

Social Security Spending Cut Undecided

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said today he has not decided whether to heed the advice of Senate Republicans and reduce spending on Social Security in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Asked also if he would rule out changes in the way Social Security cost-of-living increases are calculated, Reagan had a rare "no comment" to reporters at the start of a morning meeting with congressional Republicans who are urging the administration to cut spending for Social Security, Medicaid and food stamps to help trim $18 billion from the 1982 budget.

"No decisions (have been) made on anything of that kind," the president said when asked about possible changes in the cost-of-living formula. "That's why we're holding these meetings."

Asked further if he would rule out adjusting the formula in his efforts to reduce the burgeoning 1982 federal deficit, the president said "I'm going to make no comment on anything because it never seems to come out. ... The end of his sentence was drowned out by laughter in the Cabinet Room."

On Monday presidential spokesman

Larry Speakes first said there were no plans "right now" to touch entitlement programs, but later said the president would consider such changes.

Speakes' reversal came after White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III conferred with the Senate Republican leaders and agreed to consider such areas for possible cuts because, Speakes said, there is "some sentiment" on Capitol Hill for them.

Senate Republican leaders also planned to bring to today's meeting a set of "proposed ideas" about cutting interest rates, a congressional source said.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said the senators were suggesting that Reagan consider forming a presidential commission on interest rates to monitor the situation.

However, the source added, the senators also felt there "should be no effort to overreact" by taking such steps as imposing credit controls.

Some legislators, Republicans as well as Democrats, indicated last week that they may seek enactment of credit controls if interest rates do not soon decline significantly.

In addition, the senators agreed to ask Reagan to increase his proposed 1982 defense spending reductions to $4 billion to $5 billion. Reagan has proposed reducing defense spending next year by $2 billion as part of his plan to trim the overall military budget by $13 billion over the next three fiscal years.

The source said there are indications the president "may accept more defense cuts."

The GOP senators also were expected to suggest that appropriations for operations of the federal government be reduced and that the president make a nationally broadcast address to explain why the cuts are necessary.

But the "biggest disagreement" between the senators and the administration is over whether entitlement programs should be cut, the source said.

One senior White House aide, who asked not to be identified, sought to dampen speculation that the entitlement programs would be cut.

"The president has not been inclined to go that way. He is willing to listen to the arguments. He hasn't been persuaded," the official said.

Asked repeatedly whether he would rule out cuts in Social Security payments, Speakes avoided a direct answer.

"We are working with Congress to work out a program that will restore fiscal integrity to Social Security," he said. "There are problems with Social Security."

Agree To Lease Lot For College Student Parking

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Redevelopment Commissioners last night agreed to lease on a temporary basis a lot in the Central Business District to East Carolina University for student parking.

Joe Laney, executive director, said ECU had inquired as to possible sites in the CBD that would be available to help ease the parking situation at the university.

Laney said the disposal parcel at the corner of Ninth and Evans Street would be available on a temporary lease arrangement with the stipulation that in the event the commission received interest in the property from a developer, the lease would be cancelled.

Under the one-year $1 lease agreement, ECU would be responsible for making any improvements to the lot necessary for use as a parking facility, and would also provide liability insurance.

Laney said the lot, which measures 220 feet by 96 feet, is zoned for Office & Institutional use and a parking lot would be permitted. Curb cuts are already available on Evans and Ninth Streets.

In other business, commissioners qualified the Batchelor Benedict Club as the developer, subject to City Council approval, of a small parcel located on Garland Street behind the club. The organization submitted the only bid (minimum) of $1,463 on the tract and indicated that the property would be used to expand present parking facilities at the club, Laney noted.

The lot is sub-standard and has only 41 feet of frontage on Garland Street, Laney reported. He said that it would have been difficult to market the lot for residential use due to its size.

Faye Brewington, project manager and real estate officer, reported that Community Development activity during August was slow with only one acquisition, involving a severance on Howell Street needed for the widening of the street.

Mrs. Brewington said that two structures, at 1318 and 1320 Evans Street owned by Johnsen Antiques, were demolished in the South Evans area during the month, and two parcels, located at the corner of Howell and Pitt Streets and at the corner of Blount and McClellan Streets, were sold. One relocation took place from 207 W. 15th Street in South Evans.

Mrs. Brewington informed commissioners that she will be leaving the Redevelopment Commission this month to accept a position as relocation and real estate officer for the city, effective Oct. 1. She has worked for the commission for some 12 years.

Commissioners adopted a motion to have the chairman, David Gordon, meet with Mayor Don McGlohn to inquire as to the status of the commission and also the City Council's plans regarding the appointment of a commissioner to replace Gene Taylor. The council has taken no action on the board vacancy and commissioners agreed that some clarification is needed as to the future role of the agency.

Lucy D. Jones was elected vice chairman last night to fill the officer's post vacated by Taylor.

Resurfacing

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Board of Transportation last week awarded contracts for resurfacing 38.57 miles of primary and secondary roads in Pitt, Beaufort and Greene Counties.

The Pitt-Greene-Beaufort mileage was included in 62 contracts the Board of Transportation awarded for resurfacing nearly 1,000 miles of highway across the state.

A breakdown of the mileage shows 14.17 miles in Pitt are scheduled for resurfacing, while 12.3 miles of Greene County roads will receive a new surface. The remaining 12.1 miles to be resurfaced are in Beaufort County.

Secretary of Transportation W. R. "Bill" Robertson said "our major emphasis in the highway business today is not to build new roads, but to maintain and protect the ones we already have."

Robertson added, "With the funds currently being made available by the 'Good Roads Program' we plan to award resurfacing contracts for a total of 2,900 miles of roadway during this fiscal year," which ends June 30, 1982.

New Activity Bus For City Schools

City Board of Education. The two at left are Dr. Delma Blinson, superintendent of the city schools, and Ken Ferrell, president-elect of the Boosters Club.

The Greenville City School system has a new activity bus to use in athletic events, thanks to the interest and efforts of the Rose-Aycock Athletic Boosters Club.

In a ceremony during the information school board meeting Monday night, the club's president and president-elect, Andy Warren and Ken Ferrell, presented the keys for the bus to school board chairman Dr. Jon Tinglestad and superintendent Dr. Delma Blinson.

The bus is a 24-passenger Mighty Mite, one that meets all required safety standards for transporting students.

Commenting on goals of the Rose-Aycock Athletic Boosters for this school year, Warren said, "Our financial goals are to raise as much money as possible. Actually, we're going to try for $10,000."

Achievements by the club last year included repair of the wrestling mats at Aycock and installation of toilet facilities at the Aycock athletic field.

Informing the board that bids are being opened today for roof repair work at South Greenville School, Dr. Blinson noted that board members are confronted by having to make a decision — whether to proceed with the South Greenville project as originally planned or to divide the money between South Greenville and Agnes Fullilove. "After money was approved for the South Greenville project, we found that repairs are also needed at Agnes Fullilove," Blinson commented. "The issue you have to face is that we have more need than money."

Director of Grounds and Buildings Bob Stewart pointed out that considerable work was needed at Agnes Fullilove, including work on all windows, which alone would run between $30,000 and $40,000. He also mentioned that roof work at South Greenville was preventive maintenance work, with this being the third phase.

Board members will study the bids and make a decision at the September 21 action meeting.

Another decision due on September 21 is that of assignment of responsibility for gymnasium floor repair at Rose High. Several weeks ago, a church group rented the gymnasium floor and alleged damages due to high heels cutting into the floor have been assessed at $3,600. An initial proposal presented by Dr. Blinson that the group pay $2,622 for damages incurred will be included on the action meeting agenda. School board members asked that complete details, including a copy of the user responsibility contract, an opinion by the school attorney, as well as an invitation for a spokesman from the group, be part of the procedure to attempt to place responsibility.

Director of Education Charles Ross presented a four page cumulative record to be used to evaluate progress in mathematics for students in kindergarten through grade six. The record is keyed to specific levels of achievement matching textbooks being used. The cards, Ross said, will periodically be sent to parents to keep them abreast of progress being made by their child.

Mrs. Minnie Wilder, a volunteer specialist working at the Regional Office in Williamston, presented information on the Adopt-A-School Program. She said it is basically a school volunteerism program aimed at the utilization

Scoffs At U.S. Charge

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)

— A spokesman for the Vietnamese Embassy in Bangkok today scoffed at allegations by the United States that chemical poisons were being used by Soviet-backed forces in Cambodia and Laos.

"This is an all-too-familiar maneuver of the U.S. administration. Mr. Haig has recently been loud-mouthed about this one," Press Secretary Dang Phong Hoan told The Associated Press.

Hoan was referring to charges by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. that lethal chemical weapons were being used in military operations in Cambodia and Laos as well as in Afghanistan.

The Soviet-backed Vietnamese have forces in both Cambodia and Laos aiding the governments in efforts to put down insurgencies.

The central governments in Communist Indochina have not yet issued reactions to Haig's statement. But in the past, similar accusations were met by routine denials from Hanoi, Phnom Penh and Vientiane.

Double Supply Of Flu Vaccine

ATLANTA (AP) —

The absence of large influenza outbreaks in Georgia the past few years has prompted health officials to double the amount of flu vaccine on hand in anticipation of an outbreak this year.

"Since we haven't had a lot of flu, the state's population has not built up a widespread immunity to the flu," Dr. James Alley, director of public health, said Monday.

Voting Today On O'Connor

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Sandra Day O'Connor, already acquitted by most of her opponents, awaited the Senate Judiciary Committee's verdict today on her nomination as the first woman to sit on the Supreme Court. The only question was whether anyone would vote against her.

All but one of the 18 members of the Judiciary Committee were expected to vote in favor of Mrs. O'Connor's nomination.

And sources said the 18th member, Alabama Republican Jeremiah Denton, was likely to simply vote "present." Denton, who questioned Mrs. O'Connor at length about her views on abortion, has said he felt frustrated because he could not determine where Mrs. O'Connor was "coming from philosophically" on abortion.

Although the committee could delay today's vote one week at the request of one of its members, chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., has urged quick action and a postponement seemed unlikely.

Prior to today's committee vote and action Wednesday in the full Senate, court officials scheduled Mrs. O'Connor's swearing-in ceremony for Sept. 25. The high court begins its fall session 10 days later, the first Monday in October.

If confirmed, Mrs. O'Connor would replace Justice Potter Stewart, who retired in July.

Mrs. O'Connor, a 51-year-old Arizona appeals court judge, quickly dispelled most conservative opposition to her nomination during three days of confirmation hearings last week.

She told the hearings that she abhors abortion, but she refused to say how she might vote on an abortion case should one come before the court. She also declined to comment on her views of the 1973 Supreme Court ruling that legalized abortion.

Mrs. O'Connor said a child should consult with her parents before she has an abortion, but she told the senators that parental permission should not be mandatory.

Expounding the views of many conservatives, Mrs. O'Connor said she opposes forced busing to achieve school desegregation, favors the death penalty and thinks it is "inappropriate" for women to participate in combat.

And she said the "exclusionary rule," a 67-year-old legal doctrine that bars the use in trials of evidence that was illegally seized, may be adding to the nation's crime rate and may be applied too stringently.

She promised the committee that, if confirmed as the 102nd member in the high court's 191-year history, her job will be "one of interpreting and applying the law, not making it."

Her nomination has been endorsed by an American Bar Association committee, which found that she "has demonstrated the necessary qualities of professional competence, judicial temperament and integrity."

Tobacco Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tobacco state senators are "a little bit skittish" after the Senate opened debate on the 1981 Farm Bill Monday, aides said.

Southern legislators think they have the votes to defeat efforts to dismantle the tobacco and peanut programs, but some were reported nervous as they attempted to hold together a fragile coalition of farm interests protecting the programs.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., planned to introduce a bill Wednesday that would abolish the tobacco price-support program. Informal polling by tobacco state senators indicated Monday that they had up to 58 votes against the measure.

The lawmakers were less certain about an amendment by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., expected to be offered Tuesday or Wednesday. Eagleton's amendment would prohibit non-farmers from owning tobacco allotments.

A third amendment, expected to be offered Tuesday by Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., would abolish allotments and production controls for peanut growers.

Peanut-state lawmakers think they may have saved the peanut allotment program when they agreed to support a lower peanut price-support level as part of a compromise.

The compromise would increase the current peanut price support from $445 per ton to quota peanuts to $596 per ton, instead of the $631 per ton recommended by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, took the Senate floor Monday to urge senators to adopt the committee compromise on tobacco and peanuts and to defeat all amendments.

Taking It To Washington

Americans have a tradition of taking their grievances to the nation's capital. In 1932, 15,000 unemployed veterans camped out there to pressure Congress into paying them their bonuses immediately. Federal troops eventually forced them to leave. In 1963, Martin Luther King led one of the most famous Washington marches. Nearly 300,000 civil rights demonstrators heard Dr. King's dream that "one day this nation will ... live out the true meaning of its creed ... that all men are created equal." This Sunday, labor and civil rights groups have planned a "Solidarity Day" march in Washington, D.C. to protest recent cuts in federal spending.

Bush Supports More Slashes

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Vice President George Bush came to the defense of President Reagan's belt-tightening programs Monday, indicating that the government's waistline has plenty of room for improvement.

"He's trying to cure the obesity in the body politic," Bush said, as he addressed a banquet commemorating the 40th anniversary of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine-Baptist Hospital Medical Center.

He said the Reagan administration "is trying to reverse the course of a government that's become fat on the public's money, a government not used to being told 'that's enough.'"

The vice president also cautioned against condemning the president's plans too early, pointing out that "the budget and most of the tax cuts don't even begin until Oct. 1."

Bush said preliminary figures support Reagan's programs, adding that since the president took office in January, the inflation rate has slowed from 12.4 percent a year to 9.6 percent. He also said unemployment showed "progress," in dropping from 7.4 percent in January to the present 7.2 percent.

Bush dismissed critics of the economy's performance, saying they had political motives for their opposition.

"A lot of those who are saying the president has already failed have pure political motives for saying those things — they fought budget and tax cuts," he said.

Saying that "others are just plain nervous" about the economy, Bush urged that more time be given the president's program. And he said that Reagan is doing what the country wants — reducing taxes, spending and government regulation.

Bush admitted the administration was concerned about the federal budget deficit, high interest rates and unemployment, but added, "We're doing something about them."

It was the second visit to North Carolina for Bush, who visited Raleigh earlier this year in an effort to generate public support for the president's economic program as it passed through Congress.

Monday's banquet was by invitation only, and was followed by a private reception attended by Bush before he returned to Washington.

The trip was billed as largely non-political. Bush was joined at the head table by Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt. Traveling with Bush from Washington was Democratic Rep. Stephen Neal.

Bush has family connections with the Bowman Gray Medical School, said Shirley Green, Bush's assistant press secretary. She said the vice president's counsel is Boyden Gray, grandson of the man for whom the school is named.

Offer Programs On Food Basket

The N. C. Food Basket is the title of the three programs being presented by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service Wednesday at the Pitt County Office Building.

The program is designed to answer concerns about inflation, nutrition and health. The emphasis will be on N. C. products and their nutrition, selection, storage and preparation.

The programs are: 10 a.m., "Eggs, Eggs, Eggs," by Mrs. Susan Hardee, Egg Marketing Association; 2 p.m., "Use North Carolina Products," Dr. Nick Paul, N. C. Department of Agricultural Marketing Division; "Use N. C. Apples," Miss York Kiker, N. C. Department of Agriculture Marketing Division; and 7 p.m., "N. C. Fall Fruits and Vegetables," Pitt County home economics extension agent.

Space is still available in each session and interested persons should register by calling 758-1196 or 752-2934.

Oldest Locomotive Rolls Rails Again

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's oldest working locomotive — a hissing, chugging, clanging, puffing, wood-burning, spark-spewing engine of history — is rolling along the rails again today amid pomp, ceremony and banjo music.

The polished steam engine known as the John Bull, ancestor of all railway locomotives in America, was gently lifted from the halls of the Smithsonian and carried outside by flatbed to celebrate the 150th anniversary of her first run.

In 1831, it arrived in America from Newcastle, England in the form of a pile of levers, bolts and pipes. Inside of two weeks, it was assembled into a working locomotive by New Jersey mechanic Isaac Dripps, who had never before seen a train.

For today's celebration, the John Bull is traveling, over and over, backward and forward, along three miles of Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad track that runs parallel to the preserved C & O Canal and the Potomac in Georgetown.

The Marine Band was to play a frilly 19th Century version of the Star Spangled Banner; 48 Smithsonian staffers in the top hats and floor-length dresses of the 19th Century were to take the first ride in the single car, with an eye out for sparks; and, to keep the crowds happy, balladeers planned to sing railroad songs, an antique press was to turn out apple cider and high-wheel cyclists were expected to roll about. Dignitaries scheduled speeches.

On Sept. 15, 1831, Isaac Dripps' work properly done, the little engine passed its first test run and went into service for the old Camden and Amboy Railroad in central New Jersey as a link connecting New York and Philadelphia.

By 1840, the locomotive acquired some made-in-America apparatus: a cowcatcher, a headlight, a bell and a whistle. A cab was added to protect the crew from sparks and spewing hot water.

After carrying local traffic and being a part of work trains, the locomotive was retired in 1860, put in dead storage, kept as a showpiece.

It went on exhibit at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876 and went to the Smithsonian in 1885. Seven years later, it steamed to Chicago and the World's Columbia Exposition; later it drew stares at the New York World's Fair in 1939, its last big outdoor venture.

Last Friday, the locomotive was babied into place. Curators lovingly reapplied her smokestack and tested her. She ran like new.

Susan Tolbert, a Smithsonian secretary, volunteered her labors and oiled, painted and greased the machine. Her reward was a moment at the throttle.

In a bonnet and a heavy, high-collared dress, Miss Tolbert said she was most surprised at the engine's responsiveness.

Soviet Consumer Prices For Non-Essential Items Boosted

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet consumers, some cursing but others unconcerned, faced their first day of higher prices today for gasoline, cigarettes, vodka and other "non-essentials."

"If people want to drink, let them pay the higher prices," said a young woman outside a vodka store as some drinkers grumbled at the counter inside.

"We should have stocked up before," one customer complained to his companion.

The price rises were among Moscow's worst-kept secrets, with rumors of them causing long lines during the weekend and on Monday at stores and gasoline stations.

The government stressed in its announcement Monday night that there would be no increases for basic foodstuffs, apartment rents or utilities. And prices were reduced for some goods, including certain medicines, fabrics and household products.

The government said vodka, other alcoholic beverages and tobacco products were being hiked 17 to 27 percent "to limit their consumption." The price of a half-liter (just over a pint) of a popular brand of vodka rose from $5.89 to $7.07. A pack of 20 Yava-100 cigarettes rose from 80 cents to $1.07, and a cheaper brand, Belomorkanal, went from 29 to 33 cents for a pack of 25.

Gasoline was doubled to $2 a gallon for high octane, the current price in Western Europe. But automobiles are the ultimate luxury in the Soviet Union, out of the reach of most people.

Other goods increased in price 25 to 30 percent include jewelry, cut-glass items, carpets, fur and fur articles, clothing and hats made of natural leather, quality woolen and cashmere shawls, sets of furniture and top-quality chinaware.

"Someone has to compensate people for these increases," an elderly man told a reporter.

The government, however, claims that wage rises in recent years have already reduced the effect of the price increases.

The average Soviet wage is 172 rubles a month, about $225 and up 41 percent from 1970.

Some Western observers said the price hikes might be designed to soak up excess cash in an economy plagued by shortages of most consumer goods. The official explanation stressed higher production costs and a need to conserve oil.

High prices for imports such as raw materials, industrial equipment and manufactured goods also contributed, the Soviet news agency Novosti said.

But there was good news, too. Prices were cut 12 to 37 percent for antibiotics and other medicines, certain synthetic fabrics and clothing and some recreational and household goods.

Soviet citizens also enjoy low rents and free medical care and schooling. Prices of staple foods are kept down by government decree. However, quality meat, fresh fruit, vegetables and other such items are often only available at many times the subsidized price at private farmer's markets. Soviet consumers also must stand in line for hours for clothing, furniture, appliances and other premium goods.

Guerrillas Hurt Plans 'Entrapment' Defense For Plot

OSHAKATI, South-West Africa (AP) — South Africa's army says it will take the Namibian guerrillas at least a year to recover from the damage done them by the South African raid on their bases in southern Angola last month.

Lt. Gen Johannes Geldenhuys, the army commander, told reporters Monday that his forces killed about 1,000 Angolan troops and guerrillas of the South-West Africa People's Organization; took 38 prisoners, destroyed radar and anti-aircraft missile batteries at the SWAPO bases and disrupted the guerrillas' supply and command systems. He said 10 South Africans were killed. The general denied Angolan charges that South African forces were still in Angola. He said all of his men withdrew by Sept. 4.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A defense attorney for a Lexington man accused of hiring an assassin to kill his pregnant ex-wife indicated Monday that he planned to raise entrapment as a defense.

Opening statements by District Attorney James Coman were heard Monday in the trial of Randall Hedrick, 38, in Guilford County Superior Court. Hedrick is accused of conspiring to commit murder and soliciting an assassin to have Linda Rogers killed while she was pregnant.

Hedrick and Ms. Rogers had been married for nine years when they were divorced in 1976. Ms. Rogers remarried in 1978.

Hedrick's lawyers did not offer an opening statement in his defense during those proceedings, but during questioning of jurors, attorney William Caffrey of Greensboro said he planned to raise the issue of entrapment as the trial continues this week.

Cowan told a jury of six men and six women that Hedrick met with an undercover agent for the State Bureau of Investigation, thinking the agent was a killer for hire.

On May 5, Coman said, Hedrick showed agent Terry Johnson a $5,000 insurance premium for a policy he had bought for his first wife. He was going to collect the money after her death to pay for the killing, Coman told the jury.

Coman said Ms. Rogers was pregnant with her daughter when Hedrick decided he wanted her dead. He asked fellow insurance salesman William Roscoe Porter Jr., 27, if he knew someone who could do it, Coman said.

Porter also was arrested with Hedrick but has pleaded guilty and will testify for the state.

Porter introduced Hedrick to Curtis Kinnon, who in turn introduced him to SBI agent Johnson. When Johnson and Hedrick met in Greensboro, Hedrick said he wanted Ms. Rogers "buried deep so she would not be found, and he wanted to get his three kids back because he did not want them to see her," Coman told the jury.

HOLIDAY DESIGNS... can be done in cross stitch or needlepoint.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

You can count on a Merry Christmas with these charming holiday designs for counted cross stitch or needlepoint. Work any or all of the charted designs on 18-count even weave fabric and frame them in "wood-look" plastic frames to hang on your tree or on a wreath or holly branch as a door decoration.

As shown here, they fit perfectly in a 2 1/4-inch frame. If you prefer to use a more loosely woven fabric, the designs will be larger and are ideal for scattering on a tree skirt, Christmas stocking, apron, table cloth or place mats.

To obtain instructions and charts for working the six Christmas designs, send your request for Leaflet No. CS-913 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler, ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-913, containing red and green wood-look frames, cross stitch fabric, instructions, embroidery floss, needle and embroidery hoop from Pat Trexler at the same address. Send $12.50 for a kit containing materials for four ornaments or $16.50 for a kit to make six ornaments. Prices include shipping charges.

Just a few short years ago, counted cross stitch was almost a lost art in this country, but now it ranks among the most popular forms of needlecraft — or perhaps I should term it needlemania!

If you have not yet tried your hand at it, I probably should warn you that it is quite addictive. Fortunately, it is relatively inexpensive and because only the design is worked, small and medium sized projects go very quickly.

For the benefit of the beginner, let's talk about the materials used for counted cross stitch. While any fabric with an even weave can be used, the most commonly used fabrics are Aida and Hardanger, which now are available at almost any well stocked needlework shop.

Aida is available in 11, 14 and 18 count, and Hardanger is a 22-count fabric. The count refers to the number of stitches that are made across a 1-inch span of fabric.

People with less than perfect vision may feel that this type of work would be too fine for their eyesight, but I can assure you most people have no trouble with it at all.

I have worn glasses for near-sightedness ever since I was a teen-ager and must now admit membership in the bifocal set, but I have just finished working a picture on 22-count Hardanger without any eye strain.

Perhaps the best way to describe even weave fabric is to say that it is woven with groups of threads in blocks, with small holes in each of the four corners of each block. Your needle passes up or down through these holes, with a perfect little

State Chairman To Give DAR Program

Mrs. Walter Spaeth of Elizabeth City will be guest speaker for the Susannah Coutanch Evans Chapter NCDAR at its meeting Thursday at 7:45 p.m.

As state DAR chairman of the Yorktown Celebration, Mrs. Spaeth will be speaking on "The Yorktown Spirit." She will tell of the plans for the 200th anniversary celebration of the Battle of Yorktown. On Oct. 19 representatives of nations that were in the battle, France, Germany and the United States will meet there to commemorate the beginning of a new nation. She will also discuss Constitution Week, one of the National Society DAR continuing programs. Constitution Week, Sept. 17-23, is celebrated yearly by members of the society. The objectives are historical, education and patriotic.

The speaker has been a member of the NCDAR and the Betsy Dowdy Chapter for the past 24 years. She has served in various chapter offices including regent and various state chairmanships. She has served four years as State Bicentennial chairman. She has also been a state officer and president of the State Officers Club.

Also she is a member of the Mayflower Society, Magna Carta Dames, Dames of the Court of Honor and others. She belongs to the N.C. Literary and Historical Society and a member of the 400th Anniversary of America Commission.

Prospective members are invited to call Mrs. D. C. McLane Jr., 756-1927.

Duplicate Winners

Mrs. John Richards and Mrs. Tinsley Yarbrough were first place winners Wednesday morning in the duplicate bridge game played at Planters Bank. Their percentage was .657.

Others winning were Mrs. Eloise Gabbert, second; Mrs. Stuart Page and Mrs. Sidney Skinner, third; Mrs. Ginny Hall and Mrs. Barbara Close, fourth.

North-South winners in the Wednesday afternoon game were: Mrs. Wiley Corbett and Mrs. Barry Powers, first with .620 percent; Mrs. Mavis Smith and Mrs. Pat Conner, second; Mrs. Eli Bloom and Mrs. Stuart Page, third.

East-West: Mr. and Mrs. Andrew deSherbinin, first with .614 percent; Mrs. Fred Adams and Ms. Estelle Eastwood, second; Mrs. Elsie Williams and Emma B. Warren, third.

Saturday afternoon winners North-South included: Dr. and Mrs. Charles Duffy, first with .649 percent; Mrs. William Parvin and Mrs. George Martin, second; tied for third were Mrs. Fred Sorensen and Mrs. Bertha Jones with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew deSherbinin.

East-West: Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts and Ms. Estelle Eastwood, first with .583 percent; Mrs. Clifton Toler and Mrs. John Tayloe, second; Mrs. C. F. Galloway

Dear Abby

Reader Responds To Forgiveness

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You told ANONYMOUS in a recent column to resolve her anger, and then you quoted a line from a poem that was written by George Roemisch, a former schoolmate of mine. The quote: "Forgiveness is the fragrance of the violet on the heel of the one who crushed it." That is only part of his poem titled "Forgiveness," which I am enclosing in its entirety.

Thank you, Abby, for using that particular quote, for it reacquainted me with George's poem.

And thank you, George, wherever you are.

DONNA SMITH IN THE BRONX

DEAR DONNA: Unfortunately, space does not permit printing the entire poem, but the following portion merits quoting, and I thank you for it: "Forgiveness is the broken dream which hides itself within the corner of the mind, oft called forgetfulness so that it will not bring pain to the dreamer. 'Forgiveness is a God who will not leave us after all we've done.'"

DEAR ABBY: About 15 years ago, you wrote a column telling girls how to answer boys who asked them to prove their love by committing fornication, which is a sin.

Many teen-age girls cut that column out and carried it in their purses. Today's sex education makes it seem OK for teen-age girls to have sex as long as they "love" the boy. I wish you would reprint that column. It is badly needed now.

WASHINGTON, N.J.

DEAR N.J.: Here it is:

Girls need to "prove their love" through illicit sex relations like a moose needs a hat rack.

Why not prove your love by sticking your head in the oven and turning on the gas? Or playing leapfrog out in the traffic? It's about as safe.

Clear the cobwebs out of your head: Any fellow who asks you to "prove your love" is trying to take you for the biggest, most gullible fool who ever walked. That proving bit is one of the oldest and rottenest lines ever invented!

Does he love you? It doesn't sound like it. Someone who loves you wants whatever is best for you. But now figure it out. He wants you to:

- Commit an immoral act.
- Surrender your virtue.
- Throw away your self-respect.
- Risk the loss of your precious reputation.
- And risk getting into trouble.

Does that sound as though he wants what's best for you? This is the laugh of the century. He wants what's best for him... he wants a thrill he can brag about at your expense.

Love? Who's kidding whom! A boy who loves a girl would sooner cut off his right arm than hurt her. If you want my opinion, this self-serving so-and-so has already proved that he doesn't love you.

The predictable aftermath of "proofs" of this kind always finds Don Juan tiring of his sport. That's when he drops you, picks up his line and goes casting elsewhere for bigger, and equally silly, fish.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in my last month of pregnancy and my husband and I still can't resolve a serious disagreement. Jeffrey says if it's a girl I can name her anything I want, but if it's a boy, he wants to name him "Jeffrey Jr." Abby, I am very much against that. If we have a son, I want him to have his own name and his own identity.

I don't like nicknames, and I don't want our son going through life being called "Little Jeff" or, worse yet, "Junior."

I favor "Michael" for a boy's name. Jeffrey likes "Michael," but he insists that the only name he wants for our son is "Jeffrey." I suggested we forget both "Jeffrey" and "Michael" and select another name as a compromise. Jeffrey refuses to budge.

What do you think? I need some support.

PRAYING FOR A GIRL

DEAR PRAYING: Would your husband consider "Jeffrey" for the boy's middle name? If not, hang in there. Wanting your son to have his own name and his own identity is both valid and sensible. If you absolutely cannot agree, a compromise is the only fair solution.

Need For Funds Urgent

Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. has called for a $300 million bond issue for state water and sewer projects. The money is needed to supplement a 1977 bond issue because of cuts made in the federal budget for water and sewer grants. The governor indicated there is an urgency when he said he expects to meet with legislative leaders to determine if the bond proposal can be handled at the October session of the Legislature. "If there is time, I will urge them to do it," Gov. Hunt said. If the bill is approved in October the bond issue could be submitted to the voters as early as the spring primaries.

There is little question that the need is urgent. Greenville is one of the municipalities caught in the squeeze of badly needing a new sewage disposal plant with the prospects of federal aid virtually non-existent. Like many other cities Greenville has to build the plant to meet environmental standards and also because the present plant is nearing its capacity.

Thus the state bond issue could be critical to us. Without state or federal funding the entire cost of building the plant could fall on Greenville Utilities customers and city taxpayers. That cost could be awesome.

A Good Time To Clean Up

Mid-September is a good time to start a big Greenville clean-up effort. The worst of summer's heat is over; scrap paper, discarded cartons, bottles, cans and truckloads of utterly implausible litter have been accumulating for months on the roadsides. The beauty of the landscape is marred ... high time for some old-fashioned "housekeeping" by Greenvillites. The Greenville Beautification, Cleanup and Litter Control Committee is heading up the campaign. Yes, volunteers are needed; and why not? A clean, attractive Greenville is an asset to all its citizens, and the people are a natural resource to get things done. They will have help, but the basic chore of litter-hunting is up to the individuals and organizations who give a few hours of their time to an awfully good cause. Join'em, please!

Conservative Plan

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — While a new health care plan unveiled by Blue Cross-Blue Shield, and just endorsed by Insurance Commissioner John Ingram may sound startlingly new and revolutionary, it is really a quite conservative approach to change when viewed from the perspective of what is happening in other states around the country.

Clearly, planners of the North Carolina plan wish to avoid the backlash which can destroy efforts to launch innovative approaches to change in medical care, especially if those changes come too fast. The entire exercise nationally came from two forces: rapidly increasing medical costs far outstripping the normal inflation rate elsewhere in society; and the sense prior to the election of President Ronald Reagan that some form of national health insurance (otherwise known to opponents as socialized medicine) was waiting in the wings. The flames were fueled higher by two federal health care programs for the poor and the elderly — Medicaid and Medicare — which caused not only the federal budget and the Social Security fund to suffer strain, but state and local governments faced budget-straining increases.

Threat Medicaid alone, for example, is now hitting the North Carolina state budget for half-a-billion yearly; enough to cause Human Resources Secretary Sarah Morrow to worry that this service program alone will bankrupt the system at the grave damage to other human services. So elsewhere as in North Carolina, health experts, political leaders, legislators and the physicians themselves launched almost frantic explorations to figure out how to cap medical cost increases. This came at a time when the threat of a ceiling imposed in Washington was real, the entire subject was being thrashed out on hundreds of different planning room floors. Emerging from that exercise was the conclusion that the health care people themselves — those who profit from the system — has better come up with some alternative plans to combat rising costs; else the public or the federal government would cut the legs from under the "free enterprise" concept of medical care services. Dozens of alternative programs were devised, tested, discarded or kept around the nation. All, however, rotate around a central ingredient: a group of people joined together to contribute money to specified health care providers who, in exchange, provide full health care services. The concept is called Health Maintenance Organization. The premise underlying this approach is that competition from "cheaper" health care providers would cause the existing system to

To the editor:

How deplorable to lose so able and energetic a man as Tom Brewer.

Four years ago I was part of the protracted process of screening candidates for East Carolina's chancellorship, and Dr. Brewer was deemed the best prospect to move ECU forward, picking up from where Leo Jenkins left off. I have never regretted that choice.

We often determine the true nature or significance of an event by examining its wake. President William Friday pegs Tom Brewer as a courageous man. Chairman of the UNC Board of Governors John R. Jordan Jr. openly refutes complaints from "powerful individuals in the Greenville area," when they demanded his resignation. Going back even further, loyalty to Leo Jenkins, a fine man who almost singlehandedly brought ECU to major university status, was so fierce, so intense, that Dr. Brewer was being taken to task even before his arrival on campus.

Dr. Brewer acted in the best interests of the university by bringing in fresh and innovative persons. All leaders want people in key positions whom they feel are capable of carrying out new and different programs, and that is precisely what Tom Brewer did. To their credit, many old faces remained in their respective positions, while some faced mandatory retirement and others wished to return to the classroom. The notion that Dr. Brewer acted ruthlessly is pure nonsense.

The issue of loyalty has been raised. Where is loyalty when a businessman or football coach leaves one position to accept a better one? When Pat Dye left ECU, Brewer was taken to task — but why? When an ECU football coach has a winning season, he is faced with irresistible offers from the big schools and invariably departs. Hence, if Dr. Brewer was being wooed by other schools, it is axiomatic that he was doing a first-class job at ECU. An even if a board member was irked because strict protocol was not followed, the matter should have been treated with more discretion.

When you assess the progress at ECU in the quality of education, alumni programs, fund-raising and more, you'll find ample proof of Brewer's good work. East Carolina's loss will prove to be another institution's gain. I wish Tom Brewer well.

To the editor:

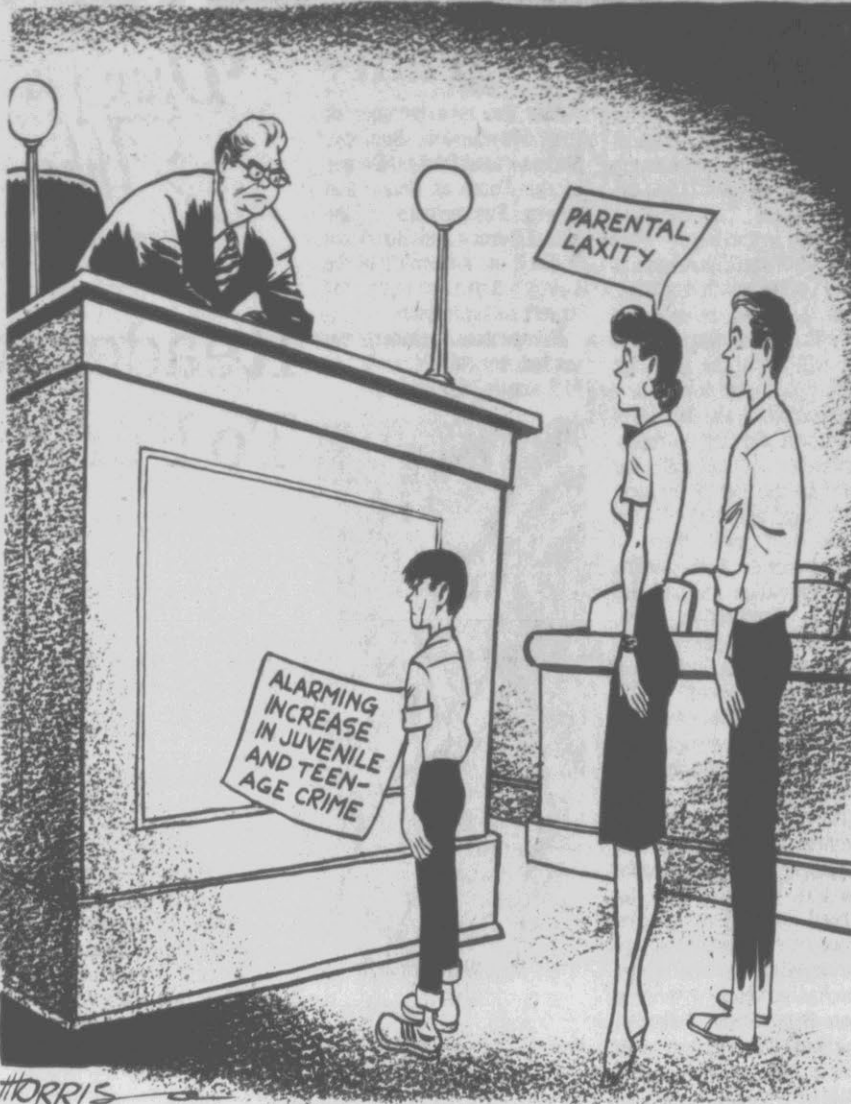

After reading the editorial in tonight's paper (Sept. 10, 1981), I feel that a comment is imperative, for loose reasoning has a way of compounding itself when not rebutted.

East Carolina University has been building. The internal changes which have occurred under the leadership of Dr. Thomas Brewer have changed this institution — in the short span of three years — from a mediocre local college into a school whose commitment to excellence has won respect among prospective student, younger faculty, and educators across this land. That more than a few locals have been mystified and perhaps offended in the process is of little consequence. Tom Brewer is a pro of a breed not often seen on this campus or others of less distinction than Princeton, Harvard, and M.I.T. To those of us who take our own professional life extremely seriously, he was the hope of the future. After 15 years at this "university," I can say that that future is somewhat in doubt at this point. I would also say that the activity of our new Board of Trustees' officers is somewhat suspect. If they truly had the best interests of East Carolina UNIVERSITY at heart, Tom Brewer would still be our chancellor.

In closing, I would say only that this year I have noticed a significant change in the average level of the freshman student enrolled at East Carolina. One class I teach, with an enrollment of 228 students, is simply remarkable. I have never seen such a complete change in the quality of student attending this University. Is it merely a coincidence, or have we failed to recognize the forest for the trees?

Nixon And The Yahoos

WASHINGTON — For the time being, at least, the ruckus has subsided over the proposed Nixon Library at Duke University, but given the nature of professors and the hysteria provoked by the very name of Richard Nixon, we may be certain that the pigeons will keep on flapping in this academic grove. What happened, in brief, is that representatives of the former president entered into talks with Terry Sanford, president of Duke, about establishing a library at the university. Like other presidential libraries at Abilene, Independence and Austin, the proposed Nixon library would house not only presidential papers but also presidential memorabilia.

President Sanford, no dummy, leaped at the prospect, but he was perhaps over-eager. He neglected to engage in the rain dance with tenured faculty members that ritual prescribes for such occasions. One thing led to another and the aggrieved professors, acting through their Academic Council, voted 35-34 against the proposition. The following day Duke's trustees showed better sense. Their executive committee voted 9-2 in favor of continued negotiations. There the matter rests, but an English professor who supports the proposal warned the trustees that the anger of his colleagues "is deep and it will not die."

Precisely so. Seven years have elapsed since Mr. Nixon, with the hounds of impeachment baying on his trail, abdicated his office and fled to the hills. You would think that seven years would suffice for even the deepest animus to subside, but it is not so in the matter of Mr. Nixon. Here the animosity endures. Let the poor fellow's name be mentioned, let his photo appear in the press, and the Nixon haters begin to salivate like Pavlov's dogs. There is a visceral reaction, based not in the cerebellum but in the gut. The passion persists with particular intensity among the literati who infect our institutions of higher learning. The most dicated old professor his juices drained and his bones creaking, leaps to rejuvenated life when an opportunity arises to belabor the arch-fiend.

In the matter at hand, the opposition of the Duke faculty is especially deplorable. In the roll call of presidents, or for that matter in the whole of our political history, how many truly fascinating characters does one find? Lamentably few. Jefferson, of course; the two Roosevelts, Lyndon Johnson; and among the never-made-its, Hamilton, Burr, Randolph of Roanoke, maybe Calhoun, Henry Cabot Lodge and William O. Douglas. The rest have no more pizzazz than Millard Fillmore.

But Richard Milhous Nixon — how his haters love to roll that middle name! — stands toward the head of the list. Of the writing of books about Mr. Nixon there will be no end. Political pathologists will be dissecting his papers

Advising The Boss Adviser

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, who is accustomed to giving advice to the president rather than taking it from someone else, has consented to listen to what his White House colleagues think about the worsening public image problems he has created.

"Ed agreed to talk to us," one senior aide confided, "but whether he does anything about it is another matter." What bothers colleagues is Meese's insensitivity in appearing to be the working head of the government, with President Reagan a figurehead.

Presidential aides believe this image hurts Ronald Reagan far more than it hurts Ed Meese. There are signs that the critical anonymous quotes by White House staffers in the brutal Newsweek article on the president's August vacation were meant to hit Meese but ended up scoring an unintended bulls-eye against Reagan.

Aid For Poland

President Reagan is putting final touches on a multibillion-dollar emergency aid program for beleaguered Poland on the strict condition that the communist government does not engage in "repression" of Solidarity, the Polish free-workers' union.

The Western aid package could total up to $3 billion over the next three years, with the U.S. picking up about one-third of it. The fact that Reagan is cutting the U.S. budget shows how important he thinks it is for the West to shore up Poland's economy and nurture what one presidential aide calls "a seed of democracy" in the communist empire.

American diplomats foresee little resistance from Moscow to massive infusion of Western aid for its wayward satellite. Instead, the Kremlin is believed likely to support the plan on the theory that if the West doesn't help prevent economic collapse of Poland, the Russians would be forced to do it themselves.

Reagan's Labor Go-Between Conservative Republican

consultant Roger Stone played the major backstage role in the remarkable Labor Day meeting at New York City's Gracie Mansion between President Reagan and Mayor Koch.

Secretary of Labor Ray Donovan is being given credit for blunting the anti-Reagan impact of the city's Labor Day parade by getting construction union leaders to come to the mayor's residence to stand by the president's side. But the go-between was Stone, a professional campaign planner based in Washington.

That incidentally helped Stone's New York prestige in his running feud with Sen. Alphonse D'Amato, the freshman Republican. D'Amato detests Stone and recently convinced former representative, Bruce Caputo to fire him as a strategist for his prospective Senate campaign.

Stockman Convinces Kemp

Hopes that Rep. Jack Kemp would come back from his California summer vacation pushing hard for changes in Reagan monetary policy were at least temporarily deflated after a dinner with David Stockman, an old congressional colleague whom Kemp successfully promoted for the budget director's post.

Kemp's supply-side economic advisers, led by Jude Wanniski, contend Stockman's new round of budget cuts will fail to bring down interest rates. They had been hoping that Kemp, a pioneer politician in the supply-side movement, would publicly downgrade the new budget reductions — especially defense cutbacks — and call instead for a return to the gold standard.

That was before Stockman dined at Kemp's home in the Maryland suburbs shortly after the congressman's return to Washington. Stockman told Kemp that the budgetary approach is essential and Kemp decided to hold his tongue for now. Even if Kemp goes public for the gold standard, he is not likely to follow Wanniski in combining it with an attack on

Strength For Today

NO ABSTRACT GOD

People often ask the question, "What is God like?" If one is asking for a detailed description, then of course there is no possibility of an answer. But God has given men a full revelation of His character and purpose by sending Jesus Christ into the world. When we look at Christ — God made Flesh — we perceive all the things about God which the human mind can understand.

Very evidently God is kind and loving, as Jesus was. God is all-powerful, as Jesus appeared to be when he commanded the forces of nature and they obeyed; when he commanded disease to depart and health to rush in and take its place. God is righteous, as Jesus was righteous and willing to give himself every day to the welfare of mankind, even though this sacrifice led to the cross.

Thus it may be hard for one to understand God when he thinks of Him in abstract terms, but it is not hard to understand Him when one sees Him set forth in the life and character of Jesus. — Elisha Douglass.

Inherent Contradiction, Too?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The question before the public is whether the new economic program that's supposed to thrust America into a new era has within it some inherent contradictions that might make it misfire.

Nobody has offered incontestable evidence of this because, alas, all theories of economics past or present can be and are debated. In fact, economics may have contributed more to debate than to understanding.

Seldom has the debate heated up so quickly as it has in the past month or so, a period in which the president rested on his laurels after an impressive public relations and marketing campaign for his program.

The second thoughts suddenly grew like weeds in an untended garden, and now they mar the public's image of the program. The critics now say the program isn't as unified, as neatly tied together, as was supposed. "Reagan is beating the horse and pulling the reins at the same time," announced Richard Day, a University of Southern California economist. High interest and continued inflation are partly the fault of the president, said Day last Friday, when the debate reached a peak.

What Day means is that the president is seeking to stimulate growth and productivity through tax cuts, but that he hasn't yet compensated for the expected lower revenues through comparable spending cuts.

In some respects, critics are saying, the president seeks both a conservative stance; that is, he wants to cut and he wants to spend too, especially in regard to the military.

Reagan has now promised further spending cuts, but it is probably a little late to quiet the critics. They've been examining his plan for the past month, convinced that it couldn't be as good as he had led them to believe. Now they have found ground on which to take a stand.

From campuses, businesses, Democratic think tanks and ordinary citizens, the questions are asked: —Does Reagan frustrate his own goals when he supports the Federal Reserve's tight money policy, which allegedly discourages investment, and still hopes the private sector will commit itself to new plants?

A tight Fed policy might be necessary, but there's no question it is driving many small businesses to insolvency. Small-business surveys confirm the devastation, and rising bankruptcy statistics document it.

—Can the economic recovery begin quickly and positively, or is there one big, difficult and painful economic reality that must first be faced? That is, is a recession still needed to kill off inflation?

The threat is said to exist, partly because an interim period of many months, at least, is thought to be needed before the private sector can pick up whatever slack results from government budget cutting.

—What can be done about the federal debt, the refinancing of which is a major factor in continuance of high interest rates? If there ever was a dilemma that required creative economics the debt problem is it.

Consider: The cost of maintaining that debt is the fastest growing part of the budget. It cannot be excised like a tumor, though it is one. It is immune to cutting, more so than military spending, because no edict of the White House or Congress can erase it without dire results.

Meanwhile, because interest rates are high the cost of maintaining the federal debt is now more costly than ever. By itself it can destroy the president's budget-balance plans.

And finally, the greatest irony of all: Because there is so much debt to finance it is keeping interest rates high. A dilemma: Rates are high because of the debt, and the debt grows higher because of the rates.

Like weeds, these questions and problems have moved into the garden while the president was away. Economics being a great mystery, it could be they will fade back into the ground from whence they rose.

More likely, the president is going to have to rip them up and cut them up, roots and all, and then explain to the public again why the newly cultivated garden is going to grow a healthy crop.

Dismisses Iran Assets Lawsuits

NEW YORK (AP) — A lawsuit filed by Iran seeking billions of dollars in damages and the assets here of the late Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi has been thrown out of state Supreme Court.

Saying New York was an "inappropriate forum" for the lawsuit, Justice Irving Kirschenbaum said Monday that he felt Iran or an international tribunal would be a more suitable site for the case.

He said the case would place "an unnecessarily heavy burden" on New York courts since it would involve events, laws and witnesses in Iran.

Attorney Paul O'Dwyer, a former New York City Council president and now representing Iran, told reporters he would appeal Kirschenbaum's 21-page ruling.

"That decision doesn't make any sense at all," O'Dwyer declared. "It suggests an international forum that is nonexistent."

Roger Boyle, a lawyer representing the late shah and his widow, Farah Diba Pahlavi, said: "This was an unusual case of impossible forum."

Robert Armao, a Pahlavi family spokesman present in the courtroom when the judge announced his decision, said he was "gratified" by the ruling.

The suit was filed by the Islamic Republic of Iran on Nov. 28, 1979, while Pahlavi was undergoing treatment at a New York hospital for a cancer that later took his life.

Iran complained that the shah had "abused his position of trust and confidence to enrich himself" and had diverted billions of dollars in government funds to his own use.

The suit sought both punitive and compensatory damages.

Attorneys for the Pahlavi family moved last February to dismiss the lawsuit, but Kirschenbaum had adjourned the case several times, citing the sensitive atmosphere surrounding the taking of the American hostages in Tehran.

O'Dwyer has a similar suit against the Shah's twin sister, Princess Ashraf. He said the Office of Foreign Assets Control had told him that she had $4,785,000 in assets here, including $3,775,000 in real estate.

put the brakes on price increases. Further, people would be encouraged to get preventive health care rather than waiting till the crisis hit. Preventing surgery is obviously less expensive than having it done.

The built-in incentives included bonuses for providers and for members of the group at year's end when funds were left over.

Varies

The ways in which the Health Maintenance Organizations get their health care vary according to local needs and notions. Some buy a hospital and staff it. Some build a clinic with a wide range of providers. Some merely hire the necessary health care providers in offices throughout the area where members live and will need care.

The North Carolina plan, says Blue Cross-Blue Shield President Thomas A. Rose, avoids actually hiring providers or buying clinics or hospitals, depending instead upon contracts with doctors who agree to provide services for members of the group under the plan while still seeing other fee-paying patients as well.

When legislative study commissions in this state had spent literally years exploring the various approaches to Health Maintenance Organizations, it was certain that a full-fledged hospital or clinic setup would run into stiff opposition from the medical community; that it would cost many millions to launch such a program and build it to the profit-making point — money which state government would not put up; and that many individuals would fight being forced to join a health care group, but would rather "shop" for services.

So where are the incentives for both providers and group members in the North Carolina Plan?

BULLETINS, ONLY
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel's state radio and television networks were silenced except for news bulletins Monday as 6,000 government technicians went on a three-day "collective vacation" to press money demands.

Nov. 28, 1979, while Pahlavi was undergoing treatment at a New York hospital for a cancer that later took his life.

Iran complained that the shah had "abused his position of trust and confidence to enrich himself" and had diverted billions of dollars in government funds to his own use.

The suit sought both punitive and compensatory damages.

Attorneys for the Pahlavi family moved last February to dismiss the lawsuit, but Kirschenbaum had adjourned the case several times, citing the sensitive atmosphere surrounding the taking of the American hostages in Tehran.

O'Dwyer has a similar suit against the Shah's twin sister, Princess Ashraf. He said the Office of Foreign Assets Control had told him that she had $4,785,000 in assets here, including $3,775,000 in real estate.

put the brakes on price increases. Further, people would be encouraged to get preventive health care rather than waiting till the crisis hit. Preventing surgery is obviously less expensive than having it done.

The built-in incentives included bonuses for providers and for members of the group at year's end when funds were left over.

Varies

The ways in which the Health Maintenance Organizations get their health care vary according to local needs and notions. Some buy a hospital and staff it. Some build a clinic with a wide range of providers. Some merely hire the necessary health care providers in offices throughout the area where members live and will need care.

The North Carolina plan, says Blue Cross-Blue Shield President Thomas A. Rose, avoids actually hiring providers or buying clinics or hospitals, depending instead upon contracts with doctors who agree to provide services for members of the group under the plan while still seeing other fee-paying patients as well.

When legislative study commissions in this state had spent literally years exploring the various approaches to Health Maintenance Organizations, it was certain that a full-fledged hospital or clinic setup would run into stiff opposition from the medical community; that it would cost many millions to launch such a program and build it to the profit-making point — money which state government would not put up; and that many individuals would fight being forced to join a health care group, but would rather "shop" for services.

So where are the incentives for both providers and group members in the North Carolina Plan?

View Defended By Producer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A CBS-TV producer Monday said the network's "Sunday Morning" segment on desegregation at the University of North Carolina "spelled out the issues at stake clearly and fairly." But Gov. Jim Hunt remained skeptical.

"It was a completely inadequate and unfair treatment of the efforts that have been made by the university's board of governors, the General Assembly and the people of this state," Hunt said in a telegram to Robert S. Northshield, executive producer of the "Sunday Morning" show.

A statement issued from Northshield's office later Monday said, "Our story dealt with the controversy over the Reagan administration action in leaving the desegregation of North Carolina's colleges to the state."

Northshield said the show was designed to probe "whether that action will result in further segregation in the system."

"We felt the story spelled out the issues at stake clearly and fairly, including the disagreement among blacks over the issues," Northshield said in the statement.

The show, which aired last Sunday, indicated that the 16-campus UNC system has made little progress toward desegregating its 11 predominantly white campuses and five predominantly black campuses.

UNC president William C. Friday said Sunday, "It is a great disappointment that a major news organization with the reputation of CBS would present such an inadequate and incomplete report."

Chancellor Albert Whiting of the predominantly black North Carolina Central University called the program "one sided ... dealing largely with irrelevant subject matter."

The show depicted white students at UNC-Chapel Hill and black students at NCCU, along with film clips of racial disturbances of the 1960s.

Ed Rabel, who narrated and reported the story for CBS, told The Associated Press on Monday, "We stand on the piece." Rabel refused further comment.

"Sunday Morning" host Charles Kuralt could not be reached and did not return repeated telephone calls.

Leadership Overriden By State Employees

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — An apparent revolt of the North Carolina State Employees Association's membership this weekend has led to speculation that the rank and file is either dismayed at its leadership or disgruntled by a delay in pay raises.

The convention refused to form a political action committee, ignored NCSEA president Clark Edwards' plea that the group remain affiliated with a national lobbying group and gave the leadership only one-third of the $9 dues increase it had sought.

In electing this year's officers, the convention almost broke its tradition of elevating the vice president to president. Ruby Hooper of Morganton came within 33 votes of upsetting Billy Blackman of Raleigh.

Mona Keach of Raleigh, who lost the vice president's race to Ivan Hill of Greenville, said, "The message is that the rank and file of state employees wants to be represented and it's not happening that way."

Mrs. Hooper and Mrs. Keach said the revolt resulted from a wish among delegates to oust NCSEA's established leadership.

Others, saying most of the convention's delegates consider themselves the establishment, said the whole weekend represented an emotional reaction to the absence of a pay raise this year.

The Legislature will consider a 1981 pay raise when it convenes next month for a short session. Legislative leaders maintain there is little money for a raise, and state employees may end up with only a small raise or a bonus this year.

Gov. Jim Hunt says $106 million is available — enough for a 4 percent raise.

"I wonder if it's not a reaction to not getting a pay raise," said Robert Scott of Lumberton, chairman of the resolutions committee, of the apparent revolt.

"I don't see this as a rebuff of the leadership," said association executive director Emmett Burden. "These were three issues with a lot of emotion and we did get a dues increase — not

UN Asked To Check Charges Of Chemical Warfare

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is asking the United Nations to investigate what it calls "strong and compelling" evidence that an outlawed chemical poison has been used during military operations in three pro-Soviet countries in Asia.

Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick asked U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim on Monday to send a four-man panel of experts to visit Cambodia, Laos and Afghanistan.

The panel was set up last year to investigate allegations of chemical warfare use in Asia, and Kirkpatrick offered to provide the unit with "significant new information."

At issue is the use of an agent described as "yellow rain," a yellow powder spread by aircraft over the ground, structures, vegetation and people. On contact with humans, it causes a variety of symptoms, including dizziness, choking and vomiting. Death often occurs within hours.

Briefing reporters on Monday, scientists from the State and Defense departments and from intelligence agencies said three potent mycotoxins — poisons typically produced in nature by living organisms — were used in the operations. They said no reliable casualty figures were available but added that estimates range into the thousands.

The experts, who asked not to be identified, stopped short of holding the Kremlin responsible for use of the agent, even though all three countries where it has been detected have pro-Moscow governments and receive aid from the Soviets to fight armed resistance movements.

Nonetheless, statements by the scientists and background papers provided to reporters left the clear impression that the administration believes the Soviets have been using the agent in violation of a 56-year old agreement banning chemical weapons.

Reporters were told that the agent is common to colder climates and that the Soviets have the capability to produce it in large quantities. Soviet-bloc countries have carried out extensive research on mycotoxins, and the agent has figured prominently in Soviet scientific literature since the 1930s, the officials said.

Hours before the briefing, the Soviet news agency Tass denied that the Soviet government has engaged in lethal chemical warfare in Asia and instead charged that the United States has used chemical agents against its enemies, including Vietnam.

The Tass account came in response to a statement Sunday by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. that the United States has "physical evidence" from Southeast Asia which has been found to contain "abnormally high levels" of mycotoxins.

U.S. officials acknowledged that the statements by the U.S. and Soviet governments will do nothing to ease mutual suspicion as Haig and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko prepare to hold their first meeting eight days from now.

Undersecretary of State Walter Stoessel conceded Monday that the evidence obtained by the United States was preliminary, but he said it still justifies long-standing U.S. concern about chemical warfare use in the three countries.

The U.S. evidence is based primarily on leaf and stem samples from Cambodia near the Thai border. The samples reportedly were gathered by military patrols from Thailand.

Most of the U.S. evidence is based on information from Cambodia and Laos. Reports of the use of chemical warfare agents from the two Indochina countries date back to 1976.

Menachem Begin Goes To Visit Ex-President

By JUDIE GLAVE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Bemedaled by New York City and hung in effigy by 10,000 Orthodox Jews, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin is ending his trip to the United States with a visit to former President Jimmy Carter.

Begin, who spent half of his U.S. visit in New York City, was to fly to Warner Robins Air Force Base in Macon, Ga., today and then take a helicopter to Plains, Ga.

After a welcoming ceremony at the softball field, the Israeli prime minister was to travel with Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, to their home for a private lunch before departing Plains in the afternoon.

In August, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was treated to a similar ceremony at the softball field and a private dinner at Carter's home.

Carter was instrumental in bringing the two Mideast leaders together in 1978 for meetings at the presidential retreat, Camp David. Those sessions led to a peace treaty between the two long-time adversaries.

On Monday night, Jews from throughout New York City swarmed onto an avenue near the hotel where Begin was delivering a speech to the National Leadership Assembly, made up of four major Jewish groups. Most of them wore the beards, black hats and black garb of Hasidic Jews. Hasidim are Orthodox Jews.

The demonstrators heard anti-Zionist speakers and watched as a bespectacled effigy of Begin was strung up. The crowd dispersed before Begin completed his hour-long speech. Police said there were no arrests.

It was the second time during the prime minister's New York visit that tens of thousands of Orthodox Jews have staged demonstrations to protest an archeological dig in Jerusalem at what they say is a centuries-old Jewish grave site. The protesters say the dig desecrates the memories of their ancestors.

Inside, Begin said President Reagan told him he understood Israel's concern about the proposed sale of 62 F-15 fighter bombers and five sophisticated radar planes — known as AWACS — to Saudi Arabia but intended to stand by his decision to sell the planes to Saudi Arabia.

"This is one thing on which we differed greatly," Begin told the group. He added that opposition to the arms sale was "one thing that we (Israel) will never, never change our opinion about."

Earlier Monday, Begin met with black leaders and received the city's highest award, the Gold Medal of the City of New York, at a City Hall reception with Mayor Edward Koch.

During his visit, Begin has said the Reagan administration's proposed sale of planes to Saudi Arabia "posed a grave threat to Israel's security."

Falkland Man Files For Mayor

FALKLAND — John L. Tyer filed this morning as a candidate for reelection as mayor of Falkland.

Tyer has, during the past year, filled the unexpired term of Mrs. Joan Strickland, who vacated the mayor's seat when she moved outside the town limits. Prior to that he was a town commissioner for one full term and one portion of a term.

JOHN L. TYER

A Farmville area native, he has lived in Falkland since 1974 when he moved back to Pitt County following his retirement from Southern Railroad. A member of the Falkland Presbyterian Church, he and his wife, the former Ruth Pittman, have two grown children, Jane Tyer of Falkland and Johnny Tyer of DeKalb County, Ga.

Special Meeting

The City Council has scheduled a special meeting for Thursday, Sept. 17 at 8 p.m. in the council chambers at city hall.

The purpose of the meeting will be to hear public comments on and consider adoption of an ordinance approving the city's participation in the Municipal Power Agency No. Three purchase of an ownership interest in several CP&L generating facilities.

Auto Death

BETHEL — Rayfield Williams of Route 1, Bethel, was killed in a one-car accident on rural unpaved road 1502 about 2.6 miles southeast of here about 6:20 p.m. Friday.

Investigating highway Patrolman D. R. Taylor said Williams was the driver of a car that rounded a curve at a high rate of speed, ran off the road, overturned two times and came to rest against a house owned by Leland Whitehurst.

Trooper Taylor said two passengers in the vehicle received minor injuries.

Damage was estimated at $1,000 to the car and $300 to the house.

Re-Licensing Just Her Own Oversight

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

"It's my fault. I made a mistake," Pitt Memorial Hospital Associate Director for Nursing Services Betty Trought said this morning of her failure to renew her nursing license for North Carolina.

Trought said that when she moved here from Durham in 1979, she sent her new address to the N.C. Board of Nursing, but somehow the change of address was never noted. So her renewal slip was never received and she let her licensure lapse seven months.

The irony of it all, she said, is that before she was sent a notice of the oversight, information about her non-licensure was given to the Associated Press in Raleigh. The AP called her last Thursday, she said, which was the first she knew of the problem. By Thursday night she was relicensed, having paid a $15 late renewal penalty, and the AP has decided the story was not worth pursuing.

Yet this weekend the same information was given to WNCN, Channel 9, here and the story was aired by that station yesterday.

"I regret my error and hope it, in no way, embarrasses the hospital," Trought said. "We routinely monitor licensure of the nurses who're out there on the floor giving patient care, but I wasn't on the list because it wasn't deemed necessary since I give no direct patient care. You can bet I am on the list now, though."

Throughout the seven months lapse, Trought has been licensed in four other states from which she did receive renewal notices from the boards of nursing, she said.

Hospital Director Jack Richardson said, "We think we're extremely fortunate to have such a dedicated and capable director of nursing services as Betty is. We feel she was so busy doing her job and doing it well that she let this technicality slip by her. It's behind us now and did no real harm."

Ayden Board Plans 2 Public Hearings

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — Two public hearings dealing with annexation and rezoning were scheduled and a special meeting on power agency no. three was set as the town board of commissioners held their monthly meeting last night.

A public hearing to discuss the annexation of Strawberry Banks no. two will be held at the next monthly meeting, October 12, along with a public hearing on rezoning 150 feet of property on the southside of highway 102. The property, owned by James A. Tripp, is being considered for rezoning from B-2 highway commercial to RA-20 agricultural.

On September 28 the town will conduct a special meeting to determine public opinion on the town's pending membership in the newly-formed power agency no. three.

The board heard a status report on the use of the town library. According to town manager Don Russell, 24,427 services were performed during the last year (from July, 1980 to July, 1981) at the library. Over 19,000 books were checked out and 10,467 persons used the facility.

"This certainly indicates we are utilizing our library," noted Russell. "It seemed to be one of the most-used services we have."

In other business:

— The board adopted a relocation plan and acquisition policy pertaining to the Community Development Program.

— Board members voted to allow the town meetings, both regular and workshop sessions, to be held on Tuesday should the first and second Mondays fall on a holiday.

— Funds for advertising in the Ayden-Grifton yearbook and Charger Club publication were approved. One hundred dollars per publication was allotted.

— Town manager Don Russell reported that bids for a compact truck for the Development Commission will be opened September 22.

— The board accepted an altered corporate excess tax, lowered from the previous year because of the town's lower tax rate. "The tax valuation is $28,000 higher than last year" reported town clerk Ralph Ford, "but because of our lower tax rate we will receive $3,495 less in tax revenues."

of volunteers with particular emphasis on needs existing in grades four through 12.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Wilder's presentation, Carolyn Ferebee, coordinator of the Greenville Community Schools program, said the next step "is to get the board to officially say that you want the Adopt-A-School program to become a part of the total school volunteer program."

A discussion was held on the possibility of the school system utilizing some type of energy management system. Dr. Tinglestad asked that at least one board member attend an upcoming seminar on the subject being held in Kinston. The board will amass data on systems and costs and consider this at a later date.

Items approved at Monday's meeting include approval of a maternity leave request and an addendum to the substitute teachers list.

Dr. Tinglestad commended Bob Steward on the results of an August inspection of school facilities by the City of Greenville's code enforcement supervisor. The brief reports notes that only a very few minor discrepancies were noted — such as a broken light bulb and a cracked window.

Charles Garrison, father of a student at Greenville Middle School, asked the board to consider a situation in which 38 students with a wide range of CAT scores — from 40 to 99, are all grouped together in one classroom. Dr. Blinson said he and John Carstarphen, principal at the Middle School, had met with Mr. and Mrs. Garrison previously, and were monitoring the situation.

"The issues involved here are fundamental," Dr. Blinson told the board. "It's a policy matter in organizing the school system, whether you're going to ask principals to group students based on achievement scores, or if other criteria will be taken into consideration."

U.S. Army Commander In Europe Terror Target

Syria Seeks A 'Closer' Soviet Pact

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian President Hafez Assad is seeking a closer military alliance with the Soviet Union to counter the growing U.S. military involvement in Israel and Egypt, a high-ranking Syrian official says.

"What other choice do we have when the U.S. wants to store weapons in Israel and carry out joint military maneuvers with the Israelis," said the official Monday, asking not to be identified.

"We are going to have to defend ourselves against this new phase of plotting and counterbalance this strategic agreement."

President Reagan and Prime Minister Menachem Begin agreed last week on a new "strategic partnership" which Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said might include joint military exercises and storing of U.S. military supplies in Israel.

The United States is already stockpiling arms in Egypt, another foe of Assad, and Egypt's defense minister said Monday they would hold joint military exercises next month for the third time in 15 months.

Syria has depended on the Soviet Union for arms and technical advisers for years, and last October Assad signed a 20-year treaty of friendship and cooperation with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

The treaty provided for cooperation to meet any threats to the peace or security of Syria or the Soviet Union and "development of cooperation in the military field."

Assad is also strengthening his Arab alliances against Israel and Egypt. Syrian officials said he would meet today in Libya with representatives of three other countries opposed to the Camp David peace agreements — Libya, Algeria and South Yemen — and with Yasser Arafat, the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Arafat reportedly has been at odds with Assad because of the Syrian president's support of Abu Nidal, a former associate of Arafat who wants to replace him and makes his headquarters in Damascus.

Syrian Prime Minister Abdel-Raouf Kasm said Monday that his government "is now concentrating all its efforts with other Arab states concerned with the American danger in order to take steps adequate to confront the American and Israeli alliance against the Arab nation." Syria's official news agency reported.

Saudi Arabia's government, despite its pending $8.5-billion arms deal with the Reagan administration 3a32aged in a statement Monday that the new military cooperation between the United States and Israel could plunge the Middle East into "a terrible armament race."

CELEBRATES IN CITY MOSCOW (AP) — A woman of the Caucasus Mountain region went to the city for the first time in her life and celebrated her 130th birthday recently with 67 neighbors — all of them reputed to be over 100, Moscow Radio reported Monday.

Remain Greenville Customer

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE — Winterville aldermen in their regular meeting passed a resolution saying it would remain a wholesale customer of Greenville Utilities when the switch to Carolina Power & Light Co. occurs.

The resolution said, "The board of aldermen has determined that it is in the best interests of the town of Winterville to meet its electric power needs by purchasing its electricity from the city of Greenville as a wholesale customer."

Additionally the document said, "The board of aldermen therefore deems it to be in the best interests of the town of Winterville to terminate its membership in North Carolina Municipal Power Agency Number three."

Alderman E. C. Hines commented, "It's to our advantage to stay with Greenville and we'll both get a reduction in rates."

In addition to the resolution, the board also approved a new electric rate schedule to go into effect September 20. The schedule is the same as one adopted by the city of Greenville recently.

In further business by the board, approval was given for curb and gutter on Jones Street, to North Street. Alderman Leland Tucker said some money for the curb and gutter project has already been paid to the town by one land owner, and he thought the project should be started.

Mayor Walter Dail told the board the town had been advised by the county that no more limbs and trash may be hauled to the old county dump site. The county has begun the dumpster project in the Winterville area.

The board also approved the advertising for paving of Baines Street, Walter and Ola Circle, and in front of the town municipal building.

Calvin Henderson asked the board for an advertisement in the souvenir booklet for the Pitt County Branch of the NAACP state meeting to be held in Greenville in October. The board approved a one-fourth page ad for the program.

Embezzling Is Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barbara Bowman, an in-law of Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., has been accused of embezzling $12,136 from the Senate post office, where she was chief clerk until directed to resign Sept. 1.

The 44-year-old Fairfax, Va., resident was charged in an "information" filed in U.S. District Court by the U.S. attorney's office. Informations are frequently used in cases where a defendant has agreed to plead guilty.

The document said Mrs. Bowman replaced some of the money before an audit was conducted by the General Accounting Office. It added that the shortage was uncovered by a second, surprise audit.

Mrs. Bowman is the niece of the senator's wife, Erma. She had been at the post office since September 1980 and was paid more than $24,000 per year.

Conviction could bring a maximum sentence of 15 years and a $20,000.

Church Group Hears Wooles

Dr. Wallace Wooles of the ECU School of Medicine, Department of Pharmacy, was the guest speaker at the Sunday morning breakfast meeting of Immanuel Baptist Men. He is a member of the Mayor's Advisory Commission and chairman of the Mayor's Task Force for Long-Range Planning.

He discussed the work of the task force and some of the recommendations that are conclusions of their work and discussions. He discussed areas concerning annexation, tax revenue and the utilities commission.

Dr. Wooles was introduced by Jim McGee, who presided at the meeting.

The next meeting of the Men's Brotherhood will be held Oct. 4 at 7:30.

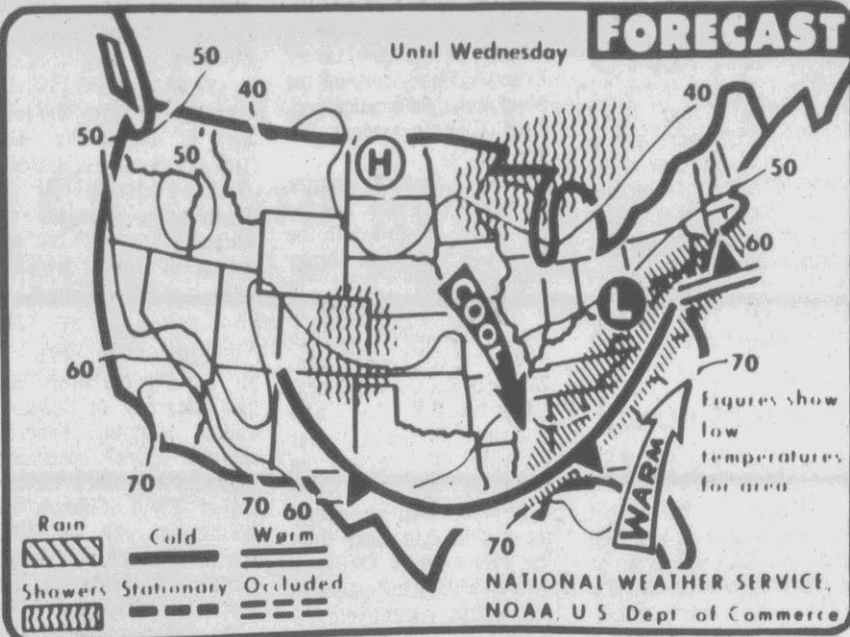

Revival Planned

Revival services will be held at the Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church beginning Wednesday and continuing through Sunday. Services will begin each evening at 7:30.

The guest evangelist will be the Rev. Harold Caudle of Hamptonville. He is a general evangelist of the Pentecostal Holiness Church.

Special singing will also be held each evening. The public is invited to attend, according to the Rev. Phillip Bland, pastor, and the congregation.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected in the forecast period until Wednesday from the central Gulf to southern New England. Showers are predicted for the southern Plains and the upper Great Lakes. Cooler weather is forecast for the central states. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Two warring weather systems split North Carolina into sunny and stormy fashions this morning, but the National Weather Service predicted rain would win the state by late Wednesday.

Eastern sections had sunny to partly cloudy conditions Monday as a weakening high pressure system moved off the coast. But to the west, a cold front stretching from New England to Texas advanced to the North Carolina-Tennessee border, pushing ahead of it showers and thunderstorms.

The front was expected to move through the Ap-palachians tonight, with some locally heavy rainfall in the mountains and foothills. The southeastern corner of the state will be free of showers until Wednesday, forecasters said.

Temperatures were expected to drop in the mountains Wednesday as high pressure from Canada begins to influence the weather, and a resurgence of fall-like air was predicted for the entire state by the end of the week.

The recreational weather outlook called for wet weather spreading over the mountains and Piedmont through tonight, bringing cloudy skies to the eastern part of the state, with a chance of afternoon thunderstorms. The chance of showers will increase across the state Wednesday, while a clearing trend begins to the west, forecasters said. Highs will be in the 70s and 80s today but cool into the 60s in the mountains Wednesday, with 70s and 80s elsewhere.

Along the coast, there was a 30 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms today, increasing Wednesday with coastal winds southwest at 10 to 20 mph.

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (AP) — Gen. Frederick J. Kroesen, the commander in chief of the U.S. Army in Europe, was slightly injured today in the fourth attack on U.S. government personnel in West Germany in two weeks, his headquarters announced.

West German police said Kroesen's sedan was hit by two grenades fired from a woods on the outskirts of Heidelberg, where his headquarters is located.

A police spokesman said a grenade launcher apparently was used, demonstrating a "new quality" of terrorism. He said it was the first use by terrorists in West Germany of a military-style weapon.

Kroesen, 58, was "treated for superficial injuries at the U.S. Army hospital in Heidelberg and was released," said a statement from his headquarters.

The other occupants of the car — the general's wife, an aide and the driver — were unhurt, an Army spokesman said. But the car, which had an armor-reinforced body and other protective equipment, was badly damaged, police said.

Kroesen went to his office after he was released from the hospital and told reporters he did not see the attackers.

After the grenades exploded, he said, "the car stopped and I looked to see if my wife was all right, and waited to see what was going to happen next."

"We looked to see if everyone had arms and legs in order," then the driver found he could start the car and drove away. The car also came under small-arms fire, but "none of them penetrated the car."

Police said two persons were seen in the area shortly before the attack, but no arrests were made immediately.

Kroesen, whose stateside residence is in Burlington, N.J., is a much-decorated 40-year Army veteran who enlisted during World War II and also fought in Korea and Vietnam. He is believed to be the highest-ranking U.S. officer to be attacked in Germany since World War II.

The West German government condemned the attack and said it resolved "to do everything to guarantee the safety of U.S. troops, who are stationed in the Federal Republic for the protection of Western Europe."

The current rash of anti-American attacks coincides with a growing movement against the stationing of medium-range American nuclear missiles in West Germany as part of a NATO plan to counter Soviet missiles targeted on Western Europe. But it is believed that the anti-American attacks are the work of West German anarchists taking advantage of the anti-nuclear movement.

In the first attack, a car bomb in the parking lot of the U.S. Air Force headquarters at Ramstein injured 18 Americans including a brigadier general and two West Germans on Aug. 31.

Several cars belonging to U.S. troops were set afire in Wiesbaden several days later. Firebombs were thrown at the residence of the U.S. consul-general in Frankfurt early Sunday, but no one was injured.

The Red Army faction, the name used by the Baader-Meinhof gang of German urban terrorists, said it was responsible for the Ramstein bombing.

The group was organized in the late 1960s by Andreas Baader and Ulrike Meinhof to combat what they called "U.S. imperialism." West German capitalism and American involvement in Vietnam.

Heidelberg, where 240,000 American troops are based, was the site of a 1972 Baader-Meinhof bomb attack that killed three people in a U.S. Army barracks. Baader, Miss Meinhof and several other Red Army leaders were arrested in the aftermath of that attack.

Miss Meinhof was found hanged in her cell in 1976. Baader and two other jailed members of the gang were found shot to death in their cells a year later. The government said they committed suicide, but their supporters claimed they were murdered by the government.

Right-Wing Win In Norway Voting

OSLO, Norway (AP) — A conservative coalition has won enough seats in Parliament to replace the Labor government of Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland.

With more than 95 percent of the votes counted, Labor Party spokesmen conceded Monday that a ticket led by Conservative Party leader Kaare Willoch had ended eight years of socialist government.

Willoch, 52, said he would begin negotiations Wednesday with leaders of the Christian Democratic Party and the Center Party to form a government.

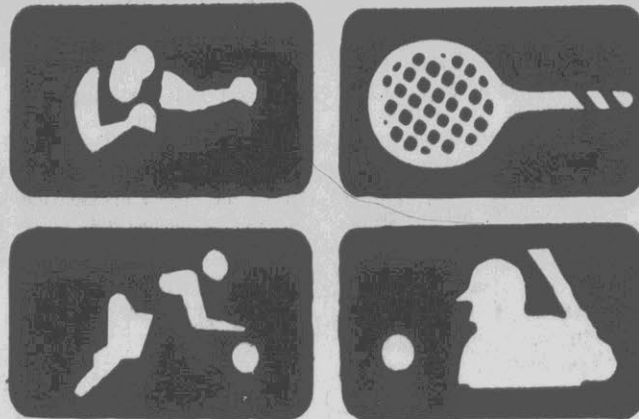

"Our prime goal is to form a three-party coalition by Oct. 12," he said.

Willoch's coalition campaigned for less taxes and government spending and more cooperation with other members of the NATO military alliance.

Mrs. Brundtland's government froze prices last month in an effort to combat 14 percent inflation. She was one of the first Western leaders to criticize President Reagan's decision to proceed with the assembly of neutron warheads.

A computer projection this morning gave the Conservatives 53 seats, the Christian Democrats 15 and the Center Party 11 for a total of 79 seats in the 155-member Storting, the Parliament.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced slightly in quiet trading today, aided by some declines in interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.62 to 869.77 by noon.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 7-6 margin in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Several large banks today lowered their prime lending rates from 20 1/2 to 20 percent, joining in a reduction begun by New York's Chase Manhattan Bank more than two weeks ago.

A drop in open-market money rates that began last week, meanwhile, continued today.

Analysts said traders were responding cautiously to the news, however, with doubts still widespread about the prospects for any sustained decline in interest rates.

AMP led the active list, down 2 at 45 1/4. A 356,300-share block traded at 45 1/4.

Zapata fell 2 1/2 to 30 1/4. The company rejected Occidental Petroleum's takeover offer, valued at about $36 a share, as "grossly inadequate."

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .24 to 70.03. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 2.64 at 324.80.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 15.73 million shares at noon, against 15.18 million at the same point Monday.

Stud Gun Shoots Worker

A carpenter with the Pitt County Buildings and Grounds Department narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when shot through the arm with a stud gun in the basement of the Court House.

Officials said workers were using the stud gun to place studs in a wall when the gun malfunctioned. One worker left the gun on a ladder and when Ed Dixon of 108 North Jarvis St. moved the ladder, not knowing the gun was on top, the gun fell to the floor and fired.

The metal stud passed through the fleshy part of Dixon's arm.

Dixon was treated for the injury and returned to work this morning, a spokesman said.

The incident occurred about 4:30 p.m.

Escalator Caught 2 Hours Later

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Kenly man who escaped from the Triangle Correction Center Sunday night was recaptured two hours later in the nearby Method community, a center spokesman says.

John Lee Reason, 20, allegedly escaped around 8:45 p.m. by climbing through a window and over prison fences, said Lt. L.G. Keith. Reason was captured about 10:40 p.m., he said.

Pitt Jury Seated

KINSTON — Fourteen Pitt County residents were selected yesterday as jurors in a murder case being tried in Lenoir County Superior Court.

The 14 people — 12 jurors and two alternates — were selected from a special venire of 38 prospective jurors sent to Kinston by bus yesterday.

They are sitting in the Chris Basden trial.

Basden, suspended assistant chief of the LaGrange Police Department, is charged with second degree murder in the shooting death of Links Graham, a 72-year-old LaGrange man.

Graham, a former mental patient at Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro, was shot and killed April 26, as Basden and a Lenoir County sheriff's deputy attempted to arrest him for indecent exposure.

The officer allegedly shot Graham in the chest after Graham allegedly attacked Basden with a wooden board and an iron pipe.

Basden has been suspended without pay pending the outcome of the trial.

An employee of the LaGrange Police Department for about five years, Basden has previously been a policeman in Greenville, Ayden, Jacksonville, Carolina Beach, Smithfield, Warsaw and Mount Olive.

Ernie Hargett Attends Meet

Ernie Hargett of Greenville attended the Cancer Management/Calcium Antagonist Seminar held Friday at the UNC School of Pharmacy, Chapel Hill.

The event was co-sponsored by the School of Pharmacy and the N.C. Society of Hospital Pharmacists and was planned to provide pharmacists and allied health practitioners with a solid information base in the areas of cancer management and the new class of drugs, calcium antagonists, used in cardiac care.

Hargett is associated with Hargett's Drug Store, 2500 S. Charles Street here.

Bethel Council Hears Reports

BETHEL — The Bethel Council of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, at its regular meeting, heard a report from Ramon Latham, chairman of the Economic Development Committee on the "Shopping Days" event held earlier this month.

Latham told board members the event was "successful" and that work is continuing on the Governor's Award of Excellence program for Bethel.

Robert Young, chairman of the organization and membership committee told the board Attorney General Rufus Edmiston will be the featured speaker at the Pepsi Break scheduled for October 5 from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 at the Rotary Building.

Clem Williams, James A. Nelson and the Bethel United Methodist Church were accepted as new members of the Bethel Council at the meeting.

Councilwoman Attends Meet

City Councilwoman Judy Greene recently attended a meeting of the Legislative Committee of the N.C. League of Municipalities.

Committee members received an update on legislation affecting municipalities which may be considered when the General Assembly meets in October. Legislative issues discussed were the ABC tax, local option sales tax, water and sewer funds, and the governmental employees retirement system.

Mrs. Greene was appointed to the committee last June.

Car Overturns; Is Damaged

Kim Lanier Smith of 103G Cedar Ln. was charged with exceeding a safe speed following investigation of a 9:15 a. m. collision yesterday on Cedar Lane, 150 feet south of the Wright Road intersection.

Investigating officers said the Smith car ran off the roadway and overturned, causing an estimated $3,000 damage to the vehicle.

Defense Just As Potent For Oakland

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Balanced scoring doesn't always mean the running-passing ratio. At times it can be an offensive-defensive ratio. Whatever, the Oakland Raiders have it.

That balance between offense and defense was evident in the Raiders' 36-10 romp over the struggling and injury-plagued Minnesota Vikings in the National Football League's Monday night showcase event.

"For a time there I wasn't sure whether our defense might not outscore the offense," said quarterback Jim Plunkett, who tossed two touchdown passes but also watched his teammates score a pair of touchdowns on an interception return and a fumble return.

Burgess Owens picked off a

Steve Dils screen pass and sprinted 30 yards for Oakland's first touchdown in the second quarter for a 10-0 lead. Midway through the fourth quarter 12-year veteran Cedric Hardman scooped up a fumble by rookie quarterback Wade Wilson and rumbled 52 yards untouched into the end zone to give the inspired Raiders a 30-10 lead.

"They teach us from day one that you pick up the ball and go," said Hardman, who grabbed the ball after a hit by teammate Howard Long forced Wilson's fumble.

The defending Super Bowl champion Raiders were coming off a 9-7 loss to Denver last week and were determined to get back on the track to the playoffs. Oakland also kept intact its incredible success record for Monday night games, recording its 13th consecutive victory and raising its overall record to 17-1-1 since 1970.

"We kept our Monday night record alive with a powerful performance both offensively and defensively," said Flores. "And we needed it after losing to Denver last Sunday."

Plunkett fired scoring passes of 21 yards to Todd Christensen and 12 yards to Morris Bradshaw. Chris Bahr added a 21-yard field goal and backup Marc Wilson lofted a 61-yard TD pass to Malcolm Barnwell with just 4:14 to play to round out the scoring.

Minnesota's only touchdown came courtesy of Eddie Payton, who returned a Bahr kickoff 99 yards for a TD late in the first half to cut Oakland's lead to 16-7.

"We played the world champions and they kicked our butts, no matter how you spell it," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant, whose club dropped to 0-2, the Vikings' worst start since 1967.

The Raiders sacked Minnesota quarterbacks eight times and held the Vikings to just 42 yards rushing — 27 of those in the Vikings' final possession late in the game — but had to overcome 124 yards in penalties.

"There were a lot of flags, especially ours," Plunkett admitted.

Oakland lost safety Mike Davis in the first three minutes of the game with a broken leg.

I'll Take That

Kiffin Worried Wolfpack Will Try To Duplicate Carolina Romp

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State coach Monte Kiffin knows there is a big difference between a great and a good football team.

"We're not a great football team. We're a good football team. Great football teams put people away when you got them 21-6 or 21-12," Kiffin said Monday at his weekly news conference.

The Wolfpack had Wake Forest in that situation Saturday but had held the Deacons off in the final period for a 28-23 win.

True, Kiffin is pleased with his team's 2-0 mark but he is not deluded by it.

"Look at Richmond and Wake Forest," Kiffin said of the Wolfpack's two opponents so far. "In all due credit to their teams and coaching staffs, they're 0-4. We haven't beat a team yet that's won a football game.

The defensive secondary has been criticized for its performance this season after been highly touted early on. It has been touched for 369 yards and three touchdowns in two games. But that doesn't bother Kiffin, who believes the secondary is improving. Nor does it bother defensive back Donnie LeGrande.

LeGrande had nine tackles, an interception and broke up three passes against Wake Forest. His feelings are the secondary "will jell soon."

Kiffin's attitude is not all concern.

"We've turned into a good running football team," he said proudly. "You've got to be pleased when you gain over 300 yards two weeks in a row."

The main reason for that running game is freshman tailback Joe McIntosh, who has come off the bench to rush for 351 yards in two games. Against Wake Forest he had 220 yards and two touchdowns and didn't play in the first quarter. McIntosh has earned the starting spot in this Saturday's game with East Carolina.

Kiffin called it "a promotion for Joe," not a demotion for starter Larount Lawson who has gained 159 yards in two games.

"Talking about Joe, he makes things happen," Kiffin said. "I think Joe kind of ignites our football team."

Senior Dwight Sullivan also has wrestled the fullback spot from sophomore John Peterson.

Kiffin is concerned, however, about the upcoming battle with East Carolina. The Pirates were embarrassed by 10th-ranked North Carolina 56-0 Saturday.

"This game can make their season," he said of the Pirates. "If they come over and beat N.C. State, people will forget about the Carolina game."

"This is the kind of game in which you have to work hard on motivation. I hope our players don't try comparing ourselves to Carolina and try to beat them worse. We'll be out there three days trying to score 56 points. I just want to win 7-6."

The wishbone offense the Pirates run will also be a big adjustment for the Wolfpack because, Kiffin said, "All we've seen so far is pass, pass, pass."

Game time is 7 p.m. Saturday in Raleigh. N.C. State holds an 8-3 edge in the series between the two schools, winning 36-14 last year.

Shedrick Is 1st Winner

George Shedrick of 218 Commerce St., Greenville, is the winner of the first week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Shedrick correctly picked the winners in 27 of the 32 games listed in last Tuesday's paper. He gained the win, however, on the basis of his point total, guessing 68 points would be the most scored by two teams in any one of the games. The actual total was 66.

Second place went to Darlene Howell of 211-A Stancill Dr., Greenville, who also missed five, but was further off the point total with a guess of 70.

Two other entrants also missed five, but were further away in their point guesses. The second of the ten weekly contests appears on the following pages.

Bryant Milestones Bring Him Conference Honors

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Georgia Tech linebacker Rob Horton and defensive back Terry Kinard of Clemson have been named defensive players of the week in the Atlantic Coast Conference, league officials announced Monday.

Horton, a 6-0, 225-pound sophomore from Matter, Ga., made his first start for the Yellow Jackets as they upset No. 2 ranked Alabama 24-21. He amassed 22 tackles as Georgia Tech limited the Crimson Tide to eight points in the second half.

Kinard, a junior free safety from Sumter, S.C., was instrumental in Clemson's 13-5 win over Tulane, making 12 tackles and gathering in his second interception of the year. He helped hold Tulane to a field goal and a safety.

This week's offensive players were Kelvin Bryant, a junior tailback at North Carolina, who led the Tar Heels to a 56-0 thrashing of East Carolina, and tackle Chris Koehne, who held down the North Carolina State offensive line in a 28-23 conference victory over Wake Forest.

The 6-2, 195-pound Bryant had one of the most outstanding days for a running back in recent conference history, rushing for 211 yards on 19 carries and posting an ACC and UNC record six touchdowns. The Tarboro, N.C. native's effort was the seventh highest total ever for a Tar Heel runner.

ference victory over Wake Forest.

Koehne, a 6-6, 272-pound senior from Cincinnati, Ohio, helped clear the way for 394 total yards by N.C. State runners — their best effort since 1977.

This is the second time in their college careers that Bryant and Koehne have been named offensive players of the week. Both players were also chosen for the week of Nov. 19 last season.

Bo Gets Sympathy Call From Hayes

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler got a telephone call from his old mentor Woody Hayes, and it helped ease the pain of the Wolverines' humiliating upset at Wisconsin.

Schembechler would not divulge details of the conversation, but he chuckled at his weekly news luncheon Monday just thinking about it. "I'm really glad he called," was all Schembechler would say.

The call from the former Ohio State coach took away the sting for Schembechler and, now, the Michian coach wants to help soothe the injured pride of his young quarterback.

Schembechler says he will not allow sophomore Steve Smith to be destroyed by his performance in the season opener.

Smith, getting his first start, completed only three of 18 passing attempts and had three interceptions as the Wolverines were defeated 21-14 and dumped from their No. 1 ranking.

"Smith didn't have a good day, but I think in time he'll be a good quarterback," Schembechler said. "I won't let this hurt him. I told him going in that he's my quarterback no matter what happened."

Schembechler said he felt Smith's running against the Badgers more than made up for his passing jitters. The 18-year-old quarterback gained 40 yards on 11 carries, including a 6-yard touchdown dash.

"We could have won with Smith's performance," Schembechler said.

Fullback Stanley Edwards agreed with his coach.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Lopes Out To Steal Fans' Hearts

By The Associated Press

Davey Lopes hopes to steal back the hearts of Los Angeles Dodgers fans with his fast bat and quick feet.

He showed both to good advantage Monday night while helping the Dodgers beat the San Diego Padres 10-5.

"He looks like the Lopes of old," said Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda after watching Lopes belt four hits, including a three-run homer, and drive in four runs. "He can beat you so many ways — base hits, stolen bases and hitting the ball out of the park."

After struggling below the .200 mark for most of the season and incurring the wrath of Dodger fans, Lopes has come to life in September as a hitter. Coming off a groin injury that sidelined him for two weeks, the 35-year-old veteran has collected 14 hits in his last 35 at bats for a .400 clip.

"I wanted him to know he wasn't going to lose his job when he was on the disabled list," said Lasorda. "I told Davey when he was ready to come back, he was our second baseman."

Lopes: "I never lost confidence in myself. There has been no pressure. Pressure is when you are afraid of failure. It makes me believe in myself even more. I felt given the opportunity I would produce, regardless of what other people think."

Lopes' homer keyed a six-run seventh inning for the Dodgers. The game was tied 4-4 when Mike Scioscia and Mike Marshall each stroked two-out pinch singles off reliever Eric Show, 0-2, to start the rally before Lopes blasted his fifth homer of the year. Lopes, hitting just .202 at the start of the game, led a 17-hit Dodger attack against six Padres pitchers and also stole a base.

Rookie Ted Power, 1-1, got the victory, working 22-3 innings in relief of Dodger starter Burt Hooton.

Giants 4, Braves 2

Jerry Martin capped a three-run first-inning outburst with a two-run single, sparking San Francisco over Atlanta. Martin's single off loser Tommy Boggs, 3-11, followed two Atlanta errors and two walks, the second one a base-loaded pass to Milt May that gave the Giants their first run.

The Giants increased their lead to 4-0 in the fourth when Martin tripled and scored on Johnnie LeMaster's squeeze bunt. The Braves scored their runs off Tom Griffin, 8-6, in the fifth on an RBI single by Bob Horner and a sacrifice fly by Chris Chambliss.

Reds 4, Astros 2

Bruce Berenyi hurled a four-hitter and Johnny Bench drove in three runs with three hits to pace Cincinnati over Houston.

Berenyi, 8-5, allowed two runs in the first inning but settled down to retire 21 straight batters and 24 of the next 26 he faced before Dennis Walling singled with two down in the ninth. Berenyi struck out 12 and walked one in giving Houston its first home loss in 13 starts and only its second defeat at home during the second season.

To The Editor:

How can Ed Emory expect the fans and players not to give up on ECU football this year when he and his coaches gave up themselves after only one half (actually after 3 UNC touchdowns) Saturday?

Any coach big or small knows that when your game plan has failed you need to try something else. But there we were, 42 points behind in the 3rd quarter still running the imperfect wishbone with very little variance. We even had the same quarterback running the offense most of the second half.

Georgia Tech upset Alabama so the lesser of two teams can perform miracles, but you need to have a coach who believes in miracles and doesn't quit when things get tough.

I have supported the Pirates for 16 years under a multitude of coaches and various degrees of good and not so good teams. I have cheered until my voice gave out, but I too feel like quitting this year, but I can't. I only hope Coach Emory and his staff see what's happening before the players and fans do become quitters. I don't think we could handle another season like last year where the coaches and players only went through the motions to earn their keep!

Let's go Ed. Wake up the Pirates. There's no time like the present to become winners once again! You can do it!

Jerry Remy's Hit Helps

Boston Defeat Detroit

By The Associated Press

Jerry Remy won't win any runs-batted-in titles, but he's not such a bad guy to have at the plate in a crucial situation.

The diminutive Boston second baseman never has had more than 46 RBI in a year and has averaged only one home run for each of his seven major-league seasons.

However, he is hitting .325 this year and has a .411 average with men on base. And his two-run single with the bases loaded and two outs in the sixth inning Monday night propelled the Red Sox to a 5-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

"I wish I knew the secret because I'd do it for the next five or six years. I've just been lucky," said Remy, who has 28 RBI in 71 games this year. "I concentrate as hard as I can every time. I'm a leadoff man and my job is to get on base. I'm just lucky the guys on the bottom of the lineup are getting on base."

Boston's victory was particularly crucial because the Tigers are in first place in the AL East. With three games left in the series with Detroit, the Red Sox, now 3 1/2 games behind, can make up ground or fall far off the pace in the race.

"These games are critical," said Remy. "Here's our chance to gain ground. We're playing a team in first place."

But Bob Stanley, who won his ninth game in 15 decisions with 31-3 innings of shutout relief Monday, said the Red Sox are feeling far less pressure under new Manager Ralph Houk this season than in past years when controversy surrounded Manager Don Zimmer.

"We're loose. We don't have the pressure on us like we did the last couple of years, which should help us," said Stanley. "I think Ralph has a lot to do with it. He keeps us loose. Win or lose, he's joking."

With the score tied 2-2 in the sixth, Remy lined his two-out single to left-center off Dan Petry, 8-7, after Tony Perez and Rich Gedman singled and pinch-hitter Dave Stapleton walked to load the bases. The Red Sox added a run in the seventh on Perez's RBI single.

Steve Kemp knocked in both Detroit runs off starter Mike Torrez with a groundout in the first and his ninth home run of the year in the sixth.

Boston tied the game 1-1 in the first when Carney Lansford singled in a run and went ahead 2-1 in the third on Jim Rice's 14th homer.

Yankees 10, Brewers 2

Reggie Jackson hit a two-run homer and an RBI double and knocked in a fourth run with a groundout as New York pounded Milwaukee.

Lou Piniella and Bob Watson also homered for the Yankees, who cut Detroit's lead in the East to two games.

Tommy John won his ninth game in 14 decisions with a nine-hit complete game. One of the hits was Charlie Moore's first homer of the season.

Twins 6, Blue Jays 3

Minnesota continued to play well, winning its seventh game in a row behind Brad Havens' three-hit pitching for seven innings.

The Twins scored three runs in the eighth inning to break a 3-3 tie. The first run came home when Roy Lee Jackson issued a bases-loaded walk to Glenn Adams, and then Ron Washington, a 29-year-old rookie, picked up his first major-league RBI with a two-run single.

Hosken Powell homered in the third inning for the Twins.

A's 5, Rangers 2

Cliff Johnson doubled and scored a run in the first inning and added a two-run single in the second as Oakland took control early and coasted to victory over Texas behind the seven-hit pitching of Rick Langford.

The A's right-hander had trouble only in the second inning when he gave up singles to Buddy Bell, Pat Putnam and Jim Sundberg, plus an RBI grounder by Tom Poquette.

Langford improved his record to 9-9 in pitching his 15th complete game.

Royals 4, Angels 3

Don Baylor hit a three-run homer in the first inning, but California didn't score again and lost for the ninth time in 10 games when Frank White hit a two-run homer for Kansas City in the eighth inning.

Bruce Kison, who was starting a game for the first time since July 14, 1980, after undergoing surgery on his right wrist and elbow, had a five-hitter and a 3-1 lead going into the eighth. He was relieved by Andy Hassler after a double by U.L. Washington and Willie Wilson's RBI single before White's game-winning homer.

Washington homered for the Royals' first run.

White Sox 5, Mariners 2

Dennis Lamp pitched a five-hitter to improve his record to 6-4 and Jim Morrison homered for Chicago against Seattle.

The White Sox got three runs in the eighth inning when Chet Lemon's RBI single skipped by center fielder Joe Simpson for an error that also let Lemon and one other runner score.

Waltrip Closes

On Point Lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) —

Racing veteran Darrell Waltrip has moved to within three points of Bobby Allison's lead in the NASCAR Winston Cup point standings following his third-place finish in last weekend's Wrangler-SanforSet 400 at Richmond, Va.

Allison, who has held the lead most of the year in the race for the Grand National driving title, has amassed 3,648 points to Waltrip's 3,645. Harry Gant is third with 3,373, followed by Ricky Rudd, 3,225, and Terry Labonte, 3,194.

Dale Earnhardt heads the second five with 3,128 and rounding out the top ten are Jody Ridley, 3,066; Richard Petty, 3,051; Benny Parsons, 2,883, and Dave Marcis, 2,770.

Allison also leads the series' money-winning list with a season's total of $438,050. Waltrip has earned $382,365; Petty, $322,300; Rudd, $286,925; Earnhardt, $286,125; Parsons, $231,420; Labonte, $219,990; Gant $191,790; Ridley, $179,770, and Cale Yarborough, $135,755.

Morgan Shepherd continues to lead the Champion Spark Plug Rookie Challenge with 221 points. Tim Richmond is second with 198 and Ron Bouchard third with 184.

Poland and Britain finished first and second, respectively, in the recent European Championships. In so doing, both earned the right to represent Europe in the world championships to be held in Port Chester, N.Y., starting Oct. 19. This hand is from the match between these two teams, won handsomely by Britain.

North's bid of two diamonds was forcing Stayman. His bid of three diamonds after East had shown diamonds by doubling was a request that partner bid the no trump game if he held a diamond stopper.

The same contract was reached in both rooms. When the British declared, East did not have the opportunity to double diamonds for a lead, so declarer received a spade lead which gave him time to set up three club tricks to make his contract.

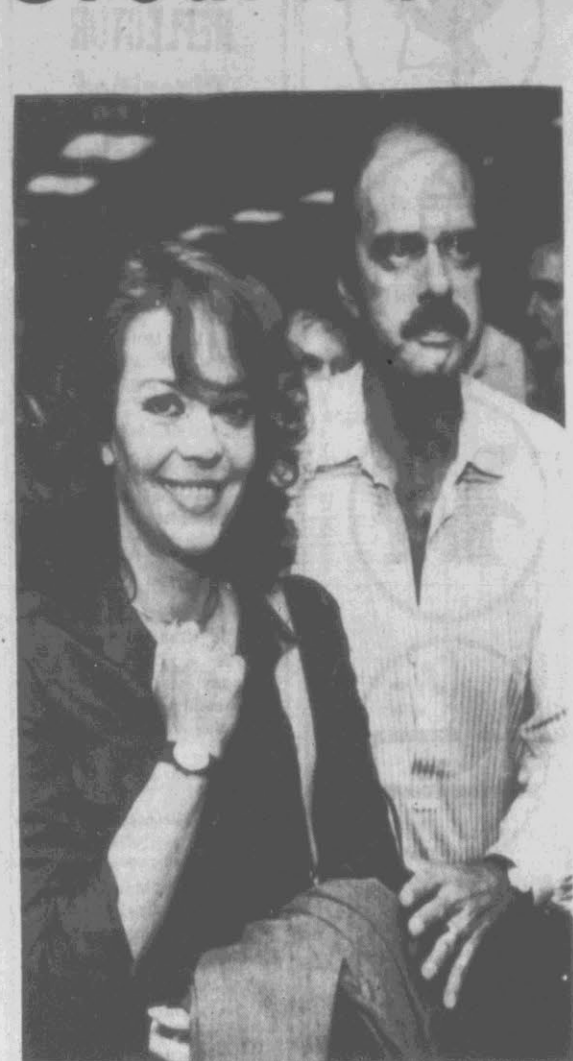

In the other room, Bob Sheehan, East, doubled two diamonds for the lead, and his partner, Irving Rose, obliged. Sheehan made his first fine play when he followed with a low diamond to trick one, forcing declarer to win the jack. Declarer led a club to the queen, and Sheehan ducked smoothly!

Convinced that the club ace was to his right, declarer continued with a low club from dummy and allowed East's ten to win. East reverted to the king of diamonds and another, to force out declarer's last stopper.

Still oblivious to what was in store for him, declarer saw no harm in trying to set up one or two long clubs, so he continued that suit. Disaster! East won the ace of clubs and cashed two winning diamonds for a one-trick set.

If the British can attain a degree of consistency, they will be formidable opponents in the world championship.

Great Idea Becomes Mere Good Show

NATALIE WOOD IN RALEIGH — Actress Natalie Wood arrived Monday at Raleigh-Durham Airport, accompanied by producer John Foreman. Real Bullets In Mock Shootout

WESTLAKE VILLAGE, Calif. (AP) — The stuntmen had gathered for a mock Western-style gunfight to promote the opening of a shopping center. They began firing at each other with what were thought to be blanks as about 200 people watched.

Suddenly, there were screams, and three people lay wounded after being sprayed by pellets of real ammunition.

Police on Monday weren't sure whether one of the guns was accidentally loaded with the real thing or if someone in the crowd had opened fire, using the mock gunfight as cover.

"At this point we don't know if we have a crime or an accident," said Detective Lt. Bill Wade of the Ventura County Sheriff's Department.

The "shootout" that had been staged as a promotional event for the Westlake Hills Plaza.

"I was in the store and it happened right around the corner," said Todd Evans, a clerk at a nearby record store. "They were having this big shootout with blanks. I heard the gunshots, then some screams."

"One of the stuntmen was face down on the ground, and a little girl was down also," said Evans.

Stuntman Pete Porteous, 22, of Simi Valley, was in critical condition at the Westlake Community Hospital after being hit by about 30 pellets Sunday from a "snakeloid" cartridge. Snakeloid is similar to birdshot.

Irene Barnett of Thousand Oaks was hit by three pellets in the arm, and Danielle Garaway, 11, also of Thousand Oaks, was struck by pellets on the shoulder and head. Both were treated and released at Westlake Community Hospital.

Wade said he thought two live shots were fired from one of the stuntmen's guns.

"I'm pretty comfortable that this was an accident, but we're not ruling out anything," he said.

Bill Martin, a spokesman for the shopping plaza, said, "the real shot was either in the stunt people's guns, which I cannot let myself believe, or someone else came on the center and decided to take advantage of all the shooting and noise."

Fenders Band Has Lost 2 Musicians

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two members of country singer Freddy Fender's band were killed in a bus accident, but the singer was not aboard the vehicle which smashed into an 18-wheel tractor-trailer rig.

The bus swerved across the median of rain-slick Interstate 10 Monday and slammed head-on into the rig, authorities said.

Two men in the truck were hospitalized, but a third band member aboard the bus, pianist Skip Eastland, escaped with a slight injury.

Fender arrived at the scene about an hour after the 3:30 p.m. crash. He grimly surveyed the wreckage of the bus but refused to talk to reporters.

The dead were identified as drummer Joseph "Little Joe" Lambert, 39, of Slidell, and bus driver Sonny Parker, 45, of Pearl River.

The impact ripped off the front end of the bus, ejecting Lambert and Parker onto the muddy roadside. The tractor-trailer rig skidded more than 100 yards and into a swamp.

Hospital officials identified the injured truckers as George Malerich, 49, of Hammond, Ind., and Randy Mann, 28, his stepson.

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' entertainment division took a great idea, injected it with too much prime-time hocus-pocus and turned it into just a good show, tonight's "The Future: What's Next?"

It could have been great. A look at science, medicine and lifestyles in the year 2000 would have worked wonderfully if played straight, the way CBS News would have done it. But this is the show biz world of prime time, so we get futuristic pseudo-comedy, trite banter between "co-stars" George Plimpton and Karen Kaye, but not enough depth and detail on some very interesting ideas and inventions.

In between the future schlock, the program touches nicely on some subjects that will stimulate the crystal-ball gazer in all of us: bionic limbs and computerized hearts; household robots; soil-free farm products and a floating city complete with baseball fields, shopping centers and an ocean-view for everybody.

The way the floating city is handled typifies how this project could have been far better. The city already exists with 2,000 people, raising our curiosity about ocean-top living. But we get nothing more.

If we did, there would have been less time for Miss Caye's silly sojourn into the next generation's kitchen — complete with futuristic appliances and ancient cliches. Or for talking tombstones and a comedy sketch in which a female computer comes on to a male actor. Even Plimpton referred to this as ridiculous.

"The Future: What's Next?" is a logical extension of the successful odd-ball reality shows "That's Incredible" and "Real People." A whole segment could have been done on the European designer Coloni, who has constructed the secretary's desk of the future and a small circular kitchen surrounding a swivel chair.

"This will free the person of tomorrow and give her more time for living," Coloni said. The kitchen looked like it might give new meaning to the term "dizzy housewife."

The program does get serious about medical science down the road. There's a bionic arm that links directly into a human's nervous system and an artificial heart that has maintained life in calves but, one doctor says, is still a decade away from sustaining human life.

Another breakthrough is a tickle belt, which is worn around the stomach and aids the speech and hearing of deaf people through sound sensations. For the severely disabled, science is developing computers that are triggered by sound commands to perform simple tasks.

Of course, much of the future will rely on those tiny marvels, the computer chips. The day is not too far from now when computers will control metal sails on ships, utilizing any available wind and cutting oil consumption drastically.

By the year 2000, the show predicts that microchips could be implanted to control mood swings and depression. There's also the suggestion that the human brain could be supplemented by a computer embedded in the skull.

Now that's scary. So was one child speaking computer terminology that sounded like a foreign language.

One education expert said that computers and calculators in schools had not stifled independent thought in children. This was another example of an interesting subject that raised questions that were never considered.

Earlier this summer, Alan Landsburg, one of the executive producers, brought us a mindless futuristic game show called "The Krypton Factor." The man's evidently hung up on later times, and maybe by the year 2000 he'll make better television shows.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 16, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are under good influences early in the day and can easily advance in career matters. Later you find potentially upsetting conditions urging you to make needed changes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you know what higher-ups expect of you instead of relying on untested ideas. Don't be misled by outsiders.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study new ideas you have for expansion but wait for a better day before putting them in operation. Use common sense.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Keep promises made to others instead of trying to avoid your responsibilities. Try not to argue with close ties.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure you don't go ahead and do what associates want you to do without first giving the matter careful thought.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Only if you schedule your time wisely can you accomplish your tasks today. Strive for increased harmony with family members.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use diplomacy in the handling of home affairs or there could be trouble. Study your work plan before the actual labor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take time to plan social activities for the future. Find the right appliances that could make your work easier and more efficient.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You would be wise to do your shopping early in the day since unexpected problems could take up your time later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try not to spend more money than you can afford or you will regret it later. Show others that you are a sensible person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handling personal affairs instead of wasting time on unimportant matters is the best route to follow today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make a wise plan and then carry through in a positive manner and get fine results. You can help a person in need now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Morning is the best time to make new arrangements with associates. Relax at home tonight and relieve tensions.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she could be inclined to disagree with others too much, so teach to be more diplomatic. Upon reaching maturity much success is possible. Make sure to give ethical and religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
