U.S. To Speed Up Egypt Arms Deliveries

By STEVE K. HINDY

Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The United States, which plans an expanded Mideast military presence in the wake of President Anwar Sadat's death, will speed up shipments of fighter planes, tanks and missile to Cairo, a newspaper reported today.

Meanwhile, Egyptian authorities said at least two more suspects were being sought in the slaying of Sadat, and a machine gun attack on the home of Interior Minister Nabawy Ismail was reported by police sources but denied by the minister.

Secretary of State Alexander M.

Haig Jr. announced Sunday that U.S. forces will conduct "very extensive" military exercises in Egypt next month with troops from Egypt and some Persian Gulf countries. He said American B-52 bombers might be used.

"We're going to have to show our presence here from time to time" to demonstrate "that it is not fatal to be an ally of the United States," Haig said on NBC's "Meet the Press," broadcast from Cairo before Haig returned to Washington.

Haig also said American officials are assessing the possibility of accelerating military aid to Egypt and its southern neighbor, Sudan, the only Arab state that openly supported Sadat's conciliation with Israel, "as a concrete manifestation" of support.

He said Sudan is threatened with increased subversion and border tension fueled by Libya, and "we are looking for a step-up of deliveries of American equipment to this threatened nation."

Mayo, the weekly mouthpiece of the ruling National Democratic Party, said assurance of accelerated arms shipments was given to Egyptian Defense Minister Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala by Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, who was part of the official U.S. delegation attending Sadat's funeral on Saturday.

Mayo said Weinberger had promised to speed up delivery of an undisclosed number of M-60 tanks, ground-to-air missiles and 40 F-16 jet fighters on order. No timetable was given.

The United States, Egypt's largest arms supplier, agreed in 1979 to sell Egypt $3.5 billion worth of arms.

The Soviet government issued a statement accusing the United States of exerting "gross pressure" on Egypt and interfering in Egyptian affairs. A State Department press officer said the accusation was "hogwash."

In Jerusalem, Deputy Prime

Minister Simha Ehrlich said Israel is firmly resolved to carry out its commitments to Egypt under the 1979 peace treaty.

Israel is scheduled to withdraw from the final third of the Sinai Peninsula in April. Following Sadat's assassination last Tuesday, Israeli militants demanded the government suspend withdrawal plans.

"It is very clear that we have to go on with the peace process even without Sadat — as if Sadat were still alive," Ehrlich told Israeli Radio after a Cabinet meeting Sunday.

However, Ehrlich said Israel sees no need to soften its position in the deadlocked Palestinian autonomy negotiations with Egypt as a gesture to the new Egyptian government. "We are doing all we can," he said. The talks are scheduled to resume Oct. 21.

Haig called on the two peace partners to "strip aside some of the inflexibilities of the past" and rapidly conclude an agreement on home-rule for the 1.2 million Palestinians living in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Haig, who led a U.S. delegation including three former presidents to Sadat's funeral Saturday, met Sunday with Sadat's hand-picked successor, Vice President Hosni Mubarak.

Carter And Ford Agree PLO Talks Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter, who were instrumental in bringing Israel and Egypt together, say the United States eventually must deal directly with the Palestine Liberation Organization to gain a comprehensive Middle East peace.

In an unprecedented joint interview, the 38th and 39th presidents also agreed that many moderate Arab leaders support the Camp David peace process but are afraid to speak up.

Ford and Carter, frequently calling each other "Jerry" and "Jimmy," spoke on the flight back from Saturday's funeral of slain Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The White House released the text Sunday.

Sadat had urged that the United States talk with the PLO.

"At some point that has to happen," said Ford, who was president when then-Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger employed shuttle diplomacy leading to the separation of Israeli and Egyptian forces in the Sinai.

"That is the kind of development that I think has to take place if you're going to get the negotiations for the future off dead center," he added. "I would not want to pick the date today ... but as you go down the road at some point, that dialogue has to take place, and I think that will happen."

It was Ford who promised Israel that the United States would not deal with the PLO until it recognized Israel's right to exist.

Carter, who personally supervised the 1978 summit at his Camp David, Md., retreat that led to a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel, said: "There is no way for Israel ever to have an assured permanent peace without resolving the Palestinian issue.... So I think Jerry is certainly right in saying these discussions have to be done."

The problem, Carter said, is U.S. recognition of the PLO before PLO recognition of Israel.

"We can't speak for Israel, but I think a simultaneous acknowledgement of the PLO that Israel has a right to exist, and our dealing with the PLO, would certainly be something that I would favor," Carter said.

But both former presidents said dealings with the PLO would not necessarily have to be with the present leadership under Yassir Arafat.

"It can be responsible business and other leaders," Carter said.

The two former presidents agreed in denunciations of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

Search Committee Is Chosen

Ashley B. Futrell, chairman of the East Carolina University Board of Trustees this morning named a 15 member search committee today composed of trustees, faculty, alumni and students to begin the search for a new chancellor for the State's third largest university. Two women and one black are represented on the committee.

Futrell, editor and publisher of "The Daily News" in Washington, will serve as chairman of the committee to find a replacement for Dr. Thomas Brewer, who announced his resignation, effective June 30, 1982, last month.

Other trustees named to the search committee include: Ralph Kinsey of Charlotte, Troy Pate of Goldsboro, Jack Minges of Greenville, Dr. John Bridges of High Point, and Tom Bennett of Greenville.

Faculty committee members include: Dr. Tom Johnson,

Dr. Robert Hursey, Dr. Rosina Lao, Dr. Robert Brame, and Dr. Clinton Downing.

Other search committee members are: Phil Dixon of Greenville, president of the ECU Alumni Association; ECU student body president Lester Nail; Judge Gerald Arnold of Dunn, an alumnus representing the general public, and alumnus Carolyn Fulghum, associate dean and director of residence life at the university, representing the administration.

Futrell said Dr. Joe Boyette, Dean of the Graduate School at East Carolina, will serve as executive secretary to the search committee.

Applications for the chancellor's post will be accepted through December 15. Futrell said

Secrecy Marks Future Planning By State Transportation Board

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials are working on a long-range plan for highway construction in secret to avoid protest from areas that won't get promised projects, the News and Observer of Raleigh says.

The newspaper reported in its Sunday editions that several members of the state Transportation Board have promised not to leak significant details of the plan.

The plan is being developed by assistant highway administrator William F. Caddell amid heavy demands from local areas and a lack of enough money in the Highway Fund to accommodate all the demands.

Those financial problems make it impossible to honor all the road construction promises that have been made, said Marc Bashight, a programming committee member from Manteo.

"We're not going to be able to build the roads we promised, and some of the ones we build won't have the features we promised," Bashight said. "It's tough. Nobody likes it."

Plans for two lanes of proposed four-lane divided highways and for cloverleaf intersections will probably be eliminated, the News and Observer said. Grade-level crossings — which are cheaper but more hazardous — may replace the cloverleaf intersections.

"It's very depressing," said transportation board member and state Sen. James B. Garrison, D-Stanly. "We're going to have a hard time building any new highways after (July 1) 1983."

The General Assembly approved a 3-cent-a-gallon increase in the motor fuel tax and raised assorted fees over the summer, making another $121 million available for the highway fund.

But Gov. Jim Hunt said in a letter to legislators last week that another crisis is less than two years away.

The governor warned that unless highways get additional money, no funds will be available for matching federal construction grants after the budgetary biennium ends June 30, 1983.

Caddell agreed. "You're looking at zero or very little state funds for construction (after 1983)," he said.

The additional revenue approved this year will go almost entirely for catch-up maintenance because the construction fund, earmarked for 100 percent of state-funded construction work, has been depleted.

Caddell said the programming committee will try to eliminate only projects that would not greatly affect the state's arterial highway system.

One of the projects facing delay or scaling-down is the widening of Falls of the Neuse Road in Raleigh, Garrison said.

Another is a proposal to widen U.S. 70-A, which bypasses Smithfield, he said. "We don't have anything for that," he said.

Even Garrison's favorite home district projects may fall victim to the lack of funds, he said.

"Look at Albemarle Road to N.C. 51 (in Mecklenburg County)," he said. "I've been working on that for eight years and I'm not going to get it. That ought to tell you something."

Tobacco Support Program To Run Gauntlet In U.S. House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal tobacco support program, which narrowly escaped dismemberment in the Senate several weeks ago, will run another gauntlet in the House this week.

On either Wednesday or Thursday, the U.S. House of Representatives will consider the program along with the rest of the 1981 Farm Bill.

Already, tobacco foes in the House have proposed an amendment to abolish the tobacco program. The Senate defeated a similar amendment offered by Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore.

Tobacco-state forces, led by Rep. Charles G. Rose III, D-N.C., say they probably have the votes to fend off the amendment, but they are making no boasts about their position.

The threats to the tobacco program this year have been more intense than ever. Ironically, those threats have coincided with one of the finest flue-cured harvests in history.

Farmers are earning a record average of $1.67 per pound, and forecasters predict the value of the North Carolina flue-cured crop will be $1.195 billion, eclipsing the record of $1.09 billion set in 1980. Farmers say such figures would be impossible without government aid.

Through allotments, the government controls the number of acres on which flue-cured tobacco can be grown. Through poundage quotas, the government sets the number of pounds on which it will guarantee prices. A heavy penalty is assessed on any tobacco sold in excess of the quota.

Without such controls, farmers and others in the tobacco industry say the amount of tobacco grown would spiral out of control, resulting in drastic price decreases.

Farmers like Pitt County grower Robert A. Halstead say prices must be controlled. Halstead tends 210 acres, including a 53-acre tobacco allotment, with his son and son-in-law.

Halstead said he didn't want a handout from the federal government but said he didn't see the tobacco program as being a handout. He said he could justify the help offered tobacco farmers through the allotment program.

"How could the government justify bailing Chrysler out, the railroads?" Halstead asked. "New York City went broke, and they bailed them out. Why pick out a group (tobacco farmers) and take away the subsidy when you're subsidizing everyone else?"

The Egyptian defense minister disclosed, meanwhile, that the army lieutenant accused of masterminding the assassination of President Anwar Sadat had been checked out by military intelligence because of his religious extremism but was not found to be any threat.

TOILET TISSUE PROTEST

East Fifth Street of Greenville is once again festooned with toilet tissue. I think the East Carolina University sorority members who people the houses in front of which the trees are draped would do a lot for their public image if they would find another means of expressing their exuberance. Maybe I fail to grasp the significance of this practice and, if so, I'd like to become better informed. If there is constructiveness to it, I'd like to know. All I see it as is littering at its soggy, messy worst. H.L.

Dear Readers: It has become a tradition for me to give you directions every October for making little knit or crochet Christmas bells. These make delightful tree ornaments, lapel pins or package decorations. They are quick and easy and can be made from bits of leftover yarns.

For the knit bells, using a light weight yarn and size 20 or three needles, cast on 14 stitches. For the first row, knit 10 stitches and purl the last four. Row Two, which is the right side of your work, is made by simply knitting all stitches. Repeat these two rows until you have 22 ridges.

Bind off all stitches, leaving a 12-inch strand of yarn. Thread this yarn into a tapestry needle and sew the cast-on and bound-off stitches together.

There will be a little border of stockinette stitch at one end. This is the bottom of the bell. At the other end, run your threaded tapestry needle through every other stitch, drawing it tight. Fasten off. Tie in a little jingle bell for a clapper if you wish.

If you prefer to crochet, try these directions with sports or knitting worsted weight yarn and a size F or G hook.

Starting 2 inches from the end of yarn, chain two. Make eight single crochets in the first stitch of the chain. Place a marker at the end of each round. The eight stitches just made are counted as Round One.

Round Two: Make two single crochets in each stitch. For the next six rounds, make one single crochet in each stitch around. For Round Nine, single crochet in the first stitch, make two single crochets in the next stitch. Repeat the steps in Round Nine all around.

For the final round, (make two single crochets in first stitch, then one single crochet in each of the next two stitches), repeating the steps in parentheses to the last three stitches of this round. Work a slip stitch in each of these three stitches to even up the edge. To finish, work a slip stitch in the front loop of each stitch around. Fasten off and cut yarn, weaving in the loose end on wrong side.

With the 2-inch end of yarn left when making first chain, make a knot, draw it through to the wrong side. Attach a jingle bell to this yarn. You can vary the size of the bells by using different weights of yarn and different sizes of hooks or needles. With these basic patterns, dig deep into your box of leftover yarns and let your imagination go.

Use the wire twists from bread packages to mend torn wicker furniture. Paint them to blend with the weave.

Free Plastic Surgery To Remove Tattoos Worth Emulating Nationwide, Abby Says

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, the "Tattooed Man" wrote you, explaining the grief his self-inflicted tattoos had brought him.

Thousands of teen-agers have engraved themselves with tattoos, often as a symbol of gang identification, and later wish there was some way the tattoos could be removed. As you advised the "Tattooed Man," a plastic surgeon should be consulted. Most teen-agers, however, cannot afford a plastic surgeon, and for years the marks proclaim their youthful indiscretion and gang affiliation.

Now in the San Fernando Valley, there is a unique project, sponsored by the Los Angeles County Medical Association and Juvenile Justice Connection Project, whereby teen-agers can have gang-related tattoos removed without cost. As the plastic surgeon who performs the surgeries, I have seen several teen-agers have their lives literally turned around after removal.

For further details about our anti-gang project that offers free surgical service, please contact me by writing in care of the Juvenile Justice Connection Project, 6857 Lennox Ave., Van Nuys, Calif. 91405.

KARL N. STEIN, M.D. F.A.C.S., SHERMAN OAKS, CALIF.

DEAR DR. STEIN: Your unique project deserves this nationwide publicity. I hope it inspires other plastic surgeons around the country to initiate similar programs.

DEAR ABBY: Bless you for rerunning that wonderful patriotic poem, "If God Should Go on Strike." I had copies made and have sent them all over the U.S.A. and Canada. CECIL IN VERMONT

DEAR CECIL: Thanks, I needed that. Read on for the flip side:

DEAR ABBY: I beseech you to stop featuring such insipid poetry as "If God Should Go on Strike." It was bad enough seeing it in your column once, but twice was almost too much to bear. Believe me, Abby, these flea-brains who request reruns of such tripe are in the minority.

And while I'm writing, I implore you not to devote an entire column to one subject like drunk driving. No drunk is ever going to make it through an entire column in the first place!

What I want is letters! As many as you can cram into your space, which should be twice as long as it is. And I want these letters sensational — drugs, illicit relationships, cheating spouses, etc. This is the stuff I wake up for! Please Abby, I write this on my knees. Sign me... DISGUSTED IN L.A.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

No Market Corner

The "what-ifs..." of life do make a difference; which is one of two reasons why the results of exhuming Lee Harvey Oswald's body can be counted as good news.

Can you imagine the uproar if it was determined it was not Oswald's body buried in the grave with his name?

Uncounted articles and several books have been printed propounding far-out theories about the John F. Kennedy assassination, and one is inclined to think still more will be forth coming. The assassination of Abraham Lincoln is a good case point.)

The "other reason" for satisfaction in establishing beyond any doubt that it is indeed Oswald's body in a Dallas cemetery, lies in the fact that it was a British theorist who contended a Russian imposter lay beneath the Oswald headstone.

We take great satisfaction in the demonstration that the United States has not cornered the market in colorful speculation. Thank you, Michael Eddowes.

Golden: 'Only In America'

Harry Golden was a Tar Heel-by-choice.

His death early this month deserves mention because his monthly publication "The Carolina Israelite" and subsequent books brought him personal fame and helped to smooth the path of North Carolina during a difficult period.

Early on he became the champion of the underdog, particularly black people, and sometimes even painfully vehement if they were southern black people. It often brought him abuse but he persisted, couching his measured words in terms of concern and occasional whimsy that even those who disagreed with him had to read on.

In his own way, he was the Thomas Paine of the 20th century, and like Paine his influence among thinking Tar Heels was a growing thing which today we suspect cleared the way to reasonable acceptance across the state.

Coming to N.C. as what has been described as a middle-aged failure, he became well known in his adopted home and claiming admirers and friends the length and breadth of the land.

It could happen "Only in America".

Pity The KGB Agent

Pity the poor KGB spy who has just been recalled to Moscow from the United States to explain his recent reports on President Reagan's military decisions.

"Federov, up until recently your work in the United States has been impeccable. But lately we can't make head or tail out of anything that you have sent us."

"Is confusing, comrades, I confess. But is not my fault. I only report the truth."

"Let's start with this report. What is 'Window of Vulnerability'?"

"Is window president looks out of from White House and sees missile gap with Soviet Union. He said on television he wants to close window."

"That leads us to this second microfilm report. You said he would close the window by building an underground MX missile system in state of Nevada, and move live missiles around so we wouldn't know where they were."

"Is not my fault I sent that message. I saw it on NBC and confirmed it in New York Times."

"Then you sent us a third coded cable that president had decided not to build new MX system, but to put MX missiles in old Titan holes and add more cement."

"Comrades, I know sounds crazy, but I only reported what the president said."

"Furthermore you told us that the president is going ahead with building the B-1 bomber, which will be obsolete by the time it flies. The paper it makes no sense, but our mole in the Treasury says Reagan people are serious about it."

"Shall we continue? You left message in Rock Creek Park for Boris, which said, 'Half of U.S. Army and Navy were 'stoned.' What is stoned?"

"Drugged. They go on trip by smoking cigarettes and taking pills."

"You want us to believe U.S. military chiefs would let stoned people near nuclear weapons and billion-dollar military ships and planes?"

"Is all in Congressional Report, comrades. I left out those who were drunk because I knew you wouldn't believe me."

"And now, final message which you sent in diplomatic pouch Monday. You say U.S. is now preparing for limited nuclear war, on assumption if they keep it small, we will do same thing."

"What kind of idiots do you think we are, Federov? You made this all up, or else you're being fed by CIA disinformation agents."

"Federov, you need a rest. It's time you came in from the cold. Perhaps six months in a nice sanitarium will do you a lot of good."

"No, please, comrades. I'm not insane. I just reported the facts."

"Go quietly, Federov. Here is a present from all of us in the KGB's North-American section."

"What is it?"

"A pad and crayon. Just think. You will now have time to draw all the Laffer curves you want to."

(c) 1981, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

"Comrades, I am aware on cost is $180 billion."

"I have the tape where he announced it on television."

"All right, Federov, assuming the president said it, where is he going to get the $180 billion and still balance the budget by 1984?"

"Is simple, comrades. Is called supply-side economics. You cut federal spending, give everyone 25 percent tax cut, and the less taxes people pay, the more money you get back from the working people. Look, is all here on Laffer curve."

"Is not funny, Federov. And nobody in Soviet Union believes it."

Park's Bottleneck

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Here is a multi-million-dollar multiple choice question for you:

Wanchese Harbor on Roanoke Island at Croatan Sound is either:

(A) An internationally important seafood processing location which will pump millions of new dollars into North Carolina's coastal area, or;

(B) One of the world's biggest and most expensive white elephants.

The correct answer is not yet known.

The problem is that the big fishing boats can't get from the rich waters of the Atlantic ocean through the barrier islands to the seafood park on the other side of the shallow sound. The trawlers still have to go to Hampton or Baltimore or take their hauls to Europe instead of visiting the North Carolina Seafood Industrial Park at Wanchese.

How To Cope

Man has not been able to decide how best to cope with Mother Nature, which leads to another pair of critically important and terribly expensive questions: shall jetties be built far out into the Atlantic to stabilize the inlet, or shall constant dredging be used?

Oregon Inlet is the bottleneck, which isn't all that strange since the inlet wasn't even there to begin with. Until an 1840 hurricane blasted a hole through a Bodie Island low spot, there was no inlet.

Ever since, Oregon Inlet has shifted about and gotten bigger or smaller depending upon winds and waves. How can you make that big hole settle down?

At the start, plans for Wanchese called for two jetties of stone reaching a mile out into the ocean, with the channel through the inlet and sound to the harbor. The federal government put aside $48 million for the job; then backed off, then restored the funds.

The years went by, and so did inflation and other changes. The cost to stabilize the inlet would now run more than $100 million.

BILL NOBLITT

Then came the Reagan Administration and Secretary of Interior James G. Watt who doesn't want to spend that much money, and who isn't at all sure jetties would do the job.

The attitude is to the liking of a large number of knowledgeable people who have insisted all along the jetties wouldn't provide the right answer. Duke University Marine Geologist Orrin H. Pilkey Jr., for example, is certain that such construction would only lead to beach destruction elsewhere in the area and, eventually, to destruction of the jetties themselves. Better, say the critics, to drag and keep on dragging to keep the inlet and channel open.

High Cost

That approach is not without its economic attractions. Estimates are it would cost $14 million yearly to dredge the channel. That sounds pretty high, but pales when compared to $100 million to build jetties, and another $10 million per year to keep the stone in place and the channel cleaned out.

Meanwhile, back at Wanchese, the 40-acre Seafood Industrial Park which cost taxpayers some $8 million, with its 1,545 feet of concrete docking space and a shoreline of 25.8 acres to be leased to private seafood processing and shipping firms is having a very difficult time finding tenants ready to sign a lease and spend good money getting ready for the fishing fleet which may or may not come — or at least, may come some day but nobody knows when.

The North Carolina General Assembly put up $2.5 million, the U.S. Economic Development Administration put up $4.5 million, and the Coastal Plains Regional Commission put up another $585,000 in federal funds to build the facility. Until enough activity is generated to make the park self-supporting, the state must continue to underwrite its operation.

Other Editors Say 'Natural' Choice

The (Dunn) Daily Record

The search for a new chancellor at East Carolina University will get underway soon and already one of the names most often mentioned is that of former U.S. Senator Robert Morgan of Buie's Creek.

We don't know whether Senator Morgan would even be interested — maybe not — but he would be a natural for the post.

He served for many years on its board of trustees and for years as chairman of the board. In fact, East Carolina made more progress during his leadership as board chairman than at any other period in its history.

It was while Morgan was chairman that East Carolina became a university and it was his leadership that resulted in establishment of the university's new medical school.

The university just about tripled or more in size during Morgan's tenure.

He has the ability, the knowledge and the background and the know-how to make East Carolina an even greater university.

And serving as chancellor for a few years wouldn't hurt his political future any, either. In fact, it would give him a forum, enable him to keep contacts throughout the State and put him in an ideal situation to return to high political office when he chooses.

Even more important, it would give that university the type of administration and leadership which ECU needs and deserves.

Strength For Today

A STEADY HAND AT THE HELM

Some people always seem to be getting the worst of it in the struggle of life. They are buffeted about by one unfortunate circumstance after another. Many decide that such people are simply unlucky.

But virtually every human being has to negotiate rough waters some time — and usually a number of times — during his lifetime. This requires a steady hand at the helm and some knowledge of navigation.

It is hard for most of us to face the fact that the troubles of life in which we have become involved are largely our own fault. Sometimes we get ourselves in the position where the turbulent sea of life can have its way with us. If we had informed ourselves better, and if our seamanship had been more skillful, we might have saved ourselves a lot of trouble. We must expect storms, and prepare the proper response to them.

Each painful experience should teach us something about the best way to handle ourselves in the next crisis.

Republicans After Sadat

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Forty-three Republican senators summoned to hear an emotional appeal from President Reagan Wednesday for support on the AWACS deal were stunned when Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, peevish and unsmiling, predicted that Egypt's post-Sadat leaders would be disposed of in "six months," and offered to bet money on it.

"I'll take that bet," snapped Sen. Charles H. Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, whose courageous stands on the Mideast have hurt him back home in Illinois. Percy and Packwood reflect the widening split on Israel in the Republican Party. While heading the 1982 Republican Senate campaign, Packwood also runs the campaign against the president's AWACS deal with an intensity that has startled the White House.

What Reagan had planned in the wake of Anwar Sadat's death to bring his majority party in the Senate together may have slightly narrowed the split but intensified the bitterness. Before the meeting in the state dining room ended, Sen. Jesse Helms hinted of his concern that defeat of the deal could arouse the beast of anti-Semitism.

Tension at the meeting caused by Packwood's unsupported prediction of new Egyptian turmoil was heightened by a venomous attack on Saudi Arabia and Reagan's policy by the usually affable Sen. Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota.

Delivering what one colleague called a "tirade," he said the difference between the Saudis and the rest of the Arabs was a 10-fold increase in oil prices compared with an 11-fold increase. "What kind of friends are they?" he asked. "If the Saudis are moderates, then the rest of the Arabs are real sons of bitches."

Contrary to usual practice, Reagan interrupted Boschwitz, arguing the AWACS deal is necessary to bring the Saudis into the Camp David peace plan. But Boschwitz continued, denouncing Reagan's Saudi policy. "The Saudis have bought this government," he charged. Reagan vociferously denied it.

"I need your help," said Reagan in opening the meeting. Newly energized in the AWACS fight by Sadat's death, the president told his fellow Republicans that Democrats "would like nothing better than to knock me out" on this issue. Secretary of State Alexander Haig said that with Sadat gone, Saudi Arabia becomes all the more important as an Arab friend.

Sen. John Warner of Virginia asked the president whether he had "looked at" a Senate resolution designed to placate AWACS critics. Reagan responded that he had not only "looked at" the resolution but thoroughly approved of it.

Copyright 1981 Field Enterprises, Inc.

Thus, hope for Republican unity flourished briefly. But freshman senator Slade Gorton of Washington wanted to hear from Packwood, who began the acrimony with his forecast of an Egyptian governmental overthrow. Boschwitz's outburst followed.

Helms next went to the podium to quote an unnamed "senior Democratic senator" who had told him: "On this issue, you fellows will demonstrate in fact whether you're a majority party. You will demonstrate whether your president has any credibility in foreign policy anymore.... If you Republicans can't even support your own president, how can you ask Democrats to do so."

Helms warned: "If we slap the Saudis in the face, they will go to England and buy Nimrods (radar planes), and then they won't owe us anything." He predicted that defeat of AWACS could see a return of three-hour gas lines and added: "You fellows ask yourselves who the American people will blame for this." Without specifically mentioning anti-Semitism, Helms's warning was clear.

The most impassioned speech came from pro-AWACS freshman senator Jeremiah Denton of Alabama. He said that his long years in a Vietnamese P.O.W. camp resulted from the same blindness Congress was displaying on AWACS.

The unique baring of senatorial emotion reflects the torment over Israeli-Arab policy in the party that looked monolithic on economic policy last summer. High officials are aggrieved that vice President Bush has made only one speech in behalf of AWACS. Close advisers ask Rep. Jack Kemp how the House's leading Reaganite can oppose AWACS.

Sadat's death changed Sens. Orrin Hatch of Utah and Alan Simpson of Wyoming to the pro-AWACS side. Charles Mathias of Maryland is moving in that direction. But the harsh words said by Republican senators to the president's face in his own house show the difficulty of his late-hour struggle to avert a catastrophe for the Republican Party, not to mention the country.

Nearly Everyone Needs A Will

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Where there's a will, there's a way — to protect your family and property.

No one likes to think about death and many people delay drawing up a will in the mistaken belief that they don't need one or don't have enough money to worry about.

According to experts at Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank, just about everyone — married or single, with or without children — needs a will. "Chances are, your estate is larger than you think," says a Citibank consumer guide.

The rising value of real estate has made many people rich, on paper at least. Add the worth of your house to personal property such as an automobile, jewelry and furniture, and you can easily find yourself with an estate topping $100,000. Your savings account also is part of your estate. So are employee benefits.

If you die without a will your assets will be distributed according to state law.

The court will appoint an administrator to handle the job and the way the money is divided could surprise you. In New York, for example, if you are married, have no children and die, your estate will be shared by your spouse and your parents, if they are surviving. In some states, a distant relative can take precedence over a husband or wife.

The tax bill passed by Congress may affect your will. Until now, an individual could transfer half the value of an estate, up to $250,000, to a surviving spouse without paying taxes on it. The new law removes the limit. It also increases the size of an estate which can be passed on to heirs, without taxes. By 1987, an estate worth $600,000 will be tax-free; the current limit is just over $175,000.

As a general rule, you should have your will drawn up by a lawyer. Costs vary, depending on the complexity of your financial affairs, but you should be able to get a simple will for $100 to $200. Don't be shy about asking the price before you come to any agreement.

Do-it-yourself wills are risky. "More often than not these wills are invalid and may not represent your wishes," advises the Credit Union National Association.

Prepare for your first meeting with the lawyer by putting together a list of all your assets and their current value. Plan a tentative division of property, considering family needs and expectations, and select a guardian or guardians for minor children.

List everything you own — stocks and bonds and everything that would be due on your death: pensions, for example, or insurance benefits. A complete picture of your estate can help your lawyer plan for your family's future, even if some of the items are not actually included in the will.

Life insurance, for example, is considered part of an estate, even though the disposition of the payment generally is not subject to the provisions of a will. The benefit automatically goes to the beneficiary named in the policy.

Property that is owned jointly also is excluded from most wills. If you and your spouse have a joint bank account, for example, the balance usually will pass automatically to the survivor in case one of you dies.

Many couples assume that they can avoid a will by joint ownership of all property. The Citibank guide points out, however, that a will is still necessary in case husband and wife die at the same time.

All wills are subject to probate which is the procedure of proving, in court, that the document is a person's valid last will and testament. The term probate also has come to encompass everything that is required to settle an estate — collecting assets, paying debts and taxes and distributing money or property.

The settlement will be handled by the executor you name. If your estate is a small one, you may want to have your spouse or a friend act as executor; if it is complicated, you probably will want to appoint a lawyer or bank to act as coexecutor.

Seventeen People Die In N.C. Weekend Traffic Accidents

By The Associated Press
Weekend traffic accidents killed 17 people, including four pedestrians, the state Highway Patrol reported early today.

This weekend's deaths raised the total in North Carolina for the year to 1,113, compared with 1,185 for the same period last year.

Among the pedestrians killed was Richard Coleman, 20, of Camp Lejeune. Coleman was killed early Saturday morning when he was struck by a car passing a stopped vehicle east of Jacksonville.

Pedestrian Levon Chatman, 20, of Longwood was killed Saturday night when he was struck by a car attempting to pass another vehicle on a rural paved road south of Ash in Brunswick County.

James Robert Gilchrist Jr., 48, of Raleigh, was killed early Saturday morning when he was hit by a car while walking along a rural paved road south of Garner, troopers said.

Florence N. Allen, whose address was unlisted, died in Forsyth County when she stepped into the path of an oncoming vehicle one mile south of Winston-Salem.

In other accidents, Richard Evans, 32, of Bolivia was killed Sunday evening when he drove at high speed off rural paved road 1402 4 miles west of Bolivia. The car hit a driveway culvert and overturned twice.

Janet McFarland Dickey, 34, of St. Simon's Isle, Ga., died Sunday when the car in which she was riding ran off the right side of N.C. 1334 22 miles north of Clyde. The patrol said the car overturned and fell down a hillside.

James Edward Geter, 26, of Statesville, was killed northwest of Salisbury early Sunday when the car he was driving ran off the left side of a rural paved road, struck a ditch and overturned.

The patrol said William Thomas Sheffield, 33, of Eden was killed north of Eden Sunday morning when the car he was driving ran off the left side of a rural paved road and struck a tree.

James Anthony Price, 28, of Eden, was killed Saturday night when he drove his car through a stop sign east of Stoneville and was hit by another vehicle.

Delores Toler Barham, 48, of Whitsett, was killed late Saturday morning when she lost control of the car she was driving. The vehicle ran down an embankment and Ms. Barham was thrown from the car, the patrol said.

William T. Varner, 17, of Asheboro and Tony Teague, 22, of Ramseur, were killed when the car they were riding in ran off a rural paved road in Randolph County and struck a tree.

Denton C. Ashworth, 35, of Oak Ridge died when the car he was driving early Saturday ran off N.C. 6 north of Stokesdale and overturned in a ditch.

A Topeka, Kan., woman died when the car she was driving left a rural paved road north of Fayetteville at a high rate of speed, crossed the center line and overturned. The patrol identified the woman as Elizabeth R. Nason, 24.

Will Davis Stowe, 19, was killed early Saturday in an accident in Forsyth County. The patrol said the car Stowe was driving ran off a rural paved road north of Winston-Salem and hit some trees.

Russell Williams, 48, of Clayton, died Friday night in a Johnston County accident. The patrol said Williams failed to slow his car for a curve, hit a ditch and overturned 11 miles west of Smithfield.

Navy Buildup Backs Egypt

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The United States has greatly increased its naval presence off the Egyptian coast, following the death of President Anwar Sadat, an Israeli newspaper reported today.

The mass-circulation daily Maariv said the aircraft carrier Nimitz, two large warships and some smaller ships were cruising north of Alexandria.

Maariv quoted Israeli military experts as saying it was the largest concentration of U.S. Naval strength in the area they could remember.

A Defense Department spokesman in Washington, Lt. Comm. Skip Calvert, said the Navy "can't confirm the presence off the coast because policy doesn't allow us to discuss the ships' movement. But they (the Israelis) certainly are in a position to physically observe any of our vessels in the area."

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. has said the United States plans to discourage outside intervention in Egypt following Sadat's death by increasing its military presence in the region.

The United States plans to conduct large-scale military exercises in Egypt next month, possibly including the use of B-52 bombers.

New Post In Los Angeles

Binnie Tate Wilkin holds the newly created position of Minority Services Coordinator at the Los Angeles County Public Library.

Her new appointment is noted in the October edition of the American Library Association publication. She is the daughter of Mrs. Hatie Streeter of 402 Tyson Street, Greenville, and the late Will Streeter.

BB&T proudly presents its All Savers Certificate. Maybe it's not right for you.

BB&T's All Savers certificate has just about everything going for it.

The minimum deposit is only $500 and the term is just one year. The interest rate, as you can see, is nothing to sneeze at. And, best of all, you get $1000 in interest free of federal tax if you file an individual return and $2000 if you file a joint return.

What's more, under certain conditions, you can even convert your money market certificates to All Savers certificates without paying any early withdrawal penalties.

So you should just run out and buy a certificate today, right? Well, maybe. You see, it all depends on your tax bracket. Some people will have trouble beating this rate of return. Some people will do better with a different kind of certificate that pays a higher rate, even if the interest is taxed. And some people who can't tie up their money for even one year will do better with a different kind of savings plan altogether.

That's where we come in. We can help you figure out which type of certificate is best for you. We'll take the time to sit down with you and figure it out.

So come in to your nearest BB&T office. We think you'll find our new certificate fantastic. But even if you don't, we'll find something else for you that is.

Mt. Olive Squad Wins Trophy

WINSTON-SALEM — A Mount Olive Rescue Service team took first place in the heavy duty rescue contest while the Goldsboro Rescue Squad placed first in first aid competition at the 25th North Carolina Association of Rescue Squads' conference here Saturday.

Placing second behind Mt. Olive in the heavy duty rescue competition was the Charlotte First Aid and Life-saving Crew, while the Gates County Rescue Squad placed third.

Second place in the first aid competition was won by a Newton-Conover Rescue Squad team, while teams from Grantham Rescue Squad in Wayne County and the Avery County Rescue Squad tied for third place.

The Mt. Olive squad represented North Carolina in international heavy duty rescue competition last year in New Orleans, where they placed fifth; won the North Carolina championship last year in Charlotte; and represented the state again in international competition in Toronto in August, where the team placed seventh.

Winning state honors again Saturday makes the team eligible to travel to Baltimore next year at state expense to compete in the International Rescue and Emergency Care Association rescue competition once more.

Mt. Olive's first try at heavy duty rescue honors came in 1979 when they placed second in state competition behind a Greenville Rescue Squad team. Their first bid for international honors in 1980 came after the Greenville volunteer squad disbanded and the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department decided not to field a competition team.

Until dropping out of state and international competition last year, Greenville teams had won 13 international first aid and heavy duty rescue trophies (including three world championships) and 28 trophies, including 15 first place awards, in state competition since 1961.

Three men formerly associated with the Greenville Rescue Squad, Stuart Savage, a staff writer for "The Daily Reflector," Wilburn Small, an instructor with the N.C. Department of Insurance's Fire and Rescue Services Division, and Dawson Nethercutt, until Oct. 1, head of the Insurance Department's Fire and Rescue Services Division training program, have worked with the Mt. Olive team in preparing for state and international competition.

Another former Greenville Rescue member, Joe Burris, was captain of the Newton-Conover team which placed second in the first aid competition this year and took first place in state competition last year.

Nethercutt, a paid fire and rescue worker in Greenville before joining the Insurance Department's Fire and Rescue Services Division staff, retired from his state position Oct. 1. He was presented a life membership in the N.C. Association of Rescue Squads at a banquet Saturday night in honor of his service to rescue squads throughout the state.

Nethercutt, who's brother Paul Nethercutt retired Oct. 1 as an assistant chief of the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department, and who's brother Lyman Nethercutt was a Greenville Fire Department captain before his death several years ago, is author of the "International Manual of Basic Rescue Methods." The manual, illustrated with photographs by Savage, has been adopted by the International Rescue and Emergency Care Association, the North Carolina association, and a number of other state associations as the basic reference work in the field of heavy duty rescue methods, and is used as the basis for judging heavy duty rescue competitions.

Legislators Warn New Militancy Can Backfire

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Some state legislators meeting in last week's budget session say the new "militancy" of the North Carolina Association of Educators may backfire.

"There is a point at which there is going to be a backlash, and we may already be feeling it," said Rep. G. Malcolm Fulcher, D-Carteret, in an interview Saturday.

"If they go much farther in this militancy, it's going to hurt education in general and teachers in the classroom," Fulcher said. "You alienate certain people here, and you just might as well be beating your head against the wall."

The strong lobbying of the new president of the teachers' organization, John I. Wilson, may have helped teachers get a somewhat larger pay raise this year.

But even past friends of the NCAE, which claims 44,000 members, say the organization may have overplayed its hand.

"I think the stridency of their leadership made it more difficult for us," said Rep. Allen Adams, D-Wake, co-chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. "There's definitely resentment."

Among legislative leaders, Adams was the most vocal in support of the NCAE.

Rep. George W. Miller, D-Durham, another supporter, said the teachers' group "did not aid themselves in their approach to maintaining the best relationships in the legislative arena."

Miller and Fulcher were among the 15 lawmakers — out of 170 in the Legislature — ranked by the NCAE in August as "friends of education."

Wilson generally downplays any ill will he may have created, arguing that most of it is concentrated in the more conservative Senate.

"We really don't care if they like us, but we do care about them respecting us," Wilson said in an interview.

When asked if he planned a change in tactics, Wilson said, "Absolutely no way."

Referring to Fulcher's comments, Wilson said, "When politicians talk like that, they're just trying to make their life a little more comfortable, but we're not going to back off."

One lobbyist for state employees, allied with the NCAE in the push for the raise, was stronger in his criticism of Wilson.

"John Wilson is crazy," said J. Arch Laney, executive director of the North Carolina State Government Association.

Laney says criticism of legislators should be worded carefully to avoid offending them.

During the session last week, Wilson accused legislative leaders of a "sell-out" when they talked of a small one-time bonus instead of the 4.3 pay raise backed by Gov. Jim Hunt.

Wilson also said some legislators were putting "horses before children."

The reference was to two controversial horse show arenas the lawmakers approved for funding earlier this year.

Response To Libya Eyed

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States and Egypt will soon form a joint military commission to develop a response to any Libyan attack on the Sudan and thwart Soviet-backed aggression in North Africa, Newsweek said in its latest editions.

The project, one of Anwar Sadat's last joint ventures with the United States, has gained momentum with Sadat's assassination last week. Talks between Egyptian and American officials began earlier this year after Sadat suggested a possible Egyptian invasion of Libya to counter Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafi's expansion in the region, the magazine said.

However, Newsweek reported that Egypt is not ready to take on Libya's superior military yet. Two obstacles to the plan are the sorry state of Egypt's military and the political state of the Middle East, the weekly said.

An unidentified Egyptian attache told Newsweek "Every plan is ready. But believe me, we need equipment to fulfill our plans. We are in a hurry — any delay would be dangerous."

The United States and Egypt will test some of their contingency plans next month in a joint military exercise called "Operation Bright Star," Newsweek said. Although details have not been completed, U.S. military planners are considering an airlift of Egyptian troops over the Sudan under the cover of AWACS aircraft and also the dispatch of a small detachment from the Rapid Deployment Force to join the maneuvers, the magazine said.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" that a "very extensive" military exercise next month will involve forces from the United States, possibly including B-52 bombers, Egypt and some Persian Gulf nations.

See Surplus Of Peanuts

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — Recent ideal conditions have allowed farmers to grow so many peanuts that some buyers are turning away all peanut farmers except those with pre-arranged contracts.

Most peanut farmers are digging and harvesting peanuts, causing congestion at buying stations and storage facilities, said Norfleet L. Sugg, president of the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association.

Sugg suggested that farmers leave the peanuts in the fields for a few days and wait for market conditions to improve.

The glut comes during peak harvest season, said Joe Perry, agricultural extension agent for Edgecombe County.

"Half (of the peanuts) are dug and probably one-third or more are at the market or on the way," Perry said.

Farmers may sign contracts with a large company, such as Planters, before June 15. In the contract, a farmer is guaranteed a certain price.

Or farmers can go through a cooperative called the Peanut Growers Cooperative Association, in which minimum prices are guaranteed through U.S. government loans. The support price this year is $455 a ton.

Another choice farmers have is to speculate — storing peanuts on the farm until the price is right. But that option is rare, officials say.

Governor Urges New N.C. Goals

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt says the state must set new goals for its children to help them keep up with those from other regions.

Hunt made the comments Saturday at the 15th birthday celebration of the Frank Porter Graham Child Development Center at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The center is a division of the Child Development Institute of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is used to test and evaluate teaching techniques and courses for children.

Hunt said North Carolina had one of the nation's highest infant mortality rates and that the rate of accidents — the leading cause of death among children in the state — was 31.5 percent higher than the national average.

One of every three students in the state does not graduate from high school, Hunt said.

Say South's Poor To Be Poorer

ATLANTA (AP) — President Reagan has launched "a war on the poor" with new welfare policies that will cause more suffering in the South than any federal action this century, a non-profit research group charged today.

Forty percent of Southern recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children will be cut from the rolls by mid-1982 and 20 percent more will have their benefits slashed if all of Reagan's proposals to alter the nation's welfare system are adopted, according to a report released by the Atlanta-based Southern Regional Council.

As the home of a third of the nation's poor and half of the country's poor blacks, the South will be hit hard by changes in AFDC and programs such as Medicaid, food stamps and the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, the report said.

The report said one-tenth of the more than 2.1 million AFDC recipients in an 11-state Southern region will lose their benefits in the next five months because of new federal eligibility regulations.

Another 20 percent of AFDC recipients could be removed if requirements to report income on a monthly basis are strictly enforced.

while another 10 percent could be removed by Reagan's proposed 1982 budget cuts, the report said.

The 11 states in the region covered by the report are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

"These numbers for the basic programs affecting the poor add up like a casualty list in wartime," said the report, written by Steve Suits, the council's executive director, and Richard Lyle, its former research director.

"Indeed the numbers suggest that the national government has now transferred the war on poverty of 15 years ago to a war on the poor today," they wrote.

"The fact is that not since the eras surrounding the Civil War has the national government instituted deliberate policies and practices that will likely cause so many human casualties among blacks and whites on Southern soil."

The new federal budget "will make the poor poorer and reduce the incentives for the poor to work," Suits wrote.

The average monthly disposable income for a working Georgia mother receiving AFDC is $405, or $82 more than a non-working mother would receive. But under proposed changes, he said, the difference would be $1 a month — with earners getting $300 and non-earners $299.

More than 100,000 mostly poor and black workers have lost CETA jobs designed to provide work experience and skills, and they soon "will have no other choice than to be among the numbers of unemployed poor and attempt to enter a more restricted welfare system," it said.

A 3 percent cut in the 1982 Medicaid budget will mean a loss of $105 million to the region, the report added.

The council was formed in the 1940s to work for equal opportunity in the South.

Man Arrested After Burglary

Daniel Eugene Fulford Jr. of 1407 Van Dyke St. was arrested by Greenville police about 10:40 p.m. Friday on charges of first degree burglary following investigation of a 9:35 p.m. incident at 107 Church St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a man, later identified as Fulford, attempted to enter a bedroom window of the home, was struck in the head by a man in the dwelling, then fled.

Fulford was taken into custody by investigators an hour later at the intersection of Allen and Church Streets.

Driver Charged After Accident

Frank Broadhurst Layne of 307 Crestline Blvd. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 11:10 p.m. collision Friday at the intersection of Tenth and Charles Streets.

Investigating officers reported the Layne car collided with a vehicle driven by Harry Sylvester Brown of Oakwood Acres, causing an estimated $2,000 damage to the Brown car and $5,000 damage to the Layne vehicle.

Tax-free transfers have increased to $600,000. Under the new law, lifetime or testamentary transfers of property worth up to $600,000 will eventually escape all federal estate taxation. The unified credit introduced by the 1976 Tax Reform Act has been extended and increased in value. The current tax credit of $47,000 will be raised by increments to $192,800 by 1987. The credit will be phased in over a six-year period starting in 1982. Under the old law, unified credit can be applied to any tax liability incurred as a result of either a lifetime transfer or one which occurs at death.

The Unified Credit and Corresponding Property Exemption are as follows: 1981, $47,000, $175,625; 1982, $62,800, $225,000; 1983, $79,300, $275,000; 1984, $96,300, $325,000; 1985, $121,800, $400,000; 1986, $155,800, $500,000; 1987, $192,800, $600,000.

Unlimited Marital Deductions

Starting in 1982, most transfers of property to a spouse will be tax-free. The marital deductions associated with both estate and gifts taxes will be unlimited. Currently, only about one-half of an estate, or $250,000, whichever is larger, can be transferred to a spouse at death without being taxed. In addition, the first $100,000 in gifts to a spouse is currently tax-free; the next $100,000 is fully taxed; and after that, half of any amount is taxed. Property transfers between spouses either during life or death will be dramatically changed in 1982 with the unlimited marital deduction.

Gift Tax Annual Exclusions Increased

Starting in 1982, the available annual exclusion will be increased from $3,000 to $10,000 per gift recipient. An individual will be able to give up to $10,000 a year tax-free to each of any number of recipients. For example, a father could give each of his three children a $10,000 gift, a total of $30,000 without any gift tax liability. Such a transfer can be repeated on an annual basis. The new law retains the option of splitting gifts between husband and wives. Spouses who elect gift-splitting will be able to transfer annually a total of $20,000 per recipient tax-free. Therefore, the three children in the previous example could receive up to $60,000 worth of property in any year free of gift tax liability by the use of gift-splitting.

Police Checked On 4 Sunday Mishaps

An estimated $5,300 damage resulted from four traffic mishaps investigated Sunday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 1 p.m. accident on Tenth Street, 30 feet East of the Clark Street intersection where a car driven by Robert Junior Wilson of 1106A N. Washington St. ran into the front of the Bostic Sugg Furniture Co. building.

Police, who charged Wilson with driving under the influence and driving without a license, estimated damage at $900 to the car and $1,000 to the building.

Lester Lee Pollard Jr. of Route 4, Tarboro, was charged with careless and reckless driving after his car collided with a vehicle driven by Henry Higgs Goodson of 1102 E. Rock Springs Road about 1:45 a.m. on Greene Street, 700 feet North of the First Street intersection.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $1,000 to the Goodson car and $500 to the Pollard vehicle.

A car driven by Billy Ray Floyd of 304A Dudley St., collided with a parked car owned by Glenn Morris Williams of 1410 N. Washington St. about 1:30 a.m. on Van Dyke Street, 300 feet South of the Mumford Road intersection, causing $1,000 damage to the Floyd car and $100 damage to the Williams auto.

Police reported cars driven by Dorothy Doyle of Raleigh and James Thomas Brumbeke of Farmville, collided about 6:30 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 50 feet East of the Memorial Drive intersection.

Damage from the mishap was set at $300 to the Doyle car and $500 to the Brumbeke vehicle.

Murder Charges In Girl's Death

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Joseph Ralph Franklin, 23, of Charlotte faces a murder charge in the 1980 stabbing death of a 14-year-old Caldwell County girl.

Her body was found behind Lenoir Mall the same day the killing occurred.

Franklin was charged with Miss Moody's slaying a week after her death but the charges were dropped.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market gave ground today in quiet Columbus Day trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 5.13 to 867.87 by noon.

Losers slightly outnumbered gainers in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Late Friday the Federal Reserve reduced the surcharge it imposes for frequent borrowers at its discount rate from three to two percentage points.

The discount rate, which is the charge the Fed makes on loans to its member commercial banks, remains at 14 percent. There was speculation that it too might be cut before long.

Wall Street was expecting a quiet trading day with many financial institutions closed in observance of Columbus Day.

International Business Machines led the active list, off 3/4 at 55 1/2. A 173,000-share block changed hands at 56.

The NYSE's composite index lost .24 to 70.09. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .74 at 313.40.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 13.30 million shares at noon, down from 24.50 million at the same point Friday.

The board chairman also announced that a "public meeting will be held in the Willis Building on October 20 at 9:30 a.m." so "people can come and tell us what kind of chancellor they want ... voice their gripes ... say whatever they want to say about East Carolina University."

All members of the committee as well as ECU trustees have been asked to be at the public meeting.

Futrell has asked that interested people who want to be heard at that time to call the Search Committee's Office, 757-6946 to have their names registered to be called on. "It will be an informal meeting," Futrell said, "however, by knowing in advance who wishes to speak should keep the meeting from being a bedlam of disorganization."

Futrell noted that the search committee will meet with University of North Carolina president William Friday at 2:30 p.m. on October 20, at the Willis Building to discuss the selection of a new chancellor.

Tobacco Theft

GRIFTON - A Rt. 1, Grifton man was arrested Saturday night and charged with the larceny of $3,500 worth of tobacco from a farm in the St. John area east of here.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that deputies charged Lonnie Cogdell, 24, of Rt. 1, Box 305B, Grifton, with taking nine sheets of tobacco from a truck on the Joe Gardner farm. Bond for Cogdell was set at $3,000.

The sheriff said Gardner reported the theft of four sheets of tobacco, valued at some $1,500 from his farm. However, deputies recovered nine sheets allegedly belonging to Gardner from a Craven County tobacco barn on the Fletcher McCoy farm on Rural Paved Road 1400.

Sheriff Tyson, who said the incident was reported Saturday afternoon, noted that another arrest is expected. Investigation is continuing, he said.

"Eighteen army officers have been posted into civilian positions because of their fanatic religious tendencies," today's official statement said.

The official sources said the 18 were not under any further investigation, however. They also denied reports that army officers, other than alleged assassin el-Islambouly, had been arrested.

The defense minister, Lt. Gen. Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala, was quoted by the newspaper Mayo as saying the three other men who allegedly charged Sadat's reviewing stand with el-Islambouly previously had military connections, but were not currently in the military.

Yankees Down Brewers; Dodgers, Expos Win

By The Associated Press
When the weather turns cool, Reggie Jackson gets hot.

The aptly-named "Mr. October" lived up to his title with a clutch two-run homer that helped the New York Yankees beat the Milwaukee Brewers 7-3 Sunday night in the final game of the American League East playoffs.

That put the Yankees into the AL championship series against the West-winning Oakland A's starting Tuesday night in New York and completed the playoff picture for the two league titles.

Earlier Sunday, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Houston Astros 4-0 for the National League West championship and the Montreal Expos blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 in the East. They'll start their five-game series Tuesday night in Los Angeles.

Jackson, who has hit 16 post-season homers, smashed his second of the Milwaukee series in the fourth inning to wipe out a 2-0 Brewer lead. Oscar Gamble followed with another homer to give New York a 3-2 lead and the Yankees were off and running.

"There was a lot of pressure on us," said Jackson, referring to the 2-1 loss to the Brewers in the George Steinbrenner following a 2-1 loss to the Brewers in the fourth game Saturday.

Among other things, Steinbrenner branded his players "overpriced fat cats" and threatened wholesale changes if the team lost to the Brewers.

"George said yesterday that we would embarrass the New York Yankees if we lost three straight," said Jackson. "That really hurt. If I don't play for them any more, I don't want to leave with that on me. That was paramount."

Jackson is eligible for free agency at the end of the season.

"This team is not going to play three bad games in a row," added Jackson. "The talent is too good. I didn't want to be part of a club that lost three in a row. What he (Steinbrenner) said didn't have to be said. The pressure was on us anyway."

Steinbrenner had particularly singled out Yankee catcher Rick Cerone in his Saturday tirade, leaving him in tears, and ironically it was none other than Cerone who delivered the game-winning run Sunday night with an RBI grounder that capped a four-run fourth and later added another run with a homer in the seventh.

"Yesterday was depressing," said Cerone, who admittedly got into an exchange of vulgarities with the Yankee owner. "I thought about it, but it's over, it's in the past. No apologies are necessary."

Dave Righetti and Goose Gossage provided able relief pitching for the Yankees after Manager Bob Lemon took starter Ron Guidry out after four innings trailing 2-0. "When Reggie hit it into the seats that relaxed everybody," said Lemon. "We were on the board and that was the big turnaround for us."

Tommy John is scheduled to pitch Tuesday night for the Yankees against Oakland, which earlier swept Kansas City in the West playoffs. The A's figure to go with Mike Norris.

Jerry Reuss outpitched Nolan Ryan with a five-hitter and the Dodgers used a three-run sixth inning to beat the Astros for the third straight time.

Ryan, who had pitched a no-hitter against Los Angeles and allowed only two hits in his previous two games against them, lasted only six innings this time as the Dodgers reached the hard-throwing right-hander for three runs in their game-breaking sixth. Rick Monday and Mike Scioscia each singled home a run and another scored on an error.

Reuss, who worked nine scoreless innings at Houston in the second game of the series, which the Astros won 1-0 in 11 innings, gave up singles in the second, fourth, fifth, sixth and eighth innings, but on each occasion shut down Houston.

Ryan never has beaten Los Angeles in Dodger Stadium. His record in the park is now 0-6, including his tours with the New York Mets and the Astros.

"It's a most emotional high," said Reuss after the Dodgers came back from a two-game deficit in the five-game series. "We had to win three games, and we did."

"It's a most unusual year," Reuss said of the split season and division playoffs created by the baseball strike. "Since we were declared the first-half winners and beat the second-half winners, that makes winning the division all the more meaningful to us."

"It's tough to win without scoring any runs," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "We just couldn't get anybody over. I think anytime you get as close to winning the thing as we did, you have to be disappointed."

"But we just got beat by a good club. We just couldn't score any runs off them. If the Dodgers continue to pitch that way, nobody's going to beat them."

No starters have been officially announced for Tuesday night, but the Dodgers figure to use either Burt Hooton or Bob Welch against Montreal's Bill Gullickson.

Steve Rogers pitched a six-hitter and singled home two runs in the fifth to lead Montreal past Philadelphia. It was the Expos' first NL East title in the 13-year history of the franchise.

It was Rogers' second triumph of the series and he again beat Phillies ace Steve Carlton to seal the victory over the defending World Champions.

The victory gave Montreal Manager Jim Fanning a chance to become the first man to win a pennant after taking over in the final month of a season. Over replacing Dick Williams, Fanning led the Expos to a 16-11 record as they won a stretch battle with the St. Louis Cardinals for the second-half division title. "The club worked hard so long," said Fanning. "We had our backs against the walls for most of the last month."

Pirate JVs Fall, 33-15

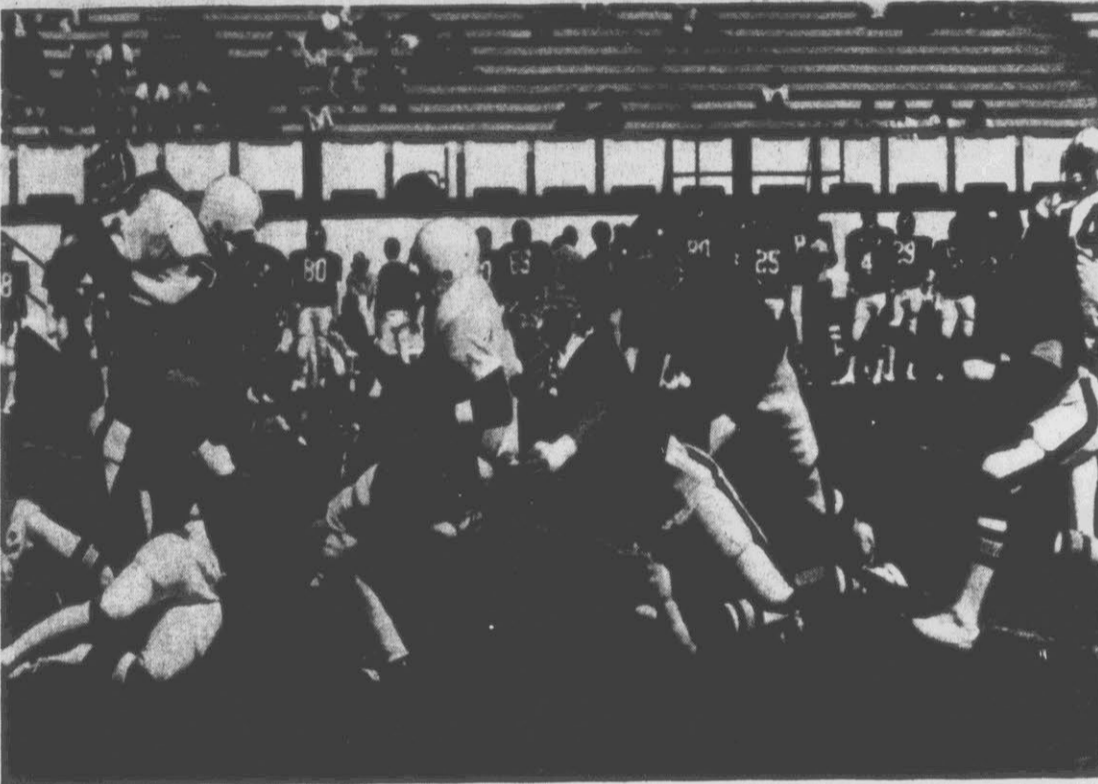

Running back Albert Howard ran for 135 yards on 11 carries and four touchdowns Sunday afternoon as Fort Bragg whipped East Carolina's junior varsity, 33-15.

Howard tallied on runs of 63, 3, 31 and 9 yards. On his first four carries he ran for 104 yards and three touchdowns to give Fort Bragg, now 5-2, a 26-0 lead. James Middleton's 12-yard pass to wide receiver James Burley provided the other Fort Bragg points.

Howard's performance overshadowed Pirate freshman running back Bubba Bunn's game-high 172 yards on 14 carries. Bunn accounted for all but 28 yards of ECU's rushing total.

Fullback Scott Lewis ran two yards and Stefan Adams carried for 11 yards for ECU's two scores. Kurt Larkins added a 31-yard field goal as ECU, now 0-3-0, closed to within 26-15 in the third period.

ECU's Odom Excited As Basketball Season Nears

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Come Thursday, East Carolina basketball coach Dave Odom will welcome his third Pirate team to the court for practice, and the coach admits that he's excited about it all.

Five lettermen return from last year's team, along with three transfers, two freshmen, and a former Pirate returning after a year's absence. In addition there are four non-letter winners from last year's team, giving the Pirates 15 players to work with.

"I don't think I've been more prepared personally," Odom said. "The new blood on our staff has brought in some new ideas, and it's caused us to reexamine some things we've done in the past and in some cases update 'em."

Odom added that this year, the Pirates would not try to play as complicated a game plan. "We tried to do too much last year," he said. "This year we will have more of a basic fast break, and a pressure defensive team."

The coach said that this year, the practice plans call for the system to fit the personnel. "The first year, we really didn't know the players, and last year, we felt we were well prepared but we didn't understand the drawbacks that youth possesses. We just weren't able to put the puzzle together."

"But this year, with the number of people we have back, we feel that this is the first year of total unity. I use that term guardedly. I don't mean to say that we have no personal problems. No team is free from that. But in terms of believing in the system, in terms of being able to say what I want when I want to the staff or the players; I feel more confident in talking with them. I don't feel I have to watch what I say. We're more of a family this year than a group of individuals. It's a good feeling to me."

Although the loss of Barry Wright to grades leaves a gap, Odom is confident that it will be filled. Back from last year's starting team are Michael Gibson (6-8 forward/center), Mark McLaurin (6-6 forward), and Charles Watkins (6-3 guard). Joining them is Tony Byles (6-4 guard), who played two years ago in a starting role.

Then, also back are Morris Hargrove (6-6 forward), and Bill McNair (6-5 forward), both of whom lettered, and Greg Batson (6-2 guard), Jeff Best (6-9 center), Mike Fox (6-3 guard) and Herbert Gilchrist (6-1 guard).

Joining them is one veteran who sat out last year in transferring from Maine, Tom Brown, a 6-6 forward.

Then, there are two junior college transfers in Charles Green, a 6-7 forward and Al Mack, a 6-9 center, along with

Raiders Shutout Once More

By The Associated Press
The first syllable of their hometown is taking on new meaning for the Oakland Raiders. "Oh," as in zero, naught, empty...

For the third week in a row, that what's the defending Super Bowl champions produced Sunday. This time, it was the Kansas City Chiefs blanking the Raiders, 27-0.

"Sure, there's a problem when you can't get the ball in the end zone three weeks in a row," said Al Davis, the Raiders' managing general partner. "We just can't let it continue."

Quarterback Jim Plunkett, benched midway through the game for the second week in a row, said there was plenty of blame to go around for the scoreless streak unmatched since the old Brooklyn Dodgers were shutout for six games in a row in 1943-44.

"It has to be an overall team effort," said the Most Valuable Player in last January's National Football League championship game. "Some things are intangible. We start off thinking we're going to get the ball in the end zone."

While the Raiders were maintaining a streak more futile than any in pro football since World War II, the Dallas Cowboys were also engaging in a piece of history they would just as soon forget.

Oakland's Bay Area neighbors, the San Francisco 49ers, and their upstart quarterback Joe Montana were stomping the Cowboys 45-14, the worst Dallas defeat since 1970.

"It was about as bad as some of those times in the early years," said Tom Landry, who has coached the Cowboys since their first year, 1960, when they went 0-11-1.

"We took what they gave us, and they gave us more than we expected," Montana, who took over as the 49ers' quarterback after a 59-14 loss to Dallas last year, said in appraising the Cowboys' defense.

The 49ers rolled up 440 yards on offense and held Dallas to 192, including just 21 yards rushing by Tony Dorsett, who entered the game as the NFL's top ground-gainer.

RAMS 37, FALCONS 35
The Rams kept pace with the 49ers atop in the NFC West by edging the Falcons on Frank Corral's 25-yard field goal with 24 seconds remaining. LeRoy Irvin returned punts 84 and 75 yards for touchdowns for the Rams. Steve Bartkowski threw three TD passes for the Falcons.

EAGLES 31, SAINTS 14
The NFL's only unbeaten and untied team, the Eagles got a pair of 1-yard touchdown runs from Booker Russell and a TD pass from Ron Jaworski. George Rogers had a 5-yard scoring run for the Saints.

VIKINGS 33, CHARGERS 31
Rick Danmeier gave the Vikings a dramatic victory with a 38-yard field goal as time expired. He had missed the conversion following Terry LeCount's touchdown catch 1:51 remaining, but was given a chance at redemption when LeCount recovered an onside kick.

BRONCOS 27, LIONS 21
Denver won its fifth game against a lone defeat behind Craig Morton's three touchdown passes, including a 95-yard pass-and-run play to Steve Watson. Detroit's Billy Sims had his best day as a pro, rushing for 185 yards and two touchdowns.

REDSKINS 24, BEARS 7
Linebacker Neal Olkewicz returned an interception for a touchdown and defensive tackle Dave Butz picked off another pass to set up a score as the Redskins won the first time this season. The Bears scored in the final two minutes on a pass from Mike Phipps to Marcus Anderson.

GIANTS 34, CARDINALS 14
Phil Simms passed for three touchdowns, two of them to Johnny Perkins, and Rob Carpenter rushed for one as the Giants evened their record at 3-3. Jim Hart's pass to Doug Marsh and Theotis Brown's 3-yard run produced the Cardinals' scores.

STEELERS 13, BROWNS 7
Terry Bradshaw hit John Stallworth with a 9-yard TD pass and Dave Trout kicked a pair of field goals for the Steelers, who won their fourth game in a row this season and their 12th straight over the Browns in Three Rivers Stadium. Cleveland's starting quarterback, Brian Sipe, left the game with a head injury following a late hit by linebacker Jack Lambert.

JETS 28, PATRIOTS 24
Three scoring passes by Richard Todd, including two to Jerome Barkum, paced the

Snead Ends Five-Year Drought

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Veteran J.C. Snead had visions of never winning another golf tournament. That was before Sunday. In what the 39-year-old veteran of the Tournament Players Association tour described as a "weird" day, Snead captured his seventh triumph in 14 years and his first since 1976, winning the $200,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament in a playoff over defending champion Mike Sullivan. Snead fired a 66 for a 72-hole total of 271, 9 under par over the 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course, including a 25-30 foot putt for a birdie on the 18th hole to forge the tie with Sullivan, who had a 64. "I made a fantastic par at 17 and then made that putt at 18. It was kinda weird the way it happened," said Snead, who now has earned $1,220,883 during his career, including $126,175 this year. Snead and Sullivan each bogeyed the par 4, 426-yard No. 1 hole in the playoff before Snead got a par on the 177-yard par-3 second hole, knocking in a two-footer after hitting his first shot about 20 feet from the hole. Sullivan, who earned $21,600, knocked his iron shot past the

Waltrip Listens, Captures 11th Race

Saturday afternoon's game at Richmond's City Stadium was one of frustration for the offense. Turnovers dominated play, with each team losing the ball four times.

And if the defense shone, then Jody Schulz of East Carolina was the star of the whole show. Although he was only credited with seven tackles on the unofficial stats, he was everywhere.

(Official stats, unlike those of the offense, are not kept in the press box, but are gleaned from reviews of the game films by the respective coaching staffs.)

Schulz was there to intercept a key pass that put the Pirates into the lead for the first time against Richmond's Spiders. He was also there when Gerald Sykes, who had earlier intercepted a pass, blocked a field goal. Schulz picked up the ball and returned it far downfield to put the Pirates in position for a second touchdown in the fourth period that eventually allowed them to win.

Coach Ed Emory said earlier that Schulz, a transfer from Chowan, is the caliber of player that East Carolina needs to move into into a higher plane of play. He has shown that most of the year with his play at defensive end.

Emory has stated that Schulz may be the best defensive end ever to play at East Carolina. That says a lot considering people like Zack Valentine and Cary Godette. So far, however, Schulz is living up to that statement. While he has another year to go before he can stand with those former greats, he certainly has stood in their footsteps on several occasions this year so far.

The victory by the Pirates may have cured some ills, but not all of them. The offense still sputtered, unable for the most part to move the ball against the Spiders. Richmond went into the game with the number one pass defense in the nation, and East Carolina's 50 yards passing did nothing to shake that rating.

The Pirates, who have been with the wishbone since Pat Dye took over the coaching reigns in 1974, did use the I-formation on several occasions in the game, hoping to shake up Richmond's preparations. However, it didn't seem to work. Whether Richmond was ready for it, or the Pirates just didn't execute is of course the question.

We do expect to see more of it.

Fans, however, were disappointed in the offense, and continued barbs in that direction will continue to fly.

Surprises continue to dot the football schedule. Just take a look at some of the weekend highlights: Southern California being beaten by Arizona, Alabama getting tied by Southern Mississippi, a team that just did beat Richmond two weeks ago; Oklahoma losing to Texas, the second loss in a single year for the Sooners; Brigham Young being upset by Nevada-Las Vegas; Wisconsin beating Ohio State and standing atop the Big Ten (it's apparently no longer the Big Two-Little Eight); Notre Dame losing its third game of the year, to Florida State; Duke topping Virginia Tech.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of the weekend is the way North Carolina continues to roll along, despite the loss of Kelvin Bryant. The Tar Heels were no less devastating in their 48-10 win over Wake Forest Saturday afternoon.

And on the area high school scene, Northern Nash's victory over Rocky Mount puts a new light on the Big East Conference race. While it helps Rose, it will take at least one more upset of the Gryphons before Rose will be able to move back into the first playoff spot — and avoid a long road grind in the playoffs.

That is — providing Rose doesn't slip up in its final four games and remains unbeaten. The Rampants have onto to look back to last season to remember losing three of their final four, dropping the conference championship, and a chance to go to the playoffs.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — No stocks or bonds are involved, but Darrell Waltrip says, "When Junior Johnson speaks, I listen."

Johnson, Grand National stock car car-builder, team owner and legendary driver, hired Waltrip a year ago and told the 34-year-old Franklin, Tenn., driver he expected the team to win "12 or 13 races" this season.

Waltrip appears to have listened well. His impressive victory Sunday in the National 500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway was his 11th of the season, with three remaining.

It also was his third in a row, the most since Cale Yarborough — then driving for Johnson — won four straight in the fall of 1976 on the way to the first of three consecutive driving championships.

"I think Junior is the smartest man in racing," said the grinning Waltrip, who increased his Winston Cup lead over Bobby Allison to 58 points. "But when he said he wanted to win 12 or 13 races, it was hard to imagine.

"I've won seven or eight in one season before, and it wouldn't be unusual for other guys to do that in a 30-race schedule. But it's hard to conceive in 1981, with the competitive situation we have among so many teams now, that we could do this.

"Of course, realistically speaking, we've won a couple of races we shouldn't have. And we've lost a couple we shouldn't have. But it's been kind of a charmed year, and you've got to give everybody on the team a lot of credit."

Whether or not luck has had anything to do with Waltrip winning six of his last 11 races and finishing no worse than third during that streak, one thing proven Sunday was the thoroughness of Johnson's team.

When crew chief Tim Brewer and his teammates arrived at the garage area Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, they immediately began checking out the car and warming up the engine. Within minutes, a crack developed in one of the cylinder heads and the entire engine had to be scrapped.

"I came in and there was a lot of long face and the engine that ran so strong yesterday (in practice) was on the truck," Waltrip said. "And the engine that had been on the truck since July as a backup was in the car.

"If we hadn't of changed it, the other engine probably wouldn't have gone 20 laps."

Waltrip, who earned the team $51,600 from the record purse of $359,195, drove his Mountain Dew-sponsored Buick Regal across the finish line 31.7 seconds ahead of second-place Allison.

Ricky Rudd was third, just behind Allison, with Tommy Ellis fourth, one lap behind, and Ron Bouchard fifth, two laps down.

And, despite a race record 12 caution flags and a late challenge by Allison, the finish wasn't even as close as the margin of victory would indicate.

The last yellow flag came out with just 17 laps remaining in the 334-lap event, when rookie Tim Richmond's car, running a strong third, blew an engine on the front straightaway.

That sent both Waltrip and Allison into the pits to top off the gas tank and change four tires. But the luckless Allison was left behind when his crew had trouble getting the right front tire off his Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

Allison lost a full lap, leaving Waltrip all by himself on the lead lap when the green flag fell for the final time with only 10 circuits around the 1.5-mile banked track remaining.

That's when Allison and Rudd engaged in a heated duel for the second spot and zipped past Waltrip to get back on the same lap with the eventual winner.

"I shot out there pretty good for a few laps, but I knew those two were going to be running for position and I didn't want to be racing that hard, so I let 'em by," Waltrip explained. "With about four laps to go, I backed off it and just tried to stay out of trouble."

Allison, like the nine-year younger Waltrip looking for his first national championship, said only, "We haven't given up yet."

With a crowd estimated at more than 110,000 on hand, Waltrip averaged 117.483 mph, the slowest winning speed since Speedy Thompson's 112.76 in the 1960 National 500 inaugural.

It was a very disappointing day for a lot of top competitors.

Neil Bonnett, who Waltrip said had "the strongest car in the field," led six times for 135 laps before his engine blew on lap 190.

Buddy Baker was running fourth when his car was rammed on the pit road, damaging the steering and forcing him to retire on lap 63.

Richard Petty's and Cale Yarborough's cars also blew engines while challenging for the lead, defending national champion Dale Earnhardt went out midway through the race with ignition problems and Harry Grant, still looking for his first Grand National victory, was leading the race on lap four when his engine gave broke.

There were several crashes and spins during the race, but no injuries were reported.

Brown Injured In 4-1 Loss To W&M

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — East Carolina's soccer team may have lost more than a match Sunday afternoon. The Pirates may have lost a goalie.

Mark Gardiner scored two goals to lead 18th-ranked William & Mary to a 4-1 victory over the Pirates yesterday, but Coach Brad Smith's immediate concern was about goalie Steve Brown.

Brown was hit in the eye with the ball early in the opening half of play and was forced to leave the match. There was reportedly bleeding behind his eye and officials are unsure of Brown's status for the rest of the season.

William & Mary, now 8-1-1, scored four goals in the opening half — two by Gardiner and one each by Thom Suttive and Richard Miranda to take a 4-0 lead at intermission. ECU's lone goal was scored by Brian Winchell on an assist from Mark Swann.

ECU took 10 shots to W&M's 22. Brown had three saves before leaving and his backup, freshman Danny Curtis, had 15 saves.

W&M goalie Juergan Kloof had four saves. ECU, now 3-7-0, travels to Pembroke State Wednesday.

High Point Whips ECU Women, 8-1

HIGH POINT — High Point won all six singles matches to easily defeat East Carolina, 8-1, Sunday afternoon in a college women's tennis match.

ECU, now 2-3, will play host to Wake Forest Tuesday at the River Birch Tennis Center.

freshmen Bruce Peartree, 6-0 guard, and David Reicheneker (6-10 center).

Odom feels that despite they didn't play at East Carolina last year, Byles, Brown, Mack and Green are proven players.

"Everyone will get their fair shake," he said. "But just because a player was here last year doesn't mean he will be able to coast. And on some given nights last year, that's what we did."

Odom said the older players will be given first shot, but that this doesn't mean that the seniors will be starting. (There are, by the way, only three seniors, Byles, Gibson and McLaurin.)

"The change is some players in so noticeable," Odom added. "I had to realize that the freshmen had to step on their own feet some last year. But this year, these people are more confident. They know what they have to do even though they are still young veterans."

During the first couple of weeks, Odom sees a period of "getting to know each other." Offensively, the Pirates will be trying to establish themselves as passers first and scorers second. "We were an atrocious passing team last year. We should be much better this year."

Defensively, the Pirates will work on ball pressure and support defense. "We want to play as a unit, and we will not allow someone to say, 'He's not my man.' He's everybody's man."

Odom said that while there hasn't been a lot of talk among the players about the new conference alignment, the players are aware of it.

"They are beginning to ask questions about the conference teams: who are they, where are they, and what kind of year are they looking for. They understand that our attention will be on these teams. Last year every player was a season unto itself. This year that's not true. We can experiment some in our non-conference games."

Odom also noted that the conference affiliation has meant a difference in the early recruiting by the Pirates.

"There were doors that we knocked on last year that weren't even opened to us week in a row we've played people in our division (American Conference East), and we're going to give it the best we've got."

Miami is the AFC's top team at 4-0-1. The last time the Dolphins were unbeaten after five games was in 1972, when the team posted the NFL's only 17-0 record.

"The crowd is always loud up there, but that shouldn't be our problem," he says. "I think the Buffalo Bills will be the problem. But this is the third

Barbara Mandrell Bids Tonight For Second Honor

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)

— Barbara Mandrell makes a bid tonight to become the first artist to win the Country

Music Association's entertainer-of-the-year award two years in a row.

The petite singer is one of five finalists for the prestigious award, facing competition from Kenny Rogers, George Jones and the groups Alabama and the Oak Ridge Boys.

The show, which traditionally commands top television ratings, will be televised live by CBS from the Grand Ole Opry House at 9:30 p.m. EDT tonight.

Miss Mandrell, star of her own weekly network variety show on NBC, was named entertainer of the year in 1980, and is a co-host for tonight's program.

She also is a finalist for female vocalist of the year along with newcomer Terri Gibbs, 1980 winner Emmylou Harris, veteran Loretta Lynn and Anne Murray whose style appeals to pop audiences.

Finalists for top male vocalist include four former winners — Jones, Ronnie Milsap, Rogers and Don Williams — plus veteran Willie Nelson.

Up for single of the year are "Elvira" by the Oak Ridge Boys, "I Believe in You" by Williams, "Old Flame" by Alabama, "Somebody's Knockin'" by Miss Gibbs and "I Was Country (When Country Wasn't Cool)" by Miss Mandrell.

Contenders for top album are "Feels So Right" by Alabama, "I Am What I Am" by Jones, "I Believe in You" by Williams, "Out Where the Bright Lights Are Glowing" by Milsap and "9 to 5 and Odd Jobs" by Dolly Parton.

One of five nominees will be chosen for the Country

Music Hall of Fame. They are pioneer singer Vernon Dalhart, the late singer Lefty Frizzell, colorful singer Little Jimmy Dickens, singer-composer Floyd Tillman and Grand Ole Opry announcer Grant Turner.

Other categories are song of the year (for a songwriter), vocal group of the year, vocal duo of the year, instrumental group of the year, instrumentalist of the year and the horizon award for a promising newcomer.

About 5,200 singers, musicians, songwriters and other professionals in country music are eligible to vote for the winners.

FBI Probing Alleged 'Contract' On Newton

NEW YORK (AP) — The FBI is investigating a report that New York-area mobsters ordered a death contract on entertainer Wayne Newton, the New York Daily News said today.

FBI agents were told by a Bridgeport, Conn. informer that leaders of the Gambino crime family had put out a contract on Newton because he is a key government witness in an extortion case that led to the indictments of Frank Piccolo and his cousin Guido Penosi, both reputed captains in the New York-base mob, the newspaper said.

Piccolo, 58, who allegedly ran family rackets in Fairfield County, Conn., was shot to death by two ski-masked men last month.

Penosi, a former New York City resident, lives in Beverly Hills, Calif., and reportedly runs Gambino operations in Los Angeles and Las Vegas, the Daily News said.

Singer Lola Falana had testified with Newton before grand juries in New Haven, Conn. and Las Vegas. They are expected to be star witnesses at the extortion trial.

According to the paper, the Gambino family was particularly angry over national publicity generated by the wealthy entertainer's role in the case, which has triggered other investigations.

The Las Vegas Sun said Newton "was informed of the reported syndicate contract by the FBI in late September, and his team of body guards quickly moved to take safety measures."

Newton was said to be vacationing in Mexico and not available for comment.

NBC News reported Oct. 7, 1980 that Newton was expected to be called before the grand jury investigating possible Mafia connections in his purchase, along with partner Ed Torres, of the Aladdin Hotel in Las Vegas.

Newton contacted Penosi for "help with a problem" during the entertainers attempt to purchase the Strip hotel, NBC said. But Newton testified under oath before the Nevada Gaming Control Board that he knew Penosi only as a fan and family friend.

IN REHEARSAL — Alexander Godunov and Judith Jamison perform pas de deux Thursday at the Ailey School Studios in New York City as they rehearse for a Dec. 3 opening at the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater at City Center. Godunov, formerly of the Bolshoi Ballet, will be making a first guest appearance with the troupe. Ms. Jamison will be making her first appearance with the Ailey troupe since she left it to star in the Broadway musical "Sophisticated Ladies". (AP Laserphoto)

BOSTON (AP) — Retired opera singer Beverly Sills was one of three people awarded honorary degrees by Boston University in a celebration of the centennial anniversary of its Sargent College of Allied Health Professions.

The honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degrees were awarded Sunday at a special convocation to recognize contributions to rehabilitation.

Miss Sills, director of the New York City Opera since 1979 and the mother of two children born with physical disabilities, has devoted much time to the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation.

Nickel Tax Money Pays For State's Agriculture Research

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

When blue mold attacked North Carolina's tobacco crop two years ago and threatened farmers with financial disaster, a little-known self-help program for farmers came up with the money for initial research on the disease.

In 1980 when aflatoxin contamination of crops caused a loss of more than $100 million in North Carolina, the program came through with funds for research and prevention.

The program is called Nickels for Know-How, a name that doesn't sound impressive, but agricultural extension agents across the state say the funds it provides are desperately needed.

"The program is just a tremendous asset to all farmers in this state," said Bobby Peak of the Buncombe County agricultural extension office. "It provides money to fill in the gaps when it's needed."

"For example, when blue mold was really getting a toe-hold on the burley crop, Nickels for Know-How provided funds to get research started," he added. "That kept us from having to go back to the Legislature and try to get more funds. By the time they (legislators) could have acted, it would have been too late."

The Nickels for Know-How program was established in 1951 by the state's agricultural leaders. The General Assembly enacted legislation that year allowing each ton of feed and seed purchased to carry an assessment of a nickel. The money collected each year went for emergency situations, such as the blue mold and aflatoxin problems, and for agricultural research.

The money was collected by the state Department of Agriculture and went to the Agriculture Foundation of what was then North Carolina State College.

Nickels collected from farmers all over the state now total about $230,000 a year.

The program is the only one of its kind in the country, according to Agricultural Foundation spokesman Robert N. Wood.

"Many states in this country have been envious of our program," Wood said. "We're the only state that has this type of program, although some others have looked at ours and now have similar ones."

Farmers vote on extending the program every six years. The issue will go to farmers in county-by-county balloting on Nov. 24, but there will be a slight change in the referendum. This year, farmers will be asked to raise the nickel assessment to a dime.

"I know that doesn't sound like very much money but in a time of inflation when there is a shortage of funds everywhere, you can bet farmers will look very carefully at this issue," Peek said. "They'll want to know what the program is doing for them."

Meanwhile, agricultural leaders are urging farmers to approve the nickel increase. A promotional package prepared by N.C. State listing accomplishments of Nickels for Know-How has been sent out to county extension agents to share with farmers in their areas.

"I know how I feel about the program and I hope farmers feel the same way," Peek said. "It's such a small amount of money that the average person wouldn't even realize that he had contributed anything. But it will enable us to continue one of this state's best agricultural programs."

Ex-Hostage Is Hinting Race

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Bruce Laingen, charge d'affaires in Iran when the U.S. Embassy was taken over in 1979, is considering running for the U.S. Senate, the chairman of the state Republican Party says.

GOP Chairman Allen Levey told the Baltimore Sun this weekend that Laingen has set up an advisory committee to look into the candidacy.

"He's definitely interested," Levey said. Laingen, vice president of the National Defense University in Washington, could not be reached for comment over the weekend.

Hunt Triumph In All But A Liquor Tax

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — When state legislators left town for the first time this year back in July, Zeb Alley figured he and his boss, Gov. Jim Hunt, had won just about everything they wanted.

Hunt, in baseball parlance, had batted .999, said Alley, the Waynesville lawyer who served as Hunt's chief lobbyist through the wars over the gasoline tax, hazardous waste bills, crime issues and other proposals.

But as legislators ended their special session Friday, Hunt had suffered at least one rare legislative loss. The heavily Democratic Legislature, in its week's term, had given Hunt the $300 million water bond issue he wanted and gone along with a substantial pay raise for teachers and state employees, which he also wanted.

Yet the issue Hunt had been pushing for months — higher taxes on alcoholic beverages, with the proceeds going to the state highway program — had been denied him. It wasn't dead, but it was left in a hostile Senate subcommittee where chances may be worse, since the next time it can be considered is next June, in an election year for legislators.

Alley still boasted of a successful term for Hunt, though with a different analogy and only a slightly diminished record.

"Let's say he earned a 95," said Alley. "I don't think it hurt him not to win the liquor tax. I think the average person realizes he didn't have but five days to win it, and that just wasn't enough."

Whatever the explanation, the failure of Hunt to win a major proposal such as the alcoholic beverage tax increase has been rare during his five years as governor. About the only previous loss of that magnitude has been defeat of the Equal Rights Amendment, an issue so hotly emotional that Hunt's influences proved ineffective.

Not surprisingly, then, some legislators and legislative observers have wondered whether it signalled a waning of Hunt's powers of legislative persuasion now that he is in a second and final term.

The answers are mixed, depending on who is asked, but even Hunt's partisan opponents aren't saying he has lost much.

"I don't think he has the clout that he did the first time we came down here this year," said Republican Rep. Howard Coble of Greensboro. "But he's still got a lot of influence at the tip of his fingers."

"I just think the fact he didn't get the beer and liquor tax shows he has to do more than snap those fingers to get what he wants now."

Before the special session began, top administration officials had to convince some that Hunt really wanted the liquor tax — that he wasn't simply advocating it in hopes of reaping whatever public relations benefits go with trying to tax demon rum.

And Hunt did vigorously pursue the tax, putting Alley to work on it nearly full time while others pushed the bond issue and budget concerns for him.

Later, however, administration officials were saying his failure to win the tax measure didn't hurt his political standing.

"When we went after the gas tax, it became so big we had to win it," one Hunt ally privately observed. "We wanted this one, but we didn't have to win it."

There may have been another Hunt setback this year. Lawmakers refused to go along with his plan for reducing classroom size in the middle grades of public schools. But legislative leaders gave every indication they would pass it next year.

And Alley argued that the setback on liquor is only a small part of Hunt's victories from the six-month regular session — he won $24 million for his pet project, the microelectronics center; $2.5 million for another of his favorites, the math and science high school; and passage of criminal sentencing changes, new crime measures and a waste-management law.

One respected Democrat who opposed Hunt on the 3-cent hike in gasoline taxes said if Hunt has lost any influence, you wouldn't know it among legislators.

"Early in the session I thought the governor's influence had waned," said Rep. Edd Nye, D-Bladen. "But I see no evidence that it has waned now. In fact, I think it may have increased, if that's possible."

"We haven't turned him down on anything. He prevailed over the legislative leadership on the pay raise, and they were adamant about it... The liquor tax was just not that big, and I don't believe the governor lost anything on it."

FOCUS

Animals Have Rights, Too

Animal rights activists, who are ending a 3-day conference in Maryland today, hope that theirs will be the great "rights movement" of the Eighties. Important strides have been made in civil, women's, and human rights areas, but there's still a long way to go in animal rights. Although corporations and even ships have the right to sue or be sued in court, animals have no such legal standing. Our disregard for animals is evident when we call someone a "turkey," a "shrew," or even a "male chauvinist pig." Animal rights activists believe this could all change and as Leonardo Da Vinci said 500 years ago: "The time will come when people such as I will look on the murder of animals as they now look on the murder of humans."

3 Starving Tots Found

NEW YORK (AP) — Police are seeking a 22-year-old woman whose three boys, ranging in age from 6 months to 2½ years, were discovered hungry and unattended in a Lower East Side apartment "ankle-high" in garbage and filth.

Tenants of the building told police they had last seen the boys' mother Friday. The three had not been fed in at least two days, police said after they were discovered Sunday, but were not otherwise harmed.

The infant was "stuffed" between a mattress and a wall with "flies and roaches crawling all over him... our first impression was that the baby was dead because he was motionless," said police Officer Anthony Lanigan.

"The apartment was strewn ankle-high with garbage, broken bottles and human feces."

Lanigan and his partner, Officer Kenneth Peterson, were summoned to the first-floor apartment by police Inspector Steve Kemp.

The boys, ages 6 months, 16 months and 30 months, were taken to Bellevue Hospital where they were examined, fed and released into the custody of the city Bureau of Child Welfare.

Nearing Accord

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Twelve of the 13 governments in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries now agree on adopting a unified crude oil base price of $34 a barrel, the Middle East Economic Survey reports.

Only Venezuela still has reservations, the weekly oil journal said Sunday without elaboration.

Saudi Arabia, which pumps 40 percent of OPEC production, has the cartel's lowest price at $32 a barrel. Venezuela has one of the highest at $36 a barrel. The other OPEC members are Iraq, Iran, Kuwait, Libya, Algeria, Qatar, United Arab Emirates, Indonesia, Nigeria, Ecuador and Gabon.

ORONO, Maine (AP) — Stephen King, who once collected a $69.81 prize from the University of Maine English Department, has returned to his alma mater for a more distinguished award.

King, author of a string of bestselling novels, on Friday received the General Alumni Association's Career Award, the highest prize given by the department at the university's Orono campus.

It is given annually to the alumnus who enhances the reputation of the university the most through career achievements.

The 1970 graduate won the $69.81 Hamlet award for a one-act play called "The Accident." But he's more famous for his popular books "Carrie," "The Shining," "Firestarter," "The Stand," "Salem's Lot," "Night Shift" and "The Dead Zone."

King, 34, is the youngest alumnus ever to receive the Career Award.
