New Government Course Set With Signing Of Tax, Budget Cuts

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan is reversing the course of government with the stroke of a pen by signing into law the largest tax and spending cuts in American history.

By placing his signature on the legislation today in an outdoor ceremony at his secluded mountaintop ranch, Reagan is achieving the No. 1 goal of his first six months in office.

The bills slash planned federal spending on domestic programs by an estimated $130.5 billion over the next three years and reduce individual and business income taxes by $749 billion through fiscal 1986 — the cure Reagan prescribed to revitalize the nation's economy.

Federal income tax rates will be cut 25 percent over 33 months, beginning Oct. 1, when the amount withheld from most workers' paychecks will drop about 5 percent.

Additional 10 percent reductions in withholding will be made next July and in July 1983.

Starting in 1985, personal tax rates, the standard deduction and the $1,000-per-person exemption will be adjusted each year to help offset inflation.

Seventy-five reporters, photographers and television cameramen were assembled for the signing ceremony at Reagan's 688-acre ranch in the Santa Ynez Mountains, his first public appearance since he began a four-week vacation last Thursday.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the president's top priority after he returns to the White House next month will be "to make the economic program work."

He also is promising further budget cuts and plans to meet next week with budget director David A. Stockman to begin plotting those reductions.

The legislation being signed today set a federal budget of about $700 billion for fiscal year 1982, $35.2 billion lower than the spending plan submitted by former President Carter before he left office in January.

It reduces spending for Social Security by $2.2 billion, mostly by eliminating the $122-a-month minimum benefit. Food stamps are cut $1.7 billion and employment training $4.6 billion.

It also reduces by $11.6 billion the government's authority to enter into contracts to build low-income subsidized housing.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, has called the Reagan budget "the most monumental and historic turnaround in fiscal policy that has ever occurred."

The legislation cutting taxes is equally staggering. Three-quarters of the cuts will go to individuals, mostly through rate reductions averaging about 25 percent at each income level.

For a typical family of four with one earner and a $20,000 income, the tax reduction will be about $25 this year, $228 in 1982, $371 in 1983 and $464 in 1984. By the time the bill is fully effective in 1984, the family's tax liability will have dropped to $1,549 from the current $2,013.

Business will get general tax relief totaling $152.8 billion through 1986. An additional $20.4 billion is earmarked as incentives to savings and $11.8 billion is tailored specifically for oil producers and royalty owners.

LP GAS CONTAINED AS TRUCK SLIDES IN DITCH — A liquid propane gas truck slid in a ditch near Farmville Wednesday night, causing the contents to escape by a damaged valve. According to the Pitt County Fire Marshall's office, the truck was owned by Par Gas of Farmville. The driver, who was identified as Pat Lanier of Greenville, was not reported injured when the truck turned over on its side as he was driving through a farm path toward tobacco barns off rural paved road 1200. LP gas escaped, causing a thick cloud around the truck as firemen arrived. The valve was quickly shut off to the broken line. Firemen and officials remained on the scene while wrecker crews removed the truck. There was no fire, but officials said there was potential for a major explosion if the gas had been ignited. Members of the Farmville Fire Department and Rescue Squad responded to the call assisted by Station House, Bell Arthur, Fountain, and Falkland Fire Departments (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

International Controllers Refuse To Call For World-Wide Support

By The Associated Press

The International Federation of Air Traffic Controllers Associations today decided against calling for world-wide action to support striking U.S. controllers.

The association's president, Harry Henschler, told reporters that President Reagan should reopen negotiations with the U.S. Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization in return for the international gesture.

He called on air controllers who are staging or planning job actions to call them off.

Henschler said after the federation's executive board ended its two-day meeting in Amsterdam that the board would recommend postponing any international steps in support of the U.S. controllers at least until Aug. 22.

Delegates of the 61 member organizations of the international federation will meet — "if required" — on that date in Amsterdam, according to a telegram from the four members of the executive board sent to Reagan.

"Your personal goodwill will help to bring the matter to a speedy, amicable solution and the federation urges that negotiations between both parties reopen immediately," the telegram said.

"The matter can be solved within 48 hours given the goodwill required by both sides."

Henschler said Portuguese controllers had agreed to call off their announced boycott of flights to and from the United States scheduled to start at midnight Sunday.

The tower in the Azores, part of Portugal, controls the key southern trans-Atlantic route.

Meanwhile, overnight flights to Europe went off close to schedule from New York after Canadian air controllers returned to work and officials on both sides of the Atlantic predicted a "normal schedule" today.

There were some delays Wednesday on flights from Europe to the United States and hundreds of would-be travelers spent the night sleeping where they could at London's Heathrow Airport, but the problems were expected to clear up quickly, U.S. Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said.

He said delays of only a half-hour were foreseen today.

The flight zone "has opened up again and it is our feeling that we will be getting things back to normal," said Gerald Fitzgerald, operations manager at Kennedy International Airport, the nation's busiest handler of international flights.

On a normal day, 120 jets depart over the North Atlantic from the airport.

Trans-Atlantic travel was thrown into havoc Monday and thousands of passengers were stranded when Canadian controllers refused to handle flights to or from the United States, claiming that a strike by American controllers had made the U.S. air traffic system unsafe.

Many flights were canceled and there were lengthy delays on others.

Lewis said domestic air service remained at about three-fourths of normal as the illegal strike by members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization over wages and working conditions entered its 11th day today.

The Canadian controllers agreed on Wednesday to end the boycott, in return for an inquiry into the safety question. U.S. authorities deny that the system is unsafe.

Jean-Luc Pepin, Canada's minister of transport, had begun actions that could have led to $5,000 fines, job suspensions and firings against the Canadian controllers. More than 25 controllers were suspended.

Lewis said domestic air service remained at about three-fourths of normal as the illegal strike by members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization over wages and working conditions entered its 11th day today.

Leaf Production Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eastern North Carolina's tobacco production for 1981 is expected to fall slightly but production of all types of tobacco is expected to total 1.97 billion pounds this year, a 10 percent increase over 1980, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Department spokesmen said the increase would be due largely to increased burley production.

Burley production was forecast at 711 million pounds in 1981, up 27 percent over last year's crop of 558 million pounds. It would be the largest burley production since 1963 if the figure is accurate and the yield per acre would be up 170 pounds from 1980.

North Carolina's burley production is expected to be just over 23 million pounds, up from 16.9 million last year. Production of type 12 flue-cured leaf, which is grown in the area covered by the Eastern North Carolina Belt, is predicted to be 354,750,000 pounds, down from 401,450,000 last year.

Flue-cured output is predicted to total 1.1 billion pounds, a 1 percent rise over the 1.09 billion pounds produced in 1980.

The Crop Reporting Board said the yield for flue-cured tobacco is estimated at 2,064 pounds per acre compared with last year's 1,968 pounds.

Estimated production of flue-cured tobacco by other belts and state, compared to last year's harvest:

Type 11, Old and Middle Belts — North Carolina, 266,000,000 pounds for 1981 and 245,335,000 last year; Virginia, 103,950,000 and 84,150,000.

Type 13, North Carolina Border and South Carolina Belt — North Carolina, 94,600,000 and 97,980,000; and South Carolina, 144,050,000 and 125,450,000.

Type 14, Georgia-Florida Belt — Alabama, no estimate this year and 826,000; Florida, 20,090,000 and 20,343,000; and Georgia, 113,950,000 and 110,550,000.

Iran Forms Third New Cabinet

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran formed its third post-shah government today and reported new arrests of more than 200 leftists in a crackdown that has at least 300 people before firing squads since late June.

The prime minister, Mohammad Javad Bahonar, named his cabinet before parliament and asked for a vote of confidence so his 22 ministers can take "effective strides towards God's satisfaction," the official news agency Pars said.

The new cabinet is dominated by the Islamic Republican party, the standard bearer of Iran's ruling fundamentalist Moslem clergy, observers said. The IRP in June engineered the ouster of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, now living in exile in Paris. The former prime minister, Mohammad Ali Rajai, was elected president July 24.

The cabinet included the deputy parliament speaker and IRP theoretician Ali Akbar Parvaresh, who became minister of education and training, and Habibollah Asgar-Oladi Mossalman, head of parliament's religious affairs committee who became minister of commerce.

The state minister for executive affairs, Behzad Nabavi, Foreign Minister Mir Hossein Musavi and Interior Minister Ayatollah Mohammad Reza Mahdavi Kani, retained the posts they held in the outgoing cabinet.

But the ministry of defense went to Col. Seyyed Musa Namjuy, who is Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's military affairs adviser on the nation's Supreme Defense Council.

In addition to Bahonar, Kani is the only clergyman in the new cabinet, which includes nine engineers and four holders of doctorates.

One engineer, Mohammad Gharazi, who also governs Khuzistan Province, was named oil minister. He replaces Mohammad Javad Bagher Tongdugyanin, who was captured by Iraqi troops after the Iran-Iraq war broke out.

In all, there are 14 new ministers and eight holdovers from Rajai's administration. The cabinet is the third since the Islamic revolution that toppled the late shah in 1979.

Tehran Radio said most of the people arrested this week were members of the Mujahedeen Khalq, a leftist guerrilla army that launched a campaign of assassination and bombing against Khomeini's regime after the ouster of Bani-Sadr on June 22.

The radio said most of the arrests were made in the central city of Isfahan and the northeastern city of Mashhad.

Controllers' Strike Could Help Airlines

NEW YORK (AP) — It has frustrated millions of travelers, but the air controllers strike may be a blessing in disguise for some airlines, analysts say.

The airlines are gaining big savings by dropping unprofitable routes, furloughing workers and sidelining fuel-wasting aircraft, thanks to a government order to cut their flights by an average 25 percent in the wake of the controllers' walkout. Before the strike, the streamlining was restricted by competitive pressures, but it became easier once 12,000 controllers walked off the job Aug. 3 in a contract dispute with the government.

"This situation does allow the airline industry to rectify some of the critical problems it has been facing, particularly on labor productivity and fuel consumption issues," said Julius Maldutis Jr., who follows the airline industry for the investment firm of Salomon Brothers.

Maldutis estimated that the industry would save about $2.1 billion in fuel expenses if it operated at about 80 percent of capacity for a full year. Sharp increases in jet fuel prices last year helped push the domestic airline industry into its deepest financial nosedive in history, with seven of the 10 biggest carriers reporting deficits for the year. Another round of steep price increases early this year added to the problems.

Despite the savings projected by analysts, most airline officials insist that the strike will do them more harm than good. And some said they may be forced to make deeper cuts.

Wall Street analysts, however, suggested that airline executives were bemoaning the strike for public relations purposes.

"What would you expect them to do? You don't tell anyone in any environment that something causing other people pain is making you money," said Eliot Fried Jr., an airline analyst at Shearson Loeb Rhoades, an investment firm.

Regional Development Institute Leaders Named

ECU News Bureau

R. Timothy Brinn, a senior staff member of East Carolina University's Regional Development Institute since 1970, has been named director of the institute, effective immediately.

Brinn succeeds Thomas W. Willis, who resigned the position in July.

Dr. Douglas C. Wilms, an associate professor in the ECU Department of Geography and Planning, has been appointed associate director and faculty liaison.

Established in 1964, RDI provides assistance and service in planning and development projects to public and private interests in 32 counties in eastern N.C.

With a goal of improving the economy and quality of life in the eastern region, RDI aids in preparation of state and federal applications, planning community improvement projects, and bringing technical and consultant services to private business of all types.

Brinn is a Hertford native whose career has involved economic development at all levels of government ranging from international to municipal.

A Duke University alumnus, Brinn has done additional study at East Carolina, George Washington and McGill Universities and in several special NATO and military programs. He recently earned an associate's degree in agricultural science and mechanization at Nash Technical Institute through attending evening classes.

From 1941 to 1964 Brinn served in the U.S. Navy, retiring with the rank of captain.

In 1970 Brinn joined the Regional Development Institute as economic development specialist, and was promoted to assistant director for projects in 1976.

Announcing the appointment, Donald Lemish, ECU's vice chancellor for Institutional Advancement and Planning, commented that Brinn's acceptance of the position "will assure the continuing public service of RDI to eastern North Carolina."

He is familiar with the region and he is dedicated to the mission of the institute," Lemish said.

Wilms, a St. Louis, Mo. native who joined the ECU faculty in 1971, has AB and MA degrees from the University of Missouri and the PhD degree from the University of Georgia.

His most recent research project is a study of peat mining in North Carolina and the possible use of peat as an alternative energy source.

Active in civic affairs, Wilms is vice president of the Greenville City Environmental Advisory Commission, is serving on various task forces of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce and chaired the Housing Subcommittee of the Greenville Mayor's Advisory Council.

As associate director of the ECU Regional Development Institute, Dr. Wilms' major responsibility will involve working with the ECU faculty in applied research projects designed to foster regional development in eastern N.C. He also will continue to teach on the Department of Geography and Planning.

"Dr. Wilms' appointment as associate director and faculty liaison fulfills a primary recommendation of the Regional Development Institute Faculty Advisory Committee," noted Vice Chancellor Lemish.

"The committee emphasized the need for more interaction and involvement of ECU faculty with RDI in applied research projects. As a geographer, Dr. Wilms will be an outstanding addition to the RDI staff."

Hardy, Tasteful Describe Miss Trigere & Her Clothes

PAULINE TRIGERE

By FRED FERGUSON
NEW YORK (UPI) — Roberta Peters, Nancy Kissinger, Polly Bergen, Happy Rockefeller, Ann (Mrs. Kirk) Douglas; they wear Trigeres.

"There are more, so many more," says Pauline Trigere, "but, the names, I cannot think." Pressed, she does rattle off a half dozen more famous women who wear her clothes. But she changes the subject to her beloved gardening.

"It is relaxing for the brain. It is where the ideas are really coming. The head is really free to think."

Now, though, she is at work. In stately grandeur, a tall, sleek model in black cocktail dress — sleeveless, deep décolletage, satin skirt with wide, petal-like pleats gathered at the knees, slit high front and back — crosses the showroom stage.

She strides away, getting barely a glance from our small group. Her magnetic boss is talking. A maid serves coffee.

"Oh no! Not madame. It's Miss Trigere. But call me Pauline."

Three racks of her gowns are drawn around the group. One appears outlandish or flamboyant. They are for the wearing, not the showing.

"They stand up very well. I say this without boasting. I believe there is a quality to the garment that is equal to any."

"This one wholesale is $695. It would be double retail. The fabric is hand-painted. It costs $70 a yard."

Typically, many Trigere dresses sell for over $1,000 retail. An evening gown may run $1,700 or more.

And no longer can the famous, or just wealthy, buy an original Trigere exclusively. There will be perhaps 25 of one, as many as 200 of some.

With her is her son and business partner, Jean-Pierre Radley — "He used to be my son. Now, he is like my brother. Pretty soon, he will be my father."

With pride, Radley takes from one rack a simple wool crepe dress he says retails for $1,000.

"It is last year's design. We showed it again this year. I can tell you that is unusual in this business. But it is typically Trigere."

A reissue by a name designer? Re-ticketed several times, he says. It has set something of a record — close to 700 sold.

It is, he notes, the only American fabric in the entire collection.

"We have fine fabrics in this country. But it is a matter of economics. I am buying, maybe, 105 yards at a time. American (textile) machines have a much larger appetite."

So, almost all of the costly fabrics are purchased abroad.

"This dress," Miss Trigere says, "it is the quality of design. It makes a woman look thin. A woman melts in it. This is a simple raspberry. But last year we made it mostly in black. A woman can wear it anywhere, the afternoon, the evening. When I wear that dress, there is no time that I'm not going to take an order for it.

"We do the sensible. We think these clothes have a certain classical durability. They do not go up and down like the stock market."

But it is a bittersweet problem, this durability. Her business is to sell dresses.

"When a woman tells me, 'I have been wearing one of your dresses for 10 years,' I tell her, 'I think it is time you bought another.'"

But she says, "At my showings, we play a game with our customers." Some of the models wear dresses from her collections of years long past. "They try to guess what year."

The designer clothes Trigere produces gross well over $4 million, Radley says. It is a relatively small business compared to the other fashion world of mass production. But that is before licensing.

From his office across the street, Bill Carone, a Chemical Bank vice president, handles the Trigere account and those of other top designers. As he puts it, "A limited amount of ladies are going out to buy $1,700 dresses. So the designer clothes are never going to be in the growth end of the business. That will come in licensing."

Pauline Trigere herself says she has been slow to license although she now does have a select group of licensees.

"She can do blouses or skirts with any manufacturer she wants. But she is so conscious of quality, she demands that out of all her licensees," Carone says. The bank, he says, takes a particular interest in such agreements by all of its designer accounts because "for most designers the bulk of income is from royalties from licensing and we have to look to that for cash flow."

As a result, it is today possible to buy "A Trigere Coat," as the label reads, in the $150 to $500 range or skirts and blouses under a "Trigere Sports" label, also in a lower price range. Both are produced by Abe Shrader, Corp. She has licensees for men's ties and beach bags, supervised by Lucie Porges, her associate of 30 years, and a fragrance line as well.

Even women with a very modest income but a knack for sewing can have a Trigere — a coat, dress or one of the capes for which she is famous. Four of her designs have been licensed through Simplicity Patterns. Radley says more are in the works.

Miss Porges designs some Trigeres but Miss Trigere still designs the majority of her collection herself. She cuts and drapes. She does not sketch.

"Certainly the things I do in life teach me what a woman today should look for," she says.

She rises early, makes business calls from home, is at her salon by 9:30 or 10 and almost nightly attends a dinner, the opera, the ballet, concerts, the opening of Broadway shows.

The woman is glamorous. "My age? Over 60. How's that?" According to Who's Who in America she was born Nov. 4, 1912, in Paris. She looks easily 15 years younger.

She wears a conservative two-piece, black and white check suit. The fit is superb. The cut is expensive. What else?

What has become her personal insignia — three gold, diamond-studded turtle pins — are at the lapel.

She has many reasons for this emblem: the 13 sections of the shell for luck; the hardness of the turtle, its durability, a word she favors; perhaps more symbolically, the three turtles she found in the pond when she first acquired her country home and named it La Tortue for them.

She has been a few minutes late. That is clearly unusual. "I am sorry. But you have the photographer. My hair was a mess. I should have it done. I did have to have it blown this morning."

The voice is throaty. The accent still slightly French. As Women's Wear Daily has put it, when she shows her collection, she addresses her audience "in an earthy rich woman-to-rich woman tone: 'This looks especially good with long pearls, which I'm sure you all have.'"

But she remembers a different life.

Daughter of Russian emigrant parents, she was born on Place Pigalle and grew up behind her father's Montmartre tailor shop. She earned pin money picking up scraps of cloth to avoid waste.

She married Lazar Radley, also a Russian emigrant tailor, and had two sons. In 1937, they came to New York en route to Chile but settled here instead and he opened a shop with her brother, Robert. Their marriage broke up in 1941.

"When I started, it was 1942. I was working for Hattie Carnegie. With the war, she closed everything. I was left with two small children. The only thing I could do was go into business."

"I sublet half of the loft she had used for $50 a month. She let me use the machines. We had three machines and a desk. I still have the desk right here."

"I didn't have $50. But my brother came in with me. After two months, the other tenant left and I had to take the whole loft at double the rent to keep it."

"In winter, they'd stop the heat at night. I remember that cement floor. We'd wrap newspaper around our knees and tie it with elastic to get down to cut and fit."

"The elevator stopped at 6. We had to walk down the 5 floors."

"The first time, I made 11 dresses. I didn't know about making patterns. We sold them at $39.75 each. Today they would be $395. We hung them on the embroidery machine because we didn't have a rack."

"Then my brother took them in a suitcase to get orders and went by bus. We couldn't afford a train or plane."

"I cut the first 100 dresses myself. Then we got a cutter part time. He would work for somebody else all day and come to us at 7 at night."

"With the war, you couldn't buy pins. We picked the pins off the floor at night and soaked them in alcohol to sterilize them so they could be used the next day."

Expresses Gratitude To Son's Other Mom

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: NO PROGRESS REPORTS seems to want to punish the very woman who provided her with a family. I'm an adoptive parent who will be forever grateful to the young unmarried mother who had the courage to bear and relinquish her infant son to us 13 years ago.

He's a very special, gifted boy, and every time he wins an award or just puts his arms around me, I think of his "other mom," and my heart breaks a little. I wish that she could know how wonderful he is, and how much joy he has brought us.

One day I'm sure our son will want to know his natural mother, and we will help him in his search. I want to put my arms around her, cry with her for all she's missed and say "thank you" for giving us this wonderful son.

DAVID'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Your generosity and understanding make you a special mother. However, not all adoptive parents had your good fortune. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: We adopted a 3-pound "preemie," lavished all the love and care we had to give, and wound up with an unloving, selfish girl who was interested only in what she could get from us. She's 35 now, and all the misery she's caused herself and us would fill a book. I wonder how many more out there have similar tales to tell?

HEARTBROKEN IN TUCSON

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Parents of children, natural-born or adopted, get no guarantee that their children will bring them joy instead of heartache. Most children are a mixture of both.

...

DEAR ABBY: We have four children. Our daughters are 4 and 17, and our sons are 23 and 10. As a 25th wedding anniversary gift, our eldest daughter is giving us a family portrait — something we have always wanted, but never had. By "family," we mean Mom, Pop and four kids.

Our eldest son is married, and when his wife heard that we were going to take a family portrait and exclude her, she became furious. Our son then sided with her and refused to be in the picture unless his wife was included. They have both stopped talking to us until this is resolved.

We explained that we would also take an "extended family" picture, which would include this complaining daughter-in-law as well as the two grandchildren. She wasn't satisfied. She wanted to be in the portrait with Mom, Pop and the four kids.

We can't seem to get together on this. Our son refuses to be in any picture unless his wife is in it too.

Should we just take the picture without this one son? Or include him and his wife?

FAMILY FEUD

DEAR FEUD: Include the complaining daughter-in-law in the family portrait and be done with it! It's better than having a 25th wedding anniversary portrait minus your eldest son. In years to come, when your kids recall the flap it caused, they'll all have a good laugh. (At least three of them will.)

...

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 10 years and have been in love with my husband for longer than that. We were childhood sweethearts and married young.

I know that since our marriage he has had affairs. Some have lasted longer than others, but even while he's seeing another woman, he continues to be very loving to me.

I have never given him a hard time about it because I love him with all my heart, and I will never let him go, or drive him away by nagging and complaining. Besides, we have a family.

He is a warm, gentle person with a lot of love to give. He is having another affair now. I can tell by the mileage on his car and the number of calls that hang up when I answer the phone.

Am I a prideless woman or a fool?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Neither. You have wisely answered the question: "Would I be better off with him — or without him?"

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby: 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hardy, Tasteful....

The union had a rule that they (its members) couldn't use pins off the floor because of the danger of blood poisoning."

Her designs met with success almost immediately. But the business did not make a great deal of money.

"We forgot a lot of things" in terms of costs when pricing the dresses. "We sold too cheap."

But by 1947, she was able to return to Paris for a visit. In 1949, she won the first of three Coty fashion critics' awards, leading to the industry's highest honor, a place in the Fashion Hall of Fame.

In 1952, they moved from their loft to the building which now houses many of the top fashion designers.

"Our dresses were selling. Money was coming in. And, by then, we were working with a contractor. And I had no money to pay him."

"You've got to pay me," he said. How could I? He said, "There's a new bank at the corner. Go to them."

"My brother was away selling. He called and said, 'Don't be ridiculous. Our (profit and loss) statement is terrible.'"

But she went anyway to the new Chemical Bank branch serving the garment district.

"It was hot as blazes but I got all dressed up and went. I saw Jim O'Hara. I said we needed $45,000, $50,000. They said I needed $75,000. 'We will give it to you but you will have to reimburse us.' I was in tears. They showed a trust in us I'm happy to say we deserved. I am proud that one day Jim O'Hara called and said, 'What's the matter? You don't ask for any more money?'"

Her brother, Robert, married and opened his own shop in California some years ago and her son, Jean-Pierre, an MIT graduate, came to work with her. Her other son, Philippe, teaches Russian languages and literature at the State University at Stony Brook, N.Y., and is the father of her only grandchild.

"She swears she can't read a balance sheet or an income statement," says Carone at the bank.

"We were there a month ago, Pauline, her accountant, Jean-Pierre and myself. She opens the income statement, goes down it like you wouldn't believe. She knew where every penny was."

"While she can make a dress, she can also read a balance sheet. She's on the board of the Oppenheimer Fund, you know. You've got to admire somebody like that."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

When you come right down to it, there are two kinds of people in this world: those who can tolerate a cricket in the bedroom at night and those who can't.

I won't tell you which group I'm in. I will only say it's a very revealing trait and offers an insight into the person's total personality.

Those who tolerate crickets at bedtime are the kind of people who can sit through "Aida" and not hear a person sitting behind them who is ripping a breath mint out of a wrapper at 82 decibels.

They're the kind of people who can go camping and be oblivious to a party across the lake where the thump-thump of a stereo playing weird music is carried by the winds to your campsite.

They're the insensitive kind of people who can sleep right through a crying baby at 3 a.m. and have the gall to say the next morning, "Why didn't you wake me? I'd have warmed the bottle."

They can play poker with the guys until 3 a.m. and then come home and tell you with a straight face they don't know if the Floyds are getting a divorce or not. Ha! Ha! You can't miss 'em. Whenever you see a mouse in the house in the fall, these are the flakes who will tell you, "It's only a field mouse and he's just as scared as you are" ... when you know in your heart the mouse is pregnant and is building a condo in your spices.

Oh, make no mistake, it takes a special breed of person who can lie in bed and hear a cricket's bloodcurdling screech heard in the closet, then the bathroom, then under the bed, and feel nothing.

That's it. These people don't feel. They don't acknowledge a dripping faucet, hook that isn't fastened above a zipper, a stamp put on a letter crooked, a cupboard door in the kitchen standing ajar.

They're just animals! They can put a book down in the middle of a page, never wash their hands after playing with the dog, don't brush after every meal, and call their mother on Mother's Day ... COLLECT!

Flannery O'Connor, for example, turned her desk away from an enticing window view, while Edna St. Vincent Millay had a one-room cabin in the woods where she retired to write her poetry, according to Mrs. Betts.

In 1842 Abraham Lincoln, then 33, married Mary Todd of Kentucky, after a stormy courtship.

A Reality To Face

The Reagan administration has marked an era of at least implied "get tough" policies with the Soviets.

A return to Cold War policies, however, is not inevitable and, indeed, may not occur if the Soviet leaders will accept some realities.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig, Jr. in a talk before the American Bar Association this week, made it clear the administration desires to improve relations with the Soviets. He also made it clear, however, that there must be an end to Soviet exploitation of local conflicts.

"Unless we can come to grips with this dimension of Soviet behavior, everything else in our bilateral relationship will be undermined, as we have seen repeatedly in the past," Haig said.

Surely the Soviets can't expect the United States to trade with them and provide technology they so badly need, when their puppet Cuba is spreading revolution in South America.

We have much to offer the Soviets in farm products, equipment and technology. It is to the mutual advantage of both nations to reduce tensions and military spending. Clearly, however that is dependent upon ending of Soviet expansionism.

More Than Meets Eye

Public announcements by national administration figures that President Reagan has approved production and stockpiling of neutron warheads appears an unnecessary exercise of cold war tactics.

The decision, as well as the actual production would have been just as well a hush-hush operation.

Nor do public statements on deployment-site planning appear logical at this point. It invites controversy within the country and amidst our allies; to say nothing of propagandizing and bluster by the Kremlin. Real deployment would depend on practicalities of the situation confronting front-line needs; they are a tactical tool, not a strategic one.

So the publicity play resembles more of an outward show of determination for overall policy rather than a hardnosed military gesture.

We've a feeling there's more to the neutron warhead publicity than meets the eye.

THIS AFTERNOON

Cities Vulnerable

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — There are certain characteristics in neighborhoods in urban areas which seem to make them more vulnerable to crime while an adjoining area remains relatively free of crime.

A team of research specialists from Research Triangle Institute has taken a close look at that phenomena in a group of city areas in Atlanta, and determined that there are certain physical land use developments which make a considerable difference.

The popular belief has been that racial and economic status of area inhabitant is the principal factor in higher crime rates.

Researchers found, however, that even low-income black neighborhoods can be relatively safe when they are buffered from surrounding high crime areas by "safe" boundaries, and occupied by more settled, single family homes.

Stephanie Greenberg is project leader for the study conducted for the Community Prevention Division of the National Institute of Justice. Dr. Greenberg made her report to directors of the Research Triangle Institute recently.

"Our study suggests that it would be wise for neighborhood crime control groups to take a look at their physical environment and assess the degree to which their neighborhood is accessible to outsiders," Dr. Greenberg writes in a review of the study published by the Institute.

Mixed land uses such as shopping and service centers adjacent to residential area is an increasingly popular approach to making inner city living more comfortable and to saving gas. But, the commercial areas draw more "outsiders" and may cause crime to increase.

Maintaining residential atmosphere, by confining commercial use to a few areas is suggested, and Dr. Greenberg adds that "neighborhoods should try to make sure their streets aren't widened into thoroughfares by the city, because this will increase the flow of traffic in and around the neighborhoods."

Outside traffic, it turns out, is the central ingredient to a high crime condition.

"We found, for example, that low crime neighborhoods were characterized by a higher percentage of residential properties, more single family homes, smaller streets rather than major thoroughfares, and individual blocks which were residential rather than having a mix of land uses," Dr. Greenberg observes.

Small streets, railway tracks, and industrial districts tend to form boundaries which make the area less accessible to outsiders. Major thoroughfares and commercial areas provide ready access to neighborhoods. That distinction was rated important in differentiating low and high crime areas.

There are 140 days left in the year.

Factors
"By comparison, high crime neighborhoods had fewer residential properties, fewer single-family homes, more major thoroughfares surrounding or cutting through them, more mixed land use, and somewhat more commercial activity, and more vacant land."

"One of the more important findings of the study is that the characteristics of neighborhood boundaries were very significant in differentiating between high and low crime neighborhoods," she reported.

It is a fair assumption that Mr. Carter himself had no passionate feelings on the matter of deboned beef. He did not campaign on the issue. But Mr. Carter brought to his administration Mrs. Carol Tucker Foreman to serve as assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services, and Mrs. Foreman, as events would prove, felt passionately indeed.

The degree to which residents of an area are on guard against crime and exercise territoriality by challenging outsiders seemed to have less to do with the crime rate. In fact, Dr. Greenberg notes, "...informal social control, rather than being a strategy for maintaining a low crime rate, actually is a response to living in a high crime area."

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, Aug. 13, the 225th day of 1981. There are 140 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 13, 1980 — one year ago — President Jimmy Carter was nominated by the Democratic Party to run for a second term.

On this date: In 1521, Spanish Conqueror Hernando Cortez captured Mexico City from the Aztec Indians.

Strength For Today

EDUCATION
We live in an age which attaches great importance to education. But two fallacies impede us in our thinking about education. The first is that education and information are the same; the second is that education is mainly the power to reason.

There is just enough truth in such positions to make them misleading. A well-educated person must, of course, be well informed. A well educated man must also be able to reason. But a well informed reasoner is not

It's Still Bologna

WASHINGTON — When next you hear that politicians are all alike, and there's not a dime's worth of difference among them, consider the humble hot dog and observe the salubrious salami. Because of Ronald Reagan, both the meat-processing industry and the meat-consuming public will soon be better off.

The story goes back some 35 years, to the time that machinery was invented for deboning fish. In the mid-'50s a machine came along for deboning poultry. Nobody objected to the products that emerged from this process. But four or five years ago, machinery was perfected for deboning beef, veal, pork and lamb, and at about the same time Jimmy Carter became president of the United States.

It is a fair assumption that Mr. Carter himself had no passionate feelings on the matter of deboned beef. He did not campaign on the issue. But Mr. Carter brought to his administration Mrs. Carol Tucker Foreman to serve as assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services, and Mrs. Foreman, as events would prove, felt passionately indeed.

The deboning process works this way: A beef carcass, for example, is first hand-trimmed to remove the meat. Then the remaining carcass is broken up and pushed under high pressure through equipment with pinpoint openings. The remaining meat passes through the openings — but then comes the problem: A small amount of finely powdered bone also passes through. Individual particles of the powder are almost microscopic — less than 18 1000th of an inch in size. Mrs. Foreman took umbrage at the powder.

The meat industry was eager to put its fine new machinery to use. The product that emerged from the pinpoint holes was in no way a contaminated or adulterated product; it could be used in sausage, hot dogs, bologna and other consumer products for which there is a continuing demand. Mrs. Foreman, a long-time consumer activist, had other ideas.

With these considerations in mind, it is very important that we make sure that our children get well balanced educations. To information and reason should be added moral purpose.

With these considerations in mind, it is very important that we make sure that our children get well balanced educations. To information and reason should be added moral purpose. Elisha Douglass

Thus in October 1977 she approved a proposed regulation agreeing that meat packers could use the deboned product, all right, but only if they packaged their hot dogs with a label reading "Hot Dogs," and in large type immediately ago there emerged from the department a proposed new regulation on the use of deboned meat products. This proposal fully informs the consumer on the calcium content. Nothing is relaxed in terms of particle size. A panel of experts has cleared the processed product of any danger to consumers. The newly authorized label will require only that buyers know that their salami, or whatever, contains "Mechanically Recovered Beef" or "Mechanically Deboned Pork."

JAS. J. KILPATRICK

thereunder, "Contains Tissue from Ground Bone." The packers were nonplussed. The Dragon Lady might as well have required a boxed notice warning buyers that they were likely to choke to death on jagged bones. Who would buy such hot dogs? To make a long story short, Mrs. Foreman relented slightly, and the final regulation demanded a less alarming label. Even so, other provisions of the regulation were so burdensome that the industry gave up. The fine new machinery has been idle ever since.

Came the Reagan landslide. Came a new secretary of agriculture. Farewell the Dragon Lady. And a few days ago there emerged from the department a proposed new regulation on the use of deboned meat products. This proposal fully informs the consumer on the calcium content. Nothing is relaxed in terms of particle size. A panel of experts has cleared the processed product of any danger to consumers. The newly authorized label will require only that buyers know that their salami, or whatever, contains "Mechanically Recovered Beef" or "Mechanically Deboned Pork."

Indeed, nearly a year after the 1980 Reagan landslide, we found no Democratic governor with any clear identification of their party's leadership. Equally elusive was a precise definition of party goals or programs with which to blunt the Reagan onslaught. In a party that since 1932 has stood staunchly for the efficacy of Big Government, particularly the federal Treasury, to solve all problems, this lack of counterstrategy betokens the party's present misery and bolsters Reaganism.

"The strategy," said Gov. Bob Graham of Florida, who will run for re-election next year, "is wait and see what happens to the economy under Reagan, but one thing is certain. We will not return to our old tradition of large-scale federal intervention."

Graham and other Sun Belt Democratic governors whose weight and influence in the Democratic Party were fattened in the 1980 census claim that even if Reagan succeeds in holding onto the allegiance of the decisive middle-income voter, the Democrats will not duplicate political history of the post-FDR years. The Republicans then became known as the party of negative reaction, doomed to years of impotence.

"The old liberal approach that more money, a few Ph.D.s and a lot of new programs will cure what ails the nation is gone in our era," South Carolina governor Richard W. Riley who also faces re-election next year, told us. "We Southerners have been aware of this for some time."

Sun Belt Democrats, never at home with Lyndon Johnson's Great Society and repelled by George McGovern's governmental panaceas, are moving hard to exploit within their party the current national mood that Reagan's stunning success has crystallized. North Carolina governor James B. Hunt Jr. is chairman of yet another of the party's now-routine Commissions to change the presidential nominating process. The Commission is certain to sharpen the focus of that process, vastly enlarging the power of elected party officials and carefully controlling minority interests.

But that does little for the party in its present wait-and-see predicament. Bolder than his colleagues, California governor Edmund G. Brown Jr., who is now running for the U.S. Senate, ridiculed the prevailing mood here that Reagan's prowess is to be feared by the Democrats. To the contrary, he told us in typically blunt terms; Reagan is riding a "temporary euphoria" that will soon dissolve in the political acid of high interest rates and a rising national debt that could touch $90 billion next year.

As occasionally in the past, however, Jerry Brown's view is more unique than universal. A closer reflection of the general opinion of the Democratic governors was a recent private remark to one of them by the former vice president and unblemished libel, Walter P. Mondale, who is planning to run for the presidential nomination in 1984. The Democrats, said Mondale, "must identify a new philosophy." But when the governor asked him what that might be, he said he was not yet ready to describe it.

Reagan Has Top Position

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. —

The political prowess of President Reagan dominated the National Governors' Conference here, a boon to Republican chief executives entirely unexpected six months ago but a brooding presence to the 27 Democrats, 22 of whom face re-election or retirement by next year.

Public debate swirled around traditional problems of federalism and block grants but the quiet talk in the suites of the Democratic governors overlooking the messy hodgepodge and fake glitter of Atlantic City's gaudy, new gambling casinos focussed on this question: how to deal with the stunning events of the past six months that have elevated Ronald Reagan and his economic revolution to unforeseen heights of popularity.

The failure of the Democrats to attempt any frontal assault on Ronald Reagan here was no fortuitous result of lingering presidential honeymoonitis. Rather, with a few conspicuous exceptions, it was motivated by fear and failure: fear that attacking Reagan and Reaganism would prove counterproductive with voters; failure of their party, groggy from defeat on Capitol Hill, to have come close to developing a national counterstrategy.

Indeed, nearly a year after the 1980 Reagan landslide, we found no Democratic governor with any clear identification of their party's leadership. Equally elusive was a precise definition of party goals or programs with which to blunt the Reagan onslaught. To the editor:

Poor Big Boy. Someone had shot him. Both front legs were hit. He was in a bad way.

Verna Stanley of Bethel called me and told me the bad news. Her grandson, Edward Jr. White, was a sad little boy. He loves Big Boy so much and it was a hard thing for him to accept. Neither Verna nor I could afford the cost of the veterinarian at that time. And Big Boy needed help real bad.

I called Betsy McLawhorn, who works with the Pitt County Humane Society. I told her of our problem and she said they might be able to help. Betsy made the necessary calls to Elizabeth Savage, Barbara Haddock, and Evelyn Beasley to see if they had the funds to help. They said they would help out as much as possible. Dr. Bateman was called and agreed to see Big Boy and tend to his wounds.

So with the help of the Humane Society and Dr. Bateman, Big Boy is recovering and little Edward Jr. White is a happy little boy. This is all made possible with the help and support from the local media and public contributions. And this makes you the real heroes and backbone of the Humane Society. We are thankful for the kindness sent our way by all.

So just a note to say Support the Humane Society. They help in so many ways and with your help, they could help maybe you some day — maybe to find your animal a home or find you a new pet, or maybe a case like ours.

Reagan Learns A Lesson

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

While two television networks broadcast his remarks live, President Reagan stood in the Rose Garden and told the nation's striking air traffic controllers that they would be fired if they did not return to work within 48 hours.

For dramatic effect, he read a paragraph from the oath that each had signed promising not to take part in a strike. But when the president's remarks were broadcast that evening on the television news shows, he was dismayed to find the oath had been left out of the reports.

"I didn't see it played much," Reagan recalled.

From that, Reagan learned a lesson. He told interviewers he wished he had left that segment out of his prepared remarks.

Rather, he said, he should have "kept the piece of the form that they have to sign in my pocket and dramatically brought it out and read it."

The photo opportunity has become a hallowed tradition in the White House, brought on whenever the president's news media advisers determine it would be to his advantage to have his picture taken.

As the appointed hour for the session nears, photographers and reporters, who are summoned to the Oval Office or Cabinet Room to catch any chit-chat loud enough to hear, gather at a door of the White House pressroom.

The more likely the event is to produce an important picture, or commentary by the president, the larger the horde and the greater the pushing and shoving that always accompanies it.

When a visitor to the Oval Office is from another country, the mob is doubled by foreign reporters and photographers, television camera crews and radio sound engineers.

Among those in the Oval Office were Richard V. Allen, the president's national security adviser, and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Both seemed amazed. As a second wave of photographers trampled into the Oval Office, Allen turned to Haig and asked: "You never let them into your office, do you?"

Haig shook his head and pronounced judgment on the entire event: "It's absurd."

White House aides are cracking down on reporters who try to ask questions during photo sessions.

When President Anwar Sadat of Egypt visited Reagan, reporters taking part in the photo session took the opportunity to ask about the hot weather and the air traffic controllers' strike.

At least three reporters were told that as far as the White House was concerned, they should be seen but not heard in such sessions. They were told they would be removed from future photo opportunities if they persisted in questioning Reagan.

A notice to the press was distributed stating that anyone who could not remain silent while the president posed for pictures with a visiting foreign leader should not take part.

Among the services provided to members of the White House is a repeat of the network television news programs at 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. each weekday so that they can see how the news was covered if they missed the original telecast the night before.

It is piped through the televisions in White House offices, courtesy of the White House Communications Agency, a military office. Recently, however, there was an addition to the schedule.

The White House News Summary, which gives synopses of the news shows and of major newspapers' reports, told staff members: "Immediately following the Network News, WHCA will play a tape of the Chamber of Commerce program from the 'It's Your Business' series."

Stiff Terms Ordered

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The longest prison terms in Kentucky history — over 1,600 years each — have been handed down against two men found guilty of a series of robberies last year.

Benjamin Spencer, 31, was sentenced Wednesday to 1,940 years and George T. Waldrige, 29, was sentenced to 1,620 years by Jefferson Circuit Judge George Kunzman. The terms will run consecutively.

Spencer's brother, Anthony, is to be sentenced next Tuesday. He pleaded guilty to charges in the robberies and testified against his brother and Waldrige. Prosecutors have recommended a 15-year sentence.

Mike Young, a spokesman for the state Department of Corrections, said no sentence ever imposed in Kentucky "even comes close."

Spencer will be eligible to be considered for parole in 10 years; Waldrige will be eligible in six years.

All three were found guilty of 12 counts of robbery, 12 counts of unlawful imprisonment and five counts of burglary. Waldrige and Benjamin Spencer were found to be persistent felony offenders.

According to testimony, they broke into five condominiums, tied up residents with telephone cords and threatened to shoot them if they didn't cooperate. More than $200,000 in jewelry and valuables were taken; between $60,000 and $80,000 has been recovered.

Rookie Officer Fired After Being Cleared In Shooting

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A rookie police officer has been fired for wounding two patrons of a grocery as they ran away from a robber, but has been cleared of wrongdoing in the shooting death of the fleeing market manager.

Friends of the manager and market patrons have launched a petition drive seeking manslaughter charges against the officer, but the prosecutor said he has no intention of filing criminal charges.

Police Chief Joe Casey fired Officer Joyce Faye Allen, 23, Wednesday. He said she violated police regulations on deadly force by wounding the customers who "werz not shot in self-defense, nor in the defense of another person."

However, he ruled the officer "fired to defend the life of her partner" when she shot store manager Harry Walden, 37, the first one to run out of Johnny's Sak-Ful market during the Aug. 1 robbery.

District Attorney General Thomas Shriver said he plans no criminal charges against the officer.

Don Stone, 41, a patron of the market, said a group he organized has collected 3,300 signatures on a petition calling for manslaughter charges. He said the group is "not going to stop" now that Ms. Allen has been fired, another demand of the petition signers.

"Chief Casey says she was justified in killing Harry, but not justified in shooting the other two boys. I can't understand that, and I don't think anybody else does either," said Charles Sloan, 43, an owner of the market.

On the night of the shootings, Ms. Allen and her partner, Officer Terry Coats, responded to a call from Walden saying a man had walked into the store and said he had been abducted, robbed and set free nearby. The man, James David Thaxton, 26, later was killed inside the store during the aborted holdup.

By the time the officers pulled up to the market, Casey said, Ms. Allen saw a man was holding up the store. Walden was killed as he fled. The two patrons were wounded moments later as they fled.

"Within seconds, a white male with long black hair ran out of the door of the market," Casey said. "He did not have his hands raised as he was crouched over running. He had the same physical characteristics as the person she observed in the market with the shotgun."

"We got her fired, but that's not doing the job on the killing," said Stone, who said he started the petitions because his two sons had left the market just 10 minutes before Walden was killed.

Walden was fleeing Billy Guy Anderson, 30, a prison release center fugitive whom police say was trying to rob the market.

Shriver said his office was preparing charges against Anderson in connection with the holdup attempt and the death of Thaxton.

Employment and Training

Natural Resources and Community Development Secretary Joseph W. Grimsley announced Tuesday that 41 of the positions are already vacant due to the hiring freeze imposed by Gov. Jim Hunt two years ago in anticipation of the need to reduce NRCD staff. But he added that 47 division employees will have to be terminated effective Sept. 30.

Last year funding for Comprehensive Employment Training Act programs administered by the division amounted to $111 million, but federal reductions have reduced the CETA funding to $58 million.

Signing Of Tax Bill Is Costly

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Taxpayers paid more than $3,800 to get the signature of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., on bills he opposed cutting income taxes and the federal budget.

Americans forked over at least another $136 Wednesday to send the bills from Washington to the West Coast so that President Reagan could sign them into law today while vacationing at his ranch near Santa Barbara.

The legislation was sent first by government Jetstar to Hyannis, Mass., where O'Neill was vacationing. The same plane then brought the bills back to Washington, where Vice President George Bush signed them Wednesday in his role as president of the Senate.

The round-trip to get O'Neill's signature took two hours and 25 minutes and, at a rate of $1,613 an hour for use of the plane, cost $3,871, according to a notice issued by White House officials here.

Richard Darman, deputy assistant to the president, brought the bills to California Wednesday via commercial airliner. That trip from Washington to Los Angeles cost $136, the standard government fare, according to the notice. Darman traveled via automobile from Los Angeles to Santa Barbara.

The final bills were not ready for signing when Congress began its recess earlier this month. The president left the capital on Aug. 6 for a four-week vacation.

WIND DAMAGE — Winds estimated at between 100 and 120 mph knocked 20 Southern Pacific freight cars off their tracks in a yard at Indio, Calif., late Wednesday. No one was injured in the storm, which also damaged telephone and electric lines and several mobile homes. (AP Laserphoto)

Stairway Falls, Injures 16

ELLINGTON, Conn. (AP) — A party marking two wedding anniversaries halted abruptly when a two-story stairway collapsed at the Ellington Ridge Country Club, injuring 16 people, authorities said.

Fifteen people were treated for minor injuries at Rockville General Hospital and released. Edmund Keating of Ellington was hospitalized in satisfactory condition with chest and abdominal injuries, nursing supervisor Christine Lunn said.

About 28 people were posing for a photograph on the wooden staircase and platform outside the club when it gave way shortly before 7 p.m. Wednesday, state police Trooper Robert Waitkus said.

"I ran out to the terrace and everyone was sprawled all over the place," said University of Connecticut football coach Walt Nadzak.

A spokesman for the country club declined comment. Ellington building inspectors were on the scene late Wednesday.

Waitkus said several people were on the platform and others were standing in pairs on the stairs when the structure buckled. Four ambulances from Ellington, Tolland, Somers and Vernon were sent to the scene.

Judges Disclose Wealth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Financial disclosure statements indicate that the 17 federal judges in North Carolina and South Carolina are a prosperous group, with three of them probably worth more than $1 million each.

The judges, like top administration officials and members of Congress, are required each year to list their investments, major debts and income in addition to their federal salaries. District court judges are paid $67,000 a year.

Although they are not required to list the specific value of each holding, the judges must place it within categories of price ranges. As a result, the judges' exact holdings are impossible to calculate.

The judges are not required to list their homes and mortgages or savings accounts that contain less than $5,000.

The three judges who are probably millionaires are all from South Carolina. They are G. Ross Anderson Jr. of Anderson, J. Robert Martin Jr. of Greenville and Charles Simon Jr. of Aiken.

The least prosperous of the judges is John Larkins of Trenton, N.C., who has retired to "senior status," meaning he may hold court if he wishes. His holdings in Pender County were worth $35,000 to $115,000 and earned him between $1,000 and $5,500 last year.

James McMillan of Charlotte filed one of the sparsest reports. His only outside income in 1980 was a $100 fee for a speech at Winthrop College and he said he spent $18.20 to get there. The only investment McMillan listed was an 88-acre farm in Robeson County that produced between $5,000 and $15,000 in income.

Rev. Brafford At Conference

Rev. Paul N. Brafford of Greenville recently returned from the 19th Quadrennial General Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church in Oklahoma City, where the denomination has its headquarters.

Approximately 1,200 clerical and lay delegates representing 40 conferences encompassing North America, and mission delegates from England, Africa, India, Hong Kong, Korea, the Philippines, Haiti, Central and South America elected a new General Superintendent, Rev. Leon Stewart.

The evangelism program budgeted $5,945,035 for overseas missions, and $1,351,492 for the U.S. Approximately $1,943,813 was given for education, supporting the denomination's six colleges and Bible schools in North America. Support for benevolent institutions — including homes for children the handicapped and the aged — amounted to $842,238.

Four Charged In Break-In

Greenville Police have arrested four persons as a result of a break-in at 1001 East Rocksprings Road Tuesday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Hertford Douglas Davis, 24 of Route 1, Bethel and James Jerome Davis, 21 of 606C West 14th St. were arrested yesterday on breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with the case.

Kenneth Harper Jr., 19 of Legion Street and Robin Meschelle Davis, 18 of Greenville were charged with possession of and receiving stolen property Tuesday after they allegedly attempted to sell a ring and bracelet taken from the dwelling, the chief noted.

The Panama Canal was formally opened in 1920.

Germans Mark Anniversary Of Communist-Built Berlin Wall

BERLIN (AP) — "Do you remember?" says the TV announcer's voice. Shadowy film clips show thin, elderly women leaping from second-story windows to the upstreched arms of a crowd below.

With such programs and with speeches, parades and memorial services, Germans both east and west of the Berlin Wall observed the 20th anniversary today of the communist barrier.

As they do every year, thousands of workers were to parade in East Berlin and hear a celebratory address by Communist Party chief Erich Honecker, who supervised the construction of the wall.

East German newspapers have been publishing daily interviews with officials hailing the wall as an "anti-fascist protection" that prevented war during a period of East-West tension.

In West Berlin, wreaths were to be placed at points along the whitewashed wall where black crosses memorialize 71 escaping East Germans who leaped to death from houses on the border or were shot by border guards.

In West Germany, government officials called for improved ties between the two nations despite recent setbacks, including the doubling last winter of fees for visitors to the East.

"To this day, the wall has not lost its inhumanity," said Egon Franke, the West German minister for inner-German relations, in a statement. "It remains a symbol for the division of Germany."

East German militiamen threw up a barbed-wire barrier between the Soviet occupation zone of Berlin and the French, British and American zones during the early morning hours of Aug. 13, 1961, to stem a flood of workers escaping from communist-ruled East Germany.

The year before, 150,000 had fled, and West Berlin was the easiest route. With Cold War tensions mounting, escapes were averaging 1,800 a day.

Feminists Say Reagan's Reneging On Promises

WASHINGTON (AP) — Feminists dismayed by an administration decision to take another look at a rule barring sex discrimination in school sports are accusing President Reagan of reneging on a campaign promise to uphold women's rights.

"It's a major attack on women and women's education programs," complained Janet Wells, of the Nation Coalition for Women and Girls in Education.

"During the campaign, President Reagan assured us all that he is for equal rights for women, just without the Equal Rights Amendment," said Hollie Knox, director of the Project on Equal Education Rights.

"He promised to enforce the statutes against sex discrimination. Now, here is the administration talking about eliminating some of the basic rights that women have: equal education rights and the right to equal employment treatment at education institutions."

The quick outcry was in response to Vice President George Bush's announcement Wednesday that Title IX of a 1972 antidiscrimination act will be reviewed with an eye toward changing what he called its vague requirements.

Bush said colleges and universities have found complying with Title IX to be administratively burdensome. He also contended that the schools were unhappy at being required to provide equal pay for male and female coaches and equal supplies, equipment and publicity between male and female teams.

However, supporters of Title IX said the vice president was misinformed on both points.

Title IX requires schools receiving federal aid to evaluate themselves and make sure their programs don't discriminate, said Margaret Kohn of the National Women's Law Center. Extra paperwork is required only when a school is found not to be complying with the law, she said.

And the rule does not require equal pay for male and female coaches unless they are doing comparable work and have the same qualifications and levels of experience, she said.

The regulations require schools to provide the same quality of equipment for sports in which both women and men participate and to treat athletes of both sexes in the same way.

For example, if male athletes are given single rooms on out-of-town trips, female athletes should have the same privilege.

One reason the women's groups are upset is that Title IX only now is beginning to be enforced although it has been on the books almost a decade. Regulations for implementing it had to be drafted and then there was a delay in enforcing them until a final policy interpretation was announced late in 1979.

Horse Theft

Greenville Police today were looking for the person or persons who stole "Buddy Boy" during the night from his 309 Airport Rd. home.

In the "Old West" whoever was caught with the 9-year-old gelding would have been hanged. Today, horse thieves face a possible 10-year felony prison term.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the 13½ hands high chestnut pony was taken from his lot and loaded onto a truck sometime between 8 p.m. yesterday and 7 a.m. today.

However, "Buddy Boy" apparently escaped after being driven away. The chief said "Buddy Boy" was found about 9:30 a.m. running loose about a mile from his home.

Wall Of Shame

Twenty years ago today Berliners awoke to discover a wall dividing their city. Although the Soviet Union had taken over East Germany and East Berlin after World War Two, travel to the West had been largely unrestricted until August 13, 1961. During that time, nearly three million East Germans had fled their communist government for greater freedom in the West. To stop these losses, East Germany threatened to shoot anyone trying to cross its new cement and barbed wire barricade and to punish family members of defectors left behind. Still, thousands of East Germans continued to seek freedom. Many died trying to tunnel under, crash through, or even pole vault or balloon over Berlin's "Wall of Shame."

Religion Barrier Dropped

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The American Bar Association has amended its standard of accreditation by letting church-supported law schools discriminate on the basis of religion.

The controversial amendment appeared to fail on a voice vote, but on a standing vote at the ABA House of Delegates, counted by tellers, it passed 147-127.

The House then granted accreditation for Oral Roberts University's O.W. Coburn School of Law in Tulsa, Okla., which opened in 1979.

The school previously was denied approval because it required students to swear an oath of religious belief, pledging to follow the example of Jesus Christ. Faculty members also must support and exemplify the code, and hiring includes tests of religious belief.

Accreditation is a serious matter because graduates of law schools which do not have ABA approval cannot even take the bar examination to be licensed as a lawyer in most states.

The university sued the ABA in U.S. District Court. The judge issued an injunction forbidding the ABA to deny provisional accreditation until after the House of Delegates decides the issue.

At a meeting last month, the ABA accreditation committee found the law school to be in "substantial compliance" with all standards except those under the standard forbidding discrimination on the ground of race, color, religion, national origin or sex.

A new standard was drawn up by an ABA committee which waters down the old anti-discrimination clause by adding:

"Nothing herein shall be construed to prevent a law school from having a religious affiliation and purpose and adopting policies of admission and employment that directly relate to such affiliation and purpose so long as notice of such policies has been provided to applicants, students, faculty and employees."

Dean Gordon Schiber of the McGeorge School of Law of the University of the Pacific, chairman of the committee, said the exception was based on the First Amendment protection of religious freedom.

Attorney Cites Kennedy Threat

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles District Attorney John Van De Kamp today asked the state to revoke Sirhan Sirhan's scheduled 1984 parole, saying the convicted assassin of Robert Kennedy had made threats against his victim's brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Van de Kamp filed a 235-page petition asking the state Board of Prison Terms seeking to rescind Sirhan's release from Soledad state prison, scheduled for Sept. 1, 1984.

Van de Kamp also described alleged threats by Sirhan to kill a prison dentist, one of his former lawyers and writer Robert Kaiser because of Kaiser's criticism of him in radio and television interviews.

He said Sirhan had also told other inmates about plans to steal nuclear materials to assist Middle East terrorists after his release from prison.

The prosecutor said the threat against Edward Kennedy was made in a conversation with a fellow inmate, Eugene Wilson, in the Soledad exercise yard about Edward Kennedy's 1980 campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Van de Kamp said chairman Ray Brown of the Board of Prison Terms promised him a thorough review on his request to rescind Sirhan's scheduled parole, and that he expected a preliminary decision in about 60 days.

Sirhan was originally sentenced to death, but that sentence was overturned when the death penalty statute then in effect in California was overturned in 1972 by the state Supreme Court.

Schools' Car Policy Set

The Pitt County Board of Education voted Monday to prohibit county employees from using county vehicles overnight, except for the supervisor of transportation, bus mechanics, wrecker drivers, and supervisors of maintenance and critical service areas.

The policy adopted by the board includes the following regulations:
 — As of August 17, 1981 no county employees are authorized to drive county vehicles to and from work and only then by virtue of their being on call any hour of the day or night.

— Administrative personnel (superintendents and assistant superintendents) have the option to drive a county vehicle and reimbursing the board at a rate to be determined.

— Those administrative personnel who may not opt to drive a county vehicle and other employees will be reimbursed at 25 cents per mile when required to attend meetings at night.

— County vehicles may not be used at lunchtime unless directly related to the job.

— The supervisor of transportation, bus mechanics and wrecker driver shall be allowed to maintain county vehicles overnight with no reimbursement required during the school year only.

— The supervisor of maintenance and other critical service areas (electrical, plumbing and air conditioning) personnel will be allowed to maintain county vehicles overnight with no reimbursement required.

— Driver training vehicles may not be driven home and are to be left on the campus overnight or in the county garage.

— Other than county vehicles assigned to administrative personnel and to certain other personnel who have a need to store a large amount of materials in the county vehicles, then cars shall be used to form a motor pool. Detailed plans for joint use, maintenance, etc. will be provided for in order to insure availability at a minimum cost.

— Dollar allotments will be made to the various administrators who then must sign approval for out-of-town trips and including overnight accommodations. The school finance officer must then approve items regarding the availability and amount of funds to cover trip and accommodations.

— County vehicles will be left on the county office building grounds providing there is adequate space during the day for personal cars and provided that the county cars are secure. Otherwise, the county bus garage will be used for this purpose.

— In July, 1982 and after a study of the 1981-82 records, a determination will be made about the number of county vehicles needed with the oldest county vehicles to be sold.

— Personnel attending special school events which might normally draw a number of people will leave from the central office using one county vehicle rather than several.

Parents Say New Law Against Child Snatching Not Strong Enough

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Eunice Mumford says the police would have shown more concern if her purse had been stolen — instead of her four children.
Mrs. Mumford was granted custody of the children in her divorce settlement, but she said police treated their disappearance as a "domestic squabble" because they had been snatched by their father, her ex-husband.
The American Bar Association says 100,000 children are snatched from their mothers or fathers each year by ex-spouses who refuse to abide by legal custody orders. Only 10 percent of the children are ever returned to the parent who was granted legal custody, the ABA estimates.

before the state can file felony charges.
"There's not a lot you can do if you're dealing with someone who doesn't have any roots, any close ties to anywhere," Conway said. "It's awfully easy to take a small child and get on Greyhound and say 'bye. How are you going to find them?"
John Warren, 29, a San Antonio who works for the state welfare department, said he paid $20,000 to have a lawyer and private detective help him gain physical custody of his 5-year-old daughter.

Warren obtained a "writ of attachment" for the arrest of his ex-wife and return of his child, but he said no law enforcement agency would help him find her.
"Everybody has a lot of sympathy for you, but nobody will enforce the law," Warren said after seeking help from police, the district attorney's office, the Dallas court that granted him custody, the sheriff's department in Corpus Christi and the FBI.
Warren won custody of his daughter last Dec. 8, but didn't see the child again until June, when his ex-wife voluntarily surrendered her to him in front of a Dallas church.

"She told me she gave up, that she couldn't run any more, that she didn't have any money," Warren said.
Mrs. Mumford said she hired a lawyer in California and the police went along in an unofficial capacity when she removed her four children from school and her ex-husband's home a year after she gained custody.
"It's just a helpless situation," she said. "I couldn't believe something like this could happen and the law wouldn't help me and protect me. The children are the real victims of this. The kids love their father and their mother. They don't want to be pulled between one and the other."

Craig Hatchett, head of the Parent Locator Service in Austin, said it's difficult for his office to enforce the new federal law.
Hatchett said people who use the service to locate their children will be charged a fee to cover the cost of manpower and time. He said he's not sure how far the state can go to validate custody orders, and noted that in some cases both parents have been awarded custody — in different states.

"The Parent Locator Service is not worth very much, anyway," Warren said. "It's very unsuccessful in finding even fathers who don't pay child support."

If an adult snatched any child not his or her own, it would be a violation of the federal kidnapping law and the FBI would help track the culprit down.
But most officials agree that law enforcement agencies treat child snatchings as family quarrels, reluctant to spend time, resources and taxpayers' money to help distraught parents track down and seize custody of their children.

But as one of his last acts in office, former president Jimmy Carter signed a child-snatching law that, for the first time, put the federal government on record as frowning on the phenomenon of child snatching.
The law, which took effect July 1, does three things:
—Standardizes child custody orders throughout the 50 states.
—Allows the federal Parent Locator Service, originally aimed at locating parents who skip out on child support payments, to find child snatchers as well. The service is part of the Office of Child Support Enforcement, operated by the Social Security Administration.
—Empowers the FBI to handle arrest warrants which charge unlawful flight to avoid prosecution in such cases.

Mrs. Mumford, who lives in Austin, said the law still leaves parents mostly to their own devices to track down their children and re-take custody.
"It doesn't have much teeth," she said of the law. "Even if the Parent Locator Service can assist these people, there's nothing they can do as far as enforcement."

Mrs. Mumford was luckier than most. Using mostly her own resources, she found her children in California and regained custody. She had searched for a year.
"I found in my own experience that it would have been much easier (to get help from the police) if my ex-husband had taken my car — much easier," she said.
Mrs. Mumford, who works for the state Department of Human Resources, is Texas coordinator for Children's Rights Inc., a Washington, D.C.-based organization made up of parents whose children were snatched.

The new law empowers the FBI to act when state felony warrants are issued, but only six states, including Texas, have felony child-snatching laws, and even in those cases, local prosecutors are often reluctant to act.
Charles Conway, first Assistant District Attorney in San Antonio, explained that it's up to the complaining parent to find the missing child, and prove that the ex-spouse has taken custody,

Land Company To Pay Penalty

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Mississippi-based marketing company has agreed to pay a $60,000 penalty and do no business in North Carolina for one year due to accusations by the state Justice Department that it conducted deceptive land sales promotions.
Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said today that the agreement was reached in a "confession of judgment" signed by Direct Mail Specialists Inc. of Gautier, Miss.
The Justice Department said the penalty was the largest of its kind ever imposed in a North Carolina consumer protection matter. The money goes to the state treasury.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off .86 at 944.35. Gainers held a very small edge on losers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Merck dropped 1/4 to 87 1/2. The company said it expected its third quarter earnings to show a decline because of the continuing slide of most foreign currencies against the dollar.

The NYSE's composite index rose .03 to 77.45. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .19 at 378.15. Volume on the Big Board came to 18.37 million shares at noontime, against 24.44 million at the same point Wednesday.

China Presents Defector Reward

PEKING (AP) — The Taiwanese air force major who flew his U.S.-made F-5F jet fighter to mainland China has been given a $43,000 reward and a job in China's air force, Peking Radio reported.

"I certainly will live up to the expectations and trust placed in me by the motherland and people," said Huang Che Cheng, who landed in Fuzhou province Saturday. The Chinese say the 29-year-old pilot defected. But Taiwan military officials say Huang was forced to land because the plane ran low on fuel.

Gunboat Fired On

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A Salvadoran and two Honduran gunboats fired on a Nicaraguan gunboat in the Gulf of Fonseca, slightly damaging the Nicaraguan craft, a Nicaraguan spokesman said. There was no comment from Honduras or El Salvador.

Carr Comes And Goes At Colt Training Camp

By The Associated Press
Defensive backs may be used to Roger Carr's "now-you-see-me, now-you-don't" routine. Now the Baltimore Colts are facing that very problem in the form of a contract dispute.

The veteran Colt returned to the National Football League team's Towson, Md., training camp Wednesday, and disappeared almost as quickly.

Carr was to have signed a multi-year contract last week. But a snag developed in his negotiations with Colts' General Manager Dick Szymanski and the eight-year pro from Louisiana Tech walked out Tuesday. His return Wednesday caught everybody by surprise.

Assistant General Manager Ernie Accorsi hurried from the practice field at Goucher College to the dormitory where a temporary team office has been set up. But by the time he arrived, Carr was gone.

Szymanski added, "Roger will be back when he's back and I don't want to say anymore about it. Roger is Roger and it's up to him to come back."

Coach Mike McCormack, who said he had talked to Carr Wednesday by telephone, was more optimistic.

"Roger says he wants to come back, and I'd love to have him back. I think Roger will be back very soon."

Attempts to reach Carr for comment were unsuccessful.

Carr, who caught a touchdown in the Colts' exhibition loss to New Orleans last Saturday, was Baltimore's leading receiver last season with 61 receptions, including five TDs.

Elsewhere, Dallas General Manager Tex Schramm denied reports that wide receiver John Jefferson of the San Diego Chargers might be traded to the Cowboys.

"We've had no conversations whatsoever," said Schramm.

Jefferson, the only receiver to surpass 1,000 yards in each of his first three seasons, is seeking to renegotiate the final three years on his contract with the Chargers.

The Philadelphia Eagles received bad news when it was disclosed that All-Pro linebacker Bill Bergey's left knee is acting up again.

Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil said Bergey's knee, which was operated on in 1979, will be examined by team physician Dr. Vincent DiStefano.

"Right now, Bill isn't ready to play football and he knows it," said Vermeil.

In other moves, the Los Angeles Rams placed four players on waivers, including veteran guard Greg Horton; The Chargers announced the retirement of former All-Conference cornerback Nate Wright; Denver Broncos linebacker Bob Swenson ended his holdout and signed a new contract, while New York Jets and Stan Blinks announced they had reached an agreement to extend to middle linebacker's contract, which was to end after the 1982 season.

New Look At Title IX

WASHINGTON (AP) — "He promised to enforce the statutes against sex discrimination. Now, here is the administration talking about eliminating some of the basic rights that women have: equal education rights and the right to equal employment treatment at education institutions."

The quick outcry was in response to Vice President George Bush's announcement Wednesday that Title IX of a 1972 antidiscrimination act will be reviewed with an eye toward changing what he called its vague requirements.

Bush said colleges and universities have found complying with Title IX to be administratively burdensome. He also contended that the schools were unhappy at being required to provide equal pay for male and female coaches and equal supplies, equipment and publicity between male and female teams.

However, supporters of Title IX said the vice president was misinformed on both points.

Title IX requires schools receiving federal aid to evaluate themselves and make sure their programs don't discriminate, said Margaret Kohn of the National Women's Law Center. Extra paperwork is required only when a school is found not to be complying with the law, she said.

And the rule does not require equal pay for male and female coaches unless they are doing comparable work and have the same qualifications and levels of experience, she said.

The regulations require schools to provide the same quality of equipment for sports in which both women and men participate and to treat athletes of both sexes in the same way.

For example, if male athletes are given single rooms on out-of-town trips, female athletes should have the same privilege.

One reason the women's groups are upset is that Title IX only now is beginning to be enforced although it has been on the books almost a decade. Regulations for implementing it had to be drafted and then there was a delay in enforcing them until a final policy interpretation was announced late in 1979.

Even before Bush's announcement, the Education Department under the new Reagan administration had signaled it does not concur with the old interpretations.

For one thing, the department appears to be leaning toward an interpretation that would limit the scope of Title IX to schools whose athletic programs receive federal funds instead of any school which receives any federal funds.

For another, Education Secretary T.H. Bell has asked the Justice Department to switch sides in a pending Supreme Court case and argue for the first time that the provision applies to students only — not to employees of an institution receiving federal funds.

ECU Veterans Begin Practice

East Carolina University's veteran football players reported in yesterday, some 90 strong, and Coach Ed Emory will be finding out just how strong this morning.

Today has been set aside as the day for strength tests in the morning and pictures during the afternoon. Strength coach Jeff Johnson will be testing the veterans in several different moves to gauge how far they have come in the program started last year.

The first official function for the vets was a team dinner and meeting held last night.

Full practice sessions will get underway on Friday, with two drills and a 1½-mile run. The run is set for 9:30 a.m., with practices at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Then, on Saturday, the Pirates move into four-a-days, with workouts scheduled for 6:30 to 8 a.m., 10:45 to 11:30 a.m., 3:30 to 5 p.m., and 7:30 to 8:15 p.m.

The rookies wound up their individual workouts yesterday, with a surprise. Coach Ed Emory moved back the scheduled 1½-mile run from last night to yesterday morning.

Top time for the event was turned in by freshman walk-on Garry Bishop, brother of defensive back Chuck Bishop, timed at 7:50.

Seniors Lose In Sudden 'Death'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — When you're playing extra innings, a run can be certain death. And when Death comes to the plate, it takes on an extra meaning.

Eastern North Carolina's Senior Babe Ruth All-Stars, playing in the losers' bracket of the Southeastern Regionals in Nashville yesterday, went 14 innings before finally bowing to Alabama, 7-6, and it was Death that did them in — Danny Death, that is.

With the score tied at 6-6, Death led off with a single, moving to second on an out. Eric Rudolph singled him to third, and a hit by Stan Simmons brought the winning run in, and it meant death to the hopes of the Coastal Plains South team that represents Eastern N.C. The loss sent them packing from the tournament while Alabama continues to play.

Eastern N.C. got the lead early, scoring twice in the top of the first inning. Tom Buie singled and stole both second and third. Roy Lassiter walked, and a passed ball moved him to second and plated Buie. Lassiter then scored when Dixon Page reached on an error.

In the top of the second, however, Alabama took the lead with three runs. Greg Lee singled and Joey DeCamp reached on an error. Both scored on a triple by Gary Shirley, who scored the go-ahead run when Russell Wise reached on an error.

ENC tied it up in the bottom of the inning, however, scoring once. Billy Dough singled, scoring when Mike Hooks tripled.

The Tar Heel team added two more in the third for a 5-3 lead, but saw Alabama come back with one in the fourth and two more in the seventh for a 6-5 lead.

In the bottom of the seventh, however, ENC tied it up once more forcing the extra innings — actually the equivalent of a second game. Buie doubled, was sacrificed to third and scored when Page grounded out.

After that, both teams had the chance to do it, but neither could until Death killed off the ENC hopes in the 14th.

Rudolph and Simmons each had three hits for Alabama, while Wise had two. Lassiter, Buie and Dough each had two to spark Eastern N.C.

The ENC stars are made up of four Greenville, four Winterville and four Washington players.

Alabama Eastern N.C. Shirley, Simms (6) and Colvard; Askew, Galloway (7), Sawyer (13) and Pope.

JACK IS STAYING
NEW YORK (AP) — At age 41 and with victories at 40 in both the 1980 U.S. Open and PGA, Jack Nicklaus no longer has to answer a question he was asked frequently after reaching his 40th birthday in January 1980.

"No one has asked me this year when I'm going to retire," Nicklaus said. "Last year I was asked that 40 times before I even got to the first tee."

Simmons, After Loss, Pressured

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Jim Simons is feeling the pressure. He knows that many people expect him to do well, if not win, this year's $300,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

Last year, Simons nearly won the $54,000 top prize, but lost a six-hole playoff to Howard Twitty on the 6,534-yard Wethersfield Country Club course.

The person, however, applying the most pressure in the 72-hole tournament that was to begin today was Simons himself.

"I have a tendency to say yes that I'm pressuring myself," Simons said. "It would be unrealistic not to."

But the 31-year-old golfer was asked Wednesday whether he felt he would be able to match the opening-round score he shot last year, a 9-under-par 62 that gave him the early lead.

"I think that I'd be unrealistic" to hope to repeat such an opening score Simons said, explaining that "good rounds just happen."

Adding to Simons' concern was that he failed to make the cut at last week's PGA championship, which he blamed on a long layoff. He also was nursing a bee sting on his right hand that caused some swelling and left him with a grip "that doesn't feel right."

"Mentally, I'd feel better if I made the (PGA) cut," he said.

Simons and other golfers indicated the course record of 20-under-par — set by Billy Casper in 1973 and tied three years ago by Rod Funseth — could be in jeopardy this year.

This season's best score for 72 holes was Hale Irwin's 23-under-par that captured the Hawaiian Open.

"It's in better condition than last year," Simons said of the course. "The scores are going to be better than last year."

Twitty, who won with an 18-under 266, agreed that "the course is in gorgeous shape," predicting that "somebody is going to shoot 18-under or better."

"The folks are going to see a lot of birdies," said Hubert Green, who lost in a 1975 playoff for the GHO title to Don Bies. Green said the greens were smooth and fast. Putting has been the key to victory in the tournament in recent years because of the course's lack of length.

The tournament has failed to attract the name golfers. Among those absent, in addition to such stars as Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Tom Watson, are Larry Nelson, Ray Floyd, Lee Trevino and 1979 victor Jerry McGee.

Snow Hill Opens Play

SNOW HILL — Snow Hill Post 94 opens its state American Legion finals series with Cherryville to-night at 8 p.m. at Greene Central High School field.

The best-of-seven series winner will advance into national play on the Legion scene.

The second game of the series is also set for Snow Hill at 8 p.m. Friday. The series then moves to Cherryville for the third and fourth, and fifth, if needed, games, Saturday through Monday. The series returns to Snow Hill for the final two games, should they become necessary, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Cherryville is located just west of Gastonia.

Walling Punches Giants For 2nd Time

By The Associated Press
The San Francisco Giants have seen Dennis Walling bat just twice in the last three days, and must feel by now that it's more than enough.

Walling laced a run-scoring single Wednesday to lead the Houston Astros to a 5-4 National League victory over the Giants. On Monday he delivered a two-run double to key a 6-5 victory by the Astros.

The recent successes have given him new life as a pinch-hitter, he feels. He was 1-for-9 without a run batted in during the first half of the season.

"I can accept coming off the bench if I can get mentally prepared to be a pinch-hitter," Walling said. "Everybody wants an identity. We made some moves and my role is more defined now."

Luis Pujols opened the Houston eighth with a single and Kiko Garcia ran for him. After a wild pitch and a sacrifice by Terry Puhl, Greg Minton replaced Al Holland, 3-3. Minton walked pinch-hitter Harry Spilman and Walling, hitting for Joe Sambito, 3-3, lined his game-winning hit.

In other NL action, it was St. Louis 11, Philadelphia 3; Montreal 3, Pittsburgh 2; New York 7, Chicago 4 in 10 innings; Atlanta 4, San Diego 3 in 11 and Los Angeles 8, Cincinnati 5.

The Astros chased All-Star Game winner Vida Blue with three runs and six hits in the third inning. Dickie Thon doubled home one run, and the other two scored on base hits by Tony Scott and Jose Cruz. The Astros added an unearned run in the fifth off Fred Breining, staking Vern Riffe to a 4-0 lead.

The Giants scored four times in the sixth to tie the game. Enos Cabell doubled with one out and scored on Jack Clark's single. Darrell Evans followed with a two-run homer, his 10th of the season. One out later, Jerry Martin belted his third homer of the year.

Cardinals 11, Phillies 3
George Hendrick hit two home runs and knocked in three runs and rookie Orlando Sanchez singled home the go-ahead run in the fifth inning as St. Louis clobbered Philadelphia.

For the second straight night at Veterans Stadium, the attendance was well under the pre-strike average of 32,684. A crowd of 23,566 turned out for the third of the four-game series between the top two teams in the first half of the of the NL East season.

Bob Sykes, who pitched 31-3 innings and gave up four hits and no runs, earned a victory in his first decision of the season. Seven pitchers gave up 17 walks in the game.

Phillies Manager Dallas Green was upset with the performance of his first-half East champions, who have now dropped two of three games to the Cardinals. He screamed at reporters, and at one point, stomped from his office.

"I'm sick of reading how players are going to quit on me," Green said. "No, we're not trying to lose," he added.

Expos 3, Pirates 2

Andre Dawson hit his 15th homer of the season to back the combined eight-hit pitching of Ray Burris and three relievers, leading Montreal over Pittsburgh.

It was the home re-opener for the Pirates, who split two games earlier this week in Montreal, and it drew a Fireworks Night crowd of 12,069. "Luv Them Bucks," said an outfield banner, smattered with dollar signs in an apparent reference to the recently settled baseball players strike.

Burris, 4-5, yielded five hits in five innings, including Mike Easler's leadoff homer in the fourth. Following Burris were Stan Bahnsen, Jeff Reardon and Bill Lee, who gained his sixth save after giving up an RBI grounder to Tim Lincecum in the ninth. "Andre can do it all," said Expos Manager Dick Williams. "He's come on each year. I believe he's the best. He's picked up right where he left off before the strike."

Mets 7, Cubs 4
Dave Kingman and Ellis Valentine drilled consecutive triples at the start of the 10th inning, leading New York past Chicago for the Mets' third straight victory since the reopening of the season.

"I thought it was going to be caught," said Kingman of his triple. "I was swinging defensively because I had two strikes on me."

But center fielder Bobby Bonds and right fielder Hector Cruz both backed off the ball at the last moment.

"Somebody in the stands hollered 'I got it' and that crossed us up," said Bonds. "I thought it was Cruz who hollered and he thought it was me. When the play was over we asked each other 'Didn't you holler?'"

Valentine then drove home Kingman with with another three-bagger to right center for the game-winner.

Braves 4, Padres 3
Brian Asselstine scored an unearned run in the 11th, inning on a groundout by Ed Miller to lead Atlanta over San Diego. Asselstine had walked off loser John Curtis, 1-4, moved to second on an error and took third on a forceout grounder by Claudell Washington before scoring the winning run.

Rick Camp, 6-1, pitched two relief innings to earn the victory and John Montefusco earned his first save after pitching the 11th.

San Diego had tied the score 3-3 in the seventh on a run-scoring grounder by Joe Lefebvre.

Dodgers 8, Reds 5
Dave Lopes singled home the tying run in the fourth inning and cracked a two-run homer in the seventh to lead Los Angeles over Cincinnati.

Dave Stewart, 4-1, who relieved starter Bob Welch in the fifth inning, earned a victory with relief help from Steve Howe. Howe posted his seventh save.

Tom Seaver, 7-2, took the loss, his first since April 18 to snap a six-game winning streak.

Savard Retires From Canadians; Knew In April He Was Finished

MONTREAL (AP) — Serge Savard officially announced his retirement from Montreal Canadiens Wednesday but he knew his 15-year National Hockey League career was over last April.

The rangy defenseman was the last player to leave the ice after the Canadiens were eliminated in three straight games by the Edmonton Oilers in a preliminary Stanley Cup playoff round.

There were reports that after his nostalgic skate around the rink of the Northlands Coliseum Savard shed tears in the Montreal dressing room.

"Maybe I did cry a little bit," Savard said when asked Wednesday about the incident. "I knew after that game it was my last."

He sat down with Canadiens Managing Director Irving Grundman shortly after the club's humiliating finish and the pair came to a mutual agreement.

"When I first met with Serge after the season to discuss what the future holds for him, it was agreeable to both Serge and myself that for the good of his career, himself and his family the 1981-82 season would start without Serge Savard," said Grundman.

It was a career that was laden with success. The 35-year-old Savard helped the Canadiens to eight Stanley Cup titles. He was a key member of Team Canada in the 1972 showdown series against the Soviet Union, and he played in the 1976 Canada Cup and 1979 Challenge Cup international hockey series.

In 1969, Savard was awarded the Conn Smythe Trophy as the outstanding Stanley Cup playoff performer and in 1979 he captured both the Bill Masterton Memorial Trophy and an All-Star team berth, the only time he ever received all-star honors despite his consistent play.

But Savard's skills began to deteriorate in the 1979-80 season. He appeared in only 46 games and managed 13 points and followed that with a 17-point performance for the 1980-81 campaign.

Raider-NFL Juror May Have Interest Conflict; Court To Rule

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A decision was expected today on the status of a juror in the antitrust case in which the Oakland Raiders and Los Angeles Coliseum Commission have sued the National Football League.

The juror, Tom Gelker, is a cousin of Bruce Gelker, who once owned the Portland Storm of the now-defunct World Football League.

It also was learned that Bruce Gelker has owned the Saddleback Inn in nearby Santa Ana in Orange County since it opened in 1964.

A spokesman for the L.A. Coliseum Commission said that the Washington Redskins stayed at that hotel in 1973 when they played in Super Bowl VII at the Coliseum.

Meanwhile, court records showed that the jury forewoman, Carole Slaten, told U.S. District Court Judge Harry Pregerson that Tom Gelker was refusing to follow the court's instructions and apparently was preventing the panel from reaching a verdict.

Slaten made the comment Tuesday as the judge questioned each juror individually about their progress.

"Has any juror flatly stated that he or she would not be bound by the court's instructions on the law?" the judge asked.

Slaten answered yes "in substance and effect." She then identified the juror as Gelker and said, "He made a statement on the first day that indicated to me personally that it wouldn't matter what we said or what evidence was taken out of files, that that's it."

The jury of seven women and three men in the landmark antitrust trial was accepted on the basis of a lack of knowledge of sports, among other things. Should Gelker be removed, the remaining nine jurors would be permitted to reach a verdict.

Raiders attorney Joseph Alioto claimed the new discovery showed "a deliberate concealment" by Tom Gelker and would be the basis for his removal, something the Raiders asked late Tuesday. Pregerson took the motion under consideration.

NFL attorneys opposed any interruption of the deliberation process, which was to enter its 13th day today.

Outside the court Wednesday, Alioto said he thought that recent events indicated that Gelker had gone into the trial with a preconceived view.

NFL attorney Patrick Lynch said he moved for a mistrial — which he has done repeatedly since the jury indicated it might be deadlocked — but the motion was rejected.

"The jurors have become involved in a dialogue outside the deliberation process," Lynch said, calling that improper.

Rudi Finally Hero Again

By The Associated Press
It's been a long time since Joe Rudi was a hero. Wednesday night, he proved he hadn't forgotten how.

The 13-year veteran outfielder belted a pair of home runs in leading a six-homer blitz by the Boston Red Sox in an 8-1 romp over the Chicago White Sox. Being in the spotlight again felt good to Rudi, a star with the World Champion Oakland A's of the early 70s, but something of a bust since then.

"I feel as good as ever, just great," said Rudi, who will be 35 next month. "I can hit as well as I ever did. I just need the opportunity to play."

Rudi hasn't gotten that opportunity very much in recent years. After joining California as a free agent in November 1976, Rudi was plagued by injuries and slumps. He made it into only 64 games in his first season as an Angel, batting .264, his lowest average as a full-time major leaguer.

In 1978, Rudi knocked in 79 runs but hit only 256 in 133 games, then appeared in just 90 contests in '79 and 104 games (.237) in '80.

The Angels, fed up with Rudi's declining average each season, dealt him to Boston last winter, but it's been more of the same for the outfielder this year. He's batting a minuscule .169 in 22 games.

That made Wednesday's performance even more gratifying.

"He's an old pro who can help us a lot down the stretch," said Boston Manager Ralph Houk. "He had trouble with his legs at the start of the year, but now he's in excellent shape. He's been through the pressure a lot during his career and I just hope he stays hot."

Also hot Wednesday night for Boston were Jim Rice, Dwight

Evans, Dave Stapleton and Gary Allenson, all of whom homered. The six homers is an American League high for the year.

Bobby Ojeda, called up from Pawtucket of the International League Sunday, scattered seven hits, including three by Ron LeFlore, in his 1981 major league debut. He had a 1-1 record with Boston last year.

Rice also threw out two runners for his sixth and seventh assists of the year.

Angels 4, Mariners 1

Bobby Grich, who signed with California as a free agent a week after Rudi in 1976, also pounded a pair of homers Wednesday as the Angels downed Seattle for their first victory since the resumption of play following the strike.

Grich has fared much better than Rudi with the free agent-laden Angels. In 1979, when California won the West Division — and Rudi was stumbling through a .242 campaign, with 11 homers and 61 RBI — Grich had a spectacular season, batting .294, with 30 homers and 101 RBI.

This year, as Rudi once more has wallowed on the bench, Grich has hit .287 with eight home runs. He was one of the beneficiaries of the strike after breaking a bone in his left hand in early June. The second baseman hardly missed any games, even though the cast was not removed until three weeks ago. Grich did not pick up a bat until the first workout after the baseball strike ended.

His three-run blast in the top of 11th won the game for California.

"I was trying to drive the ball over the second baseman's head in the 11th," said Grich, who drove it over the head of right fielder Jeff Burroughs and over the Kingdome wall. "I've hit the ball fairly well to the opposite field in the past."

Yankees 5, Rangers 4

Graig Nettles' two-run homer and a two-run double by Dave Winfield keyed the Yankee attack.

"I looked at the calendar, and it said August, so I knew it was time to get going," said Nettles, whose sixth-inning blast lifted New York from a 4-3 deficit. Nettles has two homers in the Yankees' three post-strike games, with both shots providing the winning runs.

"I feel very good. It's kind of surprising because I didn't do anything during the layoff. The only time I picked up a bat was to chase a dog out of my garage. I didn't take any batting practice."

"I'm surprised I feel as comfortable at the plate as I do. I feel like I've never been away."

Indians 9, Brewers 4

Rick Manning drove in three runs and scored three with a home run and two singles as the Indians snapped a seven-game losing streak.

Mike Hargrove added four hits to a 17-hit Cleveland barrage and Len Barker struck out five and didn't walk a batter in eight innings.

Twins 4, A's 3

Minnesota rallied from a 3-0 hole with seventh-inning RBI singles by Hosken Powell and Mickey Hatcher providing the tying and winning runs. The Twins trailed 3-2 before bunting five singles against reliever Bob Owchinko, 3-2, in the seventh.

Wayne Gross hit his sixth homer for Oakland.

Blue Jays 4, Tigers 3

Toronto's Damaso Garcia spoiled the strategy of Tigers Manager Sparky Anderson, who twice ordered intentional walks to the batter ahead of Garcia. The Blue Jays second baseman squeeze bunted home a run, then delivered a sacrifice fly.

"I was pumped up because it seems like they're showing you no respect when they walk the man ahead of you," Garcia said. "But it was good baseball. He was trying to set up the double play."

The loss was the first since April 29 for Detroit starter Jack Morris who had an eight-game winning streak halted.

Royals 10-3, Orioles 0-4

Frank White's grand slam homer and Hal McRae's three RBI paced the Royals' victory, then ace pinch hitter Terry Crowley's sacrifice fly won the nightcap for Baltimore.

Rick Dempsey and Eddie Murray homered in the second game for Baltimore. Amos Otis and Willie Wilson countered for the Royals.

Crist's Chances Spoiled By Stomach Problems

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — John Crist went to the Soviet Union earlier this month to make his international debut as America's decathlon champion, only to have his performance spoiled by illness.

Crist, an assistant track coach at North Carolina State, developed stomach problems after arriving in Leningrad for the American-Soviet meet and was unable to finish the competition.

"It really messed up my stomach," said Crist, blaming drinking water for his illness.

"I couldn't even stay on the track for more than three or four minutes at a time. It was pretty frustrating. I was in the best shape of my life. Then I got sick and didn't get a chance to show anything for it."

But Crist should have a lot of years left. At 26 he is young for a decathlete, especially a national champion. He says most top decathletes don't reach their prime until their late 20s or early 30s.

"In the United States it is really bad," the Atlanta native said. "You usually don't get an opportunity to do it until you get out of college. And it's hard because you've got 10 events to learn."

"Someone might spend seven years trying to become the best pole vaulter. But we have 10 events to learn to do well. It seems the older you are the better decathlete you are. All the studies done say the older you get the higher you should score.

"My prime years are still ahead of me, especially with my body type — skinny and can't carry any weight. I still don't think I've matured physically," the 6-foot-3, 180-pound Crist said.

Crist won the TAC National Decathlon Championships at Santa Barbara, Calif., in June with a score of 8,006 points. That's good enough to put him in the top 20 in the world but nowhere near the top competition like Great Britain's Daley Thompson or world record holder Guido Kratschmer of West Germany. Kratschmer scored 8,649 points in June 1980.

Crist's high score was 8,149 in 1979, when he was ninth in the world. He says the only thing that separates a score of 8,100 from 8,600 is "about two good events." Those two good events for Crist are the long jump and the pole vault.

"I think I can get very good," Crist said. "I still have some techniques problems in the long jump and pole vault. But with my speed and ability, there is no reason I shouldn't be able to learn, and that should shoot me up."

And Crist is relatively new to the sport, having been at it just a little over four years.

He was an all-around athlete in high school but decided basketball was his sport and went to a junior college in Atlanta. Then, after a poor sophomore season, he switched to track. The University of Alabama got interested and picked him up as a high jumper and half-miler.

"But they switched me back and forth a lot between the two and I never got real good at either," Crist said.

Then in Crist's senior year, Dennis Adama became the Alabama coach. Adama, a high jumper who had recorded a leap of 7-feet-4, was 27 and considering going into the decathlon. He ran Crist through a tryout and "I scored above average."

That's how it began. He won his first decathlon — the Southeastern Conference meet — and then finished seventh in the NCAA championships.

"Everyone seemed impressed ... so I thought I'd give myself a chance," Crist said.

Tom Jones was an assistant coach at Alabama when Crist was there. When he became head coach at N.C. State the next year, he offered Crist the assistant's job and has helped him since.

Being a decathlete takes a lot of time and dedication. Crist gives it both. He tries to train four hours a day, but his job takes some of that away. And when a meet comes up he must take a week off before to rest and a week off after to recover.

The tight budget notwithstanding because "money problems a just part of being an amateur athlete," Crist seems to have a special feeling for the sport. When he talks about it he seems depressed one minute and elated the next.

"No, it's not easy," Crist said. "It's a lot mental and it takes a lot of time. In each meet you have to prepare for each event. A sprinter has to get himself ready one time. But a decathlete has to psyche himself up 27 times in the course of a day to give his best effort each time. Then you have to turn around and run the 400 meters and give your best effort."

"After that you go home and try to sleep and probably can't. You get up the next morning and you're stiff and tired and sore from doing five events. But no matter, because there are five more to go. You run the hurdles, then throw the discus three times. Then you pole vault maybe 20 times, and each time the best you can. Then you throw the javelin three times."

"Then no matter how sore, frustrated, how tired or how much you don't care if you don't finish — you've got to run the mile."

And what does it do to an individual?
"It just kills you that many times and experience so many highs and so many lows in two days," Crist said, a painful expression crossing his face. But then his expression calms and he smiles as he adds, "Of course, that might be what's so appealing, that you do experience so many different feelings. You sure don't get bored."

Suspend Boxer For Not Trying Hard

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey boxing authorities say South Carolina fighter Al Collins didn't try hard enough during his 59-second fight with 1980 Olympic trials heavyweight champion James Broad.

State Athletic Commissioner Jersey Joe Walcott indefinitely suspended Collins of Inman, S.C., after he apparently refused Tuesday night to continue his scheduled six-round fight with Broad at the Sands Hotel & Casino.

"Joe didn't like the way he fought. He failed to give a good account of himself and an honest-to-goodness effort," Deputy Commissioner Robert W. Lee said Wednesday. "He didn't even go down. He just got in the ring, let's put it that way," Lee said. "Joe didn't feel the guy even got it. He didn't give the people a good shake and it's something worth looking into."

Swims Channel Three Times

DOVER, England (AP) — John Erikson, 26-year-old physical education teacher from Chicago, went to sleep happy Thursday after becoming the first swimmer to complete a three-way crossing of the English Channel.

"That's my life's ambition, I've done it," he said after emerging from the surf at Wissant on the French side of the 21-mile wide crossing just before midnight Wednesday.

He had entered the water in England Tuesday morning in Dover and spent a total of 38 hours 27 minutes in the sea, sustained by cupsful of mashed peaches, high protein drinks and milk chocolate.

"We are absolutely in awe of it because we didn't think it could be done — John is a superhero," said Audrey Scott, secretary of the Dover-based Channel Swimming Association which organizes the swims.

Erikson swam the first stage to France in 10 hours 10 minutes, the second stage back to England in 13 hours 14 minutes and the third stage back to France in 15 hours 3 minutes.

He was called the "fittest man I have ever seen," by one of his British observers, mailman Tom Watch, a trainer of Channel swimmers who kept an eye on the American's marathon effort from the 40-foot trawler Accord.

Also in the boat was Erikson's father Ted, himself a marathon swimmer whose 33-hour time for a two-way crossing of the English Channel was clipped by three hours by his son in an earlier swim.

John Erikson has now swum the English Channel 11 times, once three ways and twice two ways.

Swimmers are allowed 10 minutes on the beach between stages.

CLEMSON (AP) — Clemson quarterback Homer Jordan admits the Tigers had their problems on offense last year, but Jordan is looking for bigger and better things for himself and the Tigers this year.

Although the Tiger offense and Jordan received much criticism last year, Jordan still managed to break Steve Fuller's record for total offense by a sophomore.

Fuller, now the starting quarterback for the Kansas City Chiefs, also set career offense records at Clemson, and Jordan says those records give him something to shoot for the next two seasons.

Jordan says he's learned a lot since last year, when he compiled 1,683 yards in total offense to best Fuller's mark as a sophomore.

"I didn't even know I had the record until after the game I broke it in, when one of the assistant coaches told me," Jordan said.

Jordan said Fuller's career total offense record is a long way off and he doesn't know if he can break that one.

"I look at my total offense after two years, which is about 1,750 yards, and then see his career total of over 6,000," Jordan said shaking his head. "I know if I shoot for the record, it will make me work harder to achieve it. So I'll give it my best shot."

Jordan has been quietly confident about his own abilities in the past, but he wasn't quite ready to be thrust into a leadership role as a sophomore. This year, however, he's outwardly confident and says he now understands his role as Clemson's quarterback.

There was much criticism directed at Clemson's offense last year despite the fact that Jordan finished third in the Atlantic Coast Conference in total offense. The offensive unit gained a reputation for moving well between the 20-yard lines, but failing to put the ball in the end zone.

Those criticisms are behind him now, and Jordan says he has high expectations for the coming season.

"This year, we have the chance to be a really good football team," Jordan said.

"Everyone can't wait for the first game."

"I expect a big improvement this year. The big thing is to give 110 percent each play and cut down on mistakes so we can be more consistent," he said.

Jordan says he has worked on improving his passing and timing with his receivers this summer. He says he accepts last year as a learning experience, and notes the Tigers ended the year on a winning note by beating South Carolina 27-6.

Winning is something Jordan plans to do a lot of this year.

"The talk around here has been about which bowl game we want to go to, the Orange or the Sugar," Jordan said.

"So many players are returning, including the entire starting offense. We worked together all last year and know each other really well," he said. "Now we can't wait to get started; everyone feels this is going to be our year."

Southern Cal The Favorite?

Pac-10 Race Seen As Real Horse Race

By The Associated Press
The Pacific-10, known facetiously as the "Pac-5" last season, will be near full strength again for the 1981 college football season.

Last year, half the conference's schools — Southern Cal, UCLA, Oregon, Oregon State and Arizona State — were ruled ineligible for a Rose Bowl bid or other postseason play because of academic improprieties. This season only Arizona State remains on football probation and the Sun Devils will still be able to contend for the Pac-10 title.

Washington is the reigning conference king, but the league appears well balanced and the Run for the Roses could be a wide-open race.

The Huskies, who lost to Michigan in the 1981 Rose Bowl, were 9-2 and captured the league crown with a 6-1 record. But they face a massive rebuilding task offensively, with those gone including quarterback Tom Flick and tackle Curt Marsh.

Southern Cal, 8-2-1 and 4-2-1 last season, has tailback Marcus Allen and linebacker Chip Banks heading a fine group of returnees, and the Trojans might well be considered the team to beat. UCLA, coming off a 9-2 and 5-2 season, lost safety Kenny Easley and tailback Freeman McNeil, but appears to have the personnel to make another strong bid for the league title.

Stanford, featuring quarterback John Elway and wide receivers Paul Skansi and Aaron Williams among the few returning starters on offense. Oregon, where Coach Rich Brooks' rebuilding program is progressing nicely, and Arizona State, where second-year Coach Darryl Rogers has a host of talented players returning, can't be counted out of the conference title picture.

Arizona, Washington State, California and Oregon State figure to make things tough for the others at times, but would have to improve greatly to figure heavily in the Pac-10 race.

Don James' Washington squad may be hurting offensively, but the defense appears strong again. The Huskies have seven starters, including tackle Fletcher Jones and linebacker Mark Stewart, returning from a unit that was the conference's best in scoring defense.

Sophomore Steve Pelluer appears to have the inside track on the Huskies' quick-strike offense, and second-year Coach Paul Wiggins, a former defensive standout in the National Football League, says he hopes to make marked improvement in the Cardinals' defense.

Elway, a junior who passed for 2,889 yards and 27 touchdowns last year, will have Andre Tyler (53 catches) as a target again. Nelson, who has gained almost 3,000 yards rushing in three seasons and also is a threat as a receiver, adds an extra dimension.

Oregon's Brooks, whose Ducks were 6-3-2 and 4-3-1 last year, predicts he'll field a "valid championship contender" featuring fullback Vince Williams, tailback Reggie Brown and center Mike Deleagato offensively.

Coach Larry Smith, in his second year at the helm of the Arizona Wildcats, intends to put the ball in the air a lot, predicting his quarterbacks will throw some 45 times a game. Tom Tunnicliffe, who threw for 1,186 yards last year, is among the offensive returnees.

In the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, defending champion Long Beach State lost 16 starters and San Jose State, with running back Gerald Wilhite among a group of fine returnees, is the favorite.

The PCAA race shapes up as close one, with the new California Bowl between the PCAA and Mid-American Conference champions on Dec. 19 in Fresno State's new 30,000-seat Stadium as an added incentive.

In addition to San Jose State and Long Beach State, Utah State and Fresno State are expected to have good shots at the league title, with Pacific and Fullerton State in rebuilding stages.

vacated by John Powers, who was graduated. Kurt Becker is back at the other guard while Norm Betts and Craig Dunaway both are back at tight end and sophomore Vincent Bean appears ready to assume the split end duties.

The improved play of the Michigan defense over the course of the year was directly responsible for the Wolverines' trip to the Rose Bowl and Schembechler's ability to plug three key holes left by graduation will determine whether there is another bowl game in their future.

The Michigan defense hasn't given up a touchdown in 22 quarters.

The Wolverines offensive line will be anchored by massive tackles Ed Muransky, 6-7, 270, and Bubba Paris, 6-6, 270. Sophomore Tom Dixon will get a shot at replacing George Lijja at center, while Stefan Humphries and Rich Steger will fight for the guard slot experience at defensive tackle and should earn starting jobs. Cornerbacks Marion Body and Brian Carpenter both are back as are strong safety Keith Bostic and free safety Tony Jackson. That's significant because the Wolverines' secondary allowed only three touchdowns passes all last year.

"We had to completely rebuild our secondary last year, so we knew we'd be in pretty good shape there, this time around," Schembechler said.

The kicking game also appears sound with punter Don Bracklen, who averaged 42.1 yards as a freshman last year, and place-kicker Ali Haji Sheikhi who was good on 10 of 16 field goals during the regular season and hit a 25-yarder in the Rose Bowl. Haji Sheikhi's booming kickoffs also played a key role in last year's improved kicking game.

Schembechler is starting his 13th season at Michigan. He has led the Wolverines to nine Big Ten titles (two outright) and to eight bowl appearances.

Bo Learns To Love The Bomb

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — There used to be a feeling among college football followers that the game at Michigan was locked forever in the Ice Age.

Then a skinny-legged wide receiver named Anthony Carter came along and changed everything. Today, Coach Bo Schembechler — who finally shed his loser's stigma with a victory in the Rose Bowl last January — is firmly planted in the jet age where he sits at the throttle of one of the most potent football machines in the land.

"I believe in the pass," Schembechler beams.

Carter, the 5-foot-11, 161-pounder from Riviera Beach, Fla., who last season became the first Michigan sophomore to earn first team All-American honors since 1925 and who finished 10th in the Heisman balloting, gave Schembechler the courage to learn to love the bomb.

Carter, who might be the best big-play specialist in college football, already owns most of Michigan's receiving records and last season he also led the nation in kickoff returns with an average of 29.4. He has averaged 17.1 yards every time he has touched the ball for the Wolverines.

The threat of Carter made the running of a trio of explosive backs — Butch Woolfolk, Stanley Edwards and Lawrence Ricks — even more potent.

The Wolverines were ranked No. 4 in the final Associated Press poll and are certain to be ranked high going into the 1981 season since all but seven of their 22 starters are returning.

"The key thing going into coming to SWL in 1974. He became a full-time coach with the Ragin' Cajuns in 1975. He will also be shifting to the backfield after being in charge of receivers for six years, while it's true that we're not losing very many people, the guys we're losing are really key players."

The most noticeable replacement will come at quarterback where sophomore Steve Smith is replacing John Wampler.

"When you change quarterbacks, the offense will be adjusted to what your quarterback is capable of doing," Schembechler noted. "We'll have more running capability with Smitty, because Wampler had the bad knees."

Michigan runs mostly out of the "I" formation and with a balanced attack of running and passing averaged 27.2 points per game and put together a 9-2 record (8-0 in the Big Ten) before downing Washington 23-6 in the Rose Bowl.

The Wolverines offensive line will be anchored by massive tackles Ed Muransky, 6-7, 270, and Bubba Paris, 6-6, 270. Sophomore Tom Dixon will get a shot at replacing George Lijja at center, while Stefan Humphries and Rich Steger will fight for the guard slot vacated by John Powers, who was graduated. Kurt Becker is back at the other guard while Norm Betts and Craig Dunaway both are back at tight end and sophomore Vincent Bean appears ready to assume the split end duties.

The improved play of the Michigan defense over the course of the year was directly responsible for the Wolverines' trip to the Rose Bowl and Schembechler's ability to plug three key holes left by graduation will determine whether there is another bowl game in their future.

Flanagan Promoted

LAFAYETTE, La. — Dwight Flanagan, a 1971 graduate of East Carolina University, has been named offensive coordinator at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, it has been announced.

The ex-Pirate played wide receiver under Clarence Stasavich and Mike McGee while at ECU.

Flanagan, who received additional degrees from SWL, coached at Samford in Birmingham, Ala., prior to coming to SWL in 1974. He became a full-time coach with the Ragin' Cajuns in 1975. He will also be shifting to the backfield after being in charge of receivers for six years, while it's true that we're not losing very many people, the guys we're losing are really

Employment Up

ATLANTA (AP) — Employment in Southeastern textile plants has increased for the second straight month, although six of eight states had lower textile employment than in January, the U.S. Labor Department said Wednesday.

There were 578,300 people working in the textile field in the Southeast in June, up 1,900 from the previous month but down 3,400 from January, said Donald M. Cruse, regional commissioner for the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Gains of 1,000 jobs in North Carolina and 400 in Tennessee and smaller increases in Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky and South Carolina were responsible for the increase from May, the bureau said in a release.

The employment level in Florida declined by 300 while Mississippi remained unchanged, the report said.

Compared to a year ago, six of eight states registered unemployment losses, Cruse said. North Carolina had the largest decline, losing 3,600 workers, followed by Georgia, down 1,400; Alabama, down 900, and Kentucky, down 600.

Smaller losses were registered in Florida and Mississippi, while South Carolina and Tennessee added 3,100 and 500 workers, respectively.

Belvoir Loan

WASHINGTON, D.C. — First District Congressman Walter B. Jones on Wednesday announced the approval of a Farmers Home Administration fire department loan in the amount of $75,000 to the Belvoir Volunteer Fire Department.

The term of this loan is 30 years at 5 percent interest. Its purpose is to construct a new building to house existing fire fighting equipment and to provide space for meetings and training sessions.

"I wish to commend the members of the Belvoir Volunteer Fire Department on their dedicated effort to provide adequate fire protection to the people of Belvoir Community," Congressman Jones commented.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
4 ♦ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♦.

Do you think like a bridge expert? The problem on this hand is not just to find the winning play, but to tell us why you adopted the line you did.

North was a whit weak for a jump raise, especially since his hand contained no ruffing value. However, he could find no better bid, and the final contract was certainly reasonable.

West led the king of diamonds; East overtook with the ace and returned the ten. West won the jack and cashed the queen to complete the defensive book, as East discarded a low heart. West, an expert player, now shifted to a heart, despite his partner's discard. Declarer won in dummy and the contract hinged on not losing a trump trick. The percentage play, by a wide margin, is to finesse for the king, but declarer unhesitatingly led a trump to the ace, dropping West's singleton king, thus making his contract.

We can assure you that declarer did not get a peek at either defender's hand. Can you tell us why declarer ignored the percentage finesse for a line that was greatly against the odds?

Declarer was simply giving West credit for being a fine defender! West knew that his partner was out of diamonds and he knew that, if East held the king of spades, he could be finessed out of it. So why did not an expert West lead his last diamond giving partner, if he did indeed hold the king, the opportunity to overruff dummy to score the setting trick?

Declarer reasoned that West had to know that his partner did not have the king of spades. If West led his last diamond, declarer would ruff high in dummy and, when East could not overruff, the location of the king would be revealed. And the only way that West could be sure that his partner did not have the king of spades was because he held it himself!

Since the finesse was bound to fail, declarer's only hope was that West held a singleton king. So declarer hopped up with the ace of spades and virtue triumphed.

Urban Growth Slowing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly three-fourths of the people in the United States still live in cities and towns, but the traditional migration from rural to urban areas has just about stopped.

New Census figures show that the proportion of the population living in urban areas grew from 73.6 percent to 73.7 between 1970 and 1980.

That tiny increase is the smallest in 150 years, dating back to 1820 when there was a slight decline in the proportion of urban dwellers. In contrast to the 0.1 percent increase in the most recent decade, the proportion of the urban population grew 3.4

percent from 1960 to 1970. And when the Census Bureau defines rural, it's not talking about everyone except those in big cities. It defines an urban area as one of 2,500 or more. Only people living in the countryside or in communities of less than 2,500 are classified as rural.

The new Census report gave no breakdown to illustrate other recent studies showing that populations in small towns are growing faster than they are in major cities.

"We're certainly seeing a decentralization of the population at all levels," said Diana DeAre of the bureau's population distribution branch.

"I think the decentralization will continue for some time, because people are still indicating that this (the smaller community) is the type of place they'd like to live in. And it builds up momentum, many people doing this are young people starting families."

Crime in the cities, the desire for larger homes, lower taxes and the general wish for nicer place to live all contribute to the back-to-the-country movement, she said.

Administration Drawing Protests Over 'Hit List'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is drawing cries of protest from consumer, environmental and women's groups over its broadest attack yet on government regulations governing everything from sex discrimination in sports and jobs to help for the handicapped.

Vice President George Bush announced Wednesday that 30 more rules have been targeted for possible elimination or easing in response to 2,500 individual suggestions for regulatory relief. That swells the administration's regulation "hit list" to 91.

"It's another signal to big business that there will be no law and order applied to them under the Reagan administration," consumer advocate Ralph Nader said. "It's just another installment in withdrawing the health and safety protections for the American people that have been in place for years."

Women's groups were particularly unhappy with the review of regulations prohibiting sex discrimination in school athletic programs and sexual harassment by employers.

Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women, called the review "outrageous" and said NOW would "make sure that the message gets out to women and girls that this administration, under the guise of trying to simplify, is really taking away women's rights."

The Education Department's "Title IX" rules enforce a 9-year-old law that bans federal aid to the country's 16,000 public school districts and 3,000 colleges if their sports programs discriminate against women. Because of the law, schools have been upgrading women's athletics.

In announcing the review, the administration said concern had been raised over requirements that force schools to spend comparable amounts on men and women's sports programs for coaches' salaries and equipment.

The administration said it was reviewing rules prohibiting sexual harassment on the job because it felt the current guidelines prohibiting "unwelcome sexual advances" and "verbal sexual conduct" were too vague.

"How can they call that language too vague?" asked Carol Bros of the National Women's Political Caucus. "Sexual harassment in the workplace is a terrible problem for women."

Guidelines prohibiting discrimination in hiring because of race, color, religion or sex were singled out for review on the grounds they may be imposing needless "recordkeeping" requirements on businesses.

Bush said the administration expected some "special interest" attacks on its efforts but added, "We really believe that the American people are saying with a rather united voice that we have gone too far in the federal government regulating things."

The list announced Wednesday was the third group of rules the administration has singled out for study because they may be "burdensome, unnecessary or counterproductive." Most are still under review.

The first group of 27, announced in March, included regulations governing hazardous chemical wastes and requirements for utility-run energy conservation programs in private homes. A second package of 34 rule changes proposed in April to help the auto industry included relaxing various emission standards and dropping requirements for air bags.

Administration officials said Wednesday that some regulations may be retained in present form after the review, but most probably will be eased or eliminated.

Refinery Seized

CHIANG MAI, Thailand (AP) — U.S. Drug enforcement officials and Thai border patrol police seized a heroin refinery after a shoot-out with the Burmese operators, a Thai narcotics officer said today.

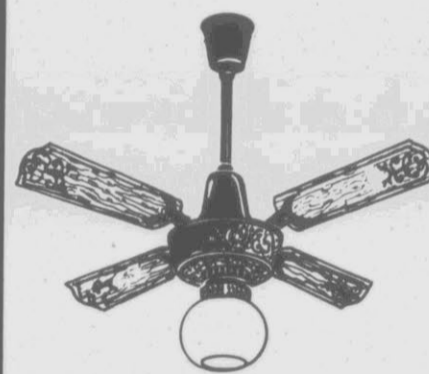

He said border patrol police and two Thailand-based U.S. officials flew by helicopter to close down the refinery, hidden in mountain of neighboring Chiang Rai province, near the Thai-Burmese border.

The raiders said they seized several tons of raw opium in large tanks at the factory. A U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency said the factory could produce more than 850 pounds of heroin per month.

EMERALD BLUES ... Galen Shawyer of Greensboro holds the emerald he found almost a year ago in North Carolina's mountains. The stone has been described as being priceless, but jewelers won't buy it because of its size. (AP Laserphoto)

Priceless Emerald Too Big To Sell

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jewelers say Galen Shawyer's emerald is "priceless," but they won't buy it and solve his financial problems.

Shawyer, a once-a-year gem hunter, found the 112-carat gem at Crabtree Mine in Spruce Pine last year, and he's been trying to sell it ever since.

"I thought finding the stone was hard," he said. "Selling it is much harder."

Meanwhile, his home-building business has faltered, he owes $80,000 and he lives with his mother-in-law to save money. His creditors are waiting for him to receive payment from a Virginia lawyer for whom he built a house on the Outer Banks.

Shawyer, who now works as an appliance repairman in a Greensboro department store, went to New York in June to try to sell the emerald.

One jeweler "said he wouldn't give me $5,000 for it, but that if it were his, he wouldn't sell it for less than a half million," Shawyer said.

A Tiffany's jeweler, amazed, told him it was beautiful. "He told me it was priceless," Shawyer said. "He said they couldn't buy it."

Greensboro jeweler Arnold Schiffman Sr., who has been working with Shawyer, said selling the stone will be difficult. "Marketing stones is a complicated and expensive process," he said. "But nothing is easy in this world that's any good."

Jewelers have given Shawyer three options: have the emerald cut into smaller pieces, which they advised against because of its quality; sell it uncut to a wealthy person looking for a tax shelter; or keep it.

Finding an emerald at the Crabtree Mine, where amateur gem hunters may seek their fortunes for a fee, is "not unlikely," said Stephen Conrad, director of the North Carolina Division of Land Resources.

North Carolina is the only state where the four most precious stones — rubies, emeralds, sapphires and diamonds — are all found, according to the North Carolina Geological Survey.

"But a raw gem is just not of significant value to jewelers," Conrad said. "He should go to a gemologist, have it appraised and get someone to cut it. Just because it's an emerald, it's not necessarily a high-quality gem."

But Shawyer says he can't even afford to have the emerald appraised. Jewelers charge 10 percent of the value to make appraisals.

"I still couldn't be sure somebody would buy it," Shawyer said. "And I'm broke as Job's turkey, anyway."

Shawyer said he can't even insure the stone, because insurers need an appraisal of the stone's worth.

The palmitist told his fortune the day he found the emerald at the mine. She told Shawyer he would be extremely wealthy one day.

"Do you reckon it's gonna be from this little green stone here?" he asked her, pulling the emerald from his pocket.

The palmitist shook her head. "You will have money," she told him, "but it's not going to come from that."

Meanwhile, the stone rests in Shawyer's safe-deposit box. "I feel like Chicken Little," he said. "The sky is falling. It's come all at once. I'm 30 and feel like 70. My wife works at a nursing home taking care of old people. I told her I'd be checking in soon, if they have a mental ward."

Group Urges Prison Alternatives!

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

North Carolina has spent more than $100 million in the last five years trying to build more space for its mushrooming number of prisoners.

Counties, too, have been pressed to cope with growing numbers of inmates and are planning to spend about $18 million to build or refurbish jails.

But with rapidly climbing construction costs and the rising budgets needed to confine prisoners, a group of judges, lawyers, legislators, prison administrators and citizens is waging an effort it hopes will convince the state that there are cheaper, and perhaps wiser, alternatives.

"In this state, we have a history of incarcerating too many people and for too long a time," said Willis Whichard, a judge on the state Court of Appeals. "One reason is we have not adequately considered the alternatives."

Whichard, a former state senator from Durham, is chairman of the Citizen's Commission on Alternatives to Incarceration, an 18-member panel that includes state and local officials but which is operating independently of state government.

Operating with $150,000 in grants from the Z. Smith Reynolds and Mary Reynolds Babcock foundations, the commission is writing a report that will recommend a variety of ways to reduce the numbers of people inside state prisons and county jails.

The problem of prison crowding is not just a theoretical one, or one of interest solely to prison reformers.

Earlier this year Gov. Jim Hunt directed the state Correction Department to speed up release of about 1,500 prison inmates after the population inside the state's prisons topped 16,000. Jack Cozort, Hunt's legal counsel, said at the time that the move was required to save money and to assure control of the prisons.

The release repeated an earlier one in 1977, but again, the prison population is increasing. As of Wednesday, there were 15,841 inmates in a system with a stated maximum operating capacity of 14,810.

"You still have the same problem," Cozort said Wednesday. "The courts keep sending them up there."

Once the commission completes its report, Whichard said it will begin a publicity campaign aimed at convincing the public it should support proposals that would provide some types of punishment other than prison terms. The campaign will include talks to civic clubs, church groups and others, with a goal of bringing bills before the 1983 General Assembly.

One of the panel's messages will be that North Carolina sends more people to prison than nearly any other state. Jeff Williams, director of management information and research for the Correction Department, said figures published by the Criminal Justice Institute Inc. of New York show North Carolina has the second-highest incarceration rate in the country.

According to the figures, 264 of every 100,000 people in the state are in prison, a rate that trails only South Carolina. "A North Carolina resident is three-times more likely to be in prison than a resident of Pennsylvania," says Whichard, "yet nothing indicates we're that much safer a place to live because of it."

And a second message is that this costs a lot of money. North Carolina will spend $150 million operating its prison system this year, up from $44 million 10 years ago. Prison officials calculate it costs $23.25 a day — or $8,500 a year — to house an inmate.

And the $100 million in new prison construction authorized over the past five years hasn't really relieved crowding, as the prison population has continued to rise.

What, then, are the alternatives?

Whichard said the commission's main emphasis will be on establishing a formal restitution program, in which a criminal might be sentenced to repay the value of property stolen or damaged by his crime. Or, he said, a person might be ordered to do public work, performing some type of community service while living at home.

Some judges are applying such sanctions now, but Whichard said it should be made a part of the state's criminal-justice structure.

In addition, he said, the state should consider shorter prison terms.

"You have to look at what really is effective in controlling crime," he said. "It's clear in many cases that incarceration is not. The key is determining where that should be used."

A second major point, he said, is that counties should be encouraged to set up programs to reduce the number of people kept in their jails awaiting trial. Programs in Mecklenburg and Cumberland counties have successfully screened defendants and saved money by turning loose those who pose little risk of fleeing before their trial.

There is little relationship, Whichard argues, between the ability to post bond and the possible threat a defendant poses to his community.

The commission is being run with help from the Prison and Jail Project of North Carolina, a Durham-based nonprofit agency. It is made up of lawyers, judges, legislators, district attorneys, prison officials and citizens from across the state.

No Budget Cuts Seen For Courts

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's court system was practicing fiscal restraint long before the Reagan administration popularized it, the state's top court official says.

"I think our branch has always been cost-conscious," said Franklin E. Freeman Jr., newly-appointed director of the administrative office of the courts.

"So if you ask me what we're doing to promote frugality and I say nothing new, it doesn't mean we're wasteful. It just means we're good enough at being frugal without starting a lot of budget-cutting drives."

In fact, Freeman said, the 1981 General Assembly agreed to many of the judicial system's requests for additional personnel but rejected similar requests from other departments.

"They're aware that we've been doing all we can to hold down expenses, but the demands on the courts keep increasing and it takes people and resources to handle the load," he said.

Despite its budget-cutting inclinations, the legislature funded two additional superior court judges, six district court judges, 11 assistant district attorneys, and 75 assistant clerks of court and other judicial workers.

That will help, but even more money is needed to keep the system running smoothly, Freeman said.

A $5 million judicial equipment bill introduced in the recent legislative session is still pending. The bill would provide money for everything from microfilm machines to law literature, Freeman said.

"Believe it or not, some of the smaller courthouses in the state don't even have complete law libraries," he said. "And there are magistrates — the people who make out arrest warrants — who don't have copies of all the general statutes."

Freeman said it is too early to tell how the newly-enacted Fair Sentencing Act will affect the cost of running the courts. But he said there's little doubt it will increase the length of trials.

The act, which took effect July 1, sets standard sentences for a number of offenses and requires judges to explain any deviation in writing. That will make sentencing hearings after guilty verdicts more commonplace.

The administrative office of the courts is preparing standardized forms for judges to fill out when sentencing under the new act, which Freeman hopes will make the task less cumbersome.

"But we just can't tell at this point how much that will help, or whether the law will be any problem," he said. "I think it's inescapable that it'll slow things down some, but how much I can't say."

Although the judicial system fared well in the recent legislative session compared to other departments, the legislature didn't appropriate any money for additional public defenders.

Threlkeld's Move Is News Story, Not Game Show

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — CBS correspondent Richard Threlkeld was not a contestant in "Can You Top This?", a new game show for TV journalists in the news-entertainment business. Instead of letting the three networks alternately bid up his value, as Dan Rather and Tom Brokaw did recently, Threlkeld decided to move to ABC without fanfare and without telling CBS. "I don't like to horsetrade. I'm not a horse," said Threlkeld, 43, who will switch networks in January after 16 years as one of CBS' most distinguished and versatile newsmen. "After I decided ABC was the best place for me to go, it would have been wrong to make a verbal agreement and take it back to CBS to see what they could do.

"Once you decide in your head and heart what you want, it's the better part of decency just to do it." For the past three years, Threlkeld has brought the same clear-thinking to the week's major story, the "Cover Story," on "CBS News Sunday Morning." Some of his earlier assignments included co-anchoring the "CBS Morning News" and covering the Vietnam War and the political wars of the past few presidential campaigns.

In ABC, he saw a growing news organization feeling its oats and willing to experiment with different news vehicles. ABC agreed to create the job Threlkeld outlined, sort of a roving news analyst.

"Everybody who knows me knows I have a short attention span for jobs, so the time was right," Threlkeld said. "ABC was offering me an opportunity to be an Anthony Lewis (of the New York Times) with a transistor.

"I don't expect to be sitting in a studio. I'll be out on the road, here and overseas, giving perspective to running stories. I don't want to be the principal reporter. I'll come in and try to lend a little color, history and perspective."

Threlkeld said it certainly wasn't easy leaving CBS and its rich journalistic tradition. "CBS is the Rolls-Royce of TV news — traditional, utterly dependable and very predictable," he said. "ABC is like a Ferrari — real fast, not always predictable, but a lot of fun. It all depends what kind of car you wanted to drive. At this stage of my life, I'm in a Ferrari mood."

People at CBS aren't treating him as a journalistic leper. "It's been a healthy reaction. Nobody has said, 'How can you do this!' They offer congratulations and say they hope I'm doing the right thing."

Threlkeld will have a reunion at ABC with former CBS staffers Hughes Rudd and Sylvia Chase. But for now, he's spending six months at CBS in an unusual lame-duck role.

"Dallas' will hang on, but it won't attract the same advertisers. The majority of advertisers have become a lot more careful, and there's a good deal of distress merchandise out there," Wildmon said.

NBC, which broadcasts "Flamingo Road," said advertising sales were not sluggish for the show. A spokesman for CBS, which presents "Knot's Landing" and "Dallas," said it would not discuss its advertisers.

"There's nothing lame about him," said E.S. "Bud" Lamoreaux, senior producer of the Sunday show. "I plan on keeping him on the air as long as he wants, and nobody from management has told me otherwise."

Charles Kuralt, anchor for CBS' morning news shows, said: "I want to keep this lovely thing going. Any piece we get out of him is all to the good. He's a marvelous writer and unexcelled at putting stories together effectively. He's a rare bird."

HELPING HAND — Humans always have had a fascination with high places and men have been climbing mountains for ages. This isn't a mountain, but it is a rather high boulder along a stream near Columbus, Ga., and these two boys have worked out the technique needed to reach the top — teamwork. (AP Laserphoto)

Court Upsets Marvin Award

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An appeals court has reversed a $104,000 award given Michelle Triola Marvin in her palimony suit against Lee Marvin, but her lawyer says the fight isn't over.

The state Court of Appeal ruled 2-1 Tuesday that the rehabilitative award was not proper under California law, although the court did not overrule the principle under which Ms. Marvin sued the actor in 1972 for $1.8 million, or half the assets he earned during the six years they lived together out of wedlock.

Ms. Marvin, a onetime nightclub singer who contended Marvin had promised to care for her for life, could not be reached for comment. But her lawyer, Marvin Mitchelson, said he would appeal the case to the California Supreme Court.

"This is the same court that told us that people who live together are sinful," Mitchelson said. "That's the ruling the California Supreme Court struck down."

Lee Marvin's lawyer, Dave Kagon, said the actor "was pleased" because the Court of Appeal ruling "is basically the position we'd taken."

"We didn't feel, under the circumstances, that the $104,000 was justified," Kagon said. But Mitchelson said that in the original December 1976 state Supreme Court ruling allowing palimony suits, there is a provision specifying that "lower courts are free to evolve whatever remedies they deem appropriate, based on the reasonable expectation of the parties."

He said the Court of Appeal disregarded that provision in finding fault with Superior Court Judge Arthur Marshall's award of "rehabilitative" remedy.

TV Boycott Is Possibility

NEW YORK (AP) — The Coalition for Better Television has renewed its threat to boycott companies that advertise on network television programs it deems excessively violent or lewd.

The conservative coalition of more than 300 political and religious groups, one of which is the Moral Majority, called off a boycott in June, saying advertisers had pledged to work with networks for cleaned-up shows.

But its leader, the Rev. Donald Wildmon, said in an interview published Wednesday in the New York Daily News: "If I were a betting man, I'd bet that before the 1981-82 television season is over, there's a 90 to 95 percent chance there'll be a boycott."

"I have a hunch that it's inevitable."

Wildmon mentioned several programs he said would have problems finding sponsors, including "Flamingo Road," "Knot's Landing" and "Three's Company."
