

Civic Center Feasibility Study Ordered

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
The Board of County Commissioners this morning voted to employ the firm of J. N. Peace Associates of Charlotte to conduct a study to determine the feasibility of constructing a civic center in the county.

The Peace firm, with an office in New Bern, conducted a similar study for Western Carolina University which resulted in the funding of the $14 million project by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors recently.
Peace was one of five firms to submit proposals for the work. Cost of the study by Peace will be $35,000 plus printing, which will amount to about $1,000.

The project is to be funded by a $36,000 grant from the Coastal Plains Regional Commission and is scheduled to take about 19 weeks to complete.

The project name for the civic center is the Eastern North Carolina Center for Regional Advancement.
In other business this morning, the board appointed Jake Dove to the Mental Health board to replace Allen Murrell who has resigned; accepted bids for the county's fuel oil requirements (awarded to Leon L. Moore Oil Co.); accepted bids for a cab and chassis for an ambulance (awarded to Messner Chevrolet); and approved the purchase of a base and mobile radio for the Sharp Point Volunteer Fire Department at a cost of $2,500.

County Engineer C. A. Holiday reported that since the new county building inspection program got underway July 1, 186 permits have been issued and $6,874.50 in fees have been collected.

Included in the number of permits issued are 66 for new homes and 106 for mobile homes.

Kremlin Pushes Crackdown Threats Grow In Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity leaders, accused of turning their independent labor movement against communism and the Soviet Union, will meet Tuesday to discuss the new threats from the Soviet and Polish governments.
The union's presidium meeting was delayed from Monday amid signs that the Communist government may be preparing to move against it in response to the Kremlin's demand last week for a crackdown.

In a new Soviet attack today, the official news agency Tass said Solidarity was preparing to seize power on the assumption that "the authorities cannot offer serious resistance."
Tass also carried the latest in a series of Soviet worker protests — warning that Polish "anti-Sovietism" violated the terms of the Kremlin-led Warsaw Pact alliance. The Moscow factory workers said they were ready to help Poles "rebuff the enemies of socialism."

Tass said.
In Radon, meanwhile, Solidarity members at the Radoskor shoe factory threatened today to go on hunger strikes unless government officials meet with them to discuss the "tragic food situation" in their central Poland province, a union spokesman said.
The factory is the workplace of new Politburo member Zofia Grzyb, the only Solidarity member on the 15-member ruling body. No other details of the threatened strike were provided. Poland has been suffering from chronic food shortages for several years.

East Germany urged the Polish government today not to be deceived by voices of moderation within Solidarity and warned Warsaw's policy of accommodation was paving the way to "counter-revolution" in Poland.
In one of its longest and most critical commentaries on developments in Poland, the official ADN news agency said the crisis "has in the past two weeks reached an extraordinarily dangerous level for the Polish people and socialist state power."

ADN said the major question facing Poland and the rest of the Soviet bloc was whether the regime in Warsaw would finally muster the strength "to strike back at counter-revolution with all its means."
Solidarity's leaders were expected to decide Tuesday whether to soft-pedal their political demands when the union's national congress resumes on Friday. The Soviet note charged that the first part of the congress week before last "became in effect a permanent tribune from which slanders and insults sounded" against the Soviet Union.

Senate Confirmation Of O'Connor Is Seen Assured

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sandra Day O'Connor awaited easy confirmation by the Senate today as the first woman on the Supreme Court. The chairman of the Judiciary Committee predicted the vote would be unanimous.
As the Senate opened debate on President Reagan's first high court nomination, there was praise for Mrs. O'Connor from both liberals and conservatives.
And the Judiciary Committee chairman, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said that despite some lingering opposition over her views on abortion, he expected not a single negative vote would be cast.

Thurmond said on the Senate floor that Mrs. O'Connor, as a former state legislator and Arizona appeals court judge, believes that "laws are changed by the Congress and not by the federal courts."
Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said those who sought to block Mrs. O'Connor's nomination because of her unwillingness to say how she might vote on abortion as a member of the Supreme Court were shortsighted.
Had anti-abortion groups and conservative senators been able to force her to declare her legal position on abortion, Goldwater, it probably would have tainted her ability to vote on the issue as a con associate justice.
"They would have denied themselves a future anti-abortion vote," Goldwater said.
Liberals and conservatives alike have praised Mrs. O'Connor's nomination.
Her confirmation was expected to give President Reagan a victorious start to a week that also holds the promise of a new budget battle in Capitol Hill.

There was no declared opposition to Mrs. O'Connor, and a swearing-in ceremony for the 51-year-old Arizona appeals court judge already has been set for Friday.
Today's vote marked the end of a Senate "advise and consent" process in which some senators strongly disagreed with Mrs. O'Connor's judicial philosophy but said they would support her anyway.
Liberal Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, for example, said he was troubled by Mrs. O'Connor's conservative views on whether poor defendants in criminal cases should be guaranteed a lawyer.
Nonetheless, Metzenbaum said a nominee never should be rejected because of personal views on specific issues and he warmly praised Reagan for choosing such a highly qualified woman.

In the midst of a growing number of controversies swirling around Reagan on Capitol Hill, his choice of Mrs. O'Connor proved a political masterstroke.
She successfully turned aside most of the hostile questioning about her views during confirmation hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee earlier this month.
While expressing personal opposition to abortion, Mrs. O'Connor declined to say how she would rule on that and other touchy issues likely to come before her as an associate justice.
But she did indicate strong conservative beliefs in the strengths of state legislatures and courts, as well as opposition to court-ordered busing to achieve desegregation and support for capital punishment.
The result was a 17-0 Judiciary confirmation vote and support from liberal Democrats who oppose almost everything else Reagan has proposed, from AWACS radar planes for Saudi Arabia to Social Security reductions.
Only Sen. Jeremiah Denton, R-Ala., who focused almost exclusively on Mrs. O'Connor's views on abortion during the hearing, declined to vote for her in committee. Saying it was the most difficult decision of his life, Denton abstained.
Aides to the conservative former Vietnam prisoner of war said he had not decided how to vote on the Senate floor.
Two other conservatives, Republicans John East of North Carolina and Charles Grassley of Iowa, voted for Mrs. O'Connor's nomination, raising doubts about the political clout of the anti-abortion lobby, which had strongly urged her rejection.

WINDOWS TAPED SHUT
I am living in a rented trailer in a rural section of Pitt County that has had the air conditioner broken for two weeks, and the windows are taped shut. I work at night and try to sleep in the daytime, which is very nearly impossible in such stifling conditions. If the owner won't fix the air conditioner, isn't there some health or building regulation that says he has to have screens on these windows so I can open them without being deluged by flies and mosquitoes? D.S.

Hotline called your landlord's wife and was assured that she would see that a repairman who was sent out there recently, but did nothing to help you, comes back and fixes the air conditioner. In the meantime, however, we were surprised that there appear to be no health or building code regulations for the county that do require screens. Therefore, neither the Environmental Health section of the county health department, nor the county building inspector's office could have assisted you had you needed their services. Building codes of municipalities in the county with building inspectors do require screens, but not the county at the present time, yet naturally there is less fly and mosquito control in rural areas.

HAROLD BATTLE FEEDBACK
Harold Battle, the 18-year-old leukemia patient written of in Hotline late last spring when he underwent a bone marrow transplant in Baltimore, is back in Pitt Hospital, his family reports. Harold writes to Hotline readers, "I would like to thank all of you for your prayers, contributions, cards and gifts. A special thanks to all the churches, clubs, schools and fraternal organizations. Don't stop praying for me and my family, because we need your prayers."

DONNIELLE LASSITER

Baby Flown To Boston This Morning; Last Hope Of Long Survival

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Donnie Lassiter Jr. was flown to Boston this morning toward what his doctor here sees as "the baby's only hope for long-term survival."
The son of Donnie and Dot Lassiter of Greenville, Donnie Jr. was born Aug. 5 in Pitt County Memorial Hospital, a strapping 9-pound, 11-ounce infant. He and his mother got along beautifully and his parents happily took him home after only two days. Almost immediately a "skin rash" started and he began to run a fever. He was seen by a doctor every day and was back in Pitt Memorial Hospital before he was two weeks old as ugly sores were developing and growing larger from the red spots on different parts of his body, and he continued, despite taking antibiotics, to be very sick.
Once he was back in the hospital, it was discovered that he had a serious white blood cell disorder that rendered his body unable to fight infection. "This disorder involves the neutrophilic white cells and a defect in their ability to migrate to the area of the body in which infection has developed," pediatric hematologist, Dr. Tate Holbrook, said. "Thus, he is extremely susceptible to fatal infection."
In fact, in spite of constant surveillance by people and machines since he has been returned to the hospital, antibiotic treatment and infusions of white cells every two to three hours (thanks to the help of the Red Cross Blood Center here), he has had three life-threatening systemic infections since he went in. One in the rectal area called for emergency surgery and the creation of a temporary colostomy.
"Most babies," Dr. Holbrook said, "can have dirt poured on them on a regular basis and would never get sick at all, these neutrophilic cells and other self-protective mechanisms of the body work so well. Donnie's do not work at all."
Donnie's parents have, between the two of them, stayed round-the-clock in his pediatric intensive care room since his return to the hospital. Mostly, it's been his mother, with his father working what time he can at his job in the maintenance department of the hospital, but rushing to the room any time there's an emergency. In addition, there's a pediatric intensive care nurse watching him at virtually all times, so thin have his chances of survival seemed at times.

"You learn," Donnie Lassiter Sr. said, "that there are degrees of critical. There have been many moments when I thought our baby was dying. But somehow he's held on. I've thought about it hard and long and I know that if he dies, he's immediately with the Lord, so I can accept it, but I pray he will live. He's such a little fighter that his doctors and I and I agree that we're going to do everything in our power to help him fight to live and get well."
At first Dr. Holbrook could find no other descriptions in the medical information network of a situation like Donnie's. But once he did, plans began being made to transport the baby to Boston. Dr. Tom Stossel and Dr. Fred Southwick at Massachusetts General Hospital there have seen two other instances of this rarity, the last in 1973, and have agreed to see Donnie today. The other two patients did not survive, but that was before the time of bone marrow transplants. It appears likely that Donnie will make medical history by becoming the first bone marrow transplant recipient for this disorder.
It's so likely, in fact, that his five-year-old sister, Donnielle, is being taken out of kindergarten and along on the trip to Boston today, because she's been deemed by testing of the family to be the best donor match.
A pediatric intensive care nurse and a medical resident accompanied the family to Boston by air transport. "We don't know what's ahead for us," Lassiter said, "I never knew Dot and I would go to Boston at all, much less on an errand like this. We don't know what's ahead of us. We just know we'll do whatever we have to for our boy. The people here at Pitt Memorial and out in the community, too, have been wonderful to us. Donnie has received the most thorough, best care I could ever imagine and the doctors, nurses, everyone have acted like they were

Dear Abby

Full Steam Ahead For Railroad Widows

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Effective Oct. 1, 1981, remarried widows and divorced wives, mothers and widows of railroad workers will become eligible for railroad annuities in the same dollar amount and under the same rules as Social Security, and I can't think of a better way of reaching the approximately 74,000 eligible women than through your column!

Social Security annuities continue to widows who remarry after age 60, and can be reinstated for widows who remarry before that age but whose second marriages end. Social Security benefits are also payable to women divorced after at least 10 years of marriage if their former spouses are retired or deceased. Prior to the new Railroad Retirement Act amendments, railroad workers' widows who remarried permanently forfeited annuity rights. Women divorced from railroad workers, regardless of the length of marriage, lost all benefits. Many women also lost Medicare since it is contingent on benefit entitlement.

Women who will be affected should immediately contact the Railroad Retirement Board at 844 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611. The railroad worker's full name and Social Security or Railroad Retirement Account Number should be included.

REP. JAMES L. OBERSTAR,
8TH DISTRICT, MINNESOTA

DEAR CONGRESSMAN OBERSTAR: Thank you for this wonderful news! I'm glad to know that the rules have been changed, and I'm sure the 74,000 women who are now eligible to collect benefits will be jubilant.

DEAR ABBY: "The Tattooed Man" asked whether the removing of a tattoo would leave scars, and you said: "It depends on the skill of the doctor who removes it." Not so! Removal of tattoos always leaves scars. How noticeable these scars are depends not only on the doctor's skill, but also:

- 1) Location of the tattoos,
- 2) Area the tattoos cover,
- 3) Depth of tattoos.

Abby, two of the myths of plastic surgery are that plastic surgeons do not leave scars and that they remove scars. I am sorry to see your column perpetuate such myths. All we can do is to try to make the surgical scars as inconspicuous as possible.

J.T.J., M.D.,
LETTERMAN ARMY MEDICAL CENTER

DEAR DR. J.: Thanks for needling me. I get the picture.

DEAR ABBY: Last week we celebrated our golden wedding anniversary. Our children had a beautiful surprise party for us and they invited many, many friends. "No gifts" was printed on the invitations, but many people brought gifts anyway. Some of the relatives gave us money. Abby, we are well-off financially and there is nothing we need or want. The ones who gave us money need it more than we. I don't want to insult them, but I would like to return the money.

Is there some way to do it without hurting people? I thought I knew all the rules, but apparently not this one. Please help.

D. IN LONG ISLAND

DEAR D.: There is no way to return a gift without offending the giver. On the next gift-giving occasion (their anniversary or Christmas), give them an exceptionally nice gift.

DEAR ABBY: We have an uncle who made a strange request some time ago. He asked us (his nieces) to be his pallbearers when he dies.

He is very sick now and he repeated that request. My father disapproves because he never heard of female pallbearers. I for one would like to be a pallbearer at my uncle's funeral because he is my favorite uncle. My cousins also would like to serve as pallbearers. Have you ever heard of such a thing? And even if you haven't, do you see anything wrong with it?

LOUISVILLE, KY.

DEAR LOUISVILLE: I have indeed heard of it, and there's no reason why your uncle's wishes should not be carried out when he is.

Belize Independence Day Rite Soaked

By JOE FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer
BELIZE CITY, Belize (AP)—Soldiers hauled down the Union Jack at midnight in the last British colony on the American mainland, as Belize today became the world's newest independent nation.

Local churchmen dedicated the new flag and nation "to the glory of God."

A tropical downpour drowned out most of the fireworks in Belize, nestled between Mexico and Guatemala on the Caribbean.

But in a brisk ceremony on the seaside lawn of Government House, a midnight audience of about 800 people saw the British flag lowered for the last time here.

"I'll miss her," lamented a man with a thick Scottish accent as the soggy flag was dropped slowly down the white staff.

"God save the Queen," muttered another bystander. The crowd broke into

"Belize My Home," the new national anthem, as the new flag of Belize was unfurled. "It's the work of the Guatemalans," someone said of the rain that dampened the ceremonies planned for this country's last hour of British rule.

Guatemala still presses a claim that dates back to the 19th century to this Massachusetts-sized nation. Guatemalan authorities have said they will not invade, but they refused to sign a nonaggression treaty.

As a precaution, Britain has agreed to keep a force of about 1,600 troops in Belize after independence.

Representatives from about 50 nations attended the independence ceremonies, including Prince Michael of Kent representing the British royal family.

The leaders of Belize readily admit their nation is short on investment funds, manpower and technology. They are hoping that the nation's potentials, especially in agriculture, can be developed fast enough to save the fledgling, poverty-stricken nation from economic crisis.

Belize has more than two million acres of arable land but only about 15 percent is under cultivation. Sugar and citrus fruits are the main crops.

The population of 150,000 is diminished by a massive exodus to the United States, enough to offset what would be a three per cent annual growth rate. American consular officials estimate there are as many Belizeans working in Belize — about 45,000 — as there are working in the United States.

In an independence eve press conference, Premier George Price said "Many are asking if Belize is ready for independence. My answer is yes." But he acknowledged that problems were ahead.

Price also said the nation was glad the British troops would remain.

"One view says they (the Guatemalans) might invade, the other says they will not invade. Let us take no chances," said Price, who has been head of government here for two decades.

Belize, formerly British Honduras, has had internal self rule since 1964.

Guatemala's claim has resulted in a cutting of all diplomatic and consular relations with the new nation and with Britain.

The controversy centers on the use of a group of islands on Belize's south coast. Guatemala wants military use of them and Belize will not agree.

In Guatemala City, the military government of Gen. Fernando Romeo Lucas Garcia issued a communique Sunday calling Belize's independence "another farce of British colonialism."

Reception Honors Couple

The refreshment table was covered with gold and overlaid with white lace. It was centered with an arrangement of flowers flanked by white tapers in silver candlesticks, which were a gift on their 25th anniversary.

The three-tiered cake was served by Mrs. Bonnie B. Whittington of Snow Hill, niece of the honorees. Pouring punch were their granddaughters, Mrs. David Shearin of Largo, Fla. and Mrs. Kim P. Lee of Charlotte. Assisting were other granddaughters, Mrs. H. Warner Frye III of Cary, Mrs. J. Michael Kelly of Carthage, Debbie Prescott, Teresa Owens and Gina-Jon Prescott, all of Greenville.

Chapter To Have Fall Enrollment

Mrs. Gisele Owens and Ms. Nina Redditt will discuss the goals and answer questions concerning the Pirate Charter Chapter and the American Business Women's Association, the national association, to which it belongs, at a fall enrollment event Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Owens is chapter membership chairman and Ms. Redditt is president of the organization.

Having attended the national convention in Phoenix, Ariz. and the regional meeting in Charleston, S.C. Ms. Redditt found the ABWA designation for the 1980s as a "Decade of Development" to be a renewal of ABWA's original purpose which it has held to for 32 years.

The emphasis in ABWA is on continued growth through education and local chapters such as Greenville's Pirate Chapter have programs at meetings geared to keep the membership informed of new trends and developments of interest to women in business.

Each member receives the national publication of the association "Women in Business."

Persons interested in the Pirate Chapter are asked to contact Ms. Redditt, 752-6410.

MRS. WILLIAM O. WILLEFORD is the former Marguerite Ann Horne, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Horne of Greenville, whose marriage to Mr. Willeford, took place Monday, Sept. 14, in Seattle, Wash. The couple will be living in Seattle.

Arrangement Beneficial

The Winterville Board of Aldermen has taken an interesting and, we think, logical approach to providing electric power for its municipal customers.

The board voted to remain a wholesale customer of Greenville Utilities even as municipally-owned electric systems are in the process of buying in to Carolina Power and Light generating facilities.

Winterville has purchased electricity wholesale from Greenville for a number of years, while Greenville, in turn, has purchased power from Virginia Electric and Power Co.

The municipals formed the North Carolina Power Agency No. 3 in an effort to own their own generating facilities and hopefully reduce costs. The effort seems headed to fruition with the municipalities at present deciding individually on the generating purchase arrangement.

Winterville, by continuing to purchase from Greenville, can avoid the cost of membership in the power agency while still participating in the benefits through its arrangement with Greenville Utilities.

If power is priced as it has been in the past, Winterville will still probably get its power as cheaply through Greenville Utilities as it would by being a direct participant. The Winterville electric load could help Greenville Utilities get its total power needs at lower cost.

Thus it appears that both Greenville Utilities and Winterville can benefit by continuing the arrangement that has been in effect for some time now.

Power Plan Moves Forward

Plans for Greenville's participation in the purchase of CP&L generating facilities took a long step forward last week with the approval of both Greenville Utilities and the City Council.

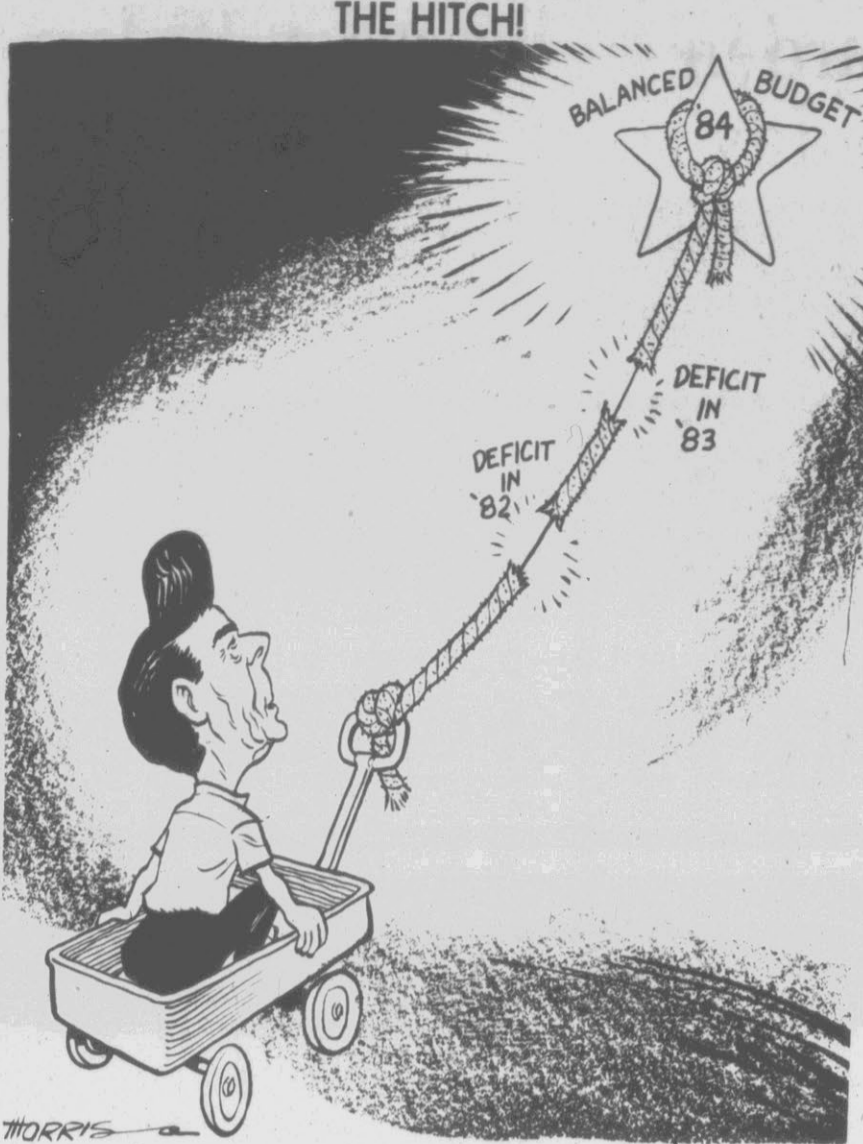

At week's end 10 of the 36 member municipalities had approved of the plan.

Greenville's participation was important since the city is the largest user of electricity among the cities participating in North Carolina Power Agency Number 3.

The agency could mean savings of millions of dollars during the rest of this century. It would not require tax money but rather would operate on revenues from sale of power to the municipalities.

All municipalities are desperately seeking ways to hold down the cost of power, and the approach approved by the council last week seems a logical one.

Au Revoir Sans Souci

The Sans Souci, one of the great meeting places of the power brokers of Washington, has closed its doors, a victim of bankruptcy. Those of us who ran the country from its Naughyde banquets and booths have moved on to other tables in other rooms throughout the city, because even though a restaurant closes, the business of government must go on.

In its day the Sans Souci was more a club than a restaurant. One of its attractions was that it was shaped like a theater, with a stage at the entrance, so everyone who came in could take a bow before being escorted to a table.

On a good day, and there were many of them, you could find Henry Kissinger in a booth discussing detente with Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin, or taking a hard line against the Russians with Israeli Ambassador Rabin.

A Pentagon Air Force general might be seated at another table leaning a story to columnist Robert Novak, and placed a few tables away, columnist Joe Alsop could be blower in the Justice Department, near two FBI agents who were picking at their food but really trying to overhear what the two men were saying.

The role I played as a patron of the Sans Souci has never been properly understood. Late there everyday and had the same table. It was the equivalent of Bernard Baruch's bench in Lafayette Park. When people in the Johnson, Nixon, Ford and Carter administrations needed advice they knew where to find me.

I am still not at liberty to confess what decisions I was in on, but suffice it to say that when I held court at the Sans Souci, the inflation rate never rose above five percent, people could purchase a decent home for $40,000, banks were begging the public to borrow money at 6 percent, Social Security was safe, and the United States had twice the military might of the Soviet Union.

Without revealing any confidences I can state the recognition of the People's Republic of China first noodled at my table at the Sans Souci, and the Camp David talks began soon after the Egyptian ambassador asked to split a chef's salad with me.

When Roger Stevens ran out of money to complete Kennedy Center, I told the waiter to put whatever he needed on my tab.

This is not to say the Sans Souci was all work and no play. Some of the most beautiful women in the world could be found dining there in hopes that one of us would become a chapter in their memoirs.

But that's another column. Needless to say there was something for everybody even if you didn't order from the menu.

CAPITOL LETTER

Partisan Matter

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — For four years, North Carolina Democrats felt immediate discomfort every time Joseph Califano's name was thrown at them.

So with Republicans now in control in Washington, it came as no surprise that Democrats were quick to point a finger at the GOP as tobacco's federal price-support program came under its sternest test ever.

"Sure he hit them hard, but it's justified," offered Gary Pearce, press secretary to Gov. Jim Hunt, after the governor said President Reagan, the state's two GOP senators and Republicans in general shared the blame for the latest threat to the program.

"They ran, they said they were going to take care of the tobacco program, and now peanuts are down the tubes and tobacco is in trouble," he added.

Hunt's indictment of the GOP came as the tobacco support program, highly prized in the state where the golden leaf is a billion-dollar crop, narrowly withstood several efforts to dismantle it on the floor of the U.S. Senate.

Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, spearheaded a vote-getting effort to save the program, with help from GOP Sen. John East, other tobacco-state senators and from Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C.

As opponents of tobacco sponsored amendments to the 1981 farm bill, there was a dramatic collapse of the long-standing coalition that had protected tobacco and peanuts since the programs were begun in the New Deal days 40 years ago.

The Senate voted to drop the allotment program for peanuts, North Carolina's fourth largest crop, while the tobacco program withstood a series of amendments, in one case by a one-vote margin. It was by all accounts the closest call the tobacco program has had, coming as Congress searched for places to cut the federal budget.

In Washington, supporters of the leaf initially sought to downplay partisan overtones — since they needed every vote they could muster. In fact, observed John Merritt, Rose's administrative assistant, the vote on tobacco ignored party lines, with each party nearly evenly divided.

But the memory of Califano made it tough to avoid partisanship for some Democrats back home.

Califano, as anyone associated with tobacco well knows, was the secretary of health, education and welfare under President Carter whose attacks on cigarette smoking drew the ire of North Carolina leaf growers and politicians.

He was an embarrassment for Hunt and other Tar Heel Democrats even after he was sacked by the Democratic president, as his name had become a bumper-sticker symbol of the opposition to North Carolina's major crop.

Hunt began last week's exchange by lashing out at the GOP at a news conference, saying that Reagan was "philosophically opposed to farm programs." Hunt's comments came in response to a question, but he was clearly prepared for it, appearing to refer to notes as he began his partisan answer.

State Democratic Chairman Russell Walker went further, saying Helms and East had alienated some of tobacco's Senate friends with "their vicious personal attacks" and because of

The fire commissioners met and gave the county commissioners a recommendation of not recognizing the Sharp Point area as a fire department. After receiving the recommendation, the county commissioners met with the fire commissioners and asked them to reconsider their thoughts on the subject.

A committee was appointed at that time to talk with the Sharp Point area. The committee had a meeting with Sharp Point. Falkland asked for a meeting with the committee and was denied. The committee never got back with the fire commissioners to tell them the outcome of their meeting with Sharp Point. Instead, the fire commissioners were contacted by telephone and not all of them were contacted to express their points of view. Then I received a letter from the county commissioners stating that they recognized Sharp Point as a fire department on the recommendation of the fire commissioners.

I would like to know what the purpose is of having fire commissioners if the county commissioners do not take their word the first time. I think everyone should stop and think things over when it comes election time. Maybe your second thoughts would be better.

To the editor:

Jerry's Raynor's article on the East Carolina University Gray Art Gallery exhibition: American Art 1950-1980 — Selections from the Permanent Collection of the Weatherspoon Gallery-UNC-Greensboro is to be commended for its forthrightness and its application of high critical standards in reviewing art exhibitions. However, I feel that Mr. Raynor's well-intended comments about the Gray Gallery exhibition's shortcomings must be viewed in light of the exhibition's intention, its stated title ("Selections from...") and the limitations imposed on it by a meager budget for exhibitions at the present time.

Clearly, if criticized to the highest standards for exhibitions of recent American art, the Selection ... falls short. But the intention was to select from the Weatherspoon's permanent collection a group of works that would best serve the needs of an active art school faculty and student body, and be a stimulating addition to Greenville's public art exhibition program.

Choice of works was limited to what the Weatherspoon owns and to what it would allow to be lent. Size was another limitation, and an important one in this period of American art where so many important paintings and sculpture assume enormous proportions. The only university vehicle available to transport the art imposed severe restrictions on size of works.

The ECU Museum of Art/Gray Art Gallery will soon look to the Pitt-Greenville-ECU family of patrons for the kind of support that will allow us to mount exhibitions where we can pick and choose from among the nation's best museum and private collections. But until such support becomes a reality, and in the face of severe cuts in National Endowment grant program (we have a large one for spring, 1982), we must limit our borrowing to available collections and live with the restrictions on quality and variety that inhere in these collections.

To infer that the works presented in the exhibition reflect the unfettered choices of an ECU curator made from the vast array of "monuments" comprising the history of American art of the last three decades is naive at best.

Disapproval On The Rise

PRINCETON, N.J. — Saturday's "Solidarity Day" rally in Washington, D.C., came at a time when there is greater public disapproval of labor unions than at any time in the past 45 years. Nevertheless, positive attitudes toward the labor movement outweigh negative by a 3-to-2 ratio.

In the latest Gallup Poll, 55 percent express approval of labor unions while 35 percent disapprove. Since 1965 the trend in favorable attitudes toward unions has been fairly consistently down, while negative attitudes have grown. In 1936, when the Gallup Poll first measured public opinion of unions, 72 percent offered a positive assessment.

At least part of Americans' disaffection with the union movement may be traced to their general disapproval of strikes by public employees, the air traffic controllers' walkout being a recent and highly-publicized example.

Americans have always drawn a distinction between the right to strike of government employees whose work involves the safety of the public and those whose jobs are unrelated to safety. Thus, members of labor-union and non-union families alike have regularly voted against permitting police and firemen to strike, while opinion has been more evenly divided in the case of postal workers and sanitation men. Air traffic control clearly is in the safety-related job category as far as the public is concerned.

In the latest survey, for example, only 27 percent of Americans believe policemen or firemen should be allowed to strike, with 28 percent holding this view about air traffic controllers. These figures rise to 33 and 40 percent, respectively, for postal workers and sanitation workers.

100TH ANNIVERSARY FOR ORGANIZED LABOR

Organized labor this year marks its 100th anniversary, with much of the focus of this year's celebration centered on what union leadership perceives as the Reagan administration's anti-labor policies. On Saturday there will be a massive "Solidarity Day" rally in Washington, D.C. Among the targets of union protests are expected to be the president's proposed cuts in Social Security payments, a weakening of the Davis-Bacon act and reduced enforcement of OSHA job safety rules.

Although President Reagan has denied that his administration is anti-union, maintaining that his economic program will bring a large increase in employment, it is significant to note that fewer labor-union members voted for Reagan than for Jimmy Carter in the November election and that Reagan is currently less popular among union members than he is in non-union households.

For example, Reagan is given a favorable rating by 47 percent of labor-union families in the latest survey compared with 63 percent approval in non-union households. This 16-point difference in the attitudes of union and nonunion people is the greatest since Reagan's inauguration.

In addition, labor-union members are less sanguine than non-unionists about the likelihood of the Reagan administration's reducing inflation, unemployment and the size of the federal government, and balancing the budget. Also, fewer union members than non-union people think their financial situation will be improved as a result of Reagan's economic policies.

By a 2-to-1 ratio, the public supports President Reagan's handling of the air traffic controllers' strike, 59 to 30 percent. Even among members of labor-union families, a 49 percent plurality approves of the president's actions.

Following is the question asked to measure public opinion of labor unions and a selected trend since 1936:

"Do you approve or disapprove of labor unions?"

	Approval of Labor Unions		No opinion

Strength For Today

THEOLOGY'S VALUE

We often hear people say, "I don't think much of theology. I believe in the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount — particularly the Golden Rule — and I just go along trying to obey them."

Actually, there is little possibility of our being able to live up to such standards unless a Power outside our own enables us to do so.

Theology deals with this power outside ourselves. The word means "knowing about God". The suggestion of theology is that we avail ourselves of the reservoirs of power available to us if we submit to the will of God and trust Him with childlike simplicity. Then indeed we will have something in our hearts which will enable us to obey the Ten Commandments. The Sermon on the Mount then sends up a new message and inspiration.

We can even aspire to loving our neighbors as ourselves if we have the power of God supporting us — but not until then. — Elisha Douglass.

Old Conservative Is Angered

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — As a rule, conservatives argue that the government should stay out of the way of the American people and let them make their own decisions. But some of them take exception to the rule on what they see as issues of morality.

New Right conservatives want laws to promote family values and to ban abortion. On those and other social issues, they see a larger role for the government.

That has led them into alliance with politically oriented religious organizations — and to a schism with Sen. Barry Goldwater's brand of old-fashioned Republican conservatism.

"I'm frankly sick and tired of the political preachers across this country telling me as a citizen that if I want to be a moral person, I must believe in A, B, C, and D," Goldwater said. "Just who do they think they are? And from where do they presume to claim the right to dictate their moral beliefs to me?"

"I am warning them today: I will fight them every step of the way if they try to dictate their moral convictions to all Americans in the name of 'conservatism.'"

Goldwater said he was talking about the Moral Majority, the anti-abortion March for Life "and other religious groups" that are regarded as part of the New Right and the New Conservatism.

"Well, I have spent quite a number of years carrying the flag of the 'Old Conservatism,'" said Goldwater, the 1964 Republican presidential nominee. "And I can say with conviction that the religious issues of these groups have little or nothing to do with conservative or liberal politics."

It is a campaign Goldwater began after the Rev. Jerry Falwell and his Moral Majority tried to derail the Supreme Court nomination of Arizona Judge Sandra O'Connor on grounds she had cast state legislative votes favoring abortion.

About two weeks ago, he set his speechwriters to work on the subject again and came up with an address in which he accused "religious factions" of divisive, uncompromising and potentially dangerous behavior.

"The uncompromising position of these groups is a divisive element that could tear apart the very spirit of our representative system, if they gain sufficient strength," he said. "As it is, they are diverting us away from the vital issues that our government needs to address...."

"Far too much of the time of members of Congress and officials in the executive branch is used up dealing with special interest groups on issues like abortion, school busing, ERA, prayer in the schools and pornography."

Goldwater said he was disputing tactics, not values. He said he opposes abortion, "but there are many fine conservatives" who do not.

"Unrelenting obsession with a particular goal destroys the perspective of many decent people with whom I agree on most issues," he said.

At the same time, he accused the religious right of jumping onto a pendulum that already was swinging "to the conservative, moral end of the spectrum ... and they claiming that they caused it to swing in the first place."

So far, Goldwater has directed his criticism against groups and individuals outside Congress and the political parties. But if he really intends to continue the fight, it will inevitably put him at odds with Republican congressional colleagues who claim to be the new custodians of conservatism.

That debate might have happened this time, but Goldwater never really delivered his latest speech on the subject. He couldn't arrange a public forum in a hurry, and there wasn't room on the Senate agenda last Tuesday. So he had the address printed in the Congressional Record.

By weekend, Hunt and Helms — who only a week ago stood arm-in-arm for photographers in Raleigh — had traded a volley of pointed charges, with Hunt saying Helms "must take responsibility" for the defeat of peanut allotments and tobacco's close call.

Helms accused Hunt of sending "mixed signals" on an amendment by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., which tobacco-forces opposed, and added that Hunt had hurt the cause when President Carter was in office by asking for a study of tobacco imports.

"There's been too much talking from some people. The day when anybody can play politics with tobacco is over, unless they want to plow it under," said Helms.

In a letter to tobacco leaders in North Carolina last week, Rose and two other North Carolina Democratic congressmen, Walter Jones and Charles Whitley, said the battle was non-partisan and non-ideological. But they also raised questions about the Reagan administration's position on tobacco.

"The administration, and in particular Agriculture Secretary John Block, have stated repeatedly that 'price supports and allotment programs certainly are not at all in keeping with President Reagan's philosophy of freer production and less government regulation,'" their letter said.

The Farm Bill now goes to the House, where Rose hopes the peanut vote can be reversed.

But given the closeness of the latest tobacco votes, the political tug of war that has surrounded it and what Merritt called a "frenzied budget-cutting atmosphere" in Washington, tobacco's friends in both parties look for the tobacco program to continue to face stiff challenges.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new biography by a Pulitzer Prize-winning author says that Lyndon Johnson "did not hesitate to use the powers of the presidency...with utter ruthlessness" to further his own business interests and earlier had accepted envelopes of cash while he was vice president.

"For years, men came into Lyndon Johnson's office and handed him envelopes stuffed with cash," author Robert A. Caro writes in "The Years of Lyndon Johnson."

Caro won a Pulitzer Prize in 1975, for his biography of Robert Moses, a former New York city and state official who died earlier this year. The first of three volumes in the new biography of Johnson is to be published next year. Excerpts appear as an article in the October issue of The Atlantic Monthly.

The downfall of the Sans Souci was not of my making. It was caused when the Maitre d'Hotel Paul De Lisle, had a fight with the owner and resigned.

What the owner didn't realize was that Paul was our leader, and our security blanket away from home. No matter how important anyone is in the United States, he is still nervous about how he will be treated in a restaurant by a Maitre d'Hotel. The fact that Paul decided we were worthy of having a table in his restaurant, was the only assurance we had that we were still part of the power structure.

With Paul's departure, the Sans Souci became just another place to eat, and I had no choice but to fold up my table and leave. It was a sad day not only for me but for the country. The downfall of the Sans Souci caused a tremendous identity crisis for the movers and shakers in the nation's capital. To this day, except for Al Haig, most of us don't know who the hell we are.

Johnson, who died in 1973, was raised to power first in the House of Representatives and then as a U.S. senator from Texas by the emerging oil, gas, sulfur, defense and space industries of the Southwest, Caro says.

"They didn't stop coming even when the office in which he sat was the office of the vice president of the United States," the article says. "Fifty thousand dollars, in hundred-dollar bills in sealed envelopes, was what one oil lobbyist for one oil company testified that he brought to Johnson's office during his term as vice president."

There was no answer Sunday at a telephone listed in Caro's name. The Washington Post, however, said Caro told the newspaper "the $5 0,000 incident referred to lobbyist Claude C. Wild Jr., who had testified in a case brought by the Securities and Exchange Commission against Gulf Oil in the mid-1970s about a Gulf Oil slush fund. Caro said he thought the transaction occurred in 1963."

In 1975, former Gulf attorney Thomas D. Wright testified in a deposition that Wild told him he delivered $5 0,000 to Johnson in either 1960 or 1961, shortly after Johnson was elected vice president.

The Post said its files report that Wild said he gave $5 0,000 to a Johnson aide while Johnson was still a senator. Johnson was elected vice president in November, 1960.

When Johnson became president in 1963 after John F. Kennedy was assassinated, his aides were quoted as saying estimates putting his wealth at $14 million were too high. "Privately, some now admit that it was far too low," Caro says.

Though Johnson announced he was putting all his business affairs in a blind trust while he was president, he had private phone lines installed in the Oval Office to confer with Texas attorneys who administered the trust, the excerpts say.

"Johnson personally directed his business affairs, down to the most minute details, not infrequently working on those affairs, according to some of his attorneys, for several hours a day," Caro writes.

"In his direction of his business affairs, he did not hesitate to use the power of the presidency itself, and to use it with utter ruthlessness. And during his presidency, Lyndon Johnson piled atop the millions of dollars he had already made millions more," say the excerpts.

Harry C. McPherson, a Washington lawyer who was a special assistant and White House counsel to Johnson, said Sunday he had no knowledge of the private telephone setup or Johnson's business dealings while he was president.

"I didn't hear about it," McPherson said. He also said that he was never asked for an interview by Caro.

Bill Moyers, Johnson's

White House press secretary, said Sunday he had never heard reports about Johnson accepting cash as vice president or directing private business dealings across special Oval Office phones as president.

"Both of those are news to me," Moyers said.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by

DIET CENTER

For every pound of fat you add to your body, you add somewhere between 200 and 1,000 miles of additional capillaries just to feed the cells in the body. If you take the minimum, 200 miles for each pound, that means that fifteen pounds of excess weight adds an extra 3,000 miles to the distance that blood must be pumped each day. That is equal to the distance from one coast of the United States to the other. That is a tremendous amount of extra, unnecessary work to impose upon your heart. If you are carrying around an extra ten or fifteen pounds, consider what effect this has on your body and energy level. Diet Center can help you develop a proper diet to keep you at a slim, healthy weight for the rest of your life.

Farm Scene

For too many years swine producers have been suffering because some grain dealers have not hesitated to sell them grain contaminated with aflatoxin.

Poultry producers and most dairymen have been on an effective testing program which catches the presence of aflatoxin before it gets into the feed supply.

But swine producers have simply bought corn at the best possible price with little regard for any possible contaminants.

Several possible options confront the hog producers.

The first calls for having the grain tested by a private laboratory or by a state department of agriculture laboratory like those in operation in North Carolina and Georgia.

The second option is for the farmer to purchase his own testing equipment. The black light is better than nothing. It is inexpensive and will identify only molds that might cause problems.

The best testing equipment, like that being used by the Department of Agriculture in North Carolina, costs from $15,000 to $20,000 per unit.

Probably the best choice for an individual corn farmer or hog producer is a mini column which should cost between $1,000 and $1,500. That's a lot of money but is relatively insignificant when compared to potential losses from feeding contaminated grain.

The potential of aflatoxin contaminating feed sources is nothing to panic over, but hog producers should not just take for granted that their grain is not contaminated.

There are free testing labs set up across North Carolina and Georgia this year and individuals can buy their own testing facilities if they prefer.

REQUEST APPROVED

Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of a request by Ebenezer SDA Church to conduct a door-to-door and sidewalk solicitation September through December to raise funds for Seventh Day Adventists' worldwide education programs, evangelism, health programs, and welfare programs.

Suit By Laughinghouse Is Dismissed

U. S. District Judge F. T. Dupree has dismissed action against Police Chief Glenn Cannon, Mayor Don McGlohon and City Manager Ed Wyatt brought by former Police Department Lt. Edward E. Laughinghouse seeking reinstatement to his former job and $100,000 in actual and punitive damages in connection with his firing on December 17, 1980.

Laughinghouse, a policeman here for 17 years, was dismissed from the department after allegedly being under the effect of alcohol while on duty.

In a complaint filed in U.S.

Eastern District Court in January, Laughinghouse charged "that the true reason for his dismissal is that as Lieutenant, he is officer in charge of one of the police divisions and most of the persons under his command are white officers ... (and) the motive for firing plaintiff Laughinghouse is to make his slot available for a member of the white race."

In February, Judge Dupree denied a motion by Laughinghouse for a preliminary injunction against the city officials which would have, if allowed, forced the officials to reinstate him to his former position.

The order said the "temporary loss of income alone does not usually constitute irreparable injury," and noted that, "in contrast, plaintiff's reinstatement for the duration of the litigation could present the serious risk of diminished police protection. Clearly, a serious drinking problem is incompatible with the position of responsibility which the plaintiff held prior to his dismissal. The public's estimation and respect for the police force would also be threatened.

Judge Dupree's order also said that "while the plaintiff's case does not appear meritorious ... his chances of ultimate success on the merits appear questionable at best."

In the order dismissing the case on a defense motion for summary judgment, the judge said Laughinghouse's contention of racial discrimination "has little relevance in the instant case" and noted that the plaintiff "has failed to present the court with anything more than a conclusory allegation of racial discrimination and this allegation is insufficient to state a claim for relief."

Instead, Judge Dupree said "the question for the court is, what are the rules or understandings, if any, which give rise to a constitutionally protected property interest in the instant case," noting that such property interests are not created by the Constitution, but rather are defined by existing rules or understandings that stem from an independent source such as state law.

"Plaintiff has failed to cite any rule, statute, or ordinance to support his claim of entitlement to continued employment ... (and) has not shown that he is employed under a contract providing for a definite duration or term." Under North Carolina law, the order continued, "absent such a provision the contract may be terminated at will by either party, unless a statute or ordinance provides otherwise," and "the Greenville ordinance provides no such guarantee ..."

The order noted, "the court concludes that plaintiff has failed to raise a genuine issue of material fact as to whether he was discharged on account of his race" and "has failed to show a constitutionally protected property or liberty interest in his continued employment sufficient to invoke due process safeguards. Accordingly, there being no genuine issue of material fact remaining, defendants' motion for summary judgment is allowed and the action is dismissed."

The dismissal order was filed September 18.

The December incident which led to Laughinghouse's dismissal was the second time the officer had been suspended for allegedly being under the effect of alcohol while on duty. He was suspended for 5 days and placed on six months probation in May of 1980 on a similar charge.

The department's standard operating procedure provides that an officer may not consume alcoholic beverages, be intoxicated, or be under the effect of alcohol consumed off duty, while on duty. It also provides that an officer suspected of being under the influence of alcohol while on duty may be required to take a breathalyzer test.

Sources acknowledged that Laughinghouse did not take a breathalyzer test following the December incident. However, a breathalyzer test given Laughinghouse by the North Carolina Highway Patrol following the May incident did indicate that the officer had alcohol in his blood.

Jury Selection In Spy Trial Gets Under Way

By MATT BOKOR
Associated Press Writer
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A former U.S. Army officer is going on trial on charges of selling to the Soviet Union secrets that a prosecutor says may have brought "very, very grave" consequences to U.S. troops in the Vietnam War.

Jury selection in the trial of Joseph G. Helmich could take several days, lawyers said before the today's start of the screening of a pool of 86 potential jurors. The trial itself could last an additional two weeks, lawyers say.

Helmich was indicted by a federal grand jury July 14 on charges of selling the Soviets top-secret information about coding equipment for $131,000, a deal allegedly cut while Helmich worked with the U.S. Signal Corps in Paris from January 1963 to July 1964. The system was used for relaying secret messages.

The indictment also alleged that as late as August 1980, Helmich, a former warrant officer, met with Soviet agents to pick up money that had been held for later payment.

U.S. Attorney Gary Betz has said Helmich may have provided the Soviets with information that would have been invaluable to the communist forces in Southeast Asia as U.S. involvement escalated.

The consequences may have been "very, very grave," Betz said in an earlier court hearing.

Last week, Betz filed a list of 53 possible witnesses, including retired Army Gen. William Westmoreland, commander of American forces in the Vietnam War in 1964-68.

"Come to the trial," Betz advised reporters when he was asked what Westmoreland might testify about.

Also on the witness list was Lt. Col. Richard Janin, Helmich's stepfather, who lives in retirement at Jacksonville Beach.

Last week, U.S. District Judge Susan Black dismissed a defense motion to move the trial from this military-minded city, home of Mayport Naval Station.

Arrested at his Jacksonville Beach home July 15, Helmich has pleaded innocent to all four counts: three of espionage and one of conspiracy. He has been held at a secret location under $400,000 bond since his arrest.

Conviction on the charges could bring a sentence of life in prison.

During a bond hearing on the day of his arrest, Betz told a federal judge that money and escape plans were waiting for Helmich to help him flee prosecution.

At a later hearing on a defense motion to keep statements Helmich made from being used against him, he told the court that he had cooperated with the FBI for months and was "shocked" when agents arrested him.

Mayor Issues Proclamation

Mayor Don McGlohon proclaimed Sept. 17-23 as Constitution Week here and he urged local citizens "to pay special attention" during the week to the Constitution and the advantages of American citizenship.

McGlohon noted that Sept. 17 marked the 194th anniversary of the drafting of the federal Constitution and "to accord official recognition to this memorable anniversary, and to the patriotic exercise that will form a noteworthy feature of the occasion, seems fitting and proper."

He said Public Law No. 915 guarantees the issuing of a proclamation each year by the president designating the period as Constitution Week.

Lobbyists Flex Muscles For Vote Over AWACS

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In an extraordinary show for force, the pro-Israel lobby and congressional opponents of selling AWACS radar warning planes to Saudi Arabia have lined up veto-strength majorities. Holding those votes through October, though, is another matter. Pro-Israel lobbyists privately concede it will be tough to block a foreign policy move proposed by a president who has befriended Israel. Reagan's grassroots opposition is led by the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, which is registered as a lobby and has five lobbyists in Washington. It also has more than 12,000 members across the country, many of whom buttonholed their senators and representatives on the Saudi sale and other issues last May when the group held its annual conference in Washington.

On June 24, Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., announced that 54 senators were urging Reagan to forget the AWACS sale. An hour later Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., said 228 House members were co-sponsoring a resolution to veto it.

The administration, which already had delayed proposing the sale once because of congressional opposition, elected to delay it again.

Now the House veto resolution has 253 co-sponsors and Senate opponents announced last week they have 56 senators against the sale, 50 of them on record as co-sponsors of a veto resolution.

"I've been getting calls from every Jewish organization in the country," said Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio. "They didn't want to talk about the issues. The big push was to get me to sign this letter and resolution."

Glenn did not sign but says he might if the administration refuses to compromise terms of the sale to keep the planes under partial U.S. control.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig, however, said Sunday in an interview on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" that as many as 12 senators who did sign have said they may be willing to reconsider.

The list of 50 Senate opponents to the deal is "replete with soft spots," he said.

An official of one influential pro-Israel group says the lobby did not initiate the opposition drive. But he says it helped to build up the numbers and to put Packwood in charge of the Senate drive.

Sen. Joseph R. Biden, D-Del., already had announced plans to introduce a veto resolution, but the lobby and its friends in the Republican-controlled Senate figured a Republican could help them more. "That was just very fast moving and I don't think it took much work on our part," said the lobby official, who asked not to be identified. "Long had already put more than 150 people on his (House) resolution on his own before we jumped in."

The point of early opposition was two-pronged: —To commit as many congressional allies as possible in hopes Reagan would abandon the sale when he saw the odds against him.

—To keep potential opponents to the sale from wavering later. After being publicly committed, members of Congress hate to change position for fear of appearing indecisive.

There are two ways to fight, the pro-Israel official said. AIPAC members in many districts swamp their congressman — like Sen. Glenn — with letters, telegrams and visits. And the lobby can urge a constituent with political or personal clout to call him.

The administration is beginning its own lobbying and public relations campaign. The president has been asking senators to keep an open mind until they hear his case.

With Reagan's proven persuasiveness in Congress, this is a fight the friends of Israel could lose, the pro-Israel lobbyist said.

"We had a request from a conservative Republican senator who said, 'What do I do if I get a call from the Gipper?'" the lobby official said. "That's what we're up against."

(A reporter) said there's no way you can win because of the Gipper. And he's probably right. We like the Gipper, too."

For the deal to be blocked, both the House and the Senate must vote against it — something that has never been done. The deadline is Oct. 30.

The $8.5 billion sale proposal includes five sophisticated Airborne Warning and Control System planes, plus missiles and long-range fuel tanks for 62 U.S.-built Saudi F-15 jet fighters.

The pro-Israel lobby suffered its first major defeat in Congress in 1978, when it joined an unsuccessful effort to veto the sale of the F-15s. At the time, the Carter administration said it did not plan to sell extra gear for the F-15s.

The American Israel Public Affairs Committee is acknowledged as one of most effective lobbies in town — so much so that two Republicans recently argued it has become too powerful.

Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., said in San Diego in July that the lobby controls Congress' votes on Middle East issues, blocking an even-handed U.S. policy for the region.

And Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., wrote in Foreign Policy magazine that the power of ethnic lobbies, including the pro-Israel lobby, is sometimes "harmful to the public interest."

Jewish leaders in both states denounced the statements and AIPAC's executive director, Tom Dine, said in Washington it was "nonsense" to assert that the United States' 2.7 percent Jewish population could force its views on the rest of the country.

Juror 'Very Sure' Of Nazi Bomb Plot Guilt

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Jurors who convicted six American Nazis of conspiring to bomb public areas in Greensboro made sure the defendants were guilty, one juror says.

The unidentified juror told the Greensboro Daily News that the members of the federal court jury in Asheville took the time to ensure they weren't convicting innocent people on Friday.

"We just wanted to be very sure," said the juror, who asked not to be identified. "They just wanted to make very sure they did not convict anyone who might be innocent. Yes, I was impressed with each one."

After the jurors chose a foreman, each gave their impression of each defendant, the anonymous juror said.

The jury then returned to the courtroom to hear three excerpts from taped conversations between the defendants and federal agent Michael Sweat of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The excerpts concerned a

Nazi planning meeting held Oct. 8, 1980. Sweat was posing as a mercenary who said he could fly the Nazis to South America after the bombings.

In the tape, defendant James Talbert was recorded saying, "Mike, we don't intend to get caught for what we do (in Greensboro)."

Two and a half hours after hearing the tape, the jury returned with a guilty verdict.

Convicted on one count of conspiracy each were Frank Lee Braswell, 48, and his wife Patsy, 31, both of Penland; Raeford Milano Caudle, 39, of Winston-Salem; Joseph Gorrell Pierce, 28, and his brother Roger Allen Pierce, 25, and Talbert, 30, all of Walnut Cove.

Frank Braswell, Gorrell Pierce and Caudle received the maximum penalty of five years in prison and fines of $10,000 each. Patsy Braswell and Talbert received suspended two-year sentences and were placed on three years of probation by U.S. District Court Judge Woodrow W. Jones of Rutherfordton.

Roger Pierce received three years of probation under the federal Young Adult Offenders Act.

Defense Attorney Joseph Connally said he did not regret deliberately choosing a well-educated jury.

Educated people, Connally said, could "put aside the fact that these people are Nazis."

All the convicted Nazis plan to appeal their convictions to the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., he said.

The Nazis were accused of plotting to bomb public areas of Greensboro, including the federal courthouse, in the event of guilty verdicts in last fall's Klan-Nazi trial.

Six Nazis and Ku Klux Klansmen were acquitted of killing five anti-Klan demonstrators in that trial, and there were no bombings.

UNC President Commends Step

BY JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A follow-up story Sunday on desegregation at the University of North Carolina shows that CBS-TV has a "sense of fair play," UNC president William Friday said.

Friday, who attacked last week's "Sunday Morning" show on UNC's 10-year desegregation effort as unfair, said this week's show indicated CBS had "an interest in presenting the whole story. I definitely feel better now."

The later show included an interview with Friday, who told CBS reporter Ed Rabel why it took so long to reach an agreement with the federal government on desegregation of the 16-campus UNC system.

But John Jordan, chairman of the UNC Board of Governors, said this week's show did not completely atone for the "terrible injustice" of the earlier story.

"The pity of it is that they had the interview on tape and could have shown it last week in the context of the original story," Jordan said. "It would have been much more effective that way."

Friday said he would write a letter of thanks to Charles Kuralt, host of the program, who is a Wilmington native and graduate of the UNC-Chapel Hill School of Journalism.

He said CBS officials did not tell him they planned to air a second story.

"I've never known a TV news show to run a second story on something and admit that the first one was not comprehensive enough and more explanations were needed," he said. "I think that's significant and I commend (CBS) for that."

At the beginning of this week's show, Kuralt said the network was "taking another look" at the story because it involved issues that were "more complicated" than the initial report indicated.

Kuralt did not apologize or say the first show had aroused attacks from Friday, Jordan, North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt and other state and university officials.

The officials had said that last week's 12-minute "Sunday Morning" segment, entitled "Inherently Unequal," was biased and gave an inaccurate and incomplete picture of the desegregation dispute.

The earlier show included statements by a NAACP official and students at UNC-Chapel Hill and North Carolina Central University who said that UNC was making little progress toward integration. The story included only one short statement by Friday and none by other state or university officials.

In the interview aired Sunday, Friday denied charges that the settlement represented a "retreat" from past standards of racial justice. "The argument was over means, not ends," he said. "We want desegregation as much as they do but ... we take a stand against having someone dictate our administrative policies."

Friday also said it was hard to reconcile desegregation and the demands of blacks that predominantly black campuses retain their "black orientation."

He also provided statistics on increased minority enrollment at predominantly white campuses during the 1970s.

Needed By Castaways

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Robinson Crusoe probably would get a charge out of what today's youngsters would take with them if shipwrecked on a desert island.

The Arizona Republic asked its young readers such a question and got some intriguing responses. Among them:

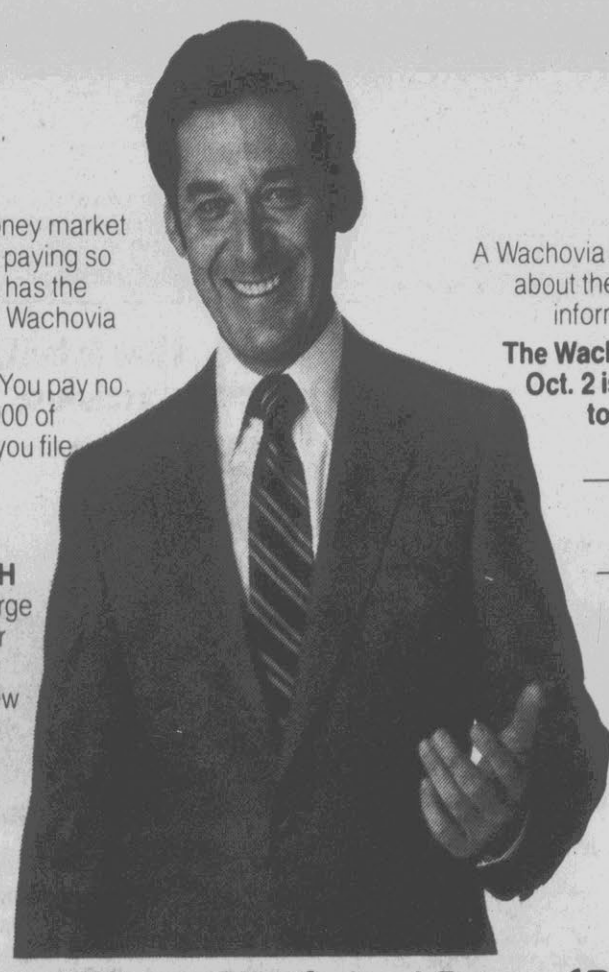

Shanda Johnson, 10, of Sunset School in Glendale, wrote: "If I were shipwrecked, I would like to have my mother and father, but not my sister! I would also like to have some canned and dried-out food so we would not always be eating bananas."

Elizabeth Gray, 8, of Starline School in Lake Havasu City, said "all I would want is a bathing suit." A more practical 7-year-old, Bryant MacPherson of St. Francis School in Phoenix, wrote, "I would like to have with me a pet alligator, a rifle to shoot some animals for food (and) an ark to sail away."

However, Amy Myers, 11, of Madison Meadows School in Phoenix, may have come up with a whole new approach to desert-island desolation. Wrote Miss Myers: "If that happened to me, I'd like to have with me an American Express card and another boat, of course."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost more ground today, showing little response to prime rate reductions by several large banks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 36.62 points last week, dropped 1.72 to 834.47 by noontime today.

Declines outnumbered advances by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

New York's Chase Manhattan Bank lowered its prime lending rate this morning from 20 to 19 1/2 percent.

Other large banks in New York, Chicago and San Francisco matched that cut, soon afterward, and a smaller bank in St. Louis lowered its nominal charge on blue-chip loans to 19 percent.

But analysts said traders were still troubled by what many economists see as a developing recession.

A preliminary government estimate last week showed the second consecutive quarterly decline in the gross national product, after adjustment for inflation, during the July-September period.

Sunbeam jumped 9 1/2 to 30 1/2 after a delayed opening. IC Industries proposed to acquire the company for $32 a share.

The NYSE's composite index fell 27 to 67.00. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped 4.57 to 295.76.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 17.81 million shares at noontime, against 21.87 million at the same point Friday.

Iran Executioners Count 149 More On Weekend

By FAROUK NASSAR
 Associated Press Writer
 BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Tehran Radio reported 149 more leftists executed in Iran during the weekend, raising the total number of executions officially announced to 772 in three months.

Other sources in Tehran reported the firing squads' weekend toll was 183, and one source said officials put the total at more than 2,000 since President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr was ousted on June 22.

The government radio said among those who died were two people who were executed immediately Sunday night in Tehran after they were found carrying Molotov cocktails.

Iran's revolutionary prosecutor, Musavi Tabrizi, said in a broadcast Friday that terrorists would be "tried in the streets, on the spot," when arrested so the government would not have to waste money feeding them in prison.

Bani-Sadr's ouster by the Islamic fundamentalists of the ruling Islamic Republican Party touched off a campaign of bombings and assassinations by the Islamic-Marxist Mujahedeen Khalq underground organization. The government in retaliation has made thousands of arrests and is keeping its firing squads busy.

Tehran's prosecutor general, Assadollah Lajavardi, told a news conference juvenile terrorists would suffer the same summary fate as adults.

"Even if a 12-year-old child is found participating in an armed demonstration, he will be shot. The age doesn't matter," he said. "They are young and they can be duped into counter-revolutionary activities."

Meanwhile, the Council of Guardians approved the presidential candidacies of five men and disqualified 39 others who filed for the Oct. 2 election.

The front-runner is Hojatolislam Ali Khamenei, the secretary-general of the Islamic Republican Party. The other four are the prime minister, Ayatollah Mohammad-Reza Kani; Education Minister Ali-Akbar Parvaresh, former Deputy Interior Minister Reza Zavarehei and Energy Minister Hassan Ghafoori.

They are candidates to succeed President Mohammad Ali Rajai, who with Prime Minister Mohammad Bahonar was assassinated by a firebomb Aug. 30.

Compensation For Iran Hostages Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential panel today recommended that the U.S. government pay each of the former American hostages in Iran $12.50 per day as compensation for their ordeal.

If the proposal is approved by President Reagan, each of the 52 ex-hostages held in captivity for 444 days would be entitled to $5,550 in compensation.

The nine-member commission, which included former Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, released its recommendations after three months of deliberations.

The compensation recommendation was one of six specific proposals contained in the commission's report.

The panel said the tax exempt detention benefits it was recommending are similar to those given to Vietnam prisoners of war and interned civilians in Vietnam and to the crew of the USS Pueblo, which was detained by North Korean authorities for 11 months in 1968.

In addition, the commission recommended that:

- The maximum payment allowable on claims for damage to or loss of personal property be increased from $40,000 to $50,000.
- The medical and health benefits relating to the hostages detention be authorized without limit.
- Existing legislation relating to hostage benefits be amended to cover future hostage situations.

The $12.50 per day compensation recommended by the commission fell far short of the figure suggested by Brice Claggett, the attorney for the hostages and their families.

Considering the execution threats, torture and other mistreatment of the hostages, "you would be on the conservative side if you were to decide that a court would be likely to pay a minimum of $1,000 for each day of captivity for each hostage," Claggett had told the commission.

His proposal would have cost the U.S. government $23 million in compensation for the 52 hostages who were released last January after 444 days of captivity.

In contrast, the commission's recommendation would cost the government about $289,000 for the 52 hostages. That figure would be somewhat higher when compensation is added for hostages released before last January.

However, a representative of Vietnam veterans told the commission that any compensation would be a "deliberate slap in the face" to the Americans who fought in that war only to be scorned by their government and countrymen on their return.

The nine-member commission also includes former Health and Human Services Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris.

Too Many Win

FAIRFIELD, Maine (AP) — Everyone loves a winner, and just about everyone turned out to be one when a promotion games sponsored by a northern New England supermarket chain apparently went haywire.

Officials for Sampson's supermarkets were trying to figure out today what went wrong with its "horse race" contest during the weekend.

There are supposed to be only two $1,000 winners a week in the chain's 31 stores in Maine and New Hampshire. But an employee says that five to 10 minutes after a taped race ended on television Saturday, people in many of the stores were lining up with winning tickets.

No payouts were being made pending the investigation.

One employee said that at the Fairfield, Maine store, 11 people had tickets for the winning horse. Other stores in central Maine had unofficial counts of up to 25 holders of winning tickets.

A Sampson's employee said that some of the winners who were denied their purses were understanding, while others were livid.

"I happened to go outside to get some ice for a customer," one employee said, "and one man was saying, 'They'll either pay or I'll see the attorney general.'"

Roger Hoyt, president of Hannaford Brothers Co., which runs the Sampson's stores, could not be reached immediately this morning.

But he said during the weekend he had not yet contacted the man who ran the promotional game. Hoyt also said he was not sure whether insurance would cover losses if the stores decide to honor the winning tickets.

Pittsburgh Blasts Jets; Rams Defeat Packers

By The Associated Press
Fear can be a motivator of men, and in the case of the Pittsburgh Steelers, off to their worst start since 1970, it has been absolutely essential, quarterback Terry Bradshaw says.

The Steelers were among six teams that won their first games of the 3-week-old National Football League season Sunday. The others were Los Angeles, Cleveland, St. Louis, Chicago and Minnesota.

Five teams — Miami, San Diego, Atlanta, Philadelphia and Dallas — remained undefeated, and three others — New England, New York Jets and Washington — had yet to win their first game. Three other teams — Cincinnati, Houston and Kansas City — were knocked from the ranks of the unbeaten.

The Patriots have a chance to get on the winning ledger tonight when they play host to the Cowboys.

"To win in this league, you've got to fear your opponent, knock him down and run with reckless abandon, and that's what we learned today," Bradshaw said after the Steelers got on track with a 38-10 drubbing of the Jets.

The Rams, meanwhile, broke through against Bart Starr's Green Bay Packers 35-23, and Cleveland won No. 1 against Cincinnati, 20-17.

In other games, St. Louis outlasted Washington 40-30, Chicago defeated Tampa Bay 28-17, Minnesota edged Detroit 26-24, Miami dumped Houston 16-10, San Diego defeated Kansas City 42-31, Atlanta clobbered San Francisco 34-17, Denver thrashed Baltimore 28-10, the New York Giants defeated New Orleans 20-7 and Oakland downed Seattle 20-10. Philadelphia beat Buffalo, 20-14, in Thursday night's game.

Steelers 38, Jets 10
Bradshaw ran 1 yard for one Pittsburgh touchdown and passed for 225 yards, but reserve running back Frank

Pollard was the big offensive catalyst for the struggling Steelers.

Pollard, who started for the second week after Sidney Thornton had lost four fumbles in the Steelers opener, rushed for two touchdowns. Russell Davis, who scored Pittsburgh's other touchdown, led Pittsburgh with 100 yards rushing.

"The Steelers suddenly caught life," said Jets Coach Walt Michaels, whose job may be in serious jeopardy after three straight losses. "I said earlier in the week they were a sleeping tiger."

Rams 35, Packers 23
Jeff Rutledge, replacing the injured Pat Haden, tossed a third-quarter touchdown pass of 30 yards to Drew Hill, putting the Rams on top for good at 21-16. Haden sustained bruised ribs when he was sacked by Green Bay defensive end Mike Butler early in the second quarter.

Cullen Bryant and Wendell Tyler added short touchdown runs in the fourth quarter as Los Angeles finally got on the winning side of the ledger. The loss dropped the Packers to 1-2.

Browns 20, Bengals 17
Fullback Mike Pruitt, seeing spot duty because of a pulled hamstring, made the most of his playing time with 69 yards rushing and a 12-yard touchdown run that earned Cleveland its first 1981 victory and dropped Cincinnati to 2-1.

Cards 40, Redskins 30
Jim Hart threw for 226 yards and three touchdowns, and rookie Stump Mitchell scored on a 50-yard punt return as St. Louis downed Washington in a meeting of previously winless teams.

Bears 28, Bucs 17
Rookie Jeff Fisher returned a punt 88 yards for a touchdown, and quarterback Vince Evans accounted for two touchdowns — one running, one passing — as Chicago thumped Tampa Bay, now 1-2.

Vikings 26, Lions 24
Rick Danmeier's 20-yard field goal with four seconds left boosted Minnesota over the Lions, who dropped to 1-2. Vikings quarterback Tommy Kramer, playing in his first game since injuring his knee in an Aug. 27 preseason game, guided Minnesota on an 81-yard drive in the final two minutes to set up the kick.

Dolphins 16, Oilers 10
Trailing 10-9, Don Strock hit rookie Andra Franklin with a 3-yard touchdown pass that boosted the undefeated Dolphins over Houston, which had won its first two. Strock replace starting quarterback David Woodley to start the second half when Coach Don Shula opted for more experience at the helm.

Chargers 42, Chiefs 31
Dan Fouts threw for three touchdown passes, Chuck Muncie ran for two more and San Diego cemented the victory in the final minutes with a whacky pass deflection-interception-lateral play.

Falcons 34, 49ers 17
Steve Bartkowski tossed three scoring passes, and Tom Pridemore returned an interception 101 yards for a touchdown as Atlanta got off to its first 3-0 start in its 16-year history.

Broncos 28, Colts 10
Craig Morton passed for 291 yards and four touchdowns to lead Denver as he became only the 15th player in NFL history to reach the 25,000-yard career passing plateau. His effort Sunday gave him 25,166 career passing yards.

Giants 20, Saints 7
Phil Simms passed for 324 yards — his best pro effort — and one touchdown, and Joe Danelo kicked a team-record 55-yard field goal as the Giants bettered their record to 2-1.

Raiders 20, Seahawks 10
Fullback Derrick Jensen, who replaced the injured Mark van Eeghen early in the game, scored from one yard out early in the final period to clinch Oakland's victory.

Associated Press Writer

HIGH POINT — Some doctors are reputed to spend a lot of their time on the golf course. But thanks to one doctor in Texas, so can Sandra Haynie.

Haynie, 38 and a 20-year veteran of the LPGA, had participated in only 17 tournaments in the last four years due to chronic back problems and several business commitments. But she returned to the tour this year and capped her comeback with a 1-stroke victory over Judy Clark in the inaugural $165,000 Henredon Classic Sunday.

Haynie sank a short birdie putt on the 17th hole to finish at 7-under par 281 on the Willow Creek Golf Club and capture the 40th victory of her pro career and her first since 1975.

Haynie was grateful she found a physician to fix her bad back.

"It just really never got right," she said. "I found a good back doctor in Dallas. He's really responsible for getting me back into golf."

Haynie's progress toward Sunday's check for $24,750 was slow and steady throughout the season. She managed to make the cut in each of her previous events, and last month was second to Jan Stephenson in the Mary Kay Classic in Dallas. However, the triumph on the 6,249-yard, par 72 course was the pinnacle of her comeback.

"Absolutely. I would consider the whole year a comeback," she added.

Third-round leader Marlene Floyd, who had received golfing tips from her father, L.B. Lloyd, earlier in the week, had a final-round 74 and slipped to third place, two strokes behind the winner.

"I'm really disappointed, but I also got outplayed," Floyd said. "Maybe I could have shot 72."

Clark, after suffering a bogey at 16, rallied with a birdie at No. 17 and finished at 6-under par 282.

"I was excited all day long," Clark said. "I just thought whatever happens, happens."

Beth Daniel and Janet Alex finished in a tie for fourth at 4-under par 284, while Penny Pulz and first-round leader Kathy McMullen both shot 73s in their final rounds and were tied for sixth at 287.

Weiskopf Wins First Since '78

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Tom Weiskopf has finally got the number 13 off his back. And when you're superstitious, that's a burden.

Weiskopf fired a final-round 68 Sunday to capture the inaugural $350,000 LaJet Classic for his 14th Tournament Players Association victory: It was his first triumph since 1978.

"I'm a superstitious person," said Weiskopf. "I was stuck on 13. I was stuck on 13 for 3 1/2 years. And it was bugging me. Now that I've got that monkey off my back, I think I'm flying."

"I'm over the hump," Weiskopf, 38, thus ended the longest slump of a topsy-turvy career that seemed always to fall just short of spectacular.

His 10-under-par 278 total beat Gil Morgan by two shots, earned him $63,000, hiked his 1981 winnings to $173,110, and pushed his career total over the $2 million mark.

"I was the eighth player to win a million and the fourth to win $2 million," he said, reciting the names of his predecessors: Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Tom Watson.

Those three were members of the victorious U.S. Ryder Cup team Sunday in Great Britain.

Despite the absences of the Big Three, a pack of familiar names nipped at Weiskopf's heels most of the warm, calm afternoon at the par 72 Fairway Oaks Golf Club.

But it was Morgan's closing 69 that captured second at 280, securing him $37,800 for what he called "a lot of hard work."

Tommy Valentine, the midway leader, closed with a 2-under-par 70 to share third with Fuzzy Zoeller, and Craig Stadler.

Saying "I played as good as I ever played," Weiskopf began the final round with a 1-shot lead over Morgan, Stadler, Zoeller, Valentine and Hubert Green.

All but Green, with a 76, flirted with the lead much of the day, although Weiskopf seized the top spot for keeps with a 12-foot birdie putt at the par 5 ninth hole. He dipped 10 under at the 14th and that was the ballgame.

"I putted fantastic," said Weiskopf.

He sank birdie putts of six, 15, 12 and two feet, but the key to the round was a series of seven par-saving putts ranging up to 12 feet.

Rose Third At C-C Meet

ROCKINGHAM — Led by Kenny Smith's second-place finish, Greenville Rose's cross-country team finished third in the Shoney Invitational cross-country meet this past weekend here.

Richmond County won the meet with 34 points followed by New Bern with 69 and Rose with 72.

Raleigh Broughton's Mark Shea won individual honors, finishing first over the 5,000-meter course with a time of 15:24. Rose's Smith was second with a time of 15:39.

Rose was without all-star Harry Williams, who could not make the meet.

"I was a little disappointed in our performance," Rose boys' coach Ron Hockmuth said. "I thought we would be a little stronger."

Greenville Rose's girls' cross-country team also competed in the meet and was led by Angie Michel's second-place finish. Michel's time was 20:48. Team scores were not available.

In a trophy awarded for combined boys and girls team totals, Rose was second behind Richmond County.

Cissy Taft was eighth for the Rampettes with a time of 23:31 followed by Hope Streeter in 10th at 24:16 and Kristine Ambert 13th at 26:22.

For the boys, John Ormond was fourth at 16:24 and John Byrd 18th at 17:47. Other Rose finishers included: (23) Chip Little, 17:58; (25) Joe Norcott, 18:24; (36) David Steffensen, 19:17.

Rose travels to Rocky Mount Tuesday.

Sakata's 2 HRs Sink Brewers

By The Associated Press
It didn't take long for Lenn Sakata to get the Baltimore Orioles started, which is just what Manager Earl Weaver expects from his starters. And, for the present, Sakata is an everyday player.

Sakata, a benchwarmer in his previous four seasons of major league duty, has inherited the shortstop job from veteran Mark Belanger. On Sunday, he showed why by smacking a pair of homers and knocking in five runs as Baltimore trounced Milwaukee 8-2 behind Jim Palmer's five-hitter. The first home run led off the Orioles' first inning against Mike Caldwell.

"Earl says if I hit, I'll play," said Sakata, who has batted .346 since becoming a starter 16 games ago. "It's tough to do everyday, but I try to do the best I can."

His best never was enough to get him into the starting lineup as a Brewer for three years and with Baltimore last season. The most games Sakata appeared in during any of those seasons was 53.

Now, however, Weaver is giving Sakata his chance and the Hawaiian infielder is making the best of it.

"I put him in the lineup because we needed some offense," Weaver said, "and he's done the job. That's what a guy has to do when he's waiting to get in ... go in and produce. He's not required to produce like that everyday, but I certainly don't mind it."

Sakata, who has hit three of his six career homers against the Brewers, singled in the second, blasted a two-run shot in the third and had an RBI single in the seventh.

"I try harder against them," Sakata said of his former team. "I thought they overlooked me and that they didn't think I had enough ability to play on the team."

Another hero for Baltimore was Eddie Murray, who has been even hotter at bat than Sakata. Murray, 26-for-56 in his last 15 games, has driven in 42 runs in Baltimore's 37 games in the second half. He added a two-run homer as the Orioles dropped the Brewers from first to third in the tight American League East race. Milwaukee is one-half game behind Detroit, while Baltimore is fourth, two games out.

Tigers 5, Indians 1
All-Star right-hander Jack Morris hurled his 14th complete game, a five-hitter, as the Indians lost for the seventh time in eight games.

Lou Whitaker's run-scoring double snapped a 1-1 tie in the ninth and Steve Kemp followed shortly with a three-run double.

"We're back on top again," said Tigers Manager Sparky Anderson. Detroit closes the season with six games against Baltimore and six more with Milwaukee. "We can control Baltimore and Milwaukee. Not that we will, but we've got the opportunity."

Red Sox 4, Yankees 1
Tony Perez was the hitting star for the Red Sox with a pair of homers. Rookie pitcher Bruce Hurst won his second straight major-league game with 31-3 innings of one-hit relief help from veteran Bill Campbell as Boston won for the sixth time in seven games.

Perez, 39, slammed his seventh homer of the season and No. 355 of his career after Dave Stapleton led off the fourth with a single. He made 3-1 with a homer to center with two out in the sixth.

"When I get my pitch," said Perez, "I hit it. It takes a lot of different people doing things to win, and that's what's happening here. One guy can't do it every day. It was my time today. Tomorrow it probably will be somebody else."

Blue Jays 6, Angels 3
Toronto handed California its sixth loss in a row and 14th in 15 games as Otto Velez, John Mayberry and Ted Cox helped the Jays feel behind 3-0 after one inning. But Mayberry and Velez hit consecutive home runs off Geoff Zahn in the second, then Cox tied it when he led off the third with his second homer of the season and second in as many days. Buck Martinez drove in the winning run in the fourth, then Cox singled in two more runs in the sixth.

"I have nothing to say," snapped Angels Manager Gene

ECU Goalie Breaks Record

Goalie Steve Brown broke his own career shutout record and Bill Merwin and Mark Hardy scored two goals each as East Carolina defeated Coker College, 4-0, Sunday afternoon in a college soccer match.

The shutout was Brown's sixth in his career, breaking his own mark of five which he set last year. On the afternoon Brown had only three saves as Coker College could manage on four shots.

ECU had 20 shots on goal, four of which went in — two by Merwin and two by Hardy as the Pirates moved ahead 2-0 at the half and then added two more goals in the second half to capture their second win in four outings. Coker College is 1-1.

It seems the world didn't come to an end after all.

There had been some predictions that it was all over for East Carolina following North Carolina's 56-0 victory over the Pirates a week ago. But Saturday night in Raleigh, the Pirates proved that they are far from dead.

The 31-10 final score does not reflect the actual game. With just over two minutes to go in the third period it was 10-10, and the two teams were struggling tooth and nail.

But a fumble put the ball in State's hands in excellent field position, and the Wolfpack used a trick play to score and take the lead.

Even so, the Pirates were not out of it until Louie Meadows returned two punts, one of them for a touchdown, and the other to set up a touchdown in the fourth period.

Those three plays proved the difference in the game.

But the Pirates cannot be faulted for giving up or anything like that. They fought hard throughout the game, and despite some problems with injuries did their best.

The season is far from over, and the Pirates should win a number of games down the line. Getting back home on Saturday night will definitely be a big help to them.

Coming up in the latter stages of the year will be the fateful meeting of the NCAA which will probably settle, for a while at least, the question of major college football.

The members of the College Football Association (CFA) want to trim down what is currently known as Division I-A. It was tried a couple of years ago, but at that time, the criteria were not too exacting, and schools and conferences were more or less given the option of staying I-A or dropping to the lesser I-AA. Most chose to remain in the upper division.

Now, the CFA wants that division cut more, and they seem to have the muscle now to get it done.

The NCAA is likely to adopt a single criterium for membership in the new Division I setup. They are proposing this: to be a member you must average 17,000 per game on home games.

This, according to the NCAA will eliminate several conferences, plus a handful of independents. Among those conferences would be the Mid-American, the Missouri Valley, the Ivy League, the Southland, and the Pacific Athletic Conference (not to be confused with the Pac-10).

Under this plan, the new Division I would have 85-95 members, what the CFA says is a good working number.

Currently, East Carolina would be in the new Division I grouping. According to official figures, ECU has averaged 21,476 in attendance over the past five years.

An alternate figure by the NCAA could be 20,000 for all games. ECU in that same time span has averaged over 25,000.

Either way, the Pirates would qualify — if either of these suggestions are adopted.

But there is an important factor here — the fan. It is up to the fan to come to the games, through good times and trouble. To back the Pirates through all times to guard the future.

If things go down the drain, is the really the fault of the school. Every school has bad years, every school gets embarrassed. Just as such notables as Notre Dame, Alabama, Michigan, and the like.

As is any sporting attraction, the future remains in the hands of the fans.

#5 Clemson Beats #16 Wolfpack, 5-3

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Bakty Barber, placing it over Clemson's Nnamdi Nwokocho and Mo Tinsley each fired in two goals to lead the fifth-ranked Tigers to a 5-3 victory over 16th-ranked North Carolina State in a key Atlantic Coast Conference soccer game Sunday.

Nwokocho began the juggernaut by scoring just six minutes into the game, with assists from Sunday Nwokocho and Aronson Aruno, to give Clemson a 1-0 lead.

State tied the game 10 minutes later when the Wolfpack's Sam Okpodu headed a pass from midfielder

State scored twice in the closing minutes, when Steve Green scored on a pass from Gerry McKeown and when Prince Afejuku tallied on a penalty kick with only 1:05 to go.

Clemson coach Ibrahim Ibrahim, whose team raised its record to 5-0, said he was pleased to beat a high-ranked team like N.C. State.

"We figured to be among the conference's strongest teams if not the strongest before the Brian Cantrell and Jeff season. I think we proved that Karpovich scored goals in the today. N.C. State and Duke opening half to give GSC a 2-0 were the two teams we have to lead at intermission. Rob beat, and we play Duke next Elinger scored the GSC's other weekend at Clemson," Ibrahim said.

Beaufort's only goal came on a penalty shot in the second half by Brian Duncan. State, which fell to 4-1, hosts High Point at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

The GSC is now 1-0.

Pleading His Case

East Carolina head coach Ed Emory pleads his case with a referee during Saturday night's game with N.C. State in Raleigh. Emory lost the argument and his Pirates, after being tied with the Wolfpack 10-10 at halftime, lost the game, 31-10. (AP Laserphoto)

Wilson Sparks Mets Past Cards

By The Associated Press
Mookie Wilson is the type of player the New York Mets want to handle the leadoff spot in the lineup, steal a few bases and score some runs ... in other words, they want him to make things happen.

Wilson certainly made things happen Sunday as he kept the Mets in the second-half pennant race with a 7-6 victory over St. Louis, completing a three-game series sweep over the Cardinals.

But the rookie center fielder did it in a way the Mets wouldn't expect, with a two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning against one of the best relievers in baseball, Bruce Sutter. The homer, only his third of the year, followed a two-out double by Frank Taveras.

"All I was trying to do was keep the rally going once Frank got on base," said Wilson. "I wasn't thinking home run at all."

"Taveras really hustled to get that double and I just wanted a hit. You have to tie it before you can win it, and that's all I was trying to do." Wilson said the homer climaxed "the most exciting game of my life. It was definitely a game to remember. I still haven't come down. I'm as high as I could possibly be. This was something."

The three losses in a row by the Cardinals cut their lead to 1 1/2 games over Montreal and 2 1/2 over the Mets in the NL East.

St. Louis built a 5-0 lead after five innings before the Mets came back twice in a style reminiscent of their 1969 and 1973 pennant-winning seasons.

Wilson had a run-scoring double as New York tied the game with two runs in the seventh inning and three in the eighth.

Then he misplayed a long fly by Tito Landrum in the ninth, then bobbled the triple so that Landrum was able to score, giving the Cardinals a 6-5 lead.

"Shadows were tough and the ball stayed in the sun an extra second," the center fielder said. "Once I got to the ball, I just dropped it and he kept going."

Wilson's RBI double came in the Mets' two-run sixth, when Doug Flynn and Ron Hodges also doubled.

Expos 4, Cubs 0
Bill Gullickson pitched a three-hitter and struck out 13 Chicago batters as Montreal moved to within 1 1/2 games of the lead in the East.

Gullickson, 5-8, who set a one-game rookie strikeout record with 18 last season, had a no-hitter until Leon Durham doubled in the fifth.

Astros 7, Giants 3
Nolan Ryan won his ninth game in 14 decisions with a seven-hitter over San Francisco as Houston maintained its 2 1/2-game lead over Cincinnati in the NL West.

Houston scored four runs in the first, highlighted by Luis Pujols' two-run single. But the Giants got three in the bottom of the inning on Larry Herndon's sacrifice fly and Jeff Leonard's two-run single.

Ryan settled down to blank San Francisco the rest of the way, while the Astros padded their lead. Tony Scott, who was 4-for-5, had a solo homer and Terry Puhl a squeeze bunt single in the sixth.

Reds 5, Dodgers 1
Cincinnati completed a three-game sweep of Los Angeles as Mario Soto pitched a seven-hitter and struck out nine batters.

Dan Driessen paced the Reds' 13-hit attack with three singles and three RBI, while Ken Griffey had four hits and Joe Nolan three for Cincinnati.

Phillies 5, Pirates 4
Philadelphia hit for the cycle in the seventh inning, scoring four runs on two singles, a double, a triple and Mike Schmidt's 27th homer.

With Pittsburgh ahead 3-1, Manny Trillo singled, went to third on Dave Parker's throwing error and scored on a double by Greg Gross, who came home on Lonnie Smith's triple. Pete Rose singled in a go-ahead run, and after a double play, Schmidt homered for a 5-3 lead.

Parker knocked in three runs with two doubles for the Pirates.

Braves 3, Padres 1
Claudell Washington knocked in two runs for Atlanta, including the go-ahead tally in the 11th inning.

Washington gave the Braves a 1-0 lead in the first inning with a double, but they didn't score again until he singled home Eddie Miller from second base. Right fielder Luis Salazar let the ball get by him, allowing Washington to go to third, and he scored on Jerry Royster's single.

Al Hrabosky won his first game in two decisions with three innings of relief work.

Hard-Luck Gant Second—Again

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Neil Bonnett, apparently well out of a long slump won his second race in three weeks, but it took another bad break for hard-luck Harry Gant to give him Sunday's CRC Chemicals 500 Grand National stock car race.

Gant, who has finished second 10 times in two years of fulltime Grand National racing and still is looking for his first victory, had a 14-second lead over Bonnett when his Pontiac Grand Prix dropped a valve in the 437th lap of the 500-lap event at Dover Downs International Speedway.

Bonnett inherited the lead and kept in Ford Thunderbird on top, easily beating second-place Darrell Waltrip's Buick Regal to the finish.

Bobby Allison wound up a distant third, which moved Waltrip past Allison into the lead in the Winston Cup season point race. Waltrip, who once trailed Allison by more than 300 points, now holds a two-point edge with six races remaining on the 1981 schedule.

But Allison, who has finished behind Waltrip in nine straight races and hasn't won since June 21, said he isn't worried about Waltrip.

"I think (the points race) will go right down to the wire," he said. "No sense in worrying about him (Waltrip). We just want to win the race."

Waltrip said he is just out to win races.

"I'm not just worried about Bobby. We want to run as strong as we can. It feels good to lead the points after trailing by 341 in June after the Texas race. But it isn't over by any means. Now we want to get as far ahead as we can," Waltrip added.

And he had nothing but praise for Bonnett, saying if Bonnett "keeps things together, he ought to win every race from now on."

Bonnett, who averaged 119.561 mph, admitted he didn't know if he could catch Gant.

"We had the car loose to start with in the race, but we tightened it up too much. We didn't get the caution (flag) to fix it, so we just went with it," he said, adding that the Woods Brothers team had "made a lot of changes" in his Ford's engine. "I ran that thing hard today. I had a lot of faith it would work, but there's no such thing as a guarantee."

Bonnett, who took first-place money of $19,000 purse, also said he could sympathize with Gant.

"I know exactly how he feels. We did the same thing in May," he said, referring to the Mason-Dixon 500 in Dover where he had the lead before blowing his engine with less than 100 miles left in the race.

Gant, who had made his last pit stop, was "disappointed."

"I dropped a valve," he said. "I wasn't even working hard. I was just cooling it. I figured I had this one."

The race, lasting just over four hours, attracted a record attendance 38,000 people.

There were several spins and four caution flags, but no injuries were reported.

Pats After First Victory Tonight

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots didn't expect to start out this way — two losses in their first two National Football League games.

And the Patriots will have a tough fight to avoid dropping their third in a row when they meet the unbeaten Dallas Cowboys Monday night.

The 1981 season has been out of character for New England. Hadn't they charged out of the blocks quickly in recent seasons only to falter near the finish line? Hadn't they won all four of their preseason games, one of only two teams to do that?

But a 29-28 loss to the Baltimore Colts and a 13-3 defeat at the hands of the NFC champion Philadelphia Eagles has left the Patriots at 0-2.

"It's better than being 0-3, isn't it?" said Coach Ron Erhardt, who was reminded that a quick turnaround is needed for the Patriots to have a decent playoff shot. "We're all aware of it but we might get into the playoffs at 8-8."

"By no means do two games make a season. We have 14 games left and three in the post-season," said Patriots' defensive end Tony McGee.

Playing the powerful Cowboys, who are 2-0, tonight may not be the easiest way to pick up your first win, but Erhardt expects the Patriots to be psychologically prepared.

"We're going to claw, bite, scratch, do everything we can do," he said. "They (the Cowboys) are not invincible but they're playing as good as anybody's playing."

"It's going to take a great effort on our part. It'll be a very emotional game, like it was against Philadelphia," he added. "But this team is more potent offensively."

"We felt we could maybe get stopped on third down and not make it against Philly and they wouldn't march right down. But if you give this team (Dallas) the ball, they can strike."

Tony Dorsett and Danny White have been the standouts in a well-balanced Cowboy offense that has gained 387 yards rushing and 350 yards passing.

Dorsett is off to the best start of his career. He gained 132 yards in his first game, a 26-10 win at Washington, and 129 in his second game, a 30-17 victory over St. Louis.

Real Tennis Teams Out To Establish Programs

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

With Farmville Central dropping its program, only four area schools will field girls' tennis teams this season and none appear strong enough to contend for conference honors this season.

After a year's absence, Greene Central returns to the courts but is one of only three schools in Eastern Carolina Conference to have a team, the other two being Charles B. Aycock and Southern Nash.

While none of the teams appear overly strong, there are a few outstanding individuals, notably Williamston's Theresa Duffy, last year's Northeastern Conference singles champion.

Greene Central

It was only a year ago that Greene Central failed to field a girls' tennis team because of a lack of interest. One year later the Lady Rams are back — in force.

Coach Seth Jones has 14 players on this year's club, including five who played two years ago when the Lady Rams last had a tennis team. And while pleased with the turnout this year, he is at a loss to explain it.

"I don't know," Jones said. "I can't explain it why we had only five out last year and now we have 14 this year. But I think it's great. We've had to go to a split practice because I only have four courts, but it's a good problem to have."

Jones has yet to decide how his top six players will be arranged. For now, however, he lists Cindy May and Mary Beth Whitfield, both of whom played two years ago, as his top two players. Others expected to start are Sherri Odum, Gina Carraway, Jane Carraway and Katie Harrison.

Others on the team are: Glenda Mooring, Donna Jo Taylor, Carol Brown, Kathy Herring, Karen Carraway, Deana Carraway, Tammy Albritton and Kelly Wade.

"Not having a team last year is going to hurt us," Jones said. "We just hope to be competitive this year and try to build something for next year."

The Lady Rams, who have only six matches this year, open their 1981 season Thursday at home against Eastern Carolina Conference foe Charles B. Aycock. The Falcons figure to be the strongest team in the ECC, followed by Southern Nash and the Rams.

Roanoke

With all six seeds returning from last year, Roanoke tennis coach Phil Griffin figured on his Redskins to be much improved. Five matches into the 1981 season Griffin's hopes have yet to be realized.

Roanoke is 1-4 thus far this season, a record that is both disappointing and perplexing to Griffin.

"With the experience we have back — all our top six seeds were seeded last year — I thought we would be better," Griffin said. "But our record is running about the same as last year."

"I think we will improve because at this time the girls are playing a lot of tennis. We might surprise somebody. I'm not gonna say we're gonna challenge for the top position, but we might surprise somebody who is taking us lightly."

The Redskins' #1 seed is senior Deanna Morris. Janet Clark is playing #2 followed by Mary Bland, Paula Respass, Janet Hoskins and Tammy Johnson. All but Hoskins are juniors. Hoskins is a senior.

Others on the team are Tracey Davis, Kim Roberson and Jynia Smith — the only first-year player on the team.

Roanoke meets Edenton Tuesday, a team Griffin said is perhaps the best in the Northeastern Conference. Griffin also said that Washington and Tarboro should be among the leaders when the season is over.

Williamston

Williamston's top three seeds have more than handled their own four matches into the 1981 season, but it is the bottom three seeds that has coach Peggy Taylor concerned.

"Things have gone fairly well so far," said Taylor, whose team is 2-2 this season. "But the one thing we don't have is depth. We're having a rough time in the bottom of the order."

The first three seeds are set. Theresa Duffy, the defending Northeastern Conference singles champion, is at #1, followed by Amy Griffin at #2 and Amy Jones at #3.

Cathe Jones, who saw limited action last year, is #4 while Lynn Mills is #5 and Lynne Sanders #6. Normally, Fannie Peel and Ann Davis play one of the bottom three seeds. Both are sick, however, forcing Taylor to change her lineup.

"Our top two seeds have held their own, but we've had to move some girls up that normally would play seven or eight."

Taylor said the Lady Tigers should finish in the middle of the league, behind Edenton, Roanoke Rapids, Tarboro and Washington. Williamston travels to Bear Grass Tuesday and then gets its first shot at Washington Thursday. "That match will tell us a lot," Taylor said. "I'm afraid it'll tell us a lot."

Bear Grass

It is a modest goal, but one that Bear Grass tennis team may have a hard time achieving, one, because the Lady Bears are in their first year and, two, because they are a 1-A team playing in a 3-A league.

The goal? "We hope to win two matches this season," Bear Grass coach Henry Rogers said.

The Lady Bears are 1-4 so far this season, having beaten Plymouth. But because the girls' team is in its first year, Rogers has had to focus much of his attention on fundamentals.

"We're trying to teach them the basic strokes: the forehand, backhand and serve," he said. "We got a late start in coaching and thus far we've had to depend on what the girls know. But I'd say we're a little ahead of schedule right now."

Robin Knox is Bear Grass' #1 seed, followed by Ann Bullock, Mary Rodgerson, Cindy Harrison, Nanette Harris and Mariann Moore. Others on the team are Angie Mizelle, Patricia Neilsen and Deborah Price.

The Lady Bears are taking the place of Ashokie, which dropped tennis before the year began, in the Northeastern Conference. "We're fairly well-pleased so far," Rogers said.

"We're a 1-A school playing in a 3-A conference. At the present time we're trying to keep the girls' team going. We're trying to expand our facilities and improve our abilities."

Bear Grass returns to action Tuesday against Williamston.

Rossi Relates Real-Life Journalistic Experiences

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — From the reality-imitates-art department, here's the true-life journalistic experience of Robert Walden, intrepid reporter Joe Rossi on the "Lou Grant" show.

Walden calls it "Editorial Embolism, or How I Lost My Journalistic Virginity and Learned to Laugh." It all began when Walden pitched a story to the Los Angeles Free Press pegged to a cross-country walk by American Indians calling attention to legislation before Congress.

He got tentative editorial approval, but then had to start all over again. "The story's fine," Walden said the willing editor told him, "but you'll have to sell it to this guy now; he's the new managing editor. I just got fired."

That editorial hurdle overcome again, Walden started his research, joining the Indians on their march for a first-person account. Like any other word merchant, he slaved over it. "I stayed up all night and must have changed the lead (first paragraph) 15 times."

He finally submitted the story, only to discover that the publisher had been shot and his wife was folding the paper. "When I heard about the tragedy I reacted the way any writer would, sensitively. I asked, 'What does this do to my story?'"

Assured that his piece would close the paper, Walden waited for the tentatively titled "Longest Walk" to appear. "When I saw it, I almost threw up. They changed it to the '3,000-Mile Warpath.' It was the most prejudicial headline I ever saw."

How could I face those Indians? I wrote, I thought sensitively, about a spiritual walk in which there were no weapons, alcohol or drugs, and they throw this sensational headline at me. Let me tell you, I was bleeding all over on this one."

But Walden knows creative tensions are not restricted to the print media. His producers on "Lou Grant" were not interested in the Indian saga until two years later. "That's when they thought of it," Walden said. "But they turned the walk into a relay race."

Walden, as actor, has been victimized by sensational headlines in those supermarket-counter newspapers. "I've never talked to them, but they've done erroneous stories on me. The public's right to know has nothing to do with the information they're looking for: Who's sleeping with whom."

Monday nights, tries to inform and entertain — "a noble ambition." He thinks, however, that the hard-driven Rossi could be softened a bit.

"He's a little unreal because he refuses to be vulnerable around the office. I know there's got to be a release when he leaves the war zone, and maybe this year we'll see it."

Would Rossi have interviewed Robert Walden?

"He wouldn't want to. He doesn't go for that celebrity stuff, or anything that might sidetrack him from the Pulitzer. But I think we'd get along better than he would with a lot of people."

GOREN BRIDGE

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K7 ♥A6 ♦A1098763 ♣J2

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West

1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass 2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You have an awkward problem for which there is no easy solution. A rebid of three diamonds shows a weaker hand with better diamonds, but a jump to four diamonds clearly overstates the quality of your suit and could result in your playing an unmakeable five diamonds when four hearts is your best spot. We would opt for three hearts—a slight underbid, perhaps, but we can't go leaping around with only a doubleton honor in partner's suit.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A6 ♥K976 ♦743 ♣AK105

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South

Pass 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You were close to a jump shift at your first turn, so now you must bid the hand as strongly as possible. But you must also set the trump suit, and the logical way to accomplish both purposes is to jump to three hearts now. Should partner simply raise to game, you are worth one more move—a cue-bid of four spades.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQ ♥K976 ♦743 ♣AK105

The bidding has proceeded: West North East South

Pass 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You were close to a jump shift at your first turn, so now you must bid the hand as strongly as possible. But you must also set the trump suit, and the logical way to accomplish both purposes is to jump to three hearts now. Should partner simply raise to game, you are worth one more move—a cue-bid of four spades.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A6 ♥AKQJ93 ♦842 ♣K5

The bidding has proceeded: East South West North

Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♦ Pass 2 ♣ ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Even though partner could take no action after West's overall, you should not give up all hopes of game. However, it might prove easier to make nine tricks than ten, so we suggest that you try two no trump. A few strategically placed cards in partner's hand would make three no trump a viable contract.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AQ ♥J5 ♦K1076 ♣Q9876

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West

1 ♣ Pass 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—If you promote your honors in partner's suits, your hand is worth a full opening bid. The choice lies between a jump to three clubs or a jump to two no trump. Bid two no trump. We prefer that action because nine tricks should be considerably easier to make than eleven, especially with the lead coming up to your ace-queen of spades.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠983 ♥5 ♦A1087 ♣KJ982

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West

1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—What started out as a mediocre hand has suddenly become gigantic. No jump in clubs could compensate for our discouraging first response, and we want to alert partner to slam possibilities. Bid three diamonds. An advance cuebid of the ace of diamonds followed by a jump in clubs will get our message across and leave partner well positioned to judge the hand's potential.

Sunday Night Workout For Leonard Bernstein

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Leonard Bernstein got a workout Sunday night as the Haydn-Stravinsky Celebration by the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center wound up its week at Alice Tully Hall.

He either conducted or played piano on every piece except Stravinsky's 1964 "Fanfare for a New Theater." That is for two trumpets and no conductor and is 30 seconds long.

The piece the audience was most eager to hear was "The Rite of Spring" for two pianists. Bernstein and Michael Tilson Thomas, the new permanent guest conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, played it. Stravinsky made this four-hand piano reduction himself in 1911 and '12, before the orchestra arrangement was finished.

"The Rite of Spring" was exciting in this version, as some music usually heard played by orchestra is not. Of course this has the texture of four hands at the piano. And much of the music's excitement derives from the syncopations and rhythms which come across here.

The two pianists were interesting visually. They sat on stools and played the same piano, Tilson Thomas taking the high register. They often played with their own hands crossed and sometimes had to cross each other's hands. Tilson Thomas lifted his left shoulder and angled his left hand outward from the wrist to get that hand between Bernstein's hands. He had much more apparent difficulty than Bernstein, who placed his right hand over Tilson Thomas' left arm with ease.

Bernstein, wearing a tuxedo, white turtleneck shirt and boots, also played piano in Haydn's "Trio for Piano and Strings in C major." He, violinist James Buswell and cellist Leslie Parnas made a beautiful presentation of that. It is surprising that a person who spends much time composing and plays piano infrequently in public plays as expertly as Bernstein does.

He also performed with cellist Paula Robison and Parnas in Haydn's "Trio for Flute, Cello and Piano in D

major." He conducted Stravinsky's "Octet for Wind Instruments" and "Concertino."

The celebration marks the 100th anniversary of Stravinsky's birth and the 250th of Haydn's. It had five concerts, of which Friday's all-Stravinsky evening and Sunday night were sold out. There also was a film about Stravinsky and Ned Rorem lectured about Stravinsky. H. C. Robbins Landon, author of a new, five-volume biography of Haydn, lectured about that composer.

An Afternoon At Home With Sherlock Homes

By MARLENE AIG
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The game was afoot for some 30 amateur detectives as they sought the crime and the criminal from clues that included a wedding picture, a painted snake and a train schedule, all under the guidance of the greatest detective of them all — Sherlock Holmes.

"At Home With Holmes," an afternoon of Sherlockiana and sherry, was sponsored by the Route of All Evil, an organization devoted to entertaining and enlightening mystery fans.

"I'm only wearing this outfit at your insistence," said Hofstra University Professor Arthur Liebman of Roslyn Heights, who played a healthy-looking Holmes, attired in deerstalker and Inverness cape, clutching a calabash pipe. "One just doesn't wear a deerstalker in London, you know."

He welcomed the gathering Sunday to a makeshift 221-B Baker Street, which in reality was the Ethical Culture Society near Central Park, by toasting Holmes and wishing the novice detectives luck.

It was not clear what crime had been committed.

The clues were arranged on three tables: the first contained a wedding picture of a woman from the Edwardian era; the second featured a disrupted checkers game, glasses, cigars, an apple core, a train schedule and matches; the third was covered with dirt and contained foot prints, a painted snake, broken eyeglasses, a broken plant pot and a blood-splattered rose.

While the amateurs tried to link the clues to a crime, "the great detective" regaled them with a slide show of his career.

There were pictures of Baker Street, tales of his journey after his alleged death in Switzerland, illustrations by Sidney Paget who created his long, lean look, and fun poked at actor William Gillette, who popularized the deerstalker, pipe and Inverness cape as perpetual Holmesian props.

Playing the violin, Holmes said, often helped him see through the foggiest of problems. But he claimed to be suffering from arthritis, so two friends assisted by playing Dvorak's Sonata for Violin and Piano in his stead.

In the end, however, the students failed abysmally. No one detected that there had been two murders: the groom had been poisoned during a friendly checkers game by a spurned suitor, and the suitor was murdered when the bereaved bride struck him on the head with the plant pot, the blood splashing onto the rose she was wearing.

The painted snake had nothing to do with anything. "I came because I like the idea of solving things," said Karen Hobatt, 37, of Summit, N.J., but she added, "I didn't quite get this."

Liebman specializes in crime fiction and thoroughly enjoyed his role, saying, "It's not often one gets to play Holmes."

The perpetrator of the afternoon was Dilys Winn, founder of Murder Ink, a bookstore devoted to mysteries.

But she finally admitted under cross questioning: "I blush to say this. I've never read a Sherlock Holmes story."

Today's Cryptiquip clue: F equals D
The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FOCUS
The Last Colony
Pressed inconspicuously against southwest Mexico and the northwest border of Guatemala, tiny Belize — with only 140,000 people — has been a source of controversy since British citizens first settled there in the 17th century. Belize became a separate British colony in 1884, but for over a century Guatemala has claimed sovereignty over Belize and disputed Britain's rule. Today the last remnant of the British Empire in the Americas will be quietly snuffed out as Belize becomes an independent state. But the British won't abandon Belize completely. Ironically, Belize's former rulers will leave about 1600 British soldiers there to help the small nation guard its newly-won independence from a possible Guatemalan takeover.
DO YOU KNOW — What was the former name of Belize?
FRIDAY'S ANSWER — In 1973 Gerald Ford replaced Spiro Agnew as Vice President.

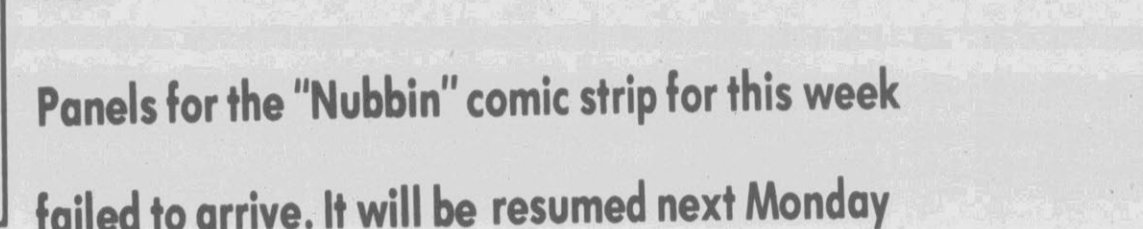

Ten Killed In N.C. Accidents

By The Associated Press
Weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina killed 10 people, the state Highway Patrol reported early today.
The accidents bring the year's total traffic deaths to 995, compared with 1,104 for the same period last year.
Gilmer K. Key, 61, and Marjorie H. Cook, 62, both of Mount Airy, were killed Saturday when their car traveling north on U.S. 52 was hit by another car in the rear. The accident occurred a mile and a half west of Pilot Mountain.
Troopers said Claude L. Kincaid, 42, of Lenoir, was killed Saturday when one car stopped in the road was struck by another, crossed the center line on N.C. 18 and hit Kincaid's car in the right front. The accident occurred a mile east of Lenoir.
Edward Carl Lintz, 16, of Cherryville, was killed Saturday night when he pulled out of a driveway on a motorcycle and was hit by a car. Troopers said the motorcycle had no lights or safety equipment. The accident occurred on N.C. 274 about 16 miles west of Lenoir.
Brenda Vaughn Dry, 28, of Hillsborough was killed Sunday afternoon on N.C. 86 south of Hillsborough after a car she was driving crossed the center line, ran off the road and hit a mailbox and a tree.
Johnny C. Boyles, 24, of Turnersville, was killed early Sunday on Interstate 40 about three-tenths of a mile west of Greensboro when a car he was driving ran off the road, crossed back over the center line and hit a bridge abutment.
James M. Frazier, 23, of Shelby, was killed at 3 a.m. Saturday when a car he was driving left the road at a high rate of speed, went airborne for 60 feet and landed across a creek. Frazier was thrown from the car.
George Ernest Moore, 39, of Mooresboro died Friday night when he drove off Rural Paved Road 1158 about 5 miles west of Shelby. The car hit a culvert and overturned.
Ronnie Ellenberg, 28, of Rutherfordton was killed Saturday morning when he drove off U.S. 64 less than a mile west of his hometown. The car hit a brick wall and overturned.
Ellsworth C. Osling, 20, of Raeford died Saturday when a car he was driving ran off Rural Paved Road 1203 about 3 miles west of Raeford and hit a utility pole. Troopers said Osling died when he got out of his car and walked over fallen power lines.

Said Ready To Sue Ex-CIA Director

NEW YORK (AP) - The federal government plans to sue ex-CIA Director William E. Colby for publishing his 1978 memoir "Honorable Men" without final clearance from his former employer, Newsweek magazine reported.
"In its current issue, the magazine said that the suit is the Reagan administration's way of demonstrating that it will not tolerate breaches in the legal contracts of government employees.
"Federal law prohibits the unauthorized dissemination of national security information by former and current employees.
"An unnamed senior administration official, quoted in the magazine, said the suit shows that in the government's efforts to plug leaks will not only be limited to the "little fish."
The alleged security breach occurred when galley proofs of Colby's book reached a French publisher before the CIA examined it.
The galley contained sensitive material that revealed that the CIA spyship, Glomar Explorer, had failed to recover nuclear missiles, steering and transmission devices and codes from a Soviet submarine three miles below the surface of the Pacific Ocean.
Citing government sources, the magazine said Colby and the government will most likely reach a consent agreement with the former director agreeing to turn over some of the book's profits to the government.
Newsweek also said that CIA Director William J. Casey has asked FBI to

Rossi Relates Real-Life Journalistic Experiences

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—From the reality-imitates-art department, here's the true-life journalistic experience of Robert Walden, intrepid reporter Joe Rossi on the "Lou Grant" show.

Walden calls it "Editorial Embolism, or How I Lost My Journalistic Virginity and Learned to Laugh." It all began when Walden pitched a story to the Los Angeles Free Press pegged to a cross-country walk by American Indians calling attention to legislation before Congress.

He got tentative editorial approval, but then had to start all over again. "The story's fine," Walden said the willing editor told him, "but you'll have to sell it to this guy now; he's the new managing editor. I just got fired."

That editorial hurdle overcome again, Walden started his research, joining the Indians on their march for a first-person account. Like any other word merchant, he slaved over it. "I stayed up all night and must have changed the lead (first paragraph) 15 times."

He finally submitted the story, only to discover that the publisher had been shot and his wife was folding the paper. "When I heard about the tragedy I reacted the way any writer would, sensitively. I asked, 'What does this do to my story?'"

Assured that his piece would close the paper, Walden waited for the tentatively titled "Longest Walk" to appear. "When I saw it, I almost threw up. They changed it to the '3,000-Mile Warpath.' It was the most prejudicial headline I ever saw."

"How could I face those Indians? I wrote, I thought sensitively, about a spiritual walk in which there were no weapons, alcohol or drugs, and they throw this sensational headline at me. Let me tell you, I was bleeding all over on this one."

But Walden knows creative tensions are not restricted to the print media. His producers on "Lou Grant" were not interested in the Indian saga until two years later. "That's when they thought of it," Walden said. "But they turned the walk into a relay race."

GOREN BRIDGE

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K7 ♦A6 ♦A1098763 ♦J2

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You have an awkward problem for which there is no easy solution. A rebid of three diamonds shows a weaker hand with better diamonds, but a jump to four diamonds clearly overstates the quality of your suit and could result in your playing an unmakeable five diamonds when four hearts is your best spot. We would opt for three hearts—a slight underbid, perhaps, but we can't go leaping around with only a doubleton honor in partner's suit.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦AJ653 ♦K5 ♦K6 ♦K987
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—It sounds as if partner has all of his points in the black suits. However, that still does not change the fact that he could do no more at his first turn than respond one no trump. Game is unlikely—you have too many holes. Pass.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AQ ♦K976 ♦743 ♦AK105

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
Pass 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦
Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You were close to a jump shift at your first turn, so now you must bid the hand as strongly as possible. But you must also set the trump suit, and the logical way to accomplish both purposes is to jump to three hearts now. Should partner simply raise to game, you are worth one more move—a cue-bid of four spades.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A6 ♦AKQJ93 ♦842 ♦K5

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Even though partner could take no action after West's overall, you should not give up all hopes of game. However, it might prove easier to make nine tricks than ten, so we suggest that you try two no trump. A few strategically placed cards in partner's hand would make three no trump a viable contract.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQ ♦J5 ♦K1076 ♦Q9876

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
1 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—If you promote your honors in partner's suits, your hand is worth a full opening bid. The choice lies between a jump to three clubs or a jump to two no trump. Bid two no trump. We prefer that action because nine tricks should be considerably easier to make than eleven, especially with the lead coming up to your ace-queen of spades.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦983 ♦5 ♦A1087 ♦KJ982

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 NT Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—What started out as a mediocre hand has suddenly become gigantic. No jump in clubs could compensate for our discouraging first response, and we want to alert partner to slam possibilities. Bid three diamonds. An advance cuebid of the ace of diamonds followed by a jump in clubs will get our message across and leave partner well positioned to judge the hand's potential.

Sunday Night Workout For Leonard Bernstein

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Leonard Bernstein got a workout Sunday night as the Haydn-Stravinsky Celebration by the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center wound up its week at Alice Tully Hall.

He either conducted or played piano on every piece except Stravinsky's 1964 "Fanfare for a New Theater." That is for two trumpets and no conductor and is 30 seconds long.

The piece the audience was most eager to hear was "The Rite of Spring" for two pianists. Bernstein and Michael Tilson Thomas, the new permanent guest conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, played it. Stravinsky made this four-hand piano reduction himself in 1911 and '12, before the orchestra arrangement was finished.

"The Rite of Spring" was exciting in this version, as some music usually heard played by orchestra is not. Of course this has the texture of four hands at the piano. And much of the music's excitement derives from the syncopations and rhythms which come across here.

The two pianists were interesting visually. They sat on stools and played the same piano, Tilson Thomas taking the high register. They often played with their own hands crossed and sometimes had to cross each other's hands. Tilson Thomas lifted his left shoulder and angled his left hand outward from the wrist to get that hand between Bernstein's hands. He had much more apparent difficulty than Bernstein, who placed his right hand over Tilson Thomas' left arm with ease.

Bernstein, wearing a tuxedo, white turtleneck shirt and boots, also played piano in Haydn's "Trio for Piano and Strings in C major." He, violinist James Buswell and cellist Leslie Parnas made a beautiful presentation of that. It is surprising that a person who spends much time composing and plays piano infrequently in public plays as expertly as Bernstein does.

He also performed with cellist Paula Robison and Parnas in Haydn's "Trio for Flute, Cello and Piano in D

major." He conducted Stravinsky's "Octet for Wind Instruments" and "Concertino."

The celebration marks the 100th anniversary of Stravinsky's birth and the 250th of Haydn's. It had five concerts, of which Friday's all-Stravinsky evening and Sunday night were sold out. There also was a film about Stravinsky and Ned Rorem lectured about Stravinsky. H. C. Robbins Landon, author of a new, five-volume biography of Haydn, lectured about that composer.

An Afternoon At Home With Sherlock Homes

By MARLENE AIG
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The game was afoot for some 30 amateur detectives as they sought the crime and the criminal from clues that included a wedding picture, a painted snake and a train schedule, all under the guidance of the greatest detective of them all—Sherlock Holmes.

"At Home With Holmes," an afternoon of Sherlockiana and sherry, was sponsored by the Route of All Evil, an organization devoted to entertaining and enlightening mystery fans.

"I'm only wearing this outfit at your insistence," said Hofstra University Professor Arthur Liebman of Roslyn Heights, who played a healthy-looking Holmes, attired in deerstalker and Inverness cape, clutching a calabash pipe. "One just doesn't wear a deerstalker in London, you know."

He welcomed the gathering Sunday to a makeshift 221-B Baker Street, which in reality was the Ethical Culture Society near Central Park, by toasting Holmes and wishing the novice detectives luck.

It was not clear what crime had been committed.

The clues were arranged on three tables: the first contained a wedding picture of a woman from the Edwardian era; the second featured a disrupted checkers game, glasses, cigars, an apple core, a train schedule and matches; the third was covered with dirt and contained foot prints, a painted snake, broken eyeglasses, a broken plant pot and a blood-splattered rose.

While the amateurs tried to link the clues to a crime, "the great detective" regaled them with a slide show of his career.

There were pictures of Baker Street, tales of his journey after his alleged death in Switzerland, illustrations by Sidney Paget who created his long, lean look, and fun poked at actor William Gillett, who popularized the deerstalker, pipe and Inverness cape as perpetual Holmesian props.

Playing the violin, Holmes said, often helped him see through the foggiest of problems. But he claimed to be suffering from arthritis, so two friends assisted by playing Dvorak's Sonata for Violin and Piano in his stead.

In the end, however, the students failed abysmally. No one detected that there had been two murders: the groom had been poisoned during a friendly checkers game by a spurned suitor, and the suitor was murdered when the bereaved bride struck him on the head with the plant pot, the blood splashing onto the rose she was wearing.

The painted snake had nothing to do with anything. "I came because I like the idea of solving things," said Karen Hobatt, 37, of Summit, N.J., but she added, "I didn't quite get this." Liebman specializes in crime fiction and thoroughly enjoyed his role, saying, "It's not often one gets to play Holmes." The perpetrator of the afternoon was Dilys Winn, founder of Murder Ink, a bookstore devoted to mysteries. But she finally admitted under cross questioning: "I blush to say this. I've never read a Sherlock Holmes story."

Saturday's Cryptiquip — WHO? WHAT? WHERE? WHEN? WHY? — A LONELY REPORTER PLEADED.
Today's Cryptiquip clue: F equals D
The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Said Ready To Sue Ex-CIA Director

NEW YORK (AP) - The federal government plans to sue ex-CIA Director William E. Colby for publishing his 1978 memoir "Honorably Men" without final clearance from his former employer, Newsweek magazine reported.

In its current issue, the magazine said that the suit is the Reagan administration's way of demonstrating that it will not tolerate breaches in the legal contracts of government employees.

Federal law prohibits the unauthorized dissemination of national security information by former and current employees.

An unnamed senior administration official, quoted in the magazine, said the suit shows that in the government's efforts to plug leaks will not only be limited to the "little fish."

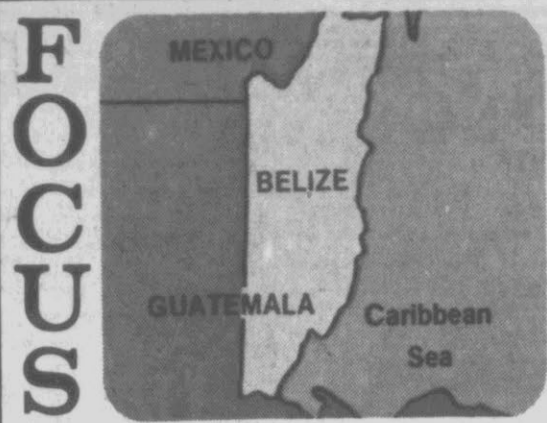

The alleged security breach occurred when galley proofs of Colby's book reached a French publisher before the CIA examined it.

The galley contained sensitive material that revealed that the CIA spyship, Glomar Explorer, had failed to recover nuclear missiles, steers and codes from a Soviet submarine three miles below the surface of the Pacific Ocean.

Citing government sources, the magazine said Colby and the government will most likely reach a consent agreement with the former director agreeing to turn over some of the books profits to the government.

Newsweek also said that CIA Director William J. Casey has asked FBI to

FOCUS

The Last Colony

Pressed inconspicuously against southwest Mexico and the northwest border of Guatemala, tiny Belize — with only 140,000 people — has been a source of controversy since first settled there in the 17th century. Belize became a separate British colony in 1884, but for over a century Guatemala has claimed sovereignty over Belize and disputed Britain's rule. Today the last remnant of the British Empire in the Americas will be quietly snuffed out as Belize becomes an independent state. But the British won't abandon Belize completely. Ironically, Belize's former rulers will leave about 1600 British soldiers there to help the small nation guard its newly-won independence from a possible Guatemalan takeover.

DO YOU KNOW — What was the former name of Belize?
FRIDAY'S ANSWER — In 1973 Gerald Ford replaced Spiro Agnew as Vice President.

Ten Killed In N.C. Accidents

By The Associated Press
Weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina killed 10 people, the state Highway Patrol reported early today.

The accidents bring the year's total traffic deaths to 995, compared with 1,104 for the same period last year.

Gilmer K. Key, 61, and Marjorie H. Cook, 62, both of Mount Airy, were killed Saturday when their car traveling north on U.S. 52 was hit by another car in the rear. The accident occurred a mile and a half west of Pilot Mountain.

Troopers said Claude L. Kincaid, 42, of Lenoir, was killed Saturday when one car stopped in the road was struck by another, crossed the center line on N.C. 18 and hit Kincaid's car in the right front. The accident occurred a mile east of Lenoir.

Edward Carl Lintz, 16, of Cherryville, was killed Saturday night when he pulled out of a driveway on a motorcycle and was hit by a car. Troopers said the motorcycle had no lights or safety equipment. The accident occurred on N.C. 274 about 16 miles west of Lenoir.

Brenda Vaughn Dry, 28, of Hillsborough was killed Sunday afternoon on N.C. 86 south of Hillsborough after a car she was driving crossed the center line, ran off the road and hit a mailbox and a tree.

Johnny C. Boyles, 24, of Turnersville, was killed early Sunday on Interstate 40 about three-tenths of a mile west of Greensboro when a car he was driving ran off the road, crossed back over the center line and hit a bridge abutment.

James M. Frazier, 23, of Shelby, was killed at 3 a.m. Saturday when a car he was driving left the road at a high rate of speed, went airborne for 60 feet and landed across a creek. Frazier was thrown from the car.

George Ernest Moore, 39, of Mooresboro died Friday night when he drove off Rural Paved Road 1158 about 5 miles west of Shelby. The car hit a culvert and overturned.

Ronnie Ellenberg, 28, of Rutherfordton was killed Saturday morning when he drove off U.S. 64 less than a mile west of his hometown. The car hit a brick wall and overturned.

Ellsworth C. Osling, 20, of Raeford died Saturday when a car he was driving ran off Rural Paved Road 1203 about 3 miles west of Raeford and hit a utility pole. Troopers said Osling died when he got out of his car and walked over fallen power lines.

Doesn't Like A 'Drifter' Label

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man accused of shooting President Reagan on March 30 says he does not want to be referred to as a "drifter" and that his wanderings were merely part of an effort to find and be near actress Jodie Foster.

John W. Hinckley Jr., in custody at the stockade at Fort Meade, Md., pending his trial, made the request in a letter to The Washington Post, the newspaper reported Sunday.

DOES $2,000 IN TAX FREE INCOME SOUND GOOD TO YOU?

THEN FOLLOW THE SMART MONEY TO HOME FEDERAL!

The New All Savers Certificate, which Congress has approved, allows tax savings never before available to savers. Beginning October 1, couples filing joint returns can deduct up to $2,000 interest earned by these certificates. A minimum deposit of $500 is required, and interest will be computed at 70% of the current one year treasury bill rate. But it's important to act now. Open your account at a nearby Home Federal Office. We'll give you all the details about this new way to reduce your tax burden, and see that you earn the highest possible interest rate until October 1. Then your deposit will automatically be transferred into an All Savers Certificate for tax free income. So follow the smart money to Home Federal. Where saving is more rewarding than ever.
