Uncle Sam's Garage Sale Of Bargain Gifts Falls Short Of Its Goal

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam cleaned out the government's basement and found a Russian tea set, two Korean suits, four Henry Kissinger busts and other no-no gifts that netted $55,422.50 for the Treasury.

The auction of gifts from foreign governments to U.S. officials didn't balance the federal budget. In fact, the government fell short of its $60,000 goal.

And the bargains were in the eye of the beholder. The two men's suits, size 42-long, gifts from Korea to former Rep. Herman Badillo, D-N.Y., were sold for $45. A picture made of duck, cardinal and quail feathers netted $270, while the Russian tea set was sold for $2,300. And a soiled suede Gucci handbag was auctioned off for $175. It was the first time the government had given the public a chance to buy the gifts, some of which had been stored away since passage of a 1977 law that forbids U.S. officials from accepting gifts from foreign governments. The law covers all items valued over $100.

About 450 antique dealers, housewives, tourists and politicians bid briskly as auctioneer Russ McClain urged them on.

"Surely you see this as an investment," he said of a pale oil portrait of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. It was purchased for $260 by Edward Prinoff, who said he owns an investment company in Laurel, Md.

"I like investments of all kinds," Prinoff said. "I wanted that portrait."

The most expensive item was a Piaget gold men's watch that sold for $4,000. The cheapest was a pair of stainless steel cufflinks from Japan that went for $22.50.

Four busts of Kissinger were purchased by dealers. One sold for $65, one for $110, one for $150 and the fourth for $205.

"I don't think there's much of a market for Kissinger busts now, but I expect the market to improve," said Jay Zebooker, a self-described appraiser in the Washington area who purchased two of them.

Zebooker also bought an autographed picture of former Italian Premier Aldo Moro in a silver frame for $225. "I figure I can sell the autograph for $75 to an autograph dealer

I know — and the frame is worth the rest," he said. "There is some good silver work here and there is a lot of interest in the watches, but much of it is on the gaudy side," said former Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., who said he had not received any of the items being auctioned off.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., sat slumped in a chair, carefully marking off each item as it was put up for bid. "I like auctions," he said when asked why he was there.

The 181 items were on display for two days before the auction began. But the public did not get first crack at the gifts. They had been offered free for display purposes to public agencies and museums. Then the original recipients were offered a chance to buy them at fair market value. What remained were the rejects.

Joblessness Rises Again

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising joblessness among adults and the highest rate ever for blacks sent unemployment up three-tenths of a percent to 7.5 percent in September, the Labor Department said today.

The total number of people out of work neared 8 million — more than 300,000 above August's total, the department said.

For blacks, unemployment rose one-tenth of a percent to 16.3 percent, a record. The unemployment rate among whites in September jumped four-tenths of a percent to 6.5 percent.

Last month's 7.5 percent overall jobless rate was the highest since last November, except for a 7.6 percent rate in May, which government analysts attributed to a statistical fluke resulting from school terms ending earlier than in past years.

For black and other minority teen-agers, the jobless rate, which had jumped to 45.7 percent in August, dropped to 37.5 percent with the start of the new school year.

For blacks and other minorities overall, the rate stood at 15.1 percent, one-tenth of a percent higher than in August.

"Clearly, there's considerable weakness in the economy," said Jack Breggar, a Labor Department analyst. He attributed much of the problem to declining employment in state and local governments, saying such things as cutbacks in federal education aid, resulting in teacher layoffs, and in federal subsidized public service job programs — mandated by the Reagan administration budget cuts — caused non-federal government employment to decline 145,000.

Typifying the relative scarcity of jobs overall was the record 4.5 million people who accepted part-time employment last month, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Total full-time employment nationwide fell by 670,000 over the month to a seasonally adjusted 98.3 million, compared to 98.9 million the month before.

Of the total population, 58.1 percent held full- or part-time jobs in September, the lowest level since December.

The department also reported that the number of "discouraged workers" — those who have abandoned their job searches — grew by 1.1 million in the third quarter.

The entire decline in the number of people with full-time jobs in September occurred among adults, primarily women, the department said. It added that large numbers of women left the labor force last month, causing it to shrink by 370,000. The labor force is comprised of those who have jobs or have entered the labor market in search of employment.

Here are the unemployment figures in September for various breakdowns:

—Adult men, 6.2 percent, up from 5.9 percent in August.

—Adult women, 6.8 percent, up from 6.5 percent.

—Teenagers, 19.3 percent, up by five-tenths of a percent.

—Whites, 6.5 percent, up from 6.1 percent.

—Blacks and other minorities, 15.1 percent, up from 15.0 percent.

—For blacks alone, 16.3 percent, up one-tenth of a percent.

Total unemployment was 7,966,000, up 309,000 from the 7,657,000 of August.

Janet Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, said "the jobless rate for adult men ... was still less than the rate which had prevailed at the height of the 1980 downturn. The increase in joblessness for adult women brought their rate back to 6.8 percent, slightly higher than at the recession through in July 1980."

She said, "The September labor market indicators show continued weakness in the demand for workers."

Private analysts, meanwhile, say American businesses, facing high interest rates and rising inventories, are showing more inclination to cut production and lay off workers despite the administration's economic program.

Because of this, the economists said, there is little likelihood of any improvement in the national unemployment rate.

The economists said the job-creating effects of the administration's economic program are not likely to be felt until early 1982.

Vast Hole Found In Space

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — What's big enough to hold 2,000 galaxies with their billions of stars and still not be crowded? Absolutely nothing.

And that's what astronomers found deep in space — a big area of nothing, a huge void that makes up more than 1 percent of the entire visible universe.

Scientists say that the vast region of empty space appears almost devoid of galaxies or other large bodies.

Dr. Robert Kirshner of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor said it is larger than any previously detected, so vast that 2,000 galaxies the size of the Milky Way ordinarily would be found within a space of that size.

"We've known for a long time that there are voids out there, but nothing like this," Kirshner said in a telephone interview. "It's a much bigger thing than anybody expected."

"Astronomers said this 'hole' in space is about 300 million light years across. By comparison, a galaxy like the Milky Way is a mere 100,000 light years in diameter.

A light year is the distance light travels through space in a year at 186,326 miles per second, or about 6 trillion miles.

Kirshner said the void is about 400 million light years from our solar system and increasing in size as galaxies of stars near its boundaries pull closer together because of their gravity.

The astronomer said the void probably is not totally empty and could contain some gases and maybe even small galaxies too tiny to be seen from Earth. In any case, he added, there isn't much there.

Scientists have long known that galaxies tend to clump together into clusters, but it was only recently that they started paying attention to the voids between them.

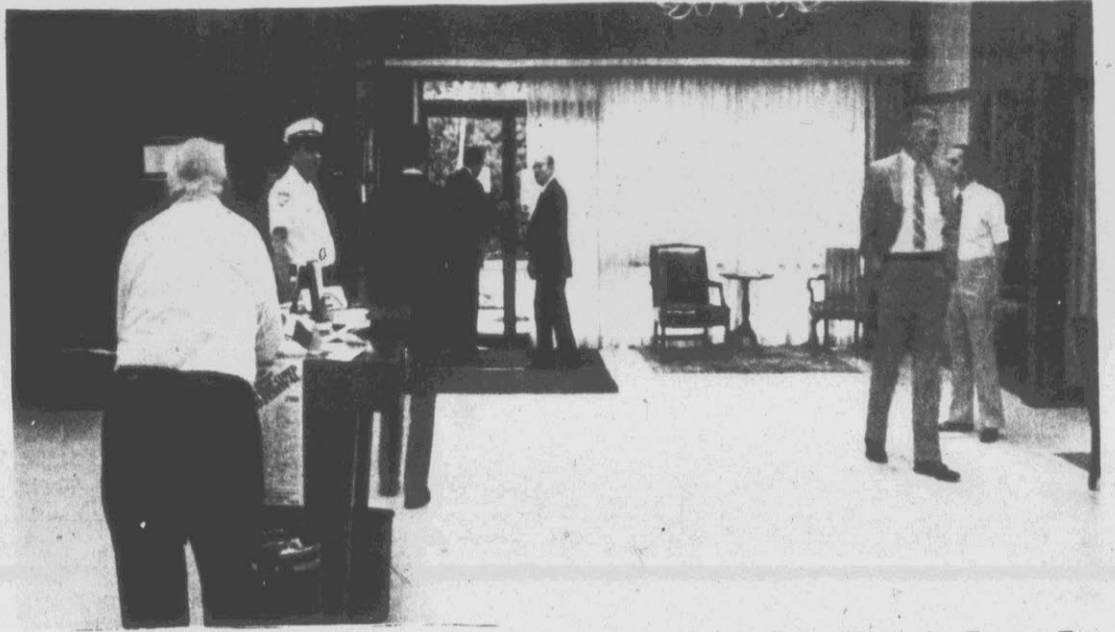

As part of a program to map galactic clusters in three dimensions to learn about their formation, an effort partially funded by the National Science Foundation, scientists now must examine those voids, Kirshner said.

Many cosmologists who study the origin and nature of the universe believe that galaxies were once more evenly distributed across the heavens.

But Dr. Paul L. Schechter of the Kitt Peak National Observatory in Arizona, one of those who discovered the super void, said this changed with time.

According to the theory, he said, galaxies in denser regions came together to form clusters and those in less dense regions moved away to form voids.

Other scientists involved in the discovery were Dr. Augustus Oemler Jr. of Yale University and Dr. Stephen A. Shectman of the Mount Wilson and Las Campanas Observatories, headquartered in Pasadena, Calif.

Shinn Files For Seat On Council

Local businessman Stuart Shinn filed this morning as a candidate for Greenville City Council.

A Greenville resident for 25 years, Shinn has been in the electrical and plumbing contracting business here most of that time. He is president of the Pitt County Electrical Contractors Association, is on the board of directors of the North Carolina Heating, Cooling and Plumbing Contractors Association and the Coastal Plains Area Apprenticeship Association. He is a Kiwanian, a member of the Elks Lodge here, a past director of the Greenville Jaycees, and a member of the Chancellor's Society of East Carolina University. He has been a member of both the volunteer squads of both the Greenville Fire Department and the Greenville Rescue Squad when they were separate organizations.

Originally from Clarksburg, W. Va., he attended East Carolina University. He and his wife, the former Lorraine Green of Kinston, have two daughters, Kimberly and Genia. "I'd like to be on the City Council so I can have a hand in what I see going on in Greenville," he said.

First State Bank Office Is Robbed At Gunpoint

First State Bank's northwest branch office, on Memorial Drive at the Farmville Boulevard intersection, was robbed at gunpoint about 9:27 a.m. today.

By 10:15 a.m. police had taken Ulyses Grant Bell III, 32 of 1701A West Third St. into custody and recovered all of the money taken in the robbery.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said a man armed with a sawed-off shotgun concealed under a sweater entered the bank and asked for change for two $20 bills. When the teller gave him the change, the man asked for more money and showed the shotgun to the teller.

The chief reported that the teller gave the robber a quantity of "bait money" which he stuffed into a bag before walking out of the bank.

Several other customers were in the bank at the time, Cannon said, but were unaware a robbery was in progress until the man walked out and the teller said she had just been held up.

Bell was taken into custody by police at the Medical Pavilion at 1800 West Fifth St. some 2,000 feet north of the First State Bank branch office — as he was preparing to get into a taxi, Cannon reported. Some $1,743 in cash was recovered.

Cannon said at noon that Bell had been charged with robbery with a firearm in connection with the incident.

Cannon expressed appreciation to other law enforcement agencies — the State Bureau of Investigation, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the North Carolina Highway Patrol and the Pitt County Sheriff's Department — for their cooperation in the investigation today.

Police Broaden Search Area For 4 Teen-Agers

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Police searching among glittering rides and midway booths have found few clues in the disappearance of four teen-age girls who vanished after heading for the State Fair of Oklahoma.

Livestock buildings, booths and food stands at the annual celebration of the waning prairie summer bear posters with pictures of two of the girls — and of a 36-year-old man being sought by police as a suspect in their disappearance.

"I hope somebody finds them alive," said a woman operating a carnival booth that had the missing girls' pictures prominently displayed.

Barney Hudson, who directs the police officers assigned to the fair, said officers were urging girls not to attend the fair alone. On Thursday, scores of uniformed and undercover police made their way between the rides and shows.

Attendance at the statewide fair had been running at a pace that would have eclipsed last year's 1.3 million until the disappearances, fair officials said. On Wednesday and Thursday, attendance was down about 9,000 compared with the totals for the same days last year. The fair ends Sunday.

Meanwhile, outside the city police fair post, relatives of the missing youngsters waited Thursday night, as they had every night since Saturday.

Charlotte Kinsey and Cinda Pallett, both 13 and from Oklahoma City, were last heard from Saturday when they called their parents from the fair to say they had been given a job unloading stuffed animals.

As a search for them began, police filed kidnapping charges in the case against Donald Michael Corey, 36, whom Lt. Adam Edwards of the police Youth Bureau called a drifter who apparently follows the carnival circuit in the South and Midwest. Police said they were familiar with Corey and that he had been in Oklahoma City on and off for the past six years.

UNICEF VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Carolyn Parsley, co-chairman of Greenville's UNICEF (United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund) campaign, has asked Hotline to appeal for churches, sororities, and other organizations that would like to canvass for UNICEF donations Sunday, Oct. 25. The project is sponsored by Churchwomen United. "Many of the churches are already involved, but Greenville is getting so large and growing so fast that there are many neighborhoods we can reach only with added help," Mrs. Parsley said. Anyone interested may call her, 752-6797, or Mary Greer, 756-1076.

Donna Simmons of 317 Circle Drive says there will be a car wash at Evans Street Auto Services (by the train tracks) Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. All proceeds will be given to the Donnie Lassiter family to help with medical expenses for Donnie Lassiter Jr., now hospitalized in Boston.

Taxpayers Lose Budget Battle

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Despite the shouts of an angry crowd of about 2,500 people, the Broward County Commission gave tentative approval early today to a budget for 1981-82 that raises property taxes.

The embattled panel voted 5-2 to turn down attempts by outraged county residents to have the $708 million budget repealed. Instead, the board ended the session shortly after 2 a.m. today by agreeing to meet Tuesday to review the budget, which was approved after two days of bickering.

In an outpouring of anti-tax sentiment, about 200 property owners in the crowd signed up at Fort Lauderdale's War Memorial Auditorium Thursday night to speak against this year's spending plan.

Waving placards that read "Stop," the crowd yelled "Recall, recall," referring to the option of citizens to oust elected officials by petition.

As approved, the county tax rate would be $6.29 for every $1,000 of assessed property value, two cents higher than last year. The increase would follow the hefty increases of past years.

"Like everyone here, I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to stand for it any more," said Leo Kaufman, the lead-off speaker. "If you need to tighten our belts, so do you."

Several speakers were escorted off the podium. Nearly every statement from the commission prompted an angry uproar. The speeches were piped outside so latecomers to the crowded meeting could hear.

Tractor Contest Three Wrecks Has Winners

The winner of the first annual 4-H tractor driving contest sponsored by the Pitt County Fair was Kelly Wall of Clay Root.

Wall won a $100 savings bond, a trophy, and an opportunity to represent Pitt County at the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival Tractor Driving Contest on Nov. 16.

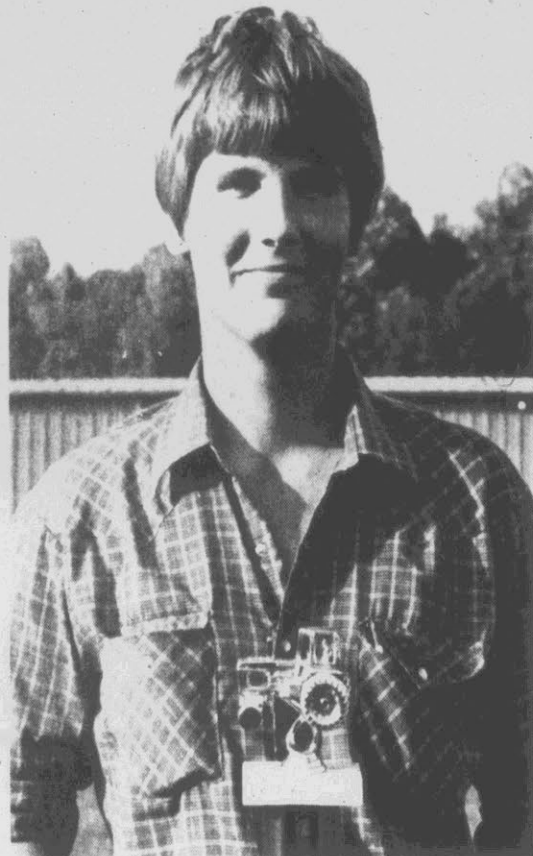

The contest was held Wednesday afternoon at the Pitt County Fairgrounds. Second place winner was Greg Evans of Ayden, who won a $50 savings bond.

In third place was Gary Evans of Ayden. Prizes were donated by the Pitt County Fair and Waller Tractor Company.

Coordinator of the tractor driving contest was Mark Warren and judges were Phillip Mills and Beth Theiling.

The contest was open to all Pitt County youth ages 14-19 and will be held again next year.

4-H TRACTOR DRIVING WINNER . . . is Kelly Wall of Clay Root, who won a $100 savings bond and a chance to represent Pitt County at the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival Tractor Driving Contest on November 16. The first annual 4-H tractor driving competition was held Wednesday at the Pitt County Fairgrounds.

Candidate Files Thursday

SIMPSON — Mrs. Brenda Gallin Hawkins announced her candidacy Thursday for the town council of the Village of Simpson.

Mrs. Hawkins filed with the Pitt Board of Elections as a candidate for one of the three council seats in the Nov. 3 municipal elections.

A Simpson native, Mrs. Hawkins is seeking her first public office. She is presently serving as a teacher's aide for grades three through eight at G. R. Whitfield School in Grimesland.

A graduate of Whitfield, she attended Raleigh Business School.

Mrs. Hawkins serves as treasurer of the Whitfield Parent Teachers Organization and is secretary of the Recognition of Junior Citizens Club. She is also treasurer of the Essence Communicators Club.

The candidate, who attends Phillip Baptist Church in Simpson, is married to Ray Hawkins and they have one son, Quincy, eight.

Church Plans To Participate

The St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church, Highway 33 east of Greenville, will participate in a four-day seminar Oct. 4-7 with the Rev. Gary Strickland of Pikeville.

Rev. Strickland holds a BA degree in political science and economics from Pembroke State University, the master of religious education from Duke University, and the master of divinity from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He served as an instructor in christian education at Emmanuel College before entering the full-time pastorate. He has since served churches in Washington and Wilson.

Praise and worship services will be featured with music by special guests and the church choir. Services will begin nightly at 7:30 p.m. For transportation needs contact Pastor Maurice Phelps at 752-5773 or 756-9723.

YARD SALE

Choir Number 5 of Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church will hold a fish fry and yard sale Saturday at 700C West 14th St. beginning at 8 a.m.

Three Wrecks Investigated By Police

An estimated $4,700 property damage resulted from three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, officers said, resulted from an 11:08 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road, involving cars driven by Mary Coward Stocks of Winterville and Julian Lyle Sanderson of Oakwood Acres Trailer Pk.

Police, who charged both Ms. Stocks and Sanderson with failing to stop for red lights, estimated damage to the Stocks car at $2,000 and set damage to the Sanderson car at $100.

Vehicles driven by Linwood Claston Bunch of 1706 East Fourth St. and Earl Lee Aiken of 1213 Drexel Ln. collided about 8:48 a.m. at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets, causing $400 damage to the Bunch truck and $1,000 damage to the Aiken car.

Investigators charged Bunch with failing to stop for a red light.

No charges were made following investigation of a 6 p.m. collision on James Street, 90 feet south of the Ninth Street intersection.

Officers said cars driven by Robin Lynn English of Pinetops and Phyllis Elizabeth Earnest of Jacksonville, collided, causing $1,000 damage to the English car and $200 damage to the Earnest auto.

Break-Ins Are Reported

The Pitt County Sheriff's Department is investigating break-ins reported at two concession facilities at the Pitt County Fairgrounds.

Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley said the incidents occurred sometime early Thursday at concession stands operated by the Boy's Club of Pitt County and by the Host Lions Club.

Oakley said that a quantity of food and drinks were taken from the Boy's Club facility. He added that it has not been determined whether any items other than assorted cigarettes were taken from the Lions Club concession.

REHEARSAL

The Eldress Hour Choir will hold a rehearsal on Saturday, Oct. 3 at 2 p.m. at St. Matthew Free Will Baptist Church.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED — Greenville Police said Alice Ruth Singletary of 2611 Tryon Dr., the driver of one of these cars, was in serious condition at Pitt Memorial Hospital following the 2:50 a.m. collision on the Tar River Bridge on Greene Street. The driver of the other vehicle, James Earl Brown of Route 1, Robersonville, and two passengers in his car, were also injured. Officers, who said investigation into the collision is incomplete, reported Brown was charged with driving under the influence. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Game Routing

DURHAM — North Carolina Highway Patrol Troop C commander Capt. R. A. Clark has suggested specific routes for fans traveling to the Duke-East Carolina University football game here tomorrow.

He said use of the suggested route will make it easier for them to get to the Wallace Wade Stadium parking area for the 1:30 p.m. game.

Clark said persons traveling to the game from Greenville and others locations in the east should travel I-40 until they reach the end of the freeway, then turn left onto Erwin Road and proceed past Duke Medical Center to Morreene Road where officers will direct drivers to the parking area.

Persons coming to the game from the north and northwest should travel south on I-85 and exit onto Morreene Road or N.C. 15-501 and continue on the N.C. 15-501 by-pass until they reach N.C. 751. Exit on N.C. 751, where Highway Patrolmen will direct drivers to parking areas.

Fans coming from the south and southwest should travel north on I-85, exit onto N.C. 751 and travel east to the N.C. 154-501 intersection where troopers will be stationed to direct fans to parking areas.

Clark said fans should leave the stadium parking areas by the same route they enter by.

He urged drivers to allow plenty of time to make the trip. Early arrival, Clark suggested, will avoid the last minute rush and the possibility of being re-routed to other parking areas which would result in large lines of traffic.

Grant Made To University

East Carolina University will receive a grant from the Department of Energy for technical assistance audits.

The grant of $41,723, announced by first District Congressman Walter B. Jones, will be used to measure specific costs, pay back periods and projected energy savings from the use of energy conservation measures.

The money will also be used to fund energy saving procedures, and purchase and installation of devices recommended by an earlier technical audit.

MASONIC NOTICE
The General sessions of the 111th Grand Communication will be held in the Holiday Inn, Wilson, U.S. 301 south Oct. 6-8. The Lodge of Sorrow will be held at Forbes Tabernacle, located at Lane Street exit. The Fraternal Social Hour will be at the American Legion Home, Lane Street Exit.

All lodges in district no. ten are asked to send delegates and worshipful masters are asked to attend the Grand Lodge beginning.

Dear Abby

Gift Wasn't Too Shabby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I bought my future father-in-law a season lottery ticket last Christmas, and when I gave it to him, I jokingly said that this would be the winning ticket and we would split the payoff when he won.

Well, imagine the shock when one month later he hit the $50,000 big one on that ticket! I was as thrilled as my future in-laws were, but as time went by, I wasn't offered any part of the winnings. My future mother-in-law could see the hurt in me, so I finally told her I thought I should have shared in the winnings, and she said, "If I were a bookie, I would only get 4 percent." I don't have to tell you how that made me feel. Then I was given $1,000.

I have since married their son, but the hurt is still there as far as my feelings are concerned.

What are your thoughts about this, Abby? Do you think I was treated fairly? Or shouldn't I have received half?
FEELS GYPPED

DEAR FEELS: You say you jokingly suggested to your then-future father-in-law that you'd split the winnings if he won, which does not constitute a commitment on his part, unless he agreed. Did he? If so, you were indeed gyped. If not, I think a $1,000 gift wasn't too shabby.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from the "Tattooed Man," asking how to remove a tattoo. May I make a suggestion? If he doesn't want to have the tattoo surgically removed, he can buy some Lydia O'Leary Cover Mark at a drugstore or the cosmetic department of a department store. It's a flesh-colored cream that can be applied directly over the tattoo. It will not rub off or wash off. In fact, it stays on so well it requires another product to remove it. Being a tattooed lady myself, I know it works.
TATTOOED IN PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR TATTOOED: Thanks! For years I've recommended Lydia O'Leary's Cover Mark to "hide" birthmarks. I am also informed that some dermatologists remove tattoos by laser — a new technique that leaves no scarring.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a relatively small office with four men and one other woman secretary. The problem is not the work — it's the odor! The other secretary drowns herself in some kind of foul-smelling perfume that makes me utterly nauseated. The fragrance does not mix with her chemistry, and she uses so much it's overpowering. The men here find it intolerable, too.

How does one tactfully break the news to her that her perfume is offensive?

With the exception of this one problem, I would feel great about my job. I really could use your advice on the subject since she's a nice person and I don't want to hurt her feelings.
GOTTA BREATHE IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR GOTTA: Believe it or not, some people "drown" themselves in perfume because their own sense of smell is deficient. Tell her privately, in a gentle, friendly way, that you are allergic to her perfume, and would she please try another brand and apply it sparingly.

Women Have Fall Coffee

The Pitt County Bar Auxiliary held its fall coffee at the home of Marge Parrish Wednesday morning. Mary Ann Browning was assisting hostess.

Guest speaker at the gathering was local attorney Ann Heffelfinger, who spoke on "Women and the Law." She discussed past and current legislation important to women's issues and stressed the importance of women becoming educated to laws and practices which affect them in such areas as inheritance, divorce and credit ratings.

Ann Herrin, auxiliary president, pointed out upcoming events and told of several activities involving East Carolina University.

The auxiliary functions throughout the year to assist the Pitt County Bar Association in its activities and to become acquainted with law wives, especially newcomers to Greenville and Pitt County.

Membership Drive Started Wednesday

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Museum of History Associates kicked off their 1981 membership campaign Wednesday with a brunch at the Governor's Mansion here honoring the campaign volunteers.

The Museum Associates is a 3,600 member statewide support group for the North Carolina Museum of History, its Northeastern Museum Service Branch the Museum of the Albemarle and the 23-state historic sites.

Over 300 volunteers from across the state were greeted at the Mansion by State Membership Chairman Mrs. Thomas W. Steed Jr. of Raleigh and her four assistant chairmen, Mrs. J. William Copeland of Murfreesboro and Raleigh, Mrs. Leroy Townsend of Lumberton, Mrs. E. H. Moore of Mt. Airy and Harry T. Jordan of Morganton. Also receiving were Mrs. H. A. Underwood III of Raleigh, president and Mrs. John L. McCain of Wilson, associate vice president.

The state is divided into 16 districts for the membership drive. Chairmen for Pitt County are Mrs. Michael Weaver and Mrs. Ross Shuping. Campaign volunteers are Mrs. Clifton Everette Jr., Mrs. William Freelove, Mrs. James Galloway Jr., Mrs. Joseph Moye and Mrs. Larry Vacek.

At the museum, volunteers saw a preview showing of an audiovisual on the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame which is available for programs for civic clubs and other groups throughout the state.

The Associates set a campaign goal of 200 new and renewal members.

THE BRIGHTEST AND THE GREATEST
3rd Quarter Bonus

The brightest and the greatest as far as diamonds are concerned reside in museums, government coffers and private collections throughout the world.

One of the most spectacular diamond finds of all time occurred in 1905. During a routine inspection of the Premier Mine in South Africa, the superintendent's eye was caught by a shiny object on one of the mine walls. It turned out to be the largest diamond crystal ever discovered — 3671 carats, or about one and one-third pounds, and measured 2 X 2 1/2 X 4 inches. It was named after Sir Thomas Cullinan, who had opened the Premier Mine and just happened to be visiting the day of the discovery.

The stone was sold to the Transvaal Government which presented it to King Edward VII on his 66th birthday. It was cut into nine major gemstones and 96 smaller stones.

The nine large stones remain either in the British Crown Jewels or in the possession of the Royal Family. The 530.2 carat Cullinan I, also called the Great Star of Africa, is the largest cut and polished diamond in the world. It sits in King Edward's royal scepter. Cullinan II, the world's second largest cut diamond, weighs 317.40 carats and adorns the band of the Imperial State Crown. Both are on display with the rest of the Crown Jewels in the Tower of London.

Have you given any thought to your family jewelry collection? Jewelry is a good choice to consider for an estate. It retains its value and provides enjoyment for your heirs.

Lights, Action, Roll'em

It's not really Hollywood of the South yet, but North Carolina slowly is beginning to make its mark in the film industry. The presence of such stars as Peter Sellers, for a movie at the Biltmore Estate a few years ago, and Natalie Wood and Cliff Roberson now for a new movie offer proof that the Tar Heel State is being considered. It still has not reached the proportion gained by such states as Utah as an alternative to Hollywood, but North Carolina's statue is growing.

Such Tar Heel pioneers as Earl Owensby, who converted an old farm near Shelby to a steadily growing studio complex, helped pave the way. Owensby fought the traditions in Hollywood, with restricted success, to find technicians and actors-actresses with less than star billing. In some cases, he had to star himself in his movies — which did gain attention, but not awards. In the last two years, his appeal, and that of North Carolina movie-making, has begun to hit more of those in film land.

Television also has helped expand the state's future in films, moving into several areas for commercials filmed in the state. Landmarks and other familiar scenes from North Carolina locales are popping up repeatedly in national and regional television commercials.

It hasn't come about purely by chance, and Gov. Jim Hunt deserves commendation for his support of the industry. Hunt's support expanded a program begun under Greenville native Bill Arnold, who then headed the state's travel and tourism bureau, to one handled by a separate state agency. It would appear the program will continue to grow, adding a shot in the arm to the area involved in the movie and to the state as a whole.

Who's Afraid Of What

The magazine "Psychology Today" has just done a survey on "America's Hopes and Fears." It is a followup on one they did in 1964 and again in 1974.

Things have changed, as far as our fears go. In 1964, the thing we were most afraid of was war. In 1981, our main fear is a "lower standard of living," (war comes in a weak third.)

When the survey was taken in 1964, Americans' second most prominent fear was "ill health in the family." In 1981, possibly because of the influence of the "me" generation, the respondents said their second greatest fear was "ill health for self."

No one wants to admit this, but even those of us who live in Washington have personal fears. We mask them with bravado and by smiling a lot. But underneath we're just as frightened as the person in Missoula, Mont., who has found a Mediterranean fruit fly in his grapefruit juice.

Armed with "Psychology Today," I went to a large party the other night and took a survey about what people in Washington were really afraid of.

Here are some of the more memorable responses:

A lawyer told me, "I'm afraid I'm going to be seated next to Supreme Court Justice Sandra O'Connor at a dinner party and say, 'What does your husband do?'"

"My biggest fear," a friend told me, "is that I'm going to be invited to the White House and break one of Nancy Reagan's $1,000 plates."

An administration aide said, "Off the record? I'm afraid Interior Secretary James Watt is going to give permission to strip mine the Rose Garden at the White House."

A congressman said, "My biggest personal fear is that someone is going to offer me $50,000 for my election campaign and I'm going to turn it down because I think it's an FBI Abscam setup. Then I'm going to find out it was a legitimate donation."

"My biggest fear," said a Treasury official, "is that Chrysler is going to make it, and then every large company that gets in financial

A State Department official said, "I have a deathly fear that I'm going to get a call from Al Haig some night who will ask me to produce evidence to prove that the only thing that can save El Salvador is a fleet of AWACS."

"My fear," a Democratic senator told me, "is that we're going to win back a majority in the Senate in 1982, and then we're not going to know what the hell to do."

"I'm afraid," said a friend from the Department of Labor, "that with the new budget cuts, every unemployment office in the country is going to go condominium."

A broker said, "I have this fear that if the Dow Jones average goes down to 500, President Reagan is going to condemn all the buildings on Wall Street and put the MX missile system in their place."

A reporter from The Washington Post said, "My biggest fear is that I'll do a series on the 'Right to Life' people, and then they'll want to kill me."

Someone asked me what my biggest fear was, and the first thing that came to mind was that I was stuck in an elevator for four hours with Phyllis Schlafly, and only one of us could get out.

trouble is going to want the same deal."

A lady told me, "I have this nightmare that I'll be sitting at a funeral next to Vice President George Bush and will say to him, 'What do you do?'"

Can Two Systems Merge?

Changes in the alignment of world powers never ceases to amaze us.

In the Vietnam era the United States and what was then called Red China were bitter enemies.

Now China is a bitter enemy of the Soviet Union, and the U. S. and China are practically allies.

There are proposals from China for uniting mainland China and Taiwan.

How it would be done, we do not understand since Communist China and capitalist Taiwan have fundamental differences over how a society should be run.

Perhaps it can be worked out but it is difficult to see how Taiwan can reunite with the Communist mainland without giving up its bustling capitalistic system.

THIS AFTERNOON

Roads To Stay

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—If you figured North Carolina's big road fund battle was behind us with adoption of a 3-cent hike in the gasoline tax, forget it.

When legislators return to Raleigh this month, the pesky Highway Fund shortfall will once more dominate the agenda and dictate practically every other decision made.

The State Board of Transportation has sent up a clear signal: big roadbuilding projects are a thing of the past. At its last meeting, that body awarded 66 contracts. Only four involved construction; 62 were resurfacing projects.

Recognizing the political tight spot the roads program is in, the resurfacing work has spread over 1,000 miles of highway in 78 of the state's 100 counties. Another 1,900 miles will be resurfaced during this fiscal year. That's a considerable improvement over the 700 miles resurfaced last year, but much less than the annual 3,600 miles of resurfacing during a five year period which state officials claim is essential to putting roads back in prime condition.

U.S. Loss

Meanwhile, the big bucks for road construction have been coming from the federal government — dollars for interstate work, major U.S. highways, and urban expressways. That fund will lose more than $55 million in the next two years, and it already seems certain that two big interstate projects are in jeopardy: The expressway from Raleigh to Wilmington, and from Raleigh to Greensboro.

Gov. Jim Hunt pushed the gasoline tax through the General Assembly but met still resistance on adding other taxes such as one on alcoholic beverages and one on mining operations. A plan to divert from the General Fund to the Highway Fund the sales taxes collected on vehicle accessories and parts — about $60 million a year — is at a dead end.

The governor vows he will push his higher tax on beer, wine and whiskey this month, but legislators have been stung by their constituents on the gas tax, and are likely to show considerable reluctance to hike any taxes.

The notion the State Highway Patrol could and should be funded from the General Fund rather than the Highway Fund — that's a $50 million item yearly — has been thoroughly debated but without resolution. When the governor keeps his promise to seek higher pay for state troopers — that will cost $4 million — legislators are likely to turn again to the idea of transferring the funding out of the Highway Fund Program.

There is, it is certain, no end to road problems, and no quick and easy solutions for them

Bad Bridges

For no sooner will legislators come back to full realization of the roadbuilding and maintenance problems and the need for even more revenue than they will be greeted with a report from the U.S. Department of Transportation on highway

Other Editors Say Enough Is Enough

(Winston-Salem Sentinel)

Twenty years ago, North Carolina legislators did their work at desks in the second floor chambers of the Capitol. They had no separate offices, no private secretaries and only a minimal staff.

The 1963 session met in the Legislative building, a $9 million or so structure designed specifically as quarters for the General Assembly. In addition to committee rooms and other facilities, each member had a cubicle office and each was assigned a secretary. The staff expanded to help fill the space.

When they return to Raleigh next month for the budget review session, lawmakers will be able to preview the newest addition to their domain. An $8.5 million building, near completion, will provide a two-office suite for each member. Among its amenities will be a private bathroom for Lt. Gov. James C. Green, a feature he fought to regain after it was scratched from plans.

The uncurbed appetite for legislative space over the past two decades raises a question: How much is enough? At what point will legislative leaders be satisfied? Citizens and taxpayers, who foot the bill, are entitled to answers.

One thing is clear. Unless the public calls a halt, the expansion is very likely to continue. Citizens should get the message to their representatives that enough is enough, and that the legislature's concern to reduce spending ought to begin at home.

Strength For Today

UNHAPPINESS

There is never such a thing as unhappiness apart from selfishness. When we are unhappy, either we ourselves have been selfish, or someone else has been selfish. Usually it is we who are at fault.

Some people may not agree with this statement. But maybe it will be more persuasive if we consider another along with it. The disposition of all of us is to blame other people for our trouble. Try as we will, most of us cannot get away from the tendency to project our troubles to other people and other things. Therefore, we need the more to ponder the warning that if we only look carefully, we shall certainly discover selfishness in the picture somewhere, and usually that selfishness is lodged squarely in our own hearts and minds.

So we should remember that in diagnosing a difficulty we should probe down and get selfishness out first. If we do, we will find that there is not much left of our unhappiness. — Elisha Douglass

There Is Support Of Inflation

By CHET CURRIER

AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody hates inflation, right? Political leaders and the electorate, producers, consumers — everybody. Like Iago in Shakespeare's "Othello," it represents pure evil, and whenever it appears on our economic stage, the audience hisses and boos as one.

If all that is true, though, it's strange we have had so little luck for so long trying to subdue it. Surely a country that could send a man to the moon...

That's just the point, say some observers who have studied the problem. Inflation turns out to have a very large body of support.

It isn't a readily visible one, to be sure. There is no Society of the Friends of Inflation, with a Washington lobby and a large public relations staff.

Without consulting the Congressional Record, one can state confidently that nobody has stood up lately in the House or Senate to plead inflation's cause.

Some of inflation's most ardent supporters would be the last to think of themselves as such, says Raymond F. DeVoe Jr., an investment analyst at the brokerage firm of Legg Mason Wood Walker.

"This schizoid tendency is quite apparent at suburban cocktail parties," DeVoe observes. "Increases in school taxes, fuel oil, gasoline and all sorts of services are discussed heatedly, ending with the clarion call, 'something's got to be done about it!'"

"Then the discussion turns to property values, and the two faces of suburbia become apparent. 'My place has doubled in the last X years,' or 'I bought this for Y in 1972 and I could get 2Y now,'" or words to that effect.

DeVoe says he doesn't mean to single out suburbanites as inflation's only silent supporters. Just about

Deal's Cost Mounts Fast

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The prospect of humiliating defeat on the AWACS deal is traced inside the administration to President Reagan's decision to denature his National Security Council staff instead of using its last line of protection against errors of Cabinet departments.

Persian Gulf security for the industrialized democracies is the obvious first cost of losing the sale of the AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia. Other costs are mounting fast: a move bruited about the Senate to block Britain from selling its Nimrod radar aircraft to the Saudis, ominous reports from Riyadh that the Saudis may reduce oil production if the AWACS deal fails, inflating energy costs for the West.

Reagan's senior advisers, staggered that such ill fortune could suddenly descend on the president, are contemplating restoration of the NSC staff to its muscular state of past administrations. Enlarged in power by Presidents Kennedy and Nixon, the NSC system coordinated national security and protected the president from parochial departmental games.

The AWACS deal is no parochial game. It has the full support of State, Defense and the CIA. But the NSC staff no longer acts as an inside arbiter to warn the president a deal could go sour. So, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger rammied it through the National Security Council last spring, without portents of political disaster getting aired in Ronald Reagan's Oval Office. Instead of protecting the president's interests, the NSC staff became the errand boy assigned to line up Senate votes.

That made NSC staff director Richard V. Allen the chief headhunter in the Republican-controlled Senate. Allen is the first national security assistant not to have automatic access to the president and reports instead to all-powerful presidential counselor Edwin Meece III.

The decision to place Meece between himself and Allen was Reagan's device to deny power to his NSC staff, partly out of deference to Secretary of State Alexander Haig, partly to consummate his campaign pledge to denature the NSC staff. But Meece has a vast array of responsibilities, with little time for AWACS. Thus, Allen has had the responsibility without the authority.

The downgrading of Allen and his staff has cost Reagan dearly. Although Allen and his senior aides pretend otherwise, Reagan has been the target of constant end runs by Cabinet members knowing they could bypass the NSC apparatus to gain favored treatment.

A bitter case in point was Weinberger's secretive studies of the MX mobile missile controversy. With little warning, Weinberger brought his own MX solution — now discarded — directly to the National Security Council itself. He asked on-the-spot support from the NSC to make the MX airborne before that possibility had had full study by the NSC staff.

Secretary of Agriculture John Block used similar tactics to win the president's consent on ending the Soviet grain embargo. Reagan had promised to do that during the campaign, but the decision came before Haig and Weinberger had made their case against it. Using Cabinet-level access to the president to personally lobby critical decisions reduces the impact of conflicting points of view. The NSC staff, no longer a coordinating arm of the presidency, cannot prevent this.

During the first eight months of the Reagan presidency, Allen's staff was repeatedly bypassed and ignored by department heads. Haig, Weinberger and Allen have an informal agreement to show each other their public speeches before they are made, but Allen does not use his staff to review them. Haig's major speech in New Orleans on U.S.-Soviet relations was first read in the newspapers by Soviet experts on Allen's staff.

Departmental feuding over arms control policy is "at the danger point," in the words of one high official. The NSC staff is in no position to assert authority. A dispute between Defense and State over whether to hold those talks in Geneva or Vienna lasted two months, causing one participant to leave a meeting in disgust. But the NSC staff lacked jurisdiction to resolve it.

These examples are insignificant compared to imminent defeat on the AWACS deal. When Allen and his staff were ordered to round up those Senate votes, their timetable called for mobilizing presidential lobbying in mid-July. But the NSC was told to be quiet until Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin finished his U.S. visit.

Ceding that time may deliver another blow to a president already reeling from domestic trials. But this latest blunder provides ammunition for presidential advisers who recognize Reagan's mistake in making errand boys out of his NSC staff.

economy in which the forces of the marketplace could push prices down as well as up. Unfortunately, he says, "a free-market, competitive, dog-eat-dog uncontrolled capitalist economy is nobody's paradise."

"Businesses, facing prices they can't predict and markets they can't control, fear for their economic health. Workers, without control over their wages or their terms of employment, fear for their physical health. Those who can't work fear for their lives."

In Case's view, the chief cause of inflation "has been the long, tortuous and largely successful escape from the terrible insecurity of the marketplace."

If Americans' feelings were really single-mindedly set against inflation, DeVoe maintains, "it would have ceased to be a problem a long time ago. A great many people, whether they admit or not, are closet beneficiaries of inflation."

bridge replacement and rehabilitation which ranks North Carolina at the top of the list of states with bad bridges.
A survey of all 50 states found somewhat less than half of the nation's half-million bridges in serious shape structurally or in design faults.
For North Carolina, the survey reports 75.7 percent of the bridges deficient in some manner. Of the 14,960 bridges in the state, 11,319 were said to need attention. There is no money in the Highway Fund for bridge replacement.

Bonn Confirms Plan For Massive East-West Spy Swap

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
BONN, West Germany (AP) — The communist spy whose arrest seven years ago forced the resignation of Chancellor Willy Brandt has been returned to East Germany in the first step of an massive East-West prisoner swap, the Bonn government confirmed today.
Witnesses said earlier that a van carrying former Brandt aide Guenther Guillaume, 54, sped into communist territory Thursday night at a crossing point at Herleshausen, southeast of Kassel. Guillaume had been hospitalized at the Bonn University Clinic since Monday undergoing treatment for high blood pressure and a kidney ailment, officials said.

A government spokesman, in confirming Guillaume's release, said the exchange "had not yet been completed," indicating that others involved in the swap may not yet have been freed.
There has been speculation here for weeks that Guillaume's release could herald a trade that will bring freedom to as many as 3,000

East Germans.
West German newspapers reported last week that the exchange would also involve East bloc agents jailed in Denmark, France and South Africa.
But a reliable government source said Thursday that the South Africans had refused to release a jailed Soviet agent, Alexei Kuzlov, unless Moscow handed over imprisoned Jewish dissident Anatoli Shcharansky, a trade apparently rejected by the Soviets.
With the South Africans no longer in the deal, the spokesman said, the East Germans were expected to release fewer Western agents than first thought.
The Bonn government has never revealed how many of its agents were to be set free.

but press reports put the figure between 30 and 60.
In addition, the East Germans were reportedly prepared to allow some 3,000 ordinary citizens to leave for the West to join family members who had already defected here.
Government sources said the West Germans would also release Renate Lutze, a former Defense Ministry clerk convicted in 1979 of handing over hundreds of secret documents to the East Germans, and three other agents.
In Copenhagen, Danish Justice Minister Ole Espersen confirmed the West Germans had asked for the release of convicted spy Joerg Meyer as part of the exchange. The minister said, however, that the request was "difficult" and gave no indication whether it would be approved.
There was no confirmation from Paris of West German press reports that the French had been asked to release East German Gen. Bernhard Zorn, jailed for allegedly photographing military installations near the French city of Lille.

Guillaume's release climaxed one of the most dramatic postwar coups for the East German's highly regarded State Security Service.
Passing themselves off as East German defectors, Guillaume and his wife Christel moved to the Frankfurt area in the 1960s and patiently worked their way into the local Social Democratic Party organization.

Administration Rebukes Israel For Intervention In AWACS Deal

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, unable to sway Senate opponents, is telling Israel that the sale of AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia is none of its business and warning Congress that "you'll bear the responsibilities" if the deal is defeated.

President Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. appeared on two different fronts Thursday to try to prod the Senate into accepting the $8.5 billion arms sale.

Reagan also pledged to protect the Saudi monarchy from a revolutionary takeover and Haig said there would be no more compromising to save the AWACS sale on Capitol Hill.

But Sen. John Glenn of Ohio, a Democrat whose support is considered essential if the sale is to go through, said the deal "is doomed to defeat" unless the Saudis are willing to accept joint manning of the aircraft.

Haig told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that an agreement with the Saudis ensures that American training crews would be aboard the planes into the 1990s. But he said the Saudis would not accept the permanent joint U.S.-Saudi crewing proposed by Glenn.

Reagan, meanwhile, told a White House news conference that the sale "significantly enhances our own vital national security interests in the Middle East."

Contending that the sale "poses no threat to Israel now or in the future," the president said: "While we must always take into account the vital interests of our allies, American security interests must remain our internal responsibility. It is not the business of other nations to make American foreign policy."

Asked if he could guarantee that the AWACS would not fall into enemy hands if the Saudi monarchy fell in an Iran-type revolution, Reagan said:

"I can make that guarantee that it will not compromise our security. ... I have to say that Saudi Arabia, we will not permit another Iran."

Without providing specifics, Reagan said "there is no way we could stand by" and see Saudi Arabia taken over by anyone who wanted to cut off its oil exports.

Congress now has until Oct. 31 to try to veto the $8.5 billion sale of five Airborne Warning and Control System radar planes and F-15 jet fighter weaponry.

Both the Senate committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee are now lined up to vote against the sale next week. A House veto is likely Oct. 13, but the Senate vote is still too close to call.

At the Senate hearing, Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., told Haig that he could see nothing new in the Saudi assurances and asked if the administration can make any further changes to avoid defeat.

"This issue is of such significance that I think the president is going to do what he thinks is right — win or lose," Haig replied.

"And if you in your responsible way decide not to support it, you'll bear the responsibilities for that vote — and be held accountable by the electorate, by the American people and by your own consciences for whether it was right and what consequences it did or did not lead to," he said. "But you're asking me are we at the end of the line, and I would say basically yes."

Earlier, Glenn told Haig that he cannot accept the sale as is because it lacks joint crewing and because the Saudi planes would not be fully equipped to guide U.S. as well as Saudi forces in a Middle East war.

"You would defeat it on the basis of that?" Haig asked.

"Yes," Glenn replied.

"Well, senator, I think that would be tragic," Haig said.

Haig said the Saudi planes will be geared to defend Saudi oil fields and could be equipped in hours to help U.S. forces fight a massive invasion by Soviet or other forces.

But Glenn said the Saudis won't have hours, only minutes, if war starts. "We're taking a chance with the security of the equipment in that airplane," he said.

Haig told the committee that a "fundamental agreement" has been completed with the Saudis with these safeguards:

—American instructors will be on the Saudi planes and at ground stations "well into the 1990s."

—Whatever the Saudi AWACS radars see will be shared with U.S. stations.

—"There will be no operation of Saudi AWACS outside Saudi airspace."

—U.S. inspection teams will monitor elaborate security measures for safeguarding AWACS equipment and the planes will be guarded round the clock.

But Glenn, Pressler and Democratic Sens. Joseph R. Biden of Delaware, Paul S. Sarbanes of Maryland and Alan Cranston of California said there is nothing new about any of those safeguards.

Haig disagreed, saying the agreement keeping Americans on the planes into the 1990s is "very different from what you heard before now."

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and Gen. David E. Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified Monday that Americans would be on the planes into the 1990s whether the Saudis agreed to any new compromise or not.

Milk Support Prices Raised

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department boosted dairy subsidies 3 percent today, costing the government an extra $1 million a day and possibly triggering higher prices for consumers.

Shortly before the government action was announced late Thursday, however, the House voted 328-58 overwhelmingly to roll back the increase. The Senate still must act on the bill.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block immediately pledged to lower the support level as soon as Congress gives him the authority, but department economists said the predicted rise in consumer prices may never be rolled back.

Milk support levels, frozen at $13.10 a hundred pounds for the past year, automatically increased to $13.49 on Thursday because Congress has not yet approved a new package of commodity support programs to replace those that expired earlier in the week.

While the higher support price was technically in effect Thursday, officials said the Commodity Credit Corp., on advice of attorneys, delayed any milk purchases, hoping for congressional action.

But when the reprieve didn't come, Block announced that the CCC would begin buying up milk at the higher price.

To keep prices up for dairy farmers, the CCC buys commercial dairy products and stores them so that the price for goods sold on the open market remains near the support level.

Even without that emergency legislation, the support level will drop once

Congress passes the new farm bill, probably within a month.

Until the rollback, however, the higher supports will cost the government an extra $7 million to $10 million a week.

And officials said any increase for any length of time could give retailers, who have seen their profit margins erode in the last year, a reason to increase consumer prices and keep them there even after the higher support price ends.

The emergency bill passed the House with the reluctant votes of most dairy-state congressmen. Several indicated, however, that they hoped to win backing from their colleagues for a new dairy program that would provide more support in the long run than President Reagan would like.

The Senate already has approved a new dairy program along the lines Reagan wanted, and the House, which will consider dairy supports next week, has been expected to adopt much the same plan.

Wilson To Head Gift Unit

Howard Wilson will serve in the 1981 United Way campaign as chairman of the special gifts division. In making the announcement, Andy Warren said, "Howard served in this capacity in last year's campaign and did an outstanding job. We are delighted that he agreed to serve again this year."

A retired southeastern sales manager for International Minerals and Chemical Corporation, Wilson is active in many civic affairs. He is a retired colonel in the United States Air Force and was commander of the local air force unit for a number of years. Wilson was recently appointed by Governor Jim Hunt to serve on the Governor's Advisory Committee on Agriculture, Forestry and Seafood Industry.

He is a member of the Greenville Area Planning and Zoning Commission and the Planning and Zoning Task Force Committee. Wilson also is a member of the board of directors of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce and serves on the following committees: University Liaison Committee, Agri-business Committee, Ambassadors Club and Retention Committee, Membership Committee, Congressional Action, Local Concerns and State Concerns Committees. He is also president of the Exchange Club of Greenville and serves as treasurer of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee.

Wilson is a graduate of the University of Georgia with a degree in agricultural engineering. He is a member of the University Charter Club, the Agricultural Eterna Club and the Bull-Dog Club, and a member of the East Carolina University Pirate Club. He is also a graduate of the University of Baltimore in executive management. Wilson is a member of the Memorial Baptist Church and has served as chairman of the board of deacons, superintendent of Sunday school, director of adult training union and is a present member of the board of deacons. He taught the men's fellowship Sunday school for 20 years.

Wilson is a mason and member of the Sudan Temple Shrine, and a member of the Brook Valley Golf and Country Club. He is married to Frances Corley of Atlanta, Ga. and they reside at 116 Oxford Road. They have two children.

Wilson is a native of Athens, Ga. and has resided in North Carolina for the past 28 years.

ABA Hits Bus Bill By East

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An anti-busing bill sponsored by Senator John P. East, R.N.C., was characterized Thursday as "politically dangerous" and potentially unconstitutional by an American Bar Association spokesman.

But several legal scholars supported the bill, which would strip the lower federal courts of their power to order school busing to achieve integration.

"Even if Congress feels that the Supreme Court or the federal court system has adopted the wrong approach (on busing), the remedy is not jurisdictional manipulation, a constitutionally doubtful and politically dangerous policy," said ABA representative Robert Meserve.

Meserve, in opening day hearings on the bill, urged Congress not to invade the traditional power of the federal courts to act as the final arbiter of the Constitution.

Nine legal scholars testified for more than three hours on the legal and constitutional ramifications of the East bill, with several saying the federal courts had overstepped their constitutional authority in requiring racial balance in schools.

They added that Congress has the power to limit the federal courts under Article III of the U.S. Constitution. The article provides that "the judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish."

Indiana University law school dean William F. Harvey said the constitutional guarantees of equal protection under the law, which had been violated by local school boards during segregation, were not being violated by federal courts that require busing for racial balances.

"It is my judgement that today in the United States, we have not changed one iota," Harvey said. "The remedy (busing) has become the wrong."

East argued that the Supreme Court had violated the "fundamental right" of "racial neutrality."

"I would argue that the remedy of court-ordered busing for purposes of achieving racial balance violates the very right the court had articulated in Brown vs. Board of Education — the right to racial neutrality," East said.

"This is far more than a busing bill," responded Daniel Pollitt, a law professor at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. "This is what I consider a radical alteration of our system of government."

"I think to achieve ultimate color blindness, we must take color into consideration until we have remedied the injustices of the past," he added.

At one point in the hearing, East vigorously denied charges that he was proposing a radical change in the separation of power.

He said the framers of the constitution gave Congress the power to "emasculate" the federal court system if it chose. East said he was only proposing a "modest" limitation on the lower federal court's powers.

In a Democratic society, East said, the legislative branch "is the first among equals," and should have the authority to set major social policy issues such as busing for desegregation.

FUNERAL — Hell's Angels motorcycle gang members follow hearses carrying the bodies of two slain club members, Charlotte chapter president Michael "Thunder" Finazzo, 40, and Tyler "Yank" Frndak, 30, in a funeral procession Thursday. Carolina Power Accepts $40,000 Radiation Fine

ATLANTA (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. will not protest a $40,000 fine leveled Thursday by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for an alleged radiation control violation at a nuclear plant, a CP&L spokesman said.

The proposed penalty resulted from a special three-day inspection held in July which confirmed reports that a plant worker at the Brunswick nuclear plant had been overexposed to radiation while repairing a reactor water cleanup system valve.

Mac Harris, a spokesman for CP&L, said the company does not intend to protest the fine.

He said the employee was working on the water purification system of Unit 2 at the Brunswick plant July 17 when he received a dose of radiation higher than the NRC allows, but below a level which is considered harmful.

Ben Furr, vice president of nuclear operations for CP&L, said the incident was the result of personnel error.

"We have discussed the matter with the NRC," he said. "The overexposure resulted from insufficient communication between two health-physics technicians, resulting in personnel error. This incident was not representative of a deficiency in either the Brunswick health-physics program or the qualifications standards required of its technicians."

But Victor Stello Jr., director of the NRC office of inspection and enforcement in Atlanta, told CP&L in a letter mailed Thursday that the problem was caused by inadequacies in the company's radiation exposure control program.

"Our concern with regard to this overexposure is amplified in that survey data was available which should have indicated that the potential for significant radiation exposure existed during work on a reactor water cleanup system valve," Stello said.

He said a contributing factor was inexperience on the part of a radiation control technician who did not meet the minimum experience level required by the Brunswick facility license.

Pay Raise Issue Sparking Debate

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Disagreement over a larger pay raise for teachers and state employees spilled into public view Thursday as the General Assembly's appropriations committees began meetings on the state budget.

The committees, meeting in advance of Monday's opening of the special legislative session, took no action on the pay-raise issue.

But legislators engaged in sometimes hostile exchanges as a number of rank-and-file Democrats voiced support for raising the state's economic predictions if necessary to provide money for salaries.

Led by Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, Democrats in leadership positions generally stuck by their position that only a one-time bonus of $300 to $400 per teacher or state employee was possible.

And Royall insisted that there could be no guarantees that higher pay levels could be continued when the next fiscal year begins July 1, 1982.

"There ain't no way it could go beyond that without deficit spending," he said.

Others, citing commitments to grant larger salaries, balked at the conservative economic predictions of the leadership.

Generally backing Gov. Jim Hunt's proposal for a pay raise of 4 percent to 5 percent, they urged that the legislature raise its budget assumption that the state's tax collections will grow 10 percent during the fiscal year that began July 1. That move would produce more money for a pay raise and other spending requests.

Afterward, Royall acknowledged that sentiment was growing to raise the revenue projection to at least 11 percent. But he condemned the move as "irresponsible."

"I'm sure of it, but that's the easy way out," Royall said.

Hunt has recommended that the budget be based on a 12 percent growth assumption. But legislators, when they passed the state budget in July, reduced the figure to 10 percent. The difference is important, as legislators would have $56 million more to appropriate if they assume the higher collections.

With lobbyists for state employees and teachers filling the gallery, Sen. Melvin Daniels, D-Pasquotank, argued that an 11 percent growth projection would be a good compromise. But Royall and House Appropriations Chairman Rep. Billy Watkins, D-Granville, said that would be too risky.

"This is not the leadership talking — this is the rank-and-file talking," Daniels said in a tense exchange with Watkins.

"You're just one member of the ranking and file," responded Watkins.

"I think it's a lot of the rank-and-file talking," Daniels returned.

The joint House and Senate committee sessions were held to get an early start on changes in the state budget to be made when the legislature opens its unusual special session on Monday.

Elsie Porter Files For Board

SIMPSON — Mrs. Elsie M. Porter filed Thursday with the Pitt Board of Elections as a candidate for the town council here.

Mrs. Porter, who is seeking her first elected office, will run for one of the three seats on the village of Simpson's governing board in the Nov. 3 balloting.

A native of the Simpson area, Mrs. Porter is a graduate of East Carolina University with a bachelor of arts degree. A retired medical technologist, she was formerly employed by Pitt County Memorial Hospital and then the Medical Arts Clinic (now Quadrangle Internal Medicine).

Mrs. Porter, who attends Salem Methodist Church here, is married to Gentry Porter and they have two married children.

Traffic Island Is Beautified

A small downtown traffic island at Pitt and West Fifth streets has now been beautified, thanks to contribution of funds for the project by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. to the Greenville Beautification and Litter Control Committee, and coordination with the city of Greenville.

When CT&T offered to fund the project, Terry Oglethorpe, city horticulturist, drew up landscape plans for the city owned property. The cost of the initial planting of trees and shrubs was provided for by CT&T's donation. Maintenance of the area will be undertaken by the city.

Any business, agency or firm in Greenville that might be interested in funding an area to be beautified through a similar arrangement is invited to call 752-4137, extension 242 for details and arrangements for such a project.

Two Get Scholarships

ECU News Bureau

Two environmental health students in the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions are the recipients of $200 statewide scholarships.

William Service of Durham is the winner of the 1981 Dewey Padgett Memorial Scholarship. Abner Braddy of Windsor received the 1981 N.C. Restaurant Association Scholarship.

The awards were presented by Bill Lynch, president of the N.C. Environmental Health Association, and Jerry Williams, executive director of the N.C. Restaurant Association, at the recent annual business meeting of the Environmental Health Section of the N.C. Public Health Association in Fayetteville.

Service and Braddy are seniors in the E.C.U. Department of Environmental Health.

Annual Session

The 113th annual Session of the Northeast Conference "B" Division of the United American Free Will Baptist Denomination Inc. will convene at the Mount Calvary F.W.B. Church Monday through Sunday. Bishop Churchill C. Thomas will be the presiding bishop and Dr. W.L. Jones is host-pastor.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

PONTIUS PILATE, THE MAN WHO COULD HAVE SAVED JESUS' LIFE!

PILATE, ROMAN PROCURATOR OF JUDEA FOR TEN YEARS (A.D. 26-36), WAS AN UNFIT RULER, NEVER ABLE TO UNDERSTAND THE RELIGIOUS PRINCIPLES OR THE NATIONAL PRIDE OF THE JEWS OVER WHOM HE HELD SUPREME POWER. FROM THE VERY INCEPTION OF HIS GOVERNORSHIP, HE MADE MISTAKE AFTER MISTAKE, ROUSING THE IRE OF THE PEOPLE EACH TIME! WHEN HE WAS ASKED TO CONDEMN JESUS, HE WAS ALSO WARNED THAT, IF HE DIDN'T, COMPLAINTS WOULD BE SENT TO ROME! AFRAID FOR HIS OWN POLITICAL SAFETY, PILATE WEAKLY COMPLIED, ALTHOUGH HE STATED PUBLICLY HE THOUGHT JESUS WAS A MAN UNJUSTLY ACCUSED!

AS A YOUNG MAN, PONTIUS PILATE, OF HIGH EQUESTRIAN BIRTH, SERVED HIS TIME, AS ALL YOUNG NOBLES, IN THE ROMAN CAVALRY UNTIL HE WAS IN LINE FOR A LUCRATIVE POSITION. ON RECEIVING HIS GOVERNORSHIP, HE COULD HARDLY HAVE REALIZED HE WAS EMBARKED UPON A ROAD OF MISMANAGED AFFAIRS, A RECALL TO ROME IN GREAT DISGRACE AND EXILE TO GAUL WHERE HE WOULD FINALLY COMMIT SUICIDE!

NEXT WEEK: IF YOU WANT TO EAT BREAD, FIRST YOU MUST MAKE IT!

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced broadly today, continuing a gradual recovery from its summer-long slide.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 28.25 in the last four sessions, rose 4.86 to 857.12 by noon today.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than a 3-1 margin in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

K mart led the active list, off 1/8 at 17 1/2 in trading that included a 500,000-share block at that price.

Point-plus gainers on the active list included Union Oil of California, up 1 1/2 at 34; Northwest Airlines, up 1/4 at 31 3/4; and Hewlett-Packard, up 1/4 at 42 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index added 69 to 68.19. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 4.44 to 304.44.

Volume on the Big Board came to 22.59 million shares at noon, against 18.19 million at the same point Thursday.

Dr. Maier Is Named To Group

Dr. Robert Maier, vice chancellor of academic affairs at East Carolina University, has been named to a state commission to study North Carolina's needs for the next two decades.

The 58-member commission was appointed by Gov. Jim Hunt to prepare for the growth and change expected in the state between now and the year 2000.

UNC President William C. Friday will serve as chairman of the commission and vice-chairman will be Elizabeth Kooztz, assistant superintendent for teacher education with the Department of Public Instruction.

It will be the responsibility of the Commission on the Future to examine projections of expected changes and to involve the state's top thinkers in determining realistic choices available for the next two decades.

The first meeting of the Commission on the Future is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 22 at the Hilton Inn in Raleigh.

Kenneth Dews of Winterville is a member of the governor's State Goals and Policy Board.

Homecoming

Meadowbrook Presbyterian Church will be having its annual homecoming this Sunday, Oct. 4. The guest speaker will be Dr. John L. Speight.

Dr. Speight received his master's degree from Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va. and his doctorate from McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. He has served churches in West End, Francisco, Collinstown and Dunn N.C. He is presently serving the Parsons Presbyterian Church in Parsons, Va. The Rev. Bronson Matney invites the public to attend.

Balloon Sunday

Balloon Sunday will be observed at Temple Free Will Baptist Church Sunday. At 10 a.m. or shortly thereafter, everyone present will release a helium-filled balloon with his or her name and a Bible verse written on a slip of paper inside. The person whose balloon goes the greatest distance will receive a Bible with his or her name inscribed on it. Once in the past a Temple Church balloon went all the way to Rhode Island.

Visitors are welcome to take part. The church is located behind Sunshine Garden Center on State Road 1708.

UNIT MEETING

The meeting place of the next gathering Greenville-Pitt County Unit of the North Carolina Retired School Personnel was erroneously reported. The next local meeting will be held at the Holiday Inn (Memorial Drive) at noon, Nov. 18. The District meeting will be held at the Washington N.C. Holiday Inn, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

ASSOCIATION MEET

The Lakeview Terrace Tenants Association will hold a business meeting Saturday at 5 p.m. at the home of Rev. Dorsey Acklin. All officers and members are asked to be present.

EVENING SPEAKER

The Rev. Roger Hooks will preach at St. John Baptist Church, Stokes, Sunday night at 7:30. He will be accompanied by his choir of Holly Hill Church. The public is invited.

Church Plans To Participate

The St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church, Highway 33 east of Greenville, will participate in a four-day seminar Oct. 4-7 with the Rev. Gary Strickland of Pikeville.

Rev. Strickland holds a BA degree in political science and economics from Pembroke State University, the master of religious education from Duke University, and the master of divinity from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

He served as an instructor in christian education at Emmanuel College before entering the full-time pastorate. He has since served churches in Washington and Wilson.

Praise and worship services will be featured with music by special guests and the church choir. Services will begin nightly at 7:30 p.m. For transportation needs contact Pastor Maurice Phelps at 752-5773 or 756-9723.

Grant Made To University

East Carolina University will receive a grant from the Department of Energy for technical assistance audits.

The grant of $41,723, announced by first District Congressman Walter B. Jones, will be used to measure specific costs, pay back periods and projected energy savings from the use of energy conservation measures.

The money will also be used to fund energy saving procedures, and purchase and installation of devices recommended by an earlier technical audit.

Homecoming

Quarterly meeting and homecoming will be observed at Corey's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Oct. 2-4.

A board meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Friday. Burney Chapel F.W.B. Church will be in charge of the communion service Saturday at 8 p.m.

Vice Bishop J.B. Taylor, pastor, will deliver the message Sunday at 11 a.m. The Rev. Dink Smith and the congregation of Weeping Rachel F.W.B. Church will be in charge of the Sunday 1 p.m. service. Dinner will be served at 2 p.m. The Rev. J.O. Randolph will close out with service at 3 p.m.

The pastor invites the public to attend.

TRIP TAKEN

The North Pitt JROTC Rangers took a trip to Camp Butner, near Raleigh recently.

The rangers conducted classes on how to pitch a tent, compass reading, and night patrolling. A patrol hike was conducted and a war game was played with flour sacks.

REVIVAL

Revival will begin Monday night at Mills Chapel Church. Different speakers will be present throughout the week. Pastor J. L. Swinson invites the public.

GUEST SPEAKER

Missionary Wanda Warren of Snow Hill will be the guest speaker for a special service at New Hope Holiness Church, 403 Brown St., to be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The service will benefit the church's building fund. The Rev. Alex Brown invites the public to attend.

GUEST SPEAKER

Evangelist Martha Collie will be speaking at Fleming Chapel Church Saturday night at seven o'clock.

Hodges Files For Election

SIMPSON — Jasper R. Hodges has filed as a candidate for the town council in the Village of Simpson.

Hodges, a Pitt County native, will seek one of the village's three council positions that will be filled in the Nov. 3 elections.

Hodges, who is employed as a carpenter, has lived here for the past 23 years. He attended public schools in Beaufort County.

The candidate is a member of Pentecostal Holiness Church, Grimesland, where he has served on the Board of Deacons for seven years. He is also an adult Bible teacher at the church.

Hodges is chaplain of the Simpson Fire Department and serves on the department's board of directors.

Homecoming

Quarterly meeting and homecoming will be observed at Corey's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Oct. 2-4.

A board meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Friday. Burney Chapel F.W.B. Church will be in charge of the communion service Saturday at 8 p.m.

Vice Bishop J.B. Taylor, pastor, will deliver the message Sunday at 11 a.m. The Rev. Dink Smith and the congregation of Weeping Rachel F.W.B. Church will be in charge of the Sunday 1 p.m. service. Dinner will be served at 2 p.m. The Rev. J.O. Randolph will close out with service at 3 p.m.

The pastor invites the public to attend.

Revival Services

FALKLAND — Revival services will begin at St. John Missionary Baptist Church on Oct. 5 with the Rev. Hue Walston, pastor of St. Peter Missionary Baptist Church as the evangelist.

Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. nightly Monday-Friday with the following visiting choirs:

Monday, Holly Hill F.W.B. Church of Belvoir; Wednesday, Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church of Greenville; Thursday, Macedonia Missionary Baptist Church of Farmville; Friday, Sycamore Chapel Missionary Baptist Church, Greenville.

The pastor, the Rev. Anton T. Wesley, and the congregation invite the public to attend.

WOOTEN CANDIDATE

FALKLAND — Falkland merchant Woodrow Wooten filed today as a candidate for the Falkland Council, bringing to three the number of candidates for the three seats on the board.

The other two candidates, who announced previously, are Vernon Best and Charles E. Mayo. John L. Tyer is the only candidate for mayor.

AFTERNOON SERVICE

Eldress Martha Collie of Hempstead, N.Y. will be speaking at the New Shiver Free Will Baptist Church Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The service will be benefit the building fund. Moderator Matthew Best is pastor of the church. The public is invited.

Groundbreaking Held For Plant

Groundbreaking ceremonies were scheduled this morning at the site of the planned new Coca-Cola Co. plant located on the eastern bypass, north of the river.

Tom Segrave, owner, vice president and general manager of the Greenville plant, said that various area officials planned to be on hand for the ceremonies, including Bob Griffin, chairman of the board of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce; Mayor Don McGlohn; Regional Gray, county manager; and Ed Walker, Chamber of Commerce president.

Segrave said the new facility, which will face the bypass on an eight acre corner tract just down from Grady-White Boats, will contain some 20,000 square feet and replace the present Coca-Cola plant at 630 Pitt Street. He added that plans call for the new plant to be occupied before the first of the year.

The spokesman said the one-story concrete slab structure will not be a production facility initially but will serve as warehouse and distribution point for all of Pitt County and parts of Martin, Greene, Craven and Beaufort Counties. Administrative offices will also be located at the new plant, which will employ approximately 35 people.

Segrave pointed out that Coca-Cola has not operated a production facility in Greenville for three years, with the firm supplying beverages for this area out of the Goldsboro plant. The Pitt Street facilities have served as warehouse and shipping site for this area during that period. General accounting offices are located in Goldsboro.

He added, however, that the new plant here will be designed to accommodate production and bottling in the future.

REHEARSAL

The Eldress Hour Choir will hold a rehearsal on Saturday, Oct. 3 at 2 p.m. at St. Matthew Free Will Baptist Church.

Two File For Election

SIMPSON — Two candidates filed for positions on the city council of the village of Simpson early today.

Hugh W. Mills of Box 219, Simpson, announced his candidacy for office along with Emily W. (Pie) Edwards, Box 9, Simpson.

Mills has been a resident of the town for 30 years. He is a 40-year member of Reedy Branch F.W.B. Church, where he has served on the deacon board for 25 years and been assistant teacher of the men's bible class for 12 years. His wife is Louise Mills and they have a son and two daughters. Mills is a farmer.

Edwards has lived in Simpson for 20 years. She is a member of Simpson United Methodist Church, where she is active as a Sunday School teacher, Methodist Youth Fellowship director, and as chairman of the education committee. She has a son and a daughter. Edwards previously owned Edwards Hardware of Simpson.

Both candidates say they are primarily interested in reducing the tax rate in the town and in running the town "more economically," according to Edwards.

"We are also interested in creating a better relationship and fellowship among those in the community," added Mills. "We want to promote a better interest in the town."

Pirates Testing Aerial-Minded Duke

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

A few weeks ago, when East Carolina played North Carolina, there was a lot of hoopla about the fact that it was the last game between the two schools.

Now, Coach Ed Emory of ECU can't understand why there is not the same hoopla over the fact that Saturday's game against Duke University closes out the current series between the two schools.

"Nobody has even mentioned that it's the last game in the series," Emory said of the 1:30 p.m. contest in Wallace Wade Stadium on the Duke campus.

Well, that could be. So far Duke hasn't made any effort to schedule the Pirates in the future — but unlike Carolina, the Blue Devils haven't announced that it is a matter of policy. The likelihood is still there for future contests, but so far none have been scheduled.

At any rate, it will be the last for a while at least, and Emory is hopeful that the Pirates will go out of the four-game series with a 3-1 mark, rather than a 2-2 one. East Carolina won the first game between the two, 17-16, while Duke won the second, 28-14. East Carolina won last year, 35-10.

"They are basically the same team we played last year," Emory said. "But they are different too. Last year, it was the opening game of the season for them, with a new offensive coordinator, a new system, and a new quarterback.

"Now, all of that isn't new any more. They have experience, and confidence in their program," Emory added.

On top of that, it's the home opener for the Blue Devils, who will be dedicating their new press facility as the Ted Mann Media Center.

"Duke has a fine football team. They weren't intimidated at Ohio State, and they had a bunch of interceptions and fumbles that hurt them against South Carolina, not to mention (Ben) Bennett getting hurt. Against Virginia, they moved the ball at will."

Duke comes into the game with a 1-2 record, having lost to Ohio State, 34-13 and to South Carolina, 17-3. Both games were close at the half, however. They then rallied to beat Virginia last Saturday, 29-24.

East Carolina, after escaping with a 28-24 victory over surging Toledo last Saturday is now 2-2 on the season.

"I think this will be a heck of a ball game," Emory said. "And I'm sure that Bennett will play. (Bennett was available, but sat out last Saturday's game against the Cavaliers as sub Ron Sally threw for over 300 yards.) Actually, both of their quarterbacks are outstanding athletes."

While Duke's press releases for the week list Sally as the probable starter, Duke coach Red Wilson has said that either could start.

Added to the fact that Duke has two outstanding passers, Emory noted, is the fact that split end Cedric Jones is "the premier receiver in the country," and that the other receivers are also outstanding, among them a former Pirate, Ron Frederick.

"Both (Greg) Boone (fullback) and (tailback Mike) Grayson are good runners, too," Emory said. "They are also good receivers."

Emory feels that Duke's offensive line is 100 per cent improved over last year when the two played. "They are bigger, stronger and more aggressive. Duke also has a fine kicker in (Scott) McKinney." The latter has kicked three of four extra points and four of six field goals, the longest of which was 37 yards.

"Naturally, they are going to try and throw it, and it's going to be a challenge for us to stop them," Emory said.

Emory feels that Duke's defense has improved also. "They've improved in this area as much as anywhere else. They are more aggressive, and have nine starters back from last year. Their secondary is improved."

Emory listed tackle F.A. Martin (6-2, 255), nose guard Dan Yellott (6-0, 235), and linebackers Jimmy Tyson (6-1, 220) and Emmett Tilley (6-1, 235) as the top players on defense.

East Carolina will be hampered by the loss of halfback Earnest Byner, the number three rusher on the team. Prior to suffering both an ankle and knee injury against Toledo, Byner had rushed 28 times for 193 yards, a 6.8 yard average, best on the team among regulars. His place will be taken by Leon Lawson, who on 16 carries has 70 yards.

Halfback Harold Blue is the leading rusher with 290 yards on 60 lugs, while quarterback Carlton Nelson has rushed for 207 yards on 50 carries.

"This is a big, big game for East Carolina. It's very important how we play. We face some big challenges down the road, but we have to take things one game at a time. We have to keep Duke from breaking the big one against us, and they will throw from anywhere on the field.

"We can't make the mistakes we made against Toledo — we can't have the penalties we had in that game and expect to have a chance to win."

While Ron Frederick is an ex-Pirate, another Duke player who transferred from ECU will be sidelined in the contest. Aaron Stewart, a defensive back for Duke, suffered breaks in both of his legs when he was clipped in the Virginia game.

Next week, Duke is at home again, hosting Virginia Tech, while East Carolina and Richmond collide the Tobacco Bowl game in Richmond.

Orioles Top Tigers; Brewers Back On Top

DETROIT (AP) — For Detroit outfielder Kirk Gibson, the Tigers' weekend series with the Milwaukee Brewers beginning tonight is a match made in heaven.

"It's a perfect way to settle it," the Detroit slugger said of the series that will determine the second-season champion in the American League East. "We've got to go to Milwaukee and we've got to win two out of three. If we do, we deserve to win."

The Tigers dropped out of a first-place tie with the Brewers Thursday, losing to the Baltimore Orioles 5-4 in 10 innings despite Gibson's dramatic two-run, two-out ninth-inning homer.

Gary Roenicke knocked in Eddie Murray with a sacrifice fly in the top of the 10th inning for the Orioles' winning run.

The loss by the Tigers also kept Boston mathematically in the race for the second-half championship. Baltimore already has been eliminated.

The best Boston can hope for is a tie, and to realize that, the Red Sox must win all three of their remaining games in Cleveland this weekend and hope the Tigers can win two out of three from Milwaukee.

Detroit was a half-game behind the Brewers going into the season-ending series.

The Tigers will take the title outright if they win two of three and Boston loses at least one. The Brewers would win the division if they take two this weekend.

The Orioles-Tigers game was the only one played in the American League Thursday. Kansas City's double-header at Cleveland was rained out.

The Royals return home tonight to open a final series with the Oakland A's, which will determine whether the A's get four or three home games in the divisional playoffs next week. Both Oakland and Kansas City already have qualified to vie for the divisional title in the American League West and the Royals hold a 1½-game edge over the A's in the second-half race.

If the Royals hold on to that lead, Oakland would have three home games in the playoffs. If the A's come on to win the second-half race, they'd have four home games for the playoffs.

Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said he didn't feel his team's good effort against the Orioles would have any effect on the Milwaukee series.

"Milwaukee doesn't care what we do before we get there," Anderson explained. "They just care about what we do against them. There isn't such a thing as emotion in baseball. That's all malarky. That's a thing for the media so they don't have to work."

Anderson said he would send right-hander Dan Petry, 10-8, to the mound tonight against Milwaukee right-hander Moose Haas, 10-7.

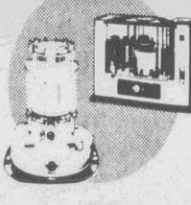

"I'll pitch every one of my starters until they lose," the Detroit manager said. "We're as ready as we're ever going to be. There's no tension on this club. They're playing pretty good ball right now."

Murray started the Baltimore 10th with a single off Kevin Saucier, 4-2, advanced to second on a wild pickoff throw by Saucier and moved to third on a grounder to shortstop by Doug DeCinces. After Dave Rozema relieved and walked Terry Crowley intentionally, Roenicke lifted his game-winning fly ball.

Tim Stoddard, 4-2, was the

Heels Take Bryant-Elkins Show On Road; State Hosting Virginia

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Sixth-ranked North Carolina heads Atlantic Coast Conference football action Saturday as it takes on Georgia Tech — whose only win was a 24-21 defeat of then-second-ranked Alabama.

That matchup highlights a weekend featuring all eight ACC teams, with Virginia at North Carolina State in the only league game, East Carolina at Duke, Syracuse at Maryland and Clemson at Kentucky.

North Carolina carries a 3-0 record to Atlanta to tackle the 1-2 Yellow Jackets, who are ineligible for the ACC title this year. The game is the first on enemy turf for the Tar Heels this season.

Dick Crum's club may be wary of Georgia Tech's giant-killing ability, but things have been downhill for coach Bill Curry's club since that opening win, as it has lost to Florida 27-6 and Memphis State 28-15.

Meanwhile, North Carolina has been rolling up yardage and points against its opponents behind junior tailback

Kevin Bryant. He has scored 15 touchdowns in three games and is within six of tying the league record in 1970 by the Tar Heels' Don McCauley.

The Tar Heels also have quarterback Rod Elkins and a defense which is giving up just seven points per game. With Bryant and Elkins leading the way, the Tar Heels are averaging 53.7 points per game offensively.

Kickoff time at Grant Field is 1:30 p.m. EDT.

VIRGINIA AT N.C. STATE

North Carolina State, which dropped a 34-9 decision to previously winless Maryland last week, may be more careful with 0-3 Virginia this week.

The Cavaliers enter the game against the 3-1 Wolfpack with seven injured starters sidelined.

The brightest spot for the Wolfpack has been freshman sensation Joe McIntosh. He has yet to be held under 100 yards and his average of 161.2 yards per game is fifth-best in the nation.

Game time at Carter-Finley Stadium is 1 p.m. EDT.

CLEMSON AT KENTUCKY

After a week off, Clemson should be well-rested for its trip to Commonwealth Stadium in Lexington, Ky. to meet Kentucky's Wildcats.

Coach Danny Ford's Tigers are ranked 14th with a 3-0 mark while the Wildcats stand at 1-2.

Clemson has defeated Wofford, Tulane and then 4th-ranked Georgia while Kentucky has a victory over North Texas State to go with losses to Alabama and Kansas.

Quarterback Homer Jordan has been the key for the Tigers, averaging 195 yards per game in total offense, including 138.9 yards passing. He also has one of the league's best receivers in Perry Tuttle, who has 13 receptions for 241 yards.

Kickoff time is 12:10 p.m. EDT.

Cubs Rally Over RM

Cyris Blackwell and Roswell Streater each scored touchdowns in the second half to lead Greenville Rose's junior varsity team to a come-from-behind 16-6 victory over Rocky Mount Thursday night.

Rocky Mount, now 1-3 this season, scored on the first play from scrimmage when Jimmy Vines went 72 yards. The PAT was no good but the Gryphons led, 6-0.

It stayed that way until the third period when Blackwell went three yards to tie the game. Streater ran for the two points and Rose led, 8-6.

The Rampants, now 4-1 this season, then sealed the victory in the final period sparked by Chip Clayton's 70-yard interception return. Moments after Clayton's run Streater scored from 15 yards out. Blackwell added the two points and Rose led, 16-6.

Rose travels to Wilson Beddingfield Thursday.

EAST CAROLINA AT DUKE

Duke fans will get their first look at the Blue Devils 1981 edition at home when East Carolina visits Wallace Wade Stadium for a 1:30 p.m. meeting.

Coach Ed Emory's Pirates have had a yo-yo season, evident in their 2-2 record. Duke is 1-2 and coach Red Wilson still hasn't announced who his quarterback will be.

Ben Bennett was the ACC's Rookie of the Year last season, but has been on the sidelines with an injury since the opener at Ohio State. Sophomore Ron Sally stepped in and last week passed for 336 yards, second-highest single-game performance in Duke history, while sparking a 29-24 win over Virginia.

East Carolina rebounded from big losses to North Carolina and N.C. State to surprise Toledo 28-24 this past Saturday. The Pirates led 28-7 at halftime and Emory wasn't pleased with the Rockets' comeback.

SYRACUSE AT MARYLAND

Both teams broke into the win column for the first time last week. While Maryland, 1-2, was ripping previously unbeaten N.C. State, Syracuse was knocking off Indiana 21-7.

Syracuse's 1-3 start has put a damper on running back Joe Morris' Heisman Trophy hopes, but he still is a dangerous performer. Maryland thought it would have a runner of equal ability, but tailback Charlie Wysocki has had injury problems and has played sparingly.

The kickoff at Byrd Stadium in College Park, Md., is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. (EDT).

APPALACHIAN STATE AT WAKE FOREST

These clubs have a lot in common, but the one area they haven't shared success is in the record books. Appalachian State is 3-1, Wake Forest is 1-3.

However, the Mountaineers' victories have been over Lenoir-Rhyne, James Madison and Tennessee-Chattanooga. The lone loss was last week to The Citadel, 34-20. Wake Forest's competition has been stiffer, with a victory over Auburn and losses to Virginia Tech, South Carolina and N.C. State.

The big test for Wake Forest will be its defense's ability to handle ASU's offense, fifth-rated nationally. The Deacon defense has given up an average of 420 yards per game.

The battle for the lead continues to grow tighter, with four panelists within one game of each other at the top.

Our guests and sports assistant Rick Scoppe continue to hold the lead, with this writer and Tom Baines tied for second place, just one game behind.

A quick check of the picks for this week show that Baines and Scoppe have picked the same slate — totally — so there will be no change between them. But we have three differences, and that could make a difference one way or the other.

Our guest of last week, Nancy Emory, coach of East Carolina's head football coach, turned in a 9-3 week, allowing her to keep the guests tied with Scoppe. Both have 35-13 records. Baines, however, turned in a 10-2 week that pulled him even with this writer at 34-14. Vickie Spivey drifts down to a 32-16 mark, three games off the pace, while Joe Jenkins...well, Joe trails with a 24-24 record.

And Joe claims that he's going to try to stay at .500 the rest of the year. That's about as possible as his trying to pick 'em all wrong one time last year.

Our guest this week is Mark Brand, who joined the East Carolina Sports Information Office as an assistant this past summer. Mark is a recent graduate of Purdue University, and when we found that the Purdue-Wisconsin game was one of the close ones available, we couldn't resist.

Our high school picks continue to defy us. A 5-2 mark last time out brings us to 23-10 on the season. We are still looking for that perfect week.

There is a key Eastern Carolina Conference game on tap as Ayden-Grifton visits unbeaten Charles B. Aycock. Last year, the Chargers were ripped in this one, and remember it well. But the Falcons are very, very strong this time out. We don't look for a rout, but we do feel Aycock will win it.

Farmville Central visits Southwest Edgecombe. The Jaguars have been the most perplexing team for us this fall. They are up and down. Now they go up against Southwest, a team that surprised Greene Central last week. Hate to say it, but we'll go against the Jaguars again, picking Southwest.

North Pitt is at Greene Central, looking to be the second straight to upset the Rams. The Panthers have been an improved team this year, but this game should belong to Greene Central.

In other area games, it will be Roanoke over Ahsokie, Jamesville over Aurora, and Tarboro over Williamston.

The panel looks over the two area games, and it's bad news as far as they are concerned.

First off, Rose travels to Rocky Mount in a battle of the unbeaten. Unless there are some surprises down the road, the winner of the game likely will go on to win the conference championship. The panel is split, but there is a 4-2 vote for the Gryphons to win, Spivey and Jenkins sticking with the Rampants.

East Carolina travels to Duke. The Pirates have been vulnerable to the pass, and guess what Duke does best. The panel goes with the Blue Devils by a 5-1 ballot, as Brand has little choice in picking the Pirates.

Our other consensus picks find: Clemson over Kentucky; North Carolina over Georgia Tech; N.C. State over Virginia; Florida over Louisiana State; West Virginia over Boston College; Maryland over Syracuse; Wake Forest over Appalachian State; Arizona over Stanford; Ohio State over Florida State; and Purdue-Wisconsin, a toss-up.

National Races In Final Days; No One Steps Forward For Titles

By The Associated Press

The Houston Astros headed for Los Angeles, the Cincinnati Reds waited for the Atlanta Braves, the Montreal Expos journeyed to New York and the St. Louis Cardinals went to Pittsburgh.

And the National League division races rolled into the final weekend of the baseball season.

The Astros and Expos stand on most solid ground as they attempt to join the Los Angeles Dodgers and Philadelphia Phillies in the best-of-five divisional playoffs which begin next week. Houston belted Cincinnati 8-1 Thursday to assume a 1 1/2-game lead over the Reds in the West, which the Dodgers captured in their first half of the strike-interrupted campaign. Montreal downed the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2 and is a half-game in front of St. Louis, which edged the first-half champion Phillies 3-2 in 10 innings after surviving a two-hour, 59-minute rain delay.

In games involving non-contenders, San Francisco topped Atlanta 6-2, Chicago and New York had their game fall victim to rain with the score knotted 2-2 through 8 1/2 innings, and San Diego blanked Los Angeles for the second straight, 1-0.

Houston will clinch the West title by beating the Dodgers twice in three games or once if the Reds lose a game to Atlanta. If Cincinnati sweeps Atlanta, Houston must win at least two games with the Dodgers or else the Reds will grab the second-half flag.

Nolan Ryan, who pitched a record fifth no-hitter in 7 1/2 on Saturday, held the Reds to seven hits. The Astros were helped by the wildness of seven Cincinnati pitchers who issued a total of 11 walks — three with the bases loaded — and Denny Walling slammed a two-run homer to highlight a five-run ninth-inning rally for the Astros.

"It's my job to go out there and win those games," said Ryan, who d his scoreless-innings streak to 24 before catcher Joe Nolan scored the Reds' run in the seventh inning on a wild pitch.

"We scored a lot of runs via a lot of walks," said Walling. "We played our kind of game. We've got to make their pitchers work, take a few pitches."

"You can't say enough about Nolan. When we need most, he came through. He walks with a lot of pride."

The Reds, who finished a half-game behind Los Angeles the first half, were bitterly disappointed by the loss.

"I felt we had to win both games to have a chance," said outfielder Dave Collins. "Now we have to hope LA can knock them off while we take Atlanta three times. But we are still alive."

Expos 5, Pirates 2

Larry Parrish tripled home three runs to back the pitcher Burris and Jeff Reardon. The Expos, who bumbled winning the division the past two seasons, will win the NL East if they sweep the three-game series with the Mets this weekend, regardless of what St. Louis does.

"If we keep winning, nobody can catch us," said Parrish. "If we stay hot three more days, we'll be all right."

"I'd love to clinch it in New York," said Reardon, who posted his fifth save since Montreal acquired the Mets this season. "I hope I'll be on the mound when we do clinch it. My dream is to clinch it against the Mets."

Cardinals 3, Phillies 2
Keith Hernandez extended his hitting streak to 12 games with a 10th-inning RBI double that kept St. Louis right behind Montreal. With two out in the 10th, Garry Templeton singled and Hernandez lined a double down the left field line.

Lonnie Smith's punt single leading off the game for the Phillies extended his hitting streak to 20 games.

Giants 6, Braves 2

Former Braves pitcher Doyle Alexander beat Atlanta for the third time without a loss since being traded to the Giants last December. He gave up six hits, struck out five and walked none in six innings. Greg Minton picked up his 20th save with three innings of two-hit relief. Larry Herndon knocked in three runs for the Giants.

Bob Horner homered for Atlanta, his seventh hit in nine at-bats.

Cubs 2, Mets 2, suspended
Rusty Staub homered twice for the Mets, while Chicago got its runs on pitcher Mike Krukow's two-run double in the fifth.

Padres 1, Dodgers 0
Rookie Fred Kuhaulua scattered five hits, en yielded to Eric Show, another rookie, in the ninth. Show picked up his third save.

Fernando Alenzuela gave up only an unearned run but was a loser for the third straight time as the Dodgers fell for the 10th

Rested Stadler Vaults Into Lead

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Maybe Craig Stadler should take more time off from the Tournament Players Association tour.

The rested, relaxed Stadler — who had hardly picked up a golf club in two weeks — ripped off nine birdie putts en route to a 7-under-par 63 that staked him to a 1-stroke lead over Bruce Lietzke entering today's second round of the Texas Open Golf Tournament.

"I'm just having fun," Stadler laughed after mastering the 6,525-yard Oak Hills Country Club course, where he has never made a cut during his six-year career.

"I drove the ball well and I putted good, which is about all you have to do on this golf course. I made more than my share of birdies. I hadn't played but six holes in two weeks."

Stadler said he took a vacation from golf after tying for third at the LaJet Classic in Abilene two weeks ago-till escaped with only two bogeys while guiding in nine birdie putts, all from short range.

He said he had developed a hook during the layoff, but he cured that by hitting a 1 iron off the tee on several holes.

Stadler, winner of the 1981 Kemper Open, would like to add the $45,000 first prize money of the $250,000 tournament to the $205,829 in earnings that place him eighth on the Tour.

Buiezke, ranked fourth in earnings with $334,991 and three 1981 victories, also needs top money to supplant Tom Kite, who is the tour's top money winner $355,724.

Lietzke, who has never played well at Oak Hills before,

"It was probably my best putting round all year," Lietzke said. "All the putts I hit today I just tried to let die in the very front lip of the cup. I left a couple short that I probably should've have, but I made enough to keep my confidence up."

winner, pitching the final 11-3 innings.

Baltimore's Lenn Sakata belted a pair of home runs to help the Orioles take a 4-0 lead, but the Tigers rallied to tie the game with two runs in the eighth inning and two more in the ninth on Gibson's long homer that the roof of the right field stands about a foot from the peak and just missed going clear out of the park.

"I really thought we were going to win the game at that point," Anderson said. "That's the way we've played lately. See, that's what nobody understands; if we get beat in Milwaukee we'll just get beat. But we've been battling."

Al Bumbry tagged Detroit vice starter Dan Schatzeder for a single leading off the game and scored on Rich Dauer's double. Dauer took third on a groundout and scored on Murray's sacrifice fly.

Sakata led off the second inning with a homer off reliever Dave Tobik and hit another solo shot, his fifth, off Tobik in the fourth.

"Sakata is going to be ahead of everyone else at shortstop when we go to spring training," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said. "But that's no guarantee he's got a job."

Dennis Martinez had a four-hit shutout going into the eighth, but he was relieved by Tippy Martinez after giving up three straight singles, including an RBI hit by Steve Kemp. Tippy Martinez then gave up an RBI single to pinch-hitter Al Milwaukeee we'll just get beat.

Two Sports Are Big 10 Looks Wide Open For Change

Added By IOC

BADEN-BADEN, West Germany (AP)—The Olympic Games continue to grow. Two more sports—tennis and table tennis—will be in the program for 1988, and others are under consideration.

The International Olympic Committee Thursday considered adding baseball to the Games as well, but decided it needed more information from the International Amateur Baseball Federation.

Decisions were also deferred on roller skating, taekwondo, karate, badminton, sumo wrestling and women's judo.

There was no sign of any limit being set on the size of the games. Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the IOC, said this week he expected between 11,000 and 12,000 athletes at Los Angeles in 1984. Seoul in 1988 will probably host even more, with 23 sports on the schedule.

Tennis comes back into the Games for the first time since 1924. Table tennis has never been in the Olympics before.

"The IOC decision is of major importance to tennis," said Philippe Chatrier, president of the International Tennis Federation, who has been campaigning to get his sport into the Olympic program since he took his job four years ago.

The tennis federation has seven years to decide how to choose players for the Olympic tournament.

"We will conform to Rule 26, scrupulously so," Chatrier said. Rule 26 of the Olympic Charter says an Olympic competitor must not be, or ever have been, a professional.

The IOC session was scheduled to end today with a decision on revision of the eligibility rule. The IOC has indicated it will not have open or professional Olympics but is ready to allow athletes more financial compensation for full-time training.

Seoul, the capital of South Korea, was awarded the 1988 Summer Games Wednesday.

Conley Captures 14th Straight In Volleyball

HAVELOCK — D.H. Conley's Valkyries swept a pair of volleyball matches from Havelock yesterday, extending their winning streak to 14-0 in the season with a 6-0 Coastal Conference record.

Conley won the first match, 15-13, 15-1. Jackie Daniels and Darlene Cannon led the Valkyries, serving up six and five straight points, respectively.

Chris Cassidy had six straight serves for Havelock.

Conley took the second match, 15-0, 11-15, 15-2. Daniels led the way with nine straight, while Sherri Waters had six in a row for Conley.

Karen Barrett led the way in hits with 18, while Waters had five, Daniels, three, and Amy Gibbs, two.

Assists were led by Cannon with 14, while Mary Mitchell had six and Vonda Stokes had two.

Conley returns to action on Wednesday, hosting West Carteret.

Lyn Lewis and Melissa Morgan both had six points in the third game to give Southern Nash, now 2-2 in the league, the opening match.

In the first game of the second match, Arrington and Faison again had four points each. In the final match Faison had four points also.

Ayden-Grifton, now 2-6 overall and 1-4 in the ECC, plays host to Southwest Edgecombe Tuesday.

Farmville.....2
N. Pitt.....0

FARMVILLE — Led by Rhoda Harris, Farmville Central won two Eastern Carolina Conference volleyball matches from North Pitt Thursday afternoon. The Lady Jaguars won the first match, 15-13, 13-15, 16-14, and then captured the second, 15-6, 15-13.

In the first game, Farmville's Harris had seven points while North Pitt's Gladys Roberson had five. In the second, Harris had five points while the Pant-HERS' Sheri Brady had seven. Gail Lang had six points for Farmville in the third game.

In the first game of the second match, Harris had seven points. In the second,

Rose Lang had four points for Farmville while Roberson had six for North Pitt.

SW Edgecombe.....2
Greene Central 0

SNOW HILL — Southwest Edgecombe took a pair of volleyball matches from Greene Central yesterday. The Lady Cougars won the first match 15-10, 15-13, then came back to take a 15-7, 15-8 win in the second.

Letha Taylor played an outstanding defensive game for the Lady Rams, while Pam Shackelford played well overall, according to coach Tim Corbett.

Greene Central drops to 4-4 overall and 2-2 in the Eastern Carolina Conference. Greene Central travels to Farmville Central on Tuesday.

Rose.....1
Laney.....1

WILMINGTON — Rose High School and Wilmington Laney split a pair of volleyball matches yesterday. Rose won the opener, 15-13, 15-13, then fell in the second match, 2-15, 15-13, 15-8.

The split left Rose with a 1-1 conference record and a 3-5 overall mark.

By The Associated Press
The Big Ten, often criticized for being only the Big Two, may be ready for its most wide-open conference race in more than a decade.

No team besides Ohio State or Michigan has been the Big Ten representative in the Rose Bowl since Indiana won the championship in 1967. Although the Buckeyes and Wolverines are respectively ranked seventh and eighth nationally this week, there are signs of hope for the rest of the conference.

The reason is Wisconsin's upset of Michigan three weeks ago when Bo Schembechler's team was ranked No. 1.

"If we lose again, we're out of it," said Schembechler this week. "That is a great deal of pressure to play under each and every week, but we have nobody to blame but ourselves."

Michigan travels to Indiana Saturday, while Iowa, ranked No. 18 in its first Top 20 appearance in nearly 20 years, opens its conference schedule against winless Northwestern.

Purdue, which upset Notre Dame last week but was surprised by Minnesota in its first Big Ten game, is at Wisconsin and Minnesota is at Illinois in other league games.

The Big Ten's nonconference slate has Ohio State playing host to Florida State and Michigan State at Notre Dame.

The Iowa Hawkeyes have sandwiched upset victories over Wisconsin and UCLA around a loss to Iowa State.

Iowa Coach Hayden Fry is worried about lightly regarded Northwestern because their coach, Dennis Green, "would enjoy nothing more than beating his alma mater. In addition, Fry says, "We don't have the depth other teams have. We got a lot of people hurt against UCLA."

Northwestern, which has suffered 23 straight defeats, has lost 38-7 to Arkansas and 42-0 to Utah.

The only game involving two ranked teams Saturday pairs fifth-ranked Oklahoma against No. 20 Iowa State at Norman, Okla. The Sooners, coming off a heartbreaking last-minute loss to top-ranked Southern Cal last Saturday, are 17-point favorites although they are 1-1 and the Cyclones are 3-0.

In other games involving Top 20 teams, Southern Cal is at Oregon State, No. 2 Penn State plays host to Temple, fourth-ranked Pittsburgh is at South Carolina, No. 6 North Carolina is at Georgia Tech, No. 9 Mississippi plays host to unbeaten Missouri, 10th-ranked Brigham Young meets Utah State on Friday night, 11th-ranked Alabama tackles Mississippi, 12th-ranked Washington plays host to Arizona State, No. 14 Clemson is at Kentucky, Colorado is at 16th-ranked UCLA, No. 17 Miami of Florida meets Vanderbilt and No. 19 Arkansas is at Texas Christian.

No. 3 Texas, 13th-ranked Georgia and No. 15 Southern Methodist are idle.

North Carolina, featuring sensational running back Kelvin Bryant, is a 14-point favorite at Georgia Tech.

The Tar Heels ran their record to 3-0 last weekend with a 56-14 shellacking of Boston College as Bryant scored four touchdowns, giving him 15 for the season. He is more than halfway to Lydell Mitchell's collegiate record of 29 with eight games to play.

"We played a fairly complete game last week," says North Carolina Coach Dick Crum, whose team has outscored it three opponents 161-21. "Now I'm interested in seeing if we can put four solid games together in a row."

SNOW HILL — Joel Cox scored two touchdowns, the last a four-yard run with 11 seconds left, to lift A.G. Cox to a 12-8 victory over Snow Hill Thursday night in a junior high football game.

Down 8-6 late in the final period, A.G. Cox marched down the field for the winning score. The drive ended with Cox going over from four-yards out.

After a scoreless first half, A.G. Cox got on the scoreboard when Cox went 70 yards on the opening kickoff of the second half. The point after was no good but A.G. Cox led, 6-0.

Snow Hill, now 1-1 this season, took the lead later in the period on a 90-yard fumble return and a two-point conversion. It stayed at 8-6 until Cox's run with 11 seconds to go.

A.G. Cox, now 2-0 this season, was led on defense by Arthur Best and Larry Speight, both of whom had eight tackles. Jacques Thigpen blocked a punt for A.G. Cox.

'A Town Like Alice' Offers Rare TV Love Story On PBS Sunday

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A brief, spiritual love kindled between two prisoners of war in Malaya is tested by a long separation and then a clash of cultures in the six-part "Masterpiece Theater" presentation of "A Town Like Alice," beginning Sunday night on PBS.

"A Town Like Alice," based on the novel by Nevil Shute, is the latest gift from Australia, following acclaimed films "Breaker Morant" and "Gallipoli."

"Alice," the first non-British production in "Masterpiece Theater's" 11 years on PBS, was the third most popular show in Australia behind "Holocaust" and "Roots."

And with good reason. It's a rare TV love story: tasteful, not titillating.

Jean Paget (Australian actress Helen Morse) is a spirited

Englishwoman living in Malaya who is taken prisoner, along with other women and children, by the Japanese during World War II. Forced to walk across Malaya, only Jean and a few others survive the exhaustion, disease and tropical hazards of the trek.

On their road to nowhere, the single-file marchers meet a straightforward, cheerful Australian cattle rancher named Joe Harmon (played by Bryan Brown, the womanizing lieutenant in "Breaker Morant.") He befriends the marchers, but is particularly sweet on Jean.

Starved for friendship in alien surroundings, they talk warmly about their native lands and their dreams of freedom. She vows to ice skate in England; he wants to return to a town like Alice in Australia. Without even a kiss, their eyes and words speak of an affection and attraction that could flourish in another time.

Eager to please, Joe steals chickens for the marchers. The Japanese discover his theft and torture and crucify the stoic Aussie. It's a powerful scene, played mostly through the twisted faces of the onlookers.

Six years later, Jean has come into an inheritance and returns to Malaya to finance a well for an impoverished village that befriended her. She learns that Joe had survived the ordeal and searches for him in Australia. A little too coincidentally, Joe is chasing her down in England. It is during these simultaneous searches that the miniseries bogs down for the only time.

Meanwhile, Noel Strachan (Gordon Jackson, Hudson in "Upstairs, Downstairs"), a 60-year-old attorney administering Jean's inheritance, has fallen in love with her. Letting his dreams cloud his judgment, Noel is not forthcoming to Joe about Jean's whereabouts. His is a very real dilemma.

Finally, Joe and Jean meet in Australia. They have initial difficulty bridging the years, an awkwardness that is human and convincing. When they do connect, their love comes across in an unconventional way for TV: they genuinely care about each other.

The last two hours trace the struggle of the sophisticated Englishwoman and the practical frontiersman — both strong-willed and sensitive — to forge a life comfortable and meaningful for both of them in the Australian prairie.

It's a love story in the best sense, based on concern and respect, not lust. "Alice," cleverly written throughout, may be the best TV drama of the season, and it doesn't have those graphic sex scenes that Hollywood churns out.

If Brown were an American, he would be a box-office power. With raw good looks, he's a Gary Cooper type, but with a greater range of emotion. Miss Morse is also magnificent, capturing all the spunkiness and resourcefulness of Jean, a woman always in her element.

Filed in Australia, Malaya, Scotland and London, "Alice" is a poignant tableau, capturing the oppressiveness of Malayan captivity and the sparseness of the Australian outback. But when their eyes meet, Jean and Joe can make either place Shangri-La.

Israel Bans Redgrave Film

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The award-winning film, "Playing for Time" will not be televised in Israel because of star Vanessa Redgrave's strong anti-Israeli views, a spokeswoman for Israel Television said today.

Asked whether the made-for-TV film about Auschwitz would be broadcast, spokeswoman Ariella Ravid said "the decision in principle is negative."

She quoted Yitzhak Shimoni, director of television, as saying "We'll screen that film when Ms. Redgrave sings 'Hatikva' (the Israeli national anthem) at the Wailing Wall."

Shimoni "was being sarcastic, and I don't think it needs any elaboration," the spokeswoman added.

Located in Jerusalem, the Wailing Wall is the only remnant of the Jewish temple of biblical times. It is Judaism's holiest shrine and a national monument.

Ms. Redgrave, an active backer of the Palestine Liberation Organization, advocates dismantling Israel and replacing it with a Palestinian state where Arabs and Jews would live as equals.

Psychic Claims Conspiracy

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Beverly Hills psychic Tamara Rand alleges Las Vegas TV show host Dick Maurice "duped" her into retaping a prediction she claims to have made Jan. 20 of an assassination attempt on President Reagan.

The second taping on March 31 came one day after Reagan was shot in Washington, and Maurice has admitted it was a hoax.

But Ms. Rand, 34, insists otherwise, and her $10 million civil suit filed Wednesday also names producer Gary Greco, Dick Maurice Enterprises and Las Vegas station KTNV-TV.

The suit alleges nine counts of conspiracy to defraud, misrepresentation, slander, libel, infliction of emotional distress and negligent supervision of air time or programming.

Ms. Rand said the defendants refused her request for a copy of the supposed Jan. 20 tape — which has never been made public — unless she agreed to appear in a redramatization for a TV special.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today brings a good chance for you to get together with old friends for mutual enjoyment. Take it easy in the evening and build up your energies. You can gain your objectives now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Much sociability with good friends pays off handsomely today. Evening should be spent at home. Be alert to opportunities.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use your intuition in connection with an important business deal. Express your talents today, but use discretion.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can learn a great deal from new contacts today. A good time to become more involved in a worthwhile civic matter.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get busy at those duties ahead of you and do them well so that you get the approval of others. Be wise.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find out what close ties expect of you and then aim to please. An important matter develops that can bring happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Delve into all that work facing you with enthusiasm instead of grumbling about it. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get together with allies and exchange views. Plan for greater mutual success. Spend more time with close friends and relatives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make improvements at home that are necessary. Studying a new interest during spare time can bring excellent results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Daytime is best for outside activities so you can enjoy your home and family tonight. Budget your money wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new ways to build up your security. Make those repairs to property that are needed. Attend the social tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use your personal charm with friends and get more out of the relationships. Take steps to improve your environment.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Meet with an expert and gain the right advice to gain more financial security. Make the evening a happy one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to know all types of people and can benefit from the contacts. The chart becomes a successful one later in life provided the education is good. You must plan now so there will be no slip-up because of lack of cash.

Lebanese Put Death Toll From Car Bombing At 83

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon's latest car-bomb explosion, aimed at the Palestine Liberation Organization's intelligence center, took at least 83 lives and injured 300, police said. The PLO, which conceded 60 deaths, said the right-wing group that claimed responsibility for the blast is an Israeli front.

The PLO command said none of its leaders were hurt in the explosion Thursday. But a pro-Moslem faction, the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, claimed a member of the PLO Central Committee member, Haj Sami, and his wife were killed in their apartment.

Police and PLO spokesmen said 30 teen-age girls trapped in the cellar of a blown up textile factory were rescued overnight.

Lebanon's state television said an anonymous caller claiming to represent the Front for the Liberation of Lebanon, from Foreigners said his group set off the explosion that ripped the walls from PLO offices on Bustani Street, in Moslem West Beirut.

The organization, about which almost nothing is known, has claimed responsibility for other car-bomb attacks that killed 54 people in the past two weeks. One killed 25 on Sept. 17 outside the PLO's regional headquarters at Sidon in southern Lebanon.

A PLO spokesman claimed the group is a front for "Israel and its agents in Lebanon," an apparent reference to the Lebanese Christian forces allied with Israel. Lebanon's Moslem prime minister, Shafik Wazzan said: "Israel, which has been prevented from launching further air attacks on Lebanon, has now resorted to other methods for which it is either directly responsible or by using its agents in Lebanon."

Israel denied "all responsibility for the recent explosions" in Lebanon, saying it was part of "the war among the gangs which make up the PLO."

"Blaming Israel for these actions has become a fixture," said Uri Porat, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's spokesman.

The explosion Thursday occurred several dozen yards from the complex of offices and apartments that Israeli jets bombed on July 17. The Lebanese government claimed 300 Palestinians and Lebanese civilians were killed in that attack.

Bomb experts said the death car was packed with an estimated 220 pounds of explosives. The blast hurled bodies into the air, started fires and shattered cars and telephone poles, witnesses said.

Among the offices shattered were those of PLO security chief Salah Khalaf, alias Abou Iyad, who is reputed to have masterminded the 1972 attack in which 11 Israeli athletes were killed at the Munich Olympics. But his triplex apartment appeared intact, and he made an inspection of the devastated area three hours later.

Also hit were the offices of the PLO's secret service chief and the offices of PLO spokesman Mahmoud Labadi.

Mugabe Criticizes U.S.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Zimbabwe Prime Minister Robert Mugabe today told other British Commonwealth leaders they should criticize the United States as well as the Soviet Union for interfering in other countries.

Mugabe, speaking at the 42-nation summit of Commonwealth leaders, gave no examples of such interference. His remarks were made in closed session, summarized by a summit spokesman.

Their traditional "retreat" will be highlighted by a discussion on the economic future of the world to be held over barbecued lamb chops at a sheep ranch near Canberra on Sunday.

In today's meeting, the Zimbabwe leader, noting several speakers had attacked the Soviet Union for extending its sphere of influence by aggressive means, said nobody had rebuked the

Cancer Aid Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors have developed a new, life-extending treatment for a cancer that primarily strikes younger people and usually results in the amputation of their afflicted limbs.

Researchers at the National Cancer Institute said Thursday that the new treatment doubles the survival rate of those with soft tissue sarcoma, a quick-spreading solid tumor in tissues around bones, and makes it possible to spare the afflicted limbs of about 75 percent of the patients.

The therapy combines surgery to remove the tumor with high doses of radiation and anti-cancer drugs, they said. By sparing arms and legs while extending survival, they added, the therapy also improves the quality of

Lower Rate May Spur Interest In All Savers Today

By The Associated Press

Bankers expect the trickle of investors who picked up high-interest, tax-free All Savers Certificates Thursday to become a flood now that it is certain the interest rates will decline on Monday.

Several North Carolina banks, gambling like the early investors that the rates would drop as a result of a U.S. Treasury bill auction at 6 p.m. Thursday, have already posted Friday evening and Saturday hours to accommodate the rush.

"I think Friday (today) is going to be crazy," said James Singleton, spokesman for First Union National Bank of North Carolina. "Today (Thursday) was supposed to be slow, but we actually had people standing in line at one branch before we opened."

Thursday's auction determined that the present rate of 12.61 percent will decline to 12.14 percent on Monday. The rates, pegged at 70 percent of the rate on one-year U.S. Treasury bills, will change every four weeks based on monthly auctions of the bills.

Most North Carolina banks and all of the state's 186 savings and loans are offering the certificates, financial officials said.

"We've been busy, but there haven't been long lines," said William Rogers, president of Security Federal Savings and Loan Association in Durham, as the certificates went on sale.

Instead of long lines of buyers, most bankers said they'd been flooded with inquiries about the deal.

"There is a lot of interest and a lot of calls," said Jim Chandler of North Carolina National Bank in Charlotte. "The feeling is though, that people are waiting to see what the T-bill rate is."

The certificates, which mature in a year, will be issued through December 1982 as authorized by Congress.

Most have a minimum investment of $500 and the rate of interest paid is set at 70 percent of the yield on one-year U.S. Treasury bills, which are sold every four weeks. The rate of interest remains constant once the certificate is purchased.

Although a complex formula determines exactly how much an individual's interest will be taxed, most will have tax-free interest on the first $1,000 of interest, while couples filing a joint return generally won't have to pay tax on up to $2,000 of interest.

Thad Woodard, North Carolina Savings and Loan League president, said the money placed in financial institutions as a result of the All Savers program is part of a program to bring in more money for home mortgages.

But Woodard said it will take more than the certificates to make President Reagan's economic policies bear fruit.

"It's (the certificates) just a simple ingredient in the witch's brew," he said. "We have got to see Reagan's program work or at least give it an opportunity to work. There must be an attitude of patience and sacrifice."

Woodard said the All Savers is "the first time in history the taxpayer has been offered a program that encouraged savings, and you can be assured that the savings and loan industry and the American public are going to voice strong support for its continuing."

Although the certificates have just gone on sale, Woodard stressed the need to extend the All Savers program beyond the current 15-month limit. Otherwise, he said savings and loans will not have the money long enough to use it for home financing.

The demand for housing money during the 1980s has been estimated at $2 trillion in new savings nationwide, Woodard said. The All Savers certificates are expected to bring in $130 billion nationally during the 15 months they will be offered.

FOCUS

Costly Dickens

Even in New York City, where theater-goers have adjusted to paying $35 for best seats, one new show has been raising eyebrows with its $100-a-ticket price. But a producer of Nicholas Nickleby, which opens on Broadway tomorrow, says that the tickets are a relative "bargain." Perhaps that's because this adaptation of Charles Dickens' novel is eight and a half hours long. That comes to less than $12 per hour, or $2 an hour less than the average-length Broadway show at $35 a ticket. But if the price still seems steep, be patient. The mammoth production has already been taped in London, where it has played to packed houses, for a scheduled TV broadcast.

DO YOU KNOW — What other famous Dickens novel was made into a successful Broadway musical?
THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Poison gas was first used in Belgium in WWI.

Crucial Time Seen For Economy

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A top North Carolina banking official says the next few months are crucial to the nation's economic future.

Within three or four months, interest rates should be moderating, the economy moving and the inflationary spiral of some 20 years broken, says C.C. Hope Jr., immediate past president of the American Bankers Association.

Hope, vice chairman of the First Union National Bank in Charlotte, N.C., travels more than 250,000 miles a year working with financial officials. His message Thursday was to expect the pent-up demand for housing and automobiles to begin pushing the economy forward again.

He also said the market value of many good stocks is so underpriced right now that Wall Street is on the threshold of a significant upturn despite gyrations the stock market has taken in recent days.

Hope was in Toledo this week to speak to the annual meeting of the bankers association's regional group. Hope said interstate banking appears to be on the way, particularly where it applies to mergers of troubled institutions with those that are financially healthy.

Recently, such a merger occurred between a California bank and a Florida savings and loan association.

But Hope said it is incumbent upon the nation's 14,000 bankers to effectively compete with the 22,000 credit unions and 6,000 savings and loans.

Banks also need regulatory authority to compete with newly powerful competitors such as money market funds, which have grown from $3 billion to $160 billion in two years, insurance companies and other institutions that are battling for depositor's money without the restrictions that are placed on banks, he said.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 4 NT Pass
5 ♥ Pass 5 NT Pass
6 ♦ Pass 6 ♠ Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Four of ♠.

There are some card combinations that you might have to work out at the table. Others, however, have been written about so often that you should recognize them as soon as you see them. Here's an example of the latter from the Ruitenboer Tournament in Holland.

There was no holding North in check after his partner opened the bidding with one spade. He launched straight into Blackwood and settled in the small slam when he learned that a king was missing. The contract was rather optimistic, but South's technique justified his partner's bidding.

West held a rather uninspiring collection. Still, a heart lead would have left declarer with no chance for his contract as the cards lie. However, we can attach no blame to him for his choice of a low diamond. Declarer won in dummy, cashed the ace of spades and was delighted to see the queen of spades appear on the next round of the suit. The only remaining problem was to hold the heart losers to one. Declarer drew the last trump and then proceeded to strip the hand. He cashed four rounds of clubs, sluffing one of his hearts, and then came to his hand with the ace of diamonds. That reduced both declarer and dummy to one trump and three hearts. Now declarer led a heart, and the defenders were helpless. Declarer intended covering any heart that West played. If West played low, declarer would insert the seven. East could win the trick cheaply, but he would either have to lead a heart into dummy's ace-queen, or else lead a minor suit and present declarer with a ruff-sluff. It would be no different if West produced the nine. Declarer would insert dummy's queen, and the combination of the ace in dummy and the 10-8 in declarer's hand would again constitute a tenace position.

How do you choose the best opening lead? Charles Goren has the answer. For a copy of "Winning Opening Leads," send $1.85 to "Goren-Leads," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

Reagan May Use Veto To Support Goals

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is threatening to use his veto power to make scaled-down spending targets stick in Congress, but even his allies concede he is unlikely to get all the budget cuts he wants.

"I will sign no legislation that would bust the budget and violate our commitment to hold down federal spending," Reagan declared Thursday at a nationally broadcast news conference.

Shortly afterward, however, House Republican leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois said he doubted Congress would give Reagan his entire package of $13 billion in 1982 spending cuts and $3 billion in tax increases.

"Even if we don't achieve the $16 billion...there's nothing sacrosanct about that figure," Michel said. "If he gets another $10 billion in cuts, he obviously isn't going to veto it. Anything we get beyond what we got is that much more."

The new package of cuts and tax increases outlined last week, intended to hold the 1982 budget deficit to $43.1 billion, comes on top of the $35 billion in spending reductions that Congress voted earlier.

At his news conference, Reagan declined to say in advance what legislation he had in mind when he said he was ready to veto money bills.

"I would have to see a bill and what finally winds up on my desk before I would give an answer as to veto or not," he said.

Speaking on the day his first round of budget cuts went into effect, Reagan said his economic program would take time to achieve results. But he vowed, "We will not be swayed from our plan by every changing current, every passing trend or every short-term fluctuation."

Reagan said that despite the cuts, the government would continue to take care of people who "are totally dependent" on assistance.

"What we call the safety net is still in place," he said.

While Reagan brandished his veto threat, budget director David A. Stockman pressed the case for deeper spending cuts and a group of moderate and liberal House Republicans reaffirmed their objection to deeper cuts in social programs without more reductions than Reagan wants in defense.

"We don't want to take round two of domestic without round one of defense," said an aide to Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Mich., the leader of the self-described "gypsy moth" group of GOP House members.

The first test of Reagan's ability to prevail on his new round of budget cuts is likely to come next week, when the House debates legislation providing funds for the departments of Labor, Health and Human Services and Education.

House Republican aides say the measure is about $2 billion over Reagan's budget target, but Pursell's aide said the group of moderate Republicans vowed to fight anticipated amendments to make cuts.

Stockman ran into criticism before the House Budget Committee, where he appealed for more cuts but provided few details of the president's new package.

"Those of us who do not disagree with your goals, but have disagreed with some of the specifics of your policy are troubled by the fact that before this last round of cuts even 'oes into effect, we are already faced with another set,'" said Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., the panel's chairman.

Stockman said more than half the job remains to be done if Congress is to achieve Reagan's target of a balanced budget in 1984.

"The current budget outlook — in the absence of further policy actions — is for budget deficits of about $60 billion in each of the years 1982-1984," he said.

The White House, meanwhile, asked Congress on Thursday to withhold spending $737.2 million for a variety of programs, including the Appalachian Regional Commission, a synthetic fuel plant and funds unclaimed by participants in the government's infamous Tuskegee syphilis study.

Congress can overturn the president's decision if either the Senate or House approves an impoundment resolution.

All but four of the 26 proposed spending deferrals were carryovers from the fiscal year that ended Thursday.

Also deferred were $50,340 which could be used to cover the government's liability for survivors and dependents of the Tuskegee syphilis study — a 40-year project of the U.S. Public Health Service in which 623 poor black men were denied treatment as doctors studied the effects of the disease. Attorneys have said they cannot find four of the men, and the deadline has passed.

Church Plans To Participate

The St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church, Highway 33 east of Greenville, will participate in a four-day seminar Oct. 4-7 with the Rev. Gary Strickland of Pikeville.

Rev. Strickland holds a BA degree in political science and economics from Pembroke State University, the master of religious education from Duke University, and the master of divinity from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He served as an instructor in christian education at Emmanuel College before entering the full-time pastorate. He has since served churches in Washington and Wilson.

Praise and worship services will be featured with music by special guests and the church choir. Services will begin nightly at 7:30 p.m. For transportation needs contact Pastor Maurice Phelps at 752-5773 or 756-9723.

Mormon Book Changes Phrase

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A new edition of the Book of Mormon alters a controversial prophecy to read that American Indians joining the faith will become a "pure and delightful people" instead of "white and delightful."

President Says It Isn't A Millionaires' Parade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, chided by Democrats for running an "administration of the High Society," insists that tax dollars aren't being splurged on symbols of luxury. "I don't think it's a millionaires' parade," he says. And poor children won't be told to eat ketchup as a vegetable after all, he says, dismissing that as the bad idea of an overzealous bureaucrat.

Reagan was asked at his nationally televised news conference Thursday whether he feels he is "sensitive enough to the symbolism of Republican mink coats, limousines and $1,000-a-plate china at the White House when ghetto kids are being told to eat ketchup as a vegetable." The reporter said that had led some to call his administration "millionaires on parade." The ketchup plan has been shelved, he replied, and first lady Nancy Reagan has "taken a bit of a bum rap" for the china. Moreover, he said, "I haven't counted any of the mink coats that have been around."
