Unemployment Rate Inched Up In August

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate rose slightly in August, due mainly to soaring joblessness among black teen-agers, the Labor Department reported today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said unemployment increased to 7.2 percent of the labor force, a rise of two-tenths of a percentage point from the 7 percent figure in July. Black teen-agers accounted for about 400,000 of the 7.7 million workers who were unemployed last month, said Janet Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics.

"Although I would urge caution in ascribing a great deal of significance to this one-month increase, since the labor market experience of this group is especially difficult to measure with precision, the data do confirm that unemployment for black teen-agers is a continuing problem," Ms. Norwood said in a statement accompanying the monthly report.

The unemployment rate of white teen-agers — 15.6 percent — was about the same as in July.

The overall jobless rate had fallen to 7 percent in July, the lowest level in 15 months. The unemployment rate stood at 7.6 percent in May, due largely to large numbers of high school and college graduates entering the labor force, and declined to 7.3 percent in June.

The Labor Department said total employment held steady at 98.9 million last month, declining by only 18,000 out of a total civilian labor force of 106.6 million. The number of unemployed rose by 155,000, to more than 7.6 million.

The department said the labor force has grown by about 1.6 million over the past 12 months and that total employment has risen by 1.2 million since the beginning of the year. Most of the increase occurred among adult women.

The jobless rate for men 25 and over was 4.8 percent, little changed from the month before, while the unemployment rate for women inched down to 5.5 percent. The rate for men between ages 20 and 24 rose sharply to 12.7 percent.

Other breakdowns on the jobless rate in August, compared with July:

—Minority teen-agers, 45.7 percent, up from 36.4 percent.

—Whites, 6.1 percent, down from 6.2 percent.

—Non-whites, 15 percent, up from 13.6 percent.

—Hispanics, 9.7 percent, down from 9.9 percent.

—Adult men, 5.9 percent, up three-tenths of a percentage point from July.

—Adult women, 6.5 percent, down from 6.7 percent.

Non-farm payroll employment in August held steady at the July level of 92 million. The job count has expanded by 2.1 million since the recession low of mid-1980, the report said.

It said employment in manufacturing, which had been at depressed levels since last year's recession but had shown signs of improvement in recent months, remained at about the July level.

Factory employment has yet to recover fully from "the devastating losses" in the auto industry from mid-1979 through the 1980 recession, the report said.

There was a decline of 30,000 jobs in food processing plus a loss of 10,000 in lumber and wood products, but a gain of 60,000 in retail trade, the department said.

Brewer Pressure Grows

By MELVIN LANG

Chancellor Thomas Brewer's future with East Carolina University may depend upon a scheduled telephone conference Saturday between his trustee chairman and the president of the state's university system.

Ashley B. Futrell of Washington, the ECU trustee chairman, said today any formal action relating to Brewer has been delayed until he could talk Saturday with William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina system.

Futrell and some other ECU trustees have expressed dissatisfaction over public disclosure that Brewer had applied for the presidency of West Virginia University before he told the ECU board.

Brewer, who has maintained he was not actively seeking the West Virginia position, also was considered for a similar post at the University of Louisville last year but withdrew his name from consideration before the job was filled.

Futrell and other trustees contacted today said the board has not met since the West Virginia-Brewer controversy developed, but Futrell said "we've talked back and forth" on the telephone about the situation.

He said any action by the board has been delayed at the request of Friday, who has been on vacation. "He told us to wait until he got back," Futrell said.

Friday could not be contacted today.

Jay Jenkins, administrative assistant to Friday, said the ultimate decision — if any — on Brewer's case would be in the hands of the UNC Board of Governors, which has not considered the matter.

Brewer, who has been at East Carolina for three years, has been identified as being among the final group of applicants to be considered at West Virginia. A university spokesman in Morgantown indicated it may be several weeks before a final recommendation is made for the WVU job.

Troy W. Pate Jr. of Goldsboro, who preceded Futrell as chairman of the ECU trustees, said today he has not discussed Brewer's action although he has been quoted previously as saying he was unhappy that the university trustees had not been informed.

Another trustee, Dr. John D. Bridgers of High Point, said he had had one discussion with a trustee but said he was unaware of any official move to censure Brewer.

"There is some dissatisfaction, obviously, but I don't know of any move to call an official board meeting," Bridgers said.

Early Action For U.S. 264 Assured

ADDRESSES ASSOCIATION . . . William (Bill) R. Roberson, Jr., North Carolina's Secretary of Transportation, was keynote speaker Thursday night of the annual meeting of the U.S. 264 Association held at the

A capacity audience of well over 300 people interested in the future of the continued improvement and development of Highway 264 from Raleigh to Manteo were on hand Thursday night at the Casablanca for the annual meeting of the Highway 264 Association. Those attending included people from as far afield as Ocracoke.

Keynote speaker William (Bill) R. Roberson, a resident of Washington and North Carolina's new Secretary of Transportation, said of the problems involved in the choice of a U.S. 264 route between Wilson and Greenville at the point where the highway intersects a small area of Greene County, "We have only today resolved this matter, and have reached a unanimous decision not to delay further, but to proceed with the original plan, possibly as early as in some four months time."

Foremost among reasons for the need of continued efforts to improve and develop roads, Roberson remarked, is that "North Carolina has vast and untapped potential for economic development, particularly in eastern North Carolina. For too long the Piedmont area has been getting most of the state's new industries, while we in eastern North Carolina have been falling behind, and I for one am getting a little tired of it. We would enjoy tremendous financial benefits from improvements of U.S. 264 in eastern North Carolina.

"Governor Hunt shares our concern for this situation, and has prodded us to get on with it, to get off our cans and do something about it. I don't intend to let up."

Gunmen Ambush French Ambassador To Tehran

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — French Ambassador Louis Delamare was ambushed by unidentified gunmen today and a doctor at Barbir Hospital said the ambassador died of his wounds shortly after arriving there.

No one made any immediate claim of responsibility for the ambush.

Lebanese police and the French Embassy said the ambassador was shot in the head, chest and stomach.

A police statement broadcast by Lebanon's state radio said unknown gunmen opened fire at the ambassador as he was being driven back to his official residence close to the green line that divides Beirut into Moslem and Christian sectors.

The statement said the 59-year-old Delamare, a career diplomat and father of five children, was shot at 2:10 p.m. — 8:10 a.m. EDT. The doctor, who did not want to be identified by name, said the ambassador was pronounced dead about 15 minutes after he was brought into the hospital of "multiple gunshot wounds in the head, chest and abdomen."

"He was nearly dead when he was brought in. Doctors tried to resuscitate him, but very little could be done about it. His heart had stopped and he had several injuries in the head," the doctor said. "Attempts to resuscitate him failed and he was then pronounced dead."

The privately owned "Voice of Lebanon" radio station said four gunmen riding in a white German-made BMW car shot the ambassador after trailing his metallic blue Peugeot 604 four-door sedan and then sped away. The police statement said Delamare's driver immediately turned his car around and raced to the emergency ward of Barbir Hospital, a few dozen yards from the scene of the shooting in mostly Moslem west Beirut.

The police statement did not give any details of the assailants but said a team of senior Lebanese officers moved to the scene and began an investigation.

Delamare's residence, a mid-city mansion known as "Residence des Pins," was in the mostly Moslem western sector of Beirut.

The ambassador had been assigned to Beirut in that post since Aug. 28, 1979.

He graduated from France's prestigious National School of Administration and, starting in 1947, held a variety of diplomatic positions in Romania, Turkey and Tunisia.

Delamare returned to Paris in 1961 to work at the Foreign Ministry. He was named ambassador to the African nation of Benin, formerly called Dahomey, in 1969, then returned to Paris again in 1975 to be the ministry's director of press and information.

Library Question Faces Duke Univ. Panel Today

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A panel of Duke University trustees today faced the question of whether to proceed with a proposal to establish a Richard M. Nixon presidential library on the campus, a move that has deeply divided Nixon's alma mater.

The executive committee of the Board of Trustees called a morning meeting to consider proceeding with negotiations for the library, which university President Terry Sanford said would include a Nixon museum as well as archives for his presidential documents.

About 25 Duke students gathered this morning outside the building where the trustees were to meet and carried signs protesting setting up the library on the campus.

The students carried signs bearing slogans such as "We Could Do It . . . But It Wouldn't Be Right" and "Nixon, Now More Than Ever, A National Disgrace."

The school's academic council, comprised of faculty members, voted 35-34 Thursday to approve a non-binding resolution opposing the plan on the grounds that the presence of a Nixon library could hurt the reputation of the university, Nixon, who graduated from Duke Law School in 1937, was only U.S. president to resign.

Adding to the controversy is the executive committee's insistence that a Nixon museum accompany the library.

During two days of debate before their vote, faculty members argued that the library-museum complex might be considered a monument to Nixon.

But Sanford, a former Democratic governor of North Carolina, called "nonsense" the suggestion that putting the library at Duke would brand the school as "Nixon University."

"I don't think it's going to be a Richard Nixon monument and I don't worry about the association of this sort of resource with Duke University," Sanford told the faculty. "I don't think its character is going to be besmirched."

Sanford acknowledged the museum would attract tourists, but he said it would still be in keeping with the university and would not "glorify" Nixon.

"We could keep it from being the same kind of library the Truman Library is or the Kennedy Library is," he said.

James David Barber, a political science professor who has written books about the presidency and categorized Nixon as having a negative personality destined for trouble, said Nixon's name would hurt the university's reputation.

"I say it's broccoli and I say to hell with it," Barber said.

"The bipartisan truth," he said, "is that Nixon was no ordinary pol who lost his base, but a subverter of our constitution who quit and ran when faced with certain conviction for abuses of power."

English professor George Williams asked his colleagues to put aside their dislike for Nixon and accept the library as a valuable collection.

FOUNTAIN WATER

I am concerned about the effect that commercial Clorox added into drinking water of Fountain might have on an individual.

Fountain Town Advisor, Carl Dean, confirmed that the chlorine put into the town well is used to kill problem causing bacteria. He added that the chlorine burns itself out by the time it reaches city pipes. Dean said the strength of the chemical poured in is never the same when it reaches customers' homes. Levels of chlorine are periodically checked so the level doesn't exceed minimum standards as set down by the state. "This process was recommended by our engineers from Sanford and has been okayed by the North Carolina Health Department," Dean said. "All it basically is is the chlorine that you have in a pool and in fact you would get more exposure to the chemical while swimming than from drinking the Fountain water... It won't hurt anybody," he said.

Food Prices Up On August Index

WASHINGTON (AP) — Slowly rising food prices kept inflation at the wholesale level in August at an annual rate of 3.6 percent, the smallest increase since May, the government announced today.

At the same time, the government reported unemployment edged up to 7.2 percent in August after declining to 7 percent in July. The increase was attributed largely to a surge in the number of black teen-agers out of work.

The Labor Department said its measure of wholesale prices — the Producer Price Index for finished goods — rose a small 0.3 percent in August after seasonal adjustment. The increase was less than July's 0.4 percent rise and June's 0.6 percent advance and the lowest since May's 0.1 percent, which was revised from the 0.4 percent reported earlier.

Since last August, wholesale prices have risen only 7.9 percent, a sharp departure from the 11.8 percent for all of last year.

Inflation at the wholesale level is running at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 8.3 percent for the first eight months of this year, Labor Department officials said.

If inflation increased at August's rate for 12 straight months, the rate for that year would be 3.6 percent, the officials said.

The Labor Department report said consumer food prices inched up 0.2 percent in August, much less than the 1.5 percent rise in July.

Prices for finished energy goods dropped 0.7 percent, the third decline in the last four months. July's decrease was 1 percent.

Much of the easing of food prices in August was due to declines in beef and veal prices, which were off 2.1 percent after increasing 3.8 percent in July, the report said. Pork prices were unchanged after rising 10.1 percent in July.

Falling prices also were reported for eggs, fresh fruits and fish.

Gasoline prices continued falling in August, declining 1.6 percent, the fourth straight monthly drop, the report said. Prices for home heating oil were down 0.7 percent after a 2 percent drop in July.

The government's index for finished consumer goods other than food and energy rose 0.5 percent last month, up from July's 0.2 percent gain.

'Queen of The Angels' At 200

In 1769 one of the first explorers of the Los Angeles area observed that it had "all the features necessary for a large settlement." But Father Juan Crespi could hardly have imagined that someday that "large settlement" would have a population of nearly 3 million spread over 465 square miles. In 1781, 44 settlers from Mexico — the majority Black or Indian — founded the pueblo of Los Angeles. At first the city grew slowly. But between 1885 and 1900 its population exploded from 12,000 to 100,000. This growth spurt was encouraged by rail fares of $1.00 from the Midwest. The nation's third largest city, El Pueblo de la Reina de los Angeles, the "Queen of the Angels", celebrates its 200th birthday today.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the mayor of Los Angeles?

Life As It's Lived

Writing Usually Seen To Be Less Than Work

By GAIL MICHAELS

A columnist for one regional newspaper recently decried the deplorable fact that the average income of a writer barely tops $5,000. Our profession is universally respected, she wrote, so why don't we receive adequate remuneration for our work?

My first reaction to her column was one of stunned disbelief. The figures the columnist quoted made me heady. If I made that much money in a year, I would be flying to Las Vegas on the next chartered plane. As it is, I've been writing for over seven years under the impression that I should be grateful for anything more than posthumous recognition.

Upon further reflection, I was still stunned, at this point not by my own naivete but by that of the columnist. I needed less than five minutes to answer the question she posed. We don't receive adequate remuneration for our work because the only people who realize that we work are other writers.

I can count on one hand the friends and acquaintances who really believe that I work. The others think that I sit down at my typewriter for 15 minutes twice a week and take dictation from Heaven. Consequently, I am fair game for anyone who needs a volunteer for anything from field trips to Vacation Bible School to "a paragraph or two (just dash it off) for our newsletter."

"I would but I work mornings," I said reluctantly to the last friend who called me to ask a favor.

She was surprised. "You do? When do you start?"

"I'm talking about my writing. I work on my columns in the morning."

"Oh, that," she said. "Well, you ought to be able to do that and look after my kids at the same time without too much trouble, shouldn't you?"

Those who recognize the value of our endeavors often do so not because the quality of our product impresses them but merely because our efforts are sustained. "I don't see how you do it week after week," one lady told me. "I could do one, but I couldn't keep it up."

Erased entirely from her memory were the agonies of freshman composition and the one-page essays on "What I Did This Summer" or "Why I Want a College Degree" which took hour upon hour to prepare and came back defeated with ugly red marks.

I managed to smile, but I wanted to scream. "No you couldn't do one! It's not that easy."

Whether or not my assumption was true is irrelevant. It is essential to my self-respect. A woman needs to believe that something about what she is doing is special when the words are struck like dried oatmeal in the recesses of her mind and there's nothing on that sheet of paper in front of her except the xxVty that her toddler has just typed. At those times, when I have a thousand other pressing concerns like dirty laundry and unmade beds, I can say with conviction that there's only one other profession whose members are less appreciated.

Unfortunately, I belong to that profession, too.

Four Wrecks Investigated

No injuries but some $7,800 in damages resulted from four wrecks investigated in the city on Thursday by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage occurred in an 8:30 p.m. wreck on W. Fifth Street east from Sheppard Street involving vehicles operated by Larry Dwight Parker of 311 St. Andrews Drive and Donald Earl Hale Jr., Green Mill Run Apartments.

Police, who said that Hale was charged with failure to reduce speed, estimated damages at $2,000 to the Parker vehicle and $1,300 to the Hale car.

No charges were preferred following investigation of a 6:02 p.m. accident on Dickinson Avenue just east from Pennsylvania Avenue involving vehicles operated by Andrea Williams of 609 W. Fifth Street and William Joseph Booker of 106 W. Moore Street.

Damages were estimated at $1,000 to the Williams vehicle and $600 to the Booker car, officers said.

Powell Tucker Speight of Winterville was charged with a safe movement violation following investigation of a 5:54 p.m. mishap on Arlington Boulevard east from Commerce Street.

Police said the accident involved vehicles operated by Speight and Evelyn Shirley Lenzy of 1509-B Fleming Street. No injuries were reported and damages were estimated at $250 to the Speight vehicle and $150 to the Lenzy car.

A 3:25 p.m. mishap on Airport Road at the N. Greene Street intersection involved vehicles driven by Jessie James Tyson of Rt. 1, Greenville and Linda Moore Eakes of Winterville.

Police, who preferred no charges, set damages at $200 to the Tyson vehicle and $50 to the Eakes car.

Soviet Ships 'Veer' Away

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Four Soviet warships originally sighted in international waters near here one week ago have veered sharply away from the Pacific Coast, the Navy says.

At 4:30 p.m. PDT Thursday, the last time a position report was released, the ships were 450 nautical miles northwest of San Francisco and were heading to the southwest, away from the coast, said Lt. J.I. Ward of the Navy's Treasure Island base.

The guided missile cruiser, two guided missile frigates and a supply ship were being watched by the USS Fife, a Navy destroyer from San Diego.

The ships were first spotted Aug. 28 in the Gulf of Alaska and came as close as 210 miles to the coast. However, the Soviets did not appear to be conducting any training maneuvers and no incidents have been reported, the Navy said.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said the voyage might have been an attempt by the Soviets to assert their right to be in international waters anywhere in the world.

- The location of the U.S. 264 bypass at Wilson;
- Four laning 264 west of Greenville;
- The 264 northwest bypass of Greenville.

Roberson also touched briefly on other projects involving U.S. 17, U.S. 64 and connector roads to Interstate 40.

He stressed that at this time "we don't have the money for highways we had in the past. We are reassessing construction priority on a project-by-project basis, including several in this area."

Roberson also pointed to a "day-by-day policy role of giving greater management support to insure the soundest use of funds available," and noted that field and district engineers will play a larger role, "dealing directly with people throughout the state."

Roberson cited the dual problem of increasing construction costs and less revenue as principal factors affecting the availability of highway funds now and in the foreseeable future.

"We are all well aware of our highway objectives," Roberson said, "and with declining revenues we are in a new era of highway thinking. Our first priority is the maintenance of existing roads. We must protect our multi-billion dollar investment in roads. There's 2,900 miles of primary, secondary and urban roads to maintain."

Two past presidents of the Highway 264 Association were also on the program. Past president Jerry Powell presided over the meeting. Past and first president of the Association, Tom Taft, Jr. introduced a resolution of respect for the late Greenville attorney W.W. Speight which includes a proposal to name an appropriate segment of U.S. 264 in honor of Speight.

Election of new board members and installation of officers is to take place at a meeting to be held in November. At that time, a resolution will be introduced to increase the board's membership to 15 members.

Republicans Target 5 Seats In State Senate

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — In an effort to wrest control of the North Carolina Senate from the Democrats, the state Republican Party has targeted five seats, GOP officials say.

An analysis of personalities, legislative voting records, electoral trends and current attitudes has led the party to rate its chances for election good in eight districts, state GOP chairman David T. Flaherty said.

The districts include those of the five targeted Democrats and the Senate's nine incumbent Republicans, he said.

Flaherty also said there were 10 districts where Republican victories were considered possible for 12 seats. The party needs 17 more senators to control the 50-member body.

The Republicans have not controlled either the Senate or the House since Reconstruction and has not had more than 15 senators in any session in the 20th century. Party analysts used three factors to determine vulnerable areas, Flaherty said: "counties that tend to and do go Republican; conservative counties that vote Republican for the U.S. Senate and president; and Democratic counties that have elected Republicans" at some time.

The GOP will concentrate its efforts where the factors overlap, mostly in the Piedmont and in the west, Flaherty said.

Flaherty rated Republican chances for election as "good" in the following districts:

- 15th: Wake Harnett and Lee counties. One of the three seats now held by Wake Democratic Sens. Joseph E. Johnson, Robert W. Wynne and William A. Creech.

— 21st: Forsyth County. One seat, held by Democrat Marvin Ward.

— 22nd: Guilford County. One of two seats held by Democrats Henry E. Frye and Rachel G. Gray.

— 29th: Henderson, Polk, Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Macon, Swain, Jackson, Transylvania and Haywood counties.

Dear Abby

Question Omitted No Fuss Made

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more story about ministers asking those present at a wedding if anyone objects?

I am a pastor at the First United Methodist Church, and for years it's been my practice to ask the couple beforehand if they want that question omitted or included in the marriage ceremony. About half the couples have said, "Leave it in. If we leave it out, someone is going to think we're chicken."

One day, an hour before the wedding, a woman called to warn me that she would attend and object to the marriage. I immediately phoned the bride, who identified the caller as the bridegroom's former fiancée who had tried everything to scuttle the marriage.

I later learned that the woman came to the church, but since that question was omitted, no fuss was made.

On another occasion, the bridegroom was warned that his ex-wife was planning to come to his wedding and disrupt it. He hired a plainclothes policeman to stand at the door and keep her out.

RALPH LORD ROY, PASTOR,
MERIDEN, CONN.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you remember me or not. I wrote to you a year ago about my weight problem, and you gave me some really good advice. I went to Overeaters Anonymous. So far I've lost 55 pounds, and I'm still losing. But now I have another problem.

Since I've got a pretty good figure, guys have started noticing me, and Abby, I can't handle it. I'm 18 and never dated before because I was such a mess, but with guys paying attention to me all of a sudden, I'm a wreck! I hated being fat and ignored, but at least I wasn't hassled by dudes trying to get me into bed. All the guys I know are after only one thing.

My girlfriends say if I don't put out on the first date, I shouldn't expect a second date. Please help me.

HASSLED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR HASSLED: Your girlfriends are wrong. Hang on to your high standards and say goodbye to the dudes who try to rush you into bed. There's something worse than being ignored — it's too much attention from guys who are after only one thing.

DEAR ABBY: About a month ago we had a flash flood, and I lost nearly all the treasures I had saved for 45 years. Albums filled with pictures and snapshots, letters, clippings — none of which can be replaced. I had them stored in plastic containers, and when I opened them, all I found was mud and water!

It seems that a part of my life is gone, and I am heartsick over it. I am 60 and have had a very happy life. Our children are married and gone, and there are just the two of us.

I've tried to keep busy and not dwell on my loss, but it is on my mind constantly. I wish I could forget this terrible nightmare.

Somehow I feel that you can help me. Abby, have you ever lost any of your treasures? And if you have, how did you get over it?

DEPRESSED

DEAR DEPRESSED: Yes, dear. I lost my beautiful mother in 1945. (She was only 57.) And a few years later, I lost a wonderful father. (He was 62.) And not a day passes but I don't thank God for letting me have my parents for as long as I did. I know many who were not nearly as blessed as I, and I think of those who have survived a far greater tragedy — losing their children.

Now, what were you saying about clippings and pictures and other "treasures"?

In Fashion The Gold Rush Is On

Optimism Does Exist

Time and those inexorable facts of life (and reduced taxation) are doing things to the Reagan Administration program.

With less revenue and the specter of large budgetary deficits on the horizon, the President is moving toward more cutbacks in spending, personnel, and programs.

The MX is on "hold" ... which is no great loss as we see it; more bureaucratic agencies must go; the federal work force faces more reductions; and even the big "untouchable" defense budget will be modified.

The latter is a good touch because it adds credibility to the administration's determination to curtail the spending habit. And, there is also this point: our armaments industry is so debilitated we doubt it could fill the shopping list without rush-order (and therefore expensive) plant expansion. Far better to engage in a slower acceleration.

In the field of services and welfare, this is a glimmer of hope; for with economies in other fields one must conclude a bottom line has been drawn.

The fly in the ointment and there is always one — remains high interest rates. Someday they will either pass, or become accepted as are the price on a pack of cigarettes or loaf of bread today as compared with four years ago.

Our optimism is not boundless; but it does exist; which is pretty good in these days and times.

It Isn't A One-Man Show

And then there are those who take a dim view of a president who isn't "working" 12 hours a day, fifty weeks of the year. He simply wasn't doing what he was paid to do unless he stayed up late at night studying position papers, briefings, the intricacies of legislation, and carrying the weight of the nation (and the world) on his shoulders.

The last person we knew who actually tried that route was from Plains, Georgia; and the one-man presidency didn't work for him nor for the country as a whole.

It seems to us the presidency is more than that. It is a branch of the federal system with a presiding officer who has a clear picture of where he wants the country to go and he presides over meetings of loyal, trusted and proven lieutenants who make it all work. They do the research, the implementation — each according to his or her assigned field.

The team argues the best routes, the presiding officer accepts the results or directs another try. In short, the President presides; the details are others' responsibility. We rather appreciate the change.

BY ART BUCHWALD

New Political Heavies

Ronald Reagan now has most of the budget cuts he asked for and the federal government is phasing out of the "people business." But the people are still there so the political heavies from now on are going to be the governors and mayors who are expected to provide the same services the feds have cut out.

As Mayor Plankton of Red Ink, Mass., told me, "The people gave Reagan a mandate to cut out federal spending, but they still want everything the federal government gave them."

"The president was smart to lay the problem off on you mayors," I said. "He looks great and you look like a bunch of bums."

"Amen," the mayor said. "While he's in California playing cowboy, I'm trying to figure out where I'm going to get the money to run this city for the next four years."

"Any ideas?" I asked. "I believe I can make some cutbacks in the fire department. I'm trying to get the city council to pass an ordinance that you can only have a fire on odd days of the week. If you have one on an even day you have to put it out yourself."

"That's a big savings," I said. "What are you going to do about the police department?"

"The same thing I'm doing with the libraries. I'm only going to keep the police stations open Tuesday and Thursday nights, and Saturday mornings."

"And if you want the police at any other time?"

"You get 12 musical bars of the 'Stars and Stripes Forever,' and a taped message asking you to call back."

"It sounds like your cuts are deep. I imagine you'll have to economize with your school system."

"By state law I have to keep the schools open," the mayor said.

"The teachers will be happy to hear that," I said. "What teachers?" the mayor replied. "I don't have money for schools and teachers."

"How can you have a school system without teachers?"

"I'm keeping all the janitors on the payroll," he said.

"I hope you're not going to close the hospitals."

"Of course not. What kind of mayor do you think I am? But we're going to be much tougher on admissions. Just because you're sick and can't afford medical treatment doesn't guarantee you a bed."

"How do you get one?" I asked him.

"You have to take an entrance exam. There are a lot of people trying to get into city hospitals that are not motivated, and it's better to find out before you admit them whether they have what it takes to be a patient."

"How do you plan to handle garbage removal?" By lottery. Each week we'll draw 100 street addresses from a fishbowl, and lucky ones will have their trash picked up the following morning."

"You seem to be doing pretty good with the cutbacks in service. I hope the voters understand that your economics are in their best national interest."

"If they don't, they'll think twice the next time they hand out a mandate."

Today In History

By The Associated Press Today is Friday, Sept. 4, the 247th day of 1981. There are 118 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 4, 1929, the German dirigible "Graf Zeppelin" completed its trip around the world.

On this date: In 1948, Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands abdicated for health reasons.

In 1959, an emergency was declared in Laos, due to alleged aggression by North Vietnam.

In 1974, the United States established diplomatic relations with East Germany, the last major western nation to do so.

All-Savers Not For All

By OWEN ULLMANN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Not all savers will come out ahead buying the All Savers Certificates that banks and savings and loans are vigorously hawking. Mainly the affluent will benefit.

The unique attraction of these one-year savings certificates, which go on sale Oct. 1 for just 15 months, is that they offer tax-free interest — up to $1,000 if you file individually and $2,000 if you are married.

But there's a catch. Because of the tax break, the certificates pay a lower return than other investments available to savers. So, unless you are in a high enough tax bracket, you may be better off investing in a money market fund, buying a Treasury bill or buying a certificate of deposit — and paying taxes on the interest.

The All Savers Certificates will carry an interest rate of 12.6 percent. That compares with an 18 percent annual yield on the latest sale of 52-week Treasury bills, to which the certificate rate is pegged, a 17.3 percent annual yield currently offered by money market funds and from 17 percent to 18.5 percent yield on three- to six-month certificates of deposit.

Based on the initial interest rate the All Savers Certificates will carry, an individual could invest up to $7,936, and a couple twice that amount, before reaching the interest-free ceiling.

There are some other factors to consider as well: —You need $10,000 to buy a Treasury bill and $5,000 to $10,000 for the certificate of deposit, but savings certificate will be available in units as small as $500. The average money market fund requires a minimum $1,000 to open an account, although a few funds have lower minimums.

—If you buy a savings certificate, you tie up your money for a year or pay a penalty for early withdrawal. Buying a Treasury bill also ties up your money, but money-market funds can be withdrawn daily and most funds offer check-writing privileges.

—The interest rate is fixed for the life of the savings certificate, Treasury bill and certificate of deposit, but it changes daily for money market funds. Thus, the savings certificate would have an advantage over money market funds if interest rates start coming down, but money market funds would have the edge if rates climb even higher.

—Savings certificates are insured by the federal government. Money market funds are not insured but are considered low-risk investments.

The savings and loan industry created the name for the new savings certificates, telling Congress that it would encourage Americans to save, an argument disputed by most economists.

For the certificate's tax break to pay off in most cases, you need an income that puts you above the 30 percent tax bracket.

If you file a single return, your income after deductions — the taxable income — must exceed $18,200 to put you above the 30 percent bracket for 1981. Your taxable income would have to top $23,500 to put you above that bracket in 1982.

If you file jointly, you would not reach the 30 percent bracket until you had taxable income of at least $24,600 for 1981 and $29,900 for 1982.

Your tax bracket is important in figuring if you come out ahead because the interest rate on the savings certificates will be set at 70 percent of the latest annual yield on one-year Treasury bills, which are set once a month at public auctions.

Savers will have to estimate their annual income and deductions to determine their tax bracket and decide if they would do better with the tax-free savings certificate, the Treasury bill or a money market fund.

Consider these examples: —If you file jointly and are in the 24 percent tax bracket for 1981, which means your taxable income is between $16,000 and $20,200, you would receive an after-tax return of 13.1 percent on a money market fund and 13.7 percent on a 52-week Treasury bill, based on current rates. In both cases, the returns are better than the 12.6 percent offered on the savings certificate.

—If you file jointly and are in the 43 percent bracket for 1981, which means your taxable income is between $35,200 and $45,800, your after-tax return would be 9.9 percent on a money market fund and 10.3 percent on a 52-week Treasury bill. The savings certificate is a better deal in these cases, and the advantage grows as your tax bracket rises.

Strength For Today

WAR AND PEACE Most of us envy good fortune and prosperity. We look at the person who seems never beset by personal problems, whose material needs are generously supplied from a large income, whose road through life seems smooth and uncomplicated, and think, "If only I could be in his shoes!"

Yet the truth is that people who have no trials and troubles are never important people. The leaders, the strong and great men of any group or nation, are those who have had to struggle, and who in the struggle have proved their worth.

Yes, we would all like a serene, peaceful existence. But the only kind of peace worth having is through conflict. This kind of peace brings confidence and security.

So we should not deplore the hard knocks we suffer. Like the ache and exhaustion of the beginning athlete, they are the only way to true well-being. — Elisha Douglass

Bad Budget News

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH — The trouble with budgets is that you have to figure pretty closely how much money you're going to have before you decide how to spend it.

When North Carolina lawmakers return to Raleigh next month for a rump session of the 1981 General Assembly, they will be greeted by a pair of monstrous headaches.

The slashing of the federal budget is bad enough. At first it looked like a 10 percent reduction. As details emerge, it looks more like 25 percent. And heavy politicking is guaranteed as various special interest groups try to get their hands on the money to be divided up in the new block grants program for state and local activities, especially in human services projects.

Worse yet, North Carolina revenue projections at this time look pretty shaky. Beneath all the percentages and confusing figures there is one glaringly simple conclusion: the state's income is not what the budget makers thought it would be.

Bad News The 1980-81 fiscal year has ended for the state's Department of Revenue, and the bad news is final: state income was up from the previous year, but not nearly so much as projections had said. The General Fund collections totaled $2.8 billion. That is 7.83 percent higher than the previous fiscal year, but not nearly on pace for a 12 percent increase which had been hoped for.

That's no real problem at this time. The slack can be taken up by adjusting surpluses and reserves. The problem is ahead.

BILL NOBLITT

Lawmakers and Gov. Jim Hunt have pledged October as the time to give the state's 180,000-plus employees a raise. No firm figures have been nailed down, but generally the percentage most mentioned is five percent. Each percentage point costs $24 million by the time fringes and other related costs are figured in. A five percent raise, then, would take $120 million the first year, and the same amount to continue it in the second year of the budget biennium.

Having felt the pressure of raising the state's gasoline tax earlier this year, legislators are obviously not inclined to raise any more taxes this year.

But will there be enough money in hand to provide the promised salary increases? Gov. Hunt's budget proposal says the General Fund will collect $3.3 billion this fiscal year, and $3.7 billion next fiscal year. Those figures represent annual growth of 12 percent and 12.8 percent respectively.

Boom Times To accomplish this growth, the budget analysts are calling for retail sales to rebound strongly; housing to recover from its slump as interest rates fall from the astounding highs of recent months; and for automobile sales to recover from their recession.

Does a fiscal year ending with state income growth of only 7.83 percent, and the daily newspaper headlines which recount continued nationwide economic problems signal the kind of strong and continued economic recovery which underlies the state budget for the coming two years?

The experts differ sharply. Gov. Hunt stands by his figures, and is satisfied that recovery is near and the 12 percent growth will allow plenty of money to give salary hikes.

Legislative budget analysts are certain that growth will be only 10 percent, if that much, and that 12 percent growth will not be possible because the track record in the first two months of this fiscal year are pointing the wrong way.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum should be limited to 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit longer letters.

To the Editor:

The League of Women Voters exists to inform and empower citizens at all levels of government. We feel that Greenville citizens have not been adequately informed and involved in an important decision: whether the Utilities Commission (GUC) should buy an interest in CP&L.

One part of the question is cost. Ownership is nice. But what we're being offered is only membership in a bureaucracy — North Carolina Municipal Power Agencies #3 — which would own a percentage of several electric plants operating by CP&L. Can we afford to do it?

GUC is building a huge new water plant. Approving the sale of $12 million in bonds to finance it was a serious decision for the voters, and officials told us that would double our water rates.

In the same election voters weighed and approved $10 million worth of bonds to expand the electric transmission system and for the city's part of a new sewage system.

GUC made a great effort to contact civic groups and set up meetings to explain why we needed the new facilities, whose total cost amounted to $22 million.

The present buy-in by NCMPA #3 projects $4.03 billion in bonds between 1982 and 1993. Greenville's 15 percent share would be $625 million. Next year alone $186 million is projected. And besides cost, there are other serious drawbacks to this investment.

Yet this time the citizens of Greenville are not being asked what they want done. The Utilities Commission and the City Council are making this decision for us.

The League of Women Voters calls on GUC and the City Council to withhold approval until the citizens are told more about what they are getting into and are given a chance to accept or reject this major investment.

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — An economic trap snares even the most adroitly planned economic decisions these days, and leaves individuals, industry and the president of the United States at a loss to do anything about it.

It is likely to force on President Reagan the unpleasant alternatives of reducing the size of military buildup he promised or renegeing on his promise to balance the federal budget.

And force on the Federal Reserve the painful alternatives of a tight money policy that could force many bankruptcies, or easing up and thus risking the possibility that inflation will roar out of control.

Carmakers have similar dilemmas, as demonstrated by their actions in announcing price increases on 1982 models, even while watching current sales shrivel because potential buyers feel they cannot afford cars.

Individuals know about nasty choices. Would-be homebuyers must decide whether to buy now, and face payments beyond their means, or delay and possibly watch prices grow faster than their paychecks.

Automobile owners in growing numbers face a difficult choice. To trade in the old car for a new one would mean big monthly installments. To retain the old car might mean budget-wrecking repair bills.

Small-business proprietors are increasingly confronted with the no-win decision of whether to absorb growing costs in order to keep customers, or raise prices and watch customers flee to the nearby chainstore.

They are often faced with a particularly difficult personnel decision too: forced to pay 25 percent interest rates for inventories, they must consider laying off old-time employees that have almost become family.

Big business has to decide whether to borrow at record-high rates for improvements that will make them competitive tomorrow; or save costs, concentrate on looking good now, and let tomorrow take care of itself.

With the federal government less inclined to finance state projects, and with states unable to finance some local services, elected officials are forced to cut workers — a great danger to re-election.

Throughout the economy, the alternatives are nasty, but perhaps nowhere are they more sharply delineated than in the White House.

President Reagan suddenly appears to be faced with a brand-new set of decisions, none of which can be made without some damage. Consider:

—To cut projections for military spending would appear to be contrary to a fundamental position of his administration, which is to rebuild the American military.

—Not to cut would endanger his promises of balancing the budget. To forgo hopes for budget balance would be to abandon a position at least as fundamental as a stronger military.

He is faced with still another potential conflict — with the Federal Reserve Board. The Fed is dug in and determined to fight inflation to the end, whatever that might bring. For Reagan is could be bad news.

Bad news, for example, if the Fed lost control of the reins and let the economy fall into a ditch — into a recession so bad that the Fed would have little choice but to desperately reflate.

Either way — if the economy were restrained so badly that federal revenues shrank below expectations, or if the Fed were forced to reflate — the Reagan program could be seriously disrupted.

Suddenly, there seem to be no clear-cut options in which everyone comes out looking good. All the alternatives are nasty ones. All the decisions seem to have potential for damaging someone or something.

Pineapple Has Little Waste

HONOLULU (AP) — The pineapple is virtually a "no waste" fruit, says Bob Warren, plant superintendent for a canned-goods manufacturer.

"The average pineapple for processing weighs between 3 and 4 pounds," the Del Monte supervisor says. "Two pounds goes" into canned pineapple or full-strength juice. Another pound and a half goes for by-products such as alcohol, sugar, and cattle feed — all extracted from the pineapple shells, ends and trimmings."

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

Yesterday, we observed that the opportunity to make use of "lesson plays" crop up more frequently than one might think. To make our point stronger, here's another hand from the same event — the Swiss Teams — at the recent North American Championships held in Boston.

The only reason we can think of for North's two club rebid was that North-South had an agreement to raise responder's suit only with four-card support. To our way of thinking, the immediate spade raise is vastly superior, and it would have led to the same contract with one fewer round of bidding.

West led the jack of hearts, East won the ace and returned a heart to declarer's king. Declarer drew trumps in three rounds, ending in his hand, and then ran the jack of clubs. Sitting East was Jack Flynn of Medwin, Mass. It was obvious that dummy's club suit was going to be set up with one more lead of the suit. Also, there was only one entry to the clubs — the ace of diamonds.

If West held three clubs to the ace, the club suit could be shut out if the entry were removed immediately. So Flynn shifted to the king of diamonds!

Declarer had no counter. If he won the ace of diamonds, dummy's long clubs would wither on the vine, and declarer would lose a heart, two clubs and a diamond, for down one. Yet if declarer refused to win the king of diamonds, he was giving up the setting trick there and then.

In the Bridge Encyclopedia, you will find this play under the "Merrimac Coup." It was so named after a battleship that was scuttled to block the entrance to a harbor. It certainly scuttled declarer's chances for his contract on this deal.

Artemis Kares On Committee

Governor Jim Hunt has named Artemis C. Kares of Greenville to the State Library Committee.

Kares is employed by Joyner Library at East Carolina University and formerly was employed by the North Carolina State Library. She is a member of the N.C. Library Association.

The governor has also reappointed Peggy C. Simmons of Lincolnton to the committee.

Simons is a homemaker and was formerly employed as a pharmacist.

The committee consists of seven members, six appointed by the governor, all who serve terms of six years.

The committee advises the Secretary of Cultural Resources on the operation and services of the State Library and suggests programs to help the development of libraries across the state.

EIGHT-YEAR-OLD GETS WISH — Francie Geringer, an eight-year-old South African boy who suffers from a rare aging disease, has been granted the dream of his lifetime: to meet Pinocchio, the fantasy character he loves. The boy, accompanied by his family, will leave South Africa sometime in November to visit Disneyland in California and Disney World in Florida. Money was raised for the visit after the Associated Press ran a story about his struggle with progeria, a fatal illness that ages the body ten times faster than normal. (AP Laserphoto)

Phillips Saves Energy On Job

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — By cutting its energy usage in 1980 by the equivalent of 1.6 million barrels of oil, Phillips Petroleum says it saved enough energy to fuel 76,000 cars for a year.

The company began a worldwide energy conservation program in 1973 and since then has saved the equivalent of 61.3 million barrels of oil by reducing energy consumption 22 percent. This conserved energy could provide the annual fuel needs for a city with a quarter million population, such as Corpus Christi, Texas.

Applications Being Accepted

The Pitt County Community Schools Advisory Council is in the process of accepting applications for capital outlay funds. The funds will be available to assist communities in the development of recreational facilities on school property. The proposed facilities will be developed to serve the total communities.

Anyone interested in working with a group of citizens in their community to develop a project should contact the Pitt County Community Schools Office (752-6106 or 1717 West 5th St.) no later than Sept. 18, 1981. The staff will answer further questions and assist communities in completing grant applications.

Sadat Cripples His Opposition

By STEVEN K. HINDY
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Opponents of President Anwar Sadat charged today that he was using Moslem-Christian religious strife as the pretext for a sweeping roundup of his political foes.

Police on Thursday arrested politicians, lawyers, journalists and religious figures and banned six publications in what Western diplomats said was the broadest sweep against opposition groups in the 10 years of Sadat's authoritarian rule.

The semi-official newspaper Al Ahrām said 535 people who were "blinded by fanaticism and religious extremism" were arrested.

The government news agency said they "participated or helped indirectly in the religious strife" between Coptic Christians and devout Moslems that has taken 75 lives since July. It said "national unity" was threatened.

Al Ahrām said those arrested included "a minority of political figures who rode the wave of the religious strife, and also 119 known criminals."

Opposition leaders claimed Sadat was trying to use the religious issue to mask a crackdown on his political opponents.

Khaled Mohieddin, leader of the Moscow-oriented Progressive Unionist Party, told reporters the people arrested were being used as a scapegoat for the sectarian problems. He said fanatic Moslems and Christians would have been the ones arrested if the crackdown had really been aimed at the strife.

Mohieddin, Ibrahim Shiukry of the Socialist Labor Party and other opposition parties denied any connection with the religious strife.

"To cover its inadequacy (the government) has chosen the way of being oppressive to those who oppose her and argue with her," said Shiukry in a statement.

He listed housing problems, inflation and the alleged failure of the Camp David peace treaty with Israel as some of the troubles the government can't deal with.

The opposition parties said those arrested included party members, lawyers, journalists, former leaders of the outlawed rightist New Wafd Party, former members of Parliament, religious figures and members of the fundamentalist Moslem Brotherhood.

Western diplomats said two fiery Moslem preachers were among those seized.

The government said it banned two Moslem Brotherhood monthlies, a fundamentalist Moslem magazine, the Socialist Labor Party's weekly and two Coptic publications. The Socialist Labor Party said its vice president and editor-in-chief were among those arrested.

Sadat announced he would make a speech Saturday about the problems between Egypt's Moslems, who make up most of the 42 million population, and the 4.5 million Coptic Christians. Al Ahrām said he would disclose "the amazing details of the plot behind the religious strife."

Sectarian friction erupted into street warfare in a Cairo slum in July, and Western diplomats said 70 people were killed. Five people died

Aug. 2 when a Christian church was bombed during a wedding.

The government has blamed the sectarian violence on agitators from Libya and Syria, where the fundamentalist Moslem Brotherhood has a strong following. Many among Egypt's Christian minority feel threatened by Moslem fundamentalism. The Coptic Church is the native Christian church of Egypt and traces its origins to St. Mark in 45 A.D.

Sadat's government has frequently cracked down on leftist and communist groups since he became president after Gamal Abdel Nasser's death in 1970.

Median Age In N.C. Up

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The aging baby boom generation, higher survival rates and lower fertility have combined to increase North Carolina's median age, the governor's office says.

The 1980 census indicates the median age of the state's population increased from 26.4 years in 1970 to 29.6 years in 1980. That means about one-half of the state's residents were older than 29.6 on April 1, 1980.

Nationally, the median age was 30 in 1980, the governor's office said.

In North Carolina, the number of children under 15 years old decreased by almost six percentage points in proportion to the total population from 1970 to 1980. Young people aged 20 to 34 gained more than four percentage points in its share of the state total during that 10-year period. The baby boom generation is now in the 20-34 age group.

Tar Heel residents aged 65 and over made up more than 10 1/4 percent of the total last year, compared with 8.11 percent in 1970. Each five-year age group, except those under 20 and in the range of 40 to 54, increased by more than 20 percent since 1970.

'Good Day' On Market

FARMVILLE — Thursday was a "good day," according to Farmville Tobacco Market officials, for selling tobacco in the town. Demand was up and volume purchases by buying companies allowed the lowest percentage of deliveries to the Stabilization Corporation so far this season.

Volume of sales was heavy compared to Wednesday and the highest price paid by a buying company was $1.92.

The market sold 717,389 pounds of tobacco Thursday for $1,299,781.47, an average of $181.18 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 14,834,133 pounds for $25,248,760.59, a season average of $170.21. The season average for the same day last year was $146.37. The market will be closed Monday for the Labor Day holiday and will re-open Tuesday morning with two sets of buyers.

Model Made

The second-year architectural drafting students at Pitt Community College have recently been involved in preparing an environmental design and feasibility study for a proposed water ski resort in the Greenville area.

The drafting students have already presented feasibility studies to the owner and are presenting a model of the proposed resort to the owner this week. Included on the large scale model are a lake for amateur slalom water ski course for competition, restaurant and other recreational areas for fun and relaxing for all ages.

Edwin F. Martin, chairman of the Architectural Drafting Department at PCC, said this has been a great learning experience for students by getting them involved in a "real" project.

Student Receives Scholarship

Ellis Harold McGaughey of Snow Hill, a chemical engineering senior at North Carolina State University, has been awarded an Alcoa Foundation Scholarship for the 1981-82 academic year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G.R. McGaughey of 1310 S.E. Second St., Snow Hill. The scholarship recipient received the $1,000 award on the basis of his outstanding academic record in the NCSU School of Engineering. He is also active in Tau Beta Pi, national engineering honor society, and the student chapter of the National Society of Professional Engineers.

The NCSU student is a 1978 graduate of Greene Central High School.

The Alcoa Foundation annually awards scholarships to engineering students enrolled in chemical, metallurgical, electrical or mechanical engineering.

Screening Will Begin

Pitt County Schools will begin their DIAL Screening, (Diagnostic Indicators for the Assessment of Learning) at the kindergarten level September 21 to October 2. W.H. Robinson School will start its screening on September 10.

This program is to identify exceptional children and their needs as early as possible in the school setting. All kindergarten students in Pitt County will be screened at their schools by the personnel at the schools.

The four areas to be screened include gross motor skills (throwing, catching), fine motor skills (cutting, drawing), concepts (identifying numbers, colors), and communications skills (naming objects, telling stories).

Parents will be sent letters describing their child's strengths, weaknesses and a list of possible activities to help enhance the strengths along with overcoming the weaknesses.

For further information on the DIAL Screening program contact Jenny Thigpen at the Pitt County Board of Education, 752-6106, extension 226.

By The Associated Press
Scattered showers and thunderstorms will move eastward across North Carolina today and tonight, the National Weather Service says.

Skies will be partly sunny today and Saturday. Afternoon highs will be in the 80s with 70s in the northern mountains. Lows tonight will be in the 60s to around 70.

Although tropical storm Emily is located well off the coast of the Middle Atlantic states, it is affecting the North Carolina coast.

Heavy surf conditions will prevail along the Outer Banks today, and small craft advisories are in effect from Cape Lookout north for rough seas. Winds will be northeast at 10 to 20 mph.

A stationary ridge of high pressure that extends from New England to the Gulf of Mexico has controlled the weather across North Carolina for the past several days. The southern portion of the high pressure area has weakened.

This will allow a trough of low pressure to move across North Carolina today and tonight. The trough of low pressure extended from Ohio south into Tennessee and Alabama this morning.

On Thursday, scattered thunderstorms were confined mainly to the western half of the state. Some of the heaviest activity was over the northwest Piedmont.

The showers and thunderstorms lingered through Thursday night across the northwest Piedmont and portions of the mountains.

Temperatures warmed into the 80s across most of the state Thursday afternoon. There were some 70s in the higher mountains.

Warmest locations included Jacksonville and Fayetteville with 89 followed by Rocky Mount with 88.

Skies ranged from cloudy in the west to partly cloudy in the east Thursday night. Lows were generally in the mid 60s to low 70s.

Storm Stalls; New Depression Forms

MIAMI (AP) — A strengthened Tropical Storm Emily, with winds whipping up to 70 mph, was expected to stall in an area approximately 150 miles north-northeast of Bermuda for most of today, forecasters say.

The storm's winds had increased from 55 mph as it drifted westward in the North Atlantic Thursday, but Emily remained a threat only to shipping interests.

Forecasters said Emily's steering currents were weak, and predicted waves along the Middle Atlantic and Northeast coasts might increase today.

Gales extended 400 miles to the north and 150 miles to the south of the storm's center, according to forecasters at the National Hurricane Center here.

At 10:30 p.m. EDT Thursday, Emily was centered near latitude 34.5 north and longitude 64.0 west.

The storm is the fifth of the 1981 season. It began forming from a low pressure system in the western Atlantic Saturday and slowly strengthened over the weekend, bringing thunderstorms, rough seas and squalls to Bermuda before moving away from the island.

Meanwhile, forecasters said a tropical depression had formed about 250 miles east of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and was moving toward the northwest at 5 to 10 mph.

Its strongest winds were about 30 mph, with higher gusts in squalls. Forecasters said further strengthening was possible today.

The depression formed within an area of disturbed weather that had been tracked across the Lesser Antilles for the past day.

Deadline For A&T Nursing Program

The state Board of Nursing voted Thursday to decide in three months whether to close the nursing program at North Carolina A&T State University.

A meeting will take place "on or prior to Dec. 18" to compile evidence on whether A&T's program complies with board standards, the board decided.

The A&T program has been conditionally accredited since 1978. Under state law, the board must restore the school to its fully approved list or determine whether it is out of compliance with board standards.

If the nursing program is found not to be in compliance with those standards — which apply to faculty, curriculum, students and facilities — the board must close it.

Although some improvement has been noted at A&T, a problem persists in the passing rate of nursing graduates on licensing exams, according to chairwoman Judith B. Seamons of Morehead City.

Nursing programs at North Carolina Central University in Durham and Winston-Salem State University are also under a mandate by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors to improve the passing rates of their graduates on the licensing exam or face closing.

This year, at least two-thirds of the graduates taking the exam for the first time must pass.

FAMILY REUNION

The family of the late William and Susie Maye Stencil will have its first reunion Sunday at the home of Delores Stencil at 3:30 p.m. To get to the Stencil home, take N.C. 11 and make a left turn at the caution light near Wellcome Middle School. The house is three miles down, fifth on the right.

WOMEN'S DAY

Women's Day will be held at Union Grove FWB Church Sunday at 11 a.m. with the sermon by Eldress Martha Tyson from Mount Calvary Church in Greenville.

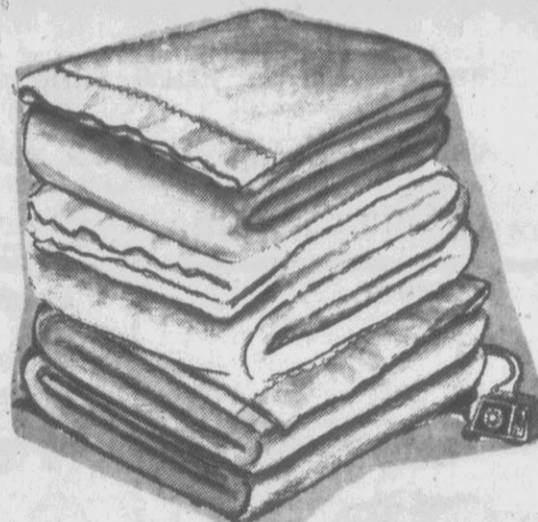

The pastor, Elder H.L. Hill and chairman Annie B. Jefferson invited the public to attend.

Officials Say N.C. Crime Award Program Success

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —
When Gov. Jim Hunt offers a reward for information about a crime, it's usually because the investigation has hit a dead end — and the last-ditch measure seldom succeeds.

But occasionally it does, and that's more than enough for Jack Cozort, Hunt's legal counsel, to label the reward program a success.

"If it helps solve just one case, it's worth it," Cozort said. "And it has helped solve quite a few over the years, though our success rate isn't very impressive."

Well over 90 percent of the rewards Hunt and his predecessors have offered in the program's 24-year history have gone unclaimed. But the remaining few have gone to informants whose aid made the difference as particularly baffling cases were cracked.

The reward program's fortunes have improved somewhat since 1978, when Hunt issued some 2,500 proclamations offering cash for information on murders that had gone unsolved for years.

The move came as the General Assembly raised the ceiling on rewards from $2,500 to $10,000, although most don't exceed $5,000.

During the past six months, more money has been paid out under the program than during any previous half-year stretch, said State Bureau of Investigation assistant director Max Bryan.

But neither Cozort nor Bryan see the recent surge as any indication of things to come.

"Almost by definition, the chances of the thing producing a winner are slim," Cozort said. "For that to happen, lots of crucial factors have to fall into place in the just the right way, usually against overwhelming odds."

A proclamation is issued after a request by the SBI, another law enforcement agency, relatives or friends of the victim or government officials from where the crime occurred.

If the SBI has not made the original request, the governor's office asks the SBI to decide whether a reward offer would benefit the investigation. If the agency's recommendation is positive, the governor issues the proclamation.

Reward money comes from a special contingency fund appropriated by the Legislature to the Council of State, which gives final approval of all rewards.

But they aren't paid immediately after the informant comes forward. First, the criminal must be tried and convicted. Then, authorities must determine that the information was an integral part of the state's case.

"You can see why the rewards don't go out that often, with all the rigmarole you have to go through," Bryan said. "That might be good and it might be bad. But I can tell you that the (program) has helped solve a hell of a lot of crimes we wouldn't have solved without it."

People who respond to reward offers usually fall into one of two groups, Cozort said. In one are innocent bystanders who have witnessed the crime but have remained silent out of fear or a desire to remain uninvolved. The other includes people who learn of the crime through association with the criminal.

In the latter group are many people who have had brushes with the law themselves. Along with greed, they often have any of a number of reasons for needing monetary enticement to come forward.

"The most obvious thing for them to overcome is fear of retaliation," Cozort said. "Some of the informants are in prison themselves and it's well known that the stool-pigeon label can mean all types of problems with fellow inmates."

Additionally, the potential witness may fear charges of aiding and abetting. Or he may realize that by going to the authorities he would expose his own involvement in another crime.

"Many of the people who end up getting rewards aren't exactly Sunday-school teachers," Cozort said. "They aren't the most dependable people in the world, either. Sometimes they'll agree to give us the information, then get scared and back off. It can be terribly frustrating."

In one case, he said, an informant was so frightened that even after helping authorities arrest and convict a criminal he was reluctant to attend a rendezvous to get his reward.

"The SBI scheduled three different meetings and the guy was so spooked that he failed to show for each one," he said. "We finally caught up with him."

Cozort said Hunt has issued between 150 and 175 reward proclamations since he took office in 1977. Fourteen rewards have been paid during the same period, but many were for proclamations issued years before.

The latest reward, for example, was in response to a proclamation issued by former Gov. Jim Holshouser.

Six of the rewards were paid in 1978 and totaled $21,500. One $5,000 reward was paid in 1979, three totaling $15,000 were paid in 1980 and four amounting to $11,000 have gone out so far this year.

The amount is lower this year because the crimes included rape and kidnapping. The rewards usually are higher for murder, the crime for which rewards most commonly are offered, Cozort said.

In 1980, 28 proclamations were issued offering $140,000 in reward money. The same number have been issued so far this year, totaling $115,000.

"I think the investment is pretty small for what we get out of it," Cozort said. According to Bryan, the program sometimes ends up saving the state money. "These lengthy investigations are expensive," Bryan said. "If you can cut them short by getting that key witness to talk, you can save a lot of money in man-hours and other expenses even if you have to pay out $5,000 to make the guy talk."

Bryan said he didn't like rewards to be offered immediately after a crime. He said he liked to wait at least 30 days so investigators could try to solve the case without it.

"In most cases, if they haven't solved it by then they're pretty stumped," he said.

MORE "WOMENS LIB" IN THE BIBLE! THE MAIDEN WHO KILLED A GENERAL....

ALTHOUGH WOMEN, IN BIBLICAL TIMES, WERE TREATED AS CHATTELS OF THEIR HUSBANDS—OWNED OUTRIGHT JUST LIKE SHEEP, CAMELS, AND OTHER PROPERTY—MANY TIMES THEY ACTED INDEPENDENTLY, LIKE DEBORAH, QUEEN ESTHER, AND MOSES' SISTER, MIRIAM. SUCH A ONE, ALSO, WAS JUDITH, HEROINE OF THE BOOK OF JUDITH, ONE OF THE APOCRYPHAL BOOKS OF THE OLD TESTAMENT.

THE ASSYRIAN GENERAL, HOLOFERNES, ATTACKED THE JEWS, BESIEGING THE TOWN OF BETHULIA, WHERE THE PEOPLE DESPAIRED OF EVER BEING SAVED. JUDITH TOOK IT UPON HERSELF TO VISIT HOLOFERNES IN HIS CAMP, WHERE HE WAS IMMEDIATELY SMITTEN WITH HER BEAUTY! AFTER ENTERTAINING HIM FOR THREE DAYS AND NIGHTS IN HIS TENT, JUDITH, AT THE FIRST OPPORTUNITY, CUT OFF THE GENERAL'S HEAD AS HE SLEPT!

AS A RESULT, THE ASSYRIANS FLED—CUSTOMARY IN THOSE DAYS, WHEN AN ARMY LOST ITS LEADER—AND JUDITH WAS PROCLAIMED, FROM THAT DAY ON, THE FINEST EXAMPLE OF A PATRIOT BY THE ENTIRE JEWISH NATION.

Dismay Over Commercialism

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gospel music has become big business lately, both for recording companies and the "star" performers on the road. Some church professionals say the output may be getting too commercial.

A growing number of singers, composers, groups, agents, recording and sheet-music firms are in the sacred music trade.

Fees have escalated, with appearances in some cases reported in the five-figure range and bookings handled as on the entertainment circuit.

Richard D. Dinwiddie, professor of church music at Trinity Evangelical Divinity School in Deerfield, Ill., says the "ministry of music" has become a big-demand item on the modern market.

"Pastors, church musicians and Christian leaders are increasingly concerned about commercialism in the ministry of music," he writes in the evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today.

"Merchandising sacred music, and gospel music in particular, has become big business. ... The problem extends into every area of sacred music."

He cites reports that Christian record companies now gross $100 million a year on records and tapes, with sheet music sales reaching $75 million, and gate receipts of about 500 Christian artists on the road totalling $50 million annually.

A "Jesus concert" can turn a profit exceeding $200,000, he says.

"The Christian 'star system' ... has expanded to include all the trappings and symbols of commercial entertainment success," he says, including "buzz" words of the secular music industry such as these:

"Shows," "acts," "making it to the top," "gigs," "charts," "hits," "number one," "product," "market."

"The structuring of fees often is quite overtly commercial, with flexibility predicated on whatever the traffic will bear," he says, citing increasingly common fees of $400 to $500, some up to $10,000 or $20,000 per concert.

Dinwiddie, a frequent speaker at church music conferences, points out that many sacred music performers, composers and publishers serve with "high motives and integrity." Thousands of dedicated musicians, both the anonymous volunteers in local congregations and the virtuosos in the public limelight, he says, "want nothing more than to offer all they have to Christ for him to use in any way."

But many others "are exploiting the ministry of music for personal advantage," Dinwiddie says. In such cases, "we are dangerously near turning our gospel music heritage to secular control ...

"The real and potential effects of all this is chilling. Not only is the kind of music available being determined in the marketplace as much as the sanctuary, but the very integrity of the ministry of music is at stake ...

"Christian devotion is being manipulated for corporate and personal profit. Many people who started out with high ideals are being subtly deflected from what should be their primary purposes — the glorification of God in their lives and ministries."

"Success, fame, lifestyle, public approval, influence, image and money — the motives of the commercial world — have all encroached more deeply than we want to admit upon the holy ground of the ministry of God's word through music."

The monthly Christian Herald also reports that contemporary gospel music has become a major seller in the nation's record outlets, with 40 publishing firms now concentrated in that field, compared with only five of them 20 years ago.

Some of them are given high marks for their conduct and quality, such as Word Publishers of Waco, Texas, a publisher of music and books, and which this year is marking its 30th anniversary.

It has stood "in the vanguard" of the contemporary surge of gospel music, editorializes Christianity Today, keeping a "cool head in spite of enormous pressures to compromise" and consistently turning out high quality material.

Dinwiddie says Christian musicians should "make sure that people see Jesus in them," and restrain the "hype" that an overly zealous management team may employ to boost their careers, egos and income," keeping in mind the dictum of John the Baptist about Jesus: "He must become greater; I must become less."

Carter Relates His Worst Days

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer
OSAKA, Japan, (AP) — Former President Carter today accused Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini of "betraying the basic elements of the Islamic religion" by sanctioning murder and kidnapping, and claimed the 81-year-old Iranian religious leader is losing control of his own revolution. In a 90-minute television interview here, Carter recalled his own worst foreign policy crisis — the ordeal of 52 American diplomats held hostage in Iran by Khomeini's militant followers for 444 days. He called it "the most painful and tortuous experience of my life." Carter said the failed U.S. rescue mission in which eight Americans died in the Iranian desert "was well rehearsed and I believe it could have been successful. My heart was broken when it was abandoned." The secret mission to rescue the Tehran hostages was aborted after a series of helicopter breakdowns. Eight U.S. servicemen were killed when two aircraft collided during the nighttime withdrawal. Carter described Khomeini as "unpredictable and weak in times of crisis," and said he "betrays his own selections in government, has no loyalty to his subordinates ... and has betrayed the basic elements of the Islamic religion through murders and kidnapping." "I think his influence is on the wane," Carter said. In what was perhaps his most detailed TV interview since leaving office last January, Carter covered a range of topics for questioners for Kansai Television, a station in this city in western Japan that invited Carter for a private visit. Carter described his last year in the White House as "my most difficult political year" because of rising inflation caused in part by soaring of oil prices and "the frustration and embarrassment caused by Iran." The former president said he decided against manufacture of the neutron warhead because "I didn't find a European nation willing to deploy it." Carter's successor, President Reagan, has decided to build the neutron device, which is designed to kill with massive doses of radiation rather than widespread explosive force, and is considered as potentially effective for battlefield use against strong Soviet armored forces in Europe. On arrival in Japan on Thursday, Carter said "I do not disagree" with Reagan's decision in favor of the controversial weapon because Soviet actions in Afghanistan and Southeast Asia had made arms control "a fruitless search."

The Soviets, Carter said, made a "serious mistake" in their invasion of Afghanistan. Stressing that he was not criticizing America's European allies for their uneven support of the U.S. grain embargo against the Soviets and boycott of the Moscow Olympic games, he said, "a nation like the United States, which is one of the two superpowers, sometimes has to act alone." He said that if the Soviets had not become embroiled in Afghanistan, "and had not been condemned by the world, they would be in Poland today." The former President said the Camp David accords between Egypt and Israel, in which he served as intermediary, were "remarkably successful, more than anyone anticipated," and said the United States must continue to play a major role in the search for peace in the Middle East. There will be no "sound and permanent peace" in the Middle East, he added, until the involved parties recognize the right of their neighbors to exist and the Palestinians are given a homeland and a voice in their future. Carter came to Japan for a six-day private visit following a 10-day visit to China.

Pirates Host Western In '81 Opener

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Things have been good for East Carolina on opening day. The Pirates have won their last five openers, and six out of their last seven.

Saturday evening at 7 p.m., they'll be trying to win another as they host Western Carolina to kickoff the 1981 football season.

The Pirates will also be trying to extend another streak

— this one the third best in the nation. That streak is scoring, something the Pirates have done in the last 109 straight games. Only Oklahoma, with 167 games (the NCAA record) and Southern California, with 154, are ahead of the Pirates in this category.

And for Coach Ed Emory, entering his second season, the start isn't too soon.

"We're ready to play. We're tired of hittin' each other, tired of hollerin' at each other, tired of practicin', goin' to meetings. We're ready to play."

And Emory is happy that the Pirates will enter the season in as good a shape as they've been in for a while. Only two Pirates will probably be sidelined, offensive tackle Mindell Tyson and fullback Marvin Cobb.

While Emory says that the Pirates are "the best prepared team I've ever been associated with," he offers no guarantees that it will show through.

"We're got a lot of young players out there, and there is no telling how they'll react under pressure. They could forget their coaching and go back to street fighting."

He pointed out that while the Pirates have an outstanding crop of running backs, and an outstanding wide receiver in Ricky Nichols, all of them are called on to block — the hardest thing for a back and an end. "They have yet to prove themselves in this category, which I think is even more important than running the ball," Emory said.

"People like (tackle Tom) Carnes, (reserve tackle John) Robertson and (reserve guard Terry) Long have never played offense before, so we're going to have to wait and see on them, too."

Emory feels that Western Carolina will offer a tough challenge to the Pirate defense. "They throw the ball well, and have outstanding receivers in (Anthony) James and (Dwayne) Norman. They get you back on your heels with their passing game, then give the ball to (Melvin) Dorsey when the defense gets to thinking pass. They'll run a while, get you up on your toes, then go back to the pass when you think run."

"Really," Emory said, "I'd rather play a team that either passes or runs the first time out. Instead, we have to get our front four looking for both."

Emory is hoping for a dry field to play on, and said he feels it will be an exciting game. "Coach (Bob) Waters said earlier that if we win, it would have to be 45-44, and I'll take that right now. I may not like it on Sunday when we look at the films, but I'll take it now."

While Carlton Nelson appears to have settled into the starting quarterback spot, Emory said he expects to see both Villanova transfer Kevin Ingram and last year's starter in the final four games, Greg Stewart, playing a lot also.

The backfield will also see a number of players. In addition to starters Roy Wiley at fullback and Harold Blue and Earnest Byner at halfbacks, Pirate fans could look for Milt Corsey, another Villanova transfer; Leon Lawson, and freshman speedster Jimmy Walden to play also.

Senior tackle Tootie Robbins, 274, 6-5, is expected to be the leader of the offensive line, while newcomer Jody Schulz at rush end is another to be watched.

Perhaps the most watched for Pirate, however, will be another of the Villanova players, Chuck Bushbeck. The senior kicker, diagnosed earlier as having Hodgkin's Disease, has been cleared to play in the opener.

"I'm extremely happy for Chuck," Emory said. "Naturally, we have our own personal hopes for his complete cure. Tests show that the disease has apparently not spread. He still has a few more tests to undergo, and then he will begin treatment. We hope he will be able to continue to kick throughout the year."

Bushbeck's kicking in scrimmages have already brought fans to their feet, having kicked four kickoffs out of the end zone, booted all of his PAT's, and his only two field goal attempts, from around 35 yards each.

The kicker, along with linebacker Mike Davis and center Tony Hensley have been named game captains for the opener. It was also announced that the seniors on the team would serve as permanent captains for this year's team.

Old Saying Finds New Meaning For East Carolina's Bushbeck

By KIK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Chuck Bushbeck first noticed the lump of soft tissue under his left arm a month and a half ago. Thinking little of it at the time, Bushbeck continued to prepare for the upcoming football season — his last as a collegiate.

The preparation began not long after the end of his junior year at Villanova, a year in which he connected on 21 of 22 PAT's and nine of 13 field goals, and continued throughout much of the spring and summer.

Even the announcement in the spring that Villanova was dropping its football program did not stop Bushbeck from preparing for the 1981 season. He knew he would be playing football in the fall, only with another team and under a different coach.

After being courted by Maryland and N.C. State, among others, Bushbeck and three other Villanova players opted to transfer to East Carolina. The decision made, Bushbeck soon joined nearly 100 freshman, walk-ons and transfers for opening-day practice on Aug. 10.

Much of Bushbeck's time on the field was spent alone as he worked on a kicking form that allowed him to connect on 62 of 67 extra points and 22 of 42 field goals in his three years at Villanova.

He also spent time in the weightroom. It was there, during the second week of practice, that he began to take more notice of the lump of soft tissue under his arm.

"I was lifting and it started hurting," Bushbeck said. "So, when the physicals came up they checked it out, but they didn't know what it was at first."

"They had a feeling about what it was but I still had a lot of questions that they couldn't answer." The answers were not long in coming.

After the physical, a decision was made to operate. The lump was removed on Thursday, Aug. 20. On Friday, the results were made public: Chuck Bushbeck had Hodgkin's Disease, a cancer of the lymph glands.

The stunning diagnosis left Bushbeck's future unsure. His parents wanted him to return to Philadelphia to undergo treatments. Bushbeck, however, not only wanted to remain in Greenville but he also wanted to continue playing football.

Because further tests were needed a decision was postponed. Meanwhile, Bushbeck waited. Then, Tuesday night, Bushbeck could wait no longer. He had to know something.

So, he called Dr. Spencer Raab, who along with his wife Mary, are overseeing Bushbeck's testing. "I called Dr. Raab but he wasn't there," Bushbeck said. "But he rushed down with the X-rays and called me right back."

With the X-rays came good news: the cancer appears to have been caught in its early stages. And there was more good news: come Saturday evening Bushbeck will join his Pirate teammates when they take the field to battle Western Carolina in Ficklen Stadium.

Asked of his reaction to the news, Bushbeck said: "I felt like doing 28 backflips down the dorm steps."

"The way I felt all along was that I didn't just want to pack up my bags and leave," he said. "I'm going to face other problems in life and I just thought the best thing to do was to stay here and keep reassuring my parents."

Bushbeck, meanwhile, has had all the reassurance he could want. Letters and calls have poured in: from friends and relatives, teammates past and present, and people he does not even know.

"You find a lot out about people," Bushbeck said. "People I know but were never that close to have called or written. That makes you feel people respect you and are thinking about you."

Other than his parents, Bushbeck said Coach Ed Emory and his wife have meant the most to him during the last few weeks.

"Even my mother agreed that she couldn't have done more for me than they have," Bushbeck said. "They've talked to me, taken me to the hospital instead of letting me go alone or with a stranger. Coach Emory's wife was there when I was in surgery."

Then there are his teammates. A few were unsure of what to say, afraid of saying the wrong thing they said nothing. "A few didn't know what to say, but a lot have been real good. They talked to me and given me words of encouragement."

Asked what having Bushbeck on the team might mean to the team, quarterback Carlton Nelson said: "He's been a big boost for the team. He's an inspiration. He may be the biggest key for our season."

The letters, the calls, the talks — all have helped Bushbeck face a reality that has left more than one person despondent and depressed. Even for Bushbeck, however,

Tests Looking Good For Chuck

One test still remains for East Carolina kicker Chuck Bushbeck, but it appears certain the cancer that has invaded his body is in its early stages. How early, however, doctors are unwilling to say at present.

"I think it's in its very early stages," said Dr. Mary Raab, who is assisting her husband, Spencer, in treating Bushbeck. "I think he stands a very, very excellent chance — a 90-95 percent chance — of a five-year survival and even being cured."

Bushbeck has been through a rigorous series of tests since doctors removed the lump under his arm nearly two weeks ago.

Among the tests have been a lymphangiogram, a test, Raab said, in which doctors shoot dye throughout the lymphatic system to determine if any other areas of the body have been affected by the cancer.

He has also had a bone biopsy performed, the bone being removed from his hip area. Why the hip bone and not closer to the area affected?

"We already know that area of the body is involved," Raab said. "We want to know if there are other areas."

There are four stages in Hodgkin's Disease, stage one being the earliest. Bushbeck said he was told he was at stage 2A. "The stage helps determine the treatment," Raab said.

Once the last test — the liver test — is completed, Bushbeck will have to undergo radiation treatment. Raab said usually the treatment lasts from five to six weeks and runs from 10 to 15 minutes depending on how large an area must be radiated.

Once the radiation treatment is completed a number of the tests will be repeated and compared to the previous tests to determine whether any of the cancer remains and what, if any, additional steps are necessary.

Gant Nips Cale For Pole Slot

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Harry Gant of Taylorsville, N.C., sped around Darlington Raceway at 152.693 mph to edge out Cale Yarborough for the pole position in Thursday's qualifying for the Southern 500.

Gant, who has been a bridesmaid five times this season on NASCAR's Winston Cup Grand National trail, will be driving a car owned by actor Burt Reynolds and movie-maker Hal Needham when he takes his pole position in Monday's race. Yarborough, of Sardis, S.C., will line up on the outside position on the first row after qualifying with a speed of 152.135 mph.

Starting the second row will be Neil Bonnett of Hueytown, Ala., and Dave Marcis of Skylands, N.C. Ron Bouchard of Fitchburg, Mass., was Thursday's fifth-fastest qualifier while defending Southern 500 champion Terry Labonte of Corpus Christi, Texas, will start in the sixth slot.

Ricky Rudd of Chesapeake, Va., was seventh fastest while NASCAR's all-time leading money winner, Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., was eighth.

Veteran driver Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., will start ninth and Dale Earnhardt of Kannapolis, N.C., will complete the fifth row.

Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn., who has won eight races this season and is the leading qualifier with six pole positions, could do no better than 11th Thursday over the tricky Darlington layout.

This season's leading rookie, Morgan Shephard of Conover, N.C., rounded out the first day's qualifiers.

Several leading competitors — including point leader Bobby Allison, Indianapolis veteran Johnny Rutherford, Kyle Petty and Benny Parsons — all posted speeds to slow in the first day of qualifying.

Here are the drivers in the top 13 positions after Thursday's qualifying for the Southern 500:

1. Harry Gant, 152.693 mph.
2. Cale Yarborough, 152.135 mph.
3. Neil Bonnett, 152.071 mph.

The football season gets into full swing this weekend, at least on the local front, with all of the high school teams in action, along with East Carolina's opening contest of the year.

And with all that, the Daily Reflector's Panel of Experts make their reappearance on the scene, trying to let you know just how those games are going to come out.

Of the five regulars, four will be back for another try this year: this writer, sports assistant Rick Scoppe, news reporter Tom Baines and sales representative Joe Jenkins. Rejoining the panel as our distaff member is Vicki Spivey of the composing room. Vicki served earlier, and is coming back to the battle after a couple of years off.

Last year, the final results found a tie for first between Scoppe and Baines as the battle went to the wire at a dead heat. This writer finished next, followed by former panelist Etha Allen, with Jenkins bringing up the rear.

The question this year is: can Joe get off the bottom?

We'll see as the weeks go by.

This week, our first guest is another former part-time sports staffer, Sonny McLawhorn, now an attorney practicing in Greenville. We were glad to give him the opportunity to test the rest of the panel as a former writer.

First, however, we'll take a look at the high school scene. Last week, as seven of the nine area teams opened, we finished with a 4-2 record, missing on Farmville Central and Williamston. Maybe we can do better this time out.

Ayden-Grifton, idle last week, opens against Roanoke, a victor over North Pitt in a game closer than anticipated. The Chargers have to overcome the fact that the Redskins have already played one game, and it could turn into a decisive factor. However, we're going to pick Ayden-Grifton in this one.

Clinton visits Farmville Central in what has become a classic rivalry between the two non-conference schools. The Jaguars got off to a good start in beating West Craven last weekend, but Clinton stomped Lakewood at the same time. We're not anti-Jaguar, but we still must go against them this week.

North Pitt, after playing surprisingly well against Roanoke, travels to North Edgecombe this weekend. The Panthers will be going up against a team that lost to Southwest Edgecombe, 55-0, and although the rebound possibility is there, we look for North Pitt to take this one.

Jamesville, a loser to Princeton, faces Columbia, defeated by Camden, in a Tobacco Belt game. This one is really a toss-up, but we're going to go with Jamesville.

Southwest Edgecombe, after its 55-0 win over North Edgecombe, will be out to hand Conley its 15th straight loss. The Vikings, smarting over a 33-3 loss to Washington, will be trying to turn the tables. But not this time, Southwest should win here.

Closing out the Friday action, Gaston visits Williamston. Gaston will be opening the season, while Williamston has a game behind it. That will be the difference, as we'll stick with the Tigers to win.

On Saturday, Beddingfield will host Greene Central. The Rams got away to a good start last week while the Bruins were idle. In this case, however, we don't feel the Rams have enough, and we'll go with Beddingfield to take this one.

Now, turning to the panel, we find Rose traveling to Jacksonville for its first game. The Cardinals rolled over White Oak last week, and we have to wonder if they are not again one of the better teams in the state. This weekend will tell. The panel likes Jacksonville by a 5-1 margin.

East Carolina opens the year against Western Carolina. The Pirates are trying to return to their winning ways of the 70's, and are hopeful of turning things around this year. Coach Ed Emory feels this is a big one, and the panel likes the Pirates' chances, with a 6-0 ballot.

Our other consensus picks: Clemson over Wofford; South Carolina over Wake Forest; Mississippi over Tulane; Temple over William & Mary; Alabama over LSU; State over Richmond; Miami (Fla.) over Florida; Syracuse over Rutgers; Texas A&M and California, a toss-up; and Auburn over Texas Christian.

Boston, Seattle Battle 19 Frames Before 7-7 Tie Game Suspended

By LARRY SIDONS
AP Sports Writer

Boston, which brought you Paul Revere's midnight ride, has come up with some more late-night action, this time featuring its beloved Red Sox and the Seattle Mariners.

For 5 hours, 39 minutes, the two teams battled, only to have the game suspended in the 19th inning after 19 innings with the score tied 7-7.

The contest, the longest in the American League this year and the longest ever played in 69-year-old Fenway Park, was to be resumed before tonight's regularly scheduled game.

"We should have bunted. We should have hit-and-run. Everything we tried didn't work," Seattle Manager Rene Lachemann said after the marathon was interrupted by the AL curfew barring an inning from starting after 1 a.m.

"That's better than losing," Boston Manager Ralph Houk said when asked if he minded such a long night ending without a winner. Then, showing that even a veteran manager can mistake one day for another when a game runs over, he added: "We've got a shot at them tomorrow."

Elsewhere in the American League Thursday, Milwaukee defeated Minnesota 4-3, Oakland bombed Baltimore 10-0, New York edged Kansas City 3-2, Detroit defeated Texas 8-5 and Chicago beat Toronto 4-3. California at Cleveland was rained out.

The Mariners had runners in scoring position in five of the 10 extra innings and the Red Sox reached second base twice in overtime, but neither team could score.

"In a long ball game, I don't know if the players know it, but the bats get heavy and it's hard to win after the 13th inning," Houk said. "What you need at that time, if you have it, is a fastball pitcher."

Each team had 21 hits. The Mariners used seven pitchers and a total of 26 players, while the Red Sox used 20 players including six pitchers. Ironically the game, played in a park known for easy home runs, lacked a single homer.

The Red Sox scored three times in the ninth to tie the game, and the pitchers then took over.

The Red Sox had a chance to send their bleary-eyed fans home happy when Jim Rice singled with one out in the 19th inning and Reid Nichols, attempting to sacrifice, beat out a bunt for a single. But Dave Stapleton popped up for the second out and Joe Rudi fled to center to end the inning.

The marathon eclipsed the old Fenway Park longevity record of 18 innings set Sept. 5, 1927, when the Red Sox defeated the New York Yankees 12-11.

The longest previous game in the AL this season was May 13 at Chicago, when the White Sox and the Cleveland Indians played 16 innings over 5 hours, 31 minutes, with Cleveland winning 4-3.

Brewers 4, Twins 3

Ted Simmons, returning to his familiar spot as a cleanup hitter, slammed a two-run homer in the fifth inning to carry Milwaukee past Minnesota. The veteran catcher had been hitting in the sixth spot, but admitted he liked the No. 4 position better. "That's where I've hit all my life," said Simmons, whose 12th homer of the year off Brad Havens erased a 3-2 Twins' lead. "Win, lose or draw, that's where I'm the most comfortable."

Brewers' starter Pete Vuckovich survived a shaky first inning and raised his record to 11-3.

A's 10, Orioles 0

Oakland, after a clubhouse meeting, unloaded a long-ball attack to beat Baltimore. Tony Armas, the league's home-run leader, hit two to give him 20 for the season and teammates Wayne Gross and Jim Spencer added one apiece. The A's pounded out 14 hits, including four doubles, and ended a streak in which they had lost nine of 13 games.

"We haven't been playing well lately," Manager Billy Martin said of his pregame meeting with the team, which won the first-half title in the AL West. "I told them if they were going to lose, to do it with class. You can't turn it on just for the playoffs."

Royals 3, Yankees 2

Kansas City gave new Manager Dick Howser a victory over his old team in their first meeting since he was named to succeed Jim Frey Monday, but Howser said there was no special joy in the triumph.

"They're just another club we've got to beat," Howser said. "I wasn't feeling vindictive at all. You can't get up for one team and down for another."

Mike Jones and Dan Quisenberry combined on a seven-hitter as the Royals won for the third time in four games under Howser, who resigned under pressure from New York owner George Steinbrenner after the Yankees were beaten by the Royals in the AL championship series last season.

Tigers 8, Rangers 5

Kirk Gibson's long home run and very efficient relief work by Kevin Saucier helped Detroit solidify its hold on first place in the AL East. Gibson's two-run shot into a 20-mph wind sailed deep into the center-field bleachers of Arlington Stadium.

"I knew I had it good but I didn't know it was out," Gibson said. "When I try to swing hard, I don't hit anything. But if I just take a smooth swing, the ball seems to jump off the bat."

White Sox 4, Blue Jays 3

Chicago snapped a six-game losing streak, its longest in two years, when Greg Luzinski stroked a two-out double to score Tony Bernazard in the bottom of the ninth.

"When you have a losing streak and you get a monkey on your back there is nothing more important than shaking it," said Manager Tony LaRussa. "Now we just have to keep it up."

Last week's results: Coats 40, Aurora 0; Bath 34, Rosewood 0; Belhaven 34, Ravenscroft 0; Chocowinity 14, Eastern School for the Deaf 6; Camden 6, Columbia 0; Creswell 14, Mattamuskeet 0 (non-conference meeting); Princeton 36, Jamesville 14. there have been some low points since the diagnosis.

"I seemed to accept it pretty well," he said. "I was kind of getting down a little last week after being stuck with so many needles. But it didn't get me too down because I'm basically a happy-go-lucky person."

Always, also, he kept in the back of his mind that he wanted to continue to play football. He had worked too hard and too long to quit now.

"The best part about it was that you know you want to play football and nobody told me I couldn't," he said. Yet, he now looks at football a bit differently than in the past.

"It's not that I think of football less, but I treasure my life more. I looked forward to playing football all summer, but now I look at life a little different."

"I treasure the little things more now. You know when I used to hear the old saying when you've got your health you've got everything, I'd say, yeah, sure. But now I realize how true that is."

Thursday night's match went as smoothly as McEnroe's matches ever do. Both players had brief disagreements over line calls, no battles royale.

And the crowd was, as usual, divided in its sentiments toward the hometown hero. Several times as he prepared to serve in the final set, individuals hooted. Once someone laughed raucously as he served. The serve was long and McEnroe hollered, "Shut up in the middle of my serve!"

The crowd cheered its support loudly.

McEnroe Wins, But Fumes About Fines, Microphone At Courtside

NEW YORK (AP) — It's like an ever-shifting, ever-widening battle front.

Thursday, the powers of tennis came down on John McEnroe with a pair of fines for his conduct at Wimbledon, where he stormed about the court, broke a racket and berated an official, calling him an "incompetent fool."

McEnroe and most of the tennis establishment had expected some fines, but what was controversial Thursday was the timing of the announcement, coming as it did during the U.S. Open. Officials of the Men's Professional Tennis Council had first indicated they would delay announcing their finding until after McEnroe's run for a third consecutive Open title.

"I don't think it was fair," the 22-year-old McEnroe said after beating Tom Gullikson

6-3, 6-1, 6-3 Thursday night. "Of course I wouldn't think it was fair. It's just a bad thing to have something like that happen in the middle of a tournament."

But he said he was not surprised that the Council had made its announcement when it did.

"I don't think I really need this," McEnroe said in response to a questions about whether such aggravations make him play better. "I don't need more reasons to win a tournament. I think I've proved I can play under adverse conditions — at Wimbledon this year. It's not in spite of people. I don't go around trying to spite people."

"This (winning) is something I've dreamed about since I was a kid."

McEnroe broadened his enemies list to include CBS, which has offended him by having a microphone on court. The network has a soundman seated on court with a microphone for all matches.

Frank Chirkinian, executive producer for CBS's Open coverage, said the practice would not be changed. And true to his word, McEnroe refused an interview with a CBS reporter after his match and declined an invitation to the CBS booth for its late-night update.

The Pro Council, the ruling body of men's tennis, announced early in the day that it had fined McEnroe $2,250 for three minor violations of its code of conduct during the Wimbledon fortnight. McEnroe had already paid for two of them. "There are some fines I've done I deserved," he said. The Council was insisting he pay for a third.

Then the Council said it was fining him another $5,000 for what it called "aggravated behavior." Council administrator Marshall Happer did not say exactly what that entailed but that the second stiffer fine was for McEnroe's conduct in general.

According to the Council's rules, McEnroe may now appeal the second fine.

He said after his match that he had not decided whether to do so and that he did not want to talk about it.

In a less turbulent arena, McEnroe easily dispatched Gullikson, who threatened only once, breaking serve for 2-5 in the final set.

On this day of reckoning for his Wimbledon sins, it was mildly ironic that he should be playing Gullikson. Gullikson was his first-round opponent at Wimbledon when the trouble started.

Thursday night's match went as smoothly as McEnroe's matches ever do. Both players had brief disagreements over line calls, no battles royale.

And the crowd was, as usual, divided in its sentiments toward the hometown hero. Several times as he prepared to serve in the final set, individuals hooted. Once someone laughed raucously as he served. The serve was long and McEnroe hollered, "Shut up in the middle of my serve!"

Chowan Nips Baby Bucs

MURFREESBORO — Chowan Junior College opened its 1981 season last night with a 12-7 victory over the East Carolina junior varsity.

East Carolina's lone touchdown was scored by sophomore tight end Lloyd Black on a 17-yard pass reception from freshman quarterback Billy Whittenton, with 9:40 left in the final quarter. Freshman Billy Parker added the PAT.

Chowan gained the lead in the third period, scoring on a Keith Myers field goal of 25 yards. Later in the period, defensive tackle David Wood dropped a Pirate running back for a safety and a 5-0 lead.

After ECU's score, tailback Isiah Hill broke free for a 43-yard touchdown run with 2:02 remaining. Myers added the PAT for the 12-7 margin.

The two teams meet again at Greenville on September 24 at 7:30 p.m.

Freshman punter Greg Cooper averaged 40.1 yards on seven punts in the game for the Baby Bucs.

Foster, Cruz Aid Wins With Home Runs

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

For some hitters, baseball's strike zone is nothing more than a rule book formality, a target area for the pitchers that is of little concern to the batters.

Put the ball over the plate between a hitter's armpits and knees and if the batter doesn't swing, the pitcher gets a strike. Put it elsewhere and some hitters like George Foster and Jose Cruz are liable to put it in orbit.

Cincinnati's Foster and Houston's Cruz both crashed home runs on pitches that missed the strike zone Thursday night, helping their teams to important victories.

Foster's ninth career grand slam sealed the Reds' 9-3 rout of Philadelphia while Cruz two-run shot was the difference in the Astros' 2-1 decision over Montreal.

But if the pitcher gets his targets confused, and mistakes a slugger's helmet for home plate, well, that can cause problems.

Two pitches who missed the strike zone by a wide margin almost led to a brawl in San Francisco's 12-0 rout of the Chicago Cubs.

The Giants' Jack Clark, who had cracked the 100th home run of his career a inning earlier, was sent sprawling by Cubs' reliever Bill Caudill and started for the mound. Both benches emptied but no punches were thrown.

In other games, Pittsburgh downed San Diego 7-3 for the first National League victory of Luis Tiant's long career and

St. Louis rallied for three runs with two out in the ninth inning to defeat Los Angeles 5-3.

The New York Mets and Atlanta Braves had the day off.

Foster, struggling under the burden of an 0-for-14 slump until he tagged a three-run homer Wednesday, smashed his slam in the eighth inning, wrapping up the Reds' victory over Philadelphia.

"They've been pitching me up and away lately," Foster said. "They haven't been giving me anything in the strike zone."

So, instead of waiting around for something better, Foster went out and got what was offered and cleared the bases with his 18th homer of the season.

Earlier, Johnny Bench, starting his first game since breaking his left ankle May 20, also homered for the Reds. Bench singled home another run and Foster had five RBIs.

Cruz, like Foster, did not stand on strike zone formalities. His 12th homer of the season in the sixth inning was enough to carry the streaking Astros to their eighth straight victory, this one over Montreal.

"I think the pitch I swung at was over my head," the Houston outfielder said. "I know for sure it was a fast ball. I just got up there swinging."

Cruz' homer overcame a solo shot by Montreal's Larry Parrish as Vern Ruhle and Dave Smith combined for a six-hitter. One of the hits was a two-out triple in the ninth by Warren Cromartie. But Smith retired pinch hitter Terry Francona, who was swinging for Parrish, to save the victory.

Giants 12, Cubs 0

Doyle Alexander pitched a two-hitter, retiring the last 20 batters in order, for his first complete game of the season and the Giants broke the game open, scoring six runs in the fourth inning.

Clark hit his homer in the fifth and was sent sprawling in the sixth by Caudill. He started for the mound but no punches were thrown.

"I got hit last year and I was out of action," he said. "Now we have a chance to go all the way and I don't want it to happen again."

For his part, Caudill pleaded innocence.

"I wasn't throwing at him," he said. "He stands on top of the plate, so you have to pitch him close. I did the same thing in Chicago."

Pirates 7, Padres 3

After 225 career American league victories, Tiant won his first National League game, working five innings against San Diego. The 40-year-old pitcher was recalled from Portland of the Pacific Coast League last month and had dropped his first three de-isions with Pittsburgh.

"The way we played lately, not scoring any runs, I felt like I was never going to win one," he said.

Tiant shrugs off starting in a new league at age 40.

"If I make good pitches, I'll get guys out," he said. "The National League hitters have the same problem I have. I haven't seen most of them and most of them haven't seen me."

Bill Madlock ripped two doubles, driving in a pair of runs to lead a 15-hit Pirate attack.

Cardinals 5, Dodgers 3

Los Angeles was one out away from a third straight victory when shortstop Bill Russell threw away a double play ball, allowing St. Louis' tying run to score. Sixto Lezcano then followed with a two-run homer, lifting the Cardinals to their victory.

Steve Garvey ripped a three-run homer for the Dodgers and Ken Oberkfell had a two-run shot for St. Louis.

Bruce Sutter earned his 19th save for the Cardinals.

golfers clumped together at 67.

"I had been putting so well I had the feeling I could make every putt I was standing over," Peete said.

Peete opened with two birdies and wound up making birdies on seven of the first 14 holes. The 11 holes he did not birdie he parred.

Tom Kite, the 1978 B.C. Open champion, who bypassed a chance to defend his European Open title this week, was in the group of golfers at 67. So was Dana Quigley, who was impressed by Peete's performance.

Peete likes the way he was playing on the tour before taking last week off from golf, and he had not swung a club seriously during his break until he arrived here this week.

Peete, who has won only one tournament championship in his six-year career, mastered the rain-soaked course, shooting a 7-under-par 64. His nearest challengers were 10

State, Wake, Clemson Opening 1981 Season

By TOM FOREMAN JR.
Associated Press Writer

The Atlantic Coast Conference opens its 29th season of college football this weekend with a sneak preview provided by schools trying to find the ingredients for success which they lacked last year.

In two night games involving Big Four schools, North Carolina State meets Richmond in Raleigh. Meanwhile, Wake Forest, hoping life will be tolerable without Jay Venuto and former head coach John Mackovic, faces South Carolina, searching for an offense without Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers.

The third contest features Clemson and Wofford in the Tigers' home opener in Death Valley Saturday afternoon.

At Carter-Finley Stadium, Wolfpack head coach Monte Kiffin has shunned the Vee offense for the I-formation. He will have an experienced quarterback to operate in junior Tol Avery. However, his starting running backs have never competed in a college battle. Thus, Saturday night is a major test for Kiffin, tailback Larmount Lawson and fullback John Peterson.

Across the field, Richmond possesses a running back they feel is worthy of the award Rogers captured in 1980. Barry Redden is the candidate, and he rushed for 1,151 yards and 10 touchdowns in the midst of a dismal 5-6 campaign.

N.C. State has won eight of the ten matches in the series. The last Spider triumph came in 1970 — in the first game of that season — by a 21-6 score.

Last season's Deacon-Gamecock matchup in Columbia was full of fireworks, as the 39-38 score indicates. Although South Carolina won it in the closing minutes last year, things may be different this year.

Both teams went into fall practice without experience at the quarterback position. Neither new head coach Al Groh of Wake Forest nor veteran coach Jim Carlen of South Carolina have named starters prior to game time, and it's likely the starters won't be known until the referees mark the ball ready for play.

Death Valley has always been imposing for visitors, and in trying to top last season's 6-5 mark, Clemson is hoping the home field edge will get the Tigers off on the right foot against Wofford. The Terriers are a strong team within the NAIA, but they are not in Clemson's class.

However, the Tigers have had less than sparkling performances against smaller rivals the last two seasons. In 1980, Clemson struggled to defeat Western Carolina 17-10. The year before, Furman was the victim in a lackluster 21-0 contest.

Southeastern Joins Call For New NCAA Format

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southeastern Conference has shoved aside the television issue and gone to the heart of the College Football Association's squabble with the National Collegiate Athletic Association — a demand for reorganization.

The SEC, ending a two-day meeting Thursday, took no formal vote on a proposed CFA television agreement with NBC that rivals a contract worked out by the NCAA with ABC and CBS.

Instead, the conference released three statements unanimously agreed upon by the 10 SEC school presidents saying:

—That member institutions, not the NCAA, own television property rights.

—That the CFA should be commended for developing for its membership "an attractive alternative" for college football television "which has served to help identify central issues facing intercollegiate athletics."

—That the NCAA's top division should be restructured.

The third statement said, "It is absolutely imperative that the organizational structure of the NCAA be changed immediately to accommodate the compelling concerns and interests of the member institutions operating major athletic programs."

The CFA, in an Aug. 21 meeting in Atlanta, tentatively approved a four-year contract with NBC worth $180 million. It covers the same period, it beginning with the 1982 season, as the $263 million deal the NCAA worked out with the other two networks.

CFA members have until Sept. 10 to cast their final vote on the matter.

Dr. Otis Singletary, president of the University of Kentucky and the SEC, said his league would have a conference telephone call Wednesday to discuss further the CFA-NBC contract.

McWhorter said there was no reason for the SEC to vote at this meeting.

"I think there will be some things that will happen between now and the 10th to make people change their minds," McWhorter said. "Some events will take place that will put a different light on covers the same period, it"

Worked All Summer For The New School Term

Pitt County Schools were ready for their students last Monday, says maintenance superintendent Carl Heath.

"We have worked all summer finishing projects, refinishing desks, floors, painting, doing minor repairs on air conditioning and heating plants," he stated. "We feel like we are more ready for the children this year than we have ever been."

According to Heath, over $18,000 of paint was used this summer in the county schools. In addition, over 400 gallons of wax went onto the floors, and 200 gallons of Terrazo seal.

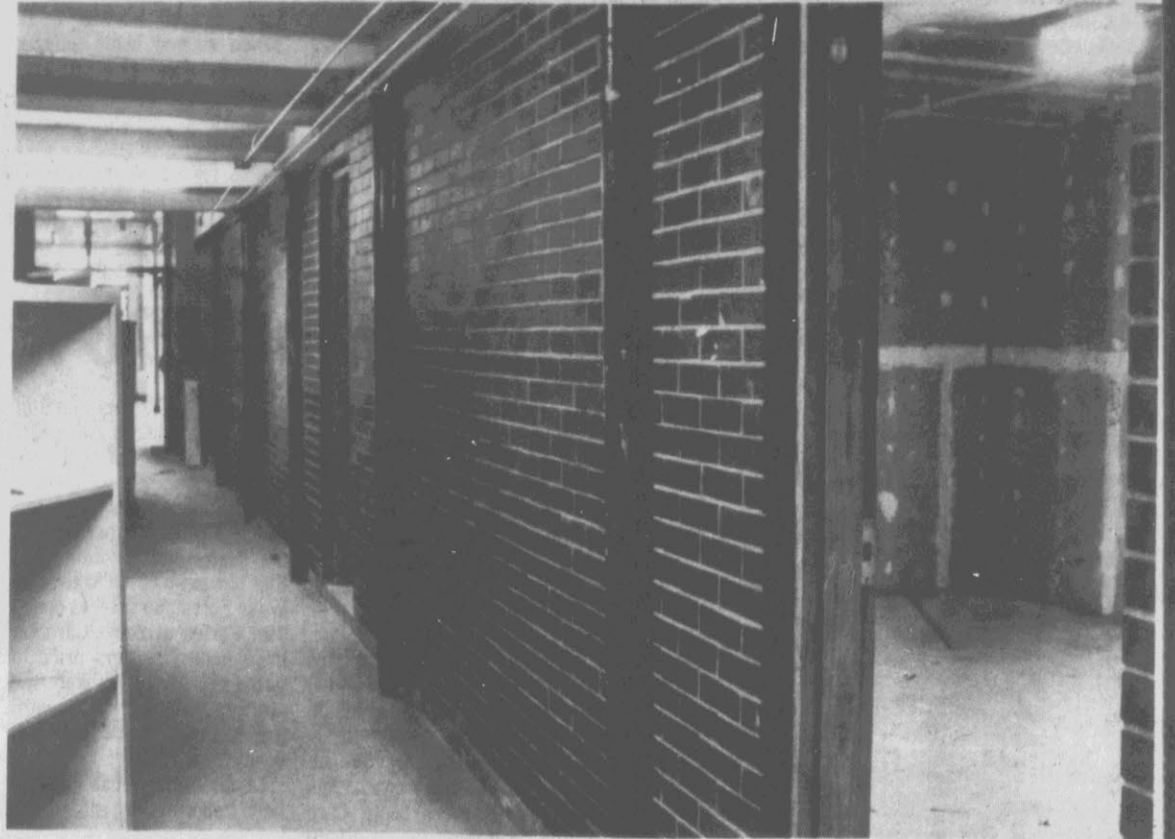

"We put on three new roofs, two at Cox and one in Grifton," said Heath, "and also refinished six gym floors. We also put new tile floors in one lunchroom and three corridors. And of course we kept two tractors running all summer long cutting grass."

Heath reported that following projects completed:
 — A lunchroom addition was finished at Belvoir, doubling the amount of space available for eating area.
 — The field houses at D.H. Conley and A.G. Cox were completed, and four mobile units were purchased for Cox and refinished.

 — A fence separating the school property from the housing project property was erected at Bethel Elementary.
 — Twenty-eight window air conditioning units were installed in schools, and central air and heat went in classrooms at G.R. Whitfield.
 — Two parking lots, one for buses and one for staff members, were finished at Pactolus.
 — Four hundred eighty tons of coal was stockpiled to heat the four schools with coal-fired boilers.

STORAGE SPACE AND AN ENCLOSED WALKWAY . . . were added at Sam Bundy. The walkway will allow students to go to and from the lunchroom within a protected area. The storage space will hold brooms, cleaning supplies and lunchroom supplies. (Reflector Photos By Mary Schulken)

REFINISHING DESKS AT W.H. ROBINSON . . . is county employee Joe Edwards, here putting a new top on a primary desk at the school in Winterville. In addition to desks, the county maintenance department refinished all tile floors in the school system eight times apiece, an endeavor that, according to maintenance supervisor Carl Heath, used some 400 gallons of wax and 200 gallons of Terrazo seal. A MOUNTAIN OF COAL . . . waits to be put to good use this winter. The county still operates eight boilers, which heat four schools, with coal. Stockpiling the coal is an effort, explained Heath, to get as much coal as possible at the lowest price. The "mountain of coal" shown above equals 480 tons. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

Savage Cigarette Tax Hikes Helped Kick Habit

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — After puffing doggedly through years of alarming reports on the risk to their health, hundreds of thousands of British smokers have kicked the habit in the past six months — persuaded by savage tax hikes.

Tobacco company executives, reporting a 10 percent drop in sales, say this time smokers are sticking to their resolution.

A survey in the Guardian newspaper described it as "the biggest and most abrupt change in national smoking habits since cigarettes were introduced at the turn of the century," and estimated that 2 million of Britain's 17 million adult smokers have quit.

Their will was stiffened by two 1981 tax increases. In an austere March budget, the Conservative government slapped an extra 14 pence — about 26 cents — on the tax for a pack of 20.

It followed with a 3-pence increase in July, about 5 cents, sending the tax up 30 percent in six months and the average price of a pack to the equivalent of $1.75.

The tobacco companies, which report falling profits, are due to add an additional 2 pence in the fall.

The Treasury collects 75 percent of the retail price. It will get an estimated $7.4 billion this year. At that rate, in just two years British smokers will pay the equivalent of their country's bill for the U.S. Trident nuclear missile system, which costs $12 billion.

"I think any industry which has to carry this kind of burden is bound to be worried," said a spokesman for the Tobacco Advisory Council, which represents manufacturers.

Britons now pay up to three times more for cigarettes than do other Western Europeans. Smoking is considered the single biggest cause of premature deaths, killing at least 50,000 Britons a year, mainly through heart disease and lung cancer.

Since the mid-1960s the Department of Health has been reeling out statistics and eminent physicians' reports. It's been backed by compulsory health warnings on packs and "voluntary" agreements with tobacco corporations to curb advertising, including a six-year ban on television ads.

Even so, cigarette consumption has fallen only gradually until now, but smokers' determination to quit has been aroused as never before by Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Geoffrey Howe. The downturn is most marked among the professional classes — only 21 percent now smoke. A 1980 government survey indicated that 39.5 percent of adult Britons smoked.

Herbert Bentley, assistant managing director of Imperial Tobacco, the largest British manufacturer, said this month there was no sign of recovery in consumption. He estimated the overall drop for the year will be 8 percent to 15 percent.

Bentley estimates total sales of 107 billion cigarettes this year, compared with 121.5 billion in 1980. Retailers report a run on packs of 10 instead of 20.

David Simpson — director of the independent, government-financed anti-smoking organization Action on Smoking and Health, known as ASH — has been skeptical of sales figures, maintaining that tobacco companies have reported slumps in the past to drum up government concern about increasing unemployment.

But now, Simpson said: "We are really quite thrilled. We are fairly optimistic there is a real change, which will be a lasting one as long as the chancellor moves to keep prices up."

Both sides question each other's statistics. The Tobacco Advisory Council says people conceal or underestimate their smoking in answering surveys. "This is understandable, because they're made to feel guilty about it," the spokesman said.

Unashamedly in favor of smoking are members of a 2-year-old pressure group called Forest. Its initials stand for Freedom Organization for the Right to Enjoy Smoking Tobacco, and it says its annual budget of $93,000 comes from 5,000 memberships and from the tobacco companies.

"People are being forced to give up by prices, and it's damnable," said Forest's full-time director, retired Anglican church administrator Geoffrey Evans, a portly 50-year-old who smokes 40 cigarettes a day. "Our slogan is 'More Ventilation and Less Legislation.' We're sick of the growing tendency by government and other self-appointed busy-bodies to interfere with our rights as individuals to enjoy smoking."

Evans also questions statistics, especially the Health Department's estimate of the annual death toll from smoking.

"Where does this stuff come from?" Evans asked.

"If you believed all you read about what causes cancer and heart attacks, you'd wonder why half of us are alive at all."

Freedom In California

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Ray Brown, who escaped from Asheville's Craggy Prison in 1971, will be allowed to remain free in California if he stays straight for one more year.

The state of North Carolina learned Brown's whereabouts in 1975 and has been struggling ever since to put Brown back in jail to serve the remaining nine years of a sentence for breaking and entering.

But California officials have asked for and gotten permission from North Carolina officials to supervise Brown for a year with an informal parole arrangement.

If Brown continues his lawful ways during that year, the state of California will refuse to allow North Carolina to take him back — a development that does not please North Carolina officials.

"There's not a whole lot we can say. We are going to accept that," said Pam Blowe, extradition secretary for North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt. "After the year is up, Gov. Hunt still has the discretion to say, yes, I still want this man, but it's obvious after six years that Gov. (Jerry) Brown does not want to return him."

North Carolina officials have persisted in efforts to bring Brown back because "you don't want to reward escape," Ms. Blowe said. "You don't want to set that kind of precedent."

But Brown's life during the past decade has convinced friends, employers and, finally, California officials, that he's a changed man.

Brown, an Asheville native, was convicted of three felonies before he reached the age of 24, although none involved violent crimes. The third conviction, for breaking and entering, landed him a 10-year sentence.

After serving one year of that term, he skipped town during a weekend furlough he had taken to go to church with his parents.

Brown said he fled because a fellow inmate had threatened to kill him.

Report Method Of Detoxifying

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A research institute has developed a method of detoxifying hazardous PCBs by breaking the chemical down into harmless, biodegradable substances, researchers have announced.

Since PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenyls, are highly toxic and not naturally degradable, their disposal poses serious problems, according to Dr. Steve Osborn of the Franklin Institute Research Laboratory Inc.

The new process breaks down the PCBs — banned by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency — with chemicals, specifically modified sodium salts and nontoxic polyethylene glycol, Osborn said.

Candy-Maker Cooks Up Fudge Six Days A Week

By MEG GUNKEL
The High Point
Enterprise
WINSTON-SALEM, N.C.
(AP) — Some people just like to fudge things up.

Steve Vander Linden is one of them. He's at it six days a week.
Manager and chief fudgemaker at Brookstown Fudge, one of a number of specialty shops in Winston-Salem's renovated cotton mill, Brookstown Mall, Vander Linden cooks up three or more 22-pound batches of fudge a day.

He won't give out his recipe, but he likes passers-by to stop and watch him — which they often do, since the gas stove is in front of a large window.

The candy is cooked in a large copper pot, 24 inches in diameter, that sits over a dozen large gas jets that quickly melt the chocolate pieces, sugar and cream. Copper is used for cooking because it keeps the ingredients from scorching.

As the mixture boils halfway up the pot, Vander Linden stirs it with a wooden candy paddle and checks it with a candy thermometer. In about 15 minutes, the fudge reaches 230 degrees and is ready for cooling. "That's how exact it has got to be for it to come out right," Vander Linden said. "Or within a quarter-degree of 230."

The fudge is poured into a metal frame on a marble-topped table, a dash of vanilla is added, and the fudge cools for five or six minutes. The metal frames are then removed and the thickening fudge is creamed by turning it over on itself with a long-handled spatula.

"You can tell it's done by the lighter color and how fast it's moving," the candymaker said. "You learn with experience. Sometimes it's hard to judge when it's getting done and a few minutes can make all the difference in the world." But Vander Linden says he has never ruined a batch.

In the fudge business for three years now, Vander Linden, 27, started out as a cook in a fudge shop in Helen, Ga. He had left his native San Diego, he said, and ran out of money in Georgia, necessitating a job.

Joe Hayes of Atlanta owned the store and when he opened Brookstown Fudge in his native Winston-Salem, Vander Linden was sent to operate it.

Almost anyone who has tried to make fudge at home knows how finicky it can be, but Vander Linden said good fudge is just a matter of the right ingredients and the right equipment. "You learn not to fool with the process after a while," he said. "You can put other things in it, but don't mess with the original recipe."

Tall and lean, Vander Linden said he likes to sample his fudge, but has learned the pains of eating too much. "I do test it, and I do like it, but you just have to make an effort not to eat it," he said.

All the help gets to eat as much as they want, too, he said, but they also find their appetites for the sweet curbed. "Usually a day's worth is enough for them," he said.

The best-selling variety is chocolate pecan, Vander Linden said. "Everybody likes that kind," he said.

He also makes fudge with almonds, walnuts, peanut butter and chocolate chips. Mississippi Mud is chocolate fudge with walnuts and marshmallows and Divinity is made with white fudge, whipped egg whites and chopped pecans.

Cooking the candy on the premises not only provides fresh fudge, but customers as well. The exhaust fan above the cooking fudge wafts the smell out of the shop and under the noses of mall shoppers.

"This is the best smelling stuff," said one customer drawn into the shop by the cooking candy. "We can't come over here and get by without a taste."

N.C. Boy Pins Hopes On Movie Script

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Dressed in blue jeans and sneakers, T.J. Haycox could be any ordinary seventh-grader poring over a homework assignment.

But the homework the 11-year-old Charlotte boy is studying has nothing to do with school. The assignment is a script for a movie to be filmed in North Carolina, and T.J. is hoping the few lines he will read for a talent agent will give him his big break.

"It's really competitive," said the brown-eyed, freckled-face youngster. "There are a lot of others who want this part and some of them have had a lot of experience in TV commercials and stuff."

Like hundreds of other Tar Heel boys and girls of all ages, T.J. has joined the ranks of youngsters trying to break into movies or television commercials. Many of the children decide to audition because they see so many youngsters in television commercials. Some are pushed into casting sessions by "stage mothers" who think their children are "the cutest, the smartest, the most talented," according to Bailey Dwiggin of Jefferson Productions.

"I think there are more children in television commercials particularly because they and the parents have found out it can be a very lucrative business," said Dwiggin, vice president of Jefferson Productions of Charlotte. Jefferson Productions, a 19-year-old division of the Jefferson Pilot Broadcasting Co., is the largest operation of its kind in the Southeast.

"We do national commercials of all kinds, with children and adults, and working with children takes a special feeling," Dwiggin said. "Everyone knows that it takes more time to film anything when you're using children."

Dwiggin said national attention given to young stars such as Brooke Shields encourage children to try to be stars themselves. "There's definitely a fascination with youth in this country. The stars seem to get younger and younger every year."

Jan Thompson of the Jan Thompson Talent Agency in Charlotte says working with children in auditions is harder than dealing with adults.

"You have to be very careful how you treat them," said Ms. Thompson. "Working conditions, proper rest times, early lunches — all that's important. You simply can't push a child."

Ms. Thompson says she tries to weed out children being pushed into show business by their parents.

"We're not interested in any kid, no matter how talented he may be, is he being given a great big push by his mother or daddy. You get into too many problems that way," she said.

Preparing a child for possible rejection when he or she comes to a casting session is one of the most difficult jobs she does, Ms. Thompson said.

"You have to try to be sure they know what they're getting into, and that can be hard when you're dealing with a 6-year-old," she said. "We try to be sure that the child knows if he's turned down, it will probably be because of his coloring or his height and not because of some failure or personal thing."

"We try to tell the child he can have the best of both worlds — he probably won't get rich from their work right now but they won't be scarred in any way, either. It's a learning experience," she added.

Pay for children who appear in movies or commercials depends on the kind of role. Extras are paid about $100 for their work while the principal character can get as much as $275 a day. "Of course, if a commercial has a long run on a national market, the child receives a check each week," Ms. Thompson said.

During the past few years, Charlotte has become a major outlet for national television commercials because of Jefferson Productions studios. Clients such as Purina dog food, Safeguard soap and Sure deodorant are willing to travel to Charlotte for commercial production instead of New York or Hollywood because of convenience and cost.

Meanwhile, the state's newly created film division is bringing more movie crews to the Tar Heel State. Auditions currently are under way for "Brainstorm," a $16 million science-fiction movie to be filmed at the Research Triangle Park. Jan Thompson is screening would-be actors for several roles in the film.

T.J. is hoping for a part in the movie as Natalie Wood's 8-year-old son. He's also keeping his fingers crossed for some commercial roles. "It's good experience because you get to meet directors and camera people you'd never get to be around otherwise," he said. "But it would be great if I get a part. I'm just gonna keep on trying 'til I do."

On British TV

LONDON (AP) — Johnny Carson's Tonight Show, which has dominated American late-night television for nearly 20 years, will be shown in Britain for the first time next month, British television officials said.

Independent Television, Britain's only commercial network, said NBC-TV's Tonight Show will be shown Saturday nights opposite a popular talk show on the state-supported British Broadcasting Corp.

ITV official Michael Grade, who described Carson as "the best talk-show host there has ever been in the history of TV", said the American comedian approached him with the idea because he wanted "to be better known in Britain".

Grade said the Tonight Show will be shown only in London, but other regional affiliates might pick it up after the pilot run. The cost of the deal was not disclosed.

Traffic Up For Airline

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Piedmont Airlines reported Thursday that traffic for the month of August increased 26.8 percent over 1980 and 33.6 percent for the first eight months, despite the continuing nationwide strike by air traffic controllers.

During August, Piedmont boarded 647,780 passengers, an increase of 18.6 percent over the 546,078 passengers carried in August 1980.

For the eight months ended Aug. 31, Piedmont has boarded 4,698,623 passengers, a 23.3 percent increase over the 3,811,684 passengers 2.09 billion revenue passenger miles, compared to 1.56 billion in the same period of 1980.

Piedmont offered capacity of more than 473.8 million available seat miles last month, up almost 19 percent from 1980. For the first eight months of 1981, Piedmont offered capacity of 3.6 billion available seat miles, an increase of 19.7 percent over the 2.99 billion available seat miles flown in the same period of 1980.

Brokaw's Replacement Is Somewhere In Field

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Here's everything you ever wanted to know about the Tom Brokaw Replacement Sweepstakes but thought you missed because you overslept.

Sources at NBC believe Chris Wallace and John Palmer survived the cut after August auditions to fill the male lead on "Today." The betting is that Bob Jamieson and Bob Kur — even though he's been invited back for Labor Day — probably won't be sharing your coffee when Brokaw departs in mid-December on his way to John Chancellor's chair on the "Nightly News" April 5.

Insiders say there are still at least four candidates. Also in the running are Bill Kurtis, the dashing local news anchor on CBS' WBBM in Chicago, and Bryant Gumbel, the unflappable NBC Sports reporter who also handles sports for "Today." Although popular talk show host Phil Donahue has publicly said he's not interested, he'd be a favorite if he changed his mind.

NBC officials say the final choice could even be some dark horse since NBC boss Grant Tinker and his lieutenant, Bob Mulholland, will have input into the decision after Bill Small, president of NBC News, Steve Friedman, executive producer of "Today," and Gordon Manning, vice president, special broadcasts, come up with their man.

The decision is not expected until late October or early November. "Definitely by Thanksgiving," said a network insider. "Brokaw staying with NBC (and not leaving for ABC in July) bought us time to do this thing right."

Here's a capsule look at the four known candidates: Gumbel: Intriguing possibility. Coming off his interview and anchoring work for sports, he's probably best qualified. But he did it in sports, which would leave NBC open to hypocrisy charges by ABC after sneering at non-newsmen David Hartman on "Good Morning America." Gumbel balances sensitivity and hard edge. If he can create order out of chaos in a Super Bowl locker room, he can handle interviews on "Today." Corporate concern is that it would weaken NBC Sports.

Kurtis: Small would prefer staying inside NBC News, if possible, to avoid suggestions that the department is weak on talent. Kurtis is unknown nationally, but so was Jane Pauley. A fresh face could attract curiosity viewers, important in the ratings race since Brokaw's loss will hurt.

Palmer: Advantage is he comes from news and has a relaxed, early morning demeanor. He doesn't appear driven like Brokaw, which may appeal to some, but doesn't provide strong viewer identification and allegiance, either. He's been NBC's White House reporter for years. Probably the safest, but least exciting choice.

Wallace: Bright and versatile. Good news interviewer, but can he handle softer stuff? He did round out some edges in fill-in stints. Comes back Sept. 16-17. Most like Brokaw in style, Wallace could grow into the role. But he may be too young. When he worked with Robin Young, who sat in for Jane Pauley, they looked like the fresh-faced hosts of "P.M. Magazine."

Whoever is selected is headed for a tough time. The comparisons will be with the polished Brokaw of 1981, not the Brokaw who didn't have all the answers when he arrived at "Today" in 1976.

But if the victor can handle the pressure and keep his cool, the pay is great and it's one of the most visible and influential jobs in TV. It offers fame and fortune and can lead to more of the same. Ask Tom Brokaw.

Fans Look For Mick Jagger

NORTH BROOKFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Residents of this quiet New England farming town sometimes catch a glimpse of Mick Jagger jogging — along with two bodyguards.

They certainly can hear Jagger and the rest of the Rolling Stones practicing late at night in a converted dairy barn on Long View Farm, a recording studio that has been a haven for such musicians as Cat Stevens and Stevie Wonder.

Fans and foreign journalists have been pouring into town daily, hoping to catch a glimpse of the popular British rock group. And although Long View officials refuse to acknowledge that the Stones are at the studio preparing for their Sept. 25 opening in Philadelphia, the community's 4,500 residents know better.

Construction worker Raymond Van Dyke was shocked when he saw Jagger and guitarist Keith Richard playing tennis at North Brookfield High School. "If I had seen Ronald Reagan playing singles with the pope, it wouldn't have caught my eye like those guys did," Van Dyke said.

Erich Segal Is Back At Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Erich Segal, who has written romantic Harvard-based novels as well as scholarly books about ancient Roman comedy, has returned to Yale after an eight-year absence.

Segal, author of "Love Story," "Oliver's Story" and the recent "Man, Woman and Child," is a visiting professor in Yale's Department of Classical Languages and Literatures. More than 200 students turned out to hear his first lectures Thursday morning. Segal, who will teach introductory courses on both tragedy and comedy during the fall semester, said, "They're two sides of the same coin."

But, he said, he prefers to teach the tragedy course early in the morning because "I know if you have a really good lecture in tragedy you can't face lunch for several hours."

Segal, who has been at Oxford University in England, last taught at Yale from 1964 to 1973.

The Real Estate Corner

ARE YOU A FSBO?

You're trying to sell the house by yourself, and think you don't need the services of a real estate broker. Okay, we understand, but please read on. We want to help you...no kidding and no catch either! Selling a home today takes a professional. Financing has become very complicated with an extremely wide variety and complicated number of mortgages available. Qualified buyers are fewer in number and it takes a professional with experience and an excellent referral system to find them and keep them. A do-it-yourself technique with such a large investment does not work in today's real estate market. If you are really interested in selling your home, you need to contact a professional. Call us and let us market your home. We have sold 92 homes so far this year. Perhaps we can make yours the ninety-third.
