Strike Problems Spread; Reagan: No New Talks

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The air traffic controllers strike is spilling over U.S. borders, while the Reagan administration says "positively not" to negotiating the return of 12,000 fired workers even if they end their week-old walkout.

The Canadian Air Traffic Control Association ordered its members to stop handling all but emergency flights to and from the United States at 7 a.m. EDT today — an action that mirrored French controllers' refusal to handle U.S.-bound flights.

The Canadian action caused numerous flights from Logan International Airport in Boston to be delayed or canceled, airport spokeswoman Jo Ryan said.

She said a 7 a.m. Delta flight to Toronto was still on the ground in Boston two hours later and that another Delta flight, from Miami to Montreal, had been diverted to Boston.

At Montreal, three planes bound for the United States returned to the passenger terminal at Dorval Airport after being refused take-off clearance by controllers who disregarded orders they clear U.S.-bound flights as usual.

And at Toronto, most airlines flying into the United States were experiencing delays. Some flights were still on the ground 90 minutes after scheduled departures.

The president of a controllers union local in Rochester, N.Y., Jerry Presley, said Canadian controllers had not been handling U.S. flights into Canada from Rochester or Buffalo, N.Y. Nor, he said, have flights from Canada been landing at those two airports.

But the deputy tower chief at the Greater Buffalo International Airport, Vito Borrello, said operations with Canada were normal and that three flights from Toronto had arrived since the Canadian action began.

No flights had been scheduled to leave Buffalo for Toronto, he said. At the Federal Aviation Administration, spokesman Fred Farrar also called Presley's charge "totally false" and added that Rochester controllers do not handle U.S.-Canadian air traffic.

Farrar said at mid-morning that he knew of only one incident of an American plane being refused service by a Canadian controller.

He said a controller refused to handle an Anchorage-Seattle flight that was to have passed through Canadian airspace.

The flight was rerouted over water, Farrar said. "We understand the Canadians have replaced the controller involved with supervisors," he added.

Farrar said the Canadian action could have its greatest effect late this afternoon, when trans-Atlantic flights bound for New York are due to pass through Canadian airspace.

Earlier, another FAA spokesman, Dennis Feldman, said the Canadian controllers' action "could be disruptive, but I'm sure it will be resolved."

"The Canadian government can handle that," Feldman said early today. "They did the same thing earlier when they disciplined three controllers" for refusing to handle U.S.-bound flights.

The FAA said U.S. air traffic Sunday, the seventh day of the strike by 12,000 controllers, slipped to 76 percent of normal after hitting a peak of 83 percent on Saturday. Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis attributed the drop to cutting controllers on the job from 60 hours' work last week to 48 hours.

Lewis said it will take six months before the FAA can again handle much more than 75 percent of regular flights and 21 months to get back into full operation.

At least two airlines, Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines, said their flights from Paris and Rome to New York were rerouted over Canada on Sunday because of French controllers' refusal to handle U.S.-bound flights.

Keith Andrews, a spokesman for the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers Association, said controllers along Canada's Atlantic coast were working up to 12 hours' overtime to handle the extra traffic and were losing their alertness.

Bill Robertson, the association's president, said the decision to quit handling flights to or from the United States was made after union's board members expressed concern about safety hazards.

"It is hoped this action will isolate our skies from the amateurish attempts in the U.S. to run an air traffic control system and restore a superior level of safety for air travelers in Canada," he said.

Robertson said the union documented at least 41 incidents that had occurred at or near the Canadian-U.S. border since the American strike started Aug. 3.

"Nine of these incidents have been of a critical nature, requiring evasive action by the aircraft involved," he said.

A Canadian Transport Ministry spokesman had no immediate reaction to the union announcement. But earlier he said the union report of 41 dangerous incidents was not justified.

"We haven't received a single report from any airline or any pilot on such incidents," the FAA's Feldman said. "There's no truth to them."

The FAA said Sunday night that its Paris representative was told by the French Ministry of Transport that controllers in that country had reversed themselves and "for humanitarian and technical reasons" would resume handling U.S.-bound flights.

Saying his task now is "to rebuild the system," Lewis again rejected the call Saturday by Robert E. Poli, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, to resume negotiations and end the strike.

"Positively not," Lewis responded when asked on CBS' "Face the Nation" if he would be willing to negotiate. "The only people we will deal with are the people who are on the job, working as air traffic controllers. I will not meet with Mr. Poli. I will not meet with anybody that's been terminated."

Lewis had said earlier he would not negotiate as long as the controllers were on strike.

Asked about the possibility that a judge would order the strikers rehired, Lewis said, "If it ultimately came back and we were directed to do something by the courts, obviously we would do it."

Bus Travel Shows Increase

By SUE FERNALD
Reflector Staff Writer

"There has been an increase in the number of passengers, but it's hard to put a finger on where it's coming from," said Greenville Trailways bus station manager R.W. Minton.

"The air traffic controllers strike has helped us out a little bit, but August is usually our best month anyway with everyone trying to get in last minute travelling," he said. "But, our business is probably a little bit better than it was last summer."

Manager of the Raleigh Trailways station Jerry Dale, said traffic was up about 15 to 20 percent this past weekend. "We normally run 92 schedules. For instance, we usually run one trip to Richmond and Washington and they were doubled, two buses per trip."

He said business did not pick up very fast at the beginning of the strike. "People were anticipating it to be short." However, when it began to appear the strike would have long term effects; the passenger load for the Raleigh station began "picking up quite fast," concluded Dale.

AMTRAK is overloaded with telephone calls, said H.R. Harris, ticket agent for Rocky Mount. "The only effect of the strike is an increase in telephone calls which causes the computer to overload. We were already working to full capacity," he said.

"There is nothing we can do; the train is sold out. We run at capacity during the summertime, and there's nothing we can do to help," Harris said.

"We're having a lot of calls for AMTRAK reservations," said Myra Garrett of Greenville Travel Center.

"We haven't had any calls asking about alternative travel, and haven't been having any trouble getting AMTRAK reservations," she continued. "But, their lines are always busy."

Her suggestions for alternative travel, should anyone desire transportation other than the major airlines, are buses, Sunbird airlines and AMTRAK.

"Most of flights we've been checking do seem to be flying, however. A few were cancelled last week, but no more than what would be expected," said Ms. Garrett.

First French Nationals Begin Leaving Iran; Number Uncertain

By KATE DORIAN
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —

A group of 58 French nationals, prevented from leaving Iran last week, took off from Tehran airport on an Iran Air flight to Paris today, the Iranian Foreign Ministry announced.

An External Affairs Ministry spokesman in Paris said 57 French citizens left and the departure of three others had again been delayed, "two because of minor financial problems and the third, an Iranian married to a Frenchman, because she did not have an exit visa."

There was no immediate explanation for the discrepancy in figures on the number who left.

Iranian spokesman Reza Alavi Tabatabaie said a second group of French nationals, including Ambassador Guy Georgy, is scheduled to leave Wednesday.

Of the 144 French citizens living in Iran, a skeleton staff of diplomats is staying to staff the embassy and a handful of Christian religious workers have refused to leave.

Diplomatic sources in Tehran said there had been no delays in the repatriation plan developed after 60 French citizens were prevented Thursday from boarding an Air France jet sent to evacuate them, and another French plane was denied permission to land.

Iranian officials said the departure of the French was delayed to make sure none of them left unpaid taxes or financial obligations.

French President Francois Mitterrand urged all the French in Iran to leave the country and recalled his ambassador for consultations because of demonstrations in Tehran against the French government's refusal to extradite ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

The ousted Iranian chief of state escaped to Paris on July 29 with the leader of the leftist Mujahedeen Khalq guerrillas, Massoud Rajavi. Both were given political asylum, and the Iranian government demanded that they be returned for trial.

The French businessman, who asked not to be identified, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that most of the French were leaving Iran "with regret and not by choice."

He said they were "definitely not afraid." But other sources in Tehran said scores of women and children took refuge in the French Embassy while they waited to leave.

The sources said the embassy was shuttered and its doors closed except for the admission of a new arrival. A sign on the front gate read "closed until further notice."

The businessman said most of the evacuees planned to return to Iran.

Report Divers Reach Ship Bank

BOSTON (AP) — Divers exploring the sunken hulk of the Italian liner Andre Doria off Nantucket Island have reached the ship's Bank of Rome office where safes may hold millions of dollars of cash and valuables. The Boston Globe reported today.

Divers entered the office Sunday on the port side about 90 feet below the surface, 45 miles south of Nantucket, the Globe reported.

It quoted a ship-to-shore telephone interview with Eiga Andersen, a spokeswoman for the expedition led by Ms. Anderson's husband, Peter Gimbel, 51, a filmmaker and New York department store heir. The Globe said Ms. Anderson did not disclose if the safes had been reached or if it was known if anything inside the safes survived the sinking of the 29,100-ton liner when it was struck by the Swedish ship Stockholm 25 years ago.

However, the Globe reported Ms. Anderson said if the safes were recovered, they would be brought to the surface "only in the end, because we have to leave them submerged in salt water" to prevent erosion one they hit the air.

Attempts to call the expedition's ship to confirm the report were unsuccessful.

ADAP TRANSPORTATION NEEDED

I am the parent of a girl who has attended and would like to attend again the ADAP Center in Greenville. I desperately need transportation for my child and all the children around Farmville. Funds have been cut so the ADAP Center cannot provide bus transportation like they once did. Won't somebody help us? This is such a good thing for retarded young adults to be able to get out of the home and spend their days in useful activity. We need the help of individuals or a group that will undertake this responsibility. Mrs. C.B.

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadian air traffic controllers were carrying out a union-called boycott today of flights to the United States, preventing some takeoffs despite the government's threats of fines, imprisonment or dismissal.

Three aircraft returned to the passenger terminal at Montreal's Dorval airport after controllers refused takeoff clearance.

Armand Cloutier, a Transport Ministry spokesman, said members of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association were not performing their normal duties despite management orders to give normal clearance to U.S. flights.

The Canadian air traffic controllers union called a boycott of all but emergency flights to or from the United States starting at 7 a.m. EDT.

The announcement Sunday said the controllers also planned to cut off U.S.-bound flights from Europe via Canada. Planes from Paris had filed flight plans to Canada to avoid a request by France's two major air traffic controllers to their members to block U.S.-bound flights.

French controllers agreed to suspend their action in support of striking U.S. air controllers but were meeting again today to make a final decision. A union spokesman said towers at Paris airports were operating normally.

Canadian Transport Ministry spokesman Dave Austin said any controllers who adhered to the boycott call would face possible maximum jail terms of a year and fines up to $5,000.

"If we have to take action, yes we will," Austin said after an all-night meeting of Transport Ministry officials.

The Canadian controllers' union said it was acting because U.S. airspace was unsafe. However, Austin said the controllers are not empowered to decide whether the U.S. system is safe.

"It is the ministry, and not the individual controller, who will determine the safety of the system," Austin said.

He said the government's view that the U.S. system is safe is backed by the Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association, American carriers and other aviation associations.

"This determination is based on frequent and detailed consultation with the United States Federal Aviation Administration and on-going monitoring by Transport Canada officials," Austin said.

Bill Robertson, president of the controllers' association, said union leaders concluded the U.S. air traffic control network was too hazardous. Supervisors, non-strikers and military personnel have replaced about 12,000 American controllers who went on strike Aug. 2.

"It is hoped this action will isolate our skies from the amateurish attempts in the U.S. to run an air traffic control system and restore a superior level of safety for air travelers in Canada," Robertson said.

The Transport Ministry, which operates Canada's airports, took action Sunday against 15 of the 135 controllers at Toronto International Airport after they refused in writing to handle planes bound for the United States. Four were sent home to "think things over" and the others were assigned different duties, a spokesman said.

A ministry spokesman said they were warned that those who continued to refuse to handle U.S.-bound aircraft would be disciplined. However, it seemed unlikely the government would have any recourse if all or most of the controllers joined the boycott. A spokesman for the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration, Dennis Feldman, said: "The Canadian government can handle that. ... It could be disruptive, but I'm sure it will be resolved."

Several airlines used Halifax, Nova Scotia, as a decoy route Sunday after French controllers refused to let U.S.-bound planes take off from Paris or pass through French airspace. The planes filed flight plans for Halifax, but once in Canadian airspace they received clearance for New York, airline officials said.

The Canadian union ordered the boycott after its leaders reported 41 "dangerous" incidents at or near the American border caused by mistakes by replacement air traffic handlers. The incidents listed by the union were mostly cases of U.S. controllers not following correct procedure in telling Canadian controllers about aircraft entering their territory or ordering them in on the wrong flight path.

"Nine of these incidents have been of a critical nature, requiring evasive action by the aircraft involved," the union president claimed. "They are getting closer and closer. Mistakes like those are going to take a life sometime." But Peter Proulx, director of the Transport Ministry's air traffic services, said there was "absolutely not one" verified report of a near collision up to Sunday afternoon. He also denied any planes had been forced to evade aircraft directed into the wrong flight path.

Proulx accused the union of fabricating the incidents or magnifying them out of proportion because it supports the U.S. controllers. "All they're doing is alarming passengers," he said.

However, he confirmed the Transport Ministry reported at least 45 incidents involving errors by U.S. controllers to American authorities. Proulx said the mistakes primarily involved communication gaps between controllers and have always been a factor in air traffic.

The boycott Sunday by French controllers to show solidarity with the American strikers reportedly had little effect on trans-Atlantic traffic. Airports throughout Western Europe reported delays in departures and arrivals ranging from a few hours to several hours.

The International Federation of Air Traffic Controllers Associations, representing unions in 61 countries, is to meet in Amsterdam Thursday.

Bomb Threat

TORONTO (AP) — A bomb threat forced the partial evacuation of the air traffic control center at Toronto's international airport today, an air tower supervisor said.

Ken Riseborough, shift supervisor in the tower, said the building was evacuated except for a skeleton crew who continued on the job in case an air emergency developed.

"We've got a few planes up in the air," said Riseborough. "You just can't just say 'Good-bye friend, we've got an emergency here' and leave them on their own."

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police was called in to search the building, he said. There were no details on how the threat was received.

Riseborough said other flight control operations were continued in a contingency center in a neighboring building.

Canadian air traffic controllers launched a boycott at 7 a.m. EDT of all but emergency flights to or from the United States in support of striking U.S. air traffic controllers.

Wardrep Head Of Department

Dr. Bruce Wardrep will become the first chairman of the newly-created Department of Finance in the ECU School of Business, it was announced by Dr. James Bearden, dean of the School of Business.

Bearden said creation of the new department and Wardrep's appointment "represent significant developments in the programs offered through the School of Business."

He added, "By drawing together the financial and institutional disciplines (finance, banking, real estate and insurance) we have an organization to prepare future managers in these functional and institutional areas."

Wardrep, who received the PhD in real estate from Georgia State University in 1974, was selected for the chairmanship by a faculty committee which conducted a search process to secure nominations.

He joined the School of Business faculty in 1973 as an assistant professor. He served as acting chairman of the Department of Business Administration from January through August, 1980, and during the 1980-81 academic year served as acting chairman of the Department of Finance.

It was also noted that Dr. Donald C. Guy will join the ECU faculty from the University of Nebraska at Omaha. Guy, whose specialty is real estate, earned his PhD from the University of Illinois and has taught at American University in the area of urban studies.

With Guy's appointment, the new department will have eight full time and two part-time faculty.

New Prisoner Joins Strikers

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — IRA guerrilla Patrick Sheehan, 23, refused breakfast at Maze Prison today, joining the hunger strike that has claimed nine lives since it began March 1. The family of another hunger striker was summoned to the bedside of their starving son.

Hunger striker Michael Devine's family was called to his prison bedside today after his condition deteriorated sharply on the 49th day of his death fast.

Sinn Fein, the political arm of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, said the 27-year-old guerrilla's health was failing but gave no details. Devine, a member of the Irish National Liberation Army, a leftist IRA splinter group, is serving a 12-year sentence for gun law violations.

A spokesman for Britain's Northern Ireland Office confirmed that Sheehan joined the five other guerrillas currently fasting.

Sheehan, whose younger brother is also a prisoner at the Maze, is serving a 15-year term for a 1978 bomb attack.

Sheehan replaced Kieran Doherty, who died in the Maze on Aug. 2 on the 73rd day of his fast. Each guerrilla is replaced on the fast as he dies. Sinn Fein said Sheehan's name was drawn from a list of 75 volunteers.

Meanwhile, two civilians were killed in rioting that followed the death of Thomas McIlwee, the ninth Irish nationalist to die in the 25-week-old prisoners' campaign for political recognition.

McIlwee, who died Saturday on his 62nd day without eating, was being buried today at Bellaghy, in County Londonderry.

His death touched off rioting Saturday night in Roman Catholic districts of Belfast and five other towns in Northern Ireland. In West Belfast, scene of the worst violence, police said at least 1,000 gasoline and nail bombs were thrown at them, and 34 people were arrested.

Hospital sources said a 40-year-old man was killed by a plastic bullet of the type used by security forces. A police spokesman said the cause of death was still under investigation. The second victim was a 19-year-old hit by gunfire on a West Belfast street adjoining the Protestant Shankhill Road district.

The strikers are seeking changes in their prison conditions that in effect would give them the status of political prisoners. The government has refused repeatedly, claiming that would confer legitimacy on the IRA's terrorist campaign to end British rule in the Protestant-dominated province and unite it with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic.

Security forces in the public said they uncovered an arms cache in County Monaghan, a few miles from the border with Northern Ireland. Police said the weapons, discovered in the undergrowth on alfalfa, included landmines, ammunition and other equipment, and British and American training manuals for the weapons.

Earlier Sunday, Deputy Prime Minister Michael

O'Leary made the new Irish government's strongest attack yet on British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's failure to resolve the hunger strike.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm weather is expected in the forecast period, Monday until Tuesday morning, for most of the country. Cool weather is expected for the upper Great Lakes. Showers are forecast in the Southwest and from eastern Oklahoma to the Midwest. (AP Laserphoto)

New Storm In Atlantic

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Dennis, carrying top winds of 65 mph and churning westward through the Atlantic at about 23 mph, could reach hurricane strength within a day, forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said this morning.

Tropical storms become hurricanes if their maximum sustained winds reach 74 mph.

At 6 a.m. EDT today, Dennis, the fourth tropical storm of the 1981 Atlantic hurricane season, was centered near latitude 13.5 north and longitude 50.5 west, or about 700 miles east of the Windward Islands that separate the Caribbean from the Atlantic.

Forecasters said Dennis was expected to speed up and maintain its westward course today, but slow somewhat Tuesday.

Thunderstorms were scattered from the Rockies to the Great Lakes today as the Pacific Northwest continued to swelter with record temperatures.

Thunderstorms were also scattered over Florida and from the central Atlantic coast through New England. There was a threat of locally heavy rain in southwestern Utah and northern Arizona.

Showers and thunderstorms were predicted from northern Arkansas through central Missouri, across parts of the Central Plains and Central Rockies through Utah into eastern Nevada and northern Arizona. Rain was also expected over northern Maine and Michigan.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 43 in Larami, Wyo., to 98 in Blythe, Calif.

Washington and Oregon sweltered in 100-degree temperatures Sunday, prompting a disturbance by thirsty Clark County Jail prisoners and a traffic jam behind a Seattle bridge stuck open by the heat.

Record highs were tied in Olympia, where the mercury

The weather service said a huge ridge of high pressure with a very warm air mass aloft was expected to remain locked over the Pacific Northwest.

At the Clark County Jail in Vancouver, all 30 inmates were confined to their cells Sunday afternoon following a disturbance in which they demanded relief from the heat.

Sheriff Frank Kaneko said there were no injuries and damage was limited to two broken wash basins and four light fixtures.

The prisoners demanded more ice water and wanted hot water temperatures turned down because they said their showers were too hot.

In Seattle, the Evergreen Point Floating Bridge was jammed open for 75 minutes due to heat expansion of its drawspan.

A tugboat had to help pull the span shut.

A 108-degree reading Sunday in Salem, Ore., equalled the all-time high last recorded for the city by the National Weather Service on July 15, 1941.

Medford was 111, Eugene, 108 and Portland and The Dalles, 105.

Better Bones Avoid Breaks

NEW YORK (AP) — Bones get brittle with age, according to government figures.

Statistics show that by age 90 one in three women and one in five men will have had hip fractures and almost half the women will have had spinal fractures.

However, research by Dr. B. Lawrence Riggs of the Mayo Clinic has shown that sodium fluoride-calcium therapy strengthens bones and may be helpful in cutting fracture risks to older Americans.

COUNCIL TO MEET
STOKES — The Stokes Advisory Council will meet August 13 at 8 p.m. in the principal's office, Stokes Elementary. All council members are asked to be present.

Bike Rodeo Being Planned

FOUNTAIN — Pitt County 4-H is sponsoring a bicycle rodeo on August 18.

The rodeo will begin at 8:30 a.m. and will be completed at 12 noon. The location will be on the street beside Fountain Baptist Church.

All youth ages 6-19, their parents and friends are invited to attend and participate in this event. Each participant must bring his or her own bicycle.

The workshop session will feature a bicycle safety demonstration, road laws, highway safety, and learning to do minor repairs. The highlight will be bicycle games and activities for prizes.

For additional information and to pre-register for the rodeo, call 749-3421 or the 4-H office at 752-2934, ext. 369. Persons not able to attend but wishing information on the organization of a 4-H club in Fountain call Mary Carolyn Smith at 749-3421.

Miss Gurganus, Mr. Singleton Married Here Sunday

Wanda Lynn Gurganus was united in marriage to Timothy Ervin Singleton in the Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church in a 2:30 p.m. ceremony held Sunday. The Rev. L.E. Peyton officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ward Gurganus of 1623 East Wright Road, Greenville.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Frances Glisson of 113 Chipaway Dr., Greenville, and the late John E. Singleton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a Queen Ann neckline outlined in silk venise lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice was enhanced with silk venise lace and the sheer bishop sleeves with motifs of lace trimmed with matching lace. The modified A-line skirt and attached wateau train were enhanced with an edging of floral silk venise lace. She wore a chapel-length veil of illusion bordered in scalloped silk venise lace held in place by a camelot cap overlaid in lace and beaded with pearls.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Audrey Scott of Greenville. Bridesmaids were Debbie Jean Gurganus of Greenville and Nancy Ann Cherry of Summerville, S.C., sisters of the bride; Karen Rae Dunn of Greenville; Tracy Jane Whitaker of Williamston, cousin of the bride; and Terry Lynn Singleton of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of Nile organza over taffeta with a softly crushed draped off-the-shoulder neckline and empire bodice. The skirt of the sleeveless gown was accented with a double ruffle flounce at the hemline with the top flounce extending up to the back to the waistline. She carried a bouquet similar to the bride's, but with green lace ribbon.

Bridesmaids wore maize organza gowns with draped off-the-shoulder bodices accented with spaced white silk floral sprays. The full skirts featured double ruffle flounces at the hemline, extending up the back to the waistline forming bustles. They carried long-stemmed carnations with yellow satin lace ribbon.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of cotton sweet pea knit fashioned with a shirt line waist. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of blue polyester.

The stepfather of the bridegroom, Mack Glisson, served as best man. Ushers included Johnny Earl Grimsley of Farmville; brothers of the bridegroom, Gerald and Jeff Singleton of Greenville; Leonard Ward Gurganus Jr., brother of the bride of Greenville; and Donald Craig Cherry of Summerville, S.C., brother-in-law of the bride.

Pianist Eddie Hobgood and organist Cathy Hobgood provided music for the ceremony.

A reception was held at the home of the bride after the wedding ceremony by the parents of the bride. Cake was cut by Mrs. Peggy Whitaker, aunt of the bride. Serving punch was Mrs. Naomi Bullock, aunt of the bride, and greeting guests was Mrs. Mavis Peele, aunt of the bride. Presiding at the guest register was Donna Avery. The wedding was directed by Mrs. Madaline Peyton.

A rehearsal dinner was held at Parker's Barbeque by the parents of the bridegroom.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in Winterville.

The bride is employed by Pitt Memorial Hospital. She is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School. The bridegroom works at Hendrix and Dail Soil Fumigation and is a graduate of Rose High School.

Asparagus, Veal Team Well

Chinese friends who cook beautifully have been telling us for some years that you don't necessarily have to own a wok to make Chinese dishes. Some of them have used black iron skillets. Now one of them has been experimenting with skillets and saucepans with that latest nonstick surface — Silverstone. A number of manufacturers are making cookware of this sort; in trying it in our own kitchen we have found it the best of the nonstick surfaces to date.

Here then is a Chinese asparagus-and-veal main dish made in one of these new saucepans. Veal was used because these days its lean quality highly recommends it. Good veal is expensive, true, but this dish calls for only half a pound of the meat and makes four servings. If you try this flavorful offering, we think you will enjoy it.

the clean, dry saucepot or wok; add 2 tablespoons of the oil. Add the veal and its marinade and stir-fry just until the meat changes color. Stir the reserved sauce and pour it, stirring, over the veal to heat; do not overcook. Spoon over the asparagus and serve at once.

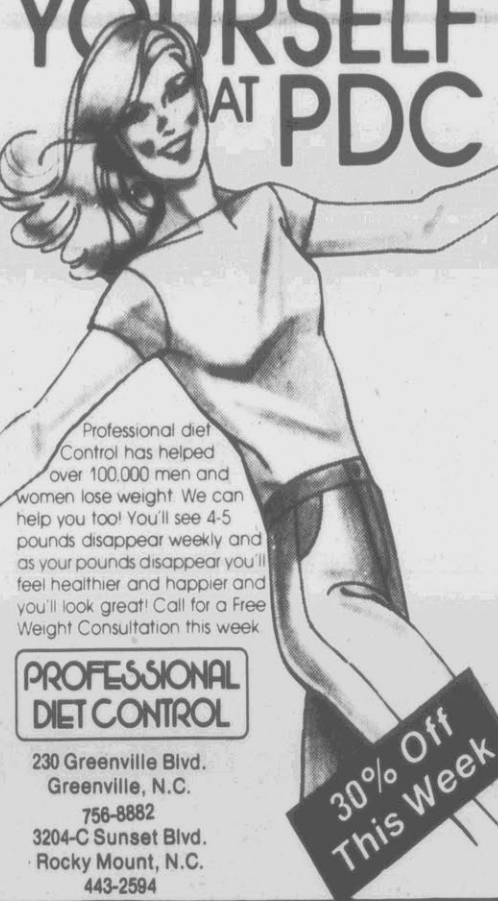

Sauce: Stir together until blended 1 teaspoon cornstarch, ½ teaspoon sugar, 1 tablespoon soy sauce, 1 tablespoon dry sherry, 1 teaspoon white rice-wine vinegar and 1 teaspoon sesame-seed oil.

Added Space Is Needed

An important addition will be made to the medical care of Eastern North Carolina with the approval of a $5.3 million radiation therapy center for the ECU School of Medicine.

The project is a part of the $39.2 million capital improvements budget approved by the General Assembly for the UNC system.

The unit will be constructed at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. It will include sophisticated equipment for radiation treatment and will work in conjunction with other radiation therapy centers in Eastern North Carolina.

There is no question that a high priority was deserved for the therapy center. It is important to the people of Eastern North Carolina and needed for the work of the Medical School.

The university may have paid a price, however, in the $18 million classroom building which had been requested. The projections for this were reduced to $13.2 million which, in effect will fund half of the building. The other half would be funded in the future. Even this may not be forthcoming, and whether it will be funded at all in this biennium will depend on the economic outlook when the Legislature returns in the fall.

The administration should make every effort to obtain the classroom appropriation. The space is badly needed and the need will increase in the future. Development of the academic campus of the university must continue if we are to have the programs our region needs and deserves.

Let's Give No Aid To The PLO

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has done as much as anyone to further the cause of peace in the Middle East.

His bold and brave move to reach an accord with Israel enraged his Arab neighbors, but it may yet prove to be one of the great contributions to world stability of our time.

Consequently President Sadat deserves to be listened to when he proposes other ways to bring peace to his part of the world. Nevertheless everything he proposes might not be in our best interest. Last week Sadat suggested to President Reagan that the United States negotiate with the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

Before the week was out Reagan made it clear that such talks were not possible, not until the PLO recognizes Israel's right to exist. The president's stance is proper. The PLO doesn't represent any nation, and indeed it is not clear just who it does represent. The organization is seeking recognition and power and that is just what it would get if it were included in talks with the United States.

As far as United States' policy is concerned no aid should be given to the PLO as it seeks to increase its following.

Misleading Surplus

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Suppose you went for 60 or 90 days without balancing your checkbook, never bothering to see if you had any money on hand before writing more checks, or making sure you had enough money to cover some major purchase.

Suppose further that whenever you needed something, whether groceries or hardware items or household supplies, you just went out and bought a buggy full without checking to see if you already had the same things somewhere in the house.

And suppose that at the end of the year you took a quick look at your unbalanced checkbook and thought you saw a surplus in there so you rushed out to buy a new stereo and a TV before any more bills came in.

Worse yet, suppose the whole family had credit cards and could get just about anything they wanted and you, the head of the house, wouldn't even know about it until the bills came in.

That's a simplistic description of some of the activities which have been going on for years in state government. It all balances out at the end because government budgets — and consequently legislative appropriations — always pad things so you can end up with a surplus.

But even that surplus can be misleading, says State

Auditor Ed Renfrow, because when you claim you've got $280 million at the end of the year, you still don't even know how many bills you still owe out of that money.

All of which is the reason behind a major change in state government procedures which, to the average person appears so complicated and technical as to be hardly worth note.

The change is from a cash basis to a modified accrual basis of accounting.

The system has been to get a regular report on how much money you've got in the bank at a particular time — how much you spent, and how much you have left. A simple checkbook balance.

The new system now being put into effect will give you, at a glance, a complete report on what you own and what you owe.

A computer system will provide constant updating of any real estate, supplies and equipment, cash on hand and other assets.

Likewise, it will tell you what you owe; the bills which haven't come in yet, and the commitments which you are legally obligated to.

The bottom line, as the financial experts like to say, will be your net worth — a genuine fund balance.

Making the change, Renfrow explains, was prompted by the nation's bond buyers who say they want a more realistic accounting. The new system will protect North Carolina's Triple A rating and keep interest rates low. Failure could cost millions in higher interest.

No Cost

Renfrow thinks the new system can be installed without costing additional money for personnel or equipment since all of that is already in place. Just a change in procedure is called for, and the guidebooks, training courses, and rules are already working.

So, a year from now, taxpayers willing to wade through the reams of information can determine how much the state is really spending, and whether the budget is actually in balance, or only balanced on paper.

Almost daily, program managers in agencies throughout state government will be able to punch the terminal buttons and find out exactly where they stand financially.

The new system, says Renfrow, is an absolute must for a multi-billion operation such as state government.

The procedures might even suggest to some Tar Heel heads of household that family finance procedures need upgrading as well.

MOONLIGHTING AS DIRECTOR OF OPERATIONS!

BY ART BUCHWALD

An Obit For Newspaper

It is not easy to write an obituary for a newspaper. The death of a newspaper in any country is a tragedy. The passing of a very good newspaper is doubly so.

The "Washington Star" was a very good newspaper. It had some of the best writers in the business. It was lively, it was informative and better because they were so good at what they were doing.

When President Kennedy was assassinated Mary McGory, one of the paper's great writers, said to Pat Moynihan: "We'll never laugh again," and Moynihan said "We'll laugh again, Mary, but we'll never be young again."

It seems a fitting epitaph for the death of the Washington Star.

but he or she knows instinctively that when a paper dies everyone is poorer.

There are no villains in the death of the "Washington Star." It died from natural economic causes.

For those of us who worked for the competition there is no joy in the "Star's" demise. The joy was picking up the "Star" every day and seeing what it was doing that was better, and forcing us to be it was honest. Because it was printed in the capital, it had a much greater impact on the nation than any paper of its size and circulation.

With its death many important voices have been stilled, voices that should be heard by those who make our laws and decide our destinies.

A newspaper is a very human thing. It has a heart, a soul, and a mind of its own. When you first hear the news of the death of a paper you think of the people who worked on it, loved it and brought it to life every day.

Their loss is incalculable. To many it is not just their livelihood that has been snuffed out — but a part of themselves. It's hard for someone who has not worked on a newspaper to understand how personal it becomes. To the employees the newspaper they work for is family. To some their newspaper is the only family they have.

And so the death is a wrenching experience, the loss is greater than they imagine and a part of it remains with them for the rest of their lives.

The reader, though not as emotionally involved, also experiences a disquieting sense of loss. Something has gone out of his life too. The mourning period may be much shorter for the reader,

Other Editors Say Praising Hunt

(The Durham Sun)

Gov. Jim Hunt caught an inordinate amount of flak during his successful campaign for a 3-cent-per-gallon gasoline tax increase. It must be quite a welcome change for him to be catching bouquets instead.

In the current issue of Fortune magazine, Hunt is praised for his record in improving productivity in state government.

The article states "...North Carolina has a productivity program directed from the top ... the state government got pointed in the right direction with the election of Jim Hunt as governor in 1976. Now that he is in his second term, productivity is becoming more than a policy that can easily be reversed by the next election; it is becoming institutionalized."

Several of Hunt's programs are cited, such as those which reward employees for workable ideas which save the state money.

The article praised the establishment of a special staff in the Department of Administration to push productivity programs in other departments. Also mentioned was the appointment of a high official in each state department to oversee these programs.

Each program was publicized and praised at the onset, but this collective listing is more impressive still.

What all of this means is that North Carolina taxpayers are getting more for their money.

For that, the governor deserves bouquets from every citizen in the Tar Heel state.

Home Ownership Has A Future

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Homes that appreciate at 5 percent a year are big money losers if financed at 13 percent to 16 percent, said an article in a prestigious financial publication.

Maybe so, but a lot of people will need convincing.

Assume, for example, that a three-bedroom, two-bath house is purchased for $100,000, with a mortgage of $80,000 at 15 percent for 25 years.

Appreciation of 5 percent on $100,000 is $5,000. Since only $20,000 was invested, the $5,000 represents a return of 25 percent, which is nothing to scoff at even in today's record-high money markets.

The $80,000 that remains to be paid is indeed costly at 15 percent, but all the interest is deductible on income taxes. Since many people are able to own a $100,000 home in a 40 percent bracket, the effective rate may be 9 percent, or probably less than the inflation rate.

Moreover, interest accrues on only 80 percent of the total price, and it is also repaid in dollars of declining value. That is, repayment of the loan costs relatively less so long as inflation erodes the dollar.

However, a 5 percent increase in price, it must be conceded, does not keep pace with inflation. Assuming a 10 percent inflation rate, the market value of the house, to keep abreast, should rise in one year to $110,000. Since it rose only 5 percent, to $105,000, the family would appear to have suffered a $5,000 loss after one year of ownership.

That loss becomes questionable, however, when you add in some of the real and potential benefits of being a homeowner:

—The homeowner has the use of the house.
If you argue that to rent would cost a family less than the monthly note you might be right, considering real estate taxes must be added to the note. But rents are rising because of strong demand and too little construction. Faster than real estate taxes. And the renter also has no equity at all; nor generally does he have income tax deductions.

—So long as inflation persists, the relative cost of the monthly mortgage note shrinks. At inflation of just 5 percent, the effective cost of the monthly note would be halved in less than 15 years.

—The housing market, a disaster right now, might get better.

Some economists observe that it had better improve, since it would be impossible

Reagan Hits Firm Blows

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Glancing quickly at the two statements prepared for him on the air traffic controllers' (PATCO) strike, President Reagan reached for a white pad to write his own version and suddenly asked: Let me see the no-strike oath; I want to use it.

The time was Monday morning, the day the strike started. The place was the Cabinet room. Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, author of one of the two prepared statements (the other was the White House staff's), quickly produced the no-strike pledge taken by all controllers. Reagan wrote his statement, including the entire no-strike oath.

Then, minutes later, he stepped into the Rose Garden to go on TV and teach the striking PATCO union a lesson they were learning the hard way. It was the same lesson that House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill and other now-wiser Democratic grandees recently learned — also the hard way.

The lesson: When Ronald Reagan picks a target, he is as blunt and stubborn as a sledge hammer, despite his velvet glove of affability.

Among the 13,000 striking controllers, learning that lesson will cause anguish, tears and probably tragedy after the excitement of early combat wears off. For behind the cold, anti-strike logic pouring from Lewis' Transportation Department, Atty. Gen. William French Smith's Justice Department and the editorial pages of the Washington Post and the New York Times, Reagan's sense of his own rectitude is the real guarantee against retreat.

That extends the president's sway beyond the Democratic-controlled house, where Tip O'Neill and his aides learned to his surprise that an ideologically committed conservative president could bend the House to his will on radical budget and tax reform. It puts on display a president willing to assume the righteous pose of union-busting strike-breaker without apology.

"Don't forget that Cal Coolidge is one of this president's favorite characters," a top Reagan adviser told us. Gov. Coolidge of Massachusetts broke the Boston police strike in 1920, the key event in his becoming president three years later.

Weeks before PATCO President Robert E. Poli pulled his men out on strike, back in June during the first potential crisis, Reagan had counseled Lewis against offering more than the $40 million settlement package then on the table. Reagan stayed near the center of the long negotiations between the government and the union. He privately labeled the strike threat a virtual declaration of war against the government and he feared that any settlement over the $40 million mark would undermine his anti-inflation fight and crack his federal wage ceiling.

But the president's sense of timing made him acutely aware of the political advantages of taking a hard line in a labor crisis that might have been made in heaven for the glory of any president. The raise that Poli is demanding would give some of his members a higher salary and shorter working hours than the secretaries of State and Defense (and all other Cabinet members). That would not make emotional allies out of blue-collar workers.

Along with the no-strike oath, regarded by Reagan in the old-fashioned way as a solemn undertaking, the conditions that underlay the union's strike were a political safety net for presidential intervention. The one threat was that with 13,000 controllers on strike, the nation's airways might indeed be forced to shut down. That would lead to an irresistible public demand for ending the strike, playing into the union's hands.

The administration is meeting that threat frontally, decrying the scare tactics of Poli that passengers are risking their lives in daring to fly during the strike. Thus, five days into the strike, whatever course it takes and however militant the union remains, Reagan seems headed for political gains in the handling of his first labor crisis.

That gives him an early-term dimension denied recent predecessors: a third conspicuous presidential success in a row, this one far beyond the congressional budget and tax wars. Reagan is showing an ability to pick his targets well and to use the sum of his powers to gain his end, a performance likely to reverse the dangerous erosion of presidential power at a time the Western world has maximum need for a strong presidency.

GOD SPEAKS TO BUSY PEOPLE

It is interesting to note how often in the Bible God is pictured as giving some great commission to men busily employed at some humble task. Moses was tending sheep in Midian when God called him out of the burning bush. Gideon was treading the wine press when the angel of the Lord came to summon him to great responsibility. Andrew, Peter, James and John were fishing when the Master came with the promise to make them fishers of men.

A very popular writer has recently prophesied that the day will come when the human race will have but few tasks to perform and then can turn from work, which degrades, to the creative use of leisure, which elevates. What nonsense! There is a place for leisure in every well-regulated life, but man finds his salvation more often in work than in play.

If God cannot speak to you in office, factory or field, there is little likelihood that He will find you in a receptive state of mind in the church. — Elisha Douglass

TIME TO START CUTTING THOSE STALKS . . . Destruction of tobacco fields should begin as soon as harvest is complete in a field, according to Roger Cobb, Pitt extension agent. Stalks should be shredded, stubble should be plowed out, then two weeks later, the field should be disced a second time. Within one week the land should be broken with a moldboard plow, then a cover crop planted.

Above, Dan Wynne begins the destruction of the stalks, the first step. "This does away with different diseases and pests," he explained. "I've been destroying stalks for 10 years or so and it has really helped the disease problem on my farm." Wynne said he had problems with black shank before he started turning stalks under. Nature Provides Free Fireworks With Meteor Shower This Week

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Nature will provide free entertainment for anyone outside past midnight this week in the form of a week-long meteor shower.

The Perseid, the most spectacular meteor shower of the year, will last all week and reach its climax Wednesday, when people with a good view could see up to 40 shooting stars an hour.

"That's fairly high compared to other showers," said Dr. Edward Oberhofer, professor of astronomy at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

The Perseid occurs every August when the Earth moves through a cloud of cosmic dust left by the comet Swift-Tuttle 1862 III in its travels around the sun.

The shooting stars actually are minute dust particles, which enter the atmosphere 50 to 100 miles above the Earth's surface.

"Most of the debris is actually rather small, about the size of a grain of sand," Oberhofer said.

The particles can enter the atmosphere at a speed anywhere from 6 miles per second to 50 miles per second, with the most likely speed about 25 miles per second, he said.

When the debris enters the atmosphere, the friction between the particle and the air makes both dust and air heat up and glow.

"The flash of light will hardly last a second," Oberhofer said. "If it was the size of a marble, it might last a rather long distance across the sky."

Sometimes meteors are accompanied by sonic booms when entering the atmosphere.

Meteors that make it through the atmosphere without disintegrating and hit the Earth are called meteorites. They are rare and none are expected during this week's Perseid shower.

The best time to view the showers will be from midnight until dawn. They will start in the northeastern sky and end in the northwestern sky.

The shooting starts will seem to spurt from a central point in the sky called the radiant, which in this case is the constellation Perseus, located directly below Cassiopeia.

Farm Scene

By ROGER COBB
Agri. Ext. Agent

Several Pitt County farmers are finishing tobacco harvest now. At this time stalk and root destruction is coming along fine. Farmers are destroying fields as soon as harvest is complete. These farmers are completing the last task for this year's crop and beginning disease, insect and grass control in next year's crop. A high quality R-9-P job is sure to result in increased net profits in future crops through pest management. R-9-P also permits the use of the system plan for disease control, contributes to a total pest management program, reduces the need for insecticides, lowers residue content in cured leaf, and improves leaf quality.

There are five steps involved in carrying out a successful R-9-P program. Step one involves cutting or shredding tobacco stalks the day the harvest is complete. Disc or plow out stubbles immediately following cutting the stalks. Return to the field two weeks later and disc a second time. Step four involves breaking the land with a moldboard plow within one week to finish up the job of root kill and bury all crop refuse beneath the soil. The final step is to seed a winter cover crop of barley, oats, rye or wheat.

A good practice is to cut the stalks the day the harvest is complete instead of waiting until every field is stripped. Each day that stalk destruction is delayed gives pests a chance to build up and prepare themselves for the winter.

We have had a bad year with aphids, hornworms, mosaic and Granville wilt. With these problems in mind, R-9-P should be carried out quickly and thoroughly on every farm. Preparation for 1982 may indeed save some money.

Tax Reported

Net sales and use tax collections in Pitt County in June totalled $286,989, according to statistics reported by Mark Lynch, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

The June figure in the county compared with $303,991 recorded in May and $278,189 reported for April.

Neighboring county totals for April, May and June included: Beaufort, $137,720, $137,088, $150,088; Carteret, $138,545, $169,633, $175,732; Craven, $206,998, $201,641, $213,335; Edgecombe, $137,478, $145,260, $146,042;

Greene, $20,850, $20,916, $19,613; Lenoir, $182,903, $191,542, $187,339; Martin, $61,758, $64,864, $69,399; Nash, $237,011, $251,011, $234,393; Wayne, $247,570, $271,337, $245,561; and Wilson, $199,171, $223,884, $204,650.

Total distributions in the 99 participating counties for June amounted to $18,713,971, Lynch said, compared with $18,902,571 for May and $17,747,892 in April.

Temporary I-85 Said Dangerous

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A 34-mile "temporary" portion of Interstate 85 between Greensboro and Lexington has more accidents than most highways in the state, a state Highway Department safety engineer says.

Glenn Grigg said the section is well below interstate standards. And accident records in 1981 show 32 injuries and one death on the 34 miles known as "Temporary I-85."

One trucking company believes it is so dangerous its drivers are rerouted around the temporary section while other companies tell drivers to approach it cautiously.

The section is a 35-year-old roadway of unmarked driveways, entrances, intersecting gravel roads, median crossovers, rural crossroads and short access ramps.

Construction of a new stretch of I-85 to replace the temporary route began two years ago, but fell off due to inflation.

Truck Hits Children, Drives Off
GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two children were killed and two others injured Sunday night when a truck ran into a group of six children on a rural paved road five miles south of Goldsboro.
A witness told police that the truck approached the group from behind, crossed the center line and plowed into the children, who were walking on the opposite shoulder of the road.
The truck then sped away. State Highway Patrol troopers said they later located a truck believed involved in the accident, but do not know the identity of the driver.
Those killed were identified as Latonya Nichelson, 7, and Marlene Manley, 16. Two youths in their care were identified: Melissa Manley, 17, and Melissa King, 12.
Selisia King, sister of one of the injured, told troopers that a southbound pickup truck approached from the rear, swerved across the center line and ran into the children.
Troopers said the accident occurred on Rural Paved Road 1926 about 9:55 p.m.
Trooper Willie Young said six children were walking on the left-hand side of the road going south, facing traffic, when the accident occurred.
Young said the Highway Patrol, State Bureau of Investigation and Goldsboro police are investigating the accident.

State Alcohol Law Enforcement agents, assisted by Pitt County ABC enforcement chief Jim Ward made a number of arrests over the weekend, according to ALE agent Danny Dilda.

Dilda said Ruby Ann Atkinson of 1405B North Washington St. was charged with possession of alcoholic and malt beverages for the purpose of sale after officers raided Ruby Atkinson's Pool Room Friday night and confiscated a gallon of tax-paid whiskey and a quantity of beer.

Alton Ray Smith of 1101 North Washington St., a customer at the pool room, was charged by ALE agents with carrying a concealed weapon, while pool room employee Abram Cobb Jr. of 1407 North Washington St. was charged with selling two beers to an undercover ALE officer earlier in the night.

In addition, Dilda said, Isolene Seymore Moye of 1408B North Washington St., another pool room employee, was charged with selling beer to an undercover ALE officer on August 5.

On Saturday night, Lether Harrell Jenkins of 501 Barnhill St., Bethel, was charged with possession of more than a gallon of liquor and possession of malt beverages for the purpose of sale following a raid on her home.

Nine pints of whiskey and 24 cans of beer were confiscated, Dilda noted.

Whit Salisbury of Route 3, Greenville, owner and operator of the Belvoir Pool Room was charged with possession of alcoholic beverages where not authorized and possession of liquor in excess of one gallon for the purpose of sale, following a search of the pool room during which 11 pints of liquor were confiscated, Dilda said.

Charlie Ellis of Route 2, Farmville, was charged with possession of tax-paid whiskey in excess of one gallon for the purpose of sale following a raid on his house Saturday.

Dilda, who said nine pints of whiskey were confiscated, noted that Ellis and five other men at the residences were also charged with playing a game of chance (poker) for money.

The other men arrested at the time include Cleveland Johnson of New Bern, Willie Robert Williams and Christopher Columbus Hunter of Route 2, Farmville, Jerrie Lee Johnson of Route 2, Walstonburg, and Raymond Swinson of 608 14th St., Greenville.

Dilda added that six establishments that sell beer in and around Greenville were given "administrative written warnings" Saturday night for operating after hours.

Dilda identified the businesses as Darryl's 1907 on Tenth Street, Carolina Opra House on the U.S. 264 By-pass, The Pasadena Club on N.C. 903, The Unlimited Touch at 1311 West Fifth St., the Flamingo Lounge, Route 8, Greenville, and The Pleasure's Peak, Route 3, Greenville.

National League Cuts Up American League, 5-4

CLEVELAND (AP) — Baseball's back, and for the National League, anyway, it was like the All-Stars had never been away.

With surgical efficiency, the Nationals cut up the Americans again in the 52nd All-Star Game Sunday night, rallying for a 5-4 victory that brought baseball back with a smash following the strike that stilled the industry for seven weeks.

Gary Carter tied an All-Star record with two homers and Mike Schmidt supplied the clincher with a two-run homer in the eighth inning that nailed down the NL's 10th consecutive All-Star victory and 18th in the last 19th games. Overall, the Nationals hold a 33-18 edge, with one tie and the way they take the Americans apart year after year, it's hard to imagine they once trailed in this season 12-4.

This summer's gathering of stars had added significance because of the strike which shut the game down for 58 days from June 12 until the All-Stars took the field Sunday night.

Of utmost concern to baseball has been the reception it would receive from the fans and it turned out to be mixed.

A record crowd of 72,086 jammed Cleveland Stadium but some came equipped with whistles to signal at the start of each inning a shrill protest to the strike. But by game's end they were caught up in the excitement of the record-tying NL power show and there were no protest whistles blown on the way out.

Like the fans, the NL warmed to the All-Star task rather slowly, playing somewhat tentatively early on, perhaps because of the strike's break in their annual summer routine.

"We had played two exhibitions and I still didn't feel just right," said Carter, "but when you get that heart pounding.."

Baltimore's Ken Singleton staked the Americans to an early 1-0 lead, tagging Tom Seaver of Cincinnati for a second-inning home run. "It was a fast ball, right down the middle," Singleton said. "I aimed the pitch," admitted Seaver. "I had nothing on it and it was the type of pitch you should hit out."

Singleton did, and the AL had the lead. Carter balanced that run with a fifth-inning homer against California's Ken Forsch. Then, in the sixth, Pittsburgh's Dave Parker unloaded on Mike Norris of Oakland and the Nationals had a 2-1 lead.

But it lasted only until the Americans batted in the bottom of the sixth when Singleton touched off a three-run rally constructed around five singles, four of them in a row.

Singleton and Boston's Dwight Evans opened with hits against Burt Hooton of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Then Chicago White Sox catcher Carlton Fisk also singled, loading the bases. Pinch hitter Fred Lynn beat out another hit, tying the score and leaving the bases still loaded. A sacrifice fly by Buddy Bell and a pinch single by Ted Simmons supplied two more runs for a 4-2 AL lead.

There was a delay in the top of the seventh when the AL took the field with only eight men. Manager Jim Frey wanted Lynn to stay in the game but the California outfielder, who banged up his left knee sliding into second base during the rally, begged off. That forced Frey to substitute Tony Armas of Oakland and it left him short a player at a critical juncture later.

"I wanted to save Armas, but after Lynn pinch hit he went into the clubhouse," said Frey. "I told him I wanted him to play centerfield and he said he didn't feel well."

The two-run lead lasted only a little while. Carter, leading off the seventh like he did the fifth, ripped his second home run, this one on the first pitch from New York Yankees reliever Ron Davis, to climb into the All-Star record book.

Four other players — Ted Williams of Boston in 1946, Pittsburgh's Arky Vaughan in 1951, Al Rosen of Cleveland in 1954 and San Francisco's Willie McCovey in 1969 — had hit two homers in a single All-Star contest.

"I never imagined hitting two home runs," the Montreal catcher said.

Davis escaped the rest of the seventh without further damage but the Nationals were in position to strike and an inning later they did. Rollie Fingers of Milwaukee was on the mound when San Diego's Ozzie Smith opened with a walk. He promptly swiped second but on an overthrow by Cleveland catcher Bo Diaz, Smith got caught in a rundown and was retired.

A moment later, though, the Nationals had the tying run back on base as Fingers uncharacteristically issued another walk to Pittsburgh's Mike Easler. This time, Schmit made him pay for the indiscretion, walloping a two-run homer over the fence in center to turn the game around.

"I was trying to overthrow the ball and I had no rhythm at all," Fingers said. "I threw about 10 minutes in the bullpen and felt good. But I obviously left everything down there. The ball to Schmidt just said 'Hit me' all over it."

Schmidt obliged and the beneficiary of the shot was San Francisco's Vida Blue, sixth of a record eight National League hurlers. He gained credit for the victory, becoming the first pitcher to win an All-Star contest in each league. Blue received credit for the 1971 AL victory — the only time the Americans have won since 1962.

Another record was set by Philadelphia's Pete Rose, the NL starter at first base. That's the fifth position at which Rose has started in All-Star play.

Vincent Pleased With Practice

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Ronald Vincent's first week as head coach at Greenville Rose was nearly all he could want. In fact, only one thing was lacking: contact.

Starting today, Vincent will get that also as Rose dons full pads and begins two-a-day practices.

"I'm pleased with the progress," Vincent said. "We've made as much progress as I could have expected. The kids have come in with a very good attitude. But if we're to have a successful season, they're gonna have to have a good attitude."

"After the first week, we had hoped to get the basic fundamentals with the offense down, get in a great deal of conditioning work and impart our philosophy to the kids. We've covered all those things pretty well."

The main tenet of Vincent's philosophy is the I offense. After taking over from Dave Bumgarner, who took a leave of absence after suffering chest pains and then undergoing heart surgery recently, Vincent followed through with plans to shelve the wishbone for the I.

So far, Vincent says the Rampants are working hard to learn the new offense.

"The running game isn't that much different, but the passing game is very different," Vincent said. "We're having to work hard on the pass patterns."

The Rampants will not lack in speed once they get the patterns down. Senior split end Chris McLawhorn turned a 4.5 40-yard dash last week, the team's fastest.

Robert Brown, a linebacker, and Calvin Joyner, a defensive back, were in the 4.6 range.

"I'm real pleased with the times in the 40," Vincent said. "We've got a few big boys, but as far as the team goes, speed is going to be more of a factor."

While Vincent has been able to gauge the offensive progress of the team, he has yet to get a feel for his defensive team.

"We're having to rebuild the defense almost totally from last year's team," Vincent said. "Right now it's hard to judge until we get some contact work."

"I feel like we've got some pretty good people on defense and I think by the end of the week I'll have a good idea about the defense."

Notes...

*Just over 100 10th, 11th and 12th graders showed up for the first day of practice last week. Of those 100, about 60 are expected to play on the varsity.

*Three players remain vying for the quarterback slot: Tom Buie, Barry Smith and Kenny Kirkland.

"It's too early really to tell who will be starting," Vincent said. "I think the players and the coaching staff realize one thing: no one has a position nailed down."

*Vincent said he has enjoyed the first week of practice as head coach. But, off the field has not been as enjoyable.

"There's a lot of organizational work to do as head coach that you just don't have to deal with as an assistant," Vincent said. "You've got to make sure of your practice schedule and other stuff like that."

*Rose's practices will be a 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. this week. The Rampants open their 1981 season Friday, Sept. 4, at Jacksonville.

ECU's Nichols Turns In 4.4 40

Gary Nichols is East Carolina's reigning speed king after 40-yard dash time trials this weekend for incoming freshman, walk-ons and scholarship players.

Nichols, a 5-10, 165-pound freshman wide receiver from Chesapeake, Va., turned in back-to-back 4.4s in the 40, the fastest time on the team at present. Tight end Damon Pope, a 6-4, 220-pounder, ran a 4.6.

"I'm very pleased with the general conditioning and speed of our recruits," ECU coach Ed Emory said.

PIRATE NOTEBOOK

Nearly 90 newcomers have reported to ECU, not the 180 to 200 Emory originally thought he would have. The newcomers went through physicals, strength tests and time trials this weekend and were in meetings this morning.

The newcomers are to run 1 1/2-mile tonight at 7:45.

Notes...

The first formal on-field practice is set for 4 p.m. today. Practice times for Tuesday and Wednesday are set for 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Picture day is set for Thursday at 1:30.

Upperclassmen are to check in Wednesday and begin practice (two-a-day) Friday. Four-a-day practices get going Saturday.

Nelson Coasts To PGA Victory

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — That major championship feeling hit Larry Nelson for the first time when he lofted a 2-iron shot 20 feet from the 17th hole Sunday in the 63rd PGA.

"When I saw it make that beautiful, little ball mark, I knew I had it won, especially after Fuzzy (Zoeller) missed the green," he said.

Nelson two-putted and owned what he thought he needed — a four-shot bulge going into the final hole of the year's last major tournament.

"I'm a choker," admitted the candid 33-year-old Georgian, who has played this demanding game just 12 years.

"I didn't want to go to the 18th with a one-shot lead, even a two-shot lead. I wanted it to be at least three shots," he said.

"I think everybody is a choker. Anybody who tells you coming down the stretch that he's not nervous, I'd say he's on something," said Nelson, a winner for the fifth time in his eight-year career.

Nelson never let any of his pursuers closer than three strokes on the Atlanta Athletic Club. He closed with a 1-over-par 71 for a 273 total and the winning check of $60,000.

Zoeller, his playing partner on the hot, humid day, settled for second. The former Masters champion collected $40,000 after also shooting 71 for 277.

Tour driving champion Dan Pohl closed with a 69 for 278 and third place of $25,000.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus fell short in a bid for his 18th major professional title and sixth PGA crown, finishing with 69-279 for a tie for fourth.

Also at that figure were Bruce Lietzke, Bob Gilder, Keith Fergus, Tom Kite, Australian Greg Norman and Isao Aoki of Japan.

Gilder matched the competitive course record with 66. Lietzke and Fergus had 68s, Aoki 70, Norman 71 and Kite 72, marking the 11th time in 12 starts he's been in the top seven.

Zoeller didn't think the race was over quite as quickly as his more serious, quieter playing partner.

"I thought Larry had it when he drove the ball straight down the middle on the last hole. You can't give up until the 72nd hole. Golf is such an unbelievable game," said Zoeller.

"He played consistent. He's deserving. He drove it right down the middle of the fairway except 14. When you see a player hitting a ball like that all day, it's pretty to watch," the runnerup said.

Driving, in fact, probably saved Nelson, an admitted bundle of nerves.

"I hit more good tee shots today than I've hit in 2 1/2 years," said Nelson, pushing his yearly earnings to $178,161 and his lifetime bankroll to $936,668.

"I hit some bad putts the front nine. It was just nerves. Nerves affect your small muscles. I could still drive the ball though with those nerves," said the one-time illustrator in an airplane factory.

"Fuzzy said he was having a good time. It was work for me. I'm really drained. I'm as tired as I've ever been in my life," Nelson said.

His lead seemed in danger just once. His only errant tee shot landed in a cluster of tall pine trees at 14. He gambled by attempting to hit a hard 9-iron shot 170 yards to the green.

Instead, it caught the trees front nine. It was just nerves, and plummeted in ground under repair, still in the woods. Nelson got a free drop and then punched a 6-iron through a 6-foot opening to within 20 feet of the cup.

Play Ball! Second Season Starts

By The Associated Press

Play ball!

Those two little words that long-suffering fans and players alike have been waiting to hear for two months will finally be heard in ballparks throughout the nation as major league baseball gets back to business today.

Starting over after a 50-day players' strike and a nine-day tuneup period, all 26 teams will start swinging in the National and American leagues in baseball's bizarre "second season."

And everyone's starting fresh, thanks to the split-season concept adopted by owners.

"I like what I see," said Montreal Manager Dick Williams, whose optimism is predicated on a schedule that shows the Expos at home for 28 of their 53 games, 18 of them against National League East opponents.

The Expos are tough at Olympic Stadium, having compiled a sharp 21-7 record before the strike tore the season in half last June. In addition, the Expos have played well against division opponents with a 19-10 record.

"I'd have to see how it compares with other clubs in our division, but from what I see of the schedule, I think it favors us," said Williams.

Other managers were happy, too, particularly those with teams that had fallen far behind by June 12, the day of the players' walkout. After the strike was settled on July 31, owners decided to award first-half championships to the

with the next highest winning percentage.

The champions, of course, will play for the league pennant and a place in the World Series, which will get a late start on Oct. 20 this year as a result of the extra playoffs.

The Los Angeles Dodgers won the NL West in the first half, a mere half-game ahead of the Cincinnati Reds. In the American League, it was the New York Yankees in the East and the Oakland A's in the West.

Franks' Cubs had the honor of re-opening the season by hosting the New York Mets in an afternoon game at Wrigley Field. Mike Scott was scheduled to go for the Mets against the Cubs' Mike Krukow.

In NL night games, Pittsburgh was at Montreal with Jim Bibby scheduled to pitch for the Pirates and Steve Rogers for the Expos; St. Louis and Bob Forsch went against Philadelphia and Larry Christenson; Cincinnati's Frank Pastore faced Los Angeles and Jerry Reuss; Atlanta's Phil Niekro went against San Diego and Juan Eichelberger and Houston's Don Sutton pitched against San Francisco, which countered with Doyle Alexander.

In the AL, Chicago's Richard Dotson pitched against Boston's Dennis Eckersley; Kansas City's Dennis Leonard faced Baltimore and Dennis Martinez; Milwaukee sent Pete Vuckovich against Cleveland and Bert Blyleven; Danny Darwin pitched for Texas against New York's Tommy John; Toronto's Jim Clancy went against Detroit and Milt Wilcox; Oakland started Rick Langford against Minnesota and Roger Erickson and California's Geoff Zahn was tapped to pitch against Seattle's Glenn Abbott.

Some players were somewhat tentative about starting again after a long layoff.

"I think the big thing we have to deal with is our pitchers' control," said Cleveland pitching coach Dave Duncan. "Most of our guys have good solid deliveries. They're not like guys who have unorthodox styles and need time to get their rhythm together. I think with the type of motions our pitchers have, they'll be around the plate."

Noted Cincinnati catcher Joe Nolan: "None of our pitchers is really at top speed, but they all have pretty good control."

Apparently fans haven't lost interest in the game as a result of the first mid-season strike in baseball history. Some teams report expectations if the strike hadn't interrupted the season," said Detroit Tigers assistant public relations director Bob Miller, who expected about 25,000 for tonight's game.

Larry Shenk, PR man for the Phillies, said that some 50,000 tickets had been sold by the weekend. The Phillies have a double-barreled drawing card.

Duran Wants Sugar Ray Again

CLEVELAND (AP) — Roberto Duran is back and for one reason only: another fight against Sugar Ray Leonard, who regained the World Boxing Council welterweight title when Duran quit in the eighth round — an action that has overshadowed his many victories during his illustrious career.

"I came out to fight and he came out to play," Duran said of that night in New Orleans. But it was Duran who quit, contending a stomach ache would not allow him to continue.

"I came back into the ring to fight Sugar Ray Leonard," said the 32-year-old Duran Sunday after pouncing out a unanimous 10-round decision over 22-year-old Nino Gonzalez as a junior middleweight, another step up the ladder for the Panamanian who dominated the lightweight division for most of the 1970s.

"I fought The Man," said

Gonzalez of Bayonne, N.J. "I hope he gets his fight with Leonard, and does it again (win)."

However, Leonard said he will not fight Duran again.

But promoter Don King has a strategy he hopes will bring about Leonard-Duran III. He plans another tuneup for Duran against an opponent to be named in September, and then match Duran against Wilfred Benitez for the WBC 154-pound title late in the year.

A victory by Duran over Benitez, something that will not be easy, could bring about a third fight with Leonard because Leonard holds the World Boxing Association 154-pound title.

A boost towards such a fight would be a loss by Leonard against Thomas Hearns for the universal welterweight title Sept. 16.

Duran, who officially weighed in Saturday at 155 pounds, came back in lilac-colored trunks and, while not the El Animal of old, had too much strength and experience for Gonzalez.

Gonzalez, who weighed 152, now is 24-2. He turned down a $40,000 title shot against Benitez to take a chance at upsetting Duran, and he got $75,000, tax free.

But Duran makes it clear he is not fighting again for money.

Duran scored effectively to the body and put Gonzalez on the ropes and shook him several times with rights to the head. But his punching power was not as dominating as it was when he was a lightweight.

The man they call Hands of Stone also seemed concerned about pacing himself and was less aggressive than he has been in the past.

Clerc Wins Clay Crown

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Jose-Luis Clerc and Ivan Lendl have become friendly tennis rivals. So friendly, in fact, they give each other extra serves and points when they think a linesman or umpire has made an error.

Players are often in a better position to judge whether a shot is in or out, they say.

"I play so many tournaments with Ivan, when we are in the locker room we say we play... You say, I say (whether a shot is good)," said Clerc, explaining their extraordinary deference toward each other's judgment during Sunday's finals of the U.S. Open Clay Court tournament.

Clerc was a 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 winner in match that was, to a large extent, officiated by the players themselves. More often than not, the umpire went along with Clerc and Lendl.

"I think it's much better if you play with the players, because sometimes the shot is very, very near to the line,"

Another time, with Lendl down 4-2 and serving in the second set, the two players refused to accept the umpire's ruling on a line call that would have given the game to Lendl. Instead, they continued play and Clerc eventually won the game after three deuce points.

Lendl, a 21-year-old Czechoslovakian, was seeded No.1 based on last week's Association of Tennis Professionals world rankings. Clerc, seeded No.2, has since moved one spot ahead of Lendl to fourth in the world behind John McEnroe, Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors.

"It's just kind of funny. We give the points to each other," said Lendl, who has lost to Clerc each of the past three times they have met. "If I serve an ace and the linesman calls it out, he (Clerc) gives the point to me."

"We do it a lot because he (Clerc) is a good guy. We don't like to be hurt (by a bad call). I do it only if we talk before the match and we say, okay, we give the calls to each other," Lendl continued.

Duran scored effectively to the body and put Gonzalez on the ropes and shook him several times with rights to the head. But his punching power was not as dominating as it was when he was a lightweight.

The man they call Hands of Stone also seemed concerned about pacing himself and was less aggressive than he has been in the past.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q6 ♥J8 ♦KJ10952 ♣AQ6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
5 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Partner's raise to five spades asks specifically about control in the unbid suit—hearts. Since you have neither first nor second round control, you can take no further action even though you have something to spare for your bidding. Pass.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J7 ♥AJ8 ♦AQJ72 ♣A84
Partner opens the bidding with three spades. What do you respond?
A.—You have a very fine hand, but don't let your three aces go to your head. Partner's opening bid has promised only six tricks at a spade contract, and though your hand should certainly produce four or five tricks, it is the height of optimism to even think that it might offer more than a marginal play for slam. Bid four spades.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠983 ♥J965 ♦KQ1082 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Your hand was worth just one voluntary bid, and you have made it. Partner's new suit at the one-level was not forcing, so get out of the auction now that you have found a reasonable spot. Pass. If you take another bid, partner would be entitled to expect a better hand from you.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQJ1075 ♥94 ♦A764 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♠ Dble Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Although partner thinks that he can defeat two clubs, your hand is bound to be a disappointment to him defensively. Since your spade suit is good enough to rebid even if partner is short in the suit, as his double implies, we suggest you bid two spades. Bear in mind that partner's penalty double is a statement of intent and not an edict!

Q.5—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠74 ♥AKQ983 ♦1074 ♣82
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Partner's hand should be better than minimum for his two no trump rebid, and your hand should produce six tricks for him. It is also to your side's advantage to have the lead come up to your partner's hand, and nine tricks might be easier to make than ten. Raise to three no trump. Our second choice is four hearts, with three hearts a poor third.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠72 ♥K10954 ♦QJ9873
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—With your hand, you want to compete, but you don't want to choose a suit unilaterally and you don't have enough in high cards to make a takeout double. Bid two no trump. Considering the auction, there is no way you could intend that bid to be natural. Partner should read it as a weak distributional takeout for the unbid suits.

Baseball Fans Will Find Little Choice With Tonight's Telecasts

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The baseball fan has waited two months for baseball; let him wait another day. That's the attitude of ABC and the commissioner's office as far as local baseball broadcasts tonight are concerned.
During the strike, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn issued a statement saying the issue dividing players and owners was really "fan compensation." Well tonight you'll see what baseball really thinks about the fan when you try to tune in your team's second Opening Day game and get a movie or some treading situation comedy.
The situation is this. ABC's "Monday Night Baseball" contract requires exclusivity, meaning no games can be televised to compete with the network's games. This is normally a legitimate desire to achieve the highest possible ratings. ABC pays nearly $25 million a year to baseball and feels it has a right to recoup its investment under normal circumstances.

But tonight is very extraordinary; it's the return of the national pastime, not just Cincinnati-Los Angeles or St. Louis-Philadelphia on ABC, but California-Seattle, Kansas City-Baltimore and nine other games.
Opening Day is always special, and the fan who doesn't go to the ballpark should have a chance to see it. ABC should have considered the fan and not just the bottom line. ABC should have waived exclusivity for one night.
"The fans can go to the ballpark," said Jim Spence, senior vice president of ABC

Sports. "We think we're providing two quality games to the American public, with the added touch of live inserts on Pete Rose."
"We pay substantial money for rights, and it's not fair to our advertisers and our affiliates to allow competition from local telecasts. We purchased exclusivity in good faith. It just so happens the first game back is Monday night."
Reasonable changes are made all the time in contracts. ABC didn't get its game the past seven Monday nights, and baseball will have to make some concessions. Baseball should have sought some concessions for the fan tonight. And if ABC wouldn't budge, Kuhn should have applied some leverage. After all, isn't he supposed to have the "best interests of baseball" at heart?

Actually, this isn't so surprising since the local clubs get good money from the network contracts with ABC and NBC and don't want to jeopardize that down the road. Either way, they win.
Even the world champion Phillies have caught a case of "Anti-Baseball Fever." They could have allowed ABC's local station to show Philadelphia-St. Louis instead of Los Angeles-Cincinnati but, as of late last week, they had refused.
Larry Shenk, a spokesman for the Phillies, said Thursday that 14,000 seats were still unsold. But that meant 50,000 seats were sold. "We didn't want to set a precedent," he said.

Reagan Really Gets Away

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — When President Reagan wants to get away from it all for a summer vacation, he really gets away. Except for horseback riding and clearing brush, how Reagan is spending his time is almost a state secret.
But for a handful of aides, Reagan and his wife, Nancy, are isolated at their 688-acre ranch atop the Santa Ynez mountains.
Even if reporters or curiosity seekers make the 60-minute drive from Santa Barbara, much of it up a narrow, sometimes treacherous road, the closest they get to the president is the main gate—about five miles from the ranch house.
The traveling White House issues statements each day about presidential activities, but they are terse and vary little.
On Sunday, for example, a two-paragraph statement was issued shortly before noon. It said:
"The president this morning read the newspaper and watched (Transportation) Secretary Drew Lewis on 'Face the Nation.' He and Mrs. Reagan left for horseback riding at approximately 10:45 a.m., he on Little Man and she on No Strings. There are expected to ride for an hour and a half."
"Following lunch this afternoon, the president plans to do some cleanup work around the barn."
A couple of hours later came an update. It said:
"There are no additions to the president's schedule today. No visitors are expected."

Since Reagan arrived at his ranch Thursday night, reporters have been told he has received a written national security briefing each day and has signed one minor piece of legislation. He also received at least one telephone call from deputy White House chief of staff Michael K. Deaver with an update on the air traffic controllers strike. There has been no word on any other official business.
Reagan plans to sign legislation Wednesday or Thursday cutting both the federal income tax and the federal budget.
But Reagan has left it to his aides, mainly counselor Edwin Meese III and Transportation Secretary Lewis, to discuss the president's decision to go ahead with production and stockpiling of neutron warheads as well as to explain how the administration is coping with the air controllers strike.
That will remain the pattern for the coming week, which Reagan will spend cloistered at his ranch.
But he'll be in Los Angeles most of next week, attending fund-raisers for the state Republican Party and holding individual meetings with several Cabinet secretaries, including Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. Budget director David Stockman also plans to meet with Reagan next week to discuss the next round of budget cuts.

Invites Critics

CHICAGO (AP) — Members of a group that criticized the television talk show hosted by Phil Donahue have been invited to appear on the program and voice their complaints, a senior producer said.
Producer Pat McMillen said Donahue has asked representatives of a Chicago TV watchdog group claiming affiliation with the National Federation for Decency to be guests on his show, which is taped at WGN-TV studios here.
The group, Coalition for Better Television, initiated the complaints.

Ms. McMillen said the subjects of many of Donahue's nationally syndicated programs are the result of viewer requests for discussion of particular subjects.
The coalition has charged two out of every three Donahue programs are "sex shows," most of which promote abnormal sexual activity. The group announced earlier this month it will begin "monitoring" the show and advise sponsors of its content.

Mechanical Problems Delay Fruit Fly Spraying

By the Associated Press
Mechanical troubles forced Florida officials to postpone an aerial pesticide assault against a destructive pest today as what appeared to be another Mediterranean fruit fly was discovered outside the planned spray zone, authorities said.

Florida Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner said the newly discovered fly was found Sunday evening and was flown to Washington for laboratory identification.

Doyle said he expected confirmation that the bug was indeed a medfly.

"That doesn't surprise us, it just disappoints us," Conner said.

Officials had planned today to begin aerial spraying of the pesticide malathion over a nine-square-mile area around a tree in Tampa where three medflies were discovered in a trap last Tuesday, the first finding of the pest in Florida in 18 years.

At about 7:30 a.m., however, officials had to scrub spraying for the day because of a helicopter engine failure. Another helicopter would be brought in to begin spraying Tuesday morning, officials said.

Conner said the fourth fly was found about a half-mile south of the area to be sprayed, and indicated a wider spray area must now be considered. The original target was an area within a 1 1/2-mile radius of the Tampa tree.

Meanwhile, California authorities worried that a growing infestation would force quarantine of a fourth agriculture-rich county.

Florida officials, concerned about the state's $4 billion-a-year produce industry — particularly the lucrative citrus groves that start just miles from where the flies were found — charged that the medflies came from California.

An extra 1,000 cardboard traps were being set up in Tampa, increasing the number of medfly traps agricultural workers check daily to more than 1,400, King said.

In California, Santa Cruz County officials planned to meet today, the first day of the apple harvest, to discuss the discovery of an egg-laden fruit fly outside the three-county quarantine zone.

The fly was found Saturday 30 miles southwest of the zone where officials thought they had contained the pest, which deposits its eggs under the skin of many fruit and vegetables.

Crews were set to begin a fourth round of aerial spraying today over a 267-square-mile area, which was to be expanded later this week 179 square miles deeper into Santa Clara County. The three quarantined counties are Santa Clara, Alameda and San Mateo.

State workers scoured the Santa Cruz County area where the latest egg-laden fly was found. They didn't find maggots.

If maggots were discovered, ground spraying would begin immediately, said Jack Simmen, county agriculture commissioner. Trapping already has been stepped up.

"All it means is we have a bigger war, but it doesn't mean what we are doing is failing," Jerry Scribner, head of the eradication effort, said Sunday.

Fate Of The Flying Falcons

Military historians may call this the summer of the Fighting Falcon. In recent weeks the U.S. twice postponed shipment of additional Fighting Falcons, or F-16s, to Israel after that nation used these airplanes for bombing raids. Israel wants more F-16s because the plane is the most advanced fighter in the world. Highly maneuverable, it was designed mainly for air-to-air combat. The F-16 can fly at twice the speed of sound and at altitudes of 10 miles. Four European allies have also bought F-16s, equipped with machine-gun like cannons and heat-seeking missiles, for nearly $9 million per plane. The Reagan Administration set today as the deadline to decide the fate of the next shipment of F-16s to Israel.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the speed of sound in air?

Overnite Transportation Co. said the second quarter of 1981 was a record period for revenues and operating results. With a six percent jump in total tonnage and a 26 percent increase in revenue, net income climbed 63 percent.

Revenue for the quarter was $73,560,000 compared with $58,278,000 for the same quarter in 1980. Net income was $7,114,000 compared with $4,365,000 last year.

For the six months ended June 30, revenue rose 20 percent to $141,474,000. Net income was $11,387,000 compared with $8,136,000 during the first half of 1980.

STAFF ADDITION
Frank O. Freuler Jr., managing partner of the Greenville branch office of Lowrimore, Warwick & Co., certified public accountants, announced that Cleve Branch Jr. has joined the staff as an accountant in the Audit Department.

A University of North Carolina graduate, Branch is married to the former Valerie Goodson and both are Greenville natives.

Freuler said that Tom Day and Leon Murdoch successfully completed all parts of the state CPA exam and will receive their certificates from the State Board of CPA Examiners. Day has been a senior accountant with the firm since December of 1979 and Murdoch has served as a senior accountant since October of 1978.

EARNINGS JUMP
Earnings of $2.49 per share on operating revenues of $167,861,000 were reported for the 12 month period ending June 30 by Frank Barragan Jr., president of North Carolina Natural Gas Corp.

Barragan said the earnings compared to $2.18 per share on revenues of $111,231,000 for the prior period.

The corporation's board recently declared a regular 35 cents per share quarterly dividend to be paid on Sept. 15 to shareholders of record Sept. 1.

BUSINESS TOTALS
New business for the first six months of 1981 for Pilot Life Insurance Co. totaled more than $1.4 billion, according to E. Pat Walden, Greenville Ordinary Division general manager.

He said Pilot's sales of individual policies during the period totaled $464 million and group sales were more than $939 million. Premium income from accident and health insurance amounted to $157 million, Walden said.

The proceeds to TRW from the sale are some $68 million, while the aftertax gain on the sale is estimated to be about $33 million, TRW said.

Hunt Joins In Charity Game

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — In the game of politics, they are all winners. In the game of basketball, well, it was all for fun.

At the urging of New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne, who is known for his dabbling in sports, a handful of the nation's governors chose up sides and played basketball Sunday to publicize the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Each of the players on the Boardwalk parking lot wore a foundation T-shirt.

Byrne, host of the 73rd annual National Governors Association meeting, pitted Republicans against Democrats in an abbreviated game with plenty of middle-aged grunts and groans.

And, using a governor's special powers to protect welfare, Byrne mercifully called off the contest after about 45 minutes when his Democrats managed a 22-22 tie.

"I haven't played since high school, maybe 30 years," said Arkansas Gov. Frank White, dressed in a Republican yellow T-shirt.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey was the standout of the contest, playing aggressively despite his 62 years and a brace on his right knee: "I hurt it in a riding accident. It's just a game leg. It's all right."

"Yeah, you don't survive

New York politics without being tough," added Utah Gov. Scott M. Matheson, sitting out part of the game after colliding with Carey.

The governors, soaked in sweat from the muggy seashore morning, played outside Resorts International Hotel Casino amid scores of New Jersey state troopers and reporters.

In the end, a fresh team of Western governors, led by Montana Gov. Ted Schwinden, pulled the Democrats even in the game.

"Sooner or later, as they always do, they have to call on the West to come in and rescue them," Schwinden said to New Mexico Gov. Bruce King, another Democrat.

Maryland Gov. Harry Hughes was not the best, but he was the most dazzlingly dressed player. The Democrat wore his green T-shirt over white Bermuda shorts printed with blue and white anchors.

For the record, Kansas Gov. John Carlin was the game's high-scorer with six points. His colleagues said his young age, 41 years, was an advantage.

Other players included Allen I. Olson of North Dakota, William A. O'Neill of Connecticut, Joseph E. Brennan of Maine, D. Robert Graham of Florida, George Nigh of Oklahoma and James B. Hunt Jr. of North Carolina.

Ex-Leader Returns

By JOHN ENDERS
Associated Press Writer
LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Gen. Humberto Coyoja, leader of an attempted coup six weeks ago, returned from exile under amnesty granted by the new junta and escaped arrest by political police waiting for him at the airport, military sources said.

The military junta that came to power last Tuesday sent uniformed agents to El Alto airport Sunday to protect the former army commander from paramilitary agents waiting to arrest him on his return from Buenos Aires.

Coyoja had been expected to succeed President Luis Garcia Meza in August, but the president withdrew the promise to resign he made after three attempts to oust him. Coyoja then led a fourth attempt, but it failed, and Garcia Meza exiled him along with other rival generals.

Garcia Meza finally resigned last week during another coup ATTEMPT THAT ENDED Friday but remained in the country as the other generals continued to jockey for power.

As a crowd of reporters and bystanders looked on, Coyoja was whisked from the airport by civilian and uniformed agents sent by the army general staff, military sources said.

An airport official who asked not to be identified said agents or former agents of the Interior Ministry's political police, the Special Security Service SES, were at the airport to arrest Coyoja. The SES is made up of paramilitary groups that were a major force behind Garcia Meza when he seized power in July 1980. It is the most feared government police branch here.

Garcia Meza was forced to resign by a revolt in Santa Cruz, 325 miles southeast of La Paz, led by Gen. Albert Natusch Busch, whose led a coup in 1979 but could keep the presidency for only two weeks, and Gen. Lucio Anez Rivero, Coyoja's associate in the attempted coup in June.

Garcia Meza turned over the presidency to the junta made up of the three men he appointed to head the three armed forces. After a four-day deadlock, they met Friday in La Paz with the rebel generals. The two factions agreed to end the standoff, and the junta agreed to the return of exiled officers to the country.

However, the two sides gave widely differing reports of what they agreed to. Anez Rivero remains strongly opposed to the junta and other officials appointed by Garcia Meza.
