Rate Boost Request By Carolina T&T

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. announced that it filed today a request with the N.C. Utilities Commission for a rate increase of about $47.2 million.

Ted Williamson, vice president, said "If the request is granted, it would mean an increase of $3.40 a month for our smallest exchanges to $4.35 for our largest exchanges for basic local residential service. We are not asking for an increase in telephone instrument rental charges."

Williamson explained that, "Meanwhile there may be an increase in statewide long distance rates. If such an increase is effective prior to a decision on our local rate increase, then we will not need as big an increase on local service rates."

He said the company's request includes increases in basic local service rates, installation and change charges, extended area service (EAS) rates, and other supplemental service and equipment rates and charges.

In the Greenville exchange, the combined basic and EAS residential rates requested include: (one party) an increase of $4.90 from the present $9.40 to $14.30; (two party) an increase of $4.20 from $8.30 to $12.50; (four party) an increase of $3.90 from $7.95 to $11.85; and (EAS rate) an increase of 70 cents from $1.95 to $2.65.

Proposed business rates here would involve: (one party) an increase of $12.15 from the present $23.60 to $35.75; (two party) an increase of $10.60 from $20.80 to $31.40; (four party) an increase of $10.10 from $19.85 to $29.95; and (EAS rate) an increase of $1.75 from $4.90 to $6.65.

It was pointed out that EAS rates are included in the one, two and four-party rates.

Increases over present rates requested in neighboring exchanges for residential one, two, and four-party and EAS rates, and business one, two, and four-party and EAS rates include: Ayden, (R) $4.60, $3.95, $3.70, 50 cents, (B) $11.40, $9.85, $9.40, and $1.15; Bethel, (R) $4.60, $3.95, $3.70, 50 cents, (B) $11.40, $9.85, $9.40, and $1.15;

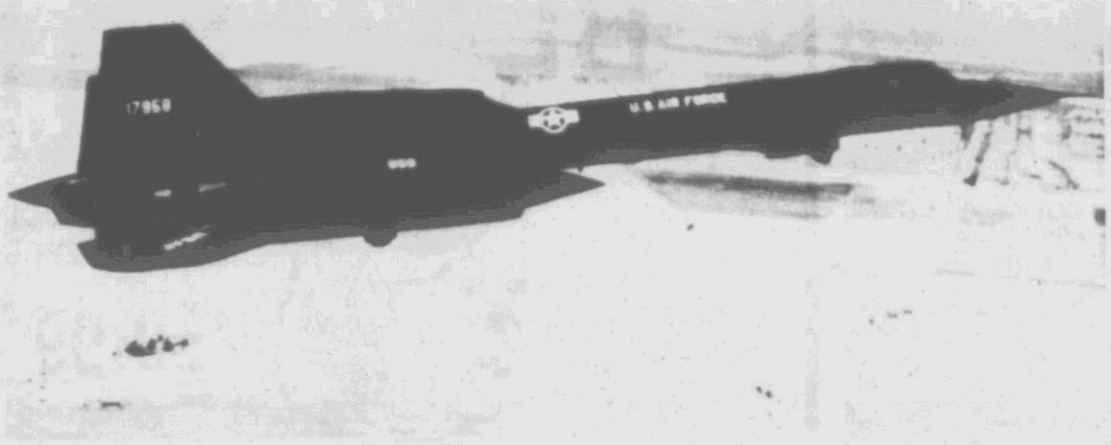

Farmville, (R) $4.60, $3.95, $3.70, 50 cents, (B) $11.50, $9.95, $9.50, and $1.15; Fountain (R) $4, $3.40, $3.20, 30 cents, (B) $10, $8.60, $8.15, and 75 cents; Grifton, (R) $4.55, $3.85, $3.60, 50 cents (B) $11.25, $9.75, $9.20, and $1.15;

Robersonville, (R) $4.40, $3.80, $3.50, 50 cents, (B) $11.05, $9.55, $9.05, and $1.25; Snow Hill, (R) $3.70, $3.10, $2.90, (B) $9.25, $7.85; and $7.40; and Williamston, (R) $4.55, $3.95, $3.65, 65 cents, (B) $11.40, $9.90, $9.40, and $1.60 cents.

According to Williamson, the Utilities Commission is expected to hold public hearings in early 1982 before ruling on the company's proposal. He said rates are not expected to change before next year.

The spokesman said the Tarboro based utility got only half as much as it needed in its last request. He said the company proposed a $25.5 million increase in August of 1980, and later reported that its new revenue needs had grown to $36.2 million annually by the time the comission heard the case in January. The commission granted Carolina Telephone an $18.4 million annual increase in April.

Carolina Telephone serves some 560,000 customers in 50 of the state's 100 counties.

TARGET OF MISSILE? — A U.S. Air Force SR-71 "Blackbird" reconnaisance jet soars over the western United States in an earlier photo. On Wednesday the Pentagon said that a missile apparently launched from North Korea at a SR-71 apparently missed the high flying jet by several miles. The Pentagon statement did not flatly accuse North Korea of firing the missile at the aircraft, but said the plane crew reported a contrail and subsequent air burst several miles distant. (AP Laserphoto)

Administration Silent On Korean Missile Incident

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration withheld a response today to North Korea's apparent firing of a surface-to-air missile in the vicinity of a high-altitude U.S. spy plane.

President Reagan was described as "concerned" about Wednesday's incident, which came a week after U.S. jets shot down two attacking Libyan planes during Navy maneuvers in disputed Mediterranean waters off the cost of Libya.

In Seoul, the U.N. military command called today for a meeting of the Military Armistice Command that oversees the truce between North and South Korea. It was not known, however, if the missile incident would be the subject.

The missile missed by miles, and the Reagan administration stopped short of flatly accusing the North Koreans of shooting at the Air Force SR-71 "Blackbird" reconnaissance plane.

The Pentagon and the State Department were evaluating the circumstances to determine how the United States should respond.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said "the missile was so far away we are still treating it as an apparent incident." He did not elaborate.

Details of the incident were sketchy a day later. It remained unclear early today whether the missile was aimed at the U.S. plane and exactly where it originated, government sources said.

The Pentagon said the plane was on a "routine mission" in South Korean and international air space when the crew "reported sighting a contrail and subsequent air burst several miles distant."

There were no injuries to American crewmen, and the plane landed safely, officials said.

"If a missile was launched, it could have originated from any one of a number of missile sites in North Korea," the Pentagon statement said.

State Department spokesman Rush Taylor issued a similarly worded statement that substituted the words "north of the demilitarized zone" for "in North Korea."

Taylor said the possibly of a U.S. response was "currently being evaluated."

The Pentagon refused to say how near the plane was to North Korea or to the demilitarized zone. It said there have been no similar incidents in the past and that no other aircraft was involved.

Speakes, asked in Santa Barbara whether the plane had been spying on North Korea, replied, "We don't comment on that."

The Defense Department and the Air Force rarely discuss operations of SR-71s, two-seat successors to the U-2 spy plane that fly more than 2,000 mph and at altitudes above 80,000 feet.

It is known, however, that SR-71s have been used in past years to spy on China and communist Vietnam. There have been unconfirmed reports they have been used to photograph North Korea.

White House counselor Edwin Meese III said Reagan was briefed about the Korean incident Wednesday by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger during a previously scheduled meeting at the president's ranch.

"The president was concerned about it obviously," said Meese.

'Mistake' Frees Voyager Stuck Camera Platform

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — An electronic swat sent from a billion miles away freed the stuck camera platform on Voyager 2, and scientists were trying to find out today if the ship can get back to the business of looking at distant worlds.

A weary flight engineer accidentally sent an incorrect computer command to Voyager late Wednesday, telling it to move its jammed platform with a forward rotation 10 times greater than previous orders designed to free the platform. The mistake did the trick, freeing a vital camera platform that had been stuck for nearly a day.

"We are not permanently stuck," project manager Esker Davis said with relief late Wednesday. "I feel better."

Davis said Voyager's two exploratory cameras and three other instruments still needed to be checked out and are not considered operational yet. He said he couldn't predict when the 226-pound package mounted on a 7½-foot boom might be put back to work.

The camera platform had been unable to move from side to side, although it could still swivel up and down. The devices on the platform were working well; they just couldn't be aimed at what scientists wanted to see.

Seven of Voyager's 11 scientific instruments continued to perform exactly as planned, Davis said.

Troubleshooters were still analyzing what happened on the far side of Saturn at 11:30 p.m. PDT Tuesday to jam the crucial camera-aiming system. And they weren't sure the problem was permanently solved.

Voyager 2, meanwhile, was racing away from its spectacular tour of Saturn's churning clouds, glittering rings and icy moons.

The next leg of a journey that began four years ago takes it across another 1.7 billion miles of space for a visit to Uranus in 1986 and a dash past Neptune in 1989.

While engineers worked on the jammed platform Wednesday, scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory were reveling in the new information and pictures of Saturn relayed to them by Voyager 2.

Photography team leader Brad Smith described the close approach with Saturn as "something like roughly 99 percent successful." He said the ship accomplished most of its crucial chores before the malfunction left its cameras staring uselessly at empty space.

A new puzzle for scientists was a strangely kinky ring apparently discovered by yet another lucky accident moments before the camera problems began and possibly even related to them.

The narrow ring, which seems creased and kinked like a bit of wire that's been unwound after being wadded up, was spotted as Voyager passed behind Saturn, said scientist Richard Terrile.

The narrow ring was discovered in the Encke Division, a gap in the bright A-ring, even though "we didn't have any pictures of the Encke Division scheduled." He said the cameras, as they were glancing about, somehow managedage capture the still-unexplained feature.

Davis said Voyager engineers were reviewing pictures and data recorded during the critical period when the problem developed, which was around the time Voyager 2 made a risky dive through the sparse collection of frozen particles near the outer edge of the rings.

Tax Proceeds Are Distributed To Local Units

Net distributal tax proceeds totaling some $861,469 were received by Pitt County for the quarter ending June 30, according to Mark Lynch, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

Lynch said that on a per capita distribution basis figured relative to population, Greenville received $229,786 of the total amount. Population here was listed in the report as 36,271.

Farmville, based on a population of 5 ,475 , received $34,685 of the total distribution, Lynch said, while Ayden, with a population of 4,371, received $27,691.

Other Pitt towns, their populations and receipts, included: Winterville, 2,5 20, $15 ,964; Grifton, (Pitt's share), 2,320, $14,697; Bethel, 2,002, $12,683; Simpson, 5 20, $3,294; Grimesland, 433, $2,743; Fountain, 432, $2,736; and Falkland, 123, $779.

Total population for Pitt County was listed as 81,5 13 with the county itself receiving $5 16,406 of the total proceeds and the balance allotted to the ten towns in the county.

Greene County, figured on an ad valorem basis, received $60,836 in net distributions with $5 7,098 going to the county itself and the balance allotted to Snow Hill, $3,073; Hookerton, $439; and Walstonburg, $225 .

Lenoir County, figured on an ad valorem basis, received $5 5 6,807 with $432,5 65 going to the county and the rest distributed to Kinston, $112,476; La Grange, $8,468; Pink Hill, $3,043; and Grifton (Lenoir's share), $25 4.

Martin County, also based on an ad valorem levy, received $194,286 with $160,344 going to the county and the balance allotted to nine towns. Receiving shares were: Williamston, $25 ,901; Robersonville, $5 ,277; Jamesville, $916; Oak City, $701; Hamilton, $5 45 ; Everetts, $287; Parmele, $164; Bear Grass, $88; and Hassell, $60.

Beaufort County totals, figured on a per capita basis, included $421,133 in distributions with $312,303 of the total allotted to the county itself. Seven towns shared in the balance, including: Washington, $71,971; Belhaven, $18,723; Aurora, $5,640; Chocowinity, $4,798; Washington Park, $4,304; Bath, $1,723; and Pantego, $1,669.

Andrea Doria's Safe Is Rigged For Surfacing

BOSTON (AP) — Divers to the ill-fated Andrea Doria have reached one of two safes possibly containing some $2 million in valuables and are ready to lift it to the surface, a spokeswoman for the expedition says.

"The first safe has been reached," said Lillian Pickard. "They're very excited." She said the safe "has been rigged and is almost ready to come up."

The latest expedition to the sunken Italian luxury liner off the coast of Massachusetts was organized by Peter Gimbel, 53, a New York department store heir who is filming the expedition for a television documentary.

Pickard said Wednesday she talked with expedition members over a marine radio. She said the safe was found in the shipboard office of the Bank of Rome. Another safe is believed to be in the purser's office, 24 feet from the bank on the foyer level.

According to insurance claims, there is between $2 million and $4 million in valuables inside the two safes.

Gimbel said he also hopes to discover what caused the collision between the ship and the Swedish liner Stolkholm on July 26, 1956, that claimed 50 lives.

Gimbel said earlier he believes the Andrea Doria's crew removed or left open a door between two watertight compartments in the ship's generating room, enabling the liner to sink easily.

MRS. CHALLIE NATHANIEL ARNETTE JR.

Donna Joyner Weds C. N. Arnette Jr.

FARMVILLE — Donna Reide Joyner and Challie Nathaniel Arnette Jr. were united in marriage at 4 p.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church here. The Rev. Ronald Lee performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John I Whitfield of Farmville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Challie Nathaniel Arnette Sr. of Dillon, S. C.

The service included traditional selections rendered by Mrs. Russell Britt, organist of Farmville. Mrs. Eve M. Robinson of Gastonia, cousin of the bride, sang "The Wedding Song."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a formal gown of white silk-ened organza, silk Venise lace and chantilly lace over peau de soie. Her gown was fashioned with a high neckline with a sheer yoke, fitted bodice with a natural waistline and long full bishop sleeves with cuffs. Silk Venise lace adorned with bridal pearls and iridescents trimmed the neckline, yoke and bodice front white chantilly lace accented with pearls and iridescents trimmed the waistline, sleeves and cuffs. The full skirt was highlighted with scattered appliques of chantilly lace accented with iridescents and pearls. The full flounce was trimmed with rows of matching lace and flowed into a chapel train. She wore a chapel length mantilla of imported silk illusion bordered with matching lace and accented with vertical designs of lace sprinkled with pearls and was attached to a tiara. She carried a nosegay of gardenias and baby's breath.

Mrs. Patricia Austin of Farmville was honor attendant and wore a formal gown of aqua glo-knit and French alencon lace designed with a spaghetti strapped fitted bodice with an overlay of French alencon lace. The gown was complemented by a removable French alencon lace jacket. She carried a cascade of mixed summer flowers.

Bridesmaids were Crystal Clark, niece of the bridegroom, Mrs. Earl Clark, sister of the bridegroom of Laurinburg, Debbie Wooten of Wilmington, Mrs. Earl Pate and Mrs. Richard C. Sutton, cousins of the bride of Snow Hill and Mrs. Jack Daniels of Farmville. Their gowns and nosegays were identical to those of the honor attendant.

Honorary attendants were Mrs. Gardner White of Greenville, Melanie Bell of Fountain, Allison and Claudette Bright of Kinston and Mary Beth Whitfield of Hookerton, all cousins of the bride. They each wore full length dresses of pastel colors and carried a single long-stemmed red rose.

Angela Lewis of Farmville was flower girl and wore a long dress of white nylon net over a white taffeta slip. She carried a bouquet identical to that of the bridesmaids.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Brad Parker of Greenville, Allen Stallings of Wilson, Jon Arnette, brother of the bridegroom of Dillon, S. C., Earl Clark, brother-in-law of the bridegroom of Laurinburg and Tommy Gasque of Fairmont.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of light blue crepe polyester accented with a lace panel. The mother of the bridegroom chose a formal gown of pink chiffon fashioned with a square neckline. Both were remembered with white cymbidium orchids. Grandmothers of the couple were each presented a glamelia corsage.

The bride attended ECU and will continue her studies at Pembroke State University. The bridegroom is a graduate of ECU and is currently employed with A. C. Monk and Co., Farmville. The couple will live in Fairmont.

following the wedding a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal dinner for the bridal couple Friday night at the Beef Barn, Greenville.

Dear Abby

Abby Says: Have Church Wedding

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and have hit a snag. I want an outdoor wedding in my backyard, followed by a reception outside, too, but the weather here is very unpredictable that time of year, and if it should rain, we couldn't accommodate that number of people in our house.

I'm planning a 4 p.m. wedding. If the weather holds for the ceremony, but if it starts to rain around the time of the reception, we could move the reception over to the church, which is within walking distance from the house.

If at 4 p.m. it looks like rain, we could have the ceremony at the church, too.

How should the invitations be worded? "Outdoor wedding and reception—weather permitting"? Or, "If it looks like rain, go to the church. If the weather is fair, come to the house"?

Please help.

MAKING PLANS

DEAR MAKING PLANS: Since the weather is unpredictable that time of year, some of your guests may predict rain and go to the church, while others may predict fair weather and go to your house. Play it safe and have everything at the church, where you won't have to pray for good weather.

DEAR ABBY: Seven years ago when my husband died I was 42. I thought my life was over. We'd been married 21 years, had no children and were completely devoted to each other.

A year ago I moved from Chicago to Florida and took a job selling in a fine store. There I met the most gorgeous man I'd ever seen. (I'll call him "Dale.") He's the sweetest, most understanding man in the world. Dale is 28 and everything a woman could want in a man, but he is gay.

Please don't think I'm a crazy 49-year-old lady, but we've been living together for six months. No sex, but a very warm friendship. Of course I'd like it to turn into something more, but for the time being, I've never been happier.

Since we've been together, Dale has had only one date, and that was with a 19-year-old male. But Dale promised he'd never see him again because he wants to go straight so he can marry me one day.

Abby, what I need to know is, what are a gay's chances for going straight?

IN LOVE AGAIN

DEAR IN LOVE: Slim—even with strong motivation and intensive psychotherapy. I once asked a distinguished psychoanalyst that question, and he replied, "I've had 50 percent success. I had two gay patients who wanted to go straight. I succeeded with one. And with the other one, I failed."

DEAR ABBY: Was I ever relieved to see the letter from MOLLY, whose husband can't hear unless he has his glasses on! For years I thought I was the only person with this freaky problem. I'm extremely nearsighted, and I can't hear without my glasses — especially on the telephone. Thanks, that letter made my day!

DEAR SUFFERER: According to my mail, you have a lot of fellow sufferers, but here's a new one:

GLAZED PEARS

Interesting new way to treat one of the season's fresh fruits.

3 tablespoons butter
1-3rd cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 cup unsweetened canned pineapple juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 fresh Bartlett pears

In a small saucepan over low heat melt the butter; stir in the sugar, flour and salt. Off heat, gradually stir in the pineapple juice, keeping smooth. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Off heat, stir in the vanilla; set aside off heat. Pare, halve and core the pears; place in a shallow 1½-quart baking dish; add the sauce — it should cover the pears. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for 20 minutes. Cool slightly before serving. Makes 6 servings.

SENATOR AND MRS. VERNON E. WHITE

Reception Given Couple

WINTERVILLE — Senator and Mrs. Vernon E. White were honored at a 50th wedding anniversary reception Sunday afternoon in the Ellis Fellowship Hall of the Winterville Christian Church. The reception was given by their family.

Guests were received and registered by Mrs. Gwen Stancil and Mrs. Gertrude Speir.

Mrs. Helena Cox and Mrs. Stancil served the three-tiered cake. Mrs. Mamie Liverman and Mrs. Brownie Russell poured punch. Friends from the Winterville Christian Church assisted in serving. Also assisting were Christiana Black, great niece of the couple, Michelle Garris, Jane Anne Mellon and Susanna Hudson.

Good-byes were said Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dews and Mr. and Mrs. Leck Keeter.

A luncheon, given by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Spain, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sadler and friends, was given for the relatives and out-of-town guests at the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church fellowship hall prior to the reception.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I've missed it again.

The sale of bathing suits.

For 30 years, I've never been able to figure out when bathing suits are being sold. If I go in January, I am told, "Are you crazy? It's 30 degrees outside. Who is going to buy a bathing suit in this weather?"

If I go in May, June, July or August, the racks are filled with turtleneck sweaters, double-knit wool slacks and fur coats and a salesperson says, "We had two or three a few weeks ago, but we've sent them back to the warehouse. We're into winter now."

I've figured out the retail bathing-suit season runs about two hours and 15 minutes.

Retail stores and shop personnel have always lived by a calendar that few of us can imagine.

It's like they're out of sync with the rest of the world. In October, they celebrate Christmas; in November, they stage the after-Christmas sales; in December, they bring out the spring cruise stuff for vacations.

In January, the aisles are lined with dogwood and white shoes; in February, it's Spring Bride Month.

In March, the new bathing suits are unfurled; in April, it's end-of-the-year sale; in May, it's the Autumn Harvest Bonanza and in June, it's back-to-school sale. July is always fur coat extravaganza.

In August, get ready for winter woolens and leather boots. In September, it's Holiday Entertaining, and in October, it's camping equipment.

The stores are rigged so that whatever season you enter them, you emerge from the wrong time capsule. Anyone who has ever tried on a winter coat wearing white sandals or a beach hat with snow on your parka knows what I'm talking about.

In the last store I visited, a salesperson guided me to the end of a rack with exactly six bathing suits swinging from it.

I chose one and asked where I could try it on. As she opened the curtain, I heard her humming "Jingle Bells."

She must have thought I was crazy . . . swimming so close to Christmas.

Bridal Shower Given Couple

Miss Dawn Holland and David Roberson, bridal couple-elect, were honored at a floating miscellaneous shower Saturday night at the home of Greg and Merry Smith, here.

The house was decorated with pink candles and crepe myrtle. The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with a miniature bridal couple under an arch entwined with ivy and accented with pink daisies. Annie Bruce Hines poured punch and Verna McLawhorn served cake squares.

Leslie Gray and Elaine Smith presented gifts to the honorees and were displayed by Debby Gray. Others assisting with the shower were Louise Hines, Ginevra Hardee and Gladys Corbett.

Miss Holland was presented a corsage of white daisies by the hostesses.

Special guests attending were Mrs. Earl Roberson, mother of the bridegroom-elect, Mrs. William S. Holland, mother of the bride-elect and Mrs. Ester Buck, grandmother of the bride-elect.

The couple will be married Sept. 27 in the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church.

Local Elections Ahead

If you think this is a year when you can sit back and not worry about going to the polls, take another look.

The presidential, gubernatorial, senatorial and other elections are behind us. Congressional elections are next year.

Still there are major duties for conscientious citizens to perform this year. Most of Pitt County's municipalities will be holding elections.

Farmville will hold an election Oct. 6 with a run-off Nov. 3. Other municipalities will hold non-partisan elections Nov. 3.

Greenville will be electing a mayor for a two-year term and six council members for two-year terms.

Other municipalities holding elections are: Ayden, Bethel, Falkland, Fountain, Grifton, Grimesland, Simpson and Winterville.

Choosing our local leaders is as important as voting for national and state leaders. In some ways it may be more important since municipal governing bodies make decisions which so directly affect our lives.

In a few weeks candidates will be coming forth for the various positions. It is essential that all of us study their positions carefully. We should be fully imformed when the time comes to vote on our municipal leaders later this year.

Despite some camera problems as this is written, Voyager 2 has sent back spectacular pictures of the planet Saturn and its rings.

The pictures and other information beamed back by the American space probe can give scientists the information they need to unlock some of the secrets of the Universe, and of the development of life itself.

No one knows at this point whether the United States will continue its space exploration program. The administration speaks enthusiastically of it, but space launches are expensive and the funding will have to be forthcoming before future missions can be planned.

It is an effort we should continue. The price is high, but in the future the benefits can be enormous.

IT WOULD ALL BE WORTH IT!

Waiting Is Costly

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — When Tom Taft, chairman of North Carolina's Ports Authority, talks about service and the attitude of people at the two ports as the main reason those facilities have been able to begin operating at a profit, he isn't talking Southern hospitality.

He is talking big money — millions of dollars worth. Ships don't come to North Carolina's port cities of Wilmington and Morehead City so much because of proximity to shipping lanes or excellence of equipment. There are other ports on the Eastern Seaboard which surpass in that respect. And inland transportation of goods to market areas can prove even more difficult in North Carolina than from Norfolk, Baltimore, Charleston or Jacksonville.

But in the shipping trade, there is a problem called turnaround.

How long does it take to get into port, dock, load or unload, and get back to sea? And what is the cost of delay if you don't get service and efficiency?

Six Months

A Richmond, Va. newspaper reports that a record has been set at Norfolk's Hampton Roads facility where the coal ship "E.W. Beatty" waited outside the port for six months, standing last in a line of 100 ships as the delay began. It cost the French importers about $3 million to keep the 96,000-ton cargo ship waiting.

Coal exports, the foundation of expansion plans at Morehead City and of growing importance at Wilmington, are expected to increase from 90 million tons last year to anywhere from 175 million to 300 million tons in the next 20 years.

Coal is triggering boomtimes as industrialists and power generators both in this country and overseas scramble for supplies and the ships to bring the fuel to them.

A Japanese steel industry representative recently told coal industry leaders that his industry alone paid out $150 million last year because of delays at East Coast ports.

North Carolina is not the only state trying to get ahead of the coal export game by upgrading its handling, storage and loading process. Even ports on the Great Lakes are in the ballgame, despite the long trek ships must make through the St. Lawrence Seaway to reach those inland facilities.

East Coast ports, those on the Gulf, and even ports in Los Angeles and the State of Washington are trying to get into the business. The result, reports Bill McKelway, a specialist in coalfield activities for the Richmond Times-Dispatch, is a sharp drop from Norfolk's traditional domination of the coal export business at 85 percent down to the present 55 percent of the nation's coal exports.

Too Many

But McKelway foresees the possibility that the rush to build coal export facilities will outstrip the eventual demand for ports loading space. Fully a third of the export coal will eventually go to Japan and other Asian nations, meaning West Coast ports would handle that business most profitably.

Meanwhile, some coal analysts suggest that port capacity in the works is far more than predicted coal output in coming years.

Some ports, one such specialist has told Virginia lawmakers, will have to abandon their visions of coal becoming the foundation of prosperous financial times. "We're going to have some of the largest swimming pools in the world," he said of the plans to dredge bigger and deeper facilities to handle coal ships.

The North Carolina "attitude" is expected to keep this state's ports busy in the face of growing competition. Taft credits, among other things, the positive attitude of staff — the hustle and business orientation — for making the ports succeed. "Four years ago international shippers would hardly even think of North Carolina ports. Now, they say we are the best on the East Coast." No waiting is one key reason.

Investigative Failures

WASHINGTON — If you want to read a sad story — indeed, an infuriating story — dip into a report just filed by the Senate's permanent subcommittee on investigations. The report deals with the Department of Labor and the Teamsters Union.

This is no light summer reading. It is a chronicle of misjudgments so sequential as to raise a question the subcommittee did not answer: Were the actions of top Labor bureaucrats merely misjudgments, or did they reflect a deliberate unwillingness to investigate ties between the Teamsters and the mob?

The story goes back to February of 1955, when the Central States Pension Fund came into being. Twenty-five years later the fund had assets of $2.2 billion; it had 500,000 active participants; it was collecting $586 million a year from employers, and it was paying out $323 million a year in benefits. And during most of this time the trustees were making questionable loans to persons closely connected to organized crime.

Nothing much was done about this — or could have been done about this — until Congress in 1974 passed the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA). This vested authority in the Labor Department to investigate both civil and criminal wrongdoing on the part of trustees charged with prudent management of ERISA fund assets.

In December of 1975, while John T. Dunlop was still secretary of labor in the Ford administration, a Special Investigations Staff (SIS) was created. Its broad mission was to seize the opportunity provided by ERISA to attack the involvement of organized crime in the Teamsters fund. The SIS was to have a staff of 45 top-notch investigators; it was to work closely with the Department of Justice and the Internal Revenue Service; it was to do a comprehensive job.

JAS. J. KILPATRICK

In February of 1976 William Usery succeeded Dunlop as Ford's secretary of labor. The SIS went to work. Investigators focused upon 82 suspicious loans; amounting to $518 million, and began to accumulate evidence. It proved a frustrating task. The director of SIS was told he could not issue subpoenas without approval from the department's solicitor; and the solicitor's office let it be known that it would issue few subpoenas.

This meant that the SIS had to beg the voluntary assistance of Teamsters officials. Said the subcommittee, "The investigation came to depend for its success upon the cooperation of its target." After a while the Central States trustees ceased to cooperate.

Matters were made worse in June 1976 when Secretary Usery made a friendly speech before the Teamsters' convention in Las Vegas. "Let me assure you," he said, "that even though I don't have a Teamsters card, I belong to this club because I believe in it." Twelve days later, without consulting anyone, the Internal Revenue Service abruptly revoked the Central States Fund's tax-exempt status.

The premature IRS decree deprived the SIS of its potentially most useful weapon, but there were other troubles also. Relations between Labor and Justice steadily deteriorated. The SIS found itself locked in combat with its own solicitor's office. Things got worse, not better, as the Carter administration brought in Secretary Ray Marshall. He became "obsessed" with a limited civil proceeding against the Teamsters. Any thought of criminal prosecution was abandoned. In 1977 Marshall made a five-year deal: He got the resignations of the Central States trustees, but the new trustees proved as pliable as the old ones. It was "business as usual."

The SIS is gone now. It never had more than 28 investigators. Its director and deputy director resigned in disgust in the fall of 1977; a new director docilely accepted a passive role. Next year the Teamsters will regain full control of the Central States Fund. The opportunity for timely reform has been squandered. The mob still hangs around.

"That is the situation Teamsters Union members must tolerate," says the committee report. "They may know or suspect that their retirement and other benefit plans are controlled by persons who are themselves controlled or influenced by

Strategy Is In Disarray

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Amid public disorder surrounding the Reagan administration's effort to solve the great MX mess, Ronald Reagan has been advised by his secretary of defense that he need not be hemmed in by his campaign pledges to close the "window of vulnerability" against surprise Soviet nuclear attack.

That shocker was delivered by Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger at a turbulent three-hour session of the National Security Council (NSC) in the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles Aug. 20. With his scheme to buy 115 C-5 cargo planes to carry the MX missile by then consigned to the ash can, Weinberger placed a new option on the table: cancel the MX missile, despite the $2.5 billion already spent on it, and develop a new "common missile" for land, sea or air launching.

The president asked: Would that stretch the "window of vulnerability" into the future? Yes, Weinberger conceded. The new missile probably would take until 1990 to perfect and build.

But, he went on, the "window of vulnerability" was inherited from the Carter administration. It could not be blamed on Reagan, and besides the window could be narrowed by building more air-launched cruise missiles (a highly dubious scheme).

Aside from his own colleague, Deputy Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci, no member of Reagan's national security team could accept such a delay. Nor was there any support for the "common missile," even if it did not mean years of delay in closing the gap. "Cap wasn't around in the TFX days," a key presidential aide told us. A "common" airplane called the TFX designed for both Air Force and Navy was an immensely expensive failure 18 years ago.

National security specialists watching the maladroit handling of the great MX mess seven months after Reagan took office with his promise to close the "window of vulnerability" are despondent. With a decision imperative before Congress returns Sept. 8, they say privately the president still lacks a strategic framework in which to make it. They see Weinberger, the president's chief adviser on the issue, marching to a drummer only Cap himself can hear.

That became obvious at the Los Angeles meeting after Weinberger's "common" missile proposal had come a cropper. Reagan moved the three-hour meeting to the secretary's other options. Dismissed after only cursory discussion was his plan to put 100 MX missiles into existing Minuteman silos to be protected by a non-existent, anti-missile defense system. It had no support.

Reagan then turned to Dr. Charles Townes, chairman of the special Weinberger-appointed committee on how to use the MX to close the vulnerability window as soon as possible. The result was disappointing. Townes' committee had split three ways in its recommendations, a majority of seven of its 11 members choosing a pale imitation of the old land-based Carter administration plan: 100 new shelters for 100 MX missiles, with possible future expansion to 1,000 shelters so that the missiles could be shuttled from one to the other, confusing the Russians.

Townes contributed "just about nothing," one participant told us, probably because he had opposed the shelter proposal in his own committee. Nevertheless, with the conspicuous exception of Weinberger and Carlucci, the modified land-based shelter system had overwhelming support around the table: Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Central Intelligence Director William J. Casey, arms control chief Eugene V. Debs Rostow, U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, Gen. David Jones (chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff) and Gen. Lew Allen (Air Force chief of staff) all spoke for it. Allen was present not by Weinberger's choice but because Sen. John Tower, the worried chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, advised Reagan to invite him.

In discussing all these options ("We were looking at a Rorschach test," one Reagan adviser told us.), Weinberger clung to his proposal for developing the Big Bird long-duration aircraft supposedly capable — if ever designed and built — of flying non-stop for 48 hours. Big Bird would keep the MX perpetually aloft, but Air Force engineers

Strength For Today

THE WORDS STAND

Jesus declared that although heaven and earth would pass away, his words would never pass away.

How utterly absurd this statement must have sounded to the people who first heard it. Here was an unknown, humble carpenter in a remote corner of the world, member of a subject nation, declaring that his words would outlast heaven and earth. We can imagine a Roman warrior laughing uproariously at such a prediction. But where are the legions of Rome today?

We have had only 2,000 years in which to judge the validity of our Lord's statement that his words would outlive heaven and earth. But all indications at the present time are that on that occasion he was speaking the solemn truth. He had a brief three-year ministry. He was executed on a Judean hill under circumstances designed to be as completely humiliating as possible. And yet, as one of the greatest paradoxes of history, he has been so revered that time has been dated from his birth. — Elisha Douglass

To the editor:

Perhaps at issue in the confrontation between the Pitt County Commissioners and the Pitt County School Board is something of more importance than simply Ayden's new school. There appears to be a lack of trust.

When the school board presented its budget to the commissioners, it suffered the usual cuts and then was approved. The commissioners had deleted several positions which were not deemed essential. Immediately, the positions were reinstated by the school board. Where did the money come from out of a well-planned budget?

Needless to say, the commissioners now question whether there is more money which could be used in building the projected Ayden Middle School. If the school board can so easily come up with $186,000 after bemoaning cuts made, perhaps they're simply yelling "Wolf!" once more. On such actions, trust is not built.

Jackie Gardner
Rt. 2, Greenville

To the editor:

The human cost of the Reagan administration's economic policies are now becoming apparent. Lunch for school children now 75 cents; extra milk up from 10 cents to 25 cents. And all of this so that the rich can have more money to play around with. What will they have us do next: send CARE packages to Park Avenue?

More federal cuts are coming, parents. Unless you speak out, Greenville will have its share of hungrier children in a land of plenty.

Did Index Make You Richer?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The consumer price index went up like Roman candle in July but that doesn't mean it carried your cost of living up with it. And that's what make it a very peculiar, even inflationary, index.

A rise of 1.2 percent in one month, as occurred in July, does suggest bad news for the economy in general. But for you as an individual, it isn't necessarily another dose of gloom. In a way, it might be welcome.

If you own a house, for instance. Housing prices helped push the July index to a 15.2 percent annual rate, which is bad indeed for those who must buy a house at any cost. But consider what it does to 50 million Americans who own the homes in which they live. It makes them richer.

Well, maybe not richer, but certainly well hedged against inflation. There are some, however, who actually do grow richer because of rises in the CPI, namely those whose incomes are indexed to it.

Social Security recipients are among those who receive raises based on the CPI, although nobody has ever demonstrated convincingly that the living costs of such recipients rise with that index. In fact, Social Security recipients usually aren't homebuyers. They get pay increases based on housing cost increases, but they seldom have to buy homes.

Many, in fact, own their homes. They aren't hurt by being forced to pay for houses at those higher prices that made the CPI rise. The impact is different; it means they can sell their houses for more.

This is not meant to single out Social Security recipients, for many of them are far from fortunate, and many of them are hurt by rising housing costs. Rents, for example, are rising too, and as fewer homes are built there seems to be only one direction in which rents can move.

Other Americans too are far less affected by the latest rise in the CPI than is at first apparent. When prices rise, as for housing and mortgage money, people withdraw from the market. They dream, they look, they wish, and then they walk away.

There is evidence in the numbers. Sales of existing single-family homes ran at an annual rate of about 2.65 million in June. Compare that with 3.86 million for 1978.

New-housing starts are even more depressed. The National Association of Realtors estimates starts will average 1.22 million units for 1981, "over 1 million units below the underlying need for new housing."

The housing market is often referred to as a disaster area from which people have fled. But the CPI doesn't see it that way, and there's the rub.

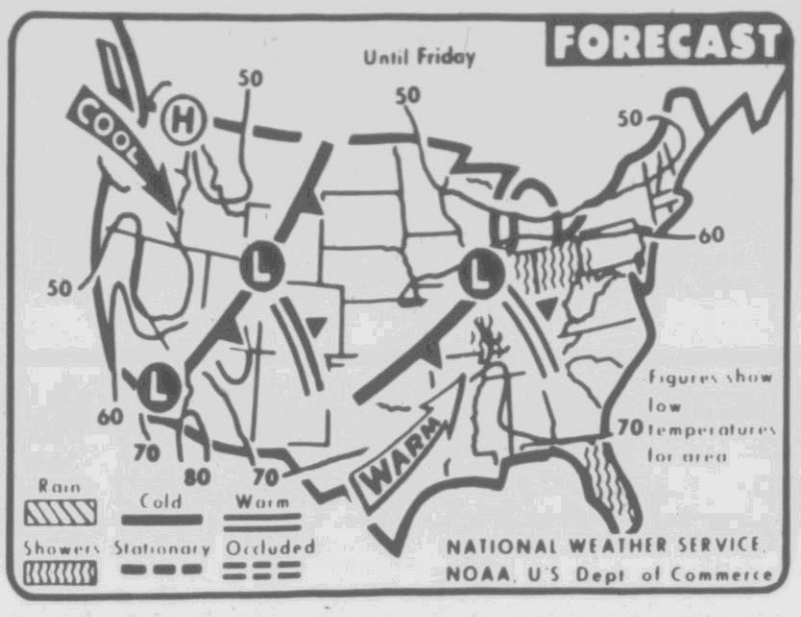

Is the CPI poorly conceived? Some say it is. They ask how an unsold item can contribute to a higher cost of living? If something isn't sold, they ask, haven't consumers avoided rather than incurred a cost?

But those are not frivolous items in the CPI. A house is shelter; it is a necessity rather than a luxury. It is part of the "marketbasket" required for survival and a modest way of life. Therefore, it is a cost that eventually must be paid. And so, it is said, belongs in the CPI.

Maybe the problem with the CPI is as much in the way it is used as in any inherent flaw in its conception.

For certain, it cannot be used as an indicator of American moods. You may be sure more than a few people smiled when they saw that housing prices were holding up.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm weather is expected in the forecast period until Friday for most of the country. Cool weather is expected for the Northwest. Showers are indicated in the Midwest and Florida (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A repeat of Wednesday's weather was on tap for North Carolina today, according to the National Weather Service.

A stationary pool of air over the Atlantic seaboard continued to bring fair skies, with cloudiness restricted to the western and coastal areas.

Temperatures Wednesday were slightly below seasonal norms, reaching the upper 70s to mid 80s east of the mountains, while higher elevations remained in the 50s and 60s.

Jacksonville turned in the warmest reading with 84 degrees, while Grandfather Mountain managed a reading of only 57.

The only rainfall since Sunday came over southern coastal regions in the form of a few brief showers, but scattered thunderstorms were predicted for the mountains by Friday afternoon as low pressure approached the state.

The recreational weather outlook for North Carolina remained ideal for outdoor activities for the next few days, with an increasing chance of afternoon thunderstorms by this weekend.

Temperatures should reach the 80s, with lows in the 50s and 60s.

On the beaches, partly cloudy skies and a low probability of rain were forecast. Winds should be light from the south or southwest.

No Injuries In Wrecks

No injuries but damages totaling over $1,400 resulted from a series of traffic accidents investigated Wednesday by Greenville Police.

Officers said Bruce Watson Irby of Kinston was charged with a safe movement violation following investigation of a 2:15 p.m. mishap at the corner of First and Elm Streets.

Vehicles operated by Irby and Suzanne Marie Flowers of 4920 Brookhurst Drive, Raleigh were involved and damage was estimated at $250 to the Irby vehicle and $100 to the Flowers car.

No one was charged following a 3:30 p.m. wreck at the corner of Greene and Second Streets involving vehicles driven by Dorothy Williams Corbett of 321 Windsor Road and Carolyn Hester Alford of Box 8032, Greenville.

Police estimated damages at $250 to the Corbett car and $200 to the Alford vehicle.

A 3:45 p.m. mishap at the corner of W. Ninth and Washington Streets involved vehicles driven by Lester Dewey Page of 108 Lord Ashley Drive and John Stephen Proctor Jr. of Courtney Square Apartments.

Officers, who estimated damages at $200 to each car, preferred no charges.

A 10:18 a.m. accident on Greenville Boulevard west from Kirkland Drive involved vehicles operated by Lindsey Ray Lowe Jr. of 108 Greenway Street and Derry Jenkins Boyles Jr. of Asheboro.

No charges were preferred in the accident and damages were estimated at $200 to the Lowe vehicle and $25 to the Boyles car.

Age Rapidly If Unrefrigerated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eggs can age more in one day at room temperature than in one week in the refrigerator, says an article in Consumer Food News, an Agriculture Department newsletter. Left in their covered carton, eggs will keep at least four to five weeks under refrigeration. Hard-cooked eggs also should be refrigerated — and used within one week, the newsletter says.

claim it could easily be destroyed by the Soviets.

This performance was previewed at a National Security Planning Group (NSPG) meeting at the White House Aug. 6, presided over by the president just before he left on his California vacation. When Weinberger had finished his lengthy presentation supporting his then-preferred scheme to base the MX on C-5 airplanes, Haig filled the silence that followed.

"I hope this is not a decision meeting," the secretary told the president, "because if it is we should hear from the chairman." He meant the chairman of the Joint Chiefs, Davey Jones. Reagan thereupon called on the general, whose first, icy words were: "Mr. President, I have not been consulted on this plan." Jones then ripped the plan to shreds. It was symptomatic of deep trouble threatening Reagan's basic defense strategy.

organized criminals ... but they are unable or unwilling to unseat the present leadership of their union." The government that should have protected them failed to do so.

More Helicopters Are Being Sent El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is sending four more helicopters to El Salvador to help its government battle leftist guerrillas the State Department says are stepping up attacks on non-military targets.

The four UH1H "Huey" choppers will bring to 10 the number shipped to El Salvador. Pentagon sources say seven of the 10 are grounded because of combat damage and maintenance problems.

In San Salvador Wednesday, Salvadoran Defense Minister Jose Guillermo Garcia appealed to the United States for more helicopters.

"They sent up four, but we need more," Garcia said.

The latest shipment was announced Wednesday by State Department spokesman Dean Fischer, who also said the administration is considering additional military and economic aid to the government of Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Fischer said the guerrillas apparently are trying to paralyze the Salvadoran economy by systematically attacking the electrical, communications and transportation systems.

This "reveals a cynical disregard for Salvadoran noncombatants and a willingness by the guerrillas to attempt to destroy the country if they can't overthrow the government," Fischer said.

He said the Duarte government is repairing the damage as it occurs but that the short- and long-term social costs are obvious.

"The loss of water, light and power to hospitals, for example, has daily implications," he said.

Fischer said guerrilla activity in El Salvador has increased, adding that the resupply of arms and munitions "appears to have become easier."

The U.S. helicopters are used mostly to resupply government troops in rural areas, according to Fischer.

Last Friday, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. told an interviewer that Salvadoran troops needed additional mobility.

Haig said Cuban support for the guerrillas continues and that a variety of supply routes are being utilized.

Other officials have said the fighting between the guerrillas and the Salvadoran armed forces has been stalemated for some months.

Most officials believe the Salvadoran Army will only be able to contain — but not defeat — the guerrillas unless there is a substantial increase in U.S. military aid.

The same officials acknowledge, however, that the administration has been reluctant to take this step because there is little public support for greater U.S. military involvement in El Salvador.

DUIs Up; Fewer Convictions

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Law enforcement officials say softer laws, overloaded court dockets and inexperienced prosecutors are leading to fewer drunken driving convictions in North Carolina, in spite of more arrests.

Figures from the state Institute of Government show that between 1975 and 1979, convictions for driving under the influence declined an average of 10.98 percentage points in 82 counties and rose an average of 3.87 percentage points in the state's remaining 18 counties.

Meanwhile, the number of drunken driving charges by all law enforcement agencies in the state increased from 59,677 in 1975 to 71,534 in 1979 — a jump of 19.87 percent.

In 1980, arrests increased to 82,930, up 13.7 percent from 1979.

Although no conviction rate figures are available for 1980, state officials say convictions continue to decline.

"I don't think it's been improving any," said Burley Mitchell, secretary of crime control and public safety.

Wade Barber Jr. of Pittsboro, president of the North Carolina Association of District Attorneys, said judges had used new statutory provisions regarding careless and reckless driving after drinking to deal with what they consider to be "meritorious or hardship cases."

He said the judges were being overly solicitous of the driver's hardships, adding that prosecuting drunk drivers was more difficult when "the judge sees hardships in the defendant .. and there is no specific victim."

District Attorney Carroll Lowder of Monroe said changes in the laws have not been in favor of the state.

"The law has become more lenient with persons charged with (driving while intoxicated), and the courts and the entire system are not as tough as they once were," he said.

The 1973 General Assembly made careless and reckless driving after drinking a lesser offense than DUI. In 1979, the Legislature added a requirement that those convicted of the offense attend the Alcohol-Drug Education Traffic School.

While the fine is $100 for either offense, a conviction on a careless and reckless charge doesn't carry a mandatory loss of driving privileges.

Col. John T. Jenkins, commander of the state Highway Patrol, said, "There has been a lot of reducing of charges, you know how that goes. They're just taking pleas in a lot of places."

J. Randolph Riley, Wake County district attorney, agreed that some judges find a reduction of a DUI charge an acceptable alternative under the revamped laws. He also traced the decline in DUI convictions to more heavily loaded court dockets.

"We've had a significant increase in our daily calendar, and we've experienced a very heavy turnover of prosecutorial staff," he said. "Many are absolutely inexperienced."

The largest decline in the conviction rate was recorded in Anson County, the survey showed, with a 25.3 percent dip. Lenoir County was next with a decrease of 23.1 percentage points. Hyde County had the greatest increase in convictions, posting a jump of 11.9 percent.

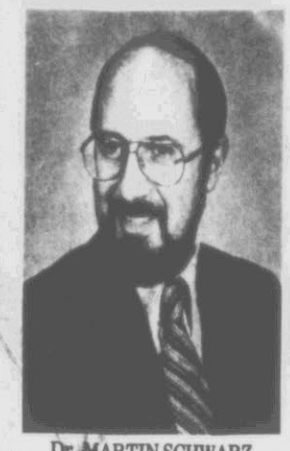

Department Chairman At ECU Is Announced

Hughes Estate Panel Chosen

By SHARON HERBAUGH
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Jurors picked to resolve the high-stakes quarrel over half of Howard Hughes' fortune said they remembered the late billionaire only as a wealthy eccentric who usually wore tennis shoes and once flew a big plane, attorneys said.

Attorneys completed selection of a four-man, two-woman panel Wednesday after Probate Judge Pat Gregory warned they would not leave the courtroom until the jury had been picked. Prospective jurors had been questioned over three days for up to 45 minutes each.

In the complex battle opening today for the paternal half of an estate estimated at between $180 million and $2 billion, the jury must first determine the legitimacy of a late Hughes cousin.

To get any of the estate, about 500 second, third and fourth cousins must convince jurors that five first cousins are not blood relatives of Hughes and thus are not entitled to share his wealth.

Gregory, who earlier this month awarded half the estate to 16 maternal cousins, ruled previously that Hughes left no will and no immediate survivors when he died in 1976.

Distant relatives claim Hughes' late cousin Elspeth Hughes Lapp was not the true daughter of the entrepreneur's uncle Rupert Hughes.

One group of distant cousins contends Ms. Lapp was the illegitimate daughter of Rupert Hughes' wife, Agnes. Another, smaller group argues that Ms. Lapp drowned as a child.

Four first cousins intend to testify during the trial, and attorneys have said they plan to play a videotaped deposition given by another first cousin who died two years ago.

Repayment Awaits Vote

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Gaston County staff members prepared a resolution recommending payment of $479,654 past-due Medicaid bills to the state prior to a meeting of county officials today.

But repayment still awaited a vote on the measure.

In a dispute dating back to 1978, nine counties have been reluctant to pay for an increased share of the Medicaid program.

The state has warned nine counties to pay their back debts, and Gaston County was ordered to make arrangements for repaying the money by Sept. 15 or face withholding of local sales taxes.

Gaston County officials have maintained that the increased burden infringed on county control of its budget.

The Gaston County resolution says the state budget office has agreed to payment of a third of the bill — about $160,000 — by December. The balance would be paid over the next two years, with no interest charge.

The proposed resolution also says the board is "authorizing payment under protest and that by making this payment in no way acknowledges any other debts."

Chairman Charles Rhyne said County Manager Phil Hinely has worked out the payment schedule with the state and discussed it with several commissioners.

"I don't really know what we're going to do until the meeting," Rhyne said.

Limit Water

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Boone officials have ordered citizens to conserve water and have threatened violators with fines and water cutoffs.

The order, issued Tuesday by Mayor Hadley Wilson, bans the washing of vehicles unless well water is used, and the watering of lawns. The order also limits commercial laundries to five-hour days.

Town Manager Marvin Hoffman said about 100 homes in Boone have had their water service interrupted because water tank pressure has fallen below what is needed to serve areas of higher elevation.

More important, Hoffman said, is the danger that a major fire could drain the town system entirely before the fire is put out.

The order says that violators will be given one warning. If officials learn that a person repeats the violation, the town can fine him up to $50.

Farm Bureau Committees Are Named

RALEIGH — Members of Farm Bureau commodity advisory committees from throughout North Carolina will meet in Raleigh on September 4 to begin the organization's policy development process.

According to Atlas Wooten, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, representatives in ten commodity areas will meet for the purpose of pinpointing some of the issues and problems that farmers will be facing in farm commodities during 1982 and future years.

Also meeting will be committees on transportation, natural and economic resources and law and order.

Representing the Pitt County Farm Bureau at the meeting will be James N. Galloway, field crops; Ben A. Gardner Jr., livestock; Ruel Dilda, peanuts; Billy Gene Paramore, poultry; and Eugene James, tobacco.

After issues are raised and discussed by commodity committees they are submitted to the individual counties for consideration by resolution committees prior to the county annual meetings.

Wooten said the Raleigh meeting, which will be held at the North Carolina Farm Bureau building on Glenwood Avenue will begin at 10 a.m. All committees will meet jointly for a report on the current agricultural situation and general problem areas that will be confronting agriculture in the future. Committees will later begin their individual discussions.

Wooten suggested that Farm Bureau members who have questions that need to be considered, or ideas that may solve current problems bring them to the attention of local committee members.

Searched With Wrong Address

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Evelyn S. Thompson of Winston-Salem says city police searched her home for an hour on April 16 after showing her a search warrant listing another house.

Ms. Thompson says she had called the police department to tell them someone was breaking through her front door. But police arrived as she was on the phone, armed with a search warrant detailing another residence.

A lawsuit filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court seeks $35,000 in damages from the city of Winston-Salem.

The suit claims the search warrant was defective because it listed the wrong house, wrong owner and wrong address. Still, even after the police realized their mistake, they searched the house for an hour.

HIGHEST LEVEL

LONDON (AP) — British unemployment is at its highest level since the 1930s, and critics who blame Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher say the 12.2 percent jobless rate makes Britain the toughest place in the industrial world to find work.

Helicopter Scrambles To Intercept Medfly

By JOHN RICE
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A pesticide-spraying helicopter scrambled into the skies of suburban Los Angeles to fight the southern spread of Mediterranean fruit flies, while a new infestation was discovered in Oakland, the farthest north the pest has reached.

An industry spokesman warned, meanwhile, that the costs of crop losses and eradication efforts eventually could reach $1 billion if the infestation spreads much farther and federal officials expand a quarantine statewide.

Studies done by the University of California at Berkeley Cooperative Extension Service and the marketing services division of the state Department of Food and Agriculture estimated California could end up paying $1.2 billion in the first year in crop losses and pest-control efforts and $750 million in subsequent years.

"This is definitely a bad day and a setback," said Jack King, spokesman for the California Farm Bureau Federation.

King's comments followed confirmation Wednesday that two of five medflies found in the Los Angeles suburb of Baldwin Park were fertile, prompting emergency spraying there. That was 260 miles south of the previous limit of the infestation.

A fertile fly was also found in Oakland, about 15 miles north of previous finds. Spraying was scheduled to begin there tonight.

"I don't think all is lost," medfly project manager Jerry Scribner told reporters after the new discoveries. "It's a longer, tougher, harder war, but I think we're going to win."

Scribner's optimism was echoed by California agriculture officials in Tucson, Ariz., who told officials there the fly would be stopped before it crosses the Arizona deserts into the state's citrus groves.

"The medfly is not going to move itself and get into Arizona," Richard E. Rominger, California's agriculture director, said Wednesday. "They're not strong fliers ... the only way it moves is if somebody carries it."

Officials say that may be the way the pests made their way to the Los Angeles area from the San Francisco Bay area — where San Mateo, Alameda, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara and parts of San Benito and Stanislaus counties have been quarantined.

State officials sprayed the pesticide malathion Wednesday night over a 9-square-mile residential area surrounding the backyard in suburban Baldwin Park where maggots and two fertile male flies were found.

Crews armed with ground spray and fruit-picking equipment were called into immediate action in the residential area. There are no produce farms nearby.

"At least 80 square miles" in the region will be added to the 3,144-square-mile quarantine area that already grips all or part of the six Northern California counties, said project spokesman Dan Dickey.

Another 12 square miles in the middle of Oakland were targeted for spraying after discovery of an egg-bearing, but unmated, female fly in that city, which was in the medfly quarantine zone.

Japan already is demanding certification that shipments are medfly-free before it accepts produce from California. Under an agreement between Japan and the United States, Japanese importers may demand that produce from medfly-free areas in California be fumigated.

Japanese importers blasted the existing restrictions as being too weak and the price of lemons hit $1.10 per pound in Tokyo.

Japanese importers say the problem would have been handled differently if United States was not involved. They said Australia stopped exporting fruit after the medfly was discovered there.

"The U.S. government should have taken countermeasures much earlier," said Takahiko Yamanari, assistant director of the produce import division of Mitsui Corp., a major trade company. "If steps had been taken last year when the medfly was first reported, this sort of confusion would not have resulted," he said.

California farmers fear the spread of the flies wild encourage other states and nations to slap far-ranging quarantines against some 200 crops that can play host to the medfly — crops valued at $4.7 billion last year in California.

"We could very well see economic disaster here," said Ventura County Agriculture Commissioner Earl McPhail.

Although King said the cost of lost crops and eradication efforts could reach $1 billion, he was optimistic. "We're finding that where the aerial spraying is being done, it's being effective," he said. "Spot finds ... that appears to be our biggest nemisis right now."

Meanwhile, in Florida, where the pest also has been found, authorites planned to spray the east side of Tampa today because rain diluted earlier applications.

Red Cross Gives Honors At Meeting

The Pitt County Red Cross held a dinner meeting recently to honor its retiring board members and to recognize new members of the chapter's board.

The retiring members are Wayne Clark, John Moore, Dr. E. W. Larkin Jr., Glen Gaylor, Dr. Ed Hooks, Bob Wheless, and Bob Whichard.

Also honored was Ott Alford for his efforts as chairman of the area blood program. Alford, who will remain on the board, was presented a certificate of recognition by the Tidewater Regional Blood Services.

Ed Tadlock received a plaque for his work as chairman of the board from 1978-81.

Newly elected chairman, Liz White, introduced the new officers and board members. They are Glenn Cox, vice chairman; Dick Lavin, disaster program chairman; Mike Colombo, blood chairman; and Gay Blocker, John Watson, Joe Clark, Dr. Joe Williamson, Alice Mills, Rayford Kennedy, and William Fleming.

Billie Wade, Red Cross Carolinas Division representative, spoke to the gathering on "Volunteers — The Keystone to Chapter Growth."

Guests honored at the meeting were Lou Folger, United Way executive director, and Chuck Whitmire, financial specialist, Carolinas Division, from Charlotte.

Secretaries Courses Set

Interested secretaries will meet at Pitt Community College tonight at 7:30 to register for fall quarter. They will be taking courses in preparation for the Certified Professional Secretary exam which is administered annually in May.

CPS is considered the "mark of excellence" for the professional secretary. There are less than five CPS's in Greenville presently.

In the past the Greenville Chapter of Professional Secretaries International (formerly National Secretaries Association) has sponsored CPS review courses. This year the organization is working in conjunction with PCC and will be attending its regular credit courses. This credit is also college transferable.

Registration fee is $9.75 per quarter for each course taken and registration dates are Sept. 7 and 8 for anyone who will not pre-register tonight. For further information call Betty Thompson, 757-4495.

Mail Handler Is Convicted

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Former Greensboro mail handler Mack Camack Jr., 29, was convicted Wednesday in federal court of taking a watch from a piece of mail.

The package was a decoy prepared by postal inspectors that set off an alarm when it was tapered with. Camack, a mail handler at the Greensboro Bulk Mail Center at the time of the incident, testified that he opened the package because it was "suspicious." He also said he had authority to open packages and it was commonly done.

FOCUS ON COMMUNITY ART — This week, which has been proclaimed as "The Museum of Art Week" in Greenville by Mayor Donald McGlohon, has seen the Greenville Museum of Art at 802 South Evans Street focus on art work on loan as well as art in the permanent collection. This outdoor sculpture, entitled "Thanks J.H.," by Jack Gresko, is currently on loan and is one of two pieces by Gresko displayed outside the Museum. The other piece, "Drop," a tall vertical sculpture, is part of the permanent collection. "Thanks J.H." is an exploration by Gresko of the effects that can be achieved by the use of lines and space in metal. Mary Anne Pennington, the Museum's director, notes that in conjunction with "The Museum of Art Week," more pieces than ever before are being shown from the permenant collection, both in upstairs and downstairs galleries. The public is encouraged to visit the Greenville Museum of Art during this special week. (Reflector photo by Jerry Raynor)

Pinning Held For Graduates

Pitt Community College's Department of Nursing Education held its pinning ceremony at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church Wednesday evening.

The speaker for the ceremony was Skip Wilkins, a 31 year-old Virginia Beach, Va. quadraplegic who has made a name for himself in wheelchair athletics.

Wilkins is this nation's premier wheelchair athlete, and during the last seven years he has set all this country's records in field events.

The former high school athlete recounted his life experiences which are described in his new book "The Real Race." The book is about Wilkins struggle after a waterskiing injury left him paralyzed in all four limbs, and his recovery to a productive life.

Though Wilkins has won many national and international honors as a wheelchair athlete, he stressed that the real race to win is the race of life.

"I'm concerned about the philosophy of winning at all costs," the speaker stressed, "that America is caught up in it. When I was 17, I was caught up in it too, but I believe that the comeback I was forced to make in a wheelchair helped me to set a new goal in life."

To Wilkins, the winner is someone whose life is fulfilling. He emphasized the importance of faith in his life, saying, "I believe you live your faith. You show it by living your life the way you do."

The scholarship given by the second year nursing class to a member of the first year nursing class was presented to Kathleen Sullivan of Greenville. Lou Ann Mozingo of Farmville made the presentation.

The Arlene Collins Clinical Excellence Award, given by the PCC nursing faculty, was presented to Robin Ann Mitchell of Wilmington. Ms. Estelle Morin, R.N., M.S.N., a close friends of the late Arlene Collins, made the presentation.

Judith W. Kuykendall, R.N., B.S.N., M.S. chairman of the PCC Nursing Department, presented the graduates. The presentation of pins to the graduates and the Lighting of Lamps were made by the nursing faculty.

The Florence Nightingale Pledge was led by student Mary Worthington. The welcome was given by Barbara Sloan. Opening remarks were made by student Lou Ann Mozingo and the benediction was given by student Virginia Bento.

Charles Currin served as organist and student Shirley Wilkins, sister of the speaker, presented Skip Wilkins.

Yellow roses were presented to the nursing faculty members by the senior nursing students in memory of the late Arlene Collins.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall immediately following the ceremony.

Graduates receiving pins were:

Heavy Fines In Fish Kill

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Brakes Inc., the Pillsbury Co. and H. Wayne Smith have been fined more than $60,000 in connection with a yeast spill that killed 235,000 fish in June, state environmental officials said.

"This is one of the largest assessments ever made by the division," said Robert F. Helms, director of the state Division of Environmental Management. "The incident resulted in the deaths of some 235,000 fish and adversely affected the quality of the city of Salisbury's water supply."

Helms said the influx of yeast into the Yadkin River consumed most of the oxygen in affected water in Rowan, Davidson and David counties, effectively suffocating the fish.

The yeast travelled down the Yadkin river from the Highway 64 bridge into High Rock Lake, division officials said.

Division scientists verified that the spent yeast came from lagoons on a Davie County farm owned by Brakes Inc. On June 24, an employee of H. Wayne Smith, who was under contract with the Pillsbury Co., was moving yeast from the upper to lower lagoons and filling in the upper lagoons when the spill occurred, officials said.

While more than 1.4 million gallons of spent yeast were discharged from the lower lagoon into the river, Helms said there was no evidence to indicate that the discharge was intentional.

The fine includes the cost of fish replacement, investigative costs and civil penalties for an illegal discharge resulting in water quality standards violations, Helms said.

Helms also said he has ordered Pillsbury and Brakes Inc. to dispose of the remaining yeast and eliminate the lagoons.

No Arrests Yet In 3 Slayings

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — The Naval Intelligence Service said Wednesday that it had several suspects in the brutal stabbing deaths of a woman and two youths, but no arrests have been made.

Meanwhile, investigators acknowledged Wednesday that one of the victims was found in the same room where several family members were sleeping, and were unable to explain how the three had been stabbed to death, some of them repeatedly, while six others slept inside the home.

They also said a knife believed to be the murder weapon had been recovered, but declined to provide specifics.

The victims were identified as Sharon S. Sager, 34, who was visiting her brother-in-law's family at the time; Tyler Dash, her 13-year-old son by a previous marriage; and Connie D. Smith, 12, daughter of James and Betty Smith who live in the four-bedroom duplex apartment.

The slayings were discovered after Loretta Smith, 13, and Debra Dash, 12, returned to the house at 7:30 a.m. Monday. The girls had been camping in a car outside. Mrs. Smith, who worked the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift at a Jacksonville nursing home, did not learn of the slayings until she returned home.

Neighbors said the Fred and Sharon Sager had been invited to visit by Mrs. Smith, and had been there about a month. Investigators said Sager, a master sergeant on his way to Alaska, and Smith, a Marine staff sergeant stationed in Okinawa, were on their way back to the base Wednesday.

Base spokesman Master Sgt. Steven Wyatt said investigators were exploring several avenues, including the use of psychiatrists and psychologists to help establish a motive and to help in the questioning of the children.

"The investigation is taking a while. The only thing they have is children," Wyatt said. "They're having to rely on kids for questions and details they might have heard, some of it in their sleep."

Wyatt later said the Naval Investigative Service would not confirm or deny that psychologists or psychiatrists were being consulted in the investigation.

Frederick Sager, 13, and Thomas Sager, 12, were reportedly asleep in an upstairs bedroom with Carlton Smith, 15. A visiting neighborhood boy, who has not been identified, was asleep in a downstairs bedroom with Carlton Sager, 5, and Scott Sager, 4.

Wyatt confirmed that Carlton Smith had been taken for questioning, and that a federal judge certified that he had been properly questioned. Wyatt said the questioning was routine, and that the court procedure was required in cases involving juveniles. He said the other children also were questioned and advised of their rights.

Wyatt said an autopsy on all victims was being conducted at the Naval Regional Medical Center, and that tissue samples had been sent to Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland.

Other agencies called in to assist in the investigation include the Army, the Air Force, the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, the State Bureau of Investigation and the FBI.

Volcanic Dome Is Building Up

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Scientists say Mount St. Helens is about to have another eruption, probably of the non-violent kind that builds up the lava dome in the crater.

Increased ground deformation in the crater resembles changes that preceded dome-building in December, February, April and June, the U.S. Geological Survey and University of Washington Geophysics Center said Wednesday.

Gas emissions also have increased. "If this trend continues, an eruption, probably of the dome-building type, will likely begin in one to three weeks," said Kathy Cashman, a USGS geologist.

There was no earthquake activity on the mountain Wednesday, said geophysics spokeswoman Cindy Roe. Scientists expect there might be an increase in seismic activity one to three days before any eruption.

An explosive eruption of ash and steam is possible "but our best guess is that it will be dome-building because the signs point that way," Ms. Cashman said.

Explosive eruptions have been preceded by deeper earthquake activity and more generalized earth deformation, she said. "Deformation now is confined to movement of the crater floor, not the whole mountain, and there is no bulging," she said.

Since the volcano's cataclysmic May 18, 1980, eruption that leveled 150 square miles of forest and left 60 people dead or missing, Mount St. Helens has had five more explosive eruptions of steam and ash and four non-explosive dome-building episodes, Ms. Cashman said.

The latest dome-building occurred over about a two-day period in June and added about 150 feet to the height of the dome and 130 feet to the width, she said. The dome now is about 450 feet tall and 1,400 feet wide, she said.

Volume Heavy At Farmville

FARMVILLE — With two sets of buyers on the Farmville Tobacco Market, volume of sales was heavy compared to the previous day's total, according to Georgia Willoughby, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

The top price was $1.93 a pound, with a bulk of grades within the range of $1.60 to $1.80. Cutter and leaf grades continued to account for most of volume. The Farmville market sold 713,961 pounds for $1,233,830.37, for an average of $172.81 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 12,352,243 pounds for $20,788,742.56, for a season average of $168.30. The season average for the same day last year was $144.35.

Three Specialists Join ECU Medical School

Dr. ROBERT A. SHAW

DR. CHARLES H. HICKS

Dr. DENNIS R. SINAR

Three physicians specializing in lung, heart and gastrointestinal disorders have joined the Department of Medicine at the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

The physicians are Dr. Robert A. Shaw, pulmonary medicine; Dr. Charles H. Hicks, cardiology; and Dr. Dennis R. Sinar, gastroenterology.

Shaw recently completed a fellowship in pulmonary medicine at Ohio State University Hospitals, where he also completed postgraduate training. He received his undergraduate and medical degrees from Duke University.

Shaw will direct the development of a sleep apnea laboratory for the treatment of sleep problems associated with abnormal breathing patterns.

Hicks completed residency training and a fellowship in clinical cardiology at the University of California, San Diego. He received his undergraduate and medical degrees from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

He will conduct cardiac catheterization, angiography and echocardiography studies in the medical school's cardiac catheterization laboratory at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. His special research areas are left ventricular function in ischemic heart disease and the effects of exercise on the cardiovascular system.

Prior to joining ECU Sinar was assistant professor of gastroenterology at the Uniformed Services University for the Health Sciences and the Walter Reed Army Institute for Research.

He completed a fellowship in gastroenterology and residency training in medicine at Ohio State University Hospitals. He received his undergraduate degree from Marquette University and his medical degree from Ohio State.

His primary research areas are the pathophysiology of the esophagus and small bowel function. He will be responsible for laparoscopy studies in the diagnosis of liver diseases and tumors.

Redistricting Seems Accepted

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The loud, bitter protests voiced last month over the General Assembly's congressional redistricting plan have faded to general acceptance in most areas, as both parties have turned their attention to the next elections.

Party leaders don't rule out the chance that the redistricting plan may still be challenged in a federal lawsuit, by still-angry Alamance County Republicans or by some litigation-minded individuals.

The plan also is still under review — for effects on minority-race voters — by the U.S. Justice Department under the federal voting rights act. A ruling is expected next month, and the government is also considering redistricting plans for state legislative seats, and some observers believe they may be more vulnerable.

But even in Moore County, the only one of the 100 counties to be divided in the legislature's precedent-setting congressional plan, both Democrats and Republicans have resigned themselves to the new districts.

"Everybody screamed and got their frustrations out and pointed their finger at the legislature, where it belongs, and now the Democatic leadership has to take responsibility for it," said George Little of Southern Pines, Moore County GOP chairman.

"There won't be a challenge, I doubt it, from our county," he added. "We're not going to challenge it."

Moore County Republicans had been among those who protested the loudest when the northern half of the county was uprooted from the 8th District and placed in the new 6th, with Guilford, Davidson and Randolph counties.

The county's GOP organization considered joining with the county Democrats to jointly file a lawsuit.

But the county's Democrats decided earlier this month to put their money into an effort to regain county elective offices, said Democratic Chairman Jim Van Camp. "We've got to think about the next election," Van Camp said.

And after much consideration, including the expense of a federal court battle, Moore County Republicans decided they could live with it too, Little said — especially since part of the county will now have a GOP congressman — 6th District freshman Rep. Eugene Johnston.

"We're still upset that they split the county, but we can work with Gene Johnston a lot better than we can work with (8th District Democratic Rep.) Bill Hefner," Little said.

Republicans in the state House and Senate voted nearly unanimously against the redistricting plan finally agreed upon by Democratic leaders. But their votes were mainly to preserve their option of a challenge, and GOP state Chairman David Flaherty said Republicans are more than satisfied with the new alignment.

"We sere for it 100 percent," he said. "To tell you otherwise would be kidding you."

Flaherty said the state party organization regrets the splitting of Moore, and feels that if the heavily Democratic legislature was going to split one county it should have split them all. But, he said, the plan protected the standing of all four GOP congressmen and improved Republican strength in the 6th. And, he said, the GOP still has a good chance in the 5th and 8th districts, now held by Democrats Steven Neal and Hefner.

"It's a case of, you could do worse," he added. "And we certainly did well."

One reason for the Moore County GOP's reluctance to challenge, Little said, is the remote prospect of success, given the only 2.7 percent variation in district populations under the new plan.

Instead, Little said, some Moore County Republicans are considering mounting a challenge to the state House and Senate plans — where districts vary by as much as 23.6 percent and are farther out of balance than the last plans drawn in 1970. Some legislators and staff aides voiced concern when the legislative maps were passed that they might not withstand a legal test.

In Alamance County, GOP feelings still run strong about the congressional plan, however. The county voted Republican last year and contributed greatly to Johnston's upset win over veteran Democratic Rep.Richardson Preyer, but was moved into the 2nd District, which has been held by Democrat L.H. Fountain for 30 years and stretches eastward past Scotland Neck.

Freshman state Sen. Cary Allred has written a detailed letter of objection to the plan to the U.S. Justice Department, and the county's GOP executive committee adopted a resolution last week saying it "is adamantly opposed" to being in the 2nd.

Allred said the party hasn't decided whether to sue, and won't decide until the Justice Department rules on the plan. But Republicans in neighboring Rockingham County, which also was moved out of the 6th, have declined to join in a legal challenge, and the Alamance Republicans may be feeling a little lonely in their opposition.

"I'm disappointed they haven't pursued it in Moore County," Allred said.

Among Democrats, the strongest opposition to the plan came from Guilford County. There, most believed, Preyer's chances for a comeback had been lessened by the new face put on the 6th,

But Democrats there too, have accepted the plan, said county vice chairman Loren Hill, and Preyer is reported to be still considering running for his old seat.

"Realistically, it's pretty much a given now, that that's the plan," Hill said.

Democratic State Chairman Russell Walker, a state senator who saw his home county of Randolph placed in the GOP 6th, said he had found no sentiment among Democrats to challenge the plan.

"I think it's being accepted," he said. "It may be a little grudgingly, but accepted."

Report Rise In Building

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Construction activity in North Carolina during the first six months of 1981 was 10.5 percent higher than during the same period last year, state Labor Commissioner John C. Brooks said Wednesday.

But the cost of that building increased 25.9 percent, he said.

North Carolina's 44 reporting cities showed an increase from 18,714 units in 1980 to 20,672 units in 1981, while costs jumped from $441,470,799 to $555,754,702.

Multi-family dwellings were up 53.5 percent from 2,482 to 3,809 units, single-family homes were up 35.1 percent from 2,657 to 3,590 units, and non-residential construction was up 13 percent from 1,753 to 1,981 units. Additions and alterations dropped 4.5 percent from 11,822 to 11,292.

In June, building activity dropped 4 percent compared to June 1980, from 4,052 to 3,891. Costs decreased 21.1 percent from $118,832,081 to $93,814,346.

Compared to May figures, construction activity in June decreased less than 1 percent and costs increased only 1.7 percent.

Hunt Seeks Funds For Dredging State Ports

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Without federal financing of dredging, North Carolina's state ports will be at a competitive disadvantage, Gov. Jim Hunt has told the state's congressional delegation.

"Compared with the large northeastern ports, trade volumes at southern ports are low," Hunt said in a letter to each of the state's 11 congressmen and two senators. "Yet, channel costs are similar. Of course, channel costs do not vary with trade volume."

Ports at Wilmington and Morehead City, small by national standards, are routinely dredged each year at a combined cost to the federal government of $6 million. But a Reagan administration proposal would end federal aid there.

William M.A. Greene, director of the State Ports Authority, said the change would make the North Carolina ports far less competitive than larger ports to the north, such as Hampton Roads, Va. Because northern ports have more volume of traffic, he said, they would have more ships to absorb the higher costs.

The dredging costs are far greater than the State Ports Authority's profit at the two ports, which was a record $1.4 million last year. By contrast, Hunt noted, the U.S. Customs Service collected $39 million last year from ships calling at Wilmington and Morehead City.

Greene testified against the proposal last month before the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, which is headed by Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C.

The proposal, Greene said, was offered by Reagan administration Budget Director David Stockman as one of many proposals to shift costs from the federal government to the users of seaports, waterways and harbors.

Greene said that if North Carolina's ports were to pay for the dredging, the authority would be forced to raise cargo rates by 85 cents per ton. At Hampton Roads, he said, the increase would be between 4 cents and 14 cents a ton.

"One penny per ton means a lot to those ships," he said.

In 1979, the latest year for which figures were available, the two North Carolina ports handled a total of 13.5 milion tons, compared to 48.6 million at the Virginia port and 163.6 million at New York.

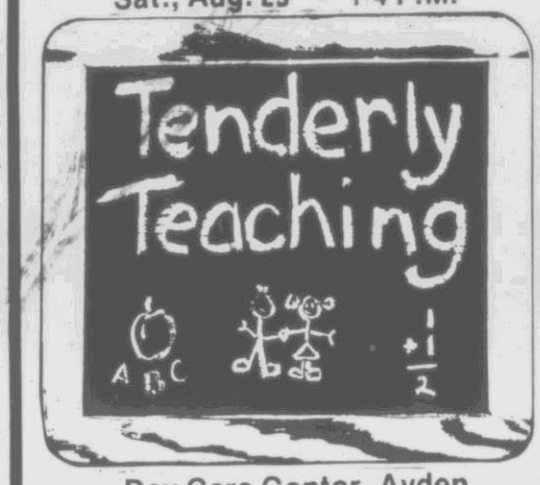

Hunt's letter, dated Aug. 20, marked the latest in a series of several specific issues on which he has opposed the Reagan administration, while maintaining support for the president's budget cuts in general. Earlier this year, Hunt said he opposed administration cuts in aid to law-enforcement agencies, said education cuts went too deep and said a proposed limit on Medicaid costs was unrealistic.

Hunt's letter was drafted by Commerce Department officials, but Greene said the governor initiated the letter. "He did it on his own initiative," Greene said. "He said, 'Give me some information. I want to do something. I'm mad.'"

Aides to the state's two Republican senators, Jesse Helms and John East, both said they had not yet received copies of Hunt's letter and had no comment.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a broad loss today, still beset by interest-rate and recession worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 5.71 to 893.55 by noontime.

Losers outnumbered gainers by close to a 2-1 margin in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After tumbling to its lowest level in more than a year on Monday, the market made a weak attempt to rally late Tuesday and early Wednesday.

But analysts noted that the upswing attracted little support, with traders still fearful that a prolonged siege of high interest rates would lead to an economic slump.

By Wednesday afternoon prices began pulling back again, and the decline accelerated in early trading today.

Pan American World Airways led the active list, off ⅛ at 3⅜. The stock rose ⅝ Wednesday when the company named C. Edward Acker, chief executive of Air Florida, to its top executive post.

Losers among the volume leaders included Hughes Tool, off 1⅝ at 39¾; Superior Oil, down 1 at 38½, and Cities Service, off 1 at 61⅜.

The NYSE's composite index lost .37 to 72.12. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .09 at 349.18.

Volume on the Big Board amounted to 18.86 million shares at noontime, against 18.56 million at the same point Wednesday.

Angolan Raid Slowed Down

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Angolan troops and adverse international reaction have forced a slowdown in the South African incursion into Angola, the official Angolan news agency Angop claimed today.

"The aggressive forces now are trying to gain time for a discreet withdrawal of troops and material," the news agency said in a dispatch from the capital city of Luanda, monitored here. It made no mention of new fighting, and provided no details of the Angolan forces involvement.

Angop said almost all civilian airports in neigboring South-West Africa, from which South Africa mounted the invasion Monday, had been reopened after being closed for "four or five days." The airports are usually closed when South Africa launches one of its periodic raids against Angolan-based guerrillas.

South African Prime Minister P.W. Botha asserted Wednesday that his country's invasion of Angola was just another "follow-up operation" against insurgent Namibians raiding South-West Africa.

The United States, Britain and West Germany condemned the incursion, and Britain and West Germany demanded that the invaders withdraw.

Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy said Libyans are prepared to fight "side by side" with Angola to stop South Africa's "racist and imperialist agression," the Libyan news agency JANA reported today.

The South African Defense Force refused to give details of the operation. But Botha reported the invaders destroyed bases and arms caches of the South-West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO), and military spokesman said eight members of the security forces and 29 guerrillas had been killed in recent operations.

The Angolan government charged that two South African armored columns crossed the border between Angola and South-West Africa (Namibia) early Monday, advanced nearly 100 miles into Angola and clashed with Angolan troops while South African warplanes destroyed two Angolan villages.

Carter Nephew Again A Loser

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Carter's nephew, William Carter Spann, has lost another attempt to win release from prison without bail while awaiting trial for attempted burglary.

Superior Court Judge Lucien Vandegrift kept bail at $5,000 Wednesday after a prosecutor noted Spann had no roots in California and could face nine years in prison if convicted.

Spann, 34, was arrested with his wife, Susan, July 5 in a residential neighborhood of Chico, near where police were investigating an attempted break-in.

Spann is the son of Jimmy Carter's sister, Gloria Carter Spann.

Message To Be Returned

SEATTLE (AP) — The note in the bottle was unabashed, old-fashioned love.

A Seattle man dropped his bottled pledge of love into the sea more than 10 years ago halfway between Seattle and Hawaii. Chris Wille of the National Wildlife Federation recently found it while jogging along a beach on the island of Guam.

Wille followed directions in the bottle, forwarding the letter to the man's wife. He used a fresh envelope because the 10-cent airmail stamp on the original was a bit behind the times.

When the letter came back, "No longer at this address," Wille sent it to The Times of Seattle.

The man had written:

"If, by the time this letter reaches you, I am old and gray, I know that our love will be as fresh as it is today.

"It may take a week, or it may take years for this note to find you. Whatever the case may be, it shall have traveled by a strange and unpredictable messenger — the sea.

"If this should never reach you, it will still be written in my heart that I will go to extreme means to prove my love for you. Your husband, Bob."

The newspaper said Wednesday it reached the woman to whom the love letter was directed.

As it was read over the telephone, she burst into laughter. The more she heard, the harder she laughed.

"We're divorced," she said as she hung up the phone, very hard.

OFFICIALLY CRITICAL

Game-Style Scrimmage Pleases Emory

Coach Ed Emory put the East Carolina Pirates through a long, game-style scrimmage last night, and was generally pleased with what he saw. The Pirates worked in a game situation drill against the expected Western Carolina offense and defense.

East Carolina opens the season against Western on Saturday, September 5.

"We played the top 28 on offense and the top two teams on defense," Emory noted.

"We wanted a true game-like situation because of our inexperience, newness and for chemistry.

"The only time our offense was stopped was when they stopped themselves. Carlton Nelson and Kevin Ingram played exceptionally well. Carlton ran the offense really well and Ingram did very well passing," Emory said.

He pointed out Earnest Byner, Leon Lawson and Chip Simmons as having very good nights running the ball. He also singled out the play of wide receiver Ricky Nichols.

Emory voiced some concern about Harold Blue, who was bopped on the head on the first play of the game and was taken from the field. His injury is not believed serious.

The coach did not make any assessment on the offensive line, saying he would have to wait for the review of the films, adding they appeared to play well.

"Defensively, we played with much more intensity in the second half. In the first half, the scout team moved the ball against us. We're not getting off our blocks and pursuing like we should."

Emory noted that the secondary, led by Gerald Sykes, Chuck Bishop and Clint Harris, had several interceptions. "Jody Schulz (end) played a very consistant scrimmage and Hal Stephens looked good at tackle," he added.

"Overall, we've got to get better intensity. This was more or less a warmup for Saturday's full dress rehearsal."

"We're out there with four kids who know the offense. They are all talented and intense," East Carolina coach Ed Emory said of the four youngsters battling for the starting quarterback honors at East Carolina.

"They're one million miles from where we were a year ago, but that doesn't mean that they still don't have a million to go. But with the depth, the competition, the situation is much better."

Junior Carlton Nelson of Portmouth, Va., the starter in ECU's first seven games last fall before a neck injury, is fending off Villanova sophomore Kevin Ingram of Philadelphia, Pa., and a pair of returning sophomores for the starting nod. Greg Stewart of Middlebrook, Va., who started ECU's final four games and was the team's leading passer, and Larry Brobst of Savannah, Ga., are the other two in the dogfight.

Ingram, a highly-touted prospect gained by the Pirates in the spring when Villanova folded its football program, has jumped into the thick of the starting battle with good showings at early scrimmages. Nelson, who underwent neck surgery last fall after aggravating an old high school injury, has been outstanding in pre-season scrimmages. Brobst is currently running at third team because of an injury to Stewart. Stewart hyperextended a knee in drills but Emory said last night he expects him back today.

Brobst, who saw limited action in 1980, has also improved greatly from a year ago, according to Emory.

Emory has also been very pleased with the play of several freshmen, too.

"The play of Ricky Nichols (Chesapeake, Va.) at wide receiver has been a surprise," Emory said. "He has shown a great deal of maturity. Also the maturity of Bubba Bunn (Goldsboro), Stefon Adams (High Point) and Jimmy Walden (Greensboro) at running back has been a surprise. We have other fine backs, but they show great potential.

"On defense, Chris Skeeter (sophomore, Portsmouth, Va.) at drop end has improved greatly since the spring."

Seven Area Teams Set To Open 1981 Season

Seven of the area's nine high school football teams will open the 1981 season on Friday night, but only two will serve as the host teams. The other two teams, Rose and Ayden-Grifton, will open their seasons next Friday night, Sept. 4.

Tonight's games, all slated for 8 p.m. kickoff, find Roanoke at North Pitt in the only cross-area game, while Farmville Central visits West Craven, Jamesville is at Princeton, Conley goes to Washington, South Lenoir is at Greene Central, and Williamston goes to Currituck.

The complete area conference schedules for this weekend:

Tobacco Belt: Aurora at Coats, Bath at Rosewood, Ravenscroft at Belhaven, Eastern N.C. School for the Deaf at Chocowinity, Columbia at Camden, Creswell at Mattamuskeet (non-conference meeting), Jamesville at Princeton.

Eastern Carolina: C.B. Aycock — open; Ayden-Grifton — open; Farmville Central at West Craven; South Lenoir at Greene Central; Roanoke at North Pitt; Southern Nash at Hunt; North Edgecombe at Southwest Edgecombe.

East Carolina Names Coaches In Softball, Women's Track

East Carolina University announced today the hiring of five coaches: two of them head coaches and three of them assistants.

Hired were Pat McGuigan as head women's track coach, Sue Manahan at head women's softball coach, Beth Burns as assistant women's basketball coach, Alan Farfour as assistant men's and women's tennis coach, and Laurie Sikes as assistant women's basketball coach.

McGuigan served as the head women's track coach at Memphis State in 1979 while teaching undergraduate courses in physical education. She administered the track and cross country programs at State and developed plans for workshops, clinics and summer camps. She is also Chairperson of Track and Field Guide: Tips and Techniques which is published by the National Association for Girls and Women in Sports.

McGuigan, who earned her bachelor's degree cum laude in health and physical education in 1977 from the University of Pittsburgh and her master's in the same field from the University of Wyoming in 1979, has coached 11 national qualifiers and one national champion and American record holder. She has also coached soccer, swimming and basketball.

Sue Manahan, a native of Richmond, Va., and a 1973 graduate of Longwood College, assumes the post of women's softball coach for the 1982 season. The squad notched an impressive 44-8 won-lost record in 1980 along with a third-place finish in the national championship. The team was ranked number one at one point in the season by the Women's Collegiate Sports Rankings.

Manahan taught physical education and coached for six years at Douglas Freeman High School in Richmond, Va., prior to coming to ECU. She had a 69-12 won-lost mark over the six years and copped four district championships, one regional championship and one state title. She also coached women's basketball for five years.

Manahan's playing career includes basketball for four years and field hockey for one at Longwood. She captained the basketball team for three seasons and was chosen all-State during her freshman and senior campaigns. She also won numerous awards for his softball prowess.

Beth Burns, a former graduate assistant at Ohio State University, joins the Pirate coaching staff as the assistant women's basketball coach. Burns graduated with a bachelor's degree in physical education from Ohio Wesleyan in 1979 and a master's degree in the same field from Ohio State in 1981. She also served as an assistant coach at Ohio Wesleyan in 1980 and has taught basketball at the Pat Kennedy Pocomo Invitational Basketball Camp and the Tara VanDerveer Buckeye Basketball Camp.

Burns, who lettered in basketball four years and captained the squad for two at Wesleyan, was selected the "outstanding Women Athlete" and the "Sportswoman of the Year" at Wesleyan in 1979.

Alan Farfour, a former tennis great at Wake Forest and current number two player in the state of North Carolina, joins the staff as as assistant tennis coach under Caroline Brown. Farfour transfered from Wake Forest after his eligibility expired. He plans to complete his education in physical education and gain tennis coaching experience at ECU. Farfour is a native of Goldsboro.

Laurie Sikes will serve as assistant coach under Cathy Andruzzi for the women's basketball team. Sikes, who played her collegiate basketball at ECU, is a physical education major from Marietta, Ga. She is most remembered for her phenomenal record of 413 assists dished out in only two years of competition after transfering to ECU from Peace College in 1979. She also owns the single-season record of 225 assists and the single-game field goal percentage record of 90% (9 of 10 vs. James Madison in 1980). The team's two year record while she played was 44-17.

Wright Is Ineligible

East Carolina University basketball player Barry Wright will not be academically eligible this year, it has been learned.

Wright, a freshmen starter on last year's ECU team, averaged 10.3 points a game, second highest on the team, and was the leader in steals with 31. He was named the team's best defensive player at the end of the season, and was honorable mention on the Basketball Weekly freshman team.

New Playoff Setup Isn't Pleasing To All Coaches

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — A measure adopted by the North Carolina High School Athletic Association to increase football revenue is so confusing that some coaches are wondering if they should be selling rule books instead of programs.

The association has adopted a new Division I and Division II setup, after experimenting with it last year.

Some coaches wanted to add an 11th regular season game to their schedules. Instead, they got the two divisional setup with a state champion to be crowned on only one level of Division II, that among the 4A schools. Tournaments for class 2A and 3A schools in Division II will end on the semifinal level while a lack of schools prohibits a 1A tournament.

The initial moves to change the playoffs came from Western Alamance principal Al Primm and then-Southern Nash coach Ron Piner.

Primm wanted schools split in Division I and II, similar to an NCAA collegiate structure. Piner suggested that instead of the customary one team from each of the 16 3A conferences, the state should allow a 32-team plan for 3As.

However, that would have made the season a week longer, and the NCHSAA decided to ask the schools to vote on a Division II plan.

Charlie Adams, assistant executive director of the NCHSAA, said revenue was first reason for the plan and the second was because too many 9-1 teams were left out of the playoffs after losing to the league champion, 7-6.

Jack Hope, athletic director at West Caldwell, said the original move — which included state Division II title games in 2A, 3A and 4A — passed a school-by-school vote 177-76.

Then, at an ADS meeting in April at Wilmington, a suggestion of stopping the 2A and 3A playoffs at the semifinals — spearheaded by Tuscola coach Jerry Barker — was sent to the NCHSAA.

A vote of 2A and 3A principals went 98-73 in favor of playing no state Division II title game in those classifications, so the 4A schools' Nov. 20 game will be the only state Division II championship contest.

"It (Division II) is a worse idea than the NIT," said Danny Williams of East Burke. "I can hear the fans now ... chanting 'We're Number Two.'"

Williams said the Western 4A Conference is officially on record as in favor of an 11-game season or a second scrimmage.

Mike Biggerstaff, whose West Caldwell Warriors were 8-2 behind Northwestern 3A conference champion Wautauga last year and stayed home, seemed most opposed to Division II.

But, the NCHSAA will earn 30 percent of all state championship game revenues. It takes 15 percent of the gate in first and second round games and 25 percent in the semifinals. The remaining 40 percent of the state championship game is split between the two schools.

"I know they have expenses and all that," said Kermit Whisnant of Maiden High School. "But they're taking our profits. Give us an 11th game so we can make money."

Jim Brown, the all-time leader in rushing in the National Football League, is the father-in-law of New York Jet offensive tackle Chris Ward.

Student Tickets

Student season athletic tickets are now on sale at Rose High School and E.B. Aycock. The tickets, $15 each, are good for all Rose and Aycock home athletic events throughout the season.

Season adult tickets, (Booster Club) are available for $25 each, and are also good for all home Rose athletic events. These two are also available at the schools, and will be available at the gate for the first few Rose home football games.

Should Rose qualify for any post-season playoffs, separate tickets to each event must be purchased, since these games are not included in the season ticket packages.

We fired the guy who designs all those dull apartment floorplans.

Who is the guy that makes all apartments look alike? No matter. He didn't even get close to Wedgewood Arms.

We have an honest-to-goodness different type of apartment floorplan. No kidding. Now there's an alternative to dull apartments.

For example, we put the washer and dryer hook-ups upstairs. Not a radical departure perhaps. But, at least you won't have to yell across the dinner table when the washing machine starts spinning.

And, at Wedgewood Arms, you won't have to lose weight just to get in the downstairs bathroom. Now, that is different.

There's dozens of other subtle differences, too. Like a fuse box that doesn't need hiding because it's already hidden. There's lots of wall space. And, plenty of well-thought-out storage.

It all adds up to an apartment worth living in. An apartment that really is different. So, come take a look for yourself.

Call us for an appointment today.

Murcer's Pinch Hit Brings Yankee Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer apparently is one of those rare batters who can climb out of bed on Christmas morning and come up with a base hit.

The forgotten man of the New York Yankees climbed out of the dugout in the eighth inning Wednesday night and, as you might expect, came up with a base hit.

It was a solid pinch-hit single and drove in the winning run as the Yankees eked out a 3-2 triumph over the Minnesota Twins, only their fourth victory in the last 12 games.

"George (Steinbrenner) used to tell me they know what I can do and they want to see what everybody else can do," Murcer said in attempting to explain his wasting away on the bench except for an occasional pinch-hitting effort. Obviously, what Murcer can do is hit, and hit in the clutch, too.

In the only other American League contest, the Kansas City Royals trimmed the Detroit Tigers 6-1 behind Larry Gura's seven-hit pitching. The Chicago-Milwaukee game was rained out.

The Yankees originally signed Murcer in 1964 and he has been in the organization except for a 4½-year stint with the San Francisco Giants and Chicago Cubs. The Yankees reacquired him on June 26, 1979.

The 35-year-old Murcer, whose contract expires at the end of the season, would like to stay with the Yankees, but he also wants to play once in a while.

"I think they've written me off," he said after delivering his first hit — he's had only five at-bats — since the baseball season resumed. "I don't know why, but there's not much I can do about it. I wish I could give you something to prove I can't hit anymore, but I can't do that.

"I've asked a thousand times why I'm not being used more but it really hasn't done too much good. I'd really like to know why, but so far I haven't been able to get a good answer. In the situation I'm in, there's not much I can do about it. When I do play I seem to get the job done."

With Reggie Jackson riding the bench and Dave Winfield dropped to sixth in the batting order, Murcer stole the spotlight for a change, lacing his game-winning single off Al Williams following a one-out walk to Winfield and Bobby Brown's infield hit.

"We still didn't score a lot of runs, but it's better than scoring none at all," said Manager Gene Michael.

Royals 6, Tigers 1

Cesar Geronimo, a last-minute replacement for the injured Amos Otis, had two hits, including a two-run homer, while Gura posted his fourth consecutive victory since the season resumed. The Royals got a run off Aurelio Lopez in the second inning when Geronimo singled, stole second and scored on a single by Rance Mulliniks. Kansas City broke open the game with five runs in the fifth, triggered by a walk and Geronimo's second homer of the season.

Redskins Expect To Challenge In Northeastern If Stay Healthy

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

ROANOKE — North Pitt first-year coach B.T. Chappell, whose team opens its 1981 football season against Roanoke Friday night, calls the Redskins a powerhouse, a dominating team.

Roanoke coach Nolan Respess is not ready to go that far. Not yet. Not after the Redskins' performance in a scrimmage last Friday evening against D.H. Conley.

" People are expecting a lot of the kids and they know it. We are not a good football team yet," Respess said. "Don't get me wrong, I think we can be, but we're not one yet.

"On paper we're good, but we looked like dogs in that scrimmage. We were tight the other night. We were terrible," he said. "We just didn't look good. I'm not alibing but we had a number of people out and that made a difference."

Among those out against D.H. Conley were: junior fullback Calvin Andrews, senior center Keith Matthewson, sophomore split end Rick Hines and junior right guard Bernie Williford.

All but Williford should be ready for Friday's opener in Bethel. Williford is on a student exchange program and is expected back for either the second or third game.

Coming out of the scrimmage, Respess' main concern was his team's offensive performance. To say the least, Repess was not pleased.

"We had a lot of penalities and we were not holding onto the ball," Respess said. "I think we went into the game a little nervous — people are expecting a lot out of us and I think the kids know that.

"But the offense is going to have to jell for us to have the kind of team I think we can have. We've got to be able to move the ball on the ground. All good teams have a good ground game."

Nearly all good running attacks depend heavily on the offensive line. And Respess could have an exceptional front six, if size, speed and experience are any indication.

Without a doubt the key man in that front line is junior left tackle Donnie Wallace (6-3, 235). Wallace, who was the state shot put champ last season, was all-East and all-Conference last year and has already been scouted by a number of universities, including Notre Dame.

Wallace is joined at defensive tackle by senior J.D. Whitley (6-3, 210), who was honorable mention all-conference last season.

Matthewson (5-4, 160) will be at center while seniors Calvin Howell (5-11, 185) and Linwood Williams (5-10, 165) are at the guards. Howell started last year and Williams, who is taking Williford's place until he returns from Germany, saw parttime action.

"We're thin, we've only got 10 lineman," Respess said, "but we should have a solid offensive line."

Senior Lee Briley (5-8, 165), who played center and defensive end last year, will be at tight end this season. On the other side of the formation three players are vying for split end: senior Reginald Edwards (5-7, 135), junior Bud Davis (5-9, 140) and Hines (5-8, 145).

Senior Donell Sheppard, a starter on defense last year, is set to open at flanker in the Redskins' slot-I attack.

The backfield will have two-year starter Angelo Spruil (6-1, 180) at quarterback Andrews (6-1, 215) at fullback and seniors John Jackson (5-5, 150) and Joey Early (5-11, 185) at tailbacks.

Spruill and Andrews were both honorable mention all-conference and Spruill was also named to the all-area team.

Jackson, who started on defense but did not see any offensive action last year, and Early, a transfer from Hobgood Academy, are both considered starters by Respess. Senior Joey Ross (5-6, 170) will also expected to see action at tailback.

Defensively, Respess has switched from the 5-2 to the split 4-4. Asked about the change, Respess said: "I felt like in high school you're better off in that defense. We looked back over the teams that have given us trouble in the past and a lot of them run the 4-4.

Nolan Respess

"I don't like to change but I think we'll get the most out of our team in the 4-4. We're going to try to take away the inside and make them think pass and run to the outside."

The hub of Respess' new 4-4 defense is expected to be the tackles, where Repess will start Wallace and Whitley.

"If there are two better tackles I don't know where they are," Respess said. "Wallace is a great one and Whitley is probably the most unsung player on the team."

They may also be the fastest pair of tackles around. Wallace runs a 4.75 40-yard dash and Whitley has been clocked at 4.9. Senior Gregory White (5-11, 175) and junior Terry Griffin (6-0, 185) are backups.

Joining that pair on the defensive line are Williams and senior Gable Griffin (5-9, 160) at the defensive ends. Backups include Matthewson and junior Jeffrey Andrews (5-9, 160).

Calvin Andrews and Williford will be at the inside linebacking positions. Early and Howell are also expected to see action on the inside. At outside linebackers will be Sheppard and either Ross or senior Kenny Wilson (6-1, 175).

Briley, Jackson and Davis are a shade ahead of Edwards and Hines in the fight for the three secondary positions.

Ross will do the punting and Early will handle the kicking chores. Williford will also see some kicking duty when he returns from overseas.

A year ago the Redskins won their first three games, downing Belhaven, Ayden-Grifton and Gaston. This year Roanoke opens with a North Pitt on the road and follows that with home games against Ayden-Grifton and Washington.

Respess, however, said he is not looking past the Panthers. "I'm worried about North Pitt. They're better than people think they are," he said. "They've got a new coach and they are going to present some problems emotionally.

"You know, I've seen years when I could go down the schedule and pick teams you know you can beat. Not this year."

That holds doubly true for the Northeastern Conference. Said Respess: "It (the conference) is tough as hell, as usual. I don't know a league that's tougher.

"Tarboro has 27 letterman back and Edenton is suppose to be better than they were last year, and they were good last year."

And Roanoke? "Roanoke is going to be better than last year. We're going to contend for the confernece championship."

Roanoke Schedule

Aug. 28 — at North Pitt; Sept. 4 — Ayden-Grifton; Sept. 11 — Washington; Sept. 18 — at Edenton; Sept. 25 — Plymouth; Oct. 2 — at Ahoskie; Oct. 9 — Bertie; Oct. 16 — at Tarboro; Oct. 23 — Williamston; Oct. 30 — at Roanoke Rapids.

Injuries Plague Maryland Camp

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Maryland football coach Jerry Claiborne says he has the personnel to field a pretty good team, if only they would stay healthy long enough to get some practice time under their belts.

As Claiborne visited with with the Atlantic Coast Writers Wednesday, he ran down a list of 19 injured players — including six starting candidates — then putting the squad through a 90-minute scrimmage.

"We feel we will be a pretty good football team with all the people available," Claiborne said. "We may not have defensive end Mark Wilson, wingback Spencer Scriber and defensive back Jonathan Simmons for the opening game with Vanderbilt, but they should be back at pratice by then."

Wilson and Simmons went down in Monday's practice. Wilson suffered a hairline fracture of the non-weight bearing bone in his right leg and Simmons suffered an open dislocation of the little finger on his right hand. Scriber has not practiced because of a stomach disorder.

Most of the Terrapins' injuries are minor, but the wounded include four other possible starters: center Todd Wright, linebackers Joe Wilkins and Mike Muller and safety Bill McFadden.

Claiborne said one of Terps' strong points would be the running game with tailbacks Charlie Wysocki, Tim Whittie, and Willie Joyner and fullbacks Jeff Rodenberger, John Nash and Joe Brkovich.

"Our front eight on defense is solid but the secondary is a challenge," Claiborne said. "Simmons losing the practice time is a setback. We have six athletes back there who we hope will fill the bill. Wayne Wingfield has moved over from offense and worked well."

Claiborne said the Terps' game plan would be a little different this year, with a greater concentration on passing effectiveness.

"We are just trying to get a more effective passing game," Claiborne said. "We are not necessarily trying to throw the ball more, but have a higher percentage of completions.

"We're moving people around some and using motion to open up the defense," Claiborne said. "We do not want them to lock in on our ground game. We hope to use the entire field."

In the scrimmage following the media session, quarterback Bob Milkovich completed four of five passes for 63 yards.

Ovett In New Mark

KOBLENZ, West Germany (AP) — Steve Ovett, the tempermental Britisher, broke the world mile record with a time of 3 minutes, 48.40 seconds — but will it count?

Wednesday night, after the 25-year-old Olympic 800-meter gold medalist had lowered the record of 3:48.53, set a week ago in Zurich, Switzerland, by his archrival and countryman, Sebastian Coe, there was some doubt that the mark would be accepted.

The International Amateur Athletic Federation, the world governing body for track and field, insists that any change in events must be included in the official program. Since Ovett had decided only Monday to switch from the 1,500 meters to the mile, the meet promoter did not have enough time to make the change.

Ovett's last-minute decision left several other competitors angry.

Lady Pirates Set Schedule

East Carolina's Lady Pirates will host their own basketball tournament, and co-host a doubleheader with Duke University this winter, the school has announced.

The 1981-82 Lady Pirate schedule was released yesterday afternoon, and will feature such teams as Michigan State, Western Kentucky, N.C. State, South Carolina, and North Carolina on the home slate.

Coach Cathy Andruzzi's charges, who finished the regular season ranked 17th in the nation last year, open the season on November 29 by hosting Appalachian State. Among their road trips are the Dial Classic at Montclair State, the Miami (Fla.) Jamboree, Louisiana State and Old Dominion.

The complete schedule:

Nov. 29 — Appalachian State.

Dec. 1 at N.C. State; 5-6 at Dial Classic, Montclair State (ECU, Montclair State, Villanova and New Hampshire); 12 — UNC-Wilmington; 29-Jan 3 at Miami (Fla.) Jamboree, 29 vs. Northwestern, 31 vs. Georgia State.

Jan. 2 vs. Miami (Fla.), 3 vs. Miami (O.); 5 at Kentucky; 7 at Louisiana State; 10 — Virginia; 12 at North Carolina; 15-16 — East Carolina-Duke Doubleheader, 15 James Madison vs. Duke, East Carolina vs. Campbell; 16 Campbell vs. Duke, East Carolina vs James Madison; 24 at Georgia Tech; 25 at Wake Forest; 29 at Appalachian State.

Feb. 3 — East Tennessee State; 7 — N.C. State; 11 at Old Dominion; 16 at Duke; 20-21 — Lady Pirate Classic (ECU, Michigan State, Western Kentucky, Virginia State); 27 — South Carolina.

March 3 — North Carolina.

Perry Gets Homer But Victory Escapes

By The Associated Press

Gaylord Perry didn't get what he was after in Philadelphia but the Atlanta Braves and Rafael Ramirez pretty much did.

And Perry didn't make out half-bad either.

The Braves, who are a half-game in front of Los Angeles in the National League West in the second season, used the unlikely offense of Perry and Ramirez for a 5-3 triumph over the Phillies Wednesday night. In the process of taking two of three games from the World Champions, the Braves convinced the Phillies they are for real.

"We didn't lose to any Mickey Mouse team," observed Bobby Wine, who is managing Philadelphia while Dallas Green is under suspension for a bumping incident Monday night with umpire Steve Fields. "They came back. They've got some power, and tonight they got a little help from the bottom of the order."

That means shortstop Ramirez and pitcher Perry, who was seeking his 296th career win. Perry also worked seven innings, allowing eight hits and three runs and getting no decision. But he did manage to hit his 10th home run in a 19-year major league career.

And Ramirez slashed three singles, including the game-winning hit in the 10thh inning. Ramirez came to town struggling with a .207 average and left with six hits and three RBI against Philadelphia.

Ramirez, who hit .267 last year, said that Atlanta batting coach Luke Appling has helped him with his stroke.

"He's been hitting well the last six days or so," said Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox. "He's become more aggressive at the plate."

Ramirez had helped the Phillies tie the score 3-3 with a sixth-inning error. But his 10th-inning single scored Glenn Hubbard with the go-ahead run. Hubbard led off with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Bruce Benedict before Ramirez's hit.

Center fielder Garry Maddox misplayed the ball for a two-base error and Ramirez wound up at third. He scored on a single by Brett Butler.

Rick Camp, 7-1 who has an earned run average of 1.39, was the winner. Ron Reed, 2-1, gave up six hits in three innings of relief for the loss.

Elsewhere, it was Houston 9, the New York Mets 3; Montreal 6, Cincinnati 0; St. Louis 9, San Francisco 4; Los Angeles 16, Pittsburgh 6, and the Chicago Cubs 9, San Diego 7.

The Braves took a 2-0 lead in the first as Butler opened the game with a triple to center and scored on a single by Claudell Washington. Washington stole second and went to third when catcher Keith Moreland's throw sailed into center field. Bob Horner's sacrifice fly knocked in Washington.

The Phillies got a run off Perry in the bottom of the inning when Pete Rose singled, raced to third on Gary Matthews' double and scored on Mike Schmidt's single.

Perry homered in the fifth for a 3-1 lead but the Phillies tied it in the sixth. Schmidt singled, moved to third on a double by Moreland and scored on Maddox' sacrifice fly. Moreland scored the tying run when Ramirez booted Manny Trillo's grounder for an error.

Astros 9, Mets 3

Howe drove home five runs with a sacrifice fly in the first, a double in the third and a three-run double in the seventh.

Jose Cruz also had a sacrifice fly and Alan Ashby a run-scoring single in the first as the Astros took a 3-0 lead off Pat Zachry.

After Howe's double made it 4-0 in the third, the Mets scored twice in the bottom of the inning on a RBI single by Mookie Wilson and a sacrifice fly by Frank Taveras. The Mets scored again in the fourth on John Stearns' sacrifice fly.

Tony Scott's RBI double gave the Astros a 5-3 lead in the sixth and Howe's bases-emptying double in the seventh broke the game open.

"That was by far the best performance by Howe this season," observed Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "He's been one of our best hitters average-wise all season but just hasn't knocked in the runs for us."

Expos 6, Reds 0

Gary Carter, who drove in six runs against Cincinnati 24 hours earlier, added four more RBI with a two-run home run and a two-run single. Bill Gullickson, 4-6, threw a four-hitter, struck out six and walked none to record his first victory since June 10. He has allowed only one run in 29 innings since play resumed following the major league players' strike.

Carter's homer came in the third off Mario Soto. His single came after Andre Dawson had been walked intentionally to fill the bases in the fifth.

Tim Raines walked and stole second for his 56th steal in the third inning, tying the rookie record set by Gene Richards of the San Diego Padres in 1977. Raines sprained his right ankle on the steal, however, and was forced to leave the game two innings later.

Cardinals 9, Giants 4

Dane Iorg hit a bases-loaded triple to key an eight-run fifth inning that rallied St. Louis after Cardinals shortstop was ejected from the game and then yanked off the field by Manager Whitey Herzog for making obscene gestures to the home crowd.

Darrell Porter had a two-run single in St. Louis' biggest inning of the season, and Keith Hernandez hit his eighth homer in the fourth.

Dodgers 16, Pirates 6

Los Angeles had 19 hits in pounding Pittsburgh to sweep the three-game series.

Steve Garvey drove in five runs with three hits, including a three-run double, a run-scoring single and a sacrifice fly. Ron Cey was 5-for-6 with two RBI for the Dodgers, who erupted for seven runs in the second inning.

Dale Berra, Jason Thompson and Bill Robinson had homers for the Pirates.

Cubs 9, Padres 7

Steve Dillard ended a seesaw contest with a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth for Chicago.

The lead changed hands four times during the game, with two homers by Leon Durham helping the Cubs offset San Diego's five-run fourth inning, during which Luis Salazar and Joe Lefebvre knocked in two runs apiece. Lefebvre also had a homer to tie the game 6-6 and Salazar added a run-scoring single that gave the Padres a short-lived 7-6 lead in the eighth.

Junior Champs

Does Not Like Format

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The World Series of Golf's expanded 5-year-old format and its location are drawing criticism again from the pros.

Tom Watson dislikes the larger field of players and thinks the $400,000 tournament that began today at Firestone Country Club should be moved yearly.

Jack Nicklaus agrees with Watson's moving idea. Raymond Floyd sides with Watson on the size of the field that has included as many as 38 golfers. It has 27 participants this time.

The old format from 1962 through 1975 included only the winners of the four major tournaments. If one player won more than one major in a year, the championship of the Western Open or the Canadian Open joined the field.

Of course, Watson, Nicklaus and Floyd, all long hitters, rank in the forefront of challengers for the first prize of $100,000 Sunday.

"This Series should be like baseball's World Series," said Watson, the defending champion. "It's who has played the best for that year. It's not a personality contest. The format here is too large.

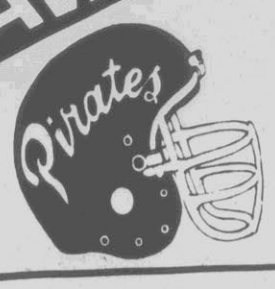

Star Game Scheduled

SARATOGA — The first annual North Carolina, Virginia All-Star Classic baseball game will be held Saturday at the Saratoga Braves baseball field.

Activities will get underway at 1 p.m. featuring an All-Star girls' softball game. An all-star team from Greene County will compete against one from Wilson County.

The baseball game is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. This will be a nine-inning game with players from eight local teams. There will be a home-run contest at 6 p.m., and anyone may enter.

The Saratoga ball park is located approximately three miles off U.S. 264 on Highway 1228 near Saratoga.

Customs Inspectors Keep Close Eye On Travelers

By STEPHEN C. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Two tanned honeymooners embrace and kiss. They don't seem to notice the long lines snaking almost to the back of the cavernous arrivals center at Miami International Airport.

The businessman behind them does. He impatiently glances at his watch and sneers as he kicks his suitcase a few inches toward the man in a blue uniform standing at the counter.

Nearby, a black-haired boy holding a colorful box tugs at his mother's dress. She's preoccupied with a crying baby in her arms. He's tired and cranky after a long flight from South America. When she shushes him, he takes a quick look around and darts past the check station.

"Hold it right there," a man barks as a hand reaches out and grabs the child. "What's in that box?"

Other travelers laugh nervously. The inspector doesn't smile. He turns to the boy's mother and demands: "I want to know what's in that box."

Toys, only toys, she says. Unconvinced, the man points to a long counter where two other inspectors will conduct a more intensive search — for drugs, tainted fruit, perhaps foreign currency.

Greetings to the United States, from the U.S. Customs Service — with its often long lines, sometimes long waits and occasionally unnerving searches.

No one arriving from abroad — young, old, American or foreign — is exempt from the watchfulness of the nation's oldest law enforcement agency and its 6,300 inspectors, patrol officers and special agents nationwide.

Established in 1789 by the first Congress, the Customs Service today is in the middle of its busiest season — despite the strike by air traffic controllers, which has put a crimp in summer travel.

It is a big job. Last year, the Customs Service collected more than $4 billion in duties on imported products, mostly inspected and cleared in its behind-the-scenes role in warehouses and cargo depots on the docks and along the 100,000 miles of U.S. border.

Agents are responsible for enforcing 400 laws for 40 federal agencies at 300 ports of entry. They check for illegal drugs, diseased fruits, illegal weapons and sophisticated technology.

They make sure that imported cars meet Clean Air Act provisions for the Environmental Protection Agency, that designer-label jeans are not imitations for the Patent Office, and that jewelry or clothing isn't made from the horns or hide of an endangered species for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Last year, inspectors at airports confiscated $34.4 million worth of undeclared merchandise and money.

Drugs are also a major concern — heroin from the Middle East, cocaine from Colombia, opium from Southeast Asia.

Airport inspectors last year also seized more than $224 million worth of illegal drugs — 48.7 pounds of heroin, 592.9 pounds of cocaine and 554 pounds of hashish.

And smugglers are constantly inventing new places to hide the contraband — false bottom suitcases, hollowed statues, hair dryers, guitar necks, typewriter cases. Blue jeans have been soaked in liquid cocaine, and the powdered form has been laminated into book covers. Marijuana has been pressed into records.

"It's amazing how many things have already been tried," said Jim Dingfelder, Customs spokesman for the Miami region.

Airports are the Customs Service's most visible — and busiest — operations. Last year, 20.7 million people passed through inspection points at the nation's 18 largest international airports. More than 6 million of them went through Kennedy International in New York; 3.3 million through Miami.

As a result, the Airline Passengers Association warns members that lines at Kennedy and Miami may be long. APA spokesman Hal Salfen says members are told to "be prepared to wait in lines, and, at times, be prepared for arrogance from Customs inspectors."

The Customs Service's budget for fiscal 1981 was $498.5 million, and the Reagan administration wanted to reduce that to $480 million next year, which would have meant 625 fewer employees. Congress restored the budget to $500 million. Still, the APA says still longer lines are likely.

The agency is sensitive to the complaints of travelers, and generally tries to get them through its gates within an hour — usually less. In Los Angeles, most pass through Customs in under 35 minutes of getting their baggage; in Miami, less than 15 minutes.

But the agency insists the real problem often is delayed baggage or airline scheduling, which tends to have many travelers arriving from overseas flights at the same time.

In Honolulu, for example, an average of 6,000 people from the Far East arrive each day between 6 a.m. and noon.

"We can't staff for that concentration," said Larry Barone, chief Customs inspector for Honolulu International Airport. Airlines have been urged to space out their flights, but for competitive reasons have chosen not to, he said.

Barone's staff faces the added difficulty of trying to cope with travelers who speak exotic Pacific Island tongues. Sometimes, inspectors must resort to hand signals to do their job.

To help speed long lines, the Customs and Immigration and Naturalization services in Miami are experimenting with a one-step clearance, with agents of either agency asking questions about both immigration status and customs obligations.

So far, the trial has not been successful. But Richard Gullage, INS deputy district director, says lines will get shorter when agents become more familiar with their expanded duties.

However, lines are not the primary concern of the Customs Service. Its job is to protect the nation from unwanted drugs and goods and to collect the duty owed on imported items.

"We're in a Catch-22 situation," said Larry Shirk, chief Customs inspector at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. "We owe a service to 99 percent of the public to help them on their way as quickly as possible. As for the other 1 percent, well, we're trying to keep a drug-free America and protect the revenue."

The men and women who inspect bags at airports must be able to distinguish between a $300 Seiko watch and a $10,000 Rolex and know what an Yves St. Laurent or Oleg Cassini suit costs.

But most importantly, an inspector must be a good amateur psychologist who can, in the course of a three-minute conversation, pick out the traveler with something to hide.

"We get three kinds of individuals through here — The unknowing, the daring and the smuggler," said Dan Rike, an 11-year veteran of inspections at Miami International.

Most of those who are caught give themselves away, said Rike, and many inspectors attribute their success to a learned "sixth sense."

"I'd say it's the body chemistry," he said. "It almost alerts us to the fact that they have something to hide. The question is: What is it? We never know until we start asking questions."

Some travelers try to slip things through by understating the value — sometimes with phony invoices drawn up by cooperative merchants overseas. But Rike says the ploy doesn't always work.

"There are a lot of people who come through thinking inspectors don't know much, that we don't follow what things cost. But I'll tell you, we have people who read Vogue and who go down to the Omni and Bal Harbour (Miami-area shopping centers) and check prices. We know what all top of the line stuff costs," he said.

Rike's desk is full of brochures from around the world — tapestries from France, rugs from the Middle East, hand-painted figurines from Italy. If an inspector has a question about something, Rike usually has the answer.

Still, for all its efforts, the Customs Service acknowledges that much gets past its thin line of defense.

How much?

"Nobody knows for sure," said Ed Kittredge, a spokesman in Washington. "I've heard people around here say we only get 5 to 10 percent. But how would anyone know for sure? You'd have to get a congress of smugglers together and ask them how much they're smuggling in."

CUSTOMS CATCHES — Miami Customs Inspector Martin Kuck displays a hollowed-out softball used to smuggle illegal drugs through Customs at the Miami International Airport. Shown are other items used for the same purpose: a suitcase with a false bottom; hollowed-out books; hollow statues and various types of shoes. These items are used as training aids by Customs. Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 8-27

XUYBR OPQZTUL YO RTRPCRA CQR PTUOO BUTRAYPCZLYUX

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — BIG BADGER BAGGED LITTLE RAT.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Z equals O

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Opening lead: Queen of ◇.

Don't give up hope just because a contract seems impossible. You never know when one of the defenders will bail you out!

North must have suffered from double vision—nothing else can account for his jump to four spades at his second turn. South was sure his partner held an unbalanced hand with five clubs and at least four spades and, therefore, only four cards in the red suits. Either red king would make the slam a near laydown. North's proper bid at his second turn was three spades, to show three-card support for his partner's suit.

West led the queen of diamonds, and it did not take declarer long to realize that he would need more than a bit of help to make his slam. Unless a defender held specifically the 10-9-8 of clubs, there did not seem to be any way to avoid losing two heart tricks (with that specific club holding, declarer could surrender the jack of clubs to the queen and then score four club tricks on which he would discard his four low hearts). But the odds against that were considerable

It seemed better odds to hope for a defensive error. To give West every chance to go wrong while catering to the only distribution that might secure the contract, declarer won the diamond in hand and immediately led the jack of clubs. West played low and declarer called for dummy's two. When the jack held, declarer was halfway home.

Declarer drew trumps in three rounds, ending in dummy, then ruffed a club. Now all that was needed was a 4-3 club division. He entered dummy with the king of diamonds and cashed the king of clubs, discarding a heart from his hand. When both defenders followed, the slam was assured. On the ace-seven of clubs declarer discarded two more hearts, so he lost only one heart trick. None but the brave deserve victory.

CONFERENCE SET

A conference will be held at Saint Mary Missinary Baptist Church Friday at 8 p.m.

The pastor, the Rev. F.R. Peterson, asks all members to be present.

Management Seminar Offer

(ECU News Bureau)

"Assertive Management", an intensive one-day seminar designed for managers who wish to become more effective and productive, will be offered by the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education Sept. 30 at the Ramada Inn here.

The program will be directed by James P. Lewis, internationally known lecturer, author, manager and consultant who is director of Effective Human Performance, a Raleigh-based firm.

Further information about this and other courses and seminars for business professionals is available from the Office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville, N.C., telephone 919-757-6143.

Aussie Meat Imports Barred

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said Wednesday that Australian imports of boneless beef are being withheld from North Carolina because of the presence of kangaroo and horse meat.

"It will be withheld from human consumption until the USDA runs tests to determine if it contains any meat other than beef,," Graham said.

"Our people are checking all meat plants, warehouses and other storage areas for boneless beef imported from Australia," he said. "We will make every possible effort to keep this product off the market until it is determined it is beef."

Shot His Wife, Inherits Estate

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A man sentenced to five years probation for manslaughter in the shooting death of his wife will be allowed to inherit her estate, the 5th District Court of Appeal has ruled.

A Florida law prohibits a person convicted of murder from receiving any part of the victim's estate. But the decision Wednesday noted "manslaughter is not murder." The appeals court overturned an order disqualifying 60-year-old Eugene W. Nable from the inheritance.

The original order issued by Circuit Judge Uriel Blount Jr. had excluded him from the estate of his late wife, Gertrude Godfrey Nable, 61.

Nable, who now lives in Orlando, pleaded no contest to manslaughter in her July 1979 death.

He told police his 9mm automatic pistol discharged, killing the woman, as the couple struggled during an argument at their Edgewater, Fla., home.

Mrs. Nable died without leaving a will. When her estate came before Blount, he divided it in equal parts among her three children by a previous marriage, excluding her husband of 17 years.

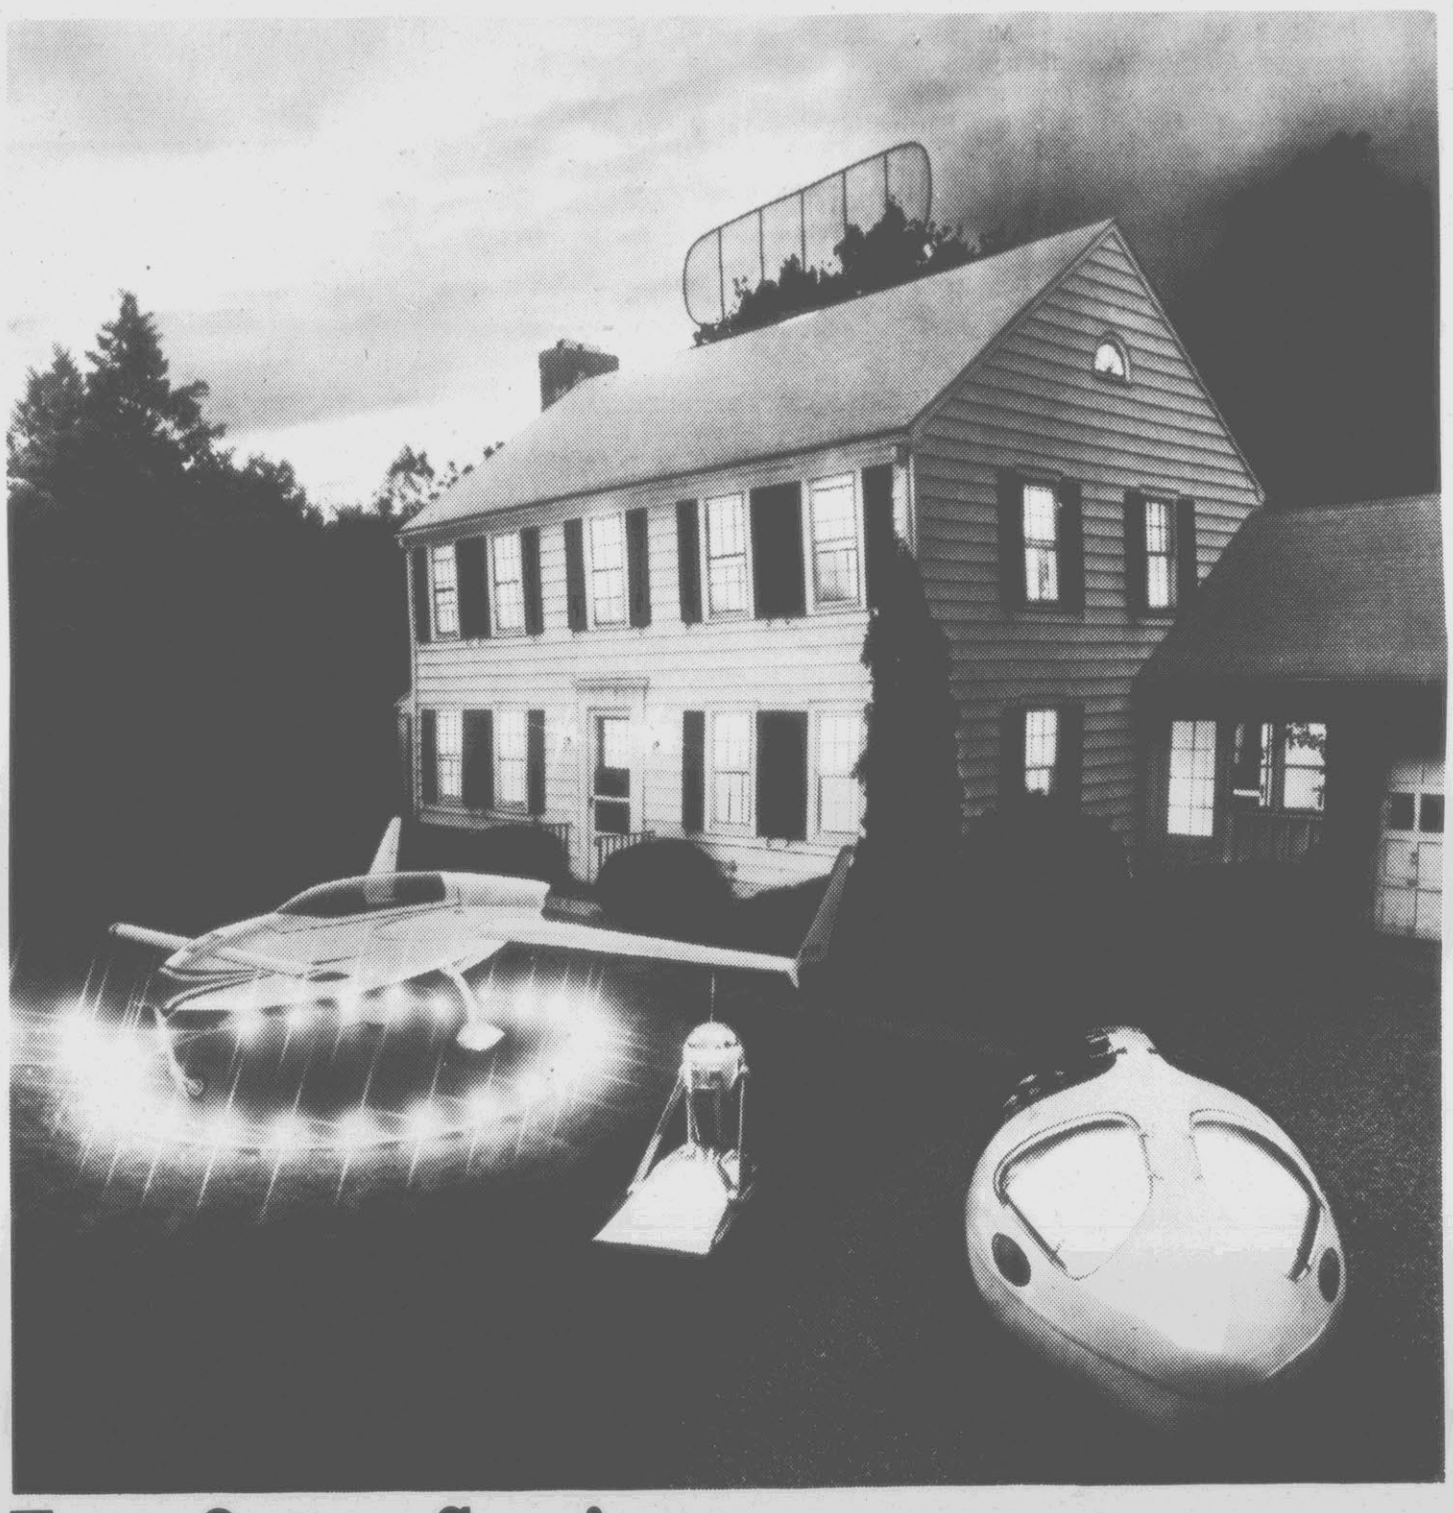

"The court is of the opinion that Eugene W. Nable should not be permitted to profit from his own willful, wrongful and wanton act which resulted in the death of his wife," Blount wrote in the order.

Accepts Admission To N.C. High School

Miss Hih Song Kim, who completed her sophomore year at Rose High School during the 1980-81 school year, has accepted admission to the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics in Durham. She will enter the school as a junior.

Hih Song, daughter of Mr. Jeng Ja Kim and the late Dr. Kim of Greenville, will begin classes at the special state high school for talented and gifted students on Tuesday, September 8.

From Owens-Corning... a Fiberglas™ roofing shingle so tough that it's guaranteed into the 21st century.

When the warranty on most ordinary shingles has expired, the warranty on Owens-Corning's Fiberglas shingles still has years to run.

The reason? They're Fiberglas shingles. They won't absorb moisture. So they won't curl. Won't blister. Won't buckle.

And they've got 20 percent more weatherproofing material.

That's why they'll still be keeping your house dry, even when the 21st century has arrived. It says so right in Owens-Corning's remarkable limited warranty, which is prorated for the original owner on the basis of age and replacement cost. It also comes with a U.L. Class A rating—the very highest rating in the industry.

It's your house. It's your money. So speak up and ask for the shingle that lasts. And lasts. And then lasts some more.

Preparations Move Along On Pig-Cooking & Barbecue Sale

Activities galore are planned around the First Annual Pig-Cooking and Barbecue Plate Sale to be held Friday night and Saturday at the Pitt County Fairgrounds by the staff of the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center.

Staff members have pledged $20,000 to the fund drive for the construction of dormitory and recreation facilities for the center which trains and employs mentally and physically handicapped persons. So far they have raised about $3,000 for the cause and hope this project will go a long way toward their goal, event chairman Doug Bond said.

Pig-picking cooks will compete for some $1,250 worth of prizes to be given away at the end of the cooking which begins at 9 p.m. Friday and runs through the night. Judging will be from 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. with judges from outside the area doing the honors. About 50 cooks have entered, with they or their sponsors having paid $80 apiece for participation. There will be 10 top winners.

Then their well-cooked pigs will be chopped and made into thousands of plates of barbecue to be sold to the general public. Plates will cost $2.75 each. Vocational Center staffers have divided into three teams competing against one another as to which can sell the most advance tickets, Bond said, but plates can also be purchased any time between 11 a. m. and 8 p.m. without tickets.

Fifty camper sites have been set up with guests from various places expected, due to the interest expressed by the N.C. Campers and Hikers Association and the Winnebago Club of North Carolina.

Local merchants have also promised to put on merchandise displays of everything from cars to boats to mobile homes to farm equipment.

A yard sale will get underway at 6 a.m. Saturday and continue throughout the day, with many good items donated by the staff and the general public.

Entertainment Friday night will include Nicky Harris, a singer whose most recent record release is "Playing the Fool Again," the singing group, By Prescription Only; guitarist, Mike Crutchfield; and square dancers led by Jerry Powell as caller.

Saturday entertainment will include parachute jumping led by Barbara Parys; the clowning of Clown Alley; a magic act; the guitar music of Joe Collins; the country rock music of Rattler, and C.D. & Company, male models.

Bond said the staffers hope to make this an annual event and are depending on the response of the public to make this and future pig cooking a way to help them contribute to the well-being of the center where they work.

Ex-Hostage Is Now A Student

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Former Iranian hostage Kevin Hermening has finished his tour of duty with the Marine Corps and is ready to begin a new role Friday as a student at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Hermening, 21, said he had planned to major in architecture, but now he is thinking of studying political science, law or public relations.

"I feel perfectly readjusted, and I think a factor that has helped me is I've been able to talk about it. I make jokes about it," he said.

Hermening, of Oak Creek, was the yougest of the 52 Americans held hostage for 444 days. He was one of the Marine guards assigned to the U.S. Embassy in Tehran when it was stormed by militant students in November 1979.

NON-MOSLEM LAWS

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Polygamy will become illegal for non-Moslems under new marriage and divorce laws to be put into effect early next year, Deputy Prime Minister Musa Hitam told a women's gathering here today.

Charge Made In Shooting

Greenville Police arrested a local woman this week following a shooting incident and charged her with shooting into an occupied dwelling.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Carrie Smith of 1625 S. Pitt Street was charged in connection with the incident. He said the home of Matilda Willoughby at 1700-A S. Pitt Street was involved.

No one was injured in the shooting, he said. Bond for Carrie Smith was set at $200.

Meetings Planned

Meetings of District Union No. 2 of the Northeast B Division Conference will be held at Good Hope Free Will Baptist Church tonight through Sunday.

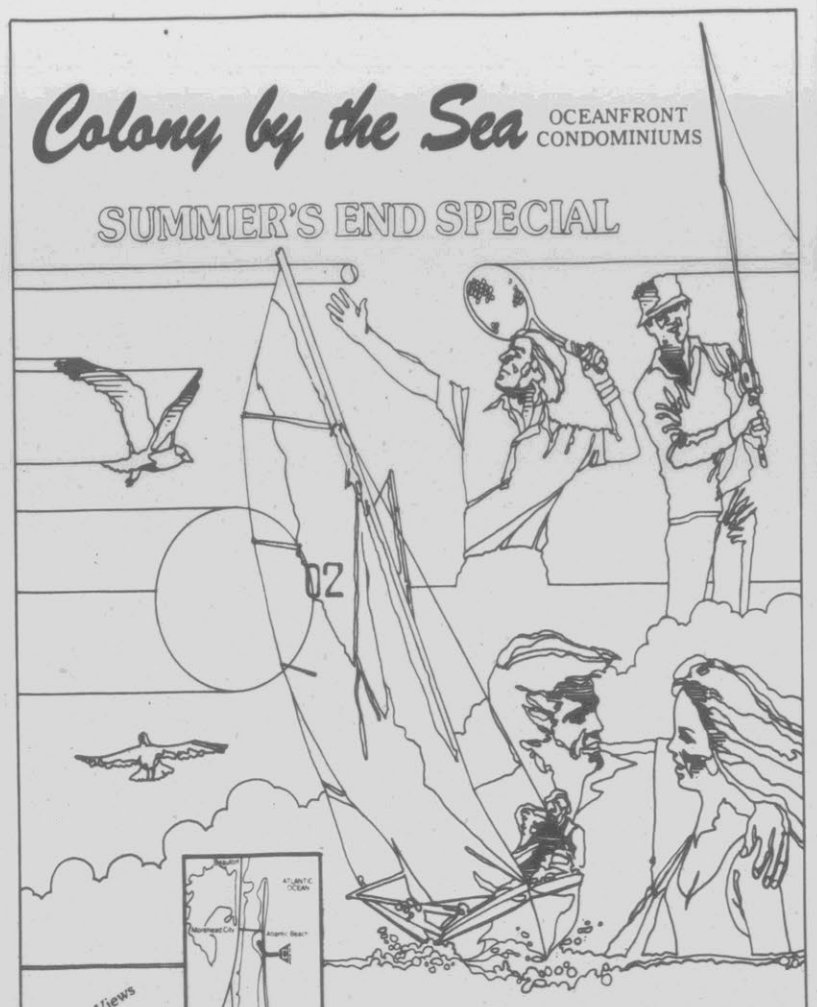

Tonight at 7:30, a Youth Choir Festival will be held. Friday at 7:30, the Women's Department will be in charge and the sermon will be delivered by Eldress Rhurarma Knox. Saturday at noon there will be one hour of prayer, followed by a service led by Eldress Roberta Moore and the Union Choir.

Saturday at 7:30 Elder Andrew Smith will preach, accompanied by the Burney's Chapel choir and ushers. Sunday at 11 a.m. Elder C. R. Parker and the Good Hope choir and ushers will lead the service. At 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Elder Blake Phillips will preach, backed up by the English Chapel choir and ushers.

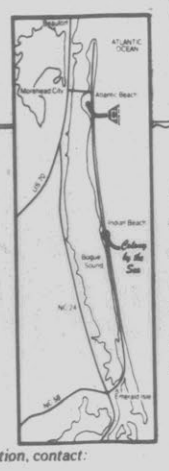

Everyone is are invited to all these services, says the president, Elder C.R. Parker.

WHY YOU CAN FIND THE CLOTHES ON THE RIGHT FOR LESS THAN THE CLOTHES ON THE LEFT.

The merchandise on the left can be bought in Raleigh. The clothes cost $200.00, plus the gas money it takes to drive there and back. The merchandise on the right can be bought locally. The clothes still cost $200.00, but the money spent on transportation will be a lot less.

You'll find what you want nearby—and you can use that left over gas money for something extra.

That's why THE DAILY REFLECTOR puts advertisements from local shopping places first.

Another Flap On The 'NFL Today' Set

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Beauty has forced the Beast into a studio cage of sorts as another chapter is unfolding on America's favorite Sunday afternoon soap opera, the "NFL Today."

Phyllis George Brown, wife of the governor of Kentucky, has won a concession that Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder not appear live on the set as a condition to her returning to CBS' popular pre-game football show Sept. 6.

There's been bad blood between the two because of Snyder's feud with her husband, John Y. Brown, stemming from the time Snyder worked for Brown in a public relations capacity. Last year, Snyder made Mrs. Brown cry offstage when he said he hated her husband. Ironically, Snyder takes credit for introducing the former Miss America to Brown.

Van Gordon Sauter, president of CBS Sports, said Mrs. Brown didn't think she could be cheerful and enthusiastic — two reasons she's on the show — with Snyder around. "She said she couldn't fake it, and I admire her honesty," Sauter said.

Thus Snyder's analysis of the day's National Football League games and his grapevine gossip will be taped beforehand, ostensibly while Mrs. Brown hides in her dressing room.

"There will be a lot of avoiding behind the scenes," said one CBS official who requested anonymity. "It won't be that old family affair anymore."

The show's cozy atmosphere had been comforting to viewers, who will be hard-pressed to believe the smiles are real when anchorman Brent Musburger, Irv Cross and Mrs. Brown come on live, acting like one happy family.

"I don't mind so much not being on live," said Snyder. "But I certainly don't like her being the one who caused it."

Sauter says he suggested the move to allow Mrs. Brown to return and, also, to allow Snyder to polish his segments with retakes.

"But I don't know if I'll be able to get up for a tape show," Snyder said. "There's something about live work that gets the blood moving."

Musburger has relied on Snyder for spontaneous remarks when the show bogged down, and Sauter is sacrificing that for Mrs. Brown's peace of mind. He considers her charismatic and a lure for the fringe football fan.

There are those at CBS Sports, however, who were willing to call Mrs. Brown's bluff. They consider her cooing feature reports lightweight.

This is not the first time big egos had rocked the show's fragile chemistry. Last year, Snyder was involved in a bar-room brawl with Musburger over the amount of airtime Musburger was doling out. They managed to patch up their differences and even joked about the fisticuffs on air.

For now, though, it looks like the later tiff is not reparable, and when the "NFL Today" family has its annual Thanksgiving Dinner on CBS, there'll be one less mouth to feed.

PBS Planning Re-Run 'Golden Age' Dramas

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tad Mosel knew television when it was a starving artist, eager to talk to ordinary people and work for love instead of money. Now the medium has become a snobbish big shot, forgetful of its old friends, and he doesn't want to write for it any more.

Mosel wrote screen plays with such creative colleagues as Paddy Chayefsky, J.T. Miller and Rod Serling in "the Golden Age" of television — when dramatic action dangled live on a shoestring to give such unknowns as Paul Newman, Rod Steiger, Jack Lemmon and Charlton Heston and George C. Scott their first breaks.

"In those days, television had no money," Mosel said. "That's when people like me got the chance because no established writers would write for it, except Gore (Vidal), bless his heart, and he was just delighted at the challenge.

"Everyone regarded television as an upstart of a medium. It was beneath everybody's contempt. Films decided that if they paid no attention to it, it would simply go away. When it was obvious to everyone that it was not going to go away, then everyone moved in and took it over."

Before the Hollywood studios got around to the takeover, however, some classics emerged — "Marty," "Bang the Drum Slowly," "Days of Wine and Roses," "No Time for Sergeants" — all shot between 1948 and 1960 when video tape came on the scene.

Mosel, who won the Pulitzer Prize for drama in 1961 for his stage play, "All the Way Home," contributed lavishly, creating stories for "Studio One," Playhouse 90," "Hallmark Hall of Fame" and half a dozen other video vehicles.

This fall, the Public Broadcasting Service will bring back eight of the great originals, drawn from the early kinescopes which filmed them straight from the screen since all the action was as live then as a stage play.

Tragically, said Mosel, many of the best have been lost. No kinescopic record of them remains. Neither, in Mosel's estimation, does "real television" or the breathtaking thrill of producing it.

"At the peak of the Golden Age in drama there were about an average of seven shows a week on the air," he said. "Half-hour, hour or 90 minutes. There were no 13-week sequences, there were no summer vacations. It was 52 weeks a year.

"Now 7 times 52 comes out to between 300 and 400 original plays going on the air every year ... with all that going on, if you had talent and a little initiative, you could not help but be discovered, whether you were a director, or a writer or an actor."

Mosel said a writer then didn't have to wait for the critics to assess the value of his work. His public did it for him — swiftly.

"The day after a show people would call you up from all across the country," he said. "Someone you never heard of from Nebraska would call and say, 'Hey, I saw your show last night and it was as if you were sitting in my kitchen ...'

"Everybody felt they had a part of your shows. The elevator man, the guy who sold you the paper on the corner, would tell you what they thought of it. They felt they owned the playwrights and the actors and they called. You could always tell how successful a show had been by how fast the phones started ringing outside the studio at NBC.

"Now they couldn't get through if they tried."

Mosel said television drama in the '50s and '60s had a quality unmatched by today's prepackaged fare simply because there was little money with which to stage it.

"You cut down and you pared away," he said. "You pared away to the absolute essentials of the story you were trying to tell ... you couldn't even have actors change clothes because if you did, you had to allow them four minutes off camera. So we began to telescope time.

"In short, we were writing pure Aristotelian plays. We were abiding by all the unities of time and place and action and this is the kind of play that emerged as 'the' television play. It was very intimate and usually dealt with one dramatic event that you explored."

Then came Nielsen ratings, six-figure budgets and the technology of the video tape.

"Having survived live television, you can't really be scared of anything else."

JANE PAULEY, co-anchor of NBC's "Today" show suffered a miscarriage this week after about 2½ months' pregnancy but is now "fine", a network spokesman said. She is expected to be back at work sometime next week. (AP Laserphoto)

Rolling Stones Tour Scheduled

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Rolling Stones will tour 21 American cities this fall, playing in cavernous stadiums before fans looking for some satisfaction after four long years without a live performance.

The tour begins here Sept. 25 in JFK Stadium, where the band's Mick Jagger held a news conference Wednesday on the 50-yard line.

Although many performances are scheduled in large halls and stadiums, to ensure profit on the Stones' guaranteed $1 million per appearance, the group also has promised some "surprise" jam sessions at small clubs, including an unidentified spot in the Southeast that seats fewer than 400.

"We hope this will be the first of many tours in America. I don't see why we should stop now," Jagger said. He pronounced himself "older and much gooder," after almost 21 years in the clutches of rock 'n' roll.

The Stones' concert schedule released Wednesday includes:

Buffalo, N.Y., Rich Stadium, Sept. 27; St. Louis, Checkerdome, Oct. 1; Boulder, Colo., Folsom Field, Oct. 4; Phoenix, Ariz., Phoenix Coliseum, Oct. 6 or 7; the Los Angeles area, Oct. 9-13; San Francisco, Candlestick Park, Oct. 17; Dallas.

Racing's "Blue Bloods"

This Sunday the world's top thoroughbreds will compete at Arlington Park, Illinois, for the first $1-million prize in horse racing history. Each thoroughbred has a bloodline that can be traced back several centuries to one of three Arabian stallions: Darley Arabian, Godolphin Barb, or Byerly Turk. Descendants of these three are called "thoroughbreds" because they are considered "thoroughly bred." In the past 20 years, as horse breeding has become more scientific, the price of a Thoroughbred yearling has increased by as much as 1,500 percent. Last year the average yearling sold for $30,000. The winner of Sunday's "Arlington Million" will have been an investment that paid off.

DO YOU KNOW — What horse won the Triple Crown most recently?

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUG. 28, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today you find that those in positions of influence are in an amiable mood and are willing to go out of their way to be helpful. A good time to make plans for the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can easily express your creative talents and can take small risks with good success following. Relax at home tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve the conditions in and around your home. A new interest can bring greater success and happiness.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Proper communications with others can bring the cooperation you need at this time. Make appointments with key persons.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try new ways to increase your income so that you can keep up with the rising cost of living. Be alert.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Making plans for the weeks ahead is wise now. Enjoy romance quietly with the one you love. Happiness is within your reach.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be yourself today and you can accomplish a great deal. Eliminate a bad habit and success will bang on your door.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are able to gain personal aims easily today, so be sure you know exactly what it is you want. Strive for happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can easily gain the support you desire from a higher-up. Handling a civic matter wisely brings fine results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) There are many ways to advance now, so waste little time. New associates can be most helpful. Show appreciation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Come to the right decisions where monetary matters are concerned. If in doubt, consult an expert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Making new arrangements with an associate will lead to greater benefits and happiness in the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you improve your immediate surroundings, you can then tackle your job with new vigor and get far better results.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will require a good education to bring out the wonderful talents in this chart. There could be a great genius here. Make sure to encourage your progeny and to compliment for good work accomplished.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

NOTICE OF SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE
FILE NO. 81 SP 201
FILM NO —
IN THE GENERAL COURT OF JUSTICE
SUPERIOR COURT DIVISION
BEFORE THE CLERK
NORTH CAROLINA
PITT COUNTY
IN THE MATTER OF THE FORECLOSURE OF THE DEED OF TRUST OF:
GARY W BRITT and wife, SHERRY L BRITT,
Grantors,
TO FRED N HOLSCHER,
Trustee,
AND SEABOARD SAVINGS & LOAN ASSOCIATION,
Noteholder
As recorded in Pitt County Registry in Book O46, Page 39
Under and by virtue of the power and authority contained in that certain Deed of Trust executed and delivered by GARY W BRITT and wife, SHERRY L BRITT, dated March 3, 1978, and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds for Pitt County in Book O46, Page 39, and because of default in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured and failure to carry out or perform the stipulations and agreements therein contained and pursuant to the demand of the owner and holder of the indebtedness secured by said Deed of Trust, and pursuant to the Order of the Clerk of Superior Court for Pitt County, North Carolina, entered in this foreclosure proceeding, the undersigned CHRISTOPHER B McLENDON, Substitute Trustee, will expose for sale at public auction on the 9th day of September, 1981 at 10:00 A.M., on the steps of the Pitt County Courthouse, Greenville, North Carolina, the following described real property (including the house and any other improvements thereon):
Being all of Lot No. Nine in that subdivision entitled "Property of Chester Elks" as shown on a survey made by Blake C. Lewis, Registered Surveyor, under date of May 9, 1971, a copy of which map appears of record in Book H-39, Page 93, Pitt County Registry, said lot being 100 feet in width and located on the Northerly side of Clark's Neck Road (North Carolina Secondary Road No. 1567), and running back to Tranters Creek.
Property address: Route 3, Box 621, Washington, North Carolina, 27889.
The sale will be made subject to all prior liens, unpaid taxes, restrictions and easements of record and assessments, if any.
The record owners of the above described real property as reflected on the records of the Pitt County Register of Deeds not more than ten (10) days prior to the posting of this Notice are Gary W. Britt and wife, Sherry L. Britt.
Pursuant to North Carolina General Statute S45-21.10(b), and the terms of the Deed of Trust, any successful bidder may be required to deposit with the Substitute Trustee immediately upon conclusion of the sale a cash deposit of Ten (10%) percent of the bid up to and including One Thousand and no/100 Dollars ($1,000.00) plus five (5%) percent of any excess over $1,000.00. Any successful bidder shall be required to tender the full balance purchase price so bid in cash or certified check at the time the Substitute Trustee tenders to him a deed for the property or attempts to tender such deed, and should said successful bidder fail to pay the full balance purchase price so bid at that time, he shall remain liable on his bid as provided for in North Carolina General Statute S45-21.30(d) and (e). This sale will be held open ten (10) days for upset bids as required by law.
This the 17th day of July, 1981.

We will help make your house payments

It's true. When you buy your newly constructed home from us in BAYTREE, we will pay a portion of your monthly mortgage payment for the first year. It's very simple.

Here's why we're doing this. Many buyers seem to be hesitating, waiting for interest rates to come down. But since construction costs are rising so rapidly, tomorrow's mortgage payment is almost certain to buy less house than you can buy today.

For a limited time, when you come to us to buy your new home in BAYTREE, using conventional financing (which we can help you arrange), we'll pay a portion of your house payment from a special trust account for the first year.

If you are in the market for a home, you owe it to yourself to talk with us about our plan. Call us today for an appointment.

Let us help make your house payments.

Gerald Ford Missed Date

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford had no idea he was expected at a charity golf game in Bowling Green, and the scheduling mixup left the golf sponsors in a lurch.

Boxcar Willie, a country-western singer, was the only celebrity substitute offered, and the Riverby Hills Country Club pro Phil Ricketts was stuck Wednesday with a big sign that read "Welcome President Ford."

The Wood County unit of the American Cancer Society believed its golf fund-raiser would feature Ford, who it also believed would speak to a Wednesday night dinner at Bowling Green State University.

But misgivings surfaced when Wood County Republicans contacted Ford's Palm Springs, Calif., office to arrange a political reception before the dinner. They were told Ford's schedule for Aug. 26 didn't show him anywhere near northwestern Ohio.

Linda Metz, vice chairman of the county cancer society, was told Monday night Ford was "very sorry" and didn't know how it happened, but he had not approved the appearance and was going to be in California on Wednesday.

Ford's staff said no record could be found of the invitation being received or accepted.

"We have torn the office apart and cannot find anything at all," said Rowena Evans, a scheduler for Ford.

Haig Is Making 'Social Visit'

HUNTSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig will pay a "strictly social" visit to Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker at his Tennessee home this weekend, a Baker aide said Wednesday.

Katie Barksdale, Baker's deputy press secretary, said the Republican senator had invited Haig to his East Tennessee home some time ago. She said she didn't know details of his schedule.

Ms. Barksdale said Haig has asked that no reporters be allowed to talk to him during the visit.
