Despite Neglect, Life For Pitt County's Elderly Is 'Above Average'

More than ever before, the elderly make up an increasingly larger share of what life is all about. In a six-part series beginning with this article, The Daily Reflector presents a detailed look at some of the facets of aging — the loneliness, the joy, the despair, the cost, the care.

Aging — it occurs naturally, quietly and continually. It is an inescapable part of each person's daily routine.

In Pitt County, there are approximately 11,400 persons over the age of 60 years, according to Census Bureau estimates. Jeff McAllister, director of the Pitt County Council on Aging, says life for the elderly in the county is above average.

"I would say that Pitt County is one of the better places for people to live," he commented. "The quality of life here seems good for the people — when they can maintain it."

Although McAllister terms the area "one of the better places" for the elderly, he says, "We have neglected our older people terribly. We've spent less on the aging program than on lighting ball parks.

"You don't see the older people living in fear, but even that is changing," he added.

The Council on Aging, which faces sharp budget cuts this fall, provides nutritional programs, transportation and self-help assistance to the elderly in conjunction with the Pitt County Department of Social Services and other agencies.

Ed Garrison, director of social services for the county, estimated there are nearly 2,000 individuals who receive financial assistance through Medicaid — a $7.2 million item in Pitt County — because they are aged, disabled or blind. Of about 13,700 persons receiving food stamps, Garrison estimated 1,900 of them are 65 or older.

Financial assistance is also available through Medicaid to those without adequate income for placement in nursing homes. This aid is split into three classifications: ambulatory patients, $425 per month; semi-ambulatory, $435 month; and non-ambulatory, $445 per month. The state provides 70 percent of the funding necessary for the program and the county covers the remainder.

For patients requiring more skilled care, an average of $704 a month is provided for individuals needing the use of an immediate care facility, and $1,041 a month for those in a skilled nursing facility.

Hospitalization, however, is the highest level of medical care. Garrison said the average cost per day for such patients at Pitt County Memorial Hospital ranges from $200-250 per day.

Garrison's department also offers a program called "chore service," which provides assistance to the elderly in buying groceries, trnasportation, cooking, cleaning and similar projects that will allow the individual to remain at home. The average cost is $170 per month per individual.

Garrison's estimates apply only to those receiving assistance from government agencies. Most of the elderly in Pitt County live at home, with relatives or in other quarters paid for privately.

Pitt Products On The Go

By MELVIN LANG

Greenville's position as an econonic crossroads for eastern North Carolina is taking on a more sophisticated view with Pitt County's expanding industrial base.

No longer are locally manufactured products coming from the back room of a home or the floor of a garage. And they are showing up in exotic places, domestically and abroad.

Swimwear made in Farmville shows up in Miami and on the beach of Waikiki. Mops and brushes made in Greenville find their way to homes and plants in South America, Europe and elsewhere in the Free World. Medicines packaged in Greenville went to the moon with American astronauts.

Drill bits, trailers, boats, truck bodies, furnaces — all are produced in the county. Find a sports car or other types of smaller autos made in the United States or England and there is a good chance its rack and pinion steering was put together in Greenville by TRW. That vehicle may be pulling a trailer built by Cox Trailers of Grifton and could be carrying a boat produced by North American Fiber Glass or Grady White Boats of Greenville.

From Pampers to septic tanks, the world is pretty much covered by locally made products for work, recreation, health.

Procter & Gamble produces Pampers and Attends at its Greenville plant for at least regional distribution but, for competitive purposes, the company says it doesn't wish to disclose just how wide that distribution is.

It's not just the small items or those that fold, however, that come from this area. Eaton makes heavy duty forklift trucks at Greenville for distribution throughout much of the Free World.

And Empire Brush and Burroughs Wellcome send their products to just about every country with available trade. Tobacco processed in Farmville and Greenville winds up in products manufactured in several countries, and tobacco seed packaged near Winterville go to most places where tobacco is grown.

Blue jeans are fabricated in Ayden, and shirts and blouses get a final going over in plants scattered throughout the county for distribution under numerous brand names.

Mike O'Hara, a spokesman for Collins and Aikman, said fabrics produced in Farmville go into swimwear that literally goes everywhere. The plant also produces fabrics for use in headliners that go into automobiles in this country and others.

O'Hara says Collins and Aikman has shipped wallcoverings from its Cleveland, Ohio, plant by camel caravan to Arab shieks. Carpet yarns produced by Fieldcrest in Greenville may have taken a similar route, but most of the products produced in this area go by more normal means.

An exception could be Union Carbide, whose batteries go anywhere by any means — although most of the batteries made in Greenville are for use in the United States.

Bombs Go Off In Iran

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP — A booby-trapped tape recorder exploded in a Tehran mosque jammed with several thousand women Saturday, hitting the heart, lungs and windpipe of Hojatoleslam Seyyed Ali Khamenei, foe of fugitive ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and aide to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Tehran Radio said. Khamenei, 43, was reported hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

Tehran Radio also reported a time bomb exploded near Tehran University, causing no injuries, that another was defused three miles away, and that two more "counter-revolutionaries" were executed by firing squad, bringing the toll to 54 in the week since Bani-Sadr's impeachment. The two were put to death in the central Iranian city of Isfahan.

The official Pars news agency said 12 people were arrested in the attempt on Khamenei's life. The regime at first blamed the attack on Forghan, an underground right-wing group long active against Iranian clergymen involved in politics, then implicated the United States and the leftist Mujahedeen Khalq.

Tehran Radio accused "counter-revolutionaries associated with the world-devouring United States" and said "once again the U.S. hands came out of the sleeves of the hypocrites." Hypocrites is the term the regime uses to describe the Mujahedeen Khalq, outlawed for riots a week ago to support Bani-Sadr.

Iran's health minister, Dr. Hadi Manafi, was quoted by Pars as saying the windpipe, lungs and right side of Khamenei's heart were hit by the blast, causing "serious bleeding" that was stopped by surgery at Tehran's heart hospital.

Bolivia Puts Down Bloodless Coup

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The Bolivian army's commander and chief of staff were arrested in an aborted coup Saturday against President Luis Garcia Meza, who seized power less than a year ago in this revolt-prone nation where the average government lasts little more than 10 months.

"It failed because of the treason of some and the bribery of others," chief of staff Gen. Lucio Anez Rivera told The Associated Press by telephone from army headquarters after the brief, bloodless attempt failed to unseat Garcia Meza.

He said he and Gen. Humberto Cayoja, the army's national commander, were under detention on the orders of Garcia Meza, who rallied the support of several armored units in La Paz to crush the coup.

The government press office said: "Those responsible for the act of insubordination, which had a minimum of backing from a small segment of the Tarataca Regiment, have been relieved of their commands and will be judged in a military court of law."

The statement said Garcia Meza remained president, "has the full backing of the armed forces and the general consensus of the populace."

At a swearing-in ceremony for Gen. Celso Torrelio as the new army commander, Bolivia's president said incidents like the failed insurrection make the nation appear to be "the most convulsed and anarchic geographic piece of land on the continent."

Garcia Meza, who is also a general, assured Bolivians that his government would "act with energy and decisiveness to meet any act of provocation." He said peace and tranquility had been restored after the failed coup.

Anez Rivera earlier told the AP that disaffected officers outside La Paz were carrying on the revolt, but his claims could not be verified. He did not elaborate on why the revolt crumbled.

He said he and Cayoja were taken into detention, apparently a kind of house arrest, 20 minutes before he was reached by the AP.

The aborted coup started in La Paz at dawn when tanks and troops began massing in the capital, sealing off the roads and surrounding the presidential palace. A military communications transmission announced Garcia Meza had been "relieved" of the presidency.

There were no reports of bloodshed in La Paz, although movement was strictly controlled and travel by automobile prohibited.

The overthrow of Garcia Meza would have installed Bolivia's 191st government since Simon Bolivar's independence fighters ousted the Spanish colonialists in 1825, or 156 years ago.

The 52-year-old president acknowledged the steady erosion of his authority last month when, after two revolts in two weeks by district military commanders, he said he would step down as the army's commander and resign the presidency Aug. 6.

Garcia Meza named the 47-year-old Cayoja to succeed him as army commander and army representative on the three-man governing junta May 26.

Illinois Farmer Buys Billy's Gas Station

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — An Illinois farmer is the new owner of Billy Carter's famed gas station and softball field, sold at auction Saturday to help pay Carter's tax debt.

Roy Bertrand, a farmer from Wadsworth, Ill., offered the highest bids on the gas station and the softball field, scene of numerous games featuring Washington officials during the administration of former President Jimmy Carter, Billy's older brother.

"I plan to close it for remodeling and perhaps reopen it as a gasohol station," Bertrand said of the gas station, which he bought for $30,000. "I understand there are enough stills in the hills around here to keep that going for a long time."

The curious and a pack of reporters gathered under a tent here Saturday as the staccato warbling of auctioneer J.L. Todd helped raise $106,500 to pay off Billy Carter's delinquent tax bill.

Among those on hand were Billy Carter and the former president.

According to Don Carter, a real estate agent and a family friend, the money raised Saturday was sufficient to retire Carter's debt.

Carter also sold the Plains home where he lived before building another home near Buena Vista.

Earlier this month, Billy Carter began working as a public relations consultant for Tidwell Industries of Haleyville, Ala., a mobile home manufacturer.

Carter said he was pleased with his new job and intends to move his family to Haleyville. Nevertheless, he had mixed emotions about the sale, Carter said as he signed autographs and watched the auction.

Wilmington Entry Wins Selection As 'Miss N.C.'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Miss Wilmington, Lynn Marie Williford, was selected Saturday night from among 50 contestants as the new Miss North Carolina.

Miss Williford, who will receive a $3,000 scholarship and prizes totalling $11,000 as pageant winner, was a preliminary winner in Thursday night's swimsuit competition. She performed a 1940 jazz dance routine Saturday for her talent competition.

First runner-up in the 44th annual pageant sponsored by the North Carolina Jaycees was Miss Wake County, Elna Carolyn Green, also a winner in preliminary swimsuit competition. She will receive a $1,500 scholarship.

Miss Columbus County, Dorraine Kay Jacobs, was second runner-up; Miss Bladen County, Kathleen Memory, was third runner-up, and Miss Durham, Julia Caudle, was fourth runner-up and voted Miss Congeniality by her peers.

The other semifinalists were Miss Burlington, Sharon Fogleman; Miss Elkin Valley, Nancy Gail Casstevens; Miss Garner, Vicky Carol Poole; Miss Greensboro College, Jacqueline Brown; and Miss Cabarrus County, Dakeita Vanderburg.

Miss Dunn, Deborah Dunn, was given the Faye Arnold Broyhill award for the most talented non-finalist. She will receive a $350 scholarship.

Texasgulf Board Faces Takeover

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — The board of Texasgulf Inc., a leading chemicals and minerals concern, failed to decide Saturday whether to accept a takeover offer from a company controlled by the French government.

Texasgulf includes Texasgulf Chemicals Co., a divison based in Raleigh, N.C. The chemical division is the largest division of the company in sales and employees with $668.8 million of sales in 1980 and 3,500 workers.

Eight members of the Texasgulf Inc. board met for three hours at corporate headquarters here, but reached no decision on the $2.5-billion offer from Elf-Aquitaine Group, said Texasgulf spokesman William Askin. A second meeting was scheduled for July 2.

Under Friday's offer, Elf-Aquitaine of Paris, 67 percent owned by the French government and a major French oil producer, said it reached a formula to obtain Texasgulf, excluding the 37 percent share of the company owned by Canada Development Corp.

Under the proposed financial deal involving the three firms, CDC would then get Texasgulf's Canadian assets, plus an unspecified cash adjustment in return for the 37 percent of Texasgulf owned by CDC.

Elf-Aquitaine said its U.S. subsidiary, EA Development Inc., was offering $50 a share for all Texasgulf common stock and $159.37 a share of Texasgulf's convertible cumulative preferred stock.

Because of the possible takeover, Texasgulf's stock did not trade Friday.

NARROW ESCAPE — With their possessions either burned or heavily damaged, Michael and Tammy Papp seek comfort in a hug as their van and a trailer burn in the background. The Papps and another couple were moving from Lincoln Park, Mich, to California when the van went out of control with a broken axle on I-80 near Waverly, Neb. They suffered only minor injuries, but a cat was killed in the accident. (AP Laserphoto)

Hospital Chases Cats With Rifles

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Hospital administrative forces wielding .22-caliber rifles have forced dozens of cats to flee Albemarle Hospital despite an apparent alliance between nurses and the cats.

The battle began about two years ago when several nurses adopted a stray cat that bedded down in a loading area near the emergency room entrance. The cat showed its gratitude by having kittens. It was very grateful.

Most of its many kittens were female and fruitful, so they multiplied. The process repeated itself until countless cats invaded an area under the hospital's first floor and even took over a large storage trailer, said Glen Washington, the hospital's assistant manager.

"I don't know how many cats there were," said Washington. "They were wild, and unless you had on a white nurse's uniform, you could not get near them."

Patients, nurses, cats and administrators lived in uneasy co-existence until the cats unleashed a secret weapon. They infested the hospital's first floor with fleas.

"We had to do something," Washington said.

James Shifflett, head of animal control for Pasquotank County, set traps and sealed escape routes.

"But somebody kept right on springing those traps," Washington said. "And somebody kept right on feeding those cats, and nobody could go near them unless they had on white uniforms."

In early June, Hospital Administrator Robert Jeffries declared a ceasefire and opened negotiations with the cats through a neutral commission of nurses. It was agreed that the nurses would have the cats out of the hospital within 30 days.

"But the fleas got worse and it seemed like there were more cats than ever," Washington said.

The peace talks broke down and Shifflett's forces opted to flex their military superiority. They resumed the offensive with tranquilizing darts and .22-caliber sniper fire.

The feline forces slowly gave way under the gunfire, retreating to a wooded area between the hospital and the Pasquotank River bank.

Shifflett estimated there are only one or two cats left but couldn't say whether they were male or female or one of each.

Accidents Reported

Local traffic accidents Friday and Saturday resulted in an estimated $7,600 amount of property damage and several injuries, according to Greenville police.

Heaviest damage resulted in a collision Friday on Greenville Boulevard involving vehicles driven by Pervis Cohens, 313 Line Ave., and Del Russell Langley, Route 1, Pinetops. Damage was estimated at $1,400 to the Cohens vehicle and $1,000 to the Langley vehicle.

Preston Williams, a passenger in the Cohen vehicle, was injured in the collision and was admitted in Pitt Memorial Hospital. Hospital authorities said Williams was in fair and stable condition. A passenger in the Langley vehicle, Hope Strickland, was treated and released from Pitt Memorial Hospital. Cohens was charged with a safe movement violation.

Vehicles driven by Millie Terry Drake, Route 2, Greenville, and Krishnaiah Rayasam, 107 N. Oak St., also were involved in a collison on Greenville Boulevard Friday. Estimated damage was $400 to the Drake vehicle and $300 to the Rayasam vehicle. Rayasam was charged with a safe movement violation.

Police also reported an accident on Memorial Drive Friday night involving vehicles driven by Edward Leroy Williams, 305 Nash St., and William Franklin Watson, Route 4, Greenville. Damage was estimated at $1,500 for the Williams vehicle and $500 to the Watson vehicle.

Vehicles driven by Margaret Louise Foust, 1413-B W. 5th St., and Linwood Blake Harper, 627 Greyson Rd., Rocky Mount, collided on West 5th Street later Friday night. A passenger in the Foust vehicle, Annie Fourst, 414 Ford St., was treated and released from Pitt Memorial Hospital. Harper was charged with following too closely.

A hit-and-run accident on West 10th Street early Saturday caused an estimated $700 damage to a vehicle driven by Henry Elvin Anderson, Route 2, Vanceboro.

Costs Going Up For Phone Calls

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you have been paying $2 for a three-minute phone call to Aunt Etta in another state, that same call will now cost $2.32.

The price of a long-distance interstate telephone call went up 16 percent as of 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Railroad Resumes Service

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The nation's longest railroad resumed normal service Saturday after a federal judge ordered striking carmen to return to work.

"We started to return to normal as soon as the pickets were lifted, calling in crews for the midnight shift. We're pretty well back to normal now," Pete Briggs, a spokesman at Burlington Northern headquarters in St. Paul, said late Saturday morning.

About 5,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of the United States and Canada walked off their jobs at 6 a.m. Friday because the railroad allegedly violated a contract provision requiring 60 days notice before BN can close a shop or lay off workers.

U.S. District Judge Prentice Marshall in Chicago granted the railroad's request for a temporary restraining order — effective until midnight Tuesday — banning any strikes, work stoppages or picketing against the railroad.

A hearing on a preliminary injunction in the case was scheduled for Monday before U.S. District Judge Bernard M. Decker in Chicago.

Supervisors kept the trains rolling while the carmen, who repair and maintain the trains, and members of several other unions honoring their picket lines were off the job.

"I don't expect any disruption over the weekend. I think it was a one-day thing," BN spokesman Chris Welsh said of the walkout.

Burlington Northern, which has about 29,300 miles of track in 25 states, employs 57,000 people.

CONSECRATION

Pope Gives Private Audiences

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II gave his first private audiences Saturday since entering the hospital a week ago for treatment of pleurisy and a virus. Doctors said the visits were a sign of the pontiff's steady recovery.

However, a spokesman for Gemelli Hospital said the pope will remain hospitalized for a least another week and possibly three weeks.

John Paul met briefly with Metropolitan Meliton of Chalcedon, a representative of the Orthodox Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople (Istanbul) and with Cardinal Timothy Manning, Archbishop of Los Angeles. Before, John Paul had only received Cardinal Agostino Casaroli, the Vatican secretary of state, and other Vatican aides.

The Vatican said the pope would tape a message to be broadcast over Vatican Radio in St. Peter's Square at noon on Sunday.

Hospital spokesman Dr. Giuseppe Pallank said the pope was building up antibodies against the cytomegalovirus, a virus with symptoms similar to mononucleosis. The hospital issued a medical bulletin, signed by nine doctors, saying the 61-year-old pontiff's general condition was satisfactory.

"He hasn't had a fever for two days," Pallank said in an interview. "Even if the fever returns, it's not something to worry about too much because a fever is normal in this disease."

Doctors said they have not decided when they will perform another operation to reverse the colostomy or intestinal bypass performed after the pope was shot in St. Peter's Square May 13.

But it is possible the pope will stay in the hospital for the operation after he has recovered from the virus, prolonging his stay further, said Dr. Emilio Tresalti, the hospital's chief medical officer.

The pope's doctors treated him for pleurisy, an inflammation of the membrane surrounding the lungs, at the Vatican earlier this month using antibiotics. When his fever persisted doctors suspected something else was wrong. John Paul was admitted to the hospital June 20 for a battery of tests which confirmed he had the virus.

Doctors said the pope probably developed pleurisy by overexerting himself when he made two public appearances June 7, just four days after he was released from the hospital where he was treated for gunshot wounds in the abdomen.

The pope probably contracted the virus, which is not related to the pleurisy, from the massive blood transfusions he had during emergency surgery after the shooting, doctors said.

Mehmet Ali Agca, 23, a convicted Turkish assassin charged with shooting the pope and two American women, will stand trial July 20, the Rome state prosecutor's office said.

Cancer-Stricken Runner Is Gravely Ill

NEW WESTMINSTER, British Columbia (AP) — Terry Fox, the one-legged cancer victim whose run half way across Canada last summer raised millions for cancer research, was in "very grave condition" Saturday, hospital officials said.

The news release by Royal Columbian Hospital added that his family was at his bedside.

Earlier in the day, Dr. Ladislav !ntonik, hospital medical director, said in a terse two-line news release that Fox had developed pneumonia and that his condition was deteriorating. Antonik declined further comment.

Fox, 22, of Port Coquitlam, has been listed as critical since Wednesday, but Antonik said at a news conference Friday, "I believe that where there is life, there is hope."

Worldwide attention focused on Fox last summer when he attempted to run from Newfoundland to British Columbia to raise money for cancer research.

Though he was forced to abandon the effort near Thunder Bay, Ontario, when cancer spread to his lungs, his Marathon of Hope raised more than $23 million.

Fox was admitted to the hospital June 19 with a chest infection.

He is pale, sleeps most of the time and receives oxygen but is pleased about a Canadian stamp commemorating his cross-country run and calls and letters of support sent to the hospital, Antonik said Friday.

Usually only royalty are honored on a stamp while they are alive, but the federal government said Thursday it will issue a stamp to commemorate the Marathon of Hope.

Fox is being treated with several drugs, including antibiotics for infection, morphine for pain, Digoxin for heart irritation and Lasix to prevent fluid from accumulating in his lungs and around his heart, the doctor said.

Antonik said Friday that tumors in Fox's lungs prevent the lungs from absorbing enough oxygen to keep his brain functioning at optimal levels all the time.

As a result, Antonik said, Fox is a little forgetful, but there is no brain damage.

"He's getting nasal catheter oxygen to help him, but the lungs are in trouble, so they're not able to take as much oxygen," Antonik said.

Ambassadors Chosen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan announced Saturday he will nominate Richard L. Walker, an international relations professor at the University of South Carolina, to be ambassador to South Korea.

If confirmed by the Senate, Walker, 59, would replace William H. Gleysteen Jr., who is resigning.

Reagan also said he intends to nominate Julius Waring Walker Jr., a career foreign service officer, to be ambassador to Upper Volta. Walker, 54, would succeed Thomas D. Boyatt, who is now ambassador to Colombia.

The president said Frederic V. Malek, executive vice president of the Marriott Corp., will be nominated to be governor of the United States Postal Service for a term that will expire in 1989. Malek was deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget in 1973-74.

Crash Victim Lived 5 Days On Gum, Apple

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — A woman who survived nearly five days with only an apple and pack of gum for nourishment after her plane crashed said Saturday she watched at least 25 search planes fly "right over where I was" in a grove of trees.

"It was so discouraging. I was afraid that I had survived the crash only to die of hunger and thirst," said Sherleen Jaussi, a 39-year-old student pilot and mother of five.

Mrs. Jaussi suffered a broken pelvis and cuts and bruises, but talked spiritedly with reporters several hours after she was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in Grand Junction.

"I'm just happy to have a drink of water and be alive," Mrs. Jaussi said. "I feel great for a broken pelvis."

Mrs. Jaussi said she became very discouraged after at least 25 search planes flew over without seeing her.

"There were three planes yesterday (Friday) that came right over me. I was sure they'd seen me," she said. "I was so sure I ate the last part of my apple. Then there were four more (planes) today (Saturday).

She was found Saturday morning by three men from her church ward in Price, Utah, more than 100 miles away.

Her husband, Jim, was still out with a search party Saturday afternoon and did not know his wife had been rescued. He was among 26 members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) Church in Price who joined the ground search after her Piper Tomahawk crashed Tuesday, 15 miles southwest of Grand Junction.

Mrs. Jaussi said her plane crashed in aspen trees about 15 minutes after she left Walker Field here for Blanding, Utah.

"I hit one downdraft and recovered from it. Then I hit another one and I knew I was going to crash. I remember saying to myself three times, 'I don't want to die.'"

Temperatures in the Grand Valley were around 100 degrees during the daytime all week, but were a few degrees cooler at the crash site, at an elevation of about 8,500 feet.

Mrs. Jaussi said the heat was not too severe because the trees gave her shade. At night, however, she said it was very cold.

She said she took window coverings from the plane and tied them to a stick to make a signal flag. At night she wrapped up in her coat and the flag to keep warm. She said she was afraid to light a fire to aid searchers because gasoline had spilled from the plane.

She said she allowed herself a stick of gum each morning and each evening and sucked on pieces of her apple for moisture.

"Every night I dreamed of somebody bringing me some kind of drink, but I'd wake up and they weren't there."

Unable to walk because of her broken pelvis, she said she stayed with the plane for two days. On Thursday she crawled about two blocks to a small clearing. It was there that rescuers saw her leaning against a tree, waving her flag and screaming for help.

"All I wanted was water," she said. "The first thing they did was run back to the truck and get some for me."

During the time she spent waiting for rescue, Mrs. Jaussi said she wrote letters to her husband and children, who range in age from 3 to 12. She said spent her days napping and "being like a kid — drawing things in the dirt and pulling plants and carving Jim's initials on a tree with my fingernail."

Mrs. Jaussi was on her final cross country qualifying flight before getting a pilot's license.

The plane's emergency radio locater beacon did not work. Craig Humes, the aircraft's owner and Mrs. Jaussi's flight instructor, said he believes the impact of the crash in the trees was not severe enough to trigger it. And he said Mrs. Jaussi apparently did not properly turn it on when she tried to do so manually.

Bush Tries To Appease French In Cabinet Flap

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP) — Vice President George Bush, after meeting President Reagan, tried Saturday to smooth over a dispute with France about the appointment of four communists to the cabinet of the new French Socialist government.

Bush, who paid a courtesy call last week on the government of Socialist President Francois Mitterrand, praised the "fundamental, deep and strong" ties between the two NATO allies.

After meeting with Reagan at the president's ranch north of this Pacific Coast naval air base, Bush refused to characterize for reporters Reagan's views on the controversy.

The dispute arose last week when the State Department, reacting to Mitterand's appointment of the four communists, said officially that the "tone and content of our relations as allies will be affected" by the presence of the four in the 43-member cabinet.

Bush refused Saturday to repeat that phrase, saying instead that "the United States has stated its position and there is no point in restating it."

He said France will continue to be a U.S. ally and he discounted reports that French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson said U.S. criticism of the cabinet was "unacceptable."

"I just can't believe that he feels our overall relationship with them is unacceptable," Bush told a press conference. "I just don't believe it."

Bush said the United States is clearly "not pro-communist" and said he didn't believe Mitterrand is either. "If you see a communist government in NATO, as you don't have in France, that would cause us tremendous concern. But our present concern relates to eventualities beyond where France stands right now."

Bush said he felt "very strongly that Mitterrand is very realistic about the Communist Party which he has been running against for a long, long time."

Asked about Reagan's reaction to the spat, Bush said, "I can't tell you what the president said."

Bush was also asked if the French had assured him that the communists won't have direct access to NATO secrets, but he said, "I'm not going to go into those kinds of details."

Bush and his wife, Barbara, landed at the naval station in a government plane and then took a helicopter ride to Reagan's mountaintop ranch. After the brief visit, they departed for the Philippines to attend the inauguration of President Ferdinand Marcos.

Reagan, flush from "the biggest victory and the most important week" since he took office, took time out of a day of relaxtion at his ranch Saturday to work on a speech he will deliver Monday to the NAACP.

The president and his wife Nancy, who arrived at their ranch Friday for the weekend, were joined Saturday by their daughter, Patti Davis, and the three took a horseback ride.

Edwin Meese III, the president's chief aide, told reporters at a briefing at the White House that House passage Friday of Reagan's package of budget cuts "was the biggest victory" since his election and culminated "the most important week for the president so far in his administration."

Reagan delivers the speech to the NAACP Monday in Dnever on his way back to Washington, where his next major legislative goal will be to push for passage of an across-the-board, three-year, 25 percent income tax cut.

House Democrats are fighting the plan backed by the president, preferring a two-year cut that is tilted more toward low- and middle-income wage earners.

Navy Still Planning New Plane Despite Problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy, with little fanfare, is proceeding with plans to build the most expensive fighter-attack plane ever developed by the United States, even though it doesn't live up to its billing.

The aircraft is the F-A-18, which the Navy has gold-plated from a simple fighter into a "single-seat, twin-engine, high performance, multi-mission tactical aircraft" that will cost $32 million each.

The dual designation of "F" and "A" gives the high performance jet twin billing as a weapon for use against both other planes and ground troops.

But because it doesn't roll fast enough approaching a ground target, the Navy is conducting a parallel program to develop other aircraft which could carry out that type of mission.

The Pentagon is about ready to release its third report recommending a go-ahead for production of the F-A-18 in the fighter role. That would release more money for the plane's development, earmarked in the supplemental defense budget for the curent fiscal year.

The Navy has budgeted $2.2 billion for 60 planes this year and $2.7 billion for another 63 aircraft in the spending bill for the next fiscal year.

The Navy wants 1,366 F-A-18s to replace its carrier-based F-4 Phantom fighter-bombers and A-7 Corsair attack planes. The overall price tag would be about $35 billion, one of the most expensive programs in history.

The F-A-18 has been given good marks by the Pentagon despite the high cost and the problems in building an aircraft which can truly carry out multi-mission duties.

However, Navy brass has been dissatisfied with the slow rate at which the plane rolls over as it approaches a target. The roll is necessary for the pilot to glimpse his target on the ground before releasing his bomb.

Deputy Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci said in a report on the plane April 20 that the F-A-18 is an "excellent airplane with good potential in the fighter mission"

He omitted reference to the plane's ground attack potential but not to its cost or to a parallel venture by the Navy: "the adoption" of the AV-8B Harrier piloted by the Marines as a light attack aircraft to replace older planes such as the A-4 Skyhawk and an earlier model Harrier.

Scientists Say Four Meteorites May Be Martian Castoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four unusual meteorites found on Earth may be pieces of the planet Mars that were thrown free by an ancient, giant explosion, some scientists believe.

The meteorites, including two found not long ago in Antarctica, "may be one of the most exciting discoveries in recent years," Dr. Harry Y. McSween, a geologist at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, said Saturday.

McSween said in a telephone interview that the meteorites, called shergottites, appear to have crystallized from lava between 600 million and 1.2 billion years ago, and are far younger than any others found.

Almost all other meteorites are about 4.5 billion years old, and are believed to have originated at the time the planets of the solar system formed.

Most are believed to come from the asteroid belt, the ring of rocks that circles the sun between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter.

McSween and others speculate that a giant meteor smashed into Mars at a time when the planet was volcanically active and blasted away some of the new surface material.

This explosive force could have propelled pieces fast enough to escape the gravitational pull of the small planet and send them off into space, and some could have later fallen to Earth, they say.

The shergottites, composed mostly of the minerals feldspar and pyroxene, are very much like the basalt rocks formed on Earth from cooling volcanic lava, McSween said.

John O. Annexstad, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration scientist who specializes in meteorites, said some scientists believe the shergottites are from Mars because that planet was volcanically active at the time they were formed.

The meteorites are composed of igneous material formed from great heat, and there is no current explanation as to how asteroid belt rocks could have generated enough heat to create them, Annexstad said.

Clay Kirkman Says...

Now that summer is here, many of you will be leaving home for the weekends or even several weeks for vacation. This brings to mind many questions about what to do with houseplants during your absence.

Actually, there are several different methods that you can employ to care for your plants. Even if you will be gone up to a month, the plants can get by without fertilizer, but watering is the main concern.

First, check all plants for any sign of insects or disease. Discard the infested ones and clean the foliage of the others. If the plants are under a grow light, simply attach a timer.

If you are leaving for a long weekend, move the plants away from bright light and water them well. Set the plants in transparent, plastic bags to catch the moisture. Do not let the plastic touch the foliage. The pots should not be in saucers so the drainage holes are free to take up the water which runs down the plastic.

A second method is to set the pot in a larger pot and fill the space in between with sphagnum moss. Water the plant well and the sphagnum also.

A third method, if you have a lot of plants, is to put several layers of newspaper in the bottom of the bathtub. Put bricks on top of the newspaper and set the plants on top of them. Run enough water in the tub to just cover the bricks. The bricks will absorb the water and carry it up to the pots.

These are just a few of the ways you can use to care for your plants while you are gone. Visit a Belk Tyler Garden Shop today and see our great selection of beautiful plants.

Sunday Opinion

N.C. Legislature Redistricting Plan Acceptable

The state redistricting plan, now nearing completion in the N.C. Legislature, seems to be one which suits most interests.

It is particularly pleasing to our area.

The House district was left as it is, with Pitt and Greene comprising a district which has two representatives.

The important change came in the Sixth Senatorial District which has been made up of four counties — Pitt, Martin, Edgecombe and Halifax. The Senate plan calls for splitting that district, with Pitt and Martin forming a district and Edgecombe and Halifax comprising a district.

There are two senators representing the old district and each of the two new districts would have one senator.

The present Sixth Senatorial District has always been an unwieldy one — stretching as it does from the center of the east to the Virginia line. It has been a difficult district for the candidates to campaign in and Sen. Vernon White sees the change as a good move.

"My rationale is that we can find good people in both districts to run for office. As it is now, the four counties are really too wide an area for a candidate to campaign in."

We have welcomed the association with the people of Edgecombe and Halifax counties in the district. It makes good sense, however, now that there is adequate population, to split the district and have one senator from each.

As Choices Made, Meet School Needs

We don't envy the County Commissioners their job.

Last week the Greenville City Schools appealed to the commissioners for more money in the 1981-82 fiscal year budget.

Dr. Jon Tingelstad, chairman of the Greenville School Board told the commissioners the recommended appropriation was "both inadequate and unacceptable. Because of inflation, maintaining the status quo is equal to taking a step backward."

Supt. Glenn Cox appealed for some $66,000 more than had been recommended by County Manager Reginald Gray.

At the same time the school people were appearing, representatives of the Pitt County Taxpayers Association were urging the commissioners to "cut the fat" from the budget.

The commissioners no doubt recognize the additional needs of the schools, but are also aware of the feeling, national in scope, for holding down spending and cutting taxes.

Clearly everyone's wants can't be met . . . but we will opt for meeting school needs when hard choices have to be made.

"FOR SOMEBODY THAT REFUSES TO SIGN THE NUCLEAR NON-PROLIFERATION TREATY, THE ISRAELIS ARE CERTAINLY EAGER TO ASSIST IN ENFORCEMENT!"

Barry Schweid

What Now?

WASHINGTON (AP) — In principle, at least, Ronald Reagan is for getting started on negotiations with the Soviet Union to cap the nuclear weapons race.

But it might take nine months — until March 1982 — to open formal talks, the administration's prospective chief arms negotiator told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the other day.

"As of this moment, I don't know anybody in this government, with whom I've talked, who knows what it is we want to negotiate about," said Eugene Rostow, Reagan's nominee as director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Nine months is a long time for the two superpowers to keep trusting each other to live up to the SALT II treaty, which the Senate never voted on and which Reagan wants ultimately to scrap.

The two countries are not legally bound by the treaty signed in Vienna two years ago by Jimmy Carter and Leonid I. Brezhnev. And the treaty's protocol, which bans the deployment of ground-launched cruise missiles and mobile intercontinental ballistic missiles and the testing of ICBMs from mobile launchers, expires at the end of the year.

The delay predicted by Rostow would eliminate any prospect of negotiating an extension of the protocol.

The unraveling already has begun.

The administration has authorized the Navy to build its new cruise missile for deployment on submarines and surface vessels sometime after the middle of next year. Deployment this year was outlawed by the protocol.

On the Soviet side, expiration of the protocol would remove a restraint on deploying the SS16, their one mobile missile launcher, although some U.S. analysts think the five-year-old program no longer interests the Kremlin.

As the Reagan administration prolongs the moratorium on negotiations, U.S. and Soviet political leaders face pressure to dust off weapons blueprints and try out new missile systems that are hemmed in by either the protocol or the treaty or both.

Besides the Navy's Tomahawk missile, the Pentagon is ready with plans for deploying ground-launched cruise missiles, the type to be based in Western Europe beginning in 1983.

Congress is studying options for deploying the MX missile, even though President Reagan has made no final decision. The protocol banned deployment this year.

The Soviets, meanwhile, probably are eager to flight-test heavy SS18 ICBMs with more than 10 re-entry warheads, the limit under the treaty. Once tests are conducted, the Soviets could have a new capability that a new SALT treaty could not reverse.

The treaty permits the two sides to add only one new ICBM. The Soviets are known to have two new types ready to go.

The delay predicted by Rostow does not mean the United States or the Soviet Union will rip up the treaty and stir up the nuclear arms race again.

The danger for arms control is that the longer it takes to get to the bargaining table, the longer it will take to conclude a treaty satisfactory to both sides.

Reagan declared last October that "I will make immediate preparation for negotiations on a SALT II treaty."

But, as Rostow indicated at his confirmation hearing, the administration simply isn't ready to bargain yet.

"This administration, on this issue and others, does not intend to pick up where the other left off. We would rather start from zero," said a State Department official who deals with arms control. "The people here want to think all these things through from the beginning."

Sunday Morning Notes

Hot weather has been the rule for June in this area. On a number of days the thermometer has toyed with the 100 mark and, depending on which thermometer you were looking at, it occasionally hit 100 in Greenville.

Wouldn't you know it? It's in weather like this that air conditioning finds a way to go out. And it did for your columnist. The unit at home ceased working. A call to the repairman showed that many people were having the same problem and there would be a day's delay before anyone could get there.

When help did arrive, the problem proved simple and soon the system was kicking out cool air again.

Our troubles were over? Not quite. A couple of days later the auto air conditioning went out. This proved to be an extensive job, requiring the ordering of parts, so it was a number of days before the unit was fixed. In the meantime there were days of riding around with the windows down.

We who remember the days when there was little air conditioning, tell ourselves we can get along without it, if necessary. We can, but we don't like it. The nights are hot when the air conditioning is out and so are our autos. Maybe air conditioning is a luxury, but luxuries soon become necessities in our lives.

Believe it or not, though, there has been a time when there was little or no air conditioning in Greenville. Who remembers washed air at the Pitt Theatre, which may have been the first building to have cooled air in the city?

Restuarants soon followed, for their operators soon found that putting in cooling systems increased business markedly. Then it was the retail merchants who tried to make things more comfortable for their customers. Finally the boom in home air conditioning came and then it was extended to automobiles.

It wasn't so long ago, however, that most of us had sunburned left arms. The car windows were always down, you see, and it was natural to prop the left arm out the window.

There were the jokes about the Texans who sweltered in their cars with the windows rolled up, because they didn't want their friends to know they couldn't afford air conditioning.

Perhaps the last to go was the churches, where it was generally felt that the congregations should endure a little heat for the Lord. Funeral home fans were provided for a little relief. Eventually it was discovered that even church attendance could be improved with air conditioning and the revolution was on.

Age Of Hype Arrives At The Legislature

RALEIGH — Mostly, legislative proposals introduced in the General Assembly are a dull-looking lot. The racks display row upon row of look-alike cover sheets of a uniform black and white design. The bills are written in a formal, stylized legalese with a "short title" and a number and a date and an introduction saying, "A Bill To Be Entitled..." then directly into the matter at hand.

But this is the age of the hype. TV commercials, movie ads, soap packages, or record jackets alike show one common thing: the big sell.

When State Rep. John Jordan put his proposal to limit state employment into the legislative machinery, he broke with tradition.

From a magazine cover he took a picture of House Speaker Liston Ramsey in formal pose, and pasted up a clipped quote from an interview in which Ramsey said, "There should be something to hold down future growth in state government ... I feel state government has grown enough, and favor some sort of mandatory provision to limit spending in the future."

With that promotional cover hitting every legislative desk, it's little wonder that what Jordan has been trying since 1975, and others tried before, is now catching on.

But imagine if the hard sale technique catches on in the General Assembly. Of course black and white would have to be replaced by full color, eventually, and there could be a whole new growth industry for public relations people designing and printing covers for legislative bills.

State Sen. Charles Vickery should have used a gun barrel cut out in which you look down the grooves to see a body dripping red, much as James Bond movies open, to capture attention on his gun control measure.

Gov. Jim Hunt's "Good Roads Package" could have featured a double spread showing a pothole on one side, and what the pothole would look like later on the other.

Bankers pushing increased interest rates could have used an insert technique like those Christmas or birthday greeting cards which have a space to insert money so the portrait shows.

But then the opposition would have every right to demand equal space, and that could lead to some truly imaginative design and print work.

The Restaurant Association, battling an increased tax on coffee and tea, would do well to simply reprint that famous history book picture of Patriots clad in Indian garb throwing crates of tea into Boston Harbor.

Modern techniques also allow easy reproduction and packaging of pastic records which can be played on any phonograph. The North Carolina Symphony bid for added funds could include a serenade to legislators, and a class of children stumbling haltingly through a simple reading book could bolster a plea for additional school funds.

Early in the session, a book opposing abortion funding written by Kent Kelly was placed on desks in the General Assembly. It was called "The American Holocaust" and featured a map of the nation dripping blood overprinted by a Nazi swastika.

If Jordan's promotionl scheme catches on, Ramsey may find himself a censor committee of one presiding over bill covers.

Walesa 'Rules' With An Emotional Bond

WROCLAW, Poland — After two hours of hearing Lech Walesa exhort regional Solidarity delegates here to be united and refrain from further strikes, a man in the rear shouted: "Long live Walesa!"

"That's my name," a grinning Walesa shouted back. This veneration for Solidarity's leader as, in an irreverent colloquial style, he calls on Poles for greater efforts and greater restraint dominates Poland's turbulent political scene.

At age 37, Walesa has been transformed from Gdansk shipyard worker to the authentic leader of the Polish nation. As such, he now is burdened with singular responsibility for protecting Poland's democratic revolution, both from strangulation by the Polish communist apparatus and sudden assault by the Soviet army.

He is still treated with condescension by both intellectuals at Solidarity's national headquarters in downtown Warsaw who want to guide him and by communist insiders who want to coopt him. But since the death of Poland's Catholic primate, Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski, he has become Poland's true leader. Unlike the austere cardinal, the charismatic Walesa has forged an emotional bond with the people unprecedented in modern Poland.

Walesa has so developed beyond the local strike leader of last summer that his absence from the country now raises concern. While he was in Geneva addressing the International Labor Organization, a regional strike was called (which Walesa quickly canceled when he returned). That arouses fears of what will happen when Walesa is on a two-week American tour beginning July 3.

The overwhelming consensus in Solidarity is against strike action. But other leaders in the union were not happy about Walesa's recent declaration that Solidarity is strictly a labor union without political functions. "Walesa is not the trade union," Janus Onyszkiewicz, a mathematician who is a member of Solidarity's coordinating council, told us.

What makes Walesa unique is less what he says than an emotional link between him and the Polish masses.

Although he cautions restraint to avoid Soviet intervention, the rise of Lech Walesa as his nation's de facto leader is another cause to wonder how long the Soviets can tolerate what is happening in Poland.

Justice Stewart Will Leave A Void On The Bench

WASHINGTON — Only a handful of senior correspondents were working in the Supreme Court's press room last Thursday when the word came down: Potter Stewart was retiring. The old hands reacted with disbelief, then with acceptance, then with profound dismay. For the past 10 years, since the death of Hugo Black, Mr. Justice Stewart has been our best friend on the court.

If the announcement had concerned any one of five others, the news would not have been so startling. William Brennan was 75 in April, Warren Burger and Lewis Powell will be 74 in September, Thurgood Marshall will be 73 next week and Harry Blackman will be 73 in November. Mr. Justice Stewart, at 66, was not on a reporter's list of prospects for replacement.

From our parochial view, as newsmen, he cannot be replaced; he can only be succeeded. Alone among his colleagues, Mr. Justice Stewart fully understood the role of a reporter in fulfilling the constitutional ideal of a free press. He understood that in covering certain hard stories, a reporter must be able to protect his confidential sources; and he understood that in digging out difficult news, the press must have access to public institutions.

Nine years ago the court handed down a decision that has plagued us ever since. The case was Branzburg vs. Hayes. It involved a courageous reporter for the Louisville Courier-Journal who exposed traffic in hard drugs in Jefferson County. Summoned before a grand jury, Branzburg refused to identify his informants. The question presented to the Supreme Court was whether such a summons abridges the freedom of the press guaranteed by the First Amendment. By the narrowest of margins, a sorely divided court gave a terse answer: "We hold that it does not."

Mr. Justice Stewart led the dissenters: "The Court's crabbed view of the First Amendment reflects a disturbing insensitivity to the critical role of an independent press in our society ... A corollary of the right to publish must be the right to gather news ... The right to gather news implies, in turn, a right to a confidential relationship between a reporter and his source."

On the matter of access, he agreed that the Constitution does not guarantee newsmen any right of access to a county jail beyond that given to the public generally. Even so, he said in a case three years ago, the needs of the press must be accommodated. "A journalist does not tour a jail simply for his own edification. He is there to gather information to be passed to others, and his mission is protected by the Constitution for very specific reasons."

In another case three years ago, involving a search by police of the Stanford Daily newsroom, he found it "self-evident" that such searches burden the freedom of the press. For police to rummage through a newspaper's files is to raise "the possibility of disclosure of information received from confidential sources."

A Virginia case dealt with a newspaper's report of certain closed proceedings before a judicial commission. State law made such publication a crime. No way, said Mr. Justice Stewart. "If the constitutional protection of a free press means anything, it means that government cannot take it upon itself to decide what a newspaper may and may not publish." He said the same thing in a Pittsburgh case in 1973: The First Amendment provides "a clear command that government must not be allowed to lay its heavy editorial hand on any newspaper in the country."

In his 24 years on the high court, Mr. Justice Stewart never missed a day of oral argument. He carried his full share of the load — probably 300 opinions for the court, another 350, more or less, in separate opinions. He was not identified with any of the landmark decisions in this period, and historians are not likely to rank him among the giants of the court. Never a doctrinaire jurist, he defied classification as liberal or conservative. He wrote simply and clearly, and he called every case as he saw it.

"We are here to uphold a Constitution," he said in the Stanford Daily case. And Potter Stewart, to his eternal credit, upheld that Constitution very well.

North Carolina taxpayers should feel ecstatic that the University of North Carolina Board of Governors and the federal government have agreed on the desegregation case involving higher education which has cost our state close to $10 million.

This writer would caution North Carolina taxpayers, however, to scrutinize this agreement and consider the likelihood that this dispute will return to the courts. Essentially, there remain two critical elements of this agreement that must be assessed before this matter will be resolved.

The issue which must be addressed now or in 1986 is whether the UNC System of Higher Education can reasonably and practically fund the operation of 16 state-supported institutions in which much duplication of program offerings exists. The numbers of high school graudates continue to decline while President Reagan has already proposed legislation to reduce the opportunities of financial aid for needy students. Thus, the UNC System and all its institutions shall be faced with the challenge of recruiting the academically elite students and the financially able student who can afford the ever-increasing tuition and board. And with tax rate reduction demands, how shall the UNC System realistically expect to maintain its programs with a decrease in dollar support?

Rather than confront the issue of which of the 16 state-supported institutions should remain in existence and bring forth the wrath of loyal alumni and students of all the state's schools, the agreement between the two parties stipulates that 29 new undergraduate and graduate program will be initiated at the five predominantly black universities, thereby creating more program duplication. More black faculty members — hopefully Ph.D.'s — will be employed at the predominantly white schools, a racial complexion of 15 percent white students on predominantly black campuses and 10.6 percent black students on predominantly white campuses will be met by 1986 and the $40 million dollar construction of new buildings at the predominantly Black schools will constitute good faith and a reasonable settlement.

What this agreement has done is conveniently postpone the crucial issues of the cost and funding of higher education in this state and the matter of program duplication until another day and year. Meanwhile, the North Carolna taxpayer will resume paying for litigation.

Recently I applied for, and subsequently had installed, natural gas service.

As was expected, installation of the service required the digging of a rather large trench down the side of my recently installed lawn. The Greenville Utilities Company did quite a good job keeping damage to the yard to a minimum, and I was quite relieved when the task was finished. But three days later we completely lost power to our house, and the Greenville Utilities Company determined that it could be restored only by replacing the power cable from the street to the house, necessitating the digging of another trench, bigger than and parallel to, the gas line. But my apprehension was relieved when I arrived home from work and found that they had been as careful as possible with my new lawn, although the damage was evident. At least it was over and I figured I could begin restoration work. But not true.

The following day, when I came by the house at noon, I found the cable TV people proceeding with vigor on the digging of another trench across the front of my yard. My dismay over this revolting development was exceeded only by the sinking feeling I experienced when I returned home that very evening to find a mass of telephone company people digging prodigiously all over my yard. It seems the cable TV firm had severed the telephone cable, and to repair it required the digging of several large holes, the dimensions of which would be the envy of the most discriminating funeral director.

I wish this to serve notice to the Sanitation Department, the Water Department, Seymour-Johnson AFB (Office of Strategic Bombing Range Leasing) and all others having a need or desire to dig in my yard, that effective immediately all such digging will be by appointment only.

While I arrived at this decision reluctantly, I feel that if I am to satisfy the insatiable demands to tear up my yard then the digging must proceed in a more orderly fashion. Your cooperation is appreciated.

On Monday I attended a county commissioners open meeting on the 1981-82 budget for Pitt County. I listened to allegations of increased taxes, program duplication in the public schools and community colleges, and the need of Greenville City Schools to maintain a minimal level of funding to insure programs in the fine arts. All requests were reasonable when viewed as individual parts of the whole problem that the commissioners will have to deal with. I have confidence in the commissioners and their collective judgment on the allocations of available funds.

I would like to suggest to the people of Greenville that another source of school funding be explored. More than 50 of the 144 school systems have a special supplemental tax authorized under General Statute 115-116. This tax is to supplement the allocation by the county commissioners and can be used by the school system as the local school board desires. These funds could be used to hire local paid teachers for the fine arts or to estalish programs that would help strengthen the system.

I would like to encourage the administration of the Greenville City Schools to explore the establishment of the Greenville City School tax and keep our eeducation system sound.

I wonder how many who voted for Reagan last fall thought they were voting for the complete dismantling of the environmental protection this country has put into place over the past decade? Yet this is what is happening, step by step, under the guise of "reducing governmental regulation" and "cutting waste." The national public lands are being delivered at so-much-an-acre to the timber companies and the mining conglomerates by Interior Secretary Watt and his helpers. The Clean Air Act is being changed beyond recognition, or will be, if Congress goes along with the administration.

All of us who care about a decent and healthy environment for ourselves and our children better get busy, before too much damage is done. The story goes that next year, to help out the poor lead and asbestos mining companies who have been suffering from "overregulation," we are going to get lead-based paint and asbestos-fibered ceilings back into our schools. Hurrah for Free Enterprise!

European Parliament Two Years Old And Striving

Henry Gottlieb

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The European Parliament is two years old in July, still a bit wobbly on its feet but determined to shed its image as the unwanted and costly stepchild of European unity.

The 434-member body, directly elected by the people of the 10-nation European Common Market, has been described by some of its delegates as a billion-dollar debating society.

It spends one week a month in seemingly endless discussion of topics ranging from asparagus prices in France to refugees in the African nation of Zaire. It has no power to make laws, cannot set the amount of its own budget and has been unable after nearly two years to even decide if its permanent home should be in Belgium, Luxembourg or France.

And some of its members, such as Else Hammercih of Denmark, were elected on a platform calling for the Parliament's outright abolition.

"If the Parliament spent as much on poverty programs as it does on champagne for its own receptions, we could eradicate poverty in some towns of my country," delegate Marco Pannella of Italy said in a recent attack on expenditures. "The whole thing is a farce."

Actually, the Parliament was first seated in 1958, but only as an advisory body to the Common Market. Its members were appointed by Common Market governments.

In 1979, the Common Market decided that to forge European unity the voters of each country would elect the members and give the Parliament power to veto the Common Market's annual budget, which will reach $27 billion this year.

The first formal session was held here July 17, 1979, with fanfare generated by the presence of some of the luminaries of the European unity movement as members.

Among them were former Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany, former Premier Emilio Colombo of Italy and a former United Nations General Assembly president, Gaston Thorn of Luxembourg.

The Parliament's president was and still is Simone Veil, a former French health minister and survivor of Nazi concentration camps. One of its vice presidents is Leo Tindemans, a former Belgian prime minister with the nickname "Mr. Europe" for his work in bringing about harmonization of laws among the Common Market countries.

The Parliament's biggest problem has been trying to compete for power with the Common Market's two stronger institutions, the Permanent Council of member nations and the Executive Commission, a 14,000-person bureaucracy that controls the day-to-day work of the community.

While the Parliament's charter gives it an advisory role, the member countries still set overall policy and the Executive Commission carries it out, much like the U.S. federal government.

As the only Common Market institution directly elected by all the people, the Parliament has tried to exercise the collective will of the 260 million residents of Common Market countries.

But without the power, and with members swayed by the interests of their own constituents, ranging from poor farmers in Sicily to barons in Scotland, the Parliament has had to be content with what British delegate Derek Prag calls "infiltration."

Prag said the Parliament's shining hour came in December, 1979, when it exercised its chief power: rejection of the annual Common Market budget, including its own $1.5-billion appropriation.

Determined to shift Common Market spending away from agriculture programs that suck up 70 percent of the budget, the Parliament kept the community finances in limbo for more than nine months and forced member governments to rewrite the budget to add funds for regional and social programs.

"We've established ourselves as a control body to be reckoned with," Prag said in a recent interview during a break in a lengthy debate over capital punishment in member countries — a debate that had absolutely no impact on Common Market member laws.

"Our real job is to see what the executive branch is up to and making sure it makes sense," Prag said. "I think we do pretty well."

Prag said the Parliament also has tightened its debating procedures to limit extraneous speeches and stop attempts by anti-Common Market delegates to "make absolute monkeys of the whole Parliament."

"The British Parliament has had 600 years, and people say it could still be improved," Prag said. "We've had two years. You have to give us a chance."

In its present setup, the body's 2,000-member staff works in Luxmebourg. Parliament committee meetings are held in Brussels, Belgium, home of the Common Market's Executive Commission.

Full plenary sessions are held in a sprawling congress hall here in Strasbourg, near France's Rhine River frontier with West Germany.

Most parliamentarians want to move the whole show to Brussels to be near the decision-making center and the 350 members of the Common Market press corps.

The staff wants to stay in Luxembourg, where they have established homes.

The French Government has wined and dined the parliamentarians to persuade them to keep the sessions going in Strasbourg.

Prag said the Parliament will probably vote within the year to pick one site, and he thinks it will be Brussels.

"Instead of spending half our time getting to and from airports, we'll have a proper office," Prag said.

'Fixing Up'

Gail Michaels

I wish I could say that Phillip and I fell in love with our house at first sight, but we didn't. We didn't fall in love with it at second, third or fourth sight, either. As a matter of fact, the most positive emotion I felt while we were trying to decide whether or not to purchase it was relief that it did not have red and black shag carpet as did the only rental house in town. (Our shag is an exquisite algae-green.)

But Phillip kept saying, "All it needs is a little fixing up."

The knowledge of the damage two years of schooling had done to our bank account forced me to succumb, although I knew that the house needed more than a little fixing up. It took me six months just to clean the 30-year-old grease brown gas range. Actually, the house fell into that euphemistic category favored by sharp realtors to describe a dump. It was definitely "a handyman's special."

I suppose this would have presented no real problem if Phillip were even slightly mechanically inclined. But what he knows about hardware wouldn't fill the pockets of Suzanne Somer's Ace suit. After ripping out the amateurish cabinet and shelf additions throughout the house and neutralizing the vivid color scheme in the living room and one bedroom, he quickly lost interest in the remaining redecorating chores. We had a new kitchen floor sitting in boxes in our bedroom where wallpaper fluttered in the breeze from the broken window over our bed. The raw wallboard glared from the new wall between the den and the dining room. Worst of all, the kitchen cabinets still wore several coats of paint the color of Zachary's soiled diapers.

We moved into the house in July. In November I prevailed upon Phillip to put the first coat of white enamel on the kitchen. He got as far as the bottom cabinets. He never got around to the top cabinet doors, which he lay mercifully out of sight in the storage room.

Last week I finally got tired of waiting for him to finish.

I was not to be dissuaded.

"I'll do the painting. All you have to do is disconnect the stove and refrigerator and move them out, sand the grease off the cabinets and put the doors back up when the painting is done."

He groaned copiously, but in the end he did his part. He didn't enjoy it, but he did it. As he was putting up the last door, he heaved a sigh of relief. "Thank goodness, we're almost done."

I surveyed our work with satisfaction. "Yes. It looks good. Now all we have left to do is to paint the stove and put down the floor in here and then steam down the paper in our room and . . ."

Facing South: An Afternoon Of Fun Goes Sour

Ida Wooten Tripp

It was a hot, dry Saturday in the Greenville area in that summer of 1932. The leaves, gray with dust, hung motionless, drooping. It was an effort just to breathe, but I hurried to finish my chore of sweeping our yard with the broom made of willow switches.

I was hurrying so I'd be able to play baseball that afternoon. Our ball we had made out of tobacco twine wrapped and sewed around a bobjack ball. I got it out and saw that the thread was beginning to fray a little, so I sewed it some more.The other kids were straggling up the path now: Uncle Berry's seven children and Uncle William's four. From the tenant house came the Ward twins, Ni and Hezzie. Ordinarily, we had no social contact with blacks, but we needed them to play, so on Saturday afternoons the barriers dropped.

Before the game started, we all climbed the fence into the hog pasture and headed for the mulberry tree. We had been forbidden to eat the mulberries, so naturally we went there first. The limbs hung down low so it didn't take long to get plenty. My father saw us coming out with purple-stained faces and hands and grinned. "The reason I told you not to eat the mulberries," he said, "is that they're full of worms." We went a little pale under the purple. "Well, we've eaten them before and they didn't kill us," cousin Claude said. We crossed over to the other pasture where we always played ball.

We played with seven-man teams, and cousin Frank, being sixteen and the oldest, acted as umpire. A cart round served as a bat, and for bases we used guano sacks half-filled with dirt.

We had been playing for a while, when the sky began to darken. In the distance we could hear the mutter of thunder, and jagged streaks of lightning split the sky. Mama came out on the porch. "You children get yourselves in this house right now," she shouted. Ni and Hezzie knew she didn't mean them, so they cut across the field toward home.

The rest of us drifted into our living room. We looked out the window at the queer, yellow-casted clouds. "Gonna hail, surer'n hell," Frank muttered, and we all stared in admiration of his profanity . I lit the kerosene Aladdin lamp and drove the shadows from the corners of the room.

Frank prowled restlessly from window to window. Finally, he turned out the lamp, and the room was plunged into almost total darkness. "Jesus," he whispered. "Look out there."

The boiling black, yellow-tinged clouds were so close we could almost reach out and touch them. "Close the window," someone whispered. Frank slammed the window down, and we stood there, terrified.

In the blinding flash that followed, the room tilted, and we staggered and fell. There was a deafening blast that shook the house; the windows rattled violently; a thousand pins and needles pricked at my bare feet.

The room righted itself and we stood up, confused, half-crying with fear. "Tobacco barns," I whispered. "It hit the barns, and Papa's out there."

Oblivious of the danger, we ran outside, toward the tobacco barns. We stopped abruptly; the barns were still standing.

There was a shout from the other side of the house and we raced around it. My father was running toward the fence that ran beside the big, two-story packhouse. Blue fire raced along the fence, crackling and popping, setting fire to the grass and weeds on each side. "Grab a shovel, a rake, anything," he yelled.

All of us obeyed. We all knew the dangers of a grass fire, especially in a long period of dry weather. "Just stay away from the fence; don't touch it," my father cautioned. "You'll get electrocuted."

We worked frantically to beat out the flames. Finally the electricity grounded itself, and the blue ball of fire disappeared. We beat out every spark; then the rain began, a gray, smoking downpour.

We took refuge in the packhouse. Then we discovered what the lightning had really done. A bolt had hit the side and knocked a huge piece out of the wall. Rain was now pouring in, drenching the stored sticks of tobacco on which our livelihood depended.

Without a word we went back into action, moving armfuls of tobacco to the opposite side. Before the rain could do much damage, the tobacco was on the other side of the packhouse and a canvas nailed over the opening.

We sank to the floor, exhausted. A fun afternoon had turned into a series of narrowly averted tragedies.

America Meets The Hard Reality Of Paychecks

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — The hard reality of paychecks that don't keep pace with inflation and of interest rates that make monthly payments all but prohibitive have knocked a lot of the dream element out of the market.

And don't the automakers know it.

To the surprise of some of their best marketing brains — people who feel they understand every nuance of the public's mind — car sales dropped in mid-month to one of the lowest rates in recent years.

And the decline came at a time when those marketing experts could count off a half-dozen reasons why sales would rise: new, smaller cars; less inflation; stable fuel prices; allegedly higher consumer confidence; increases in trade-in prices; and the need to retire the aging jalopy.

You may recall the disaster that befell the industry at this time last year, when car sales fell to an annual rate of 5.8 million units. But in the comparable period this year they fell to just 5.2 million units.

Said an analyst at Sindlinger & Co., a market research firm widely used by automakers, "What people prefer to do and what they do are different things." Which is to say the dream sometimes eludes them.

You certainly have heard that or a similar statement before, but apparently it has seldom been more true.

People might need and want a new car, said the analyst, but they keep the old one instead. "They aren't even spending a lot for repairs," said the analyst. "They're just trying to get by with less."

Nellie Sindlinger, wife of President Albert Sindlinger and herself a canny interpreter of data, observes that "every American household seems to be lowering its standard of living."

What seems to be happening is that people have become realistic about life and its possibilities. Over the past year or so they have become more disciplined about using credit. Often, they do without instead.

At least in buying an automobile, says Mrs. Sindlinger, they might not buy what they want if they can go to another brand at a cheaper price. And, of course, they have been exercising the other option of forgoing the purchase of a new car and trying to coax more out of the old one.

Interpreting its conversations with grass-roots America, Sindlinger & Co. isn't optimistic about a sudden reversal of mood. It doesn't measure as extensive a fall in the inflation rate as is found in the consumer price index. It projects continued high interest rates. And it also finds a recent decline in political confidence.

Press Freedom Clashes With National Security

William C. Mann

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — In strikingly similar legal cases in Denmark and Norway, press and academic freedom are squared off against what officials see as dangers to Western security.

National security won round one with the conviction in a Norwegian court of two peace researchers.

Both cases involve publication of information about electronic listening posts, described in a Danish magazine and in a study funded by the Norwegian Peace Institute. The institute is financed partly by government funds.

The writers were not charged with spying but with failing to keep secret information that they put together about the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's intelligence-gathering. In both cases, the writers say they used maps, phone books, magazines and newspapers and personal observation, never entering a NATO installation.

An investigation of the Danish case was recently completed. Povel Kyhl, a police lawyer who will decide whether to recommend charges, said he expects to send the case to the Justice Ministry sometime in July.

"No one could possibly say that what we published was not public," said Soeren Moeller Christensen, publisher of Copenhagen's "Defense" magazine. He faces up to three years in prison if convicted.

"Also, because we went public with it, they cannot call it espionage without making fools of themselves."

Christensen said he feels the decision to prosecute will be colored by the outcome of the Norwegian case and the press coverage surrounding it.

Many news stories on the trial described a lack of evidence, and even the lack of a government contention, that anything other than public sources of information were used in compiling the study.

Published in 1979 under the title "Uncle Sam's Rabbits," the Norwegian work contended that the listening posts, despite their stated defensive purposes, could be used offensively against the Soviet Union. It said most of the outposts were arrayed in northern Norway near the Soviet frontier, compiling information that could be used to direct air strikes in wartime.

Norwegian Nils Petter Gleditsch, 38, and Owen R. Wilkes, 41, a British subject born in New Zealand, were each given a three-month suspended sentence, fined 10,000 kroner ($1,715) and assessed court costs of an additional 10,000 kroner. Each could have gone to jail for 4½ years. They said they would appeal.

Opinion Polls Show Begin Will Win In Tuesday's Israeli Election

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Most of the latest opinion polls predict Prime Minister Menachem Begin will win Tuesday's parliamentary election. But with a quarter of the electorate still undecided there could be an upset.

According to most of the polls, Begin's Likud block should win 46 to 49 seats in the 120-seat Parliament, or Knesset, while Shimon Peres' Labor Party will capture between 37 and 43 seats.

However, the estimated 600,000 undecided Israeli voters can still have a decisive impact in this closest, most violent and acrimonious election campaign in Israel's 33 years as a state.

Police have arrested 157 people in campaign rallies throughout the country for destroying property and disorderly conduct.

The election has also been the most unpredictable. It has seen Likud surge up from 3-1 behind Labor with 67-year-old Begin transforming from a frail, sickly old man into a tireless, aggressive campaigner.

One poll published in Sunday's pro-Labor Jerusalem Post showed the Labor Party had pulled even with Begin's Likud bloc, with each expected to take 42 seats in the Knesset. A research center took the poll before Thurday, when a debate between Begin and Peres was televised.

On Thursday night, Peres co-opted former Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, his arch-rival, into the leadership team. But the move could backfire.

Group Awaits Call To Heaven...Today

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Bill Maupin has no plans for Monday. He says he'll be lifted to heaven by then.

"There isn't any chance" it won't happen, says the intense, 51-year-old man. "We're going."

Maupin is the spiritual leader of the Lighthouse Gospel Tract Foundation, a group of 40 to 50 people who believe the Bible forecast that ascension will take place sometime Sunday or before noon Monday.

They contend that true believers in Jesus Christ, living or dead, will bodily be taken up to heaven in a process called "rapture."

Maupin, who quit his wrought-iron business last year to "get the message out" and prepare for ascension, has been busy answering the telephone at his home since the first stories on the group's belief appeared. Reaction, he said, has been phenomenal.

"People are shook up. People are listening. They might not agree, they might be kidding, but inside they're not."

Maupin believes the world will come to the brink of nuclear war before the rapture.

According to Maupin, the Bible indicates certain events will lead up to Christ's return to Earth in 1988: Israel will go to war with Syria, capture Lebanon and re-establish its Biblical borders.

"This is all going happen in one day by what we see now," he said. "This will happen by the end of Sunday, all these things will be fully completed by then, including us going home."

Maupin said an American who is neither a politician nor a religious leader will announce a solution to the war, ending it in a single day, and will be hailed as a world leader. But the man will be the anti-Christ, and when he appears, rapture will take place, Maupin said.

According to the scenario, Satan will appear before December 1984 and will rule the world until May 14, 1988, when the Battle of Armageddon will be fought. After that, Christ and those who have been saved will return to Earth and bring 1,000 years of peace.

Maupin said the rapture date is in 1981 to allow those saved by their belief in Christ to avoid the "tribulation period." Those left behind, he said, must decide between damnation and salvation.

Maupin and his followers are so confident of going to heaven that many sold their homes and belongings.

Chased And Stripped, Man Jumps On Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — A bearded man, stripped naked and chased by an angry crowd, ran into a subway station at Times Square early Saturday and electrocuted himself on the tracks, police said.

The man was killed instantly when he jumped from an IRT station platform and twice touched the electrified third rail, said Transit Police Officer Edwin Cassar.

Authorities could not identify the man, who had dark curly hair, immediately.

According to Cassar, a witness said that the man, wearing only a pair of jeans, had gotten into a fight with a group of people at Eighth Avenue and 43rd Street. They stripped the pants off the man, who then broke away and fled, he said.

The crowd of about 40 people chased the man east along 42nd Street, "throwing rocks, bottles and anything else they could find," Cassar said.

The crowd grew as the chase proceeded down the neon-lighted boulevard, he said, because "people on the sidelines joined in."

The man was stopped by Cassar and his partner, who were standing on Seventh Avenue near the Times Square subway station entrance, but he did not respond to their questions.

He broke loose and raced down the station steps to the lower level, Cassar said, with the crowd in pursuit.

The man unsuccessfully tried to grab the jacket off a man who was waiting for a train, Cassar said. The officer grabbed the nude man, but he again broke away and jumped down on the tracks, touching the third rail twice with his hand.

"After he touched it the second time he sat up and then collapsed," Cassar said.

Cassar said he did not know how the fight started or what it was about.

Police took the man's fingerprints in an attempt to learn his name. Cassar said he and his partner were unable to recover the man's pants.

CHARRED WRECKAGE ... Rescue workers cover the bodies of some of the 10 people who died Friday after a converted motor home caught fire and disintegrated near San Bernadino, Calif. Seven families aboard the motorhome were en route to a reunion in Alabama. (AP Laserphoto)

Fiery Crash Ruins Plan For Reunion On Holiday

FLINT CITY, Ala. (AP) — Lois Elliott expected 150 relatives to attend her family's Fourth of July reunion here. But a fiery bus crash in California replaced the joyous gathering with 10 funerals.

The bus, converted into a mobile home, was carrying 25 people when it exploded Friday in the mountains near San Bernardino, killing five children and five adults.

All but one of the people in the bus was related to Mrs. Elliott. One of those killed was the sister who raised her.

"It was a pleasure just to think about the reunion," Mrs. Elliott said Saturday. "Then it all collapsed. Now I am desperately miserable."

The July 4-6 reunion would have been the first opportunity for many younger family members to see the five-acre northern Alabama farm settled early this century by Mrs. Elliott's parents, Randolph and Mattie Davis Elliott.

Mrs. Elliott, a dietary aide at Decatur General Hospital, got a call at work Friday afternoon that her sister, Iwilla Wisemen, 72, of Los Angeles, had died in an accident. Mrs. Wiseman had raised her after the death of their mother.

"When I got home, I called and found out about the others," said Mrs. Elliott, who took her maiden name after a divorce. "It was terrible. I almost passed away."

The victims, in addition to her sister, were her nieces and nephews and their children.

Seventeen people, all but two of them aboard the bus, were injured in the Interstate 15 crash, which occurred when the 35-year-old vehicle began smoking and burst into flames as the driver pulled onto the shoulder of the mountain road, state troopers said.

The bus rolled backward and hit a truck as screaming passengers kicked out windows and tried to jump to safety. The truck collided with a station wagon carrying five people, injuring two.

Highway Patrol officers said the bus originally had a rear exit, but it was blocked when the vehicle was converted into a motor home. They said a propane tank may have caused the explosion.

San Bernardino County Coroner Harvey Castro said the 10 victims were huddled together in the back of the bus, their bodies burned beyond recognition by the intense heat, "which just melted the bus."

Mrs. Elliott's California relatives were to stop in Kansas City, Mo., to pick up more family members and drop off a young friend at his grandmother's.

They were due in Flint City, five miles south of Decatur, on Sunday, Mrs. Elliott said.

"We would plan the reunion then," she said. Five previous reunions were held in Missouri and California and included cookouts and entertainment.

"We all planned to go to church together here," Mrs. Elliott said.

"Now we're not going to have the family reunion. We're going to go out there for the funerals."

Capitol Hill Is Shaken By House Budget Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans cheered, Democratic leaders gasped and President Reagan offered his praise and thanks for House passage of about $38.2 billion in budget cuts.

The House vote Friday shook Capitol Hill, gave Reagan a smashing victory and placed in doubt whether any of his economic proposals can be stopped in Congress.

Reagan's allies rammed the massive package of budget-cutting revisions through the House by a vote of 217-211, then approved the amended version, 232-193.

From beginning to end, Reagan lobbied by telephone from his California ranch, winning over conservative Democrats who helped secure the reductions he sought.

Immediately afterward, Reagan issued a statement saying the House had given "the American people a major victory in the war against inflation."

Reagan's package revised and toughened a $37.7 billion budget-cutting measure proposed by 15 Democratic-majority committees.

It now goes to a conference committee where differences will be worked out with the Senate.

The House-passed bill would change dozens of laws, terminate some programs like the antipoverty Community Services Administration, do away with the Social Security minimum benefit, eliminate or ease dozens of regulations, lump a number of education programs into block grants under state control and change eligibility requirements for food stamps and student loans.

It was Reagan's second major victory in the House in as many days.

Thursday, the House rejected a Democratic divide-and-conquer procedural strategy to tear Reagan's program apart on separate votes rather than give him the one up-or-down vote he won Friday.

On the key vote that approved Reagan's revision, 29 Democrats defected and two Republicans — Reps. Charles Dougherty of Pennsylvania and Claudine Schneider of Rhode Island — voted with the Democrats.

There were charges of dirty tricks by both Democrats and Republicans in the heated debate that led to the final vote.

Democrats charged Republicans had included "heartless" provisions in the huge package in an attempt to slip them in without anyone's knowledge.

Republicans contended the Democrats had stolen the budget document and mixed up its pages on its way to the official printer.

A roar went up from the Republican side of the aisle as the electronic tally in the House chamber showed 217 "aye" votes. Supporters clapped and cheered, shaking hands with sponsors Phil Gramm, D-Texas, and Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, and jubilantly slapping them on the back.

Republican Leader Bob Michel of Illinois, who won, said he was proud to be a member of the House. He received a standing ovation.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., who lost, referred to Michel as "my good friend after 5 o'clock."

But earlier, he had charged Michel was a pawn of the White House.

In a statement read before the stormy session began, O'Neill accused the package supporters of trying to foist off a "hidden agenda."

Dear Abby

Woman Must Crack Down Or Knuckle Under

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have recently become involved with a man whom I love very much. He is an ideal person in every way except one. He has a very irritating habit of cracking his knuckles. This would be bad enough, but he cracks his knuckles on his jaw! He actually places his knuckles on the side of his jaw and pushes as hard as he can until they crack!

As we have become close, he has started to ask me to let him crack his knuckles on my jaw. I have let him do it several times, but I feel somewhat uneasy about it and would like him to stop. The problem is that I am afraid he will discontinue our relationship if I am unwilling to satisfy this desire. I love him very much and don't want to lose him. Abby, what should I do?

NANCY IN SEATTLE

DEAR NANCY: Tell him firmly but lovingly that you no longer want him to crack his knuckles on your jaw, and if you lose him because of this, you are well rid of him, by cracks!

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I met Jim. I was a 25-year-old virgin and Jim was so handsome and new in town. We dated for a few months and he asked me to marry him. We became sexually involved, but no marriage took place. Soon after, Jim told me that he had done some professional killings for the underworld and he might have to go to prison for one year. I was shocked! I couldn't believe Jim was that kind of person. As a result, our relationship went down the drain. I got sick in poor health and didn't realize I was pregnant until I was five months along. Jim said, "Get an abortion." But no doctor would touch me because I was too far along.

Jim disappeared, so I told my family I had been raped. I had a baby boy who is the picture of Jim, but I stuck with my rape story and didn't list Jim's name on any of the documents.

Jim has come back to town and now he's telling people my baby is his. I don't care what people think. My only concern is whether Jim has any legal claim to my child. He never supported me in any way. He has money for lawyers, but I don't. Can you help me?

WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: Your local Legal Aid Society exists to help people who need a lawyer and have no money. It is listed in your telephone book. Please call and make an appointment immediately. Write again and let me know how you are. I care.

Record Sales Predicted On '81 Tobacco Market

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If the weather cooperates, agriculutural officials say record sales could mark the opening of flue-cure tobacco markets in five southeastern states between July 14 and and Aug. 4.

That was just one of the areas discussed last week at the annual meeting of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Advisory Committee. The committee also heard a federal official say tobacco farmers could be assessed a lower charge for leaf inspection if Congress passes the 1982 budget before the first market opening.

And the group decided to poll its 37 members during Labor Day week to decide whether to declare a sales holiday as was done in 1980.

The committee set initial sales starting July 14 for the Georgia-Florida Belt, which includes Florida, Georgia and part of South Carolina.

Markets will open July 20 in the Border Belt, made up of northeastern South Carolina and southeastern North Carolina as far north as Lumberton but south of Wallace.

Opening day for the Eastern Belt will be July 22. The belt includeds markets in most of central and eastern No;rth Carolina north to the Virginia border and as far south as Wallace.

The Middle Belt, a small territory stretching from Durham no;rth to the Virginia border, will open July 28. The Old Belt market, located in Piedmont North Carolina and Virginia, will open Aug. 4. Officials at the Martinsville, Va., market said it will not operate this year.

Tobacco will be sold Monday through Thursday of every week during the market season, which is expected to end in late October. The first crop report will be issued July 10.

Hospital Costs May Climb Even Higher

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Hospital cost are rising so rapidly that the cost of a hospital stay may double in the next 10 years, according to the head of North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill.

Eric Munson, administrator of the state-supported hospital, predicts that hospital costs will increase 10 percent a year during the next decade.

Inflation is the leading villian of the predicted rise, Munson recently told a conference of health writers. That is followed by the cost of new equipment and the increased number of elderly people needing medical care.

"We don't need to tell anybody what has happened to the economy in the past five years with respect to food prices, petroleum products, silver products and the like," Munson said. "The point being hospitals are not spared the impact of inflationary spirals on these commodities."

Munson added that the population is getting older by 2 percent a year and that advanced technology adds about 2 percent a year to the cost of hospital operations.

Gayle Haines, director of Piedmont Health Systems Agency, which approves or disapproves applications for new equipment, said hospitals frequently seek equipment that follows the lastest technological advances.

Wesley Long Hospital administrator Robert Clark said age is becoming a factor in costs. As the population gets older it usually means a longer stay in the hospital, which will mean a higher cost.

One hospital administrator said additional influences on increased costs will be the higher salaries for nurses during the next decade. Many areas of the state currently are faced with nurse shortages.

Munson said about 85 beds at N.C. Memorial Hospital are closed because of a nursing shortage there.

Terrorists Add New Problem To Missionary's Life

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

WAXHAW, N.C. (AP) — Missionaries and pilots training in this tiny Piedmont village to spread the Gospel around the globe are accustomed to the risks of jungle life and the hazards of remote dirt airstrips.

But they are facing a new danger that seems to be surfacing with increasing regularity — terrorism.

"We always tell our people to relay the message that we will not be blackmailed," says Martin Huyett, executive director of the Jungle Aviation and Radio Service, the branch of Wycliffe Bible Translators that transports linguists to dozens of nations around the world.

"That is, we will not pay if one of our missionaries is taken hostage."

JAARS, located in the piney forests on the outskirts of Waxhaw, seems isolated from the dangers facing missionaries who fan out across the globe. About 275 missionaries live in JAARs housing at its training center and in homes around Waxhaw, a town with neat white houses and antique stores lining its quiet main street.

JAARS provides a training ground for flights by linguists, and it stays in radio contact with missionaries and pilots through an international network of ham-radio operators.

Terrorism was not a major problem for the linguists of Wycliffe, which has about 4,500 workers worldwide — including about 2,000 in Third World areas — until recently.

But the gravity of the problem was demonstrated in March when Chester Bitterman, a 28-year-old linguist who was a graduate of Columbia Bible College in South Carolina, was shot to death by terrorists in Bogota, Colombia.

Bitterman, who had moved to Colombia with his wife and two daughters about 18 months earlier, was taken captive when guerrillas burst into a dormitory where he was staying, abducted him and said they would kill him unless Wycliffe linguists left Colombia. He was killed after being held for six weeks.

Since that time, Ecuador has ordered linguists out of that nation, saying their work has become too controversial.

JAARS and Wycliffe officials are reluctant to talk about terrorism, but they staunchly maintain that it has not affected their efforts to translate the Bible into every language.

"We will continue to do what we have been doing, and that is help people everywhere get the word of God," Huyett said in an interview. "We always clear our work with a country's government and go through the proper channels. When we've done all we can, we're in God's hands after that."

Huyett denies charges by terrorists in some countries that Wycliffe missionaries have links with the Central Intelligence Agency or other agencies of the United States government.

"When a country makes an accusation like that, we simply tell them it's not true," Huyett said. "When we're asked to leave a country, like we were in Ecuador, we feel that we are guests of a country and we cooperate fully."

Translating the Bible into another language is a lengthy process that sometimes requires linguists to live in a native country for 10 to 12 years in order to produce grammar books, write the language and translate the Bible.

JAARs pilots, trained to make short takeoffs and landings in rugged terrain, are responsible for taking missionaries to and from the mission fields and providing their only link to their homes and the rest of the world.

JAARS located its national headquarters near Waxhaw in the late 1960s when Charlotte, N.C., businessman Henderson Belk donated 256 acres of land to the organization.

Today the center resembles a small town, complete with more than 50 brick buildings, its own 3,300-foot airstrip and hangar and apartments for some of its workers.

"All money we get to do our work comes from donations by churches and friends," said Hewitt said. JAARS received $1.3 million in donations last year, he said. Missionaries' pay comes from the Wycliffe business office in California and depends on donations.

"I never worry about money," said 85-year-old William Cameron "Uncle Cam" Townsend, Wycliffe's foujder. "The Lord always provides, I've found over the years."

Townsend's goal of translating the Bible into every language began in 1917 when he tried to give Bibles written in Spanish to Indians in Guatemala. He discovered that the Cakchiquel Indians didn't speak Spanish. He spent the next 12 years learning the Cakchiquel language, writing a grammar bkok and translating the Bible into Cakchiquel. In 1934, he founded a linguistic institute to train missionaries to go into remote areas with unwritten languagas and trajslate the Bible.

Townsend founded JAARS in 1946 with a used airplane he bought from the American Embassy in Peru with $3,000 he borrowed from a friend.

"It was necessary, I thought at the time, to be able to get people in and out of remote areas where they were working," he said. "We would go for five or six months and not hear a word from some of our people. It was just too dangerous and we had to be able to back them up."

JAARS currently has about 60 aircraft, including helicopters, and 90 pilot-mechanics flying missions all over the world. At the Waxhaw airstrip 15 pilots and other technical workers maintain aircraft brought back from missions and rebuild damaged aircraft.

Qualifying to be a JAARS pilot is not easy. Minimum requirements call for a pilot to have a commercial license with instrument rating, at least 500 hours of flying time and an airframe and powerframe mechanic's license.

"Our people have to be able not only to be crack pilots, they must be able to do their own maintenance," said Don Manning, assistant director of aviation.

Compliance Issue Threatens Desegregation Plan

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A sentence in a proposal that would settle the 11-year-old desegregation dispute between the federal government and the University of North Carolina has two federal agencies bickering and UNC officials upset.

U.S. Justice Department lawyers are balking at the sentence in the proposed consent decree that declares: "The university's compliance with this decree shall be deemed compliance with the 14th Amendment and Title VI for the duration of this decree."

The sentence refers to the 14th Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, which prohibits discrimination and to Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Law, both which have been used to desegregate public schools and universities in the South.

John R. Jordan Jr., chairman of the UNC Board of Governors, said Friday that U.S. Attorney William French Smith seems to be backing away from the proposal.

"He is reneging, that's all there is to it," Jordan said, adding that Smith is the only federal official standing in the way of the agreement.

The Justice Department has said that finding UNC in compliance with both the amendment and the law would set a precedent for other desegregation cases, which would be inappropriate for other states.

The agreement uses voluntary goals rather than mandatory quotas and puts new programs in black colleges, but does not remove duplicate ones at white schools as the Carter administration had demanded.

The discord between the Justice Department and the Department of Education developed just a week after the two agencies had agreed on a settlement and UNC's Board of Governors had approved it.

UNC President William C. Friday calls the point non-negotiable because the entire sentence is critical to the settlement and the state won't back down.

"The government has charged the state and the university with violating Title VI and the 14th Amendment," Friday said. "It is not fair to charge us with those violations and then not provide for a way to have it resolved. Those charges are something that has hurt us very much."

Friday said he was upset with the delay in filing the consent decree because the university's negotiators had followed the procedure set down by the government for arriving at the agreement.

One top North Carolina official called the incident a case of "bumling" and added, "It's a clear manifestation of what they used to accuse the Carter administration of doing."

The Greensboro Daily News reported Saturday that Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who helped craft the agreement over the last four months, spent much of his time late Wednesday and Thursday on the telephone to Attorney General William French Smith and the White House trying to solve the problem, but to no avail.

The NAACP Legal Defense Fund, which brought the 1970 complaint against the government in a Washington court, tried to stop the filing of the decree before District of Columbia Judge John Pratt, but Pratt refused to issue an injunction.

The proposal must be submitted to and approved by U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr., but first must clear the Justice Department.

CLYDE BURNS ... will present a gospel concert Sunday at 6:30 p.m. at the People's Baptist Temple, 2001 W. Greenville Boulevard. Burns has been singing in auditoriums and churches since 1967 in the United States and Canada. Pastor J.M. Bragg invites the public to attend the concert.

'Chip' Little To Attend '81 Boys' Nation

WINSTON-SALEM — Tommie "Chip" Little, a rising senior at J.H. Rose High School in Greenville, has been named a North Carolina senator to the 1981 Boys' Nation.

Boys' Nation meets July 17-25 at American University in Washington.

Little is the lieutenant governor of the 1981 Boys' State which was held recently at Wake Forest University. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommie L. Little of Greenville.

Youth Little will be joined by Emerson Thompson of Roanoke Rapids, Boys' State governor, at the national conference.

Two Boys' Nation senators and two alternates are selected each year by counselors at Boys' State from among the delegates. This year about 460 delegates from North Carolina high schools attended the six-day program, which is co-sponsored by Wake Forest and the American Legion.

REUNION

The family of Velma L. Cox Mills and the late Charles Mills will have a reunion July 4 from 1-5 p.m. in the picnic area behind Pitt Community College. All relatives and friends of the family are invited to attend. For more information, contact Mrs. Velma Mills, 758-2930, or Velma Yarrell, 758-1850.

SPEAK OUT

The Pitt County Black Assembly will host an informal evening and "Speak-Out" Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church. Those attending will have the opportunity to speak out on issues and concerns of interest. Refreshments will be served. Jean Darden, president, and Erma S. Carr, secretary, invite the public to attend.

NOT MEETING

The Pitt County Board of Health will not meet Monday as previously reported.

LODGE SERVICE

Mount Calvary Lodge #669 will celebrate its annual St. John's Day service Sunday at 7 p.m. at Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church. The public is invited to attend.

Fourth Of July Events Outlined

Participants in Greenville's Fourth of July celebration will have their choice of such events as canoe races, darts, pitching of coins and a greasy-pole climb.

Steve Hecker, chairman of the celebration, said most of the activities will be held on the Town Common. An exception will be the canoe race, sponsored by the Greenville Parks and Recreation Department, which is to begin at the wildlife ramp in Falkland on the Tar River and end at the Town Common.

The race will begin at 10:30 a.m., clearing the way for events to begin on the common at 1 p.m.

Hecker said First Street will be blocked off from Reade Circle to Greene Street for the festivities.

All booths on the common will open at 1 p.m. At the same time, fire and rescue squads will be on hand for a demonstration of their equipment. A softball throw competition for ages 6-14, 15 and up for men, 15 and up for women, and ages 2-5 also will begin at 1 p.m. Participants must bring their own softball.

At 1:45 p.m., a Frisbee throw will be held. Categories will be for ages 6-14, 15 and up for men, 15 and up for women, and ages 2-5. All participants must bring their own Frisbees.

An egg toss for ages 15 and up will be held at 2:15 p.m.

At 2:45 p.m., a tricycle race for ages 2-5 will take place. Participants must furnish their own tricycle.

Participants aged 2-5 and 6-14 can take part in a shoe scramble at 3:15 p.m.

A three-legged race will be held at 3:45 p.m. for ages 6-14 and 15 and up.

At 4:30 p.m., a skateboard race will be held on the street in front of the common. Two age groups are eligible to participate, ages 6-14 and ages 15 and up. Participants must bring their own skateboards.

Physical fitness events, such as push-ups and sit-ups, will be held at 5 p.m. Participants of any age can compete.

A Watermelon Seed Spitting Contest will take place at 5:30 p.m. for ages 6-14 and 15 and up.

An exhibition by the Greenville Gymnastics Club will be held at 7 p.m. Entertainment will be provided at 7:30 by "The Town Common" band.

Fireworks, the finale of the celebration, will begin at the river at 9 p.m. The fireworks will be co-sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees and the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Greenville.

Entrants in the canoe race must provide their own canoe and must have Coast Guard-approved lifejackets. Canoes must be manned by two people. No sails, motors or kayaks will be allowed.

School Leaders Find Jobs Risky

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — School superintendents have been faced with increasing pressure in recent years, and state officials estimate that 20 to 25 of the 144 superintendents in the state will leave their posts by the end of this year for one reason or another.

"All of these departures are not because of firings or troubles with school boards, but there appears to be more of this than ever before," said Tom I. Davis, assistant state superintendent for information at the Department of Public Instruction in Raleigh.

"We keep a running list of superintendents, their addresses and phone numbers, and we have had to update it about six times this year," he said.

In Northampton County this year, the school board refused to renew the contract of its superintendent. In Wake County, the superintendent quit after being accused of questionable financial practices. In New Hanover County, the superintendent resigned because of disputes with the school board. In Lee County, Kenneth Brinson is quitting after 12 years on the job.

"A lot of the enjoyment had gone out of the job," Brinson said. "The demands are probably unrealistic. The superintendent becomes a funnel for all the frustrations and aspirations of people. I think the job is a bit too intense for any one person.

Dr. Douglas Magann's dismissal in Guilford County, forced by the school board, was the second ouster of a school superintendent in four years. Dr. W.J. House resigned as Greensboro superintendent in 1977 after being pressured by the board.

J. Frank Yeager, superintendent of the Durham County Schools and outgoing president of the N.C. Association of School Administrators, gives this advice to any person considering a career as a superintendent: "Keep your bags packed."

Yeager has been fortunate. He has been at Durham County eight years and recently signed a new four-year contract.

"The tenure for a superintendent in an urban area these days is very low," he said. "I would say it is about three years."

Legislators Report Highway Incidents

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Crime Control and Public Safety Secretary Burley B. Mitchell Jr. says a shooting incident involving the car of Rep. Jo Graham Foster, D-Mecklenburg, is not the first highway incident involving a legislator this year.

Mitchell said Friday at least three other highway incidents have been reported to him this year by legislators, who he declined to identify.

One reported that an object was thrown at his car, another felt that a hit-and-run incident involving his car might have been an assault and a third reported being followed from Raleigh to his residence, Mitchell said.

Legislation that would increase the penalties for attacking top state officials and members of the General Assembly is now in a House-Senate conference committee.

Gunfire hit Mrs. Foster's car early Friday while she and several other legislators were returning to Raleigh from the outdoor drama "Sword of Peace" in Alamance County. There were no injuries in the incident that occurred about 12:05 a.m. Friday on U.S. 64 west of Raleigh. In addition to the gunfire, one bus was struck by a rock or bullet, said legislators. A second bus was not damaged.

Mitchell said the shooting incident was reported to the state Highway Patrol about 12:30 a.m. He said no formal report had been filed on the bus incident.

Rep. John M. Jordan, D-Alamance, who arranged the trip to Snow Camp, said he didn't think the people reponsible for the incident knew the vehicles contained legislators.

"It was just two buses going down the road," Jordan said. "All of a sudden, there was a bam and crash, the window shattered."

He said the impact hurled fragments of glass onto legislative staff member Helen West.

A gunshot then struck the rear window of the car carrying Mrs. Foster, her two grandsons and her daughter, and Rep. Edith L. Lutz, D-Cleveland, Jordan said. The car was traveling between the two buses.

"If Rep. Foster's grandson had been sitting up instead of laying down in her lap, (the bullet) might have hit him," Jordan said.

Although the passengers on the bus did not notice the direction from which the object came, Jordan said the adults in the car saw a small red auto pull up behind the car. He said after the car was struck by the bullet, the red auto passed it at a high rate of speed.

Mr. Ralph Ketner, President
Food Town Stores, Inc.
Salisbury, N.C. 28144

Dear Mr. Ketner,

With the rising prices of food, it is very good to know that there is a Food Town just 10 miles down the road.

Food Town has been like an answer to a prayer for my family and myself. We really do save on our food bill by shopping at Food Town.

In fact, the A&P recently featured double coupons, and being an avid couponer, I took a lot of my coupons and set out for the A&P.

But when I got there and saw the prices I couldn't believe it. Even with double coupons the products were cheaper at Food Town with no coupons. So naturally when I saw this, I took my coupons and went to Food Town. When I got home I told my husband about the prices, and all he said was, "You should have known better." And you know, I should have.

So thank you from myself and my family. Food Town has been a great help to us. Not only are the prices lower but the stores are always very clean, and the employees are always very helpful and friendly. There is no other store for the Atkins family, so just keep going the way you are and we will be happy.

Well, in closing I must say thank you for Food Town. May God bless you and Food Town.

Sincerely,

Debbie Atkins

Blocked Punt Keys North Win, 14-7

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

All week long North head coach Tony Oakes promised his defense would be ready come Saturday night and the Jaycee Boys Home All-Star Football Game. Oakes did not lie.

The North defense limited the South to 103 yards total offense — 26 in the second half — and took advantage of two critical first-half errors to score both of its touchdowns and capture a 14-7 victory in the 19th annual all-star battle.

"Our defensive play was just what I expected it would be," Oakes said. "I thought that won the game for us. The defense controlled the line of scrimmage most of the game, especially in the third quarter."

Oakes counterpart, South coach Bob Paroli, agreed. "They controlled the line of scrimmage," he said. "I didn't expect that they'd be able to do that in a game like this."

It was through that line of scrimmage that one Joe Dickens burst through late in the second quarter to provide the North with what proved to be not only the go-ahead touchdown but the last score of the game.

With Tommy Barnhardt back to punt at the 18, Dickens burst through the middle to block the punt. Dickens, a 5-10, 190-pounder from Fugua-Varina, then scooped the ball up at the two and tumbled into the end zone. When Kell Peterson added the extra point the North led, 14-7, with 32 seconds left in the half.

"Dickens had a whole lot to do with our defensive play and with us winning the game," Oakes said. "You could only rush five players (under game rules) on a punt and so he actually had two players blocking on him.

"But he's a tough kid, the toughest on the team. He's not that big, but he's a tough football player."

Dickens, who started at nosequard for the North and will attend Chowan in the fall, was rewarded for his play by being named the game's most valuable lineman.

The North's Bobby Chandler, who rushed for 71 yards on 12 carriers, was named the game's most valuable back. Chandler outshone both AP Player-of-the-Year Joe McIntosh and Shrine Bowl star Vince Evans.

McIntosh, who started at tailback for the North, gained 35 yards in 13 carries and scored the game's first touchdown on a four-yard run early in the first period.

Evans, who gained 110 yards on 18 carries in the Shrine Bowl, rushed for 23 yards in nine carries and scored once on a one-yard run late in the first period to tie the game.

Both players have signed grants to play at N.C. State, but neither displayed the running ability that allowed them to gain over 1,500 yards apiece this past season.

"It's not that the runningbacks are not that good, but they have to get to the line of scrimmage before they can do anything," Oakes said. "In a game like this you don't have a lot of time to get your offensive blocking schemes in. You've only got a week and that makes it difficult."

Just how difficult having only a week's practice to prepare for the game can be seen in the number of turnovers the game produced.

The North fumbled twice, losing one, and did not have an interception. It was penalized seven times for 31 yards. The South was guilty of five fumbles, losing two, and had two interceptions returned for 41 yards. It also had six penalties for 69 yards.

The South's two biggest mistakes came in the first minute and last minute of the first half. Both led to touchdowns and, in the end, to the South's first loss to the North in three years.

On its second play from scrimmage South quarterback Jeff Byrd and fullback Terry Williams fumbled a handoff. The North's Steve Mullen pounced on the ball at the South 20.

Chandler drove up the middle for four yards and then McIntosh raced outside for seven and then went up the middle for four to give the North the ball on the four.

McIntosh, a 6-0, 185-pounder from Lexington, then slanted off left tackle for the game's first touchdown. Peterson, 6-2, 195-pounder from Tarboro, hit the extra point and the North led, 7-0, with 9:14 gone in the first period.

The South took the ensuing kickoff and drove down to the North 34 before turning it over on downs. One play later, however, the South had the ball back when Mark Turner intercepted a John Davis pass and returned it 24 yards to the North 38.

On third and 10 from the 38, Byrd was forced out of the pocket. At the last moment Byrd spotted David Yount open at the 14 for a 24-yard completion. After two incompletions, Byrd connected again.

With third and 20, the 5-9, 155-pounder from Terry Sanford threw a pass that was tipped twice — once by a North player and once by a South defender — before finally being caught by flanker Ivan Jones at the six.

Evans then carried three straight times, the last time a one-yard plunge that gave the South its only score of the game. Byrd added the PAT to knot the game at 7-7 late in the first quarter.

The South appeared primed to take the lead moments later when Vernon Perry broke through to block Mark Morton's punt. The play was wipped out, however, because of a 15-yard penalty.

Neither team threatened again until late in the first period when the North put together a 15-play drive that started at the 34 and ended when Peterson missed a 29-yard field goal.

Less than a minute later, the North had not only the ball back but the lead — this time for good — when Dickens broke through to block Barnhardt's punt and take it in for the go-ahead score.

Neither team scored in the second half, although the North drove down to the the 10 early in the third period. The South got to the North nine early in the fourth period — its deepest penetration of the half — but Byrd missed a 26-yard field goal to end the threat.

Late in the game the South's Vince Martin recovered a fumbled punt at the North 17. But one play later a fumbled snap exchange gave the ball back to the North, which ran out the clock to preserve the victory.

It was a victory earned by the North defense in a game that surprised both coaches, especially Paroli.

"You would never, never have convinced me that we would have had a 14-7 game with the kind of athletes both teams have," Paroli said. "I was looking for four or five touchdowns to be scored by both teams. I didn't know if we could stop them and I didn't know if they could stop us."

The North defense answered the question, an answer that for Paroli was unwanted — and unexpected.

Cooool Water!

McIntosh On The Move
The North's Joe McIntosh (20 light jersey) pulls away from one tackler, behind the South's charging Alan Powers (20 dark jersey), as teammates Thad Smith (81), John Allen Boyd (71), James Barbour (73) and Brent Wood (58) aid in the blocking. McIntosh scored one of the two North touchdowns as that team gained a 14-7 victory in the 19th annual Boys Home All-Star Game Saturday night in Ficklen Stadium. (Reflector Photo by Larry Zicherman)

Two Still Tied

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Pat Bradley and Nancy Lopez-Melton, tied at the start of the third round in the Sarah Coventry golf tournament, fired matching 2-under-par 71s Saturday to extend their deadlock and set up the prospect of another head-to-head duel for the $18,750 first prize.

"I like it when Pat makes a putt, it psyches me up," said the scrappy Lopez-Melton, the No.2 money-winner on the tour this year with $113,918. "I enjoy playing head-to-head against someone."

Last year, the 24-year-old pro outwaited Bradley and won the $125,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament by one stroke when her opponent three-putted on the 18th hole.

But Bradley, who held a two-shot lead going into the 1980 finale at Locust Hill Country Club, didn't buy the match-play idea in a medal-play tournament.

Duke Alumni Top Tar Heels

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gene Banks, Kenny Dennard and Bob Bender, members of the championship 1978 Duke University basketball team, rejoined forces Saturday to score 34 points and lead Blue Devil alumni to a 103-95 victory over former University of North Carolina players in a charity basketball doubleheader.

Former basketball standouts at North Carolina State and Wake Forest were to meet in the second game of the Big Four Alumni Basketball Doubleheader at Reynolds Coliseum. The games were sponsored by the Heart Association and all proceeds went to charity.

Banks, Dennard and Bender were all starters on the Duke team that reached the NCAA finals in 1977. They appeared to have kept the knack of playing together while some of their older counterparts had more difficulty turning back the clock.

Jeff Mullins, a former All-Atlantic Coast Conference and All-America player in the 1960s, opened the game with a 12-point spurt. He scored 8 of Duke's first 10 points as the Blue Devils took a quick 10-0 lead.

But young North Carolina players cut the margin to 22-20, when Dave Colescott hit Pete Budko for a layup. At halftime, the Tar Heels held a one-point margin with the score 45-44.

With six minutes left in the game, Al Wood, a recent Tar Heel grad who was the fourth player selected in this year's NBA draft, slammed a dunk to pull the Tar Heels to within 2 points, 80-78. But, Banks Dennard and Bender led a 10-0 scoring spurt to put the game away.

Pate Promises Jump In Lake If He Holds To Memphis Lead

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Jerry Pate, filled with the old-time confidence, had a one-shot lead going into Sunday's final round of the $300,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic, and may be looking at a swimming session.

"I'm going to win the tournament," he confided to friends as early as Friday night.

"And when I do, it's been such a long, dry spell, I'm going to jump in the lake on 18 and swim across it."

But there's still some work to be done. Pate, who has finished second eight times since scoring his last victory almost three years ago, had to roll in a six-foot birdie putt on the final hole Saturday to break a tie with onrushing Peter Jacobsen.

And Jacobsen, who got into position to win the title on the strength of a tip from Pate and a brilliant, third-round 64, and steady Tom Kite aren't conceding anything.

"I didn't come here to finish third or fourth," said Kite. "I may do it, but that's not what I'm trying to do."

"The idea," Jacobsen said, "is to try to run away and hid, just try to make as many birdies as possible.

"I can't expect to shoot 64 again ..." he paused, flashed that infectious grin and changed directions.

"Why not? Maybe I will shoot 64 again. Maybe 63."

Pate completed three rounds over the 7,249-yard Colonial Country Club course in 205, 11 under par. Jacobsen, who played well in front of Pate, actually had the lead when he finished with a 206 total.

Pate regained a share of the lead with an 18-foot birdie putt on the 17th, then went in front with the closing birdie.

Tom Kite, who has been 10th or better in 11 of 16 starts this season, had a no-bogey 68 and moved into third at 208, three shots back.

Bruce Lietzke, a three-time winner this season, had a 67 that left him at 209, five back.

David Thore, who needs to win $1,931 in this tournament to retain his PGA Tour playing rights, fought the building pressure for a 71 and was well-placed at 211, alone in fifth.

Curtis Strange and Jeff Mitchell, each of whom fell victim to a double bogey, were next at 212. Mitchell had a 74 in the warm, sunny weather and Strange shot a 73.

Lee Trevino, the defending champion and a three-time winner here, matched par 72 and had a 213 total, eight shots back and apparently out of the title chase.

Jacobsen, now in his fifth year of PGA Tour activity, scored his only pro victory last year in the Buick Open.

"If you win here, I get half the purse," Pate told him, then shook his head in mock anger and muttered:

"Dumbest thing I ever did."

It was a reference to the tip he gave Jacobsen after Peter had an opening 73 Thursday.

"He told me I was releasing too soon with my right hand," Jacobsen said.

"So I take his tip and go out and shoot 69, 64," he said, then raised his voice: "Thanks, Jerry. But you're still in front, young fellow."

Then he lowered his voice and in mock confidence, confided:

"The dumbest thing he ever did."

Jaeger Out, Other Seeds Win

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe moved into the Wimbledon quarterfinals Saturday, staying on course for a repeat of last year's dramatic final, with Jimmy Connors casting an omnious shadow.

But for 16-year-old Andrea Jaeger, the dream of becoming the youngest Wimbledon champion in 96 years ended.

Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia, seven years richer in experience, defeated the little girl from Lincolnshire, Ill., 6-4, 7-6.

Three Americans — McEnroe, Connors and rookie professional Tim Mayotte — remained in the eight-man field.

Four — Chris Evert Lloyd, Tracy Austin, Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver — were in the women's quarterfinals.

Borg edged his friend and practice partner Vitas Gerulaitis 7-6, 7-5, 7-6. As so often happens, the 25-year-old Swede, who is going for his sixth straight Wimbledon crown, found reserves of strength for the big points that mattered.

McEnroe, the second seed, dropped his second set of the tournament to big Stan Smith, now 34, who was Wimbledon champion in 1972. But the fiery left-hander, often struggling to contain himself when shots and line calls went against him, won 7-5, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2.

"Some guy is going to have to play helluva well to beat me," McEnroe said afterward.

Last year he forced Borg to five sets in a thrilling final, which included the most dramatic tiebreaker the All-England Club has seen.

Meanwhile Connors, the 1974 champion and sometimes called the forgotten man of Wimbledon, was a convincing 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 winner over Wojtek Fibak of Poland.

"It's absurd to make me a 12-to-1 outsider for the title," Connors said.

McEnroe has been on trial most of the week after being fined $1,500 and threatened with expulsion following explosive scenes in his first-round match.

Against Smith he often appeared conscious of the "bad boy" label. He queried one line call in the second set and the linesman confirmed it.

"Thank you," McEnroe said politely.

In the next set, he again argued with a linesman and the umpire said sternly: "Play on, Mr. McEnroe, please."

McEnroe played on.

But he was not at peace with himself. He missed one easy backhand, leaped in the air and yelled, "The whole court." Twice he shouted in irritation at the ballboys.

The veteran Smith played measured, methodical tennis in the early part of the match and shook up McEnroe with sharp volleying. But once McEnroe got the rhythm of his game going, the result was never in serious doubt.

Gerulaitis extended Borg for 2½ hours, but at the end of each set Borg showed the champion's touch.

In the tiebreaker of the third set, Borg went to match point with an amazing shot. He got in the way of a smash from Gerulaitis and hit a screaming cross-court forehand past his rival that clipped the side line.

Gerulaitis saved that match point, and another. But Borg finally won the match with another devastating cross-court forehand.

Mayotte, who turned pro this month after winning the NCAA championships, put out Sandy Mayer, a Wimbledon player of nine years' experience, 6-3, 6-4, 7-6.

Two more Americans made their exit. Peter McNamara of Australia won two tiebreakers enroute to defeating Jeff Borowiak 7-6, 6-0, 7-6. Johan Kriek, a speedy 22-year-old South African, ousted Francisco Gonzalez 3-6, 6-3, 7-6, 6-1.

Tuesday's quarterfinals will pit Borg against McNamara, Connors against Vijay Amritraj of India, Rod Frawley of Australia against Mayotte, and Kriek against McEnroe.

The defeat of Jaeger was the only real surprise in the day's women's matches. She was seeded fifth and Jausovec 10th.

Jaeger was 16 this month. Only one younger player has ever won Wimbledon — Lottie Dod, who was champion in 1887 at 15 years, 9 months.

Jaeger reached the quarterfinals in her first Wimbledon appearance last year. This time she fell one step short of that.

She still smiled after her defeat.

"I'm not going to tell myself I didn't do as well as last year," she said. "I'll just have to come back next year and try to do better."

Chris Evert Lloyd, the top seed, crushed Claudia Pasquale of Switzerland 6-0, 6-0 in just 36 minutes, then said it was not a personal record.

"I believe I once won a match in 35 minutes," She said.

Third-seeded Tracy Austin downed Barbara Potter 6-4, 6-0.

Martina Navratilova, a two-time Wimbledon champion and seeded fourth this year, gained a revenge victory over Betsy Nagelsen of the United State 6-3, 6-1. Nagelsen upset the Czechoslovakian-born left-hander in a warm-up grass courts tournament at Surbiton two weeks ago.

Of the hopeful squad of American teen-agers who set out in the championships last Tuesday, only Tracy Austin, 18, and Pam Shriver, 19, still were going.

Shriver disposed of Jo Durie of Britain 6-3, 6-4. Durie and Hobbs were the last British hopes for singles titles.

Ruzici defeated Kathy Jordan of the United States 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, while Turnbull eliminated American Pam Teeguarden 6-4, 6-1.

McEnroe: A Complex Personality

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Win, lose or draw, super brat or super talent, this is John McEnroe's Wimbledon.

You can sense it in every corner of the old moss-draped All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club, home of the world's premier tennis championship.

He is complex, intelligent, explosive, the target of derision and adulation, and everybody knows he's around and that he is a threat for the title. Teeny-boppers crowd the restraining ropes for a look at him. They go into hysteria when he wins.

The Wimbledon hierarchy has fined him $1,500 and put him on virtual probation. Another untoward incident, they say, and he's out the front gate on his white shorts.

Yet the fans here, the most knowledgeable and aware in the sport, not only respect him for his rare gifts, but love him for his occasional brashness and revolt against authority.

The London tabloids pan and praise him:

The flashy, fiery left-hander has shoved into the background the great Bjorn Borg, winner of five straight Wimbledons now going for his sixth.

It's McEnroe they talk about on the British radio talk shows. It's McEnroe who draws the biggest galleries and the loudest cheers, despite — or maybe because of — his tantrums.

To some of his closest friends, he is an enigma. One day, the mad genius, taking on all who defy or displease him. The next, a contrite kid, whose boyhood was spent in the jungle of junior tennis development.

"He is the greatest player I have ever seen," says Arthur Ashe, U.S. Davis Cup captain and former American and Wimbledon champion. But Ashe acknoweldged that he was embarrassed for McEnroe Monday when he broke his racket and venomously berated officials. "He's going to have to clean up his act or somebody will have to clean it up for him."

McEnroe himself was sheepish after calling the umpire in his first-round match "an incompetent fool."

"I can sympathize with him. I went through a lot of what he is going through," said Earl (Butch) Buchholz, former U.S. Davis Cup player and currently director of the Association of Tennis Professionals.

"Three years ago his main concern was a pizza and a Coke. Now he has $3 million. Everybody's reaching out for him. Everybody's pressing and bugging him.

"He grew up in an imperfect world. Now he finds out everything's not perfect. He goes out and gets some bad calls. He finds mistakes are accepted. This bugs him.

"Some day he will get it all together and he will be awesome. The depth of his talent and potential is awesome."

McEnroe, 22, jumped from obscurity to instant fame four years ago when, as a fuzz-faced kid, he fought his way through the qualifying rounds to the semifinals.

"Is this big-time pro tennis?" he asked precociously after knocking over some of the world's best, "What have I been missing?"

That's when the British press dubbed him Super Brat. They haven't let up since.

McEnroe turned pro after a year's try at college and, before you knew it, there he was beating Borg just about as often as Borg beat him. Connors fell into the background and the "Big Three" became the "Big Two."

There are some pretty smart tennis analysts who contend McEnroe will end Borg's fantastic streak next Saturday. We'll have to wait and see.

He struggled to beat Mexico's Raul Ramirez in the second round 6-3, 6-7, 6-3, 7-6. He said the threat of more punitive action had dampened his spirits and his game.

"I wasn't myself in my first match and I wasn't myself in the second match, either," he said. "I was pretty down. I'd be lying if I said differently. I lost rhythm on everything. I wasn't into it."

In the first match, he was full of fire and fury and reacted to line calls in a way for which he later apologized. In the second set, with the guillotine over his head, he was subdued.

"I've got to find a happy medium," he said.

He handles his 70-pound pressure racket with the command of a violin master with a Stradivarius. He has tremendous awareness, always knowing his opponent's position, and remarkable instincts.

His problem is that he has failed to marshal all of his gifts — mental and physical — into an all-conquering whole.

Why not?

This is a question that has intrigued psychologists and ordinary fans alike.

A psychologist, Dr. Dougal Mackay, said this week that most of McEnroe's troubles stem from an insecurity in matches that he should win easily. "It never happens in the important matches against players such as Borg and Connors to whom he might be expected to lose," he said. "I think he gets bored and needs an incident of some sort to keep his adrenalin flowing."

Rex Bellamy of the London Times, regarded as one of the most astute of tennis writers, disagrees.

"At age 22, McEnroe should have grown up by this time," said Bellamy. "I think he has chronic psychological problems. He's bad and not getting better."

Bellamy said that it is reasonable for McEnroe to object on line calls — "he can't tolerate injustice and incompetence" — but unreasonable that he reacts as he does to umpires and linesmen.

Buchholz agrees, to a point, adding:

"McEnroe demands so much of himself that he can't understand incompetence in other people. He hasn't worked out a formula for this dilemma."

Unlike Connors, who in his angriest period carried his animosities to the locker room and the clubhouse, McEnroe becomes gentle once out of the arena.

He is respected and liked by players and newsmen. He has an infectious personality, can be witty and charming.

Nevertheless, on the court or off it, he is a sparking electric wire.

His sensitive fingers, which can drop a stop volley over the net with a feathery deftness and blast an overhead into the stands ringlets that cover his head, held in place invariably by a headband.

He is always keyed up, never still.

He is highly competitive. "He doesn't like to just hit balls, he always wants to play," says doubles partner Peter Fleming.

McEnroe insists that his reputation for petulance is without foundation.

"I've got the kind of face," he said, "that always looks as if I want to cry."

The McEnroe Temper
Tennis star John McEnroe is shown in various court situations where his temper flared. At top left, McEnroe argues a call with head referee Fred Hoyles in a 1980 New York tournament; at right, he takes aim at a line judge after being called for a foot fault in the 1981 Chicago Challenge of Champions; and at bottom, he shows his distress after missing a voley during the World Championship tournament in Dallas in 1980. No Sign Of Daylight Ahead In Strike Talks

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball's silent summer is in its third week now. The crack of the bat and the roar of the crowd are absent in ballparks from Boston to San Diego, and there is no sign that things will get better in the near future.

Three days of bargaining collapsed Friday, destroying whatever little optimism had been generated the previous two days when first the owners and then the striking ballplayers submitted new proposals on the stalemated issue of compensation — what kind and how much — for signing a quality free agent in the annual re-entry draft.

While compensation is the only issue at present, the gap between the warring parties could become increasingly wider before too long. If and when the strike is ever settled, there seems certain to be a torrid dispute over whether the strike time should be credited as part of a player's major league service.

To determine length of service, a "season" consists of 172 days in the majors, even though the April 8-Oct. 3 calendar season runs longer than that. If strike time is not counted, a number of players — like Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees — can not become free agents at the end of the 1981 campaign.

On July 6, following a third one-week postponement, a National Labor Relations Board administrative law judge is scheduled to hear the players' charge of unfair labor practices against the owners. The players are trying to force the owners to open their books since management has been crying that massive free-agent spending is driving them to the poorhouse. The last thing the owners want is to have to make their financial ledgers public.

And, in the long run, what is to prevent the players from demanding total — i.e., annual — free agency when the current Basic Agreement expires a few years hence? The courts gave them that right in the mid-1970s when the reserve clause that bound a player to his team seemingly forever was ruled unconstitutional.

When Friday's talks collapsed, federal mediator Kenneth Moffett said no further sessions would be scheduled for at least several days.

Meanwhile, the players accused the owners of having some sort of timetable that forestalled an immediate settlement and charged them with avoiding the key issue of compensation while dealing instead in trivialities.

Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owenrs, acknowledged in a televised interview that the owners are not 100 percent behind him. "Twenty-four of 26," were in his corner, he said, identifying the two others as Edward Bennett Williams of the Baltimore Orioles and Eddie Chiles of the Texas Rangers. But he downplayed the lack of unanimity, saying: "I doubt that in any group of 26 you're going to get a unanimous vote."

Grebey also said the All-Star Game, scheduled for July 14 in Cleveland, still has not been called off and "at this moment is not in jeopardy. We hope to reach a solution before then."

The owners achieve a victory of sorts Friday in Philadelphia when U.S. District Court Judge Donald Van Artsdalen dismissed a temporary injunction in a suit brought by the Major League Umpires Association seeking to prevent the owners from collecting up to $50 million in strike insurance.

However, the judge set a hearing for Monday at 9 a.m. EDT, on a request by Richie Phillips, head of the umpires' group, to remand the suit back to Common Pleas Court, where it was first filed.

The players have charged for some time that the owners are attempting to break the union. If so, there is nothing to indicate they are having any success.

"I didn't see any sign of any type of settlement whatsoever," said Pittsburgh's Kurt Bevacqua, who sat in on the talks for the first time Friday. "The only thing I saw was adamancy. I'm ready to sit out all season if I have to, and when the strike started that was the last thing I wanted to do. We're no closer to a settlement than we were a year ago."

In Baltimore, Rich Dauer of the Orioles said: "I'm not surprised that the strike has gone this far. They are pushing us, and I don't want us to come back until we get something out of it. The farther it goes, the harder it'll be to settle. It's a no-win situation and I'm just getting disgusted. Somebody has to move sooner or later."

There was no sign Friday that either side was ready to move. "Both sides are locked in," Moffett said.

Prep League

1st State Bank.....13
Elks.....4

First State Bank eliminated the Elks, 13-4, in the losers' bracket of the Prep League's post-season double elimination tournament Saturday.

The Bankers will now face regular season champ True Value in the losers' bracket finals on Tuesday.

The Elks jumped ahead with a run in the first, but the Bankers countered that with a pair of runs in the bottom of the inning. The Elks rallied for two, and a 3-2 lead in the top of the second, only to see the Bankers come back with two more in the bottom of the inning. The Elks made one more bid, tieing it up, 4-4, with one in the top of the third.

But that was it. In the bottom of the third, First State scored seven times to put the game away. Lee Lewis reached on an error and Mike Joyner walked. Robert Evans singled, and a walk to Tad Castellow brought in Lewis. Robert Formville reached on an error, scoring Joyner, and William Smith singled in Evans. James Mathews doubled in the three remaining runners, scoring himself when Brian Walsh grounded out.

The Bankers added two more in the fifth to wrap up the scoring.

Auto Specialty.....2
True Value.....1

Sterling Edwards scored on Jim Bryant's ground out in the third inning to allow Auto Specialty to nip True Value, 2-1, in the winners' bracket of the Prep League's post-season tournament Saturday.

The victory moved Auto Specialty, the runner-up in the regular season, into the finals of the double elimination tournament. Champ True Value will face First State Bank in the losers' bracket finals.

Auto Specialty grabbed the lead in the first, scoring once. Edwards singled and moved up on an out, scoring when Montey Atkinson doubled.

True Value came back with a run in the bottom of the second. Robbie Ehrmann reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored on Pat Kanetzke's hit.

But Auto Specialty came back in the third to score the winning run. Edwards tripled, then came across when Bryant grounded out.

Little League

Jaycees.....6
Kiwanis.....5

The Jaycees held off a Kiwanis rally in the fifth inning to claim a 6-5 upset victory in the North State Little League playoffs Saturday.

The win sends the third ranked Jaycees into the finals against the champ Lions. The loss ended the year for the Kiwanis.

The Kiwanis scored first, getting a run in the second, but the Jaycees matched that in the bottom of the inning. The Jaycees then forged ahead with four runs in the third.

But what proved to be the difference scored in the fourth. David Lee reached on a fielder's choice, and he moved up on an out. Michael Garris singled him in.

The Kiwanis attempted to rally, scoring four times in the fifth before they were stopped a run short.

Lions.....16
Union Carbide.....5

The Lions, champs during the regular season, moved into Monday's finals of the North State Little League's playoffs with a 16-5 romp over Union Carbide Saturday.

Union Carbide scored first, getting two in the first on a homer by Morris Johnson. But the Lions came right back, as Mike Duncan cracked a two-run homer in the bottom of the frame.

Union Carbide again moved ahead with three in the third, taking a 5-2 lead.

But that was short-lived as the Lions rallied in the bottom of the inning for four, and a lead that would not be matched.

Junior Taft started the rally with a lead-off homer. Duncan kept it going with a second homer. Burt Aycock then singled and Ralph Harper got a hit. Both moved up on an error, and scored when Donald Perkins got a single.

The Lions went on to score four more in the fourth, as Duncan hit a third home run, driving in two runs, while Harper also had a two-run blast. The final six came in the fifth, with Taft getting his second homer of the day, accounting for two of the runs.

First Federal.....6
Carroll & Assoc.....4

Rodney Harris' run-scoring double in the fourth inning provided First Federal with the winning run as the regular season runner-up gained the finals of the Tar Heel Little League playoffs with a 6-4 win over Carroll & Associates.

First Federal will now face the regular season champion, Wellcome, in the finals on Monday.

First Federal gained the lead with a run in the first, but lost it to two Carroll runs in the third.

In the fourth, however, First Federal pushed over four runs for a 5-2 lead, one it never lost. Brian Joyner singled and Chris Meeks got a hit. An error on the play let both advance. Stacey Best singled in Joyner, and a wild pitch let Meeks score. An error brought Best around. Richard Lewis kept it going with a two-out walk, and John Bolen also walked. Harris then doubled in Lewis with the fifth First Federal run.

The winners added a final run in the fifth, while Carroll picked up its remaining two in the top of that inning.

Harrris, Joyner and Best each had two hits for First Federal, while Billy Carr had three to pace Carroll.

Wellcome 21
Pepsi-Cola.....17

Regular season champion Wellcome found its hands full against fourth place Pepsi-Cola in the semifinals of the Tar Heel Little League playoffs Saturday, finally outlasting its foe, 21-17.

The victory moves Wellcome into the finals against regular season runner-up First Federal on Monday.

Wellcome grabbed the initial lead in the first, scoring 10 runs. Seven more crossed in the top of the second for a 17-0 lead.

Even that didn't prove to be enough.

Pepsi came back with two in the second, then scored five more in the third, cutting the lead to 17-7.

In the top of the fourth, Wellcome got what it needed, however. Anthony Cobb reached on an error and Vicki Parrott singled. Robie Moye reached on an error, scoring Cobb and a wild pitch let Parrott in. Moye later scored on a passed ball for a 20-7 lead.

The other Wellcome run came in the fifth, while Pepsi continued its rally with six in the fifth, and four more in the sixth, including a two-run homer by Paul Kelly.

Parrott led the Wellcome with four hits, while Andrew Perry and Greg VanScoy each had three and Terry Warren and Cobb both had two. Pepsi was paced by Clay Young with four, while Kelly and Greg Hallow each had three, and Mike Kelly, Pete Rivera and Lee Eakes each had two.

North State Champions

The Lions were again champions of the North State Little League in 1981. Members of the team are, first row, left to right: Carlos Harris, Mike Harris, Josh Shepherd, Marty Measamer, Earl Evans; second row, Junior Taft, Ralph Harper, Donald Perkins, Jarvis Groome; third row, assistant coach Mike Adams, Tom Moye, Burt Aycock, Bobby Williams, Mike Wooten, coach Bob Starling, and manager Wes Measamer. Can Sue Tech Group

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The Virginia Tech Athletic Association is not entitled to the protection of "sovereign immunity" and can be held liable for acts of negligence, a Superior Court judge in Morristown has ruled.

The ruling made Friday by Judge Jacques H. Gascoyne cleared the way for the mother of a Virginia Polytechnic Institute football player to sue for negligence in his death after punishment drills.

VTAA claimed it was immune from the suit under concepts of Virginia law and was entitled to immunity as an "arm of the state."

"It's a close question, but the courts of Virginia and New Jersey have made it very clear that the concept of sovereign immunity is and should be closely circumscribed," the judge said.

Delores Vorhies of Rockaway Township, N.J., is seeking damages for the pain and suffering of her son, Robert Vorhies, who died Nov. 21, 1977.

Her suit claims the 18-year-old VPI fullback died from extreme dehydration about four hours after he was required to perform sprints and exercises as punishment for breaking a door in his dormitory during a victory party the weekend before.

VTAA runs VPI's athletic program and recruits its athletes, attorney Frank J. Miele argued, maintaining it should have been considered to have the same status as any of the university's academic departments.

Camels Holds Off Bucs For 11-10 Win

BUIES CREEK — Tom Montgomery hit a run-scoring double in the bottom of the sixth inning to allow first place Campbell University to gain an 11-10 North State Summer League victory over East Carolina University Friday night.

The Pirates, who led briefly in the opening inning, fell behind by 5-2 before coming back to take a 9-7 lead in the top of the fourth. But Campbell came back with three before the Pirates tied it one more time at 10-10 before the final killing run came.

East Carolina jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Mike Sorrell walked and John Hallow got a single. Todd Evans' single then brought in Sorrell. Pete Persico reached on an error, scoring Hallow for the 2-0 lead.

But Campbell came quickly back with four in the bottom of the inning for a 4-2 lead. Tom Montgomery and Bobby Spicer both walked and Wayne Dale reached on a fielder's choice. Terry Strickland, Kelly Hoffman and Phil Hunt all drew walks, forcing in three runs. Kirk Pollard then hit a sacrifice fly to bring in Strickland.

The Camels added another run in the second. Spicer singled and Dale again reached on a fielder's choice. Strickland doubled, driving in Spicer, making it 5-2.

East Carolina rallied for a pair in the top of the third. Charlie Smith singled and Evans got a hit. Jay Carraway walked and Charlie Waynick got a hit that scored both Smith and Evans.

But Campbell came right back with two in its half of the third to hold the lead at 7-4. Ron Ammons singled, stole second and scored on Herb Wiggins hit. Dale brought in Wiggins with a single.

Then, in the fourth, the Pirates rallied for five runs to charge ahead, 9-7. Sorrell walked as did Hendley and Smith, loading them up. Evans singled in Sorrell, and Persico's grounder was error, scoring Hendley. Carrway doubled, driving in Smith and Evans, and Waynick grounded out, plating Persico.

The lead quickly evaporated, however, as the Camels scored three times in the bottom of the inning for a 10-9 lead. Hoffman singled and Hunt walked. Pollard singled, loading the bases. Ammons hit a two-run single and Wiggins got a hit. A wild pitch brought in Pollard.

The Pirates then tied it up with one in the sixth. Carraway walked, with David Wells running for him. Robert Wells also walked and Sorrell's single plated David Wells.

It wasn't to be, however, as Campbell came back with what proved to be the winning run in the bottom of the sixth. Ammons walked, coming around to score on Montgomery's double.

Wiggins and Ammons each had two hits to lead Campbell. Evans had three for the Pirates, while Sorrell added two.

Wayne County Upsets Pitt County By 7-5

DUDLEY — Wayne County stalled Pitt County's bid to move a step closer to the Area I title Friday night, surprising the Post 39 players, 7-5.

The loss, coupled with Wilson's 10-5 victory over Snow Hill, tightened up the standings, as only one game separates the two in the loss column.

The two do not have any face-to-face meetings remaining, having split during the season, each winning twice on their home fields.

Pitt jumped ahead with a run in the top of the first inning against Wayne. With one down, Mitch Brann walked and moved up when Emmett Walsh singled. Gordon Douglas then singled to score Brann.

But the lead was short-lived as Wayne rallied for a couple in the bottom of the inning. Jeff Brogden greeted Pitt hurled Doug McRoy with a first-pitch single. Then, with two down, Scott Pelletier doubled, driving in Brogden. Larry Searls followed with another two-bagger, scoring Pelletier for the 2-1 lead.

Wayne picked up three more runs in the bottom of the fifth, taking a 5-1 advantage. Mike Myers reached on an error and scored when Ronnie Pelletier doubled. With one down, David Frederick singled in Pelletier. Paul Thomas walked and a passed ball put Frederick on third. He scored on Scott Pelletier's sacrifice fly to center.

Pitt then rallied to score four runs in the top of the sixth, tieing the game at 5-5. Gordon Douglas opened the inning with a double, and Roger Williams walked. After two were away, McRoy walked, loading the bases. Mark Douglas was hit by a pitch, forcing in Gordon Douglas. Brann followed with a triple, scoring the remaining three runners.

But Pitt couldn't hold Wayne down, as the host team came back with two in the seventh to take the win. Brogden led off with a double and Thomas doubled him across. A hit by Louis Dreyfuss brought Thomas across with the insurance run.

Pitt tried to rally and put runners on second and third with two away in the ninth before a strikeout finally ended the game.

Gordon Douglas led the Pitt hitting with four, while Brann had two. For Wayne, Brogden and Ronnie Pelletier each had two.

Wilson Rally Tops Snow Hill

SNOW HILL — Charles Davis hit a grand-slam homer in the ninth inning to help spark Wilson to a 10-5 victory over Snow Hill in American Legion baseball Friday night.

The victory kept Wilson hot on the heels of league leading Pitt County. Wilson now has an 8-5 mark, while Snow Hill drops to 7-9.

The two teams had played even ball throughout the first eight innings before Wilson rallied for the five that won it in the final frame.

Both scored single runs in the second inning to get the scoring started. Randy Ward led off for Wilson with a single and Joey Page got a hit. Both moved up on an out, and a wild pitch scored Ward.

In the bottom of the second, Snow Hill came back to tie it up. Frank Milkovits walked and stole second, moving to third on Jabo Fulghum's hit. Bobby Avery then hit a sacrifice fly to score Milkovits.

Wilson added two each in the fourth and fifth, while Snow Hill rallied to tie it once more in the bottom of the fifth, scoring four times.

But in the ninth, Wilson struck for the kill. Charles Simpson reached on an error, and Donald Williams singled. A sacrifice fly plated Simpson with the go-ahead run.

But Wilson wasn't through. Al Hardison walked and with two away, Joey Page reached on an infield hit. That set the stage for Davis, who put the game out of reach with his bases-loaded homer.

Williams led the Wilson hitting with three, while Fulghum had three for Snow Hill, while Greg Hardison, Milkovits, Wade Corbett and Guy Sanderson each had two.

Umpires Fail In Bid To Halt Insurance Payoff

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Major league baseball umpires will have to watch from the sidelines while team owners and players try to settle the current strike, a federal judge has ruled in dismissing a temporary injunction that had prevented owners from collecting on a $50 million strike insurance policy.

The Major League Umpires Association, represented by attorney Richie Phillips, had filed suit against the owners, saying they weren't in any hurry to settle the strike because of the insurance policy that pays $100,000 a game for each game not played.

But U.S. District Court Judge Donald Van Artsdalen on Friday threw out the temporary restraining order issued earlier in the week by Philadelphia Common Pleas Judge Stanley Greenberg.

"I can see no legal basis, either under federal or state law, to issue an injunction in this matter," Van Artsdalen ruled.

Van Artsdalen acted after the case was shifted from Greenberg's courtroom to federal jurisdiction under a motion by attorney Michael Gallagher, representing Lloyd's of London, the insurance firm that is the principal underwriter of the policy. The policy went into effect after the first 153 canceled games, which occurred on Wednesday.

"What legal theory do you have to bring this lawsuit?" Van Artsdalen asked Phillips.

"By paying on that policy they are encouraging continuance of this strike, and interfering with my clients' contractural rights with baseball," Phillips answered.

"You're seeking to aid one side of the strike? Or are you trying to hurt one side?" the judge asked.

"We don't care who wins or loses in this dispute (over free agent compensation). We want to keep the scales on equal balance and not let the owners get this large amount of money which gives them a great advantage and an incentive not to settle quickly."

Van Artsdalen had another view.

"We all know when there is a major strike, like those affecting utilities, public employees, and even baseball players, that there are some people who are going to get hurt," said the judge.

"The umpires are being paid, and will be paid at least for the next 15 days and are incurring no damages, whatever, except that they are on a forced paid vacation. So at present there is no irreparable harm."

Home Runs Spark Seahawk Victory

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — First baseman Clyde Holley and second baseman Tim Whitehead smacked three-run homers as North Carolina-Wilmington romped over North Carolina State, 11-6, Saturday in a North State College Summer Baseball League game.

Holley's homer capped a seven-run second inning and gave the Seahawks' a 7-1 advantage. Later in the third inning, the Seahawks put the game out of reach with four runs from Henry Baker and reliever Bill Henderson.

N.C. State scored with a single in the first inning on a triple by rightfielder Ronnie Lee and a single by designated hitter Jim Toman. The Wolfpack added two more runs in the third on two walks and two singles, one of them good for two RBI's by leftfielder Chris Baird.

The win pushed pitcher Carl Willis' record to 3-2 on the season and the team's record to 8-8. Losing pitcher Henry Baker fell to 1-1, while the Wolfpack's record stands at 7-7.

ECU Names Two; Ups One, Loses One

East Carolina University has announced the appointment of two new athletic staff members, the promotion of a third, and the resignation of another.

Pam Holt will join the ECU staff as assistant athletic director for student life, while Mark Brand will join the sports information staff as an assistant.

Lynn Davidson has been appointed head volleyball coach, replacing Alita Dillon, and Sherri Pickard, assistant women's basketball coach, has resigned her position at the school.

Women's basketball coach Cathy Andruzzi has also announced that one of her former players is joining the staff of Florida State University, and that a new recruit has been added to her team for the coming season.

Holt, a resident administrator at East Carolina from 1971-78, becomes an assistant athletic director under Dr. Ken Karr, who heads the athletic program at the university.

The Iowa native and graduate of Northeast Missouri State University begins duties July 1. She has served for the past three years as marketing coordinator for eight Burger King restaurants in Columbia, S.C., where she organized a Pirate Club chapter.

While at East Carolina, Holt also was Panhellenic advisor. In 1978, she was selected the ECU Residence Council Woman of the Year.

Holt replaces Laurie Arrants who resigned to pursue a doctorial degree at Louisiana State University.

Brand, head student intern for the Purdue University sports information office for two years, will serve as a full-time assistant in the sports information office.

The Muncie, Ind., native graduated from Purdue with a B.A. in communications in May after serving as top student intern, supervising 16 student workers and participating in every facet of the Boilermakers' sports information effort.

He, too, joins the staff July 1.

Davidson, assistant volleyball and softball coach during 1980-81, will serve as head volleyball coach for the coming year. She will continue her duties as assistant softball coach.

The Statesville native and N.C. State graduate helped coach the volleyball team to an AIAW regional bid and aided the softball team to a 44-8 record and a third place fiish in the AIAW national championships. She replaces Alita Dillon as head volleyball coach. Dillon has resigned to move with her family to Texas.

Pickard is leaving the ECU program to return to school to work on her master's degree. She has not yet decided on what school she will attend.

The 26-year-old N.C. State graduate helped Andruzzi coach the women's basketball team to a 23-7 record and an AIAW regional playoff berth in 1980-81. The Lady Pirates were ranked 17th in the final regular season AP Top 20 poll. As a recruiter, Pickard helped bring in one of the finest crops of newcomers in ECU history before deciding to continue her education.

The holder of a B.S. in math education, Pickard hopes to complete work on a master's in athletic administration or business administration.

Meanwhile, Andruzzi has announced that Heidi Owen, a co-captain of the 1980-81 basketball team, will be a graduate assistant with the Florida State University women's basketball program this year.

The 22-year-old Staten Island, N.Y., native graduated from the ECU business school in May. As a two-year letterwinner for Andruzzi, Owen helped the Lady Pirates to a two-year record of 44-21 and the first two 20-win seasons in school history.

Andruzzi also has announced that Ginger Noce, a mainstay for Randolph-Macon College for two seasons, will play basketball for East Carolina this winter.

The 5-8 junior was all-regional and all-state tournament last season for the division III Virginia school. She averaged 15 points, nine rebounds and three assists a game.

She was a three-year starter at Patrick Henry High School in Roanoke, Va., where she was twice team MVP and all-metro and all district as a senior. She was also an outstanding all-around performer in high school track, being voited the top female athlete of the year in the Roanoke Valley in 1979.

Farmville Golf and Country Club pro Tom Braswell picked up a hole-in-one recently on the 15th hole. He aced the 155-yard hole with a seven iron. He was playing with Lowell Liles, Ronald Parker and Donald Parker when he made the shot.

Greenville Country Club

The Greenville Country Club held its Pro-Junior Tournament this week. First place went to a team headed by Ayden amateur Glenn Gulledge. Members of the team were Chris Evans, Brian Heath, Greg Britt and Gayle Wingate.

Second place went to a team headed by another amateur, Bob Dail. Members of the team were D.J. Patrick, Jim Blount, Hunter Clark and David White. Third place was a team led by Williamston pro Leigh Taylor, consisting of Lee J. Ball, Mark Ross, Doug Boyd and Jeff McKeel.

All three teams had 67's, and the match was decided by matching cards.

Greenville's Men's Club Championship winds up this weekend.

On Ladies Day, a "Bonus Day" tournament was held. First place went to Janet McGlohon, while Keila McGlohon was second. Becky Howard took third place.

Man Uses Alias To Get Spot On Orlando Roster

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Robert Lee Johnson says he only used an alias to gain a spot on the roster of the Orlando team of the American Football Association.

The name and football credentials he used were those of Randy Johnson, a former Georgia player and a three-year professional in the National Football League.

And the real Randy Johnson says he may sue.

Robert Lee Johnson confessed to impersonating the famous player to enhance his chances of making the Orlando Americans' club. But he said he said he only went along with the mistaken assumption by others that he was the former NFL lineman.

The Orlando Sentinel Star discovered, however, that he listed the other Johnson's high school, college and NFL credentials on player-information questionnaires and media interviews.

The real Randy Johnson is now a management trainee for an industrial supply firm in Rome, Ga.

"I had a rough enough pro career without some clown like that running around claiming he's me," Johnson said in a telephone interview.

Randy Johnson was with Seattle for one year and with the Tampa Bay Bucs for two years in the NFL. He sustained a back injury and was released in 1979. He spent a month with Edmonton of the Canadian Football League last summer and then retired.

"I haven't even thought about playing football again," he said.

Robert Lee Johnson said he played center for the Temple University football team and signed on with the Orlando team through his connection with Dennis Franks, a former NFL lineman and football agent in Philadelphia.

He reported in at 280 pounds, and members of the coaching staff soon became supicious.

"Nobody can go that far downhill that fast," one skeptical staff member had said.

Coach Bob Williams requested a photo from the University of Georgia and received a copy of a photograph in which Randy Johnson and two Georgia teammates were accepting awards. Williams said it was inconclusive.

After his exposure, Johnson requested a meeting with the team, which was denied by Williams. Johnson then called the real Johnson to apologize.

Ironically, the impostor had not started a game because his coaches were not impressed with his play.

Williams said he had given Johnson the benefit of the doubt because of alleged family problems and several minor injuries.

Said the impersonator: "This was something I looked at and never had the shot or opportunity. And here was my chance to do it. Here's a guy that I know has the same name and, basically, the same size, and ..."

He never finished his explanation.

Rucker Is Watching

CLEVELAND (AP) — Reggie Rucker, baseball fan, misses the game. But Reggie Rucker, football player, is watching the baseball players' strike with understandable empathy.

"As a professional athlete, I recognize the significance of what the baseball players are doing, and I wish them well," said Rucker, an 11-year National Football League veteran and a wide receiver for the Cleveland Browns.

"It's obvious that the owners want the players to give back something they already have won, which doesn't make sense," he said. "The baseball owners created their own monster, trying to buy championships by signing free agents to big contracts. Now they want a facelift. They want the players to step in and help the owners control themselves. That's the point in the compensation issue. But the players are too smart to allow it."

Rucker is among several Browns' players already preparing for the opening of training camp, about a month away.

Friday Youth Baseball Roundup

Edwards Auto.....16
Dr. Cohen 5

WINTERVILLE — Edwards Auto romped to a 16-5 victory over Dr. Cohen in the Winterville Little League Friday night.

Kyle Loveless and Paul Hollingsworth led the Edwards hitting with three each, both having two doubles. Sherwood Wilder, Brian Bullock and Melanie Becton each added two hits.

Bud Faulkner had a double to lead the Dr. Cohen hitting.

Little League

Jaycees 16
Optimists 8

The third-seeded Jaycees rolled to a 16-8 victory over the last place Optimists in the first round of the North State Little League playoffs Friday.

The Jaycees were to face second-ranked Kiwanis in the second round on Saturday.

The Jaycees pushed ahead in the first inning, scoring three times. They then put the game out of reach with seven second inning runs.

Lam Smith got things going in the second by reaching on a fielder's choice. He advanced on a passed ball and Brian Wille singled. David Lee doubled in Smith, and Wille. Carl Williams got a hit, and Michael Garris reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Lee. Bruce Koonce singled to drive in Carl Wille. Jody Barnes grounded out, scoring Garris. Mark Coburn then finished off the scoring with a two-run homer.

That made it 10-0. The Jaycees added one in the third, four more in the fourth, and one in the fifth.

The Optimists got four in the fifth and four more in the sixth.

Coca-Cola 5

Union Carbide, which finished fourth in the regular season standings, nipped sixth ranked Coca-Cola, 6-5, in the first round of the North State Little League playoffs Friday.

That gave Union Carbide the right to face the Lions on Saturday in the second round.

Union Carbide scored first, getting one in the second inning. They came back to pick up two more in the third. Coke scored twice in the fourth, and added two more in the fifth, on a homer by Timmy Hines. Union Carbide scored one in the fifth for a 4-4 tie, but Coke went back out, 5-4, with a run in the top of the sixth.

Union Carbide then rallied for two in the bottom of the sixth to win it. With two away, Greg Davis was hit by a pitch and Billy Turcotte doubled. Tim West followed with a single, driving in both runners to give UC the victory.

Turcotte led the UC hitting with four, while Steve Williams had two. Hines had two hits to lead Coke.

Carroll & Assoc....11
Exchange 10

Carroll & Associates scored a run in the seventh inning to nip Exchange, 11-10, in the first round of the Tar Heel Little League playoffs yesterday.

Carroll, third seeded, was to face number two First Federal on Saturday in the second round, while number six Exchange has now completed its season.

Carroll scored first, getting a pair of runs in the top of the first. Exchange, however, scored five times in the bottom of the inning, including a two-run homer by Axel Smith. Exchange added two more in the second before Carroll rallied for two in the third, and then scored five more in the fourth.

Carroll got a tenth run in the fifth on Travis King's solo homer, only to see Carroll rally for three in the bottom of the fifth to knot it once again.

Finally, in the seventh, Carroll pushed over the winning run. King walked, was sacrificed up, and scored when Lee Rogers reached on an error.

Rogers and Jason Lee led the Carroll hitting with two each, while Smith and Tim Clark each had two for Exchange.

Prep Champions

Greenville True Value Hardware captured the regular season Prep League championship for the 1981 season. Members of the team are, first row, left to right: Robert Joyner, Jim Hall, Mike Uhlman, Steve Iaboni, Paul Sullivan; second row, George Saad, Larke Weatherington, Clark Stallings, Robbie Erhmann, Ervin Best; third row, Tyrone Jones, Patrick Kanetzke, Chris Hilliard and coach Doug Causey. Not shown is manager Danny Norris. (Reflector Photo)

Babe Ruth League

Coca-Cola 1

Pepsi-Cola kept its fading title hopes alive in the Babe Ruth League with an 8-1 victory over Coca-Cola Friday night.

Pepsi scored first, getting a run in the first. They wrapped it up, however, by scoring five runs in the second.

Timmy Norris led off with a single and Bill Messick got a hit. Lane Odom singled in Norris, and Brent Landley got a hit to score Messick. Pat Rand followed by reaching on an error, allowing Messick to score. Ted Stanley was hit by a pitch, forcing in Odom, and Bobby Casey doubled in both Langley and Rand.

Pepsi later added two more in the fourth.

The lone Coke run came over in the third inning.

Aaction Movers 5
Wachovia Bank 4

Aaction Movers pushed over a run in the bottom of the seventh inning to nip Wachovia Bank, 5-4, and clinch a tie for the Babe Ruth League's regular season title Friday night.

Aaction needs only one victory or a Pepsi-Cola loss to wrap up the championship.

Aaction pushed ahead early, taking a 3-0 lead in the third inning. Wachovia came back to take the lead in the fifth, scoring four times, highlighted by Mont Brown's solo home run.

But in the seventh, Aaction rallied for a pair of runs to win it. Dryal Pettis led off with a single and Kevin Lang got a hit. Billy Godley walked, and Toby Fischer laid down a suicide squeeze bunt. The ball was played to the plate, but overthrown, scoring Pettis, and allowing Lang to score all the way from second base with the winning run.

Pepsi went on to add seven runs in the fourth, two in the fifth, and three in the sixth.

Young led the Pepsi hitting with three, while Paul Kelly and Greg Hallow each had two. No one had more than one for the Moose, who got only three off Mitch Mitchum's pitching.

Moose 1

Pepsi-Cola romped past the Moose, 16-1, Friday to move into the second round of the Tar Heel Little League playoffs. Pepsi, seeded fourth in the field, was to meet the champion Wellcome team on Saturday.

Pepsi took the lead in the top of the first, scoring once. The fifth place Moose came back to tie it up with their only run in the second.

Pepsi then scored three times in the third to wrap it up. Lee Eakes walked and Bobby Sullivan singled. Mike Kelly walked, and an error let Eakes score. Clay Young then singled in Sullivan and Kelly.

Russian Sets New Pole Mark

MOSCOW (AP) — Vladimir Polyakov of the Soviet Union set a world record in the pole vault Friday, clearing 19 feet, three-quarters of an inch during a meet against East Germany in Tbilisi, Tass said.

The 21-year athlete bettered by a half-inch the mark of 19-0¼ set by france's Thierry Vigneron last week, the Soviet news agency said.

Leonard And Hearns Set For Big Bout

HOUSTON (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard said he talked to Thomas Hearns about their universal welterweight championship showdown and, "he agreed that I will knock him out."

Leonard grinned.

He had been asked at a news conference Friday about the battle of words that heated up after he won the World Boxing Association junior middleweight title and Hearns retained the WBA's welterweight title.

Leonard's ninth-round victory over Ayub Kalule and Hearns' four-round knockout of Pablo Baez paved the way for their big-money clash Sept. 16.

Leonard, who also holds the World Boxing Council welterweight title, said he suffered a jammed middle knuckle on his left hand, but, "I don't think it will affect the fight in September at all."

Hearns already has signed a contract. Mike Trainer, Leonard's attorney, said he had an agreement and a contract would be signed.

Harry Wald, president of Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., the expected site, said before Thursday night's fights that there were still some details to be worked out.

After watching Leonard become a double champion, Hearns said he would make Leonard quit when they fight. Told of that remark, Leonard suggested that if Hearns' head were opened, no brains would be found.

Hearns stopped Baez at 2:10 of the fourth round with a barrage of punches climaxed by a savage right.

"Tommy Hearns is a pretty hard puncher, but I don't think he's a one-puncher knocker outer," said Leonard. A guy who is mobile a guy who can move will put Tommy Hearns in his place.

"I'll take the fight straight to him, make him miss and make him make mistakes, and I'll correct them."

Hearns didn't appear at the morning-after news conference, but Emanuel Steward did, and Hearns' manager-trainer said of Leonard's victory at 2:59 after the ninth round, " ... his performance was a lot less than I expected.

"Based on what I saw last night Leonard is still selling his speed, which he doesn't have any more."

Leonard got a share of the 154-pound division title — the welterweight limit is 147 — when referee Carlos Berrocal of Panama stopped the bout after Kalule got up from the first knockdown of his 37-bout pro career.

The Ugandan, who lives in Denmark, didn't complain about the fight being stopped. But his manager, Mogens Palle, said the round was over and the fight shouldn't have been halted.

Leonard said he had heard a bell, but, "It was quite evident the fight was over. I really hope Kalule and his people don't disappoint me like some people in the past and make excuses."

When the end came Leonard was ahead 78-75 on one official scorecard and 78-76 on each of the other two.

Strike Is Helping

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The strike by major league baseball players just might be the best thing that could have happened for two key injured St. Louis Cardinals.

While the major leaguers continue to sit out the season, pitcher Andy Rincon is well on the way to coming back from a broken pitching arm.

"I'm at 75 percent of my velocity," said Rincon, who was scheduled to pitch Saturday for the Springfield Redbirds, the St. Louis Triple-A affiliate.

"I'm just building up strength in my arm," added Rincon. "I'll be ready when the strike ends."

Trainer Gene Gieselmann said Rincon was expected to throw 70 or 80 pitches Saturday, about seven innings worth of work.

"At the rate he's progressing, Rincon will be far ahead of everyone else on our staff," Gieselmann said.

Rincon was taken off the disabled list two days before the strike. He suffered the broken arm after being struck with a line drive. Before the injury, the rookie righthander had compiled a 3-1 record with a 1.75 earned run average.

Buehning Eclipses John For His Bad Temper

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Volatile American Fritz Buehning has eclipsed even John McEnroe for bad behavior at Wimbledon.

Buehning, the 6-foot-5, 21-year-old serve-and-volleyer from Short Hills, N.J., lost to Sandy Mayer in the third round at the All-England club Friday after being fined in both his previous matches.

Buehning was fined $1,150 for mocking an official and making obscene gestures in his first-round match against Richard Lewis of Britain and $400 for making obscene gestures in his second-round match against Australian Mark Edmondson.

Rolf Gehring of West Germany, Bjorn Borg's latest victim on the Wimbledon center court, remarked wryly: "I'd rather play someone else out on court 10."

Asked if he thought Borg could be beaten, the towering German replied: "Yes — by a lot of netcords, aces and line balls."

Chris Evert Lloyd, described by one-time fiance Jimmy Connors as a grunter, said: "I don't grunt like he does. It is natural for me. I am not trying to distract my opponent."

Four Australians are still gunning for the Wimbledon men's title after a lean, nine-year spell in which only one Australian has played in the final — Ken Rosewall in 1974. Up to 1971, Australians were in the final 15 times in 16 years.

The four 1981 contenders are Peter McNamara, Paul Kronk, Rod Frawley and John Fitzgerald.

Enid Stopka has been on the staff of the All-England club for more than 30 years and supervises a mail ballot for center and No.1 court seat. Hundreds of thousands apply but only one in six is lucky.

He is staying five minutes' cycling time away.

"A neighbor lent it to me," Borowiak said. "I know free transportation is provided for all the players, but sometimes you have to wait for a car. On a bicycle I can get through the traffic jams."

Easy So Far For The Top Men

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — It has all been so easy for Bjorn Borg, John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors.

Borg, bidding for a sixth straight Wimbledon title, has not dropped a set in reaching the fourth round of this year's All-England championship. Connors is in the same position.

McEnroe did drop one set to Raul Ramirez of Mexico in the second round, but he was back in top gear Friday.

Borg defeated Rolf Gehring of West Germany 6-4, 7-5, 6-0 Friday and then admitted he would like a tough match at some stage.

"I feel ready for a long hard match," said the 25-year-old Swede, who faces his friend and practice partner Vitas Gerulaitis today.

Eight Americans are in the 16-player field were joined by four unseeded Australians, a South African, a Pole, an Indian and the inevitable Borg.

Paul Kronk, a 26-year-old Australian who is troubled by a back injury, staged the biggest upset of the day, ousting ninth-seeded Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina 2-6, 6-4, 6-1, 7-6.

Only six of the 16 men's seeds have survived, while 11 of the women — including all of the top eight — made the fourth round.

Two-time Wimbledon champion Martina Navratilova, who defeated American Sharon Walsh 6-1, 2-6, 6-0, thought she had an explanation for the disparity.

"There is more depth in men's tennis, but also the men were seeded a lot on their clay court performances. The women do not vary so much on different surfaces, so the seedings tend to hold up a lot better," said Martina.

Navratilova feels there is more depth in women's tennis each year.

"The way I see it, any of five players (herself, Czechoslovakian Hana Mandlikova and Americans Chris Evert Lloyd, Tracy Austin and Andrea Jaeger) could win the women's title," she said.

"I'd be surprised if Andrea won, but she is a definite threat. Five players makes it a lot more potential winners than there have been in past years."

Austin, 18, was given a scare by Australian Susan Leo and had to save three set points in the second set before winning 6-2, 7-6. But Lloyd, Mandlikova and Jaeger all had relatively easy victories.

Lloyd ousted Lele Forood of the United States 6-2, 7-6; Mandlikova downed American Andrea Buchanan 6-3, 6-0 and Jaeger crushed Leslie Allen of the United States 6-1, 6-2.

Through the 1980 season, there were eight unassisted triple plays in big-league history and all came with runners on first and second base.

Reds Extend Manager's Pact

CINCINNATI (AP) — Manager John McNamara, who has spent the last two weeks watching minor league teams during the baseball strike, will remain the pilot of the Cincinnati Reds through the 1982 season.

McNamara, 49, is in his third season as Reds manager. He took over for Sparky Anderson before the 1979 season.

"I hope I've found a home. I'm very happy, very pleased," McNamara said at a news conference Friday. "I think things have worked out well."

"We have done it at mid-season for the past couple years. It fits the pattern," said Reds President Dick Wagner, asked if the timing of the one-year contract extension was unusual.

"It's a very lost feeling, a very helpless feeling," he said of the strike. "You should be doing something, but you can't do it."

McNamara, who also has managed Oakland and San Diego in the major leagues, said it would take four or five days from the time of a settlement to get the club ready to play.

"The one thing you concern yourself about is your starting pitchers. "I don't know if they are doing anything."

The Reds were within a half-game of the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League Western Division when the strike began.

"It was certainly very disheartening to have the strike at the time it came. We had won seven in a row. We were going good, very good."

McNamara said he didn't think any team would gain an advantage because of the strike.

He guided the Reds to the NL West title in his first season in Cincinnati, losing to the Pittsburgh Pirates in the playoffs. The Reds finished third last season.

Tourney Planned

SNOW HILL — Greene Lamp, Inc., a non-profit community services agency, will host a Class C Invitational Slowpitch Softball Tournament on July 11 at South Greene School.

A double elmination format will be used for the tournament.

Friday, July 10, is the deadline for paying the $50 entry fee per team. Drawing for pairings will be held at the Greene Lamp offices, behind the courthouse, on Tuesday, July 7 at 8 p.m. Team representatives should be present if possible.

Team rosters of 20 Class C players will be presented to the tournament director at the start of the first game for each team. No changes will be allowed after that.

Furthur information can be obtained by contacting Lou Jones, 747-8146 or 753-5698, or Tom Corbett, 747-8146 or 753-4718.

Entry fees may be submitted to Lou Jones, Softball Tournament, 205 N. Greene St., Snow Hill, N.C. 28580.

Bacon Tops Bass Event

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — Basil Bacon of Springfield, Mo., finished with a three-day catch of 46 pounds, 12 ounces to win the $75,000 North Carolina Invitational BASS Tournament on Albemarle Sound Friday.

Bacon's final round produced 10 pounds, 10 ounces. For his efforts, he received $5,000 in first prize money and a $6,700 bass boat.

Rick Clunn of Montgomery, Tex., placed second with a haul of 43 pounds, 6 ounces. Third place went to Larry Nixon of Hemphill, Tenn., with 40 pounds, 8 ounces, while Guy Eaker of Cherryville, N.C., was fourth at 40 pounds, 5 ounces.

Livestock Futures Drop

By JOHN DOWLING
Associated Press Writer

Livestock and pork belly futures prices fell sharply Friday because of selling prompted by recent price trends, analysts said, while grain and soybean futures closed mostly lower in a continuation of Thursday's dramatic declines.

Hog and pork belly futures in some contract months posted the maximum loss allowed in a day's trading, with hog prices on the Chicago Mercantile Ex-change declining by as much as 1.5 cents and pork bellies falling by as much as two cents.

Analysts said prices fell because of selling prompted by chart-watchers' belief that re-cent declines indicated that further drops in prices were in store.

Some chart-watchers had believed that hog futures prices might stabilize around 54 cents a pound and placed orders to sell when prices fell below that level, according to Joe Szymonik, livestock analyst for Cargill Investor Services, Inc. in Chicago.

The July contract for hog futures closed at 53.87 cents a pound, down 1.25 cents from Thursday's close, while pork bellies closed at 49.50 cents a pound, down the two-cent daily limit from the previous day's close.

Live and feeder cattle futures prices fell due to a general lack of buying, according to Mike Murphy, livestock analyst for Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc. in Chicago. The August contract for live cattle fell 0.70 cent, to 67.35 cents a pound, while feeder cattle for August delivery dropped to 66.02 cents a pound, down 1.03 cents.

Grain and soybean futures also fell on the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat and soybeans set new life-of-contract lows in some contract months for the second consecutive day.

Heavy commercial selling late in the session pushed the July soybean contract down by seven cents, while wheat futures came under pressure from selling by commercial interests seeking to hedge their purchases from the current harvest, according to Jim Tometz, grain analyst for Cargill in Chicago.

Without fresh news to buoy the market, corn futures prices sagged by as much as five cents. Pressure from falling wheat and soybean futures also contributed to the declines in corn, Tometz said.

"This market really needs some good news to turn it around," Tometz said. "It just hasn't got it, and I don't know when it's going to get it."

At the close, wheat was 2½ cents lower to 1 cent higher, with the July-delivery contract at $3.73 a bushel; corn was 3¾ cents to 5 cents lower, with the July contract at $3.27½ a bushel; oats were ¼ cent to 4½ cents lower, with July at $1.99 a bushel; and soybeans were 7 cents lower to 1 cent higher, with July at $6.84 a bushel.

Cocoa futures prices gained as much as $43 a ton as a strong rally Wednesday inspired new buying, primarily by commission houses, according to Mark Mueller, analyst for Bache in New York. The July-delivery cocoa contract closed at $1,510 a ton.

Continued mild weather in Brazil pushed coffee futures prices lower, Mueller said. Coffee prices were 1.37 cents to 2.43 cents lower, with the July contract closing at 85.88 cents a pound.

Precious metals prices closed lower on the Commodity Exchange Inc. in New York following sharp declines on Thursday, with gold losing as much as $5.30 an ounce and silver falling by as much as 36.7 cents an ounce. The July gold con-tract closed at $441.20 an ounce, while silver closed at $9.26 an ounce.

GM Ordered To Pay $550 To 'Chevymobile' Buyers

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal jury ruled Saturday that General Motors Corp. must pay $550 each to more than 10,000 purchasers of 1977 Oldsmobiles whose cars contained Chevrolet engines.

But in a split verdict, the jury also said the No. 1 automaker did not owe damages to at least 30,000 customers who bought "Chevymobiles" after April 10, 1977.

"We possibly will appeal," said Charles A. Boyle, a lawyer for the plaintiffs' in the 10-week trial that sought $131 million in damages from GM.

Gus Buenz, a spokesman for GM's attorneys, said the company was pleased that jurors "dismissed the vast majority of claims — about 38,000." But he said GM would seek to have the verdict dismissed.

State Attorney General Tyrone Fahner, whose predecessor, William Scott, first filed the class-action suit, said that while he disagreed with the verdict, it was "a significant legal victory for the consumers of Illinois and the nation."

"This case shows that companies which do business in this state must deliver what they promise," he said. "The jury clearly says that advertising is a type of warranty. It is good for consumers, good business and the law to give purchasers what they expect from advertising."

The six jurors said people who bought Oldsmobiles with Chevy engines before April 10, 1977, were entitled to refunds of $550 each.

Buenz put the number of claims to be paid at 10,688, but Boyle said the number could go as high as 17,000.

Taking a figure of 15,550, for example, GM would owe $8.2 million.

The jurors, who began deliberations Thursday, had reached that part of the decision Friday but wrote in a note to U.S. District Judge Frank McGarr that they were divided on the case of at least 30,000 others who purchased their cars after April 10, 1977.

They returned to court Saturday, deliberated for almost three hours, then ruled that as many as 36,000 customers who bought their cars after that date cutdoff would receive no money, Boyle said.

The April 10, 1977, date was central in the trial.

Since the suit — one of the largest cases of alleged consumer fraud in federal court history — was filed in 1977, GM has paid out more than $10 million in settlements.

U.S. May See New Oil Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the current oil glut, the United States is not out of the energy woods yet and could very well experience one or two more emergencies in the 1980s, the head of the American Petroleum Institute said Saturday.

But Charles J. Dibona, president of the industry's largest trade group, said the United States is still far better off than just two years ago — when millions of Americans found themselves in gasoline lines.

The reason for the difference is that the market system is working, Dibona said in a status report on energy supplies.

In the last 1½ years, U.S. consumption of oil has dropped 13 percent and gasoline use is down 10 percent, he said.

These cuts allowed the United States to cut its daily oil imports from 8 million barrels in 1979 to an average of 6 million barrels so far this year.

Because of oil decontrol, the United States broke a 24-year-record in 1980 for the number of oil and gas wells drilled. A total of 61,000 wells were drilled in 1980 and drilling this year is running 26 percent ahead of last year's pace.

Dibona said, however, there was a danger in allowing the current world oil glut to "give the wrong impression about the urgent need for government action" in several areas. Dibona called for stepped up energy production on public lands, increased use of nuclear power and faster decontrol of natural gas.

First Federal Gets Approval For Conversion

The Federal Home Loan Bank has given final approval for First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Pitt County to proceed with its conversion from a mutual to a stock savings and loan association, according to First Federal President Clarence B. Tugwell.

Tugwell said 370,000 shares of common stock will be sold to eligible depositors and then to investors living in the assocation's trade area.

Tugwell indicated that, to comply with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board regulation, the offering circular mailed to eligible account holders would indicte a maximum price of $6.90 per share. The subsequent offering circular being distributed to interested investors in the Pitt County area would indicate the final offering price of $6 per share. This amount would most likely be the actual price to be paid by all investors.

First Federal sought permission to carry out the conversion in 1979. It plans to raise $2.22 million from the common stock offering. After the proceeds of the offering have been added to the present net worth the reserves will exceed the minimum reqirement of the bank board by 70 percent.

With the additional capital, First Federal will be in a stronger position to satisfy the demand for home mortgages in the Pitt County area, according to Tugwell.

First Federal was organized in 1937 by a group of local businesses and professional persons. It has assets of $91,627,715 and maintains offices in Greenville, Farmville, Ayden and Grifton.

North Carolina Outer Banks

Haven for Historians, Paradise for Campers

WRIGHT BROTHERS HOME . . . An inside view of the shack where Orville and Wilbur stayed while working on the first airplane.

If you have a small economy car, stay at one of the Hatteras National Forest campgrounds, and have Tang and plums for breakfast before leaving the last morning, a weekend vacation for two is relatively inexpensive – considerably under $100 including gas, food, and other necessities.

Most working people will leave for their weekend jaunt around six p.m. and arrive at their destination after night has long fallen. However, setting up camp at night has obvious draw backs. You may wake up to find that what you thought was "a nice, soft, sandy spot that won't make my back hurt" is actually a pit, and that 500 pounds of sand has crept its way into your tent over night. Isolation is also a forgone possibility. Campsites are close together; although, once you get over your fantasies of wide open spaces and loneliness, things don't look so bleak.

The sun comes up early on the beach and tents become sweat boxes after 7:30 so be prepared to bail out before it gets unbearable. Food is often a problem on camping trips too. A good choice for breakfast is eggs, bacon and milk. Granted the eggs are apt to resemble Chapel Hill gravel and the milk might be soured. (You can try to make coffee, but most tried campers resort to instant cocoa) But, the bacon is always good; it's hard to ruin.

A nice restaurant lunch of clam strips is relaxing and inexpensive following an afternoon tour of the Ocracoke-Hatteras area and riding ferries between islands.

Dinner is an adventure – corn on the cob, boiled in brown Outer Banks water, green beans seasoned with soggy bacon that got left in the cooler while the ice melted all afternoon and steak grilled to perfection (the thin part burned and the thick raw) on a small $2.99 grill you brought along.

Unless you're a died in the wool super-tanner be sure to take along plenty of sunscreen, Solarcaine and limit tanning sessions to one hour. Solarcaine can serve two purposes – for burning and insect bites. For some reason unexplainable to mankind, mosquitos like some of us more than others. Their choice feeding time is while you are setting up your tent and before you have become wise to their antics. Prime place: your ankles. Another ill that frequently befalls beachers is burned feet. It's a highly hysterical sight especially when someone who has been laughing at your mosquito bites has them.

To get the sand out of your bathing suit you will need to take a shower. All the national campsites have one major attraction in common, outdoor showers. Don't let anyone fool you about the joys of taking an outdoor shower, especially at night. Sure, you can see the moon and stars over your head as you bathe, but the soap slips through the slats on the floor and shampoo stays in your hair.

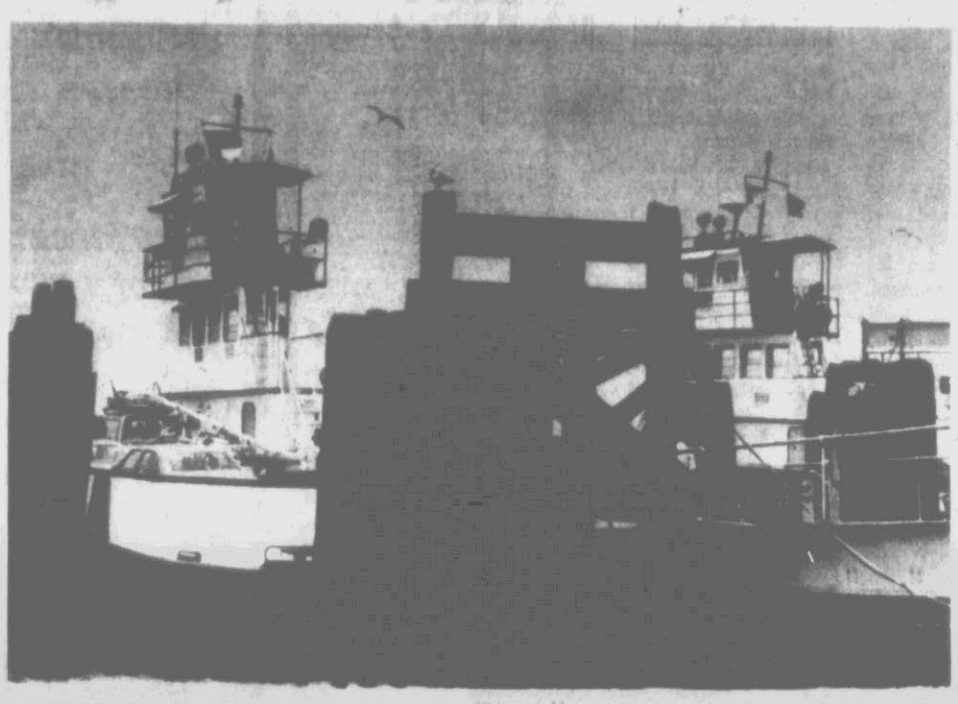
A must for beach campers is shade (most beginners forget that they need protection from the sun). A walk on one of the national forest nature trails will provide you with respite from the heat and some sticks to put up your makeshift shelter. (Note that these sticks should not be chopped down, but picked up off the ground. Your shelter poles may also serve as walking sticks.)

Once you have three sticks, carry them back to the campsite and position them to hold up one of your sleeping bags which will serve as a makeshift shelter. The center pole on the front of your tent can be the fourth stick. Using some rope, secure the corners of the sleeping bag to each pole. This provides about four feet by three feet of shade. Ideal for two thin people.

Evening activites are somewhat limited unless you're a seasoned camper who knows to bring along a scrabble board or cards. So, you try singing around the cement picnic table, but your neighbors are whooping it with six cases of beer, and being too shy and adult to join them you decide to go to bed.

Sunday morning arrives. It's a unanimous decision to pack up and hit the road. Packing is the most fun, because no one cares how you do it. An excellent time to get all your last minute sight seeing in is on your way home.

One last stop for ice and lunch and you head back to the old homestead to nurse mosquito bites, sunburn and contemplate the horrendous task of unpacking. But it's all worth it, a good summer trip.



A FERRY BOAT! . . . Gulls swoop down on two ferries that carry cars and their passengers over to Ocracoke Island where they will view the Ocracoke lighthouse, village, and banker ponies.

Cape Hatteras National Seashore
Manteo, N.C. 27954

All National Seashore campsites are open this season. Oregon Inlet (120 sites), Cape Point (230 sites), Frisco (136 sites), and Ocracoke (132 sites) will all be open until Labor Day. Salvo (141 sites), will be open until August 31. All of the campgrounds feature comfort stations, outdoor showers, water, grills, and tables. Rates for the campsites are $4 per night except for Ocracoke which is $2. Before taking your trip you might want to call ahead and find out about available campsites.

Places you will want to visit while at the Outer Banks are the Hatteras lighthouse - tallest in America; the Museum of the Sea near the Hatteras lighthouse, Bodie Island Visitor Center and lighthouse, and the visitors center at Silver Lake Marina in Ocracoke Village as well as the Ocracoke lighthouse. The Pea Island National 5,880 acre Wildlife Refuge is within the park. There are paved parking turnouts near walkways into the refuge. Beaches are public except in fenced areas.

Wedding Vows Exchanged

RALEIGH — Lisa Ellan Forehand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Paul Forehand Jr. of Raleigh, and Lee Allison Shearin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Howard Shearin Jr. of Greenville, were married Saturday afternoon.

The Rev. William Boyd Rogers performed the double ring ceremony at two o'clock in the Ridge Road Baptist Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride's gown was styled of white chiffon and silk Venise lace. It featured a Queen Anne neckline with cap sleeves and a yoke of point d'sprit. The bodice was adorned with seed pearls and Venise lace. The A-line skirt, with a chapel length watteau train, was outlined with silk Venise lace. Her fingertip veil featured a Juliette tiara with matching lace. The bride carried a white Bible centered with white rosebuds and baby's breath. The Bible was a gift to her mother from her father and was used in their wedding.

Mrs. Glenn Woodlief of Henderson was organist and is sister of the bridegroom. Mrs. Jones Goode and Frank Lassiter were vocalists.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and the honor attendants were Mrs. Emerson Hoffman of Tifton, Ga. and Sherri Leigh Forehand of Raleigh, sisters of the bride.

De Ann Hoffman, niece of the bride of Tifton, Ga. was flower girl and the ring bearer was E. P. Forehand IV of Broken Arrow, Okla., nephew of the bride.

Ushers included Paul Forehand III of Broken Arrow, Okla., brother of the bride, Sidney H. Shearin III of Enfield, brother of the bridegroom, Dr. Glenn E. Woodlief of Henderson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Bill Overby of New Jersey, cousin of the bridegroom and Jeff Barber of Greenville.

Mrs. Wayne Burgess of Raleigh directed the wedding.

The bridesmaids' gowns were blue floral on white chiffon featuring a blouson bodice with bateau neckline and cap sleeves. They carried arm bouquets of blue snapdragons with baby's breath.

The flower girl wore a long white dress trimmed with pearl buttons down the front and blue satin ribbon at the waistline and on the sleeves. She carried a white basket filled with rose petals and an attached mixed flower arrangment.

The bride's mother wore a formal ensemble of maize chiffon over taffeta and the mother of the bridegroom selected a gown of pink chiffon over taffeta. Both wore white orchid corsages.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception after the ceremony.

Following a wedding trip to Wrightsville Beach, the couple will be living in Coats.

The bride is a graduate of Montreat-Anderson College and plans to continue her education at Campbell University. The bridegroom is a graduate of NCSU and is employed by Burlington Industries.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom for the wedding party, family and friends at the Ramada Inn, Raleigh. A bridesmaids luncheon was given by the bride's sister, Sherri Forehand.

Robbie Leigh Cobb Weds Saturday

ROCKY MOUNT — At 4:00 p.m. Saturday, the Benvenue Baptist Church here was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Robbie Leigh Cobb and Joseph Denny Allen, both of Rocky Mount. The Rev. Albert Benton of Clinton performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Robert Vernon Cobb and the late Mr. Cobb of Rocky Mount. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hassel Denny Allen of Bethel.

A program of wedding music was performed by organist, Gene Featherstone and trumpeteer, Dr. Daniel Crocker.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Maj. Frederick Wayne Dickens. She wore a formal white gown of summer sheer and Schiffli embroidered English net. The embroidered bodice was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and long tapered sleeves that ended in a point at the wrist. Tiny covered buttons were used on the sleeves and the back of the bodice. The full sheer skirt and chapel train were bordered with graduated tiers of schiffli embroidery. A walking length veil of French illusion cascaded from a circlet of tiny white lilac flowers. She carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses and glamelias.

Matron of honor was Jeanie Cobb Dickens, sister of the bride, of Lexington Park, Md. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Elizabeth Cobb Pierce of Nashville, Tenn., sister of the bride, Mrs. Delores Allen Avery of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom and Jane Elizabeth Nussman of Spencer.

Best man was the bridegroom's father. Ushers were Michael Earle Shuff of Rocky Mount, brother-in-law of the bride, Michael Allen Colombo, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Spotswood Reid Homes, both of Greenville and Michael Grady Mosley of Richmond, Va.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's mother in the fellowship hall of the church. Margaret Almand High presided at the guest register. Punch was served to the guests by Mrs. Archie Battle Whitley Jr., aunt of the bride. Mrs. William Cobb served the bridal cake.

Mrs. Landon E. Schuff Jr., Mrs. Frederick W. Dickens, Mrs. E. Lee Pearce Jr., sisters of the bride, entertained the bride and her guests at a luncheon at the Carlton House, Rocky Mount, Friday. The parents of the bridegroom were hosts at a rehearsal dinner at the Carlton House Friday.

The wedding party and out-of-town guests were honored at a breakfast at the Benvenue Country Club here Saturday given by Mr. and Mrs. Archie B. Whitley Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John I. Cobb, Mrs. A. Thompson Cronenberg, Mrs. Graham M. Schorb, Mrs. James R. Cobb and Mrs. Hoy J. Cobb Sr., aunts and uncles of the bride.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside in Rocky Mount.

MRS. JOSEPH DENNY ALLEN

New Brownie Mix Available

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Some folks claim the first brownies were accidental — a fallen cake being passed off as bar cookies.

A new mix from a major manufacturer lives up to that legend. The baking directions are based solely on time, without the usual use of a cake tester or toothpick to see how well-baked the batter is.

The ingredients include a separate can of chocolate syrup, which apparently accounts for the fudge-like results.

When done, the surface looks like a muddy creek bed after a two-week drought — dry and irregularly cracked — and the interior, rich and gooey.

The Betty Crocker product, supreme fudge brownie mix, comes in a 23.5 ounce package and sells for about $1.59.

Attracting Hummingbirds

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Feeders are only one way of attracting song and hummingbirds to your yard. Certain flowers, shrubs and trees do the same thing and beautify your property at the same time.

Horticulturist Jeannette Lowe recommends, among other varieties, cosmos, sunflowers, coreopsis, marigolds, rudbeckia and Gloriosa daisies.

Hummingbirds go for such things as columbine, delphinium, larkspur, lilies, honeysuckle, morning glories, petunias, phlox and zinnias, she says.

Miss Worthington Is Bride

WINTERVILLE — Evangeline Worthington of Winterville and William Norfleet Jr. of Grimesland were united in marriage Saturday at three o'clock in the afternoon at Good Hope Free Will Baptist Church here. The Rev. Kenneth Hammond performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Frank Worthington of Winterville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Beulah Norfleet of Rt. 1, Grimesland.

A program of wedding music was presented by Roger Ingram, organist, who also sang "Always and Forever," "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," and "O Perfect Love." "The Lord's Prayer" was sung by Mrs. Evelyn Hagans.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a white gown of polyester organza and silk Venise lace. The gown was fashioned with a silk Venise motif and scallop accent, Queen Anne neckline, empire bodice, long bishop applique and lace trim cuffed sleeves. A full circular skirt with applique and scallop lace trimmed hemline flowed into an attached chapel train. Her headpiece was a Juliet caplet, of Venise lace and seed pearls attached to fingertip tiers of silk illusion with double rows of matching lace She carried silk lilies of the valley in a hanging garden of miniature carnations and satin streamers tied with additional silk lily of the valley.

MRS. WILLIAM NORFLEET JR.

The bride's sister, Frances Jean Blount of Greenville, was matron of honor. She wore a maize silesta floor length gown. The T-strap empire bodice was topped with a detachable chiffon caplet accented with a floating panel. An accordian pleated skirt flowed to floor length. She wore a matching flower in her hair and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of multicolored poms and baby's breath and yellow and green satin ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Evelyn Hagans, sister of the bride of Wilson, Laurene Gardner of Kinston and Argie Cannon and Vickie Cannon, both of Winterville, and Joyce Hawkins of Raleigh, all cousins of the bride. They each wore a silesta floor length gown, three of which were mint green and two maize. The blouson bodice featured a yoke neckline and shirred cap sleeves. A cowl drape accented the back of the gown. The silk accordian pleated skirt flowed to a floor length. They wore matching flowers in their hair and carried semi-cascade bouquets of multicolored poms and baby's breath with yellow and green satin ribbons.

Alysia Danielle Blount, the bride's niece of Greenville, was flower girl. She wore a formal gown of white and maize designed with a round neckline accented with a bertha effect ruffle which also formed the sleeves. She carried a wicker basket filled with rose petals. Demetrius Carmon of Winterville was ring bearer.

Dawn Angelique Hagans, the bride's niece of Wilson, was model bride. She wore a formal gown of white organza over white taffeta designed with a portrait off-the-shoulder neckline. Boris Neal of Winterville was model bridegroom.

Marvin Blount of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man. Ushers were Bob Cannon, cousin of the bride, Johnny Moye and Linwood Wright, all of Greenville, James Douglas Hagans, brother-in-law of the bride of Wilson, and Timothy Neal of Winterville.

The mother of the bride wore a formal sea green chiffonette gown. The bridegroom's mother selected a formal maize gown of polyeser knit and cluny lace. They each wore double white carnation corsages with seed pearls.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall. Guests were welcomed by Mrs. Helen Bridges and Mrs. Fannie Cannon, aunts of the bride. Good-byes were said by Mrs. Rhuarma Knox and Shirley Daniels, cousins of the bride. Cake was served by Mrs. Mable Hooks, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Shirley Daniels, cousin of the bride. Mrs. Ethel Marie Neal presided at the guest register.

The bride is a graduate of North Carolina Central University and is employed with Health Sciences Library at East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Beaufort Community College and General Motors School of Mechanical Engineering, Charlotte. He is employed with Barnes Division of Old Dominion, Wilson.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

LIGHT BREAD

Make in a food processor.

1 package dry yeast
2 teaspoons sugar
1-3rd cup warm water (105 to 115 degrees)
4 cups fork-stirred unbleached all-purpose flour
3 pats (1 tablespoon each) butter, at room temperature
1½ teaspoons salt
1 cup cold water

Dissolve the yeast and sugar in the warm water. In a food processor, process together the flour, butter pats (placed apart from one another) and the salt for 20 seconds. Remove cover and add yeast mixture. With machine running, through the feed tube, pour the cold water in a steady stream as fast as the flour mixture absorbs it — about 30 seconds. Continue processing until dough begins to form a ball; continue processing for about 1 more minute to knead. Shape dough into a ball; place in a buttered mixing bowl; turn to butter top. Cover bowl with saran; let rise in a draftfree warm place (80 degrees) until doubled — about 1 hour. Punch down dough; shape into 2 loaves and place each in a buttered 8½ by 4½ by 2½-inch loaf pan. Cover with saran; let rise as before until doubled — 45 to 60 minutes. Bake on the rack below center in a 375-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 30 to 40 minutes. Turn out on wire racks to cool. Use fresh (the same day bread is baked) for sandwiches. Or use after storage, sliced thin, to make crisp toast.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There is nothing more pitiful on God's green earth than to watch a woman whose family has rented a cabin for the summer try to "relax" and get close to nature.

A woman may leave her own home, but she takes her pride and her guilt with her. I have seen these surrogate housekeepers move fireplaces to clean behind them, wax the plumbing under the sink, launder dust balls and replace them under the bed where she found them.

I am one of them.

We went that route about five years ago. The couple was going to Europe and offered to rent us their home by the beach for six weeks. My family was ecstatic. They dumped their luggage in the middle of the floor, got into their bathing suits and my husband said, "Well, what shall we do first?"

"I think I'll scour the fresh air vent over the stove. If we don't fry anything, I won't have to do it again until we leave."

"We're here to relax," he said, "not clean house. Surely she expects us to live in the house."

"Like what!" I said, "A religious commune that worships white rings on the table? Get that wet towel out of the living room. And help me with these draperies. The sun is bleaching that sofa white."

During the weeks that followed, while the family turned brown and healthy, I took off the faucets and cleaned them with a toothbrush, alphabetized and cross-referenced the mail, sucked sand out of the sliding door track with the sweeper attachment, bleached dish cloths and laundered the plastic bags each day and hung them out to dry.

One day when they came in for lunch, I was in tears.

"What's the matter?" asked my husband.

"It's the fig tree in the bedroom. It's dying."

"It's not your fault," he said, putting his arm around me.

"There'll be questions. An investigation. The family should know. They'll want to be here."

He nodded to the children who silently began to pack.

That was five years ago. Once I was home, things returned to normal. There were poker chips in the planters, the mop stuck to the floor and someone wrote in the grease behind the stove, "FOR A GOOD TIME CALL MARILYN 555-5544."

Someone mentioned renting a cabin again this summer and relaxing. I don't think I'm well enough.

When anesthesia was first used in the middle 1800s to ease the pain of childbirth, male churchmen objected because the Bible supposedly advocated that the pain of childbirth was punishment for eating the forbidden fruit. However, when Queen Victoria allowed herself to be chloroformed while giving birth to her seventh child, all criticism stopped. None of the churchmen was brave enough to criticize the queen.

Candlelight Vows Exchanged In Bethel

BETHEL — Carolyn Vanessa Doughtie of Greenville and Albert Edwin Underwood III of Raleigh were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony at seven o'clock Saturday evening at Johnson Memorial Presbyterian Church here. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ed Conner.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Earl Doughtie of Rt. 1, Bethel. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Albert E. Underwood Jr. of Raleigh and the late Mr. Underwood.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Jewell Whitehurst, pianist, of Bethel.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white chiffon featuring a Queen Anne neckline. The fitted bodice with empire waist was trimmed in silk Venise lace. The cap sleeves and neckline were also trimmed in matching lace. The A-line skirt with a watteau chapel train had a border of silk Venise lace. She wore a hairpiece of silk ivy, stephanotis and lily of the valley. She carried a semi-cascade of silk ivy, gypsophelia, roses, miniature orchids, lily of the valley, stephanotis and sweet peas.

MRS. ALBERT EDWIN UNDERWOOD III

Nancy Fuchs of Greenville was maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of yellow matte jersey designed with an open neckline featuring miniature rolled shoulder straps and a blouson bodice centered with a motif of embroidered lace. The waistline was encircled with a tie sash from which fell the gathered skirt with a front split. The gown was complemented by a bolero jacket with lace cap sleeves. She carried a nosegay of yellow silk roses, gypsophelia and camellias with satin ribbon streamers.

Amy Babb of Holland, Va., cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a long A-line dress of yellow organza. The puffed sleeves and Peter Pan collar were trimmed in lace. She carried a white basket filled with yellow and white rose petals.

Sam Moore of Raleigh was best man. Benjamin E. Doughtie Jr. of Greenville, brother of the bride, and Tony Underwood of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom, served as acolytes for the ceremony.

The mother of the bride selected a turquoise street length dress. The mother of the bridegroom chose a street length dress of lavendar and white.

A reception given by the bride's parents was held after the ceremony. The fellowship hall was decorated with a portrait of the bride and the prayerbook that was used by the bride's mother. Mrs. Christine Ware, aunt of the bride, presided at the register. Mr. and Mrs. John L. Dixon, uncle and aunt of the bride, greeted guests. Mrs. Nancy Doughtie, sister-in-law of the bride and Mrs. Maude Elliott, aunt of the bride, poured punch. Mrs. Irma Rawls, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Eunice Crawford served cake.

Following the rehearsal Friday night, the parents of the couple entertained the members of the wedding party and close friends at the home of the bride's parents. The bride and bridegroom were honored with a variety of showers and parties prior to their wedding day.

The bride is a graduate of Peace College. The bridegroom attended UNC-CH and is self-employed in Raleigh.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will reside in Raleigh.

Reflector pans on your range should be washed frequently in a sink of hot sudsy water. Try removing burned on particles with a plastic or nylon scrubber.

Miss Gibbs, Mr. Proctor Speak Vows

GOLDSBORO — Rebecca Faye Gibbs and Clifton Offie Proctor Jr. were united in marriage Saturday at 3 p.m. at the Central Baptist Church here. Officiating clergyman for the double ring ceremony was the father of the bride, Rev. Carl Gibbs, assisted by the Rev. Paul Baker.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Carl G. Gibbs of Goldsboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton O. Proctor Sr. of Saratoga.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Sue Gilbert, organist, and guitarist the Rev. Craig Simmons of the First Free Will Baptist Church, Wilson.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with an open Queen Anne neckline outlined in scalloped chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The bodice was overlaid in French chantilly lace with scalloped beaded lace at the waistline. Matching French chantilly lace was used in the sheer bishop sleeves with scalloped lace at the cuffs. The modified A-line skirt was enhanced by a flounce of chantilly lace bordered and edged by chantilly that were attached to a cathedral train accentuated by six tiers of lace trimmed flounces that extended up to the waistline. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion bordered in scalloped French chantilly lace held in place by a semi-Camelot cap overlaid in matching lace. Scattered motifs of lace were featured on the veil. The bride carried a semi-nosegay of all white daisies, roses, miniature carnations and baby's breath entwined with variegated ivy and showered with white satin streamers tied in love knots.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Nora Sinyard of Riverdale, Ga. She wore a formal gown of maize floral organza over maize taffeta designed with a portrait neckline featuring rolled shoulder straps and a wide bertha collar over the empire bodice. The skirt of the sleeveless gown was accentuated by a ruffled flounce at the hemline. She carried a nosegay of yellow and white daisies mingled with baby's breath and satin streamers.

Bridesmaids were Wanda and Mary Beth Gibbs, sisters of the bride, and Donna Mitchell, all of Goldsboro, Tammy Proctor of Saratoga, sister of the bridegroom, Joy Pace of Chattanooga, Tenn. and Shirley Speight and Mary Sykes, both of Greenville. The bridesmaids wore gowns styled identically to the honor attendant in a contrasting print of mint green floral organza. They carried boquets like that of the honor attendant.

The miniature bride was Candida Worley of Greenville. She was dressed like the bride and carried a nosegay of roses, daisies and baby's breath. The miniature bridegroom was Stephen Gibbs, brother of the bride from Goldsboro.

Ushers included Hugh Sinyard of Riverdale, Ga., brother-in-law of the bride, Peter Carter of Wilson, Mike Deans and Mark Wooles, both of Greenville. The father of the bridegroom was best man.

A rehearsal party was held Friday in the fellowship hall of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Wilson. Gifts were presented to the wedding attendants and a cake-cutting ceremony was held and was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Clinton O. Proctor Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Saunders of Saratoga and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Beamon of Wilson.

MRS. CLINTON OFFIE PROCTOR JR.

Mrs. Janice Dail, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch and Mrs. Jean Proctor, aunt of the bridegroom, served the wedding cake.

The bride is a graduate of Tabernacle Baptist School and received a diploma in data processing from Spartanburg Technical College, Spartanburg, S.C. The bridegroom is a graduate of Saratoga Central High School and served in the U.S. Navy. He is presently employed as manager of Western Sizzlin' Steak House No. 2, Greenville. The bride is the assistant manager of Western Sizzlin' Steak House No. 1, Greenville.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

BRUNCH FARE
Country Sausage and Eggs
Pineapple Gems Coffee

PINEAPPLE GEMS

Our special recipe for this hot bread.

- 2 cups fork-stirred all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup butter
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 large egg
- 8¼-ounce can crushed pineapple in heavy syrup, undrained

Stir together the flour, baking powder and salt. Cream the butter and sugar; beat in the egg until blended. Add the flour mixture and the pineapple; stir only until flour mixture is moistened. Turn into muffin-pan cups (each 1-3rd cup capacity), filling each ¾ full. (Put water in any empty muffin-pan cups.) Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean and muffins are a light golden color — 30 to 40 minutes. Serve at once with butter. Makes 9.

Skinner-Whitehead Vows Are Spoken

SCOTLAND NECK — The United Methodist Church here was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Susan Gail Whitehead and Jeff Skinner, both of Greenville. The Rev. Lewis Dillman performed the double ring ceremony at three o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whitehead Jr. of Scotland Neck and Mr. Luby Skinner of Greenville and Mrs. Mary Moody of Raleigh are parents of the couple.

Mrs. E. K. Veach provided a program of organ music.

The maid of honor was Sharon Whitehead and Polly Whitehead was bridesmaid. Both are sisters of the bride of Scotland Neck.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Glen Whitehead of Beaufort and Donald Whitehead of Morehead City, both brothers of the bride.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride was dressed in a formal gown of white chiffon. She wore a derby cap accented with seed pearls and lace with a fingertip length veil attached. She carried a bouquet of white daisies tied with satin streamers.

The attendants were each dressed in a formal gown of blue chiffon over taffeta and wore baby's breath in their hair. They carried nosegays of mixed daisies and carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

Mrs. Paul Hale, aunt of the bride, served cake and Mrs. Carroll Minton, aunt of the bride, poured punch. The refreshment table was decorated with an arrangement of summer flowers.

The couple will be living in Greenville after a wedding trip to Maine and Nova Scotia.

Both the bride and bridegroom work at Burroughs Wellcome.

MRS. JEFF SKINNER

In 1872 Susan B. Anthony of Rochester, N.Y., became the first American woman to vote in a presidential election, but was convicted of illegal voting and fined $100.

Liquid Soap From Slivers

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Do-it-yourself liquid soap is a cinch to make from slivers of leftover bar soap.

—Soak soap in water until soft, then mix in a blender.

—Drop the scraps into a jar with enough water to keep the soap soft. When the jar is full, empty the contents into a bowl, add water ½ cup at a time and use an electric mixer on slow speed until the mixture reaches the desired consistency.

—If you have a microwave oven, shave soap into a small dish, cover with water and microwave about 40 seconds.

—Stove-top method: put soap slivers in a pan and cover with water. Let soften over very low heat, then simmer until mixture is gel consistency. Additional slivers of soap may be added as acquired, along with a small amount of water; then shake occasionally to dissolve.

—Food processor method: place 10-15 small slivers of soap in a quart jar. Add 2 tablespoons of cooking oil and water to measure one quart. After soap softens, pour the mixture into a food processor (fitted with steel blade) and run until liquid is smooth.

—Or put soap scraps in a pump bottle of the soft soap type, add hot water to cover and shake well. Within a day the soap should be soft enough to squirt out. Additional scraps can be added, along with more hot water, to keep the mixture going indefinitely.

Barber-Peterson Vows Said In Raleigh

RALEIGH — Brenda Cherryl Peterson of Raleigh and Jonathan Craig Barber of Wingate were married at three o'clock in the afternoon at Millbrook United Methodist Church here. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Gerald Peterson and the Rev. Morris Barber, fathers of the bride and bridegroom, respectively.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Peterson of Raleigh. The bridegroom's parents are the Rev. and Mrs. Barber of Roxboro.

A program of wedding music was presented by Anne Morton of Washington and Aaron Fussell Jr. sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of white satin. The floor length gown featured a chapel length train with fingertip sleeves and was overlaid with four tiers of schiffli lace. She wore a picture hat with a two tiered veil trimmed with matcing lace. She carried her mother's wedding Bible covered with white and pastel carnations and stephanotis.

Sandra Peterson, the bride's sister of Raleigh, was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of lavender flocked voile with a flounced neckline and a flared skirt with a ruffle at the hem. She wore a matching picture hat with voile. She carried lavender carnations with baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Marcia Barber, the bridegroom's sister of Roxboro, Pat Hernan of Greenville and Michele Choyke of Medford, N.J. They wore gowns and carried carnations similar to that of the maid of honor.

Honorary bridesmaids were Diane Wilkes and Anne Morton, both of Washington, Tonya Young of Lexington, Janet Funderburk and Cathy Crowder, both of Greensboro.

Marc Barber, the bridegroom's brother, was best man. Ushers were John Funderburk of Greensboro, Charles Davis of Monroe and Gene Young of Lexington.

A reception was held following the ceremony. Honorary bridesmaids served refreshments. Desi Bowling invited guests to sign the guest registry.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and attended East Carolina University. She is employed as a social science teacher. The bridegroom is a graduate of Northern Durham High School and attended St. Andrews Presbyterian College. He is employed with R.P. Scherer of Monroe as a chemist.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

There's a time of year, speaking from a country-wide point of view, when it's perfect to pair two of summer's loveliest fruits — fresh strawberries and fresh peaches. At the end of June, strawberries are in their last peak month of supply; at the beginning of July, peaches start their first peak period of supply.

Grab the chance then, if you like, to serve the fruits in combination in compotes, salads, ice creams, sherbets, ices, puddings and pies. You may also want to preserve them: to put them together in a jam for use in later months and to give as gifts at holiday time.

STRAWBERRY-PEACH JAM

1 quart (about) fully ripe strawberries
1½ pounds (about) fully ripe peaches
2 tablespoons lemon juice
One 1¾-ounce package fruit pectin
6 cups sugar

Rinse and hull strawberries. Thoroughly crush, one layer at a time — there should be about 2¼ cups; turn into a 6- or 8-quart saucepot. Peel and pit peaches. Cup very fine — there should be about 2 cups; add to the strawberries. (There may be a little more or less of either fruit, but use a total of 4¼ cups.) Add lemon juice. Stir in pectin. Over high heat, stirring constantly, bring the mixture to a full boil. Immediately add sugar; stirring constantly, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute. Remove from heat and, with a large metal spoon, skim off foam. Quickly ladle into hot 8-ounce jars, filling to within ¼ inch of tops; cover with hot lids and screw bands on tightly. Process in a boiling water bath for 5 minutes. Makes about 7 eight-ounce jars.

Note: Here's how to process in a water bath. Place jars on rack in a canner or large saucepot of boiling water that covers jars by 1 or 2 inches. Cover canner and bring water to a boil; boil for 5 minutes. (as Strawberry-Peach Jam recipe directs). Remove jars from canner. Let stand to cool. Check seals. Jar lids should remain slightly concave when pressed. Remove bands and store in a cool dry place.

DINNER FARE

Pork Chops — Potatoes
Snap Beans — Apple Kraut
Cookies — Beverage

APPLE KRAUT

It was fun to turn an old-fashioned Middle-European condiment into a modern American offering and we hope this unusual offering appeals to you.

8-ounce can sauerkraut, undrained
1 large red Delicious apple

Into a 2-cup freezer container turn the kraut. Quarter and core but do not peel the apple; bury the apple quarters in the kraut, making sure it covers them. Cover container tightly and store in the freezer for several weeks. Thaw before serving.

Engagement Announced

JESSIE ELLEN MCDANIEL. . .is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jesse Louie McDaniel of Kinston, who announce her engagement to Paul Stewart Crago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alan Crago of Lewiston, N. Y. The wedding will take place Sept. 26.

Donna Symons Is Bride

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Richard L. Doublin of Eddyville, Ky. and Mrs. Annabelle Hayden of Blandville, Ky. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James P. Dickerson of Grimesland.

Given in marriage by her son, Kenneth, the bride wore a formal gown of nylon satin with a circular neckline trimmed in re-embroidered lace and seed pearls. Her floor length train of silk illusion was edged with lace. She carried a bouquet of multi-colored roses.

Becky Poole, the bride's niece of Lake Como, Fla., was flower girl. She wore a long yellow taffeta silk dress overlaid with lace. She carried a basket of multi-colored daisies.

A reception given by the bridegroom's parents was held after the ceremony. The table was decorated with a white lace cloth and a centerpiece of yellow roses. Mrs. James Dickerson and Mrs. Timothy Dickerson, both of Grimesland, served punch and wedding cake.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in Greenville.

MRS. WILLIAM EARL DICKERSON

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

SARDINE TARTINES

As a friend of ours likes to make them.

½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon paprika
8 slices toast, halved diagonally
8 tomato slices, halved
3¼-ounce can brisling sardines, drained

Stir together the mayonnaise, cheese, mustard and paprika. Spread toast triangles with cheese mixture, making sure edges are covered; place on a foil-lined cookie sheet. Top each triangle with a half-slice of tomato and a sardine. Bake in a preheated 450-degree oven until cheese mixture is bubbly and tartines are heated through — about 5 minutes. Makes 16 triangles.

Wedding Vows Solemnized Saturday

Dr. Mary L. Cleveland of Greenville and Roger W. Bollinger of Kendall Park, N.J., were united in marriage Saturday at 4:30 p.m. the at First Presbyterian Church, Greenville. The Rev. Richard R. Gammon performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie O. Cleveland of Omaha, Nebr. The bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Fred Bollinger of Westfield, N.J.

The bride dress was made of ivory silken jersey, floor length, and designed by Camille of New York. The dress showed an Edwardian influence and featured a schippi lace Queen Anne neckline, bishop sleeves and natural waistline. Her should length veil was attached to a Juliet cap designed by Priscilla of Boston.

The maid of honor, Linda Hinsch, of Kansas City, Kans., wore a Singapore teal silken jersey dress of blouson style with an ecru lace yoke. The floor length gown was fashioned by Aria, Inc.

Assisting at the bride's table were Dr. Carolyn Bolt, Dr. Agnes Hostettler, and Mrs. Raquel Manning, professors in the department of foreign languages and literatures at East Carolina University, and Pamela Diffee.

The bride and her parents were entertained at a prenuptial luncheon given by Mrs. Marguerite Perry, chairman of the deparment of foreign languages.

The bride received her B.A. degree from the University of Kansas and her Ph.D. from Indiana University in Bloomington. She is a lecturer of French at East Carolina University. The bridegroom received his undergraduate degree from Wake Forest University and his M.B.A. from Indiana University. He is employed as a financial analyst with Atlantic Richfield Co., Philadelphia.

UNC Center Specials

Short stories, military wives, conservation and a circus parade are subjects being featured on public television programs to be aired by the UNC Center for Public Teleivsion during the coming week. Brief details are:

— Monday, June 29, 9 p.m. "The Girls in Their Summer Dresses," a short story by Irwin Sahw, is one of the Great Performances series, starring Carol Kane and Jeff Bridges. The story is filmed on location in Greenwich Building.

— Wednesday, July 1, 7:30 p.m. — "Military Wives" ia a 30-minute documentary that explores what life on a military base is like for some wommen married to low-ranking enlisted men. It portrays a bleak scene of wives struggling with loneliness, tight-money and boredom.

— Thursday, July 2, 7:30 p.m. — The national water shortage and what some communities are doing about it is the topic of "The Alternative is Conservation," a documentary focusing on eight communities where low reservoirs, contaminated sources and wasteful practices have forced residents to discover conservation.

— Saturday, July 4, 12:30 p.m. — A cast of nine elephants, 24 other circus animals, 336 draft horses, 12 bands and 600 performers and drivers, plus a line of 48 historic circus wagons, make up "The Chicago Circus Parade," a Ringling Brothers turn of the century entertainment. A highlight will be the showing of the Pawnee Bill Bandwagon No. 80, which features massively sculptured panoramas of Columbus landing in America and Pocohontas saving John Smith.

Hospitality House

Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" will be televised Sunday beginning at noon and continuing until 12:30 p.m. on WITN, Channel Seven, Washington. The entire show is a salute to Oriental and sailing.

The show will feature Jerry Cartwright of Oriental — a writer, yacht designer and sailor. He has sailed some 80,000 miles off-shore and 25,000 miles single-handedly. He will be showing part of the 1980 Trans-Atlantic Single Handed Race in which he participated and won in his class.

The show will also include information about the Croaker Festival July 3-5 which is being sponsored by the Oriental Junior Woman's Club. Kay will be talking to Ruth Statham, chairman of the Croaker Festival and Connie Swindell, 1980 Croaker Queen. Slides of the festival will be shown with background music by Pro-Musica of New Bern. Pro-Musica is directed by Lorraine Robinson.

Presenting 'David The King'

The Academy of Arts Christian Drama Team will appear at Parkers Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. in a performance of "David the King, Part II." This outstanding Biblical drama tells the unforgettable story of David, Saul and Jonathan, utilizing professional costumes, scenery, stage lights and professional sound. It is the second part of a three part production.

Part II begins with David's triumphal return to Jerusalem, after he slew Goliath in the valley of Elah. His popularity with the people produces jealousy in King Saul, especially when he realizes that his own son, Jonathan, has taken David as his closest friend.

Plagued by Philistine invasions and troubled by an evil spirit, Saul's insane jealousy causes him to try to kill David on numerous occasions. Jonathan alerts David to the dangers at court, and David flees to the wilderness to live as a fugitive, in caves, fields and forests.

Saul pursues David to take his life, but the Lord continues to preserve the fugutive king. On at least two occasions, David has opportunities to take Saul's life, but will not raise his hand against the Lord's anointed.

With Samuel dead and all the priests of Nob slain at the command of Saul himself, the troubled king faces a new and formidible threat by the Philistines. With no prophet or priest by whom he can inquire of the Lord, Saul seeks out the Witch of Endor and has her bring up the spirit of Samuel, that he may enquire of him.

Samuel tells Saul that he and his son will be slain in the coming battle. The prophecy comes true, David laments their death, and the play ends with David's ascension to the throne.

Veteran Stage Actor Is New Blackbeard

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

BATH — "The nature of Blackbeard in this play appeals to me. I think that's the prime reason I chose taking this role instead of accepting the Sir Walter Raleigh role with 'The Lost Colony,'" John R. Rice commented.

Rice, a 6-foot-2 veteran of acting, directing and film experiences from Ohio, is the new Blackbeard in the Bath outdoor drama, "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag," which opened Thursday night for the 1981 season. After auditioning earlier this year at the North Carolina Institute of Outdoor Drama for roles open in outdoor dramas, he received follow-up calls on eight of the 12 roles for which he had auditioned.

Since he has been in Bath working with the large cast of the play, Rice said that things have been going well: "I feel good about the play. The cast is easy to work with, the director and I get along well."

He added "I find the swashbuckling concept a pleasant one, and there's the added excitement of being in an outdoor drama. This is the first time I've ever been in one, so it's an entirely new experience for me."

The 33-year old actor was educated at Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh, and at Ohio State University, Columbus. He holds B.S.E. and MA degrees in theater, speech and English.

In his acting career, he has performed with the Black Swamp Players, the Great Lakes Shakespeare Festival, Coshocton Footlight Players, at Trumbull New Theater as well as with performance groups at Ohio State and Carnegie-Mellon. Roles he has preformed have been varied, ranging from King Lear to Tom Wingfield in "Glass Menagerie;" from Hank in "The Boys in the Band" to Eugene Gantt in "Look Homeward Angel."

As a director — with Trumbull New Theater, Coshocton Theater and Perrysburg Theater, Rice has directed eight plays including "Hotel Paradiso," "Summertree" "Love Rides the Rails" and "Godspell." He has been awarded for his performances on several occasions, receiving Best Actor Award for the Ohio Community Theater Association at both regional and state levels. He was also involved in the world premier production of Jerome Lawrence's "Live Spelled Backwards."

Blackbeard's true love in the outdoor drama, a quiet Bath lass, Mary Ormand, is again being portrayed by Shauna Holmes Barnaby. Now married to Roger Barnaby, East Carolina University drama graduate Shauna Holmes was Mary in the play's opening season — skipped two years, returned to the role last year, and is back again this year for a third time in this lead female role in the drama.

Information On Local Actor

The article in the Sunday, June 21, edition of this paper about six Greenville natives in the cast of "Blackbeard" did not contain information on one of the six, Stuart Ward.

Stuart is a 1981 graduate of Rose High School and will be attending East Carolina University this fall on a football scholarship. At Rose, he was active in the drama club, playing the lead role in "L'il Abner" and as narrator in "Our Town." He also performed in "45 Minutes From Broadway" and "Rock 'n Roll."

Seeking Information

RALEIGH — What are they doing, and where are they? This is the question the state Division of Archives and History is asking in reference to about two dozen former state legislators for whom they have little or no information. The division is preparing a biographical directory of the General Assembly from colonial times to the present.

Among this directory of about 1,900 individuals, there are a few that researchers so far have been unable to trace since their service in the General Assembly.

For that reason, the division is appealing to the public to provide leads or information on a number of 20th century legislators. The majority are men who served in the 1930s.

One of the men on whom information is being sought is from Pitt County, John Samuel Moore. Moore served in the House from 1937 to 1939.

Two others are from eastern North Carolina counties — David Henry Willis, who served in the House in 1931; and Walter James Norwood of Halifax County, a House member from 1927-29.

Anyone with information on these three are asked to write to: Stephen E. Massengill, project director, Biographical Directory of the General Assembly of North Carolina, Archives and Records Section, Department of Cultural Resources, 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, N. C., 27611. Massengill can also be contacted by phone, 733-3952. A complete list of all persons for whom information is being sought will be sent to individuals on request.

Greenville Boy Chosen For Role

Jarvis Groome

An 11-year-old Greenville boy, a rising sixth grader at South Greenville Elementary School, is the new child actor portraying the role of young Ned Teach, or as some call him, Blackbeard Junior, in this summer's production of "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag."

Jarvis Groome, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Groome, was chosen by director Stuart Aronson from several candidates to fill the only child role, and one of the key roles in the drama.

Jarvis, who has been in school productions, says he loves being a part of the Blackbeard play — and naturally, as the only youngster among a large cast of adults, he gets a welcome amount of attention, particularly from the ladies of the cast.

An avid ballplayer, Jarvis plays in Little League on the Lions Club team. He is also managing to find time to continue his job as a carrier-salesman for "The Daily Reflector."

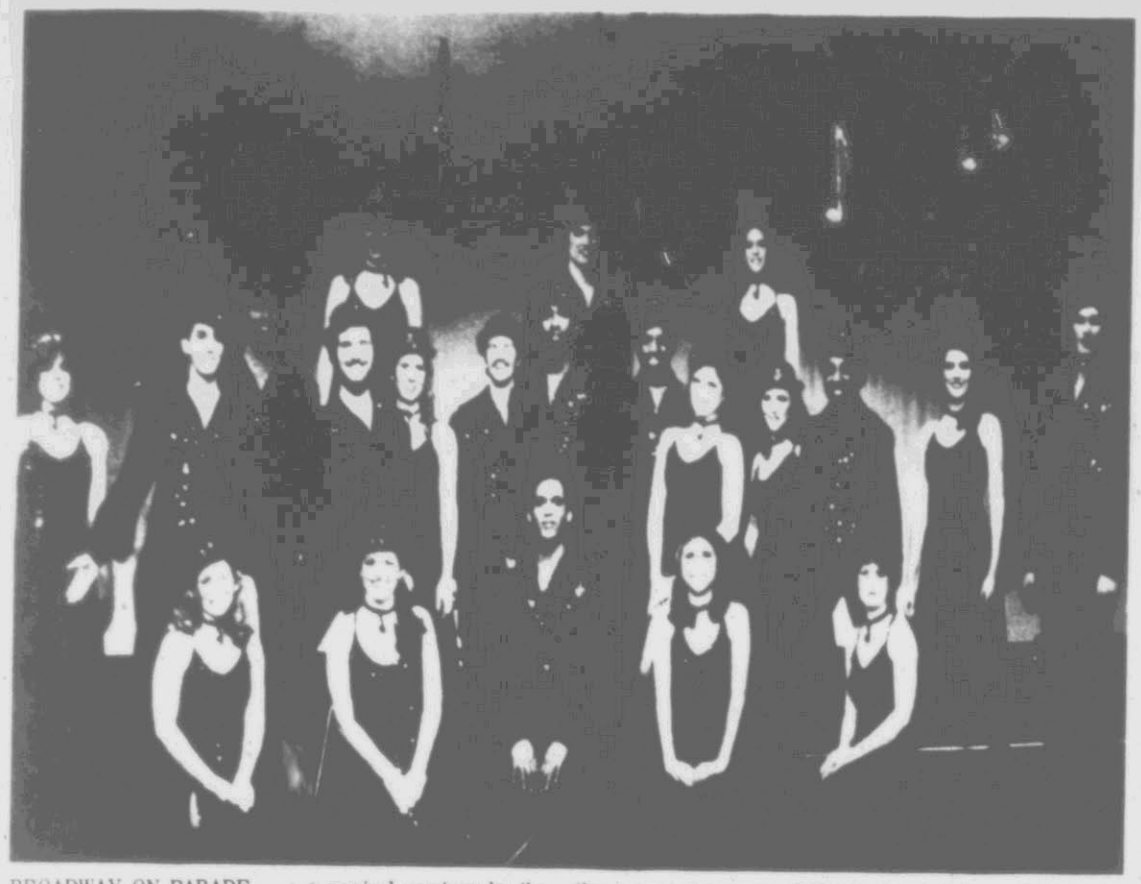
'Broadway On Parade' Is Sunday In The Park Attraction



BROADWAY ON PARADE . . . a musical montage by the Livestock Players, of Greenville, is the featured attraction at today's Sunday in the Park performance beginning at 7 p.m. The City of Greenville event is free of charge, and is held on the grassy slope east of Reade Street between Third and Fourth streets. The public, including children, is invited to attend.

"Broadway on Parade," a musical montage by the Livestock Players, a visual and performing arts group sponsored by the Greensboro Parks and Recreation Department, is the featured attraction coming to Greenville today for the fourth of the Sunday in the Park series.

This year marks the 10th anniversary of the Greensboro entertainment group. During its first decade, it has presented 38 musical comedies, with appearances in the two Carolinas, in Georgia and in Florida, including Disney World. This year's anniversary show, "Broadway on Parade," will be presented with performers costumed in red and black, covered with glittering spangles.

The program opens at 7 p.m. today on the Sunday in the Park site east of Reade Street between 3rd and 4th streets. The summer Sunday programs are funded by the City of Greenville, and the public is invited to attend, without charge.

"Broadway on Parade" is now on tour in North Carolina, and in addition to Greenville the Livestock Players will be performing in Troy, Durham, Chapel Hill, Statesville and other Tar Heel towns. A southeastern tour of the United States is planned during August.

The 20-member cast of singers and singer-dancers are Doug Baker, Amy Bass, Kathy Bell, Mark Connell, Anne Cotton, Debbit Denton, Juan Fernandez, Ronnie Gladney, Brian Gray, Lee von Harrington, Robbie Hassell, Karen Hatfield, Kathy Hopper, Marty Purvis, Ashley Royal, Chris Royal, Carol Skolnik, Eric Torain, Alan Tutterow and Amy Westmoreland.

For their program today, the group will sing and dance songs selected from productions of the past 10 years, and will include well known songs from the scores of such hit Broadway musicals as "Anything Goes," "Oklahoma," "Brigadoon," "No, No, Nanette," "The King and I," "Showboat," "Babes in Arms," and "Bells Are Ringing" among many others.

Carole Lindney is director/choreographer; Brian Gray is music and technical director; Juan Fernandez is script writer; and Susan Mullins is accompanist. Laura Hassell is stage manager, and Juan Fernandez is dance captain.

There is no rain date planned in the event of rain today.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By MARGARET CLARK

Len Deighton's new masterpiece of intrigue, "XPD," rushes from Beverly Hills to London, from Lake Geneva to the Baltic Sea. With mounting suspense, the novel reaches an ingenious and unexpected climax on a movie set of the Fuhrer's study under the shadow of the Nazi eagle. A caper during the closing days of World War II triggers CIA, British Intelligence, and KGB activities during the 1970s. A Nazi treasure (gold, documents, etc.) was moved by American forces, but a few Americans helped themselves to a few truckloads and each became wealthy. When a film about the episode is announced, a series of deals, double-crosses, and assassinations plunge the spy networks into a flurry of activity. (One of the documents may disparage Winston Churchill.) Deighton adroitly guides his large cast of characters through episodes of international double-dealing, treachery, and deceit. The title "XPD" is a code word for "experiment demise," and there are plenty of them here.

First novelist David Wise is a longtime journalist who has covered the CIA. His novel takes the reader inside the Central Intelligence Agency for some exciting and suspenseful doings of skulduggery. "Spectrum" is the code name of a top-secret CIA project involving the smuggling of nuclear weapons to Israel. The CIA also saves some of the nuclear weapons for its own use. In this way, the agency becomes a major nuclear power without the knowledge of the President. Robert Travers, chief of the London division, decides to reveal the project. However, a CIA assassin is assigned to hunt down Travers and kill him before he can talk. Wise writes with such assurance that even as "Spectrum" fulfills the reader's desire for high-tension entertainment, it makes us wonder whether its reveting fiction could be awesomely close to fact.

"The Amateur" by Robert Littell is a superbly construted book that keeps company with Le Carre and Graham Greene. The "amateur" is a CIA cryptologist whose true loves are his fiancee and his efforts to prove who really wrote Shakespeare. The first love is brutally murdered by terrorists who take over the American Consulate in Germany; the second love unravels some of the skeins of cross and double cross. The cryptologist is determined to track down and kill the three terrorists. The CIA will not help him, but when he blackmails his supeiors into training him, and putting him into Czechoslovakia, they send operatives to kill him. Alone now and deep into Communist territory, he faces two higly skilled and deadly opponents — the terrorists and the CIA.

'Brigadoon' In Kinston

KINSTON — "Brigadoon," the famed Lerner and Lowe musical, with songs like "Almost Like Being In Love" and "Come To Me, Bend To Me," will be presented in five performances by the Kinston Summer Theater.

Performances, all beginning at 8 p.m., will be given on Friday, July 3, and on Sunday, July 5, thorugh Wednesday, July 8. (There will be no performance on Saturday, July 4.)

The musical will be presented in the air-conditioned Airport Theater. Tickets are priced at $3 in advance, and $3.50 at the door.

Christian Book Stores Increase

EDMONTON, Canada (AP) — The number of Christian book stores in Edmonton has increased from two to eight in the past eight years.

It's a fast-growing business, says Douwe Postma, owner of a Christian bookstore, which in that period has expanded from a single basement room to a large, heavily stocked store.

Bob Haas To Be At ECU Summer Camp

ECU News Bureau

Saxophonist Bob Haas will be jazz clinician and teacher for East Carolina University's July 12-24 Summer Music Camp session.

Open to all junior-senior high school instrumental students, the camp offers a wide range of musical and recreational activities. Students live on campus, attend daily classes and rehearsals for a concluding camp concert and are placed in on-campus music ensembles according to their levels of skill.

Haas, widely known among central North Carolina school music circles as a guest teacher, has been an Orange High School jazz teacher for 23 years. He has also performed professionally with Tex Beneke and the Glenn Miller Orchestra, Warren Covington and the T. D. Orchestra, and Cannonball Adderley.

He maintains an active performing schedule with his own band and has performed "back up" for Gordon McRae, Johnny Ray and Jimmy Dean. Haas has also performed with the N. C. Symphony as special saxophonist for its "American Portrait" premiere and for its Raleigh concert with Ethel Merman.

Further information about the ECU music camp is available from the School of Music, East Carolina University.

Auditions Set

Winston-Salem's sixth annual Carolina Streetscene auditions will be held on Saturday, July 18, beginning at 10 a.m., at the Hanes Community Center, 610 Coliseum Drive. Musicians, dancers, mimes, acrobats, etc., are encouraged to audition. Each group or individual should prepare two numbers for the audition. No groups will be allowed to audition on the 18th if a pre-arranged time has not been scheduled.

For additional inquiries or audition times, contact The Arts Council between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 722-2585.

Press Agreement

WINSTON-SALEM — The Wake Forest University Press and the University of North Carolina Press have began an arrangement in which the UNC Press will handle many of the publishing details for the Irish Poetry Series which was begun by the Wake Forest Press in 1975.

The Wake Forest Press will continue to select and edit books for publication, and the UNC Press will supervise printing, marketing and advertising of the books.

The arrangement is effective July 1 and will continue until June 30, 1984, when "it will be renewed by mutual assent of both parties to the agreement."

The Wake Forest group first cooperated with the Dolmen Press in Ireland and the Oxford University Press in England in publishing works by the late Austin Clarke, John Montague and Ciaran Carson. This year the Wake Forest Press has published books of poems by Paul Muldoon and Michale Longley.

In 1658, the first American police force, the "rattlewatch," was founded in New Amsterdam, later New York.

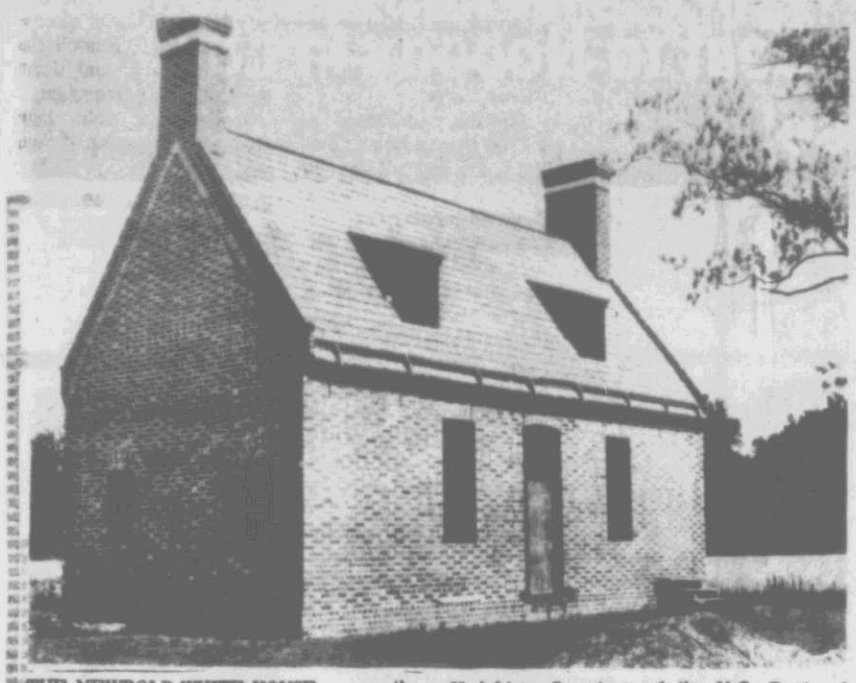
Oldest House In North Carolina Opening To The Public



THE NEWBOLD-WHITE HOUSE . . . on the edge of the town of Hertford, is opening to the public at 11 a.m. on Friday, July 3. The oldest known house in North Carolina, constructed in the 1680s, has been restored. Mrs. Sara Hodgkins, Secretary of the N.C. Dept. of Cultural Resources, will be the dedication speaker. The public is invited to attend. Hertford is about 90 miles from Greenville, on U.S. 17 between Edenton and Elizabeth City.

HERTFORD — The Newbold-White House near Hertford, the oldest house in North Carolina, is opening to the public at 11 a.m. on Friday, July 3.

Dating from the 1680s, the Newbold-White house was built during the proprietary government days of the state, when Charles II was King of England.

Perquimans County has long claimed its rightful place in the settlement of the State, with more than 300 years of known history. The oldest deed recorded in North Carolina is in the Perquimans County CourtHouse, showing that an Indian Chief, Kilcocanen, sold land to a pioneer settler, George Durant, in 1661. The deed refers "to the land already sold to Samuel Pricklove," who could possibly be North Carolina's earliest permanent settler.

The Newbold-White House has undergone many changes in three centuries. It was raised from the ground, rebuilt inside, the stairway moved and additions made on both front and back as lifestyles changed and families increased in size. It now stands restored to its 17th century status.

By today's standard, it's a small house — two rooms downstairs, two upstairs. But in its day it was a mansion. The medieval English architectual pattern of hall and parlor prevailed.

The two bedrooms upstairs were probably overflowing when the Proprietary Assembly met there in 1697, the only surviving meeting place of this colonial government. The speaker, John Parter, had to come all the way from Bathtown, crossing the Albemarle Sound in his sailing vessel.

Sara W. Hodgkins, secretary of the N. C. Department of Cultural Resources, will be speaker at the dedication ceremony at 11 a.m. on July 3. She will be accompanied by 1st District Sen. Melvin R. Daniels.

The public is invited to attend the opening ceremony. The building will be open, without charge, for viewing by visitors until 4:30 p.m. Friday, July 3, from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, July 4, and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Sunday, July 5. Regular hours of operation will begin Tuesday, July 6, with hours to be 10-4:30 daily through Saturdays, and from 1:30 to 4:30 on Sundays. Admission fees will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students of all ages.

New Bern Schedules July 4th Celebration

NEW BERN — Historic New Bern, second oldest town in North Carolina, was the first in the South and the third in the nation — after Philadelphia and Boston — to hold an Independence Day celebration. That gala event, marking the third year of independence from England, was held July 4, 1778, even while war still raged with the mother country.

The N. C. Gazette of New Bern, in a story on July 10, 1788, declared that the celebration "was observed with every mark and demonstration of joy and reverence; triple salutes were fired from the batteries in town, and the gentlemen of the town met, where many toasts suitable to the importance of the day were drunk, and the evening happily concluded."

Today, July 4th celebrations are no longer limited to drinking toasts on the part of "gentlemen of the town." Young and old join in many colorful events to honor our nation's independence.

On Saturday, July 4, 1981, the townspeople of New Bern and their friends in the surrounding area will refresh the 103-year old tradition with a day long series of activities from morning until well in the evening hours.

A street parade, beginning at 10 a.m., will include contingents of decorated bicycles, buggies and bagpipers. Picnic facilities are available at Union Park on the Neuse River for those bringing their own baskets.

Other activities scheduled include pony rides, sack races, log rolling and an egg toss and other family and group participant type activities. The Community Sing and traditional flag- raising ceremony will be at 4 p.m.

Historic Suskins Building is being converted by volunteers from the Craven County Agricultural Extension Service into a Country Store complete with old farm implements, handcrafted items and antique toys from the Tryon Palace collection.

From 1 to 5 p.m. visitors can take a free tour of the Judge Gaston House.

At 8:15 p.m., the Second Marine Aircraft Wing Band will present a concert in Bicentennial Park, and at 9 p.m., a major fireworks display will be held over the park and Trent River. The current production of the Tryon Palace Players, "A Kaleidoscope of Time," is being presented at 7 p.m. at the rear steps of Tryon Palace. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children. All other events are without charge, and the public is invited.

Dance Festival Events

O'Donnell Event

DURHAM — May O'Donnell, an early Martha Graham dancer who made a "comeback" in the '70s with her own new company, will bring her dancers to the American Dance Festival for a performance on June 30.

The May O'Donnell Concert Dance Company will appear at 8 p.m. in Page Auditorium at Duke University. The 73-year-old dancer joined the Martha Graham Dance Company in 1932. She left the company in 1938 but continued making appearances with it until 1952. In 1974 she formed her own company, using a new generation of dancers and reviving her work from earlier years.

The next attraction at the American Dance Festival will be a new work by choreographer/composer Laura Dean which will highlight her company's appearance at the Festival July 2-4.

The work, "Tympani," was commissioned jointly by the American Dance Festival, the Brooklyn Academy of Music and the Walker Art Center in Minneapolis. The work is for six dancers, two pianos and tympani. Performances are scheduled at 8 p.m. each of the three evenings in Page Auditorium.

For ticket information and reservations, call 684-4059.

Emerging Series

DURHAM — Johanna Boyce, Molissa Fenley, Bill T. Jones, Charles Moulton and Marleen Pennison — seen primarily in New York City's downtown theaters and Soho lofts — will be given national exposure when they come to North Carolina for the American Dance Festival's "Emerging Generation" series of dance programs.

The series, dedicated to commissioning and presenting new works by unknown but gifted young choreographers, will take place July 7-12 in Raleigh.

This summer marks the debut of the series in North Carolina, although the program had its inception 12 years ago when the American Dance Festival was headquartered in New London, Conn., before its move to Durham in 1978.

Presentation of this series will also mark the festival's first performance at the Stewart Theater on the N. C. State University campus, Raleigh.

New dances by once unknown choreographers in the "Emerging Generation" series have included people such as Twyla Tharp, Yvonne Rainer, Meredith Monk and James Cunningham. Distinguished alumni from "Emerging" programs have included the Pilobolus Dance Theater, Laura Dean and Trish Brown, all 1974; and Senta Driver and Douglas Dunn, both 1977.

The choreographers who will be presenting works in this year's "Emerging Generation" series were selected from a field of over 50 applicants.

WOOW Classics

Festive, lyrical music that calls up shades of summer with splashing fountains and the compelling switch from music box passages to thunderous runs in a piano concerto are among the varied offerings to be aired from 10 p.m. until midnight tonight by hostess Karen Hause over the Sunday evening program, "WOOW Classics."

Music chosen by Ms. Hause for tonight's program are Handel's "The Water Music Suite;" selections from 16th century music for consort; Richard Strauss' "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme;" and Camille Saint-Saens' "Piano Concerto No. 4."

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Several Arkansas religious leaders have joined with other individuals and groups backing a suit that seeks to overturn a state law requiring public schools which teach evolution to give equal treatment to the thesis of divine creation instantaneously.

OOM PAH PAH — As members of the band from the Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station play their tubas, their colleagues are reflected in the horns of the big instruments.

Sunday In The Park...

Greenville's Sunday In The Park concerts have become a fixture on the area's summer scene. This is the 10th year that the city's Recreation and Parks Department has sponsored the performances, drawing on such familiar names as the Second Marine Aircraft Wing from Cherry Point, shown here, the Green Grass Cloggers, and the Rose High Stage Band. The shows are every Sunday night, weather permitting, at 7 p.m. on the grassy area on Reade Street between Third and Fourth streets.

Modest Home Saves Energy

By Jerry Bishop

An excellent home designed for the energy conscious individual. Passive solar energy cuts the cost of heating and cooling this charming 2 bedroom home.

This split-entry ranch-styled home is designed for a south sloping site and has 1,577 sq. ft. of living space.

The lower level shows a utility room; large family room and plenty of storage space. The family room opens to a green house via sliding glass doors. An attached garage features entry to the lower level and a separate exit to the patio in front. The 2 story green house is large enough to please even the most avid gardener. The main floor shows 2 bedrooms and a large bath. Both bedrooms have extra large closets. A cozy living room and kitchen/dining area completes the floor plan. Sliding glass doors open onto a balcony overlooking the green house from the kitchen/dining area.

An air-lock entry helps with energy conservation. Skylights in the roof permit entry of the sun's rays into the kitchen. The 2x6 exterior walls have R-24 insulation, the ceiling has R-30 insulation. This passive system supplies 53% of the heating requirements in the Lincoln, Nebraska climate.

Homebuying Today Can Be Risky

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Rising prices and double-digit interest rates are forcing Americans to find unconventional and sometimes risky ways to pay for the house of their dreams.

There are new kinds of mortgages with monthly payments that go up and down. New kinds of financing arrangements that bypass the banker. Housing partnerships between buyer and seller.

A report issued by the Department of Housing and Urban Development last week showed that the median value of single-family homes in the United States increased 95 percent from 1973 to 1979. During the same period, the median income of homeowners went up 59 percent.

Inflation, however, has boosted not only the price of a house, but also the price of the money it takes to buy it. The rate for a conventional mortgage today tops 16 percent. The monthly payment on a 30-year, $55,000 mortgage at 16 percent is about $750 for principal and interest alone.

Lenders generally say you shouldn't spend more than 28 percent of your gross income for your mortgage payment, plus taxes and insurance. If you assume that taxes and insurance boost your monthly costs to $850, you'll need an annual income of more than $36,000 to manage that $55,000 mortgage.

Rollin Barnard, president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, says that some people who want to buy may be forced to rent. "We are probably on the verge of a lessening of home ownership," says Barnard.

Many of the league's members are in trouble. They loaned money on long-term mortgages at low rates. Today, in order to attract customers, they are forced to pay higher interest on deposits.

Federal regulators have lifted the limits on what lenders can charge for mortgages, and rates have soared. Unconventional mortgages, with adjustable interest rates that fluctuate with the market, have gained in popularity.

"I think we're going to see the adjustable rate mortgage probably as the predominant mortgage in the future," said David Treadway, chief economist for the Federal National Mortgage Association.

The association — known as Fannie Mae — is a private corporation subject to government regulation, which buys up mortgages from lenders like banks and S&Ls, which then can use the money to make more housing loans. Fannie Mae gave a boost to the adjustable mortgage last week when it announced that it would purchase such loans from lenders.

The specifics of the adjustable rate mortgage, called the ARM, vary according to the type of institution you deal with. In general, however, the interest rate is tied to some standard financial index. When the index goes up, the interest rate goes up. When the index goes down, so does the interest rate. Adjustments are made according to a fixed schedule, agreed on in advance. Some of the ARMs have limits on the amount by which the interest rate can increase or decrease; others do not.

An upward adjustment in the interest rate can be made by increasing the monthly payment, by extending the term of the loan or by boost the amount of the outstanding principal and decreasing the homeowner's equity.

Initial interest rates on adjustable mortgages generally are lower than on conventional mortgages. You pay less now in exchange for the possibility of paying more later on.

Take out a $60,000 mortgage for 30 years at 14 percent. The monthly payment is $710.93. Your total payments, 360 months, equal $255,935.

Assume the index you have chosen goes up one point during the first year you hold the mortgage. Your interest rate is now 15 percent. Your monthly payment is $758.33. If the interest rate never changes again, your total payments — one year at 14 percent and 29 years at 15 percent — equal $272,430.

Suppose, however, that the interest rate goes up another one point during the second year you hold the mortgage. Your interest rate is now 16 percent. Your monthly payment is now $807.26. Your total costs — 14 percent the first year, 15 percent the second year and 16 percent the remaining 28 years — is $288,870.

The potential benefit to consumers is that interest rates COULD go down.

Barnard, who is president of Midland Federal Savings of Denver as well as of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, says he thinks "mortgage rates of 10 percent are entirely feasible."

At 10 percent, the monthly payment on that $60,000, 30-year mortgage would be only $526.80. If you paid five years of your mortgage at 14 percent and the rest at 10 percent, your total costs would be only $200,696.

Q. — We soon will be buying shingles for our roof, which presently has asphalt shingles on it. We have run into a conflicting opinion which has gotten us confused and we need your help. When we went to get estimates on a new roof, the first roofer gave us a price for asphalt shingles. The second one gave us a higher price, but he said the shingles he would put on — fiberglass shingles — were of a higher quality. We then went back to the first roofer, who said that fiberglass shingles also are made of asphalt and that there really was very little difference. What is your advice?

A. — Conventional asphalt shingles are relatively inexpensive and can be counted on to have a life expectancy of 15 to 20, sometimes 25, years. These shingles are made of a base mat of organic material, usually cellulose fibers, saturated with asphalt and surfaced with mineral granules, which protect against the sun's drying rays and give the shingles more color and added protection against fire.

Fiberglass shingles have a base mat of fiberglass, also imbedded in asphalt and also surfaced with mineral granules. They cost more than the conventional asphalt shingles, but the manufacturers, usually the same as those who make the regular asphalt shingles, say they last longer, have the highest fire-resistance rating, have more weathering-grade asphalt and, because of the fiberlgass base mat, will not blister, curl, buckle or not.

Our advice, therefore, is to look at all types of shingles, compare the prices and make a decision on which roofer to select after considering the labor costs. All of this is based on the assumption that you have checked out the roofers' qualifications and find them equally acceptable. Probably the most important thing in making price comparisons is to be certain the roofers are bidding on exactly the same materials. Once the decision has been made, be sure your written agreement spells out in detail the work to be done, the materials to be used, the completion date and penalties, if any, the warranties and guarantees, the removal of waste materials, the final price and the method of payment.

Q. — Call you tell me what single coverage, double coverage and triple coverage mean in respect to roofing?

A. — Coverage is an approximate indication of the amount of weather protection provided by different roofing products. Roll roofings generally are considered single coverage items. Shingles are applied so that they overlap each other to a greater or lesser extent. Those whose coverage is such that nowhere is there any significant roof area with less than two or three thicknesses are termed double coverage or triple coverage, respectively.

Q. — We have an old roof made of wooden shakes. Can asphalt shingles be applied over them?

A. — Generally, no. While asphalt shingles usually can be applied over wooden shingles, most roofers say shakes should be taken off because they do not supply a smooth surface for nailing.

Newly Weds Turn To Tradition

By BARBARA MAYER

Not many brides and grooms are writing their own wedding service these days. Rustic weddings on mountaintops or meadows with both bride and groom sporting the same long hairdo, popular in the 1970s, are also out of favor.

Being outrageous during and after the ceremony is out of fashion, according to a sampling of expert opinion. Instead, tradition is back where weddings are concerned.

It is reflected in the fact that marriages are steadily increasing and are expected to continue to rise through at least 1983. It is also seen in a rise in the number of formal weddings, say caterers and others who serve the bridal market.

Couples are going traditional when it comes to choosing some of their home furnishings, as well. Although not always recognized as such, the bridal market IS a home furnishings market.

Of the estimated $12.5 billion in sales that weddings are said to generate each year, more than half (51.5 percent) goes for home furnishings and household equipment, says Barbara Tober, editor of Bride's Magazine.

According to a home furnishings trade publication, the bridal market accounts for 50 percent of dinnerware sales, 48 percent of sterling sales and 40 percent of glassware sales.

Ms. Tober and others report a growing interest in bridal registries at gift and department stores, after a decline during the 1970s.

These registers enable a couple to record their choices for china, silver flatware and crystal and other household needs and to avoid duplication in gifts.

"Just about every major store in the country has one or is trying to figure out how to implement a bridal registry," said E. T. Catlett, Jr., president of Royal Doulton of America. Some stores that did not have bridal registers have added them, and others that did have them have improved and expanded them, he explained.

The register formerly concentrated mainly on the couple's choice of luxury tableware. Today, items such as sheets and towels, blankets, pots and pans, small electric appliances and other household necessities and luxuries are equally prominent on register lists.

You can sand faster and more easily with a power sander. The old-timers will tell you that you can't sand better. But if you use the right machine for the job, along with the proper abrasive paper, you can get excellent results if you take it easy.

Taking it easy means guiding the sander rather than pushing it, holding it gently rather than applying too much pressure. Tabulate the causes of uneven results and you will find that they usually are a poor choice of abrasive paper and the application of excessive pressure.

Belt sanders and disc sanders are used for heavy-duty sanding. The belt sander is a kind of jack-of-all-jobs, being well adapted for very rough sanding as well as for finishing operations. It must be handled with care, never being held in one place while the belt is moving. When rough wood must be smoothed or paint removed, it is all right to cut across the grain, but this should never be done when final or near-final sanding is required. In that case, the belt must be in line with the grain.

Like the belt sander, the disc sander has to be handled carefully. It is designed for very rough work, but it will leave swirl marks if not used exactly to the manufacturer's recommendations, which means bringing only part of the disc in contact with the work at a slight angle. Some special types of disc fight the tendency of the machine to leave the swirls, but even these kinds require gentle handling. You can buy machines especially made for disc sanding or get disc sanding attachments for your portable electric drill.

Most popular of the so-called finishing sanders are the orbital or in-line types. The orbital sander's flat bottom moves in tiny, almost imperceptible ovals. The in-line's movement is back and forth. Many finishing sanders these days have a dual action, permitting either orbital or in-line sanding with the touch of a button or switch. Generally, it is best to use the orbital part first, since it removes wood a bit faster, then switch to the in-line action. There are also vibrating finishing sanders, less expensive but less effective, yet suitable for small projects.

The selection of the proper machine is only part of the struggle to obtain a good result. Another integral portion of the effort is the choice of the right abrasive paper. The flint and garnet papers you may have used for hand sanding will break down too fast when used in power machines. The aluminum oxides and silicon carbides are among the newer and stronger abrasive papers that work well in power sanders. When you shop for them, you will find they are usually clearly marked as to their suitability for electric machines. If they aren't, ask the dealer, specifying precisely how the abrasive is being used.

Some manufacturers of abrasives continue to use the numbering system for defining their products, but usually have accompanying descriptions, such as very fine, fine, medium, coarse and very coarse.

Movement To Alter Laws Allowing Insanity Pleas Gains Strength

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

Stephen Marcantonio, an unemployed Chicago truck driver, was charged with fraud in a $400,000 swindle last year. He defended himself and pleaded insanity.

At his trial, he doggedly cross-examined a prosecution psychiatrist who testified that he was sane, and then put his own psychiatrist on the stand to testify that he was out of his mind.

Marcantonio argued so logically and convincingly — so sanely, if you will — that he was acquitted, innocent by reason of insanity.

Thus the insanity defense, based on the American legal principle against punishing people not responsible for their crimes, flew once more over the cuckoo's nest.

As it edges from the sublime to the ridiculous, there is a growing movement to change or abolish the insanity defense to make sure that people who commit crimes are locked away some place, either in prisons or mental institutions, to pay for their crimes and protect society.

"The traditional insanity defense is being challenged," says John Parry, an American Bar Association researcher in Washington. "The new emphasis is on the person being guilty of a crime as opposed to just being insane."

The insanity plea remains a comparatively rare and difficult legal defense. But when it is invoked, it's usually in spectacular, gory crimes and so the insanity defense looms large in the public's mind.

It is the defense that will apparently be used by John W. Hinckley Jr., accused of shooting President Reagan. It was the defense used — unsuccessfully — by mass murderers John Wayne Gacy and David Berkowitz, Sirhan Sirhan, Jack Ruby and Arthur Bremer, who shot then-Gov. George Wallace.

Legal scholars, psychiatrists and public officials say the insanity defense is riddled with abuses and inconsistencies — fatal flaws for even the most high-minded and humanitarian legal doctrines.

Critics argue that the plea is used too often, especially in the most serious cases, and that no one, including psychiatrists, can really tell whether a criminal act was the result of insanity.

They also contend that mostly those better off can afford the costlier insanity defense, and that if successful they spend less time in mental institutions than they would in prison. Poorer defendants who are obviously insane are held sane and sent to prison where they get little psychiatric help, the critics say.

And then there are strange outcomes to insanity defense cases, as in these examples fom the late '70s:

A Chicago man, out on probation in the knife wounding of a teen-age girl, was accused of stabbing another teen-age girl to death. Innocent by reason of insanity, he spent less than a year in a mental institution before psychiatrists said his "temporary insanity" was cured and he was released.

Within a few months, he was arrested again in the stabbing death of a 25-year-old woman.

A Philadelphia woman who killed her best friend so she could steal the woman's baby was found innocent by reason of insanity and released after just 17 months in a mental institution. In the same city, another woman was not sent to a mental hospital at all after killing her husband because she thought he was a vampire.

A Pittsfield, Mass., man who killed his mother and sister with a baseball bat spent six years in a mental institution before psychiatrists said he was sane and released him last year. Seventeen days later he slit his throat.

And in Georgia, a man found innocent by reason of insanity after stomping his grandmother to death was recently released from a state mental institution despite the objections of the judge who presided at his 1978 trial.

"I sincerely apologize for the state of the law in this area," Judge George Horkan of Valdosta, Ga., said as the man was released.

Two states, Michigan and Indiana, have already instituted verdicts of "guilty but mentally ill."

In those states, criminals pleading insanity are sent to prison instead of mental institutions. They receive psychiatric help while in prison, but have to serve out regular sentences even if psychiatrists decide they have recovered their sanity.

In addition, Illinois has moved to keep people found innocent by reason of insanity confined for at least as long as it would take prisoners convicted of the same offense to be paroled.

In Congress, meantime, Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., has introduced legislation to abolish the verdict of "innocent by reason of insanity" in federal courts. "It should eliminate the haphazard system which has allowed the criminally insane to walks out of court free," he says.

That "haphazard system" includes 19 definitions of insanity, incompetence, unsound mind, mental defect, mental disease and mental illness in the 50 state and 11 federal jurisdictions. A few state insanity laws offer no definition at all.

Despite the vagaries, or perhaps because of them, the insanity defense works best in the most serious cases. One New York study shows that nearly 60 percent of the defendants acquitted by reason of insanity had been accused of murder or manslaughter.

But it works hardly as often as the public thinks.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 28, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day in which it is advisable that you think deeply of a plan of action whereby you can gain your most cherished desires. You can now solve difficult problems facing you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Your intuitive faculties are working accurately today and you can easily gain your immediate aims. Use gentle tactics.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Meeting with allies and talking about how to make a new enterprise successful is wise now. Strive for harmony at home.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good time to express appreciation to persons who have done favors for you. Study your tasks for the coming week.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take time to engage in recreational activities that will lift your spirit and let you forget worries.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure to study the details of a new plan you have in mind. Attend a social affair that is to your liking later in the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study philosophical matters that appeal to you. Handle communications that can be helpful in business and personal life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan time to go over your financial status today and figure out another way to add to your income. Express happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Come to the right decision concerning an important property matter. Try to increase your circle of friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Keep busy planning activities that could give you more abundance in the future. Plan new week's activities well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know what it is you really desire in our personal life. Happiness with friends is possible in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Attending to affairs in your community can add much to your prestige at this time. Come to the aid of a good friend.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study better ways to advance in your line of endeavor. Be more thoughtful of family members and increase harmony in the home.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be a very determined person, so make sure your progeny is on the right path of expression, and thus avoid going in the wrong direction. There is much perseverance in this chart, so be sure to give a good education.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JUNE 29, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are eager to get compliments for doing excellent work, but don't be disappointed if those about you are too preoccupied with their own activities to give praise that is due.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Not a good day for recreation since there are likely to be problems you have to contend with. Strive for family harmony.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Give more attention to improving conditions in your home. Clear out bugs from a new venture you have started.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use more than average care while in motion and avoid possible accident. The evening can be a very happy time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you are tempted to spend more money than you can afford, think it over carefully. Be logical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good time to clear up those small, accumulated tasks. Spend more time on improving your health and appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle those affairs that have posed problems in the past and get excellent results. Make sensible plans for the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to make allowances for a friend who is not acting right due to mounting pressures. Be poised at a social affair.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure you obey every rule and regulation that applies to you and avoid possible trouble. Think constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't waste time complaining to others about your hard luck. Instead, try to improve by taking the right steps.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't run away from pressing responsibilities to engage in new ones. Starting an argument with a neighbor solves nothing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) An associate may not be as cooperative as usual, but this will only be temporary. Sidestep one who opposes you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Although your work load is heavy, take time to do it accurately for best results. Don't lose your temper today.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she should be encouraged to carry through with own ideas. Don't try to reprimand your progeny too much or the fine incentive could be lost or turned in the wrong directions because of lack of understanding.

"YOU ARE ENCOURAGED TO VOLUNTEER YOUR PARTICIPATION IN CITY GOVERNMENT"

Nicaraguan Lifestyles Are Split

By JOE FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua (AP) — A black, English-speaking oysterman furrows his brow and says, "I could go to jail for talking to you like I am but we have a lot of hope in Ronald Reagan here. If Russia sticks in its fingers, we hope he will cut them off."

An unemployed fisherman listening in sips local rum, spits through histeeth and adds: "I don't like Communists. I don't like Cubans. And I hate Spaniards. They don't know that we can't stand without the Yankee. What do the Russians want from us here?"

"Watch you mouth. You drop in jail," cautions a Creole colleague in the region's patois.

The Sunday night sounds from the wooden, tin-roofed, shanty-style Protestant churches bring to mind a rural village in the American South, not a Central American nation with a guerrilla-led revolutionary government.

Neglected for decades by the central government, unconnected by roads to the populous Pacific side and settled by Englishmen and former slaves, Nicaragua's other coast is, as its residents say, "a country apart."

There is what some consider a budding separatist movement here among the conservative, heavily Protestant population that is dominated by English-speaking blacks and Mosquito Indians.

It's hard to equate Bluefields with unrest. It's a quiet town of shanties on stilts, simmering in the muggy Caribbean heat.

Dugout canoes pull up past idle fishing boats, bringing in loads of produce from the small farms around the rivers and inlets, and the smoke from charcoal cooking fires sends a mixture of spicy aromas swirling through the collection of shanties that make up the waterfront marketplace.

The region has never felt much kinship with the Spanish-speaking Roman Catholic Pacific side of the country. The new government is now paying more attention to the area and the new influence here of the "Spaniards," as Spanish-speaking Nicaraguans are called demeaningly, is resented by many.

Last fall, there were riots against the presence of Cuban advisers in the area and slogans such as "Long live Bluefields without Cubans" still grace a few walls. Residents say scores more have been scrubbed off.

"The question really is, how far does the coast want to be integrated?" says the Rev. Gregory Smutko, a Roman Catholic priest who has spent 20 years on the coast. "Most of the black people of Bluefields probably would rather be left alone. They've been here 300 years and it's their town."

Managua has tried before to incorporate the coast. In the early 1900s it forbade teaching school in English. Since there were no Spanish teachers in the area, the schools closed and stayed that way for 10 years.

"When they did set up schools they taught Spanish. This upset some of the old Creoles very much," says the Rev. Smutko, who also is an anthropologist.

"Some blacks here feel the Sandinista revolution is just the latest thing the 'Spaniards' are trying to shove down their throats," he says.

Travel from Managua to Bluefields is a 200-mile drive and a four-hour boat trip, or by air. The boat, known locally as the Bluefields Express, leaves once or twice a day from the river town of Rama, piled high with fruit, freight, and passengers and provides the only link most Nicaraguans know between the night-and-day halves of their country.

The Spanish claimed the coast but never conquered it. Nicaragua continued the Spanish claim when it gained independence but the area was called the Mosquito Kingdom, with its own king, under a British protectorate until a 1905 treaty recognized it as part of Nicaragua.

The Misurasata Movement, which seeks a greater degree of autonomy in the region, has meant jail for many Indian leaders who say the region is not reaping the benefits from its natural resources, mostly lumber and fish.

The feeling is heavy here that the region has more than its share of problems since the Sandinista National Liberation Front took power in July of 1979 after a bloody civil war, a war that scarcely touched the isolated Atlantic Coast.

"At least 40 percent of the fishing boats here are tied up now," says businessman Francisco Lopez. "There are no spare parts. Fishing maintains us."

Shellfish is a major export of the region and brings in million of dollars in foreign exchange to Nicaragua annually.

Some, not all, of the anti-Cuban feeling has died down here.

In the riots last fall, residents said houses were searched, demonstration leaders were beaten and jailed and special government troops were flown in. The town was virtually sealed off and a news blackout enforced.

"They took dozens to jail, they dragged some out of bed," says a relative of two jailed Misurasata leaders who asked anonymity.

She says the Cubans are still in Bluefields but keep a lower profile now.

"I know the man who teaches basketball. He's a lovely man and he sticks to basketball. As people we have nothing against them, but we don't want their system," she says.

"Nobody around here likes to fight," the woman says. "On Cape Gracias, they moved the Mosquito people off when a hurricane destroyed it and set them up raising rabbits. They fell in love with the rabbits and refused to let them be killed.

"But we're willing to die for our rights."

Bill Put Lawmaker In Public Eye

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the afternoon of June 24, 1976, Henry J. Hyde strolled up to a House microphone, made a motion, and added: "This amendment may stimulate a lot of debate."

It was one of the political understatements of the decade.

Overnight, an obscure Illinois Republican found himself the idol of one mass movement and the bane of another.

Within weeks, preachers were telling their flocks that Hyde's amendment to ban Medicaid abortions was the will of God.

Angry pickets dogged his steps with signs so bitter that Hyde says they "indicated I was the first cousin to Dracula."

The Hyde Amendment is the law of the land now, but with a conservative surge through Congress, its author is taking the lead on two pieces of legislation that chill many of Hyde's colleagues: a new, broader, anti-abortion bill and a toned-down sequel to the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

In the meantime, another Hyde amendment, tacked to a supplemental money bill, was passed by Congress June 5 and further tightened Medicaid restrictions for abortions. It excluded rape and incest as permissible grounds and allowed payments only when the mother's life is endangered.

"Henry Hyde is one of the most courageous men in the Congress," the Moral Majority's Rev. Jerry Falwell says. "He took the point on the pro-life issue."

At 6-foot-3, with swept-back silver-gray hair and a commanding self assurance, Hyde "just looms," an admirer says. "He exudes the idea that he's a somebody."

At first blush, 57-year-old Hyde might seem an unlikely candidate to lead a moral crusade. For one thing, he is a 265-pound, cigar-puffing Chicago politician who started out pushing doorbells in a precinct and spent 25 years on the road from law school to Capitol Hill.

But that's just one side. While his congressional colleagues are swinging their nine irons at Burning Tree, Hyde settles himself in an easy chair, half-frame glasses on his nose, to plow through volumes of history with a yellow marking pen. "He's an intellectual," says his friend, Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill.

Hyde says his views stem, in part, from a World War II voyage on which another Navy officer kept feeding him radical tracts.

ASK OMAR

Q.—All our lives we have been playing that a jump raise of partner's suit is forcing. Now we have a newcomer to our game who says that we are old-fashioned, because a majority of modern players use a jump raise as a limited bid, which can be passed. What exactly is a "limit" raise, and do you suggest that we adopt this method?—J. Meyer, San Francisco, Calif.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—I think that the majority of players still use forcing jump raises. However, I would venture that the majority of experts use limit raises.

Before going any further, let's define a limit raise. Like a forcing raise, it guarantees four-card support for opener's suit. However, it is made with a somewhat weaker hand than you need for a forcing raise, and partner is allowed to pass if he has a minimum opening bid. The limit raise is invitational, and partner should not accept unless he has solid opening bid values.

What is the requirement for a limit raise? Anything from a good nine points to a bad 12 points, including distribution. Obviously, the fewer values you have in the way of high cards, the more distributional your hand should be.

Now that you know what a limit raise is, don't go ahead and graft it onto your present methods to replace the forcing raise. Before you can adopt limit raises with any degree of confidence, you will have to discuss your methods with your partner. Now that you can no longer use a jump raise of partner's suit to show the equivalent of an opening bid with four-card support, how are you going to treat hands that formerly qualified for a jump raise? Are you going to differentiate between forcing raises that contain a singleton and those that are balanced, and if so, how? These are just a few quesitons that your partnership will have to answer.

Lastly, I must disagree with the player who seems to think that limit raises are a new development in bridge. They are almost as old as contract bridge itself, and were once used universally. They gave way in the 1930s to forcing raises, though some systems, in particular the British Acol System, continued to use limit raises. They have come back into fashion since the early 60s, and are gaining popularity.

How useful are they? Limit raises can be very helpful if you alter your system to accommodate for the forcing bids that you have lost. But if you are not prepared to go to the trouble of working out methods that will enable you to adopt limit raises, you will be better off if you continue to play "old-fashioned" forcing raises.

As we have often stressed in this column, it is not so much the methods you use as how well you apply those methods that determines how good your results will be! And if you play in the casual, cut-around rubber bridge games, as most of us do, forcing jump raises serve as well as any other method.

Send any questions for this column to: Charles Goren and Omar Sharif, care of this newspaper. Each week a prize of a copy of the new "Goren's Bridge Complete," a $9.95 value, will be awarded for the question judged the best received.

Street Water Adds To Cleanup Chore

By ROBERT LIPSCOMB

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cleaning up the nation's rivers became a major goal of the environmental movement in the late 1960s. But making the rivers as clean as they were 50 years ago may be an impossible dream.

Take a look at the street the next time it rains. Chances are you'll see water, streaked with yellows and reds and blues, flowing along the curb.

Most street runoff is untreated. That water, polluted with oil, dirt, grease and metals such as lead, will most likely end up in the nearest creek and eventually in the nearest river.

Experts, who call such runoff "nonpoint pollution," say it is perhaps the single most important obstacle to clean water.

The Potomac River, once one of the nation's most polluted waterways, is typical.

A common joke in the Washington area several years ago was someone who fell in the Potomac would need more shots than if traveling to a tropical country filled with exotic diseases.

The chief problem then seemed to be untreated sewage. That was what the government attacked.

President Lyndon Johnson started the cleanup in earnest in 1965, signing the Water Pollution Control Act and declaring the river "would be safe for swimming by 1975."

Johnson's prediction was wrong, but since he signed the act more than $1 billion has been spent in the Washington area to improve old sewage treatment plants and build new ones, and the water is much improved.

Bacteria counts are lower, and although some are still present that could cause disease, plenty of people swim in the river during an annual raft race with no apparent ill effects.

The city government joined a local fishermen's group in sponsoring a three-day festival celebrating a reviving fish population. Oxygen levels are up. Huge floating algae patches, once common in the summer, are disappearing.

One Environmental Protection Agency official claims some of the effluent being dumped back in the Potomac watershed is almost pure enough to drink.

But now that sewage seems under control, the multitude of agencies and local governments that deal with the river are just beginning to grapple with the runoff problem.

Analysts are not even sure how much pollution comes from nonpoint sources, except that it is a hefty percentage — up to 65 percent in rural areas where farmers use fertilizers and pesticides.

Cameron Wiggin, a water analyst for the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments, an advisory group, says "we are still trying to understand the dimensions of the ... runoff problem."

Wiggin said the problem could be attacked through subdivision ordinances requiring narrower streets, tighter clustering of homes, holding ponds to contain runoff and encouraging farmers to control erosion.

The basic idea is to give the ground a chance to soak up the pollutants before they reach the streams.

In developed areas Wiggin says use of vacuum-type street sweepers, rather than broom-types, would suck up the particles that are otherwise washed into the watershed by rain.

"Sweeping is usually done for aesthetics, and is not oriented towards getting up the really fine particles... There are some vacuum sweepers, but not a general program to orient their operators towards water quality," he said.

Donor Seeker's Life Stays Busy

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Don Denny's job at the University of Pittsburgh is locating suitable kidneys, hearts and livers to take from the dead for surgical transplanting into the living.

He is the procurement coordinator at Pitt, the only center in the country that transplants all three vital organs. His work often means a hurried ride at any hour of the day or night by chartered plane, helicopter or special van to the site of a potential donor.

But before surgeons can perform their medical miracles, Denny must get permission from a victim's family that organs can be donated.

The delicate task places him in the middle of an emotional pendulum, swinging from the death of one person to new life for another, the grief of one family to the hope of the recipient, the anguish of seeing one life end to the gratification of another renewed.

"I think I'm very fortunate. This is the kind of job that has benefits you can see — real human beings who are turned around in terms of the quality of their life or even saved from death," the 46-year-old Denny says.

"It's the resurrection in human terms. It's the phoenix rising from the ashes. It's rebirth in a very spiritual, beautiful sense. One life ends and another begins. Out of unnecessarily painful but unavoidable death, life for other people can emerge. I think it's just so poetic."

As organ transplants become more common, the demand for donors has increased. For example, more than 5,000 people are on the nationwide waiting list for kidneys, according to the computerized United Network for Organ Sharing in Richmond, Va.

Only a small fraction of donors fill out medical cards willing their kidneys, heart or liver for use in transplants. So Denny's job is to encourage doctors and nurses at 135 hospitals within a 150-mile radius of Pittsburgh to alert him when a potential case develops.

Most donors suffer a fatal brain injury, usually from car, motorcycle or swimming accidents or other trauma, such as a stroke.

Their brain activity has irreversibly ceased. But machines such as a ventilator keep pumping blood and oxygen to their organs.

Seconds are critical. Without machines to keep blood and oxygen flowing, the heart becomes unusable for transplant in about a minute, the liver in five minutes and the kidneys in 30 minutes.

If the organs are mechanically sustained and seem transplantable, Denny makes sure that the family accepts and understands their loved one is dead and the brain has stopped functioning.

Only then does he summon all his sensitivity, compassion and courage to raise the possibility of donating organs so another may live.

Denny does not have a medical background. He has a masters degree in social work and became involved in organ procurement eight years ago.

"We're convinced that we're not asking the family for something. We're convinced we're giving them something. We're giving them a chance to redeem some positive meaning from an otherwise stupid, senseless, meaningless death," says the low-key, soft-spoken Denny.

"This is the sort of thing that families almost always grab hold of. Here's a choice to make that they can control. And secondly, it's a positive thing to know that other people live," he adds.

"I try to give them as much choice as I can. I present it to them with the idea that everything has been taken out of your hands up to this point. But now, you're going to have a choice to make.

"My job is to present the opportunity to you to make the decision. It's either right or it's wrong. They don't have to struggle with it. I can't manipulate, I can't influence people's decisions. The answer is already there in your heart. In eight years, I've only had one family change their mind," Denny says.

Denny believes the choice is important for a family that has had no say at all in the tragic events or in the hospital treatment. But he says some medical people try to shield families from being preyed upon.

"Ironically, the big problem that we have is in helping doctors and nurses understand the importance of offering this to the family," he says.

"One of the biggest problems I have is dealing with doctors who say, 'I don't want to intrude on this family's grief, I don't want to cause any pain by asking them to consider donation.' It's an honest feeling on the part of the doctor, but very misguided.

"Oftentimes, we're viewed with a great deal of suspicion. There's some kind of resentment, that all we care about are the organs, that we don't care about people. And we just have to show them that's not the case at all."

Admitting the work is frazzling at times, Denny says he takes solace in the knowledge that the people who receive new organs are literally given new life.

Museums Step Up Anti-Theft Effort

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When a thief steals a jewel-encrusted gold ceremonial sword from the Smithsonian Institution, more than metal and precious stones vanishes. What's gone is a piece of history.

Because of the rising price of precious metals and stones, and the relative lack of security at museums around the country, the artifact storehouses have increasingly become the target for thieves.

Museums are taking steps to protect themselves, but find it difficult to beef up security and still remain true to their first purpose, serving the public.

The International Foundation for Art Research, which publishes a list of stolen museum items, estimates that millions of dollars worth of art objects are stolen each year in the U.S. Exact values are difficult to estimate, but a 1978 figure put the losses at $12 million annually. Worldwide, the incidents have been rising at 25 percent per year.

Bonnie Burnham, executive director of the foundation, said that last year her group listed 1,649 stolen objects. Only 297 were recovered. She said thefts seemed to be evenly divided between museums and private collections, but that more valuable items tend to be found in museums.

"A lot of the thefts this year seem to be focused on gold and silver," she said. "And many museums found along the way that they were not prepared."

Last year hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of gold was stolen from the travelling Gray Collection when it was at the Paine Art Center in Oshkosh, Wis. One historical institute in Fort Worth, Texas, was virtually emptied in 1977 by burglars who used trucks to haul away paintings, rugs and furniture.

And someone swiped a set of George Washington's ivory and gold false teeth from the Smithsonian, leaving officials baffled and dismayed.

Recently, the FBI arrested a Smithsonian Institution guard and two other Washington men and charged them in the theft of two gold swords, two gold commemorative medals and a jewel-encrusted snuff box. One of the swords was described by museum officials as a 38-inch ivory-handled, jeweled instrument given by the British government to a U.S. naval officer in August, 1856.

"We recovered this one sword," said FBI spokesman Larry Knisley. "But the ivory handle and all the jewels that go with it are off the sword.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR EXEMPTION JUNE 28, 1981

Greenville Utilities Commission
City of Greenville, North Carolina

Take notice that the Greenville Utilities Commission, City of Greenville, North Carolina, on December 29, 1980, filed an application for exemption from certain requirements of Part 290 of the Commission's regulations concerning collection and reporting of cost of service information under section 133 of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act, Order 48, (44 FR 58687, October 11, 1979). Exemption is sought from the requirement to file on or before June 30, 1982, and biennally thereafter, information on the costs of providing electric service as specified in subparts A, B, C, D, and E of Part 290 of the Commission's regulations issued pursuant to Section 133 of PURPA.

The Greenville Utilities Commission is a relatively small publicly owned utility that purchases all of its electric power requirements from its wholesale supplier at rates based on average costs. The Greenville Utilities Commission operates a locally regulated utility and is, therefore, not regulated by any state agency having authority over electric utilities. The Greenville Utilities Commission does not maintain its books and records according to the FERC Uniform System of Accounts. Since the GUC's electric service tariffs, rate structures, and rate levels are influenced primarily by purchased power costs and local competition, the Greenville Utilities Commission has not heretofore undertaken the studies, and, therefore, does not maintain the historical records that are required for full compliance with the reporting requirements. To require the Greenville Utilities Commission to file the report on June 30, 1982, or thereafter, in full compliance with the regulations, would place a severe unproductive cost burden on both the applicant's electric ratepayers and the citizens of the community. By virtue of these facts the Greenville Utilities Commission believes that the general purpose of Title I of PURPA and the specific purposes of Section 133 of PURPA are not likely to be achieved by requiring the Greenville Utilities Commission to develop and report by June 30, 1982 and, thereafter, the information specified by Part 290 of FERC rules.

Alternatively, if the Greenville Utilities Commission is not granted a full exemption from these regulations, the GUC requests a partial exemption based on alternate compliance as described in this application. In view of the significant cost involved with the proposed program of alternate compliance, and due to the time requirements for completing certain of the activities, the GUC requests an early disposition of this application. The Greenville Utilities Commission further requests that, to this end, it be permitted to withhold initiation of these activities until such times as the GUC and the FERC Staff have arrived at a definition of the scope of the reporting requirements that will be ultimately required, as developed in accordance with those minimum requirements determined by FERC to be necessary to accomplish the purposes of Section 133, and as related to the particular operating circumstances of the Greenville Utilities Commission's electric system.

Any person desiring to present written views, arguments, or other comments on the application for exemption must file such information with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, 825 North Capitol Street, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20426, on or before 45 days following the date this notice appears. Within that 45 day period such person must also serve a copy of such comments on the Greenville Utilities Commission, City of Greenville, North Carolina, P.O. Box 1847, Greenville, North Carolina 27834.

The time is rapidly approaching when utility bills may surpass your mortgage payment.

At Continental Homes, we build your home with many energy saving innovations. One example is a special optional insulation package developed by Continental's engineers, in conjunction with Owens-Corning. It's proved to offer a much higher degree of energy efficiency.

Because we build your home inside our huge plants, bad weather, labor availability and material shortages are not a problem. So we also save you considerably in construction cost and time.

At Continental Homes, we build your home to save energy. And a lot more.

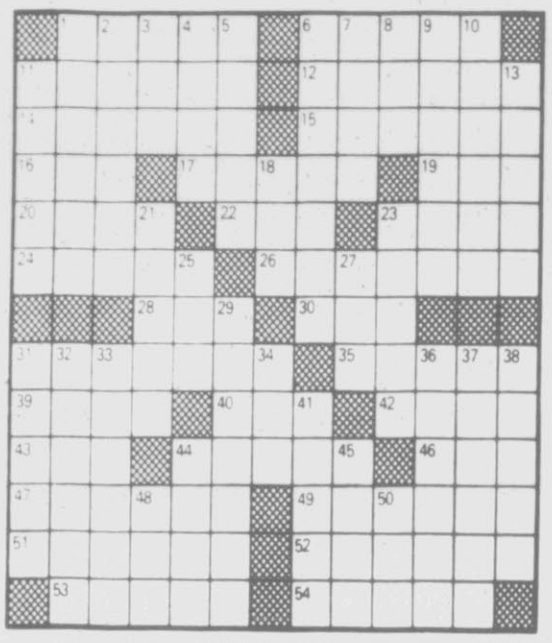
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



CRYPTOQUIP 6-27

HJLPMJD FEPJLPFGMB THYM MYME CVDGPYMN CVE BTCED FEPNM

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — SEASON OF NEW LIFE WILL AGITATE OLD, DROOPING SPIRITS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: L equals C

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Some Say Diamond Should Be Moved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Smithsonian Institution has received hundreds — perhaps thousands — of letters over the past 20 years, suggesting that its acquisition of the Hope Diamond marked the start of the nation's ills.

The Hope, one of the world's best known stones, is a magnificent 45½-carat blue diamond with a dramatic history of bringing bad luck to its owners.

Jeweler Harry Winston acquired the diamond in 1949 and gave it to the Smithsonian a year later. It is a deep, clear blue, slightly oblong, surrounded by round and square white diamonds on a diamond-studded chain. It has an honored niche in the Gem Collection, displayed under lights against a background of black velvet.

The Hope is still the most popular single object in the display. Its history (it is believed to have been cut from a larger stone that was stolen and never recovered) and its legend (of bring nothing but bad luck to those who own it) may make it one of the most interesting pieces. But it is by no means the most spectacular in case after case of the world's finest gems.

Assistant Curator John White Jr. is sorry to see the developing attention being paid to diamonds as investments.

Helen Shaver To Star In New Series

Mention a drama career to a brown-eyed Canadian beauty named Helen Shaver, and she'll probably think of a rollercoaster ride! The reason for this is the fact that her career has closely resembled the favorite ride of every park.

Her initial encounter with the rough curves came with her first attempt to break into American show business. "It was in 1973, after years of study and hard work," she recalls, "and I was brought down from Canada to star with the late David Janssen in a TV movie. But just before filming was to start, I was told that a mix-up had kept me from getting my work permit, and I was dropped from the show.

"One day I was a budding star — and a few days later I was back in Canada working as a cocktail waitress," she laughs.

An 'up' period followed that 'zoom' downward and Helen landed a string of parts in other films and TV shows, both in Canada as well as the U.S. Then came a starring role in "United States," a series that premiered with much 'hoop-la' a couple of years ago. Critics nationwide praised the show, but viewers quickly turned to other channels. As a result, it was cancelled after only a few episodes had aired.

Now Helen's taking the episodic plunge again and is starring in the title role of "Jessica Novak," slated for a fall premiere on CBS. Jessica is a hard-working television reporter whose successful handling of human interest stories endears her to her fellow workers. Others in the cast are David Spielberg, Andrew Rubin, Eric Kilpatrick, Nina Wilcox and Michael D. Roberts.

"I kept saying 'no,no' to every pilot script that came along," says Helen. "But when something is put before me that touches an intangible part of me and makes me pay attention, then I take another long, hard look. The next thing is to wait for the 'go-ahead' signal. That's what happened with 'Jessica Novak' and I'm extremely excited over this role."

Helen admits that the writers' strike currently plaguing the television medium is playing havoc with the development of the series. But she is using this interim to research her role. "I've spent untold hours following women reporters around, and the knowledge I've gained from them will be a tremendous help," she says.

HELEN SHAVER stars in the title role of "Jessica Novak," an hour-long dramatic series to be broadcast Thursdays (10-11 p.m.) this fall on CBS-TV.

3 5 12 ABC Movie Special: "Roots: The Next Generations" In 1932 Simon Haley finally lands his first teaching job at a black college in Normal, Alabama. Not content to simply teach and ignore the inequities and disastrous mistakes that are crippling the tenant farmers in the area, Simon urges the farmers to take advantage of President Roosevelt's new subsidy plan — an idea which arouses the anger of the white land owners. Back in Henning, the young Alex (now 12) listens to his grandmother, his Aunt Liz and his Cousin Georgia telling stories of the African who was their ancestor and turns to his grandmother for comfort when his mother dies. Voight In 'Odessa File'

A secret organization of Nazi war criminals, which has spent years preparing for World War III, plots to launch death-dealing warheads in "The Odessa File," an espionage thriller starring Jon Voight as a reporter obsessed with the destruction of this new Reich before it rises.

The drama, which also features Maximilian Schell, Maria Schell, Mary Tamm and Derek Jacobi, is returning as The ABC Sunday Night Movie, June 28 (9 to 11:40 p.m.).

The suicide of an elderly concentration camp survivor in Hamburg, Germany, places the old man's diary in the hands of freelance journalist Peter Miller (Voight), and reading the diary changes his life unalterably.

In the diary, the old man has documented the atrocities committed by a concentration camp commandant — SS Captain Eduard Roschmann — and proves that 'The Butcher of Riga' is still alive. Moved by the story and enflamed to action, Miller sets out relentlessly to find and capture Roschmann. However, the reporter is soon in great jeopardy himself as he comes into conflict with the deadly Odessa.

This secret society of former Nazi officers, living prosperously behind new identities and preparing for a bloody return to power, is also the target of an Israeli intelligence team, and the Israelis convince Miller to join them and infiltrate the Odessa.

Miller's masquerade is successful and he is accepted as a surviving storm trooper by the Nazi leaders.

JON VOIGHT is cast as the free-lance German journalist who infiltrates a secret society of ex-Nazis to bring "The Butcher of Riga" to justice in "The Odessa File," an international espionage thriller airing Sunday, June 28 (9-11:40 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

The Rook Look at Garment Care

Good Closet Care Means Longer Wear!

DICKY ROOK

A Cleaner World and the International Fabricare Institute, world-wide trade association for people concerned with textile maintenance, offer the following tips on closet care to help keep your clothes looking their best!

1. Promptly hang garments on a hanger that's shaped for it. Shaped wooden or plastic hangers are for jackets and coats, clamp hangers are for skirts, pant-hangers are for trousers.
2. Don't hang sweaters or knits; lay them flat in a drawer.
3. Don't put away a dirty garment. Have it cleaned first! Stained garments attract moths.
4. Remove dust and lint with a brush or a lint roller.
5. Leave space between hanging garments to avoid creasing and to allow air to circulate.
6. Close zippers. Button buttons.
7. Don't keep out-of-season clothes in your closet. Let your professional cleaner store them for you.
8. Give those clothes you never wear to charity.
9. Tie racks, belt hangers, garment bags, lint rollers, clothes brushes, shaped hangers, and hooks all help keep your closets neat, and your clothes looking great!

To help with your cleaning budget A Cleaner World will give you 10% off your cleaning bill when you present this ad.

Michelle Will Tell

Q: Who played Bonnie Butler in "Gone With the Wind," and what has happened to her since? A 'GWTW' FAN IN HICKORY, N.C.

A: Cammie King was chosen to play the part of the beautiful, ill-fated child. After a later career as an airline stewardess, she married and is now retired from both acting and flying.

Q: Is actor/game show host Peter Marshall related to Catherine Marshall, who wrote the book titled "A Man Called Peter"? M. HYATT, ICARD, N.C.

A: No. The television personality was born Pierre La Cock in Huntington, W. VA., and changed his name for the stage. In fact, he translated his first name, and for his last adopted the one used by his sister, actress Joanne Marshall, who subsequently became known as Joanne Dru.

Q: My question is about the father of Genie Francis, one of the stars of "General Hospital" — I understand he is an actor. If this is true, what is his name? J. LACKEY, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: The talented actress is alive and well, but her 'AITF' character, Edith Bunker, 'passed away' at the beginning of the second season of "Archie Bunker's Place."

Q: Please settle a disagreement — I say it was George Jones' voice I heard singing his songs in the recent TV movie, "Stand By Your Man." But my dad says the actor who portrayed Jones did the vocals. Who's right? J. MEDLIN, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: Your dad is! The voice belonged to Tim McIntire, a multi-talented performer who played George Jones in the film. In addition to being a fine actor, Tim's also an extremely accomplished composer/instrumentalist/singer.

Q: Who portrays King Arthur and Lancelot in the movie titled "Excalibur"? 'M' IN ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C.

(FOR ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT TV SHOWS AND PERSONALITIES, WRITE TO 'MICHELE,' GREENVILLE DAILY REFLECTOR, P.O. BOX 1451, HOPEWELL, VA. 23860.)

KEVIN DOBSON stars as John Hurley, who suffers a crippling coronary, in "Transplant," a two-hour dramatic special airing Tuesday, June 30 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

'Brokers' To Air

Also featured are Harold Gould, Ed Nelson, Dean Stockwell, Donna Wilkes, Philip Sterling, Lloyd Haynes and Joy Garrett.

Carter's character is Kate Carlin, a social worker who, through her concern for a teen-age client (Wilkes), uncovers an illegal baby-selling ring and reports the matter to the police.

Carter, first known to viewers as Wonder Woman, starred in the TV film "The Last Song" and several variety specials. She also performs in concert in Europe and Australia. She will host the Lynda Carter Maybelline Tennis Classic, to be held in October in Deer Creek, Fla.

Series On 'Hold'

"Bosom Buddies," a comedy series that debuted on ABC-TV last fall, has been picked up by the network as a backup program.

Although six segments have been ordered, no date has been set for the resumption of production because of the writers' strike.

Beware Of These 'Hazards'

What would the average person do if a crocodile shot full speed toward him? There was one man who was in that exact situation and, instead of turning tail, swam straight at the beast.

That man, Alan Root, a wildlife cinematographer, is, admittedly, not your average person. "I swam at it and it chickened out," said Root, who is perhaps the most renowned and the most scarred wildlife filmmaker in the business.

Alan and his wife and camera partner, Joan, are seen dealing with some other less fearful creatures, in "Lights! Action! Africa! The Fascinating Adventures of Wildlife Photographers Alan & Joan Root" Ed Asner narrates the special, Wednesday, July 1 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

The couple, married 20 years, turn the cameras on themselves, with the aid of other camera operators, to show some of the close calls, complications and dangers they face daily in filming the secret and mysterious worlds of East Africa.

Besides the timid crocodile, Alan Root has survived airplane crack-ups, buffalo stampedes, and malaria. He's been attacked by everything from tsetse flies to hippos.

Talk about occupational hazards. Most people try to avoid them or, at least, if there is no choice in the matter, be wary of them. Not the self-employed Roots; they meet peril straight on.

In fact, one might even say they welcome danger. "I am a stimulus addict," explains Alan Root, who was once bitten in the rear by a leopard, almost died from a bite by a poisonous puff adder snake (but "only" lost a finger as a result) and was attacked and seriously wounded by the hippopotamus.

Alan says he relishes the situations where danger and fear are finely balanced. "A project is not interesting unless the odds are against me. I get a kick from realizing that in a moment of danger I have been able to concentrate and do the right thing at the right time."

World's A Gym

Joseph Roman (Sgt. Brill on "Quincy") is a physical fitness expert who was the youngest instructor ever hired for such work when he was 15 years old by the Philadelphia YMCA program.

"Two years later, I owned my own gymnasium and combined teaching physical fitness with studying acting at the Dramatic Workshop," said Roman.

Stevens In Film

Andrew Stevens has been signed to star with Morgan Fairchild in "The Seduction," slated to begin production this week in Los Angeles.

Roberston Stars In Strange Love Story

A woman who was kidnapped and killed 16 years earlier seems to reappear — in the person of a beautiful girl — to the husband who has never stopped loving her in "Obsession." This strange and haunting love story comes to TV as The ABC Friday Night Movie, July 3 (9 to 11 p.m.).

Cliff Robertson and Genevieve Bujold star in the Brian De Palma film, which was hailed as "exquisite entertainment" by Time magazine.

For 16 years Michael Courtland (Robertson) has blamed himself for the death of his wife, Elizabeth (Bujold), and their daughter, Amy. When Elizabeth and Amy were kidnapped, Michael followed the counsel of the police and paid the ransom in fake money. The angry kidnappers then used their hostages as shields in a getaway attempt, and Michael saw his wife and daughter blown up, along with the kidnappers, in a car wreck.

In the years since, Michael has devoted his life — and much of his fortune — to their memory, but the memory seems to have suddenly become reality when he meets the young and beautiful Sandra Portinari (also Genevieve Bujold) in Florence — she looks exactly like his wife did 20 years earlier.

The difference in their ages means nothing to Michael, who sees a second chance at happiness, a chance to put his painful memories to rest. He convinces Sandra to marry him and they return to his New Orleans home. However, just before the wedding, history seems to be repeating itself in a terrifying pattern as Sandra disappears and Michael receives duplicate of the original ransom note.

The nightmare grows darker as Michael sells his business for money to pay the ransom — only to discover that he is once again delivering fake bills to the kidnappers.

Thinking Of George

Nancy McKeon, a regular on "The Facts of Life," has a special way of relaxing following a busy day at school and on the set.

"I really unwind when I'm jogging with my dog," said McKeon. "Her name is George. She and I run almost a mile without having to stop to catch our breath."

Official Mascot

The Sarajevo Olympic Organizing Committee has unveiled the official mascot of the 1984 Winter Olympics — a wolf. The wolf, dubbed Vucko (pronounced Vuch-ko) which means small wolf, is the first Olympic mascot voted for by the people of any Olympic host country. Both a live wolf and a caricature will be used for all promotion of the Sarajevo Olympics.

Over 40 percent of the Yugoslavian population voted for the wolf in a country-wide election. The wolf in Yugoslavian fables represents courage and strength and symbolizes winter.

Leading Rookie

Dodger pitching sensation Fernando Valenzuela is the leading candidate to capture the Rookie of the Year honors. Carl Hubbell, ex-Giant screwballer, stated that Valenzuela's scroogie is every bit as effective as his was.

Announcers Are Key Ingredient

It's that time of the year tennis fans. The greatest players in the tennis world will invade Wimbledon Stadium for the grandaddy of all tennis tournaments.

NBC-TV will be providing highlights of early round matches beginning at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, June 28. They will also be providing coverage throughout the week in small segments.

Providing the coverage for NBC-TV will be Dick Enberg, the host. Bud Collins, Billie Jean King will be providing expert commentary along with Donald Dell.

All four commentators have a tremendous tennis background and have provided viewers with excellent coverage through the years. Ms. King, the holder of more Wimbledon titles than any other woman, is perfectly suited for this particular event. Not only has she won here, but she has an insight into the rigors of the tournament that few others possess.

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — According to the terms stated in her divorce settlement, LONI ANDERSON will have to pay ROSS BICKELL alimony — $20,000 per year for the next ten years!

KRISTIN and RICK NELSON did their best to make another reconciliation work, but — in spite of their combined efforts — she's started divorce proceedings.

Producers of "DALLAS" have decided to keep the late Jim Davis' character, Jock Ewing, alive off-camera via telegrams and letters containing instructions being sent from the patriarch's European base.

Meanwhile, the signing of HOWARD KEEL as a "regular" on "DALLAS" could mean that there will be a new dynasty introduced this coming season. Don't be surprised if this new clan gives the Ewings a run for their money!

GREG HARRISON, who's filming a movie, "FOR LADIES ONLY," in New York City while "TRAPPER JOHN, M.D." is on hiatus, is squiring PATTI DAVIS all around the Big Apple.

A near-tragic motorcycle accident in Bermuda has left JAMES CAAN hospitalized with severe back and knee injuries. In fact, the pain is so severe that the actor hasn't been able to sleep for more than two hours at a time.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask" Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

He pursues the paper cha$e.

FOR DONALD T. REGAN, Secretary of the Treasury

● On Dec. 23, 1913, the Federal Reserve System was established. The original purpose, as expressed by its founders, was to give the country an elastic currency, to provide facilities for discounting commercial paper and to improve the supervision of banking. Before its establishment, the supply of bank credit and money was inelastic. This resulted in an irregular flow of credit and money and contributed to unstable economic development. The present inflationary condition cannot be resolved by changing the backing of money. Rather, the Administration is moving to combat inflation through curtailed Government spending.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Jane Fonda has said it's obscene for movie stars on her level to get one or two or three million dollars for a film. If that is so, why does she accept those high fees? —B.N., Wilmington, Del.

● Because that's the way Hollywood is structured, and that's the way the star system is set up. Turning down a fortune would not be rational. Jane recently said: "That's why I take the money. But there's a big difference in what I do with it. Right now, I give my money away to all kinds of causes and movements that will turn the economy around." Jane, who insists she learned to use her money for things that have long-term meaning, adds: "I want every dollar I can get because I don't want the producers to have it. But I couldn't care less about being rich." So, maybe it's not all that obscene — just rate it PG.

Making out like a lady Robin Hood.

FOR JANE PISANO, executive director, Los Angeles' Bicentennial celebrations

In your research about the "founding" of Los Angeles, did you come up with any facts that were surprising or startling? —W.M., Reno, Nev.

● Yes. Los Angeles was founded by a group of 44 people, comprising 11 families, and 22 of the 44 were children, which means half of the city's founders were kids. The group was multiracial and descended from blacks, Europeans and Indians — a real mixed bag.

FOR DICK CLARK, TV/movie producer and host of American Bandstand

Do you agree that today's dances are just for the young in feet and young in heart? —G.S., Fort Smith, Ark.

● Yes. I feel sorry for older people who try to look as though they're still 18 on the dance floor. They make unattractive spectacles of themselves. Older folk should stick to the dances that are more sedate. Too often I see older guys, complete with large paunches, prancing around with young girls. It's quite sad.

FOR DR. FERDIE PACHECO, boxing analyst

What determines the enormously high fees paid to boxers? —T.N., Muskogee, Okla.

● The public. A promoter can only pay a high fee if the attraction warrants it. As in show business, Barbra Streisand can demand a million dollars a picture, but a lesser star can get only a fraction of that. The high fees are only a recent development caused by the drawing power of Muhammad Ali, and they are only obtainable through closed-circuit TV, not network television.

FOR IRMA SHORELL, skin-care authority

On my last plane flight, the stewardess said that since she took up flying her skin had changed for the worse. What's the cause? —G.B., Corpus Christi, Texas

● Since I started traveling thousands of miles by air every year, I noticed a change in my own skin, and I discussed it with flight attendants. The cause is the dryness of pressurized air in the cabins of the planes. The answer and cure are moisturizing. If you fly, carry a tube of moisturizer with you and apply as often as needed.

FOR HYLA MARROW, stuntwoman

What stunt comes hardest for you? And is there any stunt you simply would not attempt? —J.O., Billings, Mont.

● One of the most difficult I ever performed was a 118-foot fall down a steep incline, with a 250-pound man "strangling" me all the way down. This was done with the aid of a neck harness. The roll had to be very quick and my arms and legs were flying in all directions. One thing I'd never attempt is anything to do with fire, since I'm terribly afraid of getting burned.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Is Roger Moore disliked by his colleagues? —H.M.B., Elkhart, Ind.

● "Disliked" is not the right word. What his colleagues find frustrating is that Moore, 53, doesn't look his age, and most of them do. There are stories of Moore (who will be appearing in Cannonball Run and For Your Eyes Only) and his pals living it up into the early hours and, next morning, Roger showing no signs of wear and tear, while they seem to have put on 10 years.

PRO AND CON

Should the Federal Government Continue to Subsidize Our National Railway System?

PRO Ross Capon, executive director, National Association of Railroad Passengers

Yes. We must look forward! Airline use is dropping. Auto travel is static. Amtrak ridership is up — in spite of fare hikes which insure that riders pay more of the costs. Passengers love today's reliable trains, which are safer and more energy-efficient than planes or cars. Amtrak is playing an increasingly vital role, not only in establishing more convenient connections with shorter bus runs but also as the only transportation both attractive for longer trips and relatively immune to fuel-price increases.

CON George E. Snyder, president, National Taxpayers Union

No. The National Taxpayers Union believes passengers who continue to travel by train, primarily business and vacation travelers, should pay the full cost of this service, just as those who travel by airplane or bus do. The taxpayer directly subsidizes two-thirds of all Amtrak tickets. On some routes this is as much as 192 tax dollars per ticket. For 10 years, billions of our dollars have been poured into Amtrak. It is time to stop this subsidy and devote our limited dollars to programs benefiting all Americans.

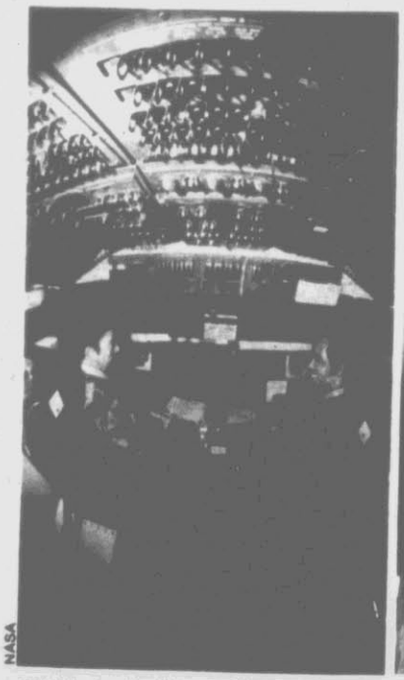
COVER STORY

In Search of Heroes

Where have you gone, Joe DiMaggio...and Charles Lindbergh, and Eleanor Roosevelt? In our troubled times, do we really want and need heroes? Or does our intense scrutiny make them as disposable as soft-drink containers?



NASA

UPI

Of Charles Lindbergh (right) and the Columbia astronauts, author Sheed writes, "Any one of a number of people could have done what they did, but we scrutinized them anyway for signs of genius, of transcendence."

By Wilfrid Sheed

It had to happen. When the hostages returned from Iran, we smothered them with kisses and, almost with the same breath, accused ourselves of taking them too seriously. "What did they do anyway? Anyone can sit around an embassy." Etc. When John Lennon died, we mourned and demanded statues all over the place — and almost at once some of us began to say, "He wasn't so hot, he was a junkie, a bad influence." And what-not. We are an excitable people.

But is that all we are? Do Americans just crave an excuse, any excuse, to get excited? Or do we really want heroes? If we do want them, we seem to have worked out a dandy way not to get them. Because the first requisite of a hero is that we not know too much about him — the ideal hero being one of those early Christian saints who may not have existed at all. Failing that, Davy Crockett will do.

But, as the old French saying goes, "no man is a hero to his valet" and we are all valets now. Through an elaborate keyhole known as the media, we get to watch our man sitting, perhaps, with his humdrum family (Achilles didn't have a family) or we listen to his second-hand opinions, until the fact that he just climbed Everest seems an odd coincidence. Nobody can be a hero all day long: It is a part one plays from time to time. But we have dedicated ourselves at excruciating expense to a microscopic study of the dull stretches in-between — the unheroic hours. Half the American soul loves a king and the other half wants to flatten him out.

So we crown the creatures and go howling after new ones: astronauts, hockey players — our interests are as broad as they're shallow. The astronauts, like the hostages, were actually that growing species, the accidental hero, chosen as if by lot or a spin of the wheel. Any one of a number of people could have done what they did (though a larger number couldn't, of course), but we scrutinized them anyway for signs of genius, of transcendence. We wanted something more than their achievement, something commensurate with our own excitement: a charisma not normally found in embassy hands or even test pilots. You'd do as well sticking pins in the phone book. Within a year, the names of the hostages will be a trivia question.

If they're lucky. Because prolonged exposure to our goofy attentions can cause terrible limelight burns. Perhaps the first and still most instructive victim of the modern press, turned on full force, was Charles Lindbergh. This happy-go-lucky stunt pilot was transformed in the 1920's by one trans-Atlantic flight into a morbidly private, sealed-off man who expected to find reporters under his bed — for the very good reason that you might find them there in those days, if they weren't hanging from drainpipes, washing your windows or pretending to read your gas meter. It was the heyday of the scoop, and the scoop sometimes came right out of the victim's innards.

"Lucky" Lindbergh's press problems did not end there, of course. His overblown fame made him a natural target. And when his son was kidnapped, the press came galumphing back, more obnoxious than ever, and Lindy began to think of them as a symbol of democracy itself, standing proxy for the greedy eyes and grabbing paws of the mob. He found things just as bad in England and France, but in Nazi Germany, Lindbergh's hosts had the wit to turn down the heat, and he became overnight just sufficiently pro-German to be the single-most effective opponent of our entry into World War II. And all because he beat a couple of other guys into flying the Atlantic first.

An extreme example no doubt, but such drastic changes of personality are not uncommon under the spotlight. Take Ernest Hemingway, whose recently published letters reveal a similar mutation from regular, if difficult, guy to paranoid in what seems like a matter of months. Hemingway was not the first world-famous author to suffer: Dickens, Mark Twain and others had battled the crowds and survived. Which suggests either that the Victorian psyche was sturdier and could take fame or leave it alone or that public attention has grown harsher since then, with a larger proportion of malice in it. For every idolator of

The Amazing Lost Money — Secret Of The U.S. Government

Does Uncle Sam Owe You Money You Don't Even Know About?

DATELINE WASHINGTON — There is a very good chance you have some money coming from the U.S. Government. There is an even better chance you don't know why the government owes you this money or exactly how much you will get.

The amount may surprise you. It could easily be a lot more than you would ever imagine. There is an honest chance you may have enough coming to retire on for the rest of your life.

Actually, the U.S. Government gives away so much money every year it can't even keep track of it all. Much of this money gets lost in the shuffle. For example, last year alone, 135 million dollars went unclaimed because the people who had that money coming simply didn't know how to get it. And this is what happened in just one U.S. Payment Program. Just imagine how much money goes unclaimed in all the different programs.

The amount is astronomical!

Some of this money probably belongs to you. It doesn't matter if you are young or old, male or female, employed or unemployed, black or white, rich or poor, married or single or whatever. To make a long story short, the chances are very good you have tax-free cash coming from the government that is just sitting there waiting for you.

But don't worry. Before you finish reading this page you'll know exactly how to find out for sure. In the meantime, please keep an open mind. At least don't disqualify yourself before you know the facts.

The first thing you need to know is that there are at least 133 perfectly legal ways to get a check out of Uncle Sam. Some of these U.S. Payment Programs are common knowledge but many of them are almost unknown to the average American. Not one person in 1000 knows about all of them. Here are some examples:

- Did you or any member of your family earn less than $8,000.00 last year? If so, you may have a surprise $1,000.00 check just waiting for you.
- Are you retired? If you know how, you may be able to get $587.00 extra every month over and above your Social Security check. (Nearly 2 million people are doing this right now but most other people don't know about it.)
- Are you on Social Security? With the right information, you may be able to jack up your payments to $848.80 every month just by filling out a simple form.
- Are you under 65? Even if you are, you may be able to start getting Social Security right away without any more waiting.
- Would you like to move? If you know how, you may be able to get a $22,000 government loan to buy a new house.
- Do you want to stay put? There's a good chance you can get a $3,500 check to fix up the place you have now.
- Would you like to get a $25,000 start-your-own-business loan with 15 years to pay it back? It is quite possible if you know how.
- Are you a renter? You can get 25% to 75% of your rent paid by Uncle Sam if you qualify and if you know how to apply.
- Do you want to write a play or paint a picture or make a film? Maybe you can get a check for $11,000 to help you out.
- Do you want to go back to school? If so, there is a good chance the government will send you $352 every month to help you do just that.

It goes on and on. The above examples are just for openers. There are many, many other ways (all legal) to get a check out of the government. Some of these checks are for as little as $35.00 per month. But some of them are for as much as $15,000.00 or $50,000.00. The average, however, is about $220.00 per family per month.

This is not welfare or charity. The government owes you this money. This is what you rightfully have coming to you for being a good citizen and paying your taxes. If you do not get your share of this money, you are only cheating yourself.

It's rather easy to get this money but you must know what you are doing. You need to know exactly what to do and how to do it.

Most people are in the dark about all this. That's why so much of the money goes unclaimed. In fact, most people don't have any idea how to get everything they have coming from even the very well known payment programs.

Take Social Security for instance: did you know the odds are 2 to 1 in your favor you have a check coming from Social Security right now — even though you may be years and years away from age 65?

Here's why. Statistics show that two out of three people overpay their Social Security taxes. This means that all these people can get a refund immediately if they only know how to apply.

There's more. Do you know how students between the ages of 18 and 22 can get Social Security cash benefits? Do you know how to make your whole family eligible for Social Security — even your youngest children? Do you know how to cash in on Social Security even if you've never paid a penny into it? Do you know how to get the special Social Security benefits that are only for veterans? Do you know how to increase the amount of your payment if you are already on Social Security? As you've already read, with the right information you may be able to jack up your payments to $848.80 every month just by filling out a simple form!

It goes on and on. It would be easy to use up this entire page just on Social Security. But let's move on. There are many other payment programs you should know about.

Are you a veteran? Did you know you might be able to get as much as $264.00 every single month for "bad luck" that happened to you after you left the service? Don't laugh. One and a half million men are already cashing in on this little-known bonus.

You know, information about tax-free government cash is especially important if you are retired or planning to retire. As you know, prices keep going up and up. There seems to be no end in sight.

This is especially bad if you are on a fixed income. However, if you learn how to get all this bonus cash from the government it can help a lot. In some cases where medical expenses are concerned, it could make the difference between life and death. At the very least, some of this extra government cash could make your retirement a lot more pleasant.

And please don't forget – if you have the right information and you are already retired, you may be able to get $587.00 extra every month over and above your Social Security check just like 2 million other people are doing right now!

All this is just the tip of the iceberg. The U.S. Government handles so much money it probably misplaces or loses more cash every year than most other countries are worth altogether. This is easy to understand when you realize just how much is involved. Here are a few more facts for your consideration:

- In just one U.S. Payment Program 31 million Americans get a check every month.
- In another, 19 million more get monthly money.
- In yet another, 11 million get money in the mail just like clockwork.

There are many more examples just like these. Please remember — there are at least 133 legal ways to get a check from the government and you deserve to know about every one of them.

Guess who pays for all this? The answer, of course, is you. You have paid for every one of these programs with your taxes all these years. You deserve this money coming back to you so don't be bashful about going after what is rightfully yours.

As you know, inflation is now a serious problem. There is a real danger of higher and higher unemployment. Some people believe we are headed for a depression. Who knows? But one thing is sure: the U.S. Government is never going to stop spending money and part of this money belongs to you. Please don't cheat yourself. It is really quite simple to get your fair share. You'll learn how in a moment. But above all, don't make the mistake of guessing you do not qualify for some of this money. No matter who or what you are (as long as you are a U.S. citizen) you can probably get a surprise amount of government cash immediately.

Unfortunately, the average citizen has been kept in the dark about all this. Up till now there was simply no practical way he could find out about all these little-known cash benefits.

Now there is a way. Now there is a brand new book that tells all about 133 perfectly legal ways to get a check out of Uncle Sam!

It is simple and easy to read. It tells you exactly how to get these checks that you have coming. It gives you all the necessary addresses and government telephone numbers you will need. It tells you how to qualify, who to contact and what to say.

Will this book help you? Will it help you make sure that you are one of the taxpayers that does not get cheated? Here is how you can find out without any risk at all.

Go ahead and order the book by mail. Start reading as soon as you get it. In the first 5 minutes if you don't find out a way to get a surprise government check for at least $500, you can send the book back and the publisher will return your payment to you quietly and without question!

If you are extra skeptical, you can postdate your check or money order by 30 days. If you do this, the publisher promises and guarantees not to deposit it for at least that amount of time. Then, if you decide to return the book, the publisher will send back your uncashed check or money order with no questions asked.

To order, write your name and address and the words "Government Cash" on a piece of paper and send it with $9.95 to:

Dept. US 728 P.O. Box 1004
343 Millburn Avenue
Millburn New Jersey 07041

Your book will be sent promptly by return mail. If you have any questions, you can call (201) 744-3777. Checks and money orders should be made payable to The Millburn Book Corp. (It is not a good idea to mail cash.)

Hemingway there was at least one other guy who wanted to cut him down to size. And he sensed it: the levelling, bulldozing mania of 20th-century man.

And then there's the camera, a cold-hearted little thing that snaps at the celebrity all day long as if he were the scene of a crime. Even at the height of his fame, Charles Dickens could prowl the streets of London unrecognized. Norman Mailer might have more trouble in New York today. And writers are still rather small fish in the glass bowl. Compare, instead, David Garrick, the great 18th-century actor, with almost any TV or movie star of the moment. Garrick's name was as famous as theirs will ever be, but he could still live a completely private life without being a surly brute about it.

Woody Allen's movie Stardust Memories may be the best rendering ever of life inside the bowl. From there, the fans look grotesque, as if literally distorted by the glass. There is no way of telling whose intentions are friendly. That smiling boy, for instance, may have signed your death warrant in blood. Predictably, Allen was accused of self-pity — you wanted fame, Kid, so enjoy it. But whether or not Allen wanted fame, he couldn't have wanted this.

Still this is what you get — you can't regulate fame with a thermostat, and people are still lining up around the globe for a shot at it. A movie star may seem like a poor substitute for a real hero, but he in fact has done more than anything to knock real heroes out of the box. What could anyone do in actual life to match what John Wayne did in a single movie? When they made a film about a genuine war hero, Audie Murphy, it seemed pale stuff next to anything of Errol Flynn's. Where Audie would, say, capture a sniper's nest, Errol would capture 12. Audie's whole war would have been barely a morning's work for the wheezing, out-of-shape Flynn. The poverty of real life lost out some time ago to the opulence of Special Effects, and the imagination doesn't always make fine distinctions: John Wayne was a hero to millions of people, inspiring and guiding them, so help me, as if the men he played were real.

This isn't altogether bad. There are lots of heroes we don't want in real life if we can help it: war heroes, fastest guns in the West, etc. I, for one, was quite happy to have John Wayne confined to the screen. Even the real heroes we ought to have, spiritual leaders like Mother Teresa or politicians with integrity, may function better with a little less fuss than they deserve. It's hard for even a saint to concentrate while being interviewed for television.

Which may be why those early church saints were not only relatively unknown, except for their legends, but also, without exception, dead. So they seldom let you down. There's much to be said for dead heroes, and I would like to close with an old-fashioned, maybe sentimental suggestion about this. Nowadays, no sooner does a celebrity bite the dust than we ransack his belongings, his whole past, for signs of disgrace. O.K. we are not children, we don't need our dead prettied up for display. A fine book like Joe Klein's, Woody Guthrie: A Life gives it to us straight, without demolishing Woody on the way. But many biographies, especially of show-biz people, seem hell-bent on mopping up after the gossip writers and flattening the subject out once and for all. A reader may be excused for thinking there has never been a great man or woman, let alone a good one. Even the living person you most admire is probably sitting on some loathsome vice or psychosis or fraudulent success story which will ooze out eventually. This, I take it, is the one serious piece of bad news on the hero front. Who would want to be one, if this is what lies in wait beyond the grave? Or to put it another way: Who would want the kind of immortality Joan Crawford has?

The only advantage such fame has over the prettier varieties is that, nowadays, absolutely everybody will believe it. FW

FAMILY REPORT

News from the Home Front

By Norman Lobsenz

The Quality of Marriage

Surveys show that, for most people, their overall feeling of happiness depends more than anything else on having a good marriage. Now two new studies, both reported in the Journal of Marriage and the Family, shed some light on factors that influence the quality of marital satisfaction.

Family life expert Thomas Holman, of the University of Wisconsin, finds that community involvement by one or both spouses — long thought to be a plus factor in a marriage — may not always be a positive influence. "As community involvement begins to take increasing amounts of time," Holman says, "there is a concurrent drop in marital satisfaction." Marital quality is highest when partners are involved in community activities at an intermediate level of time and energy; quality is lowest when either too much or too little time is given to civic affairs.

The second study, by social researchers James Medling and Michael McCarrey, looked at the question of whether spouses who hold similar sets of values are likely to have a happier marriage. They found that similarity of values has a positive effect on couples who have been married more than 25 years.

However, couples in the early and middle stages of marriage, the researchers say, put a greater emphasis on physical attraction, their roles as wage-earners and parents and the practical aspects of establishing a home. Older couples may depend on a shared value system to meet each other's emotional needs because they are retired and their children are gone.

The Importance Of Hugging

Foiled in his efforts to understand the workings of the female mind, Sigmund Freud once asked, "What does a woman want?" The answer, according to psychiatrist Dr. Marc Hollender of Vanderbilt University, is a nonsexual hug.

Being held in a warm embrace that is not a preliminary move toward love-making is enormously important to women, Hollender says. It connotes security, comfort and love. "When I am being held I feel there is nothing in the world that can go wrong," one woman told the psychiatrist. Others said that being hugged alleviates their feelings of depression and, to a lesser extent, of anger.

Men seldom volunteer a nonsexual hug, so wives often have to ask for it directly. Some seek to encourage a hug by crying or acting seductively.

And while some men admit they like to be hugged occasionally, most prefer to give a hug. Says Hollender: "This is in keeping with our cultural pattern that makes it less acceptable for men to be held or cuddled. There is the fear it would be regarded as evidence of unmanliness." FW

EXERCISE

By Jane Katz, Ph.D.

Trudi Smith

Using the "S-Shaped Pull" (illustrated right) will increase the efficiency of your swimming.

If you're tired of pounding the pavement and nursing sore knees, maybe it's time you took off your jogging clothes, put on a swimsuit and joined the new wave.

A Nielsen survey has shown that swimming is the most popular sport in the United States. Over 102 million Americans enjoy swimming and 26 million dive in regularly for exercise and enjoyment.

How has swimming entered the mainstream? By being fun, beneficial and accessible.

Swimming is an excellent form of exercise. A person who swims three times a week for 30 minutes can develop superb aerobic (cardiovascular) fitness and dramatically increase his strength and flexibility. What's more, these benefits are derived without placing undue strain on the joints or subjecting the body to the traumatic pounding and wrenching of running. Swimming develops the body symmetrically and proportionately and is a terrific way to burn off calories.

Swimming is also suitable for all ages. Even if family members are at different levels of ability, swimming programs can easily be coordinated so that a family can take the plunge together. Even grandparents can join in.

Another plus is that it's easy and inexpensive to swim year round. During the summer, you can swim in lakes, rivers, outdoor pools and the ocean, while in winter you can use indoor pools at local schools and recreation centers. Many local "Y's" have pools, as well as swimming lessons and workout programs for persons at every level of proficiency.

The cost of swimming equipment is nominal. All you need are a swimming suit (I recommend swimwear made of nylon or Lycra), goggles (to enable you to see while swimming) and a bathing cap.

Before you can begin a swimming program, you have to learn to swim properly. If you don't know how to swim or would like to improve your technique, you can take lessons at a local "Y," school or private club. The following tips should also come in handy:

Swim with your face in the water. Holding your face out of the water dramatically increases the effort necessary to swim, reduces body streamlining and strains the shoulders, neck and upper back.

To breathe as you swim, turn your face to one side to lift your nose and mouth out of the water (for crawl stroke) or lift your face forward (for breaststroke and butterfly stroke), inhale vigorously through both your nose and mouth and exhale through your nose and mouth as you return your face to the water. Exhalation should be continuous between inhalations. Never hold your breath. Your breathing should be coordinated with your arm strokes so that you breathe every stroke cycle. As your aerobic capacity increases, you may breathe every two (or more) stroke cycles.

Hold that kick! Most swimmers exhaust themselves by kicking too hard. A lot of this is wasted effort, as the propulsion for most swimming strokes comes mainly from the arms.

The "S-Shaped Pull." To increase the efficiency of your swimming, try using the "S-Shaped Pull" (the "pull" is the arm motion of a stroke) illustrated above. To practice, stand in chest-deep water and extend both arms in front of you below the surface. Then create a question mark with your right hand by pulling first outward, then inward toward your hip and then pressing backward. To recover (bring your arm back), bend your elbow to the sky, lift your arm out of the water and touch your thumbs together. Repeat the process with your left hand, creating a reverse question mark. When using the "S-Shaped Pull" in swimming, remember to alternate arms (as one arm pulls, the other recovers).

Once you feel comfortable with swimming, you can begin your exercise program.

The most important aspect of any regimen is safety. Before you begin your program, tell your doctor about it and follow his advice!

The most important aspect of any regimen is safety. Before you begin your program, tell your doctor about it and follow his advice!

Once your doctor has given you the go-ahead, figure out your maximum heart rate (beats per minute). This is arrived at by subtracting your age from 220. Then determine your target heart rate by multiplying your maximum heart rate by 70 percent. The goal of your exercise program is to reach a stage of aerobic efficiency where you can sustain your target heart rate for 20 minutes. But start out slowly and increase your fitness gradually. While exercising, check your heart rate periodically by counting your pulse for six seconds and adding a zero.

Every workout should consist of a warm-up, a main swim and a cool-down.

A warm-up is necessary to prepare your body for the main swim. It will loosen your muscles and accelerate your heart rate. Your warm-up should consist of stretching and light exercises (in or out of the water) and perhaps some easy swimming. Your warm-up should constitute approximately 20 percent of your workout but should never take less than five minutes.

The main swim should constitute 20 minutes of a half-hour workout. In the main swim you push your body just a little harder than is comfortable. This builds your strength.

Most swimming programs are based on interval training, a method in which swims are repeated on set time intervals. For instance, your main swim may include a set of two consecutive, 50-yard freestyle swims, each one beginning every two minutes. Suppose you complete the first 50 yards in one minute. You will then rest one minute before commencing the next 50-yard swim. Use the pool's clock or a waterproof watch to time your swims and check your pulse.

A cool-down, consisting of slow relaxed laps and light exercises, is necessary after your main swim to help your body gradually return to its resting state. It should take three to five minutes or about 10 percent of a 30-minute workout.

And remember, whenever you swim, be careful and courteous and use common sense. FW

Doctors Prove You Can Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieve Pain And Itch Too.

Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.

Doctors have found a most effective medication that actually helps shrink painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. In many cases, the first applications give prompt relief for hours from such pain and burning itching.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients showed this to be true in many cases. The medication the doctors used was Preparation H®—the same Preparation H you can get without a prescription. Ointment and suppositories. Use only as directed.

Dick Francis: From Jockey To Master Sleuth-Sayer

By Mary Long

Dick Francis' heroes are fearless, and invariably they have the chance to prove it. They may get strung up by the wrists in a tack room. Or pummeled with a chair leg. Or pitchforked to a stable wall. Whatever the punishment, they are prepared to persevere to the end.

In this they are like the author himself. Dick Francis' heroes suffer, he says, because he's been through pain and knows all about challenge, and a writer should write about what he knows.

Over 20 years ago, Dick Francis, now 60, retired from a career as one of England's top jockeys. He quickly managed to extend his winning streak, however, by turning his intimate knowledge of racing into the stuff of successful adventure novels. Since 1962, each new Francis thriller — there are 20 in all — has sold more copies than the one before it. They have been praised by the critics and translated into 18 languages.

His latest contender Reflex (Putnam), plunges its readers into the dark side of the racing world, an area of shifting ethical boundaries where a great deal of money can be made very quickly — if you pay the price. Francis' novels — all of which have to do with racing — are filled with murder and deception, crooked bookies, vicious thugs, dangerous women and blue-blooded English gentlemen who do not behave at all like gentlemen.

"The racing world is not quite so crooked as I portray it," admits the soft-spoken, youthful-looking Francis. "But there is always something going on."

Francis credits the continued popularity of his books to their high level of authenticity, which he says extends to all their aspects. "For example," he points out, "I have been accused of putting too much violence into my books. But I don't think I subject any of my heroes to injuries the likes of which I — or my colleagues — haven't suffered ourselves in racing. In one of my books [Knockdown], for instance, the hero's arm is pulled out by hanging onto a car — well, that happened to me, just not at quite the same angle."

Francis has also had his collarbone broken 12 times,

Mary Francis

his nose broken five times, and has sustained 10 concussions and a smattering of broken and cracked ribs. And in one accident, the tendons in his right hand were permanently severed.

"You see, a top steeplechase jockey rides about 300 or 400 races a year," he explains, "and of these you will get about one fall per 10 rides. You've got to be a young man to do it — your bones have got to bend instead of break."

Dick Francis wanted to ride practically from the time he could walk. The son of a horse dealer, his earliest happy memories include hunting on horseback. He left school at 15 and pressed his parents constantly to allow him to go into racing. "My father had been a jockey and had got on well, but hadn't hit any of the highlights," Francis explains. "And he knew how difficult it is for the ordinary jockey. But you see, I had no intention of being ordinary."

After six years in the Royal Air Force during World War II, Francis began racing competitively in 1945. He rode over 350 winners in his career and was the Queen Mother's First Jockey for four seasons.

He was riding one of her horses, Devon Loch, in the 1956 Grand National when he suffered what is still considered perhaps the greatest upset in racing history. Devon Loch was leading the field by several lengths, when suddenly the roar of the partisan crowd began rolling down from the stands. "Thirty yards from the winning post, the noise reached a crescendo," recalls Francis, shifting his body forward as if he were riding the horse again. "Devon Loch pricked up his ears, and for no apparent reason, his legs collapsed beneath him."

Shortly afterward both horse and rider retired, and Francis was invited to write his autobiography. He was uncertain about his ability to do so, but his wife, Mary, encouraged him to have a go at it. He wrote the book, and soon after it appeared the London Daily Express hired him as its racing columnist. In 1962 he first tried his hand at a novel.

Francis says he depends greatly on Mary, to whom he's been married for 33 years, to "put right" his spelling and grammar, to advise him "endlessly" on his plots and to share in the exhaustive research which they carry out all over the world.

For a novel involving the illegal air-freighting of horses, Mary Francis took flying lessons, got her pilot's license, and eventually the Francis family started its own air charter business.

Francis and his wife live most of the year in Blewbury, England, where he keeps horses and races whenever possible. Although he says he misses the immediate acclaim that a good jockey can get in the winner's circle, he is mindful of the longer-lasting satisfaction that writing a fine book can bring.

Francis sums up his comparison of racing and writing this way: "I rode every horse to win, and I want the whole world to read what I've written because I've put everything I've got behind it." FW

Do you think you're smoking the lowest tar cigarette? Think again.

Why do you think your brand is lowest? Because its ads say so?

But other brands' ads are saying the same thing—that they're the lowest in tar.

Well, numbers don't lie. So we've put the tar levels of all these claiming-to-be-lowest brands into the chart below.

That way you can see just how much tar your brand has. And something else—there's one brand lower in tar than any of the other "lowest" tars.

Now is the lowest 100s Box. Now is the lowest 100s Soft Pack. And there's no cigarette in any size that's lower in tar than Now.

Do you want to know for sure that you're smoking the Ultra Lowest Tar™ brand?

Well, there's only one—Now.

Now, for generations, your family can relive the spectacle of The Greatest Show on Earth

 Presenting an heirloom-quality porcelain collector's plate.

 Edition size strictly limited to a 10-day firing period.

"For us, the circus is our life—it is part of us and with us always," Irvin Feld, President of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, has said. "But for the millions who throng each year to marvel at the circus, it is a very special moment too quickly passed. You experience it and it's gone. That is why I was so pleased when The Hamilton Collection asked us to sponsor The Greatest Show on Earth® plate collection. Beginning with the first loveable plate, "Clowns—The Heart of the Circus," this superb collection captures the magic of the circus for all times. Each scene depicted looks so real, it seems to transport you back under the Big Top, where the spectacle of the circus comes alive over and over again."

As a landmark first edition, "Clowns" will be admired and enjoyed by your friends and family alike, destined to be handed down as a cherished heirloom from generation to generation. You will display it with pride, not only for the continuing enjoyment it will bring, but for the historic value as well . . . as the first porcelain plate ever sponsored by Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

Created Out of Love for the Big Top

The original painting for this colorful plate was created by the renowned American artist, Franklin Moody, who has been called "the sweet prince of painters," by Mr. Lawrence Paine, Art Critic for The New York Times. A circus aficionado, Mr. Moody poured his own love of the circus into this landmark work, capturing all the gaiety and excitement of the circus.

A Strictly Limited Edition is Assured

The coveted limited-edition status is assured for "Clowns—The Heart of the Circus," since Porcelaine Ariel has specified a limit of 10 days for the firing period. When this edition closes, no further plates will ever be created. As an owner of "Clowns," you will be guaranteed the right to acquire any or all subsequent seven plates in The Greatest Show on Earth plate collection, at issue price, although there is never any obligation to do so.

Because of the high quality and historic significance of this issue, demand for "Clowns" will probably be very heavy, and over-subscription is a distinct possibility. Thus, it is imperative that you order your plate as early as possible. So please fill out the coupon and mail it today!

FOOD

Easy Make-Ahead Frozen Desserts

By Marilyn Hansen

BRIDAL SHOWER SURPRISE

- 2¼ cups graham cracker crumbs
- ½ cup sugar
- ¼ cup melted margarine
- ½ gallon vanilla or strawberry ice cream
- ½ cup pineapple juice
- ¼ cup cornstarch
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 cups crushed frozen strawberries

1. Combine graham cracker crumbs, sugar and melted margarine. Mix well and press firmly into 13 × 9½ × 2-inch pan. Bake 15 minutes at 350°F.; chill thoroughly.
2. Soften ice cream and spread over crust; place in freezer until glaze is ready.
3. Cook pineapple juice, cornstarch and sugar until thick, stirring constantly; add strawberries and cool. Spread over ice cream and freeze until ready to use. Excellent dessert to make ahead.

WATERMELON SHERBET

- 4 cups diced, seeded watermelon
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1½ cups light corn syrup
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

1. In electric blender, crush watermelon until smooth.
2. In small saucepan, soften gelatin in ½ cup of the crushed watermelon. Place over low heat, stirring until gelatin dissolves.
3. Stir together corn syrup, lemon juice and remaining crushed watermelon. Add gelatin mixture and mix well. Pour into freezing tray. Freeze until almost firm, 1 to 2 hours.
4. Turn mixture into chilled bowl. Beat with wooden spoon until smooth. Return to tray and freeze until firm, about 3 hours.

DOUBLE STRAWBERRY-ALMOND ICE CREAM

- 1 pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen strawberries in syrup, thawed
- 3 egg yolks*
- 1 can (14 ozs.) sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
- 1 to 2 cups mashed fresh strawberries
- ¼ cup chopped toasted almonds
- ½ teaspoon almond extract
- *2 cups (1 pint) heavy cream, whipped

1. In blender container, blend frozen strawberries until smooth; set aside.
2. In large bowl, beat egg yolks; stir in all ingredients except heavy cream. Mix well. Fold in whipped cream.
3. Pour mixture into aluminum foil-lined 9 × 5-inch loaf pan or other 2-quart container; cover. Freeze 6 hours or until firm.
4. Scoop ice cream from pan or turn out of pan, peel off foil and slice. Return leftovers to freezer.

Makes 2 quarts

*Use only Grade A clean, uncracked eggs.

PEACH ICE

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup water
- 4 cups peeled, pitted, ripe peaches (about 2 lbs.)
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1½ cups light corn syrup

1. In small saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over water. Stir constantly over low heat until gelatin dissolves.
2. Place half of peaches and lemon juice in blender container; cover. Blend at high speed 1 minute or until liquefied. Add remaining peaches 1 at a time, continuously beating until all are liquefied.
3. With blender at low speed, gradually add gelatin mixture and corn syrup until blended. Pour into 9 × 5 × 3-inch loaf pan.
4. Freeze mixture 1 to 2 hours or until almost firm. Beat until smooth but still frozen. Cover and freeze 3 hours, or until firm.

FROSTY BANANA SHERBET

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1½ cups milk
- 2 cups sliced bananas (about 3 small)
- 1 cup light corn syrup
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

1. In small saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over milk. Stir over low heat until dissolved.
2. Place gelatin mixture, bananas, corn syrup and lemon juice in blender container; cover. Blend on high speed 30 seconds or until smooth. Pour into 9 × 9 × 2-inch baking pan. Cover; freeze overnight.
3. Soften mixture slightly at room temperature. Spoon into large mixer bowl. With mixer at low speed, beat until smooth but not melted. Quickly pour into mold or freezer container. Cover; freeze about 4 hours or until firm.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

SNAP, CRACKLE AND POP

Last year 9,423 persons were injured while using fireworks. So if you plan to ignite your July Fourth with a backyard fireworks display (in the 35 states where fireworks are legal, that is) here are some safety tips from the National Council on Fireworks Safety and the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Buy only the small

Frank Azzopardi

"Class C" fireworks. These are the sole type approved by the Government for family use, and they must have the words "Class C Fireworks" on them. Cherry Bombs, Silver Salutes and M-80's are all illegal in the U.S.

Even with approved fireworks, always read the directions, make sure an adult is present, keep water handy, light one at at time, never relight malfunctioning fireworks, store them in a cool, dry place and dispose of them properly by dousing spent casings in water.

REUNITED

In February, FAMILY WEEKLY reported on the amazing story of boxing's light-heavyweight champion, then, Saad Muhammad (he later changed his name when he converted to the Muslim faith) has offered $10,000 to anyone who could tell him who he really is.

Just recently, Saad Muhammad finally got some answers. Following up on a strong lead provided by a Philadelphia woman, a private investigator discovered Matthew was born Maxwell Antonio Loach, 26 years ago. Although his mother is dead and his father's whereabouts still unknown, Saad Muhammad (second from right in photo) was recently reunited with four sisters and two brothers he never knew. (One brother is missing from the picture.)

Saad Muhammad, who's planning a big family reunion for August, told us, "I'm still in shock. I had almost given up hope. I've always wondered, 'Where did I come from?' I just wanted to know. Now, at last, I don't have to search anymore."

HIGH TIMES

Two recent nationwide surveys of teen-agers indicate both good news and bad news concerning their use of intoxicants. It seems drug use has more or less stabilized, even dropping in some cases. However, alcohol use is rising rapidly, and one-third of the nation's high-school students are "problem drinkers," according to a report by the Research Triangle Institute.

"There's an element of conservatism here," observes Dr. Leon Marder, associate professor at the U.S.C. School of Medicine. "Even though marijuana use is still very high, most kids now agree that drugs like LSD, angel dust, quaaludes and amphetamines are simply not good for you. And there's been a drop off in their use.

"But alcohol is much easier to get away with, and it's more socially acceptable — even to parents because alcohol is their thing, too. In fact, when parents hear their kids are drinking, many say, 'Well, thank God they're only using alcohol.'"

GRAVE CONCERN

Because, "for too long, everyone has had his say at funerals except the mourned one," Stan Zelazny has gone and invented the "talking tombstone." Out comes a four-inch section of the stone, and in goes a speaker and tape device containing a message up to 90 minutes long. The talking tombstone is solar-powered and can be activated only by a key or special magnet. It costs $10,000, but Zelazny, a Sunnyvale, Calif., engineer, says, "We guarantee it for two generations — 40 years."

Charles Waller

Frederic Lewis

"A father can pass on the accumulated wisdom of his years or leave advice for his loved ones," Zelazny points out. "For centuries, man has written epitaphs on tombstones and walls. We're just changing the medium. And you have to admit, this has a lot more impact."

HEEL THYSELF

Here's a piece of sole-saving advice from Veronica Cline, an industrial engineer at the University of Louisville: When buying shoes, shop late in the afternoon. "Since feet spread during the day," says Cline, "you'll be more likely to buy a shoe with the proper width."

BELLY UP

Infants who sleep on their stomachs are more likely to develop malformed jaws and unattractive facial features than those who sleep on their backs, reports Dr. Hal Huggins, a Colorado Springs, Colo., dentist.

Huggins explains that at birth, the skull is composed primarily of cartilage that eventually calcifies, or hardens. The first part to harden is the little knot on the back of the head, while the last to harden is the frontal area — the site of over 40 little membrane bones that will eventually determine facial features. This calcification begins at about two years, says Huggins, and, by then, sleeping patterns may have already caused damage.

Indian infants in New Mexico and Arizona who slept on cradleboards and Amazon Valley children who are carried in hammocklike slings show excellent facial structures and teeth that are free from crowding, says Huggins. He adds that this is because such devices keep pressure off the children's faces.

The American Goldfinch

by Peter Barrett

For the first time – the internationally renowned wildlife artist creates an original sculptured bell.

Intricate sculpture in fine,
hand-painted porcelain . . .
at the very attractive price of $60.

Hand-decorated with pure 24 karat gold.
Sculptured life size / Hand-painted
Limited edition

Sculptured bell shown approximately actual size.

'The American Goldfinch' reflects all the beauty of two great traditions. Combining the intricacy of a hand-painted porcelain sculpture . . . and the lilting magic of an exquisite bell . . . to capture that miracle of nature known as a songbird.

Artist Peter Barrett has won international acclaim for his work—from the time of his first exhibition in London's famed Royal Academy to his recent commissions from the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds. Now, in his first sculptured bell, he has re-created nature's own richness of detail.

Both Goldfinch and setting are sculptured life size. Each sculptured bell will be individually handcrafted and hand-painted for Franklin Porcelain in Japan—home of many of the world's most gifted porcelain craftsmen. Importantly for collectors, this is Franklin Porcelain's first sculptured bell—and the first in a series portraying songbirds of the world.

'The American Goldfinch' will be issued in a single, firmly limited edition. A restriction of just one 'Goldfinch' bell per person will be enforced, and the total edition will be limited forever to the exact number of individuals who order the songbird bells by the close of the issuing year—1981. Then, to ensure the edition remains permanently closed, the porcelain molds will be broken.

To endow your home with a work of singular beauty . . . and acquire a future heirloom for your family . . . you need only return the application on this page. Please note the expiration date it bears—July 31, 1981. To be valid, it must be received with a postmark no later than July 31st.

● Riddle-Me-This! How did the ocean greet the shore? It just waved. How many times does a chef use spices? Thyme and thyme again.

PITCHED BATTLE WITH SUMS!

Our barker friend above invites you to solve a problem. Take note that, on the board to which he is pointing, the sum of any three figures in a row — horizontally, vertically, or diagonally — is six, with one exception. The sum of one diagonal is three.

Now, the problem he poses is this: How is it possible to rearrange the numbers shown so that all the sums — across, down and diagonally — total six?

Our Story: THE STRANGE CAPTIVE'S HANDS STILL WRIGGLE THROUGH THE GRATE AS GALAN SILENTLY DEPARTS. WITH THE STUBBORN RESOLVE OF A BEARDLESS BOY HE STORMS INTO RORY MOR'S CHAMBER. "I KNOW THE TRUTH," HE ANNOUNCES. THE KING STRUGGLES OUT OF SLUMBER.

"YOU ARE YOUR FATHER'S SON," HE SAYS FINALLY. "SIT DOWN." HE MOTIONS THE STARTLED GUARDS TO LEAVE.

"MANY YEARS BEFORE YOU WERE BORN MY FATHER DIED LEAVING TWIN SONS AS HEIRS TO THE THRONE OF ALL IRELAND. UNDER BREHON LAW, WE WERE TO FIGHT TO THE DEATH. THE VICTOR WOULD BE CROWNED KING. BUT MY BROTHER AND I ONLY PRETENDED TO FIGHT.

"AFTER TWO WEEKS OF THIS WE MADE THE BREHONS A PROPOSAL. WE WOULD EACH BE KING-- EVERY OTHER MONTH.

"VISITING DIGNITARIES WERE ALLOWED TO STUMBLE 'ACCIDENTALLY' ON THE PRISONER. THEY CAME AWAY IMPRESSED WITH 'RORY MOR'S' CRUELTY. THE RULERS OF THE OTHER SIX KINGDOMS HAVE KEPT THE PEACE. AND ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH MY BROTHER AND I CHANGE PLACES, MEETING IN THE FOREST."

"NOW YOU KNOW OUR SECRET." RORY MOR CONCLUDES. "WILL YOU KEEP IT?" "YES," SAYS GALAN. "ON ONE CONDITION." HE WHISPERS IN THE KING'S EAR.
