

QUICK THINKING SCHOOL BUS DRIVER... Irene Ward, above, loves her job and her kids. In May, when she arrived at one of the stops on her Bethel route, she noticed open doors and windows in the house although she knew no one should be home that time of day. She kept the kids who lived there on the bus, finished her route, then drove them back to their home in her own car. Later, law enforcement officers determined their house had been burglarized and vandalized. Ward was named 1981 Bus Driver of the Year for Pitt County. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

Bethel Driver's Instinct Led Her To Keep Children

By MARY SCHULKEN

BETHEL — Irene Ward knew the windows and doors to her young passengers' home shouldn't be ajar. She knew mama and daddy worked, and she knew neither one was home yet. Ward, who drives school bus 141 at Bethel Elementary, thought carefully then decided to take the situation into her own hands. "I took the children home with me, then took them back to their house but the doors were still open. I called the family and the principal of the school and kept the children in the car until the parents arrived," she explained. The house, according to investigating officers, had been vandalized and burglarized. Rather than allow her small passengers to go into a home where she sensed potential danger, Ward used her own car on her own time to protect them. The adult bus driver, one of several in Pitt County, was commended at the recent board of education meeting for her actions. She described what happened that late May afternoon, saying, "I had seen the children's mother leaving for work in the mornings as I picked the kids up, so I knew there was nobody home in the afternoons. "When I stopped by the house that evening," she continued, "I noticed the windows and doors were open. One of the children said to me 'why are all the doors open?' and I said 'I don't know honey, I just don't know.'" Ward said she was frightened — for herself and for the children. "I got kind of scared," she recalled, "because I didn't know what had happened. "This was about the time all that stuff about the children in Atlanta was going around — that it was going to happen here next — and that went through my mind and scared me to death." Ward kept the children on the bus, finished her route, parked her bus, then took her private vehicle and returned to the children's house. The doors were still open, so she called a family member and her school principal. The principal called the sheriff's department and officers determined the house had been broken into. Travelers Jam London Airport

LONDON (AP) — Travelers turned London's Heathrow airport into a vast campground at the height of the summer tourist season today as the pivotal control tower at Gander, Newfoundland, shut down indefinitely in sympathy with striking U.S. controllers. Passengers sprawled in Heathrow's overseas terminal, some playing cards and others dozing. Parents tried to keep children amused. Some airlines simply told passengers not to come to the airport, there was no chance of getting away. A Transport Department spokesman in Ottawa said the tower at Gander, which controls flights in Canadian air space to and from Europe, was closed at 4 a.m. EDT and would remain shut until further notice. "We're in for a day for disruption again today," the spokesman said. He said the only other way for flights from Canada to cross the ocean was through U.S. airspace. Spanish air controllers also stopped guiding flights to and from the United States today. Australian controllers planned to join their New Zealand counterparts in a boycott started there Monday, and

Portuguese controllers declared a boycott beginning Saturday. Only four flights an hour were leaving British airspace for the United States. "It will be like trying to channel the world down a little funnel," a spokesman for Britain's Civil Aviation Authority said of the spill-over effects of the Canadian job action. London is the main conduit for flights between Europe and the United States and most of the traffic normally traverses Canadian airspace. At the current rate, 96 flights could leave today. The normal flow is 225. Monday, Canadian controllers announced they would refuse to guide planes to or from the United States through Canada's airspace, causing the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration to suspend trans-Atlantic flights, then begin to plan re-routing flights. The Canadian boycott on any U.S.-related flights diminished after several hours Monday, when federal authorities threatened fines, jailings and dismissals. But Canadian Transport Ministry spokesman Crapp Lee controllers at Gander shut down the tower again early today. At Gatwick Airport, 30 miles south of London, one Miami flight was delayed 26 hours and holdups averaged about seven hours, but Laker Airways and other airlines said they planned 20 U.S.-bound departures through the day. British Airways cancelled six flights to New York, Washington, Boston, Los Angeles, Miami and San Francisco. But airline spokesman David Read said five U.S.-bound planes might get away later. "It's an extremely serious situation with only four slots per hour to the U.S. from the whole of Europe," he said. For British Airways, which recently announced annual losses of $254 million, the strike is a crippling blow in peak summer tourist season. "We normally have 15 flights full across the North Atlantic every day at this time of year. If you're not pulling in the money now, you never will," said Read. Among those delayed was a group of 11 Girl Scouts from Charlotte, N.C., who had been on a camping expedition in England. Their 8 a.m. TWA flight home was cancelled and they were told to wait for another departure at 1:30 p.m. "We love England but it would be nice to get home soon," said Mary Sims, 16, Gastonia, N.C.

City Schools Raise Meal Prices Three

Parcels Bought

By JERRY RAYNOR

An increase in prices for school meals, an option for a la carte instead of an inflexible menu offering for all the schools, a satellite food service system for two schools, and a $1 increase in student fees for the coming 1981-82 school year were major items approved at the information meeting of the Greenville City Board of Education Monday night. In a detailed report to the board, Food Services Supervisor Linda Tingle presented three basic options. Option 1, which would have left prices unchanged from last year, would result in an estimated loss of about $50,000 during the school year. Option 2, with increases ranging from five to 15 cents, would result in a projected loss of $15,636; and option 3, with increases ranging from ten to 30 cents, was presented as the plan that hopefully would provide for a break-even operation of the Food Services for school year 1981-82. Ms. Tingle cautioned the board that since the federal government had not yet approved food reimbursement rates for the forthcoming school year, reimbursement figures used in the report represented calculations based on the best information available at the time. The board adopted Option 3, the break-even option recommended by Ms. Tingle and Superintendent Dr. Delma Blinson. Under this approved plan, meal prices for 1981-82 will be: (The prices increases noted are increases over last year's prices for the same type of meal.) — For students in kindergarten through grades 3 — breakfast, 40 cents; lunch

75 cents — an increase of 10 and 15 cents. — For students in grades 4-6 — breakfast, 40 cents, lunch 80 cents — an increase of 10 and 20 cents. — For students in grades 7-12 — breakfast, 40 cents, lunch, 95 cents — an increase of 10 and 20 cents. Reduced prices for all grades, kindergarten through grade 12 will be 30 cents for breakfast and 40 cents for lunch — an increase of 20 and 30 cents. The satellite program incorporated into the proposal involves preparation of lunches at Greenville Middle School for that school and also lunches to be catered to Agnes Fullilove and Third Street Schools. This procedure, according to estimates prepared for the report, would result in an operational savings of about $23,000. Approval of offering a la carte service will give students at all levels in the coming school year the opportunity to choose and buy individual items. Prices established in this service are: — For breakfast — fresh fruit, 25¢; bread and cereal products, 20¢; doughnuts, muffins, honeybuns, 20¢; fruit juice, 15¢. — For lunch — meat or sandwich (including pizza, one of the most popular food items), 60¢; vegetable soup, 30¢; fruits and vegetables, 25¢; crackers, saltines, wafers, 5¢ per pack; peanuts, 25¢; desserts, 30¢; ice cream, 30¢; roll, 10¢; cookie, 10¢; Wonderbar, 20¢; milk, 25¢; fruit turnover, 40¢; and Lance products, 25¢. Additionally, students at all levels will have the option of being offered as many as five items, but not required to accept this many. Previously, five items were placed on a student's plate whether or not he wanted certain items. Under the offer system, a child can choose as few as three items. This system, Ms. Tingle explained, will do much to eliminate plate waste. Prices for adult meals and for catered meals will be 60 cents for breakfast and $1.25 for lunch. The Redevelopment Commission's real estate staff completed acquisition procedures on three parcels during July, while the demolition of two structures was handled, it was reported Monday night. Faye Brewington, Southside project manager and staff real estate officer, said that single acquisitions were closed in the West Meadowbrook (416 Moore Street), South Evans (213 Greene Street), and West Greenville Thoroughfare (northeast corner of W. 14th and Chestnut Street) areas. The demolitions, she said, involved parcels at 1603 Garland Street in Southside and at 1005 Taylor Street in West Meadowbrook. Mrs. Brewington reported that three individuals and one business, all located in the South Evans section, were relocated during the month. The business relocation involved Johnson's An-

Board To Accept Bids

By SUE FERNALD

AYDEN — The Ayden Town Board elected Monday to accept bids recommended by Dale Holland of Talbert-Cox Associates Inc. of Wilmington, for Ayden Community Development under the block grant. Holland reported that "bids were received on nine houses from eight contractors." He recommended that bids be accepted on only seven of the homes as the Williams home proposals required more investigation, and bids on the Mewborn home showed too large a discrepancy to make a decision at the present.

Contractors, Bonner Alligood, C.B. Rogers, Nolan Alligood, and Carl Tyndall will begin repairs on the seven Ayden homes "within a week," said Town Clerk Ralph Ford. The Warren, Keys and Hemby dwellings, two Whitehurst homes, and the Edwards and Faison houses are slated for repairs. The maximum price for these repairs was set at $10,500 in a move initiated by Commissioner J.J. Brown, seconded by Dr. J. Elliot Dixon. "Twenty houses have already been completed through community development with an average of $6,500 being spent," said Holland. "A few work items were left off the initial specification sheet," he added, which caused the allotted amount of money to be lower than the amount needed to do the jobs well. Holland asked the board to review insurance requirements for the community development program as he and his associates feel "they are excessive." Currently, insurance limits are set at $300,000 for property damages and $100,000 for bodily injury. Holland recommended that these amounts be changed to (Continued on page 5)

Winterville Board Looks At Its Electrical Options

By TOMMY FORREST

WINTERVILLE — Malcolm Green, acting director of the Greenville Utilities speaking to the Winterville Board of Aldermen Tuesday night, briefly described the North Carolina Municipal Power Agency and its purpose, saying Winterville would be the only member in the state that could be supplied by another power agency. In a printed statement handed to each board member, the power agency was explained. "A 1975 legislative act authorized the creation, by two or more municipal electric systems of Municipal Power Agencies whose purpose is to acquire (build or buy) generation and transmission facilities that would jointly serve the participating cities." The statement said, in 1977 an amendment to the 1975 act authorized the Power Agencies to own such generation and transmission facilities with the private utility companies and/or the rural electric co-ops. Green said, "The power agency in which Winterville is a member (agency three) will own a minority share of Carolina Power and Light (CP&L) approximately 18 percent, with estimated cost savings over the years of about $50,000 by getting off Virginia Electric and Power Company lines." Green explained to the board Winterville's four options as a power agency member. The first option for consideration was the construction of a line directly to a CP&L transmission point, which is a long distance from the town; second, purchase power from a neighbor town such as Ayden; third, purchase power directly from the power agency, and pay wheeling rate (charge for transmitting (Please turn to Page 6)

PET FOSTER HOMES SOUGHT

The Pitt County Humane Society is in desperate need of foster homes in which to temporarily place founding cats and dogs, kittens and puppies until they can be put up for adoption. "We only have three of these homes — one for dogs, one for cats, one for both — at the present time," Humane Society Vice President Barbara Haddock said. "We need more immediately so as to provide the services we should for the community. We'll even consider providing funds for feeding if someone feels he or she would like to keep animals for us, but cannot afford to because of food costs." Anyone who can help is asked to call Mrs. Haddock at 752-9922 or Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, president, 756-4867.

Declaring its extra funds "limited and in most cases obligated," the county board of education revealed last night a capital outlay balance of $112,000 and a current expense surplus, once possible contractual obligations are met, of $113,044.22. "We do not have $1 million in surplus funds as was stated," said Supt. Ott Alford at the special meeting Monday night. "When we've had extra money we've turned it back to the schools, dollar for dollar." The board presented at the meeting their response to the county commissioners request for a financial disclosure from the board. Discounting the approximately $300,000 the board says it needs to operate, the figure of $113,044.22 represents the board's surplus money after a possible one-year cost of living salary increase now pending in the N.C. General Assembly. If no cost of living increase is granted, the surplus remains at $188,898.71. "In 1975 the law required the commissioners to give the county schools 69 percent of each dollar they allow the city schools," said Alford. "That year they gave us $684,944.84. In subsequent years that money has earned $289,000 above and beyond that taken out to fund items in our budget. "In addition," Alford told board members, "we've received $118,500 in fines and forfeitures from the courts and $130,000 in federal monies and other sources. "Times when the city needed monies, we got a portion of that," he added. According to the superintendent, there is no longer $25,000 in emergency funds in the current expense budget. "We didn't maintain an emergency fund this year," said Alford, "which for a budget our size is a shaky situation — what if we have a hard winter, a lot of unexpected expenses?" As of June 30, 1980 — a year ago — the board had a fund balance of $1,186,671 in the current expense fund. According to the disclosure, $96,343.50 is restricted by a statute; $166,714.96 is restricted by appropriation to community schools, an energy grant, and $7,500 matching; $250,000 was transferred, at the request of the county commissioners, to the Ayden Middle project; and appropriations of $169,025 for various projects at schools were made last year (includes drainage at G.R. Whitfield, covered walkways at W.H. Robinson and Stokes, media furniture at Whitfield, Sam Bundy and Griffon, elementary media aides, elementary teachers, and fuel. Revenue of accounts receivable on June 30, 1981 — this year — was $592,765.17. From that, $69,503.06 is restricted carry-over (community schools, Project Promise, energy grant and public law 81-874.) Fines and forfeiture added $82,946 to that total and a fuel advance of $67,000 will be recovered during the year. From this total, ($673,208.67) the board obligated $184,309.96 in "fixed charges" — funding for teacher supplements, longevity pay, three assistant superintendents, a supervisor, a local program director, supplements for the superintendent and associate superintendent, and supplements for elementary principals, high school principals and a school finance officer, leaving $488,898.71. According to the board, minus the $300,000 operating expense the current expense fund totals $188,898.71, and minus the $75,854.49 expense a one-year cost of living increase would incur the fund totals $113,044.22. Members voted to make the Ayden Middle project the board's capital outlay priority, and to request funds in subsequent years for completion of the project. A policy prohibiting any county employee from driving county cars to and from work was approved. According to the new policy, administrative personnel (superintendents and assistant superintendents) have the option of driving a county vehicle and reimbursing the county at a rate to be determined by the board. Other administrative personnel will be reimbursed at 25 cents per mile for travel expenses. The supervisor of maintenance, critical service areas, transportation, bus mechanics and wrecker driver will be allowed to maintain county vehicles overnight.

Dear Abby Karen Killed Herself; Her Father Grieves

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, Karen, always read your column. This pleased her mother and me because we think your advice is especially useful to young people.

Two weeks ago we came home and found our beautiful and gifted 18-year-old daughter dead! She had shot herself with the .22 rifle I had bought for our young son to use on a rifle range. We had never had a gun in the house before because I had always heard that they were more dangerous to the family than anyone. Now I keep telling myself that if a gun had not been available, Karen might have gotten through her crisis.

I have two reasons for writing. First, to ask you to encourage teen-agers who have problems to try to talk to their parents or a professional person. We had no idea Karen had any problems. After her death, her sister told us that Karen had used some drugs, including LSD, about two years ago, and although she had quit, she continued to have withdrawal symptoms. She had told her sister that she thought she was "crazy" because occasionally she had memory problems and hallucinated.

We thought we knew Karen, but apparently we didn't. It was her only attempt at suicide, and as far as we know, she never spoke of it to anyone.

My second reason for writing is to ask you about an organization for people who have lost a child. You mentioned it in your column, but we never dreamed that we would need it. Thank you, Abby.

JOHN E. GLASCO, WICHITA, KAN.

DEAR MR. GLASCO: My heart goes out to you and your family. Please don't blame yourself, as most parents of suicides are wont to do. Everyone is responsible for his own actions.

Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Compassionate Friends, P.O. Box 1347, Oakbrook, Ill. 60531. You will be put in touch with the chapter nearest you. This fine organization is comprised of parents who have lost a child and have banded together to provide emotional support to others who need help in handling one of life's greatest tragedies — the loss of a child.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published only a portion of a poem titled "Forgiveness." I loved it and have been trying ever since to locate it. Will you please publish the entire poem? It has a very special meaning for me. Thank you!
PERSONAL REASONS

DEAR REASONS: A surprising number of readers also requested it, so here it is:

Forgiveness
by George Roemisch

Forgiveness is the wind-blown bud which blooms in placid beauty at Verdun.
Forgiveness is the tiny slate-gray sparrow which has built its nest of twigs and string among the shards of glass upon the wall of shame.
Forgiveness is the child who laughs in merry ecstasy beneath the toothed fence that closes in Da Nang.
Forgiveness is the fragrance of the violet which still clings fast to the heel that crushed it.
Forgiveness is the broken dream which hides itself within the corner of the mind oft called forgetfulness, so that it will not bring pain to the dreamer.
Forgiveness is the reed which stands up straight and green when nature's mighty rampage halts, full spent.
Forgiveness is a God who will not leave us after all we've done.

DEAR ABBY: You've helped waitresses, teachers, policemen and many others who have encountered problems on their jobs. Now please give us cobblers a break.

I have a small shoe-repair shop and take pride in turning out good work, but some people come into the shop and demand that I fix their shoes right away, even though I may be backlogged a week! If I don't drop everything and accommodate them, you wouldn't believe the abuse I get! A first-class repair job takes time. The faster a craftsman works, the more money he makes, but as soon as he sacrifices quality in order to turn out more jobs, he is no longer a craftsman.

In my state (and many others) the law requires every business that accepts personal possessions from the public to be repaired or cleaned (clothes, jewelry, shoes) to issue that person a claim ticket. And no article can be surrendered without it. You wouldn't believe the fights we get into when people demand shoes without a claim check!

Please print this, Abby. The cobblers will love you.
TROUBLED SOLE IN SEATTLE

DEAR TROUBLED: Here's your letter. I'd feel like a heel if I didn't!

CONFIDENTIAL TO DONNA SMITH IN THE BRONX: Please send George Roemisch's poem, "Forgiveness," in its entirety to me at my new address: 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. Thank you!

Travel Along with Janet Stoughton

There has been a recent change in passport regulations that affects families planning to travel abroad with children. It is no longer possible for children under the age of 13 to be included on the passports of their parents or siblings. Nor is it possible for husbands and wives to appear on each other's passport. It is now necessary that every American citizen, regardless of age, obtain an individual passport. If your passport already includes minor children, and/or a spouse, it will remain valid until its regular expiration date.

QUIKOTE TRAVELS INC. is the senior travel agency in Greenville. That means that whenever there is a change in travel regulations, such as the requirement for children to have their own passports, we will know about it and we will make sure our clients know about it. That's what good service is all about. Speak to us now about Labor Day or back to school travel plans. We're at 319 Cotanche St. 756-3456. Our computers guarantee fast and accurate service.

To obtain instructions for making the Diamond Delight Pullover, send your request for Leaflet No. P-1820 with $1 and a long stamped, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler (BE SURE TO USE YOUR NEWSPAPER CODE HERE), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-1820 by sending check or money order for $16 for small or medium sizes of $18.50 for large to Pat Trexler at the same address. The body of the sweater is knitted in off-white with your choice of the following color combinations for the yoke: copper and brown, wedgewood and royal blue, scarlet and black or cranberry and light olive. The price includes shipping charges.

Dear Reader: In most instructions for knitting, you are given specific directions for each step to be taken. Occasionally, however, you will be told simply to decrease a certain number of stitches. If these are to be made at random intervals, it probably won't matter how you do it. On the other hand, whenever pairs of decreases are used, as on either side of a raglan line, they should follow a definite pattern.

For example, with the right side of your work facing you, if you were working on any one section of a raglan sleeve garment, the decreases at the right edge should slant from right to left and those at the opposite side should slant from left to right.

Probably the most frequently used right-to-left decrease used is one that is usually abbreviated to: SL1, KL, PSSO. Translated, this means to slip one stitch, knit one stitch and then pass the slipped stitch off the needle over the knitted stitch.

As a beginner, I didn't use this decrease because, when used at the beginning of a row, it did not seem to match the "knit-two-together" decrease used at the end of a row. Then, one day, I realized I had been slipping the needle, slipping them knitwise. Then insert the tip of the left needle into the front of these two slipped stitches. You will notice that your needles are now in the proper knitting position, so go ahead and knit the two stitches together from this position.

The effect of each of the last two decreases is so similar that I suggest that you try both and then select the one you prefer.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The town of Cooper, Iowa, has brought to national attention a problem that has long plagued small towns...the shortage of a local celebrity.

Cooper, with its 50 residents, had the courage to "go public" with the announcement that they had no famous citizens and were willing to adopt a foster celebrity.

After all the hopefuls were considered, the committee decided on Johnny Carson. They hoped he would do for them what he has already done for Corning, Iowa.

The problem is a serious one. Can you imagine what it's like to live in a town that wants to sponsor a celebrity Golf Open and there's no one to name it after?

What about a university that wants to honor its most famous graduate and there isn't any?

Or a Fourth of July parade with a parade marshal who has to wear a name tag?

I've seen the shortage of celebrities coming for some time now. And why not? It used to be they only showed up on rare occasions when there were crowds of thousands.

Now they show up for every telethon, sports event, supermarket opening, auction, fund-raiser, parade, dinner, anniversary, graduation, chill cook-off and political rally. That's why most politicians declare their candidacy so early. They want to get the good celebrities in their corner before they're all picked over.

When you think about it, shopping for a celebrity is important. Do you want a bigger-than-life figure like the President of the United States, who will bring gawkers and press people from all over the country trampling down the flowers in the park? Do you want a contemporary celebrity who is serving time and will attract a bizarre crowd of lookers? Or do you want a sex symbol who will bring everyone flocking to drink the local water?

I was on a book tour a while back in Portsmouth, Ohio, when my hostess said, "You know who was born here, don't you?"

When I shook my head, she said, "Roy Rogers' horse."

"Roy Rogers was born here?"

"No, Roy was born in Cincinnati. His horse, Trigger, was born here."

When she saw the look on my face, she said, "Look, he didn't raise taxes or muddy up the water."

What more could you want from a celebrity than that?

They Opened Air Age

As happens at times, supporters of new contenders are coming forth to claim that the first manned powered flight was made before the Kitty Hawk flight by the Wright brothers.

There were many innovators around the world experimenting with powered flight at the time and it was only a question of time before someone achieved it. With the slowcommunications of the day it is not surprising that many claims to the first flight have since been made. Indeed, it was some years before the Wright brothers accomplishment was fully recognized in their own country.

The fact remains, however, that the Kitty Hawk flight is well documented. Further the Wright brothers went on to build more efficient planes and eventually became the pioneers of the aircraft building industry. Their aircraft designs were ingenious and are still recognized as basic to powered flight.

Someone else may, or may not, have flown prior to the Wright brothers historic flight at Kitty Hawk. There is little documentation for it, but it is clear that the Wrights opened the way to the air age with their tiny little engine powered craft at Kitty Hawk on Dec. 17, 1903.

Moving In Right Direction

The United States and all of the industrialized nations are locked in the grip of the oil producers, both OPEC and domestic.

Even with an oil surplus the price is little affected and in the United States the administration has just demonstrated through its tax cuts bill that it is anxious to give the oil interests even more.

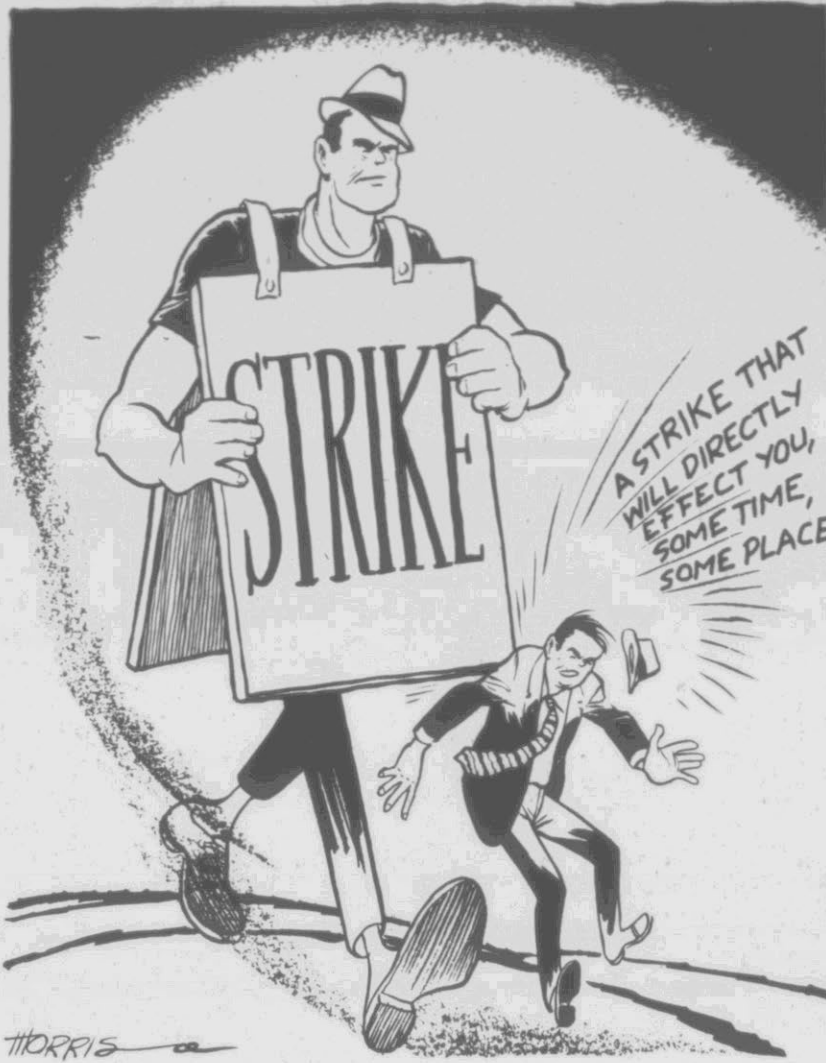

Sometime in the future we can break the stranglehold of oil, however, if we are willing to finance the technology. It doesn't take a great scientist to determine that electricity is the best way to transmit power to the places where it is needed. Nor do we have to be brilliant to see that the sun is the most ready source of needed power.

Now the Japanese have generated 1,000 kilowatts of electricity from a solar power plant. The plant reached its maximum output in 15 minutes and held it for 12 additional minutes.

It may not be a breakthrough, but we are moving in the right direction.

BECOMING AS CERTAIN AS DEATH AND TAXES!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

It's Labor Of Loathing

WASHINGTON — Not to drop names or anything, but one day last week I lunched with James Watt and found him an eminently rational fellow. Then I came back to the office and found a great red-bound notebook awaiting me from the Wilderness

President Reagan to give Mr. Watt what President Carter gave Joe Califano, namely, the old heave-ho. Heaven alone knows what time and money went into this notebook from the Wilderness folks. Their compendium is verily a labor of loathing.

The secretary and his critics have formed a mutual denigration society based upon different perceptions and different policies. Mr. Watt perceives his foes as a bunch of impractical bird-watchers, indifferent to the interests of ordinary people, whose purpose is to preserve federal lands for the sole benefit of a backpacking elite. The environmentalists perceive the secretary as a monster whose purpose is to ravish the wilderness, pollute the rivers and leave no red-wood standing.

These are mistaken perceptions on both sides, but the policy differences are real. Mr. Watt, for example, wants to put a halt to the acquisition of new national parks. He thinks the available funds would be spent more prudently on repair and restoration of the park facilities we have now. His opponents, by contrast, want to continue land acquisitions. They contend that delay will result in both the loss of desirable park sites today and a much heavier expense later on. Both positions are plausible.

For a second example, Mr. Watt wants to open certain

New County Role

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — County governments in North Carolina and across the nation must accept a leadership role in providing proper services to citizens, the new president of the National Association of Counties believes.

J. Richard Conder of Richmond County in North Carolina's southern Piedmont area took the top office in the powerful nationwide organization at a meeting in Louisville last month, and immediately issued a call for his fellow county commissioners to accept their leadership responsibilities.

Time was, Conder recalled, when he was new to local politics. "When I entered politics almost 20 years ago, the commissioners used to meet like a social club. They'd pay the bills, chew the fat and go home.

"Today's commissioners are, for the most part, businessmen first, with the skills necessary to conduct large and growing responsibilities."

Major Changes
County governments, the oldest form of government in this country, have assumed a new role in modern times. "Most citizens are unaware of these changes. Most have no idea what counties do. In the last two decades counties have assumed a vast array of services formerly provided by cities.

"Counties have become the main providers of services," Conder told the delegates at Louisville.

Referring to his home county in North Carolina, he recalled that the local community enjoyed stable population and low unemployment for years. Modernization in the textile industry and Sunbelt growth have challenged that way of life. Population spurted 15 percent in 10 years. Along with the people came other problems: crime, soaring unemployment, need for education and social services.

Counties, with federal aid,

found themselves in the business of building water supply and sewer systems, parks and recreation facilities, hospitals, schools, creating industrial parks, forming police departments, providing building inspection services and a host of other activities not previously associated with county government. And, to help keep homefolks at home and meet the rising demand for jobs, aggressively recruiting industrial expansion.

Suddenly, Conder warned his listeners, "From a dust devil there grew a mighty wind that swept coast to coast, blowing a new administration into Washington and carrying with it the resounding message that the nation's citizens had clearly had enough government intervention in their lives."

Cutting

The mood is one of cutting government spending, government taxing, and government regulation. Now, counties must face the agonizing chore of making a list of priorities. "Which services do our citizens want to fund, which must be cut?" he pondered.

So many federal aid and state aid programs have come down to the counties complete with funds, but also with mandates that they be implemented, and with strict guidelines, rules and regulations on how they will be implemented.

"I cannot deny federal aid has helped Richmond. We have developed a water supply, created industrial parks, constructed an airport, and purchased a recreation facility all with federal help. Now most of this aid will be withdrawn," Conder said.

What must counties, those governments closest to the people and hardest hit by the trimming of federal and state budgets, do?

"We must be neither submissive nor silent, as we demand a meaningful place in the federal system... We will battle, not for ourselves, but for our people," Conder insisted.

Society. The society thinks he's a bum.

Mr. Watt, as the whole world must know by now, is the secretary of the Interior. We have come to know some controversial Cabinet members in recent years — Kissinger at State, Cohen in Welfare, Butz in Agriculture, McNamara in Defense — but I cannot recall a Cabinet member since the days of Franklin Delano Roosevelt who has stirred up the antagonism that Mr. Watt so manifestly has aroused.

It is truly remarkable. At the very mention of his name, the environmentalists succumb to the gurgles and sighs. A massive petition is circulating, calling upon

Strength For Today

Distinctions That Count

There are many differing conceptions of what constitutes "a bad man." One person might say that he is one who lies and steals. Another associates evil conduct with immorality and loose living. Some would peer deeper into the problems and declare that pride and avarice are the source of wickedness in men's hearts.

But a much better definition than any of these might be: a bad man is one who doesn't want to be better.

No matter how bad a man may be, if he has left within him the vestige of a desire to be better, there is one dim light shining on the dark, windswept road along which he travels. But if he has no desire to be better, then indeed he is hopeless.

This is what Jesus had in mind when he declared to the scribes and Pharisees that the publicans and sinners would enter the kingdom of heaven while many of the pious would be excluded. The only people morally hopeless are the self-satisfied.

Spelling Out How Money Spent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress by the dozens are spending their summer vacations on taxpayer-paid trips to beckoning destinations around the globe, from sun-drenched Bermuda to Fiji in the South Seas, from Paris to Hong Kong.

Officially, the travels are "fact-finding trips" or "congressional study missions." Many senators and House members resent it when someone calls such excursions junkets.

They say the United States' global responsibilities and Congress' expanded role in shaping foreign policy make it necessary for them to take advantage of every opportunity to escape Washington and broaden their first-hand knowledge about foreign leaders and cultures.

To help minimize accusations of junketing, some congressional committees issue announcements spelling out in detail the specific items of government business to be handled at various stops along a delegation's route.

For instance, the 18-day trip to New Zealand, Australia and Southeast Asia this month by House Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., and six other congressmen includes a brief stop in the tropical Fiji Islands. A committee press release was careful to point out that this stopover would be utilized "to discuss matters of mutual interest including Fijian participation in the Sinal peacekeeping force."

Fijian officials have, in fact, initiated an agreement to provide a 500-man infantry battalion for the U.S.-sponsored Sinal force.

A State Department official, who asked not to be identified, said the idea of discussing this accord was suggested to the House committee after the department learned that Zablocki's delegation planned a rest and refueling stop in Fiji.

Traveling with Zablocki are Reps. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich.; Paul Findley, R-Ill.; Larry Winn Jr., R-Kan.; Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Calif.; Joel Pritchard, R-Wash.; and Frank Annunzio, D-Ill.

A different public relations approach — saying as little as possible — has been adopted by the House Armed Services Committee regarding a week-long trip by Rep. Ken Kramer, R-Colo., and four other committee members to Bermuda and Panama.

Backlash Is Being Felt

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The antagonism by regular Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee against Rep. Kent Hance of Texas for his sponsorship of the Reagan tax program might keep Hance from a long-planned congressional junket to the Far East.

Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, described by colleagues as being in an uncharacteristically sour mood after his loss, at this writing refuses to sign the voucher authorizing financing of Hance's Far Eastern trip as a member of the Foreign Trade Subcommittee. "I've tried to talk Danny out of it," one Committee member told us. "But he may just never sign it."

Earlier, Rostenkowski led a unanimous vote of House Democratic members of the Senate-House Conference that dropped from the bill a House provision reducing the minimum capital gains holding period from one year to six months. The provision had wide popular support and was not criticized in House floor debate, but had a fatal flaw: Kent Hance originated it. Therefore, said Rostenkowski, it had to go.

Biaggi's Ploy
Although Rep. Mario Biaggi is deadly serious about challenging Gov. Hugh Carey of New York in next year's Democratic primary for governor, he defied party leadership in the House by secretly soliciting President Reagan's personal request for his support on the tax bill.

A few weeks before the bill came up for a vote, one of Reagan's senior aides received a telephone call from a Biaggi emissary who relayed the message: If the president calls Mario, you can have his vote. The call was made, and Biaggi surprised his colleagues by announcing his support for the president shortly before the bill came up.

A footnote: Carey, in unbelievably desperate shape according to his own polls, faces possible primary challenges from conservative Biaggi, liberal New York City Council President Carol Bellamy and liberal Lt. Gov. Mario Cuomo. Politicians generally doubt Cuomo would take the risk, but he has informed close friends he definitely will run.

Soviet Switch
Moscow's quiet switch of allegiance and arms aid from Iraq to Iraq in their low-grade war has given Iraq an estimated 4 to 1 military superiority over strife-torn Iran. Nevertheless, Iraq's president, Saddam Hussein, intends to bide his time, possibly on the theory that Iran is ripe for civil war.

The Soviet move away from the mullah-bossed revolutionary Iran was the result of Moscow's failure to make any headway in obtaining a strong political foothold among Tehran's factions. The Kremlin had hoped that a destabilized Iran would be an easy target, using the Communist Tudeh party as its base. But the Tudeh has been unable to expand its influence or its numbers.

A footnote: When ousted Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr was flown out of Tehran in an Iranian Air Force Boeing 707 by the former personal pilot of the late shah, that was interpreted by U.S. intelligence as revealing an absence of governmental switching.

Senate Party Switching
Senior Republicans in the Senate say privately a planned switch back to the Republican party by Democratic Sen. Ed Zorinsky of Nebraska was ruined by Nebraska Republican Party Chairman Ralph Knobel's harsh attack on the senator.

Zorinsky, the former Republican mayor of Omaha, switched to the Democrats before running for the Senate in 1976, but often votes with Republican senators. A move back home to his old party, colleagues in the Senate told us, was in the works when Knobel attacked him for "supporting Nicaraguan communists" in his vote for economic aid to Nicaragua, backed by President Reagan.

Zorinsky denies any present intention to switch parties, as does another possible switcher — Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr., of Virginia, who has remained on the Democratic side of the aisle since assuming an independent label in 1968. However, ranking GOP senators believe that with President Reagan's soaring popularity, the next few months offer the best chance ever to snare both Zorinsky and Byrd.

Congressman Abroad
Rep. Steve Solarz of New York, a liberal Democratic member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee with exceptionally close ties to Israel, was the subject of a confidential cable from the U.S. embassy in Guatemala that raised some diplomatic eyebrows.

The cable relayed that "Solarz asks that all posts left on his schedule," of a Latin American fact-finding trip "attempt to arrange meeting with Israeli ambassador in country or any other Israeli official able to meet him."

Solarz left Guatemala June 28 for Nicaragua, San Salvador, Costa Rica, Cuba and Mexico. There is, of course, nothing improper about a fact-finding congressman wanting to talk to foreign ambassadors stationed in the country he is visiting. But the monopoly on Israeli ambassadors amused U.S. diplomats.

To the Editor:

I have noted with interest some recent letters concerning highway safety and I want to add a few suggestions. (I realize that some of these may be considered "unworkable and unenforceable" — these answers are quite common nowadays.)

I agree that the speed limit on highway 43 (Charles Street) should be lowered to 35 between the Pirates Chest and Fast Fare. In addition, the limit should be lowered to 45 from the Fast Fare to the Bells Fork intersection (a very unusual intersection). It is comforting to know that some of the Charles Street intersections are being "watched very closely." Whoever is watching must have noticed by now that many drivers (of cars, trucks and motorcycles) are exceeding the present limit in anticipation of the 55 zone just around the bend. There are residences, businesses, etc. with many access points, so I strongly favor the lowering of the speed limit (and the enforcement of same.)

The so-called 264 by-pass really isn't much of a by-pass anymore; it is simply the least of several evils. The section between Elm and Memorial Drive has become a race track, made all the more hazardous because of literally hundreds of access points, many lumps in the pavement and the attitudes of many drivers who insist on speeding, lane-hopping, tail-gating, improper use of signals and other examples of reckless driving. Since this is in reality not much more than a multi-lane business thoroughfare, I suggest a speed limit of 35 (and enforcement of same) in this area. If some of the small towns in our area can slow highway traffic down to 20 or 25, surely we can manage to reduce ours to 35. It may inconvenience some, but it might possibly cut down on the game of Russian Roulette currently taking place on this congested stretch of highway.

Year's Top Meteor Show Will Reach Peak Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — The year's most spectacular meteor shower will be at its height tonight, when shooting stars will streak across the sky at the rate of almost one a minute.

The Perseid meteor shower occurs every year in August when the Earth crosses a comet's orbit, and frozen debris from the comet's head tumbles into the Earth's atmosphere.

The best time to watch the show will be during the early-morning hours Wednesday after the moon sets, but stargazers need not stay up that late to get a good view, according to Kenneth Franklin, astronomer at the American Museum of Natural History's Hayden Planetarium.

"The meteors will be visible almost anywhere in the sky, beginning about 10 p.m.," Franklin said. "The thing to do is to lie on your back and look above you. Be alert."

They will appear to come from the constellation Perseus, which will rise out of the northeast, Franklin said.

The material that causes the meteors is believed to have the consistency of cigar ash, and as it hits the Earth's upper atmosphere, about 80 miles high, it glows briefly and is destroyed.

There is little or no chance any of it will survive to hit the ground, Franklin said. Celestial objects that hit the ground — meteorites — are rocky chunks that usually come from the asteroid belt between Mars and Jupiter, Franklin said.

The debris from the comet flakes away from the comet's head every time the comet comes close to the sun. The comet's orbit has become littered with chunks of frozen gas that have flaked off during previous passes near the sun.

"Every time a comet comes close to the sun, the comet destroys itself in part," Franklin explained. "It's believed to be a frozen ball of gas, and the sun will heat it up."

The Perseid meteor shower is caused by debris from the comet Swift-Tuttle, which is expected to return here between 1982 and 1984.

The precise date of the comet's return is not known because careful measurements of its speed and its orbit were not made when it last appeared, in 1862, Franklin said.

Draft Lists To Be Posted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The names of young men who have registered for the draft will be posted in their communities in the next few days, Selective Service officials reported today.

The law requires that the names of registrants be posted in a public place, explained Brayton Harris, Selective Service deputy director.

Men are required to register with Selective Service within 30 days of their 18th birthdays. There is no military draft, but the registration is required so there will be a pool of eligible men in the event of a national emergency.

Harris said the lists of registrants born in 1962 and the first three months of 1963, who have registered as of June 1, are now in the hands of state selective service directors.

They will be posted in county court houses, city halls or other public places, with the decision up to the state director, Harris said.

The lists of registrants born in 1960 and 1961 are not yet complete and will be posted later, he said.

U.S. Could Use Neutron Weapons In 'Few Hours'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Neutron weapons stockpiled in the United States could be delivered to troops in Europe "only a few hours" after allies agreed to accept them in the event of a crisis, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says.

The United States, therefore, will not be penalized strategically by keeping the weapons at home in recognition of European "sensitivities" to having them deployed in their countries, Weinberger said Monday.

Weinberger, in a news conference and several television interviews Monday, defended the administration's decision last week to resume production of the weapon, which was halted by former President Carter in 1978 following an outcry of protests from NATO allies.

The weapon's "enhanced radiation warhead" is intended to kill the crews of massed tanks by penetrating their armored hulls with shafts of intense radiation.

The theory is that such warheads would kill the enemy in the immediate battlefield area but spare friendly troops and innocent civilians, as well as their structures, on the periphery of the battlefield.

The weapon's designers say the neutron warhead would release "substantially reduced blast and heat effects" and that the radiation would vanish in minutes.

Asked if the neutron weapon increases the chance of nuclear war, something the Europeans are known to fear, he replied: "No, I think it makes it much harder to launch a conventional war and thereby helps preserve the peace.

"The more deterrence we have ... the more ways in which we can be correctly perceived as being able to inflict unacceptable damage to any attacker, anywhere in the world, the more likely we are to maintain the peace," Weinberger said.

The Soviet Union called the decision the latest "in the campaign of silence, lies and deception which had long been used by the United States to cover up development work on this most inhuman variety of mass-destruction weapons."

The State Department dismissed Moscow's criticism as the "expected and standard propaganda line." Spokesman Alan Romberg said the decision to produce the weapon was prompted by the "unprecedented Soviet military buildup in recent years" and said it is designed to protect against the "undisputed superiority which the Soviets have established in armor."

Weinberger said the Soviets are upset because the neutron weapon "gives us the greatest deterrent against their kind of warfare, overwhelming masses of infantry and tanks."

He said the Soviets now have 45,000 tanks compared with the 11,000 NATO tanks in central Europe.

"This is the kind of imbalance that they have now produced in the central European front and it is essential that there be some effective defense weapon against it, all of which we hope will never have to be used," he said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the United States will consult European allies before sending any of the new weapons overseas but acknowledged their opinions were not sought before Reagan decided to resume production.

Speakes would not say whether the United States plans to eventually seek permission from allies to store the weapons in Europe.

a minimum of $10,000 property and $20,000 bodily. Commissioner Dixon commented: "I can understand the $10,000 for property damages as some of these houses aren't even worth that much, but I feel the other amount should stay at the set price. If an owner happened to fall and get hurt there would be high medical expenses and the chance of negligence, involving a potential payout of more than $20,000." Following discussion, board members voted to set property damage insurance at $10,000 and bodily at $100,000.

Other items presented for revision by Holland included transferral of final payment responsibilities to his company. In the past, final checks were jointly presented to property owners and contractors. Holland said this was not necessary and asked the commissioners to delete the stipulation that checks be made to property owners as well. He said home owners have ample opportunity to express their feelings on the completed work projects through a letter of satisfaction. He added that his company does inspect the homes while work is in progress and upon completion.

Also approved was Holland's final request that small change orders be left in the hands of his company with Town Manager Donald E. Russell's consent. Holland asked for leeway in the amount of 10 percent from the total amount allotted to repair a particular home.

On the recommendation of Commissioner Carl Speight, board members accepted lowest bids for street improvements on Willow Drive, Cedar Lane, and Pinewood North and South. Total assessment for street repairs was quoted at $42,735. Russell pointed out that improvements to First Street, in the amount of $2,245, are included in the above quote. "But, First Street repairs are the town's responsibility," he said.

Commissioner Brown recommended approval of an ordinance changing the wording of last year's Ayden Collard Festival ordinance to regulate the sale of concessions. "Annual Collard Festival" will be substituted in place of the year. Therefore, the only need for future changes will be if locations of festival activities are changed. Concessions will be allowed between Third and First streets on railroad property, and to include East and West avenues and town hall parking lot.

The final plat on Strawberry Banks Subdivision was approved following discussion on requested drainage ditch improvements at the development. A representative for the subdivision, Lindwood Stroud, said grass had been sowed in the area and straw and tar had been put down to stop erosion. He added that these improvements "had reduced the slope on the ditch and reduced the velocity of storm water run-off. It doesn't look like the same place," he said.

public lands for the discovery of critical minerals and the production of coal and oil. He observes that the United States now is compelled to import 22 of 36 minerals that are vital for both industry and defense. We remain heavily dependent upon the Middle East for oil. He argues that limited exploration will not destroy the beautiful West. The secretary's domain includes two billion acres of ocean bottom in the Outer Continental Shelf, of which only a minute fraction would be leased to the oil companies.

His opponents respond that some of the strategic minerals already are stockpiled to excess, that more acres of federal land already are available to oil companies than the companies can use, and that the risk of oil spills from drilling platforms presents a serious peril to California and the Gulf states. Neither position is irrational.

The problem, at bottom, is both political and personal. Mr. Watt is carrying out precisely the policies outlined for him by his boss, the president of the United States. The petition for Mr. Watt's removal is an exercise in futility if there ever was one. The secretary's position is fortified not only by the president's assurance but also by his own strong sense of self-assurance. Mr. Watt is an old hand at Interior. He knows where all the bureaucratic bones are buried. In recent years the environmentalists have enjoyed a series of sympathetic secretaries who could be handled like teddy bears. Mr. Watt is as cuddly as a porcupine.

Reading over "The Watt Book," I see that the Wilderness Society professes its own dedication to "balanced uses" of federal lands. Mr. Watt professes the same goal with equal fervor. But one man's balance is another man's bias. At a time of severe constraints on federal spending, when energy supplies remain uncertain, my own feeling is that Jim Watt's idea of balance is closer to the national interest. If that opinion puts me in the camp of the ogres, so be it.

Joe Laney, executive director, discussed the status of local urban renewal and Community Development projects. He said the sale of disposal sites is going slowly although there continues to be purchase interest in downtown property. A major sale involving property on Evans Street is anticipated in the near future, he added. Laney said the staff's acquisition activities are proceeding on schedule in Southside and negotiations on 12 parcels are continuing towards a Sept. 30 wind-up date.

 service program for the 1981-82 school year, board member Mrs. Terry Shank voiced concern about proper nutrition. "I realize we have to go this route because of financial reasons, but I'm seriously concerned. Whatever happened to the concept of good nutrition?" Ms. Tingle replied that nutrition was being stressed, with tasting parties to be given to children to encourage them to learn to like nutritional foods that they may not be particularly fond of.

Dr. Blinson emphasized that the necessity to increase meal prices "is in no way attributable to serving free and reduced meals. What is hurting us is that the federal government no longer is giving us reimbursement on paid lunches as they did in the past. There's simply no provision now for subsidizing paid lunches, and that makes a tremendous difference."

He added that concerns over this cut have been expressed to Senators East and Helms and to other legislators.

School fees adopted for the 1981-82 school year, with one exception, remain the same as fees charged in the past school year.

— Physical education, grades 8-12, $2.
 — Home economics, 8th grade exploratory, $2; grades 9-12, Home Economics, $4; grades 10-12, advanced courses, $7.50.

— Art, grades 8-12, per semester, $2.
 — Business education, grades 9-12, maximum per year for practice sets, $10.

Provisions relevant to school fees adopted included one of a waiver of fee policy for students whose family is financially unable to pay school fees and a provision to reimburse schools from the previous year's unencumbered fund balance to compensate for waiver of fee students.

 power) to Greenville; and finally remain as a Greenville Utilities customer, allowing Greenville to submit Winterville's load along with its own, and not participating in the power agency. Winterville is one of 36 municipalities that comprise Power Agency Three. The board took no action on the power agency options, pending a meeting with agency officials in Wilson Wednesday. In further business heard by the board, a hearing of the revised subdivision regulations was held and after no discussion was heard, the board approved the regulations. Mayor Walter Dail said the old police cars were sold at sealed bid auction with town receiving $1,810. Town Clerk Elwood Nobles, requested from the board permission to have Pitt County Data Processing print the 1981 tax bills. The board

Horne Is Elected To Board

Charles Horne Jr., director of Greenville Utilities, was recently elected to the board of directors of Electricities of North Carolina, an association of municipal electric systems. Horne was one of seven new members elected by the association's general membership during a two-day meeting at Pinehurst. Louisburg Mayor V. A. Peoples was elected president of the association, whose membership involves 67 of the state's municipalities that own and operate their own electric distribution systems.

Ralph Shaw, Electricities executive director, reported at the meeting that during the past 12 months, the association's activities in opposing requested increases in wholesale power rates that the cities pay have saved the municipalities represented some $20.08 million. Savings for the five-year period beginning with 1976 total $96.41 million, Shaw reported.

The statewide trade association, headquartered in Raleigh, was formed in 1965.

Contractor not to exceed in cost $7,307 was approved by the board. The contract is for additional equipment and wiring in the Rose High vocational department. Dr. Blinson explained that the request for this approval would "normally entail drawing up specifications to put out for competitive bids," and added that for this project, "it is a carry over from plans previously drawn up by the contractor."

He added that in effect, "the contract is for continuation of work already begun."

In personnel actions, the board approved the resignation of one teacher; the election of seven teachers; renewal of contracts for 13 teachers; and maternity leave for one teacher. Among the 13 renewals are the positions of the choral music teacher and the drama/speech teacher at Rose High, and an orchestra teacher on a shared basis.

Also included in this group are two half-time teachers in hospital teacher positions. Dr. Blinson emphasized that these two positions are being funded by state funds over and above the regular allotment, and that these two will also serve as regional teachers for hospitalized students from a 12 county area.

Board chairman Dr. Jon Tingelstad praised the concept of bringing teachers to hospitalized students, and said he was personally aware of the fine work performed by the one-half time teacher last year.

Rose Finally Breaks Musial's Hit Mark

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Pete Rose's long wait is finally over.

"I couldn't be happier for you," a gracious Musial said after coming out to the field at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium to congratulate Rose.

Rose's first game since he tied Musial's mark June 10. Rose, who was safe on an error and grounded out twice in his previous times at bat, said that before he went to the plate in the eighth inning he told his son, Petey, who was honorary Phillies bat boy for the night, "Watch me. I'm going to get a base hit."

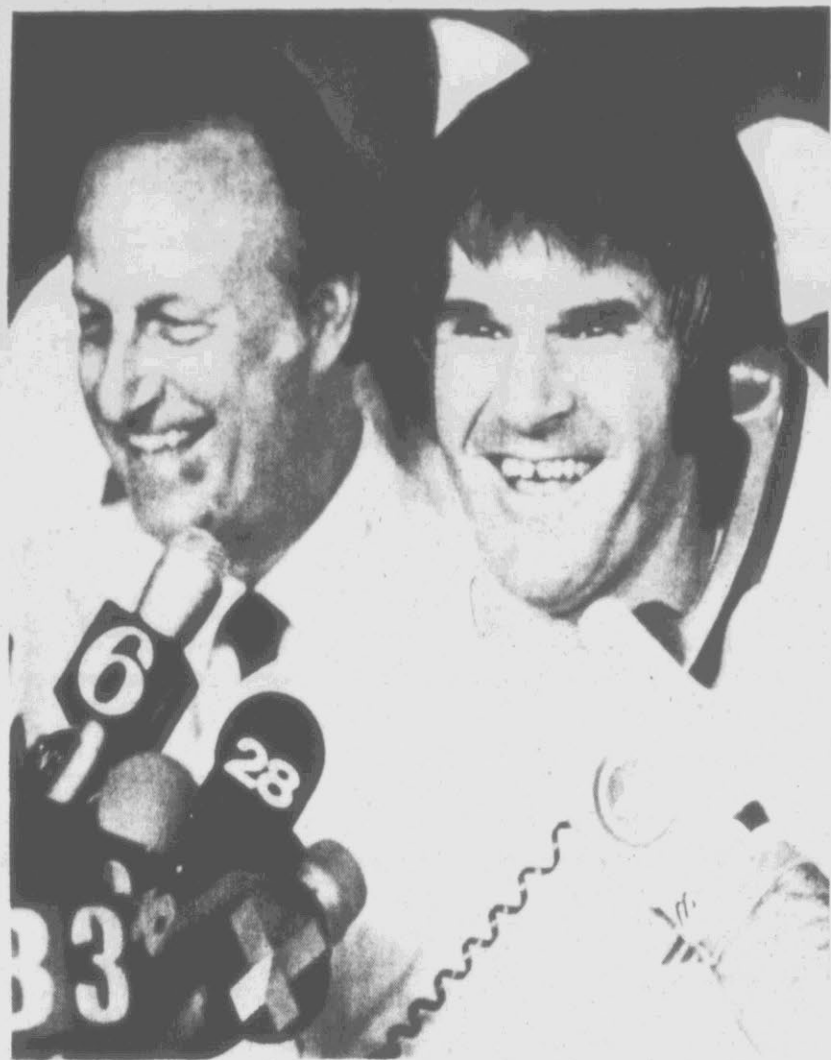

"I called up to congratulate you," said Reagan. "I think it's great. I used to be a sports announcer... before having the kind of job I have now. We had a long dry spell (in baseball) and you brought it back in style. Congratulations again."

In other National League games, the Atlanta Braves edged the San Diego Padres 3-2, the Montreal Expos beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1, the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the Cincinnati Reds 4-0, the New York Mets topped the Chicago Cubs 7-5 in 13 innings and the Houston Astros beat the San Francisco Giants 6-4.

Rose now trails just Ty Cobb, 4,191, and Hank Aaron, 3,709, in career hits.

Keith Hernandez's fifth home run of the season gave the Cardinals a 1-0 lead. The Phillies tied it in the bottom of the inning when Rose reached on an error by shortstop Garry Templeton, advanced to third on a two-out double by Mike Schmidt and scored on a wild pitch, but Ken Oberkfell's two-run double in the fourth put St. Louis ahead to stay.

George Hendrick, Sixto Lezcano and Gene Tenace hit the other homers for St. Louis.

Chat With The Chief
Philadelphia Phillies' Pete Rose talks on the telephone with President Reagan during a news conference after he broke Stan Musial's National League hit record with his 3,631st hit in the eighth inning as baseball resumed after its long strike last night. Musial, who attended the game in Philadelphia, is in the background. (AP Laserphoto)

After the game, Rose found himself waiting again — this time for the telephone operator to put through a call from President Reagan.

"Maybe the operators went on strike," joked Rose. "It's a good thing there isn't a missile on the way. Can you imagine, they can send a man to the moon but I can't talk to the president."

At least a half-dozen times he heard, "Mr. Rose, just a moment please."

"I waited 19 years for this, I guess I can wait a few more minutes," said Rose.

Finally, Reagan got through.

First Drills Held For Rookies; Kicker Hurt

A Staff Report
East Carolina's fall football drills began in earnest yesterday as nearly 90 newcomers — freshman and walk-ons — went through meetings and an afternoon practice. Two-a-day practices continue today.

"Right now we're trying to orient the kids to our working habits," ECU coach Ed Emory said. "We're putting extra stress on finding a punter and finding depth at quarterback, defensive back and running back."

So far, the only injury is to kicker Chuck Bushbeck. Bushbeck, a senior who transferred to ECU after Villanova dropped its football program this past spring, suffered a slight groin pull but the injury is not believed serious.

The varsity will check in

Wednesday and receive its equipment and room assignments. There will be a varsity dinner Wednesday night.

Thursday, the players will undergo strength tests. The tests will include the bench press, the hanging clean and the hip sled.

The defense is set to hit the weight room at 8 a.m. The offense will follow at 10 a.m.

East Carolina coach Ed Emory was expecting 180 to 200 players, both newcomers and varsity, not 180 to 200 newcomers as reported. About 90 newcomers reported to ECU this weekend to begin drills this week. Another 100 varsity players are expected on campus tomorrow.

PIRATE NOTEBOOK

Two Sign At Lenoir

KINSTON — Greenville Rose baseball players Kenny Barnes and Paul MacMillan have signed grant-in-aids at Lenoir Community College. Both will play the outfield while Barnes is also expected to pitch.

Barnes started in rightfield and MacMillan in centerfield this past season for the Ramblers. Barnes hit .390 this past season at Rose. He drove in 18 runs, scored 19 runs and had two home runs. MacMillan hit .340 with 14 RBIs, 19 runs and two home runs.

Barnes also started for the Pitt County American Legion team in centerfield. MacMillan was a partime starter for Pitt County until he injured his arm midway through the season and was forced to sit out the rest of the season.

Eighth Inning Homer Nips Coastal Plains

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Eastern North Carolina, represented by the Coastal Plain League's South All-Stars, lost out in an eight-inning battle with the defending national Senior Babe Ruth League champion Nashville last night in the opening round of the Southeastern Regionals.

Nashville won the game, 3-2, to knock Eastern North Carolina into the losers' bracket of the double elimination tournament.

The Coastal Plain South team is made up of players from Greenville, Winterville and Washington.

Scott Galloway went the distance, scattering seven hits, but one of them, a homer, provided to be the difference in the contest. Chris Carroll limited ENC to only four hits, with Galloway getting two of them.

Nashville scored first, getting a run in the sixth. Stamps singled, stole second and took third when Parker singled. Saunders then grounded out, scoring Stamps.

Nashville got a second run in the seventh. Hartman singled and scored when John Neal tripled.

Eastern N.C. rallied, however, in the bottom of the seventh, scoring twice to tie it up and force the extra inning. Dixon Page reached on an error and Sammy Tucker walked. Both moved up when a pickoff attempt was thrown away. Galloway then singled in both for the 2-2 deadlock.

It didn't last long, however, as Saunders cracked a homer with one down in the top of the eighth and Nashville held on to win.

Parker led the Nashville hitting with two.

Eastern North Carolina will now play Alabama at 8:30 (CDT) tonight, with the loser going home. Alabama lost to Western North Carolina in the first round.

Edwards Sets Title Defense

DURHAM — Demetrius "Oaktree" Edwards will defend his Professional Karate Association World Heavyweight kick boxing title when he takes on Anthony Elmore Wednesday night in Durham.

Edwards, a native of Ayden, takes a 33-2 record into the bout. Of those 33 wins, 22 have come on knock outs. Elmore is 10-0-0 with eight KOs.

The seven-round bout is the main event on a seven-match card which begins at 8 p.m. in the Durham Central Civic Center. Tickets are available at $8 in advance and $10 at the door.

Edwards' last title defense came on May 1 when he defeated former heavyweight champ Ross Scott (17-3-0, 15 KOs) at the Felt Forum, Madison Square Garden in New York.

Elmore is from Memphis, Tenn., and is presently being rated by the PKA. Officials predict he will be ranked either #4 or #5 in the world.

Among those also fighting Wednesday is Frank "The Tank" Knight, who, like Edwards, is a native of Ayden, Curtis Crandall and Jerry Parker, both of whom are from Greenville, and Tony Pridgen of Snow Hill.

Knight, 10-2-0 with five KOs, will take on Lacey King Jr., who is 5-3-0 with one knock out, in a five-round middleweight

Purolator Drops Racing Support

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Purolator, a name synonymous with stock car racing excellence the past decade, will pull out of the sport at the end of this season, according to a company official.

The move by the auto filter manufacturing company will end a run of successes achieved with the Wood Brothers Team of Stuart, Va. That association has produced 52 super-speedway victories in 196 starts with drivers like A.J. Foyt, Donnie Allison, David Pearson and, lately, Neil Bonnett.

"The company has decided to pool its money in TV advertising," Purolator director of racing operations Whit Collins said Monday from his Fayetteville office. "This decision has nothing to do with what the team has done this year."

This season the team is winless in 14 starts and plagued with bad luck.

Heels' Strength In '80 Now Weakness

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—The strength of the last year's North Carolina football team may be its most glaring weakness in 1981.

Backed by a solid, big-play defense, the Tar Heels were almost perfect in 1980. Only a brief indiscretion one Saturday in Norman, Okla., kept them from going undefeated.

That 41-7 loss to the Sooners knocked North Carolina out of the nation's top 10. But the Tar Heels charged back to win their remaining games and finish the season 11-1. Their final victory was a 16-7 win over Texas in the Bluebonnet Bowl, which pushed them back into the top 10 (No. 10) in the final poll of the season.

Many of the preseason pollsters have North Carolina back among the nation's elite again this season. But head coach Dick Crum isn't making any predictions.

Crum, in his fourth season at North Carolina, is relatively confident about the Tar Heel offense which is equipped with a veteran quarterback, an explosive running back and a solid line. But the defense has Crum worried. Last year's squad was 11th in the nation in total defense and eighth in scoring defense. But the unit lost six starters to graduation — two went in the first round of the NFL draft (linebacker Lawrence Taylor to New York and tackle Donnell Thompson to Baltimore).

"Obviously you're not going to replace that kind of experience immediately," Crum said. "I feel like we have some good young people, but again they're going to need time and experience."

"We have a lot of holes that need patching and that's getting a lot of attention. Basically our front has to be replaced."

With the exception of Taylor, the linebacking corps is intact with All-Atlantic Coast Conference picks Calvin Daniels and Darrell Nicholson leading the way. The latter also has All-America potential and was the team's leading tackler last season with 117 tackles, 75 on his own.

The offense is another story. "We're fortunate that we don't have to worry about a rookie quarterback this year," Crum said. "I'm always a little bit uneasy going into a season and not really being sure who that guy is that's going to be taking the snap."

Last year, Chuck Sharpe was knocked out with an injury in the second preseason practice and sophomore Rod Elkins had to take over. "Elkins had to come one and did and did a very fine job for us," Crum said. "Now we have a veteran there and I think that gives us some good stability to start the season with."

Elkins' experience also will alter the offense somewhat, Crum said, adding that the pass will be a more often used tool this season. Crum kept that to a minimum last year because of Elkins' inexperience, and the rushing game was so explosive (10th in the nation), it wasn't needed much. But Elkins still completed 81 of 160 passes for 1,002 yards and 11 touchdowns. And when Crum opened the offense up in the Bluebonnet Bowl the 6-foot-1, 200-pound Elkins connected on 11 of 18 passes for 121 yards.

But the run will still be an integral part of the offense with junior tailback Kelvin Bryant around. The 6-foot-2, 190-pounder split time with Amos Lawrence last year and still gained 1,039 yards, averaging 5.9 yards a carry.

The only players last year with more yards and better averages were South Carolina's George Rogers and Nebraska's Jarvis Redwine.

It is likely that Bryant, who runs the 100-yard dash in 9.2 seconds, will play more downs this season. But "that will depend on what our younger tailbacks do," Crum said.

"Kelvin will not play every snap, but if he's going to be splitting the time about 50-50 then one of the younger tailbacks is going to have to come on and do a very good job."

Graduation also left some holes in the offensive line but Crum feels they will be more than adequately filled by newcomers such as 6-foot-6, 300-pound Brian Blados at left tackle. "He (Blados) is probably one of the biggest offensive linemen I've ever been around," Crum said. "And he is very mobile for a guy his size."

There are questions about the Tar Heels' 1981 fate. Perhaps defensive coordinator Denny Marcini summed it up best.

"I know we can move the ball. The question is whether we can stop anyone."

John Sparks Yanks To 2-0 Win

By LOGAN HOBSON
UPI Sports Writer

Texas' Buddy Bell said it was like "hitting with a broomstick" as he and his teammates were neatly swept to a reopening day loss by New York Yankee lefthander Tommy John.

"Putting the bat on the ball after two months can be difficult," said Bell after Tommy John yielded just two hits in seven innings to lift the Yankees to a 2-0 victory over the Rangers, before 40,373 joyful fans. "If the pitcher puts it where he wants to, it's like hitting with a broomstick."

first half of the season to qualify for the preliminary playoff round, had only three hits off loser Danny Darwin, 7-5, and Steve Comer. But two of the hits were homers — by Graig Nettles and Oscar Gamble.

"Sometimes you get into a groove early," said John, 6-4. "I threw pretty well against Bradenton the other night and even though they're not like Texas, I was pleased with where I was throwing. I had good location."

Texas Manager Don Zimmer was also impressed. "Yes, the pitchers are ahead of the hitters and it will take about five days or a week," he said. "Tommy John pitched like there was no layoff."

In other AL games, Baltimore trimmed Kansas City, 3-2, Milwaukee downed Cleveland, 5-2, in 13 innings, Chicago trounced Boston, 7-1, Detroit edged Toronto, 4-3, Minnesota topped Oakland, 6-2, and Seattle clipped California, 3-2.

Orioles 3, Royals 2
In Baltimore, John Lowenstein singled off Renie Martin to score pinch-runner Cal Ripken Jr. in the 12th inning and lift the Orioles, before a crowd of 19,850.

Brewers 5, Indians 2
At Cleveland, Gorman Thomas, who singled home the first Milwaukee run in the first inning, singled home two more to cap a three-run 13th inning and lift the Brewers in a rain delayed game.

White Sox 7, Red Sox 1
Harold Baines knocked in three runs, including a two-run homer, and reliever Dennis Lamp hurled four shutout innings to pace Chicago before a crowd of 20,227 in Boston.

Winterville Ousted

KINSTON — Winterville's 9-12-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars lost out in the finals of the losers' bracket last night in the State Tournament at Kinston, but Greene County won its way into the championship finals, set for tonight.

Winterville beat Dare County "Green," 10-0, in the first of two games the team played yesterday. Mitch Phillips led the Winterville hitting with two.

Meanwhile, Greene County topped Person County, 2-1, in the winners' bracket semifinals.

Then, Person County eliminated Winterville, 14-11, in the next game. Phillips and Sherwood Wilder each had home runs to spark the Winterville effort.

Person County, with one loss, meets Greene County, unbeaten, in the finals of the tournament tonight at 6 p.m. Should Person win the first game, a second game would follow, with the winner taking the title.

Pair Take Putt Event

Johnny Carrow and Danny Pollard combined to win the Monday Nite Bestball tournament with a 30-under-par 78 last night at the local Putt Putt golf course.

Carrow, who Sunday won the medal play tournament, and Pollard fought off the challenge of three teams to capture the victory.

LaVern Mayo and Bobby Beacham finished second after defeating Robbie Ehrmann and Robert Beacham in a sudden death playoff. Both teams finished regulation play with 28-under-par 80s.

Steve Strickland and Jeff Taft were fourth at 81 followed by Eddie Robinson and Michael Garris at 86.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

Defense is the most difficult part of bridge. Even looking at all four hands, it is not easy to see how to defeat four spades on this hand. Have you spotted the winning line?

North-South did well to land in their 4-3 spade fit. Four spades is the only game that stands any chance of success.

You make the normal lead of the king of hearts, and partner signals encouragement with the eight. You continue with the queen, which wins, and a low heart. Declarer ruffs and leads the king of spades. You win the ace. How do you continue?

All that you can do is to congratulate declarer on making his game. Declarer wins any return (he ruffs a heart in his hand), fineses the ten of spades, draws the last trumps and claims the rest of the tricks.

So, you say, declarer was lucky to find spades 3-3 with the jack onside. Nevertheless, you made a critical mistake when you won his king of spades with the ace! Look what would have happened had you allowed declarer to hold the king of spades. Declarer must draw trumps, so he continues with a low spade. You play the jack and the queen wins. But now there is no way for declarer to make his game.

If declarer plays another trump, that exhausts trumps from all hands. You win and cash your last heart for a one-trick set. But declarer is no better off if he does not draw the last round of trumps. He can start to run his diamonds, but East will ruff the third round with his remaining trump, and you will still get your ace of trumps — down one again.

The auction is the key to your defense. You can tell from the bidding that South almost surely has a four-card spade suit. Therefore, your partner must have started with three trumps. If you keep control of the trump suit, declarer is forced to bow the knee.

States To Say How Money Spent

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Reagan administration cabinet official promised Gov. Jim Hunt Monday that the states will get more flexibility in administering programs such as Medicaid.

Hunt, at the National Governor's Association conference in Atlantic City, N.J., said states can better cope with federal budget cuts if they are given more authority to decide how federal money is spent.

"We're going to be very flexible on Medicaid," said Richard Schweiker, U.S. secretary of health and human services.

The three-day governors' meeting concludes today. Hunt was scheduled to address Democratic governors this morning on his job as chairman of a Democratic Party commission studying the presidential nominating process.

Hunt, chairman of the governors' Human Resources Committee, said the nation's governors have long supported the idea of block grants to the states and some federal budget cuts.

"Now the cuts have come through, deeper in many areas than we had hoped, and we are concerned with the impact that that's going to have," Hunt told Schweiker. "We would simply urge you to impress upon all your people that those cuts that have been made can be made as easy and with the least hurt for people if they will follow through now and give us the kind of administrative flexibility that we need."

The Reagan administration proposed a broad block grant program earlier this year, but Congress did not enact a program that gave the states as much decision-making power as the governors wanted. Schweiker told the governors the administration will push for an expanded block grant program in Congress.

The North Carolina Legislature will hold a special session in October to try to adjust the state budget to a loss of between $124 and $300 million in federal funds. State officials are still trying to determine the impact of the cuts.

Hunt said the administration could still help the states by streamlining and eliminating regulations covering state spending of federal money.

"We can be a lot more helpful to the people of our states if you will help us get rid of these costly, nit-picking regulations," Hunt told Schweiker.

Hunt appointed a committee of four governors, including himself, to work with the department on the problems of federal regulations.

Third Victim Dies In Hit-Run Accident

GOLDSBOPO, N.C. (AP) — A third girl died Monday after a weekend hit-and-run accident killed two other girls, authorities said.

A fourth girl injured when a truck plowed into a group of six children was listed in critical condition at Wayne Memorial Hospital.

A witness told police that the truck approached the group from behind, sped up, crossed the center line and struck the children, who were walking on the opposite shoulder of the road. The truck then sped away.

"It wasn't deliberate, in my opinion, but we're still investigating," Highway Patrol trooper Willie Young said. "We're working under the theory that the driver was possibly under the influence of drugs or alcohol, and that it was just driver error."

Troopers said they later found a truck believed involved in the accident about four miles from the scene, and were questioning a suspect in the case.

Those killed were identified as Latonya Nicholson, 7, Marilyn Manley, 16, and Melissa King, 12, who died Monday.

Melissa King, 17, remained in very critical condition, a hospital spokesman said.

Selisia King, sister of one of the injured, told troopers that a southbound pickup truck approached from the rear, swerved across the center line and ran into the children as they walked along the Old Mount Olive Highway about 9:55 p.m.

Considering The Alternatives

Iceland taps geothermal heat from geysers like this. Some U.S. cities use garbage to grow bacteria which produce natural gas. Brazil converts forests into methanol for cars. This week a UN conference in Nairobi, Kenya, on renewable energy will consider these and other energy alternatives. Today half the world's population depends on rapidly diminishing supplies of firewood as their major energy source. The conference will emphasize how governments can take advantage of renewable energy sources such as the wind, oceans, and sun. Although the U.S. is attending the conference, the Reagan Administration has pledged to reduce federal support for renewable energy sources.

DO YOU KNOW — About what percent of U.S. energy does solar power supply?
