MARIJUANA SEIZED — Members of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department look over a load of marijuana seized in a field north of Greenville off N.C. 11. According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, three men were taken into custody and charged with manufacturing marijuana. They were identified as Stanley Corbett, 24, of 2815 Jackson Dr.; Ronald Haddock, 19, of 2814 Jackson Dr.; and James Benjamin Langley, 22, of 2607

Crockett Dr. Tyson said the arrests were made about 7 p.m. after the trio was observed by narcotics agents harvesting leaves of the plants. The official said the plants ranged in size from seven to eight feet high. Street value of the 250 plants was placed at $20,000. Bond for the men was set at $2,500. Critical Year For Pitt's United Fund Drive Seen

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Setting its 1981 goal at $431,000, the Pitt County United Fund has begun its annual campaign for a year that organization officials term "critical."

"I think this year's one of the more critical ones we've had," said 1981 campaign chairman Reid Hooper. "Our allocation committee met with all of the agencies we serve and looked at their requests carefully in order to come up with a budget we feel is a realistic one and one that meets the community's needs."

The 1981 goal exceeds the 1980 goal by ten percent, but according to Hooper, "our needs are much greater this year." Hooper also noted that the United Fund was adding up some government-funded items that were dropped by Washington or Raleigh.

"We hope to stay roughly within the same time frame as last year," reported executive director Lou Folger. "We want to raise $431,000 by November 4, which is the same time we managed it in 1980."

"Generally, at this point, we are organized and people are making calls," she added.

The United Fund serves the Salvation Army, the Boys' Club, Operation Sunshine, the Pitt County Association for the Blind, REAL Crisis Center, and numerous other non-profit service organizations.

"What we have is 250 non-paid volunteers going out to raise money to help mankind," commented Hooper. "I feel we are getting back to the old American way of helping your fellow man."

"The generosity of the people of the area has always been superb and I'm sure it will continue to be," he added. "Greenville and Pitt County are caring communities."

Election Board Takes No Action On Cox Eligibility

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Elections made no ruling following a meeting this morning to consider Percy R. Cox's eligibility as a candidate for mayor of Greenville.

Instead, the board took the matter under advisement, saying they could make no ruling on Cox's eligibility unless a formal challenge is filed.

The Board of Elections scheduled the hearing at Cox's request.

"I would like to have an official ruling, if possible," Cox told the board "to prove my eligibility to run for the office of mayor. I felt like I ought to come before the Board of Elections to get this matter cleared up and get on with my campaigning."

However, acting county attorney Bill Watson told election board members that in order to make a ruling, the board would have to have an "advisory hearing."

"Unless there is an official challenge to his (Cox's) registration or filing for public office, I think it would be premature," to make any ruling on his eligibility, Watson emphasized. "The capacity of the elections board is not advisory," rather its function is that of a "judicial body."

Board Chairman Cliff Everett told Cox, "the challenger would have the burden of proving you were not what you say you are."

At the hearing, Cox outlined for the board a brief history of his residency, from the 1940s when he lived in Washington, D.C. until he purchased a house in Brookgreen, where he lived for 20 years until 1975, when he sold the house and moved into a condominium. He then outlined the houses, apartments and condominiums he lived in while serving as mayor until 1979, when he said he decided not to run for re-election because he was building a house outside the city limits.

Cox told the board that he moved back into the city — 1801A Cedar Lane — in January, after deciding to sell his Route 9, Greenville home. He also produced cancelled checks issued for payment of the rent on the Cedar Lane apartment, lease papers for the apartment, as well as a document listing his Route 9, Greenville house for sale. Cox also said he is in the process of purchasing a condominium within the city limits.

Evidence was also presented at the hearing that Cox moved his voter registration from Greenville Precinct 10, which is outside the city limits, to Greenville 7 on August 7.

Since leasing the apartment on Cedar Lane, Cox said, "my wife and I have spent more time in our motor home ..." than in the apartment or in the house in the county. "When we are gone, my daughter and her husband move into the house," while "my son lives in the apartment," as a deterrent to break-ins.

"I have a unique situation ... but it's not anything new to me," Cox emphasized, saying he has built and sold houses for years.

"I know it's a little bit irregular for you," he told the board, "but I would like for you to ask me if there is any question about me qualifying as a candidate," pointing out that he has received several phone calls since an article on his residence appeared in "The Daily Reflector," last week.

"This is our method of selling a home. I want everybody to be comfortable with my situation."

May 'Reconsider' Brewer Resignation

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. Thomas B. Brewer's resignation as chancellor of East Carolina University may be reconsidered when the school's trustees meet on the ECU campus Friday.

Trustee Roy D. Flood, a Murfreesboro physician, expressed confidence today that a call would be made to have Brewer's resignation brought up for discussion by the board.

Members of the board have been subjected to numerous telephone calls and continuing mail since Brewer submitted his resignation Sept. 7 during a highly publicized controversy over his agreement to be considered for the presidency of West Virginia University.

Members of the ECU Faculty Senate, on a fourth vote, approved 31-17 on Tuesday a resolution commending Brewer "for his many efforts and accomplishments in fostering qualitative growth at East Carolina University during the past three years."

A movement had been under way on the campus last week calling for the Senate to express its support for Brewer, but no formal effort was made to go beyond the commendation Tuesday.

The Senate did include in the Brewer resolution a request that the ECU trustees and William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina system, grant the Faculty Senate "the option of nominating faculty members to serve on the search committee" if a new chancellor is named.

Ashley Futrell of Washington, chairman of the ECU board, and Friday said today the tone of telephone calls and letters to them in recent days has shifted from initial agreement with Brewer's resignation to one of support for the embattled chancellor. Friday said he also had met with five ECU faculty members "who were advocating that position" — that Brewer be allowed to remain at the university.

Futrell said communications to him initially "were 10-to-1 against him (Brewer) ... but now it looks like there is an organized effort in support of Brewer."

Both Futrell and Friday said they had received letters in support of Brewer from businessmen and civic leaders in Greenville and elsewhere.

Futrell said he personally did not anticipate any action by the trustees on Brewer's resignation, but Flood predicted a call would be made to at least study Brewer's status at ECU.

"I do anticipate the question being raised, and I personally feel it should be," Flood said.

Troy Pate of Goldsboro, who preceded Futrell as trustee chairman, said he also had received the letters supporting Brewer but knew of no move to counteract his resignation.

Brewer has headed the school since 1978, when he succeeded retired Chancellor Leo Jenkins.

The Faculty Senate had rejected similar motions for the Brewer commendation three times before finally approving the fourth effort by written ballot Tuesday.

Dr. James LeRoy Smith, a philosophy professor, submitted the proposal, urging the Senate to at least acknowledge the situation involving Brewer's resignation.

The Senate, acting at the request of Faculty Chairman Thomas Johnson, had voted 17-15 to let the resolution be considered. The first three attempts to have the resolution placed before the Senate, by amending the meeting's agenda, had failed by a public vote.

Futrell said today he contacted Johnson last week with a request that the faculty submit nominations for the selection committee, but Johnson did not mention that during Tuesday's Senate meeting.

Johnson said today he did not do so because he did not have the authority to call for nominations until after Friday's meeting of the trustees.

Friday said he planned to implement the prescribed procedure for selecting a new chancellor during the trustees' meeting.

Stubborn On Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, preparing more tough talk to the nation, will stick "very stubbornly" to his budget and tax cuts despite mounting political and public pressure, his top economic adviser says.

"I want to reassure the Congress and the public that this administration intends to follow through on its program," Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan told the House Budget Committee on Tuesday.

That means, he said, as many more non-defense spending cuts as necessary to balance the federal budget and no retreat on the tax cut enacted just last month.

Regan testified after the president invited the nation to "tune in at 9 o'clock" EDT Thursday night to hear him outline his latest round of budget cuts, a $16.3 billion package for fiscal 1982 that many of his fellow Republicans fear would take too much from social programs and too little from the military.

Asked by reporters in the White House Rose Garden if the nationally broadcast speech would offer "tough facts" about the economy, Reagan replied, "Yes."

The treasury secretary offered his own tough talk on Capitol Hill, saying the administration has reached "the point when previous administrations have cracked under pressure and dramatically revised policy."

"To restore the confidence of the financial markets and the public ... we must continue to specify and adopt the spending reductions needed to bring the budget deficit down to its target level of $42.5 billion in fiscal year 1982, and into balance in fiscal year 1984," Regan said.

"We shall do this realistically, calmly, confidently and very stubbornly," he added. "We shall keep our balance and composure. So will the economy."

Regan dismissed suggestions by some of Reagan's congressional supporters that the cuts in personal income tax scheduled for 1982 and 1983 be deferred as a way of reducing the deficit without cutting Social Security.

"A tax increase before the ink is dry on the tax cut would cripple incentives to work, save and invest," Regan said.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the president decided to make a nationally broadcast address Thursday because he "believes it is particularly important at this time to speak to the American people on his plan to rebuild the economy."

A Washington Post-ABC News poll published today said public attitudes on Reagan's budget cuts have shifted dramatically.

The telephone survey of 1,501 adults conducted Sept. 14-20 found 47 percent said Reagan is going too far in plans to cut social programs, while 30 percent considered them about right and 19 percent said they don't go far enough.

To the same question in a similar poll last April, 33 percent said Reagan was going too far and 42 percent said the cuts were just right. Eighteen percent said the president wasn't going far enough.

ABC, CBS and NBC said they would carry Thursday's speech live, and congressional Democrats said they would respond with a broadcast address of their own.

Reagan had intended to make the speech earlier but, Speakes said, wanted "more time to consider" after being told by top House and Senate Republicans on Monday that he faced defeat in Congress if he sought to delay cost-of-living increases for Social Security recipients.

"The final shape of the program has not been determined," Speakes said Tuesday.

But he said he had heard nothing to indicate the president had changed his mind about trying to postpone the cost-of-living increases scheduled for Social Security and several other retirement and welfare programs next year.

In his testimony, Regan said the administration would propose curbs on so-called "off-budget" programs such as loans and loan guarantees, which many analysts say help keep interest rates high.

In addition to the proposal on Social Security, Reagan has called for a $2 billion reduction next year in the defense buildup he has ordered.

Sources said last week that Reagan's new round of cuts also would include across-the-board reductions of about 12 percent in virtually all other agencies and elimination of 75,000 federal jobs through 1984.

Also included were recommendations to phase out general revenue sharing and abolish the departments of Energy and Education and the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

William Hoagland, administrator of the government's food stamp program, said Tuesday that the president also will ask Congress to cut another $700 million from that program by eliminating an April 1982 cost-of-living adjustment. Congress agreed in July to cut more than $1.5 billion from food stamps.

The National League of Cities, meanwhile, sent Reagan a telegram Tuesday warning against cuts in revenue sharing.

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — The Tunisian government banned wearing of chadors this week in schools and government offices in an apparent move against Moslem fundamentalists blamed for campus disturbances last spring.

Clark Seeking Re-Election

Greenville City Councilman Louis E. Clark filed Tuesday as a candidate for re-election in the Nov. 3 municipal balloting.

Clark, a Greenville native, is seeking his second term on the city governing board. He was successful in his initial bid in 1979 to gain one of the six City Council seats.

In filing for re-election, Clark expressed his "appreciation for the confidence and trust" Greenville voters placed in him two years ago. He said the "knowledge and experience gained during my first term" further qualifies him "to better serve the citizens of Greenville."

A 1950 Greenville High School graduate, Clark earned his pre-law degree in 1955 from East Carolina University, majoring in social studies and economics and minoring in business.

Following graduation, he worked with his father in a local oil distributorship and for the past 15 years he has owned and managed a local real estate firm.

Clark was named to the Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission in 1969 and served until January of 1974 when he moved his residence outside the city. He has since moved back in to the city. He was chairman of the planning commission for the last year and a half of his tenure.

He is a member and past board member of St. James United Methodist Church. Clark is also a member and past president of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors and he holds memberships in the state and national Realtor associations.

A charter member of the University City Kiwanis Club, he is a member of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, ECU Alumni Association, and Pirates Club.

LOUIS CLARK

General Motors Selling Houses

TROY, Mich. (AP) — In a bid to liquidate $10 million in Detroit-area residential real estate holdings acquired from employees transferred to other areas, General Motors Corp. has launched a "Buy a House — Get a Car" promotion.

Claiming high interest rates have slowed the sale of the residences, GM announced the program Tuesday in a house selling for $122,000 which comes with a $9,538, 1982 Chevrolet Cavalier.

The average cost of the houses is about $92,000 but the prices go as high as $204,000. The model car available depends on the value of the house purchased. Buyers can keep the cars or deduct the value from the home price.

Four jailed leaders of a striking teachers' union in Illinois are free today after a tentative agreement was reached, while officials of Philadelphia's strikebound schools tried to get high-school seniors back into class before too many days are lost.

All of Michigan's schools were to open today, the first day this year without teacher strikes somewhere in the state.

And in Covington, La., teachers ended a one-day protest in which they stayed away from class and paraded their grievances.

About 80 teachers in the Mahanoy Area School District in Pennsylvania voted Tuesday to accept a new three-year contract and end their nine-day strike, officials said. Classes in the Schuylkill County school district had been in session about two weeks before the teachers went on strike. About 1,400 students were affected.

In Lancaster County, 225 teachers failed to report for work Tuesday in the Penn Manor School District after contract talks broke down.

About 14,680 teachers were on strike today in nine Pennsylvania school districts, affecting some 242,000 students.

Teachers in Elgin, Ill., voted unanimously early today to ratify a proposed pact, ending a strike that began Sept. 10, and the 900 teachers and 25,500 pupils in the district returned to classes.

The strike, mainly a wage dispute, passed its ninth day

Tuesday with 25,500 pupils out of classes.

Four union officials were sentenced Monday to six months in jail for contempt of court unless they agreed to order teachers back to work. They were released Tuesday night after a day in jail.

Kathy Thomas, one of those jailed, said the proposal included an agreement by the school board to drop the legal action that resulted in the contempt citations. She refused to discuss other details of the proposal except to say "we're very happy" with it.

In the Chicago area, meanwhile, 140 elementary school teachers remained on strike in Bellwood, affecting 2,700 students, while about 90 teachers continued their strike at Riverside-Brookfield Township High School. Both walkouts started Sept. 16.

Registration for high-school seniors and special-education students was planned today in Philadelphia, where administrators were ordered to cross teachers' picket lines and teach the students.

If the classes open as planned Thursday, they would be the first this year for 12,000 high school seniors and 340 retarded students, who are among 213,000 pupils affected by the 16-day-old strike.

A court hearing was scheduled today for the Philadelphia Association of School Administrators, which is trying to block a school board order that principals and other administrators must teach classes. Strikes by teachers are legal in Pennsylvania.

"There won't be any real education when classes open for the seniors," said a union vice president, Kathy Enright. "Many of those administrators haven't taught for 25 years."

The school board is trying to get seniors back to school so they will have enough class time to graduate.

Thirteen striking teachers were arrested Tuesday as scuffles broke out where administrators and non-striking teachers tried to enter schools. Officials said the pickets were charged with violating an injunction limiting pickets at the school entrances.

The 22,000-member union is on strike over a demand that the school board honor a contract signed a year ago after a 22-day walkout. The board, facing a $223 million budget deficit, laid off 3,511 union members and rescinded a 10 percent wage increase.

The last strikes in Michigan ended Tuesday when teachers in Oakland County's Royal Oak district returned to work after negotiators reached a tentative agreement, school officials said.

At the same time, teachers in Oakland County's Huron Valley school district agreed to return to work under a judge's order.

In Covington, La., at least 867 teachers — more than 83 percent of roughly 1,100 in St.

Tammany Parish schools — stayed away from class for one day Tuesday to protest the school board's refusal to provide a 13 percent pay raise, union officials said. School officials would neither confirm nor deny the figure. Teachers' salaries start at $13,554 a year.

Push Move Of Oysters

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — The state increased its efforts Tuesday to move oysters from polluted waters to cleaner waters.

The oysters can be harvested from the clean waters when the season opens in Carteret County on Oct. 15.

At high tide, the oyster relocater vessel Cape Fear began work on Calico Creek, scooping the first of 3,000 to 5,000 bushels of oysters. The process of moving them to cleaner waters is expected to take about two weeks.

Joseph Grimsley, secretary of natural resources and community development, hailed the Calico Creek project.

Nethercutt To Retire Sept. 30

Paul Nethercutt, assistant chief of the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department, has announced that he will retire from his position effective September 30.

A 35-year veteran of the Fire-Rescue service, Nethercutt joined the department as a volunteer in February, 1946. In January, 1953, Nethercutt was promoted to the rank of lieutenant and assumed command of Fire Station No. 2 on Chestnut Street.

He was promoted again in January 1960, to the rank of captain, and in May, 1970, Nethercutt was appointed to the position of assistant chief.

Nethercutt has attended various schools and seminars and has completed the Municipal Fire Administration School at the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill. He is a certified Emergency Medical Technician.

'Tunable' Laser Is Now Possible

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — A man-made mineral has made possible a tunable laser — one whose wavelength can be changed, according to research scientists here.

Two things have been done in this country with solid state lasers that no one else has done — synthesized the mineral alexandrite in production level quantities and discovered that the wavelength of light projected through the mineral could be changed, according to Allied Corp., which holds patents on the technology.

The tunable laser is difficult to detect because of its wavelength agility and can thwart most existing anti-laser techniques, company officials say. Until these advancements, all solid state lasers operated at a fixed frequency.

Thin People Hold Clue To Success

By CHRIS CHRYSTAL
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif.
(UPI) — Who needs diets? No one, says Dr. Edward Marshall. Not even fat people.

He believes losing weight is better his way, by non-dieting.

There are no pills, shots, exercises, treatments or devices, nothing to count or measure. Nothing to buy except your favorite food.

Sound great? Eating whatever you want — whenever you feel like it — not only is allowed on the non-diet, it's required. Absolutely nothing — even whipped cream, hot fudge and pizza — is forbidden.

You lose weight, says Marshall, a Beverly Hills internist, and you keep it off forever.

So, you ask, what's the catch?

The "catch" is that you must eat only when you are truly hungry — not just craving — and you must push away your plate the moment you have satisfied your hunger.

The "non-diet" appeals most to the eater who has tried every diet on earth and still has a weight problem, Marshall said in an interview about his book, "The Marshall Plan" (Houghton Mifflin, $7.95 hardcover), which describes how his non-diet works.

"There's no way to go off this diet. You must eat your first choice of food," said Marshall, who claims he dropped 25 pounds several years ago and kept it off as he devised the plan to which he gave his name.

"The Marshall Plan" is a change of one's relationship to food. People who are overweight have an uncomfortable relationship with food, Marshall has discovered.

Think thin, he believes. Eat like thin people do.

Do not deny yourself a multitude of appealing high calorie foods to lose 20 pounds that creep right back once you go off the diet, or starve off 10 pounds and reward yourself with a pie.

Marshall compares the lust for food with a sexual appetite to make a point.

"Take a normal male and lock him in a room with a lovely female and you can figure what's going to happen," he said. "But if he's with 15 lovely females, there's just going to be a lot of conversation."

"It's the same as the danger of being with one treat," he says. "Having a big variety makes it safe."

Knowing the cupboard is not bare, that it contains cookies, tortilla chips, peanuts, candy, that there's ice cream in the refrigerator and that you can have them anytime, if you are really hungry, will rid you of the craving that keeps most dieters fat. That is the The Marshall Plan's theory.

Childhood orders to "clean your plate" just spawned a lot of bad eating habits, said Marshall. He believes it's better to waste food than eat when you aren't truly hungry.

Marshall said he has successfully turned on between 500 and 1,000 people to his anti-diet since 1975 and it has worked for them. Several lost between 80 and 95 pounds.

"To get into this frame of mind requires some effort, but it's well worth making," Marshall believes. "A lifetime thin person hates the feeling that he swallowed a basketball."

Marshall got onto his plan by accident when he was 25 pounds overweight.

A thin houseguest began to raid his refrigerator for peanut butter one evening just before the man left for a dinner date.

"I asked him why he was eating," Marshall recalled. "He looked at me like I was crazy. 'What do you mean?' he said, 'I'm hungry.'" Marshall observed his thin friend's eating habits very thoroughly. He studied a lot of other thin people to learn their eating habits and found out why they remained slim.

Suspicious Of Ailing Husband

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My middle-aged husband has been in the hospital three times in the last year. Each time he spent between eight to 10 days there, and always in the same section, so he became quite friendly with the nurses.

I have always trusted my husband, but listen to this. One of his night nurses (an R.N.) jokingly told me that she came into my husband's room at 1 a.m. every morning with some 7-Up, which they would mix with vodka. (My husband's brother had brought him a bottle as a gift.) My husband didn't deny these little "nightcap" parties; in fact he bragged about them.

Now that my husband is home, this night nurse has been calling to ask him how he is getting along. It bothered me, so I listened in on the extension and I heard her ask him when he was going to meet her in the city. (We are farmers and own a lot of land.)

I asked my husband to talk to our priest or see a marriage counselor, and he flatly refused to do either. A divorce would crush our children, but it is not my intention to continue to live with a man I cannot trust.

What should I do?

ANONYMOUSLY YOURS

DEAR ANON: Talk to your priest and accept his counsel. Don't rush into anything. Divorce is a heavy penalty for what may be a minor offense. Never cut what you can unravel.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a suggestion for "Family Feud," who wrote in to complain that her daughter-in-law insisted on being in the family portrait: Put her on the end of the group, and when the photograph is printed, she can be easily lopped off.

Newspapers do this frequently when an unwanted subject insists on squeezing into the picture.

DEAR RALPH: Thanks. But what does one do when the pushy one "squeezes in" in the middle?

DEAR ABBY: How do I tell my very loved husband that the shirt size he has worn for years no longer fits him? I don't want to come right out and say, "You need a larger size."

A few times when I have bought him shirts (larger size) I've fibbed, saying, "These were on sale, and although they may be a little big, they were so good-looking I couldn't pass them up." Another time I told him that the salesman said that the new shirts ran a bit small and suggested I buy a larger size.

Abby, my husband knows he's overweight and has every intention of dieting, but he never seems to get around to it.

I don't want to hurt this dear man, so what do you say? Should I just keep my mouth shut?

LOVES MY MAN IN CALIF.

DEAR LOVES: You do your man no favors by pretending not to notice that he's overweight while you buy him bigger shirts and fib about the reason. Perhaps a rude awakening — such as being unable to button the top button on his shirt (or trousers) — is what he needs to motivate him to lose weight. If you love him, level with him.

To Discuss Antiques

CHAPEL HILL — Elizabeth R. Daniel will lecture on "Antiques — The New Currency" Saturday, Oct. 3, at the Carolina Inn here.

Her talk will emphasize antiques as an investment and will be presented as a special feature of the Antiques Show and Sale sponsored by the Chapel Hill Preservation Society at the Carolina Inn Oct. 1-3. The lecture, in the north parlor of the inn at 10 a.m., will be free to purchasers of antiques show tickets.

Mrs. Daniel is the owner of Gooseneck Antiques, Chapel Hill. She has lectured and conducted workshops at the Tryon Palace Symposium, New Bern, the Mint Museum, Charlotte and at the Department of Archives and History and the N. C. Art Museum, both in Raleigh. She is a member of the Historic Hillsborough Commission.

She is also a professor of Spanish at N. C. Central University, Durham.

Fall Luncheon Held By Garden Club

The Greenville Garden Club held its fall luncheon Friday at the Greenville Country Club.

President Mrs. R.A. Davis reported on the Board of Directors of The Garden Club of North Carolina, Inc. fall meeting held Sept. 16-17 in Wilson. Clubs in District 12 were hostesses. The meeting theme was "Look Around With Awareness As We Learn From History." A skit presented Wednesday night was on "Trials and Tribulations of Becoming Aware of the Mess We Are In."

The keynote speaker at the Thursday luncheon was John Baxton Flowers III. Mrs. James S. Moncrief Jr. of Monroe, president of the state club, was presented the key to the city by Ralph El Ramey, mayor. Reports were given on state projects and programs by officers and committee chairmen.

Mrs. R. H. Helms and Mrs. H. C. Klingenschmitt of Greenville also attended.

President Davis gave the welcome at the luncheon and the invocation was given by Mrs. J. B. Spilman.

President Davis reminded members of the District XII annual meeting to be held in Weldon in October. She also welcomed Mrs. Edith Worthington as an active member.

Potted plants were used as table decorations and an arrangement of mixed flowers centered the speaker's table. The horticulture exhibit of white asters and turks cap mallow was described by Mrs. Helms. Mrs. Klingenschmitt, parliamentarian, gave opinions on parliamentary procedure and interpreted the by-laws.

Fight Tobacco Foes

Sen. Jesse Helms and Gov. Jim Hunt, potential opponents in a future senatorial race, are busy trading barbs over the recent farm votes in the U. S. Senate.

Gov. Hunt blasted Helms for losing the peanut program vote and also for saying he (Hunt) consulted with Sen. Thomas Eagleton about the tobacco amendment.

Sen. Helms had previously made the allegation about the Eagleton conversations and suggested that Hunt was not helpful in the tobacco fight. So it is in politics. Both sides will say that the farm programs should be kept above partisan politics, and both will engage in political rhetoric when the chips are down.

We would suggest to both Republicans and Democrats that they save their fighting for the opposition in the months and years ahead. The farm programs didn't win any great victories in the Senate last week. Even though Sen. Helms is chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee, the peanut vote was lost — something that would have been unthinkable a few years back.

One important vote on the tobacco program reached a tie, and it took all the efforts Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker could muster, presumably with White House backing, to get the issue resolved favorably for the tobacco interests.

Next year when spending measures are considered again the tobacco opponents are going to be right back with further amendments designed to weaken the program. The way things are going the Reagan administration could be considerably weaker by that time, and it may not be a great deal of assistance in holding the line in the Senate.

One thing North Carolina Republicans and Democrats agree on is the necessity of the tobacco program for our state's economy. Tobacco just squeaked by in this year's vote and it is going to take everything every proponent can do to save it in the future.

Fan Support All-Important

There was an encouraging sidelight to the ECU-N.C. State football game of last Saturday.

It was generally considered a crisis time for the ECU football program, given the 56-0 humiliation at Chapel Hill the previous week. Some predicted it could be the end of big-time football at ECU. Coach Ed Emory said it was gut time for his team. He didn't say it, but it was also gut time for the ECU fans, most of them disgusted by the previous week's route.

Predictions were for less than a full house at Carter-Finley Stadium, presumably based on the idea that, while the State fans would turn out to see their winning team, the ECU followers would not.

It didn't work out that way. There was a crowd of 52,200, third largest in Carter-Finley history, and the visitor's seats — ECU's — were filled.

The collegiate football programs that survive are those which enjoy fan support in hard times. Last week ECU fans demonstrated they don't intend for their program to die.

The Only Good News

The only good news story I could find in the paper last week was that the Russians are suffering from two-digit inflation also.

The state informed the people that it was making dramatic price rises, doubling the price of gasoline, informally rationing food, increasing by 17 to 25 percent the price of tobacco and vodka and raising the cost on many consumer goods, so it would be impossible for the average Soviet citizen to buy them.

You can imagine what the Soviets are saying in the confines of their homes.

"Minka, did you hear what Comrade Glushkov, chairman of the State Pricing Commission, said in his speech on television tonight?"

"I fell asleep after the first three hours. What did he say?"

"They're raising prices on everything because of inflation. It's outrageous. I think I'll write a letter to Comrade Brezhnev and give him a piece of my mind."

"Are you crazy, Misha?"

"I didn't say I'd mail the letter. I said I'd just write it."

ART BUCHWALD

"But somebody could find it and then you would be in serious trouble."

"Maybe you're right. I think I'll bring it up at our next union meeting."

"We don't have unions, Misha."

"Well, we can't just sit here and let the state double the price of gasoline without saying anything."

"Why not, Misha?"

"Because this is a free country and Lenin said every worker must speak his mind."

"Misha, how many times have I told you Lenin is dead?"

"No matter, his teachings live on. How can the average person in the Soviet Union live if they keep raising the prices on everything?"

"By not saying anything, Misha, that's how."

"I'll tell you why we have inflation. It's because of all the money they're spending on weapons. The military gets anything it wants. No one questions any request the military makes. The Politburo thinks it can solve every defense problem by throwing money at it. I think we should organize a protest meeting in front of the Kremlin and demand a large cut in military spending."

"Why don't you do that, Misha? You've never seen Lubyanka prison."

"Make fun of me, woman, but I'll tell you something. The leaders of the Communist Party are a bunch of idiots. They haven't been able to deliver on one thing they've promised us. I say in the next election we throw the rascals out."

"Misha, that's your second bottle of vodka. At the new prices you've just drunk up two weeks' salary."

"That's it. We'll send a message to Moscow. If they can't manage the economy, we'll find somebody who can."

"Misha, have you been listening to the 'Voice of America' without telling me?"

"You know what's wrong with this country? You have a bunch of bureaucrats sitting on their tails, telling everybody what's good for them. Well, they don't know beans about what's good for us. Government spending is what's causing inflation and all these socialist experiments where people are rewarded for doing nothing."

"Misha, is there another woman in your life I should know about?"

"No, why do you ask?"

Soviet Hand In SWAPO

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The death of two Russian officers in South Africa's raid against SWAPO military installations in Southern Angola last month is evidence that Moscow seeks to transform black Africa guerrilla actions into a conventional war capability against South African-controlled Namibia and eventually South Africa itself.

Moscow has been an arms supplier for several years to guerrilla forces of the South West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO). SWAPO has used these arms from bases in Southern Angola to strike against South Africa in the waning days of its rule in Namibia before that former German colony gets its independence.

The forbidding, new element in Soviet plans: conventional warfare capability against South Africa by integrating SWAPO's guerrillas and forces of the Soviet-backed regime in Angola.

At the same time, the Russians seek to divert South Africa from its problems in pre-independence Namibia by opening up a second anti-South Africa front from Mozambique. Mozambique borders South Africa on the Indian Ocean far east of Namibia.

The fact that two Soviet lieutenant colonel — named Kireev and Lamonovich — were killed in last month's South African raid against SWAPO guerrilla installations points to Soviet integration of SWAPO and Angolan forces. Soviet, Cuban and East German "advisers" have long been front-stage actors in the Angolan regime's stalemated civil war for control of all Angola; but they have never before been physically discovered in command posts of Namibia's hit-and-run guerrilla war against South Africa.

Additional evidence made available to us is photographs showing Sam Nujoma, SWAPO's Soviet-trained "president," consorting with Angolan military leaders and Soviet or East European advisers near the Namibian border.

The Soviet strategy began to emerge two years ago. Confidential directives from Moscow stated that Angola must continue providing bases and aid to SWAPO despite the certainty of destructive South African reprisal raids.

To reach that objective, Moscow promised, and has now delivered, an extraordinary amount of conventional weapons. Three major radar and air-defense bases (destroyed in the raid) had been completed near the Namibian border and armed with SAM-3 and SAM-6 fixed anti-aircraft missiles. These were under the overall command of Soviet advisers who employed East German regulars to man the missiles.

At least two of these SAM bases were close enough to the border to control air traffic deep into Namibia and threaten operations of the South African air force. They were part of the down payment to Angola's pro-Marxist regime (not recognized by the U.S.), pledged by Moscow to protect it from South African raids against SWAPO bases.

The down payment is escalating. Ineffective Cuban advisers are being replaced by crack Soviet and East German specialists. They direct SWAPO strategy for Namibia and strengthen the Angolan regime in its long civil war against anti-Marxist forces, headed by Jonas Savimbi and backed by South Africa.

The objective is to integrate anti-Western Soviet policies in Angola and South Africa-Namibia, building a conventional war capability to advance both objectives.

The Russians are now known to have armed the Angolan regime with an estimated 267 tanks, 298 armored cars, 550 artillery pieces and other arms. Weapons now going to Mozambique for use on the second front against South Africa are approaching similar quantities.

The Soviet design is strikingly clear: provide a conventional, not just guerrilla, war capability for its black African allies against white-ruled South Africa in hopes of locking up the greatest mineral storage house in the world and controlling oil traffic around the Horn.

Yet, curiously, all this passes unnoticed at the United Nations, even though Soviet and East German manpower in Angola and Mozambique now totals close to 6,000 military and civilian specialists.

It would tax world diplomacy to find a sharper example of that durable phenomenon known as the double standard. The U.S. is excoriated, even in Western Europe, for trying to arrange free elections in El Salvador and dispatching two score military advisers to strengthen the government there. The true nature of the Soviet buildup in Southern Africa, perceived in the narrow focus of a righteous crusade against South African racism, is ignored. Yet its aim is to upset the world balance of power to the grave detriment of the West.

Taxi-Bus Safety

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — When Joe Porter, chief budget officer for the State Board of Education, complained some months ago about the excessive cost of running a door-to-door school bus system, he also put his finger directly on another problem; one having little to do with finances.

The same stop-and-go taxi service which prompted Porter's analysis concluding that more than $5 million is wasted on school bus operations each year is a chief factor in school bus wrecks.

It is only logical that where traffic congestion is worst and where school buses are making frequent stops in that bad traffic, the potential for accidents increases sharply. Statistics bear that logic out.

State officials are still wrestling with ways to make the bus stop patterns safer. Some would prefer longer distances between stops, eliminating some of the stop-and-go action.

Off-Street

A few school systems in North Carolina try to make all bus loading and unloading off the streets, in shopping center or office parking lots.

Such actions often produce political problems for state and local officials, however.

Parents continue to insist that their children get on a bus close to home as possible, seldom realizing that this escalates both the risk factor and the cost.

School buses are still

thought by many to be largely a rural activity. Actually, the consolidation of schools into larger campuses and the urban growth in North Carolina, coupled with the in-city transportation of pupils who do not live within walking distance of schools, has produced a predominately urban transit system.

Accident statistics from last school year reflect that change. Only a third of the wrecks happened on open, country roads. More than half were on city streets, in residential or commercial areas. Interstate and major state highways made up the rest.

These changed conditions prompted safety analysts in

Other Editors Say Predicting Risky

(The Hickory Record)

Efforts are being made down in Raleigh to predict what the Old North State will be like by the year 2000.

It isn't likely however, that any of the state capital conjurers, or seers, will turn out to be late 20th Century Nostradamuses; in fact, not even Jules Vernes.

What is being predicted has some of the elements of what used to be science-fiction, but now there's hardly any such thing as science-fiction.

What the 19th Century Jules Verne concocted as fantasy has become reality.

If Old Jules was writing now the ink would scarcely be dry on his manuscript before his fantasy became reality.

Even old Nostradamus, the astonishing astrologer and physician, might have a hard time of looking into our future, for we have come to move at a very fast clip as we leave behind the 300-year-old Industrial Age and enter into the Technological Revolution.

In fact, about the only way we can keep up with ourselves is to keep one computer in our pocket and another under our pillow.

We might try and gather the remnants of the "Man of the World" vehicle Jules Verne had landing on Table Rock in Burke County and send them down to Raleigh for reassembling, but we doubt if it would help much.

Probably by the time the remnants reached Raleigh, something new would have come up.

And so it is that trying to predict what things will be like by the year 2000 is even a greater task than that of Nostradamus back in the 1500s in predicting things in succeeding centuries.

Not even he might have been able to predict what even tomorrow will be like — let alone next year and finally the year 2000.

Strength For Today

TO SEE OURSELVES

The great Scottish poet Robert Burns once wrote:

O wad some power the giftie gie us

To see ourselves as ithers see us.

The ability to see ourselves objectively is indeed a great and rare gift. Perhaps we can never be truly objective about ourselves. It is hard not to judge our words and actions in the light of our good intentions and personal prejudices. It is easy to be aware of our own virtues and charitable toward our own weaknesses. But this is not seeing ourselves as others see us.

Lady Mary Montagu, famous in eighteenth century England, wrote to a friend that she had not looked in a mirror for eleven years because what she had seen the last time was so disagreeable. If she had looked more often, she might have made what she saw less disagreeable. Once we truly see ourselves then also we will see much that can be done in the area of improvement. — Elisha Douglass

Risk Small

TORONTO (AP) — Video-display terminals are no more dangerous than black and white television sets, according to a report in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

Dr. Ernest Letourneau, director of the federal health department's radiation protection bureau, wrote that the units, widely known as VDTs, emit no X-rays and present no radiation hazard.

Letourneau said his findings are based on 10 years of studying television sets and VDTs, including studies of radiation in more than 200 different kinds of video-display terminals.

VDT units consist of a television screen attached to a typewriter keyboard, both linked to a computer.

The proliferation of the units in recent years has led to "much unnecessary concern, particularly among women, that VDTs could be detrimental to the health of the operator and, in the case of a pregnant woman, her fetus," said Letourneau.

But he said the X-rays produced inside the display tube are absorbed by the glass and not emitted.

Nixon Library Said Dead Issue

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — There is no chance that a Richard Nixon presidential library will be built at Research Triangle Park, officials said Tuesday.

The proposal is dead because faculty at the University of North Carolina and North Carolina State University do not support it, park and university officials told The News and Observer of Raleigh.

UNC president William C. Friday said he told Archie K. Davis, president of the Research Triangle Park Foundation, that there was no consensus among the faculties at the two schools.

"That ended the matter," Friday said.

Duke University president Terry Sanford has been trying to get the library built near Duke, but many Duke faculty oppose it also.

The idea of locating the library in the Research Triangle Park first came up about three weeks ago, when the Duke faculty senate began to come out against the library, a source told the News and Observer.

Gov. Jim Hunt was consulted about the proposal and had approved a four-lane access road to the facility, the source said.

Hunt could not be reached for comment, but deputy press secretary Stephanie Bass said she didn't think he was asked to approve the library.

Although the Research Triangle Park is self-supporting, Davis said officials at Duke, UNC-Chapel Hill and NCSU would have to approve any decisions involving property.

recent years to conclude that the age and experience of the school bus drivers, and the supervision which they receive, were the prime factors in an alarming increase in many school bus wrecks.

Many school districts took prompt steps, at the urging of state officials, to correct supervision problems. The General Assembly boosted driver pay to help keep the older, more experienced student drivers and to draw adult drivers.

According to figures compiled on the 1980-81 school year, the results are promising.

Improved Compared to the previous year, last year's record showed overall accidents reduced 16.8 percent; down from 1,278 to 1,063.

Student injuries declined from 757 to 455 for a 38.9 percent reduction. Bus driver injuries fell from 52 to 43; a reduction of 17.3.

Most striking of all was the change in fatalities associated with school buses. During 1979-80, school buses were involved in 12 fatal accidents. Most of those were youngsters struck and killed by the vehicles while getting on or off. Last year, only two fatalities occurred.

This state has one of the largest school bus fleets in the nation. About 12,600 vehicles carry 750,000 pupils over half-a-million miles daily.

The accident rate per mile nationally is one per 50,000 miles. There is one accident per 96,000 miles in North Carolina.

BICYCLIST INJURED . . . Members of the Greenville Fire-Rescue department give first aid to Reginald Warren Vann, of 807A Bancroft Ave., after the bicycle he was riding collided with a car on Memorial Drive, Tuesday. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Bicycle Accidents Injured 2 Persons

Greenville Police reported two persons were injured in separate car-bicycle collisions investigated here yesterday.

Officers said Reginald Warren Vann of 807A Bancroft Ave. was injured when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a car driven by Rebecca Smith McLawhorn of Ayden about 12:35 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Trade Street.

No estimate of the damage to the vehicles was given by investigators.

Police said Laura Jean Anderson of 800 Heath St. was injured when her bicycle collided with a car driven by Estelle Sexton Morin of 3007 Phillips Rd. about 5:27 p.m. on Tenth Street, 50 feet west of the Wright Road intersection.

No damage resulted to the car while damage to the bicycle was set at $25.

Demolition Party Is A Popular Idea

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A Charlotte real estate agent came up with what he thought was a unique idea for a party: He would rent a room at a downtown motel and invite friends to watch the demolition of the old Independence Building on Sunday morning.

But other party-givers with the same idea beat him to the punch, the agent found out Monday when he tried to rent a room at the Radisson Plaza Hotel with a view of the blast site. In fact, the hotel has no vacancies for Saturday night.

Hotel employees say 18 names are already on a waiting list for hotel rooms with a view of the demolition, set for 8 a.m.

"There's been a lot of interest in them (corner rooms)," said Ana White, a Radisson reservations supervisor.

One of the guests likely to be on hand Sunday morning is Henry Faison, co-developer of the $120 million office building to be built at the site of the 73-year-old Independence Building. A source said Faison has reserved four rooms at the Radisson Saturday night.

The square where the building now stands will be closed for safety reasons.

Richard Sturtevant, an engineer with the Baltimore-based company that will level the building, predicted it will take nine seconds Sunday for the 14-story building to be turned into a "25-foot high pile of concrete and twisted steel."

That will be done, he said, by attaching an explosive compound to the steel supports at the building's base. The detonation, which will be done with wires stretched to a site 700 feet away, will create "two million pounds of pressure and extreme heat" that will sever the supports and cause the building to collapse, Sturtevant said.

NCSU Sets Open House

RALEIGH — A festival of student entertainment is one of several special features at the N.C. State University Open House on Saturday, September 26.

Activities will include a "Rollo," a log rolling demonstration; a performance by the NCSU Dancevisions; a display by Wolfpack's cheerleaders; a one-act play at Thompson Theater; drills and demonstrations by the Army and Air Force ROTC; and various musical events.

Another special feature will be two scheduled historical tours of campus landmarks. Tours begin at the Bell Tower at 10 a.m. and at 2 p.m. Visitors are asked to register at Reynolds Coliseum to pick up programs and maps of the campus.

Election To Settle Issue

SMITHFIELD, Va. (AP) — The four-month labor dispute at Smithfield Packing Co. will be settled by an election next week, the National Labor Relations Board has determined.

A spokesman for the NLRB in Baltimore said Oct. 2 and 3 have been set as election dates for workers at the company's Smithfield and Norfolk plants.

The company's estimated 1,200 laborers will be asked to choose between their present union, a newly formed union, or no union at all to represent them in work-bargaining sessions.

The election will be handled by NLRB agents. Workers will get paper ballots. Results will be announced after the polls close Oct. 3.

Vying for bargaining rights are Laborers' International Union Local 1046, which has represented the company's employees since 1964, and the new United Skilled American workers of Smithfield.

The NLRB spokesman said that two dates for the election are necessary because some of the company's trucks may be on the road and unable to vote in a one-day election.

The agency determined that the election should be held after it met with the labor unions and with the company Aug. 18. The company has since filed an appeal to the decision to hold an election.

Suspended For T-Shirt Symbol

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The superintendent of Greensboro's schools refused Tuesday to readmit 10 Grimsley High School students suspended for wearing Scorpion Youth Club T-shirts.

Dr. Kenneth Newbold issued the ruling after a one-hour meeting with officials of the North Carolina American Civil Liberties Union, which asked that the students be readmitted.

At the meeting was state ACLU Executive Director George Gardner, ACLU attorney Judith Behar and Grimsley principal Dr. Bonny Baur.

"I think Dr. Baur has acted properly and I support her," said Newbold.

When she suspended the students on Sept. 14, Ms. Baur said club members were disrupting school and intimidating students and that their T-shirts had become a threatening symbol.

Gardner said before the meeting that the ACLU would sue if Newbold did not readmit the students immediately and allow them to wear Scorpion T-shirts to class. Afterwards, however, Gardner did not say what the ACLU would do.

But Newbold said the suspended students are now classified as being on "administrative transfer" to the Greensboro Optional School. That means their records will not show a suspension.

The students must stay at the Optional School until Ms. Baur reviews their requests for readmission beginning Oct. 1. The action also enables parents of the students to file grievances if they think the students have been wronged.

The superintendent emphasized that Grimsley will continue to bar Scorpion T-shirts. He said a decision to change that ban would come only after Ms. Baur rules on the requests for readmission of the Scorpions.

Gardner and other ACLU officials contend Ms. Baur has a right to suspend students for specific wrongdoing, but not for wearing shirts she doesn't like.

Newbold, asked if Ms. Baur acted rashly in quickly suspending the 10 students, said, "Absolutely not. She knew what she was doing right from the beginning. The only confusion was in the information disseminated to the community."

About 30 Scorpion club members attend Grimsley. The club bills itself as a social club, and members deny any disruptive behavior.

Mencken Award To Mike Royko

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike Royko, syndicated columnist of The Chicago Sun-Times, has received the first H.L. Mencken Writing Award by The Baltimore Sunpapers.

Reg Murphy, publisher of the Sun, Evening Sun and Sunday Sun, made the announcement Tuesday in Washington at a National Press Club luncheon.

Royko was chosen unanimously from 123 entries by a panel of judges that included William Manchester, who wrote a biography of Mencken; Jonathan Yardley, book critic of The Washington Post, and Durwood McAlister, editor of the Atlanta Journal.

"Mike Royko probably describes Chicago to itself better than any other writer in America describes a city to itself," Murphy said.

The Mencken award was established in 1980 in honor of the author, editor and critic's 100th birthday. Mencken wrote for the Sun papers for nearly half a century.

Royko, 49, was a columnist for 18 years with the defunct Chicago Daily News and for the past three years with the Sun-Times.

The prize includes a plaque and $2,500.

How N.C. Voted In Congress

By ROLL CALL REPORT SERVICE
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 10-16.

House
MILITARY PAY — The House rejected, 170 for and 232 against, a plan to increase all military paychecks by seven to 22 percent, with higher ranks getting the biggest raises. Defeat of the amendment left intact a proposed 14.3 percent across-the-board raise. Both plans would take effect Oct. 1, 1981 and cost taxpayers an estimated retaining experienced personnel, while the 14.3 raise is designed to upgrade the quality of recruits. The bill (HR 3380) was sent to conference with the Senate.

Sponsor Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., said that "if we are to retain those men and women from those critical ranks where we are now losing experience in droves, we must provide extra incentive to these people to stay."

Opponent Bill Nichols, D-Ala., said "the 14.3 percent increase does better in attracting high-quality high school graduates into the military."

Members voting "yea" preferred 7-to-22 percent military pay hikes to a 14.3 percent across-the-board hike.

Reps. Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and William Hendon, R-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, voted "nay."

Rep. Eugene Johnston, R-6, did not vote.

COAST GUARD — The House rejected, 129 for and 260 against, an amendment to increase FY 1982 Coast Guard spending by $84 million, to a total of $2.27 billion. The added money was to go mainly for upgrading equipment and training personnel. The vote occurred during debate on an appropriations bill (HR 4209) later sent to the Senate.

Supporter Bill Young, R-Fla., said "the Coast Guard is a vital national resource that is being allowed to fall apart before our eyes."

Opponent Adam Benjamin, D-Ind., noted that many members advocating the extra money had voted previously for the Administration budget blueprint that limited spending for the Coast Guard and most other federal agencies.

Members voting "yea" wanted to hike Coast Guard spending by $84 million in FY 1982.

Whitley and Martin voted "yea."

Fountain, Neal, Johnston, Broyhill and Hendon voted "nay."

Jones, Andres, Rose and Hefner did not vote.

Senate
BUSING — By a vote of 60 for and 39 against, the Senate adopted language to virtually ban federal courts from ordering busing as a school segregation remedy and prevent the Justice Department from taking part in pro-busing litigation.

A retroactive provision would allow existing court busing orders to be voided. The language was attached to a Justice Department authorization bill (S 951) on which final action was delayed.

Supporter Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kans., said "busing has failed" and that it "now serves to frustrate rather than promote the goals it is intended to achieve."

Opponent John Heinz, R-Pa., said he opposes busing but objects to the retroactive provision and fears the legislation is unconstitutional.

Senators voting "yea" wanted to virtually end federal court and executive action in behalf of school busing.

Sens. John East, R, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

MILK — The Senate killed, 53 for and 41 against, an amendment to increase dairy price supports paid milk producers under the new farm bill. The amendment sought to peg price supports at 75 to 90 percent of parity, with reductions below 75 percent if farmers produced excessive surpluses. Left standing by this vote is a plan — costing $1 billion less — to set milk price supports at 70 percent of parity. The government defines parity as theoretically a fair price for farm commodities. At this time, parity for milk products is at 80 percent. The vote occurred during debate on the four-year farm bill (through FY 1985) that was headed for final passage by the Senate.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kans., a supporter of killing the amendment, said "it is not that we all do not like dairy producers and dairy products. We all like cheese, milk, and ice cream...The question is we do not have any money."

Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., called it "important that we keep a dairy program that will assure the American consumer an adequate supply of milk, and to do this, we must assure dairy farmers a fair price."

Senators voting "nay" favored higher federal price supports for dairy farmers.

East and Helms voted "yea."

PEANUTS — The Senate adopted, 51 for and 47 against, an amendment that ends the monopolistic system of acreage allotments for peanut farmers but retains the poundage controls that artificially prop up prices by limiting production. Most senators voting "yea" preferred keeping peanut program intact, but supported the amendment as a compromise that would head off more drastic reforms. Most senators voting "nay" thought the amendment failed to go far enough in moving the peanut industry into the free-market economy.

Doing away with acreage allotments means that any farmer can grow peanuts, not just the 59,000 present holders of government franchises. The amendment was attached to the new four-year farm bill (see preceding vote).

Supporter Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said "I am a little puzzled by the attacks on the peanut program, which has to be one of the most successful farm programs ever devised by this government."

Opponent Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., chided conservatives and others who argue for continued heavy federal regulation of peanut farming in apparent contradiction of their "long history of arguing for less government..."

Senators voting "nay" thought the compromise amendment too protective of peanut farmers.

No More War

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A woman communist rebel has surrendered to the government to protect the welfare of her three children sired by three different guerrilla husbands, the Times-Journal reported today.

The newspaper says Leonora Laborte, 26, of the communist New People's Army had surrendered to military authorities in the southern Philippines and asked for amnesty.

"I'll do anything for the sake of my children", she was quoted as saying.

The children, two boys aged 7 and 4, and a girl three months old, were fathered by three different husbands. Miss Laborte's first two husbands were killed in armed clashes with government troops in 1975 and 1979. Her current spouse, Ernie Maranan, is the brother of her first husband.

DEMONSTRATOR KILLED — A young couple console each other on a Berlin curb Tuesday behind the flower-covered spot where an 18-year-old was killed by a bus. The hooded young man died when he fell from the hood of a bus he had climbed on, police said. More than 1,800 police armed with tear gas and clubs were pitted against 1,000 squatters in an attempt to evict them from eight West Berlin buildings. (AP Laserphoto)

Accident Delays Space Shuttle Launch

BY IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.
The space shuttle Columbia, hampered by problems and delays prior to its first successful launch in April, has had its second journey postponed for as much as a month or more following a fuel spill on the launchpad.

The delay of the scheduled Oct. 9 launch could last from a week to more than a month depending on the extent of damage to tile bonding material and whether propellant leaked into the spacecraft's maneuvering system, launch operations director George Paves said.

In the predawn mishap Tuesday, several gallons of nitrogen tetroxide, an oxidizer, spilled on an area at least 18 to 20 feet long and two to six feet wide on the orbiter's nose near the cockpit. At least 67 heat-protective tiles fell off or were removed, and up to 250 may have been affected, Paves said.

The silica tiles themselves did not appear to be damaged, he said, but adhesive attaching them to the space plane's aluminum skin was destroyed or rendered ineffective. Paves said he hoped the tiles could be reset while the shuttle remained on Launchpad 39A.

If the spill damaged the inside of the orbiter, extensive repairs could be required. The shuttle would have to be rolled back to the Vehicle Assembly Building, taken apart and towed to its hangar, Paves said.

The oxidizer was still emitting toxic fumes Tuesday night while a half-dozen workers clad in protective suits tried to find how far the spill had reached. Scaffolds were to be erected to reach some areas of the spacecraft as soon as the launch site was free of danger.

The accident occurred after the shuttle completed its last major tests successfully and it looked as though everything was on schedule for liftoff.

The five-day mission will be the first time the Columbia has carried a payload, a package of scientific instruments. A 50-foot mechanical arm will also be stowed in its cargo bay and tested in space. The shuttle is designed to be used over and over.

Some 31,000 tiles insulate the shuttle against the heat of atmospheric re-entry. Made of a silica fiber compound, they were individually sized, fitted and bonded onto 75 percent of the orbiter's skin.

Development of the tiles was one of the most troublesome and tedious processes faced by NASA scientists in the shuttle program, delaying the maiden launch more than two years.

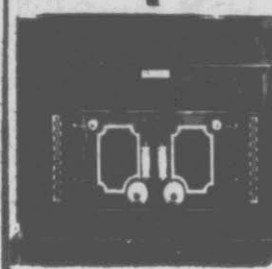

Several thousand tiles lost when the shuttle flew here piggyback aboard a Boeing 747 jet from California had to be replaced before the first mission could get off the ground in spring.

It was feared the loss of a few tiles during the April launch would jeopardize the shuttle's return to Earth, but the Columbia glided safely to a landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. on April 14 after 54 hours in space.

Report Losses By N.C. Ports

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — State Ports Authority officials say profits and revenues at the state ports in Wilmington and Morehead City in July and August were far below predictions.

Profits at the ports for the period were only about 10 percent of forecasts listed in the 1981-82 budget, said SPA comptroller Ruff A. DeVane. Morehead City suffered a $22,000 loss during July and August, compared with a predicted profit of $80,000, he said.

Revenues were down more than $500,000 from the expected income at the two ports of $2.6 million for the first two months of the fiscal year.

But both ports recorded a 5 percent increase in revenue dollars compared with the same period last year, when they brought in $1.88 million. DeVane said the discrepancy was due to fixed operating costs, which have increased over the year.

He blamed the profit shortfall on the tonnages of cargo moving through the facilities that fell below SPA projections.

In Wilmington, DeVane said, shipments of fertilizer and fiber expected to bring nearly $900,000 to the port never materialized. That facility is also lacking payment for military shipments during August and September, which will be billed in October, he said.

"The Wilmington profits will come in later," SPA Director William M.A. Greene assured the board. "We will know that for sure by November."

Port officials said they hope increased rental income from the Alla-Ohio coal export facility in Morehead City will help make up the budgeted differences in revenues.

Billy Graham's Deficit Easing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Billy Graham, whose evangelistic association has been running a deficit, says response to his special appeal for contributions has been so good the deficit may be eliminated by year's end.

He says the ministry's income last year amounted to nearly $50 million, up $10.5 million over 1979, but that soaring expenses, particularly for television time, had brought a $2.5 million deficit as of last May.

He made an appeal to supporters in July.

Drastic budget cuts and a larger-than-normal response from our supporters for July and early August indicate that our deficit has been drastically reduced," he says, adding that if the level of giving continues the deficit will be wiped out by end of 1981.

$1.5 Million Ring Missing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tap dancer Ann Miller is missing a $1.5 million diamond ring that she left in the bathroom of an airplane, her press agent says.

Miss Miller was on a United Airlines flight from New York to Los Angeles when she lost the 30-carat ring, Rachel McAlister said. The agent said the ring was insured, but not for its full price.

Airline officials searched the plane Sunday night and all day Monday but did not find the ring, she said.

Solar Energy Work In France Excites Instructor

Reflector Staff Writer

A Pitt Community College instructor who recently returned from a solar tour of France called his visit "enlightening" and says he brought back many new ideas for his energy technology and architectural drafting classes.

Sam Arnett read about the tour, which spanned a week and took him to diverse sections of France, in the "Mother Earth News," a magazine dedicated to energy independence. The tour was sponsored by the publication and Jordan College, a college in Michigan with deep interest in energy independence.

"France is doing more and more in the way of solar energy," he explained. "This tour was an effort to familiarize people from other parts of the world with what's going on there."

Arnett said his visit included the French Solar Ministry, a solar furnace, a photovoltaic pumping station, and a community built entirely of passive solar houses.

This passive solar community, near Nandy, France, excited Arnett. "These houses being built by the French people are winners in a government-sponsored passive solar contest."

An estimated 85,000 Soviet soldiers are in Afghanistan, helping that country's Marxist regime battle Moslem rebels.

The Soviet Union was Egypt's main arms supplier until Sadat expelled some 17,000 Soviet advisors in 1972, accusing Moscow of interfering in Egyptian affairs. Relations between the two countries worsened with the Soviet refusal to provide spare parts for Egypt's military equipment during the 1973 Mideast war.

The Egyptian armed forces then modified the Soviet weaponry and manufactured their own spare parts, but turned increasingly to the West for arms. Following the signing of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty in 1979, Egypt obtained $3.5 billion in arms from the United States.

Sadat said in the interview he did not know where the Americans delivered the weapons to the Afghan rebels. NBC quoted diplomatic sources as saying the arms were dropped off in neighboring Pakistan.

Sadat Says Rebels Sent Arms By U.S.

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat said Tuesday the United States has been buying Soviet-made weapons from Egypt and flying them in American planes to anti-communist rebels in Afghanistan.

In an interview with NBC News, Sadat said the United States contacted him immediately after the Soviet Union's military intervention in Afghanistan in December 1979 and asked for arms for the rebels from the Egyptian military's stocks of Soviet-made weapons.

Sadat told Paul Miller, NBC's Cairo correspondent, that the "United States sent me airplanes and told me, 'Please open your stores for us so that we can give the Afghans the armaments they need to fight,' and I gave the armaments."

NBC said the U.S. State Department declined comment on Sadat's statements.

The text of the interview, which was broadcast Tuesday on the NBC Nightly News, was obtained here from NBC's Cairo office.

The Egyptian leader said that in spite of Egypt's indebtedness to the United States, which provides Egypt with $1 billion in aid annually, the American government was "very generous" and paid for the arms destined for Afghanistan.

Sadat said he was still providing the Afghan rebels with arms and would continue to do so "until the Afghans get ... the Soviets out of their country."

"They feature all the ideals in passive solar — sun spaces, direct gain, a Trombe wall, etc.," noted the instructor. The tour also passed through Font-Romeu, France, where the first house with a Trombe wall, named for its inventor, premier passive solar designer Dr. Trombe. A Trombe wall is a thick mass, usually constructed of masonry and built behind glass, that traps heat and releases it later.

"We met and talked with Jaque Michele, Dr. Trombe's assistant, who is France's leading passive solar engineer," said Arnett, "and this was enlightening."

After a visit to Commissariat a l'Energie Solaire (the French Solar Ministry), the group traveled to Toulouse, France, to see a parabolic concentrated collector and a solar furnace. The furnace was built in the 1960's and produces temperatures of over 6,000 Fahrenheit.

"This is used primarily for research in metallurgy because the heat it produces is so pure — no residues or contaminants to the metal are created," explained Arnett. "The concept is simple. A large number of mirrors are placed on a hill and rotate to follow the sun. They reflect rays to a particular spot, the parabola, where a liquid, not water, rotates up and down and the tremendous temperatures turn it into steam," he added.

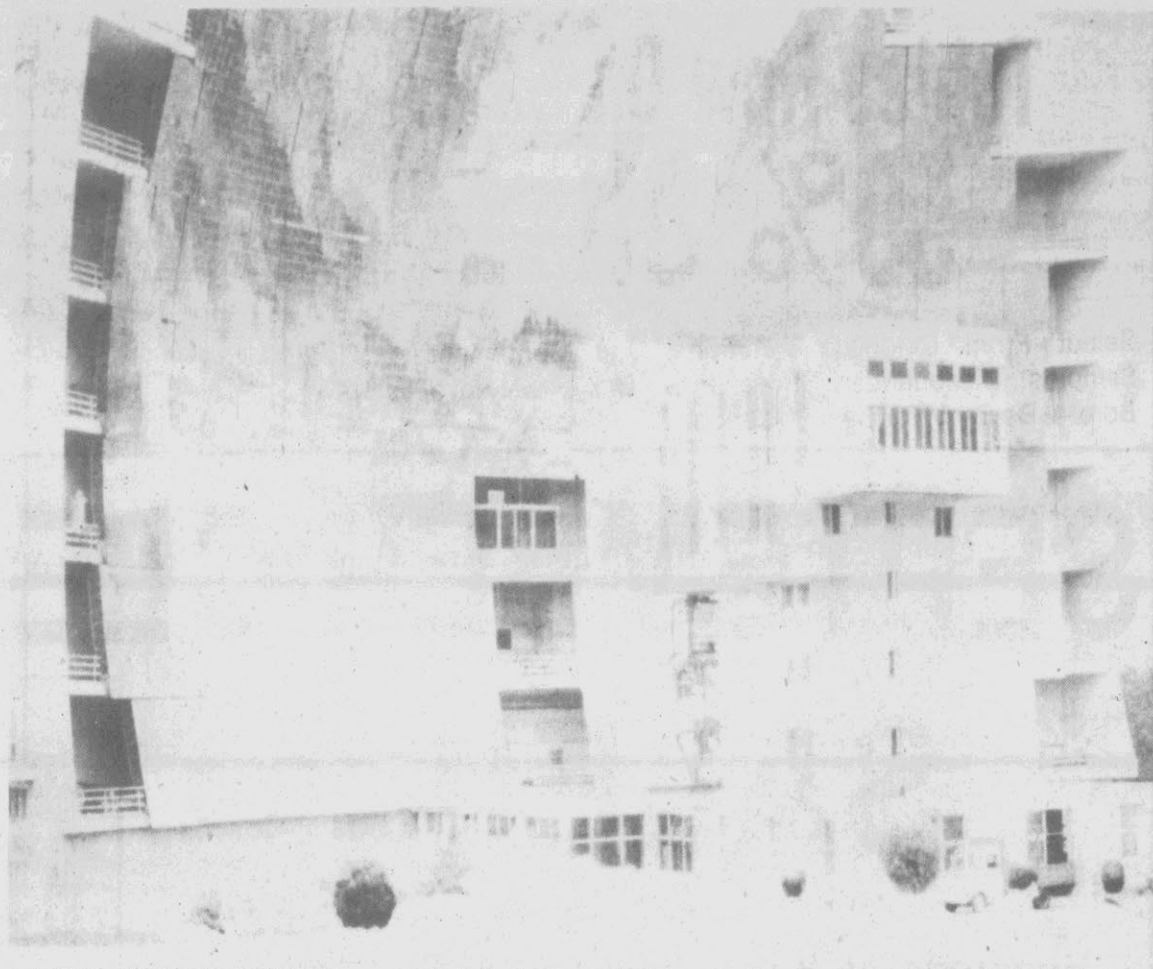

Toulouse was followed by a tour of a photovoltaic pumping station in Montpellier, France. "This pumping station utilized solar cells," noted the instructor, "and these cells take sunlight and change it directly into electricity."

In Saint Chamois the group observed a Thek concentrating system similar, according to Arnett, to an experimental station in the United States that produces electricity.

In addition to the solar exhibits, the tour included wind generator and aerosolec exhibits. "Wind generators are going to become much more prevalent in France," explained Arnett, "because the country lies flanked by two mountain ranges and this creates a funnel effect for the wind from the Mediterranean."

"All in all this tour broadened my knowledge of what other countries are doing in solar energy technology," commented the instructor. "It gave a perspective of what I'm doing in relation to what others are doing."

Arnett said the information he brought back from France will be incorporated in both the energy technology and architectural drafting classes at PCC.

A SOLAR TOUR OF FRANCE ... included a look at this huge solar furnace, built in the 1960's near Toulouse, France. PCC instructor Sam Arnett viewed the multi-story collector during a visit in August to France's premier solar accomplishments. The mirrors that line the outside of the building (background) reflect rays into the observation tower, (small building in the foreground) where a liquid (not water) rotates and is turned to steam by the heat. Arnett said temperatures of over 6,000 degrees Fahrenheit can be produced.

Cites Social Security Computer Weaknesses

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

While the Social Security system tries to find money to make its payments, the checks could be stopped by computer failure, the chairman of a House subcommittee says.

"There has been a steady deterioration in the operation and management of its computer resources," Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, said on the eve of a hearing today by his Government Operations subcommittee on legislation and national security.

"Unless corrective action is taken promptly, we are heading for a day when the Social Security Administration simply won't be able to get out the checks," he said.

Brooks cited the difficulties Social Security faces in eliminating the $122-a-month minimum benefit, which Congress has approved at President Reagan's behest. "They can't use their computers to determine the proper amount to pay those people," Brooks said. "They're going to have to do it manually at a cost of about $150 million."

Top Social Security officials have said in the past that it will take take 9,000 worker-years and cost $170 million to find retirees receiving the minimum and to recompute their benefits.

Deputy Social Security Commissioner Robert Myers said Monday that "we expect to implement the provision eliminating the minimum benefit on time by using automated techniques."

He said the names and addresses of current recipients have been identified and are ready for an automated mailing of the required notice by Dec. 3. And he said the Social Security systems are being reprogrammed to perform the new benefit calculations.

John Harris, president of the National Council of Social Security field office locals, said "the sheer volume of work involved in the elimination of minimum benefits shall literally consume the work force for periods of two to four months, leaving us with perhaps half of our available workers to do our day-to-day business."

Bipartisan Solution To Social Security Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backing away from an effort to solve the long-term problems of the Social Security system would be more damaging politically than addressing the issue now, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee says.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said he still has "some hope" that Congress can find a bipartisan solution.

"There's still the basis for doing something," Dole said Tuesday after meeting through the day with members of his panel, House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, chairman of the House Social Security subcommittee.

Pickle "still very much wants to try and put something together and so do I," Dole said.

"I'm not going to back off because of one uncertain trumpet," said Dole, referring to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass. O'Neill persuaded Pickle last week to defer further work on a comprehensive Social Security bill until the Republican-controlled Senate drafts the legislation.

"All the pessimism around is not on good, sound footing," Dole said. "We're not going to get a lot of Democratic votes — they see it as a political issue now. We don't need a lot of Democratic votes. We need some."

Democratic congressional leaders argue that interfund borrowing within the Social Security system itself would keep it solvent and that President Reagan has exaggerated the program's financial troubles so that he could reduce benefits and balance the federal budget.

The three trust funds are the retirement fund, which is expected to be unable to pay benefits sometime late in 1982 unless Congress takes steps to shore it up, and the disability and hospital insurance funds, which have considerably greater balances at present.

Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., chairman of the Senate Social Security subcommittee, has said that unless Democrats agree to cooperate on a major overhaul, he will seek only a "very modest" bill to allow interfund borrowing and some restoration of the minimum benefit.

But Tuesday, the Senate Democratic Conference — which consists of all the Senate Democrats — unanimously adopted a resolution expressing opposition to Reagan's proposed cuts and pledging to push for interfund transfers as the means of saving the system.

Dole said some members of his panel don't want to discuss the system's problems, adding: "They think we're trafficking in drugs or something."

But, he added: "Somebody has to have enough courage to put something on the table. It's a very sensitive political issue, but it's more damaging politically if we just back away from it."

Republican leaders told Reagan on Monday that "tinkering with Social Security" is "just not realistically possible," according to one participant at the meeting to discuss a new package of budget cuts the president is considering.

Home Week Is Proclaimed

Gov. Jim Hunt declared Sept. 19-27 as "North Carolina Home Week."

The event, sponsored by the North Carolina Home Builders Association, is designed to draw attention to new construction techniques and to stimulate new home sales, according to the NCHBA.

Home Builders Associations across the state have planned "Parade of Homes," home shows, and other events during the designated period.

In addition, 53 homes have been signed up for a statewide design contest for passive solar homes.

Hunt officially opened a passive solar demonstration house last week in Raleigh on the campus of N.C. State University. The house will be used to teach passive solar techniques to builders and to stimulate interest in passive solar homes by the general public.

Services Planned

Services will be held at Cherry Lane FWB Church tonight and Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Eldress Shirley Daniels and the St. Matthew no. two choir will deliver the service tonight and the Rev. Jasper Stiggs and Cedar Grove Church will be in charge Thursday night.

The public is invited.

ATTENDS MEET

Greenville pharmacist William Foust of Greenville attended the second annual meeting of the School of Pharmacy Alumni Association held Saturday at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

Foust was a member of the UNC School of Pharmacy Class of 1980. He is associated with Eckerd Drugs in Elizabeth City.

WASHINGTON, D.C. —

The North Carolina Democratic Club of Washington has elected Allen D. Feezor of Hillsborough, N.C. as club president for the 1981-82 year.

A native of Asheville, Feezor is currently senior Washington representative for Blue Cross and Blue Shield Associations.

Founded in 1936, the North Carolina Democratic Club is the only organization of its type in Washington. It meets monthly, usually on Capitol Hill.

Other newly-elected officers of the club are Miss Hermene Rocamora of Asheville, first vice president; Coit Liles of Wadesboro, second vice president; Miss Cindy Hooker of Hendersonville, recording secretary; Walter Woodson of Salisbury, assistant recording secretary; Jim Lewis of Marshville, corresponding secretary; Neil Krugman of Durham, treasurer; V.L. (Butch) Gudger, III, of Asheville, assistant treasurer; Ed Welch of Greenville, sergeant-at-arms; Bob Canavan of Raleigh, parliamentarian; and Pat Oglesby of Grifton, chaplain.

Volunteer Serves Clinic

Ms. Cathy Jessen, vice-president of the Pitt County Epilepsy Association, served as a volunteer resources person to people attending the recent Neurological Clinic held at the Pitt County Health Department. She informed patients at the clinic of the local and regional resources available to people with epilepsy. Information on topics of interest to people with epilepsy was made available to those attending without charge.

The local Epilepsy Association of North Carolina chapter supplies at least one volunteer person each month to the Health Departments Neurology Clinic to serve as a resource coordinator for information on seizure disorders.

Medieval Fair

ASHEVILLE — The Society for Creative Anachronisms (SCA), an organization dedicated to researching and recreating the customs, combat and courtesy of the Middle Ages, is sponsoring a medieval fair to be held on Saturday and Sunday, September 26 and 27.

The event will take place during the Faire and Tourney of the Golden Moon at Forge Valley Fun Park, located on Brevard Road (Highway 280) south of Mills River.

The Faire will open at 10 a.m. through 5 p.m. on both days.

New Alamance Telescope Will Be Among Largest In The Southeast

SNOW CAMP, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina will gain a new eye on the sky next week when one of the largest telescopes in the Southeast opens.

The Three College Observatory, which officially opens Oct. 1 at its Alamance County site, features a 32-inch reflecting telescope — the largest between the University of Virginia at Charlottesville and the Fernbank Science Center near Atlanta.

The telescope is designed to allow the human eye to see stars at least 40,000 times fainter than it normally could.

The $336,000 observatory is supposed to increase interest in star-gazing among Piedmont residents and students at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, North Carolina A&T State University and Guilford College. The three colleges cooperated to put the project together.

Despite cutbacks in expenditures, the National Science Foundation agreed to pay $236,000 for the telescope and related equipment to aid undergraduate education.

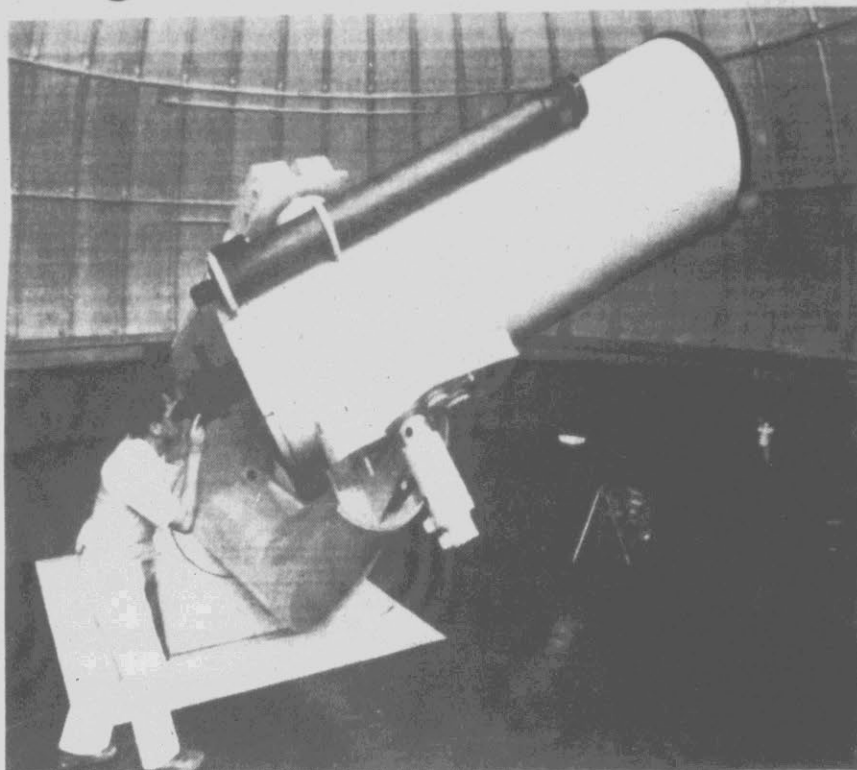

The UNC system will pay the balance of the cost — about $100,000 for the observatory building.

The telescope is not intended to support a graduate astronomy program such as that owned by UNC-Chapel Hill, which operates a 24-inch telescope.

"We, in fact, will probably not be training astronomers," said Dr. Stephen C. Danford, an assistant professor of physics at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and co-director of the project.

None of the Greensboro schools has a postgraduate astronomy program, said Dr. Jason Gilchrist, chairman of A&T's physics department and the other co-director.

"In terms of what our students will be doing, they will probably be involved with digital electronics more than anything else," Danford said.

TAKING A PEEK — Dr. Stephen C. Danford at the University of N.C. at Greensboro, looks through the 32-inch reflecting telescope at the new Three College Observatory. (AP Laserphoto)

The 2½-ton telescope, standing almost eight feet tall from eyepiece to lens, will be connected with a low-light television system, which will be tied into a computerized image-enhancement system.

Astronomers traditionally have recorded distant stars and galaxies on photographic film, which may have to be exposed for hours or even days to capture enough light for a sharp image.

But the television equipment can assemble a picture in less than a second. Computers can then sharpen the results electronically as they did with the Voyager telecasts from Saturn and Jupiter, Danford said.

Three College Observatory sits on a 900-foot state-owned ridge located between Snow Camp and Saxapahaw. Already occupied by a public radio microwave relay tower, the site was selected for its relative proximity to Greensboro and lack of light intrusion.

New Pressure On Food Stamps

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Renewed pressure to cut federal spending will leave millions of food stamp recipients with lower benefits than originally anticipated, the administrator of the program acknowledges.

President Reagan will propose another $700 million in cuts by eliminating an April 1982 cost-of-living update of the basic food stamp plan, said the administrator, William Hoagland.

These cuts would come on top of the more than $1.5 billion that Congress slashed from the food stamp program last summer. As part of those savings, Congress authorized a three-month postponement of the cost-of-living adjustment.

"At this time there is a good possibility that there will be a shortfall in the food stamp program in fiscal 1982 because of the budget pressures," Hoagland said Tuesday. "Basically, we're spending about a billion dollars a month in this program."

But even with the additional cutback, Hoagland told reporters that the entire food stamp program probably will cost up to $500 million more than the $10.6 billion the administration wants to spend next year.

If that $10.6 billion lid prevails, Hoagland said, there will have to be an additional across-the-board cut of individual benefits. That administrative cut, which could run between 4 percent and 5 percent, would be in addition to the legislative cutbacks voted by Congress.

Deputy Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng formally asked for congressional approval of that spending lid late Tuesday, according to Rep. Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Agriculture subcommittee on nutrition.

"There's no way I'm going to go to the floor of the House with a bill that won't give me the money I need for this year (1982)," Richmond responded.

Richmond said he could support the proposed $700 million cut, but only if the administration agrees to accept a higher spending lid.

The spending ceiling is included in the four-year farm bill that is scheduled to go before the full House next week.

"Negotiations are going on right now," Hoagland said. Should an across-the-board administrative cutback be needed, the nation's 22 million food stamp recipients could begin feeling it by December, he added.

Under the food stamp law, the cost of the program cannot exceed budget targets. If it appears it will, the Agriculture Department can unilaterally reduce benefits so spending stays within the target.

During a hearing Tuesday before Richmond's subcommittee, Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., called for the resignations of both Hoagland and Agriculture Secretary John Block. Rose said their mismanagement of the food stamp program resulted in as much as $1 billion in losses due to fraud and abuse.

"I don't blame it on the program," Rose said. "I blame it on the people administering it."

But Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., a senior member of the Agriculture Committee, contended that abuse and fraud have been substantially reduced since Reagan took office.

And Hoagland told the subcommittee that other steps to eliminate abuse and fraud are being readied. Regulations on photo identification cards for food stamp recipients will be issued this week and wholesalers will be eliminated from the program in a month, he said.

The 50 percent federal share for state administrative expenses in the program will be suspended this fall for some 20 states that have failed to bring their food stamp error rates down to acceptable level.

Hoagland declined to identify the states or the amount of money to be withheld.

Lutherans Favor Single Church

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Most U.S. Lutherans favor uniting into a single denomination, according to a broad-scale poll.

Of 18,405 Lutherans responding at conventions last spring, 14,308 of them, a 6-to-1 majority, favor merger of three Lutheran church bodies. Only 2,303 opposed it, the rest being undecided.

The results were announced this week at a meeting of a joint unity committee of the Lutheran Church in America, the American Lutheran Church and the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches.

Based on the results, the committee was to prepare recommendations for action by conventions of the three denominations in September 1982.

Third Street PTA To Meet Thursday

Chargers Face D.H. Conley In Home Opener

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Its confidence beginning to build following an impressive 35-0 victory at North Lenoir, Ayden-Grifton comes off the road for its first home game of the 1981 season Friday evening when the Chargers entertain county-rival D.H. Conley.

The Chargers, who opened the season with three straight road games, are 2-1 overall but could easily be unbeaten save for six turnovers in a 20-14 loss to Roanoke in their season-opener.

D.H. Conley, coming off a disheartening 6-0 loss to Farmville Central, is 1-2-0 and faces a Charger defense that has not given up a score in 10 straight quarters.

"We feel like we're gaining some momentum," Ayden-Grifton coach Dixon Sauls said. "Our running backs are hitting the holes better and I think we're gaining a little confidence."

"We hoped to have been at this point a little earlier in the season, but we seem to be arriving now."

Ayden-Grifton's battle with D.H. Conley highlights a most-impressive list of games scheduled in the area Friday night. In Farmville, the Jaguars (2-1-0, 1-0-0) play host to always tough Havelock (3-1-0) while in Bethel, North Pitt (2-2-0, 0-0-0) entertains Eastern Carolina Conference foe Southern Nash (0-4-0, 0-0-0).

In other area games, Greene Central (3-1-0) opens its 1981 ECC schedule in Snow Hill against Southwest Edgecombe (2-2-0, 0-0-0), Roanoke (3-1-0, 1-1-0) pikays host to Plymouth (1-3-0, 0-2-0), Williamston (3-1-0, 2-0-0) entertains Northeastern Conference favorite Bertie (2-1-0, 0-1-0) and Jamesville (2-2-0, 1-1-0) is at home against Bath (4-0-0, 2-0-0).

Ayden-Grifton coach Dixon Sauls is preparing his Chargers for D.H. Conley with an eye not on the Vikings' record but on their varied offensive and defensive formations.

"The thing that concerns us most is they are so multi-faceted on both offense and defense," Sauls said. "When you try to prepare for a team like this it gives you problems."

"They run multiple defense fronts, the six, the five and the four and they run the shotgun and use different offensive sets," Sauls said. "But we can't be too concerned with that. We've just hope to stick with what we're trying to do."

What the Chargers have done

of late is play exceptional defense. Since the third quarter of their opener against Roanoke, Ayden-Grifton has not allowed its opponents to score. Ten straight quarters without giving up a touchdown, a field goal or a safety.

Up until last week, it was the defense that was keeping the Chargers from faltering. But a five-touchdown explosion against North Lenoir could change that.

"The offensive line played better than it has all season," Sauls said. "It's the third game of the season and they've got a little more experience and a little more confidence."

"I think it was a very positive game for us. We feel like we can build on that. A win always boosts your spirits and enthusiasm."

Asked if after last week's victory the Chargers might take Conley lightly, Sauls said: "I think our fellows realize that they're improved a lot over last year."

"Conley is going to be a very physical team for us to play. We know they're searching for the right ingredients, but we have too much respect for them (to take them lightly)."

D.H. Conley
D.H. Conley first-year coach Gerald Garner admits his offense has been something less than imaginative. No more.

"Our offense has been stale," Garner said. "We've been afraid of fumbling, we've been afraid of making mistakes."

No more. After managing 47 yards total offense in a 6-0 loss to Farmville Central last week, Garner promised changes would be made. Those changes will be put on display Friday night when the Vikings travel to Ayden-Grifton.

"We're going to have a different look formation-wise and also do some things against the percentages in certain situations," Garner said. "We're going to put the ball in the air and we're going to take chances. We're going to have a more wide-open attack."

"I'm going to make the same statement Lou Holtz made to the Wolfpack Club after taking over at N.C. State. He said, 'We're going to move the football, in which direction I don't know.'"

Last week's feeble offensive showing was the impetus for the new directions, but it was not the only thing pushing Garner to change.

"I went back and looked at the films of our four games and picked out tendencies (we have)," Garner said. "We had become a little too programmed."

The changes, if nothing else, will make it more difficult for Ayden-Grifton to prepare for the Vikings. However, whether the changes will give the Vikings an edge they can use to upset the Chargers is another matter.

"Numbers-wise, they're the smallest team we play," Garner said. "But their first 11 can play with anybody we play. They're awfully quick and awfully aggressive and I'd say defense is their strong suit. They disguise it well and they almost over pursue."

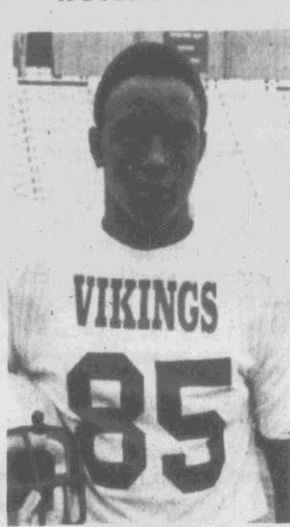

It is that defense, a defense that has not yielded a score in 10 straight quarters, against Sparky Anderson will be rooting for the Milwaukee Brewers today, but his partisanship will end soon enough.

The Detroit Tigers manager saw his team pound out a 6-3 decision over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night with the help of two John Wockenfuss homers.

That, combined with Milwaukee's 10-8 victory over Boston, gave the Tigers a 1 1/2-game lead over both the Brewers and Red Sox in the American League East Division.

"I'm rooting for Milwaukee, period," Anderson said, "because we play them six games, and if we don't beat them, we've got ourselves to blame."

After splitting the first two games, the Brewers and Red Sox complete their three-game set today. The Brewers move into Tiger Stadium for three games over the weekend, and the Tigers finish up the season in Milwaukee.

"But," Anderson added, "I've found out that no matter how I root, it really doesn't matter."

Wockenfuss, trying to shake a slump that had dropped his batting average to .209, tied the game 3-3 with a two-run homer off Mike Flanagan in the fourth inning, and his solo shot in the sixth, his seventh of the year, was the winning run.

"All the time I was struggling, I kept saying to myself, 'One of these days, I'll snap out of it,'" Wockenfuss said. "It helped when Sparky set me down for a while. During that time, I did a lot of weightlifting, and it's helped me."

Tigers starter Jerry Ujdr gave up all three Orioles runs — two unearned — in the first two innings, and he was relieved by George Cappuzzello, who stopped Baltimore on three hits the rest of the way.

Cappuzzello, who was released from a Class AA contract by Cincinnati last season and joined Detroit in May, said just being in the majors was not enough.

"I wanted to contribute," said the 27-year-old left-hander. "The save I got the other day in Cleveland was the first time I felt I had contributed. Before that, I had nothing on my record, nothing in black and white to show I had done anything."

Brewers 10, Red Sox 8

Ted Simmons drove in four runs, and Milwaukee snapped an 8-8 tie in the ninth inning to outlast Boston in a see-saw contest.

Simmons' two-out homer in the seventh gave Milwaukee an 8-7 lead, and after the Red Sox had tied the game in the bottom half of the inning, Robin Young and Simmons drove in runs in the Brewers ninth. Simmons doubled home the Brewers' final run.

Tony Perez drove in five runs for the Red Sox, three with a home run, and Dwight Evans also homered for the Red Sox.

Rollie Fingers, who already has 26 saves, earned his fifth victory in eight decisions with 22-3 innings of relief.

Indians 6, Yankees 4

Cleveland right-hander Len Barker struck out 10 and scattered 10 hits over eight innings to beat the Yankees. Barker, 8-7, ran his league-leading strikeout total to 122, striking out more Yankees than any other pitcher this year. Sid Monge pitched the ninth for Cleveland.

Bo Diaz had three hits, including a two-run double, as the Indians erased a 3-0 deficit with five runs in the third inning. Alan Bannister also drove in two runs in the rally with a single, and Toby Harrah hit a sacrifice fly. Dave Righetti, 6-4, was the victim of the rally.

Rose Remains Third In State Prep Poll

By The Associated Press
Fayetteville Terry Sanford is king of the mountain this week in North Carolina high school football, according to the votes of a statewide panel in The Associated Press poll.

The panel gave Terry Sanford the top rating in Class 4A — and the highest overall point total of any team in any class this week. Sanford earned 17 of 22 first-place votes and a total 202 points.

That compares to the 14 first-place votes and 198 points for 3A leader Burlington Williams and the 14 first-place votes and 174 points for 2A-1A pacesetter Southwest Guilford.

All three class leaders are the same as last week.

Terry Sanford has a 34-point lead over 4A runnerup South Mecklenburg, which got the other five first-place votes.

The Fayetteville school has moved into poll domination under the reins of coach Len Maness, who in the mid-1960s coached the school (then known simply as Fayetteville High) to back-to-back state basketball championships.

An unlikely standout of this season's Terry Sanford squad has been a 5-foot-8, 137-pound junior named Frankie Campbell.

Campbell took the quarterback reins in Sanford's opening game when the first-string quarterback was injured. Campbell completed seven of eight passes in that game and led Sanford to a 7-6 victory over Fayetteville Westover.

Since, he has completed 23 of 30 passes for six touchdowns and no interceptions. The balanced Terry Sanford attack is averaging 181 yards rushing and 160 passing each game.

Williams Sets Mark As Rose Rolls

ROCKY MOUNT — Harry Williams set a course record and Greenville Rose took the first five places to crush Rocky Mount, 15-43, Tuesday afternoon in a Big East cross-country meet.

Greenville Rose's girls' cross-country team, led by the first place finish of Angie Michel, defeated Rocky Mount, 21-34.

Williams ran the 2.9-mile course in a record time of 14:28 to pace Rose to the lowest score possible in cross-country.

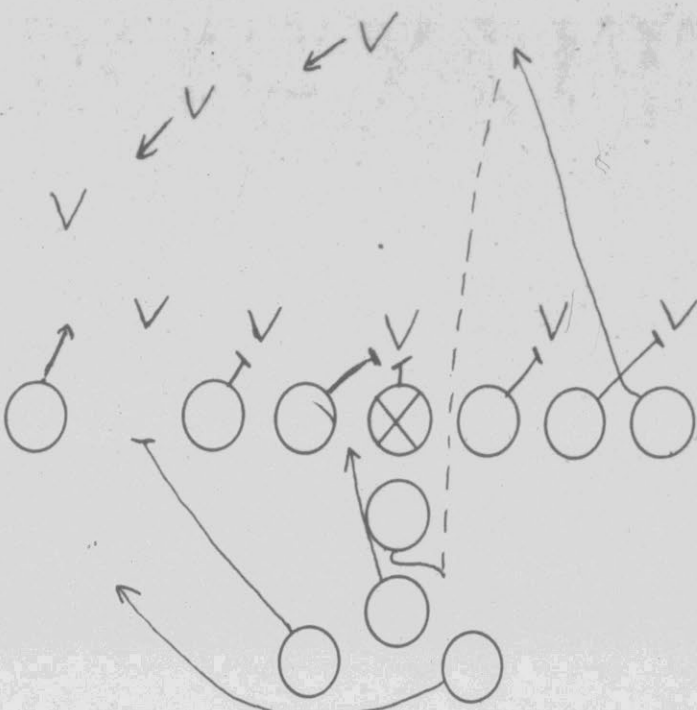

Rose's John Ormond was second at 15:58 followed by David Steffensen in third at 16:33, Chip Little in fourth at 16:36 and Joe Norcott in fifth at 16:37.

Other Rose finishers were (8) Paul Bolen at 16:45, (12) Jeremiah Brown at 16:57, (16) Matthew Clark 17:29, (19) Frank Rabey at 18:10, (20) Will Hester at 18:10 and (21) Tim Michaelson at 18:27.

For the girls, Michel out-raced Rocky Mount's Sandy Ess by five seconds, 19:31 to 19:36, to finish first and help Rose to a win in its first dual meet of the season.

Rose's Mary Holloway was third at 20:04 while Cissy Taft was fourth at 22:09 and Hope Streeter fifth at 22:40.

Kristine Ambert of Rose was eighth at 25:30.

TD Pass Play Of Week

A pass play over the middle, designed for short yardage, turned into a big gainer Saturday night against N.C. State, and set up East Carolina's only touchdown in the 31-10 defeat by the Wolfpack.

On the play, Carlton Nelson passed to Norwood Vann, the tight end, going to the inside over the middle. Vann, after making the catch, raced all the way to the two before he was finally pulled down. The 43-yard play was his longest reception, Nelson's longest pass, and the longest pass play since Ed Emory became head football coach at ECU.

Quarterback Coach Jim Bengala explained it this way:

"The play was based on the rotation of (State's) safeties and linebackers. If their fast flow rotated quickly if left a passing lane open over the middle. We'd been looking for that in the press box. They obviously caught it. The pass wasn't designed to be a long one. The ball was actually thrown only seven yards."

Seminole Schedule 'Tilts' Table

By The Associated Press Bobby Bowden signed a new five-year contract last year as Florida State's head football coach. One reason was that he wanted a little security to offset this year's schedule.

"People tend to forget what you've done in the past," says Bowden, who has a 46-15 record at Florida State...and that includes a 5-6 debut in 1976. "I wouldn't have taken a schedule like that without a long-term contract. If I get through this one, I might last four more years."

Florida State's schedule includes the likes of Louisville, Memphis State and Western Carolina. But that's not what has Bowden talking to himself.

Last Saturday, the Seminoles journeyed to Lincoln, Neb., and lost to Nebraska 34-14. This Saturday is an open date. Then, on consecutive October weekends, Florida State must visit Ohio State, Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and LSU. Bowden calls it the "Octoberfest."

"Why in the world would anyone do that? It was done before I came to Florida State," says Bowden. "I saw those teams on the schedule, but I happen to like the beaches and palm trees in Florida. Anyway, I thought I'd probably be gone by this time."

"When that schedule was made, Florida State was floundering, losing money and $800,000 in the red. Nobody wanted to play in Tallahassee. We'll make almost $1 million in guarantees off that schedule this year but we don't need it now. We've balanced the budget. We can pay 'em to come to our place."

The Seminoles play Nebraska four times in this decade...away. They face LSU five years in a row...all on the road. A two-game series with Ohio State is scheduled for Columbus. But Bowden says this is the "only really ridiculous year" and future series with teams like Michigan and Penn State will be home-and-home.

As a matter of fact, Bowden has used the schedule as a recruiting aid.

"We told kids we'd take them to South Bend to play Notre Dame," he says. "Kids are too young to know any better. They're like little lambs being led to the slaughter."

"It isn't fair to say the schedule is a challenge. It's more than that. This is probably the toughest schedule ever in the history of college football. When you put the schedule on a table and the table tilts, you know you're in trouble."

Notre Dame has launched a campaign for $10 million in athletic endowments, the first time it has ever gone out and actively raised money for sports.

Over the next two months, university spokesmen will carry the message of financial need to 3,200 graduates who lettered in a sport, as well as other alumni and friends associated with Notre Dame's athletic program.

Co-chairmen of the drive are Moose Krause, Notre Dame's former athletic director, and "a South Bend businessman" named Ara Parseghian.

Vanderbilt is conducting a sales campaign, too. The Commodores mailed out more than 100,000 four-color flyers proclaiming "Six Super Saturdays!" The slogan is "Go Gold, Go Vanderbilt!" as athletic director Roy Kramer and director of promotions and marketing Paul Kennedy use Vandy's facelifted stadium as the key attraction in their campaign.

"The support of the business community has been nothing short of incredible," says Kennedy. "We've doubled our program advertising dollars, overall sales are up and ticket sales are running ahead."

"What we're trying to create is a family type atmosphere. Six Super Saturdays with bands, balloons, good food and football. There'll be something for everyone. Our thinking is that we can't control what happens on the football field, but we can control everything else from the parking lot, to the parking lot parties, to the convenient concessions, to the pretty cheerleaders, to the good music."

A word from Bo Schembechler on what wins football games:

"The general public and the media always get very excited about offensive teams, even if those particular programs still continue to lose. I am a firm believer in defense. It's the name of the game and it's the key to winning."

"I've always felt that you built a solid program by building a solid defense. I've met many teams over the past dozen years who came into a game with all kinds of impressive offensive statistics. I've always been more concerned about a team that plays very solid defense than a team that comes into a game with impressive offensive statistics but has a defense that I knew we could score five touchdowns on."

When you play Illinois, you can go (Freddie) Miles and (Joe) Miles to get from (Mike) Heaven to (Mark) Helle.

In The Hall Of Fame

Trevino Inducted Into Hall Of Fame

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Lee Trevino figures he's halfway to the end of the rainbow.

"There's two things every athlete dreams of when he's starting out," Trevino said. "One is going to heaven when he dies. The other is making the Hall of Fame in his sport. Those two things are the end of the rainbow."

"Well, I've got one of 'em now. We'll just have to wait and see about the other, and I'm in no hurry to find out."

Trevino, along with veteran pro Ralph Guldahl, were inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame Tuesday.

"It's a great honor, a great thrill to have your name up there along with people like (Ben) Hogan, and, of course, Gary," said Trevino, who was inducted by South African Gary Player, one of the original 13 inductees in 1974.

"It's always nice to be remembered. I'm thrilled to death about it. It's been a great life for me," said Guldahl, 69, who won the U.S. Open in 1937-38 and the Masters in 1939.

"Being recognized as one of the great players is enough, but I think I'll appreciate this more later in life, when I'm sitting at the end of the bar telling war stories," said Trevino.

"I mean, I'm still an active player and I don't think this will make that much difference to me right now."

Trevino scored his first pro victory in the biggest tournament of them all, the U.S. Open in 1968.

"Up until then, I didn't know if I could win a tournament or not," he said. "I was just trying to make expenses."

It was the first of 26 U.S. Tour titles he collected and started him off to more than $2.5 million in career winnings.

A turning point in his career, he said, was his 18-hole playoff victory over Jack Nicklaus in the 1971 U.S. Open.

"That convinced me I could play with the greatest players of this time," he said. "That was a turning point."

He went on to score a unique triple, adding the Canadian and British Open titles in the next four weeks, a feat that hasn't been matched. Trevino also won the British Open in 1972 and the PGA national championship in 1974.

He has won at least once every season since 1968 and only last week scored four victories in the United States' Ryder Cup victory in England. He originally had planned to remain in England to play in the Bob Hope Desert Classic this week, but changed his schedule when he was elected to the Hall of Fame.

Despite a sometimes-ailing back, he'll be one of the favorites in the $250,000 Hall of Fame Classic that begins Thursday on the famed No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

ODU Coach Unsure League Ultimate Answer

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Paul Webb, head basketball coach at Old Dominion University, sees a bright future for the school in that sport, but isn't sure where the school will eventually find a conference home.

Webb was the featured speaker yesterday at the Greenville Sports Club at its bi-monthly meeting at the Ramada Inn.

The Monarch basketball program has enjoyed a great deal of success under Webb over the last five years, participating in post-season playoffs four of the last five years, three of those in the National Invitational Tournament.

"Last year was a good year and a tough year," Webb said. "Anytime you win 18 games in this brand of basketball, it's a good year. Also we were in the NIT, we beat DePaul (ranked number one and unbeaten at the time). We've wanted to be in a situation where we could play the number one team when it was unbeaten, and were fortunate enough to get into that situation and win."

But, Webb added, it was a tough year too. "We started practice with 14 players, and lost four to injuries and one to academics. That left us with only nine to play-the season, and I think that took its toll on us at the end of the year."

Webb feels the 1981-82 version of the Monarchs will be a "pretty good one," with an attractive schedule that includes DePaul and Marquette in Norfolk, with both on national television. "We'll put all the pieces of the puzzle on the table and see if they all fit together. We think we have a good group coming back, including four starters." Those include Ronnie McAdoo, 6-6 senior forward, and 6-10 junior Mark Webb, who have both started every game since coming to ODU. Also back are point guard Grant Robinson, a junior, and guard Billy Mann, a senior.

"We need to find a forward to go with this group, who can give us some outside scoring. We have four others back from last year's team, plus four incoming freshmen and a junior college transfer, so we should have some depth too," Webb said.

The coach, in talking about ODU's rise from the Division II ranks to a rising "name" in the Division I group, praised East Carolina for its help. "East Carolina was one of the first schools in Division I to give us a chance to get on the schedule. That helped us get some other doors open."

Old Dominion and East Carolina, along with Richmond, William & Mary, and James Madison have been working to form a new conference in the mid-South area, and those five, along with George Mason and Navy will compete as the ECAS-South this winter, with the tournament winner at the end of the season moving into the NCAA tournament.

"I think the conference is super for this year," Webb said, "but that doesn't necessarily mean that it will be the answer for us in the future. We had been in the ECAC for five years, but under the proposed plan it didn't fit into our plans. The revised plan for this year does suit us, however."

Webb said that perhaps the league would continue past this year, but that currently the ECAC has sanctioned it for one year only.

Returning to the five schools who have made efforts to form a conference, Webb said that he feels that the group needs one or two more "strong" teams to get a conference started. He said that overtures had been made to UNC Charlotte, Davidson, Virginia Commonwealth and George Washington, but all of them currently are in conferences, and expressed reluctance to withdraw to join a conference that is not yet going.

Webb added that he thought Navy, one of the current ECAC-South members, would be an outstanding member to a new conference. "I think their coach might be interested, but I don't know if the school itself really knows what it wants to do."

He also noted that George Washington could provide the strength he is looking for in a prospective member, and that George Mason in many ways resembles ODU several years ago, just beginning to get its program up to a stronger level.

Later, Webb said that ODU is also looking at the Sun Belt and Big East conferences, "along with two others I'm not at liberty to name." He noted that travel could play a role with the two named leagues since ODU is at the lower edge of one and the top edge of the other. He also said he felt that the possible reorganization of the Division I football schools by the NCAA could cause some conference shifting and probably will result in the formation of a new conference in the area just north of Virginia, which could also have an effect on basketball conferences.

"We have a definite commitment to big time basketball," he said. "That decision was made 15 or 16 years ago by Old Dominion. And the reason for our current success was that the administrators back then did a good job of laying the groundwork and didn't leap into Division I right away."

He also said that he doubted that ODU would be adding football anytime "in the near future."

"For one thing, I don't think the sports fans of the Tidewater area would support anything less than a strong Division I program. And it just costs too much to put together a program like that, especially from scratch."

Speaker for the next Sports Club meeting, on October 17, is University of South Carolina basketball coach Bill Foster.

"We're not going in there as if it's a do-or-die situation or a must-win situation," Garner said. "We're going in trying to find out what we can do against a good ball club. We're going to try to find out about ourselves."

North Pitt

In Southern Nash, North Pitt plays a team that four games into the season has yet to win a game.

"Don't let the record fool you," North Pitt first-year coach B.T. Chappell said. "They've played four 4-A high schools and in all four they have played good but didn't win."

The Firebirds, the defending ECC champions, have lost to the three Wilson County schools — Hunt, Fike and Beddingfield — and to Northern Nash. All four teams have been able to match the Firebirds in size, something Chappell is not sure the Panthers can do.

"Everybody's been able to match them in size," said Chappell, who took over as head coach after Pat Smith resigned to take an assistant coaching job at Southern Nash. "We're not sure we can match up with them. We've been worried about them size-wise."

Because of the expected size difference, Chappell has made some changes in his team's offense as it readies for its opening ECC game of the season.

"We're going to try to spread our offense more this week," he said. "If they're that strong we hope we may be able to pop through a few times."

In particular, Chappell hopes to be able to spring tailback Mitchell Cox into the open. In four games this season, Cox has rushed for 444 yards, including 136 in the Panthers' 17-6 loss to West Craven last week.

While that game was not the Panthers' best of the season, Chappell said he continues to see improvement in his team's play.

"When we come out of a game like West Craven the players begin to realize there were some things we did that hurt us," Chappell said. "They realize we've got to improve on them."

"I think we're improving every week, we're growing in experience. There's no way you can get experience except in games. We can tell them what it's gonna be like in practice, but they've got to get out there and experience it."

"We're looking for a bit more consistency this week. You don't have a good ball club until you're consistent."

The Jaguars will need all the consistency they can come up with against Havelock. Last week Farmville was whistled for 135 yards in penalties. The Jaguars cannot afford a similar performance this week.

"We're working on (correcting that)," Carroll said. "We can't afford to put ourselves in a hole against them. The kids know if we don't make mistakes we're going to be beat somebody like this."

"We're gonna fight them tooth-and-claw and I think we're ready to play. I know I'm ready to win a big one at home. I hope we are. But we could be as flat as a tire or as sharp as a pin."

McIntosh Gets ACC Rookie Award

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State freshman Joe McIntosh romped for 167 yards Saturday on just 24 carries on his way to being named Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week for the second consecutive time Tuesday.

McIntosh, selected by a special committee of the ACC Sports Writers Association, had his third straight 100-yard performance as N.C. State beat East Carolina 31-10.

It was the first time in N.C. State history that a running back ever gained 100 yards in his first three collegiate games.

Bird Leads Knights Past Bethel, 7-0

KINSTON — Greenville Christian Academy got three goals and an assist from Phil Bird and romped to a 7-0 soccer victory over Bethel Academy of Kinston yesterday.

The Knights held only a 2-0 lead at halftime, but broke the game wide open with five in the second half. "They used a defensive play of drawing us off sides in the first half," Coach Dale Thatcher said, noting 16 offside calls against the Knights. "But in the second half, we adjusted and were able to take it in and score."

Chris Harris got the scoring started 20 minutes into the half, with an assist from Bird. Bird then followed at 31 minutes with his first goal.

In the second half, Bird started the scoring after nine minutes. Troy Hudson followed at 12 minutes, with Bird, on an assist by Harris, scoring at 23 minutes. Hudson, assisted by Joel Nason, scored with 29 minutes gone, and Harris, scoring on a penalty kick with 34 minutes gone, wound up the scoring.

Greenville Christian is now 4-1 while Bethel is 0-2. The Knights travel to Goldsboro's Faith Academy on Friday.

Conley Extends Streak To Eight

FARMVILLE — D.H. Conley's volleyball team extended its unbeaten string to eight straight as the Valkyries won two matches over Farmville Central Tuesday afternoon.

Conley won the first match 15-11, 15-7 and then took the second 15-10, 15-11, for its seventh and eighth victories of the season.

In the first match, both DHC's Darlene Cannon and FC's Rose Lang scored six straight points on their serves. In the second match, DHC's Mary Mitchell scored six points on her serve, including four straight points.

The Valkyries had 20 hits, led by Karen Barrett with 10 effective. Sherri Waters had six and Jackie Daniels four.

D.H. Conley plays host to North Lenoir Thursday in the Valkyries Coastal Carolina opener, while Farmville is host to Rose.

When the New York Giants beat the New York Yankees, 6-1, in the opening game of the 1936 World Series it broke a string of 12 victories for the Yankees in the classic.

Sutton Captures 35th Career Win Over Atlanta

By The Associated Press

Few men since Gen. Sherman have done more harm to Atlanta than Don Sutton.

The Houston Astros pitcher won his 35th career game against the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night with a three-hit, 3-0 decision at the Astrodome. It also was his 55th career shutout.

"There's really nothing to my beating the Braves," said Sutton, who has defeated them more than any other National League pitcher. "I've given up more runs to them, too, but I just manage to get enough runs to win. There's no set formula. It's just like me losing 13 straight to the Mets when I first started."

Sutton, who has won six out of seven games in the second half to improve his record to 10-8, said he did not feel he was in top form.

"I didn't have my best stuff, but they just kept hitting them to somebody," Sutton said. "They drilled it but Tony (center fielder Scott) or Jose (left fielder Cruz) would camp under it for a long out."

But Braves Manager Bobby Cox said he saw no dropoff in Sutton's performance.

"Sutton threw real well. I think he had his best stuff in the ninth. He was definitely going for the shutout," Cox said.

All the Atlanta hits off Sutton were singles. Brett Butler opened the game with a hit. Rufino Linares singled in the fifth and Chris Chambliss got the final Braves hit in the seventh.

Scott, who has eight hits in his last 10 at-bats, led Houston's 12-hit attack.

The Astros took a 1-0 lead off Braves starter Gaylord Perry, 7-8, in the first inning when Phil Garner walked, went to third on Scott's double and scored on Cruz's sacrifice fly.

Houston scored two more runs in the third on a double by Terry Puhl, a groundout, Scott's run-scoring single, a single by Cruz and Danny Heep's RBI single.

Although Sutton was 4-7 in the first half and some were questioning the big free agent contract the Astros gave him, the 36-year-old right-hander has proved he belongs in the second half. But he doesn't consider himself a second-half pitcher.

"If you split the years down, part of the time I started strong, part of the time I finished strong and the other part I didn't do anything right," Sutton said.

Sutton's turnaround in the second half parallels the Astros, who lead the NL West by three games over Cincinnati after they fell eight games behind in the first half.

"I always felt the first half of this season was not indicative of this ballclub. So I worked hard and took my business seriously because I knew we would have a chance in the second half and I wanted to be ready."

Cubs 4, Cardinals 3

Home runs by Ty Waller and Leon Durham brought Chicago back from a 3-0 deficit before Jerry Morales broke a 3-3 tie with a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning.

St. Louis, which leads Montreal by one-half game in the NL East, scored in the second on a double by Bob Forsch and twice in the fifth on run-scoring singles by Darrell Porter and Dane Iorg.

Expos 6, Phillies 2

Steve Rogers held Philadelphia to five hits while Warren Cromartie and Tim Wallach knocked in two runs apiece for Montreal.

Cromartie singled in a run in the fifth inning and then broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh with an RBI double after Tim Raines stole his 71st base.

Pirates 5, Mets 3

Jason Thompson hit a three-run homer to cap Pittsburgh's four-run third inning that snapped New York's four-game winning streak.

The Mets had taken a 2-1 lead in the second on consecutive homers by Dave Kingman and Lee Mazzilli, but they did no further damage in five innings against Jim Bibby, who made his first start since Aug. 21 because of a sore shoulder.

Reds 3, Padres 2

Tom Seaver won his 13th game in 15 decisions and raised his lifetime record against San Diego to 30-7 with help from two relievers.

Gene Richards' triple knocked in the Padres' second run off Seaver with two outs in the seventh inning, and Joe Price came in to prevent further damage. Then San Diego loaded the bases with one out in the ninth before Tom Hume got Randy Bass to hit into a game-ending double play.

George Foster singled home one Cincinnati run and the other two scored on San Diego errors.

Giants 5, Dodgers 2

Larry Herndon victimized Fernando Valenzuela for three RBI, including two with an inside-the-park homer, to lead San Francisco over Los Angeles.

Valenzuela, whose last defeat just before the players' strike June 11 included a two-run, inside-the-park homer by George Hendrick of St. Louis, lost for only the fifth time in 18 decisions.

Packers Sign John Jefferson

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The arrival of John Jefferson could give the Green Bay Packers, already armed with the much-heralded James Lofton, the best outside receiving duo in the National Football League.

Should that occur, Coach Bart Starr will have Bob Harlan, Packer corporate assistant, to thank for the acquisition of Jefferson. Starr said Harlan was the man who reached agreement Tuesday with Jefferson's agent Howard Slusher.

The settlement was announced after telephone bargaining had extended past a deadline initially imposed on the Packers for signing Jefferson or having him revert to ownership of the San Diego Chargers.

Jefferson has been a holdout from the Chargers since training camp, and Starr said it was uncertain how soon Jefferson would be ready to play — although "he could" Sunday against the Minnesota Vikings.

Jefferson was expected here today to sign a series of four one-year contracts.

The trade, announced last Thursday, was conditional on the Packers being able to sign

Jefferson. In exchange for Jefferson, the Chargers get receiver Aundra Thompson, a first-round draft choice and two second-round picks from Green Bay.

The Chargers said they have until Feb. 1 to decide whether to take the first-round pick from Green Bay in 1982, 1983 or 1984. They will have second-round picks from Green Bay in the two years in which they do not exercise the first-round choice.

In the years in which the Chargers have Green Bay's second-round picks, they will have the right to switch drafting position with the Packers in the first round.

Charger owner Gene Klein said in San Diego the club had trade discussions involving Jefferson with 16 NFL teams, and that "this was by far the best possible trade."

The cost to the Packers is higher than originally thought. Speculation had it involving a first- and a second-round pick, plus Thompson. But they said they were delighted when agreement with Slusher was reached.

Harlan and Slusher several times extended deadlines which had been imposed on the Packers in the negotiations.

Crum Says B. C. Best Foe To Date

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina coach Dick Crum decided that placekicker Jeff Hayes might be better off not kicking field goals in 1981.

So far it has proved a very good decision. Hayes is now concentrating on extra points, kickoffs and punts. He hasn't missed an extra point, nearly all his kickoffs have sailed out of the end zone and he is averaging 47 yards a punt.

"I felt he would be more comfortable handling kickoffs and punts and I think he's responded well," Crum said Tuesday at his weekly news conference.

But he still may get a shot at a field goal "if we were going for a 62-yarder," Crum said with a smile. He then added seriously, "He'll kick extremely long field goals, 45 yards or more."

The ninth-ranked Tar Heels have the luxury of having three placekickers — for short, medium and long.

But Crum said the kicking game is a major factor in the "complete game" North Carolina has played for two consecutive weeks. The results have been a 56-0 win over East Carolina and a 49-7 over Miami of Ohio in which 88 Tar Heel players saw action.

"It's certainly the best I've been around," he said of the kicking game. "It kept both teams backed up and let our defense play with reckless abandon."

That reckless abandon allowed the North Carolina defense to limit Miami to 22 yards. Tar Heel opponents have averaged only 110 yards rushing.

Boston College is the next team to face the Tar Heels, and the Eagles are "our best opponent to date."

"They are more experienced, have deeper talent and are used to playing pretty good football teams," Crum said of the Eagles, who have won six in a row dating back to last season.

He said Boston College is probably "the biggest team we've played since Pittsburgh two years ago."

"They have good mobility and they just stand in there and you have to knock them out."

Crum, however, is not concerned about his team maintaining the level of consistency that has accounted for an average 52.5 points a game.

"It's no problem," he said. "They now are doing no more than what we're asking them to do without many mistakes. I'm sure though that we will not perform week after week without some errors. There's always a game when you don't play that well."

The Boston College game, which will be regionally televised by ABC-TV starting at 12:20 p.m. Saturday, also features Tar Heel tailback Kelvin Bryant. Bryant has 347 yards in two games and leads the nation in scoring with 11 touchdowns.

Rose Ends Fike String

WILSON — Rose High School's girls broke an eight-year jinx and topped Wilson Fike, 9-0, in a Big East tennis match yesterday.

The match was a hard-fought one, with the number one and number three singles going split sets, with Fike winning the first set in each.

The victory boosted the Rose record to 6-0 overall and to 4-0 against Big East competition.

"This was a very big win for us," Coach Gwen Dayton said. "Now we have a match of equal importance coming up Thursday with Hunt, who is also undefeated so far this year." That match will be played at Rose.

Seek Fame In RV Field

ELKHART, Ind. (AP) — Cooperstown, N.Y., has the Baseball Hall of Fame. Canton, Ohio, has the pigskin counterpart. Now it's Elkhart's turn.

To honor what is billed as Indiana's fastest-growing industry, people here are promoting this town as the site of the nation's Recreational Vehicle-Mobile Home Hall of Fame.

"Indiana now is the largest producer of RVs in the nation and the third-largest producer of mobile homes after Texas and Georgia," said Bud Lachman of the Indiana Manufactured Housing Association.

Lachman said the people who manufacture, distribute and service RVs and manufactured housing in Indiana add up to almost 40,000, the state's second-largest workforce after the steel industry. Elkhart is the main manufacturing center.

The kickoff for a $1 million drive for the project was announced last week during an "old-timers" party sponsored by the RV-Mobile Home Hall of Fame Foundation Inc.

Nearly 150 industry people showed up. That included William Kirfin, 80, who is said to be first supplier to the industry — providing the lumber, insulation and other materials for Wilbur Schult's first trailer built in Elkhart nearly 50 years ago.

FAMILY REUNION

The fourth annual W. L. Clarke family reunion will be held Sunday at the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church in Black Jack.

A picnic lunch will be served at 1 p.m. All family members are urged to attend.

Yard Sale Is Planned

The Pitt County Epilepsy Association will hold a yard sale at J.H. Rose High School on Saturday, Sept. 26, 1981, from 8 a.m. to 12 noon. Proceeds will be used to support the group's plans to participate in the upcoming national Epilepsy Foundation of America (EFA) convention and conference meeting next month in Wash., D.C. Persons interested in donating articles for sale or who wish to learn more about the group and project can contact Mrs. Barnes at 746-3425 in Ayden or Mr. Luce at 752-3769 in Greenville. Donations may be tax deductible.

Money And Happiness

By ELISSA MCCRARY
 Associated Press Writer
 GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)
 — When Geoffrey Aydelette gave up analyzing securities and took up matchmaking, his goal was to meet lots of attractive women and get rich in the process.

Six years later, Aydelette is meeting women all over the country. His computer
 matchmaking game, Selectrocuton, is bringing in about $200,000 a year.

"I'm making money and I'm making people happy," said the 31-year-old Greensboro native. "What more could I ask for?"

 which is featured in nightclubs up and down the East Coast and in California,
 "an audience-participation game for singles." He came up with the idea while he was spending his evenings in singles bars.

"It was pretty silly. The guys would be lined up at the bar watching the girls and the girls would be sitting around looking back. It never got much further than the looking stage," Aydelette said.

"I just thought if I could come up with a game that would help people meet people and have a good time, too, it would be great," he added.

Selectrocuton is easy to play. Players coming into a club where the game is offered are given a decal to pin on and a scorecard. Each player chooses two initials that are printed in big letters on the decal and the game card. After that, there are no rules. People do whatever they would usually do in a singles bar, but all the while they check one another out.

 a message to another player, he gives the message to one of Aydelette's staff members who types it into the computer. It appears on a large screen for everyone to see.
 For example, a message might say, "To SX Male. I'd like to meet you. Want to dance? From TK Female."

At the end of the evening, male and female players rank each other on their sex appeal by voting for their favorites on their scorecards.
 If a person gets few or no votes, the computer declares him or her "selectrocutated."

"The game can be a brutal form of entertainment. It doesn't spare your feelings," Aydelette said.

Aydelette runs the Selectrocuton business from his modest brick home on the outskirts of Greensboro.
 Two-person crews operate the game at night spots in Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Massachusetts. Computer time is bought from a Richmond, Va., company.

"There was a time in the beginning when I traveled everywhere, helping run the game. I didn't have the money to hire a lot of people to help me, just my father and my brother," Aydelette
 said.

Aydelette gets about $500 a night from clubs where Selectrocuton is featured.
 But he said the clubs get their money's worth from their investment.

"It can take a slow Tuesday or Wednesday night and turn into the busiest night of the week," he said.

Selectrocuton has been written up in several national magazines and featured on East Coast TV newsmagazine shows, but Aydelette said he depends mostly on word of mouth for advertising.

Meanwhile, he has plans to take Selectrocuton into Florida and try it again in his home state. Selectrocuton made its debut at a Greensboro nightclub in 1975.

 North Carolina when the game first came out," he said. "But liquor by the drink (now) gets a lot more people into the bars, and I think Selectrocuton will go over a lot better now."

Maine Tourists Look For Roots

By JERRY HARKAVY
 Associated Press Writer
 PORTLAND, Maine (AP)
 — For a special breed of tourist like Roger Rumrey, a vacation in Maine is also a trip back in time to the family past.

Rumrey and a surprising number of other tourists are managing to combine their family vacation with their search for information about forebears who lived in Maine centuries ago.

The tables at the library of the Maine Historical Society are often filled with visitors immersed in genealogical research. It's not unusual to find out-of-state researchers who have traveled thousands of miles to gather information about a branch of the family tree which they have traced back to Maine.

"It's a real obsession with some of them," said librarian Katie Murphy, estimating that 85 percent of the library's summer users are involved in genealogy. In the winter, the library gets a larger percentage of people writing dissertations or other academic studies.

Rumrey, who lives in the St. Louis, Mo., suburb of Manchester, stopped at the library to find out some details about the Rumery family, which he had traced from Michigan to its colonial roots in Maine.

From records at the state archives in Augusta and at the historical society, Rumrey discovered that Edward Rumery bought some land in the Biddeford area for four pounds around 1728. He's still not sure whether the family came originally from Germany or England.

"The spelling of the name was somehow changed around 1900. The old traditional spelling is R-u-m-e-r-y," he explained.

While his wife and children were shopping in downtown Portland, Rumrey pored through the society's genealogical collection, which provides records of births, deaths, marriages and other vital statistics.

The society's new director, William Toner Jr., said the renewed interest in genealogy was a nationwide phenomenon, spurred in part by the success of the best-selling novel and television series,
 "Roots."

"The TV series had a lot to do with it. But I think the Bicentennial also got a lot of people interested in their family history," Toner said.

For a long time, he said, serious historians had had little regard for genealogy, dismissing it simply as a pastime for individuals seeking to flaunt their own pedigrees. But in recent years there has been an increased interest in social history, accompanied by a desire on the part of many people to find out who their ancestors were and how they lived.

Toner said the society's library, located in a Georgian Revival building behind the Wadsworth-Longfellow House on Congress Street, had far and away the largest collection of works dealing with the history of Maine.

Chartered in 1822, the private, non-profit society merged 100 years later with the Maine Genealogical Society, providing expanded resources for students of family history.

Library use has nearly doubled in the past four or five years, according to curator Thomas Gaffney, who oversees the library's collection of 1.7 million manuscripts.

While the published works usually prove most valuable to the genealogist, Gaffney said manuscripts ranging from personal letters to military pension records could sometimes provide clues to help track down a family line.

In addition to records of births and deaths, items of value to genealogists include town and family histories, wills, old newspapers, real-estate transfers, personal scrapbooks, diaries and church records.

Ted Koppel Is No Candidate For Evening News

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Koppel, the new king of late-night television, is not interested in reading the news at dinnertime. If ABC News President Roone Arledge is searching for an evening news superstar, he should look elsewhere.

"I'm able to do what I love in an environment that couldn't be more enjoyable," said Koppel, who's negotiating a new contract to continue doing 'Nightline.' "This is the job I want."

Koppel said he's had no discussions about news anchoring with Arledge, who failed to land Dan Rather and Tom Brokaw for the nightly newscasts. Koppel hopes ABC's ratings growth will make that potential conversation go away.

Anyway, the restrictive forum of an evening newscast wouldn't best utilize Koppel's superb interviewing technique, nor his ability to succinctly distill a complicated issue. And any man who can tell Howard Cosell and Geraldo Rivera that they didn't answer the question would be wasted as a news reader.

Koppel was rated a semitough interviewer by the Washington Journalism Review. "I'm not sure that's a semi-insult or a compliment," he said. Yet, there doesn't seem to be anyone better at getting to the heart of the matter, without being heartless, at the networks today.

"I don't set out to be an inquisitor. You can lose an audience if you're too abrupt with people. A very delicate balance must be maintained."

Koppel, who was able to join ABC News at the age of 23 in 1963 because the network was then a well-deserved No. 3, credits time as State Department correspondent for refining his gentle art of cross-examining.

"When you hear reporters fencing with a good spokesman and good diplomats who are trained in the artful use of language and disguising their real meaning, then you learn to listen carefully to language and learn how to phrase questions."

Over the years, Koppel has resisted nibbles from CBS and NBC. "There was a perverse pride in being No. 3, in being out-manned and occasionally whipping them."

However, he was set to leave when Arledge came from sports to news in 1977. Koppel delivered his resignation, which Arledge wouldn't accept. "I had concerns whether we would get along," Koppel said. Now he's a full-fledged Arledge believer.

"No one else was able to create a clear ABC identity, something that made ABC News stand out," said

Koppel, referring to the three-headed 'World News Tonight.' "He didn't have a Walter Cronkite, so he found another way. It's like the old story of hitting a mule over the head to get his attention."

"Roone Arledge used a variety of 2-by-4s to get the public's attention."

Koppel's talents certainly have flourished under Arledge, culminated by the success of "Nightline," the second best job he's had.

"If God forbid something happened to my family tomorrow, I'd become a foreign correspondent again. (Vietnam, class of 1967.) I love to travel. 'Cat's Cradle'

(by Harry Chapin) was my song. I was gone more than I was home."

His commitment to family now fuels the desire to narrow his responsibilities to, basically, "Nightline." In 1976, he took a leave of absence to let his wife finish school. That year he did commentaries at home for ABC Radio, wrote a book and did ABC's Saturday night news (now deceased).

"I didn't have a lot of time to read the classics. The only difference was that I was there during the day when the kids were home. I did a little bit of cleaning and most of the cooking."

He also got closer to his four children and saw how much TV they were watching. He became a pioneer in pay-TV.

"They got a dollar above their allowance, and they could buy shows; each cost a dime. It made them consider TV's value. If there was ever anything we wanted them to watch, we gave it to them free."

For today's discriminating parents, Ted Koppel and "Nightline" should be on the freebie list.

TV Dials Filling Up In Metropolitan Areas

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Applicants for regular TV station licenses in the nation's 100 largest metropolitan areas may soon find that there's no room on the dial.

The number of vacant UHF television channels allocated for commercial use in those markets shrank by more than 20 percent during the first half of 1981, the Federal Communications Commission says.

Last December, 67 of 338 UHF channels in those 100 cities were vacant. By June 30, the FCC said the number of UHF channels available in the largest cities had increased to 341, but the number that were vacant and unapplied for had declined to 55.

Since the VHF channels allocated for full-power operation in those top markets were snapped up long ago, the FCC report shows that regular over-the-air broadcasting in the country's most populated areas is approaching its limit.

VHF, or very high frequency, television stations utilize channels 2 to 13. For a variety of technical reasons, they have always been more attractive than UHF or ultra high frequency stations, which use channels 14 to 69.

VHF reception usually is clearer on most TV sets, and such stations do not require as much power to send a strong signal.

Despite such "UHF handicaps" and a growing emphasis on cable television, the latest FCC report shows that UHF stations are being viewed as an attractive opportunity for entering broadcasting.

"As advertising revenues increase, the potential for profits with a UHF is increasing," said Randy Nichols, the top assistant to FCC Chairman Mark S. Fowler. "You also have to remember that cable is helping UHF stations from the standpoint of improved reception. And another factor is the growing interest in pay TV. I think a lot of the new applications we've received reflect proposals to operate pay TV stations."

The FCC report, entitled "Television Channel Utilization," is issued semi-annually and addresses itself only to channels allocated for full-power operation. It is not intended to show the number of frequencies available for low-power stations, although in many cases they would be the same.

The commission is considering a proposal to license low-power facilities, but such stations could cover an area of only 5 to 10 miles.

In the second 100 largest metropolitan areas, the FCC said, 75 out of 172 UHF channels were vacant as of last Dec. 31. Six months later, the number of vacant commercial UHF channels had dropped to 68.

Outside the top 200 metropolitan areas, however, the story is much different, the FCC said. As of June 30, 83 of the 151 UHF channels still were vacant, and 54 of 138 VHF frequencies had not been applied for.

Non-commercial broadcasting, meanwhile, has been growing even more slowly. Of 176 UHF channels reserved for non-commercial operation in the top 100 cities, 78 were still vacant as of June 30. In the second 100, the numbers were 63 out of 103.

Football Helped To Win Nielson Race

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC, with a boost from a couple of key early season professional football games, won the networks' prime-time ratings race for the first time since mid-May, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

ABC's special Thursday night game between Philadelphia and Buffalo was the week's sixth highest-rated program, with the regular "NFL Monday Night Football" broadcast, a game between Oakland and Minnesota, 13th.

In all, ABC had six of the week's 10 highest-rated shows, and that contributed to an average score for the seven-day period ending Sept. 20 of 16.9. CBS was No. 2 at 15.5, and the previous week's winner, NBC, third at 14.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 16.9 percent of the nation's homes with television were tuned to ABC.

Though ABC held a majority of the Top 10 programs, CBS has the two highest-rated, including "60 Minutes" in first place, and three of the first four.

The rating for "60 Minutes" was 21.6. Nielsen says that means of all the nation's TV-equipped homes, 21.6 percent saw at least part of the newsmagazine.

NBC, though third in prime-time, won the evening news sweepstakes for the second week in a row. NBC's "Nightly News" finished ahead of "World News Tonight" on ABC and CBS' "Evening News."

Only four shows in the week's Top 20 were new. In addition to the two football games on ABC, the same network spotted an episode from the new series "Best of the West" in seventh place and a new made-for-TV movie double feature, "Code Red" and "Our Family Business," tied for 10th with a repeat from CBS' "M-A-S-H."

Wendy On Trial For Battery

CHICAGO (AP) — Punk rock star Wendy Williams will go on trial Nov. 24 on a battery charge for allegedly beating a freelance photographer who took her picture while she was jogging.

The 30-year-old lead singer of The Plasmatics punk-rock group appeared at a court hearing Tuesday in a black T-shirt, pink jeans and sporting her trademark Mohawk haircut.

Veverka Is Hunting A Police Job

NORTH BAY VILLAGE, Fla. (AP) — The former Dade County policeman who blew the whistle on fellow officers and said they had beaten to death a black businessman may soon pin on a badge again.

Charles Veverka is working as a part-time police dispatcher in this community of islands in Biscayne Bay along the causeway to Miami Beach.

Police Chief Sanford Blair says he hopes to hire Veverka, 30, as a full-time officer when the city budget takes effect next month.

"I'd like to see the day he's back in uniform and back on the road," said Inspector William Nevers of the village force.

Veverka says a lot of people ask him how he can go back into police work "after what I've been through."

Veverka and Miami have been through a lot since Dec. 17, 1979, when black businessman Arthur McDuffie, who was riding a motorcycle, was stopped by five white officers after a high-speed chase.

McDuffie died four days later of severe head wounds inflicted by a beating.

Reports filed by the officers said the injuries resulted from a motorcycle wreck. Veverka admitted he had lied in his report on the incident.

He later testified he reached McDuffie first in the chase, and the man took a swing at him.

More officers arrived as the two men grappled. Veverka testified he was separated from McDuffie and the other officers started beating the man. Veverka said he tried to stop the attack, but was pushed away. All five officers were fired.

Veverka was granted immunity from prosecution in the state trial of the four other officers, charged in McDuffie's death. They were acquitted by an all-white jury.

The May 1980 verdict touched off three days of race rioting in Miami that took 18 lives and did $100 million damage.

Veverka was acquitted of four civil rights violation charges stemming from the beating. The trial was held in federal court in San Antonio, Texas after officials in Atlanta, New Orleans and Miami said they feared racial trouble in their cities and asked the case be heard somewhere else.

He's been looking for a police job for months. While he waited, he did landscaping, painting, furniture moving and security guard work.

But none of those jobs made him feel as good as he did on the streets, he said. It's "really satisfying" to know you've saved someone, he explained.

"That's why I've kept trying to get back into police work," he said. "That's what I did for seven years. That's what I really like doing. I could care less what anyone else wants to think about that."

Veverka said he has applied to 20 departments, but some officers resent his having turned in fellow policemen. Other departments don't like his notoriety.

Lighter Wings For The Road

CHICAGO (AP) — Light "wings" are helping a French car save gas on the road. A lighter "bonnet and boot" also help.

The wings (side body panels) and bonnet and boot (hood and trunk) are terms used in Europe to describe parts of cars now being made of plastic rather than metal.

Dave Siler of Borg-Warner Chemicals says an experimental car in France is using more thermoplastics and says some predictions indicate that by 1985, 40 percent of the car's exterior body parts will be made of plastic.

The experimental model saved some 205 pounds of weight by substituting plastic for steel, which helped reduce fuel consumption by 26 to 28 percent, Siler says.

Immigrants Could Be Majority

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

New immigrants, mostly Asian and Hispanic, could become the majority in some states and constitute nearly 40 percent of the U.S. population within a century if current trends continue.

That's the conclusion of Leon F. Bouvier, director of demographic research and policy analysis for the Population Reference Bureau, a study group for which he is preparing a report on the effects of immigration on society.

Bouvier estimates that by the year 2000 some 8.8 percent of the population could be people who moved to the United States after 1980 and their children.

That group would grow to 21.1 percent of the total by the year 2030 and to 39.8 percent by 2080, he calculated.

The prediction is based on two assumptions: that immigration will remain at current levels and that fertility — births per woman — will fall.

In 1980, 30 percent of the population was made up of people who had moved here after 1980 and their children.

"As a result the nature of the society is going to change drastically," Bouvier reflected in an interview.

The post 1980-group will be quite different from the post-1980 group, Bouvier said.

Until the late 19th Century, the vast majority of immigrants came from northern and western Europe, people ethnically very similar to those already here. Later in the century, more and more came from southern and eastern Europe, and those people were harder to absorb.

By contrast, between 1977 and 1979 only 5 percent of immigrants came from northern and western Europe, compared with 42 percent from Latin America, 39 percent from Asia and the remainder from other areas.

"We had a big challenge when we moved from Western Europe to Eastern Europe. This is a bigger one and a great nation, hopefully, will be able to handle it," Bouvier said.

Bouvier estimates current immigration — legal and illegal — at close to one million annually, although there are no firm figures for illegal immigration.

He believes immigration should be limited to 500,000 to make it easier for the nation to absorb the change.

"It would certainly be responsible, fair and gradual," he commented.

Noting that the United States accepts more immigrants than any other country, Bouvier said, "I don't think people realize the potential number of people who would come to the United States if they could."

The Census Bureau recently reported that the fertility rate has fallen below 2.2 children per woman, the number considered necessary to replace the current population.

That, Bouvier said, is a fact that immigration experts "almost never talk about, the fact that without immigration we are not replacing the population. ... Now, the minute you say that it sounds dismal, and I don't mean it dismal. It's a fact."

The greatest impact of immigration is expected in states already most popular with immigrants.

For example, if the fertility rate drops to 1.8 children per woman, and annual immigration remains at about one million — the assumptions used to calculate the 40 percent figure for 2080 nationwide — then by 2080 the population of California could be 64.4 percent post-1980 immigrants and their children.

That population group would comprise 61.9 percent of New York, 48.8 percent of Illinois, 48.1 percent of Florida and 47.0 percent of Texas.

HUNGER STRIKE
Dacca, Bangladesh (AP) — Government officials say several hundred people, most of them students, have begun a hunger strike demanding that 12 condemned army officers be spared.

'Star' Died

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In this town of news junkies, last month's demise of the Washington Star left the addicts gasping. Now, other purveyors of news are moving in to satisfy their need.

The New York Times, which sells 25,000 copies in Washington on weekdays and more on Sundays, started publishing a daily page of Washington news this week.

Five suburban papers, published in the five Maryland and Virginia counties ringing Washington went from twice a week to five-times-a-week publication on Monday.

The downtown streets of Washington and the affluent suburbs sprouted an array of new vending newspaper machines. On some corners the first thing subway riders see as they emerge from underground is a long bank of news boxes, arousing memories of long-ago days when a big city produced as many as a dozen independent, competing newspapers.

The Baltimore Sun and the Baltimore Evening Sun took new interest in their news-bereft neighbors. The Sun now devotes almost as much space to Sunday's Washington Redskins game as to the local Colts. In the Star's last days, the Evening Sun advertised: "You're not losing a Star, you're gaining a Sun."

And The Washington Post, now the city's only daily, picked up 100,000 buyers as well as the Star's old printing plant and a caucus of columnists from Bombeck to Buckley. The Post added so many comics — from Beetle Bailey to Hagar the Horrible — that a third page is needed to accommodate them.

The Post, now with a circulation of 725,000, grew in all-round girth. Last Thursday, subscribers had to cope with a 28-page hard news section, 22 pages of soft news in the "Style" section, a 28-page Metro section of local news, a 14-page community news section that appears weekly, 22 pages of sports and business news and a 24-page food section.

Even news addicts could blanch at the Post's announcement that its acquisition of the Star plant would enable the Post to publish a fatter newspaper.

The 128-year-old Star, an afternoon paper, folded Aug. 7. Its owner, Time Inc., said it was losing too much money to keep the paper alive. That made Washington the largest one-paper city in the country.

With the summer doldrums over, the competition for old Star readers is sure to intensify.

The suburban Journal papers, published in Alexandria, Va., the Virginia counties of Arlington and Fairfax and the Maryland counties of Montgomery and Prince Georges, stepped up to daily publication Monday, adding comics and a page of world and national news.

Publisher Geoffrey Edwards scoffed at some readers' complaint that they did not want that much local news. "We heard the same thing when we went from once a week to twice a week in 1977," he said. After that, circulation rose from 107,000 to 143,000.

In Washington and the close-in prosperous suburbs, The New York Times lined upper Connecticut Avenue with blue vending machines.

"Since the Star folded, we have noticed a circulation increase," said Times spokesman Elliott Sanger. He said the Times now sells about 25,000 papers a day in the Washington area — which is more than the 23,000 papers sold when the Star, in seeking growth, started a morning edition. The Star sold about 300,000 afternoon papers.

The Times' new page, "Washington Talk," will offer columns, features, analysis "and news about life, people and issues in Washington," the paper says.
