off the championships on the first day. The fans feel something might happen.

Other big servers, their games tailored for these skidding grass courts, are likely to stand in Borg's way in subsequent rounds.

Assuming he beats Rennert, he could come up against American Mel Purcell next — and Amaya later.

Borg is top seed, rated a 4-5 favorite by the bookies, and is seeded to meet John McEnroe in the final.

McEnroe, who took the Swede to five thrilling sets in last year's final, tuned up this year by winning the Stella Artois tournament on the grass courts of London's Queen's Club, without dropping a set.

McEnroe was playing Tom Gullikson, the left-handed half of the American twins, today on No. 1 court, which has been given a facelift and now seats 8,500 spectators.

The center court holds 14,000, including some 2,000 who make a habit of sleeping all night on the sidewalks and lining up for standing room.

GTA Splits Pair

The Greenville Tennis Association split a pair of matches this past weekend, defeating the Wilson Tennis Association, 6-3, Sunday after dropping a 7-2 decision to the Wilmington Seagulls Saturday.

Summary:

G'ville Netters Down Kinston

Greenville won all but one singles match to capture a 7-2 victory over Kinston Sunday afternoon in a men's Eastern Carolina Tennis Association tennis match at the River Birch Tennis Center.

Greenville, 3-0 this season, has now won 11 straight matches over the past two years. Greenville plays host to Goldsboro next Sunday.

Only Two Absent As Players Arrive

All but two of the 70 players arrived here Sunday to begin week-long preparations for next Saturday night's 19th annual North Carolina Jaycees Boys Home All-Star game.

Henry TooToo, a 6-1, 211-pound guard out of Wilmington-Hoggard and John Grier Jr., a 6-0, 205-pound runningback out of Cabarrus, have both been scratched from the South squad. TooToo is recovering from recent knee surgery and Grier is sick.

The game, set for Saturday at 8 p.m. not Sunday night as reported Sunday, will feature one of the most talented groups of athletes ever. Among those who will play in the game are runningbacks Joe McIntosh and Vince Evans.

McIntosh, a 6-0, 185-pounder from Lexington, was named the North Carolina Player-of-the-Year by the Associated Press. McIntosh will play for the North squad.

Evans, a late addition to the South squad, is from Fayetteville Pine Forest and was an all-state selection. Both McIntosh and Evans have signed grants-in-aid to play at N.C. State.

Joining Evans on the South team is Lance Smith, a 6-4, 280-pound tackle out of A.L. Brown in Kannapolis. Smith, one of the most highly recruited linemen in the state, will attend Louisiana State in the fall.

The only area player in the all-star game is Greenville Rose's Jeff Ferrell, a 6-0, 190-pound guard.

The two teams will practice twice a day this week on the ECU and Rose High practice fields. In the mornings practice will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. Afternoon practices are tentatively set to begin at 3 p.m. but could be changed depending on the heat.

Snow Hill Defeats Wayne County, 5-2

SNOW HILL — Snow Hill scored four runs in the first inning and then used the four-hit pitching of Guy Sanderson and Bobby Avery to defeat Wayne County, 5-2, Sunday afternoon in an American Legion baseball game.

Greg Hardison opened the fist with a double and David Shirley followed with a walk. Jabo Fulghum then doubled home Hardison and Kevin Korpi followed with another double to score both Shirley and Fulghum. Korpi later scored on a sacrifice fly by Frank Milkovits.

Snow Hill added another run to its total in the second before Wayne County scored twice in the third on David Frederick's two-run homer to cut the deficit to 5-2. Neither team scored again as Snow Hill won its fifth game in 11 outings this season.

Hardison and Korpi were two for four for Snow Hill while Rusty Talton was two for three.

Snow Hill travels to Greenville Tuesday night to play Pitt County.

Graham's Play Stirring, Fabulous

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — When Jack Nicklaus couldn't win the U.S. Open Golf Championship, he let his little old clubmaker do it.

And David Graham, a smallish Aussie of 35, did it in a Nicklausian or — if you wish — a Hoganesque fashion.

A veritable machine, rarely speaking, never looking to the left or right of him, almost flawless in swing and purpose, the intent Australian hit 17 fairways and 18 greens in regulation for a final score of 67 for a 72-hole total of 273, missing by only one shot the Open record set by his golfing idol, Nicklaus, a year ago at Baltusrol.

It was a stirring, fabulous performance, watched by thousands at the classical Merion course and millions on television.

When he had sunk the final putt and done the usual honors at the coronation ceremonies and post-match news conference, Graham, in an Australian twang, yelled: "Champagne for the house."

Corks popped on 25 cases of Great Western bubbly, and newsmen forgot about the airline controllers strike and flew home under their own high.

It was a throwback to the heady days of the late Champagne Tony Lema in the 1960s. As they say, nobody will remember who finished second — George Burns III, who left the premises with a slap at the USGA hierarchy on his lips, and Bill Rogers, one of the cloned professional tourists, tied at 276.

Poor Jack. His putter was just another slab of cold steel, and he dropped to a tie for sixth at 280.

Graham is a fitting champion, a throwback actually of the old school. He had old Tom Morris written all over him. Born in Weston, a suburb of Melbourne, he quit school in his youth, worked four years as an assistant professional and three years with a golf club manufacturer before deciding to become a tournament player.

"My mother wanted me to be a doctor and my father, I don't think he gave a damn what I became," Graham said. David's dad, as has been widely chronicled, became so incensed over his boy going into what the father considered to be a menial profession that he vowed never to speak to him again.

"He didn't, either, for 15 years," David said with resentment. So, the $55,000 Open victory could hardly be classified as a Father's Day gift.

In stature and in characteristic, Graham is a carbon copy of Ben Hogan, the grim Texan who came from a near fatal automobile accident to win the second of his four Opens over this same Merion course in 1950. He is about Hogan's size — 5-foot-10 and 162 pounds — with a pleasant face and a receding hair line.

Like Hogan, he admits he is a man without emotion as he trods the golf course. "I never got excited, not nervous, never was out of control," he said. "It's the first time in a tournament I didn't bite my fingernails."

He likes to be compared with his hero and close friend, Nicklaus — a thinker instead of a swinger, a management golfer. That's the way he played and won the Open.

Graham said he first met Nicklaus when the latter was playing in Melbourne in 1968 but got closer acquainted in 1971.

Record 15-Under Gives Carner Win

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — JoAnne Carner shot "the easiest 66 I ever had" to repeat as champion of the Lady Keystone Open golf tournament with a record 13-under-par 203 for 54 holes.

Carner called the 30th victory of her 10-year pro career "a milestone."

"You need 30 wins to qualify for the Hall of Fame," she said. "It's important to me. Besides, it makes a good obituary."

Marsh Takes Japan Tourney

YAMAGUCHI, Japan (AP) — Graham Marsh of Australia fired a 6-under-par 66 to win the Pepsi-Wilson golf tournament by 1 stroke.

Marsh, who started the day 2 strokes behind third-round leader Toru Nakamura of Japan, carded seven birdies and one bogey for a 270 total, 18 under par, over the par-72 Ube Country Club course.

Japan's Yutaka Hagawa, who was second with a 271 total, shot a course record 64 in the final round. Nakamura shared third with Kikuo Arai of Japan with 273. Nakamura finished with a 71 and Arai a 66.

Carner had strong rounds of 68-69-66 to take top money of $18,750 in the $125,000 event at Hershey Country Club West Course. She now ranks first on the current Ladies Professional Golf Association money list.

She took a 2-stroke lead into the final round over Patty Sheehan and Pat Bradley, who set the previous tourney record of 206, 10 under par, in 1978. Bradley had a 3-over-par 75 Sunday and dropped to seventh. Sheehan had a 2-over 74 to finish at 213, in a four-way tie for third with Nancy Lopez-Melton, Sandra Spuzich and Beverly Klass.

Sheehan could have tied for second if the rookie hadn't hitched a ride on the back of a golf cart. That brought a two-shot penalty.

"It was a stupid thing to do," said Sheehan, who explained she was trying to avoid a male spectator who was badgering her about her game.

The last day of competition "was easy because everything I did was right," said Carner, who had seven birdies and one bogey on the 6,388-yard course. "I could have even had a better score. I was right in there for birdies all day."

N.C. Amateur

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Final results of the 72-hole North Carolina Amateur Golf Championship that ended Sunday at Greensboro Country Club's Carlson Farms:

Byman Birdies 18th To Take N.C. Amateur

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Pete Byman birdied the 18th hole for an even-par 71 to stay at 1-under in the North Carolina Amateur Golf Championship and to hold the lead with 211 points entering the final round.

Play begins Sunday of the final 18 holes in the 72-hole tournament being played at Greensboro Country Club's Carlson Farms.

At the close of the third round Saturday, Bill Plyler and Ray Freeman followed Byman one back at 213, with Roy Hunter at 214 after firing a 72 for the day. Greensboro's Ryan Fox stood next at 215.

Fox began the day at an even-par 141 after shooting an impressive 67 on Friday at the Cardinal course to make the semifinals cut for the first time in the North Carolina Amateur.

After a birdie on the par-3 third hole Saturday, he went to 1-under and at that point led the tournament.

At the fourth hole he simply chose the wrong club on his second shot and made bogey. Then disaster struck.

His drive on the par-four fifth hole went right and in the neighborhood of some trees. Despite help from several other people, the ball could not be found. Fox was assessed a two-stroke penalty and ended the hole with a triple bogey and the day with a three-over-par 74.

After the third round Byman, the 20-year-old brother of PGA touring pro Bob Byman, said, "I didn't really do that well today, so I guess I got all out of the round I could."

"I had to scramble four or five times but maybe things will fall better tomorrow."

Freeman was still 1-under for the tournament as he made the turn, but bogeyed holes 11 and 12 for his round of 73 and total of 1-over-par 71.

USC's Foster 'Comfortable' With Latest Recruiting Effort

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Bill Foster, who's beginning his second year as University of South Carolina head basketball coach, says he feels comfortable with his latest recruiting effort.

"You can never evaluate a class until you've had them for three or four years, but I feel comfortable with this group," Foster says. "Sometimes you can recruit one player and know that you've made considerable progress. Every year is different."

Foster recruited five freshmen to help fill the gaps left by the departing Zam Fredrick and Kevin Dunleavy.

More than 200 schools had recruited Mike Brittian, a 6-foot-11 center from Clearwater, Fla., who averaged 22 points and 13 rebounds for a team that won the Florida AAAA title and had a record of 32-5.

Another tall addition to the squad is Duane Kendall, a 6-10 forward out of Las Vegas, Nev.

Forward Vernia Strickland from Gadsden, Ala., averaged 22 points and 12 rebounds a game last season. He's 6-7.

Guard Jim Hawthorne played in the Dapper Dan All-Star game, which is traditionally a showcase for prep talent around the nation. He hails from Wood-Ridge, N.J.

Harold Martin, a 6-2 guard out of Columbia, rounds out Foster's recruiting effort.

"I'm looking forward to practice this year," Foster says. "Last year we didn't have enough players to go at it very hard because we couldn't afford to lose anybody to injury."

"I think this group gives us a good base from which to build for the future," says Foster, who has rebuilt programs at Rutgers, Utah, and Duke.

Foyt Steers New Car To Pocono

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — Veteran race car driver A.J. Foyt says he wasn't happy with his performance at last month's Indianapolis 500.

So he got a new car, although it didn't allow him much practice time for Sunday's Van Scoy Diamond Mine 500-mile race at Pocono International Raceway.

And Sunday, Foyt survived an early challenge from Tom Sneva and went on to win the rain-shortened race at Pocono, his fourth victory of 11 500-mile Indianapolis-style races at the track.

"We worked day and night on the car for about a week," said Foyt, who estimated he only had 15 laps of practice in the new car. "But we've been racing a long time, and we know what you've got to do and what you can't do."

The 46-year-old Foyt took the lead from rookie Geoff Brabham on the 119th lap, and the U.S. Auto Club-sanctioned race was halted by rain after 122 laps. The 305 miles were the fewest ever run in the 11 races. The 1975 race was stopped after 170 of the scheduled 200 laps, and Foyt won that one, too.

The win was Foyt's 67th USAC championship car victory.

Foyt, Brabham, who is the son of three-time world driving champion Jack Brabham, and Tom Bigelow were the only drivers on the lead lap when the $300,000 race was stopped. Fourth place, one lap down, went to George Snider, Foyt's teammate; Harry MacDonald was fifth, three laps behind, and Bill Vukovich was sixth, also three laps behind.

Foyt, who had drawn the No. 1 starting position after qualifications were rained out on Saturday, and Sneva, who started on the outside of the front row, swapped the lead through the first third of the event before a gearbox failure sidelined Sneva. Sneva's March, which is similar to Foyt's winning car, led nine different times for a total of 56 laps before going out with 79 laps completed.

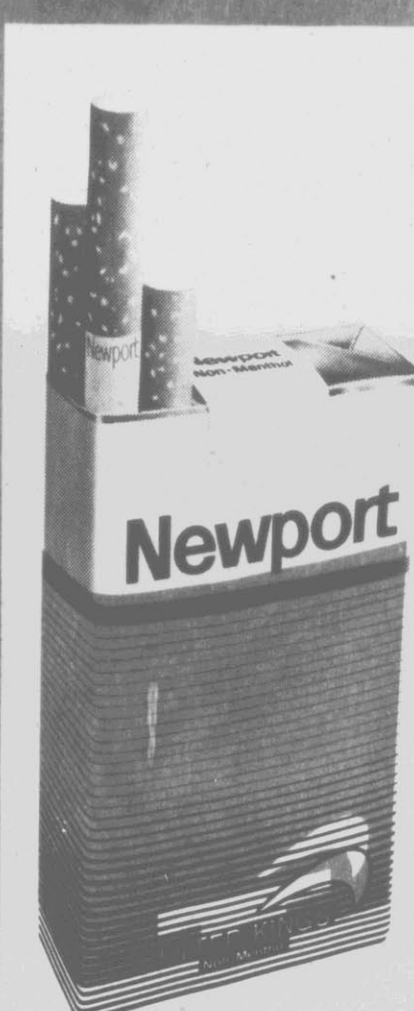

Foyt finished poorly in the Indy 500. "To fall apart like that at Indy was embarrassing for us. But today, the crew worked like it always has," he said.

Foyt's father, Tony, came from Houston to oversee the pit crew. "I won this race for my father on Father's Day," Foyt beamed.

Ashe County Inn's Country-Style Meals Popular

By CLARK COX

Richmond County Daily Journal

CRUMPLER, N.C. (AP) — One of the most popular restaurants in North Carolina is open only six months a year, at the site of a "miracle spring" in mountainous Ashe County.

At Shatley Springs Inn, off Highway 16 near Crumpler, gourmands from several states flock to the large dining room to wolf down the resort's "country-style" meals.

The country-style dinner, for $6.75 a person, includes country ham, fried chicken, gravy, huge "cathead" biscuits and more than half a dozen vegetables: creamed corn, green beans cooked in pork, peas in cream sauce, rice with pineapple chunks, spiced applesauce, and others, depending upon what's available from area farms.

There are jams and jellies, "pickle relish," and a choice of six desserts — including a local favorite, pungent rhubarb cobbler. Everything is "all you can eat."

Locals complain that the price has risen in recent years — but tourists keep coming, as do many local regulars.

At breakfast, for $3.50, the diner gets country ham, bacon, sausage, grits, sausage gravy, scrambled eggs, hotcakes, baked apples, coffee, fruit juice and biscuits.

"Originally, the spring brought the people. The restaurant was a way to feed those who came to 'take the waters' and stay in our cottages," said Lee McMillan, 49, a retired U.S. Navy commander who is the inn's owner-operator.

"Now, the restaurant is the big attraction. We've expanded the menu, and a lot of people come here for such dishes as our chicken pie. In fact, it's my favorite."

"But we still get people from all over the country, coming here for the water. Sometimes, they even come in the winter, when we're closed, and I let them fill jugs with water. Last winter, we had one guy from the Marshall Islands. He had read about Shatley Springs in a national tabloid."

One regular visitor, from Idaho, spends every summer at Shatley Springs. Another yearly guest, from Lynchburg, Va., is 97 years old.

McMillan doesn't claim curative powers for the water. "I've seen people with horrible rashes on their skin come here and experience great relief," he said. "But I don't know if it's the water that does it, or just getting away from their environment. Frankly, if I told you the things I've seen happen, and you believed me, I'd think you were naive."

The spring, founded in 1890 by Marvin Shatley, a farmer who owned the property and claimed that the water cured him of a severe and chronic skin disease, was sold to a three-man partnership in the 1920s. McMillan bought it from one of the men in 1958. From 1972 until 1976, when he retired from the Navy, McMillan flew to Ashe County every summer weekend from a naval base near Philadelphia, to oversee the resort's operation.

The resort's letterhead lists a detailed analysis of minerals in the water. "We took what may be the active ingredient — if there is a curative effect — off the letterhead years ago," McMillan said. "There's a trace of radium — not enough to hurt anybody, and probably not enough to help. I didn't see any point in scaring people."

Ironically, McMillan can't sell the water. To do so, under state law, he would have to have control of the spring's "watershed" for 100 feet from the spring to the point of sale — and he'd have to tear down the restaurant to accomplish that.

He doesn't advertise the restaurant outside Ashe County. "We've got all the business we can handle from May 1 to Nov. 1 — especially on weekends," he said. "Publicity never hurts — but I'm fretful I'm going to have to expand more than I want to."

McMillan has other business interests, including a hardware store in nearby West Jefferson — where he is building another restaurant.

Shatley Springs, though, tends to occupy most of his time. "I'm the manager, the bookkeeper, the chief electrician, the plumber — some guests want Shatley Springs water pumped from the spring to their cabins, for bathing, and I oblige them — and, maybe most important of all, I'm the 'chief taster' in the kitchen."

At the height of the season, Shatley Springs has 25 full-time kitchen employees and waitresses, and 15 part-time kitchen and dining room employees.

The chief cook for many years was Goldie McMillan, the 72-year-old mother of the owner, called "Goldie" or, mysteriously, "Bug" by other Shatley Springs personnel. Recently she has been in ill health, and she no longer works in the evenings — but she's there for the mid-day rush each Saturday and Sunday.

Lee McMillan, noting that, "I grew up in these mountains, and I know as well as anyone that mountain people are independent," insists that the kitchen help "log in" everything — a procedure he might have learned in the Navy. If someone adds seasoning to the green beans, she notes the action on a chart, and writes down the time.

"With up to 40 people in the kitchen, and more than a dozen separate dishes cooking at once," McMillan said, "we have to have some kind of system."

ANYONE FOR THIRDS? — Diners at Shatley Springs Inn are offered an "all you can eat dinner" including country ham, fried chicken, gravy, huge biscuits and more than half a dozen vegetables. (AP Laserphoto)

4-H Activity Day

Pitt County 4-H'ers will be among hundreds of 4-H'ers from 15 counties in the Northeastern District who will participate in the annual District 4-H Activity Day competition in June 24 at Williamston High School.

The activity day is being held to select winners to vie for top honors during North Carolina 4-H Congress July 20-23 at North Carolina State University, according to Dale Panero, county 4-H agent. Similar events are being held at five other locations in the state.

The 4-H'ers will compete in some 30 events, ranging from archery, cooking and sewing to landscaping, automotive skill driving, crop production and wildlife conservation.

Pitt County 4-H'ers who will participate and their programs are: Craig Bonner, archery; Odgen Wiggins, archery; Clayton Tucker, auto skill driving; Cheryl Thompson, auto skill driving; Sabrina Liffle, junior breads; Gail Andrews, junior breads; Reenie Chauncey, senior breads; Jane Burrus, senior dairy foods; Becky Jo Bufaman, junior fruits and vegetables use; Kisha Tucker, junior open class; Tabatha Moye, junior open class; Brenda Moye, senior open class; Thelma Freeman, senior penants; Belinda Williams, senior penants; Vicki Bell, share the fun; and Al Clark, share the fun.

For the most part, recent rains have improved the condition of corn and tobacco in Pitt County. Soybeans and peanuts, however, are just beginning to grow rapidly.

Due in part to warm night temperatures, certain areas of the county show drowned tobacco, but the outlook now for a good year on corn and tobacco.

Early season peanut problems are usually minimal, but in a growing season such as this one, where planting took place two weeks later than normal, peanuts remain small and vulnerable to weeds, insects and some diseases for a longer period of time. Slow growth of peanuts this year can be attributed to cool temperatures and abundant soil moisture. Damp soils are often cooler than dry soils. Peanuts grow best where soils are warm and well drained.

Field reductions to peanuts do not occur early in the season unless a great deal of leaf surface is lost on many plants, or if many peanuts are lost per acre. Peanuts can tolerate significant damage without yield loss. On the other hand, if a great deal of foliage is lost in late August and September when the pods are filling out, then the yield loss can occur.

Early season insect pests include thrips and leafhoppers. Both of these small insects are leaf-feeders and both are easily controlled if necessary.

Damage caused by thrips is often called "pouts" or "peppermint-ears." Thrips are found in flowers of peanuts and in early season they congregate and feed in the buds or the expanding leaves. They have rasping mouthparts and cause the affected leaves to wrinkle and distort.

Leafhoppers are small insects that fly or jump when the peanut foliage is moved. Leafhoppers are very tiny insects that run quickly around the foliage when disturbed. Leafhoppers are usually green or yellow-green in color. Thrips are often brown and banded or are yellow-orange.

Leafhoppers cause "tip burn" or "hopper burn" on peanut foliage. They feed on the midrib of the peanut leaf and secrete a toxin that causes the green leaf to become yellow from that point on out to the tip of the leaf.

Both insects can be fairly easily controlled with a proper insecticide-nematocide at planting time. Also, if the infestations get out of hand, a pound of Carbaryl (Sevin) per acre can be added to the legistop control chemical. However, when Sevin is used in early season during a hot, dry summer, a spider mite infestation can be triggered. Avoid making an early season problem a much worse late season problem. For more information on early season peanut pests, consult the 1981 N.C. Agricultural Chemicals Manual, a respectable ag-chemicals dealer or see your county agent and request the 1981 Peanut Production Guide.

CONVENTIONS

Over 100 district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses will be held throughout the United States during the summer, according to a spokesman for the group.

W. R. Nichols, a minister of the Greenville congregation, said that more than a million delegates are anticipated at the conventions which will be held in 67 cities across the country.

TUESDAY SPEAKER

CHOCOWINITY — Minister Ronald Cherry of Clemons Grove Holiness Church, Stokes, will be speaking Tuesday night at 7:30 at the Mustard Seed Fellowship Tabernacle Church here. Music will be rendered by the Clemons Grove Young Adult Choir. The pastor is the Rev. William Royster.

UNDERDEVELOPED MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Doctors say Australia's doctored test-tube baby, born three months prematurely, has underdeveloped lungs, a condition among premature births, but otherwise is in stable condition. The baby, a girl, was born Saturday.

Dire Outlook In Shrimp Season

THUNDERBOLT, Ga. (AP) — The opening of Georgia's shrimping season today has generated little activity in this coastal fishing village, with experts predicting a poor crop of the tasty crustacean.

Amid predictions of only a "negligible" shrimping season ahead, about half of the Thunderbolt shrimping fleet has headed for the Gulf of Mexico and waters off Key West.

A brief spell of cold weather in late winter killed many shrimp as water temperatures dipped to 45 degrees, according to state Natural Resources Commissioner Joe Tanner.

Tanner delayed the opening of the shrimping season for three weeks to give white roe shrimp more time to spawn.

Despite the delay, Tanner said, "under any conditions, we're not going to have that good a year. The sample trawls show there are not any shrimp on the beaches."

"If the shrimpers paid any attention to what we tried to tell them, not many will go out on opening day," said Robert Reimold, head of DNR's Coastal Resources Division in Brunswick.

"There's nothing out there to catch, and there won't be for several weeks."

In about a month, Reimold said, quantities of brown shrimp that have been spotted in creeks upstream should make it to coastal waters.

Among those who have taken their boats to Key West is Mike Cesaroni Jr., an outspoken shrimper who resigned as mayor of Thunderbolt last week because he has been in Florida for the past six months.

Cesaroni said he has no intention of returning to Georgia to shrimp this summer and will miss the season here for the first time in some 30 years of fishing.

"Hell, no, I ain't coming back," Cesaroni said. "For what? To catch nothing? How are you going to come back to fish a dry hole?"

Farmers Mart

AYDEN — Horace Tripp, chairman of the Merchants Committee of the Ayden Council Chamber of Commerce, said the newly formed Ayden Farmers Market was a welcomed event for the town of Ayden.

Ayden has cooperated with the Merchants Committee of the Ayden Council Chamber of Commerce as well as Granny's, a restaurant on Main Street, that is allowing the farmers to use its additional space to park trucks for selling produce.

Pierce Sumrell has been named market manager. Present hours for the Ayden Farmers Market are Friday, 2-6 p.m. and Saturday, 8 a.m.-12 noon.

Farmers of the area are invited to join in the market by contacting Pierce Sumrell.

Fresh corn, tomatoes, beans potatoes, squash, peppers, zucchini, carrots, beets, collards, mustard greens and many other items are now on sale at the Ayden Farmer's market.

Save 8 On Racing Sloop

BOSTON (AP) — Eight people were rescued early today after 18 hours on a life raft in heavy seas, the Coast Guard said.

The eight took to the lifeboat when their 53-foot racing sloop sank about 300 miles off Cape Cod during a race from Marion, Mass., to Bermuda.

Another sailing vessel, one of 140 in the race which started Friday from Massachusetts, rescued the crew after the life raft was spotted by a Coast Guard C-130 aircraft from Elizabeth City, N.C., according to Petty Officer 2d Class Joe Lombardi.

The Coast said the sunken craft was the Satan Marcy, Wilmington, Del., and the rescue sloop was the Windburn, Pomfret, Conn. Identities of the rescued people were withheld until the families of the crew members were notified by the head of the racing committee, Dr. Richard Kitz of Dover, Lombardi said.

Coast Guard aircraft searched the area after numerous airplanes and vessels picked up an emergency radio beacon indicating the life raft's position about 7 a.m. Sunday, according to Lombardi.

Injury Reported In Collision

Jimmy Ray Barnhill of 1010 Fairfax Ave. was reported injured when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Billy Ray Brill of 604 Albemarle Ave. about 10:50 p.m. Saturday on Albemarle Avenue, 150 feet south of the Fifth Street intersection.

Investigators, who made no charges, set damage to the motorcycle at $800 and said no damage resulted to the car.

'Crisis' Bargaining In Sight For Strike-Torn Hollywood

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — As producers enter "crisis" bargaining with directors in an attempt to avert the fourth Hollywood strike in less than a year, the industry already has begun an economic tailspin that has thousands standing in unemployment lines. Officials for behind-the-scenes union workers report that 25,000 of their members — up to 50 percent in some job categories — are unemployed because of the writers' strike and the threat of a directors' walkout.

"In the next week, week and a half, you're going to see catastrophic and crisis bargaining if things do not get settled," said Louis Steinberg, executive vice president of the Los Angeles Film Development Committee.

Following the lead of the Writers Guild of America — on strike since April 11 — and actors and musicians who struck last year, the Directors Guild of America has vowed to strike July 1 over residuals for original pay TV and video disc and cassette programs.

"The producing community is pretty much at a standstill," Steinberg said Friday in an interview, noting that filming during June normally a slow period anyway — is down 66 percent this year.

Producers said the film-TV industry lost $40 million a week during the actors' walkout, but Steinberg said it could be worse this time because the 6,400-member Directors Guild also represents stage managers and associate directors.

"You could probably triple that losses because the actors' strike related only to prime-time programming," he said. "When the actors went out it only affected prime-time (TV) programming, not commercials or industrial films, or talk or variety shows."

"If the directors go and they carry with them the stage managers and associate directors it's going to carry with it everything across the board."

"And that's just not in Hollywood; that's all across the country. There'll be nothing but reruns," Steinberg said.

"This (a directors' strike) is piled on top of a rather bad economic year," said Tom Ellington, president of Consolidated Film Industries, one of Hollywood's leading film processing labs.

As of early June, box office receipts were down industrywide for the second straight year — nearly 10 percent below last year's receipts to date.

State unemployment officials also are feeling the Hollywood labor strife.

"Normally our claims load does decline rather substantially in the summer," said Ray McFarland, state employment program manager in North Hollywood. "The decline (this summer) was much less than it usually is."

ANGELS END SERIES — "Charlie's Angels", a television phenomenon of the 1970s, is at an end — in first-run, anyway. After six angels and 109 episodes, the last original installment will be broadcast by ABC Wednesday night. The series then goes into rerun until it's taken off the network schedule at the

Eyes Coverage Entertainment

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rona Barrett says television coverage of the entertainment industry is finally being recognized as real news and may soon find a place on the network news shows.

"I absolutely believe it will happen," she says. "I think it will be the day one of the networks expands its news to 45 minutes or an hour. The men who run those shows know there is a vast audience out there for that."

The small, blonde, intense woman, sitting behind her huge curved desk at NBC, adds, "I think the possibility of being in prime time is also a tremendous possibility. I have a feeling that NBC will soon make such an announcement. I'm talking about a major entertainment magazine-type show in prime time. That's a very strong possibility."

Miss Barrett, who reports entertainment news on NBC's "Today" and "Tomorrow" shows, says she has had discussions about the shows with NBC's top executives.

"My contract calls for them to do something like that with me," she says. "I would more than likely be the anchor, but I have no qualms about sharing a show with anyone."

Entertainment news, of course, is not new to prime time. ABC's "20/20" regularly reports on personalities and developments, while CBS' "60 Minutes" and The NBC Magazine also successfully cover the entertainment version of the popular celebrity magazine. Three years ago, as a series, the show lasted only a few months. The most famous of all was "Person to Person" broadcast by CBS until the early 1970s. The presence of Edward R. Murrow, as host, stilled criticism of the celebrity interviews.

It's been a long, uphill climb for the former Rona Barrett, who transformed her appearance by diet and plastic surgery. But she still suffers the effects of a childhood muscular disorder. It's taken a long time for her to shake the gossip columnist image of her early career. One television personality once introduced her as "Rona Rooter with the garbage."

Miss Barrett says, "A lot of wrong judgments were made about what I was doing. And I think a lot of it has to do with the fact I was a woman. They don't call men gossip columnists. They call them columnists."

Not long after she joined NBC last winter, Tom Snyder barked at her, shoring anchor duties with her on "Tonight." She was on the air for nine weeks, while a smart, army of lawyers and agents negotiated a detente. She now refuses to discuss the incident, saying, "I don't want to bring up old scores and old wounds. It doesn't ever do anybody any good."

Miss Barrett, 43, spent 14 years at ABC before leaving that network for NBC.

"I left ABC because I wanted to grow," she says, "and my ability to grow at that network was the price in my opinion."

One American Reaches Finals

MOSCOW (AP) — One American and four Canadians are among the 32 dancers from 11 countries — including all 16 Soviet entrants — who have made it to the finals of the Moscow International Ballet Competition, the Soviet organizers announced today.

The finalists — 22 in the senior category, aged 20 to 28, and 10 in the youth group, 19 and under — will dance in the decisive third round at the Bolshoi Theater on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Amanda McKerron of Washington, D.C., a duet dancer competing in the young group, will represent the United States. Her partner, Simon Dow, also of Washington, is dancing outside the competition.

Medals and cash prizes will be awarded to the top-rated soloists and duet dancers at the end of the competition Wednesday night.

The international jury of 33 judges, 18 of them from Soviet bloc countries, announced the finalists early today after deliberations that lasted nearly two hours longer than had been expected.

LITTLE ANNIE IN BIG APPLE — Cast members of the film version of the Broadway play "Annie" wrap up their last night of location shooting in New York in front of the Metropolitan

Marie To Play Her Mother

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marie Osmond will play her mother, Olive Osmond, in the NBC film biography of the Osmond family, "Side by Side."

The movie will go into production in early June in Utah. It will cover a period of less than 20 years, including the courtship of George Osmond and Olive Davis, who was 18 in 1944 when they met.

New Role For Meryl Streep

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Meryl Streep stars in "The French Lieutenant's Woman" from United Artists.

She plays the mysterious Sarah in the picture, filmed on location in England.

Miss Streep also stars in the upcoming thriller "Stab," written and directed by Robert Benton, who brought "Kramer vs. Kramer" to the screen.

Sunken 'Colony' For Miniseries

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Goliath Awaits," a science fiction adventure about 240 people trapped for 40 years in the wreckage of a sunken ocean liner, will be produced as a four-hour miniseries for Operation Prime Time.

Deep sea divers discover the colony inside Goliath, a liner sunk by a German submarine in World War II. The survivors live in a Utopia under the sea ruled by a seemingly benevolent dictator.

Answer to Saturday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP

KGMSV NMD JN1 SGBDV FA NBB
KGMSDJ V ISFMD IGGBDAY

Saturday's Cryptoquip — OLD FRIENDS CHEERFUL; PATCHED UP LONG-STANDING FEUD.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: A equals N

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
1981 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦K9732 ♦AJ87 ♦J105 ♦6

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♦ Dble 1 ♥ 2 ♦

Pass 2 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—There is a distinct odor attached to East's bid of one heart—partner has shown a strong hand with a heart stopper and not enough spades to raise your suit. Since your hand is unbalanced, you should prefer a suit contract. Bid three hearts. That not only exposes East's probable psychic bid, but offers partner a wide range of contracts, including three no trump if he has clubs particularly well guarded.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦Q10963 ♦Q76 ♦A8732

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♦ Dble 1 ♥ 2 ♦

Pass 2 NT 5 ♦ ?

What action do you take?

A.—We might have bid four spades at our first turn because the distributional features greatly enhanced the value of our hand. Now we have to decide between accepting a penalty from five clubs doubled or risking a possible misbid by introducing our diamond suit. The rewards for completing the rubber, not to mention the possibility of getting to slam, are worth it. Bid five diamonds.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦A ♦82 ♦J743 ♦KQJ1052

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

Pass 1 ♥ 2 ♦ 2 ♦

2 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—The virtually certain spade lead will remove the side entry to your club suit before the play of the hand has begun. If partner does not have the ace of clubs, your hand might become worthless to him at no trump. Bid three clubs. That should warn partner to proceed with caution unless he has help for your suit.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦Q852 ♦873 ♦K76 ♦K43

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♦

What action do you take?

A.—It is tempting to sacrifice at four spades because partner is marked with heart shortness and our spade length detracts from our defensive potential. However, the temptation should be resisted. We have fair defensive values and partner may have quite a good hand for his simple overall, so the prospects of defeating four hearts are not all that bleak.

Q.5—As South vulnerable, you hold:

♦KJ2 ♦AJ10 ♦Q1092 ♦J43

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass Pass Pass 1 ♦

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Though your club stopper is tentative at best, your hand is no trump oriented, and you should look for a bid that describes both your strength and shape. Two no trump fits the bill perfectly. By a passed hand, it shows 11-12 points and is not forcing, but strongly urges partner to go on to game if he has anything better than a bare minimum opening bid.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦J72 ♦K8 ♦K65 ♦A7652

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

Pass 1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦

Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You have a useful hand in support of spades, but that does not give you license to do anything rash at this turn.

Eight Dead In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press

Eight people have died in traffic accidents this weekend, according to the state Highway Patrol, raising the North Carolina traffic death toll to 598, compared to 644 at the same time last year.

Police said driving without seatbelts contributed to the last two fatalities reported. At 5:45 p.m. Sunday 17-year-old Joseph P. Elliott of Oxford was killed when the car he was driving left the highway near Henderson in Vance County and overturned at a high rate of speed.

At 4 p.m. Saturday, a 16-year-old Danville, Va. girl was killed when the car she was driving left the highway south of Milton in Caswell County and struck an embankment. Police identified her as Diane M. Gross.

The highway patrol reported three other highway deaths Sunday.

At 12:44 p.m. the patrol said Richard Dale Coffey, 23, of Charlotte was killed when he was thrown out a car in which he was a passenger. The car, traveling at a high rate of speed, skidded and overturned while attempting to turn in a driveway off U.S. 74 near Charlotte.

Also on Sunday, Larry Russell Stry, 22, of Kanapolis was killed when the car he was driving ran off the road and struck a tree in Concord. And George Edward Armstrong, 25, of Linden died when the motorcycle he was riding ran off the road, struck a ditch and overturned several times near Lillington.

Rebecca Keith Ledford, 27, of Greenville was killed Saturday when the car in which she was a passenger ran off the road and struck a tree.

The patrol said Rebecca Evans, 24, of Garland died early Saturday when her car collided head-on with an oncoming vehicle which had crossed the centerline on U.S. 701 five miles south of Elizabethtown.

The first fatality of the weekend was Russell C. Hagar, 20, of Newport. The patrol said he was killed about 1:15 a.m. Saturday when the motorcycle he was riding ran off the road and struck a ditch on U.S. 70 less than a mile west of Morehead City.

Internship Goes To Senior

Ms. Kathy Pressly, a senior at East Carolina University, has recently received an internship appointment with Pitt County Health Department in Greenville.

Ms. Pressly is a major in the School and Community Health Education program at ECU, the only baccalaureate program in the nation sanctioned by the National Society for Public Health Education. She was honored recently by the program faculty by being chosen for the Outstanding Senior Award.

Ms. Pressly is the daughter of Dr. J.H. Arnold of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and Mrs. Tess Arnold of Kinston.

N.C. Medical Examiners Crack Down On Incompetent Doctors

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Medical Examiners is cracking down on incompetence among physicians, but the emphasis is on rehabilitation, not removal.

But the board president, Dr. Joyce Reynolds, is concerned because there is no place to send a doctor in need of a formal, short-term refresher course.

"I wish there was some system in the medical schools," she said. "It would be a great boon."

The board is handling an increasing number of cases ranging from charges of alcoholism, drug abuse and illegal prescription of drugs to general incompetence.

Most of the doctors judged incompetent fall into one of two categories, according to Dr. Bryant Galusha of Charlotte, a former board president who stepped down this past year.

The first is the old gentleman who has "shown dedication and has been so faithful to his patients. But he's not kept up and is not competent to practice medicine."

The second category is the young doctor who just hasn't bothered to keep up, and who "won't practice to the standard we require," Galusha said.

For the second group, Galusha said, the board tries to set up some form of remedial instruction, with the threat of revoking licenses. That often involves working with another doctor for several months.

Both current and former board members say they would rather rehabilitate a doctor, if it could be done without jeopardizing patients.

"Our main concern is for the people," said Dr. Reynolds. "We rehabilitate doctors, if we can."

In 1975 the N.C. Medical Practice Act was revised to allow the board to revoke the license of doctors if found incompetent. The change started having its effect in the last year.

Both Dr. Walter Lewis of Gibsonville and Dr. Edward Jones of Thomasville lost their licenses due to action by the board.

The board said Lewis was "extensively interrogated by members of the board concerning his diagnosis, knowledge and treatment of various hypothetical patient ailments" and about actual patients he treated.

The board found the majority of his answers "were incorrect and demonstrated to the board that the respondent does not now possess a knowledge of the science of medicine" to allow him to care for even "common and ordinary ailments."

Lewis is currently appealing the decision.

Jones came to the board's attention because he failed to report nine babies he had delivered, and an examination of his record led the board to a similar ruling.

Other licenses have been revoked for more common charges the board handles — issuing prescriptions without any legitimate reason, and alcohol or drug abuse.

The board tries to rehabilitate doctors who abuse drugs or alcohol by sending them to a North Carolina Medical Society program for impaired physicians.

The General Assembly has just made a change in the law that formalizes that arrangement, making it mandatory to send "all physicians whose health and effectiveness have been significantly impaired by alcohol, drug addition or mental illness" to the program.

"It's been a tremendous help to us," Dr. Reynolds said.

The board sometimes issues suspended sentences, instructing the doctor to take medical education courses and often the board takes action on an informal basis.

"We do better with the informal hearing," Dr. Reynolds said. "We can point out the problems and ... give them an opportunity to solve them. Often, the physician can keep on practicing."

Board members say the informal hearings help avoid the furor caused by a public hearing and, in many cases, solves the problem.

Final Action Over Day Care Centers Expected

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill that would waive state licensing for Christian day-care centers in North Carolina is expected to receive final action by the House Human Resources Committee this week, but many legislators are balking at the measure.

The state Senate has already passed the bill, sponsored by Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe, which would also exempt some 390 church-operated day-care centers from all state regulations except those governing sanitation, fire, building codes and immunization.

The measure would thereby exempt such centers from any staff-child ratio provisions.

Swain said in the first panel discussion of the bill that he saw no reason why day-care centers should be subjected to staff-child ratios.

"You don't require that in Sunday school or church or summer camp," he said. "There's no staff ratio in those institutions."

Some committee members argued that while a day-care center might meet fire safety codes, the lack of sufficient personnel for emergency evacuations might increase the likelihood that children could be killed.

But, Swain countered, "Licensing doesn't get children out."

Supporters maintain that the churches should be free of as much state regulation as possible, particularly concerning how children are cared for and what they are taught. That reasoning has already sparked several bills in the 1979 session removing state regulations of church-run centers.

Opponents of the bill, in light of the already lax regulations, are trying to retain some restrictions in the interests of the children.

John Lail, director of the Office of Child Day Care Licensing, said the exemption would give church-operated centers an unfair price advantage over all other centers.

"About 80 percent of the cost of running a day-care center involves staff," he said. "We are opening ourselves up for a lawsuit."

And Rep. Ruth Cook, D-Wake, adds, "There is the danger of some fringe groups that might want to pack children in."

Rep. Mary Pegg, R-Forsyth, is vocally opposed to government interference in family life. She said parents should be expected to choose a day-care center that is safe and proper for their children, adding that if the state must do the selecting, "we are coming into a socialistic state."

The toughest test for the controversial bill may come with the House committee's final action.

"We have the votes on the floor," said bill supporter Rev. Daniel Carr, executive director of the Churches for Life and Liberty and president of the Organized Christian Schools of North Carolina. I think it has a very good chance."

NCNB Seeks Fla. Merger

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — For the second time in as many weeks, North Carolina National Bank Corp. has entered into merger proceedings with a Florida financial institution.

NCNB Chairman Thomas I. Storrs announced Sunday night that he had submitted a $210 million merger proposal to George C. Whitner, president and chief executive officer of Florida National Banks, on Friday afternoon.

Florida National is the fourth-largest bank holding company in Florida, which owns most of the outstanding common stock of 25 commercial banks in that state.

NCNB officials said a Venezuelan firm which controls slightly over 32 percent of the company's stock has agreed to vote for the merger.

On June 11, NCNB said it planned to acquire controlling interest in First National Bank of Lake City, Fla.

NCNB officials will not explain how the transaction circumvent federal laws prohibiting banks from accepting deposits outside their home states and barring holding companies from owning banks in more than one state without that state's permission.

But, industry officials say the key is NCNB's ownership of Trust Company of Florida in Orlando, which pre-dates a 1972 Florida law barring foreign or out-of-state firms from acquiring Florida financial institutions.

The merger would give NCNB a major presence in the expanding Florida market. But Storrs said there is no guarantee the talks will result in a merger. Any merger, he added, would be subject to approval by the boards of directors and shareholders of the two companies and by federal regulatory authorities.

NCNB Corp. is a one-bank holding company with consolidated total assets of $7.2 billion as of December 31, 1980.
