Wounds Said Fatal To Sadat Of Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - President Anwar Sadat was shot today by men in Egyptian army uniforms who opened fire from a jeep during a military parade, then jumped out and charged the reviewing stand firing automatic rifles.

In Washington, Majority Leader Howard Baker told the U.S. Senate that Vice President George Bush told him Sadat died of his wounds, but the White House said the information was based on preliminary reports and might be wrong.

Other reports of Sadat's death were widespread, but there was no official announcement from the Egyptian government.

Egyptian government officials said at least two people were killed and many others injured in the attack, but they did not immediately give the condition of the 62-year-old president, who infuriated Arabs at home and abroad because of his peace treaty with Israel and his recent crackdown on domestic opposition.

A Foreign Ministry official, who declined to be named, said Sadat was hit in the arm in the attack, which occurred during a jetfighter flyby and sent thousands of spectators fleeing in panic. But David Gergen, a White House spokesman in Washington, said Sadat was hit twice in the side.

The Egyptian government said Sadat was flown to Maadi military hospital by helicopter and underwent surgery but did not immediately issue a report on the outcome.

Anti-riot police were deployed in Cairo, which was normal for an attack on a president, but there were no troop movements, the state radio played light music and Egypt's ambassador in the United States said the gunfire was not part of a coup attempt.

Egypt's ambassador to Washington, Ashraf Ghorbal, said he was told by his government three of the attackers were killed and three were captured alive, but that it was not an attempted coup.

He said the vice president and defense minister were very slightly wounded, and that the vice president was heading a cabinet session to deal with the attack.

The State Department said a U.S. Marine major, an Army lieutenant colonel and an Air Force captain also were hit but only slightly wounded. The Egyptian official, who requested anonymity, said many Foreign Ministry officials and others were wounded, including the Belgian ambassador and first secretary of the Australian Embassy.

Cairo Radio gave this account of the attack initially:

'At 1240 this afternoon - 6:40 a.m. EDT - during the military parade, a group of people fired at the main grandstand which resulted in the injury of the president of the republic, and some of those accompanying him. His excellency has been moved to where he is being treated by specialists. The vice president of the republic is personally following up on what procedures the doctors are taking.'

City School Board OKs Gym Damage Settlement

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Settlement in the case of damage to the gymnasium floor at Rose High School attributed to use by a group renting the gym several weeks ago has been approved.

Members of the Greenville City Schools Board of Education at its information meeting Monday night unanimously agreed to accept an offer from the Church of God in Christ, Diocese of Greater North Carolina, with headquarters in Plymouth, for payment of $1,000 on damages allegedly incurred when their group used the gym for a religious gathering.

Dr. LeRoy Woolard, treasurer of the diocese, stated in his letter offering the $1,000 'We could not determine how much of the damage was done by us, but we realize we did not do it all. We are not willing with the evidence, and the findings of our Committee to take the full responsibility. Our board along with the council are willing to pay $1,000 toward the same.'

The church council's committee of three met and negotiated with Grounds and Building Director Bob Stewart and Rose principal Howard Hurt to make a determination of responsibility. At earlier school board meetings, it was disclosed that repair for damages, based on estimates furnished by a local firm, would amount to a little over $3,600. Supt. Delma Blinson pointed out that the repairs referred to were only minimum immediate repairs, and that a complete repair-renovation of the gym floor would be a matter of spending many thousands of dollars.

Relative to use of school facilities by the public, member Mrs. Sue Zadeits expressed the opinion that 'we need to have new contracts for use of school facilities that would spell out all the conditions and obligations.' The board approved a motion by Ernest Brown that the board 'honor existing agreements for school facilities use, but that no more approvals be given until a new contract be drawn up, one approved by the school board attorney.'

Dr. Blinson told the board that a contract encompassing requirements of evidence for liability insurance on the part of users, while protecting the school board from liability, would 'on the other side of the coin, have the effect of making facilities unavailable to groups except perhaps major users like the Recreation Department.'

Dissolution Of Commission Is Being Studied

City officials met this morning with Redevelopment Commission representatives to discuss the possible dissolution of the commission.

The City Council will consider a resolution regarding the dissolution at Thursday night's meeting.

Mayor Don McGlohon pointed out that the city and Redevelopment Commission entered into an agreement in January providing for the close-out of the redevelopment urban renewal projects by Sept. 30.

He indicated that during the January discussions, the city was concerned that the commission could complete most of its remaining work by this fall and that no commission employee would lose his job as a result of the change. This morning, Joe Laney, the executive director of the Housing Authority, reported that the Redevelopment staff has been transferred to the Authority.

McGlohon said the urban renewal projects have been officially closed out with the Department of Housing and Urban Development but some work remains to be accomplished in those areas. The City Council, he noted, has expressed its desire to have Laney complete the work through a contractual arrangement with the Community Development Department.

The mayor cited the 'outstanding work' rendered to the city by the commission and he expressed the Council's appreciation 'for the tireless work provided by the...commission in eliminating blighted areas and making Greenville a better place in which to live and work.'

In explaining the transfer of commission functions to the city, CD director Ben Shivar said the Housing and CD Act of 1974 made some fundamental changes in the nature of urban redevelopment activities federally funded and the method by which these programs are administered. The law, he said, created the CD block grant program and gave cities more flexibility in designing and administering such programs. It also holds cities directly responsible for the CD programs.

Shivar said the seven years since the 1974 act has basically been a period in which the city has shifted from urban renewal to CD programs.

He said two significant events occurred recently which effectively ended the close-out period. The city was awarded funding for the South Evans CD project and in the first half of this year, the urban renewal projects were officially closed-out with HUD, essentially ending the Redevelopment Commission's work.

Shivar said that since the urban renewal projects were closed out earlier this year, the commission staff has been funded through city CD money.

The city's CD staff, he said, will be working with Laney, who has served as executive director of the commission, in making arrangements for transferring redevelopment functions to the city.

The City Council cited the 'dedicated and devoted' work of several persons on behalf of the commission. They were: W. I. Cochran, Col. A E Dubber, and Laney, who served as executive directors; and board members M. E. Cavendish, J. D. McGlohon Jr., F. Badger Johnson, H. L. Hodges Jr., J. H. Rose, Jack Edwards, Bancroft F. Moseley, J. J. Perkins, Billy Laughinghouse, Herbert Wilkerson, John S. Whichard, Roscoe Norfleet, David J. Gordon, Janice Buck, Robert S. Griffin, Lucy Jones, Gene Taylor, Joseph D. Condra, and James W. Grimes.

Good Turnout

FARMVILLE - Voting is underway in Farmville today for a mayor and three town commissioners.

The two mayoral candidates are incumbent commissioner John Turner Walston and local attorney Wilton R. 'Rusty' Duke. Commissioner candidates are James Allen, Michael Dixon, Rose Day Evans, Oliver Murphrey, LeRoy Redden, and Frank Styers.

Registrar Mrs. Edna Earle Baker said about 475 had voted by 11 a.m., a turnout she termed 'great.'

STAGGERING CITY AUTO LICENSING?

I would like to know why the city can't stagger the selling of city license stickers just like the state's doing now, so people can buy both at the same time. Otherwise, there's still going to be a long line when buying time comes. W.F.

There has been consideration given the staggering of the sale of city motor vehicle licenses, City Ombudsperson Gail Meeks said. However, last year's investigation seemed to show that the annualized system is better for the city because the record-keeping and reporting seems less complex. This is not a closed issue, however, Meeks said, and since licensing is looked at annually by city officials, the staggered system will be considered again and again. The state system is, of course, new, she said. After it's been in place and working well a while, the city may deem it wise to follow suit, she said.

Meeks added that, since the state has gone to the staggered system, city stickers probably will be sold Jan. 2-Feb. 15, 1982, at City Hall once again. For the past several the city stickers have been sold along with state ones at the Home and Auto Supply state licensing office here.

Pitt-Greene PCA Is Target Of Suit; $1 Million Damage Sought

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A complaint has been filed with the Clerk of Superior Court asking actual damages as well as $1 million in punitive damages from the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association and association employees Frank D. Little Jr. and Max Butts.

The suit filed by Mr. and Mrs. Phillip D. Sutton of Bell Arthur, his former wife Connie J. Sutton and his mother Estelle V. Sutton, alleges that Sutton, a farmer: first borrowed money from Pitt-Greene PCA for his farming operation in 1972; that by the end of 1975 he owed PCA $115,000 on short term loans due to land purchases and operating expenses; that until the end of 1975 he had dealt with defendant Little who had indicated that a long term loan would be made through the Federal Land Bank when and if needed; and that in the fall of 1975 and for some time thereafter, he 'could never get to see said defendant Little,' but instead, dealt with Butts who told him 'that a long term loan was just not appropriate at the time.'

The complaint continued by saying: that by the end of 1976 season Sutton owed the PCA some $185,000; that Butts told Sutton 'We'll work it out;'' that in December of 1976 the PCA said no further loan would be made; and that in April of 1977, Butts 'came to the residence of this plaintiff and offered to purchase the interest of all the plaintiffs, indicating that he would pay all the existing debts, both to the defendant PCA and others,' and leave Sutton's home and the home of Sutton's parents unencumbered, 'if the plaintiffs would deed the remainder of the farm tracts to him (Butts)...'

Sutton's complaint said Sutton then went to Little, 'requesting an explanation of why a PCA representative could not offer to pay $185,000 in PCA debts, approximately $40,000 in other debts, and leave two home valued at least $75,000, when just three or four months previously the said defendants could not arrange a $100,000 loan on the said property,' which was valued at over $300,000.

According to the complaint: Over the next several months Sutton's father died and $35,000 in life insurance was paid to

PCA, leaving a loan balance of some $162,000; during 1978 several unsuccessful attempts to settle the loan were made; and that in January 1979 the FHA office agreed to lend the plaintiffs $150,000 with which to pay the PCA debt on condition that the defendant PCA would credit the plaintiffs with the 'reserve fund' stock in the amount of $16,000, but the PCA rejected the offer.

In April 1980, the complaint says, an FHA loan was secured and the PCA debt paid.

In asking for actual and punitive damages, the complaint charges that the defendants 'gained a superior bargaining position under these circumstances...or that the defendants deliberately defrauded these plaintiffs by advising them in a manner which was strictly beneficial to the defendants...or that the defendants deliberately violated their contract, or implied agreement, to provide a long term loan...or that the defendant PCA represented their agents to the public to be competent to give advice under these circumstances, while they were, in fact, incompetent.'

The complaint also charges that action by the defendants in requiring the plaintiffs to sign a 'Farmers Reserve Fund Agreement' and contribute money to the 'fund,' was an 'attempt to gain a larger profit from these plaintiffs and which, in actual fact, was an attempt to camouflage a method of charging more interest than permitted by law...'

The 'Farmers Reserve Fund Agreement' cited in the Sutton suit was the basis of a suit filed against the Pitt-Greene PCA in June 1979 by a score of farmers which is still pending in Pitt County Superior Court.

That suit charges that the PCA failed to comply with the 'agreement' by not refunding money placed into the fund, and allowed the PCA to make loans 'greater than would have been necessary to the plaintiffs and to collect interest over and above that which would ordinarily have been due from the plaintiffs' had contributions to the fund not been required.

The 1979 suit seeks 'treble damages' and $500,000 in punitive damages.

Pitt Legislators Expect Pay Raise Approval

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County legislators said today they expect the General Assembly to approve a recommended 5 percent pay raise for public school teachers and state employees.

sRep. Ed Warren, who has been working with the Legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee on the pay package since last Thursday, said the 'feel I've had is that it will be all right' in facing action by the General Assembly.

Warren and Rep. Sam Bundy each said they had heard only favorable comment on the recommendation made Monday by the Appropriations Committee.

The committee called for a raise to be effective Jan. 1, with provisions for additional increases for nurses, the Highway Patrol and members of the Alcohol Law Enforcement Division.

The 5 percent across-the-board raise would be funded only through the current fiscal year, but legislators indicated it would become permanent in the next budget year.

'We've put a lot of time into this and I think we have a good plan for the employees, much better than we had expected before,' Warren said. 'We've done the best job we could do under the situation.'

While saying most of the feedback had been favorable, Warren acknowledged that, 'Of course, you don't do anything to satisfy everybody.'

Bundy also predicted relatively smooth sailing for the pay proposal when it reaches the floor of the House, probably on Wednesday.

'I think it's all we could do,' Bundy said. 'I think they are pretty lucky to get that much.'

'But then a lot of people don't realize that the salary schedule we adopted for teachers sometime back carries a built-in pay raise with it,' Bundy said.

Bundy said he had predicted that teachers and other state employees would be given a 4 percent pay raise. 'They beat me by 1 percent,' he noted.

Will Examine Lindbergh Files

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey State Police files on the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby that were kept secret nearly 50 years are to be reviewed today by state officials who will consider whether to make them public.

Anna Hauptmann, 83, widow of Bruno Richard

Hauptmann, who was electrocuted in 1936 for the abduction and slaying of the son of the late aviator Charles Lindbergh, filed a freedom-of-information lawsuit last week seeking access to the files. She claims the information will prove her husband innocent.

At the hearing at state police headquarters here will be Gov. Brendan Byrne, Attorney General James Zazzali, and David Wilentz, the former state attorney general who prosecuted Hauptmann in 1935, Byrne's office said. There was no indication when a decision would be made.

The files come to 90,000 pages. Also covered for inspection by the lawsuit are the child's clothing and the ladder alleged to have been used in the abduction.

John Farmer, a spokesman for Byrne, said the governor was considering an executive order granting Mrs. Hauptmann access to the files. Farmer said the order also would open the files to a Maine man who claims to be the child.

"I don't know what will happen, we're still working on it," Farmer said Monday.

Byrne has urged Zazzali to open the records. But an aide to Zazzali said the state police might not be able to meet Byrne's request without a special order because investigative files are not considered public records.

Reliable sources who wished to remain anonymous said the order would make the records available to those who have filed freedom of information suits against the state.

Such suits are pending by Mrs. Hauptmann and by Kenneth Kerwin, 51, of Biddeford, Maine, one of two men claiming to be the oldest child of Charles and Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

Hauptmann was convicted of taking the 20-month-old child from the Lindbergh mansion in Hopewell in 1932 and killing him.

Mrs. Hauptmann and Kerwin both are represented by Robert Bryan, a San Francisco lawyer, who claims he has enough evidence to file a suit for the widow that would prove her husband innocent.

Col. Clinton Pagano, the state police superintendent, said authorities recently reconstructed the evidence against Hauptmann and "I am convinced it shows the right man was convicted."

Wilentz, who was reluctant to discuss the case for many years, said last week he wouldn't object to revealing the files.

Claim Houston 4th Largest U.S. City

HOUSTON (AP) — The score is Houston 1,648,661, Philadelphia 1,648,582 — but who's counting?

The City of Brotherly Love unofficially has surrendered its No. 4 ranking in the national population derby, thanks to some arithmetic by the Philadelphia Inquirer which says Houston has moved up a notch.

Houston's planning department threw a party in 1979 to celebrate overtaking Philadelphia based on their statistics, but the official Census Bureau figures the next year put Houston fifth, with 1,594,086 people compared with Philadelphia's 1,688,210.

On Monday, however, the Inquirer published an article under the headline "Hello No. 5," saying Philadelphia had dropped to its lowest population since before the founding of the Republic.

The 1980 census showed Houston gaining an average 98 new residents a day between 1970 and 1980, while Philadelphia lost more than 71 daily. By extrapolating those figures, the Inquirer said, Oct. 5 is the day Houston, which ranked No. 45 in 1920, took over fourth.

Houston's growth has been spurred in part by a state law allowing cities to annex surrounding land. But research director Howard Martin of the Chamber of Commerce said even without annexations, Houston would have surpassed Philadelphia about February 1983.

The Census Bureau, meanwhile, is sticking to its old count, and the Inquirer agreed its findings were not official.

"That cannot change on the books until the next census is taken April 1, 1990. Until then the 1980 census figures remain official, if not up to date."

Both Houston and Philadelphia still rank far behind the official big three — New York with 7,035,348, Chicago with 3,005,072, and Los Angeles with 2,966,763.

Pentagon To Increase Indian Ocean Stockpile

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Pentagon soon will increase stockpiles of weapons, ammunition and other supplies in the Indian Ocean area, a move that will enable a Marine brigade to fight twice as long in a crisis there.

Three ships are being loaded at a military terminal near Southport, N.C., and will sail this month to join seven other storage vessels stationed near the British-owned island of Diego Garcia, some 2,300 miles from the Persian Gulf, Marine officials.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said the material aboard the three additional ships would increase from 15 to 30 days the length of time in which a Marine brigade, flown to the region in an emergency, could fight without being resupplied from the United States.

This is considered critical because the first few weeks of fighting could determine the outcome of any battle to keep the Soviets or any other hostile force from overrunning Persian Gulf oilfields.

The Pentagon has designated a 12,000-man Marine air-ground task force based in California as the first major combat unit that would be deployed to the Indian Ocean area if the need arose to defend U.S. interests there.

In a crisis, the Marine force would be air-lifted to a position near its objective. There, according to the officials, it would draw tanks, artillery, fuel and other supplies and equipment unloaded from the depot ships with which the Marine unit would rendezvous at a friendly port.

The plan also provides for deploying several Air Force fighter squadrons and some supporting Army elements from the United States to back up the Marine brigade unit, the officials said.

The three ships now being loaded for the long voyage to the Indian Ocean include a conventional cargo vessel and two ships carrying supply-laden barges.

Some cargo will be carried in 20-foot-long containers which can be lifted with relative ease onto landing craft.

The first seven depot ships were sent to their anchorage near Diego Garcia a little more than a year ago. They investigators, who charged Armstrong with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident, set damage at $750 to the Suggs car and $900 to the Armstrong auto.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 12:25 p.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth Street and College Hill Drive.

Drivers of the cars involved were identified as Kennon Forrest Privette of 409B Belk Dorm and David Allison Bamford of 503 Oak St.

include three vessels designed so that heavy vehicles and rolling stock can be driven directly onto a beach or a dock rather than being lifted laboriously by cranes.

The Marine brigade force and supporting Air Force and Army units are the lead elements of a Rapid Deployment Force begun by the Carter administration in response to a perceived Soviet threat to the oil-producing lands around the Persian Gulf.

Two Wrecks Cause Damage

An estimated $2,050 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 7:15 a.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 425 feet east of the Tobacco Road intersection involving a parked car owned by Harry Lee Suggs Jr. of 112 Candlewood Dr. and a car driven by Johnny Lee Armstrong of Wells Trailer Pk.

Investigators, who charged Armstrong with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident, set damage at $750 to the Suggs car and $900 to the Armstrong auto.

Child Restraints

Sgt. Glenn Swanson, traffic safety officer for Highway Patrol Troop A outlined a law passed by the 1981 session of the General Assembly which requires the use of child restraint systems for children up to two years old for the Pitt County Safety Council at the group's meeting last week.

Swanson said the law, which becomes effective July 1, 1982, provides that "every driver required to have a North Carolina driver's license who is transporting his own child of less than two years of age, when the driver is operating his own motor vehicle (or a family purpose vehicle), shall have such child properly secured in a child passenger restraint system which is of a type (and which is installed in a manner) approved by the Commission of Motor Vehicles," if the child is occupying a seating position where seat belts are required by federal law or regulation.

The officer noted that approved safety seats must be used for children up to one year of age. However, Swanson said, requirements of the law may be met "when the child is one year of age or older by securing the child in a seat safety belt."

Swanson noted that for the first two years the child restraint law is in force, only warning tickets will be issued for violations of the law. Thereafter, violations will be punishable by a $10 fine.

The officer explained that by issuing warnings for the first two years, "law enforcement agencies will be given the opportunity to positively reinforce the buckle up habit" before tickets requiring fines are issued.

ORNAMENTS OR COASTERS. For Christmas can be made using 'learn-a-stitch' design on plastic canvas.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

'Tis that time of year when needlecrafters' thoughts turn to making Christmas ornaments, decorations and gifts. It's also a great time to increase your needlepoint skills by making these "Learn-A-Stitch" ornaments, designed to be made on 10-mesh plastic canvas that needs no blocking and does not pull out of shape.

One ornament alone will be an eye-catcher on your tree while a dozen or more will make a spectacular display. Or send them instead of cards for a special "I'm-thinking-of-you" Christmas message. Several of the designs are suitable for Christmas coasters, too.

To obtain directions for making all 12 ornaments, send your request for Leaflet

No. MC-827 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler, ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810 North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order the Christmas Ornament Kit No. N-827, containing instructions; plastic canvas; needle; and red, white, and green Persian-type yarn, by sending a check or money order for $13.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The materials are sufficient for making 12 ornaments and shipping charges are included in the kit price. All designs are worked form charts.

Dear Readers: I am happy to be able to report that there is another new development in the rapidly expanding plastic canvas field. Previously, any 10-mesh plastic canvas was available only by the yard and it had an uneven mesh count. By that I mean that there were always more threads per inch in one direction than there were in the other.

For this reason, when you were cutting a piece with the same number of canvas holes and threads in each direction, you could not achieve a perfect square. The larger the piece was the more it looked like a rectangle instead of a square. With this new type, your squares will be square.

Also, straight stitches could only be worked satisfactorily in one direction, working over the ridges. When you tried working straight stitches at right angles, one set of the stitches nestled down in the ridges showing some of the canvas threads.

The first thing I noticed when I obtained a sample of the new 10-mesh was that there were no ridges. I immediately worked a sample of "4-way" Bargello and was delighted with the results! This opens up an entire new area of stitch designs for 10-mesh plastic canvas.

This new variety comes in a 10 1/2-inch by 13-inch sheets and will probably sell for $1.50 a sheet in most shops. Since it is so new, this new canvas may not yet be available in all shops. I would think, however, that it will soon be more readily available than the older type as it will be easier for most shops to stock the sheets than the large rolls by "by-the-yard" plastic.

If you plan to work on projects where any single piece would be larger than the sheet size, you may still prefer the other type rather than trying to splice or join extra canvas.

With any of the 10-mesh canvas, you can use Persian type yarns, knitting worsted weight yarn or sport weight yarn, depending upon the type of stitch used.

Stinginess Cure Won't Be Cheap

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: All my life I have been very cheap, and the older I get, the cheaper I get, but I can't seem to help it. I am now 41, and I know that my friends and co-workers must talk about me behind my back. It's beginning to bother me. I have enough money, so that's not the reason I'm cheap, but I go out of my way to avoid picking up a check, and sometimes I even lie and say I don't have any money with me.

What makes me act this way? And how can I get over it? CHEAP IN TRENTON, N.J.

DEAR CHEAP: There is undoubtedly a deep-rooted psychological reason why you and your money are seldom parted. However, if you are sufficiently motivated to get over your cheapness, you can do it, but it won't be cheap. Through psychotherapy (here we go again!), you can be conditioned to loosen up.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column in the Delaware State News, a faithful girl Friday, signing herself "Lakewood, Calif.," said that her boss would give her $200 if she could guess within $200 the price of an elegant sofa shown in a magazine. "Lakewood" said she guessed $2800. The boss said the price was $3000 and refused to give her the $200, saying that her guess was just $1 low.

DEAR PICAYUNE: Picky, picky, picky. Others (but not many) wrote to nail me on the error. As a "Promoter of Precise Phraseology" in San Francisco pointed out, the secretary's error was not in math, it was in ambiguous language.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning inappropriate questions asked of a widow at the funeral of her husband, I think mine tops them all: At the funeral of my 67-year-old father, my poor grieving mother was approached by an officer of the burial society to which my parents belonged, and instead of offering her the solace, he asked, "Would you please give me a deposit on the grave next to your husband so I can reserve it for you?"

DEAR VIVIAN: Your story takes the prize. In spades.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There's a movement underfoot to make college students literate. What will they think of next?

The general consensus is that advanced education has swung too far toward specialized studies and needs to get back to courses that prepare students for life.

I couldn't agree more. That's why I was delighted to see the following courses on my son's senior schedule.

Remedial Bicycle Watching: (3 hours) Designed for the novice who has had three bicycles ripped off in five years. Bring chains, locks, small explosives and detonator. Bicycles will be furnished.

Is There Life After Lunch?: (3 hours) A seminar with guest lecturers who outline advantages of staying awake to participate in cleaning room, soaking laundry, doing required reading, and in the final quarter adding a class or two.

Letter Writing Block And How to Solve It: (1 hour) A creative approach to writing letters home that do not start with cliches like, "Thank your lucky stars when your son says he is busted and only means he is out of money." Workbooks and tapes extra. Your Car And Faith Healers: (2 hours) A frank look at automobile mechanics who promise to fix your transmission by adding water. As a bonus, Dr. Weingard Schuyler, Heart Institute, will once again conduct a class on how to survive an insurance premium notice where a claim has just been filed.

Parent Weekend: Religious Experience Or End Of The World As You Know It: (CRASH COURSE) How to make a roommate of the opposite sex disappear. How to decorate with books and pencils. How to arrange for instant enrollment. Applicants will be screened according to level of need. Guaranteed to give new meaning to "Have a good day."

Jogging for Bodies: (5 hours) A fun approach to physical fitness in which warm-ups are eliminated and the emphasis is on meeting girls/boys. Applicants should be able to talk and jog at the same time.

Someone the other day said they feared that general education would promote intellectual conformity and a sterile acquiescence to the sake of social cohesion.

I asked my son about that. He said he is taking Social Cohesion and the History of Perrier next semester.

Deficits Must Be Ended

If there's anything that virtually everyone seems to agree on, it is that deficit spending by the federal government must be ended.

It was emphasized last week, even in a time of budget cutting, when the U. S. debt limit had to be raised to accommodate a national debt of over $1 trillion.

That amount is incomprehensible to most Americans struggling to balance their check books, but the interest paid on it is overwhelming and has much to do with the high interest rates currently prevalent.

Budget deficits won't be ended this year nor the next. Nobody expected the Reagan administration to be able to do so soon. The hope is only to hold the deficit to a figure that can be considered reasonable.

The administration is betting its economics will bring on a new wave of prosperity and that, coupled with budget cuts, will generate new revenues which will balance the budget.

Of course that theory can only stand the test of time. It is clear, though, that one way or the other — by more business activity or new taxes, deficit spending must be brought under control. The government needs to get out of the field of borrowing money.

Unemployment Rate Nags

Whether the Reagan administration economic policies will work or not, only time will tell.

Certainly even his critics and political opponents would have to hope that the nation can work out of its current economic problems and prosperity can continue.

Tax cuts already instituted may, indeed, give the economy a shot. The money will be spent for consumer goods or saved. Either way it will be helpful.

The Achilles heel of the Reagan plans, however, may be unemployment. The nation's unemployment rate hit 7.5 percent in September and most observers expect unemployment to be a nagging problem for months.

Government programs to aid the unemployed in training for jobs are being cut, and there is a major core of untrained unemployables. Perhaps a booming economy might help in developing jobs for the unskilled. If it doesn't work that way, however, the unemployed will continue to be a major problem.

MY, DOESN'T IT TUG AT YOUR HEARTSTRINGS?

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The 'Untouchable Nine'

WASHINGTON — A couple of weeks ago Archibald Cox delivered himself of a piece in Newsweek under the heading, "Don't Overrule the Court." Mr. Cox, for the record, is a law professor at Harvard, a former solicitor general, onetime Watergate prosecutor, legal historian, and now chairman of Common Cause. His thesis is short and to the point: Congress should keep its hands off the high court.

As the Supreme Court's 1982 term begins, Mr. Cox's little essay offers a nice new point of departure for some old reflections. It always has seemed to me anomalous that in a system of government carefully geared to the restraint of power, only the Supreme Court may exercise power that is effectively unrestrained.

A president serves for four years only; his abuse of power may be checked by congress or by the court. Members of the legislative branch also serve for limited terms; their excesses may be restrained by popular elections, by presidential vetoes or by Supreme Court decrees. But Supreme Court justices serve for life. In deciding the great issues there is no effective restraint upon them but their own sense of self-restraint. The threat of impeachment is no more than a scarecrow, and the remedy of constitutional amendment is a remedy in theory only.

Mr. Cox likes it this way. He is alarmed by a pending bill, sponsored chiefly by Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, that would define the words "person" and "life" in the 14th Amendment so as to surround the unborn fetus with all the amniotic protections of due process of law. I too oppose the bill, but Mr. Cox's reasoning troubles me. He says:

"The vice of this approach is its underlying premise. The Helms bill attempts to substitute legislative definitions of the meaning of the words used in the Constitution in place of the Supreme Court definitions. Even if the pro-abortion decisions are wrong, it would be worse to accept the principle that bare majorities in the Senate and House of Representatives, with the approval of the president, can change the Constitution by simple legislative definitions."

Two reasons are offered. The first is too flimsy to be credited by grown men: It is said that the court doesn't really change the Constitution, the court only interprets the Constitution. The next lesson teaches us that the moon is made of blue cheese.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The older I grow, the more I tend toward the view expressed by Thomas Jefferson, late in life, that the court is the most dangerous of all the instrumentalities of our government. It is a goofy proposition, I grant you, for a Senate subcommittee to vote 3-2 that life begins at conception. But why is it any less goofy for the Supreme Court to vote 7-2 that life begins at viability of the fetus?

Charles Evans Hughes was right. The Constitution is "what the judges say it is." But I am not convinced the Founding Fathers ever meant it to be that way.

Strength For Today

OBSTACLES AND HANDICAPS

Some time ago a beautiful house was built on a lot which unfortunately was divided in the middle by a narrow stream. The owners bought the lot under the impression that they could divert the stream. When they found it impossible to do so, they built a considerable portion of their house across it. The result turned to be a very beautiful structure which looked down on both sides of the waterway.

The necessity under which the builders labored is a necessity which frequently confronts us. We should like to do certain things but we find obstacles in the way. We try to remove the obstacle but find out that this is impossible. What shall we do?

The wise thing is to go right ahead and build our lives around the obstacle. We may find that, instead of the obstacle's being something we have to endure, it comes to make a fine contribution to the usefulness and beauty of our lives. — Elisha Douglass

Pep Talks Aren't Registering

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street seems to have been caught at an old habit, that of talking a better game than it plays. His pep talks don't seem to work. Wall Street just can't seem to score.

Oh, it talks about scoring. Any day of the week you can interview an analyst who expects his favorite dozens stocks to soar, and you can even find a few who are talking about a 2,000-point Dow Jones average.

People on Wall Street even send letters of support to the president, telling him how he has saved capitalism from disaster. And some have publicly advertised their undying support. But money's another thing.

Why has the investment community failed to risk money on rebuilding America? Why have the stock market averages failed to rise along with the rhetoric? How can there be such a split between words and action?

Some possibilities present themselves.

1. Investors really don't believe. They approve of spending cuts and the return of power to the private sector, but they question whether it is possible without severe financial and social upheavals first.

In spite of the praise they extend, important investor institutions and business corporations may not be as solidly behind the president as they say they are. They admire his spirit and direction, but they have reservations. It isn't just the financial community that has them. Some manufacturers are sitting on their hands rather than building capacity.

A survey of top business officers, results of which are scheduled to be released Tuesday by The Conference Board, show they have turned more cautious about the economy since the spring and early summer.

2. Few seem willing to take risks. In every investment there is risk, but some institutional investors today seem to be waiting for the sure thing. They seem to prefer riskless mediocrity.

Lobbyists In Full Force

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A prospective Supreme Court justice urging senators to support congressional bailout of corporations convicted by the courts as antitrust violators is part of the fiercest lobbying battle being waged in backstage Washington, invisible to the outside world.

Former solicitor general Robert Bork, presumed to be President Reagan's future Supreme Court choice, has buttonholed senators and their aides to help his clients out of trouble. He is not alone. Just about every high-priced lawyer and lobbyist in town is battling over billions of dollars in price-fixing damages.

While struggles over Reagan's budget and the AWACS sale dominate headlines, members of the Senate Judiciary Committee march to a different drummer. They are bombarded by merciless lobbying pressure to make past malefactors eligible on a retroactive basis for a proposed new method of setting antitrust damages.

This is the lobbyist super-bowl. Former attorneys general, senators and White House aides, plus cadres of the capital's super-lobbyists, are involved. There are two kinds of Washington lawyers today: those getting rich on this legislation and those who wish they were. With more big names retained with each passing hour, nobody can count the multimillions in fees.

Senators are swamped by telephone calls from chief executive officers back home and Washington representatives who in the past funneled campaign contributions from political action committees of the corporations now seeking relief. This is the Washington jungle.

unregulated by an administration that refuses to take sides. The Justice Department is studiously neutral.

Key company in the case is the Mead Corp., a Dayton, Ohio, paper products firm found guilty of price-fixing and facing a possible $750 million in treble damages. Mead is joined by three plywood manufacturers — Georgia-Pacific, Weyerhaeuser and Willamette Industries — found guilty of price-fixing to the tune of $1.5 billion in damages. The fifth firm is Milliken Co., the textile manufacturer which lost a $21-million antitrust treble damage award to Burlington Industries.

All five companies are pushing for a retroactive amendment to a Senate bill that would ease the liability for damages by future price-fixers. Since the retroactive amendment amounts to a congressional bailout for companies which refused to settle out of court and instead lost in litigation, it was given little or no chance.

That was before the unprecedented all-star talent appeared on the scene. The respected Griffin Bell, former attorney general and a federal appeals court judge before that, emerged as a lobbyist for Georgia-Pacific. So did former senator Birch Bayh. Super-lobbyist Charles E. Walker, a master Capitol Hill string-puller, entered the battle in Mead and Weyerhaeuser colors. Thomas (Tommy the Cork) Corcoran, the veteran wheeler-dealer, is handling Milliken. Mead recruited ex-Du Pont chief Irving Shapiro.

But Bob Bork, renowned conservative theoretician and constitutional scholar, was the most decisive combatant

Law-Making Cost

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — This week, the cost of making law nearly tripled in North Carolina. The legislators are back in session.

When that happens, the cost of operating the State Legislative Building, staff, and paying the legislators themselves skyrockets to more than $35,000 every day. When there is no session, costs continue to run about $13,000 daily for the fulltime staff.

The public call for a short session has been strong as this rump meeting of the 1981 assembly gets underway. Some of the leadership promises a week of work before adjourning until next year. Others of the leadership scoff at that idea, contending that too little is known about how deeply the federal budget cuts will be to accomplish any important work. And then there is the question of whether matters other than budget adjustments will be put on the agenda. Normally, holdover sessions are allowed to take up any tion of whether matters other than budget adjustments will be put on the agenda. Normally, holdover sessions are allowed to take up any legislation which has passed one of the two chambers but is awaiting disposition in the other.

What Course?

If those pending legislative matters are permitted in this session instead of waiting until 1982, the session could run quite some time.

Ostensibly, only budgetary matters will be taken up this week. Adjustments are supposed to be made in light of federal budget cuts, but those cuts are only now taking place, with President Reagan pushing Congress to cut even more. In truth, nobody knows how those cuts will work in the state budget.

That leaves two critical matters: spending what little money is not already budgeted; and raising some more money.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum should be limited to 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit longer letters.

To the editor:

I am a 19-year-old freshman at East Carolina University who would like to make a tribute to my generation. I read the article in the Sept. 30 Hotline. Jerry Simpson and Chris Harris are to be commended for their chivalrous actions. However, the article written by Sandra Gray left me with the idea that dependable and thoughtful young people are a rarity in today's society. I don't think that this is the case at all. One has to merely look out at today's youth to find people who are willing to be of service to society. As in any situation, one has to be given a chance to be useful before he can become useful. As Ms. Gray stated, "We often hear how today's youth are self-centered, ill-mannered and unreliable." The reason we hear about this so often is that many people care to tell only the bad aspects of young people. I admit that there are some young people who are detrimental to society. This is the case with any cross-section of people whether they are grouped by age, sex, race, religion, or economic status.

I think that today's youth are as helpful as they are allowed to be. They are probably the most intelligent generation that society has ever produced, thanks to advances in technology and education. The number of young people who don't fit into the mold of self-centered, ill-mannered and unreliable greatly outnumbers those who do.

Thanks for letting me express my opinion.

as counsel for Georgia-Pacific and Milliken. Arguing his case in letters and telephone calls to senators and at meetings of business groups, he turned a hopeless cause into a possibility. When the administration let it be known that Bork will be nominated to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, he eased up on his lobbying. But his work had been done.

Plaintiffs and those defendants who settled out of court had been assured by their Washington offices that Congress never would enact a bailout. But the lobbyists for the five companies have succeeded in repeatedly postponing Senate Judiciary Committee action on the bill while they gathered supporters for their amendment.

Alarmed, the anti-amendment companies found their own all-stars. Super-lobbyist Tommy Boggs was retained by Burlington International Paper Co., which had settled in the paper case along with 33 other companies while only Mead insisted on going to trial, hired former senator Robert Griffin. The other side counter-attack with more big names. Benjamin Civiletti, Bell's successor as attorney general, has scheduled meetings with a key judiciary committee member to discuss the bill in behalf of an unnamed client.

The notion of a congressional bailout for a company which has been assessed severe antitrust damages in court is considered so outlandish that William Baxter, assistant attorney general for antitrust, is presumed to be opposed. But he refused to talk to us, referring us to the Justice Department press office, which stated the government's position: "Neutral."

Lawyers and lobbyists delighted with the rich harvest of fees confront senators who consider the unbearable pressure a bad dream. So, these senators search for a compromise that would relieve the companies of part of their court-imposed damages for violating the nation's price-fixing laws. That is how Washington works when the superlobbyists roll into action.

The only question is how much of a raise state employees and teachers will get. All of the money which can be found will go to that purpose.

There is little question that any new taxes will be voted upon. Gov. Jim Hunt will push a tax hike on alcoholic beverages to aid the Highway Fund, but legislators are still suffering from approving a three-cent gasoline tax and are reluctant to raise any other taxes.

So for the year 1981, when it comes to making law, North Carolina has been almost totally preoccupied with road money and employee salaries.

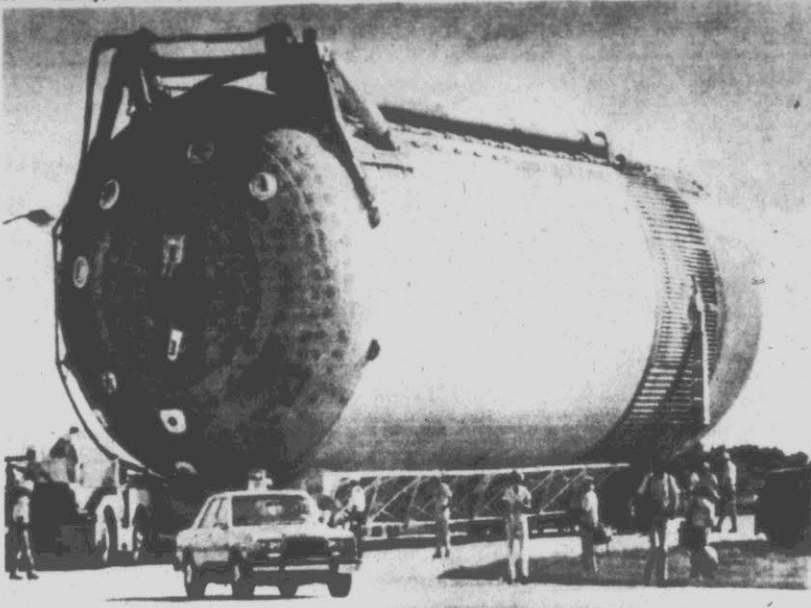

When you consider that the General Assembly is costing taxpayers more than $10 million yearly, questions arise as to the ability of that legislative body to effectively gather information, handle crises, ponder workable solutions to problems, and enact purposeful law for the future of the state.

Out of Touch
The shorter this rump session is, coupled with the less than productive earlier convening, and the less debate there is over proposals under consideration, the clearer the illustration that the rank-and-file members of the General Assembly are almost frozen out of the decision-making process.

Back at home this summer, a number of lawmakers have been complaining that they don't really know what is going on, and that the only way to accomplish anything is "to play ball with the big boys".

The so-called Big Boys — a mere handful of key legislative leaders — are the ones who have been visiting Washington, meeting with Gov. Hunt, and reading staff-prepared computer printouts as they get ready for the session this week. Knowledge is power when it comes to knowing how much money there is and in writing the legislation which will spend that money.

Given those circumstances, much can be accomplished in this short few days — but it may be months before most legislators and the public figure out what it was.

Gov. Hunt Pledges No Easing Up On VEPCO

By TOM FOREMAN Jr. Associated Press Writer RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt vowed Monday to "keep the heat on" Virginia Electric & Power Co., dismissing claims that he had stopped criticizing the utility.

"They ought to leave (North Carolina) or get their rates down, one or the other," he said in a news conference.

Veeco, which serves 22 northeastern North Carolina counties, has higher rates than Carolina Power & Light Co. and Duke Power Co., the state's other two major electric companies.

"Veeco today is not competitive. They have not been competitive for a good while," Hunt said.

Hunt had praised the utility in a speech last month for its efforts to increase economic development in the region.

On Monday, Hunt said the statements were "very appropriate and should have been said."

"Veeco is a very big company," the governor said. "They buy a lot of supplies from different kinds of companies. We ought to give them credit when they do something good."

But Hunt emphasized that he is still determined to make Veeco more competitive with CP&L and Duke, and said the company has improved under his criticism.

"I think that some of the progress that's come about in the management of their company has been due in part because of the pressure that we have brought here in North Carolina," he said. The Public Staff of the North Carolina Utilities Commission has indicated Veeco has improved, Hunt said. But the governor also attacked past problems, such as maintenance and down time.

"Unfortunately, our Public

Bennett Group Holds Meeting

The Coastal Plains Chapter of Bennett College Alumnae held a luncheon meeting Oct. 3 at the Three Steers Restaurant. Business included the installation of new officers by Mrs. Jacqui Garner, Washington, N.C., immediate past president.

New officers are: Beulah Mebane, president; Imogene Dupree, secretary; Betty Boyd, treasurer; Olga Dawkins, reporter and Louise Warren, business manager.

Mrs. Warren reported on the proposed trip to Atlantic City as a means of increasing the chapter's contribution to the scholarship fund of Bennett College. The trip is planned for Jan. 1.

Other business discussed included having a Bennett representative at Career Day activities held at area high schools. Dr. Hazel Brown will chair this committee.

Mrs. Gail Stevens was welcomed as a new member.

The next meeting will be held in November at the Three Steers.

Staff does not see them getting anywhere close to the North Carolina utilities in the foreseeable future," he said.

Veeco officials have said their rates are in line with those of CP&L and Duke. CP&L has asked for rate increases this winter that would make its rates nearly equal to those of Veeco.

But Hunt said Veeco's comparison was made at a time when CP&L was experiencing difficulties with its nuclear power plants.

Veeco is not the only utility that needs to improve rates and operations, Hunt said.

"I think CP&L can do better, and I think they know they can do better. Their problem has been a short-term problem," Hunt said.

Hunt said the General Assembly can move to remove Veeco from its service area if it chose, but he said the Public Staff can continue to apply pressure in the meantime to force Veeco to become competitive.

"The important thing right now," Hunt said, "is that our consumers should not have to pay for past mistakes."

Dry Weather Increases Threat Of Forest Fire

By ELISSA MCCRARY Associated Press Writer

Dry weather that has stunted some of the state's crops and withered trees and shrubs is increasing the threat of forest fires this fall — particularly in the mountains where conditions are the driest in more than a decade.

Forest service officials say the danger of forest fires usually doesn't become a real problem in the mountains until the leaves fall from the trees.

"But this year the forest-fire season is here early. We're in it right now," said Fred Foster of the U.S. Forest Service's fire management office in Asheville. "That usually happens after Oct. 25 or when the leaves fall off the trees."

"It's as dry as we've seen it in a long time," he added. "Some say it's the driest it's been around here in 10 years. Some oldtimers say the rivers are the lowest they've been since 1925."

Foster said light rainfall and snowfall in the mountains for the past two years has contributed to the problem. Area streams are low and some even dried up this past summer.

Western North Carolina

isn't the only area to be hurt by dry conditions this year. Soybean and wheat crops in the Piedmont and eastern sections may be hurt by the lack of rainfall.

Farmers in the Piedmont are having trouble seeding their pastures. And forest officials in the eastern part of the state are closely watching the forest fire situation in their area.

The U.S. Forest Service has 11 crews of 20 firefighters stationed at all 10 of its districts in North Carolina. They include one in New Bern near the coast, one in Troy in the Piedmont and the rest in the western part of the state.

If dry conditions worsen and the threat of forest fires becomes imminent, tanker planes on lease to the forest service will be called in from the western states, Foster said. Helicopters to carry crews and water also will be used in case a fire breaks out.

"The main thing we have to worry about right now is that fire from a hunter's fire or a camper's fire will spread into the woods," Foster said.

"Even though it's really dry right now, it isn't dry enough for a state ban on outdoor burning," he said. "That also means we have to worry about fire spreading from fires to burn off gardens or fires to burn trash."

Meanwhile, autumn color in the mountains is expected to reach its peak within a week or two. When the leaves start falling off the trees, the threat of forest fires will become critical, according to the state forest service.

"From the end of October into November will tell the tale," said a ranger on the Blue Ridge Parkway. "That's when we'll know how bad it will be."

House Endorses Extending 1965 Voting Rights Act

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The House is endorsing an indefinite extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, without weakening it, and supporters hope the lopsided size of their victory will overcome expected resistance in the Senate.

For nine hours Monday, conservative Republicans sought to loosen the federal government's hold on enforcing voting rights, but every amendment they proposed was defeated.

In the end, with the support of civil rights leaders, the American Bar Association and the League of Women Voters, House Democrats succeeded in pushing through a tough extension of the civil rights law.

The final vote was 389-24. Only seven Democrats voted no, and most of the Republicans who supported efforts to weaken the extension voted for final passage of the legislation.

"I believe that this strong bipartisan vote will be a clear sign to the Senate that the country is strongly in favor of this extension to protect our most cherished right," said Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

"This is the people speaking," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., the principal author of extending the legislation, generally credited as the most successful civil rights measure approved during the 1960s.

But the House measure, opposed by Senate Judiciary Chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., might not come up in the Senate until early next year.

As sent to the Senate, the extension includes continuation of the critical pre-clearance procedure under which all of nine states and parts of 13 others must seek Justice Department permission before making changes in voting laws or regulations. Many of those states are in the South.

The law was designed to make sure that the voting power of blacks, Hispanics or other minorities is not diluted by local officials or state legislators.

Testimony before a House Judiciary subcommittee showed that in many jurisdictions redistricting plans and practices to discourage minority voting are commonplace, especially in states like Mississippi, Virginia, Georgia and Alabama.

But the measure also permits the 22 covered states and hundreds of counties within them to "bail out" or escape from federal supervision, beginning in 1984, if they can prove that their minority voting records have improved and that they no longer have discriminatory voting practices.

Most of Monday's often bitter debate centered on how stringent the bailout provisions should be. All attempts to weaken the bailout standards were defeated by wide margins. As approved by the House, the extension requires local jurisdictions to prove that they have done nothing illegal to discourage minority voting, that no federal examiners were ordered in to enforce the voting rights law and that they made positive efforts to improve the numbers of black, Hispanic, Indian or other minority voters.

Among the first votes was one on an effort to allow local federal judges, instead of the U.S. District Court in Washington, to hear bailout cases. It failed 277-132.

Supporters of the amendment said judges in the area where the alleged discrimination took place should decide each case. But House Democrats showed early strength by arguing that the Washington court can set a uniform national standard, free from local political pressure.

The House extension also includes a seven-year extension of an existing federal requirement that jurisdictions with high concentrations of minorities who do not speak English be given ballots and voting materials in their native tongues.

When it appeared that the debate was going against extension of the bilingual language requirement, Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, drew long laughter by delivering a speech in Spanish to emphasize his point that Hispanic voters often feel isolated, uninformed and blocked out of the Democratic process.

President Reagan has indicated general support for extending the Voting Rights Act but has not disclosed his position on specific enforcement provisions in the House bill.

Congressional sources said they doubt that the White House will play an active role until the issue comes up in the more conservative, Republican-controlled Senate.

It is expected that if the Senate Judiciary Committee does not move quickly enough, supporters in the Senate will try to force the issue to the floor without a vote in the committee.

New York's Child Death Rate Grows

NEW YORK (AP) — Two children are beaten to death or die of neglect in New York each week and the problem is getting worse, says the physician who heads the mayor's task force on child abuse.

Dr. Vincent Fontana said he will meet with the 20-member task force in the next two weeks to seek ways of eliminating the problem. He also wants the city to begin a "public awareness" campaign, and said he if doesn't get it, he'll quit.

"We seem to be not making progress in eliminating the senseless slaughter of children," Fontana, who has headed the task force under three mayors, said Monday. "We are losing an average of two kids a week to abuse or neglect."

Fontana, also medical director of New York Foundling Hospital, is appointed by the mayor and receives no salary.

He praised Mayor Edward Koch and city agencies for providing "every available support within the limitations of their capabilities," but said he felt support from the public had been "greatly lacking."

He called for establishment of "crisis nurseries" in city hospitals, where parents could take their children during times of emotional stress.

He also proposed that the Board of Education, churches and community groups develop counseling and referral services for parents and guardians.

On Monday, April 11, 1981, 23, was arraigned on a charge of criminally negligent homicide and endangering the welfare of her 11-month-old son. The child, Jose Mercado, was found dead of malnutrition in the woman's Brooklyn home by Housing Authority police.

A week ago, two 5-year-olds died, each allegedly beaten by "male friends of the family."

In the Bronx, Christie Adams was left alone for an hour with her mother's unemployed boyfriend, Robert Sterling Blackman, 25, of Queens. When Thelma Adams returned to her home, she found Christie unconscious, police said. The child died shortly after arriving at a hospital, where doctors said she died of injuries sustained in a beating.

Earlier in the week, 5-year-old Emanuel Meyers, of Queens, was tortured and beaten to death allegedly by his godmother's boyfriend. The godmother, Wyna Williams said she found her boyfirmed, Phillip Ross, 27, holding the child's head under water in the bathtub.

His Diagnosis: A Death Wish

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The woman charged with running down 29 people with her car on Casino Row here last Thanksgiving, killing six of them, is convinced of her innocence but "has a death wish" and wants to die in the gas chamber, her psychiatrist says.

Dr. Louis Richnak said Monday that Priscilla Ford, 52, suffers paranoid delusions and is not competent to stand trial on the six counts of murder and 23 counts of attempted murder and battery with a deadly weapon.

Richnak said Mrs. Ford believes her car went out of control because someone tampered with it. She understands the charges against her, he said, but is incapable of helping her defense.

"It is my opinion that Mrs. Ford is not willing to assist her attorney because she has a death wish," the psychiatrist told a Washoe District Court in a pre-trial hearing. "She wants the gas chamber."

The prosecution has said it will ask for the death penalty if she is convicted on the murder charges. Jury selection is to begin Wednesday.

Mrs. Ford has entered double pleas to all counts of not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

Richnak disputed a state sanity commission finding that Mrs. Ford is mentally fit for trial, saying she "hasn't shown even a moderate improvement" since beginning court-ordered psychiatric treatment in January.

Richnak is the medical director of Lake's Crossing Center for the Mentally Disordered Offender, where Mrs. Ford is held.

He said Mrs. Ford also is schizophrenic, suffers "delusions of grandeur," believes she has "divine powers" and has a fear of open places and crowds.

More hearings were scheduled today on defense attempts to ban cameras and tape recorders from the courtroom and place a gag order on all parties to the case to stop them from talking to reporters. Judge John Barrett said he generally opposes attempts to restrict news coverage of trials.

Liquor Tax Bill Deadlocked In Senate Committee

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —
Despite a written appeal from Gov. Jim Hunt, a proposed tax increase on beer and liquor remained deadlocked in a Senate panel today as the General Assembly resumed meeting in special session.

teachers and state employees, was resolved quickly Monday when the House and Senate appropriations committees agreed jointly to a 5 percent raise beginning next January. The House also prepared for a floor vote, possibly today, on a $300 million water-and-sewer bond issue sought by Hunt. The bonds won rapid and unanimous approval in the House Finance Committee, with Republicans joining Democrats in support of the measure.

But with legislative leaders pressing for adjournment by week's end, the inaction on Hunt's alcoholic-beverage tax bill was viewed as significant. Hunt sent a memo to all 50 senators describing the $21 million state levy as "critically important" for the highway program.

"Without this additional revenue, we will not be able to meet our roads' minimum maintenance needs, and we will not be able to match federal highway ruction aid after July 1, 1983," Hunt wrote. Hunt lobbyists also insisted they were still at work on dislodging the bill from a subcommittee of the Senate Finance Committee, where it has rested since the regular session ended in July.

But no subcommittee meeting was held, and the tax proposal's major obstacle remained Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee. He met with Hunt and came away saying he would continue to fight the measure.

Royall said that if the Finance Committee approves it, he would insist that Senate rules be followed and the bill be sent to his committee. "I'm firm, and I told him that," Royall said. "I told him I hoped he would respect my position, and I would respect his."

The Finance Committee canceled a Monday meeting and set none for today. Royall, in an interview, also said he complained to Hunt about what he said were "unpleasant tactics" by supporters.

The bill would raise the tax on a can of beer from 5 cents to 6 cents. It would add 40 cents to the tax on a typical $6 bottle of liquor. In other legislative developments: ERA The Equal Rights Amendment, though not expected to be an issue in the special session, was the object of a demonstration by some 100 supporters outside the Legislative Building Monday. They carried signs saying "People of Faith for ERA," and represented various church and civic groups.

Bankruptcy A dispute arose over a bill changing bankruptcy laws, which was passed earlier this year and took effect Oct. 1. A bill to delay the new law until next year was introduced and won committee approval. Coffee and Tea A bill that would have placed a tax on coffee and tea was killed by the House Finance Committee after its sponsor, Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, said he had had a change of heart about the bill.

New Bills One new bill that won House Finance Committee approval would grant a tax deduction for "hearing-ear dogs," which are used by deaf people. There is already a tax break for those with "seeing-eye dogs." Another bill would allow Virginia Electric and Power Co. an easement through Jockey's Ridge State Park at Nags Head.

"We're here to let them know that ERA is not a dead issue," said Becky Hackler of Morehead City. Horse Arenas Republicans planned to protest a move by House and Senate leaders in the last legislative session, when a $4 million appropriation to build two horse-show arenas was added to the state budget in the final days. Rep. Bill Hiatt, R-Surry, said they Royall, in an interview, also said he complained to Hunt about what he said were "unpleasant tactics" by supporters. "I said some of your people are using tactics I never would have used," Royall said. He declined to elaborate, and Zeb Alley, Hunt's chief lobbyist on the tax bill, said he did not know what Royall was talking about. "I'm not using any tactics at all except my usual asking and begging for votes," he said.

Allow Vote In New Bern

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department says residents of two annexed areas of New Bern may vote in today's municipal elections. The department, which reviews annexations in North Carolina jurisdictions covered by the Voting Rights Act of 1965, rejected the annexations in September 1980 on the grounds that voters in the areas would dilute black voting strength. The department upheld the decision last month.

The department changed its ruling after city attorney A.D. Ward presented figures that he said showed the effect on black voting strength would be minor. Ward said William Bradford Reynolds, assistant U.S. attorney general for civil rights, notified him that he would approve the New Bern annexations.

The original decision had barred residents of Pinecrest and Kensington Park, annexed in November 1979 and February 1980, from voting. Of the 850 residents, about 212 are registered to vote for mayor and five aldermen.

"With the objections to the annexations withdrawn, they have full voting privileges," Ward said. Ward credited last-ditch efforts by Sen. Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C., with arranging for him to meet with Reynolds in Washington on Friday.

staff contact the Greenville Utilities Commission and other sources in order to get information to provide a more comprehensive report to present to the board. Mrs. Terry Shank voted against the motion, maintaining an opinion that a consultant was needed to tell the board what was apples and what was oranges in this complex matter.

Mrs. Sue Zedeits and Donovan Phillips were chosen as voting delegates, and Ernest Brown as alternate voting delegate for the upcoming North Carolina State School Board Convention to be held in Wilmington. Other board members also plan to attend.

On travel regulations for school board members, the board voted to have the school administration provide for arrangements and funding for transportation, registration, meals and rooms for conferences, meetings and other events attended by school board members. Any extraneous expenses would be borne by individual members.

Blinson revealed word has been received that all is now clear for the continued accreditation and membership of Rose High School in the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. "This is good news, and we are all proud of the work done in order to achieve this goal," Blinson noted.

The contract of one staff member was renewed, one resignation accepted, and approval given to three requests for maternity leaves. All the teachers requesting maternity leave are teaching at Sadie Saulter Elementary School.

City Council Agenda Ready

Presentation of the city's Comprehensive Plan highlights the agenda prepared for consideration by the City Council at Thursday's 8 p.m. regular meeting. The Planning Department staff conducted a public hearing last week on the plan, which will serve as a statement of general policy concerning physical development of the city.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the primary purpose of the plan, now in draft form, is to communicate the Council's policy on long range, physical development in one detailed report which incorporates a series of specialized subject areas. Other business on the agenda includes: consideration of a resolution regarding the Greenville Redevelopment Commission; appointments to boards and commissions; Public hearings on a petition for annexing 8.5 acres

City School Board

The possibilities of a major suit against the board, Blinson said "is frightening. The cost of awards for damages or injuries, plus the tremendous cost of court defense, must be kept in mind."

Chairman Jon Tingelstad remarked, "It's essential that we have the board attorney look at this matter from a business-like aspect." Donovan Phillips offered the thought that, "I feel sure the public is intelligent enough to understand and to appreciate the problems involved if we are open and honest about the problems. We have legalities involved that cannot be ignored."

Four firms were represented in presentation of proposals for installing Energy Management Control Systems in two city schools, Greenville Middle and Aycock Junior High. Firms, the manufacturer's equipment they use, and spokesmen were: E M S Inc. of Raleigh, Honeywell equipment, Tony Burrage and Joseph E. Roghella; Jay Johnson Company, Inc., Raleigh, Barber-Coleman equipment, J. H. Johnson; General Heating, Inc., Greenville, Honeywell equipment, Ray Masten and Jim Little; and MAC-Victor Manufacturing, Concord, Mac-Victor equipment, Louis Clark.

Each spokesman in turn provided brief explanations of the technical equipment and operations involved, the capabilities of the equipment, and the terms of proposals relative to purchase agreements, monitoring schedules, and warranty contracts. No definite estimate of possible savings was given, with a couple of spokesmen mentioning this was difficult to estimate at this time, particularly in light of recent sharp utility increases in September.

Louis Clark told the board, "It is our (MAC-Victor Manufacturing) opinion that installing an energy system at this time would not be justified in savings realized."

Clark added, "I am truly impressed with the maintenance in your schools. These men have done lots of things to save energy, and can do a lot more. For the record I recommend you study proposals very carefully. You should understand demand, how its arrived at, how you can be billed in two ways."

One of the recommendations by Clark is that of additional weather stripping, storm windows, etc. that could be effected by maintenance personnel. Grounds and Building Director Bob Stewart responded by noting that there are no funds available for the thousands of dollars such improvements would entail.

"You're in the same position of many others," Clark said. "You've got no money to spend and you need to spend money to save money."

Dr. Blinson told the board that the State Department of Public Instruction was reluctant to provide a consultant to study the Greenville Schools for energy saving recommendations, as the demand for consultants from the department far exceeded the manpower it has available. He noted that he knew of a private consultant whose cost for services is $25 an hour, which would mean a total consulting fee ranging from $200 to $1,000, depending on the extent of services provided.

A motion was approved that the school administration and involving a section of the Professional Center, on three recommended amendments to the Zoning Ordinance, on two requests for rezoning property, and on a recommended amendment to the Subdivision Ordinance; Consideration of privilege license applications and also tax releases and refunds; consideration of four items referred by the Traffic Commission; scheduling of a public hearing to close a portion of Pearl Drive; resolution approving the sale of a disposal parcel in the Southside Project;

Mobile home permit renewal application; consideration of the acceptance of streets for permanent maintenance; resolution accepting the grant agreement from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the South Evans CD project; and consideration of an ordinance establishing the 1981-82 Small Cities South Evans grant project budget.

Sadat Said Slain...

President Hosni Mubarak, who was on the other side of Sadat in the reviewing stand, were unharmed, Egyptian officials said. First reports said the defense minister was wounded during the shooting.

Fawzi Abdel-Hafez, Sadat's personal secretary, and Mohammed Rashwan, his personal photographer, were killed, reporters said. AP reporter Lisette Balouny saw an armored personnel carrier pull up in front of Sadat's home in Giza, a suburb about four miles from the center of Cairo, after the attack. She said the walled residence was ringed with special presidential guards, all armed with automatic weapons.

Security guards at the gate said Sadat's wife, Jihan, had returned to the residence from the parade in a helicopter, picked up other family members and left again in the helicopter. Foley said a group of men began firing at Sadat from a jeep towing artillery as it passed the grandstand. Two of the men jumped off the back of truck and charged the reviewing stand, firing from the shoulder.

"No one was sure it was real for a few seconds, then all hell broke loose," Foley said. Several thousand spectators in the reviewing stand fled in panic as the young soldiers, in olive drab fatigues, opened fired. AP reporter Steve Hindy saw many people lying bleeding on the stand.

Ambulances and security vehicles rushed to the stand and carried away the injured, who included military men and Moslem and Christian religious leaders, Hindy said.

Say F-15s

'Defective'

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's Defense Agency is investigating a Wall Street Journal report that U.S.-made F-15 Eagle fighter-bombers sold to Japan are defective, the director-general of the agency, Joji Omura, said today.

Japan has imported two F-15s, designated as the next main fighter-bomber for its Air Self-Defense Force, for pilot training and operational testing. The Wall Street Journal said the planes, built by McDonnell Douglas, suffer from excessive engine wear, leave vapor trails that make them easier to detect and don't fly as fast as predicted.

Omura told a news conference he has received no complaints about the planes from Japanese pilots.

"They say the aircraft are superlative, but I've ordered an investigation to see if there are any problems," he said.

A spokesman for the Defense Agency said the U.S. Air Force would also be asked for a report on the alleged defects.

Eight other F-15s, produced in Japan under license, are scheduled to be deployed in December.

Propose Allowing 'Some' CIA Domestic Spying

By ROBERT PARRY

and
MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writers
WASHINGTON (AP) — A draft presidential order would give the CIA its first authority to infiltrate and influence U.S. organizations and conduct covert operations in this country designed to affect foreign events, government sources say.

The draft order, which President Reagan can issue without congressional approval, was prepared to replace restrictions imposed on U.S. intelligence agencies by President Carter in 1978. But the administration has sent the order to the House and Senate intelligence committees for comment.

On Monday, a dispute threatened to break out between the Senate panel and the administration over the Justice Department's refusal to give on-the-record explanations of legal questions raised by the draft.

Several congressional sources said the impact of the order would hinge on the interpretation placed on some passages.

Sources inside and outside the government said the order also would:

—Permit CIA covert agents to infiltrate any domestic group for a lawful purpose as defined by the agency's chief. With additional approval from the attorney general, the CIA agents could secretly try to influence the activities of the groups.

—Remove prohibitions against the CIA's conducting "special activities," or covert actions, inside the United States if they are not intended to influence U.S. policies or politics.

—Allow U.S. intelligence agents to follow and photograph Americans and U.S. corporations abroad even if they are not believed to be agents of a foreign power or involved in terrorism or drug traffic. The Carter order requires such a suspicion.

—Retain bans on assassinations anywhere and on CIA electronic surveillance in the United States and on CIA break-ins in this country.

—Assert that restrictions on FBI electronic surveillance or warrantless break-ins against U.S. citizens and corporations are not meant to limit the constitutional powers of the president.

The CIA refused comment on the proposed order.

The sources said the draft specifically states the order does not authorize any violations of existing laws, but some sources said that in certain areas, particularly involving Fourth Amendment protections against unreasonable searches, there is little or no existing law other than the Carter executive order.

Some sources raised the question of whether the new CIA domestic authority would violate the National Security Act of 1947, which set up the agency and barred it from operating domestically. But one Republican source said "there is no burning desire to get the CIA involved in domestic activity."

Another source added that some sections of the order may have been mistakenly drafted more broadly than the administration actually intended.

Several sources said another key issue would be the implementing procedures that agency chiefs establish to carry out the order. Those procedures require approval by the attorney general, but, unlike the Carter order, do not have to be disclosed to the intelligence committees.

Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Intelligence subcommittee on rights of Americans, said the Justice Department refused to give on-the-record testimony on the interpretation of the draft order at a closed hearing Monday.

The subcommittee, in turn, refused to accept off-the-record testimony and the hearing broke up.

Schmitt, however, said he was confident "this will still be worked out" and the administration will agree to present its formal position on the legal questions. The senator added that he wanted to hear from FBI Director William H. Webster.

Justice Department spokesman Tom DeCair had no comment on the matter.

But an administration source, citing the principle of separation of powers, said Reagan officials were reluctant to create a legislative record on an executive branch action. This source said the committee was planning a formal request for testimony and the administration had not yet decided whether to invoke executive privilege.

The Carter order contained prohibitions designed to prevent recurrence of U.S. intelligence abuses in the 1960s and 1970s, when FBI agents sought to discredit and disrupt civil rights and anti-war activists, and CIA agents collected information about legal dissenters. Those episodes were uncovered by a Senate committee in the mid-1970s.

Carter basically limited infiltration and influence of domestic organizations to the FBI, but the Reagan draft would open that activity to the CIA. The Reagan proposal would allow CIA agents to secretly influence the groups' activities if the attorney general determined that tactic would not interfere with constitutional or legal rights, sources said.

Covert action is the CIA's term for secret operations designed to influence foreign events by such tactics as supplying weapons or cash to foreign political factions, spreading false information and waging paramilitary operations.

Carter required that the attorney general determine that there was "probable cause" to believe an American was an agent of a foreign power before such intrusive tactics could be used. The Reagan plan would keep that standard but add that the restriction would not limit the president's constitutional powers, sources said.

Although the sources said the constitutional powers were not defined in the draft, several presidents, including Reagan, have asserted their inherent constitutional authority to use some of these tactics without court warrants in foreign intelligence cases.

Two earlier drafts of the Reagan order ran into strong opposition from civil libertarians and some members of Congress as going too far toward unleashing the CIA and permitting it to become involved in domestic activities, a domain traditionally reserved for the FBI.

In some areas, the third draft contains restrictions on the CIA not in the first and second drafts, but in other areas it has fewer restrictions. Sources disagreed over whether the final draft would tighten or loosen controls compared with the previous drafts.

Door Opened To Asbestos Suits

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The way apparently has been cleared the trial of more than 40 lawsuits by Virginia shipyard workers who claim asbestos manufacturers were negligent in failing to warn them that asbestos can cause lung disease and cancer.

That may be the result of a Monday ruling by a three-judge federal appeals court panel that Virginia's two-year statute of limitations does not apply to suits filed by workers exposed to asbestos.

The ruling by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed a decision by a lower federal court judge who decided in January 1980 that four asbestosis victims awarded $435,000 each in jury trials were due no compensation.

The four were among about 150 Virginia shipyard workers who had sued the asbestos manufacturers.

Monday's ruling made possible the trial of a suit by another worker, whose case had been dismissed because the state's statute of limitations had lapsed, and attorneys indicated at least 40 other workers could proceed with their damage suits.

Courts have run into difficulties with the asbestos cases because asbestosis and another disability traced to asbestos, mesothelioma — cancer of the lining of the chest wall — often do not develop until years after a worker was last exposed to asbestos.

The 1980 ruling by U.S. District Judge J. Calvitt Clarke had been called by lawyers for victims of asbestosis a major obstacle to shipyard workers' chances of recovering damages. Asbestosis is a lung disease that develops after long-term exposure to asbestos dust.

The key to the issue was whether admiralty law applied in the cases of the shipyard workers who did not sail on the ships but worked on them in dry dock.

The appeals court panel ruled admiralty law did apply and the victims had a right to sue under admiralty law.

The four men whose jury awards had been thrown out by Clarke were Fred R. Walker, Hugh V. Reynolds, Willie A. Gibbons and James T. Oman. The appeals court ordered the lower court in Norfolk to hold a new trial for all four.

John W. White, the plaintiff whose case was dismissed before it went to jury trial, also is due a trial, the panel said.

The five men sued four asbestos manufacturers — Johns-Manville, Owens Corning, Pittsburgh Corning and H.K. Porter Co.

White's suit against Johns Manville was dismissed in Norfolk on Nov. 13, 1979, on the ground Virginia's two-year statute of limitations had elapsed.

A jury awarded Oman, Walker, Reynolds and Gibbons $435,000 each on Dec. 14, 1979. But on Jan. 31, 1980, Clarke granted a manufacturers' motion that struck down the jury awards.

Roy Innis In The Lineup

NEW YORK (AP) — After refusing to do so for two weeks, Roy Innis, chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality, has appeared in a police lineup in connection with assault charges against him.

Innis, 47, is accused of beating a man he allegedly caught stealing his car radio.

Innis took part in the lineup Monday at the Manhattan district attorney's office under protest, describing it afterward as "insulting, humiliating and debasing to me and my organization."

Police said Amstead Rice, 31, identified Innis as one of several men who dragged him into the national black organization's Harlem offices and beat him the night of Aug. 14. Innis was arrested Aug. 19.

In a prepared statement issued Monday, Innis said: "Recently, as the result of attempts to regain stolen property of mine from an automobile pillager, I, the victim, was subjected to the shocking process of arrest and am now being forced to appear in a lineup as if I were a common criminal."

REQUESTS APPROVED

Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits in Greenville.

Cannon said the requests were submitted by: the Greenville Seventh Day Adventist Church to conduct a door-to-door and sidewalk solicitation Oct. 5 through Dec. 21; and by the University City Kiwanis Club to conduct a pancake sale on Oct. 7 in the King's Department Store parking lot.

POW Benefits

W. L. Tucker, district officer of the local N.C. Division of Veterans Affairs office, said that Public Law 97-37 recently enacted by Congress provides for liberalized criteria in granting certain benefits to former prisoners of war.

He said the law provides that former POWs who were held captive for 30 days or more may be granted service connected compensation for psychosis and neuroses developed after their release.

Former POWs who have developed certain disabilities and diseases incurred as a result of malnutrition may be granted compensation for these conditions on a presumptive basis, he said.

Tucker said the law also provides that former POWs may receive hospital and outpatient medical care from the Veterans Administration for any condition.

Noting that the VA does not have current addresses of former POWs, he said former POWs having developed either of the classes of medical conditions discussed should contact the local office in the Tipton Annex on Greenville Boulevard.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Surgery Has Never Been Safer

Many elderly readers write to me about their fear of surgery. Their anxiety seems to be concentrated on anesthesia. Their greatest concern seems to be about survival if surgery were to be necessary. Strangely, these fears are expressed not by people who imminently need an operation, but rather by those who need the assurance that, if an operation were necessary, they would survive it.

There is no longer any age group that cannot successfully withstand surgery. Modern preparation with antibiotics, the greater knowledge of anesthesia, and the constant monitoring with electronic devices make surgery safer for almost any age group.

The newer knowledge of chemistry, physiology and metabolism reduces the hazards of surgery. The exquisitely fine surgical techniques reduce the time of surgery and further cut down on any threat to life.

Patients in their late 70s or 80s now successfully recover from operations on the heart, lungs, kidneys and prostate.

With the preoperative safety precautions that are now taken, the elderly recuperate rapidly from the operative procedures. The concentrated care given by master technicians and doctors and nurses in the recovery room further adds to the ease of postoperative recovery.

All patients in any age group are carefully screened and prepared, both physically and emotionally, for all types of surgery. Complete and thorough preoperative examinations alert the doctors and surgeons to any extraordinary threat. Armed with such preoperative information and care, the hazards of modern surgery are reduced to a minimum.

In a world of plenty it is particularly pathetic that so many elderly are still found to be undernourished. Malnutrition can and does occur even in those who seem to be eating well and often.

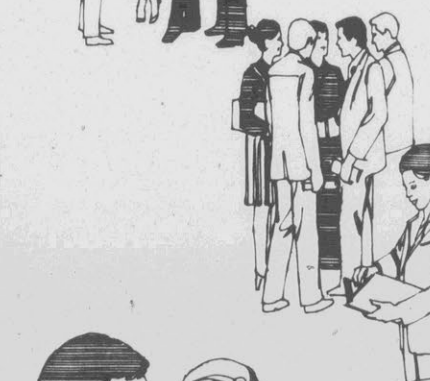

It is particularly important that the nutritional balance in the elderly be closely monitored, for when that nutritional balance is upset, the elderly become ready victims to disturbances that undermine their health.

One of the most common dietary deficiencies in the elderly is caused by insufficient amounts of protein. Perhaps one of the reasons is that protein foods may be more difficult to chew than sugars and starches. The dental problems of the elderly contribute to this difficulty.

It is sad that the shrinking resources of the elderly, made worse by economic inflation, should threaten the health of those to whom we have given the so-called gift of additional years.

Housing Work Is On Schedule

Activity in the Housing Authority's Section Eight program continued on schedule during September, according to Joe Laney, executive director.

Laney, who said the various segments of the program are "moving along," reported Monday night that 86 of the 100 units allocated under the existing housing section are now leased. He added that certificates are out on the remaining 14 so all 100 units should be under lease soon.

Under the Section Eight moderate rehabilitation program, 52 of the 100 allocated units are under lease and work is underway on 13 additional units that should be leased within the next month. He said rehabilitation work on 28 more units is in the preliminary proposal stage now.

All 60 apartment units in the Authority's University Towers mid-rise for the elderly were leased during the month, it was reported.

Laney noted that the low proposal for the Authority's yearly audit work, submitted by Dick Worsley, has been accepted.

Ken Noland, director of operations, reported that roofing work on 73 units in West Meadowbrook and Kearney Park is progressing at a rate of about two a day and a sodding project in the area around the new maintenance facility at the central office has been finished.

At the University Towers complex, horseshoe pits and shuffleboard facilities have been built and six park benches are now in place on the grounds, Noland said. Some grass reseeding and sodding work at the site has also been done, he added.

Painting is winding up in Moyewood with the Newtown section scheduled next, Noland said.

Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs, said that four temporary vacancies occurred during the month in the six housing developments operated by the Authority. Average rents for September included: NC 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $73.44; NC 22-2 (Kearney Park), $79.79; NC 22-2 (Moyewood), $86.22; NC 22-4 (Moyewood), $89.38; NC 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $75.59; and NC 22-6 (Newtown), $81.44, for an overall average of $81.10.

Adopt-A-School

The Pitt County Community Schools will kick off their 1981-82 Adopt-A-School program on Nov. 17. A breakfast will be held to acquaint school administrators with their adopters.

The Adopt-A-School concept is a statewide program allowing churches, civic groups, organizations, clubs, businesses and industries to become actively involved in the local schools of their communities.

Examples of this concept would involve gardening clubs assisting with beautification projects, businesses providing resource people in classroom activities and senior citizens sharing hobbies and activities with students and teachers.

During the month of October, Pitt County Community Schools will be actively identifying and confirming school adoptions with local groups.

Persons interested in adopting a school or who would like more information on the Adopt-A-School concept should call Carol Barwick, Pitt County Community Schools Volunteer Coordinator at 752-6106, ext. 248.

Airliner's Luggage Drops On Newark

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — New York Air officials blame a faulty cargo door latch for the unscheduled landing of five pieces of luggage in the middle of New Jersey's largest city.

Moments after departing Newark International Airport Monday morning, the suitcases fell from an open door on the commuter flight bound for Washington, airline officials said.

There were no reports of injuries.

Three of the bags were recovered in Newark's Ironbound section and were flown to Washington for reunions with their owners. Two other pieces of luggage — an attache case and a gray suitcase — are still missing, New York Air officials said.

As the unidentified pilot of the 7:50 a.m. flight reached an altitude of 1,000 feet, he noticed a warning light indicating the cargo hold on

Demanding Greensboro Investigation

NEW YORK (AP) — The Greensboro Justice Fund called again Monday for a state and federal investigation of the shooting deaths of five Communist Workers Party members almost two years ago.

Dr. Paul Bernanzohn, wounded in the Nov. 3, 1979, shootout involving the Ku Klux Klan and a Nazi group, cited a report last week by the Institute for Southern Studies.

He said that as a result of the study the Justice Department had shown signs of opening its investigation into the shootings and was seeking to interview him and another survivor.

The ISS report claimed that there was an "intimate alliance" between the District Attorney's office and police officials in Greensboro and the Klan and Nazi gunmen who killed the victims.

The report accused the Justice Department of not sufficiently pursuing charges of civil rights violations against the Klan and Nazi gunmen.

The Institute claimed Greensboro police used a former Klan informer, Edward Dawson, who "recruited and led Klansmen to the attack on the Communist demonstrators."

The ISS is described as a private, non-profit organization based Durham, N.C., that monitors reports of civil liberties violations involving terrorism and intimidation.

Seconding Bernanzohn's plea for the investigation was Dale Sampson, widow of a textile workers organizer who was among the five fatalities of the shootout.

Six Klansmen and Nazis were acquitted of murder charges following a trial last year in Greensboro. At the time, Bernanzohn called the acquittal "a license to kill communists."

Bernanzohn, himself, was shot in the head and arm during a CWP "Death to the Klan" rally that ended in the shootout.

At the news conference here, speakers claimed that the day before the Institute for South Studies report became public, the Justice Department telephoned Greensboro with a request to interview Bernanzohn and Mrs. Sampson.

The plane returned to the Newark airport without incident.

Two of the pieces hit the roof of a Sherwin Williams paint store and another bag was found in the backyard of a house, said Police Lt. Armando Fontoura.

"Ten feet either way and those suitcases would have come down right where people were coming into work," said Scott Papier, personnel director for Sherwin Williams Co.

Eagles Still Unbeaten, 16-13

Will Injuries Slow Spiders?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles may not have been the epitome of perfection — but no other team in the National Football League can boast of a record as perfect as theirs.

"I'm not going to tell you we can win 16 in a row this year because we can do many things better than we did tonight," Coach Dick Vermeil said after the Eagles ran their record to 5-0 (the only 5-0 in the league and the first 5-0 in the team's 49-year history) with a 16-13 victory over Atlanta which really wasn't decided until the last of the Falcons' five serious mistakes.

Use first two were interceptions of Steve Bartkowski passes. The first-quarter pickoffs by linebackers Al Chesley and Reggie Wilkes led, five plays later in each case, to Tony Franklin field goals of 36 and 34 yards and a 6-0 lead.

The third was Alfred Jenkins' fumble following a reception of a Bartkowski pass. The recovery by defensive end Greg Brown six seconds before the end of the third period preceded Franklin's 43-yarder with 3:14 gone in the fourth. It was the game-winner, giving Philadelphia a 16-10 lead.

Then came Atlanta's back-breakers.

On the ensuing drive, the Falcons swept down to the Philadelphia 18-yard line and Bartkowski connected with Jenkins in the end zone for the touchdown which — with Mick Luckhurst's extra point — would give them a 17-16 lead. But tackle Eric Sanders was flagged for holding, the TD was wiped out and Atlanta had to settle for Luckhurst's 43-yard field goal with 6:45 left.

All was not lost, though. If the Falcons could hold the Eagles and force a punt, they'd have one last shot. They held them. They forced the punt — but James Mayberry ran into Max Runager trying to block the kick, another flag was thrown, and Philadelphia kept the ball until time ran out.

"We had so many chances to win," said Falcon Coach Leeman Bennett. "But the mistakes killed us. You hate to lose a game that way. We got a lot of bad breaks, but we also got a few good ones."

And Bartkowski said, "We played winning football. We just came out the losers."

Vermeil sounded as though the Eagles played losing football but just came out the winners. "I don't think we convinced them we are a better team...but we got the turnovers when we really needed them. That was important, because we didn't move the ball on them. We didn't dominate the game, but we won. The touchdown pass before halftime was a turning point because it gave us a jump on them."

The touchdown pass was a 30-yarder from Ron Jaworski to Charlie Smith 91 seconds from halftime. That made it 13-0.

"I was really concerned at the half about that lead," Jaworski said. "In the back of my mind was that we were up 13-0 here, just like we were up 13-0 in that playoff game (a 14-13 loss to the Falcons in 1978). I told the guys to play as though we were 13 behind instead of 13 ahead."

Late in the third period, that 13-point lead was shockingly shaved to just three. First Luckhurst, who had missed a chip-shot 19-yard field goal in the second period because of a low center snap (the ball hit the left upright and bounced back), connected on a 35-yarder.

Then, on the ensuing kickoff, Neal Musser's tackle caused a Wally Henry fumble and Kenny Johnson, the cornerback beaten so badly on the Jaworski-to-Smith touchdown pass, grabbed the ball and sprinted unimpeded into the end zone. The two scores came 12 seconds apart.

"I was pleased that we didn't fold up the tent and go home after that touchdown," Vermeil said.

In all, the Falcons outplayed the Eagles in just about every department. They controlled the ball for nearly 34 of the 60 minutes. They outrushed Philadelphia 112-107 with William Andrews leading all backs with 84 yards. And Bartkowski outpassed Jaworski 232-161, although Jaworski threw just 26 times compared to Bartkowski's 46.

But in the end the Falcons' three-game winning streak against the Eagles came to an end. "Atlanta was the only team in the league that had our number," said Jaworski. Now, nobody has numbers like Philadelphia's.

"We're not cocky. We're not an egotistical team," Jaworski said. "We're level-headed enough to know we have 11 to go."

The University of Richmond, banged up by injuries, still had more than enough for James Madison this past Saturday, but the question remains as to how healthy the Spiders will be for East Carolina University this Saturday.

Both starting quarterback Steve Krainock and tailback Barry Redden missed Richmond's 24-7 victory over James Madison as the Spiders ran their record to 2-3 on the season.

They had earlier lost to N.C. State, 27-21, Virginia Tech, 28-12, and Southern Mississippi, 17-10. The other victory came against Arkansas State, 24-20.

Krainock missed the game with a shoulder separation, but will be available for play this Saturday against ECU according to Richmond officials. But other unofficial reports say Krainock will not be healthy for the game.

If so, Richmond will go with Napoleon DuBois, who played last weekend and did quite well. "Krainock is strictly a passing quarterback," ECU coach Ed Emory pointed out. "DuBois is an adequate passer and a good runner. So this makes the second straight week that we have to prepare to face two entirely different types of quarterbacks."

Redden, reportedly, could have played against the Dukes if he had been needed, but Richmond's Heisman Trophy candidate sat out the game with a strained left knee. He is, however, expected to be ready to play against the Pirates.

Although he missed the game, Redden is still picking up 100 or more yards a game. His lowest total in the four games he played so far was 100 on 26 carries against N.C. State. He picked up 118 on 20 lugs against Southern Mississippi, 169 on 43 trips against Arkansas State, and a season high of 223 yards on 23 carries against Virginia Tech.

For the season, he has 610 yards on 121 carries and two touchdowns, a 5.0 yard per carry average.

Going into last week's activities, Redden was ranked seventh in the nation in rushing with a 152.5 yard per game average.

In his absence last week, Richmond found another strong runner in sophomore fullback Jarvis Jennings, who carried the ball 24 times for 142 yards and two touchdowns. Jennings had gained only 50 yards on 10 carries in previous efforts.

Krainock, should he be available, will be attempting to add to his stats. He's completed 30 of 61 passes with one interception for 503 yards and five touchdowns. Krainock was ranked 14th among NCAA Division I-A passers going into the weekend's games. DuBois, prior to Saturday's game, had hit on 6 of 16 passes for 116 yards and one touchdown. His first varsity completion was a 71-yard touchdown pass to tight end Rich Scherer.

The leading receiver is wide receiver Clayton White, with 12 catches for 178 yards. Wide receiver Melvin Jackson had caught nine for 180, while Scherer has eight catches for 200 yards.

White is the leading scorer for the Spiders with 18 points, all on three touchdowns, while kicker Scott Schramme had 13 points on seven of seven extra points and two of three field goals. Scherer and Redden each have 12 points.

The Spider offense is a unique one due to the wide splits its linemen take at the line of scrimmage. "It's almost like the wishbone when it comes to defending it," Emory said, "since most people only see it once a year."

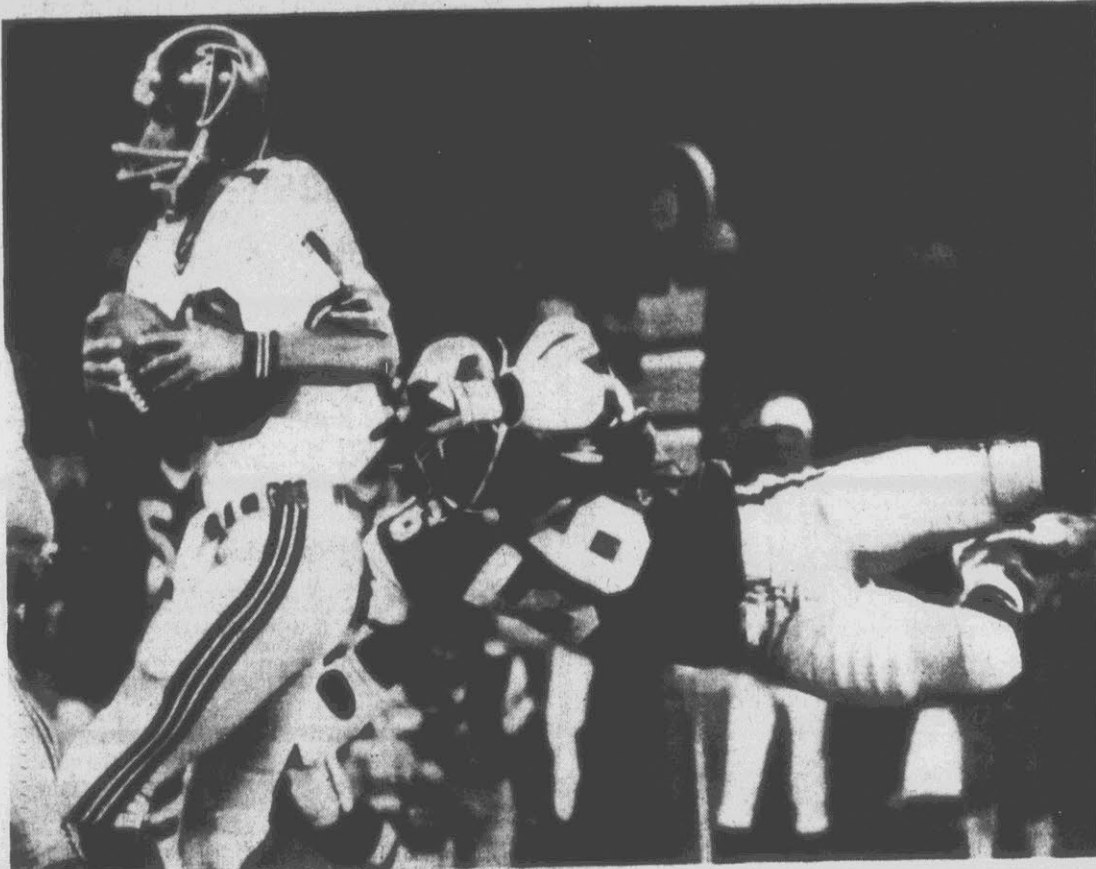

Richmond's defense is ranked fairly well, too. Going into the James Madison game, the Spiders were rated number one in the country against the pass, having allowed only 75.5 yards a game. On the ground, however, they are allowing 274.0 yard a game, not counting Saturday.

Defensive back Mike London and linebacker John Burgess are the leading tacklers on the team, each credited with 46. Linebacker Larry Braun is next with 39.

The game will have several added attraction, too. It's the 33rd annual Tobacco Bowl contest — the second time the two have met in this event. Richmond will also be out for revenge for last year's, 24-22 ECU win in the rain. The Spiders had pulled out to a big lead in the contest before the Pirates rallied to pull out the victory.

Richmond hasn't won in the series since 1975, when the Spiders beat Pat Dye's second team, 17-14. The overall series between the two is tied at 11 games each.

Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. in Richmond's City Stadium.

Carolina Climbs To Fifth Place

By The Associated Press
Southern California, Penn State, Texas and Pittsburgh held onto the top four positions in The Associated Press college football poll while Missouri made the ratings for the first time this season, vaulting to 13th place.

North Carolina moved up from sixth to fifth today, replacing Oklahoma, which slipped to 10th. And Alabama climbed back into the Top Ten, rising from 11th to seventh.

The Trojans of Southern Cal, 56-22 winners over Oregon State, received 58 of 65 first-place votes and 1,293 of a possible 1,300 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The seven board members who did not vote the Trojans No. 1 listed them second.

Penn State, which blanked Temple 30-0, received six first-place votes and 1,205 points. The other first-place ballot went to Texas. The Longhorns, idle last weekend, totaled 1,205 points to 1,134 for Pitt, which trimmed South Carolina 42-28.

Last week, with 66 voters participating, the point totals were 1,311 for Southern Cal, 1,208 for Penn State, 1,104 for Texas and 1,027 for Pitt. USC led Penn State 57½-5½ in first-place votes.

Oklahoma dropped from the fifth spot when the Sooners were held to a 7-7 tie by Iowa State. Ironically, the deadlock served to move the Cyclones from 20th to 12th.

North Carolina took over fifth place with 1,047 points after downing Georgia Tech 28-7. Michigan, a 38-17 winner over Indiana, jumped from eighth to sixth with 904 points.

Alabama rose to seventh with 763 points following a 38-7 rout of Mississippi while Brigham Young, which defeated Utah State 32-26, climbed from 10th to eighth with 735 points. Clemson cracked the Top Ten, moving from 14th to ninth with 651 points after defeating Kentucky 21-3. The Tigers are followed by Oklahoma with 607½ points.

Ohio State fell from seventh to 18th by losing to Florida State 36-27 and, Mississippi State skidded from ninth to 19th in the wake of a 14-3 loss to Missouri.

The Second Ten consists of Georgia, Iowa State, Missouri, Southern Methodist, Iowa, Miami (Fla.), UCLA, Ohio State, Mississippi State and Florida State.

Last week, it was Alabama, Washington, Georgia, Clemson, SMU, UCLA, Miami, Iowa, Arkansas and Iowa State. However, Washington lost to Arizona State 26-7 while Arkansas was beaten by Texas Christian 28-24.

Florida State returned to the Top Twenty after a two-week absence.

White is the leading scorer for the Spiders with 18 points, all on three touchdowns, while kicker Scott Schramme had 13 points on seven of seven extra points and two of three field goals. Scherer and Redden each have 12 points.

The Spider offense is a unique one due to the wide splits its linemen take at the line of scrimmage. "It's almost like the wishbone when it comes to defending it," Emory said, "since most people only see it once a year."

Conley Volleyball Team Puts String On Line Against Lady Pats

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley is a volleyball team searching for a challenge. The search may be over.

The Valkyries, unbeaten in their first 14 matches this season, entertain West Carteret Wednesday afternoon (4 p.m.) in a meeting of the Coastal Conference's two top teams.

The Lady Patriots, 11-2 overall and 6-0 in the league, are the last team to defeat D.H. Conley, rallying from one game down last season to defeat the Valkyries in the second round of the state playoffs, the second straight year WC has eliminated DHC from the state playoffs.

"We have not had a challenge so far this season — I'm not trying to take anything away from the teams we played — but I know West Carteret will be a challenge for us," D.H. Conley coach Martha McCaskill said. "I expect both matches to go three games, unless we come out and don't play well and then we may be blown off the floor."

Since taking over as head coach at D.H. Conley two years ago, McCaskill has been on the wrong end of the score few times. Last year her Valkyries won the Eastern Carolina Conference regular season title and then advanced to the state playoffs before losing to the Lady Patriots.

This year the Valkyries have been even better. With three starters back, D.H. Conley has faced few challenges in winning 14 straight matches, six of which have been league contests.

"We knew from the first of the season that we had a lot of potential, but whether or not we'll come through I don't know," McCaskill said. "We thought we had some talent, we were just trying to put it together."

D.H. Conley returns three starters from last year's team: senior captain Sherri Waters and juniors Darlene Cannon and Jackie Daniels. The other three starters — sophomore Karen Barrett and juniors Mary Mitchell and Amy Gibbs — played last year but did not start.

McCaskill's top reserves are juniors Lori Kandrotas and Marion Ellis and sophomores Ona Cradle and Michelle Kittrell.

McCaskill, who is assisted by Joy James, DHC's head girls' basketball coach, also kept five freshmen on the team this season, looking ahead to when her juniors and seniors have graduated. Those freshmen are Lisa Mills, Vonda Stokes, Anita Lloyd, Terri Spencer and Debbie Patrick.

Asked to evaluate her team's performance thus far this season, McCaskill said: "We have had some excellent hitting this season. We hit the devil out of the ball during practice but it's a little more difficult in the game when you have to set it."

"Our serving has been a little inconsistently though. In practice, we get it in nearly all of them, but in matches we sometimes blow it."

Such difficulties are minor for a team that has yet to lose in 14 matches, problems a coach uses to keep her team from losing its edge from too many lopsided victories.

"There have been some tough moments, though," McCaskill said. "Last year we had to prove ourselves as coaches and I think last year we did that."

"It's easier this year. We've got a good rapport with the kids. We can be loose with the kids and still have the discipline when we need to. I think that's helped us in our success."

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Reggie Ready For His Month

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The man they call Mr. October stepped from the batting cage, having launched several practice pitches against and over the right field wall.

"I haven't had a hit yet this month," Reggie Jackson said. "I'll try to change that the night after tomorrow."

Jackson and the rest of the New York Yankees worked out Monday at Milwaukee County Stadium, preparing for their American League East playoffs with the Milwaukee Brewers.

Game No. 1 in the best-of-five set is scheduled for the stadium Wednesday night.

Several Brewers have evaluated the series as a match of their momentum against the Yankees' playoff experience. The Brewers played their best ball of the season down the stretch and clinched the East's second-half championship Saturday. The Yankees qualified by winning the first half.

"I'm a firm believer in momentum, but it doesn't always work that way," Jackson said, citing the Yankees' defeat by Kansas City in last year's league championship series.

"We were in a dog fight in our division, really on a high roll," Jackson said. "Kansas City had a 14- or 15-game lead in their division and played only 500 ball the last two months. They didn't have momentum and we did, but they beat us three straight."

Their elimination by Kansas City has motivated the Yankees this year, outfielder Lou Piniella said.

"We're carrying a stigma," he said. "We had beaten Kansas City in the playoffs three years in a row, and maybe we figured history would repeat itself. This year we're not taking anyone lightly."

"You can talk about momentum, but in a short series it will come down to who gets the pitching and the breaks," Manager Bob Lemon said.

The Yankees, with a staff earned run average of 2.90, may have the best pitching in baseball. Rudy May has the highest ERA on the staff at 4.14. The others range from 2.76 for Ron Guidry to 0.77 for Rich Gossage.

The series will showcase two of baseball's best relief pitchers in the Brewers' Rollie Fingers, who has a 1.04 ERA and leads the major leagues with 28 saves, and Gossage, with 20 saves.

"People said we weren't trying to win the second half because we had won the first half," Lemon said. "We were trying. But we lost two key men. Milwaukee didn't lose Fingers, but we lost Gossage."

Gossage missed part of September because of a pulled groin muscle and center fielder Jerry Murphy was out with a sprained ankle. Lemon said both are healthy and ready.

"Outside of a flu bug here and there, we're 100 percent," he said.

Lemon didn't mention shortstop Bucky Dent, who won't play because he tore ligaments in his right hand in late August. Dent has hardly been missed because his replacement, Larry Milbourne, is hitting .313.

May, who pitched well early in the season, will be in the bullpen for the series. Lemon plans to start Guidry (11-5), Tommy John (9-8) and Dave Righetti (8-4) in the first three games. Lemon said he would start Rick Reuschel (4-4) if a fourth game is needed and Guidry in a fifth game.

Mr. October

New York's Reggie Jackson, the man they call "Mr. October," carries some bats out of the dugout at Milwaukee County Stadium Monday during the Yankee workout. Jackson, who says he hasn't had a hit this month, launched several practice pitches over the right field wall during the workout. The Yankees meet the Brewers for the American League's eastern title. ## Royals Romp Over Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — Neither team, one could easily sense, wanted to be here. The Kansas City Royals wanted to be home preparing for today's playoffs with Oakland and the Cleveland Indians wanted to be home, period.

But the Royals fought off the urge to forfeit a pair of makeup games and instead walloped the Indians 9-0 Monday to clinch the American League West second-half title.

A second scheduled game was canceled, since the first-game triumph gave the Royals the title they sought.

"The Royals were playing loose. It looked like they were really relaxed," said Indians Manager Dave Garcia.

The same could be said of Cleveland, although the results were vastly different. Kansas City collected 18 hits — three each by George Brett, Willie Aikens and John Wathan — while three Royals pitchers held the Indians to a total of three hits.

Paul Splittorf, 5-5, started and limited Cleveland to one hit through five innings. Royals Manager Dick Howser then called on reliever Jim Wright, who gave up two hits in three innings. Atlee Hammaker pitched a perfect ninth.

"I wasn't going to let our pitching staff get too bent out of shape for this," Howser said, explaining why he spread the work out.

Kansas City hitters pelted

Indians starter Rick Waits, 8-10, with 14 hits in 71-3 innings, but Garcia felt the defense behind his left-hander was less than zealous.

"Waits deserved a little better support," he said, calling particular attention to a lackluster play by Miguel Dilone in left field. "The less I say about it, the better."

The Royals scored twice in the second on an RBI single by Wathan and U.L. Washington's run-scoring grounder. They made it 4-0 in the third when Brett doubled and Amos Otis, Hal McRae and Aikens hit consecutive singles.

A five-run Kansas City eighth settled the issue. Wathan doubled in one run, Washington singled in another and Brett then cracked a three-run home run, his sixth, against reliever Sid Monge.

"I'm glad it's behind us," Howser said, admitting there had been some discussion in the Royals' front office about foregoing the trip to Cleveland in order to better prepare for today's playoff opener against the Oakland A's.

"There were some options brought up seven or 10 days ago," he said. "But I wanted to play."

Added Brett: "I think winning the first game made everybody forget about coming back to Cleveland. We had a good game, and now I think we can start getting ready for the playoffs."

Groh Says UNC Won't Be Hurt

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Instead of feeling relieved that North Carolina running back Kelvin Bryant is injured, Wake Forest coach Al Groh says the loss may awaken the rest of the Tar Heel team.

Groh said during his weekly news conference Monday that Bryant's performances had drawn away from the total North Carolina attack.

He pointed out that quarterback Rod Elkins is the top-rated passer in the Atlantic Coast Conference, while the team itself leads in seven statistical categories.

Moreover, Groh said Tar Heels Bob Ratliff and Tyrone Anthony could be starting for nearly any team in the conference. But because Bryant is still out with a knee injury, they'll start Saturday against Wake Forest.

The Demon Deacons do have some knowledge of what Bryant's backups can do, Groh said.

"We've seen a lot more of Anthony and Ratliff because of UNC's big leads, so we know a little bit about them," Groh said. "They are both good backs and would probably have been first on other teams in the conference."

Asked about trying to prepare for the Tar Heels, Groh said, "That takes more than one day of study."

Valenzuela, Ryan Both Expect To Get Their Message Across

HOUSTON (AP) — Los Angeles' Fernando Valenzuela speaks no English and Houston's Nolan Ryan speaks no Spanish. But they both expect to get their messages across tonight when the two teams meet in the National League Western Division playoffs.

The glamorous pitching matchup will pit Valenzuela, the rookie screwball artist with a 13-7 record, against the masterful Ryan, who fashioned a no-hitter Sept. 26 against the Dodgers in a key victory that helped the Astros earn the second-half divisional crown.

The first two playoff games will be played in the Astrodome before the best-of-five series shifts to Los Angeles where the Astros have won only two of their last 13 games.

Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda isn't expecting any assistance from past history.

"I've been involved enough in these playoffs to know that it doesn't make any difference what you did before, it's what you do from now on," Lasorda said.

Astros Manager Bill Virdon would feel better, however, if the Astros could sweep the first two games. "It's very important that we win two games here," Virdon said.

The Astros took a three-game lead to Los Angeles last season, lost all three games and had to win a one-game playoff to win their first division crown.

Although Ryan and his youthful Mexican opponent won't be able to carry on a lengthy conversation, they have a mutual respect for each other.

"He has a great fast ball," Valenzuela said from Los Angeles through an interpreter. "I understand he's improved his curve ball."

Ryan, whose 1.69 earned run average tops the National League, said he felt at the peak of his career in his second year with the Astros.

"I probably don't have the stuff I once threw, but I have more control," Ryan said.

Ryan recognizes he's not opposing an ordinary rookie. "As far as I can tell, nothing bothers that young man," Ryan said.

Valenzuela, who until Sept. 25 had never given up a run to the Astros, led the league with eight shutouts, 180 strikeouts, complete games and 192 innings pitched. He also was the starting pitcher for the National League All-Stars.

The Astros defeated Valenzuela 4-1 in an important series in the Astrodome Sept. 25. The following night, Ryan pitched his fifth no-hitter.

Houston's Joe Niekro is scheduled to face Los Angeles' Jerry Reuss, a former Astro, in Wednesday's second game.

Trio Files Suit To Stop Baseball's Minis

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Saying the expanded playoffs threaten the integrity of major league baseball, three Ohio State University law students have asked a federal judge to stop the post-season games.

The suit filed Monday in U.S. District Court here contends that the playoff schedule devised after the baseball players strike ended is unfair because some teams with the best overall records in their divisions did not reach the playoffs.

Named as defendants in the action are baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and five teams headed for the playoffs.

The students, James G. Neary, Robert S. Kiss and Randy Freking, all 24, said the five teams were named because they did not have the best overall records. The teams are the Houston Astros, Los Angeles Dodgers, Kansas City Royals, New York Yankees and Philadelphia Phillies.

Two teams, the Milwaukee Brewers and Oakland A's, were not named in the suit because they had the best overall records in their divisions, the Montreal Expos, was not included because the federal court does not have jurisdiction in Canada.

No hearing has been scheduled on the suit.

In their suit, the three students say, "Plaintiffs have been fans of major league baseball for 20 years and have relied on the past practice of major league baseball teams that only the teams with the best records over an entire season be allowed to enter post-season play."

"Plaintiffs have relied on the past decisions of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn which have emphasized the integrity of baseball never be sacrificed by the whims of financially oriented owners who have little concern for their legions of fans."

Unplayed Games Upset Oakland's Billy Martin

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Dick Howser was ready the opening of the American League's Western Division playoffs. Billy Martin wasn't so sure.

"My stomach tells me it hasn't lost any excitement at all," said Howser, whose Kansas City Royals were to meet the Oakland A's today in the opener of the five-game intradivision set.

"I think you're going to see a good series," Howser said Monday.

As late as Monday, however, Martin wasn't anxious to play. Angry that the Royals did not have to play the second half of a doubleheader with Cleveland Monday, the Oakland manager threatened to pull his team out of the series.

"If I've been lied to, we're not going to play the mini-series until two more games have been played," Martin told reporters in Kansas City. But A's spokesman Mickey Morabito said the team could be expected to play.

The Royals beat the Indians 9-0 in the first game of a makeup doubleheader, eliminating the need for the nightcap. The victory gave the Royals a 30-23 second-half record and a one-game margin over Oakland, the first-half winner. The Royals were supposed to make up three games, but it was announced Friday that a game with Toronto would not be played.

The midseason players' strike was distasteful, Howser said, but it was obvious the Royals, more than any other team, benefited.

They were 20-30 and in fifth place when the strike hit in June. They opened the second season by splitting their first 20 games, and Howser was hired to replace Jim Frey. The former New York Yankee boss directed Kansas City to a 20-13 record the rest of the way.

"We feel pretty fortunate," Royal second baseman Frank White said after the victory over Cleveland. "We thought that somewhere along the line we'd play well."

"If we hadn't won the first game, you'd have seen some very unfamiliar names in the lineup for the second game," said Howser, concerned about risking injury to front-line players.

He admitted the Royals had considered forfeiting both Cleveland games, since the only difference would have been one less home game in the five-game series with Oakland. "You can talk about momentum," Howser said, "but (Oakland pitcher) Mike Norris and (Kansas City's) Dennis Leonard can both stop your momentum real quick."

The opening-game pitchers, Norris had a 12-9 record for the A's and Leonard was 13-11 for the Royals.

Howser declined to analyze Martin's A's, who are led by outfielders Tony Armas (22 home runs, 76 RBI) and Rickey Henderson (.319, 56 stolen bases).

"These are two evenly-matched clubs," he said. "We beat them two out of three there, and they beat us two out of three in Kansas City. The team that gets good pitching and a few breaks is going to win."

Rose: It's Just Another Series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies' Pete Rose is playoff tough.

He should be. He's been in six National League championship playoffs and five World Series.

No wonder, then, he looks at the best of five mini-series for the NL East division title as just another series. Rose, as usual, is brimming with confidence for the five-game series which starts Wednesday (1:05 P.M.) in Montreal. The first two games are at the Expos' Olympic Stadium, and as many as needed of the final three in Philadelphia.

"The way I look at it, it doesn't matter who or where we play. Forget the weather. That's putting the monkey on someone else's back," Rose said. "If both teams play to their capabilities we'll win. We have a lot of consistent players, not over a week or a month, but over a season. That's why Cincinnati usually won when I was there."

Rose feels that the Expos will have to win both games at home to take the series and advance to the NL championship series against the winner of the West mini-set between Houston and Los Angeles.

"I can't understand why people think they have so much advantage because of the weather in Montreal," said Rose. "They don't like cold anymore than we do. The weather is nothing more than a mental block. I don't have that block."

Rose said the fact that the Phillies are 0-5 in Montreal this season also has no bearing.

"We start Wednesday from scratch. If they win they deserve it. One thing, nobody is going to choke," Rose said. Rose batted .325 this season, second best in the National League to batting champion Bill Madlock's .341. The Phillies' first baseman, who this season broke Stan Musial's all-time National League career record for hits, laughs at those who say the Phillies loafed through the second season after winning the first half.

"Mentally all the guys on this team know what the rewards are for winning the playoffs and World Series," Rose noted. "We're right where we want to be, swinging the bats pretty good, and Lefty (Steve Carlton) and (Dick) Ruthven ready."

Rose attributed Ruthven's poor second half performance to getting back fine control.

"He showed me something the way he kept his head," Rose said. "He's one of the best five pitchers in the league. I like the way Larry Christenson is throwing and Tug McGraw looks sharp. And they'll miss (Tim) Lincecum."

Raines is the Montreal speedster who had 71 stolen bases but can't play regular because of a broken hand.

Carlton, 13-4, will start game one for the Phillies against Steve Rogers, 12-8, with Ruthven, 12-7, for the Phillies, and Bill Gullickson, 7-8, for Montreal.

Blue Devils Challenge Tech

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke football coach Red Wilson says the Blue Devils better prepare for Saturday's confrontation with undefeated Virginia Tech.

"It's obvious that they have a very fine football team," Wilson said at his weekly news conference. "I understand from sources in Blacksburg that they are talking 11-0 and a major bowl game. We hope to detract them from that goal Saturday."

"We are going to have to play our very best in order to win," Wilson said. "They run isolation plays ... off-tackle plays ... they throw to their fullback a lot out in the flat ... they don't pass very much, particularly inside their own 40-yard line."

Devils' running game after their 24-14 win over East Carolina last weekend, predicted his defense would have its hands full with Virginia Tech's offense.

"They have a very, very big and strong offensive line and an excellent tailback in Cyrus Lawrence," he said. "They can punch it right down your throat."

But the Blue Devils compiled 250 yards rushing against the Pirates, and Wilson hopes to mount a similar performance against Virginia Tech.

"We sure are pleased with our running game," he said. "Anytime we hit the 250-yard mark ... that was absolutely elating to us. It shows how we are blending rushing and passing together now."

American League

DETROIT TIGERS—Placed Mark Fidrych, pitcher, on waivers for the purpose of giving him his release.

National League

CHICAGO CUBS—Signed Randy Martz, pitcher, to a one-year contract for the 1982 season.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS—Announced that Chuck Hiller, Hal Lanier, address system the rest of the day's scores for those players who still cared.

"Tom," Billy Sullivan said, "when you finish, ask me what I think of the scores or something. Find a reason to give me the microphone. I want to have an excuse to talk to the boys."

Hoffman complied and then Sullivan pulled himself out of his seat and surveyed the scene.

"You know, it's not the end of the season, boys," he told them. "It's just the beginning. I just want you to know that I felt if we could tie Pittsburgh, even if we lost in overtime, then I would be happy. Happy that we could come back from being down two touchdowns. So far as I'm concerned, I hope you recognize that we're solidly with you, solidly with the coaches. I just want you to know that."

Then Sullivan, whose Pats had indeed been beaten in overtime, sat down.

Before long, Rod Shoate, the linebacker, was giving his boss a big bear-hug thank you. As Sullivan got off the plane in Boston, one player after another, more than a dozen, stopped by him to say how it was a nice thing for him to do, how it was a real boost to their morale. One of the assistant coaches even wrote him a letter saying it meant something special.

On Sunday, the Patriots beat Kansas City 33-17. They didn't play the best they've ever played, perhaps not even the best they've played this year.

But they won.

Twenty minutes after the game, Sullivan stood in the locker room as he does just about every week — in an out-of-the-way spot, holding an ice-cream bar, watching Ron Erhardt, his head coach, field questions, watching his boys go about the business of becoming civilians again. Every one was happy, for a change.

Sullivan isn't quite in Art Rooney's league. Not as cherubic. No soggy stogie protruding from a well-creased face. Nobody calls him "Chief," although assistant coach Gino Cappelletti is fond of "Padrone," (godfather). But like Steeler boss Rooney, Sullivan has that twinkle, that paternal look, that fierce protectiveness for his own family, whether it's the rest of the Sullivan or the Patriots.

"I generally wander around here when we lose," Sullivan said in a voice barely audible above the locker-room din. "I don't really have to wander around here today. There's enough other people to do that... I think the time for a family to show its character is when it's losing, not when it's on top. When you're winning, there's all sorts of hangers-on who aren't around when things are tough.

"One thing that mystifies me is now there often is an unwillingness to give credit to the other side," Sullivan went on. "We got badly beat by Green Bay a year ago and I remember one of the boys said to me, 'everybody's talking about how everything went wrong for us. What about what went right for them?' Now, this is the time to say, 'look how well this team did,' rather than how badly the other guys played."

Davis Sticks With Superstition

PRESCOTT, Ariz. (AP) — It's a superstition that's become a trademark of Phoenix Suns' guard Walt Davis — that stretchy, black, rubber brace he wears around his left knee.

"That's all it is, a superstition," Davis said Saturday as the Suns continue preseason training camp here. "I got this thing called 'jumper's knee' from playing on cement courts for so long when I was growing up.

"It developed into an irritation around the knee cap and I had to start wearing it in college. I just got used to it," added Davis. "My knee feels the same with or without it. But I seem to play better when I have it on, if you know what I mean."

The 27-year-old Davis has seldom stepped on the court as a pro with Phoenix without the brace. With it on, he has been a four-time all-star, 1977-78 NBA Rookie of the Year and one of the team's most consistent scorers.

His first three years in the league, the 6-6 native of Pineville, N.C., averaged 24.2, 23.6, and 21.5 points per game.

Last year, Davis was shifted from his accustomed forward position to the backcourt. His scoring average subsequently suffered, slipping to 18.0 points-per-game despite leading the squad in field goal percentage (.539) for the fourth straight season.

"I think I talked myself out of shooting," said Davis. "I wasn't too happy about playing guard and I tried to hide that. I wanted to play forward but I knew it would help the team more if I played guard.

"It was funny, though," added Davis. "When I got the chance to shift back to forward in some games, I felt out of place because I had gotten so used to guard. Last year, everything was new to me. I felt like a rookie again.

"This year, I'm a second-year guard," Davis said. "Things will be better. I know I'm a better shooter than what I showed."

Davis is also setting out to dispell what he calls "an old wives' tale" that marriage can ruin an athlete. He wed during the off-season.

"I hear (Dallas Cowboys' star fullback) Tony Dorsett got married and he's leading the National Football League in rushing right now," Davis said. "He's just proved those people wrong. I guess I'll have to do the same thing."

Silencing some critics who lambasted the Suns after last year's seven-game semifinal playoff series loss to the underdog Kansas City Kings will not be one of Davis' pet projects.

"That's in the past. There's nothing nobody can do about it now," he said with a shrug. "Everytime you hear something negative, you think it's unjust. Some of the criticism was probably true, though. The way we played in the regular season, we should have made a better showing in the playoffs.

"The only thing I disagreed with was when the press pinpointed one or two players and said that it was their fault. I think that's wrong," Davis added. "The whole team won 57 games last year and the whole team lost 25 times.

Whatever Happened To Clampett Clan? Movie Tells All Tonight

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If anybody cares what happened to the Clampett clan from that populist television gusher of the 1960s, CBS checks in on Jed, Jethro and Elly May 10 years after cancellation in tonight's made-for-TV movie: "The Return of the Beverly Hillbillies."

The original "Beverly Hillbillies" was the best known of the corn-andcoverall comedies that made CBS No. 1 in the mid-1960s. Introduced in 1962, it was the top-rated show for two seasons, ushering in companion programs: "Petticoat Junction," "Green Acres" and "Hee Haw."

This pitch to the South and the silos of America was finally scrapped because the high ratings didn't compensate for the disinterest in the big cities, emerging younger audiences and, ultimately, advertisers.

Even though television is experiencing a resurgence in country and western with CBS' "Dukes of Hazzard," NBC's Barbara Mandrell and its upcoming "Nashville Palace," "Return of the Beverly Hillbillies" is an idea whose time shouldn't have come again.

It is a silly, pointless two hours. If the old show — about a backwards family striking oil and moving to Beverly Hills — had any redeeming value, it was for a slapstick humor that occasionally was funny and often served to ridicule stuffy conventions of the rich. It also pointed up how money can buy into high society but can't achieve real acceptance.

These elements are nowhere to be found in tonight's recycling project.

The plot is simple. It's 1981, and the Reagan administration is looking for Granny's moonshine as an answer to the energy crisis. Jane Hathaway (Nancy Kulp), now working for the National Energy Commission, travels to Beverly Hills to find a batch. She finds the young members of the clan are in California, but Jed went back home and Granny "went to her reward." (Irene Ryan, who played Granny with a feisty charm, died.)

Jethro, now a movie mogul, is still stupid. Elly May, owner of a zoo, is still sweet. Once again, TV doesn't have the subtlety needed for good satire. Played so broadly, it becomes sheer silliness. This is especially true with Werner Klemperer (Col. Klink on "Hogan's Heroes"), who plays a stuffy bureaucrat.

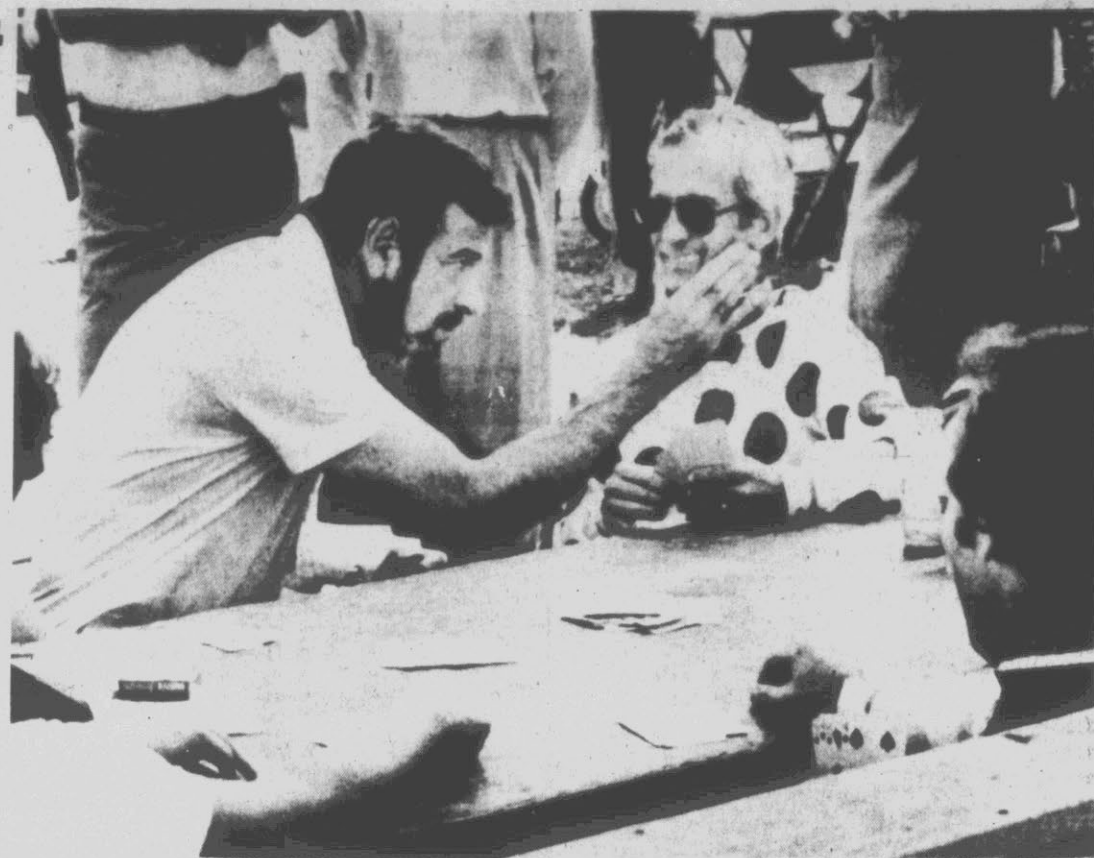

Donna Douglas returns as the animal-loving daughter, but Max Baer, who played Jed's dim-witted nephew, does not. He always had a weight problem and was said to be too busy. Baer's been replaced by Ray Young, a 6-foot-7, 230-pounder who previously played a giant in the children's series,

"Bigfoot and Wildboy." Jed is again played by Buddy Ebsen. Seen recently as detective "Barnaby Jones," Ebsen is the only member of the cast to capitalize on "Hillbillies."

Paul Henning, the original creator, wrote and produced tonight's movie. If he had concentrated on how the Clampetts were fitting in 10 years later, it might have been somewhat entertaining. Instead, he's focused on a contrived plot that spends most of its time in the woods with Jed and Granny's 100-year-old Maw (Imogene Coca), who holds the secret moonshine recipe.

Miss Coca, once a TV comedy pioneer with Sid Caesar in "Your Show of Shows," is now relegated to hitting people with a stick and stamping up and down in some of the least amusing of many unamusing moments.

A new segment of "Dukes of Hazzard," country cousins to the "Hillbillies," will be the movie's lead-in. Although TV hasn't grown up a lot in 20 years, the car chases are certainly better. The moving scenery in the "Hillbillies" is straight out of a cheap arcade.

JUST HORSEING AROUND — Actor Walter Matthau, a horseplayer at heart, jokingly checks out the teeth of veteran jockey Willie Shoemaker during the lunch break at Hollywood Park. The "Shoe" was at the track to film a television commercial, and Matthau was there shooting scenes for an upcoming 20th Century-Fox film, "I Ought to be in Pictures." (AP Laserphoto)

Loretta Swit In Lady Cop Role

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Cagney & Lacy" is the title of a Filmways two-hour movie starring Loretta Swit and Tyne Daly as a pair of New York City cops.

The CBS movie, directed by Ted Post, finds Swit and Daly as two very different partners working to fight crime and prove themselves to their male colleagues.

"Cagney & Lacy" airs Oct. 8.

Bette Davis In Movie For TV

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bette Davis will star in "A Piano for Mrs. Cimino," a two-hour CBS-TV movie in which the longtime star plays a 68-year-old widow struggling to survive the 1980s.

Keenan Wynn and George Hearn portray her sons who attempt to declare her senile as a means to gain possession of her assets and property.

"A Piano for Mrs. Cimino," to be directed by George Schaefer, will be filmed on locations in Vancouver, B.C.

ruff and discarded dummy's remaining heart on his high diamond. His only losers were two clubs and a heart.

Declarer was rather lucky to find a singleton king of trumps. He was even luckier that East chose to shift to a diamond rather than a heart, which would have left him with no play for his contract. Despite that, declarer made his contract because of a well reasoned play.

Declarer worked out that, even if East held the king of spades doubleton and it could be picked up with a finesse, he would go down if he used the ace of hearts as an entry for the trump finesse. When declarer later gave up a diamond trick, the defenders would be able to cash a heart trick to complete a one-trick set.

So declarer could not afford to expend the ace of hearts before his diamonds were set up. And he could not set up diamonds before drawing trumps, because that would need specifically a 3-3 break in the suit, which was unlikely in light of East's shift to a diamond at trick three.

Our compliments to those readers who reached the same conclusion.

This hand is from an international match almost 30 years ago. Study the play and decide whether declarer made a good play and why, or whether declarer was simply lucky.

Even by the most aggressive standards North's decision to make a limit jump raise is wildly optimistic. South had something to spare for his continuation to game.

West led the jack of clubs. Dummy's king lost to East's ace, and East cashed the queen of clubs before shifting to a diamond. Declarer won the king of diamonds and led the ace of spades, felling West's king. Declarer drew the remaining trumps, cashed the ace of diamonds and conceded a diamond to West's queen. West shifted to a heart, but it was too late. Declarer won the ace, entered his hand with a club

Zoo Offers Top Dollar For It's Exotic Animals

MIAMI (AP) — Metrozoo General Curator Bill Zeigler is in the market for chimpanzees, two-humped camels and Thomson's gazelles — exotic animals he says come with a hefty price tag.

Female chimps command $8,000 each. Bactrian camels would set Zeigler back $16,000 a pair. And a healthy Thomson's gazelle costs $3,500.

"I'm not a used car salesman at heart," Zeigler said. "But I do try to save money for the county where I can. But you don't pay $3,000 for a $6,000 animal. If you want quality you have to pay the price."

Zeigler is paying the price because Dade County's Metrozoo has to be ready for its opening Dec. 12. When the first 160-acre section of zoo opens, scores of animals will be on display in 50 specially designed open paddocks.

The wild beasts will peer at visitors across moats from grassy island domains. Hundreds of other animals that will populate Metrozoo are still in holding pens at now-closed Crandon Park Zoo in Key Biscayne.

Buying rare animals is not new for Zeigler. But he doesn't always pay cash; he sometimes works out trades.

For a pair of Himalayan bears and a pair of European brown bears, valued at $2,400, Zeigler paid an animal dealer with a couple of scimitar-horned oryxes — large antelopes — and a $3,000 Arabian deer. In addition to the bear, Metrozoo got $600 in credit from the animal dealer.

"We get the best stock we can to populate those exhibits we are committed to open," said Zoo Director Robert Yokel. "There are a lot of considerations: price, rarity, our available space."

Many of the animals now at Metrozoo, such as the orangutans, are there on loan from other zoos. Zeigler said some animals are so rare that they are not available at any price.

Wouk Novel Is Finally A Movie

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "The Winds of War," the 16-hour adaptation of Herman Wouk's novel, concluded the longest overseas shooting schedule in television history in London earlier this month.

The Paramount Television production began shooting in Europe Jan. 9 on locations in Yugoslavia, Italy, Austria, Germany and England. The company returns to the United States this month to continue principal photography until the end of December.

"The Winds of War," which began production last Dec. 1, stars Robert Mitchum and Ali MacGraw, both of whom are making their television debuts.
