Demos Concede Reagan Appeal May Sway Votes

By TOM RAUM

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Democratic leaders, accusing President Reagan of waging a "political trench fight," concede his nationally broadcast appeal may have swayed crucial votes for his tax cut but predict they will beat him anyway in Wednesday's showdown on the House floor.

Saying "this is not the time for political fun and games," Reagan sought Monday night to mobilize an army of Americans to lobby for his tax plan with "letters, telegrams and personal visits."

Some congressmen reported an immediate burst of telephone calls, but one Democrat who sided with Reagan on budget cuts earlier this year said he would vote against the president on taxes and at least two Democrats targeted by the White House lobbying drive remained undecided.

Reagan also tried to blunt Democratic criticism that he was sidestepping the politically sensitive issue of Social Security financing, telling his audience: "You have no reason to be frightened," that no one now dependent on benefits will have his or her monthly checks reduced.

He said he would talk about Social Security at length later but the overriding factor now is taxes.

The speech came less than 48 hours before the tax battle is to reach the floor of the Democratic-controlled House. The choice will be between Reagan's plan and a Democratic alternative the president branded as "just another empty promise."

Reagan's plan is for a 33-month, 25 percent cut in tax rates, starting Oct. 1, with everyone getting the same percentage reduction regardless of income. It includes automatic cuts each year starting in 1985 to offset inflation.

The rival bill pushed by Democrats is for a two-year, 15 percent cut, also effective Oct. 1, tilted to people earning less than $50,000 a year. A third-year, 10 percent cut would be allowed only if the administration meets its goals for lowering inflation, interest rates and the federal deficit.

"I must agree, he's a super salesman," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said after watching Reagan's speech on television.

The Massachusetts Democrat, who lost to Reagan on two earlier budget votes, said that as of Monday, "we have the votes to win" on taxes, but he said he couldn't say whether that margin would hold up in the face of the president's new lobbying offensive.

O'Neill said he counted 14 Democrats solidly against the Democratic bill with seven or eight still on the fence. He predicted an overall loss of 21 to 22 Democrats - which would give the Democrats a narrow victory assuming all 191 Republicans voted for the Reagan plan.

There are 435 House members.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, the Democratic chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, said Reagan "has reduced the debate over a trillion-dollar tax cut to a political trench fight."

Reagan also stepped up his lobbying in the White House, meeting with 16 House members Monday and inviting more today.

The thrust of the White House campaign, however, was to build public pressure on Congress, the same strategy Reagan used in winning approval of sweeping budget cuts.

"I urge you again to contact your senators and congressmen," Reagan said.

Notes High Cost Of Waste Water Plant If No Aid

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer
If Greenville has to build a new waste water treatment plant - estimated to cost $10 million - without federal and state participation, debt service on the bonds required would cause a 115 percent increase in sewage rates charged Greenville Utilities Commissioners customers, commission vice chairman Gene Prescott told a Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce Pepsi Break audience this morning.

Prescott, acting utilities director Malcolm Green, Wadie Lewis, who heads the commission's water and waste water treatment operations, and Orman Whichard, an engineer with consulting engineers Olsen and Associates, outlined GUC's efforts to plan and construct a new sewage treatment facility here.

According to Green, Greenville first entered the waste water treatment business when the first sewage treatment plant - a 4 million gallon per day facility - was placed in service in 1962. That plant was expanded to provide a capacity of 8 million gallons a day in 1972.

Planning for a new facility was started that same year, Green noted, adding that the initial planning was completed in 1976.

However, changes in federal guidelines, changes in the discharge limits allowed for the Tar River, and other government red tape delayed the final plan approval until early this summer, Whichard said as he outlined the various steps and delays the Utilities Commission has faced in gaining approval for a new 10.5 million gallon per day facility.

The ultimate result of the delays, according to Prescott, is the possible additional cost of building a new treatment facility - added costs that will be paid for by utility customers.

The basic plan for the new facility has been paid for by 75 percent federal funds, a 12.5 percent state grant and 12.5 percent local money.

Israel Charges Further Cease-Fire Violations

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Israel accused the Palestinians of two more violations of the cease-fire along the Israeli-Lebanese border today despite a report that a radical PLO leader had agreed to observe the truce after rejecting it earlier.

There was no immediate comment from the Palestinian command in Beirut on the Israeli reports of new firing. But Lebanon's state radio said Israeli jets flew reconnaissance missions over Beirut and other Lebanese cities today, drawing anti-aircraft fire from guerrilla positions.

The Israeli military command said Palestinian guerrillas fired two rounds of rockets, the first about dawn and the second two hours later, toward Kleiya, a south Lebanese village occupied by the forces of Israel's Lebanese Christian ally, Maj. Saad Haddad.

It was the sixth such violation reported by Israel of the cease-fire agreed to by it and the Palestine Liberation Organization last Friday after two weeks of cross-border warfare in which more than 450 Arabs and six Israelis were reported killed.

The Israeli command said its gunners did not return the fire, and sources in northern Israel said Haddad's men also did not retaliate. However, Israel Radio reported a group of five guerrillas infiltrated a zone controlled by Nigerian troops of the U.N. peacekeeping force in south Lebanon and opened fire from there on some of Haddad's militiamen. The radio's northern correspondent said the militiamen returned the fire "in self defense," not in defiance of the cease-fire.

On Monday night PLO chief Yasser Arafat met with Ahmed Jibril, the head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command.

JUNIOR OLYMPIAN NEEDS AID

Rose High School Principal Howard Hurt has asked Hotline to appeal for donations to help send Chris McLawhorn to the National Junior Olympics finals in Omaha, Nebr. Friday. Anyone who can help is asked to contact Hurt at Rose High, 752-3160 or 752-3169, as soon as possible. $650 is needed for the round trip and accommodations. Checks may be made out to Howard Hurt at the school and he will send out receipts immediately, he said.

FIRE CODE VIOLATION

A public place that I frequent I as a lock on its back door that could not be opened in case of fire. I feel unsafe under such circumstances and have called the city fire marshal about it, but have seen no action. D.C.

The assistant fire marshal did a fire safety check at the establishment the day Hotline called. There was a deadbolt lock on the back door, a clear fire code violation in a public place. A locksmith was called right away and an emergency exit lock is being installed, i.e. one that is locked from the outside but opened with a bar from the inside. An alarm that sounds when the door is opened also will probably be installed, since the original reason for having the door locked from the inside was so the owner wouldn't be cheated by some customers' letting their friends in without permission free of charge.

Greenville was recently visited by representatives from the bond rating firm of Moody's Investors of New York City.

The visit was scheduled in order for the firm to have an opportunity to view firsthand the city, its citizenry, and the growth and development of the Greenville area.

Paul Kwiatkowski of Moody's met with various community leaders, including Mayor Don McGlohon; Mayor Pro-Tem Joe Taft Jr.; Dr. Thomas Brewer, Chancellor of East Carolina University; Dr. Ed Monroe of the ECU School of Medicine; Larkin Little of Home Federal Savings and Loan; and Dr. James Bearden of the ECU School of Business.

The information gathered by Moody's will be used to rate the $4.5 million water bonds which were scheduled to be sold by the city today.

By OWEN ULLMANN

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan and Democratic leaders in Congress are dropping tax-policy principles right and left in their determined struggle for a political victory this week.

The competing tax-cut measures that will be put to the House on Wednesday bear little resemblance to the proposals first advanced in the winter and spring by the Republican president and his Democratic opponents.

And although the differences between the two bills have been narrowed significantly in the competitive search for votes, neither side is talking compromise anymore. Winning is the thing now.

Predictably, each side accuses the other of forsaking principle in favor of political victory but insists it remains true to the economic cause.

"Our opponents in the beginning didn't want a tax bill at all," Reagan said Monday night in a nationally broadcast speech promoting his plan.

"So what is the purpose behind their change of heart? They've put a tax program together for one reason only, to provide themselves with a political victory. ... Nevermind, that it won't solve the economic problems confronting our country."

In contrast, the president said, he and conservative Democrats put together a bill "we felt would provide incentives and stimulate productivity, thus reducing inflation and providing jobs for the unemployed."

"That was our only goal," he declared, without noting the numerous changes his bill has undergone in the quest for votes.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and leader of the Democratic tax challenge, put on his own coat of principle in responding to Reagan on Monday.

"It is the president who truly wants a political victory. ... The Democrats want an economic victory," said Rostenkowski, who accused Reagan of reducing a $1 trillion tax debate into "a political trench fight."

Reagan's once "clean" bill, limited to individual and business tax cuts, is now as cluttered as a dining room table at Thanksgiving with provisions the administration hopes will entice enough conservative Democrats to ensure passage. The latest revision includes some changes that the administration previously rejected as bad tax policy.

The Democratic alternative is built on the bedrock of Republican tax policy: large tax cuts for businesses and individual cuts that are of primary benefit to wealthy individuals.

By targeting more of the tax cut to those making less than $50,000 a year than Reagan's bill would, the Democrats can claim they are keeping faith with their traditional constituency of less-affluent Americans. But the administration labels this as a token gesture that would save low-income families only an average $22 a year.

Extra $540,000 Sought

By JANE WELBORN

Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt County Board of Education voted last night to request $540,000 in additional capitol outlay funding from the Pitt County Board of Commissioners for the proposed Ayden Middle School construction project.

According to associate superintendent Thomas L. Craft, the contracting bid can not be accepted by the board unless the commissioners agree to allot the additional money. At this time, the Board has $800,000 on hand in escrow and has $400,000 in current appropriations toward the project. With the money requested from the commissioners, a total of $1,740,000, enough capital to let the contract for the middle school will be on hand.

At the called meeting last night, possible deductions from the original project cost of $2,244,770 were discussed. The board agreed to deduct $464,460 from the $1,563,106 original base bid to Farrior and Sons for general construction; $22,590 from the original bid of $309,914 for heating and air conditioning by Kinston Plumbing and Heating; and $24,000 from the first figure of $164,000 for plumbing by Stuart Shinn, Inc. Another $70,636 will be deducted from the original bid of $207,750 to Watson Electrical Company. These deletions reduce the total needed to let the contract by $581,686.

The items deducted from the contract include folding doors, tile and interior stone, door signs, grilles and ceiling diffusers, light fixtures and outside lights, and plumbing fixtures and trim.

The projected completion time for the Ayden Elementary School is 18-24 months. According to Board member Jack Edwards, "If the Commissioners grant the $540,000, they have shown faith that they will fund the project next year."

Scout Jamboree Site Turns Into A Nice Small-Sized City

"Over night it becomes a nice sized city," complete with commissary, post office, trading post, and medical facility, to name a few, and it is all run by volunteers, John Bush, an official with the East Carolina Boy Scout Council said.

Bush was describing the 1981 National Scout Jamboree being held at Fort A.P. Hill, Virginia, near Fredricksburg. Getting the place ready is "just like planning a city, complete with water lines, sewerage, bakery trucks, and the boys do all their own cooking," Bush added.

An estimated 30,000 scouts from across the United States and foreign countries will attend the week-long event which "will be a real spirited fellowship pushing God and Country," said Bush.

Attending from the East Carolina Council are 57 young men ranging in age from 12 to 17, and 20 to 25 area adults including medical doctors, businessmen and attorneys.

The East Carolina Council composite troop is made up of scouts from Ayden, Greenville, Winterville, Pink Hill, Washington, New Bern, Rocky Mount, and Roanoke Rapids. Leading the scouts are Scoutmaster, Col. Thomas E. Parsons, and assistant scoutmasters, George S. Attmore and John L. Marshall.

Scout leaders were selected by the National Council some time ago and those chosen "are the very top leaders who are really on the ball, real go-getters," said Joe Goodson, International representative for the East Carolina Council.

Boy scouts wishing to attend the jamboree had to meet several criteria including attending a pre-jamboree training session. The East Carolina Council session was held a week ago at Camp Bonner South. Scouts were instructed what to bring, how to act and they also practiced skills they will be competing with at the National Jamboree. Four competitive categories of the jamboree are tug-of-war, volleyball, flag

Dedicated Royalty Lovers Are Lined Up For Show

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — The flash of fireworks and sound of music fill the London skies tonight, heralding the "wedding of the century," and early birds were already camping before the great dome of St. Paul's Cathedral to get a good view of the royal bride and groom Wednesday.

As dedicated royalty lovers staked out choice places beneath the bunting and balloons festooning the procession route from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral, Lady Diana Spencer, clasping

Prince Charles' hand, made one of her last public appearances before becoming princess of Wales and the future queen of England.

In a final rehearsal Monday at Sir Christopher Wren's 300-year-old cathedral atop Ludgate Hill, the bride and groom met before Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie to practice the ceremony that will be televised to an expected 750 million viewers in 55 nations.

Diana, whose pre-wedding jitters caused her to flee a weekend polo match in tears when confronted by a barrage of cameras, was whisked into the cathedral through an underground parking lot.

After the hour-long rehearsal, however, she faced an enthusiastic throng of 3,000 people. Charles took her hand as they descended the cathedral's 24 front steps to their limousine.

Several hours later the young couple were on view again at Buckingham Palace, where Queen Elizabeth II honored them with a dinner for 90 special guests and a "private" reception attended by 1,500.

"One and a half thousand people may seem a lot for a private party, but they have a very wide circle," said a palace spokesman. "There was no protocol about it. It was purely a party for friends and friends of friends."

President Reagan's wife, Nancy, the official American representative at the wedding, was among the dinner guests. The Three Degrees, the American soul singers who are favorites of Charles, were reported at the reception.

Charles tonight lights the first of a nationwide chain of 101 royal wedding beacons during a $125,000 fireworks display in Hyde Park. The 18-minute finale will use 2½ tons of explosives in a 170-foot catherine wheel as the bands of the House Guards and the Household Cavalry accompany massed choirs and guns boom in celebration.

Framed by hearts, cupids and wedding bells, the royal couple smiled from front pages. The Times of London published the first color supplement in its 192-year history to mark what all the papers termed "the wedding of the century."

"We can and should set aside in our minds those all-consuming national concerns of recession and riot," said the Daily Express. But there was small-scale rioting Monday night for the second night in succession in Liverpool's largely black Toxteth district, 180 miles northeast of London, and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher announced a billion-dollar package of measures to reduce youth unemployment and curb the street violence that erupted in English cities earlier this month.

Meanwhile, police dogs sniffed for bombs under manhole covers and in drains, security forces made sweeps of the wedding procession's two-mile route, and police marksmen got their final briefings.

The 255-pound wedding cake, baked by Royal Navy cooks, was unveiled Monday. The five-foot, five-tier fruit cake was decorated with royal and naval insignia, family crests and replicas of St. Paul's, Buckingham Palace and Highgrove, the prince's country estate and the couple's future home.

As thousands of gifts piled up at the palace, what was declared the world's largest wedding card arrived with the signatures of 25,000 western Australians. Their diplomatic representative in London, Les Slade, noted that the 32-foot-wide greeting "is obviously too big to go on the mantelpiece."

Campers Are Waiting Outside Big Cathedral

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — William Holland is in his 60s, but he stared up at the soaring dome of St. Paul's Cathedral and then settled down to spend two nights on the sidewalk waiting for Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer.

A retired firefighter, Holland said late Monday night that he was sleeping in the street because his work kept him from seeing any of the past great royal ceremonies.

"It's my swan song," said Holland. "There won't be another great royal occasion in my lifetime."

Holland was one of more than 100 people undaunted at spending two nights under the stars in the heart of London to get front-row seats for the royal wedding Wednesday.

Others staked out choice spots along the two-mile route the bride and groom and their families will follow from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's.

"I wanted to see Prince Charles and Lady Diana," explained Andrew Lloyd, 15, as he lay on a sleeping bag. "I've only seen them in photos."

Equipped with bedding, blankets, garden chairs, food and drink, and lots of British flag streamers and confetti, the campers sat and chatted as passing motorists waved and blew their horns. Some of them decorated the railings set up to hold back the crowds with flags and banners.

Evelyn Finn, who arrived outside St. Paul's at dawn Monday, said she wasn't going to miss the ceremony.

"It's part of England, and I'm very patriotic," she said. Susan Holt, a student from Bristol, said: "I've been looking forward to the wedding since the engagement was announced. We've been planning this since February. I'm as excited as Lady Diana."

Her friend, Alison Edwards, said the royal romance and the elaborate wedding preparations had been a distraction from the gloomy economic and political news dominating the British media.

"I'm proud of being British," Miss Edwards said. "We want to support the royal family and it's fun."

Dave Macauley, a 19-year-old student, described the event as "great," something "the whole world knows about and is interested in."

Two policemen watched over the crowd, talking and joking with those who still were awake. Down the street, vendors sold early editions of morning newspapers splashed with pictures of the royal couple and filled with stories about the wedding.

Nancy Giving Press Preview Feels Wedding Helpful Factor

By CAROLYN LESH
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Nancy Reagan is giving the press a preview of her outfit for the royal wedding the day before the event because "she doesn't want to compete with the bride," her press secretary Sheila Tate says.

Mrs. Tate was to release pictures today of the costume America's first lady will wear to St. Paul's Cathedral Wednesday for the marriage of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer.

The Washington Post reported Sunday that Mrs. Reagan would wear a salmon satin coatdress by her favorite California designer, James Galanos, and a broadbrimmed hat. The Post said Mrs. Tate, when asked to confirm its report, replied, "How did you find out?"

Lady Diana has three spare wedding gowns in reserve in case hers is revealed before the wedding. But "Mrs. Reagan has only one dress ready for the wedding," Mrs. Tate said.

The Washington Post said she bought it some time ago and saved it "for a special occasion."

Mrs. Reagan went to Buckingham Palace Monday night for a gala dinner and reception given by Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip for their son and future daughter-in-law.

cluded King Olav V of Norway, Queen Margrethe II of Denmark and other heads of state attending the wedding. The 1,500 reception guests were friends of the royal family and "friends of friends," a palace spokesman said.

The president's wife got a big cheer when the large crowd outside the palace gates spotted her limousine driving through.

Before going to the palace, Mrs. Reagan visited the Royal Opera House to take in the first act of a performance by the Dance Theater of Harlem and went back stage to talk to the New York dance troupe.

"I'm sorry I can't stay for the whole ballet, but I have to go to the palace," she told the dancers. "I hope you understand."

The dancers murmured "yes" and nodded their heads.

The Reagan's son, Ron, is a ballet dancer with Joffrey II, another New York troupe.

Mrs. Reagan's schedule today included a visit to the Spastics Society, a 13-year-old training and educational facility for cerebral palsy victims. She had asked to view such a training center during her visit.

Va. Rejects Most Of VEPCO Plan

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Virginia State Corporation Commission has rejected most of Virginia Electric & Power Co.'s proposal for a special surcharge to pay disposal costs for spent nuclear fuel.

The SCC's decision Monday eliminated almost $18.4 million from Vepco's $210.5 million rate increase request. If Vepco was granted the full rate request, customers' bills would increase about 14.5 percent.

The commission approved a motion made by the Virginia Committee for Fair Utility Rates, which had argued that Vepco had presented insufficient evidence to support the nuclear fuel request.

When the Vepco case began June 29, Vepco said it needed about $20.8 million annually to help pay for disposal of spent nuclear fuel.

Vepco sought funds for permanent disposal rather than temporary storage of the radioactive material.

But Hulihan Moore, an attorney for the Fair Utility Rates committee, a group of large industrial users of electricity, pressed the SCC to cut all but $2.5 million of the Vepco request on grounds of insufficient evidence.

Moore offered his original motion July 22 and renewed it Monday, urging the SCC to act quickly. After a brief recess, SCC Judge Preston C. Shannon announced the action from the bench.

Shannon said the SCC recognized that there is a problem with the need to store spent nuclear fuel, but "we don't know what the costs will be."

Vepco attorney Evans Brasfield argued that regardless of the amount, there was a need to begin collecting larger sums to meet the future need of waste disposal.

Shannon said that the SCC must have more information and indicated Vepco might win approval to collect the additional money at some later time.

The Vepco rate case was scheduled to enter its 13th day of public hearings today. An SCC spokesman said a decision may be made by Aug. 29, when the company wants to implement the higher rates.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Tomorrow in St. Paul's Cathedral in London, the heir to the British throne will take a wife.

Most Americans caught up in the pageantry, the tradition, the romance of a prince marrying the beautiful girl next door will lose sight of the real history that is being made.

It will mark the first time a mother of a bridegroom did not see the wedding from the kitchen.

Have you any idea the virgin trails this woman has blazed? As a mother of sons, I know what I am talking about. Her precedents should not go unnoted.

We all know how the mothers of bridegrooms have always worn beige and kept their mouths shut. Prince Charles' mother has decreed she gets to choose a color for her dress that will be worn by no other person at the wedding. (She's opted to wear short, which is wise. She can wear it again without having to cut it off.)

And how does the bridegroom's mother usually get to the church? Crammed in the VW of one of her son's friends, holding a box of iced tea spoons and a jar of Sanka for the reception which someone forgot. Charles' mother has taken it upon herself to not only decide the order of the coach procession, but she gets pick of the livery.

And how many mothers of the bridegroom have entered church to see 15 guests on "his" side and 3,000 of the bride's dearest friends on the other side of the aisle? Charles' mother kept 300 tickets for her son's friends and gave the bride's parents only 100.

There is no question, Charles' mother has been an inspiration to mothers of sons everywhere. Who among us with a 33-year-old unmarried son who went to funerals for a living would not have panicked?

Be honest now. I have known mothers who have offered unprecedented finder's fees, and a few of us have actually followed up leads from the Welcome Wagon lady.

But Charles' mother, with her stubborn determination to serve tradition, announced, "The family put pressure on Charles to find a girl with no past and there aren't too many 20-year-old virgins available."

I salute Charles' mother for her courage and her vision. The only thing that would make the day complete would be to see the royal couple cut the 15 wedding cakes and see the bride's mother, Frances what's-her-name, running around with a bowl of ice water, dipping in the sword after each piece is cut.

Duplicate Winners

Mrs. Walter Harbin and Mrs. C. D. Elks were first place winners in the Wednesday morning duplicate bridge game played at Planters Bank. The game percentage was .619.

Others winning were Mrs. Raymond Lyder and Mrs. Tom Martin, second; Mrs. Clara Shackell and Mrs. Betty LaForce, third; Mrs. Fred Adams and Mrs. Jean Kinkennon, fourth.

North-South winners Wednesday afternoon were: Mrs. Barry Powers and Lewis Newsome, first with .581 percent. Other winners included Mrs. J. M. Horton and Mrs. Pat Conner, second; Mrs. Marilyn Bongard and Ed Yauck, third; Mrs. Frank Moseley and Sibyl Basart, fourth.

East-West: Mrs. Mavis Smith and Emma B. Warren, first with .652 percent; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew de-Sherbinin, second; Mrs. C. F. Galloway and Mrs. C. D. Elks, third; Mrs. W. R. Harris and Dave Proctor, fourth.

Club championship overall winners Saturday afternoon were Mrs. Mavis Smith and Mrs. Pat Conner, first with .620 percent; Mrs. Wiley Corbett and Mrs. Barrie Powers, second; Mrs. Wesley Webb and Dave Proctor, third; tied for fourth were Mrs. C. F. Galloway and Mrs. C. D. Elks with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew de-Sherbinin;

Mrs. Dorothy Ritchy and Mrs. Mildred Harker, sixth. In addition, section winners were: North-South: Mrs. Sara Bradbury and Mrs. Goldie Hardesty, third; tied for fourth were Mrs. Harold Forbes and Mrs. William Hillgartner with Dr. and Mrs. Charles Duffy. East-West: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bright, fifth.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Ms. Peebles Is Council Speaker

Amelia Peebles was speaker at the meeting of the Pitt County Council on the Status of Women held Wednesday afternoon.

Ms. Peebles is director of the Career Development Center for Displaced Homemakers. "A displaced homemaker is one who has lost her primary means of support through death, divorce, disability or desertion," she said. She told of the success rate of the local center and said 140 women have been aided during the program's two years in existence. "Approximately 75 percent of the women have become tax-paying citizens through employment. The program is funded through CETA and the funds will be ended after Sept. 30," she added.

Council Vice Chairman Rosalie Trotman welcomed Rebecca Davenport of Winterville as a council member.

Pitt, Martin and Hertford Counties are sponsoring a fall seminar Saturday, Sept. 26, at Martin Community College, Williamston. The second seminar planning session report was given by Linda Howard, Mrs. Trotman and Helen Simpson. The second session was held in Ahoskie and the final one was scheduled for Aug. 19 in Williamston at the Holiday Inn.

Mrs. Trotman announced Charles McLawhorn Jr., Greenville attorney, will be guest speaker at the group's October meeting and the August and September meetings will be further planning sessions for the fall project.

Dear Abby

Disappointment Was Justified

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I are in total disagreement, and here's why:

My brother and I are both married, and we each have two young children. My mother bought my brother's kids beautiful outfits for their birthdays, but for my kids, she bought a couple of yards of material and told me to make them outfits!

I thought this was very unfair and I told her so. She said it wasn't unfair because my brother's wife doesn't sew and I do. I'll leave it up to you and your readers, Abby. Do you think this was fair? I like to sew, but not that much.

DISAPPOINTED

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: It wasn't fair, and your disappointment was justified. Youngsters look forward to receiving birthday gifts, and a couple of yards of material isn't nearly as much fun to unwrap as a new outfit.

DEAR ABBY: There is a question I have been wanting to ask you for a long time.

What do you say when some idiot comes up to you, just stands there and says, "Where have I seen you before?"

BUGGED IN BUTTE

DEAR BUGGED: I reply, "I don't know. Where have you been?"

DEAR ABBY: In response to FUNNY NAVEL: I am a 22-year-old woman who also has an "outie" (a belly button that sticks out). Mine is due to an umbilical hernia, which I was born with. I used to be embarrassed to wear bikinis and midriff tops because of people's rude comments, until I came up with a good line to shut them up.

When someone asks about my navel, I tell him I was born in Germany (I was), and they tie the cord off differently over there, so that everyone born in Germany has a belly button like mine. I call mine a "German Outie." (You'd be surprised at how many people want to go for a ride in it.)

Actually, I'm glad to have a unique belly button. You've heard of the Navel Academy, haven't you? Well, mine dropped out!

DEAR ABBY: For two years I have been dating a man who must be ashamed to take me home to meet his mother. Although he has never told me this in so many words, I am sure it's true.

He didn't take me to his niece's graduation ceremony earlier this year. Also, his cousin got married and he didn't invite me to the reception with him. Recently his brother's girlfriend had a big birthday party for his brother, and he went alone and told me about it afterward. These things hurt me, but I didn't say anything.

When we first started dating, I introduced him to my parents and invited him to all our family gatherings so he could meet my relatives.

I'm not a bad-looking girl. In fact, I'm considered good-looking by quite a few. I have a nice figure (34-22-35) and I'm very polite. Sometimes I think he's ashamed of me because I'm raising a son from a previous relationship and I've never been married. Please put me on the right track.

WONDER WHY

DEAR WONDER: Quit wondering and ask him. However, the reason he's ashamed of you is less important than the fact that he is. And unless he overcomes that "shame," the "track" for you is the one that leads out of his life.

Weed Double-Dipping

Maryland's agriculture secretary, Wayne Crowley Jr., said it best when he told a House subcommittee earlier this month: "I'd like to avoid the double-dipping that's going on in North Carolina." Crowley was referring to a practice that became widespread in North Carolina this year as landowners leased their quota for flue-cured tobacco and then planted, or allowed to be planted on their farm, non-quota Maryland tobacco.

Maryland tobacco was removed from the price support program, and the quota system, in the 1950s and has been somewhat of a backseat distant cousin until a couple of years ago. It can be used as a substitute for burley, and that's where the interest comes in now. Burley growers experienced back-to-back off years, and Maryland tobacco is now in demand, with correspondingly good prices. For North Carolina farmers, it seemed to be a chance to supplement their traditional income with a sure thing. From about 920 acres last year, Tar Heel farmers increased their Maryland tobacco crop to nearly 10,000 acres this year.

Understandably, Maryland farmers and state officials are concerned. They feel North Carolina's crop constitutes unfair competition, at least ethically if not legally. We tend to agree.

If, indeed, tobacco is to be regulated — voluntarily, as is the case, or otherwise — in this state, then those regulations should apply to all tobacco. Burley leaf grown in the western section of North Carolina is regulated; all of the flue-cured is controlled. It stands to reason that those two programs will suffer if a third, competing crop, is introduced without regulation.

Legislative Etcetera

And it came to pass, that after months of recording activities in the N.C. General Assembly, we thought all the activities of that body has been made public knowledge.

How wrong can one get? Now, weeks after closing, more tidbits of passing importance are made known.

Examples: all of May has been designated North Carolina Porcelain Art Month; drivers of certain private school buses can now go 45 mph instead of the slow-paced 35; a license is now required to keep a cougar as a house pet (who's in charge of that department?); Indian Solidarity week has been designated for the fourth week of September, and Greeks in N.C. have a state holiday honoring Greek Independence Day on March 25.

There is more, much more — but it is to be remembered by all that there is now a law banning the use of your house for air rifle practice.

Having long ago given up on ever knowing all that goes on in the General Assembly, we sometimes wonder how many legislators also lost track sometime before mid-term.

THIS AFTERNOON

Our Own Variety

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The mention of "organized crime" to the average Tar Heel conjures visions of high-finance hoods wired to New York or Chicago...the Mafia.

But that is not what North Carolina law enforcement people talk about when they refer to organized crime. This state has its own homegrown variety, and while the action used to be in illegal moonshine, the modern version trends more to theft and robbery.

Actually the term organized may be a little too formal. That suggests a leadership structure, membership rolls, and regular assignments carried out by the rank and file.

Organization in North Carolina may be more clearly defined as a general working knowledge among the brotherhood as to who is up to what at a particular time. There is no "boss" running things. But the crooks do know one another, and there are specialties such as fencing, selling, transporting, and such which cross county lines.

New Law
All of which is one reason that State Rep. George Miller, Jr. of Durham pushed so hard in the recent session of the General Assembly to get adopted a relatively simple little change in the law. He wanted all individuals arrested in a felony case to be fingerprinted.

The law passed without difficulty, and without fanfare. But it can provide for law enforcement agencies across the state a major step ahead in fighting crime.

Contrary to popular notions, fingerprinting is not a routine thing in this state. Television cop dramas show the detective lifting a smudged print from the crime scene, and minutes later the FBI computer in Washington identifies the culprit. It doesn't look that way in real life. The police must have some idea who the person is, and with that information, the fingerprint can put the individual in question at the scene.

What fingerprints are really good for is to provide positive identification of a person known to the police. And that is what they are desperately needed for in fighting North Carolina's widespread, loosely knit organized crime activity...to keep tabs on the bad guys who travel about the state doing different crimes in different counties and never getting linked together.

You would think in this modern day that police routinely take everybody's fingerprints who is arrested. Miller says fewer than 20 percent of all felony arrests are fingerprinted. In rural sections that figure may be as low as 12 percent, he figures.

Essential
Despite that extremely low fingerprinting rate by local police departments, the State Bureau of Investigation's Police Information Network identification process is based on fingerprint matting. (Please turn to Page 5)

To A Granddaughter

SCRABBLE, Va. Heather, my love— So we get to Milepost 11. It's what they used to call a way station, back in the days when passenger trains ran everywhere — a point that's neither here nor there, a kind of flag stop between little girl and young woman. It's not a bad place, just a necessary place, and I think you'll like it.

But, then, I can't think of anything offhand that you don't like, snakes and wasps and getting out of the swimming pool excepted. That's one of the truly nice things about you, Heather, you go at new experiences like you go to dinner, running hard for President of the Clean Plate Club. "That's neat," you say. In a disorderly world, what could be nicer?

For the record (your grandfather is forever saying, "for the record"), you reach 11 years old standing 4 feet, 10 inches tall and weighing just under 90 pounds. Your eyes get a little bluer year by year. That blond hair of yours comes down to your waist, and your legs stretch all the way to the floor. Those legs will be spectacular one of these days. Right now they're chigger-bit and blackberry-scratched, but that's country living.

It's been a good year for you, the year that you were 10. Back in October, you may remember, our house was open for the church's annual House Tour. You got assigned to serve as a hostess down at the greenhouse, and you proved to be a natural-born tour guide. "This is the rubber tree," you told the visiting ladies. "His name is Livingston, don't ask my why. And these are the orchids, and that is the hibiscus, and the name of that fern is Fluffy Duffy, and this is the Bird of an "advanced beginner Red Cross certificate" in lifesaving. Nice work, my love.

Once I asked you to plan your perfect dinner. There was a considerable furrowing of the freckled brow. "Crab salad," you said finally. "Lasagna. One of those French pastry cream cakes for dessert. And a pitcher of milk." This is not how we keep the old weight down.

This summer, in between Girl Scout camp and 4-H camp, you're doing a lot of dreaming about the new house your mother and father will be building. You have your eye on the scrap lumber for a tree house, and your plans are taking shape dream by dream. This will be a hideaway to read in, where you can look at the Blue Ridge Mountains and see forever, and you won't let Douglas in — he can't climb up a knotted rope. From your tree house you can see the pond where the beaver is building his house. The supporting posts for this mansion will be set in concrete, but sigh, cement costs an awful lot of money. Honey, I tell you, that is the way homebuilding is.

In September comes the sixth grade, with a couple of favorite teachers for math and English and history and all that stuff, but September is a long way off. Meanwhile there are books to be read and trees to be climbed and animals to be watched, and of course, an eleventh birthday to be properly observed. Will you remember what you wanted for this birthday? A tackle box, a pair of skates, and something for the stamp collection. That's neat, Heather, and so are you.

Love, Grandfather.

JAS. J. KILPATRICK

Paradise only it has smut on its leaves. This is Boogie the bougainvillea, and the rest of the things are geraniums and stuff." Next year, Disney World.

Along in February came the great Girl Scout cookie sale. You won a book bag, a pencil box, and all that other junk — this is getting to be an old story — by selling 124 boxes, of which grandfather bought 22. This is what grandfathers are for. They have practically no other role in life.

It's great to see you so active in the Girl Scouts. You may remember this summer as the summer you went to Girl Scout camp and came home with a sunburned nose and 14 merit badges, including a badge for "aerospace," for heaven's sake. You also qualified for

Middle East Reappraisal

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Against his will, his instinct and a lifetime of emotional support for Israel, President Reagan is reappraising the U.S.-Israel connection to preserve his "strategic consensus" in the Middle East against Soviet penetration.

The president is deciding whether to impose serious restraints on Prime Minister Menahem Begin's use of U.S. arms. The importance and difficulty of this provoked that one high U.S. policymaker used uncharacteristically harsh language in privately describing the situation to us: "We don't know how to bring Begin to heel, but we're trying to find out."

It is not easy. Ronald Reagan is just one more president unable to tailor Israeli policies to prevent wrecking U.S. interests in the region. But Reagan's credentials as a card-carrying supporter of the Jewish state is an advantage Jimmy Carter never enjoyed.

Administration officials urging Reagan to get tough were heartened by telephone calls, telegrams and letters praising the president for holding up those F-16 aircraft slated for delivery to Israel July 21. Richard Wirthlin, Reagan's public opinion analyst, is now conducting a poll expected to give Reagan high marks for that decision.

This gives him a political basis for addressing the principal problem posed by Begin's free-wheeling use of American weapons: The administration's "strategic consensus" for U.S.-Arab-Israeli consortium to defend against Soviet designs is being destroyed by Israel's policy.

When Secretary of State Alexander Haig made the rounds of Arab capitals last spring, he pushed that Reagan strategy hard and was offered some help. But moderate Arab leaders said they considered Israel the real threat in the short run.

After that trip, Haig believed he had made progress with the Arab skeptics. But when Israel attacked Iraq's nuclear research facility on June 7 and a month later sent its U.S.-supplied aircraft against Palestinian terrorists in a densely-populated residential district in Beirut, the Reagan-Haig "strategic consensus" was critically wounded.

Some presidential intimates have cautioned Reagan that the timing of Begin's air raid may have been deliberately planned to weaken U.S. ties with its essential Arab allies — particularly Saudi Arabia. He has listened closely. One such adviser told us Reagan now agreed "that Begin is making it very difficult to help Israel."

The real impact inside the Arab world of recent Israeli activity is still unclear. In contrast to dire warnings in government-controlled media that the U.S. is responsible for what Begin does with American-supplied aircraft, Arab leaders are sophisticated; few accept that line.

Still, there are ominous portents. King Hussein of Jordan, a country regarded by Reagan as crucial to the West Bank peace efforts Haig is about to launch, sent a secret message to Washington last week warning that U.S.-Jordanian relations are "at a watershed." The Saudis, who have played a vital backstage role in trying to defuse the Israeli-Syrian missile crisis and act as American agents with the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), are endangered among fellow Arabs by their pro-U.S. stand.

The Saudis know that Israel has sent its warplanes on illegal flights over their military base at Tobuk on several occasions. By Begin's own definition, all Saudi military power represents a threat to Israeli security. The Saudis ask: What would the U.S. do if Israel bombed Tobuk as Baghdad and Beirut have been bombed?

The undermining of Reagan's "strategic consensus" against the Soviet Union has progressed for the past seven weeks by virtue of Israel's military might. But the administration still considers it the best hope for a Mideast policy to safeguard the Persian Gulf east to Pakistan and south to the Indian Ocean. Reagan is not about to give it up.

To revive their strategy, Reagan and Haig must find some way to control Begin's use of power in the Arab world.

Strength For Today

THAT EXTRA INCH OR SO

Someone has said that whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing better. That is a logical and welcome extension of the statement so often heard that what is worth doing at all is worth doing well.

Success in life comes to those who can surpass their fellows by that little inch or so of betterness. To be sure, there is good fortune, or what appears to be good fortune, in many a person's success. But this is a mysterious something upon which we cannot count with any certainty. If it comes, well and good; but it may not come. The only real way to insure success is doing something, not only well, but better than others are doing it.

That inch or so of betterness! Genius? Oh yes, there are a few geniuses in the world, but they are few and far between. The successful people are seldom geniuses. They are people who believe that anything worth doing is worth doing better. They add that inch of betterness. — Elisha Douglass

To the editor:

As a food technologist involved in consumer acceptance studies on the new sweetener, aspartame, I would like to clarify information concerning this product presented in the Daily Reflector on July 26, 1981.

The statement that aspartame "breaks down within about 10 minutes" may be misleading to the consumer. While aspartame is generally less stable in hot foods than in cold foods, the resulting loss in sweetness in a cup of hot coffee or hot tea would not be perceptible to the consumer during the time it would take to consume the beverage.

The statement that "you couldn't mix up a container (of iced tea) in advance, keep it in the refrigerator and expect it to stay sweet till you're ready for it" may also be misleading to the consumer. It is possible to prepare iced tea sweetened with aspartame in advance and store it in the refrigerator. However, it might be necessary to add a little more sweetener in the preparation or before consuming to allow for any loss in "perceived sweetness" which might occur in the product during storage.

The use of aspartame is very much like that of other low calorie sweeteners presently available to the consumer. The relative sweetness of aspartame is generally considered to be 180 to 200 times as sweet as table sugar (sucrose) depending upon the particular food medium. (Saccharin is generally regarded as being 300 times as sweet as sucrose.) The stability of this sweetening power is also dependent upon the particular food in which it is used.

For those who are interested in additional information about this new sweetener, I suggest that they read "Application Potential for Aspartame in Low Calorie and Dietetic Foods" by C.I. Beck in Low Calorie and Special Dietary Foods (1976) edited by Basant K. Swivedi. This book is available at the E.C.U. Allied Health Library.

Iacocca Now Has An Audience

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Iacocca, chairman of the embattled Chrysler Corp. and architect of the "biggest," most glorified and profited six-cent quarterly public ever recorded, generally has a lot to say.

The problem for him and Chrysler, however, has been that he hasn't always had an audience. Who seeks opinions from the head of a company that compiled nine straight quarterly losses totalling $3.1 billion?

Now Iacocca may have listeners. Although Chrysler's had a first-half loss of $287 million or $4.46 a share, the second quarter of that period, taken alone, showed a $12 million profit, six cents a share gain.

That's a profit so tiny it can almost fit on the tip of a creative accountant's pen. And it may be followed by more enormous losses too.

So what if critics suggest it resulted from rearranging production periods, or that it might be traced to tank production or items other than cars. It was a profit, and it was certified by the accountants.

And so Iacocca and his team celebrated with a Washington reception, with token gifts of black ink for those who helped put the company into the black, with mutual backslapping, and with a speech by the chief.

Iacocca had an audience, and he made the most of it to tell the nation what he had learned from his experience, an experience he said taught him what is needed to solve the problems of industry and the economy.

First, he said, the country must be rid of "wasteful and unnecessary regulations that are crippling America's basic industries."

"Keep the good ones, and throw out the bad ones," he said. "Get rid of the air bag. Belts are better." A return to regulatory reason, he said, would save Chrysler alone more than $500 million by 1985.

Second, we need a monetary policy that assures a steady supply of money at a rate the country can afford," he said. "We need a stable monetary policy, instead of jerking interest rates from 10 to 20 percent like a yo-yo, both to encourage business investment and to give our customers the confidence and the means to buy our products."

Next, said Iacocca, "we need to give business the tax incentives it needs to make capital investments." They should benefit "the marginal companies, smaller companies, the companies just starting out."

Also needed is "some mechanism to help companies — such as Chrysler — before their problems reach the crisis point," said the chairman.

He envisioned, he said, an organization to offer temporary assistance to companies that have short-term capital problems without requiring them "to go through hysterical headlines on the nightly news."

Finally, he suggested a new management attitude — flexible enough to put a labor leader on the board, sufficiently farsighted to "develop new techniques of cooperation in the marketplace," and wise enough "to avoid the temptation of preaching doctrinaire free enterprise, when we know Adam Smith went out of style decades ago."

Those recommendations were born in hard experience. For the past two years Chrysler has held itself together with the figurative rubber bands, paper clips and old string. As a beggar, it has had to listen to others: to bankers, to bureaucrats, to labor leaders, to the public.

"During the last two years I've listened to a thousand stern lectures on the virtues of free enterprise from some of my conservative business friends and from the nation's editorial writers," said Iacocca.

Now, it seems, he's had his fill of it. Now he insists you listen.

Victory, Not Tax Cut....

Administration officials say the Democrats have moved so far toward Reagan's original tax position that the president could claim a victory even if his bill loses in the Democratic-controlled House. Yet the administration seems intent on achieving victory on its own — though revised — terms.

Likewise, Democratic leaders in the House seem more interested in avenging two major defeats to Reagan on the 1982 budget than in compromising further.

One of the main sticking points involves a three-year cut in personal tax rates should be. Reagan wants a three-year reduction, period. The Democrats would make a three-year reduction contingent upon the economy performing in line with optimistic administration forecasts.

Another major difference surfaced last week, when Reagan accepted a Senate proposal that would permanently and automatically reduce tax rates to offset inflation, beginning in 1985. The Democratic bill does not include this plan, which effectively could mean tax-rate cuts beyond three years.

Both sides have traveled a long distance to where they are now.

Reagan originally proposed a three-year, 30 percent cut in personal tax rates and a business cut in the form of accelerated depreciation allowances. Any other tax changes should be deferred for a second bill, the president said.

But to gain support from a group of conservative House Democrats, Reagan scaled his personal tax cut back to 25 percent and agreed to include a bunch of extras. Among these were a cut in the "marriage penalty," and reductions in taxes on estates, foreign earnings and oil-producing land.

Rostenkowski talked this spring about a one-year tax cut. His committee presently is behind a two-year plan that contains generous tax cuts for business, a reduction in the top tax rate for people with sizable interest and dividend income and special breaks for people who own oil-producing land, commodity dealers and the troubled savings and loan industry.

The last week has been marked by a bidding war, with each side increasing specialized tax breaks with an eye toward picking up votes in the House.

Reagan's latest bill contains at least two items that the administration has opposed publicly as bad policy: the creation of tax-exempt savings certificates designed to help thrift institutions, and an exemption for commodity traders from regulations that crack down on a tax-avoidance scheme known as a "straddle."

Asked why the administration is now backing the commodity straddle exemption after having attacked it, Treasury Department spokesman Marlin Fitzwater noted that Democratic Rep. Kent Kance of Texas, a key Reagan ally, wanted the exemption.

Said Fitzwater: "We're retaining it (the exemption) because Hance wanted it retained."

Prolonged Inquiry Into CIA Chief Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee inquiry into CIA Director William J. Casey's fitness is expected to stretch into September, and the panel might seek his resignation even if no criminal wrongdoing is found, sources close to the investigation say.

As Casey continued visiting senators to rally support and the White House issued a fresh vote of confidence from President Reagan, the Intelligence Committee put veteran Watergate investigator Fred Thompson in charge of the probe.

Thompson, joined by Republican committee chairman Barry Goldwater of Arizona and ranking Democrat Daniel P. Moynihan of New York, heard a preliminary staff report Monday on Casey's tangled past business practices and his appointment of businessman Max Hugel to head CIA clandestine services.

The full committee was to hear the briefing, based on a review of CIA and FBI files, at a closed session today.

Thompson, 38, who served as Republican counsel to the Senate Watergate Committee in 1973, is a close associate of Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee. "This gives Baker more input into the committee," according to one source, who asked not to be identified.

One source said the staff report was very preliminary and basically outlined areas to pursue. This source said that effort was expected to take two to four weeks, which would postpone the committee's final conclusions until Congress returns in early September.

Casey and the White House had hoped to extinguish the controversy before Congress leaves town.

Thompson promised "a thorough inquiry" but added: "I hope it will be resolved in the near future. I don't think it serves anybody's purposes to have a long drawn-out affair." He declined to commit himself in any more detail on timing.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan hoped the questions about Casey would be resolved shortly "in spite of Mr. Thompson's being retained there."

"The president still has full confidence in Mr. Casey and hopes this matter will be concluded shortly," Speakes said.

Asked whether he thought Casey could continue to be effective in his job. Speakes said: "We think so. He's a distinguished public servant."

Casey met at the White House Monday with presidential counselor Edwin Meese III on a number of subjects, Speakes said today.

"Of course, the matter of the current controversy was discussed," he said.

Based on what is known to date, one well-placed source said key leaders anticipate

In that case, this source said, the committee might well conclude that Casey cannot serve effectively. In the view of these leaders, "he's been tainted and no matter what the investigation shows they won't be able to wash the taint off," the source said.

Casey has been conducting a counteroffensive. He has delivered a 20-inch-thick stack of documentary materials to the committee, has requested a chance to rebut any allegations personally at a hearing and has lobbied senators for three days.

raising, and fire dousing. The scouts will compete on a point basis, hopefully earning the honor of All American Patrol.

In the fire dousing competition, a fire will be built under a plastic bag of water. A string that hangs into the fire is attached to the bag. The object of the exercise is to make the fire strong enough to burn the string up the bag to release the water.

The object of the flag raising competition is to hold up a flag pole so it does not touch the ground and is not held upright with guylines.

Tower building, kayak paddling, fishing, conservation, shooting education, pioneering, confidence courses, competitive skills, marksmanship, swimming, canoeing, boating, handicapped awareness, electronic path finding, action archery, heritage and olympics are among numerous activities the scouts will be involved in during the week.

During the Jamboree, scouts will be in full uniform. Those from other countries traditionally wear the native costume of their country. Goodson said scouts will be in attendance from as far away as Australia, South Africa, Canada, Mexico and New Zealand.

Two arena shows are on the agenda for the week. Residents of the jamboree and visiting dignitaries and performers will provide entertainment for visitors and scouts. "The closing campfire will be the most dramatic, it's a very solemn occasion as are all of the camp fires," Goodson said. The Oak Ridge Boys, Burl Ives and a large fireworks display will be featured at the Aug. 4 campfire in the amphitheatre. The King of Sweden will also make an appearance at the final campfire. Goodson said. Apparently the King is attending the camporee with the Sweden contingency.

Perhaps one of the most interesting sights at the Jamboree will be the mile long display of various scout skills called the Merit Badge Midway. "It's going to be a gigantic carnival," Goodson said. Midway attractions include arts and science fair, national exhibits, Brown Sea Camp and amateur radio. Visitors are welcome to attend the Jamboree July 29 through Aug. 4 from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.

"The boys will be doing something all during the day, everyday. It's continuous activity and entertainment," said Goodson.

Fort A.P. Hill is located outside of Fredricksburg, Va. about a three to three and a half hours drive from Greenville on I-95.

As the robbers and thieves become more sophisticated, crime statistics show that property crimes are rising rapidly in North Carolina... at a rate far faster than the national average.

Experts see a number of related factors behind this trend. Property crimes — housebreaking, burglary, auto theft — tend to be the province of the young. The youthful prison population reflects this condition. And ever as the declining birth rates seem to suggest fewer young people in the state, census figures demonstrate that the youthful population continues to climb as a result of in-migration of young people. The state's concentration of military activities, its educational system, and the employment picture spur that movement into the state.

Miller hopes the new law now on the books will prompt local police officials to keep better track of the hardcore crooks who are involved in a big share of the state's rising crime activity.

Waste Water Plant.....

The detailed design of the proposed facility, estimated to take one year and cost $500,000, is also eligible for the same federal and state match. However, Prescott noted that federal money is not available at the present time for the project.

"Greenville is not in a good position" by the priority system used by the federal and state agencies to fund such projects and the commission, he said, is "not overly optimistic" about receiving matching funds for the detailed design work, or for that matter, the actual construction of a new plant.

The only "option" the commission has, Prescott noted, is "paying the total cost" of the design work with local money. That would, he noted, increase Greenville's cost by some $437,000.

If federal and state matching grants are not available when the design of the plant is completed, the question then facing the commission, according to Prescott, will be "to build the plant or not."

If an additional bond issue is needed to raise the funds for a $10 million facility, the debt service "would more than double the current sewer rate," Prescott noted.

"The permit on the present plant expires in about a year," Prescott said, adding that it is likely "we can't meet the new discharge limits with the old plant."

Whichard noted that the delays involved in having Greenville's plan approved have doubled the estimated cost of construction — from $5 million in 1974 to $10 million this year.

Lewis noted that the present facility is sufficient to handle the normal growth of the city until the mid-1980s, the time needed to design and construct a new treatment plant.

Farmville Mart Saw Good Day

FARMVILLE — Monday was an outstanding day on the Farmville Tobacco Market, according to Georgia Willoughby, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Sales volume was heavy compared with that of the previous day and buying companies paid up to $1.90 a pound. Quality of tobacco is better than that of last season, with more cutters and lugs and fewer primings and nondescript grades being sold. Also, considerably more tobacco is being placed in good grades, with less fair and low-quality sales.

The Farmville market sold 844,338 pounds for $1,413,732.44, for an average of $167.44 per hundred. To date, the market has sold 2,025,292 for $3,335,096.53, for a season average of $164.67.

The season average for the same selling day in 1980 was $120.13. The market has one set of buyers today and will open Wednesday with two sets

U.S. Will Give Poland New Round Credit Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government will make $60.5 million in credit available to Poland to help its reform government cope with protests by Polish workers over food shortages.

Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-Ill., who has been pushing for the new round of credit aid to Poland, said Reagan administration officials made the decision late Monday.

Derwinski said Agriculture Department officials informed Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, Agriculture Committee chairman, and other members of the Agriculture Committee of the decision on Monday.

In an effort to head off strike threats, Polish officials agreed Monday to end a 20 percent cut in meat rations Aug. 31. The reduced meat rations had been planned to last through September.

The line of credit from the U.S. government is intended to facilitate the purchase of 400,000 metric tons of corn by the Polish government to save the country's broiler chicken industry.

Tom Hammer, deputy assistant agriculture secretary for International Affairs and Commodity Programs, said the credit proposal had been undergoing final review for the past several days, but he declined to discuss its details.

According to a congressional source, who asked not to be identified, the program calls for $55 million in credit under the Food for Peace program and $5.5 million in credit guarantees through the Commodity Credit Corp.

The terms, the source said, set out a 10-year repayment plan which will carry a 8 percent interest rate during the first three years and prevailing market interest rates over the remaining seven.

Although the Food for Peace program prohibits aid to communist countries, the source said that in 1957 the United States declared Poland to be a friendly nation.

The administration, which has been seeking ways to help Poland during the current period of government reform, has had the credit proposal under review since Polish Ambassador Romuald Spasowski formally sought the aid several weeks ago in a letter to Agriculture Secretary John R. Block.

Block had said one problem in extending the aid was Poland's current financial instability.

Reagan Seeking Voter-Support In Tax-Cut Battle

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the Oval Office to the Deep South, on radio and television and in newspapers, the Reagan White House is trying to enlist the support of the voters for the tax-cut battle on Capitol Hill.

The intensive lobbying campaign has found President Reagan talking to the nation, Vice President George Bush and others touring Dixie and Republicans spending a half-million dollars on advertising.

The message is the same: Call your congressman and demand that he vote for Reagan's tax cut.

"They need to hear from you," Reagan said in his nationally broadcast speech Monday night, two days before the tax showdown on the floor of the Democratic-controlled House. "I know that doesn't give you much time, but a great deal is at stake."

Reagan is not ignoring the congressmen themselves. He invited 15 to lunch at his Camp David, Md., retreat on Sunday and met with 16 more at the White House on Monday. Additional sessions were planned today.

But the major effort is concentrated on taking the administration's case directly to the people.

"Everyone has been asked to go out and help," said a White House source, who asked not to be identified.

Most of the intensive lobbying campaign is targeted at a handful of Southern states where the White House hopes pressure from constituents will sway wavering congressmen. A group of conservative Southern Democrats voted with the president on the budget and he's trying to get their votes again.

As part of that drive, Bush spent Monday in Atlanta,

Austin, Texas, and Baton Rouge, La., speaking out for the administration's proposal to cut taxes 25 percent over 33 months, starting Oct. 1, and asking his audiences to contact their congressmen.

Alabama Gov. Fob James, a Democrat, met with Reagan at the White House and then began a speaking tour of his own — at the expense of Alabama taxpayers — spreading the same message in North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and Louisiana.

In efforts officially independent of the White House but plotted by the president's political adviser, Lyn Nofziger, the Republican National Committee and other groups began a media blitz.

The Republican National Committee is spending about $250,000 to produce a 30-second radio spot for broadcast in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, Nevada, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas and Kentucky.

"Telephone your congressman," the commercial implores. "His vote is necessary to pass the Reagan tax cut. Tell him President Reagan needs his vote."

And the National Republican Congressional Committee also is spending about $250,000 to purchase time on seven national radio networks. In one of the commercials, a Baltimore, Md., man advises: "Tell your congressman to stop playing politics and vote for the president's tax cut. That's what I told mine."

The Committee for Economic Recovery, headed by Rep. Stan Parris, R-Va., raised $30,000 from traditional Reagan contributors to finance a television ad, broadcast only in the nation's capital.

The commercial shows a little girl opening an empty Christmas package. A voice says the package represents House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.'s "Christmas-in-July tax-cut package. But when you look inside: surprise ... O'Neill's tax cut is no tax cut at all ... Empty promises are no gift. Tell your congressman that what you ordered last November was the Reagan tax cut and that's exactly what you expect to get."

Citizens for the Republic, a group Reagan once headed, has raised $150,000 to take out full-page advertisements in The Washington Post, The New York Times, The Atlanta Constitution and other newspapers. Those ads, too, ask voters to telephone their congressmen to show their support for Reagan's tax-cut bill.

Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., complained that the media blitz was "highly unusual" and unprecedented in any White House's attempt to influence the outcome of legislation.

Foley, one of the House Democratic leaders, has himself made dozens of telephone calls to congressmen to urge them to vote for the House Ways and Means Committee's 21-month, 15 percent tax cut. Other Democrats have called about 100 newspapers to explain their bill and seek public support.

In his speech, Reagan asked his audience to "put aside any feelings of frustration or helplessness about our political institutions and join me in this dramatic but responsible plan to reduce the enormous burden of federal taxation on you and your family."

"I urge you again to contact your senators and congressmen, tell them of your support for this bipartisan proposal, tell them you believe this is an unequalled opportunity to help return America to prosperity and make government again the servant of the people."

Five Probably For Demo Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five of North Carolina's seven Democratic U.S. congressmen said Monday they probably will vote for the Democratic tax plan, despite intense lobbying by President Reagan and other Republicans.

Only Reps. L.H. Fountain of Tarboro and Charles O. Whitley of Mount Olive said they still haven't decided between the Democratic plan and the GOP plan.

The House is expected to vote on the tax cut Wednesday, and the Democrats say their offices were flooded Monday with phone calls, letters and telegrams from local businessmen, most of them generated by the National Chamber of Commerce and the National Federation of Independent Businessmen.

Reagan gave a personal pep talk to North Carolina Rep. William G. Hefner and 14 others on Sunday. The 15 congressmen were treated to a cookout at Camp David.

Fountain was invited to the presidential retreat but declined because he was in Tarboro when he received the invitation.

Rep. Ike Andrews of Cary received a call from the White House but did not return it by Monday evening because he was tied up on House business, an aide said.

Last spring, Fountain and Andrews voted for budget cuts proposed by Reagan over an alternative Democratic plan. On a second budget vote in June implementing those cuts, all seven Democrats voted for the Democratic plan.

But five of the North Carolina Democrats say they are standing firm against GOP lobbying.

Reps. Walter B. Jones, Charles B. Rose III, Stephen L. Neal, Andrews and Hefner all said they will support or lean toward the Democratic plan.

The Democratic plan offers a 5 percent income tax cut next year and a 10 percent cut in 1983, with a 10 percent cut in the third year if the economy performs as Reagan says it will.

The Republican plan offers a three-year tax cut for the same amount with no conditions.

The five Democrats said their party's proposal is more attractive because it offers a larger cut for taxpayers in the $15,000 to $50,000 annual income bracket.

"The Democratic proposal is better for the average person than the Republican proposal," Neal said. "I represent lots of average folks and I want to do what is best for them."

President Pledges No Cuts For Dependents On Social Security

By DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Leaving the details for later, President Reagan has promised to make the Social Security system solvent without reducing benefits to Americans "dependent" on their monthly retirement checks.

"In any plan to restore fiscal integrity of Social Security, I personally will see that no part of the plan will be at the expense of you who are dependent on your monthly Social Security checks," the president said Monday night in his nationally broadcast address.

Reagan touched only briefly on Social Security as he appealed to Americans to lobby their congressmen in favor of his tax-cut plan, which faces a showdown vote on the House floor Wednesday.

The president told Congressional leaders last week he would devote a major part of the address to Social Security, but he told the nation he hopes to speak at length on the issue "in the near future."

Sources in Congress said that Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., concerned about stirring more controversy before the tax fight is over, convinced Reagan not to discuss Social Security at length Monday night.

Reagan told the nation he was "deeply disturbed" because many Social Security recipients "have been needlessly frightened by some of the inaccuracies which have been given wide circulation."

This was an apparent reference to continuing warnings by some Democrats — both before and after his address — that the administration will recommend major money-saving reductions in Social Security programs.

"You have no reason to be frightened," Reagan said. "You will continue to receive your checks in the full amount due you."

Two hours later, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., charged in a speech in New York that the administration would push for Social Security reductions as part of "a secret plan for balancing the rest of the federal budget...."

"By reducing benefits sharply, they hope over the next five years to create a gigantic $80 billion Social Security surplus that can make up the deficit in other federal spending," Kennedy said.

"That is a cruel and false method for balancing the budget on the backs of the elderly," said Kennedy, adding that the minimum $122 monthly benefit "has been eliminated."

Congressional budget conferees have agreed to an administration plan to take the minimum payment away from 3 million persons as a way of saving $7 billion by 1986.

Before the speech, Reagan was criticized by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., and Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia.

"During his campaign, the president promised to protect the benefits of those on Social Security — and those looking forward to receiving them," O'Neill said. "I think the president should explain why he has not kept his promise."

Byrd sent Reagan a letter asking, "How can we explain an economic plan ... which inordinately rewards the already-rich with high tax cuts which are partially financed by cutting the Social Security benefits of the nation's elderly?"

"It appears that the administration has abandoned its promise not to cut Social Security retirement benefits," Byrd wrote.

He said it appeared that budget director David A. Stockman "discovered that the budget cannot be balanced in light of the enormous tax cuts unless Social Security benefits are reduced."

After the speech, Democratic National Committee chairman Charles T. Manatt said Reagan made "a glaring omission in attempting to duck the Social Security issue."

"If there has been fear instilled in retired Americans, it was the Reagan administration that put it there," he said. "The Democratic Party supports Social Security and reasonable and fair programs to make it healthy and solvent."

Wants Schools Teach Technique

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward I. Koch said he plans to recommend the city schools teach students the "Heimlich maneuver" now that the technique has been used on him to save him from choking.

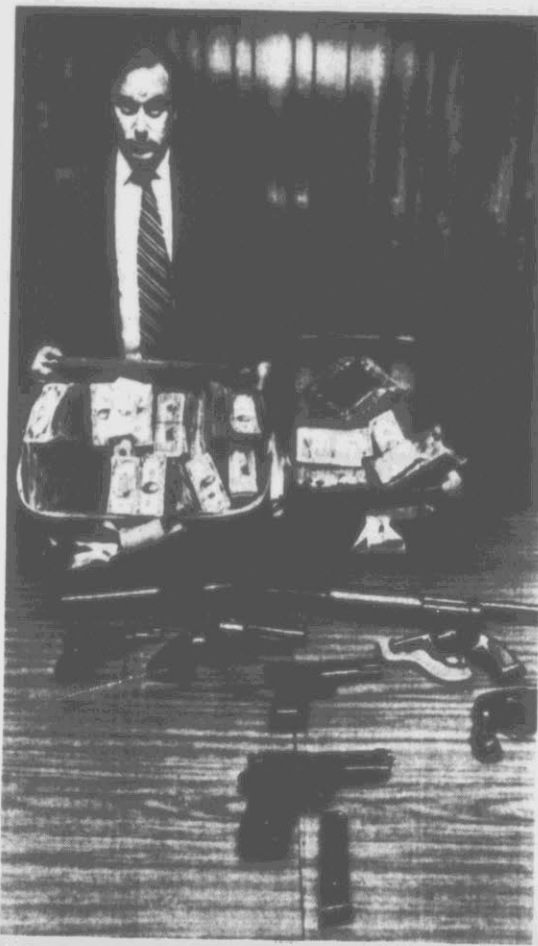

Koch said a fellow diner at a Chinese restaurant used the maneuver on him Sunday after noticing he was choking on a piece of food that had become lodged in his throat. He said David Margolis, president of Colt Industries, grabbed him around the lower chest and squeezed, dislodging the food.

"It (choking) is a very frightening experience," Koch said Monday.

Weinberger Visits Base

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger awarded the 1980 Secretary of Defense Environmental Quality Award on Monday to Camp Lejeune.

But during a four-hour tour of the base, Weinberger said, "Our chief goal is to protect the nation's freedom, which I must say is the real endangered species."

Maj. Gen. Charles Cooper, commanding general of the base, accepted the award, which recognizes the Marines and the base for outstanding efforts in protecting the environment and endangered species.

Weinberger also reviewed the Air Alert Force, combat weapons, amphibious the tractor operations and a tank-killer demonstration at Camp Lejeune.

Weinberger was met at the Marine Corps Air Station at New River by Lt. Gen. Adolph G. Schwenk, commanding general of Fleet Marine Force Atlantic, and Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Grey, commanding general of the 2nd Marine Division.

After viewing the Air Alert Force, the secretary travelled to Mile Hammock Bay where he reviewed a display of the tanks and artillery of the 2nd Marine Division. He then took a ride in an amphibious tractor, followed by a demonstration of air power usually reserved to support a marine division in combat.

Weinberger also witnessed a demonstration by a tank-killer team, showing ways a marine infantryman can defeat armor with modern techniques.

The secretary's visit followed a similar review of a base at Fort Benning, Ga., and he was scheduled to wind up his tour at the Marine Corps Air Station at Cherry Point before returning to Washington, D.C.

F-16 Shipment Depends On A Lasting Cease-Fire

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration will give its go-ahead for twice-delayed shipments of F-16 jets to Israel within two weeks if the cease-fire in Lebanon lasts, officials say.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said Monday that a decision on ending the suspension will be made by Aug. 10, the next scheduled F-16 delivery date.

Another official, who asked not to be identified, had said earlier that if the cease-fire holds, Israel can expect a favorable decision.

Meanwhile, optimism was growing in the administration that the cease-fire would last.

Fischer indicated that the violations which have occurred are not a cause for serious concern, suggesting that neither Israel nor the Palestine Liberation Organization should see them as sufficient cause to break the accord.

"I think it's hardly surprising that there are some initial apparent violations of the cease-fire in a matter as complex as this," Fischer told reporters. "We are still hopeful and become increasingly optimistic that the cease-fire will, in fact, take hold."

President Reagan met at the White House on Monday with his special Mideast envoy, Philip C. Habib, who negotiated the cease-fire on Friday.

Habib told reporters that he probably will return to the Middle East, although he wasn't sure when. Other sources said he wanted to spend some time with his family before planning his next step.

After talking to Reagan, Habib said the cease-fire could be "a first, important step on the road to greater calm and security in the area. This will be indispensable if future progress is to be made toward a broad and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Israel's U.S. ambassador, Ephraim Evron, said after meeting with Habib at the State Department that "the cessation of hostilities seems to be holding, and we would like to hope it is the beginning of a new, more peaceful period now."

Evron also said he thought the F-16s should be delivered "as soon as possible."

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said Monday that a more permanent cease-fire will have to be established in the Middle East if the United States is to resume F-16 deliveries.

Speaking to reporters at Fort Benning, Ga., where he was inducted into the Officers Candidate School Hall of Fame, Weinberger said certain conditions would have to be met but that he had "no particular triggering event" in mind.

"That's a State Department concern," he said. "It's an explosive area over there, a very explosive area."

The administration first suspended delivery of four F-16s because of Israel's bombing of an Iraqi nuclear reactor. Delivery of those and six additional jet fighters was delayed further after Israel attacked Palestinian strongholds in Beirut.

Unless the suspension is lifted by Aug. 10, another four F-16s would be held up as well.

"I always expected it," Evron said, referring to lifting of the suspension.

An official who asked not to be identified said the administration was encouraged that PLO leader Yasser Arafat had denounced a splinter group that declared it wouldn't be bound by the cease-fire. The official said this meant Arafat was taking it seriously.

In offering additional details about the accord, Fischer said attacks by or against the Israeli-backed Christian forces of Maj. Saad Hadad in Lebanon would be "a clear violation."

However, he said, Israeli reconnaissance flights over Lebanon are not covered.

He also said the agreement doesn't prevent the PLO from resupplying its forces in southern Lebanon.

But he added, "Clearly we're hopeful that everyone involved in this will show restraint and moderation."

TRUCK OVERTURNED — Eastern Pines firefighters and bystanders look on as Winterville Rescue Squad members give aid to John Henry Finnigan, 109 Cherrywood Dr., Greenville. The truck Finnigan was driving was struck from the rear by a car driven by Don Granville Wellons of Oakmont Square Apartments, when the Wellons vehicle attempted to pass on county road 1725, the County Home

Road, about 2.5 miles south of Greenville, according to investigating Highway Patrolman Kenneth Ross. Ross said the truck to run into the ditch on the side of the road and overturn following the collision. Finnigan was treated and released at the Pitt Memorial Hospital emergency room. Wellons was charged with improper passing. (Reflector Photo By Larry Zicherman)

A Review A Showcase By Summer Theater

Summer 1981, and once more the welcome news is that another mini-season of the East Carolina Summer Theater is underway.

At the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall last night, a responsive audience, including a contingent of 25 Marines from Camp Lejeune, chuckled — and often laughed heartily — at Neil Simon's fast paced wit-ticisms penned in his "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." This sophisticated comedy touching on segments of today's lifestyles, playing nightly through Saturday, August 1, is the first of two Summer Theater offerings. The second play, "The Gin Game," will be on stage at Fletcher August 3-8.

Simon is perhaps America's most prolific playwright on the scene today. He is a master of crisp, exact repartee that does indeed capture significant trends in society's fluctuating mores. At times, however, he is guilty of letting the brilliance of words become glossy gimmicks that border on overpowering his basic message.

Yet, his plays provide excellent showcases for talented performers. Under Edgar Loessin's tightly controlled, sparkling direction of this glittering dialogue play, each of the four performers, one man and three women, give superlative performances.

As Barney Cashman, the central, unifying character in the play, Arthur Hammer has his audience with him every minute as he brings to the fore the minor pathos of a man who in his late forties comes to the realization that "life has not only been good to me, it has gone out of it's way to ignore me." A cousin of James Thurber's bumbling good people, Cashman slowly reaches a decision to have an affair, for once to taste the excitement of forbidden fruit.

From early on, we feel certain his efforts are doomed for failure, but that only heightens our sympathy for the life role into which he is locked. The three women who briefly enter his life as subjects for his attempted breakaway from deadly decency are sharply drawn, believable individuals who for one or another reason are seeking their own thing in life.

Such a situation could be the framework for a dramatic, soul-searching probe into the human psyche. Not in the hands of Simon. There's a consistent undercurrent of human suffering, of individual intensity, but the focus in all three attempted seductions rest solidly on the comic aspects of the encounters.

Cashman's first encounter is Elaine Navasio, played by a beautiful, willowy actress, Catherina Rhea. Hers is the most difficult of the three women's role. Later in the play it becomes evident Simon has used this first character as a sounding board for the direction the play will take. The dialogue is excessively, unrealistically witty, with nothing left implied or half-said. Ms. Rhea compensates for this witty britteness by making the most of the action involved — her coughing spell followed by a plea for a cigarette, and the incredibility she registers on the subject of Cashman's habit of smelling of his fingers are examples.

The second attempt for an affair involves a wonderfully confused, flippant psychotic woman, Bobbie Michele. Sally Nell Clodfelter is a sizzling, grating creature in this non-stop energy and talkathon role. Long before the two-hour period Cashman allots for his attempted seductions has expired, this daffy creature has effectively bewildered, subdued and frightened the would be conquerer. Incredible is the only word to describe the string of real or fantasized adventures and misadventures she relates, including her involvement with "a registered weirdo."

Minnie Gordon Gaster is the actress portraying the third encounter, a quiet housewife, Jeanette Fisher. Tearful, tranquilizer hooked, a long-time friend of Cashman and his often referred to wife, Thelma, she is a pathetic creature who admits to the loss of all interest, all joy in life, even to the taste of food. Her one remaining joy is quoting exact percentages about everything from her own percentage of time she's been happy to the percentage of Americans who have been unfaithful. This scene is a wind-down from the previous, more-dazzling encounters, leading to the conclusion, sad or reassuring, depending on one's outlook, that for some people the effort to break the mold of respectability is doomed.

Gregory Buch's golden lit, Good Housekeeping set and David Downing's lighting are effective in their atmosphere of proper unobtrusiveness.

Lightning

SANTA CLARA PUEBLO, N.M. (AP) — A bolt of lightning blasted an Indian dance ceremony, killing two women and injuring six other people, police said.

A 3-year-old girl suffered an eye injury but she and the five others who were injured were treated and released from Espanola Hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

One woman, Martha Cody, 38, of Espanola, died at the scene Sunday and the other woman, Ramona Tsepe, 35, of Santa Clara Pueblo, died Monday at the Espanola Hospital.

The Santa Clara Pueblo Indians were holding their dance ceremony at the Puce Cliffs area, an archaeological site.

New York Has Highest Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — New Yorkers pay the highest rates for electricity among the nation's 25 largest cities, according to the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners.

The organization said Monday that electricity cost New Yorkers an average of 11.67 cents a kilowatt hour between last December and February, compared with 4.36 cents a kilowatt hour in St. Louis, the city with the lowest rates.

The second highest rate, 10.06 cents, was paid by residents of Honolulu. San Diego, Calif., was third at 9.89 cents, followed by Boston at 9.45 cents. Cities with rates between 6 cents and 9 cents were El Paso, Texas, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Phoenix, Ariz., Chicago and Baltimore.

Atlanta was second lowest at 4.70 cents, followed by Oklahoma City, 4.75; Cincinnati, 4.89; Indianapolis, 4.93; Milwaukee, 5.16; Houston, 5.20; Washington, D.C., 5.26; San Jose, Calif., 5.27; and Denver, 5.44.

Two Attended FBLA Event

VALLE CRUCIS — Two D.H. Conley Future Business Leaders of America attended a Leadership Development Institute at Camp Valle Crucis near Boone June 20-24.

Tim Faulkner and David Adams both attended the conference. Faulkner is state parliamentarian and president of the Conley FBLA. Adams is former state parliamentarian and will enter the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill this fall.

Leadership Development Institute is built on the Zig Zigler concept. It is led by Dr. Jim Koeninger, educator and professor at the University of Oklahoma at Stillwater.

LDI helps young people build their skills and accomplish their goals. FBLA and DECCA state officers use this opportunity to meet positive ideas, people and challenges.

Escalating Costs May Force Army Scale Down Expansion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Escalating costs may force the Army to scale down plans for expanding its arsenal with expensive modern equipment such as the M-1 tank, the Army's No. 1 general staff.

"There are programs that may have to be cut," Gen. Edward C. Meyer, Army chief of staff, said in a recent interview. "The question is whether the additional expense (for such equipment) is worth the additional capability."

"We'll end up where there will be a mix of more modern equipment and with equipment not quite so modern, not quite so capable," Meyer added.

He singled out the two most expensive new Army weapons — the $2.5 million M-1 tank and the $1.2 million infantry fighting vehicle, which the Pentagon described earlier this year as "the leading edge of the Army's program for modernizing its combat vehicle fleet."

"We'll have to ... determine if we want to go to 7,100 M-1s or whether there is another number that, in the total amount of resources that we have, makes more sense," Meyer said.

He also indicated that officials are reviewing a plan for the ultimate purchase of 6,800 infantry fighting vehicles.

Although he specified no other major programs, he made it clear that other costly new equipment is being reviewed. For example, it is understood that Army officials are wondering if saving a few minutes in transmitting messages is worth the cost of very advanced computer-assisted communications gear.

because he believes the Army "must take advantage of new ideas" to reshape it for the broader global scope of Reagan administration strategy. Previous strategies focused resources on meeting the Russians in Central Europe and defending South Korea.

The Army chief says significant numbers of 58-ton M-1 tanks could be replaced by 20-ton tanks built around an existing chassis. The Army is asking Pentagon leaders to speed design and development of such a tank, which could be airlifted more easily to spots such as the Persian Gulf.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market headed lower today as the rally of the past couple of sessions faded.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 17.31 points Friday and Monday, dropped 6.18 to 939.69 by noontime today.

Losers held a 74 lead over gainers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market got off to an upbeat start Monday on the strength of a decline in the money supply that prompted some new hopes for lower interest rates.

But analysts said many traders were leery of growing too optimistic about the chances for lower rates, recalling the many false starts in that direction over the past few years.

They also noted concern over signs of a slowing economy. The government's index of leading economic indicators, due out Wednesday, is expected to show a decline for the second month in a row.

After taking a 1.8 percent drop in May, the index fell by about 1.3 percent in June, according to the estimate of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc.

Conoco led the active list, up 2 at 90 1/2. On Monday Mobil raised its offer for Conoco stock as the three-way bidding war for the company continued.

NEW YORK (AP) — The NYSE's composite index lost 42 to 74.90. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 3.34 at 364.24.

Volume on the Big Board came to 16.65 million shares at noontime, against 18.18 million at the same point Monday.

HAITIAN CENTER CROWDED
MIAMI (AP) — The number of Haitian refugees crowded into a detention center here has swelled to more than 1,500 with the arrival of 451 new refugees in southern Florida over three days.

Immigration officials said five boatloads of Haitians fleeing their impoverished Caribbean homeland arrived in Florida from Saturday night to Monday morning. Their arrival swelled the number of Haitians at the Krome Avenue Detention Center to 1,530 — nearly double the emergency 869-person capacity.

Gov. Bob Graham has filed suit asking the federal government to move some of the refugees out of Florida.

Sheep Spooked, Fall Off Cliff

PRAIRIE, Idaho (AP) — As many as 400 sheep plunged to their deaths off a 60-foot cliff after being spooked by a black bear and her two cubs, health officials say.

Gary Richardson, a spokesman for the Department of Health and Welfare, said Monday the sheep apparently were sleeping when they were startled by the approaching bears. He said they followed one another over the edge of the cliff to flee the bears.

Richardson said health officials are advising people not to drink the water, but he said no other serious health threats to local residents exist.

Richardson said health officials in Boise and the U.S. Forest Service will test the creek water for the remainder of the summer. He said the two agencies will post the area to inform the public of the danger of drinking the water.

Neither health officials nor the sheep company planned to remove the carcasses from the creek.

States Bear Big Burden

ATLANTA (AP) — Two leaders of the National Conference of State Legislatures say the federal budget cuts would be easier to handle if states had more control over the money that is left.

The Reagan administration and Congress are shifting an impossible burden to the states by cutting dollars while telling the states how to spend the remaining funds, according to NCSL President Richard Hodes and Ross Doyen, president elect of the group.

The two are in Atlanta for the week-long NCSL convention.

"I'm willing to take my lumps, if they (Congress) are willing to let us write the programs," said Doyen, a Republican state senator from Kansas.

Hodes, a Florida legislator, said states were expecting the budget cuts to be accompanied by changes in funding, combining the more than 550 categorical grant programs into a handful of block grants controlled by the states. The grants have been combined, but Hodes said state discretion over use of the funds is being usurped by a Congress that is bending to special interest groups.

Offer By Sudan
ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat says Sudan is offering the United States military facilities to help protect the Persian Gulf oil route and check Soviet expansion into Africa.

In a nationally televised speech Monday night, Sadat said Sudanese President Gaafar Nimeiri authorized him to make the offer when he visits President Reagan in Washington next month.

"I have agreed with my brother, President Nimeiri, that we do not want any foreign soldiers to fight our battle, but we would give the United States military facilities so that the tragedy of Afghanistan would not be repeated," he said.

Sadat has agreed to provide facilities in Egypt for the U.S. rapid-deployment force, but he said that did not include U.S. bases or the permanent stationing of U.S. troops in Egypt.

General Tax Revenues For State Saw Gains

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — General tax collections for the 1980-81 fiscal year increased 7.8 percent over the previous year, state Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch reported today.

The increase is about two-tenths of a percentage point more than predicted by the state budget office last April.

"That gives us great faith in the estimates made each year by our budget office," Lynch said. "The figures are quite healthy in view of the economic problems that have existed in the past year."

The state budget office has predicted that general tax revenues will grow by about 12 percent this fiscal year. In light of combined May and June tax collection increases of 9.2 percent over the year before, Lynch said he believed the 12 percent figure is not too optimistic.

"It's generally been conceded we've had a recession," Lynch said. "The estimates are that we are pulling out of the recession." Lynch reported that highway fund collections rose although gasoline tax collections continued to drop during the fiscal year.

Net general tax collections for fiscal year 1980-81 totaled $2.85 billion compared with $2.64 billion the previous year, an increase of 7.8 percent. State budget officials had predicted a 7.6 percent rise in revenue for the 12 months.

Income tax makes up more than half of the general tax collections, Lynch said. He noted that individual income tax collections for the year were up 10.4 percent while corporate income tax collections dropped 3.7 percent.

"The recession had its effects on the profits of some corporations," Lynch said.

The next largest category of general revenue comes from sales and use taxes, which rose 6.5 percent for the year. Leading the increase were taxes paid by the apparel and food industries.

For the month of June, general tax revenues amounted to $204.1 million as compared with $195.2 million in June 1980, an increase of about 4.6 percent.

In May, general fund collections had grown 13.5 percent over the previous year.

Lynch said the June slowdown in growth was due to corporate income tax collections dropping 9.5 percent for the month.

Highway fund collections — which include money from fees for motor vehicle licenses, drivers' licenses and registration — totaled $420.3 million for the year as compared with $428.8 million the previous fiscal year. That represents an almost 2 percent drop in revenues.

Gasoline tax collections for the period were $283.2 million as compared with $295.5 million for fiscal year 1979-80, a decrease of 4.2 percent.

For the month of June, highway fund collections amounted to $34.3 million, an increase of 4 percent over the previous year, while gasoline tax collections amounted to $23.4 million, a 1.3 percent decrease over the same period last year.

The recent 3-cents-per-gallon increase in the state gasoline tax will not show up in the revenue figures until the next monthly report is released in August.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A Laotian refugee who told his wife the only option they had was to "hang themselves" was found hanging near his home — the same day federal officials decided to continue funding a special welfare program the family depended on.

A social worker said Shue Long Vue, 62, was despondent over a letter he received Saturday saying funding was being canceled for the Hmong Family Association. He was found hanging from a tree Monday.

"His wife said he told her the only way to survive would be to hang themselves," the worker said. "She thought he was joking."

Snow Hill Rallies, Cuts Down Raleigh In Eighth Inning, 6-5

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

SNOW HILL — Behind and the pressure on, Snow Hill responded with its Louisburg College connection. The first link of the connection, Jabo Fulghum, gave Post 94 the lead. The second link, Kevin Korpi, preserved it.

With two gone in the eighth and Snow Hill trailing by a run, Fulghum doubled home two runs to give Post 94 its first lead. Then, after a leadoff double in the ninth, Korpi came in to relieve to retire the final three batters — two on strike outs — as Snow Hill edged Raleigh, 6-5, Monday night in the third game of their American Legion Area I playoff finals.

Post 94, after losing the first game, now leads the best-of-seven series, 2-1. Game #4 is set for tonight (8 p.m.) in Snow Hill.

Until the eighth, the game looked to be Raleigh's to win. Shane Gahagan gave Post 1 a 4-0 lead in the first inning with a grand slam. But Snow Hill slowly chipped away at the lead, cutting the deficit to three (5-2) and then to one (5-4).

Snow Hill wasted a chance to take the lead in the sixth when, with runners at the corners, Fulghum hit the first pitch he saw back to Raleigh pitcher Doug Barefoot for the final out.

Two innings later, however, Post 94 did not fail. Bobby Avery, with a 3-2 count on him, was hit by a pitch and moved to second on Gary Ream's sacrifice bunt.

After Greg Hardison walked, David Shirley slapped the ball back to Barefoot, who was able to knock the ball down and get Shirley at first for the second out of the inning.

Enter Fulghum. With the count at 0-1, Fulghum rapped a line drive into the center-rightfield gap to score both Avery and Hardison and Snow Hill had its first lead of the night, 6-5.

"I was just trying to hit the ball hard," said Fulghum, who along with Korpi played for Louisburg this past season. "I hadn't hit the ball hard all night and I was wanted to hit it hard. "He started me off with a fastball the last three times. I was expecting a fastball again and I got on top of it. I figured the second ball would be a curve and it was."

Raleigh was not so lucky in the top of the ninth. After starter Gary Ream surrendered a leadoff double to Reggie Redd, Snow Hill coach James Fulghum called on Korpi. The left-hander responded.

He struck out the first batter he faced — Eddie Barnett — on three straight pitches. After getting Raleigh's #4 hitter — Moe Marshburn — to ground out to Hardison at short, Korpi whiffed pinch hitter Tony Taylor on three straight pitches to seal the victory.

"I just told him to try to place the ball," Fulghum said. "Those last two were right down the middle. He really brought 'em."

Asked afterwards if he was worried when Raleigh took a

4-0 lead in the first inning, Fulghum said, "I really wasn't worried about it. It seems like we play better when we're behind. It's been that way all year. We seemed to have played out best under pressure and behind in the playoffs."

Snow Hill wasted little time in putting pressure on itself. With one gone in the first, Redd sent a deep drive to right that David Kester dropped for a two-base error. Barnett was hit by a pitch and Marshburn singled to load the bases.

After Jerry Woodlief struck out, Gahagan connected on a 1-0 pitch and sent it over the leftfield fence for a grand slam. Like his son, Coach Fulghum wasn't exactly worried after the first inning. But neither was he all that pleased.

"I was thinking we've got a long way to go, but we can't give them many more runs," Fulghum said. "I think we got a little tense there for a two or three innings after that."

Wade Corbett's single in the second inning scored Korpi, who had reached on an error, but Raleigh got the run back in the top of the third when Woodlief doubled home Marshburn. It was the last run Post 1 would score.

Snow Hill edged to within three, at 5-2, with a run in the third. Hardison led off with a bunt single, went to second on Shirley's sacrifice and scored on Korpi's single to centerfield.

Post 94 closed to within one two innings later. With one gone in the fifth, Fulghum singled. After Korpi flew out, Frank Milkovits walked. Both he and Fulghum moved up a base on a passed ball and Fulghum then slid home on a wild pitch. Milkovits later scored on Kester's single to make it 5-4.

It stayed that way until the eighth when Fulghum's double capped Snow Hill's comeback.

"We kept getting men on base and not getting the hit when we needed to," coach Fulghum said. "I knew somebody had to get a hit. I knew they couldn't keep getting Hardison, Fulghum and Korpi out every time."

'Amateur' Oldfield Wins Shot; Virgin Captures 5,000-Meter Run

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Shot putter Brian Oldfield insisted he was where he belonged, competing among amateurs, as he won his specialty Monday at the National Sports Festival, an event he had to go to court to enter.

The irreverent 36-year-Oldfield, along with pole-vaulter Steve Smith — both former professionals — filed last week in New York Supreme Court for an injunction to allow them to compete in this showcase for American amateur athletics. That was after they were told by the U.S. Olympic Committee they were not welcome because only Olympic-eligible athletes may compete in the Festival.

A judge ruled in their favor and both competed here, with Smith finishing among the also-rans in the pole vault and Oldfield winning the shot with a toss of 68 feet, 5 inches.

"The prize money wasn't that much," said Oldfield, referring to the pay scale in the now-defunct International Track Association. "If you were fourth, you won $50, and if that's professional I don't understand it. People win more than that for finishing fourth in a bowling tournament where they work. "I am not a professional — not even a semi-professional amateur," he added. "I am an amateur."

The 6-foot-5, 275-pounder got off his winning throw on his second attempt, then fouled on his last four tries. He beat an outstanding field that included Southern Methodist sophomore Michael Carter, winner of the NCAA indoor and outdoor shot put titles each of the past two years, and 1979 and 1981 national champion Dave Laut. Carter was second at 67-2, while Laut finished third at 66-2 1/2.

"I imagine we (the USOC and him) will bounce off each other again when it comes to the selection of the Pan-American team (for the 1983 Games — at Caracas, Venezuela)," Oldfield noted.

The fourth of six days at this non-Olympic year forum for 33 winter and summer Olympic sports was a busy one, with a second track star, Craig Virgin, sharing the spotlight with Oldfield.

Buck Hits 3 Goals

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The women's South handball team dropped an 18-17 decision to the Midwest Monday and will now play the West for the bronze medal at the National Sports Festival.

The Midwest entered the game with 10 of its 12 players having had Olympic experience compared to only two for the South.

The South team includes two starters from East Carolina — Maureen Buck and Gail O'Brien. Buck scored three goals in the loss. Others on the South team from ECU who have seen action are Ginger Rothermel, Donna Eason and Jo Landa Clayton.

The South was to have met the West today at 2 p.m. Later in the day, the East and Midwest were to have played for the gold medal.

In men's action, the Midwest defeated the South, 22-21, on a goal with one second remaining. The South, which includes on its team ECU's Carl Karpinski, will meet the West for the bronze. The East and Midwest will play for the gold.

Virgin came from behind tough rival Alberto Salazar to win the featured 5,000-meter race. The American record-holder at 10,000 meters bolted past Salazar, the 1980 New York City marathon champion, just three laps from the end of the 13-lap race on the new track at Sunnycrest Park.

He crossed the finish line in 13:35.4, just 20 yards ahead of Salazar, who was clocked at 13:38.2.

Virgin, who recently fought off a virus that sapped his strength and threw off his training schedule, said, "I had just two weeks of training, not knowing what kind of shape I was in. I just hoped to hit the button and all the jets would fire. But I was really dying on the last lap."

Elsewhere, a bloop single to left by Dave Walker scored Ed Greene from third base in the 11th inning to give the East an upset 9-8 victory over the favored West and the gold medal in the round-robin baseball competition. Greene singled with one out in the top

Thomas Visits Landon Turner

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Hospital officials were limiting injured Indiana University basketball star Landon Turner to only two visitors at a time, and for most of the day All-American guard Isiah Thomas was one of them, said Turner's mother.

"Isiah flew here from the Virgin Islands when he heard about Landon, Rita Turner said Monday. "He's really upset about this accident and was just sitting in the room talking to Landon."

However, the 21-year-old Turner was unable to hear what Thomas, Indiana Coach Bobby Knight, former Gov. Otis Bowen or others said during their visits.

Turner, 21, was still unconscious and listed in serious condition with a fractured spine among the injuries received Saturday when he lost control of the car he was driving and struck a bridge abutment.

"He's still unconscious," Mrs. Turner said. "We're just praying. Once he becomes conscious, we'll have a better idea of how things will go."

Fred Price, a spokesman for Methodist Hospital, said Turner had been transferred Monday to the hospital's intensive care unit after experiencing some lung difficulties. He said Turner's legs and hands were paralyzed, but that no immediate surgery was planned.

Mrs. Turner said doctors have told her the period after her son regains consciousness will be a crucial time in his recovery.

Players: No More Concessions

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball's striking players, hungry for information, met Monday night with Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, and apparently had their doubts relieved.

To a man they insisted they have union solidarity and will make no further concessions, saying the free-agent compensation issue is now in the owners' hands.

The meeting originally was for player representatives from each team, but another 35 or so players showed up.

Bill Madlock of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who still is drawing his pay because of a personal service contract he signed when with the San Francisco Giants, said the recent news blackout on negotiations in Washington was part of the reason so many players appeared at Monday's meeting.

"We came here for information on the proposal the owners gave," said Madlock. "The representatives said no to the owners' proposals. The owners are on a timetable and until that timetable is over, we're on strike. We're behind Marvin Miller."

Bill Buckner of the Chicago Cubs, who had recently voiced bitterness over the strike, said, "Basically I feel better now, not about not playing baseball, but I don't feel as bad. We were uninformed."

"I realize now our negotiating committee had done everything possible to reach a settlement," said Buckner. "I'm behind the negotiating committee 100 percent. I was feeling uncomfortable about not playing. Now I can sit out the season. I still feel badly about not playing but I'm now informed of the negotiations."

Rick Reuschel, the pitcher the Cubs traded to the New York Yankees just before the strike was called June 12, said, "There's going to have to be some changes made in the owners' latest proposal. I feel a lot better now that I'm informed. No matter how good the media coverage is, it is not as good as attending a meeting. "Marvin only does what we tell him to do," said Reuschel. "The players are running things and that's the way it should be. Marvin could have accepted the owners' offer but instead he brought it to the players."

More regional meetings will be held for players in other areas of the country, with Miller attending.

Eric Soderholm of the New York Yankees said, "I learned a lot about a lot of things. Things have cleared up for me now. The unity was terrific. There are a few bad apples in every bunch, but the unity is strong for Marvin Miller."

Soderholm might have been referring to such players as Davey Lopes of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Champ Summers of the Detroit Tigers, both of whom have expressed dissatisfaction about the strike and a lack of information for the players. Neither attended the meeting.

Pitcher Jerry Reuss, player rep for the Dodgers, said he wasn't happy about Lopes' comments, but "the telephone is a remarkable instrument. You can call in or call out. He (Lopes) can always get hold of me by dialing 10 or 11 digits. I would think he would want to be here but I haven't seen him."

Pitcher Ed Farmer of the Chicago White Sox said, "It's up to the owners now if they want us to play. A lot of questions were answered at this meeting. Basically the fellows wanted to know what the issues are, why we are not playing, and if we will play again or go home and call it a season."

The Baltimore Orioles' Doug DeCinces, the American League chief player rep, was asked if there would be any more baseball this year.

"You have to ask the owners," said DeCinces. "I can't answer that. The control is in their hands. Are we going to give in? We have given, given, given. It's been a take-away issue from the start. You can only take away so much. If it takes more giving in to reach an end, I would say, no."

"The solidarity of the union as of now is utterly amazing," said DeCinces. He said the meeting lasted more than five hours because "they all wanted to know what was going on. We briefed them and then answered their questions."

The Oriole third baseman said the regional meetings scheduled elsewhere in the country should have no effect on any further negotiations. "If they want to negotiate while our meetings are going on, there's no reason negotiations cannot continue."

Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees summed up things. "I have complete confidence in the people leading us, but we're at an impasse. Hopefully something can be worked out. This meeting showed just how unified we are. Once in a while a player will complain about not being informed, but they're all informed now."

Asked if there will be baseball in 1982, Jackson replied, "That's a separate season. We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

of the 11th, stole second and third and came home on Walker's fly ball that fell near the line in left-field.

Walker, a recent high school graduate from Massapequa, N.Y., also slammed a two-run, 400-foot home run to spark a five-run rally in the fifth that brought the East back from a 7-3 deficit.

Figure skaters Scott Hamilton and Rosalynn Summers sliced to gold medals Monday night in their respective Festival finals. The 22-year-old Hamilton, the current men's world champion from Denver, and the 17-year-old Summers, the 1980 world junior women's champion from Edmonds, Wash., both dominated their event, winning every phase of the individual competition during the past week.

In gymnastics, Beth Pope, a 15-year-old from Little Rock, Ark., gained her second gold medal of the competition as she won the floor exercise Monday night. She also won the silver medal in the uneven bars and vault to go with the gold she won earlier in the all-around competition.

And Lydia Crabtree finally beat nemesis Sue Softe, winning the gold medal for all-around performance in the beautiful rhythmic gymnastics competition. Crabtree, 22, from Redondo Beach, Calif., has finished second to Softe in the national championships four times. But, Monday night, she put on outstanding performances in the ropes and clubs events to outdistance second-place Valerie Zimring of Cheviot Hills, Calif., and Softe, of Agoura, Calif., in third.

The Midwest beat New England 8-6 in the only ice hockey game on Monday's schedule. Those two will play again Wednesday for the bronze medal, with the Great Lakes and Central teams, both 2-2 in round-robin competition, meeting in a warmup today for their gold medal battle Wednesday night.

Basketball action resumes today for both men and women. The men's West team, 2-0, meets the East, 1-1, and the South 1-1, plays the Midwest, 0-2. In women's competition, where everyone is 1-1, the East plays the West and the South meets the Midwest.

Seventeen-year-old Steve Cruz of Fort Worth, Texas, challenges 21-year-old Richard Savage of Monroe, La., in the 119-pound boxing final, the headliner of 11 gold medal bouts today. The two young fighters have split two previous meetings.

Heavyweight action pits Mark Mahone of Norfolk, Va., a U.S. Navy fighter, against Johnny Keys of San Francisco. The loser gets the bronze medal for third place because Tyrone Biggs of Philadelphia already has the silver medal. He qualified for the final but broke his right hand in the semifinal bout.

In other track and field action on the final day of that competition, Cindy Bremser, formerly of the University of Wisconsin, nipped Jan Merrill at the tape to win the 1,500 in 4:15.62.

Pair Take Putt Event

Rodney Hooks and Jimmy Powers broke out of a two-way tie for first place after 18 holes to win the Monday Nite Bestball Tourney with an 81 at the Greenville Putt-Putt Golf Course last night.

Hooks and Powers carded rounds of 27, 28 and 26 for an 81 to win by two strokes over Eddie Robinson and Steve Strickland, who finished with an 83.

Robinson and Strickland kept the pressure on Hooks and Powers throughout the match with rounds of 27, 29 and 27.

Third place went to Johnny Carrow and David Beacham with an 85, while Jeff Taft and Mike Brown came in fourth with an 86.

Tarboro pushed over 10 third inning runs and went on to claim a 12-2 victory over Northampton County in the first round of the Area II Little League playoffs here yesterday.
In today's games, Greenville's Tar Heel and North State teams meet at 3 p.m., while Tarboro takes on Roanoke Rapids at 5 p.m. The two winners clash for the area title on Wednesday at 5 p.m.
Tarboro took the lead for good in the second inning after each team had scored single runs in the first inning. Charles Johnson led off the second with a single, moving around on a hit by Steve Johnson.
The ten-run third was highlighted by a two-run homer by George Barnes, a two-run double by Exum Harrell and a one-run triple by Carlton Bishop.
The other Northampton run came in the fourth.
Harrell, Larry Gulley, Bishop and Jamie Southerland led the Tarboro hitting with two each, while Timothy Bowser had two for Northampton.

AYDEN — Ty Little's double in the bottom of the sixth lead Ayden to a 6-5 victory over Farmville Monday night in the opening round of the 9-12-year-old Babe Ruth tournament.

Little's double erased a 5-4 Farmville lead and sent Ayden into the second round tonight (9 p.m.) against Winterville, a 5-4 victor over Greene County last night. Farmville will face Greene County at 7 p.m.
Bernard Taylor, who got the loss on the mound, had a two-run home run for Farmville.
Bobby Bowen allowed just three hits in taking the win.

S. Granville..... 3
Havelock ..... 0
South Granville gained the losers' bracket finals of the state Babe Ruth 13-15 Tournament in Greenville last night with a 3-0 win over Havelock. The loss eliminated Havelock.
South Granville pitcher Donald Fowler allowed only two hits in the shutout victory, both by Danny Clark. South Granville got only two hits off Richard Carter, but took advantage of other mistakes to score.

The winning run crossed in the fifth. Fowler walked, moved to third on an error, and scored on Jeff Johnson's sacrifice fly. The other two runs came in the sixth.
The win sent South Granville against Wayne County in the losers' bracket finals.

Wayne County ..... 4
S. Granville..... 3
Wayne County knocked off South Granville, 4-3, in the losers' bracket finals of the Babe Ruth 13-15 State Tournament last night, and will meet Wilmington tonight for the championship and the right to move to the regionals.
Wayne grabbed the lead with two runs in the first, only to see South Granville come back with three in the top of the second. Wayne then tied it up with one in the bottom of the inning.

Then, in the fourth, Wayne pushed over the winning run. Tim Wiley singled, moved to third on a pair of passed balls, and scored on a balk.
Wayne and Wilmington meet at Guy Smith Stadium at 5 p.m. for the championship of the double elimination tournament. A single win by Wilmington is all that team needs to win, while Wayne must win twice. If a second game is necessary, it will be played immediately following the first.

ACC Coaches See No 'Perfect' Champ

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — It happened last year but most of the Atlantic Coast Conference football coaches agree that it's not likely to happen again.

The unlikely occurrence was North Carolina winning the 1980 ACC title with an unblemished 6-0 record.

Most of the ACC coaches, including UNC coach Dick Crum, agree the Tar Heels had a fine team but it took some luck to survive a couple of close calls.

Earlier this month the coaches picked the Tar Heels to repeat as champions. But Monday at a preseason gathering of the coaches in Southern Pines, they were not quite so sure, including Crum. However, they were fairly certain that the 1981 winner would not go undefeated.

"The strength of the ACC is that it is so competitive," said Crum, whose team went 11-1 last year, won the Bluebonnet Bowl and was ranked ninth in the nation. "We were fortunate last year. But one thing, we did not have a great deal of injuries. Whoever wins this year probably won't have many injuries."

As far as how he will fare this season, Crum said there is one big area of concern — defense. The Tar Heels lost two key people — guard Donnell Thompson and linebacker Lawrence Taylor. Both were first-round picks in the NFL draft.

"You just can't replace that kind of experience," Crum said, adding that the secondary was also weakened by the loss of Steve Streater, who also handled the punting chores.

On offense the Tar Heels are better off with 1,000-yard tailback Kelvin Bryant returning along with an experience quarterback in Rod Elkins.

But again there are question marks with the loss of more NFL picks off the offensive line — center Rick Donnalley and guard Ron Wooten. Crum hopes last year's backups will take over without any trouble and he plans to open up the offense with more passing.

The team expected to push North Carolina the hardest is Clemson. The Tigers were off their game last season and closed with a 6-5 record. But with the return of all 11 offensive starters, coach Danny Ford expects better things ahead in 1981.

"We had some problems and ended up with an average year," Ford said. "And we lost some of our respectability on defense. The year we're going to work on getting some of that respectability back. On offense we've got to be able to get the ball in the end zone more effectively."

"But this is the first year in a while that we won't have to depend on a freshman coming in, expected to be a football player."

Maryland is expected to be a frontrunner this year after running into injury problems last season. Coach Jerry Claiborne said, "It's going to be another one of those years. We'll be competitive. Of course, we go into every season thinking we can win every game on the schedule."

The Terp offense will center around tailback Charlie Wysocki, who has gained more than 1,000 yards in each of the last two years. But the kicking game was hurt with the loss of placekicker Dale Castro, and the depth on the offensive line is questionable. Plus the Terps do not have a solid choice of a starting quarterback.

On defense, Claiborne is comfortable with the line but the secondary is young and that bothers him.

North Carolina State coach Monte Kiffin was his usual flamboyant self, cracking jokes and teasing the other teams. But he got serious enough to say he thought his 1981 squad would be "good, but there are too many unanswered questions to say they are great." The Wolfpack finished 6-5 in 1980.

One of those unanswered questions is his switch from the veer to the I-formation on offense. Junior quarterback Tol Avery is handling the switch well. Kiffin said, but says he hasn't settled on one running back to lead the offense — a necessary factor for a very good team. Kiffin noted. He is content with his defense, led by linebacker Robert Abraham.

Duke coach Red Wilson was his typically optimistic self. But he has good reason this year with 48 lettermen returning and 18 starters. He noted the Blue Devils were exciting last season despite their 2-9 record. The main reason for that was ACC Rookie-of-the-Year Ben Bennett. After finally taking over the quarterback job full time last year, Bennett passed for more than 2,000 yards.

"We know we can throw the football now," Wilson said. "Now we can concentrate on the running game."

At Wake Forest, Al Groh is making his debut as head coach. He plans to stick to the passing game he inherited from former coach John Mackovic.

He said his biggest chore will be finding a replacement for quarterback Jay Venuto, the player of the year in the ACC in 1979. And he must deal with an inexperienced defense.

Virginia finished 5-6 last year and tied the Deacons at 2-4 in the conference. Cavalier coach Dick Bestwick has a lot of concerns about his offense but, "I'm excited about the defense. It's an aggressive, attacking defense."

Georgia Tech finished 1-9-1 last season and is still not eligible for the ACC title because of scheduling. And scheduling is one of its big problems with seven bowl teams on its schedule, including Alabama, Notre Dame and Georgia.

"We're still a struggling program with a ways to go," second-year coach Bill Curry said.

No New Talks At Least Until Weekend

CHICAGO (AP) — Striking major league players and club owners will be meeting on opposite coasts Wednesday as the walkout that has canceled more than 25 percent of the 1981 baseball season continues through its seventh week.

Armed with a vote of confidence from the player representatives, Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, will hold the first in a series of regional meetings in Los Angeles. Miller said no further meetings had been scheduled.

At the same time, the 26 club owners will gather in New York for an update from the Player Relations Committee and their chief negotiator, Ray Grebey.

That means there can be no negotiations to end the strike probably before the weekend.

Miller spent more than five hours Monday night briefing the executive board of the union on the negotiations, which broke down last Thursday in Washington. The two sides had bargained for four days with a news blackout and Miller said he thought the players needed an update on the status of their strike.

Some 25-30 players who are not executive board members showed up for Monday night's meeting.

"Half of them didn't have the facts," Miller said. "There was an information gap not of our doing. A news blackout is a catastrophe for an organization like ours. There was a terrible information gap for four days (in Washington). Those were important days."

Miller said that although the players have never felt they were close to a settlement, that there had been some progress made for the first time about midway through the bargaining in Washington last week.

"But there is still an awful gap between us."

The basic issue remains the source of compensation for teams losing free agent players in baseball's annual re-entry draft. Miller said that the players' last proposal, made a week ago today, offered more compensation in the form of a professional player than the clubs had asked for.

"The clubs' position throughout has been the necessity of filling the hole left by a free agent signing with another team," said Miller. "We have known for a long time that's not the problem. We proved it last week. Our offer said that after you protect 24, the club losing the free agent could pick the No. 25 player from the roster of any of eight teams."

But the union chief said management's counterproposal was that non-signing clubs could protect 28 players, less compensation than the union was offering, while signing clubs could protect only 24.

"That's to make sure that the compensation is taken from the signing club," Miller said. "If a club lost a player through compensation, it would receive $150,000 under management's plan unless the signing club was involved. In that case, no payment would follow.

"That's another example of punishing a team for signing a free agent," Miller said. At Monday night's meeting, each player representative as well as the other players attending, were invited to discuss the issues and give their opinions on the strike situation. Many of them said they felt uninformed because of the news blackout.

"They brought us up to date," said Bob Molinaro of the Chicago White Sox. "There's complete unity and everybody's behind Marvin."

Bill Madlock of the Pittsburgh Pirates said the blackout was the reason the players had come to Chicago.

"We came for information. I believe the owners are on a timetable and until that timetable is over, there is a strike," said Madlock.

Bill Buckner of the Chicago Cubs said, "Basically, I feel better, not about not playing baseball, but I don't feel as bad now as I did before. We were uninformed. I realize now we've done everything possible to get a settlement. I'm behind our negotiators 100 percent. I was feeling uncomfortable sitting out and not playing but I can sit out the season now."

Rick Reuschel, traded to the New York Yankees on June 11, the day before the strike occurred, said, "I feel a lot better. I'm informed now. Marvin only does what we tell him to do. The players are running things and that's the way it should be. He could've told Grebey, 'OK,' but he brought it to the players."

Doug DeCinces of the Baltimore Orioles, American League player no. 10, said any settlement rested in the hands of the owners.

"We have given, given, given," he said. "If it takes more giving to reach an end, no, I don't think we will."

DeCinces was impressed by the support expressed for the players' bargaining team.

"It was utterly amazing the union solidarity there is," he said. "Miller said that dissenting players, such as Davey Lopes of the Dodgers and Tigers' Steve Kemp, Dan Schatzeder and Champ Summers, who had expressed displeasure with the progress of negotiations had been invited to the meeting."

"Each of them said they had been quoted out of context," Miller noted.

Asked if he thought an extended strike might cause fans to lose interest in baseball, Miller said:

"If that's a byproduct, it could be a most unfortunate byproduct. I think the fans are important but they're different than any consumers inconvenienced and annoyed by a strike. A steel strike inconveniences and annoys consumers, a sanitation strike inconveniences and annoys consumers. And a baseball strike does the same."

Clerc Ends Vilas' Streak

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a match that may have signaled the changing of the guard in Argentine tennis, 22-year-old Jose-Luis Clerc stopped Guillermo Vilas 7-5, 6-2 Monday in the $200,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championships.

For Vilas, eight years Clerc's senior, the loss meant the end of a 23-match Washington Star winning streak and the hopes of an unprecedented fourth Washington title.

"He is a great player. He has a great future," Vilas said of the man who has edged ahead of him in the world rankings.

Two years ago Clerc was the 16th ranked player on the tennis tour. A steady climb, including seven championships, has seen him rise to No. 5.

Vilas is currently ranked No. 7 in the world, his lowest rating in eight years.

"I am a professional tennis player. I work very hard to stay in the top ten," Vilas said.

Clerc, a winner over Vilas for just the second time in nine meetings commented on their rivalry and for the affections of their countrymen. "Vilas is a great star in Argentina. But for me I don't know who is No. 1."

Clerc, who won the U.S. Pro Championships in Boston last week, used a series of overhead smashes and lobs to win the match.

"When I stepped onto the court I feel good because my concentration is good," Clerc said.

Clerc served well through the match, making good on 67 percent of his first serves including six aces.

"It is important to serve well because Vilas has such good passing shots," Clerc noted.

Donna Trollinger of Graham leads the 10-player West squad, with four all-stars in tow. Trollinger, 5-foot-7, was selected girls player of the year by both The Associated Press and the Greensboro Daily News after averaging 22.8 points and 9.3 rebounds per contest and leading the Red Devils into the state 3-A playoffs for the third straight year.

Three other players with big reputations for the West squad are Angie Buford, a 5-foot-7 guard from West Mecklenburg, Ranty Killian, a 5-10 forward from East Lincoln and Karen Parker, a 5-foot-11 forward from Asheville.

Buford averaged 28.2 points and 12 rebounds at West Mecklenburg, while Killian poured in 25 points with nine rebounds per game. Parker averaged 19.2 points and 10 rebounds per contest.

Besides Jenkins and Hammond, the East is not without prospective recruit or his parents.

Some athletic directors believe they should not be held responsible for the actions of their boosters.

"One of the scary things about rules violations is people you have no control over could be doing something they might not even realize is illegal," said University of North Carolina Athletic Director John Swofford. "But in the NCAA's eyes, if they are a contributor to your athletic program, they are an official representative of your institution."

Charles Bryant, director of North Carolina State University's Wolfpack Club, said it is impossible to keep track of that club's 10,000 members.

"I'm not saying we don't have people in our Wolfpack Club that might not have done something illegal," Bryant said. "If so I don't know about it, and we don't want them. But with 10,000 people, how can we know?"

Berst doesn't agree. He said universities "must consider boosters and booster clubs the same as athletic teams and coaching staffs."

Currently, 11 schools have been placed on probation by the NCAA for booster-related violations. The ACC has not had a team placed on probation since Clemson was punished in 1975. But, the NCAA is looking at Clemson again, this time over allegations that two football recruits were offered payments by head football coach Danny Ford and some members of Clemson's IPTAY Club.

Newspaper To Court In Frost Sees Escapism Element

Muppet Dispute Case

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — With competition for newspaper readers raging fiercely, the funny pages are no laughing matter. Even a sexy pig can be serious business.

The Bulletin, a Philadelphia daily, went to federal court Monday over a new comic strip featuring Miss Piggy, Kermit the Frog and the rest of the "Muppets."

The paper won a temporary restraining order barring King Features Syndicate from awarding a contract on the new strip to the rival Philadelphia Inquirer. U.S. District Judge Charles R. Weiner scheduled a hearing for Thursday.

The Inquirer, which has a daily circulation of 418,000, according to the 1980 edition of Editor & Publisher Year Book, an industry guide, was not named as a defendant.

The Bulletin, which has a daily circulation of 462,000, according to E&P, charged it had been denied a chance to bid for the strip, which debuts Sept. 21. It said not getting a chance to bid for the strip caused it to face "a serious potential loss in prestige as well as circulation and advertising revenues."

The paper said it had been notified by King Features June 22 the new strip would be offered to the highest bidder in the city, with a minimum daily price of $100 and $130 for the Sunday edition.

Besides the Bulletin and the Inquirer, there are two daily tabloids in the city — the Philadelphia Journal, a morning paper with a circulation of 97,000, and the Philadelphia Daily News, an evening paper with a 226,000 circulation.

Bulletin Publisher N.S. Hayden said he called Richard Fales, national sales director for King Features, and asked that his newspaper have a chance to negotiate with the syndicate for rights to the comic strip rather than submit a bid, the suit said.

Fales promised to contact Hayden before the bidding deadline, but never did, the suit said.

When the Bulletin contacted King Features July 3, the bidding deadline, the office was closed for the holiday weekend and The Bulletin was unable to make an offer, the suit said. The following Monday, the newspaper was told a competitor, the Inquirer, had been awarded the contract.

The Bulletin asked in the suit for a chance to bid or negotiate for the comic strip and for an unspecified amount of damages.

"We have for many years had the best comics in town," said Hayden. "The Muppets' are very important to us."

Robert Greenberg, the Inquirer's assistant managing editor for features, said comics rank high in readership surveys.

"Comic strips are a great entree to readers," Greenberg said. "Some appeal to younger readers. Some, like 'Doonesbury,' appeal to sophisticated readers, and some appeal to mass audiences. It is a serious business."

The Bulletin lost a comics battle in 1977, when it filed suit against Universal Press Syndicate Inc. to prevent cancellation of "Doonesbury" and five other features that appeared in its Sunday editions.

U.S. District Court Judge Alfred L. Luongo decided the Bulletin had failed to establish that its contractual rights had been violated by the syndicate's decision to sell the comics to the Inquirer on better terms.

During hearings on its request to stop the cancellation, the Bulletin contended it had an oral agreement to use the features through December, 1978. Luongo said, however, that testimony showed that The Bulletin had "never accepted" the syndicate's offer of a two-year contract.

A funny pages controversy also erupted in the nation's capital two years ago between The Washington Post and The Washington Star over the "Doonesbury" comic strip.

After several years of carrying the strip, the Post had little choice but to drop it on June 24, 1979, after the Star's Washington Star Syndicate merged with the Universal Press Syndicate, which distributed "Doonesbury." The Star picked up the strip.

There was no indication whether the Post would again have "Doonesbury" back if the Star shuts down in about a week. The Star's owners have said financial problems would force them to stop publishing if a buyer cannot be found.

Frost, a Briton, has some experience spoofing royal coverage as the stuffy, old British commentator from the "That Was The Week That Was" satire in the 1960s.

"It was called 'The sinking of the royal barge,' and I adopted typically sonorous tones for the piece," he said. "In a serious, reportorial manner I explained how the barge was sinking while the queen's hat stood regally in place and the queen, with a big smile, was radiantly swimming for her royal life."

Frost said he will be watching for the kind of human elements that bring "light and shade" to an event of this magnitude. He recalls the big to-do made over Queen Salote of Tonga during the coronation of Queen Elizabeth in 1952.

"Queen Salote became a heroine. When it began raining, all the other monarchs put the tops of their carriages up. But she didn't. The British loved that. She was a real star."

"I also remember her being a great tall lady, she must have been seven feet tall. Her tiny prime minister was sitting next to her and when somebody asked who he was, Noel Coward said: 'Her lunch.'"

Frost notes the irony of the wedding occurring while England is being ravaged by uncharacteristic violence. "I think the British public will be doubly grateful. Originally this was supposed to be only an occasion for joy; now it will be an occasion for escapism."

Frost is currently working on a book about the world's worst decisions, "I Could Have Kicked Myself." Some of the unfortunate characters chronicled will be the unlucky fellow who sold Elvis Presley's record contract to another company for $250 and the astute executive who turned down the Beatles with the words: "Groups with guitars have no future."

Frost, a TV star on both continents, says he has the same broadcasting style for the two audiences. He used to have a syndicated talk show in the United States, arriving nattily attired and well-prepared, always with a clipboard in hand. He's also remembered for conducting the first TV interviews with former President Nixon after his resignation.

Rather also has a connection to Nixon, having covered the White House for CBS in those years.

"It should be great fun. I relish working with Dan," said Frost. "It's the first sort of royal assignment for both of us, although you can't discount the imperial presidency of the Nixon era."

 Today's Cryptoquip clue: P equals H

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The bidding:
 South West North East
 1 NT Pass 2 NT Pass
 2 NT Pass Pass Pass
 (Opening lead: King of ♣)

Having command of the technical play is all very well. The secret of winning bridge is knowing when to apply what you have learned.

Three no trump was, in every respect, an excellent contract. South was maximum for his opening bid so he had no qualms about accepting his partner's invitational raise. It was a pity that he went astray in the play.

West led the king of hearts and East followed with the deuce. Considering the heart suit in isolation, South made the correct technical play by holding up the ace. This tactic is known in the trade as the "Bath Coup." Had West continued with a heart, declarer would have made two heart tricks.

On a different layout that might have been the winning play, but here the cure was worse than the disease. West noted that his partner had played a discouraging deuce on the king, so he shifted to the ten of diamonds. East overtook with the jack, and declarer began to realize the predicament he had placed himself in.

If East had the king of clubs, the contract was safe. However, if West held the king of clubs and declarer now won the ace of diamonds, West would return a diamond when he won the king of clubs and the contract was sure to be defeated. So declarer was forced to hold up the ace of diamonds.

The defense was relentless. East reverted to hearts. West captured the jack with the queen and cleared the suit. When he won the king of clubs, he had two good hearts to cash for a two-trick set.

See how easy the hand would have been had declarer simply won the ace of hearts at trick one. He crosses to dummy with the jack of spades and runs the queen of clubs. If the finesse succeeds, declarer has at least nine tricks — for spades, three clubs and the two red aces, and more if the clubs break. But even if the club finesse loses, West can do declarer no harm and the contract is secure — with an overtrick.

Prey On Predators

The Navajos called them God's Dogs. But many ranchers claim coyotes threaten their livelihoods. Today the Environmental Protection Agency is holding hearings about whether to lift the ban on Compound 1080, a poison used to kill coyotes. Sheep ranchers say the ban has caused them to lose about six percent of their herds annually. Advocates of the ban say coyotes, which mostly eat small rodents, are vital to the ecosystem. When coyote populations are poisoned, their prey multiplies uncontrollably. Then there is an increased danger of rodents transmitting diseases such as bubonic plague to humans. Compound 1080 also kills other wildlife, including endangered eagles, which eat dead coyotes.

Letters Pour In For B.K. Katt

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Bartleby K. Katt gets all kinds of mail from people who don't know that Katt is just a cat — a fluffy-tailed, 2-year-old gray-and-white female feline.

The K stands for Kitty, says the owner, Mike Moskowitz of Springfield. But Moskowitz made the mistake last year of ordering a water-and-food dish for Bartleby under the cat's name — a name that apparently made it onto many a mailing list.

some days she gets more mail than I do."

Moskovitz, 34, broadcast and promotions manager at the University of Oregon News Bureau, says he hasn't figured out what he'll do if, say, Bartleby wins a $50,000 prize. Or if the Internal Revenue Service starts sending tax forms. But he's having fun with the salespeople.

A woman conducting a telephone survey asked if she could speak to Bartleby Katt, Moskowitz said. "I told her she can't come to the phone because she's across the road chasing field mice," he said.

Moskovitz said the woman responded, "And is this the man of the house?"

A magazine saleswoman was told Mrs. Katt was sleeping on top of the television set and couldn't be disturbed.

Moskovitz told his U.S. Postal Service letter carrier to hold his mail while he went on vacation. The postman asked whether he should also hold the mail for this other fellow, Katt.

"When I explained Bartleby was my cat, he laughed," Moskowitz recalled. "Then he said, 'Well, is Bartleby going with you, or should I continue delivering her mail?'"

Paroled Convict Wins Appeal, Loses Again

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer
TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — In 1977, Willie Reddick was convicted of robbing a convenience store at gunpoint. Sentenced to 10 years in prison, he had served almost four when he was paroled.

Determined to clear his name, he finally won his appeal for a new trial — and was promptly convicted a second time and sent back to prison, given another 10-year sentence for the same crime.

Is this double jeopardy — prosecution of a person twice for the same crime? Reddick and his lawyer say so.

Prosecutors, other attorneys and officials of the state Parole and Probation Commission call the case "rare" and "unusual," but not unprecedented, and strictly within the law.

Reddick, now 27, filed an appeal shortly after his 1977 conviction for the robbery of the Titusville shop. The store cashier and a customer had identified him as one of two gunmen who held them up and stole $230 from the till.

The 4th District Court of Appeal in West Palm Beach rejected Reddick's argument that Circuit Judge Volie Williams had erred while instructing the jury. The

Surgical Facility

William S. Bost, M.D., general partner, Surgical Properties, Ltd., filed notice July 21 of intent to incur a capital expenditure for the purpose of constructing an ambulatory surgical facility in Pitt County.

The project is scheduled for completion next July at an estimated cost of $1,849,810.

Bost, as president of Eastern Carolina Surgical Center, also filed notice July 21 of intent to incur a capital expenditure for the purpose of leasing the proposed ambulatory surgical facility. The project is scheduled for completion in August, 1982.

The project proposals have been submitted to the Certificate of Need Section, Division of Facility Services, N.C. Department of Human Resources, for review by planning agencies. These agencies will seek to determine whether the projects are needed, if they can be adequately staffed and operated, whether they are economically feasible within prevailing rate structures, and if they propose specific cost-containment features. Copies of the proposals have been referred to the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency for review as required by federal and state law.
