Interest Rates Declining Amid Recession Signals

By JAMES PELTZ
Associated Press Writer
Interest rates, stuck near record-high levels for two months, are declining on several fronts amid recent signals the economy could be slipping into recession and the Federal Reserve Board is making more money available.

Many economists expect the trend to continue, and some are predicting rates will tumble even further as the economy continues its listless performance.

The Commerce Department planned today to release its figures on new factory orders for durable goods in August. The rate of orders for durable goods, items with a usefulness of three years or more, generally reflects the strength in the industrial sector.

Commerce sources said last week that preliminary figures for the current quarter indicate the gross national product — a measure of all goods and services exchanged — continued to fall after declining in the second three months of 1981. Some economists define an "official" recession as two consecutive quarters of declining GNP.

But William C. Freund, senior vice president and chief economist of the New York Stock Exchange said Monday the nation has entered another recession that will last through 1981, though it will be "mild and localized."

Freund told the annual convention of the Iowa Bankers Association in Des Moines, Iowa, that the recent downturn in economic activity amounts to a recession, and that it will last through the end of the year.

Several major banks Monday lowered their prime lending rates one-half percentage point to 19.5 percent, and today Citibank, the nation's second-largest bank, followed suit. The 20 percent prime had just become industrywide last week after it had stood at 20.5 percent since early July.

Many smaller banks also matched the lower rate, and one, Southwest Bank of St. Louis, lowered its prime rate a full percentage point to 19 percent.

The last time the prime was at 19.5 percent industrywide was in mid-May. The prime reached a record high 21.5 percent last December.

The prime rate is the quote banks use to calculate interest charges on short-term loans to corporations with top-grade credit, although some banks make very short-term loans at rates below their stated prime rate. The prime rate does not apply to consumer loans.

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve, the nation's central bank, reduced the interest penalty charged member banks that are its biggest and most frequent borrowers. The Fed reduced to 3 percentage points from 4 percentage points the surcharge added to the record 14 percent interest — known as the discount rate — charged the banks since May.

In other developments Monday:

— Yields fell for the second straight week on short-term securities at the Treasury's weekly auction. For example, the average discount rate on six-month bills fell to 14.129 percent from 14.657 percent last week.

— Chase Manhattan, the nation's third-largest bank, which initiated the 19.5 percent prime rate, also lowered to 17 percent from 17.5 percent its rate on loans made to brokers using stock as collateral.

School Bd. Accepts Bid

A low bid of $10,436 submitted by the Service Roofing and Sheet Metal Company for roof work at South Greenville Elementary School was approved by members of the Greenville City School Board of Education at the action meeting Monday night.

The bid is for resaturation work on the center wing roof at South Greenville, exclusive of the auditorium roof. Specifications for both the center wing and the auditorium roof had been submitted to four roofing companies, of which only two — Service Roofing and the Robert C. Dunn Company, responded with bids. As the total for the two areas amounted to considerably more than the $10,000 in funds budgeted for the roofing project, the board accepted only the bid applicable to the center wing roof. Resaturation work on the auditorium roof will be included in next year's budget request.

This is the third annual phase of roof maintenance at South Greenville. The first two phases were completed during the past two years.

The approval motion included taking $436 from the Eastern Elementary School expansion joint budget item in order to have the total $10,436 to meet the amount of the low bid.

At the previous school board meeting, Supt. Delma Blinson had told the board it would have to decide between going ahead with the South Greenville roof work or dividing the funds between South Greenville and needed spot repairs at Agnes Fullilove. The board opted for the South Greenville work with further consideration of work needed at Agnes Fullilove as part of next year's budget request.

In the matter of attempting to determine assignment of responsibility for damage to the Rose High gymnasium floor, a decision was reached to get more information before the board acts on the matter. The board concurred in Blinson's recommendation that he appoint a committee from the school staff to meet with representatives of the group who rented the gymnasium at the time the alleged damage took place. At stake is the issue of responsibility by the using group for damages initially assessed at $2,672.

In efforts to arrive at an understanding of the complexities involved in the possibility of going the route of adopting an electrical cost reduction program for the city schools, the board approved a motion by Mrs. Erma Carr. Her motion is that the board invite other vendors in addition to the one heard September 14 to present information. After hearing proposals of all interested vendors, the board would then

W.W. Speight Portrait Presented To The County

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Former Pitt County Attorney W. W. Speight, who died May 4, was honored yesterday by the Board of County Commissioners at the unveiling of a portrait to be hung in the Commissioners' meeting room at the county office building.

The portrait was presented to the county by Speight's family.

Speight's twin brother Jim Speight of Rocky Mount, in presenting the portrait, said, "When you talk about Bill Speight, you talk about a man completely and totally dedicated to Greenville and Pitt County. He really enjoyed living down here," and "Bill's pet thing was working right here with you commissioners."

Saying he reached the conclusion that "you loved Bill Speight," Speight emphasized "Bill Speight loved you. I feel quite proud ... greatly honored," to present this portrait to Pitt County.

About 100 persons attended the unveiling, which Bruce Strickland, chairman of the board said was to honor "a great man and the greatest county attorney the State ever had."

Bill Watson, a law partner of Speight's, outlined the attorney's life and interest in his native county.

Speight, born in 1908, attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in the early 1930s, but because of the depression, withdrew and sold magazines until he could return to school. Graduated in the late 1930's with a law degree from UNC, Speight worked for the Institute of Government at UNC until early 1940 when he joined the staff of the N.C. Attorney General. Then in 1942 he joined the U.S. Navy and served on the headquarters staff of U.S. Naval Forces Europe in London, and when discharged in 1946 was president of the European Courts Marshal.

Following a short period with the Attorney General's staff once more, Speight moved to Greenville in late 1946 and entered the practice of law with attorney J. B. James.

"The achievements of Bill Speight's life are legend," Watson said. Speight had served as president of the Greenville Lions Club, the Chamber of Commerce, vice-president of the East Carolina Airport Authority, president of the Mid-East Airport Authority, president of Greenville Industries, a member of the Committee of 100 of the University of North Carolina and in other capacities.

According to Watson, "many industries (such as Prepshirt, Burroughs Wellcome, Procter & Gamble, Eaton, and McGraw-Edison) found a home in Pitt County because of Bill Speight..."

But the one thing of which Speight was most proud, Watson suggested, was his tenure as county attorney. Appointed to the post in 1950, Speight served as county attorney for Pitt longer than any other county attorney in North Carolina.

Speight called Pitt County "the empress of the East," Watson said, and as county attorney, played a part in the planning and building of the new Pitt County Memorial Hospital, the East Carolina University School of Medicine, the renovation of the old hospital building for a county office building, and many more projects.

"Bill Speight loved life," according to Watson, had faith in his fellow man, and was "always mindful and considerate in their plight. We are the beneficiaries of the legacy he left. His life is his epitaph."

ECU Faculty May Be Asked To Back Brewer

Some faculty members of East Carolina University reportedly planned an attempt today to have the Faculty Senate go on record in support of controversial Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer.

Several faculty members met informally last week to discuss Brewer's resignation as chancellor and its effect on the university's development. Brewer, who has headed the school for three years, has resigned effective June 30, 1982, but remains in office.

Brewer has requested leave with pay to allow him time to relocate, but no action has been taken on the request by William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina system.

Brewer submitted his resignation earlier this month amid public criticism by university trustees after it was announced he was being considered as an applicant for the presidency of West Virginia University.

Music Professor Rodney Schmidt, one of the ECU faculty members supporting Brewer, has said he fears that university development will suffer if Brewer's resignation remains effective.

The Faculty Senate, which has a representative from each ECU department, can recommend action by the university but has no formal control of the administration.

O'Connor Vows She'll Be Busy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sandra Day O'Connor, confirmed by a unanimous Senate as the first woman justice on the Supreme Court, promises to be "very busy, very fast" after she is sworn in later this week.

There is no clear indication, however, how she will vote on social and constitutional issues that come before the court.

The 51-year-old Arizona appeals judge won a 99-0 endorsement in the Senate on Monday as the 102nd justice in the 191-year history of the nation's highest court. She will be youngest of the nine members.

Mrs. O'Connor will be sworn in for her lifetime position in ceremonies Friday afternoon at the Supreme Court building. But because the ceremony will be conducted in the courtroom itself, the recording for posterity will be limited.

"As is the court practice, there will be no TV, no photographs and no tape recordings," court spokesman Barrett McGurn today said in a printed statement released today.

Reporters and artists will be admitted to the ceremony, as they are for all court sessions. There will be no public admission, however, except by invitation.

Two "picture opportunities" are scheduled shortly after the 15-minute ceremony.

McGurn said official court photographers would be on hand but added, "I know of no plan to have any photograph taken in the courtroom (during the ceremony)."

El Salvador President Is Lobbying

WASHINGTON (AP) — El Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte is trying to persuade Congress to support the Reagan administration's request for $114 million in economic and security assistance next year for his Central American country.

Congressional support for the administration policies toward El Salvador has been wavering, and Salvadoran officials were attaching considerable importance to Duarte's meeting today with congressional leaders. The new fiscal year begins next week.

As he began the third day of his 10-day U.S. visit here, Duarte's strategy for enhancing American support for his embattled government was becoming increasingly evident.

In his meeting Monday with President Reagan and in his public statements, Duarte has gone to some lengths to demonstrate that the Salvadoran guerrilla movement — and not his government — is the principal obstacle to peace.

Duarte told Reagan that he is willing to talk with leftist leaders if they renounce violence and support his plan for the establishment of democratic rule, a senior U.S. official said.

Duarte told the House Foreign Affairs Committee today that "we need the aid of your understanding. We need the aid of your prayers." He made no mention of financial aid in his brief opening remarks, but said he needs U.S. support for his political solution leading to free elections.

In a brief reference to charges of human rights violations by government forces, Duarte said, "Of course there are abuses. We are doing all we can about that."

Most of the reservations about U.S. support for the country center on allegations of widespread atrocities committed by the Salvadoran security forces.

But the senior U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said Duarte told Vice President George Bush on Monday that 600 national guardsmen had been dismissed and 64 imprisoned for "offenses against the population."

At the State Department, Eugenio Vides Casanova, head of El Salvador's National Guard, told reporters there is "complete determination of all the members of the armed forces to guarantee to all Salvadoran citizens a completely free electoral process."

This would represent a new role for El Salvador's armed forces, which prevented Duarte from taking power in 1972 after he was elected president.

Bomb Soccer Office

By JOHN STRACHAN
Associated Press Writer

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — A bomb exploded early today in a building housing the Eastern Rugby Union's offices, hours before the group was to field a team against the touring South African Springboks, the targets of recent anti-apartheid protests.

There were no reports of injuries.

Meanwhile, in New York City, lawyers for the state asked a three-judge federal appeals court to reverse a district court's decision and block the game, at least temporarily.

While the blast from a "high explosive device" at 1:17 a.m. left only minor damage at the ERU headquarters, damage in the adjoining offices of a dairy products company was estimated at $50,000, said police investigator James McGrath.

Radio station WWVD said a woman telephoned at 1:10 a.m. to say a bomb would go off soon "downtown." Disc jockey Dale Lane said the woman hung up without identifying herself.

Thomas Selfridge, president of the ERU, a co-sponsor of the Springboks' tour, said his offices sustained about $50 worth of damage.

Glass blown out by the blast littered State Street in front of the row of renovated buildings known as Canal Square.

McGrath said the bomb had apparently been placed in a closet 2½ feet from the rugby office in an area accessible to the public during business hours.

Congress Run Is Undecided By McDaniel

By SUSAN RIES
Reflector Staff Writer

Former Vietnam prisoner of war Eugene B. McDaniel, a retired Navy captain, said Monday night he has not decided whether he will run for Congress, despite speculation to the contrary.

Speaking to a monthly meeting of Pitt County Republicans, McDaniel told the audience of his experiences in Vietnam and his love for his country.

"Those of us who love our freedom must be prepared to pay our dues whenever that precious freedom is threatened," said McDaniel. His naval post just before retirement was as commander of the aircraft carrier USS Lexington.

"During the war in Vietnam, we had 1,000 ships that covered two oceans. Now we have 430 ships patrolling three oceans. The Navy is 22,000 men short," McDaniel said.

He emphasized that defense dollars must be spent wisely, not wasted. "It's time to sacrifice to increase the defense budget."

He also said that it's time to stop "giveaway programs."

"We've been on a social treadmill for a long time and I don't think it will stop overnight. Welfare breeds welfare."

He called the election of President Reagan and a heavily Republican House and Senate a release.

"When I got out of the communist prison camp it was a personal release. Last November's outcome was a release for the American people," McDaniel said. He expressed a sense of optimism about the Reagan administration.

According to McDaniel, a stronger national defense means a harder line against the communists.

"Communists only understand the language of strength, and with a tougher defense capability, they'll be forced to listen to us," he said.

McDaniel indicated he not only wants to get tough with the Russians, he would also like to see the situation in the Persian Gulf ease up.

"We need the energy that part of the world has, we need to guarantee a free flow of oil," he said.

Minister Organizing Kinder-Grief Support Group

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

A local minister is organizing Kinder-Grief, a support group for parents who have lost children to death.

The Rev. Stewart LaNeave said this will be a special program for persons who have gone through what he terms "the hardest experience anyone ever has." Any parent who has lost a child — from fetus to 30 years of age — is invited to get in touch with LaNeave and use the services of Kinder-Grief. There is no monetary cost involved. It's to be an informal service that hopefully will help meet individual needs without a lot of organization. Bereaved parents can avail themselves of the service at any time, whether it's two days, two years, or two decades after the death of a child. They can come individually or together. Parents who have been told by their child's doctor that they can expect the child's death are also encouraged to take part, he said. Bereaved grandparents, when there is a need, are also invited.

Initially, parents will meet individually with LaNeave or with the Rev. Dan Earnhardt, who will assist him. Whichever minister they talk with will help them explore their needs and discuss whether they'd like to join a Kinder-Grief group. If they would like to, they may become members of one of the small groups that will meet weekly or every two weeks to mutually assist each other through the grief process. Participation can last as long or as short a time as the individual or couple wishes.

"Losing a child to death is a painful, lonely experience," LaNeave said. "We hope Kinder-Grief will help parents find support in an environment where they can trust that their feelings and experiences will be understood as only a person who has gone through the same or a very similar experience can understand."

LaNeave is Presbyterian campus minister at East Carolina University; Earnhardt is the ECU United

REV. DAN EARNHARDT

REV. STEWART LANEAVE

Methodist campus minister. Both are fathers who know the love that a parent feels for his child, but neither has himself lost a child to death. Both have had done considerable study on death and dying and grief therapy as part of their pastoral training. Both have taught courses and directed seminars on these subjects. Asked if dealing with bereaved parents over long periods might not create great stress for them personally, LaNeave said, "Almost everything a minister does, besides preaching, is grief work. I'm a campus minister, so most of my work is with young persons who are dealing with academic failures, with breakups of their families, with losses of girlfriends and boyfriends — all grief situations of a sort. To be a minister, you have to learn how to risk and how to cry or find other ways to get grief out when you need to. We feel this is a needed service and is one we can handle."

Religion will be brought into Kinder-Grief sharing only to the extent that each individual or family wishes, LaNeave said. There will be no effort to proselytize.

It's absolutely essential, LaNeave said, that people work through their grief, all the while realizing that their lives will never be completely the same without the loved one they mourn. He said The Center for Death Education of the University of Minnesota has published a startling statistic: When you bury someone close to you, your chances of dying within the next year are increased seven-fold. And odds on accidents and illnesses within the family are greatly increased. Marriage breakups and other estrangements are more likely. All these dire happenings can be avoided, though, and meaning reaped from the experience, if the person can, with the help of loved ones, do a good job of grieving. And until you do your grief work, you're not able to get on with the rest of your life, he said.

Kinder-Grief has a 24-hour call-in service for parents and referrals. That number is (919) 752-7240.

Walter Dail Will Not Seek Another Term

WINTERVILLE — Mayor Walter Dail announced this morning he would not seek another term as mayor.

Dail was elected mayor in 1961 after serving 12 years as alderman, and has been continuously elected to the post since.

In making the announcement, Dail said, "My wife and myself want to do some traveling and I have a lot of work I want to do."

"A lot of the town's people have asked me to run, but I don't think it's best now," Dail commented.

Dail, recalling some highlights of his career as mayor, said one of the biggest items was the construction of the municipal building-fire department. He also said the establishment of the fire department in 1953 and the purchase of the town's first fire engine were also big events.

He said he had seen the town grow from 800 to the present count of 2,500, with an old budget of $15,000 to today's budget of nearly $2 million.

Dail retired from Pitt Memorial Hospital after serving for 25 years. A member of the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church, he is married to the former Dorothy McLawhorn and they have four children.

Dail, who is a member of the Winterville Kiwanis Club, said he will be active in the construction of the new Kiwanis park and recreation facility on the edge of Winterville.

Hunt Not Easing VEPCO Criticisms

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt, who has attacked Virginia Electric and Power Co. as a stumbling block to development in northeastern North Carolina, has recently found something nice to say about the utility.

Almost exactly two years after he first called on Veeco to sell its operations in 22 North Carolina counties, and as the state Utilities Commission nears a decision on a major Veeco rate increase request, Hunt struck a more conciliatory note earlier this month at a meeting of regional leaders in Edenton.

He said he was encouraged by the Richmond-based company's initial steps toward helping northeastern North Carolina attract the industrial development it needs.

"I'm encouraged by Veeco's commitment to play an active role in the economic development of this region," Hunt said. "I want to say to the Veeco officials here that I applaud your efforts, and I stand ready to help you in any way I can."

That was quite a change from Hunt's earlier talk, when he blasted the company for having excessive rates and branded Veeco "the No. 1 obstacle to economic development in northeastern North Carolina."

Hunt, in an interview with The Associated Press, maintained he has not altered his position on Veeco. Its rates, he said, "are not competitive" and the utility should improve or get out of the state.

"That is not tolerable," he said of the company's rates. "We're going to keep the pressure on Veeco. They've either got to become competitive over the long run or they ought to get out of the state."

But the reception his remarks received in the region has caused some concern for the Hunt administration. The Veeco issue was one Hunt often cited in his re-election campaign last year, and it had significance outside the northeastern region as it marked the most serious assault on a public utility by a governor since Kerr Scott waged a populist attack on utility companies 30 years earlier. Gary Pearce, Hunt's press secretary, said the governor was arranging an interview session with news media from the northeastern section of the state to clarify his position.

In the interview, Hunt said his praise for Veeco was confined to an agreement by the utility to "actively help recruit industry" to the region.

Appearing before the Legislature's Utility Review Commission last week, Veeco President William Berry also said the company now has a "new spirit of cooperation" with the region.

Yet Berry downplayed the scope of the industrial effort, saying it would be up to others to attract industrial prospects and steer them to a site. Only then would the utility be available for assistance, he said.

That is a role not unlike what other utility companies play in assisting state Commerce Department recruiters. CP&L President Sherwood Smith, for example, accompanied Hunt on a California tour aimed at attracting computer-technology companies.

Three Wrecks Investigated Monday

An estimated $2,725 property damage resulted from three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8:55 a.m. collision on Fourth Street, 250 feet east of the Rotary Avenue intersection involving cars driven by Irene Gibbs Epps of 1017 Colonial Ave. and Carey Condra Leggett of Winterville.

Damage from the mishap was set at $400 to the Epps car and $900 to the Leggett vehicle.

Elizabeth Webb of 204 North Oak St. was charged with failing to yield the right of way following investigation of a 5:17 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Meade Streets.

Police said the Webb car collided with a vehicle driven by Gregory Glen Tyson of Azalea Gardens, causing $25 damage to the Webb vehicle and $700 damage to the Tyson car.

Officers charged Tommy Ray Evans of 509A Watauga Ave. with careless and reckless driving and no operators license (motorcycle), following investigation of an 8:38 a.m. mishap on Elm Street, 39 feet south of the Brookgreen Road intersection.

Investigators reported Evans was attempting to do a rear wheel stand on his motorcycle and fell off. The motorcycle then collided with a parked car owned by Robert L. Nichols of 1314 Red Banks Rd., causing $600 damage to the motorcycle and $100 damage to the car.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

But if you're searching for something you don't already know, your fingers could walk themselves to death.

The trouble with me is I never learned how to speak Yellow Pages. It's a language of the 20th century, born of frustration, nurtured by obscurity and dedicated to the theory that by the time you find it, you no longer need it.

In the language of Yellow Pages, a rug is a "carpet," curtains are "draperies," milk is "a dairy product" and cars are "industrial automobiles."

A plumber is a "plumbing contractor" an electrician is an "electrical contractor" and hi-fi's are listed under Sound Systems and equipment.

Roaches are listed under Pest Control, exterminating and fumigating, a taco is under Mexican Food Products, a tailpipe under Mufflers and Exhaust Systems, and a pencil is under Advertising Specialists.

One of the most frustrating encounters in the Yellow Pages is trying to find a doctor, who is listed under Physicians, who are subdivided into M.D.s and D.O.s, who are also listed under Physicians and Surgeons, group, associate and corporate practice, and who aren't in anyway and whose phone is being answered by a doctor's answering service.

See Physicians and Surgeons Exchange.

You should begin to worry about yourself when you begin to think like the Yellow Pages. Recently, I wanted to call a flea market and caught myself just in time. Flea market would definitely not be under F, but probably under something like Swap Meets. I turned to the S's and read, "See Flea Market."

I don't know what the answer is with the growth of private enterprise and the need to consolidate them under a general heading. But just for kicks I turned to "Survival Kits" and was hit with, "See First Aid Supplies, Sporting Goods heading."

I know this. No one will ever convince me that when Alexander Graham Bell was sitting in his Boston boardinghouse March 10, 1876, with battery acid burning his leg and shouted his first frantic message into the transmitter, "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you!" it was the despair of looking under HELP in the Yellow Pages and finding, "See batteries: Dry cell, wholesale, retail, charging and maintenance," that did it.

Pat's Pointers

You'll be "knitting pretty" when you make either of these classic cabled sweaters in a kitten soft yarn blended with mohair and acrylic fibers. Make it with a tailored crew neck or choose the ultra-feminine style that ties at the neck line.

Beginner-easy directions are for small (8-10), medium (12-14) or large (16-18), and are written entirely without abbreviations to make life simpler for you. Make them in the designer's choice of Eleganza yarn or substitute knitting worsted weight yarn.

To obtain directions for making the cable-knit pullovers, send your request for Leaflet No. B-353 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler, ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-353, consisting of the Eleganza yarn and an instruction leaflet by sending a check or money order for $22.50 for the small and medium sizes or $25.50 for the large size to Pat Trexler at the same address. Please specify your choice of ivory, pale misty green, French blue (pale), copen blue (medium), navy, jonquil yellow, mink brown, burnt orange, coral or peach.

Most of the knitters I hear from are either self-taught from a "how-to" book or have learned the fundamentals from a relative or friend. Then many run into problems as they start to work on garments or accessories, so let's talk today about solutions to beginners' problems.

Although it is always wise to finish a row before putting your knitting down, sometimes you have to stop in the middle of a row — the phone or doorbell may ring, the children start to fuss or something boils over on the stove and you have to put it down immediately.

Unless you go back to it right away, chances are you will not remember whether you were working on a knit or purl row when you stopped. Unless you start back in the right direction, you will be adding an extra row to one side of your work and a hole will appear at that point. Unfortunately, this hole usually is not noticeable until you have worked two or more rows past that point.

Remember that the yarn is held in the right hand, so it makes sense to turn your work so that the yarn extends from the last stitch on the needle you have in your right hand. If you just remember this one tip, you will always start in the proper direction.

A dropped stitch will leave a hole in your work, also. After you have knitted long enough to be relaxed with the needles and yarn, you will seldom drop a stitch, but it is a frequent occurrence with the beginner. For this reason, you should always keep a crochet hook handy. Then, turn your work so the knit side is facing you and insert the hook from front to back through the dropped stitch. With the crochet hook, pick up the strand of yarn behind the stitch and pull it through. If your dropped stitch has "run" down several rows, repeat this step until you are back at the row you were working on and place the stitch back on the needle.

When it becomes necessary to add on a new strand of yarn, many beginners will simply tie a double knot and clip the yarn off close to their work. This is the worst way to do it because you have a knot that easily can work its way to the front of your work or can work loose later causing several stitches to ravel.

Some people add new yarn by tying a knot at the side edge, leaving ends long enough to weave in later; others splice the yarn. Either of these methods is satisfactory. If you want to start a new skein at the side edge, here's a neat trick for determining how much yarn you need to finish a row. Just wrap the yarn around your needle 10 times. This will show you how much yarn you need to complete 10 stitches. If you have 100 stitches on the needle, then just measure off 10 times the length of the yarn you used to make the 10 wraps.

When I wish to start a new skein I usually use one of two methods. I knit one or two stitches holding together the end of the old strand and the beginning of the new strand. Then I drop the old strand and continue with the new. On the next row, those stitches that were knitted with both strands will have a double loop on the needle. These double loops are knitted off as one. After working a few rows, I go back with a tapestry needle and weave in the loose ends.

With some yarns and some pattern stitches, this does not always work too well. In this event, I will either tie on at the edge or simply drop the strand I am using and pick up the new strand. After working a few rows, I go back and tie the two ends loosely, pulling the stitches to the same tension as the other stitches around it. I then weave in the loose ends.

Here's hoping that some of these tips will make life easier for you!

Berne, the capital of Switzerland, is largely overshadowed in importance, size and glamour by Zurich or Geneva. Yet, with a population of 150,000, its smaller size works to its advantage. Less congestion enhances the charm of the old-town section in which no exterior structural changes may be made on the city's buildings except in authentic period style. Red-roofed sandstone houses set on cobblestone streets, colorful fountains and age-old arcades make up the most perfectly preserved medieval town center in Europe.

If you are not sure where to go on a late fall vacation, let the travel agents at QUIKOTE TRAVELS help you with suggestions. It is not too early to begin thinking about winter ski vacations either. DJ's Questions Cause Static

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I spend almost every weekend with my brother and his wife at their summer home.

Last Saturday, when we were there, their phone rang and because my sister-in-law was busy preparing dinner, I answered it. The caller identified himself as someone from the local radio station and said if I could answer three questions I would win $50. He asked the three questions, which I answered correctly, then he asked me for my name and address and I automatically gave him my name and address. When I hung up my sister-in-law began screaming at me, saying it was her home and her telephone and I should have given the caller her name and address. She said I had some nerve giving my own name and address — that she knew the answers to those questions and she should get the $50.

Abby, my first thought after winning the money was, "I will take everyone out for a nice dinner."

I feel terrible about the whole thing because we had been good friends for years and now she's mad at me. I apologized and even offered her the money, but she said she wouldn't take it.

Did I do something so terribly wrong? How can I make amends?

FEELING AWFUL IN N.Y.

DEAR FEELING: Your automatic response was understandable and certainly not "wrong." I think you've done all you can. If she wants to stay mad, you haven't lost a very good friend.

DEAR ABBY: I enjoy your stuff. When I attended Tulane University, I told my professor that I was raised in Shreveport, La.

He said, "You raise hogs and rear children." You mentioned that you were raised in a small town. Tell me, Abby, were you raised or reared? Love and kisses, HENRY

DEAR HENRY: In "The Careful Writer," the late Theodore M. Bernstein put it this way: "At one time, a war raged (and some skirmishes are still going on) against the use of 'raise' to describe what parents do to children. The battle cry was, 'you raise pigs, but you rear children.' However, in this country at least, the war is over; we raise both pigs and children, and some parents will testify that you can't always tell the difference."

Is Lawlessness Linked?

There is a recurrent thought which is downright paranoid when one attempts to put it into words.

The thought: that somehow, somewhere, there are tenuous secret links in many of the sporadic demonstrations, terrorist killings, bombings, et cetera, as well as behind innumerable guerrilla wars against societies and governments who would choose to be left in peaceful pursuit of a better life.

Invariably, it seems, the violent activists move into a stepped up pace of militancy at a time and place most harmful to the cause of peace or practicing democracy.

Yes, we know... they wear different badges and labels; but somehow or other a great number of their diverse causes carry a similarity in slogans as well as gear and weaponry of Iron Curtain origins. Their tactics, too, have elements of similarity.

The targets are either ideas, people or causes whose harm would be injurious to the West and indirectly or directly helpful to you-know-whom.

These disruptive activities emerge in western Europe, the Middle East, Africa, Asia, North, South and Central America. They rarely show up in eastern Europe; and when they do we read of it from second or third-hand sources; they seem to be quickly swallowed up by that part of the world's law-and-order crowd.

Invariably the Brezhnev Doctrine is called to mind. That "doctrine" holds that Moscow is free to help any peoples' war against tyranny and oppression. Just how that doctrine is interpreted in Moscow is something else.

We have laughed at mongers of a giant conspiracy, but a germ has been planted and logic is proving a dubious antidote.

Excellence In Education

WASHINGTON — On August 26 Education Secretary Terrel Bell announced the formation of a National Commission on Excellence in Education. Last week my brothers on Human Events, the national conservative weekly, jumped upon him all spraddled out. They smell a fish.

Could be. My brothers dwell in the marshy swamps south of Capitol Hill, where the sunshine of good tidings rarely penetrates. They are a paranoid bunch, always fearing the worst, and this is perhaps understandable; the worst is ordinarily what they get. Thus Human Events perceives Dr. Bell's new commission as "stacked in favor of the education establishment," with only two identifiable conservatives among the 18 members.

So indeed it appears. The commission includes a sextet of doctors of education; a dentist from Girard, Kan., active in national school-board affairs; a former chairperson of the Virginia PTA; a gentleman who won his master's degree in health, physical education and recreation; a Harvard professor who served five years on the U.S. commission to UNESCO; and a former president of the American Association of University Women, always a bad sign.

Yet another member is A. Bartlett Giamatti, president of Yale, who distinguished himself earlier this month by a really assine assault upon the Rev. Jerry Falwell. On down the line is Gov. Albert H. Quie of Minnesota, well-remembered here as a patsy Republican in the House. The two certified conservatives, for the record, are Charles Foster of the Foundation for Teaching Economics, and Mrs. Annette Kirk, wife of the conservative philosopher Russell Kirk. You kind of wonder what a nice girl like Annette is doing with a gang like this.

The commission includes five women, two blacks and one Hispanic. It will be headed by David Pierpont Gardner, president of the University of Utah. His name arouses no particular bubbles of gassy indignation. Dr. Gardner is a close friend of Secretary Bell, and the two together might produce a useful report. But as every child in Washington knows, the members of any given commission are immaterial; what counts is staff, and this commission's staff will be headed by Dr. Milton Goldberg, a career educationist. Thus we may risking a howl of "elitism," but he is an audacious fellow and can take the bellows of outrage. His avowed purpose is "to enhance quality and excellence." He means to encourage "the highest order of literacy and academic competence." He wants to see "special emphasis on writing with clarity and profoundness, mastery of mathematics, spelling, basic science, economics, and principles of government in a democracy." He hopes to see foreign languages restored to their old importance in our public schools. He wears of mediocrity in education and he longs for top-flight teachers capable of nurturing top-flight students.

My guess is that every area of investigation assigned to the commission already has been thoroughly explored. It ought to be possible for a couple of good librarians, at minimum expense, to pull together every paper ever written on how excellence in public education is won or lost. But if the commission does produce a document that will tell us effectively how to keep the brainy kids from getting bored, we may yet forgive the $785,000 tag. Such a report would be cheap at twice the price.

reasonably expect a final report drafted in Educationese. It will have to be translated into English, and the report eventually will wind up, like 99 percent of all such reports, gathering dust on a high dark shelf. The effort will take 18 months and it will cost $785,000.

It seems a pity — for Secretary Bell's purpose is absolutely sound. His department operates on a $14 billion budget. Eighty-two percent of the money goes into programs for slow learners, handicapped children, poor readers and ordinary slugs. Only 0.1 percent is aimed at the bright children in our public schools — the truly gifted and talented kids who have excellence in their genes.

In proposing to find means for inspiring and challenging the bright ones, Dr. Bell is

Adding An E To The Three R's

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
An "E" for economics has been added to the three R's as a basic in many of the nation's classrooms.

Almost half of the teachers responding to a recent survey of public and private junior and senior high schools said economics was a required subject; an additional 39 percent said it was available as an elective.

Teachers said topics such as inflation, the value of the dollar and interest rates are regular subjects for discussion. Students are learning about things like supply and demand, the banking system and the consumer movement. And they are looking at ways to use their knowledge in the marketplace.

The survey was conducted by the polling firm Yankelovich, Skelly and White Inc., and covered a selected sample of 500 schools across the country. It was underwritten by Phillips Petroleum and is being distributed by the Joint Council on Economic Education a non-profit organization in New York City which works to improve and expand the teaching of economics.

A summary of the survey findings, prepared jointly by Deborah Barron of Yankelovich, Skelly and White and J.R. Clark of Fairleigh Dickinson University in New Jersey, concludes that: "Economics is approaching the status of a mainstream course of study in America's junior and senior high schools."

Clark and Ms. Barron said that about a decade ago, only 25 percent of all high school students took an economics course. Those students who did study economics, tended to be the college-bound, the "academically elite."

Today, Ms. Barron and Clark said, economics is "available to virtually all students on many different levels." Twenty-three states mandate some type of economics education for students.

The amount of study required and the content of the economics classes vary widely. Economics usually Sept. 17, 1981, is a date that should have had an impact on every black citizen in Greenville, as it has had on all of black America. It was a day when recognition should have been given to the black media of the past and the future as an enterprise. Not only should praise be given for the awareness it has shed on the blacks in America, but on America as a whole. Thank you, Robert S. Abbott, for establishing newspapers that helped to enlighten us of our black awareness and pride. Thank you, Langston Hughes, James Baldwin and Gwendolyn Brooks, for your artistic integrity and masterful books. Thank you, black composers known and unknown, for all the songs you composed, for all the songs that you sang, for all the strength your music gave, for you as an aid.

Sept. 17, 1981 was National Black Media Day and I show my support by saying thanks. Without you and so many others, some renowned, but most unknown, there's surely no way any of us would have achieved success.

To the editor:
As an ECU Professor Emeritus of History, my heart has been saddened by recent events both on and off the campus which have led Chancellor Thomas Brewer to submit his resignation.

Having been closely associated with the University in one capacity or another for the past 31 years, I have grown to love her dearly. When she celebrates, I celebrate — when she hurts, I hurt. She is hurting now and so am I as are many trustees, alumni, faculty, administrators, staff, students and friends.

Hence, through this open letter it is my wish not to cast blame or point the finger of accusation (I have friends and colleagues on both sides) but rather to suggest a workable solution to the immediate problem.

When the Board of Trustees meets this week with Chancellor Brewer and President William C. Friday to take action on the resignation, I pray all will "clear the air" and through their open-mindedness, fairness, compassion, tolerance, forgiveness and understanding, one for the other, the resignation will NOT be accepted. Thus, let bygones be bygones so the University can continue its pursuit of excellence under the leadership of Chancellor Brewer and the Board of Trustees.

The alternative, as we all know, is the long agonizing search for some other qualified person to serve as Chancellor while the University virtually stands still under an interim chancellor and factionalism and other "power plays" take place.

Chancellor Brewer deserves our support and all of us should labor along with him as he strives for excellence in student life, institutional planning, athletics, fund-raising, administrative organization and academic quality.

Let's accept the leadership we have and continue to progress toward our motto, "To Serve."

To the editor:
Thursday's City Council unanimously approved agreements determining our electric bills for decades. They probably voted right. If several more cities join, we'll leave VEPCO and buy from N.C. Municipal Power Agency No. 3 (controlled by us cities), which will buy and build parts of CP&L nuclear and coal-fueled plants. The agreements combine guarantees for CP&L with flexibility for us.

In public, it's happened fast, from the two-sentence notice Aug. 17 not hinting bonds (let alone that local customers are expected to retire over half a BILLION dollars). Time wasn't allowed for public digestion of this complex package; though Charles Horne, Mack Greene, Gene Prescott, Margaret Wirth and Ray Minges were unstinting in helping one person understand the project, my time lacked to study and hear outsiders on many important details. Fortunately, our negotiators included the (I'm told redoubtable) Beck outfit. Yet "futures" experts from political/social or biological areas didn't (I believe) help them. Prolonged depression, retarded growth in our region, unprecedented electricity conservation or unprecedentedly early coming of alternative (noncoal, nonnuclear) bulk electricity — could make us regret our "take or pay" contract running for decades. Besides much-measured coal/nuclear problems (acid rain to China Syndrome), two defy measurement now: carbon dioxide planetary warming and nuclear proliferation. Governments' discouragements of coal and new regulations of nuclear power will have unknown impacts on our investment.

I was shocked Thursday, hearing that CP&L might have insisted on 90 percent of the gain (realizable mostly from NCMPA's power of issuing municipal bonds). Our negotiators lacked leverage, because CP&L is guaranteed investment return, whatever bond interest it pays. Can cities ever bargain equitably with a regulated power monopoly?

Risks, inequities...but the bottom line is: our negotiators did an outstanding job; for the electricity most of us will probably demand, we think we'll save millions yearly.

THIS AFTERNOON

Our Social Change

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — When state and local government planners let their minds wander through all the implications of a startling social change which is now evident, the implications are staggering.

The tradition "nuclear family" is on the ropes, and in not so many years, the mother-father-and-a kid-or-two household will be a distinct minority in North Carolina.

Indeed, according to the experts who are putting together a package of problems and proposals on North Carolina 2000, by the next century over a third of all households will likely be non-family single people living alone or sharing their lives without a marriage commitment.

Another one-third of Tar Heel households will likely be headed by a single mother or father who looks after the children. That leaves only another third for the traditional family unit.

Non-Family
Recent rapid change throughout society is producing this phenomena: a relaxation of the old sexual rules, lessening social pressure to marry and raise kids, economic incentives to reduce family size, and popularization of divorce among them.

According to projections formulated by planners in a report on the state's population which serves as the roadmap to state and local governments attempting to develop the North Carolina 2000 plan, population changes hold critical importance.

BILL NOBLITT

A dramatic increase in the elderly as a proportion of total population is expected, almost doubling in less than 20 years from the present number of 600,000 Tar Heels over age 65.

A continued decline in the birth rate will mean that children as a percentage of total population will drop. And the non-family household — already up more than 200 percent in just the last 20 years — will become the norm rather than the exception.

For the seven million Tar Heels in that not-so-distant future, the population changes will be significant. For government, the differences will be unsettling.

Public education at all levels is now the single most important task for government and dominates both the budgets and the employment of personnel. Will an older population dominated by people who don't have children and don't intend to have any be willing to continue pumping millions of tax dollars into the schools and colleges?

Services
What about parks and recreation? Much past development has been child-oriented. What will a society heavily oriented to adults and the elderly want from this area of government?

Even the state's employment patterns will be affected. Older people are more stable and want to remain on the same job in the same location. There will be fewer young people to take the entry-level jobs and to climb the corporate ladders by moving about with regularity.

There are implications as well for the older people. A much bigger group over age 65 will naturally mean a hefty increase in need for health care facilities, and increased public support for hospitals and for health care programs such as Medicare and Medicaid. Will the younger people be willing to continue seeing their paychecks drained to fund programs for the elderly?

The summer months have been spent by various government experts designing the framework of the plan, and beginning soon, seminars and discussion sessions will begin across the state as North Carolinians accept the fact that "the future is now."

Strength For Today

GOD'S HANDMAID?
Someone has said, "Sorrows are our best educators; a man can see farther through a tear than through a telescope."

Most of us try to avoid sorrow at all costs. This is only natural. If we welcomed trial and sorrow we would be morbid and abnormal. But we must admit that in the most searching philosophies and in the Word of God, sorrow often is presented to us not as God's punishment, but as something he has allowed in our lives so that they may be made better. Out of our sorrows there sometimes come our greatest joys. Sometimes we have to know loss before we can appreciate the value of things we already possess. Sometimes life has to be reduced to its lowest terms before we can understand its highest possibilities.

It was a wise man who summed up all of these considerations when he said, "Sorrow is the handmaid of God, not of Satan." — Elisha Douglass

Arms Trade Lures Ex-Agents

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The lucrative trade in U.S. weapons technology abroad is prompting a number of former CIA officials, including a past deputy director, to cash in on their government expertise and contacts.

Gen. Vernon Walters, the CIA's No. 2 man from 1972-76, received $300,000 early this year from a company that specializes in selling sophisticated military technology to foreign countries, according to government documents and interviews with the principals.

While there is no suggestion that Walters' dealings were in any way illegal, they highlight some questions about restricting business activities of former intelligence officials. CIA officials have access to sensitive government secrets; they develop contacts with high-ranking foreign officials; and there is a common suspicion that they still work for the CIA even after they resign.

Walters, now an ambassador-at-large at the State Department and a key figure in President Reagan's foreign policy, said he contacted top Moroccan officials on behalf of a firm interested in modernizing Morocco's tank corps.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Walters said his main work for the company, Environmental Energy Systems Inc., was "putting them (company officials) in touch with the right people."

Morocco tentatively agreed to pay Environmental Energy Systems $190 million for refitting its tanks with sophisticated laser targeting, night-vision equipment and new engines, said the company's president, John R. McLane.

The deal fell through, he said, when the U.S. government agreed to supply Morocco with new American tanks.

Walters said he also was involved with the company's military sales proposals to Spain, South Korea and Brazil, adding: "I would not do anything with any country that was not a friend of the United States."

Others may not have been so discriminating.

The House Intelligence Committee announced plans last week to investigate former CIA operative Edwin Wilson, who allegedly used his CIA contacts and experience to illegally peddle advanced weapons technology to Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

U.S.-Libyan relations have been extremely strained.

The House committee will examine "what types of business former (CIA) employees are in and their relationship with current employees and the problems that result from former employees getting involved with foreign governments," said Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., the committee chairman.

Wilson and another former CIA official, Frank Terpil, were indicted last year on charges of illegally supplying Khadafy with explosive timers, sophisticated night-vision equipment and other restricted military gear, and helping in training terrorists.

Federal investigators said the items were sold to Libya for $3.2 million, after the prices were inflated to double the items' actual value.

Walters said he would favor a two-year ban on a former CIA official doing business with agencies or governments that he was involved with during his CIA service. But he added: "There's no way you can say, 'You can't do business abroad.' I think that would be a restriction on the individual's freedom."

Walters, who left the CIA in July 1976, began work for Environmental Energy Systems on the Moroccan tank deal in July 1977 and was paid $300,000 for his services, according to McLane.

McLane said Walters introduced him to Morocco's top leaders and was able to make similar high-level contacts in other countries where the Alexandria, Va.-based firm was trying to win contracts.

"He (Walters) doesn't like countries that he considers anti-American, especially Libya," said McLane. "It runs a red flag up as far as he's concerned."

Walters said he kept the U.S. government fully informed about what he was doing and would not have been involved with any deals that were against U.S. interests.

In his financial disclosure statement filed when he was nominated for the State Department post, Walters listed the $300,000 "consultant termination fee" from Environmental Energy Systems as well as a $5,000 payment from the company in 1980.

About $2 billion in U.S. weapons and military technology was sold abroad through commercial channels in 1980, according to State Department records. That compares with $7.7 billion in official U.S. government-to-government arms exports in 1980.

In commercial sales, foreign governments contract directly with U.S. manufacturers who must obtain a U.S. government license before the weapons or military technology can be shipped.

France Inaugurates A 160-mph Railroad Train

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — President Francois Mitterrand inaugurates the world's fastest train service tonight, riding alongside the engineer at 160 miles an hour.

French officials see it as the beginning of a new era of travel that could spread across Europe and cut into the airlines' business.

Mitterrand is making the 264-mile trip north from Lyon to Paris in one of the new TGVs, that being the acronym for "train a grande vitesse," or high speed train.

The public begins riding Sunday between Paris, Lyon, Geneva and major cities and towns in between. The eight cars in each train have 386 seats, though two trains can be coupled. With electric engines at each end, they cruise at 160 miles an hour — 30 mph faster than Japan's Bullets — when they hit the 187-mile stretch of special track that has been installed.

The TGV cuts the travel time from Paris to Lyon from 3 hours 48 minutes to 2 hours 40 and to Geneva from 5 hours 40 to 4 hours 20. The times will drop to 2 hours for the Paris-Lyon run and 3 hours 40 for Paris-Geneva in 1983 when the special track is laid all the way.

French railroad officials predict the TGV will take as much as 50 percent of the airlines' business between the cities it serves.

Though the train's cruising speed nears that of a racing car, it has a large safety factor. A standard model set the world speed record earlier this year at 236 mph, 76 mph faster than the regular operating speed, without damage to train or track.

The only increase in ticket prices for travel on the TGV is a 20 percent surcharge at peak hours, but even this is cheaper than air fares. Meals will be served at the seats or in a bar-restaurant car, where preview riders had no trouble standing and drinking while the train was making more than 150 mph.

The TGV project started in 1964 with plans for a gas turbine engine, but electric power was adopted after the oil crisis. The cost for the Paris-Lyon track and 87 eight-car-two-engine units on order was budgeted at $1.5 billion at 1979 prices, the last figures released.

Construction of the 187-mile stretch of track being put into service now began in 1976. The northern portion of the route, 72 miles approaching Paris, will be completed in 1983, allowing the TGV to run at top speed for all but a few miles.

The service will be extended in 1983 to Marseille and Montpellier, on the Mediterranean coast. The new Socialist government has agreed in principle to extend the network to other regions.

France is also anxious to export the TGV technology. A railroad official said it would be ideal for America's Eastern seaboard, but Amtrak does not appear to be a market at the moment because of its problems.

Seniors Sharing Fall Art Fair

Town and Country Senior Citizens Club held its meeting Thursday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in the Fellowship Hall, with 90 members and guests attending.

President Sarah Ashton announced that all members should bring baked goods and articles for the Fall Art Fair Sept. 26 to the community building by 9:30 a.m.

Volunteers are needed at Third Street School. Interested members should call 752-5085.

Greenville City Schools are now issuing a senior citizen card, and persons wanting one should call 752-4192 for an application. This card entitles a senior citizen to attend all school functions at no charge.

The birthday luncheon planned for Oct. 1 has been postponed until the Oct. 15 meeting.

Oct. 1 will be a regular meeting starting at 10:15 a.m.

Seats remain for the bus trip to Busch Gardens Oct. 10. Members and friends planning to go should call 752-2912. Tickets must be obtained in advance.

President Ashton showed the group slides of her recent trip to Hawaii.

Such routes as Sao Paulo-Rio de Janeiro in Brazil and Seoul-Pusan in South Korea appear more feasible, he said.

"We are working hard to make our paper interesting, informative and as entertaining as a good newspaper should be," noted editor Lainhart.

School Officials Say Local Cuts Hurt Most

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Local budget cuts are hurting many school districts even more than state and federal cuts, North Carolina educators say.

"We were hurt by the loss of local funds," said Greensboro Superintendent Kenneth Newbold. "The significant thing was not the federal funds or state funds. It's those local dollars."

When enrollment in the Greensboro school system dropped by about 600 students, he said, 125 locally funded positions, 25 state funded positions and 23 federally funded positions were eliminated.

Bridge Plunges Fatal For Two

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — One of two men who plunged to his death from the Golden Gate Bridge was an apparent suicide and the other was trying to perform a stunt, police said.

The two jumped the 200 feet to the chilly waters of San Francisco Bay within 90 minutes of each other early Monday, police said. The jumps apparently were unrelated.

The first man carried documents identifying himself as Peter Angelo Wint, 25, of Missouri City, Texas. But the coroner's office withheld official identification until it could examine dental charts.

He apparently intended to survive the fall, authorities said. He wore a wetsuit, padded pants and a neck brace and carried a snorkel and two lifejackets, the Coast Guard said. He was pulled from the water breathing by a Coast Guard crew about 7:20 a.m. but "didn't make it to the pier," said California Highway Patrol spokesman Dick Myers.

He was the second person in two years to try to survive a jump from the span. In August 1980, Wolfgang Hans Kopke, a West German stuntman, fell to his death dressed in a wetsuit and other protective gear.

The second man, identified as 18 and from Ohio, hung his suit coat containing a message to his mother on a bridge rail at about 8:45 a.m. He was seen hanging from the rail a few minutes before falling to his death, authorities said.

The stuntman climbed a rail on the east side of the bridge and prepared to jump as joggers passed, Myers said. Before jumping, he tied a duffel bag containing a flare gun and flares to the bridge and leaped. Officers did not know what the man intended to do with the flare gun.

NOTED HYPNOTISTS IN GREENVILLE TO HELP SMOKERS & THE OVERWEIGHT

WADE M. GENTHNER, F.A.I.H.
Director of Techniques for Living

Are you overweight or a cigarette smoker? Have you tried to lose weight or stop smoking, only to fail time and time again? If you find yourself answering "yes" to either of these questions then the Techniques For Living Seminar, under the direction of Wade M. Genthner F.A.I.H. at the Holiday Inn, Memorial Drive, will be the place for you to be on Thursday, October 1. Techniques For Living will be conducting their famous Lose Weight—Stop Smoking Seminar which has helped thousands of people throughout the United States. Techniques For Living is a national organization dedicated to helping Americans solve these and other problems that have kept them from enjoying their lives to the fullest.

The subject of numerous newspaper and magazine articles as well as television appearances, Mr. Genthner and his staff have been conducting these seminars throughout the country. In a comprehensive and fascinating three hour program, those who attend the seminar experience the relaxing and beneficial effects of clinical hypnosis. Not only do people permanently lose weight and stop smoking as a result of the seminar, they also report that they sleep better, feel more energetic, and generally enjoy life more than they had previously.

Mr. Genthner's skill in clinical hypnosis was noted by Dan Rather of CBS' "60 Minutes," who referred to him in a nationally televised report as a well-trained and highly experienced hypnotist.

"Clinical hypnosis is the easiest way there is to solve these problems," Genthner says. "Simply put, it helps to eliminate these types of problems permanently."

Genthner says that the reason clinical hypnosis is so successful is that "it removes the causes of problems, not just the symptoms." For example, he explains: "People who are overweight go on diets. A diet is only good for as long as you can follow it. Once you stop the diet you re-gain the weight. Hypnosis is permanent because it eliminates the causes of overeating, not just the symptoms." The same holds true for smokers where the need to prevent cravings for cigarettes or weight gain is just as important. Both problems are covered at the seminar, and each seminar leader is personally trained by Mr. Genthner. Further information can be obtained by calling, toll free 1-800-645-5454.

Conservatives Eye Future High Court Vacancies

By KEVIN COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Even before President Reagan's first nominee for the Supreme Court takes her seat on the bench, conservatives unhappy with his choice of Sandra Day O'Connor are talking about vacancies to come.

Five of the court's eight current justices are over 72 and there is recurring speculation that some of them may retire.

"We'll let this one go by the wayside and hopefully it won't happen again," conservative fund-raiser and direct-mail expert Richard Viguerie said of Mrs.

O'Connor's confirmation.

Viguerie, who notes he spent "a great deal of time, money, energy and resources" fighting Mrs. O'Connor's nomination, said he's "hopeful" Reagan will pick someone more conservative next time.

That was echoed by Sen. Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa. "President Reagan probably realizes that he may be let them (his conservative supporters) down to some degree. And he will do something to rectify it," Grassley said.

Some conservatives bitterly attacked Mrs. O'Connor for what they perceived as past stances in favor of abortion and the proposed Equal Rights Amendment.

In the end, however, the Senate approved her historic nomination by a 99-0 vote Monday.

Women's groups enthusiastically backed the 51-year-old Arizona appeals court judge.

"We're hoping she (Mrs. O'Connor) won't be tokenized," said Eleanor Smeal, president of the National Organization for Women. "We'll have to see what the political circumstances are the next time around."

Women's leaders also point with considerable distaste to Reagan's nomination of 17 men and no women to lower federal courts — cited as a possible indication of the Republican chief executive's overall plans for the federal judiciary. Only one nominee is black.

Reagan's record so far contrasts sharply with that of his Democratic predecessor, Jimmy Carter, who appointed 40 women to the federal bench, more than all previous presidents combined.

"They're male-dominated and extremely conservative," said Janyce Katz, a spokeswoman for the National Women's Political Caucus, of Reagan's judicial and law enforcement nominees to date. "The fact that he has just appointed one woman does not make up for the fact that he hasn't appointed a sufficient number of women all the way down the line."

Larry Berkson of the American Judicature Society said Reagan's nomination pattern goes against the trend in most states, where women are getting judicial jobs in ever-increasing numbers.

If the lower court nominations are an indication of a pattern, they may assume even greater importance: While Carter was unable to make any appointments to the Supreme Court, Reagan may have a chance to completely reshape it.

"You will probably be the first of a number of (Supreme Court nominees) we're going to have coming up down the road with President Reagan," Sen. John P. East, R-N.C., told Mrs. O'Connor during her confirmation hearings.

Stephen Gillers, an associate professor at New York University Law School, said he expects "a rush of nominations in the 1980s" even though none of the justices has expressed any hint of retirement.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices William J. Brennan, Thurgood Marshall, Harry A. Blackmun and Lewis F. Powell are over age 72.

Meanwhile, there is already concern that the even-handed treatment the Senate Judiciary Committee gave Mrs. O'Connor may not survive the next few nominations.

Gillers noted that the Senate has been establishing a pattern of non-partisan "institutional responsibility" in considering nominees to the high court.

But "that pattern will be tested" because of the critical importance of the next few seats to become vacant, he said.

He added that Mrs. O'Connor was not even a "close case" in terms of creating any furor that would test the non-partisan approach.

David Vos of the liberal-oriented Americans for Democratic Action, said his group is also wary of single-issue pressures from the anti-abortionists and conservative groups who opposed Mrs. O'Connor.

"We reject that policy and their tactics in trying to politicize the Supreme Court," Vos said.

Mrs. O'Connor will replace retired Justice Potter Stewart, who has given his own views of Supreme Court nominations.

"It seems to me there is nothing more antithetical to the idea of what a good judge should be than to think it has something to do with representative democracy," Stewart said.

He said a judge's personal background is secondary to the duty "to be objective, conscientious, diligent and to remember always that every human being is equal before the law."

A vast majority of Supreme Court members have been Protestant men.

The first Roman Catholic member, Chief Justice Roger B. Taney, joined the court in 1836, 46 years after its founding. Louis D. Brandeis became the first Jewish member in 1916, and Marshall became the first black member in 1967.

Campbell Prof Nearing Ambassadorship Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Campbell University professor David Funderburk, nearing confirmation as U.S. ambassador to Romania, says Eastern Europe won't seem so exotic even after years spent in eastern North Carolina.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee plans to vote on the nomination today.

"We are very excited," he said, surrounded by his family after a hearing Monday before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "It's like returning to a second home for us, since we've been there (Romania) on four occasions."

But Funderburk, 37, an associate professor of history, said jokingly after the hearing that he would take along grits, okra and fried chicken for the trip from Buies Creek to Bucharest.

Funderburk, an Aberdeen native who speaks fluent Romanian and wrote his dissertation on a period of Romanian-British history, was praised by several senators, who said more ambassadors should have his breadth of expertise.

But it was Funderburk's political connections that led President Reagan to call him June 24 and offer him the ambassadorship. Funderburk, a staunch anti-Communist, worked for Sen. Jesse Helms in the North Carolina Republican's 1979 re-election bid.

Last spring, Helms recommended that Funderburk be nominated as deputy assistant secretary of state for European affairs, but he was turned down because that post is reserved for career State Department employees.

An administration official suggested Funderburk apply for an ambassadorship, and with the aid of Helms, Sen. John East, R-N.C., and several other Southern Republicans, Reagan nominated Funderburk to the Romanian post.

Funderburk said the only possible controversy over his nomination would be a 67-page book he wrote for the 1978 Helms campaign entitled: "If the Blind Lead the Blind: The Scandal Regarding the Misteaching of Communism in American Universities."

Consider South Pacific Visit

LONDON (AP) — A visit by Prince Charles and Princess Diana to Australia and New Zealand in 1982 is being planned, "nothing has been finalized," according to Buckingham Palace.

The formal trip is the first to be announced for the Prince and Princess of Wales, who were married July 29.

The Sun newspaper reported in today's editions that the visit might "melt the hearts of Aussies who dashed Prince Charles' hopes of becoming governor-general."

Charles, who received some of his schooling in Australia, reportedly wanted to take the post as the representative of his mother, Queen Elizabeth II, but opposition was expressed by Australians who wanted one of their countrymen for the job.

When Charles visited Australia last April, crowds chanted, "We want Di," but she remained in London, preparing for the wedding.

Romania Asks Loan Extensions

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Romania has asked Western banks to extend the repayment schedule on its short-term loans, sources said today.

The sources, who asked not to be named, said the banks were reluctant to lend Romania more money because of reports the East bloc country was facing a hard currency shortage.

On Romania's part, the government was reluctant to ask for further credit at the current "exaggerated interest rates," they said.

A recent analysis by the Washington-based Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates placed Romania's Western debt at $9.5 billion and predicted it could rise to almost $13 billion by 1982.

Romanian finance officials said, however, that Romania owed $6 billion to Western banks and governments at the beginning of 1981.

Not Arraigned, Trial Postponed

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The murder trial of Chris Lee Richardson was postponed Monday after court officials found he had not been arraigned.

Richardson, 20, is accused of second-degree murder in the beating death of 46-year-old Ronald Antonevich at the Little River on April 12. Antonevich was one of three sunbathers allegedly attacked in the incident.

Richardson is also charged with assault with a deadly weapon, inflicting serious injury and armed robbery in connection with assaults on the other sunbathers.

He pleaded not guilty to all of the charges. After arraignment Monday, the trial was set for next Monday.

Probing Crash That Killed 7

INDIAN SPRINGS AIR FIELD, Nev. (AP) — The military is investigating for the cause of the crash of an Air Force C-130 transport plane in which seven soldiers perished and 20 others were hospitalized.

The four-engine turbo-prop was carrying 68 troops on night maneuvers when it crashed early Monday and burned for four hours. Most of the injured apparently were hurt from the impact or when they escaped through side exits, said Lt. Col. Mike Wallace, an Air Force spokesman.

Runway lights were off as part of the mission at this base about 45 miles northwest of Las Vegas, according to Air Force sources. Officials refused to confirm or deny the report.

A spokesman at Nellis Air Force Base near Las Vegas said none of the 20 hospitalized were in critical condition.

Wallace said the plane's fuel lines ruptured on impact, starting what he said was a small fire that flames up to 25 feet in the air because it ignited smoke grenades and flares used on the mission, Wallace said. Troops were able to get out before the fire reached the flares and grenades that "went bananas," Wallace said.

The C-130 was attached to the 463rd Tactical Aircraft Wing at Dyess Air Force Base near Abilene, Texas. It was taking part in training involving the Army's 9th Infantry Division from Ft. Lewis, Wash. to simulate Air Force-Army airlifts.

Casey Promotes 'Superstuff' Program

Casey Weisenberger, five years old, of Greenville was recently an honored guest at the N.C. Governor's Mansion for the kickoff of a new Lung Association program called Superstuff.

Casey, who has been treated for asthma since she was six weeks old, is serving as the 1981 Christmas Seal representative of the eastern region of the American Lung Association. She will aid the organization in promoting the new Superstuff program, as well as the Christmas Seal campaign during the coming months.

Accompanying Casey to the Governor's Mansion were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Weisenberger of Greenville. Greeting guests were Mrs. Jim Hunt, wife of the Governor; Dr. Sarah Morrow, secretary of the N.C. Department of Human Resources; and W. Herbert Hollowell Jr., president of the American Lung Association of North Carolina.

Superstuff, developed by the American Lung Association, is a new self-help program for children with asthma and their parents. It consists of educational materials appealingly packaged as games, riddles, puzzles, and the like. A parents' 16-page tabloid contains information about self-help, questions and answers about asthma, parents talking with other parents, a parents' guide to the children's book and more. It is designed especially for the elementary school-aged child with asthma who is receiving medical care and whose ailment is severe enough to disrupt his or her lifestyle and that of his or her family.

The Superstuff packages are available free of charge from the American Lung Association of North Carolina, Eastern Region. The region encompasses 22 eastern N.C. counties with the office located in Greenville. Dr. Jim Nickelsen, board member of the American Lung Association of North Carolina, Eastern Region, said that anyone requesting a Superstuff packet should contact the Lung Association, 752-5093.

9 Post Bond In Drug Bust

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Nine of 10 people arrested in weekend drug raids by police in Dunn were able to post $1,000 bond Monday, while one man remained in Harnett County Jail, officials said.

The arrest of the seven men and three women capped a six-week undercover operation by Dunn policemen, said Police Chief B.P. Jones.

Officers said marijuana, amphetamines and LSD were seized in the arrests as well as some stolen goods.

In all, 43 charges were leveled against the defendants.

Erbie McLean Jr., 44, of Dunn was charged with selling and possessing marijuana. Arrested on charges of possession of marijuana or for the sale or attempted sale of the drug were: Adam Waxton Jr., 32, Amos Brunson, 48, Katie Brunson, 45, his wife, Maude P. Jones, 68, Barbara Ann Williams, 27, Francis Spence, 25, and Kenneth Edward Smith, 29, all of Dunn. Also arrested on those charges was James Melvin Surles, 22, of Bunnlevel.

In addition, Waxton and Spence were charged with possessing and selling LSD as was Tony Waxton, the 17-year-old son of Adam Waxton Jr.

Spence was also charged with possession of amphetamines with intent to sell.

Smith was the only person who did not post a bond and remained in jail, officers said.

Tourney Funds Are Distributed

Use of the money raised during the Winterville Jayettes' third annual softball tournament, held four days during August, has been announced.

The proceeds, raised through concessions and team entry fees, was about $1000. The chapter said $500 was given to the Winterville Rescue Squad for general expenses and new equipment purchase. The other $500 was donated to the Division of Hematology-Oncology (Cancer Fund) of East Carolina University School of Medicine in memory of Jeffrey Thomas Brock. Brock, who died of cancer recently, was a dedicated Winterville Jaycee and an asset to his community, the Jayettes president said.

Cable Newspaper Service Is Begun

By MIKE GLOVER
Associated Press Writer
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Des Moines Register and Tribune Co. has begun regularly scheduled news broadcasts from its newsroom in what the newspaper company says is a first for cable television.

The service, to about 42,000 television viewers, debuted when veteran newsmen Jerry Szumski led off the broadcast Monday with an item about a downtown jewelry heist.

Saying the move is "very definitely a way to use our staff more efficiently," Mike Wegner of the newspaper's corporate staff added it is a step toward electronic home newspaper delivery.

Many newspapers across the nation transmit news and advertising over cable channels, and providing locally oriented programming isn't unique. But officials of the Des Moines newspaper say they are the first to originate regularly scheduled newscasts from a newspaper newsroom.

The broadcasts are being carried over the Heritage Cablevision system during two-minute hourly "windows" on the Atlanta-based Cable News Network. Those breaks are provided by CNN for cable systems to provide local programming.

The Register and Tribune broadcasts will be one minute, with the other 60 seconds sold as advertising. The newspaper company and Heritage Cablevision company will divide revenue from advertising sales.

Wegner said officials hope to eventually expand past the one-minute broadcast, though "I don't see us competing at all with commercial television."

The Mason City (Iowa) Globe-Gazette has been using two cable channels for several years, one for 24-hour news display and the other for intermittent local programming.

The local programming originates in a studio constructed in the newspaper's composing room, said Publisher Gerald Moriarity.

Those broadcasts are delivered through a cable system also owned by Heritage to more than 6,000 subscribers.

"The response has been very favorable," Moriarity said, adding the newspaper has plans to increase broadcasts to about four hours a day.

Prior to the work in Mason City, Moriarity had launched a similar effort at the Ottumwa (Iowa) Courier, with another system operated by Heritage.

In Arizona, the Yuma Daily Sun has assembled a four-channel newscable operation, with one channel for local news, community bulletin boards and other local information. The additional channels have news from The Associated Press and Reuters, as well as classified advertisements. In Danbury, Conn., the Ottoway arm of Dow Jones & Co. uses newscable to supplement the company's newspaper there, the Danbury News-Times. In that system, local news alternates with news from The AP.

High Gun Risks In Neighborhood

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — City officials say they will amend their firearms ordinance to correct a situation that Red Mill Farms residents contend is becoming increasingly dangerous.

Whizzing bullets are a reminder that despite its population boom, this resort city is still very much country: Hunting is permitted in designated rural areas of Virginia Beach.

"But too many people with guns don't know what they're doing," said Betty Wells, an NBC News illustrator who moved to Red Mill Farms, south of Oceana Boulevard, in April from Baltimore.

To which Bob Merkel, president of the subdivision's civic association, added:

"When you hear the blast of a gun, it's terrifying — especially if your kids are outside riding their bikes. The other day, there were some guys hiding in high weeds just 200 yards from our house, blasting away at 'dangerous doves.'"

Danger stalks the backyards of the residents of the Virginia Beach subdivision, which abuts some of the best hunting grounds in the area.

"It makes you afraid to take a walk," said Mrs. Wells, who is especially worried because her cat Stinker resembles a raccoon. "You can actually hear bullets whizzing through the air."

The civic association has taken its complaints to City Council.

"It is a problem, especially during hunting season," said Michael Barrett, assistant to the city manager for citizens' affairs.

Barrett explained the city periodically redraws the "trace line" south of which hunting is allowed. People may hunt south of that line provided they do it on private, undeveloped property of at least 50 acres and have written permission from the landowner, under the ordinance.

But "many homes and enclaves in the south part of the city" are within the hunting area, Barrett said.

In Memory Of My Brother Carlton R. Woolard

I miss you
 I miss you, my brother
 You'll never know how much
 The way you laughed
 The brightness of your smile
 Your way of doing for others
 Even if you had to walk a mile.

It still hurts very deeply
 And I'm sure it always will
 But God knew best
 Or it wouldn't have been fulfilled,
 And I believe you're in Heaven above
 Because of the kind of person you were
 SO FULL OF LOVE.

Your sister,
 Kaye

Squatters Fight Police

BERLIN (AP) — Police used clubs and tear gas today in an attempt to evict squatters from eight West Berlin buildings and were met at some points by resistance, authorities said.

A police spokesman said squatters and several hundred sympathizers threw up barricades at three buildings in the Schoenberg district and hurled stones at the police. Resistance was lighter at five other buildings, the spokesman said.

The fighting was the city's worst since Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. visited the city Sept. 13 and a demonstration against the Reagan administration's defense policies ended in violence.

City officials had told the squatters to leave by midnight Sunday, and the announcement prompted several days of protests.

More than 100 buildings in the western sector of this divided city have been occupied by youths who claim they cannot find low-cost housing. Police have allowed many of the squatters to remain unless owners demand their eviction.

Confirmed As FTC Chairman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative economist James C. Miller III has been confirmed by a near-unanimous Senate vote as chairman of the Federal Trade Commission.

Although the vote for Miller's nomination Monday was 97-2, several Republicans, including Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., expressed reservations about whether he or other nominees of President Reagan would enforce antitrust laws vigorously.

But Sen. Robert Kastner, R-Wis., whose subcommittee held the confirmation hearing on the nomination, said Miller's testimony "committed himself to vigorous antitrust enforcement."

First Store To Honor Boycott

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The state director for the boycott of the Nestle Corp. says Fowler's Food Stores may be the first grocery store in the nation to honor the boycott.

Lew Church, state coordinator for the Infant Formula Action Coalition, said Monday the stores will begin today to distribute grocery bags bearing information about the protest.

The five-year-old nationwide boycott protests the sale of Nestle baby formula in Third World countries, where opponents of the sales say it provides inadequate nutrition and is abused as a substitute for breast-feeding.

Raleigh To Get Postal Center

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service plans to locate a national computer service facility in Raleigh, a service spokesman said Monday.

Negotiations to lease a building for the center should be completed in several days, said spokesman Joseph T. McDonald.

The center will develop computer programs and processes to be used at Postal Service computer centers elsewhere in the nation, he said.

Haig Stresses Polish Gravity

By R. GREGORY NOKES Associated Press Writer UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. is making clear the importance of the Reagan administration's defense policies ended in violence.

Haig delivered a major address to the 36th U.N. General Assembly Monday in which he charged that Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and the Soviet-backed Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia pose a threat to global order, economic development and the U.N. Charter.

Haig said he will tell Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at their first meeting Wednesday that the Soviets must refrain from military intervention if they wish to improve already cool relations with the United States.

The secretary met today with Polish Foreign Minister Jozef Czyrek to emphasized the importance and gravity with which the administration views Poland's problems. Details of their talk were not immediately released.

Haig met Czyrek after appointments with close U.S. allies but ahead of representatives of other nations that also are important to the United States, including China and Venezuela.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said Haig wants an assessment of Poland's internal situation, both economic and political. He said the question of economic aid for Poland may also be raised.

Fischer said Haig discussed Poland in nearly all of his meetings with U.S. allies Monday, including British Foreign Minister Lord Carrington and Italian Foreign Minister Emilio Colombo.

Haig does not believe the Soviets are on the verge of sending in more troops to stop Poland's move toward democracy, Fischer said. He said although the secretary believes the Soviet demand last week for the Polish Communist Party to crack down on internal dissent was "somewhat intimidating," there is no evidence that the Soviets are massing troops near the Polish border.

Needn't Provide Their Notes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Psychiatrists hired by the prosecution do not have to give defense attorneys their notes of interviews with accused presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr., U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker has ruled.

Parker on Monday denied the defense lawyers' request for the notes, which they wanted to use in determining whether to raise an insanity defense. Prosecutors agreed, however, to give defense lawyers the report of the government psychiatrists when it is completed.

Defense lawyers have been given until next Monday to notify the court and the prosecution if they would try to show Hinckley was innocent by reason of insanity in the March 30 wounding of President Reagan and three others.

Rockets Flexing New Found Muscles

The University of Toledo, after struggling through the 1980 football season and getting blown away in their opener against Louisville in 1981, suddenly has found muscle.

quarterback Jim Kelso, a 5-11, 191-pound sophomore. He hit on 10 of 16 passes for 126 yards and one touchdown, and rushed 19 times for 113 yards, adding two more touchdowns.

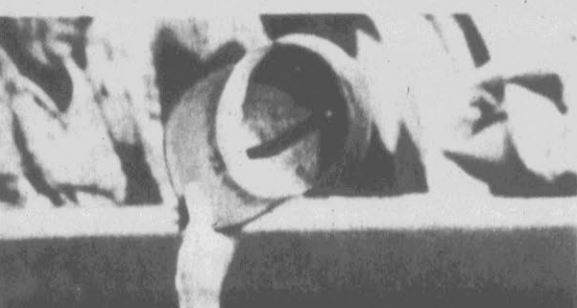

of those came in the Louisville game. Walker is the leading receiver with three catches for 39 yards, while Tucker has three for 20 yards.

has good acceleration and is a good passer. Walker runs a 4.4 40 and has strength to go with his speed. Tucker is quick and strong.

Montreal Finally Nips Phillies On Dawson's 17th Inning Single

By The Associated Press There is no joy in Mudville...and Manager Jim Fanning warns there will be no music in Montreal, either, unless the Expos win.

liever Jerry Reed then walked Warren Cromartie and Terry Francona to load the bases. Dawson followed with a hard grounder to third baseman Mike Schmidt, whose throw to home narrowly missed getting Scott.

"Casey At The Bat," in this case, was Expos outfielder Andre Dawson, and Monday night he rewrote the classic Ernest L. Thayer poem slightly by not striking out.

"I don't think we would have been down that much if we had lost, but it's certainly a big one to win," Fanning said. "We can't afford to lose at this stage," Burris added.

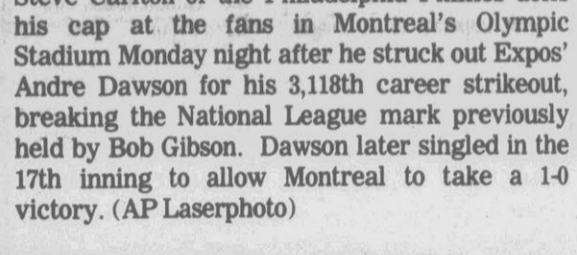

In the National League's longest game this year, Dawson's grounder in the 17th inning scored Rodney Scott from third, giving Montreal a 1-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Cardinals 2, Cubs 0. Joaquin Andujar and Bruce Sutter combined on a three-hit shutout that helped St. Louis rebound from three straight losses at New York.

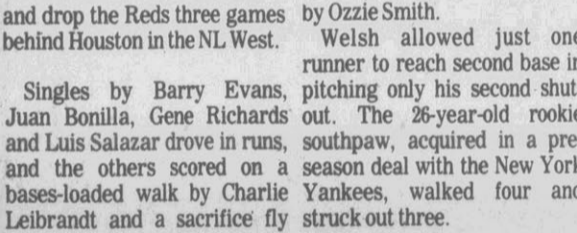

The victory allowed the Expos to keep pace with St. Louis in the race for the National League East's second-season title. The Cardinals, who blanked the Chicago Cubs 2-0 in an afternoon game, lead the Expos by 1 1/2 games.

Manager Whitey Herzog said he wasn't sure yet whether Andujar would be forced out of his starting rotation, but the pitcher said similar injuries in the past have cost him a great deal of time.

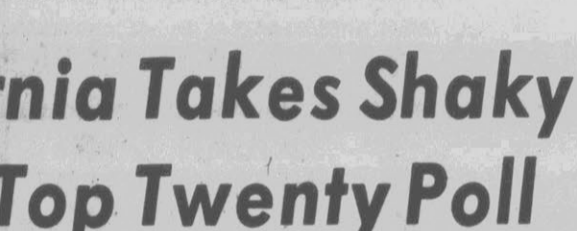

Fanning, who took over when Dick Williams was fired earlier this month, was asked how his team would have felt if it had lost to the Phillies.

"This has happened to me twice before," Andujar said. "The first time I was out for two months, and the second time I think I missed about a month and a half."

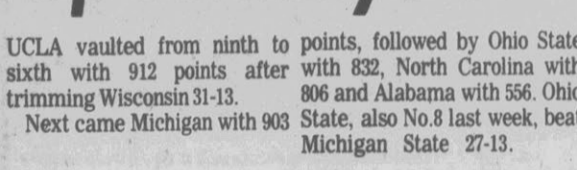

"First of all, there wouldn't have been any music in the clubhouse," Fanning said of the players' stereo radios that fill the locker room with rock'n'roll.

Mets 4, Pirates 3. Mark Lee, Pittsburgh's fifth pitcher, let loose a wild pitch in the 13th inning that allowed John Stearns to score New York's winning run, extending the Mets winning streak to four games.

With one out, Lee walked Stearns, and Ron Gardenhire's single sent the Mets catcher to third. With a 0-2 count on rookie Brian Giles, Lee threw a low and outside pitch that catcher Tony Pena was unable to handle.

Padres 6, Reds 0. Chris Welsh tossed a three-hit shutout, and San Diego scored all six of its runs in the sixth inning to halt Cincinnati's winning streak at four games and drop the Reds three games behind Houston in the NL West.

Singles by Barry Evans, Juan Bonilla, Gene Richards and Luis Salazar drove in runs, and the others scored on a bases-loaded walk by Charlie Leibbrandt and a sacrifice fly by Ozzie Smith. Welsh allowed just one runner to reach second base in pitching only his second shutout. The 26-year-old rookie southpaw, acquired in a pre-season deal with the New York Yankees, walked four and struck out three.

Carlton registered his 3,000th strikeout earlier this season at Philadelphia against Montreal rookie Tim Wallach. Carlton, traded to the Phillies from the Cardinals in 1972 in exchange for pitcher Rick Wise, is currently 11th on the all-time victory list with 261.

Carlton went on to strike out 10 other Montreal batters in the game, pushing his total to 3,128.

He went 10 innings and scattered three hits against the Expos, but did not earn a decision as Montreal won the game 1-0 in the 17th inning against reliever Jerry Reed, 0-1.

of those came in the Louisville game. Walker is the leading receiver with three catches for 39 yards, while Tucker has three for 20 yards.

The leading scorer is kicker Tony Lee with 13 points, hitting three of three field goals, the longest of 40 yards, and four of four extra points.

The two then met again in 1977, when the Pirates took a 22-9 win in Toledo. In that game, ECU led on 14-9 going into the final quarter.

East Carolina's long 110-game scoring streak, which was halted two weeks ago by North Carolina, went back to the 1971 Toledo game, which marked the last time ECU had been shut out prior to two weeks ago. That shutout is still the last one on the Pirates' home turf.

Tailback John Walker is the leading rusher for the Rockets, picking up 201 yards on 40 carries, a 5.0 average. He's scored once. Kelso is next with 33 attempts for 163 yards, a 4.9 average with two touchdowns.

Defensively, they are allowing only 81 yards rushing a game, and 141 passing. "They have as many highly skilled players as any team we've played against," ECU Coach Ed Emory said of the Rockets. "Their quarterback

Kelso has hit on 11 of 26 passes for 136 yards and one touchdown. He has been intercepted four times, but three "Kelso reminds me a lot of Southern Mississippi's quarterback Reggie Collier, who gave us fits last year. Actually, Toledo and Southern Miss are a lot alike."

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Veteran Grand National stock car driver Buddy Baker had planned to take this weekend off. Instead, he'll make his first short-track start of the season in Sunday's $175,085 Old Dominion 500. "I always run good at Martinsville, and I'm looking forward to it," said Baker, who won the 1979 Old Dominion 500 and holds the race qualifying record of 88.593 mph for the .525-mile Martinsville Speedway track.

Carlton Is KO King

Richmond and Alexander are third and fourth, respectively, in the point race for Grand National Rookie of the Year. Morgan Shepherd is the leader, followed by Ron Bouchard.

Sutton Is The Winner

Qualifying for the Old Dominion 500 begins Thursday, with the first 20 spots to be determined. The last 10 places will be filled Friday, with Saturday devoted to a national championship Late Model Sportsman race.

Frank Sutton of 1504 Hardee Road in Kinston is the winner of last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

The Old Dominion 500, the richest short-track event on the circuit, will start at 12:30 p.m. EDT, Sunday.

Hardee correctly picked the winners in 28 of the 32 games listed in last Tuesday's paper. His victory, however, was also based on his point guess of 67 points, which was closest to the actual total of 56.

All the maneuvering left Alexander without a car. "I'm walking," Alexander said sadly. "I was told that Richmond would be driving the car the rest of the year."

Second place went to Sid Ashby of 1303 Evergreen Dr., Greenville, who also had 28 correct picks, but was further off the point total with a guess of 71.

"I'm looking for a ride and I hope something will work out," added Alexander, who holds

One other entrant also had 28 right, but was further off the point total.

The third of the weekly contests appears on the following pages.

Southern California Takes Shaky Seat Atop AP's Top Twenty Poll

By The Associated Press For the third week in a row college football has a new No. 1 team.

Oklahoma, idle over the weekend, received 15 first-place ballots and 1,203 points. The Sooners return to action against Southern Cal Saturday afternoon in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

UCLA vaulted from ninth to sixth with 912 points after trimming Wisconsin 31-13. Next came Michigan with 903

The Trojans of Southern California replaced Notre Dame at the top of The Associated Press poll today, setting up a 1-2 shootout with runnerup Oklahoma on Saturday in Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, Notre Dame skidded from first place to 13th, while Michigan climbed back into the Top 10, jumping from 11th to seventh. The Wolverines also received a first-place ballot.

Georgia's defending national champions were defeated by Clemson 13-3, ending a 15-game winning streak, and fell from fourth to 17th, while Clemson made the Top Twenty for the first time this season.

Michigan, the preseason leader, was bumped from the top after losing to Wisconsin on Sept. 12. And the Wolverines in turn bounced Notre Dame out by trouncing the Irish 25-7 this past weekend.

Georgia's defending national champions were defeated by Clemson 13-3, ending a 15-game winning streak, and fell from fourth to 17th, while Clemson made the Top Twenty for the first time this season.

Penn State, idle last weekend, rose from fifth to third with two first-place votes and 1,092 points, while Texas, a 23-10 victor over North Texas State, jumped from sixth to fourth with one first-place vote and 1,038 points.

That opened the way for Southern Cal and Oklahoma, last week's No. 2-3 teams, to move up. USC, a 21-0 winner over Indiana, received 46 of 65 first-place votes and 1,258 of a possible 1,300 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Penn State, idle last weekend, rose from fifth to third with two first-place votes and 1,092 points, while Texas, a 23-10 victor over North Texas State, jumped from sixth to fourth with one first-place vote and 1,038 points.

Pitt went from seventh to fifth with 976 points following a 38-7 rout of Cincinnati and

DUNKEL FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel index provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

HUNTER ORIGINAL OLDE TYME CEILING FANS

This was the fan that went 'round the world. These Hunter ceiling fans, the 1903 originals, swirled away heat in the steamy jungles of Africa, in the deserts of Morocco, on the shores of India and in the plantation homes of the South. A lot of people who remember those days still refer to all ceiling fans as "Hunter Fans". Johnny-come-lately's can't fool them—they know Hunter is the original.

Collins Scores, But Cowboys Win It

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Step aside, Earl. Touchdown Tony is on the loose — and so are the rest of the Dallas Cowboys.

Tony Dorsett, off to the best start of his five-year career in the National Football League, is literally and figuratively running away from three-time rushing champion Earl Campbell and any other challengers he may face.

So what? he says. "Leading the league in rushing is fine (he has 423 yards now), but going into the 16th game is when it'll mean something. Right now it means nothing. That's no goal of mine, to lead the NFL in rushing. I just want to be consistent, game in and game out," he says.

Which is what he has been, more so this season than any other.

Which in turn is why the Cowboys are 3-0 three games into the season, and one reason why the New England Patriots, who had hoped to break out of an early-season slump, lost 35-21 Monday night and are 0-3.

Dorsett's 132 yards and 129 yards in his first two games were merely a prelude to the 162 yards he amassed against the Patriots, 75 of them on a second-quarter touchdown run. His total was 54 yards more than the entire New England ground game managed... and the Patriots had three more carries than Dorsett's 19.

All that yardage was gained before he came limping off the field with about nine minutes to play and the outcome still somewhat in doubt (Dallas led 29-21). He was thrown for a 1-yard loss on his last play of the game. "I twisted the heck out of my right ankle — and when I fell down a guy kneed me in the ribs," he said. "I'm real sore, but I think I can play Sunday" against the New York Giants.

"Offensively, we're off to a tremendous start. In the past, we haven't had the running game going as well as we have this year," Dorsett said, neglecting to mention that in the past he hasn't shown up in training camp in midseason form, as he did this year. "But defensively, we're not where we should be."

Defensively, the Cowboys pretty much closed down the New England rushing attack (Mosi Tatupu had 63 of their 108 yards). But they permitted Matt Cavanaugh, starting in place of erratic Steve Grogan, plenty of time to search out and find receivers.

Unfortunately for the Pats, four times he found Dallas receivers for interceptions — one in the first period preceding the Cowboys' opening touchdown (Danny White's 28-yard pass to leaping Butch Johnson) and three in the final quarter, two of them leading to Rafael Septien field goals.

The Patriots also fumbled the ball away three times. One was harmless. But a second one, coming the instant Andy Johnson had caught a pass at the Dallas 2-yard line, cost them a shot at a go-ahead touchdown or tying field goal just before halftime. And the third, by Roland James on a Dallas punt, paved the way to White's other touchdown pass, a 1-yarder on a rollout to a wide-open Billy Joe DuPree midway in the third period, the score that put the Cowboys on top 24-21.

Ron Erhardt, the Patriots' coach, was dismayed and infuriated, not so much by the Patriots' mistakes, but by the penalties called against them. All five came in the second half, for 38 yards. One was a holding call which wiped out a 29-yard pass which would have put them near midfield. Instead, the flag pushed them within 7 yards of their own goal line and, on the succeeding play, Cavanaugh, under intense pressure in the end zone, threw the ball away, an intentional grounding penalty resulting in a safety.

Erhardt, spicing his complaints with epithets, came very close to saying the Patriots are somehow picked on by the officials. "They threw the ball all night and didn't get called for holding once," he said of the Cowboys. "I'm tired of that always happening to the Patriots. It's always against our side...It seems every time we get a key play, it got called back."

The Patriots touchdowns came on runs of 4 yards by Don Calhoun in the first quarter, 31 yards to put them ahead briefly 21-17 in the third.

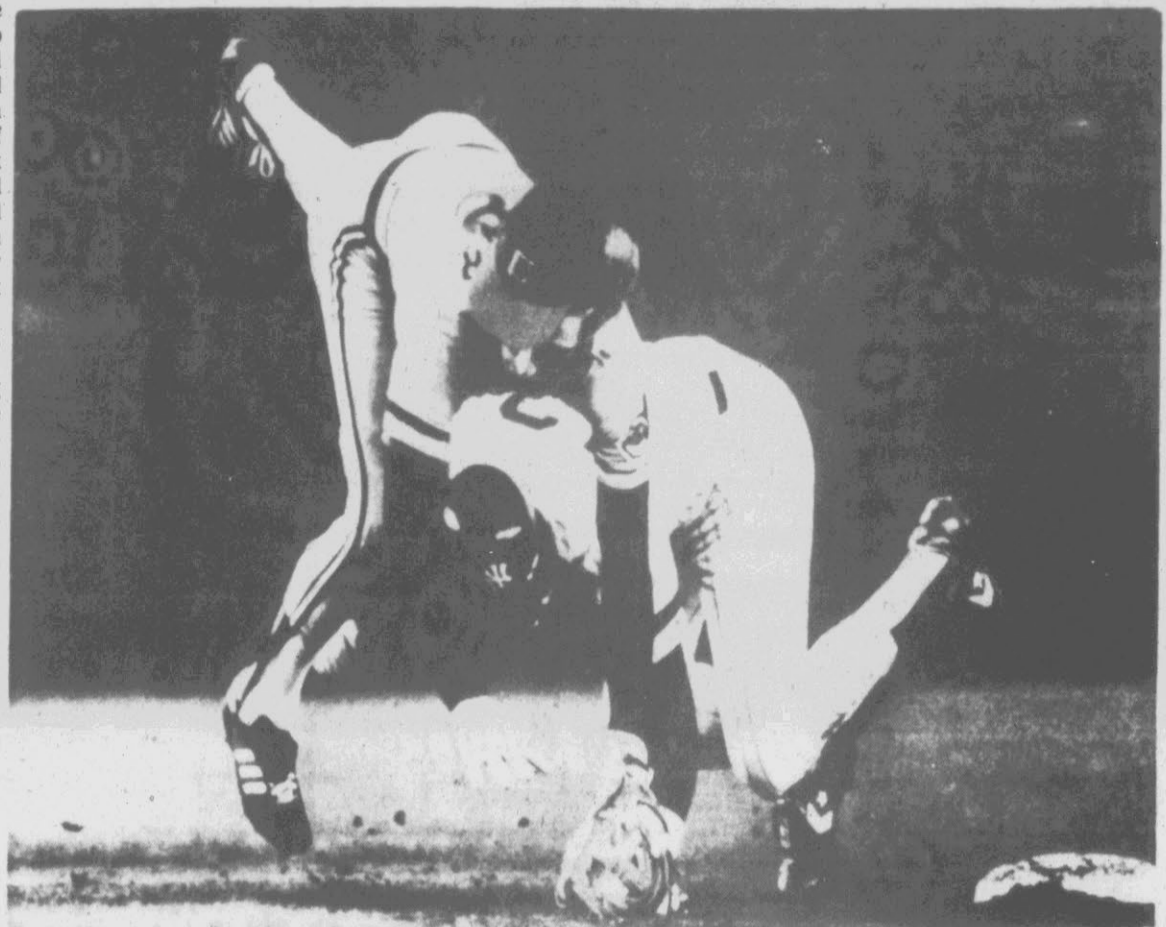

New England will now have to face the Pittsburgh Steelers, who erupted on Sunday for a 38-10 victory against the New York Jets, the American Conference's other 0-3 team (Washington is the only one in the National Conference).

Erhardt, of course, isn't about to write off this season just yet.

"We're still very much in control of our own destiny," he said in the muted New England locker room. "Sure, we've lost three games, but only one to a team in our division (Baltimore, in the AFC East). We still have seven more with the people we have to beat to get to the top."

And Tom Landry, coach of the Cowboys, had a word of caution for the rest of the NFL, not to write off the Patriots too soon, either.

"I think they could very well come back," he said. "You know they won't quit. Remember, Oakland was 2-5 at one point last year, and the Raiders won the Super Bowl."

Oops! Cleveland Indian second baseman Duane Kuiper flips over a sliding New York Yankee's Bobby Brown and drops his throw in the ninth inning of Monday night's game at Yankee Stadium. Kuiper got the force at second but didn't throw out Rick Cerone at first. The Indians won anyway, 5-0. (AP Laserphoto)

Boston Wins Again To Remain In Race For American's East Flag

Ralph Houk is having trouble playing the ever-popular game of pennant-race scoreboard. But his Boston Red Sox are having very few problems playing baseball, and that might make Houk's scoreboard watching unnecessary.

The Red Sox stayed a half-game behind the first-place Detroit Tigers in the tight American League East second half race Monday night with a 9-3 romp over the Milwaukee Brewers, who dropped 1½ games off the pace. The victory was Boston's seventh in the last eight games, all at home. The Red Sox are 24-16 in the second season.

Houk didn't need to do much managing Monday. He just turned Dave Stapleton, Jim Rice, Jerry Remy, Carl Yastrzemski, Carney Lansford, Tony Perez and Rick Miller loose and each had two hits in Boston's 14-hit attack. Stapleton slammed a homer in the five-run fifth inning and added a single, while knocking in four runs.

"You can feel the pennant fever everywhere," Stapleton said. "We're enthusiastic, happy. It's great to come back to the park the next day. There's a more confident feeling now. I feel more pressure two or three weeks ago than I do now and I don't really know why," Stapleton added.

"The Red Sox are playing good and when they get hot at Fenway it's double trouble," Milwaukee Manager Buck Rodgers said. "They're high now and we have to break that momentum, hopefully tomorrow night."

"Right now, nothing is disastrous but it does set you back," Rogers said. "The Red Sox are playing good and when they get hot at Fenway it's double trouble," Milwaukee Manager Buck Rodgers said. "They're high now and we have to break that momentum, hopefully tomorrow night."

Milt Wilcox hurled a six-hitter for his first win ever over the Orioles. John Wockenwase drove in two runs with an RBI single in the fourth and a sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Orioles starter Scott McGregor entered the game with an 11-2 lifetime record against the Tigers. He has a 7-2 record at home this season, with both losses against Detroit.

"I'm a different pitcher than I have been the last four or five years," Wilcox said. "I've changed my approach to pitching with (pitching coach) Roger Craig's help. I've added two new pitches, a forkball and an overhead curve and dropped the change-up which got me into trouble."

"I don't think anybody will laugh at us anymore and say, 'Here come the weaklings,'" Wilcox added. "We have confidence now."

Well-intentioned Special Lost Something In The Translation

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hate to be a Scrooge about this, but NBC's "How to Eat Like a Child" is not digestible. Tonight's one-hour effort, from the network's "Project Peacock" stable of specials for young people and their families, is billed by NBC as "a unique look at the manners, language and logic of adults in training." It isn't. The idea, based on Delia Ephron's best-seller, "How to Eat Like a Child," was well-intentioned. Take some kids and let them delve into the fears, foibles and feelings of youngsters in a society of adult rules and restrictions. This is the kind of thing

Public Broadcasting's "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company" win awards for. But take the same concepts to network TV in prime time, and it loses something in translation and transition.

By the end of the hour, we don't really know what it's like to be a child. Instead of substance and discussion, we get song and dance; instead of values, we get vaudeville, and instead of feelings, we get fluff.

Oh, yes, there are some very talented kids in the bunch who sing and dance very well. Future Ben Vereens. But the way they're presented, they look more like actors playing kids than kids themselves. They sing about the frustrations and yearnings of childhood, but there's no sense that they really feel it.

Through musical kitsch, which are nicely choreographed and well sung, the show tries to wrestle with such issues as: How to stay home from school, how to deal with injustice, how to understand your parents, how to torture your sister, how to act after being sent to your room, how to beg for a dog and how to eat like a child.

We watched the program with three neighborhood kids, ranging in age from 6 to 8. They seemed to enjoy watching kids on the screen, but the musical variety nature of the program, the hook for adults in prime time, was lost on them completely.

These three had more to say about how kids deal with being kids in discussions during the commercial breaks. "I hate it when my parents don't give me reasons," said Mark. "I hate going to bed sometimes. I have too many bad thoughts," said Danny. "Me, too," said Kate.

Before we could discuss how to deal with bad thoughts at nighttime, another musical number flashed on the screen.

There were some highlights. A fantasy imitation of Rolling Stone Mick Jagger from a kid tired of practicing the violin. All the different ways parents say no: "We'll see," "Not now," "Ask your father," "Ask your mother," "We'll discuss it later," and "No!"

And the bad things about birthdays. The waiting, getting the same presents, kids not acting up to your expectations. This brought back memories, but unfortunately the show didn't do enough of this. Essentially, it wasn't much of a memorable program, which is surprising since it comes from MTM Productions, leaders in sophisticated programming like "Hill Street Blues" and "Lou Grant."

Dick Van Dyke is the one grown-up child in the cast, and he's amiable and wide-eyed, and seems genuinely to enjoy working with the kids. But he wasn't the right person to elevate this program. We've seen Phil Donahue do this much better.

And, day-in and day-out, "Sesame Street," does it much, much better — at a fraction of the cost.

Rules Aimed At Savings In Welfare

WASHINGTON (AP)—Welfare benefits for nearly 700,000 families will be eliminated or reduced by new rules designed to save the federal government and states $2 billion annually, the Department of Health and Human Services says.

The changes in the $14.7 billion Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, effective at the start of the new fiscal year Oct. 1, also will tighten limits on how much welfare recipients may earn or own.

The new rules, released Monday, were proposed by President Reagan and ordered by Congress in its fiscal 1982 budget reconciliation bill.

States administer AFDC, the nation's biggest welfare program, and the federal government shares the cost. The changes are expected to save the U.S. government $1.1 billion in fiscal 1982 and states $900 million. Over five years, the savings are estimated at $5 billion for the states and $6 billion for the federal government.

About 3.9 million families now get AFDC benefits.

The Department of Health and Human Services estimates the new rules will make 408,000 families, or 11 percent, ineligible, and 279,000 families, or 7 percent, will get reduced benefits. About 16,000 families will receive increased benefits.

Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker said that under the old rules, it was possible for some families earning more than $20,000 to get AFDC.

"We want to help those who need our help," he said. "But we must set reasonable limits, and we must look to jobs for recipients as our real long-term goal."

Among the changes announced Monday:

—States can require welfare recipients to earn their benefits by working in community jobs.

—States will be allowed to count food stamps and housing subsidies as income in figuring a family's eligibility for AFDC.

—Welfare families will be limited to no more than $1,000 in assets, excluding a home and a car worth up to $1,500. States also may exclude items essential to day-to-day living such as clothing, furniture and other household necessities.

—For the first time, a ceiling will be imposed on AFDC families' gross income. It will be set at 150 percent of a state's standard of need, the minimum amount the state believes is necessary to live on.

—The amount of earnings that can be disregarded in calculating benefits will be reduced. No more than $75 a month in work-related expenses and $160 a month in child care per child can be disregarded.

Soccer Program Starts Sept. 30

Pitt County Community Schools will begin their annual fall soccer program starting the week of Sept. 30. The six-week program will be highlighted by a Soccer Play Day to be held at Welcome Middle School, Nov. 7.

Schools or areas involved include Farmville (Sam D. Bundy), Grifton School, Winterville (A.G. Cox), Ayden (elementary), Bethel School and Welcome Middle.

Winterville, Ayden, Grifton, Farmville and Bethel recreation departments will be co-sponsoring the program.

For further information or to register, call the Pitt County Community School office at 752-6106, ext. 248 or 249.

PUBLIC NOTICE Greenville City Schools operates under federal guidelines of Title VI and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The Department of Health and Human Services estimates the new rules will make 408,000 families, or 11 percent, ineligible, and 279,000 families, or 7 percent, will get reduced benefits.

Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker said that under the old rules, it was possible for some families earning more than $20,000 to get AFDC.

"We want to help those who need our help," he said. "But we must set reasonable limits, and we must look to jobs for recipients as our real long-term goal."

Among the changes announced Monday:

—States can require welfare recipients to earn their benefits by working in community jobs.

—States will be allowed to count food stamps and housing subsidies as income in figuring a family's eligibility for AFDC.

—Welfare families will be limited to no more than $1,000 in assets, excluding a home and a car worth up to $1,500. States also may exclude items essential to day-to-day living such as clothing, furniture and other household necessities.

—For the first time, a ceiling will be imposed on AFDC families' gross income. It will be set at 150 percent of a state's standard of need, the minimum amount the state believes is necessary to live on.

—The amount of earnings that can be disregarded in calculating benefits will be reduced. No more than $75 a month in work-related expenses and $160 a month in child care per child can be disregarded.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip - CLEVER DEVIL CONCOCTED TRITE NOVEL.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: C equals U

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. FOCUS

It's Spring!

The grass is greener. Buds are popping out, and young fancies have turned to love. Doesn't sound much like September 22nd, does it? But for people in the Southern Hemisphere the first day of spring begins today. How come? As our planet orbits the sun, the Earth's axis is always tilted in one direction. From today through March 20th, the Southern Hemisphere is closer to the sun than the Northern Hemisphere. During this time, the Southern Hemisphere has longer days and more intense sunlight. But starting today, Earth's orbit moves the Northern Hemisphere away from the sun and autumn begins.

DO YOU KNOW - What line divides the Northern and Southern Hemispheres?

MONDAY'S ANSWER - Belize was formerly known as British Honduras.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 23, 1981

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day finds it possible for you to impress others with your charm. But later some of them may feel imposed upon. Maintain kindness throughout the day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The morning is likely to be a happy time for you, but later the tide turns, so remain steadfast and do nothing unwise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to come to a fine understanding with associates. Friends can give you important data you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Follow the good advice of a business expert. Look to new outlets that could give you added income in the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take the time to improve your appearance and get rid of that feeling of being inadequate. Strive for happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to the aid of a friend who is having a difficult time now. Attend to your duties with enthusiasm. Think along constructive lines.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Forget your hunger for pleasure now and stick to important business matters. Make your environment more comfortable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle career duties in a positive manner but don't step on the toes of co-workers. Postponing civic affairs is wise now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You could receive a message that is to your liking, but don't let it interfere with regular routines. Be logical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle routine chores early in the day for best results. A heart-to-heart talk with loved one clears up uncertainty.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) First converse with associates and then do the work expected of you. Sidestep one who opposes you. Express happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Come to the right accord with fellow workers and be sure to do your share of the work. Relax at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Attend your obligations even though some of them may be an unpleasant task. Budget your money expenses wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she should be given a good education along practical lines in order to have security and prosperity later in life. The field of investigations is fine here. Be sure to give good ethical training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
