Ceasefire Is Reached By Palestinians And Israel

By The Associated Press
The United States announced an end to "all hostile military action between Lebanese and Israeli territory" today after two weeks of bloodshed that left more than 450 Arabs dead in Israeli strikes into Lebanon and six Israelis killed by Palestinian rockets.

The truce took hold after an Israeli night raid into Lebanon which the Tel Aviv command said killed three guerrillas in a jeep. The Palestinians replied with a rocket barrage that killed a 65-year-old Israeli and wounded 14 in the northern Israeli town of Kiryat Shmona.

The rockets that fell at 9:15 a.m. — 3:15 a.m. EDT — were the last shots fired by the Palestinians, and when the cease-fire took effect some four hours later, all guns were silent, correspondents in northern Israel said.

Israel's deputy defense minister, Mordechai Zippori, told Israel Radio that Israel negotiated the truce with the Lebanese government, but that Saudi Arabia, the Arabs' main bankroller, was the prime Arab force. "She can dictate the moves to the Syrians, the Lebanese and others," Zippori said.

He also said he was optimistic that the U.S. embargo on delivery of F-16 jet fighters to Israel would be lifted soon. But the Reagan administration said it was not yet prepared to resume shipment.

A White House spokesman said the president welcomed Habib's announcement "as a hopeful and encouraging sign" for the Mideast.

"I have today reported to President Reagan that as of 1330 hours local time — 7:30 a.m. EDT — July 24, 1981, all hostile military action between Lebanese and Israeli territory, in either direction, will cease," U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib announced in Jerusalem.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, standing at his side, added: "The government of Israel endorsed the statement just made to you by Mr. Philip Habib, the emissary of the president of the United States."

In Beirut, Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization made no comment on the Habib statement but reiterated it would abide by a U.N.-endorsed truce that had been urged for today if Israel adhered to it. The PLO said this position was communicated to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim Thursday.

In Washington, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said the United States was not yet ready to let Israel have 10 F-16 jet fighters despite Israel's agreement to a cease-fire. He told CBS Morning News that "we are going to be watching the situation very carefully for hours and days and perhaps weeks ahead."

Washington withheld delivery of F-16 fighters to Israel because of the devastating air raid on Beirut last Friday. Several cabinet officials had criticized Begin's bombing policy, but the administration backed off Thursday.

Habib's statement did not use the word cease-fire, apparently because the Israelis feared this would connote some form of recognition of the PLO as a full-fledged party in the conflict.

"The government did not want to reach any sort of direct arrangement with the terrorist organizations but it was willing to accept a lull and peaceful relations in the north," Israeli Education Minister Zevulun Hammer said in Jerusalem.

He called it "a time-out during which we will look and see what an understanding between us and the other side means in the north."

The truce was announced after Habib and Begin met for 90 minutes, and the Israeli Cabinet held a 2½-hour session to discuss the situation.

A few hours earlier, Palestinian rockets crashed into Kiryat Shmona as settlers were shopping for the Jewish Sabbath, killing a man and wounding the others. The town reacted to news of the cease-fire with relief tinged with suspicion.

U.S. Not Prepared Give F-16s To Israel Just Yet

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said today the United States is not yet ready to let Israel have 10 F-16 jet fighters despite Israel's agreement to a cease-fire with Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon.

"We are going to be watching the situation very carefully for hours and days and perhaps weeks ahead," Haig said in an interview on the CBS "Morning News."

The Reagan administration has delayed delivery of the planes twice in the last week in response to forays by Israeli jets deep into Lebanon.

Israel had said the postponements were unjust, but Haig said today the escalation of violence in the area "made it inappropriate for the president to send that kind of lethal equipment into Israel."

The suspension was imposed by Reagan on June 10, three days after Israel bombed an Iraqi nuclear reactor with U.S.-supplied warplanes. The suspension first involved four aircraft but has now held up the delivery of six additional F-16s.

Haig said the United States was "very encouraged" about the cease-fire, announced in Tel Aviv by Philip C. Habib, Reagan's Mideast peace envoy.

Asked if the F-16 shipments would resume soon, he said, "This remains to be seen."

The secretary said Habib will resume his earlier efforts to defuse tensions over the presence of Soviet-built Syrian anti-aircraft missiles in southern Lebanon.

"Now clearly, the border area of southern Lebanon is an additional factor that will have to be dealt with, and we hope effectively," Haig said.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan welcomed Habib's announcement "as a hopeful and encouraging sign on the road to achieving peace in this critical region of the world."

Haig said there were no new channels used to negotiate the cease-fire.

"I don't think there are any tricky little keys involved," he said. "There's nothing new or unusual that was done that hasn't been under way for considerable period of time," Haig said.

The cease-fire was announced after the Reagan administration backed away from official criticism of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin for his two-week military offensive into Lebanon.

"We feel they (the Israelis) are as committed to a cessation of hostilities and violence as we are," State Department spokesman Dean Fisher said on Thursday. "Of course, we think Begin shares our objectives."

Haig said today that it took "a degree of moderation and responsibility on all sides" to bring about the cease-fire. "I think it's a very encouraging first step. After all, we have achieved what we had hoped for in the immediate sense."

Other officials, who asked not to be identified, said Thursday that the administration believed that continued criticism of Begin could impair efforts to ease tensions in the area.

IRS Said To Be Checking On Jimmy Green

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lieutenant Gov. Jimmy Green, who has admitted taking a cash gift from a paving executive sentenced in the bid-rigging scandal, is under investigation by the Internal Revenue Service.

The News and Observer of Raleigh reported today that the investigation, which covers at least three years, was sparked by Green's acceptance of the cash from an official of a company that paved the Jimmy Green Brightleaf Warehouse parking lot in Clarkton.

The investigation is not limited to that incident, however, sources told the newspaper.

As part of the investigation, the IRS recently contacted the North Carolina Department of Revenue to obtain copies of Green's state tax returns.

IRS agents are reportedly trying to determine whether federal tax laws — civil or criminal — have been violated in either of two areas:

— Green has said that he did not report the gift from William W. Crowell, president of Crowell Constructors Inc. of Fayetteville. Under state and federal law, the donor of a gift above $3,000 is required to pay taxes on it.

— Green's company deducted the cost of the paving as a business expense in 1977, but Wilbur E. Dees, a former official of the paving company, has said that the money was returned to Green through the cash gift. Green has said he doesn't remember the specific amount of the gift.

Green, a wealthy farmer and warehouseman, could not be reached for comment.

During a June 26 news conference, Green said he had broken no tax laws by accepting the gift. A potential candidate for governor in 1984, Green has said he is unsure what impact the disclosures might have on his political future.

Crowell served a 90-day prison sentence earlier this year for anti-trust violations in highway paving.

During the bid-rigging investigation, state and federal investigators were told that Crowell's company paved a parking lot at Green's warehouse and billed the warehouse for about $4,775, half the cost of the job.

Crowell later returned the money to Green in cash, Dees said.

State Bureau of Investigation agents have said they found no criminal violations in the incident.

Reagan Revising Tax Cut Plan To Offset Inflation

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told House Republicans today he is revising his tax-cut plan again to include automatic annual adjustments in personal taxes to offset inflation.

A leading congressional Republican said, meanwhile, that the president also is offering new tax breaks for the oil industry, farmers and small businesses in a bid to hold wavering Republicans and woo conservative Democrats in the House.

Democratic leaders claim they have enough votes to pass a rival bill.

Reagan, in a pep talk to House GOP members, said his revised tax package "is a good and a fair tax bill. . . This tax cut is the most crucial item left on our agenda for prosperity."

"If we remain together, we can change the course of history," the president said.

He was interrupted several times by applause.

Reagan said his plan would stimulate the economy and protect against inflation, while the Democrats' proposal, which would peg a third-year tax cut to an improved economy, would leave taxpayers worse off.

He said the central purpose of the Democratic plan "is to defeat us and provide a political victory for themselves."

The president did not dwell on Democrats' demands for greater tax relief for taxpayers with incomes under $50,000 a year.

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., senior tax-writer in the House, told reporters the revised Reagan tax bill will include a Senate-passed "indexing" amendment that would, in effect, make the tax code inflation-proof; a new $2,500-a-year tax break for owners of oil-producing lands; a provision retaining the 22-percent depletion allowance for independent oil producers, and increased incentives for small businesses.

President Plans Meet On CIA Chief Uproar

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said today he will meet with senators about his embattled CIA director, William J. Casey.

Reagan, leaving a Capitol Hill meeting with House Republicans, again expressed faith in Casey and said "I have not changed my mind" about supporting him.

"I'm talking to senators today," he added.

Later, presidential spokesman David Gergen said it may be staff members, rather than Reagan himself, who talk with senators. "There will be discussions with senators today," Gergen added.

Neither Reagan nor Gergen said which senators would be involved or whether both Democrats and Republicans would be included.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said earlier that White House chief of staff James A. Baker would talk to Sen. Barry Goldwater, who on Thursday accused Casey of damaging the spy agency.

Goldwater, chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, publicly suggested that Casey resign and said committee investigators were examining whether the CIA director, who has been on the job six months, misled the Senate during his confirmation process last January.

choice of Max Hugel, a New Hampshire businessman who had worked on the Reagan presidential campaign, to be the CIA's director of operations, a highly secret and sensitive job. Casey was Reagan's national campaign director last year.

"That he (Casey) appointed an inexperienced man to be in effect the nation's top spy was bad enough," Goldwater said. "I must say that as a person with a long involvement with intelligence matters, that was a very bad mistake and I might even say dangerous."

"The damage done by Mr.

Hugel's appointment is a sufficient position for Mr. Casey to decide to retire or the president to have him retire," the senator said.

The Arizona Republican noted, however: "Mr. Casey is a creature of the president. As long as the president retains confidence in him, he stays."

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., told reporters today he talked to Goldwater about the situation early today and "I want to back up Goldwater in whatever he decides to do."

Prices Are Up

The Greenville Tobacco Market completed the second day of the 1981 season on Thursday with a price average of $165.01 per hundred pounds, bettering the recording-breaking average of $162.15 posted on opening day.

While poundage figures and sales totals did not match first day marks, the increased average recorded yesterday reflected continued high quality offerings on local warehouse floors.

The market sold 791,441 pounds yesterday for $1,305,987 in recording the $165.01 per hundred pounds average. Opening day figures were 1,122,539 pounds sold for $1,820,234.

Beltwide, the 11 eastern markets holding sales Thursday recorded an overall average of $160.94 per hundred pounds, up slightly from the opening day belt average of $160.92 per hundred.

Markets totals were supplied by the Market News Service.

Life As It's Lived

Temporary Amnesia Is Turned Into Art Form

By GAIL MICHAELS
As far back as I can remember, my memory has been singularly inconvenient. My brain cells thrive on pure junk. My food for thought during those precious moments of reflection bears a disturbing resemblance to the contents of a vending machine at a pinball parlor.

What it really boils down to is that I remember everything I don't want to remember. I remember in chilling detail every faux pas I've ever made at a social gathering of more than one person. And if that isn't enough to occupy my reveries for the next 40 years at least, I can pull from the backwaters of my mind all the Alka Seltzer jingles, the names of the cast of "Happy Days," the arguments on each side in the Ann Landers columns on the correct way for toilet tissue to roll, or the lyrics of those recording classics of my early youth, "Johnny Angel," "Hey There Little Red Riding Hood," "Wild Thing," and "It's My Party and I'll Cry if I Want To."

But just let me try to extract from that mishmash a favorite quote from Tennyson or Shakespeare, and I might as well be fishing for a bit of eggshell in a bowl of cake batter.

I have the same problem with household matters. If I'm going out for a walk, I will remember to lock every door from the front door to the one leading to the utility room. I will not remember, however, to check my pocketbook for my keys.

Meg's memory, in stark contrast to mine, is the convenient kind. She remembers with startling accuracy every promise I've ever made, every conversation she shouldn't but did overhear, and how much pressure my fragile mental condition can withstand before my temper explodes.

She's good at forgetting, too. I have watched her face as she is confronted with a choice between naughty and nice, and finding the former more attractive, she struggles to erase the thin chalklines of my 1001 commandments.

"Meg, why did you blow that cola out of the straw?" I demanded at the culmination of one such mental exercise. "You know what bad manners that is."

Her face is bland with innocence. "I forgot."

With practice she has transformed temporary amnesia into an art form. Not only is she able to forget almost any rule of behavior in the face of temptation, but she is training us to give no more than one simple instruction at a time.

"I can't remember so many things all together," she tells me as she sits in her pajamas in front of the block castle she is building.

"Meg, we have 10 minutes before we are due at the dentist's. All I asked you was to brush your teeth and get dressed."

"I did brush my teeth."

"But you didn't get dressed."

"I told you, I forgot."

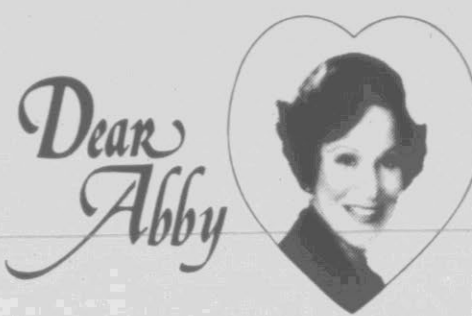

"Meg, we go through this same routine almost every morning. Why can't you remember to get ready without being reminded every 15 seconds?"

"I don't know. I guess I just have a bad rememberer."

"It's a pretty convenient memory if you ask me. You seem to be able to remember just exactly what you want to."

"But Mommy, didn't you ever have a convenient memory when you were a little girl?"

To tell you the truth, I forget.

Dear Abby

Generation Gap Opens Over Lifestyle Without License

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our 25-year-old daughter is living with her fiance. They consider themselves committed to each other in a mature, loving relationship. They are both in satisfying work situations, but neither of them wishes to marry at this time.

Although my wife and I were not happy when our daughter and her fiance chose that kind of lifestyle, we trust their maturity and judgment. Her grandparents, on the other hand, are shocked and totally unforgiving. Their relationship with her formerly was excellent, but they now feel that she is living a sinful, immoral life and they make no distinction between her lifestyle and that of a young woman who sleeps around with several partners.

Our daughter has written them several long, affectionate letters explaining her values and feelings, but to no avail. What would your advice be to the grandparents? And how would you advise the granddaughter? Is it possible to bridge the double generation gap?

NEW YORK

DEAR NEW YORK: Since the grandparents consider their granddaughter's lifestyle as sinful, I would advise them to "hate the sin, but love the sinner."

And I would advise the granddaughter to keep trying to persuade her grandparents to respect her right to make her own decisions and to trust her judgment.

DEAR ABBY: I have several children, and over the years I have bought lovely shower and wedding gifts for all their friends. I have given expensive parties as well, and I later sent them baby gifts. All this I was happy to do, but now many of their close friends are divorced and I am receiving invitations to their second weddings!

How do you suggest I handle these? Abby, please tell people that it is not proper to send invitations to second weddings.

HAD IT WITH SECOND-TIMERS

DEAR HAD IT: It is not "improper" to send an invitation, providing the invitation is sincere.

What you want to do about it is up to you. You obviously feel pressured to send a gift because you received an invitation. Since you've had it with second-timers, send your regrets and best wishes.

***

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, 74, and my boyfriend is 67 and single. We both live in a nursing center — that's where we fell in love. We want to get married, but my boyfriend is on welfare and I understand that if I marry him, he will be taken off welfare and I will have to support him. I have some money, but I would rather not support him if I don't have to.

My children tell us to forget about marriage and just continue to be sweethearts like we have been doing. I have nothing against this, but I would prefer to get married unless, of course, it means supporting him. Please advise.

IN LOVE AT LAST

DEAR IN LOVE: Each state has its own laws concerning welfare recipients. However, in most states a person is not eligible for welfare if a spouse is able to provide support. Inquire at your local welfare department, and find out if this applies to you.

***

DEAR ABBY: Sharp as you usually are, it's apparent that you were never a "second wife." That woman who refuses to attend family gatherings with her husband's ex-wife doesn't have a problem. She's normal. No woman wants to socialize with her husband's first wife who's been part of his family for years and probably worked hard at getting them to like her.

The in-laws should be more sensitive and entertain each wife separately.

SECOND WIFE

DEAR SECOND: You're right, of course, and many readers wrote to point it out. Score: Readers, 100; Abby, 0.

Couple Weds On Saturday

ROCKY MOUNT — Audrey Celeste McCarter and Clarence Steve Forte were united in marriage Saturday at four o'clock in the afternoon in Morning Star Church of Christ Disciples of Christ here. The double ring ceremony was performed by Elder R. T. McCarter, father of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Elder and Mrs. McCarter of Ayden. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Cleora Chavis of Saint Albans, N. Y. and Mr. Clarence Forte of Raleigh.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Sarah Armstrong of Rocky Mount, organist and soloist and Miss Rosita Forte, sister of the bridegroom of Philadelphia, Pa.

Escorted to the altar by her brother, Capt. Carlton McCarter and given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal white gown of sheerganza and chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned with a high neckline and a schiffli embroidered yoke encrusted with pearls and lace bishop sleeves with lace cuffs. The full lace appliqued sheerganza skirt with ante bellum scallops over a lace ruffle flowed into an attached chapel train. Her walking length veil of silk illusion, bordered in lace, was attached to a lace Camelot etched with pearls. She carried a formal cascade of white carnations accented with baby's breath and English ivy on a white lace Bible.

Linda Williams of Rocky Mount was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Michelle and Mia Overby of Rocky Mount, Shayna Taswell of Goldsboro, Veronica Yates of Rockville, Md. and Wanda Forte, sister of the bridegroom of Raleigh. The junior bridesmaids were Terri Overby and Lenora Wooten of Rocky Mount. The attendants wore formal gowns of yellow chiffon over yellow taffeta with a ruffled front and back neckline, bow trim, capelet sleeves. The modified A-line skirt fell from a semi-empire waistline. A ruffled flounce at the hemline extended up the back of the gown to the waistline forming a bustle. They carried a white lace fan accented with miniature yellow silk flowers and baby's breath tied with matching satin ribbons.

Derrick Battle of Raleigh was best man and groomsmen were Sheldon McCarter, brother of the bride of Ayden, Kenneth Forte, brother of the bridegroom of Saint Albans, N. Y., Andre Lovett of Ayden, William Davis of Greenville and Kevin Barnhill of Rocky Mount. Junior groomsmen were Tiffin McCarter, brother of the bride of Ayden and Gerald Jenkins of Rocky Mount.

Jarrec McCarter, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer and Minnikki Miles, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

The bride's mother selected a formal gown of maize matte jersey designed with an open neckline. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of mint green luster glo designed with an open split neckline. Each carried a hand cluster of white and yellow daisies.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Lillie J. Solomon of Enfield and Mrs. Christine Overby presided at the guest register.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall with Mrs. Luraline Cooper and Mrs. Sally Ellison as hostesses. Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Barnhill greeted guests.

Miss Robin Garris poured punch and Miss Sandra Rudd served cake. Others assisting were ladies of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. Good-byes were said by Mrs. Queenie Batts.

Scrolls were given to guests by Keith Barnhill, Alvin Chavis and Tony Graham. Rice bags were distributed by Sekethia Williams, Shon Archabell and Charmie Forte.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the home of Mrs. Eddie Mae Davis and was given by the parents of the bridegroom.

A breakfast was given by Mrs. Eddie Mae Davis, Mrs. Dorothy Newell and Miss Linda Williams at the home of Mrs. Davis.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will be living in Raleigh.

- 1/2 cup whole blanched almonds
- 2 tablespoons sesame seeds
- 2 medium cloves garlic, peeled
- 1 small onion, peeled and quartered
- 3 medium tomatoes (about 1 pound), skinned and quartered
- 4-ounce can peeled green chilies, drained
- 1/4 cup unsweetened cocoa
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1 cup clear fat-free chicken broth
- Salt to taste

In a food processor, with the metal blade, process together the almonds and sesame seeds, dropping the garlic through the feed tube, until paste like. Uncover processor; add onion, tomatoes, chilies, cocoa, cinnamon and coriander; process until thick and puree-like. Remove to a 2-quart saucepan — you need this size because mixture will sputter — and stir in the broth; simmer uncovered, stirring occasionally, until reduced to 2 cups very thick sauce — about 30 minutes. In a 12-inch skillet in the hot butter, brown the chicken; turn all pieces skin side up; add the sauce; simmer covered, stirring the thick sauce often, until chicken is tender — about 30 minutes. (We remove the breast meat after only 15 minutes and keep it warm.) Sauce will be quite thick. Makes 6 servings.

I don't know how people who have no children have a time frame for anything.

How do they remember the year they bought the freezer? Made the last payment of the storm windows? Visited their cousins in Richmond?

I don't remember the names of my kids, but I remember how big they were when we bought the camper and how old they were when I joined a book club.

Maybe it's because kids have a way of making an indelible impression on you with everything they do. All I know is, my sister-in-law (who has five children) and I carry on some interesting conversations.

S-I-L: Do you remember the year you came to Florida and we fed the alligators frozen bread?

Me: Of course I remember. S-I-L: What year was that? Me: Let's see, the baby must have been a couple of months old because we left him with a sitter.

S-I-L: Are you sure it was the baby? Because my baby was two and there's a two-and-a-half-years' difference.

Me: There's not two and a half years because you sent me the maternity clothes after you gave birth and I was just two months.

S-I-L: You went into maternity clothes at two months? Me: I went into maternity clothes at two weeks!

S-I-L: The Florida room wasn't finished then because that's the year Patty went in-

Changes Are Ahead

President Reagan's economic belt-tightening is beginning to hit home in eastern North Carolina. Its impact will be felt even more this fall when, in a reversal of past policy, the Farmers Home Administration implements its ban on cash farm rentals.

Cash rentals have become a way of life for farmers in Pitt County. Their absence will be felt immediately, especially by elderly landowners who have become dependent on the first-of-the-year rent money. The FmHA is suggesting that any cash be passed in the fall when crops are sold. That would mean an additional six to nine months before the landowner can be paid.

The FmHA, unofficially, has suggested some exceptions may be made. And the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association will continue to finance cash rentals. So money will be available for qualified borrowers.

Over the years those farmers who depend on leased tobacco quotas or rented land have acquired all of the risk in crop production. They also have incurred tremendous interest payments on loans for cash rentals.

Delayed payments, coming from the proceeds of the crop itself, will eliminate that interest and reduce the risk of failure.

There are certain to be hardships, especially as noted above, but there also are other considerations that can't really be predicted.

Questions are raised: Will quota owners agree to wait for their money, or will they opt to go for the first lease to put cash in the hand? And if they do go for the cash, will this drive more and more smaller farmers out of the market? And how many owners will elect to return to sharecropping where, in effect, they voluntarily share the risk of a failure along with the possibility of making more money in the long run if there is a good crop?

We know that, to many owners, tobacco — and its quota — has a psychological attachment; it's almost a member of the family. They will continue to choose, and choose carefully, the individual to whom they turn over quota and land. It will be interesting to see how the other owners react to the new money policy.

AGREE ON THE AILMENT, BUT NOT ON THE CURE

Even Eagles Don't Dare

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
HOMER, Alaska (AP) —

In this fantastic far north country, where most roads go only to the airport and, along the others, it's 500 miles between the rhyming lines of a Burma Shave sign, a cheechako — a newcomer — is obliged early on to master the art of small plane passengership.

Survival in the white knuckle school of wilderness flying is a simple matter of not giving a damn up here, where eagles don't dare to hover over some spots regularly visited by bush pilots.

Except, according to some authorities, bush pilots aren't what they used to be either. It seems the best of them have gone off to work for better pay in the oilfields up on the North Slope, while hot shoe replacements from Louisiana and Texas spend their time leaning out of their cockpit with a Mobil map trying to find out where they are and how high that mountain is up ahead.

Not to worry. That's what he or she gets paid for. The passenger needs only have under his seat buckle a few basic psychological techniques guaranteed to keep his courage up and his breakfast down.

First off, forget the scenery. It's too scary to contemplate in the best of weather. I find the most comforting cowardly rule is to follow the lyrics of "Old Man River": don't look up and don't look down. Try not to look too frightened, lest you discomfort the pilot, and never look at the instrument panel.

It doesn't make any difference where you sit. The view of the glacier or the waterfall or the grazing caribou will always be out the other fellow's window. Out yours you get the darting tongue of lightning, the ominous squall line and the jagged peaks of a range ringed with storm clouds. Choose, if you can, the tandem seat, back there with the baggage, the parachutes and the rations for the lucky ground-bound sled dogs.

Refrain especially from gazing out the window during landing approaches to gravel strips, glaciers, lakes, moose pastures — wherever the pilot has decided to set her down. The bones and shards of busted up airplanes scattered about in the boonocks do not inspire passenger confidence. Even jetting into Anchorage, an airport which handles more traffic than Newark, is like descending on Junkyard City. Some of the plane skeletons lying out in the woods have been there, so I am told, since World War II.

Pay no attention whatever to anything the pilot is doing, and never study the expression on his face. There are times when the imperturbable cool behind those windshield-sized sunglasses disintegrates into a lip curling, nail biting anxiety neurosis.

I prefer small planes large enough for the pilot to draw the curtain discreetly on his dashboard voodoo. I don't want to see him pulling levers and flicking switches at the wink of a red warning light, and it particularly unnerves me when he digs into the briefcase beneath the seat for yet another map or chart or factory checklist. If he's lost or got what the airlines euphemistically call "a mechanical," I don't want to know about it. I got my own problems trying to get the knots out of my rosary.

For all I know, he may be searching around for his parachute. I still recall with deep shivers that New Yorker cartoon of passengers on a jumbo jet at cocktail time gazing curiously — out the windows at the pilots and the stewardesses floating by on parachutes.

Never, never try to make small talk with the pilot. Bush pilots have no small talk except for cheery little throw-away lines like, "Any landing you walk away from up here is a good one."

Macabre merriment of this ilk seems to afflict the jauntier of the commercial airline flyboys, the ones who wear their caps at a rakish angle and chatter away inanely on the intercom. I heard tell of a nervous old Irish woman, coming to America for the first time, who got up enough courage to stammer out a question to the four-striper on his folksy visit down the aisle:

"D-d-d-do these sort of planes crash fairly often?"

"No, ma'am. Usually just once," he guffawed.

Mercifully, most pilots are painfully prosaic about their humorless profession. An assignment once took me to Idaho's River of No Return. The trip entailed flying in a small plane along a narrow canyon wall at an early hour in the morning, before temperatures increased air currents, and land on a tiny gravel strip at the bottom of a jagged mountain. The pilot had one arm, which spent

Presenting A Divorce

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The trouble with drunk drivers is that they are not thought of as bad guys. They're the people next door: Uncle Harry; your children's classmate.

In the minds of many jurors is the attitude that, but for the Grace of God, I would be in the defendant's seat instead of behind this railing. That attitude, a lot of judges and prosecutors think, makes getting a conviction on driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs particularly hard.

And that is the reason often given by court officials for the low conviction rate on drunk driving charges in North Carolina, and for the continued decline.

The General Assembly passed a new law effective at the start of 1975 which makes it illegal to drive a vehicle when the driver's blood alcohol content is 10 percent or more. And the law sets up rigid requirements for taking a test to determine the blood-alcohol level.

Despite the law, however, court conviction of those who "blow 10 or more" continues to decline. An Institute of Government specialist in motor vehicle law detailed the figures county by county and concluded:

Courts
"There is nothing wrong with the DUI law as now written. It is clear, concise, and as simple to enforce as a speed limit law. The North Carolina General Assembly has done its part. Now it is up to the criminal justice system."

But Ben F. Loeb's comparison of the outcome of trials of drivers whose blood alcohol level exceeded .10 percent showed the conviction rate statewide is down from 75.6 percent in 1975 to 68.4 percent in 1979. He plans to continue keeping tabs by computer data now being kept ready for use.

Meanwhile, a number of local court officials have been challenged on these results by local citizens and local newspapers. Almost without exception, court officials describe how difficult it is to get a jury conviction when the defendant is an otherwise nice person, and faces the extreme hardship of getting along without a driving license.

As numerous judges will tell you: money is no object. They will hire the best lawyer in town and do anything possible to save that license. Prosecutors many times will settle for a guilty plea on a reduced charge such as reckless driving to avoid the tough fight.

Are drunk drivers — despite the fact that they figure in half the wrecks on Tar Heel highways — otherwise respectable people?

The State Department of Human Resources ran a survey of 33,356 North Carolinians referred to the new alcohol and drug education schools after being convicted of traffic violations involving drugs or alcohol.

The typical student can be described as a 19-year-old, single, white male with a 12th grade education and a full-time job.

Statewide
The schools can be a required part of court action, and individuals convicted of driving drunk, registering .10 or more on a breathalyzer or blood test, or reckless driving after drinking can be sent to the schools. There are 88 of them serving the entire state.

About 44 percent of those attending were under age 25. That age group is almost evenly split between those under age 20 and those between 20 and 25.

White males make up the majority of students, at 68 percent. Black males make up 19 percent. White females compose eight percent; Indian males three percent; and black females, two percent.

Most of the students are well educated, with 35 percent having completed high school, and 69 percent having at least a seventh grade education. Surprisingly, however, 12 percent had no education.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum should be limited to 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit longer letters.

To the editor:

The Pitt County Commissioners have eliminated the position of county planner, effective August 31. This decision was made without opportunity for public input. Members of the County Planning Board were not consulted prior to the action and were never even officially informed of it. The argument presented by the County Commissioners that the pace of development in the county does not justify employment of a planner is simply not supported by the facts. As of this writing, July, 1981, 44 project plans have been submitted to the county planner, compared to 27 projects for all of 1980.

We have attended, as observers, a majority of the County Planning Board meetings during the decade since it was established and feel competent to evaluate its progress.

Pitt County is growing and changing much faster than most of its neighbors. Land use is shifting from rural to urban; services and utilities must be extended. Potential home owners and renters need protection from unregulated construction. Competent contractors and developers need protection from unfair competition from slipshod outfits that cut corners and sell homes of inferior quality, or inadequately drained lots, or with substandard road access, etc.

Our County Planning Board consists of 15 citizens selected from throughout the county who are dedicated to ensuring quality development. The Board members review development plans to make sure that they comply with standards and they attempt to resolve points of disagreement. Often, they provide a developer with information which makes it easier to get the plan approved by other agencies.

The Planning Board depends upon the expertise of a professionally trained planner. Each new planner (There have been four planners since the board was established.) requires at least a year to become familiar with county soils, roads, geography, contractors, people, politics, etc. This experience and knowledge is essential for effective planning. Thus, the County Commissioners have deprived our county of the services of an experienced professional planner for at least two years and probably longer.

Funds were provided in the Planning Department budget for a secretary to be shared with the Inspections Department. We would recommend that, if anything, the secretary position should be deleted to save money and that the position of county planner be reinstated.

Mr. Peter Ustinov, the British actor and playwright, and I happened to discuss different methods of presenting a divorce problem to an English, a French and an American theater audience.

To give an example, let's make up a scene from a play as the English would do it:

George: Jessie.
Jessie: Mmmm'm.
George: There's something I've been meaning to ask you for some time (about two and a half acts in fact).
Jessie: (Hard) Yes, George.

George: I ... that is ... I don't know how you're going to take this.

Jessie: I think I know what you're going to say.
George: How uncanny.
Jessie: But it's too late now.

George: I suppose it is, Whiskey?

Jessie: I don't mind if I do.
George: I imagine it was my fault in a way.

Jessie: Don't blame yourself, George.
George: Soda?

Jessie: Just a dash.
George: How's that? (holding up the glass)

Jessie: Dear George. That's fine.
George: You never did like it with ice.

Jessie: Never.

George: Well, thank God for that.

Jessie: Why do you say that?

George: There is no more

Jessie: I'll see you next week.

George: Is Pierre in town?

Jessie: I don't know, but Leon is.

George: Who's Leon?

Jessie: My, how possessive you've become.

"The Americans, on the other hand, are more for the stark realism of the thing," said Mr. Ustinov. "A saxophone must be playing nine blocks away, and a kid is crying across the road."

George: Jessie, I have something to tell you.

Jessie: I want a divorce.

George: But you haven't heard what I've got to say.

Jessie: Oh, for heaven's sakes, we're grown-up people. Let's not behave like children.

George: But for crying out loud...

Jessie: Mother said it would happen this way.

George: But...

Jessie: Let's not discuss it. It's vulgar and I'm not interested in the details.

George: Will you shut up...

Jessie: Don't raise your voice, George.

George: I just wanted to say...

Jessie: Whatever it is, I'm sure the lawyers will be able to settle it.

George: Settle what?

Jessie: Let's be friends. The children will never have to know.

George: Where are you going?

Jessie: Reno, Mexico City, Tucson. I'll send you a postcard. And I hope you'll be very happy.

George: (sitting down heavily) Never thought about it. Maybe I will.

Jessie: You are only telling me something I have known for two years.

George: No, I mean a new mistress.

Jessie: But, what will happen to Maria?

George: I don't know.

Jessie: The poor thing. I'll take her to the collections.

George: (reproachfully) Please do. You never were very nice to her.

Jessie: (more reproachfully) You never brought her around.

George: I suppose you are right.

Jessie: Is she much prettier than I am?

George: Much prettier.

Jessie: I'm glad. Otherwise I would have been jealous.

Feels Heat In Meeting Goals

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — When Paul Volcker accepted the chairmanship of the Federal Reserve Board he promised to do his best to take the heat out of inflation with a restrictive monetary policy.

Over the past two years he has fulfilled the promise. He concedes the job isn't done, a point he underscored this week by lowering still further his goals for adding to the economy's supply of money.

But as the inflation thermometer drops — the second quarter came in at an annual rate of just 6 percent — Volcker is feeling more heat. As he succeeds, at least in his view, the criticisms grow more intense.

Understandably, because success for the Volcker policy means slower economic growth, some painful readjustments to lower standards, tough times for some businesses and very likely a rise in unemployment.

Slower growth already is here. Output during the April-June quarter shrank to 1.9 percent less than in the first three months of the year, and economists now see the likelihood of a 1981 recession.

The painful readjustments are taking place, as you can hear everywhere from would-be home sellers and buyers in a market almost wiped out by high interest rates, and from small-business people unable to maintain adequate inventories because it costs them 23 percent for money.

Curiously, the jobless rate hasn't measured the economic falloff. In May it did rise to 7.6 percent of the civilian laborforce from 7.3 in April,

ANCHORS IN THE HOUR OF NEED

We have all heard the story of the ship which was washed against the rocks because its anchor rope was too short.

Similarly, many a life has been wrecked because the rope by which people let down their spiritual anchors was too short. There are millions of people who never think about God until they get in trouble. Unconsciously, many people consider that religion is something to get us ready to die.

But the trouble about all such procedure is that when we need the help of religion most, we find to our dismay that what we call our religion does not reach down to the eternal depths. Our doctrine of prayer is a rope too short to hold us.

The captain should have known about his anchor rope before he started out, and you and I should see to our spiritual security before the day of calamity comes upon us. — Elisha Douglass cede they have done poorly, the pressure will increase. Volcker, in fact, has all but said it.

"We're at a critical point in the fight against inflation," he told the House Banking Committee on July 21 after reading the latest money supply figures and determining even less money should be available.

And as he pursues the monetary press he hopes will squeeze the breath from inflation you can be sure the heat of controversy will rise. Complaints will become more numerous. There'll be demands he resign.

Some of the complaints will be frivolous. Some will be self-serving. And some will come from those who wonder if the chairman knows what he is doing, or whether he is practicing economic bloodletting.

Premium Surcharges Facing Drivers With Points

Gov. Hunt Names Seven New Transportation Bd. Members

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt appointed seven new members and reappointed 14 members to the state Board of Transportation on Thursday.

Also Thursday, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green reappointed Sen. Jim Garrison, D-Stanly, to the board; while House Speaker Liston Ramsey reappointed Rep. David Bumgardner, D-Gaston.

The 23 board members and new Transportation Secretary William R. Roberson were scheduled to be sworn in at 9 a.m. today and the board was expected to meet hours later.

"The new members I have appointed bring to the Board of Transportation a strong background in business and management," Hunt said in a prepared statement.

All the board members serve four-year terms. The realignment of the board follows personnel changes in the Transportation Department, a bid-rigging scandal and an assault from the General Assembly.

Roberson, a prominent Washington businessman and four-term state representative, succeeds Tom Bradshaw, who left office July 1.

The governor's new appointees to the board are:

— Philip A. Baddour Jr., 38, of Goldsboro, an attorney and former member of the state Economic Development Board.

— J. Sanders Dallas Jr., 41, of High Point, president of Harris-Dallas Insurance Services Inc.

— James W. Daniels, 45, of Asheville, president of Daniels

Business Services and a member of the local planning and zoning commission.

— Thomas E. Davis, 48, a Robbinsville businessman.

— Oscar Harris, 41, of Dunn, a certified public accountant.

— Zeno H. Ponder, 60, of Marshall, president of Zenia Farms Inc. and the subject of several local political controversies.

— T. Lynwood Rich, 33, of Fairmont, a furniture and appliance businessman.

Those reappointed to the board are Marc Basnight of Manteo, Jeanette W. Carl of Raleigh, Iley L. Dean of Durham, John K. Gallaher of Winston-Salem, Garland B. Garrett Jr. of Wilmington, John Q. Burnette and Seddon Goode Jr. of Charlotte, Joseph C. Hamme of Oxford, George G. Harper of Kinston, Martha C. Hollers of Candor, David W. Hoyle of Dallas, Thomas G. Joyner of Garrysburg, M. Randolph Phillips of Boone, and Moses A. Ray of Tarboro.

The seven board members who were not reappointed are William C. Herring of Wilson, Arthur Williamson of Chadbourn, Mike Fleming of Greensboro, John Gilkey of Marion, Oscar Ledford of Franklin, Jack Bryant of Brevard and Helen Little of Yanceyville.

Brent Hackney, a spokesman for Hunt, said he knew at least two of the former board members — Williamson and Fleming — asked not to be reappointed.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina drivers with traffic violation points on their driving records will have to pay 24.8 percent more for auto insurance, thanks to premium surcharges levied Thursday by the state Reinsurance Facility.

The facility's board of governors also voted Thursday to raise insurance premiums by 25.9 percent for drivers assigned to the facility with points on their driving records.

There are 838,000 motorists in the state assigned to the facility, 300,000 of whom would be affected by both the surcharges and the rate increase, if it is approved.

The action was brought on by legislation passed by the 1981 General Assembly which shifted the burden of the surcharges from all drivers to just those with points.

Before the legislation, all drivers paid the surcharges. The legislation also lifted the ceiling on rate increases within the facility.

The surcharges are levied by the facility to recoup losses. The facility, a pool of insurance companies formed to insure high-risk drivers, is required by law to operate on a no-loss, no-profit basis.

The rate filing was made to the state Department of Insurance and must be approved by Insurance Commissioner John Ingram. The new rate will go into effect Nov. 1.

If Ingram disapproves the increase and it is upheld by the courts, then the facility would have to return the money, which is kept in escrow, to the policy owners.

The largest part of the total surcharge is a 13.3 percent loss recoupment of the remaining operating loss of $14.3 million for the facility for the period Oct. 1, 1978 through June 30, 1979. This replaces the 16.4 percent surcharge which had been scheduled to end Feb. 28, 1982.

The remainder of the assessment against the insurance companies — $6.1 million — will be recouped by a quarterly surcharge of 9.7 percent and will be effective for the three months from Oct. 1, 1981 through Dec. 31, 1981. It will be the seventh of the quarterly surcharges, which have ranged from 0.4 percent to 8.3 percent.

A recoupment surcharge of 1.8 percent applying to drivers with points will replace the current 1.4 percent clean-risk surcharge, which had been levied on all drivers rated under the Safe Driver Insurance Plan. Both the loss recoupment surcharge of 13.3 percent and the clean-risk surcharge of 1.8 percent will be effective for the five months from Oct. 1, 1981 through Feb. 28, 1982.

A Break-Out

Greenville Police are looking for two men who broke out of the Stop-N-Go store at the intersection of Hooker Road and Arlington Boulevard about 4:20 a.m. today.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a store employee reported that the men entered the store and concealed a number of items in their clothing.

The clerk said he left the store, locked the two men inside and went across the street to a house to telephone the Police Department.

After making his call to police, the employee returned to find the two men had broken the glass out of the door and escaped.

The chief, who said about $35 worth of merchandise was removed from the building, reported that a quantity of packaged ham was recovered outside the store.

Charges Are Lodged After Chase

Kirby Mills of 102 Gardenia St., in stable condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital today after being shot by police officers yesterday in an exchange of gunfire, has been charged with four counts of assault on an officer with a deadly weapon in connection with the incident.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Mills has been charged in separate warrants with assaulting police officers J. R. Lee and T. M. Bowen with a .25 caliber pistol and a .30 caliber rifle. The chief noted that Mills has also been charged with failing to stop for a blue light and siren.

Mills led officers on a chase for 85 minutes before dawn yesterday at speeds that never exceeded 65 miles per hour. "He just wouldn't stop," Cannon noted.

The chief explained that each time officers attempted to stop the Mills vehicle, he would either attempt to run the police cars off the highway or fire shots from a .25 caliber pistol at them.

When police finally were able to get the Mills vehicle stopped at the intersection of the Alpine and Saintsville Roads near North Pitt High School, Mills allegedly drew a .30 caliber rifle and pointed it at the officers. It was then that officers returned his fire, wounding Mills four times.

Cannon said officers at the scene credited East Carolina University policeman Stan Kittrell with possibly saving the life of one of the city policemen. Kittrell, according to the chief, fired four shots through Mills' pickup truck as Mills pointed the rifle at officer Lee. At least one of the shots struck Mills, knocking him to the ground.

"To show my sangfroid, I ventured some small talk.

"Do you ever see any elk around here?"

"Often. Saw one this morning in a clearing. Let's have a look."

With that he went into a tailspin or something, turned the plane on its back and proceeded to hug the treetops searching for the confounded quadruped. I wish I had asked him if he enjoyed ballet or ever watched "Dallas" or played the soybean futures market.

In Alaska, of course, where planes are more plentiful than supermarket carts, fright is a way of life. Alaska Airlines, for instance, had a huge portrait of an Eskimo hysterical with fear painted on the tail section. Some say A-A-1 stands for Alaskan Aeronautical Industries, a tiny scheduled airline. Others say it is the screeching noise made by the pilot coming in for another gutsy landing.

Up on Little Diomed Island, three miles from the Russian border, they have what is called the "Little Diomedé dance." The plane lands on skis, then at take-off time passengers get out and help rock her back and forth to unstick the skis from the ice.

Small wonder, then, that the dogsled and the kayak are still popular ways of getting about up here.

John Bizzell Appointed To Committee

John H. Bizzell of Greenville has received an appointment to the Department of Community Colleges Fire Training Advisory Committee as a representative of the North Carolina Volunteer Firemen's Association.

Bizzell, who served as a volunteer fireman here for some 44 years, was named to serve on the committee at the recent 91st session of the state Volunteer Firemen's Association, meeting at Rowan Technical Institute in Salisbury.

Larry Blake, state president of the Department of Community Colleges, informed Bizzell in a letter confirming the appointment that the committee "will provide an important link between the fire service and the community college system through counsel and advice."

He said the committee can assist the department in areas such as determining fire training needs, identifying program evaluation approaches, guiding and supporting instructors, and promoting educational opportunities.

Bizzell has been correspondence secretary for the NCVFA for 20 years.

Training Is Completed

Missy Daughtry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Daughtry, has completed a month of training under Gail Knierim at Pine Hall Farm in Raleigh.

During the month in Raleigh, Miss Daughtry competed in two North Carolina Jumper/Hunter recognized shows where she received Champion of the Small and Medium Pony Division at MacNair's Country Acres and placed in the top six at Triton Stables. She and her pony, Woodland's Joint Venture, also attended the Forsyth Charity AHSA Rated "A" show at Tanglewood in Clemmons, where she won a third and fourth in Medium Pony Over Fences.

Miss Daughtry ended her training period by competing in the North Carolina State 4-H Horse Show at Dorton Arena. She was awarded Reserve Champion in the Pony Hunter Division by receiving a first under saddle, second over fences, third in Equitation 14 and under and a third in Bridle Path Hack. She competed against approximately 30 other entries in her classes and qualified to attend the 4-H Regional Competition to be held in Baton Rouge, La. later in the summer. Miss Daughtry is a member of the Hayfield Hayburners Pitt County 4-H Horse Club.

Poet, Author Guy Owen Dead At 56

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Teacher, poet and author Guy Owen, lauded by colleagues as a major force in Southern literature and famous as the creator of the "Flim-Flam Man" stories, died Thursday of liver cancer at the age of 56.

The North Carolina State University professor of English died at Rex Hospital after a long bout with cancer.

Owen wrote many articles, poems and short stories. His best-known work detailed the comic adventures of an engaging comic artist named Mordecai Jones through eastern North Carolina in "The Ballad of the Flim Flam Man," a novel published in 1965.

Actor George C. Scott starred in a movie based on the book and bearing the same name. Scott, who won an Academy Award for his portrayal of Gen. George S. Patton, said the role of Jones was his favorite role.

Owen also wrote "Season of Fear," his first work, and the widely acclaimed "Journey for Joedel," which was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize in 1970.

In 1971, Owen received the North Carolina Award for his literary accomplishments.

Gov. Jim Hunt, upon hearing of Owens' death, praised his "masterful evocation of the rhythm and feel of farm life in eastern North Carolina (that) made him one of our state's most beloved and successful writers."

Owen taught at Stetson University in Deland, Fla., the University of North Carolina, Davidson College and Elon College. For the past 19 years he taught creative writing and modern literature at N.C. State in Raleigh.

 Opening lead: Ace of ♦.

During the course of play a situation may arise where the winning play in a suit, taken in isolation, is strictly a matter of guess work. The club suit in today's hand is such a case. At the table, however, no good player should ever go wrong!

As a passed hand, North's decision to jump raise his partner's suit rather than introduce hearts meets with our approval. Once a fine major-suit fit had been located, to show hearts would simply give the opponents gratuitous information.

West led the ace of diamonds and continued the suit. East won the queen and shifted to a low club. If declarer plays the wrong card from his hand, he will go down—he will lose two clubs in addition to the two diamonds tricks he has already lost.

A glance at the diagram is all you need to know that, to make his contract, declarer must play the jack of clubs from his hand. But you should make that decision at the table even though you can't see the defender's hands. Can you tell us why?

Since declarer must lose at least one club in addition to the two diamond tricks he has already conceded, he cannot afford to lose a trump trick. Furthermore, it is against the percentages to play West for a singleton king of trumps, so declarer should assume that East has the king. In that case, East will already have shown up with the king of spades and king-queen of diamonds. If he held the ace of clubs as well, he almost surely would have opened the bidding.

Assuming that, in fact, East has the king of spades, it is about 100 to 1 that West has the ace of clubs, and the finesse of the jack of clubs is almost surely the only play that stands a chance of success.

It's almost like playing with open cards, isn't it!

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

MUSIC TO STILL THE SAVAGE BREAST!

THE FIRST MENTION OF DAVID IN THE BIBLE IS TO BE FOUND IN I SAMUEL 16. KING SAUL, HARD AT WAR WITH THE PHILISTINES, HAS BEGUN TO SHOW THE FIRST SIGNS OF HIS MENTAL ILLNESS, DEEP MELANCHOLIA, IF NOT OUT-AND-OUT SCHIZOPHRENIA! IN THOSE TIMES, IT WAS FELT THAT MUSIC HAD A SOOTHING EFFECT ON THIS AILMENT, WHICH INDEED IT HAD, AND SAUL'S ADVISERS SENT FOR YOUNG DAVID, WHO WAS KNOWN TO BE AN EXPERT PLAYER. THEREAFTER, WHEN SAUL WENT INTO DEPRESSED FITS, DAVID WOULD PLAY AND SAUL WOULD BE SOOTHED AND REFRESHED, AND SOON CAME TO LOVE DAVID AS HIS OWN SON. HOWEVER...

...DURING THE NEXT SIX YEARS, AS THE LAD GREW FROM YOUTH TO YOUNG MANHOOD, SAUL'S ATTITUDE BEGAN TO CHANGE—FOR DAVID SHOWED A FINE APTITUDE AS A WARRIOR AND LEADER, GAINING GREAT POPULARITY WITH THE PEOPLE. SAUL, IN HIS DEPRESSED MENTAL STATE, BEGAN TO SEE DAVID AS A THREAT TO HIS OWN RULE, LET ALONE THE FUTURE RULE OF JONATHAN, HIS SON, WHOM HE TRIED TO ENTICE INTO KILLING DAVID—WHICH JONATHAN WOULDN'T DO BECAUSE HE WAS A CLOSE AND SINCERE FRIEND. BUT, UNDERNEATH THIS GROWING OBSESSION TO SEE DAVID DEAD, LOVE FOR HIM STILL REMAINED WHICH BECAME QUITE EVIDENT, IN THIS WRITER'S OPINION, WHEN, THE LAST TIME DAVID PLAYED FOR HIM, SAUL TOOK UP HIS JAVELIN (I SAMUEL 19) AND HALF-HEARTEDLY ATTEMPTED TO PIN DAVID TO THE WALL. THE TRIBE OF BENJAMIN, OF WHICH SAUL WAS A MEMBER, WAS RENOWNED AS THE GREATEST OF LEFT-HANDED MARKSMEN (JUDGES 20-16) WITH SLING, SPEAR, OR ANY OTHER WEAPON OF WAR AND, FOR A WARRIOR OF SAUL'S GREAT CALIBER, TO MISS HIS MARK IN THE CLOSE CONFINES OF A ROOM, OTHER THAN ON PURPOSE, WAS IMPOSSIBLE! BUT IT DID SERVE AS A SIGN TO THE ESCAPING DAVID THAT FROM HENCE HIS LIFE WAS ENDANGERED, EVEN THOUGH THE KING DID NOT, PERSONALLY, INTEND TO HAVE DAVID'S BLOOD ON HIS OWN ROYAL HANDS!

'The Pitt Stop' Brightens Days

BRINGING A LITTLE MUSIC TO THE LIVES OF THE ELDERLY... Lula Lanier of Kinston sings from the Broadman Hymnal as Pitt Stop employees provide accompaniment. Lanier, in the foreground, is a resident of Grifton Rest Home, where the Pitt Stop, the traveling summer program of the Pitt County Community Schools, now visits. Until recently the Pitt Stop was aimed at children, but when free time on Wednesday morning emerged, Community Schools director Alice Keene decided expanding services to include the elderly would be beneficial. GRIFTON — Because of free time on Wednesday mornings, a group of young people are making the lives of some older folks a bit fuller.

The Pitt Stop, the traveling summer program for youngsters in county communities, recently extended its services to brighten days for residents of Grifton Rest Home.

On Wednesdays from 9-11 a.m. the "Pitt Crew," Mark Brown, Lynn Welborn, Angie Mosley and Jo Ann Covington, bring music, crafts and recreation to the 80-some persons living in the rest home.

"It's very, very beneficial to the residents," said Arlene Maples, director of the home. "It gives them contact with the outside, but more important, it gives them contact with young people."

The idea to expand services originally aimed at kids was the brainchild of Community Schools Director Alice Keene. "The Pitt Stop had a free space on Wednesday mornings," she explained, "and it occurred to me that maybe we should try something different — maybe provide some fun for older folks — they don't have the opportunity to take part in recreation and crafts as much as other age groups."

Community schools contacted the Pitt County Council on Aging and the council referred them to the Grifton Rest Home.

"I was delighted when they approached me about it," said director Maples. "I thought it would be a good way to give the residents some fun and some company."

After the Pitt Crew received training in working with older adults, they made their first visit to the home three weeks ago. Response was good, but improved the second week. By the third week, 45 of the 80 residents showed up in the cafeteria/activities area to sing songs, make flowers and play bingo.

"Bingo is their favorite," said Pitt Crew member Angie Mosley. "They can't wait every week until it's time to play."

Singing hymns gets good response too, according to the Pitt Crew. Residents can choose hymns, and favorites include "Jesus Loves Me" and "The Old Rugged Cross."

"I love it when they come on Wednesdays," said Lillie Davis of Ayden, a resident of the rest home. "I enjoy the singing but I look forward to the bingo the most"

"It's nice of them to come," added resident Inez Haddock of Greenville. "It's so nice to see new faces."

Maples, who refers to the elderly in Grifton Rest Home as "her residents," says the outside world reflects a negative image to those inside, but feels being on the Pitt Stop helps this picture.

"Things like this improve the vision of the world for the folks here — people don't realize how the world appears to anyone isolated from it," she noted.

"Also, I think it does those coming into the home good — these young people have perhaps changed some of their notions about aging — maybe they've realized that one day, inevitably, they'll be faced with the same lifestyle," she continued.

"People are scared of people in a rest home — they think they're old and will hurt them or something — programs like these can help the public realize that the aged are human and

Outer Limits

Scientists were startled when Pioneer X told them Jupiter may act like a small sun. But that was only the first surprise. Data from the spacecraft, launched in 1973, have suggested that our solar system may be four times larger than many scientists thought. Astronomical units (AU) measure distance in our solar system. An AU is 93 million miles — the average distance from Earth to the sun. On Sunday Pioneer X will be 25 AUs from the sun, further than any working spacecraft has travelled. Neptune and Pluto are the only known planets to lie beyond that point. Pioneer X contains information about life on Earth should other intelligent beings intercept the spacecraft on its outward flight.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced steadily today, following through on Thursday's late rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 3.80 to 932.36 by noon.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 2-1 margin in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said news of Israel's agreement to a cease-fire with Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon gave the market a lift.

They also noted encouragement over the steady showing of the credit markets Thursday after a sharp rise in interest rates earlier in the week.

But brokers said considerable doubts persisted about the in-re-rate outlook.

Conoco, the subject of a three-way bidding war for control of the company, made a familiar appearance at the top of the active list, down 1 1/2 at 86.

Jos. Schlitz Brewing and G. Heileman Brewing were both delayed in opening. Heileman made a $17-a-share takeover offer for Schlitz.

The NYSE's composite index rose 41 to 74.42. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.50 at 366.23.

Volume on the Big Board came to 17.24 million shares at noon, against 18.48 million at the same point Thursday.

Urge Delay Coal Verdict

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. — A committee of the North Carolina Resources Commission recommended Thursday delaying a decision until today on allowing construction of a coal-exporting facility on Radio Island.

Gulf Interstate Corp. of Houston, Texas, has asked to open Radio Island at the Morehead City harbor to a $70-million coal operation.

The Planning and Special Issues committee made the recommendation to the full commission after a public hearing Wednesday night in which residents of Carteret and Craven counties spoke out against the facility.

About 250 residents said the coal trains would cause disruptions and environmental problems in New Bern and Morehead City. They also expressed fears that the facility would pollute the water around Radio Island.

Gov. Jim Hunt, asked about the proposed coal-exporting facility at his weekly news conference Thursday, said the need for jobs must be balanced with the possible harm to the environment.

In a related matter, Hunt said the U.S. Department of the Interior has not acted on his request not to auction North Carolina off-shore oil drilling tracts.

"We will fight it (the auction) as strong as we can," Hunt said. "We know we've got to try to find some energy but we also know we've got to try to protect our people."

Good Openings In Martin

WILLIAMSTON — Opening day sales on the Martin County tobacco markets in Williamston and Robersonville brought on a "good mood" among county farmers with average prices realized far above opening day prices in 1980.

On the Williamston markets, the average price was $158.34 per hundred pounds, as compared to the $120.05 average for the 1980 opening day. The highest price paid for quality leaf was $185 per hundred pounds.

The Robersonville market saw an opening day average slightly lower than that of the Williamston market, at $158.85 per hundred pound, but this figure is significantly higher than the $114.75 average for the 1980 opening day sales in Robersonville.

At both markets, Stabilization purchases accounted for less than one percent of the total sales volume.

Chapin Friends Hold Memorial

NEW YORK (AP) — About 500 friends and relatives of Harry Chapin gathered to hold a "celebration of life" honoring the singer-songwriter who died in a car accident on the Long Island Expressway.

In a private ceremony Thursday at Grace Church, Chapin was remembered as "the leading citizen artist of his generation" and a man who "possessed life and was possessed by life."

Chapin, 38, was buried in a private ceremony last Tuesday after being killed July 16.

Chapin's manager, Ken Kragen, said a memorial fund will be set up in the singer's name, and money from concerts, films and other activities will be given to the world hunger campaign.

The singer's widow, Sandy, sat in a front row pew. Tom, one of Chapin's five children, took the stage and sang these words from Chapin's last album:

"Remember when the music was the glow on each horizon...and as we heard the melody we'd be safe within the sound, for we had dreams to keep."

Stabler's Retirement Leaves Oilers Startled

By The Associated Press
Lynn Swann will be doing his pass-catching for the Pittsburgh Steelers and Walter Payton his running for the Chicago Bears as usual this season — and Ken Stabler will have the opportunity to watch them both on television as often as he desires.

While Swann came to camp and to terms with his team and Payton closed in on a contract agreement with his, Stabler made a startling announcement Thursday that he is retiring from pro football.

"Stabler's agent called us today and told us Kenny was not returning," said Ed Biles, first-year coach of the National Football League team. "No reason was given. He just said he was going to retire."

Biles' reaction?

"Gifford Nielsen's our quarterback," he said. "We have confidence in him and we've never been dissatisfied with Nielsen."

Nielsen, a third-round draft choice in 1978, played behind former Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini for two seasons and was a seldom-used backup for Stabler last year.

"Any player without his heart really and truly in it shouldn't be out here," said Biles. "If he (Stabler) changes his mind, sure the door would be open, but we're not going to be actively going after Kenny."

The Oilers were informed of Stabler's retirement after practice Thursday. The squad had a good reaction to the news, immediately chanting "Giff, Giff, Giff" for Nielsen.

"I'm not the type to be shocked," noted Biles. "Gifford's an improved quarterback. He's stronger than last year. I'm not let down at all. Sometimes, things happen for the best. This could pull these guys together. One guy isn't going to make that much difference on any team."

"Stabler's got to do what he thinks is right and what he feels is right. He gave us one good year, and we wish him well. He's a credit to our football team and to the league. But this team can't sit here — we have to move forward. We will not panic and we will not be pushing the panic button."

Stabler was one of four veterans who failed to report to training camp on time Wednesday.

Pirates Fall In Opener

BUIES CREEK — East Carolina edged N.C. State for second place earlier this week but the Wolfpack got a measure of revenge Thursday night in the opening round of the North State League tournament.

N.C. State jumped out to a 6-0 lead and then held on to defeat the Pirates, 7-4, last night to advance to the second-round of the league tournament being held at Campbell University.

Campbell, which led the North State Summer Baseball League through nearly all of the regular season, took a U-turn last night, losing to UNC-Wilmington, 6-2, in the nightcap of league playoffs.

The Camels, who won the regular-season crown by four games with a 23-9 record, will meet East Carolina tonight at 6 p.m. UNC-Wilmington and N.C. State will square off at 8 p.m.

After a scoreless first inning, the Wolfpack went up 1-0 in the second when Chris Baird singled and later scored on Mike Sprouse's single. NCSU scored two more runs in the third when Ray Wojkovich singled and Tracy Black followed with a two-run home run.

The Wolfpack made it 6-0 in the top of the fourth with three more runs. Tim Barbour walked, moved to second on Moe Barbour's sacrifice and then scored on Sprouse's single.

Sprouse later scored on Wojkovich's two-out single. After Black walked, Ronnie Lee singled home Wojkovich and NCSU led, 6-0.

ECU cut the deficit to 6-2 in the bottom of the inning when Mike Sorrell led off with a double and Todd Hendley followed with a home run. NCSU got one of those runs back in the fifth, however, on Baird's solo home run.

The Pirates again countered with two runs in the bottom of the fifth. Robert Wells was hit by a pitch and Sorrell homered to make it 7-4.

ECU had one-out singles in both the sixth and seventh but failed to cut the Wolfpack lead further.

Wilmington's Richard Foy slugged a three-run homer to top a five-run Seahawk blitz in the fourth inning. Foy's shot followed singles by Clyde Holley, Mike Antle and Tommy Phillips and jolted Camels starter Darin Clonginger.

"We were tight in the beginning, but Foy's hit brought us to life," said UNC-Wilmington coach Bobby Guthrie. "It had a snowball effect on the rest of the team. From then on, we were just having fun."

Having the most fun was Seahawk starter Carl Willis, who did not allow a hit after the shaky first two innings.

2 U.S. Swimmers Break Meet Marks

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — American Jill Sterkel and Lina Kachyushite of the Soviet Union set games records while U.S. world-record holder Bill Paulus easily captured his qualifying heat in the men's 100-meter butterfly today at the World University Games.

Sterkel, who won a gold medal in the 100 freestyle Thursday, was timed in one minute, 3.4 seconds in beating teammate Carol Borgman's 1:03.80 in the women's 100-meter qualifying butterfly.

The previous record was 1:03.63 set by Laura Hinderaker of the U.S. in 1977.

Kachyushite broke the record in the women's 200-meter breast stroke, qualifying with a 2:39.20, to break the old mark of 2:41.

Paulus, who set the world record in the men's 100-meter butterfly earlier this year, clocked a 55.31, while Sweden's Per Magnusson was second at 57.35.

UCLA's Bob Placa, swimming in a separate heat, had the second-fastest butterfly time of the morning with a 55.51, setting up a possible one-two U.S. finish later today. Third fastest was Sergei Kisselev of the Soviet Union with at 57.10.

In the women's 200 meter breaststroke the University of California's Cindy Tuttle was fourth fastest with a 2:44.19.

Olympic champion Sara Simeoni of Italy cleared 5 feet, 11 3/4 inches to qualify for the final of the women's high jump. Simeoni, who cleared 6-5 1/2 earlier this year, was joined in Sunday's final by 12 other competitors including Yolanda Gibson, a 22-year-old from Brooklyn College who has a personal best this year of only 6-0 3/4.

Manfred Huning of West Germany led the qualifying competition in the men's hammer throw with an effort of 236.9. Yuri Tamm of the U.S.S.R was second best with

Rose Named New ECU Diving Coach

Former East Carolina gymnastics coach Jon Rose has been appointed the new men's and women's diving coach at ECU for the 1981-82 season and Carolina Brown has been named head coach of the men's and women's tennis teams.

Rose, who had coached the gymnastics team at ECU the past two years until it was removed as a varsity sport this past season, will be the team's first full-time diving coach since 1975.

"I'm very elated at the idea of having a separate diving coach," ECU swim coach Ray Scharf said. "Before, we were giving away 14 to 16 points every meet because we had no diving. This is like going into to football game without a quarterback."

Rose, a West Chester (Pa.) State College graduate, coached gymnastics at Southeast Missouri State University and Slipper Rock State College. He also coached and taught physical education at Marple Newton High School in Newtown Square, Pa.

Brown is a former field hockey coach at Wake Forest and a former player on the Avon Future's Qualifying Tennis Circuit.

Quantico, Va., and Stan Williams of Houston.

Highlighting Scharf's women recruits is Nancy James, a freestyler from Winston-Salem. Other freestylers are Marie Grube of East Petersburg, Pa., Sally Reinhard of Bridgewater, N.J., Paula and Pam Berry of Connelly Springs, N.C., Nancy Rogers of Bristol, Tenn., and Joanne Chastonay of Temple Hills, Md.

Among those signing to play tennis at ECU is New Bern's Catherine Tolson. Tolson was ranked #5 in the state this past season.

Bargaining Arguments Halt Talks

Negotiations Not Expected To Resume Until Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — With chances of saving the rest of the season labeled "very bad" by the players' top negotiator, talks to end the major league baseball strike have recessed amid disagreement over the progress of the bargaining.

The negotiations are not expected to resume until the middle of next week, after the executive board of the Major League Players Association meets to discuss the status of the dispute with club owners over free-agent compensation.

"The situation gets more difficult with each passing day," Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' union, said Thursday night as talks ended after a day of apparent ups and downs at the bargaining table.

Raymond Grebey, director of the Player Relations Committee and the owners' top negotiator, told reporters that "we're closer than we've ever been" to ending the 43-day-old walkout.

"We have moved much closer, narrowed our differences," he said. "Unfortunately, the parties have been unable to totally resolve the differences. We're closer than we've ever been."

Grebeby told reporters the talks were recessed to allow the players to study new proposals by the owners. After the players meet, he added, "we hope...this will produce a settlement, will bring back baseball and save the All-Star Game," originally scheduled July 14.

But Miller declared "nothing has changed in regard to the concept they are pushing of direct compensation."

"I would not quarrel with the assessment that we narrowed some of the issues," Miller said. "We succeeded not at all on the basic issue of direct compensation."

Moreover, he said, "they still think they can crush the union. They still don't know what these players are like...We said nothing about putting it up to a vote."

The players, Miller continued, "will have a board meeting and will report where we are. In respect to their proposal, as it stands right now, we will not recommend it to the executive board of the players association. It is my belief the executive committee will act accordingly."

Asked about the prospects for resuming the season, Miller replied: "Very bad."

Bob Boone, the Philadelphia Phillies' catcher and National League player representative, said he was "not confident we'll be playing any ball for a long time."

Through today, 512 games or 24 percent of the 2,106-game season had been canceled because of the strike, which began June 12.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett said he did not look for talks to resume until at least next week, possibly Wednesday.

He also was uncertain whether Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, who spent the last four days at the baseball talks, would attend when negotiations resume.

"I'm very disappointed," said Moffett. "The logistics, the people and number of people at the negotiating table were as right as right could be. But things came to a grinding halt this evening. It is the same philosophical problems we have had all along."

Miller said he expected the executive board meeting to take place early next week at an undetermined site.

Thursday was a lengthy and confusing day at the headquarters of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, where the talks had been held under a news blackout since being moved here from New York Monday.

Rumors of a prospective settlement swept the building, often followed shortly by other rumors that the talks were stalled.

The issue of free-agent compensation has been at the center of baseball's labor war the last two years. The owners want a professional player as compensation for losing a top-ranking free agent who has played out his option, rather than just the amateur draft choice which has been the rule since 1976.

The players, while saying this would cut down their freedom of movement won in previous negotiations and in arbitration, agreed to the concept of professional compensation. But they have backed a plan to stock a compensation pool filled by several teams, rather than the owners' plan to have direct compensation from the signing to the losing club.

Miller said that despite the players' so-called pool proposal for compensation, "the owners committee said they had numerous problems with it."

"We addressed them one by one, and each time something new came up until we became convinced they do not want a settlement," he said.

Grebeby refused to discuss what specific movement had taken place on the two areas of discussion in the last 48 hours. Those issues involve the number of players to be pro-

Hungry Whitworth Shoots 69 To Share Open Lead

LA GRANGE, Ill. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth, $1,031 short of becoming the first millionaire on the women's golf tour, is the hungriest player in the U.S. Women's Open — hungry for the title.

The 41-year-old Hall of Famer has won 81 tournaments — one short of matching Mickey Wright's record — but the U.S. Open has eluded her 22 times.

But she unleashed a 3-under-par 69 in Thursday's opening round over the 6,204-yard LaGrange Country Club course for her best start ever in the prestigious tournament.

Hours after Whitworth had finished, however, Beth Daniel carded a 69 to share the first-round lead.

"I've never had the lead in the Open after the first round," Whitworth said. "Right now I'm just concentrating on playing as well as I can."

"I can savor this round for a while but I have three more to go," said the tall Texan. "I want to play the Open well so badly that my errors are magnified. A million dollars means a lot to me as a milestone but it is not something you start out on the tour saying you are going to accomplish. What you do want to accomplish is winning the U.S. Open."

Daniel birdied the last two holes for her 69, with a four-foot deuce putt on the 17th and by reaching the long 18th in two shots for a two-putt four.

Daniel, who never has won the Open in five previous tries, is attacking the course conservatively, she said.

"You have to do it this way in the open more than any other tournament," she said. "That's because you know pars are good at the open. Let the birdies fall where they may."

Daniel missed only one green in the steadiest round of the day.

"I went for the middle of the greens most of the time and that meant leaving myself 20- to 30-foot putts," she said. "I had only one bogey and I got it by three-putting."

Daniel had exceptional praise for Whitworth, who seems to have the whole field pulling for her — that is if none can win the title herself.

"Kathy is capable of hitting so many shots it's incredible. When she was at her peak she was awesome," said Daniel.

Ten players broke par 72 and four matched it. The field of 150 will be sliced to the low 60 scorers and ties after today's second round.

Only a stroke off the pace with 70s are Jerilyn Britz, the 1979 U.S. Open Champion, and Shelley Hamlin, whose last victory was the 1978 Patty Berg Open. She was runner-up in the 1973 U.S. Open.

Hamlin never will forget the 13th hole.

"When I was on the green, a bee stung me on the left forefinger and it began swelling at once. But I went ahead and putted and dropped a 20-footer for a birdie," she said. "I put ice on the finger after that and the swelling went down."

Britz was deadly with her medium irons, sticking a 4-iron 12 feet from the cup for a birdie on the long seventh and planting a 5-iron 11 feet from the cup to birdie the 14th.

"It was tough reading the wind and I punched a lot of shots," she said. "The greens have subtle breaks but I got around with 29 putts."

Hot in the chase for the coveted crown and the $22,000 first prize with 71s are Donna Caponi, seeking her fifth victory of the year; Bonnie Lauer; Debbie Massey; Marlene Floyd; Dot Germain; and Pat Bradley.

Grouped at 72 are Alice Ritzman, Martha Hansen, Cathy Morse and Louise Parks.

Leading money winner Nancy Lopez-Melton, seeking her first U.S. Open title, still is troubled with a sore right shoulder and arm. She settled for a 75.

In the last group on the course, amateur Amy Geithner of Fairfax, Va., made the most sensational shot of the round. In the twilight she made a hole-in-one on the 171-yard 14th with a 5-wood and finished with a 39-36-75.

Classic Course Puzzling, Unfair

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Ben Crenshaw, being pressed for his assessment of the Kingsmill Golf Club course, was trying to avoid saying the wrong, critical thing.

"Is the golf course unfair?" he was asked.

"That's an unfair question," Crenshaw replied.

"Are some holes unfair?" the questioner persisted. And Crenshaw drew a deep breath before replying:

"Yes. In my opinion, some of the holes are unfair."

But he quickly added:

"You shouldn't ask a player to criticize the golf course. That's not what we're here for. That's not our job."

And, generally speaking, the players did their best to refrain from outright criticism of the difficult, 6,822-yard layout that was being played in PGA Tour competition for the first time Thursday in the opening round of the $300,000 Anheuser-Busch Classic.

But, without exception, they seemed puzzled, uncertain, groping for words when they finished.

"You have to be very careful not to take too many chances."

"You play with a little bit of fear," said Bob Gilder, who birdied the last hole for a 3-under-par 68 that gave him the first-round lead.

"I don't know how to describe it," said veteran Bob Murphy. "Weird. That's a good word for it, weird."

"On the front nine in particular, you have to play defensive golf, and that's not our style. We usually play very offensive golf on the tour. But there are times ... there was one time today I was standing there with a 6-iron in my hand and didn't dare shoot at the pin."

"Good night, but there are some disastrous holes out there," said Crenshaw, who won this event last year when it was played in Napa, Calif. "On the front nine you just have to try to make as many pars as you can."

Crenshaw, with a birdie on his last hole, and Murphy, who used only 10 putts on the last nine holes — on two occasions he one-putted for bogey — were among the seven players tied for second at 69.

Also at that figure were Australian Jack Newton, Gavin Levenson, Jim Booros, John McGough and D.A. Weibring.

Bill Rogers, winner of the British Open last weekend, also had his problems, getting away to a dreadful double bogey-bogey-bogey start, then pulling it back with birdies on three of his last four holes. He finished with a round of par 71.

"That's absolutely the most unusual round of golf I've ever played in my life," said Rogers, usually one of the game's most steady, consistent players. On this muggy day he had only seven pars, six birdies, four bogeys and the double bogey.

Stabler Retires From NFL...

nesday. The Oilers had said Stabler and two of the others would be fined $500 per day for each day they were late.

Of the others, defensive back Greg Stenrick and running back Rob Carpenter were reported to be on their way to training camp, and there was no word on the plans of safety Mike Reinfeldt. Carpenter's contract has yet to be settled, but he has agreed to negotiate while in camp, Biles said.

A native of Foley, Ala., Stabler was an All-American quarterback under Coach Bear Bryant at Alabama. Stabler led the American Football Conference with a 64.1 completion percentage, connecting on 293 of 457 attempts for 3,202 yards and 13 touchdowns. He also threw 28 interceptions in his only season with the Oilers. Stabler finished 11th among AFC passers last season.

Meanwhile, Payton, an All-Pro running back, arrived at the Bears' camp and club General Manager Jim Finks said he expects to have his leading ground gainer signed "before the first practice on Saturday."

Finks said the club would not disclose any details of the contract to be signed, but said negotiations are continuing.

Swann, one of the NFL's top wide receivers who is beginning his eighth year in the league, arrived in time at Pittsburgh's training camp, just hours after ending his free agency and coming to terms with the Steelers.

Swann signed a multi-year contract. No details were announced, but best estimates put the salary at about $300,000 a year. The agreement came after a meeting Wednesday in New York between team officials and Swann's agent, attorney Howard Slusher.

"I didn't think we were going to get anything settled, just based on how long it took to have movement from both of us," said the 29-year-old Swann. "I fully anticipated not being in training camp today. I'm happy."

The Steelers at the same time waived veteran safety Tim Moriarity and nine rookie free agents. Moriarity had played for Atlanta from 1977-78 other team. He signed as a free agent with the Steelers last year and played in four games.

The Dallas Cowboys released

17 rookie free agents, leaving 57 rookies in their training camp. Dan Reeves, who was a Cowboys assistant coach last season, made his first cuts as Denver Broncos head coach, releasing 13 free agents.

The New York Jets cut two linebackers, Dan Cernansky of Waynesburg and Frank Lewandoski of Northern Illinois, and signed tight end Richard Ruzika of Columbia.

The Green Bay Packers' second and third draft choices were missing when 34 rookies and free agents reported for the start of training camp. Tight end Gary Lewis of Texas-Arlington and punter Ray Stachowitz of Michigan State are the only rookies who have not reached contract agreements with the team.

Snow Hill will start right-hander Bobby Avery (3-0) tomorrow night when the two teams open the series at Raleigh's Optimist Park at 7 p.m. Left-hander Kevin Korpi (6-2) will start in Sunday's second game, which will also be in Raleigh.

Games three, four and five will be played in Snow Hill on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 8 p.m. If necessary, a sixth and seventh game will be played in Raleigh Thursday and Friday.

"I hope it would not go seven games," Fulghum said. "But I think we've got the pitching to go seven."

"It all depends on how both team's pitching holds up in a long series like that. But I feel our pitching is pretty capable in a longer series."

Along with Avery and Korpi, Fulghum also has Gary Ream and Guy Sanderson whom he can call on to start or relieve.

Snow Hill finished third during the regular season behind first-place Pitt County and second-place Rocky Mount. Come playoff time, however, Post 94 forgot all about its third-place finish.

But after Post 94 fell to Rocky Mount in the first game of their best-of-three series, it has not lost a playoff game. Snow Hill won the last two games from Rocky Mount and then defeated Pitt County in three straight, never trailing in the three games.

U.S. Swimmers Break Marks...

233-7, but West Germany's Klaus Ploghaus, best performer in the world this year, was way down the field with 219-10 1-2.

Douglas Barnett of Azusa Pacific University threw only 195-3 and failed to qualify for Saturday's final.

Only four gold medals were at stake in track and field competition today — in the decathlon, men's long jump, women's discus and the 3,000-meter steeplechase.

Also scheduled were the semifinals in the men's 400 meters, featuring Americans Cliff Wiley and Walter McCoy and the semis in both men's and women's 200 meters.

"I hadn't expected times to be this fast," said Nort Thorton, head coach for the U.S. team, after watching Kris Kirchner of Solon, Ohio, and Sterkel of the University of Texas swim to victory Thursday in the men's and women's 100-meter freestyle events, respectively.

Kirchner was clocked in 51.39 and Sterkel in 57.17, joining a Soviet and a Romanian in record-breaking performances.

Soviet swimmer Sergei Zabolotnov's time of 2:03.65 set a Games record in the men's 200-meter backstroke, while Romanian Carmen Bunaciu, a national hero here, clocked her fastest time this year, 2:13.20, in the women's 200-meter backstroke.

The Soviet men's 800-meter freestyle relay team took the preliminary competition and set the fifth Games record of the night at the open-air swimming pool with a time of 7:36.

The American swimmers combined with U.S. hurdlers to collect four gold medals overall Thursday. Meanwhile, Romanians dominated the gymnastics competition and Soviet pole vaulters outjumped two former world-record holders from France.

Two-time Olympic champion Nadia Comaneci of Romania won three of the four gold medals in women's apparatus events, sharing the vault title with Stela Zaharova of the Soviet Union and the parallel bars gold medal with teammate Emilia Eberle.

It was the final night of gymnastics competition. Comaneci won five gold medals in all. Eberle won the gold on the balance beam.

American national collegiate champion Larry Cowling of Cal-Berkeley ran the 110-meter hurdles in 13.65 seconds for a gold medal. Stephanie Hightower, of Louisville, Ky., clocked her best time of the year in the 100-meter hurdles, winning the gold in 13.03.

The pole vault was a battle of some of the world's best and was won by Konstantin Volkov of the Soviet Union with a vault of 18 feet, 10 1/2 inches. He missed on a world record attempt at 19-1 1/4. Current world-record holder Vladimir Polyakov of the Soviet Union captured the silver medal, while Philippe Houvion of France, a former world-record holder, was third. His countryman, Thierry Vigneron, another former world-record holder, was fourth.

Armin Lemme of East Germany won the discus event with a Games record toss of 216-2 1/2, beating the old mark of 210-5, set by Nikolai Vichor of the Soviet Union.

A protest over judging, the fourth in four days of competition, marred the medals ceremony for the 1,500 meters.

Amar Brahimia of Algeria, originally placed second after Wednesday's race, stomped off the medals stand when officials tried to present him the bronze medal. The silver was awarded to Vinko Pokrajcic of Yugoslavia after judges re-evaluated a photograph of the finish.

Romanians took three of the five Greco-Roman wrestling titles, with the others going to Soviet wrestlers.

Sergei Kuhmin of the Soviet Union and countryman Alexandr Portnov placed one-two in men's springboard diving, well ahead of Li Kongzheng of China in third and American Randy Abelman in fourth.

Earlier in the week, Thorton and other Western coaches predicted slow times and few shattered records. So Thursday's showing surprised a lot of people.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The third edition of the National Sports Festival chugged into high gear today, with action underway in 24 of the 33 sports represented at this American extravaganza.

Among the events getting started today at a variety of sites in and around this upstate New York city were the swimming, basketball, baseball, wrestling, volleyball and gymnastics competitions.

The 2,500 athletes taking part in the six-day Festival were officially welcomed and the event declared open Thursday night in a colorful ceremony on the Syracuse University campus.

A near-capacity crowd at the Carrier Dome watched the athletes parade, team-by-team, to their seats on the floor of the huge arena, each of the groups dressed in different brightly-colored warmup suits.

Actor Cliff Robertson, Syracuse Mayor Lee Alexander and John F.X. Mannion, chairman of the Syracuse Organizing Committee, were among those delivering speeches.

Mannion evoked the greatest response when he spoke of the

ECU Handball Players At Festival

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Three East Carolina University handball players are expected to draw starting assignments for the South women's team when play begins Friday here at the National Sports Festival.

Gail O'Brien, Donna Eason and Maureen Buck will be among the first seven players on the court for the South at the opening game against the East. Dr. Wayne Edwards, ECU's director of intramural and recreation services.

Edwards is attending the festival as a national coordinator for the U.S. Team Handball Federation.

O'Brien, from Greensboro, will start as circle runner; Eason, from Macclesfield, at left wing; and Buck, from Silver Springs, Md., in the back court.

Four other women players from ECU, Shirley Brown of Aoshkie, Jolanda Clayton of Roxboro, Elaine Davis of Clinton and Ginger Rothermel of Jacksonville, are also expected to play.

The game is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. The South team will also play the West and Midwest teams on Saturday and Monday. The finals are scheduled for Tuesday. The Sports Festival concludes Wednesday with the awards ceremonies.

Another ECU student, Carl Karpinski of Winston-Salem, is a member of the South men's handball team and is expected to see action as well.

The festival is considered a showcase for 33 summer Olympic sports and over 3,600 athletes are expected to participate. The festival is held annually and helps prepare and select competitors for the World Olympic Games.

The ECU handball players chosen for the teams were selected at regional tryouts held last year. A total of 100 men and 80 women competed for the 15 positions.

At the Sports Festival, 25 men and women will be selected for a pre-Olympic handball national team. According to Edwards, at least two players from ECU have a good chance of making the national team.

Team handball was introduced in the 1936 Olympics held in Berlin. The game returned to the Olympics in 1972 and became a permanent sport in 1976. ECU adopted the game as an intramural sport in 1976.

unexpected U.S. hockey team's gold medal victory. He said, "One moment of glory brought our nation together as never before." Mannion added that the spirit persists in these Games.

Coastal Plains South Wins, 12-2

Babe Ruth

Askew struck out 14 and walked five en route to the victory. He gave up a two-run home run to Willie Person in the second and was untouched after that. Person had two of Albemarle's three hits.

Ahead 4-2 going into the fourth, Coastal Plains South broke the game open with four runs. Lassiter hit a solo home run with one out and Dixon Page followed with a double.

Page scored on Sammy Tucker's single and Tucker later scored on Jeff Cox hit-and-run single. Cox subsequently scored on Askew's single to give Coastal Plains South an 8-2 lead.

Pope upped the margin to 10-2 with a two-run home run in the fifth.

Cox was three for three to lead Coastal Plains in hitting. Tucker and Lassiter were two for three, Tom Buie was two for four and Pope was two for five.

Ricky Farrow's single in the second brought home two runs and gave Pitt County a 2-0 lead, a lead it never lost. Pitt County's other runs came in the third and fourth.

chorus of the same chant from many of the athletes gathered here. Then, after a spectacular laser light show, which ended the ceremony, many of them rose to their feet and again cheered, "U.S.A., U.S.A."

Actually, the opening ceremony was upstaged somewhat by defending national and world champion figure skater Scott Hamilton, who took a big lead in an event that wasn't even scheduled to start until today.

Figure skating officials decided Wednesday night that their events had been scheduled too close together and that they weren't happy with the ice at the Onondaga War Memorial arena. They abruptly decided to hold the men's compulsory figures a day early.

Hamilton took the lead in the skating by scoring seven original points to 14 for second-place Mark Cockerell and 26 for Brian Boitano.

Hamilton's arch-rival, David Santee, was expected to take part in the competition, but announced Wednesday he had a knee injury and would not compete. Santee's brother, James, was fourth, though, with 28 points.

The compulsories count for 30 percent of the skaters' aggregate points for the medal.

Although Hamilton, the oldest of the competitors in the men's figures, admitted he is not in peak condition, one official noted the 22-year-old skater was so superior to the rest of the field it would take a broken leg for him to lose the gold medal.

The pageantry of the day began in the afternoon, when Joe Morris, the Syracuse University tailback, carried the National Sports Festival torch through the busy downtown area to the Carrier Dome. The torch then was used during the opening ceremonies to light the flame that will burn throughout these Games.

Morris ignited his torch from those carried by two other runners, Mary Kesel and Joe Peraino, who had carried them across New York.

The process was the culmination of a flame relay involving 400 runners. They started July 4 from Pike's Peak in Colorado, near Colorado Springs, site of the previous two Festivals.

Remember The Lennon Sisters? New Look Now

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The matronly woman leaned toward the stage and grasped the outstretched hand of Janet Lennon.

"Does your mommy know you're doing this?" she admonished after watching the Lennon Sisters do a modified striptease that was a far cry from the pigtails and poodle skirts of another era.

"We had to move on and grow, to become women," said Janet, who, at age 9, was the "baby" of the group a quarter-century ago when the four sisters became a national Saturday night television fixture on the Lawrence Welk Show.

Today, with teen-agers of their own, the Lennons say they are first of all wives and mothers — among them they have 14 children ages 7 to 17 — but they still like to take their act on the road when the occasion is right.

Playing gigs from Las Vegas and Reno to amusement parks and state fairs, Dianne, 41, Peggy, 40, Kathy, 37, and Janet, 35, throw in enough of the old songs to satisfy older generations who come to see what's happened to America's precocious sweethearts.

But when they swing into a sultry rendition of "Anything Goes" and strip down to red corsets and black silk stockings, the Lennons leave little doubt that they, like the times, have changed.

If the whistles, applause and shouts at a recent appearance at a Kansas City amusement park were any barometer, the public likes what maturation has done for the Lennon sisters.

"Some people say 'Why didn't you stay the way you were?'" said Kathy.

"Some say 'How dare you?' and a few mouths drop open," added Peggy, who is the mother of six and teaches drama classes near her home in Los Angeles' San Fernando Valley. "People expect us to still be children. They don't realize we're women now. But we would never do anything that was not in good taste."

"People have always thought of us as four little girls who stand around, do the polka, things like that," said Janet, the mother of five. She now works with her husband, who produces radio and television commercials in Hollywood.

The sisters began singing professionally in the mid-50s, blessed by an ability to harmonize and a father, Bill Lennon, who once sang tenor in quartets with the Freddy Martin and Paul Whiteman orchestras.

Early engagements were school affairs and private parties — anything to raise a few dollars toward the goal of getting the 11 Lennon children, their parents and their grandmother out of their two-bedroom house in suburban Los Angeles.

One evening one of Dianne's schoolmates, Lawrence Welk Jr., met her at a singing engagement, liked what he heard and spirited the four home to meet his father. Welk invited them to appear on his 1955 Christmas Eve show. The rest is history.

Today, Dianne, the mother of three, teaches remedial reading in a beach suburb of Los Angeles. Kathy, who lives nearby, handles the business affairs for the four.

She said job offers are weighed against family considerations, schedules of the four and "whether it's worth it to leave Los Angeles."

Whenever possible, the engagements include taking their children along.

The four, who in recent years past had been playing Las Vegas eight to 10 weeks a year with performers such as Andy Williams and Robert Goulet, have found that market eroded by a swing to country-western. The sisters say they like the country sound but can't say the same for rock music.

"They've electronic'd themselves into nothing but noise," Peggy said.

Six of the children of Dianne, Peggy and Janet have formed a rock group that's been playing around the Los Angeles area at high school graduations and other functions. Kathy said the band has a good sound and her sisters may face the same problems their parents knew — a budding talent group on their hands.

"We really tend not to want them to do it," Peggy said. "We know the pitfalls."

New Girl For Roommate

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Last year with the disappearance of Suzanne Somers as a roommate in "Three's Company," Jenilee Harrison moved into the menage a trois on the TV sitcom costarring John Ritter and Joyce DeWitt.

Priscilla, who starred in the 1978 series "The American Girls," will play a nurse, joining Ritter, Joyce DeWitt and series regulars Don Knotts and Richard Kline.

Local Branch To Observe Royal Union Ports Activity Setting Record

Members of the Greenville Branch of the English-Speaking Union will hold a reception at the Casablanca Restaurant on July 29 to honor the wedding of His Royal Highness Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer.

According to E-SU president Dr. Ralph Hardee Rives, a champagne toast will be given to the Royal couple at the conclusion of the cocktail party. A wedding cake featuring the insignia of the Prince of Wales will be served to members and guests.

Reservations for the party must be made by July 27 with the secretary, Ms. Annie Turner, 1701 East Fourth Street.

Members of the local E-SU branch in February sent a letter of congratulations to Prince Charles. A reply letter from D. Everett, Secretary, Buckingham Palace was received by the Greenville E-SU Branch, expressing the personal appreciation of Prince Charles and Lady Diana for the E-SU congratulatory message.

Two Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $1,950 property damage resulted from two traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police before dawn today.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 2:08 a.m. collision on Charles Street, 250 feet north of the 11th Street intersection.

Police said a car driven by William Charles Laughinghouse of Route 5, Greenville collided with a utility pole, causing $1,000 damage to the car and $500 damage to the pole.

Laughinghouse was charged with driving under the influence and careless and reckless driving in connection with the mishap.

Investigators reported a car driven by Orman Keith Fuller of Route 6, Louisburg, ran off the road at the intersection of Fourth and Ash Streets about 12:45 a.m., causing an estimated $300 damage to the car, $50 damage to a street sign, and $100 damage to a yard at 1900 East Fourth St.

Fuller was charged with exceeding a safe speed and driving after drinking.

CARS COLLIDE

An estimated $2,000 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 9:30 p.m. collision here yesterday at the intersection of Tenth and Charles Streets.

Police Department investigators identified the drivers involved as Teresa Lori Stewart of 106 South Library St., and Stacey Kevin House of Route 2, Ayden.

No charges were made by police.

ANNIVERSARY

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said Thursday that trade at the two state ports set record levels for revenue and tonnage in 1980 for the third fiscal year in a row as industrial investment throughout the state increases.

Industrial investment for the first six months of this year totals $1.1 billion, up 48 percent from the same time last year, Hunt said.

The governor said during his weekly news conference that $545 million was spent on new industry and $573 million on expansions this year as compared to $399.5 million for new industry and $353.1 million for expansions during the first half of last year.

This year's new investments have created 12,613 jobs, mostly in electrical and electronic machinery industries, Hunt said.

Figures from the state Department of Commerce indicated total annual revenues for the ports in Wilmington and Morehead City in 1980 were $12.68 million, compared to $10.5 million the previous year. That represents a 21 percent increase.

Profits at the ports were $1.4 million, compared to $857,480, the year before, while tonnage handled at both ports totaled 3.05 million as compared to 2.82 million the previous year.

Revenues increased more rapidly at the Morehead City port, where a 25 percent rise was recorded. The revenues totaled $3.8 million as compared to $8.87 million at the Wilmington port, where a 19 percent increase was reported over revenue the year before.

For the first time since 1967, the Morehead City port recorded a profit. The port earned $113,108, compared to a loss the previous year of $116,648. Profits at Wilmington were $1.3 million.

Tonnage at Wilmington was 2.7 million while tonnage at Morehead City was 317,963.

Hunt said revenues for this fiscal year are up 76 percent from 1977, when the state took over operation of the ports. He said tonnage has increased by 62 percent since that time.

"Good ports mean increased income for people all over this state," Hunt said.

"We estimate that tonnage moving through the port will generate more than $500 million in extra personal income for our citizens."

Tom Taft, chairman of the N.C. Ports Authority, said the increase in profits was due to better equipment and personnel at the state ports. "Because we have an upbeat staff and an upbeat program, people want to trade with us," Taft said.

CONFERENCE CHOIR

The Conference Choir will be held Saturday at 4:00 p.m. at the Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church, Greenville. Bishop W.S. Jones asks that all members be present.

More Spending Food Stamp Cuts, And More

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is giving President Reagan all the spending cuts he wanted in the food stamp program he wanted and more.

House and Senate negotiators have agreed to a package that will reduce food stamp spending next year by $1.65 billion, $199 million more than mandated by the overall budget cutting plan Reagan engineered through Congress.

The food stamp reductions now become part of a package of more than $35 billion in cuts across all government programs and it must be approved by the full Senate and House, where the initial margin of victory was slim.

Under the food stamp plan, new, more stringent eligibility standards will force some 1 million of the nearly 23 million recipients from the rolls. Changes in the way benefits are calculated will reduce the monthly food stamp allotment for millions more.

The stricter eligibility standards and tougher fraud and misrepresentation penalties will go into effect as soon as possible. Exempted from the new standards, however, will be the elderly and handicapped, meaning that about 100,000 persons will retain benefits that would otherwise have been terminated.

Efforts to resolve differences in the House and Senate approaches to the food stamp cuts began earlier this week, but hit a snag when Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate negotiating team, demanded that cuts deeper than those mandated be made. He had been unsuccessful in winning deeper cuts when the Senate considered its version.

"But I think I should make it clear for the record that the Senate's view is that this represents a loss of savings that will have to be made up in producer-oriented programs," Helms said.

Because food stamps account for nearly half the Agriculture Department's budget, Helms said that program "could stand somewhat deeper cuts than agriculture-oriented programs. We have to make a choice."

The compromise on the additional cut will mean food stamp recipients with jobs will be able to discount only 18 percent of their monthly income from benefit calculations. The rate now is 20 percent.

It will mean lower monthly benefits for about one-sixth of the food stamp households - those that have income from jobs. That would be about 1.25 million households.

The amount is intended to cover work-related expenses, such as transportation, income taxes and Social Security. Opponents of the change contended a department study showed that food stamp recipients with jobs actually use 18.4 percent of their income to meet work-related expenses.

In exchange, Helms gave up efforts to increase the amount of income households must spend on food before getting food stamps. He also abandoned a drive to require double repayment from any household found to have gotten more benefits than allowed because of fraud or misrepresentation.

Reagan, in recommending most of the cuts in the plan, said they would ensure that the limited government resources for food aid are targeted at those that really need it.

Under the new eligibility standards, only people with income less than 130 percent of the federal poverty level will be eligible. For a family of four, that means a yearly income of less than $11,000. Under current law, families with incomes of $14,000 and more can qualify.
