Hotel Death Toll Climbs To 111

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The death toll rose to 111 Saturday in the collapse of two crowded walkways that plunged to the ground in the Hyatt Regency Hotel's once-spectacular lobby. Scores fell with the spans and hundreds more were on the floor beneath, but officials said the cause of the tragedy was not known.

One witness estimated 100 people were on the 75-yard-long second-floor walkway Friday night when another walkway crashed down from above, toppling both spans into a large crowd attending a popular weekly "Tea Dance."

In all, 188 people were injured, some of them critically, police said.

Jim White, a city building administrator, said the walkways should have been capable of handling normal traffic, "but maybe not all the people standing there and dancing."

Hotel officials refused to say how many people the walkways were designed to support. Corporate president Pat Foley said he had been assured they could handle large crowds.

Fire department spokesman Harold Knabe said many of the people on the walkways were swaying to the rhythm of Duke Ellington's "Satin Doll" at the time of the collapse. Officials speculated that the movement might have contributed to the disaster.

Carolyn Meyer said she was on the second-floor walkway five minutes before it fell. "It was packed. You couldn't even get up to the rail," she said.

"We do not know the cause of the tragedy," Jim Howard, a hotel vice president, said in a letter to Gov. Christopher Bond. "However, as managers of the property, we do know that the structural integrity and safety of the building had been assured by the architects, the building contractor and his subcontractor and in subsequent building inspections."

Mayor Richard Berkley began a City Council briefing Saturday with a moment of silence for victims, and said city records related to the hotel's construction would be made available.

The hotel was bathed in light through the night as some 1,000 volunteers, firefighters and medics used jackhammers, blowtorches, three huge cranes and bare hands to unsnarl the tangled wreckage on the floor of the atrium, which is surrounded by tiers of bars and restaurants.

Above the rescuers was a third walkway, one that did not cross under the fourth-floor walkway and was not caught in the collapse. Jerry Jette, an aide to Berkley, said rescuers were "working under dangerous conditions" and had "not ruled out the possibility that it could fall."

Some discoveries were happy ones: 10 injured people were found Saturday, and searchers cheered when they lifted survivors from the rubble. But most were grim: the final 31 bodies were found buried together under a concrete slab.

Some bodies were mutilated by the impact of sharp steel, shattered glass and tons of concrete.

"You could hear cries for help from different people," said one firefighter who refused to give his name. He got one girl out, he said, and "she cried, 'My sister's back in there.' We went back and we found her dead."

The collapse was the worst disaster in Kansas City history in terms of deaths. Nationally, it killed more people than such 1980 disasters as the eruption of Mount St. Helens, 60 dead or missing, or the MGM Grand fire, whether since the crash of a DC-10 killed 274 people in May 1979.

It began before dark, as an estimated 1,500 people crowded the lobby, some for a dance. As the strains of "Satin Doll" filled the room, a walkway 75 yards long and 10 to 12 feet wide buckled and fell atop a second walkway. Both plunged to the floor.

County School Board Will Use Surplus To Keep All Personnel

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Dipping heavily into surplus funds, the Pitt County Board of Education has voted to fund all personnel for the coming year in their present positions despite budget shifts from county commissioners — a move that could have a $184,309.96 price tag.

The motion, made by board member Bill McLawhorn at a special meeting Friday, primarily preserves teacher supplements, longevity pay, assistant superintendents and supervisory positions threatened by removal of monies from those areas by the commissioners.

"It would be a step backward not to fund these positions," said McLawhorn. "We need them to maintain the quality of education we offer our 11,000 county students — I feel they are a priority."

"The commissioners were evidently aware we had surplus funds," added board chairman Mark Owens, "and they wanted to see what our priorities were — we have worked up to having these positions in some cases for years and they add immeasurably to our system."

"I think we need direction and leadership at the top," he continued. "These people represent that."

Board member Jack Edwards asked the board to retain all personnel, but switch them into alternate positions according to vacancies in the county — keeping personnel within the monies appropriated within the county.

"I feel we cannot go into surplus funds when we've got positions within the county they could be shifted into," he emphasized. "They might not be in the position they are in now, but each one will be employed."

James Black called funding all personnel in their present positions "only postponing the inevitable."

"When you spend surplus funds," he commented, "you no longer have surplus funds. We'll have to make a decision sometime — now it's being postponed until next year."

Included in the motion were $13,226.79 in teacher supplements; $7,000 in longevity pay; $96,980 for three assistant superintendent salaries and $24,156 for one supervisory salary. Pay for high school and elementary principals based on number of teachers also was supported, along with clerical, janitorial, maid and maintenance personnel.

The motion does not incorporate the possible one-half year or one year cost-of-living increases to be considered by the General Assembly in November. It also gives the board the right to reduce, at a later date, the present $184,309.96 price tag on the salaries.

The board also voted to "question the county commissioners on the appropriation of capital outlay money based on per capita allotment."

"The law says capital outlay should be based on need only," said McLawhorn "and the items we have requested are items that are badly needed."

West's Top Leaders Set For Summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan leaves Sunday for the Ottawa economic summit and what he considers "an extremely important" chance to sell his economic program to six other Western leaders grappling with many of the same problems that confront the United States.

Reagan will be facing the complaints of European leaders that his economic recovery program is strengthening the dollar at the expense of their own currencies. They are particularly upset over high U.S. interest rates.

The summit will give Reagan his first chance to meet French President Francois Mitterrand and Italian Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini as well as renewing consultations with the leaders of West Germany, Britain, Japan and Canada.

The Reagan-Mitterrand meeting Sunday is important because of the diametrically opposed economic approaches of Mitterrand, a socialist, and Reagan, a champion of the free enterprise system.

"The president approaches this summit as an extremely important one," Deputy White House Press Secretary Larry Speakes said Saturday.

Speakes said Reagan recognizes that the United States' "dramatic change in its approach to domestic economic policy" has had "a tremendous impact on the world's economy."

"He does feel that it's important that he be able to convey to his colleagues at the summit the importance he puts on his approach to the economy," Speakes said.

Although there are areas "where we do not see eye-to-eye," Reagan is confident "that our approach is the correct one. It is the one that will bear fruit," the spokesman said.

The White House said the president will see West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt Sunday and meet individually on Monday with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Spadolini and on Tuesday with Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki. He conferred with Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau last week in Washington.

Police, IRA Supporters Battle At British Embassy

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Some 15,000 supporters of hunger-striking prisoners in Northern Ireland battled police guarding the British Embassy in Dublin Saturday and more than 100 policemen were injured, authorities reported.

A police spokesman said it was the worst riot in Dublin in nearly 30 years, with many of the demonstrators using bricks and iron bars to attack some 1,000 club-wielding policemen who charged repeatedly to drive the mobs away from the embassy.

The spokesman said 120 policemen were injured, and some were hospitalized with broken legs, ribs or jaws and cuts. He reported no arrests were made and said he had no figures on casualties among the demonstrators.

Hospital officials said at least 25 demonstrators were treated for injuries.

Several cars were overturned and burned and some shop windows were smashed.

The police spokesman said it was the most violent eruption in the Irish capital since January 1952, when rioters set fire to the old British Embassy building in Merrion Square. The British Embassy now is located in the nearby Ballsbridge district.

The spokesman said the crowds had dispersed by nightfall and the district was quiet, but 350 riot police remained on guard outside the embassy.

Also at the embassy were three women staging a sit-down protest in front of the building. They were led by Bernadette Devlin McAliskey, a firebrand Irish nationalist and former member of the British Parliament.

Fergus O'Hare, a member of the Belfast city council and one of the organizers of the Dublin demonstration, joined the sit-in by the three women but was dragged away by police. The police spokesman said O'Hare was not detained.

One of the policemen who suffered broken ribs in the embassy clash said, "I thought we were going to be murdered. I've never seen anything like it. They just went mad."

The demonstrators were seeking to reach the embassy after police had banned them from the area. They were protesting the British government's refusal to negotiate directly with eight Irish nationalist hunger strikers in Northern Ireland's Maze prison.

The hunger strikers smuggled a statement out of the prison Saturday denouncing an International Red Cross delegation's three-day visit to the prison as a cosmetic gesture aimed at disguising British intransigence.

"It is our belief that the exertions on our comrades on hunger strike, caused by such intervention at such a critical stage, are actually contributing to the shortening of their lives," the statement said.

Six hunger strikers have died at the Maze, located outside Belfast, since May 2, and British officials said they permitted the three Red Cross delegates to visit in an effort to prevent further starvation deaths.

Jurors Unable To Agree In Nazi Conspiracy Trial

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Woodrow Jones declared a mistrial Saturday in the conspiracy trial of six Nazis after a weary jury of seven men and five women said for a third time they were hopelessly divided.

Jury foreman David Ronald Devlin told Jones, "I don't think we'll be able to reach a verdict" as the other jurors shook their heads and answered, "No way" and "impossible" when the judge asked them if a verdict was possible.

Devlin said the jurors agreed on several points, but there was no unanimous decision on guilt or innocence. He said 10 jurors voted for a guilty verdict, while two voted not guilty.

As he was leaving the courthouse, Devlin said the main point of contention among jurors was the intent of the conspiracy.

Most of the jurors were escorted by federal marshals from the U.S. Post Office where the courtroom is located.

Immediately after the verdict was announced, defendants met with their attorneys and agreed not to comment on the case.

They also were escorted from the building by federal marshals.

Several defense attorneys also refused to comment on the verdict. But Bob Pitts, attorney for Roger Pierce, said "You're never surprised at whatever the jury's verdict is. Of course, I would

Tentative Census Shows County Board Will Not Change Makeup

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The final figures are not in yet, but from preliminary U. S. Census returns, county officials predict no change in the composition of Pitt County's Board of Commissioners this year.

The former five-member board was expanded in 1967 to reflect an increase in the population of Greenville. The six-member board now includes: Charles Gaskins and Kelly Barnhill, representing Greenville Township; Alton Gardner representing Ayden, Grifton and Swift Creek townships; Bob Martin representing Bethel, Belvoir, Pactolus and Carolina townships; Burney Tucker representing Winterville, Chicod and Grimesland; and Bruce Strickland representing Falkland, Farmville, Fountain and Arthur.

Greenville Township in 1970 had a population of 30,486. According to the preliminary 1980 Census figures the township now has 33,593 residents. Gardner's district in 1970 had a population of 14,408, while the preliminary 1980 figure totals 20,248.

In Martin's district the 1970 Census showed 10,646 residents while the 1980 preliminary figure shows a population of 13,255. Tucker's district in 1970 had a population of 11,076 while the 1980 figure presently shows 18,396. Strickland's district had 11,647 residents in 1970 compared with the preliminary 1980 count of 12,570.

Assistant County Manager Don Davenport noted the final Census figures should be available later this year, possibly in October.

He said the first Census figures showed the population of the county to be 83,651, while later figures placed the count at 88,521. Other changes, he said, may increase the population to around 89,880.

Polish Re-Elect Kania

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Delegates to Poland's emergency Communist Party Congress, selecting their leader by democratic vote for the first time, Saturday re-elected Stanislaw Kania as party secretary, the official Polish radio announced.

In the first secret ballot vote of its kind in the history of the East Bloc, the nearly 2,000 delegates to the historic party congress affirmed their faith in Kania's centrist policies by a margin of better than 2-to-1.

The radio said Kania received 1,311 votes to 568 for his token rival, fellow moderate Kazimierz Barcikowski. Another 60 delegates did not vote.

As Kania walked to the podium after the results were announced, he was given a standing ovation by the delegates. He was greeted with a bear hug and kiss from Barcikowski.

"Today our party has the great historic and moral right to be the leading force in Poland," Kania said in his 15-minute acceptance speech.

"We will conquer all today's difficulties, these difficulties which threaten not only socialism in Poland, but also threaten our existence. Poland is and will be a lasting link of the socialist alliance."

Kania concluded his speech with a call to the party "to march neither to the left nor to the right. But straight toward socialist renewal."

Slot Machine Pays 'Million'

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Nev. (AP) — A man who rang up the biggest slot machine jackpot in gaming history said he had a feeling he would walk away from the club a winner.

Caesars Tahoe officials presented Jeff Randolph, a lawyer from Delano, Calif., with $1 million Saturday after he lined up four triple bars on the bottom row of a dollar slot machine for the winning combination.

Randolph had been playing the machine for only about 10 minutes and had invested $23 for a record $992,012.15 payoff.

Caesars Tahoe officials later decided to round out the "near million" to an "even million dollars," said Phil Weidinger, publicity manager for the casino.

Polish ...
Socialist renewal — "odnowa" in Polish — is the catch-phrase used to describe Kania's middle-of-the-road policies implemented after he came to power following the massive strikes last summer. It aims to replace the Soviet-style philosophy of government with what Polish reformers see as authentic socialism.
Despite his overwhelming victory, Kania faces an immediate challenge from the independent Solidarity labor movement, which has threatened to put 40,000 dockworkers in Gdansk on strike next Thursday unless agreement is reached on guarantees for better working conditions.
Employees of the national airline, LOT, have also threatened to strike next Friday, and "hunger marches" to protest shortages of food are planned for July 27 in Lodz, Poland's second largest city.
The voting climaxed the unpredictable week-long party congress whose excitement barely disguised the history being made.
At several unforeseen twists and turns during the congress, it appeared that Kania would have to fight back serious right and left-wing challengers for his job.
But by giving him their overwhelming — and democratic — vote of confidence in the end, delegates endorsed the centrist course Poland has tried to steer between demands for unprecedented reforms and the need to appease Moscow.
Observers said the margin of Kania's victory would give him an even stronger hand in affecting the heady changes that in 10 months, have put Poland on a different orbit from the other satellites of the East Bloc.
In another important move, the delegates also agreed to expand the ruling Politburo from 11 members

Jaycettes Pick Three Officers

Winterville Jaycettes have produced one state chairman and two regional chairmen for the coming year.
Pam Allen was named state chairman for the "children of the world" project and will supervise the Jaycettes effort to provide information that would help children throughout the world.
Mary Alice Vincent was elected elections chairman for the organization's southeastern North Carolina region and Kay Allen will serve as regional scrapbook chairman.
Another member of the Winterville chapter, Kathy Allen, was named regional Jaycette of the month for June. Winterville was first runner-up in chapter competition in the region.

German war criminal Hermann Goering committed suicide by taking poison one day before he was to have been executed.

Nazis ...

probably will be appointed. The interim attorney will have the choice about continuing the prosecution or dismissing the charges.
The mistrial was declared shortly after 3:30 p.m., after the jurors had spent almost 13 hours in deliberation.
The jurors had earlier gone back into the courtroom twice Saturday to report they were deadlocked.
The second time, after polling the 12 jurors, Jones asked them to take a lunch break and return to try again.
The six Nazis are charged with planning a series of bombings to retaliate for an anticipated guilty verdict in the murder trial of six Ku Klux Klansmen and Nazis. The six were acquitted in the deaths of five anti-Klan demonstrators last November, and the bombings never took place.

The defendants are Raedford Milano Caudle, 38, of Winston-Salem, James C. Talbert, 30, of Winston-Salem, Gorrell Pierce, 28, and his brother, Roger, 25, both of Walnut Cove, and Frank Braswell, 48, and his wife, Pat, 32, both of Penland.
The defendants face possible sentences of five years in prison and $10,000 fines if they are found guilty.
About 10 a.m. Saturday, an hour after they resumed their discussions, the jurors asked to hear again testimony by defense witness Bruce Briggs, a Mars Hill attorney who from time to time represents the Braswells in court.

As several jurors took notes, a court reporter read back Briggs' statements and questions from attorneys. Briggs is a former District and Superior Court judge, assistant U.S. attorney and former Republican candidate for Congress.
He testified that Braswell asked him whether a man identifying himself as Maj. Mike Swain might be some kind of investigating agent.
Briggs testified that he told Braswell information he had obtained indicated Swain was a CIA agent or some other kind of agent.
Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent Michael Sweat testified he posed as a mercenary named Mike Swain to gain the confidence of the Braswells and investigate possible firearms violations.

The focus of prosecutors has been pinpointing the time when Briggs told Braswell his suspicions about Swain.
Prosecutors contend that Briggs told Braswell about his suspicions around October 1980, while defense attorneys argue it was more like July 1980.
The timing would indicate whether the defendants discussed plans for terrorist bombings in Greensboro before or after knowing that Swain could be a law enforcement agent.
The defendants contend they knew Swain was an agent and they played along with him to find out who he worked for.

Security around the U.S. Post Office building in which the third-floor courtroom is located has remained tight. The jurors were escorted through the building and part of the way to lunch by federal marshals. The marshals also escorted the defendants in and out of the courtroom.
During the trial, law enforcement officials were posted atop neighboring buildings and watched from open office windows.
Asheville city police spokesman Alan Hyder said no incidents were reported during the trial.

Traffic Accidents Reported

An estimated $7,125 property damage resulted from traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police late Friday and Saturday.
Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a three-car collision in the parking lot of Foodtown on Red Banks Road involving parked cars owned by James Clyde Campbell, 206 W. Haven Rd. and Charles Hugh McGowan III, 106 Occoola Dr., and a vehicle driven by Kelley Yevon Evans of Winterville.
Damage was estimated at $900 to the Campbell vehicle, $1,000 to the McGowan vehicle, and $400 to the Evans vehicle by investigators.

Cars driven by Ann Whitfield Stallings, 1105 Chestnut St., and Alvin Ray Wingate of Route 1, Winterville, collided Friday afternoon on South Memorial Drive, resulting in an estimated $500 damage to the Stallings car and $200 to the Wingate car.

Vehicles driven by Kathy Sutton McLawhorn, also of Route 1, Winterville, Terri Ross Little, 104 Wayne Dr., and Robert Harvey Williams of Route 1, Greenville, were involved in another collision Friday. Damage to the Little car was an estimated $1,000 and $25 to the Williams vehicle.

According to officers, a car driven by Michael Knooch of 302 Jarvis St. struck a telephone pole on Evans Street Friday night when his hands slipped from the steering wheel, resulting in $600 damage to the vehicle and $1,000 to the telephone pole.

Cynthia Anne Roberts of 34 River Bluff Road and a passenger were injured in an accident early Saturday. Officers said Ms. Roberts was making a left-hand turn on East 10th Street Extension and drove into a ditch, causing $1,000 damage to the vehicle. Roberts and James Franklin Cash were treated for minor head injuries and released from Pitt Memorial Hospital. Roberts was charged with a safe movement violation.

William Eugene Lane of 102 Catawba Road was charged with an improper backing violation following investigation of a collision on Howell Street.
Police said the Lane car collided with a parked car owned by Charles Russell Jenkins of 600-D Howell St. causing an estimated $1,500 damage to the Jenkins car.

Smugglers Sentenced

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Eleven people who pleaded guilty in connection with an illegal alien-smuggling ring have received sentences ranging from probation to 10 years in jail.

Federal authorities say the ring brought about 25,000 people into the United States over the last five years, about one-third of them into the Chicago area.

Alfonso Interial, 48, a Galesburg factory worker and alleged leader of the ring, was sentenced Friday by U.S. District Judge Robert Morgan to 10 years in prison and fined $6,000.

Morgan also ordered Interial to pay taxes on the money he made from the aliens, who officials said paid between $300 and $800 each to be brought into this country.

Interial pleaded guilty on June 6 to helping bring aliens from Mexico and Guatemala into Texas, Illinois, Florida, New Jersey, Oklahoma and Michigan.

Immigration officials said the operation collected about $1 million over the five years.

Interial was among 17 persons from four states indicted by a federal grand jury in April.

Ten others also have pleaded guilty and were sentenced by Morgan on Friday.

They include Ronald Scott, 38, of Galva and his brother, Jerry, 32, of Kewanee; Donald DeFrieze, 33, of New Boston; Danny A. Brown, 21, of New Boston; Stacey and Michael Blanchur of Midland, Texas; Jesus and Mateo Ayala of Immokalee, Fla.; and Marian and Francisco Estrad of Newark, N.J.

Mayor Accused In Assault Case

MIDDLESEX, N.C. (AP) — Middlesex Mayor Bobby Bisette has been served with a warrant charging him with simple assault in connection with a complaint filed by a 17-year-old youth he accused of stealing bread from a truck.

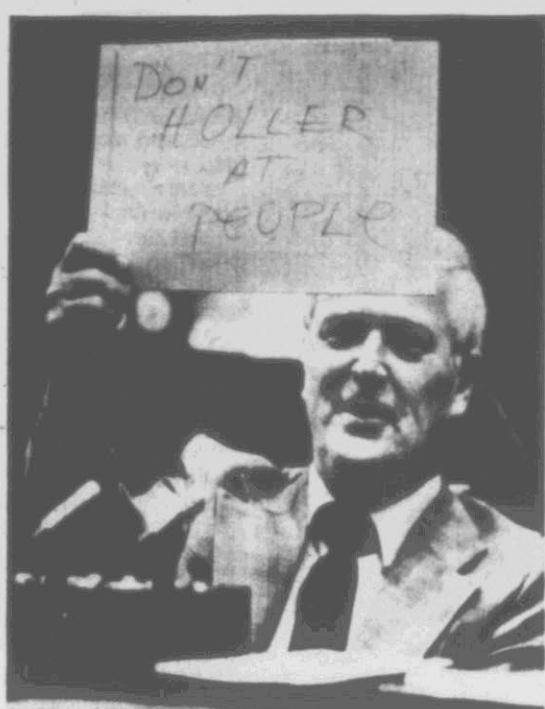

Chief Magistrate Jack Harrell of the 7th District held a 15-minute hearing before issuing the warrant Thursday afternoon.

The complaint was filed by Kenneth Price, 17, of Middlesex, who said the assault occurred July 5 when the mayor went across the street from his store and accused him of stealing bread from a truck parked outside the store.

The youth said he was choked, and when he tried to file a complaint, he said magistrates in Wilson and in Nash County refused to issue a warrant.

The chief magistrate was ordered to investigate after Price called a newspaper in Spring Hope about the incident.

Trial was scheduled July 28.

Study Shows Law Cut Cycle Deaths

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A law passed seven years ago requiring motorcyclists to use their headlights at all times has helped cut down on fatalities significantly, a study by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill shows.

According to the study, the law possibly saved more than 40 lives, more than 1,470 injuries and as much as $14 million in damages between 1974 and 1978.

Dr. Patricia Waller of the UNC Highway Safety Research Center and Dr. Lindsay Griffin III of the Texas Transportation Institute at Texas A&M University conducted the study.

"The best estimates indicate that daytime, multivehicular crashes involving motorcycles have been reduced by almost 20 percent because of the law," Waller said.

"During the first five years following its passage, there were 1,713 'missing' crashes that would have been expected but did not occur," Waller said.

She said the statistics were determined by analyzing motorcycle and other vehicle accident statistics between 1971 and 1978.

The statute, which was enacted Oct. 1, 1973, was designed to increase the visibility of motorcyclists to other drivers during daylight hours.

Guerrilla Rockets Wound Israeli Civilians

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Guerrilla rockets wounded four more civilians in northern Israel Saturday in retaliation for what the Palestinians called Israel's "air massacre" in Lebanon that left more than 1,000 reported casualties.

A U.N. spokesman in Beirut, Samir Sanbar, said Israeli border gunners replied to the Palestinian rockets by shelling guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon and the Rashidiyeh refugee camp near the port of Tyre. There was no report of casualties.

Lebanon's state radio also reported that Israeli jets destroyed a bridge in southern Lebanon, but the Israeli military command denied that its planes were in action over Lebanon. Both the Palestine Liberation Organization and Israel denied other radio reports of Israeli air strikes Saturday against guerrilla positions south of Beirut.

The shelling erupted as U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib arrived in Tel Aviv with orders from President Reagan to try to end the latest bout of Israeli-Palestinian fighting.

Deputy Defense Minister Mordechai Zippori told Israel Radio that Jerusalem welcomed Habib's mediation, but if it failed "Israel will continue to protect its citizens also when good friends of ours in the area."

As he spoke, Israel reported four minor injuries and two people treated for shock as volleys of Soviet-made Katyusha shells crashed into western Galilee and the northern panhandle. Three Israelis were killed by guerrilla rockets in the area Wednesday, prompting the Israeli jet strikes.

The PLO said it fired the latest salvo as a "down payment" on its promised retaliation for "the air massacre Israel committed in Beirut."

On Friday, Israeli planes bombed the headquarters of two Palestinian guerrilla movements in central Beirut, the Lebanese capital. The PLO said Friday's air raids took the heaviest single-day casualty toll since Israel's 1978 invasion of southern Lebanon.

Lebanese Charge d'Affairs Fakhri Saghyyah, addressing an emergency session of the U.N. Security Council in New York, said Friday night there were more than 300 killed and 800 wounded.

The Security Council, meeting at Lebanon's request, called the raids "deplorable" and urged an "immediate end to all armed attacks."

The PLO reported 190 dead have been dug out from the rubble of six multiple-story apartment buildings close to PLO chairman Yyasser Arafat's headquarters and from the Sabra, Chatilla and Bourj el-Barajneh refugee camps south of Beirut.

Habib has been shuttling for the past 10 weeks among Beirut, Damascus, Riyadh, Jerusalem and Washington. His mission originated as an attempt to get Syrian anti-aircraft missiles out of eastern Lebanon and avert a Syrian-Israeli war.

But Habib's work has gradually developed into a search for an overall settlement of the six-year-old Lebanese crisis, in which Israel's fight with the Palestinians is a key factor.

After Israel bombed targets in Beirut, President Reagan asked Habib to concentrate on bringing about a cease-fire between the Israelis and the Palestinians.

The bombing also prompted the Reagan administration to postpone a decision on whether to resume shipments of F-16 fighter-bombers to Israel. The government had been reported ready to lift a suspension imposed after Israel bombed an Iraqi nuclear reactor near Baghdad last month.

Former Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said Saturday that U.S. intervention offered the only solution to the confrontation.

"There is no way out except ... If the Americans intervene and propose a sort of cease-fire," Dayan told Israel Radio. He said he thought this was "reasonable prospect."

Victor Shemtov, a member of the Marxist Mapam section of the opposition Labor Party, urged Prime Minister Menachem Begin to safeguard "the purity of arms" in the army and avoid killing innocents.

TO OUR POSTAL PATRONS

If there is any delay or interruptions of mail delivery service after Monday, July 20, it will be the responsibility and direct fault of the postal service.

If there is a strike by postal employees, it will be because they have been pushed into this action by the refusal of the postal service to bargain in good/faith with its employees.

Post Master General Bolger has delayed contract talks for three months and was forced to the bargain table by the federal court, has no intentions of bargaining on a new and fair contract.

It seems that his intentions are to force the postal unions into a strike so that he can destroy them with the power of our federal government.

We are told by the ruling party in power that if we express our freedom right to withhold our services, that we will be fired, fined, thrown in jail and blackballed so that we can never hold a federal job.

Sounds like the same thing that the Soviet Union is telling the Polish people. But say that this is the U.S.A., land of freedom, not communist Poland. Maybe . . .

Stabilization Being Ignored By Interior Dep't

North Carolina's $7 million experimental seafood industrial park at Wanchese could become a $7 million boondoggle if the Interior Department continues to block proposed stabilization of Oregon Inlet. Interior Secretary James Watt, in a letter to Gov. Jim Hunt, rejected plans for construction of twin mile-long jetties — at a cost of $11.9 million — to protect the inlet. The jetties were only a portion of a proposed $83 million stabilization project by the Corps of Engineers.

The jetties and the overall project have come under fire from environmentalists, and Watt says continuation of the project would only lead to lawsuits and ongoing litigation.

Ironically, Watt's decision coincides with an announcement by the conservative National Wildlife Federation that it actively will seek Watt's ouster as Interior secretary. In the case of the Oregon Inlet project, the federation's charges that Watt promotes exploitation and development rather than conservation don't seem to hold up.

The seafood park, designed as a means of bolstering the fishing industry along North Carolina's upper coast, stands idle. Processors reportedly are reluctant to enter into contracts so long as ocean access is questionable through the shifting, sandy inlet. Bonner Bridge, which spans the historic inlet, stands high, virtually dry and at times wobbly as the currents cut new courses.

Exploitation, in reason, could provide a solution.

Any Weakening Of Information Act Should Be Resisted

Congressional subcommittees have begun hearings in Washington on moves by the Reagan administration to alter the 15-year-old Freedom of Information Act. Initially it appears Congress, at least in the House, will be reluctant to weaken the act, which guarantees public access to government files except those whose disclosure would endanger or otherwise harm the nation.

It is this provision that the administration wants to change. Under the existing act, a government agency must be able to prove that "demonstrable damage or harm" would result from public disclosure. Attorney General William French Smith touched off the current concern with a memo written in May in which he advised federal agencies they no longer had to provide such proof.

Proof of such a claim is not an unreasonable requirement. Hopefully, Congress will follow the same rationale it used in adopting the original act and refuse to allow it to be weakened unnecessarily.

Sunday Morning Notes

Personalized license plates abound.

Charlie Phillips has one which reads, "Grampy," for obvious reasons.

He says he spotted one on a recent trip one which read "IM LOST" . . . possibly for not so obvious reasons.

Sue Fernald is an intern writer with The Daily Reflector. Her father is Dr. Gerald Wallace Fernald, acting chairman of the Chapel Hill Memorial Hospital pediatrics department.

As a summer writer Sue drew the job of filling in for Jerry Raynor at a Greenville Board of Education meeting, so last Monday she showed up at the meeting hour.

When she entered the room Dr. Jon Tinglestad, of the ECU Medical School, who is also chairman of the school board, immediately recognized her.

"You look just like your father," he greeted Sue.

It seems Dr. Tinglestad had been in residency training with Dr. Fernald some 20 years back in Boston. They had also seen each other recently and Dr. Fernald had told the Greenville physician that his daughter was here.

There are two other children in the Fernald family and they all have a way of looking alike.

A pretty girl was walking on Reade obviously headed for work.

A well groomed dog had fallen in behind her. Fearful that it would get in the way of traffic, the lady stopped and sternly addressed the animal. "Go back," she ordered. The dog merely wagged his tail and followed along. One car screeched to a halt and the dog determinedly made his way across the street.

Finally the girl gave up and proceeded on her way, with the dog trailing behind.

Truly a dog is man's — and woman's — best friend.

And a man stopped to pet a sheep dog that another young lady was walking.

"I love dogs," he said. "Of course I'd rather they were somebody else's. They can feed and groom them and I'll pet them occasionally."

Dogs are great but they are the cause of the modern day version of the sheepmen-cattlemen wars.

Like children, it is always the other guy's dog who is obnoxious.

There Are Those Who Run The Place

RALEIGH — Like people who spend a lot of their time in any particular setting, members of the North Carolina General Assembly enjoy some healthy grousing on occasion.

The 1981 session provided ample opportunity for that pastime.

Leadership of the state's lawmaking body came in for more than the usual criticism from their lesser colleagues. To say "lesser colleagues" may sound strange to those not intimately familiar with the inner workings of the General Assembly. You might think that since all members are elected and represent essentially the same number of constituents back home, all are equals.

But the Legislature is like any other institution: church, business office, country club, or civic group. There are those who merely attend. There are those who strive to have power and exercise some control over events. And, there are those who run the place. Usually, those leaders have achieved that position by virtue of persuasiveness, playing a good game, smarts, hard work, buddy-buddy relationships with the power structure, social or economic status . . . or just plain luck.

The problem with the 1981 session of the General Assembly is that membership in that elite group of leaders was even more restricted than usual, and those at the very top of the heap made little effort to spread the power around. Indeed, some of the most serious griping among the indians was that the chiefs were too heavy-handed. Often, in the past, the top man would send a lieutenant to do his bidding, and the message would be sent diplomatically. This year, some legislators complain, things got blunt and the exercise of power became more naked than before.

Those legislators who were trying once again to get a bottle bill through the assembly to help clean up Tar Heel roadsides got an early lesson in the politics of legislating. The leadership has been cozy with the beer and soft drink makers, and the bottle people, for years. Despite widespread public sentiment, and strong press support, bottle bill backers couldn't even get what they considered a fair hearing in a legislative committee meeting.

Another example came from a proposal which was under consideration which would remove members of the General Assembly from seats on various state boards and commissions. Many scholars of government see that dual service as one bound to produce an eventual conflict. A lawmaker who must pass upon the legal proceedings and the budget of a particular governmental activity should not then sit on the board of directors running that particular program; goes the reasoning.

But those who hold those dual posts are the legislative leadership for the most part. This time, no message was sent. The affected legislators themselves lined up outside the committee room door and delivered their instructions, kill that bill.

The single most serious subject of complaint, however, has been the cash present which Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green took from a highway contractor. Green is at the peak of the legislative leadership not just because he is lieutenant governor and a likely candidate for governor, but because he was elected in a statewide vote while everybody else in the Legislative Building was elected in a small district. In the world of politics, that distinction is enormous.

The fact that Green continued to exercise heavy-handed power and his closest allies continued to run the Senate in a business-as-usual way irritated a lot of legislators.

Indeed, Green intimates report that when the public and the press turned the heat highest, Green responded by becoming tougher and blunter in his exercise of control. "He is the toughest man I've ever seen . . . he seems to enjoy all of this," one insider commented.

Far from impeding the use of power by legislative leaders who necessarily are closely identified with Green, the incident served only to consolidate that control and spur even blunter exercise of power.

WASHINGTON — Sen. Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico transformed himself into a momentary Capitol Hill folk hero July 3 when he lectured budget director David Stockman on Senate "prerogatives," but he also exposed a serious threat to Ronald Reagan's radical economic program.

Raged a Reagan strategist: "How can you worry about Senate prerogatives when so much is at stake?" Domenici was conducting business as usual as chairman of the Senate Budget Committee when he turned down Stockman's request that the Republican Senate accept the pending "reconciliation" resolution passed by the Democratic House.

Domenici is not unique. It was also business as usual the same week with such Republican worthies as Rep. Bob Michel of Illinois and Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas. Indeed, traces of the same syndrome were detectable high within the Reagan administration.

That creates this paradox: While President Reagan's daring initiatives have galvanized the nation and the world, his program is losing momentum. Reagan himself may be too isolated from the process to appreciate, much less reverse, what is happening.

Nothing better illustrates this process than Stockman's failure to circumvent the tedious Senate-House conference committee on the spending resolution by getting Senate acceptance of the House version. His comeuppance was widely celebrated in Washington, where the 34-year-old budget director has collected enemies as the often abrasive foe of business-as-usual.

But far more than Stockman's personal prestige was at stake. At the worst, protracted consideration of the resolution conceivably might reopen the entire spending issue; . . . it detracts from the administration's concentration on its beleaguered tax bill. No mere Stockman brainstorm, the shortcut was administration policy approved by the president.

As such, it was supported by Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, whose steadfast backing of the president's program (even portions he personally questions) has been a most pleasant surprise to the White House. Support also came from Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi, the House Republican whip and a tenacious Reaganite.

They found themselves alone. Michel, the amiable House Republican leader, came down on Domenici's side in behalf of the regular order. From the start, Domenici at the Budget Committee has been reluctant to sacrifice his own inclinations and prestige to further the Reagan program.

At the Finance Committee, Chairman Dole has been less obvious than Domenici — but more difficult. Business lobbyists flatter Dole, saying his stewardship of the tax bill makes him the greatest finance chairman of the age and Reagan's salvation. In truth, the administration got help from the sardonic Kansan only by applying tender, loving and constant care.

Dole last week very nearly negated his substantial accomplishments when he suddenly suggested a tax "compromise" that would skew rate reductions to benefit lower-income taxpayers. That undercut efforts in the House against just such a Democratic redistribution of income. It also complicated Reagan's task in a Senate-House tax conference should the Democrats win the House tax fight.

Domenici Keeps Business As Usual

WASHINGTON — More than 35 years have passed since I last had an opportunity, as a working reporter, to cover a strike in the coal mines, but the memory of those few days in Southwest Virginia is embedded in my mind as ineradicably as black dust in a miner's lung. It is the problem of this black dust that concerns me here.

The government's program of relief for the victims of black lung disease has gone awry. The disability trust fund created by Congress in 1977 is running a billion dollars in the red. A program intended to provide benefits only to those miners totally disabled by coal workers' pneumoconiosis insolvency — that is paved with good intentions. The story involves the overkill that results when Congress, after years of neglect, guiltily creates a worthwhile program, and then smotheres it with liberalization.

Contrary to popular impression, the coal miners never have wielded unusual political power. Even in the heyday of John L. Lewis, neither the mine owners, the state legislatures, nor the Congress could be goaded into meeting the needs of the faceless men who toiled underground by day and returned to company towns by night.

Rélief from the black dust was such a need. Things are better now, but once the black dust insinuated itself into every pore of a man's body — his eyes, ears, teeth, hands, and of course, his lungs. Yet it wasn't until 1968, when a violent explosion in a mine at Farmington, W. Va., killed 78 miners, that Congress suddenly came to life with the Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969.

A major purpose of the act was to provide benefits for miners truly disabled by black lung disease. If successive administrations had stuck to that humane purpose, solicitude, Congress began to liberalize the scope of the act and to ease the standards of eligibility for benefits. In the past four years, the situation has grown completely out of hand. A warranted and compassionate program has turned into a kind of racket.

It is only a slight exaggeration to say that these days any man who wheezes in the coal counties of Appalachia is potentially a "totally disabled victim of black lung disease." The wheezing may result from cigarettes, hay fever or bronchial asthma, but no matter. If any plausible association with coal mining can be established, only minimal medical evidence will suffice. A friendly X-ray technician, a sympathetic doctor, an experienced lawyer to process a claim — nothing more is required.

A study by the General Accounting Office in July of last year found that in 88.5 percent of the cases that had been "re-reviewed" and approved under the 1977 amendments, "medical evidence was not adequate to establish disability or death from black lung." The GAO estimated that successful claimants had received retroactive lump-sum payments amounting to $353.6 million, of which $312.9 million was undeservedly awarded. One such case involved a retired miner who died at age 82 in 1966 of a heart attack. This was 38 years after he last worked in a mine, and there was no evidence of black lung disability. Nevertheless, his widow collected a $12,000 award plus monthly benefits.

Such abuses put the trust fund $956 million in the red at the end of fiscal 1980. The deficit is expected to reach $1.5 billion in September. To regain solvency, the House earlier this month voted a heavy increase in the trust fund fee that is levied on every ton of coal that is mined. Fine with me. But nothing useful will have been accomplished unless the law is revised to put an end to fraud and collusion. Otherwise a precedent will be set for similar funds, and similar abuses, in every hazardous industry. And when everyone is totally disabled, as a matter of law, who will pay for the benefits, and who will do the work?

Hugel

WASHINGTON (AP) — So Max Hugel is out. Not many people ever knew he was in as the CIA's spy chief.

And the operation that led to his resignation was a swift piece of political surgery calculated to keep it that way.

Hours after The Washington Post published accusations by two brokers that Hugel had engaged in improper stock market practices — which he denied — the CIA deputy director for operations turned in his resignation.

President Reagan's aides said the White House didn't put him into the CIA and didn't force him out. But the message from Pennsylvania Avenue to the suburban Virginia headquarters of the CIA was unmistakable: This one wasn't worth fighting about.

"The administration is not embarrassed," spokesman David R. Gergen said after Hugel's abrupt resignation. "The alleged activities happened seven years ago, not during his service to the administration." Besides, Gergen said, they were unproven.

Hugel said he had not done anything wrong.

But as any reader of spy novels knows, undercover agents are expendable. Hugel was boss of the CIA's covert intelligence operations worldwide. The appointment of a businessman, Reagan campaign aide and longtime friend of CIA Director William J. Casey dismayed career intelligence officials, who said the job should have gone to an agency veteran in the first place.

Reagan said the right things. Aides reported him saddened at the accusations.

But deft staff work kept the Hugel episode away from Reagan and the White House doorstep. Administration aides had been looking into the case for four days before the accusations were published.

It was a setback for Casey's determined effort to lower the profile of the CIA and keep the agency out of the newspapers. But that was contained, too, by Hugel's departure and immediate replacement. Casey named CIA veteran John Stein — an experienced hand with service on several continents — to succeed him.

Ironically, while all that was unfolding, Casey ran up against stock accusations himself, with publication of a New York federal court ruling that he and associates knowingly misled investors in a New Orleans business venture. That ruling was issued May 19. Casey's lawyers denied any impropriety. The CIA said Casey would have no comment.

On Wednesday, Reagan's spokesman said the president has confidence in Casey and wants him to remain boss at the CIA. "The matter is still subject to further appeal in the court system," said deputy press secretary Larry Speakes.

None of that serves the goals of an administration that wants the CIA strengthened and back under cover. Hugel's departure and Casey's silence were efforts to get the whole episode behind the agency and the administration as quickly as possible.

It may not work. The White House deemed it necessary to come to Casey's defense. And another federal court ruling has surfaced involving the same defunct company, this one holding that Casey and other directors managed the firm deep into debt in attempting to serve their own interests.

The Hugel operation was an exercise in cutting losses. But Reagan's aides may not be done with the problem of choosing when to fight and when to come in from the cold.

To the editor:
I read with interest the article about Mrs. A.B. Stallworth in your newspaper. It was a really nice interview. As one who has had a loved one in a nursing home for an extended period of time (a 91-year-old grandmother), it is good to know that the residents of most homes are reasonably happy.
That was quite a lovely picture of Mrs. Stallworth on your front page. I thank Mrs. Stallworth for consenting to give the paper such a nice and heartwarming account of her life in a nursing home. Her kind words were certainly a tribute to the staff and management of Greenville Villa.

David Morse Facing South

ATLANTA, GA. — "I'm finding more and more people, in more and more places across the nation, being concerned about things that affect children there — not only the murders and disappearances of 50,000 children each year across the nation, but also how can we condone sending a child to school in the first grade, leaving him there for 12 years, allowing him to come out in a technical society unable to read or write? He's virtually dead to society without those skills, but we have been allowing this to go on."
The speaker is Camille Bell. Her 9-year-old son Yusef was the fourth victim in the series of unsolved murders in Atlanta which has left over 25 black youngsters dead.
Ms. Bell is the co-founder and chairperson of the Committee to Stop Children's Murders, a group formed by many of the mothers of the dead Atlanta children, which is working to bring about constructive public reaction to the murders. The other co-founder is Venus Taylor, whose 12-year-old daughter Angel Lanier was among the victims.
Ms. Bell says that raising money or other support for the stricken families is not the committee's primary aim; the members see this kind of response as being a stop-gap, short-term solution.

"The direction we have always worked toward is setting up the computer network for missing children," she said. "A parent can feed in a dental record, footprint description — and if that child or that child's body is found someplace else, the police department there can maybe make a match-up. This could prevent incidents like that little Baltimore girl that they finally buried after four months of nobody claiming her, because maybe her parents were searching desperately for her in San Antonio."

Ms. Bell sees the increasing difficulty of tracking down missing children, and the rise in dangers to those children, as being linked to larger trends in our society.

"Our society is not tied into children," Ms. Bell continues, "it's tied into consumer-aged youth. We're acting like we don't have a future here. We're acting like when this generation dies off, it's all over — so what difference does it make whether you train the kids or not? That's really crazy."

What hope does Ms. Bell see for today's children — including her remaining three, Jonathan, Maria and Tonia?

"Basically, I'm seeing a monument being built to the children in Atlanta and the other children killed across the country. And that monument really consists of change in the nation for the children who are left. But I'm also seeing people in positions of leadership actively resisting these changes. That's sad. But change in this country never comes from the top down; it always comes from the bottom up."

Despite the effectiveness of their efforts, Ms. Bell looks forward to a time when she will be able to step back and let others carry on.

"I want to spend time with my kids," she says. "I don't want an ongoing career of this Is Camille Bell, Chairperson of the Committee to Stop Children's Murders — Forever. I just want to be Camille Bell — you know, Jonathan Bell's mother. I was very happy in that role."

WELL, IT KEEPS ONE'S MIND OFF OTHER THINGS!

NEW YORK (UPI) — The recent flood of Vietnamese, Haitian and Cuban refugees into the United States has produced a groundswell of sentiment for stemming the tide of immigrants to this country.
But two economists contend that America actually needs far more immigrants than are currently allowed to enter legally.
Dr. Kenneth McLennan and Malcolm Lovell Jr. insist it is an economic necessity.
The rationale is that despite current high unemployment, projections show an acute labor shortage developing over the next two decades.
Immigrants with certain skills, the two economists say, will be needed to augment the workforce if America is to meet the economic challenges of the next several decades and be able to support the increasing proportion of elderly in the population.

"If immigration is not allowed to increase during the next 20 years, we will suffer a very trying fall-off in the proportion of prime-age workers in the labor force," McLennan and Lovell warn in an article written for The Journal, a publication of the Institute for Socioeconomic Studies, a non-profit foundation.
"If immigration is not increased the American labor force will in all probability not be sufficient by the end of the century to maintain the

NEW YORK (AP) — Should homeowners be permitted income-tax deductions for interest paid on home mortgage loans? Or should the deductions be drastically reduced, even eliminated?
The issue never dies. It is too provocative to die, and investment analysts, think-tank seers, authors, editors and the like know it. And so, for various reasons, they exercise the issue regularly.
In its July issue, the editors of "Nation's Business" magazine are surveying their readers on the issue because, as one of them suggested, with 34 million people paying on mortgages it's just a very good topic.
Indeed it is. In the minds of some, it is a topic that focuses one of the major economic issues of the day, which they see as the absolute necessity of quickly modernizing the nation's industrial capacity.
But wait. How does the issue of homeowner tax deductions evolve into the problem of reindustrialization? Two different issues, you say. Maybe not.

Deductions Are A Never-Dying Issue

The anti-deduction folks argue that the $35 billion in federal tax deductions for home mortgage interest is money better spent on building and modernizing production facilities so that they can turn out goods in a more efficient, less inflationary manner.
By permitting all home mortgage interest to be deducted, they argue, housing as an investment is made too attractive, at least in a relative sense. It competes with stocks, they say. And it does little to raise productivity because, of course, a house doesn't produce market goods.
Anthony Downs, Brookings Institution senior fellow, is prominent among those who claim that too much capital goes into housing. Much of it, he says, is used not to obtain homes but to refinance them. He argues that it isn't adding to the housing stock, only banking consumers.

Homeowners, he told Fortune magazine, often withdraw their equity, "and use it for something else, such as consumption, which doesn't add to national productivity or increase the amount of housing."
The argument is popularized by several stock analysts who see housing as a competitor. It doesn't, they say, fit with supply-side economics, which emphasizes the directing of financial resources into the supply or production of goods rather than their consumption.
In fact, a proposal to eliminate the deductions was considered by the Reagan team but quickly dropped when the size of the opposition became apparent. But a limit on the amount of deductions could surface again.
Those who favor continuation of the deduction include almost everyone in housing and home finance. Aside from political power — 67 percent of U.S. housing is occupied by people who own their homes — they have an unusually powerful argument: Housing is almost as sacred as motherhood.
To promote housing, they maintain, is to promote America. It is, they say, a patriotic duty to encourage home ownership, which makes better citizens and better institutions, including schools and churches.
They reject the argument that housing is a financial sinkhole with no link to productivity, and to demonstrate it they ask how it is possible to have productive workers without a decent place in which to live.

George Gallup Approval

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Ronald Reagan's overall performance rating is holding steady, with 58 percent of Americans expressing approval, the same level recorded in the two previous surveys.
A longer view, however, shows the president has lost some of the overall popularity he enjoyed for two months following the March 30 attempt on his life. In addition, public approval of Reagan's handling of key foreign and domestic issues has eroded steadily during this period.
At the same time, however, approval substantially outweighs disapproval on four of the seven specific issues tested in the latest survey.
In the latest Gallup Poll, six out of 10 persons (58 percent) express confidence in Reagan's overall handling of his job as chief executive. Approval of his handling of specific problems ranges from a high of 57 percent, for his efforts to improve our national defense, to a low of 39 percent, for his dealing with the unemployment situation and the same percentage for his handling of environmental problems.
Between these extremes, the president receives favorable ratings of 53 percent for his dealing with inflation, 51 percent for his handling of economic conditions, 48 percent for his handling of our relations with the Soviet Union, and 43 percent for his approach to energy problems.

Personality Factor
The president's overall rating is higher than the rating given him for his handling of the issues tested, reflecting the importance of his personal attributes.
It is also important to note that while the president receives relatively poor marks on his handling of unemployment, environmental issues and energy problems, the effect of these ratings on his overall popularity is offset by his higher score on dealing with inflation. Analysis of the relative importance of President Reagan's handling of specific issues indicates that inflation is far more important than the others. The analysis suggests that a shift from public approval to disapproval on the inflation issue would be more damaging to the president than the loss of support on any other single issue.

In 8 Expresses Unqualified Approval
One person in eight nationwide (12 percent) expresses unqualified approval of Reagan, giving him a vote of confidence for his overall performance in office and for all seven specific issues tested.

Slightly fewer, 7 percent, express unqualified disapproval. Most inclined to do so are blacks, with one in four (25 percent) giving consistently negative responses.

Following is the question asked to measure public attitudes toward the president's overall performance:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Reagan is handling his job as president?"

Here is the trend since March:

Following are the questions asked to determine attitudes toward the president's handling of specific issues:
— Do you approve or disapprove of the way Reagan is — handling our national defense?
— handling our relations with Russia?
— dealing with environmental issues?
— dealing with economic conditions in this country?
— dealing with inflation?
— dealing with unemployment?
— dealing with the energy situation?
The latest results are based on in-person interviews with 1,535 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected locations across the nation during the period June 26-29.
For results based on a sample of this size, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be three percentage points in either direction.

We all want to enhance our children's creativity. I guess that's why so many articles on the subject appear in newspapers and magazines. These articles may differ somewhat in approach, but they all make the same basic point, that parents should allow children to make their own choices and to solve their own problems.
I've been trying to do this with Meg for years, but my efforts always seem to backfire. Take the daily choice of outfits. The articles say that to avoid trouble while continuing to encourage creativity, the parent should limit the choice to two or three outfits and let the child take it from there.
Unfortunately, Meg hasn't read these articles. I offer a choice between the red shorts and the green shorts, and she responds, "I don't want either."
"What do you mean, you don't want either? Here are two perfectly good outfits, now choose one!"
"But I want to wear a dress."
"You're going to a watermelon party. People don't wear dresses to eat watermelon."
"Well, they wear dresses to parties, and I want to wear my blue one."

"You're not going to wear your blue dress, young lady. Your grandmother spent hours smocking that dress. Now you put on these red shorts or else."
Tears begin to flow, followed by the statement, "You never let me do anything I want."
I get approximately the same result when I try to let her solve her own problems. One of her biggest problems is finding her shoes. After she wearily tugs on the red shorts or whatever, she makes a five-second intensive survey of the floor of her room and announces in a cross between a moan and a wail, "I can't find my shoes!"
"If you would put your sandals in the closet when you take them off, you could find them when you need them."
"I can't do that."
"Why not?"
"There's no room on the closet floor."
I continue to offer my pearls of wisdom. "You could move your sleeping bag, your tea set, and your Dracula mask to the toolbox."
"I can't!"

"Why not?"
"Because when I need to do that, I'm holding my shoes. I only have two hands, you know."
Unable to fight this logic, I return to the current problem. "Well, try to think, where you were when you took the shoes off, and then you'll be able to find them."
"I already know where I was."
"Good. Where were you?"
"In the house."
I suppress my inclination to scream and throw things. "I meant that you need to remember which room you were in."
"I can't, but I still know how to find them. All I need is for you to help me look."
"I'm sorry. This is your problem, not mine."
She shrugs her shoulder. "Then I guess I'll just have to put on my Mary Janes 'cause I know where they are. And I'll have to put on a dress 'cause those red shorts don't go with Mary Janes."
It finally dawns on me. I don't need to read articles. Meg is creative enough already.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan faces his first big test in international diplomacy this weekend when he attends the Economic Summit in Ottawa, and he may be put on the defensive.
That is not an unusual stance for the United States, whose allies look to it for leadership and at the same time resent it.
But in this case, Reagan's monetary policies may come under attack from such European leaders as French President Francois Mitterand and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt. Both men say high interest rates in the United States are putting the squeeze on their economies.
Mitterand and Schmidt say that Western European investors' money is gravitating to the U.S. dollar because of the 20.5 percent interest rates.
But Reagan, who is not the contentious type, apparently will insist that his policies are necessary to reduce inflation. He will also note that in several of the past summits the European leaders, not all the same cast in the seven-nation conclave, have chided the United States for not taking stronger measures to dampen inflation. He will also argue that all will benefit if his policies work.
Usually such summit meetings are well prepared in advance, from the agenda to at least a tentative written communique are on the table when the conference begins. This is also true of the summit to be held at Chateau Montello, the world's largest log hotel resort, in the Laurentian Hills 40 miles from Ottawa.
Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has met personally with nearly every one of the participants to achieve a harmonious and amicable gathering. And in advance, the summit is being billed more as a "get acquainted" conclave with four new leaders on the scene for the first time, rather than a meeting that will produce a major agreement on the direction the industrialized nations should take in the future.

Trudeau had hoped the summit would focus on the aid rich nations should provide the developing nations. But that subject will be the main purpose of a later summit of some 23 nations in Cancun, Mexico, in mid-October.
Aides said that Reagan will tell the summit that interest rates will go down when the inflation rate is lowered and that some American industries such as housing and automobiles have also taken the brunt of the burden.
And Reagan has spent several days cramming for the summit, which he says is his style of studying, dating back to his school days. Actually, he has been concentrating on the economy during the six months he has been in office, so he should be able to hold his own in such discussions.
Since the first summit meeting at Rambouillet in 1975, the same problems have faced the participants: inflation, energy, trade, unemployment and the so-called north-south dialogue on the question of how much help the industrialized nations can provide the poor nations. The aid to underdeveloped countries is not all charity. It would be aimed at building new markets for the Western trading countries.
Reagan has had several meetings with heads of state since he was inaugurated. But he had not participated in an international gathering where the United States will be on an equal footing with its allies.

Summit Tests Reagan

Are Immigrants Needed?

present level of social benefits afforded our elderly."
In an interview, McLennan, director of industrial studies at the Committee for Economic Development, said current birth and death rates indicate that by the end of the century the ratio of working to nonworking Americans will plummet.
He cited a recent study which projected that if economic growth and the birth rate remain unchanged, there will be 65 Social Security beneficiaries for every 100 workers early in the next century, compared with 30 for every 100 workers today.
But McLennan and Lovell say the solution is not just a matter of lifting current immigration quotas and opening up the southern borders to allow Mexicans to cross legally.

Current immigration policy, they contend, is "anti-quated and out of control" and "will fail to contribute to future needs of the labor market and the economy generally."
What is needed, they say, is effective control over the flow and skills of immigrants in order to meet the changing needs of the U.S. labor market.
This would mean curbing the flow of illegal immigrants, removing the current bias toward reuniting families and making the most important goal of immigration policy to provide the numbers and types of skills needed by employers.

"Immigration policy has to be geared more for those who want to work in this country and not favor someone just because she's a wife, or sister or brother of an immigrant," said McLennan.
McLennan and Lovell recommend that 50 percent of the visas be reserved for those having specific skills instead of the present 20 percent. If illegal immigration can be curbed substantially, they add, legal immigrants who have the needed skills can be substituted and the annual number of visas granted could safely be doubled.
The selection of skills would be done by private employers who would make job offers to prospective immigrants, McLennan said. Shifting the focus of immigration policy thus would also alleviate some of the burden on social programs since a higher proportion of immigrants would have at least a provisional job opportunity at the time they enter the country.
Everyone understands the value of having an immigrant like soccer star Pele or opera star Joan Sutherland, McLennan and Lovell say.
But it may take considerable debate to convince Americans of the value of foreigners with other skills needed to meet the economic challenges of the next few decades.

Williams Draws 2 Indictments By Atlanta Jury

ATLANTA (AP) — Two months after Wayne B. Williams came under intense scrutiny by a 100-member police task force, his attorney says evidence used to connect him with two of 28 slayings of young blacks remains weak and circumstantial.

The 23-year-old Williams was indicted Friday on two counts of murder in the asphyxiation deaths of Jimmy Ray Payne and Nathaniel Cater, the 26th and 28th victims in the two-year-old series of slayings that has terrorized the city for the past year.

The free-lance cameraman was arrested and charged with murder in Cater's death on June 21 after he had been under surveillance for a month. But police had not publicly linked him with Payne's death prior to the indictment.

Mary Welcome, one of Williams' attorneys, insisted Friday that her client is innocent of both crimes and maintained the evidence in the cases made public so far is weak and inconclusive.

Jack Perry, a former chief of homicide for the Atlanta Police Bureau, acknowledged Saturday that, based on the public record, the state's case against Williams appears weak, but he said Fulton County District Attorney Lewis Slaton may have "something up his sleeve."

Officials have presented two factors in public which they say led them to charge Williams with murder in Cater's death last May.

A State Crime Lab technician testified during Williams' committal hearing June 24 that he had found virtually no microscopic difference between fibers found in Cater's hair and fibers taken from a carpet and bedspread at Williams' home.

Police officers who staked out a bridge over the Chattahoochee River testified at the hearing they saw Williams driving slowly over the bridge just after they heard a splash during the early morning hours of May 22. He was questioned for about two hours and released. Cater's body was found not far downstream two days later.

Ms. Welcome says evidence presented at the hearing was not enough to bind Williams over for grand jury action, much less to try him on a murder charge.

Williams "knows that he is innocent, and he is relying on the public in general to make sure that the government has more than — and I hope like hell that they have more than — some more fibers and just the fact that Wayne Williams was on a bridge at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. I hope that they have more than what they had with Nathaniel Cater," she said after the indictment.

Perry, who served for 10 years as chief of the homicide squad, said the state's case is "lacking an admission of guilt" or some physical evidence pointing directly at Mr. Williams. "But he said Slaton simply may be withholding some of his cards before the trial begins."

"He can strengthen that (circumstantial evidence) a lot, but we don't know what Lewis has up his sleeve. He might have something that is very damaging to Mr. Williams. It would be a well-kept secret. I believe there's something he's not telling."

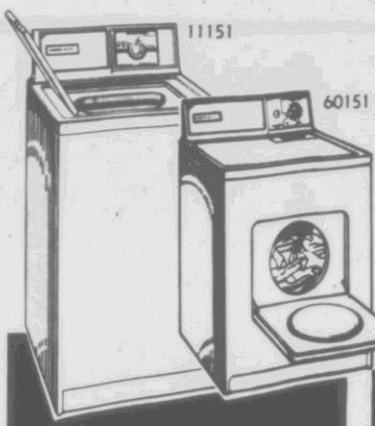

Also, Perry said, Slaton "has a way of putting up evidence. He can present it in such a way to make it look stronger than it would normally. Mary Welcome has her hands full; she has her work cut out for her."

Sheriff Chained Inmates To Post

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A county sheriff — who has been removing prisoners from his jail and leaving them chained to a post at a state detention center — has agreed not to do it anymore, pending a court hearing Monday.

Pulaski County Sheriff Tommy Robinson contends the prisoners are the state's responsibility since they already have been convicted and sentenced to the state penitentiary.

But Arkansas prisons are full and under federal court orders not to overcrowd inmates. This backlog means county jails are having to keep convicted prisoners sentenced to go to the state prison system.

"The bottom line is, I'm not going to keep state prisoners," Robinson said Friday. "It's their problem, not mine."

So, for the second time in three days, Robinson had deputies take five state prisoners to the state prison unit at Wrightsville, chain them to a post and leave.

On Wednesday, Robinson's deputies did the same thing with 14 prisoners, leaving them chained to a guard tower outside the state prison Diagnostic Unit at Pine Bluff. The prisoners stayed there 3 1/2 hours before being transferred by the state police to city jails.

The five left at Wrightsville on Friday were picked up by Arkansas State Police about one hour after they were left. State police took them to the Lincoln County Jail in Star City.

State officials, including Gov. Frank White, called Robinson's actions irresponsible.

State Attorney General Steve Clark filed a petition late Friday in an effort to prevent Robinson from leaving any more prisoners at state facilities without permission. A court hearing on Clark's request for a temporary restraining order is scheduled Monday in Little Rock.

Also, Prosecuting Attorney Wayne Matthews of Pine Bluff — home of the state Correction Department — threatened to serve Robinson with a summons for obstructing governmental operations if he makes any more unauthorized inmate dropoffs.

Robinson, meanwhile, was seeking a writ to order the state prison system to accept one more prisoner who has been committed to the state penitentiary but still remains in the Pulaski County Jail.

UNC Officials Say School Can Now Work On Meeting Objectives

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — University of North Carolina officials, with the school's desegregation agreement with the federal government approved by a federal district judge, say the school can now devote full attention to improving its program for all students.

"We think that it means that, instead of expending a lot of energy, resources and time in costly litigation, that the university can now devote itself to carrying out of the objectives of this decree," Raymond Dawson, vice president for academic affairs, said Friday shortly after U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree approved the plan.

Calling the plan "fair, reasonable and adequate," Dupree rejected a challenge by the NAACP Legal Defense Fund to the agreement, which ends an 11-year battle between the university and the Department of Education.

"In summary, the court has found the remedy jointly proposed by these parties to be within reasonable bounds and not to be illegal, unconstitutional or contrary to public policy," Dupree said. "It is seen as the work product of 'men of conscience struggling to preserve, alter, modernize and improve a great educational institution' arrived at after long, serious and thoughtful negotiations."

"It should be given a chance to work."

Dawson said carrying out provisions of the agreement will require "a lot of work" on the part of UNC officials but they welcome the opportunity.

"We are now in a position to meet our obligations in a way that is educationally sound and in a way which will be in the interest of the higher educational opportunity of all," he said.

Under the settlement, the university will be required to implement 29 new academic programs at the five predominantly black campuses during the next five years and work toward reaching goals — but not rigid quotas — for increasing desegregation at all 16 black and white campuses.

The agreement is silent on the issue of duplication of programs at black and white campuses, but contains strong provisions giving the university control over the fate of academic programs."

Dupree said Legal Defense Fund attorneys argued that the agreement "fails to meet the requirements of virtually every one" of the desegregation standards drawn by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in 1977 or in previous court orders.

"The court remains unpersuaded that the settlement reached is in any way violative of either the district court or circuit court orders," Dupree said.

Dupree noted one of the principal points of difference between the government and the university has been over the need for elimination of program duplication.

"The court has found nothing to support an inference that the agreements reached in the consent decree are the result

First Medfly Spraying Nears Completion

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — California's Mediterranean fruit fly fighters hoped to complete aerial spraying Sunday morning of a 150-square-mile area of infested rural and urban land with the insecticide malathion.

The helicopter forays, which began Tuesday, were plagued with spray nozzles that kept clogging with malathion-coated bait, but technical problems gradually were minimized.

On Saturday six helicopters flew from 2 to 6 a.m. and covered as much territory as in the previous four days. Only one copter was forced to land because of clogging, and only briefly.

Another aerial spraying of the area, the second of six, was scheduled to begin Tuesday. About that time state officials will get their first clue as to whether they are winning or losing the battle against the Medfly threat to California's $14 billion agricultural industry.

Some fertile flies, given their life cycle, should start turning up in thousands of traps in the quarantined area in spite of the spraying. The clue will be how many are found.

The state's eradication program has been bitterly criticized by ranchers fearful of their crops, citizens frightened that malathion might harm humans, and Republicans blaming Gov. Edmund G. Brown for everything.

U.S. Sen. S.I. Hayakawa visited the Medfly eradication headquarters Saturday, and promptly declared he was "absolutely outraged" at Brown's handling of the crisis.

He said the governor "sat on his hands" for 13 months after discovery of the first Medfly maggot and then encouraged "a climate of hysteria so intense that people got sick from the pure power of suggestion."

Earlier this month, Brown, ignoring his Medfly officials' advice, ordered massive ground spraying and strip-

New Orleans Hit By Power Failure

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A power failure, apparently caused by a tree that fouled a power transmission line, cut electricity to more than a quarter-million homes and businesses Saturday for hours in 96-degree weather Saturday, officials said.

No emergencies or serious problems were reported from the blackout within a 40-mile radius from Covington and Slidell on the north shore of Lake Pontchartrain to the west bank of the Mississippi River in St. Charles Parish.

The blackout came to an area that thrives on air conditioning at the hottest and most humid time of year.

But not only air conditioners went out. So did traffic lights, trolleys, radio stations and computers serving telephone circuits and other electronic systems. Hospitals and other emergency services immediately went to backup systems.

Some people were trapped in elevators between floors at the downtown Hilton Hotel but were rescued quickly, police said, and the New Orleans Police Department's crime computer bombed briefly, but no serious disruptions were reported.

ping of fruit but refused to authorize aerial spraying over urban areas. He was forced to reverse his aerial spraying decision by federal pressure.

Now the fear is that fruit fly will be carried over a mountain range, probably by motorists, to the vast and rich San Joaquin Valley. On Friday 55,487 cars were stopped briefly in an effort to enforce the quarantine.

But some officials said keeping just a few flies from escaping might be an impossible task.

Five southern states, including Texas through which much produce passes enroute elsewhere, have decreed a total quarantine beginning Monday on all unfumigated fruit and vegetables from California.

California's food and agriculture director, Richard Rominger, said he hoped those states would relent when better informed about his state's situation.

If not, he said California growers will go to court Monday in Texas. The California attorney general was preparing a suit against the other states to be filed in the U.S. Supreme Court.

WAKE UP AMERICA!!! ...IS THIS DEMOCRACY???

The Institute of Womens Health has discovered that an eleven page report prepared by Dr. William Cates was replaced by a three page statement in order to OMIT most of the favorable effects of legalized abortion.

The SWITCH was known by our government officials in Washington including the Health and Human Services Secretary, Richard S. Schweiker who, like John East and Jesse Helms, is an anti-abortionist.

Information also made available to the Womens Health Care group revealed that legalized abortions have reduced abortion-related disease and death among American women and have reduced the incidence of teenage marriages and out of wedlock births statistically.

The report that was kept away from the sub-committee also shows that in 1965 when abortions were illegal everywhere in the United States, there were 235 abortion related deaths nationwide, 20% of all pregnancy related deaths, and "it was not unusual for half of all beds in the gynecological units of large public hospitals to be occupied by women suffering complications" of illegal abortions. In 1976, three years after the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion, there were two abortion related deaths.

The report that was apparently SUPPRESSED also showed that legal abortion has helped produce significant declines in teenagers "high-risk marriages" that often produce unwanted children and has been associated with the decline and out-of-wedlock births in some states. The highest teenage childbearing rates occur in states with the lowest abortion rates, the statement said.

The availability of amniocentesis, examination of the fetus during pregnancy, and abortion if the fetus is deformed apparently has led to ten percent more childbearing, rather than less childbearing, in families with genetic risk. The indication is that mothers have less fear of becoming pregnant because of these procedures.

Sources strongly indicated that John East, who was Chairman of the Senate Sub-Committee holding hearings, feared that the ORIGINAL report may have had an adverse effect on the committee and purposely SWITCHED REPORTS TO DILUTE THE EFFECT OF THE ORIGINAL TESTIMONY.

Letter Carriers Elect Officers

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH — The North Carolina Rural Letter Carrier's Association elected Sam Keel of Bethel as their president at their recent state convention here.

Keel, who had been president of the association's Tar River District, was elected at a meeting attended by approximately 150 associate members, 118 auxiliary members and 42 juniors.

Anne Keel of Bethel was elected president of the Rural Letter Carriers Auxiliary. She had served as vice president.

Greenville Native Picked 'Miss Flame'

EAST SPENCER — Greenville native Beatrice Reaves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Atkinson, was crowned "Miss Flame 1981-82" at the 91st convention of the N.C. Volunteer Fireman Association held here recently.

Ms. Reaves was crowned by Beatrice Anderson of Warrenton, out-going queen.

The new Miss Flame was guest of honor later at a music show held at the American Legion Hut. Activities held during the week's program at Southern City A.M.E. Zion Church included demonstrations by the Salisbury Fire Department, a course at Rowan Tech, and a tour of the fire training section at Rowan Tech. Boat riding and a picnic were held at Dan Nicholas Park.

Auxiliaries attending the convention included Warrenton, Wilson, Salisbury, Wake Forest and Greenville. Greenville won the trophy for the most outstanding scrapbook.

Members from the Greenville Auxiliary who attended were Beatrice Reaves, Dorothy Barnes, Shirley Bridges and Virginia Ebron.

New officers for the 1981-82 State Auxiliary of the N.C.V.F. Association are:

Feminists' Strike Effects Pending

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — In September 1980, Lydia Rodriguez quit a teaching post in Oregon to become a San Jose city telephone operator, a job that requires knowledge, tact, three years of college — and paid $1,642 a year less than what the city paid its street sweepers.

The wage disparity — one of many found in San Jose city jobs deemed "comparable" in a 1978 study — prompted the nation's first strike over the issue of pay earned by employees doing "women's work."

The nine-day walkout, which shut down libraries and curtailed other non-essential city services, ended Tuesday with the city promising to set aside $1.45 million to remove the pay inequities, in addition to a 15.5 percent across-the-board hike.

City officials predict that aftershocks from the strike over the sensitive and potentially expensive issue of whether women performing work similar but not identical to men should receive equal pay will be felt around the country, costing municipalities as much as $200 billion.

"We opened up a real Pandora's box," said Jess Delgado, assistant to the city manager. "Even before the strike was settled, I had calls from employers around the country, worried about what was going on here."

What went on in California's third largest and fastest growing city — described by its first woman mayor as "the feminist capital of the world" — "made labor history," said Bill Callahan, business agent for the 2,000-member Local 101 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

"The issue was not equal pay for women," he said. "It was equal pay for work of comparable value. The implications are tremendous." For years, city librarians, stenographers, clerks, nurses, telephone operators and parks and recreation workers — most of them women — complained they were being underpaid when compared with the male-held jobs of city carpenters, mechanics, plumbers, electricians, street sweepers and chemists.

The city, led by Mayor Janet Gray Hayes and a woman-dominated City Council, commissioned a $500,000 study by Hay Associates, a San Francisco consulting firm, to examine the 288 city jobs.

State Shows Job Decrease

North Carolina posted the largest decrease — 5,100 jobs — in textile employment in the Southeast during the 12-month period ending in May, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The department said six of the other seven states in the region also posted employment losses.

However, Southeastern textile plant employment showed a slight gain over "all in May, reversing a five-month downward trend.

Donald M. Cruse, regional commissioner for the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Atlanta, reported that the new employment level of 576,300 was up 1,100 from April compared to a loss of 15,700 from May 1980.

The monthly increase resulted from gains in Georgia (1,600), North Carolina (600) and Kentucky (200) which offset losses in the remaining five states. South Carolina dropped 600 followed by a loss of 300 in Alabama. Smaller reductions were recorded in Florida, Mississippi and Tennessee.

Parties, Bunting Emerge As Wedding Date Nears

LONDON (UPI) — Roof-high streamers of bunting drape banks and pubs along Fleet Street. Fake stone walls line the steps of St. Paul's. Street parties are busting out all over.

It may seem odd because of a mere marriage, but London is an exciting place these days.

A rampage of riots, the country's most serious epidemic of lawlessness in memory, may have devastated inner city districts from Southampton to Scotland. Yet this hardly seems to have reduced royal wedding fever by one degree.

With its capital city in the lead, Britain is throwing itself into celebrating the July 29 wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer with the same gusto and enthusiasm it showed over Queen Elizabeth's Silver Jubilee in 1977.

Structures along the 2.1-mile wedding procession route began to get their red, white and blue party dresses last week. Frizzy pom-poms fringe The George pub. Four-story-high banners with the three-feather badge of the Prince of Wales flutter over Fleet Street.

Wood walls painted like stone hide camera positions on either side of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Neighborhood "street party" celebrations began eight days ago, and the pace is picking up. And joy over the "wedding of the century" is by no means confined to London.

In Wales and Scotland, in picture-postcard villages and grimy industrial cities, royal wedding fever is inescapable.

A fishmonger near Broadlands, where the honeymoon may begin, arranged prawns and flounder and cod into a spectacular window-filling royal wedding display.

The Royal Mint coined 24 million royal wedding crowns — one for every other Briton, legal tender at 50 cents each. Bonfires are laid and ready to form a wedding-eve spiderweb of beacons reaching to every national shore.

And from every imaginable surface, in shops and banks and sidewalk stalls, from T-shirts and shopping bags and the wrappings of meat in certain butcher's, smile the faces of Charles and Diana.

"I have your X-rays now," said a doctor to a lady in a recent newspaper cartoon, "and you seem to have pictures of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer on your lungs."

The royal couple almost is that ubiquitous. Wedding souvenirs sell at a dizzying pace, even though the semi-official Design Council rejected 87 percent of submitted designs as "appalling, abysmal, worse even than we expected."

Events pegged to the royal wedding are in full spate. But the predicted tourist invasion has not happened, and probably will not.

are available for wedding week. Obtainables, a company which specializes in hard-to-get tickets, is still offering grandstand seats along the wedding route for $300 and office window views for $500.

Deluge Of Gifts Pouring In For Former Hostages

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The outpouring of joy and sympathy when the 52 Americans returned from Iran half-a-year ago has had its material side as well: a virtual deluge of gifts for the former hostages.

Gifts and offers of gifts have ranged from trips to Hawaii to bags of potatoes to Bibles to apple juice to gift certificates for tattoos, says Laura Dolley of Flag, Inc., the agency assisting the hostages and coordinating their activities.

"It was totally unexpected. I'm still getting reactions from many of them that are: 'Gee, I can't believe it's still going on,'" she said.

"I was absolutely touched," reflected Kathryn Koob, one of the former hostages reached by telephone in New York.

"Sort of overwhelming," was how Catherine Keough, wife of hostage William F. Keough Jr., described the deluge of gifts. And her reaction was echoed by Susan Cooke of Memphis, Tenn., mother of hostage Donald Cooke.

"I think we were all sort of overwhelmed by it and very grateful to the people. The public was just marvelous," Mrs. Cooke said.

Most of the gifts, Miss Koob said, "were very personal things, hand drawn pictures from school children, watercolors that they did, little things like a cross that they wore during the entire time."

Mrs. Cooke said she received a "tremendous number" of prayers from people.

"I just couldn't believe that there were still so many people that were religious in this country. We went through a period when everyone was saying God was dead; well, we found out that he is very much alive," she reflected.

The gift giving got underway even before the hostages were freed, and by the time they reached Weisbaden, Germany, lobsters and pizzas were waiting.

But the floodgates really opened when they reached this country, leaving many unable to take advantage of the gifts just because there wasn't time to do everything and also spend time with their families.

"Part of the problem is that it all came so fast and furiously right after they were released that there was barely time to sort out which child was at home and which was in school. ... So most of them did not take advantage of the bulk of things that were offered," explained Ms. Dolley.

"Most of us met our families and stayed put," Miss Koob said, explaining why many of the vacation and travel gifts were not used.

She said she was able to visit relatives in Florida and New England because of the offer of free travel. And then, she said, there was one gift — a week on the Mississippi Queen riverboat — that "came just at the right time, when I couldn't face another flashbulb or another question."

And the boat operators lived up to their promise that there wouldn't be any publicity about her being aboard, she said. "They were just super."

Free vacations were also offered by the Caribbean island nation of Jamaica, which at least a few of the former hostages are planning to accept. Originally there was some question about this being prohibited by the law barring gifts from foreign governments, but that contains an exception for officially sanctioned travel.

So, former hostages who want to accept the vacation will be assigned to visit Jamaica by the State Department and their expenses will be reimbursed to the department by the Jamaican government.

Although the scale is reduced, the gifts and messages continue to arrive — a hand-embroidered shawl coming in only last week.

Vacations in Hawaii were perhaps one of the most appealing gifts, Ms. Dolley said, because it gave the former hostages a chance to get away from the glare of publicity and constant public attention. She had high praise for the Hawaiians for allowing privacy to the hostages.

"But even with that nice aspect of it, only 10 or 15 of them went," Ms. Dolley added.

Former hostages still seeking privacy may want to use the free baseball passes offered by commissioner Bowie Kuhn, in light of the current baseball strike.

The desire for privacy, Ms. Dolley said, was balanced by a thankfulness to the American people.

"Most of them felt a tremendous responsibility to the public that had, I think, contributed in no small way to their release. ... I think there was an overwhelming feeling among them that they had to react with gratitude and acceptance and thanks," she added.

Mrs. Keough said her husband has declined offers of larger, more costly gifts such as travel and vacations, feeling that "to receive money or free trips here and there was not in keeping with the spirit of the American people."

That's just a personal decision of their family, she explained, and doesn't indicate that they feel people who accept gifts are wrong or that they couldn't have used the items.

Keough, like several former hostages, is donating lecture fees to the Arthur Simons Memorial Fund, a scholarship program for the 17 children of the servicemen killed or crippled in the attempt to rescue the hostages. More than $130,000 has been collected so far.

Nudie 'Chutists Drop In

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Parachutists with nothing flapping in the breeze but their bare bodies and their chutes shocked officials at the National Parachute Championships here.

Six men and four women, looking like tiny specks to spectators on the ground, descended from 3,000 feet holding hands, witnesses to the July 11 event said.

Everything was revealed later in the week on the video camera used by the officials judging the contest.

"It's never happened at a championship before — and it's not going to happen again," said Jack Bergman, director of the event, when contacted at his home in St. Louis.

He said he will not only try to keep the 10 parachutists from competing in next year's event, but will soon chutes, the group landed on an outlying area of Davis Field and probably escaped the attention of most spectators, Bergman said.

Officials immediately declared the 10 people ineligible to continue competing in the contest.

so his brain can be examined to determine if it is rabid. More than 500 children demonstrated at his cage last week, posting the sign above, to call for his life to be spared. A state court agreed Friday, but another court hearing is scheduled July 27. (AP Laserphoto)

French Unions, Management Agree To Cut Working Hours

PARIS (AP) — French labor and management took the first step toward meeting Socialist President Francois Mitterrand's goal of a 35-hour work week Saturday by agreeing to reduce the traditional 40-hour week by one hour.

The agreement in principle between France's five major labor unions and its employers association, the Patronat, is the first nationwide reduction in working hours since 1936. It calls for a 39-hour week, a fifth week of paid vacation and a limit of 130 hours annual overtime.

could impose them anyway by passing laws in the National Assembly, where it commands a majority.

The agreement is still unofficial. Final details of the agreement, which affects 80 different industries, will be negotiated between Sept. 30 and Dec. 1, negotiators from both sides said. The document will then go before Parliament for ratification, they said.

The largest union, the Communist-led General Labor Confederation (CGT), said its 2.3 million members would like the final document to include a written commitment by the Patronat to further decrease working hours in the future. But CGT representative Henri Krasuki said in case of a dispute he was willing to let the Socialist-dominated National Assembly "assume final responsibility" for the text.

The other unions involved are the Socialist-led French Democratic Labor Federation (CFDT), the independent Worker Force (FO), the independent General Federation of Cadres (GCC) and the Catholic-led French Federation of Christian Workers (CFTC).

The president has asked for a 35-hour work week by 1985.

Mitterrand pledged during his election campaign to reduce France's work week on the assumption that it would require industry to hire more people. The Patronat objected the scheme, which does not reduce salaries, will raise costs and lower productivity.

Both management and the unions were working under heavy pressure from the government. One negotiator said Premier Pierre Mauroy warned both sides at their opening session June 12 that if they failed to agree on reforms the government

Some Haitian Refugees Airlifted From Crowded Florida Camp

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Concerned about serious overcrowding and dangerous health conditions from contaminated water, immigration officials Saturday were airlifting about 180 Haitian refugees from an Everglades detention camp to federal jails in New York and Texas.

But the transfer of the refugees — and the movement of another 100 on Sunday to federal prisons in Lake Placid, N.Y., and Morgantown, W.Va. — won't alleviate the overcrowding at the makeshift Krome detention camp, federal officials said.

"We have 286 going out this weekend, but we had a bus arrive last night with 80 new refugees, so in effect, we're only dropping the population by 200," said Mike Trominsky, a spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The hastily arranged airlift was approved by Attorney General William French Smith on Thursday, a day before Florida Gov. Bob Graham directed state lawyers to sue the federal government, demanding that at least 1,000 of the refugees at the camp be moved out of the state.

"The refusal by the federal government to resolve the vexing problem of immigration has caused nothing but a tide of human misery," Graham said in Tallahassee.

Dade County health officials have warned that the camp's wells have been contaminated by fecal matter, creating a health hazard. County firefighters have been trucking fresh water to the camp, a former U.S. Army missile base on the fringe of the mosquito-infested Everglades, about 15 miles west of Miami.

Ringed by about three dozen riot-equipped U.S. Border Patrol officers, 89 Haitians peacefully boarded a chartered Ozark Airlines DC-9 jet that lifted off from Miami International Airport shortly before 3 p.m. EDT for New York. From there they were to be bused to an INS detention facility in Brooklyn that already houses illegal aliens arrested in the Northeast.

The refugees, segregated by sex, filed peacefully onto the jet, showing almost no emotion.

About 100 more refugees were being flown by Ozark to Midland, Texas, to be transferred to the federal prison at Big Springs. INS officials said they did not know exactly how many would be on that flight.

Trominsky said another 100 refugees will leave Krome on Sunday, 50 going to a federal prison at Lake Placid and 50 to the correctional facility in Morgantown.

"Everything is calm, there have been no problems at all," Trominsky said. "They have been told where they are going and exactly what is happening."

Meanwhile, attorneys for the Haitian Refugee Center Inc. asked a federal judge to prevent INS from deporting the refugees to their impoverished Caribbean homeland once they get them to the other camps.

Lawyer Ira Kurzban said he is worried that INS will act secretly to deport the Haitians without due process or legal counsel.

"We don't think it; we know that's what they plan to do," Kurzban said.

Bruce Winick, one of the attorneys who filed for the restraining order, said Haitian advocates here don't oppose moving the refugees out of Florida or giving them hearings, "providing they have access to legal counsel."

Play Fort Collapses, Kills Boys

VICTORVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Three young brothers suffocated when a dirt fort they apparently dug at an excavation site collapsed on them, San Bernardino County Sheriff's police said Saturday.

The bodies of Michael Nickles, 5, and his brothers, Jason, 9, and Dean, 12, were removed from the excavation site more than six hours after they left their home Friday afternoon, said sheriff's deputy Henry Jones.

The boys' father said the three boys were last seen at 3 p.m. Friday, and he reported them missing about 9:00 p.m., Jones said.

The father began to search and found a canteen belonging to the boys' at the excavation site, the deputy said.

Fire department rescue units and sheriff's deputies rushed to the scene and recovered the bodies, Jones said.

People who live in the area told authorities that the boys had dug a dirt fort at the site, he said. The excavation was apparently used for fill dirt, Jones said. Its owner was not immediately known.

Postal Strike Possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Major postal unions rejected Saturday a three-year wage freeze Postmaster General William Bolger sought for 600,000 postal workers, calling it a "final and most devastating insult" that increased the threat of a nationwide mail strike at midnight Monday.

Federal mediator Nicholas Fidandis said that unless bargaining "takes a dramatic turn, this thing is headed for deep trouble." He called both sides back to the bargaining table in a hotel suite.

Letter Carriers President Vincent Sombrotto said the negotiators "can still work something out" if the Postal Service changes its position. Bolger also indicated an agreement was possible.

Assistant Postmaster General Walter Duka said the Postal Service proposal would cost $2.5 billion over three years and "add 3 cents to the price of mailing a letter."

The Service contends union demands, which include 5 percent yearly basic wage increases, would add 45 cents to the cost of the first class mail rate by 1984. The unions claim this is "a big lie."

The Justice Department has warned postal union leaders that it would take criminal and civil action against strikers and Bolger told workers Friday they would be fired for striking or slowing down mail delivery.

American Postal Workers President Moe Biller and Sombrotto revealed details of the Postal Service wage freeze demand at a news conference before Saturday's session, calling the proposal "garbage."

They said it offered no basic wage increase during the contract period, put a 43-cent yearly cap on cost-of-living adjustments, eliminated past cost-of-living adjustments from the wage figures and a reduced future employer contribution for health benefits.

"We have a postmaster general who is playing Russian roulette with the American people," Biller said. "He is bringing this nation to the brink of disaster as he tries to bring postal workers to their knees."

Retired Banker Is Buried

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Funeral services were held in Columbia Saturday for Robert Alexander Darr, retired president of the Federal Land Bank of Columbia.

Darr, who died at his home Thursday night at the age of 67, was buried in Greenlawn Memorial Park following services at the Lutheran Church of the Incarnation.

Darr was a businessman of national prominence and guided the growth of the Federal Land Bank of Columbia and Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Columbia into one of the largest of the 12 district banks in the nation.

He was instrumental in establishing national policy on the operation of the Farm Credit System.

When he became president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Columbia in 1954, the bank's loan portfolio totaled $47 million. That grew to $1.7 billion by the time Darr retired in 1978.

In 1965, Darr became president of the Federal Land Bank of Columbia as well as the FICB. In 1965, the Federal Land Bank here had $323 million in loans outstanding. That grew to $2.5 billion under Darr's leadership.

The Federal Land Bank provides funds for long-term financing through local land banks, while the FICB is the channel through which the Production Credit Associations provide short-term financing to farmers for such things as seed and production equipment.

The banks here are headquarters for a district which covers both Carolinas, Georgia and Florida.

Darr had just joined the Edens & McTeer commercial real estate firm as a specialist in the brokerage of farmlands and timber tracts.

"He was a tremendous force in the Farm Credit System," said Bill Bruner, chairman of First National Bank of South Carolina and a longtime associate of Darr.

"He had much more influence on the national level than people realize," said Bruner, "yet he kept a low profile."

East Expresses Concern Over Civil Rights Choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John P. East, R-N.C., said Friday he was "deeply troubled" with President Reagan's choice of William Bradford Reynolds to head the U.S. Justice Department's civil rights division.

East told Reynolds during a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing that he believes Congress does not have the constitutional power to limit the jurisdiction of the courts.

His view is inconsistent with the administration's, he said.

"I found some things in your testimony that were deeply troublesome on this point," East said.

East and Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., had asked for a second day of hearings, which was held Friday, because they said they were concerned about whether Reynolds was sufficiently conservative.

Besides the court jurisdiction question, East said he was concerned about Reynolds' "vagueness" on such issues as enforcement of affirmative action laws and the Voting Rights Act.

In an interview after the hearing, East said he had not decided whether to support Reynolds' confirmation.

"I want to think it through," he said.

East questioned Reynolds at length on his views about Congressional power to limit the jurisdiction of the federal courts.

The issue is one of East's pets, since it is his committee which is considering legislation that would restrict the courts' jurisdiction on such issues as abortion, school busing and school prayer.

The junior senator believes Article III of the Constitution gives Congress the power to limit court jurisdiction. It is an opinion shared by many conservatives, but legal scholars are divided on the matter.

East said the November election provided a political mandate to curb the powers of the courts and that he was concerned that high-level appointees, such as Reynolds, might frustrate such a change.

"I think we are being double-teamed," East said. "The judiciary hits us on one side with judicial legislation of the rankest kind. Then you go over to the executive branch and they say, 'Oh, no, you don't have those powers.'"

"Increasingly, I am beginning to feel ... we are being conned. In the state of North Carolina, people are plum flat weary of it," he added.

Thousands Die In Big China Flood

PEKING (UPI) — China's worst flood in a century has killed more than 3,000 people and injured some 50,000 more as the swollen Yangtze River surged relentlessly towards the nation's largest dam, officials said Saturday.

A virtual army of 200,000 workers toiled around-the-clock to fortify the Gezhouba dam against the onrushing floodwaters of the 3,430-mile Yangtze, China's longest.

The Water Conservancy Ministry said that as of Saturday morning, the floodwaters were raging along the Yangtze at a rate of 111,000 cubic yards per second.

Officials said they expect the floodwaters to hit the unfinished dam in Sichuan province on Sunday. It is the only thing standing between the rain-swollen river and the fertile, heavily populated central plains of China.

The Sichuan Meteorological Bureau said more rain was forecast for the weekend, aggravating the disaster that wreaked havoc on nearly two-thirds of the southwestern province.

Central government officials in Peking tried to play down the scope of the disaster in Sichuan province, saying, "it's not that serious" and, "the situation is improving."

But reports from the province contradicted the official accounts.

Reached by telephone from Peking, officials in the Sichuan's provincial capital of Chengdu said more than 3,000 people have been killed and between 40,000 and 50,000 injured in six days of flooding.

The city of Chongqing, China's wartime capital, was flooded by waters that displaced 20,000 of its 4 million residents.

Another Sichuan official said 400,000 houses were destroyed and 186,760 acres of crops — mainly rice — inundated.

But an even greater disaster could come Sunday when the raging floodwaters roar through the famous Yangtze gorges and hit the Gezhouba dam.

The official People's Daily newspaper said 170,000 workers, joined by a 30,000-man army division, were working feverishly to fortify the dam, built at a cost of $2.2 billion and still not finished.

All the floodgates have been opened and the embankments further down the river strengthened, it said.

Skelton

Turns 68

SPARKS, Nev. (UPI) — Red Skelton, who bills himself as "one of America's clowns," turned 68 Saturday but, at an age when many have retired, he works as hard as ever.

Since he ran away as a freckle-faced kid to join the circus, his special brand of buffoonery has brought laughter via radio and television as well as personal appearances at night clubs, conventions, state fairs and concerts.

He also is an accomplished artist whose paintings of clowns are in strong demand. He has composed 64 works, including the music for his stage shows, and recorded 24 albums. His writing includes the script of a movie being readied for cable TV.

That takes a lot of time. "I've got plenty of time. The trick is to apply it," he told well-wishers between shows at the Nugget Casino.

Asked how he keeps going at such a pace, he quipped, "I don't do it very well anymore. I hurt all the time. People don't know I'm working under the influence of money."

Does he plan to retire? "Nope, there's no reason to. Why should you work all your life to perfect something and then cut it off? Man was meant to be active. Tell somebody he's old and he'll get old."

A teenage autograph seeker who came backstage after the show bolstered his contention his style of comedy spans the generations.

"I had never seen you before, but I laughed so hard I hurt all over," she said.

Skelton left television 10 years ago but — scotching rumors from "some idiot writers" he was going to burn the tapes — he has a deal cooking to air the reruns beginning this fall.

'Panther' Scratches Out 5-Stroke Lead At Open

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Bill Rogers said his huge, 5-stroke lead going into Sunday's final round of the 110th British Open Golf championship was comforting, but not comfortable.

"I'm happy with my score, and I'm happy to be leading," said the man sometimes called "The Panther" after he'd put an impressive amount of distance between himself and the rest of the field in Saturday's third round.

"But five shots, eight shots, there's no such thing as a comfortable lead in a major championship," continued Rogers, runner-up in the recent U.S. Open.

"Match two birdies and two bogeys and that's four shots and that can happen in a hurry," Rogers said. "Those guys are going to be coming after me."

"I've got to be aggressive, continue to be aggressive. I've got to come back and play good tomorrow," he said, and, without a change of expression, he added:

"And I fully intend to, by the way. I can promise you one thing. There will be no protection tomorrow. I will not be trying to protect anything."

Rogers avoided a general American collapse in the third round with a 3-under-par 67. He used his deadly accuracy and only one bogey in the last two days to put together a 54-hole total of 205, 5 under par for three trips over the 6,829-yard Royal St. George's Golf Club links.

But he was one of the few Americans able to survive the gusty breezes that raked the course that is situated in a sandspit jutting into the English Channel.

Defending champion Tom Watson all but took himself out of it with a scrambling 75.

"Distraught Ben Crenshaw, a single stroke back when the day's play started, spent most of a nightmare afternoon thrashing around in the deep, deep rough and finished with a 76."

And Jack Nicklaus, though he managed a 71, failed to get the superior effort he needed to sustain any dim hopes he may have had of acquiring a fourth title in this, the most ancient of all the world's golf tournaments.

He was at 220, 10 strokes over par and 15 behind Rogers.

He had opened the tournament with the worst round of his spectacular career, an 83, then rebounded with a 66. "I said Friday I'd need to shoot two more 66s to have any chance," Nicklaus observed. "Now, after a 71, I guess I'll have to shoot 61."

Nicklaus, the holder of 17 major professional titles, then paused for a moment, grinned wryly and added: "And even that might not be enough."

backing off, laconic Mark James of England and young Bernhard Langer of West Germany moved into second place at even-par 210.

James, 27, a former British Ryder Cup player who was fined for misbehavior in the 1979 matches in West Virginia, had a solid, no-bogey, 2-under-par 68. "That's about as well as I've ever played," said James, winner of four European tour events in a seven-year career.

Langer, 23, son of a Munich bricklayer and winner of only one European title, spiced a round of par 70 with an eagle-3 on the 14th hole.

Langer and James were the only men in the field within 8 shots of Rogers and, realistically, the only ones with any hope of overtaking him.

Three shots behind them were Ray Floyd, winner of three U.S. titles this season, and Isao Aoki of Japan, tied at 213. The two veterans each shot a third-round 69.

At 214 were Lee Trevino, twice a winner of this title, and three British players — Nick Job (75), Sam Torrance (73) and Nick Faldo (69).

Crenshaw, who so longingly seeks a major title and has been so close so often, was another shot back at 215. U.S. Open champ David Graham of Australia was another stroke off the pace after a 74.

And Watson, the current Masters champ and outstanding player in the game for the past five seasons, was 12 strokes behind Rogers at 217 after a double bogey-bogey finish.

Some other American scores were Bruce Lietzke's 71-216, Jerry Pate's 69-215, Ron Streck's 72-220, Arnold Palmer's 73-219 and Hubert Green's 74-221.

Rogers was dubbed "Buck" by his fellow pros on the American tour but, due to his lean build and constant, restless pacing, was called "The Panther" by his college roommate, Lietzke.

And "The Panther" stalked away from the field this day. It is now his tournament to win or lose in Sunday's final round.

"They'll be coming at me," he said. "But I don't intend to back off. They'll have to come and get me."

There was no catching him Saturday. Crenshaw and Job were only a stroke back when play started. Both took themselves out of it quickly.

Crenshaw missed the green with an 8-iron and bogeyed the first hole. He went from a fairway bunker to deep, deep rough, double-bogeyed the fourth and ceased to be a factor. Job fell away on the seventh, a par 5, where he hacked away through the weeds and hay to a double-bogey 7.

He saved par with a tricky 5-footer after one of his rare ventures into the rough on the fourth. And he began to move on the next hole, ripping a 3-iron to within 2 feet of the wind-whipped flag.

The big boost came on the eighth, where he dropped a 40-foot putt "that I was just trying to get close. It went up and over a hogback, ran along a slope and fell in," he said.

Rogers, who scored the second victory of his American career earlier this year in the Heritage Classic, took his only bogey in two days when he missed the green on the 10th. But he got the shot back with a 2-putt for birdie-4 on the 14th.

Fulghum Lifts S. Hill Past Pitt County, 6-2

SNOW HILL — Jabo Fulghum drove in three runs to help lift Snow Hill past Pitt County, 6-2, Saturday night in the second game of the American Legion Area I East championship playoffs.

Snow Hill, seeded third in the playoffs, now leads the best-of-three series, 2-0. Pitt County, which won the regular season title, will try to escape a series sweep today when Post 39 plays host to Snow Hill at 7:30 at Guy Smith Stadium.

If necessary, a fourth game will be played Monday night (8 p.m.) in Snow Hill and a fifth game at Harrington Field Tuesday night (8 p.m.).

Pitt County threatened early, getting six of its 10 hits in the first four innings. But Snow Hill starter Kevin Korpi, who struck out eight and walked two, managed to hold Post 39 scoreless until the fourth.

By then, Snow Hill led 3-0. After two scoreless innings, Snow Hill jumped out to a three-run lead in the third. With one gone, Bobby Avery singled and scored on Greg Hardison's double.

Hardison then went to third on a passed ball by Tyrone Gay and scored on David Shirley's single. Shirley later scored on Fulghum's double.

Pitt County cut the lead to 3-1 in the fourth when Roger Williams and Sammy Hodges singled and moved up a base on a ground out. Williams scored moments later on Billy Kittrell's sacrifice fly.

Snow Hill added two more runs to its total in the fifth. Gary Ream reached on an error, Hardison walked and Shirley sacrificed them both up a base. Fulghum then doubled and Snow Hill led, 5-1.

It went to 6-1 one inning later when Wade Corbett scored on an infield hit by Shirley and an error. It stayed that way until the ninth when Pitt County scored once and then had runners on first and second with no outs only to be shut down by Korpi.

Emmett Walsh tripled to open the inning and scored on Williams' single. Hodges then singled but Korpi struck out Marshall Rand and Kittrell and got Doug McRoy to fly out to right to end the threat and the game.

"The bounces just seem to be going out way," Snow Hill coach James Fulghum said. "They got some hits early but Korpi settled down after that. We just got some good pitching and timely hitting."

Snow Hill was led by Shirley, who was two for three, and Fulghum, who was two for four. Williams was three for four for Pitt County while Walsh and Hodges were both two for four. Kittrell had a double for Pitt County.

Pirates Down UNC-W In 10th

Todd Hendley reached on an error to score Jay Carraway with the winning run in the 10th inning last night to give East Carolina a 2-1 victory over UNC-Wilmington at Harrington Field.

Carraway walked to open the inning, went to second on Robert Wells' sacrifice bunt and to third on Mike Sorrell's single. Carraway then scored on an error to give the Pirates the victory.

ECU is now 16-14 in the North State Summer Baseball League. UNC-W drops to 16-16.

UNC-W jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning against ECU starter Rick Ramey but did not score again. With one gone, Paul Murr doubled, went to third on a ground out and scored on Clyde Holley's ground out to short.

After leaving men on second and third in the first, ECU finally managed to tie the game in the fourth. Todd Evans singled, went to second on an error and later scored on Charlie Smith's ground out.

From there, it turned into a pitcher's battle. Mike Antle set down eight straight Pirates at one point while Ramey, who won his seventh game in nine outings, set down seven straight.

UNC-W's best opportunity against Ramey after the first came in the ninth when with one out Johnny Slaughter doubled and went to third on a ground out. But Tommy Phillips grounded out to Hendley at third to end the inning. One inning later, the Pirates had won. ECU travels to N.C. State Monday.

Baseball Talks To Resume Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's capital hasn't had baseball since 1971 — but the nation's baseball fans will be focusing their attention here Monday as talks aimed at ending the prolonged major league strike resume.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, and Ray Grebey, head of the owners' Player Relations Committee and management's chief negotiator, have agreed "in principle," according to Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, to shift the stalemate and sometimes bitter talks from New York.

One reason for the move, says federal mediator Kenneth Moffett, is his hope that by escaping the watchful eyes of the nation's press, the bargaining might be more productive.

"Washington would provide a better atmosphere for the talks," said Moffett. "Several things can happen in Washington. For one thing, we can get away from this press business. We've been negotiating in a fishbowl." There was a suggestion by Donovan that a news blackout might be imposed when the talks resume at 2 p.m. EDT in Moffett's office.

With the exception of the occasional rumblings by Congress over the possible lifting of the sport's exemption from antitrust legislation, this is baseball's biggest moment here since the days of the Washington Senators.

The original Senators franchise was shifted in the American League's 1961 expansion to Minnesota and was renamed the Twins. That year, Washington got a new team of Senators, which lasted until the end of the 1971 season, when the franchise became the Texas Rangers.

In the most recent developments at the bargaining table, the owners said the players would receive no credit for time lost during the strike. Miller and the union said that was unacceptable, then they said they would accept binding arbitration to end the walkout, a proposal turned down by the owners.

The agreement to move the talks followed Friday's session with Donovan, who met with Miller and Grebey and said later: "I read in both gentlemen the seriousness of the task before them."

Neither Miller nor Grebey was available Saturday for comment.

But Jon Matlack, the Texas Rangers' player representative, said he didn't think moving the talks to Washington would do any good.

"I don't want to step on the Secretary of Labor, but the point where we are now, it doesn't matter what he (Donovan) says. And moving the talks to Washington would serve no purpose at all, either," he said.

Donovan said his goal is to use his office "as a vehicle to get the voice of the American people" into the talks. Before the meeting, the labor secretary had called the strike "a kick in the teeth to the American people."

Spinks Captures Light HWT Title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Several days before he won the World Boxing Association's light heavyweight title Saturday, Michael Spinks was asked if he thought he would knock out Eddie Mustafa Muhammad.

"I'm not a good predictor," he said. "It may go the distance and it may not."

Spinks remained true to his prediction and said that even during the bout there was "no little voice" telling him when it would be over.

Spinks scored a unanimous decision over Muhammad to take the title in only his 17th professional fight.

The new champion said he had felt he was leading but "I just tried to keep myself under control."

"He shook me up in the early rounds. But I pulled myself up and went on to win it," Spinks said.

Spinks said he knew he had hurt Muhammad seriously when he put him down with a stinging left-left-right combination in the 12th round.

"The right hand hurt him bad," Spinks said. "I saw it in his face. I was surprised that he was that strong."

Muhammad, bitter about the loss, said that Spinks' gold medal earned in the 1976 Olympics may have had something to do with the victory.

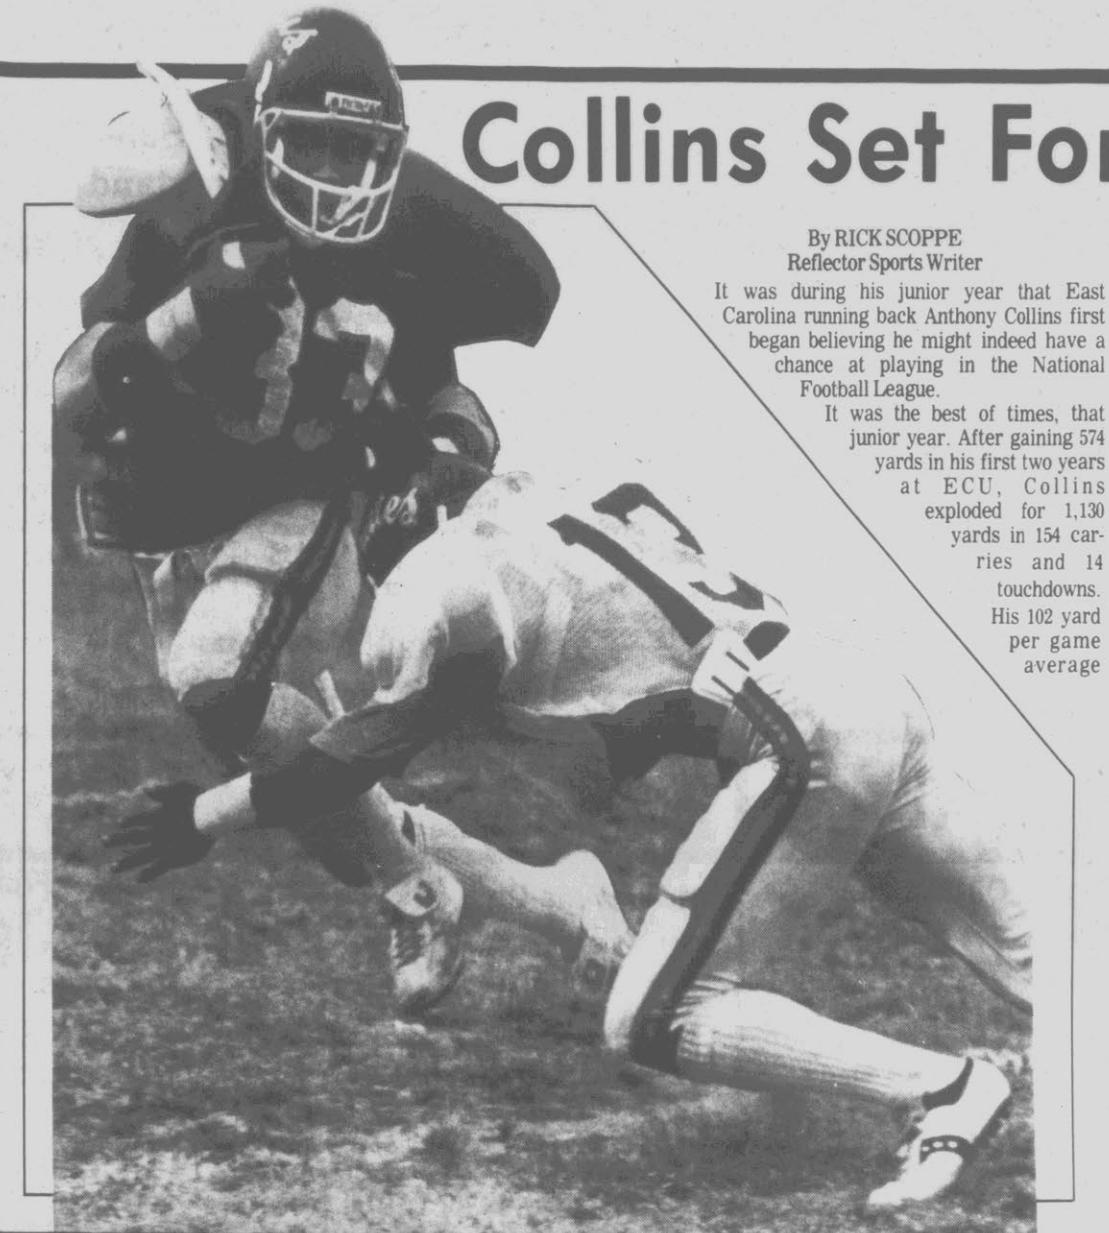

"You can't beat an Olympic hero in America," Muhammad said.

He said, however, that by going the distance with one eye battered shut, "I showed all of you how much heart I've got."

Spinks, relying almost exclusively on his left hand, pummeled Muhammad

Collins Set For NFL Challenge

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

It was during his junior year that East Carolina running back Anthony Collins first began believing he might indeed have a chance at playing in the National Football League.

It was the best of times, that junior year. After gaining 574 yards in his first two years at ECU, Collins exploded for 1,130 yards in 154 carries and 14 touchdowns. His 102 yard per game average ranked him 16th in the nation and his 7.3 yard per carry average was second best among the top 16. When not running the ball in the ECU wishbone, Collins was returning 21 kickoffs for 473 yards.

Despite an off senior year in which he played hurt much of the season and gained only 503 yards, Collins remained convinced the ability he displayed a year earlier would earn him a shot at the NFL.

That belief becomes a reality and will be put to the test Monday at 9 a.m. when he joins the New England Patriots at their preseason training camp at Bryant College in Rhode Island.

Collins was picked in the second round of the NFL draft by New England, but it was not until late Thursday afternoon, following seven hours of bargaining with team officials in Foxboro, that Collins signed a series of one-year contracts with New England.

Terms of the contract, which includes a number of incentive clauses, were not disclosed but it is believed that it consists of four one-year deals. Under the terms of the contract, Collins' agent — Ken Hutcherson — said it is illegal to disclose the amount or the length of the contract.

When Collins finally signed with New England Thursday, it ended over two months of proposals and counter-proposals, most of which have come in the last two weeks.

After Collins was drafted on April 28, Hutcherson sent New England an initial contract offer. It was not until two weeks ago that the Patriots answered. Last Friday Hutcherson sent off a counter-proposal.

"At that point, I didn't get a contract back and I did not think Anthony would be going to camp," Hutcherson said. "Then we went up there (Thursday) and it took us six hours and 45 minutes for working out the signing bonus and about 15 minutes for the rest of the contract."

"About 1:30 (Thursday) I told them we needed a break and Anthony and I went to lunch. We almost decided to go home without signing. But we came back and submitted another proposal and they liked it. So we signed."

The signing completed, it was on to another problem: Just where will Collins fit in with the Patriots. Consider:

The Patriots, one of the most talented teams in the NFL, had a backfield last year that included Vegus Ferguson (818 yards on 211 carries, sixth best in the American Football Conference) and Don Calhoun (787 yards). Then there is also Andy Johnson, Horace Ivory and Chuck Foreman.

If Collins doesn't immediately break in at running back, how about returning kickoffs, a talent that did not go unnoticed by the Patriots. Here again, however, New England is not lacking. Ivory averaged 27.6 yards per kickoff return, the best in the NFL.

At least during the early part of the preseason, it appears likely that Col-

Gale: Worst Thing Ever Seen

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Idled by the baseball strike, Kansas City Royals pitcher Rich Gale was tending bar at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Kansas City, Mo., Friday night when the hotel's elevated walkways crashed to the dance floor in front him.

Instantly, the 6-foot-7, 225-pound Gale rushed forward to help.

"It was frustrating. Here I am a big, strong, professional athlete and I can't lift anything to help anybody," he said Saturday in a telephone interview from his Kansas City home.

"It was tough to take ... seeing people underneath there," the Littleton, N.H., native said. "I saw some gruesome things."

The extraordinary accident killed more than 100 people and injured more than 140.

The 27-year-old Gale, who has tended bar in the luxurious hotel for two or three weeks, said he was about 40 feet from the dance floor when the sky bridges collapsed and tons of debris and dozens of people plummeted onto the dancers below.

"It was the worst thing

I've ever seen or imagined," he said.

"There were so many people there, about 1,500 or 2,000 people. They had just started the dance contest and had moved some of the people from the lobby."

Many others had just gone up to the walkways above the floor to watch the contest when the uppermost walkway fell 25 to 30 feet onto a lower one.

"It took two, three, four seconds maybe," Gale recalled. "Then there was a loud roar then rushing, hissing and ... human sounds started immediately."

"As I saw it start to fall, I moved from behind the bar with a number of other people, moving away from it," he said.

Then Gale "started right over there and started helping people out of the way so we could get in there and start helping people. God, this is just unbelievable."

The big right-handed pitcher wasn't hurt at the hotel, but he was so shaken when he returned home that he dropped a lemonade container, opening a cut on his left hand that required four or five stitches to close.

Clerc In Pro Net Semis

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Top-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc started slowly but finished with a flourish to post a 7-5, 6-2 victory over Manuel Orantes of Spain Saturday and charge into the semifinals of the U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

Saturday night's quarterfinal match between Eliot Teltscher of Sebring, Fla., and 14th-seeded Ricardo Cano, an Argentine countryman of Clerc, was rained out and rescheduled for Sunday morning. Clerc will play the winner of that match Sunday night.

In Saturday's other quarterfinal matches at the Longwood Cricket Club, unseeded Bernard Fritz of France, who never had survived the third round of a major tournament, kept his Cinderella story alive with a 6-4, 6-1 conquest of 10th-seeded Jose-Luis Damiani of Uruguay. Thirteenth-seeded Hans Gildemeister of Chile also beat Angel Gimenez of Spain, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

Clerc, who lost in the semifinals here last year to eventual champion Eddie Dibbs, had serving troubles early and fell behind 3-1 in the first set. Orantes had two break points in the next game, but Clerc held on to win.

Clerc then broke Orantes' serve in the sixth game and fought off two more break points in the 11th game to grab a 6-5 edge. Orantes served the final game of the set and took a 40-30 lead. But Clerc tied the game and then won when Orantes hit a backhand volley short.

Both players held their serve through the first four games of the second set, but the 32-year-old Orantes, the U.S. Pro champion in 1977 and 1978, was running out of steam. He won just four points in the final four games against his 22-year-old opponent.

"It's very tough for me to play Orantes because his ball doesn't bounce," Clerc said. "He ran so well today that when I would run to the net, he would hit a passing shot so I stayed back more."

Fritz has been the surprise of the tournament. Ranked 12th in France and 220th in the world, he won three qualifying matches last weekend to get a spot in the event, then won four more matches including three in straight sets.

In the second set, Damiani managed just eight points and held serve only in the fourth game.

"I can't believe it. I don't know," the 27-year-old Fritz said when asked why he has played so well. "I think that when I changed my racket I got much more power."

Crenshaw's Open Hopes Bleak After 76

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Ben Crenshaw came sadly off the 18th green Saturday, his hopes of winning the British Open virtually shattered, and said: "That was the worst day's golf of my life."

The 28-year-old Texan slumped from one bogey to another and wound up with a 6-over-par 76 on the 6,829-yard Royal St. George's links. It gave him a three-round 215.

Crenshaw began the day one stroke behind Bill Rogers, a fellow Texan, and finished it 10 strokes back. They were paired together.

"Everything went wrong," Crenshaw said. "I hardly hit a good shot in the whole round. I had never played so badly in such conditions. The wind had dropped and it was a perfect day for golf."

"I always choose the best days for my worst rounds."

The 25,000 fans who lined the undulating fairways amid the sand dunes were eager to see a head-to-head battle between the two Texans. But from the very first hole, Crenshaw began losing ground.

He missed a four-foot putt and began the day with a bogey-5. It made him even for the tournament.

While Rogers played regulation par golf, Crenshaw looked unhappy. He saved par on the second and third holes and then got into deep trouble at the 466-yard par-4 fourth.

His second shot landed in a bunker. He blasted out but took 4 to reach the green. Then he took 2 putts and finished with a double-bogey-6.

ing. At the fifth he drove into the rough, got out well and laid his second shot to the green — but missed an eight-foot birdie putt.

He missed another birdie putt of six feet at the long seventh. At the ninth he went off the fairway again and collected another bogey. He reached the turn in 39, 4 over par.

On the back 9, Crenshaw continued slipping down the leader board. His drive went awry again on the 12th and he had another bogey.

At the 14th, Crenshaw shot his first birdie of the day. He reached the green of the 508-yard hole in 2, 35 feet short, and got down in two putts.

But on the next hole he bogeyed again.

Pitt Co. District Champ

LITTLEFIELD — Shannon Peede and Steve Mills combined for a one-hitter and two players drove in two runs to lift Pitt County to the District 5 13-year-old Babe Ruth championship with an 8-3 win Saturday night over Greene County.

Pitt County, which did not lose a game in the double-elimination tournament, will now play Wilmington Wednesday at 1 p.m. at Kinston's Granger Stadium in the opening round of the Eastern North Carolina championship.

Peede hurled three and two-thirds innings of no-hit baseball before being replaced in the fourth after walking his eight batter of the game. Mills came on and gave up the only hit of the game, a one-out single in the sixth by Ken Gray.

Greene County jumped out to a 1-0 lead but Pitt County tied the game with a run in the second. Pitt County then took the lead for good with a run in the third and two in the fourth.

In the third, Mills walked, stole second and third and scored on Randy Mills' single. In the fourth, Ricky Farrow singled, went to second on a ground out and scored on Peede's single. Peede later scored on Steve Mills' single to give Pitt County a 4-1 lead.

Greene County cut the deficit to one with two runs in the bottom of the fourth but could get no closer. Pitt County stretched its lead to four with three runs in the sixth before scoring its final in the seventh.

Steve Mills had two hits for Pitt County, including a double.

Trio After Brown RB Slot

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Three players with a history of accomplishment are vying for the No. 1 running back spot for the Cleveland Browns this season.

But Coach Sam Rutigliano has a cautious favorite.

"If Greg Pruitt can perform as well as he did before his injury, he would have a great opportunity to be our No. 1 running back," the Browns' mentor said. "But that remains to be seen. If I had to make the decision now, it would be Greg Pruitt."

Pruitt, coming off a knee injury that often caused him pain last season, will compete with second-year man Charles White, a 1980 No. 1 draft pick and former Heisman Trophy winner from USC, and Terry Miller, a veteran who came to the Browns in the off-season.

"If quarterback Brian Sipe can have more reliance on a good running game, it will help our passing attack," Rutigliano said. "It will take some pressure off him."

"We will give all three players the opportunity to play in preseason games. The decision as to who will start will be determined by their performances, not by us."

Pruitt, who gained more than 1,000 yards in three straight NFL seasons, split time at running back last year with White. Miller gained 1,000 yards in his rookie season with Buffalo but played sparingly the past two seasons. Backup running backs are veterans Calvin Hill and Dino Hall.

In offense, Rutigliano said he plans to use the three-four alignment most of the time, utilizing three linemen and four linebackers. But if veteran tackle Jerry Sherk successfully returns from two years of knee problems, Rutigliano said the four-man line would see more use.

Another interesting man to watch will be rookie kicker-punter Steve Cox from the University of Arkansas. Cox, a fifth-round draft choice is expected to be the Browns' No. 1 punter after the off-season trade of veteran Johnny Evans.

Rutigliano also indicated Cox could replace veteran Don Cockroft on kickoffs and field goal attempts.

Cockroft experienced one of his worst seasons in field goal accuracy last year and underwent knee surgery in the off-season.

"Cox could be one of the few guys who can do it all," Rutigliano said. "Cockroft doesn't have it made."

Forty-one rookies and 19 veterans reported to camp Friday. Two-a-day workouts were to begin Sunday with physicals and administrative work out of the way. The remainder of the veterans report Friday.

'Bear' Bored With Hoopla Over Chase Of Record

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Bear Bryant says all the hoopla over his chase of Amos Alonzo Stagg's record of 314 career victories "bores the hell out of me."

The gravel-voiced Bryant, practically a god in these parts, is only nine victories away from a record once considered untouchable.

But just as Hank Aaron shattered Babe Ruth's all-time home run standard, Bryant is expected to eclipse Stagg's record this season. It will take nine victories to do it, but less than nine wins is a pretty subpar year for the Bear and his Alabama Crimson Tide.

Bryant found himself and his red-clad football machine overshadowed last year by neighboring Vince Dooley and his Georgia Bulldogs. Herschel Walker took most of the Southern football ink, but even the rising sophomore won't be able to compete with Bear's quest for the record book.

It took Stagg 57 years to win 314 games. Bryant is knocking on his door in his 37th season. To be fair, however, it must be noted that Stagg's teams didn't get a chance to play 12 games a year.

The 67-year-old coaching legend in the houndstooth hat is characteristically low-key about what he almost surely will accomplish.

"Everybody has been talking about this record except me," Bryant growled during an interview in his moment-to-moment Tuscaloosa office. "I'm tired of talking about it. The more that people talk about it, the more it helps the other teams beat us."

Talk hasn't helped Bryant's opponents much in the past. During his career at Maryland, Kentucky, Texas A&M and Alabama, the Bear has compiled an amazing 306-79-15 record.

"All this talk about Bryant closing in on this record or that record bores the hell out of me," said the Bear. "We aren't playing to set records. We are just playing to win games. That's what matters."

"Players go out there and win the games, not coaches," he added. "They're not out there playing for me, Paul Bryant. They play for their parents, their sweethearts and the University of Alabama."

Even though Bryant won't discuss the record that could come as early as Oct. 31 against Mississippi State, he did reflect on the coach his name might replace as the winningest of all time.

"Coach Stagg is the Babe Ruth of college football," he said. "To me, he is on a pedestal. You can't compare what he did years ago with football of today." Things were different when Stagg trotted his University of the Pacific team onto the gridiron, said Bryant. "In those days, he didn't have a large staff. I've heard his wife scouted games for him and both of them mended uniforms," he said. "I believe whatever records he had shouldn't be considered broken. It was a completely different game back then."

Bryant, one of 11 children raised on a small Arkansas farm, played in the first football game he ever saw. Legend has it that he talked a local shoemaker into putting cleats on his only pair of high-top black shoes.

He earned his distinctive nickname in 1931 at age 12 when he wrestled a carnival bear. The bruin won.

Bryant's colorful career faced a crisis in 1969 and 1970. He lost 10 games during those two years, an unpardonable sin by Alabama standards. There was even some talk about replacing Bryant, but the craggy-faced coach was able to change with the times and regain his winning formula.

"I spent too much time in my (coaching) tower," Bryant recalled. "I had become too dependant on my assistants and too many of my better assistants had been lured away by head coaching jobs. I decided it was time for me to return to the field."

It wasn't the only decision he made. During the period, Alabama began recruiting black athletes. In 1971, Bryant went 11-0.

Over the years, Bryant said the game hasn't changed as much as the young men who play it.

"There have been some changes in offense and defense trends over the years, but not all that much has changed," he said. "What it takes to win hasn't changed."

"I do think, percentage-wise, that there are fewer players that have the burning desire to play football. I'm not critical of the players who don't. I think, possibly because of television, that they are more knowledgeable and have more interest."

Bryant's age has been the subject of much debate, in, of all places, the Alabama Legislature. Last spring state lawmakers overwhelmingly approved a bill earmarked for Bryant allowing him to keep his job past the mandatory retirement age of 70.

The measure was signed into law by Gov. Fob James, a star halfback for cross-state rival Auburn in the 1950s.

But the law drew the wrath of the Alabama Teacher Retirement Systems Board, which says it will fight the measure in court.

Tampa's Bell Wants Trade

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Running back Ricky Bell, the No. 1 college draft pick in the nation in 1977, ahead even of the highly touted Tony Dorsett, says he's unhappy with criticism by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers management and wants to be traded.

"I think when you put total efforts into it and are totally criticized, not by the fans, but by the organization itself, you are not achieving anything," Bell said from his home in Los Angeles. "If I can't contribute to the team, the best way to contribute is not to be a part of it."

Bell said he preferred a move to the West Coast, to be nearer home. He was just married last year and his wife needs only two hours to get her college degree.

"They said they tried to trade me and felt they couldn't get what I was worth," Bell said. "I don't know what they asked. You can ask so much nobody will touch it."

Bell played at the University of Southern California under Coach John McKay, now Bucs coach. McKay repeatedly has been criticized for drafting Bell over Dorsett, a Dallas Cowboys' star runner.

McKay said he took Bell because he was bigger and stronger and seemed, he said, better suited to a National Football League expansion club.

Bell struggled behind the young offensive line of the Bucs in 1977 and 1978, but in 1979 gained 1,263 yards in 283 carries, caught 25 passes for 248 yards and scored 11 touchdowns as Tampa claimed the Central Division championship.

Bell, not required to report to camp until next week, said he will be here.

McKay acknowledges that the Bucs tried to grant Bell his wish, but said the club was unable to "get what we felt Ricky is worth. And what we asked was not exorbitant."

Added McKay: "If I had my druthers I'd like to see Ricky Bell a Buccaneer and playing once more as he did in 1979."

Last year, the Bucs slipped to a 5-10-1 record and Bell's yardage slipped to 599 rushing, 292 passing. He played both halfback and fullback because of team injuries.

McKay said Bell would only have to play halfback this year — the position Bell likes.

And McKay says he doesn't think Bell has been strongly criticized.

Patient Caponi Up By 2

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — I've been on the tour longer than them, and I know you do nothing but hurt your game if you let things bother you. My caddy calmed me down.

"Today I played very well, tee to green, and my putting was the best it has been in this tournament. Tomorrow I'm just going to play one hole at a time and not worry about anybody else."

Kathy Martin, who has not won a title in 10 years on the tour, shot a course record 66 at the Meadow Brook Club to move into a tie with Stanger for second at 211.

The 35-year-old Martin had posted a 68 on Friday, lowest score of the second round, after opening with a 77.

Stanger and Brownlee were in a three-way tie with Caponi at the start of Saturday's play at 140. However, the 25-year-old Stanger had three straight bogeys — 12th, 13th and 14th holes — en route to a 71, to fall behind Caponi, who has 22 titles to her credit in 17 years as a pro.

The 33-year-old Brownlee fell out of the lead with a 2-over 74 as she bogeyed the second and fifth hole and fell into fourth place with a 214.

Regalado Drives To Quad Cities Lead

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Victor Regalado, the 1978 Quad Cities Open champion and the 54-hole leader Saturday, can explain all the low scores in this year's $200,000 golf tournament.

Almost two-thirds of the field, 56 players, broke par after three rounds, led by Regalado, whose 11-under-par 199 total is vivid evidence the Mexican has shaken his puzzling slump.

In 1978, the greens were hard. They're soft this year. That's the reason for so many low scores."

Regalado, 33, swept by faltering Rod Curl with a 4-under-par 66 that gave him a 2-shot lead heading into Sunday's final round for the $35,000 first prize.

"I've got to play well again tomorrow. Anyone can win. It's going to be close," said Regalado, playing so poorly that he quit the American Tour for six weeks.

Curl, who led after both of the first two rounds with 66, admitted that he was tense. He settled for a 1-over-par 73 that left him at 201 and tied for second.

"The pressure of the first two days gets to you after a while. I didn't play cautious today. I tried to go for it," he said. "I can't look back on today. I'll just try to shoot as low as I can tomorrow. I feel like I'll have to shoot 64 or 65 to win," said Curl.

Curl is tied for second with Mark McCumber, a non-winner in his fourth season; former tennis professional Frank Conner and Canadian Dan Halderson.

Halderson, avoiding a bogey for the second straight round, shot 66.

McCumber, just regaining his competitive edge after a broken ankle, had 67.

Conner sank a five-foot birdie putt on the 18th for a 67, too, to gain a share of the runner-up spot.

Eight players, including defending champion Scott Hoch, were bunched within three shots of the lead.

After shooting a 65, Hoch predicted, "Any of the guys who are within five shots have a chance to win. You can do it on this course."

Also with Hoch at 8-under-par 202 were nonwinner Sammy Rachels and Dan Pohl, the longest hitter on the PGA Tour for the last two years.

Pohl fashioned a 64, Rachels 67 and Conner 68.

Bob Gilder equaled the course record with a 63 and moved into contention at 203, 7 under. Bobby Clampett, Woody Blackburn, Allen Miller and Bruce Fleisher also were at that figure.

Regalado earned a share of the lead with Curl when both birdied the 514-yard, par-5 15th hole to go to 10 under.

However, the Mexican enjoyed a two-shot swing on the next hole when he birdied and Curl bogeyed for the second time in six holes.

Regalado went home to Tijuana at the end of May and did not return until the Greater Milwaukee Open last week, where he missed the cut.

Wysocki, Bryant Head All-Star Team

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Maryland senior Charlie Wysocki and North Carolina junior Kelvin Bryant — both 1,000-yard gainers — head up the 1981 All-Atlantic Coast Conference pre-season football team.

Wysocki, the ACC's leading rusher the past two seasons, was elected by the eight conference head coaches for the second consecutive year.

Bryant, who gained 1,039 yards and scored 12 touchdowns, was chosen for the other running back spot.

North Carolina and North Carolina State each placed a conference-leading five players on the squad. The Tar Heels, last season's conference champ, placed three men on the 13-player offensive unit and two on defense while the Wolfpack landed two on offense and three on defense.

Mills, Plyler In Carolinas Finals

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Both winners in the semifinals Saturday in the Carolinas Amateur golf tournament never led until the time it counted most — at the end.

That's when Nolan Mills of Charlotte, three down as late as the 14th hole, stunned medalist Eric Lawhon in 19 holes, and Bill Plyler won the 17th and 18th holes for a 1-up decision over Mike Carlisle at Charlotte Country Club.

Mills faces Monroe's Plyler in Sunday's finals, over 36 holes over the same course where Plyler edged Mills 3 and 2 in 1978 for the North Carolina Junior title.

Mudd Wins Championship

HOUSTON (AP) — Kentuckian Jodie Mudd won his second straight U.S. Public Links Golf championship at Bear Creek Golf Course Saturday, defeating University of Houston-bound Billy Tuten over 34 holes, 3 and 2 in the 36-hole final.

The two were survivors from a 159-player field that started the 56th national championship Monday.

Mudd, a senior at Georgia Southern and an all-America collegiate golfer, won the 1980 championship at Lake Tahoe, Nev. He is the first repeater since R.H. Sikes captured titles in 1961 and 1962.

Watts To Play For Rough Riders

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former University of Oklahoma quarterback J.C. Watts has reversed field for the second time in six weeks and announced his decision to play for the Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League.

On June 1, Watts signed a pair of one-year contracts to play for the Rough Riders. But he abruptly called off the deal after one day of training camp, saying his "heart just wasn't in it," and took a job with King Energy Corp. of Oklahoma City.

He said Friday the company has given him a leave of absence to pursue his football interests.

Sherman Wins 145-Lb. Title

BOONE — Milt Sherman won the 145 championship and Paul Osman and Chris Giles finished second Saturday in the Appalachian State Wrestling Open Tournament.

The trio helped lead the Greenville Wrestling Club to second place in the four-team tournament. ASU won and Clemson was third. No team scores were kept. There was also an open division and more than 100 wrestlers took part in the tournament.

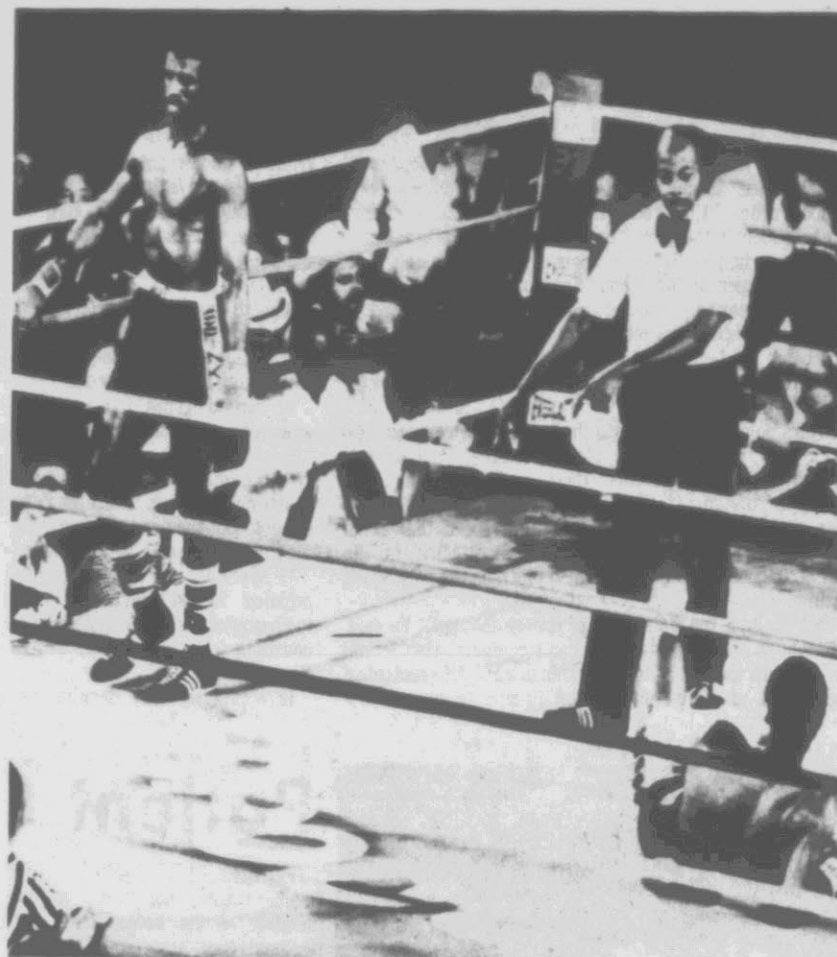

Sherman, wrestling coach at D.H. Conley, decided on Clemson's Jody Taylor, 12-9, and ASU's Eric Aincough, 8-3, to win the title.

Osman, wrestling at 155, decision ASU's M. Carpenter, 13-3, before losing in the finals to ASU's Ike Anderson, 4-3.

Giles decision ASU's Mark Freccke, 6-4, before dropping a 4-0 decision in the 165 pound finals to ASU's Dale Oliver.

Anderson was named the tournament's most outstanding wrestler.

Ollie Matson, an all-time great in National Football League competition, won a bronze medal in the 400 meters in the 1952 Summer Olympics in Helsinki.

U.S. Clinches Wightman Cup

CHICAGO (AP) — The United States doubles team of Andrea Jaeger and Pam Shriver defeated Great Britain's Anne Hobbs and Jo Durie 6-1, 6-3 Saturday night as the Americans won their fourth straight match and clinched the 53rd Wightman Cup series.

Earlier, Chris Evert-Lloyd overpowered Virginia Wade 6-1, 6-3. It was Lloyd's 19th consecutive victory in Wightman Cup play and marked her tenth straight win over Wade.

The U.S. doubles team got its first break in the fourth game of the opening set against Durie and widened the edge to 5-1 by breaking Hobbs in the Britons' next service when Jaeger drove a volley between the two for game point.

The 16-year-old Jaeger, who is ranked third in the world, then closed out the first set on her service, fighting back to gain three deuce points and winning set point by handcuffing Hobbs with a sharp forehand volley at the net.

The pairs then exchanged love service games to open the second set. They continued trading service until the seventh game, when two errant volleys by Durie and a double fault by Hobbs allowed the Americans to break through for a 4-3 lead.

Jaeger then held service to push the set to 5-3 and the U.S. team closed out the set on its second match point when Durie hit a forehand over the baseline.

Lloyd, the top-ranked woman tennis player in the world, hit winner from all over the court. She passed Wade with an array of shots from the baseline and came in when her 25th-ranked opponent chose to float the ball, angling a handful of volleys from both sides for winners.

Wade, who was dissatisfied with some calls and animate through much of the match, jumped up in the air to help the net-cord forehand that gave her the only service game she held in the first set. However, she managed just 12 points before going down to defeat in 27 minutes.

Lloyd finished the opening set by outdueling Wade at the net, gaining set point with a forehand drive that hit the confused Briton in the side.

Lloyd took four consecutive points in the fourth game of the second set looking for a break, but Wade fought back and delivered an ace to hold serve at 2-2.

But Lloyd found her break as Wade's third and fourth double faults of the match opened the door on her next service game and the American served out from the break at 4-2 to close the set and the match at 6-3.

World Games Set To Begin

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — The World University Games, the biggest international sports meet since last year's Olympics in Moscow, opens Sunday with nearly 5,000 athletes from colleges and universities in 80 countries taking part.

For many of the Americans, West Germans and others who boycotted the Moscow Games, it's a first chance to go against the best of the Soviet bloc.

"There's a lot of excitement around here," said Frank Comfort, one of the U.S. swimming coaches. "We're really looking forward to it."

Kim Linehan, Jill Sterkel and Sue Walsh, three would-be Olympians from 1980, head a U.S. women's swimming team that, according to Comfort, is perhaps, on paper at least, a little stronger than the men's.

They face some stiff competition. Romanian Carmen Bunaciu, this year's fastest backstroke, and Soviets Olga Klevankina and Irina Aksenova head a bevy of challengers from Eastern Europe.

Clay Britt and Kris Kirchner, both of the University of Texas, are potential winners in the backstroke and freestyle sprints, respectively, if they can turn back the likes of Canadians Peter Szmidt and Cam Henning and Soviets Alexandr Kaev and Vladimir Dolgov.

No lineup was available for the East Germans, always strong title contenders.

"We're a little bit in the dark about the Iron Curtain countries," said Comfort.

"We're not sure who they have here. I think the Russians may be holding some of their best people back for upcoming meets."

But he said the Americans, too, may be looking ahead to the national championships in August.

"It would be good for us if they are thinking mostly about the American meet," said West German Coach Gerd Schmidl.

The track and field competition promised a showdown between French pole vaulter Thierry Vigneron and Russian Vladimir Polyakov.

Spinks Wins Title...

Judge Duane Ford scored it 146-138, Lou Tabat had it 144-140, while Judge Chuck Minker had it 145-139 for Spinks.

The Associated Press had it 142-142.

Spinks sent Muhammad to the canvas in the 12th round with a snapping combination of two left hands followed by a thundering right to the jaw. Muhammad lay on one shoulder for the eight-count and as he got up, Spinks drove him to the ropes and threw nearly two dozen punches before Muhammad replied with a single punch.

Muhammad, who won the title from Marvin Johnson in an 11th-round knockout on March 31, 1980, appeared quite confident in the first three rounds which seemed almost as if they were in slow motion. Both fighters took care in selecting their punches and threw slow, deliberate shots.

Muhammad appeared to hurt Spinks in the third round with a bruising right to the jaw just as the bell rang.

In the fourth, however, Spinks made his move, peppering Muhammad with a sharp, snapping series of hooks, intermingled with right hands to the body.

A well-chosen jab in the ninth round closed Muhammad's right eye and Spinks continued to batter the bruised eye with a series of jabs. The eye remained closed for the rest of the fight, forcing Muhammad to nearly cover his face with upraised gloves at times.

Both fighters stood flat-

Williams Strikes Out 18 But Post 39 Loses On Squeeze Bunt

Snow Hill Edges Pitt Co., 6-5, In 14 Innings

By RICK SCOPPE
 Reflector Sports Writer
 Snow Hill coach James Fulghum had it all planned. The first two pitches belonged to Kevin Korpi, the third to Fulghum. The plan not only caught Pitt County completely unaware, but worked to perfection.

To set the scene: Snow Hill and Pitt County were tied 5-5 in the top of the 14th but, with runners at second and third and one out, Snow Hill was threatening.

Enter Korpi. After using up his two strikes, Korpi glanced down at Fulghum in the third base coach's box. Now it was Fulghum's turn. A few key hand movements later, Korpi had the message: suicide squeeze.

Korpi, a left-hander, proceeded to put his coach's message into action, punching a bunt down the first baseline that scored Greg Hardison and helped lift Snow Hill to a 6-5 victory over Pitt County Friday night at Guy Smith Stadium in the opening game of the American Legion Area 1 East championship series.

Snow Hill, seeded third in the tournament, now leads the best of five series, 1-0. The two teams were to have played again last night in Snow Hill before returning to Greenville Sunday for a 7:30 game at Guy Smith.

"I wasn't gonna squeeze until he had two strikes on him," Fulghum said. "I wanted to give him a chance. I didn't want to take the bat out of his hands. I gave him the first two strikes to do his thing and then I took the third strike to do my thing."

When Snow Hill relief pitcher Gary Ream got Mitch Brann to ground out and then struck out Kenny Barnes and Emmett Walsh, the four hour and 11 minute marathon was over. Cleaning up around the dugout afterward, Pitt County coach Pat Smith had little to say.

"We just left too many men on base and couldn't get the bat on the ball when we needed to," Smith said. "They gambled and it paid off. I reckon he's too smart for me. We had our chances and did not take advantage of them. That's baseball."

Oh, did Pitt County have chances. In the 12th, Mitch Brann singled and moved to second on Barnes' sacrifice. Walsh was then intentionally walked to give Pitt County runners at first and second and one out. But Tyrone Gay and Sammy Hodges flew out to end the threat.

Then there was the 13th. Randy Warren lined a single to leftfield and Marshall Rand followed that with a bunt that turned into a single. Runners on first and second and none gone. Surely Pitt County would end it here. Nope.

Billy Kittrell tried to sacrifice the runners up but Ream fielded the bunt and threw to third to force out Warren. It was the second time in the game Snow Hill managed to cut down the lead runner in a similar situation. Douglas then struck out and Brann flew out to end the threat.

Snow Hill, meanwhile, was having troubles of its own. In the 11th, Wade Corbett singled, moved to second on a passed ball and to third on Bobby Avery's sacrifice. But Pitt County starter Roger Williams sandwiched two strike outs around an intentional walk to end the inning.

Three innings later, with Williams having been relieved by Gay, Snow Hill did not let another opportunity waste away.

Hardison walked to open the inning. Shirley then laid down a bunt that Walsh threw into the dirt at first, giving Snow Hill runners at first and second. A double steal put Hardison at third and Shirley at second with no outs.

After Jabo Fulghum popped out, Korpi, Fulghum's teammate at Louisburg College where they both play baseball, came on to drive home Hardison with what proved the winning run.

"I was surprised that with runners at first and second they would try to double steal," Smith said. "But they gambled and it paid off."

An earlier gamble, however, did not pay off and nearly cost Snow Hill the game. Trailing 5-3 going into the ninth, Pitt County rallied for two runs to tie the game — the tying run coming on a pickoff play that failed.

Marshall Rand singled to open the inning and then stole second. Kittrell followed with a single to give Pitt County runners at the corners. Douglas then singled home Rand to cut the deficit to 5-4.

Kittrell was forced at third on a bunt by Brann for the first out of the inning. Then a pickoff play — called on the field, not by Fulghum — brought home the tying run.

With Douglas at second, Ream reeled around and threw wildly into the dirt. When the ball was finally recovered in rightfield, Douglas had scored to tie the game at 5-5.

With fans still filing in, Snow Hill jumped on Pitt County ace Roger Williams for three runs in the first inning.

Williams, who entered the game with a 6-1 record and a 2.59 earned run average, gave up a leadoff single to Hardison. He then struck out Shirley for the first of 18 strike outs but followed that by giving up a single to Fulghum. Korpi then hit the first pitch he saw over the right-centerfield fence for a three-run home run.

For the night, Williams threw 178 pitches in 11 innings of work, striking out 18, walking four and giving up eight hits. It was the most strike outs by a Pitt County pitcher since 1978 when Mike Williams, Roger's older brother, struck out 18 in a nine-inning game against Wayne County.

Pitt County nixed Snow Hill starter Bobby Avery for a run in the second when Walsh, who singled to start the inning, scored on Rand's sacrifice fly.

Both teams then scored single runs in the fifth and seventh. After doubling to leadoff the fifth, Hardison scored on Fulghum's single. Pitt County's run came on a solo home run by Randy Warren.

In the seventh, Hardison, who scored four of his team's six runs, was at it again. He reached base on an error, went simple as that," Smith said. "We had (13) hits and left 13 men on base. I would have liked to win the first one, but we didn't."

"They're a good ballclub, I think they're better than Rocky Mount. They're going to be tough."

Fulghum wouldn't have it planned any other way. Pitt County cut the deficit back to two in the bottom of the inning on Kittrell's solo home run and then tied the game two innings later. Pitt County did not score again, despite having runners on first and second with less than two outs in the 12th and 13th.

A Staff Report
After three tries, Campbell finally clinched the North State League regular season title Friday night in the opening game of a doubleheader with East Carolina. Title in hand, Campbell promptly lost the second game to give the Pirates a split.

Bobby Spicer's two-run homer in the fifth inning broke a 1-1 tie and gave the Camels a 3-1 victory in the opener. In the second game, Jeff Horne walked Charlie Smith with the bases loaded in the eighth to score John Hallow and give the Pirates a 5-4 victory and a split.

Campbell is now 20-9 and lead second-place East Carolina, now 15-14, by five games with two games left. The split give the Camels five victories in eight games this season with ECU.

In the opener, Darin Cloniger hurled a two-hitter while striking out seven — including Smith three times — and walking one en route to his sixth victory in eight decisions. But was not until the fifth, with the score tied at 1-1, that Cloniger finally got a working margin.

Herb Williams singled to open the inning and moved to second on Tom Montgomery's ground out. Spicer then connected on an 0-1 pitch for a two-run home run to give Campbell a 3-1 lead.

Cloniger then set down the Pirates in order in the fifth and seventh. He gave up a leadoff single in the sixth to Robert Wells, the Pirates' second and last hit of the game, but a double play erased Wells.

Both teams scored single runs in the third. With two gone, Spicer walked, stole second and scored on Terry Strickland's single. ECU got that run back in the bottom of the inning when Mike Sorrell hit a solo home run to tie the game at 1-1.

In the second game, a single and three walks in the bottom of the eighth gave the Pirates the win and a split. John Hallow singled to open the inning and moved to second when Jack Curlings walked. Both runners moved up a base on Todd Evans' sacrifice. After Pete Persico was intentionally walked, Smith walked to force hom Hallow with the winning run.

ECU jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the nightcap on singles by Todd Hendley singled, Hallow and Persico.

Campbell scored once in the fourth, when Williams scored on Spicer's sacrifice fly, and then took the lead in the fifth with a three-run outburst. The inning was highlighted by Williams' solo home run and Kelly Hoffman's double.

ECU tied the game in the sixth when Evans singled home Curlings. Two innings later, the Pirates "walked" home the winner.

ECU was to have played UNC-Wilmington Saturday night in the Pirates' final home game of the season. ECU will travel to N.C. State Monday.

Kyle Petty To Run At Talladega

Kyle Petty

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — As the son of a son of a race driver, Kyle Petty says he entertains no illusions about the difficulties of being a third-generation Grand National wheelman.

The 21-year-old son of Richard Petty and grandson of Lee Petty will be one of those jockeying for first place at the Talladega 500 on Aug. 2. That field includes four-time Indianapolis 500 winner A.J. Foyt, as well as his father.

Kyle Petty ran his first Grand National race at Talladega two years ago, finishing a creditable ninth place.

"My tongue was hanging out when that thing was over," he recalled. "Talladega is the easiest place in the world to run, but I didn't know how far 500 miles was."

Petty says he's not making any predictions about the outcome of the 13th annual Talladega 500. The 12 previous events have been won by 12 different men, including some darkhorses.

"We've never run too well at Talladega," Petty said. "With the right breaks, we could win it, of course, but we just haven't been that strong a car at Talladega."

It was in 1979 that Lee Petty's grandson startled the racing world by winning his first competition, the minor league ARCA 200 at Daytona, in a close finish.

But Petty said the victory did not go to his head. "I knew I wasn't going out and win a bunch of races just because I won my first one. If anything, it made me realize that it was harder than it looked."

"You're not a race driver because you make a living out of it."

Richard Petty was the target of some criticism for letting his son start out on the big tracks instead of learning his trade wheeling sportsman racers on half-miles.

Kyle says he doesn't agree. Driving the big layouts and driving the small ones are different games, he says.

"Once you learn how to drive the short tracks you've still got to go out and learn to drive the superspeedways. You don't need to wait five years to get on a big one. If you do, you're five years behind. A lot of good sportsman drivers can go out and win first place on a short track, but put them on a big track and they finish 15th."

Petty says he's learning to curb his impatience in racing.

"When I first started I wanted to race up front, but I couldn't. You have to know when to race and when to lay back, and you've got to learn it by yourself," he said.

Petty had an impressive performance in the recent Firecracker 400 at Daytona Beach. He finished sixth, in the same lap with the leaders. When another driver blew an engine and lost control in front of him, he stayed cool and rode out the crisis.

"We can't give him any more power or he'll be outrunning the old man," Richard Petty jokes.

Kyle Petty says it was inevitable he would drive.

'Skins Trade For Colts' DE

OWINGS MILLS, Md. (AP) — Defensive end Fred Cook has been traded to the Washington Redskins for undisclosed draft choices, the Baltimore Colts announced Saturday.

A club spokesman declined to specify the terms of the contract Cook had negotiated with the Redskins as a free agent. The spokesman also declined to reveal what draft choices the Redskins had given the Colts as compensation for Cook.

Cook, a seven-year veteran of the National Football League, was the Colts' second-round draft choice out of Southern Mississippi in 1974.

The 6-foot-4 defensive end had been one of the Colts' most consistent performers until last year when he was afflicted with injuries.

He has led the Colt defensive line in tackles three times and has 12 career fumble recoveries. He had a team-high 11 sacks in 1979.

Donnell Thompson, a first round draft choice of the Colts, is expected to fill Cook's shoes. Thompson, a 6-5, 257-pound defensive end, was signed to a four-year contract Friday by the Colts.

We can't compound interest on this CD. But you can. 14.480%

The annual yield and rate on Six Month Money Market Certificates is available for $10,000 or more. Term: Six months (26 weeks). Interest paid monthly, quarterly, or at maturity. Federal regulations prohibit the compounding of interest on these certificates. Rate effective from 07/14/81 through 07/20/81.

Here's how: 1) Purchase an NCNB $10,000 Six Month Money Market CD 2) Ask us to automatically deposit your interest every month in an NCNB Regular Savings Account, currently paying 5 1/4%, compounded daily.

So you're earning interest on interest. And you can count on this same interest for a full six months. Unlike Money Market Mutual Funds, your rate won't fluctuate with each day's news.

Dealing with NCNB, you also have the added security of knowing your deposits are backed by the largest banking institution in North Carolina. And every depositor is insured for up to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

So come see us at any of our 175 offices. You'll find that the best place for high interest is right in your neighborhood.

NCNB
Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal. Each depositor insured to $100,000 by FDIC.

Collins Set For NFL...

Collins will have to prove he belongs in the NFL by returning kickoffs.

"I like to return kicks and they told me that's what I'll be doing," Collins said. "They have a lot of talent but I'm not nervous, there's no fear or anything like that. I'm just excited about it."

Only this past season, however, the excitement of playing in the NFL was being balanced by a senior year that included a new coaching staff, a rib injury which Collins said never healed and talk of heading for the sidelines more often than not to protect himself, his ribs and his future.

"A lot of pro scouts came down and watched films and I heard some of them say I was going out of bounds a lot this year," Collins said. "But I couldn't see no purpose in getting another yard when it didn't mean a first down or a touchdown."

"It was difficult for me to move all season. To tell the truth, I hurt most all of the season and it never did really heal. It seemed like every game I'd get a shot on my ribs."

"There were times in my senior year I said, oh, man, what's happening. I had to rearrange in my mind my expectations after the Florida State game (a 63-7 loss)."

It was also a year of transition in the coaching staff. Pat Dye had left for Wyoming, replaced by Ed Emory. Transition years are always tough, particularly so for seniors who have been weaned on one coach for three years only to have to adjust to a new coach and a new system in the final year.

"With the coach before it was like family," Collins said. "I remember on Thursdays we used to have cookies and milk and everybody was real close and tight. I don't think we had that closeness last year."

When the year ended Collins had gained 535 yards rushing — half his total from the previous season. Still, when the four-year totals were tallied, Collins had accumulated 2,207 yards rushing — fourth best in the history of the school — on 367 carries for a 6.1 average.

Asked if he had any doubts about his ability and his chances to play in the NFL after a subpar senior year, Collins said, "After my junior year I stopped thinking on a negative basis."

"I remember when I first came here I think everybody's dream who is in the football business is to play in the NFL, but I didn't start believing I had a chance until my junior year. I started thinking then I might have a little talent."

What saved Collins his senior year, besides his outstanding junior season, was his performance returning kickoffs. He returned 37 kicks for 990 yards and two touchdowns, including a 100 yarder against FSU.

"I think some scouts may have been apprehensive about him, but don't think it hurt him that much," Hutcherson said. "But if he had had a senior year like the junior year he had, there's no telling where he might have ended up being drafted."

As it was, Collins was picked in the second round by the Patriots, the 47th player chosen. "I felt he was going to go high and in fact I told him before the draft he'd be going in the second round," Hutcherson said. "Some teams did shy away from him in the draft, but New England didn't. They said they thought he was the best receiving back in the draft and picked him as the 47th best player in the country."

Come Monday, Collins will be out to begin proving the Patriots made the right choice.

McCutcheon Fails Physical

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Veteran offensive back Lawrence McCutcheon failed his physical because of problems with his left knee, Houston Oilers Coach Ed Biles announced Saturday.

Biles also announced that Bill Jaco, an offensive tackle from Ohio State, would be placed on waivers. He was with the Oilers last summer, but a knee injury forced him to miss much of training camp and he was placed on the injured reserve list.

McCutcheon, a nine-year National Football League veteran, had signed a free agent contract with the Oilers July 11. He left Saturday for Los Angeles, where he was a star with the Rams from 1972 through '77.

Michigan Raceway To Pose Troubles

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) - The big question facing the participants in Sunday's $500,000 Norton Michigan 500 is what driving 500 miles on the high-banks of Michigan International Speedway will do to man and machine?
The inaugural 500-miler on the fast two-mile oval could pose big problems for the 37 starters.
The turns are banked at 18 degrees and even the straightaway in front of the grandstand is a 12-degree slope. Driving on those mountainous turns at speeds in excess of 190 mph puts enormous gravity forces on the driver and the car.
"Fatigue will be a problem," said Tom Sneva, who took the pole position for the race with a fast lap of 201.359 mph. "After the first 250 miles or so, the pace probably will slow considerably."
"I hope we'll be running around 190 (mph) during the race, but the pace will pretty much be dictated by the flow of the race, but how many yellow flags there are."
Sneva is driving a British-built March that never has gone 500 miles. That's his biggest concern.

"We've solved all the problems we've come up against so far, but now we've got to find out if we can go 500 miles," Sneva noted. "But, actually, I wish we were going to be running 1,000 miles."
"Then some of those old codgers would tire out," the 33-year-old veteran added with a laugh.
"But I do expect the race to be fast and competitive. This is a good racetrack for the cars and the drivers because it's so wide."
"You can run two or three cars abreast into the turns, and that makes for better racing for the fans and makes it more fun from the drivers' standpoint."
Track promoter Roger Penske, who also fields a highly successful three-car team on the Indy circuit, is less concerned than some of the drivers about the physical aspects of the race.
"I ran a 500-mile test here in April with Rick Mears and Bill Alsup," Penske said. "They didn't find it any major problem."
"It's like a fella running 10 miles or 15 miles. For the ones who are in condition, it won't be any problem. The key is, if they use their heads, it won't be a sprint race."

"And, as far as the cars are concerned, if an engine is going to run 500 miles at Indianapolis, it'll go 500 miles here. And engine doesn't know where it's running, just how many RPMs it's turning."
The race, which will be televised live on NBC, beginning at 3 p.m. EDT, is expected to attract a full house of about 70,000 persons.
Alongside Sneva on the front row will be three-time Indy winner Johnny Rutherford and 1979 Indy champion Mears.
The second row includes veterans Pancho Carter and Steve Krisloff and four-time Indy winner A.J. Foyt.
Right behind them will be Alsup, Bill Whittington and the other Penske Team driver, Bobby Unser.
Unser said he would feel some justification winning this race after having what was apparently his third Indy 500 victory stripped from him and awarded to Mario Andretti by a post-race ruling. And appeal on that U.S. Auto Club decision still is pending and Andretti had to skip this race.

ROBERSONVILLE — Mont Carter's single in the seventh drove home Rudy Stalls with the go-ahead run to lead the 16-year-old Coastal Plains Southern All-Star team to a 6-3 win over the Northern squad Friday night in the opening game of the District 5 Babe Ruth 16-18-year-old championship series.

The North leads the best-of-three series, 1-0, and will try to capture the title tonight when the two teams return to the diamond at 6 p.m.
 Bill Owens of Greenville Kiwanis was the winning pitcher. He also drove in two runs with two doubles. No one for the North had more than one hit.

North.....0
ROBERSONVILLE — Scott Galloway hurled a four-hitter to lead the 17-18-year-old Coastal Plains Southern All-Star team to an easy 9-0 victory over the North Friday night in the opening game of their District 5 championship series.

The South now leads the best-of-three series, 1-0, and will try to make it a sweep tonight when the two teams play at 8:30.
 Galloway struck out 10 and walked three en route to the victory. The win was highlighted by an eight-run third inning which was sparked by Mike Hooks' bases-loaded triple.

Prep League
LITTLEFIELD — Greene County defeated Greenville, 5-2, Friday night to advance into the finals of the 13-year-old District 5 baseball tournament being played at Ayden-Grifton High School.

Greene County was to have met Pitt County Saturday night for the tournament championship. The loss eliminates Greenville.

Earlier Friday, Greenville defeated Washington, 5-2, behind Tyrone Jones' two-hitter. Further details of the two games were not available.

Carolina Power Shuts Down Second Brunswick Reactor

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The discovery of a second malfunctioning valve at Carolina Power & Light Co.'s Brunswick Nuclear Station at Southport has prompted company officials to close the plant altogether, a spokesman said Saturday.

Mac Harris, CP&L's director of corporate communications, said Unit No. 2 at the plant was shut down Saturday when a routine test revealed trouble with a second valve in the main steam lines.

Another valve problem had been discovered earlier and the unit was operating at 90-percent capacity when the second valve malfunction was discovered, Harris said.

Unit No. 1 at the nuclear station was closed Tuesday when metal particles in the bearings of a turbine fouled the operation of that unit. At that time, CP&L reduced its voltage by 5 percent and asked its customers to conserve electricity.

Harris said further voltage reductions would interfere with the operation of home appliances and therefore would not be made.

Instead, Harris said CP&L will begin purchasing power from other utilities and will rely more heavily on expensive oil-generated electricity. He said he did not know what effect the more expensive fuel eventually might have on customers' electric bills.

Harris said Unit No. 2 is expected to be out of service for one week while repairs are made to the valves. Unit No. 1 is not expected to be back in operation until mid-September, Harris said.

CP&L has come under increasing scrutiny in recent weeks because of problems at the Brunswick station. A member of the public staff of the state Utilities Commission has called for an investigation of CP&L's operation of the plant.

Other officials with the Utilities Commission have suggested a total audit of CP&L operations might be ordered.

Utilities Commission officials apparently are upset by the number of breakdowns at the plant. When the plant closes or reduces its power output, CP&L asks the commission for rate increases to cover the cost of procuring more expensive non-nuclear generated electricity.

Hospital Says Surgery Is Possible For Twins

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — More surgery may be needed to repair a portion of intestine for Siamese twins separated at North Carolina Memorial Hospital last week, a hospital spokesman said Saturday.

Hospital spokesman Dick Broom said a portion of each baby's intestine was enlarged and might not be functional.

The twins were born July 9 to an unidentified 33-year-old North Carolina woman and her husband. They were joined by a bridge of tissue extending from the breastbone to the lower abdomen.

They were separated during a 3½-hour operation just 16 hours after birth.

Broom said doctors are concerned about the twins, but the situation is not urgent.

Billy Graham Says O'Connor Qualified

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Billy Graham said Saturday he thought Sandra O'Connor was qualified to sit on the Supreme Court.

Graham, asked whether he thought Mrs. O'Connor was qualified for the court, replied "Oh, I would think so."

The minister and his wife spent Friday night at the White House and left Saturday morning after an evening of what President Reagan described as "good conversation."

The president and Mrs. Reagan escorted the Grahams to a waiting White House automobile and the minister, asked by reporters about Reagan's nomination of Mrs. O'Connor to the Supreme Court, said "I'll leave that to the president."

Greenville Exchange Student Fills Dream, Visits Europe For A Year

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Most teen-agers only dream of visiting Europe for a year instead of attending school in the United States. But for 17-year-old Paul Farley of Deerwood Drive, Greenville, the impossible dream became a reality.

Farley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Farley, spent his junior year of high school in Germany, learning first-hand the people and customs of the country. He also visited France, East Germany, Switzerland, Holland and Luxembourg.

His trip was sponsored by the Greenville Rotary Club Youth Exchange Program which sends a student to a foreign country each year.

Farley lived with three families in the industrial town of Krefeld, a city of 230,000 in the Rhineland of northern Germany.

He found the German people to be more formal than Americans. "They are not as open and friendly," Farley said, "until they get to know you well."

It took Farley about six months before he felt at home speaking the German language.

"I could say 'hello' and 'My name is Paul.' That is about all the German that I knew," he said, explaining he became more fluent after studying the language in the German high school.

"It was an interesting language to learn. The grammar was hard, but the different use of the words was almost a culture in itself. The only way in which German is easier than English is that there are not as many exceptions to the grammar rules."

Farley attended the Gymnasium Horkesgath, an advanced high school. In addition to German, he studied English, mathematics, Latin, physics, chemistry, biology, art, music, religious knowledge and physical training. All classes were taught in German, which caused some problems until he became more fluent with the language.

There are two different types of high schools in Germany. The advanced school which Farley attended is for those students who plan to attend college after high school graduation. There is also a vocational high school.

"School is more a part of the people's life in Germany," Farley said. Students attend school for 11 months of the year and every day of the week except Sunday. "But the school day is only from 8 a.m. until 12:45 p.m. each day," he said.

Farley said German teen-agers treated him as an outsider for a while, but after he had been in Germany for a few months they became comfortable with him.

"Teen-agers in Germany are really about the same as those in America," he said. "They are not as sports-minded, though."

Germany's national sport is "football," or soccer as it is known in the United States, Farley said. Golf and tennis also are played, but only by the elite. Most people do not know about U.S. football, and few play basketball or baseball.

Another way in which Farley found that teen-agers differed was the type of music they played. "Punk rock, coming over from England, is a big fad right now in Germany," he said. "All the nightclubs play punk rock and the students dress up in wild clothes and have weird haircuts."

"I was glad to get back over here and hear the new music from the United States."

Most of the rock and roll played in Germany is older music from the United States.

Farley said most of the people he came into contact with in Germany dressed much like Americans. Most clothing, especially anything American-made, was expensive. Farley said he saw Levi's bluejeans selling for $40. T-shirts with English printing on them could sell for $20.

He said gasoline cost twice as much in Germany as here. The Volkswagen, native to Germany, is the most common car. Despite the predominance of compact cars, Germans love speed. Farley said the Autobahn, a superhighway spanning Germany, has no speed limit.

"Cars go as fast as they can go," he said. "I was really scared the first time I rode on that highway."

Germans eat their main meal in the middle of the day. The other two meals consist of brown bread and butter or cold cuts.

Pork and sauerkraut are two of the most common foods and, although Farley did not like sauerkraut, he felt that "on the whole, German food is good." He also noticed that deserts are not as sweet as those of the United States, and that Germans drink more beer. "The beer is dark and strong," he stated.

Area Labor Force Shows Slight Drop

The Employment Security Commission has issued an estimate of the Greenville-area civilian labor force for May of 50,410, a decrease of 430 from the mid-March total of 50,840.

Total unemployment, estimated at 2,520, was down by 1,150 from mid-March. The unemployment rate dropped from 7.2 in March to 5.0 percent in May. Total employment, estimated at 47,890 in mid-May, was up 720 over the two-month period, due primarily to a seasonal increase in agricultural activity.

Manufacturing employment by place of work increased by 30 over the two-month period, while nonmanufacturing showed a loss of 1,260, due primarily to an 1,130 loss in government.

The commission, in its area newsletter, also reported that money has been made available to Greenville area employers for upgrading workers' skills to allow them to qualify for higher skill level jobs in private industry. Employers can be reimbursed for 40 percent of the trainee's hourly wages for the duration of the training. For more information, contact Doris Williford, CETA Specialist at the Greenville Job Service Office. The program will terminate Sept. 30.

Take Your Camera Along

BOAT NAMES . . . frequently are unusual, colorful. In North Carolina's coastal towns, such as Bayboro, where this shot was made, fishing boats dock in for the weekend. Small harbors are also excellent sites for color photography. Boat crews as a rule are happy to take time a moment to pose or let you photograph them as they work.

FLOWERS . . . wild or cultivated, are rewarding subjects to photograph either in full scenes or in close-up. In this area of North Carolina, many wild flowers bloom on roadsides, in fields or along ditchbanks. Fragrant honeysuckle, pictured here, is easily found in bloom against old barns, on fences, or cascading from tree-clinging bowers.

UNPOSED FAMILY SNAPSHOTS . . . make delightful additions to the family album. The secret of capturing such spontaneous moments is having a camera loaded and ready for use on a moment's notice.

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

Many of my friends and acquaintances who have cameras often remark that they enjoy taking pictures, but find it difficult to get into the habit of taking their cameras along. Like anything else, conscious remembrance and doing breed habit.

Others mention the rising cost of film, processing and developing as a deterrent in taking pictures except on special occasions. It's true enough that photographic costs, like everything else, has escalated. Yet, a few basic rules can help anyone interested in photography to economize. The biggest mistake most amateurs make is taking excessive numbers of pictures. As an example, a person sees a vine-covered barn that's ideal to photograph, and begins snapping shots from far off to near up, using a dozen exposures. By avoiding this temptation, a photographer can take five minutes to study different angles and decide on one or two good possibilities.

Some speak of the absence of super subjects to photograph. This is simply an untenable attitude. No matter where a photographer travels — in his back yard, downtown, a short ride in the country, or to far away tourist spots, there's always a wealth of photographic material. These range from a close up shot of a drop of dew on a blade of grass to the eruption of a volcano.

Family albums can be made memorable instead of static with the inclusion of unposed, spontaneous snapshots of someone at work, taking a nap, crying over a stumped toe, or hugging a friend.

Expensive equipment and professional training are nice, but not necessary. The end results depend much more on forming a habit of taking your camera along and keeping your eye and imagination attuned to what might make a good picture.

APPEALS TO YOUNG PEOPLE . . . The majority of children and young people (and quite a large number of adults too) are fascinated by the prospect of photographing birds and animals, wild or domesticated. Here, a quartet of half-grown ducks swim in a pond filled with waterlilies and grasses.

Accent On Living

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Sunday, July 19, 1961—C-1

DRAMATIC SCENES IN NATURE . . . add interest to any home collection of photographs. Waterfalls, rugged boulders, a turbulent sky or the gnarled, massive skeleton of an ancient toppled tree are but a few examples of striking photographic possibilities to be found any place a person may travel to.

COMING ACROSS THE UNEXPECTED . . . does happen occasionally. This scene is of a sunken vessel in the Marina Del Rey section of Los Angeles. Although this dockside sinking is not the type of event to rate top news coverage, there's always the possibility of capturing on film a dramatic news event that can be an exciting achievement as well as financially rewarding.

Jodie Lea Faust Weds

Jodie Lea Faust and Homer Brown Louya Jr. were married Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at the First Presbyterian Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward M. Walker and the Rev. Gerald Anders.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Faust of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. Louya of Fayetteville.

A program of wedding music was provided by Charles Curran, organist and Terri Leggett, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a gown of knit chiffon with a Queen Anne neckline accented with re-embroidered lace and seed pearls. The full skirt extended to tiers of ruffles and crystal pleats and ended in a chapel length train. The fingertip veil of bridal illusion fell from a Juliet cap of re-embroidered lace edged with matching lace. She carried her mother's prayerbook and a bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids and white miniature carnations with sprays of greenery tied with bridal satin.

Mrs. Nancy Thompson of Charlotte, cousin of the bride, served as honor attendant. She wore a formal gown of blue tinsetta silk designed with a halter neckline, gathered empire waistline and flared accordin pleated skirt. The sleeveless gown was complemented by a sheer handkerchief pointed cape edged in blue satin ribbon. She carried a nosegay of mixed flowers tied with blue satin.

Bridesmaids included Leslie Holmes of Greensboro, Cathy Louya of Durham, sister of the bridegroom, Debbie Plueddemann of Winterville and Mrs. Sherri Powell of Greenville. They wore dresses and carried flowers identical to the matron of honor.

Jim Clinton of Greenville served as the best man. Ushers were the bride's brothers, Gary and Philip Faust, both of Greenville, Bill Louya of Charlotte and Donald Louya of Fayetteville, brothers of the bridegroom and Gary Miller of Annapolis, Md.

The mother of the bride wore a pale pink floor length dress with an accordin pleated skirt and cape. She wore a pale pink rosebud wrist corsage. The mother of the bridegroom chose a dress of pink tafteta with an overlay of chiffon and a bow at the neckline. She wore a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the parents of the bride at the Cherry Oaks Recreation Club.

A pig pickin' was hosted by the parents of the bridegroom Friday night after the wedding rehearsal at the Cherry Oaks Recreation Club.

The bride is employed with Foodtown and will be a junior at East Carolina University. The bridegroom is the produce manager at Foodland in Greenville.

After a cruise to the Bahamas, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Miss Carrico, Mr. Bradley Say Vows

Winda Gail Carrico and David Richard Bradley were united in marriage Saturday at 3 p.m. at the Arlington Street Baptist Church. The Rev. Harold Green officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Carrico of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Blanche Bradley of Myrtle Beach, S.C.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Esther Smith and soloist Johnny Nelson sang "If," "Evergreen" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with two brass baskets of pink carnations, white gladioli and lavender pom poms. A brass cathedral with pink, lavender and white flowers and two brass spiral candelabra were also used. Hurricane globes marked pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal gown of white silk organza and chantilly lace over peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with an all lace bodice, colonial neckline and full bishop sleeves adorned with pearls. A pyramid of lace and lace motifs enhanced the front of the A-line skirt. The back of the cathedral train featured a panel of lace from the waistline to the hem of the gown which was encircled with a border of chantilly lace. She chose a veil of chantilly lace and pearls. She carried a cascade of pink roses and white daisies.

and nylon floor length gown with lavender and pink flowers on an off-white background. The gown featured a ruffled neckline and a bow on the bottom of the gown. She carried a nosegay of white daisies with lavender streamers.

Bridesmaids were Susan Congleton of Robersonville, Darlene Elks and Ellen Lawson, both of Greenville. They wore dresses identical to that of the matron of honor and carried nosegays of pom poms with pink ribbon. They wore gypsophilia in their hair.

Best man was Johnny Nelson of Greenville. Ushers included Jerry Harrison of Grifton, Roger House of Snow Hill, uncle of the bride and Gary Caulder of Kinston.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of mauve silesta sheer knit with a blouson bodice. The mother of the bridegroom chose an aqua formal gown trimmed in lace with an attached caplet. Both mothers were remembered with a corsage of white cymbidium orchids.

The grandmothers were remembered with white carnations.

The wedding was directed by Betty Whitfield of Greenville. Teresa Edmondson of Greenville presided at the guest register.

Immediately following the wedding, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The table was covered with a white Nottingham lace cloth, accented with pink ribbon bows and bells. The centerpiece was made of pink carnations and lavender and white pom poms. Jeanette Bracket, aunt of the bride, served the wedding cake after the first traditional slice was cut by the bride and bridegroom. Kathryn Evans poured punch. Others assisting were Sue House, Connie House and Mary House, all aunts of the bride.

The bride is employed as a pharmacist's assistant at Beddingfield's Pharmacy. The bridegroom is a mechanic at Hastings Ford. After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Greenville.

AIR CONDITIONING
Air conditioning costs can be very much on consumers' minds this time of the year and a few hints on efficient use of room air conditioners may be just in time for many households.

The dollar savings from slight thermostat adjustments can be substantial, according to extension housing specialists at North Carolina State University.

For example, a one-degree upturn in the setting can lead to a 2 to 5 percent drop in the electric bill.

The specialists say the most common question is "Does it save money to turn off the air conditioner during short absences from the house?" The answer depends on the mass of the house and how quickly things cool down.

For room air conditions, the specialists say, one hour is a good cut-off point.

Another important question deals with high-cool, low-cool and fan settings. The difference between high and low cool has to do with fan speed, a very minor factor in electric costs, the experts say.

High-cool circulates the air more forcefully and may cause a saving if it allows you to raise the thermostat setting.

I watched a television show the other night in which there was nudity, graphic violence, mature situations, explicit sex, profanity, adult language, horror, vulgarities and a rating that called for "parental discretion."

I called my mother and said, "So, why weren't you here to discret?"

"What are you so sore about?" she asked. "Weren't you forewarned?"

"Oh, sure, they told me everything except it had no plot!"

Frankly, my mother has become quite lax lately about parental discretion and so have I. And I'm not sure it's all our fault. Neither of us ever "discreted" in our lives until about seven or eight years ago when I saw the warning on the movie and TV ratings.

I asked a couple of my friends and they didn't know what we were supposed to do either. One mother said she thought it meant seeing the TV show before the kids saw it. But it had two drawbacks. By the time she saw it, it was over and they had missed it and she picked up a vocabulary she couldn't use in public.

Someone else said it was a

BROCCOLI STORY

Broccoli is a popular American vegetable today, but it wasn't always so.

The word broccoli comes from the Italian word "brocco" or branch. A native of the eastern Mediterranean and Asia Minor, it was cultivated in Italy even in Roman days.

Broccoli was introduced to England around 1720 and to America probably during the Colonial era.

It was not well known in this country, however, until the Italian influence teamed up with the California climate to produce the first commercial crop.

I monitored mine until they stopped.

I remember one night, we took our children to a movie that looked like family fare in the ads. As we approached the window, the woman selling tickets looked at us and said, "You're taking your children to see this?" We withdrew feeling like two adults who wore raincoats with nothing under them.

Frankly, I don't know of any mother who actually engages in parental discretion these days. If there are any, they are the same mothers who check out the American Journal on Tooth Decay at the library, and get sulen when their children don't notice their clothes smell nice.

The reality is it's just too difficult to control their viewing at home and away.

A concerned mother asked me the other day what I allowed my children to watch when they were young.

I told her, "Illicit sex, violence, prejudice, brutality, murder, assault and profanity."

"You let them watch the late movie?" she gasped.

LOIS MCLAWHORN OF AYDEN LOST 34 POUNDS IN JUST SIX WEEKS AT THE DIET CENTER

If you have doubts about how well the DIET CENTER program works just ask Lois. Lois had tried other weight loss programs, but nothing compared to DIET CENTER. "THE DIET CENTER program is faster and easier than anything I've tried, and I think I've tried them all. If you have a weight problem, I strongly recommend that you call THE DIET CENTER. I was not hungry and I had more energy than ever before. Since I have health problems, it was important that the weight loss program that I chose was a totally natural one. My physicians supported my choice of THE DIET CENTER program."

DIET CENTER'S program of sound nutrition and private, daily counseling worked for Lois and it can work for you! THE DIET CENTER in Greenville is located at 103 Oakmont Professional Plaza (behind Hargett's Drug Store). For more information call 756-8545. Office hours are 9:00-1:00 and 3:00-5:30.

Wedding Vows Said

Vickie Stocks Thomas and Joseph L. Sawyer Jr., both of Greenville, were united in marriage Saturday at five o'clock in People's Baptist Temple. Officiating clergyman for the double ring ceremony was Joseph L. Sawyer, father of the bridegroom.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben L. Stocks of Ayden. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Sawyer of Winterville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline outlined in scalloped chantilly lace. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke of embroidered beaded chantilly lace finished with French lace to the waistline. Matching lace styled the bishop sleeves. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were accented by a ruffled flounce topped by a pick-up southern belle flounced skirt. She chose a veil of fingertip length white illusion edged in scalloped chantilly lace and attached to a Camelot head-piece of chantilly lace beaded with pearls. She carried a nosegay of white daisies and white and pink carnations with baby's breath and bridal lace streamers.

The bride's sister, Sharon Stocks of Winterville, served as maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of tea matte jersey designed with a high neckline encircled with schiffli embroidered lace. The empire bodice featured an insert of sheer chantilly lace bordered in the schiffli lace from which fell the berth collar of chantilly lace. The sleeveless gown was finished with a semi-flared skirt. She carried a bouquet of light pink and white cushion poms with light pink streamers.

Bridesmaids were Judy Manning of Grimesland, sister of the bridegroom, Judy Brann of Greenville and Barbara Heath of Ayden. Their gowns were styled identically to that of the honor attendant in a contrasting shade of Nordic rose matte jersey. They carried dusty pink and white cushion pom hand bouquets with dusty pink streamers.

Melinda Sawyer of Ayden, daughter of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a formal length gown of pastel pink organza with a rounded collar outlined with a ruffle. The V-shaped bodice featured ruffles and white lace. The short puffed sleeves were enhanced with French lace. The A-line skirt fell into layers of ruffles to the floor with a small white bow and bell attached to the bottom of the skirt. She carried a white wicker basket of dusty pink and white cushion poms with pink and white streamers and bows. Jason Thomas of Greenville, son of the bride, was ringbearer.

Ushers were Mike Stocks of Winterville and Ben Stocks Jr. of Ayden, brothers of the bride and Ronnie Brothers of Aurora. The best man was Billy Sawyer of Winterville, brother of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride and the mother of the bridegroom wore corsages of white carnations. The grandmother of the bride was remembered with a carnation corsage.

A reception was given at People's Baptist Temple by the mother of the bride immediately following the wedding.

A rehearsal party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sawyer at their home Friday.

The bride is employed at Burroughs Wellcome, Greenville. The bridegroom works for the American Greeting Card Corporation. The couple will reside in Greenville.

Miss Nantz Speaks Vows

LUMBERTON — The First Presbyterian Church here was the scene of the wedding of Sally Renee Nantz and Lloyd Gilbert Carroll Jr. Saturday afternoon. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Samuel Shumate.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Glenn Rodney Nantz and the bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gilbert Carroll, all of Lumberton. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. David Thurston House of Bethel.

A program of nuptial wedding music was performed by organist John Wesley Ward III and trumpeter Steven Floyd Tedder. Soloists were Barbara Ellen Blackburn and Alan Sugar.

The father of the bride, who handcrafted the rings exchanged by the couple in the ceremony, escorted the bride to the altar. The bride wore an original Miriam mode gown of imported chantilly lace and satin worn by her mother. The gown was designed with a molded bodice of lace over satin with a full skirt sweeping into a cathedral train. The transparent yoke of illusion was outlined with scallops of matching lace and the close fitting sleeves ended in points over the hands. The bride wore a full length veil of French illusion which fell from a Juliet cap of matching lace embroidered in pearls which extended into an aisle wide train.

Jane Marie Nantz, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of ivory lace with a gathered skirt. The gown also featured a batteau neckline, blouson bodice and split caplet sleeves. The natural waistline had a narrow ivory satin ribbon tie and streamers. She carried a cascade of spring flowers.

Bridesmaids included Jerrie Lynn Ballard of Indian Harbor Beach, Fla., cousin of the bride, Susanne Marie Counts of Jacksonville, Linda Ruth Tedder of Fairmont, cousin of the bride, Tammie Ray Dunlap, Virginia Lee Wester and Janet Marie Williams, all of Lumberton. The attendants all wore dresses and carried flowers identical to that of the maid of honor.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. James Randall Bullock of Newport, Mrs.

Arthur Eugene Douglas III and Dana Collette Gay.

Flower girl was Merry Craig Belton of Mt. Airy. She wore an ivory dress with a fitted bodice and an attached bib that extended into a tie and short puffed sleeves. Lace trimmed the neckline and the attached bib. She carried a basket of spring flowers.

Dr. Lloyd Gilbert Carroll, father of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers included David Hart Carroll, brother of the bridegroom, Glenn McArthur Nantz, brother of the bride, Alton Goodrich Brooks Jr., Arthur Eugene Douglas III, Gerald Maxwell Adams and Matthew Lynch.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a garden reception at their home. The Frank Egolf Trio provided string music for the reception.

On Thursday, a bridesmaid's luncheon was given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Dunlap. Hostesses were Mrs. Edward Collins and Mrs. Jack Dunlap.

Parents of the bridegroom entertained members of the wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests at a rehearsal dinner at Pinecrest Country Club.

Following the rehearsal dinner Friday evening, the Mark Bradley Band "Summerbreeze," entertained for guests at the Pinecrest Country Club. Hosts for the occasion were friends of the family.

The grandmothers and aunts and uncles of the bride entertained the bride and bridegroom on the day of their wedding at a wedding breakfast at John's Restaurant. Mrs. Dan McArthur and Mrs. Glenn Nantz, grandmothers of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Macon Ballard, the Rev. and Mrs. Bennett Cox, Mrs. Daniel L. McArthur, Ruth McArthur and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Tedder were hosts for the occasion.

The bride is a graduate of Lumberton Senior High School. She is attending East Carolina University. The bridegroom graduated from Lumberton Senior High School. He graduated from Pembroke State University and is enrolled as a graduate student at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. He is presently head football and wrestling coach at Farmville Central High School.

After a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., the couple will reside in Farmville.

Miss Hartgrove Weds

GREENSBORO — Marcie Lee Hartgrove of Greensboro and Charles Sigman Hayek of Greenville were united in marriage in the First Baptist Church Chapel Saturday at two o'clock. The double ring ceremony was conducted by Bruce Hartgrove, brother of the bride. Assisting clergyman was Dr. Stephen Barnes.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Hartgrove of Greensboro. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Dean Hayek of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was performed by organist, Mrs. Thomas Tedford and soloist, Dr. Stephen Barnes.

The bride was escorted by her father and wore a gown of ivory organza and chantilly lace. The pendant neckline was edged in chantilly lace as was the natural waistline and bodice front and back. The full bishop sleeves were accented by a band of lace and cuffed with lace motifs. Matching lace also encircled the bias cut bouffant skirt and chapel length train. A mantilla of silk illusion featuring a modified Juliet cap and edged in chantilly lace completed the bride's ensemble. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses and stephanotis surrounding a white orchid which lifted out for her going-away corsage.

Sheryl Hartgrove of Greensboro, served as her sister's maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of maize cigaline chiffon. A mock chiffon jacket, shirred at the shoulderline and featuring split sleeves and narrow lay back lapels covered a lace camisole. She carried a nosegay of white daisies, yellow roses and mixed yellow and pink flowers accented by ivory ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sally Hartgrove of Smyrna, Ga., sister-in-law of the bride; Deanna and Kathy Hayek, both of Greenville, sisters of the bridegroom and Laura Lomax of Greensboro.

They wore dresses identical to that of the maid of honor and carried nosegays of white daisies and mixed yellow and pink flowers accented by ivory ribbon.

Dr. Dean Hayek served as his son's best man. Ushers were John Hepler, Eric Parker, William Sanders and Paul Suh, all of Chapel Hill.

Ring bearer was Joshua Hartgrove of Smyrna, Ga., nephew of the bride.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held by the parents of the bride in the church fellowship hall. Mixed pink, white and yellow flowers decorated the table.

A miscellaneous shower was given for the couple at the home of Mrs. Robert Klein. Hostesses assisting Mrs. Klein were Mrs. Donald Bailey, Mrs. William Laupus, Mrs. Naomi Levy, Mrs. Herbert Perry and Mrs. Ronald Sessoms.

The rehearsal dinner was given by Dr. and Mrs. Hayek at Holiday Inn Four Seasons, Greensboro.

The bride is a senior at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill in the division of physical therapy. The bridegroom graduated in 1981 Phi Beta Kappa with a B.S. in biology from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. He will begin this fall at the University of North Carolina Medical School at Chapel Hill.

After a wedding trip to Charleston, S.C., the couple will reside in Chapel Hill.

Register-Holder Wedding Vows Exchanged

Beverly Rose Holder of Greenville and Charles Bobby Register Jr. of Bethel exchanged marriage vows Saturday at two o'clock in the Mt. Pleasant Christian Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. John C. Simpson.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Annie Gryder Holder of Greenville and Gerald E. Holder of Victoria, Va. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bobby Register Sr. of Bethel.

A program of wedding music was presented by pianist Greg Dixon of Greenville and soloist, Paul Tucker of Tarboro.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and escorted by her brother, Robert Blaine Holder. She wore a formal gown of sheer polyester organza over taffeta. The gown featured an empire waistline and a sheer front and back yoke. The flounced ruffled hem extended to form a chapel length train. The chapel length veil was designed by the bride's aunt of nylon net trimmed in lace and attached to a headpiece trimmed with miniature flowers and ribbon. She carried a bouquet of silk daisies.

Donna Spain of Greenville, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of yellow sheer organza over taffeta with a sleeveless fitted bodice accented with a flared collar capelet falling from neckline to midwaist. The gown also featured a flounced ruffled hemline. She carried a bouquet of yellow silk daisies.

Bridesmaids were Patricia Holder, sister of the bride and Tina Holland, both of Greenville and Faye Register of Bethel, sister of the bridegroom. They wore formal gowns of blue summerglo with ribbon stripes featuring miniature shoulder straps, an open neckline and a semi-blouson bodice. The waistline was encircled with a narrow blue satin sash. The gown was enhanced with a short jacket bordered in chantilly lace with miniature tie bows at the split sleeves. They carried a bouquet of blue silk daisies.

Flower girl was Kim Davenport of Bethel. She wore a yellow floor length gown and carried a basket of yellow, blue and white silk daisies.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Chris Holder of Greenville, brother of the bride, David Register of Bethel, brother of the bridegroom and Brian Weathersby of Hobgood.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of pink silesta with a high neckline of ivory Venise lace. The mother of the bridegroom chose a formal gown of light blue chiffon over taffeta designed with a V-neckline accented with matching silk and Wendy McLawhorn. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Futrell.

A pig pickin' was given by the parents of the bridegroom before the rehearsal Friday night.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of North Pitt High School. She plans to attend Pitt Community College in the fall and is employed part-time by Roses Stores. The bridegroom attended Hobgood Academy and is a 1979 graduate of Pitt Community College. He is assistant manager of Edgecombe FCX Inc., Tarboro.

Miss Andrews Is Bride

FARMVILLE — Lilly Bryan Andrews of Farmville and Steven Keith Young of Charlotte were married Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in the First Baptist Church here. The Rev. Ronald Lee Davis performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Andrews of Farmville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Keith Young of Greensboro.

A program of nuptial wedding music was performed by organist Charles Cedric Davis of Richmond, Va., and soloists Martha Bennett and Mike Barnette.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a traditional wedding gown of candlelight satina created with an empire waistline, pearled alencon applique bodice and attached train. The gown had a U-shaped neckline with peek-a-boo applique fitted sleeves. The hemline was bordered in alencon lace, as was the cathedral train. She wore a formal mantilla court train of imported illusion designed in a scalloped pencil-edge pattern embellished with panels and appliques of re-embroidered lace held in place by a Juliet cap overlaid in matching lace beaded with pearls.

Allison Andrews Smith of Charleston, S.C. served as matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of suede rose qiana. The mock-wrap off the shoulder bodice was accented at the waist with covered buttons and in the back with a full flowing drape. The gown had an accordin pleated skirt. She carried a mixed nosegay of rubium lilies.

Bridesmaids were Beverly Owen, Maria Marta Andrews, Patricia Moore, Gayle Flanagan, Martha Bennett and Kim Pippin, all of Farmville. Mary Elizabeth Wesbrooks of Kinston and Lisa Satterthwaite of Durham. The wore dresses identical to the matron of honor.

The father of the bridegroom served best man. Ushers were Robert Young of Salt Lake City, Utah, brother of the bride, Gerald Musslewhite Jr. of Fayetteville, Douglas Oglesby of Benson, J.D. Andrews Jr. and H.B. Humphrey of Farmville, and Dale Cline, Morris Samet and Kenny Fischer, all of Charlotte.

The parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall immediately following the ceremony. Those assisting were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Carraway and Mr. and Mrs. Larry McLawhorn. Mr. and Mrs. Vassar Fields presided at the guest register.

From the banquet table, Mrs. Harry May and Mrs. Harold Flanagan served punch. Punch was also served by Mrs. H.C. Outland and Mrs. Billy Marston. Mrs. Bert S. Smith Jr. and Mrs. J.D. Andrews served the tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Dalton Corbett, Mrs. R.L. Joyner, Mrs. Eddie Evans and Mrs. Billy Warren assisted in serving. Good-

Follow Husband: No Looking Back

©1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: If after years of hard work, your husband finally had an opportunity to do what he has always wanted to do — run his own business and be his own boss — but it meant that you would have to leave your lifelong friends and part of your family, your lovely, comfortable home and move to another state where you knew no one and would have to practically start all over again, what would you do?

EDNA

DEAR EDNA: Are you kidding? I would go with him and never look back. And I've done it three times — with no regrets.

DEAR ABBY: For those who are shocked that a non-virgin bride wants to wear white at her wedding: What would they suggest? Tattletale gray?

AMUSED IN KY.

DEAR AMUSED: Why not? And she could carry laisies. They don't tell.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old male who needs your help with an embarrassing problem. It's my behind. It is enormous! I'm 5-foot-8 and weigh 180.

I work out three times a week at a health club and am in pretty good shape except for the abovementioned. I've tried every conceivable exercise and diet I've come across, but can't seem to lose any of the flab back there.

It's just plain fat, Abby, and no amount of exercise can firm it up.

Someone told me that it can be removed by surgery. Is that so? I don't care if the operation is painful and leaves a scar. Anything would be better than hauling around this outsized caboose all my life. I'm not exaggerating — I look practically deformed. It's so bad I hate to go to the beach.

If this kind of operation can be done, who would do it?

A YARD OF LARD

DEAR YARD: A plastic surgeon. (But try to find one who doesn't mind getting a little behind in his business.)

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. (UPI) — Robert Smotherman is an urban farmer who likes to harvest his money-making crop before it gets much taller than the top of his shoes.

He doesn't have to toil in the sun or get his hands very dirty either.

Smotherman is part of an $8.5 million California "cotage" industry raising alfalfa sprouts. The business is thriving with the help of changing American tastes, increasing mechanization and a pesticide-free environment.

"In the beginning people thought it was hippie food, a fad or something like that," Smotherman said of his cash crop grown on a 5,200 square-foot "farm" in a downtown Sacramento building a few blocks from the state Capitol.

"Now, they've grown in popularity and so's the demand. Even Jack in the Box is beginning to use sprouts... and I consider that a success."

Every week, Smotherman and workers pitch about 8,000 pounds of alfalfa sprouts into huge green-fleeced white mounds for handpacking into packages of four ounces or larger. The sprouts are distributed to stores, restaurants and sandwich shops between Bakersfield, Calif., and Reno, Nev.

"We use 2 million pounds of seeds a year," he said, noting that alfalfa seeds have a 1 to 8 production ratio. "We started out really small ... and now we're banging on the walls here."

Smotherman has become so successful that he is looking for land to put up a building that would house a sprout factory, where he could experiment with seeds other than alfalfa.

"Peanut sprouts are just excellent and so are sunflower sprouts," he said.

Smotherman quit his full-time job seven years ago to give all his attention to growing sprouts, an activity he calls farming although "we don't have the hail and snow problems that other farmers face."

He also has gone through two partnerships that broke up and yielded two new competitors. The weather of his urban farm is regulated with the help of the electric company and water district. The four-day growing season of alfalfa sprouts begins with soaking 20 pounds of seeds in water for six to eight hours.

Later, the seeds are transplanted to a rotating drum where they are sprayed with water. The top then is halved and placed into two similar drums for another day. The seeds finally are transferred to a finishing tank, where they remain until the green-tipped sprouts are harvested.

Smotherman said electricity bills for heating and light at the sprout farm run "a couple hundred dollars a month in the winter." Water used to grow 1,000 pounds of seed a week is less than the amount used by two families of four.

"It's a different kind of factory," he said. "It's what is needed in the future. Lettuce growers have the technology but transportation costs for shipping produce from Salinas to New York are growing, growing, growing. Sprouts can grow anywhere and use less energy."

He estimated that he could keep sprouts for a month in his refrigerator as long as they never warm up.

"But it's really hard to give a shelf life because a little grocery store in Lovelock, Nev., might complain even after the sprouts have been handled by distributors 10 to 12 times," he said.

Preacher Uses Pool As Part Of Ministry

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — If you don't know about the Rev. "Superstroke" Bruce Christopher, he'll be glad to tell you.

He's a pool-playing preacher who promotes himself better than Muhammad Ali. The Guinness Book of World Records listed Christopher, 34, for pocket-ing the most balls in 24 hours — 5,688 — on Sept. 12, 1974, in New York, a record since broken. His claim to a world record for most consecutive balls isn't listed by Guinness.

During two years away from pool, he worked at two Southern Baptist churches in California. Pool, jewelry and a $27,000 Cadillac, he said, are just tools to convert those around him — who usually are rich.

"I relate to rich people because I'm rich."
 "I like nice watches," the native of Canada said. "I usually buy a fine watch every week."

He referred to a new $5,600 watch and said he has a cultured taste. He blessed his breakfast.

"I have very deep religious convictions," he said.

Looters Are Raiding Archeological Sites Of Mayan Indians

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of the most prized archeological sites of the Mayan Indians are being destroyed by looters motivated by the high prices paid for artifacts in the United States and other countries, experts said today.

The problem is particularly critical in Guatemala — the heart of what was once the great Mayan civilization — where the present pace of looting could destroy everything of archeological value in less than 20 years, they said. "It's a race between scholarship and thievery," said George E. Stuart, an archeologist with the National Geographic Society, which sponsored today's briefing. Stuart said the looters often are winning the race, destroying some sites before archeologists have a chance to study them or authorities know the sites have even been found. Half the knowledge that could have been obtained about the mysterious civilization from Guatemalan artifacts, such as sculptures, pottery and wall carvings, may already have been lost forever, Stuart said. "Guatemala has become the most seriously endangered archeological area in the Western Hemisphere," added Clemency Coggins, a Mayan scholar from Harvard University. "The scale of depredation there is appalling," she said, even when compared with looting in countries like Peru, Mexico, Ecuador, Columbia and Belize.

The Mayan empire stretched through this area a thousand years ago, reaching its zenith between 250 and 900 A.D. The civilization, advanced in astronomy and mathematics, built huge cities and developed the most complex writing system in the New World before it mysteriously vanished. The experts said the core of the looting problem is the high price fetched by artifacts in the inflated international art market. The best items, such as vases and bowls painted more than 1,000 years ago, go to art dealers, private collectors and museums in the United States who pay as much as $50,000 each. Buyers often ask few questions about where the artifacts come from, they added.

There currently are no U.S. laws banning import of such artifacts. But the experts said the best hope of slowing the illicit art traffic is a bill pending in the Senate Finance Committee which is based on a United Nations' convention banning illegal commerce in cultural property. The archeologists said only a few major art collecting countries have signed the convention and no hearings have yet been set on the U.S. bill. The measure is opposed by the American Association of Dealers in Ancient, Oriental and Primitive Art, and others, who say each country should be responsible for protecting its own artworks. But researchers disagree, saying many developing countries do not have the resources to protect their archeological sites adequately.

Dr. Francis Polo Sifontes, the Guatemalan official charged with protecting his country's sites, said in a statement that he has only 120 guards and inspectors to protect more than 1,000 registered sites. "That is not enough," said Sifontes, general director of Guatemala's Institute of Anthropology and History. "To stop this unfortunate traffic, we would need the whole Guatemalan army."

DAMAGED MAYA ART ... This large stone Maya monument with beautifully carved hieroglyphs was damaged by looters who cut it up to try and smuggle it from Guatemala in the late 1960s and early 1970s. A news conference was held Thursday in Washington by the National Geographic Society to report on the damage done to this precious art in Guatemala. (AP Laserphoto)

Old Radio Programs Subject Of Nostalgia

By FRED FERGUSON
NEW YORK (UPI) — If nostalgia is a fad these days, you can bet "The Shadow knows." He's part of it. World War I and II posters, images of '30s movie stars on coffee mugs, '40s Coca Cola bottles, '50s baseball cards, vintage clothing shops, antique auto replicas, "42nd Street" and "Sophisticated Ladies" on Broadway are but a few signs of many Americans' desire to, as the introduction to Lone Ranger programs put it, "harken back to yesteryear."

"I think it has a lot to do with the climate of the times," says Nina Mattikow. "With all the pressures of today, these things bring back memories that are somehow always better."

"Us old people just like to remember, that's all," says Lee Halpern, her partner in nostalgia. But young people like it, too, says Mrs. Mattikow. Her teenagers just love "The Shadow" and other tapes of what they call "old time radio programs" she and her lawyer husband play in their car en route to the shore or to skiing in Vermont. They include:

The great comedians: Abbott and Costello, Fred Allen, Burns and Allen, Jack

Benny, Fibber McGee and Molly, Groucho Marx. The big bands: Benny Goodman, Woody Herman, Charlie Barnet, Artie Shaw, Duke Ellington, Jimmy and Tommy Dorsey, Count Basie, Gene Krupa, Ray Anthony.

The serials: "Green Hornet," "Dragnet," "Gangbusters," "Lights Out," "Suspense," "The Shadow," "The Lone Ranger."

The dramas, mostly from Academy Award Theater: John Garfield in "Blood on the Sun," Bette Davis in "Jezebel," Pat O'Brien in "Front Page," Humphrey Bogart in "The Maltese Falcon."

"Several years ago, a friend came to dinner and brought a record of 'The Shadow' as a gift. I thought it was fabulous. "So did my husband. And the kids, too. We listened to it over and over."

When she tried to get a more such records, she discovered they were hard to find — and costly when she did find them. Most were collectors' items, often produced at the time of the show or when a big band was popular.

A marketing consultant in package design for mail order houses, she decided to try producing recordings of the old shows. She found much more was involved than she imagined.

Locating the owners of the material involved a lot of letter writing. Finding a useable recording of the program was hard, too.

"I found myself writing to collectors all over the country. It was slow going at first. But I found they're like a fraternity. Most are retired radio station engineers. They made tapes of programs at various stations and kept them all these years.

"One would refer me to the next. I found myself calling obscure towns in different parts of the country. But they were tremendously helpful. They loved these shows and wanted to see them presented again."

"We buy as many as 15, 16 tapes of the same show until we get a copy that is good enough quality to re-record," Halpern says.

Their firm, Nostalgia Lane, began selling such records by mail order. Now they've moved into stationary stores and counters across the country. But they are in only a few record stores, most of which appeal more to current trends.

She handles the marketing. He's the production man, having owned a number of record production and manufacturing firms.

A note on the record covers reads: "Parts of these recordings may contain some scratches or surface noise... the condition in which this transcription survived..."

"We have sophisticated equipment that takes the ticks and pops out and adjusts the sound level," Halpern says. But, says Mrs. Mattikow, "when you're preserving something, you don't clean to the point where you eliminate the fluffs. You eliminate the noise factor that interferes with listening but we want it to sound as it did on the air."

Arch Oboler, creator of "Lights Out," called the dean of American radio writers, introduces a six-record "Treasury of the Best of Old-Time Radio" album in which a young actor named Ronald Reagan is heard on the "Burns & Allen" program.

Orson Welles is heard in "The Shadow." Writes Oboler, "I remember Orson Welles when he was a thin wunderkind, long before he became an expert on Martians and wine!"

"I remember a lusty Groucho Marx loping across stage toward a nervous feminine contestant, and Fibber McGee and Molly watching a harassed soundman dump a load out of their mythical closet."

Mrs. Mattikow, 41, says, "I grew up having my mother tell me my closet looked like Fibber McGee's."

"My dear energetic Nina," Oboler writes Mrs. Mattikow, "I didn't believe even you could get all of them — including Boris Karloff and 'Lights Out' — into one album when the road to that feat was obstructed by disputes over copyright ownerships, cracked master transcriptions and the erosion of all those years."

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Hansy Jones

It's summer — the time for young readers to pursue some of the interests and hobbies that a busy school year often leaves little time for. Among the new books in the Children's Room are several that promise many hours of pleasure to be found in that favorite summertime activity of doing something just for the fun of it.

"Getting Started in Calligraphy" by Nancy Baron is the perfect beginning for anyone who wants to join the current rage for this ancient art of handlettering. Ms. Baron, who teaches calligraphy to youngsters, presents in this book her illustrated step-by-step infallible method of forming and learning five different Italic and Block Letter calligraphy styles.

The lessons are slow-paced so kids and adults can proceed at their own speed. The author promises, and the examples demonstrate, that even a beginner's first attempts at calligraphy will be attractive. An assortment of sample greeting cards, posters, invitations, etc., show how versatile and creative one can quickly become, whether using calligraphy for an everyday handwriting or for crafting special projects.

Some of the secrets of another ancient art, palmistry, are revealed in Peggy Thompson's "On Reading Palms."

Millions of palmistry enthusiasts believe that a person's past and future, talents and personality can all be told in the hands. This introduction to palmistry is a fascinating road map to those revealing lines that are unique to each individual. Over 100 illustrations of important lines and hand shapes will help the beginning palmist discover secrets about himself and friends.

The book also includes an analysis of readings made by professional palmists, discussion questions on palmistry and instructions on making your own collection of palm prints.

For the aspiring guitarist, world renowned musician Andres Segovia shares the secrets of his superlative guitar technique in his book, "Segovia: My Book of the Guitar." In simple terms and many step-by-step photographs he sets forth the rudiments of music, shows how to hold the guitar properly, demonstrates correct fingering, tells how to play chords and arpeggios, and explains many other technical points, providing practice exercises for each lesson and adding anecdotes and details as he would if the student were actually with him in his own studio.

Also included is a dictionary of musical terms that apply to the guitar, and 13 pieces by the great composers of guitar music, arranged by Segovia. Some of the compositions are simple enough for the beginner; others provide challenges as the student's proficiency increases.

These are just a few of the multitudes of good books available for summer reading. A little browsing will uncover many more. (And it's not too late to sign-up for the summer reading program.)

ECU Summer Theater Is Offering Two Comedies

ECU News Bureau
The Great White Way is lending four of its busiest professional actors to entertain area audiences this summer, as they star in two comedies offered by the East Carolina Summer Theatre.

The first of the two award-winning comedies, Neil Simon's "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," will open the semi-season July 27 for six performances and will close on Aug. 1. The second comedy, "The Gin Game," will follow Aug. 3-8. Both plays will be performed at 8:15 nightly in ECU's A.J.

Fletcher Recital Hall.
When the curtain rises July 27 for "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," audiences will get their first exposure to actor Arthur Hammer on the local stage, but it won't be the first time they have seen him act. Hammer has had featured roles on a number of television series as well, among them, "CPO Sharkey," "Baretta," "Ryan's Hope," "Search for Tomorrow," "The Guiding Light" and "The Naked City."

He has appeared with many regional theaters and in last year's Broadway production of "Zoot Suit." Also flying down to Greenville is a familiar face from past Summer Theatre seasons, Minnie Gordon Gaster. Area audiences will recall her performances in "Once Upon a Mattress,"

"Oklahoma!" "Li'l Abner," "Brigadoon," "West Side Story" and others. A graduate of ECU and the Yale School of Drama, Ms. Gaster was in the Broadway production of "Saturday, Sunday, Monday" and the widely acclaimed film "All That Jazz."

Other featured performers in "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" are Catherine Rhea, who has appeared with the Dallas Theatre Center, Stage South and the Barter Theatre, and Sally Nell Clodfelter, recent ECU graduate who performed several leading roles in "Dames at Sea," "Bye Bye Birdie," "Marathon '33" and "Boy Meets Girl" with the ECU Playhouse.

With only one day to change scenery and lights, the Summer Theatre will re-open Aug. 3 with "The Gin Game," D.L. Coburn's internationally-acclaimed comedy hit which won the Pulitzer Prize, Cue Magazine's Golden Apple Award and Time magazine's "Year's Best" title.

The entire cast of this comedy will consist of Lois Holmes and Frank Raiter, both of whom have appeared in many Broadway, television, film and regional theatre productions in the nation.
Ms. Holmes performed on Broadway in "The Lark!" "The Cherry Orchard," "Vieux Carre," "I Remember Mama," "The White Steed" and other long-running plays. She is often seen on television in commercials and on such programs as "Hallmark Hall of Fame," "Kraft Theatre," "As the World Turns," "The Edge of Night," "The Doctors" and "One Life to Live."

In addition, she is a veteran stage actress, with roles in productions of the Hartford Stage Company, the Washington Theatre Club and numerous stock companies. Her theatrical talents include mastery of German, Scandinavian, Irish and Scottish dialects.

Sharing the spotlight will be Frank Raiter, whose impressive acting career in theatre, film and television has included roles in Broadway productions of "Camelot," "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," "J.B." and "Cranks." His television appearances have been featured in productions of "Hallmark Hall of Fame," "Alfred Hitchcock Presents," "ABC Movie of the Week," "Omnibus," "Studio One," "Rawhide" and "Route 66."

Raiter was also in two Frank Sinatra films, "The Detective" and "Lady in Cement," and in other motion pictures including "April Fools," "A King in New York" and "High Tide Afternoon." A graduate of the Yale School of Drama and the London Academy, Raiter appeared in a London production of "No Time for Sergeants."
"Last of the Red Hot Lovers" will be directed by Edgar R. Loessin, founder and producer of the East Carolina Summer Theatre and director of many musical comedies. "The Gin Game" will be directed by Cedric Winchell, a veteran director on both the east and west coasts who now heads ECU's acting program.

Scott Parker, Summer Theatre general manager, commented, "We still have a number of excellent seats, but they are going fast."
The Summer Theatre Box Office, located at 701 S. Evans Street, Greenville, is open Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Reservations may be made by telephoning 757-6390.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — An update of an educational program is first on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" today. The show airs from noon until 1 p.m. over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington.

Dr. Alice Scott, assistant superintendent of Duplin County Schools and Dr. Austin Carter, director of Duplin County's Three-Tier Vocational Education program, discuss the program's future and its achievements to date.

Dean and Karen James, photographers from Greenville, show examples of their photography, featuring on portraits of people and their animals.

In the field of interior design, Tanya Young and Neil Harris talk about the addition of a new room to Tanya's Tar Heel Collection Rooms at Kill Devil Hills.

Another interior design guest is Allen Scruggs, a designer originally from Georgia now living in New York City. The segment with Scruggs, taped in Washington, D.C., deals with his comments on color and the influence that regional tastes play in interior design.

Funding Dance Scholarships

DURHAM — Five American dance students have received full tuition scholarships to the American Dance Festival (ADF) through a $5,000 gift from Burroughs Wellcome Co.

Burroughs Wellcome, with its corporate headquarters at Research Triangle Park, is contributing to the ADF scholarship program for the first time this year.

The five students receiving Burroughs Wellcome scholarships are: Homer Avila, 25, originally from New Orleans, La., who now lives in New York City; Jack Chaitman, 26, of Miami; Kimberly Mae Morton, 22, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Tamara Nieman, 21, of Louisville, Ky.; and Dina Pielat, 22, of Hawthorne, Calif.

The scholarship students were selected through national auditions by a panel of experts. They were chosen as some of the most promising young dancers among those who applied to the ADF school.

The six-week school brings together 230 students from all over the world and a distinguished faculty which includes some of the country's foremost dance authorities. The curriculum on dance and related subjects involves an intensive program of four classes a day, five days a week.

Burroughs Wellcome is an international leader in pharmaceutical research and production, and is noted for its widespread support of education and research.

Soloist, Orchestra In Today's Park Program

TUNING UP . . . Vocalist Stuart Aronson and pianist Robert Hause, East Carolina University School of Music, practice a medley of tunes to be presented today at 7 p.m. during Sunday in the Park. Also performing in today's program is the Eastern Symphonette made up of musicians from throughout North Carolina with the majority of members drawn from faculty and students of the ECU School of Music. The orchestra, directed by Hause, will play "Finlandia," "The Great Gate at Kiev,"

By ELAINE HOOKER
For The Associated Press
NEW YORK (AP) — The Atlanta Chamber Players perform Mozart in a shopping center. In Baltimore, shoppers browse to the rousing sounds of the Annapolis Brass Quintet.

And in New York City, passersby toss coins into the open violin cases of street musicians who fiddle away at the classics.

"Chamber music is getting to be all the rage," says Benjamin Dunham, director of Chamber Music America, an organization formed by musicians three years ago to promote chamber music.

More than eight million tickets to chamber music concerts are sold each year. Audiences pack halls to hear music that was played 200 years ago.

Music fans have long adored opera stars and soloists, and have faithfully followed symphony orchestras. But chamber music used to have a bad image, says Charles Wadsworth, artistic director of The Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center.

"People associated it with four arthritic guys in tattered, dirty sets of tails getting on stage and sawing away all evening," Wadsworth says.

Now the string quartet has become the darling of chamber music fans, because of the harmonious blend of two violins, viola and cello, the four stringed instruments and the fine music written for quartets.

Robert Mann, first violinist and a founder of the Juilliard String Quartet, says the music written for string quartets attracted him.

"The repertoire was something I knew would satisfy me for the rest of my life," he says. Although the Juilliard has played more than 600 quartets in 35 years, he says there are 400 to 500 more he'd like to learn.

Violinist Raphael Hillyer, another founder of the Juilliard Quartet and now a Yale University professor, believes the audience likes the intimacy of a string quartet concert.

"You have four relatively modest people with very true dedication, giving music because they love it and want to share it. There is a conversational quality to chamber music," Hillyer says.

In chamber music, each instrument has its own voice, unlike the orchestra, in which many instruments play the same score. Although the string quartet is most popular, composers have written chamber music for just about every instrument that exists.

Today there are about 30 young quartets in the country, according to Mann, who says that every college and university wants its own resident chamber musicians.

About 350 ensembles belong to Chamber Music America, which began with 35 members. About 150 concert sponsors, businesses and individuals also are members. Dunham estimates there are another 650 professional chamber music groups in the country.

He suggests musicians are embracing the music "for the same reason people go out into the woods and make dulcimers — the craft approach, the feeling that they don't want to serve on an assembly line."

Mann believes chamber music has become more popular during the past 10 to 15 years largely because of the economy.

A community can get one of the top four string quartets in the United States — Juilliard, Guarneri, Tokyo and Cleveland, in Mann's opinion — for $4,000 to $6,000. It can't touch a noted soloist for less than $10,000, he says.

In 1969, the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center brought together a group of musicians who had successful solo careers to play chamber music concerts at Alice Tully Hall — the first hall to be built in New York just for that purpose.

Now nearly every ticket is sold for every performance the Chamber Music Society gives. And the Alice Tully Hall concerts get nationwide airing on National Public Radio.

Mann hopes the interest in chamber music among young people will spur them to create their own audiences.

A prime example is the New World Quartet, whose members came from the Grand Rapids, Mich., orchestra. In 1979 they won the Naumburg Foundation chamber music award, which has been the launching pad for most outstanding young chamber music groups in the past decade. But they chose to stay in Grand Rapids.

"Through the years we have built up a chamber music audience to an amazing size in proportion to the size of the city of Grand Rapids," says first violinist Yosef Yankelev. "New York has been saturated. Here we have immediate support. People recognize us on the street."

Three young Greenville violinists have been chosen by audition to participate in the 1981 Suzuki International Teachers Conference at the University of Massachusetts, July 26-31. They are Carol Moore, 15, and Amy Moore, 12, daughters of Dr. Charles Moore, chairman of Choral/Vocal Department, ECU School of Music, and Andrea Bath, 13, daughter of Dr. Charles Bath, chairman of the Piano Department, ECU School of Music.

of over 650 applicants from Europe, Japan and North America to perform at the conference. They are the students of Joanne Bath, teacher of violin and director of the Suzuki Players of Greenville.
Dr. Sinichi Suzuki, founder of Talent Education, will be at the conference and will lead the opening concert in which the girls will play.
At the conclusion of the conference, the violinists will visit the Tanglewood Music Center, summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and will hear the orchestra perform under the direction of Seiji Ozawa, conductor.

Big WOOW Classics

Renaissance and Baroque music and one classic rock composition are being aired on Karen Hause's Sunday night program, "WOOW Classics" tonight on Big WOOW Radio, 1340 on the radio dial. The program is on the air from 10 p.m. to midnight.
The opening composition is a Purcell choral work, "Come Ye Sons of Art," to be followed by Praeltorious' "Dance Music from The Terpsichore" and Vivaldi's "The Seasons."
Two concertos are scheduled for broadcast, Bach's "Concerto in D minor for Piano and Orchestra" and Telemann's "Concerto for Trumpet and Orchestra." The sonata selection for tonight's program is "Sonata No. 22 for Brass Quintet" by Pezel.
The final composition is a classic rock piece, "Portrait of Jane Seymour" by Wakeman.

The Brody Medical Science Building

So Much Under One Roof

The Brody Medical Science Building, under construction beside Pitt County Memorial Hospital, will house the East Carolina University Medical School when it is completed next summer. According to Dr. Dean H. Hayek, associate dean for admissions and student affairs of the medical school, they will occupy the structure as soon as it is completed.

Hayek said he wants the new facility to be fully operational when the fall term begins next year.

The building also will house the Health Affairs Library, with a capacity of 100,000 volumes for use by medical students as well as nursing, occupational therapy and physical therapy students and the general public. The library also will have a full compliment of audio-visual facilities. An auditorium seating 500 people can be split into three separate rooms, one holding 250 people and the other two about 125 people each.

On the first floor will be ambulatory patient clinics, providing the medical students with the opportunity to learn the practical aspects of their craft. The area will include various medical specialty areas, such as orthopedics, obstetrics and gynecology; and ear, nose and throat, and the various supports necessary, such as a minor surgery room, a cast room, a laboratory and a complete X-ray facility.

Lecture areas are designed so every student can see and hear the teacher. The rooms have sloped floors where student seating will be placed, enabling medical students to see over the heads of the students in front of them.

Other features include an open-air plaza on the roof of the second floor in the center of the tower, teaching and lab areas on each of the upper floors, animal facilities in the basement and office and study space for both students and faculty. The third-floor plaza also provides windows for the inner offices on the upper floors, brightening them with the light of day.

The Brody building contains 451,000 square feet, while the entire medical center complex, including the Brody building, occupies an area of almost 100 acres.

"The building is so large and contains so much," according to Dr. Hayek, "because what most universities have under many roofs, such as a bookstore, a security department, administration and admissions, the medical school must have in its one structure."

This fall the medical school will admit a class of 52 medical students, while this spring it graduated its first class, only 28 students.

Work on the structure began in April 1979.

The building was named in honor of the Brody family of Greenville and Kinston, which donated $1.5 million to the ECU Medical School in July of 1979.

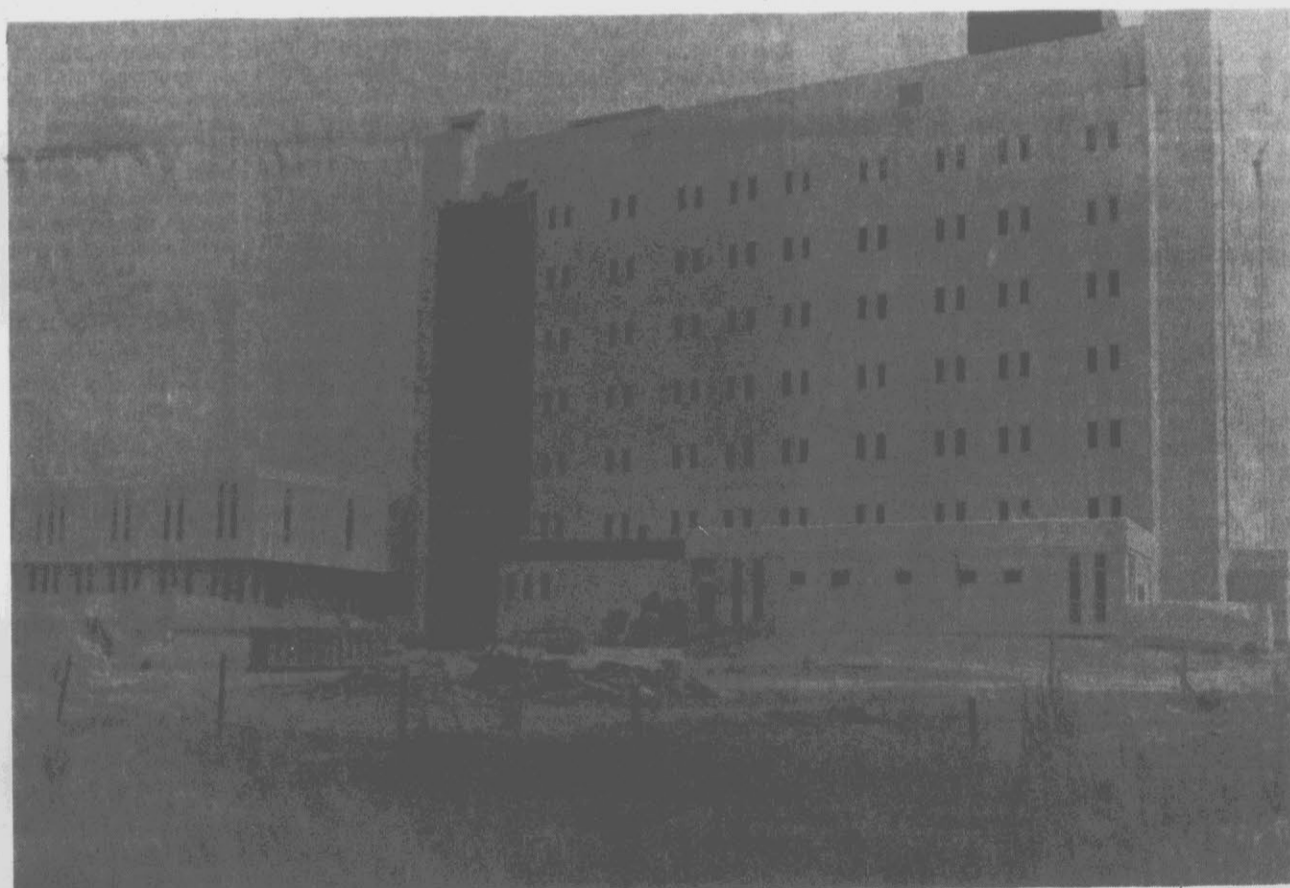

WHAT A VIEW — Looking toward Pitt County Memorial Hospital, you can see almost the entire facility from the roof of the Brody building. In the lower left corner is the Family Practice Center, the emergency department ambulance area

The Islington

By Jerry Bishop

Work, play, and sleeping areas are carefully defined and separated, accounting for the successful floor plan of the Islington, a multi-winged one story design.

In all, three bedrooms and two and one half baths are offered, as well as a formal dining room and informal family room/kitchen complex.

Trim exterior lines are created by the use of brick and horizontal siding, and walls are extended in front for added privacy. Inside the gracious foyer, the unique floor plan is immediately evident. The plan actually encircles a private patio, thereby using outdoor space to help define indoor living areas.

At left of the entry, the formal dining room enjoys a commanding view of the patio, and, back a small hallway, the family room is glassed to ensure an equally attractive view. The family room is the largest room of the home and is conveniently supplied with half bath and closet.

A few steps to the right is the kitchen complex, a substantial area that takes in a dining nook with access to the rear patio, the utility or laundry room, and the double garage. The kitchen merits a pantry.

Sleeping areas are grouped to the right of living areas and include three bedrooms and two full baths. The 15-ft. master bedroom enjoys a luxurious arrangement that includes a full bath, separate dressing area with built-in double vanity, and oversized walk-in closet. Another compartmented bath serves the remaining bedrooms.

Noteworthy is the size and abundance of closets throughout the plan.

Today's Garden Has Root In Past

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

During the summer season, the American love affair with the outdoors reaches its zenith.

Nowhere is this more evident than around the home grounds. A multitude of activities — impromptu barbecue meals, formal al fresco dinners, garden parties, sports activities, gardening and just relaxing — compete for space in the area surrounding the home.

One might imagine that the penchant for treating the outdoors as an extension of the home environment was a 20th century phenomenon. But, according to Elaine Evans Dee, a curator at Cooper-Hewitt Museum of Design in New York, many of today's concepts about the outdoors have their origin in our cultural history.

Mrs. Dee did research on the subject as one of the organizers of the exhibition "Gardens of Delight" now on view at the museum through Aug. 23. The exhibit traces some of the history of gardens and illustrates the use of garden and floral motifs in art and design materials in the museum's collection.

Ideas about the grounds surrounding the home have really not changed that much since Roman times, she said in an interview.

"Gardens have always been oases for relaxation, places to refresh the senses of sight, hearing and especially smell." However, she continued, there have been some changes from the past. "Through the 19th century, gardens were formal places. The formality of daily life was reflected in elaborate plantings and formal entertainments such as outdoor theatricals."

Today, formality in both setting and uses of the outdoors has lapsed. "It's too difficult to maintain formal plantings and our style of life does not accommodate itself to formality of activity," she said.

She singled out three cultures as important for the development of today's ideas: those of France, England and Italy.

The French, as best typified by Louis XIV's gardens at the great palace of Versailles, gave us the idea of formal symmetrical terraces and plantings in which flowers are less important than the patterns created by the use of a variety of colored paving materials and ornamental bushes.

Today's raised terrace comes from the French "parterre" and our use of trellises and creation of small, specialized gardens off a central walkway or path also have their origin in French ideas, she said.

Italian gardens emphasized grand architectural elements — bridges, massive fountains, garden gates and outdoor structures tying into the plan of the garden.

"You can almost always tell you are looking at a picture of an Italian garden because of its architectural, built quality," remarked Mrs. Dee. And the various structures found in today's outdoor garden "room" may be a reflection of this influence.

However, the modern American home grounds owe most to the English garden which was brought to its height in the 18th century by such individuals as Lancelot "Capability" Brown. Brown incidentally was called "Capability" because he was always capable of suggesting some new, costly improvement to make the grounds of his rich and titled clientele more beautiful, said Mrs. Dee.

"The English copied the French at first. But then they began to find French gardens too formal," she said. They developed a more natural look, emphasizing the artful arrangement of the grounds surrounding the house so as to look picturesque and natural.

Our use of local plant materials, our concept of siting the house so that it appears to be set naturally into the landscape and our interest in creating views or vistas of meadows in the foreground and forest in the distance all come from this great period in English garden design, said Mrs. Dee.

The other great invention of the English that American gardeners have embraced with joy is the herbaceous border, in which annuals and perennials of differing heights are mixed in informal drifts.

Interestingly enough, one invention that appears to be American in origin is the porch. According to one landscaping authority, "the covered porch has been an American innovation, scarcely seen in Europe."

Writing in a publication of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, Mary Cattell went on to say that in many modern homes the porch has been moved from the street to the garden side and changed into a covered terrace. If climate and inclination permit, the roof often disappears altogether, giving way to an open terrace, shaded by trees, she added.

Mrs. Cattell, also found that present-day use of brick, gravel or stone paving for terraces and walkways had their origins in 18th century Eastern Seaboard gardens. Even in those days, home owners could buy special garden furniture and containers for plants which were advertised in newspapers of the day.

ON THE HOUSE

Q. Something keeps boring into my rose canes and killing back several inches of the stems. What can I do to control this? (D.G., Columbia)

A. Your roses are infested by a small, green carpenter bee. This insect bores into the pith of rose stems after the flowers are cut. Paint the stubs with a water-based tree paint after cutting the flowers. This will force the bees to look elsewhere for nesting sites. These bees infest small areas such as one rose garden and not those adjacent to it. If you can drive them away, they are not likely to come back.

Q. I've heard that collards shouldn't be eaten until after frost. Is this true? (R.F., Whitakers)

A. Collard leaves can be picked and eaten anytime after they reach a usable size. However, flavors are stronger during hot weather. Cool temperatures and frosty nights produce leaves with a milder flavor. I would select only crisp, tender leaves during the summer and wait until frost to harvest the entire head.

Q. What are those fluffy white things on my azaleas and camellias? They jump. (R.L., Hiddenite)

A. Plant hoppers. They are usually more alarming than harming. If you don't like their presence, apply malathion or diazinon. They will not kill your shrubs.

Whatever once made the installation of a floor rather intimidating to the do-it-yourselfer disappeared some years ago when resilient floor tiles made their bow.

Here was a product that molded itself to the contour of the floor, required no carpentry skills and was easy to handle, since only a single tile need be dealt with at one time.

Those who might still feel that tiling a floor is a herculean task they would rather not tackle need only be reminded that if they had to tile an area that required only four tiles, they would not hesitate to undertake the job.

Perhaps the surest road to certain success is in the proper preparation of the surface to be covered. If it's a wooden floor of double construction (that is, a top floor and a subfloor) and the boards are 3 inches or less in width, the tiles can be laid directly on it.

If it's a single floor or the boards are more than 3 inches wide, cover it with a hardboard or plywood underlayment. Ask your lumber dealer for the proper underlayment and the special coated nails for attaching it. In nailing down the underlayment, space the nails about 6 inches apart and allow about 1-16th of an inch between sheets of hardboard or plywood. And, of course, nail down any loose boards.

The paint need not be removed if the concrete is not in direct contact with the earth. In extreme cases, where the concrete is exceptionally rough, apply a mastic-type of underlayment to level it. Fortunately, this is rarely necessary.

Some persons start tiling right from a corner of the room and get reasonably good results, but that means you will have no border on one side of a room and a border of varying size on the other. The proper way is to start laying tile from the center outwards. To do this, you first must get the center of the room.

Begin by marking the centers of the two end walls of the room, using only the main dimensions and ignoring irregularities of contour. Connect these two centers with a taut string, heavily coated with chalk. You can coat it yourself or buy one already coated. Snap the string to transfer a chalk line to the floor. Do the same thing with the two other opposite walls. Where the chalk lines meet is the center of the room for your purposes.

Now, starting from the center, put down tiles BEFORE you put any adhesive on the floor. Install one row to an end wall and one to a side wall. Measure the distance between the wall and the end tile in each row. If the distance is less than 2 inches or more than 8 inches, move the chalk line opposite that wall 4 1/2 inches. Repeat the procedure on the other row of tile. When you spread the cement and lay the tile, the borders will be even.

Shopping Center Fate Doubtful

NEW YORK (UPI) — The suburban shopping center, whose mushrooming spread almost wiped out downtown shopping areas after World War II, may be extinct by the end of the century, some real estate and merchandizing prophets claim.

This view is hotly disputed by shopping center operators and trade associations. They say the malls are too good as long-term profitmakers, too much money has been invested in them and they are too great a convenience for most people for them to be allowed to go under.

But the bloom has been off the shopping center business during the past five or six years. Some big investors in the them, the Dayton Hudson department store chain for example, have pulled out. It has become hard to get bank money to finance new centers. Even the insurance companies, who have been the major financiers of the malls, have started demanding adjustable interest rates and equity positions that can make new projects extremely risky for the developers.

Even those industry observers who are convinced the suburban centers will survive concede that the industry's opportunities are shrinking because of a growing shortage of suitable sites and for several other reasons.

Michael Hirschfield, chairman of Garrick-Aug Associates Store Leasing, Inc., of New York, says he is convinced the suburban shopping center is doomed. He says it will be replaced by multi-level downtown malls with covered pedestrian walks, many of them underneath office or apartment buildings like New York City's Rockefeller Center underground mall built back in the 1930s.

How will people get to these multi-level downtown malls to shop? By means of mass transportation. Hirschfield is convinced that despite the Reagan administration's indifference to mass transit, business and the federal and local governments will have to come around to rebuilding urban mass transit systems and restoring downtown shopping areas.

Gasoline and other costs of driving are going to make today's shopping by car habit too expensive, he says. The shopping centers themselves will become less and less profitable both to the operators and developers and to the merchandizing tenants.

Hirschfield does not envision a complete turnaround. He says the revived urban shopping districts of the future will not resemble the oldtime downtown shopping area much.

Although he thinks the worst is over in the shakeout of metropolitan department stores and that many of the quality department stores still in business will survive, he sees no possibility of the return of the big cutprice department store that was a vital part of downtown in our forebears' days. Americans simply are no longer willing to buy cheap, shoddy merchandise, he says.

Pope Paul VI visited New York on Oct. 4, 1965, to deliver a personal plea for peace at the United Nations.

Here's The Answer

Q. — One of the posts supporting the roof of our back porch is starting to rot and I intend to replace it soon. I have thought of several ways of supporting the roof while I take out the old post and put in a new one, but I can't decide which one to use. If I put up a temporary post of a 2 by 4, will that be strong enough to hold up the roof?

A. — Before I answer your question, be advised that the first thing you should do is to find out what caused the post to rot. If you don't, you soon may find that one of the other supporting posts also is rotting. It is difficult to predict how strong the temporary support must be without knowing something more about the kind and weight of the roof. To be sure, use a 4-by-4 rather than a 2-by-4, even though the latter might be sufficient.

Q. — I am always buying chisels and then, a year or two later, buying new ones because the cutting edges are dull. What is the best way to protect the edges of chisels?

A. — Are you using them exclusively as chisels? Many get ruined because they are used as screwdrivers, wedges, prying bars or can openers. When they are not in use, put a little oil on the cutting edges and — most important — hang them up. Keeping them in a drawer with other metal tools is a sure way to dull their edges.

Q. — About a year ago, you advised someone about using a commercial bleach to take the color out of wood from which the finish had been removed. By a commercial bleach, I assume you meant the kind that comes in two containers. Recently, I had a similar job to do and I found that the wood bleach is fairly

Grandparents Return To School To Prepare Way For Grandchild

By GALE TOLLIN
Associated Press Writer

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — When Belva Flegle had her babies, she was "scared to death." Her husband, Dick, wasn't much help. "I almost passed out in the labor room," he remembers.

But now they're so eager for a grandchild's arrival that they went to "school" to learn what it's like to have a baby nowadays.

The Minneapolis couple attended an Expectant Grandparents class at the perinatal center jointly operated by United Hospitals and St. Paul Children's Hospital.

Their daughter and son-in-law, Barb and Darwin Lindahl of White Bear Lake, pushed the Flegles into taking the class. The Lindahls themselves had been attending weekly Expectant Parents classes.

"They're making this baby a real experience for us as well as themselves," says Mrs. Flegle. "We're enjoying this as much as they are."

Their family is close, Flegle says, and it's exciting being involved in the day-to-day experience of his daughter's pregnancy.

Marlene Fondrick, clinical director of obstetrics-gynecology and mother of three, teaches a grandparents' class every two months. Class size has ranged from six to 42. A fee of $5 is requested from couples able to pay.

By slides, discussion, tour of the perinatal center, and "The Birth of a Family" videotape, expectant grandparents learn how the birthing business has changed.

"Family-centeredness is a big part of our program," Mrs. Fondrick explains. A husband may remain with his wife throughout labor and delivery. If there's no husband, the woman can have another support person — maybe her mother, sister or boyfriend.

"It's all right to photograph or tape-record the birth. If the mother wants to care for her baby in the hospital, or have the baby room in with her, that's OK, too."

"It's important for both mother and father to be with their baby the first hour of the infant's life," the nurse says. "It's a wakeful, responsive time for the baby, a time for developing warm feelings and family bonds."

Prospective grandparents see that each labor room has an electronic fetal monitor to follow the effects of labor. They see how ultrasound can "picture" a baby's physical abnormalities or an abnormal position. They see large delivery rooms, designed to accommodate multiple, Caesarean and high-risk births. They see "birthing rooms," where labor, delivery and recovery occur without changing rooms. They see "family center bedrooms," where mother and father may spend a transitional night with their baby before going home.

New parents are treated to a private gourmet dinner, an "evening of elegance," once during the hospital stay.

A St. Paul grandmother who hadn't taken the class, or hasn't heard of such a thing, says it makes sense to her. "I think anything that's new and that people can learn from is great," says Margaret Walsh.

Mrs. Walsh has four grandchildren, aged 6 months to 8 years.

Irma Moody, of Brooklyn Center, figured that when it comes to being a grandmother, love is the important thing. "I didn't have to go to school to be a good grandmother," she says.

"I love being a grandmother, and my grandchildren love me very much," says Mrs. Moody, the mother of five, grandmother of 20 and great-grandmother of seven. "All my kids except the youngest daughter are grandparents themselves."

"Having a baby is drastically changed from what it was even 10 years ago," Mrs. Fondrick tells the people who had babies of their own 20 or 30 years ago.

Celia and Jarvis Stoffel, parents of six, took the class a month before the birth of their first grandchild, Jarvis Jr. stayed with his wife, Dolores, throughout labor and delivery.

"When I had my babies, I was taken into the delivery room and this door was shut in my husband's face," recalls the new grandmother. "He was gone, and that was terrible."

While Mrs. Fondrick stresses advanced procedures, she is supportive of some age-old practices. In response to a man's question, she agrees that certified midwives usually function very well.

Clinical dietician Debbie Mayer told the class that pregnant women should avoid tobacco, liquor, unprescribed drugs and caffeine-laden beverages.

A woman wondered about the vegetarian diet of her pregnant daughter. If milk and dairy products are excluded, the dietician says, a vitamin supplement is necessary to assure a diet adequate for nourishing the baby and for breast-feeding.

For mothers unable to supply breast milk, the center operates a "human milk bank," one of about a dozen in the nation.

Mrs. Fondrick says mother instinct develops as a woman cares for her baby, and a grandmother wanting to help should do the housework and "let the new mom take care of the baby."

Grandparents should share their experience but not feel hurt when advice is ignored. The parents must be allowed to make the decisions. "I'm not telling you to keep out of the way, but I want you to be helpful," Mrs. Fondrick says.

Says Mrs. Scott, "I liked that our son and his wife made their baby a part of our lives. I have an exceptional daughter-in-law who shares, and this brought us closer together."

The Flegles got little feeling of involvement when their first grandchild was born four years ago, in Chicago, to the couple's son and daughter-in-law. It's different this time, with the daughter and son-in-law living so close.

"We went out and bought the baby's bed and mattress yesterday," Flegle says. "We're not nosy, but we're very interested."

Alternatives To Landfill Sites Could End 'Love Canal' Incidents

By EDWARD ROBY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hazardous waste horrors like New York's Love Canal and Kentucky's Valley of the Drums might never have occurred if American industry made wider use of waste disposal alternatives to landfill dumping.

In Europe and Japan, where land is at a premium and potable water sources are precious, much more of the hazardous waste spawned by industry is destroyed through incineration or chemical disintegration instead of burial.

But the U.S. companies that discard about 50 million metric tons of hazardous waste each year have shown an overwhelming preference for landfill disposal on simple economic grounds.

"Industry has always used and preferred the landfill method of disposal primarily because of the cost," said Robin Woods of the Environmental Protection Agency.

"Landfill is less expensive than incineration," she said. "But landfill may be more costly in the long run because you have to monitor the landfill for many years after disposal to make sure the waste is not reaching into ground water or out of the site."

Love Canal, an abandoned industrial dump at Niagara Falls, N.Y., became a symbol of the country's cavalier attitude toward dangerous waste only after a community was built on top of it and had to be uprooted to protect public health.

Valley of the Drums near Louisville was an unlicensed commercial waste dump where some 4,000 rusting drums of toxic substances, some leaking into a creek, were discovered a few years ago.

Now, with the enactment of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act in 1976 and the adoption of EPA's supporting regulations late last year, the economics of hazardous waste disposal may be tilting away from landfills.

The new EPA system that goes by the acronym RECLA tends to boost the cost of conventional hazardous waste burial by requiring "cradle-to-grave" monitoring of the unwanted chemicals, uniformly high standards for landfills and long-term liability and stiff fines for contamination problems.

So far, only 16 states — Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Iowa, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas, Utah and Vermont — have been cleared to run their own waste regulation programs.

"RECLA is closing down landfills and capacity is decreasing on an annual basis," said John Theiss, vice president of IT Corp. of California, one of the leaders in waste incineration and chemical destruction technology. "It's been several years since any landfills have been sited."

Theiss' firm has designed a combined high-temperature rotary kiln incineration and chemical disintegration system that is being used for on-site waste disposal by Eastman Kodak, Dow Chemical and 3M company.

Other pioneers in waste incineration, chemical treatment and resource recycling include Midland-Ross Corp. of Toledo, Waste Technology Inc. of Little Rock, Ark., SCA Chemical Waste Service Inc. of Newark, N.J., and Witko Chemical Corp. of New York.

Firms like Ore Corp. of Cleveland have discovered profits can be made in brokering the sale of hazardous wastes that some companies actually have a use for.

IT Corp. is building an $85-million waste pretreatment, destruction and recovery plant near Baton Rouge, La., and plans a similar facility to serve three counties in the Houston area.

"There will be considerable resources and recycling of hazardous wastes as well as inorganic residues and heavy metals. Virtually all hazardous material coming into our facility would be rendered harmless and non-toxic material would be stored or disposed of in the ground."

Theiss said the proposed plants would be "competitive with whatever disposal methods are available in the area."

In addition, he said, exhaust gases from the sophisticated rotary kilns, capable of producing an inferno of 2,200 degrees Fahrenheit, will be scrubbed to meet or exceed state and federal air pollution standards.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

ASK OMAR

Q.—There seems to be great confusion in our game about which bids are forcing and which are not. For instance, this sequence resulted in North and South exchanging harsh words:

North South
1♠ 1♦
Pass

South was furious. He contended that a new suit by responder was forcing. North, on the other hand, maintained that since South's rebid was in a suit lower than his first bid, it was not forcing and he was free to pass. What's your opinion?—R. Allen, Manchester, N.H.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—There seems to be some confusion on the part of both players. Each has some justification for his position, but neither understands the sequence properly.

Usually, a new suit by responder is forcing regardless of whether it is higher or lower-ranking than the suit he bid at his first turn. It is the rebid of a lower-ranking suit by opener that is not forcing. On that point, South is right and North is wrong.

However, North is correct in that the sequence given is not forcing, although not for the reason he stated. The underlying principle is that North's rebid is a limit bid, describing his hand within narrow confines. If South still wants to get to game, he must jump in his second suit. The rebid of a lower-ranking new suit is simply an attempt to improve the contract with an unbalanced hand, although it might still lead to game if partner raises or takes preference to responder's first bid suit.

One last point: The rebid of a new suit by responder that is higher-ranking than his first suit is forcing for one round. Thus, had South responded one heart and then come to life with a rebid of two spades over North's one no trump rebid, it would be forcing and North would have to bid again.

Q.—Is an opening bid of four no trump asking for aces?—L. Sachs, Hollywood, Fla. A.—Most of the better players believe there must be at least tacit agreement on a suit before you can ask for aces. Therefore, an opening bid of four no trump would not be Blackwood.

What does it show, then? That is a matter of partnership agreement. Some play that it is a hand of 27-28 points. Others use the old Culbertson treatment, describing a hand with ten winners and partner is expected to raise the bidding one level for every ace, king, or queen he holds.

How, then, do you ask for aces when that is all the information you need? Start with a demand bid of two in a suit and then use your ace-asking bid—either Blackwood or Gerber, depending on partner's response.

No Problems In Nuclear Testing

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Department of Energy says there were no problems during an underground test of a weapons-related nuclear device at the Nevada Test Site.

The device, with a yield equivalent to less than 20,000 tons of high explosive, was buried 670 feet beneath Yucca Flat about 65 miles northwest of here, officials said.

PRODUCTION AND PACKAGING SUPERVISORS

Three Great Reasons to Choose MEAD JOHNSON

OPPORTUNITY
 MEAD JOHNSON has a challenging, growth oriented opportunity for an experienced packaging/production supervisor with knowledge of liquid packaging. As Supervisor, you will plan and organize the work load in three major packaging areas including the direct supervision of four foremen and the indirect supervision of some one hundred employees. This is an extremely responsible position and the successful candidate must have a minimum of three years production and/or packaging supervisory experience. Familiarity with GMP's and good supervisory techniques is a must.

MEAD JOHNSON is currently undertaking a multi-million dollar expansion of its nutritional production facilities and the successful candidate should have the capability for further advancement. This is a challenging opportunity that offers you creative use of your skills in a growth environment. This is definitely a position with a future!

INNOVATION
 MEAD JOHNSON, a dynamic subsidiary of Bristol-Myers, is a leader in pharmaceutical and nutritional products. Our uninterrupted growth is the direct result of our innovation. Our operating style encourages personal creativity and contribution. We're successful and thoroughly professional. We have a strong heritage of accomplishments and a strong future.

LOCATION
 MEAD JOHNSON is located in Evansville, Indiana, a community of beautiful residential areas, outstanding recreational opportunities, exceptional educational and cultural facilities, and more. Best of all, Evansville couples the advantages of southern economy with the changing beauty of four-season living.

To investigate these reasons for joining MEAD JOHNSON is to discover a wealth of others. Excellent salaries, superb benefits including paid relocation, and real growth, both personal and professional.

Discover MEAD JOHNSON! When it comes to your career no one can offer more!

GOING ONCE... GOING TWICE...

The "235" financing program is running out of funds and may not be renewed by the federal government.

Don't miss your chance to buy one of the two homes we have left on this program.

Did you know that a family of five could qualify for house payments as low as $295.00 monthly and still make as much as $20,500.00?

Call one of our realtors to make an appointment to see one of these homes.

But hurry...first come-first served...and time is running out!

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to consider what new plan of action you can put into motion in which you and friends will benefit. You can gain the goodwill of others now by being more cooperative.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Talk with family members and find out what is expected of you, and thereby reinforce mutual agreements. Be happy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your surroundings and make positive plans for improvement. Make right preparations for the new week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make good use of this day by exchanging ideas with good friends. More affection for loved one brings excellent response.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) An ideal day for establishing more harmony at home. Discuss upcoming projects with the proper persons.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day for studying philosophical matters that can help make your life more satisfying. Engage in hobby with congenials.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Fine day to meditate and to make plans to have more abundance in the future. Avoid one who is too talkative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are highly magnetic today and fine benefits can come your way. Plan the right way to handle new responsibilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study whatever is puzzling to you and come up with the right answers. The romantic side of life is in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what your true desire is and make plans to attain it. You have many good friends — contact them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Gain the favor of one who has your interests at heart. Become more dynamic and gain added prestige.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Put those good ideas to work which can help you to advance in your line of endeavor. Making new contacts now is wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your hunches are particularly good now and should be followed to make life easier and happier for you in the future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to accomplish a great deal in life because of the ability and willingness to work hard and without complaint. Sports are a must here. There is musical talent in this chart that should be trained.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JULY 20, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to make plans for the days ahead and to take care of the affairs of everyday living that have to do with ordering supplies. Strive to become much more efficient.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Give more thought to home affairs, even if you have to handle outside affairs. Be careful not to lose your temper.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Handle important communication early in the day. Plan transportation affairs intelligently. Sidestep a troublemaker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure you study monetary affairs and know where to make needed improvements. Cut down on expenses.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use a more courteous approach with others than you have in the past. Attend a group affair in the evening.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal day to handle personal affairs. More affection for loved one is important right now. Finish any work that needs your attention.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show one who has been loyal that you are most appreciative. Gain the right alliance for a new project you have in mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) There are many situations that need your immediate attention and you should not delay in handling them. Show your ability.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find the right outlets through which to gain the knowledge you need right now. Take the direct route when in motion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your hunches are accurate at this time so be sure to follow them. Show increased devotion to loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know what is expected of you by associates and do your utmost to please them. Don't waste time by being suspicious.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Attend to important duties which you've neglected in the past. Take time for needed health treatments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make plans early to engage in activities with congenials later in the day. Express more devotion to the one you love.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will easily comprehend the emotions of others. Business and merchandising are particularly fine here. Give courses in self-discipline that could prove helpful throughout lifetime. Don't neglect ethical training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

SHOWTIME

For Week Of July 19 - July 25, 1981

Stars To Salute Record Industry

Some of this country's top recording stars will help celebrate "100 Years of Golden Hits," an NBC-TV Sunday Big Event presentation, hosted by William Windom and John Davidson, July 19 (9-11 p.m.).

The entertainment special explores all the musical facets of the recording world by decades, since Thomas A. Edison invented the record player in 1877. Windom portrays Edison and Davidson plays his assistant as they host the various segments.

An array of guest stars will help depict the mood and style of the music throughout the years with their own special talents. Johnny Cash will be on hand to show how records have helped spread the popularity of country music and to sing his biggest seller, "I Walk the Line." He and his wife, June Carter Cash talk about her family and other country music pioneers.

Saluting the recorded word, George Carlin does a comedy monologue, which is followed by a salute to the juke box era, with Sandy Duncan in a dance medley.

Next come the sounds of the Big Bands of the '30s; the Mills Brothers, who have been recording stars for over 50 years, sing "Tiger Rag"; there is a montage of the '40s; and Andy Williams is featured in a tribute to romantic singers and their recorded hits.

The '50s are captured in a montage of still photos and by Sha Na Na and Johnnie Ray in a medley including "Rock Around the Clock," and "Teen Angel."

Gladys Knight brings back the black music of the '20s, '30s and '40s as she sings the songs made famous by Bessie Smith, Billie Holiday, Dinah Washington and Ethel Waters.

Also included in the program is Glenn Campbell discussing crossover music of the '50s and '60s (country singers going pop, pop singers doing country), and Don McLean capturing the complexity and loss of innocence of the '60s with his song "American Pie."

Records are a $2 billion international industry and recording stars measure their success by their Billboard charts standings. Record Holders include:

First No. 1 album — The King Cole Trio, March 15, 1945.

First album to appear on charts for 100 weeks — Glen Miller.

ETHEL MERMAN and Gordon MacRae perform in a segment of "100 Years of Golden Hits," airing on the Sunday Big Event, July 19 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Voyage Ends In Despair

Faye Dunaway, Max Von Sydow, Ben Gazzara and Lee Grant head an international all-star cast in "Voyage of the Damned," the incredible, real-life story of more than 900 German refugees trapped on the high seas, unwanted by the world, after fleeing Nazi oppression. The film will make its network television premiere as the ABC Sunday Night Movie, July 19 (8-11 p.m.).

The three-hour drama is loosely based on an actual 1939 incident in which a shipload of Jewish refugees was sent on a luxury cruise aboard the S.S. St. Louis supposedly to safety in Cuba.

Beginning with embarkation in Hamburg, the film gets off to an involving start, introducing its characters in quick brushstroke fashion as they prepare themselves for what they assume will be a singular chance for lifelong freedom from repression. Past horrors are temporarily forgotten. They dance and enjoy. What they cannot conceive of is that their passports have been invalidated — and that the world will look the other way as they seek asylum.

FAYE DUNAWAY and Oskar Werner star in the true-life epic, "Voyage of the Damned," the dramatic story of 900 German refugees trapped on the high seas and totally rejected by the world, airing Sunday, July 19 (8-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Eric Gets Car

Having attained world renown and countless gold and platinum record awards, rock supergroup KISS' members Ace Frehley, Gene Simmons and Paul Stanley have had eight years to become accustomed to the good life of being rock stars. So when newest band member, drummer Eric Carr, joined the group late last year, the three founding members felt they should initiate him in proper fashion.

Ace, Gene and Paul got together to decide what to give Eric to celebrate their recent highly-successful world tour, and to acquaint him with KISS' rock and roll lifestyles.

The group's final decision? They presented Eric with his very own Porsche 924.

"Now if only they would give me a space to park it in," Eric was heard to sigh.

KRISTY McNICHOL STARS in "My Old Man," airing Tuesday, July 22 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV. Warren Oates and Eileen Brennan co-star.

Michelle Will Tell

Q: My favorite daytime actor is the one who plays Kelly Nelson on "The Guiding Light." Who is he? F.T. ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C.

A: He's a talented guy named John Wesley Shipp, and he's in the process of recording his first album. "It's all love songs, and they're typical of what you'd expect my character to sing." Incidentally, soon after Shipp joined "G.L.," he began dating a fellow castmate, Marsha Clark (Hillary Bauer), and the two are a "steady item" now.

Q: How old is Andrea McArdle, who starred on Broadway in "Annie" and also played the part of Judy Garland in "Rainbow"? T. ELLIS, HALIFAX, N.C.

A: Andrea is now 16 years old, and lives in Philadelphia, Penn., where she attends a Catholic high school. When time permits, she enjoys skateboarding, pinball machines and practical jokes. If you're a viewer of soap operas, you may recall that she did a two-year stint as Wendy Wilkins on "Search for Tomorrow."

Q: I truly enjoyed "Pvt. Benjamin." Will it be back on TV in the fall? E.J., LUMBERTON, N.C.

A: "Pvt. Benjamin," with Lorna Patterson in the title role, will be back on CBS in September. The other "regulars" — Eileen Brennan and Hal Williams — are reprising their roles from the hit movie on which the series is based.

Q: How old is Ike Eisenmann, who starred in "Escape from Witch Mountain" and "Return to Witch Mountain"? What kind of guy is he? H. EVANS, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: Ike will celebrate his 17th birthday July 21. Although he's been before the cameras most of his life, his tastes and hobbies are no different from any other boy his age — racket ball, tennis, baseball and basketball. Ike's also an artist and hopes to work as an animator one day. "That's really what I do best," he candidly admits.

Q: Has James Best, who plays Sheriff Roscoe Coltrane on "The Dukes of Hazzard," ever made any movies? 'CURIOUS' IN SANFORD, N.C.

A: James Best made his motion picture debut in a 1949 release, "Comanche Territory." His other film credits include "Shenandoah," "Fire Creek," "Winchester 73," "Ma and Pa Kettle at the Fair," "Seminole," "The Raid," "The Caine Mutiny," "The Left Handed Gun," "Seven Angry Men," "Sounder" and "Hooper."

Renaissance Woman

Comedienne Edie McClurg claims she might have wound up like her Willamae Jones character, the know-it-all biology teacher on "Harper Valley P.T.A.," except for a funny streak that kept showing.

"As a speech teacher at the Univ. of Missouri and a classical deejay at KCUR-FM in Kansas City, I was stodgy, prudish and ladylike — until my bizarre behavior began popping out," said McClurg. "I'd do things like dress up in a large fur coat, stocking cap and Indian boots and go to the art gallery and gaze at Renaissance nudes."

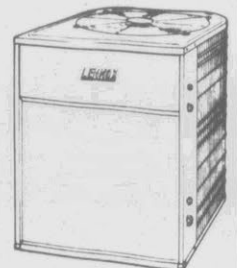

'Rocky' Road

Sylvester Stallone is on a "rocky" road in his bid to buy 25 acres in New Zealand for a retreat. The country's ministers of lands and finance feel he should be a citizen first. But Neil Simon and his Marsha Mason found and bought the dream retreat they were seeking — an adobe manse on 33 acres atop a mountain in Sante Fe, New Mexico.

Career Began Early

Nell Carter, star of "Ain't Misbehavin'" likes to recall that her career really got started on the front porch of her childhood home in Birmingham, Ala. It was there that at the age of six she began to belt out "How Great Thou Art" to the distress of the neighbors.

Lonely And Special

Daniel J. Travanti, who stars in "Hill Street Blues," recently talked to Rona Barrett about his troubled childhood.

"I was the last (child) and I was ignored," said Travanti, "which was good for me in many ways. I became independent. I'm very good by myself these days. I have a good time. I was also very special. Now I figured out that one of the ways to be the loneliest is to be very special. I was bright and I did very well in school."

Makes Film Debut

British actor Anthony Andrew will make his American film debut opposite Genevieve Bujold and Chad Everett in the tele-movie "The Dark Secret of the Bayou."

Prime Time Muppets

Kermit, Miss Piggy and the Muppet troupe will be seen early evening, five times a week on "The Muppet Show" this fall in cities across the country.

Give Him A Star

NBC Sportscaster-of-the-Year Dick Enberg explains his philosophy as a play-by-play man.

"I honestly believe that the color analyst is the 'star' if, indeed, there is one at all in the broadcast booth," said Enberg.

"When I do a football game for instance, Merlin Olsen, my partner, is the star, not me. Merlin is the ex-player with the insight into the game."

Dickinson In 'Suicide's Wife'

Angie Dickinson stars in "The Suicide's Wife," to be rebroadcast July 22 (9-11 p.m.), on "CBS Wednesday Night Movies." The drama tells of a woman's courageous struggle to rebuild her shattered life after her husband takes his own life.

Also starring in the film are Gordon Pinsent, Zohra Lampert, Todd Lookinland and Peter Donat.

Dickinson portrays a woman who must come to grips with her despair after her husband (Donat), a college English teacher, kills himself, leaving no explanation. Underlying her grief is a layer of noxious guilt — persistent feelings that she may in some way have driven him to suicide or that she might have been able to prevent it.

Later, she is shocked to learn of the dreams and fears her husband had never confided in her. She is patronized by some acquaintances and shunned by others. But with the support of an old friend (Lampert) and a former colleague of her husband (Pinsent), she fights to regain her equilibrium while coping with her teen-age son (Lookinland), who blames her for his father's death.

"The Suicide's Wife" is Angie Dickinson's third film for Factor-Newland Productions. It's no coincidence.

"Indeed it is not," she said. "John and Alan (director John Newland and producer Alan Jay Factor) and I have a mutual respect for each other's abilities and a deep affection for each other personally. We work diligently at enjoying our work. By now, we can enjoy because, having worked together so much, we trust one another's artistic values."

Building on the success of the highly rated film, Factor-Newland traveled to Tahiti to film "Overboard," in which Angie starred opposite Cliff Robertson.

Saga Returns To ABC

"Dynasty," the turbulent saga of intrigue, love and greed that surrounds the dynamic oil-rich Blake Carrington and his empire, will return to ABC-TV with weekly encore presentations, beginning with a special three-hour episode, Wednesday, July 22 (8-11 p.m.) The series will then air Wednesdays, (10-11 p.m.).

When beautiful secretary Krystle Jennings (Evans) agrees to marry Blake Carrington (Forsythe), the dynamic, charismatic multi-millionaire head of an oil-rich conglomerate, she finds herself entering an unfamiliar world of luxury, high finance and corporate and family intrigue.

Doubt is added to the volatile situation with the unexpected return of a former lover, tough but sensitive geologist Matthew Blaisdel (Hopkins). Confronting Matthew and realizing that divorce is out of the question because his wife, Claudia (Bellwood), is recovering in a sanitarium from a nervous breakdown and that his teenage daughter, Lindsay (Kurtzman), requires a lot of his attention, Krystle reluctantly makes plans for the wedding.

Summoned home are Blake's two children, the sensitive and determined Steven (Corley) who has been involved in a homosexual relationship; and Fallon, his promiscuous daughter who proves that she'll go to any lengths to show her love for her father, even so far as to sell herself in marriage.

On the day of the wedding, held in the opulent ballroom of the 48-room mansion that Krystle will now be mistress of, a number of events conspire to cast an ominous shadow over what should be the happiest day in Krystle's life.

JOHN FORSYTHE, Linda Evans (r) and Pamela Sue Martin star in "Dynasty," returning in a special three hour presentation Wednesday, July 22 (8-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Christmas Special

The George Burns Early Christmas Special begins production this month, airing on NBC in November. Guesting in the hour-long special are Bob Hope, various Playboys Playmates, Hans Conrard, Ann-Margret and the Hawkins Family.

Famous Duos

First it was Faye Dunaway and Peter Wolf, lead singer of rock group J. Geils, then it was Tatum O'Neal and teen idol Rex Smith, star of Broadway's "Pirates of Penzance." "Dallas" star Victoria Principal and Andy Gibb, and TV's Valerie Bertinelli who just married rock guitarist Eddie Van Halen. The latest actress-rock star romance is Broadway's star of "Evita," Patti LaPone and KISS' sex symbol, Paul Stanley. The two have been seen out together all over New York within recent weeks — but there are no marriage plans in the works.

Douglas Kiker

Douglas Kiker, NBC reporter, was born in Griffin, Ga. and graduated from Presbyterian College, Clinton, S.C.

Patricia Became Fannie Flagg

"With a name like Fannie Flagg, I'll never play Shakespeare," sighs television's next-to-best-known red-haired comedienne. Her smile says the classics were not a goal though, and an untainted Alabama accent unconcerns her Southern image.

"I wanted to grow up to be beautiful, smart and funny. Carole Lombard, Rosalind Russell and Jean Arthur were my idols," informs the actress who co-stars as Barbara Eden's fun-loving sidekick in NBC's "Harper Valley P.T.A." Fridays (8-8:30 p.m.).

Flagg fondly remembers gazing for hours on end at vintage Forties comedies in the Birmingham theater where her father was a projectionist.

"I always preferred that period in film because women had such charisma and humor. For a long time afterwards the male concept of a funny woman was an ugly woman. Since I don't look comical, I figured a silly name would be helpful. Besides another actress had my real one," says the former Patricia Neal, who chose "Fannie" in honor of Fannie Brice and "Flagg" for an old Alabama acquaintance.

She began plying her craft at 16 at a community theater and entered the Miss Alabama Pageant as a University of Alabama co-ed, finishing sixth and winning the title Miss Congeniality, then went on to gain fame as Lady Bird Johnson's and Martha Mitchell's foremost impressionist, the Girl Friday on "Candid Camera" and Dick Van Dyke's sister on his second series. She considers her role as Cassie Bowman, owner and manager of the La Moderne Beauty Salon on "Harper Valley," an appealingly liberated woman. "Cassie is great fun, a good loyal friend and an independent business woman."

Executive Scores

An interviewer recently asked Michael Landon if, when Merlin Olsen first walked into his office, he was aware of the fact that he was a famous athlete.

"Of course," said Landon. "Anyone who has to stoop down to walk through that door has to be a famous athlete!" Landon, star of "Little House," is also the creator and executive producer of the new Merlin Olsen series, "Father Murphy."

Deals With Facts

David Brinkley, has few pet peeves. "I have a strong dislike for the supernatural and the trend in today's movies to glamorize green monsters from out of space," he said. "I guess it's because I have spent my life dealing with factual material."

Classic Story Airs

"The Ransom of Red Chief," O. Henry's classic story of a small boy who cheerfully proves to two inept kidnappers that crime doesn't pay but criminals do, will be rebroadcast on the "ABC Weekend Specials" Saturday, July 25 (12-noon to 12:30 p.m.).

Strother Martin and Jack Elam are starred as a team of drifters who meet more than their match when they snatch an energetic boy and demand a ransom that will provide them with a stake to get to California.

The kidnapping is simple enough, but their hard times turn harder still when the boy, showing absolutely no desire to be ransomed and eager to assume a new identity as a fearless Indian chief, proves to be just a little bit smarter and a whole lot tougher than his hapless captors. Billy and Sam (Martin and Elam) quickly learn what any boy's father could have told them: when it comes to defying convention and pursuing adventure, two grown men by no means equal one small boy.

Rutherford Leads Standings

It's going to be a tough battle at the Michigan 500 between PPG Cup champion Johnny Rutherford and the rest of the field Sunday, July 19, when NBC Sports presents live flag to flag coverage of the 500 mile Indy-car race.

The coverage will begin at 2 p.m. and run until 5:30 p.m. It will be a first time for live coverage of this sort for NBC-TV.

Currently, Rutherford holds an eight point lead over Rick Mears in the Championship Auto Racing Team standings. The inaugural race at the Michigan International Speedway could change the face of the standings considerably.

The winner of the race could receive a maximum of 110 points for the race. This is because CART awards bonus points to the driver who earns the pole position and leads the most race laps.

This gives the drivers, especially Rutherford, great incentive to do well in this particular race. Rutherford has a total of 61 points this season. He is followed closely by Rick Mears with 53 points.

Rutherford, a three time winner of the Indianapolis 500, has all his points by virtue of winning the Phoenix 150 and having second, third, and sixth place finishes in other races.

Mears, a story in courage on the race circuit this year, charged close to the top of the standings by winning both ends of the twin 125-milers at Atlanta on June 28.

The Atlanta race was the first for the 1979 Indianapolis winner after being burned during the May 24 running of the Indy 500. He made what doctors called a "remarkable recovery" from the burns.

Sitting in third place in the standings is the 1981 Indy 500 winner Mario Andretti. Andretti is also the top money winner this year with $301,479. Second in the money is Bobby Unser with $198,066. Gordon Johncock is third in the money winning with $90,031.

Rutherford will be driving a bright yellow Chaparral at the Michigan 500 and said that this race would be a unique experience for both the drivers in the race and the fans watching it. Rutherford, in addition to being a champion race car driver, also has some insight into broadcasting. He has worked with NBC before as an expert commentator.

Rutherford suggested several things to NBC about covering the race. The first of his suggestions was to place markers on the race track walls as indicators of the true speed of the Indy cars.

The second was to follow the cars completely through the turns from the side to give a true picture of what the race driver is doing. The first time coverage should be an experience to the sportscasters as well as to the drivers.

Match Will Be Brawl

CBS Sports Sunday will be presenting the North American Boxing Federation lightweight championship fight Sunday, July 19 beginning at 4:30 p.m.

The fight will pit Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini, the current NABF champion against Jose Luis Ramirez, the current Mexican lightweight champion. Both fighters are highly ranked in the boxing polls.

Ramirez is currently ranked number four by the WBC and he won the Mexican lightweight championship with an impressive ninth round technical knockout of Patillo Guterrez.

The Mexican has scored 25 professional wins against three losses. One of those losses was to Alexis Arguello, the current WBC lightweight champion. Ramirez lost the 10 round fight in a split decision, but in the course of the bout, opened a cut over Arguello's eye and sent him to the canvas in the sixth round.

Ramirez's most recent fight was a 10-round decision over Ezequiel Sanchez in Los Angeles in May of this year.

...and their love affair with a dress shirt!

We have been concerned for some time that our primary shirt resource of many years has not been maintaining their quality commitment to you.

To solve this problem we have made an extensive search throughout the shirt market for the past two years testing several resources. We are happy to tell you that we have found a quality shirt manufacturer that meets our high quality standards and one that we are proud to put our name on. This shirt surpasses the quality level in shirting that we have offered to you in past years.

We are especially proud of the 100% all-cotton oxford cloth shirt. This shirt is cut along crisp classic lines with added distinguishing touches here and there to make it better. The final touch, of course, is our name which 100% guarantees it to you. We wouldn't put it on just any shirt! This is something special!

HOLLYWOOD — JAMES BROLIN has replaced SAM ELIOTT in "The Ambush Murders" currently filming for CBS. Sam was taken ill and hospitalized with an undiagnosable virus. Only one visitor was allowed and, of course, KATHERINE ROSS was the lucky one.

GARY COLLINS, "Hour Magazine" host, has a secret admirer among his fans who sends him a stuffed teddy bear once a week by Parcel Post. Notes with the bears confirm that they're all from the same person, who sends them from Detroit but never signs their name.

WKRP stars LONI ANDERSON and GARY SANDY — have eyes only for each other. But if you want to see LONI'S smile turn into a frown, just remind her of the $200,000 alimony she settled on her ex-husband.

BOB DYLAN can be counted among several others who've taken JOHN LENNON'S assassination to heart. Wherever he goes now, he has a number of Israeli ex-soldiers as bodyguards.

GLENN CAMPBELL and TANYA TUCKER are together again, however, they've canceled plans to open that Rhinestone Cowgirl boutique on the fringe of Rodeo Drive, or anywhere else for that matter.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask" Family Weekly 641 Lexington Ave. New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR TERRELL H. BELL, Secretary of Education

How necessary is teaching foreign languages in school? It makes sense in Europe, due to the closeness of different-speaking countries, but isn't it a waste here? — E.V., Green Bay, Wis.

● We do not, as a country nor as a people, live in isolation. Learning foreign languages is important. The business of industry and of this country's foreign relations does not occur in just one language; it is conducted in many. This couldn't have been brought home more clearly than it was in the recent hostage negotiations in Iran, where three languages were involved in a long ordeal. As the world grows smaller, tied together via instant communications, we need to know more about the people and culture of other countries. A knowledge of language can help us achieve this.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

● Rather than envy Lady Diana when she marches down the aisle with her Prince and future King next week, most girls across the U.K. feel sorry for the poor little rich girl who will one day be their Queen. Why? To the question: "Would you want to marry Prince Charles?" Nine out of 10 girls polled at schools and colleges wrote or said "yuucchh." Their reasons for preferring to remain commoners were — believe it or not — "he's much too ugly," and "he's too old for me." On the other hand (and not unexpected), six out of 10 guys who were queried had no objections to having Di as a wife. The extensive poll also revealed that almost half the young men surveyed thought that the couple have no rapport with young people.

Not everyone's cup of English tea.

FOR ANNE MURRAY, recording star
Why are you so indebted to Loretta Lynn? H.B., Beckley, W.Va.

● I owe the success of my family life to Loretta. Early on, Loretta told me that because of her work, she was forced to leave her kids for long periods of time. In the end, she missed seeing them grow up. Loretta was a good example for me. She inspired me to put my husband and kids first because, in the long run, they are what counts. One can always find work.

FOR GALT MacDERMOT, composer of the rock musical Hair

What do you think of today's music? — O.S., Albany, N.Y.

● Music of the 80's has reached a point where it has been going in the same direction so long, that the technical expertise far surpasses the creative. Often what happens is that the importance of the style eclipses the need for melody, and you get into a period of dull music.

FOR DAVID BRENNER, comedian
What advice did your father give you when you started your career, since he was a vaudeville comedian? — S.A. Burlington, Vt.

● He told me he took a shot of whiskey and would play with a button on his suit before he went on (that was another version of "worry beads"), and he told himself, "you are the best." Well, I did not take the whiskey, and I did not play with the button, but I did give myself that pep talk.

FOR JANET WALLACH, author of Working Wardrobe
Do you agree that a working woman isn't complete unless she carries a briefcase? — L.E., Flint, Mich.

● No, because it could be an extra load, but sometimes there is no choice. If you have too many papers to fit inside your handbag, pick a briefcase that is simple but feminine. Millicent Fenwick, the Congresswoman from New Jersey, told me she has a bright red-leather briefcase. In it she carries not only her papers but her homemade bread as well.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS, psychologist
How can one change a bad habit? — K.I., Waco, Texas

● By substituting something positive. If you have a nervous habit of scratching your head, get a worry stone and rub it. If you want to stop nibbling candy, carry some carrot slices or other hard vegetables with you. And practice your bad habit in front of a mirror — force yourself to see how unappetizing it looks when you do it (like picking your teeth). Keep doing it over and over, and that will make you kick the habit.

FROM THE ASK EDITOR

Ed Asner, star of TV's Lou Grant, had a wry comment when he was approached by two wax museums for permission to place a mannequin of him in their tourist attractions. The Hollywood Wax Museum plans to have Asner sitting in his chair behind the city desk of the Los Angeles Tribune, while the MovieLand Wax Museum would like to have him perched on his desk. "Either one is O.K. with me," shrugged Asner, "as long as you don't have me lying under the desk."

PRO Representative Pete Stark (D.-Calif.), chairman, Public Assistance subcommittee

Yes. Most people would rather work for a living than depend on welfare. "Workfare" should provide meaningful jobs that contribute to communities and build a sense of pride and responsibility in the recipients. Unfortunately, most "workfare" programs have had limited success because the only compensation is a small welfare grant for menial busy work. The concept should be expanded to include training and work experience which lead to permanent private-sector jobs. A project of this type has proven successful in my California district.

PRO AND CON

Should People on Welfare Be Required to Work For the Benefits?

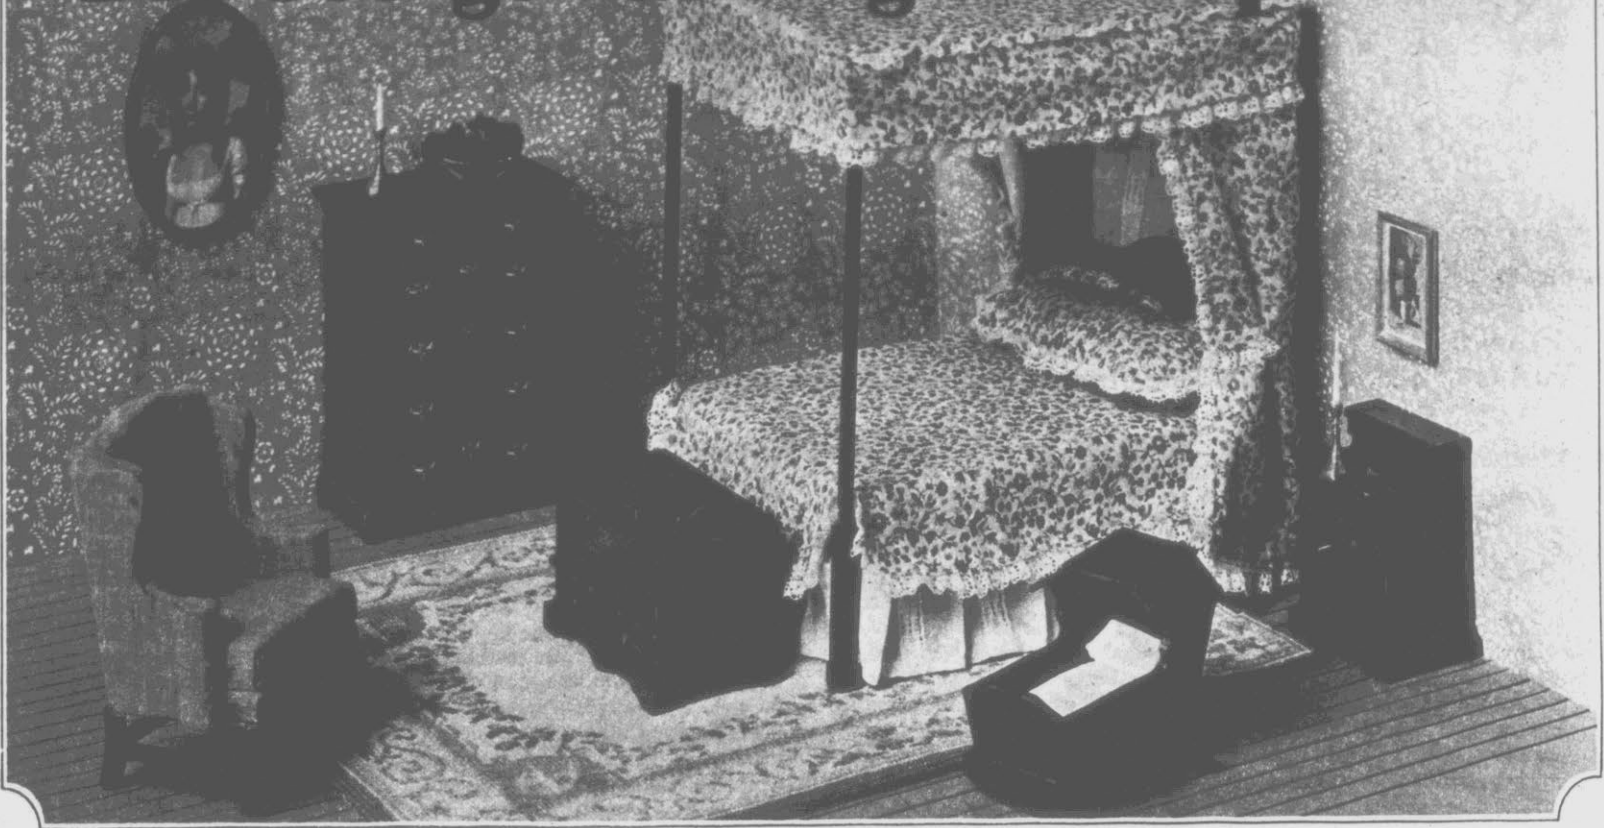

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $10 for those published.

CON Joseph A. Califano Jr., former Secretary, H.E.W., author, Governing America: An Insider's Report From the White House and the Cabinet

The question assumes some welfare myths. Most adults on welfare capable of working do work, many full time. They just don't earn enough to live on. The minimum-wage level puts a family of four with one wage earner below the poverty line. In the Aid for Dependent Children Program, there are roughly three million mothers, eight million children and a few hundred thousand fathers of two-parent families. Children and their mothers should not be required to work. Able-bodied fathers in two-parent families should work.

Did George Washington sleep here?

The canopy bed . . . Chippendale chest . . . and charming "hooded" cradle. Indeed, furnishings like these are to be found not only at Mount Vernon, but throughout the Tidewater region which George Washington knew as surveyor, soldier and statesman. So, did Washington sleep here? Hardly . . . because, for all its pain-staking detail, this setting is only 8 inches high! But a fitting demonstration, we think, of the "small wonders" which await you as a member of The House of Miniatures™ Collectors Series.

As your introduction to the legend-filled House of Miniatures™ Collectors Series Take this true-to-scale Chippendale Chest Kit for only $1 (an $8.50 retail value) with your enrollment in The House of Miniatures™ Collectors Series

ACTUAL SIZE

This Chippendale Chest is an authentic reproduction of a design of the eminent furniture maker, Thomas Chippendale. Completed Chest measures 4 inches tall and is scaled 1 inch to 1 foot. Features solid brass hardware with key plates on drawers . . . that really open and close! Beveled edges and mitred joints are precision-fit. Kit has everything needed to assemble chest . . . at a fraction of the cost of the antique originals!

Nothing is more rewarding and challenging than collecting historic miniature reproductions . . . except perhaps making them YOURSELF—with our museum quality Collectors Kits!

Now you can start enjoying this fascinating creative hobby with our Chippendale Chest Kit—yours at the introductory price of $1.00 when you enroll in the Collectors Series.

As a member, you will receive an elegant House of Miniatures™ Kit each month. One month you'll receive the William and Mary Tall Clock . . . the next perhaps, the Hepplewhite Table or the Queen Anne Candle Stand. Currently, club prices for each shipment range from as little as $4.95 each to $9.95, plus shipping and handling, and sales tax where applicable. Each piece is an authentic reproduction, including historically correct details.

The Kits are easy and fun to make, too. No special tools or skills are needed. Our Kits are precision-scaled, and cut to exact specifications from furniture-quality hardwood. Fittings and hardware of solid brass, finished to fit perfectly. Most pieces have movable parts—just like the full-size originals. The full-size layout sheet and detailed, step-by-step instructions are included: all you add is loving care to create elegant, authentic miniatures that will delight you and amaze your friends.

"The Government Stole My Son!"

Mikey Ruffalo was not abducted by the gangsters his father had exposed but by agents of a controversial Government program known as Witness Protection.

By Mary Long

On the night of November 9, 1978, Donna Ruffalo drove to her ex-husband's apartment to pick up her son Mikey, then 9 years old. She found the place deserted.

Her former husband's clothing, furniture and color television sat undisturbed, and his wallet, packed with identification and credit cards, lay abandoned atop a bureau. But father and son, she was soon to learn, had vanished completely. To this day, Donna Ruffalo has not seen her son again.

Donna did not know it then, but she had become a character in a bizarre and horrifying story, one which included all the elements of a classic underworld crime thriller—with one astonishing twist. For although Donna's ex-husband, Michael Ruffalo, had been a member of the Civella crime syndicate in Kansas City, it was not he, nor any mobster, who had abducted her little boy. The true enemy, it turned out, was a more unlikely and awesome one: the United States Government.

Donna Ruffalo's ex-husband and her son had disappeared into a mysterious, dangerous and highly controversial Government operation known as the Witness Protection Program. Run under the auspices of the Department of Justice and the U.S. Marshals Service, it offers security for individuals willing to testify against members of organized crime. To protect the witnesses from mob retaliation, the program permanently relocates them in a state other than the one in which they've testified, changes their identities, promises them lifelong physical protection, new jobs and all the documentation necessary to support their manufactured backgrounds.

Since the early 1970's, over 3,500 people have entered the program and over 95 percent of them have themselves been criminals. In order to secure these valued informants, the Government has also relocated (at their request) over 9,000 wives, husbands, children and miscellaneous loved ones the witnesses refused to leave behind.

By 1978, Michael Ruffalo had been a mobster for years but had only recently started working the other side of the street as an informant for the F.B.I. Believing he had been marked for mob execution, he saw his surest salvation in the Witness Protection Program. He promised to supply the Federal Government with evidence against significant organized crime figures if it would promise him protection and a new life with his son.

"Two and a half years I haven't seen my boy," says Donna Ruffalo. "I don't know what Mike's told him. I think Mike probably has told him that I'm dead. And if he did tell him what really happened, I feel he has probably poisoned his mind about me. This has all been just like a nightmare."

Shortly after Donna discovered Mikey and her husband missing, she received a phone call that brought the chilling reassurance that they were safe — with the Government. Donna recalls her progression from a state of shock to a short-lived state of optimism that the Government would make everything right. Initially, she approached the authorities with deference and respect, confident that once they knew the facts, they would clearly see that Mikey belonged with her and would send him back to her.

The facts on her side included these: She and Michael had divorced after only three years of marriage, when Mikey was an infant, and Donna had always had legal custody of the child. She had never received any of the child support a court had determined was due her, and she had worked two jobs to provide Mikey, and her sister, Angela, with a secure existence that included parochial schools, sports teams and Scouting activities. And, finally, it was hardly in Mikey's best interests to abandon him to a fugitive existence with a thrice-convicted felon.

But Donna quickly discovered that the authorities were interested neither in hearing the facts nor in hearing from her. She telephoned frantically all over Washington, trying to find someone who would help her. Most Federal officials refused to speak with her; a few transferred her calls to others who said they were not permitted to say anything. She could not even pry information from them as to her son's physical health and well-being.

Larry Fisher, a high-ranking official in the Marshals Service, told her that it sounded to him as though she and Mr. Ruffalo were "having a domestic quarrel" over their child and sarcastically suggested she get in touch with her husband.

Panicked, Donna turned to a local attorney for help. Together, they discovered that the case was an overwhelming one, filled with complex legal issues. Their progress was tortuously slow. Donna attempted to work as a kind of untrained legal assistant — doing research, calling attorneys and law-enforcement officials.

A friend suggested she tell her story to the American Civil Liberties Union (A.C.L.U.), which takes on cases of significance to social freedoms without charge. The attorneys with the Children's Rights Project of the A.C.L.U. agreed to take Donna's case and filed a $3 million civil suit in U.S. District Court against the United States Marshals Service and Michael Ruffalo.

According to A.C.L.U. attorney David Hashmall, the case presents a clear-cut violation of court orders dealing with child custody. Explains Hashmall: "The U.S. Marshals have no power to make custody orders — that power lies with the state family courts."

Hashmall hopes the A.C.L.U. suit will set a new pattern and practice for the way children are affected by the Witness Protection Program. "What we have here," says Hashmall, "is a Government program coupled with an increasing rate of divorce, and this will be an ongoing problem."

The Witness Protection Program, now 11 years old and operating on a yearly budget of over 21 million dollars, was created in secrecy and operated in secrecy until CBS correspondent Fred Graham discovered it and wrote about it — harrowingly — in his book, The Alias Program. Graham brought to public attention the haunted, crippled lives led by relocated witnesses, the broken promises and bureaucratic ineptitude that leave witnesses stranded without proper credentials and, occasionally, place them in mortal danger.

The agony of parents robbed of their children by the program became widely known when a book was written (by Leslie Waller) and a movie was made (directed by and starring James Caan), entitled Hide in Plain Memories of things past: Mikey and the Little League trophy he won.

Sight, about Tom Leonhard, a Buffalo, N.Y., stonemason whose ex-wife took their children along when she and her second husband, a small-time Mafia heist man, fled into the program.

Leonhard waged an eight-year battle with the U.S. Government in order to see his son and daughter. He lost the court case — U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Irving Kaufman decided that since the Justice Department had acted "in good faith," the court would not attempt to second-guess the officials' "rational exercise of discretion."

Judge Kaufman's opinion has remained a binding ruling. Consequently, the parents of children who have vanished into the program are usually advised by their attorneys that it would be pointless to take their protests to the courts. The result, Fred

She telephoned all over Washington, trying to find someone who would help her.

Graham says, is that these parents are left without recourse; even when the facts suggest that they have been terribly wronged.

Salvatore Martouche, who was Tom Leonhard's lawyer, says that he has been called by dozens of other parents, from around the country, trapped in the same situation as Donna and Tom.

"The whole thrust of these cases is abuse of power by the Government," Martouche says. "We want a law passed that will establish the precedent that Government agents can't interfere with the rights of parents and children to be together."

Tom Leonhard was finally reunited with his children, after their mother divorced the mobster. But it was not exactly the happy ending he had hoped for. "It choked me up inside when I saw them," Leonhard says. "I expected to see little children, the way they were when I last saw them. They remembered me — but their mother had told them I was just a friend of the family. I had been wiped out of their minds."

Donna Ruffalo's greatest source of anxiety is Mikey's psychological well-being. "I don't think Mikey can go out and play like normal children. In a situation like that, you're filled with so much fear — you're always looking over your shoulder."

The A.C.L.U. has thrice filed a Freedom of Information Act request, in an attempt to obtain at least minimal information about Mikey's health and progress. These requests have been refused.

Donna has pleaded with Federal officials for the chance to speak over the telephone, however briefly, with Mikey. When these requests were denied, she offered to travel to a U.S. Marshals office to speak to her son on one of their phones, in case they were concerned that her line was being monitored. "We'll have to check with Washington about that," she was told. Washington said no.

About all she is allowed to do is buy Mikey some Christmas and birthday presents which she gift-wraps and takes to a Federal office in Kansas City, where she is given a receipt for them. Whether or not they ever get to Mikey she has no way of knowing.

The Government's position in all of this is that it is simply not answerable to charges. Officials in the Justice Department say that the absence of any hearing concerning Donna's separation from her son isn't a relevant matter and that her rights have not been violated.

More specifically, they believe that the legal duty to protect persons who agree to testify against organized crime figures supersedes any rights or interests Donna may have.

"We do believe that there is a serious threat to Mr. Ruffalo's well-being because of his testimony. It is not our view that nothing else matters," says Gerald Auerbach, chief counsel for the U.S. Marshals Service. "It is our view, however, that his whereabouts cannot be disclosed, for any purpose, including for the mother to be in contact with the child."

Or, as Donna puts it: "Mike is beyond reach, and his safety is more important than anything. And to hell with me, and to hell with Mikey, and the rest of Mikey's family and everything else."

Donna and the Kansas City A.C.L.U. hope that their case will come to trial by early fall. The judge for the case, Howard Sachs, recently ordered that a secret 24-page memorandum be turned over to them from the Witness Protection Program. The memorandum, which was signed by Michael Ruffalo, gives the terms of participation in the program, and one paragraph states that if a minor is granted custody to someone other than the witness who is being relocated, he cannot be relocated. Both Ruffalo, and the U.S. Marshals Service may be in violation of the order.

Also pending before the same judge is a motion by the Government to dismiss Donna Ruffalo's suit on the grounds that Michael Ruffalo is not in the law's custody.

Donna acknowledges that "It's going to be a long, hard road," but when presented with arguments suggesting it would be wise to drop the case, her answer is short, simple — and unanswerable.

"This is my only son," she says. "I want him back." FW

We think it's high time to end the confusion over who's the lowest.

We make Now cigarettes. And we say that they're the lowest tar brand available. We're aware, however, that we're not alone. There are, in fact, quite a few cigarettes claiming to be the lowest. We can imagine how confusing and annoying this must be for the tar conscious smoker. So we've done something to clear up the confusion. We've put all the tar numbers of all brands claiming to be lowest together in the chart below. And the chart makes plain several interesting facts. For instance, Now Soft Pack 100s contain less than half as much tar as Carlton Soft Pack 100s. Now Box 100s is by far the lowest in tar of all 100mm cigarettes. And no cigarette is lower in tar than Now. So if you want the Ultra Lowest Tar™ brand, there's no confusion. It's here. And it's Now.

NUMBERS DON'T LIE. NO CIGARETTE, IN ANY SIZE, IS LOWER IN TAR THAN NOW.

DEALING FOR DOLLARS

By upping the ante, sports agents have revolutionized the world of fun and games...for better or worse.

By Jeff Rubin

NEW YORK, 1980. "Dave Winfield today signed the richest contract in sports history. Standing by his side at the signing ceremony, Al Frohman, his agent, said..."

BOSTON, 1979. "Larry Bird became the wealthiest player in the history of professional basketball today, signing a contract with the Boston Celtics that his attorney, Bob Woolf, called..."

HOUSTON, 1980. "Don Sutton today signed a contract bringing him almost a million dollars a year. LaRue Harcourt, who negotiated the contract, said..."

In these days of megabuck sports signings, no official announcement is complete without at least a mention of the man behind the scenes: the sports agent. Almost every athlete — superstar and .240 hitter alike — now has an agent, be it an attorney, businessman or family friend, who, for either a percentage or a flat fee, represents him in contract talks.

The increase in athletes' salaries in the past decade has been extraordinary — a 448-percent increase in baseball, for example, from an average of $31,543 in 1971 to $173,000 today. The agents didn't create the situation (court rulings did, like the 1975 Andy Messersmith case, which struck down baseball's reserve clause, thus paving the way for free agency), but like the athletes, they have reaped the benefits. Most of the well-known agents earn well into the high six-figures. Jerry Kapstein, the so-called king of baseball agents with the likes of Carlton Fisk, Rich Gossage and Fred Lynn as clients, is said to earn in excess of $1 million a year.

The extent and power of sports agents have come a long way since the 1950's and early 1960's when agents were regarded as something of a pox. There is the well-traveled story of how the late Vince Lombardi, then coach and general manager of the World Champion Green Bay Packers, dealt with the contract of Jim Ringo, his Hall of Fame center, when the latter showed up with his attorney to negotiate.

Lombardi is said to have left his office and gone into an adjacent one. A few minutes later he returned and told Ringo, "We have nothing to discuss." Ringo, puzzled, said, "What do you mean?" Lombardi replied, "I just traded you to the Detroit Lions."

The first sports agent to gain attention was Bob Woolf. A 53-year-old Boston attorney, his first client, in 1962, was former Red Sox pitcher Earl Wilson. Through Wilson, Woolf met and later represented practically all of the Red Sox. From there, Woolf moved on to the Celtics and ended up representing nine of the 12 players on the team, much to the chagrin of the club's fiery and pragmatic general manager, Red Auerbach.

fried and both Sam and K.C. Jones. But their biggest run-in came in the spring of 1979 when the Celtics were attempting to sign a college player named Larry Bird.

"Red and I, we really went at it," recalls Woolf. "For years I've been dealing with Red, and he has his own sense of fairness. He believes he's fair but if it doesn't correspond to your thinking then he thinks there should be a war. The negotiations I had with Larry Bird they called 'The Hundred Days' War.'"

Woolf asked for $1 million a year — then unheard of — before "settling" for $3.25 million over five years.

(Although it is baseball salaries that have recently risen the most, you can expect basketball salaries to now jump out of sight. This year, for the first time, a team signing a free agent does not have to compensate the player's old team — a situation, similar to pro football's, that had scared off would-be bidders. Agent Woolf, for example, recently negotiated a five-year, $5 million pact for his client, 25-year-old guard Otis Birdsong.)

The former owner of the Chicago Cubs, William Wrigley, outlined the dilemma for all major league moguls when he said, "Baseball is too much a business to be a sport and too much a sport to be a business." Thus, paradoxically, most owners have publicly decried the soaring salaries while tripping all over each other trying to land the players they want.

But are players taking over? "I don't think so," says Dick Moss, a 49-year-old attorney who began his career as associate counsel for the steelworkers union and whose clients now include Nolan Ryan, Bucky Dent and Steve Kemp. "Nobody holds a gun to any owner's head or kidnaps his children to get a contract. Players are paid what they are because owners agree to pay them. If any conclusion is to be drawn from that it is that the industry is so profitable it can afford to pay that much."

Indeed, although several baseball franchises are in financial trouble, attendance rose 47 percent in the last 10 years, reaching a record 43.5 million fans in 1979. All this while both cable and pay TV contracts offer the potential for enormous added revenues.

Money notwithstanding, the agent's work itself is not particularly glamorous. Most is done by phone. Depending on the player involved, the number of contacts varies — anywhere from three or four to 20 conversations — before a face-to-face meeting is set up.

As the stakes rise, the tactics become more diverse. Before last winter's free-agent draft, Dave Winfield and his agent, Al Frohman — a 54-year-old former kosher caterer — wrote to 15 teams, advising them not to bother bidding for Winfield, thus attempting to insure that teams Winfield was interested in would be included in the maximum 13 that could draft him. Then Frohman began flying back and forth to Cleveland, Atlanta and New York, where a bidding war was fueled between the Mets and Yankees. Finally, on December 15, the Yankees announced that Winfield, 29, would become the richest player in sports history, signing a contract worth from $15 million to perhaps $23 million after inflation adjustments.

Sometimes blind luck steps in. Don Sutton's agent, LaRue Harcourt, a 54-year-old former teacher and coach says that he and his client almost skipped right by Houston on their way elsewhere because the possibility of Sutton signing with the Astros seemed remote. Harcourt called the Astros as a mere courtesy, and they said to stop by. A few days later, Sutton, now 36, was almost $3 million richer.

Not all the impact his fellow agents have had on the sports world has been positive, though, asserts Leigh Steinberg, a 32-year-old California attorney who negotiated a $660,000 four-year contract for Atlanta Falcons quarterback Steve Bartkowski. "The take-the-money-and-run guys have narrowly viewed their roles as simply adding one more dollar to the pocketbook of their clients....The fan is the ultimate employer in sport. If ticket prices are raised so high a father can't attend with his family, eventually these representatives will make themselves representatives of the highest paid people in a dying sport."

For better and for worse, though, agents are here to stay. As Harcourt explains, "It wasn't like some brilliant agent miraculously appeared and now agents are running baseball. It's that the players now have some control. And therefore, to make the best use of that new control they hire experts to assist them."

Cut to Red Auerbach, still too bitter to discuss the Bird negotiations a full two years later. "It's a way of life," he grumbles of the endless parade of agents through his door. "Do I like it? Well, that's not a point of contention at all. You have to do it."

Unfair TV fare. TV news is sometimes fuzzier than the picture it presents on the tube because, as one prominent newscaster put it, there's "inadvertent and perhaps inevitable distortion...when we all are forced to fit 100 pounds of news into the one-pound sack we are given to fill each night." But what about the distortions you're fed by comedy programs and adventure shows? Even though they're fiction, they can lead you, little by little, into believing that saloonkeepers are bigoted, dry cleaners are bumbling, and businesspeople in general are scheming, ruthless, even crooked. According to lawyer-journalist Ben Stein, the negative way business is portrayed on TV does have a lot to do with the anti-business attitude so rife in America.

Group gripe. In Stein's book, The View from Sunset Boulevard (Basic Books, Inc., $10.00), he interviewed members of that small group of Hollywood writers and producers responsible for nearly all the prime-time shows. Most of these opinion-molders displayed a feeling of "animosity" towards business. To nobody's surprise, so did their shows, which frequently depicted business as full of "bad, evil people." Don't be surprised if your kids think that way, too.

"Make the teeth a little sharper and it's perfect for TV!"

Crime in the suites? Now, a nonprofit research organization, The Media Institute, has analyzed 50 top prime-time shows and seen the same distorted picture: Two-thirds of the "corporate" characters on TV "are portrayed as foolish, greedy or criminal....Almost half of all work activities performed by businessmen involve illegal acts....Television almost never portrays business as a socially useful or economically productive activity." In other words, there's hardly a word on TV about business providing countless goods and services, investment opportunities and pension security, volunteer time and money for charities and the arts...and millions of jobs in the real world.

Vested interests. Not only is the three-piece suit the "inevitable badge of crime on TV," as Ben Stein said, but "big business gets the blackest eye of all," according to The Media Institute study. From high-level crooks in white collars to corporate low-rollers in Las Vegas, the message is the same: "evil by occupation." Unless it's a businessman or woman who runs a TV show, of course. Well, The Media Institute doesn't pass judgment on how businesspeople should be portrayed, and we don't either. But we do think television owes you more than a distorted, fuzzy image of people in business as just "crooks, conmen and clowns."

It's a fact: How do children learn? From age 2 to 18, the average American spends 11,000 hours in school, and—according to A. C. Nielsen Co.—over 20,000 hours in front of the TV.

FOOD

Pleasures of the Season: Cold Soups

By Marilyn Hansen

Thoughtful cooks know that a refreshing cup of cold soup will start a summer meal with a soothing touch.

COLD CHICKEN SOUP

- 1½ cups plain yogurt
- 1 can (4¾ oz.) chunky chicken spread
- 1½ cups chicken broth
- Dash ground white or black pepper
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon chopped onion
- Long zucchini sticks for stirrers

1. In electric blender container, place all ingredients except zucchini sticks.
2. Cover and blend about 30 seconds or until smooth.
3. Pour directly over ice cubes in chunky glasses and garnish with zucchini sticks; or refrigerate soup until serving time.

Makes about 3 cups

COLD CURRIED CARROT SOUP

- 1 can (12 oz.) carrot juice, chilled
- 1 cup sour cream or yogurt
- 2 teaspoons chutney
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon curry powder
- Large carrot sticks for stirrers

1. Place all ingredients except carrot sticks in electric blender container.
2. Cover and blend until smooth, about 30 seconds.
3. Serve immediately in chilled goblets or refrigerate until ready to serve. Garnish with carrot stick stirrers.

Makes 3½ cups

EASY VICHYSOISE

- 1 medium-size onion, minced or ½ cup minced leeks
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- 4 chicken bouillon cubes
- 3 cups boiling water
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
- 3 cups milk or half and half
- 1 envelope instant mashed potato flakes, about 3 ozs.
- Chopped chives

1. In heavy saucepan, sauté onion in butter until tender but not brown, stirring constantly.
2. Dissolve the cubes in boiling water. Add to onions and put through a sieve or in blender for a few minutes. Return to saucepan. Add parsley, salt, Tabasco and milk. Bring to a boil.
3. Remove mixture from heat and stir in instant potato flakes. Cover and let stand 3 minutes. Chill thoroughly. Garnish with chives. Makes 6 cups, about 8 servings

CREAMY AVOCADO LEMON SOUP

- 2 large ripe avocados
- ½ cup smooth peanut butter
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 clove of garlic, sliced
- 1 can (13¾ oz.) chicken broth
- 2 cups (1 pint) half and half
- Chopped chives for garnish
- Thin lemon slices

1. Peel avocados. Cut fruit into chunks and place in electric blender container. Add peanut butter, lemon juice and garlic. And about one-half of chicken broth. Cover and whirl until smooth.
2. Scrape sides of blender container with spatula, if necessary. Pour soup into serving bowl.
3. Stir in remaining broth and the half and half. Cover. Chill at least 4 hours. Thin to desired consistency with milk before serving. Top each serving with chives and a lemon slice.

Makes 6 servings

CHILLED BROCCOLI SOUP

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup sliced green onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 3 cups sliced, peeled broccoli stems and florets
- 1 cup water
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- 4 cups milk
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup dry white wine or dry vermouth
- ½ cup finely chopped green onion

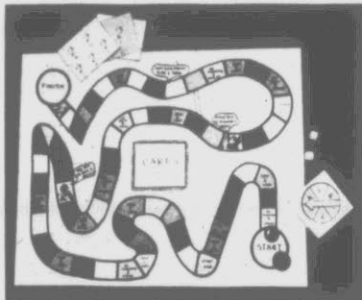

1. In 3-quart saucepan, melt butter over medium heat. Add onion and garlic; cook 5 minutes or until lightly browned.
2. Add broccoli; cook, stirring frequently, 10 minutes or until broccoli is very soft. Add water, bouillon cubes, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer 15 minutes.
3. Place mixture in blender container a little at a time. Cover and blend 30 seconds or until liquefied. Return to saucepan.
4. Stir milk into cornstarch smoothly. Add to saucepan. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Stir in wine. Turn into bowl, cover and chill several hours.
5. Whisk with a wire whisk just before serving. Garnish with a sprinkle of chopped green onion.

Makes 6 servings

*Or use 3 cups sliced, unpeeled zucchini for a zucchini soup.

Small in-the-hand games and puzzles have been family favorites for years. You can buy them in most novelty or toy stores. But they're much less expensive if you make them yourself. With an ordinary jar lid used as the base, the game is drawn on cardboard and inserted into the lid. Small beads or B-B's are used to score the winning points. These games also make good party favors or travel games.

You also can create a variety of pitch-and-toss games for table-top or on-the-floor play with plastic eggs. The egg halves are attached to a piece of cardboard or to a wooden board and various values given to each container. The games can be easy or complicated depending upon the rules which you write yourself.

For little girls who think a tiny doll cradle would be a nice thing to have, all that's needed is a wooden match box (available at cigar and tobacco stores). The body of the cradle is made from the box. The ends that make the cradle rock are cut from the top and can be decorated to please the child. These tiny cradles also make attractive candy or nut dishes.

Make summertime even more enjoyable this year by creating your own fun and games. A booklet gives you complete instructions, including photos or illustrations of the projects mentioned.

Pick 25¢ off new Raid Tomato & Vegetable Fogger.

Most garden insecticides warn: "Do not pick for at least 24 hours." But the bug killer in new Raid Tomato & Vegetable Fogger is all-natural, derived from a type of chrysanthemum flower called pyrethrum. So you can pick and enjoy anytime.

And Raid's unique fogging action quickly covers leaves to kill damaging insects on contact.

Look for it wherever Raid is sold.

Kills garden bugs dead. Naturally.

The Woodland Year

 by Peter Barrett

The changing seasons . . . and the delightful creatures of the forests.

Portrayed in a collection of twelve charming collector's plates . . . one for each month of the woodland year.

Each plate crafted in fine porcelain and decorated with a border of pure 24 karat gold.

Limited Signature Edition.

Available exclusively from Franklin Porcelain.
Advance Subscription Deadline: August 31, 1981.

he beauty and grace of a young deer frolicking in the summer meadow . . . the delight of a baby raccoon startled by a tiny green frog . . . the charm of two chipmunks sharing their food with a little bird . . . such scenes from nature have a special fascination for us all. To be able to capture these qualities in visual form is a unique gift—and the renowned English painter Peter Barrett has that rare gift in abundance.

Because Barrett is a trained naturalist as well as an artist, he is able to portray in his work not only the personality of nature's most captivating creatures—but also their distinctive features in realistic detail.

This distinguished wildlife artist will now undertake a uniquely challenging assignment. He will create a series of new works of art exclusively for a collection of twelve porcelain plates—plates that will depict woodland animals at play throughout the twelve months of the year.

Each of these works by Peter Barrett will be created for "The Woodland Year" porcelain plate collection, to be issued exclusively by Franklin Porcelain. And the first edition of this collection will be a special, limited "Signature Edition."

Each plate portrays a different animal . . . in a different month of the year

To capture the beauty of these woodland scenes, Peter Barrett will depict each animal in a different natural setting . . . and during a different month of the year. And each delightful animal—the raccoon for April, the deer for June, the badger for October—symbolizes especially well that particular time of the year.

The January plate, for example, portrays two Grey Squirrels in the forest on a snowy winter's day. The April plate depicts a family of raccoons—mother, father and baby—poised on the side of a pond observing the antics of a little green frog. For May, two little foxes are startled by the sudden appearance of a butterfly in the tall grass. And the August plate depicts two chipmunks sharing their breakfast with a White-Breasted Nuthatch.

Franklin Porcelain has entrusted the creation of the plates for this collection to its affiliate, Franklin Porcelain of Japan.

A unique way to depict nature's most delightful creatures

Consummate artist that he is, Peter Barrett is always seeking ways to make his art different and original. And here he has found a most ingenious one. He has portrayed each scene as though it were being viewed secretly, without the animals knowing you were there. Thus, as you look at the plate, you have the illusion of having peered through an opening in the forest—and suddenly come upon this delightful scene! It's a technique which Barrett uses in the most winning manner... and each of the twelve works of art, therefore, becomes a new and pleasant surprise.

In order to capture the art of Peter Barrett in the most appealing manner, each plate will measure 9 1/4 inches in diameter. And the entire collection will be crafted of a fine porcelain that has the whiteness and richness well suited to dramatizing the colors Barrett uses in his art. Moreover, each of these lovely plates will be decorated with a border of pure 24 karat gold.

Signature Edition available for a limited time

The Signature Edition of "The Woodland Year" by Peter Barrett will be distinctive because it is the only edition of this collection that will bear the signature of the artist on each plate.

In the tradition of fine porcelain, the plates in this desirable Signature Edition will be issued only during a single year—and will never be made available again. Thus, the total number of sets in the Signature Edition will be forever limited to the exact number of valid subscriptions entered by the end of 1981, plus one set for the artist and one for the archives of Franklin Porcelain.

The collection of twelve plates will be sent to subscribers at the rate of one every other month, and the issue price for each plate is just $55, payable in two convenient monthly installments of $27.50 each. This favorable price is guaranteed to subscribers for each of the twelve plates in the collection, regardless of any rise in costs during the entire subscription period.

To enter your subscription for the Signature Edition, be sure to mail the application at right to Franklin Porcelain, Franklin Center, Pa. 19091, by August 31, 1981.

DOCTORS & GUNS

Nobody is saying this has anything to do with collecting medical bills, but...according to a recent survey in MD Magazine, 42 percent of the nation's 450,000 physicians own handguns. In comparison, roughly 15 to 25 percent of American families are handgun owners, report both the National Rifle Association and the U.S. Conference of Mayors. The MD survey notes that doctors living in rural areas are much more likely to own handguns than those living in urban centers and that physicians practicing 10 years or more are more commonly handgun owners than their younger colleagues.

realistic tests to see if they can cope with specific military duties. Right now, we are using pre-World War II standards."

Kerr has already written letters of protest to the various armed-forces branches (he's pictured holding a "no" from the Navy), Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, even to President Reagan himself. "I'm always reading about the tremendous shortage of military personnel in the U.S., and there are people like me who want to help," says Kerr. "It's just driving me crazy."

HITTING THE RIGHT NOTE

Every kid who's had to sit forlornly over the piano or under the violin while the other kids were out playing ball should perk up after hearing Dr. John Bengston.

Bengston, a professor of educational psychology at the University of Florida, cautions parents, "Forget about forcing kids to learn an instrument. It won't work. Forcing someone to do anything just creates negative associations. Children must do it for its intrinsic rewards, not so they'll get praise or candy. We speak of 'playing music,' so there must be elements of play involved."

H. Armstrong Roberts

The best way to encourage children to stick with an instrument is to start them out on songs they already enjoy, says Bengston. Other suggestions he offers for parents (and music teachers) are: Expose children to music early by taking them to concerts and making music part of the home; give group lessons instead of individual ones ("makes it less of an isolated activity, less like work"); be sure the child sees progress being made ("Don't just focus on what he still has to learn"), and possibly pick up a new instrument yourself ("It's a great way to bring the whole family together").

THE BOOK ON SPORTS BETS

It's estimated that $50 to $70 billion each year is bet illegally on sports, and that one out of every four persons who watches a sporting event on TV is betting on it. Twenty-four-hour-a-day TV sports networks, up-to-the-minute sports scores a mere phone call away, the daily point-spreads published in most newspapers — these are all subtle concessions to gambling's influence on sport. And though all major sports czars have decried it, at least one expert says we'll see legalized sports gambling in the U.S. within the decade.

"The U.S. is about 5,000 years behind. Almost every other country allows sports gambling," says Robert Kalich, who spent eight years investigating the netherworld of sports betting before writing his new novel, The Handicapper. "I'd much rather have Government take over the business so the money can go into the hands of those who really need it, instead of continuing to be funneled where it is now — straight to organized crime."

THE JOY OF SITTING

Do you feel achy and fatigued at the end of each working day? If so, the answer might be as simple as lowering your chair. An office chair that is too high can put unnecessary pressure on the back of your legs, causing poor circulation. To determine the correct height for your chair, here's a little test, courtesy of GF Business Equipment. Sitting erect with your feet on the floor, put a piece of paper under the lower part of your thigh. Now try to pull the paper from beneath your leg. If you can't do it fairly easily, your chair is too high.

HOLLOWED WORDS! A friend suggests these zany definitions: 1. Fine arts: Know-how for dispensing traffic tickets. 2. Camelot: A parking place for camels. 3. Fixed star: A crooked athlete. 4. Checkout counter: Census taker at the morgue. Any to add?

Simple Math! Select three consecutive numbers. Total them, and divide the total by three. Presto, you have the middle number.

For Sealers! Find two seas and one ocean among these sentences: 1. We honor the brave. 2. He came lumbering in. 3. "Never mind," I answered.

Riddle-Me-This! Which is the thriftiest musical instrument? The frugal-horn. Why was the threadbare carpet angry? It missed its nap.

ESP. ANYONE? LET'S SEE

Remove the four aces from a deck of playing cards. Place the aces face up on the table. Now, concentrate on each of the concealed cards in the remainder of the pack. See how many hearts, clubs, etc., you can "see through" to pile on respective aces.

It is possible that you will make a dozen "hits" or more just by chance. Should you achieve a better score consistently, it may be that you have fine-tuned extra-sensory perception — or is it just a run of luck?

HAY THERE! What can you draw to complete this curious zoo scene? To find out, simply connect dots 1 to 2 to 3, etc.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words.

Our Story: WITH A CURIOUS BAND OF ALLIES, RORY MOR HAS LANDED IN BRITAIN TO LIFT MORDRED'S SIEGE OF CAMELOT. THE INVASION FORCE SPLITS UP: SALAM FULDA AND HIS CORSAIRS SAIL UP THE RIVER TEST; RORY MOR MARCHES OVERLAND TO MEET THE FOE HEAD-ON; AND GALAN CREEPS THROUGH "MUCKEN MIRE" WITH HIS GRANDFATHER TO SURPRISE MORDRED FROM THE REAR.

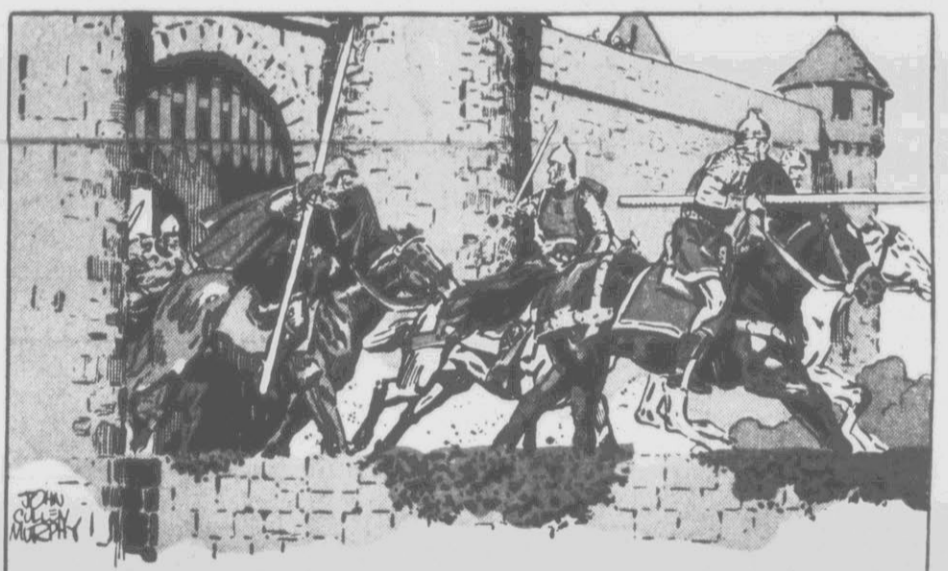

THEY ATTACK AT DAWN ON A SULTRY SUMMER MORN. THE PICTS ARE GROGGY FROM THEIR STRANGE RITUALS OF THE NIGHT BEFORE AS GALAN AND KING AGUAR EMERGE FROM THE MISTY MARSH. THE MEN OF THULE ARE SAVAGE BUT EFFICIENT.

NOW SALAM FULDA'S PIRATES LEAP TO SHORE. THE FIGHTING IS TOO CLOSE FOR PIKES AND ARROWS, BUT THE CORSAIRS ARE MASTERS OF THE FRANKISH SHORT-SWORD. SOON THE BANKS OF THE RIVER ARE IN FRIENDLY HANDS.

ON THE WESTERN PLAIN RORY MOR GIVES THE SIGNAL. "TO VICTORY," HE CRIES.

PRINCE VALIANT WATCHES THE BATTLE UNFOLD FROM THE TOWERS OF CAMELOT. FOR THREE MONTHS THE PALACE HAS BEEN UNDER SIEGE. IT IS TIME FOR ACTION. WITH A RUSTY GROAN THE PORTCULLIS IS PULLED HIGH, AND THE EARTH TREMBLES UNDER THE HOOVES.

The PHANTOM

by Lee Falk

IT WAS REAL SPOOKY IN THAT CAVE...

WHERE ALL THOSE GUYS WERE BURIED. (THE PHANTOM CRYPT).

"AT LAST... IN WHAT THE MASKED GUY CALLED HIS MUSEUM... THE DIAMOND CUP!"

WOW!

HOLD, DEVIL... THIS IS HOW YOU REPAY ME FOR SAVING YOUR LIFE?

I WASN'T GOING TO TAKE IT... HONEST...

I... I JUST WANTED TO SEE THE DIAMOND CUP AGAIN.

DEVIL CAN SMELL A LIE. SO CAN I...

GRRRR

"THAT WAS THE LAST I SAW OF HIM... WHOEVER HE WAS."

I DIDN'T DO ANYTHING. WHAT ARE THEY GOING TO DO TO ME?

"I WAS AFRAID... THEY'D FINISH ME... UNTIL I SAW THAT CHOPPER... HOW DID IT GET THERE?"

JUNGLE PATROL

WHEW...

"ONCE MORE... I SAW THAT PEAK LIKE A MAN'S HEAD... HIS HEAD..."

A HEAD... HIS HEAD... UHHH...

LOUIE PASSED OUT! YOU SAVED HIM TOO MUCH BOOZE, MISTER.

WHAT A CRAZY STORY!

CONT'D

Stoep

HEY... WHO'S THAT KID WARMIN' UP IN THE PEN?

ZZZMRMF...

GEEZ! THE TURKEYS ARE GIVING THIS BALL GAME AWAY!!

YOUR ATTENTION PLEASE, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

NOW BATTING FOR NUMBER SEVEN

BAGES LOADED, NO OUTS AND IT'S THE BOTTOM OF THE NINTH...

NO WAY THEY CAN HANG ON TO THIS ONE-RUN LEAD...

YEAH... THIS KID CAN REALLY HIT.

LOOKOUT!

HEY! HE'S GOT IT! TAG HIM!! GO TO THIRD! YEAH!

TRIPLE PLAY!!

In perhaps the most thrilling baseball finale ever witnessed by this reporter...

TAPPA TAPPA TAP

FLASH GORDON

by Dan Barry

OFF A TROPICAL ISLAND ON THE PLANET MONGO, FISHERMEN IN DEEP TROUBLE.

SEA MONSTER! WE ARE DOOMED!

EIYAHH!

ARRA-HISSST!

IT DOVE BENEATH THE WATERS! WHY?

LET US PRAY IT DOES NOT RETURN!

IT IS TERAKI!! THE SHARK BOY!

HOW CAN WE THANK YOU, TERAKI? IS ENOUGH! YOU ARE SOME GIFT?

YOU ARE SAFE! THAT IS ENOUGH! YOU ARE MY BROTHERS!
