Reagan Budget Ceiling Broken By Interest Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — rates will drive federal spending $10 billion higher than President Reagan had planned next year despite his extensive budget cutting and rapidly receding inflation, the administration reported today.

Next year's budget is now expected to top $700 billion. In an updated budget and economic forecast, the Office of Budget and Management predicted that inflation would unwind even faster than earlier optimistic forecasts had called for.

Consumer prices, which jumped 12.4 percent in 1980, are expected to rise 8.6 percent this year and 6.2 percent in 1982.

The forecast for interest rates, however, was not so hopeful. Already near record levels, short-term rates are expected to remain above 10 percent through 1982. In addition, with virtually no economic growth predicted for the rest of this year, unemployment will rise to 7.7 percent in 1981 and remain at 7 percent or higher through 1982, according to the forecast. Rates will stay in double digits through 1982, the report predicts.

The mid-year forecast says Reagan is abandoning plans to hold spending in 1982 to $695.3 billion — the ceiling he set in February, when he proposed $48.6 billion in federal program cuts.

Instead, the administration now expects spending next year to total $704.8 billion because higher interest rates have driven up the government's borrowing costs by more than $10 billion.

Despite the spending increase, Reagan predicts the budget deficit for fiscal 1982 will actually be somewhat lower than that he had projected earlier — $42.5 billion rather than $45 billion.

The reduced deficit, however, is the result solely of Reagan's decision to scale down the size of his proposed tax cut for next year by $12 billion, the revised report said.

Interest rates also are pushing spending for this year to $661.2 billion, $6 billion above Reagan's earlier ceiling, but the anticipated budget deficit will rise less than $1 billion, to $55.6 billion, because of the smaller tax-cut proposal.

The revised spending figures do not back away from Reagan's pledge to balance the budget by 1984, but the increases brought on by economic events beyond the president's direct control raise doubt about his ability to achieve his balanced budget goal except by trimming his tax-cut plan.

The new figures provide some ammunition to Democratic critics of his plan to cut personal tax rates for three years in a row. They argue that it would be unwise for Congress to lock itself into a three-year cut, with the risk that higher than expected federal spending will lead to even wider deficits by 1984.

Reagan's forecasters are sticking with their optimistic predictions of February that the economy will grow by a healthy 5.2 percent in 1982 because of the stimulative effect his proposed tax cuts are supposed to have.

The economy, adjusted for inflation, is expected to grow 2.5 percent this year, but only because of a record jump in activity during the first quarter.

Promising Start

CHANTING UP THE PRICES — Auctioneer and buyers sweep through the rows of south Georgia's 1981 tobacco crop as sales of the flue-cured leaf began at the Farmers' Tobacco Warehouse in Valdosta. Prices averaged between $140 and $160 per hundred dollars at some Georgia markets with total sales of 3,525,982 pounds at an average of $141.56 for $4,991,381. Florida sales were 272,380 pounds at an average of $144. Total sales for the Georgia-Florida belt were 3,798,362 pounds at an average of $141.73. Sales consisted mostly of primings and nondescript, and none of the tobacco went under government subsidy. Last year's opening day brought sales of 4.9 million pounds averaging $126.20 per hundred. Syria Blames U.S. For Israeli Attack

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria's state radio today blamed U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib for Israel's escalated air attacks on Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon.

Israeli warplanes struck a dozen Palestine Liberation Organization guerrilla strongholds along Lebanon's Mediterranean coast and inland mountains Tuesday, killing 10 guerrillas and villagers and injuring 35, police said.

Israel jet fighters also shot down a Syrian jet in a dogfight over Syrian-held Lebanese territory. Syria maintains a 22,000-man army to police Lebanon's Moslem-Christian civil war armistice under an Arab League mandate.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said today that the downing of the Syrian jet was "not a serious situation." "The planes came to interfere with our fight against terrorists who are trying to kill men, women and children in our country and one of the planes was shot down. It has happened many times and I don't think it's anything serious, but we're on our guard," Begin said.

The official radio said hours before Habbib was expected to fly to Syria from Saudi Arabia.

An editorial in the Syrian newspaper Tichrin, which speaks for the ruling Socialist Baath Party, said today that Syria was determined to "defend Lebanon's territory and air space against Israeli intrusions at whatever cost."

These attacks obviously are a result of plain coordination between the U.S. administration and the Zionist enemy," the official radio said.

Warn Farmer Cash Rental Loans Will End

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

The Farmers Home Administration has begun informing farmers who obtain operating loans from the agency that it will not provide funding for cash rentals starting with the 1982 crop year.

The money policy represents a sharp reversal in what has been a tradition in Pitt and surrounding counties, and could produce a major impact on agricultural rentals.

FmHA officials said the policy will be applicable statewide, but it will be felt more in the Coastal Plain, where tobacco farmers have become accustomed to renting — and usually paying in advance — for quota and land.

"It is a drastic change here," according to Pitt County FmHA director Jimmy Smith. Smith said approximately 95 percent of all farm accounts

CP & L Customers Are Urged Conserve Power

By MARY SCHULKEN

The towns of Ayden and Farmville are appealing to their customers for conservation because of Carolina Power & Light Company's difficulties with the Brunswick no. one nuclear unit.

"We are appealing to our customers to conserve in any way possible," said Mark Suggs, utilities director for the town of Ayden. "Because we are wholesale customers, CP&L has not requested that we go into voltage reduction."

Retail customers such as those in Grifton and Grimesland are directly affected by the power company's five percent reduction in voltage. Wholesale customers, however, were given the option whether or not to reduce voltage.

"We will first appeal to customers to conserve," said Suggs. "Then if this doesn't work, we'll go to voltage reduction." Suggs said residents can conserve primarily by raising the thermostats on their air conditioners. "If the air conditioning units don't run as much, it will take a large load off us," he noted. "We will call and appeal to major businesses to cut back also."

The financial consequence, said Suggs, of the Brunswick plant trouble will be higher fossil fuel charges. "We expect these high (Please turn to Page 11)

Seek Cost Overrun Sum

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Utilities Commission last night approved an application to the state and federal governments for funds to pay for cost overruns — some $146,677 — incurred in the preparation of the city's 201 Wastewater Facilities Plan.

Orman Whichard of Olsen Associates, engineering consultants to the commission for the project, said federal guideline changes caused most of the delays which resulted in the eight-year planning period and the overruns.

The total cost for the project amounted to $211,677. So far, the consultant firm has been paid $48,008. The commission would be responsible for 12.5 percent or $17,742 of the total $206,406 of eligible costs.

In other business, the commission approved acceptance of a grant for $29,125 in state Clean Water Bond Fund money for construction of 2,100 feet of water mains along 14th Street, from Evans Street east, crossing Green Mill Run. The project is part of the city's Community Development project to widen 14th Street.

The total cost of the water main installation is estimated to be some $116,500.

The commission also accepted low bids for: employee uniforms, $21,374 from Hub Uniform Company; 10,000 feet of wire, $11,410 from Eastern Electric Supply Co.; 20 75KVA padmount transformers, $24,780 from Westinghouse Electric Supply Co.; 30 50KVA padmount transformers, $28,500 from Mill-Power Supply Co.; and four ½-ton compact pickup trucks, $27,200 from Toyota East, Inc.

The extension of water service to a proposed subdivision development south of White Road, outside the city's one mile extraterritorial jurisdiction, was approved by the commission upon recommendation of the City Council. Full cost of the extension is to be paid by the developer, Donnie Spain.

DMSO SAFETY?

I heard somebody on tv talking about DMSO and its many uses, including arthritis pain alleviation. It's been advertised around here lately and I'd like to know about its safety. M.J.

Hotline talked first to Reid Woodard, a pharmacist in the Department of Pharmacy Services, Pitt County Memorial Hospital. He said he would like to warn the public against the use of DMSO for purposes that have not been shown safe and effective by the Food and Drug Administration. "At the present time," he said, "three different strengths of DMSO are available on today's market. Only one of these strengths is approved for medical purposes. The other two strengths are for veterinary and industrial use. Use of any of these products topically or orally for arthritis, bursitis, tendonitis or muscle strains or sprains without the supervision of a physician is not recommended by the FDA due to several potential adverse effects. Anyone having further questions may call PCMH Pharmacy Services at 757-4481.

Hotline also talked to Milton Beneke, acting supervisor of the Raleigh office of FDA. He said over-the-counter sale of pharmaceutical-strength DMSO is illegal. The only use for which it can now be sold by prescription, he said, is a relatively rare bladder disorder called interstitial cystitis.

Controlled scientific study of the product has been approved by the FDA, he said, and is underway. However, he said, it appears unlikely that control of arthritis pain will be one of its approved uses. While it may alleviate pain, he said, it does no more than many other medications which have less suspect side effects and appears to help not at all in swelling and inflammation reduction.

DMSO is a by-product of the wood-processing industry which has been found to be a solvent that works well as a cleaner and which is very readily absorbed by animals, including humans, through the skin.

He warned against using industrial-grade DMSO for human use because its purity is not assured, as a pharmaceutical grade's would be.

Over-the-counter sale for veterinary use is approved, he said.

He said the FDA has not ruled out its wider application for human use in the future, but is not willing to approve its indiscriminate use until more is known about how it acts in the human body, what its adverse effects might be, and whether its efficacy is great enough to warrant its approval.

He also warned that those who do choose to use industrial or veterinary quality DMSO on themselves should be aware that prices usually are greatly inflated, since it's a relatively inexpensive product to obtain from wood initially. Pharmaceutical quality DMSO, once approved, might warrant higher pricing, he said, since it will undergo considerably more purifying than the industrial grade needs.

Violence Erupts In North Ireland

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Protesters hurling gasoline bombs attacked two police stations in Belfast early today and mourners gathered for the funeral of hunger striker Martin Hurson in Cappagh, to the west of the city.

In Belfast's Andersonstown and New Barnsley districts, police fired plastic bullets to disperse demonstrators attacking police stations in both centers, a police spokesman said.

In the Irish Republic, 200 pro-Irish Republican Army demonstrators, carrying two empty coffins, blocked the entrance to Shannon International Airport for nearly an hour, police said.

A man in paramilitary uniform fired three shots from a revolver over the coffins, the traditional IRA funeral salute.

Startled passengers watched as the demonstrators marched a half-mile to the terminal building, and dumped the coffins outside the state-owned British Airways office, while a protester climbed on to a canopy over the office waving six black flags. The demonstration apparently was aimed at dramatizing the deaths of IRA hunger strikers.

A one-mile traffic jam built up at the terminal entrance. Two police squad cars followed the march and police inside the terminal building watched the protest, but did not intervene. Police reported no arrests.

The Irish Times, meanwhile, reported that Ireland's Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald asked the Irish Embassy in Washington to seek President Ronald Reagan's personal intervention with the British government in the hunger strike protest in Northern Ireland.

White House spokesman David Prospero said in Washington that although Reagan visited the embassy Tuesday, he knew of no such request having been made to the president.

The IRA appeared determined to defy the British army and bury hunger striker Hurson with full military honors, including three volleys of rifle fire.

Sources close to the IRA said the guerrillas planned the rifle salute, even though British troops arrested a squad that fired the salute during last Friday's funeral of hunger striker Joe McDonnell.

Six activists were arrested in the raid, which triggered a gun battle and a two-hour riot. Four of them appeared in court Tuesday on weapons charges and were ordered held for trial.

The swoop was the first such British operation during an IRA funeral, which usually is exploited by the organization as a major political demonstration.

The death Monday of 27-year-old Hurson, the 56th Irish nationalist hunger striker to die at the Maze Prison, sparked 24 hours of riots and guerrilla attacks across the British province and police said at least six officers and a British soldier were wounded in bomb and gun attacks.

The latest incident occurred late Tuesday night at Dummigev, County Londonderry, when police fired plastic bullets to disperse a crowd of youths hurling gasoline bombs. Seven people were arrested. Police later found a crate of gasoline bombs during a search of the area.

A police spokesman said Catholic rioters threw more than 300 gasoline bombs and homemade hand grenades at security forces in the street battles.

The IRA is fighting to end British rule in Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland and unite the province with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic to the south.

Hurson died unexpectedly on the 45th day of his fast. He was serving a 20-year sentence for bombings and conspiring to kill soldiers.

The IRA is demanding that the British government give its members in jail special privileges that amount to political prisoner status.

Double Ring Rites Held

Miss Tamia JoAnne Fields and Wallace Reid Odum Jr. exchanged marriage vows in a double ring ceremony Friday, July 3, at six o'clock in the evening in Green Springs Park here. The setting for the exchanging of the vows was an arched wooden bridge. The Rev. Ervyn Williams officiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Fields of Goldsboro are parents of the bride. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. Wallace Reid Odum Sr. of Greensboro and Mrs. Elma Odum of Raleigh. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Ipock of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown of white cotton voile. The camisole bodice featured a tucked front, edged with cluny lace, accented with Venise appliques and closed with pearl buttons. The bodice extended into a short peplum over a gathered tiered floor length skirt. She carried a lace parasol with cascades of spring flowers and satin ribbon. She wore a halo of white silk flowers in her hair. Her only accessory was a strand of pearls, a gift from her brother.

Mrs. Pat Fadel was honor attendant and David Settle was best man. The flower girl was Shawna Chance.

After a wedding trip to the Outer Banks, the couple is living in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Eastern Wayne High School, Goldsboro, and Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, where she received a B.A. degree in English. During the past year she had done graduate study at ECU, where she plans to resume her studies in the fall. She is employed by Plants By Grant, Greenville.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Evans High School, Orlando, Fla. and attended ECU. He is employed by Dixon Construction Co., Greenville.

After the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at the home of the bridal couple. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Fadel and Miss Kimi Lacock presided at the bridal register.

The reception table was covered with a white Army and Navy cloth and decorated with an arrangement of mixed summer flowers flanked by silver candleholders with yellow burning tapers. Mrs. Edna Jensen assisted by Miss Rachel Jensen poured punch. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Ron Chance.

The mother of the bride entertained at a bridesmaids luncheon at Sweet Carolines Thursday honoring the bride-elect and attendants. A shower was given by Mrs. Lynn White and Miss Linda Smith for the bride-elect.

CANDY POWER
WACO, Texas. (AP) — Munching isn't the only way to convert candy bars into energy.

A solar-powered still, designed by Dr. Merle Alexander of Baylor University, turns candy by-products and scraps supplied by the local M&M-Mars, plant into highly flammable ethanol. Dr. Alexander markets the ethanol for mixing in gasohol and believes it can be an alternative to gasoline.

"There is an inevitable amount of waste in any food manufacturing process," a company spokesman said. "We're delighted that Dr. Alexander has found a productive use for our unmarketable candy." A new 1,000 gallon-per-day still will begin operating this summer.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Anise seeds have been added to cookies, cakes and sweet rolls by generations of bakers. Those cooks who have enjoyed its special flavor may be interested in trying it a new way — in a fresh Barlett pear cheesecake. Here's the recipe for such adventurers.

ANISE PEAR CHEESECAKE
Butter Crust, recipe follows
3 fresh Barlett pears
2 cups water
4 teaspoons lemon juice
2 packages (each 3 ounces) cream cheese
1-3rd cup sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 large eggs, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup commercial sour cream
1 egg white
3/4 teaspoon anise seed

Prepare Butter Crust. Pare, halve and core pears. In a large skillet heat the water with 3 teaspoons of the lemon juice; place pear halves, cut side down, in the hot water. Cover and simmer 2 minutes. Remove cover, turn pears carefully and simmer a minute longer. Remove from liquid and set aside. Soften cream cheese.

Mix sugar, flour and salt together. Add to cheese, along with the 2 egg yolks, remaining 1 teaspoon lemon juice and the vanilla; beat until smooth. Beat in the sour cream. Combine the 3 egg whites and beat to soft peaks. Fold the egg whites and 1/2 teaspoon of the anise seed into the cheese mixture. Turn into the Butter Crust and arrange the pear halves, cut side up, on top. Sprinkle with the remaining 1/4 teaspoon anise seed. Bake in the preheated 350-degree oven until set — about 45 minutes. Cool before cutting. Makes 6 servings.

Butter Crust: Stir together 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour with 2 tablespoons sugar and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Add 1/2 cup softened butter and 1 egg yolk and mix together with fork or fingers until a dough forms. Pat over bottom and 1/2 inch up sides of a 9-inch springform pan. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until partially baked — 10 minutes. remove from oven and fill as directed. Reset thermostat to 350 degrees to bake filled cheesecake.

Dear Abby Stop Hinting Tell The Truth

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband has this friend who is always dropping in around suppertime. Of course we have to ask him to stay for supper, but that's not the half of it. He sits around until 1:00 or 2:00 in the morning.

We've had to change our plans because of his unexpected visits. Sometimes he even brings his girlfriend along.

We have hinted that he should please let us know when he's coming, but it hasn't done any good. What should we do? We don't want to hurt his feelings, as he's a very sensitive man.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Sensitive? No way! Quit hinting. That's like using a BB gun when you need a cannon. Tell him what you told me. And if you don't get him to respect your wishes, you deserve the inconvenience he's causing you.

DEAR ABBY: WEAK IN ILLINOIS, who went from one adulterous affair to another, although she got nothing out of any of them, sounds like my ex-girlfriend. She was beautiful but as promiscuous as they come. Whenever she'd meet a stranger she was attracted to, they'd end up in bed. She was honest. She'd tell me about it, cry and promise it would never happen again, but it always did — about twice a week. She hated herself so much she attempted suicide four times in the six years we went together.

I paid for seven months of psychotherapy for her, during which time she was seducing her therapist and giving out her phone number to patients in his waiting room. Abby, that was the last straw!

Even though I really loved her, I finally had to break off the relationship. It wouldn't have done any good to have sent her to a female therapist. She was also bisexual.

LOVED A WEAK WOMAN

DEAR LOVED: Loving her as you did, you shouldn't have given up when you discovered that her therapist was both incompetent and unethical. Most therapists are well able to handle sexual advances from their patients. It's regrettable that you didn't find one who could. Therapy might have helped her to overcome her compulsive sexual behavior.

DEAR ABBY: May I contribute to your list of commonly misused words? "Presently" means "soon, before long," or "without undue delay." It does not mean, as is commonly assumed, "at the present time."

"The plane will arrive presently" is correct. "I am presently employed as a secretary" is incorrect. "Currently" is the word to use when one means "at the present time."

MELANIE

DEAR MELANIE: Thank you. I'll wager that many of my readers who are currently saying "presently" when they mean "currently" will be mending their ways presently.

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column a while back from a woman who said that every time she got pregnant, her husband started drinking. My problem is just the opposite. Every time my husband starts drinking, I get pregnant.

I love kids, but we've got just about all we can handle right now.

Don't tell me to use birth control. I've tried several methods, and they don't work for me.

You keep saying that a wife shouldn't turn her husband away when he wants sex because that gives him an excuse to find another woman. So what do you recommend?

ENOUGH KIDS

DEAR ENOUGH: Planned Parenthood for you, Alcoholics Anonymous for him and self-control for both of you!

DEAR ABBY: This is for that 18-year-old boy who is BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE: I am a 30-year-old single male, considered attractive by women, and I am about as bowlegged as they come.

When I was 18, I also felt self-conscious, but that never stopped me from asking a girl for a date. I just made up my mind that nobody's perfect and there are worse imperfections than having bowed legs. At least mine were strong and healthy and got me where I was going. (They even took me to the beach where my legs were in full view of the public.)

Keep this in mind: Any girl who would refuse to go out with a guy because he is bowlegged isn't worth spending your time and money on.

So, from one bowlegged guy to another, ask girls for dates and forget about your legs. Life is too short to do otherwise. BOWLEGGED AND NOT MISERABLE

Replica Of H.M.S. Bounty Is For Sale

NEW YORK (AP) — A film production company here is trying to unload a rather large prop: a full-scale replica of the H.M.S. Bounty, the scene of the 1789 mutiny against Capt. William Bligh.

The asking price is $4.5 million. Fred Sidewater, vice president of the Dino de Laurentiis Corp., said in an interview Wednesday that he has had a few calls from "people who want it in a few years for some sort of exhibition," but no firm offers.

The 133-foot square-rigger was built for a remake of "Mutiny on the Bounty," which never was filmed. It is fitted with two diesel engines and 10,500 square feet of flaxen sails. It can accommodate 30 people — enough for a sizable mutiny.

The Bounty now is bobbing in the waters off New Zealand.

Sidewater was vague about what went wrong with the film project, but apparently it had to do with money.

Major Changes For Port

A few years ago Radio Island, a tiny peninsula on the inland fringe of Beaufort Inlet, had one claim to fame: it held the transmitter for Morehead City's radio station. Today the island has become the focal point of North Carolina's effort to enter the coal-exporting industry on a large scale. At stake is the future of state port facilities in the mouth of the Newport River.

Alla-Ohio has begun shipping coal by train to Morehead City for export, a process that is making itself felt at railroad crossings from the coast through the Piedmont as motorists wait for unusually long trains to pass. Still to be settled are complaints from numerous inland cities where officials, and citizens, are upset by the delays in traffic and the rumbling of the trains.

But, of equal urgency, is the still unresolved question of what will happen to Beaufort Inlet and its inland environs if all of the proposed activity is carried out. Alla-Ohio and Gulf Interstate each want to place an export facility for coal on Radio Island. A third firm, Wheelabrater-Frye Inc., has indicated it may seek authority to build an underground slurry — a facility for moving coal through a pipeline — in the same area to connect with an offshore loading facility.

The slurry would be built beneath marshlands, islands and anything else, but the proposed terminals for Radio Island would be dependent upon the Beaufort Channel as an access route for colliers to transport the coal. The channel has been a challenge since the State Ports Authority set up operations at Morehead City. Dredging has been a problem and channel stability has been difficult, if not virtually nonexistent. The channel now is, at various times, at 40 feet, but depths of 55 feet or greater would be needed for the larger colliers coming in for coal. Based on previous experience, year-round dredging would not be unlikely.

Is it worth all that? Possibly, but only if the port, and the channel itself, is enlarged sufficiently to turn Morehead City into a truly major port. It's doubtful if Carteret County residents, or those further inland, want such an occurrence in a traditionally easy-going, tourist-oriented community.

England's Long, Hot Summer

Riots plaguing the great cities of Britain do pose, as Prime Minister Thatcher said, a threat to "destroy everything we value."

Accounts concur the mobs are comprised of children and "young people"; too young to have assimilated the traditions, the culture and values associated with Britons. The country is no longer a homogenous people.

Underemployment is widely regarded as a factor; but the British have had that problem for decades.

Reports of "directed" strategy, as well as pre-arranged violence in some of the later disorders, would suggest a planned using of the mindless mobs to accomplish ends that conceivably reach into the political field.

Far-reaching? Not necessarily so. The present Conservative government has only a slender majority and its only rival, the Labor Party, has seen its leadership moving from a moderate Socialist "left" to a more extremist level. So much so, that some of its former leaders have set up a separate party.

Irregardless. The seeds of distrust and disunity have been sown in the most unlikely of places. It bodes for a long, hot summer in olde England.

THIS AFTERNOON

Pay Legal Costs?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The state and federal governments have virtually unlimited resources when it comes to pressing a case against a citizen.

No wonder the popular response is, "You can't fight city hall."

A Republican legislator from Lexington has a better idea. His proposal would help the average citizen who can prove his case in court that government is pushing him wrongly. The government would have to pick up the tab for court costs and reasonable legal fees.

The federal government has already adopted such a measure which takes effect in October, and State Rep. Joe H. Hege, Jr., thinks North Carolina should do likewise.

"There are 18 other states with similar type legislation introduced or pending at this time. Four states, the most recent being Virginia, have already adopted this type legislation," says Hege.

Recovery
The nut of Hege's proposal is simply this: whenever the state takes civil action against a citizen, or a citizen contests the action of a state agency, the court costs and

BILL NOBLITT

"reasonable" attorney fees must be paid by that state agency from its existing budget funds. If the private citizen wins, and when the court finds that the state agency "acted unreasonably in pressing its initial claim..."

"Many times, when it comes to challenging unreasonable interpretations of law and government regulations, small business is the most defenseless in terms of available money and manpower.

"Small businesses seem to be hit hardest by government regulations because while they are subject to more regulations than individuals, they often have no more resources to defend themselves than a single individual might possess," Hege says.

The net result, he finds: small businesses give up and pay fines they believe are unjustified, rather than go to court and pay legal fees they can't afford.

Some who oppose the proposal argue it would cost taxpayers money to provide the defense for a private individual or firm taking a state agency to court. That begs the question, Hege feels. In the first place, taxpayers are already paying for the government agency to press the case. And, to find that agency having to pay legal fees for the wronged party only proves that the agency was pushing in the wrong direction to begin. The hoped for result, Hege says, is that state agencies will take pause before pushing a case far enough that a court case would result. The provision in the measure that the legal bill must be paid from existing funds.

Picking The Best Man

"Wouldn't it be wonderful," said Lady Di to Prince Charles, "if John McEnroe was your best man at our wedding?"

"That would be smashing," Prince Charles said. "I don't think an American has ever been best man at a royal English wedding."

"I wonder if he would do it," Lady Di said.

"I'm certain he would, particularly if we explained how much it meant to all our subjects."

"I must say the British people do love him. What magic do you think he holds over the empire?" Lady Di said.

Prince Charles said, "If I had to sum it up I would call it savoir faire. The chap seems to have been born with it. Remember when he went up to the lineswoman at Wimbledon and joked with her about her call? The dear woman was so charmed she was speechless."

"He also had a sense of friendliness about him that is lacking in most Yanks. He'll interrupt the middle of a match to talk to the head umpire. No one ever interrupts what he's doing to talk to the umpire anymore."

Prince Charles said, "Do you think I should call Mum, and ask her if it's all right?"

Lady Di said, "I don't know why we have to call Mum. I believe if we kept it a secret from everyone it would be a marvelous surprise. Everyone else will be in uniform and John will be standing there in his Wimbledon blazer holding his trophy over his head as I walk

Strength For Today

WHOSE BURDEN?
In a letter to the Galatian Christians, St. Paul made two statements which at first glance seem to conflict.

"Every man shall bear his own burden," he wrote in one place, and in another, "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

Everyone should indeed be able to bear his own burdens. We all know how fine it is to have strong, self-reliant people about us, who can take responsibility and look after themselves. Life is easier when everyone can stand on his own feet.

But the world would not be a very companionable place if we all went our own separate ways without sharing our lives with anyone else. If we live with other people and love them, we cannot help sharing their burdens also.

St. Paul did not contradict himself. We should all be strong enough to bear our own burdens, but loving enough to bear those of others; and helping others to bear their burdens gives us more strength to bear our own. — Elisha Douglass

Rare Sign Of Innovation

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Amid Democratic efforts to outbid President Reagan on taxes, one of the party's bright new figures is devising a strategy for the future to free Democrats from sterile liberal orthodoxy.

He is 39-year-old Rep. William M. Brodhead of Michigan, chairman of the liberal House caucus (Democratic Study Group). His audacity has kept Democrats from turning their tax fight into a crusade against the rich, and he has much bolder designs for the future.

Brodhead, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, sees nothing gained economically or politically by Chairman Dan Rostenkowski's efforts to redistribute income through taxes. Instead, Brodhead is thinking about dropping all tax rates down to 35 percent, accompanied by a Democratic caveat: closing important tax shelters.

Here is a rare sign of Democratic innovation which Brodhead believes must be applied to every issue for his party to appeal to individual Americans instead of special interest groups. While claiming their heritage as party of the people, the Democrats have become a party afraid of the people.

Brodhead walked onto the national tax policy stage early this year with his surprise proposal to drop the top 70 percent rate on "unearned" income (dividends and interest) to 50 percent. While failing in its intent to outflank Reagan (who quickly embraced it), Brodhead's move and its acceptance by the Democratic leadership had far-ranging consequences not yet fully appreciated.

Jude Wanniski, prophet of supply-side economics, wrote Brodhead commending him as the economic Arthur Vandenberg of the 1980s. Indeed, by declaring the rich also need tax incentives, Brodhead moved toward ending Democratic bias against wealth that has distorted the party's economic policies.

But the distortion continued in Rostenkowski's frantic efforts to outdo Reagan's tax package. While piling on tax-cutting "goodies" for business, he has performed Democratic ceremonial income redistribution by concentrating tax reductions in lower brackets. Brodhead holds his tongue in deference to his chairman, but sees little value in the emerging Democratic bill.

In early June with Rostenkowski and the White House in a bidding war over tax "goodies," a more rational approach was sought by the House Republican Conference chairman and principal political agent of the supply-side movement: Rep. Jack Kemp of New York. He walked over to Brodhead's office to suggest that they jointly back massive reductions of both "unearned" and "earned" income to the 30-35 percent level.

Brodhead was interested, but insisted that deep rate cuts must be accompanied by traditional Democratic "reforms" closing tax shelters. That doomed Kemp's hopes for a quick bipartisan bill, and he has not been in touch with Brodhead since then.

However, Brodhead has seen Wanniski, Kemp's old economic tutor. Brodhead is intrigued with the supply-side theory that marginal tax rate reduction will increase growth and, therefore, increase tax revenue for liberal social welfare programs.

Brodhead has carried on without Kemp, seeking not a bipartisan formula for the present but a partisan Democratic strategy for the future. He proposes a maximum 35 percent rate for all taxpayers, linked to "reforms" cracking down not only on real estate tax shelters but hitherto inviolable business expense accounts.

That will encounter resistance from conventional Democrats. But for the first time since the advent of Kemp-Roth, it would seize the offensive on taxes for the Democrats by challenging free enterprisers to give up tax shelters in return for lower rates.

It also belatedly would enlist Democrats in the tax revolution. "I think it's indecent for working people to pay taxes over 35 percent," Brodhead told us. He is after a restored Democratic appeal to ordinary Americans.

That goes beyond tax policy. Brodhead believes his party has become the agent of special interest groups spawned by the Great Society. Although it was using politics to oppose the Vietnam war that attracted young Bill Brodhead to the Democratic Party when he entered the Michigan legislature a decade ago, he now wants a focus closer to the center.

There is no new focus in current Democratic tax tactics designed primarily to save Dan Rostenkowski from floor defeat in his debut as Ways and Means chairman. In contrast, Brodhead's tax notions are the first clear signs of unfossilized Democratic thinking since Reagan came to town.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, July 15, the 196th day of 1981. There are 169 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 15, 1945, Italy declared war on Japan, its former axis partner during World War II.

On this date:
In 1606, the Dutch artist, Rembrandt, was born in Leiden.

In 1789, France's King Louis XVI was awakened and told that his authority had collapsed with the fall of the Bastille prison.

In 1870, Georgia became the last of the Confederate States to be readmitted to the Union.

And in 1975, America's Apollo spacecraft and the Soviet Union's Soyuz blasted into orbit for a rendezvous in space.

To the editor:

In reading, "The Tarheel Firefighter," I came across this article that really fits our department and, I feel, a lot of other departments. Volunteer firemen are a special group of people who are willing to give their time and service to those in need of help. Everyone in the county needs to read this, and maybe then they'd realize we are not in this type of service for the pay, praise or glamour, but for a satisfied mind of lending a helping hand.

Yes, Mr. Citizen, I'm that Redneck Volunteer Fireman. I chew tobacco and have one of those silly red lights in my car. I even blow my horn at you when I'm going on a call. Sometimes my siren wakes you up at night and, at times, you may have to wait at a light a little longer to let me by. But, I'm not going to apologize.

You complain about me wasting your tax money, but don't understand when I say I can't get the equipment up pumping out your pool. You say I don't know my job, but when you smell smoke at night and call me, suddenly I'm an expert. You complain because my boss lets me leave work for a fire and doesn't let you leave for your social club meeting, but you forget the night the plant caught fire and I saved your job.

You say I'm only in it for fun, but you fail to see my sickness and exhaustion following a fire. You say I like seeing injuries and that death doesn't bother me, but how could you understand my sleepless night because of the life I couldn't save.

I pray that you and others in the community never need my services, and all I ask in return is that you pray for me while I do my job. I'm not a perfect person and I'll never say I am; but yes, Mr. Citizen, I'm a Redneck Volunteer Fireman, and pretty proud of it.

An Enormous Energy Savings

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — New cars use less fuel. So do new commercial jets. And new houses also. "Demand for energy is declining quite sharply because of changes in the (nation's) capital stock," said the professor.

He observed that consumer psychology has changed too: People actually are cutting down on usage, and using alternative fuels. France and Japan have nuclear plants coming on stream. The United States has coal.

Coal isn't just an alternative; it is far more efficient, too, costing only 30 percent to 40 percent the cost of oil when measured in the output of British thermal units. The United States has plenty of it.

The enormity of the energy change has not been popularly appreciated, said Robert Z. Aliber, professor of international economics, Graduate School of Business, University of Chicago. "It is not properly perceived," he said, asserting that dependence on OPEC is declining.

Political interests, he suggested, may not acknowledge the change for fear of upsetting the conservation trend. But, he continued, "You're getting a little sense of it now in the lower prices of oil company shares," some of which are down 30 percent since early this year.

For the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, he said, it means economic problems. "Very few OPEC countries invested wisely," he said. "Gold, military aircraft. But their industrial operations aren't efficient." In a world market, he said, they cannot compete.

Because of the changed supply-demand ratio, the economic outlook for nations heretofore dependent on OPEC oil is now different from what it was, according to Aliber. They'll pay less for oil. And they may have other sources of supply, too, a result of discoveries made in recent years.

But in Aliber's view, the major change in the ratio has been that users have redesigned their capital equipment.

There are, he points out, 100 million cars in the United States. Each year, 10 million are scrapped and 10 million new ones added to stock. The scrapped cars were getting 10 or 11 miles to the gallon, whereas the new ones are getting 23 miles. That trend will continue, he says.

The cars coming into use were designed when oil cost $12 a barrel back in 1973-1974, said the professor. Now, with oil at about $40 a barrel, further savings in miles per gallon are being designed into cars that will be used in the mid-1980s.

And that process of making more fuel-efficient automobiles, he says, "will continue for another 15 years."

Something similar is occurring in housing, although it may take 40 years or so to recycle the nation's housing stock, compared with only 10 years for automobiles. Jet aircraft also are being recycled.

Already, Aliber points out, OPEC production is down substantially. But what happens to OPEC when Iran and Iraq settle differences and again seek to be factors in the international oil market? "In time, those countries will begin to export, and other OPEC countries will have to reduce their output," predicts Aliber.

Two Claim A 'Rip-Off' By Pageant's Officials

By JACK A. SEAMONDS
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two of this year's 36 contestants for the title of Miss Black America say the promoter "ripped off" the participants with unkept promises of a pageant in the Caribbean.

Veronica Lewis, 20, a college student from Columbus, and Denise McGough, 20, of Toledo, said contestants and their relatives paid $500 each for a trip to Jamaica and never got back the money when the June 19 event was moved at the last minute to Stroudsburg, Pa.

"None of the girls was wealthy, and none of them could afford to lose that kind of money," said Miss Lewis, a singer whose expenses were paid by sponsors she had contacted.

The promoter, J. Morris Anderson of Philadelphia, started the pageant in 1967. He said refunds for the Jamaica trip will be made within 30 days.

The two women charged on the local cable television service, Qube, that contestants were lodged two to a bed, four to a room; got poor meals; and were forced to perform their dance and musical routines up to 14 hours a day before television crews at the Sheraton Pocono in Stroudsburg. They said Anderson planned to sell tapes of the talent demonstrations and that they would not share in the profits.

But Anderson said, "The Miss Black America Pageant has always been a television-oriented production."

"In my opinion, they were not worked too long. They really enjoyed what they were doing."

Anderson said the Sheraton Pocono in Stroudsburg was the only hotel "that would provide us with free rooms at the last minute, and that's why there were four girls in each room."

The pageant was held in Jamaica last year but switched to Stroudsburg when Anderson refused to sign a contract with the country, said a spokesman for the Jamaican Tourist Board in New York.

The spokesman, who asked that his name not be used, said Jamaica "was dying for the business" but had requested a contract because last year Anderson sold plane tickets and lodging and meal vouchers that were given him for free. The contract he rejected banned such sales, the spokesman said.

Anderson replied that "the contract just couldn't be worked out" and he knew nothing about a contract prohibition against "being able to sell the tickets and rooms."

The spokesman estimated that Anderson was paid this year "between $50,000 and $60,000" for air fares.

Anderson said the rooms in which the contestants stayed for the event were provided free by the hotel, but no part of entry fees had been earmarked for lodging. He said the fees covered only "promotional expenses for the pageant and expenses to organize it."

But Miss Lewis said, "We were told the meals and rooms would be paid for with our entry fee."

Denice Guice, one of the promoters of the Columbus pageant, said Anderson and his staff repeatedly emphasized "the need to keep things simple and make a profit. The idea was to take them for all the money they've got and not spend any."

Ezele Stephens of Philadelphia, a school teacher who ran the contest in that city, said, "When it (the pageant) started out, it was very nice, but it has gotten to be a million-dollar operation and he (Anderson) has gotten greedy."

ing budgets and not from special funds should help in that respect if an administrator must figure the impact a loss would have on his budget.

Pushing
Hege hopes to keep the proposal alive during the summer recess of the General Assembly so that action will take place when the legislators return in October.

The North Carolina Restaurant Association has swung behind the measure strongly. That organization often sees the effects of government regulation at work in the field, through safety and health law and regulation enforcement. Restaurants are among the most supervised businesses there are.

Jerry Williams, executive vice president of the Restaurant Association, is urging members to support the proposal, and reminds them in a memorandum that restaurant operators are often found in violation of state agency rules which were created administratively and are not based on actual law.

"This is a real opportunity for the free enterprise system to fight increasing government regulations...it will require government agencies to be sure of the intent of legislation and not attempt to enforce beyond their authority," Williams thinks.

Stab Wound For Lawman

EMERALD ISLE, N.C. (AP) — An Emerald Isle policeman was recovering from a stab wound Tuesday after being attacked while investigating a suspicious vehicle.

Officer Clifton Ward Jr. said he saw two people standing behind a van and when he walked behind the van, he was stabbed in the back Monday night.

"I didn't realize at first that I had been stabbed. Everything happened so quickly that I don't remember a lot of what happened until the van began to leave."

The officer was treated at Carteret General Hospital for a stab wound just below the shoulder blade.

The State Bureau of Investigation has been called in to assist in the investigation.

East Federal

Sets Conversion Ask Public Turn In Handguns

East Federal Savings of Kinston reported that it has received approval by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to proceed with the conversion from a mutual to a stock savings and loan and the offering of stock to its members and the public.

W. W. Whittington, president, said a total of 500,000 shares will be offered at approximately $6 per share. Shares not subscribed to by eligible depositors will be offered to other residents of Pitt County and the surrounding communities, he stated.

"At the time conversion was approved by the members, it was proposed that 600,000 shares would be sold at about $8 per share," Whittington said. "However, an adverse stock market and operating losses of the association prompted a reduction in the appraisal by Trident Financial Corp.," he added.

Whittington said, "The association may continue to experience operating losses for some time, as a result of high interest rates on savings and low returns on fixed rate home loans." However, he said, "as these loans are repaid and the money reinvested in higher yielding, market-sensitive investments, the association hopes to show continued improvement in operations."

Whittington said, "The regulations on savings rates were removed sooner and more rapidly than were the restrictions on loans and it's just going to take time for the savings and loan industry to work through the current earnings squeeze — to work out of long-term fixed rate loans and implement some of the new investment powers recently enacted for savings and loans."

East Federal, with resources of $185 million, has ten offices in eastern North Carolina in addition to its offices in Greenville and Farmville. Organized in 1924, it is the 13th largest of the state's 196 savings and loans, the president reported.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — Saying it's a mistake for people to believe that owning a handgun is extra protection against crime, the police chief is asking residents to turn in their handguns.

"The opportunity for a person to use a gun in face-to-face confrontation with a criminal is extremely rare," Police Chief Donald Story said. City officials announced the program Monday.

Foster Children Changed Their Lives

"WE JUST LOVE CHILDREN"... Carol and Ernie Grigsby of Ayden are foster parents. They have been taking children into their home for the past 17 months. Asked why, they replied: "We just love children, that's all."

Last in a series

By SUE FERNALD
Reflector Staff Writer

"This year was the first year we ever had Christmas with children. It was so neat, they just stood there and looked!" said Carol Grigsby.

Carol and Ernie Grigsby opened their home in Ayden to foster children a little more than a year ago. They have no children of their own, but say since they became foster parents "there hasn't been a time when we didn't have any."

"Looking back, I guess we went a little overboard. We kept all the Christmas presents in my parents' attic and when Christmas Eve came we took them all down and there were just presents everywhere!" Carol said. "Momma just looked at the pile and said, 'Have you all gone crazy?'"

Every day life is an experience for the Grigsbys and their three current foster children, two girls and a boy. The boy and older girl are brother and sister. The children all have household chores, washing dishes, emptying the trash or whatever comes up.

"I don't like it," said the younger of the two girls. Asked if they would change anything, the oldest and most talkative girl remarked: "I wish Mom and Dad would get a dishwasher."

"The first time they call you and tell you a child is coming it really gets you off guard," said Mrs. Grigsby who, like her husband, is 28. "You just sit and wait."

"Most of the children walk right in the door and call you Mom and Dad," she said. "But, we've had two who didn't."

On the whole, the Grigsbys said the children adapt quicker than they do. But once they all get over the initial shyness, "They're just like they were our own children. They even call Mom and Dad granddad and grandmom," Carol said.

"Our parents took it very well," she said. "The children talk about them to other children and tell what they do at their grandparents' homes."

So far, the Grigsbys have had nearly a dozen foster children. They both agreed that "it is a wrench when they leave." Ernie said he was glad he was not home when the last child—a small boy—left.

"Yes, you do get attached. But, after a while you don't feel sorry. You just hope their situation has improved, that's all you can hope for," he said.

When the children leave, "I think, well at least I've had a chance to help the child and show him what a home can be like. And, then pray that their family has really turned around and deserve to get the child back," he said.

Visits to the natural home by children are sometimes stressful for the Grigsbys, but they're to be expected so they do the best they can.

"You wonder if they're going to be hurt while at home," Ernie said, but added that the Department of Social Services—which places the children in foster homes—"does not take chances so most of the time my mind is at rest."

They do have problems, however. One of the heartaches is when natural parents lie to the children.

"We do have a problem with getting the children to see their parents are lying," he said. "And, the kids have a hard time facing it, but we try to bring them into reality."

The major thing the Grigsbys try to do when the children return from visits is carry on as usual.

The Grigsbys have found that each child is a different case. "Some will talk and some won't" he said. "We don't probe, when they get ready to face it they'll talk about it themselves so we just try to provide a very stable environment."

"Most of the children want to go back to their real parents. They feel like they can't say they want to desert mom and dad so it's very difficult."

Some of the Grigsbys' foster children have reacted violently to the final return to the real parents.

One girl talked constantly about how much she wanted to go back. Yet, when the time came she became physically ill. A doctor examined her and found that extreme anxiety was causing her illness.

The current foster children say they love their home and they love "Mom and Dad." They go to school, belong to the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church, and have hobbies and friends in the neighborhood.

"I love to read," said the oldest girl. According to Carol the boy, who is shy, likes cars and trucks. "That's his life, if you know what I mean," Carol said. The youngest girl, a pretty blonde, likes to play with her Barbie dolls.

The family has just gotten a grey-striped tiger kitten, Muffin, who is also one of the children's responsibilities.

Carol said church members have been fantastic. "When you get a call in the middle of the night, you don't have enough time to clothe them. I would talk to one person on the phone and soon there would be a couple of ladies from the church bringing over pajamas, diapers, anything we needed."

"The majority of the children come with nothing," she said, "and if they do come with clothes I generally throw them out."

Dressing the children well is important to Carol because, she said, it gives the children a sense of pride. "I have overheard one of my girls telling a friend, 'My Momma always dresses me nice,'" she said.

Carol stopped working outside the home when they started taking in foster children. But, in many foster homes, both parents work. The choice is personal. Another difference between the Grigsby home and other foster homes is that a large number of foster parents have their own children.

Having foster children has made Carol and Ernie love children all the more, they said. "If I have a child of my own, I won't stop taking in foster children, if there's space we'll just fit the baby right on in," Carol added.

"The only place where having foster children affected our lives was that we didn't go out as much," Ernie said. "The kids also get clothes before we do."

To keep the marriage going the Grigsbys have their own special times. One night a week they go out. "If we're not happy, the kids aren't happy," Ernie said.

Asked if the children ever tell the Grigsbys they loved them, Carol replied: "Oh, yes. A hundred times a day, they say I love you Mom and Dad."

Applications Are Accepted For Program

The Human Resources Development Program (HRD) at Pitt Community College is now accepting applications for enrollment for a new class which begins August 3. This eight-week job placement program is designed to help adults who are school dropouts, unemployed and economically disadvantaged. Recipients of public assistance are especially encouraged to apply.

Charles Dickens, HRD coordinator, explained that his department hopes to enroll persons from all of the Pitt County townships including Greenville, Fountain, Grifton, BellArthur, Falkland, Pactolus, Farmville, Ayden, Swift Creek, Belvoir and Winterville.

Dickens said, "HRD works closely with the Employment Security Commission, the Department of Social Services, Martin County Manpower Program, Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Association, Greenville and Mid-East Housing Authority, Greenville and Pitt County Schools and numerous other agencies within the Greenville/Pitt County area."

HRD operates jointly under the auspices of the Department of Community Colleges and the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development. This joint effort is designed to reach the jobless and the economically disadvantaged in the Pitt County area.

Appointments for interviews should be made by coming to the HRD office on the PCC campus or by telephoning 756-3130, ext. 255.

Jaycee Gift

The Greenville Jaycees recently presented a check for $4,000 to the Boys Club of Pitt County Development Fund. The check was presented to Chet Emerson, executive director of the Boys Club, by Jaycee and former Boys Club board member Doug Hill.

Hill said, "Although the check was not due until December, by giving the money now it will save the Boys Club substantial interest costs on borrowed money."

The Greenville Jaycees have pledged $25,000 towards the new Boys Club facility. Emerson noted that the Jaycees have been supportive of the Boys Club since its beginning in 1969.

"The Greenville Jaycees are just one example of the many outstanding clubs in our area whose members give their time and efforts to make our community a better place in which to live."

Construction of the new Boys Club is near completion with occupancy scheduled for August.

Expedition Plans Hunt For Bigfoot

By R.D. GERSH

Associated Press Writer
CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — Maybe there really isn't a Bigfoot out there in Chesapeake's Northwest River Park.

But an anthropologist, a psychic, a gaggle of reporters, Chamber of Commerce officials and the mayor of Chesapeake all planned to be out there today for the great expedition in search of Bigfoot.

The July 8 edition of the Chesapeake Post reported that campers in the sprawling, heavily wooded park in a remote section had recently seen, heard or smelled the rancid critter.

That set off the telephone calls.

"I came in here yesterday and the damn phone was ringing every five minutes," B.J. Sessions, a reporter for the weekly newspaper, said Tuesday.

The Chesapeake Post had already played gracious host to The Associated Press and namesake Washington Post in the search for Bigfoot.

Park Ranger Pat Higgins, the local expert on Bigfoots and leader of the planned safari, "has become a damn national hero," Sessions said. "He's taking it very nonchalantly, but he's really tickled."

Sessions said the story brought forward a Navy commander who said he had actually seen, well, something, three years ago but had been unwilling to come forward before. Unfortunately, the officer didn't have his camera with him.

"And some little kid called and said we should put a whole lot of mud on the ground and then track it back to its den."

Even Sessions, who would love to find Bigfoot — and publish the first picture in the Chesapeake Post — said he's "a little skeptical."

"But these people are putting their sanity on the line," he said. "Even if it just takes people's minds off their worries, it's worth it. I really hope we can find out what it is. Even if it's not a Bigfoot, there's got to be something out there."

As Higgins explained, the reports from Chesapeake fit the general picture that has emerged around the world of such creatures, whether they are called Bigfoots, skunk apes, Yetis or abominable snowmen.

They're about 7 to 8 feet tall, hairy, extremely smelly and very timid.

His theory is that, if there is a Bigfoot out there, it's either hungry — campers cook — or lonely. There can't be many other Bigfoots out there for company.

Republicans Have Meeting

The Pitt County Young Republicans (PCYR) held their monthly meeting at the office of McIntyre & Gerry in Greenville. Hal McKinney, treasurer of the Pitt County Young Republicans, reported that the travel mug sale was successful and the treasury now has a healthy balance.

Val Weatherington was appointed chairman of the PCYR Membership Committee. Miss Weatherington will have the responsibility of developing and executing programs to attract new members between the ages of 18 and 40. Shirley Gerry, chairman of charges to come into effect in September," he said.

CP&L's actions came after damage to the non-nuclear turbine generator of its Brunswick unit one plant. The damage is expected to keep the unit out of service until mid-September.

The plant, according to CP&L officials, had been out of service for major maintenance this spring. While the unit was being returned to service, bearings in the turbine generator were damaged. The cause of this failure is being investigated.

"The company assured us yesterday," said the Ayden utility director, "that there would be an ample supply of electricity for us now and in the future — they just want customers to conserve."

"We are constantly asking our customers to conserve," said Bud Wooten, director of Farmville's utility department. "We have received no plea from CP&L for special conservation efforts, but we do hope residents will cut back."

Polish Party Congress Holds Closed Session

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The divided delegates to an emergency Communist Party congress returned to work today in closed session to decide how to elect their party chief.

The threat of a new outbreak of labor unrest in Poland while the congress was meeting seemed to be easing. Baltic Coast dock workers said today the government had "responded" to their demands for better benefits and official recognition and plans for a "hunger march" today in Kutno to protest food shortages were called off.

But in the manufacturing city of Torun, workers at an electronics office equipment factory threatened a warning strike July 24 unless the government dismisses the factory director.

First Secretary Stanislaw Kania, a moderate, was still the favorite for re-election, but official sources said any more delay in winning the party's nod would weaken his position.

One source, asking not to be identified, said Kania's opening speech to the congress Tuesday left many delegates unhappy, thinking that it offered no new solutions to Poland's economic and political crisis.

"People were not so satisfied with his speech," the source said. "Even if it was the Central Committee speech, he still read it. The language was hard and the same as speeches in the past."

The official sources said today's deliberations were expected to settle the procedural question of how to pick a party leader, but still not bring an actual election.

A working group chaired by Kania had proposed to elect the party chief at the opening session rather than wait until the end, as is standard at Soviet bloc Communist Party congresses.

A first-day election was seen as a move to consolidate Kania's position for the rest of the congress, which was called to try to put in place solutions to Poland's problems.

But Kania's plan may have backfired. Just before the formal congress opening Tuesday, in a closed procedural meeting where the delegates were expected to approve the plan for a quick election, they bogged down in divisions over competing voting schemes.

Some delegates voted for a plan under which candidates for the job would have been nominated and voted on by the full congress. But others wanted nominees picked by a new Central Committee that is to be elected later in the week, according to Polish sources.

Kania still is expected to win re-election, but some delegates said three other men might be nominated for the top party post, including Politburo member Stefan Olaszowski, a conservative rival to Kania. Others named were Vice Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski and Gdansk area party chief Tadeusz Fishbach, both seen as moderate or liberal figures in the party.

Delegates who spoke with reporters differed on the merits of the plan for a quick election of the party chief.

"Every delegate wants to see this as the most democratic congress and that is why there is such deep controversy," said delegate Dominik Horodyski, a 60-year-old magazine editor. Kania, 54, has been leader of the party since the ouster last September of Edward Gierek, who toppled by the wave of nationwide strikes that has put in motion-sweeping political and social change.

But since Kania's rise to power, new political currents stirred by last year's strikes have affected the party and the position of those who ran it in September. About 70 percent of the party's 143-member Central Committee was not even re-elected at congress delegates. But 21 percent of the delegates are also members of Solidarity, Poland's powerful independent labor movement.

Solidarity's skyrocket rise to influence is backed by moderate and liberal support for reform of Poland's politics and crippled economy. But Soviet bloc concern that reforms and liberalization could go too far remains intense.

Moscow city party chief Viktor Grishin, the ranking foreign guest at the congress, told the nearly 2,000 delegates that Poland's crisis was caused by "deviations from the general principles of Marxism-Leninism."

He said the crisis provides a "dramatic lesson" on the efforts of enemies of communism to gain power for themselves by manipulating such deviations and the problems that result.

Complains Morgan 'Undermined' FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John P. East, R-N.C., charged Tuesday that his Democratic predecessor, former Sen. Robert B. Morgan, helped undermine the FBI by publicly criticizing the agency in the 1970s.

"My own opponent in North Carolina made attacks in North Carolina on the FBI," said East, who is a member of the Senate Security and Terrorism Subcommittee. "He said, for example, that it was rotten to the core, and he said it was a menace to society."

East said criticisms by Morgan and other public officials "set a tone and direction that was negative toward looking at the problem of subversion and terrorism."

East made the charges to 35 West German legislators in Washington as part of an exchange program. He was speaking on the need for increased U.S. vigilance against communist-inspired terrorism.

He also cited former Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, as among public officials who helped hamstring U.S. intelligence agencies.

"When you have people in the U.S. Senate making that kind of attack upon your principal intelligence-gathering instruments, you have enormous problems," he added.

As a member of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, Morgan took part in an investigation of illegal practices by the FBI, CIA and other government agencies.

The former state attorney general said at the time that he was disturbed by disclosures that the FBI was involved in illegal wiretapping, spying on congressmen, fomenting disturbances and trying to dis-

Anti-Terror Units Called

BERLIN (AP) — U.S. military experts in counterterrorism have been called in to analyze Berlin's street militants, Die Welt newspaper reported today. A U.S. Army spokesman denied the report.

The conservative newspaper said specially trained troops, sent to Berlin from the Panama Canal Zone, mingled last weekend with about 5,000 demonstrators to observe a demonstration in an exclusive Berlin neighborhood.

Many of the youthful demonstrators, supporters of the squatters' movement, jeered and threw stones at the homes of real estate brokers.

Unrest over Berlin's housing shortage has led to takeovers of vacant buildings and frequent battles between squatters and the city's civilian police, who are in charge of maintaining order.

"The responsibility for that sort of peace keeping activity rests with the Berlin police," said a spokesman for the U.S. forces, who have garrisoned the western sector of the city with British and French troops since the end of World War II.

"We were surprised" at Die Welt's report, the spokesman said. He denied that special troops were involved in the civil strife.

credit individuals such as the late civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

In a Jan. 16, 1976 speech in Asheville, Morgan charged that the leadership of the FBI was "rotten to the core."

Charged With Secrets Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Army warrant officer was indicted and arrested today on charges of supplying the Soviet Union with information about a U.S. code-making device.

FBI Director William H. Webster said Joseph George Helmich, 44, was arrested by FBI agents today in Jacksonville, Fla., following an extensive investigation by the FBI into the alleged espionage during the 1960s.

Attorney General William French Smith said Helmich's arrest followed his indictment by a federal grand jury in Jacksonville on charges of violating the Espionage Act.

According to the indictment, Helmich communicated to the Soviet Union and its agents classified information involving a sensitive U.S. cryptographic system known as the KL-7. The FBI said the KL-7 system was used to encode U.S. communications. The government alleged that the information was given to the Soviet Union in Paris in 1963.

Helmich is a native of Florida and served as an Army warrant officer from 1954 to 1966. His duties included serving as a cryptocustodian in Paris, France, and at Fort Bragg, N.C. Since 1967, he has been employed in a variety of jobs.

The indictment charged four counts of espionage. One count alleged a conspiracy in 1963 with the Soviets to acquire communications intelligence.

Association Has Convention

The N.C. Home Builders Association, the state's largest trade organization, is holding its 18th annual convention today through Sunday in Myrtle Beach.

More than 1,000 builders and associate members were expected to attend the convention where workshops and seminars on such topics as "Estimating for Profit," "Passive Solar Up-Date," and "Managing During Adverse Economic Conditions" were scheduled.

Awards to the "Builder of the Year" and "Associate of the Year" will be made at Saturday night's banquet. Winners of the annual "Design Awards" competition will also be announced.

Cash Rentals....

increases in price support programs resulted in a "substantial portion of the support rate going right back to the person who rents allotments."

Cash leases of tobacco quota in the Coastal Plain have doubled and, in some cases, tripled in the last five to seven years, going from an average of 30 cents or less per pound to 60 cents or more for the current year. When land is involved in addition to the quota, the farm frequently has been rented on the basis of the tobacco quota — say 70 cents a pound of tobacco for the entire farm.

Such rentals are considerably smaller in other sections of North Carolina, but increases also have occurred there as the market price for tobacco increased.

Perry and local FmHA officials acknowledged the policy change could cause serious problems for both tenants and landlords. It could be especially difficult for those who are dependent upon cash rentals of their farms. In the last decade many farm owners have opted to lease their tobacco quota for cash that would then be used for living expenses or investment during the coming year.

Royalty Of England Has Admiration

By ROBERT GLASS
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) —
"Kings," declared James I.,
"are justly called gods."

Although attitudes have changed since James ruled in the early 17th century, the bond between monarch and subject remains secure in modern-day Britain.

Bereft of powers to rule, members of the royal family still command the admiration of the masses as they go about their chores as cutters of ribbons and launchers of ships.

As recently as 1964, 30 percent of those questioned in a poll said they believed the queen was destined by God for her role, according to a survey of the monarchy's popularity, "Crown & People" by Philip Ziegler.

As interest in the royal family peaks with the approach of the July 29 wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer, anti-monarchists are a scarce breed. But they are not extinct.

The socialist-led Greater London Council, which administers the city and surrounding area, turned down its four tickets to the wedding at St. Paul's Cathedral. "I can't find a thing to wear," snipped the council's leader, Ken Livingston who favors scrapping the monarchy.

The parish of Clay Cross in Derbyshire announced it would celebrate "Republican Day" on July 29 with a theater production showing "the other side of the monarchy."

Royal baiter Willie Hamilton, a Labor Party member of Parliament, recently called the queen's divorced sister, Princess Margaret, "the royal floozie" and charged that she and her niece, Princess Anne, were "probably the most useless women in Britain."

But such reaction runs counter to the flood of public opinion favoring the wedding extravaganza and the idea of royalty as the nation's link with bygone empire and symbol of continuity.

Reporting Hamilton's tirade, even the Labor-supporting Daily Mirror commented: "Mr. Hamilton, why don't you just get lost."

Opinion polls show support for Britain's constitutional monarchy has been stable over the past three decades. Since 1953, according to author Ziegler, the number of republicans — people who want to chuck the monarchy altogether — has never gone over 11 percent for any significant length of time.

Last month the Sunday Mirror surveyed 26,189 readers with similar results: 89 percent said they did not want the monarchy abolished.

Detractors complain mostly of putting taxpayer money into the royal coffers in view of Queen Elizabeth II's tax-free inherited wealth, conservatively valued at 60 million pounds (about $120 million).

This year the government set aside 4.25 million pounds ($8.5 million) for maintaining royal palaces and staff, but the queen and Prince Charles both contribute substantial sums to the national Treasury from their personal fortunes.

A poll by the London newspaper News of the World found 77 percent in favor of the queen's state purse although support was weaker for subsidizing other members of her family.

Although the queen reigns but does not rule she has important constitutional functions — she summons and dissolves Parliament, for example. But popularity has no constitutional guarantee and recent monarchs have felt the sting of public disapproval.

Edward VIII, once highly admired for eschewing the trappings of royalty, became the least popular monarch of the century after he abdicated in 1936 to marry American divorcee Wallis Simpson.

Elizabeth's grandfather, George V, was said to have reached the height of his popularity during his Silver Jubilee of 1935.

"I'd no idea they felt that way about me," a teary-eyed George said at the time. "I'm beginning to think they like me for myself."

Beach Hotel Survivor Of Hurricanes

By HAL SPENCER
Associated Press Writer
WATCH HILL, R.I. (AP) — On a clear day you can see the northern tip of Long Island, maybe farther.

The view from some of the 58 rooms in the Ocean House perched next to Watch Hill on the Atlantic Ocean is one reason the rambling old hotel — once the summer destination of the very rich — still draws loyal guests every summer, says owner E.F. Brankert.

Brankert, a cordial, soft-spoken man, wipes his brow as he takes a break from last-minute work to ready the hotel for its annual summer opening. The hotel remains open through Labor Day.

Outside, Jim Allen and his son Jack are engaged in the endless job of painting the hotel a corn yellow. They show up every year, before the beach crowd, scraping and painting the 600 miles of clapboard.

Brankert, whose family has owned the hotel since 1938, says the establishment has weathered more hurricanes than he can count, including a dozen since he took over.

Built around 1868, (some say it was built earlier), the Ocean House was among six elegant hotels around Watch Hill until the tragic hurricane of 1938. The storm demolished five of them, and blew out the Ocean House's south wall.

Brankert's family made repairs and reopened the structure, suddenly the last jewel in a necklace of hotels that once ringed the hill.

The floors sag a little here and there, and signs of age are everywhere. But that doesn't mask the charm.

Faded Persian rugs line the hallways and dining room. White wicker furniture and comfortable couches fill the sitting room overlooking the hotel's private beach. Fans hang from the ceilings to cool the elderly matrons while they dine.

"Oh, we get people here from all over. They come for two, three days; sometimes for a week. We don't have the long stays we used to have," says Brankert, a touch of sadness in his voice.

In the 1890s, the hotel maintained 154 rooms, but a decline in business slowly cut the number to 58.

There was a time, he says, when society's wealthiest came here from Cincinnati, Detroit, New York and Philadelphia to bathe and take the sun.

"In those days they came by boat," he says, squinting out a window at the Atlantic.

A newspaper, "Watch Hill Life," published at the turn of the century, describes some of the activities at the six hotels: The comings and goings of socialites, the tennis matches and which of the six were getting elevators.

"The Ocean House opened June 20," says an 1894 issue. "In its rotunda, the eye first rests awhile as it glances at the enticing summer chairs and furnishings. The walls have put on a fresh summer dress."

It could have been 1981. "Nope, no televisions in Ocean House rooms," says Brankert.

The only concessions to the modern age are pinball machines and a pool table off the dining room to keep the children of guests busy on rainy days.

He points out a large room where, in the old days, the children were fed their meals. "They ate with the maids. They didn't eat with their parents in those days," Brankert laughs.

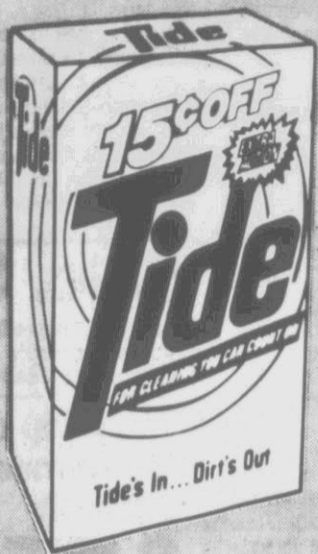

DRILLING MUD
LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Some $320,000 was saved in drilling eight oil wells here by utilizing mud additives. Wells averaged 8,000 feet deep.

Drilling mud lubricates and cools drill bits, cakes up and prevents well walls from caving in. It also carries rock fragments to the surface.

The time required to drill each well was reduced by four days. "At $10,000 per day, total rig time saved for the eight wells amounted to roughly $320,000," said Robert F. Wally, service engineer of Drilling Specialties.

Aerial Spraying For Calif. Fruit Flies Goes On

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A helicopter sprayed pesticide on the San Francisco Bay area for a second day today as an infestation of fruit flies was detected in a new area and five Southern states clamped down on shipments of California produce.

Two helicopters were to have taken off before dawn to spray malathion mixed with a sticky sweet bait over a 17-square-mile area of homes and yards. One helicopter took off at 12:30 a.m. PDT, but officials decided not to use the other craft, apparently because of mechanical problems.

Officials had feared a mass panic when a lone helicopter launched the spraying program Tuesday morning, dumping the pesticide over a 1,200-foot-wide strip six miles long. But Monday and Tuesday night, fewer than 100 people came to Red Cross shelters set up for refugees. A pump failure halted the mission Monday after about 100 gallons of malathion had been dumped. Medfly Project officials said.

Palo Alto police said security in the spray area will be increased today after a protest Tuesday by two-dozen people. A state worker was slashed with a knife as he tried to protect a guidance beacon for the helicopter. One man was arrested.

State and federal officials said the overwhelming majority of scientists believe the malathion application poses no health threat. But Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. and others have cited statements by a few scientists that not enough is known about whether the chemical might cause birth defects or cancer.

The target area was increased to 129 square miles Tuesday after more Mediterranean fruit fly maggots were discovered in Milpitas, northeast of the original spraying zone around San Jose.

The zone being sprayed today included parts of Palo Alto, Mountain View, Los Altos and Los Altos Hills.

More than 142 medfly maggots have been discovered in the area during the past two months, raising fears that the adaptable, fast-breeding pest will spread and devastate the California agriculture industry, which produces nearly half the nation's fruits and vegetables.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture expanded the medfly quarantine Monday to include more than 2,000 square miles of Alameda, Santa Clara and San Mateo counties. The quarantine requires fumigation of any crops leaving the area.

And by Tuesday, as an extra precaution, officials in Alabama, North Carolina, Georgia, Texas and Louisiana had announced they would be making their own checks to assure that no produce from any part of California got across their borders unless the fruit or vegetables had been fumigated first or certified free of flies.

"We didn't feel we could sit around and wait and take the chance of our industry becoming contaminated and infested because it would be a long-term loss to the consumers," said Louisiana Commissioner of Agriculture Bob Odum.

A spokesman for Florida Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner said the state hadn't ruled out participation in the multistate quarantine but had taken no action yet. Arkansas, South Carolina, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Illinois ruled out an immediate quarantine.

South Carolina Agriculture Commissioner Bryan Patrick said Tuesday that quarantine plans are being formed in case the medfly situation worsens in California although no quarantine has been ordered. He said he felt Texas and other Western states would effectively keep contaminated produce from reaching his state.

"If they can't get through those states, they can't get to South Carolina," Patrick said. "I'm supporting the action of the commissioner in Texas."

Officials in Tennessee said they would decide today whether to impose a quarantine.

The California Highway Patrol said Tuesday it had expanded its roadblock network, which had stopped more than a quarter-million vehicles and confiscated tons of fruit from drivers.

Street curbs throughout the area were lined with plastic bags of rotting fruit removed from trees as part of a mandatory fruit-stripping effort aimed at depriving the flies of the 253 kinds of fruits and vegetables in which they lay their eggs.

Thousands of state, federal and city workers collected the picked fruit and helped those who could not pick their own.

Only about 24 ounces of malathion is sprayed over each acre, according to Medfly Project officials, who say far greater concentrations have been sprayed over Florida, Louisiana and other populated areas with no known ill effects.

But area residents have flooded phone information lines with inquiries, and hotels outside the area reported a mass of reservations from pregnant women and others worried about the impact of the spraying. Brown initially ruled out aerial spraying to combat fruit flies, but reversed himself after the federal government threatened to quarantine all California produce, and last week he threatened to file counterclaims against the federal government for any damage claims paid by the state.

More Males In Nursing Field

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — As the job market grows tighter and social hindrances slowly erode, many men are turning to a field they wouldn't have considered a few years ago: nursing.

Such is the case at Duke University Medical Center, where some 30 nurses — two percent of the staff — are males, and officials say the figure is expected to increase as the nationwide nurse shortage grows more acute.

"We've recruited men continuously in my 37 years as a nurse, and I think we've got a better chance of making progress now than we've ever had," said Wilma Minnier, executive director of nursing services at Duke.

"One reason is that nurses' salaries are finally going up after being pitifully low for so long. And another is that the male nurse is becoming more socially acceptable."

Ms. Minnier said men make up only about 1.9 percent of the nation's nurses, a figure that has increased only by one half of one percent over the past 30 years.

"It's still a significant obstacle to overcome," she said. "But with the economic situation and the continuing recruitment you may see some changes."

Two of Duke's male nurses say they're aware of the conflict the nursing profession poses to traditional male roles. The only way to overcome it, they say, is for more and more men to enter the business.

"The more men that come into the nursing business, the farther we go toward breaking down the barriers, all of which men themselves have imposed," said Paul Dunn, a registered nurse in Duke's emergency department.

State Govm't Workers Said Suffering Morale Problems

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State government workers lost benefits as a result of General Assembly actions and are suffering from severe morale problems, the head of the North Carolina State Employees Association said Tuesday.

Emmett W. Burden, executive director of the association, said legislators in their special session this fall must grant a fair cost-of-living salary increase to "wipe out the feeling of second-class citizenship" stalking state employees.

"The state employee work force should not be expected to carry the burden of lean fiscal years by being denied a salary increase and having rightful benefits taken away," he said.

Burden said that state employees did not fare well in the legislative session, adding that they suffered actual losses in benefits in three areas:

— Medical insurance. The medical coverage plan agreed upon by legislators establish for the first time a $150-deductible provision on hospital bills. In addition, Burden said, state employees must now pay 20 percent on the first $1,500 in hospital bills covered by the policy — meaning an employee could have to pay $450 for coverage previously made without charge.

— Lunches. Legislators dropped state compensation for lunches when the employee was more than 10 miles away from his work station. The state previously paid up to $2.75 for the lunch, Burden said.

— Night pay. Legislators dropped night-shift premium pay for some employees in higher pay grades. The premium, paid for working regularly scheduled night shifts, is 10 percent of base pay. He said that has caused some Highway Patrol troopers to actually see their pay decline.

"You add to this an 8-to-10-to-12 percent inflation factor, and he's even worse off," Burden said. "All of these factors have really caused a morale problem."

Legislative leaders included no cost-of-living raises in the $11.7 billion two-year state budget enacted last week but said pay raises would be a priority item when they return in October or November.

Burden said that he believed there would be sufficient money available then to grant a pay raise "right much in excess of 5 percent."

In addition to the benefit losses, he said state employees saw their image damaged by legislative critics.

"The accusations of abuses in the use of state cars, expense accounts, the rigging of bids, the bad administration of some programs and other allegations has not been limited to the few state employees involved," he said. "Rather, the entire state work force has been indicted, tried and convicted in the eyes of many people."

Although they received no cost-of-living raise, automatic pay steps and merit increases were received by about 50 percent of the state government employees, in amounts ranging from 2½ percent to 4¼ percent, he said.

Burden said that public school teachers received this month a 4.8 percent pay raise as a result of a new pay scale enacted in 1980.

Teachers have the last word... about newspaper in education!

Teachers tell us our Newspaper in Education Program builds awareness of current events, develops critical reading and thinking skills, and fosters good citizenship. Dramatic news filmstrips, stimulating discussion guides, and innovative class activities make current events come alive for students in grades 3-12 all year long.

"We count on your program and it helps us a great deal. We don't have to spend a lot of time preparing a special presentation on news since this is so well done. This is a great public service of THE DAILY REFLECTOR and we appreciate it greatly. We involve about half of our students in your program."

AGNES FULLLOVE COMMUNITY SCHOOL

"The students are responding well to the program. We have more teachers and students participating."

GRIFTON ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

"It's great! The kids and I really look forward to it each week. Please continue."

A.G. COX SCHOOL

"We enjoy the YEC News Program. It is an added attraction to our lessons. Along with THE DAILY REFLECTOR and the news program we have a very effective "Special Activities" class. Keep the program coming!"

Renta Yenta, Get Rid Of That Depressed Feeling

By NANCY SHULINS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — So, you're feeling depressed, right? The big party's tonight and you hadda work late. Everybody's gone home and there you sit, work piled on your desk, and such a headache you could die from. So quit kvetching, Renta Yenta.

Carol and Izzy did, and doncha know, they felt better. With their blessing, a rented helicopter rained 2,000 ping pong balls on the bash, each with a message: "Sorry we can't be there."

What price glory? In this case, more than $1,500, according to Lynn Stemerman and Liz Woolf, the genies of gimmickry who dreamed up that and a thousand other stunts like it.

A looseleaf notebook records the past capers of the two New York women, whose business professes to do it all — provided "it's legal and it's kind."

There was the "Happy Retirement Ida" sign on Times Square, the brass band that stood knee-deep in ticker tape belting out "76 Trombones" on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange, the chesty blonde twins who gift-wrapped a Madison Avenue executive for his birthday.

You got your singing messengers, your balloon bouquets, your belly dancers. There are shaggy donkeys for delivery to corporate types in pinstripes and — are you ready? — cupid in Pampers all set to go for next Valentine's Day.

Business is booming. Go figure it.

The schlock's piled high on the streets of New York, and human gorillas are dropping like flies. What's the average life span of a dancing banana? Ms. Woolf and Ms. Stemerman know, and they're here to tell you: not long.

But the ladies who bought Renta Yenta from two West Coast women in 1978 have made a good living while perfecting the fine art of whoopie cushionry.

"We have seen them come and die," Ms. Woolf said of other purveyors of pulchritude, pageantry and panache.

Renta Yenta endures. The two resident yentas — Yiddish for busybody — believe it's mostly a matter of credibility. "People know we'll be here three weeks from now," said Ms. Stemerman.

Clients are also lured by the sheer variety of exploits available — from $50 for delivery of a basket of cookies to half a million for a French chef to prepare and a British butler to serve you and a friend dinner for the rest of your life. (Nobody's bought that one yet.)

Somewhere between are the catered receptions, Rolls Royce rides and office parties that are their stock-in-trade, or the more mundane shopping, house-sitting and unpacking services designed to make life less of a hassle for the very rich or the very harried.

Visitors to the offices of Renta Yenta expecting to find what the name implies are in for a big surprise. "They expect little Jewish grandmothers," Ms. Stemerman said with a grin.

Jewish, yes. Grandmothers, no. Both women are in their early 30s, and are stylishly slim and attractive.

They have much in common: both immigrated to the city at about the same time, Ms. Woolf from Poland and Ms. Stemerman from Elmira, N.Y. Both worked in real estate, then in insurance. Both wanted to try something new.

They also had been to a lot of bad parties. "They tasted the same and they all looked alike," said Ms. Woolf, who felt she could do better.

They agreed to go into business together and began searching for a forum. Ms. Stemerman heard about Renta Yenta one day at the dentist, and they decided to buy up the name.

"To me, it means somebody who understands how to get the thing done," Ms. Stemerman said.

Getting the thing done can range from hovering over the house painters to make sure they don't miss a spot to decorating a four-bedroom townhouse from scratch in 24 hours flat. They did it for Stevie Wonder, and it remains their most Herculean task to date.

They classify themselves as successful, but prefer not to divulge the net worth of their business.

"We've done parties for $30,000 to $40,000 a shot, but there are no millions," Ms. Woolf. Not yet, anyway.

Ms. Stemerman then excused herself to take a call from the M&M twins, identical beauties who specialize in donning hot pants and tails and singing "Putting on the Ritz."

Renta Yenta can draw from 300 such talents.

Arco Post Still Vacant After Death

DALLAS (AP) — Officials of the Atlantic Richfield Corp. say it is too early to speculate when a permanent chief will be named for its oil and gas subsidiary, Arco Gas and Oil Co., following the shotgun slayings of President William Keeler and his wife.

Robert E. Wycoff, an executive vice president of Atlantic Richfield, was named Keeler's temporary replacement on Monday pending a search for a permanent appointee. Keeler was promoted to president of Arco Oil and Gas in May as part of a company reorganization.

DAVID KEELER

The bodies of the 53-year-old executive and his wife, Anita Faye Keeler, were found in a hallway in the family's North Dallas home last weekend by a daughter, Barbara Keeler, 27.

Keeler was dead of shotgun wounds in the head and neck. His 49-year-old wife died later in the day during surgery for shotgun wounds to the abdomen.

Miss Keeler told police that her mother, barely conscious, gasped out, "David, David, David did it," when she was found.

The couple's 14-year-old son, David Keeler, was taken into custody Sunday after turning himself in to police in Addison, a suburb near the couple's home.

"I just shot both my parents with a shotgun," David reportedly told police.

A juvenile court master ordered a 10-day detention for the youth after defense attorney Doug Miller agreed there was "probable cause" to believe the youth had shot his parents. He could be charged with two counts of juvenile delinquency-murder, which carries a maximum punishment of detention in a juvenile home until age 21. Under Texas law, no 14-year-old can be tried as an adult.

Police said Monday that the shootings followed a family argument about a shoplifting incident.

David and two friends were expelled from the Six Flags Over Texas amusement park in Arlington after allegedly taking some novelty items, said park spokesman Bruce Neal. Mrs. Keeler was called to pick up her son and no charges were filed, Neal said.

Damage Done In Collision

An estimated $7,000 property damage resulted from a 12:50 a.m. collision today on Greenville Boulevard, 750 feet east of the Arlington Boulevard intersection.

Police reported a car driven by Bradford Marshall Brown of 316 Rutledge Rd. collided with a truck driven by Donald M. Tuten of Cranston, R.I., causing an estimated $5,000 damage to the car and $2,000 damage to the truck.

10-Cent Tax Is Forgiven

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Santa Ynez, Calif., man was dunned for 10 cents by the Arizona Revenue Department, but red-faced state officials say they'll wipe the slate clean for free.

"We figured it was a computer error," said J.W. Moore Jr., an accountant who prepared the 1980 return for his father. "When we calculated his tax, we rounded the tax computation to the nearest dollar, and instead of being $9.10, it came out to be $9."

The tax bill, however, showed that the elder Moore still owed the state 10 cents on earnings from the sale of Tucson rental property.

"Not being as impractical as the state of Arizona, we were just going to send them a check for 10 cents," the younger Moore said Monday.

But Moore sent a copy of the bill to The Arizona Republic, whose reporters reached Barbara Dickerson, a special assistant to the department's chief.

Ms. Dickerson said that one state law allows rounding of taxes due, but another specifies taxes down to cents, no rounding allowed. Under an informal legal opinion, the department allows rounding.

"We won't even worry about it," she said of the 10-cent bill. "They won't be bothered anymore."

Ineligible For Death Benefits

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — When construction worker Michael Cresse, 24, was killed in the collapse of a Cocoa Beach condominium in March, he had been divorced an hour, so his former wife is ineligible for benefits, a judge has ruled.

After the collapse of the Harbor Cay condominium, Sonya Holloway, 20, filed a petition asking to be declared the legal representative of Cresse's estate. But Circuit Judge Richard Muldrew said he signed the divorce papers at least an hour before Cresse and 10 other workers were killed at the construction site.

'Flying Low' A Possible Factor

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Three highway patrolmen who died in an airplane crash while chasing a burglary suspect "were flying rather low and possibly that created the problem," Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman Carol Lencki said.

The suspect, 29-year-old Mack Daniel Mims of St. Augustine, was charged Tuesday with three felony homicides in the death of the officers Monday. He also was charged with six counts of burglary and was being held in the St. Johns County Jail.

Port Dredging Is Underway

WILMINGTON — Annual maintenance dredging of Morehead City Inner Harbor began July 4.

The Atkinson Dredging Company of Chesapeake, Va., was awarded the dredging contract May 20, 1981. Contract amount was $1,494,995. The dredging will take about 70 days.

Shortly after the contract award, preliminary dredging deepened and widened the channel as a temporary measure to enable coal ships to use the port.

During the main phase of the contract work, the shipping channel will be dredged to its project limits of 40 feet deep and 600 feet wide within a designated area. Approximately 600,000 cubic yards of material will be removed and placed within an upland dike disposal area on Brandt Island south of the State Ports Authority.

The inner harbor at Morehead City was last dredged in 1978. At that time the harbor was deepened and widened to its present authorized dimensions.

Dollars Clog CTA Office

CHICAGO (AP) — The fare-counting office of the cash-strapped Chicago Transit Authority is littered with dollar bills — perhaps as much as $1 million packed in bundles, piled on tables and collecting under foot.

The cash-strapped CTA? Well, appearances are deceiving. The agency is tens of millions of dollars in the red because subsidies haven't kept pace with expenses. To help offset that deficit, the CTA on July 6 raised the cost of a basic fare plus transfer to $1.

Despite pleas from the CTA, riders have been stuffing paper bills in fare boxes meant to handle only coins. And the South Side counting office has fallen a week behind in its work.

"It was just a zoo," said James Maurer, director of the city Office of Municipal Investigations. "It was unbelievable."

CTA board member Howard Medley said he called Mayor Jane Byrne Tuesday to say the office was choking on dollar bills and was advised to contact Maurer's office.

Maurer checked it out and found "just bags and bags of money lying around. Some of it was loose on the floor, where it could stick to the bottom of your foot."

"We're not charging theft, but if you can't steal from there, you're not trying," he said.

Maurer said he and Medley estimated the uncounted money totaled $500,000 to $1 million. Several stacks of money were marked July 2, Maurer said.

Medley said the CTA hired the Seaway National Bank to help do some counting at a fee of $25 for each $1,000 counted.

Vatican Awaits Budget Deficit

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican said today that it expects a budget deficit of $25 million for 1981.

The announcement came at the end of a three-day meeting of a special commission of 11 cardinals named by Pope John Paul II to help put the Holy See's finances in order.

No other information on the state of the Vatican's finances was provided in the five-paragraph statement released after the meeting.

In disclosure in 1979, however, the Vatican said it expected a budget deficit of $20.2 million in that year, and warned that the Holy See could find itself in "serious difficulty" if inflation-fueled expenses continued to rise and income remained at present levels.

The cardinals included two Americans — Terence J. Cooke of New York and John Krol of Philadelphia — and a West German, Joseph Hofner of Cologne. The Vatican has looked to America and West Germany as major sources of contributions to the church.

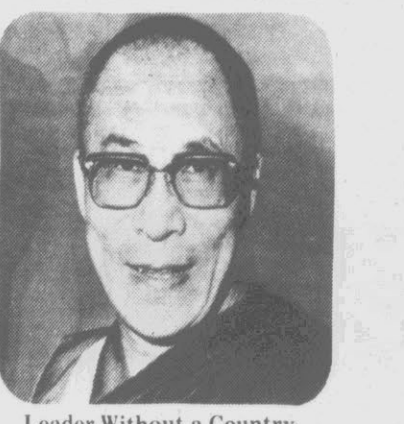

The Vatican's press statement said the cardinals made various proposals on improving the Holy See's financial condition. These included help from local churches around the world in raising funds.

The special commission included no Italians or Vatican-based cardinals, which suggested that the Holy See would concentrate on raising funds abroad.

The cardinals examined the budget difficulties for both 1980 and 1981, but the Vatican did not report the 1980 figures. The 1979 announcement had said the deficit was expected to worsen in 1980.

John Paul named 15 cardinals to the commission, but four did not attend the meeting. The cardinals met in the Bologna room of the Apostolic Palace under the chairmanship of Vatican Secretary of State Agostino Casaroli.

Leader Without a Country

The Dalai Lama, a man millions consider a god, is meeting with Buddhists in the U.S. this week. For 600 years a Dalai Lama was the religious and political leader of Tibet, a mountainous country between China and India. Like other Buddhists, Tibetans believe in reincarnation and the need to give up worldly goods to achieve peace and happiness. Believers think the current Dalai Lama, the 14th to hold the title, is a reincarnation of the original. In 1959 he fled Tibet when Chinese communists took over his Buddhist government. The Dalai Lama says he remains, "the servant of the six million people of Tibet" ... a land he hopes will once again be an independent nation.

Fruitless Wait, He Goes Ahead

CINCINNATI (AP) — The police chief says he's waited in vain for two years to get extra money to fight crime against the elderly, so he's decided to start a program without increasing the budget.

One officer in each of the city's five police districts will be assigned full-time to the problem.

"We're just absorbing the cost, putting a little more stretch in the rubber band," Chief Myron Leister said Tuesday.

Leister said statistics don't show the elderly are more likely to become victims, but "the elderly suffer more when they are victimized."

Fulghum Sparks 10-7 Win Over Rocky Mt.

S. Hill In Legion Finals

ROCKY MOUNT — Jabo Fulghum drove in six runs with two three-run home runs Tuesday night to lift Snow Hill past Rocky Mount, 10-7, and into the finals of the Area I East American Legion playoffs.

Snow Hill, which won the best-of-three series with Rocky Mount, 2-1, will now play Pitt County for the tournament championship. Pitt County, which finished first in the conference during the regular season, swept its series with Wilson.

Pitt County will host the first game of the best-of-five title series, but the time and place of the opener have yet to be announced.

Snow Hill jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning, saw Rocky Mount counter with four runs in the bottom of the inning before scoring three more runs in the second to take the lead for good. In the first, Greg Hardison singled and stole second and David Shirley followed with a single to give Snow Hill runners at the corners. Fulghum then hit the first of his two three-run homers over the leftfield fence.

After Rocky Mount went up 4-3 in the bottom half of the inning, Fulghum was back again with his second home run. With two outs, Hardison and Shirley singled and Fulghum then homered over the leftfield fence and Snow Hill led, 6-4.

One inning later, Snow Hill made it 8-4. Frank Milkovits walked and went to second when David Kester reached on an error. Both runners moved up a base on a passed ball before Milkovits scored on Wade Corbett's ground out.

After walks to Bobby Avery and Gary Ream, Hardison hit a sacrifice fly to score Kester with the final run of the inning.

Rocky Mount made it 8-5 with a run in the fourth but Snow Hill countered with a run in the sixth to make it 9-5. It stayed that way until the ninth, when Snow Hill scored once and Rocky Mount twice for the final tally.

Fulghum led Snow Hill with four hits in five at bats. Hardison was three for five while Shirley and Kevin Korpi were both two for five. Korpi had a double for one his two hits.

Bill Wilkes led Rocky Mount with three hits in four at bats, including a double and triple. Rodney Morton was two for four and Ted Reese two for five for Rocky Mount.

Vincent Is Interim Coach

Ronald Vincent has been named as interim head coach at Greenville Rose. It was announced today.

Vincent takes over for Dave Bumgarner, who has taken a leave of absence after suffering chest pains last week. Vincent has previously been Rose's offensive coordinator.

James Brewington and Gary Nicholson will be Vincent's two chief assistants and will, even more than is usual, be apart of the decision-making during the upcoming football season.

"The reason we made this decision was that after looking at the coaching situations of all three, it seemed Ronald's had the least conflict with football," Greenville Rose principal Howard Hurt said in announcing the decision this morning.

Brewington is also head basketball coach at Rose while Nicholson is coaches the wrestling team. Both season overlap with the football season.

Bumgarner will sit out the 1982 season. Whether Bumgarner will return next season, or whether Vincent or another coach will be head man next season, has not been made, Hurt said.

"We'll make some decision on that next winter or spring," Hurt said.

Labor Secretary Enters Baseball Talks

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan plans to throw the weight of the Reagan Administration into the effort to end the 34-day-old baseball players strike.

Donovan was to accompany federal mediator Kenneth Moffett today when club owners' negotiators and players' representatives resumed bargaining in New York. It was to be the first meeting since talks broke up Saturday amidst much bitterness after owners rejected a settlement proposal drawn up by Moffett.

The negative effects of the strike — economic losses in the 24 major league cities and the cancellation of 392 of the 2,106 scheduled regular-season games — apparently are serious enough in Donovan's opinion that he should intervene with Moffett. The 52nd All-Star Game, which had been scheduled for Tuesday night in Cleveland, also is a strike casualty.

"The secretary is deeply concerned about the economic impact that the strike is having on many American cities," said Donovan aide Earl Cox.

The strike began June 12 over the type of compensation teams should be awarded when they lose free agents.

Moffett said Donovan would open today's negotiations by making a statement, but added that the secretary did not plan to stay for the entire session.

"I believe Mr. Donovan's presence at this meeting will emphasize the importance of bringing this dispute to a conclusion," Moffett said.

Moffett and Cox confirmed that if the new round of talks fails to produce a settlement, Donovan will summon representatives of both sides to Washington for intensive bargaining that would be accompanied by a news blackout.

Moffett said he preferred not to discuss in detail the option of conducting negotiations under the auspices of the Labor Department.

"That's one jump ahead," he said. "I'd like to wait and see what happens when the two sides resume talks."

President Reagan himself, a onetime play-by-play announcer for the Chicago Cubs, has said little publicly about the strike.

But he said Tuesday he would like to see the strike settled soon.

"I agree with Samuel Gompers, who created the American Federation of Labor, who said, 'Anytime there's a strike, there's a breakdown in communications.'" the President said.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' union, said Tuesday the players had no new ideas. "We are constantly reviewing our position, but we haven't come up with anything new," Miller said.

In an interview aired on the CBS network, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said, "I think we're getting very near a settlement." Kuhn added that he believed the club owners had made a "significant step forward in their rewrite" of Moffett's settlement plan last week.

The commissioner said he was looking at a number of ways to resume the season once the strike ends, including the possibility of a round-robin tournament.

Also Tuesday, half of management's six-member Player Relations Committee Board of Directors were in New York to meet with Ray Grebey, management's chief negotiator.

Locked in meetings all day with Grebey were Dan Galbreath of the Pittsburgh Pirates, John McHale of the Montreal Expos and Clark Griffith of the Minnesota Twins.

Also consulting by phone were the other PRC directors, Bob Howsam of the Cincinnati Reds, Ed Fitzgerald of the Milwaukee Brewers and Joe Burke of the Kansas City Royals.

Some 15,000 frustrated fans congregated near Cleveland's Municipal Stadium to show their disgust with the loss of the All-Star game, which could still be held if the strike is expected to play host for the game next year.

Local disc jockey Jeff Kinsbach led the crowd in a 30-second crescendo of boos pointed in the direction of the stadium.

"We want everyone in the country to know how we feel about being stood up," Kinsbach said.

UK Not Going To Hire Allen

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Despite the efforts of Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., Fran Curci will apparently remain as football coach at the University of Kentucky.

Brown, a vocal critic of Curci, had been pushing the candidacy of former pro coach George Allen for the Kentucky post. But Brown ran into an administrative brick wall in the person of UK President Dr. Otis Singletary, who steadfastly refused to discuss a coaching change and repeated his backing of Curci.

The matter came to a crossroads Tuesday when Allen, in a statement released through his son and agent, George Allen Jr., withdrew his name from consideration for the job he hadn't been offered. "It's not my job to pick the coach, but an opportunity like George Allen doesn't come along very often," Brown said late Tuesday. "The establishment has won out. It didn't work out and I accept that."

In his statement, Allen said that, "in view of the understandable concern and out of respect for the UK administration and athletics board regarding the timing of such speculation, at this time it is my decision in the best interest of all parties to withdraw my name from consideration at the University of Kentucky."

After going public with his Allen campaign, Brown quickly found himself at odds with Singletary, who noted that the UK athletics board — and not the governor — has the power to name a football coach.

In the wake of Allen's withdrawal statement, Singletary issued a statement of his own:

"I have never discussed it (the football job) with George Allen or anybody else because there is no vacancy here. I've never talked to George Allen. My position is not that I did not want George Allen, but that I had no reason to talk to George Allen."

Allen alluded to Singletary's support of Curci when, in his statement, he said: "To have a truly successful program at the University of Kentucky, one needs the support of all the people concerned. And, wishing the university the best, I do not wish to disrupt the program in any way whatsoever."

Despite Allen's statement, the coach's son said that Allen "isn't closing any doors" concerning the UK coaching job when, and if, a vacancy occurs.

Brown's efforts to persuade Singletary created controversy about whether picking the Kentucky coach is within a governor's powers.

Curci's on-the-field record over eight seasons is 43-44-2, but a 1976 loss to Mississippi State has since become a forfeit victory through NCAA legislation. Kentucky's only previous coaches with as many as eight seasons were Paul "Bear" Bryant (1946-1953 with a record of 60-23-5) and Blanton Collier (1954-61; 41-36-3).

The controversy generated a spate of comment in newspaper columns and editorials, including an editorial cartoon in The State Journal in Frankfort, the state capital, depicting Brown kicking Curci out an office door.

Floyd Among Open Favorites

Practice

day for the British Open Golf Championship which starts Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

SANDWICH, England (AP) — "If I had known the golf course was like this, I'd have come here a few days earlier," said Ray Floyd, one of the favorites to win the 110th British Open starting Thursday.

The burly American, enjoying his best season at 38, had his first look at the Royal St. George's links, set amid sand dunes beside the English Channel, and confessed it puzzled him.

"It's a helluva test of golf out there," Floyd said Tuesday. "When you get on the tee for the first time, you really have no idea where to go. You need to know the golf course a bit.

"You can't see the bunkers, and you can't see some of the pins. If I had realized it was going to be like this I might have come over about last Friday."

But Lee Trevino, two-time British Open champion who played the course with the long-driving Floyd, still tabbed him as one of the favorites for the $50,000 first prize.

"This course is going to favor a big hitter, and I like Floyd," Trevino said.

Australia's David Graham, the U.S. Open champion, also picked Floyd to win.

But British bookies made Tom Watson the favorite at 4-1, Jack Nicklaus second at 5-1, and saw Floyd as a 25-1 longshot.

Floyd, who has won more than a half-million dollars this year, tried to explain why life begins at 38.

"Many golfers are at their best between 35 and 45," he said. "It's nothing of a freak to start playing well at my age. The mental and the physical are starting to complement each other. I now know my capabilities and my limitations.

"I know the shots I bring off only occasionally, and those are the ones I try to stay away from. It's about wind and pin placements."

Floyd has won four tournaments this year — the Tournament Players' Championship at Jacksonville, Fla., the Doral at Miami, the Westchester Classic and the Canadian PGA.

He was runnerup to Nicklaus in the British Open at St. Andrews, Scotland, in 1978.

The Royal St. George's Club and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club between them have spent a lot of money on a new irrigation system to prepare this course for its first British Open in 32 years.

Most of the players say it has made the 6,829-yard, par 35-35—70 course lush, greener and slower than the courses they have come to expect in Britain. But they don't agree on whether it's an improvement.

Watson, the defending champion, admitted he was disappointed because the ball bounces and rolls less than on other British courses where the Open has been held.

"They have Americanized it," Watson said.

But Trevino raved about the course.

"I think it's the greatest course we have ever played the British Open on," Trevino said. "I have never seen a seaside course like this. It makes it a little American in style, but that doesn't mean I am not in love with it."

There are humps on some of the fairways. Trevino admitted they worry him because he is not a long driver.

"Take the seventh," Trevino said. "If you can carry the hill you can get a roll down the other side and an extra 40 yards. I can't carry it.

"That is what I mean when I say this course is for long hitters."

Coke Captures Babe Ruth Title

Babe Ruth
Coca-Cola, scoring four runs in the first and five runs in the third, overwhelmed Aaction Movers, 11-1, Tuesday to win the Babe Ruth Tournament Championship.

Coke did not lose a game in the double elimination tournament. Aaction Movers lost to Coke in the semifinals of the winner's bracket and then went on to make it to the finals after defeating Home Builders, 6-2, earlier Tuesday.

In the championship game, Coke jumped out to a 4-0 lead and never looked back. Mike Iaboni singled and stole second and went to third on a ground out. Iaboni scored on Traye Fugua's double.

Fugua then scored on Eric Woodworth's single and Woodworth moved to second on the throw home. Billy Michel followed with a double to score Woodworth and Michel later scored on a wild pitch.

Coke made it 9-0 in the third, sparked by five walks, a hit batsman and Mike Smith's double. Coke scored its final two runs in the seventh. Aaction Movers only run came in the fifth inning.

Fugua lead Coke with two hits. Toby Fisher and Tommy Warren had two hits for Aaction Movers. Mike Walsh and Warren both had doubles for AM.

In Aaction Movers' 6-2 victory earlier in the day, AM scored twice in the first and three times in the fourth to win. In the first, Toby Fisher walked and moved to second on Billy Godley's single. Both later scored on wild pitches.

AM made it 3-0 in the third before Home Builders finally broke through with a run in the fourth. AM, however, countered with a three-run outburst in the bottom of the inning to all but seal the victory.

Jerry Mayo and John Ravoris had two hits for Home Builders. Godley had three hits for Aaction Movers.

Babe Ruth All-Stars Named

Coca Cola placed five players and Aaction Movers three on the 1981 Babe Ruth all-star team as it was announced today by league officials.

Coke's Eric Woodworth, Traye Fugua, Billy Michel, Mike Iaboni and Battle Emory all made the 15-man squad. From Aaction Movers were Billy Godley, Toby Fisher and Steve Wall.

Others on the team are:
From Wachovia: Mike Kinley and Marc Gatlin; from Home Builders: John Ravoris and Ed Farley; from Planters Bank: Tony Daniels and Richard Pace; from Pepsi: Bobby Buie.

LITTLEFIELD — Greene County rallied from three runs down and scored five runs in the sixth inning to defeat Martin County, 9-6, Tuesday in the opening round of the 13-year-old District 5 playoffs being held at Ayden-Gritton High School.

Greene County will now play Tarboro in the second round of the double elimination tournament. Martin Co. will play the loser of the Washington Tuesday in the double elimination tournament. Nash Co. will play Washington.

Jones had a no-hitter going until the fourth when Tim Hendricks singled to open the inning. Jones struck out six and walked one en route to the victory.

Greenville led, 1-0, after the first inning on an RBI double by Monte Atkinson and went up, 3-0, with two runs in the third, sparked by Jones' single. Nash County then scored its only run of the game in the fourth.

Greenville added another run to its total in the fifth when William Smith doubled home Anthony Coward and scored its final two runs in the sixth.

Atkinson, Jones and Clark Stallings all had two hits for Greenville.

Washington 1

LITTLEFIELD — Mike Elks scattered four hits and Pitt County scored single runs in the second, fourth and sixth to defeat Washington, 3-1, Tuesday in the opening round of the 13-year-old District 5 tournament being played at Ayden-Gritton.

Pitt County will now play Greenville, a 6-1 winner over Nash Co. yesterday, in the second round of the double elimination tournament. Washington will play Nash County.

Pitt Co. moved ahead, 1-0, in the second when Randy Mills was hit by a pitch, moved to second a fielder's choice by Scott Rawls before scoring on a passed ball.

It went to 2-0 in the fourth when Steve Mills singled, stole second and third and scored on an error. Pitt Co.'s final run came in the sixth when Mills reached on an error, stole second and scored on Rawls' single.

Washington's lone run came in the sixth.

Frank Deonor had two hits for Washington. No one for Pitt Co. had more than one hit.

Whitworth Set To Earn Million On LPGA Tour

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth remembers it well.

Her first tournament as a member of the Ladies Professional Golf Association was in 1959 in Asheville, N.C., and she collected the grand total of $33 for finishing in a two-way tie for 16th place.

Things have come a long way since then for both Whitworth, now 41, and the LPGA. A native of Jal, N.M., who now lives in Avon, Conn., Whitworth is on the verge of becoming the first LPGA player to earn $1 million on the tour.

With 80 victories to her credit, the 5-foot-9, 140-pounder needs only to collect $5,031 in the 72-hole WUI Classic, which starts Thursday at the par-72, 6,341-yard Meadow Brook Club.

Certainly a far cry from the first check of $33, and certainly a far cry for the LPGA, which, in 1959, offered a little more than $200,000 in prize money for 25 tournaments. This year's 40 tournaments have purses totaling $5.8 million.

"I was ecstatic when I won $33 as my first check," recalled Whitworth after Tuesday's practice round. "I thought I had just won a championship."

"Now the sentiments have been growing for me to become the first millionaire, and while I try to ignore the goal, I'm being constantly reminded of it."

The LPGA is quilty of that, too, what with its plans to present her with a diamond ring on the 18th hole Sunday at the conclusion of the event.

"It's not that I mind all that is taking place," said Whitworth, who went almost three years on the tour before winning her first tournament. "But it seems that my entire career hinges on me reaching the $1 million mark."

Whitworth knows all too well what that kind of pressure can cause. All she had to do is recall 1974 and '75.

"I had pushed so hard for so long and geared myself to be No. 1 that I was just spent," explained the two-time Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year (1966 and '67.) "My nerves were almost shot."

"That's when I decided to pull back or my career was going to end very quickly. It was hard gearing down after 15 years, but it had to be done. Looking back, I'm glad I did."

Whitworth is not the only member of the LPGA chasing the million-dollar goal.

Greenville-Pitt Co. game.

Martin County led 5-2 after four innings, having scored three runs in the first and two in the fourth. Greene County edged back to within one with two runs in the fifth and then took the lead in the sixth with five runs.

In the sixth, Roger Satton walked and moved to second on Mike Kennedy's single. Both runners moved up a base on a wild pitch. Then, with one out, Ken Gray reached on a fielder's choice to score Satton.

Kennedy later scored on Stacey Chase's single. Adrian Smith was then hit by a pitch and both runners advanced a base on a wild pitch. Chase subsequently scored after Ken Wade walked and Chris Corbett reached on a fielder's choice.

Smith was tagged out later trying to score but Wade came home with the final run of the inning on an error.

Martin County scored twice in the bottom of the inning but it wasn't enough.

Ramon Mason led Martin Co. with three hits. Greene County was paced by Chase, who had three hits, and Kennedy, who had two.

Strike Puts Hold On 'Journey For Hemophilia'

NEW YORK (AP) — Major League baseball's first midseason strike has taken more than a toll in games and revenue. It has stolen something even more precious from Marc DeCosta and three friends — "The Great American Baseball Journey for Hemophilia" — at least temporarily.

DeCosta, a 24-year-old hemophiliac from Wantagh, N.Y., was about halfway through his dream vacation — a 52-day, 9,000-mile trip to the 26 major league cities and ballparks — when the major leaguers began their walkout on June 12.

It was a trip that 10 years ago would have been simply a dream to anyone who suffered from hemophilia, a disorder of the blood clotting mechanism which can result in uncontrolled bleeding and hemorrhaging. But to Marc DeCosta in 1981, it was a chance to disprove a stereotype of a hemophiliac being an invalid.

"We started the idea last August at a ballgame and started saving money last winter," said Steve Latour of Bath, N.Y., who along with Carmen Reale and Jimmy Downs, both of Syracuse, N.Y., joined DeCosta on the trip, none of whom suffers from the disorder.

"We figured it would cost us about $2,000 apiece," added DeCosta. "We put $1,300 apiece into a kitty and brought a Dodge maxi-van and set up a budget of $40 a day."

After a number of letters to relatives and friends from school provided accommodations in all but three of the 26 scheduled stops, the journey began on May 24th in New York.

In the next five days, the trip took DeCosta and Co., who work as bartenders or waiters, to Boston, Montreal and Toronto. But it was Toronto which supplied the fireworks.

"The strike had actually been planned for May 29th," said DeCosta, who admitted the group, like baseball's owners, had formed a strike fund. "Jimmy's parents own a cabin somewhere between Montreal and Toronto in a place called Kingston. We had planned to stay there 10 days in the event of a strike, hoping that everyone would come to their senses and the strike would end."

It never started. A move by the National Labor Relations Board postponed the players' walkout.

It also gave the group the opportunity to see Oakland play Toronto.

"It was the height of 'Billy-Ball,'" said Latour, referring to the A's hustling style, "and they had hyped it up in Toronto. When Martin came out with the lineup card, it was like the second coming had arrived in Toronto."

It was also the night Martin and umpire Terry Cooney had their little disagreement.

"It was like watching a highlight film," said DeCosta. "You know the kind where (Baltimore Orioles Manager) Earl Weaver throws his hat and kicks dirt."

In the next two weeks, the group visited Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Cincinnati and both Chicago parks, and St. Louis before the strike began.

"It went along a lot smoother than I thought it would," said Latour, who added the treatment the group received from the players, teams and friends was "great."

For DeCosta, the trip would have been impossible without something known as a Factor VIII concentrate.

"It was not easy to travel being a hemophiliac because the treatment 10 years ago was that you had to go to a specific hospital," DeCosta said. "They had to know your blood type and past history and it made travel more difficult."

DeCosta recalled that when he was 10 he had a "bleed" in Washington.

"It was a hassle getting treatment. I remember, spending almost five hours in the hospital before the process (plasma transfusion) could be completed."

But that's all changed.

"Now I bring the concentrate in the cooler," DeCosta added. "It's mixed and easily administered. I can do the whole process in 20 minutes and do it anywhere. I did it once in the van on the trip and a couple of times in people's apartments."

The Factor VIII concentrate, which is produced from human blood but cannot be mass produced artificially, has one drawback. It's expensive although insurance helps defray some of the costs.

"The average vial costs $125," DeCosta said. "I take about 2,500 units per shot because of my height and weight. It's roughly around $300 a shot with an average of one shot a week."

But it's something which makes living a normal life possible for DeCosta and the nation's 25,000 other hemophiliacs. It's also makes cross-country vacations a reality, even if they are interrupted by a strike.

But DeCosta holds no grudges though.

"If you had asked me if I was angry when I was sitting in a field in Carlyle, Ill., getting eaten by bugs, sleeping in a van with four guys and hoping the strike would end, yeah, then I was annoyed," DeCosta said. "But it must be just as frustrating to us as it is to them, the owners and the players."

The trip which was supposed to end at Tuesday night's postponed All-Star Game in Cleveland remains in limbo. If the season never gets going again at least Marc DeCosta will have half a dream and the Hemophilia Foundation will have what it wants — proof that hemophiliacs are self-sufficient.

The foundation has endorsed but not financially supported the trip.

Strikes, Feuds Nothing New For Baseball

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Strikes, mavericks, feuds, wild superstitions, heroes and anti-heroes — they're not new to baseball.

They go back to the game's primitive years and all these volatile ingredients are embodied in one of the game's most illustrious pioneers — the jut-jawed, contentious John McGraw, manager of the Giants for 29 years.

Call him "Muggsy," but don't forget to duck.

"Newspapermen called him 'Muggsy,'" said Rube Marquard, pitcher for the Giants from 1908 until 1915, "and that's the only thing he despised. Anybody called him, he didn't care who it was, he'd take a pop at him and he couldn't lick a stamp."

McGraw's idiosyncrasies and superstitions are woven through a dramatic era of American history in a remarkable film, "The Glory of Their Times," which will be reshown on the National Educational Network next Monday evening, starting at 9 p.m. EDT.

Written and produced by Bud Greenspan, whose Olympic and other sports documentaries have won numerous awards, the one-hour show is based on the best-selling book by Lawrence S. Ritter. The first showing in 1976 was overshadowed by the Montreal Olympics.

Greenspan and his wife, Cappy, the executive producer, have revived the film at a time when the American public, hit by the midseason baseball strike, is thirsting for almost anything that concerns its national pastime.

The presentation is a rich look into baseball's colorful past, giving viewers glimpses of such legends as Christy Mathewson, Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, Babe Ruth and McGraw.

When McGraw won the National League pennant with the Giants in 1904, he refused to let his team compete against the Boston Red Sox because he did not recognize the newly formed American League.

Although he never won it, he hoisted the World Series banner atop a flag pole at the Polo Grounds.

The next year the Giants won again and this time McGraw agreed to play the Philadelphia Athletics. Superstitious, he dressed his players in black from head to foot. The Giants won. In 1911, facing the A's again in the World Series, old "Muggsy" repeated the funeral clothing act and won again.

That was the year that McGraw was approached by a tall, lanky man who introduced himself as Charles Victory Faust and claimed that a fortune teller had told him that if he pitched for the Giants the team was certain to win the pennant.

McGraw was intrigued but skeptical. He allowed the man to pitch a few balls to him. The pitches had no zip. But McGraw was not one to defy superstition. So he issued Faust a uniform.

Every day, Faust put on the uniform and warmed up with the team. He got it two games — barely. Faust's stuff was so innocuous that batsmen almost broke their backs swinging at the popcorn balls.

Faust survived. So did the Giants. They won the pennant in 1911. The next year, Faust came back. The Giants won again. They repeated in 1913.

Over the winter, Faust wrote McGraw that he wasn't feeling too well and suggested that if the Giants would send him to Hot Springs, Ark., to get in shape he would be ready for the next season.

That's when the bubble burst. He wasn't on the roster in 1914 — and the Giants failed to win the pennant. Faust died on June 18, 1915.

A tough-talking disciplinarian, McGraw was an early century combination of Billy Martin and Earl Weaver but he lacked their animosity for umpires.

One day, one of his young ballplayers rounded second base and was called out for failing to touch the bag. The player protested. "Tell me," barked McGraw, "didn't you touch that base?" "I stepped right on it," said the player. "You know something," said McGraw. "That will cost you $100. Anytime that man out there says you didn't step on it, you didn't step on it."

McEnroe's 'Court' Date Near

NEW YORK (AP) — John McEnroe, who owned Wimbledon's center court a few weeks ago, will get his day in "court" later this month, an appearance which could save him as much as $14,750 in fines and a costly suspension.

The Men's International Professional Tennis Council, the nine-man body that governs the grand prix tennis circuit, will be hearing an appeal by McEnroe, the Wimbledon singles champion, over fines imposed by Wimbledon as a result of his behavior during the prestigious tournament at the stately all-England Tennis Club.

Specifically, McEnroe objects to a $750 fine levied against him for alleged abuse of a linesman during a doubles match — but that's only the surface issue.

McEnroe also was fined $1,500 for two other minor infractions — displays of temper during his first-round singles victory over Tom Gullickson — and is not appealing those fines. But Wimbledon also has recommended two other fines amounting to $12,500. And when fines pass the $5,000 plateau, players can be suspended, too, for as much as 21 days.

Marshall Happer, administrator of the New York-based council, said Tuesday McEnroe "has been invited to present his side of the story by July 21. By the same token, I have asked for information (videotapes plus statements by umpires and linesmen) from the Wimbledon committee and I'm not exactly sure when we're going to get it, so I can't say at this time when this matter is going to be concluded."

It won't be on July 21. John

McEnroe Sr., a lawyer who will represent his 22-year-old son before the council, told The Associated Press late Tuesday he has "asked for and received an extension because we haven't received a copy of the charges from Wimbledon, so how can we answer them or prepare to answer them? When we have the charges, we will present our facts and our side of the story."

Depending on when a suspension, if any, is imposed and upheld, it could put a crimp in McEnroe's plans to successfully defend his U.S. Open title.

BR All-Star Teams Named

WASHINGTON — Greenville will have 12 players on the 17-18-year-old Babe Ruth All-Star team and 14 on the 16-year-old squad.

The 17-18-year-old Southern All-Star roster include five players from both Winterville and Bill Clifton Insurance. Winterville won the Coastal Plain Championship tournament and Bill Clifton was runnerup.

From Winterville will be Sammy Tucker, Emory Vines, Dixon Page, Jeff Cox and Roy Lassiter. From Bill Clifton will be Tom Buie, Crowell Pope, Scott Galloway, Keith Phillips and Billy Dough.

Others on the team are, from Kiwanis, Don Daughtridge and Bobby Hopkins.

The 17-18-year-old team will be coached by Clifton head man Allen Elder. The team's first outing is Friday at 8 p.m. at Roanoke High School against the Northern Conference in the opening game of a best-of-three district playoff series.

Kiwanis placed five players on the 16-year-old Southern team: Bill Owens, Jeff Wilson, Curtis Evans, Mont Carter and Ken Whitehurst. Bill Clifton will have four on the squad: Rudy Stalls, Terry Smith, Billy Johnson and Ken Kirkland.

The South will face the Northern All-Stars Friday at 6 p.m.

The 1981 state tournaments will start July 22. The 17-18-year old tournament will be in Manteo while the 16-year-old tournament will be at Eastern Wayne in Goldsboro.

Patriots Get License

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots will play their Monday night football game as scheduled this fall, but it may be a long time before they play another one at their home stadium.

The board of selectmen backed off Tuesday night from its unanimous decision of three weeks ago and voted 2-1 to license the nationally televised Sept. 21 National Football League game with the Dallas Cowboys for a 9 p.m. kickoff.

"A 9 p.m. game on Monday shall not be entertained next year," J. Neil Forster, the board chairman and one of the two switched votes, warned after the ballot.

The selectmen acted after Patriots owner William Sullivan said the contest would not be played in Foxboro if the scheduled time were changed.

He suggested that if the game were moved instead to Dallas, it would cost the Patriots about $150,000 in home team ticket revenue with a resulting loss to Foxboro which gets 52 cents for each ticket sold in Schaefer Stadium here.

Selectman R. Lawrence O'Donnell, who also changed his vote, said, "I'm presently satisfied that a change cannot be made."

"That's not the overriding concern," Peter D. Stanton, who again voted against a 9 p.m. starting time, said in a reference to the possible money loss. "The overriding concern is the issue of violence."

"I am opposed to any licensing which increases the risk to public safety. We have the right and responsibility to do something about it."

Concerned about violence attributed to spectator drinking at past Monday night games, the board voted 3-0 June 23 not to license any September game starting after 8 p.m. They hoped to cut down drinking. Hard liquor is not permitted in the stadium, and beer sales are halted before the end of the game.

The selectmen voted unanimously June 30 to reconsider their decision.

The Patriots presented letters to the selectmen from NFL Commissioner Pete Roselle and WCVB-TV, the Boston affiliate of the American Broadcasting Co. network which televises the Monday night football games. They defended the 9 p.m. start.

"If the 8 o'clock recommendation is approved by the board, it would be tantamount to suggesting that the game will not be played in Foxboro," Sullivan told the selectmen.

"There is no way at this late date that we could get the network and the league to change the time of the game."

Payton To Report Despite 'Details'

CHICAGO (AP) — Running back Walter Payton should be on hand for opening of the Chicago Bears' training camp, even if every detail of a new contract is not worked out by then, his attorney says.

"If we're not at a definite agreement before camp opens (July 23), we anticipate working out something so Walter can go to camp," attorney Bud Holmes said Tuesday from his office in Mississippi.

"Walter enjoys an excellent and amicable relationship with the club and we're anticipating an agreement."

Another Payton attorney, Holmes and Payton met for seven hours Saturday with Bears General Manager Jim Finks to discuss a contract proposal. Payton, already the highest-paid player in the National Football League at a reported salary of $475,000, would remain so under the terms of the proposal, said Holmes.

"We are shooting toward the $600,000-a-year range," said Holmes. He also said he was expecting to hear the Bears' answer to the proposal sometime within the next week.

Holmes denied earlier reports, attributed to an ABC radio interviewer, that Payton's new contract would make him the highest-paid player in NFL history, a distinction held by O.J. Simpson, who reportedly was paid more than $800,000 for his final season with the San Francisco 49ers.

"Under our proposal, assuming O.J. got $800,000, Walter would not become the highest-paid player in history," he said.

"There was no doubt in my mind or in Walter's where we would sign," said Holmes, adding that rumors Payton had received an offer from Montreal of the Canadian Football League were false.

Motivation Key To Falcons' Fortunes?

SUWANEE, Ga (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons could be top contenders in 1981, says Coach Leeman Bennett, but one of the team's toughest opponents might be motivation.

"The things that concerns me about going into camp this year," said Bennett, now in his fifth season with the National Football League club, "is the attitude of maybe thinking we're better than we are and not working as hard as we have to win."

For Bennett, the 1981 Falcons look dangerously like the 1979 club, which came off a play-off season and a 9-7 record in 1978 to finish a disappointing 6-10 in 1979.

The 1980 team finished at 12-4.

"As I look back on it now, there seemed to be a little intangible missing in training camp (in 1979)," said Bennett as he prepared for training camp, which begins here for rookies this week. The team veterans will return next week.

"After all those miracle finishes we had in 1978, I kind of got the feeling that we as a team felt winning in the National Football League was easy. But it's never easy."

Bennett now has time to think about the season because the Falcons have completed signing of college draft choices.

Team officials on Saturday closed a deal with No. 1 draft pick Bobby Butler of Florida State. Butler will join Scott Woerner of Georgia and Lyman White of Louisiana in trying to earn starting spots.

Bennett said all three top draft choices have a chance to "come in here and replace somebody."

Butler and Woerner were both cornerbacks in college, but Woerner will be a safety with the Falcons.

Rookies and starters alike will begin the fall season trying to hold onto the NFL West championship. That effort will hinge not only on motivation, but also on the team's ability to shore up the pass defense, Bennett said.

The preseason opens Aug. 1 against Cleveland in the Hall of Fame Game at Canton, Ohio.

Two players failed their physicals Tuesday, according to team spokesman Charlie Dayton. They are Dennis Pearson, a third-year wide receiver from San Diego State, who has a knee problem, and James Cathy, a rookie free agent from Tulane who was suffering from high blood pressure, Dayton said.

There were 57 players in camp Tuesday night, including wide receiver Alfred Jackson and tight end Russ Makeska, who did not have to report until next week.

Card's Lomax, Hart Unsigned

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — The first training camp practice is only two days off, but neither St. Louis Cardinals quarterback Jim Hart nor his understudy has signed.

The signing of Hart, the National Football League's ranking veteran at his position, was believed Tuesday to be closer than that of rookie Neil Lomax. Also unresolved are negotiations with linebacker E. J. Junior, the top St. Louis draft choice.

Marvin Demoff, the agent for the 6-foot-3, 235-pound Junior talked with Cards vice president Joe Sullivan and said afterward, "We're not close at all."

Meanwhile, Hart expressed hope that his contract can be ironed out by attorney Ron Lurie before he is scheduled to report July 24. Most veterans, including seven others who are unsigned, start practice the next day.

"It's a possibility. I don't want to do that," Hart said when asked if would hold out over contract demands. "It's not something I look forward to doing and until next week I'm going to remain optimistic."

Lurie said St. Louis' offer of a 10 percent pay hike for Hart, whose salary in 1980 was $250,000, was not considered acceptable.

"To somebody making $10,000 a year, it might be a big difference."

Spy Chief Out, CIA Boss Under Fire

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With the CIA's spy chief already forced out by allegations of stock manipulation, CIA Director William J. Casey faces a federal judge's ruling that he knowingly misled investors in a separate business venture in the late 1960s.

Max Hugel, an outsider whose appointment had irked career intelligence officers, resigned as the agency's deputy director of operations Tuesday, hours after The Washington Post published allegations that in 1974 he slipped inside information about a firm he headed to two Wall Street brokers.

Later Tuesday, reporters discovered an overlooked May 19 ruling by U.S. District Judge Charles E. Stewart Jr. in New York against Casey and others in a damage suit over their efforts to raise capital for an unsuccessful farming corporation in 1968.

Both Casey and the CIA refused to comment on Stewart's ruling, and President Reagan aid Hugel's departure was distressing because "once again we seem to be taking an accusation as a conviction."

Hugel said: "I have done nothing wrong."

Casey, 68, and Hugel, 56, are both self-made millionaires. Casey brought Hugel with him to the agency from the Reagan presidential campaign. As campaign director, Casey had admired Hugel's style and work as chief of ethnic group activities.

Casey, who broke into spy work with the Office of Strategic Services, the CIA's World War II predecessor, had endured harsh criticism from former CIA officers for putting Hugel in one of the agency's most sensitive positions. Hugel's intelligence background was limited to some post-war work for the Army in Japan.

Before the day was out

Tuesday, Hugel was out of the CIA — replaced by a career officer hailed by the "old boy" network — and attention had shifted to the financial dealings of Casey himself, who headed the Securities and Exchange Commission during the Nixon administration.

Judge Stewart's 19-page ruling came in a 1974 class-action suit filed by investors in a New Orleans firm called Multiponics Inc., of which Casey was an officer and director.

In an effort to raise capital for the firm, Casey and the other defendants issued a stock offering circular in October 1968 which said the company's assets at the time included seven operating farm units and two tracts of uncleared land, Stewart said.

But in September 1969 and July 1970 statements filed with the SEC, the firm stated that "of the seven so-called operating farming units, two were not operating at all at the time they were acquired by the company, two were not operating other than sharecropping and one was operating at a loss," Stewart wrote.

The offering circular also stated that $1,354,000 of the proceeds from the sale of debentures would be used to retire short-term debt, Stewart said. In fact, the judge said, the SEC registration statements showed that the company used $917,000, or about 68 percent of the proceeds, to repay officers and directors of Multiponics for loans to the firm.

Although noting that the defendants denied deliberate concealment, Stewart said they "do not dispute that they knew the material facts misstated or omitted."

Stewart still must rule on whether the investors relied on the offering circular to buy Multiponics' securities and therefore are entitled to damages.

In his resignation letter, Hugel called the allegations against him "unfounded, unproven and untrue."

But, he said, "These allegations... have become a burden which I no longer believe is fair to impose on the administration, the agency, my family and the splendid men and women who work with me."

Casey accepted Hugel's resignation with "deepest regret" and immediately named career CIA official John Stein as his successor.

At the White House, chief spokesman David R. Gergen said Casey discussed the impending Post story last Thursday with White House chief of staff James A. Baker III and White House counsel Fred Fielding, who met later with Hugel.

The White House denied a Washington Star report that Baker had told Casey to get rid of Hugel. "He resigned on his own initiative and with consultation with Mr. Casey," Gergen said.

Gergen said he anticipates no official investigation, noting that a five-year statute of limitations applies to the allegations made against Hugel. He said it will be up to Casey to decide whether to review why the CIA's background check of Hugel had not turned up the allegations.

Tuesday evening, Reagan told reporters: "I was distressed that once again we seem to be taking an accusation as a conviction. He resigned because he didn't want to in any way cause trouble for the administration. It should be remembered there's been nothing but the allegation."

Hugel's swift departure, however, drew praise from Cord Meyer, a leader among former CIA officers.

The CIA does not announce in-house appointments, but in mid-May Meyer disclosed Hugel's appointment in the newspaper column he now writes.

Hugel was in command of the agency's clandestine service. That made him responsible for intelligence-gathering around the world and for the CIA's most delicate work — covert operations, such as supporting guerrilla fighters in some countries or attempting to influence foreign politicians.

Meyer said Tuesday, "I feel they recognized their mistake and moved quickly to repair it. I thought Casey was taking a very long gamble putting him in that job because of his inexperience, perhaps an unnecessary one because there were so many qualified men to fill it."

Meyer hailed the choice of Stein, who he said has experience abroad and has served for the past four years as deputy chief of operations.

"I should think the troops would be well pleased with Stein," Meyer said. "It will improve morale all around."

The State Department's 1974 Biographic Register lists only one John Stein, a Yale graduate now 48. The Register shows Stein served as a foreign service reserve political officer, a typical CIA cover, in Belgium, The Congo, Cameroon, Cambodia and Libya.

Meyer volunteered in an interview: "I've heard some rumors that the old boy network was behind this, but that's not true so far as I know. I didn't know about this when I wrote the column and apparently these men (making the allegations against Hugel) went to the Post on their own."

Hugel went to the Post in person last Friday to rebut the charges the paper was preparing to publish. He was accompanied by his lawyers and CIA general counsel Stanley Sporkin, a Casey appointee who had been enforcement chief for the SEC.

Outside his home Tuesday night, Hugel said: "I have never made a penny of unlawful profit nor have I done anything else to bring discredit upon my company, my family, myself, the agency for which I so briefly worked or the United States government. I have done nothing wrong."

The Post quoted New York brothers Thomas R. McNell, 49, and Samuel F. McNell, 47, as saying they and Hugel participated in a series of prohibited practices in 1974 to promote the stock of Hugel's electronics company, Brother International Corp.

They said Hugel gave them inside information about the company's potential earnings in advance of disclosure to other investors and improperly funneled $131,000 to their brokerage firm, McNell Securities.

Festival Committee Will Meet

AYDEN — The Collard Festival Planning Committee will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall, upstairs in the district courtroom.

All members of the board of directors, volunteers and interested persons are urged to attend. Persons are needed to man booths and direct events during the festival, scheduled for September.

According to festival publicity chairman Gil Davis, this meeting represents a critical time for festival planning. "We need to get the basic plans off the ground," he explained, "and we need as many people as possible that are interested to show their interest by participating."

Services Planned

The following services have been scheduled for Holy Mission Church, 905 Dickenson Avenue:

Thursday, 7:30 p.m., Eldress Valire Graham and Allen Chapel will be guests for prayer and praise service.

Three-day revival, Friday-Sunday, 7:30 p.m., speaker will be the pastor, Eldress Shirley Atkinson.

Bridge Dedication On Monday

A new $4.2 million bridge that spans the Intracoastal Waterway at Wilkerson Creek on US 264 in Hyde County will be dedicated on Monday, July 20.

Ceremonies are scheduled at the bridge site, located about 12 miles east of Belhaven, with Gov. Jim Hunt, First District Rep. Walter Jones, and other federal, state and local officials taking part.

The new structure, built by the Army Corps of Engineers, Wilmington District, will be named the Walter B. Jones Bridge in recognition of the congressman's efforts, it was noted.

The new high-rise, fixed-span bridge has two lanes and is 40 feet wide and 65 feet high. It replaces an 18-foot wide low-level swing-span bridge built in 1934.

UNC Accord Assailed By Commission

WASHINGTON (AP) - A letter released Tuesday by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission condemns the University of North Carolina desegregation settlement, calling it a setback for integration.

"The commission believes," the July 10 dated letter said, "that the decision to enter into this agreement represents a serious and disturbing development, not only because of its deleterious effect on desegregating higher education in North Carolina, but also because of the unfortunate precedent it establishes for other state systems."

The letter was sent to U.S. Education Secretary Terrel H. Bell and Attorney General William French Smith, and asked them to reconsider the decision to file the agreement - in the form of a consent decree - with U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. in Raleigh, N.C.

The charges in the letter echo those voiced by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund after the agreement was announced. In fact, fears that a legal precedent could be set in the case cause U.S. Justice Department officials to back off from the pact a short time after the signing. New wording was added to indicate that the settlement applied only to UNC campuses.

The commission letter also said the agreement failed "with regard to strengthening the traditionally black institutions, desegregation of student enrollments and desegregation of faculty and staffs."

Despite such objections, the government and UNC attorneys submitted the plan to Dupree on Monday. The judge said he would study legal arguments in the case before deciding whether to approve the consent decree.

The commission is the federal government's chief watchdog over civil rights, often making policy recommendations to the president, Congress and federal agencies.

Mary F. Berry, the commission's vice chairman, was a key critic of UNC's desegregation efforts when she served as assistant secretary for education in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare under President Carter.

The target of the commission's criticism is a July 2 agreement that would end 11 years of legal disputes between UNC and the federal government over alleged vestiges of segregation in the 16-campus system.

The pact calls for UNC to take steps to increase minority enrollment at the 11 traditionally white campuses, while increasing white registrants at the five traditionally black schools.

'Defenseless'

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - President Julio Cesar Turbay claims Cuba's Fidel Castro is developing "a clever policy of penetrating neighboring islands with great skill in order to attack budding democratic systems."

Turbay said Tuesday that Castro has triggered a Latin America arms race by trying to disrupt Caribbean democracies.

Turbay's address to Colombian ambassadors in Central America and the Caribbean came shortly after a report that about 50 Colombian guerrillas ambushed an army patrol about 200 miles southwest of Bogota, killing nine soldiers and wounding several others.

Turbay, whose government suspended diplomatic relations with Cuba earlier this year, said Colombia is "defenseless", and called for policies to deal with the danger of "exported revolution arriving at our own shores."

SWEEPING ARRESTS

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Police arrested 200 people overnight during sweeps across Hyderabad City, battered by three days of Hindu-Muslim clashes that have killed at least 16 people, news reports said today.

Blood Tests Not Needed

Premarital blood tests for syphilis are no longer required to obtain a marriage license in North Carolina, by action of the General Assembly, and the measure is expected to save consumers up to a half million dollars a year.

The test has been required since 1939 as a result of legislation passed during that year, but the incidence of reported syphilis cases since that time has decreased to the point that health officials feel that the test is no longer cost effective.

According to Jim Fowler, who heads the Venereal Disease Control section of the Division of Health Services, N.C. Department of Human Resources, the year the law was passed there were 30,965 reported cases of syphilis in the state. In 1980 there were only 1,521 cases. "This decrease probably is the result of the advent of penicillin in the 1940s and better case-finding techniques," he said.

Less than one percent of all early cases are actually detected through premarital testing, he added.

The Division of Health Services, in conjunction with the N.C. Medical Society, recommended the removal of the blood test as a requirement for obtaining a marriage license.

Most of this testing has been done through private laboratories and has represented an estimated cost of $300,000 to $500,000 a year to the consumer. State costs for blood tests, which have been done through local health departments, amount to about 75 cents per test or an estimated $18,750 a year.

In a survey made last year of states having mandatory blood tests laws, 31 of 43 states found the premarital screening ineffective and felt it should be repealed, Fowler commented.

"The Division of Health Services will now concentrate efforts on better education and increasing the awareness of venereal disease, along with intensive case-finding techniques as a check against spread of syphilis in the future," he added.

"So the message from the local health department," local health educator Pat Byrd said, "is don't come to us for a blood test before getting married. We're no longer in the business." She said the rewritten law still requires certification by a licensed physician that the marriage applicants be "free of venereal disease and communicable tuberculosis and mentally competent."

Literacy Is His Goal In Venezuela

By JANELLE CONAWAY
Associated Press Writer
CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Kits designed to teach people to read and write are on sale in supermarkets and banks in Venezuela. They are part of a free-enterprise campaign to wipe out illiteracy.

Twenty businessmen — the Who's Who of the Venezuelan private sector — each put $50,000 a year of their companies' money into operating a non-profit organization that markets the kits. The portable Sound Kits contain a record player, 31 "soundsheets," six primers, a fold-up chalkboard, chalk and pencils and they cost the equivalent of about $23.

The campaign has the backing of free advertising and the good will of housewives, students, convicts and traffic cops.

The idea is for any ordinary, literate citizen to teach five adult neighbors how to read, write and do basic arithmetic over a period of 90 to 100 hours of instruction and study.

The aim is to help stamp out Venezuela's estimated 16 percent illiteracy rate in the next two years.

"We're a business selling products — educational tools and motivation," said Edgardo Cuevas, general manager of the Association for Cultural Development, whose acronym ACUDE is the Spanish word for "respond," in the sense of responding to a call for help.

"The real heroes of this program are those who do the teaching," Cuevas said.

The program is based on motivating individuals to help their communities instead of relying on the government. The kit is sold — at 60 percent of production cost — rather than given away, because "what you don't pay for you don't value," Cuevas said. ACUDE hopes to market 200,000 Sound Kits.

In theory, it costs each person just under $5 to learn to read, although some groups such as the national guard, a farmers' union and the Boy Scouts have bought hundreds of kits to give away. In a town called Mariara, two hours from Caracas, a company that assembles Renault automobiles bought 300 kits and has launched a campaign that has most of the town involved, Cuevas said.

In addition to these donations, TV personalities make commercials for free. The government exempts the record players, made in Taiwan, and the thin plastic records, made in Florida, from import taxes. Independent businesses sell the Sound Kits at no profit. Television and radio stations and newspapers donate advertising space worth $2 million a month.

ACUDE was officially started last October, but the teaching method had been tested for two years before in rural areas of three Venezuelan states. The Sound Kits were developed by Venezuelan university professors and recorded by newscasters of a network owned by one of ACUDE's founders.

So far 18,000 kits have been distributed and 14,000 sold. Cuevas said some people were buying the low-priced kits for the radio-record player, but he added that ACUDE was confident its hard-sell advertising would motivate people to use the kits for reading lessons.

The ads, which according to ACUDE surveys have reached 92 percent of the Venezuelan population, appeal mainly to people's patriotic instincts, urging citizens to completely eliminate illiteracy by 1983 — the bicentennial of Latin American Liberator Simon Bolivar's birth in Caracas.

Last December ACUDE ran an ad showing a gift-wrapped Sound Kit, with the message: "This year, give Venezuela a gift. Give her five literate citizens."

Cuevas said one reason people learn is that their teachers are their friends, so they don't feel threatened or embarrassed. Nereida Marcial, who taught nine neighbors from 43 to 66 years old how to read, agreed. "People accepted me, because I was someone from the same community," said Ms. Marcial, who now works at ACUDE as a regional promoter.

EXPENSIVE — Billy Jean King's former lover is costing her $1,000 a month by refusing to budge from a Malibu beach house, the tennis star claims. Hazards Of The Outdoor Life Remain

NEW YORK (AP) — A master plan for childproofing outdoor play areas could save parents of toddlers a great deal of worry and grief, since children under the age of 3 simply do not understand the concept of safety, advises a magazine for expectant and new mothers.

It's up to parents to establish rules, explain them, and then repeat and repeat, while keeping ever watchful and checking regularly to make sure the plan is working well, warn the editors of Mothers' Manual.

The first step, the publication points out, is to establish clear boundaries for the outdoor play area and provide an assortment of toys and activities that will keep youngsters busy and content to stay within limits.

Animals, insects, yard tools, chemicals, garbage and barbecues are among the outdoor hazards very young children could encounter.

Cars, garages and driveways can all be prime sources of danger. The magazine suggests that parents make it a habit to remove keys from the ignition of parked cars and lock the doors. Even a very young toddler can put a car in gear or push in — and pull out — a cigarette lighter.

Keep garage doors closed at all times when not in use. If you have an automatic door opener, be especially careful: children holding on have been lifted up by them, and others have been strangled under them.

Driveways, too, can be a major source of trouble, and children should never, never play in them, the editors warn.

Despite all precautions, however, children do have accidents. Three things that could help parents deal effectively with emergencies — large or small — are these, the article points out:

Keep a first-aid kit ready to go, rather than supplies in a medicine chest; have a first-aid handbook for childhood emergencies; and learn two techniques of artificial respiration — mouth-to-mouth resuscitation (used whenever a child ceases breathing for any reason) and the Heimlich maneuver (used when a child is choking).

Many cities offer training in artificial respiration to the public — often at no charge, the editors note. If your community does, do sign up, they urge.

If not, you can teach yourself with the help of one of a number of excellent illustrated first-aid manuals available from libraries and bookstores, they add.

Chicago Lawyer Planning Remake Of '1984'

By JAMES LITKE
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Marvin Rosenblum has seen the future, and he wants a piece of it — 1984 to be precise. It struck him as an idea whose time is coming, an idea sparked one day in 1979 when Rosenblum scanned his library and spotted the volume "1984" by British author George Orwell.

George Orwell, a 38-year-old attorney who believes timing is everything, the leap from the book to the silver screen seemed a natural. With the year 1984 drawing near and the thought that someone else might also be thinking of movie rights, he asked himself, "Why not Rosenblum?"

It was not a presumptuous question. This is the same Rosenblum who, while a law student at the University of Chicago, dreamed up and marketed the Spiro Agnew wristwatch.

The same Rosenblum who came up with the idea (it never did pan out) of having 4 million people across the country link hands simultaneously as the ultimate expression of Bicentennial fever.

At the beginning, this latest idea seemed doomed to similar failure. Rosenblum could not find a copy of the original 1966 movie, which starred Edmund O'Brien and Jan Sterling as the doomed lovers Winston and Julia. He had not known that Orwell's widow, Sonia — said to be unhappy with the film — had withdrawn all prints from circulation in 1976, when the license expired.

Rosenblum next tried to find the agent for Orwell's estate. He had no luck until February 1980, when he contacted agent Robin Dalton in California and flew out after a brief conversation.

"She agreed to press my case with the right people," he said. The "right people" turned out to be the author's widow herself, in failing health in England. In August 1980, he flew to London to lunch with Mrs. Orwell. He sensed that his goal was near. But Mrs. Orwell at first demanded complete creative control, "which would have made any deal untenable," recalled Rosenblum, "and I knew she wouldn't relinquish it to anyone that she didn't trust. She is very protective of her work."

MOVIE RIGHTS — Marvin Rosenblum scans a copy of the novel "1984" in his Chicago office. He bought the movie rights to George Orwell's novel last year and hopes to put the story on the screen by 1984. (AP Laserphoto)

"The discussion was like squeezing water out of a sponge. Everything I had soaked up, I discussed with her. I found out later that she told people I was the first person who really did his homework," Rosenblum said. "After trying to convince her that I had read his books and come to some understanding of his vision, I cited an obscure essay he had written on the cinema."

"The premise was to get the message — his message — out to as many people as possible," he continued. "The cinema afforded that chance, and once I assured her that I didn't envision the movie as a special-effects extravaganza, or a glitzy production, I think we reached an understanding."

Shortly after Thanksgiving last year, Mrs. Orwell phoned him to say she would sign a contract. With a British notary public in tow, and arrangements made to register the contract at the U.S. Embassy in London, Rosenblum concluded his odyssey Dec. 1, 1980, at Mrs. Orwell's bedside.

She died nine days later. Orwell's "1984" was first published in 1949, an unsettling essay in the quiet readjustment period following World War II.

Remarkable for its prophetic depiction of a society controlled and manipulated through technology undreamed of at the time it was written, "1984" fast became a catchword in the language, a symbol of vague fears of totalitarianism. "Big Brother Is Watching You," the slogan on the omnipresent posters in the "1984" society, became a tense joke in a world where government surveillance grew along with technology.

If timing is everything, the movie project can't miss — Rosenblum has targeted December 1983 or January 1984 as the release date. Owning the movie rights, however, is no guarantee that Rosenblum's version of Orwell's disturbing vision will end up on film.

He is busy now putting together the "package," trying to line up a director and a writer, deciding whether to offer it to a studio or go the independent route. "I know of no other industry that continues to operate with something like a 70 percent failure rate," Rosenblum said of moviemaking. "And ... you're depending on the mood of some 10 million moviegoers. If you subscribe to the premise that you want to reach the most people, the aim is not to make an art film. We're not trying to re-create literary excellence in the cinema. They are different mediums."

Still, he mused, "Whenever you start with a classic book, you have a leg up on making a classic film. ... The point is

Two TV Writers Tell Of Past Frustrations

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two of television's most prolific and talented writers tell of 20 years down the rabbit hole in one of the few books ever written from inside the medium.

"Stay Tuned," published at $11.95 by St. Martin's Press, records the frustrations and heartaches of "Columbo," "My Sweet Charlie," "The Execution of Private Slovik," "That Certain Summer" and many other top quality shows. It's a terse, enlightening, sometimes funny-sometimes infuriating account.

Despite the headaches, Richard Levinson and William Link love television. They have ventured into feature films, but they confessed to me recently that they actually prefer television. I say confessed because such an opinion is considered heresy or lunacy. Or both.

Few people in television have had their names attached to as many outstanding shows as these two, who have been partners since high school. I first met them in the summer of 1971 when they were preparing "Columbo" as a series for NBC.

Levinson is tall, with a moustache, has a deep, resonant voice and does most of the talking. Link is short, with a moustache and Vandike beard, and wears black hornrim glasses. Both have an air of intellectuality, but are down to earth.

When I was ushered into their small office at Universal Studios 10 years ago they stopped work on a "Columbo" script to talk. They instantly asked for help in a script problem: how to get a visitor quickly through the locked gates of an estate when he hears a scream for help. I wasn't much help.

In the book they tell how they asked everyone they saw for help. The mysteries the rumpled, raincoat-clad detective was called upon to solve were so complicated that they became a trap.

Before the program went on the air NBC had its doubts about the show and kept urging them to inject "jeopardy" and "action" into the stories. Levinson and Link resisted and the show became an enormous hit.

They also relate in fascinating detail their own initial doubts about Peter Falk in the starring role — and, in contrast, his own doubts about them. They write, "In an uncanny way he was very much like Columbo: clever, reflective, and oblique. And so a Pirandelloesque game of cat and mouse was played out in our office as well as in our scripts."

Their first movie for television was "My Sweet Charlie," one of the first NBC World Premiere movies in 1969, and still one of the best movies ever made for television. I wrote at the time, and on occasion after that, that "My Sweet Charlie" was THE turning point in the development of made-for-television movies. I still believe that.

One chapter delivers a blow-by-blow description of the struggle to get "My Sweet Charlie" on the air. Troubles with the studio, the

George Burns A Hot Property

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — George Burns remains a hot ticket on television and will star next season in a one-hour special titled "The George Burns Early, Early, Early Christmas Special."

The musical variety show is scheduled for telecasting in early November.

Burns' guest stars include Ann-Margret, Bob Hope, Hans Conrard, the Hawkins Family and the Playboys Playmates.

network, the stars, problems of shooting on location in Texas, a cameraman who could never seem to focus the camera on the actors. Plus a chilling story of how some law enforcement officers considered arresting Patty Duke, the feminine lead, on a trumped-up narcotics charge because she wouldn't date a friend of theirs.

Levinson and Link don't attempt an overall look at television. They write only from the viewpoint of their experiences. Even so, they give it enough perspective that you get a feeling of how the industry works, why some shows get on and others don't. It's also a detailed study of the Kafkaesque machinations of the networks.

The book is also full of surprises, even for someone well acquainted with the authors and their works.

One of the biggest is that a movie superstar telephoned them and asked to play the part of Eddie Slovik in "The Execution of Private Slovik." (I'll save his identity to preserve the surprise.) NBC programming executives were skeptical. His last picture hadn't done well at the box office. Besides, they reasoned, he wasn't a television name. Levinson and Link had to find an excuse to gently turn him down.

The Oscar he won a few years later probably helped him get over the hurt.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early morning is the best time of the day to make long-range plans for the future. Make sure you are in control of your emotions so that you don't become involved in arguments. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have to exercise more care in business deals now to avoid possible trouble. Take steps to improve your health. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Put your ideas to work that could prove profitable at this time. Take treatments that will make you healthier. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Good day to put your house in order, even if it means more effort and extra work on your part. Buy appliances you need. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use more care in travel to avoid possible accident. Be diplomatic in handling a civic affair. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make changes in your budget so that you have less expense. Study practical ways to improve conditions in your environment. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your appearance well and know where to make improvements. Use your good judgment instead of relying on others. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Concentrate on private matters that need your attention at this time. Make the evening a happy one. Be wise. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Think about doing more for your true friends instead of expecting more from them now. Show others that you have wisdom. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have to be very careful you do nothing to injure your reputation since adverse aspects are in effect now. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan time for obtaining facts and figures for a new project you have in mind or you could lose out before you start. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more businesslike in handling finances and safeguard your interests. Strive for more harmony at home. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) It may be necessary to have long discussions with associates if you wish to work more harmoniously in the future. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very fussy and finicky, so to counteract this, teach to understand the motivations of others. Ideal chart for the researcher and the laboratory worker. Be sure to plan for a college education. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF SALE NORTH CAROLINA PITTS COUNTY TAKE NOTICE that in accordance with section 115-124 of the General Statutes of North Carolina, the Pitts County Board of Education has decided that the personal property described herein is surplus and unnecessary for school purposes, will sell to the highest bidder for CASH, on the premises of D.H. Conley High School, Route 2, Greenville, Pitts County, North Carolina, at 9:30 o'clock A.M. on FRIDAY, JULY 24, 1981. The following described personal property: A one-story unfinished house with windows and hardwood siding with primer coat of paint roofed and boxed, with the inside walls partitioned for living room, kitchen, 2 bedrooms and bath, and said house measuring 24 X 30 feet. This unfinished house was constructed by the Vocational Carpentry Class at D.H. Conley High School. The above described property will be sold for CASH, and the sale will remain open for ten (10) days to permit the making of an upset bid. A 10% cash deposit will be required of the highest bidder on the date of sale. The Pitts County Board of Education reserves the right to reject any and all bids. The purchaser will have the responsibility of removing the above described unfinished house from the premises within thirty (30) days after notice of sale by the Pitts County Board of Education that the sale has been approved. Additional information pertaining to the house described herein may be obtained from Carl Toot in the office of the Vocational Board of Education, Pitts County Office Building, Greenville, North Carolina. PITTS COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION June 30, July 7, 15, 23, 1981

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF 1981 by Chicago Tribune Both vulnerable. South deals. NORTH ♠ A 6 ♥ Q J 9 7 3 ♦ 10 8 6 5 2 ♣ 10 8 6 5 2 SOUTH ♠ A 8 3 ♥ K 7 5 2 ♦ A K 10 6 4 ♣ A

The bidding: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass 5 ♠ Pass 5 ♠ Pass 7 ♠ Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

When this hand was played at a recent tournament, no player succeeded in making thirteen tricks at a diamond slam, although they should have. Duplicate players, just like rubber bridge players, sometimes have a blind spot.

North was perhaps a smidgeon light for his jump raise to three diamonds, especially since so many of his points were in his short suits, but there really was not a better bid available. After a cue-bidding sequence in which the partners showed first- and second-round controls, South chose to gamble on a grand slam, which was an excellent contract.

Some Sneakers Said Harmful

NEW YORK (AP) - Some types of sneakers worn continuously may be harmful to your feet. Synthetic materials such as nylon and vinyl don't allow enough perspiration to evaporate into the air, trapped moisture can spawn fungi, micro-organisms and viruses, reports a sports podiatrist. If the skin gets soft, fungi could penetrate and cause painful infection. If your child won't wear shoes, consider buying two pairs of sneakers, so they can be rotated. Cotton socks which "breathe" should be worn and changed daily.

Wanted: Seat On The Council

Wanted: Seat On The Council

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The classified ad in the "Situations Wanted" column was brief and to the point: "Councilman-at-large-Orleans Parish: highly qualified, available Feb., 1982. 'Jack' Dee. 282-3819." Dee said later that he placed the ad in the Times-Picayune--States-Item to announce his candidacy for one of the two at-large council seats in next February's election. "At the moment, a want ad is all I can afford," Dee conceded. "It cost me $13.59 to run it Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and if the response continues like it has been, I may run it some more after that."

Some Scholars Find Summer School To Be A Snap

By LEE MITGANG
AP Education Writer
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — After three days of summer school, 13-year-old Bill Cross had mastered as much trigonometry as most youngsters do in a year.

Twelve-year-old Ray Burns, who builds computers in his spare time, was working on Algebra II, and looking ahead to analytic geometry.

And Christy Sweatt, 13, was breezing through a three-week cram course in beginning German. Her teacher, K. Omar F. Hossain, said she was a good bet to score as well as any high school student — after a year of study.

For these three and 150 other very gifted 12- and 13-year-olds, summer school this year means a visit to the lush, tobacco- and julep-scented Duke University campus and a chance to learn in three weeks as much math, Ger-an, creative writing or American history as most youngsters learn in three years.

The students were selected for the program from among thousands of applicants after a 13-state talent search.

"It's interesting to walk into a classroom of 12-year-olds, and know that there's no way I can ever measure up intellectually to those kids," says Dr. Robert Sawyer, 39, a mathematician and director of the Duke program.

This unusual program is part of a diverse spectrum of summer school activities across the United States — from traditional remedial programs designed to offer pupils who flunked a chance to avoid repeating a year to exotic adventures.

Some cities, including Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Chicago, have cut back on summer school because of budget problems. But in other cities the tradition is flourishing.

"Summer school has become an enduring tradition," says Gary Marx, a spokesman for the American Association of School administrators.

In New York, Detroit, Washington, Seattle and other big cities where the "back-to-basics" philosophy has been embraced, tens of thousands of children are taking courses as a last chance to improve reading or math skills, or face being held back a grade.

In Miami, nearly 14,000 Miami refugee children are taking summer bilingual instruction in math, science and health. The courses are being taught in Haitian Creole, Russian, Hindi, Portuguese, Laotian — and English.

And in the exotic category, 30 students of Peterson High School in Santa Clara, Calif., are cleaning up a dying river this summer. They're living along Scott's Creek just north of Davenport and perhaps bringing the day closer when it will be safe again for steelhead trout and silver salmon.

But there are few programs with more intellectual challenge than the Talent Identification Program in its first year here at Duke.

The specially selected 12- and 13-year-olds are taught by instructors barely in their 20s who themselves are prodigies. They have to be, says Sawyer, because otherwise the quick-learning youngsters would soon outstrip teachers of average intelligence.

"Our teachers are themselves gifted, like to teach, like kids, and aren't afraid to work," he says. "And the students make them work."

One teacher, Chi-Bin Chien, is only 15. He is the youngest graduate ever from Johns Hopkins University, and is bound for Cambridge University next year as a Churchill scholar.

While boning up on basic skills is the thrust of most summer schools, the youngsters enrolled here attend to problems of another sort. And their young, gifted teachers offer these children instruction in something only they can explain — how to deal with the sticky social problems of being a prodigy.

"In many of our schools, we're looked at as sort of outcasts, we're weird, we're different," says David Shaywitz, a 13-year old from Westport, Conn., who scored more than 700 out of a possible 800 on his math Scholastic Aptitude Test — 250 points higher than the average college-bound high school senior.

Here, these bright young people learn through dealings with others who have the same mental ability that there is a fine line between obnoxiously flaunting their talents and being afraid they're not a "regular guy."

"A lot of them see for the first time that they are not alone, that it's OK to be smart," says Kevin Bartkovich, who at 21 teaches the Duke program's most advanced math prodigies, and who Sawyer predicts "may be one of the greatest math teachers this country has ever seen."

The Duke program, modeled after one run by Johns Hopkins, operates on the belief that very young, gifted children can and should move along in their studies more quickly than other children.

That the children at Duke are capable of incredible feats was apparent after the first day, when two of them had already passed math exams covering material the average child takes a year to learn. By the third day, six more had covered similar ground.

"It's a lot faster here because you don't have to do all those problems," says 11-year-old Jefferson Rigby of Durham, who looks like just another kid with braces, except that he scored more than 700 on both his math and verbal SATs — high enough to win admission to any U.S. college.

"This is the first time I've ever been placed in a math book where I feel challenged," says Cross, who comes from Kalamazoo, Mich.

The classroom atmosphere here is different. With desk calculators to one side and two or three texts on the other, the pupils work at their own pace. Teachers glide around the room, ready to answer questions — if asked.

"You rarely talk to a whole classroom. You talk to individuals. Everyone moves at different speeds," says math instructor Keith Pesto.

Getting into the Duke program is not easy. Enrollment is the culmination of a talent search in the elementary schools of the South and Southeast.

PLAN CLOSINGS
LONDON (AP) — The opposition Labor Party hopes to force private schools to close under a plan to end class distinctions in British society. The plan would be implemented if the Labor Party wins the next general election. Some 550,000 pupils, about 5 percent of the school population, would be affected.

The university notified 12,000 schools in the 13-state area that it was interested in finding extraordinary seventh graders in the top 3 percent of their class. About 11,000 youngsters from 2,000 schools applied, and some children from outside the region asked for admission after they learned of the program by word-of-mouth.

Of those who applied, 9,000 took SAT exams, and about 700 children scored the necessary 500 to 550 to be invited into the Duke program. Applicants were then accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. The cost was $625 transportation.

The 121 math participants scored an average 610 to 620 on their SATs. The 32 who enrolled in American history, German or writing classes average 570 to 580 scores.

Sawyer says the program is individually tailored because the children themselves have very different approaches to their intellectual talents. Some came to Duke to forge ahead in areas of strength, while others were looking for something new to pursue.

Diana Stiefbold, of Coral Gables, Fla., got the highest verbal score in the group at 710, but chose to take math

Twelve-year-old Adam Raichel of Wyckoff, N.J., chose to learn a year's worth of German in three weeks with the help of a computer, instead of taking math even though he scored a near-perfect 780 on his math SAT.

"I just didn't see any need to rush calculus," said the youngster, who says he's a pretty hot bridge player.

Justice In Colombia Drags Feet

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - Colombia has about 30 million people and only 1,000 judges. Justice, therefore, is slow and it is not uncommon for people to spend years in jail just waiting for a trial.

A case was disclosed two years ago of a man who waited 10 years in jail only to be found innocent in the end.

As of last Jan. 1, about 1.8 million people were in jails waiting to be charged or waiting for trial, the assistant minister of justice, Santiago Diago, was quoted as saying in a locally published interview earlier this year.

The problem of slow justice recently came to the fore in the publication of an open letter from prisoners of a Bogota jail, saying they'd prefer the death sentence to their present condition.

The fact that the country has only 1,000 judges means that each judge has an average of 1,800 cases, making it impossible to deal out "swift and sure justice" as the constitution requires.

Like most Latin American countries, Colombia has a form of Roman law, under which a person who is arrested is presumed guilty until proven innocent - the opposite of English common law followed in the United States and other Western nations.

It is not uncommon for the driver of a car to be jailed arbitrarily if involved in a traffic accident in which someone died. It is of no concern to the police or the system of justice right away that the jailed person may have done nothing wrong.

Under Colombia's system a judge has up to six months to decide whether someone should be charged or not. Some lawyers say privately and anonymously - they do not want to antagonize judges - that the six months rule is not adhered to.

Once a person is actually charged, he faces a long period, perhaps years, in jail waiting for a trial by a jury of three.

Presently there is no bail in Colombia. This is because judges, lawyers and even defendants understand that once let out on bail the accused would never show up for trial.

Next year, under a new criminal code, judges will be allowed to set bail. But lawyers claim privately that what bail means is that the wealthy or at least those able to afford bail will go free, and that the poor will remain in jail waiting for trials.

The open letter published by Bogota newspapers was signed by more than 100 prisoners in Bogota's Modelo Prison who said the death sentence would be preferable to indefinite waiting for their cases to come up.

There is no death penalty in Colombia. The Modelo Prison (Spanish for Model Prison) has been described as overcrowded and filthy. Allegations of brutality have been made against some of its security personnel.

"Here in this jail there is the most horrible human degradation," the prisoners' letter claimed. "Ninety percent of the people jailed here have not been tried. It would be better to impose the death penalty to end the agony."

Few Colombian lawyers want to become judges because of low pay - averaging the equivalent of about $500 a month.

So those lawyers taking judgeships are usually those with down-and-out practices, lawyers maintain.

Six judges have been murdered by gangsters in the last year, apparently for leaning too hard on Colombia's illicit sale of marijuana and cocaine to dealers from the United States.

Diago, the assistant minister of justice, was quoted as saying in the interview that there is actually an oversupply of lawyers in Colombia, but that few are to be found in provincial towns where they are badly needed.

PARADE CUT BACK
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - The traditional military parade held July 21 on Belgian national day in Brussels will be cut back because of the country's rising deficit, the government says.

Gene Autry Name Didn't Bring Fame

By BILL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
GENE AUTRY, Okla. (AP) - When this little town renamed itself in honor of the singing cowboy 40 years ago, townsfolk were hoping for a memorable spot under western stars.

Now, they have mostly memories of fleeting prominence, a listing in "Ghost Towns of Oklahoma" and a fascinating postmark.

But news of the town's demise is greatly exaggerated, they insist.

"We're sure not a ghost town," says Allene Haney, who runs Haney's Gro. & Mkt., the only business left in town. "We've still got people here. ... The official 1980 census showed 179 people in Gene Autry."

And Autry, "everybody's favorite cowboy," also of "Here Comes Santa Claus" fame and now owner of the California Angels, says he'd like to come back someday for a little fishing.

The southern Oklahoma town used to be a bustling little whistlestop in the foothills of the Arbuckle Mountains. Back during World War II, "there were several thousand people around here," says Mrs. Haney, who is also the town's clerk and historian. "That was when they had the air base over at Ardmore. People were moving in and out all the time."

Among the newcomers was Gene Autry, now 75.

On Mrs. Haney's wall is a yellowing photograph of Autry, astride his "Wonder Horse" Champion, inscribed: "To Allene, Best wishes always, Gene Autry."

The town's name was changed from Lou to Dresden to Berwyn and then to Gene Autry after the famed performer-cowboy bought 1,200 acres just west of town and announced plans to turn the property into a showcase ranch. He said he would spend $250,000 to create "Flying A Ranch," making it headquarters for his traveling rodeo and other production enterprises.

Autry, reached by telephone at the Gene Autry Hotel in Palm Springs, Calif., said that although his Oklahoma plans were scuttled, the name change was "one of the greatest events of my life."

On Nov. 16, 1941, just about everyone who could jammed the little town for the official renaming celebration.

"I've never seen anything like that in my career," said Autry, who did the nationwide broadcast of his radio show, "Melody Ranch," from the town.

"Here was this little town of maybe 250 or 300 population, and you just can't imagine the people. There were a number of estimates of the crowd - all the way from 40,000 or 50,000 to more than 100,000."

"It was one of the big thrills of my time."

But just three weeks later, the United States entered World War II, and Autry joined the Air Force.

"I was in the service from 1942 to 1945," he said. "During this time, I merged my Flying A Rodeo with the Lightning C Rodeo out of Dublin, Texas. The ranch at Gene Autry really wasn't big enough."

But one of these days, Autry said, "I'm going to go to Gene Autry and spend a few days and do some fishing. I used to like to fish down at Lake Murray. They've got good fishing there."

The town's name still attracts the curious, and Postmaster Effie Hutchins hand-cancels every card and letter with the Gene Autry postmark.

"I could send them on over to the mail center at Ardmore, but then we'd lose all our identity," she said. "I even get letters and cards sent here to be postmarked with our special postmark and them mailed out from here. I'm glad to do it."

SCENTS OFF
WASHINGTON (AP) - When applying fragrances, such as aerosol perfumes, start by spraying your wrists. Continue behind your ears, inside the elbow, behind the knees and on your throat.

The idea is to spray the warmest parts of your body to release the scent faster and make it more noticeable, advises the Aerosol Packaging Council.

Seminoles' Bingo Game Is Opposed

By ANNE S. CROWLEY
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — The Indians say they went into the bingo business simply to make some money from idle land, but the local sheriff is trying to head them off at a legal pass.

Broward County Sheriff Robert Butterworth wants to shut down the 1,200-seat bingo hall on the Seminole reservation in the Florida Everglades near here, citing a state gambling law that limits bingo jackpots to $100 and permits a single group to old games only twice a week. He is pursuing the matter in court.

He seems to have an easy case. Nightly prizes at the Seminole Bingo Hall — which is open seven days a week, some days from noon to 1 a.m. — total $12,000 to $60,000.

But the Seminoles point to their unique, federally regulated status as a sovereign nation and argue that they are exempt from statutes such as the Florida gambling law.

"If Florida prohibited bingo altogether, then we couldn't play it either," said Stephen Whilden, the tribal attorney. "We're permitted a certain amount of leeway but not total leeway. The state doesn't allow casino gambling, so we can't open a casino."

"Once the state allows a certain activity, we can conduct the activity. But we don't have to do it the same way," he added.

To all that, Butterworth counters that it is not the Indians who are running the bingo business but a white-owned firm called Seminole Management Associates Ltd. which gets almost 40 percent of the bingo profits.

Butterworth likens the arrangement to the Dutch trading beads for New York's Manhattan island.

"The real issue is a whole lot of money on bingo and it's not the Indians," the sheriff said. "The Seminoles do not run this bingo, a management company does."

"You have non-Indians operating a bingo parlor on Indian land in violation of state law and giving Indians a portion of the profits. What you have basically is unregulated gambling."

An uneasy truce has been called while the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals considers the arguments. Broward County is appealing a federal judge's ruling made when Butterworth first moved against Seminole Bingo before it opened in December 1979.

In that decision, U.S. District Judge Norman Roettger in Fort Lauderdale ruled in favor of the tribe, issuing an injunction forbidding Butterworth to interfere with the bingo hall.

Roettger said his decision was "a close one" because of the sovereign rights question. He noted a case in Washington state, where Indians were convicted of violating a state law by selling fireworks, even though they were on tribal land. The federal courts classified the law prohibiting fireworks as criminal, not civil, and said it was intended to "promote the safety and health of all citizens."

Because Florida permits some bingo playing, Roettger said, it "has acknowledged the benefits of bingo and has chosen to regulate, not prohibit."

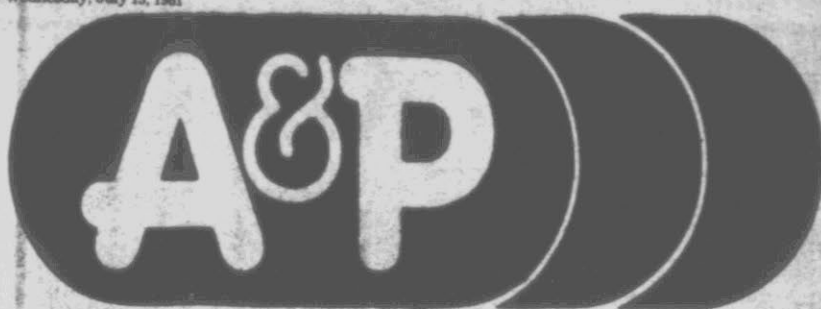

Meanwhile, Seminole Bingo is booming. The games draw busloads of Floridians, it's a tour stop for groups from the North and Gold Coast condominiums often reserve tables for residents.

Each night hundreds of people pay $15 to $25 to play as many as two dozen cards at a time, hoping to be the first to cover five numbers in a row.

Understandably, the people who come to play bingo oppose Butterworth's efforts. "I think it stinks," said Dorothy Sena. "I think the Indians are entitled. They've been done out of so much, they deserve a break."

"Why do they bother the poor Indians?" demanded a woman from Venice, Fla., who wouldn't give her name. "At least they're not on welfare — they're out trying to make a living."

The Seminoles get 55 percent of the profits. For the fiscal year just started, they expect that to be $1,263,500.

SUMMER SAVINGS

Accustomed To Gawking From Public

By JOHN C. GIVEN
Associated Press Writer
NIAGARA FALLS, ONTARIO (AP) - She's used to being gawked at and used to being irked when people ask her if she's "real."

But Sandy Allen - at 7 foot 7 inches, the world's tallest standing woman - realizes it comes with the territory. "I don't care if they look so long as they're not rude about it," she said.

At 440 pounds, she's neither slender nor fat. Ms. Allen, in her second season as the star attraction at the Guinness Museum of World Records, wears specially made clothes and size 22 shoes.

Located amid a welter of neon and honky tonk a few hundred yards from the Canadian side of the world's most famous waterfalls, it features "the world's largest yo-yo" in its front window.

Inside, Ms. Allen greets tourists in an alcove near life-sized replicas of history's tallest man and shortest woman.

After a brief monologue, she answers questions, poses for snapshots, then rests behind a folding door - until her next half-hourly appearance.

"Sometimes I do get fed up with this," Ms. Allen said recently. "I'm human, you know. But most of the time I enjoy it - just meeting the people. It's the monotony that gets to you, plus the stupid questions."

In 1974, the 26-year-old former secretary from Shelbyville, Ind., was recognized as the world's tallest woman by the Guinness Book of World Records.

Recently, though, the title passed to Zeng Jinlian, 16, of Hunan, China, who measured in at 7-foot-10 1/2.

Because a physical problem prevents Ms. Jinlian from standing straight, Guinness officials have said they will continue to recognize Ms. Allen as the world's tallest standing woman.

Despite the hardships it has caused, Ms. Allen is proud of her size.

"I'm not sitting on display," she told one tourist. "The reason I'm here is to show people that I have handled my problems. It wasn't something I couldn't cope with."

Born a 6 1/2-pound baby, Ms. Allen stood 6-foot-3 by the time she was 10. When she graduated from high school, she was 7-foot-3.

"The kids made so much fun of me," she recalled. "I didn't have any friends, didn't join in. I was always shy, didn't go to dances."

Things got better, she said, after "I got tired of letting them get the best of me."

Doctors later blamed her size on a pituitary gland tumor - discovered after she had stopped growing.

Following school, Ms. Allen worked as a secretary in Indianapolis, sitting behind a propped-up desk on an office chair equipped with double rollers to support her weight.

One day in 1974, her size came up in a discussion with friends. Someone checked the Guinness book, then wrote a letter. Eventually, word came that Sandy Allen held the new record.

Offers came pouring in. Hustler Magazine wanted her to pose. Ringling Brothers Circus wanted her to join. She rejected both, Ms. Allen said.

One offer she did not reject, however, was from Italian movie director Federico Fellini, who gave her a role as a giantess in his 1975 film, "Casanova."

Quitting her job, she went on the circuit full-time, including trips to Venezuela and Japan.

In recent years, a bone problem and arthritis in both knees has hampered her mobility, forcing her to depend on a specially fitted van and a heavy cane about the width of a baseball bat.

Once, she was posing for a snapshot next to a museum visitor and she suddenly found the woman "grabbing my legs."

"She said she wanted to know if I was real, or standing on wooden legs," Ms. Allen said.

"Another thing that aggravates me is when I'm sitting here and someone starts poking me and asking, 'Are you real?'"

"I just tell them. You're the only dummy in the audience."

4-wheels Regular $119.99 99.99

Our trained specialists will inspect brake system, install new disc pads or brake shoes, rebuild calipers or wheel cylinders, turn drums or rotors, install new front grease seals, clean and repack front wheel bearings, flush brake lines and replace with heavy-duty brake fluid. Sears may decline to perform partial brake jobs if it appears, in Sears judgment, that additional work is needed for your brake system to function properly. Replacement of master cylinder, power booster, drum/rotor are extra if needed.

Lowe's Pricing Policy

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. This reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our selling area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full-retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retails do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling price. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.
