U.S. Description Of Dogfight

HOW IT HAPPENED — This graphic details events in the brief confrontation Wednesday between two U.S. Navy F-14 jets and two Soviet-built Libyan SU-22's about 60 miles from the Libyan coast in the Gulf of Sidra in the Mediterranean, according to U.S. Defense Department sources. Two Navy jets, involved in routine exercises in international airspace, were shot at by the Libyan planes and retaliated by shooting down the SU-22s, the official statement from the Defense Dept. indicated. Libya claims its airspace extends 200 miles to sea. (AP Laserphoto)

Syria Rallies To Support Libya In Assailing U.S.

By The Associated Press
Syria, joining other Arab states in condemning the United States for downing two Libyan warplanes, today said the incident was "American aggression against Libya and Syria alike."
It declared Syria was "ready to carry out its national obligations toward sister Libya." The obligations were not spelled out, however.
Syria's state radio, monitored in Beirut, said the vice premier and foreign minister, Abdul Halim Khaddam, made the Syrian position clear in a telephone talk with Libya's second in command, Maj. Abdel Salam Jalloud.

Damascus Radio also criticized "those Arabs who still advocate attempts to neutralize the United States in the Mideast conflict. America is the No. 1 enemy of the Arabs and should be treated as such."
The jets were downed 60 miles off the Libyan coast Wednesday during 6th Fleet maneuvers. The Pentagon said one of the Libyan planes opened fire, and the Navy jets shot them down. Libya claims a 200-mile territorial zone, but the United States recognizes only a three-mile limit.
Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said today that no U.S. naval maneuvers were planned in the near future near Libya, and "we don't expect more trouble." He spoke to reporters in London where he arrived for four days of talks with British Defense Secretary John Nott.

America's 14 NATO allies thanked the Reagan administration for briefing them swiftly on the incident during a meeting Wednesday in Brussels and made little other comment. But Italy's Foreign Ministry hinted that Libya provoked the incident and assailed the Libyans' "expansionist aims."
The Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, one of the smaller guerrilla organizations, called for an "immediate oil and economic embargo against the United States." But none of the oil-producing nations including Libya gave any indication that they were considering a boycott.
Oil industry sources said since there is a sizable surplus of oil on the world market, the United States would have no difficulty replacing the 475,000 barrels a day Libya ships to the United States.
Some oil industry officials expressed fears that Libya might nationalize the holdings of American companies operating there. They include Occidental Petroleum, Exxon, Mobil, Conoco, Marathon Oil and Amerada Hess. But the companies reported their Libyan operations were still normal Wednesday.
There was also no report of any retaliation against the 2,000 American citizens living in Libya. Most of them are oil company employees and their families, and they have kept their distance from the Libyan population since the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli was sacked, burned and closed in December 1979.
In Beirut, Lebanon, the U.S. Embassy asked the Lebanese government for extra protection as newspapers and radio stations voiced fears today that pro-Libyan groups would mount bombing and rocketing attacks on American targets in Lebanon.
"As is always the case when there is special concern, we requested extra protection," a U.S. Embassy official, who declined use of his name, told The Associated Press.
There was no indication if the U.S. State Department had urged increased vigilance on other American embassies in the region, but such has been standard policy in the past following controversial events such as Israel's bombing of an Iraqi reactor complex last June.

Another radical faction within Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, the Libyan-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, accused the United States of air piracy and "deliberate provocations designed to set the stage for an attack on Libya."
Syria's government-controlled media accused the United States of aggression against Libya. Newspapers (Please turn to Page 6)

Farm Costs

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The cost of running the average farm has doubled in the last eight years, led by sharp increases in the cost of fuel, machinery and labor.

Agricultural extension specialists at North Carolina State University reported increases in farm production of $137 billion nationwide last year, for a record average of $56,000 per farm.
The specialists said increases in farming costs since the mid-1970s have been especially sharp for fuels and energy, vehicles and machinery, rent, chemicals and wages.
Last year's figures showed that about 16 percent of production costs went for rent, hired work, veterinarian services, insurance, marketing and contracted transportation. The total bill for those services was more than $21 billion.
Feed outlays took the next largest chunk of farmers' spending — about $20 billion or 15 percent. That category was followed by 13 percent for livestock and poultry, 13 percent for seeds, plants, fertilizers and chemicals and 10 percent for autos, trucks, tractors and machinery.
The production costs were compiled by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Crop Reporting Board which conducts an annual survey of farm costs. About 9,000 farmers and ranchers participated in the study.
While production costs per farm averaged $56,000 nationwide, average expenditures in the states ranged from $115,000 in California to $23,000 in Kentucky.
In the region consisting of Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina, the production expenses averaged $28,000.

Rain, Some Winds For Pitt, But No Damages

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
Besides heavy rain and some strong winds, Greenville and Pitt County felt no ill effects from tropical storm Dennis as he skidded up the North Carolina coastline late Wednesday and early today.
Over three inches of precipitation fell on the area in the rainy two-day period that accompanied the storm. Greenville Utilities' water plant measured a total of 3.69 inches by 8 a.m. today. The largest amount of rain fell between 8 a.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. today. According to the water plant, 2.93 inches was recorded in this 24-hour period. On Tuesday, .51 inch fell by 8 a.m. and at 8 a.m. Wednesday .25 inch was measured.
The rain pushed the level of the Tar River up from 4.1 feet Wednesday to 5.5 feet this morning. Both readings were taken at 8 a.m.
Pitt-Greenville Airport reported winds of 15 knots before 8 p.m. last night, and gusts of 18-20 knots early this morning.
Farm agents see no serious consequences from the passage of the storm.
"Some corn may have been blown down by the wind," said Pitt extension agent Sam Uzzell, "but the most serious problem will be the wet weather for those folks who are trying to harvest tobacco."

"The amount of water we've had will make it difficult for people to get their harvesters in the fields," agreed Pitt extension agent Roger Cobb. "And it will make it very difficult for those who don't have shelters to get the tobacco out of barns."
Despite these obstructions, Uzzell said he doesn't think the area has had too much rain. "Maybe for peanuts," he noted, "but otherwise we're OK."
No street flooding during the night was reported in Greenville by public works director Mayo Allen. "We had a crew on standby last night and anticipated some problems," he noted, "but none were reported."
Allen said the rain, although it was a large amount, fell slowly enough to allow normal runoff. "We had a crew out checking this morning too but so far the worst problems are a few minor washouts, where pavement was dug up and not patched and water got underneath it."
Temperatures remained cool today, with a reading of 68 degrees Fahrenheit at 8 a.m. Wednesday's temperatures ranged from a high of 72 degrees F. to a low of 63 degrees F.
The National Weather Service predicts subsiding winds and rain during today, with partly cloudy skies tomorrow and a possibility of rain again for the weekend.

Tropical Storm Claimed Two Lives During East Coast Sweep

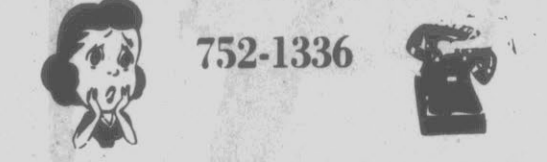

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — A growing Tropical Storm Dennis pushed across the vacation resorts of North Carolina's Outer Banks with high winds and stinging rain today after claiming two lives in a sweep along the East Coast.
The National Weather Service said the storm was on a northeasterly track that would take it out over the Atlantic where conditions were favorable for it to build into a full-fledge hurricane later today.
At 9 a.m., forecasters located the storm's broad center near latitude 35.5 north, longitude 75.5 east, about 25 miles north of Cape Hatteras. Top winds were clocked at 55 mph, mainly in squalls.
Air Force reconnaissance reports indicated the storm was strengthening, the weather service said.
Gale warnings were up from Cape Lookout north to Chincoteague Inlet, including the Outer Banks, and on Chesapeake Bay from Windmill Point southward.
The weather service said the storm hit land about 4 a.m. near Salter Path on the Bogue Banks and moved into Pamlico Sound southwest of Cape Hatteras.
Storm-wise residents of Wilmington and the Outer Banks took the storm in stride, but many tourists fled. As the storm brushed the South Carolina coast on Wednesday, officials estimated that 40,000 to 50,000 vacationers packed up and left the popular Grand Strands resort area.
The state Highway Patrol reported several county roads washed out in Castle Hayne of northern New Hanover County, and U.S. Route 258 was closed to traffic near the Jones-Onslow county line.

In Cherry Point, which was drenched with almost 5 1/2 inches of rain in a 24-hour period, some flooding was reported along the Neuse River. Water levels were 2 to 3 feet above normal. Jacksonville reported nearly 6 inches of rain during the same period.
Some tidal flooding and beach erosion was reported on the Outer Banks. Tides about 3 1/2 feet above normal and surf from 8 feet to 13 feet were expected.
The approaching storm forced national park officials to close campgrounds on Ocracoke Island, while the state Department of Transportation kept the Hatteras Island ferry running through the early morning hours, helping move campers and tourists from the area.
Asa Staley, a service station operator in Mann's Harbor, said he had seen many vacationers heading inland, but said most residents of the Outer Banks were staying put.
"They've been pouring out," he said. "I saw more cars leaving today than came in over the weekend. As for the residents, Staley said, "They're not going anywhere. They never have."
Jim Meads, who owns a 700-foot-long fishing pier in Nags Head, said he wasn't worried that waves splashing over the side of the pier would destroy it.
"It's something you got no control over," he said as he watched from inside a bar. "If you're going to worry about it, you got no business in this business."
The National Weather Service said the storm no longer posed a danger to

Candlelight Wedding Performed On Friday

The candlelight wedding of Janet Charlene Spain and Charles Jeffrey Stocks was conducted Friday evening at 7:30 in the Red Oak Christian Church here.

Performing the double ring ceremony was Dr. Harold W. Deitch.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Spain of Rt. 6, Greenville, is a graduate of North Pitt High School and is attending East Carolina University. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Stocks of Rt. 8, Greenville, is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and is engaged in farming.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline of scalloped chantilly lace. The empire bodice, overlaid in French chantilly lace, was enhanced by a sheer yoke embroidered in floral motifs beaded with pearls. The lace bishop sleeves featured cuffs of scalloped lace. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were accentuated by a ruffled flounce edged in chantilly lace and topped by a pick-up overskirt of organza bordered in the scalloped chantilly lace. She wore a fingertip veil edged in scalloped chantilly lace attached to a semi Juliet cap overlaid in matching lace. The bride carried a bouquet of white carnations and daisies accented with baby's breath tied with a white satin bow and streamers.

Susan Williams of Bethel was maid of honor and was dressed in a formal A-line gown which had a fitted bodice of sheer floral design of miniature pink and blue flowers. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and white daisies sprinkled with baby's breath tied with a pink bow and streamers.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. The organist was Jasa Allen of Rt. 4, Greenville.

After a trip to the beach, the couple will make their home in Greenville.

Touching Habit Bothers Reader

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: H. IN BLUFFTON, OHIO, was irritated by people who had a habit of touching or patting him while conversing.

For a number of years, therapists have been actively promoting touching through what they have termed "sensitivity training." They maintain that a friendly hand placed on another's arm or shoulder has great therapeutic value and promotes a closeness not possible to attain by mere words.

Although I am not naturally inclined toward such "familiarity," I have been trying to develop a natural ease in applying that technique. But according to you, touching may be resented rather than appreciated. Please explain.

PUZZLED IN SAYRE, PA.

DEAR PUZZLED: H. IN BLUFFTON complained about people who not only patted and touched, but grabbed him as well — a far cry from a "friendly hand placed on another's arm or shoulder."

Agreed, touching does promote a closeness not possible by mere words, but if one prefers distance rather than closeness, it is his right to be left alone.

DEAR ABBY: My husband deserted me in Oklahoma 20 years ago. He went to Detroit and married another woman without even divorcing me. Twelve years later I was granted a divorce on the grounds of desertion.

Well, Abby, in my religion I believe that we are still married in the eyes of God until death do us part, and I will not be free to marry again until he dies.

I don't even know whether he is living or dead, and I wonder if there is a way I can find out when he dies. We are both 43 years old.

MARRIED FOR LIFE

DEAR MARRIED: Get in touch with his nearest kin or a close relative. Even a close friend will do. Ask to be notified in the event of your ex-husband's death. And it wouldn't hurt to keep checking back with them at least once a year in case they forget.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

All you fathers of brides out there . . . and you all know who you are . . . please rise to your feet and say good-bye to an old friend . . . barefoot - in-the-fields - weddings.

Boy, those were the days, weren't they, Dad? A little knoll under a tree somewhere, a minister from the Hey Man What's Happening center, a flute player in a $12 pair of jeans and $5,000 worth of amplifiers.

The bride and bride groom arrived in a van painted with serpents on the side and after a toast of organic juices, they crushed their Styrofoam cups on the rock and took off to Big Sur.

It's been fun and it's been cheap, but it's all over.

According to the current Bride's magazine, barefoot-in-the-park weddings are out. After a decade of negative attitudes about marriage, today's couples are embracing the institution, flaws and all. A whopping 98 percent of brides queried in survey said they want a formal wedding with all the trimmings.

Sir, maybe you'd better sit down.

They're not talking just a long, white dress and an urn of seasonal flowers on either side of the altar. They're talking symbolism and romance. Have you any idea how much symbolism and romance cost these days?

One page is devoted to having symbolic candles to light the entire church. (A birthday candle that measures an inch and a half and burns three seconds costs 59 cents!)

Diamonds are coming back, combined with a stone from a family heirloom or fashioned into a special design of their own choosing and your own paying.

and again? Tradition will demand the bride carry flowers that are symbolic . . . and out of season, like violets in December and sprigs of poinsettia in August.

Oh, and look for the return of another tradition . . . the one where the father of the bride is taking his future son-in-law aside and saying, "I'll give you $10,000 and a van with serpents painted on the side if you'll run away and get married on a surfboard at Big Sur."

Cooking For President Is Major Task

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —
Cooking for the president of the United States is no small matter for Raimund Hofmeister. First there is the special menu, then the personal shopping and finally the equivalent of the presidential food tasters.

And sometimes it all goes for naught.

Take, for example, the stuffed quail dinner for 1,500 at a California Republican fund-raising dinner in April, at which President Reagan was to be the star attraction.

The 32-year-old Hofmeister, chief chef at Los Angeles' Century Plaza Hotel, spent six days preparing the dinner, but Reagan was unable to attend after being wounded in assassination attempt March 30.

"All these quails you had to bone and take the bones out, and fill them and sew them out," Hofmeister said in an interview in the kitchen of the hotel where Reagan has been staying this week. "We went all out to really impress him and then he didn't show up. But we impressed all his friends."

Reagan, who makes a practice of staying in the large, two-bedroom, $750-a-night presidential suite when he is in Los Angeles, returned in June and Hofmeister set out to prepare another feast for 1,500. This time the entree was steak.

"We tried to cook special for him," Hofmeister said. "We put it on a special plate and made it extra nice for him, went to a lot of trouble to make sure he gets the right center cuts. Everything first-class."

Then came the White House aides and the special plate for Reagan was rejected "because it was intentionally made for the president while his aides were not there," Hofmeister said.

"So they came and among the 1,500 lunches we prepared, they picked out 10 for the head table where the president was seated," the chef recalled. "They picked out two steaks from this tray and two steaks from that tray..."

This week, at a lunch for Reagan and his National Security Council, Hofmeister finally succeeded in his personal quest to make a special meal for Reagan.

A Reagan aide had requested chicken salad, but Hofmeister doesn't like chicken salad. So he poached chicken breasts, chilled them, sliced them and place kiwi fruit inside with mushroom and sesame. There also were tomatoes, but Hofmeister discovered neither the president nor his wife, Nancy, likes tomatoes, so he made two plates without them.

Word soon spread among restaurant patrons that Reagan was dining in an adjoining room. They wanted to know what the president was eating and whether they could have it, too. They got it. And now the "president's salad" is likely to go on the menu, according to Paul Lasley, a hotel spokesman.

Hofmeister, a native of Germany who has been in the United States about eight years, enjoys his status as occasional presidential chef. But it has its headaches, too.

First, he will be alerted that Reagan is coming to town. "Management will ask me to make something nice, something spectacular. We do that. Then at the last minute, they change the menu three or four times until, finally, Reagan's people actually tell you what they want."

As a special guest, Reagan "can order anything he wants," Hofmeister said. "He will get anything he asks for. For him, whatever he wishes he can get."

Reagan likes fresh fruit, and Hofmeister personally selects it at the market.

Reagan does not actually have food tasters, of course. But when he is on the road, either his valet or the stewards from Air Force One oversee the preparation. They know what the president likes, but mostly they are guarding against any tampering.

How Little We Know

California's authorities waited five days after determining the presence of Mediterranean fruit flies before cautiously spraying. Environmentalists fought the process with some good arguments as well as playing on fears of the public.

Five days is a long time in the life of the fruit flies. The delay may require more spraying with insecticide than would have been necessary with prompt reaction. The problem is that we may never know, for sure.

Florida's officials wasted no time when fruit flies were determined to be menacing that state. Spraying was launched as quickly as possible. It was not an easy decision because Florida knows too well (from bitter experience) the price of chemical over-use on the environment. Still, prompt action may have reduced the amount of malathion necessary to save a large part of that state's agricultural economy. Again, we may never know for sure.

This we do know: agriculture and the chemical industry are intertwined. Without fertilizers, fungicides and pesticides and a broad variety of specialized applications, food production in this country would be hard pressed to meet the demands of our multitudes. Somewhere there must be a balance in the use of chemicals that help insure food productivity without harmful side effects; or, whole new families of useful and safer chemicals are pre-requisite.

Our agriculturists know a lot; but they keep on running into the same bafflement all seekers after knowledge encounter — the more one learns, the more one realizes how little they really know.

PCC Program Helps Hospital

Twelve patient rooms in the new bed tower of Pitt Memorial Hospital have been allocated to the Pitt Community College nursing education program at least until next year.

The move will allow PCC to increase its entering nursing class numbers from 50 to 76.

The nursing program has been helpful to Pitt County Memorial and 51 percent of this year's PCC graduating nursing class was recruited by the hospital.

It is to PCMH's advantage to cooperate in any way it can with the PCC nursing education program. Large numbers of the program's graduates will stay in the area and that can be most helpful to the hospital in filling its nursing needs.

Progress In Work

By GOV. JIM HUNT
(Bill Noblitt is on vacation)
RALEIGH — Reducing state government growth and increasing worker productivity have been two priorities in my administration, and I'm proud to say we're making progress in both areas.

Under the budget enacted by the recent General Assembly, the number of state jobs will be reduced this year. In fact, since I first took office in 1977, I have worked to ensure a decrease in the rate of state government growth. And we're getting good results.

From 1970-77, the number of state employees increased by an average of 3.8 percent each year. Since 1977, the growth rate has declined steadily, culminating in a less than one percent growth rate for 1980-81.

And for fiscal year 1981-82, there will even be an actual reduction in the state's work force of about 1.1 percent.

While this state had enacted a reduction in the number of state jobs, the new federal budget will actually increase the number of federal government employees.

North Carolina is taking a responsible approach to managing the state's largest business, and this plan adds up to good news for our taxpayers.

The Best

Our people are our greatest resource. Our plan will ensure that government will provide better services with the resources it already has.

Double-digit inflation has taken its toll over the past few years. We have had to make sacrifices in all areas of our lives, including government. We have come to demand good management and controlled spending.

But while we are slowing government growth, cutting waste and managing more effectively, we must also keep our productivity high. We need to keep looking for better, more efficient ways to meet the challenges facing government and to give you, the taxpayer, your money's worth.

That is why I've encouraged car-pooling among the state employees, supported a search for alternate sources of energy and tried to implement new technological advancements.

I've tried to bring more state employees into the decision-making process. An employee suggestion system saved the state $298,000 last year. Thousands of dollars were saved when an employee in the Department of Transportation suggested using thinner concrete on our interchange ramps that still met specifications and was safe.

Another DOT employee suggested changing the way stripes are painted along highway medians. This plan, which reduced the amount of paint used, saved taxpayers thousands of dollars.

Rewards
We have a pay incentive plan which provides cash awards or time off to those employees who come up with good ideas for increasing efficiency and saving money.

Our Government Executive's Institute and Public Mangers Program, patterned after the UNC School Business, has increased training programs for state officials, and our Senior Executive Programs mobilize retired executives who can provide state government with advice on how we can become more efficient.

Another program we've enacted is Work Planning/Performance Review, in which every employee meets with his or her supervisor to plan his work schedule for a six-month period. At the end of the six months, the supervisor and employee review the work, and the results are recorded on the employee's permanent record.

You have voiced your feelings about growth in government, and I'm responding. Because of efforts we are making, qualified state employees will keep their jobs, waste will be curtailed and better state government will result.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum should be limited to 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit longer letters.

To the editor:

Mr. Lang's report of the status and future of Downtown Greenville was an extremely simplistic analysis of a very complex problem. Further, the article was misleading in that it presumed that the major objective of the downtown project was to retain the retail trade center in the downtown. Both civic and business leaders fully realized that the downtown must be revitalized in order to provide for the orderly transition to encourage financial institutional and professional development to offset losses in retail outlets.

The success of the downtown project must be judged on the objectives of the project, which were to improve traffic flow, provide adequate parking and modernize and renovate the entire area. It was further felt that public funds should be used to improve public facilities in order to encourage private investment. Thus, the two-block mall, pedestrian walkways and underground utility systems were constructed. The private sector responded with enthusiasm as indicated by investment of over $7 million in new private construction in the downtown area. More importantly, over $1 million has been expended for renovation of 70 existing buildings in the downtown area which literally changed the face of the City. It should also be noted that Greenville was granted $7.5 million for Community Development Program, based upon the City activity in Urban Renewal Areas.

Although tremendous progress has been made, the downtown business community must continue to work for improved access in the future. Charles Street has been improved from the downtown to the Bypass and Evans Street is currently a priority project for improvement from the downtown to the Bypass. In the future, it is hoped Dickinson Avenue will be a priority for improvement to Memorial Drive.

Although Mr. Lang made no mention of it, the Downtown Business Community requested the downtown project, participated in the planning of the project, including design of the mall and this former Project Area Committee has now expanded into the "Downtown Greenville Association." They have already invested their funds in the future of the downtown and I am confident they will insure the future success of the downtown.

WHAT'S THAT ABOUT THE INDISPENSABLE MAN?

By HUGH MULLIGAN

Beauty In The Language

LONDON (AP) — As the novelist Henry James said one day to the novelist Edith Wharton, "Summer afternoon — summer afternoon: to me those have always been the two most beautiful words in the English language."

He repeated them, of course, because James was never a man to use two words where 2,000 would suffice.

There is a story told of Henry James ordering dinner at the Cafe Royal, London's elegant Edwardian restaurant on Regent Street, and overwhelming the waiter with his compulsion to improve every paragraph, substitute more precise synonyms and pyramid phrases into elaborate teetering constructions:

"Bring me, fetch me, carry me, serve me, supply me with, in other words, and I hope you are following me, bear forth from the kitchen when it is cooked, scorched, grilled, I should say broiled, a large, considerable, meaty as opposed to fatty, chop."

T.S. Eliot said James had "a mind so fine that no idea could violate it." William Faulkner described Henry James as "one of the nicest old ladies I ever met."

"I am reading Henry

James," sighed Virginia Woolf, "and I feel myself as one entombed in a block of smooth amber."

So when James, from among the millions of words he wrote, and the millions more he sputtered, proceeds to choose two: "summer afternoon" as the most beautiful in the language, one must pause for one of those profound Jamesian pauses and ponder deeply.

Personally, as far as two lovely sounding words go, I like reading letters that begin "Enclosed check..."

In Depression days "free lunch" had a nice ring to it, while in this the summer of our sporting discontent millions would have thrilled to hear a major league umpire intone "Play Ball."

The magic words "I will" transformed Lady Diana Spencer into a princess when spoken in the presence of the Archbishop of Canterbury here recently.

In Rome there is great joy, white smoke in the sky over St. Peter's and a jubilant tumbling of bells when a senior cardinal totters out on the balcony to pronounce the two Latin words: "Habemus Papam." We have a pope.

The hearts of a divorcee and her lawyer bound with unbounded bliss when a judge judiciously decrees, "decree granted," just as a felon's heart leaps up to hear a jury foreman announce "Not Guilty."

In Ireland, the words "God bless," spoken by a publican, a newsdealer or even a public servant over the telephone, invest you with a personal benediction that follows you about for the rest of the day. In no other country do you hear those words uttered with more warmth and sincerity.

"War Over" would be the happiest headlines one could read in Ulster, Lebanon, El Salvador, wherever man's most senseless pursuit is still pursued.

"Daddy's home" have got to be two of the most joyous words in everyday use, and kids around here still go ape at the cry of "school's out."

To me, a Pullman porter's cry of "All Aboard" and a ship's loudspeaker barking "All Ashore" will always spell adventure and excitement.

"Rave Reviews" are words to live by for an actress or an actor, except in the case of Ronald Reagan who probably preferred "landslide victory."

"No Smoking" seems to have gained in importance in recent years, while "Pay Raise," "No Tipping," "Bar Open," and "Your Round" remain high on the list of most everyone's all-time favorites.

Authors no doubt like to hear their names linked with the two words "best seller," and "Oscar winner" has a certain aura on a marquee.

"Believe me" are probably the two most doubted words in the English language, while "mayday," "drop dead," "Please remit," and "get lost" rank among the most disheartening.

The lovely lilt of "Spanish waters" inspired one of John Masefield's most euphonic poems:

"Spanish waters! Spanish waters!
You are ringing in my ear
Like a slow sad piece of music
From the gray forgotten years..."

"Christmas Time!" To Charles Dickens "that man must be a misanthrope indeed in whose breast something like a jovial feeling is not roused."

Security Said Impeded

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration should consider loosening restrictions on domestic spying by the FBI in order to reduce the chance of presidential assassination attempts, a new government report suggests.

The Treasury Department report on the March 30 shooting of President Reagan also suggests easing other legal and technological barriers impeding the Secret Service from gathering information on potential presidential assassins.

In addition, the 101-page document released Wednesday concludes that Secret Service and White House advance teams need to improve security planning and that more special agents should be assigned to the president.

The report concluded that the Secret Service, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, which traced the gun used in the attack, and other Treasury agencies "performed well" in response to the shooting, which also wounded White House press secretary James Brady, a secret service agent and a District of Columbia policeman.

However, the report proposed a number of changes it said are needed to prevent future attacks, including increased domestic intelligence on people or groups that might be a threat to the president.

The report suggests that domestic intelligence gathering by the FBI be expanded and that the Privacy and Freedom of Information acts be narrowed to make it easier for the Secret Service to collect information.

The report contends that restrictions imposed on FBI domestic intelligence activities in 1976 have caused a "critical" decline in useful information transmitted to the Secret Service.

The guidelines were issued in response to disclosures of FBI abuses in the 1970s, when the agency was watching and harassing civil rights and anti-Vietnam war groups protesting U.S. policy.

The Privacy Act and Freedom of Information Act have discouraged collection of useful intelligence from sources who fear the confidentiality of their information cannot be assured, the report said. In addition, protective intelligence can be improved through increased cooperation from other government agencies and by upgrading the Secret Service computer system for analyzing potential threats, according to the report.

"As the March 30 incident reveals, physically surrounding the president is not sufficient protection," the report stated. "The president's ultimate shield must be the ability of the Secret Service to keep him out of dangerous environments. This the Service cannot do without adequate intelligence resources — information about the intentions and plans of potentially dangerous people."

The question of adequate intelligence was raised because John W. Hinckley Jr., the president's accused assailant, was arrested at the Nashville, Tenn., airport last October as he attempted to board a plane with three pistols. The arrest came the day that former President Carter was making a campaign appearance in Nashville. Reagan had planned to be in nearby Memphis that day but cancelled his trip.

There appeared to be no link at that time between Hinckley and a threat against the president, so the arrest record was not passed on to the Secret Service — "not an unreasonable decision," the report concluded.

But even if the Secret Service had been told, it probably would not have spotted a potential threat in this case, the report said, adding that improved information and intelligence-gathering procedures still may have been unable to prevent the events that unfolded on March 30.

The report refrained from casting blame for the attack on Reagan, but it observed that the routine nature and heavy load of presidential protection in the nation's capital "has resulted in agents devoting less attention to detail than is commonly the case in other locations."

The report emphasized that on March 30 the public could enter a roped-off area without any Secret Service pre-screening and mingle with reporters and photographers within 15 feet of (Please turn to Page 5)

Strength For Today

TO KNOW GOD
The God which many people worship is little more to them than a vague concept of higher power. But the Bible has made the nature of God and his purpose so plain that we can clearly understand all that the human mind is able to grasp about such a great reality as an unseen, all-powerful, personal God.

Every branch of the Christian Church teaches the same about the nature and sovereignty of God. The teachings of Jewish Scripture and the teachings of the New Testament fit perfectly together in giving us a picture of a personal God who is all-wise, loving, all-powerful, and whose purpose is to turn the hearts of his children toward Himself in love and fellowship. Our Lord declared that it is not the will of the Heavenly Father that a single person should be lost (Matt. 18:14). God would have all men come to a saving knowledge of the truth.

Worship is much more than merely acknowledging a higher power. It is getting to know God. — Elisha Douglass

Psychology And The Economy

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — One reason why the American economy is sluggish and in danger of falling into the pit of recession again has nothing at all to do with the traditional economic reasons.

It is psychological, and it arises from the utter confusion that seems to surround any big purchase these days, a confusion that sometimes can be resolved only by doing without the purchase.

When you think about buying a car, for example, you must first seek to determine the real price.

Is it the list price, or is the manufacturer or dealer offering a discount from list? Is a rebate program in effect? How long will it take to get the rebate check? What financing terms are being offered?

Having worked your way through these and resolved the question of what parts come as original equipment and what must be paid for separately, you are confronted with a question that can return you to square one:

Should you lease rather than buy?

To arrive at an answer you must study deeply because, as one bank notes in offering advice on the subject, "Leasing as an alternative to the outright purchase of a car has advantages and disadvantages."

Buying a house is worse. The near-demise of the conventional, long-term fixed-rate mortgage and the development of alternative mortgage packages has opened a Pandora's box. The confusion can be maddening.

Among the financing possibilities now available, for example, are the conventional mortgage, the seller mortgage, the rollover, graduated, variable, contract sale. It doesn't end there. Variations are possible.

In order to meet the down payment, some buyers accept a short-term second mortgage from the seller, and this by itself can have seemingly infinite variations. It may, to cite just one, call for interest-only payments for five years, with the principle due in lump at that time.

How does a couple confronted with all this manage to work out the countless possibilities at the kitchen table? They cannot. The future no longer is fixed; it may vary in unfathomable ways. It involves risk.

It's impossible to say how many would-be buyers have backed away when confronted with the intricate financing required, but you may assume it is in the many thousands. Retreat under such conditions can be wisdom.

The problem involves more than cars and houses. The incredible choices that ordinary investors must make today conceivably has sent thousands scurrying back to the security of simple passbook savings accounts.

You know that these are times that try the patience and understanding of investors when goods news, such as from the tax cut, further complicates the decision-making process.

Evidence of this will soon appear in advertisements, as banks, thrift institutions, mutual funds, insurers, brokers and others seek to convince you that the tax law makes their products most suitable.

It means that before you make any purchase you must study the evidence line by line, and then test your new knowledge step by step through frustrating hours on your electronic calculator.

Gone are the days when decisions were made over a few cups of coffee at the kitchen table. The marketplace today is a harrowing place.

Gold Panners In N.C. Do Not Expect Wealth

Nerve Gas Bombs Are Moved Safely To Utah

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — When Nancy McConnell of Charlotte leaves his job as an engineering geologist every weekend he takes along his pick and shovel and heads out to area streams to try to make his fortune in gold.

Like thousands of other North Carolinians, McConnell's hobby is panning for gold. Unlike prospectors in old Western movies, with their pack mules loaded down with gold-mining equipment, modern-day prospectors need only a pan and a shovel.

"That's the beauty of it," said McConnell, 30, who has been panning for four years. "All you need is the basic equipment and maybe a map of areas where gold has been found and you're all set."

Several Piedmont outdoor supply stores sell maps showing gold-mine sites. McConnell, like most other panners, says he pans strictly for fun, not for profit. "I have given some of the gold I've found away, but I've never found enough to sell," said McConnell, showing off a small vial of gold flakes and tiny nuggets.

Although most people think of California or Alaska when gold is mentioned, gold was found in North Carolina long before the first miner struck it rich on the West Coast in the 1800s.

The discovery of gold at the Reed Mine in Cabarrus County in 1799 led to the first extensive gold-mining operation in the country. In fact, the state produced so much gold that the Charlotte Mint opened in 1837. Area miners deposited about $4 million worth of gold in the mint during the next 23 years.

According to the state Department of Natural and Economic Resources there are six gold belts in North Carolina and about 600 inactive gold mines in the state. Most of the mines are

Reporters traveling with the president have observed that access to Reagan has been restricted and other precautions have been taken since March 30.

Current informal procedures by which Secret Service and White House advance teams determine presidential trip security should be replaced by detailed written rules, the report urged.

The report commended the four Secret Service agents assigned to the president that day. Jerry Parr, Timothy McCarthy, D.V. McCarthy and Ray Shaddick reacted "in precisely the manner required by their training," the report said.

The report limits its review to procedures and operations at Treasury agencies and did not deal with errors by individuals, such as the failure of Secret Service agents to notify doctors on the night of the assassination attempt that exploding bullets may have been used by the assailant.

The report also does not suggest whether the president should be shielded more from the public to reduce the chance of attacks. It said this is a political decision for him to make.

Other key findings and recommendations include: —Congress should consider increasing the special agent force, which has declined by 72 in the last four years to 1,544.

—Security around the president should be increased automatically after a threat on his life. The report noted that when Reagan was rushed to the hospital, security there was not increased substantially even though agents had yet to determine whether the shooting was part of a larger plot.

—Protective arrangements for the vice president in the event of an assassination attempt should be improved.

located in the Piedmont and western sections.

"Panning for gold in North Carolina is a natural," said Glenn Mays, director of the state Division of Travel and Tourism. "This state is rich in gold veins."

Mines that are open to the public offer gold panning for visitors for a small fee.

At the Reed Mine, visitors get two pans and can sift through a trough of sand, gravel and mud for gold. Most find only gold flakes or tiny nuggets, but once in a while a lucky panner discovers a sizeable nugget in the gravel.

"About two years ago one of our visitors found a nugget about the size of a thumbnail that was worth about $125," said Karen Lisenby of the Reed Mine staff. "But most are worth maybe $25 or $30. Most people do it for fun, not to get rich."

At the Cotton Patch Mine in Stanley County, the summer has brought thousands of panners to try their luck.

DUGWAY PROVING GROUND, Utah (AP) — The Army has safely transferred 62 more Weteye nerve gas bombs to western Utah's Dugway Proving Ground from Denver after a false alarm of a gas leak, officials said.

The second convoy to move the bombs along a 57-mile route from Dugway to permanent storage at Tooele Army Depot will begin later this week, the Army said.

Dugway spokesman Dick Whitaker said an M-8 automatic chemical agent alarm sounded aboard a C-141 cargo plane early Wednesday prior to takeoff from Denver's Stapleton Airport.

Whitaker said crew members immediately donned gas masks and the bombs were checked. He said no leaking nerve agent was found and it was determined the alarm was false.

The alarm system was then reset and inspected before the plane left, Whitaker said. He said the aircraft left Stapleton at 6:18 a.m. MDT and arrived at Dugway's Michael Army Airfield at 7:23 a.m.

Whitaker said the alarm wasn't unusual.

"Those M-8s are super sensitive and anything could trip them," he said, adding that the bombs were checked again at Dugway and no evidence of leaked nerve agent was found.

The alarm system is an automatic miniature chemistry laboratory that continuously samples the air around it and sounds an alarm when it detects chemical agents, the Army said.

The Army is moving 888 Weteyes and three one-ton containers of GB from the Rocky Mountain Arsenal in Denver to the Tooele depot, about 35 miles southwest of Salt Lake City. So far 636 of the bombs have been airlifted in 10 flights to Utah.

The Navy Weteye bombs each contain 346 pounds of GB nerve agent. The colorless, odorless chemical can kill within minutes by blocking nerve paths in the body.

The bombs contain no explosives or fuses and are sealed in airtight containers and strapped on iron pallets for the move.

The Army, which stores chemical weapons for all military branches, is under Congressional orders to either detoxify or move the bombs by Oct. 10 from the Denver arsenal, which is adjacent to busy Stapleton airport. Army officials have said they hope to complete the move by the end of next week. Last week, 320 of the bombs were airlifted in five flights from Denver to Dugway.

Hunger Striker Dies, Scattered Violence Erupts

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Irish nationalist hunger striker Michael Devine died today shortly before the start of an election to fill the British Parliament seat won by Bobby Sands, first of the hunger strikers to die.

Scattered violence erupted, leaving a British soldier shot in both legs and several cars and trucks hijacked and set afire. Three men were arrested in the attack on the soldier, and five other people were seized at polling stations for impersonating eligible voters. It was not known who they were attempting to vote for.

Devine, a 27-year-old member of the Irish National Liberation Army, died at the start of his 60th day without food. He was the 10th man to die in the fast for the equivalent of political prisoner status and had been serving a 12-year sentence for illegal possession of firearms.

As word of Devine's death spread, Catholic women in Londonderry and Belfast gathered in the streets for the ritual banging of garbage can lids and blowing of whistles.

The government's Northern Ireland Office said Devine died at 7:50 a.m. He had been reported blind and comatose on Wednesday, and his family was at his bedside in the Maze Prison hospital.

His death overshadowed the special election today to select a successor to Sands, who died May 5 after without occupying his seat. The election was seen as a test of Roman Catholic support of the hunger strikers.

Sands won the Fermanagh-South Tyrone seat in the House of Commons last April by 1,446 votes because of three factors: the district has about 4,000 more Catholic voters than Protestants, the IRA kept other Catholic candidates out of the race, and 3,280 Protestants invalidated their ballots to express their dislike of the Protestant candidate, hardliner Harry West.

Today, however, there were two Catholic candidates to divide the Catholic vote, and Protestant candidate Kenneth Maginnis was considered more acceptable to the Protestant voters than West.

The Catholic candidates were Owen Carron, a 28-year-old unemployed schoolteacher who managed Sands' election campaign, and Thomas Moore, 36, a Marxist labor leader from a non-violent offshoot of the IRA. Seamus Close of the non-sectarian Alliance Party may also get some of the Catholic vote.

The other two candidates were non-resident Englishmen who did not campaign in person, "Peace Lover" Martin Green of London and "General Amnesty" candidate Simon Raleigh of Norfolk.

Five members of the IRA and the INLA are still fasting in the Maze. But the IRA could not run one of them today because Parliament after Sands' election barred prisoners from running for office.

Carron, running as a "proxy political prisoner," had one campaign issue - support of the hunger strikers and opposition to continued British rule in Northern Ireland. He said he would not take his seat if elected, making clear that his aims were to embarrass the British government as Sands' election had and to provide another demonstration of public support for the IRA.

"This is a straight fight between those who support the prisoners and those who support the British government," said Bernadette Devlin McAliskey, one of the leaders of the committee supporting the hunger strikers. Maginnis, a former major in the provincial militia, campaigned on the issues of unemployment, which in some areas of Northern Ireland is as high as 23 percent of the work force, and the need for law and order in the district, where 104 people have been murdered since the renewal of sectarian violence 12 years ago.

All three major candidates charged harassment and intimidation during the campaign. Maginnis' manager accused Carron's supporters of tearing down his election posters. Moore claimed Carron's men were intimidating his supporters. Carron's spokesman claimed the security forces, most of whom are Protestants, were tearing down his posters.

There are 73,000 registered voters in the district of lakes and farms in the southwest corner of Northern Ireland, and a 90 percent turnout was expected. The ballots will not be counted until Friday, and the result is expected Friday afternoon.

To become an active member of Parliament, an elected candidate must take the oath of office, which Sands could not do because he was in prison.

Sands was elected because of a loophole in eligibility rules - since closed by legislation - that allowed convicted felons to seek office.

Oswald's Widow Wants Exhume Husband's Body

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - The widow of Lee Harvey Oswald says she wants to exhume her husband's body because she "strongly believes the grave has been tampered with" and she is tired of "stupid speculation and theories."

Marina Oswald Porter, the 39-year-old former wife of the alleged assassin of President John F. Kennedy, filed suit in state district court Wednesday, asking that her husband's grave at Rose Hill Burial Park be opened and the body examined.

"My life is unbearable because every time a new theory came along, I suffered," Mrs. Porter said. "I hope this (suit) will be for everybody's benefit."

Mrs. Porter's attorney, Jerry Pittman, said the suit was filed because of confidential conversations between members of the Warren Commission obtained in the past year showed some of the members felt Oswald's body had been moved and was either cremated or hidden.

The commission investigated the Nov. 22, 1963, shooting death of Kennedy and the slaying of Oswald by Dallas night club owner Jack Ruby two days later.

The attorney declined to reveal more information about the alleged conversations, saying the material would come out in the trial.

The case was assigned to State District Judge James Wright, who last September refused to grant British author Michael Eddowes' request to unearthen the body.

Eddowes claims that a Soviet agent, not Oswald, is buried in the grave. He says the agent took Oswald's place when the ex-Marine defected to the Soviet Union in 1959, where he met Mrs. Porter.

Attorneys for Eddowes appealed Wright's ruling. The appeal is scheduled to be heard in Fort Worth Sept. 10.

The suit Wednesday was filed against Oswald's older brother Robert, a Wichita Falls businessman who last year opposed Eddowes' efforts to open the grave.

Sales Volume Said Lighter

FARMVILLE - Although the volume of sales on Wednesday were lighter than on Tuesday, buying companies continued paying up to $1.90 a pound for top quality tobacco. Tobacco quality still remains good, with prices remaining steady for most grades.

On Wednesday, the Farmville Market sold 357,141 pounds for $608,432.03 for an average price of $1.70.36 per 100 pounds. To date, the market has sold 9,869,852 pounds for $16,442,074.25 for a season average of $166.59 per 100 pounds.

The season average on the same date last year was $140.63 per 100 pounds.

Robert Oswald declined comment on the suit, but his attorney, Craig Fowler of Dallas, called the move a "publicity stunt" and said it was based on "speculation, conjecture and hearsay."

Mrs. Porter testified on behalf of Eddowes, but said Wednesday she does not believe his theory and received no money from him for testifying.

The suit filed on behalf of Mrs. Porter claims "probative evidence exists that the body allegedly buried in the grave marked Lee Harvey Oswald had been illegally moved and secretly hidden," without Mrs. Porter's approval.

The suit also alleges there is evidence the body in the grave is "an individual other than Lee Harvey Oswald."

Fowler said Mrs. Porter had no legal basis to ask that the grave be opened because although Texas law gives a widow the right to determine what is to be done with her husband's body, only a judge can order the grave reopened after burial is completed.

Mrs. Porter said she couldn't say why she believed the grave was empty, adding "that will be presented at the court trial."

No date has been set for a hearing on the suit.

Big Pet Bear Shot To Death

GARWIN, Iowa (AP) - A 6-foot-tall black bear that was a farmer's pet was shot to death by a state conservation officer after trying to force its way into an 85-year-old woman's house, officials said.

The woman, Velma Kouba, was in satisfactory condition at a hospital suffering from acute shock. The bear had been missing from its home since Sunday and tried to get into the woman's house Tuesday, officials said.

Trustees Meet

Six new and re-appointed members of the East Carolina University Board of Trustees will be sworn in and officers for the coming year elected at a meeting of the board Monday.

The six include three new members of the board elected by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors this summer and one member who was re-elected. Two members of the board were appointed by Gov. James Hunt.

The board meeting will be held at 2 p.m. in Room 244 of Mendenhall Student Center.

Commission Loss Could Be Costly

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - The federal Coastal Plains Regional Commission, which helped build North Carolina's three marine science centers and the Wanchese Seafood Industrial Park, will soon be another casualty of federal budget cuts.

As of Sept. 30, the commission and seven other regional agencies administered by the U.S. Department of Commerce will be excised by the Reagan administration.

"We're winding down fast," said Frank Crawford, one of the few remaining administrators at the commission's Charleston, S.C. field office. "The only thing that will be ongoing after Sept. 30 will be any outstanding contracts (on projects), which will be administered directly by the Commerce Department."

The commission serves 45 eastern North Carolina counties eligible for its grants, and coastal regions of the five states from Virginia to Florida, by providing money to improve regional economies.

Since it began in 1965 as part of President Johnson's Great Society program, the commission has spent about $18 million on North Carolina projects.

At the Wanchese Seafood Industrial Park in Dare County, "the commission provided about $600,00 for planning, land purchases and engineering" out of a total of $7.5 million for the project, said John L. Booth of the N.C. Department of Administration.

"But it did a lot more than that, because it was the motivating force that put this project into motion," said Booth, who has coordinated the commission's projects in the state.

Other federal funds and about $2.5 million in state money were used to build the park, a facility that the state hopes will accommodate seafood processors.

The state's three marine resources centers, built at Fort Fisher, Roanoke Island and Bogue Banks at a cost of $4.6 million, were the result of commission funding.

This year's grant of $700,000 was slightly below the average of $1.2 million received annually in recent years, Booth said.

The most recent grant was used to turn an old Washington train station into an arts and civic center, extend water lines in the town of Aulander and study the feasibility of a regional sports arena in Pitt County.

Support Libya ...

(Continued from Page 1) in Kuwait, Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates, all of which generally reflect their government's opinions, charged in unison that Washington was "perpetrating aggression itself, rather than instigating Israel to do so." They urged the Arabs to patch up their differences and face the "American enemy" as one bloc.

Iran's Foreign Ministry called the downing of the Libyan planes an "expansion of American crimes and aggression throughout the world" and urged Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy not to "shy away from a confrontation" with America. Iran receives aid from Libyan for its war with Iraq.

Khadafy was in Aden, at the southern end of the Arabian peninsula, for a meeting with the leaders of South Yemen and Ethiopia and had no immediate public comment on the clash. But the Libyan state radio said his government sent a note to the United States via Belgium protesting:

"Libya considers the shooting on its planes as international terrorism practiced by the U.S. against the Libyan people based on jungle law and cowboy language, which is the only language America knows."

The United States, which accused the Libyan planes of attacking its planes over international waters, responded with a protest note delivered to the Libyan mission to the United Nations in New York.

A Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, Richard Ovinnikov, said: "The (U.S.) air piracy should somehow be condemned." But U.S. and Libyan diplomats at U.N. headquarters indicated they had no plans to take the incident to the Security Council.

Largely Unresponsive To Moral Majority's Reply

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — Moral Majority's response to a television ad campaign promoted by television producer Norman Lear are on the air, and some station officials say the public doesn't seem to care.

This month Moral Majority sent videotapes of four public service announcements to more than 200 television stations in the nation's 30 largest cities.

The Rev. Jerry Falwell, founder and president of the fundamentalist organization, and Cal Thomas, its vice president for communications, talk about First Amendment freedoms and separation of church and state.

WSET in Lynchburg and WSL in Roanoke have run some of the ads, and WDBJ in Roanoke produced a program about them, but station officials say the ads have been met with indifference by local viewers.

Thomas said indifference was what the organization had expected. To ensure that the ads could be broadcast as public service announcements, Thomas attempted to make them as uncontroversial as possible.

Had the ads contained controversial statements, many stations would not have run them, he said.

Under Federal Communications Commission regulations, stations cannot broadcast statements of opinion without offering time for those with different opinions to respond.

The ads were produced as Moral Majority's response to a similar ad campaign begun in June by TV producer Norman Lear's People For The American Way group. While Lear's ads do not mention Moral Majority or Falwell by name, Lear has said they are intended to counter "the intolerant messages and anti-democratic actions of moral majoritarians."

Lear's ads are also fairly uncontroversial, promoting freedom of thought as "the American way."

In fact, Thomas said Moral Majority agrees with everything said in the Lear ads, but decided to respond with its own because of Lear's attacks on Moral Majority outside the ad campaign.

So, while TV viewers watch two sets of uncontroversial ads, Moral Majority and People for the American Way are conducting a symbolic struggle within the FCC regulations.

WSET programming director Bonnie Brickhouse said she had heard no viewer reaction to the Moral Majority ads her station is running. WSET officials decided not to run two of the ads, including a 60-second spot featuring Falwell, because they contain statements about separation of church and state that could be debatable, Brickhouse said.

The ads will run an average of once a day for about three months, Brickhouse said. WSET is running the Lear ads on a similar schedule.

WSL general manager Robert Teeter said his station had also decided not to run all of the ads, but he did not say which ones or how often they would run.

"We've screened the announcements, and I think we've run a couple of them."

Asked if WSL had heard any viewer reaction, Teeter said, "Oh, no, no, no." WSL also is running the Lear ads.

WDBJ broadcast two of the ads on its weekly Dialogue call-in show, giving viewers a chance to respond on the air. The station had handled Lear's ads similarly in a previous show.

Dialogue host Ted Powers said the show was disappointing. Most callers commented on Falwell rather than the ads or Moral Majority, Powers said.

"To the best of my knowledge, no calls were specifically about the spots," Powers said.

"The personalities involved have overridden the issues involved," Powers said. "It has come down to a Norman Lear versus Jerry Falwell or somebody else versus Jerry Falwell."

Nationally, Lear seems to be ahead so far, at least in the number of stations carrying the messages. Sue Vogelsinger of People For The American Way said its ads are on 400 stations in 49 states, the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico. Reaction has generally been favorable, she said.

Spot checks on Moral Majority's ads indicated that they are running on at least 12 stations, including ones in Albany, Atlanta, Chicago, Seattle, and Los Angeles, Thomas said.

Illegal Activity Charges Denied

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Reports that the fine-cured tobacco warehouse industry is riddled with illegal activities are "totally irresponsible and completely false," the Bright Belt Warehouse Association Inc. said Wednesday.

In a statement criticizing recent news service stories based on reports from the Greensboro Daily News, the group said allegations that illegal activities occurred at 95 percent of the warehouses were "completely false."

"We categorically deny that the industry is plagued with illegal activities, and we want to assure the public that the warehouse business is not a haven for crooked operators."

News stories quoted U.S. Department of Agriculture officials, who described growing black market activities in the industry.

"The vast majority of tobacco farmers and warehousemen are good, hard-working people trying to make a living," Richard Benton, head of the USDA's Office of the Inspector General in Raleigh, said in the articles. "But some are not and it's the actions and greed of these people that hurt everyone else," he said.

Much of the illegal leaf comes from farmers who produce more than their legal limit, warehousemen who steal from their customers by underweighing piles of tobacco and thieves who hook their highway tractors to trailer-loads of tobacco and drive away, public records cited in the articles indicated.

Pan-Am's Union Leaders Back Airline Wage Cut Proposals

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Although leaders of two unions representing workers at Pan American World Airways have agreed to a proposal to cut wages 10 percent, the plan still faces a vote by the rank and file.

In separate actions that could be critical to Pan Am's survival, the leadership councils of the Transport Workers and Teamsters unions said Wednesday they endorsed the company's wage-cut plan and have recommended members approve it.

Leaders of Pan Am pilots and flight engineers unions accepted the company's proposed cutbacks last Thursday, according to Paul Chorbajian, chairman of the Pan Am Joint Labor Council representing about 26,000 employees.

Pan Am's bankers, growing impatient with the company's poor financial performance, have demanded Pan Am get approval for the wage-cut plan from four of five unions representing the company's U.S. employees.

Under terms of the plan, workers would receive a 10 percent pay cut Sept. 1, and raises called for in current contracts would be postponed through 1982. Chorbajian estimated the wage-reduction program would save the company about $150 million. Pan Am has declined to say what the savings would be.

Chorbajian said the joint labor council had begun "a sales job" to convince rank-and-file members to approve the wage cuts, although voting will not be completed until early next month.

"The way I figure it, they (the workers) can get 90 percent of their current pay, or they can stick by their guns and get 100 percent of nothing," he said. "We're dedicated to doing whatever we can to bail them (the company) out."

The membership votes apparently would be completed by Sept. 11, the date on which Pan Am is scheduled to sign a new credit agreement with its banks, led by Citibank of New York.

Pan Am announced Tuesday the banks cut its revolving credit to $200 million from two credits that totaled $463 million. The new line of credit would extend only until Dec. 1. What the banks will do after that date is not known. Citibank spokesman Chuck Klensch said the bank would not discuss Pan Am's credit.

Also Tuesday, Pan Am announced it would sell its hotel chain, Intercontinental Hotels Corp., which currently is its only profitable operation. It did not disclose the potential buyer, and Pan Am spokesman James Arey said the company would have no comment on a published report that Grand Metropolitan Ltd. of London was the interested party.

Grand Metropolitan, contacted Wednesday by telephone, said the only official authorized to speak on the matter was out of town.

Boy-In-A-Box Anxious To Return To His Air-Conditioned School

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Raul Espino Jr., who spent much of last school year confined to a temperature-controlled cubicle, says he's eager to start second grade now that a federal judge has ordered school officials to air condition his classroom.

"I really like the decision," the 7-year-old said Wednesday. U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela agreed with Raul's parents that a 5-foot by 5-foot box cooled with a portable air-conditioning unit was "inappropriate" for the boy's needs.

Raul, a straight-A student, suffered paralysis and damage to his nervous system in an auto accident. He cannot control his body temperature and must stay in environments between 72 and 76 degrees.

The Brownsville Independent 7-year-old District built the enclosure last fall after deciding to transfer Raul from Moody School for the Handicapped to a regular school. None of the district's regular elementary classrooms are air conditioned, although the high schools have air conditioning.

During the early fall and late spring, Raul's teacher testified during an Aug. 3 hearing before Vela, the boy spent between 75 and 100 percent of his time in the cubicle. When temperatures dropped in late fall and winter, he could rejoin his classmates.

The boy's parents, Ana and Raul Espino Sr., argued the cubicle separated their son unduly from his classmates and violated federal law requiring handicapped children to be placed in the "least restrictive" environment.

The Espinos lost appeals of the case before the local school board and the Texas State Board of Education after school Superintendent Raul Besteiro claimed a "Pandora's box" would open if Raul's classroom were air conditioned. He said parents of other children and teachers would complain of the preferential treatment.

Testimony indicated air conditioning a classroom would cost $5,700.

"It seemed self evident the decision to provide air conditioning for Raul in a plexiglass cubicle, and therefore at times segregate him from his non-handicapped classmates, is prima facie a violation of the mainstreaming provisions of the Education for All Handicapped Children Act (of 1975)," Vela wrote in his opinion.

The judge gave the school district 30 days to provide an air-conditioned room for Raul.

"With the possible exception of a child whose immunological system requires that he or she be kept within a sterile atmosphere, education within a cubicle will hardly ever be appropriate," Vela said.

Besteiro's office said he was out-of-town for a week and unavailable for comment.

Tony Martinez, lawyer for the school district, said he did not know if the ruling would be appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. He said an appeal would be up to school board members, who meet Monday.

The boy learned of the decision Wednesday when television crews arrived at his grandmother's house with the news. He grinned shyly before the cameras, but later, in a telephone interview, he said he looked forward to school after a boring summer.

"In the summer, I used to sit at our house because my daddy worked and my mommy works and my little brother goes to a day care center," he said.

Raul said he realized the air-conditioned classroom might not be ready by the start of school next week. "But we'll get it," he said.

$23 Million Damage Payments Possible

NEW YORK (AP) — A 7-year-old girl who suffered brain damage at birth has been awarded nearly $1.3 million in an out-of-court settlement — an award that could total $23 million if she lives another 50 years.

Rosa Gonzalez, 29, brought the suit on behalf of her daughter, Ivalicce, against the late Dr. Sam Rosen and Misericordia Hospital, where the girl was born Oct. 26, 1973.

The suit claimed the Caesarian delivery was delayed so long the baby suffered from anoxia, a lack of oxygen to the brain.

The complaint said Ivalicce cannot walk, talk or feed herself and will need constant care the rest of her life.

The settlement was reached Wednesday as a State Supreme Court jury in The Bronx was waiting to hear the case and was approved by Justice Irwin Silbowitz.

It assesses $925,000 damages against Dr. Rosen, whose insurance firm is expected to pay the damages, according to lawyers in the case. The hospital agreed to pay $350,000.

Peter Betar, vice president for administration at Misericordia, said the hospital "merely extended the facilities of the hospital to Dr. Rosen."

Under the agreement Mrs. Gonzalez, who is separated from her husband and has a 5-year-old son, will receive monthly payments for the care of her daughter.

A spokesman for her attorneys said if the child lives another 50 years, she will have received more than $23 million in damages and interest.

The book, "To Love a Child," will be published next year by Bobbs-Merrill. Royalties will be donated to the Foster Grandparent Program, with which Mrs. Reagan has been associated since 1967.

The television program is scheduled for broadcast Oct. 6.

Police Rescue A Captive Child

MIAMI (AP) — A trace on phone calls from kidnapers led police to a 7-year-old boy who was abducted by alleged drug dealers angry because his mother purportedly owed them money, officials say.

Police staged a daring surprise raid Tuesday night to rescue Andrew Martinez, who was abducted Aug. 11 as he arrived home from school and found four men holding his uncle at gunpoint. The youth was held for $700,000 ransom in a southwestern Miami house.

Police rounded up a dozen men in the raid and two other raids in Dade County. In one of the raids, authorities wounded two men in an exchange of gunfire. One died later.

Detectives still were searching for two other men.

Police said the members of drug ring claimed Martinez's mother owed them a debt for narcotics bought from the ring. She was not identified and has not been charged with any crime.

Police had planned to fake a ransom drop Tuesday night but changed plans because the house where the youth was held "was in an area we couldn't secure," said Arthur Nehrbass, commander of the Dade County Police Organized Crime Bureau.

Officials said they heard the kidnapers planned to execute the child and his grandmother, who was to deliver the ransom.

"We then went to a backup plan to rush the house," Nehrbass said.

Three surprised kidnappers, awaiting the ransom armed with machine guns, surrendered without incident at the house, Nehrbass said. Andrew was found unhurt in a bedroom.

A few minutes later in a follow-up raid in northwestern Miami, police arrested three more men. Another fled in a car, firing at officers, and was believed to have been hit in return fire, officials said.

Meanwhile, a third police unit converged on another house at a third location and was greeted by machine-gun bursts, Nehrbass said.

In the exchange of fire, Moises Fardy, 34, was fatally wounded. Ramon Vasquez, 26, was hit in the hand. A third man fled on foot and was apprehended a few blocks away, and police arrested another man who was en route to the house.

At the same time, police arrested two more men after a high-speed chase in Miami Springs following a shootout.

The twelfth suspect was arrested Wednesday, police said.

Police spokesman Bob

Johns said the abduction in response to the drug debt "happens in Latin countries with different members of the family being kidnapped."

The ransom demand inflated from $60,000 to $700,000. The family originally hoped to raise the money and handle the abduction themselves, but they called police after four days as the demands escalated, police said.

As many as 26 agents from the crime bureau worked on the case, staking out the uncle's home, tapping a telephone line to monitor ransom calls and identifying possible suspects, said police Sgt.

Robert Acuna.

"They gave several deadlines, and each time they increased the ransom requirements," said Acuna.

He said the boy's aunt and uncle twice demanded to hear Andrew's voice on the telephone to make sure he was well. The abductors complied each time. Meanwhile, police traced the calls to several Dade locations, and the rescue was completed.

Six of those arrested were charged with kidnaping and extortion; five were charged with conspiracy to commit a felony, and one was charged with assault, police said.

Big Turnout At Institute

Workshop and lecture topics included land use planning and regulation, historic preservation and skills development for planners.

Speakers were Dave Brower and Ed Kaiser of the UNC-Chapel Hill Center for Urban and Regional Studies; Myrick Howard of the Historic Preservation Fund of N.C. Inc.; Wat Brown, Housing and Community Development director, Tarboro; Richard Ducker, UNC-Chapel Hill Institute of Government;

Rebels Aver Town Taken

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rebel-run radio reports that leftist guerrillas have taken over the northeastern village of Perquin. Army spokesmen denied the claim.

Meanwhile, heavy fighting continued for the ninth day in the area today between Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front guerrillas and troops loyal to the ruling four-man junta.

The clandestine broadcast by Radio Venceremos said the guerrillas continue holding Perquin and 34 "prisoners of war." It said the guerrillas set up a rebel government but did not give details.

Radio Venceremos — Spanish for we shall overcome — said in its broadcast the Farabundo Marti Front had established an "oriental front" through Morazan, Usulután, San Miguel and La Unión provinces, with the center of operations in the northern part of Morazan where Perquin is located.

The broadcast claimed the Front there is manning clandestine "peoples armament factories," a school and a field hospital.

An army bulletin said army troops dislodged the guerrillas from Perquin and the rebels were fleeing towards the border with Honduras. But some of the soldiers returning from the fighting said there were still many guerrillas in the area. The soldiers asked not to be identified by name.

Army spokesman Col. Marco Aurelio Gonzalez said at least 10 of the 19 soldiers manning the army post at Perquin were killed when about 500 heavily armed guerrillas stormed the village and tried to seize a 23-square mile area around it a week ago.

The conflicting reports could not immediately be verified.

Satisfied With Security Role

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The chief of Buckingham Palace security for the recent royal wedding says things will be kind of dull when he returns to England from his Florida vacation.

Michael Greene, 48, chief inspector of police at Queen Elizabeth's London residence, says the July 29 wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diane was the toughest project he's ever handled. But he's satisfied with the results.

"It was one of the most successful operations I've ever been involved in — and the happiest," says Greene, relaxing in the nearby community of Clermont with family friends. He returns home later this week.

"I don't think I'll ever match that in my service," he said.

Tar Heel Elected President Of The Continental Congress

By Dr. H.G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)

— Samuel Johnston was the first trustee of the University of North Carolina, the state's first United States Senator, governor of the state from 1787 to 1789, and president of two provincial congresses.

He held another distinction that few North Carolinians know about: Johnston was elected president of the Continental Congress — a position that at the time was akin to the presidency of the United States.

It took the nationally syndicated feature "Ripley's Believe It or Not" a decade or so ago to remind Tar Heels that Johnston held the shortest tenure of any of the presidents of the Continental Congress, which governed the confederacy prior to the adoption of the federal constitution.

Johnston was born in Dundee, Scotland, but moved as a young child with his family to Onslow Precinct, N.C. His uncle, Gabriel Johnston, had preceded the family to this country and served as governor of the colony from 1734 to 1752.

Among other prominent family connections were his close friendships with Joseph Hewes, one of North Carolina's three signers of the Declaration of Independence, and James Iredell, an outstanding statesman and one of the earliest justices of the United States Supreme Court.

Hewes was engaged to marry Johnston's sister, Isabella, who died suddenly before the wedding; and Iredell was married to Johnston's sister, Hannah. Johnston's nephew, James Iredell Jr., also served as governor from 1827 to 1828.

Johnston first attended school in New Haven, Conn., and later studied law under Thomas Barker in North Carolina. His notable political career began in 1759 with election to the General Assembly.

Johnston is also noted for his role in the government's reaction to the Regulator movement, a series of violent pre-revolutionary protests by some Piedmont citizens against the eastern-dominated government. When the Regulators in 1770 broke up the court in Hillsborough and "by their riots brought on a crisis," he led a group in the Assembly in enacting sweeping legislation to remove many of the causes of discontent.

At the same time, however, his group took drastic steps to stop the riots and disorder. He introduced a bill which came to be known as the "Bloody Act," under which Governor Tryon suppressed the uprising by force. In essence it gave the accused Regulator leaders 60 days in which to surrender and stand trial or thereafter be considered guilty, declared outlaws and shot on sight.

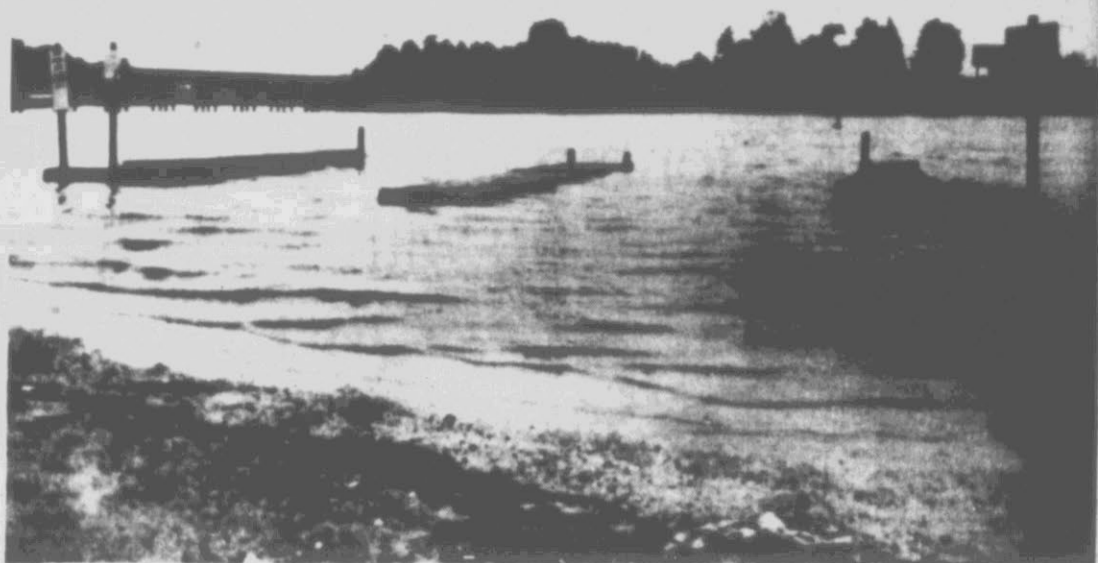

Leaving his post in the General Assembly in 1780, Johnston was named as a delegate to the Continental Congress. The record shows that he was selected by his colleagues as president of that body on July 9, 1781, but the first entry in the published Journals of the Continental Congresses for the following day, July 10, states: "Mr. (Samuel) Johnston having declined to accept the office of President, and offered such reasons as were satisfactory, the House proceeded to another election; and, the ballots being taken, the Hon. Thomas McKean was elected."

From this it can reasonably be surmised that rather than having served in the office for one day, Johnston actually did not serve as president at all.

Johnston resigned from the Continental Congress the following year to return to his seat in the North Carolina Senate. Beginning in 1787 he was elected to three one-year terms as governor, but resigned in 1789 to become the first United States Senator from North Carolina, a position in which he served for four years.

A superior court judgeship from 1800 to 1803 was Johnston's final public service, and his remaining years were spent in retirement at "Hayes," his home near Edenton in Chowan County. He died there in 1816.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA is taking to the airwaves with ads designed to recruit agents for overseas duty and dispel the image of the spy agency as a haven for the Eastern university-"old boy network."

The radio spots are part of an experimental program which began in Salt Lake City in May and continued Wednesday in Atlanta with this spiel:

"We are the Central Intelligence Agency. We're looking for very special people. You may be one of them."

An announcer tells listeners that if they are college graduates, interested in foreign affairs, know a foreign language or can learn one, are willing to live abroad and "can make on-the-spot decisions," they may be able to become a member of an "elite group." The pay for trainees is $22,000 a year.

The ad refers listeners to the CIA's Atlanta recruiting officer, Norman Hill. Hill tells a caller, "We're looking for people who have skills to work overseas," but that's all he says. Asked what type of work is involved, he says only, "We're talking about work overseas."

At CIA headquarters in Langley, Va., recruiting officer Charles Jackson says the agency needs people to serve as "overseas case officers, running networks, that kind of thing," as well as intelligence analysts, scientists and computer specialists. The latter two groups are the most difficult to recruit, he said, because of competition from private industry.

In the past, CIA recruiting has been low-key, with an occasional newspaper ad supplemented by notices in academic journals.

Jackson said the agency now is trying to do away with the notion that it draws exclusively from the "old boy network" at Eastern universities.

"We have a broad cross-section of people here," he said.

The radio campaign in Atlanta will be followed up with an ad in Sunday's Atlanta newspaper and in next week's Southeastern regional edition of Time magazine.

Jackson declined to say how many vacancies the agency has. Its budget and staff figures are classified. Spokesman Dale Peterson refused to say if the recruiting program indicated that the CIA is expanding its operations.

The advertising project began in Salt Lake City because Utah has always been a good CIA recruiting area, according to Jackson. The state is heavily populated with Mormons, many of whom have foreign language skills acquired while serving as church missionaries overseas.

Jackson said the CIA decided to move the experiment to Atlanta because "we don't feel that we've ever tapped the Southeast sufficiently."

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — World cigarette output continues to increase, but at a slower rate and containing less tobacco than in the past.

In 1980, according to a report by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service, world output of cigarettes set a record of 4,373 billion pieces, 62 billion more than was produced in '79.

The rate of growth was 1.4 percent, compared with the 3 to 5 percent growth rates characteristic of the 1950s and 1960s.

Leave use per 1,000 cigarettes, however, has been declining, say agricultural extension specialists at North Carolina State University.

Among the reasons for declining use of tobacco leaf are increasing use of filters, new manufacturing technology to use stems and extend leaf use in other ways, slower burning cigarettes and paper leaf homogenization.

Services at Fleming Chapel Church will begin Thursday at 7:30 p.m. and continue throughout the week.
Speaker for the beginning service will be the Rev. Northern Lanier and his congregation.

LINTHICUM, Md. (UPI) — More than 91 percent of the motorcyclists polled by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation think women are just as good bike riders as men. In a national study, the motorcyclists cited such reasons as "A person's sex has nothing to do with the ability to ride" and "Women are more cautious and don't tend to show off like men." The few who felt women are at a disadvantage as motorcyclists attributed their attitude to women's lack of strength and experi-

Big Outlays By Home Owners

NEW YORK (UPI) — The average homeowner spent an average of $428 on garden and outdoor improvement — including decks and patios — last year and an additional $468 to decorate or improve his interior living space. The figures are from National Home Center News, a trade newspaper serving the $26-billion home improvement field. The paper says 59 percent of new home owners plan to take on inside-the-house do-it-yourself projects within the next 18 months. Fifty percent expect to tackle landscaping jobs and another 30 percent, to install patios, decks and porches by the end of next year.

Converting To Bottle-Fed Car

CHICAGO (AP) — Some cars are being bottle-fed to satisfy their thirst for fuel.

Forced by rising gasoline prices to find a less expensive means of locomotion, some American motorists are switching to liquid petroleum gas (LPG) or bottled gas, according to Jim Hollingsworth, LPG sales manager for Borg-Warner.

From 1975-1978, propane or LPG conversions averaged $5,500 with the total doubling in 1979 and probably redoubling in 1980, he said.

Hollingsworth noted that in parts of Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, LPG is sold at the corner gas station, and that Renault and Peugeot sell production cars with LPG systems.

Merchants Confused By New Paraphernalia Law

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Owner Hubert Morris says he plans to keep on selling the French-made, tissue-thin cigarette rolling papers he stocks at his Britannia Tobacco Store.

But one block away at the Milk & More Store, manager David Williams says he's trying to sell out his stock of rolling papers by October 1, when a new state law banning drug-related paraphernalia takes effect.

"If it's against the law and they're going to arrest me, I'll quit selling them," says Williams.

Across the state, retailers like Morris and Williams are wrestling with the same question — whether the new law actually covers items they sell and how they should respond when it takes effect in six weeks.

"It's a complexing and confusing issue for many convenience stores," says Robert Beaman, vice president for operations of the Fast Fare chain of stores, based in Henderson. "And I think many are going right down to the wire before deciding what to do. I think they'll weigh everything until the very last day."

The law, patterned after similar efforts in more than a dozen states, is an attempt to strike at drug abuse by outlawing the sale, possession or advertisement of the until-now legal implements associated with drugs.

The law lists an imaginative array of utensils of drug use, ranging from devices aimed at enhancing the potency of marijuana to spoons designed for sniffing cocaine and unusual pipes designed to heighten the effects. It doesn't specifically name rolling papers, but covers in general any item used to ingest an illegal substance. And that includes the common rolling papers — if they are intended for use with illegal drugs such as marijuana — says Robert Malott, assistant state Crime Control secretary.

The law's architects say it is not aimed at legitimate businesses, like drug stores, convenience stores and tobacco stores that commonly stock rolling papers or similar articles. Instead, say law-enforcement officials, the law was aimed at the "head shops" — stores that deal largely in drug-related accessories.

The law was passed in June by the General Assembly at the urging of Gov. Jim Hunt, who vowed to use the law to "put every head shop in North Carolina out of business."

But Williams, whose stocks the rolling papers by the counter at his small, neighborhood grocery, says he fears the law will be inconsistent in its application. And others in the industry share that concern.

"Nobody knows what's going to happen," said Joseph Condra, president of the N.C. Association of Convenience Stores. "It's so damn vague it's a real problem."

Operators of stores targeted by Hunt and lawmakers have an association, too, and say they plan to fight the law. George Hoffman, owner of George's Cheep Joint in Chapel Hill and president of the 14-member Carolina Accessories Trade Association, says his group may challenge the law in court, although it has yet to hire a lawyer.

"Every one of my items is used legitimately, as well, I suppose, as illegally," he said.

Hoffman said all the stores he knows about that are similar to his — which he describes as a "smoking paraphernalia and gift store" — plan to continue with business as usual.

Condra's association has taken no official position on whether its members should continue to sell rolling papers and has advised each to consult its own attorneys. His own chain, Express-Way Food Stores, with 12 locations around Rocky Mount, plans to drop its current rolling-paper brands. He said most other stores are doing the same, and that he knows of no convenience or grocery store that sells other items covered by the law.

"Of the people I've talked to in our industry, most are saying they're getting out of the business September 30, because we don't want to go to court about it," he said.

The key provision of the law makes the devices illegal if they are intended for illegal uses, and the confusion results because some of the items have legitimate purposes, too.

At Morris's store, for instance, the papers are on a shelf between between domestic cigarettes and expensive Dutch cigars. Morris estimates he has sold no more than 25 packages this year, and all to smokers with esoteric tobacco tastes.

"I'm going to get around it," he says. "If anybody buys rolling papers (after the law begins), they're going to have to buy tobacco. With that, it's clear what I'm selling it for."

Condra said he, too, is considering a way to continue selling the papers, which are attractive to storeowners because of their high markup and small shelf space. He said he is considering stocking two old brands, OCB and Tops, which have been sold for years for those who roll their own tobacco, while dropping brands that bear names or designs alluding to drug use.

"Are they illegal or not illegal?" he asks. "I'm 52, and they've been around as long as I have."

Some stores have already stopped selling the rolling papers. A spokesman for the 7-Eleven chain, who asked not to be named, said they stopped them two years ago.

But some others are unconcerned. Sam Johnson, attorney for the N.C. Merchants Association, said his members will be unaffected. "If they have to drop an item, which I do not think they will have to do, then they should do so," he said.

The law makes possession as well as sale illegal, and some wholesalers are wrestling with the questions, too.

"Everybody's so confused by it," said Kenneth Fields, manager of Atlantic Tobacco Co., which distributes papers. "I can't make heads or tails of it."

Joseph Wall, attorney for the N.C. Wholesalers Association, has advised his members about the law and believes they will have no problems.

Immunization

Under the provisions of N.C. law, the Commission for Health Services in North Carolina has been given authority to determine the number of doses of vaccines required in order for a student to be eligible to attend a any category of school in North Carolina. Requirements now in effect are:

- Diphtheria, tetanus, and whooping cough — three doses by age one year.
- Oral polio vaccine — one dose of live vaccine by age two years.
- Measles vaccine — one dose of live vaccine by age two years. (Note: Re-vaccination is required when a child was immunized even one day before the child was one year of age).
- Rubella vaccine — one dose by age two years.

Two exceptions to the immunization rule are permitted by the state law. These are: for health reasons when an immunization is or may be harmful to a child. A physician's written statement, which indicates the basis of the exemption, must be provided to the school; and religious exemption, where parents claim a religious objection to immunization. In such cases, a parent must provide a signed statement for the school file.

Principals of each school are responsible by law for ensuring that a record of immunization is on file for each student enrolled.

Raps Retention Of Bureaucracy

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt criticized the Reagan administration Wednesday for reducing federal funding without cutting bureaucracy.

"The President has said he wants to reduce the role of the federal government and return to the states and local governments their proper resources and responsibilities," the North Carolina governor told the 34th annual Southern Legislative Conference of the Council of State Government.

"That is not what Washington has done," he said. "They have given us 75 of the money, but at least 95 of the regulations. They failed to cut the red tape."

As chairman of the human resources committee of the National Governors Association, Hunt is working with federal officials to reduce and simplify regulations over the next five weeks.

But even with less red tape, Hunt said states can't absorb the federal cuts without cutting services.

"We can't in North Carolina," he said. "People need to know that. They need to know that the states can't pick up the costs."

Hunt predicted troubled times for the South if additional cuts are made in federal welfare, housing and education programs.

"The South has the most to lose, because we are the poorest region," Hunt said. "What will happen if Washington stops putting money into highways and schools? What will happen if Washington drops the safety net?"

That's possible, Hunt warned, since Congress recently cut taxes over the next three years by $200 billion and spending by only $130 billion.

He urged the more than 800 Southern legislators to commit themselves to "seeing that the gains of the last 50 years, and our hopes for the next 50 years, are not left along the wayside of history."

Report Wilkins Outlook 'Good'

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Wilkins, the former leader of the NAACP, was in serious condition in New York University Medical Center today but resting comfortably, a spokesman for the hospital said.

Wilkins, 79, was hospitalized Tuesday evening with a possible heart attack, according to a statement by the hospital.

His doctor, Dr. Lawrence Meyers, said, "The outlook is favorable."

Wilkins, who was chief executive of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People for 22 years before retiring in 1977, was hospitalized at the center for two weeks in March 1979. He was treated then for irregular heartbeat and had a pacemaker implanted.

Four Charged With Illegal Shipments To USSR

By TOM HARRIGAN
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Soviet-born naturalized U.S. citizen is among four people indicted on charges of breaking federal export laws by conspiring to ship high-technology equipment to the Soviet Union.

The four — a West

German, an Austrian and two naturalized U.S. citizens who worked for the German — were indicted Wednesday after an 18-month investigation into export companies that allegedly shipped equipment indirectly to the Russians.

The equipment included electronic monitoring devices and computer components and was worth at least $2 million, federal officials said.

Two Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $2,400 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Police said cars driven by James Arthur Reid of Wilson Acres Apartments and Keith Hart of 605 Bancroft Ave., collided about 4:55 p.m. at the intersection of Roosevelt and Douglas Avenues causing $800 damage to the Reid car and $600 damage to the Hart vehicle.

An estimated $500 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 9:15 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 50 feet east of the Arlington Boulevard intersection.

Police identified the drivers involved as Robert Warner Bennett of Ayden and Albert Frazier Sloan Jr. of 209 North Oak St.

Blood Collected Despite Rain

Despite the rain and inclement weather, 158 pints of blood were collected and 14 people were deferred Wednesday when the Bloodmobile visited the Greenville Moose Lodge, according to Ruth Taylor, executive director of the Pitt County Red Cross.

"We want to express our thanks to all those who came out to donate blood," commented Taylor, "and we want to extend a special thanks to the 35 employees from Wachovia who came out to donate."

"In addition, we are grateful to the Greenville Service League, the volunteer nurses and the Moose Lodge for letting us use the facilities," noted the executive director.

The next bloodmobile will be held on August 31 at Eaton Corporation.

The equipment included electronic monitoring devices and computer components and was worth at least $2 million, federal officials said.

Two of those named in the 60-count indictment were arrested at Palm Desert, Calif., before the indictments were announced. The other two were believed to be in Europe, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Theodore W. Wu.

Cholera Watched

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Twelve cases of cholera were reported in the Gaza Strip Tuesday, and 300 residents of the area were under observation for symptoms of the disease, authorities said.

Agents seized three loaded weapons and a substantial amount of ammunition in the defendants' cars at Palm Desert, Wu said.

Anatoli (Tony) Maluta, 61, a Russian-born U.S. citizen who lives in Redondo Beach, Calif., and Sabina Dorn Tittel, 31, a West German-born U.S. citizen who is a resident of Rancho Palos Verdes, Maluta was an officer and director and controlled the daily operations of each of the six California companies, and Ms. Tittel worked for Bruchhausen and Maluta. The indictment said she also was a director in four companies owned by Bruchhausen.

To cover up the alleged export of the high-technology commodities, Maluta and Ms. Tittel are accused of instructing employees of the export companies to tell American manufacturers that the equipment was for Maluta's security business in the United States.

In addition to the exports charges, Maluta and Ms. Tittel were charged with income tax violations and submitting documents to the U.S. Customs Service containing false statements. The indictment charges Maluta with committing perjury before the grand jury in June.

Bruchhausen should 'get plenty for this,'" the U.S. attorney's office said.

It wasn't clear from the indictment whether that item or any of the equipment ever arrived in Soviet-bloc nations. It also was unclear how the items were supposed to have been relayed to the Soviets or their allies after they left the United States.

The United States closely restricts shipments of computer and electronics equipment to the Soviet bloc nations and to China.

In March, Robert L. Keuch, an associate deputy attorney general, testified at a congressional hearing that illegal exports of sophisticated technology to Soviet bloc countries amounted to a "significant national security problem."

Bruchhausen owns and controls six California corporations, all in Los Angeles County, and two German corporations, officials said.

Reagan At The Carrier's Helm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The day after the first military encounter of his administration, President Reagan is taking the helm of a massive aircraft carrier to show his commitment to strengthening the armed forces.

The president, whose previous naval experience was portraying a submarine captain in a 1957 movie, was to put on a commander's jacket and cap today and briefly step into the role of captain aboard the USS Constellation.

Reagan, who has made no public comments yet on the dogfight between Libyan and American jets Tuesday, was to see a demonstration of how the U.S. warplanes involved — F-14s — use heat-seeking missiles to shoot down specific targets.

In a firepower demonstration, the F-14s were to release parachutes with flares attached and then fire heat-seeking missiles to destroy them.

The two F-14 fighters involved in the Libyan incident, in which two Libyan fighters were shot down without harm to the U.S. planes, were based aboard another aircraft carrier, the USS Nimitz, in the Mediterranean.

Reagan's day at sea today was to include a review of military exercises, remarks to some of the 5,000-member crew and participation in a re-enlistment ceremony.

The president also was to stand in the mess line for lunch and sit down to eat with enlisted personnel.

Reagan and a battalion of aides and reporters were to be ferried by helicopter to the Constellation, which is 65 miles out in the Pacific off the Southern California coast.

The Constellation, which is based in San Diego, is on training exercises in that area.

Shortly after being piped aboard, the president was to take the helm of the 1,072-foot carrier, which is the length of more than three football fields. The ship has 17 decks and its flight deck alone has an area of 4.1 acres.

During his three hours aboard, Reagan was also to watch a refueling operation conducted with another ship alongside.

It was believed to be Reagan's first time aboard an aircraft carrier and his first experience at the helm of a vessel since he portrayed the heroic submarine commander in the movie, "Hellcats of the Navy," in which he co-starred with his wife, Nancy.

NSLI Loan Rate Hiked

The Veterans Administration Administrator has announced that the interest charged on all new loans made on National Service Life Insurance policies has been increased to 11 percent. The rate on all applications postmarked before July 29, 1981, will be at the 5% interest rate established in 1971.

W.L. Tucker, District Officer of the N.C. Division of Veterans Affairs (with offices in the Tipton Annex on Greenville Blvd.) noted that veterans with 4% and 5% loans on their NSLI policies will continue to pay these rates. In the past several years, many veterans took out loans and invested them on Certificates of Deposit or Money Market Certificates which netted a profitable return.

The action of the Administrator, Tucker said, in increasing the interest rate on new loans to 11% will remove the incentive to secure loans for investment purposes. In the future loans on insurance reserves will probably be secured for emergency purposes only, as has been the usual policy in the past.

Tucker pointed out that many veterans have used their dividends to purchase additional NSLI insurance.

Veterans having questions concerning NSLI policies may contact O.L. Moore or W.L. Tucker at the local Veterans Service Office.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices showed some moderate gains today, extending the technical rally begun on Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 2.09 Wednesday, rose 2.00 to 928.46 by noontime today.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 3-2 margin in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the market attracted some buyers after the Dow Jones industrial average fell to its lowest level of the year Tuesday.

But they were generally skeptical about the prospects for a sustained rally as long as interest rates remain at their current high levels.

In a television interview to be broadcast tonight, Chairman Paul Volcker of the Federal Reserve said the Fed will continue its policy of restricting the growth of money and credit.

He declined to make a specific prediction of when interest rates might begin to decline, but said he "believed" "the next big move" would be downward.

Ludlow Corp. climbed 2 1/2 to 27 1/4. Tyco Laboratories raised its offer for the company to $27.50 a share, topping a $25 bid made earlier in the week by Bainco Corp.

The NYSE's composite index gained 17 to 75.90. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .11 at 368.40.

Volume on the Big Board came to 16.67 million shares at noontime, against 17.75 million at the same point Wednesday.

Brown Won't Run In 1984

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has told Sen. Edward Kennedy and former Vice President Walter Mondale that he won't run for president in 1984, a newspaper says today.

The San Francisco Chronicle said it interviewed Brown Tuesday.

The story said by making the Massachusetts Democrat and Mondale aware of his plans now, Brown hopes they will support him in a bid for the U.S. Senate in 1982.

"I just don't want an incorrect impression that somehow I'm interested in trying again, which I'm not," Brown said.

"Also, I'm looking for support from Kennedy and Mondale, and I'd like them to be allies, not competitors."

Brown declined to discuss his plans for 1988, the year that would see both a presidential election and the end of his Senate term, should he win next year.

Brown has sought the Democratic nomination for president in 1976 and 1980.

Sees Profit As Robbing Future

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser says Chrysler Corp.'s "$12 million profit in the second quarter really was sort of robbing from the future."

Fraser said Wednesday Chrysler rushed new cars into its dealerships during the quarter, and in the third quarter, "they're going to take a bath in red ink." The company's second quarter profit, announced in July, was its first since the 1978 fourth quarter. In between, Chrysler lost $3.1 billion.

Fraser was addressing the union's International Chrysler Council. Chrysler spokesman Doug Nicol in Detroit said the company had no comment.

FIREMEN FIND BODY AFTER FIRE — Firemen found the body of a man after fire completely destroyed a mobile home near Greenville. According to Lyman Hardee, Eastern Pines fire chief, the mobile home was engulfed in flames when firemen arrived. The home was located in the Triangle Trailer Park, off highway 43 southeast of Greenville. The body, according to the chief, was found in the middle of the destroyed home, burned beyond recognition which has hampered identification. The fire occurred about 2 a.m. Thursday. Cause of the blaze has not been determined. Members of the Winterville fire department also assisted Eastern Pines firemen. (Reflector Photo by Larry Zicherman)

U.S. Gasoline Prices Likely To Rise If OPEC Can Agree

NEW YORK (AP) — American gasoline prices could go up if oil producers reach agreement on a new world oil-pricing system at their current meeting in Geneva, analysts say.

The meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was called at the request of countries that have been badly hurt by declining oil sales. Those countries have been unable to reach a deal with Saudi Arabia, which is selling huge quantities of oil by charging the world's lowest price.

But the OPEC meeting was converted today from a "consultative session" to an "extraordinary" one, something that had been expected to happen only if a deal were likely. Only an extraordinary meeting would be able to officially change OPEC prices.

U.S. gasoline prices have declined by several cents a gallon since peaking in March, thanks to low demand and plentiful supplies of oil. Sanford L. Margoshes, an analyst with Bache Halsey, Stuart Shields Inc., estimated prices may fall "a penny or two" more over the next few months if no deal is reached in Geneva.

The Saudis, who now charge $32 a barrel and produce about 10.25 million barrels a day or nearly half the OPEC total of 22 million, have refused to accept a price increase of more than $2 a barrel — so far the principal sticking point in the Geneva talks.

Other OPEC prices currently range up to $40 a barrel. Venezuela, Indonesia and other OPEC members have argued they are able to sell their oil at $36 a barrel despite the abundance of supplies worldwide and are opposed to the Saudi proposal of a new base price of $34.

An increase in the Saudi price would be reflected almost immediately in charges for oil from the North Sea off Britain. In addition, crude oil prices in the United States are now about in line with Saudi prices and would be expected to rise with them.

That would be only partly offset by declines in prices from other OPEC producers. Gary Ross, an economist with the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, estimated the overall cost of crude oil to U.S. refiners would increase by 3 cents a gallon or more if the Saudis agreed to boost their prices $2 a barrel. They likely would try to pass that cost on to their customers.

If there is no agreement in Geneva, the eventual result is likely to hinge on the reaction of the major African producers, including Nigeria, which asked for the OPEC meeting. They have seen their oil sales plummet as oil companies refuse to pay $40 a barrel.

It is possible the Nigerians will cut prices, and Libya and Algeria will follow. If that happens, said Constantine Fliakos, an analyst with Merrill Lynch, Fenner & Smith Inc. in New York, "the market will be flooded with oil, and Saudi Arabia will be in control."

But if the Africans refuse to reduce their prices, by the end of the year world supplies of oil could be low enough to cause a tight market. Fliakos said that might be enough to allow oil companies to increase prices on gasoline and other products by several cents a gallon even without increases in crude oil prices.

American Relief Worker Is Beaten

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — A 25-year-old American relief worker was attacked and beaten in his tent at a refugee camp near the Ethiopian border, officials said today.

The attack on Marc Daudon of Wilmington, Del., occurred Tuesday night near the Boo'oo (oo) refugee camp outside the western border town of Belet Uen. Government officials said it was the first of its kind involving a foreign relief worker in Somalia.

Afterward, Daudon was taken to Nairobi, Kenya, for treatment of skull fractures. His condition was not known. Daudon, who is a student at the Yale University School of Organization and Man-

Mid-South To Suspend In New Bern

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Mid-South Airlines announced Tuesday that it intends to suspend passenger service to New Bern as a result of the nationwide air traffic controllers strike.

But Mid-South President Terry Reeves emphasized Wednesday that the notice to the Civil Aeronautics Board was merely a procedural matter, aimed at getting the airline a federal subsidy for its New Bern service.

CAB officials said earlier this year the airline, which has operated out of Simmons-Nott Airport since 1979, was not eligible for a subsidy because of its proven ability to make a profit.

While the strike itself has not materially affected the airline's flights, Reeves said it has made passengers hesitant to fly because of fears that they would be unable to make connections at larger airports.

Currently, he said, flights in and out of New Bern are off by about a third. Last week, the CAB announced an emergency measure to allow an immediate hold-in subsidy to airlines facing a drop in passenger loads. But, Reeves said, the subsidy can only be triggered by a notice of intent to pull out.

If granted, he said the subsidy would only be temporary. If the subsidy is not approved, Reeves said Mid-South would have to consider reducing its New Bern service.

Meanwhile, despite the Reagan administration's tough stance, a number of the 26 striking controllers at Douglas Municipal Airport in Charlotte say they still expect to get their jobs back. But some signs of strain were showing Tuesday, the day local controllers got their last partial paychecks for work done before the strike began Aug. 3.

Ben Sherill, 34, said he'll give the strike a couple more weeks and then look for another full-time job. "We keep an ear on the strike process," said the five-year veteran controller. "At the same time, I've got to look ahead. Right now we're not as optimistic as we were."

"I imagine the majority of us are settling into the notion of having to find another job. It's no big deal...I was prepared to do it."

Another controller, Alden Hare, said, "Everyone's very optimistic we'll win and get our jobs back."

But if they don't, he said, "I'm not worried about it. It might be a godsend to get away from the pressures."

Some striking controllers have taken part-time jobs, said striking controller Steve Kaufman.

An official of the Somali government said the matter was under investigation and declined to speculate whether the attack was connected with the personnel shakeup.

Speaking of Your Health...

Can Climate Control Arthritis?

My husband has a severe form of arthritis. It has been suggested that he might feel better in a warm, dry climate. We are willing to make the move, but we don't know how to go about finding the ideal place. Can you suggest a part of the United States where a person with arthritis might feel much better? — Mr. & Mrs. O.R.B., N.H.

Dear Mr. & Mrs. B.: It is universally accepted that most people with arthritis are affected by changes in the weather, alterations in humidity and temperature, and sudden changes in barometric pressure. Every arthritic has at some time said, "I can feel it in my bones" and knows when it will rain 24 hours before it does.

A great many people have made precipitous changes, sold their house, given up a business, and moved to the "high, dry climate" only to find that the new geographic locale is not the total answer to their problem.

The chamber of commerce of every city in the southwest would, I am certain, state that their climate is the very best in America for the relief and even for the control of some forms of arthritis.

This may well be, but I certainly would not base the destiny of your family on the enthusiasm of a public relations official for a sun-drenched city.

I have found it sad when there is such an upheaval in the family structure and it is later found that the new community is unbearable for the health, social, financial, and emotional points of view.

I suggest therefore, before anyone make a move of such magnitude, that a trial period in the new climate be adopted. If, after a reasonable time, one's arthritis is perceptibly improved, then perhaps a more permanent change-over can be made.

I learned with dismay that more than one billion dollars was spent by the American people on quackeries. Despite educational planning and the warning of health agencies, quackery continues to exist and to exploit the sick and the handicapped. Manufacturers of gadgets and "miracle drugs" all continue to extract large sums of money from people who are least able to afford it.

It is astonishing how many people strive to be the first to try the charlatan gadget, the fad cure, and the "specialized" wonder vitamin. If a drug or device has been proved to be good and effective, you can be sure that it is known to your own doctor. If it has been tried and is safe, your doctor will recommend it long before you read about it in a pulp magazine with a follow-up by a glib, fast-talking salesman with no medical knowledge.

When will the American people learn to critically evaluate the mythical cure before being trapped and exploited by quackery?
Dr. Coleman welcomes questions from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

NCAA, CFA Appear Set To Go To War

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — day only five Big-Ten presidents attended a meeting in Denver last weekend in which the Big Ten and Pac-10 issued a strong statement denouncing the CFA's proposed television contract with NBC.

All Is Calm In NCAA Offices On Eve Of CFA's Day Of Decision

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Lydia Sanchez looked up from her desk as a familiar visitor approached.

"Where will all these people find jobs next year?" the visitor asked with a wry smile.

Her dark, pretty eyes flashed thunder and lightning. "Right here," she said. "Right here."

After 10 years as confidential secretary to Walter Byers, Ms. Sanchez, a former high school Spanish teacher, has seen plenty of crises. And so has everyone else who works in the modernistic three-story building that is home for the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Just three years ago, a Nevada lawmaker was noisily leading a congressional probe into the NCAA enforcement department, ordering records subpoenaed and promising "to bring down the imperial palace in Mission." Eventually, the congressman's prize witness was discredited. And his investigation choked slowly on its own echo.

A year ago, the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women was threatening lawsuits as the 75-year-old NCAA got ready to try to bring women into its governing structure. After fierce debate, the measure was adopted by the full membership. Women's athletic programs throughout the country have chosen to join the NCAA. To date, there has been no AIAW lawsuit.

"The NCAA was born in crisis, and it lives in crisis," Byers, the executive director since 1951, has said. On Friday, a dissident group of NCAA member schools, mostly major football powers, will vote whether to take action that many feel could eventually destroy the NCAA as it is now known.

But on Wednesday, the mood around the NCAA building was business as usual.

Busy, efficient secretaries kept their typewriters humming. Well groomed young men in ties and dress shirts and neatly pressed slacks went about the daily business of providing administrative services to more than 700 American colleges and universities.

The conversation in the basement lunchroom where most of the junior grade staff members gather each noon ranged from politics, to new boyfriends and girlfriends, to the Royals, and, in some cases, to the College Football Association. The 61-member CFA, comprised of all top conferences except the Big Ten and Pac-10 and all top independents, will vote in Atlanta Friday on whether to accept a separate television contract with NBC. If they ratify the NBC plan, it could precipitate the greatest crisis the NCAA ever knew.

But only Byers and a handful of department heads directly involved in the NCAA television plan seemed to be occupied with the challenge.

"There is definitely not a bunker mentality," said a junior staff member. "Far from it. Everybody is just doing his or her job, like we always do. We're concerned, sure. Some of us were talking about it at lunch, but I really don't think anybody was awfully worried. Maybe we should be. But I guess we just have too much confidence in Walter and the NCAA leadership to let anything take our minds off our jobs."

In the meantime, Ms. Sanchez was placing a long distance telephone call for her boss.

Pac-10 and Big Ten chief executive officers were present," said Charles M. Neinas, CFA executive director. "But that is not the case."

Meanwhile, officials of CFA schools from throughout the country began heading for Atlanta today for what could be a climatic showdown between a segment of major college football powers and the NCAA.

The CFA, which includes five conferences, the Big Eight, Southeastern, Southwest, Western Athletic and Atlantic Coast, and 17 independents, will vote in Atlanta on ratification of a four-year contract with NBC. At issue is control of football television rights, and many observers believe, the coming proliferation of cable and subscription television, which could mean millions of dollars for the major powers.

The NCAA has reached agreement with ABC and CBS for the same period, 1982-85, and other NCAA members, against the NCAA.

Enarson said the NBC-CFA tieup "strikes at the very heart of institutional integrity," and Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press Wednesday the CFA schools would be surrendering much of their independence.

"The CFA leadership has argued for several years that their members want to control their own destiny," Byers said. "But then they strike an agreement with NBC which surrenders their very independence to a television network. That is, their legal policy and financing, the funding of competitive events in other sports and their football television plan itself all will be dictated by NBC."

Byers said the plan CFA members will vote on Friday "is not a CFA plan."

"It's an NBC plan accepted by the CFA leadership because it represents an offer they can't refuse," he said. "It's the only offer they have. It's a sad day for college sports if intercollegiate athletic policy is to be dictated by a television network and educational institutions surrender their independence of action to NBC's corporate headquarters."

Streater May Coach

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Steve Streater, an All-Atlantic Coast Conference player paralyzed after being signed on the Washington Redskins as a punter, may yet resume his contributions to football.

Jim Young, head football coach at Chapel Hill High School, said Wednesday that Streater may join his team as an assistant coach this fall.

"There is a strong possibility that Steve will join our staff this fall," Young said in a telephone interview. "We have talked about it by phone, although we have not spoken on a person-to-person basis."

"Whatever happens, we'll have the situation completely ironed out by the end of this week or the beginning of next week. He would be a part-time coach, probably, with most of his duties centered on the special teams."

Streater also has re-enrolled at the University of North Carolina to complete work on his undergraduate degree.

Streater, after a stellar career with the North Carolina Tar Heels, was paralyzed from the chest down in a auto accident last spring that occurred only hours after he had signed a free-agent contract with the National Football League team.

"Steve is a pretty positive-type fellow," Young said. "He thinks he can overcome this thing. He's working hard to that end and he's made a lot of progress already. I never had any doubts that he could do the job."

"I've just gotten to know him since the accident, but I know he wants to be involved. And I certainly know he has the expertise to get the job done. It's not just a question of us helping him. He'll be a big help to us."

Streater, who was recently released from a Charlotte hospital, could not be reached in his hometown of Sylva for comment.

New World Record Holders

New World Marks By Nemehiah, Coe Highlight Zurich Track Meet

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Britain's Sebastian Coe, who clocked the best-ever mile, and American Renaldo Nehemiah, pulverizing his own 110-meter hurdles world mark highlighted an international track and field meet Wednesday night before 25,000 wildly cheering fans at Letzli Grand Stadium.

Coe surged ahead in the mile at the completion of two laps after being paced by American Tom Byers, then took firm command, finishing in 3 minutes, 48.53 seconds as he recaptured the world mark from fellow Briton and archrival Steve Ovett.

Nehemiah, who skipped the U.S. championships at Sacramento, Calif., last May due to and who thus can't compete in next month's World Cup in Rome, was timed in 12.93 seconds, clipping .07 second off his world record, established in 1979. Nehemiah was the first man ever to run the 110-meter hurdles in under 13 seconds.

Coe expressed disappointment that he did not break the 1,500-meter mark as well. The last one to better both records in one race was Australia's John Landy in 1954.

Coe, who also holds the world records in the 800 and 1,000 meters, said, "At first, I thought I would miss both marks. That was after about 1,000 meters. But then I gave it all I had and it paid off."

Greg Foster, Nehemiah's archrival, was runnerup in the hurdles in a personal best of 13.03.

"Greg Foster and I got out of the blocks at the same time and in the same manner. But it was technique that was the difference," Nehemiah said.

"This proves that I am far from being washed up and that I am over my earlier complacencies and I'm almost untouchable. My next goal is 12.6 and there's no doubt in my mind that I can get it. It proves to me and to everybody in the United States how good I really am and how good I've yet to become."

Carl Lewis also turned in an outstanding performance by taking the long jump with the third best leap ever, 27 feet, 11 1/2 inches (8.52 meters).

Lewis, from Willingboro, N.J., who has run the fastest 100 meters in the world this year — 10 seconds flat — did not enter the sprint event to concentrate on the jump. He missed his own best mark by six inches but the crowd roared with delight. Asked when he would break Bob Beamon's 13-year-old world record of 29-2 1/2, he said "just have me try it at a place that is as high as Mexico City."

Lewis' teammate, Larry Myricks, improved his personal best to 27-8 to finish second in the long jump.

Excitement also was high during the women's 100-meter dash, won by Evelyn Ashford in 11.00, just one-tenth of a second slower than her world's best time this year and .12 off the world record held by East Germany's Marlies Gohr.

Edwin Moses, unbeaten in four years, was well off his own world record in winning the 400-meter hurdles in 47.64.

Scoring Tumble

Philadelphia Phillies base runner Mike Schmidt tumbles head over heels after scoring a run in the first inning of a game against the Cincinnati Reds Tuesday in Cincinnati. Reds' catcher Joe Nolan,

Nolan's Gamble Paying Off For Cincinnati; Helps Reds Top Phils

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Joe Nolan took a gamble last season, and it has paid off with some pretty numbers for the Cincinnati Reds.

Faced with the prospect of a trip to Atlanta's minor league system in 1980, Nolan elected to become a free agent. The question was: Would any team show interest in a 29-year-old catcher with mediocre statistics.

Nolan was fairly depressed at the time, he said, especially since "a team as rotten as the Braves were back then didn't want me."

Instead, Nolan hooked up with the Reds. He wound up catching nearly half their games last season in place of the injured Johnny Bench, and Wednesday night, he knocked in four runs with three hits for a 6-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The loss dropped the Phillies, who won the first-half title in the National League East, into last place in the division, 4½ games behind first-place St. Louis and a half game behind fifth-place Pittsburgh.

The victory was Cincinnati's third straight after losing five of six to open baseball's strike-marred second season.

"I haven't been swinging the bat real good. I guess nobody has except George (Foster)," said Nolan, who hit .307 last season in 70 games and thus far has the same average in 1981.

A Nolan double in the sixth tied the score 3-3, and he capped a three-run Reds rally in the eighth with another double, driving in two runs and giving the pitching victory to Tom Hume, 6-2, who worked the final two innings.

Elsewhere in the league, Chicago edged Los Angeles 4-3, Pittsburgh clobbered San Francisco 7-3, Atlanta defeated New York 5-2, St. Louis edged San Diego 7-6 and Houston walloped Montreal 9-1.

Nolan also drove in a run in the fourth with a single.

Foster, hitting .500 since the strike ended, went 2 for 3, drove in a run, scored a run and stole a base.

Sparky Lyle, 5-2, the victim of Cincinnati's eighth-inning rally, was the loser.

Phils Manager Dallas Green said Lyle did not look very sharp in his 11-3 innings' work. "To me, it looks like his slider isn't breaking as sharp as it should be," Green said. "That's always been his bread and butter pitch."

Cubs 4, Dodgers 3

Bobby Bonds drove in two runs with a triple and a double to lead Chicago over Los Angeles in a game with a controversial windup.

The Dodgers loaded the bases with one out in the ninth inning, but second base umpire Jim Quick ruled that Pedro Guerrero interfered with Cubs shortstop Ivan DeJesus on a Marshall, signed Wednesday play. Quick called the batter out at first, giving the Cubs a game-ending double-play.

"It's a crime to lose a game like that," said Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda.

Pirates 7, Giants 3

Lee Lacy and Tony Pena each homered, and Bill Madlock drove in a pair of runs with a triple in Pittsburgh's 12-hit attack.

Madlock's triple keyed a three-run third inning that chased San Francisco starter Doyle Alexander. Omar Moreno doubled and Tim Foli singled preceding Madlock's hit, and Madlock scored on a sacrifice fly by Jason Thompson.

Moreno had a run-scoring triple after Pena's fourth-inning homer.

The Pirates had lost their three previous games.

Braves 5, Mets 2

Atlanta scored four runs in the seventh inning, three on a pinch homer by Brian Asselstine, to halt the Mets' winning streak at three games.

Dale Murphy and Glenn Hubbard started the rally with singles, and after Bruce Benedict forced Hubbard at second, Asselstine hit his second homer of the season. The fourth run of the inning scored when Jerry Royster walked, went to third on a single by Ruffino Linares and scored Jim Quick ruled that Pedro Guerrero interfered with Cubs shortstop Ivan DeJesus on a Marshall, signed Wednesday play. Quick called the batter

Ellis Valentine homered for Cards 7, Padres 6

Gene Tenace drilled a run-scoring pinch single in the bottom of the ninth inning to lift the red-hot Cardinals over San Diego. St. Louis now has won six of eight since the second season began and leads the NL East by a half game.

Bruce Sutter, 3-3, picked up the victory with 21-3 innings of relief.

Astros 9, Expos 1

Nolan Ryan worked five hitless innings, then yielded a pair of hits in the sixth for Houston to earn his seventh victory in 10 decisions and lower his ERA to 1.29.

The Astros scored four runs in the third inning on an RBI triple by Joe Pittman, Tony Scott's run-scoring single and a two-run double by Terry Puhl.

Big East Grid Roundup

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rocky Mount's Gryphons were given the nod as the team to beat in the Big East Conference race this fall by the league's eight coaches, but Coach Walt Wiggins isn't sure that is the proper pick.

He gives the nod to defending champion Fike High School, top man. Leading lineman is coached by newcomer Gus Andrews.

Overall, however, it looks like nearly all of the league schools will be improved, to hear the coaches talk. Very few are calling this a year of reconstruction. The Big East coaches held their annual meeting Wednesday at Brook Valley Country Club, and following is a capsule summary of each teams prospects, with the exception of Rose. A full preview of the Rampant chances will come later in the pre-season.

Rocky Mount was picked by the other coaches to finish first in this year's race, Wiggins feels that the Gryphons do have a chance, despite heavy losses. As he enters his 17th year at the helm, Wiggins is the dean of the conference. "I don't know what the coach said. We're going to have to rely on second-line and junior varsity players from last year." That may not be as bad as it seems, however, since Rocky Mount's Baby Gryphs went 10-0.

On offense, Wiggins has only three starters returning. "I think we'll be okay. Our pass-should be better, and the only real problem has been in the offensive line, but I think we'll do okay there." Rocky Mount runs its offense from the pro-I.

Wiggins feels he has a good passing attack, returning several fine receivers, among whom is split end Ken Weaver and slot back Mike Suggs. When it comes to running, tailback Kevin Farmer, 15 pounds heavier this year, is the top man. Leading lineman is 230-pound Coy Still.

If there is a question mark it may be the defense. "We have material, but it's a matter of learning. Only one defensive to linebacker. We do have good size, and should average about 210 across the line. We have good quickness too, but we still are inexperienced. Helping the five-two lineup, along with Bynum will be Still, at tackle and Demetrius Smith, also a tackle.

Fike Gus Andrews, former executive director of the Pirate Club at East Carolina, has taken over as the head football coach at Fike, and feels he is under no pressure as the team comes off last year's championship. "I'm really still learning what goes on in the conference. I don't know what the Golden Demons will be running from formation, and may be an airborne team. That's because Tom Benson, last year's quarterback, is returning, and he threw for 14 touchdowns last season. "We'll use the pass off three starters returning. So far things have gone well, but we're still young and many returning lettermen." Only five starters return on offense, led by Benson, fullback Wade Williams, guard Ernie Smith and tight end Joe Flowers. Defensively, Fike will operate out of a fifty. "Right now, we're looking somewhat awkward due to the fact that we're still learning. Normally the defense is ahead of the offense, but right now, I'd have to say they are about even."

While noting that Smith might go both ways, Andrews says he isn't sure who the probably standouts on defense will be.

Beddingfield Beddingfield's Bruins, who started off like a house-afire last year, may be one of the challengers this year. Coach Ray Barger, in his fourth year, feels the team will be much stronger offensively than last year, but that defense is a major concern. "We lost several of our top players, and have to replace five of the seven front people and two of the secondary," he pointed out.

The Bruins run their defense from the five-two, and with only three starters back, will have to replace most of that side of the line. "We do have some experienced second line people, and we have to replace most of that side of the line. "We do have some experienced second line people, and we have

Rocky Mount Is Choice Of Coaches; Rose 2nd

Wiggins apparently isn't everything to the Big East coaches. Although Wilson Fike won last year's title, the coaches by-passed the Golden Demons to again pick Rocky Mount and Rose as the teams to beat in the 1981 race.

Rocky Mount got the true nod, collecting six first place votes. Only two coaches voted otherwise, both going for Fike, but it should be pointed out, no coach was allowed to vote for his own team.

Based on an award of 7-6-5-4-3-2-1 points, Rocky Mount topped the pre-season picks of the coaches with 48 points, only one point shy of a perfect score. After six coaches picked Rocky Mount to finish first, one put them in second.

Rose, without a first place vote, edged out Fike for second place, collecting 40 points. Rose was picked to finish second on five ballots and third on two.

Fike finished third with two first place votes, and a total of 36 points. The defending champions had no second place votes, but finished third on three ballots, fourth on another and fifth on one.

Beddingfield finished fourth with 33 points, collecting votes for second, third and fourth place. Northern Nash was fifth with 27 points, finishing from second to sixth on the various ballots.

Northeastern was placed sixth with 16 points, garnering votes for fifth, sixth and seventh. Newcomer Kinston, which replaces Bertie in the league, was given the nod for sixth, with 14 points. Individual ballots placed them from fifth to seventh.

Chosen to finish eighth in the league is Hunt, with ten points. Hunt received votes for sixth and seventh place only.

Player Reps Check New Playoff Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball's top officials, after at least two days of trying to rework their much-criticized plan for a strike-conceived split season, finally came up with a revised proposal.

Though still not officially announced, the modification, several player representatives confirmed Wednesday night, would change the arrangement for determining division playoff matchups should the same team win division titles in both halves of the season.

It provides, in that case, that the division runner-up in the poststrike half of the season would play the club that finished atop the division in both halves. The plan originally announced, following the 50-day players' strike, set up a format in which a team winning both division titles would play the club in its division with the second-best record for the entire season.

In both cases, the series to determine teams for the league championships was designed as a best-of-five competition.

The originally announced format was roundly criticized because it opened the possibility that a team could get into the division playoffs via the wild card route by losing certain games.

The player reps, as members of the Major League Players Association's executive board, were asked to vote on the revision by the union's leadership because the association's approval was needed for any change in the format since it is regarded as a contractual term.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the association, said Wednesday night he hoped to have all the results by today. He said about half of the player reps had been heard from, but the needed majority still had not been obtained because "there were some dissenters."

Among them was New York Yankee player rep Reggie Jackson. "I voted negatively because I felt it throws out any team that finished well in the first half," Jackson said.

"It should stay the way they made it (after the strike.) All these hypothetical cases that have been coming up have scared baseball and scared the commissioner's office into acting on something that was created by the media. I don't think it (the hypothetical cases) will ever come up."

The Yankees already were assured of berth in the division playoffs as one of the four teams atop the divisions when the strike began June 12. The others were the Oakland A's in the American League and the Los Angeles Dodgers and Philadelphia Phillies in the National.

Chicago White Sox player rep Lamar Johnson also said he had voted "no" because "if you play good in both halves, and you don't finish at least second in the second half, you can't make the playoffs."

The revision, apparently drafted by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and the two league presidents, Lee MacPhail of the AL and Chub Feeney of the NL, did find favor with some, though in some cases, reluctantly.

"It may not be a very good proposal, but it's probably the best one that was on the table," said Al Woods of the Toronto Blue Jays. "With the situation the way it was, they had to do something."

John Curtis of the San Diego Padres, said after Wednesday night's game with the St. Louis Cardinals that he had not yet been asked to vote, but he observed of the revision: "If they're closing the loopholes, I guess it's all right."

Bob Sykes of the Cardinals said: "It's the only way you could do it. Any other way has loopholes in it."

Minnesota Twins player rep Jerry Kosman saw the revision as "certainly taking the incentive out of losing." He said he had favored the split season format all along because "it gives new life to teams like ours. Baseball has to do something to sustain fan interest."

Milt Wilcox of the Detroit Tigers said the revision will be better for the Tigers. "Under the (original) system, we could have finished second in the second half and Baltimore still would have played the Yankees if they had been a game and a half behind us."

Boston Red Sox player rep Tom Burgmeier hailed the proposed new approach as a "pretty good one." He said he had told the union that he favored it personally and "the other players I've talked with all think it's OK."

A's manager Billy Martin complained: "I still think if we win both halves we shouldn't have to play anybody. They're after revenue, no doubt about it."

"I don't care," said Phil Garner of the Pittsburgh Pirates. "I just wish they would tell us how we have to play, just tell us what we have to do and we'll play it."

Steelers Seek To Climb Back Atop AFC Central

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In Cleveland, the Browns are raring to go and they'd rather forget "The Play" that ended their otherwise glorious 1980 season.

In Pittsburgh, the Steelers say they're young at heart and they've heard enough about "The Season" that spoiled their bid for a fifth Super Bowl ring.

In Houston, the Oilers have a new head coach and a new quarterback who aren't looking back on the departures of "The Bum" and "The Snake."

And in Cincinnati, the Bengals have "The Helmet," decorated with Tiger stripes that General Manager Paul Brown hopes will add a distinctive touch to a new winning era.

That's how the 1981 season shapes up in the American Football Conference Central Division, which has traditionally featured tight races even in years when the Steelers were winning Super Bowls.

Last season, the Browns, 11-5, ousted the Steelers as division champs. But Cleveland's bid for a Super Bowl berth went awry when quarterback Brian Sipe threw a last-minute interception against Oakland in the playoffs.

Okahoma.

But Gary signed with Montreal of the Canadian league.

"He chose the easy path instead of the tough one," said Steeler Coach Chuck Noll. "It surprised me. I had a different view of him, obviously, or we wouldn't have taken him on the first round."

Noll isn't the type to dwell on Gary's defection, just as he isn't the type to dwell on seasons past.

"We look at each season as a new journey, regardless of how the previous year went," said Noll.

Last year, the Steelers missed the playoffs for the first time since 1971, finishing 9-7.

Rampant injuries were part of it, the defense had just 18 quarterback sacks, questions were raised about whether the Steelers were too old and it was hinted Terry Bradshaw had lost his zest for the game.

Bradshaw spent the off-season mulling whether to quit football for an acting career. He decided this spring to remain a Steeler.

"I'm happy to be here. I really am," he bubbled at the start of camp.

How about old age?

"What is old?" said fullback Franco Harris, 31. "Chronologically we are old, but physically we are fine."

Joe Greene looks for improvement from the defense even though linebacker Jack Ham is out with a broken arm. Greene, who'll be 35 next month, also says he has no thoughts of retirement.

"I still enjoy playing and winning," he said. "When I do call it quits, it will be sudden — like Ken Stabler did it."

When Stabler, "The Snake," took over in Houston last year, he was touted as the quarterback who would take the Oilers to the Super Bowl. Houston finished 11-5, losing the division to Cleveland on a tie-breaker. The Oilers got a wild-card playoff berth, but they lost 27-7 to Oakland and "Bum" Phillips was fired as coach.

"I thought we were getting out-coached," said Oiler owner K.S. "Bud" Adams Jr.

Former defensive coach Ed Biles took over for Phillips. He's diversified the offense and hired Jim Shofner from Cleveland as offensive coordinator.

Following Stabler's retirement, the quarterback will be fourth-year pro Gifford Nielsen. Stabler quit just prior to summer camp and went on a Gulf of Mexico cruise.

"My body has taken enough physical abuse," explained Stabler.

"We're not looking back," said Biles. "No one player is indispensable."

In Cincinnati, the Bengals beat the Steelers twice last season. Their 6-10 overall record was an improvement over two previous 4-12 seasons.

"We learned a lot," said Coach Forrest Gregg. "These guys can compete with anyone and they believe that now."

Gregg used his first two draft picks on wide receivers David Verser of Kansas and Chris Collingsworth of Florida.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY ROBBIE

Moseby, Woods Do Job With Singles

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Lloyd Moseby and Al Woods didn't exactly make the best of their opportunities. After all, a home run is more productive than a single in any given situation in baseball.

But few players in baseball ever got better mileage out of five singles and a ground ball than the two Toronto Blue Jays did Wednesday night.

Coming to bat with runners in scoring position all night, Moseby knocked in six runs with three singles and a grounder and Woods added three more RBI with two of his three singles as Toronto bunched 17 hits for a 9-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

For Moseby, it was the best game he's had since he was in Medicine Hat, a tiny community in Western Canada with the Pioneer rookie league.

"I drove in seven runs in Medicine Hat one night," he said. "My previous best in the big leagues was four against Tommy John."

The lack of power in his production was of no concern to Moseby.

"I'll take it any way I can get it," he said. "That's the same as two home runs with two men on. I think we've got a roll going right now. Our confidence is high."

The Blue Jays, 16-42 before the players' strike, are 6-4 since the second season started, good enough for second place in the American League East.

In other AL games, Chicago edged New York 6-5, Oakland tripped Boston 4-2, Texas topped Milwaukee 4-1, Detroit blanked Minnesota 4-0, California beat Baltimore 6-3 and Seattle edged Cleveland 4-3 in 10 innings.

Moseby's six RBI came on a pair of two-run singles in the sixth and seventh innings, a run-scoring single in the fourth and the fielder's choice grounder in the third.

Woods had a two-run single in Toronto's three-run third inning and added another RBI single in the fourth.

Moseby also figured in one of the game's oddest moments when he was trapped between third and home in the third inning, but refused to surrender and got back to the base after Royals first baseman Willie Aikens threw the ball away.

"That was fun. Actually, I practiced that play in spring training," said Moseby. "It's fun when you get back, but while you're out there you're fighting for your breath."

The victory went to Juan Berenguer, who was placed on waivers by the Royals Aug. 8 and picked up by Toronto. Berenguer, 0-4 with Kansas City, raised his overall record to 2-4 with seven innings of five-hit pitching, allowing only two earned runs, including a solo homer by Hal McRae in the fifth.

Tigers 4, Twins 0

Stan Papi hit his second homer of the season, both as a designated hitter, highlighting Detroit's three-run fourth inning and its sixth victory in a row, while Dan Schatzeder and Dave Tobik blanked Minnesota on seven hits.

Papi, serving as the designated hitter for only the second time this season, hit his two-run homer after John Wockenfuss broke a scoreless tie with a double.

The Tigers are now in first place in the America League East with a 7-3 record, while the Twins have six consecutive losses.

Rangers 4, Brewers 1

Buddy Bell had two hits and two RBI while Doc Medich allowed only five hits in 82-3 innings to pace Texas over Milwaukee.

Bell singled home the Rangers' first run in the first inning and then doubled home another run in the sixth after Billy Sample's homer gave Texas a 2-0 lead in the fifth.

Medich, 6-3, had a three-hitter going into the ninth, but Ben Oglivie's run-scoring double ruined the shutout bid before Jim Kern came in to get the final out.

White Sox 6, Yankees 5

Mike Squires knocked in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly as Chicago edged New York and snapped the team's Tommy John jinx.

John had three shutouts against the White Sox last year and extended his scoreless innings streak against them to 322-3 innings before allowing four unearned runs in the third

Spirits Rise In Duke Camp

By BILL WERONKA

AP Sports Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A few years back all the state of North Carolina had to brag about in the way of college football had to do with the Duke Blue Devils.

But by the mid and late 60s, even the bragging rights were buried in scrapbooks. The program sputtered along, never gaining more than semi-respectability.

There were five years with Tom Harp and eight with Mike McGee. But the talk was that high academic standards hurt recruiting and the state-supported schools were eating up most of the home-grown talent. And you've got to have the horses.

Nowadays all Duke has to brag about is how optimistic the team and its coaches are. Two years ago Red Wilson took over. So far he's managed to win four games, tie one and lose 17.

But Wilson says it takes time

— maybe four or five year — to build a good (and winning) program. And most college coaches will agree. It also takes optimism and a smile about in the way of college football had to do with the Duke Blue Devils.

Wilson has all of that and it's a contagious optimism, infecting his coaches and his players.

A couple of weeks ago at a gathering of all the Atlantic Coast Conference coaches, he expounded on some of the differences in this third year.

"I now have everyone I brought in as a head coach. That will help the turnaround we expect this year," he said. "And the players are beginning to think the way we want them to think and do what we want them to do."

Then, reflecting on last season's 2-9 record, "I have no excuses about last year," Wilson said. "But it was very exciting, putting in a new offense with no established quarterback."

team who's help."

But early problems have hurt too. One of the top players, Scott Barnes, a linebacker and kicker, suffered a back injury in practice, and may be lost for the year.

"We're hoping that he'll be able to kick if nothing else," Williamson said. James Parker, a defensive end, also suffered a knee injury and will be out four to six weeks. "Both of them will be hard to replace," the coach said.

Running from the I-formation, the Warriors have six starters returning. "We're finding things a lot smoother than last year," Williamson said. "We're well ahead of where we were last season."

Top players should be quarterback Christy Rodri, tailback Percy Finch; 6-2, 240-pound tackle Robert Sharpe and guard Jeff Sutton.

On defense, Hunt will return four starters to the six-four lineup. "Our defense is going to have to be played by a lot of young players," the coach said.

Leading players should be Glen Coley, a sophomore linebacker, linebacker Jeff Cromer, and guard Johnny Coleman, "definitely our best athlete."

The key to the Hunt hopes will be how quickly the youngsters round into shape as players.

Big East Grid Roundup.....

better athletes than we had last year. Top defensive people will probably be tackles Dennis Barron and Will Whitley. "Our big question marks are linebacker and defensive backs," Barger said.

On offense, the Bruins, with the I, are ahead of where they were last year at this time., the coach feels. "Our line returns basically intact, and that is a big boost for us." Seven of the 11 starters returned led by tailback Kary Gee, tackle Phil Lewis and guard Mike Bunn.

"The play of our linebackers will be the key," Barger said. "That and not getting hurt. We are shy on depth."

Northern Nash

Coach Robbie Barrow, in his second year at Northern Nash, is looking upward. "Things look much, much better. We had 127 come out this fall, as compared to only 40 last year. We have four new assistant coaches, and I think the overall situation is the best it's been in years at Northern."

He noted that the Knights have put in a weight program that has had dramatic results. "Last year, we didn't have a senior who could bench 220 pounds. This year, we have 50 people who do that and better. It's a big difference."

The Knights, like many others, use the I-formation on offense. "We have a good quarterback in Thomas Mabry, who is a fine drop-back passer who is looking really good. We have seven starters back, although we have moved last year's starting quarterback, Steve Smith, to tight end.

"Our offense is way, way ahead of where it was at the end of the season last year," Barrow added.

Top offensive people, in addition to Mabry and Smith should be fullback Steve Lynch, flanker Kevin Payne (29 receptions last year), and split end Maurice Williams.

"Our key will be how consistent we are in the line. We were never able to establish a ground game last year, and we need to do that this year."

Defensively, nine starters are back for the four-four stack unit. "We have all of our linebackers, two of the secondary and three of the linemen back. We weren't physical enough last year, but I think we will be this year, thanks to the weight program. We should be fairly quick, too," Barrow said.

Top defenders are listed as Clint Carter, a linebacker; end Mark Whitaker, corner backs James White and Bobby Hill and tackle Emory Harper.

Northeastern

Jerry McGee's Northeastern Eagles nearly brought him a championship in his fifth season, but fell just short. And since the league had only one playoff berth last year, the Eagles stayed home.

This year, McGee faces one of the real rebuilding jobs in the league. "We are very, very young and inexperienced," he said. "We have only nine lettermen and four starters back. I think we will be competitive, quick, but not as big as last year. Our running game should be better, but our passing won't be nearly as good."

Three starters return on offense in the I-formation unit. One of them, Tony Rice, has been switched from defensive end. William Morris, who rushed for 570 yards in the first five games before being injured, returns at fullback.

Quarterback goes to Douglas Shannon, up from the junior varsity. "Our number two quarterback from last year was a better thrower, but we lost him to grades," McGee said.

McGee sees the Eagles as primarily a running team, throwing only when forced.

The only other starter back is guard Mike Sanders.

On defense, where a split-six is used, only one starter is back, end William Bell, a junior. "We probably will be playing some people who didn't even play last year," McGee said of the defense, "so we're really inexperienced. We do have good quickness, though."

Top newcomer on defense is John Gurganus, who did letter last year. "He's not big, but very quick."

Kinston

The Kinston Vikings join the Big East this year, moving up from the Midwestern as the replacement for Bertie. Second year coach Bobby Wolfe, however, isn't expecting his team to make waves right off the bat.

"Changing conference won't be any big problem for us. We're looking forward to it. We've been playing several of the teams in non-conference games before anyway."

Offensive, the Vikes use the pro-set with two tight ends. "We have a lot of work to do yet, and we don't have a lot of experience." Only four starters return on offense, and one of them will be in a new position. Quarterback will go to an inexperienced player, too.

Top offensive people are running back Darryl Suggs, and back/flanker Michael Pittman. The quarterback slot will probably go to Bo Kintz or John Hooten.

Defense should be stronger than last year at Kinston, with nine starters back. "Not all of them will be in the same place, however," Wolfe said. The six-two lineup should be quicker and stronger, with more experience. "It's far ahead of the offense right now."

Top performers should be linebackers Mike Fields and Jeff Hendricks, defensive ends David Chapman and Vernon Byrd and tackles Jeff Jenkins and Richard Williams.

"We need to have some early success. The kids are enthusiastic right now, and we need some wins to keep it going."

Hunt

Billy Williamson's Hunt Warriors finished last in 1980, and are being picked for that spot again in 1981. Williamson, in his third year, feels that the Warriors will be better, however. "We have some good kids up from a 7-3 junior varsity

School Nutrition Policy Announced

As school opens this year, the income scale determining eligibility of students for free and reduced meals applicable for the 1981-82 school year has not been determined. A determination is expected in late September or early October.

As an interim measure, both Linda Tingle of the city schools Food Service and Donna Ware of the county school Food Service are using student information on record at the end of the 1980-81 school year, except for kindergarten students enrolling in school for the first time.

For kindergartners, free lunch application forms will be sent to the students' home. Parents or guardians applying for free or reduced price meals must return the completed forms to the appropriate school within ten days.

Additionally, a student other than a kindergartner whose family income scale has changed can obtain a form and make application for free or reduced meals. Also, a student eligible for free or reduced meals last year whose family income has increased upward should provide this information to his or her school so that determination can be made relative to continuing eligibility.

Both school systems, on receipt of updated income scale policy information, will be sending applications out to the parents of students so that applications can be processed again based on new data.

Currently, the income scale applicable in the Child Nutrition Program is:

Court Awards Siamese Twins Custody To County

RUTHERFORDTON, N.C. (AP) — Siamese twin girls born to a Forest City couple last year were placed Wednesday in the custody of the Rutherford County Social Services Department after authorities said they were being deprived of proper medical attention.

District Court Judge Zoro Guice issued the order after a two-and-a-half hour hearing in which the twins' parents, their doctors and social services officials testified.

Social services representative Robert Hensley said the parents, Kim and Arlin Beaver, can appeal the decision in juvenile court next week. Barring an appeal, Guice will order the department to take custody of the twins for six months.

The babies will remain with their parents "unless they fail to comply with court order, which would be a different story," Hensley said.

He said legal custody of the separated twins means only that the department will make sure they report for scheduled medical visits and testing in Forest City and at Asheville's Memorial Mission Hospital.

At the end of six months, the social services department may go through the hearing process again to possibly gain legal custody of the girls for another six months.

Following the hearing, the Beavers pushed past spectators in the courtroom, declining comment on the ruling. Guice also remained silent, saying only that juvenile matters are confidential under state law.

In a petition filed earlier this week, the county department of social services argued that the Beavers have neglected their 18-month-old daughters, Fonda Michelle and Shannon Elaine.

Beaver's twin brother, Arnold, said doctors in the case were "picking on Arlin and Kim."

"Dr. (Bobby) England (the Beavers' family physician) is mad at 'em because he didn't get to deliver the twins and he's been on their case ever since," Arnold Beaver said. He added that "welfare wants 'em to experiment with 'em."

England, who testified in the hearing, called Arnold Beaver's accusations "absurd."

"I have shed tears with this mother over these babies," England said. "I have treated them as my own children."

England said he has not charged the Beavers for any of the 24 visits they have made to his office.

When asked how much medical monitoring the twins need, England said their conditions require constant attention. He said neither child has a colon, which affects water retention. He also pointed out that each child has only one kidney and that one, Shannon, has no bladder.

"Right now we're worried about their inability to gain weight," he said, noting that the twins must gain at least three ounces a week or they may have to be put back into the hospital.

"I have never accused these parents of neglecting their babies. I just think there is a failure on their part to recognize the extreme uniqueness of their conditions," England said.

Beaver, 21, has said the couple was surprised by the petition.

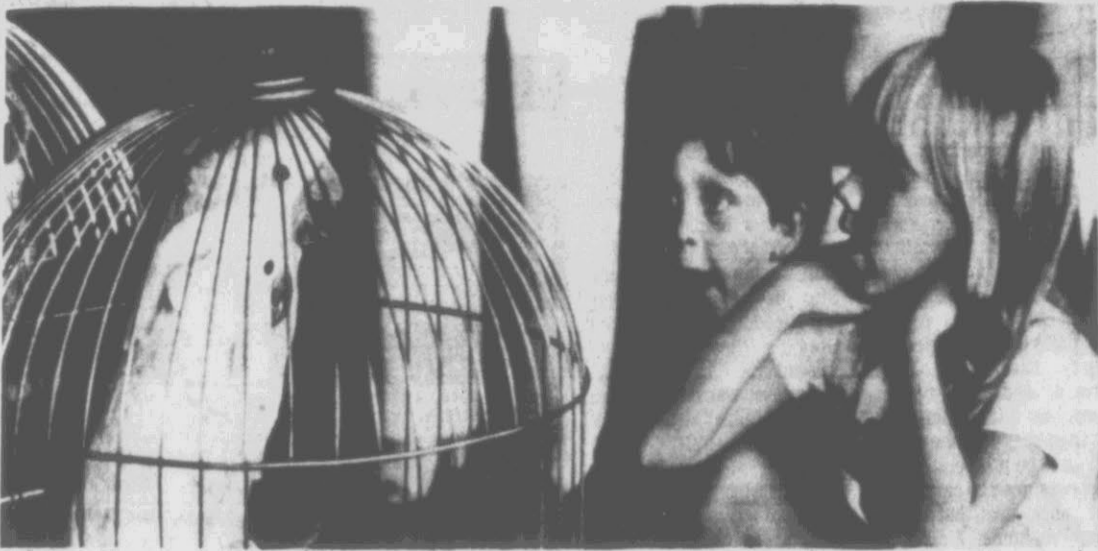

"It came out of the blue. We sure weren't expecting it and we don't know what they expect of us," he said.

"They want us to take them (the children) to the doctor all the time and we can't do anything else for them when they're going to the doctor all the time," said Mrs. Beaver, 16.

The twins were put in Memorial Mission Hospital in Asheville last Tuesday for tests to determine why they were failing to gain weight. But Hensley said Beaver took the babies home to Forest City the next Wednesday against doctors' orders.

Social worker Gene Wilson went to the Beavers' trailer in rural Rutherford County and convinced the parents to return the babies to the hospital, but Beaver took the twins from the hospital again last Monday before testing was completed.

The twins, joined just below the ribs at birth, were separated this past January by a team of specialists at the Asheville hospital. Each baby had its own spinal cord and heart but they shared a pelvis, bladder, colon and rectum and had only one leg each. Although the separation was successful, doctors say the infants need regular medical care and special testing to make sure they are doing well.

TAKING THEIR BUSINESS ELSEWHERE — Two Salmon Crested Cockatoos sit silently on a perch staring into space as a couple of youngsters wait for them to do something in Atlantic City, N.J. It's just such boring behavior that got the birds in trouble with the management of the Golden Nugget Hotel where they were employed with four other birds as lobby decorations and entertainment. They're being shipped off to the Philadelphia Zoo, where they can sit and stare all they want while Disney-designed mechanical birds twitter away in their place at the casino. (AP Laserphoto)

Lorna Luft Dances In The Shadows Of Her Family

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Bemelman's Bar at the Carlyle Hotel was almost empty when Lorna Luft walked in. But Judy Garland's younger daughter filled it with herself the moment she threw back her head in a Bette Davis laugh.
Hah!
The wallpaper laughed back. She glanced at its sketches of little French school girls and became quieter. In a whisper, almost: "Ah, they bring back memories."
Lorna Luft's eyes caressed the wallpaper. She turned full circle in her chair. "My mother had that. We were living in Paris. What was that book, now?"

She's pensive for a moment. "Babar" is suggested. "No, no. It's 'Madeline'!"

Miss Luft proclaimed triumphantly. "Those were the books Mama made us read.

Oh, it brings back such memories."

A waiter arrives with a potent "soup" — a bullshot. That's beef broth, lemon and a tad of vodka. He lingers long enough to tell Miss Luft he remembers her staying at the hotel with her mother when she was a little girl.

Her mother gave the waiter an autograph, he says. He doesn't ask Miss Luft for hers.

That goes with the terrain of being Judy's daughter and Liza's sister. Lorna dances in shadows. But the lighting is good: for a kid who was raised by a "living legend," later to see her older half-sister, Liza Minnelli, zoom to super-stardom, she's doing OK.

"I never thought about being tossed into a shadow," she said. "I knew exactly what was going to happen to me. I know what helped me survive was always having a sense of humor. Don't ever take yourself seriously."

Miss Luft recently finished six months on the road starring in the musical "They're Playing Our Song." Critics from Fort Lauderdale, Fla. to Cincinnati and points in between gave her rave reviews. After a 10-day vacation in Hawaii, she's off to Europe to promote her new record single, "Long Time."

Still, Lorna Luft's energy level pales before the electric frenzy that was Judy Garland, and it is not as intense as Liza Minnelli's. But then she says she never wanted to be a superstar and is not consumed by career.

"I work real hard, but when I'm home, it's like a vacation for me," she said. "I don't go around and worry about my pictures being here or there or being seen at every opening."

She sips her "soup." The bullshot makes her cheeks flush to the color of the red pantaloons she wears after a particularly grueling morning auditioning for theatrical producer Joseph Papp.

"Hard work is a challenge," she says. "Doing a show, learning a song or making a record is a challenge. I always say I can do it better. I'm never satisfied."

"I'm always a nervous mess before I go out on stage," she said. "We did 205 performances and I was a mess every night. Right now I'm running on spit and chewing gum."

Miss Luft, whose father, Sid, produced the Garland film, "A Star Is Born," was 11 when she decided show biz was for her.

"When I told Mama that what I wanted to do, she said, 'You'd better study because you ain't getting it on my name."

She studied hard and she went on stage for the first time the summer before Judy Garland's legendary Palace Theater concert. She was 13. "I was terrified," Miss Luft said.

"It was the first time Mama ever let go of my hand. She stood in the wings for the first eight bars of the song — 'Don't Sleep in the Subway' — and then left."

"The teaching I mostly got was from watching her," she said. "It taught me a lot. I watched the master."

She appeared with her mother at the Palace and later at a Madison Square Garden concert. In 1972, Miss Luft was awarded the Rising Star of the Year Award for her leading role in Nell Simon's "Promises, Promises."

Her eyes wandered back to the "Madeline" drawings on the wall. She smiled sweetly. Paris. It was one of many cities in which she lived with "Mama." Liza and brother Joey Luft. They also lived in Scarsdale, N.Y. for half a minute, London for a second, New York for an hour and Los Angeles for a day.

"I had a great upbringing, moving around a bit," Miss Luft said. "I thought 'Leave It to Beaver' was the strangest, too. They didn't fit my family."

Because the family never stayed long in one place, it was hard to make and maintain friends as a child. Today, Miss Luft treasures her friends.

"Mama was real loyal to her friends," she said wistfully. "Liza is a real good friend. She'll do anything for you. We got that from Mama."

OVERSHADOWED — Raised by a "living legend," Lorna Luft says what helped her survive was a sense of humor. "Don't ever take yourself seriously," she says. (AP Laserphoto)

CBS Ratings Keep Adding Momentum

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS continued to build momentum for the upcoming prime-time season, listing with seven of the 10 most-watched shows in the week ending Aug. 16 and winning the three week competition for the 13th time in a row, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

The season, delayed by the recently settled writers' strike in Hollywood, still is about six weeks away.

CBS won the race in a week dominated by reruns with "Dukes of Hazzard" in first place, "M-A-S-H" second and "Trapper John, M.D." tied for third.

The rating for "Dukes of Hazzard" was 21.4. Nielsen says that means of all the nation's homes with television, 21.4 percent saw at least part of the No. 1 show.

CBS' average rating for the week was 14.6 to 13.2 for ABC and 11.6 for NBC. For NBC dropped to the No. 3 spot after a week in second place.

The networks say CBS' rating means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 14.6 percent of the nation's homes with TV were tuned to the No. 1 network.

ABC's "20-20," in 12th place, was the highest-rated of the week's first-run programs. ABC's first "Monday Night Baseball" game after the players' strike — and the last game in the series — was No. 38.

Training Grant

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Western Public Radio has received a $221,202 grant from the John and Mary R. Markle Foundation to conduct a national radio training program for independent, public and commercial radio producers. The training involves three 10-day workshops each year for three years, with 12 participants in each workshop. Instruction will cover topic selection, interviewing techniques, field recording and microphone use, story construction, editing, sound selection and mixing.

Hope To Perform At Carowinds

CHARLOTTE — Comedian Bob Hope will be in one performance beginning at 8 p.m. in the Paladium amphitheater at Carowinds on Saturday, August 22, along with special guests America.

The 78-year-old Hope has been a public figure since the mid 1920's, and has worked widely in vaudeville, theater, radio, movies and television. Tickets to the performance cost $3 in addition to the $9.95 general admission price to Carowinds.

Racial Mixing In South Africa Is More Common

By CYNTHIA STEVENS
Associated Press Writer
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A popular weekend outing for blacks in Johannesburg is to ride the high-speed elevator to the top of the 50-story Carlton Center for a panoramic view of the city and a hamburger at the Wimpy bar.

Five years ago the casual mixing of whites and blacks in the Carlton Center's glassed-in observation deck and fast-food restaurant would have been illegal. Now it's an increasingly common sight in this racially segregated nation.

Until 1976, when the post office quietly began to remove "whites only" signs from entrances and elevators, access of non-whites to public buildings was rigidly controlled by the country's complex apartheid laws.

Nowadays the races mix freely in public places like the post office. People of all colors use the public library. Black women wrapped in colorful tribal blankets share Johannesburg's city park benches with whites at lunchtime. Stylishly dressed blacks shop alongside whites in such big downtown department stores as Edgars, Garlicks and John Orr's.

It is part of the white-minority government's effort to remove what it calls "hurtful" discrimination against the non-white majority of some 23 million — blacks, Asians and people of mixed race, called "coloreds."

Removal of the apartheid signs from the post office was a milestone. In 1977 the government allowed certain hotels, restaurants and bars — primarily those dealing with foreign visitors — to have "international licenses."

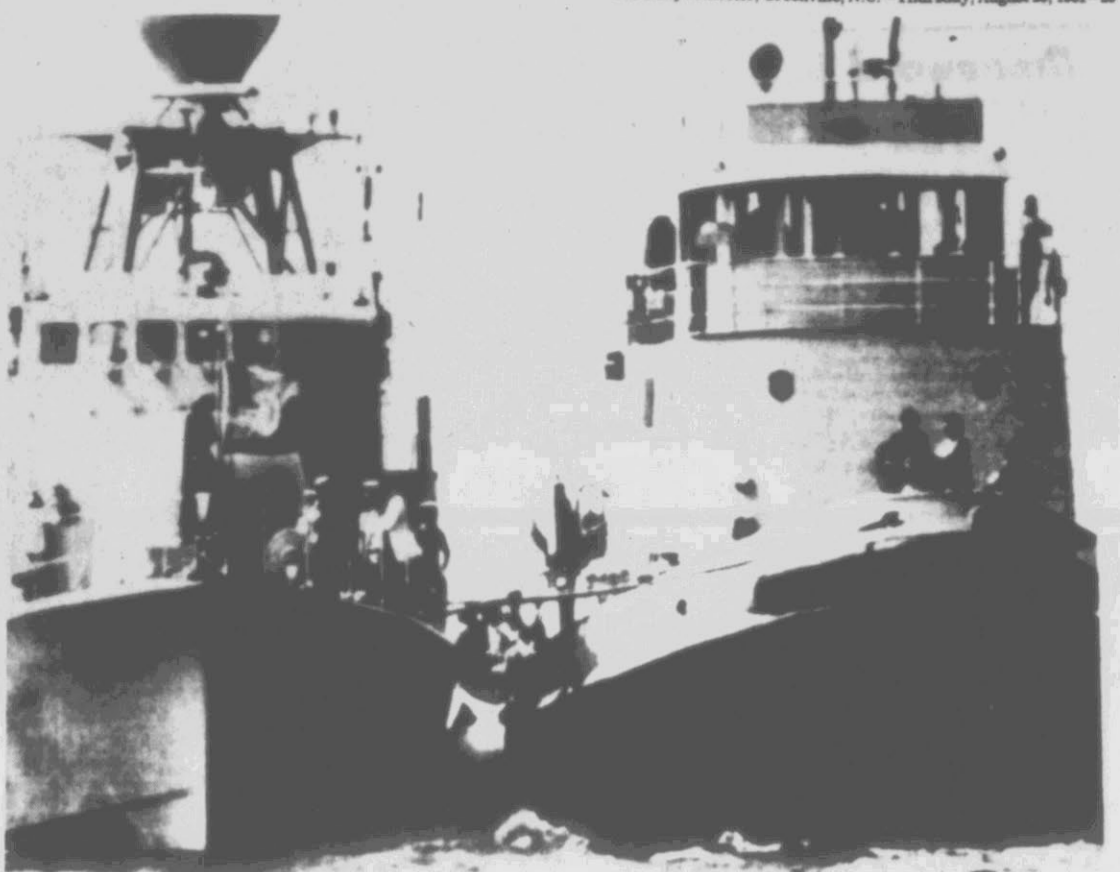

This meant that hotels like the Carlton in downtown Johannesburg and Holiday Inns around the country could lodge non-white guests. A hotel, bar or restaurant without an "international license" could also accommodate a non-white — provided the owner telephoned a civil servant in Pretoria on a special "hotline" to ask permission.

In April, the law was amended to allow owners of bars, hotels and restaurants to decide for themselves whether to serve non-whites. Dawie de Villiers, minister of industries, commerce and tourism, says the "hotline" system had "proved very unsuccessful" because it caused South Africa a lot of bad publicity overseas.

The government's rationale for easing "hurtful" discrimination was summed up in a widely quoted remark in 1979 by Prime Minister P.W. Botha that the five million whites must "adapt or die" — meaning that they face a perilous future if they fail to reach an accommodation with the black majority.

Despite the concessions, the national party government remains committed to the basic structure of apartheid, or racial separation, which it legalized shortly after taking power in the 1948 general election. Many facilities remain segregated, among them beaches, swimming pools, most transport and movie theaters.

Fourth Operation For Jas. Brady Set Today

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary James S. Brady faced a fourth major operation today in hopes of sealing a leak in his brain cavity that has slowed his recovery from the head wound suffered in the assassination attempt on President Reagan.

In a procedure described by a medical spokesman as major but not particularly delicate, surgeons said they would attempt to seal the leak, which has allowed the spinal fluid to enter Brady's sinuses.

Brady was described by friends as in good spirits on the eve of the operation, and he was permitted to leave the hospital for a dinner with friends two nights before the surgery.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary, clinical dean at George Washington University Hospital where Brady has been treated since the shooting, said the persistent leakage of fluid presents a risk of infection.

The operation, performed by Dr. Arthur Koberne, the neurosurgeon credited with saving Brady's life in the dramatic hours after the March 30 shooting, and Dr. Norman L. Barr Jr., a nose and throat specialist on the hospital faculty, was expected to take several hours.

Brady's physicians have been concerned for some time about incomplete healing of the normally airtight seal around the brain. Less than a month after the shooting, the wounded press secretary underwent surgery to repair a membrane leak which triggered a potentially dangerous buildup of air pressure on his brain.

A few weeks later, Brady was confined to a reclining position in bed for 10 days after doctors thought a few drops of spinal fluid had leaked from his nose. Although they hoped that leak would heal itself, Brady experienced another discharge of fluid on Aug. 3 after he suffered a major epilepsy-like seizure that apparently created a sharp increase in pressure inside the skull.

A White House statement Tuesday said small amounts of fluid have continued to leak into Brady's sinuses through his bullet-pierced skull since the seizure occurred.

To correct the problem, doctors planned to make an incision near the bridge of the nose and another through the nasal passage to reach the bullet-shattered, bony sinus area in front of and beneath the brain. There, they would search for and remove any dead tissue and bone fragments that might be preventing the last areas of the bullet track from healing.

Doctors then planned to pack the area with live, fatty tissue that they hope will finally seal the leak and permit Brady to resume the physical therapy he needs before he can be discharged from the hospital.

Neither vulnerable. South marked for a spade void (the opening bid virtually guaranteed a six-card suit), he shifted to a trump. West won the ace and continued a trump. Now declarer was a trump short to set up his hearts, so he ended up down one.

At one table North-South climbed all the way to six diamonds. It would seem that West should lead the ace of trumps to "take a look at dummy" and then decide what to do. Instead, he chose to lay down the ace of spades first. Declarer ruffed, set up his hearts with two ruffs and discarded his losing club on the king of spades to land his slam!

Chase at Trois-Rivieres

Fourteen races make up the 1981 Grand Prix circuit. This weekend drivers who have raced in places as far removed as Sao Paulo, Brazil, and Kyalami, South Africa, will compete in the 13th race at Trois-Rivieres, Quebec. The Grand Prix races, the oldest continuing international auto races, pit Formula One cars against one another. Built according to international guidelines, Formula One cars are designed purely for speed and maneuverability on courses twisting through city streets and country lanes. At the first Grand Prix in 1906 in Le Mans, France, the winning car took two days to complete a 768 mile race. Today's races are about 200 miles long, with cars averaging 120 miles per hour. Winners of each race receive points toward the season championship.

Makeup Of U.S. Cities Is Shifting

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMIDT

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — While whites are moving to the nation's small towns and rural areas, new Census Bureau figures show black Americans increasing their numbers in both central cities and the suburbs.

During the last 10 years black Americans increased their numbers in eight of the 10 largest black-population cities at the same time the white city population was shrinking, the bureau reported Wednesday.

And, reaching what demographic experts termed a turning point, black growth in the cities was outstripped by their suburban increases. Census Bureau analysts Larry Long and Diana DeAre report in the September issue of American Demographics magazine that one-fifth of all blacks now live in suburban areas and conclude that "it is significant that the nation's black population is no longer concentrating in the central cities."

This movement to the suburbs often means an opportunity to own a home, a major form of wealth accumulation for middle-class Americans, and can help secure that status for many black families, they report.

Since 1970, the article says, the percentage of suburbanites who are black has jumped from 4.8 percent to 6.1 percent.

And the black population of the cities grew between 1970 and 1980, with the central cities going from 20.6 percent black in 1970 to 23.4 percent in 1980.

During the same period the population as a whole — the majority of which is white — was moving out of cities and urban areas into the smaller towns and countryside. Indeed, this movement was so vast that some 90 smaller communities won urban designations following last year's national head count.

The nation's largest cities, though, were typified by the largest, New York. While New York was losing 10.4 percent of its total population between 1970 and 1980, it's black population grew by 7 percent.

Census statistician Dwight Johnson said new figures from the 1980 headcount are showing that the "total, or white, population primarily is leaving the central part of the city. The black population, on the other hand, is still quite heavily concentrated in the cities.

"Definitely a reason would be economics, and just tradition as well," he said. "Blacks have pretty much been located in the central cities since the migrations of the 1940s, actually. And blacks continue to be there."

But he also noted that some are leaving the central cities for the suburban areas, "so blacks are trying to leave when they are financially able."

The report said that Chicago, the city with the second largest number of blacks, saw its black population grow by 8.6 percent over the last decade, while the total population of the city dipped 10.7 percent.

In Detroit blacks grew 14.9 percent while total population dropped 20.4 percent. Philadelphia's total dropped 13.4 percent, while its number of blacks declined only 2.3 percent.

Los Angeles, with total growth larger than black growth, and Washington, where the black total declined faster than the total population, were the two exceptions.

Long and Ms. DeAre speculate that the total population of Los Angeles grew faster than the numbers of blacks because of the influx of Hispanics to that city.

Black growth in Los Angeles was only 0.3 percent compared to an overall growth rate of 5.4 percent. In Washington the total population dropped 15.7 percent, while the black population declined 16.6 percent.

In Houston, black growth outstripped total growth 39.1 percent to 29.3 percent; in Baltimore, blacks increased 2.3 percent while the total dropped 13.1 percent; New Orleans blacks gained 15.3 percent compared to an overall decline of 6.1 percent; and in Memphis, black growth topped total growth 26.9 percent to 3.7 percent.
