Subway Crash Kills Motorman, Hurts 135 People

NEW YORK (AP) — Investigators tried Saturday to determine if human error or equipment failure or both caused two subway trains to collide, killing a train motorman and injuring 135 people.

John Simpson, Transit Authority president, said Friday's accident apparently occurred after the motorman allowed his train to go through a 63-year-old signal light that had failed. The train slammed into the back of the train ahead of it, crushing the motorman.

Officials were collecting information for a board of inquiry that would investigate the accident, the worst in decades in the city's subways.

Many of the more than 1,000 passengers on the two trains suffered cuts and bruises when they were thrown to the floors of the cars amidst glass from shattered windows. Officials put the number injured at 135. Only one remained hospitalized Saturday, however.

Several people suffered broken bones and lacerations, but there were no critical injuries.

Mayor Edward Koch called the accident "a sad event for the city" and "another reminder of how far we have to go to have a fully reliable, safe subway service in New York, and how urgent the need is to rebuild the system."

The accident occurred on the first day of the system's new 75-cent fare.

Simpson, who was at the scene near the Utica Avenue station in Brooklyn, blamed the afternoon accident on both "human error" and aging equipment.

He said the signal light, which failed five minutes before the collision, had been flickering off and on for several hours. It was part of a signal system installed in 1918.

Simpson said it also appeared the motorman, 35-year-old Jesse Cole, had not followed standard operating procedure: halt the train and radio for instructions before proceeding past the signal.

When Cole's Manhattan-bound train crashed into the rear of the other train, the front of his train became a mass of twisted metal and he was trapped in his cab. It was four hours after the collision before rescue workers could remove his body.

In addition to the passengers on the two northbound trains, some 500 people in a southbound train had to be evacuated through emergency exits after the power was shut off. Service on the line south of Atlantic Avenue was halted until around 5 a.m. Saturday.

The accident was the worst in the city's rapid transit system in decades, its toll topping that of last December's collision of a Staten Island Rapid Transit train with a brick wall. About 100 were injured in that crash, 54 of whom were hospitalized.

The worst accident ever in the subways occurred in 1918 in the old Brooklyn Rapid Transit's Malbone Street station, when about 100 passengers died and another 250 were seriously injured.

Since then, according to the Transit Authority, the worst tolls were the six killed in 1923 when an BMT train missed a curve on an elevated section of the line in Brooklyn and crashed to the street; and an IRT derailment in Times Square in 1928 which claimed 16 lives.

Transit spokesman Louis Collins said he did not know how long it had been since a subway accident had resulted in a fatality.

Garbage Violation Reported

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Municipal officials in northern New Jersey admitted dumping refuse without the proper permits as the strike by 1,400 sanitation workers continued over the long holiday weekend.

Piles of uncollected garbage grew larger and more pungent in the summer heat, and there were no prospects of an early end to the walkout, in its fourth day Saturday.

Hoboken Public Works Commissioner Andrew Amato said Friday that city trucks were dumping trash on a lot for which they had not been able to obtain a permit.

In North Bergen, trucks also were spotted dumping in an unauthorized lot.

A state of emergency remained in effect Saturday in Elizabeth, a city of 100,000, because of the strike, said Mayor Thomas Dunn. He accused the state government of being reluctant to take stronger action because of Gov. Brendan T. Byrne's "close ties to labor."

Byrne is in Moscow on a trade mission but spokesmen in Trenton have said the walkout is a legal strike and the state won't become involved unless absolutely necessary.

The strike began July 1

NEW CITIZEN — John Scipio, 67, waved a flag Saturday just before he and 523 other people took the naturalization oath as U.S. citizens in a ceremony in Detroit. Scipio is a native of Romania. (AP Laserphoto) after negotiations for a new three-year contract broke down between Teamsters Local 945 and the garbage contractors association.

The earliest that some relief can be expected is Monday, when the union and contractors return to the bargaining table under supervision of state and federal mediators.

Man Pulls Knife, Robs Bus Group

MIAMI (AP) — Sixteen tourists on a bus bound for Disney World were robbed Saturday after a man who apparently had been hiding aboard pulled a knife and put it to the driver's throat, police said.

No injuries were reported and the bus continued on to the central Florida theme park after the man robbed the passengers of a small amount of money and some jewelry, police said.

Police spokesman Calvin Ross said the unidentified robber apparently was hiding in the back of the bus when the tourists, 10 of them on a group tour from Spain, boarded the bus at the main Greyhound terminal in downtown Miami early Saturday.

Ross said that after the bus was on Interstate 95, heading north, the man walked forward to the driver, Ulysses Bryant.

The man first told Bryant that he had accidentally boarded the wrong bus and wanted to get off, Ross said.

"At this point, the man pulled a knife and placed it to the driver's neck," said Ross. "A slight struggle ensued, but the driver maintained control of the bus and continued north."

The man made Bryant pull off the expressway at Miami Gardens Drive, about 10 miles north of Miami, and get back on heading south, back toward the city, Ross said.

"During this time, the man went to each passenger and took their valuables," the spokesman said.

Once back in Miami, the man then forced Bryant to turn off the interstate and drive into the Liberty City area, where he got out and fled on foot while Bryant called the police.

People answering the telephones at the downtown Greyhound terminal, as well as at the bus service's district offices in Miami, refused to comment about the incident.

Business Notes

OPENING OFFICE

DataFlow Inc. of Durham announced the opening of an office here at 422 Arlington Boulevard, managed by R. C. Chaffee of Greenville.

DataFlow, according to Chaffee, is the exclusive distributor in eastern and central North Carolina for CADO Systems. He said the firm will service small to medium size business and professional firms in the eastern part of the state.

NEW PRESIDENT

Ralph Hall Jr., associate director-physical plant at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, was installed as president of the Southeastern Association of Hospital Engineers at the recent annual Southeastern Hospital Conference in Miami Beach, Fla.

The association involves engineers of health care facilities in the 11-state southeast region. The purpose of the organization, it was noted, is to promote better health care through engineering and education of its members.

PROMOTIONS AT BW

Burroughs Wellcome Co. announced three promotions at the Greenville manufacturing facility.

Promoted were: Dr. Richard M. Rodebaugh to group leader, Chemical Development Laboratories; Dwain Perry, department head of production in the Animal Health Division; and Philip Peoples, to superintendent, Primary Materials Control Department.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY

Ms. Rebecca B. Horton, loan officer, has been promoted to assistant secretary for North State Savings & Loan Corp. here, the firm reported.

A native of New Bern, Ms. Horton attended Atlantic Christian College, Coastal Carolina Community College, and East Carolina University.

Ms. Horton, who has been with North State for one year, had two years previous experience in mortgage loans with George H. Rucker Mortgage Corp. in Fairfax, Va.

AREA POSITION

James W. Edmondson Jr., an East Carolina University graduate, has been named area sales manager for Stouffer Foods' Food Service Division in the Carolinas and Virginia, Stouffer announced.

Stouffer said that Edmondson, a Goldsboro native, will direct the sale of the company's frozen prepared food products in commercial-industrial food service establishments throughout the three-state area. He lives in Greensboro.

CONVENTION SET

The North Carolina Savings & Loan League will convene its 78th annual convention July 8-12 in Hot Springs, Va.

Over 600 representatives of North Carolina's savings and loan industry are expected for the session.

The League is the trade association for industry in the state. Headquartered in Raleigh, it serves all 188 savings and loans in North Carolina.

ELECTED CHAIRMAN

Dr. Daniel J. Sullivan, vice president and medical director of Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co., was elected chairman of the Medical Section of the American Council of Life Insurance.

The section is composed of the medical directors of the American Council's more than 500 member companies in the United States and Canada.

TO HEAD OFFICE

E. William Nash Jr., CLU, has been named president of the Prudential Insurance Company's South-Central home office in Jacksonville, Fla., Prudential noted.

The company said Nash will be responsible for all sales and administrative operations in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, North Carolina, Ohio, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

Corn Supports Other Grains

By PAULINE JELINEK
AP Business Writer

Soybean futures prices were mostly lower Thursday but selling pressure because of grains closed mixed after a good weather in the Mississippi river delta growing area — a factor which could boost yields.

On the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, live cattle slumped by as much as 1.02 cents a pound, setting some new contract lows, and feeders lost as much as 1.35 cents. Trade was thin.

Analysts said buying appeared to be largely technical, that is, based on analysis of price trend charts and similar factors.

The pork futures market was mostly higher but continued to post prices below those in the cash market. Live hogs were 60 cent lower to .72 cent higher, with the July contract closing at 53.47 cents a pound.

Analysts said cotton prices were mostly lower in quiet trade, as the New York Cotton Exchange put into effect a ban on new positions in the July contract. July closed at 84.40 cents a pound.

Analysts said the rise in the prime rate prompted an early decline in the prices of interest rate futures, which move inversely to interest rates. But the financial futures turned around before the close to settle slightly higher.

On the Commodity Exchange in New York, gold lost between $2.30 and $3.70 and settled at $412.10 an ounce for delivery in July, with traders focusing on news that Chase Manhattan Bank of New York and the First National Bank of Chicago raised their prime lending rates from 20 to 20.5 percent.

Silver rose and copper close mixed with the July contract at 74.45 cents a pound.

Coffee prices fell sharply. Analysts said that although the International Coffee Organization cut export quotas Wednesday in an attempt to stem recent price declines, the action already had been figured into the market as traders anticipated the move earlier in the week. The contract for delivery in July closed at 96.50 cents a pound.

Stocks are a large part of what I do, but I do a lot more for my clients, too.

Such as helping them with insurance financial planning, estate planning and avoiding unnecessary taxation. It's all part of the gradual change Wheat, First Securities has made from a brokerage firm to a more comprehensive financial services firm.

Now whenever a client's needs call for an other-than-ordinary solution, I can call upon a variety of professionals within our organization to arrive at the best possible recommendation.

Area Students

Earn Honors

GREENSBORO — Patience E. Bosley of Dupont St., Grifton, made all A's on courses completed during the spring semester at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Three other students from Pitt County made the dean's list during the same semester. They are Barbara E. Brewer, Mary E. Ferrell and Julie M. Longhill, all of Greenville.

Traineeships

Are Available

ECU News Bureau
Eight federally-funded traineeships will be available during 1981-82 for full time graduate students in community mental health nursing at East Carolina University.

Trainees selected for the program will receive $420 monthly stipends plus tuition and fees under a continuation grant just renewed by the National Institute of Mental Health, according to Evelyn Perry, Dean of the School of Nursing.

Interested applicants should make inquiry to the graduate program, ECU School of Nursing, Dean Perry said.

Work Appears In Yearbook

ECU News Bureau
"Choosing Various Instructional Methods to Teach Skills, Knowledge and Attitudes," a chapter by Thadys Dewar of the ECU business education and office administration faculty, appears in the 1981 National Business Education Association Yearbook.

The annual book, published by the National Business Education Association, includes chapters by leaders in the business education field.

Mrs. Dewar was one of the 18 business educators in the nation invited to submit a chapter in the 1981 book.

Senior Given Scholarship

ECU News Bureau
Kathy Bass of Roseboro, a senior in the East Carolina University School of Education, has been awarded a $350 scholarship from the N.C. State Council of Epsilon Sigma Alpha international honor society.

The annual awards are made to outstanding students preparing for careers in education and are based upon career goals and academic achievement as well as financial need.

This fall, Miss Bass will be an intern teacher at Aycock Junior High in Greenville. She expects to graduate at the end of the fall semester.

Protest Ban On Food Shipment

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish relief agencies have protested the Reagan administration's action to prevent a church-sponsored food shipment to Vietnam.

They say the administration is using food as a diplomatic lever at the expense of malnourished children.

The protest came in reaction to a Commerce Department decision to deny the Mennonite Central Committee a necessary export license to ship 250 metric tons of wheat flour, donated by Kansas farmers, to Vietnam.

A.C. Lobe of the Mennonite's Asia office called the government's decision an "infringement of religious freedom."

THREE-DAY REVIVAL

The young adult choir of Selvia Chapel Church will sponsor a three-day revival July 8-10 at the church.

The Rev. A.J. Clark of Greenville and Rock Spring Church will be the guests. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

REVIVAL

There will be a week revival at Mills Chapel F.W.B. Church beginning Monday night at 8:00 each night. Rev. Jasper Tyson will be conducting the services. A different choir will perform each night. Pastor J.L. Swinson invites the public to attend.

Young Musicians At ECU Summer Camp

Each year in June and July several hundred musicians from about half a dozen Southern states come to the School of Music, East Carolina University, for two weeks packed with a combination of music training and summertime recreation.

For the first of this summer's two music camps, which began June 28 and will continue through July 10, approximately 300 teen-age boys and girls from junior and senior high schools from North and South Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee and Georgia are now in Greenville making music and enjoying the companionship of new found friends.

To be eligible to attend the ECU Summer Music Camps, a student must have shown he or she possesses musical talent and must be recommended for attendance by a hometown band or orchestra director or a private teacher.

The program has gained a widespread favorable reputation and being recommended to attend is an honor for these young people.

The first camp this summer is being directed by Harold Jones. The second camp, which will begin July 12 and continue through July 24, will be directed by Herbert Carter. Both Jones and Carter are long-time faculty members at the ECU School of Music. A staff of band and orchestra directors, chosen from high schools and universities, lead the music camp students in their stay here. Music major students also assist camp directors and instructors in the programs.

The daily training received by the high school musicians is extensive and broad in scope. Time is devoted to full ensemble and sectional rehearsals. Students also play in smaller ensembles and attend music clinic sessions. Those who want private lessons in addition to the camp instructions have an opportunity to do so.

This year, too, a full symphony orchestra will be formed and conducted under the direction of Robert Hause, conductor of the ECU Symphony Orchestra.

Two concerts will be presented free to the public by the students. Both will be given at the mall in front of the Fletcher Music Building.

The concert by the first summer camp will be presented at 6:30 p.m. today, July 5. The second summer camp concert is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Sunday, July 19. For both, the public is invited to attend.

A number of awards are also given to outstanding students at the end of each camp. These are sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, Kappa Kappa Psi and Tau Beta Sigma. In addition, a scholarship in the memory of Bob Kalet is being given again this year.

While they attend the ECU Summer Music Camps, students live in dormitories with meals provided by university cafeterias.

Although music is the primary concern of these young people, they have time set aside for play. A number of ECU recreational facilities — the Olympic swimming pool, tennis courts and the gymnasium are available to them. Special recreational events are also set up for their enjoyment.

And not programmed, but an important part of their time in camp is the bonds of friendship established between these young people who share a common interest in making music.

COMPARES MUSICAL NOTES ... Harold Jones, director of the first of two ECU Summer Music Camps with about 300 junior and high school musicians from five states attending, compares notes with music major student Beth Shelton, who assisted Jones during sight reading and rehearsal of the "Suite in E Flat" by Gustav Holst. The students are presenting a free concert for the public at 6:30 p.m. today on the mall in front of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center.

Finds Nothing But Ingratitude

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have read your articles for years and you finally hit a topic that makes me see red. A man reported that he had found a wallet containing $140.

Twice I have found wallets, and once a checkbook (containing cash) in otherwise empty shopping carts. I personally delivered them to the owners. All three people counted their money and never even said "thanks." One even asked me why I hadn't turned in the wallet to the store!

As a hobby, I look for coins and jewelry with a metal locator and have found several class rings, some of which were very valuable. I read the lost-and-found ads in the newspaper and return whatever I find. Abby, would you believe, I have yet to receive a reward?

JOHN IN CLARENDON, ILL.

DEAR JOHN: "Virtue," it is said, "is its own reward." Your experience is surprising. Read on for another surprising letter on the same subject:

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old boy who found a woman's wallet in plain sight in the parking lot next to a supermarket. It had $127 in it and the owner's name and address. I got back on my bike and rode right over to the lady's house, which was about a mile away. She was just getting out of her car when I got there. I told her that I found her wallet, and she gave me a big hug. After I handed it to her, she looked through it, then she pulled out a $20 bill and gave it to me. I thanked her politely and went home.

That evening I told my parents about it and my father said, "I don't think you should have accepted $20 for doing what you should have done. A person shouldn't be rewarded for being honest."

After thinking about it, I realized that my father was right, so the next day I biked over to the lady's house and gave her back the $20. She didn't want to take it, but I told her she had to — that my father pointed out something to me that I had never realized before. She got tears in her eyes, then she crossed herself and said, "This is one for Ripley."

Abby, who is Ripley?

DENNIS IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR DENNIS: Robert Ripley wrote a famous column titled "Believe It or Not." Bless you. And thanks for a terrific column piece.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet:

Now there's a breast form that looks more natural, feels more comfortable than you could ever imagine.

And it's from Henson-Kickernick®!

This form duplicates the natural breast in appearance, weight, color, shape and feeling. In every single way. You can even wear it with the sheerest of bras and nightgowns, the clingiest of knits and jerseys. Its remarkable microcellular silicone elastomer material, covered with a light, stretchable skin of nylon/spandex, won't shrink, harden or leak if punctured. The form actually moves with you, yields to pressure, then resumes your natural shape. The H-K Breast is superior because: it's developed by a medical doctor. In tear drop and heart shape styles. Fits most every need. Can not leak. Trained sales force. Five-year limited warranty. Shipped from stock. Complete size range in both shapes. Couple Speaks Vows In Evening Ceremony

The First Presbyterian Church here was the scene of the Friday evening wedding ceremony of Evelyn Cheryl Joyner and Frank Owen Freuler Jr. The double ring ceremony was performed by Jerry Anders.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Irene V. Joyner and Mr. Curtis L. Joyner, both of Greenville, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white voile over voile designed with a high neckline encircled with a collar edged in chantilly lace. Matching lace was featured at the shoulders and cuffs of the full bishop sleeves. The bodice was styled with vertical inserts of lace and scattered pearls. The waistline was encircled with white satin ribbon with a Dior bow at the center back with chapel length streamers. The gathered skirt was accentuated by a ruffled flounce at the hemline topped by a row of white satin ribbon and edged with chantilly lace. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion bordered in embroidered lace with each florette centered with a pearl and held in place by a Juliet cap of white satin overlaid with chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The bride carried a nosegay of pink rosebuds and baby's breath.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Evelyn P. Webb of Greenville and Mr. Frank O. Freuler of Tarboro.

Ushers for the ceremony were Billy Freuler of Tarboro, brother of the bridegroom and Mel Joyner of Greenville, brother of the bride.

A program of organ music was rendered by Skip Irwin and Serena Matney was violinist.

The couple will be living in Greenville.

The bride is employed at Branch Bank and Trust Co. and the bridegroom is a partner with the firm of Lowermore Warwick and Co. CPA and is managing partner of the Greenville office.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the Brook Valley Golf and Country Club.

The reception area was decorated with bouquets of summer flowers and lighted candles.

The bridal couple was given a cocktail and shower last week held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Becton. The bride was honored at a dinner and shower last week given by employees of Branch Bank and Trust Co. and it was held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Mills.

Open letter to child of parents who work outside the home.

Dear —: Just because your mother and father are not with you this summer to nag you to death, take away privileges and threaten you with violence, you are probably thinking they do not love you. This is simply not true.

They worry about you all the time during the day when they are gone because you are in an unfamiliar world with decisions you may be making for the first time by yourself.

Being a child at home alone in the summer is a high-risk profession. This is not meant to frighten you, but these are just some of the dangers that may threaten you.

Freezer burns: These are white patches of frost that appear on the skin due to standing in front of an open refrigerator all day while you check the contents to make sure it contains the same food as when you checked it 15 minutes earlier.

Drowning by over-sudsing: A child fed intravenously by television soaps for nine hours will eventually fall into a coma. In the final stages, you will not hear the phone ring, feel water from the garden hose around your feet, or realize you are still in your pajamas from the first of June.

The Cain and Abel syndrome: Becomes more of a reality as the summer goes on. A sibling who started out the summer being "okay" now gets on your nerves every time he looks at you. You want to plug up the openings in his face. Sometimes he looks at you when he isn't even in the house.

Strangers in the house: Never open your door to strangers. It's chancy. They know too much and usually talk. That's why it's smart to talk through the door, especially to well-meaning neighbors who want to know why the dog is yipping and why someone just threw a pan in the front yard with burnt popcorn in it.

Creative playmates: Beware of friends with ideas of what to do. They will get you a SWAT team of babysitters faster than you can say, "We can build the raft, float it down the Ohio river and be home before your Mom gets here."

But mostly, look out for mothers... especially the one you have called 13 times in one hour to tell her there's nothing to do and when she comes home finds the milk is still out, there's a crack in the sliding door and her panythoses are flying from the TV antenna.

She can hurt you.

more if you like) and the juice of a couple of lemons, plus a very little vinegar from a jar of green olives. Let this stand about an hour.

Engagement Announced

VERONICA SHIELDS... is the daughter of Mrs. Doris Shields of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who announces her engagement to Kelly Darden Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Darden Sr. of Greenville. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Mr. Lewis Edward Shields. The wedding will take place Aug. 29.

Celebrates Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. WILBUR L. Worthington—of Peaceful Acres, Rt. 2, Ayden, celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary Thursday. They were married July 2, 1936. The late Rev. J. C. Moye of Snow Hill, their pastor of Reedy Branch Church, performed the ceremony at her home, Rt. 2, Greenville. The couple has twin sons, Melvin and Milton Worthington and a daughter, Jeannette W. Davis. They also have seven grandchildren.

that the salad really takes on a green hue — and enough scallions (including their green tops) to suit your own taste.

Just before serving add chopped celery, coarsely grated longhorn cheese, lots of tomato wedges, a handful of green olives and a generous number of coarsely torn lettuce leaves. Toss well and serve at once.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Tabbouleh is a Middle Eastern bulgur salad once infrequently encountered in America. Now its popularity in the United States keeps growing.

Friends pass along word of it to one another. Vegetarians sing its praises. In the past 10 years more and more recipes for it have appeared in newspapers, magazines, cookery pamphlets and cookbooks.

But our interest in tabbouleh is probably mostly due to the fact that bulgur — wheat kernels that have been parboiled, cracked and dried — is more widely available than it once was. These days it's sold not only in specialty food stores but in many supermarkets. Be warned, however: You may not always be able to put your hands quickly on bulgur that is as coarsely or finely cracked as you want it.

When Marilyn Dabner, a friend who lives in Tulsa, Okla., comes to New York City, she's likely to bring me a packet of bulgur that is finely cracked and in a see-through bag. It's specially packaged this way by a company in her home state that supplies some chains of supermarkets with it and, I believe, also mails orders. Marilyn uses this bulgur, as do I, because it's perfect for making an Oklahoma version of tabbouleh.

The recipe Marilyn uses differs from others: it calls for soaking the bulgur in vegetable cocktail juice rather than in the traditional water. It also adds such non-traditional ingredients as coarsely grated longhorn cheese and lettuce leaves.

Here is Marilyn's formula, just as she jotted it down. Don't hesitate to make changes. As one Middle Eastern culinary expert said: "The preparation of tabbouleh is highly individual. Cooks vary the quantities of ingredients, but always use parsley abundantly."

MARILYN DABNER'S
BULGUR SALAD

Open a 12-ounce can of vegetable cocktail juice and pour it over a cup of finely cracked bulgur. Let the bulgur stand at room temperature until it absorbs the juice. Use a big bowl because the quantity of this salad grows and grows.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: During the early part of the day you can see clearly on how you can get along better with others. The evening brings you additional vitality and a greater amount of efficiency.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Talk over any possible differences you may have with family members and establish more harmony.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve conditions around you and cement better relations with others. Make plans to improve your prestige.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Engage in recreational activities you enjoy early in the day. Take time in the evening to plan the new week's schedule.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take a good look at your environment and make plans for a change. Improve on your regular routines.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Communicating with others is fine during the daytime but the evening is best for handling any problems you may have.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how to add to present abundance early in the day. Attend group affairs where you can gain information you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can handle a personal affair very well early in the day. Plan an important social event, but consider the cost.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The early hours of the day are best for handling private matters. Take time to improve your appearance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study well what you want to do today before you engage in any activities. Relax at home in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You need to be more direct with others if you wish to gain your aims. Do nothing that could harm your reputation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study new ideas early in the day and discuss them with experts later. Make sensible plans for the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Situations arise in the afternoon that will help make the future look brighter. Show others you have ability.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be a charming person who can rely on personal magnetism in life, so teach to give this quality the right expression and then there can be great success in this chart. Plan as fine an education as you can afford.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JULY 6, 1981

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An excellent day to decide on what your true wishes are. Also, a time to get together with business allies and exchange viewpoints. Try to eliminate any differences of opinion.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day to get together with persons whose personal interests are similar to yours and to gain your cherished goals.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can make big headway now by contacting higher-ups and stating your true aims. Engage in worthwhile community affairs.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Keep your eyes open for new opportunities to advance in your line of endeavor. Contact experts who can be helpful.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use your good sense and intuitive promptings to clear up a difficult situation. Strive for happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to find out what is expected of you by associates. Engage in a public affair and gain added prestige.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) The use of new appliances can easily make your operations more successful. Be sure to safeguard your fine reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have fine creative ideas that should be brought to the attention of higher-ups. Show more attention to loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more concerned now with advancing yourself in career matters. Take steps to make your living quarters more comfortable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Talk to certain persons who can give you good ideas on how to become more successful. Think constructively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use new systems that will help you become more efficient in your line of work. Be careful in conversations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Go after your personal aims now and use right methods for best results. A good time to engage in social affairs.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Contact a person who can help you gain a desire that is important to you. Much happiness can be yours at this time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have many friends because of the loving nature in this chart. Be sure to give the finest education to bring out the humanitarian qualities. Your progeny can help make this a better world in which to live.

Former Activist Priest Fills New Role Driving Bus

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The Catholic priest who gained national attention as he crusaded for social justice in Milwaukee's inner city is today a bus driver in that city, the best job he says he could get.

James Groppi was told by the Catholic church that he could no longer serve as a priest after his 1976 marriage to Margaret Rozga, an activist who had marched alongside him.

Groppi, now 50, is the father of two small daughters and says he applied for more than 25 jobs, jobs where he could have used his training and background.

They all turned him down. "The bus company is the only place I could find. They hired me, and so I stayed with it. I do it out of necessity. I'm 50 years old. I just don't feel like starting in another profession."

"I go to work and I come home and I spend my time with my family. I can't do more than that," Groppi says in the living room of his two-story brick home in the integrated neighborhood on the city's northwest side.

"You're so tired by the time you're done driving that you don't have any energy left for much more than commuting home and spending some time with the kids."

Groppi used to "live in the streets." He set up Freedom House where he said Mass, shared meals and worked with the area youngsters, mostly black street kids.

He formed the Commandos, a youth group that joined him in 200 consecutive nights of marches around the city to push for fair housing. He marched alongside Martin Luther King Jr. for voting rights for blacks in Selma, Ala.

Groppi — whose followers called him "Groppi: The Name That Made Milwaukee Famous" — led 1,000 welfare recipients in a brief takeover of the Wisconsin State

Assembly in Madison. He became a prominent figure in anti-Vietnam and anti-draft demonstrations.

Some Prisoners Finding New Lifestyles With Art

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Roberto Antonio Fernandez was a bad kid, running away from home every chance he got. At 11, he found himself packed off to what used to be called a training school for wayward boys.

"The kids there were hoods, so I became a hood," he says.

At 16, he went to jail for the first time for stealing a car for a joy ride. By the time he was 20, he had graduated to bank robbery and the federal penal system.

"I never felt guilty about any of the crimes. I was just doing what everybody around me was doing," reflects this tall and slender, light-skinned black man. "I spent 19 out of my first 37 years in institutions. Except for kidnapping, rape and homicide, I committed every crime in the book."

Today, everything is changed, including his name. He's now Karomoko Baye and he's founded an organization that is helping prisoners change their lives. His office walls are decorated with various certificates honoring him for civic duties.

In 1977, just five days out of the federal penitentiary, Baye started Prisoners Accelerated Creative Exposure, Inc. (PACE), known as the Prisoners Art Project. The program furnishes materials for artists in prisons, and instructors in some. PACE displays and sells the work in shows around the country.

It has expanded to 17 states, with 25 major exhibits, and has touched the lives of some 263 prisoners. A few of the superstars are selling their works for just under $5,000.

While setting up the program, Baye was living in a halfway house the prison had found for him. He couldn't even turn on the one light in his dingy room — it would short the entire floor.

It was a lonely life at first. His first wife, a model turned movie actress, had divorced him and Baye didn't dare go back to his old neighborhood. He knew only too well what would happen.

"I was a bad guy there but the sad thing is that the bad guy is the big hero. My old friends were still doing the same things. I started to see two or three of my close friends out of the neighborhood, but I had to stop that, too. They couldn't believe I had changed. People just don't seem to have the capacity to believe people can change."

Baye, instead, devoted all his efforts to his project. "It saved me from returning to the old life of crime."

The 42-year-old ex-offender jokes that he could have robbed a bank to get it going, but instead he took a $1,000 advance for a novel he had written. The novel, "A Right to Anger," was penned in longhand while Baye spent 17 months in solitary confinement.

At first, Baye's project ran on the proverbial shoestring — an $11,000 budget in 1977, down to $7,000 in 1978. In 1979 it climbed to $43,000 — thanks to the arrival of another ex-offender, Bob Dunning, a man Baye had met in the prison system years earlier.

Dunning had been out of jail for a number of years and had saved $20,000. He plowed his life savings into this cause, a cause he came to believe in as fervently as Baye.

The charismatic Baye, a man with an eighth-grade education and a college graduate's vocabulary, gained more and more experience in the tricky business of fund-raising. Money sprung from a variety of sources — individual loans, foundations, corporations and government.

Among the contributors, Baye notes with a smile, is Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., the bank he was convicted of robbing.

Neither Dunning nor Baye nor any of the many volunteers have yet to take any salary, but the budget may go as high as $125,000.

Baye and Dunning, both dynamos on the podium, have been supporting themselves on honorariums from speaking engagements. Baye has also remarried and claims the whole project would have failed if it had not been for the constant support of his wife, an urban affairs reporter in neighboring Westchester County.

Offers Rebate

BOSTON (UPI) — Sally and Robert Gallant got a $50 rebate on their first delivery March 4. But it wasn't for a car — it was for their second-born son, Daniel Patrick.

Mrs. Gallant, 33, was the first beneficiary of an experimental cost-reduction program at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital, the first in the Bay State and possibly the only one of its kind in the country. It is sponsored by Massachusetts Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

"I found out about it after I went into the hospital," Mrs. Gallant said. "I think it's fantastic. I'd do it again."

The company offers $100 to maternity patients who leave the hospital within 24 hours of an uncomplicated delivery.

Blue Cross also offers the short-term patients up to $100 worth of procedures not covered by insurance, such as immunizations, and the new mother can take advantage of home nursing and household services if she wants.

Hysterectomy patients receive a $50 rebate for each day they knock off the usual 8.3-day hospitalization stay and Caesarian section patients receive the same amount for shortening their average seven-day hospitalization.

The average maternity stay is four days. Considering each day costs $741, the savings to patients — and their insurance companies — can be great.

"The benefit is all going to the patient because eventually, if you carry this to the extreme, the hospital cost will go down and the premiums will be lowered," said Dr. Louis Alfano, state Blue Cross-Blue Shield board chairman.

Alfano claims credit for developing the program "in response to women's movements and women who wanted to have babies at home.

Marrying Parson Packs Pistol During Ceremony

By RUSSELL-NIELSEN
INCLINE VILLAGE, Nev.
(UPI) — The way a pistol packin' parson in the old church on the Ponderosa Ranch marries folks would make Ben Cartwright and the boys downright proud.

Like when Preacher Pat Luna strapped on his six-shooter, adjusted his string tie, stepped to the altar and read the ceremonial words for Jeff Smith and Debora Williams of Sacramento.

The family and friends liked it. So did the newweds.

Trouble loomed outside. The bride and groom ran afoul of a gun-totin' lass — obviously a lover scorned — and her latest boyfriend.

"You ain't gonna keep him," she told the bride.

The boyfriend wondered why she would kidnap the groom "when you could have had me." Before that problem was resolved, the good guys arrived.

"Ya'll turn him loose," they ordered.

An exchange of gunshots. The baddies fell dead. Tranquility returned.

"Of course," said Luna — the kind of show biz that draws thousands of tourists to the spot overlooking Lake Tahoe, where footage for the "Bonanza" TV show was shot.

The ranch buildings are built on land owned by William Anderson, who has made them attractions. The congregation consists of the

"It's a non-demoninational church," said Luna, 29, a Roman Catholic and a ranch employee. "I'm not a priest, but the county recognizes it as a church and a congregation, and I am authorized to perform marriages. I'll marry 100 to 150 couples a month during the summer season."

"But I don't wear the gun unless they want me to. Same with the shooting outside."

British Abbey Emulates 'Real Life' Disneyland

By GREGORY JENSEN
BEAULIEU, England
(UPI) — Beaulieu Abbey is an English version of Disneyland where everything is real.

If a building here looks 700 years old, it is. Its hundreds of historic cars are authentic to the last bolt. If Lord Montagu's house looks like one of the "Magnificent Seven" at the top of the stately home league, that's what it is.

Beaulieu, pronounced like "beauty," has lorded it over its 8,000-acre estate 95 miles southwest of London since 1204. But it operates today on ideas shamelessly pinched from American theme parks.

"We learned all our principal lessons from examples in the States," said estate manager Kenneth Robinson during a recent estate tour.

American slickness is only one incongruity making Beaulieu one of the oddest of England's stately homes. Another is the way it lurches through time.

One moment you're in a 13th century hall from the original abbey, a magnificently timbered on-time monks' dormitory.

The next you're on a Disney-style monorail, looping above landscaped English gardens.

The monorail glides through a glass teepee roof and you're sailing over a car fan's idea of heaven — more than 200 of the world's most valuable cars.

A wrench's throw away is Palace House, Lord Montagu's 600-year-old moated and battlemented family home with ruins of the original abbey in the garden.

Still another corner of the estate holds Buckler's Hard, a rather eerie village where English naval history was made. It built wooden ships in Lord Nelson's day, including three which fought under him at Trafalgar. Now Buckler's Hard is being turned — slowly — into a miniature Williamsburg of that era.

"That will take about a decade," an estate official said. "But in tourist activities we're planning 15 years ahead. For agriculture and forestry, we're looking 120 years ahead."

This sort of forward planning turned Lord Montagu toward the United States at 25 when he took control of Beaulieu, which he inherited at the age of 2. He began sending managers to steal ideas from National Parks Service centers, the Kennedy Space Center and American theme parks.

"I've just come back from another trip," said Robinson, managing director of Montagu Ventures Ltd. "I've been looking at what I suppose are peculiar things — litter bins and curbing and things of that sort.

"I remember dropping to my knees to photograph a gutter at Disney World. People must have thought I was a bit mad, but it was the shape of a paving stone I wanted to record."

Such meticulous detail is icing on the cake of Beaulieu's main attraction — cars. They were not so much planned as stumbled upon.

When he first opened his home to the public in 1952, Edward Douglas-Scott-Montagu, 3rd Baron Montagu of Beaulieu, casually lined up six antique cars in the entrance hall as a memorial to his father, a motoring pioneer.

It was as if he'd invented champagne.

Old cars were such a hit the growing collection soon overflowed into the courtyard, then into a separate museum, then into a bigger one. The fourth, a futuristic brick diamond which won 1974's "Museum of the Year" award, now is Britain's official National Motor Museum.

Its pioneering or famous cars and motorcycles run from 1890s horseless carriages to Bluebird, the streamlined beauty in which Sir Malcolm Campbell set a world speed record of 403 mph, to a 1977 Lagonda prototype.

Most of Beaulieu's 600,000 annual visitors head first for the cars, then for Palace House, the Montagu family home since 1538, which incorporates the original abbey's Gothic gatehouse.

Some visitors also explore the adjoining village, which Lord Montagu also owns.

But many skip the 2½-mile trip to Buckler's Hard, which has exactly one street — which is wider than a New York avenue — just one block long. One of its beautifully preserved houses is an evocative museum. A charming little hotel occupies the house where the shipyard's master builder lived. The whole village has a haunted feeling, especially near the berths where famous sailing ships were built.

Unlike many homes and castles, Beaulieu is open all year except Christmas day. Few of its visitors are aware of its oddest quirk of all — that it's a non-profit stately home.

"No profit is ever taken," Robinson said. "Every penny is plowed back into improvements of the estate."

A Review

Action, Romance, Music In Bath's 'Blackbeard'

The setting is ideal to put spectators in the mood to be warm-weather lulled and entertained. The last sky colors of sunset glows in fragments through river shore tree branches. Fireflies light up in the gathering dark, and overhead the first summer stars begin to flicker.

The opening scene of "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag" in the outdoor amphitheater at Bath for a brief time sustains nature's mood of twilight serenity. As the drama opens, Shauna Holmes Barnaby, in the role of Mary Ormand, brings her young son, Ned Jr., portrayed by Jarvis Groome, to Plum Point to explain to him the identity of his dead father.

And these two, in this scene, establish one of the major strengths of this year's production of "Blackbeard" — a fine level of acting by the large cast.

Shauna, in her third year in the lead female role, again brings a sensitive radiance and inner strength to this role. Jarvis, the new Ned Jr., effectively projects the consternation such a revelation would have on a 10-year-old.

This pastoral scene is brief, and is followed by the major hallmark of Stuart Aronson's script — explosive, rollicking action mixed with 18th century intrigue.

Free-wheeling adventure, the lure of the sea and the promise of booty are basic ingredients in "Blackbeard," and this year it all rolls into place better than ever before. Pirates, tavern women, townspeople — everybody gets into the rousing swing of action and keep it joyful at a fast pace.

John Rice, a veteran actor from Ohio making his debut this summer as Blackbeard, turns in an exemplary performance. A tall, solidly built actor, he has the commanding physical appearance suited for the role. Most importantly, Rice obviously has empathy with the dual tough-tender character of Blackbeard, and gives credence to these conflicting human qualities.

The play's narrator, Stephen B. Finnan, in a critical role that ties together the separated-in-time scenes of the play, could hardly be better. He could alone hold an audience spellbound for an evening.

All down the line, performances are superlative — Tanya Wall as the no-nonsense, vocal tavern keeper, Virginia Flanniken; Will Sumner, the mute Mudo and smallest of the muscular pirates, who gives a rousing solo dance performance; Lisa Distefano, as beautiful as Ava Gardner in her youth, is convincing as the woman scorned, Husky Joseph Bailey, the only black in the cast and a veteran of all five "Blackbeard" seasons, is back again as Caesar, Blackbeard's trusty side kick.

The principal pirates and pirate chieftans — Bevil Searcey as Nathaniel Jackson, Chris Kara-Eneff as Israel Hands, Scott Rodger as Joseph Brooks, Wayne Andrews as Phillip Morton and Paul Manning as Garrat Gibbens, are all properly vigorous and lusty in the physical and musical demands of their roles.

The more staid officials and townsfolk are equally well served by actors in these roles — bewigged E.T. Taylor is a shrewd, sometimes pompous Governor Eden in this key role, and David Werdal is excellent as the governor's sounding board man.

Greg Ange in the role of upstanding citizen Colonel Maurice Moore, Donald Waggoner as the saucy Edward Mosely, Gary Carter as the woman-chasing Governor Spotswood, and Shaun Holliday as John Clayton, each add finely drawn characterizations.

Rounding out the large cast are Linda Moore as Prissy; Lezlie Ann Tyler as Margaret; Gregory H. Brown and Chap Gurley, Pirates I and II; William Dawson, townsman; Rhonda Webb, Mrs. Ormond; Timothy White in the role of Calico Jack Rachman; Deborah Phipps Polk and Lynne Barnhardt as the two women pirates, Anne Bonney and Mary Reed; Stuart Ward and Gray Johnson as Fishermen James and John; Denise Raynor as a tavern wench; and five townswomen — Helen Brooks, Erma Tankard, Rachel Tankard, Donna Jones and Janet Johnson.

"Blackbeard's" melodic, invigorating score is the work of Joseph Distefano. He incorporates 18th century sea chanties such as the lovely "A Roving," arrangements of traditional music, and his own original score for the battle scene.

The play's spirited choreography is by Deborah Phipps Polk; the colorful costumes, ranging from scant clothing for the sturdy pirates to elegant gowns for the townswomen, are designed by Sally Brooks and Doris Moore; the lighting system is by Linda Bredin; and Christopher Kara-Eneff has staged the full-fledged battle scene.

Since its inception "Blackbeard" has been good entertainment. Now in its fifth season, it has been nurtured to the fulfillment of all that it promised earlier. Area people who have not seen this nearest of all outdoor dramas to Greenville should put it on their agenda for this summer. Those who have seen productions in previous years will enjoy the performance of a new Blackbeard and the added zest that marks this years song and dance routines in the production.

Patsy O'Leary Triple Award Winner

TRIPLE AWARD WINNER . . . Patsy Baker O'Leary, a native of Greenville who came back home after 20 years of television production work in California, chalked up an impressive record of winning three first-place awards at the prestigious annual Dixie Council of Authors and Journalists conference held in Epworth-by-the-Sea at St. Simons Island, Georgia.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Julie Hicks

Anne Edwards, author of the critically acclaimed "Vivian Leigh," has written a new book called "Sonya: The Life of Countess Tolstoy."

This epic biography is a portrait of an extraordinary woman caught up in a tumultuous marriage with a man all the world regarded as a god. The story of that marriage, which is still the subject of controversy and which lies at the heart and soul of much of Tolstoy's work, is told for the first time from Sonya's point of view, drawing on letters, unpublished diaries, and recollections.

Sonya's fierce struggle to be recognized by her husband as a person possessing her own desires and needs is remarkably contemporary. "Sonya" is above all the story of a woman's growth from child-wife to independent woman, a person of towering strength.

Jack Sheppard, author of the bestseller, "The Adams Chronicles," has continued his research of the prominent Adams dynasty by documenting the relationship between John Quincy Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams in "Cannibals of the Heart."

Louisa and John Quincy were opposites who could express their love for each other only when apart. She was a lively, attractive, European-bred young woman. He was a stolid, authoritarian American. On the surface, they led a life of social glitter, but behind the doors of their homes, and the White House, they struggled for control of their sons and their own lives.

While John Quincy himself and, later, historians portrayed his wife as being fragile, weak, and a social and political ornament, Sheppard claims just the opposite.

Louisa traveled alone across the Russian steppes in winter in the wake of Napoleon's retreat. She underwent surgery — without anesthesia — and survived 12 pregnancies. She battled depression, hypochondria and her husband's relentless ambition while questioning her own role and fulfillment as a woman living through a period of widespread suppression of women.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — "The Arts, Visual and Dramatic," is the theme of Kay Currie's Hospitality House airing over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington, today. The show opens with an interview with Ken Beam, associate director of the N.C. Museum of Art, Raleigh. He will show a film on the new museum.

In the field of crafts, Don Martin, a minister from Pollocksville, will display an example of stained glass. Martin is appearing on behalf of Expo '81, which will be held in Morehead City July 11-12.

Dramatic arts is being represented by an interview with actor John Rice of Ohio, the new lead in the Bath production of "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag." He will be in costume. The outdoor drama is playing through Aug. 15 on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

Stuart Aaronson, author and director of "Blackbeard," will discuss a new play he has written to be presented July 10-11 at the Casablanca in Greenville.

The final guest on today's show is Daniel Clifton, demonstrating the third in a series of yoga exercises. Clifton is director of the Life Force Center in Greenville.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Two Pitt County writers, Patsy Baker O'Leary of Greenville and Maxine Carey Harker of Grifton have returned from the 21st annual Creative Writing and Inspirational Workshop of the Dixie Council of Authors and Journalists, Inc. with an impressive sweep of literary awards.

Both are active members of the Greenville Writers Club, and the two alternate teaching creative writing at Pitt Community College.

They were among about 150 participants at the prestigious writers conference held each summer at Epworth-by-the-Sea, St. Simons Island, Georgia during the week of June 21 to June 27. Professional and free-lance writers from all parts of the U.S. attended the conference and competed for awards in nine categories of writing. Well-known playwrights, authors, poets and journalists served as instructors and counselors at the conference.

Patsy and Maxine were the only winners from North Carolina, and Patsy garnered more awards than any other single writer — first place in three divisions: the Frances Patton Statham Fiction Award for the beginning of a novel. Her novel is tentatively entitled "The Homeplace;" first place in the Josephine Mellichamp Journalism Award for feature writing, an article entitled "Missy;" and first place for "The Cedar Tree," entered in the Marel Brown Inspirational Article Award. The cedar tree story is about a tree in the yard of the house where she was born in Greenville.

Maxine, a native of Boise, Idaho, who has lived in Pitt County for the past 25 years, won three honorable mentions — in the Frances Patton Statham Fiction Award for the beginning of a novel; in the Epworth-by-the-Sea Poetry Award for poetry of exceptional literary quality; and in the Source Book Award, for a seven day journal of ideas.

She is known locally for her contributions to "Facing South," the syndicated column carried each Sunday in "The Daily Reflector" and in numerous other newspapers in the South. Maxine also has won other literary awards, including ones at the Dixie Conference in previous years.

Very Thrilled

"I was very thrilled," Patsy commented in recalling her reaction in being the top award winner at the conference. "For once in my life I was speechless. So far it was the most exciting moment of my life, it even topped the excitement I felt when I was named an assistant to the director and was told that I would get screen credits" (for a television series).

A native of Greenville, Patsy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Baker. Baker, proprietor of a photography shop in Greenville for 25 years, is now retired.

Patsy returned to Greenville in the summer of 1979 after a 20 years absence spent living in Los Angeles. She began her career in television production with the ABC network. "But the majority of those years I spent working with the Four-Star TV Company," she explained. "That was the company founded by Dick Powell, Ida Lupino, Charles Boyer and David Niven."

"Four-Star produced a number of early TV series, including 'The Big Valley,' 'The Rogues,' 'Wanted: Dead or Alive,' and 'Michael Shayne.'"

In the latter years of her California career, Patsy worked with Talent Associates, a production agency headed by David Susskind.

"It was while I was working on the 'Get Smart' series that I was named an assistant to the producer, which meant I received credits on the show."

"At the time," Patsy recalls, "I was not in the least aware of it, but I was one of only two women television technicians to get production credits. I was in the vanguard of women's lib and didn't even realize it."

Gives Credit

Commenting on her recent triple-crown literary success, Patsy said she owes a debt of gratitude to her fellow writers in Greenville.

"Members of the Greenville Writers Club have been instrumental in helping me in my writing," she said. "The critiques they have given at writers meetings sharpened the effective presentation of my material by pointing out what they felt were weak and strong points, especially in the 'Missy' manuscript."

She also credits students and faculty of the PCC creative writing class for being helpful. "They gave me some good suggestions after hearing the second chapter of the novel. It's good to have interested listeners."

After returning to Greenville in 1979, Patsy taught a freshman composition course at East Carolina University as well as the creative writing course at PCC. Since January of this year, she has curtailed her teaching activities to concentrate on her own writing.

"You can say I'm a writer finally getting around to the full time job of writing," she commented.

MACK THE WOODPECKER — Mrs. Jerry (Kay) Brady of Hardee Acres east of Greenville feeds raw hamburger to Mack, a half-grown red-headed woodpecker. Although he's named Mack, it's not known at this stage whether the fledgling is male or female. Mrs. Brady, her 6-year-old son, Alan, and her father, Harold Bowers, along with other family members, take turns feeding the bird. He was discovered in the woods behind the Brady and Bowers home as a featherless chick near his dead mother. They experimented feeding the founding tiny pellets of hamburger and giving him water with a medicine dropper. He has thrived, and now has earned his wings, flying around during the day, but returning faithfully mornings and evenings for his atypical food fare. Mrs. Brady says Mack has a happy and an angry song, depending on his mood. Mack gets along well with children, dogs and the humming-birds that frequent feeders in the Brady and Bowers yards. New Show At EEii's BELHAVEN — A special showing of art by two visiting artists, Ann Provo and Jacob Van Wyk, is now on view at EEii's little KORNERS of the world in Belhaven. Effie Raye and Julian Goff, in conjunction with the Belhaven Community Chamber of Commerce, is sponsoring the show which opened Friday as one of the town's Independence Day events.

EEii's, normally closed on Sundays, will be open from 1 to 5 this afternoon for the benefit of July 4 weekend visitors to Belhaven.

Van Wyk, a native of the Netherlands, is now an assistant professor of art at Trinity Christian College in Illinois. He is exhibiting examples of his stone-pulled and photo-screened lightographs. Van Wyk has exhibited extensively throughout the midwest. His wife is a Beaufort County native, the former Trina de Hoog of Terra Ceia.

Ann Provo, a teacher in the Wake County school system, crafts her own spinning wheels. She makes them for schools, universities and galleries. Ms. Provo also is a gifted spinner, and utilizes her own wheels to create unusual items. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Provo Jr., who now live and teach in the Belhaven area.

Home Town Boys, Green Grass Cloggers Performing Today

The Home Town Boys of the Greenville area will provide the Sunday entertainment today in the weekly "Sunday in the Park" program which begins at 7 p.m. on the grassy slope east of Reade and between Third and Fourth streets.

They will be joined in the program by members of the Green Grass Cloggers of Greenville, who will perform a number of traditional clogging dances.

Home Town Boys members are Mike Wells, mandolin and old-time banjo; John Worthington, guitar; Lane Hollis, blue-grass banjo and fiddle; and Howard Hill, string bass.

Each have had several years experience in a variety of musical styles, and are country music enthusiasts who concentrate on music of southern areas.

Bluegrass forms the basis for the sound of the Home Town Boys, who admit that they are influenced by the music making of the Stanley Brothers, Bill Monroe, and Lester Flatt.

The music they play has proven to be ideal for clogging groups who frequently appear with them in concerts, groups such as the Green Grass Cloggers.

Another aspect of their music for which they are well known is the close harmony duets popular during the 1930s which they perform as part of their repertoire.

Music performed by the Home Town Boys is acclaimed in the region by both young and old listeners.

Sunday in the Park, under the direction of Stuart Aronson, is sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, with funding provided by the City of Greenville.

There is no admission charged, and the public is invited to attend.

WOOW Classics

Six compositions, one on fireworks appropriate for the July celebrations by America, France and other nations of their July independence dates, is being featured by hostess Karen Hause on the "WOOW Classics" program airing from 10 p.m. until midnight tonight.

Tonight's "WOOW Classics" opens with Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture." This will be followed by Handel's "Music for the Royal Fireworks," Beethoven's "Wellington's Victory," and Strauss's "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme."

The final two selections will be Gustav Holtz's "Suite No. 1" and "Hungarian Dances" by Brahms.

WOOW Radio Station is 1340 on the radio dial.

NCSA Orchestra Will Perform In NC, Europe

WINSTON-SALEM — Nine faculty members and 19 students of the North Carolina School of the Arts will work with principal conductor George Trautwein for the NCSA International Music Program (IMP) this summer. Music students from colleges and universities throughout the United States will complete the 80-member orchestra.

North Carolina concerts will be at Pinehurst, Charlotte, Durham and Winston-Salem in early July. The IMP orchestra will leave its Pinehurst residency to perform concerts in Italy and Germany from July 20 through Aug. 16. The international orchestra includes the 80-member orchestra, a string orchestra, a chamber orchestra, a wind ensemble, a chamber music group and a jazz ensemble.

NCSA faculty members conducting various groups to perform in Europe under the artistic direction of Trautwein are violinist Stephen Shipp, the string and chamber orchestras; Vance Reger, oboist, the wind ensemble; Fred Bergstone, french horn, will work with the IMP orchestra; and Ron Rudkin, the jazz ensemble.

Other NCSA faculty members working with the IMP orchestra in North Carolina prior to the European tour are Philip Dunigan, flute; Eric Larsen, piano; Robert Marsh, cello; Sally Peck, viola; and Elaine Richey, violin.

THE HOME TOWN BOYS... a group specializing in a variety of country music styles, including harmony duets popular in the 1930s, is headlining the "Sunday in the Park" program at 7 p.m. today. The group will be joined by the Green Grass Cloggers of Greenville who will present traditional clogging. There is no admission charged and the public is invited to attend. Sunday in the Park is held on the grassy slope east of Reade Street between Third and Fourth streets.

From This Day Forward Is Opening On July 16

VALDESE — "From This Day Forward," the historic outdoor drama of the Waldenses, will open for the 1981 summer season on July 16, with presentations nightly Thursday-Sundays through Aug. 16. Performances begin at 8:45 p.m.

This is the 14th season for the drama, staged at the Old Colony Amphitheater, Valdese, in western North Carolina.

Tickets are priced at $4 for adults and $3 for children under 12. Group rates are also available for groups of 10 or more people. For information and reservations, write to: Old Colony Players, Box 112, Valdese, N. C., 28690. The phone number is (704) 874-0176.

"From This Day Forward" is based on the history of the Waldensian settlers from the Cottian Alps of Europe. Fleeing from a surplus of population after finally being no longer persecuted, a group of young Waldensian settlers in the middle of the 19th century traveled to America, where they purchased 15,000 acres of land in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina.

Their bright dream of prosperity and their communal experiment in this new environment were soon shattered, and it is this story and their struggle against poverty that is the heart of this dramatic folk history.

Shakespeare Festival

HIGH POINT — Season tickets are still on sale for the six performances being presented between July 7 and Oct. 10 at The North Carolina Shakespeare Festival, High Point. This summer season's offering includes three Shakespearean plays and three other attractions.

The Shakespeare plays being presented are "Hamlet," "As You Like It," and "The Comedy of Errors."

The three non-Shakespearean productions scheduled are Noel Coward's "Hay Fever," Frederick Knott's "Wait Until Dark," and "Just A Song At Twilight," a vaudeville production featuring music hall ditties and vaudeville schtick set against a Victorian backdrop.

The six attractions are being presented on an alternating basis so that the possibility of choosing convenient attendance dates are heightened.

Two subscription plans are offered. Plan A is for Friday and Saturday evenings, with tickets for the six events priced at $36.50. Plan B covers performances to be given Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings and Sunday matinees, with season tickets priced at $31. Season tickets also give the holder priority seating, a liberal ticket exchange privilege, special discounts at some restaurants and motels in the area, and newsletters and special notices.

Single admission tickets are $7.50 per performance on Friday and Saturday evenings, and $6.50 per performance on other nights.

For additional program details and ticket subscription, call (919) 889-1544 or 887-3001, or write to: The North Carolina Shakespeare Festival, P. O. Box 6066, High Point, N.C., 27262.

Two Birthdays

BLOWING ROCK — The Tweetsie Railroad, one of North Carolina's leading tourist attractions, is now celebrating its 25th year as a tourist feature, and its 100th year as a railroad. The Tweetsie Railroad theme park is located in the mountains of North Carolina in the Boone, Blowing Rock and Banner Elk area.

The railroad was built in 1881 to connect eastern Tennessee and western North Carolina.

Presenting Dance Benefit

DURHAM — The Paul Taylor Dance Company will present a benefit performance for the American Dance Festival (ADF) and for the company on Sunday, July 12. A second performance is scheduled for Monday, July 13. Both will be at 8 p.m. in Page Auditorium, Duke University.

Charles Reinhart, ADF president, said TV Station WNET in New York "planned to televise Taylor's new work, 'Arden Court,' for its 'Dance in America' series. This is usually done in a studio in Nashville, but Taylor wanted it done before a live audience, and the audience here (in North Carolina) is his favorite."

The decision to make the performance a benefit came when the ADF learned of a potential funding recession by the federal government. "Paul was concerned about the funding situation," Reinhart said, "and wanted to know what he could do to help."

WNET, in association with the British Broadcasting Corp. and the UNC Center for Public Television, Chapel Hill, will tape both the Sunday and Monday performances to be edited for a television broadcast at a later date.

Both programs will include a performance of "Arden Court," which was such a success at its New York City Center premiere last spring that it prompted the broadcast arrangements. Also to be performed are "Le Sacre du Printemps — The Rehearsal," "Aureole" and "Three Epitaphs."

General audience tickets are $15 for each performance. Special benefit tickets will be set aside for the Sunday performance — priced at $100 and $50. These tickets, tax-deductible, will include a cocktail buffet Sunday at the Ackland Art Museum, UNC-Chapel Hill. The $100 patrons will also be invited to a champagne reception on stage with members of the company after the Sunday performance.

The Paul Taylor Company segment of the "Dance in America" television series will be produced by Emile Ardolino and Judy Kinberg, and will be directed by Ardolino.

$55,000 In Grants For NCSA

WINSTON-SALEM — Robert Suderburg, chancellor of the N. C. School of the Arts, has announced that the school has received two corporate grants totaling $55,000 toward the "Vision in Motion" campaign.

International Business Machines Corp. has given a grant of $30,000. The gift represents IBM plants in Winston-Salem, Charlotte and the Research Triangle, as well as national headquarters.

A grant of $25,000 has been given by Pittsburgh's Kopper Industries, of which Nello L. Teer Contractors of Durham is a subsidiary.

The grants will be used in reconstruction of the Roger L. Stevens Center for the Performing Arts in downtown Winston-Salem.
