Dismissal Is Begun Of Illegal Strikers

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, its purge of illegally striking air traffic controllers under way, says it now wants to begin "rebuilding the air traffic system." But the controllers say time is on their side and few appear to be giving in.

By late Wednesday, the Federal Aviation Administration had sent just over 900 letters of dismissals to controllers who had not returned to work on the afternoon and night shifts, agency spokesman Charles Murchison said today.

The deadline for dismissing the last of the 13,000 strikers was 11 a.m. EDT today as controllers report to their day shifts across the country.

First reports from eastern airports this morning indicated few controllers on the job who had been among Wednesday's strikers.

Only six of 214 controllers due to work this morning reported at five facilities in and around New York City, three more than Wednesday. At Philadelphia International Airport, just five of 26 controllers due to work were on the job, only one more than Wednesday morning.

Boston's Logan International Airport reported four of 20 scheduled controllers on duty, a decrease of three; while seven of 19 controllers were on the job at Baltimore-Washington International Airport in Maryland, a drop of one.

At both National Airport in Washington and the Miami air traffic control center, officials said no strikers had returned to their posts this morning.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said he expected to have a clearer indication later today of how many controllers remained on strike. He said more than 620 strikers had returned to work by the predawn hours today. While providing no actual figures he said 38 percent to 40 percent of the work force was on the job, including both union and non-union controllers.

Robert E. Poli, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said the controllers remained united in their determination to continue the strike and said only about 3 percent of those who struck Monday had crossed picket lines.

The nation's air traffic, meanwhile, continued to operate smoothly, although on a reduced scale. J. Lynn Helms, FAA administrator, told reporters. He said about three-fourths of the regularly scheduled flights were operating, but with some delays.

"The emphasis right now ... is to figure out how we rebuild the system in the next six, eight, nine, 10 months," Lewis told reporters.

For his part, President Reagan is "very encouraged by our ability to operate the system and the level at which we can operate," presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said today.

Speakes said the White House considers the confrontation with the controllers over and added that he knows "of no possibility there could be any change in our position."

Lewis, too, said he considered the strike over, although he hoped additional controllers would return to work. Anyone not reporting for day shifts this morning — generally 7 a.m. local time — was to be considered fired with no opportunity for amnesty, he said.

As the government began firing controllers Wednesday, federal judges in Kansas and Virginia ordered the first arrests on charges of disobeying court orders against the strike. Steven L. Wallaert of Norfolk, Va., was sentenced to 60 days in jail, and four union officials in Kansas were jailed until they promise to stop picketing or are fired by the government.

Poli accused the administration of "the most blatant form of union busting I have ever seen" and told reporters the government tactic would not work. "It will not end the strike."

Some union members agreed. "If anything this has strengthened our resolve," declared Bob Cameron, a member of the Local 291 in Norfolk.

But the government also showed no sign of pulling back.

"I am sorry and I am sorry for them," President Reagan said as the first letters of dismissal were sent to some controllers by supervisors in centers on the West Coast. "I certainly take no joy out of this. ... I was hoping more of them would recognize the obligation they have. Our position has to be irreversible."

Lewis reiterated that he would not resume negotiations unless the union ended its strike. He said his attention now would be spent increasingly on implementing a plan to replace the dismissed workers.

Lewis acknowledged that rebuilding the controller corps would not be "a cakewalk" but said it could be done within a year or two. Helms said about 6,500 new controllers would have to be found, but added that they could be trained within 21 months.

In the meantime, he said, internal shifting of personnel, a speedup in training apprentice controllers and the use of some supervisors as permanent controllers would allow continued operation of most air traffic.

Lewis said the strike had shown him that the air control system probably had 2,000 to 3,000 more controllers than it needed.

Union president Poli sharply challenged this, claiming some of those working already were becoming fatigued and that he saw no way that a staff nearly one-third the normal level could handle traffic safely on a long-term basis.

"We're only two days into this strike. As the strike goes on it will become more difficult," Poli said in an interview on the "MacNeil-Lehrer Report" television program Wednesday night.

Helms denied there was any threat to safety and said observers sent to control facilities by the Air Line Pilots Association had not complained about unsafe conditions.

Lewis conceded, however, that the public may be inconvenienced for some time. "We're not winning this, and Poli is not winning this."

Sadat Urges President Reagan Open Dialogue With The PLO

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, urging President Reagan to open a dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization, says a separate Palestinian nation should be created as part of the Middle East peace process.

Reagan was reported to have listened to Sadat's ideas for bringing about an Arab-Israeli peace without agreeing with them. And administration officials said they anticipated no change in U.S. policy toward the PLO.

Sadat said he told Reagan on Wednesday that he thinks the United States should reverse past policies and include the PLO in discussions aimed at a comprehensive Middle East peace.

The Egyptian leader is understood to have also told Reagan that there should be a separate Palestinian nation, something the Israelis have adamantly opposed. The Israelis also are against including the PLO in peace talks.

A senior administration official said Reagan didn't respond to Sadat, but indicated he probably would have a response at a meeting today.

Top administration officials said a change in the existing U.S. policy against talking to the PLO is highly unlikely until the PLO recognizes Israel's right to exist and ceases its terrorist activities.

"We'll see what might develop, but at this point there's no change in our policy," said Edwin Meese III, counselor to the president.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. also said there was no change in U.S. policy. "The Palestinians know our requirements very clearly," he added. "All they have to do is meet them."

Reagan has said he considers the PLO to be a terrorist organization.

The main purpose of the Reagan-Sadat meetings, the first between the two leaders, is to explore ways of resuming stalled negotiations on autonomy for Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Reagan assured Sadat in a welcoming ceremony that despite the change in administration, "We have not altered our commitment to peace or our desire to continue building" upon the 1978 Camp David accords that have served as the basis for peace negotiations.

In a toast to Reagan at a White House dinner, Sadat said, "the willingness of the Palestinians to accept a cease-fire in Lebanon and uphold it ... is a turning point that should not escape our notice. In fact, it means for the first time the Palestinians have come close to endorsing a peaceful solution."

The Palestinian action, he said, "is added ammunition for our call for mutual and simultaneous recognition between the Israelis and the Palestinians."

He told Reagan that the United States could help the peace process "by holding a dialogue with the Palestinians through their representatives."

France Again Seeks Evacuate Citizens Detained In Tehran

PARIS (AP) — France sent another airliner to Iran today in a second attempt to evacuate 60 French citizens prevented from leaving Tehran airport.

France urged French citizens to leave Iran and recalled its ambassador Wednesday in a dispute with Iran that arose after France granted political asylum to former Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

Iran has demanded Bani-Sadr's extradition and has organized demonstrations at the French Embassy in Tehran.

President Francois Mitterrand's chief of staff, Pierre Bergevoey, said French and Iranian officials were meeting to negotiate a solution after a first Air France plane had to take off empty from Tehran earlier today.

French news reports said Iranian officials were insisting on checking whether the French had any tax liabilities before allowing them to leave the country.

Mitterrand issued an official communique Wednesday urging all French citizens to leave Iran temporarily. The French Foreign Ministry has said there are about 140 French citizens in Iran, including 15 diplomats.

Mitterrand's statement said continued demonstrations against France in Tehran "could give birth to uncontrollable actions that would endanger French citizens living there."

Angry crowds demonstrated outside the French Embassy in Tehran for two days last week after Bani-Sadr arrived in France.

Bergevoey also said the French government had recalled Ambassador Guy Geogry for consultations before Iran told him to leave the country within three days. He said Iran issued that order to "save face."

Mitterrand announced Geogry's recall in the same communique that urged French citizens to leave Iran.

Tehran Radio on Wednesday said the ambassador had been asked to leave Iran because of France's "failure to respond positively" to Iran's demand for Bani-Sadr's extradition.

Sources in Tehran said there were rumors of renewed demonstrations planned for Friday outside the French Embassy, but Pars quoted a foreign ministry spokesman in Tehran as saying Iran had not asked the French to leave.

"The French are our guests and can continue to stay in Iran in full security just as they have done so in the past," spokesman Reza Alavi Tabatabaie was quoted as saying. He added that French citizens wishing to leave could depart on Monday aboard Iran Air.

"French citizens residing in Iran have been asked to leave this country by the French president, Francois Mitterrand, and the Iranian government has never made such a request from France," Tabatabaie was quoted as saying by Pars.

Hunt Undecided On New Tobacco Allotment Plan

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Gov. Jim Hunt said today he hadn't made up his mind on a proposal in the U.S. Senate to make a major change in the way tobacco allotments and quotas are distributed.

Warning that any change in the federal tobacco program should be done with great caution, Hunt said he wanted to study the proposal made by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo.

Eagleton's proposal, to be offered as an amendment to the 1981 Farm Bill next month, would allow allotments to be owned only by actual growers, dropping the current provision that allows non-producing allotment-holders to rent out their federal rights to grow the leaf.

"We've got to be very cautious about that kind of thing," Hunt said. "It's a complex system. I have not had a chance to study the Eagleton bill."

Hunt said the change would have "very far-reaching implications," but acknowledged that it would address a problem facing some young farmers who own no allotments and must rent them at prices they consider to be high.

Hunt noted that some people are profiting from the rents without having any other tie to tobacco, but said there are others — such as farmers and retired farmers — who rely on the allotment rents for income.

"There's probably more of them than there are doctors or lawyers (profiting from tobacco rents)," he said.

On other topics, Hunt repeated his pledge to seek a pay raise for teachers and state employees when the Legislature reconvenes this fall, and he voiced concern about the effects of the air-traffic controllers strike.

"We will be hurt some but not as much as other parts of the country," he said.

British Riots Said Portent

LONDON (AP) — Race relations in Britain are deteriorating and the nation's July urban riots are a "sign of things to come," a British parliamentary committee said today.

In a report to the House of Commons, the all-party Committee on Home Affairs said many non-white Britons "have yet to find a sense of identity within British society" and show evidence of "understandable frustration."

The panel focused on the case of Liverpool, where rioters, non-whites and whites, in the city's rundown Toxteth district looted and burned buildings and battled police in mid-July and again last week.

Liverpool "offers a grim warning to all of Britain's cities that racial disadvantage cannot be expected to disappear by natural causes," the committee said. "Liverpool black organizations warned us: 'What you see in Liverpool is a sign of things to come.' We echo that warning."

The study was prepared before Wednesday's announcement by Environment Secretary Michael Heseltine of a 13-point program designed to tackle the causes of the Toxteth riots. Heseltine had spent more than two weeks in the city studying its problems at the behest of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. Among his ideas were proposals for job-training workshops, new recreation facilities, housing reconstruction and plans to attract private investment.

Unemployment nationally in Britain reached a post-1930s record of 11.8 percent in July.

In Liverpool, a once-great northwest English port that has fallen on hard times, the jobless rate is estimated at 40 percent. Among the city's blacks, it is thought to be near 60 percent.

Britain's 2.4 million non-whites, mainly West Indian and Asian post-World War II immigrants and their descendants, comprise only 4 percent of the population, but are mostly concentrated in rundown inner city areas.

"Racial disadvantage in Liverpool is, in a sense, the most disturbing case in the United Kingdom because there can be no question of cultural problems of newness or language," the committee's report said.

"Far too many Asian and West Indian youngsters are unemployed, unskilled, unqualified and disenfranchised, and it is above all to this problem that parliament and the nation must address themselves."

Blood Needed

A special blood collection has been set up for tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Lodge, Tar River Blood Center Director Dick Carney announced this morning.

Carney said this special collection hopefully will help combat shortages of about 20 percent during recent bloodmobile collections throughout the eastern region.

The local center serves 22 hospitals in the East. No surgery has been curtailed in any of these so far, Carney said, but more blood is needed. The next regularly scheduled bloodmobile visit here is Aug. 19, also at the Moose Lodge.

EARTHWORMS IN MEAT PRODUCTS?

I just visited my folks in Ohio and everybody up there is upset about the learning that ground-up earthworms are being used as fillers in many prepared meat products, like wieners and bologna. The name on the package for this additive is sodium erythorbate. I have checked packages at food stores here and have found only one brand of wieners without this ingredient. My little boy loves hot dogs and I hate to think how many I've fed him over the past several years — with earthworms in them. Yuk! S.W.

This belief tale has no basis in fact. Sodium erythorbate, according to Dwain Pilkington, of the N.C. State University Food Science Department, is a derivative of vitamin C, the addition of which has enabled meat processors to cut down on the amount of nitrite used in cured meat products.

Marine Dealers At Corporation Annual Meeting

Some 85 marine dealers and their wives from the East, West and Gulf Coasts as well as Canada, Bermuda and Mexico were in Greenville earlier this week for North American Fiberglass Corporation's annual national dealers meeting.

The Greenville firm unveiled its 1982 Sea Ox sport fishing line during the event, which included speeches on boating industry topics, demonstration rides on the new boats, meetings with sales personnel, a tour of plant facilities, and a Hawaiian luau at the home of Graham Flanagan, NAF president.

Flanagan announced that construction is nearing completion in Cairo, Egypt of a facility for manufacturing Sea Ox boats. The announcement was made with Onsi Sawiris, executive vice president of Orascom-Onsi Sawiris and Co., general engineers and marine contractors throughout the Middle East.

Flanagan also reported that International Projects Inc. of Toledo, Ohio will handle exports of the Sea Ox line worldwide, except in Bermuda, South Africa and Egypt. The announcement was made jointly with Frank Reynolds, International Projects president.

Flanagan presented Golden Ox awards to the top five dealers and rookie dealer of the year for distinguished sales achievement.

Two Wrecks Investigated

An estimated $8,400 damage resulted from two traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers said an estimated $4,000 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in an 11:37 a.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 500 feet north of the Plaza Drive intersection involving a car driven by Harry Glyn Jarvis of Engelhard and a truck operated by Robert Clifton Waters Jr. of Route 2, Winterville.

Jarvis was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of the incident.

Cars driven by Carol Strickhart Scull of Route 4, Greenville, and Claude Davis Pilley of Route 6, Washington, collided about 9 a.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Sixth Street.

Police, who charged Pilley with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $100 to the Scull car and $300 to the Pilley vehicle.

Generous Chauffeur Gets Taken For a Ride

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a thoughtless, cheap co-worker who rides to and from work with me every day. She even has the nerve to ask me to drop her somewhere else after work frequently, taking me miles out of my way. It's my own fault because I invited her to ride with me since she lives nearby. She accepted readily, reminding me that my insurance would be voided if I accepted reimbursement to help pay for the gas. (I had heard this before.)

She sees me put $20 worth of gas in my tank each week and just looks out the window. At Christmas she gives me some cheap little doodad that doesn't begin to compensate for all the money she saves by my chauffeur service. Why must it be so one-sided? Sign me...

BEING HAD IN ILLINOIS

DEAR BEING HAD: You were misinformed. Your insurance would not be voided if your ride-along passenger paid enough to cover the expenses. However, if you were to carry passengers for profit, you would require additional insurance. Advise your ride-along that she can pay for half the cost of the gasoline without affecting your insurance.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I just returned from our first vacation without our kids. We've been married for 13 years, have four kids, and it was a real treat.

My wife's parents saw us off at the airport, and just as we were taking off, my mother-in-law asked, "Did you make a will in case something happens to both of you at the same time?" Then she laughed as though it was some kind of joke.

Of course we hadn't made a will. I realize there's always a one-in-a-million chance that our plane would crash and we'd both be killed, but her question stayed on my mind during our whole vacation, and I have to tell you, it sort of spoiled it for me.

Wasn't that a lousy thing for her to say?

STILL UPSET

DEAR UPSET: Her timing was lousy. But the idea was a good one.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I have plans to marry as soon as his divorce is final. He is now separated from his wife. Please let me know if it is acceptable for us to announce our engagement at this time.

CAN'T WAIT

DEAR CAN'T WAIT: I suggest you do.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter from COLD SHOULDERS, who complained because her office co-workers continually took turns moving the air-conditioning controls. (First someone would adjust the thermostat, saying, "It's too chilly in here." Then someone else would readjust it and say, "Who turned the air conditioning off?")

That reminds me of the time a friend was showing me through his new plant. When we came to the main office, he pointed to the thermostat on the wall and said, "That's a dummy. It's not connected to anything, and it regulates nothing. It just keeps the office people happy adjusting it up and down all day."

I later learned that the thermostat that really controlled the temperature was located in his office.

Volume Light At Farmville

FARMVILLE — Volume of sales was light Wednesday on the Farmville Tobacco Market compared to the Tuesday's total. Top price paid by a buying company was $1.87. Good quality lower stalk tobacco continues to account for most of the volume.

The market sold 398,913 pounds for $655,207.92, an average of $1.64.25 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 5,304,530 pounds for $8,767,242.98, a season average of $1.65.28 per hundred pounds.

The market opened this morning with two sets of buyers.

Professor Re-Elected Convenor

ECU News Bureau
Dr. Mohammed A. Ahad, an associate professor in the East Carolina University School of Nursing, was chosen to continue leadership of the International Fellowship of Men in Nursing at its meeting in Los Angeles recently.

Ahad was re-elected convenor of the group, which met in conjunction with the 17th Quadrennial Congress of the International Council of Nurses. His term will run until the next congress to be held in Israel in 1985.

A naturalized U.S. citizen, Ahad was educated in nursing in India, England and the U.S., where he received a doctoral degree from Columbia University.

MOHAMMED AHAD

He is an active member of the International Council of Nurses and a specialist in cross-national studies of the nursing field. The results of one study were published recently in a special international issue of "Image," the journal of the Sigma Theta Tau honor society in nursing. During the Los Angeles meeting, Ahad initiated a study of nurses' roles in primary health care and the care of the elderly in their respective countries.

He is also founder-president of the International Center for Nurses, Inc., a facility which provides resources, information and assistance to foreign-educated nurses in New York.

Friday Is Swim Day

Friday, August 7 is the official closing date for the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department summer playground program. Friday is also Super Summer Swim Day.

Swim Day will be held at the City Pool (behind Guy Smith Stadium) from 10 a.m. to 12 noon. Activities scheduled are diving for pennies, races and relays, greased watermelon race, water basketball and other activities.

Children of all ages are invited and there is no admission charge. Staff members will be on hand and the Fun Wagon will also be at the pool. (The Fun Wagons will not be going to Third Street School and Red Oak neighborhood).

For further information, call the Recreation and Parks Department at 752-4137, extension 201.

Peace Corps Is Closing Ivory Coast Operations

By SUSAN LINNEE
Associated Press Writer
ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — The U.S. Peace Corps is closing down in the Ivory Coast after 18 years of service. The reasons: Reagan administration budget cuts, and the former French West African colony doesn't need it as much as other countries do.

With an annual per-capita income estimated by the World Bank at $1,060 — the second highest in Africa below the Sahara — the Ivory Coast is now considered a middle-income developing country. It is thought there are enough trained people to take over many of the jobs foreign volunteers have been doing. "Cost was the consideration in cutting back the program," said a local Peace Corps official who asked not to be identified. "There was a question whether to cut back a little on all programs or phase some out altogether. Then there was also the problem of middle-income countries and the needs of the really underdeveloped."

The official said the Peace Corps hoped for a budget of about $105 million but got $90 million. The programs in South Korea and Colombia are also being phased out.

At one time there were as many as 125 Peace Corps volunteers in the Ivory Coast, a country of nearly 8 million people. By last April, there were 60, and all will be gone by the middle of the month.

The first group of U.S. Peace Corps members to serve anywhere arrived in Ghana in August 1961. In 1963, American volunteers were teaching 50 percent of the secondary school students in Somalia and Sierra Leone, two other African nations.

Several countries, among them Nigeria and Guinea, expelled volunteers for political reasons. Tanzania asked them to leave, then later requested a new program. There are now 16 volunteers in that East African nation.

As of July, there were 2,023 Peace Corps volunteers in 24 countries in sub-Saharan Africa. Kenya had the most with 222, Rwanda the fewest with eight. There were 40 in Benin, a tiny "Marxist-Leninist people's republic," and 38 in sparsely populated Gabon, whose oil revenues give it an annual per capita income of $3,280, the highest below the Sahara.

The local Peace Corps official said that on a cost-per-American basis, the Ivory Coast program was the most expensive in Africa. When the program started in 1963, most of the volunteers taught mathematics and English. In recent years, most of them worked in rural public health and development projects.

Although the Ivorian government has made no official comment on the Peace Corps departure, several officials said privately they were "surprised" by the decision.

The government has been trying to steer young people away from law and the humanities towards careers in such service-related fields as public health and technical education. But, as in many developing countries, it is often difficult to get local people to work in the most isolated, underdeveloped areas where foreign volunteers are usually sent.

Child Support Boost Ordered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer-pianist Ray Charles has been ordered by a Superior Court judge to increase child-support payments to his 17-year-old daughter from $400 to $1,500 a month.

The blind recording star's former wife, Sandra Betts, had asked for an increase in the monthly payments for their daughter, Sheila J. Robinson, to $1,900. But Judge William P. Hogoboom ordered Charles Wednesday to pay $1,500, retroactive to Feb. 1.

Miss Robinson was injured in an automobile accident two years ago and says she still suffers from a back injury.

Ms. Betts told the judge she was forced to give up her job so she could stay home and look after the couple's daughter. The mother and daughter live in Ohio.

Charles and Ms. Betts were divorced in 1964.

Ever stop to think why the word peach is used so often as a complimentary adjective? "That's a peachy idea" or "peaches and cream complexion"? It's probably because the image they bring to mind is that of something sweet and refreshing. And that's exactly what they are, a sweet and juicy summer treat.

Fabled in poetry and art, the peach is apparently a native of China where it has been grown for approximately 3,000 years. Spaniards brought the delicate fruit to the New World and each group of settlers expanded the peach growing territory, the French bringing peaches to Louisiana, the English to Jamestown and Massachusetts. Today, peaches grow in most American states, where they have been summer favorites for more than a century.

Now is the perfect time to keep them in your refrigerator, either for out-of-hand eating or for use in combination with other foods because they will be in plentiful supply throughout the month.

Incidentally, for the best possible flavor, they should be held at room temperature for 3 to 4 days after purchasing. Then refrigerate.

Here is a suggestion for using peaches in your summer meals along with a main dish.

Peach Melba

When Peach Melba was created in honor of the opera star, "Dame Nellie Melba, the flavorful dessert was made of peaches, ice cream and raspberry (melba) sauce. Today's variation is just as delicious and easily prepared with the convenience of non-dairy whipped topping. Begin with 4 to 6 very ripe halved, pitted, peeled fresh peaches, sweetened. Place peach halves, cut side up, in individual serving dishes. Top with generous spoonful of thawed frozen whipped topping. Mix 3 tablespoons raspberry preserves with 1/2 teaspoon water and spoon over the topping. This recipe makes 4 to 6 servings.

Bachelor's Barbecued Ribs 'N Beans

You're settled in your new apartment. You want to have a few people over for supper and maybe try out that grill you just got. What will be easy, not tax your budding culinary skills, be fun to fix and good to eat and still impress your guests?

Barbecued Ribs 'N Beans taste homemade and you need just three things from the store—4 pounds of lean spareribs, two 16-oz. cans of pork and beans and a bottle of barbecue sauce.

To prepare spareribs, cut into two-rib sections and place in single layer on heavy duty aluminum foil. Wrap, seal edges tightly and place on grill over glowing coals. Cook about 40 minutes. Remove from foil and place rib sections directly on grill. Continue cooking for about 20 minutes, or until well done, basting with barbecue sauce and turning ribs frequently. (If ribs brown too quickly, move to outside edges of grill, or increase distance between grill and coals).

Meanwhile, combine canned pork and beans with 2 tablespoons of barbecue sauce in a saucepan. Heat, on the stove or the grill, until hot and bubbly.

This will make four very generous servings of ribs and beans. Serve with a tossed salad, your favorite beverage and maybe fresh pineapple or fresh melba for dessert.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A group of women were discussing the draft the other night and we decided if we were invited to a war, we could jolly well have the imagination to think of some way to terminate it.

I suggested the best way to stop a war was to ask the men directions on how to get there. We'd never find it.

As the suggestions flowed in, we decided to make a list.

1. Let Tim Conway make a series out of it and it would run only 13 weeks.

2. Put the war in the hands of the post office. It might not stop it, but it would certainly slow it down.

3. Assign children to war zones and tell them they have to clean their rooms before they can go.

4. Tell your husband it's something he has to dress up for.

5. Transport troops via Amtrak.

6. Have one-size-fits-all uniforms that are issued in little eggs.

7. Schedule it on the same night Alan Alda is speaking to your child study group.

8. Spread the rumor hair bleach will be in short supply until the war is over.

9. Tell them the other side is fighting with a cellulite germ that makes thighs inflate upon impact.

Probably the best suggestion came from Barb, whose son graduated from high school and left home for the first time to join the Marine Corps. When he came home on leave he wasn't in the house five minutes before he engaged in a knock-down-drag-out fight with his 15-year-old brother.

Barb grabbed a large wooden spoon, jumped between them, and gave them a look that would get her 30 years.

They separated and backed off. Barb figures the only way to end a war is to draft experienced mothers, arm them with wooden spoons and "the look" and send them into battle.

You haven't seen desertion until you've seen children running from their mothers' tongues. You think they can stand hearing, "What do you think you're doing? Don't you have anything more constructive to do? I'll give you something to do. Now, put that gun down before someone gets hurt!"

QUICK GREEN MAYONNAISE

My friend Mary Cantwell likes to use this recipe for potato salad.

- 1/2 cup roughly chopped fresh herbs
- 1 clove garlic, chopped
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 1 large egg
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup olive oil
- 2 teaspoons vinegar
- Salt

Pat herbs dry if necessary, and put them in blender container. Add garlic, mustard, sugar, egg and lemon juice. Blend at high speed for about 10 seconds. Reduce to lowest speed, and slowly pour in half the oil. Stop blender, add vinegar, and blend again at high speed as you slowly pour in remaining oil. The mayonnaise will quickly thicken. Add salt to taste, but not too much, since the flavors in the mayonnaise will become stronger after it has chilled for a while. Makes about 1 1/2 cups. ## Reasonable Surplus?

Pitt County's Board of Education is being asked to disclose the school system's financial situation before the County Commissioners consider additional outlays for the proposed Ayden Middle School. It's a logical move, and one that would have been in order before the commissioners adopted the 1981-82 budget. The county board deleted funding for three assistant superintendents and a supervisor from the school board's proposal — only to have the school board reinstate those positions with funding from its rather healthy "million dollar" surplus. Now the school board says it needs more money to construct the Ayden school.

The question here is not whether the Ayden school is needed. It really doesn't concern those assistant superintendents or the supervisor, although Pitt County is among a very select few systems of comparable size in North Carolina that lists five associate or assistant superintendents on its school staff.

The question really involves that school board surplus. Public law gives the school board the authority to use its funds as it sees fit. Other county-funded agencies must return all surpluses to the county at the end of the school year. Why can't the school board do the same? Or use the money to shore up teaching positions hit by this year's spending cuts? Nearly 10 new teaching positions could have been funded by the money now earmarked for those supervisory slots frowned on by the county commissioners.

A reasonable surplus is just that, reasonable. But anything in the range of a million dollars, for a school system of Pitt County's size, just doesn't seem to fit that bill.

Planning Must Be Provided

County Manager Reginald Gray has said planner Craig Smith has been paid through the month of August and his duties are now being handled by the assistant county manager and the county engineer.

The position was abolished in this year's budget in what was described as a money saving move.

So be it, but the county manager and all who are connected with county planning now should make certain that planning does not suffer.

Development is taking place in the county that once was reserved for municipal areas. Those who will buy in such areas deserve the protection that adequate planning provides. So, too, do all the citizens of our county.

Generally we would think the services of a professional planner would be needed. If we are not to have one, the burden is on County Manager Gray to see that competent planning services are provided.

Still Dirt Roads

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Dirt roads have been a way of life for thousands of North Carolinians ever since farmers first tried to make their ways to market.

According to the latest figures from the Department of Transportation, that way of life will continue for a long, long while.

Indeed, the likelihood is strong that even more residents of the state who, by reason of balanced growth efforts to disperse industry and of the urban exodus to find peace and quiet in the countryside, move to rural areas will find themselves on dirt roads.

This condition is called strongly to mind in a review of the recent report from the state's Department of Transportation regarding secondary road construction money for the coming 12 months.

Formula
The Board of Transportation approved $30.7 million on a county-by-county basis. Money is parceled out on a formula in which each county gets a share based on unpaved secondary roads mileage in that county in relationship to the total mileage of unpaved secondary roads in the state.

Transportation Secretary W.R. (Bill) Roberson, Jr. is quoted in the department news release as noting that the system is composed of 59,568 miles. "These roads, many of which were the old and narrow farm-to-market roads, have become vital home-to-work routes for our citizens," Roberson said.

The secondary system harks back to the days of Kerr Scott in the Governor's office when the cry was to get Tar Heel farmers out of the mud. Many are out. Many are not, and a growing number of new rural residents are likely to be in.

For what the Department of Transportation news release doesn't point out is that while the secondary (rural) road system gets the least money on the construction budget for state highways, it makes up 80 percent of the highway mileage in the state. The state urban system is just over 4,000 miles. The primary system is just over 12,000 miles. The secondary system is nearly 60,000 miles. The difference is that a mile of city street or interstate highway can cost eight-fold what a two-lane country road costs. This year's allocation report notes that 18,907 miles of the secondary system remain unpaved. That's about one-third of the entire rural highway network. Checking back on previous years to see what progress is being made, the figures show that getting Tar Heels out of the mud is tedious, indeed. In 1977 there were 20,058 unpaved miles. The system has grown only slightly — about 200 miles in that period. So, in three years, just slightly more than 1,000 miles have been paved.

Repairs
The state money is not used for paving alone, but for widening shoulders, upgrading small bridges, and keeping the unpaved roads in passable shape. A political process remains in place at the county level to determine how the money will be used. The county commissioners and the Board of Transportation representatives from that area meet with residents who are interested to determine roadwork to be done.

In past years, there have been complaints that the state formula for distributing the money allowed favoritism, and the distribution reports prove that this has been the case. This year, however, a review shows that the formula was followed carefully and that the counties are getting the money they are entitled to by the formula.

Still, by the time the money is parceled down to

Making Political Hay

WASHINGTON — If the debate over the future of the Voting Rights Act concerned only half a dozen Southern states, the matter might be taken off the national agenda as a merely regional affair. Critics of the law rightly contend, however, that some important principles are here involved, and these deserve more thoughtful consideration than they now seem likely to get.

In the House of Representatives, a rush is on to extend the act for another 10 years. Sponsors of the extension bill, notably Chairman Peter Rodino of the Judiciary Committee, know a politically good thing when they see it. There is no significant constituency opposed to the Voting Rights Act, but there is a large and powerful constituency supporting the law. Mr. Rodino, a citified gentleman from New Jersey, may not know a bale of straw from a bushel of oats, but he knows the farmer's rule for making hay: You make hay when the sun shines, and the sun is shining now.

The Voting Rights Act, adopted originally in 1965 and subsequently amended and extended in 1970 and 1975, is scheduled to expire in 1982. The law is not quite as bad as former Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. described it in a statement last month. The venerable North Carolinian denounced the act as devious, crafty, irrational and tyrannical, among other things. "It constitutes one of the foulest assaults ever made upon constitutional government in America." In upholding the law, said Senator Ervin, the Supreme Court approved the jurisprudence of Alice in Wonderland.

The senator protests too much. At the time the act was passed, precisely a century had passed since Appomat-but it is still bad law. It is clumsy law, and it violates elementary principles of justice and fair play.

One such principle is that law should operate to punish the guilty but to leave the innocent alone. The Voting Rights Act tramples that principle underfoot. The act assumes that the affected states and localities are guilty of racial discrimination. The law then punishes every locality indiscriminately. And the act goes further: It makes it virtually impossible for a condemned county or city ever to regain its rightful power to govern its own elections.

As a consequence, the localities that have been crudely ensnared by the laws must submit every change in their election procedures to federal approval. It is immaterial that a particular locality may never have discriminated against blacks. Even the most innocuous changes, such as the shifting of a polling place, must be examined for some concealed intent. Under the Rodino extension, this vindictive and humiliating process would continue at least to 1992.

Very well. This is how men make hay. But the valid and commendable purposes of a Voting Rights Act can be better served by amendments that act as rifle shots rather than as rounds of grape. Rep. M. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., has proposed precisely such an approach. He would reenact every major protective provision of the existing law, not as a limited extension of the act but rather as permanent legislation. But he would revert to elementary principles by punishing only demonstrated wrongdoers, and by affording law-abiding localities a reasonable opportunity to get out of bondage.

This makes sense. Recent hearings before the Rodino committee turned up a rash of horror stories. These supported the undeniable truth that here and there offenses persist. But the evidence fell far short of establishing a pattern or practice in all of the affected localities. In the name of simple justice and old-fashioned federalism, the law ought to keep punishing the bad boys, but it ought to get off the backs of the good guys.

JAS. J. KILPATRICK

tox, but the states of the old Confederacy were still engaged in their old shenanigans. The situation was disgraceful, or if you prefer a stronger word, shameful. The devices employed to prevent blacks from registering or voting were indeed devious. Congress had been given power under the 15th Amendment to prevent and to punish these practices. It was high time to invoke that power.

Having said that, however, much more remains to be said. The Voting Rights Act as it operates in 1981 is not as evil as Mr. Ervin contends,

Strength For Today

SCRIPTURE INCARNATE
It is sometimes said that we are the only Bible that we are the only Bible that a careless and hurrying world will take the time to read. We are the living epistles of God's Word.

This is particularly true in the relationship of parents to children. Many parents hope in a vague sort of way that their children will grow up to be church members, but these parents never try to effectuate this hope by teaching their children from the Bible. Perhaps their failure in this regard stems from the fact that they know very little about the Bible themselves. But whatever the reason, actions speak louder than words. If the parents pay little attention to the Bible, the children naturally conclude that it is not very important.

Our children's ideas about God are largely formed by the attitudes they perceive in us. And so it is with many other people besides children. Our actions, rather than our words, constitute their Bible. — Elisha Douglass

Preparing A Peace Drive

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Despite circumstantial evidence that Ambassador Robert Neumann was a victim of the pro-Israeli lobby when he was forced to resign as ambassador to Saudi Arabia, his ouster by President Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander Haig had a profound purpose: to avoid offending Prime Minister Begin on the eve of major Mideast peace moves.

The experienced, respected Neumann, an early Reagan backer who ran the president-elect's State Department transition team, on July 20 privately attacked the secretary's performance on ABC's "Issues and Answers" the previous day as one that "made me want to vomit." What unsettled Neumann's stomach was Haig's studied refusal to criticize Israel's bloody air raid on Beirut.

To Al Haig, that was heresy: a subordinate floating a policy line critical of Israel and Menahem Begin that was totally out of phase with the soft Reagan-Haig line. It undercut the Reagan-Haig effort to minimize criticism of Begin so that a beligerent Begin, believing himself unfairly treated, would not use his power even more irresponsibly, jeopardizing imminent Reagan peace moves.

Quickly informed of Neumann's criticism to at least one member of Congress, Haig summoned him July 23 and read the riot act. The next day Haig went to the Oval Office and emerged with the president's complete approval to demand Neumann's resignation.

This quick dispatch of an intimate ally of the president's national security assistant, Richard V. Allen, and a trusted Reaganite might have seemed on the harsh side except for another pro-Begin ploy by the Reagan high command during that same week.

Clearly motivated by the Reagan-Haig soft-on-Begin line, White House chief of staff James Baker III publicly chided two of the president's closest friends — Deputy Secretary of State William Clark and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger — for their gently critical remarks about Begin after the Beirut raid.

Baker's rebuke was mild compared to the terminal treatment of Neumann, but his theme was identical: Reagan will not tolerate criticism of the prime minister of Israel by anyone in his administration at this particularly sensitive moment of Reagan's first diplomatic move into the dangerously unstable Middle East.

Circumstantial evidence that Neumann fell afoul of the pro-Israeli lobby, rather than tripping himself up in the Reagan-Haig policy of avoiding giving offense to Begin, goes back to early January. When the ambassador was named head of Reagan's transition team, he was the target of a three-day front-page attack in Ha'aretz, one of Israel's most respected newspapers.

Ha'aretz focused its attack on an article written by Neumann in the spring 1979, issue of Washington Quarterly, published by Georgetown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies. Neumann wrote: "A solution of the Palestinian problem ... means almost certainly, whether we want it or not, and few people really want it, involvement, directly or indirectly, of the PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization)."

That made Neumann a marked man in Israel. The attack by Ha'aretz, however, had not the slightest visible effect on the fledgling Reagan administration.

A more sinister attack on Neumann appeared in the July 17 issue of Middle East Policy Survey, a "confidential" pro-Israeli newsletter with reputation for accuracy. Quoting from a secret cable Neumann recently sent the State Department describing a conversation he had with Crown Prince Fahd about the AWACS radar planes Reagan wants to sell Saudi Arabia, the Survey quoted an anonymous State Department official: "He (Neumann) would make up anything to help get the AWACS through" Congress.

Haig's closed-door demand for Neumann's resignation during a 3 p.m. meeting on July 25 in his office with the ambassador swept like wildfire through the pro-Israeli lobby. By Monday night a leading Israeli (Please turn to Page 5)

Those Charts Don't Lie, But Might Mislead

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Beware those line graphs that show how your assets would have soared in value had you invested with a professional investment group and benefitted from its sagacious management. Many such graphs tend to mislead. Not all, but many. That might not be the intention of the investment organizations that use these alpine depictions, but distortion, often monumental, is the net effect.

They mislead because inflation is included, and often not a word said about it. But because of inflation, those sturdy-looking peaks in value, especially of late, are sometimes softer than lemon meringue. For example, the Investment Company Institute, which represents the mutual fund industry, presents a performance graph showing a line ascending from a $28,045 value in 1974 to $79,649 at the end of 1980. In terms of current dollars, as the institute says, that is what the investment is worth. But current dollars are inflated dollars, which means the 1980 dollar is worth considerably less than the 1974 dollar. Since the end of 1974, for example, the consumer price index has risen more than 50 percentage points, making 1980 dollars worth about 65 percent of 1974 dollars. That deflates the $79,649 to about

$52,000. The Investment Company Institute goes back beyond 1974 in its example. It begins, in fact, with a hypothetical investment of $10,000 at the beginning of 1956, with the investor holding on through 1980. "Results assume the hypothetical investor attained the average performance of 35 growth-and-income funds in operation from 1956 through 1980," according to the institute's brochure. "How have professional management and diversification worked in practice?" it asks before presenting the graph showing the $10,000 had grown to $79,649 by Dec. 31, 1980. But during that time, the measuring stick itself — the dollar — changed. It shrank to about 30 percent of its 1956 value. In comparable dollars, the $79,649 drops to around $24,000 — a gain, but of a different order. Should the Investment Company Institute point this out? Should it tell investors that in terms of buying power they really would not have improved their position as much as they might think? Is it their duty? Hard questions to answer. They aren't the only ones who use current dollars. Uncle Sam does the same thing in reporting that the nation's output of goods and services is approaching $3 trillion. Banks do it. Real estate agents do it. Anyone seeking to look good does it, and in fact it is the most widely accepted method of depicting dollar gains. Mutual funds, some of which do very well with their customers' money, also might justify the use of current dollars because, as investment advisers will tell you, beating inflation is itself an accomplishment. Some would argue, however, that in a brochure subtitled "How can I have more money in the future than I have today?" there might be a warning about inflation or a depiction of results in deflated dollars. In inflated dollars, remember, almost everyone can have more money in the future. More money but perhaps less buying power.

as millions of Americans have experienced in the past decade or so of inflation. Inflation-adjusted dollars just haven't caught on. The Internal Revenue Service won't let you discount for inflation, augh it means paying taxes on what you never had. Except in the asterisk material of its annual report and probably in less widely distributed publications, General Motors doesn't report its profits in deflated dollars. Since almost every investment organization uses inflated dollars in depicting performance, it appears to be your obligation to reduce the dollars to current buying power. Otherwise you're viewing inflation.

Seagram Is Still Buying Into Conoco

NEW YORK (AP) - Seagram Co., the Canadian liquor distiller that lost the battle for control of Conoco, may become the largest shareholder in Du Pont Co. - the victor in the Conoco battle.

Seagram says it will continue paying $92 a share for Conoco stock until midnight Friday, even though Du Pont has amassed 55 percent of Conoco, enough to assume control.

The Seagram decision, announced Wednesday, prompted speculation that Seagram is out to acquire a major position in Du Pont, which plans to exchange 1.7 of its shares for each Conoco share in a merger that will raise Du Pont's total payment to $7.4 billion in cash and stock.

Jonathan Rinehart, a Seagram spokesman, declined to comment on what Seagram planned to do with the shares, but there was speculation that it might try to trade them for Conoco's Consolidation Coal Co. or for another Du Pont asset.

Seagram had acquired 18 percent of Conoco before Du Pont won and apparently picked up a substantial number of shares Wednesday. Its offer had been slated to end at midnight Wednesday, but it was extended for two days without explanation.

Mobil Corp., which also tried to get Conoco, sold its 735,000 shares in Conoco to Seagram Wednesday.

Those still holding Conoco shares now have a choice of selling them to Seagram for $92 or offering them to Du Pont, which will provide 1.7 Du Pont shares, now worth about $80.

If Seagram accumulated the 45 percent of Conoco not held by Du Pont, it could get almost 66 million Du Pont shares, or 28 percent of Du Pont, the country's largest chemical company. With Conoco, Du Pont will be the seventh-largest industrial company and have major interests in oil and coal.

The Du Pont family owns about 50.7 million shares of Du Pont, according to Corporate Data Exchange Inc., a research group. No other stockholder owns more than 3.4 million shares.

Seagram has been searching for an investment since last year, when it sold the U.S. assets of its oil company, Texas Pacific, to Sun Co. for $2.3 billion.

It tried to buy St. Joe Minerals Co. but lost out in a bidding war to Fluor Corp.

But joy over Neumann's demise among the friends of Israel is a mere offshoot to the real purpose of the president and his secretary of state. With the cease-fire in Lebanon hanging on a thread, they will use whatever political muscle is necessary to avoid giving Begin any pretext for breaking the thread and perhaps plunging the Middle East into full-scale war.

Despite condemnation of Israel's Baghdad raid and the continuing hold-up of F-16 fighter planes for Israel, Reagan is committed to placate Begin between now and his September state visit to Washington, following Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit this week. In the hopeful Reagan-Haig view, the time to talk turkey to Begin will be in September, when Reagan's diplomatic skills will get their toughest challenge to date: West Bank settlements, Mideast peace and an anti-Soviet "strategic consensus."

Begin's Hardline Government OK'd By Parliament

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin's shaky new government went to work today after receiving parliamentary confirmation by only three votes. It already faced a scandal that could bring it down.

Meanwhile, Begin rejected Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's appeal to the President Reagan to include the Palestine Liberation Organization in talks on Palestinian self-rule. Israel Radio quoted Begin as saying he would tell

Sadat "to abandon the idea of including the PLO in the autonomy talks, which might not be resumed at all."

And Palestinian guerrillas today sharply attacked Begin's new coalition government, calling it a "war cabinet." The PLO also told all Arab countries to brace for a new Middle East conflict. PLO Interior Minister Salah Khalaf, known as Abu Iyad, said it was a "facist government" attempting to "annihilate the Palestinian people."

In Tel Aviv, Begin's labor and immigration minister, Aharon Abu-Hatzeira, when on trial today, only one day after the new government won its slim parliamentary mandate. Abu-Hatzeira, the 42-year-old religious affairs minister in Begin's previous government, skipped the court session and instead joined BEGIN AND HIS Cabinet in Jerusalem.

The minister is accused of misappropriating money from a charity fund during the mid-1970's when he was mayor of Ramle, a town south of Tel Aviv. Prosecutors claim he used the money to pay for a babysitter, carpenter and new shutters for his home, among other things.

Abu-Hatzeira's lawyers asked for postponement of the trial until the Knesset, Israel's parliament, votes on a motion to lift his parliamentary immunity.

Abu-Hatzeira was stripped of his immunity by the previous Knesset spring so he could stand trial on bribery charges. He was acquitted in May, but the prosecution says it has a stronger case this time, with 61 witnesses to testify.

After his first acquittal, Abu-Hatzeira claimed he was being persecuted because he is a Moroccan, an underdog in Israel's European-dominated establishment. Prior to the June elections, he broke with the predominantly European National Religious Party and formed TAMI, a party made up primarily of Jews of Arab origin.

TAMI won three seats in the new Knesset, a weak showing but enough to make it indispensable to Begin's coalition-building effort. His conviction would tear TAMI apart and probably bring down Begin's government.

The 61-58 division in Wednesday's parliamentary vote of confidence for the government promised unstable times ahead for Begin's shaky coalition.

After three weeks of bargaining, Begin united his conservative Likud bloc with three religious parties, the NRP, TAMI, and the ultra-orthodox Agudat Israel, giving the coalition a total of 61 of the 120 seats in the Knesset and the minimum possible majority of two.

The Labor Party, the largest opposition faction, controls 48 seats, the same number held by Likud.

In addition to the Abu-Hatzeira scandal, the government faces several urgent problems:

Inflation totaled a staggering 133 percent last year.

The Finance Ministry's efforts to cut prices by slashing taxes put it deeply in debt, forcing it to print new money and threatening a new inflationary spiral.

The Israeli-Syrian missile crisis continues on a back burner, but U.S. presidential envoy Philip Habib is expected back in the area soon to resume negotiations. Israel has threatened to wipe out the anti-aircraft missiles Syria moved into eastern Lebanon in April. But with the United States, Israel's chief ally, still bristling over the Israeli air raids on Baghdad and Beirut, Begin is likely to face intense pressure to forego military action.

Israel remains at odds with the Reagan administration over its suspension of deliveries of F-16 jet fighters because of the air raids. President Reagan also is committed to selling AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia. Begin claims the planes will make Israel's air defenses "transparent."

Israel is committed to resuming negotiations with

Egypt on a formula for autonomy for the 1.2 million Palestinians of the West Bank and Gaza Strip. It also is committed by the peace treaty with Egypt to withdrawing from the last third of the Sinai desert next April, leaving the entire peninsula to Egypt.

Sewer Line Responsibility Is Discussed By Farmville Board

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners discussed developer vs. town financial responsibility for running sewer lines to a piece of property on Highway 264 in South Farmville for over an hour Tuesday night with no action but the setting of guidelines for an agreement in the near future.

W. A. Allen Jr., appearing on behalf of the Davis Heirs, developers who have leased a lot to Pizza Management Inc. in the Marlboro area, said he has waited several months for an answer on how much the town will participate in running a sewer line to the property and that the delayed decision is hampering the conducting of this business and also the possible leasing of two other lots by a financial institution and a retail clothing store in the same area. The area in question is on the south side of Highway 264 from a point near the Marlboro intersection to the Ford building some 1,300 feet away.

Mayor Linwood Mercer and the board members voiced various suggestions and opinions on how the matter can be settled, but came to no agreement with Allen. The Commissioners, who noted that the town administrator is in the process of developing a strong policy on utilities extensions, said they will reach a decision soon, probably in a called meeting, so as to give Allen an answer as soon as possible.

The budgeting of the construction of a Southside Fire Station at a cost of $50,000 was approved, along with the $50,118 purchase of a new fire truck, which is scheduled for delivery next week.

Also budgeted were resurfacing, paving and drainage projects valued at $63,718; community welcome signs at $2,500; computer software at $13,114; a night depository and fireproof cabinet at $900; an electric rate refund at $1,675; an emergency generator at $6,000; oil circuit breakers at $48,075, and a fixed asset inventory at $1,000.

A resolution to accept a larger computer from Wayne Computer Resources for $20,384 was approved, along with the selling to the Town of Mount Olive of a used data processing system at the exact same price.

Salvaged material obtained from the demolition of a structure in the Community Development area were made available to the general public, free of charge, on a first come-first served state-purpose basis.

A grant from the North Carolina Arts Council for up to $1,000 to "match" $2,600 budgeted by the town for support of the position of arts coordinator for the Farmville Community Arts Council was accepted. Nancy Morgan is coordinator for the Council.

The board authorized the reimbursement of Summit Realty Inc. of $1,140 for its construction a brick sidewalk adjacent to its office at the corner of North Main and Grimmsburg streets. This amount is less than the $3,000-plus that R.E. Deans spent on the sidewalk, but is the amount that a regular concrete walkway would have cost the town, the commissioners indicated.

Mark Owens, owner of property at 309 Belcher Street, appeared to contest the town building inspector's recommendation that the commissioners adopt an ordinance to direct that the property be either repaired or demolished. He said he plans to repair it, though he does not feel it's been properly ascertained to be "unfit for human habitation." The board agreed to give him a little longer, as they also did for the Ollie Jones heirs, owners of the property at 509 S. Cameron Street.

A resolution to take Baldree Street off the town's list of streets to be paved was adopted per the petition by four out of five of the property owners on the street.

A request by Mrs. Thelma Eastwood Helmick to sell the town six vacant grave sites in Forest Hills Cemetery was declined.

All Nuclear Plants Of CP&L Are Out

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. says all three of its nuclear units are out of service after its Brunswick Unit 2 was shut down until Saturday.

The unit was closed Tuesday night after a safety relief valve malfunctioned, said CP&L senior vice president Lynn Eury.

CP&L also announced Wednesday that its H.B. Robinson nuclear unit near Hartsville, S.C., would be out of service for at least four more weeks to repair leaky tubes in the steam generator. When it closed July 30, officials said it would be out of service for only one week.

CP&L's Brunswick Unit 1 has been out of service since July 6 because of damage to its turbine bearings. That unit is not expected to be returned to service until October.

The loss of the nuclear units, which use cheaper fuel than other plants, means CP&L will charge higher bills next winter. This summer's fuel costs will show up in retail bills from December through March, Eury said.

Eury said CP&L plans to buy additional power during the outages to replace power that would otherwise come from the Brunswick plant. The utility said the purchases will minimize the use of higher-priced oil.

It has cost CP&L about 14 cents to generate a kilowatt-hour from oil.

Pitt Board Meets Mon.

The Pitt County Board of Education will hold a special meeting on Monday, August 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the third floor conference room of the county office building, (old hospital) 1717 W. Fifth St.

The board will deal with a reply to the county commissioners on the financial disclosure requested by the commissioners.

Other items on the agenda include policy on the use of county vehicles and discussion of personnel matters.

Seek Refunds On 'Gas Savers'

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission is charging a Connecticut mail order company with using phony advertising to sell automotive devices in a case that could result in almost $1.3 million in refunds for consumers.

charged Cliffdale Associates Inc. with falsely claiming the Ball-Matic valve would lead to lower gasoline bills.

In advertisements run in newspapers and magazines, the company said the valve would inject air into the car's carburetor leading to "more effective combustion and a fuel saving of up to 20 percent."

Cliffdale, a Westport, Conn., mail-order company, sold an estimated 100,000 of the devices for $12.95. The government already has brought one case against the company, a Postal Service proceeding that resulted in a 1979 consent agreement with Cliffdale to discontinue the claims. The company is no longer selling the product through the mail, said Thomas Ziebarth, a Postal Service attorney. FTC attorney William Haynes said the new case could be a prelude to an effort to get back money for consumers who bought the Ball-Matic valve.

If the FTC wins the case before an administrative law judge the agency could then ask a federal judge to order the refunds. He called the possible refunds "an important part of this case" and said the maximum amount of refunds is $1.295 million.

Meanwhile, the FTC announced an agreement with Ball-Matic Corp., manufacturer of the valve, to stop claiming that it will lead to significant improvement in fuel economy.

Officials of Cliffdale, including president Jean-Claude Koven, could not be reached for comment. Richard J. Barich, attorney for Ball-Matic Corporation, said the Orange, Calif. company is out of business because of the federal cases. He called it "nonsense" to say that consumers have been defrauded and added, "All I know is when I read my receipts it appears to save some gas."

The FTC said the Environmental Protection Agency has tested the valve and found that it provides no significant improvement in gas mileage. In another FTC case, two companies that marketed the engine-oil additive Tephguard as an automobile gas saver agreed not to make any false advertising claims. Great North American Industries Inc., and Products on the Move Inc., said they would not go beyond EPA test results in future ads.

Tephguard ads said the product had been tested by EPA, but did not say that EPA found its use did not significantly improve fuel economy, the FTC said.

In Gainesville, Texas, Patrick O. McCrary, president of both companies, said he was pleased by the agreement, which he said would allow the companies to base their ads on specific tests. He said he did not know yet if there would have to be any changes in the ads.

Rocket Engine Explodes While Being Tested

MATAGORDA ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Fingers were crossed, and all systems were go to test the engine for the first privately owned rocketship. But the chief engineer said he knew the minute the missile's engine started that the experiment was doomed.

A roaring ball of flame and smoke hurtled 200 feet into the air Wednesday as the 53-foot Percheron rocket exploded on the launch pad, signalling a months-long setback for a group of Texas entrepreneurs.

No one was injured as engineers for Space Services Inc. attempted a five-second test burn of the missile, and company officials speculated that a jammed propellant valve may have triggered the blast.

"The instant the engine started, I knew we had lost it," chief engineer Gary C. Hudson said Wednesday. "We saw flame from the ignition, (and) it was considerably too orange. It's supposed to be nearly white-orange."

Ironically, Hudson predicted earlier Wednesday that the delayed test of the million-dollar rocket would fail.

"We knew they (preparations) were going to go like this," he said earlier. "The odds are easily nine in 10 that it won't work ... that it will blow up."

Scientists, company officials and reporters watched the blast from a sandbag bunker about 100 yards from the launch site on a cattle ranch owned by a Dallas investor.

The engine firing was the first test of the rocket Space Services hoped to use to launch satellites into orbit at prices below rates charged by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Hudson said officials weren't sure what caused the rocket to explode, but Space Services Inc. vice president Charles Chafer said engineers speculated a propellant valve may have jammed.

Chafer said the valve, designed to allow liquid oxygen and kerosene fuel to mix in the chamber, apparently jammed, preventing the fuels from mixing.

He said the ignition command caused the kerosene to explode, blowing the engine to one side of the orange launch pad and sending parts of the rocket 200 feet into the air.

Chafer said the engine appeared to be relatively undamaged, and the company planned to proceed with its testing program after the rocket is rebuilt.

"We've got to build another one," he said. "We're in a testing program, and it's time to do more of that."

Space Services spokesman Walt Pennino said the explosion would cost the company more than $1.2 million and set the concern's plans back at least six months.

The one hour, 33-minute countdown for the test had gone smoothly earlier in the day, unlike several attempts during the past two weeks to test-fire the engine.

If the engine tests had been successful, company officials said they hoped to launch a sub-orbital flight Aug. 12. The flight plan called for the rocket to climb to an altitude of 14,500 feet and then drop into the Gulf of Mexico about three miles from the launch site.

NASA officials scoffed last June when Space Services president David Hannah announced plans to put commercial satellites in orbit for as low as $2 million.

Military Fill Strikers' Jobs

By The Associated Press
Air traffic controllers from several military bases in North Carolina are filling in for civilian controllers participating in a national strike, military spokesmen said Wednesday.

Members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization remained on strike Wednesday, despite the Reagan Administration's threat to fire them.

Five controllers from the Cherry Point Marine Air Station have been sent to Miami, said Sgt. Dave McGinty of the joint public affairs office on the base. He said several others were ready to man towers across the country if they are needed.

At Pope Air Force Base, one controller remained on alert to be placed at a civilian facility.

Eight Fort Bragg controllers continued working Wednesday at the Greater Pittsburgh (Pa.) International Airport and a Seymour Johnson Air Force Base operator has been deployed to Miami International Airport.

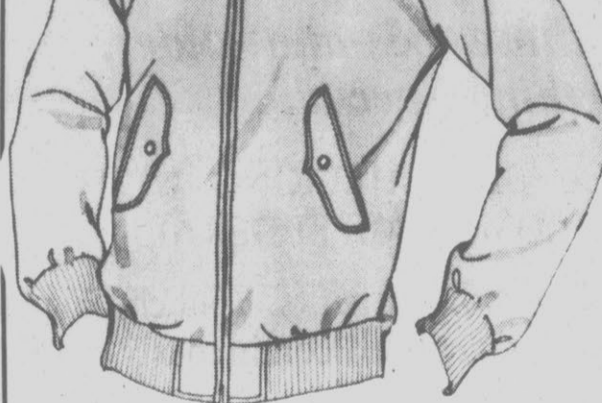

Six of the eight were from Fort Bragg's 58th Air Traffic Control Battalion and two from the Army Communications Command on post. They were called early Tuesday to report for duty.

Four Seymour Johnson controllers have been alerted to prepare for departure to the civilian airport at Las Vegas, Nev., said public affairs officer Capt. Pat Osborn.

Osborn said their orders could come soon after the deadline expired.

Another six controllers at Seymour Johnson have been identified as available for deployment at civilian airports if needed. The base has 55 controllers certified by the Federal Aviation Administration. Officials said they would require a few days of familiarization with traffic control procedures at civilian airports before assuming full duties.

The moves follow a contingency plan drawn up by the FAA earlier this year in anticipation of an air traffic controllers strike. But military and FAA officials emphasized that military controllers will not be used immediately to direct air traffic at the civilian airports.

Several Unions Support Striking Air Controllers

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Several unions are rallying behind striking air traffic controllers, offering moral support and, according to one report, refusing to cross picket lines. The American Federation of Government Employees asserted Wednesday that "the events leading up to this confrontation and the repressive measures taken since lead to the unmistakable conclusion that the Reagan administration is intent on breaking PATCO and all it stands for."

The AFGE, which represents 700,000 members, said "all other government employees are all too familiar with the pressures and attitudes that have led the controllers to take the steps which they have taken." In Chicago, leaders of the 15-million-member AFL-CIO, the nation's largest labor federation, joined some three dozen strikers manning a picket line around the control tower at O'Hare International Airport. Federation president Lane Kirkland was greeted by cheers of "Strike! Strike!" when he and members of the executive council arrived. He said little to the reporters who mobbed him and made his walk on the picket line difficult. Although the Reagan administration has begun firing striking controllers, Kirkland said he still hopes for a settlement that would bring them back to work. "All strikes are designed to achieve a fair settlement," Kirkland said. "We hope for justice." He said he and the executive council members, holding a quarterly meeting in Chicago, decided to join the strikers to show "our concern and sympathy, our brotherhood and sisterhood."

Local 1726 of the machinists union, said of the striking controllers, "We'll be glad to help them. We're giving them all the moral support we can." "If they put up picket lines and we're told to honor them, we'll honor them. If they tell us to pull our people, we'll pull them. That'll close down the airport," added McLaughlin, who said the local has 1,700 members working at Logan International Airport. But he said that decision was up to Wimpisinger. United Mine Workers President Sam Church Jr. declared that the administration's actions represent "an obvious union-busting attempt of the rankest order. This despicable attack on PATCO is extremely detrimental to the entire country."

U.S. And Soviet Union Agree On Extension Of Grain Sale Treaty

VIENNA, Austria (AP) - The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed on a one-year extension of their five-year wheat and corn sales pact, U.S. trade representative William Brock announced. The agreement, which came Wednesday after three days of talks in Vienna, includes the same provisions for grain sales as in the previous agreement, which was to have expired Sept. 30. The Soviet Union will be able to purchase between 6 million and 8 million metric tons of grain without further consultation. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn. A statement issued in Vienna and in Washington said the negotiators also agreed to examine a long-term agreement "sometime later this fall."

Jimmy Carter suspended grain sales to the Soviets above 8 million metric tons. Shipments resumed last April 24 after President Reagan received heavy pressure from American farmers to lift the partial embargo. The cutoff last year effectively blocked the sale of 17 million metric tons of grain the Soviets had been expected to get during the fourth year of the agreement. It allowed only 8 million tons to be shipped. In the fifth and final year, 8 million tons more were permitted, and that was shipped by late spring. After Reagan lifted the embargo, the Soviet Union increased its corn shipment, and a wheat shipment is scheduled to be delivered after Oct. 1. The Soviets purchased grain from Argentina, Western Europe and other sources to replace what they were unable to get from the United States during the embargo, but their imports were somewhat reduced. Farm economists have predicted that the Soviets will have an increasing need for grain this decade. They have said the United States, with its potential for production, is an obvious source. Brock called the talks

Accidents Down

Jerry Cox, the city's personnel director, announced that city employees reduced the total number of accidents involving city vehicles and personal injuries by 13 percent during the 1980-81 fiscal year. He said the reduction in the total number of on-the-job accidents was primarily accomplished by the implementation of a new safety program for city employees, administered through the personnel office. As part of the program, a committee of employees representing all city departments inspects city facilities and equipment on a regular basis, reviews and monitors on-the-job personal injuries, and makes recommendations on how such injuries could have been avoided. Cox said the 13 percent reduction exceeded the goal which had been set for the year of reducing the number of accidents by 10 percent.

Firing Deadline Defied By Air Traffic Strikers

By BRIAN FRIEDMAN
Associated Press Writer
As a deadline approached for firing the last of the striking air traffic controllers, union members held rallies and picnics and walked picket lines to reaffirm their resolve to fight the federal government. "This is by far the hardest decision I ever made in my life," controller Hal Albert said at a rally Wednesday in Nashua, N.H., where about 400 colleagues from New England and a like number of sympathizers had gathered.

"I'm an honorable man, and I never figured a guy like me would challenge ... the president of the United States," Albert said. True to President Reagan's threat to fire members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization who refused to return to work after walking off the job Monday, the government began to fire strikers Wednesday. But because Reagan's 11 a.m. EDT firing deadline fell in the middle of the morning shift, controllers who normally work that shift have until the beginning of the day shift today — generally 7 a.m. local time — to show up for work.

Dismissal notices began going out Wednesday to some of the 5,000 controllers in the Midwest region, according to a Federal Aviation Administration official in Chicago.

The controllers, some with families in tow, gathered on picket lines and at similar rallies across America to express their anger about the issues that spurred the walkout and their fears about a decision that could end their careers.

"My wife understands, and she's eight months pregnant," said New York controller John Bordner. "I don't know what I'll do if I lose the job, but I also don't want to kill myself because of the pressure and tension." Controllers now average $33,000 annually based on a 40-hour work week; the union is asking for a $10,000-a-year pay increase and a 32-hour work week.

At the San Francisco Bay area's largest air controller facility, in Fremont, U.S. marshals arrived Wednesday night to escort controllers across picket lines following complaints of harassment. Picket lines were to go up today at Los Angeles International Airport and San Diego's Lindbergh Field, PATCO officials said.

A U.S. District Court hearing was set for later today in San Francisco, where 32 strikers, six local presidents and one coordinator must show cause why they are not in contempt of court.

In Judge Thomas Platt's federal courtroom in Brooklyn, fines against the union literally were increasing by the hour. On Tuesday, Platt said he would fine the union $100,000 an hour until the strike was halted. Wednesday, he declared that 20 hours had passed, and he tacked on a $75,000 contempt-of-court penalty to the $2 million fine.

A rally at Miami's Air Route Traffic Control Center drew about 400 controllers and their relatives. Thirteen-year veteran controller Joe Artone said he wasn't worried about the threat of being fired or facing other penalties.

"Where are they going to put us?" asked Artone, 39. "They're turning rapers and murderers out of prison, and they're going to find space for 13,000 air traffic controllers?"

The firing procedure is complicated. The FAA must send an "intent to dismiss" letter to each controller, and the controller has seven days to respond. Once the FAA makes its final decision, the fired employee has 20 days to appeal.

At airports and control centers in the Chicago area, only 17 of 172 employees scheduled showed up for work Wednesday, officials said. Only four of 10 workers were present at O'Hare International Airport, where Tim Cannady, 27, and his wife, Jean, both controllers, walked a picket line hand-in-hand.

"We just kind of decided, if we don't get the conditions and other things we want, we will be better off without these jobs," said Mrs. Cannady, 26. "We'll be happier creatures."

Added her husband: "We put our jobs on the line. But if we lose them, we will just start again."

Slip Continues Seahawk String

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks had a chance to halt their enigmatic Kingdom jinx Wednesday night.

But Coach Jack Patera went for a touchdown — instead of a field goal — and the Seahawks wound up losing to the San Francisco 49ers 27-24 in the clubs' National Football League exhibition openers.

It was the ninth straight loss at home for the Seahawks, who were 0-8 during the regular season last year in the Kingdom.

"Yes, we have something to prove this year," said Jim Zorn, the Seahawks' No. 1 quarterback. "That we can win in the Dome. We're 0 for 9 here now."

Before 56,968 disappointed fans, the Seahawks blew their chances of victory with two minutes left in regulation play.

The 49ers wound up winning in overtime on Ray Wersching's 39-yard field goal with 5:29 elapsed in the 15-minute extra session.

With the score 24-24, the Seahawks had the ball on the 49ers' 1-yard line on a fourth down.

Patera called a running play — instead of the short field goal — but rookie Eric Lane tripped and fell.

"Sometime in the regular season, we're going to be on the six-inch line," Patera explained. "I wanted to see if we could do it now."

Zorn wasn't in the game in the fourth quarter but refused to second-guess his coach.

"You've got to have confidence you can put the ball in the end zone," he said. "You can miss a field goal, too. Then people will say you should have gone for the touchdown."

San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh was distressed because 49er tight end Eason Ramson limped off the field in the overtime session with what was diagnosed as a knee sprain.

"This win is really clouded by that injury," Walsh said. "If we lose Eason, it could be disastrous."

Both the 49ers and the Seahawks both have something to prove this season. San Francisco was 6-10 last season while Seattle was 4-10. They will meet Aug. 22 in another preseason contest in San Francisco's Candlestick Park.

Joe Montana and Steve DeBerg quarterbacked the 49ers Wednesday night with Montana completing 10 of 17 passes for 95 yards and a touchdown in the first half for a 14-10 San Francisco lead. DeBerg was seven for 12 for 81 yards.

Zorn played only the first quarter and was five for seven for 78 yards and one touchdown. He was followed by Sam Adkins, three for seven and 13 yards in the second quarter, and Krieg, nine of 13 for 101 yards the rest of the way.

Harry Sydney, a rookie free agent running back from Kansas, scored two touchdowns for the Seahawks in the fourth quarter to tie the score.

The first full week of NFL exhibitions continues tonight with the National Conference champion Philadelphia Eagles at Houston. On Friday, Kansas City is at Washington and the New York Jets visit Denver.

On Saturday, it's Detroit at Buffalo; Cincinnati at Tampa Bay; the New York Giants at Chicago; Pittsburgh at Cleveland; Baltimore at New Orleans; St. Louis at San Diego; Green Bay at Dallas; Miami at Minnesota and Atlanta at Oakland.

New England winds up the extended slate of preseason contests at Los Angeles next Monday night.

The Patriots cut eight players Wednesday: receivers Edward Wright, Mike Bush and Stanley Brooks; center Russ Compton; defensive back Arnie Pinkston; punter Mark Ross; running back Ron Tate, and Tim Ross, a linebacker.

The Jets waived Dexter Clay, a wide receiver, and claimed tight end Mike Maher from St. Louis. The Cardinals announced that speedy wide receiver Mel Gray has separated his shoulder and would be out of action for eight weeks. And New Orleans placed fifth-round draftee Louis Oubre, a tackle out of Oklahoma, on injured reserve with the same injury.

San Diego placed receiver Bobby Duckworth on the reserve-non-football injury list.

Lambert Might Not Back Strike

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Jack Lambert of the Pittsburgh Steelers said Wednesday that if the National Football League Players Association strikes next season he will cross the picket line if he doesn't agree with the reasons for a walkout.

Lambert spoke with Ohio reporters in an amplified telephone interview at the training camp of the Cleveland Browns, whom the Steelers meet in an exhibition game Saturday night.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, has asked for a wage scale that would be based on players' years of service, plus a formula that would give the players 55 percent of the league profits.

"I will not strike and I will cross the picket line if a strike is called by the NFLPA based on those issues," Lambert said.

He said such ideas are "totally against the American free enterprise system."

Lambert, whose contract expires this season, said he would favor changes in the free-agency system to give NFL players more opportunity to sign with other teams. He is currently threatening to go to Canada unless Pittsburgh meets his terms.

"I am much more concerned with our freedom and the opportunity to move from one team to another," he said.

Illinois Reluctantly OKs Lesser Big Ten Penalties

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The University of Illinois, which had threatened to leave the Big Ten Conference because of sanctions levied against it by faculty representatives, reluctantly accepted lesser penalties late Wednesday evening after a nine-hour meeting at the University of Minnesota.

The sanctions, which originally included a three-year probationary period, stemmed from the school's handling of an eligibility case involving former Illini quarterback Dave Wilson.

Under the new rulings, announced shortly after midnight (EDT), Illinois will be placed on probation for just one year, beginning Sept. 1, 1981. The school also is denied participation in any post-season events in football for one year (1981-82) and also cannot receive conference television revenues from football for one year.

Originally, the faculty reps had voted 9-0 to bar Illinois from post-season play for two years in all sports and the school would also not receive money from television for two years.

Jack Wentworth, faculty rep from Indiana, would not reveal Wednesday's vote, saying only that the new sanctions came as "a vote of the conference."

In a prepared, joint statement issued to the press, Illinois said it "accepts the imposition of these sanctions."

"We would have liked to have all the sanctions lifted, naturally," said John E. Cribbet, chancellor of the university's Champaign campus. "But you do not resolve these things easily. We feel the Big Ten is our natural home. We were charter members."

Wilson, who signed a professional contract with the New Orleans Saints this summer, had been denied eligibility by a Big Ten committee last fall after transferring to Illinois from Fullerton Junior College in California. He took his case to court and was granted an injunction that allowed him to play in the 1980 season, during which he set numerous school, conference and national records.

Wilson's eligibility dispute centered around a game in which he played during his freshman season at Fullerton.

Wilson broke his hand in the first quarter of that game and did not play for the remainder of the year, but did play two full seasons after that.

Illinois petitioned the Big Ten to grant Wilson two full years at Illinois, a request the conference denied. The conference said that Wilson would be eligible for the 1981 season but not 1980.

Wilson then went to court, suing the university, the Big Ten and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The injunction, which was appealed and eventually upheld by the Illinois Supreme Court, allowed him to compete in 1980.

His eligibility for the 1981 season was still in question when the Saints took him in the National Football League's supplemental draft this summer.

Snow Hill Tops Hamlet, Evens Series At 1 Each

ROCKINGHAM — Snow Hill pushed over three runs in the second inning and went on to record a 4-1 victory over Hamlet in the second game of its best-of-seven series in the American Legion Baseball state playoffs last night.

Hamlet won the opening game of the series by a 4-2 score. The series will move to Snow Hill for the next three games, to be played Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. If necessary, the series returns to Rockingham for the final two games, Sunday and Monday.

Two Place In Olympics

William Waugh and Chris McLawhorn, both of Greenville, were national place winners in their age groups in the Junior Olympics held this past weekend at Lincoln, Neb.

Waugh finished fifth in the Athletic Congress/USA National Junior Olympic Track and Field Games' 15-16 year-old age group in the shot put. His throw was 47 feet, 1 1/2 inches.

McLawhorn, a rising senior at Rose High School, finished sixth in the 17-18 age group in the long jump with a leap of 23 feet, 3 1/4 inches.

Two Raleigh based relay teams, representing the Brooks East Coast Classics Track Club, established new national records. The 4x400 relay team for 17-18 year olds, placed first with a record time of 3:12.50, while the 4x800 team in the same age group was first with a time of 7:35.27.

Don Budge was the first amateur tennis player to win the grand slam, taking the United States, Wimbledon, French and Australian titles in 1938.

day. The Snow Hill team got fine pitching from Kevin Korpi, who went the distance, scattering seven hits.

But the key came in the second when Snow Hill got four hits, and drove in three runs. Snow Hill had left runners at second and third in the opening frame before breaking the ice.

David Kester got things started, reaching on an error at third. Wade Corbett followed with a single, and with two away, it began to look like Snow Hill was going to continue its famine.

"I think we were beginning to wonder if we could get anyone in," Coach Jim Fulghum said. "But it was just a matter of getting one or two in to convince us that we could do it."

Hamlet's lone run came in the fifth inning. With one down, Fred Burr singled and with two down, Alex Wallace drew a walk. Both moved up on a wild pitch, and Andre Harrington was then walked. Jerome Goodwin reached on an infield hit, scoring Burr.

Snow Hill got it back in the seventh. Bobby Avery doubled and moved to third on a sacrifice by Gary Ream. Hardison then hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Avery.

"We hit the ball really well," Fulghum said. "With 11 hits, and five of them for extra bases, I'd have to say we stung it pretty well."

Jabo Fulghum led the hitting for Snow Hill with three in four trips, including his double, while Frank Milkovits had two in four appearances. Hardison, Korpi, Avery and Ream all had doubles.

Goodwin and Burr each were two-for-four for Hamlet.

The series, tied at 1-1, resumes tonight at Snow Hill.

Rain Doesn't Stop Smith

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — round in the U.S. Open Clay Court tennis tournament. Neither rain nor the highly publicized Kathy Rinaldi kept Anne Smith from her appointed advanced to today's scheduled

Disappointed

Fourteen-year-old Kathy Rinaldi shows her disappointment after losing a game during her match with Anne Smith at the U.S. Open Clay Court Championships Wednesday afternoon in Indianapolis. quarterfinal match against No.3 Mima Jausovec with a 6-4, 6-4 victory Wednesday over Rinaldi. The match was twice interrupted by rain.

Smith, 22, said the stop-and-start routine didn't bother her.

"I just figured if I got nervous I couldn't change the rain," she said. "You just have to block it (the delays) out of your mind. It was difficult, that's for sure, but we were both in the same situation."

Rain played havoc with Wednesday's schedule of matches. Four of the men's second-round clashes were delayed to Wednesday night, and half of the eight women's third-round matches were postponed to today.

Both the men's and women's top three seeds managed victories, however. In an abbreviated evening schedule, No.1 men's seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia beat John Benson 6-3, 6-4. Lendl was leading 3-2 in the first set when a downpour interrupted play late in the afternoon.

Second-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina, the defending men's champion, later took out Chris Delaney, 6-2, 6-1; No.3 Guillermo Vilas, also of Argentina, beat England's Jonathan Smith, 6-3, 6-2; and No.5 Mel Purcell, the runnerup to Clerc last year, dropped three-time Clay Court champion Manuel Orantes of Spain, 6-1, 6-2.

The women's top-seeded Andrea Jaeger, trailing 2-3 in the first set, won 10 straight games to beat Renee Richards 6-3, 6-0 moments before the first of several rainstorms interrupted play.

No.2 Virginia Ruzici of Romania also advanced to the quarterfinals with a 7-5, 6-1 third-round victory over No.13-seed Pam Casale. Jausovec beat Pilar Vasquez 6-3, 6-3.

Rinaldi, at age 14 already compared with Chris Evert Lloyd, Tracy Austin and Jaeger at that stage of their careers, was playing in her first tournament since turning professional. The third-round loss was worth $1,600 as Rinaldi's share of a $350,000 purse.

"I'm not worried about the money. I'm just enjoying the tennis," said Rinaldi, who last month, still as an amateur, became the youngest player ever to win a match at Wimbledon. She was seeded 14th here and won her first two matches against unseeded Cissie Donigan and Elise Burgin.

"I'm always disappointed when I lose," Rinaldi said, "but I just have to learn to accept it and try harder the next time. I don't underestimate anybody. I was confident, but she (Smith) played really well."

The victory was the first for Smith after two previous losses to Rinaldi. "So this was really a big win for me," Smith said. "She's 14 and doesn't have the pressure on her. She seems to have adjusted well (to the women's tour)."

Smith said the turning point came when the match resumed after the second rain delay. Rinaldi was leading the second set 4-3 before Smith forced a deuce and, holding serve, tied the set 4-4.

"If she had won, she would have been leading 5-3 and serving to win the set," said Smith. "She has a lot of experience for 14 years old."

Clerc, seeking his fourth straight tourney championship, stretched his match victory string to 21.

"It's very, very good," he said, "but I don't know how long it will go on. I didn't have very good concentration to-night, and I didn't serve very well. I just tried to keep the ball on the court."

Purcell said, "I was playing very well. This was the best I've played in a long time. Orantes is not as good as he used to be, since his operation (on his left elbow last year). He had his day, and now it's my turn."

The biggest upset was in the men's second round, where unseeded David Carter of Australia surprised No.4-seed Harold Solomon 6-2, 6-4. Solomon said he found it difficult to breathe in the high humidity.

In other matches involving seeded players before the rain delay, No.6 Jose Higueras of Spain ousted John Hayes, 6-2, 6-1; No.9 Hans Gildemeister of Chile defeated Van Winitzky, 6-2, 6-2; L.No.10 Jose-Luis Damiani of Uruguay beat Sweden's Per Hjertquist, 6-1, 6-1; No.14 Shlomo Glickstein of Israel rallied past Chile's Belus Prajoux, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2; and No.15 Mark Edmondson of Australia beat Dean Joubert of South Africa 7-6, 6-4.

Unseeded Gabriel Urpi of Spain upset No.13 Heinz Gunthard of Switzerland, 7-5, 6-2.

Not Winning Gnaws At Jack On Eve Of PGA

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, golf's greatest performer ever, is facing the grim prospect of not winning for the second time in three years.

And, naturally, this 41-year-old perfectionist does not like it. "Sure, it gnaws at me," he said before the start of today's 63rd PGA National Championship over the 7,070-yard, par-70 Atlanta Athletic Club course.

Nicklaus was the defending champion against 149 challengers in this $400,000 event, the last of the four annual majors.

Despite his mediocre year — he's been second three times in 13 starts — Nicklaus' name frequently has been mentioned as a favorite to win the $60,000 first prize.

Also drawing considerable support were these anticipated challengers:

—Tom Watson, Masters champion, No. 1 money-winner and three-time titleholder this season, still searching for his first PGA crown.

—Raymond Floyd, another three-time champion in 1981, the 1969 PGA king whose $324,000 in yearly earnings are just $11,000 short of Watson.

—Bruce Lietzke, the winner of the Bob Hope, San Diego and Byron Nelson Classic this year and No. 3 on the money tree.

—David Graham, the current U.S. Open champion who won this crown two years ago.

—Jerry Pate, the winner of the last major championship on this course, the Open in 1976.

Nicklaus, now 41, silenced critics that he was over the hill after going through 1979 without a victory. He did it in 1980 by winning the Open and PGA, pushing his unprecedented number of major pro titles to 17.

The late Bobby Jones ranks second with 13 "old" majors in the American and British opens and amateurs.

Unlike 1979, Nicklaus is not upset with his level of performance this time.

"I've played pretty well all year. I just haven't got the ball in the hole. Outside of that 83 in the British Open, I've been in contention in the majors," he said, resting in front of his locker after another test with the length of this course and the mid-90 degree heat of Georgia. His second-place finish in the Canadian Open Sunday jumps his confidence.

"Anytime I come to a major after I've played a good tournament, I feel my chances are good. I was proud of my play, my patience last week. This course will require more of that patience," he said.

"With this rough, this course is more difficult than 1976 (for the Open). Unless you are very lucky, chances are you won't get it out of the rough.

"You'll be thinking, 'Where is my best position to be hitting my third shot from to save my par four?'"

Nicklaus says his much-publicized stomach disorder earlier this summer has improved.

"I feel fine," he said. "That problem is considerably better. It hasn't kept me from doing anything."

Even if he doesn't win here Sunday, Nicklaus will have another opportunity in the Hall of Fame Tournament at Pinehurst in September.

And he could break his drought in the World Series of Golf if he qualifies for that $400,000 event later this month.

He also will play for the American Ryder Cup squad and participate in a $1 million exhibition in late December in South Africa with Gary Player, Seve Ballesteros, Johnny Miller and Lee Trevino.

By accepting the South African invitation, Nicklaus has altered his stance about such high-stakes exhibitions.

"Several years ago they were trying to put on Las Vegas-type challenge deals.

Owners Expected To Vote Split Season In For Returning Leagues

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Major leaguers were scheduled to "Play Ball!" for the first time in 56 days today, one day after they voted overwhelmingly to ratify the contract that ended their seven-week strike.

At the same time, team owners were expected to ratify the contract at a meeting in Chicago today, when they also would take up the format for the rest of the season.

There seemed to be heavy support for a split season, with division winners from the first portion — prior to the June 12 strike — qualifying for the playoffs and everyone starting the second portion of the season from scratch.

With 20 of the 26 teams reporting their votes, 10 had approved the contract unanimously. They were Detroit, Milwaukee, Kansas City, Baltimore, Toronto, Montreal, Houston, St. Louis, Atlanta and the Chicago Cubs.

Overall, the players had supported the settlement by a 448-25 margin. A simple majority of the 650 players on active major league rosters, plus those on injured reserve, was needed for ratification.

Ironically, that majority was achieved on the day that the owners' $50 million strike insurance expired.

Other team votes were: New York Mets, 24-1; Texas Rangers, 24-1; Oakland A's, 26-1; California Angels, 21-4; Chicago White Sox, 23-4; Seattle Mariners 23-3; San Francisco Giants 23-2; San Diego Padres, 22-3, and Minnesota Twins, 21-6.

"I think everybody is pleased to be back," said Texas pitcher Jon Matlack, the team's player representative. "There were questions and some discussion about the contract. I think there's no way anyone who hasn't been following this on a day-to-day basis, who hasn't been close to it, will understand the ins and outs of it."

Matlack's Rangers were one of nine clubs scheduled to play exhibition games tonight, the first since the walkout over free agent compensation halted the season. Texas hosted the Houston Astros.

The Astros' J.R. Richard, recovering from a stroke and major surgery, had been expected to go a couple of innings in the game, but he was scratched Wednesday. Astros Manager Bill Virdon said Richard, who had thrown 15 minutes of batting practice Monday, was "not quite ready" to pitch competitively.

The rest of the schedule had the Albuquerque Dukes of the Pacific Coast League at the Los Angeles Dodgers, their parent club; Baltimore at Philadelphia; Oakland at San Diego; Pittsburgh at Cleveland, and Atlanta at Milwaukee.

The regular season is scheduled to resume Monday, one day after the All-Star Game in Cleveland.

A full slate of 13 games is on tap Monday, beginning with the Mets at the Cubs in the afternoon.

One team facing a dilemma is the Atlanta Braves, who must cut three players before midnight Sunday. Due to injuries and promotions from the minors, the Braves have 28 men on their roster.

"I don't have the answers yet," said Braves Manager Bobby Cox when asked how he'll reduce the squad. "We're talking about a lot of things, but we're just going to watch what happens the next few days and then go with who looks best."

Ray Grebey, director of the Player Relations Committee and the owners' chief negotiator during the strike, said Wednesday that Lloyd's of London is trying to decide precisely when the strike ended and how much money the owners will receive. The owners' $50 million strike insurance policy expired Wednesday.

Grebey said he expected the owners to get a minimum of $44 million, with $47 million the likely figure. It depends, Grebey said, on when Lloyd's decides the strike was over for its own purposes. The insurance company apparently has four options: (1) last Friday, when the settlement was reached, (2) last Saturday, when players began getting paid, (3) next Sunday, when the All-Star Game is played, (4) next Monday, when the regular season resumes.

Meanwhile, players association executive director Marvin Miller expressed concern over "the safety factor" involved in air travel during the air controllers' strike.

Jury Is Still Out

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jurors in the Oakland Raiders-National Football League antitrust trial were scheduled to begin their eighth day of deliberations today.

The jury of seven women and three men, which received the case on July 29, concluded its seventh day of deliberations Wednesday without reaching a verdict. The trial was held in the courtroom of U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson.

The Raiders and Los Angeles Coliseum Commission are suing the NFL for blocking the defending Super Bowl champions' move from Oakland to Los Angeles. Jury members were chosen in part because their lack of knowledge about sports.

Meanwhile, members of the L.A. Coliseum Commission unanimously passed a resolution expressing confidence in a court victory Wednesday, and said: "Attorneys for the NFL are publicly hoping for a hung jury, which is a clear indication that they acknowledge they have no chance of winning this case. We, on the other hand, are confident of our position."

Eagles Listening For Music Of Turnstile

By LEE CREEK
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Kinston Eagles general manager Ray Kuhlman is still searching for the magic chord, and if he is successful, the result may be music similar to that heard by Durham Bulls general manager Pete Bock.

The music is the sound of dollars and cents falling into the club's coffers.

Kuhlman and Bock are currently at opposite ends of the Class A Carolina League spectrum. Though the teams are competitive on the field, Durham's success in the stands far exceeds that of Kinston.

Through 45 home dates this year, the Bulls have averaged 2,465 fans a game, while Kinston's average crowd has been 663.

"We've just not been able to crack the nut," Kuhlman said. "Durham has hit the magic chord and I applaud them. I just wish I could find the magic chord."

There was a time when the magic was in Kinston and the empty seats were in Durham.

In 1962, while a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates' organization, Kinston drew 142,000 fans. Durham, where professional baseball first arrived in 1918, folded in the early 1970s when attendance slipped to 30,000 a year.

"Miles Wolff (the owner) and Pete Bock have resurrected that club," Kuhlman said. "They've found the chemistry... that got the people excited. We haven't been able to do that."

Kuhlman says one big reason is the number and size of promotions offered by the clubs.

Durham, a member of the Atlanta Braves' farm system, has had many promotions and has more scheduled during its final 17 home games. Coming up are "Ladies Giveaway Night," "Kids Giveaway Night," "Father's Night" and an unusual "Eat Your Way Out of the Jello Night."

Bock says he and the Bulls staff have worked hard on the promotions, constantly talking baseball and selling it as a family affair.

"We certainly don't have as many promotions as Durham does or of the scale," Kuhlman said. "Most of theirs are sponsored by merchants and we simply don't have the number of merchants or the size merchants they have."

"The San Diego Chicken is one of the best promotions you can have, but he gets $4,000 whether he performs or not," Kuhlman added. "If the game is rained out, that's too bad. Even if we fill the park, the best I can do is break even. At Durham, his appearance was sponsored by a TV station and a big merchant."

Kuhlman said another problem is the fact that the Eagles are located in a predominantly agricultural area.

"A high percentage of our fans are farmers," Kuhlman said. "They work late and don't get to the park until 8 or 8:15 and then leave around 9:15 to get up with the rooster. That hurts us as far as concessions and the like are concerned."

Durham has also been on television three times this year, and two other stations have requested to do some of their games.

"That's the result of a lot of hard work," Bock said. "Next year it looks like we might have as many as 10 games televised."

"Superstation" WTBS-TV in Atlanta, which like the Braves is owned by Ted Turner, is interested in telecasting some of the Bulls' remaining games. But there are no such prospects at hand for the Eagles.

"You can look at population, promotions, the fact Durham sells beer and we don't or any number of reasons," Kuhlman said. "But one little thing defies all of that. You simply have to look at the Hagerstown, Maryland, club."

Hagerstown, with a population slightly less than 40,000, is averaging 2,100 fans per night. Even before the baseball strike shut the Baltimore Orioles down 70 miles away, the club averaged 1,800 per game.

But General Manager Dan Overstreet says his club promotes a great deal, using both merchants and in-house efforts.

"I don't think they promote heavily in Kinston," Overstreet said. "They're more laid back. They hope they can win and if they win they'll draw crowds. But if you promote, even if you're losing you can keep some semblance of a crowd."

Overstreet also said his club, like Kinston and unlike Durham, has not sold beer at the park, but added "That's not a big factor."

What makes Hagerstown's success even more impressive is the fact that unlike Durham and Kinston, which is an affiliate of the Toronto Blue Jays, Hagerstown does not have a one-team major league affiliation.

"We're a co-op club," Overstreet said. "We've got players on our roster from six different clubs. We're one of two clubs in the nation like that."

If promotion is the straw that's breaking the Kinston camel's back, that problem might not exist in the next year or so. Kuhlman is constantly listening to new ideas to boost attendance, and every general manager has ideas to be heard.

"All the clubs share secrets," Kuhlman said. "The Carolina League is a large partnership. We fight each other like hell on the field, but we do all we can to help each other everywhere else."

NBC Offers To Bankroll CFA If It Tries To Break From The NCAA

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — NBC-TV and the College Football Association are negotiating this week on a television package to rival — possibly even nullify — a four-year, $263 million deal that ABC and CBS made with the NCAA.

The Associated Press also has learned that NBC has offered to help bankroll the CFA if it attempts to split away from the NCAA over the issue of television rights.

However, a pullout by the 62-member CFA, which includes all major football conferences and independents except the Pac-10 and Big Ten, appeared unlikely in the immediate future. Such a break would require an immediate, enormous financial investment and put the schools' other programs, such as basketball and track, at a big disadvantage.

Charles M. Neinas, who resigned in April 1980 as Big Eight commissioner to become the CFA's first executive director, has maintained consistently that the 5-year-old organization's goal is to work within the NCAA structure. All CFA members also are NCAA members.

Nevertheless, Neinas told the CFA board of directors in a report last month that NBC executives offered to help financially if a "divorce" from the NCAA was attempted. In return, NBC would get exclusive rights for five years to all CFA athletic events.

Many observers feel the most likely result of a CFA revolt would be the collapse of all centralized control over football television rights. The NCAA, which always has exercised control over football television, reached a four-year agreement with CBS and ABC last week for more than double the $120 million that ABC is paying for an exclusive four-year deal that expires at the end of this coming season.

But there is a provision that says the networks can seek their own contracts with individual schools unless all NCAA Division I members agree to take part.

Thus, if a meaningful number of CFA members refuse to adhere to the NCAA plan, traditional powerhouses like Notre Dame, Alabama, Penn State and Oklahoma presumably would be free to wheel and deal with any network, cable or subscription television outlet.

That almost certainly would result in a staggering increase in television riches for a select few, with millions of dollars flowing to the major powers. NCAA officials say that would critically damage attendance at other games and doom the smaller schools to perpetual "second class citizenship."

"If that happened, you would see total chaos," said an NCAA official.

Art Watson, president of NBC Sports, confirmed in an interview last week that his network would seek an agreement with the CFA. NBC also has a great deal at stake. Already a distant third behind ABC and CBS, NBC lost the rights to the lucrative NCAA Basketball Tournament several months ago to CBS, practically shutting NBC out of major collegiate programming.

The next move is up to the CFA and will involve hammering out a commitment from NBC comparable to the package negotiated by the NCAA with the other two networks. Next, the CFA would take its deal to the NCAA's board of directors, which meets Aug. 21 in Atlanta.

"The board would then determine if it wished to make a recommendation to the membership," Neinas said. "The alternatives could range from endorsement of a proposed NCAA package to endorsement of a CFA package, or somewhere in between."

"The resolution passed by CFA membership indicated those institutions were reserving their television football rights to themselves," Neinas added. "Everyone was notified of that. It was recognized that if the NCAA can't deliver, the networks have the right to come back and negotiate. How far that would go, I don't know."

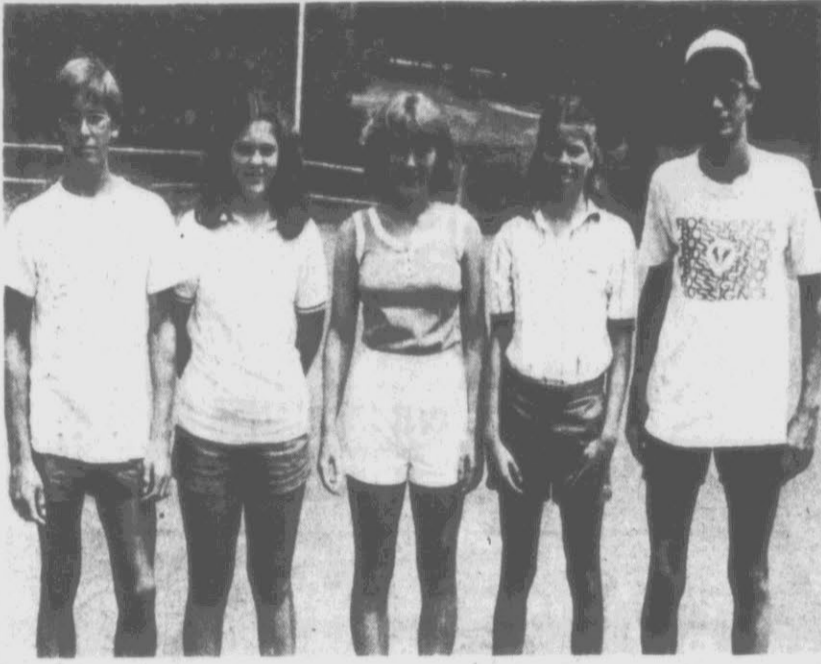

When the dispute began gathering fury earlier this year, the NCAA adopted a tough stance. Jim Frank, president of Lincoln University and president of the NCAA, notified all Division I presidents that any school not abiding by the football agreement would be subject to probation. The implication was that such schools could even be ejected from the organization.

The CFA is weakened by not having the Pac-10 and Big Ten in its fold, and the major football schools always have struggled for unity on issues. Watson himself stopped short of predicting a CFA victory.

"The NCAA had to know that if they let NBC come on board (for part of the football package) that would take the weapon out of the CFA's hand," he said, "because our money offer was as good as anything on the table and CBS had said it would be interested only in half the football deal. But the NCAA chose not to let NBC on board, so they must feel pretty confident they can defeat Neinas."

Net Event Winners

Brook Valley recently completed its annual junior tennis tournament.

In the singles, Kelly Wall and Kevin Fisher captured the girls' and boys' 13 and under championships. Wall beat Gina Parrott, 6-1, 6-0, in the girls' finals, while Fisher beat Greg Hallow, 6-3, 6-2, for his title.

In the 16 and under group, Marsha Tart and Paul Quinn were champions. Tart beat Barbara Little, 0-6, 7-6, 6-3, in the girls' event, while Quinn took a 6-3, 6-1 win over Edwin Hall.

Wall teamed with Nancy Douglas to capture the 13 and under girls' doubles. They beat Kim Mallard and Joy Fidelbusto, 6-2, 6-0, in the finals.

Wall and Tart joined to win the 16 and under girls' doubles, beating out Kristi Logue and Little, 7-6, 5-7, 6-1, for the title.

In the boys' doubles, Steve Wall and Clay Jackson beat Rogers Warren and Brian Hill in a forfeit in the finals.

Air Traffic Disruptions An Old Story In Europe

By ANDREW WARSHAW
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — The disruption that air travelers and freight in the United States are experiencing is an old story to Europe. Its air traffic controllers strike frequently, or stage slowdowns if their country's laws prohibit striking. Controllers along with other government employees are prohibited from striking in France, West Germany, Denmark and Spain. Their strikes are legal in Britain, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and Greece. None of the European controllers have ever been told — as President Reagan has ordered U.S. controllers — to end a strike or be fired. The West German government did take action against leaders of a sick-in eight years ago. But other job actions, both legal and illegal, have ended in negotiated settlements that returned the controllers to their work.

Pay scales for Europe's air traffic controllers vary widely, from $7,000 a year in Greece to an average of $36,000 in Denmark. But like their American counterparts, whose salary range is $20,500 to $49,200, European controllers complain that they suffer from stress, low pay and gross understaffing.

The most recent strike was in Britain, where controllers earn between $12,600 and $27,000 a year. More than 2,500 controllers halted work sporadically at airports up and down the country as part of a 21-week job action by government employees demanding more money. Hundreds of flights were grounded, and British Airways said it lost $74 million dollars from cancellations. The dispute was settled last week.

French controllers, with maximum pay of about $20,000 a year and covered by a law prohibiting all civil servants "ceasing to work," staged a six-week slowdown late in 1979 which resulted in reduction of the work week from 36 to 32 hours. President Francois Mitterrand's new Socialist regime has promised to reinstate the right to strike for government employees.

Although Italian controllers are permitted to strike, the law requires that they maintain essential services, such as flights between the Italian mainland and the islands of Sicily and Sardinia. Making only $7,200 to $8,400 a year, they complain frequently about their pay and working conditions, and two months ago they struck for 24 hours, paralyzing the airports.

Spain's controllers, as government employees, are bound by a no-strike pledge. They got around this with a nationwide slowdown for three days in January, costing the airlines an estimated $7 million. The controllers say their number should be nearly doubled, from the current 850 to 1,500, to handle the country's 38 airports.

The last strike in Belgium, where such actions are legal, was last September, not over pay but to support charges of unfair promotion policies. It was settled after severe disruption.

Danish controllers, Europe's best paid, may not strike, but they reinforce their complaints by refusing to work overtime and calling in sick as well as slowing down. Go-slow action just before Easter cost the Scandinavian airline, SAS, about $200,000 a day. The slowdown ended when the government agreed to study extra compensation for weekend and night work.

Swedish controllers can only go on strike when other salaried government employees do. Average pay is $13,800 a year.

Norwegian air traffic controllers have no strike restrictions. They, too, complain their numbers are too few: there are 270 of them, and they have to do all administrative work as well as watch the skies. Beginners earn about $12,225 annually; the senior staff is paid up to $17,750.

Salaries for controllers in Greece are among the worst in Europe — $7,000 a year including overtime and extra pay for night work. Controllers get one day off in five. But despite general discontent, the only action was a series of 48-hour stoppages last year which failed to close airports.

West German controllers, who make $21,600 a year after five years, have never defied their country's prohibition against strikes by government employees. But eight years ago they demanded more personnel in the control towers and shorter working hours, and many took sick leave, claiming their health was affected by the working conditions.

Air traffic suffered from delays and cancellations for weeks. Top union representatives were suspended, and some are still fighting for reinstatement. The government took the union and 590 members to court, and some of them were ordered to pay damages.

Dutch controllers are not allowed to strike, but they also have few complaints and have not taken any job action in more than 12 years.

Polish Government And Labor Seek End Crisis

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Labor-government talks began today on easing Poland's food crisis and a brief strike was held in the region south of Warsaw. A branch of the independent union Solidarity warned that some 1.5 million coal miners in southern Silesia might walk off the job.

"We should be optimistic and we hope everything will go well," Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said as he met Mieczyslaw Rakowski, Poland's top labor negotiator.

"We expect the government will come up with concrete replies to our concrete proposals," Walesa said. "Otherwise, this beautiful weather will be wasted sitting inside these walls."

Solidarity in the Kielce region south of Warsaw held a two-hour strike, and a Solidarity spokesman in the southern coal-mining center of Katowice said, "If the (national union) negotiating team makes no headway in its talks with the government, a warning strike will begin tomorrow (Friday) from 6 to 10 a.m."

Solidarity in Krakow, the home of Pope John Paul II, planned a food march by women Friday to be supported by nearby union chapters in Tarno, Nowy Sacz and Zakopane, union officials said.

Meanwhile, workers went on strike alert in Sosnowiec, near Katowice, in Chelm, near the Soviet border, in southwestern Opole and northwestern Poznan.

Escalating demonstrations in the Warsaw district hit a high point Wednesday when jubilant truckers and bus drivers celebrated the "complete success" of their 50 hour blockade of the capital's main intersection, and a million workers walked off their jobs in a two-hour strike.

Andrzej Gwiazda, Solidarity's No. 2 leader, told the drivers that new talks with the government were set for today.

"And if nothing happens, we might be back Monday," he warned as the parade of buses and trucks, their horns blaring, pulled out of the crossroads of Jerusalem Avenue and Marszalkowska Street.

The Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu issued a threat of its own. In a commentary headed "breaking windows in one's own house," the paper said, "That which is going on in Poland is threatening serious consequences."

The strikes, protest marches and demonstrations, that have been rippling across the country for the past two weeks represent a snowballing public demand for a greater voice in running the crippled economy of this communist nation.

"What we are fighting for is economic reform and genuine self-management," Solidarity spokesman Janusz Onyszkiewicz told strikers in Warsaw Wednesday.

At issue are government decisions to cut the August meat ration from 7.7 pounds per person to 6.6 pounds, and to hike prices by as much as 400 percent. The government insists these measures are needed to cope with dwindling foodstocks that have led to massive shortages across the country.

Authorities blame the crisis on the nation's $27 billion foreign debt, a bad feed-grain harvest and a 12.5 percent decline in worker productivity because of a year of labor unrest.

Solidarity, the independent union born out of the labor crisis, claims government mismanagement and lack of reforms are to blame for the food shortages.

Omitted A Hello

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio (AP) — The officer spotted the New York plates. He tailed the car as it cruised through town. Seeing the crime, he intercepted the station wagon and arrested the offending family.

The charge: Not saying hello to the people of this Lake Erie village.

"This is fantastic. It's a great way to end a vacation," said James Coward of Orchard Park, N.Y., after he, his wife, Bonnie, and their two daughters were hauled in, booked by Municipal Judge Elaine Crane and put behind bars — for a few moments.

Their "misdemeanor" also brought them a free lunch and a shower of gifts. Saturday was Willoughby Lions Club Arrest Day, an event held one day a year for the past 30 years in which the cops look for out-of-state drivers to pull over and show off the town's sense of humor.

"I couldn't understand why he pulled us over," Mrs. Coward said.

Claim Plot To Slay Chancellor

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A leading Egyptian newspaper said today that Austrian authorities have uncovered a plot to assassinate Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, who was to host Egyptian President Anwar Sadat next week.

The report in Al Ahram said Sadat postponed the planned trip to Austria "following consultations between Cairo and Vienna during which Austrian authorities explained the circumstances of the planned assassination attempt."

The news report gave no further details.

There was no immediate comment from Kreisky or the Austrian Interior Ministry, which was accused by an opposition politician in Vienna today of trying to hush up the affair.

Two Arabs were arrested at Vienna airport last week as they tried to smuggle in automatic weapons, ammunition and hand grenades. The Palestine Liberation Organization representative in Vienna was at the airport to meet them. The Arabs are still under interrogation.

The Austrian press has linked the arms smuggling operation to Sadat's planned visit to Vienna Aug. 10-11 after his trip to Washington. The Egyptian leader's controversial peace with Israel is opposed by 17 Arab countries.

Kreisky's open relations with the Palestine Liberation Organization has angered Israel time and again, but the Austrian chancellor is championing European moves for peace between the Palestinians and Israel.

Abu Daoud, a PLO activist believed to have been a planner of the 1972 Munich Olympics massacre of 11 Israeli sportsmen, was shot and seriously wounded in Warsaw, Poland, over the weekend.

Why he was in Warsaw was not known.

Innocent Plea Is Entered

NEW ORLEANS — A New Orleans couple has pleaded innocent to first-degree murder charges in the robbery-slaying of a Greenville man on July 16.

Attorneys for Alfred Miller, 20, and Margaret Susand Smith, 27, entered the pleas this week in court at New Orleans. They were indicted in the shooting death of David LaFone, 33, who was killed during a robbery in the French Quarter.

LaFone, who was on a leave of absence as manager of J.J.'s Music Hall in Greenville, was killed as he sat in a car with a traveling companion, Tamara Reichert, also of Greenville.

Ms. Reichert, who was not injured, told police LaFone was shot by a man who approached the car and demanded money. She said the gunman fired before she or LaFone had a chance to respond.

LaFone died in surgery less than two hours after the shooting.

Boycott Plan Ralston Purina

MORGAN HILL, Calif. (AP) — The United Farm Workers union, which has organized boycotts of lettuce, wine and bananas, plans to begin a boycott of Ralston Purina products in a few days, an official says.

Frank Ortiz, a UFW organizer, said Wednesday that there are plans to picket supermarkets selling Ralston Purina products, including Chicken-of-the-Sea tuna, pet foods and Chex cereals.

The goal is to settle a strike against Steak Mate Corp., a Ralston Purina subsidiary that grows and prepares mushrooms. Nearly all of the 290 union members at the plant have been on strike since July 20 in a contract dispute over wages and a union shop.

Administration Drawing Up Social Security Plan

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is drawing up plans to make needy people who stand to lose the $122-a-month minimum Social Security benefit next year eligible for welfare.

Social Security Commissioner John A. Svahn said Wednesday that most of the 3 million minimum benefit recipients will not lose any money, either because they can keep getting the same Social Security benefit on their work record or their spouses' record.

Of the 600,000 who stand to lose money, some 400,000 get government pensions or are married to government pensioners, he said. The needy among the remaining 200,000 could be put on welfare, he said.

"The minimum benefit is an unearned benefit. It has no relationship to what you paid into the system ... (or) to the length of time you worked," Svahn said. "What we're saying is pay people what they've earned and if they're in need, cover that out of general revenues."

President Reagan told The

Washington Star in an interview published Wednesday that his intention all along was to stop paying a windfall to retired civil servants, while shifting the needy to Supplemental Security Income, a welfare program.

Reagan said he wants to take care of those needy people "in some way that does not raid the Social Security fund."

Asked if he would support congressional action to restore the minimum for the poor, but not double-dippers, or to expand SSI, Reagan replied, "Yes. That's what we would like to do, is get it back."

He said he expects Congress will deal with the problem when it takes up legislation this fall to deal with Social Security's fiscal crisis.

Svahn said the administration remains committed to "trying to eliminate windfalls that exist within the system," such as the minimum benefit.

"I feel very confident that when the Congress comes back we will have isolated that group and that no one who needs it will lose the benefits. Now it may come from a different source," he said.

Svahn said eliminating the minimum was preferable to other cutbacks such as taxing Social Security benefits, which he said the Carter administration had proposed.

The Carter administration never proposed taxing Social Security, but its 1979 Advisory Council on Social Security did recommend taxing half of benefits. Congress quickly stomped on that idea.

Svahn defended Reagan's call for cutting $88 billion in Social Security benefits by 1986 and he attacked Democratic proposals to let the system borrow from the general Treasury to ride out its current crisis.

That would destroy the program's fiscal discipline and ultimately turn it into a welfare program, he said.

"Once you tap into general revenues, you aren't going to pay it back," said Svahn. Once that "floodgate" is opened, he said, "the same people who are now saying, 'We'll bail it out with general revenues,' will say, 'Our expenditures are too great.

Some people are receiving Social Security who don't need it.... We'll put a needs test on Social Security."

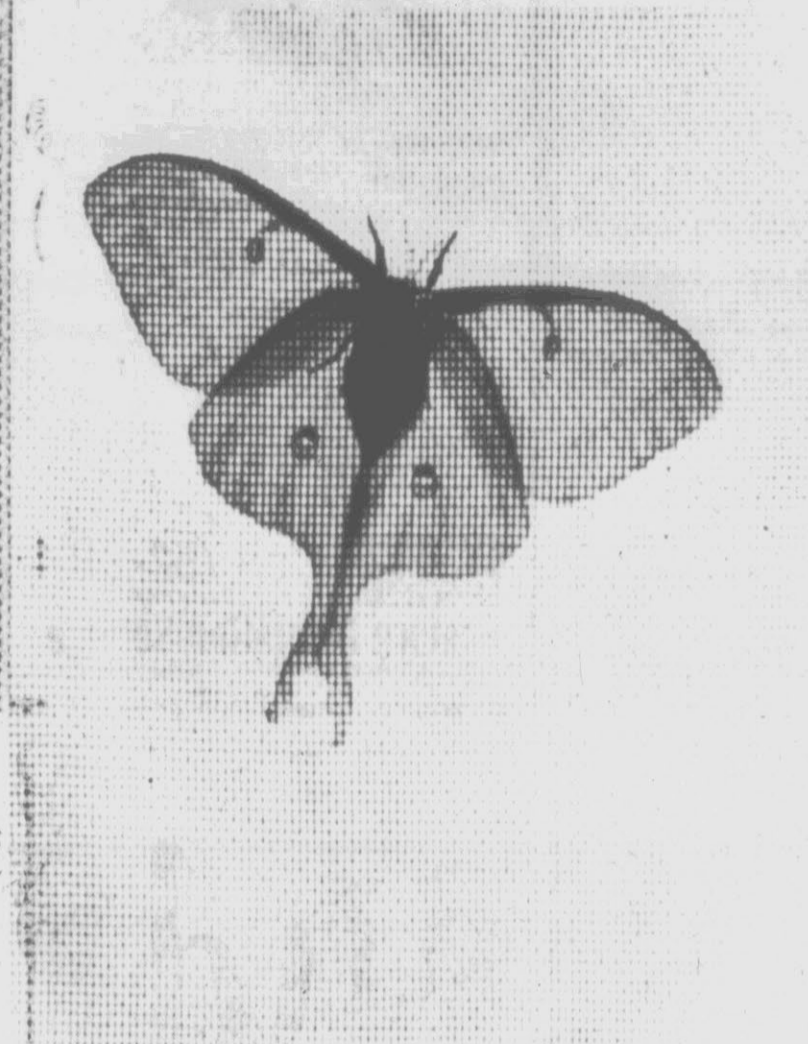

Svahn said the administration supports allowing the beleaguered old age fund to borrow from the disability and Medicare funds, but that will avert a short term crisis only "if we have a real turnaround, a pickup in the economy."

Former Social Security Commissioner Robert Ball, a critic of Reagan's attempt to cut benefits, said that if the administration's forecast for economic recovery holds true, Social Security's trust funds will grow by $45 billion over the next five years.

"What they're asking us to do is to support cuts equivalent to about one-fourth of the permanent protection of Social Security program to meet a problem they say isn't going to occur," said Ball.

The administration is relying on "worst case" economic assumptions in its call for benefit cuts. It contends that using more optimistic assumptions, including its own, could leave the program on thin ice.

Park Service Considers New Coastal Facilities

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The National Park Service is considering $18 million in new development for the Cape Hatteras National Seashore, park officials say.

Proposals in an environmental assessment of a general plan for the seashore range from maintaining the current level of development to adding public facilities costing more than $18 million — including a 57-mile-long bicycle trail.

Recommended action will come after the agency and the public review the proposals, park officials said. No decision is expected for several months.

The assessment outlines issues facing the seashore and offers alternatives for handling the demands of about 2 million visitors who visit the shore annually.

The seashore currently offers ocean sites for day use, soundside sites for day use, bicycle routes and campgrounds. About 94 percent of the 30,000 acres in the seashore remains open land.

One proposed bikeway, spurred by the growing interest in bicycling and physical fitness, would cost more than $88,000 a mile with an annual maintenance cost of $2,000 a mile.

Another alternative is continuing to use N.C. 12, which runs along the shore.

A third proposal would develop separate bikeways at Bodie Island, Buxton and Ocracoke at a cost of $1.6 million initially and $39,000 annually. The paved trails would be two-way routes eight feet wide and separated from the highway.

A fourth plan calls for a bikeway through Bodie Island, Buxton, Ocracoke and the entire seashore, representing an additional 57 miles of construction. The price tag on that path, running parallel to the highway, would be $7.8 million to start, and $152,000 a year to keep up.

The park service is considering 24 sites on the ocean side of Hatteras Island for daytime activities like swimming, surfing and fishing. Under the no-action alternative, visitors would continue to use one developed area and 21 parking areas, but the assessment contends that this would lead to crowding.

An alternative costing $2.3 million provides for major development, such as protected swimming beaches, dressing rooms with showers and picnic areas at the existing developed area at Coquina Beach. At 22 other sites, including two new one, parking areas and boardwalks across dunes would be built.

Providing major developments at five sites and adding minor facilities at 18 others would cost about $5.9 million.

Big Maneuvers

SAN JUAN Puerto Rico (AP) — Seventeen British, Dutch and U.S. ships were scheduled to arrive her today to take part in the Caribbean portion of a military exercise being held this summer and fall in the Atlantic Ocean, a Navy spokesman announced.

The two weeks of maneuvers will be held off Puerto Rico and its out-island Vieques, and Guantanamo Bay in Cuba as part of Ocean Venture, the largest peacetime Western naval exercise since World War II. It involves 250 ships from 14 countries, 1,000 aircraft, and 120,000 men and women.

The exercises are to include an amphibious assault, live gunnery practice on Vieques, and a parachute drop at Salinas on Puerto Rico's south coast, said Lt. Drew Malcomb, public information officer at Roosevelt Roads Navy Base on Puerto Rico.

UFO Reported

NBC 'Magazine' Gets Chance With New Time

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It started out in 1974 as "Weekend," a once-a-month replacement for "Saturday Night Live." Then it had a short life on Sunday nights before becoming "Prime Time Saturday" with Tom Snyder, or was it "Prime Time Sunday?" Maybe it was both.

The show now is called "NBC Magazine with David Brinkley," and it too has been in search of a night, a time slot and, most importantly, an audience.

Last season, it occupied the graveyard shift opposite "Dallas" on Friday nights and finished 97th out of 97 shows. It found a better home this summer on Thursdays, improving its ratings by 42 percent. Still, it was tentatively scheduled for oblivion in the fall on Saturday nights, when TV viewing is down, and ABC's lonely heart's programming ("Love Boat," "Fantasy Island") rules the roost anyway.

Meanwhile, CBS' "60 Minutes" was providing high-quality and high-ranked programming. ABC's late entry into the magazine business, "20/20," No. 2 in the ratings last week, was doing well against entertainment competition with a good mix of investigative reports and glittery profiles.

In comparison, NBC's magazine show was stodgy and, according to NBC insiders, stocked with some field producers who were merely playing out the string. Too often, the hour was filled with paunchy profiles, unfocused investigative pieces and less-than-scintillating subjects.

Is it worth keeping? Richard Salant, NBC's vice chairman, says the question isn't even worth asking. "It's a good program, irrespective of ratings," said Salant, former president of CBS News. "If we worried about ratings in the news business, '60 Minutes' would have been off the air six years before it was a success."

Salant said there's no need to tamper with the program or the format. "The content's good, and that's the important thing," he said. "We don't do shows in the news division. We're not in the entertainment business."

Even so, what value is good journalism if nobody's watching?

NBC seems to be addressing that question in subtle ways. First, Thomas Wolzien was recently named executive producer after a successful stint as producer of "Special Segment" on the "NBC Nightly News."

And it looks like "NBC Magazine" will get a fighting chance to reach audiences in the network's revamped fall schedule. Wolzien is confident that Saturday night is out and a weeknight is in. He wouldn't be specific, but it was learned that the show would return to Friday nights, this time against

"Dukes of Hazzard" at 8 p.m., not the unbeatable "Dallas."

Other changes are in the works. "We'll be improving our production staff, upgrading it," Wolzien said. He also stressed format flexibility. If a piece worked at 10 minutes, it wouldn't be inflated to 15 minutes to fill a time segment. A full show could even be devoted to one topic, but more often the format would be "four major pieces, with some smaller pieces sprinkled in."

And he said "NBC Magazine" will concentrate on "investigative pieces and stories that deal with personalities who have real impact on our lives. We won't go after rock stars. Our journalistic motivation for doing personality pieces is that there has to be more than the star being hot today."

"We won't sell out to flash and trash to get audiences," Wolzien's belt-tightening, however, does not include any on-air personnel changes, which may be like bringing in a new manager but keeping the same 25 Chicago Cubs in uniform. "It's been turned over too many times. The last thing this show needs is to be tossed up into the air again," he said.

This means correspondents Garrick Utley, Douglas Kiker, Betsy Aaron and Jack Perkins will be back, as will host David Brinkley, whose wry, weary delivery has done little to excite prime-time audiences.

Brinkley's reputation as a journalist left the expectation that he would be more than a talking head with cocked eyebrows, more than Hugh Downs is on "20/20." Wolzien says Brinkley wants to do more reporting from the field, and the executive producer is happy to oblige him.

"Brinkley's a good draw. He's been one of the strengths of the network for years," said Wolzien. "On this show he's our identity, he's what makes us different. He's a tremendous journalist, and we've got to use him."

"He always surprises you with his twist on things. He understands Washington, power and leadership. He brings things home to people by cutting through all the garbage."

Elder Turner Main Speaker For Event

Elder James Turner, pastor of Pentecostal Temple Church of God in Christ, Rockingham, is to be the main speaker at the third of five Evenings in the Park events being held in Greenville.

Evenings in the Park programs are held from 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday at the Thomas Foreman Park, corner of Nash and Fifth Streets. The events are free and the public is invited to attend. Those attending can bring along folding chairs, blankets, etc. for greater listening ease.

Entertainment on the program will feature the Greater North Carolina State Choir, a choir composed of members of various choirs from across North Carolina who are attending a conference in Greenville; Miss Nancy Carree, a singer-evangelist from Goldsboro; and The Deveauxs of Greenville — Ted, Eilleata and Sean.

Another guest for the evening will be Dr. E. C. Land. Also tentatively scheduled to make appearances are David House and L. Clemmons. Land, House and Clemmons are all affiliated with Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church in Greenville.

Terror Tactics By Landlord Charged

NEW YORK (AP) — Ten police officers with shotguns kicked down a landlord's door and arrested the man and his three sons, charging them with terrorizing their elderly tenants, police said.

The district attorney's office alleged that the Brooklyn landlord and his sons, arrested Wednesday night, carried out a "campaign of terror" to evict the elderly, threatening them with baseball bats and abusing them.

The men began threatening residents of the apartment building almost immediately after taking it over in January so they could charge higher rents to new tenants under New York's strict rent-control laws, said Rhonda Nager, spokeswoman for the district attorney's office.

"Everyone in the building was being terrorized," Ms. Nager said. "The family wanted to raise the rents triple what they were. The whole situation was insidious."

Salvatore Latora, 54, and sons John, 24, Vincent, 23, and Robert, 20, were charged with attempted murder, assault, reckless endangerment and criminal possession of a weapon, Ms. Nager said.

The office is investigating the deaths of three elderly tenants who have died since the Latoras took over the building, she said.

Ms. Nager said an old man who lived alone with a small dog took the Latoras to court after they kicked down his door four times in a week. After the court suggested an out-of-court settlement, the Latoras "told him he had two days to get out or else," she charged. The man was found dead in his apartment the next morning, she said.

Police said they stormed the apartment after the Latoras found that a tenants' lawyer they were talking to, Susan Laufer, had a tape recorder hidden in her purse. The woman was working undercover for the district attorney and said the men threatened her with a knife after the discovery, Ms. Nager said.

There was a struggle with one of the sons and a shotgun blast was fired through the floor during the arrests, but no one was hurt, police said.

Will Give Sadat Gold Medallion

NEW YORK (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has been selected to receive the Gold Medallion, the seventh person to be awarded New York City's highest honor.

Mayor Edward Koch will make the award Friday to Sadat during a reception at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Sadat is scheduled to arrive in New York earlier in the day.

Koch also has presented a Gold Medallion to Pope John Paul II.

Previous administrations honored British Prime Minister Winston Churchill, Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, United Nations Secretary General U Thant, U.S. President Harry Truman and Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, all of whom are now dead.

Long Lines For View Of Gifts

LONDON (AP) — Britons and tourists are waiting for hours outside St. James's Palace for a chance to see more than 700 wedding gifts presented to Prince Charles and Princess Diana. But the most popular item in the show apparently isn't a present.

"I like seeing the wedding dress," said Janet Gould, 34, of Kent County, after she passed by the display Wednesday. "I don't think one could really appreciate the embroidery looking at it on the television."

Diana wore the ivory silk dress a week ago at the couple's wedding, seen by an estimated 750 million TV viewers worldwide.

Big Butter Sale To New Zealand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is selling some 220 tons of surplus American butter to New Zealand even though the Soviet Union was willing to buy it at a higher price.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said Wednesday that the New Zealand Dairy Board will pay 70 cents a pound for the butter and has agreed not to resell it to the Soviets.

State Department officials have said Moscow probably would have paid around $1.05 a pound, but the Reagan administration decided not to deal with the Soviets because the butter is subsidized by the American taxpayer.

An official report indicates the U.S. government investment in the butter is about $1.40 a pound.

According to the officials, a decision to sell to the Soviets might have been interpreted in Moscow as a sign that the United States is willing to set aside ideology if the alternative is a big profit or, in this case, a smaller loss.

Under the agreement, however, there is nothing to prevent New Zealand from selling its own butter to the Soviets. New Zealand is the world's principal butter exporter.

The butter represents about half the stockpile owned by the Agriculture Department's Commodity Credit Corp. Delivery begins Sept. 1 and will run through June 30, 1982.

Some of the butter has been stored since May 1979. Its sales are strictly controlled to keep it from being dumped on U.S. markets, which would depress prices.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUG. 7, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It's advisable that you attend to personal tasks despite the obstacles. Don't put yourself in a position in which delays occur. Unexpected benefits come your way later in the day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Buckle down to the work that needs to be done and handle it efficiently. Be alert to a new opportunity at this time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't expect much from friends who are busy with own affairs right now. Make plans to have more abundance in the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Show more courtesy and thoughtfulness to higher-ups who are under a heavy strain now. Don't neglect any payments.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Meet new and interesting persons who can help you in career matters. New situations should be studied with care.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Knowing what higher-ups expect of you makes the going easier and you stay on the right track. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to views and complaints of associates and come to a better accord. Sidestep a foe who is jealous of you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid a co-worker who is in a bad mood right now. Take more time for rest and build up your energies. Be logical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Not a good day to take any risks. You must use tact to gain acceptance of others at this time. Show others you have wisdom.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you choose your words well with others or there could be a gross misunderstanding. Be more optimistic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Much care should be exercised in motion today to avoid possible accident. Try not to get drawn into arguments with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Exercise extreme care where monetary affairs are concerned or you could find yourself in a financial bind.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take care of a troublesome situation without delay. Make the effort to improve health and appearance. Be wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will know what to do in difficult situations, so direct the education along troubleshooting lines for best results. A compassionate nature in this chart. Give ethical and spiritual training early in life.

On Again — Off Again

General Luis Garcia Meza, who seized control of Bolivia last year, planned to step down as President today — until he changed his mind. Such changes have been a way of life for this mineral-rich nation. Since Bolivia gained its independence from Spain in 1825, it has had more than 60 revolutions and 70 presidents. In 1965 U.S. advisers helped Bolivia's army crush a guerrilla movement supported by Cuba. By 1979 Bolivia was receiving more U.S. aid than any other Latin American nation. But President Carter cut off that aid when Bolivia failed to enact political and social reforms. The U.S. has never recognized Garcia Meza's government.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
1 NT Pass 2 NT Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Two chances are not, in themselves, better than one. Sometimes you have to take your chances in the right order to derive a benefit!

The bidding was routine. South had a reasonable five-card suit and good fillers, so he was delighted to accept his partner's invitation.

West attacked with the top of his heart sequence, and East's king lost to declarer's ace. There were only six top tricks, and either minor suit could be developed for the three extra tricks declarer needed. Diamonds would produce those tricks if the queen dropped doubleton, and clubs if the queen of clubs were with West. Which suit should declarer tackle first?

Let's see what would happen on the actual lie of the cards had declarer played on clubs first. East would win the queen and return a heart, forcing out declarer's remaining stopper in the suit. When West got in with the ace of clubs, he would have enough hearts to cash to set the contract. And even though the queen of diamonds was destined to drop, declarer would have no entry back to his hand to cash the good diamonds.

Now let's consider the alternative — going after diamonds first. If the queen of diamonds does not drop in two rounds, declarer still has time to shift his attention to the club suit. If the finesse succeeds, declarer has the necessary reentry to his hand with the queen of hearts to repeat the finesse.

Declarer did not have the advantage we do of being able to see all the cards. Fortunately, he worked out the chances for himself, and was well rewarded when the queen of diamonds dropped on the second lead of the suit. A diamond to the jack set up declarer's two long cards in the suit, and the queen of hearts was the entry to cash them.

WHY YOU CAN FIND THE CLOTHES ON THE RIGHT FOR LESS THAN THE CLOTHES ON THE LEFT.

The merchandise on the left can be bought in Raleigh. The clothes cost $200.00, plus the gas money it takes to drive there and back. The merchandise on the right can be bought locally. The clothes still cost $200.00, but the money spent on transportation will be a lot less.

You'll find what you want nearby—and you can use that left over gas money for something extra. That's why THE DAILY REFLECTOR puts advertisements from local shopping places first.

Can Antacids Cause Calcium Buildup?

My father recently died of cardiovascular disease. In reading up on the subject, I learned that it is caused by a buildup of calcium in the arteries. For several years I've been taking as many as 10 antacids a day. The label says that each tablet contains 500 mgs of calcium carbonate. Could this be causing a buildup of calcium in my arteries? The label also warns against using the tablet for more than two weeks, except under the "advice and supervision" of a physician. — Mr. R.L., Pa.

Craven Sets Tuition Fee

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — New Bern-Craven County school officials say they established a $150 tuition fee for non-residents in an effort to force the federal government to provide impact aid.

The Board of Education set a collection date in January in the hopes that the money won't have to be collected, said Superintendent Ben D. Quinn.

The action was taken in response to a law enacted by the 1981 General Assembly. Noting that federal impact aid to counties with a high non-resident population could be cut, the law requires counties to charge tuition to non-resident students.

Impact funds are federal monies given to school systems for students who are dependents of parents living on federal property or dependents of parents working on federal property.

Craven County has a large percentage of students from Cherry Point Marine Air Station.

"The law mandates we must set a tuition charge, but we don't want to cause a burden," Superintendent Ben D. Quinn said. "We're trying to get the federal government to come forth with impact funds."

Quinn, who met last week with officials from four other school systems hit heavily by the threatened loss of federal impact funds, told the board of a credit plan the officials have devised in case the federal impact funds are awarded.

"If the money is forthcoming, no one will have to pay," Quinn said. "On the other hand, if the money is not received by January, we can always come back and amend the policy."

Some school systems, including Pamlico County, have set a token $1 tuition fee.

Fruit Fly Scare Shakes Florida's Citrus Growers

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - Shaken by the discovery of three Mediterranean fruit flies in a backyard tree, officials began an intense hunt for more flies and sought to restrict California imports to save Florida's $1 billion-a-year produce industry.

"This is what our concern has been since we knew about the infestation in California a year ago - that it would leak out of that state and begin to affect our citrus industry," Gov. Bob Graham said Wednesday.

California officials weren't so sure that the destructive flies, the first found in Florida since 1963, came from California.

But Florida Attorney General Jim Smith said Wednesday that he would ask U.S. District Judge Lynn Higy of Panama City to rescind his order of last month lifting Florida's stringent quarantine of California produce. A federal judge in Dallas also lifted Texas' blockade, but Texas is checking California produce at borders anyway.

The three dead flies found in a trap near Tampa were delivered by hand to Los Gatos, Calif., Wednesday so they could be tested to determine whether they had been capable of reproducing.

California medfly project spokesman Eric Strahl said early today, however, that the flies apparently had been dead too long to determine if they were fertile.

"We'll never know if they're fertile or sterile," said Strahl. "The bodies were hardened. They hadn't been alive for a while."

He said a state entomologist "stuck the flies into a solution in hopes of softening them up," but they had deteriorated.

Before the flies were delivered to Los Gatos, Jerry Scribner, director of California's medfly project had said he was "not optimistic that they're going to be sterile."

California has been releasing sterile fruit flies to interrupt the breeding cycle of the flies infesting fruit and vegetables in three residential counties south of San Francisco.

Graham said he supported the use of "the most effective actions available to us, which is aerial spraying" of the pesticide malathion if the flies were found to have been fertile.

Gov. Edmund Brown of California at first balked at aerial spraying when fruit flies were discovered there but ordered it July 9 after the federal government threatened to quarantine the entire state.

The three fruit flies - two males and a female - were found Tuesday by a U.S. Agriculture Department inspector. They were in a cardboard trap set in a calamondin tree about 15 miles from Polk County, the heart of Florida's citrus belt and responsible for 25 percent of the state's citrus harvest - more than the combined production of Texas, Arizona and California. Calamondin is a bitter citrus fruit used for making jam.

The flies were sent to Washington, D.C., where the identification was verified Wednesday by USDA officials.

For three days, beginning Wednesday, officials will check 12,000 traps throughout the state and make spot checks of fruit to see if the flies are elsewhere. By late Wednesday, no more flies had been trapped, and no evidence of the larvae that rot fruits and vegetables had been found.

Florida used malathion spraying to wipe out medfly infestations from 1956 through 1958 and again in 1962 and 1963. The pesticide is commonly used in Florida for mosquito control.

Frank Graham, a lawyer for the Florida Agriculture Department, said it was "obvious" the flies came from California because 29 California produce shipments were traced to Tampa in the past month.

But Scribner said it was premature to assume that the Mediterranean fruit flies in Florida came from California.

Florida officials "need to be reminded that Florida has had the medfly three times before, and it obviously didn't come from California," Scribner said. "Most of the Caribbean islands are heavily infested, so it's much more likely they came from there."

California's fly-infested Santa Clara Valley is under quarantine, and officials have confiscated tons of fruit from cars and trucks leaving the area. But they admit they have been unable to check every vehicle.

Scribner said it would be impossible to determine immediately whether the flies came from California. He said a Florida researcher was capable of determining a medfly's origin by its genetic makeup, but he said the process takes months.

No flies have been found in commercial fields anywhere in California. The third round of aerial pesticide spraying over the medfly-infested Santa Clara Valley was to end today, and at least three more rounds were planned.

Georgia Agriculture Commissioner Tommy Irvin said Georgia would not begin inspecting Florida produce that crosses the Georgia border unless there was some indication fruits and vegetables from the affected area were being shipped out of Florida.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said by telephone from Austin that "knowing how great Florida is ... They won't pussyfoot around like they did in California" in trying to wipe out the flies.
