

Agency Votes Buy Into 9 CP&L Plants

By SUE FERNALD
Reflector Staff Writer

WILSON — The board of directors of North Carolina Municipal Power Agency Number 3 (NCMPA 3) representing 36 Eastern North Carolina cities accepted engineering and feasibility proposals yesterday which would give the power agency part ownership in nine power generating units owned by Carolina Power and Light Co.

Following the board's action, NCMPA 3 chairman and mayor of Kinston, Simon C. Sitterton Jr. and president and chairman of the board of CP&L Sherwood H. Smith Jr. opened an evening meeting to explain the proposed joint ownership arrangement to officials from the municipalities involved.

Before the proposal is fully accepted all municipalities in the power agency must vote before October 21, 1981 to join with CP&L. According to Malcom Green, acting director of Greenville Utilities, "Only if 65 percent of the citizens share join will CPL act on it."

The proposal is expected to save the 36 city membership of NCMPA 3 $2.4 billion by the year 2003 in electricity costs, which Green said results in a "16 to 17 percent reduction" in the cost of purchased power.

Projected savings for Greenville Utilities customers by 2003 are estimated at $517.66 million. "Our goal is to become competitive with CP&L's rates," he said. So in effect, Greenville residents will be charged lower rates if the Utilities Board of Commissioners and Greenville City Council vote to participate in the project.

Electric Revenue Bonds, sold by the power agency, will be issued to finance the agreement. "We will be partners of CP&L," Green said. The agency will own 16 to 18 percent of nine generating plants. CP&L employees will continue to run the plant and transmit power to participating members.

If all members participate, NCMPA 3 would purchase from CP&L an 18.7 percent interest in the two generating plants at the Brunswick Nuclear Plant near Southport; 13.2 percent interest in Unit No. 4 at the coal-fired Roxboro Plant, 16.5 percent interest in the two units at the coal-fired Mayo Plant now under construction near Roxboro, and 16.5 percent interest in four units at the Harris Nuclear Plant south of Raleigh also under construction.

The agency will pay about $800 million to CP&L to complete closing of the purchase. That figure includes fuel costs and initial capital additions made to the existing power units.

Of the 36 municipalities in NCMPA 3, 14 are currently receiving power from VEPCO. This contract will be terminated and VEPCO will receive $16.5 million as compensation.

However, Green pointed out that cities now buying from VEPCO will be paying a slightly higher rate than the 22 cities currently buying from CP&L, because VEPCO transmission lines will be used to supply power to those cities.

Green said that the power agency will be responsible for repairs. If a plant runs into problems NCMPA 3 will be expected to pay it's percentage.

The target date for the initial closing of purchases has been set for December 1981. The first closing must come before March 31, 1982 under the agreement with CP&L. A series of closings spread over a period of 12 months will complete the purchase. Present plans call for three bond issues with each providing approximately a third of the $1.2 billion requested.

Area NCMPA municipalities include Ayden, Farmville, Hookerton, Greenville, Hobgood, Robersonville, and Winterville.

In the past, Winterville has bought power from Greenville, Green said. Now, they have the choice of whether they want to be a separate participant in NCMPA 3.

Poland's Workers Threaten Strike

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — About 300 workers demonstrated outside the Polish Parliament today and sent a delegation inside with a resolution threatening a warning strike next week unless full meat rations are restored. The rally, under a banner reading "We Want To Eat," came a day after a mass protest in the second biggest city of Lodz. State Planning Chief Zbigniew Madej told the delegation in parliament, "We are all painfully moved by the incidents of the past days, protest actions caused by shortages in supplies.

"These issues have worried the government for the past few months. Pressure on the government, organizing new protest actions cutting into everyday life, however, are not the way out of the crisis."

Poland's year-long labor upheaval, which led to the creation of Solidarity, the first union independent of Communist Party control in the Soviet bloc, has raised fears of Soviet intervention in this key Warsaw Pact ally.

The Soviets added the aircraft carrier Kiev to an armada massing in the Baltic Sea today. Intelligence sources in Western Europe speculated an amphibious landing exercise was in the works that could include the largest marine landing ship in the Soviet fleet, the Ivan Rogov.

The Baltic port of Gdansk was the headquarters of the strike wave last summer that launched Solidarity, the union that is spearheading the current protests over food shortages.

On Thursday, thousands of women and children took to the streets of the textile center of Lodz to protest the shortages.

PLO Pound A Village In Lebanon

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas shelled a Christian village in southern Lebanon, and the leader of the Israeli-backed Christian militia says he will seek Israel's permission to return the fire, Israel Radio said.

Militiamen did not respond to the brief guerrilla barrage Thursday night on the village of Deir Aames, eight miles north of the Israeli border, the state radio said. There were no reports of casualties.

There were no immediate claims of responsibility for the attack.

Maj. Saad Haddad, whose Christian forces control the small "Free Lebanon" enclave along the southern Lebanese border with Israel, told Israeli reporters he will ask Israel for approval to fire back at the guerrillas, despite a cease-fire in the area.

There have been several other guerrilla shelling incidents reported during the week-old Israeli-Lebanese cease-fire, but the Israelis and their Lebanese allies say they have not returned fire.

Syria and the Palestinian Liberation Organization, however, contend that Israel has broken the truce by flying reconnaissance flights over Lebanon. Israel says the flights are needed to monitor guerrilla forces.

"Vowing it would continue 'defending Lebanon's safety and security against Israeli aggression,' Syria said Thursday that Israel would 'pay dearly' if it continued the overflights. The threat follows a dogfight over Lebanon Wednesday in which Israel said it downed a Syrian jet.

Israel, meanwhile, said it was considering retaliation for the Palestinian attack on an Israel bus Wednesday night, which seriously wounded a 23-year-old woman and killed her unborn baby in its seventh month.

Soviet Builds Baltic Armada

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — The aircraft carrier Kiev, one of the Kremlin's largest warships, today steamed toward a rendezvous with a Soviet armada massing in the Baltic Sea, Danish military intelligence said.

One NATO officer said the buildup "certainly was a signal" to Poland, whose communist government has been sharply condemned by Kremlin for failing to crack down on reformers.

There was speculation the Soviets were planning some kind of amphibious landing exercise that would include the largest marine landing ship in the Soviet navy, the 13,000-ton Ivan Rogov.

The Ivan Rogov, which carries a crew of 400 and can accommodate 700 marines, is steaming through the English Channel on its way north.

The buildup apparently has led to the loss of one U.S. Air Force plane, an F-4 Phantom fighter-bomber that crashed near the Polish coast on July 21. Sources said it was photographing a Soviet ship when its engines flamed out. The two crewmen survived and were plucked from the Baltic by the crew of a Danish military helicopter.

"Whatever is planned, it won't be this Saturday or Sunday," said Lt. Col. Preben Broberg, spokesman for the Danish Defense Intelligence Service.

Tax Cut Impact On Typical Taxpayer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, for some typical taxpayers, is the tax cut which would result from enactment of major features of the legislation backed by President Reagan and awaiting final congressional action.

With approval by the House and endorsement by the Senate Wednesday, there is no difference between the two bills on basic individual tax cuts, although it will be up to a Senate-House conference to work out a congressional compromise version of various other details.

Because each taxpayer's financial situation is different, the size of actual tax cuts will vary according to details of each taxpayer's case.

However, to illustrate the general distribution of the tax cuts among taxpayers at various income levels, the figures shown here, provided by congressional tax specialists, have been computed to cover hypothetical tax situations of:

—TYPICAL TWO-EARNER FAMILY OF FOUR: A typical two-earner, family of four with deductible expenses equal to 23 percent of their basic income from wages or salary, with figures covering tax rate cuts and reductions in the tax law's marriage penalty affecting many working couples.

—TYPICAL ONE-EARNER COUPLE: A typical one-earner couple with deductible expenses equal to 23 percent of their basic income from wages or salary, with figures covering tax rate cuts.

The figures are for 1982, 1983 and 1984, the final year of a phased-in tax cut.

Greenville Woman Enjoyed Elderhostel Session

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Mrs. Ann Schwartz of Greenville has just returned from an Elderhostel session at the University of North Carolina-Charlotte with a wealth of new friends and correspondents and new knowledge of international affairs, music and creative writing.

"Taking part in Elderhostel is the most stimulating way in the world to go somewhere safely and relatively inexpensively and meet new people and have new experiences," Mrs. Schwartz said. "I go to every session I can, several a year, and I always have a good time. More people should try it."

Sixteen colleges and universities in North Carolina, including East Carolina University, participate in Elderhostel, week-long minicourse sessions especially for persons 60 and older. Begun six years ago, the program now has about 30,000 participants a year in the United States and Canada. Participants live on campus and use campus facilities, while they take intensive non-credit courses, usually from faculty of whichever particular university. Evening fun sessions of everything from cricket to square dancing are also held.

Mrs. Schwartz, who lives with her daughter and son-in-law, Bramy and Rhea Resnik, here, said she did not go to the ECU sessions held earlier in the summer because the courses available did not appeal to her. She had planned to go to the UNC-Wilmington session, because she was intrigued by several of the courses offered, but had a conflict that prevented it. She'll make the next UNC-Wilmington session if the courses are anything like the previous ones, she says.

The widowed Mrs. Schwartz grew up in Tamaqua, Pa., the eldest of four girls. For most of her married life, she lived in Merrick, Long Island, N.Y., where her daughter, Rhea, and her son, Leonard, were reared. She worked for 20 years as a secretary in an electrical contracting firm. She and her husband spent the last ten years of his life wintering in Florida in a mobile home community, but after his death in 1976, she came in January, 1977, to live in Greenville.

"Greenville's my home now," she said. "I love to go back to Long Island to visit my son and his wife and children there, plus lots of old friends, but I have made a good life here. I enjoy my grandchildren here and I play bridge and attend Welcome Wagon and the AARP (American Association of Retired Persons). And I read a lot and write letters — Boy do I write letters! Do you know I took 20 stamps with me to Elderhostel last week and I used every one of them!"

Mrs. Schwartz attributes her good health and vigor to good habits acquired early in life. She has practiced yoga exercises, relaxation and meditation since she was a young woman (She taught modified yoga for the elderly in the city recreation program here for a while) and she eats well. "I use no salt, if I can avoid it," she said, "and very little refined sugar — no soft drinks. I drink skimmed milk and eat whole grain breads, lean meat and vegetables. And I have lots of activity — mental and physical. I do yoga and walk at least a mile a day, and I never allow my mind to be dulled by lack of activity. I always have something to read or do, somewhere to go, or someone to write to."

Mrs. Schwartz said she wishes there were other Greenville persons attending Elderhostel so they might team up. But she's not waiting around for anyone else. She flew by commuter plane to Charlotte alone and she regularly flies anywhere she wishes. Two hundred miles is the most she'll drive alone.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You asked if anyone ever attended a wedding that was actually stopped when the minister asked, "If there is anyone present who knows why these two should not wed, let him speak now or forever hold his peace."

It happened to me when I was brand new in the priesthood. Unfortunately, my seminary training didn't cover this situation.

It was a fashionable wedding and the church was full. A woman screamed, "They should not wed!" I took the objecting woman and the bride and groom to an adjoining office, and asked the woman to state her objection. She replied, "I speak in the name of the Holy Ghost." The bride fainted. The objecting woman ran outside into the dead of night. I have never been able to locate her since. She was a stranger to both the bride and groom.

After a long delay for everyone to become composed again, we went on with the ceremony, and as far as I know, the couple I married lived happily ever after.

This incident made me do some research. Why is it necessary to ask for objections? Everybody attending the wedding had received a special printed invitation. If anyone had grounds to object, he had plenty of time to reveal them before the time of the ceremony.

I discovered that this part of the marriage service is considered the fourth bann. The clergy published the banns on three Sundays before the wedding date. If no one objected to the wedding, the marriage could be performed. The banns originally took the place of a marriage license and blood test. But today, we have more sophisticated ways. So, it does seem anachronistic and unnecessary in today's marriage rite to include this invitation to object. I still cringe when I read it.

EDWARD E. HAILWOOD, RECTOR,
TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH, ORANGE, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Although I have never had an "objection" raised in 80 weddings I've performed, I know why the minister asks. "If anyone present can show just cause why this couple may not be lawfully wed, speak now or forever hold your peace."

Years ago when records were not as complete and accurate as they are today, it was necessary to raise the question of "legality." Someone present might know that one of the couple was already married, or they might be long-lost cousins and not aware of it, or some other legal matter that might prohibit the marriage was not known publicly.

And while I'm writing, Abby, I want to make another point. Some readers refer to their clergymen as "preachers." An ordained person is more than a preacher. A person preaches a sermon, but does not preach a wedding service. Preaching is a function, not a title. The word "minister" is more comprehensive of what an ordained person does.

Life As It's Lived

Somehow, Family Aura Is Not Peaceful

One of Meg's favorite playmates is a beautiful, gentle little girl who usually looks as if she just stepped out of a Gainsborough painting. So I was somewhat taken aback when she and Meg were discussing what they would play the last time she came over to our house and she suggested with a peculiar gleam in her eyes, "Let's play 'Kill Zachary.'"

Upon reflection, I realized that this was a classic case of displaced hostility. The child's mother was expecting a baby within the next two weeks, and the child was naturally anxious about it. Meg, unfortunately, had done nothing to quell that anxiety.

"Babies," she would intone in a knowing voice, "are nothing but trouble."

"First your mother will take away just millions of your toys. 'Baby needs some pretty playthings, too,' she'll say. Then everyone will come to see that stupid baby just lie there and not pay any attention to you, or if they do, they'll ask you silly questions like don't you like the baby, or isn't baby cute. Baby yuk, that's what I say."

"Then," Meg would continue, "it will start crawling and messing up all your things. And your mother will yell at you for leaving your Legos on the floor. 'For goodness sake, he'll choke on that,'" Meg would mimic in a high nasal voice.

"And she'll yell at you when you won't let him have your doll. 'For goodness sake, can't you learn to share?' And she'll yell at you when you do something fun like turn a flip off a chair. 'Don't do that!' she'll holler. 'Baby will imitate you!'"

At this point I feel compelled to defend myself. I have to reprimand Meg for her frequent and dangerously inventive stunts because Zachary is more imitative than a chimp working for bananas. For instance, he likes to go outside. And he has learned by watching me that in order to do that, one has to unlock the door first. So whenever he wants some fresh air, he carefully unlocks the door, turns the knob as far as he can (which is fortunately not far enough), and screams, "Bye-bye!"

He has also observed that a key is often useful for opening the door. So whenever he finds my keyring lying around, he proceeds to use it. The last time I left it lying around, he decided to try it out on a drawer of the mahogany secretary in our living room.

He has watched, too, as we scrape our plates after each meal. Now he scrapes his. Whatever he doesn't want, he simply sweeps off his highchair tray onto the floor.

Worst of all, he has observed how we go up and down stairs and get on and off furniture, and he insists on doing it our way. It never occurs to him that his legs are too short to be useful when he steps off into space.

"Zachary thinks he's Superman," Meg giggles when he attempts this feat.

So, you see, I have more than enough headaches from his conventional attempts to break his neck without coping with Meg's variations.

She, however, steadfastly refuses to consider my position with any sympathy whatsoever, and the other evening, I found out why. She was making excessive demands on my time, and Phillip told her to leave me alone. "Can't you see that Mommy's tired and needs to rest? She has spent all day running after Zachary."

Meg sniffed. "That's her fault."

"Why do you say that?" Phillip asked.

"Well, let's face it. If she hadn't gone and growed him, she wouldn't be in this mess. And," she added, "neither would I."

Arms Race Scares Billy

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Billy Graham said Thursday the world is on the verge of a man-made Armageddon and called for a "SALT 10" that would include the destruction of all nuclear and biochemical weapons.

"The world is involved in the greatest arms race in the history of the world," Graham told about 9,000 people at the closing session of the four-day American Festival of Evangelism. "We stand on the verge of a man-made Armageddon."

"I am not a pacifist. I'm not for unilateral disarmament... but I believe that, as Christians, we need to call for a SALT 10 — the destruction of all nuclear and biochemical weapons. And it ought to be verifiable."

Graham said a judgment day is approaching, and "whether the church does or not, the secular world senses that a gigantic disaster is building up."

Noting that many parts of the world are plagued with fear and violence, Graham added, "Not only is there a new urgency, but it also means millions of people are searching for answers to the crushing problems and fears they face every day. There is an openness to the Gospel in this generation that we may never see again."

Carawan-Jones Vows Exchanged Sunday

MRS. VERNON E. CARAWAN

CHOCOWINITY — Carolyn Smith Jones of Chocowinity and Vernon E. Carawan of Greenville were united in marriage Sunday at a poolside ceremony at the home of the bride. The Rev. Ola Forbes officiated at the double ring ceremony at two o'clock in the afternoon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus D. Smith of Chocowinity. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon B. Carawan of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by soloist Lindy Barr.

The bride wore a polyester dacron organza gown in a pink lilac print. The gown featured a flounced drop shoulder and hemline. She wore a picture hat with lilac roses and ribbon and a pearl necklace that was a gift from the bridegroom. She carried a colonial nosegay of pink, lavender and white lilies with stephanotis and sweetheart roses.

Maid of honor was Tiffany Jones, daughter of the bride. She wore a lilac dacron gown with flounced shoulder and hemline. She carried a satin and lace parasol with cascading lavender blossoms, roses, fern and lace ribbons.

Flower girls were Susan Carawan, daughter of the bridegroom and Bridgitte Jones, daughter of the bride. Each wore a pink dacron gown with flounced shoulder and hemline. Both carried a parasol identical to the maid of honor but in a contrasting shade of pink with pink blossoms, roses and lace ribbons. All the attendants wore a locket, which was a gift from the bridegroom.

Milton Carawan, son of the bridegroom, served as best man.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the poolside. The reception area was decorated with palms, ferns and bouquets of summer flowers. Hearts of flowers bearing the names of the children floated in the pool. A heart made of pink, lilac and white orchids was in the center of the pool. Topiary trees of summer flowers were in each corner of the pool with white satin bows and wedding bells.

Thursday, the bridal couple was honored at a pig pickin' at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride was given a lingerie shower and covered-dish lunch at Havens Gardens in Washington. Hosts were former co-workers and friends from Hackney and Sons.

The bride is a graduate of Vardell Hall in Red Springs and is a student at East Carolina University. The bridegroom graduated from Lenior Rhyne Community College and attended East Carolina University. He is employed as a senior accountant at TRW in Greenville.

A Concern For Tobacco

A recent wire service report put into words the largely unspoken concern of many eastern North Carolina people who heretofore have shared their worries only with close friends or simply left them unsaid.

Their worry centers on a growing suspicion that Senator Jesse Helms could prove to be the most costly Tar Heel spokesman ever sent to Washington.

The senator has long been regarded as a divisive figure in Congress; and some of his enemies see the prized tobacco program as a way to irreparably damage him ... and in so doing, wreak havoc on farmers, warehousemen, the tobacco industry as a whole and the business-agriculture complex in North Carolina and beyond its borders.

"Helms is the worst liability you have in North Carolina", Rep. F.W. Richmond, D-N.Y. is quoted as saying.

Richmond, by the way, is chairman of the House Nutrition Subcommittee and a major force in an urban-rural political coalition in the House that has protected farm interests in the South.

"With Helms doing everything he can to antagonize urban members of Congress, it is going to be difficult to save the tobacco program," he continued.

Tobacco opponents say they may already have enough votes to kill the program when the 1981 Farm

Bill reaches the Senate floor in September. It is reported that some critics plan to tack on amendments which would put an end to the government's price and allotment system.

California Rep. George Miller is not an admirer of Senator Helms. "You can't kick the hell out of people and then argue they should be with you, especially on such a narrow issue as tobacco", he says.

Closer to home, Congressman Charles Rose (of N.C.) had a reminder: "In this place, anytime you pick up a sword and go after somebody's program, you had better be prepared to have that sword come back at you in a way that the wielder of that sword thinks you are the most vulnerable." Rose sees grounds for concern over the fate of the peanut support program ... which he sees on the endangered list.

And, only a few days ago in Pinehurst, Senator John East who is closely linked to Helms and his Congressional Club, said since his election he has spent more time on the tobacco price support program than on any other single thing. He admitted it has proven "very difficult" to round up support for the tobacco program.

Sen. Helms says the picture is contrived.

Who knows for sure? But if worst comes to worst, a lot of Tar Heels are going to count their losses and wonder about that.

The U.N. Ambassador

As the United Nations gets larger, its member countries are becoming smaller, and sometimes it's hard to recognize the name of a nation, much less to pronounce it. Not long ago, I was in a restaurant in New York, and I got to talking to a man who turned out to be the ambassador to the United Nations from Boleh Boleh, a speck of land located somewhere between the Indian Ocean and Antarctic Ocean.

"How many people in your country?" I asked him. "I think about two thousand," he said. "I haven't been home for some time. My brother is the prime minister, and I'm the ambassador to the United Nations. We tossed a coin for our jobs, and he lost."

"Then you like being ambassador to the United Nations?"

"I adore it. The General Assembly is air-conditioned, we get diplomatic immunity when it comes to parking, and if you get tired of listening to the speeches, you can always tune in a transistor radio. Everyone thinks you're listening to the translation of a speaker."

"If you're such a small country, where do you get your funds to entertain?"

"I don't have to do any entertaining. Everyone wants to entertain me. First the Russians take me to lunch, then Americans take me to dinner, the Arabs have me over for shish kebab, and I must say, they don't serve a bad breakfast at the Israeli delegation. If you get a good debate like this one, you can eat for months without picking up a check."

"The trick, of course, is never to tell them how you're going to vote. If you align yourself with one side or the other too early, you could starve to death."

"Then it's best to be neutral," I said.

"Absolutely, particularly because the French are always wooing neutral countries, and you know what kind of feed they can put on."

"You've been entertained by the French?"

"Would you believe the French President sent me a case of Chateau La Tour 1949 from the Elysee Cellars for my birthday?"

"People really make a fuss over you then."

"Why not? My vote is as

"I notice you're eating alone now. Does that mean one is taking you to dinner tonight?"

"Not exactly. I'm eating alone but the bill is being sent to the People's Republic of China. They're having a vote tonight on Taiwan, and they told me to go out and eat on them so that I would abstain."

important as Great Britain's in the General Assembly, and as long as they don't know which way you're going to go, they have to cater to you."

"How do you finally decide which way you're going to vote?"

"I send a wire back home and ask them what we need. If they cable back that we need a dam, then I inform the Soviet bloc and the United States bloc, and I let them bid on it. The highest bidder gets the job and my vote."

"The highest bidder?"

"Yes, whoever offers us the most money is given permission to build our dam."

"That's one way of getting a dam built," I said.

"This doesn't happen every day. We really get most of our aid during an emergency session of the General Assembly. You can't get a ton of wheat during a regular session or, for that matter, a

'Solver' Of Rubik Cube

By LORETTA NOFFSINGER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — W.C. Fields would have said it to Mae West with a nasal drawl: "Chemistry, my dear. Simple chemistry."

Simple chemistry gave Mae West her allure. It gave James Nourse the know-how to solve the devilishly difficult plastic puzzle popping up all over the country — Rubik's Cube.

Nourse, 33, a research associate at Stanford University's chemistry department, picked up the multi-colored puzzle cube someone had left in his chemistry lab in December and began to twist it.

The cube, designed by Hungarian architect Erno Rubik, has six sides, each with three rows of three smaller cubes made in six colors.

All the cube's planes can be twisted in relation to the others. The object, after twisting the cube so the colors are scrambled, is to restore the cube to its original state — a solid color on each of its six sides.

The cube has an almost unbelievable 43 quintillion possible combinations. That's 43 followed by 18 zeros.

It also has only one solution.

Ideal Toy Corp., which has the rights to make the cube in the United States, Canada and the Caribbean, has sold more than 10 million of the puzzles since February 1980.

"It is in a different league from virtually any puzzle that is available popularly," Nourse said in a recent interview. "People don't realize that right away."

But Nourse, who lives in Menlo Park south of here, is a quick study. In December, he solved Rubik's Cube in 4 1/2 hours. Now it takes him less than a minute to reassemble the puzzle. He estimated that only about 1 percent of the 10 million people who have tried to crack the puzzle have succeeded.

The key to Nourse's rapid comprehension lies not in any extraordinary genius. It lies, instead, in chemistry.

Nourse writes computer programs that help chemists determine the structure of molecules. It occurred to him as he struggled with the cube on his first attempt that finding a solution to the puzzle was similar to tasks he encountered as a researcher.

"The type of work I do involves mathematical methods that essentially are the same as those that solve the cube," he said.

Nourse found himself thinking of the cube as a molecule and envisioned the smaller colored blocks that comprise the cube as atoms.

"I decided what the basic problem was and that this is exactly the sort of thing I do," he said. "Then it was a matter of pride to be able to solve it."

But solution was not enough for Nourse. In partnership with a friend, graduate student Paul Weinberg, Nourse published typewritten instructions for deciphering the puzzle.

When requests for the instructions began pouring in, Weinberg approached Bantam Books about publication. Within six weeks, the small tome was in book, department and toy stores throughout the nation.

Some 200,000 copies were released June 10. Eight days later, 250,000 more came off the presses. To date, 1,650,000 copies have been printed, and the book has made it to the New York Times Best Seller List.

The title: "The Simple Solution to Rubik's Cube."

Nourse said his book is the simplest solution available to Rubik's Cube. Once a group of colors is arranged on one side of the cube, his step-by-step solution for the balance of the puzzle causes only minor disruption of the completed side.

For those who insist on the full challenge — or punishment — of solving the puzzle the hard way, Nourse's book offers hints to make the task easier.

Even those who fail to solve the puzzle, Nourse asserted, can get an "intermediate feeling of accomplishment" by completing one side.

"I have known people who have solved it who have no scientific background at all," he said. What is required, apparently, is ability to visualize three-dimensional forms and, more important, persistence.

"It's so difficult that it is approaching a real, bona fide scientific problem," he said, adding that the marriage of his scientific career and the cube's solution was a unique opportunity.

"The type of work I do involves mathematical methods that essentially are the same as those that solve the cube," he said.

Plant Trees Now

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Owners of rural acreage in North Carolina need to look to the future in timber markets to convince themselves that now is the time to plant trees looking ahead to a strong market in years to come.

The current situation shows some strong similarities to the petroleum market. Indeed, the skyrocketing costs of oil will have a direct impact on future timber costs as wood substitutes currently in vogue use petroleum and will, eventually, price themselves out of the competition.

Also, say forest resources specialists at N.C. State University, the United States is presently depending on imported timber to meet demand. As more foreign land is converted to cropland to meet food needs, foreign forest acreage is expected to drop by 40 percent.

Where does that leave the nation when demand for wood fiber is expected to double in the next 20 years?

Good Shape

It leaves the Southeast — and North Carolina ranking among the top timber growing states in the Southeast — in especially favorable shape.

"Domestic forest land is producing only 43 percent of capacity. Over-cutting in the West and lack of reforestation are major problems."

"The Southeast, with its fast growing pine species and good soils, has the potential to be the most productive forest region," reports R.A. Hamilton, a specialist with the extension forest resources unit at N.C. State. Some well known giants in the corporate world have obviously looked ahead and seen this expansion market.

BILL NOBLITT

witness the timberlands in North Carolina now under cultivation by firms such as Weyerhaeuser.

Hamilton says domestic softwood use will more than double to 16.3 billion cubic feet by the year 2030, but that wood harvesting now already exceeds growth by 18 percent annually. Hardwood use should increase by 306 percent to 9.2 billion cubic feet by 2030; while the production picture is directly reversed: growth exceeds removal by 25 percent annually at this time.

One of the problems on North Carolina timberland, in fact, is that hardwoods tend to creep in and replace the more needed pine growth unless the owner manages his woodlands.

Tracts owned by the government or by forest industries are being well managed, while private owners tend to let things slide.

For this state, that means most of the woodland is being neglected since Hamilton reports that over 245,000 private individuals own 80 percent of North Carolina's commercial forest land. "But few private woodlots are being properly managed," he notes in a study published in the "Tar Heel Economist."

Low Yield

Domestic forests are actually producing only 43 percent of capacity, and the difference is enough to offset the loss of foreign imports to meet the future demands. If owners start taking advantage of the many state and federal assistance programs in clearing undesirable growth and reforesting with high-yield trees.

The outcome, Hamilton says, is predictably good since sawtimber prices historically have risen faster than the rate of inflation.

Additionally, the income can be treated on federal tax reports as long-term capital gains so that upon harvesting, the annual return on investment will average around 10 or 11 percent.

That may not sound too attractive at a time when bank certificates are paying 14 and 15 percent — except that the after-tax returns in timber will exceed the after-tax yield of money market income unless the certificates yield better than 19 percent.

For Tar Heels, the soils are best suited to pine production for saw-timber, veneer, and poles. Hardwoods for lumber and furniture are already scarce and high priced, but can only be grown in exceptionally good soil, and take longer to reach market size.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, July 31, the 212th day of 1981. There are 153 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 31, 1790, the U.S. government issued its first patent — to Samuel Hopkins of Vermont for a process in making potash.

On this date:

In 1498, Italian explorer Columbus discovered the island of Trinidad.

In 1877, Thomas Edison took out an early patent leading to his development of the phonograph.

In 1917, the World War I Battle of Flanders began.

And in 1964, the U.S. Ranger 7 spacecraft transmitted to Earth the first close-up pictures of the moon.

Ten years ago: The U.S. Apollo 15 astronauts took a 6 1/2-hour ride on the moon in an electric car.

Five years ago: The Olympic Games in Montreal ended.

unrealized demand is the underbuilding of recent years, which brokers believe has left a pent-up need that eventually must be realized.

But when? Anyone who has had a house on the market three or four months has learned that in some areas a market barely exists. And if there isn't a market, how can it be said that demand is strong?

U.S. Housing Markets, a publication of Advance Mortgage Corp., whose fortunes depend on housing, concedes those assurances have not been examined thoroughly, and so it attempts to do it.

Its technique was mostly demographic — the number of people entering the market — coupled with the attitudes of owners and renters and the growth patterns of individual cities. It found:

"Demand will indeed be very strong throughout the 1980s and at least into 1995, but whether it will be a record demand is iffy."

NEW YORK (AP) — With homeowners often unable to sell their properties for months and with homebuilding in the doldrums, why are real estate people so confident there exists a huge housing demand?

If building and sales are sluggish — that is, if the market is so poor — why should an improvement be expected?

One reason: Demographic. An unprecedented bulge in the number of young people of homebuying age, 25 to 34, is expected in the 1980s. As many as 42 million people are expected to enter that bracket.

Social change is another. One-person households, and a tendency of would-be renters to buy instead, partly as a hedge against inflation, bolstered the market in the 1970s and may to do so in '80s.

Graduated From CP Center Here

Nine students were graduated from the United Cerebral Palsy Developmental Center in Greenville in a ceremony last night.

The nine students will be entering the public school system in the fall.

The center is a developmental unit for children with cerebral palsy and other physical handicaps designed to prepare children for entry into the public school system.

Certificates of graduation were awarded to David Beacham Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David Beacham Sr. of Greenville; Antwan Bunch, son of Ms. Brenda Barrett of Greenville; Ronnie Chestnut, son of Mrs. Earline Chestnut of Farmville; and Tallas Davis, son of Ms. Sondra Davis of Greenville.

Shawn Glast, son of Mr. and Mrs. Connie Glast of Greenville; Lee Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Johnson of Grifton; Melanie Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Daniels of Grimesland; Simesha Moore, granddaughter of Mrs. Sinnie Barrett of Greenville; and Lakeisha Tyson, granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Jane Tyson of Greenville, were also given certificates.

Mrs. Edith Williams, director of the center, awarded the certificates.

Mrs. Williams, who is retiring in September, was presented with a plaque for service to United Cerebral Palsy of North Carolina by Dr. James Bachar, director of Program Services for UCP of N.C., and Mrs. Suester Sowell, director of Developmental Centers for the state organization. The plaque is for service to UCP since the Greenville center opened in 1972.

Planning Four Gospel Services

Saint Matthew F.W.B. Church, Farmville, will present four gospel services August 2, 9 and 16 with the theme of "Build up yourselves on your most Holy faith."

Four different ministers will conduct the services. Rev. Denmark Suggs will officiate over the services Aug. 2 at 3:00 p.m. and Rev. Tyrone Turnage will present the 7:30 sermon that night. Rev. Garner will conduct the service at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 9. Rev. Willie Joyner will speak at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 16.

The pastor, members and Deacons invite the public attend.

LEWIS CHAPEL REVIVAL

There will be a revival held at Lewis Chapel starting Monday night and running through Friday. The program begins each night at 7:30 p.m.

Monday night, Rev. Blake Phillips from Cherry Lane will be the guest speaker. Rev. White from Brownstown will conduct Tuesday night's service. The services Thursday and Friday nights will be rendered by Rev. Joe Dixon of Maury Chapel. Pastor Bishop J.H. Vines invites everyone to attend.

JONES, CARR REUNION

The Jones and Carr family will have their first annual family reunion Saturday, Aug. 8 beginning at 1:00 p.m. at the residence of Ethel Jones, 524 Glenda St., Winterville. All close members are asked to pay $25 per family. Others should bring a covered dish. Contact Mattie Smith, 746-2025, or Mary Jones, 825-1729, for more information.

PASTOR'S AIDE SERVICE

Miracle of Faith Soul-Saving Station Holiness Church will hold a Pastor's Aide Service Sunday at noon, with Minister Marvin Farmer as the speaker.

The church is located at 1515 Broad Street. Pastor Inetta Fleming invites the public.

HOOKS WILL PREACH

STOKES — The Rev. Roger Hooks will preach at St. John Baptist Church Sunday at 7 p.m.

He will be accompanied by his choir of Holly Hill Free Will Baptist Church, Belvoir. The public is invited.

Downplaying Reactions To Tax Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic North Carolina congressmen who voted against President Reagan's tax plan say they aren't worried about negative voter reaction.

"I think there will be some short run irritation," said Rep. Stephen Neal, who voted for his party's rival plan Wednesday along with five of the six other North Carolina Democrats in the House. "But once the vast majority of people understand the implications, I think they will not be wild about it."

One such irritation for Neal begins today, when the National Conservative Political Action committee begins running ads attacking his vote on Winston-Salem radio stations.

Neal had accused NCPAC of bribing him by offering to withdraw the ads if he voted for the Reagan plan. NCPAC officials said they are just exercising their First Amendment rights.

Supporting the Democratic plan over the Reagan proposal were Democrats Charles G. Rose III, Walter B. Jones, Charles O. Whitley, William G. Heiner, Ike F. Andrews and Neal.

Voting for the Reagan plan were Democrat L.H. Fountain and Republicans James G. Martin, William T. Broyles III, William Hendon and W. Eugene Johnston III.

"I think they are going to lose a lot of taxpayers' votes, a lot of working people's votes," Johnston said. "I wouldn't like to vote against giving the people the largest tax cut in history."

Andrews said he thought his vote against the Reagan tax cut was "unpopular in the business community, in the professional community and generally among people of rather considerable income."

"I have not been able to get a feeling of people in lower incomes," Andrews said.

Like Neal, Heiner said public enthusiasm for the Reagan program would die out.

"Most people relate budget cuts to food stamps and welfare," said Heiner. "They will soon realize that it also relates to Social Security, senior citizen feeding, student loan programs and water and sewer grants."

The Democrats also said they are skeptical of the theory behind the Reagan tax cut. They said large tax cuts may not spur the economy as Reagan has promised, but instead lead to bigger budget deficits, higher interest rates and runaway inflation.

The Democrats reported receiving hundreds of phone calls before the vote in favor of the Reagan plan. But they say many of those calls were generated by well-orchestrated campaigns by the GOP, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Federation of Independent Businesses.

Weekend Service Series

The Pitt for Christ Evangelistic Tabernacle has announced weekend services, beginning with a Bible and Praise service tonight at 8 o'clock.

A business session will be held at 7 p.m. and a Candlelight Holy Communion service will follow. The 11 a.m. Sunday service will be led by Evangelist Nina E. Blount and the Evangelistic Tabernacle Choir. The 8 p.m. service will be led by Evangelist Walter Bynum.

The public is invited, says Pastor Nina Blount.

Rev. Best Will Lead Services

Rev. W.J. Best, accompanied by the W.J. Best Traveling Choir, will render two services Sunday.

At 3:00 p.m. the Rev. Best and his choir will conduct the service at Bethel Chapel Church in Bethel. At 8:00 p.m., they will participate in the service at Philippi Missionary Baptist Church, Simpson. All members of Sweet Hope are asked to please attend these services.

One School In Five Under Book-Banning Pressure

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — You could stock a well-rounded library with the books people try to get removed from the school libraries and classrooms of America.

According to a study — the most extensive of its kind ever undertaken — one public school in five comes under pressure each year to purge from its shelves books that someone finds offensive. The number of censorship attempts is growing and half the time the effort succeeds — the book is either removed from school or access to it is restricted.

"Censorship pressures on books and other learning materials in the public schools are real, nationwide and growing," says the study, based on a survey of 1,891 librarians, principals and superintendents.

It was conducted by the Association of American Publishers, the American Library Association and the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development.

All told, more than 200 books were found to have been subjected to censorship pressures in 1980.

The list includes the American Heritage Dictionary; William Shakespeare's play, "The Merchant of Venice"; Wilt Chamberlain's autobiography, "Stuart Little," a children's book by E.B. White; and such novels as Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn," Ernest Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms," Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World," Nathaniel Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter," Colleen McCullough's "Thorn Birds," J.D. Salinger's "Catcher in the Rye," George Orwell's "1984" and Alexander Solzhenitsyn's "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" and several books each by authors John Steinbeck, Maurice Sendak, Rod McKuen and Herman Hesse.

Some schools listed categories of books that had been challenged by parents or others in the community — "an advanced biology text," "all science books," "history books," and "books on divorce, evolution, English, creationism, health."

Nearly half the challenges were based on the charge that the book was obscene, used objectionable language or dealt with sexuality.

But in all, 30 reasons were given. Among them: the way the books portrayed the U.S. role in history, the way they dealt with evolution, or what they said about traditional family values.

Among the books' critics were school people themselves, the study said.

"Perhaps one of the most startling findings of the survey was that librarians named school personnel (teachers, administrators and librarians) as initiating over 30 percent of the challenges cited," it said.

One librarian was quoted as saying: "I have more trouble with the teachers and principals than the parents."

Studs Terkel, the Chicago street philosopher whose book "Working" was one of the books censored, said school censorship attempts make him feel sad because they tell of people frightened by ideas.

"Their own fear takes it over and they put it in their kids," he said.

"Working" is about the working lives of ordinary people. One of the people in the book describes her working life as a prostitute. That's the basis of attacks upon it, Terkel said.

If he were a school principal, Terkel said, he would try to make sure children were first exposed to the best of writing; then he would have no fear when they were read to the worst.

"The very experience of having been exposed to works of human and artistic merit will enable them to throw out the schlock," he said. "Good stuff would put the bad stuff out of existence."

The survey found that schools often gave in quickly when a parent or someone else raised questions.

"In exactly half of 500 challenges specified, the challenged material was altered, restricted or removed prior to a formal review," the report said.

On the other hand, the report did not argue that the selection of books was not a legitimate area of parents' concern.

"Challenges, whether by professionals within the schools or by parents and other members of the community outside, have a legitimate place in a democratic educational system," it said, quoting one state textbook administrator: "Opposition is one of the most healthy things that can occur — provided it's in an environment of participation, not domination."

Two Wrecks On Thursday

One person was reported injured and an estimated $1,000 property damage caused in two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers said Jonathan Chaffin Abbott of Mount Airy was injured when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Cynthia Ann Tyre of Route 1, Williamston, about 11:10 p.m. yesterday at the intersection of First and Jarvis Streets.

Damage from the mishap was set at $500 to the Tyre car and $50 to the bicycle.

Cars driven by Carlton Lee Smith of Simpson and Margie Potter Frey of 104 Westhaven Rd. collided about 6:07 p.m. at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and 14th Street, causing $400 damage to the Smith car and $100 damage to the Frey auto.

Police charged Frey with failing to stop for a stop light in connection with the incident.

Solar Eclipse

Thousands of years ago people thought spectacular sights like this were warnings from the gods. By 700 B.C. the Chaldeans had learned to predict solar eclipses. In the 1500s scientists learned how the moon causes solar eclipses by passing between Earth and the sun, blocking the sun for up to seven minutes. Since then, special photos of solar eclipses have provided information about the chemical makeup and two-million-degree (F) temperature of the sun's surface, and have even been used to verify Einstein's theory of relativity. Today Soviet citizens will be able to observe a solar eclipse. But Americans will have to wait until 1984 to view such a sight.

Rate Bureau Votes Big Auto Insurance Increase

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state insurance Rate Bureau voted Thursday to raise automobile insurance rates by an average of 10 percent on Jan. 1, but state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram is expected to reject the proposal.

The bureau, which represents the state's auto insurers in rate requests, voted to send the increase proposal to Ingram in mid-August.

Although Ingram usually rejects such requests, state law allows them to take effect pending the outcome of court appeals.

Bureau assistant manager John W. Watkins said details of the proposals have not been made final.

"I fully expect (the increase) will be something less than 10 percent on auto liability insurance and something more than 10 percent on physical damage — comprehensive and collision," he said.

Minimum coverage for liability insurance varies throughout the state, but is generally about $100 a year, not including auto insurance surcharges.

Surcharges are fees collected for past losses by the North Carolina Reinsurance Facility, a pool through which companies share losses on drivers who are considered high risks and who the companies do not want to cover voluntarily.

The 10 percent increase would affect about 2.4 million vehicles covered voluntarily by insurance companies and about 536,000 vehicles operated by drivers with clean driving records whose policies are assigned to the facility.

There are about 3.3 million vehicles in the state.

The facility's board proposed July 23 a 25.9 percent rate increase to begin Nov. 1 for the 302,000 vehicles belonging to drivers with bad driving records in the facility. A change in state law approved by the General Assembly allows separate rates for those drivers.

Watkins said the companies needed an 18.5 percent rate increase, but the bureau was limited to a 10 percent proposal under a ceiling placed on such requests by the new law.

The law sets a ceiling that is tied to the urban Consumer Price Index change for the year ending four months before the rate proposal. It replaced a 6 percent limit that expired July 1, he said.

In Uniforms

PEKING (AP) — U.S. Embassy Marine Corps guards who left China in disgrace six years ago are again wearing snappy uniforms in what U.S. diplomats call an effort to boost morale and follow American tradition around the world.

Six guards have been wearing uniforms since Monday but have been restricted to U.S. Embassy buildings because of Chinese sensitivities about any appearance of a paramilitary presence, diplomatic sources said today.

The guards left China in 1974 at the request of the Chinese government because of inappropriate and rowdy behavior, according to Chinese and Western sources. They returned in 1979 and have been wearing civilian clothes.

Tehran Mobs Demonstrate

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Thousands of Iranians demonstrated in front of the French Embassy in Tehran for the second day today, chanting "Death To Zionist Mitterrand" and demanding his government extradite fugitive ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Tehran Radio reported.

"Mitterrand, Mitterrand, Give Us Back Bani-Sadr," the marchers chanted, referring to French President Francois Mitterrand. Warnings were blared through bullhorns to refrain from attacking the embassy, and the marchers dispersed peacefully after 90 minutes, sources in Tehran said.

However, about 100 other Iranians vowed to maintain their protest in front of the heavily guarded French Embassy. A sit-in also was held in front of the French Embassy in New Delhi, where 100 chanting Iranian students were demanding Bani-Sadr's return to Iran.

Tehran Radio said the embassy protesters, who began their sit-in Thursday, hung placards on the walls of the embassy building in Tehran's downtown "France Street" criticizing the French government.

They demanded extradition of Bani-Sadr and of opposition leader Massoud Rajavi, head of the Islamic-Marxist Mujahedeen Khalq, who arrived with the ousted president in France early Wednesday.

A French Foreign Ministry spokesman in Paris said security measures had been taken inside the embassy but there were no plans to evacuate the 15 French diplomats in the Iran because of the protests. He said the Iranian government has increased security around the building, apparently indicating it plans to fulfill its obligation as the host country to protect the embassy. The spokesman, who briefed reporters on condition that he not be identified, also said there were no similarities to the situation on Nov. 4, 1979, when protesters took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Senior Finishes Field Work

Arlene Evans of Rt. 1, Grimesland, a senior at East Carolina University, has completed her fieldwork in Therapeutic Recreation as Caswell Center, Kinston.

She was responsible for many recreational projects for the residents of Caswell. One activity she conducted was a Hawaiian luau. The residents helped fashion skirts they wore during the festivities.

Ms. Evans' work was supervised by Joseph Pipkin of Caswell. She received her life guard licenses while working under his supervision.

Family and friends will honor Ms. Evans at a celebration barbeque Sunday.

will begin a morning of talks that include presentations by George Van Zevern, editor and publisher of Boat & Motor Dealer magazine, North American vice-president and general manager Don Fidler and others.

Presentations of The Captain's Round Table and Golden Ox Awards are also scheduled for the morning.

Demonstrations of the 1982 Sea Ox models at Blounts Creek, and a tour of the plant in Greenville, will be held during the afternoon.

A Hawaiian luau will be staged for the dealers Monday night to close the meeting.

Campus Hit By Fire

MURFREESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Fire of an undetermined origin caused an estimated $100,000 damage Thursday to the old recreation center building on the campus of Chowan College.

Authorities said college employees were out to lunch when the fire broke out. No injuries were reported.

COMPUTER GAMBLING

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigation of the Department of Energy's main computer operation has uncovered unauthorized use of the device for sports pools, games and personal information, according to an energy-oriented publication.

Energy User News reports the probe by the agency's inspector general showed that some 740 persons had access to the computer at the time the misuse occurred.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE NEAR-EAST'S BALANCE OF POWER IS OF WORLD-WIDE CONCERN TODAY. EGYPT AND ISRAEL FENCE, DIPLOMATICALLY, EACH HOPING TO GAIN A MORE STRATEGIC POSITION. TO THE NORTH, SYRIA, LEBANON, AND TO THE EAST, JORDAN—NOT TO MENTION OTHER ARAB COALITIONS—ALL WATCH NERVOUSLY, MAKING THEIR OWN ALLIANCES AGAINST THE DAY WHEN TOTAL WAR MAY STILL BREAK OUT...AND SCHOLARS OF ANCIENT HISTORY SMILE RUEFULLY, SHAKING THEIR HEADS—NOTHING'S CHANGED IN 2,500 YEARS! THE SAME POLITICAL SITUATIONS, THE SAME COUNTRIES, SAME PLANS!

ISAIAH THE PROPHET (CIRCA 780-700 B.C.), IN TEMPESTUOUS ANCIENT TIMES, PREACHED RELIANCE ON GOD, ADVISING AGAINST POLITICAL ALLIANCE WITH NEIGHBORING COUNTRIES. SO SINCERE WAS HE, THAT HE STRIPPED AND, FOR THREE YEARS, WALKED ABOUT BAREFOOTED, WEARING ONLY A LOIN CLOTH TO POINT UP HOW BAD OFF EVERYONE WAS GOING TO BE IF THEY DIDN'T HEED HIS WORDS! BUT THE KINGDOM OF JUDAH WAS IN A VERY DANGEROUS SITUATION.....

... IN THE NORTH, SYRIA AND ISRAEL (SEPARATE FROM THE KINGDOM OF JUDAH AND JERUSALEM) HAD FORMED AN ALLIANCE AGAINST THE THREAT OF A TERRIBLE FOE TO THE EAST, ASSYRIA—THEN AT ITS HEIGHT AS A CONQUERING NATION, LOOTING AND DESPOILING ALL KINGDOMS IN ITS PATH TO WORLD POWER! SYRIA AND ISRAEL INTENDED TO ATTACK JUDAH FOR NOT JOINING THEM BUT, BEFORE THEY COULD, THEY WERE CONQUERED BY ASSYRIA, WHOSE KING, SENNACHERIB, THEN FOCUSED ON JERUSALEM, DEMANDING ITS TOTAL SURRENDER! KING HEZEKIAH SOUGHT ISAIAH'S ADVICE—WHEN HE WAS IN TROUBLE, THEN AND THEN ONLY, DID HE TURN TO GOD AND THE PROPHETS—WHEN EVERYTHING WAS FINE, HEZEKIAH DID AS HE DARN WELL PLEASED! ISAIAH TOLD HEZEKIAH TO ACT LIKE A REAL KING, FOR ONCE, AND DEFY ASSYRIA! A HARD THING TO DO WHEN, ALL AROUND HIM, KINGDOMS WERE TOPPLING LIKE TEN-PINS... SO HEZEKIAH STRIPPED HIS TREASURY OF ITS GOLD AND SILVER TO GIVE TO SENNACHERIB, HOPING HE'D GO AWAY! AT THIS TIME, EGYPT TO THE SOUTHWEST, FEARING FOR ITS OWN SAFETY, GOT INTO THE FIGHT AND, EVEN AS ISAIAH SHOUTED DEFIANCE FROM JERUSALEM'S WALLS, SENNACHERIB, WITH NEWS OF A SERIOUS REVOLT IN HIS OWN COUNTRY, HIS ARMY DECIMATED BY SOME SUDDEN PLAGUE OF ILLNESS WHICH KILLED THOUSANDS OF HIS TROOPS OVERNIGHT, LEFT FOR HOME! INSTEAD OF GOING TO THE TEMPLE TO THANK GOD, THE PEOPLE OF JERUSALEM CELEBRATED IN A SERIES OF WILD ORGIES! ISAIAH'S WORDS FAIRLY DRIPPED SARCASM, AS HE WATCHED... "EAT, DRINK AND BE MERRY," SAID HE, "FOR TOMORROW, CAME HIS DIRE PREDICTION, "WE DIE!" ISAIAH SAW WHAT THE FUTURE HELD FOR A PEOPLE WHO TURNED TO RIOTOUS REVELS AT THE SLIGHTEST EXCUSE—AND HE WAS RIGHT! IN LESS THAN TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, NEBUCHADNEZZAR WAS TO COME OUT OF THE EAST AND END FOREVER "THE POWER AND THE GLORY THAT WAS JERUSALEM".

Presbyterian Reunion Revived

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The reunion stew is bubbling anew among Protestants, and it has now reached a ready stage among Presbyterians after a quarter century of efforts to find the suitable ingredients.

This time, leaders both of the larger, mostly Northern United Presbyterian Church and the Southern Presbyterian Church U.S. say they've come up with a blend that should work.

Details of the plan were completed last week by a joint union committee at a meeting in Memphis, Tenn., and congregations across the country are to sample it to see if it's to their taste.

If accepted by their governing assemblies next year, and then ratified by regional units, it would bring about a reunited church by 1983, ending a split of 120 years ago in the Civil War.

The result would be church of 3.3 million, sixth largest Christian body in the nation, after Roman Catholics, Southern Baptists, United Methodist, the mostly black National Baptists and Mormons.

The Rev. J. Randolph Taylor of Charlotte, N.C., the Southern Presbyterians' co-chairman of the joint committee, says he has "more solid hope" for the plan than for any of several in the past.

Similar confidence was voiced by his United Presbyterian counterpart, the Rev. Robert C. Lamar of Albany, N.Y.

Reunion efforts have gone on among Presbyterians since the mid-1950's, with early proposals failing to get a necessary three-fourths ratification vote by Southern regional units. The current effort began in 1969, with reactions to three previous draft plans used to refine the final version.

It allows for some variations in application, including a key compromise to allow exemption to congregations of the Southern church from being required to include women among their officers.

But that rule, existing with some possible exemptions in the United Presbyterian Church, is to continue for its congregations under the reunion plan.

The 14 "articles of agreement" also provide for continuation of existing national agencies of the two denominations for up to five years while combined ones are designed, and up to 10 years allowed to realign regional units.

Other reunion efforts are brewing among Protestants, including talks between the United Church of Christ and the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), and among three branches of Lutheran.

The Lutheran bodies — the Lutheran Church in America, the American Lutheran Church and the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches — have moved in the past month toward a commitment to reunion.

A joint committee had been considering a range of lesser options, such as increased cooperation, but developments lately produced a groundswell of sentiment for full reunion.

One of those developments was action by still another Lutheran branch, the highly conservative Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, to end intercommunion and clergy exchanges with the ALC, thus further insulating itself from the bulk of Lutherans.

That seemed to drive them closer together, with ensuing reactions by leaders and councils supporting reunion. The joint committee is to present its proposals to governing conventions next year.

If that reunion comes, possibly by the mid-1980's, it would create a predominant Lutheran body of 5.4 million, making it fourth in size among U.S. Christian denominations.

Meanwhile, the Consultation on Church Union, involving 10 Protestant denominations with more than 20 million members, continued its slow but persistent pace of the past 20 years, working toward a rejoined but diversified church.

The objective is "more than merger," says the Rev. Gerald F. Moede, COCU's general secretary. Quoting Ephesians 2, he calls the prospect a common "household, in which several rooms may be occupied."

"This household will incorporate diversity. Much traditional ethos of each of its families will remain, but it will be identifiable as a body with interconnected joints and ligaments, able to act and move in the world."

Another reunion plan was initiated by the recently formed Presbyterian Church in America, a relative small body of 80,000 which broke away from the Southern Presbyterian branch only in 1973.

Several other small, relatively new Presbyterian bodies were invited to join it, and governing assemblies of two of them — the Orthodox Presbyterian Church and the Reformed Presbyterian Church-Evangelical Synod — voted to do so.

All that now remains to consolidate the three are ratification votes by regional units which by next year could produce a new, though still comparatively small, conservative Presbyterian body of 115,000.

Hindus, Moslems Still See Sectarian Violence

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — For centuries, Moslems and Hindus have lived side-by-side in India, along dusty lanes and in crowded settlements, but rarely at peace with each other. Conflict has boiled up once again.

Early in July, a Hindu procession winding through the Moslem quarter of Hyderabad in southern India, was attacked by Moslems when the marchers beat drums as they passed a mosque. Moslems consider it irreverent to play music outside an Islamic place of worship. Twenty-one people were killed.

Outbursts such as this between members of the two religions have left scores if not hundreds of people dead every year.

—April, 1979: a Hindu religious procession played music before a mosque in the steel-making city of Jamshedpur in eastern India, triggering riots in which more than 100 people died.

—August 1980: Moslem worshippers at a prayer meeting went on a rampage in the northern city of Moradabad, attacking Hindus and policemen of all faiths. They claimed their meeting had been defiled by the presence of a pig, considered an unclean animal by followers of Islam. The riots quickly spread throughout northern India and more than 200 people were slain.

Historians trace the enmity between Hindus and Moslems back at least 900 years to when Moslem conquerors came to India from Afghanistan and central Asia, and forcibly converted the natives to their faith. For thousands, refusal meant death.

For 600 years starting in the 13th century, India was ruled by a succession of Moslem sultans. The British came in the 19th century and administered this sprawling land of diverse communities, castes and languages until 1947.

Then came the creation of Pakistan in 1947 as a separate nation because its people were Moslems — their leader, Mohammad Ali Jinnah, contending that Moslems could never hope for fair treatment in predominantly Hindu India. This led to some of the worst rioting in the area's history. Hundreds of thousands of people on both sides were slain before a fragile peace was restored.

India has 684 million people, of which about 500 million are Hindus and about 130 million are Moslems. The rest are Sikhs, Christians, Parsis and a smattering of other faiths.

A continuing complaint by Moslems in India is that despite their numbers, they hold few top positions in the Hindu-dominated government. The appointment of Moslems to sensitive posts in the military is especially rare.

Among those Moslems who do hold senior posts, however, are Air Marshal A.R. Latif, Home Affairs Secretary S.M.H. Burney and India's vice president, Mohammad Hidayatullah.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and President N.

Sanjiva Reddy are Hindus.

While it takes little to spark a bloody clash between Hindus and Moslems, both sides accuse each other's political organizations of deliberately fomenting trouble.

Grace Free Will Baptist Church will be celebrating its 28th Anniversary this Sunday.

The Grace Free Will Baptist Church had its beginning on August 2, 1953 with its first meeting held at the American Legion Home on Evans Street with the Rev. Rashie Kennedy as pastor. The work was organized into a church on December 10, 1953 with 88 charter members. In the spring of 1954, the church moved to its new building, the first of several buildings planned, at the corner of Watauga Avenue and Spruce Street.

During these first few years, the membership grew steadily and the church became known as a mission station.

The church property now consists of three educational units, a large sanctuary, a gymnasium for sporting events, a kitchen and a fellowship hall.

Grace Church has had four men as pastors: Rashie Kennedy, 1953-1962; Chester Phillips, 1962-1976; Roger Tripp, 1976-1980; and presently R. Randall Riggs, who served as associate pastor for 14 months before becoming pastor.

There will be no dinner on the grounds this Sunday, but Homecoming will be observed on Sunday, October 11.

The Rev. Riggs said everyone is invited to visit the church this Sunday. For transportation, call 752-5031.

Gospel-Singing Convention Set

WILSON — Fleming Stadium in Wilson is the site of the World Wide Mid-Summer Gospel Singing Convention on Sunday. The gates open at 11 a.m., with the convention scheduled to get underway at noon.

Tickets are priced at $6 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12. Greenville people interested in ticket information can call Mrs. Molly Small, 752-3191.

Performing attractions include The Nightingales of Philadelphia and Willie Banks and the Messengers.

Six other groups from North Carolina and three other states are scheduled to perform. These are the Gospel Keynotes of Tyler, Texas; Slim and the Supreme Angels of Milwaukee, Wisconsin; the Swanee Quinet of Augusta, Georgia; Dorothy Norwood and the Norwood Singers; the William Coley Trio of Wilson; and the Sunset Jubilaires of Rocky Mount.

STEVE ROSEBERRY
MONDAY, AUGUST 3, 1981

HOLIDAY INN Memorial Drive

DINNER — 7:00 p.m.
MEETING — 7:30 p.m.

Steve Roseberry has been acclaimed as "one of America's finest tenors" and we are privileged to have him with us for our May meeting!

As a well-known concert soloist in Christian Music Steve spends his time in traveling around the country, singing in concerts, television and radio, sharing his faith and personal experiences. His concerts are a warm, exciting, informal time of making people feel the joy and love found in music through his rich and powerful vocal ability.

Steve began to feel God's direction to a musical ministry at 6, his age when his voice changed to that of a man. He was so filled with a desire to sing that he gave up childhood play to practice music for many hours each day. Beginning in grade school, Steve had 15 years of voice instruction by Elizabeth Jackson, a Westminster Choir College graduate. Again we see God's hand; most of the songs she chose for him were sacred songs. As a youth Steve was dissatisfied with the world in which he was involved. After many kinds of employment from drugstore clerk to police work Steve "arrived at the end of himself" and had a head-on encounter with Jesus Christ. The Holy Spirit began working, guiding and correcting. Suddenly everything began to fit. A life without meaning, now has a purpose in singing for the Lord. Steve has dedicated his voice to singing the Gospel, as he follows the leading of the Holy Spirit. He has appeared on the 700 Club often, on PTL TV network often, National EGBMF, and for the last five years has been soloist for our own Washington Regional Convention. Steve will give his testimony, how Jesus has changed his life.

We believe that as you listen to this gifted Christian artist you will experience the same thing that thousands of other people both here and abroad, have realized, and that is his God given ability to provide special moments that can only come from a dedicated and sincere heart, moments that will lift you to new horizons and leave you with more than a song.

You will not want to miss this outstanding meeting! Come and bring a friend — but come early for we are sure to have a big crowd. Pray that the Lord will use Steve's testimony and voice to His Glory.

It's Over: Baseball Resumes August 9

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The major league baseball strike, which deprived the nation of its favorite summer game for almost two months and became the longest walkout in professional sports history, ended early today after marathon negotiating sessions.

Two-man bargaining teams — union head Marvin Miller and counsel Donald Fehr for the players, chief negotiator Ray Grebey and American League president Lee MacPhail for the owners — hammered out a compromise agreement between midnight and 2 a.m., EDT, approximately 12 hours after they first sat down at the table Thursday afternoon.

The regular season will resume under the original schedule on Monday, Aug. 10, and the owners have the option of making it a split season, with intra-divisional playoffs prior to the league championship series.

They must notify the players association of such a decision by Sunday evening, Aug. 9, when the All-Star Game, originally scheduled for July 14, will be played in Cleveland. Workouts will begin on Saturday, although some clubs planned informal workouts today.

After seven weeks without the so-called national pastime, the warring parties ended their lengthy and often-bitter dispute the way most labor strikes are settled — by a form of compromise.

The key issue of compensation to a team losing a player in the annual free agent re-entry draft was negotiated as part of what Grebey called "a very definite tradeoff." The players achieved their proposal for a pool of players as compensation but had to give in and submit to a form of "punishment" against a team signing a ranking free agent.

In return, the owners agreed to credit the players with service time for the days they were on strike. This means that such star players as Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees, Ken Griffey and Dave Collins of the Cincinnati Reds and Bill Madlock, Phil Garner and John Candelaria of the Pittsburgh Pirates can still become free agents at the end of the 1981 season.

The players also agreed to drop a charge of failing to bargain in good faith which they had filed against the owners with the National Labor Relations Board. In return, the Basic Agreement between the union and management, scheduled to expire on Dec. 31, 1983, will be extended one year. In addition, the players' minimum salary will rise from $35,000 to $40,000 in the last year of the present contract.

The pension agreement also was extended a year to March 31, 1985, with the owners' contribution to be negotiated later and become retroactive.

Neither Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, nor Grebey, director of the owners' Player Relations Committee, would claim a victory.

"It's a victory for nobody and a loss for nobody," Grebey said. "It's a good collective bargaining agreement. There's something in it for both sides. The fans of America are the winners in this and the clubs will do everything they can to try to restore the confidence of the fans."

Asked why it took 20 months — including 50 days of an actual strike which wiped out more than 25 percent of the season and will total more than 600 lost games before play resumes — to settle the dispute over compensation, Grebey replied, "There were great differences and it took a great deal of time to find the solutions to resolve them."

Said Miller: "I don't think you can total this thing up the way you total a boxscore — who wins and who loses. But I think it was a victory for the spirit of the players. I believe it will stand them in good stead in the future for working conditions, for bargaining procedures and in their personal lives."

Nevertheless, Rusty Staub of the New York Mets, who attended almost every negotiating session, emphasized that the settlement would not please the players 100 percent.

"A lot of people won't like it," he said, "but I think it will be ratified. Something has been taken away, but it had to be negotiated."

Under terms of the settlement on pool compensation, which must be ratified by both sides, a team may protect 26 players. However, if it signs a "type A" free agent — i.e., one ranked in the top 20 percent based on his previous two years' performance statistics — it may only protect 24 players. The players had previously opposed such direct punishment.

"It was a take-away issue from the minute go," said Garner. "Anything we gave up was a loss."

The full terms of the settlement were to be made public later today, Grebey said.

The players association issued veiled warnings to the owners concerning future negotiations and it was obvious that a good deal of bitterness remains. It will be a long, long time before this strike is forgotten by either side.

"They were negotiations of intimidation and misjudgment by certain people on the Player Relations Committee," Staub said. "We stood up for our identity and not having these types of ultimatums put on us (referring to the owners' invoking a unilateral compensation plan that caused the walkout) and never having these kind of tactics used again."

"We had no choice. The strike was forced on us. It was obvious they had a schedule. They were determined to test the organization to the fullest limits. I hope they never try to do it again because their success ratio will be the same. It was a test of our organization and an attempt to take back what we won in arbitration."

And Baltimore's Doug DeCinces, the American League player representative, added, "I seriously doubt the owners will ever try to challenge the association again."

The two-man negotiating teams met in the downtown office of National League president Chub Feeney, some four blocks from the Doral Inn, headquarters of federal mediator Kenneth Moffett. It marked the first joint talks since negotiations collapsed in Washington, D.C., one week earlier. They had been moved to the nation's capital from New York at the request of U.S. Secretary of Labor Raymond J. Donovan.

Miller said, however, that "the week in Washington was important because the differences first began to narrow under his (Donovan's) auspices."

Moffett described his role in the final round of bargaining as "minimal." The mediator was closeted in his hotel room while the two-man teams thrashed out the settlement a few blocks away. He talked periodically with both sides by telephone.

Moffett was he had no indication when he called for a resumption of the talks that a settlement was in the offing.

"Nobody wanted to meet except me," he said.

And when the appointed hour arrived at 2 p.m., EDT, Thursday, neither Miller nor Grebey had shown up at the hotel. Within the next hour, however, both sides informed Moffett of the private face-to-face talks in Feeney's office.

"I was surprised when I heard they weren't here," Moffett said, "but right away I knew. It's done and I'm tickled to death. We got them back together, but they did the rest. Now it's back to reading the boxscores."

At 4 p.m., EDT, Thursday, Moffett said he would have an announcement between 6:30-7 p.m. At 7:30, an aide said Moffett would appear when he had something to say. That vigil by dozens of newsmen lasted all night.

Although an agreement was reached shortly after midnight and word of the settlement came from several club owners, it was not announced officially until Moffett stepped out of an elevator at 5:35 a.m. and said, "It's settled."

Asked what might have led to a change in the stalemate, Moffett quipped: "Didn't the owners meet last (Wednesday) night? Check how much blood is on the rug."

Half an hour later, Miller and Grebey arrived on the scene and made it official.

"I want to say a few words to the fans of America," Grebey said. "Baseball is back in the headlines, we're gonna play ball."

Full Strike Effects Never To Be Known

By SAM BOYLE
AP Sports Writer

The baseball strike canceled hundreds of games, directly affected thousands of people and cost millions of dollars.

Ballplayers went without pay, stadium beer vendors went without jobs, cities went without tax revenues.

And America went without baseball.

The full effects of the strike, settled today after 50 days and more than 25 percent of the 1981 season were lost, probably never will be known.

Some of the impact can be measured in financial terms.

—Cincinnati, the city where the game supposedly began, asked the Reds to pay it back for money it lost.

—Philadelphia, which last year staged a wild celebration in the street when its Phillies won their first World Series in 98 years, reported losses this year of up to $100,000 per missed home game.

—Eddie Lard, batboy for the New York Mets, lost $3.35 an hour for each game not played.

—Bookies, taxi drivers and bartenders reported that business was off.

—Cleveland said it lost about $4.5 million when the July 14 All-Star Game was postponed. It remains to be seen how much of the money is regained when the strike-halted season resumes with that annual classic on Aug. 9.

—Even though the owners were protected by $50 million in strike insurance, there were still losses. Club officials have generally refused to discuss the impact of the strike on their finances.

But the real effects of the strike may come in the way the game known as the national pastime is perceived by the public.

An Associated Press-NBC poll of 1,599 Americans taken in the fifth week of the strike showed that 46 percent of the respondents said they had a lower opinion of the game because of the strike. Also, 46 percent of those that responded said they did not miss baseball at all.

As in any poll, the AP-NBC poll has a margin of error of three percentage points because of variations in the sample.

But it is plain that baseball has a rebuilding job to perform. Now that the strike is over the public has to be won back, the players reconditioned and the wounds healed. And with preseason football about to start, baseball will be competing for the fans' attention.

"I feel sorry for the vendors and the help that works for us because a lot of them depend on their tuition money that they earn during the summer," Rico Picardi, a Boston representative for a ballpark concessionaire said during the strike.

"The tap is turned off," economist Edward Malloy said, during the strike, of its financial impact on Pittsburgh. "I would expect that if the strike is settled, some of that money would come back, but some of it will never come back."

For the fan, the end of the strike means he may finally be able to get some use out of the ticket he may have been holding.

Roughly 700 games will have been wiped out by the time the regular season resumes the day after the All-Star Game. The 26 major league teams had various refund policies for advance tickets sold for games canceled after the strike began June 12.

West Clobbers East In 2nd Half

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — West All-Stars coach Elmer Aldridge says his team had some narrow escapes, but avoided mistakes in the second half to pummel the East team 25-3 in the East-West All-Star prep football game Thursday night.

"Mental mistakes hurt us in the first half but we came back and didn't make them," said Aldridge of Avery County. "We had some narrow escapes but our offensive line opened holes up the middle and our runners found them."

East coach Jerry McGee of Edenton said: "Our offense was never in the position to open up. Their defense kept us down. They only used one play that killed us, a trap, and they used it to death."

West quarterback Ethan Horton of Kannapolis scored two touchdowns and directed another scoring drive to fuel the West's easy victory. He capped scoring drives of 40 and 65 yards, each coming on 1-yard runs.

Horton engineered the West's first touchdown drive with 2:23 left in the first quarter. Mark Huggins of Hickory hit on the conversion for the 7-0 lead, but went on to miss three other conversions in the contest.

With time running out in the first half, Horton fumbled and Pete Brown recovered for the East on the 30-yard line. Although aided by a pass interference, the East stalled at the 18 and soccer-style place kicker Chris Goff of Dunn slammed a 35-yard field goal, closing the gap to 7-3 at halftime.

But the West took the second half kickoff on its 35-yard line and mounted a sustained attack that resulted in Horton's second touchdown of the game, a 1-yard burst that forged the West a 13-3 advantage with 6:29 left in the third period.

The East offense, stymied throughout the contest, stalled at the 29 on the ensuing kickoff and Jimmy Walden of Northeast Guilford raced 24 yards to give the West a commanding 20-3 lead with 11:54 left to play.

For its final touchdown the West marched 35 yards in 10 plays, Anthony Means of North Mecklenburg getting the payoff from three yards out.

Walden (bound for East Carolina) finished as the game's leading rusher with 106 yards on 14 carries and Terry Baxter, a high school teammate of Horton, ran 13 times for 88 yards.

The stalwart West defense kept the East bottled up for most of the game, allowing minus-2 yards rushing. Meanwhile, the West rolled up 274 yards on the ground.

Snow Hill Wins Area Title, 10-1

RALEIGH — Snow Hill pushed over single runs in the first two innings, one on a solo homer by David Kester, and went on to record a 10-1 victory over Raleigh last night, wrapping up the Area I American Legion baseball championship.

Snow Hill, which lost the first and fifth games in the best-of-seven series, ended up winning the playoff, four games to two. The team will now meet the winner of the Richmond County-Brunswick County series, which had the former leading 3-2 going into last night's games.

"We'll probably start that series around Tuesday," Snow Hill coach Jim Fulghum said.

Snow Hill jumped to an early lead in the top of the first, scoring once. David Shirley reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. He moved up when Jabo Fulghum's fly to right was dropped, and scored when Kevin Korpi grounded out.

Raleigh, however, came right back to tie it up in the bottom of the frame. Thomas Outlaw singled, stole second and moved on when no one covered the base. He scored when Jerry Woodlief singled.

However, Korpi held Raleigh to just two hits the rest of the night, and allowed no more Post 1 runs.

Snow Hill regained the lead in the top of the second, when Kester knocked the ball out of the park for a 2-1 lead.

The winners then added four more in the fifth. Bobby Avery, Gary Ream and Greg Hardison all singled, loading the bases. Fulghum singled in two runs, and Korpi reached on an error, scoring the third. Frank Milkovits then singled in Fulghum with the fourth run, making it 6-1.

The final four came in the next inning. Wade Corbett, Avery and Ream again got singles to load the bases. Hardison reached on an error, fielder's choice that allowed two runs to score. After Fulghum walked, Korpi doubled, driving in the final two.

Hardison, Avery and Ream led the Snow Hill hitting with two each. No one had more than one for Raleigh.

New Agreements Offer More Games

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — The NCAA has reached agreement with CBS and ABC on a four-year college football television contract that increases the number of games by about 20 percent and the amount of money by more than 100 percent over the current contract.

Sources told The Associated Press that the entire package, split evenly between the two networks, is worth about $263 million. The current four-year pact with ABC, which runs through this season, called for $113 million.

In addition, the two-network arrangement will increase from four to six the number of times the so-called "glamor" teams can appear on television.

To determine which network gets what games, CBS and ABC will have, in effect, a "draft" of games each spring, with the winner of a coin flip choosing first.

But the whole issue may still be in doubt. NBC, now 0-for-2 in NCAA dealings this year, said it would continue talking with the College Football Association on a football agreement all its own.

The NCAA turned down an NBC offer for prime-time Saturday night football telecasts and certain factions within the CFA, which includes all major football conferences and independents except the Pac-10 and Big Ten, are engaged in a bitter behind-the-scenes fight with the NCAA over football television rights.

Earlier this year, NBC lost its rights to the lucrative NCAA Basketball Tournament, and thus has been practically shut out of major college sportscasts.

However, Art Watson, president of NBC Sports, denied that ill feelings between NBC and the NCAA had anything to do with what shapes up as a possible NBC-CFA alliance.

"Nobody's upset," Watson said in an interview. "The basketball thing was a pure bidding war. But here was an opportunity for one of America's great sports institutions to move into the 20th century. First, we have to come to an agreement with the CFA. I think those steps should come within the next 10 days."

Watson admitted the NCAA-CFA dispute "might end up in the courts. But if it does, that would be strictly between them."

Charles M. Neinas, CFA executive director, is getting married Saturday in Colorado and couldn't be reached for comment.

Tom Hansen, an assistant executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said each network will provide 14 exposures and 70 appearances annually for NCAA teams.

An "exposure" occurs when every section of the country receives a telecast and an appearance is a team's participation in a televised game. Thus, a national telecast of the Oklahoma-Nebraska game would count as one exposure and two appearances.

ABC's current agreement calls for 116 appearances and 23 exposures annually.

"This is almost a 21 percent increase in appearance opportunities," Hansen said.

The NCAA also figures to boost the game's promotional activity with the two networks competing against each other, although care will be taken to assure their games won't go head-to-head.

"We think there will be new interest with the competitive element," Hansen said.

The dividing up of the games will be a pre-season "Top Twenty" rating after a fashion. Early each spring, ABC and CBS will flip a coin to see who picks first, then they'll divide the top dozen or so games for the coming season.

"These are the games that are so critical we've got to make sure the distribution is equitable," Hansen said.

After that's taken care of, the networks will draft by dates. The one picking first will choose a certain date on which it reserves first-choice rights, then the other will pick a date it wants.

Each Monday during the season the network that picked the upcoming Saturday will choose which game it wants, then the second network will pick an alternate, and it will be up to the second network to change its game's starting time to avoid a conflict.

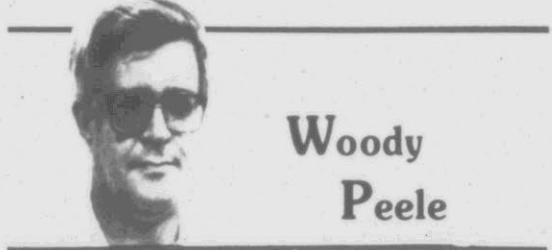

"In essence, they'll divide the key games in the early spring, then do a second draft of dates and later on a week-by-week basis," he said.

ABC, which has held exclusive college football rights since 1967, was more subdued than CBS in its announcement Thursday.

"We are anxiously awaiting the start of this coming football season and we are pleased to continue our association with the NCAA with four more seasons beginning in 1982," said Jim Spence, senior vice president of ABC Sports.

The CBS statement didn't hide the network's pleasure with the new arrangement.

"We at CBS Sports are delighted to be a part of the stature and quality of college football," said Van Gordon Sauter, president of CBS sports.

Woody Peele

Monday, area high school football teams will take to the field for their first day of practice for the 1981 season.

Play can begin on August 28, but some teams, like Rose High School, will wait until the next Friday, September 4, to open the year.

And this is a year marked with a number of changes on the local scene. New coaches abound, and conference alignments have changed all around.

About the only conference with no changes is the 1-A Tobacco Belt Conference, of which Jamesville is a member. And there may be a chance in that yet, but it will not affect football. Belhaven and Pantego are currently considering merging this fall, a move that would reduce that conference by one team. Belhaven plays football, but Pantego does not.

In the 3-A ranks, there are several changes that will affect the area. First, the Northeastern Conference has a new member and becomes a nine-team league. Bertie, formerly a member of the Division I Conference, has elected to drop back to the 3-A ranks and rejoins the Northeastern, from whence it came before becoming a 4-A school.

The Eastern Carolina Conference has lost two members, D.H. Conley and North Lenoir. Both of them have been switched to the 3-A Coastal Conference, which without attracting new members would have had to fold. (It takes five for a league and changes in that league over the past few seasons had reduced it to four for this year.) With the new additions, the league will have six schools, including West Carteret, White Oak, Havelock and West Craven.

The Eastern Carolina, without the two it lost, will continue with seven members.

Finally, the Division I league, which has apparently been given a name at long last — The Big East — has received Kinston as a new member (moving from the Division II area) to replace Bertie.

Coaches will just about have to wear name tags to be recognized this fall during the early going anyway. Of the nine area schools covered by The Daily Reflector, five of them have new coaches this fall, although some were around earlier.

Rose High School's Dave Bumgarner, recovering from heart surgery, is taking a leave of absence, and assistant Ronald Vincent will serve as interim coach. A decision on whether Bumgarner is to continue as coach will be made in the spring.

In the Coastal Conference, Conley will have a new coach in Gerald Garner, who replaces Jimbo Walker. After an 0-10 season last year, Garner can take the Vikings no where but up. He moves to Conley after a year at Rose as junior varsity basketball coach.

The Eastern Carolina Conference's four area teams see three new coaches. Only Dixon Sauls at Ayden-Grifton returns, while Gene Brewer (Farmville Central), Stuart Smith (Greene Central) and Pat Smith (North Pitt) have all left their positions. B.T. Chapel is the new North Pitt coach, while Spence Grantham has taken over at Greene Central. Farmville Central is now headed up by Gil Carroll. Grantham is the only one who was at his school previously.

Darlene Chaney, 6-2 incoming freshman center for Coach Cathy Andruzzi, scored 14 points in the third quarter to spark the East team to a 72-66 win in the annual Virginia All-Star game recently. The Richmond, Va., star finished the game with 20 points and nine rebounds, and was the outstanding player.

East Carolina's football team will begin reporting in a little more than a week. The freshmen and transfers report on August 8, while the veterans come back on August 12. Practice begins on August 10 for the newcomers, with the full team starting on August 14, leaving only three weeks for the Pirates to get ready for their season opener against Western Carolina. That's scheduled for September 5 in Ficklen Stadium.

Amos May Not Play This Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A contract dispute with the San Diego Chargers means former North Carolina tailback Amos Lawrence may not play in the National Football League this season, his agent says.

"I have discussed the possibility with him and it will be his option," Alex Phillips told the Raleigh Times in a telephone interview Thursday. "I won't want to keep Amos out of football, but I want to see that he gets a fair wage deal."

Phillips said the Chargers and Lawrence are far from making a contract agreement. "Completely apart," he said. "I think I made a good recommendation to the Chargers for Lawrence's services, but they think otherwise. The difference is almost ridiculous. San Diego's offer is less than what I got for a free agent signed by another team. San Diego wants Amos to sign a three-year pact and not pay anything for it."

"I'm not trying to break the club or create any ill feelings between the Chargers and Amos," Phillips said. "But I don't think the player should be put in a position where he has to accept any type of contract."

Lawrence has missed nearly two weeks of the Chargers' pre-season training and is currently in Chapel Hill. He said he was leaving all negotiations to Phillips.

Lawrence, who had four 1,000-plus yards rushing seasons at North Carolina, was the Chargers' fourth-round draft choice.

Unless the rights to Lawrence are traded to another team, Phillips said he cannot negotiate with other teams that have shown an interest in him. "His options are he can agree to the Chargers' offer or go back in the draft next year," Phillips said.

San Diego spokesman Bill Johnston said negotiations have broken off. "There is nothing going on at this time," Johnston said in a telephone interview from San Diego. "No conversation or anything. We don't know what he (Lawrence) intends to do."

Johnston refused to discuss the Chargers' offer to Lawrence.

Johnston said the Chargers were very impressed by Lawrence at their mini-camp right after the draft in May, but that their attitude changed during his absence from camp.

"The coaches' viewpoint now is they're not counting on him," Johnston said. "The coaches would like to have him here, but they can only worry about the players here, not those who aren't. They feel Lawrence is only hurting himself."

Hooks In Putt Win

Rodney Hooks aced the first hole of sudden death to beat Eddie Robinson and win the Thursday Nite Amateur Tournament at the Greenville Putt-Putt Golf Course last night.

Hooks and Robinson finished with identical 9 under par 63's for the 36-hole tournament. Jay Wynne was one stroke back for third and one stroke ahead of fourth place Don Lewis. Robbie Ehrmann won a sudden death from Alan Wooten for fifth after tying with 67's Johnny Carrow also placed with a 3 under 69.

Gant Ready To Quit His Role Of Bridesmaid

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Harry Gant says he is always the bridesmaid — the driver who runs strong but never wins. But the Denver, N.C., driver says maybe Sunday will be his day.

Gant drove his Buick to the pole position Thursday for Sunday's $294,000 Talladega 500 NASCAR stock car race at the Alabama International Motor Speedway.

Gant, who has had five second place finishes this season, averaged 195.897 miles per hour to top Bobby Allison for the top starting spot. Allison, the Winston Cup point leader, posted a close second at an average speed of 195.777 mph in his Buick. Twenty drivers qualified for the 40-car starting field.

Twelve different drivers have won the 12 Talladega 500's so far. Gant has never won at the 2.66-mile, high-banked speedway.

Trailing Gant and Allison in time trials were Dale Earnhardt, Terry Labonte, Cale Yarborough, Neil Bonnett, Buddy Baker, Joe Ruttman, Rick Wilson and Ron Bouchard.

"We were sweating it out before Bobby (Allison) and the others ran. I'm really happy I finally won the pole position," Gant said.

"The only thing that would make me any happier is winning the race Sunday. I'd sure like to add my name to that list of winners."

In qualifying for Saturday's ARCA 200 race, Billy Harvey of Del Ray Beach, Fla., clocked 200.642 mph in his Oldsmobile to win the pole. The speed just missed setting the world closed course record of 201.104 mph, set by the late Bobby Isaac in 1971.

Rounding out the top five ARCA qualifiers were Mark Martin, Joe Ruttman, Tim

Richmond and Bob Dotter.

Here are the top 20 qualifiers Thursday for Sunday's $294,000 Talladega 500 stock car race at the Alabama International Motor Speedway:

1. Harry Gant, Denver, N.C., Buick, 195.897 mph
2. Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala., Buick, 194.777
3. Dale Earnhardt, Kannapolis, N.C., Pontiac, 194.457

Most Happy Over Strike Settlement

By JOHN NELSON
 AP Sports Writer

"Delighted is the word I would use," Seattle Mariners President Dan O'Brien said, and his words echoed throughout the country. The baseball strike was ending, and all was right with the world.

"I love it, obviously. Sanity has returned to baseball," said Eddie Einhorn, co-owner of the Chicago White Sox.

Even hours before it became official, the Associated Press learned that negotiators had reached tentative agreement as the parties to the dispute began to notify owners and players around the country. The official announcement of agreement came at 5:30 a.m.

Sleepy-eyed baseball executives and players began to react with delight and relief to the news that the seven-week-old strike had been settled.

"I couldn't believe it would ever happen, and every day it was prolonged mystified me even more," said California Angels Manager Gene Mauch. "Now that it's over, I'm going to forget it ever happened."

San Diego Padres shortstop

Ozzie Smith greeted the news from his colleagues in New York with "a sigh of relief, excitement."

"This thing really got boring," Smith said. "I was getting into it with the wife, the dog and the kids. If it didn't happen this week, we could have kissed the season goodbye."

Atlanta Braves Executive Vice President Al Thornwell spent a sleepless night, waiting for the word he felt — hoped — would come.

"It's been a long night, but it's been worth it," he said. "We were notified about 2 a.m. It's been a long 50 days also."

Awakened in the middle of the night, Texas Rangers majority owner Eddie Chiles said: "I'm damned happy. I think we can get everybody back together and hit the ground running. I think they (the players) will come together and work hard."

Padres President Ballard Smith said he hoped each side had learned its lesson. "I don't think anyone's fared too well during this strike," he said. "owners, players or the fans ... I just hope we never have to go through something like this again."

Perhaps happiest of all were the negotiators themselves.

"I'm very happy after ... how many days? Fifty?" said mediator Kenneth Moffett.

Ray Grebey, head of the owners' bargaining team, called the settlement "a victory for nobody, a loss for nobody — a good collective bargaining agreement for everybody."

And Marvin Miller, who negotiated for the players, added: "I wanted to pay tribute to all of the major league players whose ability to withstand this kind of pressure and whose resistance and determination have been remarkable and clearly responsible for the ability to make this settlement."

"I think that's great," was the way Toronto catcher Ernie Whitt greeted the news. "That's a great way to be woken up."

Players had varying opinions about how long it would take to regain form.

Philadelphia shortstop Larry Bowa said, "I've been throwing and running every day, so it shouldn't take me too long to get ready."

"The pitchers probably will have the biggest problem," Bowa said. "Throwing in a workout is not the same as pitching in a game."

Pitcher Wayne Garland, the Cleveland Indians' player representative, said he didn't think he could be ready by the proposed Aug. 10 date of resumption.

"No, I don't think it's enough time," he said. And he added that he thought trying to play an All Star Game on Aug. 9, as reported, was "a farce. I don't think the players could play up to the expectations of the fans around the country."

Hancock Hopes Game Coming

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — It hasn't been a very good season for quiet little Phil Hancock.

In fact, Hancock said, "it's ranged from poor to bad."

He has won less than $13,000 this season. That doesn't cover his expenses.

"I've been trying to work a couple of things into my game, with the grip, the stance, and I haven't been comfortable with it," Hancock said after a hard-won, 3-under-par 68 had given him the first-round lead Thursday in the 63rd Canadian Open Golf Championship.

"My game is just now starting to come around. I'm playing better now, shooting some better scores."

Tom Kite, who has had an amazing record of consistency this year including finishes of seventh or better in nine of his last 10 starts, topped the big group at 69, a single stroke back. Also at that figure were Don Pooley, Tom Jenkins, Jim Thorpe, Peter Oosterhuis, Bob Eastwood, Lon Hinkle, Mike Reid and Bill Sander.

U.S. Open champion David Graham was with Nicklaus in the group at 70.

Bruce Lietzke, winner of three titles this year, matched par 71 in the mild, sunny weather. Masters champion Tom Watson had to rally from a string of four consecutive bogeys to shoot a 72.

Lee Trevino, a three-time winner of this national championship, struggled to a 74, Gary Player shot 75 and Ray Floyd had 76.

Hancock, 27, whose only PGA Tour victory came last fall in the Hall of Fame Classic, dropped a 35-foot birdie putt on the first hole, 1-putted the first four, missed five greens and saved par on all of them and 1-putted nine times.

"It was a good putting round; not outstanding but good," he said. "I was able to get the ball close to the hole a couple of times, and with the greens bumpy and not putting true, that's what you've got to do here — get it close."

Winterville Is Champ

Winterville went unbeaten through the double elimination event. Both teams, however, qualified for play in the state tournament, starting next week in Kinston.

Winterville, which had six hits, committed but one fielding error, as compared to four misplays by Greene County, which had five hits. Sherwood Wilder was the winning pitcher, while Jamie Lang took the loss.

Kyle Loveless led the Winterville hitting with two in three trips, one of them a homer. Shea Beaman had two hits in three appearances for Greene County.

Both teams begin play in the state tournament on August 5. Winterville will play Wilder's Grove of Raleigh at 4 p.m. that day, while Greene County meets Franklin County at 6 p.m.

Baywood Is Defeated

Washington defeated Baywood Racquet Club, 5-4, in a hotly contested Roanoke Tennis League match last night.

The marathon match, not decided until the final number one doubles match, lasted 6 1/2 hours. In that fateful match, Washington's Will Jones and Larry Walker downed Norm Rosenfeld and Wes Hankins, 7-6 (7-5), 3-6, 7-5.

The win boosted the Washington record to 6-1 on the year, while Baywood fell to 4-3. The two meet again on Sunday in the final match of the year for both. A Washington win in that would sew up the league championship.

Summary:
 Larry Walker (W) d. Paul Farley, 6-0, 6-1.
 Wes Hankins (B) d. Will Jones, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3.
 Steve Creech (B) d. Bob Rich, 6-3, 6-4.
 Tom Sayetta (B) d. Tom Richter, 6-3, 6-0.
 Paige Davis (W) d. Richard Tatt, 6-2, 6-3.
 Pete Peters (W) d. Ray Gruber, 6-2, 7-5.
 Jones-Walker (W) d. Norm Rosenfeld-Hankins, 7-6 (7-5), 3-6, 7-5.
 Creech-Sayetta (B) d. Brian Ross-Richter, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1.
 Rich-Peters (W) d. Farley-Gruber, 6-4, 6-2.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Guillaume's comic character "Benson" continues his climb up the social ladder this fall, moving from the governor's mansion to his cabinet. But he'll still be a know-it-all, eager and able to burst anybody's balloon.

Benson, once the butler on "Soap," will remain nobody's fool. Tonight on ABC's "Benson" you'll see him as the head of the governor's household staff, but this fall he'll become the state budget director.

"He won't change. He'll still eschew pomposity and hogwash," Guillaume said.
"Everybody connected with Benson had an evolutionary sense of the character," the actor said in an interview. "This job will require more responsibility. He's obviously an intelligent man seeking larger fields to conquer. Benson's upgrading has always been a facet of the character."

Guillaume was a distinguished Broadway actor in "Guys and Dolls" and

"Golden Boy" before he achieved pop stardom on TV. This fall, he'll also be seen in television remake of the hit "Purlie" for Showtime Entertainment on cable.

Guillaume was criticized by some black groups when he accepted the butler role.
"Some people become picky and overcritical when they see black actors. They only saw the apron; they were hung up on a job title," he said.

"They didn't see the inherent dignity of the character. They missed the vibes I was trying to get across. You are a person, you have dignity, no matter what the job, as long as you try to pursue excellence."

Guillaume said his grandmother worked at several jobs to raise him and his three siblings. One job was housecleaning.

"She worked for a lady who had no space and could have cleaned her one room herself, but she was too lazy. It was inherent in this lady's personality that she considered herself better than people working for her. My grandmother was working in a respectable job to put us through school. Now who was really better?"

He said he wouldn't have accepted the original butler role if it meant being subservient or a stereotypical ghetto black.

"The creators had an enlightened view that came through in their attempts to satirize," he said. "The original script had no inherent problems that couldn't be talked out. Some scripts create idiots, and no amount of talking can work them out."

Guillaume says he is concerned about stereotypes of whites and blacks on television, but adds that his race hasn't been a particular problem in his career.

"My problems are artistic, like any other actor," he said. "Robert Redford has similar problems. There are people who don't like him because he's good-looking. It's not fair to isolate black actors."

So what stereotype does Robert Guillaume find most offensive?

"No group is more maligned on television than poor white folks," he said, ticking off CBS' satire on Southerners in "Dukes of Hazzard" and "Enos."

Study Sharing Of $50,000

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Local Masonic lodge officials are looking into various charities to determine which ones should get a share of a $50,000 donation from comedian Richard Pryor.

Ronald Brown, past master of a Masonic lodge here, said he received the check this week from Pryor, a Peoria native who asked that the money be distributed to charities in his hometown.

Brown said $10,000 has been earmarked for a special school, and another $10,000 has been set aside for a drug-abuse program.

Considering Texas' Story

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Author James Michener, who has penned stories about the South Pacific, Colorado, Chesapeake Bay and Israel, is considering writing a history of Texas, state officials say.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby told the state Senate on Thursday that Michener, 74, "was considering taking on a history of the state of Texas as his next project."

"It would be a very nice thing to have happen if we can make it happen," said Gov. Bill Clements, who said he met with Michener recently at Clements' estate in Middleburg, Va.

Michener, who lives in Pipeville, Pa., praised the state in an address to the Senate.

"Anyone who comes from back North to Texas realizes what a vibrant, exploding state this is."

Another Marijuana Vessel Seizure

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The Coast Guard has completed its third major seizure within nine days of a vessel in the Atlantic loaded with marijuana, authorities said.

The 80-foot fishing vessel Viviana, observed intermittently by the Coast Guard off the Eastern Seaboard since June 23, was seized Thursday night when authorities discovered an estimated 20 tons of marijuana in the vessel's hold while fighting a fire aboard the ship, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The seized marijuana has an estimated street value of about $20 million, officials said.

Petty Officer 2nd Class Bruce Pimental of the 5th District Coast Guard headquarters here said that the Viviana was seized by the Coast Guard cutter Vigilant 310 miles southeast of Cape Fear, N.C., at 6 p.m.

Thursday.

The cutter began towing the Viviana to Wilmington, N.C., where it was expected to arrive Saturday evening, Pimental said.

The Vigilant, which had been following the Viviana for about 12 hours trying unsuccessfully to make radio contact with it, reported that the vessel "started listing to its starboard (right) side and smoke was observed coming from within the ship at 11:30 a.m. Thursday," Pimental said, and nine crewmembers were rescued from the boat at that time.

The crewmembers, who were not identified, were taken into custody when Coast Guardsmen returned to the Viviana and discovered the marijuana in the vessel's hold "while fighting several small fires" and pumping water which was flooding the vessel, he said.

The vessel's seizure is the third in two weeks in the 5th District.

On July 22, the Coast Guard seized about 13 tons of marijuana from a yacht about 18 miles off the Virginia Beach coast. Three men were charged in that case.

The Miami-ported vessel Leon was seized Monday off the North Carolina coast with three to five tons of marijuana aboard, authorities said. Five crew members were taken into custody and five crew members from the Coast Guard cutter Tamaroa took their place, to sail the vessel into Wilmington, N.C.

The Leon was reported missing for 45 hours until it was discovered by the Coast Guard Wednesday at the mouth of the Cape Fear river in North Carolina. A Coast Guard spokesman said malfunctioning equipment had caused the vessel to drift off course. After a massive search by authorities, the Leon was discovered Wednesday at the mouth of the Cape Fear River in North Carolina.

Pimenta said the Viviana had first attracted the attention of authorities on July 23 when it did not make contact with a Coast Guard helicopter requesting it to aid a stricken sailboat 250 miles southeast of New York City.

The helicopter, from Elizabeth City, N.C., reported the incident to Coast Guard officials and said that the north-bound Viviana had changed course and was heading south, he said.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm weather is expected in the forecast period, until Saturday morning, for most of the country. Showers are forecast for the Southwest and for the southern Appalachians, Midwest and Great Lakes. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Slightly cooler weather will bless North Carolina this weekend, the National Weather Service reported today.

But beachcombers should be prepared for cloudy skies and scattered showers, especially along the southern coast.

A large area of high pressure centered over northern Pennsylvania continues to maintain a flow of air from the east and northeast today. This circulation has been responsible for a higher degree of clouds and even some rainfall over the past 24 hours.

Temperatures Friday and Saturday will range in the 70s over the mountains and in the low to mid 80s elsewhere. Nights will be pleasant with 60s east of the mountains and cooler 50s over the higher elevations.

Coastal winds will be east to northeast at light speeds, although a small craft advisory is in effect for the coastal waters today. Temperatures around 80 during the afternoon and in the upper 60s at night are predicted for the coast.

Temperatures Thursday afternoon varied considerably because of thicker clouds and some scattered rainfall. The Rocky-Mount-Wilson airport reported 86 degrees, while at Charlotte and Hickory the temperature stayed in the mid-60s. Some of the higher mountains were also in the cooler 60s Thursday afternoon.

Rainfall Thursday afternoon into the early morning hours today has been light and restricted to the extreme western areas of the Piedmont and foothills, over the mountains and near the coast.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Improve your appearance via right treatments and make a fine impression on others. You can rely on your good judgment now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Making early plans for recreation later in the day is wise. Take time to improve your surroundings. Express happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know what it is that family members desire of you and then do your best to please them. Think constructively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure regular routines are handled early in the day. A communication should be taken care of without delay.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Morning is the best time for handling any monetary matters. Use good judgment and add to present abundance.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A new plan for the future can make your life more satisfying. You have added energy and can accomplish a lot today.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be most courteous with everyone, which is fine, provided you give as fine an education as you can. The field of entertainment is especially good in this chart. Give religious training early in life.

Wilson Editor Is Suddenly Stricken

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Wilson Daily Times editor John W. Scott died at his home Thursday at the age of 59.

Scott, who had been a journalist for the past 30 years, had been ill since May and recently was treated at Wilson Memorial Hospital and Duke Medical Center.

The Columbia, S.C., native was a Columbia police officer before becoming a journalist. He was a graduate of the University of South Carolina School of Journalism and worked for The State in Columbia for 11 years.

Scott resigned as telegraph editor of The State in January 1962 to become managing editor of The Wilson Daily Times and was promoted to editor in 1978.

He was president of the North Carolina Association of Afternoon Dailies in 1976-77 and was a member of Sigma Delta Chi, the Society of Professional Journalists. In 1976 he won the second-place award of the North Carolina Press Association for editorial writing in newspapers of 15,000 to 35,000 circulation.

Scott served in the Navy aboard the USS Texas during World War II and was a member of the Sertoma Club and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Survivors include his wife, Vera Frick Scott; two sons, Ross of Gary, Ind., and Gene of Wilson; a daughter, Beth, a student at East Carolina University; and two grandchildren. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Insecticide Fear Said Overblown

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A North Carolina State University toxicologist and professor of entomology says the dispute about the insecticide malathion used to control California's Mediterranean fruit fly has been blown out of proportion.

Dr. Frank Guthrie says the insecticide is no more toxic than a dose of aspirin and has been used in North Carolina and other states for many years.

"As for all the controversy in California, I'm afraid Governor Brown is just fanning an emotional flame which could result in a great deal of needless worry for the state's citizens," Guthrie said.

The bidding:
North East South West
3 NT Pass 4 ♦ Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

When the preponderance of your side's assets are concentrated in one hand, entries to the weaker hand are often scarcer than hen's teeth. Thus, you have to utilize those entries as judiciously as possible.

North upgraded his hand 1 point for possession of all four aces, so his opening bid was justified. South corrected because his hand was useless at any contract other than his long major. Note that four spades was simply an attempt to improve the contract, not a slam try. South would have had to find some other bid had he been interested in bigger things.

West led the queen of hearts, won by dummy's king. Declarer could take finesses in three suits, but he had only one entry to his hand. However, he used it to best advantage. Declarer won the king of hearts, cashed the ace and entered his hand with a heart ruff. Now he led a trump and inserted dummy's jack. East won, but, at trick four, he found himself end played in four suits!

He did the best he could by leading another heart. South carefully discarded a diamond from his hand and ruffed in dummy. After cashing the ace of trumps and ace of diamonds, declarer came to hand with a diamond ruff and led a low club. Had West followed with a low club, declarer would have played dummy's eight. That would have given him the extra chance of finding West with the jack-nine of clubs as well as the king — if the eight lost to the nine or jack, declarer could later finesse the queen.

However, West inserted the nine of clubs, and the queen lost to the king. East cashed the queen of spades and exited with the king of diamonds. Declarer ruffed, led the ten of clubs and let it ride. What that held, he was home and dry.

Suspended For Surgical Error

CHICAGO (AP) — Two doctors who allegedly operated on the wrong leg of a 9-year-old boy in an attempt to correct a deformity "won't be performing any more surgery" at Cook County Hospital, the president of the county commissioners says.

The board chief, George Dunne, said both surgeons have been suspended pending a hearing on whether they should be fired. Dunne would not identify the doctors or the patient.

The boy ended up with surgery on both legs and was recovering at another Chicago hospital, Dunne said. He is expected to regain use of both his legs, hospital officials said.

"I think the doctors intend to resign," Dunne said. "But whatever, you can be assured they won't be performing any more surgery at this public hospital," which is governed by the board.

"How can such an error occur?" Dunne asked. "Tell me. I'd like to know."

Dunne was told of the mistake hours after it happened July 21 and ordered the physicians fired, then reduced the penalty to a 29-day suspension pending an inquiry by the hospital's surgery department and a hearing by the doctors' colleagues.

Cook County Hospital spokesman Ron Weiss said he did not know the details of how the mistake happened, but said the deformity, caused by a disorder known as Blount's disease, was not obvious.

The affected leg, he said, "was not bent. You couldn't tell by looking at it. As I understand it, you couldn't eyeball it."

Blount's disease hampers bone growth. Weiss said the boy was to have had a pin placed in the leg to help it grow.

But after the surgery on the wrong leg, the senior of the two doctors told the boy's parents of the mistake and, on their agreement, had the youth transferred to another hospital for the proper operation. The surgeon also reversed the operation performed on the healthy leg.

The senior physician belonged to the orthopedic staff and the other was a resident.

Sale Of Bonds Total $109,045

Sales of Series EE and HH Savings Bonds in Pitt County during the second quarter of 1981 were $109,045. Total sales for the first six months amounted to $217,418, according to Bland W. Worley, volunteer state chairman.

For the quarter, April-June sales of U.S. Savings Bonds in North Carolina totalled $14,035,867, bring January-June 1981 sales to $29,678,182.

June Slump In Sale Of Homes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of new single-family homes plunged 17.2 percent in June to the lowest level since the bottom of last year's recession, the government reported Thursday.

The figures, coupled with another recent report that housing starts and building permits for future construction also fell sharply in June, were new evidence that the nation's 1981 housing slump worsened substantially last month.

The new report by the departments of commerce and housing and urban development also said the average price of new one-family houses sold in June jumped $4,000 from May to a record $88,300.

But the main cause of the housing slump, by all accounts, is all-time high interest rates which are keeping prospective buyers from buying and discouraging builders from building. The June sales figure was the lowest in 14 months.

Effects have also spread beyond the housing industry, with government and private economists agreeing that steep declines in construction and sales of houses have held back production of items ranging from building materials to furniture and appliances and the thousands of other goods and services that homeowners buy.

The National Association of Realtors said earlier this week that sales of existing single-family houses rose 6 percent in June.

Mall Rats Breeding A New Species

By LARRY ELKIN
Associated Press Writer
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) —

Thanks to two 20th century phenomena — the shopping center and the computer chip — America's suburban teen-agers may never again know the heat of summer.

Instead, they may become what some Albany security guards call "mall rats," taking up seasonal residence in shopping malls, living on soda, ice cream and fast food and spending uncounted hours in air-conditioned arcades where they pump quarters into electronic games like "Asteroid" and "Space Invaders."

Mall managers like Scott Mumphrey of Wichita, Kan., say the game rooms are part of the shopping center's evolution into a community center — "not a bunch of clothing stores."

Some older shoppers may find the crowds of youngsters noisy, rambunctious and unsettling, but the adolescent invasion is apparently well-received by mall operators nationally.

"There's a category of merchandise specifically created for these youngsters," said Mumphrey. "We create a market for them in our shopping centers, and we don't turn around and say, 'Y'all don't come in here.'"

Mumphrey runs three Wichita malls for Melvin Simon and Associates of Indianapolis, which considers itself the nation's second-biggest mall developer. One of Mumphrey's malls has a gigantic, 9,000-square-foot game room, nearly half the size of a football field.

"Kids don't create problems as such," Mumphrey said. "Maybe their activities don't coincide with the activities of others. They may kind of rumple things up when they're in the stores. It's all part of growing up."

Laverne Schiermeyer of North East Mall in Fort Worth, Texas, credited the operator of his mall's arcade for the kids' good behavior.

"They're well managed," he said. "We do have some problem with children sort of congregating and loitering after the stores close, but we usually ask them to leave, and their parents come get 'em."

Elsewhere, managers said there have been problems, especially when malls became hangouts for "troublemakers." A few run-ins with mall security officers or local police, though, usually settles things.

Larry Ivich, manager of Oakridge Mall in San Jose, Calif., has his staff hold monthly meetings with local police.

"I would strongly suggest it for any community-oriented center," Ivich said. "They know the kids that are problems."

According to Ivich, kids "spend a fair amount of money."

In the Albany suburb of Latham, mall manager John Holmes declared "there's a tremendous amount of money to be made" in electronic games alone.

One arcade already operates in Holmes' Latham Circle Mall. A second is opening in the space next door.

"It's a cash business," Holmes explained. "When it's done properly, it's worth every bit as much as a clothing store, or more."

Despite the game room's profits — he did not give a specific figure — Holmes said mall managers tend to have mixed feelings about the youngsters.

"There've been times when we're sorry we have a game room," he said. "At other times, we're pleased they have somewhere to go."

"Occasionally we have to use a little persuasion on them from the security police," Holmes allowed. "We had to make an example out of two or three of the real troublemakers. The rest just come to enjoy themselves, and they do spend some money."

Mumphrey, 30, said the local drive-in restaurant performed the same function when he was growing up in a small Midwestern town. He paused, then remarked, "Maybe the shopping center has somewhat taken the place of the Dairy Queen and the A&W."

3rd World Plans Study Fuel Goals

By CHRIS ANGELO
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP)
— Third World nations, in need of three times more energy to meet modest development goals within 20 years, are likely to look backwards for solutions, with help from today's technology.

For the half the world's people, the rural poor, at least one-fourth of the energy for development will have to come from draft animals, organic matter, water, wind and sunshine, according to studies by United Nations agencies.

Representatives of 135 countries, gathering in Nairobi, Kenya, Aug. 10-21 for the U.N. Conference on New and Renewable Sources of Energy, will focus on promoting 14 energy sources suited to developing countries.

Developing countries now pay $67 billion a year for oil, and that bill is expected to reach $110 billion a year by 1990, the U.N. Development Program says.

A draft program of action calls for more financial and technical cooperation from the developed countries, exchange of information and training in the developing countries and emphasis on the alternate energy sources in national policy.

"It would take centuries and a disproportionate amount of capital to extend electrification grids to these (rural) areas," said Ishrat Usmani, a U.N. senior inter-regional energy adviser.

Instead, Usmani recommends village energy centers that would use solar energy, wind power and biomass — agricultural and animal waste that can be converted to gas. Demonstration centers are in operation in villages in Sri Lanka, Senegal, Pakistan and the Philippines, he said.

Wind power, harnessed by windmills on farms until the advent of cheap fossil fuels, has made a comeback since the upsurge in oil prices. Wind turbines of one to five megawatts are being built and wind machines are expected to be used in areas away from electrical grids.

A simple, low-cost, tropical windmill was developed in Colombia under a program sponsored by the Netherlands, the Colombian government and the U.N. Development Program and is being manufactured in El Vichada, Colombia. A wind power station is to be designed and installed in China's Zhejiang province under another plan of the Development Program.

Water power, another of man's oldest sources of power, is being used to less than 10 percent of its potential in Africa and Latin America, conference reports say. Small-scale hydropower, through the use of small water turbines, holds promise for hilly areas with streams and has been used extensively in China.

New and renewable sources of energy now account for about 15 percent of world consumption, at least 12 percent of it fuelwood and charcoal, conference reports say.

In rural areas, up to 95 percent of the energy comes from muscle power, organic waste and fuelwood, the world's fourth largest energy source after petroleum, coal and natural gas.

In some countries, wood is being burned faster than it is replaced. By the year 2000, if there is no change in the rate of consumption, some 2.3 billion rural people who rely on firewood will have to switch to other fuels, according to U.N. studies.

There are 400 million draft animals in use in the Third World, and replacing them with tractors would cost an estimated $250 billion. Draft animals — bullocks in Southeast Asia, camels in north Africa, llamas in parts of South America — are expected to be used by two billion people for at least the next 20 years.

Lighter, better carts and other implements, better veterinary care to increase the animals' working life, and shared ownership could increase the production of draft animals, conference officials said.

Other energy sources to be discussed at the conference include the many types of solar energy systems.
