Guerrilla Faction Strains Lebanon Peace

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas fired rockets and artillery into the pro-Israeli Christian militia enclave in southern Lebanon early today, breaking a fragile cease-fire for the fourth time since it took effect Friday, the Israeli military command said.

Israeli jets cracked the sound barrier in flights over the Lebanese capital today that drew Palestinian anti-aircraft fire, Beirut Radio said. The Palestinian guerrilla command said the overflight, the second reported in as many days, were a violation of the cease-fire.

No casualties were reported in the shelling and neither Israeli nor Christian gunners returned the fire, the Tel Aviv command said.

The guerrillas fired from the Palestinian-held market town of Nabatiyeh, about eight miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese frontier, toward Christian villages west of the Israeli border kibbutz, or collective farm, of Misgav Am, an Israeli spokesman said. He said none of the shells fell inside Israel.

There was no immediate comment on the report from the Palestinian guerrilla command in Beirut.

Israel and its Christian militia allies in the "Free Lebanon" border enclave reported three salvos of Palestinian artillery and rocket fire Friday and Saturday.

A maverick Palestinian guerrilla group, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command headed by former Syrian army Capt. Ahmed Jibril, said it was responsible for the earlier shelling, and vowed it would ignore the truce.

A spokesman for the Libyan and Syrian backed command, a tiny, well-armed guerrilla faction under the Palestine Liberation Organization umbrella, refused to comment on today's firing.

After the earlier shelling, an unidentified PLO spokesman condemned the attacks as a "violation of responsibilities and of the pledges upheld by the Palestinian resistance," the Palestinian Wafa news agency said.

Lebanese Christian militia chief Maj. Saad Haddad, commander of the Free Lebanon preserve, said Sunday he would break the truce if his zone came under attack again.

"If they will shoot again I will retaliate and I am going to retaliate hard," Haddad said in a Radio Israel interview.

While Israel and its Christian militia allies protested the border shelling the PLO complained about two reconnaissance flights over Beirut Sunday by Israeli jets, claiming the overflights violated the cease-fire. Guerrilla gunners in the Lebanese capital fired on the intruders, apparently without success.

"Israel has blamed the PLO for having unruly elements that violate the cease-fire, but what about the uncontrolled Israeli flights over Lebanon, isn't that a violation?" said Mahmoud Labadi, spokesman for PLO chief Yasser Arafat.

Waiting For Wedding

Embattled CIA Director Faces New Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Embattled CIA Director William J. Casey, stepping up his fight to keep his job, now faces a new controversy over a CIA covert action plan that sources say he approved in an effort to topple Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy.

One Republican source said Sunday night that Casey recently presented the House Intelligence Committee with a proposal that the CIA try to undermine the radical Arab leader.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., a member of the committee, said Chairman Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., and others on the panel had sent a letter to President Reagan protesting a proposed covert action that Casey had approved.

Zablocki declined to identify the target of the proposed covert action, but the Republican source, who asked not to be identified, said it was Libya.

Also on Sunday, Casey asked the Senate Intelligence Committee to allow him to appear at a committee hearing as soon as possible to try to dispel questions about his past business dealings, his management of the agency and calls for his resignation by three key Senate Republicans.

Casey sent each member of the Senate Intelligence Committee a 20-inch stack of written material Sunday afternoon, one day earlier than he had initially promised.

These responses were in answer to four pages of questions the committee sent Casey last week regarding his role as a director of a failed New Orleans farming venture called Multiponics Inc. and his appointment of Max Hugel, a businessman inexperienced in intelligence, to head the CIA's worldwide spy network, CIA spokesman Dale Peterson said.

The magazine said the CIA's goal was Khadafy's "ultimate" removal and that House committee members read this as code for assassinating him. The magazine said the committee members mistrusted Casey's denial of any intent to kill Khadafy, described by Reagan as a premier supporter of international terrorism.

Rep. C.W. Young, R-Fla., a committee member, declined to discuss the Newsweek report but said, "It is definitely against our policy to engage in any termination of any individual." Assassination is barred by an executive order issued by former President Carter.

"There was some reservation about the covert action," Zablocki said. "I think the committee has a right to voice its concern."

One source close to the committee said the letter to Reagan did not mention details of the action involved.

HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

REGISTER IMMEDIATELY

All children living in the Greenville City Schools District who have not registered for the 1981-82 school year are urged to do so immediately. "We need this information now to assign teachers and students," Margaret W. White, principal of Sadie Sautter School, said. "You may go to the Greenville City School office, 431 W. Fifth Street, or the Greenville city school nearest you."

POST RUNAWAY NUMBER(S)

I was watching television one morning recently when a commercial directed at runaways was shown. This commercial gave a toll-free number which runaways can call and leave a message which would be given to their parents or guardians. Since it is not likely that a runaway would remember this number, why couldn't some local organization, perhaps a young people's group, get permission from the phone company to post the number in all public telephone booths. This would make it much easier for those who want to contact home to do so. T.P.

Your suggestion is a good one, we think. We hope some of our readers will follow through.

Hotline is aware of two such runaway referral numbers: One is 1-800-231-6946. This one is run 24 hours a day by the State of Texas Criminal Justice Division as a service to the whole nation.

The other is 1-800-621-4000. This one is located in Chicago and is perhaps better known, since every time we try to call and check to be sure it's still in service, it's busy. It is apparently in service, however, since it can be obtained by request from the 800 information number, 800-555-1212.

ATLANTA (AP) — A special police task force investigating the slayings of 28 young blacks has been stymied in its efforts to find Darron Glass, a 10-year-old black boy who disappeared more than 10 months ago.

But police say they haven't forgotten the 4-foot-9, 75 pound youngster. They've just run out of leads to investigate.

Almost all of the 28 victims in the series of slayings came to the attention of the task force after they were reported missing. In the two years since the slayings began, however, the names on the task force's list of missing black youngsters slowly were transferred to the list of victims.

The one exception was the Glass boy, who disappeared Sept. 14 while returning home from a church outing to an Atlanta Braves' baseball game.

His name has remained on the task force list, and his foster mother, Fannie Smith, has continued to hope he will be found alive. That hope was fueled for a brief moment recently when two detectives from the task force knocked on her door.

"They had gotten a call from somebody saying I had an abandoned well in my back yard and Darron was buried in it," Mrs.

Smith said. "I told him I wish I did have a well. I'd clean it out and wouldn't have to pay all this money to the city for water."

After Darron disappeared, Mrs. Smith said she was convinced he would be found alive. But now, nearly a year later, she says her faith has waned.

Road Funds

Pitt County will receive $417,959 as part of a $30.7 million appropriation approved on a county-by-county basis by the N.C. Board of Transportation for secondary road construction improvements during the next 12 months.

State Transportation Secretary W. R. "Bill" Roberson Jr. said Pitt's share of the appropriation, which was allocated by the 1981 General Assembly, is based on 257.14 miles of unpaved secondary roads. The total unpaved secondary system statewide contains 18,907 miles.

Unpaved mileage and improvement allocations in several neighboring counties included: Martin, 137.21, $223,023; Beaufort, 292.12, $474,881; Craven, 186.82, $303,660; Greene, 77.08, $125,287; Lenoir, 183.28, $297,906; Nash, 139.40, $226,583; and Wilson, 96.17, $156,316.

Roberson said the allocated funds will be used for improvements to the secondary road system such as new paving, widening existing paved roads, improving unpaved roadways to an "all weather condition," replacing small bridges and strengthening paved roads to relieve present weight restrictions.

The official reported that the state board approved $246,276,644 for maintenance operations and contract resurfacing on highways across the state, with nearly $80 million of the total allotted for contract resurfacing on some 2,900 miles of primary, secondary and urban roads.

Roberson said the funding approved for contract resurfacing as well as the $30.7 million approved on a county-by-county basis was made possible through the passage of Gov. Jim Hunt's "Good Roads" program by the General Assembly.

SURGERY ON FETUS — Mrs. Rosa Skinner holds her twins Michael, left, and Mary. A medical team of Univ. of California-San Francisco doctors operated on Michael while still in the womb on April 26, two weeks before Michael was born. (AP Laserphoto)

Fetal Surgery Success Cited By Med Team

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 2-month-old boy, operated on two weeks before he was born as his twin sister lay next to him in the womb, will receive more surgery that will "make him just like any other healthy, normal kid," doctors say.

Michael Skinner was operated on April 26 for a blockage of the urinary tract that could have killed him, doctors announced Sunday.

They said they implanted a tube in Michael's bladder to drain fluids — a catheter that remained until the day after the boy and his twin were born May 10 to Rosa Skinner, 41, of San Mateo.

Earlier this year, doctors in Boston also performed an "in utero" operation, and surgeons in Boulder, Colo. performed one

April 29. Mrs. Skinner was referred to Moffett Hospital at the University of California at San Francisco shortly after becoming pregnant.

Sonograms — detailed pictures of the fetus produced by sound waves — taken there revealed the male fetus suffered a blockage in the urinary tract that required treatment to prevent further damage to his kidneys and lungs.

Doctors decided to insert the catheter and make an artificial opening in the urinary tract after an attempt to drain the accumulating fluid with a needle failed.

They said placement of the catheter was risky because the boy had a normally developing twin sister. The twin also was delivered successfully.

Still Studying Causes Of Mass Food Poisoning

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Experts are still conducting lab tests to find out what type of food poisoning sent about 300 people from a Southern Baptist conference banquet to the hospital over the weekend.

Between 1,600 and 1,700 people attended Saturday's dinner at the Ridgecrest Baptist Conference Center in Black Mountain, conference officials said.

After the meal of ham, chopped beef, peas, candied yams, salad and desserts, 308 people were treated at four hospitals and a clinic and 67 were admitted. Nearly all had been released by Sunday night.

"We're pretty well convinced part of the meal last night was part of the problem," said Dr. James Tennv. director of the Buncombe County Health Department. "It looks like it was the ham or the icing on the cake."

One unidentified woman was listed in serious condition in the coronary care unit at Asheville's Memorial Mission Hospital on Sunday, but doctors said her condition is not a direct result of the food poisoning.

Doctors quickly ruled out botulism as a cause for the outbreak, saying they believe the cause is either a staph infection or salmonella bacterial infection. They began laboratory tests early Sunday, but officials said it would be 24 to 48 hours before the results of those tests are known.

Most victims complained of nausea, vomiting, stomach cramps, shivering and color loss. Hospital officials said most were suffering from dehydration.

The six-day Sunday School Leadership Conference started Saturday, drawing participants from throughout the South. Ridgecrest manager Ken McNear said everyone who has been released from the hospital has returned to the conference center to complete the session.

McNear said he could not explain the incident.

"The Buncombe County Health Department is working with us," he said Sunday. "But we haven't been able to pinpoint anything at this time."

Because not everyone became sick, McNear said, "I'd assume it was just a small part of the food that there was anything wrong with."

Colleagues Say Helms Is Big Liability For N.C.

CAR HITS UTILITY POLE — A car operated by Roosevelt Howard, Rt. 1, Bethel, hit this utility pole at the intersection of county roads 1415 and 1442 north of Greenville yesterday. According to investigating Highway Patrolman W.J. Featherston, Howard had a blowout of the left rear tire of his car while traveling east on 1415, lost control, traveled through two yards and hit the pole. Damage was estimated at $1,000 to the car, $1,000 to the pole and transformer and $100 to the cable TV unit on the pole. Howard was charged with driving under the influence. There were no injuries in the 5:30 p.m. incident. (Reflector Photo By Larry Zicherman)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tactics of Sen. Jesse Helms, R.-N.C., may backfire and damage the tobacco price-support program his constituents want, some congressmen and senators warn.

"Helms is the worst liability you have in the state of North Carolina," said Rep. Frederick W. Richmond, D-N.Y. "Helms has been so vicious and unbending toward social programs, and he has so antagonized members of Congress that they want to get back at Helms through the tobacco program."

Richmond, chairman of the House Nutrition Subcommittee, has been a major force in an urban-rural political coalition in the House that has protected farm interests in the South and food stamp recipients in the North.

"I've been quite helpful to the tobacco program for seven years," Richmond said. "With Helms doing everything he can to antagonize urban members of Congress, it is going to be difficult to save the tobacco program."

Tobacco opponents say they may already have enough votes to kill the program when the 1981 Farm Bill reaches the Senate floor in September. Some say they plan to tack on amendments which would put an end to the government's price and allotment system.

The price-support program has guaranteed farmers a minimum payment by controlling the amount of tobacco grown. A similar program for peanuts also is endangered and it too is considered vital to North Carolina.

Helms, in his zeal to abolish such social programs as food stamps, has alienated colleagues with his tactics on the Senate floor and his unwillingness to compromise. His political fundraising Congressional Club has financed campaigns against Democratic incumbents across the nation.

"The chief spokesman for tobacco is the chief spokesman for destroying what I'm interested in," said Rep. George Miller, D-Calif. "You can't kick the hell out of people and then argue they should be with you, especially on such a narrow issue as tobacco."

Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., said, "In this place, anytime you pick up a sword and go after somebody's program, you had better be prepared to have that sword come back at you in a way that the wielder of that sword thinks you are the most vulnerable."

But Helms says if the tobacco program dies, it's not his fault.

"This is a configuration that some of the critics are trying to contrive," Helms said. "The tobacco and peanut programs have had growing problems for years — everyone has known that. If I were not chairman of the Agriculture Committee, the tobacco program would go down the tubes."

Ten People Die In Weekend Accidents

By The Associated Press

Ten people were killed in weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina, the state Highway Patrol reported early today.

The fatalities, including five pedestrians and a multiple-death accident in Jackson County, bring the death toll for the year to 757, compared to 818 at the same time last year.

The latest reported death occurred early Sunday on N.C. 80 15.1 miles north of Marion. Jeffrey McMahan, 28, of Lexington lost control of his car, ran off the right side of the road, hit an embankment, went across the road and flew off the left embankment. McMahan was thrown from his car, troopers said.

Blanche Howell Osborne, 69, of Canton, and Herbert William House, 77, of Cary were killed Saturday at 8 p.m. in Jackson County on U.S. 441, 9 miles south of Dillsboro. The southbound Osborne vehicle crossed the center line and hit the car in which House was a passenger head on.

At 8:15 p.m. Saturday in Guilford County, Donald Boyd Maness, 22, of Greensboro, died in a single-car accident nine miles north of Greensboro. The patrol said Maness was traveling at a high speed when his vehicle ran off the road and struck a tree.

Jerald Clifton Bryant Jr., 24, of Murfreesboro was killed when a vehicle made a left turn in front of his car, he collided with the car. The patrol said that accident occurred about 9:40 p.m. Saturday on U.S. 158, three miles east of Murfreesboro.

At about the same time Saturday, John Robert Terry, 37, of Yanceyville was killed on rural paved road 1500, 12 miles west of Milton in Caswell County. The patrol said he was lying in the road when struck by an oncoming vehicle.

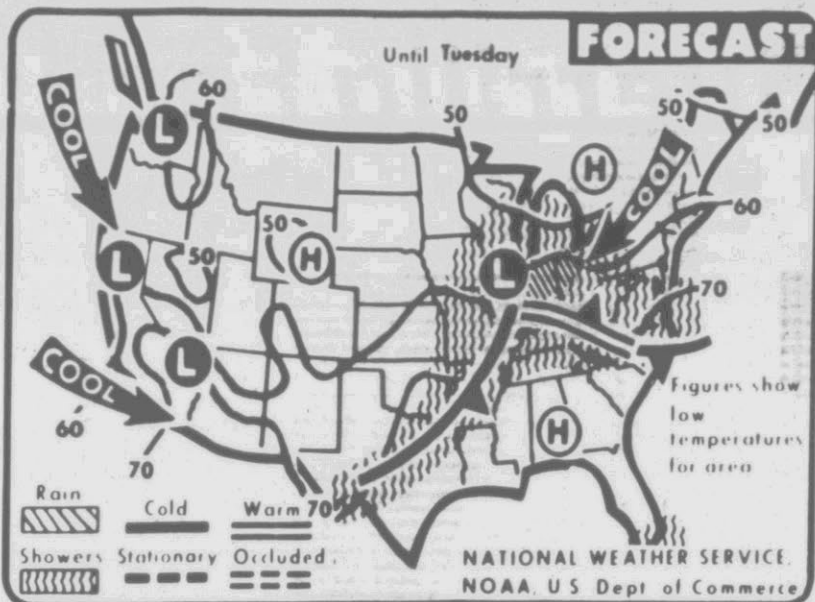

Another pedestrian was killed Saturday night at 10:15 p.m. in Johnston County while lying in a roadway. Donald Ray Griffin, 26, of Smithfield was struck by an oncoming car on rural paved road 1007, four miles east of Smithfield.

Earlier Saturday, Richard Durwood Crosier, 19, of Snow Hill was killed when he was hit by a car on U.S. 64, one mile west of Columbia. The patrol said he was standing in the road.

Pedestrian William Lyon Coley Jr., 22, of Raleigh was killed about 1:50 a.m. Saturday about one mile north of Raleigh. The patrol said he was struck by a hit and run vehicle.

The first fatality of the weekend was Jarvis Metts, 52, of Kinston. The patrol reported that he was killed Friday night when two cars struck him while he was crawling on N.C. 11, one mile north of Kinston.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Cool weather is expected in the forecast period until Tuesday morning for the Pacific coast and the Great Lakes. Warm weather is expected for most southern areas. Showers are forecast from Texas into the Midwest, Great Lakes and mid-Atlantic states. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
North Carolina continues to bake under a high pressure system and southwesterly winds, the National Weather Service reported today.

Skies will be partly cloudy today and Tuesday with scattered mainly afternoon and evening thunderstorms. Highs both days will be in the 90s except for some 80s in the mountains.

By early tonight a cold front near the Virginia border will encourage the development of scattered thunderstorms, mainly over the mountains and northern counties.

The front will dip into the state tonight then return northward Tuesday, allowing southerly winds again to spread over the entire state.

The winds will produce another typical late July day for Tuesday, with partly cloudy skies and a chance of afternoon and evening thunderstorms, especially over the mountains.

Skies over the state during the early morning hours today were clear except for some patchy high cloudiness. Dense fog formed in some of the mountain valleys. Visibility at the Asheville airport dropped as low as one-eighth of a mile.

Temperatures cooled into the 70s at most locations east of the mountains during the pre-dawn hours. The temperature at Asheville was in the mid-60s.

The fair weather this morning followed a Sunday that saw rather pleasant late July weather interrupted only by widely scattered late afternoon and evening thunderstorms.

High temperatures Sunday were in the 80s to mid-90s at most stations. Rocky Mount was the hot spot with a reading of 94. The 90 degree reading at Asheville set a record high for July 26. The previous record, set in 1978, was 88.

Crop, People Plagues In Cuba Blamed On U.S.

MIAMI (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro says the United States is engaged in "a bacteriological war" that caused plagues on Cuban sugar and tobacco crops and an outbreak of Dengue Fever that has killed more than 100 people.

"In the last two years, four harmful plagues have hit our country — the African swine fever, the 'roya' of sugar cane, the blue fungus of tobacco and Dengue Fever," Castro charged Sunday in an address marking the anniversary of the start of the Cuban revolution in 1953.

"We share the convictions of the people, and we keep the deep suspicions that the plagues which have hit our country — especially the hemorrhagic Dengue — could have been introduced into Cuba by the CIA," Castro said.

Castro also said the United States is maintaining "an ominous silence" while exile groups plot his assassination and the destruction of Cuba's government and economy.

Castro said 113 people, including 81 children, have died from the Dengue Fever during the past two months and that more than 273,400 cases have been reported on this communist island 90 miles south of Key West, Fla.

The United States has further demonstrated its role in the disease outbreak and its indifference toward anti-Castro exile activities through its "economical blockade" of Cuba, Castro said.

"Imperialists not only tolerate (the exile activity), but intensify their actions of economical blockade against our country," he said. "The North American authorities have used all their influence to impede the sale of nickel in the capitalist countries. The Yankee blockade interfered in our efforts to get the necessary products to fight the epidemic."

"Why would it be strange that imperialism goes again to the temptation to use treacherously biological arms against Cuba?" Castro asked. "What can anyone expect from a government whose policy is known for its cynicism, its lies and its absolute lack of scruples?"

Castro's 2½-hour speech was broadcast on Havana radio and monitored in Miami.

In Washington, a U.S. State Department spokesman said comment would be withheld until the speech could be analyzed.

The Cuban president lashed out at the Miami-based exile organization Alpha 66, which said it has sent some 40 commandos to Cuba bent on assassinating him and sabotaging Cuban commerce and industry.

Several alleged Alpha 66 members were taken into custody in Cuba earlier this month.

Humberto Perez, chief of military operations for Alpha 66, said through a translator that the commandos would continue their efforts to kill Castro. "We'll keep trying to get him until we do," Perez said.

Penny-Pinching

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Reagan administration is slashing billions from federal spending, the U.S. Mint is pinching pennies.

Because zinc is much cheaper than copper, the Mint is changing the composition of the one-cent piece. The present blend of 95-percent copper and 5 percent zinc will be switched to 97.6 percent zinc and 2.4 percent copper.

Mint officials say the copper-dominated coins will continue to be produced through 1982 as the changeover occurs.

Penny-pincher's note: the new coin will weigh about one-fifth less.

Area 4-H Club Entered Show

Five participants from Pitt County Hayfield Hayburners 4-H Horse Club participated in the State 4-H Horse Show competition held recently in Dorton Arena.

Ashlie Tripp, riding Don Donegal, placed 4th in Equitation on Ponies Over Fences. Slade Tripp, riding Champ, also participated in pony classes.

Alexis White, riding Just My Luck, placed 1st in Equitation on Ponies Over Fences, 5th in Bridle Path Hack, 6th in Working Pony Hunter Under Saddle and 5th in Working Pony Hunters Over Fences.

Lisa Holloman, riding Nutmeg, placed 5th in Working Pony Under Saddle and 6th in Bridle Path Hack.

Missy Daughtry, riding Woodland's Joint Venture, placed 1st in Working Pony Under Saddle, 2nd in Working Pony Hunter Over Fences, 3rd in Equitation on Ponies on the Flat and 3rd in Bridle Path Hack. Miss Daughtry was awarded Reserve Champion in the Working Pony Hunter Division for the state competition.

The Hayfield Hayburners invite any child 9 to 18 years of age to join their horse club activities for the coming year. For more information contact Dale Panaro, 4-H extension agent or Mrs. Ed Daughtry of Ayden.

Jean Harris In A Brawl

BEDFORD HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Jean Harris, convicted of murdering Scarsdale Diet Dr. Herman Tarnower, has been confined to her cell after a fight with another inmate, prison officials said.

A spokesman for the state Department of Correctional Services said Mrs. Harris and the other inmate, who was not identified, had an altercation Saturday morning at the Bedford Hills Correctional Center.

Spokesman Lou Ganim said a hearing will be held "within the next few days" on whether to discipline either or both women.

Ganim said "each woman gives a different version" of the incident. He said according to Mrs. Harris, the other woman punched her for no reason. He said the other inmate contended Mrs. Harris came at her, and she threw a punch to protect herself.

Corrections officers broke up the fight, and both women were treated for "bruises and scratches," Ganim said.

Mrs. Harris is serving a sentence of 15 years to life for the murder of Tarnower, 69, a cardiologist and author of the best-selling book, "The Complete Scarsdale Medical Diet."

Pitt Home Economist Will Continue On Volunteer Basis

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

"Being a part of this educational agency has been a way of life rather than just a profession," said Sue Brickhouse May, who recently retired from her 30-year job as Pitt County Home Extension agent.

As for her retirement plans, Mrs. May said she will be "working on getting bored."

"WORKING ON GETTING BORED"... traveling and reading are a few of the things being planned by Mrs. Sue B. May.

Her plans also include volunteering to help other people. "Just because I am not on the payroll doesn't mean that I am not a home economist," she said. "I will still work on a volunteer basis."

Mrs. May said it would be impossible to end her lifelong ambition of helping people just because she is retiring from her job with the county. She plans to continue to "help people have a better quality of life... But I can never help people as much as they have helped me."

Looking back over the years, Mrs. May said she was "most fortunate in having had the opportunity of being a public servant in such a progressive county filled with receptive, cooperative and understanding people."

A native of Columbia, Mrs. May graduated from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro with a B.S. degree in home economics. After teaching in Columbia, she became the home economics extension agent for Lenoir County before coming to Pitt County in the same capacity.

Mrs. May's areas of responsibility include housing, home furnishings, crafts, the aging and human development.

One of her concerns has been improved housing. She shows prospective builders what needs to be done and helps them decide the best way to re-do their homes. The majority of her work deals with improved storage, kitchen arrangements, adding on to homes and space planning. Mrs. May stresses that her job is not to compete with builders or interior decorators, but to help people make do with what they have.

"My whole role as extension agent is education of the public," Mrs. May said. She noted that the extension office has a program which airs every Thursday morning at 7:15 on WNCT and a weekly column in "The Daily Reflector," as well as a radio program on two stations. She said the extension department also has printed information for the public.

"Our job is to help the public learn how to have a better quality of life," said Mrs. May, "and the mass media is a way to reach the public."

The extension service also provides workshops for women's groups, and church and civic groups. A leadership program is held for those volunteers who want to teach crafts workshops.

During the 30 years that Mrs. May has worked as Pitt County's home extension agent, she has seen changes in the agency. A problem with the early extension programs, she feels, was that they were based on subject matter rather than the problems of the people in the county. Current programs are planned according to what the people of Pitt County need. Energy conservation and coping with inflation are two of the major issues the extension agency has dealt with in the past few years.

Mrs. May said many of her accomplishments are due to her family's support and the cooperation of the staff she works with. Help from local businesses and specialists on the state level have also helped her achieve her goals through the years.

She has been named "Tarheel of the Week" by The News and Observer of Raleigh and awarded a distinguished service award from the National Home Agents Association. She has also served as secretary and treasurer of the North Carolina Association of Extension Home Economists and is a member of the National Association of Extension Home Economists. She was treasurer of the State Family Life Council in 1978-79, and has been on the board of directors of the Council on Aging and a member of the Caswell Interagency Council.

Mrs. May serves as an elder in the Winterville Christian Church and is past president of the Greenville Camp and northeast area coordinator of the Gideon Auxiliary. She is also active in the Sans Souci Book Club of Winterville and is a member of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club.

She plans to "keep busy" during her retirement. She said that since "people have always been so wonderful, I would like to be a better neighbor than I have taken time to do. I am looking forward to reading. And during the last few years, my husband Milton and I have traveled in the United States. We hope to see a few more places."

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

"Christmas in July" has special meaning for needlecrafters. For them it is an opportunity to use the more leisurely summer days to start creating exciting decorations and gifts so that the busy holiday season will be more enjoyable.

Sure to be the hit of the 1981 season are these fascinating Frost Fantasy Ornaments, cut from red and green plastic canvas in snowflake and candy cane shapes and stitched with quick and easy pattern stitches.

Take this opportunity to learn a few pattern stitches while you make Frost Fantasies for tree ornaments, wreath or package decorations, stocking stuffers or small just-thinking-of-you gifts. They will be great items for your charity bazaars, too. Even the beginner can make two or three in an evening.

To obtain instructions for making the Frost Fantasy Ornaments, send your request for Leaflet No. N-168 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-168 by sending check or money order for $11 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains instructions, yarn, needle, and 24 pre-cut plastic shapes, sufficient for making 12 two-sided ornaments. Shipping charges are included.

Dear Pat: Have you tried making plant covers from plastic needlepoint canvas? When I first read about the colored plastic canvas in your column, I decided this would be an ideal use for that type canvas.

They are so quick to make with only a design and borders to be worked. I love the idea of leaving the background unworked so that the colored canvas shows.

I even change them for the various seasons and holidays. I used the pure white canvas with red hearts for Valentine's Day; pastel green with white bunnies for Easter, and multicolored flowers on blue canvas for summer. I'm starting now on autumn leaves on yellow canvas for fall and — of course — there will be some very special Christmas covers made.

Most of mine are square in shape although I have made a few round covers also. Here's hoping this idea will inspire others to brighten up their home this simple way. — Martha L., Santa Ana, Calif.

Thanks, Martha, for sharing your ideas with us. Perhaps a few working tips may help others who might not be able to figure out how to get started on plant covers.

I suggest that you place the container that you want to cover on a table, counter or other working surface and cut a piece of cardboard so that the top edge is just slightly wider than the top of the container. Then cut it so that it is just a little deeper than the container. This will give you the approximate size of one side of a square cover.

Of course you will need to cut four pieces of plastic canvas. (Continued on Page 5)

Couple Marries In Salisbury

SALISBURY — Gail Lynn Shaw of Salisbury and Steven Alan Belinsky of Chapel Hill were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in a candlelight ceremony at the Holiday Inn here. Dr. R. Herman Nicholson officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William John Shaw of Salisbury, formerly of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Harold W. Belinsky of High Point and the late Mrs. Belinsky.

A program of wedding music was performed by Mrs. Jane Price, organist and soloist, Laura Bessent. The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a white formal gown of satin and re-embroidered Venice lace. The gown was designed with a Queen Anne neckline and long tapered sleeves. A keyhole-back accented the attached chapel train. A chapel length veil of silk illusion bordered with Venice lace and pearls was attached to a matching lace Camelot etched in pearls. She carried a formal cascade bouquet of sonia roses, white fuji mums and white miniature carnations accented with baby's breath and tied with white satin ribbon.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Gail Molic Nickens of Chapel Hill. She wore a formal gown of apricot designed with an open neckline featuring self-fabric shoulder straps and a gathered criss-crossed empire bodice with a full A-lined sunpleated skirt. The sleeveless gown was complemented by a sheer voile apricot drape enhanced by a border of satin ribbon. She carried a bouquet of fuji mums tinted sonia with sprays of ivy, tied with apricot ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Barbara Hollandsworth Smith and Peggy Noel, both of Chapel Hill. They wore dresses and carried flowers identical to that of the honor attendant.

Flower girl was Stephanie Hoots of Winston-Salem, cousin of the bride. She wore a full length gown of white voile over taffeta with an empire bodice and an A-line ruffled skirt. She carried a basket of rose petals. Ring bearer was Steven Hoots of Winston-Salem, cousin of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were John William Shaw of Salisbury, brother of the bride, David Lewis Belinsky of Greensboro, brother of the bridegroom and Steven McMillan of Winston-Salem.

A reception was held in the Wallace Room following the ceremony. Mrs. Ruth Hoots and Mrs. Violet Nolan, both aunts of the bride, assisted in serving the wedding cake and refreshments.

A rehearsal dinner was held Saturday night at the Downtowner Restaurant in Salisbury, hosted by the father of the bridegroom.

A bridesmaids luncheon was given by Mrs. Gail Molic Nickens at Piper's Restaurant, Salisbury.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School, Greenville. She graduated with a B.A. in chemistry from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. She is currently a junior medical student in the UNC-CH School of Medicine. The bridegroom graduated with a B.S. in zoology at UNC-CH. He is currently pursuing a doctoral degree in toxicology in the UNC-CH School of Medicine.

After a wedding trip to Kiawah Island, S.C., the couple will reside in Chapel Hill.

Dear Abby

Resign As Son's Personal Shopper

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My son works long hours, so when he wants to buy his wife something for her birthday, Mother's Day, Christmas or their anniversary, he asks me to please buy something for him to give to her.

Although it's not easy for me to get around, I'm happy to accommodate him, but I have yet to select a gift his wife has liked well enough to keep. I know her size, and I also know what colors she likes, but for some reason nothing I select has ever pleased her, so back it goes to be exchanged for something she picks out herself.

Abby, since shopping for my daughter-in-law's gifts is a total waste of time, I finally told my son to give her the money and let her buy what she wants. He said his wife didn't consider money a proper gift — it lacked warmth and sentimentality. Now what do I do?

KENTUCKY CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: Resign as your son's personal shopper. Tell him if his wife wants warmth and sentimentality, to send her a gift certificate with a warm, sentimental card.

DEAR ABBY: How do I get through to my in-laws? I have a 2-year-old daughter who has a favorite doll she carries wherever she goes. When Tina goes to Grandma and Grandpa's house, they take her doll away from her, which is bad enough, but then they pretend to beat it up! This gets Tina so upset that she cries and carries on. Then her grandparents laugh at her.

Abby, I have tried to explain that Tina doesn't understand their actions, but they insist on doing it every time we visit them. They call it "teasing" and say Tina should learn how to take a joke. I love my in-laws, but I don't like their teasing my child this way. What should I do?

YOUNG MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Tell them that they may view this kind of teasing as a joke, but if it moves a child to tears, it's cruelty. Furthermore, if they don't discontinue that cruel practice, you will discontinue your visits.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby: 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: I have been told by friends that it is possible to get pregnant through your jeans. I can't believe this!

I am a virgin, just turned 15, and know I am going to be more involved with guys now that I'm dating. If this is possible, I am scared to death to get very close to any guy. I need to know as soon as possible.

I hope you won't think this is a dumb question. WORRIED IN EL PASO

DEAR WORRIED: It is not a dumb question. It's a very intelligent one. A lot of kids get aroused by just being close to each other while kissing. Then they just naturally proceed to the next step, which is petting. It's not possible to get pregnant through one's jeans, but sometimes kids remove some of their clothing because it's "in the way," or they burrow underneath it to explore each other's bodies with their hands. This is known as heavy petting, or "doing everything else but."

The technical (and legal) definition of sexual intercourse is "penetration." (The male's sex organ must penetrate the female's.) However, as impossible as it may sound, in the medical literature can be found cases where there has been no penetration — the girl remained a virgin, but after engaging in heavy petting, she found herself pregnant.

The above is from my new booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." It can be obtained by sending $2, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35¢) envelope to ABBY'S TEEN BOOKLET, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

Good Market Opening

It was happy days on area tobacco markets Wednesday, and few farmers were allowing themselves to think about the clouds growing over the tobacco program in Congress.

There were record prices being paid for a good crop on area warehouse floors. Not only were the prices records but they were far ahead of the opening day averages of last year. Greenville averaged $162.15 compared with the $110.21 opening day average of last year. The record was set in 1979 when opening day averaged $125.73.

The situation was good throughout the Eastern Belt. Only 0.9 percent of the sales went to Stabilization, a good omen for the strained corporation. The entire belt averaged $160.92, with market averages ranging from a low of $152.02 at Dunn to $169.44 at Clinton.

Tobacco farmers are generally unenthusiastic on opening day, but on Wednesday there was talk of "making money" on this year's crop.

We expect that will be the case. Tobacco growers deserve the credit for good handling of tobacco and adhering to programs which produce the kind of leaf for the world market that America is noted for.

As for the clouds over the tobacco program, they have been there since the program was begun. We can only take that situation a day at a time, and make adjustments when that becomes necessary.

Outlook Is Better For Ports

Things are looking up at North Carolina's two state ports.

Gov. Hunt announced that records were set in revenues and tonnage for the third consecutive fiscal year.

The two ports had a profit of $1.4 million for the year with total revenues of $12.68 million.

Highly important was the rapid increase in business at Morehead City which showed a profit of $113,108, its first since 1967.

Tom Taft, chairman of the N. C. Ports Authority said the rosy business report was due to better equipment and personnel at the state ports.

It is certainly good news. Adequate ports are essential to North Carolina's development, and the best situation is when both ports operate with a profit.

Not Only Washington

I was glad to discover last weekend that Washington isn't the only place in the United States where people are all screwed up. Even a town as affluent and peaceful as East Hampton has terrible problems. We were house guests of the Stones, and they asked us who of our dear friends in East Hampton we would like to see.

"How about the Grabowskis and the Peregrines?" I suggested.

"We can't have the Grabowskis with the Peregrines," Stone said. "It seems two years ago Grabowski borrowed Peregrine's barbecue spit and returned it the next day with the handle missing. Grabowski didn't mention it, much less offer to pay for a new handle and so Peregrine hasn't spoken to him since."

"Well, what about the Cummerbunds?"

"We're not speaking to the Cummerbunds," Stone said curtly.

"I thought you were best friends."

"We were until I played tennis with Tom Cummerbund last weekend and he called a footfault on me. You don't call footfaults on your friends. I've never called a footfault on Tom in my life, and believe you me he footfaults all the time. He can't serve without having both feet in the court."

"Let's forget Cummerbund," I said. "I'd love to see the Wackenbushes."

"You can see him but not her," Stone said.

"Why can't I see her?"

"She ran away to Newport with a gardener."

"Was Wackenbush sore?" I asked.

"Not as much as Henry and Lucy Tribly. You see, it was their gardener. They're not talking to Wackenbush because they feel if he had paid more attention to his wife, the Triblys' rhododendrons... would still be alive."

"So much for the Wackenbushes," I said. "You know who we'd love to have dinner with — the Coffinbacks."

ART BUCHWALD

"You can have dinner with them," Stone said, "but we won't."

"But we all grew up with the Coffinbacks," I said.

"That's exactly the point. Two weeks ago we gave a dinner party for Ann Miller, the dancer, and we invited them. Then last weekend, they gave a dinner party for Tony Martin and you know what they did — they asked us to come in for coffee afterward."

"Boy, this East Hampton is full of intrigue," I said. "I think it would be easier if you could tell me who we can see."

Stone thought for a while. "There's the Pattersons. We like them very much, and I know you do, too."

"Let's invite the Pattersons then," I said.

"They're not here," Stone said. "They rented their house for July and went to England. What about the Proffiterolles?"

"I don't know the Proffiterolles," I said, "but we'll see them anyway."

"Nah," said Stone. "They'd bore you to death."

"I don't see how you people make it through the summer," I said.

"It's not easy," Stone admitted. "There are a lot of people out here we'd love for you to meet, but we can't stand their house guests. And there a lot of house guests we'd love to see, but we can't stand the people they're staying with."

"Why don't we just go to a Howard Johnson's for dinner and forget about it?"

"No way!" Stone said. "The last time I was there I had a fight with the manager and I told him I'd never come back."

"I guess that just about does it," I said.

"Wait a minute. I just remembered, there's the Rucksacks," Stone said.

"You mean you know one couple in East Hampton that nobody is mad at?"

"They just moved out here last week, and no one has had a chance to get sore at them yet."

Friction At GOP Meet

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Republicans, meeting this past weekend in Wilmington, appeared to be relishing their voice in Washington and rallying to unite behind the Reagan administration.

But that appearance was marred by a renewed skirmish between some party members and the Congressional Club, the conservative fundraising group born of Sen. Jesse Helms' first run for Senate.

The two groups have done battle before over their differing campaign tactics and occasionally varying viewpoints.

The skirmish came when Carol Nemitz of Raleigh and Dolly Dewey of Wake County challenged the re-election of Mary Jane Hollyday for vice chairmanship of the party, a largely ceremonial position. Ms. Hollyday won easily after Ms. Dewey withdrew.

But the traditionally mundane election took on the air of a full-blown political campaign with state legislators writing a letter to delegates on behalf of Ms. Nemitz and the Congressional Club funding several mass mailings on behalf of Ms. Hollyday.

Congressional Club officials acknowledge they spent several thousand dollars on the campaign.

But on Saturday, the day of the election, the confrontation surfaced. While Congressional Club members worked the crowd, some Wake County Republicans handed out flyers that were highly critical of the club's tactics.

And Sen. Gilbert Boger, R-Davie, took the floor to denounce the club's approach.

Boger, referring to the Congressional Club, said it was time that outsiders got out and left the party to North Carolina Republicans.

The flyer charged that, "for many years the Congressional Club has used the same campaign tactics to discredit loyal, hard working Republicans who do not subscribe 100 percent to their philosophy."

After the election, some Congressional Club members said they felt party members blew the situation out of proportion.

"They were overreacting. I don't know where they got their facts from," said Bill Cobey, former candidate for lieutenant governor and a Congressional Club affiliate.

"Emotion runs high and you say things maybe you shouldn't even say," he added.

State Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba, said he believed the Congressional Club was largely responsible for the convention rift because it felt it had to get its candidate for party vice chairman elected. He said some people view recent media criticism of North Carolina's senators — Jesse Helms and John East — as indirect criticism of the Congressional Club itself.

Cobey agreed that "somehow people have gotten the impression that we (the Congressional Club) don't have the best interest of Republicans at heart."

Cobey said he believed the distrust was because of the club's bipartisan nature and appeal to all conservatives, whether they be Democrats or Republicans.

Both the Congressional Club and Republican party officials acknowledge they need each other to function. But they admit the balance of power is precarious.

"Both sides walk a tight rope," Ballenger said.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, July 27, the 208th day of 1981. There are 157 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:

On July 27, 1953, an armistice was signed at Panmunjom, ending the Korean War after more than three years.

On this date:
In 1588, the Spanish Armada was in a running fight with the British up the English Channel.

Strength For Today

THE WHEELBARROW

A man once bet a large sum of money that he could walk a tightrope across the Niagara River, above the Falls. He was ridiculed but he went through with the feat nonetheless.

Then he took a wheelbarrow, and balancing it on the rope before him, made the trip back across the river.

"So you believe me now, do you?" he asked the amazed spectators. "Yes," they cried in chorus, and clapped their hands and cheered. "Very well," said the tightrope walker. "Now one of you get in the wheelbarrow and I'll make the trip over again."

At that the cheering stopped, and the onlookers began to move away.

Belief is easy. It is not too hard to believe the Bible from cover to cover. Millions of Christians can believe the creeds of their churches without difficulty. But faith is getting into the wheelbarrow. Faith is not only believing, but taking action on that belief. — Elisha Douglass

Alaska Helping On Mortgages

By PAUL JENKINS
Associated Press Writer
ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — At a time when skyhigh interest rates have all but destroyed the dream of home ownership for many Americans, Alaska's oil wealth is helping finance mortgages with interest rates as low as 6 percent.

"As far as I know, Alaska is the only state in the union with this type of program," says Harry Goldbar, executive director of the Alaska Housing Finance Corporation. His agency administers the housing program.

For commercial pilot Meryl Getline, who received a 6 percent state-backed loan on a $44,000 condominium, the program "is the best thing that could happen. I'm paying less per month than I was about to pay for an apartment. I couldn't be any more happy."

With a 5 percent down payment, her mortgage payment will be about $360 a month. Under a conventional mortgage, with interest hovering near 15 percent, the monthly tab would have been about $557.

Ms. Getline's enthusiasm for the program apparently is shared. The AHFC has bought more than 6,000 mortgages since November, lending $84,000 on the average for a home, officials say.

Proponents of the 8-month-old mortgage program credit it with reviving a flagging building and real estate market. But critics, including Gov. Jay Hammond, contend the program allows only a tiny segment of the state's 400,000 residents to benefit from the state's growing wealth. Some hint it may be inflating house prices in red-hot home markets such as Anchorage, where the average house costs about $100,000.

Eligible veterans can get agency-backed mortgages at 9 percent on the first $90,000. Others can get 10 percent Special Mortgage Loan Purchase Program loans on the first $90,000. Under the AHFC's Home Ownership Assistance Program, qualified single, low-income applicants making $25,650 a year or less can get 6 percent loans of up to $76,000.

Money is available above those limits, but for those amounts borrowers must pay the same rates the agency pays. Home buyers can borrow as much as $147,750 for a single-family residence and $189,000 for duplexes.

The 1971-1972 Legislature created the AHFC to promote home ownership for low- and moderate-income families. In 1980, contemplating a general fund swollen by new oil revenues, the Legislature added the Special Mortgage Loan Purchase Program, allowing the agency to offer low-interest loans to all state residents, regardless of income.

And since November, when the first loans were available, the agency's business has boomed. "I've hardly had time to sit down since," Goldbar said.

Last year, AHFC received $499 million from tax-exempt bonds (sales of which have since been limited by Congress to $200 million a year), $236 million in repayments from existing mortgages assigned from other agencies and $105 million in cash and securities from the state's general fund. In March, the state gave the agency an additional $133 million in supplemental funds.

The bulk of the money for the mortgages now comes from the sale of taxable mortgage revenue bonds.

The 1981 Legislature has authorized the agency to sell $592 million in bonds during fiscal 1982. It also gave the agency $220 million in subsidies. These appropriations from the oil revenue-fattened general fund make up the difference between the high bond interest paid by the state and the low interest to borrowers.

The agency sold $150 million in bonds in June. "Our cost was 16 1/4 percent," said AHFC spokesman LeRoy Rothe. With sale costs, Alaska wound up paying 17.05 percent, which means state mortgage money above the designated $90,000 and $76,000 limits will cost home buyers that amount.

For instance, Rothe said, a person buying a $147,750 home would pay about 10 percent on the first $90,000 and 17.05 percent on the remainder — averaging out to about 12 1/2 percent.

"That's not a bad deal," he said.

The most refreshing development in state government this year has been the appointment of William R. Roberson, Jr., of Washington as North Carolina's new secretary of the Department of Transportation.

Bill Roberson served four terms in the General Assembly, so he knows the political side of running a major department.

Far more important, he is a man of proven success in the business world. He is chairman of five corporations that include a soft drink bottling company, a television station, several radio stations, a shopping mall and a real estate business.

He has also paid his dues in civic contributions.

Goodness knows the Department of Transportation needs someone who knows how to run a tight ship. It has been so infused with political cronyism and dead wood over the years that taxpayers had every right to worry about what we were getting for our money ostensibly invested in better roads.

Certainly in recent months we have seen growing concern over scandal in the department.

This background has compounded the serious dilemma posed by decreasing revenues and increasing costs of highway construction and maintenance.

The three-cents per gallon increase in gas taxes will make a substantial contribution toward a solution. Bill Robeson can begin with at least some prospects of working capital.

But the people of North Carolina will continue to look critically at the Department of Transportation. They will demand efficiency and honesty — in short, they will be looking for a department to be run like a sound and responsible business.

That is exactly what they can expect of Bill Roberson.

Governor Hunt probably has made more appointments than any governor in our history. Some of them have been excellent. A few have been lulus. Bill Roberson must rank as the best of the best.

Drought can result in the accumulation of toxic levels of nitrates in forages, especially corn, sorghum, sudangrass, millet, or other grasses. Feeding high levels of nitrates can result in reduced feed consumption, lowered production, abortions, and deaths.

Conditions which upset normal plant growth may cause nitrate accumulation. Nitrates move from the soil into the plant and are converted to protein. Conditions which increase plant uptake of nitrates can result in high nitrate concentrations.

Nitrate accumulation can be large following a rain after a long, dry period. Other conditions include excessive nitrate levels in the soil due to high levels of nitrogen fertilization, cloudiness, shade, and soil mineral deficiencies. Grasses are most susceptible to nitrate accumulation.

Forages which contain nitrates can be used if properly managed. Avoid harvesting drought-stricken forages for 3 to 5 days after a rain which breaks a dry period. Since nitrate levels are highest in the bottom part of the stalk, cutting high will leave a substantial amount of nitrates in the field. Chop the entire plant to decrease the selective consumption of highly concentrated stalks. Mix the nitrate-containing forage with other feeds to dilute the nitrate concentration in the total ration. Balance the ration for proper amounts of energy, protein, vitamins, and minerals. High energy rations reduce the likelihood of nitrogen toxicity. Make ration changes slowly and introduce nitrate — containing forages very gradually over a 1 to 2 week period. Ensiling the crop decreases the nitrate concentration. Nitrates are converted to silo gas which is toxic to animals and people if inhaled. Caution is advised. After 30 to 60 days the nitrate level will drop to about half the original amount.

To minimize the problem of nitrate toxicity, test suspect forages for nitrate concentrations. This can be done when you have your hay or silage tested through the N.C. Farm Feed Testing Program, a cooperative project of the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service and the N.C. Department of Agriculture. Hay, silage, or concentrates will be analyzed for protein, fat, fiber, energy, and total digestible nutrients. The analysis also includes 10 minerals. The cost of the analysis is $5 per sample. A special analysis for nitrates in forages and aflatoxins in grains is available at no additional cost. Sample mailer bags are available at the county extension office.

VFW Aux. Meet Held

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 7032 held their regular monthly meeting last Thursday.

President Rosa Lee Boyd presided over the meeting. There were twenty members present. Four names were submitted for membership. They were: Lila Jones, Betty Tyson, Madeline Nichols and Alma Smith.

The auxiliary received the following awards at the state convention: first place in Cancer Aid and Research-silver tray, first place in VFW National Home for Orphans and Widows-silver tray, first place in Buddy Poppy Display made by Mary Lucy Taylor, and citations in all phases of auxiliary work.

Auxiliary and post members attending the convention were Alice Mosely, Carrie West, Myrtle and Elmer Meeks, Margaret and Ken Brown, and Gorman Dickerson.

Rehabilitation Chairman Margaret Hudson reported that the auxiliary had provided financial aid for medicine to a disabled, elderly veteran's widow and food for two families.

Cancer Aid and Research Chairman Raye Brewer said that $76.30 was received from cakes sold during the month. Memorial gifts were given in memory of C.B. (Pete) West.

Gold Star Chairman Myrtle Meeks reported that flower had been sent to one Gold Star Mother during the month.

Buddy Poppy Chairman Carrie West said that the auxiliary had voted to order 5,000 poppies for use in the poppy sale.

A picnic for all auxiliary and post members was planned for July 30, 7:00 p.m. at the Post Home.

Meeting hostesses were Rosa Lee Boyd, Hattie Manning, Glendora Brewer and Edna Hodges.

CHICAGO (AP) — Hard of hearing and nearly blind, Sigrid Barginde lived the last two months of her 87 years in terror, pleading with police to believe her story of telephone taps, assault and strangers lurking in her darkened house.

One officer on the beat said police had just begun to believe her tales and had beamed up their checks on her small brick home on the

There was no sign of forced entry, police said. There are no suspects and her death remains a mystery.

Seven members of the D.H. Conley chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America attended the 30th Annual FBLA Leadership Conference held in Chicago, Ill. recently.

While at the conference, five members, David Adams, Susan Dunn, Tim Falkner, Penny Joyner and David Miller, participated in national competition for parliamentary procedure. These five students made up the winning team from North Carolina in earlier competition on the state level. The team represented North Carolina in the event.

Teams from 44 states participated. Other students from Conley, Denise Coward and Suzanne Wilson, served as voting delegates.

Workshops attended were "Planning and Negotiating for Career Success," "Coping with Inflation Through Planned Investment," and "Human Relations: Getting Ahead While Getting Along."

Much emphasis throughout the week was put on the theme "In Touch with the Business of America and the Free Enterprise."

Independence

BELIZE CITY (AP) — Belize, Britain's last colony on the American mainland, gets its independence Sept. 21 but 1,600 British soldiers will remain to help expand and train the Central American country's 1,000-man defense force, the two governments announced in a joint statement Sunday.

Formerly British Honduras, Belize lies between northern Guatemala and the Caribbean. Guatemala claims it inherited Spain's sovereignty over the little territory a century ago, and Guatemalan President Fernando Romeo Lucas Garcia said last week he opposed it becoming independent unless Prime Minister George Price made good on a pledge to give Guatemala access to two Caribbean ports and two offshore islands.

But Lucas Gardia added: "At no time would we invade Belize."

Attracted By Bogus Ad

CHICAGO (AP) — A bogus "help wanted" ad in some weekend newspapers drew hundreds of aspiring steelworkers to an East Chicago, Ind., steel mill, plant officials say.

The advertisement, which appeared in Saturday and early Sunday editions of the Chicago Tribune, urged "journeymen and labor men" to apply at the Jones & Laughlin employment office from July 25 to Aug. 11 for jobs in the "new slab-casting department."

The ad said the "jobs" would pay $14.25 an hour for journeymen and $9.90 an hour for laborers, and it promised the "first 25 to show are guaranteed employment."

"It is all false," said Rita Houlihan, plant manager of communications at the Jones & Laughlin mill. "That information is wrong. We are not hiring at this time for these positions."

Ms. Houlihan said job seekers started appearing at the plant at 7 a.m. Saturday, adding that the company received "several hundred phone calls" during the day.

"It is very cruel," she said. "The only ones it's hurting are the unemployed."

Dick Morrison, help-wanted manager for the Tribune's classified ad de-

Pope Prays For Lebanon Peace

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II, still in a hospital recovering from gunshot wounds, says he's praying for peace in Lebanon and other places "where destruction, mourning and suffering upset the peaceful coexistence of the people."

In a taped message played Sunday for about 10,000 people gathered in St. Peter's Square, the pontiff also asked for prayers for kidnap victims. His message singled out Roberto Peci, whom Italy's Red Brigade terrorists have threatened to kill.

John Paul has been in Gemelli hospital recovering from wounds he suffered in an attack May 13 and a virus doctors have linked to blood transfusions.

partment, said all he knew was that "someone placed the ad in the name of Jones & Laughlin. They evidently had all the proper information to be able to place the ad."

Morrison said half of the paper's press run — about 300,000 copies — went through before the ad was pulled.

died of natural causes after an intruder bound her and left her on the bed.

Miss Barginde said the terror began in April after she awoke on the living room couch one night after falling asleep watching television, which she could see only through thick glasses from 10 inches away.

She made out the shadowy figures of three strangers as she moved through the dark house toward her bedroom, she told police. She said she screamed, they threw a sheet over her, hit her on the head and threw her in a closet.

She showed officers Bill Melmine and Larry Viles the bloodied sheet and her black eye the next morning, but they found her story hard to believe, especially her whispered fears that the phone was tapped and the house bugged. They found no signs of forced entry.

Later, Miss Barginde complained she had to go across the street and use a neighbor's phone because no one could hear her when she talked into hers. When Melmine and Viles took the phone to be repaired, they were told pieces of the receiver had been ripped out.

"That's when I started to at least half-believe her," Melmine said. "My partner and I got her a new phone and screwed the receiver on so tight even I couldn't get it off. A week later, she called us from the neighbor's house and sure enough, the parts were missing again. So we used super-strong glue to stick the receiver cover on. After that, someone pulled the receiver and the cord out of the phone altogether."

On June 18, Miss Barginde was mugged on her way home from the bank. But she held onto her purse, refusing to give in.

"It started to get to her," said Viles, who with Melmine befriended the old woman and began cruising by several times a week, spraying the rays from a spotlight around the bungalow.

"She would be sitting there talking and happy, and then she would sit down and cry. She was just scared to death," Viles said. "She was living in terror all the time. But she wouldn't move."

"We told her, 'If you don't get out of here, you're going to die here,'" Melmine said.

A few days after the mugging, nothing was heard from the old woman. The telephone man, who also had befriended her, got no answer when he stopped by for a visit.

On June 26, police found her body.

"It's still under investigation at this point, and there's no indication" that the intruders who tied her up killed her, said Sgt. Thomas Ferry of the police violent crime unit. An autopsy revealed nothing, Ferry said Sunday, so the body went to the Cook County medical examiner's office for chemical analysis.

"Generally speaking, when the investigation goes to a toxicological test, there's no obvious foul play involved," Ferry noted. "There were no bullet wounds, no marks of strangulation."

In the house she left behind lay the telephone — its cord and receiver ripped out again.

COURSE GRADUATE

Ben Shivar, Community Development director for the city, has graduated from the CD Administration Course at the Institute of Government, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The 150-hour course involved various aspects of municipal administration including management skills and legal problems in community development, real estate, and real estate financing.

Shivar has been employed by the city since 1976.

Eyes Taxpayers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Department of Education employees have gotten the assignment from their principal, Sec. T.H. Bell: get to work on time, take shorter coffee breaks, turn off lights, reduce travel to conventions and use persuasion rather than courts to achieve desegregation.

"Some supervisors have obviously been lax in having a disciplined work force," Bell wrote. Promotions and pay increases "should absolutely be withheld from persons not meriting them," he said.

Bell asked that lights be turned off, thermostats lowered and travel to conventions curtailed to "reduce costs and give the taxpayers a better bargain during this time of belt-tightening."

Re-Elected As Chairman

City Manager Ed Wyatt was re-elected chairman of the N.C. Code Officials Qualification Board at its meeting last week in Raleigh.

Wyatt was appointed to the board in 1978 by Gov. Jim Hunt. He was elected vice chairman in 1979 and chairman in 1980.

Lee Ball of Blount and Ball Realty here also serves as a board member. W. P. Watson of Watson Electrical Associates was re-elected vice chairman.

The board certifies all city and county building, plumbing, heating, energy, and electrical inspectors.

vas in this shape. If it is to be a hanging plant cover, cut a fifth piece for the bottom, so that it measures the same on all four sides as the width of the other pieces. If your plant is to sit on a table, this bottom section is optional.

At this point, the experienced stitcher may want to taper the sides so that they are narrower at the bottom edges. The beginner, however, should probably stick with a square shape.

Your next decision is a choice of stitches for the top and bottom borders. Scotch stitch, rice stitch, smyrna stitch or mosaic stitch are among the good choices for borders.

After the borders are worked, decide upon your central design motif. Try your hand at charting your own design on graph paper. If you are not happy with the results, then select a design from the many that are charted for needlepoint or cross-stitch.

Work the selected design on three sides and then monogram the fourth side, if you like. Finally, join the four sides with an overcast stitch and overcast any unfinished edges.

Baez Describes Hosts Hostile

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Baez, recently returned from a six-country tour of Latin America that she says was marked by hostility from ruling right-wing regimes, says she wished she would have been arrested to amplify her message on human rights.

"I had really planned to enter these countries quietly," Ms. Baez told People magazine after her return home to Woodside, Calif. "I'm softer now than in the '60s. I didn't feel compelled to be strident in Latin America."

But in parts of Latin America, Baez said she was met by tear gas, harassment, police surveillance and death threats. She was tracked by police in Argentina, and Chilean officials confiscated film and audio cassettes. Brazilian officials canceled a concert, but she was allowed to sing in Mexico, Nicaragua and Venezuela.

Snow Hill

Evans Series

RALEIGH — Kevin Korpi and Wade Corbett each drove in two runs and Snow Hill erupted for four runs in the top of the ninth to defeat Raleigh Post 1, 8-3, Sunday night in the second game of their best-of-seven American Legion Area 1 finals.

The victory, which came one night after Snow Hill committed 11 errors in a 16-12 loss to Post 1, evened the series at one game apiece. The next three games will be played Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday night in Snow Hill at 8 o'clock.

Snow Hill jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Greg Hardison led off the game with a home run and David Shirley singled, stole second, went to third on an infield out and scored on a wild pitch.

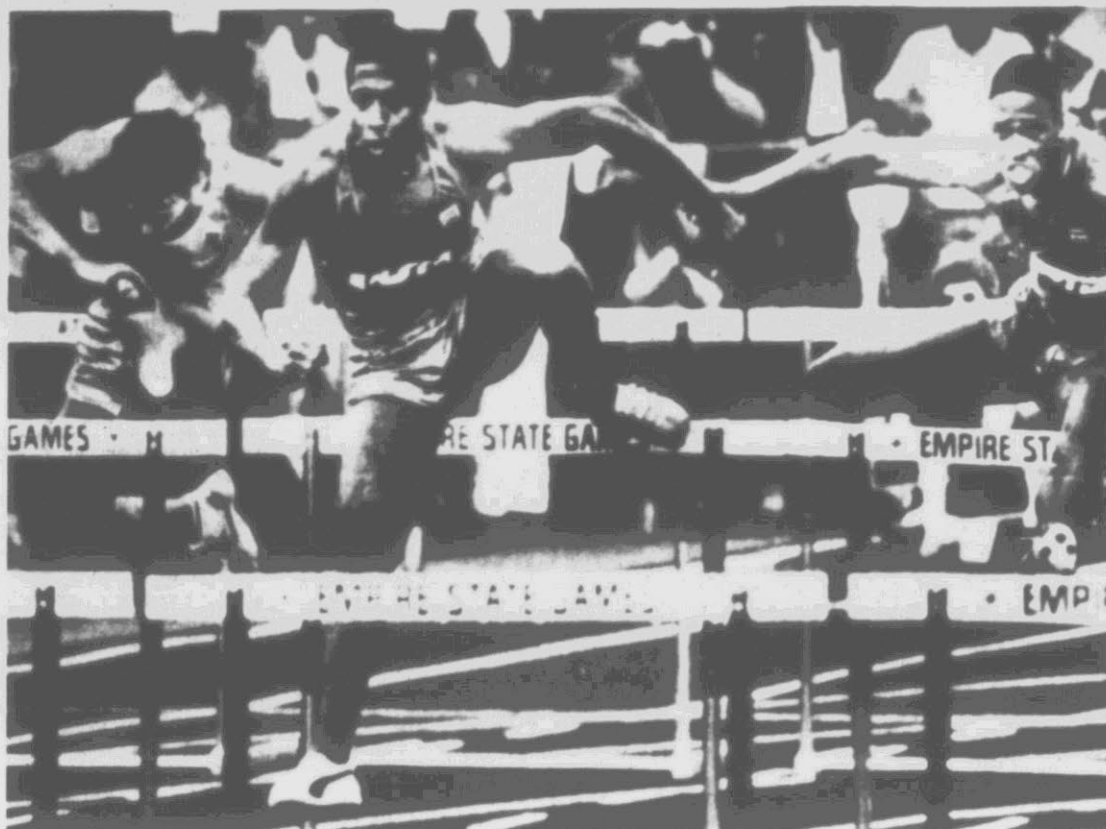

Post 94 made it 4-0 in the third. With two gone, Jabo Fulghum singled and went to second when the leftfielder failed to field the ball cleanly. Korpi followed with a single to score Fulghum. Two singles later — by Frank Milkovits and David Kester — Korpi scored and Snow Hill led, 4-0.

Raleigh closed to within one with three runs in the bottom of the fourth, but got no closer as Korpi shut down Post 1. The three-run fourth was sparked by a two-out, two-strike double by Hugh Fox which scored two runs.

From there, Snow Hill and Korpi shut out Post 1. For the game, Korpi struck out 12 and walked four. The game, however, remained close until the ninth when Snow Hill struck for four runs to seal the victory.

With one gone in the ninth, Fulghum and Korpi doubled to score one run. Milkovits followed with a single and then, with two gone, Corbett singled home both Korpi and Milkovits. Corbett later scored when Gary Ream reached on an error.

Bradley, Whitworth Both Winners

The 41-year-old Whitworth failed for the 23rd time to win the U.S. Women's Open, as two comparative youngsters, Bradley and Beth Daniel, put on one of the most torrid battles in the tournament's history.

Bradley, 30, breezed over the La Grange Country Club course Sunday with a closing 6-under-par 66 — the lowest score ever shot by a woman on the 6,204-yard layout — and shattered the women's open 72-hole scoring record with 9-under-par 279.

Daniel, 24, took second place with birdies on the last two holes for a 68 and a 280 that matched the former women's open record set last year in Nashville, Tenn., by Amy Alcott.

Whitworth, who had three sub-par rounds in a dedicated attempt to capture the only title to elude her throughout her career, began wilting with successive bogeys on the No. 3 and No. 4 holes. Finally, when her chances already had drained away, she hit the water on the 155-yard 17th for a double bogey-5.

She finished third with a 74 for a 284, good for $9,500, which boosted her career earnings to $1,008,469.

Bradley's $22,000 first prize put her first on the 1981 money-winning list with $154,182. She replaces Nancy Lopez-Melton, who did not start the final round because of a painful right shoulder problem.

Whitworth entered the finale

Sunday with a 1-stroke lead over Bonnie Lauer, who shot a 76 for 287 to share fourth with Cynthia Hill.

Bradley broke into tears as she left the 18th green as champion, saying, "It is the greatest moment of my life."

She chipped into the hole from six feet for a birdie on the 13th, and sank a 70-foot birdie putt on the 15th.

Holding a 1-stroke edge over Daniel going to the par-5 18th, Bradley pitched her third shot within 2½ feet of the cup. Daniel, in the rough, pitched six inches from the cup.

The two approaches were typical of the golf that the pair shot in their bid for the crown.

Daniel had battled back from a 2-stroke deficit after 16 holes by dropping an 8-foot putt for a birdie-2 on the 17th.

"Beth and I battled from No. 1 through No. 18, and it was just incredible," Bradley said. "It was fortunate it rained and the condition was good for playing a good round. But when I started on the first hole with the gloomy windy weather, I was just hoping for a par. But as it turned out a par wouldn't have done me any good."

Whitworth said she was disappointed in not winning the title, but "because of the overnight rain, the course played long for me and it was an uphill battle."

"I'm glad I reached the million-dollar milestone in the U.S. Open, but it is just a consolation really," she said. "I'm glad it's over with. I've been on the tour a long time, and I think I will make some more money."

Nehemiah, Foster Give 'Class' Show

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A gusty wind blew away any chance for a world record, but that didn't stop Renaldo Nehemiah and Greg Foster from putting on a world class show Sunday at the National Sports Festival.

The classic confrontation in the 110-meter hurdles stole the spotlight during the rain-punctuated third of six days of action at the Festival, a non-Olympic year forum for American athletes in 33 winter and summer Olympic sports.

Foster, who badly beat his archrival on May 10 at the UCLA-Pepsi Invitational at Los Angeles, refuses to talk to either Nehemiah or the media. But Nehemiah wasn't holding anything back after tying his own world record of 13.00 seconds.

The wind reading for the dramatic meeting, run on the rain-softened track at Sunnycrest Park, was 3.41 meters per second. The allowable wind speed for a possible record must not exceed 2.00 meters per second.

"The conditions obviously were not that good," the 22-year-old hurdler said. "I was bouncing all over the place."

"If it was a good, dry day, I would have set the world record. I've been doing 12.52, 12.74, 12.46 in practice. My off day is 13.2. Foster's good day is 13.2."

In that earlier meeting with Foster, Foster was timed at 13.10 — the second fastest legal time in history — while Nehemiah was a distant third at 13.46.

Foster, from Maywood, N.J., got off to a slower start than Nehemiah, from Scotch Plains, N.J., but closed the large gap swiftly in spite of hitting the last three hurdles. He was clocked at 13.22. Nehemiah admitted it wasn't a perfect race for him, either, pointing out he skinned two hurdles and skinned his knee.

But Nehemiah, who is just getting back into form after recovering from a chipped bone in his foot, said, "I don't have to worry about him (Foster). I never have. When I'm ready, I don't think he can beat me."

In another top performance Sunday, Pete Pfitzinger of

ECU Athletes Handball Starters

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The women's South handball team, which includes five players from East Carolina, will meet the favored Midwest tonight for the right to advance to the finals at the National Sports Festival.

The winner tonight will play the East Tuesday for the goal medal. The loser will play the West for the bronze. The South lost to the East, 20-16, in the first round and then beat the West, 18-7.

ECU students Maureen Buck and Gail O'Brien were scheduled to start tonight for the South while Ginger Rothermel, Donna Eason and Jo Landa Clayton, all also of ECU, are expected to see action.

Buck, playing the wing position, has scored five goals in two games this weekend for the South, which takes a 1-1 record into tonight's game. O'Brien is playing the circle runner position, a defensive position, and has yet to score.

Another ECU student, Carl Karpinski, is playing for the men's South team but has yet to see action.

Ithaca, N.Y., took the marathon in a course record 2:15:20. That also was the personal best for Pfitzinger, who wasn't certain until Sunday that he'd be allowed to compete.

His eligibility had been questioned by The Athletic Congress, the national governing body for track and field, because of his participation in the Cascade Run-off on June 28 at Portland, Ore. Pfitzinger received $800 for finishing seventh in that race, but he was not originally on a list of athletes summoned to a hearing next month by TAC.

Finally, TAC officials gave him permission to compete since he still was "an amateur until proven guilty" of being a professional. Since he did not represent one of the four regional teams in the Festival, second-place finisher Gary Tuttle of Ventura, Calif., received the gold medal for his 2:16:00 clocking.

Laura DeWald of Arlington, Va., was 14th overall in the 42-runner field and the top woman finisher, at 2:47:06.

MANTEO — Jeff Cox's suicide squeeze in the bottom of the seventh scored Dixon Page and gave Coastal Plains South a 2-1 victory over Kinston Lenoir and the 17-18-year-old Babe Ruth tournament championship Sunday afternoon.

With the score tied 1-1 going into the seventh, Coastal Plains

South used three consecutive singles and Cox's squeeze to win.

Page, Crowell Pope and Sammy Tucker singled to lead off the inning and load the bases. Cox then laid down his squeeze to score Page without a play being made at home by Kinston.

Coastal Plains South now advances to the Regionals in Nashville, Tenn., beginning August 10.

Coastal Plains South moved ahead, 1-0, in the second when, with two outs, Cox, Billy Dough and Mike Hooks connected for consecutive singles. Kinston tied the game in the third.

Left-hander Jerry Simpson of Washington started and went six innings for Coastal Plains before giving way to Scott Galloway in the seventh. Cox led CPS in hitting with three hits in four at bats.

Wilmington advanced to the finals and Greenville was shut out as the 14-15-year-old Babe Ruth baseball tournament continued at Guy Smith Stadium Sunday evening. Wilmington edged Wayne County, 4-3, in the nightcap to advance to the tournament finals. Meanwhile, earlier in the day, Joe Renn shut out Greenville to lead South Granville to an easy 14-0 victory. Also Sunday, Havelock eliminated North Wake, 1-0.

Today, South Granville will face Havelock at 5 p.m. with the winner to meet Wayne County at 8 p.m. The winner of that game will face Wilmington Tuesday at 5 p.m. for the championship. A second game, if necessary, will be played at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

New Bern 7

Pitt County 6
KINSTON — New Bern scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh to eliminate Pitt County, 7-6, Sunday afternoon in the 13-15-year-old Babe Ruth tournament here.

In the second game, New Bern defeated North Wake County, 7-6, and will now meet Wilmington tonight for the championship.

UNC Baseball Star Paralyzed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Doctors say University of North Carolina baseball player Joe Reto's chances of walking again are "one to a million" after an auto accident early Sunday put him in a coma and paralyzed him from the chest down.

UNC team physician Dr. Joseph DeWalt said the 20-year-old Brielle, N.J., native, listed in serious condition in the neurosurgical intensive care unit of North Carolina Memorial Hospital, is probably paralyzed for life.

"We think that it will be (permanent)," DeWalt said. "When paralysis occurs at the time of the injury it is a bad prognostic sign. Based on the fact that the paralysis was immediate ... the possibilities of Mr. Reto ever walking again are indeed remote."

Reto suffered "an anterior subluxation of the sixth cervical vertebra on the seventh," similar to a dislocation, DeWalt said. "Frequently in the degree of dislocation he had, the spinal cord was severed," he said.

There is no test outside of surgery to verify a severed spinal cord, DeWalt said, adding that no immediate surgery is planned.

"There is no surgical procedure that materially can

Players Exec Board Meets To Discuss Proposal

By The Associated Press

The executive board of the striking Major League Players Association met in Chicago today to discuss the owners' latest proposal. But it was unlikely they would find much of that proposal to their liking.

"It's just a smokescreen on the old proposal," said Detroit Tigers player representative Milt Wilcox about the owners' latest offer. That offer would require professional player compensation for ranking free agents in the upper 20 percent of the performance criteria on a two-year average, rather than 25 percent, as previously proposed by the owners. The players walked out June 12 solely over the issue of free agent compensation.

"It's just a bunch of propaganda and the owners don't state what the long-term effects of it might be," added Wilcox, a pitcher.

One of the owners, Texas Rangers boss Eddie Chiles, was thinking about the long-term effects of the strike, which is in its 46th day, with 552 games lost.

"The future of baseball is on the line, to a certain extent," said Chiles. "How we handle this is going to determine if we come out of it and continue to get better...or get worse. A phony, fictitious settlement really wouldn't do anybody any good. It would be a step in a downhill plunge.

"If we don't address the real problems, then sooner or later we're going to have to say adios to baseball.

"We have two major forces here, the owners and the players, and we have to learn to live together because we're dependent on each other. We're all in the same boat. You can't sink half a boat and expect the other half to float on ahead. Right now we're both going down together."

The player reps of the 26 teams got together to be briefed on the owners' latest proposal by Marvin Miller, exec director of the union. Though a few players have voiced dissatisfaction with the situation, support for Miller is very solid among the players.

And Miller has said the executive board won't recommend acceptance of the newest offer.

"I think it's a showdown right now," said Braves pitcher Phil Niekro, who was to be in Chicago for the meeting. "We are going to have to come up with something pretty exciting to get fans back in the ball park."

While the players stand behind Miller, the owners haven't broken ranks either and are backing their Player Relations Committee and its head and chief negotiator, Ray Grebey.

"We're behind Ray Grebey and the PRC 100 percent," said Detroit General Manager Jim Campbell. "I think the offer proves that the owners have to get something on the table that is palatable to both sides. There undoubtedly are things in it that they (the players) don't like and there are things in it we don't like.

"But I think it's a real honest effort to get something on the table that both sides could accept."

As the impasse continues — no further negotiations have been scheduled — the possibility that the season will not resume looms larger.

"How long can we stay out on strike," asked Chiles. "and still have any meaningful baseball the rest of this year? I think we've only got about a week or 10 days left to settle our strike. If we don't settle it by then, we'll have no baseball."

If there is no more major league baseball in 1981, all the players' contracts could be voided by a technicality, according to Dick Moss, the former general counsel to the MLPA.

Moss, now a players' agent, insisted that all individual player contracts could be voidable because the owners canceled the season when the strike began June 12. Moss was referring to a letter which he said Grebey sent to the union that day, stating: "...the championship season from this day forward has been canceled until further notice."

"One of the basic underlying conditions of the contract is that the player agrees to render his services for the championship season," said Moss. "When one party to a contract unilaterally cancels one of the basic underlying rights of the contract, the other party has the right to cancel the contract. That makes the contract voidable."

That doesn't mean that all players would be free agents who could move to any major league team. It would mean they could become free to sign with persons interested in establishing a new league outside the existing ones.

Mahaffey Reaches $1,000,000 Mark

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — John Mahaffey shrugged off his newly acquired status as a golfing millionaire.

"It doesn't mean a thing," Mahaffey said after a front-running, 2-stroke triumph in the Anheuser-Busch Classic Sunday. The victory was his sixth on the PGA Tour title, and the $54,000 check made him the 31st man to go past $1 million in career earnings.

"Look at those great players of the past, Hogan and Nelson and Snead. If they'd played for the kind of purses we have now, they'd be billionaires.

"Besides, you can't keep it. And besides that, my ex-wife has most of it."

Mahaffey, who won with greater ease and authority than the eventual winning margin indicated, was much more excited with the change in his game and his attitude.

"I was not at all excited about the way I was playing coming in here," he said. "I'd missed two cuts in a row. I was pretty down.

"This year really has been a bummer. I haven't played well. I didn't have much confidence. I was blaming a lot of outside factors when, in fact, I just wasn't working enough.

"Then, all of a sudden this week, I started hitting a lot of good iron shots and I started making some putts. This turned everything around."

Mahaffey, who started the hot, humid final round in a three-way tie for the top with hometown favorite Curtis Strange and Howard Twitty, quickly took command. By the time he'd played two holes, he had a 2-stroke lead.

At the start of the round, 25 players were within four strokes of the lead. By the time Mahaffey had played seven holes, no one was within four strokes.

He simply cruised in from there, finishing with a 276 total, eight shots under par on the hilly, 6,822-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course.

"With the great start John got, everybody was just playing for second," said Andy North, who eventually got that spot. North, with his best performance since winning the 1978 U.S. Open, was seven strokes back with five holes to play, but birdied four of them for a 68 that made the final result look closer than it really was. He had a 278 total.

"You can kind of tell, when a guy starts making all those putts, when he's hitting everything so crisp," Strange said.

Waltrip, Not Cale, Pocono Victor

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — Stock car driver Darrell Waltrip thought he'd won the Mountain Dew 500 race at Pocono International Raceway.

But when he started to pull his car into the victory circle Sunday, he wasn't so sure.

There, sitting in the middle of the circle, was Cale Yarborough's car.

Pirate Club To Meet

The Greenville chapter of the East Carolina Pirate Club will meet tonight at 7 o'clock at the Pirate Club Building.

"I knew I had almost lapped him in the pits, but when I saw him in victory circle, my heart was in my mouth," said Waltrip.

As it turned out, Yarborough had taken a shortcut. Even though he crossed the finish line a car length ahead of Waltrip, race officials ruled that Yarborough was actually almost a full lap behind Waltrip.

The NASCAR Grand National officials then declared Waltrip the winner and dropped Yarborough to fifth.

Waltrip, who collected $23,640 for the win, said he had told Yarborough who was ahead when both drivers made pit stops late in the race.

"I pulled alongside him on the backstretch and told him he was a lap down. He said no he wasn't."

The controversy before 65,000 fans began when Yarborough took his 1981 Buick in for a pit stop on the 196th lap. While he was in the pits, a yellow caution light went up.

Waltrip, who was leading the race, also made a pit stop to change four tires. When he returned to the track, he was behind Richard Petty and appeared to be trailing Yarborough as the green light came on, setting up a one-lap dash to the finish.

Both Waltrip and Yarborough easily passed

Petty, and Yarborough held off Waltrip.

It was an unusual ending to a race dominated by Waltrip's Buick. Waltrip, 34, of Franklin, Tenn., started in the pole position and led Petty by about three seconds before the final yellow, which was caused when James Hylton came to a stop on the north straightaway.

Waltrip, who led for 118 of the 200 laps, crossed the finish line about three seconds ahead of Petty.

The win for Waltrip was his seventh this year on the NAS-CAR Grand National circuit. It was his second win at Pocono, and it marked the first time a driver had won the race from the pole position.

Sterkel Wins 3rd Gold; US-USSR Near Showdown

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Jill Sterkel picked up some more gold, the United States and Soviet Union moved closer to another showdown and Canada cried foul at the World University Games.

Sterkel captured her third gold medal and set her third meet record at the student competition Sunday, winning the women's 200-meter freestyle in 2 minutes 3.90 seconds. The Hacienda Heights, Calif., swimmer also set records in the 100-meter butterfly and 100-meter freestyle earlier this week.

In basketball, the United States and Soviet Union each battled their way into the medals round. The Americans downed Mexico 88-58, and the Soviets eliminated Canada 77-73 in a bitterly fought game which the Canadians protested.

John Pinone of Villanova paced the American victory with 18 points. The United States, which edged the Soviet Union 113-107 in double overtime on Saturday, will play either Yugoslavia, Cuba or Romania next.

"I think it will be a heck of a test, not so good for the coaches, but great for the fans," U.S. Coach Dr. Tom Davis of Boston College said of a possible rematch with the Soviets.

It was a rematch for which the Soviets nearly did not qualify. They had to beat Canada by more than three points in Sunday's game, and they pulled out all the stops to do it, including some that Canadian Coach Jack Donohue did not like.

Donohue was particularly angry over a play in which he alleged that Ivan Iovaisa of the Soviet team elbowed Canadian Howard Kelsey. Kelsey wound up with a bloody lip and was called for a foul.

"I don't believe anything is going to happen with the protest because it's total incompetency in the administrative level, but there is a protest there," said Donohue.

U.S. runners added three gold medals on the final day of track and field competition at the 23 August Stadium, highlighted by Douglas Padilla's victory in the 5,000 meters in 13:49.95.

Americans also captured both the men's and women's 400-meter relay events behind sparking anchor legs by Calvin Smith and Benita Fitzgerald.

The Soviet Union won four track gold medals, including triumphs over runnerup American teams in both the men's and women's 1,600-meter relays.

improve his condition," he said. "Whether surgery is necessary will be determined in several days and it would be only to stabilize the fracture site."

Reto is the second UNC athlete to be paralyzed in an accident in the last year, DeWalt said.

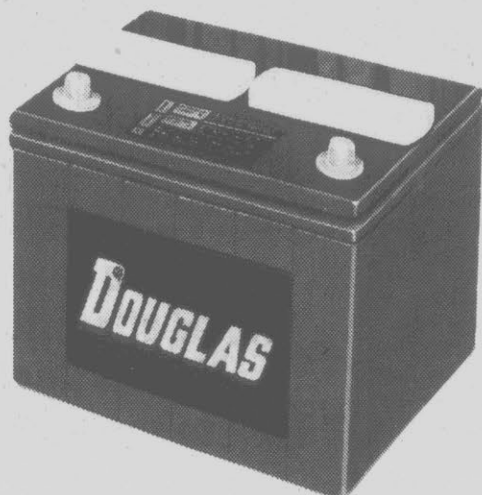

The spinal injury is "almost identical" to the injury suffered by former UNC football player Steve Streater last April, DeWalt said. Streater also was injured in an auto accident and his paralysis is also considered permanent.

Aside from the spinal injury, Reto suffered a blow to the head that caused a cerebral adema, which is swelling of the brain. The swelling probably caused the coma, DeWalt said.

State Highway Patrol trooper Barry LeBlanc said the accident occurred about 2:50 a.m. just south of Chapel Hill on N.C. 15-501. No charges have been filed in the accident, he said.

Reto was the Tar Heels' leading hitter with a .392 average, the fourth best single-season figure in school history. He hit 13 home runs and drove in 46 runs. His 13 homers were the second-highest total ever at UNC.

A Review

'Me Jane', But Who's Tarzan?

It shouldn't have happened, but it has. Blonde movie goddess Bo Derek — from all media accounts pretty near singlehandedly — has taken the beloved Tarzan character that we all admire as the epitome of jungle masochism and has shoved him well into background in "Tarzan The Ape Man" now showing at The Buccaneer Movies.

This hero downgrading would have been lots easier to take if Ms. Derek (who also produced the film) had entitled the film something like "Jane's Jungle Journey" or whatever. An aside on Ms. Derek as producer (with her husband John Derek as director) — it has to be said this "Tarzan" takes the prize as the film most in need of cutting. Not even the gorgeous scenery — filmed in Sri Lanka and the Seychelles Islands — compensates for the interminable scenes of Jane the traveler bobbing up and down in boats, traveling chairs, more boats and more traveling chairs.

And when the rascally adventure-in-his-blood papa she's seeking is discovered, he prolongs the ho-humness with great chunks of homespun philosophy into which jarring blocks of profanity are thrown in occasionally, supposedly, it would seem, to update from 1910 to 1980 the tediousness. Richard Harris does his grimacing best to give credibility to all this windiness, while Ms. Derek listens with an expression of determined vacancy that gives the camera ample opportunity to tune in on her big blue eyes.

In the pre-Tarzan part of Jane's adventures, or the film's first hour, Jane may be firmly established as the liberated woman holding her own with papa and with his sidekick, cameraman Holt, John Philip Law, but the women of the jungle are not accorded that status. This bare-breasted regiment are the ones who tote the bale on long, steamy treks while their husky men folk swagger unencumbered by nothing more than a machete or a lightweight weapon. One of the funniest bits is in the credits, with MGM's Leo the Lion mouthing a Tarzan yell instead of his familiar cat roar.

One perhaps unintentionally funny scene has to do with the traditional Tarzan movie ingredient of Jane being enmeshed by a boa constrictor. On shore, where the encounter begins, the glistening serpent is beautifully turquoise, cream and black. In the almost never-ending wrestling scene in the water, where Tarzan, Jane and the snake splash on and on in abstract splendor, the boa is a writhing brown and tan creature.

The best comedy, and the best acting in this film of deadpan humans goes to CJ, the orangutan, and his sidekicks, three chimps. After rescuing Jane from the boa, a pooped Tarzan collapses on a stretch of sand. Jane, alarmed, rips off a segment of petticoat and sponges water on the inert figure, all the time carrying on a silly dialogue about having never before touched a man. The camera pans back and forth between a Jane gone suddenly coy and the orangutan and chimps who let it be known, in a remarkable series of facial expressions and eye-rolling that they ain't buying that pitch.

Credit must be given to casting Miles O'Keefe, a former football player, as Tarzan. Here's a Tarzan who looks like the real Burroughs product, all lean with not a single ounce of flab. The film's costumer, however, must have run short of material, as the poor guy has to make do with a loincloth that's much more loin than cloth.

In the category of the boringly protracted in the Tarzan episode of this film are the scenes, mostly in water, in which Jane and Tarzan can't decide who is to make the tentative moves in the boy-discovers-girl ritual. Back and forth they see-saw, he stern-faced, she wide-eyed with hope.

At film's end, the two are finally together, dry and on land, frolics happily with the orangutan and the chimps.

For an old Tarzan fan, what really rankles about "Tarzan The Ape Man" is that the profanity of Jane's papa and Jane sans even a bra has made it mandatory to rate this effort as R. It isn't fair to put Tarzan out of reach of the kids. The hardest of all to forgive, however, is that the famous cryptic line that Ivor Novello in an early script gave Tarzan fifty years ago "Me Tarzan, you Jane" is taken away from the jungle boy in this venture of total silence on Tarzan's part. In Bo Derek's film, Tarzan is not even permitted a single grunt.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, July 28, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you are under fine aspects and can make beneficial plans for the days ahead. Make whatever changes necessary to attain your goals. Use modern methods.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can advance more readily if you consult higher-ups for the information you need. Accept an invitation and have fun.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some higher-ups can give the support you need in a new project. Strive for greater efficiency in regular routines.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A good time to contact an influential person which could be profitable. Be sure to handle money problems wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be certain to keep promises made to others. Come to a better accord with the one you love. Relax tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show a more cooperative spirit with associates and listen to what they have to suggest before stating your own views.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to coordinate your efforts more intelligently with co-workers and get excellent results. Improve your health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show your talents to the right people. Engage in amusement activities during your spare time and relieve tensions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Adopt a different attitude at home and establish more harmony there. Don't neglect important business matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can now make progress in your line of endeavor today by being more active and more sure of yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may have to make some changes if you want to improve your monetary standing. Use common sense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) One who does not agree with you in a business matter has to be won over before you get the results you want.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan what you should do to make your environment more charming. A new project you have in mind needs to be studied.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will need special guidance and much education to be successful. There's a strong need for the company of others in order to express self fully. Teach to listen to what others have to say before taking any action.

Apparent Coincidence In Deaths And Illness

PERRY, Fla. (AP) — In the past 17 months, many of the infants and small children attended by babysitter Christine Fallings have contracted serious illnesses and four have died, according to health officials, who call it an apparent coincidence.

Two died of myocarditis, an inflammation of the heart muscle, health officials said. Another died of encephalitis, a brain inflammation, and the other died in Mrs. Fall-ings' arms after receiving inoculations against polio, diphtheria and tetanus.

"There's something wrong somewhere, but I don't know where," said Georgia Strickland, nursing supervisor at the Taylor County Health Department.

Dr. Flora Wellings of Tampa ran tests on Mrs. Fallings, 18, and concluded "she's not carrying typhoid. As far as we can tell, she's not carrying any viruses. It seems to me this kid is just a victim of circumstance."

A 3-year-old boy she was babysitting contracted meningitis and survived, officials said, and a pair of brothers she cared for went into convulsions and recovered in a hospital.

Mrs. Fallings says the events have made her an outcast. When she was 15, a year after her marriage broke up, she moved in with relatives, but now lives near this poor rural town southeast of Tallahassee with a woman who pitied her and took her in.

"People look at me wherever I go," she said. "Sometimes I wonder if I don't have some kind of spell over me . . ."

The latest child to die was her stepdaughter's daughter, 8-month-old Jennifer Yvonne Daniels, who died July 14 after receiving the shots. Preliminary autopsy findings said the girl did not have an adverse reaction to the drugs, said a report by the county health department.

Mrs. Fallings herself suffers epileptic seizures and takes drugs to control them.

Following the death of the Daniels' girl, several mothers called the health department, fearful that Mrs. Fallings had been near their children.

Shirley Morris said she took in the teen-ager because "her own family wouldn't take her in because they have children."

"I have children here. If I believed all these rumors, I wouldn't have my children here."

real substance," he said. "There may be very little interest in those six tracts. If there isn't, they won't be bid on."

"Little damage, if any, has ever been done, because (offshore) oil spills don't happen," he said. "The chance of a spill is almost nil."

Hunt, in the lawsuit, cited studies showing that an offshore oil spill has a 25 percent chance of reaching the North Carolina coast.

Watt also lashed out against environmentalists, saying they have tried to "deny Americans the benefits of our public lands."

"Liberals are furious that their positions of power have been opened up to all Americans," Watt said.

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Interior Secretary James Watt says the federal government will supply money to help keep the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse from crumbling into the ocean.

In a news conference Saturday with Watt, U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said the Congressional Club and Grandfather Mountain entrepreneur Hugh M. Morton would begin a public subscription campaign to raise funds for the historic lighthouse.

Erosion has brought the ocean to within 50 feet of the lighthouse. National Park Service officials have recommended that a $4.5 million groin be built to save the 110-year-old structure.

Helms and Watt said they don't know how much public or private money will be involved.

The funding campaign will be similar to efforts in the late 1950s to bring the battleship USS North Carolina to Wilmington. Morton led that drive.

The proposal to save the lighthouse has been delayed because of plans to cut Interior Department spending. Watt said he has shifted budget priorities for his department to concentrate on protection of the national parks system, rather than on expanding it. The lighthouse will be one beneficiary of the change, he said.

Watt, in Wilmington for a Republican Party fundraiser after the annual GOP state convention, also said the state had decided against building costly jetties to stabilize Oregon Inlet. He said he had decided on a program of "continuous dredging" instead.

Gov. Jim Hunt had asked Watt to approve the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' request to build the jetties.

Watt refused detailed comment on a lawsuit filed against the Interior Department by Hunt to block the sale of leases for undersea exploration on six tracts off the North Carolina coast.

"I don't know if it's just a political lawsuit or one of

Answer to Saturday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 7-27

ASA FNIASA FNIASANQU QUPP
N P P ?

Saturday's Cryptoquip — FANATIC ECONOMIST WILL GUM UP THE WHEELS OF PROGRESS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals E

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Fake Insurance Has Reached Into N.C.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Veterans Administration officials say a veterans' insurance hoax sweeping the country for weeks has hit Charlotte.

The perpetrator of the hoax has sent out brochures that tell World War II veterans that Congress has "recently" passed a bill giving them 65 cents per $1,000 of their GI insurance for each month of service.

The flier includes a form to be filled out and returned to V.R. Prosser, Captain, USN, at the Veterans Center in Philadelphia.

But the Veterans Administration Center in Philadelphia says it has no V.R. Prosser.

"That's a fictitious name. We get thousands of letters and calls about this," said Tony D'Amico, a veterans benefits counselor at the center.

The center, insurance headquarters for veterans, received 262,159 of the bogus forms last year. That number has increased this year to about 3,000 a day, or 780,000 a year, according to VA records in Washington.

Tom Green, assistant director of veteran service for Mecklenburg County, says that since December hundreds of people have called and dozens have come in asking to apply for the phony refunds.

"I don't know where it comes from. A few years ago, it was posted on the wall of the main post office in town," Green said.

He said inquiries about the bogus refund have been received during each of his nine years at the service office.

RESTRICT GLIDERS?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration says it wants to tighten restrictions on the growing number of gliders in the nation's skies because they are becoming an increasing threat to air safety.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠83 ♥Q872 ♦AK53 ♣1063

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Not only do you have a maximum no trump response, but in support of hearts your hand is worth 11 points. Slam is a distinct possibility, and you must tell partner about your newfound zeal. Cue-bid four diamonds, then support hearts next.

Q.2—East West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J1097532 ♥KQ52 ♦93

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass 4 ♦ Dble Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Partner's double of four spades is not for takeout—had he wanted you to bid, he could have overcalled with four no trump. Partner is simply showing a good hand, not a spade stack. However, your hand is so offensively oriented and will probably mesh well with partner's high cards that we recommend that you take out to five hearts.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ87543 ♥95 ♦A843

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ 2 ♦
Dble Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 NT 3 ♦ Pass Pass
Dble Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—When you removed partner's double of two diamonds to two spades, you warned him that you had a weak defensive hand with a long spade suit. Despite the fact that he is armed with this information, he has elected to double three diamonds. Trust partner—after all, you have an ace more than he has a right to expect.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK1073 ♥9863 ♦8 ♣AKJ

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♥ Dble 2 ♥ ?

What action do you take?

A.—It is obvious that the opponents are in trouble. You have more than your quota of defensive tricks and, even though you have only four low trumps, East is going to have trouble managing the hand. Partner's double is a warning that he is short in spades, so don't rebid your suit and risk turning a large profit into a small loss. Double.

Q.5—East West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9 ♥85 ♦KQ1085432 ♣J6

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
3 ♦ 3 ♥ Pass 3 ♦
Pass 4 ♦ Dble Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Don't tell your story twice! Your first bid described a hand with long diamonds and little or no defense. Nevertheless, your partner elected to double four spades. He must be able to defeat that contract in his own hand, and he won't appreciate it if you let the opponents off the hook by pulling to five diamonds. Pass.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South with 60 on score you hold:
♠AK982 ♥J76 ♦A105 ♣Q9

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—It is obvious that the opponents are in trouble. You have more than your quota of defensive tricks and, even though you have only four low trumps, East is going to have trouble managing the hand. Partner's double is a warning that he is short in spades, so don't rebid your suit and risk turning a large profit into a small loss. Double.

What do you bid now?
A.—Despite your 60-point part score, partner has forced you to bid again. If you bid three no trump now, partner will assume that you have substantial values in diamonds and little in his suits, which is not the case. Your hand is better for suit play than no trump, so we suggest you give preference to four clubs. Since you did not raise immediately, partner will not expect more trump support than you have.

FOCUS

5 + 4

5 + 4 = Savings and Accuracy, according to the Postal Service, although this man doesn't seem so sure. This week many U.S. businesses will receive four extra numbers to add to their five-digit ZIP codes. The new nine-digit ZIP code is voluntary and will be used mainly by businesses that do mass-mailings. Eventually almost every block in the nation will have its own nine-digit code, expanding the number of codes from 40,000 to 20 million. Some buildings will have individual codes for each floor. The extra digits will allow computers to direct mail more accurately, saving about $450 million annually by 1987. About 50 percent of U.S. businesses are expected to convert to "5 + 4" by 1982.

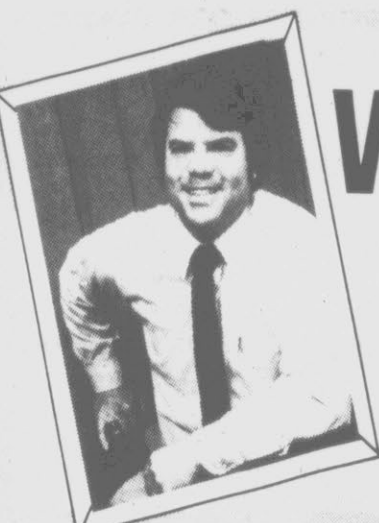

DO YOU KNOW — What does the acronym ZIP stand for?
